Iranian Protesters' Actions 'Useless,' Crown Prince Says

By DEBBIE MITCHELL

IRANIAN STUDENTS who recently marched through Lubbock streets to protest what they term a repressive government in their native land conducted a useless display of emotion and ignorance, said the teen-ager who is destined to rule that country.

"Students here don't have enough knowledge about what is really going on, and they don't understand what they are supposed to do," Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi said in an exclusive interview with The Avalanche-Journal.

Since his arrival July 17, Prince Pahlavi has been the center of both publicity and protest as he undergoes pilot training at Reese Air Force Base.

In response to his presence, Iranian students staged a seven-mile anti-shah demonstration and deemed it successful. But such demonstrations, the prince said, do nothing to help either the country or the protesters.

The prince, clad simply during the interview in khaki-colored slacks, a T-shirt and sandals, looking much like any other student, said the Iranians could best help their country by studying now and returning to Iran to apply their knowledge.

Rather than march through residential areas, masked and carrying signs, the protesters should address their complaints to the government, Prince Pahlavi said.

"I don't say not to protest for change," he said. "I want to help these people, and I don't know why instead of coming to me they must hide themselves and put masks on their faces. If they are really sure of what they are saying and if they are courageous, they can come to the government."

The protesters, however, say they fear and hate the government and that the freedoms of speech, press and assembly have disappeared from Iran since the shah began his reign in 1941. In pamphlets distributed by the Lubbock Chapter of the Iranian Student Association, the students allege the shah only seeks to suppress his people.

The youthful prince, who will become eligible to ascend the throne when he turns 20, disputes their claims and cites reforms his father has made, especially those for women.

As part of the major liberalization campaign he embarked upon two years ago, the shah passed measures allowing the press to criticize the government and ordering the police to cease repressive measures.

Rome Security Tightened

Possible Terrorist Threat To Cardinals Seen

ROME (AP) — The Italian government Monday instructed police and other state agencies to assure security and freedom of movement to Roman Catholic cardinals gathered at the Vatican to elect a new pope.

Sources said this partly was due to fears of terrorist attacks by extremist groups that may want to exploit the situation.

The government's Official Gazette carried the announcement of the death Sunday of Pope Paul VI between two black borders.

It said precise instructions had been issued "that in particular the complete freedom of the cardinals be guaranteed and that in the Italian territory no act may be made that may disturb the meetings of the conclave."

The steps observe Italian obligations under the 1929 Concordat with the Vatican, the article said.

In Rimini, Italy, two firebombs were hurled against the gate of a Franciscan monastery before dawn Monday, starting a small fire. Police quoted an anonymous telephone caller as saying the attack was meant to "celebrate" the death of the pope.

The caller described himself as a member of "Organized Young Proletarians," a clandestine group that has claimed responsibility for minor attacks in several cities, and said, "You'll be hearing from us again."

Clad in red, lying on a green velvet bier, the body of the pontiff, "in deep and serene sleep," was viewed by thousands of mourning faithful at the papal summer palace Monday. At the Vatican, a senior prince of the church, 85-year-old Cardinal Carlo Confalonieri, wielded a hammer and chisel and smashed Paul's Ring of the Fisherman, marking the end of his reign.

The cardinals, flying in from around the world, must go into secret conclave within 14 days to choose a new pope.

263rd pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church and successor to the Fisherman, St. Peter.

One possible candidate, 73-year-old Austrian Cardinal Franz Koenig, quickly expressed his reluctance, telling a Vienna radio interviewer he does not "deem myself suitable," and suggesting that a younger man is needed and that a black or Asian pope is a "possibility."

Three Italian cardinals, an Argentine and a Dutchman are among others prominently mentioned as potential successors to Paul, who died 51 days before his 81st birthday following a heart attack at the summer palace in Castel Gandolfo.

The body of the man who led the world's 550 million Roman Catholics for 15 years lay in state Monday in the Swiss Room of the palace in the Alban Hills just south of Rome.

Water Falls At Graham;

Storm Threat Recedes

By The Associated Press

WATER BEGAN receding at Graham Monday as storm-ravaged Texans dug out from under widely separated floods that killed at least 26 people. Five persons were missing.

As the rivers and creeks of Central Texas and portions of the Hill Country began edging back toward their banks after a week of torrential rain and flooding, some Texans were looking with a wary eye to the south.

Tropical Storm Bess was approaching the Mexican coast on Monday. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said the storm, with sustained winds of 45 mph, was moving to the west-southwest at about 10 mph — away from Texas.

Water and electric utilities were knocked out for an indefinite period because of the flood waters in Graham, a town of 7,500 south of Wichita Falls. "We just don't know how long it's going to take for this stuff to go away, but all our city operations are under water," said Police Chief William Paul.

Bill McAda of the federal Disaster Assistance Administration said aerial surveys showed that about 150 homes and 40 to 50 businesses were inundated.

Aid Office To Open

He said Young County was added to the list of those declared disaster areas and thereby eligible for federal funds and programs. Earlier, Shackelford, Haskell, Kendall, Bandera and Kerr counties had been designated disaster areas at the request of Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

A disaster assistance office in Graham was to open today. Offices opened in Shackelford and Haskell Monday.

No flood-related injuries were reported in Graham, where water rose gradually, allowing residents and businesses ample time to move to higher ground.

But rampaging flood waters elsewhere gave residents little time to escape.

Bodies Recovered

The Department of Public Safety said 21 bodies had been recovered from the Hill Country and another five from Albany in West Texas.

Flood waters appeared first in the Hill Country last week. The storms were fed by Tropical Storm Amelia, which crashed ashore north of Brownsville and touched off more than 30 inches of rain in the stricken area.

State forecasts for the first part of the week called for scattered showers in parts of south Texas and the Davis Mountains.

The body was clad in red robes, white miter and red shoes. A rosary was entwined in the fingers of his crossed hands. Four Swiss Guards, in their Michelangelo-designed yellow-and-blue striped uniforms, stood locked at attention around the body. A nine-foot white candle was on the right and a silver cross on the left.

By late afternoon more than 10,000 persons had filed across the marble floors and past the tapestried walls of the 90-by-20-foot salon to view the body. Thousands stood in line outside, six abreast, many singing hymns, braving occasional rain.

Controversial Plays Canceled By Tech

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

PLANS BY Tech's theater department to produce two plays which feature nude scenes have been canceled at the suggestion of the dean of arts and sciences.

Dean Lawrence L. Graves recommended that "Equus" not be performed during the 1979 spring season. The theater department also opted not to perform "The Curse Of The Starving Class."

According to Graves, a meeting was held to discuss the "elements involved in the play 'Equus'." He said, "After meeting with Dr. (Charles S.) Hardwick, the vice president of academic affairs, I made the suggestion that the theater department take another look at the play; we thought it might be better all the way around if they did not produce the play this season."

"The theater department did reconsider and agree that they would omit the play from this year's schedule."

Dr. Richard Weaver, chairman of the theater department at Tech, initially released only an official statement, saying, "At Dean Graves' suggestion, we have withdrawn 'Equus' from our upcoming season." He said later that after the decision on "Equus" was reached, the theater department decided to also withdraw "The Curse Of The Starving Class" to ward off the same issue (nudity protests) arising once again.

Ronald Schulz, slated to direct "Equus," is now in the process of choosing another play as a replacement. Jerry Cotton, who had planned to direct "The Curse Of The Starving Class," said Monday, "I don't want to give any quotes for the A-J about the play right now. I'm very upset that it's (information concerning the cancellations) already been given out."

News of Tech's plans to stage "Equus" was first disclosed publicly in a July 2 column in The Avalanche-Journal. At that time, Graves said he had talked with both Weaver and Schulz and expressed confidence that the play's nude scene in the final act would not be sensationalized.

Asked Monday to confirm that nudity was the issue involved, he said "I suppose so." He also said that he now feared the nudity would cause problems, adding "there are a number of elements involved, so I recommended they (Tech theater department) think it over again."

When asked if public reaction brought about his change in feeling, Graves said, "The letters to the editor (in The Avalanche-Journal) played a part in it, yes, but there were a good many factors involved."

He declined, however, to discuss those factors, instead referring questions to Hardwick. Hardwick was in Denver and, when contacted by The Avalanche-Journal, would say little more than, "It is my understanding that the dean (Graves) See TECH CANCELS Page 18"

Vance, Sadat Silent On Result Of New U.S. Mediation Effort

ALEXANDRIA (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance launched a last-ditch effort Monday night to keep flickering Mideast peace hopes alive by persuading Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to reopen face-to-face negotiations with Israel.

There was no indication he was able to induce Sadat to reopen direct talks with the Israelis; but, said U.S. spokesman Hodding Carter, "the secretary feels the meeting tonight was a very good session."

An Egyptian official described the two hours of talks in Sadat's seaside villa as "friendly and smooth, with no atmosphere of crisis."

Vance arrived at this resort city on the Mediterranean after two days of meetings in Israel.

The Egyptian official, one of Sadat's closest advisers, said Israel is "playing a game, trying to drive a wedge between the Egyptian and American positions, but it will not succeed in its efforts."

An Egyptian spokesman reported Vance delivered a hand-written letter from President Carter to Sadat. He did not reveal its contents or the substance of the Vance-Sadat talks.

Vance left the presidential grounds without talking to reporters. He and Sadat are expected to hold a joint news conference at the conclusion of another meeting tonight.

The secretary is scheduled to fly back to Washington Wednesday to report to Carter and help map the next U.S. move in the faltering American mediation efforts.

"We've always used frankness as the basis of our discussions. Both the United States and Egypt are committed to peace," Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel said after a preliminary two-hour review with Vance in the New Palestine Hotel that is serving as Vance's headquarters.

State Department spokesman Carter described Vance's discussions with Kamel as "a general review of the basic questions of how to get the peace process moving."

Israeli and American sources said Vance was considering another trip to the Mideast in about two weeks. The sources said that was one of several options Vance discussed with Israeli leaders in Jerusalem.

Before leaving Israel, Vance told reporters at Ben-Gurion Airport that "As far as the United States is concerned, we shall persevere in the search for peace. There is no more important cause."

Sadat has ruled out any further negotiations with the Israelis until they agree to relinquish all the Arab territory conquered during the 1967 Six-Day War. Israel is prepared to return the Sinai Desert to Egypt but balks at the Egyptian demand for the return of the Gaza Strip to Egypt and the West Bank of the Jordan River and East Jerusalem to Jordan.

Sadat insists that "not one inch" of Arab land captured by Israel in 1967 should remain in Israeli hands.

"We are still at the same position," Kamel said.

Egyptian officials said Sadat is not pressing for any specific U.S. proposals or trying to tell the United States how to change Israel's position, but he expects some affirmative American action to break the deadlock.

Among the options believed open to President Carter are:

- Inviting Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to make separate visits to Washington in the hope presidential intercession can crack the barrier to a settlement.
- Reopening the negotiations in another setting, possibly the U.N. Security Council or Geneva, where all the Arab parties and the Soviet Union would be involved.
- Send Vance back to the Mideast for his sixth mission with stronger U.S. suggestions for a settlement that would require compromise from both Egypt and Israel.

Lunar Phenomena Witnessed

THE PLANET Venus appeared as a star twinkling at the tip of a crescent moon Monday night and many fortunate South Plains residents gazed up at a phenomena that occurs only once every 22 months, and lasts less than 10 minutes.

As the moon passed in front of Venus, the planet was aligned in such a way that it appeared to be sitting on top of the moon. The sequence of events which produced the optical illusion is called an "occultation," according to Ronald Johnston, director of Texas Tech's Moody Planetarium.

Johnston said South Plains residents were fortunate to witness the phenomena; for residents of South Texas to Hawaii, the moon would pass directly in front of the planet and no illusion would be visible. A-J photographer Milton Adams took this photo using a 500mm mirror lens on 35mm film.

Retirees Often Find Time Weighs Heavy, Seek New Kinds Of Work

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Third in a Series

THE HANDSHAKES Mel Grigg received at his retirement party didn't console him when he faced minutes and hours each day to fill with activity.

Six months ago, after a year and a half of retirement, Grigg returned to the work force in a new occupation.

Grigg spent 38 years teaching in junior and senior high schools. The crackle of student laughter, the thump of notebooks being opened, the shuffle of feet in the hallways between classes and the blast of the bell signifying the end of each class period contrasted sharply with the silent hours of retirement.

He was 63 when he received a key ring and a jacket at his retirement party June 1, 1976.

Four months later his wife died and with her died his dream of retiring early to spend time together.

"I goofed around for a while and moved to the mountains in New Mexico," Grigg said. "But I couldn't stand doing nothing."

He returned to Lubbock and in 1977 married a fellow teacher whom he had known for 18 years and who lived only a half-block away. Spouses of both had died of heart attacks.

They traveled. They visited their children and went on a tour of Israel.

Still, there was time to fill each day.

"Retirement?" Grigg says. "It's wonderful if you have something to do — a hobby or travel or something."

The something that interested Grigg was when he heard about an opening for a balliff at the court house.

"I like my job," he said. His duties include passing out information forms to prospective jurors called each Monday morning, turning on the lights and air conditioning in the courtroom each morning, answering the telephone and accompanying the jury in and out of the courtroom.

Convenience Store Worker Identifies Suspect

A clerk identified John T. Cameron as the robber who pulled a $1,600 holdup of a local convenience store, as testimony in Cameron's aggravated robbery trial got underway here Monday.

Cameron, 29, who lived at 1512 E. 1st St. at the time of the incident, is accused of the Jan. 16 armed robbery of the Serv-U Food Mart at 2017 4th St. He is being tried before a nine-woman, three-man jury in 140th District Court.

Clerk Robert Edgar McDowell, 22, said that he was standing by the cash register about 4:30 p.m. when a man motioned for him to come toward the rear of the store.

On direct examination, McDowell said that sometime after the robbery he remembered that he once saw the defendant at a local restaurant where Cameron reportedly was employed. McDowell said that meeting probably took place in June 1977, and that he had not recognized Cameron during the holdup.

roommate who was employed at the same restaurant.

McDowell denied any such conversations.

Montford also asked the complaining witness if he had ever asked Cameron about forging some checks for him. McDowell said he had not.

Freshmen To Sample Campus At Session

Entering freshmen and their parents will get a first-hand view of Texas Tech University during six two-day early registration-orientation conferences scheduled to run through this month.

Students and parents are not required to dine or lodge on campus, but they are offered two lodging and dining package plans from which to choose.

The conferences are designed to acquaint students with the university environment through individualized tours and meetings with Tech officials.

Other features will include bus tours to provide a comprehensive view of the campus, housing seminars to familiarize students with the concept of residence hall living, seminars dealing with questions important for minority and handicapped students, and meetings with student leaders of various organizations to give the freshmen a prospect for the coming years.

During the conferences, students can become familiar with the campus, the location of the buildings and what to expect when they arrive for the fall semester. They also get confirmed enrollment in the courses they intend to take.

The sessions provide an independent schedule for students and parents.

Parents get an opportunity to see the facilities of a modern university and will be better able to estimate and evaluate the cost involved in a contemporary college education.

Students will have the option of receiving credit by examination for certain courses. Then they can obtain their registration materials and visit their advisers for academic counseling.

According to Mike Smith, associate registrar, about 4,100 students already have applied. He expects that all sessions will be filled to capacity, which would mean a total participation of about 4,200 students.

More information about the registration-orientation sessions may be obtained by calling the Office of Student Life at 742-2192.

Warm Winds To Raise Temperatures

Southerly winds blowing 10 to 15 mph today will bring in warmer temperatures expected to reach near 90 this afternoon before dipping into the mid-60s tonight.

Heavy Fighting Seals Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — After a nightlong bombardment by Syrian peacekeeping forces, heavy sniper fire Monday kept the Christian sector of Beirut shuttered for the second straight day.

aliance the rightists forged with Israel in south Lebanon to drive Palestinian guerrillas from the northern flank of the Jewish state.

bombardment kept the 650-man contingent pinned down at the southeastern Lebanese town of Kaoukaba, about 25 miles from the destination of the Lebanese force.

Police said 32 Christians were killed and 67 wounded in a dusk-to-dawn Syrian barrage that eased up at daybreak Monday. Rightist spokesmen said 65 died and 220 were wounded.

Meanwhile, in south Lebanon, Israeli-backed rightwing militiamen shelled a stranded Lebanese army battalion anew Monday to prevent it from linking up with U.N. peacekeeping forces in regions bordering Israel.

It reported six soldiers were wounded during the shelling, two seriously.

All eastern approaches to the battered capital were closed as the parliament building and the foreign ministry came under fire. Traffic between Beirut's Moslem and Christian sectors remained at a standstill.

The rift between the Syrian forces, who rescued the rightists from Palestinian guerrillas and their Lebanese Moslem allies during the civil war in 1976, and the Christian rightists stems from Christian resentment of Syrian peacekeeping control in their neighborhoods.

The Lebanese battalion was dispatched to help the 5,200-man U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon defuse border tensions and re-establish state authority in the south.

Big Future Seen For Area Lake

Buffalo Springs Lake one day should be a recreational complex replete with hotels and restaurants, an amphitheater and more campsites and picnic areas, directors of Lubbock County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 revealed Monday.

Goals and objectives on which a master development plan is being written were discussed in a 10 a.m. board meeting at the lake administration building.

Short-range goals to be worked on immediately include adding tennis courts and volleyball courts, putting up a community center building, getting a covered boat and motor home rental storage building and beginning systematic reforestation "to ensure future scenic beauty and recreational facilities for all the district property and utilities."

Long-range goals to be achieved by the year 2000 include the amphitheater, hotels and restaurants and expanding to adjacent property or other land within the district to offer more lakes, campsites and picnic areas, the directors said.

Additional short-range goals are to add more security men and restructure land rental rates "more in line with current costs of operations and services provided and which is in better proportion to the true value of benefits received."

The directors intend to expand and improve the concession area, and they are considering a hiking trail system over existing district property and the present primitive trails.

The goals were given in the form of a progress report on the master plan by the Lubbock engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper.

Jaworski Says Self-Investigation Hinders Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Jaworski, who until last week headed the House Ethics Committee's probe into Korean influence-buying on Capitol Hill, said

Monday the committee is doomed to be less than fully successful. "There are inherent shortcomings in the system" that requires an investigation to be conducted by the same government branch to which officials under suspicion belong, he said.

"There should be — and I think there is — a better method of conducting inquiries into alleged wrongful conduct of high officials in our three branches of government than to resort to self-investigation," Jaworski said.

Speaking to a lawyers' group at the American Bar Association's national convention, Jaworski suggested that Congress and the White House police each other when specific allegations of wrongdoing arise.

"When the executive branch is under investigation, why not let a commission of qualified and dedicated citizens, not members of the executive branch or identified with it, conduct the investigation and transmit their findings to a special prosecutor?" Jaworski asked.

"In similar manner, if members of Congress are under investigation a commission appointed by the president should conduct the inquiry, find the facts and pass these along to the Justice Department for prosecution," he said.

Jaworski, who left as special counsel to the Ethics Committee saying his work had been completed, refused on Monday to endorse or condemn the committee's "ultimate judgments" that exonerated all current House members.

"What I would have done, had I sat on the committee, is beside the point," he said. "I am prepared to state that a large majority of the committee performed their function earnestly and with dedication — handicapped as they were by what I consider to be the fallibilities of an ill-conceived system."

Jaworski did not name any exceptions among committee members, but did have special praise for House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., whom he defended against "the flames of a cover-up charge."

"The unvarnished truth is that no one could have done more to assure a full and complete investigation of the South Korean episode than the speaker of the House," Jaworski said.

"Still, from the time the investigation began and before it could well get underway there were whispering innuendos and accusations, leveled at the leadership of the House, of efforts to sidetrack and suppress a total investigation."

Some critics have suggested that O'Neill might not be fully dedicated to full disclosure of the Korean government's efforts to buy congressional favors because he and close friends may find such disclosure embarrassing.

In 1898, during August, Rudolph Diesel of Germany was awarded a patent on the diesel engine, and Henry Ford got one for an improved carburetor.

Humane Livestock Slaughter Bill Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved legislation Monday requiring the use of humane methods for slaughtering of almost all livestock sold in the United States.

Current law requires humane slaughtering only for livestock slaughtered for sale to the federal government. Under the proposed change, the requirement would be extended to all slaughter domestic operations inspected by state or federal officials as well as foreign slaughterhouses exporting to the United States.

The legislation, sponsored by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., requires rendering animals insensible to pain by a single blow or gunshot, or by chemical, electrical or other swift means.

According to a report filed by the Agriculture Committee in connection with the bill, about 11 percent of more than 1-700 federal-inspected slaughter houses now slaughter some animals inhumanely.

About 5 percent of 2,500 state-inspected slaughtering operations employ non-humane methods, while 12 percent of about 500 foreign slaughterhouses exporting to the United States do so, the report said.

Under the bill, "ritual slaughters" practiced by religious groups, such as methods employed by Jews who observe special dietary laws, would be exempt from the humaneness requirements.

The measure, approved by voice vote, now goes to the House of Representatives.

INVESTORS' GUIDE
By BILL DOYLE

Q. The brokerage firm with which I deal lags as much as 10 days in sending me checks for the interest on my municipal bonds. The only excuse they offer is "processing the paperwork." I do not accept this and have told them so, repeatedly.

A. There's no rule covering your specific gripe. Brokerage houses, more often than not, are notoriously slow in sending out interest and/or dividend checks to their customers. The interest or dividend payment is credited to the customer's account on the date due. But prying it loose from the brokerage house can be something else — as you found out.

Most brokerage houses just credit the payment to the customer's account and don't even think about sending a check to the customer — until they get specific orders to do so.

This situation, of course, applies only when customers have left their securities with brokerage firms. Unless you have a margin account and have a "debit balance" — debt — with the brokerage firm, there's nothing to prevent you from taking possession of your securities.

Then, you could collect your interest yourself and not be bothered with the brokerage house acting as a middleman.

Q. We have odd lots of a number of stocks, worth a total of approximately $8,000 which we want to sell. We understand that all brokers do not charge the same commissions. Can we get a list of brokers and what their commission charges are?

A. Nope, because there is nothing resembling anything like a complete list. Brokerage rates are now "negotiated" and they vary all over the lot.

About the best thing you can do is get on the telephone; call every brokerage firm in your area; explain what you want to do; give the names and numbers of the stocks you want to sell; ask what the commission charge will be. Place your sell orders with the brokerage house which gives you the lowest rates.

As an alternative, you could go to your bank and ask if the bank can place the sell orders for you with brokers. Because many banks place orders with brokers, those orders sometimes can be "bunched" at lower commission rates.

Not all banks do this. Those that do, normally do so as accommodations for very good customers.

Q. It is my understanding that, when a savings certificate is held jointly by two people and one of them dies, the other can cash it before maturity without any interest penalty. Also, I understand that when a savings certificate is held in one person's name and that person dies, the certificate can be cashed without interest penalty. Correct me, if I'm wrong.

A. I can neither correct you nor tell you that you are right, without knowing the terms of the specific savings certificate — set down by the bank or savings and loan association which issued it. Some banks and S&Ls will allow a savings certificate to be redeemed, without interest penalty, when the owner or a co-owner dies. Some won't.

These and other details should be investigated at the individual institution, before you put your money into savings certificates.

Q. Why doesn't the Internal Revenue Service allow people to take an adjustment in taxes, to offset inflation? Inflation puts people in higher tax brackets and leaves them with less real money. Don't Congress and the IRS realize this?

A. Sure they do. But nothing really worthwhile is being done about it. An "indexing" idea, along the lines of your thoughts about adjusting taxes for inflation, has been kicked around but nothing has come of it.

More important, precious little is being done in Endsive-on-the-Potomac about getting to the root cause of inflation — deficit spending by the federal government.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

AN EDITORIAL: Terror--Politics From Sewers

THE CREEPING cloud of terrorism, which has struck at the highest levels of government in Italy and Germany, now seems to be spreading its bloodletting to Paris.

In a four-day span the past week, terrorists claiming Arab extremist connections have taken part in assassinations which not only involved the "targets," but innocent bystanders and French police.

And while some may dismiss the incidents as part of the seething unrest typical of that part of the world today, the pattern is not one to be ignored.

IN ONE OF the incidents, two Arab gunmen attacked the Paris offices of the Palestine Liberation Organization, killing the PLO's chief representative, slaying another employe and wounding a third person.

In the earlier incident, an Arab gunman seized hostages in the Iraqi Embassy. Before the shooting was over, two persons were slain and four wounded between Iraqis and French police fighting over custody of the would-be assassin. While it might be argued that no harm was done in the latest outbreaks of anarchy in the streets, a closer look says something important.

First, terrorists, whether members of an international ring or working for a single cause—such as the PLO—think nothing now of taking their battles to third-nation sites, risking the lives of innocent civilians and drawing in the authorities of those nations.

Secondly, although there have been indications of such terror activity on a limited scale in the U.S.—as witness the Chilean official's bomb death in Washington—this nation and some of its top leaders will be the next victims of such unbridled thinking.

GRANTED, IN today's complex society and almost hysterical emotions over everything from the Mideast to dissidents in Russia that anything can happen, some semblance of dealing with such incidents by all nations is a must.

Some months back, a feeble effort was made to spell out an international answer and policy for meeting the threat of worldwide anarchists. It hardly got off the floor.

The main reason, of course, was the problem of differentiating from out and out political refugees and defectors from those seeking to avenge some cause.

WHILE THIS, to us, is a cop-out, the real problem is that all nations will not crack down on those who take the law and planes and hostages into their own hands.

Such countries as Libya, Algeria, Iraq, the PLO, the Red Brigade and others actually encourage and give haven to such groups.

Both Italy and France have sought to cope with the problem with varying degrees of success. West Germany has been unrelenting as has Israel. It is to be hoped that if and when terror tactics crawl from the sewers in the U.S., this nation will treat the problem for what it is—anarchy in the streets, to be dealt with accordingly.

AN EDITORIAL: No 'Sub' For Inexperience

TRY AS THEY may, neither President Carter nor his White House aides seem able to master the art of winning friends and influencing people on Capitol Hill.

The experiences of one liberal Republican senator (who prefers to remain anonymous) illustrate the astonishing clumsiness of the Carter team in dealing with members of Congress.

This particular senator, as it happens, split with the majority of his GOP colleagues on the Panama Canal treaties and the bitterly-contested labor law reform bill, supporting Carter's position on both.

HARD ON THE heels of the Senate vote ratifying the canal treaties, Carter himself called the senator at home to thank him for his support. The helpful Republican wasn't there at the time, as his wife explained when Carter came on the phone.

"Oh, that's right," the President said brightly. "He's at that Democratic gala tonight, isn't he?" A few weeks later, following a crucial cloture vote to shut off the filibuster against the President's labor law reform bill, the senator's office received a call from a White House lobbyist.

Good news, he said. A water project in the senator's state had been approved by the administration. Why, that's wonderful, the senator's aide replied. We thought you'd be pleased, the White House staffer said, adding:

"Be sure to tell your boss that we mentioned how much we appreciate his vote on cloture at the same time we called to announce approval of the water project."

AS IF THAT display of deftness weren't enough, there's one more incident involving the same senator, this one involving the neutron bomb—which the senator vigorously supports.

Out of the blue one day, the senator's top aide received a frantic call from yet another White House staffer demanding to know "where's that article we wrote for you on the neutron bomb? We need it to counter one Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) is publishing in the Atlanta paper."

Gradually, a light dawned. "You seem to be slightly confused," the Senator staffer said. "My boss agrees with Sam Nunn's position. You probably want our colleague (from the same state), Sen. So-and-So."

Sigh. There's just no substitute for inexperience.

ART BUCHWALD: Pandora Was Pushover Next To Lord Cashmere

ART BUCHWALD is an assignment for a few weeks trying to find out if there are any Cuban traps on Cape Cod. He left behind his all-time favorite columns.

WASHINGTON—The question came up at dinner the other night when people were discussing the Tory victory in Great Britain.

"Why is it that the English were able to rule the world for almost 200 years, while the United States has been unable to hold on for less than 25 years?"

An Englishman at the table replied, "It's quite simple, my dear chap. There was no television."

"Of course," someone else said, "television hadn't been invented then."

"ON THE CONTRARY," the Englishman said, "it had been invented, but we were wise enough not to let the secret out."

"We all looked at him in amazement."

"Lord Cashmere of Rutland invented television in the year 1775," he said.

"You can look it up in the secret archives of the British Museum. He was actually trying to invent the radio; but rather than sound, he got a picture on his box instead."

"What kind of picture?" a skeptical guest asked.

"It is hard to believe," someone said.

"QUITE, IN ANY case, Lord Cashmere knew he was onto something big, so he took the box to King George III and demonstrated it to the court, which at the time was meeting on the Television Moors in Wales.

"The Court was aghast at what they were seeing. There were large busy Redcoats beating on the poor Colonials, kicking women and children, setting fire to their homes and committing unbelievable atrocities in the villages.

"Lord Cashmere, The Archbishop of Canterbury said, 'what in God's name have you wrought?'"

"Lord Cashmere said, 'I'm not sure, but it's

Parade Problem 'Small Price' For Lesson, He Says

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
 In response to the morning column July 26 regarding the "backlash from the Iranian student march," I would present a dissenting viewpoint.
 My wife unexpectedly found herself "caught" driving in the midst of a moderate, non-violent demonstration.

She indicated no fear, but interest—enough to have stimulated supertime discussion of the students' motives, their fear of reprisals "back home" (the masks?), and our own political role. In short, this appeared from my wife's viewpoint to have been a well-mannered and well-supervised protest.

In broader context, this gave us present evidence of the reality of our exceptional political freedom and the opportunity for expression it presents to those who may not benefit from such a climate in their homeland.

The sacrifice of the "average citizen" seems small, even petty, in contrast to that of the "average" foreign citizen...to quote the writer: "The average citizen has enough problems of his own without worrying about someone parading about with signs and upraised fists."

Perhaps the foreign influence (from taxation on tea in the 1700's to oil supplies, international terrorism, "the dollar," etc.) cannot be afforded to be treated as a mere affront to our daily routine...especially at such a low price as this incident.

He Says Test Tube Baby Issues Are Hypocritical

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
 Some of the issues raised by the recent test tube births are quite hypocritical. For many years now, there has been intense pressure to poison, vacuum and mutilate unborn babies just because the heated two involved are not responsible enough to use contraceptives.

These fetuses already contain millions of cells and are quite recognizable as human beings. However, neither "parent," "doctor" nor anyone else has the guts to claim responsibility.

Now, suddenly, test tube births appear, and a whole group of humanitarians are worried about who will be responsible for the parents' unicellular gametes and eight-celled zygotes, neither of which have ever been particularly precious, nor are they visible to the naked eye.

This is quite a perversion of priorities.

Tech Ex Has Own View On 'Quality' Of Play

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
 I am writing to say thanks to Jerry Nislar for speaking out for those of us who do not appreciate plays of the "quality" of "Equus," coming to Tech to be produced by the Tech drama department.

I resent Mr. Wuellner calling my mind "primitive" because I do not think young people should be cajoled or encouraged to display their bodies just because he and others like him wish to look.

I also don't understand Mr. Dennis Jones' point of view, that "it would be a bit tasteless to bring live horses on stage and gouge their eyes out," but, doesn't see the bad taste of asking a young lady and young man to go on stage and degrade themselves for his entertainment. The human body is not obscene and sinful until it is used that way.

In the book, "The Naked Communist," by W. Cleon Skousen, there are 45 current Communist strategy goals which the Communists and their fellow travelers are seeking to achieve. Mr. Skousen says, "These are all part of the campaign to soften America for the final takeover. It should be kept in mind that many loyal Americans are working for these same objectives because they are not aware that these objectives are designed to destroy us."

Goal No. 22 says: "Continue discrediting American culture by degrading all forms of artistic expression."

Goal No. 24 says: "Eliminate all laws governing obscenity by calling them 'censorship' and a violation of free speech and free press."

Goal No. 25 says: "Break down cultural standards of morality by promoting pornography and obscenity in books, magazines, motion pictures, radio and T.V."

Some might be interested in reading all 45 goals. They might be surprised by what they find there. By the way, this book was first published in 1958. It is now in its 17th printing.

Most of us will not have any problem at all, staying away from this "highly acclaimed, powerful" drama! I'm just sorry the Tech drama department has chosen to exploit our youth in this way, even though some of them may be willing.

As my husband and I are both Tech Exes and also parents of an entering Freshman and two prospective Freshmen, we would like to keep Texas Tech the type of University it has always been.

Woman Says Explanation Needed On Iranian Group

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
 I think that you should have more fully explained to the citizens just who this group of Iranians was who paraded through our streets and cost $1,600 of taxpayers' money for a police escort.

From their own publication: On Aug. 19, 1953, "It was on that day that the U.S. State Department and the Pentagon took direct command of the Iranian army and police ordering them to shoot and kill thousands of people who had come to the streets protesting Mossadegh's ouster and the return of the Shah. The U.S. government has dominated Iran ever since and the Shah, in return for the favor, has handed over the entire wealth and resources of Iran to the U.S."

In Tehran, several hundred students marched and "in that march, they carried a huge banner: 'Long Live The Unity Of Working People And The Communist Movement Of Iran!'"

In Tehran, "in a daring move, several hundred students marched through the poor neighborhoods with revolutionary defiance, shouting, 'Hail to the Unity between the Toiling Masses and the Communists.'"

From a speech of one of their members, which is quoted in the publication: "The root of all disease in Iran is fed from the decadent mind of Carter! Don't get occupied with social effects! Get occupied with social causes! Search for the root—Discover the Master General of All Oppression: Carter And His Lackeys!"

This is not a group of courageous liberators. This is a radical group bent on overthrowing the current leader of Iran and expelling the United States from Iran. I urge Americans to really read this literature before lending their support and money to a group who are working against the United States. We have few enough friends around the world now. Let's not finance the overthrow of one of them!

Mrs. Jean Whalen, 5434 44th St.

They Question 'Right' Of Students To Disrupt City

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
 We have just witnessed one of the most outrageous scenes to occur in this country, the "demonstration" of the Iranian students.

The Iranians are here as guests of this country, not as citizens. I cannot for the life of me understand why it was ruled that they have "rights" to demonstrate, which disrupts the lives of Americans, blocks the traffic and causes general confusion.

Most of them were afraid to show their faces.

Just what makes them think that they are any better than the Prince? If they have a right to be here, so does he.

Our opinion is that all of them, including the Prince, should be sent back to Iran to settle their political problems.

We have enough to put up with in this country, without having to accept it from non-citizens demanding their "rights."

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

It's Just My Size

I CAN'T PROVE anything, but I'm beginning to catch on to the sneaky way clothes manufacturers keep sales up: They size everything down, giving us such a psychological lift we scoop up every 6 on the rack.

I mean, there's nothing like the high you get upon discovering that, without even giving up chocolate, you can slide into the tiny sizes.

Especially when you've been a 10 all your life and you know, deep down where you count your calories, that you still are.

Your mirror may tell you it's the same old shape, bulges and all, that back in the old days could never, ever, squeeze into a 6 or 8. But if the wizards of the garment district say you're a 6, a 6 you'll buy. Several 6s, in fact, just for the thrill of it all.

AND THEY FIT just like the old 10s used to. Which is why I suspect the boys are pulling a fast one on us. It's called merchandising, ma'am, and it works every time.

After a while you get so brainwashed you find yourself looking yearningly at the size 3 rack. And anybody knows, for heaven's sake, that no grown woman this side of a concentration camp is ever a size 3.

There's no such thing. That's for kid clothes. And toddler sizes, at that.

But there they are, whole rows of them, marked as plain as anything: size 3. I even know a lady who can get into 'em, but I'm such a good friend I never remind her she used to be an 8. She still weighs the same, too.

AND THAT MAKES about as much sense as the whole dress business.

I can remember back when "a perfect 12" was the whistled-at size. That meant you had a 36-inch bust, a 28-inch waist and 36-inch hips. Measurements like that propelled many a curvy cutie to a "Miss America" crown.

Today she'd probably be an 8. And 12 is so humiliateingly big you write it on a slip of paper and hand it to the sales clerk. There are some things one just doesn't mention out loud.

Actually, that's only half the story. What size you are depends on whose clothes you buy, since the 11,000 manufacturers in the "rag trade" don't always agree on how much material goes into each size.

There's no such thing as a national standard when it comes to measurements, and every dedicated shopper knows she can wear a 6 in the expensive lines, but in a cheaper dress she'll have to move up to an 8.

SHE WILL, THAT is, if she's fond of breathing. Higher prices can mean as much as two more inches of fabric in the bust.

When you get right down to it, it's only a numbers game, anyway. The 8 in a size 8 doesn't refer to any single measurement: it's just an arbitrary digit.

A man, on the other hand, measures his waistline, and if it's a 36, he orders size 36 trousers. He knows how thick his neck is and how long his arms are, and he buys shirts that are sized accordingly. That's the sensible way.

In the mysterious world of dress salons, however, all is confusion. And it gets worse every time the makers decide to scale down their sizes a notch or two.

Thus you have your choice of categories: "misses" (big), "juniors" (short-waisted and flat chested), "petites" (little all over) and "short petites" (little and under 5 feet).

THEN, TO MAKE it even more difficult, there are the combinations: "misses petites" (big in spots, little in others) and "junior petites" (they gave up eating years ago).

As for jeans, forget it. They come in 739 variations of sizes, all guaranteed to fit like two coats of blue paint.

The manufacturers, when they lower themselves to discuss it at all, say they're not fudging on sizes to keep fudge-lovers happy. They claim we really have changed shape over the years.

For one thing, they insist that women are skinner (that'll be the day) in this diet-conscious age. Busts are smaller because "they don't wear bras" any more. (And lots of luck to anybody who never needed a padded one in the first place.)

ALSO, THEY TELL us, in this girdle-less generation female hips are larger and lower down. (Gravity, you know.)

But nobody wants to talk about why, if our hips are bigger than when we strapped them into girdles, they now fit easily into skirts two sizes smaller than they used to.

It's a trade secret, I guess. The only time size means anything these days is when you can casually drop it into a cocktail-party conversation that the new dress is (modest shrug) a 6.

But even that's lost its zing. All the other fannies are wearing 6s, too. Except for that wretch in the corner, who's leering at you from inside her 4.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

WHEN "SOVIET SCREEN" magazine asked 22,000 Russians what their favorite film was last year, they most often named a picture called, "The White Dog 'Bim' With One Black Ear." How's that for a movie title?

That was not the picture, though, that grossed the most money last year over there. Such was a show called, "You Help Me and I'll Help You."

Q. "In racetrack parlance, what's a 'hot waker'?"

A. Any person who walks a horse to cool it out after a race.

Q. "Are male teachers in Saudi Arabia permitted to instruct girls?"

A. Only by closed-circuit television, I'm told.

Isn't true that the old clipper ships were so called because they clipped time off the long run to China. Their bows were built to cut through the waves instead of dozing into them, that's why.

Maybe you didn't know that the small metal loop that holds a lampshade is called a harp.

Q. "What do you think of the notion of putting a brick in the toilet tank to conserve water?"

A. Why bother when you can get the same result by just bending the float ball downwards an inch or two?

Not all national flags are in the shape of a rectangle, remember. Nepal's is in the shape of two triangles.

Legal Death Controversy Unresolved

HOUSTON (AP) — A 12-year-old girl who had been kept alive with life support systems died Monday, leaving unanswered the question of what constitutes legal death in Texas.

Word of Masil Gray's death came as the court waited for Dr. Robert C. Zeller, a child neurologist at Texas Children's Hospital, to testify whether she was medically dead.

"We were advised moments ago the child expired from cardiac arrest," George Ford, attorney for the Harris County Child Welfare Unit, told the court. Attorneys said the child died at 1:15 p.m.

District Judge W.H. Miller ruled the case closed.

Minutes before the announcement, the child's mother, Nora Nixon, and attorneys were summoned from the courtroom. Ford said Nixon was advised of her daughter's death at that time and left the courthouse without comment.

"She, of course, was quite distressed," Ford said.

The child's father, Orville Gray, was not present at Monday's hearing.

Russell McMains, attorney for Texas Children's Hospital, said the child suffered a "similar episode" as when her condition, already termed "extremely critical" by a hospital spokesman, had worsened July 30.

"Apparently she wasn't able to withstand it," McMains said.

Masil had been kept alive with life support systems since she was pulled from her burning room July 16 at the Burnett-Bayland Home, a unit of the Harris County Child Welfare Unit. Her brain ceased to function at that time.

Monday morning Miller said the child welfare unit should not have custody of the girl. But he delayed hearing a motion to return custody to her natural parents until another suit filed on the girl's behalf could be heard.

Miller ruled attorneys' fees incurred up to and through Monday's hearing be borne by the child welfare unit.

A decision on who pays the extensive hospital fees incurred will be decided in "another court another day," McMains said.

Abandoned Well Criteria Undecided

Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 postponed action Monday on efforts to define terms and adopt procedures for declaring well sites abandoned.

The board spent the morning discussing the impact of the rules and then decided to query the 15-county district's 75 committeemen for their comments. District manager A. Wayne Wyatt will meet with the organization's legal counsel in drawing up a preliminary definition of an abandoned well and the procedure for making such a declaration.

A spokesman said the guidelines will be of increasing importance as new applications are made for wells at abandoned sites. The district requires that wells be spaced certain distances apart.

The board told the district staff to check further into proposed sponsorship of a water conservation contest. The competition, cosponsored by other interested agencies, would award prizes to farmers most effectively providing water for their crops.

The prize money, perhaps as much as $15,000, would be donated by agri-business concerns.

Suspect Sought In Death Of Policeman

HARKER HEIGHTS (AP) — Area law officers searched for a male suspect Monday in the early morning shooting death of Harker Heights policeman Carl Levin, 31.

Police said Levin reported stopping a man to question him about a fire at a nightclub in this Killeen suburb near Fort Hood.

Levin's body was taken to Parkland Hospital in Dallas for an autopsy.

How to pull the plug on high electric bills.

Getting angry at the electric company about high bills won't help one bit. Because the problem is probably in your own home. If your heating and air-conditioning system is one of the old, low efficiency types, for example, a General Electric Executive high efficiency system is probably just what you've been wishing for. It's the most energy-efficient GE unit available today.

Imagine what that can do for your pocketbook!

So, don't get mad at the electric company next time your bill seems too high. Replace your old inefficient unit with a GE Executive high efficiency air conditioner. It has the lowest operating costs in the entire GE line.

And, that's a pretty good plug, wouldn't you say.

Commissioners Approve Application For Grant

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County commissioners Monday approved a $350,000 grant application to build a county juvenile detention center.

Probation department administrator Lloyd Watts and architect Lamar Youngblood brought floorplans of the proposed $1.1 million center to the meeting, and the commissioners attached the court to the application for its presentation today at a South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) meeting.

Commissioner Alton Brazell said after the meeting that enough money has been left available in the county permanent improvement fund and enough left uncommitted in future revenue sharing receipts to erect the center if the grant is approved.

Commissioner Jim Lancaster of Idalou said the Texas Criminal Justice Council, which consider the application, has $150,000 available now for such a project on the South Plains.

The commissioners are not counting on any federal revenue sharing funds after 1980, when the program will be considered for renewal by Congress.

They have allocated $500,000 in revenue sharing money for the center on nine acres of land at North University Avenue and Loop 289.

Plans are for the center to be built and opened possibly by September of next year.

Watts has proposed a $291,500 first-year budget.

In it, he asks for six more officers to go with the nine he has now, two sets of house parents, a full-time and part-time cook, a physician on retainer and two summer teachers.

He will be among department heads taking part in resumed county budget hearings at 9 a.m. Monday, Aug. 14.

Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard met with the commissioners in the Monday special meeting for the detention center grant because he will be out of town next week, he said.

Several comparatively minor budget changes were made at his request.

The commissioners approved a $2,160 calendar 1979 expenditure for the office teletype machine. The cost has been being paid by a grant that expires after this year.

The commissioners increased the badges and jail keys allotment from $50 to $250 and the jail food allowance from $72,000 to $77,500.

The combined jail and sheriff's office budgets now total $1,391,294.

The current budget for the department is for $1,047,231.

College Hedges On Accepting Boy, 8

NEW YORK (AP) — A University of Washington official backed off on Sunday from statements made earlier that an 8-year-old boy is about to become a student at the Seattle school.

Halbert Robinson, professor of psychology and director of the university's Child Development Research Group, said Sunday that Sayed Jalal, who holds a high school diploma from Afghanistan, will be "evaluated as to his abilities, and then put into a program suitable for him."

That program, he said, will most likely consist of classes in a special "K-12" program developed by the university together with the Seattle school system, but may include college courses "if Jalal is found to be advanced enough."

But when questioned Friday on the reported admission of the boy, Robinson responded, "Oh, yes, oh, yes." It would make the little Afghan "the youngest child to go to college, to my knowledge," he said.

At that time Robinson said: "There is no doubt that our program here will whet his appetite. What we need now is a relaxed environment for him to concentrate and study."

In Sunday's interview, Robinson said that "just because Jalal will be looked after by staff members here, and even if we do decide to let him take college courses, that does not make him an admission like a degree candidate."

Robinson said Sunday that those involved with the boy will make a determination over the next year as to what is best for the growth of the youngster.

Jalal arrived in New York on May 4 with his father, Sayed Karim, while his mother and three sisters — one of them reportedly under 5 and doing 11th-grade work — hope to join them soon.

Robinson said he has heard that efforts are already underway in Seattle to find Karim a job.

In the meantime, a group of Americans interested in the boy have set up a special account to collect funds for Jalal's "college" education while in Seattle. Joan Murray of the Institute of International Education told the AP last week.

At the moment, the youngster is spending little time on math and physics — his "specialty" — according to Jay Stager, director of Camp Hidden Valley in Maine where his American friends sent him to learn English. Rather, his mind is fully occupied with horses, swimming, and other childhood games.

"I can't believe his English is as good as it is," said Stager after several weeks of observing Jalal. "But I think it would be insanity to send him to college."

Like others, he describes the boy as "very quick and active." But, he said, Jalal has "no knowledge of anything other than math and some physics," and has "no intellectual curiosity about anything at all."

"He is a very cute little kid who wants to be the center of attention, throws temper tantrums when he doesn't get his way, and just wants to swim, ride horses, and play soccer. I can't get him to concentrate on anything else for longer than 10 minutes."

Jalal tested at 125 during intelligence testing at Columbia University's Teacher

College, which is considered below "outstanding." But it is believed that those scores may not be representative of the boy's true abilities because he spoke only Hindi at the time.

Panel Recommends Rehab Center Funds

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Advisory Board of the Governor's Criminal Justice Division has recommended the funding of a Lubbock County youth rehabilitation program.

The board recommended that the county receive a $66,834 grant for continued funding of "Project Intercept" which diverts so-called status offenders (such as truants and run-aways) from detention to a program outside the traditional court method.

The grant still must be recommended by the Criminal Justice Advisory Council and then receive the final approval of the governor.

Bets On New Pope Draw Solon's Ire

LONDON (AP) — Simon Mahon, a Roman Catholic member of Parliament, complained Monday that Ladbroke's, a British bookmaking firm, is taking bets on who will succeed Pope Paul VI.

He said he wrote a letter to Ladbroke's protesting "in the most fervent terms about their appalling taste."

The Labor Party legislator said, "We are electing a successor to Jesus Christ and that is not a matter for Ladbroke's."

 Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market was moderate on Monday. Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy and demand was moderate to light. Growers sold mixed lots at 1,100 to 1,400 points over loan rates. Lower grades and mixes brought the highest premiums over the loan.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations advanced 100 to 150 points. The base price of grade 41, staple 3 1/2, mix 1.5-4, stood at 56.70 cents a pound, 725 points over a week earlier.

Grade 41, staple 3 1/2, base mix, brought 51.50 cents.

LUBBOCK SPOT COTTON
 Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing Service for qualities equal to the U. S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mic) readings of 3.5 through 4.9, in mixed lots, unprocessed, free of all charges in the warehouse in the market.

PURCHASES: 1,200 bales at Lubbock; previous day 3,986; week ago 1,842; year ago 1,000.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures plummeted sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday, as reports that the Soviet grain crop might set a record this year prompted selling.

The losses also were considered a continuation of the general downturn that has prevailed in recent weeks. Overall good crop conditions and the outlook for ample supplies have been the major reasons for the prolonged weakness.

Reserve Additions Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Monday that new-crop corn and sorghum will be allowed into the feed grain reserves at harvest if the stockpile and government-owned stocks don't total 670 million bushels by Oct. 1.

Last Monday, in talking to reporters and state farm-program officials, Bergland gave the goal as 532 million bushels and restricted it to the farmer-held reserves. He said then that only corn would be given the special treatment.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

BOLLWORMS AND TOBACCO BUDWORMS now are a major concern to South Plains cotton farmers.

Dr. Jim Leser, area extension entomologist at Lubbock, says most bollworm infestations consist only of large worms, a result of earlier egg lay.

"We continue to get many calls about these older infestations," he says.

Growers who may have suffered yield losses from this first wave of bollworm activity should take their lumps and brace themselves for the next egg lay, Leser says.

"There just isn't a whole lot of an aerial applicator can do when worms consistently measure over half an inch," the entomologist adds.

CHANCES OF SHOWERS WILL INCREASE this month, according to the National Weather Service.

Showers would bring much needed moisture but also would aggravate the bollworm situation. Rains would increase plant attractiveness for bollworm egg laying activity.

Greater numbers of eggs also are laid on overcast days, since the moths are active for a longer period. Increased field humidity and lower temperatures also enhance egg hatch and survival of worms.

"All this adds up to the potential of an explosive development of infestations, Leser says.

Egg laying activity is expected to pick up dramatically across the whole South Plains by about Thursday. But Leser urges farmers not to wait until then to check their fields. He advises farmers to begin checking their fields every three days, beginning now.

FIELDS WHICH HAVE RECEIVED a recent irrigation or rain are a prime area for infestations to show up first, as are fields next to corn.

But Leser warns against assuming that only these kinds of fields will have an egg lay.

The potential populations of bollworms which will infest cotton this month are enormous, the entomologist says.

"In checking representative corn fields, we estimate there are approximately 3 billion corn earworms (called bollworms in cotton) which can spill out into cotton this month," he says.

"With numbers like these, even unattractive cotton fields can get into trouble during an egg lay."

AN AUTHORITATIVE PRIVATE ESTIMATE has assessed cotton production prospects in the 25-county High Plains area at 1,949,000 bales.

This drought-shortened crop is estimated at only 60 percent of last year's all-time high output of 3,215,400 bales.

Standing acres are estimated at 3,535,000, compared with 3,638,800 acres harvested in 1977, and yields per acre are projected at projected at 264.6 pounds, down from 424 pounds last year.

The yield would be about equal to the second lowest since 1952 when the average was only 199.9 pounds per acre. The only other times during this 26-year period when yields were lower than the 1978 estimate were in 1974 when the average was a meager 263.5 pounds per acre and in 1971 when farmers harvested 264.4 pounds an acre.

Bills' Interest Rate Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) The interest rates on Treasury bills dropped Monday, an indication the government's short-term borrowing costs are declining.

The interest rate on 13-week bills was 6.808 percent, down from the 6.895 percent rate a week earlier and the lowest since a 6.666 percent rate June 19.

The 26-week bills were sold at an interest rate of 7.172 percent, a decline from the 7.362 percent rate the week before and the lowest rate since a 7.121 percent auction rate June 12.

The auction results meant lower interest rates also on money market certificates offered by banks and thrift institutions.

Futures Contracts Mixed On Exchange

Chicago — Cattle futures moved up 45 points in the nearby contract, but later months skidded 12 to 40 led by February and August Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The market reacted after early gain of 137 points in October as prices rose to one-week highs, three cents per pound above recent lows. Softness followed failure of beef prices to move up at noon and traders also noted a mixed trend to cash cattle.

head. The six markets expect 15,200 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 10 to 47 points higher led by September. The market reacted after a gain of 15 points and briefly dipped 15 points. Volume was 2,043 contracts.

Early advances in live cattle futures, coupled with light arrivals and firmness in beef, brought in fresh support after Friday's gains. Later selling was traced to profit-taking and followed an easier turn to other meat futures.

Cash feeders were up $1 to $2 with the best top at $88. Receipts at the six major markets today are expected to be 1,700 head.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at $2 to $3 cents per pound. Cash cattle were off $1 to $1.50, with the best top at $55.25 per hundredweight at Omaha.

Slaughter was estimated at 128,000

Mouse Embryo Partially Develops Outside Womb

BALTIMORE (AP) — A scientist at Johns Hopkins University says he has reached a landmark in science by taking an embryo from the womb of a mouse and getting it to partially develop outside the womb.

The embryos are allowed to develop in the womb for about 36 hours — a point at which they have a rudimentary brain and heart, said Dr. Yu-Chih Hsu.

He said he has not been able to get the embryos to live longer than 12 days in the laboratory. If left in the womb, the embryos would develop fully in about 19 days.

COMPLETE STOCK MARKET YSE-A-MEX

Wall Street Moves Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower Monday as profit-taking ate up some of the previous week's gains.

The Dow Jones index of 30 industrial stocks was ahead by more than 3 points at midday, closed down 3.38 at 885.05.

The Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial stocks fell 49 to 114.46.

After last Wednesday's 26.05-point surge in the Dow and Thursday's record-breaking 66.37 million-share NYSE volume, things were bound to cool, said Hildegarde Zagorski at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc.

"The market had such an explosion last week that, of course, you had to have some sort of a decline," said Zagorski. But she said Bache's forecast that the Dow will reach the 900 mark "in a few weeks" still holds.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED

NEW YORK — "Sometimes I wonder if there's something wrong with me," says actor Mark Travis (Jerry McFarren on CBS' "Guiding Light").

"I'm usually cast as a psychotic, a rapist, a murderer or similar lunatic. Jerry is one of the first characters I've played who's nice enough that I'd want to have as a friend or bring home to meet the family," explains the "GL" newcomer. Travis lends such a likeable charm and good-natured sincerity to the role that it's difficult to remember that two years ago the same actor played Felix Buchanan, a patient on the edge of insanity who kidnapped Dr. Lesley Faulkner and threatened to slit her throat on ABC's "General Hospital."

The actor, whose youthful appearance has led him to a string of young roles, like 20ish Jerry, that are "usually ten years younger than I actually am," was born and raised in Holden, Mass. His father is an insurance broker and his mother teaches autistic children. Mark is the only offspring who pursued a theatrical career. His five brothers and sisters generally followed in their mother's footsteps and three of them are also educators.

After receiving his B.A. at Antioch College in Ohio and taking two years of graduate studies at the Yale School of Drama, Mark began his career by journeying to California. He secured a job as a "go-fer" (as in "go for some coffee, kid") at MGM and worked on the nighttime series, "Then Came Bronson." While working on sound stages and studying his craft, Jerry met his wife, Diane, whom he married seven years ago after "a long relationship as buddies." Looking back, it's proven to be an asset that it wasn't love at first sight. We knew each other's faults and had learned how to cope with them even before we became lovers," remembers Mark.

The actor has performed in dozens of nighttime series and specials, including "Marcus Welby, M.D.," "The Rookies," "Owen Marshall," and "In the Matter of Karen Ann Quinlan." "But Jerry," claims Mark, "is a pleasant departure from all the crazies I've played. Jerry's straight forward, comes right out and says what he thinks. He's socially naive and has a few rough edges. Remember, he was involved in a delicate robbery before I joined the show a month ago, even though he's rehabilitated himself. His only desire is to be a mechanic and be carefree. His ambitions are small, but he's not ashamed of them or himself."

Mark's ambitions, on the other hand, are grand and varied. He wants to produce and direct film, TV and theatrical productions and in his spare time he dabbles in writing scripts.

"My problem is limiting myself to one goal at a time," he says. "But I'd like to believe that I share Jerry's nicest qualities which include unbridled enthusiasm for what he's interested in. He's also an eternal optimist which is rather rare on soaps." Mark adds with a gregarious grin that belies his own personable charm and optimism.

Tune in tomorrow to see if Jerry remains optimistic in the face of serial woes.

SHORT TAKES:

An "older" Jamie Frame has resurfaced on "Another World" in the person of new actor Tim Holcomb. Jamie's embroiled in the schemings of "AW" newcomers, Blaine Ewing, played by Laura Malone, and her brother Larry Ewing, portrayed by Richard J. Porter.

ON "THE DOCTORS," Ruby Holbrook portrays Mrs. Harrick, the lady in charge of the home for unwed mothers where Greta Powers is attempting to resolve her pregnancy dilemmas.

Send your questions about soap operas to "Tune In Tomorrow," 230 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Questions cannot be answered personally but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.

PEAR WALDORF SALAD

Fresh pears add a delicious unusual touch to the traditional Waldorf salad. Core and dice pears to make 2 cups. Combine with 1 cup diced celery and 1/2 cup chopped walnuts. Blend 1/2 cup mayonnaise with 1 tablespoon sugar and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Toss with pear mixture and serve on greens. Makes 6 servings.

NEW COAT PROPORTIONS — This long expanse of tobacco brown fleece is a perfect example of the season's new coat proportions. Double breasted with a super-zipped collar and broad flanged shoulders, this coat is both casual and elegant.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do you think a person who has ear ringing needs medical attention? I am told it is a harmless thing which most folks get to some degree with aging. My doctor dismisses it as nothing unusual and tells me to try to forget it. — Mrs. P.

Well, let's put it this way. It's best to first eliminate the treatable causes of this very common complaint, which your own doctor probably has done. So much of my mail deals with the problem that this bears a bit of expansion.

It doesn't have to be an ominous sign. Prolonged symptoms may be. It's nice to know if the ringing is due to high blood pressure, for example, or to Meniere's disease, a nerve disorder, or to otosclerosis, which about 10 million in the U.S. have. Ear ringing is an early sign. These noises can be constant, irritating companions, so it is helpful to know if some impacted ear is causing it. Removing ear-wax might quiet down many of the boiler factories and carillons so many of my readers complain about. Even nervous tension can be a factor, and one can have this kind of personality without realizing it.

As I said earlier, ear noises are not usually an ominous sign, and with the high costs of medical care today I do not suggest that everyone run to the doctor's because of a bit of noise in the ears. But it is well to recognize the possible causes mentioned to see if any of them fit the case.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Ten months ago I had my gall bladder removed. Now I still get sour stomach with burning that lasts about three days at a time. Is this normal or should I go back to the surgeon who removed it? How long does it take after the operation to return to normal? — D.P.

You should not have these symptoms this long after removal. Digestion in almost all cases returns to normal within a couple of months. Bile is no longer stored, but the common bile duct remains to transport the substance from the liver to the intestines. Rarely, stones may form in the bile duct, but the symptoms would not be cyclical as you report. They would more likely be continuing.

A further note: it is wise after gall bladder removal to stay on a low-fat diet for a while. Are you doing this? An occasional departure from the diet might account for your periodic sour stomach and burning.

I rather suspect, though, that your difficulties arise from the stomach, stemming from some disorder involving stomach secretions (such as ulcers). Also, a structural problem as a hiatal (esophagus) hernia should be investigated. X-rays of the upper intestinal tract would show this. For further reading see my booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know if there is a remedy for phlebitis. I wear an elastic stocking on one leg, but I itch from my knee up to my hip. Is there a vitamin to take for this condition? — Y.T.

Some itching is to be expected with vein inflammation (phlebitis), but I suspect the elastic stocking is contributing to yours. The skin locally might be extra-sensitive to the elastic material. Other than an anti-itch lotion, try a thin cotton stocking under your support hose.

TO MRS. H.W. — Ten is young for a girl to begin menstruation, but it certainly need not indicate any serious problem. A thorough physical at this point might be in order to ease your concerns. She should have one anyway. Precocious puberty is usually defined as that occurring before the age of 10 in males and 8 in females.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

"IT'S TRUE, IT COULD BE YOU"

ANN HAYNES OF LUBBOCK, LOST OVER

50 LBS. & 55 INCHES.

It's really true. It can happen to you, too. With loyalty to the Pat Walker program you can actually eliminate those ugly pounds and inches that have sneaked up on you through the years.

You will see and feel a difference almost immediately in your body.

A friend and I had talked about losing weight, of course, we had tried to lose on diets, but seems the pounds came back faster than we had lost them. We decided to go for a complimentary treatment at Pat Walkers. It was the most relaxing time I have ever spent. I knew then the program was for me.

Before

TOTAL RELAXATION . . .

You can have total relaxation, stimulation, lose weight and inches without disrobing or messing your hair in your own private booth.

I was surprised to see so many professional ladies spending their lunch break in the salon. This program will fit into anyone's routine that really wants to lose pounds.

The personnel have been so encouraging to help me in any way they could. Actually you don't starve yourself. You just learn what foods are best for you to eat.

NO STRENUOUS EXERCISE . . .

I was unable to do strenuous exercises due to a back injury. My back muscles are much stronger now and I really feel good. I would recommend this program to anyone. It has really worked for me.

I have had fun losing my pounds. I look forward to each visit.

My husband has been so encouraging to me, he seems so proud since I am the same size I was twenty years ago.

It's true. It could be you.

AFTER!

Call for FREE treatment

We invite you to call for a courtesy treatment and figure analysis; there's no charge or obligation. Take advantage of this special offer, and get more information about Pat Walker's delightful and effective way to reach—and stay—at the perfect proportions you've wanted so long. ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: What are YOU doing about clothes these days? I'm 53 years of age, have always had a good figure and try to be smartly dressed. But — the current fashions are monstrosities. I have never seen such ugly, unflattering, grotesque styles in all my life. Every female might as well weigh 250 pounds. There are no waistlines. The blouse look is wonderful if you're pregnant or have a large tumor.

"The latest" are paisley tops with striped skirts and lowered blouses attached to polka-dot whatmacallits. Everything has yards of pleats, ruffles and flourishes. The colors are dreary and depressing. One of this city's most fashionable department stores has a full window of mannequins that look as if they just came off the rice paddies of Vietnam. Not a garment is priced under $200.

As I asked earlier, Ann Landers, what are you doing about clothes these days? — X-Asperated

Dear Ann Landers: Re the four-generations photo. I wish you had told the mother-in-law to get "out of the picture" altogether. She's a troublemaker. A normal person spending money on professional photographer could have arranged for a variety of groupings, selected the one she wanted, looked generous and given the young couple one of their choosing.

A dominating woman I know had three daughters who all reacted differently to heavy maternal interference. One daughter limited contact with her mother to a few days a year. Another ended up back on her mother's doorstep — divorced, unemployed, with two confused children. The third committed suicide.

The woman who wrote needs more than an "honest referee." She needs a backbone to keep her mother in line or out of her life before it's ruined. — No Fireworks Allowed

Dear No Fireworks: Your answer was better than mine. I bow to your superior wisdom.

Dear Ann Landers: When you visited this city, several people were impressed with your fantastic memory for names. If you have a secret, will you share it with your readers — especially one who never misses your column? — In St. Petersburg party.

Dear St. Pete: The "secret" is no secret. Here's the way to do it — and you can do it, too.

When you are introduced, get the name. If you don't get it, ASK. No one will be offended if asked to repeat his name. In fact, he'll be flattered that you are interested.

Speak to the person immediately after the introduction and use his name. Then associate the name with a specific characteristic. Example: Edith Appelon has checkers like apples. Or Harry Upton has an "Up" personality.

Deliver me from clods who make no effort to remember a name and then apologize by saying, "But I never forget a face."

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611 enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR FRIENDS: And you all are my friends. I want to take a few minutes of your busy time to tell you something from my heart. You just sit down, put your feet up and you relax for a spell while you read this. We all have bad times. Some of us seem to have them worse than others but no matter how large or small the problem, if it is a problem to you, then it's important.

Understanding what is bothering you, or why someone you love is upset over what to you seems like nonsense, is a major key.

Giving of yourself and giving to yourself is something we forget to do sometimes.

If I can help one dear soul out there then I feel I have given something to this world. It may be something as simple as how to keep those diapers clean with vinegar or how to fix a good meal without having to spend a fortune. To me and to you who read the column these are problems we all have.

If you can solve the small ones, then the big worries seem to be less of a burden.

Now I want to thank all of you. You give of yourself by writing me and sharing your ideas and money-savers. Sometimes a letter is so sweet. You write just to say "thank you" and that does my heart good.

To know that I have your support, helps me carry on and try to do a good job for you, my friends. Love to you — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE: Sometime ago an article came out in your column, a method for making the bed while remaining in bed. First you spread-eagle then catch the covers and pull them up over your head. Once the covers are straight, slip out of bed and finish straightening the bed.

I read this version and a funny little poem came to mind:

I read with mirth, your method for making up your bed.
I can see you all spread-eagled with your covers over your head.
So I thought I'd try your method, and all was going great until I discovered, with much surprise, my husband!!!! sleeping late!!!! — Jerrye Kelley

DEAR HELOISE: All of us have learned from your column that vinegar and salt clean brass and copper but vinegar runs off some items. I have found that by adding enough flour to the vinegar and salt you can make a thick paste that stays on the article to be cleaned. It works...and just as well as the expensive product one buys in the supermarkets.

I use equal parts of vinegar (the cheapest kind available) and salt for abrasion, then add enough flour to make a thick paste. I store it in a covered plastic or glass container. — Mrs. S.S. Labouisse

Fantastic! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: I enjoy your column and so I thought I should share a goodie of mine with you and your readers.

To toast a few nuts or seeds, such as sunflower or sesame seeds, I just plug in my hamburger cooker and toast the seeds in that.

Saves a lot of energy if you ordinarily use an electric stove. — Virginia Peterson

THIS COLUMN is written for you...the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 46th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Conferees Still At Odds On Points Of Tax Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — House and Senate members trying to write a compromise $500 million tax relief measure deadlocked Monday over taxing and spending limits and property tax reform.

The 10-member conference committee set another meeting for 9 a.m. Tuesday but there were no signs of an agreement in sight.

If the committee cannot reach an agreement, accepted by two-thirds of each house, it will be up to Gov. Dolph Briscoe to decide whether to settle for the one tax relief bill sent him or call another 30-day session.

Briscoe called the 181 lawmakers back to Austin on July 11 for the specific purpose of providing "meaningful tax relief" to Texas taxpayers.

So far, the only bill on Briscoe's desk is a $491 million measure repealing the 4-cent sales tax on utility bills and increasing inheritance tax exemptions for family estates.

In three separate sessions Monday, the House-Senate negotiators tried to settle their differences.

The Senate gave a little by accepting a House revision that would make the legislature responsible for replacing money lost by school districts in giving tax breaks to home and agriculture land owners.

The House gave a little by accepting Senate wording for a $5,000 mandatory general exemption for residential homesteads, based on market values, and up to $10,000 for homes owned by the elderly and disabled. The House originally wanted a general exemption up to $10,000 on assessed value.

But senators refused time and time again to accept three provisions unique to the House measure:

- Statewide uniformity of property taxation with countywide appraisals.
- A limit on state spending equal to the growth of personal income during the past two years.
- A requirement that any new tax bill must be approved by a majority of the membership of both houses, not just a majority of those present.

"I have voted for your bill," Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, told Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, who has carried a statewide tax appraisal bill the last three sessions, "but just a few days ago the entire committee voted 18-9 to kill the bill and the conferees are not going to vote for it now."

"This is not my bill," shouted Peveto.

Tech Cancels Nude Scene Plays

suggested they (Tech's theater department) sit back and review the plays again and, after considering a number of factors, the department decided to cancel the play.

He did not elaborate on the nature of the factors.

Letters written to The Avalanche-Journal since the July 2 column have been about equally divided between those in favor of the play being produced and those opposed. Weaver said the theater department had received only two calls: one from a woman who felt it was "wrong" to perform the play, and another from a man requesting tickets and "wanting to know what all the furor was about."

Graves and Hardwick both said they have personally received no calls or letters concerning the production.

Asked if Cecil Mackey, president of the university, had played a part in the discussions about "Equus," Graves said, "He may well have, but I didn't confer with him directly. I did report to Mr. Mackey and Mr. Hardwick the theater department's decision."

Hardwick answered the same question with, "Not at all. He had been informed earlier of the possibility of doing the play. But he played no part in the final discussions." According to Sharon Nelson at the Tech president's office, Mackey is "on vacation, driving with his family" and cannot be reached for comment until he returns Aug. 21.

The decision to withdraw the play came officially July 20, but Hardwick said that the approaching Board of Regents meeting was not a consideration.

Graves would not discuss the artistic merits of the play at length, stating that he has neither read "Equus" nor seen it performed. He did say, though, that a conflict has arisen because, "We live in a particular type of community. But then again, we do have a necessity to do what is best for the students at the university, to do what will help them the most. There are just a great many factors involved."

Asked if the decision to cancel the plays constituted censorship or a ruling against nude scenes in the future at Tech, Graves replied, "I certainly wouldn't want to say that."

"To me, it's something we have to decide on each season. I wouldn't want to draw that conclusion. But of course, if the (Tech) president and vice president and board say it's a policy, then neither you nor I would have much to say about it."

Hardwick said, "There is no such ruling. I think this is something the theater department will have to work out on its own. Let me just leave you with this thought. The discussions held were very open and when Dean Graves suggested the theater department reconsider, it was the theater department's own decision to cancel the play."

"Equus" was to be staged at the Tech University Theater Feb. 23-28, 1979. "The Curse of the Starving Class" was scheduled for April 6-11, 1979, at Tech's Lab Theater. No replacements have been announced.

Retired Persons Find Fulfillment In New, Different Kinds Of Work

Grigg laughed at his own description of his job. "I'm an errand boy for the judge."

Meeting people is his favorite part of the job, whether they be jurors, judges, attorneys or defendants.

One Monday morning in the central jury room Grigg saw a familiar face among those called for jury duty.

"I met an old boy I hadn't seen in 40 years," he said. He described his job as one, and that is an important ingredient for Grigg. It's one of the reasons he chose early retirement from teaching.

"Well, I liked teaching a lot," he said and laughed. "My idea is, when you get too old to laugh with the kids you should quit. The last year I taught I had a lot of fun. I got out before I lost my sense of humor."

It was his son, a former Lubbock assistant district attorney, who suggested being a bailiff might be fun.

"It's not hard work, you don't have to beat your brains out and it's interesting," Grigg said.

For others over 65 seeking a different occupation, a visit to the Texas Employment Commission may provide the answer.

Sam Harper, a TEC employment counselor, said some employers prefer older workers and that preference for an older worker is legitimate because "it's not contrary to civil rights. The under-40 are not in a protected group."

Those ages 40 to 65 are covered by the Age Discrimination in Employment Act which prohibits discrimination in age in hiring or in advertising for employment implying an age preference.

Even though age discrimination is illegal, it is practiced, Harper said.

"There are no reasons for it," Harper said of the illegal discrimination. "Just excuses."

The TEC is not an enforcement agency. Complaints are handled by either the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission or the Texas Department of Labor and Standards.

Women ages 40 to 65 also are covered by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Displaced Homemaker Bill passed in the last session of the Texas Legislature.

Bureau of Labor statistics show that approximately three million persons over 65 are employed in full- or part-time work.

Among the occupations Harper said are preferential to older workers are those of security guard, custodian, companion to the sick or elderly, operator of self-serve gasoline stations and service dispatcher handling radio and telephone calls in the delivery departments of department stores.

Department stores also hire older workers as sales clerks.

When Margaret Donley retired from Hemphill-Wells after 23 years as a sales clerk, her boss kissed her cheek and whispered in her ear, "You'll be hearing from me."

That was in 1974, when Mrs. Donley was 62. Since then her boss has called her to "help out," as she says, for inventories, sales and to fill in for vacationing employees.

At age 66, she works two days a week in the children's wear department in the downtown store.

"I've watched little girls grow up and come back here with their babies," she said.

Although she enjoys her work, she is an enthusiastic supporter of retirement.

"I do believe in retirement," she said as she nodded in agreement. "It's a time to enjoy life for yourself, go fishing with your husband and have time to see your grandchildren."

More and more older women are expected to join the employment force. It is estimated that in 1990, only 12 years from now, 58.3 percent of the women between the ages of 45 and 64 will work outside the home.

They will be helping to break the rocking chair stereotype of older persons being portrayed as unproductive.

Only after having attained the status of "aged" did some individuals make their lasting contributions to the world. Among them were Grandma Moses, Robert Frost, Martha Graham, Charles DeGaulle, Agatha Christie, Leonardo DaVinci, Madame Curie, Pope John XXIII and Duke Ellington — none of whom ever attended his or her own retirement party.

Locally, bailiff Mel Griggs is doing his own job of breaking the stereotype of retired senior citizens and for him it is more than a way to earn money and meet people.

"When you get in that rocking chair," Grigg says, "it's not for 'till you get to the great divide."

Cardinals' Security Pledged In Rome

thundershowers and strong gusts of wind.

Among those paying their respects were Italian President Sandro Pertini, but the majority were ordinary people from the surrounding hill towns.

"He looks so holy. He almost seems as if he is in deep and serene sleep," said Maria Luisa Sicaletti, a nun from nearby Albano.

The black iron gates of the palace were shut at 7:15 p.m. despite the protests of hundreds still in line outside. Palace officials said the body would be on public view again today.

Hundreds crowded the central nave of St. Peter's Basilica Monday evening as about 50 prelates, including Cardinal Paolo Marella, celebrated the first Mass for the soul of Pope Paul.

As St. Peter's bells tolled in the cloudy evening, one of the celebrant priests spoke of the pontiff's premonitions of death: "About 40 days ago in this basilica the pope said it would have been his last celebration in St. Peter. This premonition, however, did not frighten him. The serene passage to the full light was the last act of Pope Paul."

Only a few mourners wept openly in the huge church. "Pope Paul's death has been a great loss for us," Carla Calzoni, one in the crowd, told a reporter. "We can only hope the conclave can choose a pope as good as he was."

"He died the way he wanted to," Pope Paul's close friend and successor as archbishop of Milan, Cardinal Giovanni Colombo, said earlier Monday.

He said the pope told him privately years ago he had decided not to retire because everyone advised him "the Catholic world is not prepared to have a retired pope alongside a reigning pope." Yet, he said, the pope feared "old age prolonging itself with the inevitable physical and mental weakening."

At a Vatican meeting of cardinals already in Rome, Confolonieri, dean of the College of Cardinals, carried out the ancient ritual of breaking the carved gold ring, depicting St. Peter and a fishing boat, that Paul wore as the symbol of his authority. A new ring will be fitted for the new pope.

At another meeting today, the cardinals are expected to decide on details of the funeral and discuss the timing of the conclave to elect a successor.

The Vatican announced the pope's body will be brought to the Vatican Wednesday and will lie in state for three days in St. Peter's Basilica. On Saturday it will be buried, in a triple coffin, in the crypt beneath the basilica after a solemn funeral Mass attended by religious and political leaders from around the world.

A formal nine-day mourning period follows. Each day a cardinal or ranking prelate will say a special Mass for the pope in St. Peter's.

Then 115 cardinals eligible to elect the next pope — 15 over age 80 cannot vote — will gather in secret conclave in the Sixtine Chapel, under the lofty frescoes of Michelangelo, to begin the process of finding a successor. The conclave is expected to start Aug. 21.

In the interim, French-born Cardinal Jean Villot is officially head of the church in his role as papal chamberlain.

Pope Paul had broadened the international representation in the College of Cardinals, and this raises the most serious possibility of a non-Italian pope in modern history. The last non-Italian was Adrian VI, a Dutchman who was pope in 1522-23.

Besides Koenig, already ruled out by some observers because of his age, leading non-Italian candidates are Cardinals Eduardo Pironio, 58, an Argentine of Italian descent, and Johannes Willebrands, 68, of the Netherlands.

Other younger cardinals named as possibilities are George Basil Hume, 55, of England; Alfred Bengsch, 56, of Berlin, and Joseph Ratzinger, 51, a leading West German theologian.

But with 27 Italians forming the largest single bloc of votes and with centuries of tradition behind them, the real race was expected to be among the Italians.

Some of the names most frequently mentioned are Cardinals Sergio Pignedoli, 68, Sebastiano Baggio, 65, and Giovanni Benelli, 57, former right-hand man of Pope Paul.

Other Italian cardinals mentioned are Pericle Felici, 67, a member of several Curia congregations who became well-known when he ran the day-to-day business of the Second Vatican Council; Corrado Ursi, 70, and Salvatore Pappalardo, 59.

Messages of condolences began arriving from statesmen and religious leaders immediately after word of Paul's death was sent around the world.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, echoing the sentiments of many, issued a statement Monday saying, "At his passing we salute the constant champion of humanity and a tireless fighter for peace." He called the pontiff "a man of boundless compassion."

A statement from the World Council of Churches at its Geneva headquarters praised Paul, who actively fostered the movement toward ecumenism among churches, as having laid "the foundation for a new and lasting communion among all Christian churches."

Anglican bishops gathered in Canterbury, England, sent a letter of condolence to Cardinal Hume, saying they were "profoundly moved at the death of the Holy Father."

One of Paul's staunchest opponents in the church, the traditionalist Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, was recovering from an operation and had no public statement, a nun at his seminary in Ecône, Switzerland, said. But Parisian followers of Lefebvre, who challenged many of the church reforms instituted under Paul, planned to celebrate a Mass on Thursday for the pontiff's soul.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said Pope Paul, who sought a church-state detente with the Communist bloc, "did a lot for normalization of relations with socialist countries."

Prince Criticizes Iranian Protesters

Political demonstrators in Iran, however, still cry for the fall of the shah's regime.

Leaning forward to rest his elbows on his knees, gesturing with his slender hands, the prince said protesters must provide specific reasons for their discontent.

"They can come and say 'I don't like the system for these reasons,' and I can say, 'Okay, let's talk together and try to find the best way.' But now these people shout, and they don't know what they say. All they do is disturb people, like they did here in Lubbock," he said.

The Lubbock demonstration was peaceful, but other anti-shah sentiments have been expressed more violently. The shah has survived several assassination attempts, two plane crashes, political revolutions and coups d'etat.

The prince, who looks very much like portraits of his father as a young man with his dark brows and prominent jaw, will one day assume his father's office and with it, his enemies. Nevertheless, Prince Pahlavi says, he doesn't fear for his safety.

"I hope they won't try to kill me, of course, but the only thing I can do is try to help them when I am king," he said.

No one knows exactly when the prince will replace his father. Meanwhile, he is being groomed for the job to which he has been born.

And as part of his training, the prince has come to Reese to learn to operate the special military equipment the United States sells to Iran.

The United States is arming Iran with the world's most advanced fighter planes. American-made F14 Tomcat jets, 707 transports and converted 747 jets already are in Iran, according to U.S. News and World Report.

At Reese the prince and five other students from the Iranian Imperial Air Force are being trained to use these planes sold to their country for an estimated $18 billion dollars.

The prince attends the flight classes with about 40 other cadets, participating in the standard 50-week training program. Five days a week he lives on the base with the other students, coming to his $265,000 house only on weekends.

Although the prince, who has been piloting a plane since he was 13, is engaged in rigorous study at Reese Air Force Base, he says he really is in the United States to learn about Americans.

"I think to know the American people — the way they really are, what they think — is the most important reason for me to be here. Later I will have to work with the country, and the relationship between my country and this one is very important," he said.

Iran, the prince said, is more than 100 years behind the West in technical development. The country, he said, therefore, tries to pattern itself after the American system.

But Americans, the prince said, also could learn from the tradition-conscious Iranians.

"Americans should be more aware of their own heritage. It is very important never to forget one's own culture in the modern world."

American teen-agers, Prince Pahlavi says, are very much like youths he knows at home.

As do teen-agers universally, the prince enjoys socializing with others his own age, although he says his schedule precludes much free time.

When he does have time to relax, the prince, reputed to be an avid fan of rock music and an accomplished drummer, frequents a local disco, always accompanied by friends and numerous secret service men.

Reportedly a fond of athletics as he is of sport, the 5-foot-10 prince says he hopes to play soccer with a local team — a music in which he excels.

In all he does, the prince, who drives his own car when in Teheran, says he wants to be as much like an ordinary student as possible.

Just as his father once said being a king brings only headaches, the prince says he often wishes he were not heir to the throne.

"I have to accept it (my role) because it is my title, and I have to follow my title," he said.

"I was educated in a special way to be a crown prince, but I also was educated as normal boys are. As for myself, I like to be treated in a very simple way."

His weekend home, though, is filled with reminders of his destiny. The living room furnished with two blue floral sofas and a heavy desk contains numerous books about Iran and the shah. Portraits of the royal family in full court dress, displayed in a back room of the house, testify to his heritage. In one picture the prince stands by his father. Both are dressed in medal-covered uniforms, the clothing of their positions.

When he does have time to relax, the prince, reputed to be an avid fan of rock music and an accomplished drummer, frequents a local disco, always accompanied by friends and numerous secret service men.

Reportedly a fond of athletics as he is of sport, the 5-foot-10 prince says he hopes to play soccer with a local team — a music in which he excels.

In all he does, the prince, who drives his own car when in Teheran, says he wants to be as much like an ordinary student as possible.

Just as his father once said being a king brings only headaches, the prince says he often wishes he were not heir to the throne.

"I have to accept it (my role) because it is my title, and I have to follow my title," he said.

"I was educated in a special way to be a crown prince, but I also was educated as normal boys are. As for myself, I like to be treated in a very simple way."

His weekend home, though, is filled with reminders of his destiny. The living room furnished with two blue floral sofas and a heavy desk contains numerous books about Iran and the shah. Portraits of the royal family in full court dress, displayed in a back room of the house, testify to his heritage. In one picture the prince stands by his father. Both are dressed in medal-covered uniforms, the clothing of their positions.

Hearings To Decide Radial Tire Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 7-year-old girl who lost her mother, an aunt and her own right leg in an auto accident clutched at a doll Monday as attorneys for her family contended that the wreck was caused by a defective Firestone 500 steel-belted radial tire.

The attorneys for Selena Lee Clement of Churchland, N.C., were the lead-off witnesses as the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration opened hearings on whether Firestone should recall about 13 million of the tires.

The accident occurred June 24 when a car driven by the girl's aunt went out of control and collided with another vehicle near Loris, S.C., killing three. Her attorneys claimed it was caused when the right rear tire failed and the tread peeled away, wrapping around the axle housing.

They showed film and photographs intended to back up their arguments. The tire was a Firestone 500.

On July 7 the safety agency said the 500 has safety defects and should be recalled by the company. That recommendation was made after federal engineers said they analyzed more than 6,000 reports from consumers alleging "more than 14,000 individual tire failures, 29 deaths,

Heart Attack Fatal To Motorist Here

A 75-year-old Lubbock man apparently suffered a fatal heart attack late Monday while driving through South Lubbock, sending his car slowly coasting into the side of a 55th Street residence.

Police said Clarence Maddison Lang of 3436 70th St. evidently collapsed about 9:45 p.m. while northbound on a University Avenue access road. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Charles E. Smith, who ruled the death due to natural causes.

Lang's Ford Pinto struck the corner of the 2330 55th St. home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hill, causing only minor damage, after gliding off the access road, east on 55th Street, through a corner lot and between two homes to strike the structure. The Hills were uninjured.

Services for Lang are pending with Resthaven-Singleton-Wilson Funeral Home.

Abuse Suspect Released

A 48-year-old Lubbock man was released from Lubbock County Jail on temporary bond after a Saturday incident in which police were told he raped his 14-year-old daughter.

Officers said the child's mother telephoned police to report the abuse about 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Investigating patrolmen arrested the man for indecency with a child, retaliation, assault on a police officer and using abusive language after taking statements from the girl and her mother.

Two other Lubbock men accused of trying to kidnap and rape an 18-year-old Lubbock woman earlier Monday remained in Lubbock County Jail.

The housewife told authorities she was sitting in front of a convenience store at 9th Street and Avenue V about 1 a.m. Monday when the two men approached her.

After one man made an obscene remark, she said she started to walk away when the man grabbed her and dragged her to a nearby apartment complex. She told police the 18-year-old suspect began beating her and threatening to kill her if she did not give in to his demands.

Lubbock police officers nearby, however, had talked with men matching the description of the assailants the woman gave officers after her attackers fled when she began screaming.

Recognizing the description, the officers relocated both suspects and arrested both men for aggravated kidnapping and attempted rape.

Other patrolmen who stopped a car with two youths believed to be curfew violators about 4:10 a.m. Monday ended up arresting both juveniles for possession of marijuana.

Patrolmen stopped the auto in the 2000-block of Flint Avenue after recognizing one of the boys. While inventorying the vehicle, however, officers found a plastic bag of a substance believed to be marijuana under the front seat.

Burglars who rummaged through Bob Peterson's 3315 E. Broadway business between 4 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Monday walked away with an air conditioner and a calculator for a loss of $245 to Peterson, he told police.

A $150 television set was the target of intruders at Janie Marcelano's 3113 Erskine Ave. No. B home about 9:10 p.m. Sunday.

Ethel Humphrey of 2717 E. 9th St. reported the theft of about $2,300 in assorted items from her home between 11 p.m. and midnight Sunday.

J.V. Powers of 3213 21st St. told police someone removed a $125 television set from his home between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. Sunday, while burglars later in the evening apparently made off with about $80 from a cash register at the El Tejas Restaurant at 1000 N. Ave. Q, Jean Evans reported.

Stephen Garrett Smith of 301 Ave. X No. A reported a missing stereo system valued at $1,338 after burglars entered his residence during the weekend.

Melvin Craft of 7007 Elmwood Ave. told police someone took about $450 worth of lumber from a house at that address between 6 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Monday.

A chrome pistol valued at $119 reportedly was taken from an auto owned by Johnny Lee Payne of 3304 E. Cornell St. while parked outside an 8th Street and Avenue A restaurant between 11:15 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Sunday.

Police met a six-months-pregnant woman at Health Sciences Center Hospital about 7 p.m. Sunday, and were told the woman's husband beat her up at the couple's 4th Street apartment.

The 18-year-old woman, who was treated and released, said her spouse began kicking her as she approached her apartment, and continued to assault her once inside.

Mack Jenkins said a $400 television set and $130 shotgun was lifted this weekend from his 2720 E. Second Place residence. He reported an undetermined amount of cash and clothes taken in the burglary.

Nuclear Protesters Arrested

By The Associated Press
More than 70 anti-nuclear demonstrators were arrested Monday in Oregon and California — for a two-day total over 420 — as demonstrations to mark the 33rd anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki continued around the country.

In Rainier, Ore., 20 protesters were arrested at the Trojan nuclear plant after they leaped over the main gate to the Portland General Electric Co. facility. It was the second of a planned four days of protests.

And at the Diablo Canyon nuclear plant in San Luis Obispo, Calif., 50 protesters were taken into custody, bringing to more than 400 the number arrested there since Sunday. Sheriff George Whiting said those arrested Monday blocked the gate at the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. plant. Most face trespassing charges.

The protest was sponsored by a group called the Abalone Alliance, which opposes nuclear power plants, and continued despite a court order barring protesters from interfering with operations at the facility.

They were among a number of demonstrations this past weekend.

Sunday was the anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima, and on that day in Washington, a woman who tried to make a speech against the neutron weapon from a seat behind President Carter was dragged from services at the First Baptist Church.

Demonstrations, marches or speeches also occurred at state capitols, nuclear power plants and near military bases.

They included a protest staged at Pease Air Force Base in Newington, N.H., against the 509th Bomb Wing, the unit from which planes left in 1945 to bomb Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

A peaceful rally was held Sunday at a nuclear plant at Wiscasset, Maine, and more demonstrations were scheduled in that state for Wednesday, the 33rd anniversary of the bombing of Nagasaki.

The weekend protests also included demonstrations outside Los Angeles, in Atlanta; at two nuclear plants in Ohio; in North Carolina and Tennessee; and at a number of locations around New England.

The family suggests memorials to St. Paul's Episcopal Church memorial fund.

New Ordinance To Prohibit Discrimination

The Human Relations Commission voted Monday night to send a proposed anti-discrimination ordinance to the city attorney for recommendations before taking the proposed ordinance to the City Council in September.

The proposed draft of the ordinance requires any place of public accommodation that offers food, beverages, overnight accommodations or entertainment, to obtain a license from the Human Relations Commission (HRC). The license would verify that the establishment was not violating any human rights or discriminating on the basis of race, ethnic background, national origin, religion or sex.

Business establishments would have 120 days from the date the ordinance goes into effect to apply for a license. A commission member would investigate the applicant, and the commission as a whole would vote on whether to grant the establishment a license.

Businesses would be required to post the license and establishments not complying with the ordinance would be investigated by the Human Relations Commission. If found in violation of the ordinance, the business could lose its license and be required to close for as many as six months.

Enforcing the proposed ordinance, commission members said, would not be a burden because proper enforcement would be in the commission's best interest.

"Hopefully, we would have people on the commission who would want the ordinance enforced, people with a direct interest in its enforcement," said Theron Cole, HRC chairman.

The proposed ordinance was drafted following allegations that local night clubs were discriminating against minority group members by enforcing a dress code and other house rules at random.

"Everyone knows the discrimination is going on," Cole said. "The City Council is the only group we have to prove it to."

Complaints against the night clubs have diminished during the summer months, Human Relations Director Luciano Perez said. But he added that these complaints usually come in cycles. "During the spring and in the fall when the Tech students return we all ways have more calls about the night clubs," said Perez.

Hydrilla Weed Snarers Conroe Drowning Victim

CONROE (AP) — Hydrilla has claimed its first drowning victim in Lake Conroe, Montgomery County deputy sheriffs say. Loy David Smith, 35, of Houston, became entangled in the weed Saturday after jumping into the water to rescue his dog, deputies said. The dog had fallen out of Smith's boat.

Deputies said Smith drowned before two nearby fishermen could rescue him.

Authorities are trying to find a way to control hydrilla. The aquatic weed infests Lake Conroe, as well as other Texas lakes.

The deputies urged boaters to avoid patches of hydrilla. They warned the weed can become entangled in a boat's propeller.

Fishermen frequent hydrilla infested areas, they said, because fish congregate there.

Dole Sets City Speech

U.S. Sen. Bob Dole will be the guest speaker at a $100-a-plate fund raising dinner for State Senate candidate Joe Robbins at the Hillcrest Country Club Saturday night.

Dole, the GOP vice presidential nominee in 1976, is being brought to Lubbock by the Republican Party of Texas to aid Robbins in his race against Democrat E.L. Short.

Jim Foster, field director for the state GOP, said the party considers the Robbins' campaign a "major targeted race" in Texas.

Also appearing at the fund raiser will be Republican State Chairman Ray Barnhart and local GOP candidates for office. The Lubbock Republican headquarters at 799-3038. There will be a reception beginning at 7:30 p.m., followed by dinner.

WELCOME — Eddie Mathews, left, waves to the crowd Monday after he was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y. Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn made the presentation to the only living person to be inducted this year. (AP Laserphoto)

Baseball Hall Adds Trio

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The Baseball Hall of Fame got three new members Monday and the sport itself may have gotten a new slogan.

Eddie Mathews, the slugging third baseman, who is the all-time home run leader for his position; the late Larry MacPhail, baseball's first great innovator; and the late Addie Joss, an early 20th century pitcher with Cleveland, were inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Broadcasting greats Mel Allen, who coined the new phrase Long Live Baseball, and Red Barber received the first presentation of the Ford C. Frick Award for outstanding baseball broadcasting. Edgar Munzel and the late Gordon Cobbledick were given the J.C. Taylor Spink award for distinguished service as a baseball writer.

Mathews, who retired in 1968, is tied for ninth on the all-time home run list with 512, the same number as 1977 Hall inductee Ernie Banks.

"I'm just a beat-up old third baseman," Mathews said as he accepted "the greatest honor of my career. I'm just a small part of a wonderful game that is a tremendous part of America today."

"Baseball has been so good to me, everything I've got, I owe to it. I've tried to give it all I had."

In doing so, Mathews set National League marks for most consecutive seasons with 30 home runs, nine (1953-61), most home runs in a season by a third baseman, 47 in 1953, and most games played at third base, 2,154.

Mathews, who with Hank Aaron previously held the record for most home runs in a season, 52 in 1954. See HALL, Page 2

SWC Honors King

"Football '78," the official Southwest Conference roster and record book, has been dedicated to Texas Tech's retiring athletic director, J.T. King.

The publication is now being distributed, and copies are available at $4 each by contacting the Southwest Conference, Box 7185, Dallas, 75209.

King will be retiring Aug. 31 after almost two decades of association with Tech.

"J.T. King and the Southwest Conference first crossed paths 44 years ago, before either was 20 years old," the opening statement in the 250-page book states.

"They've been inseparable ever since, from 'Jake' King's freshman football season at the University of Texas in 1934 through his retirement as Texas Tech athletic director in August 1978.

"He was an assistant coach at Texas A&M and Texas, head coach at Texas Tech for nine years and athletic director for eight years.

J.T. KING

Those who coached with and against J.T. King, and those who worked with him in the Southwest Conference and throughout the nation, dedicate this publication to him as one small token of their appreciation and esteem."

Early To Bed,
Early To...

IT WAS A Texas map, all right, but clipped a la jigsaw puzzle. However, spotted as they were, under the desk glass, the pieces could be shoved together to form a regular-looking overview of the state in a matter of seconds.

Just a few feet away, on the south wall of the office, was another map of the Lone Star state, this one all in one piece but pierced by hundreds of black and red-headed pins. There was little pattern to the pins, except the largest concentrations appeared to be in the largest population concentrations.

But, Taylor McNeel wasn't thinking about per-capitas or growth projections. His pins represented the future of Texas Tech football.

Here it is, the week before the 1978 high school football season begins, and already, McNeel was thinking about and gearing up for the winter recruiting season and the footballers the Raiders will try to corral for next fall.

Somehow, this sort of planning seems a bit far away, but...

WITH THE RAIDERS' arrival day of Aug. 19 less than two weeks away, it was uncommonly quiet around the Tech football wing Monday. Nary a coaching coach was on hand. There was McNeel and one graduate assistant—and he had a road map in his hand and a faraway look in his eye.

McNeel is recruiting coordinator on Rex Dockery's table of operations, but, then, why is it that every one of the on-field coaches—including Dockery—is on the road, checking recruiting territories and prospects and McNeel is hanging around the store?

"That's the way we worked it out," the recruiting supervisor commented Monday. "You can have eight fulltime coaches and two part-time coaches out on the road (an NCAA regulation), and we just worked it out so that I would not go on the road. Some other schools work it this way, and we thought it would be a good system."

Calvin Hill Loses Desire, Calls It Quits

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — Washington Redskins runningback Calvin Hill, indicating he had lost some of his enthusiasm for the game, said he had decided to retire from pro football, a team spokesman announced Monday.

Redskins spokesman Charlie Taylor, said that Hill announced his decision at training camp Monday afternoon. Hill said he had simply decided after nine years of pro football that it was time to step down.

The 31-year-old runningback, who is 16th on the all-time National Football League rushing list, has complained about his lack of playing time under former coach George Allen. Jack Pardee is the new coach.

The 6-foot-4, 227-pound Hill spent eight years in the NFL and one year in the World Football League.

"That way, every coach has a definite territory," added McNeel. And, he can keep his finger on all areas.

He looked at the jigsawed map.

"We divided it up, so each guy has a certain territory, as equal in number of schools as possible. Bob (Patterson) has this big portion (sweeping his hand over the western quarter of the state), but so much of it is just land. And (Al) Tanara has East Texas, but he really has more schools than anyone else, because there are so many Class A and AA schools over there."

WHILE McNEEL WAS talking about the coaches, they were talking about players, with players and coaches over the state.

Usually, college coaches fan out the first week of schoolboy drills to get early looks at the fall crop. But, with Tech to start up on Aug. 19 (the end of the first week of high school practices), the coaches could not get that much on-site work done. Thus, the toil this week.

"We only plan one staff meeting before the players arrive," said McNeel. "We got all our (planning) work done last week (at a lake retreat session lasting five days), so we can recruit. The coaches won't be back until the day before the players check in."

Under NCAA guidelines, each major college is allowed three official visits with each prospect. Tech is trying this time to expend one of those visits with some of the prospects.

"EVEN THIS WEEK," commented McNeel, "the kids will usually be up around the school working out on their own... playing a little touch... running. Our coaches can get a look at them, get some idea of their agility, speed."

"And, they can see that Double-T and know we're around."

"On the official visits, we get our foot in the door, where, when a kid only can visit six schools, we're in better position to get them to visit us. This way (going early), we have some positive contact with the players."

"Usually, once the season begins, the high school coaches don't want the kid bothered, especially the latter part of the week. But, since we've already seen him, either on an official visit or during a workout, when we can, we already know his sister's name, his aunt who lives with him, something about him, and they know we're interested in them."

"We'll probably call every kid we're interested in at least once a week from now on, so we want to be on a good footing with them."

What's the name of this game?

Catfish Returns With Spark

NEW YORK (AP) — To paraphrase Mark Twain, reports of Catfish Hunter's demise have been greatly exaggerated. But despite two scintillating performances in a row, Hunter insists that his baseball obituary will be written when the curtain falls on the 1979 season.

That's when the five-year contract he signed with the New York Yankees as a free agent after winning his release from the Oakland A's runs out.

"The last game I pitched in 1979, even if I win 25 games and we go to the World Series, that's it," the 32-year-old Hunter said in the wake of Sunday's five-hit 3-0 victory over Baltimore, his first complete game of the season and first shutout in more than a year.

At least Hunter can look forward to pitching in 1979. A few weeks ago, when his home address was the disabled list with an aching shoulder, it appeared that his brilliant career might have reached an end, especially after last year's injury-plagued 9-9 campaign.

There has rarely been a sadder sight in baseball than watching Hunter trudge off the mound July 27 after facing six Cleveland batters and surrendering three walks, three hits and six runs. Never before in his career had he failed to retire at least two batters.

So even though Hunter was the same laconic, soft-spoken Catfish as ever, you could sense how the Yankees felt as they raced from the dugout to congratulate him after Sunday's shutout. It came on the heels of eight scoreless innings against Texas five days earlier.

This was more than just a sore-shouldered pitcher proving he was sound. The never-complaining Hunter is a 215-game winner and a sure Hall of Famer.

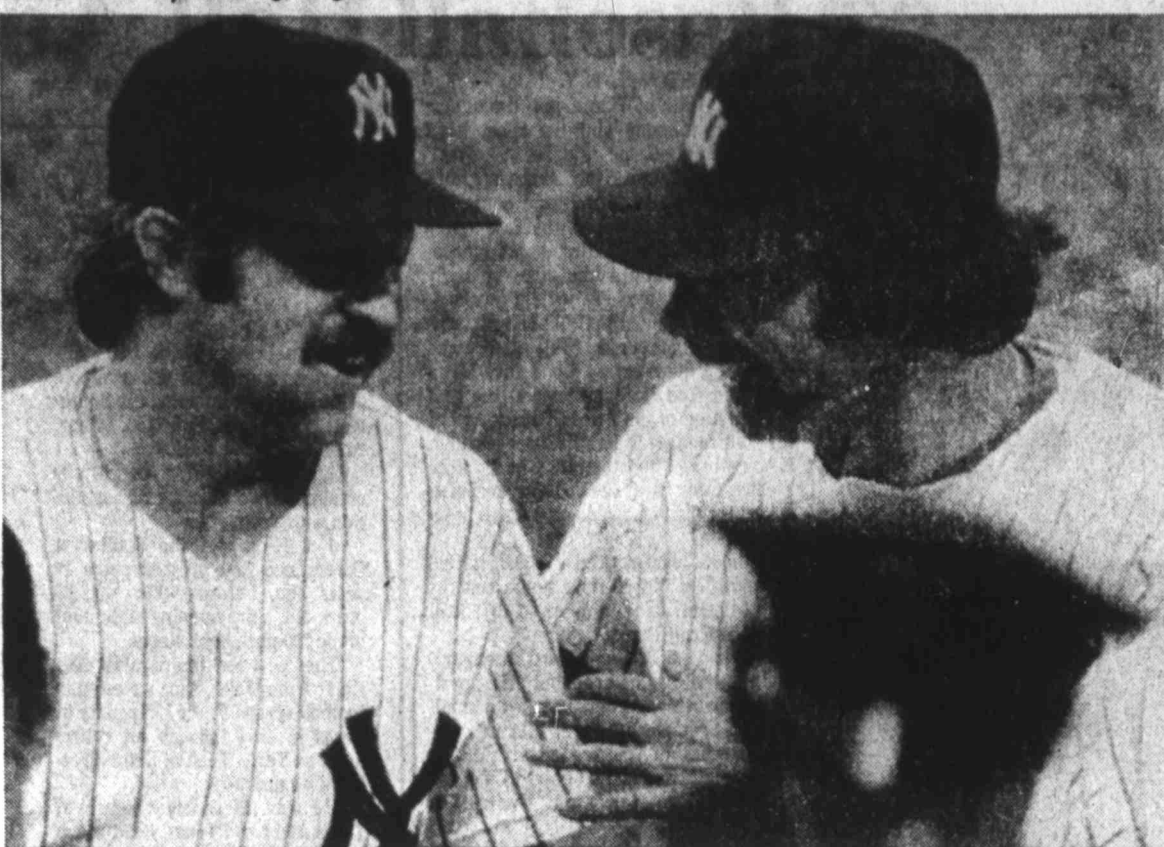

Even Baltimore's Jim Palmer, Sunday's victim and a three-time Cy Young Award winner, wasn't too unhappy.

"For a couple of years, pitching against him didn't mean the same thing as before," said Palmer. "But he never changed as a person and it's nice to see him back pitching well, even though I really don't want to get beat by him."

What apparently cured Hunter was a unique shoulder manipulation treatment performed a few weeks ago by Dr. Maurice Copen, the Yankees' team physician.

"He puts you to sleep, he grabs your arm and he bends it every which way to break the adhesions," Hunter explained. "He said there was such a big pop when he bent my arm back that he thought he broke it. But all I know is that I couldn't throw before that."

Now, Hunter can throw his fast ball, slider, sinker and curve with the pinpoint control that has been his trademark.

WT, Robinson Picked For Valley Honors

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — West Texas State is the pre-season pick to win the Missouri Valley Conference football title this season and fullback Bo Robinson of Lamesa is expected to be the man who will lead the Buffaloes to the crown.

Valley headquarters Monday released a poll of coaches, writers and broadcasters that was taken last week. The Buffs had 145 points in the media poll compared to 138 for second-place Wichita State.

Tulsa placed third with 96 votes, followed by New Mexico State with 88, Southern Illinois 61, Indiana State 47 and Drake 41.

Coaches agreed with the media through the first five places but picked Robinson was picked to head the mythical all-star selections. Eleven returnees from last year's all-Valley squad were picked to repeat.

The 6-foot-2, 215-pound Robinson had 1,399 yards rushing last season to lead the Valley and rank fourth nationally.

His average of 7 yards per carry was the best in the country and he also led the Valley in scoring with 66 points.

The other runningback picked was Benell Quinn of Southern Illinois. He rushed for 822 yards as a sophomore last season and was the Saluki's top pass receiver with 16 catches for 203 yards.

Wichita State's Jim Andrus, passing and total offense leader in the Valley last year, was chosen for quarterback. He completed 119 of 236 pass attempts for 1,684 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Wide receivers were Bryan Hanning of Wichita and Tulsa's Ricky Watts.

The offensive line included Drake's Pat Tuttle at tight end and Indiana State's Tunch Link at center. Other offensive linemen chosen were Barry Bales and Joe Odum of Wichita State, Mark Stewart of West Texas State and Doug Panfil of Tulsa.

Skip Vernon of New Mexico State was named kicking specialist.

The defensive backs were Sherman Taylor of Wichita State, Lovie Smith of Tulsa, Curtis Lofton of WT and Don Jackson of Indiana State.

Defensive line selections were Willie Smith of Wichita State, Rich Carstens and David Glover of Drake, Mark Michuda of Southern Illinois and Gary Game of Indiana State. Linebackers were Dusty Furr of New Mexico State and Scott Braden of West Texas State.

Foyt Pops Third-Placer

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — After seeing that his pit crew "got our act together," A.J. Foyt turned the Texas Grand Prix into his 60th championship and then enlivened the victory circle by throwing a punch at Steve Krisloff.

After it was over Sunday, the four-time Indianapolis 500 winner said he probably will be racing two more years. "Two more years if I don't get hurt," he said. "As long as my health stands up and I feel good."

Foyt and his Coyote No. 14 won $15,074, taking the lead to stay with 25 laps to go. His 156.5 miles per hour average for the 200 miles left Johnny Rutherford a distant second and Krisloff third. Rutherford won $8,797, Krisloff $6,218.

Foyt termed Krisloff a "four-cylinder crybaby."

Krisloff followed Foyt into the victory circle and Foyt quickly landed one punch. John Fisher, a Foyt crewman, then enveloped Krisloff in a bearhug and carried him to pit row.

Foyt, asked why Krisloff stormed into the circle hollering at him, said, "He said I cheated him on the pace car and wouldn't let him in. He was talking about how I had held him back from going into the pits. He started mouthing at me, so I reached up and popped him."

Walton Screens Offers; Blazers Offer Refunds

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Portland Trail Blazers offered refunds Monday to season-ticket holders disappointed by Bill Walton's announced plans to leave the National Basketball Association team, while the New York Knicks and Golden State Warriors were next in line for talks aimed at landing the 6-foot-11 center.

"We think it's only fair that a refund be offered to those who wanted to see the games because Walton was playing here," said Blazer spokesman John White.

However, White said he didn't expect the team would have to cash in many tickets. "If there were going to be any mad rush, it would have started already — and it hasn't," he said.

Season seats for the 1977 NBA champs run from $184.50 to $410, and were sold out last year well in advance.

Talks were planned for Monday between Walton and New York Knicks coach Willis Reed and general manager Eddie Donovan, Mike Burke, president of the New York club, and Sonny Werblin, president of the Madison Square Garden Corp. were due in Portland today.

"There is no question about the level of seriousness of the Knicks' interest in Walton, simply because of the people who are coming here to talk with Bill," said Walton's confidant and agent, Jack Scott.

He said Walton also has talks lined up today with coach Al Attles and general manager Scotty Sterling of the Golden State Warriors. Walton met for four hours Sunday with Gene Shue, new coach of the unnamed San Diego franchise but has not been contacted by San Diego owner Irv Levin.

The Blazers announced Friday that they will try to trade Walton, at his request. Agents for Walton said the 25-year-old decided to leave the Blazers after four seasons because he was angered by the team's medical policies. He has a year left on his Blazer contract.

Walton, who is still on crutches, was given a pain-killing shot before a playoff game against Seattle last spring. He played for part of the game and later learned his foot was broken.

"Bill is going to be dealing with some kind of court decision within a few weeks — basketball or otherwise," Scott told the Associated Press.

Scott said Philadelphia general manager Pat Williams has called to see if Walton would consider coming to the 76ers, after turning them down twice before in his career.

"The two teams that seem to be totally involved are Golden State and the Knicks," said Scott. "Maybe it's just a coincidence, but all four teams that we're dealing with have as coaches players who had extensive careers in the NBA and know first-hand the legitimacy of Bill's concerns."

Denver and Los Angeles have said they are not interested in Walton, although they were on a list of preferred teams made by Walton and his agents.

Scott said that while Walton may be interested in San Diego because it is his hometown, he also is attracted by the cultural benefits of New York and San Francisco.

"Both New York and San Francisco would be advantageous socially for Bill," said Scott. "Certainly a city like New York could accommodate someone like Bill Walton, and in the bay area, Bill would just have to walk down the street to hear a Grateful Dead concert."

Top Seed Falls At Net Event

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Top-seeded Mima Jausovec was second guessing herself Monday after 20-year-old Viviana Gonzalez of Argentina eliminated her in one of two major upsets in the opening round of the 68th U.S. Open Clay Court tennis championships.

Gonzalez, who came up with her best finish in two years as a pro, scored a 1-6, 6-4, 6-0 triumph over the 1978 German Open winner.

Carrie Meyers of Indianapolis defeated third-seeded Kathy May, 6-4, 6-3 in the other women's upset.

Most of the opening day action was confined to women's play, with top-seeded Jimmy Connors scheduled to face Australian Rod Frawley in the evening's feature match. Australian Phil Dent, a semi-finalist here last year who is seeded no. 16, plays Bill Scanlon of Dallas in another evening match.

"I didn't arrive here until Sunday," said Jausovec, a 22-year-old Yugoslavian. "I'm usually pretty quick, but my legs were very slow today. I should have come sooner."

Gonzalez is coached by her grandfather, Felipe Locicero, who also coaches Argentina's Guillermo Vilas. She arrived here Friday and spent several hours practicing at the tournament site, the Indianapolis Racquet Club.

"My mother used to pitch to me and my father would shag balls," he said. "If I hit one up the middle, close to my mother, I'd have some extra chores to do. My mother was instrumental in making me a pull-hitter."

MacPhail, who was responsible for such innovations as night baseball, Old-Timers Day, a pension plan for the players and office personnel, and airplane travel for the teams, was represented at the ceremonies by his sons Lee, president of the American League, and Bill, a broadcasting executive.

"My father brought business ability to running a baseball team," said Lee MacPhail. "He was aggressive, flamboyant, garrulous, loud but also a promotional genius and a visionary. He loved baseball and anything he tried to do was for the good of baseball."

"He battled with his contemporaries but he bore no grudges. He once said he would not accept membership in the Hall, that it was for people who earned it on the field, the players. But knowing the esteem he held the Hall in, he would have accepted and gotten his two cents in."

Mahaffey Glad Fella After Win At PGA Event

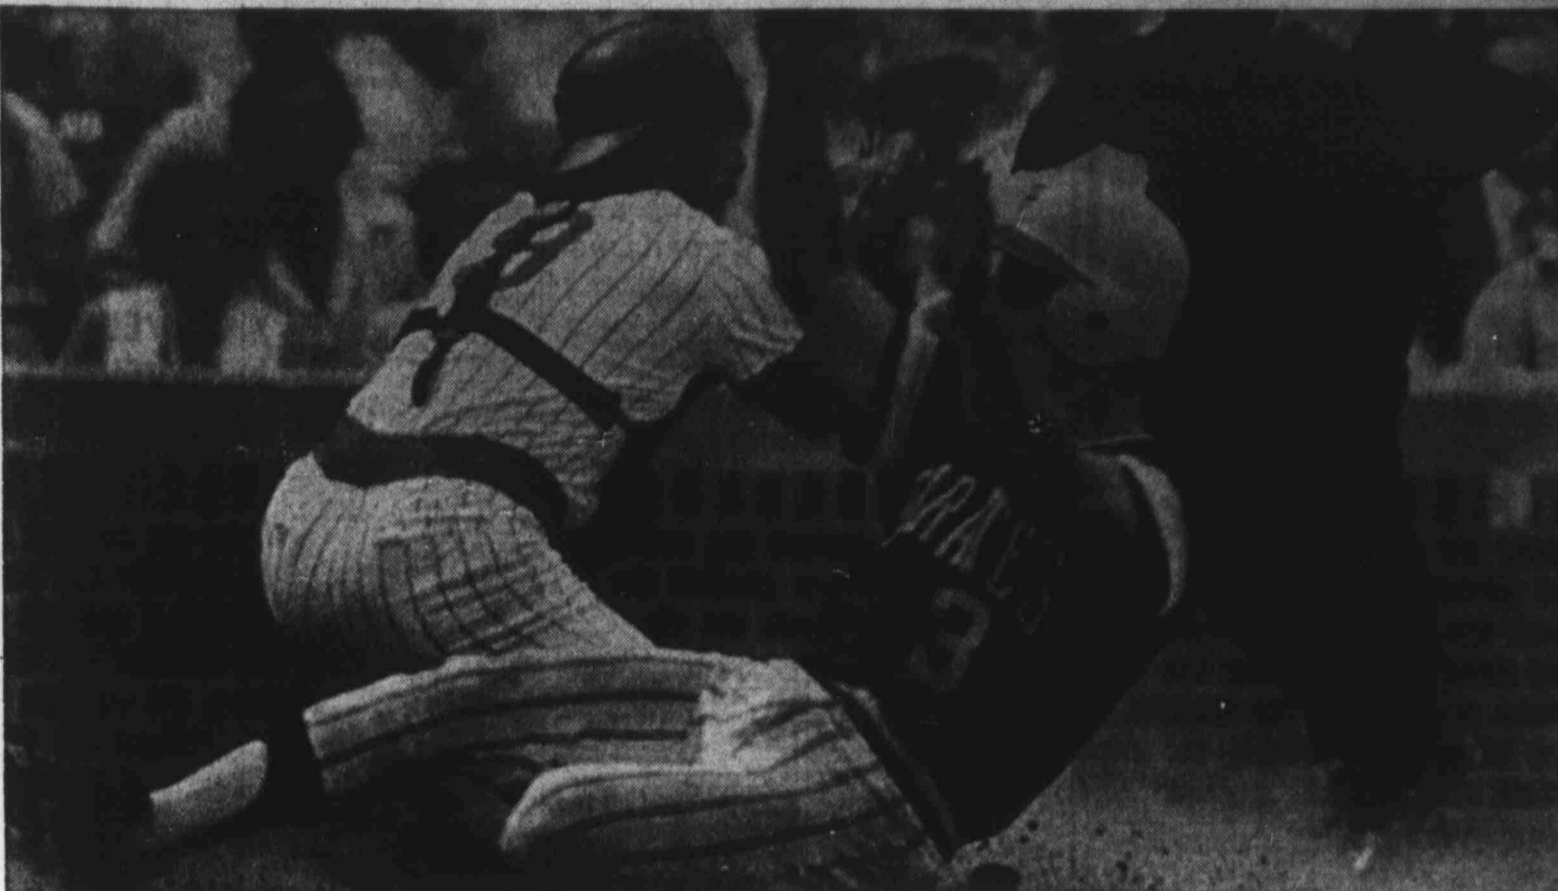

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — John Mahaffey has a new lease on his golfing life. "I'm healthy," he said in the wake of his dramatic, sudden death playoff over Tom Watson and Jerry Pate for the title in the 60th PGA National Championship. "I'm healthy and I have a more than healthy marriage. I have a wife who works me. She won't let me come home until dark. "I've worked awful hard. There have been a lot of disappointments along the way. "It's been a long road back." It has been a road back from a personal and professional abyss, a personal triumph over despair and divorce, bitter disappointment and injury. It ended his worries and wonderings if his so-promising career was over before it had really begun.

promising players, Mahaffey suffered the trauma of a playoff loss to Lou Graham in the 1975 U.S. Open, golf's biggest event. A year later, he led through 68 holes of the same national championship before Pate beat him. His life and his game immediately went into a skid. He was divorced. His game was in tatters. He developed an ailment in his arm. In 1977 he was having trouble breaking 80. He went home to Texas. The physical problems were solved. He remarried and was ready to try again. Then he fell from a ladder in a household accident and broke a bone in his hand. The comeback try was delayed.

Tribe Boss Letting Hurler Hurl

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Indians' manager Jeff Torborg and relief pitcher Jim Kern have come to terms over what Kern's pitches. Torborg said Kern will call his own game "for the time being" but denied it is a matter of "sink or swim." The Indians lost their last two games with the Texas Rangers on last inning homers with two outs. Kern was the victim Saturday, while Rick Waits took the punishment Sunday. Kern was upset following the Saturday loss he said, not because of former Indian John Lowenstein's 12th inning two-run homer, but because of the sacrifice fly in the 10th inning that kept the Rangers alive. The pitch to Texas' Mike Hargrove was one of two that night called from the bench by Torborg. "I wanted a fastball against Hargrove. He wanted a fastball away. I didn't get his where he wanted it. When you're not throwing the pitch you want, you don't have your heart in it," said Kern. The agreement to let Kern make his own decisions his own game came after Kern and Torborg huddled for 20 minutes following the Saturday loss. "I'm thinking two or three pitches ahead," said Kern. "I told him if I was a 21, 22 or 23-year-old kid, I could see where he might call the pitches. I've been around for 11 years. We have two young catchers, Gary Alexander and Bo Diaz, neither one of whom has caught in the American League before this year. "They say don't give a fastball hitter a fastball. I still think I can challenge 95 percent of these guys with my fastball and I can beat them. Lowenstein notwithstanding," Kern said. Kern, whose record is now 8-6, limped back to the hotel Saturday after kicking a trash can in the parking lot. He said he found it was filled with concrete. "It's still sore," he said Sunday, pointing to the big toe of his left foot. "but I just ran two miles on it. I like to pitch when something's wrong. It makes me concentrate more. When I feel good I get kicked around."

"I made up my mind a month ago that I didn't want to talk about the past any more," Mahaffey said after his dramatic victory on the rain-soaked Oakmont Country Club course Sunday. "But I'll tell you this one thing. The two U.S. Opens were only part of it. There were other things, personal things. There were the injuries. "But I'm healthy now. That's all behind me." Ahead of him is a re-arranged lifestyle. He gained a spot in the World Series of Golf this fall. He's in the Tournament of Champions and the Masters and on the American World Cup team. And, from the ranks of the Monday morning qualifiers, he now has a 10-year exemption. But all of those paled by comparison with John's one big goal. "Winning. That's the important thing, the big thing. Just winning," he said. He had to come from 7 shots off the pace to gain a tie with Pate and Watson, then won it with the 10-12 foot birdie putt on the second extra hole. They finished the regulation 72 holes at 276, 8 under par. Mahaffey had a closing 66. Pate 68 including a 3-putt bogey on the 72nd hole, and Watson a struggling 73. "John didn't win it. I'm pleased that John did," said Watson. "We were very close friends for a long time but kind of drifted apart after his divorce. "I'm happy for John," said Pate. "I feel kind of responsible for some of the things that happened to him." Considered one of the game's most

Cincinnati Falls Out Of First; Seaver Suffers Another Defeat

By The Associated Press
Bombed by boos, reliever Gene Garber won Round Two with Pete Rose. But he wasn't crowing. "I feel the same way about him I always felt. Nothing's changed. He's great for the game and still playing up records," said Garber after preserving a 5-3 Atlanta victory that knocked the Cincinnati Reds out of the first place in NL West. since ending his National League record 44-game hitting streak last Tuesday, got the Cincinnati star to fly out to center — but not before wild-pitching a run in with Rose at bat. A crowd of 33,250 boomed loudly when Garber replaced Mickey Mahler, 4-5, in the seventh inning. "If I created that, I'm not glad of it," said Rose. Braves Manager Bobby Cox said it as nothing personal: "They would have booted anyone who got him out." Garber added, "That doesn't bother me. I expected it. It's part of the game. I'm sure in his mind that thing is behind him; he's trying to win a pennant and I'm trying to get outs..." Rod Gilbreath drove in two runs while Mahler and Garber combined on a six-hitter as the Braves handed Tom Seaver his seventh loss in nine decisions since his June 16 no-hitter.

Giants Rally Past Browns
CLEVELAND (AP) — Willie Spencer ran for one touchdown and broke away on a long run that set up a second score as the New York Giants beat the Cleveland Browns 21-7 Monday night in the opening National Football League exhibition game for both teams. Spencer's three-yard run with 5:56 left in the first half broke a scoreless deadlock.

Falcons Whip New York 20-17
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Substitute quarterback June Jones came off the bench and rallied the Atlanta Falcons to three second-half touchdowns and a 20-17 victory over the New York Jets in the National Football League exhibition opener for both teams Monday night. The Jets had built a 17-0 lead on touchdown passes by Richard Todd and Pat Ryan and a 30-yard field goal by Nick Loretto on the final play of the first half. After Ryan's 13-yard pitch to Chuck White made it 17-0 in the first three clutch completions, including the winning touchdown. Jones hit Jackson on a 46-yard pass, moving the Falcons in position for their first touchdown. The second-year quarterback from Portland State took the ball in himself for the score four minutes into the third period.

Dixie Loses Opener In State Tourney
WACO (Special)—Lubbock's Dixie all-stars suffered a shut out against Crockett Monday night in the opening round of the State Little League playoffs. Crockett downed the all-stars 5-0 to advance in the tourney. With a chance to finish third in the single elimination contest, Dixie faces the San Antonio all-stars today at 10 a.m. The top of the last inning proved fatal for the Hub team as they committed several errors and the winners scored four runs and eliminated Dixie's chances of a comeback in the bottom of the sixth inning. Isaiah Clark, working behind a burning fast ball, fanned 14 Dixie batters. David Hagood collected nine strike-outs in the losing effort. Dixie managed two hits and left five men on base. Sixteen teams are entered in the Little League's largest state playoff tournament.

Dickey Entertaining At Big 8 Grid Affair

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A sellout crowd at Monday's Big Eight football kickoff luncheon heard a delightful display of one quality everybody figures Jim Dickey will need this year — a resilient sense of humor. Dickey, who took the Kansas State job last winter when Ellis Rainsberger was fired for giving out 13 scholarships over the allowable 30, noted that each head coach was to limit his talk to five minutes. "I thought," he said with a nod toward Commissioner Charles M. Neinas, "that was the length of my contract." "I had to get special permission from my math teacher to be here today," he added. "One of the prerequisites for this job was to be able to count." He said he and newly installed K-State athletic director DeLoss Dodds were returning from an alumni meeting last week. "and we were practicing our counting." "He said two times zero is two. I said, 'No, two times zero is zero.' But don't worry, folks, by the time we got home we were all the way up to 30." Dickey, whose Wildcats are on a stiff two-year probation for the 43 scholarships, noted he was hired on Dec. 7. "And that's the date, you remember, that President Roosevelt once said would live in infamy (the date of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941)." Dickey said K-State officials told him to run a clean program but still win. "Kansas State hasn't won a championship in 40 years," he said. "I told them if I don't win a championship in that same length of time I'll resign." "I'll tell you one thing, Jim," said Kansas Coach Bud Moore when his turn came to speak. "You're a lot funnier than Ellis was." All eight coaches were in agreement on one other point — Oklahoma deserves its pre-season favorite role. The Sooners, with 16 starters back from last year's championship squad, should be a very good football team, admitted Coach Barry Switzer. "The strength of our team will be the nucleus of 13 seniors, who have all played two or three years already in the Big Eight," said Switzer. "We've got the potential to play well, but we've got to out and make it happen." Switzer noted that NCAA statistics released this spring contained some good news for Sooner zealots. Oklahoma, for the past 10 years, is No. 1 in the nation in scoring, rushing and winning percentage. "And we were 125th in passing," Switzer said. "But I'll guarantee you we will improve that statistic this year because the NCAA has promised to include pichouts attempted and pichouts completed."

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science" The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars...

BIORHYTHMS FOR AUG. 8, 1978 PHYSICAL Critical: 7, 18, 30, 41, 53, 64 High: 8-17, 31-40, 54-63 Low: 1-6, 19-29, 42-52, 65-75...

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19...

Year charts for 1900-09, 1910-19, 1920-29, 1930-39, 1940-49, 1950-59, 1960-69, 1970-79. Columns P, E, I.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual...

Month charts for Jan, Feb, March, April, May, June. Columns P, E, I.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.) Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers...
