Tax Conferees Meet; Session Nearing End

AUSTIN (AP) — House-Senate conferees bantered with smiles on their faces Friday over the hard issues that divide them over property tax relief.

The conference committee on a package of constitutional amendments (HJR1) met for the first time, identified their differences and agreed to gather again at 3 p.m. Sunday.

"I think we are at the point where, come Sunday, we ought to be able to come up with some sort of final action so we can have something for both houses on Monday," said Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, chairman of House conferees.

Von Dohlen said, "The greatest issue is reimbursement" of school districts for revenue they would lose from tax breaks given homeowners, farmers and ranchers.

Nobody disagreed with him. "The House simply wants assurance of 'X' amount of dollars that would be returned to taxpayers through homestead exemptions," Von Dohlen said.

He referred to a House-passed bill reserving $450 million for reimbursement of school districts in the 1979-80 and 1980-81 school years, including $325 million to cover homestead exemptions.

But Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, said the measure "kind of stifles the Legislature's options" and called it "unlawful bribery of the voters to get them to pass this constitutional amendment."

He said he favored waiting until January, after voters have decided on the constitutional amendment, to appropriate reimbursement funds.

The other big issue is the "Peveto language" in the House version, requiring countywide appraisal of property for taxation — under state standards — instead of dozens of appraisal units in some counties.

"I'd like to point out there is not a whole lot of enthusiasm (in the Senate) for that language," said Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, who led the fight to defeat a property tax "reform" bill in the Senate, 18-9.

"I might add, it is a popular issue — not in the Senate, but statewide," said Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, who has been crusading several years for uniform appraisals.

Earthquake Jolts Peruvian City

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A moderate earthquake Friday in Arequipa, Peru's second largest city, shook cornices loose from old buildings but caused no injuries, officials reported.

Arequipa is about 500 miles north of the area in Chile hit by a strong quake Thursday that killed one person in a mine cave-in, injured several persons and caused considerable property damage.

The institute placed the epicenter 44 miles south of Arequipa, a city of 500,000 situated in a volcanic zone where quakes and tremors are frequent.

Von Dohlen said later he was encouraged when Creighton said the Senate "will consider" the Peveto language. Von Dohlen said locking in countywide appraisals could head off future attempts to require statewide appraisals — something feared by rural interests.

But Meier later said this wouldn't block a state-level board to hear appeals from local appraisals.

House members called for the compromise talks after a drive to get representatives to accept the Senate version collapsed.

Besides Von Dohlen and Peveto, Speaker Bill Clayton named Reps. Don Henderson, R-Houston; Jim Browder, D-Cleveland; and Nub Donaldson, D-Gatesville as conferees.

Senate conferees, other than Meier and Creighton, are Sens. A. M. Aikin, D-Paris; Grant Jones, D-Abilene; and Tati Santisteban, D-El Paso.

"I don't think there are any serious sticking points," Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby told reporters Friday morning, but there appeared to be at least two.

One was House language requiring uniform countywide property appraisals for tax purposes, under standards set by the state.

The other was House insistence that school districts be reimbursed for revenue lost to property tax relief proposals that erode their tax bases.

Both chambers have voted for exempting part of a homestead's value from school taxes and to tax agricultural land on its ability to generate income, not its value on the booming Texas real estate market.

Clayton engineered the compromise that produced the House's version and could not back away from it too easily without losing face.

"The speaker asked us, 'Would you fight for the House's version?' and I said yes," Peveto told reporters.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, a liberal leader, predicted the conference report would come out just before the session's mandatory adjournment, at midnight Tuesday on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

"There will be the usual speech. We have worked 30 days and spent a lot of money. . . This is a package that doesn't please everybody but it's a reasonable package," Bryant said. "You know how

Texas Flood Death Count Reaches 23

Dam Threatened At Throckmorton

ALBANY (AP) — Rain from a dying tropical storm that has already turned a lazy creek into a 20-foot wall of water and killed at least 23 persons was still falling Friday, threatening a nearby earthen dam and forcing the evacuation of many of its residents.

The state Department of Public Safety said National Guard and police helicopters plucked 26 people Friday from trees, rooftops and oil rigs where they had run for their lives when the raging water rushed through Albany Thursday night.

The threatened dam was at Throckmorton, about 40 miles north of Albany. National Guardsmen removed many of the town's 1,100 residents.

Rains Continuing
The National Weather Service reported that "moderate to heavy" rain was falling in the area Friday night and that the Clear Fork of the Brazos River, a normally small stream midway between Albany and Throckmorton, was two miles wide.

Forecasters said rain along a 200-mile front running north from the saturated hill country to Albany could last "for the next three or four days."

The reservoir behind the dam at Throckmorton was rising, but not at the drastic rate that resulted in tragedy Thursday night at Albany when Hubbard Creek erupted into a raging killer.

Boyd Badley, 71, said he noticed the creek "boiling" Thursday night and placed a marker at the edge while he went to get a friend.

Wall Of Water
"When I came back in 15 minutes, a 20-foot wall of water came down that creek washing trucks off the road, houses off their foundations and tearing the highway all to pieces.

"Some big timbers came down across the highway and tore up my garage," Bradley said.

The water at Albany receded quickly Friday, soaked up by the parched ground that had been so dry only a few days earlier. Farmers were forced to plow under their cotton crops.

However, it was still raining Friday when National Guardsmen were able to enter the town to begin cleanup operations. They had been stalled outside town Thursday night when roads became impassable.

The strymed 6-wheel-drive vehicles and a 30-foot power boat were waiting outside Albany while millions of gallons of water rampaged through the town of 2,150 Thursday night and early Friday.

Some residents were perched on the roofs of their homes and autos, and in trees waiting to be picked up. Others had already been rescued by neighbors.

There were reports that water was standing more than 1 foot deep in some areas of the town Friday afternoon. The National Weather Service had recorded 14.71 inches of rain Thursday evening and early Friday.

Telephone lines with Albany were down Friday. John Darteik, a ham radio operator, said most streets were impassible and that Albany hospital, where he was set up, was without drinking water but had some electrical power.

In the Hill Country, authorities reported on Friday that the swirling waters of the Guadalupe and Medina rivers had begun to recede. But, they said they were sure more bodies would be found as cleanup operations progressed.

The muddy Guadalupe River roared into scenic Canyon Lake on Friday at a rate of about 30,000 cubic feet per second, U.S. Corps of Engineers officials said.

But the Corps, which earlier had said the water would go over Canyon Dam's spillway, said that the water would crest today about a foot below the spillway.

"It looks like it (the dam) is doing what we built it to do," said Civil Engineer

John Rael from a special U.S. Corps of Engineers command post in Fort Worth. "We don't think that it will go over the spillway. It will get pretty close, but not go over."

Nonetheless, flood warnings were issued for areas along the river below the dam. Rael said more rain could send water over the spillway and into New Braunfels, Seguin and other downriver towns. And if the area receives heavy rain, more serious flooding could result, he added.

Kendall County authorities said it will be today before the Guadalupe River recedes enough for them to search for more bodies near Comfort.

In Bandera, law enforcement officials and volunteers, many of them on horseback, searched for victims in the muddy,

Compromise On Tax Cut Proposal Gains Support Of Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A last-minute compromise aimed at providing greater tax relief to low and middle-income Americans was offered Friday with the support of the Carter administration and apparently of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

The proposal, sponsored by Reps. James Corman, D-Calif., and Joseph Fisher, D-Va., would result in a greater tax cut for persons earning up to $50,000 a year than would a bill approved last week by the House Ways and Means Committee.

In addition, it would cut back sharply in the capital gains tax relief that was approved by the committee.

"Develop Alternative"
"This proposal is an effort to develop an alternative to the... (Ways and Means) bill that would be more in line with the traditional Democratic position on tax reduction and capital gains," Fisher told a news conference.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal later said at a news conference that the administration "wholeheartedly supports" the proposal, which would be an amendment to the bill. He said it provides "much greater relief to low and middle-income taxpayers than the committee bill."

Blumenthal added: "All taxpayers under $50,000 would benefit greatly."

He said the proposal would avoid what he called windfalls to people who already can shelter their income from taxation.

"50-50 Chance"
While the proposal faces a "difficult struggle," Blumenthal said, it "has a 50-50 chance of succeeding."

Stopping short of promising President Carter would sign the bill, presidential aide Stuart Eizenstat said Carter fully supports the amendment.

An aide to O'Neill said the speaker is disposed toward the Corman-Fisher plan but "thinks it's a little late in the game" for such an amendment.

The House is scheduled to take up the tax-cut bill next Thursday.

According to Treasury Department figures, the bill approved by the Ways and Means Committee would provide a $62 tax cut in 1979 for a four-member family earning $10,000 and having deductions of 23 percent of income. The Corman-Fisher plan would allow a $260 cut.

For the $15,000 family of four, the $77 reduction in the committee bill would be raised to $279. At $28,000, the reduction would be $228 instead of $146; at $29,000, $308 instead of $232; at $30,000, $423 instead of $304.

The new proposal would raise to $8,888 the amount of income a family of four may earn and pay no tax. Under current law, the limit is $7,200; the committee bill would raise that to $7,400.

The Corman-Fisher bill would cost $18.1 billion in 1979, compared with $16.2 billion for the Ways and Means Committee bill. All the additional cost, plus $300 million saved by allowing a smaller reduction in capital gains taxes, would be earmarked for larger individual tax cuts.

The Ways and Means bill would provide a $10.4 billion personal tax cut, $3.8 billion for business and $1.9 billion in capital gains tax cuts. Corman-Fisher would give $12.7 billion to individuals, the same $3.8 billion for business and $1.6 billion in capital gains taxes.

The chief difference on individual taxes involves the existing credit of 35 percent or 2 percent of the first $9,000 of taxable income. The credit is subtracted from taxes owed.

The Ways and Means Committee voted to repeal that credit but to raise the existing $750-per-person exemption to $1,000. The exemption is subtracted from income subject to taxes.

Corman-Fisher would retain the $750 exemption and raise the credit to $100 per person, meaning in most cases a larger tax benefit for low and middle-income taxpayers.

Capital gains, which are profits from the sale of stock or other assets held a year or more, would be more heavily

Friend Recalls Dead Cult Leader's Life

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Immanuel David, the mysterious cult leader whose wife and six children plunged to their deaths from a hotel balcony, was described by a close friend Friday as a con man who thought he was God.

David's wife, Rachel, 38, and six of their seven children died in the apparent suicide plunge Thursday from the 11th floor of the International Dunes, where they had been living in a three-room $90-a-day suite. A 13-year-old girl survived the fall and was in critical condition Friday.

David, a 6-foot-4, 300-pound religious fanatic who was under investigation by the FBI for possible mail fraud, committed suicide Monday by inhaling carbon monoxide from a borrowed van.

Skip Daynes, who owns a downtown music store and said he was probably David's closest friend, said he never believed anything David told him about religion.

"He would say he was God, and he actually had a feeling for that, but I would just close it off and drop the subject," said Daynes, who said he once accompanied David on a mission to Uruguay for the Mormon church.

Authorities were still trying to determine how David was able to afford the spacious hotel suite where his family was living. Hotel manager James Bradley told investigators David had paid more than $30,000 in hotel and food bills, mostly in cash day-by-day.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Steve Snarr said he believed followers of David may have given him money. One follower was convicted in May for raising $8,000 in four months by wiring friends and relatives that he needed money, Snarr said.

David, who changed his name from Bruce Longo in 1970, was the son of a Yonkers, N.Y., doctor, Frank Antony Longo, who died in 1969, according to the Westchester County (N.Y.) Medical Society. His brother and mother live in Vero Beach, Fla.

He attended Brigham Young University and met his wife, a native of Sweden,

Mayor Mistakenly Signs Wrong Name

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Mayor Doug DeGood didn't know what he was getting into when he absent-mindedly signed someone else's name to a city bond. Distracted by a phone call from the signing of more than 2,000 bonds, the mayor mistakenly signed one of them "Admiral Palmer."

DeGood's impulse was to erase the error, but he might just as well have suggested selling the bonds on street corners.

Bond No. 29, with a face value of $5,000, was sent to Cleveland, where a new bond was prepared. Then both bonds were returned by bus.

City policy calls for destruction of the "Admiral Palmer" bond before witnesses. And the bond doesn't even have the city seal.

Who's Admiral Palmer? He's Adm. Frederick Palmer, U.S. Navy Commandant of the 4th Naval district, headquartered in Philadelphia, who is involved in a Great Lakes tour of three naval destroyers scheduled to visit Toledo.

The admiral's name apparently came up in connection with the tour during one of the telephone conversations.

there. Cheryl Williams, a clerk at Salt Lake's Ramada Inn, where the family stayed for a while, said David claimed to have silver mines in Sweden and would call long-distance to that country when he needed money.

After a stint in the Army, David joined the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

He was excommunicated in 1969, and three years later wrote a letter of apology to then-church President Harold B. Lee that was published in the Mormon "Church News."

Using the name "Bruce David," he had been guilty of promulgating an unspecified "falsehood on the church and its members."

"I do not know how many people I have affected, but several have lost their church memberships because of it. Some sold their homes and businesses, used their personal savings and went into debt to support it." He did not explain the references to "it."

Daynes said David often borrowed money from him and had arranged to buy two $47,000 pianos.

"He was in here every day, every day for the past three months, promising me that he was getting the money for the pianos ... Sometimes he'd borrow $100 from me and say to tack it onto the bill."

Daynes said he believed David would eventually have paid for the pianos. "He said one might be placed in a $1.8 million home he said he had in Arizona, or in his home in New York, or maybe right here. He was going to pay me in cash. Yes, I believed he could afford it."

Daynes said David's wife was an accomplished pianist and wanted to teach the children to play.

Although the children never attended school, police Detective Carl Voiles said "they were very intelligent."

"Gathering from the books we found in the rooms, they were well-read and probably more advanced than others their age."

Forrest Washburn, a former neighbor of David's in Mantt, Utah, said David often carried a 3 1/2-foot sword "and claimed a time would come when it would be used to lop off thousands of heads." Another former neighbor said David bragged that he could destroy the world.

However, Voiles said David, who was known to the police for the past 15 years, was not a violent man. "He was strange, did strange things, but he was not violent," Voiles said.

There were conflicting reports of whether David's wife pushed her children from the balcony or whether some or all of them jumped.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Q. My wife and I are in our early 20s and have one child. I have been totally disabled since last year and will not be able to work until next year. We pay no income tax, because almost all of the money we have coming in is disability income. Although our financial situation was dismal, we have turned things around and are now saving money regularly.

A local bank has $1,000, four-year, insured savings certificates. Upon deposit, the bank will give me a $289.90 check, representing interest in advance. I would then put the $289.90 in another account paying 6.2 percent. I would receive the interest in a year in which I have virtually no taxable income. Do you see any holes in this plan?

A. No big holes. You can, of course, get higher interest on insured savings certificates at some banks and savings and loan associations. And still higher yields on six-month certificates pegged to the interest rate on U.S. Treasury bills. But your tax situation plugs up those holes. Doyle 8-5-78

Different banks and savings and loan associations have different provisions on their savings certificates. It's a "must" to check out the provisions at the individual institution, before depositing your money.

The gimmick your local bank has on the four-year certificate seems made to order for your particular situation. Grab it.

And I have to say this. If you apply yourself to handling your financial affairs as well in the future as you have during your unfortunate period of disability, you should do exceptionally well in life. Good health and an early return to work.

Q. This has been bothering me for a long time. I sold some stock on Oct. 22. A liquidating dividend on the stock took effect that day. I told the broker about that dividend. Was I entitled to that liquidating dividend?

A. I don't mean to embarrass you but your letterhead does read "attorney at law." And your letter is vague on the one point that makes the answer either a flat

"yes" or "no." You evidently are not the stickler for detail most lawyers are.

You say the dividend "took effect" Oct. 22. Do you mean it went "ex-dividend" that day? If it did, you were entitled to the dividend. If the stock went ex-dividend on some later date, the person who sold the stock you bought was entitled to the dividend.

In the simplest of words, ex-dividend means "without" dividend. A person who buys stock in a "regular way transaction" — the way stocks are usually traded — on or after the ex-dividend date does not get the dividend. The seller — in this case, you — gets the dividend. You should have gotten that dividend, if Oct. 22 was, indeed, the ex-dividend date. Check that detail.

Q. I am a widow, 85, in good health, with an annual income of about $25,000 from stocks, U.S. Treasury notes and interest from $60,000 in savings accounts. I am advised that I should have some tax-exempt municipal bonds. What do you think?

A. That you're getting good advice. Because you have to file a tax return as a single person, your $25,000 income puts you in a relatively high tax bracket. Unless you have some big deductions, I would think that you are in the 31 percent or higher bracket.

That's the point at which the tax-free interest from municipal bonds provides more "keeping money" than higher-yielding but taxable corporate bonds. My advice is to follow the advice of the person who recommended tax exempts.

Q. How safe are GNMA mortgage-backed certificates? I can't gamble. That's it!

A. Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA or Ginny Mae, for short) certificates are guaranteed by the U.S. government — giving them the same safety factor as U.S. Treasury bonds, notes and bills.

Even Treasuries, however, sometimes decline in market value. If you consider that a "gamble," you should steer clear.

Former Official Gets Stiff Sentence

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A Brownsville federal judge, warning that "public officials must live in glass houses," Friday sentenced former Laredo Mayor J.C. Martin, Jr., to four years in prison.

Martin, 65, pleaded guilty here May 21 to charges of using the mail to defraud the city of about $250 worth of materials. U.S. District Judge Reynaldo Garza also ordered a $1,000 fine.

Garza, speaking in stern, hushed tones, said an investigation has shown the $250 was a "mere pittance" of the money Martin cheated out of the city during his last five years in office. Martin had served as mayor for 24 years until he decided not to seek another term this year.

The investigation, Garza said, showed Martin owed the city $237,838. The judge said the stiff sentence might be reduced if restitutions are made within 120 days. But the judge rejected defense attorney Roy Barrera's request for a probation sentence.

"If I let him pay it back it would be a free ticket for other public officials to do that," Garza said.

Barrera said Martin had been caught up in the political system.

"He has admitted his wrongdoings and attempted to right them. The age, the era, the times spawned it. We once considered slavery, segregation and polygamy to be all right — a way of thinking not necessarily in keeping with the thinking of society today," Barrera said.

Martin made only a brief statement during the sentencing.

"I pray for your understanding and consideration," Martin told Garza.

After the courtroom session, Barrera said the restitutions will be paid promptly.

BOND SALE RESUMED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Banks on Friday resumed sales of U.S. savings bonds, suspended Tuesday because Congress had failed to increase the limit on the national debt.

'Finger Blight' Hits Harvesting Farms

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Finger blight. Farmers can't control it with chemicals. Science is helpless against it. Shotguns are only occasionally effective.

"Finger blight" is the term county extension agent Bail Myers uses, tongue in cheek, for "individuals placing fingers on farm produce at harvest time and not removing the digits until the fruits, vegetables and nuts are carried away." It has cropped up again, he says, in Muskogee County.

"We've had reports of it in peach orchards located along the highways and we can anticipate it will spread into watermelon and cantaloupe fields in the next week or so. The blight is expected to move into pecan orchards this fall.

"Agriculture is the second oldest profession," says Myers, "and finger blight has been a problem to farmers from the very beginning. It is transmitted from person to person by heredity and example."

Garza ordered the fine paid within 30 days. He also told Martin to report to the Fort Worth Federal Correction Institute on Oct. 8.

Martin's friends and relatives filed into the courtroom and Garza said he had received over 200 letters in support of the former mayor.

"You may be proud that your friends stock by you," the judge said. Last week, Martin was named in a state indictment alleging he received free service from Central Power and Light in exchange for the "understanding that he would be influenced to set rates." Martin and CPL General Manager Carlton Whitworth of Laredo have pleaded innocent to the charge.

No Crowds Support Pittsburgh Movie

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In some cities, crowds interfere with the filming of a movie. But in Pittsburgh, the lack of a crowd may send the movie company for "The Fish That Saved Pittsburgh" packing and change the movie's name as well.

Paul Gardner, a spokesman for Lorimar Productions, says the movie may go elsewhere unless more volunteers show up to depict sports fans at a basketball game.

The film, which stars pro basketball's Julius "Dr. J." Erving and comedians Flip Wilson and Jonathan Winters, is about a fictional basketball team that becomes a winner after changing its name to the Pittsburgh Pisces.

About 5,000 persons jammed the arena for the first day of production, but the crowd dwindled to less than 1,000 by Thursday.

Said co-producer Gary Stromberg: "This is a film about astrology. It's about the fish 'Pisces.' It could just as easily become 'The Crab that Saved Cleveland,'" he said.

AN EDITORIAL:

Tax Saving Given Brush-Off

THE SINGLE SERVICE to get the axe if the City Council goes through with its tentatively approved budget will be brush pickup from residential alleys.

This service, initially put into next year's budget at a cost of $566,035, stuck out like a sore thumb as a place to trim expenses.

Despite its high cost, the service has been widely complained about because brush was picked up from any given alley only four times a year.

Councilmen said homeowners could "do for themselves" by cutting tree limbs into short enough sections to fit into the garbage dumpsters.

ALL OF THIS ADDS up to a defensible case for eliminating brush pick-up as a free municipal service—but there are problems with it that the Council and City Manager Larry Cunningham need to address.

The central problem is that brush pick-up is important to the neighbors of the home tree trimmer, as well as to the homeowner who stacks the limbs in the alley. If they aren't picked up, the neighbors have to live with the unsightly and unsanitary conditions the limbs impose on them.

AN EDITORIAL:

Uncle Still Takes His Bite

AMERICANS, WHO are seeking tax relief from just about any source, apparently are going to get the same old run-around from Washington.

According to a recent study of "how it is," even if Congress approves a proposed $16.2 billion tax cut, federal taxes, in one form or another, will take a larger bite next year than this.

Inflation and increased Social Security taxes will be the main villains.

ALTHOUGH THE new tax measure is being held up as a major relief package, the truth of the matter is that when it's all said and done, only a small segment of wage-earners would actually receive cuts over the long haul.

According to figures from the Joint Committee on Taxation, only those persons in the $15,000 tax bracket would end 1979 with a lower tax take, and then the reduction would be only $2 to $3.

What is more likely to happen, economists say, is that steadily rising inflation will push more people into higher brackets, thus increasing Uncle Sam's tax take. And, then Social Security taxes will take a bigger bite out Clearly, then, the City will have a responsibility for making inspections, writing up offense sheets and requiring homeowners to get rid of their tree limbs or pay a stiff fine.

This will require personnel. Since the neglected debris will constitute both a health and fire hazard, one approach would be to give the Fire Department responsibility for making these inspections and writing up citations.

INDEED, IT COULD be argued that firefighters also could take over animal control responsibilities, thereby reducing the animal shelter budget and helping to justify the rapidly growing Fire Department budget.

Firefighters, in radio contact with the central office, could work within the boundaries of the fire station district to which they are assigned. Then, when the fire alarm rang, they could meet the fire truck at the scene of the fire.

They might even beat the truck there and, with the chemical spray carried in their own smaller vehicles, put out small fires before they spread.

There are ways to make our City tax dollars go further if City Hall will put its mind to the task.

of a larger portion of wage earners' salaries. Under legislation Congress passed last December, both the percentage and maximum income on which Social Security taxes are levied will go up.

This year, workers pay 6.05 percent on the first $17,700 of income, while in 1979 the percentage will be boosted to 6.13 percent and the income limit raised to $22,900. Efforts to roll back the increases failed during the summer, despite mounting pressure from citizens across the country.

MORE AND MORE demands on the troubled Social Security agency, along with the threat of future problems played a major role in the Ways and Means' Committee's rejection of a rollback.

In the meantime, while the $16.2 billion tax cut bill will help in reducing the effects of inflation and the SS bite, for most taxpayers, the net effect will still be out of pocket payments higher than those now.

In the meantime, no one has seriously suggested ways and means of cutting spending where it all starts—in Washington itself.

And as a postscript, nor is anyone likely to do so.

M. STANTON EVANS:

FBI 'Weather' Report Clouds Political Skies

WASHINGTON—Though censored in a number of strategic places, the secret 403-page report of the FBI concerning the Weather Underground contains political dynamite.

Divulged under a Freedom of Information action, the lengthy document details the close involvement of the radical leftist U.S. group with Communist forces overseas, chiefly in Cuba and Vietnam.

It also makes it plain that the proclivity of the Weather Underground toward violence, including numerous bombings, developed under the influence of these Communist agents.

SUCH DOCUMENTATION is important in view of the current effort of the Justice Department to convict three former officials of the FBI for allegedly conducting surreptitious entry into the homes of people known or suspected to be associated with the Weather Underground.

The foreign connections could play a major legal role, since American law and custom have long observed a sharp distinction between the handling of foreign-connected national security cases and those of a purely domestic nature. In the Crime in the Streets Act of 1968, for instance, domestic wiretapping is placed under tight control, but the power of executive authority to wiretap in foreign or national security cases is specifically exempted from these provisions.

SIMILARLY, IT HAS until recently been held by the courts that the U.S. government has much broader authority to take protective measures when dealing with foreign-connected groups than with purely domestic ones. That the Weather Underground was heavily involved with foreign Communist parties and operatives is readily apparent from the FBI's Weather Report.

This survey documents the manner in which of officials of the radical Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) conferred with Vietnamese and other Communist operatives in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia in 1967.

Furthermore, it explains how this led to trips by certain SDSers to Cambodia (and, eventually, North Vietnam); and how leaders of the most violent faction of SDS traveled to Cuba in July, 1969, to meet with representatives of the Cuban and North Vietnamese governments.

OUT OF THIS series of meetings, the FBI report discloses, grew the so-called Weatherman faction of the SDS and the violence-ridden Weather Underground that was its successor.

This faction was distinguished by its total commitment to the cause of Communist North Vietnam and its belief that systematic violence was the proper method of bringing the war home to the United States.

It was this dual obsession that produced the so-called Days of Rage in Chicago in October, 1969, and better than two dozen bombings or attempted bombings from 1969-75, for which the Weather Underground claimed credit or were credited by the authorities.

An FBI memorandum lists travel abroad by numerous individuals identified as members or associates of the Weather Underground on more than 90 occasions in the period 1965-75.

These junkets were made to such countries as Algeria, Cuba, North Vietnam, Hungary, Communist China, Czechoslovakia and other Marxist states.

The vast majority of the trips, however, were to Cuba, where the Weatherpeople could imbibe the Marxist doctrine according to Castro and mingle with representatives of Communist Vietnam.

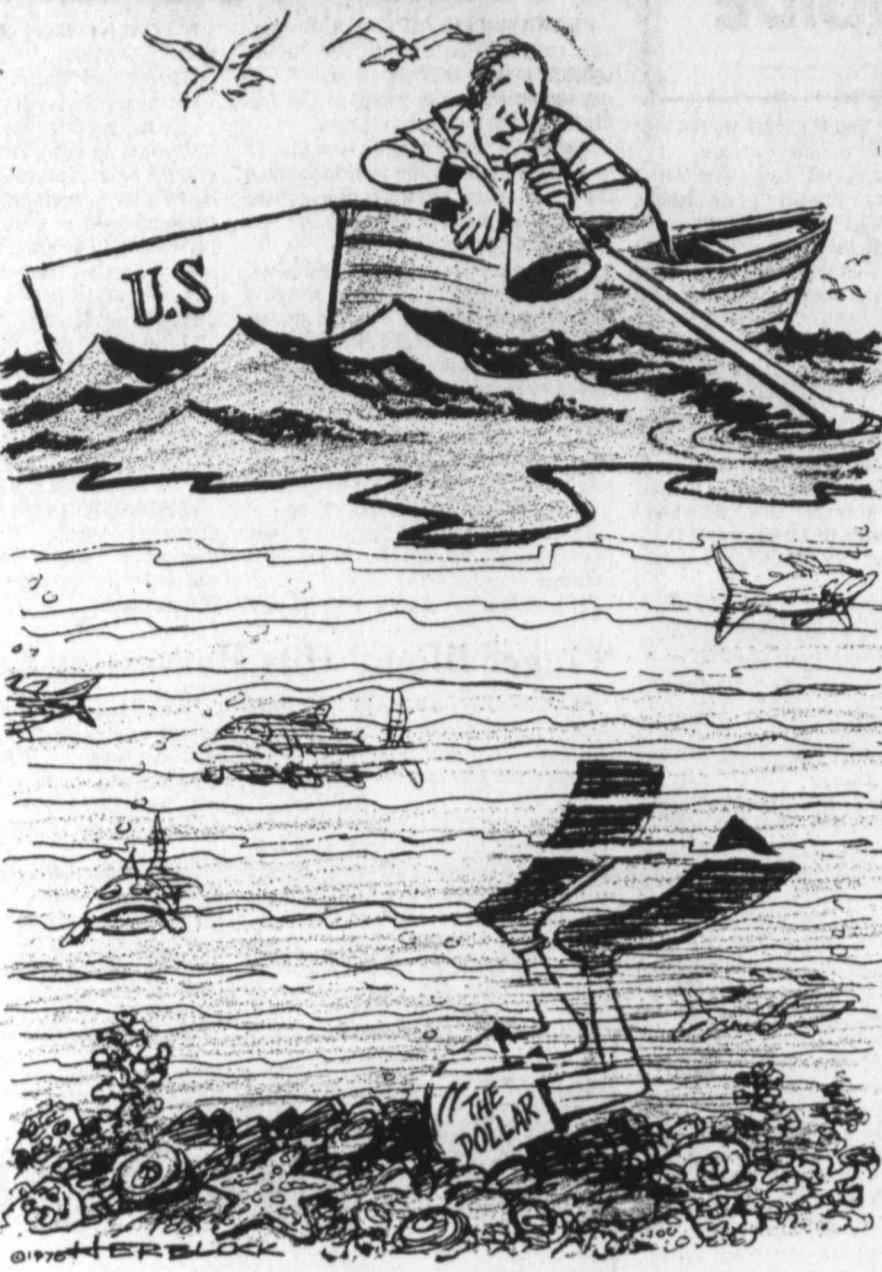

It was in Cuba, for example, that the Weatherpeople received the instruction of Huynh Van Be, the Viet Cong's chief representative in Havana:

"WHEN YOU GO into a city, look for the person who fights hardest against the cops. That's the one you want to talk all night with. Don't look for the one who says the best thing. Look for the one who fights."

He also told them to organize more antiwar demonstrations, emphasize the number of American casualties in the war, and disguise where possible the Communist nature of their activity.

It's obvious in retrospect that the Weather Underground took these instructions to heart—and equally obvious that this foreign-directed menace required effective measures from the FBI.

Tech Med Prospect Says He Is 'Fortunate One'

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: This is an open letter to the Admissions Committee, Texas Tech University, School of Medicine.

To whom it may concern: It is with great humility that I look forward to my matriculation into Texas Tech University School of Medicine. To do something you love, and have desired to do above all else, is truly blessed.

Provisional, in fact, when one considers my average grades (3.45 Biology), my slightly above average Medical School Admissions Test Score, and to my seeming detriment, my origins. (WASP). If I was Spanish surname, or of the black race, it is not inconceivable that I would be embarking upon my second year of medical school at Texas Tech.

At Texas Tech Medical School, not all applications are perused with equanimity with regards to race. This bastardizes claims for racial equality. It should be clear that under-representation is not itself evidence of unwarranted discrimination, and proportional representation regardless of merit is not a legitimate demand. This institution should know better.

Character is the most meritorious qualification for medicine, entailing, among other things, desire and proven capability towards service.

Grades and test scores should be set at high standards and should be subservient to character, but in this age of grade inflation, a person who makes more C's than A's (less than 3.0), is not as qualified as one who makes above a 3.0, to administer quality medical care.

The practice of choosing a candidate mainly because of race is ruinous to the person and to the profession. The doctoral candidate may view himself as a ward of the school. There will be doubts among his peers as to his claim to a position. Is it meritorious or racist? Affirmative action has grave implications in the field of medicine because of its impact of lowering quality. We will have two groups of doctors—those who are most qualified and those who are qualified by color or surname.

I urge the Medical School to take a stand on this issue. Different treatment on the basis of race, and race along, is indefensible, especially in an age where the laws of the land and the public consensus of opinion declare racial discrimination intolerable.

Medical schools have proven they can think for themselves and take a stand. Medical schools did this regarding the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1976. After pressure from medical schools, a bad law was changed. Medical schools refused to waive their admissions standards in order to admit American students from foreign medical schools, in spite of facing the loss of some federal aid. Virtually all these students were white, and medical schools were having a hard enough time absorbing substandard minorities without having to assimilate substandard whites as well.

Thanks to the Bakke decision, blatant quotas are illegal, but Affirmative Action is still as insidious as ever.

I expect the Admissions Council to make its motives and actions clear on this subject, and I expect the school to proceed with utmost fairness and equanimity in dealing with future applicants, dealing not with race, but color-blindly weighing each applicant on the basis of personal qualifications and statistics.

Carter's 'Friends' Have Lubbock Reader Worried

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: An old saying states "A man is judged by the type of friends he has."

Tech Play Forcing Choice On All, Writer Argues

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: In the Sunday, July 16 paper you carried a letter which defended the nudie play at Tech on two grounds: (a) People could refuse to buy tickets; (b) It was not right for some people to set standards for others to live by.

The first of these is simply the old argument, the oldest perhaps since Cain used it with Abel, "might makes right." It is saying, "if people will pay to watch it, it is all right for me to do it." And it says, "If I can afford it, it is all right to do it."

There are of course many people who try to live by this creed: "Might makes right." "If I can afford it, it is all right." That is why we have laws: to stop "might or money" makes right; for they do not.

When people live in a group, they must submit to some extent to control by the group, like it or not. We pay taxes—levied by the group; we may think they are too high, we may think that the assessment is unjust, we may be unable to pay, but if we want group services (light, streets, running water, etc.), we must pay for it.

We have laws regulating auto driving. We can see them violated every day and see the chaos that results when people try to do their own things without regard to the rights of others. We have laws regulating the sale of certain drugs because people cannot be trusted to do the right thing when they do their own thing (sic).

No one would advocate running a factory by allowing each individual employee to do whatever pleased him at the moment. A ship could not operate by following the casual—and conflicting—notions of each crewman. Why should it be thought that order and direction have no place in certain affairs? In a library, books are arranged in a certain order—and must be if they are to be found; moreover, users must know the code that determines the order. Why should order and direction be of value in factory, ship, or library but not in civic affairs? Some might argue that the human mind is different in quality but the history of intellectual efforts shows the opposite.

The people who picked this play made a decision for the group. That decision concerns the whole group. Their reasons for the selection are not valid: a good playwright can make this point without nudity—see Shakespeare. In fact, use of nudies is evidence that this playwright is inadequate as a writer; he has nothing to say so he makes use of "show and tell."

So to the Drama Department at Tech, I say stop using money as a club to do what you please; use writers who can write.

Plainview Man Says New Jail Like Plush Hotel

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Citizens of Lubbock arise! The government is almost ready to hit you another round of Commands And Taxes! The law-breakers of our community need and deserve a new luxury "hotel," the likes of which the Hilton Inn and the Holiday Inn have never seen.

The accused thieves, murderers, rapists, child abusers, house burglars, and dope peddlers should have clean beds and decent food, but do we owe them a TV room, a recreation room, indoor and outdoor play facilities, their own social worker, counselor, and the many, many other things that some prison crusader has dreamed up?

How many of them (or us) are used to such luxuries? Maybe we should all become criminals, with a setup like the new Lubbock jail will be, we could all be on a 12 month-a-year vacation.

For years we have all sat like a bunch of zombies and let our "democratic" government dictate to us what we had to do to be constitutional. Or if we as much as pointed our finger at a person that we witnessed rob a bank, we were violating his rights.

Now, if we do not have an elegant place to incarcerate our criminals, we should turn our heads until we get such a place!

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Don't Eat The Food

NOW THAT IT'S too hot to eat anything but ice cream, everybody's busily reminding us that food is not only fattening, it's probably fatal, too. Either condition is dangerous to our health.

A bunch of researchers got together the other day and decided the way Americans eat—and cook—may contribute to 40 percent of the nation's cancer deaths.

But don't go putting all the blame on food additives and agricultural chemicals. They're not good for us, but what's worse is our national preference for fried everything, too much alcohol and cigarettes.

Nutritionists have been warning us for years that animal fats bring on heart attacks, and liquor and tobacco, especially together, cause 100,000 preventable cancer deaths a year.

WE KNOW IT—and we keep on eating steak and drinking martinis and puffing cigarettes just the same. Feeling appropriately guilty, of course.

Now they've come up time we fire up the charcoal for a summer barbecue in the back yard.

Not only are we flirting with a coronary from the steak or hamburgers, we're risking cancer from the charcoal smoke that gives the meat that special flavor. Seems it forms a potent cancer-causing chemical.

Scientists have known about this for 14 years. But they haven't yet gotten around to a serious study of "the significance of this finding to cancer in man."

GO EASY ON THE mushrooms in the salad, too. Researchers who ran them through a test tube discovered they're full of chemicals that are "structurally related" to something called "hydrazines," which cause cancer in animals.

Even breakfast is dangerous. We all know about eggs and bacon, but cereal? Turns out there's a toxin formed by a mold that contaminates grains and nuts and it can cause cancer, too.

So what else is there? Fruits and vegetables are still safe, I guess, provided they haven't been sprayed with carcinogenic chemicals.

But wait, here's a bulletin from the Honey Association that says honey and other raw agricultural products—including all fruits and vegetables—if fed to infants less than 26 months old may cause botulism poisoning. And that's the latest suspect in unexplained crib deaths.

THESE FOODS ARE safe, the association added, for older children and adults.

What isn't, apparently, is that liquid protein fast that swept through the ranks of fattenies last year. Everybody lost weight on that one—and 58 people lost their lives.

Now Sen. Charles Percy wants the government to order the stuff off the shelves until the FDA can prove it's okay. Researchers say it's just not healthy to stick to 400 calories a day, that even in Nazi concentration camps the inmates got at least 800.

And speaking of obesity, a couple of biologists at the University of Wisconsin say it can be controlled in laboratory rats by destroying a small area of the behavioral center of the brain.

THEN, HAVING raised the hopes of foodaholics everywhere, they spoil it all by telling us it's too dangerous to use on humans.

More hopeful is the news from the National Cancer Institute that maybe a new form of Vitamin A is the cancer-prevention miracle we've all been waiting for.

Researchers have been experimenting with the molecular makeup of Vitamin A and they've come up with a compound called "retinoids" that made laboratory rats immune to malignancies.

ACTUALLY, WE'RE also beginning to try to help ourselves. More and more, people are learning that to feel right we have to eat right.

We're turning off the hard stuff and tuning in to white wine, which is a little less fattening.

We're easing off on the sugar, too. Last year we ate on 15.4 pounds of candy each, which is something of a record. Back in 1944 we gobbled up 20.5 pounds per capita.

The last time we lost our national sweet tooth was during the Depression, when the average American ate only 15 pounds a year.

We eat fewer eggs and more margarine than we do butter.

AND FOR THE really dedicated calorie-counters, there's a new invention out: an electric wristwatch that computes the number of calories you burn up during the day.

It measures the total by your pulse rate. All you do is press a button and the bad news flashes on.

I don't know about you, but the day that I have to wear a calorie-counter around on my wrist is the day I head for Tumbledown Dick's, where I will cold-bloodedly OD on hot fudge and Haagen-Dazs.

...Pass It On

QUESTION ARISES as to which of the President's wives smoked a corncob pipe. Believe Rachel, the wife of Andrew Jackson, did that thing.

Rachel, you may recall having read, was the object of considerable gossip when it was learned two years after her marriage to Jackson that her divorce from a previous marriage only then was final, so she and Jackson got married again. And Jackson killed at least one man in duels over the matter.

You know that elderly query about whether housewives should be paid for their work? When pollsters did a nationwide survey on it, 74 percent of the people said no.

Prince Randion was born in 1871 with no arms and no legs. P.T. Barnum brought him from British Guiana to this country at age 18. How he managed to shave himself every day I don't know, but the fact that he did so is a matter of record.

The adder-uppers say you spend an average of $34 a year for lightbulbs in your house. Sounds a little low, doesn't it?

That fish called the bass has two memory centers, one for its left eye and the other for its right eye. If it strikes at a lure it has seen with its right eye, it won't strike it again, not right away, when it sees it again with its right eye. But it will strike it with its left eye. No, I didn't make that up. It's the contention of a fish authority.

Three Jailed In Alleged Truck Driver Robbery

Three Lubbock men who were arrested about 1:30 a.m. Friday after they allegedly robbed a truck driver in the 6500-block of Elm Avenue remained in custody late Friday at the Lubbock County Jail.

Arresting officer Otis Harner said he spotted the suspects' vehicle on Elm and saw it turn east on 66th Street. Harner then noticed a tractor-trailer parked at Elm Avenue and 66th Street. The driver of the truck, Michael Francis Harrigan, 33, told Harner he had been robbed of $35 and a $200 watch by three men who had just driven off.

Harner said he caught up with the three suspects at 55th Street and Quirt Avenue, where they were arrested. Harrigan told police he had been sleeping in the cab of his truck when the three men woke him up and asked if they could unload his truck Friday morning.

He said they also asked if he wanted any "pills or a woman," and then pulled a small caliber pistol.

Mavis Lanore Walker of 216 Ave. S. Apt. D, told police that a television and clock valued at $725 was taken from her residence sometime Thursday.

Craig Diebolt of 2103 Ave. Q reported that while he was in the Texas Employment Commission "not more than four minutes" that someone took tools from his car. The estimated loss value was $110.

Thomas Seferino of 1517 E. 27th St. Friday reported as stolen a television, stereo, jewelry, clothes and money, all valued at $900.

According to Dick Pollard of Pollard Friendly Ford, someone jacked up a new car on the lot and took a rear wheel and tire valued at $100.

Jewel Townsley, secretary at Tubbs Elementary School, reported the vandalism of a room in a temporary building. Paint had been poured all over the floor, walls and ceiling and obscenities had been written on the chalk board. Estimated damage was $500.

Two guns valued at $250 and assorted change amounting to $130 were reported to have been taken from the home of Eloisa Garcia at 2903 Amherst St. Thursday.

Lee Loflin said a cassette tape deck and several tapes, all worth $286, had been taken from his car. He resides at 1503 23rd St.

Clifford Collins of 1003 E. 29th, No. 11, told police that a television, CB radio and money were taken from his residence. He set his loss at $250.

Rickey Don Lee reported that hair styling equipment valued at $350 was taken from his home Thursday while he was attending a movie.

A Thursday night argument at a bar in the 2400-block of Main Street resulted in a 26-year-old man being shot in the leg as he walked into his house at 2317 Main Street.

Bennie Lee Jacobs said he and a friend were going into his house about 2:30 a.m. Friday when he was shot.

After receiving a tip on the shooting, police about 30 minutes later arrested a 26-year-old man at his house in the 4900-block of 35th Street.

According to police, the suspect's red and white pickup truck matched the description of the vehicle seen near Jacobs' house about the time of the shooting. Reports show a .29 gauge shotgun was also confiscated at the suspect's home.

Jacobs said he had argued with the arrested man earlier at a bar on Main Street.

About $835 was reported taken from the State Theater, 1316 Texas Avenue, about 10 p.m. Thursday.

A theater employee told police the cash was taken from a money bag on a counter by a boy about 11 years old.

She said the boy, who had accompanied a man and woman thought to be in their 20s, had asked for change for a $20 bill, which she refused. The employee said she became suspicious when the youth remained in the theater lobby. She notified the manager, who discovered the money missing.

The boy and his two companions were last seen walking west on 13th Street.

A 26-year-old Methodist Hospital employee said she had just gotten off work about 5 p.m. Thursday when she was held up by a polite but demanding man at her car in the hospital parking lot.

Marian Donnell Portzer said the robber told her "very politely" to "give me your money, please," after revealing an eight-inch knife. She told police she gave the man $10, got in her car and drove off.

"She said that as she drove off the suspect 'just stood there and stared at me.'"

Roger Branson, 29, of 2123 25th St., told police that between 3 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. Thursday his house was entered and $2,000 worth of stereo equipment stolen.

Entry apparently was gained by breaking a glass door in the back of the house.

Edgar N. Payne, 50, of 3404 76th St., said he lost three checks totaling $1,410 and $150 in jewelry when his house was broken into Thursday. The burglar apparently struck between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m., he said.

More than $900 in clothes, tools, a CB radio and police radar detector was reported stolen from a car Wednesday night or Thursday morning while it was parked at a motel in the 6800-block of Avenue H. The owner, Marlon Westblade, 19, said the vehicle appeared to have been entered by unlocking a door with a "wire-type" instrument.

Joe O. Hatchett, 41, of 1914 E. Colgate St., said he suffered a $1,100 loss when his home was burglarized between Sunday morning and 3 p.m. Thursday. Reported stolen was a pistol, stereo equipment, leather coat and money.

Tech Board Of Regents Elects New Chairman

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Robert Pfluger of San Angelo will be the new Texas Tech Board of Regents chairman, and Roy Furr of Lubbock will be vice-chairman.

The pair were elected by their board colleagues Friday. Pfluger, who had been vice-chairman, will succeed Judson Williams of El Paso.

Regents also adopted an academic workload policy for faculty members and expressed renewed interest in a veterinary school at the university.

In accordance with the state education code, the regents adopted a policy governing the number of hours faculty members must teach.

The policy is the first of its kind at Tech.

Faculty members will be required to teach a minimum of nine semester credit hours each academic year. Organized graduate classes will count as 1.5 hours per semester credit hour as will classes with more than 100 students.

In stirring up renewed interest in a veterinary school, Regent Clint Formby suggested that the board emphasize to the administration and to the Coordinating Board its desire for the school here.

About five years ago Tech won approval for such a school from the Coordinating Board, but funding has not been approved.

Tech President Cecil Mackey told the regents that chances for securing funding range from "extremely limited to none." He explained that the university has listed a nursing school and a pharmacy school as its top priorities. "As important as veterinary schools are, they have to be second," Mackey said.

Regent A.J. Kemp Jr. suggested that priorities should be re-examined and that perhaps the pharmacy school should be deferred in favor of a veterinary school. However, his board colleagues did not respond to his suggestion.

There is "no question" that Tech has an intense interest in securing a veterinary school, Mackey said. "But our priority list, I think, is clear and well justified," he added.

The board approved minor procedural changes in its football bowl policy.

Regents voted to guarantee a bonus to coaches even if no profits are realized from bowl games.

Flood Area Still Gets Rainfall

debris-dotted flood plain of the Medina River.

"We're pretty sure we'll find some more," said Bandera County Sheriff's Deputy Jackie Doyle. "We wish we weren't so sure."

One of the Albany victims, Wiley L. White Jr., 51, drowned when he and a companion were swept off a bridge by water.

Pat Carnes, who witnessed the incident, said, "Wiley was sightseeing like everybody else. He had a woman with him. Their car drowned out on the bridge. They were trying to get into a friend's pickup truck when they slipped and were washed away."

White's female companion was rescued a half mile downstream and was hospitalized in shock.

The water receded quickly Friday afternoon in Albany, much of it soaked up by thirsty ground. Farmers had plowed under cotton crops recently because of a drought.

The DPS said 25 to 30 Albany homes were destroyed, leaving between 100 and 150 persons homeless. They were housed temporarily by neighbors or at two schools where Red Cross shelters were set up. About 300 more homes were damaged by the flash flood.

Most electrical power had been restored Friday night, but a water crisis was developing.

"It's critical. We've got one tank truck in here for drinking water. It's possible the main water line is broken. The main sewer line is destroyed," said Lawrence Winkler, the county agriculture extension agent, explaining no water would flow from taps.

Local disaster assistance centers in Bandera, Kerr and Kendall counties should be in operation today, Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Friday. President Carter has declared the three counties disaster areas.

Briscoe said he was sending his administrative assistant, Mike Cooper, to inspect Albany, the latest area hit by the rampaging floods. Cooper was to accompany Col. John F. Wall of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

National Guard personnel will continue to provide assistance in the Albany area, said Briscoe, who toured the disaster stricken Hill Country Thursday and called it Texas's worst flood.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said he planned to make an aerial inspection of flood areas today.

Area Clouds Heavy, But Rainfall Light

Swirling, dark rainclouds again cooled the South Plains Friday, but the refreshing breezes fell on frustrated brows over the area as worthwhile precipitation wandered everywhere but into the earth.

The National Weather Service again called for the possibility of moisture today for the South Plains, setting chances at 20 per cent. Central areas of Texas, meanwhile, were plagued by record deluges and flood warnings.

Heavy rain nearest the South Plains fell at Knox City Friday, some 200 miles to the southeast of the Hub City, where the two-day total hit 12 inches late Friday.

After rainfall counts for Thursday and

Thursday night of more than an inch at Jayton and Silverton and half-inch or more totals at Matador, Friona, Muleshoe and Plainview, Friday's top totals were at Hale Center and Lockney, where the rain gauge hit .30.

Olton recorded .25 Friday, Matador .15, Abernathy .08, Crosbyton .03, Levelland and Lubbock .06, Lorenzo .05, Morton .10, Petersburg .10, Springlake .10 and Whiteface .10, with traces at Cotton Center, Idalou, Littlefield, Ropesville, Seagraves, Seminole, Slaton, Snyder, Spur, Sudan, Sundown, Tahoka and Wolf-orth.

Matador's 24-hour total, as of 6 p.m. Friday, registered .89 of an inch.

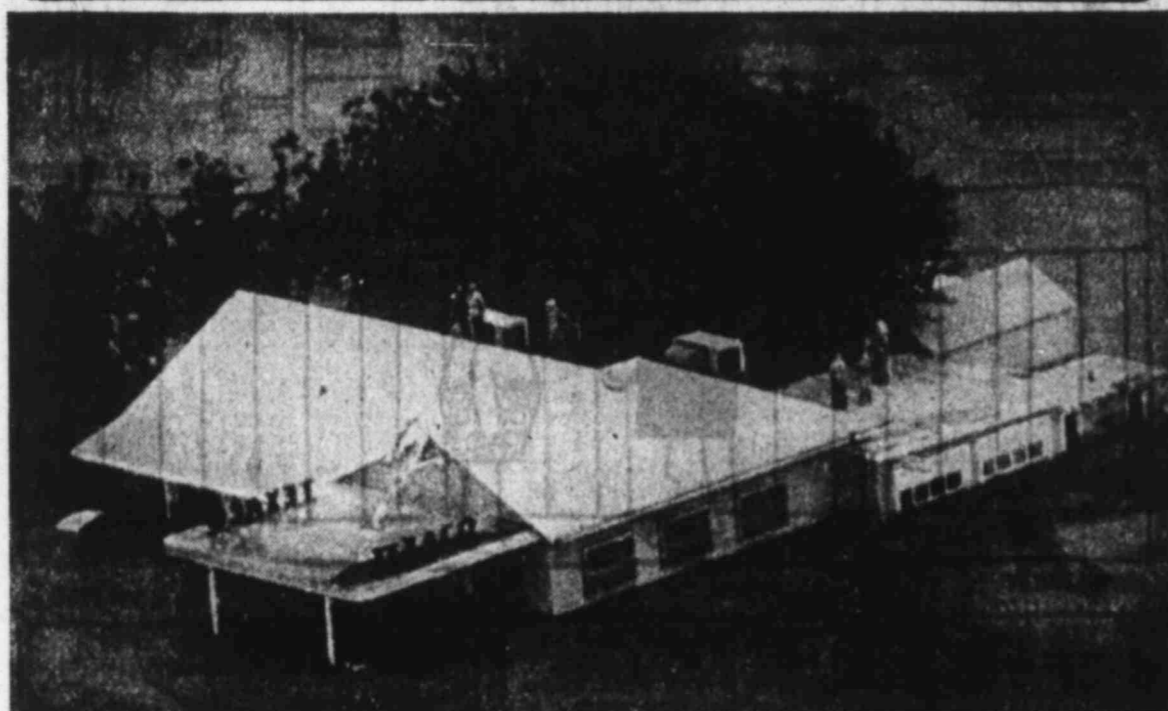

The Weather Service forecast for the weekend called for scattered precipitation, with amounts of generally less than a half-inch in widely-scattered thunderstorms.

Isolated maximum amounts of rainfall are expected in the southeastern South Plains, where amounts in excess of a half-inch are possible.

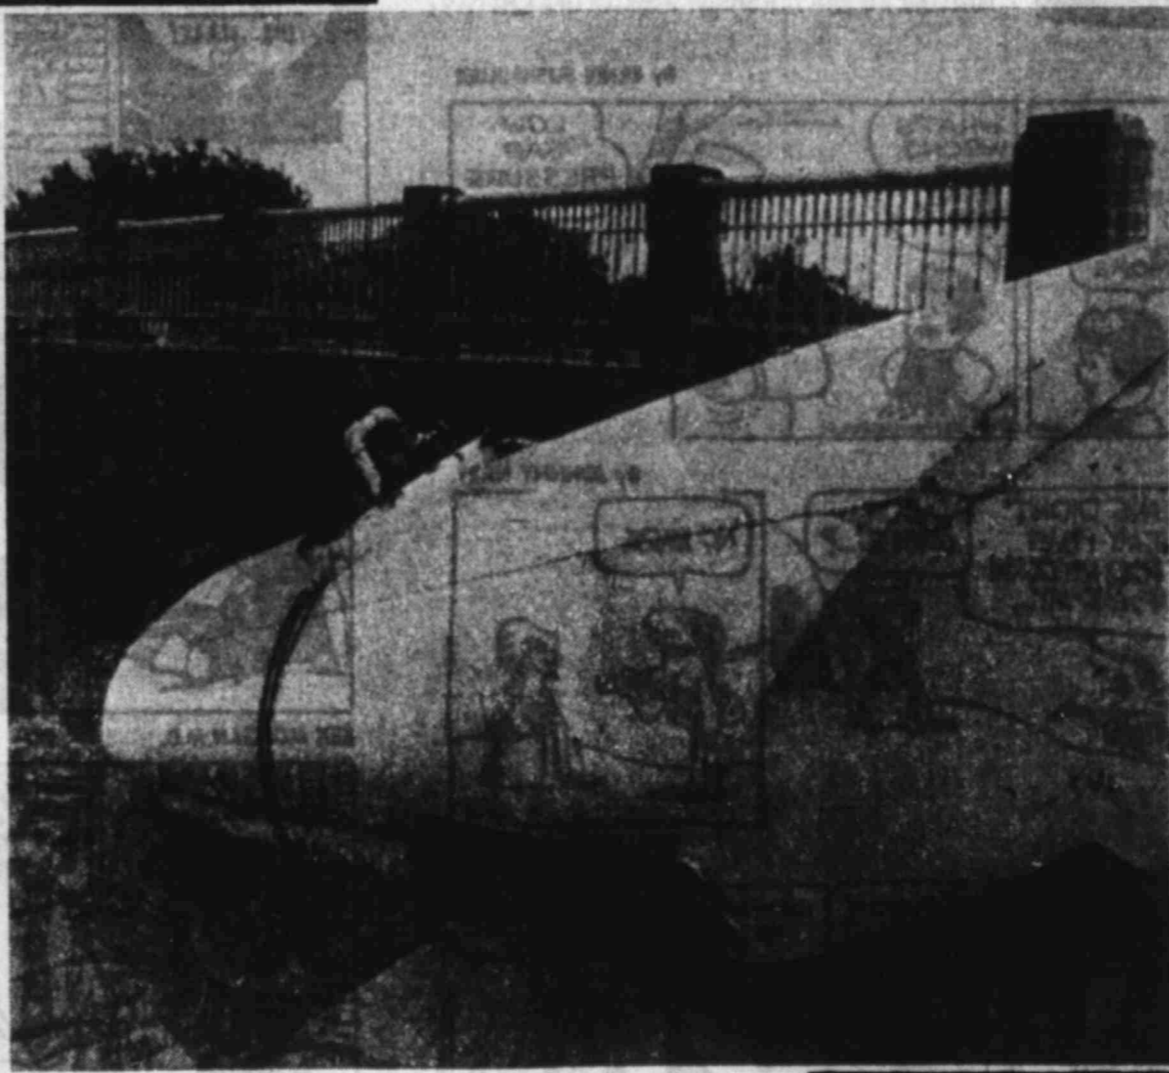

The service said an area of high pressure at the surface of the Plains will be shifting eastward today and Sunday as winds in northwestern Texas return to a southerly direction and daytime temperatures slowly warm.

Typical of Friday's frustration was the scene at Olton, where a quarter-inch rain fell in the early hours, shutting down many irrigation pumps. Many farmers elected to wait for rain rather than cutting the engines back on. Finally, late Friday night, Larry Witten of Olton reported a stirring of activity around the pumps as the farmers gave up on the clouds and went back to the wells.

Lubbock's high temperature was 74, only 10 degrees from the low of 64.

A-J Staffer Describes Devastation At Albany

By PAUL MOSELEY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
ALBANY — Residents of this flood-stricken city Friday bent to the task of restoring their homes in the face of appalling damage from the waters of Hubbard Creek. Cooperation was the byword for citizens intent on bringing order out of chaos.

Grass in the wake of the raging waters looked like wet hair that had been worked over by a snag-tooth comb.

Cars had been swept aside, overturned, heaped against buildings and trees. Garments were scattered about, even in the tops of the trees which remained standing.

One man told of seeing a car gliding down flooded Hubbard Creek, a directional light flashing what may have been its driver's futile attempt to turn away from the grasping waters.

So great was the force of the water that no leaves remained on many of the trees, those that had not simply been uprooted. At least five inches of mud covered paved areas.

Many of the houses were demolished, and those whose walls withstood the waters' onslaught tilted drunkenly in a sea of mud.

Describing the swiftness with which the flood struck one resident said that by the time he and his family were aware of the approaching disaster it was too late for them to even put on their clothing.

Mormons Exchange Words Over ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senator who is a Mormon and who opposes the Equal Rights Amendment traded sharp words at a hearing Friday with a woman member of his church who favors the amendment.

The exchange between Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Sonia Johnson of Sterling, Va., erupted at the concluding session of three days of hearings before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee.

Congress is deciding whether to give the states more time to vote on ratifying the amendment, which would prohibit discrimination based upon a person's sex. The seven-year period initially granted for ratification expires next March 22.

Mrs. Johnson said "growing numbers" of Mormon women favor the ERA despite the opposition of church leaders.

Hatch brought gasps from ERA supporters in the audience, some of whom wore tags identifying them as Mormon women, when he said, "I think you would have to admit that in the Mormon Church about 100 percent of the women are against the ERA."

"Oh, my goodness," said Mrs. Johnson. "I don't have to admit that. You say it's true and I say it's not, and I'm a woman and you're not."

When Hatch repeated that he believed Mormon women who support the ERA are "very much the exception," Mrs. Johnson said, "I'm accustomed to being one of few and in the right."

Crash Landing Ends Safely In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Authorities were trying to find out Friday what caused a Chilean jetliner from New York to crash land in a fog-shrouded wooded area near here. All 64 passengers jumped to safety moments before the Boeing 707 exploded and burned.

At least 14 persons, including five Americans, two Brazilians and seven Chileans — four of them crew members — were hospitalized for treatment of shock, burns and fractures. None was in critical condition.

"I just threw myself out without thinking of the height and I was lucky," said Piri Manon Gonzalez, a Chilean passenger who jumped through a hole in the fuselage with her 4-year-old son Jorge in her arms. Neither was hurt.

She said she started to run away from the plane and "minutes later I heard the explosion."

Airport police identified four of the injured Americans as Charles Kerr, James Wickham, Marjorie Wickham and Marisol Leiva. All were treated overnight and released Friday. No addresses were given. The U.S. Embassy said the other was Stewart Allen, 40, of Miami.

Allen, an English professor at Miami Dade Community College, said in a telephone interview from a British hospital here that he suffered back and rib injuries.

"I lost everything, money, clothes, documents and all my papers," Allen said. "I only got out of there with one thing, and that's my life."

The plane, flight 141 from New York with stops in Miami, Panama City, Lima and Santiago, was running seven and a half hours behind schedule when it plunged to the ground about 10:30 p.m., minutes after passengers were told to fasten seatbelts and prepare for landing.

It went down about three miles from Ezeiza International Airport, about 21 miles southwest of here. The crash site was 500 yards from the Ezeiza Atomic Center, a nuclear research facility.

"Implicit in your remarks today," Hatch replied, "has been an indication that the vast majority of Mormon women may not be as intelligent as you are, and that if they would think more for themselves they would feel exactly as you do."

Hatch said there were many intelligent women in the church, including his wife, who are not ERA supporters.

The Senate subcommittee on the Constitution is divided 3 to 3 over whether to give more time for ratifying the amendment, which would prohibit discrimination based upon a person's sex.

Because of the deadlock, a subcommittee source said privately, an effort would be made next week to refer the extension proposal to the Judiciary Committee without a recommendation.

May Bypass Panel
If this fails, backers of the extension say they will bypass the committee and seek a vote by the full Senate after the House passes an extension measure. The House vote is expected in about two weeks.

An amendment to the Constitution requires approval of the legislatures of at least 38 states. The House Judiciary Committee approved a bill to extend the March 22, 1979, deadline to June 30, 1982.

The amendment has been ratified by 35 states, but the legislatures of Idaho, Kentucky, Nebraska and Tennessee later rescinded their action. The Kentucky vote was vetoed by the state's acting governor. It would be up to Congress to determine whether these states would be counted as having ratified.

Never Extended Before
Congress has never before extended the time limit for ratifying an amendment.

In their testimony by the pro-extension panels:

— The Rev. William R. Callahan, national secretary of Priests for Equality, said, "With vigorous debate now taking place in the Catholic community and in the U.S. generally, it would be most unfortunate if discussion were cut off by an arbitrary seven-year deadline." He said his organization represents nearly 1,700 of approximately 48,000 active Roman Catholic priests in the United States.

— Judith Hertz, coordinator of an ERA task force for the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, testified that failure to extend the deadline "will cut off the opportunity to fulfill the American standard of justice." She said the federation is the women's agency of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, including over 700 reform Jewish congregations with more than one million members.

Supported By Church
— The Rev. Joan M. Martin, staff associate of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., said the council supports the extension "out of religious convictions, and (we) urge you to support it out of your religious or moral and legal convictions."

Testifying against the extension were:
— David Merzel, director of community relations of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, who said that state legislatures have been subjected to "a great deal of pressure" by ERA supporters and that "to allow continuation of vengeance tactics upon the sovereign states is unreasonable." Merzel said the union is the coordinating body for more than 1,000 orthodox synagogues.

— Dr. Charles F. Stanley, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Atlanta, who told the subcommittee that "there are hundreds of thousands of godly women, both married and unmarried, in America...who are opposed to any legislation that would ultimately bring division, disharmony and danger to their homes."

Stanley said he spoke as an individual but that he successfully sponsored a resolution at the Southern Baptist convention in Atlanta in June opposing the ERA extension.

Property Tax Relief Eyed By Conferees

they always do. You've seen these last night deals."

The House adjourned for lack of a quorum while debating a bill (HB18) by Rep. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, setting up machinery for local elections to roll back property tax increases.

In cities and counties, 10 percent or 20,000 of the qualified voters could call a rollback referendum, while in school districts the requirement would be 20 percent or 40,000 voters.

"I'm not in favor of tying the hands of the administrators of every school district of Texas. I guarantee you there are a dozen school districts that are going to have a referendum every time there is a tax increase," protested Rep. DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi.

"Cities have gotten along with it (referendum) fine for several years, and school districts can do the same," replied Clark.

The House approved 106-10 and sent the Senate a proposed constitutional amendment (HJR41) exempting from taxation $25,000 of the value of homesteads of World War I veterans and their unmarried widows.

Adair Men Study Iranian Oil Blaze

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Specialists for oil well troubleshooter Paul "Red" Adair prepared Friday for an attempt to put out a towering fire that has blazed in a new oilfield since Tuesday.

The fire, in the oil-rich Kurek region 547 miles southwest of Tehran, broke out after a pipe gave way under the tremendous pressure of crude oil and gas in unusually hot weather.

Radio Iran, in a report from the oilfield, said three-fourths of the work to create an artificial lake near the oilwell had been completed.

Two engineers flown in by the Red Adair Oil Well Fires & Blowout Control Co., of Houston, were joined by Iranian and foreign experts. They were expected to spend most of today getting ready to attack the fire.

The Ways and Means bill would cut the maximum rate to 35 percent by replacing the minimum tax with a new 10-percent levy applying only to capital gains. The taxpayer would pay either his or her regular tax or the new levy.

The Corman-Fisher amendment would impose a graduated alternative tax that could go as high as 17.5 percent on capital gains of $800,000 or more. It is aimed especially at those with large amounts of tax-sheltered income.

The average hourly earnings of production workers increased 0.9 percent in July, about the same as recent increases in prices. Average hourly earnings were $5.71, up 4 cents from June and 46 cents from a year earlier.

The Labor Department gave the following breakdown in July joblessness compared with the previous month:

— Adult men, 4.1 percent, up from 3.9 percent in June.

— Adult women, 6.5 percent, up from 6.1 percent.

— Teen-agers, 16.3 percent, up from 14.2 percent.

— Whites, 5.3 percent, up from 4.9 percent.

— Blacks 12.5 percent, up from 11.9 percent.

— Full-time workers, 5.7 percent, up from 5.2 percent.

— White-collar workers, 3.8 percent, up from 3.5 percent.

— Blue-collar workers, 6.9 percent, up from 6.5 percent.

— Black teen-agers, 37 percent, down from 37.1 percent.

Vance Trip Seeks Egypt-Israeli Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is heading toward the Mideast, possibly with suggestions on how to get Egypt-Israel talks going again, but without an American plan for peace between the two countries.

Vance arrives in Jerusalem today to try to revive the peace negotiations between Israel and Egypt. After talks with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, he will fly to Alexandria to see Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Diplomatic sources here say that time is running out for the initiative Sadat began last year with his visit to Jerusalem. If Vance fails to revive the talks, the sources said, an Arab summit could be held soon, and that probably would lead to a more rigid Arab position toward Israel.

"At Critical Point!"
"At the moment, the discussions are at a critical point," Vance told the House International Relations Committee on Friday. "New efforts will have to be made. Compromise continues to be possible, but more is needed if we are to succeed."

But Vance, according to State Department officials, will not bring Sadat what he most desires: a comprehensive American peace plan calling for Israel to commit itself to returning the West Bank and Gaza areas to the Arabs.

Sadat is frustrated by the pace of negotiations and has called on the United States to become a "full partner" rather than a mediator in the talks, meaning that he wants Washington to submit its own proposals and place pressure on the Israelis to accept them.

Fear Of Rejection
American officials, speaking privately, say they do not plan to do so for several reasons, the chief one being a fear that either or both sides would reject it.

The American position has been that its mediation role will be limited to suggesting compromises when specific disagreements stall the talks.

The peace process has impaled itself on the same general issue that has defied solution since the 1967 war: how much of the territory Israel captured will be returned to the Arabs.

Sadat's new public position, which the State Department called "very disappointing," is that he will not negotiate until the Israelis commit themselves to returning all of it — the West Bank, the Gaza strip, and the Sinai.

Israel has offered to return nearly all of the Sinai to Egypt, but it has promised nothing on the West Bank and Gaza, pieces of land which Israel feels are vital to its security from Arab attacks.

Rather than commit itself in advance to any territorial return in those two areas, Israel has insisted on bargaining slowly over each concession.

Carter Backs New Tax Plan

taxed under the Corman-Fisher plan than under the Ways and Means bill, but far less than under current law.

The new proposal would retain the provision in the committee bill that would allow a one-time capital gains tax exemption of the first $100,000 profit from the sale of a principal residence.

Present law taxes half a capital gain at the taxpayer's usual tax rate. Except for a $10,000 exemption, the other half is subject to a 15 percent "minimum tax." All told, the theoretical maximum tax rate on capital gains is 49.1 percent, although the average rate is just about 16 percent.

The Ways and Means bill would cut the maximum rate to 35 percent by replacing the minimum tax with a new 10-percent levy applying only to capital gains. The taxpayer would pay either his or her regular tax or the new levy.

The Corman-Fisher amendment would impose a graduated alternative tax that could go as high as 17.5 percent on capital gains of $800,000 or more. It is aimed especially at those with large amounts of tax-sheltered income.

Vance, according to informed sources who asked anonymity, hopes the Israelis will give him some sort of concession to bring to Sadat, giving Sadat reason to continue negotiations.

Sadat has come under increasing pressure in the Arab world to concede that his initiative has failed and to revert to a position of unity with the Arab nations, like Syria, which felt he never should have gone to Jerusalem in the first place.

Crown Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia has visited both Egypt and Syria in the past week. Diplomatic sources say the influential Saudi leader has given up on the peace initiative and is trying to arrange a reconciliation of the Arab states, probably at a summit meeting.

An Arab summit at a time when no progress is being made in the Egypt-Israel negotiations would likely result in a tougher stance against Israel than the one Sadat has taken, the sources say.

And, they add, a complete impasse in the Mideast could be damaging to American interests, raising the possibility of another oil embargo or of another war.

Unemployment Boost Blamed On Teens' Summer Job Hunt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unemployment rate rose sharply from 5.7 percent to 6.2 percent last month, but the economy is not growing worse, the Carter administration said Friday.

The Labor Department said teen-agers looking for summer jobs accounted for half of the 440,000 increase in the unemployed during July.

Unemployment in June had dropped from May's 6.1 percent to 5.7 percent of the work force.

Government economists said the decline in June may have been a statistical mistake and that the unemployment rate has really been steady all year.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Rex Granum said the new figures are no cause for alarm, and said "We do expect to make gradual further progress this year and next in reducing unemployment."

"Called Aberration"
He said the July rise merely "indicates that the sharp drop in unemployment in June was a statistical aberration," which the White House had pointed out at the time.

"The unemployment rate has changed very little since February," Granum said, adding that a total of about 1.4 million jobs have been added to the economy since then.

He said the unemployment rise is not a sign that the economy is slackening, and said other economic indicators continue to point upward.

Despite strong economic growth in the spring, some economists have feared that worsening inflation will lead to a recession early next year.

No Recession Seen
At a news conference, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said "there are no indications of a recession as far as we can see."

He said the employment situation has remained strong and that "there are more Americans at work earning more money than ever before and there is no reason to be concerned."

A Labor Department official, Janet Norwood, said, "It would be premature to infer a change in the underlying strength of the labor market."

The employment figures are adjusted for seasonal variations, and June and July are considered particularly difficult months for the adjustments because of the influx of students into the labor market for the summer season.

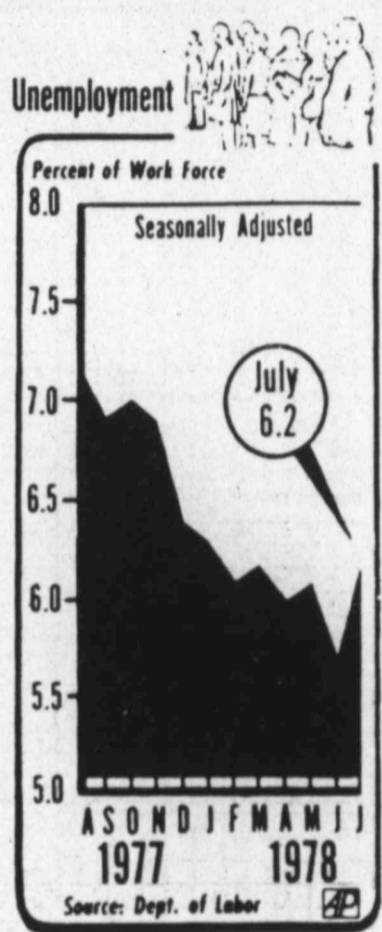

William A. Cox, a top Commerce Department economist said he has "my doubts" that the jobless rate will again fall as low as 5.7 percent this year.

The unemployment rate has fallen dramatically since it reached a peak of 9.1 percent in May, 1975. After declining to 7.1 percent at the end of last year it dipped to 6.1 percent in February, and has remained near that level since then.

The administration is predicting a 5.9 percent unemployment rate in the fourth quarter of this year.

Total unemployment in July was just under 6.2 million, while employment was 94.4 million.

The average hourly earnings of production workers increased 0.9 percent in July, about the same as recent increases in prices. Average hourly earnings were $5.71, up 4 cents from June and 46 cents from a year earlier.

The Labor Department gave the following breakdown in July joblessness compared with the previous month:

— Adult men, 4.1 percent, up from 3.9 percent in June.

Reporter Pays Soviet Court

MOSCOW (AP) — New York Times correspondent Craig R. Whitney deposited almost $3,500 in a Soviet savings bank in Red Square Friday to pay for court costs and fines levied against him and a colleague in a civil slander case.

Whitney, in a written statement to the Moscow court that convicted him and Baltimore Sun reporter Harold D. Piper, said, "I make these payments under protest and my doing so is in no way to be considered an acceptance of the finding of slander reached against me."

As Whitney and his Soviet attorney made the deposit, an American businessman was being questioned at a Moscow prison for the third time this week. Francis J. Crawford is accused of currency law violations.

"They keep going over old ground, the same thing over and over," Crawford complained after the latest three-hour interrogation.

Both cases have become a sore point in U.S.-Soviet relations — also strained by U.S. criticism of Soviet trials of political dissidents.

Whitney said Piper, his co-defendant in the slander case, would reimburse him when he returns a U.S. vacation later this month.

The reporters were fined $73 apiece Thursday because their newspapers failed to publish court-ordered retractions of stories they wrote.

The had quoted friends and relatives of Georgian dissident Zviad Gamsakhurdia as claiming a televised confession he made was a fake. Gamsakhurdia testified at the reporters' court hearing that the confession was genuine.

Smothers Describes Cuban Atrocities In Angola

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban troops in Africa are sending Angolans back to Cuba to "work in the cane fields as slave labor," according to a Texas state representative who visited Africa earlier this year.

Dallas Democrat Clay Smothers also said he had been told — and in some instances seen photographic evidence — of "napalming of Angolan civilians with Russian-made rockets...slaughters... concentration camps."

Smothers' remarks came during a Friday meeting of the Conservative Caucus that was also attended by Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., Reps. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., and Larry McDonald, D-Ga.

Smothers also attacked United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young for "possibly encouraging some of the atrocities happening there by some of the statements he's made."

Smothers said he based his comments concerning Young and the Cuban activities in Africa on a May meeting in Morocco with Angola's Jonas Savimbe, the president of UNITA, a group of native Angolans staging a guerrilla war against the Cuban-backed government of Agostinho Neto.

Savimbe expressed "confusion and frustration" over Young's statements that "the presence of Cubans in Africa has a stabilizing effect" and "Communism has never been a threat to black Africa," added Smothers.

"Black people here in the United States are completely unaware of the situation in Angola," Smothers continued. "I don't think Mr. Young has been honest with the American people. I have not heard him mention Jonas Savimbe or the atrocities in Angola. I have not heard him go to the American people and tell them that black people are being slaughtered by the Communists in Angola."

Smothers also offered his views on Young's reason for turning his back on Savimbe and UNITA. "During the civil rights movement in the 1960s, those of us in the black community do not openly admit that pro-Communists and Communists here in the United States rushed to our sides to offer us aid. Though it's known, we just don't often admit it."

"They (Communists) didn't come to help us, in my opinion. They came to us to make sure conflict developed in our civil rights struggle. Apparently Mr. Young is still leaning on some of that friendship and I do know that he is leaning on some of those ties," said Smothers.

As an example, Smothers cited the "tight friendship" between Young and the president of Zambia "who is definitely pro-Communist and during a recent visit to the United States made the statement that 'we invited the Cubans to our country.'"

Smothers branded as "ridiculous" the belief that Angola could evolve into another Viet Nam should America become actively involved. "President Samba doesn't want our soldiers," said Smothers. "He needs our arms but as he told me, 'If we had arms we would make it too expensive for Cuba to remain so far from home."

UNITA needs "immediate help," said Smothers. "They were desperate in May when I visited with President Savimbe. I don't know how long they can hold out."

Mexican-Americans Plan Protest March

KINGSVILLE (AP) — Several Mexican-American organizations, upset about recent changes in city government here, will march through the downtown streets Saturday, according to a former mayor.

Gilbert Acuna said the groups are protesting the firing of Mexican-American officials in the municipal government. Acuna, the only Mexican-American to serve as mayor of this South Texas city, lost his seat to Richard Botard in recent elections.

Representatives from the League of United Latin American Citizens, La Raza Unida, Brown Berets, the American GI Forum and several local groups are scheduled to participate.

Acuna also said the marchers will protest the recent death of a Mexican-American who was gunned down by law enforcement officials in Perryton, Texas.

Houston Woman's Death News To Her

HOUSTON (AP) — Elsie Carter says she wonders about the government.

Mrs. Carter, 71, is trying to convince the federal government she is "very much alive."

In the latest incident in a series of snafus involving Social Security and Medicare payments, Mrs. Carter received a letter notifying her she was dead.

"I was practically crying I was so upset," she said. "My son had to come home early from work to comfort me. I can assure you I'm very, very much alive."

Social Security officials notified Mrs. Carter on Thursday the problem has been resolved and she should be receiving her checks in a couple of weeks.

But Mrs. Carter continues to wonder.

"This mess could be happening to others," she said. "It makes me wonder about the government."

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Mesa Redonda Camp Meet Set

A-J Correspondent
CLOVIS — The Mesa Redonda Camp Meeting is slated Thursday-Aug. 13 at Bowe-Farmer Ranch 11 miles south of Tucumcari, N.M.

Frank Crenshaw of Melrose, N.M., is president of the Mesa Redonda Camp Meeting Association. Other persons organizing the camp meeting this week include Torrance Reed, Bill King, Vaudie Pierce and Wilma Fulgham, secretary, all of Clovis; and David Crow of Melrose.

Rick Steele of Aledo, Ill., is camp manager for the association. He is a young Presbyterian minister who spends his vacation each year managing five camp meetings. This year, with the addition of the Mesa Redonda Camp Meeting, he will be responsible for managing six such meetings.

Irene Poe is in charge of cooking and serving meals for the camp meeting. Meals will be served in a big tent on the ranch and served without cost.

Financing the venture is by voluntary contributions. This year Mrs. Glen Frazier of Melrose gave a substantial amount as a memorial to her father, the late Fred A. Welch, an early day cowboy and farmer of the Clovis-Melrose area. Other persons over the state have also contributed to the camp meeting's support.

The cowboy camp meetings began in Texas in the Big Bend country of the Davis Mountains. The Bloys Camp Meeting, is known as the "granddaddy" of them all, according to Rev. Bill King of Clovis, a retired preacher who has preached at several such meetings across the area. The Bloys Camp Meeting dates back to 1890.

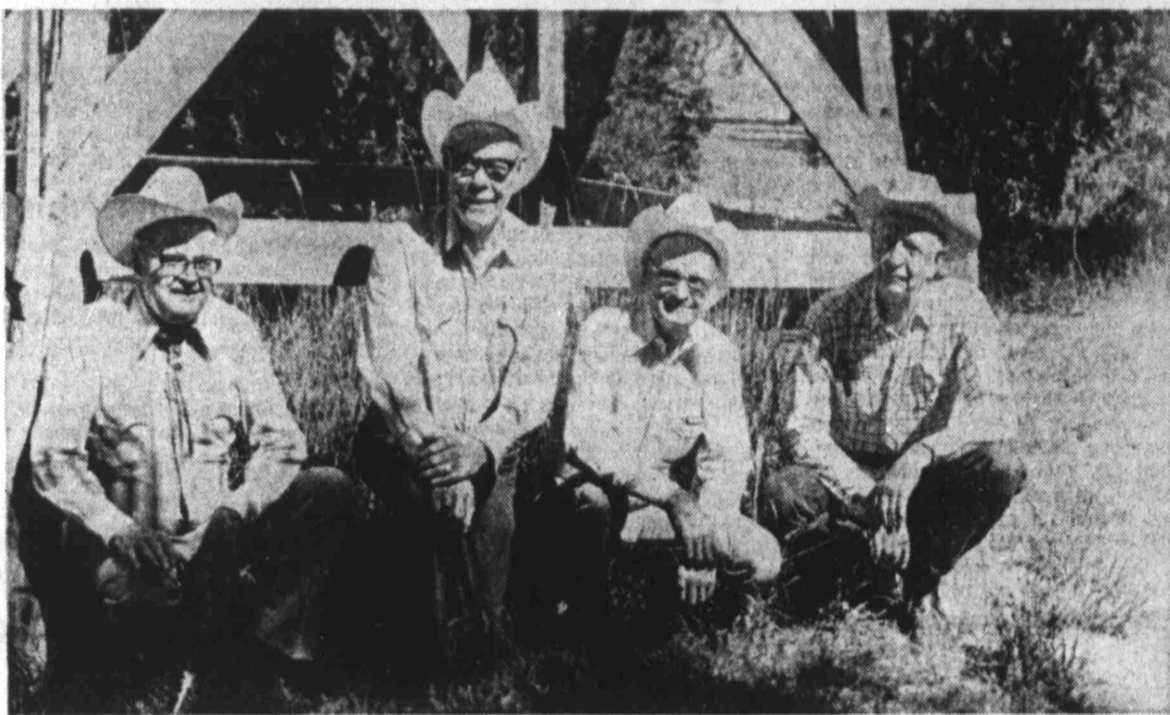

A Rev. Bloys was the preacher at Fort Davis at that time. He traveled over the Davis Mountains country in a buggy pulled by a team of sorrel horses, visiting the ranch people.

It was in one of these ranch homes in the Davis Mountains that the idea of a camp meeting was born. Mrs. John Z. Means, known to residents of the area as "Aunt Exa," suggested the idea to Rev. Bloys on one of his visits to the Means Ranch. She said that there should be some place for the cowboys and ranch people to meet together and worship the Lord.

A time was agreed on, the place selected and a few ranch families in their covered wagons drove a few miles out in the mountains to a spot known as Skillman Grove. John Means was responsible for buying the section of land on which the meeting was located. A brush arbor was built on the land for the camp meeting.

As "Big Bloys" grew, the ranchers erected a permanent tabernacle and cook sheds, then families began to build cottages.

In later years, the sons of the Means, Huling and Sam and their nephews, Dub and Joe Evans, came to southern New Mexico, bringing their heritage of cowboy camp meetings with them. The first such camp meeting in New Mexico was held Aug. 1, 1940, in Nogal Mesa.

DISCUSS MEETING — Plans are underway for the first Mesa Redonda Cowboy Camp Meeting Thursday-Aug. 13 11 miles south of Tucumcari, N.M., on the Bowe-Farmer Ranch. Plans call for the meeting to become an annual event. Participating in the planning for the meeting were, left to right, Vaudie Pierce and Torrance Reed, both of Clovis and oldtime cowboys and co-chairman of the Finance committee; Frank Crenshaw, a Melrose, N.M., rancher and president of the Mesa Redonda Cowboy Camp Meeting Association; and the Rev. Bill King, circuit rider preacher who rode his horse from ranch to ranch preaching the Gospel to people in the ranch country of southern New Mexico. (A-J Correspondent Photo)

CHURCH NEWS

LCC Appoints New Development Officer

Larry Roberts, a native Texan who has been preaching in Greenville, Miss., for the past six years, has joined the Lubbock Christian College administration as vice president for development.

Dr. Harvie Pruitt, LCC president, said Roberts' main area of responsibility will be in fund raising.

Roberts was born in San Angelo in 1934 and raised in El Paso. He is a graduate of Harding College in Searcy, Ark., and has done further graduate work at the Harding Graduate School of Religion, the psychology department of the University of Houston and the English department at Delta State University.

He was a minister in Binghamton, N.Y., from 1957-62, during which time the church grew from 12 members to more than 300, becoming the largest church of its denomination in the state. He then spent two years at the Walnut Street-Travis Street Church of Christ in Sherman. A new building was erected during that time.

From 1964-68 Roberts was the public relations chairman for the Exodus-New Jersey Program. It received national publicity as 88 families (211 people) moved to Somerset County, N.J., to establish a church. During those four years the church's International Program had its inception through United Nations work.

He moved to the Sharpstown Church of Christ in Houston in 1968 and during his ministry, the church expanded from 296 members to more than 400 members, two new wings were built and the church auditorium was expanded.

Since 1972, Roberts was at the South Main Church of Christ in Greenville, Miss. During his time there, two services on Sunday morning were begun and a large new wing was built.

Roberts and his wife, the former Dorothy Davis, have three children, Roby, 20; Brian, 18; and Julie, 15. Roby will be a junior at LCC this fall and Brian will be a freshman at LCC. Julie will be a sophomore at Lubbock Christian High School.

Mrs. Roberts is employed in the college's admission office.

Church Notes

Anniversary

Cumberland Presbyterian, 7702 Indiana Ave., will recognize its 70 years of ministry and service in Lubbock Sunday.

The congregation was organized on Aug. 8, 1908, with five charter members and two ministers participating. They included Mr. and Mrs. E.P. Earhart, Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Buchanan, Judge C. Ferguson, the Rev. Houghton Baker and the Rev. C.W.C. Norwood.

The first building was built in 1908 at the corner of 10th Street and Avenue O in the Earhart Addition. In 1927, that building was replaced by a new and larger building which burned in 1955.

Another larger building was built in 1955. It was destroyed in the May 11, 1970, tornado which struck Lubbock.

TENDER LOVING CARE

Esther has the most beautiful flowers of anyone I know. Every plant she touches seems to grow magically. When her sister discarded some seedlings, Esther rescued it. Within months the plant had grown until it reached the ceiling.

Houseplants must be tended regularly. They must receive water and food. The earth in which they grow must be loosened periodically.

If Christians are to survive and flourish, they must receive the nurture that comes from worship. God's Word, prayer and meditation strengthen and fortify them for a rich life. God's help is OUR tender loving care.

Find it in church this Sunday.

National Anti-Tax Fight Building Up Momentum

By Newspaper Enterprise Association
Meeting recently in St. Louis, a National Tax Limitation Conference gave its resounding endorsement to a simply worded resolution: "We're mad as hell and we're not going to take it anymore."

The object of the delegates' ire was, of course, taxes. Their outcry was only the latest development in the tax revolt that exploded on the national scene with California's two-to-one adoption of Proposition 13 on June 6.

Before the year is out, at least half the states will have considered measures limiting their taxes or spending.

And legislatures in 22 states have called for a constitutional convention to frame an amendment requiring a balanced federal budget. (Because most state legislatures have already adjourned for the year, the proposed convention cannot receive the backing of the necessary 34 states until next year at the earliest.)

The tax revolt is also making itself felt in the nation's capital. Not only has Congress cut back on some appropriations, but about one-third of its members have sponsored bills calling for an end to deficit spending.

Along with inflation, taxes are expected to be a hot topic in this fall's congressional and gubernatorial campaigns. Democrats as well as Republicans, liberals as well as conservatives, incumbents as well as challengers are leaping upon the anti-tax bandwagon.

A case in point is Gov. Jerry Brown of California, a one-time foe of Proposition 13. Brown's recent about-face on the tax issue caused his Republican opponent in See PROPOSITION Page 5

LOCAL TAXES — Per capita state and local taxes leaped 59 percent between 1971 and 1976 for a compounded annual rate of almost 10 percent. For all states, the average state-local tax burden rose from $460 in 1971 to $731 in 1976. The above map shows 1976 per capita state-local taxes in each state and the rate at which those taxes increased between 1971 and 1976.

DISTASTEFUL — Of all taxes borne by Americans, the property tax frequently seems the most distasteful. Critics of the property tax claim it imposes an unfair burden upon the elderly and others of limited means whose property values have spiraled due to inflation. According to The Tax Foundation, property tax payments to state and local governments shot up 131 percent between 1966 and 1976. The above map shows 1976 per capita property taxes in each state and the rate at which those taxes increased over the preceding decade.

BRAIN DEATH CRITERIA
NEW YORK (AP) — Delegates at a 47-state conference have approved a resolution urging state legislatures to consider a person legally dead when the brain stops functioning. The "Uniform Brain Death Act," proposed Thursday by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, would effectively create two legal definitions of death if adopted by the legislatures. A person is now legally dead — except in 18 states that already recognize brain death — when the heart and breathing have stopped.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column someone asked what it meant when a husband and wife are in a car together and the wife is in the driver's seat. The writer expressed the opinion that the wife was "the boss" and added: "Twenty-five dollars says you will agree with me."

Your reply was, "Wrong." You said it could mean:

(1) The wife enjoys driving and the husband doesn't.

(2) He's tired and she isn't.

(3) He's bombed and she's sober.

You omitted the most common reason of all — especially among older couples. I know because I'm the driver in our family. My husband has an eye condition and the doctor told him he must never drive. My sister's husband has arthritis and he, too, is prohibited from driving, except for short distances.

Please print my letter and put the situation in its proper perspective. Thank you so much. — Superior, Wis.

Dear Superior: Right you are. How I could have overlooked the most obvious reason is a mystery to me. I'm ashamed of myself.

Dear Ann Landers: I am hiding out in my own house. (I am writing this letter in an almost dark room. I hope that you can read it!)

About six weeks ago I ran into an old high school friend. I was very happy to see her. We greeted each other with hugs and kisses, had several cups of coffee, talked a lot about the old times, and I invited her to come over anytime.

Well — she took me up on it. "Anytime" is now ALL THE TIME! She has made an effort to spend every evening with us since our "re-discovery."

The first few evenings were fun. We got out old pictures, talked about old boyfriends and old times. My husband was very gracious but he soon became bored. After all, they are not HIS old times. (I'm beginning to wish they weren't mine either.)

Lately we've been turning the lights out and living in the dark so my friend will think we aren't at home. (The next day she calls me at work and asks, "Where were you last night?")

I've already said things like, "Please call before you come, we may have other plans!" "I'm not in the mood to discuss old times again!" "I'm tired after a long day at work. Can't you visit someone else?" She doesn't get the message.

What now? — Jane O.

Dear Jane: You've got yourself a real mustard plaster. The only way to get rid of it is to tell the woman in plain language. "It was lovely to see you again but your frequent calls and visits are threatening my marriage. Please — don't call me. I'll call you."

If, after this speech, mustard plaster phones again, tell her, "Sorry, I can't talk now," then hang up. If she shows up at your door, say, "I can't invite you in. We have other plans."

I realize this takes a lot of guts but the situation can be resolved only if you have more guts than she has — and she has PLENTY.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can you tell me about pleurisy? What can one expect with it, and how is it treated? — Mrs. L.V.L.

There's a great deal to be said about pleurisy, but I'll try to touch on the major points.

The pleura (PLOOR-rah) is a delicate two-layered covering of the lungs, the inner layer lying against the lung surface and the outer one against the chest wall (thorax). Normally, these two layers are touching each other. Pleurisy is inflammation or irritation of this covering. Fairly simple up to the point. But pleurisy is seldom a disease unto itself. It may represent any of a number of ailments affecting nearby body structures, chiefly the lungs themselves. Inflammation can be the first symptom of pneumonia or of tuberculosis of the lungs. A blood clot within the lungs or a tumor may be involved, or an injury to ribs or to the chest wall (pneumothorax).

"Dry" pleurisy produces more painful symptoms than the other kind, in which large amounts of fluid accumulate in the pleural space mentioned above. The pain of dry pleurisy is stabbing and intense with breathing. The expanding lungs cause friction against the membranes of the pleura. A coughing spell is an agonizing experience.

The type of effusion found (by needle aspiration) is important in learning the cause, whether from a lung blood clot, a tumor or a germ. Infection of the pleura (empyema) may be found with pneumonia or tuberculosis. Heart congestion can be a contributing cause.

Treatment for pleurisy, as you can see, depends upon the underlying cause — antibiotics for an infection, for example. Sometimes relief is obtained by removing fluid from the space. Techniques to assist breathing and coughing are sometimes required. Chest strapping may be needed. Treatment of a cause usually relieves pleurisy.

any effect. The ones mentioned are available in an ordinary diet. If your body was lacking in any of them (which I doubt!) you would have to be under medical care.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have outer ear trouble, like a red breaking out with itching and burning on my right ear. The doctor told me it was my earwax that hardened. It heals, and again starts itching and bothering me. I seem to hear good. — H.H.S.

Sounds like a fungus infection. That should respond to proper antifungal ointment. I doubt hardened earwax is causing it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a swelling deep under my tongue the size of a small pea. My doctor said it was a plugged gland, and to do nothing about it. It did go down the next day, but after all this time it is still sore. Can you tell me why, and why it swelled in the first place? — Mrs. A.P.

This is usually caused by an obstruction of a duct leading from a salivary gland. It is usually easily released (the swelling material, that is) by eating something sour. There may be a tiny stone or inflammation. Have it checked.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Designer Adds Exotic Look To Collection

By SUZY PATTERSON
PARIS (AP) — Yves Saint Laurent sprinkled his fall and winter showing, unwrapped recently, with Chinese prints, Spanish ruffles and exotic bows to add a dash of fun to his versatile and daring collection.

For daytime Saint Laurent's official look of approval goes to pencil-slim skirts under big-shouldered jackets and coats in a look that harks back to early 1940s.

He puts nearly all sleeves into a modified leg o' mutton, for both day and evening. They're puffed at top and taper at the wrist.

The typical suit look is a narrow skirt, about two inches below the knee worn with all sorts of jackets.

The daytime trouser suits are lean and drop to the instep.

A Nehru-shaped pillbox tops nearly all heads, also for evening and gloves — suede for day, lame for evening — add a new dressy touch.

The fabrics are weighted towards the shadows in black, beige, grey, dark blue, red, black and gold. But to brighten the scene, emerald, burgundy, tomato, and surprising combinations of oranges and purples, turn up. There are touches of leather in suede suits with skirts or shiny silk pants.

Not a boot is to be seen, but lots of simple high-heeled pumps go with everything, and sexy sandals are shown for evening.

A new coat line is the three-quarter chair model with well-seamed stitching on collars, cuffs and coat borders. Besides low-belted trench styles, he showed tapered princess models, always with the fringe, slightly raised shoulder.

The omnipresent black is saved with lots of razzle-dazzle for evening. Simple sheath dresses are shown under bolero jackets that are boxy or fitted in patterns of gold and silver broche lame or adorned with sequins and rhinestones.

Short looks range from a skirted tuxedo suit — complete with large bowtie — to a knee-length scalloped lace chemise or a short, heavily ruffled taffeta gown with a long velvet bodice.

The slinky long black crepe sheaths for evening are either topped with contrasting little boleros or ringed with colorful paillette embroidery.

The sexiest slink that had spectators gasping was an electric pink satin, draped and off one shoulder with a huge velvet bow at shoulder and just below the derriere.

Ruffled gowns with trains added to the Spanish-style effect, while shimmering Chinese patterns were presented for evening costumes.

PRIVATE EYE LOOK — The trench coat returns to the fashion scene this fall, this year doubled breasted with deep pockets. This coat in wool herringbone tweed is self-scarfed with buckles at the cuffs.

Most pairs in the Cavendish invitational stopped at a spade or heart game and invariably made five odd. Two pairs reached six spades. There is a way to bring that contract home but neither of the declarers found it. They really shouldn't have. Normal plays all fail.

One South arrived at six hearts and as he explained later, it was a lay down. Actually, it was extremely good play.

He ruffed the club and promptly led a spade. West's king fell to dummy's ace and South played two rounds of trumps. Then he led a spade to dummy's 10. East could do no better than to take his jack and lead a second club. South ruffed; played out the last two trumps while chucking dummy's queen and five of spades. Then he cashed his last two spades and the unfortunate West found himself between a rock and a hard place.

He had to discard before dummy and was forced to come down to two diamonds in order to hold a good club. The last club was then thrown from dummy and the last tricks were the three diamond winners.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a hint to keep you from getting so short of breath when going up stairs. Instead of putting half of the foot on the steps, you place the entire foot. It will seem a little awkward at first, but when you see the results it will soon become a habit.

The body is carried on the full support of the feet. If you use half the foot to climb the flight of stairs it's too much weight on the ball of the foot and you become short of breath.

But the whole foot placed on the steps will solve the problem. Try it. — B.B.F.

I did try it and it worked for me!

I also asked some of my friends to try this and it worked for them too.

So why not give it a try next time you have a long flight of stairs to climb? See if this doesn't make a big difference! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have a few things to wash out by hand, put them in a plastic bucket or small tub with soapy water and press down on the clothes with a plumber's helper — one with a long handle.

Sure is easy. No rubbing by hand. — Tillie Gildersleve

DEAR HELOISE:

I have picked up many clever hints from your column, now I have one that might help someone else.

Having so much costume jewelry in sets — separate earrings, bracelets, etc. — packed in two dresser drawers, I came upon the idea of grouping the sets or odd pieces in plastic sandwich bags.

Now the drawers are neat. Sets are together. The bags keep the jewelry clean. Saves time and beats fumbling in drawers to match up accessories.

Great for getting together in a hurry. — Helen K. Pejnot

LETTER OF LOVE

DEAR HELOISE:

Thank you for all the joys you bring. I read you while I am drinking my morning coffee. You two seem to go together. — Mrs. Walter Mazelin

Orchids to you my love for your sweet words. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a hint in return for all those read and used by me for years.

The plastic lids from the potato chips packed in cardboard tubes make inexpensive and great lids for sealing and refrigerating partially used standard-sized cans of pet food — or anything else one would like to preserve in this size container. Hope this helps some pet lovers. — Karen Morrow

DEAR HELOISE:

For almost 19 years I have kept the baby by swig my two grandsons used — for sentimental reasons of course.

Last week I put the swing frame out on my screened-in patio and hung several hanging plants on it. It's a beautiful sight to behold and my grandsons love what I have used their baby swing for.

I patted myself on the back and set down to admire my beautiful hanging garden and to read Heloise.

I just had to write to let you know how I recycled a baby swing. Love your column! — Helen Triana

Love you and your brainstorm! Hugs and kisses for sharing this lovely idea. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have a zipper on a dress, pants, tent or whatever, that's sluggish, a quick up and down with a lead pencil a few times will work wonders.

It's easier to do if the zipper is closed. — Jean O'Conner

THIS COLUMN is written for you... the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can you tell me about pleurisy? What can one expect with it, and how is it treated? — Mrs. L.V.L.

There's a great deal to be said about pleurisy, but I'll try to touch on the major points.

The pleura (PLOOR-rah) is a delicate two-layered covering of the lungs, the inner layer lying against the lung surface and the outer one against the chest wall (thorax). Normally, these two layers are touching each other. Pleurisy is inflammation or irritation of this covering. Fairly simple up to the point. But pleurisy is seldom a disease unto itself. It may represent any of a number of ailments affecting nearby body structures, chiefly the lungs themselves. Inflammation can be the first symptom of pneumonia or of tuberculosis of the lungs. A blood clot within the lungs or a tumor may be involved, or an injury to ribs or to the chest wall (pneumothorax).

"Dry" pleurisy produces more painful symptoms than the other kind, in which large amounts of fluid accumulate in the pleural space mentioned above. The pain of dry pleurisy is stabbing and intense with breathing. The expanding lungs cause friction against the membranes of the pleura. A coughing spell is an agonizing experience.

The type of effusion found (by needle aspiration) is seldom in learning the cause, whether from a lung blood clot, a tumor or a germ. Infection of the pleura (empyema) may be found with pneumonia or tuberculosis. Heart congestion can be a contributing cause.

Treatment for pleurisy, as you can see, depends upon the underlying cause — antibiotics for an infection, for example. Sometimes relief is obtained by removing fluid from the space. Techniques to assist breathing and coughing are sometimes required. Chest strapping may be needed. Treatment of a cause usually relieves pleurisy.

any effect. The ones mentioned are available in an ordinary diet. If your body was lacking in any of them (which I doubt) you would have to be under medical care.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have outer ear trouble, like a red breaking out with itching and burning on my right ear. The doctor told me it was my earwax that hardened. It heals, and again starts itching and bothering me. I seem to hear good. — H.H.S.

Sounds like a fungus infection. That should respond to proper antifungal ointment. I doubt hardened earwax is causing it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a swelling deep under my tongue the size of a small pea. My doctor said it was a plugged gland, and to do nothing about it. It did go down the next day, but after all this time it is still sore. Can you tell me why, and why it swelled in the first place? — Mrs. A.P.

This is usually caused by an obstruction of a duct leading from a salivary gland. It is usually easily released (the swelling material, that is) by eating something sour. There may be a tiny stone or inflammation. Have it checked.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How much zinc should one take each day for rheumatoid arthritis? Please send me some material on this subject. — V.C.

Zinc will not help arthritis, nor will it, to my knowledge control it. You want the booklet, "How to Control Arthritis." For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Many times cough medicine bottles say "consult physician if you have a persistent cough." How many days would it have to last for a cough to be called "persistent"? — B.G.

I would call a persistent cough one that continued for a week or two without improvement. After that a person should begin looking for the underlying cause rather than for the temporary relief offered by cough medicine. At this point one should suspect a problem in either the lungs or nasal passages (as post-nasal drip).

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About a year ago a man who specializes in body chemistry prescribed the following tablets — iodine, zinc, manganese and magnesium. He said that because I am fair complected I am susceptible to sunburn and that these are the chemicals my body is lacking. Is there any truth in this? — R.B.

Being fair-skinned you would sunburn more easily than a dark-skinned person. These chemical supplements won't have

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column someone asked what it meant when a husband and wife are in a car together and the wife is in the driver's seat. The writer expressed the opinion that the wife was "the boss" and added: "Twenty-five dollars says you will agree with me."

Your reply was, "Wrong." You said it could mean:

(1) The wife enjoys driving and the husband doesn't.

(2) He's tired and she isn't.

(3) He's bombed and she's sober.

You omitted the most common reason of all — especially among older couples. I know because I'm the driver in our family. My husband has an eye condition and the doctor told him he must never drive. My sister's husband has arthritis and he, too, is prohibited from driving, except for short distances.

Please print my letter and put the situation in its proper perspective. Thank you so much. — Superior, Wis.

Dear Superior: Right you are. How I could have overlooked the most obvious reason is a mystery to me. I'm ashamed of myself.

Dear Ann Landers: I am hiding out in my own house. (I am writing this letter in an almost dark room. I hope that you can read it!)

About six weeks ago I ran into an old high school friend. I was very happy to see her. We greeted each other with hugs and kisses, had several cups of coffee, talked a lot about the old times, and I invited her to come over anytime.

Well — she took me up on it. "Anytime" is now ALL THE TIME! She has made an effort to spend every evening with us since our "re-discovery."

The first few evenings were fun. We got out old pictures, talked about old boy-friends and old times. My husband was very gracious but he soon became bored. After all, they are not HIS old times. I'm beginning to wish they weren't mine either.

Lately we've been turning the lights out and living in the dark so my friend will think we aren't at home. (The next day she calls me at work and asks, "Where were you last night?")

I've already said things like, "Please call before you come, we may have other plans!" "I'm not in the mood to discuss old times again!" "I'm tired after a long day at work. Can't you visit someone else?" She doesn't get the message.

What now? — Jane O.

Dear Jane: You've got yourself a real mustard plaster. The only way to get rid of it is to tell the woman in plain language. "It was lovely to see you again but your frequent calls and visits are threatening my marriage. Please — don't call me. I'll call you."

If, after this speech, mustard plaster phones again, tell her, "Sorry, I can't talk now," then hang up. If she shows up at your door, say, "I can't invite you in. We have other plans."

I realize this takes a lot of guts but the situation can be resolved only if you have more guts than she has — and she has PLENTY.

Designer Adds Exotic Look To Collection

By SUZY PATTERSON
PARIS (AP) — Yves Saint Laurent sprinkled his fall and winter showing, unwrapped recently, with Chinese prints, Spanish ruffles and exotic bows to add a dash of fun to his versatile and daring collection.

For daytime Saint Laurent's official look of approval goes to pencil-slim skirts under big-shouldered jackets and coats in a look that harks back to early 1940s.

He puts nearly all sleeves into a modified leg-of-mutton, for both day and evening. They're puffed at top and taper at the wrist.

The typical suit look is a narrow skirt, about two inches below the knee worn with all sorts of jackets.

The daytime trouser suits are lean and drop to the instep.

A Nehru-shaped pillbox tops nearly all heads, also for evening and gloves — suede for day, lame for evening — add a new dressy touch.

The fabrics are weighted towards the shadows in black, beige, grey, dark blue, rust, black and gold. But to brighten the scene, emerald, burgundy, tomato, and surprising combinations of oranges and purples, turn up. There are touches of leather in suede suits with skirts or shiny outer pants.

What about is to be seen, but lots of simple high-heeled pumps go with everything, and sexy sandals are shown for evening.

A new coat line is the three-quarter chair model with well-seamed stitching on collars, cuffs and coat borders. Besides low-belted trench styles, he showed tapered princess models, always with the flange, slightly raised shoulder.

The omnipresent black is saved with lots of razzle-dazzle for evening. Simple sheath dresses are shown under bolero jackets that are boxy or fitted in patterns of gold and silver broche lame or adorned with sequins and rhinestones.

Short looks range from a skirted tuxedo suit — complete with large bowtie — to a knee-length scalloped lace chemise or a short, heavily ruffled taffeta gown with a long velvet bodice.

The sleek long black crepe sheaths for evening are either topped with contrasting little boleros or ringed with colorful palette embroidery.

The sexiest slink that had spectators gasping was an electric pink satin, draped and off one shoulder with a huge velvet bow at shoulder and just below the derriere.

Ruffled gowns with trains added to the Spanish-style effect, while shimmering Chinese patterns were presented for evening costumes.

PRIVATE EYE LOOK — The trench coat returns to the fashion scene this fall, this year doubled breasted with deep pockets. This coat in wool herringbone tweed is self-scarfed with buckles at the cuffs.

Most pairs in the Cavendish invitational stopped at a spade or heart game and invariably made five odd. Two pairs reached six spades. There is a way to bring that contract home but neither of the declarers found it. They really shouldn't have. Normal plays all fall.

One South arrived at six hearts and as he explained later, it was a lay down. Actually, it was extremely good play.

He ruffed the club and promptly led a spade. West's king fell to dummy's ace and South played two rounds of trumps. Then he led a spade to dummy's 10. East could do no better than to take his jack and lead a second club. South ruffed, played out the last two trumps while chucking dummy's queen and five of spades. Then he cashed his last two spades and the unfortunate West found himself between a rock and a hard place.

He had to discard before dummy and was forced to come down to two diamonds in order to hold a good club. The last club was then thrown from dummy and the last tricks were the three diamond winners.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a hint to keep you from getting so short of breath when going up stairs. Instead of putting half of the foot on the steps, you place the entire foot. It will seem a little awkward at first, but when you see the results it will soon become a habit.

The body is carried on the full support of the feet. If you use half the foot to climb the flight of stairs it's too much weight on the ball of the foot and you become short of breath.

But the whole foot placed on the steps will solve the problem. Try it. — B.B.F.

I did try it and it worked for me!

I also asked some of my friends to try this and it worked for them too.

So why not give it a try next time you have a long flight of stairs to climb? See if this doesn't make a big difference! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have a few things to wash out by hand, put them in a plastic bucket or small tub with soapy water and press down on the clothes with a plumber's helper — one with a long handle. Sure is easy. No rubbing by hand. — Tillie Gildersleve

DEAR HELOISE:

I have picked up many clever hints from your column, now I have one that might help someone else.

Having so much costume jewelry in sets — separate earrings, bracelets, etc. — packed in two dresser drawers, I came upon the idea of grouping the sets or odd pieces in plastic sandwich bags.

Now the drawers are neat. Sets are together. The bags keep the jewelry clean. Saves time and beats fumbling in drawers to match up accessories.

Great for getting altogether in a hurry. — Helen K. Pejnot

DEAR HELOISE:

Thank you for all the joys you bring. I read you while I am drinking my morning coffee. You two seem to go together. — Mrs. Walter Mazelin

Orchids to you my love for your sweet words. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a hint in return for all those read and used by me for years.

The plastic lids from the potato chips packed in cardboard tubes make inexpensive and great lids for sealing and refrigerating partially used standard-sized cans of pet food — or anything else one would like to preserve in this size container. Hope this helps some pet lovers. — Karen Morrow

DEAR HELOISE:

For almost 18 years I have kept the bar by swing my two grandsons used — for sentimental reasons of course.

Last week I put the swing frame out on my screened-in patio and hung several hanging plants on it. It's a beautiful sight to behold and my grandsons love what I have used their baby swing for.

I patted myself on the back and set down to admire my beautiful hanging garden and to read Heloise.

I just had to write to let you know how I recycled a baby swing. Love your column! — Helen Triana

Love you and your brainstorm! Hugs and kisses for sharing this lovely idea. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have a zipper on a dress, pants, tent or whatever, that's sluggish, a quick up and down with a lead pencil a few times will work wonders.

It's easier to do if the zipper is closed. — Jean O'Conner

THIS COLUMN is written for you...the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. # Soviets Hold American Pair

By Tom Tiede

CHICAGO (NEA) — In 1930, when they were children, John and Lorraine Jodwalis accompanied their mother on what was to have been a memorable, extended and happy visit to Lithuania. Memorable it was. Extended also. But happy? The trip turned into a nightmare that has lasted more than four decades.

The brother and sister have never been allowed to return home. Though they are clearly American citizens, born here to resident parents, the pair have year upon year been trapped in Eastern Europe. In effect, they have for all this time been under house arrest in what is now the Soviet Union.

In the words of a Soviet affairs specialist at the U.S. State Department, the Jodwalis matter is "quite unbelievable." At least seven other U.S. citizens are now held under similar circumstances in Russia, yet no one has been there for so long, nor tried harder to get out, than John and Lorraine Jodwalis.

Actually, the Jodwalises have been trying to leave Europe almost since they arrived. The war clouds were gathering in the 1930s, however, and when the Nazis absorbed Lithuania the couple could not escape. In 1940, the Kremlin liberated that hapless nation, but John and Lorraine's predicament grew even worse.

As was their habit, the conquering Russians declared everyone in Lithuania to be a Soviet subject. The Jodwalises protested, saying they were Americans, but it was no use. In retrospect, the complaints may not have been wise; John and Lorraine were marked as trouble-makers, and were soon to pay dearly.

It is not clear why the Jodwalises were arrested. The authorities apparently found a "forbidden newspaper" in their apartment, and they were accused of subversive activities that were never specified. Then they were placed in a Lithuanian jail, in solitary confinement, where they awaited the judicial crunch.

The crunch was Siberia. John was sentenced to eight years hard labor in the gold mines that would one day be eloquently condemned by Alexander Solzhenitsyn. Lorraine was banished for eight years too, and was put to work laying railroad tracks in some of the most forsaken wasteland in the world.

The couple decayed. Particularly John. He lost so much weight that he was able to join his fingers around his thighs. But may well have perished were it not for Nikita Khrushchev; when the latter became ruler of Russia he ordered reviews for all political prisoners, and the Jodwalises were found innocent and freed.

But they merely went from one set of chains to another. When they returned to Lithuania, now a U.S.S.R. possession, John and Lorraine were ostracized. When they continued to claim American citizenship, and ask for permission to return home, they were once again considered traitors to the Soviet state.

And so it has continued until today. Every year the Jodwalises apply for exit documents. Every year permission is denied, without comment. John and Lorraine are in their 50s now, and their relatives in the U.S. say they never write a letter home that does not hint of their endless discontent.

One Chicago relative, Sister Bertha Jodwalis, visited the pair last year, after 47 years of separation. She says they continue to be determined. "They hear about the Jews leaving," says Sister Bertha, "they hear about Jimmy Carter and his human rights—and they still hope that their time will come."

The hope is not easily maintained. The Jodwalises' mother also wanted to return to America, but she died without fulfillment in 1958. There is fear the same fate may await John and Lorraine. Sister Bertha says the depression is lowest just after the exit applications have been annually rejected.

John won't write home for weeks following the rejections. Lorraine worries about him during these periods. "Each year it's the same," says Sister Bertha. "They get clearance from their schools, they get clearance from their jobs—then they wait anxiously for the inevitable refusal. It is a very cruel ordeal."

Sister Bertha says the ordeal is not confined to John and Lorraine. He is married now, so is she, and the members of their families also want to leave the Soviet Union. Instead of two suffering people, then, it's many. Says Sister Bertha: "They all believe they're Americans and they all want to come home."

Apparently, there are a good number of people in the U.S. who have tried to help the Jodwalises come home. Several U.S. presidents have made quiet appeals to the Kremlin. The U.S. Senate and House of Representatives have deplored their captivity. And the State Department says it has "worked on the case for years."

Yet there has been no progress. Sister Bertha says John and Lorraine are no closer to returning now than they were 40 years ago. She says it's pathetic: "They are simple, hard working, lovely people."

Gang Members Given Prison Terms For Rape

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — A court sentenced eight young motorcycle gang members Friday to two years in prison for the rape of a 19-year-old girl. Seven of them said that though they witnessed the attack they did not take part, but the prosecutor demanded the same sentence for both "laughing bystanders" and rapists.

Prosecutor Lodewijk de Beaufort said during the trial the girl had accepted an invitation to visit the gang's Amsterdam clubhouse the evening of May 1 during the celebration of Queen Juliana's birthday, and then was attacked and otherwise mistreated by about 30 gang members until dawn, when she managed to escape.

One defendant, a Belgian, first pleaded guilty and made a full confession but later withdrew his plea. The seven others — six Danes and a Dutchman — denied the charges from the start, saying they were drunk, witnessed the rape and other cruelties but did not take part.

De Beaufort told the court he made no distinction between the actual rapists and what he called "laughing bystanders," and he demanded two-year terms for all.

"In both cases, their attitude represented a violation of a woman's right to self-determination," he said.

One of the defendants' lawyers objected that the prosecutor "regards the defendants as guilty by association, but it ought to take more to convict somebody of rape."

The defendants have 14 days to appeal.

Pyramid House Gives People Something To Complain About

By CAROLYN ONDREJAS
WICHITA, FALLS (NEA) — A man's home is his castle, his tabernacle, his pyramid?

Tabernacle? Pyramid?

It might look to some like a rambling heap of shag shingles, tires, brooms, bottles, junked cars, cast-off couches and chairs, light posts and chicken wire.

But the home at 2715 Lebanon in Wichita Falls is a tabernacle — just read the signs. It's a pyramid — just ask the owner.

"I've been working on it nine years, but it'll never be finished as long as I live," says Reginald Minnick of the "sculpture" in which he lives with his wife, son and daughter-in-law.

"I'm building a pyramid," he explains simply. "You know what the pyramids were for. They were burial places. This is where I want to be buried someday..."

"Oh, I know there are city ordinances, and I can't just be buried here. But my body will be cremated and my ashes kept here. It's a very spiritual thing to me."

"And, it's a very arresting sight to passersby. Joggers stop in their tracks. Cars slow to a crawl. Many people park and get out for a better look."

Minnick says he doesn't mind at all. Owner-operator of a barber shop for many years before retiring, Minnick says he had written poetry and dabbled in art before. But the pyramid is his first major work.

"All Pisces are artistic, and I'm a Pisces," he explains. "There's much symbolism in the structure, which stretches half a block and was formed by joining four structures."

For example, there's an old wooden wagon, which Minnick found wrapped in tinsel under his family's tree on Christmas morning more than 50 years ago. His children played with the antique when they were younger, and now it's perched on the roof of the house, right next to a discarded bicycle.

An old barber chair from his shop also sits on the roof.

Then there are the posters from a recent rodeo and county elections. One poster admonishes, "Vote for the sake of justice." The eclectic structure also includes two oil paintings by a friend of Minnick. And the head of a large catfish, symbolic of Minnick's favorite pastime.

Dominating one side of the property is a large wooden ark — not Noah's Ark, but Jonah's, according to Minnick.

"I was raised to be a Church of Christ preacher like my father," he explains. "I'm still very heavy on spirituality, but have no particular denomination."

Another important bit of memorabilia is the football player dummy, which keeps watch at the peak of the pyramid. It's complete with the helmet worn by Minnick's son when he starred as defensive linebacker for the University of Texas Longhorns.

There's a slowly rusting Coke machine offering pops at 15 cents each.

And several large dogs pace the roof. "The dogs aren't protecting anything," says Minnick. "They're just up there because it's cool up there at night and early in the day. When it gets really hot, they'll go under the house."

The dogs, who seem friendly, reach the roof by a runway that Minnick built. He, too, often sleeps on the roof.

And there are hidden ladders by which Minnick can climb to the highest point of his pyramid. He often goes there to watch the sunset.

"It's sturdy as it can be," Minnick says of what looks like a very loosely put-together structure. "I was up there once in 70 mile an hour wind and didn't get a sway."

"It's all wired together from within — like a spider forms its web. There's no way you can consider it dangerous."

However, Wichita Falls building inspector Raymond Van Loh disagrees. Minnick claims he has received notices from the city "every week for a year."

Van Loh says the structure fails to meet the city building codes and is being constructed without any building permits, though he concedes Minnick took out a permit in 1969 to build a lean-to-carport. The offices of building inspection, city attorney, health and fire marshal have all sent Minnick notices of one sort or another in the last year. Some of the problems have been corrected. Only building inspection is continuing its case against the artist. Minnick believes the complaints originated with one neighbor. He claims his other neighbors do not seem to mind the unusual structure. At least, Minnick's work in progress must provide them an inexhaustible topic of conversation.

Antique Camera Gives Long Look At America

By NORMAN NADEL

NEW YORK (NEA)—An antique camera, designed to take pictures of the volunteer fire department or the entire Sunday School enrollment, has opened a new aspect of photographic art.

Evidence is a unique exhibition at the Museum of Modern Art, the first in a series on American photography to be sponsored by Spring Mills Corp. It offers a dozen panoramas in color of American city and country scenes, each 10 inches high and from 6 to 7 feet long.

In 1973, Jerry Dantzie, who made these pictures, saw for the first time and was permitted to borrow a Cirkut camera, designed around 1900 and used well into the 1930s.

Its original function was to make pictures of groups too wide to fit in the usual dimensions of a photograph. This meant setting up the Cirkut camera for any of a number of others that functioned somewhat similarly on a tripod, which permitted the camera to revolve.

The group was arranged in a semi-circle so that the lens-to-subject distance remained the same. With most cameras this was not a rapid process, so there was always some clown who would pose with the group on the extreme right, then race around to be in the picture again when the left end of the class was being shot.

Pressing a button starts the camera revolving at a perfectly even speed. At precisely the same speed, the film is wound past a one-16th-by-10-inch slit in the back of the camera. Thus the image is recorded.

No wide-angle lens is required: in fact, Dantzie uses a variety of lenses, normal and long-focus, depending on his subject and the kind of picture he has in mind.

The angle of view—or the "seeing" angle—of a modern 35 millimeter camera in wide-angle use ranges from about 62 degrees with a 35 mm lens, up to 180 degrees (half a circle) with a 6 mm "fish-eye" lens. By contrast, the panoramas at the museum vary from 210 degrees to an astonishing 400 degrees, which is more than a complete circle. Thus, in a color photograph of Fort McHenry, you see three cannon emplacements on the left of the right, and the same three again at the print extreme.

For the past 20 years Dantzie, who lives in Brooklyn, has earned his living as an industrial and advertising photographer. He also is associate professor of photography at Long Island University. Last year on a Guggenheim fellowship, he had his chance to explore the aesthetic possibilities of this big, black box with its motor and sturdy tripod. With his wife and son, 11, he set out to make 130 panoramas in 100 days, traveling 16,000 miles through 30 states.

Dantzie explains that technical aspects of the spring motor-driven camera and its use were not a problem: "The problem is to use the circumference of a circle to make a meaningful picture."

A companion problem is that even the ordinary camera with a normal lens "sees" too much. A painter can include or leave out of a scene whatever he wants; Matisse, Cezanne and Monet all were good at simplifying by leaving out to strengthen the composition.

The camera, by contrast, is unselective: it records anything and everything in front of it. So clutter is a principal problem with serious photographers. Using telephoto or close-up lenses are among the ways to "edit" or select with a camera.

Well, if an ordinary camera sees too much, the Cirkut camera compounds the problem in that it can see and record in every direction on one strip of film.

So it is understandable that Dantzie would have spent more than a day, on an average, making each film, then would select only 12 out of the 130 to exhibit. None of them is cluttered, all have form and composition. There is no vertical distortion, but horizontally, straight lines become curved and curves become straight. In some pictures that is evident and adds interest; in others, the viewer is not even aware of the distortion.

The show, at MOMA through July 30, then offered to other museums on tour, benefits from variety in subject matter. One of the loveliest prints (all of which are made from Kodak Verichrome II film) shows the Grand Teton mountains, Jenny Lake and the Snake River Valley in Wyoming. Other subjects include Cape May, N.J., the Chicago waterfront, Meares Beach in Oregon, Monument Valley, Ariz., Gettysburg, New York City and the Williamsburg Bridge, Blue Mesa in Arizona, a Vermont town (South Royalton), Atlantic City and the old 20th-Century-Fox lot in Hollywood.

"I think of looking at these as more of a motion picture film experience, rather than still photography, says Dantzie's wife Cynthia. "The picture doesn't move, but your eyes do, from one side to the other. You can't take it all in at once."

One of the most famous panoramas of modern times is the NASA 300-degree shot of the surface of Mars, done with modern equipment. Dantzie's favorites among his own work include a picture taken from the top of the old immigration building on Ellis Island in Upper New York Bay during Operation Sail on July 4, 1976. It contains Manhattan; the Bronx, Queens, Brooklyn, Staten Island, New Jersey, 4,000 boats and two million visible people, on a strip of film and printing paper 10 inches high by 6 feet long.

WIDE VIEW OF AMERICA — The Cirkut camera, a revolving antique designed for large group photos, has been retrieved by photographer Jerry Dantzie. His wide looks at America, such as New York City and Monument Valley, Ariz., have been gathered in a striking collection.

Shut Down Nuclear Plants Pose Big Problems

By RASA GUSTAITIS

(c) 1978 Pacific News Service
Amid world-wide controversy about nuclear waste disposal, an even tougher problem has arisen: how to get rid of a used-up nuclear power plant that will be too hot to dismantle for decades without exorbitant expenses and hazards.

The 100-Megawatt reactor in Niederachbach, Germany was closed in 1974 because of defects. Since then it has been under 24-hour guard because, despite immediate removal of the uranium that fueled it, the entire installation is permeated by radio-activity.

Authorities plan to maintain it under guard for at least 25 years, at a cost of 150,000 marks ($75,000) annually.

Similar radioactive ghost fortresses are likely to proliferate in Europe and North America as nuclear plants reach the end of their life span, estimated at 30 years.

In western Europe, about 16 plants are expected to be permanently put out of action by 1990. In the United States, 60 to 70 small-scale installations, most of them experimental and prototype plants, have been decommissioned so far. But 71 commercial plants, mostly of the 1,200 megawatts, are now in operation and eventually will have to be put away, posing unprecedented problems. "Entombment" is one disposal method under consideration, according to Carl Goldstein, assistant vice president of the Atomic Industrial Forum. It involves encasing the entire plant in cement for a hundred years and rigging it with intrusion alarms.

Or the plant could be guarded round-the-clock for a century, then dismantled, he said. The term for this alternative is "mothballing."

"Utility companies don't think this would be a terrific burden," Goldstein said. Some, he said, are planning to put money for decommissioning costs.

Goldstein estimated that such costs for a large single reactor would run $30 to $40 million, about six or seven percent of the plant's cost. But entombment costs of one reactor, at Oyster Creek, N.J., has been estimated by industry sources at half the construction costs.

Immediate dismantling, if possible without undue hazards to workers and people in the area, would run much higher.

The only power plant to have been dismantled fully in the United States so far is at Elk River, Minn., and the cost exceeded construction. That 30-megawatt demonstration facility, only one-fourth the size of commercial reactors now coming into use, was passed to the Dairyland Power Cooperative by the Atomic Energy Commission. It was shut down by order of the state's pollution control agency because it leaked.

The AEC planned to entomb the installation, but the cooperative, armed with a contract that promised the AEC would restore the site to original condition when the plant's usefulness was over, insisted on dismantling.

To avoid contamination from radioactive dust, the facility was first encased in concrete, then flooded. From 1972 to 1973 divers with acetylene torches took apart the equipment underwater.

The cost of that job, 6.5 million suggests that dismantling a 1,200 megawatt plant would require $260 million. But with inflation continuing, it could go much higher.

Deaf Texans Asking To Be Heard

DALLAS (AP) — Some deaf Texans are asking to be heard.

"Deaf people really don't want sympathy. They'd like empathy, but there's a big difference," said Karen Master, president of the Parent-Professional Section of the Texas Association of the Deaf.

"The deaf do not want people to feel sorry for them. That's the last thing," she said. "They're a very brilliant group of people."

As pride among deaf people grows, so does the desire to make the hearing world aware of their special problems.

Daily activities in a world designed for the hearing can prove to be a trying experience. A word thought to be familiar can turn out to be something quite different.

Mrs. Master said a shining example is a deaf couple's experience when buying a car. The salesman's talk of "interest" was understood to mean it was in their interest to buy the car.

When the bills started coming, a big chunk each month was marked for interest — the financial kind. Exposure to a familiar word in a new context came as a complete surprise to the couple.

"That's a very typical problem that happens with deaf people because their language is very limited," Mrs. Master said. "I would like to see the recognition that we do need special help."

Her parent-professional group is working to expand a two-week summer camp program for deaf youngsters. Another project is to help children purchase special items they might need, telephone devices or other materials that are often too costly for the average family.

Mrs. Master becomes most enthusiastic when speaking of the Miss Deaf Texas pageant her organization sponsors.

"Just because they can't express themselves vocally does not mean they don't have it inside...I think what we can do is use the Miss Texas and the pageant to show that we have a lot of talent in the deaf community." Although none of the Miss Deaf Texas winners in the pageant's four-year history have won the Miss Deaf America title, Mrs. Master said the local pageant is able to give a bigger reward than the national one.

This year's Miss Texas won a $1,000 prize. Miss Deaf America took home $500.

THE WAY IT WAS — Oh, for the good old days! The nation's per capita tax burden in 1902 was $18; of that total, $7 went to the federal government, $2 to the state and $9 to the locality. By 1976, in contrast, the per capita tax burden had grown to $2,084 — $1,328 for the federal government, $441 for the state and $315 for the locality. Washington's share of total taxes increased from 37.4 percent in 1902 to 64.7 percent in 1976, while the states' share rose from 11.4 percent to 21.2 percent. Meanwhile, the percentage of total taxes received by local governments dwindled from 51.3 percent to 15.1 percent.

SPENDING — Each American receives an average of $1,076.73 annually in services from state and local governments. Education accounts for the greatest share of spending, followed by public welfare, highways, health and hospitals, police and fire, financial administration and other services. Back in 1902, incidentally, per capita spending by state and local governments totaled $12.80 — $3.22 for education, $2.21 for highways, $1.78 for financial administration, $1.14 for police and fire, 78 cents for health and hospitals, 47 cents for public welfare and $3.20 for all other.

Proposition 13 Neither Start, Finish Of Revolt

So what was Proposition 13? The measure cut California property tax revenues nearly 60 percent — to $5 billion from $12 billion — by limiting such taxes to 1 percent of 1975-1976 market value. The measure also prohibits increases of more than 2 percent a year in assessed values unless property changes hands. (The latter provision has caused the proposition's foes to claim that farmers and businesses will receive greater relief than homeowners in the long run because residential property changes hands more frequently than does commercial property.)

Proposition 13's impact on the economies of California and the nation will not be felt fully for some time. However, its effects are already being seen in public spending cutbacks, especially in social services, libraries, recreation and education. Transfusions to localities from a $5 billion state budget surplus have caused program curtailments to fall short of the dire predictions voiced during the campaign by the proposition's opponents.

But the tax revolt did not begin with Proposition 13. Four states — Colorado, Tennessee, New Jersey and Michigan — preceded California in enacting limits on taxes or spending.

Much of the impetus for the tax revolt has been attributed to inflation, which has increased government costs, skyrocketed home values and pushed workers into higher income tax brackets without bettering their purchasing power. However, the roots of the rebellion may go even deeper — to the decline in public confidence in government brought on by Vietnam, Watergate and the failures of ambitious government efforts to cure social ills.

As Proposition 13 co-author Gann recently commented: "The government has tried to become uncle, mother and father, and we simply cannot afford it anymore."

HYDRO-MULCH THE 21 DAY LAWN

It may sound incredible, but it's a fact. You will be mowing your new lawn three weeks after EVERGREEN Landscape & Maintenance installs it. We accomplish this by utilizing a revolutionary process called HYDRO-MULCHING, whereby seed, water, fertilizer, and a wood fiber mulch are mixed together and sprayed over the ground. This process greatly increases seed germination and assures a quick, uniform, thick stand of grass.

- Hydro-Mulch provides an "Instant Green Carpet" immediately which eliminates all dust and mud problems and allows foot traffic the same day it is installed.
- No seams or shrinkage during hot weather as with sod.

- Requires less watering due to "Instant Green" wood fiber which retains 14 times its weight in moisture. It also inhibits growth of weeds and conditions the soil.
- Reduces lawn costs over sod by 50%.

Spacecraft To Explore Venus

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Scientists hope a Pioneer spacecraft set for launch to Venus Monday will supplement their scant knowledge of a barren planet more like earth in some respects than any other known to man.

Pioneer Venus 2 was preceded by a spacecraft launched May 20, which will map the atmosphere of Venus from a distance once it swings into orbit around that planet Dec. 4. The second Pioneer will arrive five days later after traveling more than half way around the sun.

Four probes aboard Pioneer Venus 2 are programmed to split away from the mother ship some 8 million miles away from Venus. Then they will penetrate the thick, yellow haze that hides Venus from view and fly down to the planet's searing hot surface. Scientists hope the probes will radio back information that helps them understand why Venus and earth are so similar, and yet so different.

The planets are comparable in size and density and, relative to other planets, distance from the sun. But the surface of Venus is much hotter, its atmosphere much denser and its rotation much slower than earth's. And observations indicate that no known life could survive on Venus because its oceans — if there ever were any — have dried up.

Some speculate that earth could become just as dry and lifeless if wholesale burning of fossil fuels continues.

The ancient Chinese called Venus "The Beautiful White One" because its gleaming cloud cover makes it the brightest object in the sky except for the sun and moon. The bright haze surrounding Venus also makes it impenetrable by telescope.

Radar indicates that a Venusian day is as long as 243 earth days and that shallow craters cover its surface. Radio waves present the picture of a canyon 620 miles long and 95 miles wide, as well as a lava flow the size of Oklahoma.

Because Venus rotates slowly and has no oceans, it presents a good opportunity for experiments probing how weather affects a planet.

The Soviet Union also is expected to send spacecraft to Venus this month to attempt a landing on the cloud-shrouded planet it has explored on 10 occasions.

WHAT'S UP A capsule view of tastes, interests and attitudes

Texas remembers LBJ on Aug. 27.

What's up in August

What do the birth of Lyndon Johnson, the disappearance of Judge Crater and the admission of Hawaii to the union have in common? All three events are marked by August holidays.

- Here are 15 special days on the August calendar:
- Aug. 1. Ramadan (Islamic)
  - Aug. 6. Judge Crater Day Tree Planting Day (Lesotho)
  - Aug. 7. Colorado Day (Colorado)
  - Aug. 10. Festival of the Seven Sisters (Malaysia)
  - Aug. 14. V-J Day (Rhode Island) Independence Day (Pakistan)
  - Aug. 15. Independence Day (India)
  - Aug. 16. Day of the Child (Paraguay) Bennington Battle Day (Vermont)
  - Aug. 19. National Aviation Day
  - Aug. 26. Women's Equality Day
  - Aug. 27. Lyndon Johnson's Birthday (Texas)
  - Aug. 30. Huey Long's Birthday (Louisiana)

What's up with sexes

Even the most agreeable man can sometimes cause the woman in his life to tear her hair in distress. Redbook magazine recently came up with a list of "77 Things Men Do That Drive Women Wild."

- Here are 10 of them:
1. He won't admit you're better at math than he is.
  2. He never gets it right how you met.
  3. He says, "Do you know you're beautiful when you're mad?"
  4. He hears a funny noise when he's driving and says, "What did you do to the car?"
  5. He insists he knows the way and won't look at the map until you're 20 miles lost.
  6. Every time he looks in the mirror, he asks, "Do you think I'm losing my hair?"
  7. He gets a funny expression on his face when you go near his "sound system."
  8. When he's sick, it's serious. When you're sick, it's just a cold.
  9. He doesn't understand that you can be a liberated woman and still want him to check the noise in the living room at 3 a.m.
  10. He thinks any of the following are good, clean fun: The Dallas Cowgirls, waitresses in miniskirts, bachelor parties, 6-year-old boys looking at Playboy centerfolds, three-day fishing weekends and nubile, teen-aged, mother's helpers.

According to Redbook, your man deserves a medal if he is guilty of fewer than 10 of the 77 irritations. If he is guilty of more than 10, it's you who deserves the medal.

What's up in seafaring fare

When ocean liner travel began, ships carried their own cows on board to provide milk — for women and children passengers, only. Today, however, cruise ships are equipped with special refrigerated storerooms to keep perishables fresh throughout the voyage.

- The Queen Elizabeth 2, for example, loads up on 16,400 gallons of milk before setting off on its 80-day voyage around the world. Meanwhile, the ship fills up with these massive quantities of other foods and beverages for the around-the-world trip:
- Butter 24,046 pounds
  - Yogurt 2,580 cartons
  - Cheese 7,945 pounds
  - Beef 121,500 pounds
  - Lamb 36,000 pounds
  - Bacon 12,700 pounds
  - Foie gras 670 pounds
  - Beer 26,000 bottles
  - Scotch 2,100 bottles
  - Champagne 2,750 bottles
  - Caviar 11,000 pounds

Let's hope the ship's crew remembered to throw in something for indigestion.

What's up in writing

Historical novels may be a dime a decade, but how about one where the author got his facts firsthand — seven centuries earlier.

Edward Tolosko, high school dropout, orphan, electrician, artist, inventor, mechanic, poet and now author, says writing "Sakuran," a book about medieval Japan and Samaurai warriors battling for survival in 1281 was easy. After all, he was there.

"I existed as a Samurai," claims Tolosko, "an exquisite fighting machine in a previous life. I battled with the long lunar swords and the short kogatanas of the day."

He says he totally made up the fight scenes which later proved to be historically accurate. "I just sat back closed my eyes and conjured up a vision, so to speak. The parts that deal with the sword took seconds to write and were vivid in my mind as I wrote them."

"Can you explain that? Well, neither can I. This is why I say it happened before."

What's up with Caldwell

Taylor Caldwell has written such best sellers as "Testimony of Two Men" and "Captains and the Kings," but some of her most interesting writings have not been published.

Despite the immense popularity of her sprawling historical romances, some of Caldwell's work, according to Crawdaddy Magazine, apparently interested only the FBI. She is said to have accused lawyer William M. Kunstler of plotting to kill Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and, inferentially, Robert F. Kennedy, as well.

In an article in the September issue of Crawdaddy, Kunstler says he has been an ongoing target of what he describes as Caldwell's obsessive anti-Communist phobia. Kunstler claims correspondence and telephone calls in FBI files substantiate the view that Caldwell is "unreliable and possibly demented."

What's up in TV stars

Wonder Woman Lynda Carter is the television personality most recently honored by the Stars Hall of Fame. Her handprints, footprints and signature will be preserved in cement alongside those of other entertainers in the Orlando, Fla., museum's "Plaza of the Stars."

If Carter perseveres in her career, she may someday join the TV heavyweights immortalized in wax in the 3-year-old museum's "Television's Best" section.

The shows and stars currently honored there are:

- "Sanford and Son" (Red Fox, LaWanda Page).
- "Laugh-In" (Dan Rowan, Dick Martin).
- "Beverly Hillsbillies" (Buddy Ebsen, Irene Ryan, Donna Douglas, Max Baer Jr.).
- "The Flip Wilson Show" (Flip Wilson, "Geraldine").
- "All in the Family" (Carroll O'Connor, Jean Stapleton).
- "The Lucy Show" (Lucille Ball).
- "The Untouchables" (Robert Stack).
- "Wagon Train" (Ward Bond).
- "Bonanza" (Lorne Greene, Dan Blocker, Michael Landon).
- "The Rifleman" (Chuck Connors).
- "Ben Casey" (Vincent Edwards, Bettye Ackerman, Sam Jaffe).
- "Star Trek" (Leonard Nimoy, Nichelle Nichols, DeForest Kelley, William Shatner).
- "Columbo" (Peter Falk).

Also included among "Television's Best" were perennial favorites Bob Hope, Jack Benny and Danny Thomas.

Army Badgering Killed Husband, Widow Says

By TOM TIEDE
BAR HARBOR, Maine (NEA) — When Ronald E. Alley died at 56 years of age last January, the cause recorded was a heart attack. His widow, however, doesn't believe it. She says he died of a broken heart, not a falling one, and the U.S. military was responsible.

TOM TIEDE

"In effect, my husband was killed by the Army," Erna Alley says the killing took place over a period of two decades. Ron Alley was a one-time infantry captain, and prisoner of war, who became the only officer imprisoned for collaboration with the enemy during the Korean conflict. The widow says he was railroaded, and died trying to prove his innocence.

"Sometimes he would just lay on the couch and stare at the wall," she says. "He never gave up hope, but he never could forget the disgrace. He tried everything to clear his name, to make the truth known, but nobody would listen. So he died prematurely. It's as if the Army put a knife through the man."

Mrs. Alley says she's not going to let the service get away with it. She has filed a $3 million suit against the Army, charging it sent Alley to an early grave and inflicted grievous distress on his survivors. She hopes the action will generate a new investigation of her husband's case, "right from its beginning."

The beginning for Alley was in December of 1950. That was when he was captured by Chinese troops near the Chosen Reservoir. Military records indicate he was taken to a Communist prison camp in Pyoktong, North Korea, nicknamed "Death Valley," where he was to stay for 33 months until his release in 1953.

Alley's internment was anything but comfortable. His widow says he contracted beriberi, tuberculosis, and his weight dropped from 185 to 120 pounds. When he was returned to American control, he underwent reparative surgery for the TB, and was so additionally ravaged that he spent two years in the hospital.

Eventually, the Army charged that Alley had done more than just get sick in North Korea. In 1955 he was accused of having signed phony peace demands, and given the enemy classified information regarding U.S. artillery matters. He was court-martialed, found guilty, and sentenced to 10 years hard labor.

But was he guilty? Before he died Alley admitted that he had cooperated with the enemy to some small extent, but insisted that "everyone did." He said conditions were so bad in North Korea that senior officers and young enlisted men alike decided "to tell them anything," because the primary goal was survival.

Hence, Alley believed he was a scapegoat. After the war there was heavy criticism of the way POWs handled themselves in Korea, and Alley felt he was chosen as a sacrifice to the mob. Alley's military attorney, Col. Bill Logan, allegedly told him that he'd been found guilty months before he set foot in court.

This latter opinion has been repeated by others throughout the last 23 years.

Most recently, retired Col. Charles Peckman, another Korean POW, has told Mrs. Alley that her husband's trial was a "circus." Peckman says he spoke in Alley's defense at the court martial, "and it was clear they wanted to hang Ronald."

Peckman, who was with Alley at the Pyoktong prison camp, says the man was innocent. "I sincerely question that he had any classified information to give the Chinese, even if he had wanted to." Besides, Peckman adds, if Alley had given data to the Communists, who could have known about it except the Communists?

Another POW from the Pyoktong camp, Capt. Frederick Smith has told Mrs. Alley's attorney that charges against Alley were "nothing more than a bunch of crap." He says he saw U.S. artillery manuals "laying all over the hut where we were interrogated," so what more could Alley have told them?

Mrs. Alley says all of the evidence against her husband is similarly suspect. She says he was convicted on hearsay and fabrication: "Many men who testified against Ronald later told us they were ordered to lie." So Alley went to Fort Leavenworth for nearly four years, a time that he said was worse than his POW period.

Reportedly, Alley could have gotten out of Leavenworth sooner, on parole. But his widow says he did not want to owe the Army anything, even time, "because he wanted to be free to tell his story." He told it, often, until he died; in the end the only people who believed him were his friends and neighbors.

Yet his story will go on being told. Widow Alley says the family name has to be cleared. "We'll never stop trying to get people to know the truth. If I die, then my children will carry on. If they die, then their children will do it. My husband was innocent; as God is my witness, he did nothing wrong."

Italians May Ban Advertisements For Cigarettes

ROME (AP) — The Italian cabinet approved a draft law Friday that would further restrict advertising of cigarettes by banning even indirect use of them in advertising.

The proposal also stipulates that within a year all cigarette packs carry legible warnings that smoking is harmful to health. Each cigarette package would have to bear a list of tar and nicotine contents.

Direct cigarette advertising has been banned from national radio, television, newspapers and magazines for some years, but cigarettes can be seen in the background of other advertising.

The draft law would ban even indirect showing of cigarettes in advertising.

Infractions would be punishable by fines ranging from about $6,000 to $60,000 and a six-month ban on sales of the illegally advertised product.

Companies Not Ready For Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunday, Sept. 10, is National Grandparents Day, but the greeting card, flower and candy industries aren't forecasting an immediate boom in business from well-wishing children and grandchildren.

The holiday was set late last month after Congress passed and sent to President Carter a measure promoted by Oak Hill, W. Va., grandmother Marian McQuade. Mrs. McQuade had been campaigning since 1973 to have the holiday proclaimed.

A part of the greeting card industry, which the government estimates has retail sales of $1.4 billion a year, was caught short by the late proclamation of the holiday.

"Most companies were unable to do anything because there's a six-to-seven-month lead time" between designing the cards and shipping them to stores, said Jackie Roddy of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

Hallmark Cards Inc., the nation's leading greeting card publisher, is coming out with a line of cards for the holiday. But the short time between the proclamation of the holiday on July 28 and the date of the holiday itself has left Hallmark unable to produce a full line of cards for the occasion, spokesman Fred Bokun said.

According to Bokun, Hallmark usually needs 18 months to design, print and ship greeting cards, and a full line totals as many as 800 separate items. But because the time lag was so short this year, Hallmark is only producing a line of 30 cards.

Still, "we know there's a huge volume of cards sent to grandparents on Mother's Day and Father's Day," said Bokun. "There's a market out there for remembering grandparents."

Two Rape Cases Enliven Feminism In Mexico

By JULIA PRESTON
 (c) 1978 Pacific News Service
MEXICO CITY — Two recent rape cases in Mexico City have revitalized a floundering women's movement and generated a new and unexpected concern among justice officials about sexual violence against women in this country.

Last December 28, a drunken acquaintance of Cecilia Gonzalez, a 22-year-old university student, broke into her apartment and threatened at knife-point to rape her. She pulled a pistol, and in the ensuing struggle, the gun fired and killed the man.

The case attracted the attention of about 15 feminists, who set up a 24-hour watch at the jail where Gonzalez was in custody and proclaimed that the issue at stake was a woman's right to defend her sexuality. In a matter of days, six feminist groups previously divided by political differences, had formed the Coalition of Women and attracted further support from labor and political groups.

About a week later, the judge, accepting the defense argument that the man's movements set off the gun, granted Gonzalez "unconditional liberty." His ruling that Gonzalez acted within her rights to defend her "sexual liberty" against violent attack is considered by feminists to be an important advance in a country where machismo is considered a proud expression of a man's national identity.

The coalition believes that their estimate of an average of 80,000 rapes each year in recent years is increasing. In June 1977, Guadalupe Sanchez de Moreno, a 32-year-old primary school teacher, was forced into a car by three drunken men on the National University campus. One raped her while the others held her down, breaking her arm.

They were interrupted by university nightwatchmen. The three identified themselves to police as "porros," student strongmen who are retained and protected by the political interests within the university faculty and administration and sometimes the police.

The presence and publicity provided later in the case by the coalition was as significant for the judge as the victim. Federal District Criminal Court Judge Rosalinda Serrano de Carreras said that during the course of the case, investigating agents admitted testimony from false witnesses and withheld medical evidence. The nightwatchmen contradicted their original testimony. And two brothers of one of the accused, claiming to be police agents, barged into the judge's chambers and threatened her.

The coalition not only gave its support for Sanchez, but also for the judge. After decreeing sentence of nine years or more imprisonment for each of the three men, Judge Serrano said, "This is the first time in my professional career when I did not feel completely alone in trying to ensure sexual self-determination for Mexican women." After the sentencing, she continued to receive threats.

Mexican law does not provide for damages for rape. Though Sanchez reported memory lapses and other psychological and physical disorders, she was awarded only $9 in damages for loss of personal property. To publicize the need for fairer laws and consistent prosecution, she agreed to describe her case — the first Mexican woman to do so — on a national television news program.

The following day, the federal district attorney for Mexico City, Augustin Alanis, bowed to the pressure of the coalition for improved handling of rape cases and ordered "discreet and careful" treatment by trained professionals for rape victims. Thorough investigation and vigorous prosecution of sexual crimes and the suspension of bail for men convicted of rape. He also announced his intention to promote revisions in the existing laws, including stiffer sentences, and he invited the coalition to present proposals. Now his office has begun to direct rape victims to the coalition for counseling.

The Coalition of Women and its support groups encompass a relatively small number of women, but their beliefs span those of non-feminist leftists to moderate, radical, socialist and lesbian feminists. Amidst this diversity, however, there is agreement that the Gonzalez and Sanchez cases opened a new stage in the life of the movement.

"It's not the same to be a feminist in theory as it is to begin to live through all the dirt that is done to women," said Esperanza Brito of the National Women's Movement. "The movement has been humanized, and suddenly we have learned to respect each other's differences. We can see that though there are still few of us, together we get things done."

This was not always so. Feminism in Mexico began to stir in 1971, but it wasn't until 1976 — the year the International Women's Conference was held in Mexico City — that a first coalition was formed to promote freedom of choice in having abortions. Relations among those in that coalition, however, were not always amicable. It took the two rape cases and a tide of complaints for the new coalition to form with reordered priorities.

"We have come to feel that in Mexico it will be difficult to turn women out in the street to demand free and legal abortion," said Susan Vidales of the socialist Women's Collective. "But rape and woman battering are issues Mexican women feel, and we can talk about them anywhere. So we've opted to push all three to once."

"Great Fight" Fizzles Into Insult Match

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Instead of giving him a right to the jaw, housing activist Milton Street called City Councilman Francis Rafferty a "pistol-packing knucklehead." Rafferty counterpunched with "communist" and "rabble-rouser."

They said it live on WWDB-FM radio during Wednesday night's "Great Debate."

The debate replaced the "Great Fight" that never was fought. The two men had agreed last week to duke it out at the Spectrum, but state boxing authorities nixed the bout.

Nevertheless, four plainclothes policemen were on hand at the debate in case of trouble.

Rafferty backs the change: Street doesn't. On the air, Street called Rafferty "a puppet" of Rizzo and jabbed at what he called Rizzo's "white rights campaign" and "racist administration."

Rafferty said Street was "a Frankenstein monster created by the press. I don't intend to get into a shouting match with this plastic man," he said.

Down in Grays Ferry at Bill's Bar, Rafferty's favorite watering hole, the attraction was Boston versus the Yankees on TV.

Was baseball actually pre-empting the "Great Debate" in Rafferty's own bailiwick?

"Nah," said the bartender, nodding toward the row of empty stools. "The debate has pre-empted us. Everybody's home listening to their radios."

Giuseppe Garibaldi, Italian patriot, liberator and guerilla leader, was condemned to death in 1834 — but the sentence was never carried out.

Watson Charges; Nicklaus Misses Cut

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Tom Watson, solving his problems with what he called "a golden putter," put on a closing burst for a 69 and stretched his lead to 4 strokes Friday in the second round of the 60th PGA National Championship while Jack Nicklaus, almost incredibly, missed the cut.

"Everything seems to be rolling my way on these greens right now," said Watson, who used only four putts on his last five holes and played them 3-under par.

But the red-haired 28-year-old, who last season challenged Nicklaus for world supremacy, was far from over-confident and actually less than pleased with his play going into the last two rounds of the final major championship of the season.

"It was one of those rounds when I didn't hit the ball very well at all but got out of it with a good score," he said. "I've got to improve the way I'm hitting the ball if I'm going to have a chance to win the golf tournament."

"It was just one of those days when nothing went wrong."

For Nicklaus, however, practically nothing went right. The game's greatest player, winner of the British Open and Philadelphia Classic in his last two starts and solid favorite to win a record-matching fifth PGA title this week, failed to qualify for the final two rounds. He shot a fat 79 in the first round and followed with a 74.

It was only the fourth time in 68 major events as a pro he'd missed the cut and the first time in one of the Big Four events since he failed to make it in the 1968 PGA championship at Pecan Valley in San Antonio.

His round was a catalogue of woes. He reeled off three quick birdies and seemed primed to shoot the 66 he said he needed.

Then it all went wrong. Everything.

He played the three par-5 holes 5-6-7. He missed the green and then three-putted for a double-bogey 6 on the 15th. He hit his second shot in a gallery stand on the 18th, took four to get on and again double-bogeyed.

"I wasn't really concerned about making the cut. I was trying to get back in the golf tournament," Nicklaus said. "The thing that took the wind out of my sails was the 7 on No. 12."

His second shot on the par-5 kicked into a bunker. His third was short. He was on in four and three-putted.

"After that it was all over," he said. Watson, although apparently in solid command, said he needs improvement if he hopes to acquire his fourth major title.

"Obviously, my putter was my major weapon today. Just as obviously, I must play better the next two days to have a chance to win the tournament. I can't continue to hit the ball the way I am and continue to score the way I am."

BUNKER BATTLE — Tom Watson stands behind a bunker along the 11th fairway as he attempts a shot during the second round of the PGA tournament in Oakmont, Pa. Watson began Friday's round four-under-par. With a six-under-par score for 36 holes, Watson holds the lead, heading into the third round. (AP Laserphoto)

"Realistically, I know I have to improve the way I'm hitting the ball," said Watson, a three-time winner this year, and went to the practice tee to work on his swing "until I get it right."

He had a 36-hole total of 136, 6 shots under the demanding par on the famed, 8,000-yard Oakmont Country Club layout, the hilly, undulating site of more major championships than any other American course.

Tom Weiskopf, the deeply talented but often temperamental man, found his interest piqued by the demands of the course still wet and heavy from rains that twice interrupted Thursday's play. He responded with seven birdies and a 67 that put him in a tie for second at 140.

"Sometimes I get bored by the sameness of the holes on a course," Weiskopf said. "But not here. This course puts a premium on every club in the bag. It keeps your interest. It protects the good player."

Tied with him were Joe Inman, the jittery guy who has the disconcerting habit of repeatedly squeezing the club with the motion of a man milking a cow, and Ben Crenshaw, so often a challenger in the major championships but not yet the winner of a big title he needs to confirm his stature in the game.

Inman shot a 68 in the almost ideal playing conditions — mild, almost windless weather with the greens rain-softened and holding — and Crenshaw matched par 71 with four bogeys and as many birdies. "That's about the best I could have scored today," Crenshaw said, then took a look at Watson's score.

Local Duo Nabs Par-Buster Lead

By SCOTT SUDDUTH

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
After braving a northeast wind for most of the afternoon, Gordon Butler said he was going to get rub down for his ailing back Friday night.

Butler wanted to relax after combining with Randy Hines, winner of the Lubbock Country Club club championship earlier this summer, to grab the first-round lead in the Par-Buster Partnership at Lubbock Country Club. So maybe Butler can afford to relax some—but not much—since 36 holes remain to be played in the three-day tourney.

Playing under threatening clouds, Butler and Hines stormed across the course for a first-round 64, 8 strokes under par.

"There was a northeast wind blowing in on the front nine holes that made them awful tough to play," said Butler.

However, the duo managed two birdies on the first nine holes to head out of the wind and onto the shorter back nine at 2-under.

The back nine are easier to play, especially when you get out of that wind," remarked Butler. "With Randy hitting well in the fairway and my putts falling, we started playing some pretty good golf."

The duo took advantage of the shelter of trees on the back nine to card 4 birdies and one eagle. Butler sank a 35-foot putt on the par-5 13th green for the eagle.

The duo finished two strokes ahead of second place finishers Jake Broyles and Jess Claiborne, who came with a six-under-par 66.

Although the chilly, windy and cloudy day intimidated many golfers, below-par rounds were not unusual. And according to Butler, the sub-par rounds may continue.

"I think a 14-15 stroke under par tota may win the tourney," he said.

Defending champs Kent Hale and Jesse Blackwelder hope Butler's prediction is wrong as duo finished the first-round well back of the leaders with a two-over par 74.

A men's store that sells $600 suits has unparalleled standards it must judge things by.

At Malouf's, we don't feel a lesser price is any excuse to lower those standards.

C.J., Dorsett Matchup Doubtful

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers open their exhibition seasons at Texas Stadium tonight, and the anticipated battle between Heisman Trophy winners Tony Dorsett and C.J. Simpson apparently will not take place.

Dorsett, despite a slight knee bruise suffered early in the week, is expected to see at least a little action in the game, but Simpson probably will not play at all.

"I don't think I'll play," Simpson said earlier in the week. "Considering the amount of work I've done, if I played, I don't think there is much I could do at all. And I honestly can't recall the last time I played in the first pre-season game."

"Right now, I'm trying to build up my strength. I'm running. I'm going through a weight training program. It isn't right for people to say 'slowly.' For me, all I have to do is get strong and feel fast. Once that's done, I'm ready."

Simpson underwent knee surgery during the off-season, during which he was traded from Buffalo to San Francisco for five draft picks.

In addition to the two Heisman Trophy running backs, both teams will field Heisman Trophy winning quarterbacks — Roger Staubach for the Cowboys and Jim Plunkett for San Francisco.

Those two hooked up in a passing battle last year which ended in the highest scoring regular season NFL game of 1977 — a game eventually won by Dallas, 42-35.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who guided the Cowboys to their second Super Bowl victory last season, has been pleased with the work of his defensive unit during workouts, but he feels the offense has a way to go.

"We're not doing enough things well," said Landry. "But I have confidence we will. Dorsett (who has been bothered by a slight knee bruise) needs to be grooved into the blocking patterns, but he has looked good and I expect him to have a good year."

Walton Leaving Portland Team

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Center Bill Walton, the National Basketball Association's most valuable player, is leaving the Portland Trail Blazers whom he led to the 1977 national championships, Walton and the team said Friday.

But neither Walton nor the Blazers said why he was leaving. "The Portland Trail Blazers announced today that Bill Walton has asked to be traded prior to the 1978-79 season and the club has informed him it will attempt to abide by his request," was the terse announcement from the club.

"This was the most difficult decision I've ever had to make regarding my basketball career," Walton said in a prepared statement issued through Jack Scott, a friend and adviser who just completed a book on the Blazers.

Walton, as is usually the case, could not be located. Scott said Walton and his family had gone "to the country."

"The tremendous loyalty and support of my teammates and Trail Blazer fans have made the decision that much tougher," Walton's statement said.

"My only hope is that when I return as an opponent and a visitor that Trail Blazer boosters will treat me with the same respect and love as they always have."

Sources say seven clubs are in the running to obtain the services of the 6-foot-11 center, the NBA's Most Valuable Player last season. They are New York, Los Angeles, Denver, Golden State, Philadelphia, San Diego and Boston.

Scott said no decision had been made on which team would get the 6-foot-11 bearded redhead.

Walton, 25, has been troubled by a foot injury suffered late last season. He missed nearly all games in the playoffs, where Portland was eliminated by the Seattle SuperSonics in the second round after the Blazers had drawn a bye through the first round.

Scott said Walton had consulted with physicians not connected with the Blazers and they concurred that the injury was healing normally. P. Walton is from the San Diego suburb of La Mesa, Calif., and has in the past expressed a desire to move to a sunny climate. He seemed happy with Portland, however, after taking the club to the NBA title in 1977.

"Obviously, San Diego is his home town and we'd love to have him," said Irv Levin, owner of the new San Diego team.

"He's obviously a hell of a ballplayer," said vice president Irv Kaze of the San Diego team. "Who wouldn't like to have a guy like that? But that doesn't mean we got him."

The San Diego team was moved from Buffalo after the season and will be coached by Gene Shue, who guided the Philadelphia 76ers, the team Portland beat for the NBA title in 1977.

The Denver nuggets said they aren't interested. In a prepared statement President-General Manager said the team has "no interest" in Walton. "We have not had any contact with Walton or any representative of his," Scheer said. "No interest—period—none."

In New York, things were different. "If it's true and he's available, then naturally we're interested," said Knicks general manager Eddie Donovan.

Bob Bester, public relations director for Golden State Warriors, said, "We have heard the same thing — that he wants to be traded and has specified seven teams and we are one of them. We haven't even had a chance to evaluate that. We certainly are not negotiating with Bill Walton — that would be tampering."

Asked if Walton had contacted the Warriors, Bester said, "I would not want to go beyond what I just said."

Walton, a three-time All-American from UCLA, was the first player chosen in the 1974 college draft and was expected to bring instant success to the Trail Blazers.

Teaff Reserves Arkansas Stand

DALLAS (AP)—Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said Friday he hopes Arkansas never leaves the Southwest Conference, but added Oklahoma would make a good addition if the Razorbacks do pull out.

"I hope Arkansas stays in the conference forever, and I don't expect them to leave," said Teaff shortly before an SWC kickoff football luncheon. "I have a great relationship with the people of Arkansas. Frank Broyles (now Arkansas athletic director) was my boyhood idol and (head coach) Lou Holtz is a great friend."

"But if they do leave Oklahoma would be a great boon. We have to look at it from the standpoint of what can that team do for the conference. Oklahoma could do a lot with its record and football program."

Teaff said recently in Houston he was "sick and tired" of hearing about Arkansas' problems and the possibility the Razorbacks might leave the conference for the Big Eight Conference.

Teaff said "My feeling is, if they want out, don't let the door hit them in the rear on the way out."

He said he had received some Arkansas mail since that statement.

"Some people were irate which I guess you might expect and some had some sound statements trying to explain Arkansas' position," said Teaff. "I really hope Arkansas never leaves the conference."

Teaff said if Arkansas leaves the conference there should be a thorough evaluation before any other team gets an invite.

"It's too big now...I'd like to have four non-conference games," said Teaff. "We should also examine the credentials of schools like North Texas before we make a decision — based, of course, on Arkansas' pulling out. I don't think they will."

Holtz arrived late at the luncheon but performed his usual magic acts to dazzle the sellout crowd.

"I have to be extremely careful that my mouth doesn't write my checks my teeth can't cash," quipped Holtz.

Holtz said, "It's a great conference and we're happy to be in it. And nobody has more respect for Grant Teaff than I do."

Arkansas was picked by a majority of the coaches as the preseason favorite.

"Arkansas will have a dynamite team," said Southern Methodist Coach Ron Meyer. "I'd pick 'em but I can also see a tremendous run by Texas A.M. Houston and Texas."

Meyer then said, "By the way, Lou, we brought you a leftover bag of oranges from our last game in Fayetteville. We hope to be in the position some day where we can return the favor."

Wilkinson Ready For Pro Grid Debut

MIAMI (AP) — Bud Wilkinson will make his National Football League coaching debut and rookie quarterback Guy Benjamin will get his first start when the St. Louis Cardinals play an exhibition game tonight against the Miami Dolphins in the Orange Bowl.

Wilkinson, college football's most successful coach during 17 seasons at Oklahoma, will be coaching his first game since he resigned in 1963 in an unsuccessful bid for a U.S. Senate seat.

Dolphin Coach Don Shula, who began his NFL coaching career with the Baltimore Colts in 1963 — Wilkinson's last season, said he will start Benjamin "to see what he can do."

Benjamin, the Dolphins' first draft choice this year, got off to an inauspicious start in the Dolphins' 17-3 exhibition loss last week to the Philadelphia Eagles at Canton, Ohio.

He threw six touchdown passes when the Dolphins massaced St. Louis, 55-14, last Thanksgiving.

Unser Plans Return To Texas Speedway

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Al Unser, the Indianapolis 500 Champion and No. 2 in United States Auto Club points, takes on the Texas World Speedway again today—a place where he had a close brush with death in April.

Qualifying for Sunday's 200-mile Texas Grand Prix was scheduled for Saturday over the concrete oval where Danny Ongais was triumphant April 15 in a tuneup race for the Indy 500.

Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., the eventual Indy winner, wasn't so fortunate. He was forced into a wall during qualifying and couldn't race the next day.

However, he won his third Indy 500 several weeks later.

Unser has won $397,000 but his 2,420 points trail USAC leader Sneva's 2,673.

The winner here earns 400 points.

Ongais clocked 211 miles an hour in qualifying last April here and speeds are expected to reach at least 160 miles an hour in a Mini Indy event before the Grand Prix. The cars have Volkswagen Rabbit engines.

Speedway officials said the Top Ten money winners in USAC will be on hand, including local hero A. J. Foyt, four-time Indy 500 winner, who is from Houston.

There are expected to be 22 Indy cars in qualifying.

Ongais has won $119,068 this year and always races well on the giant World Speedway oval.

There will be a lot of interest in the Mini Indy event when Nancy James, a 34-year-old mother of two from Fremont, Calif., tries to become the first woman to win at the speedway.

It will be her first race in a rear-engine car on an oval speedway. She has been a road course driver for four years.

The Indy cars will practice today and qualify on Sunday morning at 11 a.m.

The Mini Indy cars race on Sunday at 1 p.m. followed by the Texas Grand Prix at 3:15 p.m.

Entering the game in the third quarter, Benjamin completed only five of 13 passes and threw an interception. The Stanford rookie figures to play third-string behind veterans Bob Griese and Don Strock this year.

Shula said Griese probably will see very limited action, which no doubt comes as a relief to the Cardinal secondary. Griese

Rangers Halt Five-Game Skid, Win 8-0

By The Associated Press
Al Oliver drove in three runs, two in a six-run Texas second inning, and Ferguson Jenkins tossed an eight-hitter as the Rangers snapped a five-game losing streak with an 8-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Jenkins, 10-7, struck out eight to pass Tim Lincecum on the 11th place on the all-time strikeout list. Jenkins now has 2,545 strikeouts.

The Rangers chased Rick Wise, 8-14, in the second inning. Oliver and Kurt Bevacqua each delivered two-run singles in the six-run outburst.

Cleveland's big est threat came in the seventh when Tom Verzerer singled and Duane Kuiper doubled with no outs. Jenkins then preserved his shutout with two strikeouts and groundout.

PADRES 3, REDS 2

Cincinnati reliever Doug Bair threw wild past first base, allowing Gene Tenace to score from second with two outs in the eighth inning, and the San Diego Padres won their 10th straight game with a 3-2 decision over the Reds.

Bair, 4-4, who had just reliever starter Paul Moskau, walked Tenace with two outs, then hurried his throw after Broderick Perkins topped a roller left of the mound.

Little Shares Tourney Lead

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Vivian Brownlee, after an agonizing four-hour wait Friday, found herself sharing the lead with Sally Little of South Africa at the midway mark of the European Women's Golf championship on Sunningdale's 6,174-yard, par-74 course.

Brownlee, who has only won one major tournament in three years as a professional and who stands 35th on the U.S. money list, started the day 3 under par, at one time looked to be a conclusive leader at 7 under, then collected three bogeys in a row to finish the 36 holes at 143.5 under par.

Little, starting four hours after Brownlee, was the first-round leader with a 5-under-par 69. She improved on that by a stroke until the last hole, when she bogeyed to finish level with Brownlee at 143.

Behind them was Nancy Lopez, the 21-year-old golfing sensation from New Mexico, who turned in a 71, the best round of the day, to pick up three strokes and jump into second place with a 4-under-par 144.

The day, which started so happily for Florida-based Brownlee, turned sour four holes from the end. At that point, putting like a dream, she had picked up four birdies to go 7 under. Then the strain got her.

"I tried for more birdies and it backfired on me," she said.

On the 15th, a 210-yard par-3, she hooked into a bunker from the tee. On the 16th, a par-5, she took four to get on the green and two putted. And on the 17th, she was bunkered again and missed from five feet.

Those three bogeys brought her down to 4 under. Then she collected herself and sank a 10-footer for a birdie on the 18th and went into the clubhouse 5 under to wait for Little, a late starter.

Little began with a bogey, got that back with a second-hole birdie, then settled into a groove of seven pars.

She went birdie, bogey, birdie on the first three holes coming home to go 6 under and with five more pars she came to the 18th a stroke ahead of Brownlee.

But there her drive strayed to the right, her second landed in a bunker by the side of the green, and although she chipped out to within nine feet, her first putt lipped the cup and left her with a bogey in a par round of 74.

Lopez, who started 1 under par, had only three birdies in her solid round but they brought her to within firing distance of the two leaders.

They came on the ninth, when she reached the green from the tee and was down in three; on the par-5 12th when her second landed 10 feet from the pin and she just missed an eagle, and on the 16th, another par-5, where she recovered from a bunker and put a 4-iron only four feet from the pin.

"I was very pleased. I was sinking my long putts and I reckon I have recovered all my confidence," said Lopez afterwards.

St. Louis Remains Mystery

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals Manager Ken Boyer, when asked how he has kept from losing his sanity, smiled wilyly and replied, "Who says I have?"

The 47-year-old Boyer, named the National League club's pilot in April to succeed Vern Rapp, continues to ride a bumpy course as his team limps toward its worst campaign in 65 years.

With a third of the season to go, the legitimacy of St. Louis' 40-67 record is underscored by an offense manufacturing an average of 3.3 runs a game.

Switch-hitting Ted Simmons, the club's All-Star catcher, has a .299 batting average to go with 15 home runs and 52 RBI. But behind him, the performances are subpar.

Shortstop Garry Templeton has climbed to 275 on the strength of a 13-game streak. The others are George Hendrick (.280), Keith Hernandez (.255), Mike Tyson (.246), Ken Reitz (.237), Jerry Morales (.235) and Jerry Mumphrey (.232).

In 54 of their 107 games — 45 of them defeats — the Cards have failed to score as many as three runs. Thirty-six of the club's contests have been decided by a one-run margin. And of those, St. Louis has won only 11.

Boyer cites an absence of power which has plagued his team annually and also recognizes the pressures which accompany the Cards' plight.

"People don't realize what it's like," he says. "It's an emotional drain on the players, off the field and on. Sometimes you can tell it by the way things happen. It's an intangible, but it's there."

Although betrayed by lack of support, the St. Louis pitching staff has maintained respectability in the form of 11 shutout triumphs and 25 complete games.

Right-hander Pete Vuckovich is 8-9, but until his last two starts was the NL's earned run average pacesetter. And another right-hander, reliever Mark Littell, boasts 101 strikeouts in 77-3 innings and a 2.20 ERA despite his 1-7 ledger.

Maintaining an uneasy vigil over the Cards' most recent skid, a 2-9 trip to the West Coast and Chicago, was General Manager Bing Devine.

"In this day and age, it's difficult to change the whole structure of a ballclub," says Devine. "When teams have a winning season, it's often the case of all their players having good years at the same time. I often wondered what it'd be like the other way around. Now I know."

St. Louis, the worst team in the NL and third-worst in the majors, returned home Friday to start a seven-game home stand with a .374 winning percentage.

At the season's outset, the strains of a song entitled "We Can Do It" rang out over Busch Stadium prior to each time the hapless team took the field.

The music has stopped, but the words may have been prophetic — if in reverse. With 55 games left, the Cardinals have a chance to lose 100 games. If they do, it will be the first time they have accomplished the dubious feat since 1908.

The club with the lowest attendance during the 1977-78 NBA season was the New Jersey Nets with a turnout total of 199,090.

THINKING ABOUT IT — Sally Little, South African born, but now a resident in Texas, takes time to think about the second round of the Colgate European LPGA Championship, prior to the start of the second 18 holes. She finished Thursday's round in first place with a 67, but slipped into a tie Friday after firing a 69. (AP Wirephoto)

Chicago Streaking, Not Swinging Now

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, whose home run power in the "friendly confines" of Wrigley Field was once legendary, are trying to steal the National League East title with speed, defense and pitching.

No longer blessed with sluggers like Ernie Banks, Hank Sauer and Bill Nicholson, whose sweeping swings propelled shots over the short porches, the fans are now cheering the likes of Ivan DeJesus, Manny Trillo, Rodney Scott and Jerry White.

A walk or a single almost instantly finds the runner stealing second these days, waiting to be driven in with still another single. Home runs are a rarity.

Going into Friday's game with Montreal, the Cubs had but 45 home runs as against 67 stolen bases, many of which have come from DeJesus and Scott since the All-Star break.

Despite the lack of power, the Cubs found themselves only 3½ games behind the Philadelphia Phillies after sweeping a mid-week series from the St. Louis Cardinals.

Ironically, General Manager Bob Kennedy and Manager Herman Franks had planned things differently. They checked last year's figures and thought they had sufficient lefthanded power with Bobby Murcer hitting 27 homers, Larry Bittner 12, Bill Buckner 11 and Steve Ontiveros 10—eight from the left side.

Jerry Morales with 11 homers was the only right-handed batter in double figures, so the Cubs went all out to sign free agent Dave Kingman, who they figured was good for at least 40 homers in the "friendly confines."

Kingman came through but, alas, he went on the disabled list last month with a pulled hamstring after providing 16 home runs. Murcer has only six this year, Bittner three and Buckner one.

Ontiveros hit one and is out for the rest of the season and Morales has been traded.

So what keeps the Cubs in the running? Speed, defense and pitching.

"You make do with what you've got," said Franks, refusing to admit which players have the green light to steal on their own. "Because if they fail, I want to take the blame."

DeJesus at short and Trillo at second make one of the best doubleplay combos in the league and White, when healthy, is as good a center fielder defensively as the Cubs have had in a long time.

The key to the Cubs' success, aside from defending champion Philadelphia's inability to pull away as expected, is pitching. Even though ace Rick Reuschel is finally getting over a case of tendonitis, Rookie Dennis Lamp, who had pitched well but had trouble winning, has cashed in three victories in a row and Mike Kruczkow is 5-0 since returning from the minors.

Bruce Sutter remains one of the premier relief pitchers in the game with a 7-3 record, 19 saves and a 1.72 earned run average.

Donnie Moore, Ray Burris and Lynn McGlothen are handling the middle-inning relief chores well.

It isn't likely the Cubs can seriously make a run at the title with their Punch-and-Judy act. But now that everything else has fallen into place, they are hoping the reinstated Kingman can come back with a spurge of power which could give the entire team a needed lift on offense.

Oilers, Big Earl Open Season

HOUSTON (AP) — Amidst the background of Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell's professional debut, the Houston Oilers and Denver Broncos will open their National Football League preseason schedules tonight in the Astrodome.

Kickoff is at 8 p.m. CDT.

Campbell was busy leading the nation in rushing for the Texas Longhorns last December when these two teams met in an emotional Astrodome showdown. Denver won the game 24-14 to clinch its first playoff spot ever and the loss eliminated the Oilers from any playoff hopes.

The Oilers won five of their last seven games, losing only to Denver and Oakland, to finish with an 8-6 record, while the Broncos went all the way to the Super Bowl before losing to the Dallas Cowboys. Both teams feel they have a solid chance to make the playoffs this season.

Campbell, whose training camp introduction to the pros has been low-key, likely will see plenty of action in the game but second-year running back Tim Wilson will start the game.

Oilers Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips says he will take a good look at all of the players in camp, including Campbell and quarterback draftee Gifford Nielsen and former Texas Tech quarterback Tommy Duniven.

Both quarterbacks are battling for the No. 2 position behind starter Dan Pastorini.

The NFL's top kick return specialists will be dueling in the game if Houston's Billy "White Shoes" Johnson was around to battle with the Broncos' Rick Upchurch.

Johnson has refused to report to camp because of a contract dispute and is being fined $500 daily by Phillips.

Meanwhile, running back Ronnie Coleman will fill in as a kick returner for Johnson.

"Ronnie is so versatile," Phillips said. "You can put him anywhere and he won't embarrass you."

As for suggestions about Campbell's inexperience in the pros, Phillips said, "He hasn't played in this league yet, but he's sure as hell played."

The Broncos will be without running back Otis Armstrong, who is suffering from a hamstring injury.

High School Students Get Taste Of Science Field

CLAREMONT, Calif. (AP) — Loretta Neal of Pomona spent her summer vacation doing brain research. Jaime Aguilera kept busy with an experimental diet for rats destined to fly in the space shuttle.

The two 17-year-olds were among 14 Southern California high school students — all from low-income families — working this summer with scientists at NASA's Ames Research Center at Mountain View. Their unusual summer jobs ended Friday.

Octavio Boubion, director of the Upward Bound program administered by Harvey Mudd College of Claremont, Calif., and funded by a $211,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Education, said: "These kids come out of the ghettos and the barrios. A lot of times they don't really know there's a world out there."

"I like it," said Aguilera, a Pomona student who hopes to become a physicist. "I like to do experiments — it's amazing to find things out."

Miss Neal, who said she helped Ames scientists remove the brains of laboratory animals and prepare specimens for study, hopes to become a neurosurgeon. "It's much more interesting than I thought it would be," she said. "We can observe almost every structure of the brain."

The students at Ames were paid the minimum wage and worked directly with government scientists. They lived in dormitories at San Jose State University.

Phil McCartney, one of the program's four supervisor-teachers, said the students spent half of each day on their projects, then attended classes in basic skills like mathematics and English. He said the group often took field trips to colleges, research centers, museums and concerts around the San Francisco Bay area.

Estrella Renteria, a high school senior from El Monte who also worked on a diet for space rats, had worried that "I wouldn't be able to learn everything. But my supervisor really took a lot of time to explain things ... without all those big technical terms. I really want to get into the science field."

Boubion said while most of about 500 Upward Bound programs nationwide concentrate on classroom work to improve basic skills, "we try to stimulate them scientifically. The jobs complement the classrooms and vice versa."

"Usually, when high school kids are in a situation like this they end up sweeping the floor or something like that," Boubion added. "But our kids are actually doing research."

Robert Esqueda of El Monte joined a group of scientists "searching for new concepts of (cockpit) instrumentation for general aviation in the 1980s and beyond."

The project involves computers connected with the plane's instruments, and Esqueda said: "We all do our part and try different things. I write (computer) programs and stick them in there and see if they work."

He said he's been fascinated by computers for years "but I never had the chance to work with a computer before."

Now I've gotten a taste of what I might be doing in the future. I like it."

Cowboys' Games Shown Locally

The NFL pre-season schedule begins today, with the Dallas Cowboys meeting San Francisco on home turf. This game will be taped and aired on a delayed basis at 10:30 p.m. Sunday on KLBK-TV, Channel 13, Lubbock.

Three additional pre-season Cowboy games will be carried by Channel 13, one live through CBS, the other two taped on Saturday and shown Sunday nights.

The second game, which is to be carried live, will air at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 12, when the Cowboys travel to Denver, Colo., where they will participate in a rematch of Super Bowl XII, at Mile High Stadium.

The other two pre-season Cowboy games to be carried by Channel 13, on a delayed basis, will be Houston at Dallas, to be aired at 10:30 p.m. August 20, and at the same hour August 27, with the Cowboys hosting Pittsburgh.

Foul Play Full Of Holes, Laughs, Goose Bumps

FILMETER is compiled by Dick Kleiner in Hollywood and the N.E.A. staff in both Hollywood and New York.

NEW RELEASES

FOUL PLAY (PG) — Goldie Hawn, Chevy Chase. Comedy-thriller. The plot has more holes than an old Swiss cheese, but who cares? It's fun and scary to watch poor Goldie, the innocent, get involved with assassins and dwarfs and albinos and snakes and all kinds of strange goings-on. It's all very slick, with some laughs and some shrieks. GRADE: B-plus.

GENERAL RELEASE

BUDDY HOLLY STORY, THE (PG) — Gary Busey, Don Stroud, Charlie Martin Smith. Biographical drama. When Buddy Holly died at age of 22 in a plane crash he was already a rock 'n' roll legend. Now, nearly 20 years later, Gary Busey brings Holly alive again in a touching, funny film that shows the life behind the legend. GRADE: A-minus. (Drake)
CAPRICORN ONE (PG) — James Brolin, Hal Holbrook, Brenda Vaccaro. Action-adventure. Plenty of action here, and something to think about, too. This suggests that the space program takes a Mars landing — the astronauts are really in a Martian mock-up on Earth — and builds a great chase and survival thriller from that. GRADE: B-plus (and counting).

CHEAP DETECTIVE, THE (PG) — Peter Falk, Ann-Margret and a cast of dozens. Comedy-Mystery. This is Neil Simon's follow-up to "Murder by Death." It's a spoof of all those old Bogart movies. Most of it works, some of it doesn't, but you'll smile most of the way. The plot has more twists than a roomful of disco dancers, but don't worry about it. Just enjoy the gags and funny situations. GRADE: B-plus.

DAMIEN OMEN II (R) — William Holden, Lee Grant. Thriller. Sequels seldom live up to the original, but this one is even worse than usual. Where the first "O-men" was scary, this one is ludicrous. The boy — the devil's son — is now in military school and everybody who ferrets out his secret dies in a gruesome way. Caution: There are grisly scenes, but the rest of it is more funny than frightening. GRADE: D.

DIFFERENT STORY, A (R) — Perry King, Meg Foster. Romance. Boy meets girl with a twist — they're both homosexuals. Soon they need each other and they "go straight" over a lopsided birthday cake. That's when the film falls flatter than the cake. Overall effect is amateurish and superficial, but the film has its comic and touching moments. Caution: Some nudity, strong language. GRADE: B-minus. (O'Brien)

F.I.S.T. (PG) — Sylvester Stallone, Rod Steiger. Drama. Basically this is the story of the rise and fall of a Hoffa-like labor leader. The early part — dealing with his start and the problems in organizing the men — is more fascinating than the second half. It's far too long, but contains some very strong scenes. GRADE: A.

GREASE (PG) — John Travolta, Olivia Newton-John. Musical. Not much plot, but plenty of fun, energy and music. Travolta can't sing, but who cares — he's a star. Slow direction stalls some of the musical numbers, but overall this has a very enjoyable quality, and it builds up to a great musical climax. It's all fine summer fluff. GRADE: B-plus.

HEAVEN CAN WAIT (PG) — Warren Beatty, Julie Christie, Dyan Cannon, Charles Grodin. Comedy. A cheerful, gentle fantasy about a Heavenly mistake concerning the death of a pro football player. So he gets another chance — and another body. This time he's a tycoon, but he still wants to be a quarterback. Even the heavies are lovable in this upbeat film. GRADE: B-plus.

INTERNATIONAL VELVET (PG) — Tatum O'Neal, Christopher Plummer, Nanette Newman, Anthony Hopkins. Drama. Frankly sentimental, this belated sequel to "National Velvet" has Velvet, now 40-ish, adopting her orphaned niece and overseeing her desire to be an Olympic equestrienne. Fine for family viewing, but tending to be a bit over-sweet. GRADE: B.

JAWS 2 (PG) — Roy Scheider. Action-thriller. Here we go again, but this time it misses the mark. The story is poor, the direction is weak, the shark looks fishy. Some moments of excitement but generally pretty dull. Compared to the first one, this sequel is strictly a sinker.

GRADE: C.
OUR WINNING SEASON (PG) — Scott Jacoby. Comedy-drama. Another "A-merican Graffiti" copy, this film about high school kids growing up in the '60s starts slowly but manages to find itself in the last reel. Mostly it's about a young track star trying to find himself. The beginning is so cliché-ridden it's embarrassing, but the last part is OK.

GRADE: C.
PRETTY BABY (R) — Keith Carradine, Susan Sarandon, Brooke Shields. Drama. Set in New Orleans' famous Storyville brothel area, this is a beautifully photographed look at a family of prostitutes. The subject matter may be objectionable, but director Louis Malle has handled it tastefully, or as tastefully as possible. Good performances all around.

GRADE: B-plus.
REVENGE OF THE PINK PANTHER (PG) — Peter Sellers, Dyan Cannon, Herbert Lom. Comedy. The old Pink Panther is turning a bit green with over-ripeness. This, the fifth in the series, has more plot than its predecessors, but the gags are less inventive, more repetitive. Still, you know what you are getting when you buy a ticket. GRADE: C-plus.

SWARM, THE (PG) — Michael Caine, Richard Widmark, Katherine Ross and all-star cast. Disaster. Producer-director Irwin Allen, the father of the disaster movie, has been a busy bee on this one, but it's overlong and sometimes downright laughable. The swarms of killer bees have their moments of frightening — or disgusting — us, but the dialogue is dumb. GRADE: D.

Senate Puts Cost Ceiling on Building

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate put a $135 million ceiling Friday on the cost of a new Senate office building that opponents say would be a senatorial palace with its gymnasium, indoor tennis court and marble-lined atrium.

The concession still guaranteed that the Senate office building, named after the late Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., will be the most expensive federal building in history.

Costs of the building have soared from a $48 million estimate in 1974 to a point where cost overruns could reach as high as $200 million, senators critical of the project said in debate.

But the building's defenders said the space it will provide is needed to alleviate overcrowded conditions in the two existing Senate office buildings.

"To stop a building with six feet of steel out of the ground would be the most laughable thing we could do," said Sen. Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky.

The project was denounced as "a farce," "a marble mausoleum," an "extreme boondoggle," "a galling symbol of congressional arrogance," and as "a monument to the waste and extravagance of the United States Senate."

After the rhetoric faded the Senate voted 45 to 29 to table and thus kill an amendment by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., which would have stopped the project by rescinding $54 million in unspent construction funds.

But less than an hour later Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, introduced an amendment setting a $135 million limit on the cost of the building.

That was approved 65 to 13.

The luxury features of the new building drew the sharpest attack. Sen. William

Proxmire, D-Wis., called them "goldplating."

They include expensive wood paneling and marble, a 16-foot-high ceiling in each senator's office, a third gymnasium for the senators, an indoor tennis court, a rooftop restaurant, a marble-lined atrium, a multi-media center and expensive landscaping and furniture.

"I must say this Mussolini-style building is an outrage," Chafee said.

Chafee said the Hart building is especially offensive because of what "roaring, raging inflation" is doing to the ordinary people of the country.

He said the construction money should be rescinded, the contracts cancelled, construction halted and the site turned into a park or a parking garage.

UT Regents Set Minimum Load For Teachers

AUSTIN (AP) — Full-time faculty at the six University of Texas System campuses must carry a minimum teaching load under guidelines adopted Friday by the UT Board of Regents.

The board based its actions on faculty teaching requirements adopted by the 1977 Legislature.

Professors must teach a minimum of nine semester credit hours of undergraduate courses or six semester hours of graduate instruction. The regents approved allowances for other teaching activities, including laboratory, clinical and individual instruction.

"We believe this proposed minimum faculty teaching requirement will enable us to be accountable for our instructional costs and will also allow each academic institution to pursue its individual academic mission," said UT System President E.D. Walker.

The regents also approved a $1.65 million project to preserve a building near the UT Austin campus once occupied by Gen. George Custer. The general lived in the house from November 1865 to February 1866 when he was in charge of the post-Civil War federal occupation of Texas.

In other action, the regents separated the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio from the University of Texas at San Antonio, and made the institute a separate component institution.

Awarded more than $2.2 million in equipment and furnishings contracts for a performing center on the UT Austin campus. The five-building complex will be completed in stages through 1980.

Approved a $7.7 million low bid to remodel M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston.

Computer Aids Farmers In Buying Equipment

Cotton farmers faced with the dilemma of choosing new harvesting equipment and of changing systems for delivering lint to the gin are being sought by a Texas Tech University researcher.

In the harvesting revolution of recent years the traditional cotton picker, dragging a long white sack, has all but disappeared. Instead today's farmer has more than a score of choices in combining mechanical harvesting processes for an efficient system.

What the producer decide on the best buys and the most efficient systems for gathering the crop and transporting it to the gin, Dr. Milton L. Smith of Texas Tech's industrial engineering department has developed a computer program.

Agriculture Quality Enforcer Loses Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert Angelotti, the Agriculture Department's top food quality enforcer, was ousted Friday on grounds of technical violations in his relationship with a meat industry consultant.

The Justice Department, which had reviewed the investigation, declined to take any action on the matter.

The congressional source said Silverstein, who never was a paid consultant to the government, played a part in writing regulations on labeling and net weights of meat which Angelotti released in January.

Then Silverstein sought business with Denver beef industry officials in March, the source said, telling them he helped Angelotti write the regulations.

The source said Silverstein told industry officials he could be a "good emissary" between them and Angelotti, who had angered the meat industry and members of Congress by tiling regulations in favor of the consumer.

Silverstein may have been influential in getting Angelotti his job, the source said. He said Rod Leonard of the White House, former executive director of the Consumer Nutrition Institute, was introduced to Angelotti by Silverstein.

Angelotti is a former official with the Food and Drug Administration.

— What type of cottonseed storage system should be used for the lowest cost.

— What combination of trailers and either module builders or rickers should be used.

— How many harvesters should be used.

— How costs are affected by different weather patterns during harvest.

— How year-to-year variations in yield and acres harvested affect the optimum equipment selection and costs.

Smith calls the program "HASP" for "Harvesting Analysis Simulation Program."

To learn whether to invest in a module builder at about $18,550 or a ricker at about $2,800, or to decide whether to buy one more trailer at $1,267, the farmer is asked to fill out a fairly detailed questionnaire.

Information fed into the computer includes costs of equipment, labor, taxes, insurance, maintenance and operation, along with fuel consumption rates, equipment salvage estimates, even the number of acres desiccated and weather data.

"Weather data can be provided for the program for good, bad and mediocre years," Smith said. "We also take into account the cotton that drops on the ground and never gets to the gin, the yield loss that comes with moisture loss, the decline in grade depending upon harvest times and conditions."

HASP is best used by farmers who are considering a change in their system of harvesting and transportation to the gin, he said. It gives them a chance to examine all their alternatives.

"The best managers need all the information available, and we think we can assist with the information gathering program. HASP is a fully developed computer program, but we would like to work with about 20 farmers a month to gain experience with it."

There is no charge for the service while it is in the research stage, Smith said. Once experience has been gained, the program probably will be turned over to a producer group or, perhaps, a commercial operation for the future use of cotton farmers.

While it will take a farmer some time to fill out the questionnaire, the time is well spent in Smith's view. It gives the producer an opportunity to look at his costs in detail.

EMBRYO TRANSPLANT SUCCESS — This Quarter Horse filly, right foaled Feb. 13 is the first equine produced by embryo transplant in the United States, according to Dr. Duane C. Kraemer of Texas A&M University, who headed the operation.

Farm Credit Measure Okayed As Aid To Agriculture Debts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday signed into law, far-reaching farm credit legislation which will enable farmers to refinance debts incurred during the years of low farm prices.

"In 40 years this is the most far reaching and effective farm and rural credit legislation that Congress has passed," said Carter at a bill-signing ceremony in the Rose Garden.

He said farmers' needs for fair prices and credit have been provided by two pieces of legislation, last year's farm act and the new Agricultural Credit Act.

Last year's farm legislation included provisions for idling cropland, farmer-owned reserves to keep crops off the market and price supports, all intended to stabilize farm prices.

"We've seen a dramatic improvement in the well-being of American farm families since 1977," the president said, noting that net farm income is expected to increase by 25 percent to at least $25 billion this year.

Turning to consumers' interests, the president said, "I believe predictability and stability in farm prices and farm production is critical to the consumers of this nation."

The emergency credit provisions of the act will provide $4 billion for farmers, who face tight credit in their attempts to refinance debts incurred during the past couple years of low crop and livestock prices.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said in a statement that emergency loans will be available next week at Farmers Home Administration offices. Farmers will be able to borrow up to $400,000 at 8.5 percent interest under the program of direct and federally guaranteed loans.

Bergland, Vice President Walter Mondale, Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., several members of Congress, high Agriculture Department officials, farm group leaders and scores of congressional aides attended the bill-signing ceremony.

Other provisions of the law will go into effect in about two weeks.

An emergency livestock loan program was extended for another year.

The law doubles loan limits for regular FHA farm operation and ownership loans. It raises even further the limits on loans made by private lenders and guaranteed by the government.

In the past these loan programs have been available only for individuals. Now they will be available to family controlled corporations, partnership and cooperatives.

Young or low-income farmers will get special loan rates at 5 percent, but interest for other direct or insured loans, now at 5 percent, will be increased to the cost of money to the treasury plus one percent.

Federally guaranteed loans will be made at commercial rates. The administration sought higher interest rates to reduce taxpayer subsidization, indicating the change would make more loan money available.

The bill also includes a nonemergency provision allowing cattle producers to hold a referendum of last year's beef check-off referendum, which failed for last of a two-thirds vote. This year's election would require only a majority vote. The beef check-off would finance beef industry research and promotion.
