JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A spectacular and dangerous plume of gas billowed out of a ruptured rail tank car Friday, driving more than 1,500 people from homes and businesses in a 12-square-mile section of Jacksonville.

Thirty-four persons were treated in hospitals for exposure to fumes from anhydrous hydrochloric acid, but nearly all were released and officials said none seemed seriously harmed. Nineteen of the injured were fire-farewell call from a triend.

Moments later, the woman was seen lobbing what detectives said was a hand grenade under the auto. Two Englishmen passing the car were wounded by shrapnel, but both were reported in good condition.

"Whoever called the ambassador saved his life," a Yard spokesman said. "If he'd been in the car he'd have been killed in the explosion."

The attack followed Thursday's expulsion of 11 Iraqi diplomats and nationals from Britain as suspected spies and terrorists amid indications an inter-Arab feud in London was hotting up. Iraq quickly followed with the expulsion of 10 British diplomats and airline officials.

Commander Jim Neville, head of the Yard's anti-terrorist squad, said later that a woman was arrested near the embassy in London's swank Knightsbridge quarter. said at midafternoon: "About all we can do is allow it to boil off ... it could take as long as 24 to 36 hours."

A team of specialists from Dow Chemical Co., manufacturer of the acid, decided against attempting to cap the leak Friday evening and began siphoning the remainder into another tank car.

Bob Charlton, spokesman for the Dow team, said the process would take until about 3 a.m. Saturday.

As shifting winds spread the gas, authorities widened the evacuation area to 12 square miles in the northwest section of the city.

Paxon High School was set up as a shelter for evacuees. Civil defense authorities met to decide whether evacuees would have to stay away from their homes overnight.

The gas cloud, which went as high as 200 feet into the morning air, began forming when Samuel W. Smith, 30, routinely opened the dome of the tank car at the Union Camp Corp. chemical plant about 7 a.m. and found that a valve inside had burst.

"The gas just started pouring out," Smith said from his hospital bed. "My mask just got filled with the stuff and pretty soon all I was breathing was the gas."

A hazardous materials team of the Jacksonville Fire Department attempted to check the leak, but Fire Chief Russell Yarborough said it was just too big — 1½ inches across. Firefighters pulled back to await the specialists.

Police said the gas from the acid had the properties of toxic chlorine gas, but a spokesman for Dow, John Soghigian, said in Midland, Mich., that anhydrous hydrocaloric acid would not form chlorine gas in the atmosphere.

Plan to settle claims against Lo-Vaca gets commission's approval

JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The railroad commission approved a plan Friday to settle more than $1.6 billion in customer claims against Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. It could result in higher gas and electric bills.

The proposed settlement would affect approximately one out of four Texans, who are served by Lo-Vaca's 5,400-mile natural gas system.

It still must survive possible lawsuits, however, as well as receive the approval of stockholders and federal agencies.

"The plan, taken as a whole, is in the public interest," said commissioner Jon Newton.

He admitted he was influenced by Lo-Vaca's major customers — such as cities and utility companies — who preferred the settlement to suits that might drag on for years.

The plan would transfer Lo-Vaca and other smaller Texas pipeline companies owned by Coastal States Gas Corp. to a new company — Valero Intrastate Transmission.

It would wipe out claims against Coastal-LoVaca and abolish long-term contracts that call for Lo-Vaca to provide gas at much cheaper rates

The proposal would allow Valero to charge higher rates than those the commission set for Lo-Vaca in a 1973 order that is still in effect. Valero also could pass on 100 percent of its gas costs to customers, just as Lo-Vaca is

The pass-through is the most controversial feature of the plan from the consumer's standpoint.

Newion said he opposed pass-rates are subject to review in the second year.

"We must not cripple the new company before it has an opportunity to survive," Newton said.

In addition to passing through gas costs, Valero could charge an extra 10 cents per thousand cubic feet of gas (mcf) the first year and 15 extra cents the second year. Lo-Vaca has been adding on five cents per mcf.

Newton noted that Attorney General John Hill had stated that the plan would "not lower the cost of gas nor will it make Texas consumers whole for the injuries they have suffered."

Other features of the plan include Coastal's commitment to spend at least $180 million over 15 years looking for gas to sell to Valero at discounted prices.

Approximately $160 million in securities would be distributed over seven years to customers through a trust. Added to the trust would be an estimated $40 million in profits to Valero from selling the discounted

Newton's motion to approve the plan specifically excludes the requests of two Lo-Vaca customers — Lone Star Gas Co. and Amoco — to pass on 100 percent of their gas costs to consumers.

He recommended that the commission consider their requests separate-

His position, he said, is "admittedly hazardous" in that Lone Star and Amoco might withdraw from the plan. "I hope this will not transpire," he said.

The commission also supported — against the wishes of Lone Star, Southern Union Gas Co., Austin and distributing proceeds from the settlement trust on the basis of the percentage of gas that Lo-Vaca sold each customer in 1975.

The proposed settlement was accepted as an alternative to a Dec. 12 commission order that required Coastal-Lo-Vaca to refund the alleged overcharges of more than $1.6 billion and to live up to the old lower-priced contracts.

Coastal-Lo-Vaca officials said the order would bankrupt the companies. Abiding by the original contracts would result in losses of $581 million a year, they said.

The commission permitted Lo-Vaca to pass-through its gas costs, after the company contended that it could no longer buy gas cheaply enough to continue to supply its customers. The contracts called for prices of approximately 20 cents per mcf, but gas prices had risen to $2 per mcf.

Under the commission's motion, the presiding district judge in Travis County would supervise the plan. It also would be monitored by the commission.

"This has been a bitter and divisive conflict for five long years," said Newton. "It is time for all of us to focus on the most feasible method within our reach to ensure that the public has a dependable supply of natural gas at a stable price. Ultimately, that is what the public interest demands."

Hill responded to the commission's 3-0 vote by saying, "The commission's approval offers parties a chance to write 'the end' to the long, sad Lo-Vaca story."

House misses approval of package by one vote

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The House fell one vote short Friday of approving its version of a constitutional amendments package that sponsors said was a step toward property tax relief.

Opponents said it was an ill-advised "sop" to Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

A 99-42 vote — just shy of the 100 votes needed to send the measure (HJR1) to the Senate — kept the measure alive for further action.

Speaker Bill Clayton had the 100 votes he needed, but one of them — Rep. Betty Denton, D-Waco — was not in the House chamber when the count was verified and could not be found.

The House package, different in several respects from one approved by the Senate, would:

— Authorize the Legislature to exempt up to $10,000 of the value of homes from school taxes, with an additional $10,000 exemption for the disabled and those 65 and over

— Enable the Legislature to pass laws taxing rural land on its ability to produce income, not its value on the real estate market. Timber land, however, could not be taxed at less than 1978 levels.

 Allow voters to repeal increases in local property taxes.

— Limit state spending increases to the same percentage as the rise in Texans' total personal income, except for appropriations to replace school district revenue lost as a result of repealing property taxes.

Prohibit passage of either a corporate or personal income tax.

 Require a majority of the Legislature's total membership, not just those present and voting, to pass bills increasing taxes or removing exemptions.

Exempt one car per family from property taxation.

Voters will get a chance to decide on property tax relief constitutional amendments only if the House and Senate agree on a single package and approve it by a two-thirds vote in each chamber.

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, chairman of the House Constitutional Amendments Committee, said the package resulting from three days of floor debate was a responsible one.

He said it would enable lawmakers to grant relief "that we can't do now because we don't have the authority" while avoiding "proposals that would eliminate state surpluses or tie the hands of future legislatures."

But Rep. Luther Jones, D-El Paso, called the House package "a sop to a defeated governor," meaning Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who called the special tax relief session.
"Equalization of (taxable property) values is where relief lies, not in Mickey Mouse exemptions," said Jones, who ardently supported Attorney General John Hill against Briscoe for governor.

Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, offered the amendment that would restrict spending increases to a percentage equal to the rise in Texans' total personal income.

He said personal income is growing at 13 percent annually, roughly the amount by which appropriations have been rising for several years.

"I'm looking to the future. If our growth slows, state spending should be reduced accordingly.... It assures us that when the state is healthy, we have plenty of money but when it's not, we won't be spending money we don't have," Ceverha said.

Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, took the microphone after backers of the limit said spending for 1977-79 is 36 percent higher than it was in 1975-77.

Russia's dispute with Iraq seen as setback in Middle East affairs

By FRED 8. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia is embroiled in a major dispute with Iraq, which is one of the Middle East's biggest buyers of Soviet weapons, U.S. intelligence sources said Friday.

The sources said Iraq and Russia are backing opposite sides in conflicts inflaming the Horn of Africa.

They said Iraq, which has increasingly used its rising income from the sale of oil to buy arms in the West, is defying Russia and is supplying weapons to Eritrean rebels fighting Soviet-backed Ethiopian forces. Iraq also has supported Somalia in its dispute with Ethiopia, despite Soviet ressure, according to these reports.

The dispute between Iraq and the Russians is viewed as a setback for the Soviet Union in the Middle East.

In recent years, Russia has lost important friendships and military footholds in Egypt and Somalia. And Sudan expelled all Soviet military advisers last year.

Syria also has become cool to the Russians and intelligence sources said the Syrians, like the Iraqis, have rebuffed Soviet pressure aimed at stopping Syrian aid to the Eritrean insurgents.

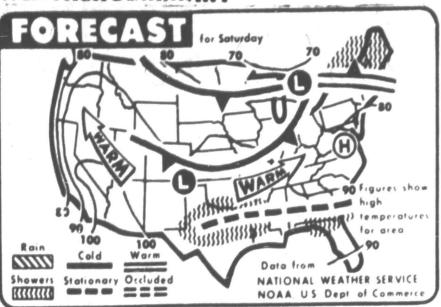

U.S. analysts said Russia and Iraq so far have been careful to keep their differences out of public view, but that the strains between them appear

Iraq is important to the Soviet Union because of its strategic position on the Persian Gulf and because it is a major oil-producing country.

The Soviet Union has cultivated Iraq's friendship in part because it wants access by the Soviet Navy to Iraqi ports on the strategic Persian Gulf, which provides access to the Indian Ocean.

According to U.S. estimates, Russia has provided Iraq with well over $2 billion in military equipment, including some of the most advanced weaponry in the Middle East. It has shipped Iraq MiG-23 fighter planes, TU-22 bombers, SA6 antiaircraft missiles and a variety of other modern

Gold price rides fear wave, hits highest price in history

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE

LONDON (AP) - The price of gold soared above the $200-an-ounce level for the first time in history Friday, riding a new wave of investor fear over the weak U.S. dollar and an age-old urge to turn to the precious metal as an ultimate hedge against economic uncertainty.

Eager buyers on the London bullion market pushed up the price to a record $201.375 an ounce, a remarkably sharp rise of about $7.25 from the closing price of $194.25 Thursday. In Zurich, Europe's other big bullion market, gold closed at $201.125 an ounce, up from $193.875 Thursday, and gold refiners and fabricators in New York quoted prices as high as "Everybody wanted gold today," said a London dealer.

The day's prices easily surpassed the previous high of $197.50 on Dec.30, 1974, after which the market dipped into a long decline.

The dollar continued its slide on currency markets - plunging to record lows against the Japanese yen and the Swiss franc.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 192.125 yen, down from Thursday's 193.475. In Zurich, the dollar dropped to 1.7525 Swiss francs, down more than four centimes from Thursday's "People in Washington just don't seem to care that the U.S. currency is eroding," said a Tokyo banker.

All other major currencies also declined against the Swiss franc, a trend dealers attributed to rising inflation rates in the United States and West Germany. The Swiss economy has been almost inflation-proof recently.

Gold market conditions Friday were described as the most hectic in years. Volume was large. One Zurich dealer said he believed the Soviet Union, one of the world's major gold miners, sold a considerable amount, with transactions carefully dosed in order not to depress the price.

"I am sure the Russians made a lot of money today," he said.

A London dealer said overnight demands from New York and Chicago to buy gold helped to swell the price in Europe.

The gold price fluctuates every day, according to supply and demand.

Youthful competitor 'curbed'

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) - The U.S. Postal Service, citing federal law, clamped down on a competitor this week. It called up his mother.

Kenny Maguire, 14, had been handdelivering mail in a fashionable Charleston neighborhood for five cents to destinations below Broad Street, eight cents above, easily undercutting the Postal Service's 15cent first-class rate.

It was "just busy work, a way for him to keep occupied, a way for him to feel he was doing something with his summer," said Kenny's mother, Frances. Each day he would sort a stack of letters, pile them into the basket of his five-speed bicycle and ride off to make his rounds. In June, he cleared

But then he landed a big contract - 80 wedding invitations - and had earned $10 in July when the Postal Service apparently decided he was

Postal Inspector B.B. Hedrick Jr. telephoned Mrs. Maguire to advise her of the law, which prohibits private enterprise from competing with the Postal Service

Hedrick, contacted Thursday, said he didn't want to discuss the case because Kenny is a juvenile and has not beenTcharged with a crime.

"It's not anticipated that any charges will be made," he said. "I would not say that there was an investigation. I've talked with Kenny's mother, but that's all.

"Basically, the post office has a monopoly on the delivery of firstclass mail," he added.

Another competitor, the P.H. Brennan Hand Delivery Service of Rochester. N.Y., which was sued by the Postal Service and has lost in federal district and appeals courts, is nevertheless still in business. Patricia Brennan, who along with her husband, J. Paul, has operated the service since 1976, said Thursday that a motion was filed in the 2nd District Court of Appeals in New York to prevent the court from closing the servicehpending an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Kenny Maguire, however, is out of business. He has managed to earn some money helping neighbors move, but it still doesn't seem right to the Maguires. "Since it's illegal, we stopped it," Mrs. Maguire said. "But I don't agree with the law.

Oil tank burning, under control

BIG SPRING - A 100,000-barrel crude oil tank on a tank farm on the Cosden Oil and Chemical Co. plant east of Big Spring was burning late Friday night but was under control, a company spokesman said.

The fire, of undetermined origin, broke out about 2 p.m. Friday and was "contained inside the tank on the tank farm on the eastside of the refinery," said Hood Barnwell, manager of industrial relations for Cosden, which is a subsidiary of American Petrofina Inc.

No one was injured in the fire, which drew fire-fighing units from the Cosden plant and from the Big Spring Fire Department.

"It's nothing serious, and everything is under control," he said Barnwell said the fire never spread from the tank and did no property damage other than to the tank it-

He said the tank was virtually empty of oil when the fire broke out. Firemen will be standing by the tank until the fire burns itself out, he

Drifting clouds bless 'sameness'

The weather across the Midland area lately has been stereotyped with a sameness - very warm to hot and blue skies occasionally blessed with drifting clouds.

And that sameness is in the forecast for today, said a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. Partly cloudy skies and no rain — and high temperature readings in the middle 90s are forecast for today.

The low today is to be in the upper 60s. Winds today are to be southerly at 10 to 15 mph Rainfall so far this year is 6.28 inches, about half of the annual norm of 13.51 inches. The precipitation so far this month is 2.51 inches.

Girl 'serious'

A 10-month-old Midland girl was still listed in "serious" condition Friday night at Midland Memorial Hospital following a traffic accident west of the city on U.S. Highway 80 late Wednesday night.

Laura Williams, the daughter of Marie Williams, 23, of Midland, was "holding her own and improving following brain surgery," Mrs. Williams said Friday.

Mrs. Williams received minor abrasions in the two-car accident, and her other daughter, Katherine Williams, 4, also was treated for similar minor injuries. Also, Pam Gamel, 17, of Midland, with a fractured pelvis. Miss Gamel was a passenger in a car driven by Mrs. Williams. Vona Renfro, 21, driver of the other vehicle involved, was released after treatment of a jaw injury.

BIG LAKE - A black bear described as weighing 300 pounds and 'running about 40 mph" was shot and killed Thursday morning by ranchers chasing the bear in pickup trucks, Reagan County Sheriff James Proffitt The bear, not native to this sheepand-goat ranching country, was spotted about 10 a.m. Thursday by a pumper on the Wilson Loftin Ranch, south of the old Stiles courthouse in Reagan County. "It (the bear) was so unbelievable that I didn't even ask" who gunned it down, the sheriff said.

Loftin, the ranch owner, said he had heard about the bear on his citizens' band radio

Reporter reprieved hour before jail doors shut

WASHINGTON (AP) - Reporter Myron Farber got at least a four-day reprieve from an indefinite jail term Friday when Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White issued a last-minute order staying

The New York Times reporter was to have been been imprisoned at noon for refusing to surrender confidential notes to a New Jersey judge presiding over the celebrated "Dr. X" murder trial.

White received an appeal from attorneys for the Times and Farber only an hour before the sentence was to have been carried out. He issued the stay minutes before noon.

The newspaper's petition said enforcement of subpoenas through imprisonment and fines would irrevocably injure the ability of reporters to gather the news, particularly in the area of criminal investiga-

Farber and the newspaper had been ordered by Bergen County Judge William Arnold to turn over files gathered in the preparation of stories about a series of mysterious patient deaths at Riverdale Hospital in Oradell, N.J., in 1965 and 1966.

Farber's stories prompted authorities to renew an investigation of the deaths. Dr. Mario Jascalevich, dentified in Farber's initial articles only as "Dr. X," was charged with the murder of five patients through administration of curare, a powerful muscle relaxant.

With a little help, turtles begin a 'survival march' to Texas seashore

(AP) - With an international helping hand, 280 endangered Atlantic Ridley sea turtles began a survival march to the sea Friday, a journey that could lead to the preservation of the species.

This action by the National Parks Service was the latest in a series of steps to save the turtles, whose Rancho Nuevo, Mexico, nesting grounds have been ravaged for years by poachers looking for eggs, which have gained a worldwide reputation for their supposed aphrodisiac powers.

The population of the Atlantic Ridley, also known as Kemps Ridley, has declined 95 percent in 30 years. Last year, only about 2,000 turtles came to the 10-mile stretch of beach.

The first turtle census in 1947 showed a population of about 40,000 nesting females in one day. There are five to seven nesting days each season. Except for a sporadic Ridley on South Padre Island, the Mexican beach is the only nesting site for the creature. In an effort to make another, more protected, home, U.S. scientists stalked the Rancho Nuevo beach until they saw a mother turtle about to lay

"It could be the chemicals in the sand, the position of the sun or the water composition," said Ro Wauer, chief of natural resources for the National Park Service's southwest region.

Friday's leg of the international odyssey was an attempt to imprint into the turtle's brain a memory of the beach behind the park ranger station. At 8:45 a.m., the small black creatures about the size of a silver dollar, were taken gently from styrofoam containers and placed on the beach, about 50 yards from the surf.

Passers-by and park rangers earlier had constructed a turtle crossing on the beach, consisting of several rows of sand designed to steer the turtles toward the surf. A net was strung to catch any stray Ridleys that might slip past individuals in the surf holding nets usually used to scoop fish out of aquari-

Twenty-five minutes after park naturalist Bob Whistler tipped a box of the creatures onto the beach, the first Ridley hit the waves, only to be scooped up by 7-year-old David Christensen of Moab, Utah, an

The absence of Trudeau prompted a "Trudeau snubs Queen" headline in Friday's edition of The Daily Mirror in London, according to The Canadian Press. It quoted the paper as saying in a dispatch from Newfoundland: "Angry Canadian royalists believe he should have been on hand to greet the queen and Prince Philip at the start of her Canadian nominal head of state.

The boy posed with his catch for a moment to several minutes and then were placed in holding boxes, which will be flown Saturday to the National Marine Fishery Service at Galveston. They will stay at Galveston for six to 12 months and then will be released at the seashore and in Florida sea grass beds, where year-old Ridleys have been sighted in the past.

Scientists will not know if the project is successful for five to eight years, the maturity time for a female turtle. Even if the turtles do not return to Padre Island, park superintendent John Turney said the project will not be in vain.

On the first batch of eggs that hatched, we had a 97 percent survival rate. That's better than their survival in the wilds, and we won't release them until they're well enough to feed themsleves. So we'll be getting more Ridleys than if they just stayed on the Mexican beach.'

The $350,000 project received no government fund-ing. Wauer said he was discussing the project last November with another park serice official and the two decided there was too little time to ask for allocations, which Wauer estimated would take two to three years to materialize.

The National Marine Fishery Service, Fish and Wildlife Service, national Park Service, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and Mexico's Instituto Nacional de Pesca joined forces and took money from other projects to get the required funds to save the Ridley, the smallest species of sea turtle.

"Once a species reaches a certain level, it can't come back. It becomes extinct. I don't know what that level is, but a 95 percent drop in population in 30 years ... I thought it was time to act," Wauer said.

"When you do not have money, you have to go on commitment," he said.

In addition to establishing a second nesting ground, two hatchings from Rancho Nuevo are also being blown to Galveston to participate in the "Turtle Headstart" program to increase the turtle population in Mexico.

Translation of queen's speech leads to disputes in Canada

CORNER BROOK, Newfoundland (AP) - Queen 14-year-old son Edward were on the third day of their Elizabeth II, on a 12-day visit to Canada, was caught up Friday in a dispute over an official English translation of remarks she made in French concerning Canadian unity, a major political issue across the country.

The federal government's English translation of what the queen said in French in a speech Thursday night in St. John's was:

"Nowadays, Canadians in all provinces must be convinced that their future as a nation is derived from the continued belief that it is in their best interests to maintain and develop the Canadian

French-speaking Canadian reporters covering the tour said the federal government's translation of what the Queen said in French was softer on the question of national unity. They translated the queen's message in French to read:

"Canadians must rediscover their faith in the values and objectives that existed at the birth of Canada if they wish to reinforce their will to live collectively and ensure for their country a future that will measure up to their hopes.'

Canadian unity is an issue because of the policy of the Parti Quebecois government in the Frenchspeaking Quebec to eventually secede and become an independent nation - a step some Canadians fear could lead to the breakup of the Canadian confederation.

In the French-speaking reporters' translation of what the queen said there is no reference to the provinces or any heavy stress on national unity, which federalists put forth as one counter argument to the Quebec secessionists.

The Canadian foreign secretary, Don Jamieson, said that the federal government did not intend to issue different versions in French and English. Jamieson and Governor General Jules Leger, the queen's official representative in Canada, are the official hosts for the royal tour. Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau is vacationing in the Mediterran-

"It's not the first time there has been a mistaken interpretation," Jamieson said.

A tour spokesman said the queen had been informed of the fuss arising from the alleged differences beween her remarks in French and English, but said no further comment would be made by her

LONDON (AP) - Bishops of the worldwide Anglican Communion will decide this summer if they approve of women becoming priests.

Their decision will be argued in the highest conclave of their church and in the mother city of English Christianity - the Lambeth Conference. held for the first time at Canterbury.

What the 400 bishops decide will not be binding on the individual branches of the 65 million Anglicans on six continents. Each national branch makes up its own mind, but the conference "will have a great deal of influence," said Bishop John Howe, who is organizing the conference.

Unveiling plans for the conference to reporters recently, Howe said the issue of women's ordination will be discussed at a special plenary session open to the press and "it is almost certain that the session will devise a resolution on which it will vote."

Anglican churches are far from agreement on the admissison of women to the priesthood, although there now are Anglican women priests in the United States Episcopal Church, in Canada and Hong Kong. Some other branches have approved the principle of it. The Church of England's synod — its ruling council — has agreed only there is no fundamental theological objection.

However, in that decision two years ago, the synod also voted against any immediate action. In effect, it decided to see what the Lambeth Conference would do.

Archbishop of Canterbury Donald Coggan, who convenes the Lambeth Conference, is known to favor women priests and less than a dozen of England's 42 diocesan bishops are op-

American workers dealt 'double blow' by June's inflation rate

By OWEN ULLMANN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Food, housing and car prices jumped sharply again in June, shrinking American workers' buying power and holding inflation above a 10 percent rate for the year.

In twin blows to consumers, the Labor Department said Friday that retail prices during June rose 0.9 percent for the third straight month, while workers' buying power dropped 0.4 percent, the second decline in a

That meant that despite pay in-creases averaging 0.5 percent in June, the average wage earner was unable to keep pace with inflation, which the government said would be 10.4 percent this year based on price rises during the first half.

Food prices would leap nearly 18 percent this year based on their performance during the first six months, while housing would rise 11 percent. Government economists acknow-ledged that the latest consumer price report dampened the Carter administration's hopes of limiting inflation this year to about 7 percent.

"We all can see improvements coming in food prices during the sec-ond half of the year," said Commerce Department economist William Cox. 'But what's happening in the nonfood sector is becoming much more problematical.

At the White House, spokesman Rex Granum said the increase in consumer prices was "extremely disappointing," but noted the likely moderation of food prices during the last half of the year.

The administration has raised its inflation and food price hike forecasts several times this year following large jumps reported in the monthly

At the start of the year, the administration predicted that inflation would be just over 6 percent, while the Agriculture Department forecast food price rises of between 4 and 6 percent. Now the government fore-casts inflation at 7.2 percent and food prices at about 10 percent for the

Price, wage guidelines urged by Fed chairman

By R. GREGORY NOKES

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the Federal Reserve Board suggested Friday that major industries establish their own price and wage guidelines to help control an inflation rate that threatens to push the economy toward a serious recession in the near future.

Chairman G. William Miller said business must show more restraint on prices. Although profits may be lower in the short-term as a result, he said, "in the long-run there will be more real profits, more real earnings and more real value" from a lower infla-

He said the program could include labor-management councils in such basic industries that would develop their own price and wage guidelines. The guidelines then would be submitted to the government, where they could be debated, Miller said.

But he said he didn't like the idea of government-imposed guidelines because that could raise fears that they might lead to wage and price con-

Miller said he was disturbed by the 0.9 percent increase in the consumer price index in June, announced Friday. Inflation probably will range between 7¼ and 7¾ percent for the next 12 months, he said.

He urged postponing the 1979 in-crease in Social Security taxes for a year and suspending the 1979 increase in the minimum wage to help ease inflationary pressures. He also-criticized a proposed reduction in the capital gains taxes as potentially inflationary because it would increase the budget deficit.

Network to expose

HAVANA (AP) — Six American leftists, including three former CIA employees, announced plans Friday to establish a worldwide network of agents to expose CIA personnel and methods of operations.

To launch the operation, the six said they were willing to meet with members of the delegations from 145 countries that have gathered here for the 11th World Festival of Youth and Students. The festival, more than two years in preparation, has attracted some 20,000 foreign delegates.

The best known of the Americans is Philip Agee, who resigned from the CIA in 1969 after 12 years as a case officer and has since written two books on CIA activities. With Agee at his side, William Schaat, who has done research of U.S. intelligence operations, outlined the plans at a news conference at the Hayana Libre Hotel

Schaat said he and his colleagues hope to meet with as many festival delegates as possible to explain "the kind of work the CIA does and how to uncover and expose its methods.

"We hope ultimately to establish a worldwide network of involved and knowledgeable researchers who will have CIA officers under close scrutiny."

The name of the operation will be "CIA Watch," he said, and the role of the Americans will be to "check and double check the work that has been done."

Schaat said the CIA continues to attack institutions and "to corrupt or kill public officials, union leaders, students, progressive church or civic leaders or anyone else who stands in the way of the forces represented by the capitalists, imperialists, or the multi-national corporations."

The group also is collaborating on a new publication—Covert Action Information Bulletin—the first issue of which was released a few days ago.

Other members of the group are James and Elsie Wilcott, who worked in finance and support for the CIA for nine years; Ellen Ray, a researcher on CIA activities; and Louis Wolf, who collaborated with Agee on a book to be published soon, "Dirty Work: The CIA in Western Europe."

Taxes make it difficult to sell

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Mary and Edward Burke are in their late 50s. They would like to leave the three-bedroom home they own for an apartment, but they can't afford to sell. Burke is a made-up name; the problem is all too

It is a problem that causes people to accumulate huge, but artificial, profits during years of home ownership. Profits that are created by inflation but are still subject to capital gains taxes that can wipe out a large portion of a family's retirement nest

Just as young couples find it tough to buy their first house, older people find it tough to sell their last one. "It's hard to get on the train and it's hard to get off," said Kenneth J. Thygerson, an economist with the U.S. League of Savings Associations.

The elderly in particular, he said, "feel locked in. They consume more housing than they want to."

Congress is trying to find a key to the lock. One potential solution is included in the $16.2 billion tax cut bill approved by the House Ways and Means Committee and expected to reach the floor of the House during the week of Aug. 7.

The bill includes two provisions that would have the effect of eliminating capital gains taxes on the sale of a home in many cases. One provision would allow individuals - on a one-time only basis to exempt from capital gains tax up to $100,000 of the profit from the sale of their principal residence as long as they had lived in it for two years. Another section of the bill exempts from taxation any inflation-caused increase in the value of a home or other asset starting in 1980.

No one knows how many people move into a house, problem. Census Bureau figures show that on the senior, sources here and in Athens said Friday. average, houses change hands every 10 to 12 years. One mortgage is exchanged for another. Mobility is from Athens that the Onassis family was "deeply greater in California and lower in New England.

Housing, said Thygerson, is "the only asset most people have that has risen faster than inflation." If you bought a house for $25,000 five years ago and sell it for $50,000 today, you have a theoretical profit of $25,000. You'll probably have to use up that profit and more - to buy a replacement home, but, "If you hadn't had that house in the first place, you'd have been even worse off," Thygerson said.

"Once you're in a house you benefit by inflation," said Thygerson. The disadvantages become more apparent when you want to sell your home and buy a $10,000 exemption, is subject to a minimum tax of cheaper one or move into rental housing. That's percent. In this example, the minimum tax wou where capital gains come in.

Under present law, payment of capital gains tax on profits from the sale of a home is deferred as long as you buy a replacement residence within 18 months that costs as much or more than the house you sell. The tax is only postponed; it is not forgiven. Any gain not taxed in the year you sell your old home is subtracted from the cost of your new house to determine what's known as the basis price used in later transactions.

Here's how it works:

You buy a house for $20,000 and, 10 years later, sell it for $40,000. Capital gain: $20,000.

With the proceeds from the sale of the first house you buy a second one, this time paying $50,000. The basis price of your new home for the purpose of after 1980, the inflation-adjustment provision would capital gains will be $30,000 — the actual purchase come into play. That provision allows you to adjust price minus the earlier capital gain. Fifteen years the basis price used for capital gains to reflect later, you sell the second house for $100,000. Capital increases in the Consumer Price Index.

You rent an apartment and now it's time to pay the taxes. You must report $35,000 or half the capital gain on your return and pay tax according to your regular bracket. If you were in a 40 percent bracket, the capital gains tax on the $35,000 would be $14,000. The other half of the capital gain, minus a exemption limit.

(If you are over 65, you are not subject to tax on the first $35,000 of your capital gain. Half of the other $35,000 — $17,500 — would be reported as regular income and half, minus the $10,000 exemption, wou be subject to the minimum tax. In the above example, that would mean your tax bill would

If the proposal passed by the House panel become law, you would face no tax on your profit since comes within the $100,000 limit.

Suppose, however, you sell your second house for $150,000. Your total capital gain would be $120,000 $20,000 from the first house and $100,000 from the second house. If the sale took place today, you wou

Farmers turn political activists

By WILSON MORRIS

BEALETON, Va. - This time last year, Calvin Ritchie was standing in a dust field of drought-stunted corn, facing the loss of $100,000 if it didn't

It didn't. Last week Ritchie was standing on moist earth with corn up to his ears and a good chance of producing his best crop in years.

In between crops he has become something of a political activist, a rebel of sorts in a profession that is as dedicated to tradition and simplicity as it is to hard work and respect for the land. What happened to Ritchie was the American Agriculture Move-ment (AAM), the Colorado-born protest organization that swept across the nation and brought Ritchie and thousands of fellow farmers to Wash-

Six months after he stood in the bitter chill of a Capitol Hill protest. Ritchie has been through an eyeopening rollercoaster experience and his path through it explains a good deal about farming and the AAM protest that was born out of drought and low farm prices. What the movement brought can be measured largely in intangibles: a new political awareness for farmers, some small political victories, and a new sense of community among people who pride themselves on their individualism.

In Virginia, at least, the AAM today may be in danger of withering, itself a victim of good weather and higher prices. The same could be happening in farming areas across the nation, according to Agriculture Department experts. Crop conditions are good generally, the USDA says, in sharp

The "strike" that Ritchie and other AAM leaders called for in Washington last winter has failed to materialize here in the rolling green hills of Pied-mont Virginia. AAM leaders never defined what "strike" meant; other than a demand that farmers should quit planting crops or cut back their productions sharply.

A grin creeps across Ritchie's face today when he is asked if he ever believed that farmers would, in fact, "strike." "The word 'strike' is kind of a bad word." "We'd like to get away from it, have it be just the American Agriculture Movement."

But even without the "strike," the movement has made both political and sociologicl achievements that Ritchie and others will remember long after the memory of their baseball cap and bib overall-clad marchers has faded.

Last year, Ritchie said, "so many farmers had their future on the line. There was gloom everywhere. The young farmers didn't want to go out and harvest what little they had. Everybody was looking for some-

"Then the movement came along." Ritchie said. It had begun to get publicity with demands for "full parity," another ill-defined term, that most farmers said meant higher prices, when Ritchie and some friends sat down the day after Thanksgiving to talk about the AAM.

"People in the movement really got close," said Ritchie, who put in another phone in his Fauguier Grain Co. office which became the AAM's Virginia state headquarters, coordinating the movement of farmers and tractors as they flowed toward the Capitol, 55 miles to the east.

'You can't believe the dedication of some of these farmers. You'd walk o down the street and see the "STRIKE" caps and you knew your buddles," Ritchie said.

The older farm orgnaizations like the Farm Bureau had become businesses, with paid staff, and farmers like Ritchie didn't have any group to "belong" to, Ritchie said.

In Virginia the AAM farmers became their own organization, raised $45,000 and discovered that even informally organized they could have political clout.

Nationally the AAM has claimed some victories, too. The Senate passed a farm bill that increased support far beyond levels sought by the Carter administration. The House killed the bill, but the White House was forced to increase the level of support in its proposal, AAM leaders

"I think an impartial observer would have to say they had influence," said James C. Webster, director of the Agriculture Department's office of congressional and public affairs. "A lot of the things we would have done in one form or another, but it's fair to say we wouldn't have done quite as much. The collective result is a very good, workable farm program.

But as the AAM farmers were protesting in Washington and elsewhere, several other things were happening back on the farms. In drought-strick en areas such as Virginia, federal subsidies were paying as much as two-thirds of feed bills of farmers who had lost their grain and grass crops and had nothing to feed livestock.

Most important, the Farmers Home Administration came through with 3 percent, seven-year loans that farmers could use to pay off 9 percent banknotes and keep going. Ritchie credits the loans with saving many young farmers working on rented land. "We give the government heck.

But don't get me wrong, we appreciate things like that."

And spring came. The AAM dropped its strike demand to call for a production cut of 50 percent, but when the time came to plant, few, if any, of the protesters followed through. Ritchie says he knows of no one who didn't plant. Nationally, according to the USDA, corn planting is down 5 percent this year and wheat down 11 percent. Despite his prospects for a better crop this year Ritchie remains bitter toward President Carter. "Unless his attitude changes, even three good years wouldn't change me. We think the Carter administration is geared to a cheap food policy. They're against the farmer," Ritchie said.

As to the future of the AAM, Ritchie said: "I'm always optimistic. I expect the movement to go on a long as we're farming. But a good year will make it harder. The better off financially, the less interest. That's human nature.

USDA's Webster said, "It's hard to say what their future is. The movement produced some real leaders. bright, sharp leaders. But it contains a lot of anti-institutional sentiment."

"Something like this comes along every 10 or 20 years," Webster said, and then usually vanishes.

"The real value of the AAM was increased visibility of the farmer in the non-farm sector. It did more than all the farm organizations and the USDA had done in 10 years," Webster

Ritchie agree with that and adds that the farmers also learned another lesson. "We've always looked up to our leaders - congressmen, the administration. . .But we've gone to hearings and talked to them and they weren't any smarter than you or I. We're not impressed, anymore."

Garbage keeps environmentalist wolves from glass makers' door

By LARRY KRAMER The Washington Post

DAYVILLE, Conn. — The major problem facing the Glass Containers Corp. here is finding enough garbage.

In a tribute to what environmental regulation is supposed to be, a com-bined effort by industry and govern-ment has led to some remarkable results, not the least of which is the use of would-be garbage in the form of discarded glass as the single largest raw material in the production of new glass bottles

Because of prodding from state and federal environmental regulators a couple of years ago, the Glass Containers Corp. decided to rethink its production methods in an attempt to meet environmental air quality standards at its bottle-making facility here. There was, after all, a lot at stake - the plant generates $50 million in annual sales of about 576 million bottles to beer and soft drink

The end result: The plant is more efficient, meets air quality standards, uses less fuel for the same amount of production, did not have to put in costly abatement equipment and now is using recycled glass as half the raw materials needed in its production. In addition, more than $1.4 million has been poured into the local economy, virtually creating an entirely new scavenger industry while at the same time ridding a large part of New England of the empty-bottle-alongthe-roadway problem

"I guess," says plant manager Ed Sleasman, "we didn't come out of it too badly.

Sleasman and the management of Glass Containers Corp. have much to to with the apparent success of environmental regulation at Dayville. A long-time GCC employee, Sleasman came to this rural Northeast Connecticut hamlet as plant manager in "The environmental movement was in full swing," he remembers, "and events like Earth Day began to make us think about things like recycling and cleaning up our smoke-

Sleasman said although it was common knowledge that recycled glass could be crushed and cleaned (known hen as cullet) and then used in manufacturing new glass bottles, there was a general resistance in the industry to its use.

"Our production people just said flat out that we couldn't use more than about 15 or 20 percent cullet in our production process," Sleasman "There was no real basis for environemtalists - from the door." After his arrival, however, Sleasman upped the monthly intake of recycled glass to 1,800 tons a month, defying production people who said he could not put out quality glass with more than 20 percent cullet.

What the production people did not know was that, a few years earlier, Sleasman, rather than close down another plant he was running because of raw material shortages, used 100 percent cullet, "and everything came out fine." He was itching to use large quantities of recycled glass again.

But another environmental problem devloped at Dayville. The Environmental Protection Agency made its first contact with GCC in 1972, and promptly informed the company that its four furnaces were turning out 52 percent more particulates from their smokestacks than is allowable by law. And the sulphate count was too

The sulphate problem was solved merely by using a different grade of oil, but the particulates posed a major theat. Pollution abatement equipment, like expensive and hard-tomaintain scrubbers for each smokestack, would have to be bought.

"At the time, it never dawned on us that increased use of cullet would clean up the smokestacks," Sleasman

But continual readings of the smokestacks by the EPA revealed that pollution decreased when more cullet was being used. "It appeared that the particulates had been removed when the glass was produced the first time around," said Sleas-

Still, the heat was on from the federal and state environmental agencies. And Connecticut, which has one of the most aggressive environmental enforcement programs - including huge fines based on what the firm should have been paying for complying with standards - wanted more than just improvement. The factory would have to comply with existing standards.

"We couldn't find enough cullet; there weren't any scavengers in business and the recycling programs were not bringing in enough, so we bought a scrubber for one of the smokestacks," Sleasman said. The scrubber cost CGS $300,000 plus about $35,000 a year in maintenance costs, and rarely works more than 10 days straight without some form of costly break-

"The scrubber convinced us to look at alternatives," Sleasman said.

He became more aggressive in seeking out recyclers and encouraging scavengers to bring in glass. GCC representatives went to community group meetings and encouraged them to recycle glass for profit. GCC began paying up to $37 a ton for already refined recycled glass.

Meanwhile, Sleasman paid a visit to scavenger who was delivering "clean" recycled glass. He wanted to see how the man was removing such things as metals caps and aluminum bands. When Sleasman saw the conveyor belt and filter system, he had to

"So I asked him what he wanted for it, and I bought it," Sleasman said. With later additions, including magnets and further filters, Sleasman now has on is plant site the most advanced glass recycling operation ever built.

And now the glass is really coming in. During the past 12 months, more than 70,000 tons have been taken in, with GCC shelling out $2.5 million to all sorts of scavengers and recycling groups — a full 40 percent of the total plant outlay for raw materials.

"People with college degrees are pulling up with truckloads of broken glass, and pulling out with $600 or $700 a throw," Sleasman says.

And GCC now employs 10 new people to run its recycling operations six days a week. Trucks are weighed coming in, their loads are emptied and checked for quality - no loose metal, colors are separated into clear, amber and green - and weighed on the way out. Then they are paid on the difference in weight. The stream of trucks is nearly constant. The color separation is particularly important, because it allows for quality control. Anheuser-Busch, for example, demands an amber bottle because it keeps sunlight from spoiling the beer.

'We had another side benefit because of using recycled glass," Sleasman remembers. "We found that cullet melts easier than our usual raw materials, and we need 10 to 15 percent less heat to melt it down. We haven't figured out how much yet, but we know we are saving on our fuel

Sleasman and GCC top management in Fullerton, Calif., are enthusiastic about their working relationship with the EPA. "They could have come in here at any time and just said, 'do it now,' and we might have cut our patient, worked with us while we increased our cullet imput. And now we are working full shifts around the clock (employment is at a new high of 1,035 — up 200 since 1974), paying out well over $1 million to the local economy, keeping thousands of tons of glass out of the solid waste landfills, and turning out bottles as good as they have ever been.'

"Our only problem," Sleasman says, "is finding enough old glass . . . finding enough garbage to turn into new glass."

EPA Boston enforcement official Steve Fradkoff said GCC has been "very cooperative — which is why we gave them more time." EPA first gave the company until June 1976 to comply with air quality standards. But when that goal was not met "because they said they were having trouble finding enough cullet," Fradkoff gave them an extension until December.

'We could have stepped in and taken some action," Fradkoff said, but they showed that they had the technology, so we gave them more time." Time to develop more sources of recycled bottles was all GCC needed. When the use of cullet hit 50 percent, a check revealed the plant's emissions to be safely under the mandated levels for particulates.

One of the few remaining problems securing a continued source of cullet - is likely to be eased considerably soon. Two separate resources recovery plants, which will churn out large quantities of cullet for industrial use. are expected to be completed soon in Hempstead, L.I., and Bridgeport, Conn. The latter is part of an EPA project with private industry. Glass Container Corp. will be a major recipient of much or all of the cullet from those plants. Now Fradkoff, too, is happy.

"This is the type of solution we like environmentally sound," he said. "They are recycling glass, saving fuel costs and probably extending the life of the furnaces by using the cullet. And it is one of the few opportunities where they came into compliance without having to spend a lot of power station within two or three years at a cost of about one percent of the cost of the electricity,

"and society should be prepared to pay that."

Declarer won the first trick and courageously led trumps at once.

East took the ace of spades and led another heart. Declarer led a second trump to the king, and back came a diamond to East's ace.

Not so admirable, however, if you insist on making an unbeatable contract when you can.

SHOULD SEE DANGER South should see the danger of a heart ruff. Why should he draw trumps when this will give the opponents time to get their ruff? Declarer should lead dismonds at the second trick. He wins the heart return and cashes the king and jack of diamonds to discard two hearts from the dummy. That removes hearts from the dummy and guarantees the contract since dummy cannot be overruffed except by the ace or king of spades.

DAILY QUESTION Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes. You hold: S Q 8 4, H A Q J 3, D Q, S A Q 9 5 3. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs. You will show the hearts later, indicating that the clubs are longer than the hearts. The hand is not strong enough for a jump response to an opening bid of one diamond, but you would jump to three clubs if partner opened with one heart or even one spade DETROIT (AP) - If all those boxy, little cars are starting to look alike, you are not hallucinating. You might be getting an early glimpse of "world

World car? It is an industry buzz-word as fuel gets scarce and costly and automakers look to the fastgrowing market in developing nations.

The result could be cars from Kenosha that look pretty much like those from Nairobi. It could also be that some cars that do not make the grade will go the way of the Henry J, the Studebaker and the Pierce

One European economist warns that the sheer wealth of General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. makes them a threat to major automakers worldwide as they aim toward developing a universal Ford, GM and Chrysler Corp. already build nearly half the 30.8 million cars turned out annually around the world.

The trend toward a world car already is causing global reverberations as industry giants seek to expand, governments rush to make their countries attractive as plant locations and labor unions hold meetings to talk about worldwide collective bargain-

It is hard to find two people who agree on a definition of the world car. But they agree it is not a new idea - it is 67 years old, in fact.

The Model T appeared in Detroit in 1908 and was being assembled in England just three years later. By 1920, the sturdy little cars were being put together in Brazil, India, Denmark and Spain.

The auto industry has been international ever since. In 1967, for the first time, more cars were built outside than inside North America.

And today's supposed world cars - the Volkswagen Rabbit, Ford Fiesta and Chevrolet Chevette are cited - come closer than the Model T to being international products. While the overseas Model T was largely built with U.S. parts, the Fiesta is the product of 16 parts and assembly plants in six European nations, coordinated from Dearborn.

VW's Rabbit-Gulf-Caribe sequel to the Beetle the second world car - is made in West Germany, the United States, Mexico, Indonesia and Yugo-slavia. The Chevette is the same basic car as GM subsidiaries build in England, Germany, Brazil, Australia and Japan. Chrysler this year combined features of its French-built cars and introduced the first U.S.-built front-wheel-drive small cars, the twin Dodge Omni-Plymouth Horizon — and at the same time started building the identical Simca Horizon in France. Most versions of these similarly styled international cars are put together with at least some locally produced parts that would fit the models built in other countries

Such across-the-border standardization of parts, as opposed to identical cars worldwide, is regarded

"The story isn't so much identical cars as engineering cooperation and components exchange, says a Ford analyst. "The world car just doesn't exist in the image people want it to exist."

How did everybody come up with a boxy design? Because of the fuel shortages that sent prices up and prompted a U.S. requirement for gasoline economy which translates into a need for smaller cars. "You can get more in a box than a ball," says a

Ford research man. Likewise, the trend toward front-wheel drive means the drive train is up front, eliminating the transmission hump on the floor and allowing a lower floor and more interior room. It is also easier to sell front-wheel drive in Europe, where it is old

It appears clear that U.S. companies can sell in Europe. The Fiesta quickly became the best-selling new car ever in Europe after its introduction there in GM and Ford, however, seem to have the jump on the real growth markets of South America, Africa, the Middle East and Asia, analysts say.

Political reality dictates use of both local labor and locally made parts when foreign plants are opened. This means that foreign governments seek the plants as employers of their citizens. When Ford of Europe decided last year to build a $330 million engine plant in Europe, Britain, Spain, Ireland and West Germany came up with offers of tax breaks, job training and other incentives.

Ford decided on Wales, and it was estimated that the company got government aid and incentives for $125 million of the $330 million capital cost. The payoff will be 2,000 jobs in Wales by 1980.

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (AP) — Cut-down day is coming at the New England Patriots' training camp, but those who get the axe won't leave with empty stomachs.

Veterans and rookies here at the National Football League team's preseason workouts are eating up a storm. Some pro football dreams will be shattered, but the hopefuls will leave with watering mouths as well as broken hearts.

Like other NFL teams, the Patriots apparently figure the way to a prospective star's heart is through his

"These guys can really eat. They get everything they want, and as much as they want," says Gary Valerio, 24, a manager of food services at Bryant College, where the Patriots have held preseason training camp

Valerio and his colleagues from Saga Food Service say the Patriots will spend more than $20,000 for the one-month training period, abbre-viated this year by the addition of two extra regular season NFL games. A former Brown University football player, Valerio knows how much athletes like to eat. But to the uninitiated, the quantities may seem mind-bog-

Perry will cook special meals to order for individual players. Valerio notes that most of the requests come from veterans, who are secure in their jobs. "Some of the rookies," he says,

"don't really expect to be around too long. But they still like to eat." Valerio plans meals five to six days in advance. Dinners are the main chore. The Patriots serve two selections per meal. Favorites include onepound sirloin steaks (two per man), roasts, fan tail shrimp, lasagna and barbequed chicken.

Lunches consist of a hot casserole, sandwiches and salads. Pastry is available, but the team favors ice cream in basic flavors and fresh HOUSTON - Abeline's David Little was the difference.

The talented 6-6 forward poured in 29 points Friday night to spark the North All Stars to an exciting 109-108 victory over the South in the 46th annual basketball game in Hofheinz Pavilion at the University of Houston

Little becomes the third highest scorer in the history of the event and gave coach Al Oglesby's outfit the lift it neededTlate in the game. Performing before 6,122 fans the Texas Tech-bound star only had eight points at halftime but flipped in 21 in the second half.

"We were really in foul trouble early with James Griffin and Anthony Lee both with saddled with four fouls, and it was Little that made the differnce for us," commented the happy Odessa Permian coach.

Little appeared to be pretty tired after the high scoring game which set a scoring record for total points scored between the two teams. "I was tired at the end but gave it all I had knowing that Griffin and Lee were not going to be able to play much de-fense," said Little afterwards.

The North had six players with four fouls on them with 8: 49 still left in the game and trailing 86-82. The South, behind the hot shooting of Brad Friess, Austin Anderson standout, scored 14 straight unanswered points late in the third period to overcome a Northern lead, pulling ahead by 10 points, 82-72 with 1:17 left in the period. Friess, a 6-5 sharpshooter, put on quite a show for the Rebels. He's headed to the University of Arkansas where he should fit right in to Coach Eddie Sutton's plans.

Friess and Little both were honored after the exciting contest in winning Most Valuable Player awards. Each team is granted the MVP for their play in the contest yearly.

Friess scored 26 points along with teammate Jerry Davis of West Oso. Davis, another 6-5 standout who averaged 34.4 points per game in high school last year, is headed to the University of Detroit. Adding to the balance of the Southern attack was the 18-point performance of Beaumont South Park's Arthur Gray. Terry Teagle, 6-4 forward from-Broaddus, a small class A school, chipped in with 10 more while performing on a gimpy leg. He too averaged more than 30 points per game in high school this past season and will play with Baylor.

While Little's 29 points led the Yankee attack, he got scoring help from Billy Allen, Lee and Griffin, Allen, a 6-0 guard from Highland Park played an outstanding floor game and scored 21 points, with nine of those coming at the free unrow line.

Lee and Griffin, a pair of 6-9 athletes, had 18 and 12 points, respective-trebounded by the South 76-48. The South seemed to catch the North off guard by piling up leads of eight to 10 points but Little and Allen seemd to always come up with the big play to get the North back into the The South led 84-78 going into the final 10 minutes of play as the two teams played 20 minute halves under college rules. This is most likely why both teams appeared exhausted at the end of the game.

The taller Northern team was ou-

When the sixth North player picked up his fourth foul, which was Little, Griffin applied his patented dunk shot to cut the South lead to 86-82. Jeff Costello hit two consecutive baskets to give the Rebels a 90-82 lead with 8:07 left in the game.

William Terry got the North back in the contest with 5:51 left on a pair of free throws that made the score 94-

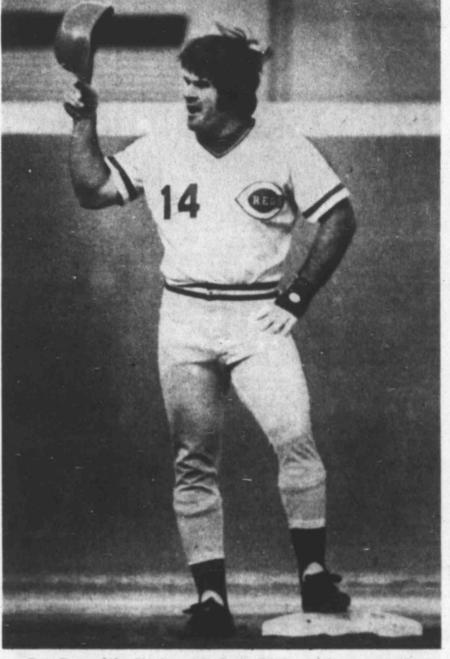

The two battled back and forth and the score with 3:36 was 106-100 when Lee hit a free throw to give the North the lead back for the first time. The game was tied on three more occasions before Griffin hit a shot at the top of the circle to make it 105-104 with 2: 05 left in favor of the North

Allen hit a field goal and two free throws to make it 109-104 with 41 seconds left but the South almost pulled it out.

Myron Palmer of Snook hit a free throw to make it 109-105 and with 15 seconds left Friess scored on a threepoint play, hitting a driving layup and a free throw after being fouled by David Hughes.

Pete Rose ties Sisler

CINCINNATI (AP) - Cincinnati Reds third baseman Pete Rose tied the fourth longest hitting streak in major league history Friday by beating out a bunt in the sixth inning of the second game of a twi-night doubleheader against Philadelphia.

The bunt, off Phillies left-hander Steve Carlton, put the 37-year-old Reds' captain into a tie with George Sisler who had a 41-game streak in 1922. The Reds won the second game 2-1, after dropping the opener 12-2. Only Bill Dahlen with a 42-game streak and Willie Keeler with 44 now stand between Rose and the major league record of 56 consecutive games set by Joe DiMaggio in 1941. Roses's double in the first game and his bunt single in the second, moved him past Ty Cobb, who had a 40-game hitting streak in 1911. A standing room only crowd of over 51,000 gave him a standing ovation and cheers of "Pete, Pete, Pete!" every time he came to the plate and cheered wildly for each of his hits. "I really wanted to get a hit in the sixth inning (of the second game),' Rose said. "I could visualize not getting another at-bat in the game.' Rose had hit the ball hard his first two times at bat in the second game but right at the first baseman and at Carlton, who easily threw him out. "I said to myself 'I'm hitting the ball good and they're catching it so I'll try something different," Rose

Rose laid down what he called a "perfect bunt" and Mike Schmidt could not handle the ball as Rose reached first base.

Rose, attempting to steal second, jammed his hand but said it would be fine for Saturday's game against the Ironically, Rose used a bunt to escape his closest call since the streak began June 14.

In the 32nd game of the streak, Rose who had been held hitless his first three times up against Carlton, laid down a perfect two-out ninth inning bunt off right-handed reliever Ron

During the streak Rose has had 64 hits in 169 at bats for a .379 average. After the second game he pointed out that he was having a "luckless streak" in that some of the balls he was hitting hard were being caught.

Despite answering reporters questions before, in between and after the doubleheader Rose said he was ready

LA mayor seeks to replace Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Mayor Tom Bradley announced Friday that efforts are underway to persuade a professional football team to play at the Los Angeles Coliseum after the Rams move to Anaheim Stadium in

"In all candor, I promise you that some effort has been made, not directly but indirectly, to talk to po-tential clients for the Coliseum," state and local leaders. "If the Rams want to make that move and the National Football League permits them to do so, so be it. We wish them luck.

"We just want what we think we deserve, and that is another professional team to take the place of the Bradley would not disclose which teams the city is interested in. Rams president Carroll Rosenb-loom announced Tuesday that a letter of intent had been signed to move the team to Anaheim in 1980. The Rams' lease with the Coliseum expires after the 1979 season.

Meanwhile, in Sacramento, State Sen David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, said he will introduce legislation that would prohibit a professional team from using a name of a city or county unless it plays most of its home games there or is authorized by the city or county governing board to use

Midland smashes Drillers, 18-11

By TED BATTLES

You could say the Midland Cubs came from behind to win it. Or if you want, the Cubs got the jump on the pro football season, which opens with the Hall of Fame game today. Any way you look at it, it added up to an 18-11 victory for Midland.

However you want it, some 1,327 Levi Strauss and Two-Bit Beer Night fans couldn't complain about the lack of base runners at Cubs Stadium Friday night. There were so many that General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., at one point pondered bringing uniformed policmen out of the stands to direct the basepath traffic.

In any event, the win protected the Cubs precarious grip on first place in the Texas League West Division with Shreyeport's Captains coming into Cubs Stadium tonight at 7:30 for a five-night stand.

The victory gave Midland a 4-1 edge in the series here with Tulsa and squared accounts between the teams

Midland trailed at one point, 2-1, that was at the end of the second inning, but then got their winged-T offense clicking and drove for runs in virtually every period, er, inning after five, and managed to hold the Drillers wild passing attack at bay in the final minutes.

STEVE MACKO, Kevin Drury, Joe Hernandez, Jim Tracy and Javier Fierro were the ring leaders in the 17-hit offense against four beleaguered Tulsa pitchers.

Macko knocked in four runs with two doubles and two singles while Drury, although collecting only two hits, made them count with five runs batted in. Hernandez continued his bat binge with two singles good for three rbi, which gives the speedster from Pan-American University 16 for the five-game series. Tracy collected Midland's only home run a solo shot in the sixth, but knocked in three runs.

About the night's only sour note was the ending of Kurt Seibert's four game hitting streak after he had hit in 15 straight games before missing. Seibert didn't get much opportunity to swing the bat, walking, and scoring, four times before being forced from the game in the sixth after being hit by a pick off throw to third.

LEE SMITH, 7-8, got off to a shaky start, surrendering Dave Rivera's 14th homer with two out in the first and another run on a walk and a couple of singles in the second. Lee settled down after that until nicked for three runs in the sixth. Lefthander Bob Clark relieved in the seventh and was victimized for six runs, five unearned, as the Drillers whittled Midland's lead to 18-11 before Larry Groover, another southpaw, came in to put a stop to the nonsense by getting the final four outs.

Tulsa scored three runs in the seventh and eighth after Terry Pyka nailed Smith for a three-run homer in the sixth.

For the last two nights Midland's bats have been really booming, a total of 32 runs and 35 hits. Friday's 18-run output was the season's high for the Cubs, topping the previous high of 14 runs Thursday.

CUB CUBES-Jeff Albert, 6-8, a four-hit winner of Shreveport and 10-0 winner over Tulsa in his last two starts, will go for Midland tonight. The Captains beat Midland three out of five at Shreveport...The next three nights are Merchants Nights at Cubs Stadium with merchants throughout the city giving away free tickets to the games...Tonight's game will be pre-ceded by a softball game at 6:30 p.m. between the Cubs' wives and KCRS radio...Sunday's game, incidentally, starts at 6:30 p.m...

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The north and south zone mourning dove seasons will be split again this year, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said today.

The north zone opens Sept.1 to Oct. 21 and then will have a late winter segment Jan. 6-14. The south zone will be Sept. 23 through Nov. 5 and again Jan. 6-21. Bag and possession limits and shooting hours are the same as last The four-day white-winged dove season will be Sept. 2-3 and Sept. 9-10, the department said. Shooting hours from noon to sunset with no change in bag or possession limits. As announced previously the whitewing hunting has been divided into sanctuaries with some areas open for hunting on even-number years and others on odd-number years. The commission also adopted a 'non-toxic (steel) shot zone" for ducks, geese and coots. The zone, which follows federal regulations, includes only the J.D. Murphree Wildlife Mahagement Area and Sea Rim

In his second year on the tour, Hancock sank 7 birdie putts and missed one other in his round on the 6,534-yard, par-71 Wethersfield Country Club course.

Mark Hayes, with a string of birdies on the back nine, took over second place with a two-round total of 130. Hayes birdled three of the last five holes in shooting a 63.

Hancock had a 3-stroke lead over Joe Inman, who shot a 62 Friday for a 131 total, and his first round co-lead-er, Larry Nelson.

Nelson, who was 7 shots behind Hancock after nine, carded an eagle with a 40-foot chip and a birdie on an 18-foot putt on the next to last hole to stay in contention. "It was a day to test my patience. I hope they've been tested enough."

At 10-under par were Rex Caldwell, who shot his second consecutive 5-under-par 66, and Rod Funseth.
Inman, whose best finish this year was third at the Byron Nelson Gold Classic in May, shot the first 62 of his career in Friday's round. "Today I just made a lot of 10-to 12-foot putts. This is a course where you are going to have a lot of 10-to 12-footers."

Hoehn wears rifle title

If the National Benchrest Rifle Shooters Association National Championships had ended a day earlier, it probably would have suited Harold Broughton just fine. After four days of the tournament

Broughton, from Big Spring, looked like a good bet to win the Three-Gun Championship, the overall championship figured from combined scores throughout the tourney. But he had an off day in the 200-yard Heavy Varmint matches Friday on the tourney's final day and ended up finishing second to Ron Hoehn for that title.

Even so, it was fitting that Hoehn captured the title. Wednesday one of Hoehn's scores was misfigured, costing him the Light Varmint title. He finished third in that competition, while Broughton was catapulted to the Light Varmint championship.

Howard Dietz of New Braunfels. Tex., and Ron Prachyl of Orlando, Fla., finished three and four in the Three-Gun championship.

T.J. Jackson of Austin shot well Friday to win the 200-yard Heavy Varmint matches which also propelled him to the Heavy Varmint Grand Aggregate title.

BOSTON (AP) — Rich Gale's eight-hit shutout and Frank White's three-run homer led Kansas City past Boston 4-0 Friday night. It was the Royals' 13th victory in the last 14 games and the Red Sox's ninth

Phils, Reds split as Rose rolls on

CINCINNATI (AP) - Cincinnati third baseman Pete Rose extended his hitting streak to 41 games and Tom Seaver scattered six hits to give the Reds a NL boxes 2-1 victory over Philadelphia in the second game of a twi-night double header Friday.

Rose dropped a bunt single down the third base line in the sixth to extend his streak and tie him with George Sisler, who hit in 41 straight games in 1922. Rose trails Bill Dahlen who hit in 42 straight games in 1894; Willie Keeler, 44 games in 1897, and Joe DiMaggio, 56 games in 1941.

Nicklaus returns to first win site

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, coming off one of his greatest triumphs, returns to the site of his first one this week in the PGA national championship.

It was at storied, historic Oakmont, smack dab in the middle of Palmer country, that the youthful, chubby, crewcut Nicklaus scored his first official tour triumph — a playoff victory over Arnold Palmer in the 1962 U.S.

"I have wondered, from time to time, what my career may have been like if I'd lost that playoff," Nicklaus said. "It could have been something entirely different.'

But he did win the playoff. And it kicked off a career that is the greatest the world has seen.

He reaffirmed his position as the premier player in the game — there had been some doubts, some whispers, some speculation - with an emotional victory in the British Open a couple of weeks ago at St. Andrews,

It was his third British Open title and made him the only man to win all of the game's Big Four titles three times apiece. Only three other men have won them all in a lifetime, and one of them more than once apiece. The British Open title also snapped a treak of almost three years since Nicklaus' last Big Four victory and shed his total in the major profesional championships to 15. This is the last one of the year. And Nicklaus, who scored his third American triumph of the season a week ago in Philadelphia, is again the man to eat, the favorite, the one towering

Not only are his credentials all in order, he said in Scotland he was playing the best golf of his life - an wesome statement in view of his accomplisments.

He admitted he didn't want to play n Philadelphia - it was a Designated Tournament and he was required to compete — but he went ahead and yon anyhow. Whether participation n that tournament will affect his PGA reparations is an unanswered ques-

Arrayed against him in the 150-man field are the usual band of challengers headed by Tom Watson, who last year threatened to supplant Nicklaus in his long-time role as the game's best.

A three-time winner this season, Watson tied for second in the Masters and had the lead through 54 holes of the British Open. But Watson, winner of two of the Big Four titles last year, has been shut out in the majors this

There also are the elite corps that always must be considered major challengers in any important tournament: South African Gary Player, Lee Trevino, Hale Irwin, Hubert Green, Ray Floyd, Tom Weiskopf,

Then there are the younger men who are exerting their own influence on the game: U.S. Open champ Andy North, Canadian Open winner Bruce Lietzke, former American national champion Jerry Pate and, of course, hulking Andy Bean, a three-time winner this season.

The tournament also serves as a testing ground for a couple of slumpridden players — defending title-holder Lanny Wadkins and Johnny

Wadkins broke a lengthy slump with his victory in this event at Pebble Beach, Calif. last fall and went on to one of the great months in golf, also taking the World Series of Golf. But he over-played himself, took the longest break from the game he's ever had and returned this year to find his game had deserted him. He hasn't been able to regain it. Miller started his drive to the top of the game at this course in 1973. He fired an Open record 63 in the final round that won the American national championship. In the next three years he won 16 international titles, including the British Open. But he hasn't won in the last two seasons.

Also on hand are the legendary Palmer, who has made his presence felt in several recent events, and 66year-old Sam Snead.

ABC-TV will provide national television coverage of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Defensive linemen see new threat

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) -There's no guarantee a 1978 National Football League rule change will have the desired result of increasing scoring, but a member of the Buffalo Bills is sure it will turn the defensive lineman into an endangered species.

The rule allows pass-blocking linemen to extend their arms full length if necessary to keep a defender at bay.

Phil Olsen, a center who's seen both sides of the trench warfare on a professional football line of scrimmage. says the change gives all the advantage to an offensive player.

Fibak pulls upset over Gottfried

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Seventh seed Wojtek Fibak toppled No. 1 Brian Gottfried and fifth-seeded Harold Solomon downed No. 3 Manuel Orantes Friday in the quarter-finals of the $175,000 Louisville International Tennis Classic

Fibak, from Poland, triumphed 7-6, 6-1. Solomon, an American, won 2-6, 6-4, 6-4. They will meet in a semifinal match Saturday.

In later quarter-final matches, John Alexander was to play Patricio Cornejo, and Nick Saviano was to meet Eddie Dibbs. With the first set tied at six games each and the 12-point tiebreaker in effect, Gottfried led 4-1, but Fibak rallied, winning the next 6 points to take the first set.

Fibak won the last five games of the second set, breaking Gottfried's serve Orantes handled Solomon easily in the first set, but Solomon came back to win three of the last four games after the second set was tied at 3 games each. He broke Orantes' service once.

Solomon, in the third set, rolled to a 4-0 lead. But Orantes rallied to break Solomon twice and tie the set at 4 games each. Solomon then won the next 2 games.

"You have to be lucky to win being down 4-1," said Fibak. Gottfried offered no alibis.

"I hate to see them take away the tools of the trade," he said. "There's no way a defensive lineman can get past with his opponent using his arms as shock absorbers. It takes away the force of the initial charge.

Defensive end Ben Williams, a third-year pro, agrees with Oisen's assessment, but All-Pro guard Joe DeLamielleure said the full arm extension has been around long enough not to make any difference this sea-

"I've always used it," he said. "The thing is now it will be more consistently called. If you didn't hang on and hold before, they never used to call it (illegal use of the hands)."

Williams, short for a lineman at 6-feet-2, but remarkably quick for his 258 pounds, said he feels defenders will have to develop greater speed to make up for the no-longer-useful slaps, butts and grabs which were their stock in trade

The change could force a shift in the type of lineman playing in the NFL, he said. Certainly it will create more work for players attempting to rush the passer, but "that's what they pay us for," he added.

Olsen broke into the game as a defensive lineman with New England in 1970. He switched to center in 1976 while with the Denver Broncos, and was talked out of retirement this year after Chuck Knox became the Bills' head coach.

The 260-pound giant, now wearing a cast because of pulled knee ligaments, said he still empathizes with the defense on the question of the rule change.

"The offense always had the count and knew the direction of the play. Now the arm extension takes away the last (defense) advantage," he said.

"I think the fans enjoy watching the battles at the line of scrimmage, and this rule is going to change the game. Who wants to see two guys danc-

Higher-scoring contests might have resulted from a ban on zone defenses, which would have left the scrimmage-line infighting for the fans' enjoyment, Olsen said.

Five West Texans earn starting nod

By Bob Dillon R-T Sports Writer

HOUSTON — Tommy Sager, Sam Houston, Blake Moody, Ron Reeves and Tate Randle carry the banner for West Texas in tonight's 46th annual North-South schoolboy football game in the Astrodome.

Sager, Houston, Reeves and Randle will be starters for the North squad, which will face the task of halting hearlded South quarterback Donnie Little of Dickinson.

LAST YEAR the Yankees and Rebels battled to a 20-20 standoff, and tonight's game points towards a wide open battle again.

Sager, a 205-pounder from Odessa Permian, will start at a position unfamiliar to him-tackle. Sager played guard for the Panthers for three years and was ail-state during the past season on defense and a second team selection on offense.

'They are starting me at tackle on offense and at a noseguard slot on defense. I'll back Don Reed of Amarillo," said the likeable athlete Friday. Actually, Sager will be pull-ing tackle on offense, blocking much the same way as a pulling guard

HOUSTON, AN all-state select at tight end for Abilene Cooper, will start at an end position on defense and back Eddy Gill of Brownwood at tight end on offense. Reeves, who played quarterback at Lubbock Monterrey, will be in the linebacker position tonight. He will also backup Randy Wessinger of Sherman at quarterback for Coach Don Beck's North Stars. Randle, a 195-pounder from Fort Stockton, will be in the defensive secondary while Moody of Ozona will backup Kevin Haney of Decatur in the deep secondary.

GILL, A gifted 245-pounder, has been impressive in drills. "He can really catch the football and is a fine blocker," says Sager. Sager is also impressed with North center Mike Babb of Trinity Euless. The 6-foot-4, 250-pound all-stater has been one of the hardest for Sager to get past while playing defense, according to the

Probably the most impressive players to come along thus far, as allaround talent and toughness, is linebacker G. M. Pier of Plano. The 200-pounder played against Sager and Permian in the Class AAAA state semifinals last fall in a game won by the Wildcats, 3-0.

SPLIT END Kirk Fields of Memphis is a doubtful starter tonight for the North after falling over a blocking sled Wednesday. The 185-pounder had 11 stitches taken on his right knee after the freak accident. He also suffered a bruised thigh in the fall. Starting for the North on offense will be Wessinger at quarterback along with running backs Brad Beck of Perryton and Willie Wright of El Paso Burgess. Wright is headed for Oklahoma and Beck will toil at the University of Texas.

Tempie Aday of Arlington will also see some duty at the running back slot, giving the North plenty of offensive punch.

Babb will be over the ball at center and the guards will be Koty Kothmann, 232-pounder from Friona, and Flint Risien, a 236-pounder from Cypress Fairbanks. Sager and Joe Shearin, a 250-pounder from Dallas Wilson, will start at the tackle slots.

GILL IS the tight end and either Fields or Jack Dewley of Era will be the split receivers. The split end will be Joey Sims, a swift 168-pounder from Rockwall.

Houston, a 198-pounder, will be at end on defense along with Clayton Weishuhn of Wall, a 195-pounder. Conroe's Kevin Kennedy (260) and Farmersville's Randy Land (240) will be the tackles along with Reed at noseguard. Reed signed this week with North Texas State University.

Jerry Sanders, 210-pounder from South Garland, will join Pier and Reeves at linebacker, giving the Yankees a strong trio at that all important secondary to round out the defense.

RANDLE, HANEY and Mike Manley of Stephenville will be in the deep

For the South, it will be Little at quarterback along with running backs Tommy Cox of LaFeria and Waco High's Tony Shelton. The fullback will be power runner Milton Collins of Blooming Grove, a 236pounder. Little led Dickinson to the Class AAA state championship last

The halfback will be David Barrett of Corpus Christi Miller. Lawrence Sampleton of Seguin will be at the tight end slot with the split end being Alphonse Lipkins of Brazoswood.

Tackles will be Bryan Dausin of San Antonio Roosevelt and McAllen's Paul Garcia. Both Dausin and Garcia are a pair of 245-pounders for the Rebels.

THE GUARDS will be Mark Weber of Texas City and Don Key of Pasadena while the center is Glenn Hutchison of Forest Brook. The defense will be made up of Dwayne Palmer of Valley Mills and Joey Korzekwa of Poth. Tackles will be Maceo Fifer of Kerrville and Churchill's Tom Randol. Fifer tips the scale at 272 pounds. Linebackers will include Ray Robinson of West Oso along with Adrian Price of Galveston and Doug Shankle of Silsbee. The halfbacks will be Gig Setteast of Spring Branch Memorial and Barbers Hill standout David Bethei. Rusty Parker of Bellville and Shelton will be at the safety spots. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Billy has to have heart to coach inept Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The other night Texas Ranger majority owner Brad Corbett dedicated a song over the public address system to 'Manager Billy Hunter - my main

The song was "You Gotta Have Heart."

And does Hunter ever.

The talented, at least on paper, Rangers have one of the biggest pay-rolls in the major leagues and a skid row address well below .500 in the American League West.

Hunter has been saddled with some bizarre situations in his first full year of managing a big league team.

For example, he has a pitcher who is guaranteed 20 starts. The pitcher is Doyle Alexander, who was given his 20th start Tuesday night despite his 4.60 earned run average.

And then there's Dock Ellis, who threw a fit on the team bus because of Hunter's drinking rules. (You can't drink in the hotel bar where the team is staying; later amended to include no booze on the team plane).

Ellis called Hunter "Hitler," and declared "He ain't gonna make no lampshade out of me." All this over drinking rules.

Then light-hitting shortstop Bert Campaneris, one of the finest bunters in baseball, went into a pout because Hunter ordered him to bunt in a game. Campaneris stormed into

LEVIS

Hunter's office and told his manager to trade him if he didn't have any more confidence in Campaneris' ability to wield the bat.

What Hunter told Campaneris is off the record.

Hunter's lineup card has been riddled with injuries. Only catcher Jim Sundberg and first baseman Mike Hargrove on the infield have been injury free. Each starting outfielder has been hurt part of the season.

Third baseman Toby Harrah has missed more than a week with what has been described as a "pulled chest muscle." Ranger officials have no comment on the seriousness of the Majority owner Brad Corbett has been on display, recently kicking open the door of Hunter's office to chase out the press.

Corbett has offered to bring former New York Yankee manager Billy Martin back into the Ranger organization as a front office man. Corbett once fired Martin the man he has just offered to hire.

Hunter was offered a five-year contract the other day. He settled for a year pact.

"I just want to take it one year at a time," he said. "One year at a

LPGA trims Lopez

When you have won five golf tournaments in a row and seven in six months, the temptation is to leave everything just the way it was. Don't change a thing.

If you did it wearing one blue sock and one red one or carrying a blade putter or using a caddy with a hangover, you go out of your way to have the same conditions every time you go out. You don't let anybody tinker with your swing, open your stance, change the way the "V's" point at address. You keep the same waggle, eat the

NOT IF you're Nancy Lopez. If you win a couple of tournaments weighing 170 pounds (at 5 feet 4 inches tall) and wearing slacks that seem six inches too long, and wearing your hair in a Sitting Bull wedge, the first thing the industry does is try to change you. It's OK for Miller Barber to keep on eating pork chops and apple pie so long as he wins. It's nice if the U.S. Open champion looks like Lochinvar, but not necessary. Every fat man in the country feels cheered up if Orville Moody wins. Jack Nicklaus can change his silhouette, but it has to be his own idea.

But women's golf has been smart-ing for years over its Min and Bill or Ma Kettle image, over competitors who smoke cigars and look as if they arrived by tugboat. And, suddenly, here was this 21-year-old dark-eyed senorita from the Rio with a golf swing you could spread on bread. She had nice legs, a great smile, but she bogeyed the middle. She hadn't missed a 10-foot putt or a chili dog in years. You could find her in a fairway of a McDonald's.

FOR YEARS, the socko box-office plot in Hollywood had to do with this dumpy, frumpy-dressed old maid type who worked for Mr. Gorgeous in his office, until one day she suddenly kicked off her skirt and high-cut shoes, let her hair down, gulped a champagne, threw away her glasses — and the hero (Rock Hudson?) was staring at her with new eyes, murmuring, "I never noticed before what beautiful eyes you have."

This is what golf — and her agent, Mark McCormack — wanted to do with Nancy Lopez. She had a nice figure, but you couldn't see it for the quarter-pounders and the banana shakes. Now that she was a star, they were going to make her look like

You have to give up a lot to be a star - just ask Joan Crawford. Farrah Fawcett Majors. You have to punish yourself, get pounded and twisted, sit long hours under a dryer, sleep with eyeshades on, practice your diction and stop going out with bartenders. other great golfer.
This is the dilemma of Nancy Lopez. She lost 20 pounds. Has she lost her touch too? "I don't think so," she said, slowly, as she was passing through town on a promotion for the forthcoming (Sept. 28) $100,000 Golden Lights championship at Calabasas Park. "I lost the weight slowly, and watched its effect carefully on my game. The minute it has a negative effect, the diet goes out the win-

Nancy lopez finished second in her first tournament ever last year, the U.S. Women's open - as a raw, 170pound recruit.

Last week, she finished 10th in the same tournament - although she looked great doing it.

People have given up a lot to be a star. But they've never before given up being one just to look like one.

Amid baseball subtleties

By THOMAS BOSWELL The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Amid the subtleties of baseball, Pete Rose is the man of fundamental qualities. Other players, even the best, measure their performance — and their attitude — by

Inside the dugouts of the major leagues, Rose's 39-game hitting streak — the longest in the modern history of the National League — has been greeted with uniform surprise. "It's amazing he never did it before," said Joe Torre, the New York Met manager.

IF IT is a wonder that the consistent Rose never before made an assault on Mount DiMaggio — the near-mythical 56-game streak of Joe DiMaggio then it also is part blessing.

The Cincinnati switch-hitter is, at age 37, in full bloom, both as athlete and man.

In his youth, Rose seemed almost pathetically one-dimensional — base-ball's bull-necked answer to all the turbulence of the '60s.

However, the coming of athletic old age has brought a mellow rounding to the public picture of Rose. To the '70s, Rose has come to resemble a hero with a joyful and unified sensibility, if a fiercely focused one.

THE CRUEL illusion about Rose is that he remains a great bumptious 200-pound adolescent who has simply been blessed with a 12-year-old's infinite energy.

"That damn Rose never gets tired," his opponents curse. "He doesn't know he's old."

A young Cincinnati teammate had the misfortune during the pennant race of 1977 to say how tired the month of September made him.

Genuinely mad, Rose snapped in reply: "I'm tired all the time." That no one could guess that fact is another of Rose's ferocious acts of

"You have to drive yourself to ac-complish anything," he said. "It's against my nature to lie in bed all day and do nothing." PERHAPS ROSE'S only counterpart in sports during his era has been basketball's John Havlicek. However, Havlicek — who also was the middle-American purist's epitome of his game - was a pure natural ath-"I don't fear age," Rose said. "I only worry about losing my enthusiasm. It would kill me to play on a losing team. It would be impossible at my age, almost insane, to play the way I do in last place." Rose asks only one precondition for his approach to baseball — a pennant

"It doesn't take me too much to get up for a ball game," Rose said. When they finish the national anthem, I still get chills . . . I've even learned the words."

THAT'S THE Good Ol' Pete that Rose cultivates. His mates see another Rose: quick-witted, enormously a trated, showing how the eye toward savvy in appraising people, tough but kind, proud yet considerate. Rose has a rock-hard sense of himself, his limits, his tastes, his allegiances, his goals.

'Pete doesn't run around with celebrities," said his manager, Sparky Anderson. "He'll say 'Hello,' but they're not the people he values. He can't stand phonies.

"You know Sinatra and all those people in Los Angeles? Well, the guy Pete looks forward to seeing when we get to Dodger Stadium is this funny old groundskeeper named Green

"Hey, Pete. Hey, Lovey-Dovey," Anderson yelled at Rose. "What's Green Fly's real name, you remem-

"Maxie!" Rose said, his face turning on like a light. "Maxie Baker.

Now there's a funny guy."
"PETE WASTES less energy than any person I've ever seen," Anderson said. "Other players are consistantly distracted. If the airplane is late, or they can't catch a cab or they gotta give an interview or the hotel restaurant is closed . . . geez, you'd think it was the end of the world, they're such

"Pete just tells 'em, 'shut up and deal. If the plane's late, that means we play cards. If the restaurant's closed, you call room service.'

"Pete just won't let himself be annoyed by anything . . . except going

Rose is as radiant these days as a man who has not been annoyed since June 14 and does not plan to be again until Aug. 14 - the day he could hit safely in his 57th game.

WHEN THE Mets bunched their defense toward left center in game 39, Rose rammed a double to right center, then yelled to the New York third baseman, "What are you guys all doing over there?"

When a reporter approaches him, he feigns anger, glaring and saying, "Are you the guy who called me at 5:30 a.m. this morning?" Then Rose laughes, and embarks on one thing he loves best after playing baseball talking about baseball.

For the past week, Rose has been giving the nation's sporting media a crash course in batting. Each day he unveils new subtleties, like a professor keeping his students hooked.

"I have to go rub my bats with alcohol," he said, eyeing his press buddies to see if they've got that duped out. It's hopeless. They don't have a clue.

ROSE SHAKES his head and points to a clear black spot on his bat. "If you sandpaper or alcohol-rub your bats every day, you can see exactly where you hit every pitch.

"On the first out in game No. 38, I hit the ball well, but when I looked for the spot, I saw it was right on the label. So I knew I had to choke up another inch to hit that pitch. Next time up, same pitch, line drive, and I had the record. When you're short on talent, you gotta be long on other things.

Many a player pays attention to detail, but Rose has a high-spirited passion for it.

Because he switch-hits, Rose tries to equalize the strain on his eyes, never doing anything that might weaken one or the other. "I DON'T say I bat left-handed and right-handed," Rose said. "I bat right-eyed and left-eyed." He illusthe pitcher is the important one. "That's why I play so much pepper. You work on one eye, then the other.

"I've only had one hardship in this streak," said Rose, who has ignored almost as many distractions as a presidential candidate. "You guys (media) have engulfed my pepper games. Had to give 'em up.

Rose likes to pretend he is the same person as the 22-year-old rookie who broke in battling his own teammates, worshipping his mucho-macho father "My pap, he'd a whupped me for that), and earning the scorn of veterans for sprinting out his bases on

THE MATURE Rose, however, is a hip fashion plate with tassled Gucci loafers, open-neck silk shirts, skintight rock-star slacks, gold medalions and long styled hair (some of it

What fascinates Rose's teammates is his capacity for blending Rolls-Royce taste with an undeniable downto-earth manner. Rose may be the only baseball star who works at not having charisma. Dirty jobs — collecting balls, fielding for the fungo hitter — appeal to Rose. Throwing a headlock on anybody who begs him to stand still for a snapshot is a specialty. ALL ROSE'S teammates like him because he won't allow them not to. Every rookie gets the Rose treatment: saturation empathy. No favor too much.

The veterans treated me very bad when I broke in," Rose said, not naming names, "and I vowed I'd never act that way." Among his equals — the established players - Rose is the king of bench jockeys. "Nobody gets the better of him," Anderson said. "He's the fastest comeback in the league.' There were times when Rose's teasing sometimes got too blunt, but with the years he became better at not hurting feelings. AMONG RIVAL players, he is a near saint, with disciples on every team. Before his games in New York this week, a steady stream of Mets sneaked up to the Cincinnati batting cage, with team photographer in tow, to be photographed with this man streaking toward the Hall of Fame. "When Ty Cobb was a kid, he was like me...always the smallest, liked to fight," Rose said. But as Rose has gotten older, the cruel edge of his drive - the indifference at dealing out injury — has been ground down a bit. The hard slide remains; the spikes are lower. FOR ROSE, spokesman and good-will ambassador of his game, these days have been tainted only by his two-month-old separation from his wife, Karolyn, mother of his children, Fawn Renee, 13, and Peter II, 9.

"It's my fault," Rose said. However, long-time friends of the Roses say the problems are more complicated than Rose's tendency to be a gregarious social animal off the field.

"He's one of those athletes, like politicians, who married his high school sweetheart when he was just a kid," one 15-year friend of the Roses said. "The husband travels all over the world and grows up, becomes a famous man, becomes more mature and complicated. And maybe the wife stays home and stays the same."

The Roses say they want a reconciliation after the season ends.

The real love affair this summer, however, is between Rose and a baseball fandom that sees him as an antidote to all the ugly implications of the free-agent era.

To replace the volatile Martin, the Yankees chose a placid Lemon, who lost his job in Chicago to Larry Doby right around the time Steinbrenner was telling the world that Martin was safe in New York through the end of the season. George, of course, didn't take into account the terminal attack of loose lips that would force an early departure for his manager.

The switch came so swiftly that there was no time to change the interior decoration in the manager's office. Still left from the Martin regime was the Charlie Brown poster that advises, "A smile makes a lousy umbrella," and the list of company regu-lations. Rule One says the boss is

Was he aware that the owner had constructed the alignment that he was now shuffling?

"They hired me to run this club," said Lemon. "I can take advice and constructive criticism but when it comes to nut-cracking time, I'm the guy who's going to get hired or fired. He has the right to suggest things, but manded anything. I don't think I'd

There were signs supporting Martin and attacking Jackson, who has become the villain in this never-ending soap opera. Caught in the middle is Lemon, the innocent, who was booed for no other reason than having ac-

Pro ball just another challenge

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — The first year of professional football can be a pressure-filled undertaking for some players. For Cincinnati Bengals rookie defensive end Ross Browner it's just another challenge.

"I like the pressure. I like performing under pressure," said the twotime All-America from Notre Dame. "Pressure gives me a chance to test

As one of two first-round draft choices for the Bengals this year, Browner knows he is on the spot - and relishes the role. "You need to have confidence in yourself," Browner said after a recent practice. "Every day I'm working here I get more confident."

THE 24-YEAR-OLD Browner can use all the confidence he can muster as Bengals Coach Bill Johnson will depend heavily on the 6-foot-3, 262-

Bengals General Manager Paul Brown felt confident in dealing away 10-year veteran Coy Bacon, a source of difficulty to Bengals' management over the years.

"With Ross Browner, Coy Bacon becomes expendable," Brown said after trading Bacon to the Washington Redskins in June.

Browner, a Warren, Ohio, native, has known the spotlight since his schoolboy days when he was a high school All-America.

"When you're talked about and written about, people expect more from you. It could get to be too much, but you've got to believe in yourself.
"If you don't believe in yourself, no one else will," Browner said. AS HE runs through two-a-day drills at the Bengals' camp, Browner is benefitting from the experience of veteran defensive linemen Eddie Edwards, Ken Johnson and Gary Bur-

"They tell me, 'Ross, you're leaning too much here or you're doing some-thing wrong there.' There doesn't seem to be any problem or bad feelings from the veterans toward the rookies," Browner said.

Veterans have reason to be helpful to promising rookies such as Browner for the Bengals must look to young players to fill vacancies in key posins - like the defensive line.

Johnson said Browner's speed and mobility lend themselves well to a three-man defensive line planned for the Bengals this year.
"To be a defensive lineman, you have to be a great athlete, but with our setup, it requires even more. We think Browner will fit in well," Johnson said.

The coach has made it clear that all layers in the camp are expected to play important roles for the team. "If we bring someone to camp, we expect to look seriously at them."
Johnson said.

LEMON NOW that he's there, the new manager intends to take charge. His first important decision was the return of controversial Reggie Jackson to right field in Thursday's double-header against Cleveland. At the same time, Thurman Munson, the designated right fielder in the Steinbrenner-designed Yankee lineup shift that went into effect after the All Star break, will once again become the catcher.

I've never been with anyone who delike that." Lemon knows he is inheriting a hot victory over Cleveland, there were sudden "We Want Billy," chants from the crowd, probably prompted by a sudden case of sympathy for the pop-ular ex-manager. Certainly nothing that had taken place on the field at years Billy had here if they didn't boo
