Western economic plan is due today

BONN, West Germany (AP) - President Carter and leaders of six other major non-Communist nations today are unveiling an agreement on what U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal called a "concrete and concerted action program" to deal with global economic problems.

The economic summit's communique, to be issued after the final session this afternon, was expected to include specific targets for economic growth, employment, and inflation in each of the seven participating na-

Conference sources, who asked not to be identified, said this afternoon that West Germany would promise to take action increasing its gross national product by one percentage point beyond its anticipated increase. which was expected to be significantly lower than the four percent growth forecast for the United States. West German growth could increase the markets for U.S. products.

Carter told reporters Sunday night, after the first rounds of economic summitry, that "the finai results of the deliberations will be good.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said a separate statement to be issued today would include an agreement on "new approaches to terrorism." He offered no details.

Sources in key delegations said the statement would list anti-hijack measures, including the banning of commercial flights to nations harboring hijackers.

As the conference's final session began today, with a focus on trade barriers between the industrialized and developing countries, the dollar's value increased in the world money markets, while dealers watched for new summit developments.

Carter, Schmidt, and the leaders of France and Britain met at breakfast today to discuss developments in Berlin, which Carter visited Saturday. The U.S. president planned to return to Washington late tonight.

In addition to Carter, Schmidt, British Prime Minister James Callaghan and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, the leaders of Canada, Italy and Japan have attended the summit meetings.

Blumenthal told reporters agreements were reached on economic growth, inflation, employmeno, energy and international monetary problems.

While the United States was under pressure at the summit to pledge meaningful energy conservation, West Germany and Japan in particular were pressed by Carter to expand their domestic economies and create larger markets for American ex-

Blumenthal said the Germans and Japanese "are prepared to take, if necessary, substantial measures" to satisfy Carter on that point.

Blumenthal said the program evolving from the summit "will be concise and meaningful in its nature." He also said at another point that the summit participants would issue individual statements about "the policies and the goals" they will

He said six of the seven government heads, including Carter, are on politically shaky ground at home and might deem it wisest to pledge their support for goals without stating exactly how they intend to reach them.

This official said Giscard d'Estaing, whose party emerged stronger than expected in parliamentary elections earlier this year, was the only leader at the summit who does not have domestic political problems. Blumenthal reported that Carter

Dayan terms Egypt's proposals 'irrelevant'

JERUSALEM (AP) - Egypt has made new peace proposals to Israel, but Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan says they will have no effect on his meeting in Britain with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim the proposals dealt with the return of the Sinai Peninsula to Egypt and not with the deadlock over the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the future of Palestinians there and in the Gaza Strip.

Unattributed reports in Israeli newspapers Sunday said Sadat asked Israel to propose a new border for the occupied West Bank, an indication that Egypt would agree to Israel's retaining some of the territory. And the Jerusalem Post, which interviewed Sadat in Austria, said he "clearly indicated" Egypt would agree to "a strategic military presence remaining in the West Bank after a peace agreement.'

But the newspaper Haaretz reported today that Sadat proposed Israel return half of the Egyptian territory it still occupies in the Sinai Desert at LOUISVILLE: No major fires have been reported since 600 firemen put up picket lines at City Hall and 23 fire houses Saturday. National Guard troops and 1,400 volunteer firemen in surrounding Jefferson County are on call in case of a big blaze.

City officials have a hearing today before Jefferson County Circuit Judge George Ryan to seek a contempt order.

Negotiators for the firemen's union walked out of contract talks Saturday. Firefighters then went on strike for the second time in two days, violating a court back-to-work order and a state law barring strikes by public employees.

City Fire Chief Thomas Kuster said supervisory personnel were "holding the status quo" at the seven firehouses still staffed.

Mayor William Stansbury said the city was willing to talk but "no such bargaining will be held until the firefighters return to their jobs." But Steve Catlett of the union's executive committee said Sunday, "The only chance of a return to work is a signed

Tom Forshee, the city's chief negotiator, said the city's last contract offer would use up all $900,006 earmarked for emergencies, beyond the 5.5 percent budgeted wage boost for firefighters.

He said the offer would increase wages and benefits for firefighters with five years' experience from $12,-758 to $14,315. The city previously offered wage and benefits increases of about $1,200 a year per person. The union had asked about $400 more.

CLEVELAND: City Safety Director James Barrett says he found four policemen asleep in their cars, apparently disobeying an order to patrol on foot several public housing projects in high-crime areas.

Barrett said he made a personal check of projects Saturday night. 'There was nobody there,' Barrett declared angrily. "At least two sites we observed patrol officers asleep on their assignments."

Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Daniel Corrigan ended the brief walkout by finding the 1,500member association in contempt.

Barrett said the patrolmen have disobeyed orders since July 8, when City Hall launched a federally funded security program at 14 of the city's 32

But if you're numbered among the young 'uns upon which youth is wasted, or so say the sages, maybe the "good old days" were last summer. If you're lucky, they'll be in the near future or today.

It is the sentimentalist who drifts into those faded years and longs for those yesteryears that will never again be. Perhaps he wistfully hopes for a slippage in progress that, miraculously, will bring a return of Man, the reasoning animal, rises and falls. It is his ethics, his morality or the lack of it, that makes all men equal. When it comes to clout, intellect, economics, talent and other values, certainly one man isn't equal

Were the good old days really all that great? History records much suffering, anguish and turmoil. What people call the "good old days" were, perhaps, times of relative happiness. Perhaps they were the moments of goodwill when man felt good about himself, his neighbor and the passing Reflection can bring a return of the good days. Projection says those days can return. And, best of all, the good old days can be right now. Look back years from now and see. If "things" get worse before the change comes maybe these days of uncertainty will, to some, not be so bad after all.

Next time you drive by an antiquated and stately old courthouse, such as the one at Stephenville or at Marfa or Garden City, you might recall the times when old men sat on benches and chewed the fat or just silently reflected as they whittled. Back then, they surely reminisced and recounted days gone by. No doubt, they talked politics, about the state of the union, and exchanged ideas and, for shame, gossiped. Of course, they wouldn't call it that; that's what their wives did in quilting sessions.

Even in playing dominoes at the country store or at the blacksmith's shop, old men never knowingly talked idly about neighbors. Among other things, they talked about the state of the community and such lofty things. And if a few names happened to crop up in the course of the conversation, well, that was just to give some bearing, something concrete, to the ab-

After all, dogs do bark at strangers year-old Esther Lewis has a 5-foot-long, 40-pound alligator on her shoulder, holding it as you would to

'Don't mind Eddie hissing," she says. "Dogs bark at strangers, don't they?"

Mrs. Lewis has been collecting reptiles and the like since her childhood in Mt. Ayr, Iowa, where she turned an open pit with a fountain into a "snake museum" and persuaded local grocers to save tarantulas for her when banana shipments arrived.

Talking a mile a minute, Mrs. Lewis leads the way to what would be the family room, where a sliding glass door opens onto a huge, manicured back yard and a wooded section beyond. In the room there is the sound of running water, a play area, partitioned units with sliding doors, glass cages. Everything is spic and span, and odorless.

It's here that the petite Mrs. Lewis, a former model and a founder of the Chicago Herpetological Society, pampers her turtles, snakes, North American alligators, tarantulas and a iguana named Dot-and a visitor pulled and held. With Gorgeous George put back, Mrs. Lewis turned her attention to "Tea," a 34-pound alligator. She cuddled him against her shoulder. Tea did not hiss. He even looked as if he was smiling.

'Tea has been held by 8,000 children and taken by leash to shopping centers and other places for charity appearances," said Mrs. Lewis, who hosts school groups, conducting educational programs in herpetology and conchology. In addition to the reptiles, she collects sea shells from the world over and has a half million of them on dazzling display in special rooms.

When Tea was only 6 inches long, some smart

It's not a pat hand

President Carter, during a recent press conference, denied emphatically that the United States is playing the People's Republic of China against the Soviet Union.

This was a proper pro forma statement. Had the President responded otherwise, he simultaneously would have offended the Chinese and needlessly added to the already considerable alarm of the Russians.

Nevertheless, it is obvious the Carter administration has made a fundamental policy decision that closer ties with a strong mainland China serve U.S. national interests. This policy is viable, not to say compelling, because the Soviet Union's ongoing aggression, coupled with its frightening military buildup. destabilizes the world balance of

The U.S. also has unusual leverage because of the deepseated hostility between the Chinese and Russians, which is racial, political, geographic and historical.

Richard Holbrooke, assistant secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific affairs, enunciated the administration's warming attitude toward China and the reason for it in a significant speech in Hawaii on June 16, which did not receive the public attention it merited.

Mr. Holbrooke, for the first time, suggested this nation's shared strategic concerns with China were directed at containing the Soviet Union. "Although important differences remain with Peking, it is fair to say that the United States, China and Japan share an interest in maintaining the strategic balance that exists today," he

Very well. But if the United States is to play the Chinese card against the Russians, as Leonid I. Brezhnev bitterly termed it in a strong warning to Washington. the real question is how shall it be played?

The first step was suggested by Mr. Holbrooke in his Hawaii address: normalization - the establishment of full diplomatic relations - "is an essential objective for our new Asian policy," he said. The chief difficulty with this is the impasse between Peking and Washington over the disposition of Taiwan. The United States insists, and well that it should, that China renounce the use of force to unite Taiwan with the mainland, while China insists the United States must sever diplomatic and defense ties with Taiwan before diplomatic relations proceed beyond the current liaison-office stage.

Full diplomatic relations may have to wait until later, inasmuch as the admimistration is unlikely to push so explosive a political issue as concessions on Taiwan in an election year.

The next obvious question is how far Washington should go in the meantime to increase China's military and technological strength. While the administration denies reports it will provide direct arms assistance to China, it has decided, apparently, to look with favor on China's desire to buy military equipment in Western Europe and to acquire modern technology from the West, including the United States. Giving substance to this policy was the departure for Peking of a high-level delegation of U.S. scientists whose objective is to broaden cooperation in the scientific and technological fields.

The administration would be derelict not to utilize the shared U.S.-Chinese interest in confining Soviet aggrandizement in Asia and elsewhere around the globe. But while there probably is general agreement with the rationale for this policy, there is real concern about the degree and manner of its execution.

The United States should be extremely cautious about making too many concessions to the Chinese. They need us more than we need them. The U.S. enters shoal waters when it adds to the arsenal and technology of a Communist nation already armed with nuclear missiles. Moreover, it is not inconceivable that, if the United States plays the China card too crudely, the Soviet Union would be prompted to make a preemptive strike against China before the presently favorable odds could shift.

We wish the Carter administration's past performance could give us more confidence in its ability to play a good hand in the high-stake, dangerous game which it has just joined.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Appointee refuses to take hint

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - President Carter had to own up at a news conference that he wanted a recent appointee. David Gartner, to resign from the Commodities Futures Trading Commission because Gartner had received personal family favors from a major commodities dealer. To Carter's chargin, Gartner has refused to take the hint. We have now learned that another

Carter appointee could cause the president some embarrassment. Carter named 56-year-old Milton D. Stewart to be the chief advocacy counsel for the Small Business Administration (SBA), without fully scrutinizing Stewart's own questionable dealings as a private businessman.

The articulate, affable Stewart, respected in his field, would act as a forceful advocate of small business interests at the federal level. His nomination received ringing endorsements from more than 100 small business groups, individuals and organizations before it was cleared by a Senate committee by an 8-to-1 vote.

The lone opposing vote was cast by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., who spent weeks checking into Stewart's background. The hard-hitting senator, one of the first Watergate investigators to declare that former President Nixon should resign, found disturbing evidence against Stewart in the government's own files.

These showed that as president and chief executive officer of Creative Capital Corporation, Stewart was called on the carpet by the Securities and Exchange Commission. In fairness, many of the violations he committed were technical in nature. The main issue was the firm's connection with a partnership known as Comac Company, which held controlling interest in Creative. Without getting permission from the SEC as required by federal law, Creative assumed primary liability in the leasing of $3.5 million worth of office space of which Comac was to occupy 80 percent. Comac later went under and left Creative holding the bag, to the tune of $308,000

Both the SEC and SBA found Stewart's firm had violated federal regulations. Yet he has now been named to a powerful post in one of the agencies that condemned his business dealings.

He explained that an attorney had assured him the lease arrangement was exempt from prior SEC approval. He gave the same excuse in explaining why he allowed Comac to serve as Creative's paid investment adviser for more than a year before a contract was signed. This was another violation of federal regulations.

The SEC and SBA also sharply questioned a $285,000 loan from Creative to American Mobile Homes Towns to finance the purchase of a trailer park in Australia. The loan enabled Comac to wiggle out of an earlier purchase commitment.

The SBA ruled the transaction violated three separate regulations and admonished Creative for "bad judgment." In defense of Stewart, he was absent on a three-week vacation when the deal was rammed through by Comac, and eventually recovered Creative's investment.

In 1974, Stewart signed a consent decree drawn up by the SEC staff that he had violated the Investment Company Act. He rightly points out that the signing of a consent decree does not legally constitute an admission of But it also has been alleged that he tried to use his friendship with the SBA's former deputy associate administrator, James Phelan, to cope with the SEC's investigation. He sought an SBA clarification, which would be helpful to his case. He included a "personal and confidential" covering note to Phelan, which read: 'Dear Jim: I make only one claim on our friendship. I tore this off in a rage - please read it before receiving it officially or sending it to anyone else. Then call me to get my O.K. after I hear what you say about its appropriateness - to make it official."

An SBA spokesman says there is nothing improper in such a pro-cedure. "There was no attempt to be surreptitious," he told our associate Larry Kraftowitz. Footnote: Stewart declined to discuss the allegations against him because his nomination is still pending before the Senate. The statements attributed to him in this column were obtained from an official transcript. It should be added that Stewart is widely regarded as the best man for his new job, since it requires advocacy skills, not administrative TURKEY LOBBY: State Department officials, in their eagerness to lift the arms embargo against Turkey, have circulated material on Capitol Hill provided by Turkish agents.

Assistant State Secretary Douglas Bennet, for example, sent key congressmen a package of newspaper editorials supporting the Carter administration's attempt to end the embargo. One of the articles was stamped with this notice:

'This material is circulated by Edelman International ... which is registered under the Foreign Agents Registration Act as an agent of the Republic of Turkey. Both the State Department and Edelman International denied that the firm had prepared the entire package of editorials. "They mail stuff in here regularly," said Bennet. "and this one apparently got mixed in with our own collection of materials."

humanism, the philosophy that advocates human engineering instead of belief in God. Punishment presupposes moral judgment. Obviously you don't punish someone who has done nothing wrong so if you eliminate the idea that some people are evil and some acts are evil, then it logically follows that you must eliminate the idea of punisment.

That is what the social theorists and bureaucrats sold us and our dumb politicians enacted the concept into laws. So we end up with a criminal justice system that is based on the idea that crimes are not immoral acts but merely symptoms of illness or at best behaviour which deviates from the norm. That being the case, our wonderful theorists mused, then obviously social illnesses can be cured.

That is why Mrs. Hurst and her baby and the depty sheriff are dead. You see in 1968, Hall had been convicted of assault to commit rape and sentenced to 20 years, but after serving only five years, the Florida Parole Commission decided that Hall had been rehabilitated and they returned him to society.

They made a mistake. Three people died. In one of the most ridiculous statements I have ever heard, a Florida bureaucrat said on the night Hall was arrested for three murders, one kidnapping, and a robbery that this was the first time he had gotten into trouble since he had been on parole. The problem with the humanist theory of rehabilitation is that it exceeds man's capacity. No judge or member of a parole commission is equipped to play God, to look at a man and determine what has taken place inside his head. Psychiatrists and psychologists can't either.

All they can do is guess. They can find out if he's obeyed prison rules and they can ask him if he's rehabilitated, but what it boils down to is a plain old guess based on insufficient data and human prejudice. It is a failed system based on a fallacy but many bureaucrats thrive on it so they persist in claiming its success.

The system neither protects the innocent nor provides justice to the guilty. The idea that a man must earn his freedom by convincing a bureaucrat that he is "well" gives the bureaucrat entirely too much power.

As fallible human beings we should avoid playing God. We should simply set up rules on the basis of our moral code and then punish people who violate them. To do this, we should abolish parole and remove the discretion from judges who abuse it. We should attach a fixed penalty to each crime. That way everyone knows in advance what the penalty for any given crime will be and that, once convicted, there will be no escape.

Such a system will require an aroused public and sensible legislators. In the meantime, Freddie Hall should be executed. His death will not resurrect his victims but it will express our moral condemnation as no other punishment can. And it will guarantee that no one else will ever again find themselves begging Freddie Hall for mercy.

INSIDE REPORT:

Here's why Bella was named to blue-ribbon committee

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - On the night before she was named by President Carter to head a blue-ribbon national vomen's committee, Bella Abzug was at New York City's Union Square co-sponsoring a "mass tribute" to executed traitors and atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg — a bizarre juxtaposition that points to many troubles in the White House. Mrs. Abzug's presence in Union Square suggests the president's wife and daughter-in-law had good reason to doubt the wisdom of the appointment. As co-chairman of the new National Advisory Committee for Women, Abzug will not help the em-battled Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), a cause to which the entire Carter family is firmly committed.

But beyond ERA, the Abzug ap-ointment points to this hard fact of ife: after 18 months on the job, the Carter team remains surprisingly naive and uninformed about national litics. What's more, the internal debate over Abzug reflects a larger, nore important contest within the White House about how Jimmy Carter can best regain his former linger of the Chicago Seven). Henry Winston, venerable national chairman of the Communist party, delivered a major address.

Abzug has lost three elections in New York in three years and is conidered a plague on ERA less because of her aggressive personality than her extremist politics. Her co-sponsors of the Rosenberg "tribute" aging warriors of the Old Left John Abt, of the Ware underground ommunist group of the 1930s), and ctivists of the New Left (David Del-

'What's wrong with Bella attending a New York liberal rally?" asked one White House aide, improbably usher-ing John Abt and David Dellinger into "liberal" ranks. But those Carter staffers sophisticated enough to un-derstand Abzug's impropriety found out too late to do anything about it. "Oh, no," moaned a senior Carter adviser, "did she really do that?"

The impact of such antics on middle-class America explained the First Lady's misgivings about the appointment, as related to the National Press Club: "I sometimes am concerned about the legislators in North Carolina and South Carolina and Florida where we need (ERA) votes. Can they identify (with Abzug)? Will it help the ERA pass?" Daughter-in-law Judy Carter, a doughty ERA campaigner, not only wondered but actually opposed the appointment.

Bella was saved by a strange benefactor: Anne Wexler, the bright new star on the president's senior staff. Abzug has never disguised her contempt for the pragmatic political methods of Wexler as a Connecticut Democrat leader. Yet, Wexler convinced Mrs. Carter that Abzug's ap-pointment will do more good than

Why? Partly because Wexler feels Abzug deserves a reward for defending Mr. Carter against women's caucus attacks at the 1976 Democratic national convention. But mainly out of fear of reprisals. MS Magazine editor Gloria Steinem, women's activist and Abzug's close friend, was persistent in demanding the job for Bella. Wexler determined that risking attack from the women's movement was not worth it.

To many sophisticated liberal politicians, Wexler greatly overestimated the influence of women on Abzug, even when allied with Steinem. Bella brings you nothing in New York, nothing in the women's movement, nothing in liberal circles," one veteran New York City Manhattan reform leader told us. "What she does is kill ERA for you."

But even if Abzug still exercised real influence among those constiuency groups, some Carter aides feel Wexler was pushing the president down the wrong trail. Wexler has been a most welcome and invigorating addition to the White House staff — bringing political expe-rience, competence and enthusiasm for Jimmy Carter, But her technique is "coalition building" — putting to gether interest groups to generate support (which explains her concern about the women's bloc if Abzug were rebuffed). Old-line Carterites claim that was not how Jimmy won the Democratic presidential nomination and that is not the way to reclaim his former allure.

Wexler has been hard at work trying to mobilize a coalition of interest groups - consumerists, labor, small businessmen, women and others - in opposition to capital gains tax reduction. Her critics on the White House staff admire her skill but would rather see the president somehow appeal-ing to broad popular sentiment for tax Herein lies the real importance of Bella Abzug's appointment. Her job is so unimportant that honoring the cosponsor of the Rosenberg tribute will not hurt anything more than the fad-ing chances of ERA. It is the political tactics behind it that affect many other issues as President Carter seeks his political recovery.

market gains

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market gained more ground today. but last week's sharp rally showed sign signs of fading as the session progressed.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which sported an early 5point gain, was up 2.08 at 841.91 by noontime. Advances maintained a 2-1 lead over declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Analysts said the market was registering a better-than-expected response to the sevennation economic summit conference in Bonn which was to conclude with the issuance of a communique today. Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal said the conferees agreed on a "concrete and concerted action program" to deal with international economic problems. By mid-morning, however, the market seemed to settle back to await further news from the summit meeting.

Control Data, which reported sharply higher earnings for the second quarter, picked up 1% to 36%. Boeing rose 34 to 601/2, establishing an all-time high for the third consecutive session. Late last week the company received a $1.6 billion order for jets from UAL's United Airlines subsidiary The NYSE's composite index picked up .24 to 55.06, and the American Stock Exchange market value index rose .53 to 150.45. Volume on the Big Board reached 13.16 million shares by noontime. against 11.49 million at the same point on Friday.

Replacement candidate leads

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) - A 37year-old populist who replaced his father-in-law as a candidate pulled ahead today in returns from Ecuador's first presidential election after eight years of civilian and military dictatorship.

It appeared unlikely that any of the six candidates would get the majority required for election. A runoff between the two leaders is expected in August or September.

Official returns from less than a third of the 1.8 million votes expected Sunday gave Jaime Roldos Aguilera of the Concentration of Popular Forces 191,654, or 38 percent; conservative Sixto Duran Ballen, 106,002, and center-leftist Raul Clemente Huerta, 105,600.

Trailing far behind were Rodrigo Borja, 41, of the Democratic Left Party, with 43,224 votes; Abdon Calderon Munoz, 54, Radical Alfarista Front, 33,289 votes, and Rene Mauge, Communist, 19,159 votes.

The election is supposed to be a major step in returning democracy to the country of 6.7 million on South America's northwest coast. The military junta headed by Adm. Alfredo Poveda Burbano has promised to honor the results and turn the government over to the winner. The junta ousted Gen. Guillermo Rodriguez Lara in 1976 and immediately announced it would lead the nation back to civilian government.

Ballots were also cast for a vice president and provincial and municipal officials. The new president will schedule congressional elections.

Roldos Aguilera was nominated when the military for the second time blocked the presidential candidacy of his father-in-law, Assad Bucaram, a former mayor of Guayaquil and the founder of the Concentration of Popular Forces.

Carter apparently willing to declare energy war victory

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Now it turns out that we're winning the moral equivalent of war. President Carter suddenly is satisfied with the progress Congress is making on his energy program.

That's a rather abrupt change in the attitude of a president who less than a month ago said that the United States was being embarrassed and weakened for lack of passage of his energy measure.

Years ago, then-Sen. George D. Aiken suggested that the way to end

Analysis

U.S. involvement in the conflict in South Vietnam would be to declare a victory and get out. His advice went unheeded.

Carter seems to have adopted a somewhat similar position on energy, apparently to convince skeptical allies at the economic summit conference in Bonn that the United States really is doing something about the problem.

Fifteen months after he proposed his energy plan, Carter still is waiting for Congress to enact it.

House and Senate negotiators have approved portions of the program for final votes. So Carter will get part of what he sought.

But the oil tax that was a central feature of the original Carter plan is stalled and likely to stay stalled. The Senate and House members assigned to work on that portion of the energy program met Thursday for the first time in seven months, but didn't accomplish anything.

Again and again, Carter has exhorted Congress to get on with it. He wanted the energy program on the books before he went to Bonn. He threatened to act on his own by posting new tariffs on imported oil, and the Senate voted to forbid it. That June 27 vote was the last significant congressional action on energy, and the White House said it showed that Congress was trying to duck the prob-

But before he went to Bonn on Thursday, Carter declared that "we are making good progress," on the bill and on curbing oil imports.

"I think the Congress has made great progress already," he told for-eign correspondents. "What many people in Europe won't understand is our nation is not only a great oil consumer but also a great oil pro-ducer and has historically been so.

"It is a very difficult political issue to change the structure of our laws to hold down the free import of oil and to implement strict conservation measures. But I have been pleased with what the Congress has done so far."

He wasn't pleased in Houston on June 23. "We have consumed ever-increasing amounts of oil and gas at prices well below their replacement costs," he said then. "We are the only industrial nation without an energy plan. "We are embarrassed in the eyes of our friends and weakened in the eyes of our enemies without a program to encourage greater use of more available fuels.

Nor was he so patient on April 20, the first anniversary of his call for urgent action on energy. "We have wasted 12 months of precious time," he said on that occasion.

Now he is accentuating the positive. 'My prediction is that Congress will act successfully on our energy plan before they adjourn this year," he

Carter had to have some explanation of the energy situation, and the lack of final action on his program, for critical allied leaders in Bonn.

Yet if he chose to blame it all on Congress, he could have bought more trouble there, at a time when he needs House and Senate votes to get what remains of his program passed.

So he pointed to what has been done, after complaining for months about what remains undone. He also boasted that U.S. oil imports are down by about one million barrels a day, although that has more to do with production of oil from Alaska than with conservation under the

But that answer to an immediate problem may post a dilemma another day, when and if the White House decides that it must turn up the pressure on Congress again.

They just don't make 'em anymore

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) - They say that in this hyped age of athlete's agents and multimillion-dollar player contracts they don't make genuine bleacher idols anymore like Dizzy Dean, Jack Dempsey, Sugar Ray Robinson, Red Grange and the immortal Babe.

Reggie Jackson's conferring with his lawyer after being benched by Billy Martin just doesn't grab the public like Babe Ruth homering afterbeing fined $500 by the Yankee management for a belly ache brought on three sacks of potato chips between games of a key doubleheader.

But even without the debatably ruinous effects of filthy lucre on a star performer's soul, they don't make sports writers anymore either like Joe Palmer, Damon Runyon, Boston's Col. Egan, Grantland Rice, Dan Parker and Jimmy Cannon. In the absence of a corrupting salary schedule for journalists, the logic of the matter would tend to indicate that without the former - the colorful characters worth writing about - the latter, the typewriter troubadours who sing their praises and record their antics for an adoring public, can no longer exist. Which may be why Scotty Reston and Jimmy Breslin graduated to picking on politicians and bureaucrats instead of outfielders who misjudge fly balls and shortstops who louse up easy doubleplays. But then there is Red Smith, still soldiering on up there in the press box, writing the elfin, graceful, witty prose that makes the reader wonder why day after day the best writing in newspapers is found on the sports pages and not the op-ed page, where la creme-de-la creme is supposed to assemble. These thoughts were stirred by my reading, on a lazy summer day when the Yankee were rained out in Boston, "Nobody Asked Me, But ... the World of Jimmy Cannon," a collection of his columns from the New York Post and old Journal American.

Cannon died in 1973 and he is much missed around this town as the Giants and Dodgers

When I first came to New York from New Orleans in the mid-1950s, there was Red Smith in the morning and Jimmy Cannon in the afternoon and, best of all, both of them at lunch at Toots Shor's, sitting up there in front at the important tables near Frank Costello, Jackie Gleason, Mickey Mantle and John Charles Daly. They were and are my idols, and they have worn well.

In those days, sports writers seemed to be much closer to the athletes they wrote about. Cannon was a personal friend of Casey Stengel, Joe DiMaggio, Rocky Marciano and Sugar Ray Robinson, whom he tried unsuccessfully to coax into retirement and thereby lost a friend. He got the Jets to hire Weeb Ewbank, when Sonny Werblin telephoned him in Florida, person to person, with the plea: "I need a coach." He could go on the wagon and still remain a nonalcoholic drinking buddy of nightclub comic Joe E. Lewis, who always turned up at Shor's when his act was

Maybe the star gazers were closer to the stars then because there were fewer agents, lawyers and press spokespersons acting as go-betweens, and only an occasional surly waiter to interrupt with an identifying line like, "Let's see now, you're the meatloaf, and you're the eggs Benedict?" Jimmy Cannon, of course, would have appreciated the second person approach. It was the writing style he employed with singular success to tell about the people who knew best without resorting to the egotistical "I" so common in TV and radio sports jour-

"You're Frank Tarkenton, a straight arrow in a swingers' town. "You're Rocky Marciano who bled for fame.

"You're Mickey Mantle: You're a bubble-gum kid in a chew-tobacco

Covering the third Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano fight, Cannon could wring the sweat and the blood of ringside from his typewriter with the stark simplicity of Hemingway, his person-

> "Zale hit him with a left hook and Graziano went over backward. His head made the sound an auctioneer's mallet makes on a solid block of wood when the deal is closed. They came out of the corner and picked him up and put the green-edged white bathrobe over his shoulders. The letters on the back spelled out "ROCKY GRA-ZIANO, MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAM-PION OF THE WORLD." Only the name was correct.

But being the type of reporter who watches from the sidelines and leaves the spotlight to the stars, Cannon let the fallen champ on the dressing room table have the last word: "There's only one way you can lick Zale," Graziano said. "You got to kill Cannon could catch the punchdrunk flavor of Stillman's gym in a single line shouted over the pay telephone by a fight manager: "What Tony Kelly you want? ... The Italian one. ... The Irish one ... The Jewish one?'

The book's title, "Nobody Asked Me, But... is from the deft one-liners Cannon tossed off on whatever bugged, bored or amused him. Some typical Cannon fodder:

'Guys with white shoes always look like strangers no matter what town they're in. Some of the wisest men I know are bad spellers. "I can't ever remember staying to the end of a movie in which the actors wore togas. "If I had a choice of drinking partners, I'd pick Winston Churchill

"I never saw a laundry truck driver with a clean shirt.' "If Howard Cosell was a sport, it would be Roller Derby. Nobody asked me, but ... sports pages just aren't that much fun anymore; at least not since they began reading more like the business sec-

MADRID, Spain (AP) - Bullfighting is booming in post-Franco Spain with record attendance, livelier crowds, bigger purses for matadors and social security for the men who push the blood off the sand.

Although friends and foes of bullfighting have been predicting its demise for years, the centuries-old spectacle - officially Spain's fiesta nacional - has never seemed less likely to die

Dear S.K.: Advance vision to do his job. payment is often requested by a plastic surgeon in cases such as yours - when the operation is being done simply for looks, not to correct a medical problem or restore a function of the body. Of course you can ask the surgeon if some arrangement can be made, especially if you have some personal reason for whishing to go ahead now, even if you do not have all the money sitting right there in the bank.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother's eyesight has been badly affected by cataracts, and I've tried any number of times to talk to her about an operation. But she says that she is afraid of surgery - and especially squesamish about her eyes. And also, she doesn't want the bother and everything. She feels she can see adequately enough to take care of herself and do the things she needs to do. Should I urge her to be operated on? Or is it better to simply let nature take its course? - Olive W.

Dear Olive: First of all. cataract removal is extremely safe and effective today, and I think your mother should understand that before she makes her mind up one way or the other. The operation can be done in less than an hour. Convalescence is shorter and simpler than it used to be. And the wider choice of replacement lenses-conimplants-offer better vision than the thick spectacles which used to be all that was available.

However, the main thing is naturally what your mother, as an inchives of Ophthalmology doing quite well despite their limited vision.

EG!"

"Bad luck," you may say. Or perhaps, "Bad guessing." It was actually bad management

After taking the ace of spades South should immediately lead the jack of diamonds since this finesse cannot be avoided. When the jack holds, South leads the low diamond to dummy's ace, cashes the king of spades to discard a diamond, ruffs a spade, leads a trump to dummy's ace and ruffs dummy's last diamond. GIVES UP HEART

Declarer then gives up a trick to the king of hearts. If East returns a club, declarer gets a free finesse; if East returns anything else, dummy ruffs while South discards a club.

By choosing the right finesse declarer forces the enemy to take the club finesse for him. It's worth going to a little trouble if you can turn a guess into a sure thing. DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: SQ8642; K3; D1094; CQ74. What do you say? ANSWER: Bid two spades. Game is unlikely unless your partner has good support for spades and about 18 points, in which case he will bid again. If he has less, he will pass you at two spades; and that should be a reasonable contract.

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Police report 10 persons killed and 150 injured in the second tragedy within a week resulting from a propane tanker truck out of control. One hospital director predicted at least 20 of the injured would die.

Authorities said it appeared the tanker skidded on Scotchtint a rain-slick highway north of Mexico City, overturned, hit a rampart, exploded and burst into flame. A chain collision followed, with two buses, two trucks and seven passenger cars piling into the flaming wreckage.

Highway police said seven bodies were found in one of the buses, and three others were blown as far as 100 yards from the wreckage.

Even if you live in a new modern building with lots of big closets, you'll be surprised at how fast you can fill them up. Pretty soon, every inch of space will count.

The first hint, a basic one, is the suggestion that you clean out your closets at least once a year. If you live in an area of the country where you have seasonal wardrobe changes, a more frequent weeding out of your closet may be necessary.

Then begin consolidating your belongings. If you aren't by nature organized, a trip to the closet shop of a department store can get you one your way.

Congressional leaders trying to show progress

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congressional leaders are trying anew to show President Carter some long-awaited progress on his energy program, but the time left to do it in the 1978 session is growing short.

The threat of filibusters may now pose the biggest obstacle to some parts of the 15-month-old energy

Energy legislation commands the attention of both the House and Senate today while supporters of another controversial and persistent issue the proposed Equal Rights Amendment - are girding for a House committee showdown on Tuesday on a resolution to extend the deadline for ratification.

Backers of the extension say they're hopeful of a narrow victory in the House Judiciary Committee, even if it's for only three or four years instead of the seven they sought.

The original seven-year period for the ERA to win approval by 38 state legislatures expires March 22. Thirtyfive states have approved the proposed constitutional amendment, which would ban discrimination based on sex. Four of those - Tennessee, Idaho, Nebraska and Kentucky - have rescinded their action. although Kentucky's recission was vetoed by the acting governor. Congress must ultimately decide if the rescission actions are legal.

The full Senate, meanwhile, continues debate on the first portion of Carter's five-part energy plan, while the House wrestles with legislation to authorize about $13 billion in federal energy programs and projects.

The measure before the Senate would prohibit new power plants from burning oil or natural gas and give the government the authority to order hundreds of plants and factories now using these fuels to convert to coal. Leaders hoped to zip the bill - one

Outpost try scheduled

Tipton & Denton of Hobbs, N. M. announced plans to re-enter an old project in Lea County and attempt to extend the Flying M (Abo) pool one and one-quarter miles southeast.

The project is No. 1 Tapp-State, 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 22-9s-33e and 14 miles northeast of Caprock.

It originally was drilled to 9,663 feet by Coastal States Gas Production of the less controversial parts of the energy plan - through the Senate last Friday but were stopped dead when Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., launched a one-man filibuster against

The former astronaut claims the legislation would lead to excessive government regulation and higher costs to consumers in areas of the country where electricity is generated from oil or gas-fired power

However, Schmitt agreed to allow the bill to come to a vote at 2 p.m. EDT Tuesday — when it is expected to win Senate approval.

Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said over the weekend that he had telephoned Carter, in West Germany for the economic summit conference, to assure him that the bill will pass.

Schmitt's tactics — on the heels of a brief filibuster late Thursday by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, against another piece of legislation — prompted Byrd to fume that the Senate might have to return for a lame-duck session after this fall's congressional elections if such one-man delaying tactics persist.

Congress is trying to finish up its work for the year by early October. And an even longer filibuster looms, one expected to be launched by an unlikely coalition of liberals and conservatives unhappy with a natural gas pricing compromise.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said he sees the expected filibuster as a major obstacle to passage of the bulk of the Carter energy

And the longer it lasted, the greater its chance would be of killing the natural gas portion of Carter's energy plan, whose passage Jackson now guages at just "fifty-fifty."

Mining oil in Canada now closer to reality

By MARTIN MERZER

FORT McMURRAY, Alberta (AP) In just one Canadian province, there are an estimated 300 billion barrels of oil, enough to supply Canada for 500 years or the United States for 43 years. And experts now are developing ways to mine the precious

That's right, mine it.
A $2.1 billion oil-mining operation will begin at the end of this week and is expected eventually to provide Canada with seven percent of its oil. Although none of that oil is likely to be shipped to the United States, the developments in Canada will have at least one benefit for Americans: There will be less competition for imported fuel.

Syncrude Canada Ltd.'s ambitious project will be by far the largest of its kind. But it's only one of about a dozen operations located near this west-central Canadian city that are developing Alberta's staggering reserves of "oil sands," thick, black concentrations of oil locked in sand and clay.

The operations already are producing 75,000 barrels of high-grade oil each day from the trillions of tons of oil sands in the province. Canadian officials hope the sands will yield nearly 1 million barrels a day of oil by

"Oil sands development is this country's ace in the hole," said Peter Lougheed, Alberta's premier. "It is. our major hope to develop economic stability in Canada.

Until 1975, Canada was a net exporter of oil. Now, Canada is importing about 590,000 barrels of oil each day, but the government is committed to becoming self-sufficient by 1990.

The Albertan oil sands, believed to be 200 million years old, were explored during the late 18th and early 19th centuries, but it was notuntil 1875 that the first government-sponsored geological expedition was conducted.

In 1889, a dispatch from government explorers said: "That this region is stored with a substance of great economic value is beyond all doubt, and when the hour of development comes, it will prove to be one of the wonders of northern Canada."

After several false starts, the "hour of development" began in earnest in 1964 with construction of the first project by Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. The firm soon was producing oil, and now squeezes about 50,000 barrels of the 75,000 daily total produced from the sands.

The Syncrude project, a joint venture of three oil firms and the governments of Canada, Alberta and Ontario, expects to produce 125,000 barrels of oil a day when it reaches full capacity in 1982.

"But every barrel that we produce will mean one less barrel that we have to import," said Syncrude official Murray Blakely.
That means less competition when the U.S. tries to buy foreign oil.

But there are problems, mostly economic. When a fourth oil firm dropped out of the Syncrude project in 1974, entry of the three governments was necessary to provide sufficient construction capital.

In addition, the Canadian government has guaranteed that Syncrude can sell its full production at world prices, currently about $15 per barrel in Montreal. Otherwise, the firm said, it would not be able to compete with the current price of Canadian-produced conventional oil, about $12 per

The Great Canadian Oil Sands project, due mostly to technical problems, rarely has had a profitable

The Syncrude facility will use four massive draglines to scrap off a top layer of earth and then scoop out the tar sands. The sand will be transported by conveyor belts to plants for the complex separation and refining processes. Over its estimated 30-year life, the project is expected to produce more than one billion barrels of oil.

Although 300 billion barrels of oil are estimated to be eventually recoverable from the Alberta sands, only 86 billion barrels can be produced using mining processes such as Syn-

The balance of the oil-located too far below the surface for strip mining operations—can be produced only by an expensive, complicated and notentirely proven method called "insitu production."

In in-situ processes, the locked-up oil is heated underground to increase its fluidity. Then, the oil is pushed by compressed air and water toward a well and pumped to the surface.

About eight firms are experimenting with in-situ techniques, and Amoco Canada Petroleum Co. appears to have one of the most promis-

The $46 million test facility is located on a hilly site overlooking Gregoire Lake, south of Fort McMurray. About 30 workers, most of them airlifted in every two weeks, are coaxing oil to the surface from about 1,100 feet below. Although the facility is still in a testing phase, it is producing about 100 barrels of oil a day. Officials estimate that the production cost is about $14-17 per barrel before taxes and royalties, nearly competitive with conventional oil.

"That's an encouraging develop-ment, but we're really here to try to prove the technology and hope for the best economically," said Ted Strashok, Amoco's production supervi-

The oil sands are considered so important that even Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabia's oil minister, has expressed interest in

After a recent trip to the Syncrude project, Yamani said he was personally interested because "the world will face a very serious problem" in oil supplies shortly. "Any additional new sources of supply will help to solve the problem," he said.

During Yamani's Canadian visit, government officials made a pitch for Saudi Arabian help in developing the oil sand fields, but Yamani reportedly was noncommittal.

With officials of Canada and other countries, oil-industry experts and consumers all closely watching the oil sands development, it is difficult to minimize its importance.

Fem reporter gets a shock

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) - It has taken women years to gain access to the locker rooms of men's professional teams, but one female soccer reporter in the Minneapolis area wasn't so happy to be admitted Saturday night.

Mary Buivid, 30, was covering the Tulsa-Minnesota North American Soccer League contest at Metropolitan Stadium for Soccer America mag-

After a warning by the Roughnecks' public relations man, she was allowed into the Tulsa locker room to talk with the coach. Few players bothered to cover up, however, and at least two made obscene sexual gestures. Buivid called the incidents "chil-

Buivid said she was busy talking to Coach Alex Skotarek and did not see the gestures. But she said she was "steaming mad" when informed of the incidents by another reporter.

"What bothers me the most is not knowing what was going on around me," she said. "I come from a big family and it doesn't bother me to see people without their clothes. But this

Dr. R.T. Kercheval of Houston fired a gross score of 68 in Sunday's final round of the Fourth Annual Frank Key Seniors Golf Tournament at Ranchland Hill Country Club to win the overall scratch score championship by a single stroke over first -day leader Bill Huli.

Kerchval, who tied Bob Hellinghausen for the championship a year ago only to lose the title on the third playoff hole, finished the two-day tournament with a gross 139. Hull had second place all to himself at 140.

DAN BAILEY finished the tournament with a gross 153 to win the overall title for golfers 65-anti-over.

Despite losing the overall title, Hull, who plays with a six handicap, finished atop the field in the first handicap flight with an adjusted score of 128, one shot better than Kercheval, a five handicapper. Bob Rick finished third in that flight with 50-54 flight with a net 126. Hull and Kercheval finished second and third, respectively, in that flight.

In the 55-59 flight, first-day leader Bob Walker held his lead to win the title by three strokes over Jim Walker and L.L Fuller.

BING LUNA also managed to maintain his first day lead in the 60-64 flight to win that championship. Luna finished with a net 131 to hold off late-charging Harold Clark who came in with a net 133.

Ted Witte won the 65-69 title with a two-day total of 130. After a net 60 on the first day Witte ballooned to a 70 but Lyle Galbraith, who trailed by five shots heading into the final round, was unable to take advantage of the situation and finished at 134.

In the 70-and-over flight, John Butler made up three strokes to tie firstday leader Paul McHargue at 138 and then won the championship in a play-off with McHargue. B.J. Cordonnier finished third with a net 141.

Cubs end drought despite 21 whiffs

TULSA, Okla. - Kurt Seibert drove in two runs with a single to right in the top of the 10th inning as the Midland Cubs ended a three game drought at the hands of the Tulsa Drillers with a 4-2 win Sunday.

Seibert's saving hit came off Tulsa reliever Tony Bianchi, who had just entered the game for Tulsa starter Dave Righetti. Righetti set a Texas League record in his nine innings of work for the Drillers by striking out 21 Midland batters.

Duane Gustavson started the Midland rally in the 10th as he beat out an infield hit down the third base line and then moved to third on Javier Fier-

Midland sent the game into extra innings when Kevin Drury singled home Steve Macko, who had opened the ninth inning with a double to left

The Cubs had their share of problems trying to solve Righetti, Macko was the only Midland regular who did not strike out. Righetti struck out the side in the second, third, eighth and ninth innings and at one stage early in the game struck out seven in a row.

Righetti was going strong in the seventh inning when Midland man-aged to get a fluke run. With two out, Eric Grady hit a routine fly to Tulsa rightfielder Dave Rivera, but Rivera wasn't wearing glasses and lost the ball in the sun and Grady went to second. Drury singled home the Cubs' initial run.

Tom Butler picked up the win for Midland with an outstanding relief performance. Butler, who played prep ball at Tulsa Hale and went on to star for Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, came on in relief of Herman Segelke in the fourth inning and shut the Drillers out the rest of the way.

Butler ran into some trouble in the bottom of the 10th, with the bases loaded and only one out. But, Rivera lined into a game-ending double play to Cubs first baseman Fierro.

L.L. Fuller made a late charge to catch first-day leader Jim Walker at 134 in the second handicap flight, but Walker won a playoff hole to capture first place in that flight. Ben Melton finished third, one stroke behind the DON DAUGHERTY posted a net 129 to capture the third flight title, two shots ahead of Charlie Gaines. Firstday leader Al Manulik faded to 133 and finished third.

Rodney McDaniel was named the winner of the fourth flight, as he finished with a net 134, a stroke ahead of Jack Lieber, while Galbraith captured the title in the fifth flight with his 134. L.A. Rogers finished in second behind Galbraith, two strokes off the winner's pace.

Hugh Post, who finished the tourney with a net 134, was declared the winner in the sixth flight.

Ford, Luna and Bob Walker all were on top of the standings in their age and handicap flights, but since no duplicate prizes were given, the titles in the handicap flights went to the runner-ups. In the sixth flight, Ford finished on top but the runner-up, Ted Witte, was already a winner in the 65-69 bracket. As a result, that title

Rutherford wins Norton; Al Unser fails to finish

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) - Without fuel restrictions, Indianapolis-style car racing would be out of business by the end of the month, according to two-time Indianapolis 500 winner Johnny Ruther-

"If they did away with the fuel restrictions today, in three weeks everybody would be out of business. There would be no engines left. We'd all be grounded," said Rutherford after winning Sunday's 200-mile Indy car event at Michigan International Speedway.

Fuel restrictions - all cars are limited to a formula of 1.8 miles per gallon of methanol each race, -played an important part in Rutherford's victory and the strategy of each

"YOU THINK Tom Sneva's track record of 211.392 miles per hour was fast, without fuel restrictions we'd been running laps in the race at 220 miles per hour!" Rutherford said. 'There's no way our engines could take that kind of punishment.

"And right now, nobody has any spare parts. And none of the people we buy our engines from are in a hurry to make more."

Rutherford, whose crew had his fuel problems solved well enough to give him fuel to spare at the finish of Sunday's high-speed sprint, recalled the situation that brought restrictions into being six years ago.

"It was the same thing: Everybody was blowing up engines left and right. It got to where only millionaires, or multimillionaires, could afford to go racing. It threatened the sport," he Rutherford's toughest competition, Danny Ongais, ran into unexpected fuel problems that put him out of a wheel-to-wheel duel with less than 10 miles to go. Ongais finished sixth, behind Bobby Unser, who also ran

Only nine of the 22 starters were still plugging along at the checkered flag.

"Spare parts are a critical problem right now for everyone. The busy schedule we're in right now is making everyone play it at least a little con-servative," Rutherford said.

AL UNSER, driving the Chaparral Lola of Midland's Jim Hall, battled briefly for the lead with A. J. Foyt early in the race, but engine trouble caused the Midland-based Cosworth powered machine to fall out of the race after 51 laps and finished 17th in the overall standings. Hall and Unser were seeking their third major champioship on the Citicrop Cup Champi-onship series since the first of the year. The Midland team owns victories at the Indianapolis 500 and the Pocono 500 this season, and are making a serious run at the overall title

It was Allison's second consecutive U.S. Auto Club stock car victory, lifted him to a close third behind Foyt and Bowsher in the season point standings and prompted talk of an all-out Allison effort to win the USAC championship.

"I'd love to. The USAC circuit is a great one and I really enjoy it, but my racing on the Grand National circuit comes first," Allison said. "I don't know if I'll have enough starts to really have a chance at the title.

"I'll try to make all of 'em_I can."

Scoreboard eye gives Carner edge

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) - JoAnne Carner tried something new - scoreboard watching - to break a personal jinx of never defending one of her 19 professional golf titles in previous vears.

It worked. "I normally don't watch the board at all, but I watched it all the way around today. I wanted to see how everybody stood, to make myself grind harder," said Carner.

There was one tense exception, at the last hole where she needed a par-4 to salvage a one-shot victory over Pat Bradley and Betsy King Sunday in this $85,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

"I didn't look up at the board at 18 until after I hit my chip shot," said the 39-year-old strawberry blonde.

The strategy paid off. She lofted a wedge to within 18 inches of the cup for an easy tap-in putt that gave her a 71, a 7-under-par total of 209, her third 1978 triumph, and a $12,750 check. More importantly, it prepared her for an assault on her third U.S. Women's Open title this week at the Country Club of Indianapolis. Carner won the game's most prestigious championship in 1971 and 1976. "I can't wait to play the Open," she said. "Unless something drastic happens, I should be in contention." It was a bitter loss for Bradley, who snagged consecutive bogeys on the last two holes to squander a stroke lead over Carner. "I just made silly mistakes — really dumb," said Bradley, foiled in a bid for her second LPGA title in the last four weeks. She caught a bunker at 17 and hit a poor chip shot at 18.

Still, she refused to let her heartbreak finish damage her mental stance heading into the Open, beginning Thursday. "I'll just have to try harder next time," she said.

King, a rookie enjoying her best finish, knew she could have earned a tie and forced a playoff if she made a putt at 18.

"But it was from 33 feet. I hit it left of the hole," said King, who closed with a 70, best of the leaders. Bradley settled for 72. She and King were at 210, six-under, and picked up checks for $7,310.

Nancy Lopez, the rookie sensation looking for her eighth LPGA victory this year, never seriously threatened. She had 72 and shared seventh place at 213 with Jo Ann Washam, Pat Meyers and Janet Coles.

Dibbs defeats Ramirez for title

CINCINNATI (AP) — Top-seeded Eddie Dibbs defeated Mexican Raul Ramirez 5-7, 6-3, 6-3 Sunday to take the singles title in the $125,000 Western Tennis Championships. Dibbs, of Miami, received $20,000 for his efforts, while Ramirez collected $10,000. In the doubles final, Ramirez and

Regalado forgets ivy bout

COAL VALLEY, III. (AP) -Scratch can be what you do when you itch, and scratch can mean money in the bank. It's happened both ways for Victor Regalado at the Ed McMahon-Quad Cities Open.

Three years ago Regalado got into poison ivy here and by his own account "was off the tour five weeks and made only about $1,000 the rest of the year."

He made up for that by holding off Fred Marti's charge Sunday for a 1-stroke victory to claim the $30,000 first-place check in his first tour championship since the 1974 Pleasant Valley Classic.

"I won like the Mexico Masters and some others," said Regalado, 30, of San Diego, Calif. "I've finished second the last three years on the tour and you wonder if you will win again the United States.

Regalado was 11 before he started playing golf, late by some standards, especially when you consider that Jack Renner began when he was 2 and started playing competitively at the age of 6.

"I was living with my grandfather two blocks from the golf course," said Regalado. "I started playing with a friend at the Tijuana Country Club. After awhile I'd hustle members for two or three dollars."

He took up the game more seriously after winning the Pan-American Junior Championship when he was 14. "Then I started playing every day instead of just weekends," he said.

Regalado made a surprise announcement as he accepted the winner's check from host Ed McMahon.

"My girlfriend is from (nearby) Moline," he said. "I think we'll get married this year."

the same year he had the bout with poison ivy and may be married in time to honeymoon in Hawaii during the World Cup competition in November, he said.

Regalado and his fiancee met here

A double bogey on the par 3 eighth hole helped seal Marti's fate and four birdies on the back nine were not enough to overtake Regalado. Marti, who finished with a 70 for a 270 total, had shot either 66 or 67 his last five

Don Iverson also played his best golf in nearly two years, finishing strong with a 64 to pull into a tie for third with Renner and D.A. Weibr-

"I'm elated," said Iverson. "I've been horrible all year and I have no excuses; I haven't been injured or anything. But I've started to play better in the last month and that's encouraging."

Carew plans to move on

BOSTON (AP) - Hit No. 3,000 may be just a matter of time for Rod Carew, but the six-time American League batting champion says he won't be with the Minnesota Twins for the milestone.

"I haven't got any intentions of sitting down and talking contract with the Twins," Carew said Sunday after Minnesota dropped a double-header to the Boston Red Sox 5-3 and 3-2.

"The Twins have resigned themselves to doing something with me when the season ends." It should be a happy time for the slim first baseman, heading for his seventh AL batting title.

On Saturday, he recorded hit No. 2,000, off Bill Lee, then added 2,001. By nightfall Sunday, after going fourfor-eight in the double-header, Carew's hit tally was 2,005. At his current 200 hits per year pace, the 32-year-old Panamanian slasher will reach the cherished 3,000 plateau in five season. Yet Carew is unhappy with Twins owner Calvin Griffith and the rift apparently is permanent. The Twins, meanwhile, show no signs of climbing into the AL West race after losing three straight games to Boston, the AL East leaders who now have won 60 games. "Sure it's frustrating," Carew said,

"but I can't let it affect my play. I have to do my job. I can't play for the other eight guys. I have to do Rod Carew's job. "I enjoy playing this game. I don't worry about hitting .380 or .350. I think about playing. What concerns me is what happens between the white lines on the field. "I look at the game as a business because that's the way the owners look at it. They're not going to change. The hard-hitting Twins, now eight games below .500, got respectable pitching over the weekend, but stranded 29 runners in three games. Minnesota piled up 37 hits in three losing efforts, six by Carew, who had

Nicklaus remembers Old Course quirks, oddities

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) -There's nothing like golf for helping the memory. Jack Nicklaus remembered the quirks and oddities of the Old Course at St. Andrews from way back in 1970, and it helped him to win the British Open for the third time.

First, the wind turned right around for the final leg and caught most of the players by surprise.

"It blew like this in 1970, the last time I won the British Open, Nicklaus said. "I remembered how it affected each hole then. It's a matter of experi-

"When I woke up Saturday morning I looked out of the window across the golf course and saw the way the wind was, and I thought 'great - this is how I like it."

Nicklaus was paired with Simon Owen of New Zealand. At the 15th, Owen chipped in from 25 yards for a spectacular birdie and briefly edged one stroke ahead of Nicklaus in the chase for the title

But at the 16th, Nicklaus had a birdie and Owen a bogey as the duel swung back. The New Zealander put notorious in the world - and collected another bogey while Nicklaus got a par. Nicklaus finished two strokes his second shot over the green and across the road at the dreaded 17th —

the "Road Hole," one of the most

"I met Simon for the first time on the first tee Saturday," Nicklaus said. "He played very well.
"But I noticed he used a driver from every tee on the way in. It's not for me to criticize his game. But I remembered what can happen when the wind blows like this and I knew that if you continue to use a driver like that you will be in trouble sooner or later.

That was what happened at the 17th. Nicklaus chipped for the undulating green and the ball rolled back down a slope to the front edge. But he still had a long, clear putt. Owen's second shot rolled down the far slope behind the green and bumped across

"I remembered," Nicklaus said. "Every golfer instinctively wants to go for the flag. I wanted to on this occasion, but I controlled myself and played the hole the way I knew I had to play it — chipping short and aiming for the front edge. It's a good thing I have a good memory."

Before the tournament began, another wise old campaigner, Arnie Palmer, said the title would be won and lost at the Road Hole. He was right. Through the four-day tournament, only one player in three managed to make the par-4 there.

Nicklaus 38, previously won the British Open at Muirfield in 1966 and St. Andrews in 1970. He is the first man to win the title twice on the ancient course, the birthplace and cradle of golf, since the legendary James Braid, who won here in 1905

Nicklaus mastered the 6,933-yard, par 36-36-72 links beside the sea in 71-72-69-69-281

Four players finished in a tie for second place with 283s - Owen and three Americans: Ray Floyd, Tom Kite and Ben Crenshaw.

Tom Watson, the defending champion, started the last day as co-leader, 5-under par. But he slumped to a 4-over 76 Saturday and finished well out of the hunt with 287.

Mauch underlines gripe

By The Associated Press Gene Mauch might have thought first base umpire Bill Kunkel was blind as a bat ... so he threw some to underline his argument. Kunkel ruled that Minnesota's Mike Cubbage had been picked off first base by catcher Bob Montgomery's throw in the fourth inning of the Twins' 3-2 second-game loss to the Boston Red Sox Sunday. Television replays indicated that Cubbage, who had reached on a single, appeared to slide back to the bag ahead of the Cubbage rose from the Fenway Park soil and argued vehemently, flinging his helmet and cap, but was out of the game by the time they touched the dirt. That brought Mauch, the Twins manager, out of the dugout on the run.

"Cubbage was safe," screamed Mauch. "I never come out of the dugout unless I know I'm right."

He didn't get to say much to Kunkel, who ejected the Minnesota mentor the moment he arrived. But Mauch wasn't through yet. He dashed back to the dugout and - grabbing bats by the handful - littered the field with more than a dozen before huffing off to the clubhouse.

"I'll tell the commissioner's office I was taking my bats home and they slipped out of my hands," said

"At least he showed he had the strength to throw all those bats,"

Rookie infielder Paul Molitor had three hits and three RBI, stole two bases and scored once as Milwaukee routed Chicago for its sixth victory in seven games. Don Money's third homer in four games keyed a five-run Brewers eighth.

Dogs turn on Ted Turner

By The Associated Press
The dogs had their day Sunday at Atlanta Stadium. Actually, to be more specific, it was the greyhounds who had their day.

From a promotional standpoint, the first "Greyhound Day" sponsored by the Braves was not exactly a success. But from the standpoint of Dick Ruthven, it was every bit of a smash hit.

When Ruthven was traded earlier this season from Atlanta to Philadelphia, he skipped town rather cheerfully, happy to be going to a team with what he called "greyhounds in the

In a seemingly vindictive response to Ruthven's comment, Atlanta owner Ted Turner had a "Greyhound Day" waiting for him when he returned to pitch against the Braves Sunday.

Ruthven, however, hardly blinked at the obvious harrassment, pitching the Phillies to a 4-2 victory over the Braves with Ron Reed's late-inning relief help.

"We knew it was going to happen," said Atlanta catcher Biff Pocoroba, one of Ruthven's closest friends. "The same type of thing happened to other players. When a player is traded away and comes back to Atlanta for the first time, there's always this kind of intimidation. It's part of the

The Atlanta public relations de-partment, with Turner's support, dreamed up the special day. Several puppies were given out by the team on a raffle basis and before the game there was a greyound race across the outfield. Though well publicized, however, the promotional day only drew 20,734 fans.

"Baseball is supposed to be fun," said Bob Hope, the Braves' public relations director. "And that's what the fans had today. We did all we could to intimidate Dick, but still it didn't work."

Ruthven, however, didn't see any "fun" in the promotion.

"It's just a matter of a no-class PR department," Ruthven said. "They had no right doing what they did. I know the guys in the other dugout

Chris Knapp leaves Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - "I've had enough of baseball," pitcher Chris Knapp says of his decision to walk away from the California Angels while they are leading a pennant race and he is second on the team with 10 victories.

"I will say that it isn't money. I just didn't like the way I was being treated," Knapp declared in an interview Sunday

The Angels say Knapp's agent, Alan Hendricks, told the team he thought Knapp was making a mistake in leaving the team, and Hendricks had tried to dissuade Knapp during a dinner meeting Saturday night.

The Angels have placed the tall right-hander on the disqualified list, but if he doesn't come back to the squad by Aug. 1 he is out for the California meets the Tigers again tonight at Anaheim. Pitching for the Angels will be Knapp's roster replacement, John Caniera, who was called up from Salt Lake City in the Pacific Knapp has a 10-6 record in his first year with the Angels. He was 12-7 as a rookie with the Chicago White Sox last year.

When contacted Sunday at his home in Mission Viejo, he indicated his dissatisfaction concern the state of baseball in general, along with failure of the White Sox and Angels to communicate with him on the contract. The Angels reportedly offered $50, 000, then unilaterally renewed Knapp for this season at $40,000. He earned somewhere between $22,000 and $27,-

000 with Chicago in 1977.

Cardinals 9-0, Giants 4-6

Jerry Mumphrey drove in three runs with a single and a double and Garry Templeton collected three hits, scored twice and added two RBI in helping St. Louis beat San Francisco in the first game of their doubleheader.

The Cardinals, who had suffered five straight setbacks against the Giants, battered longtime tormentor Jim Barr for 11 of their 14 hits in five innings, two of them triples by Templeton and Ted Simmons.

Mike Sadek doubled home two runs in the second inning to help the Giants beat the Cardinals in the second game behind Ed Halicki's six-hitter.

Reds 9, Mets 2

Dave Concepcion had four hits, including a two-run homer and a tworun double, and Tom Hume allowed six hits to lead Cincinnati over New York. Pete Rose doubled in the seventh inning to tie Cap Anson for 10th place on the all-time hit list with No. 3,081. The Reds' third baseman at the same time extended his hitting streak to 29

The Reds scored nine runs in the first four innings off Kevin Kobel to put the game away early.

'There is more pressure in this hitting streak than the 3,000th hit," said Rose. "I knew I could get the 3,000 with only 34 to go at the beginning of the season.

their twin bill. Dave Parker, making his first start since he cracked his cheekbone June 30, tossed aside a protective face-mask and rapped a triple in a five-run-seventh to start the Pirates to victory in the second game. "He's the big man in our lineupliterally and figuratively," said Pitts-burgh Manager Chuck Tanner of Parker, "and he really gives a team a big lift. Expos 6, Astros 1 Left-hander Dan Schatzder pitched Schatzder drove in the first Montreal run in the second inning with a two-out single after consecutive singles by Warren Cromarite and Gary Carter off Houston's Floyd Bannister. A sacrifice fly by Houston's Art Howe in the fourth tied the game before Tony Perez' RBI single in the fifth gave the Expos a lead they never relinguished.

Cubs 3-3, Dodgers 2-5 Dave Rader drove in three runs with a double and a sacrifice fly and Mike Krukow posted his fourth straight victory to lead Chicago past Los Angeles in the first game of their doubleheader. Dusty Baker drove in two runs with a single and a homer and pitcher Burt Hooton aided his own cause with a run-scoring single as the Dodgers won the second game.

Roger expects NFL title

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach speaks softly, but as the signal caller for pro football's world champions he carries a big stick. And he says this year his club will be even stronger.

If the team stays healthy, Staubach thinks it has a good chance of winning giant step Sunday when he routed another appearance in the Super Romania's Ilie Nastase 6-2, 6-0 to win

"I personally feel this will be a better team than last year's," he said. "That doesn't always mean you'll have a better record. But we're going to have a very competitive team. Our goal is to get back to the Super Bowl and win it, which is a reasonable goal. But a lot has to happen before that."

Staubach, who caught a plane to the team's Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp Sunday, thinks the team's state of mind will play a major role in its quest for another championship.

"I'm excited about our team," said Staubach. "It's come off a Super Bowl victory with a minimum of problems. Attitude has been great in the offseason. I don't see any complacency, which I think is a key point.

"I don't see any negative psychology like, hey, we're the world cham-pions. It's been as though we don't realize we did it. Maybe it's the schedule which is longer and stronger, or the offseason program. But a lot of guys who had great seasons were working out harder than ever.

The Dallas veterans are converging on their training camp in a healthy state. Except for a muscle strain suffered by running back Tony Dorsett against Denver in the last Super Bowl, the old wounds have healed admirably.

Retired Ralph Neely is the only starter missing from the lineup, but Coach Tom Landry and company are hopeful his absence will be balanced the return of veteran Rayfield Wright. The Cowboys are in a position to make a bit of history should they find themselves in this year's Super Bowl.

They are tied with Minnesota for most Super Bowl appearences (4), with Green Bay, Pittsburgh and Miami for most victories (2). Staubach and the Dolphins' Bob Griese are the only NFL quarterbacks to start in three of

At 36, Staubach has never been one to dwell on the What If's of professional football. Still, the prospect of yet another of those flashy world champion rings is too tantalizing not too dream about - even at this early

Bob Tway snubs pro golf

DALLAS (AP) — The lure of pro-fessional golf gold doesn't appeal to new Trans-Miss Amateur champion Bob Tway — not just yet.

The composed 19-year-old sopho-more, a member of the NCAA champion Oklahoma State team, flashed a driving form and putting stroke a lot of professionals would love Sunday in disposing of John Shackelford of Austin, Texas, 6 and 5 in the 36-hole finals of the prestigious tournament.

Tway one-putted five consective holes and birdied four in a row despite 100-degree plus heat over the baked but beautiful Brook Hollow Golf Club. He toured the 31 holes played in 1 under par.

"I'm staying in school," said the baby-faced Marietta, Ga., competitor who qualified with rounds of 67-71 to earn medalist honors. "I'm not good enough yet to get out there on the pro tour. Playing in college is the best thing you can do. I need to improve. I want to win a few more times."

Tway earned a probable invitation to the Walker Cup team with the victory. He will play in the Southern Amateur starting Wednesday in Tarpon Springs, Fla.

Shackelford, a 38-year-old former touring pro who regained his amateur status after two fruitless years in the PGA vineyards, said of Tway: "He reminds me a lot of Bob Dickson, who also went to OSU. He's a strong player. I think Tway will be big on the tour.'

Shackelford said, "I still think player to player I could have beaten him. But I played too conservatively. Then he couldn't miss a putt and that was pretty much it."

The fact that Shackelford was twice Tway's age also could have played a part in the lopsided defeat.

"Evidentlly I was getting tired," he said. "When you play 11 rounds of golf in this sauna it will get to anybody, even 19 year olds."

The match ended on the 31st hole with Tway 1-under par for the day over the par 36-35-71 course that plays to 6,713 yards.

"I didn't putt good until today and when I made that 20-footer to start the afternoon round I really got pumped up ... then there was no stopping me,' said Twav.

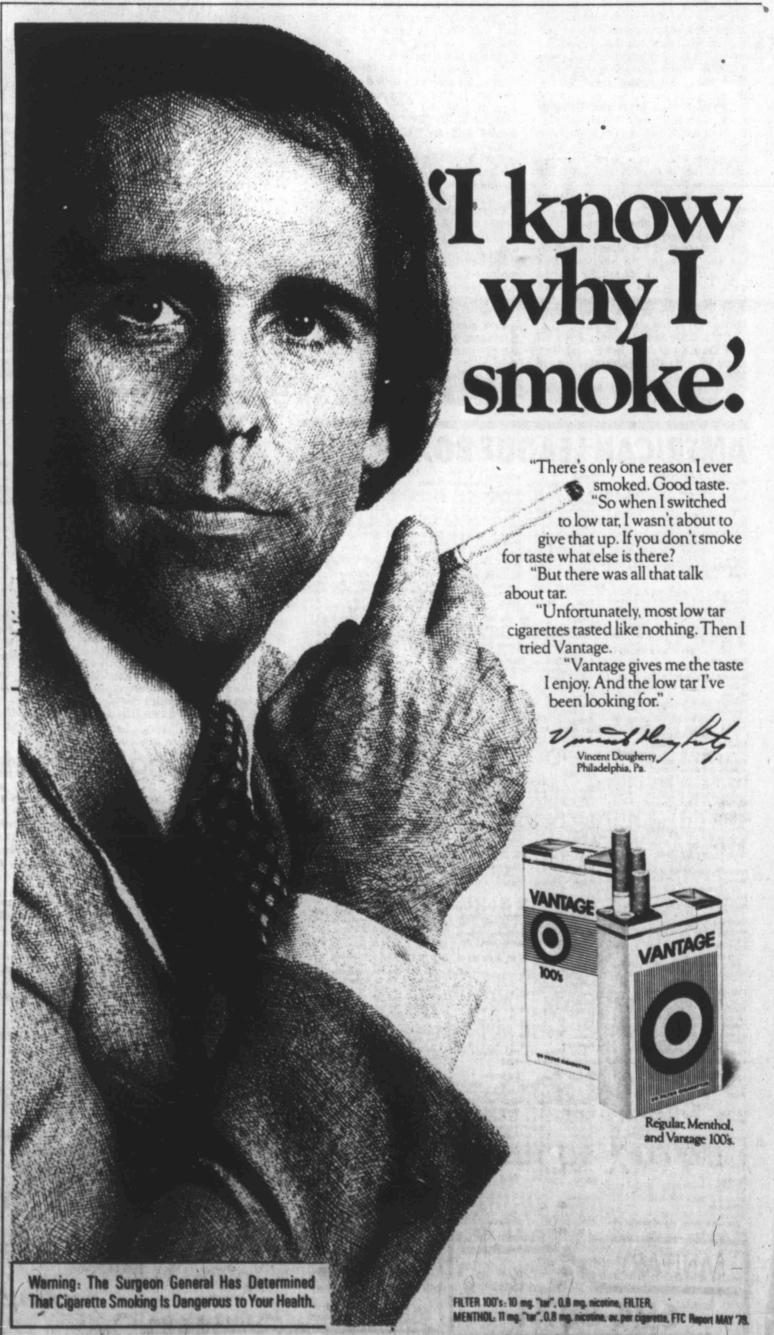

Shackelford was 2-up after five holes but Tway rallied to turn 2-up after the morning round. He birdied the 18th hole, then holed his 20-footer after the lunch break.

Tway followed it with a six-foot birdie putt, then a monster 40-footer for another bird.
