THE POSSIBILITY of thunderstorms for Lubbock and its vicinity is 20 percent today and tonight, but early Wednesday evening most South Plains residents had heard only thunder; raindrops were a rarity.

Elsewhere in West Texas, floodwaters continued to ebb, although Brazos River lowland areas were experiencing some high water as a crest moved through Possum Kingdom Lake and wound about Palo Pinto County.

Rainfall activity Wednesday was reported north, east and west of Lubbock as a result of an upper level trough extending southward through the Panhandle and into the South Plains.

Scattered Showers Reported
At 9 p.m., residents of Morton and Levelland reported only thunder and no rain as scattered thunderstorms roamed Cochran and Hockley counties.

Showers fell in sparsely populated areas south of Silverton, northeast of Plainview, 20 miles north of Snyder, 15 miles northeast of Lamesa and 40 miles north of Andrews.

Heavy thunderstorms also were reported south of Lubbock between Brownfield and Tahoka, and near Post and Matador, where up to 1 1/2 inches of rain was reported in some areas.

Shower Hits Tahoka
Thunder and lightning teased Ropesville and Seminole while Tahoka residents received just a trace of rain west of town and eastside residents had water running in the streets from a quick quarter-inch shower Wednesday afternoon.

Temperatures today in the South Plains are expected to be in the mid 80s with relative humidity ranging from near 85 percent in the early morning hours to near 40 percent in the afternoon.

Eight hours of sunshine is expected today and 10 hours of rays on Friday. For those areas that did receive rainfall overnight, drying conditions will be poor today and again Friday, with evaporation at about .30 inch both days.

Haze Covers East Texas
Across the state gusty winds and rainfall were reported near Abilene, east of San Angelo and in an area bounded by Grandbury, Temple and Sweetwater. A high pressure system caused skies in East Texas to continue to be plagued by haze and smoke.

Elsewhere in the nation, isolated showers fell in the northern Appalachians, the Great Plains and the Southern Rockies. Heavier rainfall was reported in Florida, Mississippi and Georgia, where Atlanta received 1.40 in a one-hour period.

For the 23rd consecutive day, Red Bluff, Calif., topped the 100 degree mark. The previous record was 21 days, set in 1969. Temperature ranges in the nation Wednesday showed a 59 degree reading at both Point Piedras, Calif., and Honolulu.

Two Earthquakes Shake Taiwan

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Two earthquakes measuring 5.7 on the Richter scale shook Taiwan early today, the central weather bureau said. There were no reports of major damage.

The bureau said the first tremor hit Hua Lien, a resort city on the eastern coast of the island and the second occurred an hour later in northern Taiwan. It said the epicenter was at sea 64 miles west-northwest of Taipei.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 7.9 on the Richter scale.

quiam, Wash., to the high of 107 in Red Bluff, Calif.

Hurricane Cora, about 1,000 miles southeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, was weakening in strength and moving west. The National Weather Service in Miami warned, however, the hurricane could increase in strength again later.

Some low-level flooding soaked homes and businesses along the cresting Brazos River Wednesday, but well-prepared Texans were out of the way as the last remnants of a week of high water flowed toward containment.

The crest, highest in 21 years, routed some lowland residents, but Palo Pinto Sheriff Ray Patterson said no one was caught unaware.

"Sunday, we told people in low-lying areas they'd better be prepared for it," Patterson said. "We've had some buildings flooded and we've moved some trailer homes, but I believe it's holding at about the same level."

The Brazos crest began around Graham and was part of week-long floods that left at least 29 dead in the Central Texas Hill Country and around Albany in North Texas.

Officials recovered the body of a 6-year-old San Antonio girl Wednesday about 2 1/2 miles south of Bandera along the Medina River.

Lisa Torres was identified by her family and became the 11th flood victim in Bandera, said Jim Robinson of the Department of Public Safety.

Below Possum Kingdom, Lake Granbury and Lake Whitney were emitting the overflow. Lake Granbury was expected to overflow, but Brazos Valley Authority officials said they expected the high water to be contained farther downstream in Lake Whitney.

Low-level flooding was expected between those points.

Capacity water at Possum Kingdom, Granbury and Whitney would be welcomed by area residents, who had suffered through near-drought conditions.

The National Weather Service began a search for record rainfall reports as part of an information survey. Officials had expressed concern that so many lives were lost, despite apparently sufficient warning.

'LOOK' Hotline Answers Questions About Integration, School Busing

By CANDY SAGON

"MY SON IS a third grader at Hardwick Elementary; is he going to be bused this fall?"
"What is the bus route from Haynes Elementary to Wheatley?"
"Will our second graders be bused from Williams to Posey?"
"Who will be bused to Coronado High?"
These are just some of the questions being answered by a 24-hour information hotline designed to assist Lubbock's school integration plan.
Sponsored by a group called LOOK — Lubbock Organizing for Our Kids — hotline volunteers provide information on the integration plan scheduled to go into effect when city schools open Aug. 29.
In the three days it's been operating, about 30 parents have dialed the hotline with questions.
"The most common questions have to do with bus routes and which schools are sending students and which are receiving," said Louise Cummins, general coordinator of the LOOK steering committee.

She said "about 90 percent" of the people calling in are unsure where or even if their children will be bused, and what route the buses will take.
LOOK volunteers not only are providing this information over the phone, they also are sponsoring an "Information Day" Aug. 18 at public schools.
On that day, parents and children can come to school and actually ride the bus route the children will take if they are affected by the plan.
"Buses will run at 10 a.m., noon and 2 p.m.," Mrs. Cummins said. "Parents can ride the bus route their child would take and we'll also provide them with written information about the integration plan."
Parents also will be able to tour the schools and talk

Second Session Call Readied By Briscoe If Tax Relief Failed

AUSTIN — Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Wednesday he was prepared to immediately call the Legislature into another special session if the lawmakers had failed to agree in the final hours on a proposed constitutional amendment dealing with tax relief.

"We had another proclamation ready, but it had not been signed," Briscoe said. "There was a pretty good prospect they would have been back this morning if it had not been passed, but very happily that did not come to pass."

The governor made his comments after signing a $491 million reduction in state sales and inheritance taxes, one of two major tax relief proposals approved during the 30-day special session which adjourned at midnight Tuesday.

But don't look for a sudden surge in disposable income because of the tax relief measures approved by the special legislative session.
It will be over a month and a half before Texans see any results.

Unless a rich relative dies, they first will notice the session's work in their gas and electric bills for billing periods beginning on or after Oct. 1.
That's the date when the 4 percent state sales tax on residential gas and electric bills drops off.

City sales taxes of 1 percent on utility bills will drop off a year later unless city councils act earlier to keep them. Councils also may vote to eliminate the tax before the Oct. 1, 1979, automatic repeal date.

A new law raising inheritance tax exemptions for the first time since 1923 takes effect Sept. 1 and applies to the estates of persons dying on or after that date.

Instead of the present exemption of $25,000 per heir, no state taxes will be paid on the first $200,000 of an estate. That exemption will rise to $250,000 on

Second Session Call Readied By Briscoe If Tax Relief Failed

Sept. 1, 1982, and $300,000 on Sept. 1, 1985.
Voters will get to say at the Nov. 7 general election whether they want further tax cuts.
A proposition on the ballot would amend the Texas Constitution in several places, providing two tax breaks if the voters approve.
One would exempt $5,000 of a homestead's market value from school taxes, with authorization for the Legislature to grant greater exemptions to the disabled and the elderly.
The other would tax all farm and ranch land according to its productivity, not its possible selling price, under formulas to be determined later by the Legislature.
The state would reimburse $450 million of the taxes lost by school districts during the 1979-80 and 1980-81 school years if the constitutional amendment passes.
In all, the efforts of the special session would cut the state's surplus and growth revenue by $941.4 million over the next three fiscal years.
Lawmakers voted to submit the constitutional amendment in the closing hours of the 30-day session, which ran all the way to the midnight adjournment deadline.

City Man Indicted In Slaying Linked To Auto Repossession

BILLY MACK Harris, accused of killing a man who reportedly was trying to repossess his pickup truck, was indicted Wednesday for murder by a county grand jury.

The indictment was lodged against Jones Weldon Daniels, a former employee accused of walking into the Plains Co-op Oil Mill and gunning down an assistant office manager.

The indictments were among 75 returned to Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th District Court. There were six no-bills.

Begin Gets 'Important' Data On Egypt Parley

TEHRAN, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin said he received "important information" Wednesday on Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israel is preparing "very seriously" for next month's Mideast summit.

The summit, to be hosted by President Carter at Camp David, Md., will bring Sadat and Begin together for the first time since last December.

Begin spoke with reporters after he was briefed on the Vance-Sadat talks by William Quandt, a U.S. National Security Council aide who was with the secretary of state in Egypt.

"It's a very important meeting to us, the first time such a meeting has taken place," said Begin.

Quandt also will talk with Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and Deputy Premier Yigael Yadin.

Asked if Quandt indicated there had been a change in Egypt's bargaining position, Begin said: "He didn't make any such indications at all ... but he gave us some important information."

Begin called a Cabinet meeting for today to relay Quandt's report.
Later Wednesday, Israel's ambassador to the United States, Simcha Dinitz, said in an interview with Israeli television he does not believe the Americans will propose their own peace plan but may bring up "some ideas" of their own.

Dinitz said the United States could make a significant contribution to the peace process by being an "active partner." But he said "a specific American plan which would be imposed on the parties, as something to replace the negotiations and not to help them, that's something we don't desire, and in my opinion, it's not a step the Americans will take."

Dinitz said he does not think Israel has lost support in Congress, that "there is a two-thirds majority in the Senate which agrees with Israel's claim that if the West Bank were to become a Palestinian state, this would represent a security hazard for Israel." He said a majority supports "the existing territorial makeup."

Zalman Shoval, a member of parliament from Begin's Likud Party denied newspaper reports that the government plans new Jewish settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River and was using censorship to keep the plan, which could poison the atmosphere of the summit, a secret.

"No decision has been taken, and the stories are false," Shoval told Israel radio, saying the reports were designed to embarrass the government at a sensitive point in Israel-Egypt relations.

Some members of the opposition in Parliament have complained of censorship on the settlement issue, and the Jerusalem Post said Wednesday that "the government is planning to establish new settlements in the West Bank," but the story gave no details.

The United States opposes settlements on land Israel took in the 1967 war, regarding them as illegal under international law and as obstacles to peace. Keeping the approximately 100 existing settlements is a central tenet of Israel's peace plan, but Sadat wants all the settlements dismantled.

Shoval, who advises the Foreign Ministry on how to promote Israel's image abroad, said he felt Israel and Egypt are on an "irreversible course" to peace. The Camp David summit, where Begin and Sadat are to meet with President Carter, is only a stage in the peace process, Shoval said.

Budget Draws Little Notice

IT WAS something of a comedown. Most of the attention — sometimes loving, more often disparaging — gone now. Only a few visitors all day long.

City Manager Larry Cunningham dutifully filed a copy Wednesday of the coming year's $70.2 million budget with City Secretary Evelyn Gaffga.

"You would have thought people would be standing at the office door this morning waiting to get in," she said, alluding to the citizen furor which resulted in a $1.7 million trimming of the budget and a 20-cent cut in the tax rate.

"Only a few staff members came by," said Mrs. Gaffga. "I guess they were interested in how their departments are affected."

The budget, less than 50 pages long, is open for study at the city secretary's office the next two weeks. A public hearing on the spending proposal is set for Aug. 24.

al said, and he cautioned against expecting a full agreement to be reached there.

Shoval said he hoped the United States would not take sides in the talks. He said he took Vance's statement that Washington would be a "full partner" to mean that the United States wanted to be a "full partner in the aim of achieving peace."

"The United States understands that in order to be effective, it must remain neutral," Shoval said.

In Amman, Jordan, Foreign Minister Hassan Ibrahim said Wednesday Jordan will not take part in Mideast peace talks until Israel agrees to return all occupied Arab land. America's roving mediator Alf Atherton is due in Amman Friday to discuss regional problems with King Hussein.

Syria's ruling Arab Socialist Baath Party said the summit was part of a game designed to mark time until Israel attacks again.

Meanwhile, in Washington, U.S. officials said Carter's Middle East summit at Camp David is fraught with severe risks but that the alternative may be an end to the peace-making process.

According to officials, there was an atmosphere of "desperation" in the nation's capital last week when it appeared that the peace initiative begun so triumphantly in Israel-Egypt relations.

Lubbock Adult Center Provides Welcome Activity For Oldsters

ORLANDO KELLEY has Saturday night fever every Thursday night at Lubbock Adult Center. He dances to "Bad, Bad Leroy Brown" as well as the "Cotton Patch Rag."

Kelley is 74. The Abernathy farmer doesn't sit in a folding chair long enough to warm the metal chair bottom.

Some of the senior citizens glide through the waltzes and sit on the sidelines during the polkas. Kelley leaps, jumps, hops and bounces energetically through all the numbers.

"He loves dancing," his wife, Alpha, said. "And the doctor says it's good for us."

On Thursday nights the walls of Lubbock Adult Center reverberate with the sounds of a piano, fiddle, guitar and drums.

The hum of activity is always present in the building. At noon on weekdays there is the clackety-clack of dominoes being shuffled on folding card tables, mixed with the sounds of iced tea glasses being filled in the buffet line and the buzz of conversation everywhere.

The city operates seven senior citizens centers where those age 60 and older can find food, friends and fun. Menus include farm favorites like tomatoes, okra, dumplings and cornbread as well as more elaborate recipes, such as for basil carrots, hot German potatoes, bean burritos, lasagna and cabbage-pineapple salad.

Meals are paid for by donation, usually $1.35 per person.

The centers offer exercise classes, sing-alongs, ceramics, bingo, domino and bridge tournaments, quilting bees and Bible study classes.

Some days there are free blood pressure checks, group birthday parties and bus trips to Palo Duro Canyon. Guest speakers advise the senior citizens on a variety of topics.

Committee To Investigate Insurance Department

AUSTIN (AP) — The House General Investigating Committee will hold three days of hearings next week on allegations of favoritism and mismanagement at the State Insurance Department.

Included will be charges made by two former Houston insurance agents who claim they were the fall guys in a scheme hatched by a company that since has left Texas.

One of the agents whose licenses were revoked in 1975, Daniel Hurlbut, said he wanted the committee to subpoena two witnesses, adding, "New evidence has come to light."

Hurlbut and A.C. Hovater went to the committee this spring after losing their licenses and failing to win reinstatement.

"We want to develop the full facts of the complaint you and Mr. Hovater have made. . . If the information is detrimental to you, we are going to be just as harsh on you as on the insurance board," committee chairman DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, told Hurlbut Wednesday.

The committee posted notice it will meet Monday at 2 p.m. and continue the hearings Tuesday and Wednesday.

It also agreed to meet this month in Corpus Christi to hear witnesses with complaints about the Corpus Christi State School, where a resident recently drowned in a shower.

"With that, we would probably end public hearings on MHMR (the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation) and we would probably get around to writing a report," Hale said.

He said committee investigators, armed with subpoenas for documents, had looked into complaints at the Richmond State School and planned to delve into files of the Mexia State School.

Both institutions have been targets of accusations of inmate abuse.

David Spencer, committee counsel, said he had obtained files of both Travis County grand jury and attorney general's investigations of facets of the insurance department.

"We are doing a follow-up to see what problems there might be that could be remedied by legislation," Spencer said.

Hale said the grand jury, which indicted former insurance commissioner Joe Hawkins on perjury charges last summer, felt it had "gone as far as it could go from the standpoint of unearthing criminal violations."

"They did feel there were administrative deficiencies in the insurance department that would warrant this committee probing further," Hale said.

Hawkins pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor charge rather than the felony indictment in a plea-bargaining arrangement.

According to State Insurance Board files, Hurlbut and Hovater sold group health insurance policies in the name of Nation-Wide Health Insurance Trust to some 260 groups, including the Pasadena Independent School District.

Former board lawyer Hector DeLeon said in a memo that evidence showed Nation-Wide "was an unexecuted document," meaning it didn't exist.

Hurlbut and Hovater, in hearings before the board and in a blitz of letters and memos, contended they were the fall guys for Gulf Atlantic Life Insurance Co. They claimed Nation-Wide was established by Gulf.

Further up the line, they said, was Nationwide Corp., parent of Gulf Atlantic.

The claimed that Gulf Atlantic set them up in Houston to develop a group mass market, paid for their telephone, secretary and rent and, furnished them an office.

Insurance department staffers say, however, they have been unable to prove any connection between Gulf Atlantic and Nation-Wide, other than the Hurlbut and Hovater accusations.

Abilene Wet Forces File Vote Contest

ABILENE (AP) — Four Abilene residents who would like to see legalized sale of alcoholic beverages filed an election contest at 4 p.m. Wednesday, only an hour before the deadline for challenging the June 17 local option liquor election.

The action was filed in the court of 42nd State District Judge Don Lane, who last month ordered the Taylor County Commissioners Court to recanvass all votes, including a box commissioners had thrown out.

Residents had asked Lane to declare the commissioners' July 10 canvass order null and void.

But Friday an Austin judge voided Lane's ruling that had overturned the commissioners' canvass. He issued a temporary restraining order for two Abilene residents who said their property values would be irreparably harmed if Taylor County Precinct One went wet.

Judge Charles D. Mathews of 200th District Court in Travis County set a hearing for 10 a.m. Monday on whether to issue a temporary injunction against the issuance of any liquor licenses in Justice Precinct 1, where the election was held. While his restraining order is in effect, Taylor County remains dry.

Lane will set a hearing on the election contest.

COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE STATE INSURANCE DEPARTMENT — Chairman DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, left, chairman of the House General Investigating Committee and committee counsel David Spencer met in Austin Wednesday and announced they will hold three days of hearings next week on allegations of favoritism and mismanagement at the State Insurance Department. Citizens Bank Names Head

Bill G. Jones has been elected president of the Citizens Bank of Lubbock County, located in Slaton, according to E.W. Williams Jr., chairman of the board.

Jones, who comes to Citizens from a position as loan officer and vice president at the First National Bank of Levelland, is a graduate of Texas Tech University with a B.B.A. degree in finance. He went to high school at Post, where he graduated in 1951.

MARIJUANA TESTS STOPPED
PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — A Palo Alto research firm has stopped testing marijuana for the toxic herbicide Paraquat, acknowledging that some test results were inaccurate. John Koteki, director of the Pharm-Chem Research Foundation, said Tuesday that testing of marijuana samples by both Pharm-Chem and the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta "indicated a discrepancy in test results."

He worked as a bookkeeper for Duffy's Wholesale Film Processor in Lubbock during 1958. From 1959-1965 he participated in a cotton and livestock farming partnership in Lynn County. He was named assistant National Bank examiner at Winchester, Va., in 1965, later moving to Lubbock in the same capacity.

Jones and his wife, LaRue, have two children, a son, 19, and a daughter, 14.

The Citizens Bank, which lists total assets of $25,898,630, is a subsidiary of LubCo BancShares, Inc.

Escapee Arrested In Shooting Death

TEMPLE (AP) — A Louisiana man arrested at Houston in connection with the shooting death of a Harker Heights policeman is an escapee from New Mexico, officials in that state said Wednesday.

Valencia County District Attorney Tom Esquibel said Thomas Andrew Barefoot, 38, of New Iberia, La., escaped jail in Los Lunas, N.M. Barefoot was scheduled for trial on two counts of criminal sexual penetration and one count of kidnapping in connection with an Oct. 28, 1977, incident involving a 3-year-old child from Milan, N.M.

Barefoot was taken to the Bell County jail Wednesday following his arrest at a Houston bus station.

He had been named Monday in an arrest warrant charging capital murder and was apprehended as he got off a bus. Houston police and Texas Rangers acted after receiving a tip by a Temple Ranger.

Barefoot was armed with a .25-caliber pistol when arrested.

Harker Heights police officer Carl Levin was shot once in the head with a .25-caliber weapon after he had stopped a man to question him about a fire early Monday.

Bell County authorities issued the warrant for Barefoot, who used the alias Darren Callier, after receiving information from another area law enforcement agency.

Manson Follower Due Sentence On Slayings Date

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thursday, the ninth anniversary of the brutal Sharon Tate-LaBianca slayings, also is the day Leslie Van Houten is to be sentenced for murder in the case.

Her attorneys, who say she is completely rehabilitated, will call a parade of witnesses in a desperate effort to win her release on parole.

She has already served eight years on earlier convictions.

Although she was convicted of murder in 1971 with Charles Manson and two other "Manson girls," Miss Van Houten's two subsequent trials set her apart from the tribe of still-devoted Manson followers who languish in California prisons.

Miss Van Houten was a changed woman. No longer the prattling, defiant teenager of the first trial, she was neatly dressed, smiling and articulate.

"Leslie has grown up," her attorney, Maxwell Keith, said.

Keith, who won a new trial for Miss Van Houten, hoped not for acquittal but for conviction of manslaughter which would give her a chance at parole.

It took two years for that hope to be destroyed by a first-degree murder conviction last month.

It was 1976 when a California appeals court reversed Miss Van Houten's original conviction. Her Manson trial lawyer, Ronald Hughes, had drowned on a camping trip before the trial ended — an accident which the court said denied Miss Van Houten adequate legal representation.

"At her second trial in 1977, the jury could not reach a verdict. Some admitted they felt sympathy for Miss Van Houten. 'We just couldn't decide whether she was actually responsible,' they said.

By the time her third trial began last spring, Miss Van Houten, 28, was out on bail. Her friends and relatives posted $200,000 bail, and she walked out of prison for the first time in eight years.

Her third jury heard the story that had been told in court before — the tale of Miss Van Houten's troubled youth, her conversion from high school homecoming princess to Manson groupie, and her ultimate journey into psychedelic drugs with Manson as her Svengali.

She admitted stabbing Rosemary LaBianca the night of Aug. 10, 1969, but she said it was after the woman was already dead. Although she was convicted of conspiracy in the murder of Miss Tate and four others the previous night, Miss Van Houten was not along that night.

It is up to Superior Court Judge Gordon Ringer to choose a sentence for Miss Van Houten. He has a number of options. One which will be urged by defense lawyers is a reduction of the conviction to second degree murder. Miss Van Houten's eight years of time served would make immediate parole likely.

Even if she is sentenced to life imprisonment, her chances for parole could be enhanced by her exemplary conduct during the time she was out on bail.

Should she be released, she would not be the first member of the clan to gain freedom. Linda Kasabian, who drew the murders to and from both the Tate and LaBianca killings and was charged with the murders, was granted immunity from prosecution for her testimony at the Manson trial. She testified against Miss Van Houten earlier this year.

Senate Votes To Hike East Coast's Oil Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Wednesday to give East Coast states increased government subsidies to compensate for the higher prices they must pay for imported oil.

But the compromise agreed to by the Senate would also prohibit the Carter administration's proposal for a much larger subsidy for East Coast oil importers.

Under threat of a filibuster by East Coast senators, the Senate voted 53-40 to accept the compromise subsidy formula urged by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La.

The subsidy program is designed to offset the sharp difference in price House, the compromise will mean slightly higher petroleum costs for consumers in 36 non-East Coast states.

The pricing formula was the product of two days of negotiations between Johnston, several New England and Atlantic Seaboard senators and Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

In a frequently emotional debate which divided along strictly regional lines, Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., accused Schlesinger of agreeing to the compromise in exchange for support of a natural gas pricing compromise by East Coast senators.

The charge was denied by Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., who said most eastern senators are opposed to the natural gas bill.

At another point, Johnston accused President Carter of using the subsidy or entitlements program as "a $200 million slush fund ... to reward (his) friends and punish his enemies."

Under Schlesinger, the Energy Department had tentatively planned to more than triple the subsidies for refiners along the East Coast and in Michigan, who must pay higher prices for residual fuel oil used by industry and electric utilities.

Before proposing the compromise approved Wednesday, Johnston urged a flat prohibition against an Energy Department plan to increase the subsidy from 30 to 100 percent of the difference between the price of foreign versus domestic oil.

Instead, the Senate agreed to permit an increase in the subsidy to 50 percent.

One result of the price imbalance has been higher utility and home heating bills, especially for New England homeowners.

Johnston said increasing the subsidy from 30 to 100 percent would have meant an annual subsidy of $400 million annually for East Coast refiners and importers.

Some $280 million of that would ultimately have come from consumers of gasoline and other petroleum products from other parts of the country, Johnston said.

Under the compromise, the cost to other states will instead be $70 million, he noted.

Dollar Continues Slide; Gold Hits New Highs

LONDON (AP) — The dollar continued its nose dive on European foreign exchanges Wednesday, hitting record lows against the West German mark and Swiss franc and pushing the price of gold to record highs in London and Zurich.

"The dollar is dropping plain and simple out of its own weakness," said a Frankfurt dealer. It has tumbled to a series of record lows against major currencies in recent days.

Zurich Wednesday, down from the previous low of 1.69075 reached Monday. Tuesday's price was 1.69395. The dollar finished the day at 1.6829 Swiss francs, a record closing low.

The plunge prompted the Swiss government to schedule a special Cabinet session Aug. 16 to consider the problems caused by the seemingly unending rise of the Swiss franc against the dollar and other currencies.

The sharp rise of the Swiss franc — about 10 percent in the past four weeks — against the dollar and most other Western currencies is a threat to the export-oriented Swiss economy whose goods sold abroad rise as the franc becomes more valuable.

In Frankfurt, the dollar hit a record low of 1.971 West German marks, down from a previous low Tuesday of 1.969. It edged up slightly to finish the day at 1.9765 marks, still a record closing low. The closing price Tuesday was 1.9935 marks.

The dollar had been worth 4.00 West German marks through most of Germany's period of recovery after World War II. One Frankfurt dealer said his bank expects the dollar to fall to 1.90 marks within four weeks.

"There are no new reasons for this," he said, just the same old ones we've heard for ages and which have been unchanged for ages.

A root cause of the dollar's decline is an apparently America's foreign trade deficit, amounting to a record $26.72 billion last year and running well ahead of that this year. Contributing to the deficit are heavy imports of foreign oil and manufactured goods.

Late rates for the dollar in other major European financial centers, with Tuesday's late rates in brackets:

Paris — 4.35375 French francs (4.3630).
Milan — 833.925 Italian lire (836.80).
Amsterdam — 2.1430 Dutch guilders (2.1595).

In London it took $1.94895 to buy a British pound late Wednesday compared to $1.93255 late Tuesday.

Only in Tokyo did the dollar gain. It closed at 187.60 yen, up slightly from 187.375 yen at Tuesday's close. The record low of 184.30 yen was hit one week ago at the bottom of an eight-day plunge.

Over the past year the dollar has fallen from 260 yen, a decrease in value of almost 30 percent. It slid below the 200-yen mark for the first time July 24.

The dollar's fall has pushed up the price of gold, which investors turn to in times of monetary instability.

Bullion closed in Zurich Wednesday at a record $268.375, a jump of $2.25 from Tuesday's close of $266.125.

In London, Europe's other major bullion market, gold closed at $267.25, a record closing high, after hitting a London trading high of $268 at the morning "fixing," when London's five major bullion dealers agree to a price for the trading session. Gold closed in London Tuesday at $266.45 an ounce.

ANOTHER RECORD LOW — Wednesday's dollar quotations are marked on the Frankfurt money exchange's blackboard during fixing hour. The dollar hit another record low with a fixing price of DM 1.9732. (AP Laserphoto)

Funeral Held For Mother, Six Children

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — With a simple, county-financed ceremony, Rachel David and six children she coaxed or threw from a balcony were buried Wednesday with the man whose suicide apparently prompted her act.

Most of those clustering near the graveside cluster were strangers.

A spray of flowers stood atop each child's pine casket.

The straightforward burial was a contrast to the lavish, mysterious life of Immanuel David. He had spent more than $38,000 keeping his family for 14 months in a $90-a-day suite at the International Dunes Hotel.

Last Thursday, a day after being told her husband had committed suicide in a borrowed van, Mrs. David, 38, gathered her seven children on the hotel balcony and coaxed or threw them over the edge, then jumped herself, officials said.

Only one child, Rachel, 15, survived. Listed in critical condition, she was unconscious but breathing on her own for the first time Wednesday at LDS Hospital.

The dead, in addition to Mrs. David, were Rebecca, 6, David, 8, Joseph, 9, Deborah, 12, Joshua, 13, and Elizabeth, 14.

About 75 people attended the services, including David's mother and brother, women with strollers, a boy's baseball team and a state legislator.

OFFICE ON THE BEACH — Clad only in swim trunks, Richard Deal, 46, conducts his business on the beach of Lake Michigan on Chicago's north side. Deal operates his commodity exchange business with the aid of a telephone, television set and a video screen that flashes the latest commodity

Man Rests As Trading Crests

CHICAGO (AP) — Near the waves lapping the Lake Michigan beach, Richard Deal spreads a blanket, plugs in his electronic equipment and opens his outdoor commodity exchange "office."

Clad in swimming trunks, he is 50 yards away from his North Side highrise apartment overlooking Rogers Avenue Park and Lake Michigan.

An extension cord provides power for a television set and a video terminal that receives signals from a special antenna and flashes up-to-the-second commodity prices from the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and Board of Trade.

Deal, 46, sun-tanned and serene behind his sunglasses, has two telephones at his side to keep in touch with his broker from the opening of trade at 8:40 a.m. until the board's 1:25 p.m. close. Then he takes a walk and goes for a swim in the lake, and perhaps plays a round of golf.

"This is the life," says Deal. "It's really a rehabilitation program. In December, I had three heart attacks one right after the other and was given only a 20 percent chance of prices from the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade. The electronic equipment is wired into his nearby apartment. Deal said he netted a cool $1,000 Tuesday as he basked in the summer sun. (AP Laserphoto) making it. Being on the beach may not be as effective as being in the pit, but it's a lot easier than getting in the car and driving to the exchange."

He said the stress of running his Ideal Personnel Recruitment System was too much. His wife, Mary Lou, 32, now operates the business while Deal does his commodity trading.

"I started fooling around with commodities during the winter while I was recuperating," he said. "I deal primarily in silver. Tuesday was one of my best days. I made a cool $1,000 in the hot sun. If I can make $200 a day, I'm tickled to death. If the weather is bad, I just stay in my apartment and conduct business there."

"Sure, there's a certain amount of stress, but you can't live a life without some of it," he said. "If I don't feel good now, I never will. This beach office thing is just super. When winter comes, I think I'll go to Florida and set up the same thing."

Deal's broker, Paul Leventhal, says, "I've been in this business for 10 years and I've never seen anything like it. I can't tell you how jealous I am."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Q. I started an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) with a no-load mutual fund three and a half years ago. So far, I have invested $5,250 and the value of my IRA account is approximately $6,000. I am 51 and plan to retire in about five or seven years. I will continue to invest in the IRA until I retire. Is the mutual fund I have chosen the best place for an IRA?

A. Only time will answer your question. But your experience, to date, indicates that you have picked a good one. It's doubtful that many people have that much gain on that much investment in such a relatively short period of time.

The mutual fund you named in your letter happens to be one of a group of funds managed by the same organization — all of which have done well over the years. I can't tell you how it will perform in the future. Based on its track record, however, I'd say stay with it.

Mutual funds are a natural for people going the IRA route. Anyone who is not covered by a retirement plan can put up to 1,500 a year or 15 percent of his or her income — whichever is less — into an IRA. The money you put into an IRA is not subject to income taxes. Nor is the money earned on your IRA account in dividends and/or interest.

You don't start paying taxes until you start withdrawing money from your IRA. And that's normally after retirement when you are in a lower tax bracket.

Anyone who is eligible for an IRA and who doesn't have one is really just making an unnecessary annual tax contribution to Uncle Sam.

Your letter, however, has me puzzled on one point. There is a tax penalty if you start withdrawing money from an IRA before age 59 1/2. So, you have eight and a half years to go, before you can withdraw money from your IRA without tax penalty.

Q. Can you send me a list of good grade bonds in which I can invest $10,000 and get $100 a month income, without reducing the $10,000?

A. Sorry but the answer has to be no. Your thoughts of $1 a month work out to $1,200 a year. On a $10,000 investment, that's 12 percent. And good grade bonds just don't yield 12 percent. As I put this through the typewriter, many investments grade bonds — those rated A or better — are selling at prices where their interest rates result in yields of 9.5 percent or a bit more.

But you would have to buy bonds considered to be of much lower quality in order to get 12 percent on your money. In Wall Street, that's called "reaching for yield." I advise against it, because you would be taking on quite a bit more risk.

Your self-addressed, stamped envelope, however, will bring you details about bonds and an explanation that, because new issues of bonds are being brought out constantly, it is impractical for this column to print any lists.

Q. In 1981, when I retire at 65, I will be eligible to take a $12,000 lump sum pension benefit or $100 a month. My wife would receive $50 a month, in the event of my death. We will have $4,000 a year other income, plus Social Security. Would you recommend taking the monthly payments or the lump sum? We will also have $24,000 cash.

A. I'll assume you don't have to make that decision until just before retirement. If you have to make it now, my advice is to opt for the $12,000. After all, $100 a month is 10 percent of $12,000. You can get close to that in good grade bonds and in some high quality utility stocks. And the stocks figure to increase their dividend payouts over the years ahead.

But, if at the time you retire yields on bonds and utility stocks are down, take the lump sum. At a sure 10 percent a year, it might look mighty good. And, combined with your other income, it could make your retirement secure.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

For information on mutual funds, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your requests to William A. Doyle, in care of King Features Syndicate, 235 East 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Engineer Named Prime Minister Of Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — President Antonio Ramalho Eanes appointed Alfredo Nobre de Costa — an American-educated engineer and political independent — as Portugal's new prime minister Wednesday.

Nobre de Costa, 55, a former government minister, is considered one of the country's top technocrats. He replaces Mario Soares, who was dismissed July 27 after his six-month-old coalition government lost the support of conservatives. The new prime minister is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a professional engineer and technical director of the steel and cement empire owned by Antonio Champalimaud. Champalimaud was one of the industry barons who dominated Portugal's economy under the dictatorship of Antonio Salazar and the authoritarian rule of his successor, Marcello Caetano, whose government was toppled by left-wing military officers in a coup in April 1974.

Soares stormed out of the president's palace after Eanes informed him of the decision and told reporters the president had violated the constitution.

Presidential aide Henrique Granadeiro read a statement saying Nobre de Costa had been asked to form a new government. Eanes appealed to the country's political parties to aid in formation of a cabinet as soon as possible "in the national interest."

Diogo Freitas do Amaral, leader of the conservative Social Democratic Center Party, whose split with the Socialists brought about Soares' downfall, said he approved the choice and would give the independent technocrat his "full backing."

Nobre de Costa was industry minister in Soares' first minority government from March 1977 until its fall in December. He was not on a long list of candidates widely discussed since Soares was sacked.

When Soares left the presidential palace before the name of the new prime minister was officially announced, he said, "In my opinion the president has not lived up to the constitution." Asked whether his party would support Eanes' choice, he said, "Eanes didn't even ask us that."

The new prime minister was reported vacationing on the southern Algarve coast, and Eanes was scheduled to meet with him at his palace outside the capital early Thursday.

Soares seemed angry that the new prime minister was not from his Socialist party, which emerged as the strongest in Portugal in the 1976 elections with 35 percent of the vote.

Pro-Soviet Communist leader Alvaro Cunhal said he believed Eanes had not violated the constitution by selecting the independent. The constitution was established in 1976, two years after the collapse of the 48-year-old Portuguese dictatorship.

"We shall continue to live in freedom and democracy," Cunhal told reporters. He refused to say whether he would support Nobre de Costa.

Francisco Sa Carneiro, leader of the Social Democrat Party, declined comment until he had time to discuss the choice with his party's policymakers. But he said the new government should prepare for elections.

Acacio Barreiros, leader of the far-left Popular Democratic Union, which has one seat in parliament, said Nobre de Costa lacks "an anti-fascist profile" and that the non-party government indicated by his selection represents a "danger to democracy."

Eanes has said new elections cannot be held before next April.

After the fall of Soares' first government, last December, the Socialists persuaded the small Social Democratic Center Party to support them in exchange for three cabinet posts. The conservatives' 41 parliamentary seats added to the Socialists' 102 to make a majority in the 263-member National Assembly.

The conservatives held the ministries of foreign affairs, trade, and tourism and administrative reform, as well as five junior posts. They quit the cabinet July 24, contending Socialist Agriculture Minister Luis Saia favored the Communists in land reform policies.

The conservatives claimed Soares' government was delaying return of lands seized by peasants after the 1974 revolution.

There had been speculation Eanes would name a military officer as prime minister. The Socialists said that would endanger Portugal's "integration into democratic Europe."

Eanes met with the 19-member Council of the Revolution earlier in the day. Sources said the council supported an independent prime minister.

Soviet Cosmonauts Battle Space Blues

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts nearing their eighth week in space are fighting boredom and the blues. The ordeal is lightened with diversions that include talks with their families and movie stars, television variety shows and daily newscasts.

The Soviet space program is placing increased importance on "cosmic psychology" and has included many diversions to relieve the tedium of the flight for Commander Vladimir Kovalenok and flight engineer Alexander Ivanchenkov.

But the depression that afflicts men in orbit is still a problem.

The mental stresses of prolonged space flight and attempts to overcome them were discussed in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda Wednesday by Deputy Minister of Health Avadaliq Burnazyan and Alexei Yeliseyev, a former cosmonaut who heads the ground control for the Soyuz 29-Salyut 6 mission under way.

"It turns out that long stays in closed living quarters, as well as separation from usual ground conditions, can cause changes in the general psyche of a man," they wrote.

The article says most information on psychological problems of prolonged space flight came from the Soyuz 26 mission in which cosmonauts Yuri Romanenko and Georgy Grechko were aloft for a world record 96 days and 10 hours. Since then the Soviets have broken the American record of 937.6 man-days in space.

Pravda said menus, music and their daily exercise routines take into account the tastes and preferences of the two cosmonauts.

The television provides the two with a wide choice of entertainment, the article says. Especially popular is a variety show called "The Magic Lamp," which resembles American shows.

"This steady interest is a good confirmation that they are feeling psychologically well," Burnazyan and Yeliseyev claim.

The cosmonauts have a well-stocked library and a "surprise box," prepared by the psychologists at ground control.

They receive daily newscasts of domestic and international events as well as local and foreign press accounts of their space mission.

Especially effective, the article notes, is a series of radio meetings with leading scientists, theater actors and movie stars.

The spacemen are in close contact with their families. "These contacts not only eliminate questions about the life of their families which naturally worry the cosmonauts, but also these friends and relatives in the talks sometimes can understand more minutely the moods and tastes of the cosmonauts, and give very valuable recommendations to officials at ground control."

In addition, the space visits of other Soyuz missions to the orbiting laboratory

Soviet Grain Crop Outlook Reported Good

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union could produce a record grain crop this year with normal harvesting weather for the rest of the season, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Even if it doesn't go past 223.8 million metric tons, it probably will reach the Soviet goal of 220 million, or 12.5 percent more than last year, officials said.

The second-largest Soviet crop was 222.5 million tons in 1973.

Last month, the department tentatively estimated the 1978 Russian grain harvest at between 196 million and 230 million tons. Two months ago, it forecast a range of 185 million to 225 million tons.

In its new estimate, it said: "Based on indications and information available in early August, the 1978 harvest seems quite likely to equal the pre-season Soviet plan level of 220 million tons and with normal harvesting weather could surpass the record of almost 224 million tons produced in 1976."

A special task force on Soviet grain production said that a bumper crop would not necessarily mean bad news for U.S. grain farmers, who regularly count on the Soviets as major customers.

Heavy surpluses of grain for three years have held prices down and more exports are seen as the way to raise them.

The task force said that Russian grain stockpiles apparently need to be rebuilt. Also, it said, the government plans to use as much feed as it can handle to build up livestock herds and consumer supplies of meat, poultry, eggs and dairy products.

Because of that, the report said, the Russians could import roughly 16 million tons next year, the same amount it has bought this year, including 14.8 million tons from the United States.

Under a five-year agreement, the Soviets are obliged to buy at least 6 million tons of U.S. wheat and corn each year. That's all they bought after the bumper 1976 crop.

were "big emotional events" for the cosmonauts, the article said.

The cosmonauts reportedly get mail and parcels via cargo ships that ferry supplies to the space station.

Carter May Revive Stymied Plan To Aid Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter told 13 mayors Wednesday that he sees a chance of reviving a stymied proposal to funnel another $1 billion a year to distressed cities.

After the White House meeting, Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, head of a delegation from the U.S. Conference of Mayors, said he felt the aid proposal could be salvaged despite a setback in the House last week.

It was Carter's first meeting with representatives of the mayors group since they endorsed his urban program when it was unveiled March 27. "We still support it," Young told the president during the meeting.

Carter met the group after flying back to Washington from New York City, where he had stayed overnight at the mayoral mansion after signing a $1.65-billion federal loan guarantee package for the city.

He told the mayors that some parts of his urban program "are in danger of not being passed by the Congress."

He referred specifically to his proposal to funnel an additional $1 billion a year to cities with high unemployment and other symptoms of distress. A House subcommittee voted 7 to 6 on Aug. 2 to defer the measure, which could kill it for this Congress.

Carter said the subcommittee "did not give it adequate attention," but said that thanks to the mayor's lobbying, "We still have a chance of redeeming that."

Presidential aide Gene Eidenberg said Carter asked the mayors to report personally to him about what they had heard in their lobbying drive.

Besides Young, those attending the White House meeting were the mayors of Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Newark, Jersey City, and Trenton, N.J.; New Orleans, Birmingham, Ala.; Syracuse, N.Y.; El Paso, Texas; Lafayette, La.; Waltham, Mass., and St. Paul, Minn.

Pittsburgh Mayor Richard Caliguri said the session was "very productive."

"We certainly are behind him," Caliguri said.

Young said of Carter's programs, "There's no question they're in trouble, but since we've been here I think we've made substantial progress" toward a Senate compromise on the $1-billion fiscal aid bill.

"We have reason to believe now we can salvage fiscal assistance," he said.

The administration had originally proposed a $1 billion program to replace one expiring Sept. 30, but Young told reporters that mayors, House leaders and the administration were close to an agreement on a slightly different approach with Democratic Sens. Russell Long of Louisiana, Edmund Muskie of Maine, William Hathaway of Maine and Daniel P. Moynihan of New York.

Young said the compromise would be added to some other bill by the Senate and returned to the House in a conference. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told the mayors Tuesday he favored that approach.

Under the developing compromise, $500 million would be guaranteed to the most depressed areas, then an additional $30 million would be added for each tenth of a percentage point that unemployment stayed over 5 percent, either nationally or locally. National unemployment is now 6.2 percent.

An administration source said there was still discussion of whether the trigger should be 5 percent or 6 percent but that under administration projections the result of the two-tier program would be about $1 billion in total aid, though the figure could go higher.

Meanwhile, Mayor Kevin H. White said in Boston he remains optimistic that a compromise could be worked out. White, president of the U.S. Democratic Conference of Mayors, had led a delegation to Washington Tuesday to rally support for the legislation.

"This program has meant $14 million to Boston since 1976, but more importantly, it has recognized that when the economy falters, the nation's cities must bear the burden of the poor and jobless," said White, who did not attend the White House meeting. "Community aid has eased that burden on the cities and on the homeowners who pay the property taxes in them," he said.

Young also said the mayors were lobbying for a continuation of federal public service jobs through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, commonly known as the CETA program.

Caliguri said CETA was in trouble in Congress because of bad publicity caused by scandals in a relatively few programs.

Young said failure to continue the program would plunge Detroit and other cities into deficit, and possibly spark a nationwide recession.

He credited Detroit's 5,000 CETA jobs with a large part in turning his city's unemployment rate from 23 percent to 9 percent in three years. "CETA has been the difference," he said.

Wholesale Price Report Set For Release Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's wholesale price report, to be released Thursday, may show a decline in prices, a private researcher said Wednesday.

Donald Ratajezak, an economist at Georgia State University, said Wednesday the prices should decline 0.1 percent for July or, at worst, be about unchanged.

A decline in wholesale prices, or even a slower increase, would be encouraging to consumers, because these prices usually show up later on retail shelves.

A decline would be the first since the Labor Department started a new method of compiling wholesale prices late last year. Wholesale prices rose 0.7 percent in both May and June.

Ratajezak conducts his own survey of wholesale prices in the middle week of each month, and the results usually coincide with the government report.

His mid-July sampling shows a 1.4 percent decline in food prices, which have been the biggest contributor to inflation in the first half of the year. So far this year, consumer prices have risen at a rate of 11.2 percent, if averaged over an entire year.

Ratajezak's prediction agrees with another report showing the prices received by farmers declined 1 percent in July, the first drop in nine months.

The Agriculture Department said July 31 that prices declined during the month for cattle, hogs, corn, soybeans and lettuce. However, analysts said it may take as long as September before this decline shows up at supermarkets.

Economists attribute the decline to more plentiful supplies of cattle, fruit, and vegetables.

The department predicts that food prices will rise 10 percent this year and that most of the increases already have taken place.

A favorable inflation report would be timely for the Carter administration, which has been trying to persuade labor and business to hold down wage and price increases.

Aid Elderly, Shriver Urges U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The original director of the war on poverty, Sargent Shriver, said Wednesday there should be another effort to end the poverty of the elderly.

"In our battle against poverty, there can be no 'peace with honor' while nearly six million of our elderly are denied the most basic of all human rights — the right to survival in a decent and dignified manner," Shriver said.

He testified before the House Select Committee on Aging, which opened hearings on the extent of poverty among the elderly and the adequacy of federal programs to combat it.

He said the tax revolt spreading from California threatens programs that reach the poor, the weak and the aged.

In many European countries, where the proportion of elderly is much higher than here, Shriver said, "being old is still an honor and a time for continued productivity. And caring for the elderly is a responsibility that is willingly accepted and effectively pursued."

"We can do the same in this country and our own human rights policy now compels it," he said.

The committee chairman, Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., said slightly more than one-tenth of the national population is aged, "but they account for 29 percent of all persons in America receiving an income below $3,200."

"Currently, the median income of all families headed by a person 65 or over is 43.1 percent lower than the median income for all families," Pepper said.

He called federal programs aimed at the elderly "a cruel hoax" and said older persons "are the victims of the failure of the federal government to meet the needs of the aged to a degree unparalleled in the industrialized world."

The meager money available for many older persons forces them to choose between a cup of coffee and a newspaper, between a needed prescription drug and a carton of milk.

"Yet, some pretend that poverty does not exist," Pepper said. "Others operate from the callous assumption that the aged poor are responsible for their plight and are thus taking advantage of the taxpayers."

Scientist Suggests 'Rocking' Of Mars

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet scientist has suggested that the axial "rocking" of the planet Mars, a long-recognized phenomenon, is caused by the transfer of huge masses of gas from pole to pole.

Yuri Makogon, staff member of the Scientific Research Institute of Natural Gases, explained his hypothesis in the Soviet news agency Tass. He said when summer comes to the northern reaches of Mars, the accumulated gas hydrates decompose and winds float them away from the decomposing areas to the cool zones of the planet's opposite pole.

Cleaning Woman Solves Mystery Of Missing Rings

ATTLEBORO, Mass. (AP) — A 10-month mystery in which more than 4,500 rings vanished one and two at a time from the repair shop of a jewelry company has been solved. The key clue: a cleaning woman noticed that too much toilet paper was being used in a particular restroom.

"It was baffling. We had these reported losses but weren't able to track them. No one would ever guess they were being flushed down a toilet," George Gay, director of personnel for the L.G. Balfour Co., said Wednesday.

"We haven't taken an inventory. They would be a complete mixture of what we offer. I'm sure we'll find a World Series ring and probably others from special events of this type," said Gay.

He would not identify the cleaning woman who helped solve the ring caper. Neither would he identify the disgruntled employee, now dismissed, who apparently had been randomly wrapping the rings in tissue, then flushing them. Gay said no criminal charges have been filed and gave no indication there would be.

The rings were disappearing from the repair shop of the plant that is located about an hour's drive south of Boston. Gay said the shop is always very busy. People send their rings there to be enlarged or to have other work done on them.

"If it's a World Series or NBA championship ring, the athletes usually get fatter as they get older. The rings need enlarging," Gay said.

In June, a cleaning lady noticed an unusual amount of toilet paper was being used in particular women's room and she called this to the firm's attention.

"Most all jewelry companies have special traps in their plumbing systems because we know this can be a way to remove things," Gay said.

Maintenance workers opened the trap and discovered the rings, piled in wet globs of tissue.

Gay said that several insurance claims were made for the lost rings, although he could not say how many or how much money was involved. He pointed out that the value of the rings, most of which were old, would be difficult to determine because the price of gold varies from year to year and because many of the rings had sentimental value.

Balfour makes the service academy rings, police department rings, college fraternity rings and in Gay's words "just about anything worth remembering."

Gay said the rings are still being cleaned with acid and being returned to the owners along with a note that apologetically says the ring had been "misplaced."

New Consumer Safety Head Eyes Serious Health Priorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new head of the Consumer Product Safety Commission conceded Wednesday the agency may have spread itself too thin, saying it will now focus on the most serious health hazards.

"We can't be all things to all people," said Susan B. King in her first meeting with reporters since moving up to the chairmanship of the commission June 30.

"There has been an attempt in the past to try to deal with too broad a range of subjects," she said of the agency that polices the safety of products in the U.S. marketplace. "I'd like to focus on specific hazards and accomplish something important there."

King noted that at one time the commission had a list of 800 projects it was trying to deal with. This was reduced in recent years, and she said the agency's mission now has been reduced to 24 high priority goals.

The high priority goals include products containing the chemical benzene, which has been linked to cancer and other diseases; asbestos, a potential cause of cancer when inhaled; cellulose home insulation that may cause fire hazards, and furniture upholstery that can be ignited by smoldering cigarettes.

"My major effort since assuming the chair ... is to try to help focus the commission on far fewer projects that in our judgment present the most serious hazards that we can present some results on," King said.

Throughout its five-year history, the commission has been criticized repeatedly for failing to move quickly in dealing with health hazards posed by products purchased by unwitting consumers. Members of congressional oversight committees, consumer activists and the General Accounting Office have repeatedly registered this complaint.

King, however, said the focusing on fewer goals will lead to faster action on the major hazards.

She also questioned some of the goals set in the past, singling out lengthy commission proceedings on the safety of matchbooks and swimming pool slides.

"They would not be high priority items now," said King, who joined the commission March 6 and later was chosen by President Carter to head the agency following the resignation of S. John Bynington.

King said the safety commission would be willing to work with manufacturers in developing voluntary safety standards that would avoid federal regulation. She said a voluntary standard now being formulated with an association of chain saw manufacturers is a "real test case" on the effectiveness of voluntary standards.

"In three or four months we will evaluate how things are going on chain saws and seeing if industry is capable of bringing about a serious standard for itself," she said.

However, even if the chain saw experience is satisfactory, King said, the commission will not get out of the business of formulating mandatory standards.

She said the agency will continue to issue information for consumers on how to use products that often are operated in an unsafe way, such as lawn mowers.

In addition, King reaffirmed the commission will continue to look at long-term hazards, including those that may cause cancer, in addition to ones that present an immediate problem. Some observers have suggested that the area of carcinogens is too large for an agency with an limited budget and said the safety commission to handle.

Before joining the commission, King was a top-level staff member at the Federal Election Commission and had lobbied for public financing of elections.

Tax Cut Chief To Speak

AUSTIN (AP) — Californian Howard Jarvis carries his taxpayer revolt banner to Texas Aug. 17 with an appearance at the Tarrant County Convention Center, a Texas group announced Wednesday.

Jarvis, 75, rallied California voters to approve Proposition 13 — a massive, property tax cutting measure.

"We originally thought he would be here during the special session," said Royal Masset, executive director of the Texas Taxpayers League. "We hopefully would have had large rallies around the state to convince legislators to pass tax relief."

The Californian will announce his plan to cut federal taxes in Fort Worth, Masset said. The Taxpayers Association of Fort Worth and Tarrant County, sponsors of Jarvis' appearance, also has invited all statewide candidates in November elections to appear.

Masset said his group likely will campaign for passage of a constitutional amendments package approved by the special legislative session, but he called the proposals "cosmetic."

"The taxpayers want the power of initiative and firm constitutional guarantees on tax limitations, both on the state and local levels," he said. California voters used initiative and referendum rights to roll back their property taxes.

"Some of the senators have been so arrogant about not wanting to provide tax relief, that they have awakened a sleeping giant," Masset said. "Sen. (Bill) Moore (D-Bryan) is the best example of the attitude ... of total disregard for taxpayers."

Moore pushed for early adjournment of the special session before any legislation was approved.

Court Managers Blamed For Inmate's Overstay

HOUSTON (AP) — Managers of Harris County's court system should have discovered within a month that a Houston man was being held in jail after his case was dismissed, an attorney has testified.

James Otzinger testified Wednesday in the case of Otis W. Winfree Jr., 35, who was held in jail nine months after a marijuana charge against him was dismissed.

Otzinger said he got a court order from U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue requiring Sheriff Jack Heard to provide a list of all persons being held in Harris County jails in September 1975.

Otzinger said the list was then turned over to the court managers.

Court managers could have determined from the list that Winfree's case had been dismissed, Otzinger said, but apparently no one checked on its disposition.

Both plaintiff and defendants rested their cases today.

Winfree is suing Harris County Sheriff

Jack Heard and a bonding company for $300,000.

Winfree was arrested by Houston police June 25, 1975. However County Court-at-Law Judge Jimmie Duncan dismissed the case Aug. 14, 1975 because an assistant district attorney said the minute amount of alleged marijuana was not enough to justify prosecution.

Winfree testified Tuesday the substance was not marijuana, but granulated parsley.

Sheriff's deputies received court papers ordering them to release Winfree, but he was not freed until May 5, 1976.

Winfree testified he did not receive medication for treatment of his chronic, severe mental illness nor for a chronic skin infection on his face while he was in prison.

Under cross-examination, Winfree testified that although his Social Security benefits were cut off while he was in jail, he later received payment for them.

Pope's Body Borne To Vatican To Lie In State

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The body of Pope Paul VI, sealed in an oak, lead and cypress coffin, was borne to the Vatican Wednesday to lie in state before the main altar at St. Peter's Basilica until the funeral Mass on Saturday and burial in the grottoes of the church.

The simple coffin was flanked by a crucifix on one side and a candle, signifying eternal life, on the other.

A crowd of 35,000 watched silently as several hundred prelates holding burning candles walked in long lines in St. Peter's square, which can accommodate about 100,000 people. Swiss guards, dressed in red, blue and yellow uniforms, knelt as 12 men in black tailcoats carried the coffin into the basilica.

A group of cardinals and the crowd of mourners gathered before the columns in the vast square as the body was brought to the Vatican in an 11-car motorcade from the papal summer residence at Castel Gandolfo, where the 80-year-old pontiff died after a heart attack Sunday.

The cardinals and about 200 bishops and other clergy chanted a litany for the dead pope, invoking the help of all the saints, as the body was placed before the altar.

More than 4,500 Italian policemen and security officers lined the 15-mile route, which passed near the Appian ruins, through Rome's ancient walls and past the Colosseum. The tight security reflected government fears that the Red Brigades or some other terrorist group might try to disrupt the motorcade to publicize their various causes.

The black Mercedes hearse carrying the coffin was the third in the motorcade and was accompanied by policemen on motorcycles. Riding in the motorcade were the pope's 83-year-old brother, Ludovico Montini, who is a retired Christian Democrat senator, and other relatives and officials.

The procession stopped briefly at St. John Lateran Basilica, the pope's cathedral as bishop of Rome. Cardinal Ugo Poletti, the vicar of Rome, read the traditional prayers for the dead as a crowd of several thousand and a special Italian army unit stood by.

Cardinals from all continents streamed into Rome for the funeral and the secret conclave that will elect the 263rd pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church.

Among the arrivals were a number considered possible successors to Pope Paul — Italians Sebastiano Baggio and Pericle Felici, and the Dutch primate Johannes Willebrandt.

Cardinals John J. Carberry of St. Louis, William Baum of Washington, D.C., and Humberto S. Medeiros of Boston were the first Americans to arrive.

The Congregation of Cardinals, running the church in the interim period between popes, met again Wednesday to discuss the conclave, but no date was fixed for its start, which will be during the week of Aug. 20.

On the last day of public viewing, local peasants and prelates stood elbow-to-elbow with green-uniformed Italian boy scouts and chanting pilgrims from the Ivory Coast in their colorful native dress for a glimpse of the pope's body, robed in red on the catafalque with his head resting on three pillows.

Vatican officials said at least 60,000 mourners had viewed the body in the three days it was on display, but Italian police put the number at around 100,000.

"It's now sinking in that he'll be gone from here for good," said Simone Spaccasassi, a local tourism official. "We have gotten used to him. We hate to see him leave us like this, in death."

The residents of Castel Gandolfo, which overlooks Lake Albano, are particularly close to popes, who traditionally spend their summers in the papal residence. They view the pontiff as their spiritual father and the chief source of income, with Wednesday audiences and Sunday blessings usually attracting about 6,000.

After the funeral, Pope Paul will be buried in the earth beneath the basilica's crypt. The Vatican radio said that, in accordance with his wish to be buried "in the bare earth," the pope's body will not be placed in a marble sarcophagus like his two predecessors, Popes Pius XII and John XXIII.

Cardinal Medeiros of Boston, speaking to reporters on arrival, said, "I want to recall of Pope Paul, whom I consider a saint, his love for people and peace. Paul had heroic virtues, which helped him in these difficult times." About the election of a successor, he said, "Let's hope the Holy Spirit helps us in the conclave."

Cardinal Emanuel Nsubuga of Uganda, asked about the possibility of the first non-Italian pope in four centuries, said he had no preference about the new pope's nationality.

Cardinal Joseph Cordeiro of Karachi, Pakistan, said the electors from the Third World have an important but not decisive role.

"I sincerely hope it will be a man who will care especially about the poor." In Lyon, France, Cardinal Alexandre Renard said the conclave should not last more than a week and "hopefully should be over in three or four days."

"If an Italian is the most suited, it will be an Italian," Renard said. "The question of nationality does not arise amongst us."

A service for the repose of the soul of Pope Paul was conducted Wednesday in the Moscow cathedral by Patriarch Pimen, the Soviet news agency Tass reported. During the service the patriarch recalled Pope Paul's lofty spiritual traits, spoke about his work that promoted the establishment of "brotherly relations between the Russian Orthodox and Roman Catholic churches," Tass said.

The Moscow patriarchate will send a delegation, led by Metropolitan Nikodim of Leningrad, to the funeral, Tass said.

Funeral, Conclave Security Pose Problem

ROME (AP) — While terrorist activity has lagged during this holiday month in Italy, Pope Paul VI's funeral and the coronation of his successor are giving Italian and foreign security forces monumental headaches.

The largest array of police and military troops since the kidnap and murder of former Premier Aldo Moro — a personal friend of the dead pope — guarded Wednesday's motorcade carrying the pope's body from Castel Gandolfo to St. Peter's Basilica.

The government had 2,000 police, 2,000 carabinieri soldiers and 400 finance officers guarding the 15-mile route while helicopters hovered overhead. Several thousand transit police and a division of specially trained grenadiers from Sardinia also were flown in. Additional police were called back from vacations.

President Carter's wife Rosalynn is bringing a large contingent of secret servicemen and women to guard the U.S. delegation. She is using a bulletproof car and planning a short stay.

It's no secret among diplomats that Carter discarded stopovers in Rome during his recent European trips mainly for security reasons. Fumbles by Italy's security forces during the 56-day Moro kidnapping have raised fears of another spectacular attempt.

While terrorism is down dramatically in August, recent figures show that 458 bombings, shootings or other acts of political violence took place in Rome during the first six months of the year — a painful reminder that the problem is only temporarily dormant.

Another reminder was the disappearance last week of a couple of convicted Red Brigades terrorists, Nadia Mantovani, 28, and Vincenzo Guagliardo, 30, who broke parole and faded back into hiding. They were free to travel anywhere while their case awaited appeal.

An additional jolt for Italians was the confession of a West German terrorist last Sunday that a gang had planned to kidnap Pope Paul VI and ransom him for jailed compatriots. Hans Joachim Klein, one of the raiders of the OPEC Vienna headquarters in December 1975, told an interviewer that the pope was observed for a month in April 1976 before Palestinian guerrilla leader Wadie Hadad vetoed the plan.

A final preoccupation for security forces is the recent amnesty of 8,000 petty criminals released from crowded Italian jails to make room for more serious offenders.

"These petty offenders are grist for terrorist mills and spectacular action can never be excluded," says an Interior Ministry official. "But we are more afraid of small incidents caused by criminals."

One of the reasons the terrorist threat is very much alive in the minds of Vatican officials is Pope Paul's deep suffering during the kidnap of his close friend Moro.

He threw away protocol by staying up the night of April 20, writing a first person — instead of the papal "we" — appeal in long hand to "men of the Red Brigades" asking them "on my knees" to spare Moro's life.

Vatican insiders reported at the time that the pope's personal doctor used two injections to stimulate his heart. The purple robes of mourning he wore to Moro's state funeral were the same he wore as he lay in state at Castel Gandolfo.

Odds Opened On Papal Vote

LONDON (AP) — Ladbroke's, the London bookmakers, are accepting bets on who will be the next pope. And it has raised a controversy here.

In the past, the firm has taken bets on offbeat topics such as the next sighting of the Loch Ness monster, but opening a book on the next pope upset at least one member of the British Parliament.

Simon Mahoa, a Labor Party MP from Bootle in northern England and a Roman Catholic, said Ladbroke's action was "grossly distasteful."

"We are looking for a successor for Jesus Christ, and that is not a matter for Ladbroke's," said Mahoa.

Ladbroke's director, Ron Pollard, defended his company by saying: "We did not intend any offense to anyone. People have been talking about contenders and outsiders and the possible favorite. We took that one step further to give people the opportunity to test who would be right."

Favorites in Ladbroke's betting are: Italian Cardinal Sergio Pignedoli, quoted at odds of 5-to-2; Cardinal Sebastiano Baggio and Cardinal Ugo Poletti, also Italians, both at odds of 7-to-2; and among the outsiders, Cardinal Eduardo Pironio of Argentina at 12-to-1 and Cardinal Aloysius Lorscheider of Brazil at 33-to-1.

How to pull the plug on high electric bills.

Getting angry at the electric company about high bills won't help one bit. Because the problem is probably in your own home. If your heating and air-conditioning system is one of the old, low efficiency types, for example, a General Electric Executive high efficiency system is probably just what you've been wishing for. It's the most energy-efficient GE unit available today.

Imagine what that can do for your pocketbook! So, don't get mad at the electric company next time your bill seems too high. Replace your old inefficient unit with a GE Executive high efficiency air conditioner. It has the lowest operating costs in the entire GE line. And, that's a pretty good plug, wouldn't you say.

Tailors Preparing Vestments For New Pontiff

ROME (AP)—On the second floor of a small shop in the heart of Rome, tailors are cutting and sewing the vestments for the next pope even though they don't know who he will be.

The job has been in the family of Annibale and Francesco Gammarelli for more than 200 years.

"The commission for the first papal vestments is traditionally ours," said Francesco Gammarelli, youngest member of the family.

"Then it's up to the new pontiff to decide whether to keep us on or not." In this century only Pius XII, born to nobility, called in his own private tailor.

"We have to be somewhat experts on the 'papabili', the cardinals mentioned as the possible next pope, to decide what sizes to cut. In the case of Pius XII and Paul VI we were lucky. Pope John XXIII was a disaster," he told The Associated Press.

Two vestments, one for ceremonial use and one for everyday wear, will be made in three sizes and sent to the Vatican. The new pope will put on the ones that best fit him as soon as he is chosen and go immediately to the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica to greet the crowds.

The portly John XXIII was something of a dark horse. Gammarelli said that when he was named pope the conclave assistants mixed up the boxes in their excitement and dressed him in vestments intended for a slimmer man.

John XXIII went onto the balcony to greet his new flock with several buttons of his papal cassock unbuttoned.

After the new pope is named, the Gammarelli tailors step back until they are called by the new pontiff, at which point they become his private tailor.

"In the case of Paul VI," says Francesco's older brother Annibale, "we were so private that he would not wear any gift if it was not made by us. When we made something on behalf of someone else we would call up the Vatican apartments and say, 'It's OK, he can wear it, it's ours.'"

Unlike John XXIII who was very interested in his clothing, Paul VI left it up to the tailor and his private secretary, the brothers said.

The papal clothing consists of two cassocks, one for house wear with an incorporated capellet, and one for ceremonial wear worn with the traditional mozetta, a red cape. In winter the vestments are wool, and the mozetta is ermine-bordered velvet. In the summer the house cassock is of light wool and the ceremonial one of silk.

The pope wears a satin skull cap called a zucchetto.

The papal tailors also make his red velvet shoes with a gold embroidered cross.

Asked if more modern vestments might be in the offing, Francesco answered with a slight smile, "The cassock is really not impractical and quite comfortable, it well made."

POPE'S TAILORS — Two brothers Annibale, left, and Francesco Gammarelli, whose family has prepared papal vestments for over 200 years, show the skull-cap they will present to the new pontiff who will be elected by the Cardinals in the forthcoming conclave in Rome Wednesday. "It's up to the new pope to keep us (as tailors) or not," the Gammarellis said. (AP Laserphoto)

Desegregation Assist Sought

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Independent School District says it wants nearby suburban school districts to voluntarily aid in speeding up HISD's desegregation efforts.

In a legal brief filed Tuesday in federal court, HISD said it will explore programs which might draw students and personnel from other school districts. But, it acknowledged initial response from the other school districts has not been good.

"One major impediment . . . which is already evident in the informal contacts is that surrounding districts appear to be reluctant to voluntarily involve themselves in a plan which they feel might become mandatory due to their voluntary involvement," the brief said.

The brief was filed at the direction of U.S. District Judge Finis Cowan, who has criticized the pace of desegregation in Houston schools and questioned the possibility of the surrounding, predominantly white school districts cooperating with HISD.

In the brief, HISD cited the Regional School for the Deaf, located within the district for all county students, as an example of potential cooperative programs. The Texas Education Agency also will be queried about its possible role in an inter-district effort, the brief said.

The results from Superintendent Billy

Reagan's meetings with area superintendents will be reported to the judge by Jan. 15, HISD said.

The brief said it should not be interpreted that HISD has not done "everything practical" to eliminate segregation. But a complete review of the desegregation effort is appropriate now to chart a specific course to integrate schools, it said.

Guerrillas Turn Farm Area Into 'Ambush Alley'

CASHEL, Rhodesia (AP) — This green valley on the border of Rhodesia and Mozambique, where John Heys' Afrikaaner forebears settled in 1895, was peaceful farming country until guerrillas came and turned a strip of road into "ambush alley."

from economic problems even before guerrilla raids, has dwindled from 63 to 17 over seven years. The local hotel has closed. The white school, the Afrikaners' Dutch Reformed Church and a canning factory have shut down.

residents. Now they call the last 15 miles of the rutted road to Cashel "ambush alley."

John Heys isn't moving. "If you believe there is no hope, you might as well blow your head off now," says Heys, who at 23 is unusually young in a white community with an average age of 50. "There is three generations of work ahead of me in this ground. Must I say 'I'm leaving'?"

Heys, whose family has 30,000-acres of land, adds, "I simply have to believe there is an opening for me here. The decision had to be made two years ago whether you are staying or pulling out. There was still a market for our land then...now there is none."

The first fatal attack on a white farmer in Cashel was not until last Dec. 4. Four more have died since.

The military says it is part of a plan by Robert Mugabe's Mozambique-based Zimbabwe-based African National Union guerrillas to strike at the heart of this agriculture-dependent country's economy — already strained by 12 years of international trade sanctions.

Departing families have abandoned farms or left black foremen in charge. "Whether willingly or unwillingly, some of these blacks are now feeding the terrorists," says Police Chief Ian Burke, who leads a force of three whites and nine blacks.

Those who stay, homes ringed by security fences and connected by radio sets to the police post, cite the near impossibility of selling, as well as currency regulations which allow families only $1,300 to start in another country. Some simply say they know no other home but Cashel.

John Wright, 34, a former legislator who last year quit Prime Minister Ian Smith's party to protest moves to black rule, lost his father to a heart attack after his car hit a land mine. Wright has had tractors and crops burned. Some of his laborers have fled.

"I can't imagine anything that will get us to move," says Wright. Then he adds, "But one must be practical. I don't see any really long-term future in these border areas unless something is done positively to end the war."

In the Headlands area 100 miles from here, farmers say attacks began in earnest last April. Nearly half the 130 farms are vacant, mainly those bordering reservations.

In the neighboring Mayo district, 14 black laborers and children were slain in a massacre last month. Seventeen Headlands farms have been attacked — one six times — in recent months, and six farmers killed in nine months.

Two weeks ago, a laborer had his ears and lips cut off. His neighbor, who asked not to be identified, said half his laborers quit the following week.

Christina Cawood, her husband and son recently returned to Cashel from the lowlands because they fear their land will be taken over by a black government unless occupied.

"We won't go," she says. "It will be even worse in South Africa when the problems start there. Anyway, this is my home. I'm a fatalist. If a terrorist is going to shoot me, he is going to shoot me."

British Submarine Base Hit By Civilian Walkout

LONDON (AP) — Two thousand civilians walked out Wednesday at Britain's Polaris submarine base on the River Clyde in Scotland in another pay dispute with the Labor government.

The refitting of HMS Resolution, one of Britain's four Polaris subs, was affected, but a Defense Ministry spokesman said, "We have made provisions to ensure the continuation of essential work at the base."

He said some of strikers were "taken off pay" and suspended, and replaced by naval personnel.

The employees earn as little as $56 a week. Their demands for parity with workers in the private sector are at odds with a government anti-inflation code that sets a limit on raises of 10 percent. Union leaders and Defense Secretary Fred Mulley will meet Thursday to discuss the impasse.

The Polaris fleet is an essential part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's nuclear deterrent. The month-long dispute earlier slowed the repair and resupply of Britain's other three Polaris subs.

Two hundred workers "refused to carry out their duties" as requested by base Commodore Neil MacEacharn, the ministry spokesman said, and were suspended. The 2,000 walked out in solidarity.

"Everything in the Clyde submarine base is now blacked," said a shop stewards' spokesman. "The commodore challenged us, so we have challenged him."

The Resolution was boycotted by civilian workers in a work slowdown last week. There was a similar boycott of work on the HMS Revenge two weeks ago.

The civilians perform a variety of jobs from welding to unloading nuclear waste. They are among 183,000 civilian government workers who belong to several unions but negotiates pay contracts jointly.

Turks Delay Search For Noah's Ark

KINGFISHER, Okla. (AP) — It will be at least one more year before Pat Frost of Kingfisher gets a chance to look for the legendary Noah's Ark.

Frost, a school principal and lay minister, returned from Turkey on Tuesday after being refused permission to climb Mount Ararat, where he is convinced the biblical ark is located.

He said one of the main problems in getting permission to climb the 17,000-foot mountain is that it is located on a Turkish military reservation along the Russian border.

"I'm disappointed, but yet we learned so much that we know the Lord's still in control and we'll leave it up to him," Frost said. "We know at the right time it will work out."

Frost estimated that he and Earl Hall of Enid and Earnest Cooper and Bob Jones, both of Muskogee, spent $12,000 on the fruitless trip.

A planned excursion to search for the ark was terminated last year because of what Frost called the political climate in Turkey. He had hoped for better luck this year.

"We had a professor from the University of Erzurum (in Turkey) and he thought, since he was good friends with the officials, there would be no problem in getting permission," Frost said.

"But when we met with the governor of this little town at the base of the mountain — he was very friendly with us — but he said without permission from the central government in Ankara, he could not give us permission."

According to Frost, the ark is covered most of the time by snow and ice at the 14,000-foot level of the mountain. He said melting conditions occasionally reveal a part of the ark, and that this year would have been ideal for finding and photographing it.

"We could see, and our guide told us, that the ice and snow have melted off the mountain," Frost said. "It would have been ideal if we could have got up on the mountain — the climate had been changing and the conditions would have been ideal."

Carter Peace Move Praised By Byrd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., commended President Carter's latest Middle East peace initiative and said Wednesday, "I hope something good can come out of it."

The White House announced Tuesday that Carter will meet Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., beginning Sept. 5.

"I think it is all that can be done," Byrd told reporters. "The president and the administration should be commended."

Water District Engineer Testifies On Reservoir

By LARRY SPRINGER
A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Using "conservative" projections, the Colorado River Municipal Water District will need at least 12,580 acre-feet of water by 1990 to meet the water demands of the district's West Texas service area, a consulting engineer told the Texas Water Commission Wednesday.

F.W. Freese, Fort Worth, further testified that the projected deficit could be supplied from the proposed Stacy Reservoir. The CRMWD is asking the Texas Water Commission for authority to build the Stacy project on the Colorado River in Runnels, Concho and Coleman counties.

The Lower Colorado River authority, the City of Austin and four other entities are opposing the project.

Most of Wednesday's testimony centered on Freese's estimate of the district's water requirements for the 1980-2030 period, with opponents challenging several points.

Freese said he used Texas Department of Water Resources per capita water-use projections in his study, with that data showing a deficiency of zero in 1980, climbing to 101,430 acre-feet of water in 2030.

He stressed that although the state water agency has high, medium and low projections for per capita municipal use of water, he used the low, "more conservative" series of figures.

A "leveling off" in the per capita use of water occurred in 1974, Freese said. This would be reflected by the water agency's low figures, which he called more "realistic."

LCRA attorney Fred Werkentin objected to the use of the water agency to substantiate those figures.

The commission, however, allowed Freese to continue, acknowledging that his testimony relating to those figures was to show how he formed his conclusions and not to the validity of the data.

Werkentin also objected to data included by Freese in his estimates which show the district's Martin County and Ward County well fields dropping from their 1976 combined production of 8,877 acre-feet of water to zero by 2000.

Freese acknowledged he reduced earlier estimates of the remaining supply from the wells after receiving a memo from CRMWD General Manager Owen Ivie that cited high production levels from those fields in recent years.

Freese conceded, on questioning by Werkentin, that he had not made engineering studies of the wells to determine their capacities but rather had relied upon his own experience and the opinion of Ivie in reaching his conclusions.

A map and accompanying data prepared by Freese was introduced showing that while the Colorado River Basin counties above the proposed Stacy Dam site have 40.2 per cent of the basin population, that same area receives 17.3 per cent of total basin runoff.

This, Freese said, would indicate the per capita runoff above the dam site is 0.97 acre-feet per year compared to 3.11 acre-feet per year below that site. "I can't see the purpose in this," Werkentin objected.

The map shows "folks in your area have more water per capita than those in West Texas," CRMWD co-counsel Jim Wilson, Austin, maintained.

The per capita figures are arbitrary according to where the line is drawn between the upper and lower basins, Werkentin complained.

Wilson countered that anywhere the line is drawn, individuals below that point would still receive more water per capita than those above.

Freese, who also serves as a consulting engineer for San Angelo, volunteered during his testimony that he had previously urged San Angelo to participate as a partner in a reservoir project at the proposed Stacy Reservoir site.

"And I still do," he added. San Angelo is not a partner in the proposed project, although the district has indicated that negotiations are underway in an attempt to sign up the city as a customer for the Stacy Reservoir water.

Freese will continue his testimony Thursday. The hearing before the three water commission members will resume Thursday afternoon and continue Wednesday, Aug. 16.

Lawyers' Group Okays Television Advertising

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the first time, the American Bar Association

Wednesday endorsed lawyer advertising on television.

The ABA's policy-making House of Delegates approved 141-89 a proposal to add television to the list of acceptable media for advertising by lawyers.

The ABA action was only a recommendation. Final decisions must be made by state courts, state bars and regulatory boards. But the action was bound to be influential.

Until a little over a year ago, the ABA opposed virtually all forms of lawyer advertising. But a June 1977 Supreme Court ruling allowing lawyers to advertise their fees in newspapers changed all that.

The Supreme Court noted that television might raise special considerations, and the ABA in lifting its previous flat ban on lawyer advertising last year did not resolve the TV issue.

Many lawyers still believe advertising is unprofessional and are worried about how to regulate those that might abuse it. But a number of states have adopted rules allowing TV as well as other forms of advertising under a variety of restrictions.

Wednesday's vote came after speakers warned of the dangers of either approving or turning down an ABA commission proposal to go on the record and list television as an acceptable advertising medium for lawyers.

Commission Chairman Roger Brosnan of Winona, Minn., warned that the ABA could face a series of lawsuits for restraining competition if it maintained a policy against TV advertising. He said the high cost of television ads would provide a form of self-regulation against abuse.

Joe Stampler of Oklahoma said the ABA was under pressure "to equate legal services with soap and breakfast food." "Now the Supreme Court has said I can wear a flag upon the seat of my britches," he said. "But that doesn't make it necessary to do so."

WHEAT RECOMMENDATIONS DUE
WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland will take his recommendations on 1979 wheat production curbs and subsidies to the White House late this week. Under farm law, Bergland must announce a tentative wheat program by Aug. 15. The largest share of the U.S. wheat crop is planted in the fall for harvest the following spring.

LAYING HIS LOOP — A lot of practice swinging a lariat is what lays the loop over the calf's head in the rodeo arena, so loops swing constantly outside the Scurry County Coliseum in Snyder, where the national finals of the American Junior Rodeo Association is underway this week. James Henderson of Snyder watched as long as itchy fingers could wait, then showed the older boys how he will do it next year as an AJRA member. At left, he watches Todd Spitzer of Stamford demonstrating the wrist action as the loop goes around his head just before the toss. Then, he waits while Todd shows how he pays out his rope for the right sized loop. Then, taking the lariat for his own demonstration of loop-making, James sends the rope over the practice calf. More than 300 youthful cowboys and cowgirls are competing in the national finals rodeo which will continue through Saturday at the Scurry County Coliseum in Snyder. (Staff Photos by Gerry Burton)

Swinging Loops Top Activity As Youths Prepare For Rodeo

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SNYDER — National finals action for the American Junior Rodeo Association rolls past the midway mark at 8 p.m. today as the third round unwinds in Scurry County Coliseum.

More than 300 cowboys and cowgirls will compete in at least one event before world champions are named at the Saturday finale.

While contestants vie in the arena, especially during the daytime slack run, the coliseum grounds are covered with swinging loops, prancing horses and everyday horse-care activities as AJRA members and parents get ready for competition time.

One of the loops swinging, but not getting to the arena, is that of 7-year-old James Henderson of Snyder, a veteran rodeo hand who won't be an AJRA member until next year.

James has been trailing a loop behind his calf-roping father ever since he could toddle and has copied 31 trophies riding the barrels, bending poles and racing flags as well as breakaway roping.

His mother, a barrel racer, gives him good points on rounding the cloverleaf in good time for 4-H Club playdays, super pee-wee, pee-wee and junior rodeos.

His father is handy to have around for some last minute help making a loop.

One of his loop-swinging friends on the grounds this week has been Todd Spitzer of Stamford, also son of a calf roper, who is sitting fourth in breakaway roping standings for the 1978 AJRA year in the 12-and-under division.

Todd and his horse, Prissy, made the finals breakaway roping competition with 15.8 seconds from the start to the rope breaking from the saddle horn after Todd roped his calf.

He also does well in ribbon roping, where a sidekick has to pluck a ribbon from the roped calf's tail and run it across the finish line.

Todd and James are only two swinging loops while waiting for the action inside the coliseum to draw them in.

First go-round winners include:

Begin Given Briefing On Egyptian Parley

phantly last November by Sadat had run its course.

The officials, declining to be identified publicly, said there is no certainty the Camp David summit, at which Carter will be joined by Sadat and Begin, will permit a resumption of Israeli-Egyptian negotiations.

But the officials said they were heartened by the quick acceptance by both leaders to Carter's invitation to come to Camp David on Sept. 5.

The quick acceptance suggests that although Sadat and Begin are loathe to accept the peace terms of the other side, both consider the alternative to continued negotiations to be even more unacceptable, at least for the moment, one official said.

In inviting the pair to come here, Carter is putting his personal prestige on the line. By all accounts, no prior agreements were worked out beforehand to ensure a successful summit, and officials do not rule out the possibility of total failure at Camp David, with either Begin or Sadat angrily stalking out of the negotiations.

Under one "worst case" scenario, a failure at the summit talks would mean the definitive end to the peace process.

The LOOK hotline — 765-8546 — will continue to operate for two weeks after school begins to handle any questions parents may have.

LOOK is made up of members of the League of Women Voters, City Council of Parents and Teachers, City Council and school officials. The organization takes neither a pro nor anti-integration stance, organizers said, but simply provides information to help smooth the transition to the new plan.

House Passes Record Defense Spending With Abortions Curb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed a $119.2 billion defense spending bill Wednesday after approving a tight curb on abortions in the military.

The abortion issue was the only item of debate on the third and final day of House action on the bill, the largest such appropriation in history. The legislation, which the House approved 339-60, was sent to the Senate.

Aside from the abortion matter, other major controversial issues of the bill were $2.1 billion for a nuclear aircraft carrier approved over President Carter's objections, and unsuccessful efforts to cut more than $3.2 billion in the name of economy.

The abortion amendment, approved by 226-163, would ban use of any defense money for abortions except where the mother's life would be endangered if she gave birth.

Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., sponsor of the amendment, said "26,000 abortions are performed by the military using defense dollars, and I'm sure the irony of the word 'defense' comes home to all of us."

"There are some of us," he said, "who believe we place a curse upon the Army of this free country if we allow 26,000 military wives and dependents to have children killed in their wombs."

Dornan argued his amendment does not affect the poor. "We're talking about officer's wives, NCO's wives."

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., said the amendment would affect all women in the armed services, wives of servicemen and dependents.

"All it will do is discourage men and women from entering our armed forces," thereby undermining national security, she said.

In response to inquiries about the abortion amendment, the Pentagon said, "We believe present policy is a reasonable and prudent one and that that policy will continue unless and until the law changes."

In a statement, the Pentagon said that under existing policy such operations may be performed in military hospitals for any of the categories of personnel who are eligible for care in such facilities. It listed these categories as active duty members of the armed services and their dependents, retired members and their dependents and surviving relatives of either active duty or retired personnel.

The statement said abortions may be performed for military personnel based in the United States when medically indicated or for reasons involving mental health and subject to the availability of space and facilities.

Outside the United States, major commanders determine policy on a country-by-country basis, based on such considerations as pertinent mores, the applicable laws of the nation concerned and the status of forces agreements under which American troops are based in individual countries, the statement added.

Karen Mulhauser, executive director of the National Abortion Rights League, chastised the House vote. "Today's regressive action marks yet another step towards abridging individual rights for all women," she said, adding that "Congress will hear from the American people about this."

And Robert Alpern, chairman of the Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights, said, "It would be a travesty of justice for the Department of Defense to send an employee overseas, perhaps to a country with primitive medical facilities, and then refuse her adequate medical care at American facilities."

City Man Indicted In Slaying Linked To Auto Repossession

Barbee was conscious when police arrived and named a suspect.

Daniels was arrested a day after the shooting. One employee told officers that Daniels — who reportedly left his mill job June 2 — had quit after a salary dispute.

In another case, Joe Martinez Cobarrubio, 19, of 2402 Colgate St., was indicted for murder as the result of the May slaying of Javier Gutierrez, 17, of 1831 San Jose Dr.

Cobarrubio was arrested by sheriff's deputies July 26 in an apartment in the 400 block of N. University Avenue.

Gutierrez, who reportedly was shot once in the back of the head, was found by police in the 2100 block of Emory Street about 9:30 p.m. May 23. He died at a hospital about four hours later.

A woman at the scene told police Gutierrez had fought with another man in front of an apartment just before the shooting.

Damacio Villarreal, 25, of 2134 Emory St., was indicted for injury to a child.

Villarreal was charged July 27. The child — a 4-year-old Elias Caballero Jr., of 2109 Emory St. — died Aug. 2 at Methodist Hospital.

The child, connected to a life-support system for more than a week, had bruises on his legs, arms and head.

First Assistant District Attorney Tom Cannon Wednesday said the DA's office is awaiting the result of possible further laboratory tests in the case.

"Depending on the results, we may take the case back to a future grand jury," Cannon said.

Records indicate Villarreal is serving a five-year probation sentence on a 1976 theft conviction. The DA's office has filed an application to revoke that probation.

topics from health care to solar energy research.

Romance also is an ingredient in the atmosphere at each center.

Single folk can get acquainted over a game of 42 or while strolling in the walk-a-mile events.

It was the dance floor, though, that reunited a couple who hadn't seen each other in 20 years.

Nola Mae Barnett of Woodrow had been a widow four years. She was worried about her daughter, a victim of multiple sclerosis. She had never danced in her life.

"But I loved to hear country-western music and I was tired of looking at four walls," she said.

For four weeks she sat at the dances and watched. Then she saw a tall man with graying hair and a slim frame.

"No, it couldn't be him," she said to herself. The man she remembered was the same height, but had black hair and weighed 220 pounds to fill out the deputy sheriff's uniform he wore then.

She timidly tapped on his shoulder and asked, "Are you John Barnett?"

He was. Their children had grown up together. His wife and her husband had both died in June 1969.

"He grabbed me and never let me go," she says of the man who taught her to dance and married her five years ago after a five-month courtship.

He is 83 and she is 71. They gently hold hands as they dance in a circle with other couples doing the "Put Your Little Foot Out."

Mrs. Barnett smooths the folds in the fabric of her blue pantsuit as she watches the couples on the floor. She and her husband are sitting out this number. She stares straight ahead as she explains two of her children have died in the past three months. Her husband has emphysema. He doesn't dance as much as he used to.

She blinks. Her eyes sparkle in unison with the silver heart necklace she wears.

"I'd go flat crazy if I didn't get out and dance," she says as her husband remains seated and she joins the man on the dance floor who has just asked her to be his partner for "Red Wing."

Forgets Carnegie Hall Vow

NEW YORK (AP) — Famed pianist Vladimir Horowitz, who has always insisted that his New York concerts be at Carnegie Hall, will perform next month in New York's Avery Fisher Hall.

Horowitz celebrated the 50th anniversary of his American debut in January with a concert with the New York Philharmonic at Carnegie Hall. The Sept. 24 performance with also be with the Philharmonic.

Horowitz's performance of Rachmaninoff's "Piano Concerto No. 3 in D Minor" will be televised live by NBC-TV starting at 5 p.m.

That's A Smoot Point

BOSTON (UPI) — What's a smoot? A reader of the Boston Globe wanted to know, and the newspaper's "Ask The Globe" column got the answer.

"As I crossed the Mass. Avenue Bridge between Boston and Cambridge, I noticed the words written on the roadway of the bridge: 'Smoots.' It went from 10 Smoots up to 300 Smoots. What are smoots?" the reader asked.

Marvin W. Miller, vice president of A. Lionel Pavlo Engineering Co. doing work on the bridge, told the newspaper it is not a standard bridge measurement. But the way Miller heard the story, a bunch of guys from Harvard University decided as an initiation feat to measure the bridge. Using a Harvard fellow, they measured him from head to toe, end over end, to determine the length of the structure.

His name, as the tale goes, was Smoot.

Polanski Working On Film

PARIS (AP) — Film director Roman Polanski has started work here on his first film since fleeing the United States early this year to avoid sentencing on a morals charge.

A spokesman said Polanski started work a week ago on "Tess," an adaptation of the English classic "Tess of the d'Urbervilles" by Thomas Hardy.

Tess is being played by Nastassia Kinski, 18, daughter of German actor Klaus Kinski. The film will be shot in Paris and various locations around France.

Church Sells For $1

ROSEMOUNT, Minn. (AP) — For $1, Victor Wenzel bought the church where he was married and his three daughters were confirmed.

"They were going to put a wrecking ball to it," said Wenzel, who paid several thousand dollars to have the 250-ton brick church hauled to his nearby home.

A new church had been built to replace the old St. John's Rich Valley Lutheran church in Rosemount, a suburb of St. Paul. So the old church, built over 60 years ago, was to be torn down.

Wenzel says he doesn't know what he will do with the church, but said it might be a museum someday. Last winter, he bought a turn-of-the-century schoolhouse, and it's also on his five-acre lot.

Wenzel has no plans to start a new religion. "No way," he says. "The good Lord takes care of that."

Homework Slated For Tots

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gone is the carefree life of being 5 years old and going to school only half a day. From now on, kindergarten pupils here have to do homework.

That's the word from the San Francisco Board of Education, which this week extended its long-standing rule requiring homework for pupils in grades 1-5 to kindergarten as well.

The policy sets a maximum amount of time for homework assignments, as a guideline for teachers, with 20 minutes suggested for kindergarten through grade 3.

If homework isn't enough, the board says its next project is to come up with a kindergarten report card.

Nixon Declines Beer Bust

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Gary Kimsey, owner of the Town Pump, sent former President Richard M. Nixon an invitation to a party at the pub on the fourth anniversary of the announcement of Nixon's resignation.

But Nixon didn't come.

Beer at the party Tuesday in the city's oldest pub sold for 23 cents a glass, and about 50 patrons turned out.

The bar was decorated in red, white and blue bunting and featured photographs of Nixon's recent visit to Hyden, Ky., where a school gymnasium was named for him.

Valentino Gets Block

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lots of people get streets named after them. But silent screen lover Rudolf Valentino only gets a block.

The City Council voted 11-1 Tuesday to override Mayor Tom Bradley's veto, naming one block of what is now Irving Boulevard after the late actor.

Valentino's house — now an apartment building — sits on the block that will be named Valentino Place. He died in 1926.

Bradley said the one-block name change would confuse motorists — including police, fire crews and ambulance drivers.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Irving Lowens, an American music historian and a music critic for the Washington Star, has been named dean of the Peabody Conservatory of Music.

Lowens will take over Sept. 1, when he gives up his position at the Star.

Dog Litter Fines Set

MERRILL, Wis. (AP) — It's not New York City, but this city of 9,500 still has dog litter problems.

Taking a leaf from the Big Apple, the Merrill City Council approved by a 9-0 vote an ordinance making pet owners responsible for cleaning up droppings left by their pets anywhere but on their own property.

The ordinance, similar to one put into effect this month in New York City, sets fines ranging from $10 to $200 for violators.

AIRLIFT FROM ALBANY TO ALBANY — Air National Guardsmen load emergency aid donated by residents of the Albany, N.Y., area for victims of flooded Albany, Tex., Wednesday at the Schenectady County Airport, near Albany N.Y. The aid was gathered by a local radio station and a local supermarket chain. The plane will unload the supplies at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene, for shipment to Albany. (AP Laserphoto)

Albany To Albany Air Mission Aids Stricken Texas Village

ALBANY (AP) — Albany, Texas, had more clothing Wednesday night than it knew what to do with — compliments of donors from throughout the North Texas area — and more arrived by plane Wednesday night from Albany, N.Y.

A welcoming convoy of cars carrying media representatives and Air Force personnel pulled up to the Shackelford County Courthouse at 7 p.m. Wednesday, an hour ahead of a truck convoy carrying aid to flood-stricken residents donated by residents in their sister city of Albany, N.Y.

An Air Force C-130 transport plane landed at 6:40 p.m. at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene, 28 miles southwest of Albany. It carried six tons of food, clothing and other supplies donated in a drive started by an Albany, N.Y., radio station.

A crew was on hand on the courthouse square to unload the relief items when the convoy arrived.

"I don't know what we're going to do with it. It depends a lot on just what they've sent us. We have more clothing now than we can possibly use," said Donnie Lucas, editor of the weekly Albany (Texas) News.

"We got five truckloads out of Wichita Falls that different church organizations up there donated, and we had several truckloads from various church organizations and civic groups in Abilene, plus a lot of local donations," Lucas said.

The Albany grade school gymnasium "is completely full of clothing," he added. "The Church of Christ auditorium was completely full, but they had a funeral for two of those people here today so they had to take it out and put it somewhere. The American Legion hall was full and the old ice house was full."

Lucas said what the community of 2,000 needs most is small and large kitchen appliances and money.

Albany churches have had their doors open, providing food, since the crisis began last Thursday night.

"So really, with all this clothing in, we need the appliances for those who still have homes but no refrigerators, stoves and other appliances. And money to get some of these people by until some of these emergency grants and loans come through. It will be probably 30 to 60 days before some of these loans get processed," Lucas said.

But U.S. Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., who termed the delay "almost a comedy of errors," said he received a call from Director William Wilcox of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration Wednesday morning saying Albany, Texas, was not a disaster area and residents did not need the aid collected in a program sponsored by Albany, N.Y., radio station WOKO.

Stratton said he got in touch with U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Texas, who told him that the town of 2,500 had been destroyed by a 20-foot wall of water, and that "they're not aware down there that they don't need it."

Stratton, who is a member of the Armed Forces Committee, said he called the Defense Department, which agreed to pay for the flight. He said the Defense Department official with whom he spoke said it sounded "like a lot of red tape."

Stratton said the FDAA got its information from the Red Cross.

The Red Cross refusal to provide funds put the flight on hold until the question of funding could be resolved. It was here that Stratton stepped in at the request of the radio station. The Defense Department would assume the cost because the Air National Guard would use it as a training flight.

Lake Patrol Finds Body Of Missing North Texas Woman

LAKE TEXOMA (AP) — Oklahoma Lake Patrol officers Wednesday found the body of Joan Caruth about 50 yards offshore from the Lake Texoma island where she was last seen alive Monday night.

Mrs. Caruth, 24, of Plano, was the daughter-in-law of Dallas millionaire W.W. Caruth, who summoned his private helicopter to aid in the search. Caruth had expressed hope that she had been abducted rather than drowned.

Authorities said Mrs. Caruth left a campsite on Oak Estates Island about 8:45 p.m. Monday to pick up her husband Robert at a marina on the lake, but never arrived. The couple had been camping on the island with a friend of Mrs. Caruth's.

The 18-foot jet boat in which Mrs. Caruth had left the island was found beached on the Oklahoma side of the lake about 4 a.m. Tuesday. Officers said there was no sign of a collision, and a paddle was found near the boat.

Lake Patrol Officers Bob Sharp and Larry Bennett recovered the woman's body when it surfaced in the lake Wednesday. Sharp said they had not begun to drag the lake due to the large search area involved.

Helms Casts Doubts On Oswald Evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former CIA Director Richard Helms said Wednesday he doubts anyone will ever know who or what Lee Harvey Oswald represented when he assassinated President John F. Kennedy.

"Nobody knows today what Oswald represents," Helms said during a break in closed-door questioning before a House assassinations subcommittee.

"This is the whole question, the whole thing. It's never been resolved and I don't think it ever will be resolved," Helms responded when asked if he knew as a CIA official at the time of the assassination Nov. 22, 1963, that Oswald had ties with either the Soviet KGB or the CIA.

Helms said Oswald's possible links with the KGB will never be known "until the KGB tells you that."

"Or the CIA tells you (of CIA ties)," a reporter asked.

"Oh, that's silly," Helms replied.

Helms said he told the Warren Commission he could not vouch for the truthfulness of a Soviet defector who said months after the assassination that he had been in charge of the KGB file on Oswald's activities in Russia.

The defector, Yuri Ivanovich Nosenko, was not called before the Warren Commission as a witness.

"I went down to tell them we had not been able to establish Nosenko's bona fides because I thought they should know that," Helms said.

Helms said he made the report to the late Chief Justice Earl Warren, head of the commission.

The commission concluded that Oswald acted alone in assassinating the president and was not part of a conspiracy or under the direction of any foreign government.

Helms was asked about a declassified FBI document quoting a Soviet defector as saying the KGB did not try to recruit Oswald in Russia because it thought he might be an American spy.

"I've never heard of this," Helms said. Helms was the CIA's director of plans at the time Kennedy was assassinated and later became director of the agency.

He refused to say what kind of questions he was asked by the subcommittee. But later, when a reporter asked if he knew whether Oswald had KGB ties, he replied, "You ask questions almost as dumb as the committee's."

Martin Blames Jackson For Resignation Move

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin said Wednesday that controversial slugger Reggie Jackson was the main reason he resigned as manager of the New York Yankees and refused to retract his statement that Jackson is a "born liar."

At the same time, Martin disclosed that he was contacted about managing "two or three" other teams and said his health "is good enough that I could manage tomorrow, if I wanted to."

In a hastily arranged luncheon meeting with a group of eight writers, Martin said he didn't remember saying the infamous line at a Chicago airport that Jackson and owner George Steinbrenner "deserve each other. One's a born liar, the other's convicted." But he conceded that he couldn't deny saying it, either.

He also said that he bears "no dislike" for Jackson and would not object to his being a Yankee when Martin returns as manager in 1980. Martin's resigning was announced during Old Timers' Day ceremonies July 28 in one of the most bizarre turnarounds in baseball history.

Martin said his anger at Jackson boiled over when the outfielder returned from a five-day suspension for bunting when ordered to swing away and denied that the bunts constituted an act of defiance.

"I probably made the comment about George," Martin said. "I don't know why. I was probably mad at someone else. Maybe I said it to be witty, like I sometimes try to be."

Martin seldom mentioned Jackson by name, usually referring to him as "the other guy."

"I was mad at the other guy," he said. "The club was winning and relaxed and he comes back and won't admit he made a mistake."

Jackson was suspended for five days without pay following the bunting incident in a July 17 game with Kansas City. He rejoined the club in Chicago on July 23 and said he hadn't defied Martin intentionally.

"He was fined by the manager, it was okayed by the owner and he denied it," Martin said. "Between Reggie's coming back and not even coming out to the ballpark early to take batting practice and his sitting around and saying he didn't think he did anything wrong... well, I thought that wasn't a good working condition, as far as I was concerned."

Martin decided to resign after the Yankees flew from Chicago to Kansas City that Sunday evening.

"I couldn't sleep that night at all," he said. "I got up early and paced the floor, but my mind was made up."

He resigned on Monday, July 24, but called Steinbrenner later that day to apologize for his airport remarks about the owner, but not about Jackson.

"I just wanted to let him (Steinbrenner) know that it was a terrible thing to say, but I meant what I said about the other guy," Martin said.

Asked if the Jackson situation was at the root of his resignation, Martin replied:

"Basically that's true — that and a slip of the tongue, saying something I didn't want to say and didn't think would be printed. I didn't mean it about George and I probably said it in jest, but I did mean it about the other guy. There's no question about it. Any man who makes a mistake and won't admit it is a weak man."

Martin also objected to Jackson's comment that the manager hadn't talked with him in 14 years.

"That's the biggest lie I ever heard," Martin said. "Who gave him permission to drive his car during spring training instead of riding the bus like the other players? Who gave him permission to fly home to Oakland two or three times during the season instead of traveling with the team?"

"And if I sat down with him once, I sat down with him a hundred times. I talked with him on the bench, I talked with him when I saw he was depressed, I tried everything in the world to help that young man; now he's got to help himself."

PGA Champion Draws Attention

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Newly crowned PGA Champion John Mahaffey and leading money winner Andy Bean head a field of 150 pros set to start today in the opening round of the $225,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

Despite the absence of such standouts as Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Tom Watson, Lee Trevino and Gary Player, the pros' 12th visit to Pleasant Valley features 13 of the top 25 money winners on the tour this year.

Mahaffey proved a surprise bonus for Pleasant Valley board chairman Cuz Mingolla and the sponsoring American Optical Co.

Beset by injuries and personal problems, including a broken marriage, for two years, Mahaffey was extended a sponsor's exemption by Mingolla last February. He quickly accepted, grateful for the chance to return here.

Then, with his career at an all-time low, the 29-year-old Mahaffey, healthy and happy with a new wife, surprised the golf world last weekend. He rallied from a seven-shot deficit and defeated Watson and Jerry Pate in a two-hole playoff to win the 50th PGA Championship at Oakmont. That earned him $50,000 plus a 10-year exemption from having to qualify in PGA events.

"It's been a long way back," said Mahaffey, who just missed winning the U.S. Open in 1975 and 1976 before his problems began. "There's been a lot of disappointment along the way. But the win (Sunday) makes up for every bit of it."

Mahaffey credited his return from virtual oblivion to "a combination of things."

"I'm healthy and I have a healthy marriage, a wife who works me," he said.

Don Henry Construction Project

WHEN SOME OF us pick up a book, we read strictly for the enjoyment, the relaxation of it, to shut out the rest of the world via a trip into a whodunit, a collection of O. Henry short stories or the latest recollection of Watergate.

Others, however, attack a novel from a different angle, digging deep into the whiteness between the lines. As this English teacher once instructed, look for what the author has hidden from you, see if you can figure out how he's trying to tease you. Symbolism, it's called—they say.

Well, maybe there's some symbolism hidden in the cover of the Texas Tech book, the one with the ink still drying, the one which came off the presses Wednesday listing the facts and figures and glimpses of the Raiders who will perform in Jones Stadium this autumn.

Here, on the cover, is new coach Rex Dockery, wearing a workman's hard hat, and posing with three Tech students on the site of the lettermen's lounge-business office now under construction on the north rim of Jones Stadium.

The hard hat and the construction site could indicate what the outlook (inside) mentioned: That Dockery has a building job on his hands.

But, unfortunately, the three Tech students posing with him aren't returning veterans. The trio of Sharon Kelton, Cheri Wood and Shery Williams will be in the stands cheering, not on the AstroTurf playing, when the season opens.

IT WAS A good gimmick, to spot three attractive young coeds on the cover, with the new Raider coach and the construction project which dominates the stadium at present. It's an interest-grabber.

But, the concerns listed between the covers remain for Dockery, who is now on the road trying to locate additional help, albeit for the years in the future.

But, according to Tech tub-thumper Keith Samples' Raider press brochure, "youth and experience will be the primary problems facing... Dockery as he begins his first season..."

It's easy to see the loss of experience, too, when the booklet points out that the 23 players who departed via graduation accumulated 65 varsity letters while at Tech.

AND AFTER SEASONS when such athletes as Donny Anderson, Mike Leiner, Doug McCutchen, Cliff Hoskins, Billy Taylor, and Larry Isaac crunched out yardage in record-book chunks, the Raiders will be starting with a practically new set of runningbacks. The size will range from one of the smallest in the conference (5-7, 175-pound Don Earl) to one of the tallest (6-5, 212-pound Tim Orr). In between will come Mark Olbert, who able to redshirt (via injuries) last year and will be a freshman in eligibility, along with Eddie Monaco, Steve Dawson, who was shifted after spring training from defensive back.

The inexperience factor hits only below the surface in the receiving section, where regulars Brian Nelson and Godfrey Turner return, along with backup Howie Lewis. A walkon, Michael Morris, who came on in the spring game and too late to have his picture included in the brochure, will bolster the receiving group, along with untested sophomore Edwin Newsome.

The kicking—goals, that is—will be the property of Bill Adams, again, if he is recovered from knee surgery. The punting is another matter, to be determined when practice begins in less than two weeks.

IF ONE NEEDS such information, the Raiders will be one of the youngest teams in the nation. When they line up against Southern Cal on Sept. 9, the average of the 62 varsiteers will be under 20 years. And this does not include any freshmen.

Olbert will be only 18 although it is his second year on campus... Dane Kerns' size 15 is the biggest foot to fit in shoes... At 269 pounds, Robert Caughlin is the heaviest guy around...

Looking on down the trail, USC, and New Mexico come to Lubbock for games in 1979, the Raiders go to Tucson to play Arizona. And in 1980, Tech hosts North Carolina and UTEP and visits New Mexico.

Also, starting in 1979, the Raiders don't find Texas on the schedule until November; Baylor is the first conference game the last weekend in September both the next two seasons.

Meanwhile, as the press books are being distributed, the construction work continues on the lettermen's lounge. And Dockery continues to prepare for his rebuilding project.

LCHS Picked To Challenge Mexican Team

By PAUL McGRATH
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Lubbock Christian High head football coach George Harper is confronted with a serious problem. In the fourth of the upcoming game of season, his Eagles will kick off against a contingent of all-stars selected from eight government-sponsored high schools.

Harper says he knows little about the opposition, other than that they're quick, fast and the best their country has to offer. What's more, Harper will have no opportunity to scout the all-stars prior to the opening whistle.

However, Harper says, it's a challenge he considers an honor to have.

Lubbock Christian and the City of Lubbock have been selected from a field of 14 to host this year's edition of a cultural exchange program between Mexico City and Texas cities. The program, which was held last year with Kincaid High School in Houston, is culminated with a football game between high school all-stars from Mexico City and the host school.

The Mexican all-star team will spend a week in the city prior to the game visiting various city attractions. The all-stars are expected to tour Reese AFB and the city's public and private school systems, spending several days inside LCHS classrooms, Harper said.

Mexico City will reciprocate the privilege for next year's Eagle team.

Harper said the exchange program has gone on for some time, with the all-star team facing several Texas Class AAAA and Class AAA football teams in the past. LCHS is a Class AA private school.

"It's a tremendous honor to be selected," Harper said. "We're real excited about it and the kids are real excited about it. It's the most exciting thing that has happened to our program."

The school was given the confirmation on Tuesday, he said, with the playing date scheduled for what had been an open date on Sept. 22. The game will be held on the Eagles' home field at 8 p.m. with the proceeds going to the school and to aid in paying the expenses of the all-star team. Harper said. The City of Lubbock will also aid in the selection of game officials and lodging for the Mexican team.

Several Mexican government officials are expected to be in attendance at the game, Harper said, as well as Lubbock city officials.

One of the prime reasons for Lubbock was selected over the other 13 cities is the Operation Senoritas exchange program for students between the two cities, Harper said. Also, those selecting the site may have wished to visit a different region than in the past.

Harper admitted he knows very little about the Mexican all-stars, but did say they will probably have quickness and possess a great deal of team speed. Although being beaten handily in previous games, Harper said he expects the team will show improvement and will "play fairly competitively." He added that many of the players on the team were on last year's team as well.

Harper said he doesn't know the statistics on the size and weight of the all-star team, but added that further information will be forthcoming from Mexico City.

Cauthen Hurt During Race

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Steve Cauthen, the sensational 18-year-old jockey, suffered a slight shoulder separation Wednesday after falling off his mount in the third race at Saratoga Race Course.

X-rays were taken at Saratoga Hospital, where Cauthen was to remain overnight for observation. Dr. William Newey, chief radiologist at the hospital, said the X-rays revealed no definite fractures.

Cauthen rolled off his mount, Cate As A Button, when the 3-year-old filly suddenly went down at the quarter-mile pole while dueling with Frank's Ego for the lead. The filly, who suffered a compound cannon bone fracture, was destroyed.

Cauthen, who rode Affirmed to each of his Triple Crown victories this year, is scheduled to ride the colt in the Travers here Aug. 19 for another meeting with Alzard, runnerup in all the Triple Crown events.

Another jockey, Alan Patterson, also was admitted to the hospital after being thrown in the fifth race. His mount, Shumaker, staggered coming out of the gate and fell.

Patterson suffered a possible concussion and was undergoing X-rays.

WTC Selects Cage Coach

SNYDER (Special)—Western Texas College has named Joe Cushing as women's basketball coach.

Cushing coached women's basketball and track at Forsan last season after coaching at Bellville for four years. Under Cushing's guidance, Forsan won district titles in both sports while Bellville claimed the state track championship in 1976.

JESSE OWENS

Owens Recalls '36 Olympics 'Every Day'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jesse Owens, who spends much of his time these days devoting his energies to the youth of America, has vivid memories of what happened in Germany 42 years ago.

That's not surprising, not only because of what he accomplished but also because he's constantly reminded of his past.

"Wherever he goes, people take notice," said a spokesman for the 14th annual Jesse Owens National Championship track and field meet Saturday at UCLA. "I'm convinced he's one of the most recognized and respected sports figures in the world."

Owens, who will present all awards earned Saturday at the competition for boys and girls 10-15 years old, turns 65 next month. But advancing age doesn't appear to have slowed him down.

"I enjoy keeping in constant contact with the youth of America. Young people keep you young," said Owens, who stunned Adolf Hitler and the believers of the Nazi concept of Aryan superiority by winning four gold medals at the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin. "I get packages of mail from youngsters who have read about my life, it's a nice feeling."

"I'm reminded of what happened in 1936 every day, I'm always running into someone who wants to talk about it. I have a lot of things to be thankful for."

Owens believes that while youngsters are materially better off today than when he was growing up, it's tougher for them in a way "because they have so many distractions, like television, radio and cars."

"I know we've got a lot of young people breaking the law," he said. "But we've got a lot of adults doing the same thing. We have a lot of youngsters doing a great job. That's news, but you don't read about it. I feel very good about them. I haven't forgotten that I was young once and many people helped me."

"I like to look at our nation as having been a relay for 200 years. Each generation carries a baton. Every adult generation must train the youth to carry their baton."

A member of the U.S. Olympic Committee the past 12 years, Owens is hopeful that Los Angeles will indeed be the site of the 1984 Games. The final decision on that matter will most likely be made within a couple of weeks.

"I think the financial problem that the people of Los Angeles were concerned about has been solved," he said. "Now it's up to the International Olympic Committee. I'm very hopeful."

"We (the United States) need the prestige of hosting the Olympics."

Rumors Fly On Walton Deal

SEATTLE (AP) — Talk that the National Basketball Association's New York Knicks might sign center Marvin Webster and trade him to Portland for Bill Walton has Webster's agent laughing.

"Then what will New York give Seattle for compensation? Bill Walton?" Larry Fleisher said in a telephone interview from his New York law office.

"If you do all sorts of convoluted thinking, I guess you can tie the two players together," Fleisher said.

But Stu Inman, director of Blazer player personnel, does not find the idea so laughable.

"I've been asked about Marvin Webster," he said. "He opens up a possibility that the team that signs Walton may not have the player on their roster now for compensation to us. If the Knicks could sign Webster and send him to us... that kind of thing is the scenario of what could develop."

Portland has agreed to trade Walton, Webster, a free agent, was a decisive force in putting the Seattle SuperSonics into last year's NBA championship series.

Mike Burke, Knicks president, has mentioned that signing Webster might solve Portland's compensation demand for Walton. But the Sonics are still hopeful of retaining Webster.

"We want Marvin very badly," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens, "and we're waiting to hear from his attorney."

Fleisher said Walton's introduction on the market "hasn't stopped our negotiations at all." He claims having two good centers available sweetens the pot.

"It's like being on restaurant row," Fleisher said. "If there is a lot of competition, some think it can hurt you. But it also gets everybody to begin thinking of eating out."

"The more competition, the better it is for Marvin," he added.

Before Walton went up for grabs, the Knicks said they hoped to sign Webster. They apparently have not changed their mind.

Stacy Advances In Junior Tourney

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Martha Stacy, 16-year-old sister of 1978 U.S. Women's Open champion Hollis Stacy, advanced Wednesday to the quarter-finals of the United States Golf Association national girls junior tournament with a pair of match play victories.

Miss Stacy, Savannah, Ga., opened with a 4 and 3 victory over Joanne Pacillo, Palos Verdes, Calif., then rallied for a 2 and 1 triumph over Carol Hogan, Oceanside, Calif., in play at Wilmington Country Club's south course.

"She won't let me come home until dark, until I've finished practicing."

Bean, a 6-foot-4 all-America at the University of Florida before qualifying for the pro tour in 1973, has piled up $253,558 this year while winning the Kemper, Memphis and Western tournaments. He leads Watson by $6,000, Nicklaus by $16,000 and Trevino by nearly $22,000. Mahaffey is 17th with $91,754.

Mahaffey and Bean figure to run into plenty of competition in the 72-hole event at Pleasant Valley's 7,119-yard, par-71 course. Eight of the 11 previous champions here are back, including 1977 winner Ray Floyd.

Among the other standouts are Hale Irwin, Dave Stockton, Lanny Wadkins and Ben Crenshaw, a definite threat although winless on the tour this year.

Crenshaw, who tied for second in the British Open, is returning to the peak of his game and figures to do well on the course where he made his pro tour debut on an exemption from Mingolla in 1973. He was edged by one stroke here two years ago.

The Pleasant Valley winner will earn $45,000. Second place is worth $28,500.

'Prissy Gold' Takes Sudden Ruidoso Race

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (Special)—Prissy Gold Digger, last year's Kansas Futurity winner, ran into some pretty soft allowance competition in Wednesday's headliner at Ruidoso Downs.

The filly was made an odds-on favorite in the 400-yard dash and splashed into an early lead.

The running surface, well soaked from heavy rains during the past few days, didn't bother the people's choice in the least. She stayed on top all the way and was well in command when she hit the wire with a 1 1/4-length lead. Harley Crosby was up.

Prissy Gold Digger clocked the distance in 20.58 and returned $3.80, $4.20 and $2.80. The filly is owned by Robert W. Moore of Oklahoma City.

Mr. Kieberg Meyers splashed in second and Go Go Gay took third.

Gilliam Ends Comeback

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Former Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Joe Gilliam walked away from his NFL comeback attempt with a semi-pro team reportedly to be alone and collect his thoughts.

But there are some — including former world heavyweight boxing champion Mohammed Ali — who would like to have the 27-year-old football thrower around.

"He took a special interest in this kid," Lloyd Wells, an aide to the fighter, said Wednesday from Ali's training camp in Deer Lakes, Pa.

"We've told him he's welcome," Wells said. "It's just a social thing, but I'd like to see him come up here and stay for a couple weeks."

people, athletes, everybody," said Wells.

Tigers Rally Past Rangers With Grand Slam 5-2

By The Associated Press
Tim Corcoran's first home run of the season, an eighth-inning grand slam, lifted the Detroit Tigers to a 5-2 victory over Texas and snapped the Rangers' winning streak at four games.

Corcoran's drive into the upper deck in right field came off Jim Umberger, 4-7, who relieved Ferguson Jenkins at the start of the eighth.

Texas had taken a 2-1 lead in its half of the inning on singles by Juan Benitez and Toby Harrah and Mike Hargrove's second sacrifice fly.

Kip Young, 4-1, permitted Texas just six hits. Harrah laced a one-out single to center in the sixth, the Rangers' first hit. Young attempted to pick Harrah off first base but threw wildly, allowing him to reach third. Harrah scored the first Texas run on Hargrove's first run.

Detroit jumped in front at the top of the fifth on singles by Tim Corcoran, Phil Mankowski and Lou Whitaker.

TORONTO 8, CHICAGO 0
Rico Carty collected three doubles, the first of which opened a six-run Toronto second inning, and Jesse Jefferson tossed a three-hitter night as the Blue Jays scored an 8-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The Blue Jays sent nine men to the plate in the second against Steve Stone, 9-8, scoring the six runs on just four hits.

Carty's blooper double, a walk to John Mayberry and Willie Upshaw's single loaded the bases. Alan Ashby walked to drive in the first run and Dave McKay followed with a single to right, scoring two more.

Luis Gomez then singled, then Bob Bailor advanced him and McKay with a sacrifice for the first out of the inning. A sacrifice fly by Al Woods delivered McKay and shortstop Don Kessinger's relay throw to third attempting to nab Gomez, who also had tagged, went into the Toronto dugout and allowed the sixth run to score.

ASTROS 6, GIANTS 5
Houston's Mark Lemongello tied a major league fielding record for pitchers by making five putouts and survived two San Francisco home runs to post a 6-5 victory over the Giants.

Enos Cabell led the Astros' hitting attack against the National League West leaders with a 3-for-3 performance. He singled home a run in a four-run first-inning rally and scored a run in the third.

Right-hander Lemongello, 8-10, tied the putout record shared by many by covering first base once in each of the first five innings and taking throws from first baseman Bob Watson. After hitting the leadoff batter in the ninth, Lemongello was replaced by Ken Forsch, who got his fifth save. Lemongello had given up eight hits.

The Giants, who won Tuesday night with the help of some brilliant defensive play, committed four errors, including two in the first inning.

Starting pitcher Jim Barr, 6-9, balked to send Terry Puhl home from third base with Houston's first run of the game, and Barr and catcher Marc Hill made throwing errors in the first. Puhl, Cabell, Jose Cruz and Dave Bergman singled in the inning.

MARINERS 4, TWINS 1
Dan Meyer hit a three-run homer in Seattle's four-run first inning Wednesday night while Glenn Abbott and Jim Todd combined on a six-hitter as the Mariners defeated Minnesota 4-1.

Abbott, 5-9, pitched 7 1/3 innings. Then he gave way to Todd, who threw one pitch in the eighth for an inning-ending double play.

The Mariners nailed rookie Roger Erickson, 11-7, for four runs on four hits in the first.

Craig Reynolds singled with one out and moved to second on a passed ball before scoring on Ruppert Jones' single. Leon Roberts followed with a single and one out later Meyer provided the 381-foot blast over the right field fence, his seventh home run of the year.

KANSAS CITY 2, BALTIMORE 0
Hal McRae doubled with two outs in the seventh inning to ruin the perfect game of Baltimore's Scott McGregor, then the next three Kansas City batters hit safely to give the Royals a 2-0 victory over the Orioles night.

McGregor, 11-10, attempted to hurl the first perfect game since Catfish Hunter did it May 8, 1968. McRae fouled off two 3-2 deliveries, then sliced an opposite-field drive off the side of the right-field wall.

Al Cowens followed with a checked-swing single, scoring McRae, and scored on singles by Amos Otis and John Wathan.

There have been two no-hitters in the major leagues this season, by National League pitchers Tom Seaver of Cincinnati and Bob Forsch of St. Louis. The last of four no-hitters by Baltimore pitchers was hurled by Jim Palmer on August 13, 1969.

Fred Patek, the leadoff batter in the seventh, was out by a step after shortstop Mark Belanger went to his right and fielded his grounder in the hole.

CUBS 5, PIRATES 4
Bill Buckner drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double and Rodney Scott doubled home the winning run in the sixth inning as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4.

Dave Roberts, 5-7, scattered eight hits to post his first victory in more than a month. Ed Whitson, 3-5, took the loss in relief.

With the score tied 4-4, Tim Blackwell reached base on shortstop Frank Taveras' error to begin the Chicago sixth.

He advanced to second when Roberts grounded out and scored one out later when Scott doubled off left fielder John Milner's glove.

YANKEES 8, BREWERS 7
Mickey Rivers' two-run homer touched off a five-run New York rally in the ninth inning as the Yankees defeated Milwaukee and took over second place in the American League's East Division.

Chris Chambliss, who doubled home two runs in the rally, scored the winner as Brewers catcher Buck Martinez fumbled an attempted bases-loaded bunt by Lou Piniella.

The Brewers carried a 7-3 lead — built on home runs by Larry Hise, Don Money and Cecil Cooper — into the ninth inning. After pinch-hitter Roy White flew out, Bucky Dent beat out an infield single.

Rivers followed with a homer, making it 7-5. Willie Randolph reached on an error by shortstop Robin Yount and Thurman Munson — who had three hits including a homer — walked.

Chambliss then hit what appeared to be a three-run game-winning homer over the center field fence, but Gorman Thomas leaped at the wall and managed to knock the ball back into play. Randolph scored but Munson stopped at third, leaving the Yankees still one run short.

Graig Nettles received an intentional walk, loading the bases, then Reggie Jackson was hit by a pitch, forcing in the tying run.

NEW YORK 10, MONTREAL 5
Stearns broke a 3-3 tie with a two-run homer in the seventh inning and Willie Montanez smacked a three-run homer in a five-run New York eighth as the Mets crushed the Montreal Expos 10-3.

Joel Youngblood drove in one New York run and scored two others. He had an outstanding night with a triple, two double and two singles, equaling a Met record for most hits in one game, 5. Winner Craig Swan, 5-5, scattered seven hits and allowed three runs in seven innings.

CINCINNATI 10, ATLANTA 0
Paul Moskwa fired a four-hitter and drilled a bases-loaded double in a five-run sixth inning as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 10-0.

Moskwa, 3-2, allowed only one baserunner after the third inning, retiring 19 of the last 22 batters to face him, in notching his first complete game in 26 starts this year.

Leading 2-0 in the sixth, the Reds ripped reliever Jamie Eastley for five runs, loading the bases without getting the ball out of the infield. After infield hits by Dave Concepcion, Cesar Geronimo and Vic Correll, Moskwa doubled down the third base line for two runs.

Pete Rose, with only three hits in his last 21 at-bats against Atlanta pitching, was intentionally passed and Junior Kennedy's groundout drove in Correll. Ken Griffey then doubled to right at the feet of the onrushing Gary Matthews, scoring Moskwa, with Rose going to third. Craig Skok then replaced Eastley and intentionally walked George Foster, loading the bases for Dan Driessen, who delivered a sacrifice fly.

PHILADELPHIA 6, ST. LOUIS 3
Richie Hebner twice delivered RBI singles to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals as Jim Kaat reached a new level in career victories.

The 39-year-old Kaat, 6-4, checked St. Louis on nine hits through 6-3 innings and gained his 259th career victory with relief help from Ron Reed, who collected his ninth save. Kaat moved into sole possession of 23rd place on the major league's all-time list of winning pitchers.

LOS ANGELES 3, SAN DIEGO 0
Dusty Baker slugged a solo home run, double and single and Johnny Oates drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single to back the five-hit pitching of Doug Rau as the Los Angeles Dodgers posted a 3-0 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Baker hit his ninth homer in the second inning off loser Eric Rasmussen, 10-9. Oates followed a single by Ron Cey, doubled by Baker and an intentional walk to Rick Monday with his two-run single in the fourth inning.

Rau, 11-7, did not allow the Padres a hit after the third inning after he pitched out of his only jam of the night. The Los Angeles left-hander struck out seven and walked only two in gaining his second shutout of the year.

Rau has won four of his last six decisions against San Diego.

The only trouble Rau encountered was in the second inning, when Rasmussen and Gene Richards singled with only one out. Rau pitched out of the jam by getting Ozzie Smith and rookie Jim Beswick on ground balls.

The complete game was the fifth straight by Los Angeles hurlers. The victory moved the third place Dodgers to within a game of first-place San Francisco in the National League West and within half a game of second-place Cincinnati.

CLEVELAND 5, BOSTON 1
Andre Thornton hit a solo home run and Tom Verzer and Gary Alexander had two hits each as the Cleveland Indians trimmed the Boston Red Sox 5-1.

Thornton's 22nd homer of the year, an eighth-inning blast into the left field net, came off Bill Lee, 10-8. Lee, who lost his fifth attempt to win his 11th game, had given up just five hits before Thornton's blast.

Boston went ahead in the third inning. Butch Hobson doubled, Rick Burleson singled and Jim Rice hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Hobson. Cleveland tied it in the sixth when Verzer singled, moved up on a walk and scored on a double by Gary Alexander.

The Indians made it 2-1 in the seventh when Buddy Bell led off with a single, advanced on a sacrifice and scored on a Ted Cox double.

Rick Wise, 9-14, lasted 62-3 innings and hiked his season record to 3-0 against his former teammates. Cleveland added two ninth-inning runs on an error by Hobson and an RBI single by John Grubb.

Protests, Arrests Mark Nagasaki Day

By United Press International
 Dozens of anti-nuclear protesters were arrested Wednesday in peaceful "die-ins" from Pennsylvania to California marking Nagasaki Day—the 33rd anniversary of the last atomic bomb exploded against humans.
 In Nagasaki itself, thousands prayed it would never happen again.
 The demonstrations varied from "die-ins" in Colorado where 72 were arrested, including "Pentagon Papers" informant Daniel Ellsberg and poet Allen Ginsberg, to prayer vigils in New York.
 Most began Aug. 6, in memory of the thousands killed when the first atomic bomb destroyed Hiroshima.
 Hours earlier across the Pacific, an estimated 10,000 people stood in Nagasaki's Peace Park with bowed heads for one minute of silence at 11:02 a.m.—the moment at which the city was leveled by a single atomic blast on Aug. 9, 1945.
 The blast incinerated 39,000 people outright and eventually killed 73,000.
 "No one but atomic bomb victims can understand how much burden they are destined to carry for the rest of their life," said survivor Yoshio Kadokawa, a dockyard worker at the time of the explosion.
 In Golden, Colo., to the slow beat of drums, demonstrators fell moaning to the ground in a "die-in" near the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant—the scene of five months of anti-nuclear protests.
 Seventy members of The Rocky Flats Truth Force were arrested as 70 other supporters watched and continued their drum rolls.
 Earlier Wednesday, Ellsberg and Ginsberg were arrested as they stepped onto Rocky Flats property to join the protesters. Both had been under court orders not to return to the plant grounds.
 Rocky Flats, operated by Rockwell International for the Department of Energy, uses plutonium to make the compon-nents for nuclear bombs.

 In Sunnyvale, Calif., eight persons, wearing signs on their back saying "nuclear victim" were arrested when they lay down at the entrance of Lockheed's missile plant. The Lockheed plant produces Trident missiles.
 "I believe courageous people must start standing up and saying 'no' to this kind of idiocy," said Clancy Dunningham, a Berkeley divinity student, after his arrest.
 In Philadelphia, 35 persons entered the downtown Federal Building, poured ashes about and then sprawled on the floor. Four were arrested when they refused to leave.
 The act symbolized "the inevitable consequences of nuclear weapons which is death and nuclear ashes," said Robert Smith, one of the demonstrators arrested.
 In Pittsburgh, eight members of the Christian Peacemakers were arrested outside Rockwell International headquarters when they lay down on piles of ashes. They accused Rockwell of being "the exclusive manufacturers of triggering devices for a multiplicity of nuclear weapons."
 In New York City, about 30 demonstrators, including four drumbeating, chanting Buddhists, gathered for a noon to 5:30 p.m. vigil outside Riverside Research Institute, a weapons think-tank.
 "We're here because so much money is being spent developing weapons to kill people while the city crumbles around us," said John Ragusa, spokesman for the group.
 In New Hampshire, members of the Concord and Manchester Energy Alliance withdrew money from the Indian Head National Bank of Concord to dramatize their opposition to the Seabrook nuclear power plant. The group said the bank, via Worthen Inc., is the fourth largest stockholder in the $2.3 billion power plant.

'Den Mother' For Stars Eases Communications

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — At Paramount Studio they call her den mother, mother hen or mother superior, but Lee Wedemeyer's real title is director of talent relations.

It's a brand-new position for the alert, attractive executive, who admits to being "into my 40s — well into them." Her job was recently created by Michael D. Eisner, Paramount president and chief operating officer, to whom Miss Wedemeyer was formerly assistant.

What is a director of talent relations? Part of the explanation may be found in the motherly cognomen (if that sounds sexist, sorry). The position has not existed in today's movie studios, which are more or less rental lots for independent producers.

Back in the era when studios maintained large talent lists, someone usually functioned as liaison between those under contract and the bosses.

"That's what I will be doing," explained Miss Wedemeyer. "I'll be constantly available to the talent, both in motion pictures and television, so they will know they have a friend they can come to. If they have a problem with management, I will present it to the executives who are concerned."

"A lot of trouble arises because of lack of communication. I will be able to go to management and say so-and-so is unhappy for this reason. I think in most cases the problem can be solved. If it becomes a dispute, naturally I will have to be on the side of management. But I think we can avoid that most of the time."

Miss Wedemeyer explained that she will not get involved in contract negotiations, such as the recent dispute in which Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams wanted raises before starting the new season of "Laverne and Shirley."

"But I will work on other levels," she added. "For instance, John Travolta has made two incredibly important pictures ('Saturday Night Fever' and 'Grease') for Paramount, and naturally we want to continue our relationships with him."

"Since he has become such an important figure, he has both a personal staff and a management staff. I have established and maintained a personal relationship with these people, so they know they can come to me for anything that is needed. They know I have the ear of management."

She also plans to be something of a welcome wagon for new producers and other talent who come to Paramount.

"It can be bewildering to move into a studio," she said. "There are a million departments here, and I plan to issue a handbook that will make living here easier for the newcomers. I'll also make sure that I get to know them."

Miss Wedemeyer is quick to assert that "I'm good with people." She has learned that knack by dealing with all kinds of talented people during 20 years in TV and movies. Growing up in Santa Monica, Calif., she became enamored of the entertainment world and entered it right out of high school.

landing a job as executive secretary to Eisner when he was with ABC.

"Secretary" was a convenient euphemism, she said. "I never learned shorthand or typing, although I taught myself to type. My main talent in all my jobs was to get things done. Mr. Eisner had seen me function, and that's why he chose me for this job. He wants to create a Paramount 'family.'"

Miss Wedemeyer admitted that earlier in her career she had no executive ambitions — "very few women were chosen." But times have changed and so has she.

"I guess you could call me a 'new age' woman," she said. "I have two sons, 15 and 11, and they live in Hawaii with their father, from whom I am divorced. I have a very good relationship with the boys, and one of them is staying with me this summer."

"Any regrets? Oh, sometimes I wish I had a more normal life with time of my own. But the entertainment world is so exciting that I seldom feel that way."

Gunman Surrenders, Gives Up Hostage

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — An armed man who had been holding a 6-month-old baby hostage since Sunday surrendered peacefully Wednesday.

Police said Samuel Jackson, 35, walked out of an East Oakland apartment about 3:30 a.m. at the urging of Wayne Brown, a negotiator who spent parts of three days trying to talk Jackson into giving up.

The baby girl, Sameeha Howell, "appears to be fine, but she was taken to Meritt Hospital for a checkup," said Officer Michael Bowers.

Bowers said Jackson was taken to Highland Hospital for psychiatric tests. No charges were filed immediately.

'High Energy' Tulsa Ballroom Seeks Historical Landmark Tag

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Historians will determine whether the Cains Ballroom is to be designated a national historical landmark, but the decision will be academic.

For many, Tulsa's most famous honky-tonk is history, but it is history that lives.

Every Friday and Saturday from September to mid-June hundreds of people cram into the ballroom that once served as the showcase for Bob Wills and his Texas Playboys. There they dance and holler to the music of progressive country, rock and jazz bands.

Owner Larry Shaeffer calls it "high energy."

"The magic thing about the Cains audience is that it is a human wave of spirit," he said. "You can hoop and holler. You can dance in the restrooms, in the lobby or on the tables. It's a kind of therapy. This is one place where you can really let go."

The place is constructed in a way that invites the rowdy. The spring-loaded maple dance floor was built in 1931 at a cost of $11,000. Not one board has ever been replaced.

Behind the stage can be seen pictures of Bob Wills and the legendary Hank Williams. Pictures of other stars who have played the Cains are around the walls. There are Roy Rogers, Gene Autry, Hank Snow, Hank Thompson, Roy Acuff, Little Jimmy Dickens, Eddie Arnold, Tennessee Ernie Ford, Red Foley, Tex Ritter and others.

"I've never seen an act leave here unhappy," said Shaeffer, a rock music promoter whose long blond hair and mustache belie his 39 years. "A lot of musicians who are into music history are overwhelmed."

Shaeffer has tried to keep the old ballroom as near as possible to its original condition. There is no air conditioning, even in his wood-paneled office that once served as the hat check room. The heating system works best when the crowd is large enough to generate body heat.

"It's well-heated when it's full," said Shaeffer. "You can freeze in the winter until the people get here."

But Shaeffer likes it that way and he hopes historical landmark designation will help keep it that way.

Mike Stewart of the Tulsa Historic Preservation Office said Cains will be considered this fall for inclusion in the National Register for Historic Preservation.

To gain landmark status, the old ballroom will have to gain the approval of the Oklahoma State Historic Preservation Society and the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Cains was built in 1924 as a garage in what then was the heart of downtown Tulsa. Since that time the building has served as a dance school and a taxi dance hall called the Louvre, where customers paid a dime a dance.

It was a decade after its construction that the Cains Ballroom — named for Prof. Madison W. Cain who took over the management in 1930 — really started earning its place in history.

Bob Wills and his Texas Playboys started playing at the Cains in 1934. "We were there a long time, a little over 30 years," said Johnny Lee Wills, brother of Bob Wills and one of the original Texas Playboys.

"Bob left that thing about '41 or something like that," he said. "I was with him all during that time."

"That bandstand is where I grew up old," said Wills, who now owns and operates a western clothing store.

Production Studies Begin Past

TEL AVIV (AP) — Menachem Begin's controversial past as either an idealistic freedom fighter or a ruthless terrorist, depending on your point of view, is coming to television.

And the American producers are determined to screen an independent, balanced account of a subject still hotly debated after 30 years.

A three-hour movie version of "The Revolt," the Israeli prime minister's book about his days as an underground fighter for Jewish independence, is slated for broadcast on ABC sometime next year.

The producers recently spent a week here to meet Begin and research the project, still in its early stages.

"Rich Man, Poor Man" star Peter Strauss is tentatively set to portray the fiery young Begin, who hid from the British for four years with a price of 10,000 pounds sterling on his head.

After spending a year in a Russian prison camp for Zionist activities, Begin immigrated to Palestine in 1942 and became commander of the Irgun Zvai Leumi national military organization, which waged a violent guerrilla campaign against the British rule of Palestine and the Arabs who opposed Jewish statehood.

Irgun operations like the bombing of Jerusalem's King David Hotel that killed 91 people and the bloody attack on the Arab village of Deir Yassin led many to brand Begin a terrorist, a label he indignantly rejects.

"We have no ax to grind," said Sandy Frank, whose production company acquired the rights to Begin's memoirs last year.

"What we show will be legitimate, historical fact. We are independently attempting to present a balanced story."

Begin's book was published in 1951, but has enjoyed a renaissance since his election as Israel's prime minister.

The book combines Begin's philosophy of revolt — "We fight, therefore we are" — with tales of the campaign against British rule between 1944 and 1948, when the Jewish state was declared.

In addition to fighting British and Arabs, the Irgun often was pitted against the Haganah, the future Israel army, which sometimes helped the British hunt the Irgun and foil its operations.

The Irgun almost certainly hastened the British withdrawal from Palestine and subsequent creation of Israel. But many argue that Begin's fighters also sabotaged Anglo-Jewish cooperation and

Rerun Leads Week's Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS scored with the week's most-watched program and four of the top 10, but still finished behind ABC and NBC in the networks' ratings race, A.C. Nielsen Co. figures show.

A rerun of "One Day at a Time," CBS comedy hit starring Bonnie Franklin, was No. 1 in the ratings for the week ending Aug. 6. CBS' "Alice" finished third, "M*A*S*H" was seventh and "Barnaby Jones" tied for ninth.

ABC had five in the first 10, including No. 2 "Three's Company," while NBC's best was "Quincy, M.E.," in the tie for ninth.

The first 15 programs in the ratings were reruns of previous episodes. The best of the new shows was CBS' "Switch," No. 16.

NBC kept out of the bottom five of the ratings, helping the network's standing for the week. A CBS movie Friday night, "A Warm December," was No. 57, followed by ABC's telecast of the PGA championship Sunday, the CBS Saturday movie, "Burn," "Ship Shape" on CBS and ABC's Saturday "Comedy Special."

ABC and NBC tied for first in the networks' race for the prime-time viewer at 14.7, followed by CBS at 12.7. The networks say that means that in an average prime-time minute during the week, 14.7 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to ABC and NBC.

The rating for "One Day at a Time" was 22.2. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 22.2 percent saw at least part of the program.

Here are the week's 10 most-watched programs:

"One Day at a Time," with a rating of 22.2 representing 16.3 million homes. CBS' "Three's Company," 22.1 or 16.1 million. ABC's "Alice," 20.8 or 15.3 million. CBS' "Charlie's Angels," 19.3 or 14.8 million. "Starsky and Hutch," 19.1 or 14.7 million, and "Laverne and Shirley," 18.8 or 14.4 million. All ABC's "M*A*S*H," 19.5 or 14.2 million. CBS' "Carter Country," 19.4 or 14.1 million. ABC and "Barnaby Jones," CBS, and "Quincy, M.E.," NBC, both 19 or 13.9 million.

Coalition Backing Military Strength

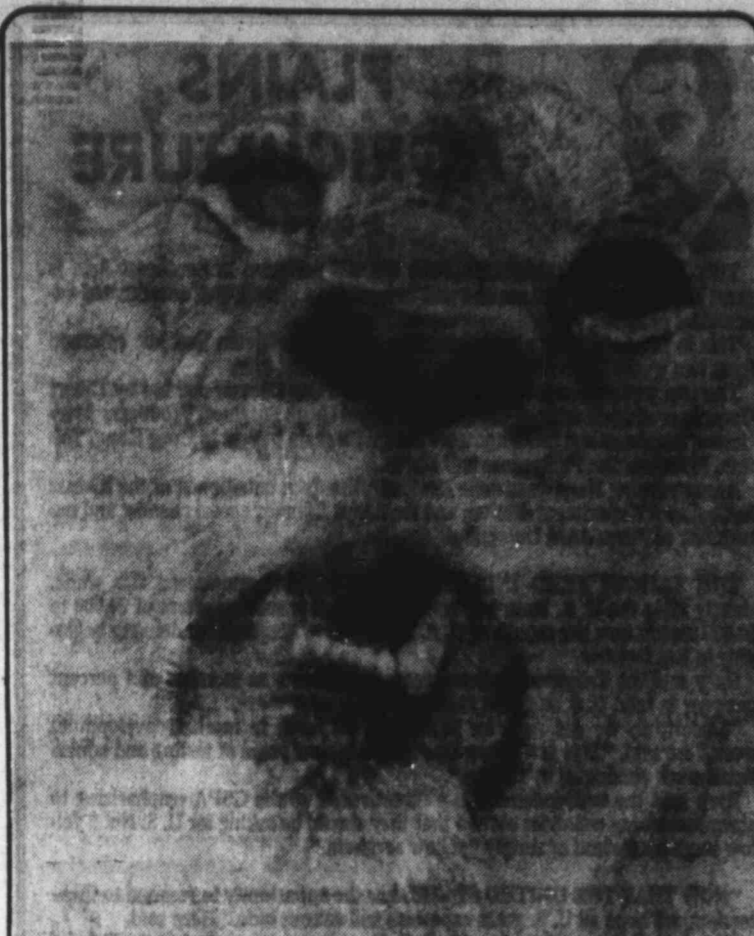

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new coalition of conservatives, including members of Congress and private citizens, is pushing for greater U.S. military strength.

The goals of the Coalition for Peace Through Strength include a greater effort in civil defense, use of "positive non-military means to roll back the growth of communism," and a more cautious approach to arms control.

The rest of the top 20:

"Lou Grant," CBS; "Fantasy Island," ABC; Monday Movie, "Columbo," NBC; "All in the Family," "Switch" and "Hawaii Five-O," all CBS; "Happy Days," ABC, and "The Big Event — Police Story," NBC, tie; "The Jeffersons," CBS, and "Good Times," CBS, and "Love Boat," ABC, tie.

Leaders of the coalition include Republican Sens. Robert Dole of Kansas and Paul Laxalt of Nevada, former Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and former chiefs of staff Adm. Thomas L. Moorer and Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer.

Escaped Lioness Safe, Relieved To Be Home

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tia Maria, the lioness that touched off a northeast Oklahoma safari, is safe in Tulsa's Mohawk Zoo.

The 300-pound, 2-year-old lion escaped her holding pen Monday. That started a hunt near Ocheolata that lasted 16 hours before she was subdued with a tranquilizer dart.

She was brought to the Tulsa zoo in a horse trailer, Tuesday, and will be kept there until a permanent home is located. That could be back on the farm of Dwayne Kerr, from which she escaped, or somewhere else.

After word of the escape spread, the Washington County sheriff's office was swamped with telephone calls "from people giving false sightings... and from every stockman who has an animal with a cut on it," a deputy said. "They have all been attacked by the lion."

Carloads of officers and volunteers scoured the open county near the small town, some bearing high-powered hunting rifles in addition to hand guns. A helicopter swooped overhead, looking for the lioness.

Dave Strang of the Department of Wildlife Conservation issued Kerr a ticket for bringing wildlife into Oklahoma without permission of the director of his department. Kerr bought the lion from an animal farm in Texas.

The animal was brought down with the tranquilizer after she was seen walking through a field. She was placed in the horse trailer and backed into a garage at Kerr's home, about a mile away.

"That lion — just like the rest of us who had been looking for her — was hot and tired and hungry and wanted to go home," Deputy Sheriff Bill Miller said.

Levi Strauss Denies Price Fixing Charge

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Officials for Levi Strauss & Co., have denied charges filed by the state of Connecticut that the world's largest maker of blue jeans coerced retailers to fix prices.

"We vigorously deny we are guilty of the action charged in what seems like a rather inflammatory press conference," Bud Johns, director of corporate communications for the San Francisco-based firm, said Tuesday.

prodded the mandatory power into cracking down on the Jews.

"There certainly are different versions of what happened," said executive producer Roger Gimble, who interviewed several dozen former Irgun and Haganah members. "But in the end it was all pointed in the same direction — to get the British out of Palestine, and that's what the picture will be about."

Frank said Begin will not have script approval, "but we will give him the courtesy of seeing the treatment of him in the script."

"We don't want another 'Exodus,'" noted one Begin aide with a long memory. He referred to a scene in the 1960 film in which Paul Newman and the Haganah stormed the Acre fortress to free Jewish prisoners, an operation actually carried out by the Irgun.

Strauss, who is popular in Israel because of his "Rich Man, Poor Man" role, said the success of the "Holocaust" television series "makes this project easier to do. All of a sudden everybody is dealing off the old Jewish projects."

Cattlemen Win Import Victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cattle producers have won a partial victory in the House Ways and Means Trade subcommittee.

Earlier this year it looked as if the committee might not approve a counter-cyclical beef import bill, amending the 1964 Meat Import Act.

The subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, approved a counter-cyclical bill Tuesday, but one that was less to the liking of cattle producers than a Senate-passed bill sponsored by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

The subcommittee accepted the basic concept of the bill, which would allow beef imports to increase when domestic production declines and would decrease imports when domestic production increases.

Current law allows imports to increase when domestic production is rising, thus adding to already strong domestic supplies and pushing down prices.

The subcommittee added language that would require annual beef imports to be at least 1.2 billion pounds a year. A similar import floor was not included in the Bentsen bill.

"We've got serious problems with this floor," said Bill McMillan, executive vice president of the National Cattlemen's Association.

On a controversial issue of presidential authority to suspend quotas, the panel worked out a compromise.

Use of presidential authority, which allowed President Carter to raise beef imports by 200 million pounds on June 8, has angered cattlemen.

Agricultural Products Show Drop In Prices

AUSTIN (Special) — Prices for Texas agricultural products slipped one percent during the past month's survey period, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown says.

Lower prices for wheat, soybeans, grain sorghum, potatoes and all hay contributed to the decrease. Beef cattle, hogs, and lambs also brought less at the market during the mid-June to mid-July period.

"Wheat, potatoes, and grain sorghum prices decreased in response to a leveling usually experienced at the beginning of the harvest season," Brown said. "Also, the carryover stocks of both grains have created some caution in buyers."

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service cited the average price for wheat at $2.82 a bushel, five cents lower than that in June; for sorghum, $3.70 a hundredweight (cwt.), 26 cents lower than the previous month's average.

Beef cattle prices also declined with $48.50 per cwt., down $1.40 from June. Hog prices were $1.10 less, and lambs were $1.00 lower at $62.10 per cwt.

Poultry products experienced increases. Hay cost more in Texas during this period than it did nationally. Alfalfa hay sold for an average of $63 a ton, $8 higher than the national average. Other baled hay decreased from the June price of $52.50 to $50 a ton, 80 cents higher than the average elsewhere in the U.S.

Average prices for feed increased only for corn meal and mixed dairy feed. "Overall the index, which includes livestock and crops, showed improvement over last year with a 16 percent increase, mainly due to better cattle prices. Crops, however, decreased in price by one percent from last year," Brown said.

"Export orders are coming in now with the slippage of the dollar in world trade, but we are going to have to watch the market very carefully to halt any continued downturns in prices," Brown added.

Tech Student Eyes Seed Germination Influences

In areas with limited rainfall and high temperatures, when is the "right time" to seed forage grasses?

This question was partially answered by a Texas Tech student in his master's thesis on water and temperature influences on germination of range seedings.

Using four temperatures (63, 75, 86 and 100 degrees) and 16 combinations of dry and wet days, each wet day receiving two-tenths of an inch of rainfall, David B. Wester of the range and wildlife management department concluded that two consecutive days of two-tenths of an inch of moisture at 75 to 86 degrees would result in maximum germination of range seeds.

Wester's thesis, supervised by Dr. Billie E. Dahl, used alfalfa, sideseed grama, weeping lovegrass, and Kleingrass for the controlled moisture-temperature study.

"The failure of many seeding projects is often blamed on unsatisfactory moisture and temperature conditions," said Wester. "My thesis was aimed at putting a value on the conditions so that ranchers may get a better idea of when to seed their range land."

Of the four species, Kleingrass did not perform well under the low moisture levels even after two consecutive days of watering, while the other three grasses demonstrated 60 to 90 percent germination.

The rate of germination for the four forages occurred progressively slower as the number of days between the first and second watering increased. Thus two consecutive days of watering produced high germination rates, as opposed to one day of watering followed by one, two or three dry days, Dahl explained.

Two consecutive days of watering also reduced the amount of days the seed took to germinate, although all grasses took at least two days to germinate after the first watering. "The significance of Wester's work," Dahl said, "is in the fact that if a rancher can expect two consecutive days of rainfall at prescribed temperatures, then he can also expect a better germination rate from the seedings."

At 100 degrees, germination of all four species was extremely low, while germination at 63 degrees was slower than at other temperatures. At 63 degrees, however, the seedlings survived longer dry periods after the first watering than they did at other temperatures.

Live Cattle Futures End Day Down

CHICAGO — Live cattle futures ended 50 to 132 points lower led by October at the day's low Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The market reacted sharply in late trade after distant August gained 47 points. Volume was estimated at 20,837 contracts.

Prices skidded to their lowest points in three weeks under aggressive local and commission house selling triggered by weakness in cash cattle and carcass beef. The sizeable kill this week also brought pressure.

Wholesale beef was off one cent at 81 to 82 cents a pound. Cash cattle were steady to off $1 on a top of $54.50 per hundredweight, a one-week low.

Slaughter was estimated at 140,000 head. The six markets expect 9,600 arrivals today.

Feeder cattle futures tumbled the daily limit of 150 points in September before closing 65 to 132 lower. September still was weakest. Sales were 1,693 contracts.

Prices were lower from the start, with the exception of brief five-point gains in March and May. Much of the selling spilled over from the live cattle pit.

Traders also noted weakness in carcass beef, which offset some higher cash feeder prices. Futures fell to three-week lows.

The major markets expect 6,100 head to arrive today. Cash feeders were up $3 to off $2 on a top of $95 per hundredweight in San Antonio.

Live hog futures finished 115 points lower to 20 higher on a turnover of 4,637 contracts. Distant October was weakest, at its day's low, with only nearby August higher. That contract gained 55 points for a time.

Much of the selling spilled over from the cattle pit and also stemmed from mostly lower cash hogs and quickened pace of slaughter. The nearby option attracted support on its discount to cash and lack of deliveries.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to off 1 1/2 cents at 83 to 84 1/2 cents a pound asked, f.o.b. river points. Cash hogs were off 75 cents to up 50 with the top at $50.50.

Six-market receipts today are expected to be 23,500 head. Kill Wednesday was estimated at 279,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures skidded 192 to the limit of 200 points with all contracts except distant August at the limit decline the second day in a row.

Earlier, all contracts were off the limit. The reaction followed two limit advances in a row and forced prices to their lowest points in two weeks.

Deliver of 10 cars, along with stepped-up kill and further weakness in cash bellies, brought pressure, as did reduced storage reduction locally. Traders ignored the out-of-town withdrawal of 3.8 million pounds last week.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off two cents at 54 to 50 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Lubbock Burglars Make Large Haul Of Cash

Large amounts of cash seemed to be the target of burglars in the latest reports of such incidents.

Catherine E. Pierson, manager of the KoKo Club at 5101 Ave. Q, told officers that sometime Tuesday burglars, after gaining entry to the main building, pushed out the ceiling tile in the downstairs club to get into that room.

She said that cash from a money bag in the club's office, change from the cigarette machine and juke box and 42 packs of cigarettes were taken. She set the loss, which included damage to the ceiling and pool tables, at $1,200.

David L. Holtkort said that whoever pried the front door of his 1710 9th St., No. 3, residence early Wednesday took $740 cash from a bank bag he had stored in a night stand drawer. Reports indicate that the burglars had ransacked Holtkort's bedroom before discovering the money.

Whoever pried the back door of Fidelis

Obeten's 2222 8th St., rear, home Wednesday reportedly made off with $1,130 worth of goods. Obeten listed as missing a television set, 15 pairs of blue jeans, two shirts and 50 record albums.

Frances Mendoza said burglars apparently came through an unlocked window at her 3322 Bates St. home Wednesday to get to a $75 television and a $250 stereo.

Roger Daniel of Rt. 2, Box 365, Lubbock, said whoever broke the window in the back door of his home on N. University Avenue and then unlocked the entrance way took two televisions, a camera and a stereo. He set his loss at $595.

Burglars took $410 worth of jewelry from Anne Petteway's 4411-B 74th St. home, according to reports. Miss Petteway said that a diamond and ruby pendant and ring were missing from her home.

Car burglars who concentrated their efforts at the Red Raider Inn at 6300 Ave. A made off with $800 worth of goods from two victims.

O.P. Singleton, an insurance salesman from Sulphur Springs, told officers the burglars took $300 worth of property, including a briefcase, boots and a cane, from his car.

Claude Lucas, an Amarillo builder, said $500 worth of tools were taken from locked chests stored in his pickup truck.

Seng Chow Tang told police that $700 worth of goods, including a packed suitcase and a stereo, were taken from his car Tuesday or Wednesday while the vehicle was parked at his 2318 16th St. home.

A Lubbock man told police he was beaten and robbed by two hitchhikers this morning in the 1700-block of East Broadway.

Jasper Floyd Earthman, 57, of 1008 Amarillo Rd. said he was stranded on E. 19th Street after his two riders beat him, robbed him of $100 and took his 1973 four-door Mercury.

Earthman, who suffered cuts and bruises on his face, described his attackers as two men in their mid-20s.

He said that after he was let out of his white-over-blue Marquis, he walked to a motel on U.S. 87 where he called police.

After being alerted this morning of an attempted holdup at Preston Milk Store, 1101 34th St., a Lubbock policeman arrested a 27-year-old man he had witnessed going into the store moments before.

Officer Dan Emerine said he watched the suspect enter the store while he was parked at 34th Street and Avenue J. When the store manager tripped the alarm, Emerine entered the store and confronted the suspect.

The officer said he arrested the man after finding a .22 caliber pistol in the suspect's coat pocket.

In other reported crimes, a man was taken into custody at 12th Street and Quiet Avenue about 3:25 p.m. Tuesday after police found a knife and a 12 gauge shotgun in the suspect's parked vehicle.

The seven-inch knife, according to police, had what appeared to be blood stains on it. Reports show the suspect appeared to be drunk, and had no type of identification. He was taken to Lubbock County Jail on suspicion of carrying an unlawful weapon.

Charles Clayton Ross of 908 E. Municipal Drive said his house was burglarized and two pistols taken between 3:45 p.m. and 6 p.m. Tuesday. He said the loss will total about $415.

Note Neven Jr. said he was swimming Tuesday at an indoor pool when someone apparently broke into his locker and stole his wallet containing $80 and several credit cards. He said the costly swim lasted only 45 minutes.

A money bag containing about $440 in cash and checks was the apparent target of a thief Tuesday at Barrett's Automotive, 208 N. University Ave. Shop manager Roy Martin told police the money bag had been placed under a counter about 7:30 a.m. and was discovered missing at 5:30 p.m. that day.

Daryl Neighbors of Rt. 1, Box 396, Lubbock, told police his car was parked at 505 E. 36th St. from 2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday when someone apparently broke into it and took a .22 caliber pistol.

Michael D. Henderson said his loss was about $225 when his 1722 E. Dartmouth St. home was entered sometime Tuesday and a stereo and two bottles of liquor stolen.

Reimbursement Included In Taxable Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you take a tax deduction for business travel expenses, then reimbursement paid by your employer must be included in taxable income, the U.S. Tax Court says.

Normally if you are reimbursed for expenses you need only report amounts in excess of your actual costs, the court noted in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Harley L. Freshour of Big Lake, Minn.

Similarly, if you are reimbursed, you may only take a deduction for expenses in excess of the amount paid you.

But if you have already deducted those business expenses from your taxable income, then the full amount of reimbursement must be included in taxable income.

The taxpayer, wrote Judge Darrell D. Wiles, "may not have the best of both worlds. If he chooses to deduct the expenses in full, he must include the full amount of reimbursement in income."

Lubbockite Gets 15-Year Term In Holdup Of Food Store Here

BY FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

John T. Cameron was assessed a 15-year prison term by a jury here Wednesday as the result of a $1,600 holdup of a local food store earlier this year.

The punishment was meted out by the same 14th District Court jury which Tuesday had found Cameron guilty of aggravated robbery.

The nine-woman, three-man panel had deliberated approximately 3½ hours before returning to announce the 15-year punishment.

Serv-U Food Mart at 2017 4th St.

Store clerk Robert Edgar McDowell, 22, identified Cameron as the man who allegedly handed him a holdup note about 4:30 p.m. and displayed an apparent handgun before exiting the business with the approximate $1,600.

A second key state witness, police Officer John Strange, testified he apprehended Cameron following a high-speed chase only a few minutes after the holdup.

Strange indicated that $1,630 was found in Cameron's car, and said officers also seized a loaded pistol as a result of the arrest.

The state introduced evidence during the punishment phase of the trial indicating Cameron had twice before been convicted in connection with armed robbery charges.

Referring to Cameron, Assistant District Attorney Cindy Miller urged jurors to "stop him in his tracks."

"Five years did not do the job, and six years did not do the job," she said, in reference to reported earlier sentences.

"Maybe five times six years will do it."

The prosecutor argued that a lower range of punishment in the case was "out of the question."

The defense countered by producing several character witnesses, who lauded Cameron personally and as an employee.

Cameron has been employed at Texas Tech University under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA). Among witnesses speaking on the defendant's behalf was Charles Neil of the Tech College of Business Administration.

Another witness praising Cameron was a former supervisor at the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG), where Cameron was employed before working at Tech.

According to testimony, Cameron, who is married and has two children, has performed with exceptional ability since beginning employment at the local university in March.

Defense attorney John Montford referred to the case as a sad one.

"Evidence shows he has rehabilitated, but now we have to send him back to prison," the lawyer said.

He urged jurors to "punish" Cameron, but not to "destroy" him with their verdict.

Overnight Fire Burns Out Beauty Supply

Firemen were too late this morning to save a Monterey Center business which was heavily damaged by a fire apparently erupting between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. Tuesday.

The fire, which caused an estimated $50,000 to $60,000 damage to Lubbock Beauty Supply, started at least by 9:25 p.m. when electrical power was shut off in the small business at the back of the 50th Street and Gary Avenue shopping center.

By the time about 20 firefighters arrived at the scene shortly before 8 a.m. today, there was nothing to put out, Lubbock Fire Department Capt. George Whitworth said.

The blaze, which destroyed all the contents of the building, including highly flammable hair spray, apparently stayed alive through the night without anyone noticing it, Whitworth said.

"It looks to me like someone in the parking lot would have smelled smoke," said Dean King, owner of the business.

King said he estimates a loss figure of $50,000 to $60,000 in the fire, which apparently started after King closed the 2,000-square-foot shop at 6 p.m.

Firemen were not notified until an employee of a business adjacent to King's store came to work this morning and smelled smoke.

The fire caused smoke damage to Fiestas Hair Stylists and Toddies clothes shop which are located east of the beauty supply shop. Two vacant shops east of King's shop also sustained smoke damage.

Whitworth said it appeared the fire began near a table in the middle of the store.

Assistant Fire Marshal Robert Stokes said the fire apparently was begun by a cigarette that was dropped in a bin used to store cardboard boxes.

Engineering Courses Slated In Panhandle

Engineers from West Texas and Eastern New Mexico will have the opportunity this fall to enroll in any of five engineering courses offered by the Division of Continuing Engineering Education at Texas Tech University.

The program leads to a master's degree in engineering and is offered primarily for practicing engineers seeking professional development, according to Jo King, director of Continuing Education at Texas Tech.

The courses will be offered through Amarillo College and Frank Phillips College in Borger.

The program at Amarillo College will offer an electrical engineering course titled "Electronic Circuits and Systems" and "Advanced Nuclear Engineering," a mechanical engineering course.

The program at Frank Phillips College will offer an electrical engineering course titled "Industrial Power Systems," and a chemical engineering course, "Analysis of Engineering System I."

The program was initiated in 1966 to comply with requests from professional engineers employed in area industries. Personnel from 17 companies and members of two professional societies have participated. Fifty engineers have earned the master's degree through the program.

Additional information may be obtained by writing Jo King, Continuing Engineering Education, College of Engineering, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas 79409, or by phoning 806-742-3429.

Bridge Repair Backers Cite Pittsburgh's Woes

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh became the nation's steel capital and a major corporate center by building a network of bridges across its many rivers and ravines. Now, that network is threatened by age and disrepair.

Advocates of a national bridge-repair program point to Pittsburgh as one of their best arguments.

Some 1,800 bridges span the slopes above the Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio rivers in Pittsburgh and its outskirts, and an estimated 400,000 tons of goods are trucked over them each day. The bridges are also vital to commuters.

Yet one of every five of the 129 city-owned bridges is closed to heavy trucks, and 11 are barricaded for fear they'll collapse. Seven of Allegheny County's 421 bridges are barricaded and heavy trucks carrying steel are banned on another 28.

About 50 of the 1,255 state-owned bridges in the county are closed to big trucks, and nearly six are closed to all traffic.

And not all the bad bridges have been identified.

It is not Pittsburgh's problem alone, according to Rep. James Howard, D-N.J., chairman of the surface transportation subcommittee of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee.

Howard wants Congress to spend $2 billion over four years to fix bridges, and that figure is contained in a bill now making its way to the House floor. The Carter administration is seeking $450 million a year, a figure contained in tentative drafts of similar bills before Senate committees.

Across the country, according to the House subcommittee figures, an estimated 105,000 out of 564,000 bridges are in critical need of repair or replacement — meaning they will have to be closed within a year if they are not repaired or rehabilitated. They range from one-lane conduits over creekbeds to spans across big rivers.

But Pittsburgh is perhaps most acutely aware of the problem.

One reason is that this hilly area, drained by three big rivers, relies on so many bridges to circulate traffic. Another is that the steel industry, which would profit from a massive bridge repair program, is centered in Pittsburgh.

"It's going to continue to get worse," says Mayor Richard Caligiuri, who closed six of the first 30 bridges inspected in a three-year program that began in the spring. "We anticipate that ... 80 of them will need replacement or some rehabilitation," he said. "We've been sitting around here more or less on a time bomb."

The bill to disarm that bomb will be at least $200 million, local authorities estimate, but other prices are already being paid.

About 30 of 170 municipal bus routes have been scrambled by detours, bringing additional operating costs of some $625,000 so far this year. What was a 20-minute car ride from Pittsburgh's East End to Millvale now takes 45 minutes with the Bloomfield Bridge closed.

A three-ton weight limit on the 66-year-old Sewickley Bridge is costing 27 Ohio River neighborhoods some $4 million a year in detours and lost business, a Carnegie-Mellon University report said. And the Pennsylvania Economy League found that ambulance crews strip life-saving equipment from their vehicles so they can use the bridge.

In addition, while preparing the rickety Brady Street Bridge for demolition last May, a 48-year-old ironworker lost a leg when he became pinned because rusty beams shifted.

How did things get so bad?

"Most of our bridges were built for the horse and buggy," said Pittsburgh Public Works Director John Ruff. "But the loads they carry are much heavier than they used to be." Road salt, temperature extremes, and heavy use have taken their toll, but a lack of proper maintenance is also blamed.

"We've more or less had our eyes closed," said W.J. Wilkes, director of engineering for the U.S. Department of Transportation.

But Wilkes believes a shortage of unselfish politicians has hurt, too. "It's more politically expedient to pave another 10 miles of road than repair a bridge."

PITTSBURGH BRIDGES FALLING DOWN — These bridges, spanning the Monongahela River, are among the 1,800 serving Pittsburgh and surrounding Allegheny County that are worrying local officials. The spans average 50 years of age and are beginning to fall apart at an alarming rate. (AP Laserphoto)

Vietnam Gets $60 Million Interest-Free Loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite U.S. opposition, the World Bank approved on Tuesday a $60 million interest-free loan to Communist Vietnam for an irrigation project.

The loan is the latest in what is becoming a steady flow of aid from international institutions to help Hanoi rebuild its economy following the long war against U.S. and South Vietnamese forces and its takeover of all of Vietnam in 1975.

The International Monetary Fund on Friday gave Vietnam an interest-free loan of $30 million from a special fund for poor nations, raising to nearly $115 million the total IMF aid in the past three years.

The United States provides about 20 percent of the financing of both the IMF and the World Bank. It cast the only vote against the $60 million loan when it came before the bank's 20-member board of directors Tuesday, a source said.

The government of South Vietnam did not receive any aid from either the World Bank or the IMF during the nearly 20 years it was a member. The Hanoi government took over South Vietnam's membership in both institutions in 1976, although North Vietnam was not previously a member.

While the United States has refused to provide direct aid to Hanoi for reconstruction of the war-torn country, its support of the World Bank and the IMF mean it is providing assistance indirectly through those institutions.

The 132-member World Bank is headed by Robert S. McNamara, a former defense secretary to both Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson. He played a central role in the decision to send U.S. troops to Vietnam as well as in the conduct of the war.

The World Bank said in an announcement that in addition to its $60 million loan, another $30 million will be loaned for the rice development project by private sources. That includes $10 million each from the Netherlands, the Kuwaiti Fund for Arab Economic Development and the OPEC Special Fund, which is operated by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Since Vietnam's 50 million people are considered among the world's poorest, it is qualified for interest-free loans from the bank's subsidiary, the International Development Association. The terms of repayment are 50 years with a 10-year grace period.

United States aid to the IDA is currently about $500 million a year, about one-third of its annual budget.

The bank announcement said the irrigation project will cost a total of $110 million from all sources and will expand the country's rice production by 100,000 tons a year. It includes construction of an earth dam on the Saigon River near Ho Chi Minh City, which was called Saigon when it was the capital of the non-Communist south.

The bank said that while the Communist government has made "impressive progress" in rebuilding from the severe disruptions of agricultural production caused by the war, the country still faces critical food problems, in part because of adverse weather conditions in recent years. It imports rice.

The bank said, "The Vietnamese government is now giving highest priority to increasing rice output, and aims at achieving self-sufficiency in grain production by the early 1980s."

The irrigation project will cover an area that includes five of the seven districts of Tay Ninh province, the scene of considerable fighting during the war. It said that in addition to expanding food production, the project will benefit directly 110,000 people, mostly farmers, and will provide net annual savings and earnings of foreign exchange amounting to $40 million.

Hanoi Said Dropping $3 Billion Demand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam is no longer insisting on $3 billion in aid from the United States as a precondition for establishing relations, Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said Tuesday.

Simon attended a meeting Monday night of Vietnamese diplomats, State Department officials and six members of Congress.

"I think they're in a position where they're willing to go ahead," Simon said. "They're interested in establishing positive relations."

The dinner meeting in Simon's home in Potomac, Md., grew out of a luncheon he had with the Vietnamese while he was a delegate to the United Nations disarmament session in New York earlier this summer.

The State Department granted permission for the Vietnamese to leave New York. They ordinarily are forbidden to go farther than 25 miles from their UN mission. The United States does not maintain diplomatic relations with Vietnam but maintains contacts with its UN mission and its embassy in Paris.

There if there were an improvement in relations with the United States.

Simon said the Vietnamese described their current military conflict with Cambodia as a move to repel incursions by the Cambodians. He said the Vietnamese characterized the Cambodian moves as aimed at "beefing up their internal situation by having an external enemy." He said they also complained of Chinese support for the Cambodians.

Meanwhile, he said, they described rising tension between the Vietnamese and the Chinese as "part of an age-old rivalry."

Black Politicians Call '70s 'Slow'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 1970s have been a slow period in the economic and political development of black communities, the mayors of four cities said in a panel discussion at the 68th annual conference of the National Urban League.

Taking part as panelists Tuesday were Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind.; Lionel Wilson of Oakland, Calif.; Tom Bradley of Los Angeles and Charles Royer of Seattle. Georgia State Sen. Julian Bond also participated.

"What we are seeing is the erosion of much of the economic progress and a lot of the political gains made in the last 10 years," Hatcher said.

SCHOOL CHIEF SEEKS AID
WASHINGTON (AP) — New York City School Chancellor Frank Macchiarola appealed for assistance Tuesday at a Capitol luncheon attended by 11 of the 18 congressmen from the city.

Message To Washington

REASSIGNMENT PROBLEMS

MESSAGE — I am a Texas native, working as a family practice resident physician in the Navy. In November of 1977 selections were made for my new duty stations, as was the routine in previous years and last March I received a letter of nomination to my new duty station. In preparation, I sold my home here in South Carolina and bought a new home in my new station.

Now I have received news that my station will not be changed at the time I had been told, but four months later, this means changing schools at a bad time for my children, plus a rather difficult time at home. Moral throughout my medical group has dropped severely and I believe this type of thing will dangerously lower the Navy's ability to retain doctors. This is not to mention the financial expenses of storage, rent, the mortgage on the new home, etc. Some action needs to be taken. Can you help?—J.J., Charleston, South Carolina

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — Your problem has been resolved. The Navy advised me that your change of station and many others had been delayed because of insufficient funds for travel and transfer. Recently, though, Congress voted to increase that funding and now the Navy is able to proceed with your transfer as it was originally scheduled.

MILITARY DISABILITY

MESSAGE — I am writing to request your help in getting a disability pension from the Veterans Administration. I served in the Marines in World War II and, in the Battle of Guadalcanal, suffered a concussion. My ears were treated for more than four months. I still have hearing problems so I applied for a disability, yet the V.A. says they have no records to substantiate my claim. I am appealing to you for your help. I believe something is due me. Thank you. — (initials withheld), Quanah.

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — V.A. officials inform me that they have evaluated your condition six times since 1945. There is no evidence in their files to document a disability connected with your military service. Therefore, they have no choice but to determine that no change is warranted in your status.

Do you have a problem with government? MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON cuts through the red tape to get answers to your questions about Social Security, veterans benefits, immigration matters and other problems you may have run into in your dealings with the Federal Government in Washington. Write MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON c/o Senator Lloyd Bentsen, U.S. Senate, Washington D.C. 20510. Inquiries to MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON are sometimes edited before publication, but the intent and substance of the inquiries are maintained.

Strike Closes Down New York Newspapers

NEW YORK (AP) — A pressmen's union called a strike Wednesday night against the New York Times, the Daily News and the New York Post, and the city's three major newspapers immediately closed.

The strike was called after the newspapers posted unilateral new working conditions in the pressrooms. The two sides had failed to reach agreement on a new contract to replace one that expired March 30.

The publishers announced earlier that they would make no attempt to publish if the pressmen walked off their jobs. Pressmen had been assured of strike support from eight AFL-CIO sister unions, including the key newspaper delivery drivers' union.

The official announcement of the posting of new work conditions was made by H.J. Kracke, executive director of the New York City Publishers Association, after a day of mediation efforts had failed to resolve a manning dispute. The association represents the three papers in negotiations.

The strike is on at all three papers, said William J. Kennedy, president of the 1,550-member Printing Pressmen Union. The newspapers said there would be no Thursday editions.

The publishers had announced two weeks ago that, without a replacement for the old contract, they would impose the last three-year wage offer and institute an attrition program to reduce pressroom personnel by as much as 50 percent over a number of years.

Journeymen pressmen regularly employed at one of the papers for the past two years would have job guarantees, but the attrition program was viewed by the union as a threat to the livelihood of many part-time employees, some of whom lost regular employment with the closing of a number of other newspapers and commercial printing shops here in recent years.

The part-time workers have votes within the union and are hired when needed for peak work loads and to fill in for regular pressmen absent from work for whatever reason.

The Times and News — but not the Post — had offered an initial $23 increase to the pressmen's weekly base pay of $350.18 on the day shift and $361.41 nights.

All three papers offered $23 more weekly for the second year and $22 more in the final year.

Some New Cigarettes Declared Less Hazardous To Smokers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top government scientist says a smoker can consume a pack a day of some new cigarettes on the market "without apparent risk."

"We don't want to call them safe. We don't think there is such a thing. But some are so low (in tar and other toxic substances) as to cause no observable hazard," says Gio Batta Gori, head of the smoking and health program at the National Institutes of Health.

The tobacco industry has developed these new cigarettes with the help of millions of dollars in government research funds.

Gori and Cornelius J. Lynch of Enviro Control Inc., the government's "safe cigarette" research, have identified the "tolerable levels" of smoke for 27 cigarette brands with relatively low tar.

The levels are based on the maximum amount of tar, nicotine and four other toxic substances found in the smoke that an average smoker might consume before his death rate rises above that of a nonsmoker.

A person could smoke 23 cigarettes a day of Carlton Menthol — more than a pack — before reaching the tolerable level, Gori and Lynch said. Tolerable levels of the other brands range from 18 cigarettes a day for King Sano, King Sano Menthol, Merit, Merit Menthol, Real and Tempo.

Gori said details of their findings are to be published soon in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The two define tolerable levels in terms of cigarettes before 1960, when tar and nicotine contents were much higher than today and studies first identified the long-term risks of cigarette smoking.

Gori said studies have shown that people who smoked no more than two pre-1960 cigarettes a day had no higher death rate than nonsmokers.

Therefore, he explained, if one could reduce the various toxic substances in cigarettes below the pre-1960 levels, a smoker presumably could smoke more of the new, "low-hazard" cigarettes without increasing the risk of dying from lung cancer, heart disease or the other ailments associated with cigarette smoking.

Gori said the government research project has tested more than 150 modifications of the ordinary cigarette in efforts to reduce the hazards and some of those modifications are showing up on the market.

By changing the porosity of the paper, the soil in which the tobacco is grown, the cut leaf's texture, the curing process, the filter, the burning temperature and the method of manufacture, scientists have substantially lowered the smoke's toxicity, he added.

The results have been turned over to the tobacco industry, and "some of these new cigarettes are a direct result of this work," Gori said, although the industry has never admitted that cigarette smoking is hazardous.

Tar, the total particulate matter found in cigarette smoke, is generally believed to be the chief cancer-causing agent, while nicotine is known to have short-term adverse effects and is suspected of causing addiction, peptic ulcers and other damage.

Gori and Lynch also compared the amounts of four other hazardous substances in cigarette smoke: carbon monoxide, hydrogen cyanide, nitrogen oxides and acrolein.

While some brands showed higher tolerance levels in some substances, the total tolerance level was determined by the hazardous substance reduced least from pre-1960 levels. That means the brands ranked least hazardous aren't necessarily the ones with the lowest tar and nicotine, the substances shown in cigarette advertisements.

Gori conceded that because it takes many years for most smoking-related diseases to show up it will be some time before there is specific scientific evidence to prove or disprove his assumptions.

Some recent studies question the value of low tar and nicotine cigarettes, either because people tend to hold the smoke in their lungs longer or because new additives in the tobacco and paper may prove hazardous.

B METRO

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Thursday, August 10, 1978

"But we feel confident," Gori said, "that these cigarettes will be useful to the point you will have people smoking a pack a day without apparent risk."

The newest report on smoking by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, released last month, said studies do show a "dose-response" relationship between the amount of tar and nicotine in cigarettes, the amount one smokes and the degree of risk.

The report didn't assess the dangers of the newer low-tar brands, but it cited one study that found smokers of cigarettes with less than 17.6 milligrams of tar and 1.2 mg. nicotine reduce the risk of dying about 15 percent when compared to high tar and nicotine smokers but still have 50-percent higher mortality rates than nonsmokers.

None of the 27 brands tested by Gori and Lynch exceeded 10.3 mg. tar or 1.01 mg. nicotine.

Gori's program has spent more than $21 million in federal funds since 1975, nearly half of it in search of less hazardous cigarettes. But he said his budget is being trimmed as the government puts more emphasis on trying to convince people not to smoke.

Speaking last weekend in Wilson, N.C., the heart of the tobacco-growing South, President Carter stressed the need for "a research program to make the smoking of tobacco even more safe than it is today."

Neither Gori nor the president smokes, Gori said.

"I don't favor smoking," said the smoking program director, who was trained as a microbiologist but left the laboratory to administer environmental research at the National Cancer Institute. "My advice would be this: Don't smoke. But if you have to, at least try to select a method that will not harm you."

27 Safer Brands Listed

- WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a list of the 27 "low-tar" brands tested and the number of cigarettes of each brand a person may smoke in a day without exceeding "tolerable levels." Mary Hopkins of Vicksburg, Miss., will judge the Quarter Horse Show that will help ring down the curtain on the 61st annual Panhandle South Plains Fair.

The Quarter Horse Show is slated for Sept. 30, last day of the eight-day run, fair general manager Steve I. Lewis announced.

Doyle Warren will be show superintendent, assisted by Randy Upshaw. Ring steward will be Bob Middleton, while D'Lynn Whitten will be the secretary for the event.

Entry fees include: halter classes, $7 per horse; youth activity, $4; performance classes, $12 per horse ($8 per horse jackpot), except calf roping, $15 entry fee and $10 jackpot, and junior/senior cutting, $25 entry fee and $17.50 jackpot.

Payouts will be as follows: $35 for first, $25 for second, $20 for third, $10 for fourth and $5 for fifth and sixth places.

The event is sanctioned by the American Quarter Horse Association. Entries are not limited; however, a rider may ride only one horse per class.

An open horse show also is scheduled on opening day of the fair.

In addition, six stage shows are on tap on the stage of Fair Park Coliseum. The lineup includes: the Charley Pride show, with Dave and Sugar, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Sept. 24; the Staller Brothers, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sept. 25; the Johnny Rodriguez show, with Linda Hargrove, 5 p.m. only Sept. 26; the Jim Ed Brown show, also featuring Helen Cornelius and Wendy Holcombe, 8 p.m. only Sept. 27; Eddie Rabbit and Jerry Clover, 8 p.m. only Sept. 28; and Mel Tillis and the Statesiders, 8 p.m. only Sept. 29 and 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sept. 30.

Mail order requests for tickets now are being accepted by the fair at P.O. Box 208, Lubbock, Texas 79408. Requests for mail order tickets must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Tickets also are available at the fair office, 1105 E. Broadway.

All seats are reserved. Tickets for all shows are $4, $5 and $6.

Planning Session Set By Chaparral Scouts

The Chaparral District of the Boy Scouts of America will present a program planning session and kick-off meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the Headquarters Building of the Ranching Heritage Center on the Texas Tech Campus.

A list of coming district and council activities, as well as information about volunteer leader training seminars, will be distributed at the session.

A detailed packet containing ideas and methods of recruiting also will be provided at the meeting.

Fund-Raising Tours Planned

State candidates are warming up their campaign efforts for the November general election, with several planning whirlwind tours and fund raising events in the South Plains area this week.

Gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements began a five-day 12-city tour Tuesday which will bring him to Lubbock today at noon to meet with Black leaders at the Hilton Hotel.

Clements will hold a press conference in Parlor A of the hotel at 1:30 p.m.

On Saturday, GOP congressional candidate George Bush, along with State Senator and former Congressman Bob Price, will visit five South Plains communities, including Hereford, Friona, Dimmitt, Muleshoe and Littlefield.

Bush, running for the seat being vacated by retiring U.S. Rep. George Mahon, will face Democrat Kent Hance in the November general election.

Saturday's campaign events will be topped by a $100-a-plate fund raising dinner at 7:30 p.m. at Lubbock's Hillcrest Country Club for Republican State Senate candidate Joe Robbins.

Guest speaker at the dinner will be Sen. Bob Dole, 1976 GOP vice presidential candidate. The dinner is being sponsored by the Republican Party of Texas.

Robbins and Democrat E.L. Short will face each other in November for the state senate seat now held by Hance.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: If anyone doubts that the females in this country are having a mass nervous breakdown, all they have to do is read your column.

A woman in Texas wants to know if twins can be fathered by separate males.

A housewife in Albuquerque writes to you because all of a sudden her husband wants her to iron his shorts. (You told her to DO IT!)

A "live-in" in Escondido breaks out in a rash because her boyfriend squeezes the toothpaste tube in the middle.

A wife in South Carolina asks her husband to tuck a $10 bill in her bra every time they make love.

Another lunatic in Bay City wants to strap a bicycle horn on her husband's head at night so when he lies on his back it will wake him up and he'll stop snoring.

A nut from Iowa wants to know the PROPER way to hang toilet paper. You tell her how your mother did it and 10,000 people write in to protest.

What does this say about American women? — Small Town Philosopher

Dear Small Town: If you think American women are crazier than women who live in other countries, you ought to travel a little. Humans everywhere are fundamentally very much the same.

Dear Ann Landers: So many wives write about cheating husbands. I thought you might be interested in how I dealt with the problem.

Four years after Jack and I were married, I walked into his office and found his secretary sitting on his lap. She almost died of embarrassment and mumbled something about a cinder in his eye. I told her after she finished with the cinder she should give some thought to the rocks in his head. I also let him know if they wanted each other for keeps it was all right with me.

Jack was so embarrassed he couldn't utter a word. That night he apologized for being foolish and told me he had given the secretary two weeks notice.

Three months later I was on the bus, going to a church meeting. We stopped for a red light. I looked out the window and recognized our car — with Jack driving and a woman sitting almost on his lap. Then I saw him kiss her. Like a flash it came to me. She was the nurse who took care of him in the hospital when he had his hernia repaired.

That evening I told Jack to pack and get out. He cried, said he had been an idiot, begged me to forgive him and swore off fooling around. I told him it was his last chance.

That was ten years ago and he's been a model husband ever since. Once he got it through his head that I didn't care if he stayed or went, he decided he wanted me more than anybody else. — The Victor

Dear Victor: With a guy like that I can understand why you wouldn't care if he stayed or went. Thanks for sharing.

Women's Continuum Aids Mature Students Returning To School

By DALE RAYMAN
Family News Staff

If you've been thinking about going back to college to begin or complete a degree program or to take a personal or professional enrichment course, the word from the Office of Student Life (OSL) at Texas Tech University is "Don't just think about it — come on back!"

Ridgley Denning, assistant to the director of the OSL, said feelings of acceptance and accomplishment can be highly rewarding to the returning student.

"My first experience with the 'mature student' (the term used by the university to refer to a student 25 years of age or older who is returning to the college campus) came when my mother decided to go back to school," she said.

"After her first exam, on which she received a grade which she considered 'revoltingly low,' she called me long distance and moaned 'Why am I back? What did I do wrong?'"

"We talked for a while, quite a while, and she went on to get a 4.0 grade point (a perfect average) for that and the next two semesters!"

Counselors in the OSL, and particularly those associated with the Women's Continuum, are trained to help the returning student find his or her way back to and around campus.

"What we do is to try to serve as a clearing house for information and to coordinate workshops and seminars on topics of interest to people coming back," she said.

Those are the goals of the Women's Continuum, organized in September 1975. Since its inception the agency has worked primarily with women returning to school, because that was the "target group" the university felt could most profit from the services the Women's Continuum could provide.

"Even though the women in the community were those we felt we could be most helpful to, the group which would most seek out our help, all our printed information stressed our eagerness to help men and women who were returning to school," Miss Denning said.

For men and women returning to school after an absence of a few years or of several, the Women's Continuum can help personalize and individualize the university, can help cut through "red tape" and occasionally confusing language in the catalogs and course prospectus.

"We'll help point the student in the right direction for financial aid, if he needs it," Miss Denning said, "or we'll put him in touch with specific administrators, professors or associate deans who are particularly concerned with advising students."

Miss Denning said the concerns heard most often by Mary Reeves, also an assistant to the director of the OSL, and herself include "Can I study as well as the recent high school graduate?" "Will I be accepted by the other students on campus?" "How can I overcome the generation gap?" and "Will I be able to do the coursework?"

Although these apprehensions are real to the student, Miss Denning said her office has discovered that the mature student "usually makes a much better student because he or she is excited to be here, is highly motivated and is here after making a very difficult and well-thought-out decision."

She said most mature students are accepted by the "traditional" (in terms of age) students because the younger students find their older classmates are interesting, are interested in them and make helpful contributions (in class). In fact, she noted, after a single semester it's usually the mature student who is helping the others.

"It's interesting to us that the reaction of the student who might have been reluctant to return is often one of 'I'm really excited to find out how much I know,'" she said.

She added that if there is any resentment on the part of the younger students, it's because the mature students are "darned good students and often wreck the (grade) curve."

Miss Denning said her office estimates that more than 20 percent of the student body at Tech is 25 years of age or older, and, in certain programs, the percentage is much higher.

"The College of Business Administration, which in 1977 was able to offer a full and consistent schedule of graduate courses at night (for its 'MBA at Night' program) has reported that approximately 50 percent of all the students in its master's degree (MBA) program are mature students," she said.

And there is no telling who the mature student will find in the next seat in his

CONSIDER THIS — Ridgley Denning, left, assistant to the director of the Office of Student Life at Texas Tech University, offers course selection suggestions to Becky Brown, who is planning to enroll as an undergraduate student at Tech this fall. A symposium for those persons who have been out of school for some time and are considering returning to campus will be held at 7 p.m. today in the Continuing Education Building, X-15, on the Tech campus. There will be no charge for the seminar. For more information call the Office of Student Life at 742-2192. Staff photo by Milton Adams classroom, she added.

"Last spring, President Cecil Mackey and George Fielding, director of development for the university, were enrolled in an undergraduate class for their own personal enrichment (with no special consideration)," she said.

Others returning to campus include professionals who have been working for many years and who are taking courses to complete a degree or to upgrade their technical knowledge, women who are preparing for a career and businessmen taking courses in the humanities for the sole purpose of self-enrichment.

For the prospective student who is more than mildly apprehensive about having to take the standardized entrance examinations, Miss Denning has encouragement and practical assistance.

"Although entrance examinations are required in most cases, the staff here can advise and help prepare students to take them," she said. "For those entering the graduate program and required to take the Graduate Record Exam (GRE), we even have an eight-week seminar to help the student prepare."

Some non-degree students — those taking a course or two but not pursuing a degree — can even waive the entrance examination requirement, she noted, but she stressed that each case is a matter to be considered individually.

"If you've been thinking about coming back to school this fall, there is still time," she said.

Regular registration is scheduled Aug. 31-Sept. 1, and there is still time for the returning student to complete the paperwork and iron out details before the semester begins Sept. 5.

For more information about the Women's Continuum, about the seminar for prospective returning students scheduled today or to set up an individual counseling session, call the Office of Student Life at 742-2192.

Trust is a must for a friendship to flourish.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH
BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a problem I'm sure many women have. I am 5-foot-5 and weigh 125 pounds and have what they call cellulite in the front and back of my legs. I'm only 23 and am embarrassed to wear shorts. I've been exercising and have not seen any results. Is there a special diet I should be on? — Mrs. A.O.

And another letter:

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a problem which I believe is called cellulite — unattractive fatty bulges on my thighs. Although I am by no means overweight (5-foot-8, 125 pounds) I cannot get rid of the bulges, even after exercise. I am only 26 but feel as if my legs are 30 years older. Please advise what can be done. — K.V.

Both readers use the same expression — cellulite. The word does not appear in my medical or standard dictionaries. As I understand it, the term was coined by French beauty experts who made a do-do about the situation a few years ago. It has since fallen into the realm of medical folklore. Many readers write me using the term.

One must remember that women have a thicker layer of fat than men, and the distribution varies considerably. The usual result is the pleasing female form. But there also may be localized accumulations of fatty tissue that won't dissipate along with the rest on exercise. Call it cellulite, if you will. I know of no diet or other way to get rid of it. It is estimated that as many as eight of 10 women have it to some extent. While I think this figure is a bit high, it is clear from the above letters that cellulite is no respecter of age.

I discussed another problem — cellulitis — recently. Do not confuse this real medical term with so-called cellulite, because there is no connection.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 27-year-old mother of two young children. As long as I can remember I have always been a worker. Up until a few months ago I was able to do the tasks required such as lifting babies, etc. Now I feel exhausted all the time. I also notice that my limbs, especially the legs, are covered with bruises. I seem to bruise easily. I have been taking vitamins, but they don't help. Every few months I can expect get a case of flu or something. Any solution you can offer would be much appreciated. — Mrs. C.A.

The bruising suggests a blood disorder, and the fatigue could be due to an anemia. Too, the thyroid function should be tested. Low function might be suspected. You need a complete physical examination. You may have fallen into a housewife's emotional funk.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED
NEW YORK — It's no longer a rumor. ABC has officially announced that it is developing a new serial created by Ann Marcus, who currently is the headwriter of NBC's "Days of Our Lives" and who previously scripted "Search For Tomorrow" and co-created "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

The new soap opera is tentatively titled, "The Best Years," and involves the love triangles of students, parents and teachers of a southern California beach-town high school community. Headwriters of the projected series will be Joyce Perry and Ray Goldstone, who presently work under Marcus on "Days." With the show's scenic location background, one can easily imagine that ABC daytime viewers should be prepared for plenty of "Young and Restless"-type youngsters romping in bikinis and reenacting "From Here to Eternity"-type lovemaking beach scenes.

The problem is still one of scheduling for the new show. Something's got to give; or, rather, some existing show has got to go.

"Search For Tomorrow" producer Mary-Ellis Bunim (c.q.) informs us that a recent item in this column was in error. "There are no plans to expand 'Search' to an hour format in the near future. At least as far as I know," says Bunim. And who should know better? However, two agents have informed this writer that their "Search" clients recently negotiated possible contracts with hour-length stipulations. The outcome remains to be seen.

SHORT TAKES:

BREON GORMAN (c.q.) who portrays youthful innocent Tessa Saxton on "For Richer, For Poorer," admits that she changes her christened name of Patricia to Breon because another actress was already registered as Patricia Gorman with the actors union and because Breon sounded "theatrical and my mother's family is Irish."

LYNNE MacLAREN HAS departed the "FR,FP" scene as Barbara Manners, but filling the cast gap are Nancy Snyder as nurse Colleen Griffin and Dennis Romer as Dr. Roy White. Roy is trying to put his partially amnesiac patient Connie back together again, but Colleen has shown signs that she's not overjoyed that the good doc seems to be taking more than a passing interest in Connie.

"THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS" viewers had a treat recently when Jack Stauffer joined the cast as Scott Adams, the clean-cut intern that Snapper's trying to match with promiscuous Nikki Reed. Serial fans remember that Jack was the first actor to play Chuck Tyler on "All My Children" when it premiered in 1970. Jack has since played a short term role on "Days of Our Lives" and appeared as Stuart Kennicott on "General Hospital" last September. Ellen Weston who previously portrayed Karen Gregory on "Another World" and Robin Bowden on "Guiding Light" has also joined "Y & R" as Suzanne Lynch, hairdresser Derek's ex-wife.

WHEN THE CHARACTER of Brad Vernon is released from prison on "One Life to Live," newcomer Steve Fletcher will be seen in the role originated by Jameson Parker who recently departed for Hollywood fame and fortune.

THE CHARACTER of Betsy Crawford Lang has returned to "Love of Life" after a two-year screen absence. Interestingly enough, actress Margo McKenna was judged to be the best of over 200 actresses auditioned for the role. However, Betsy's return in the storyline was delayed until Margo, who was pregnant when she auditioned, gave birth to her first child. On screen Betsy has a toddler daughter, Suzanne, who is portrayed by Tamara Hummel, the same child who has grown a few inches since she last appeared on "LOL" as infant Suzanne.

Tune in tomorrow to see whether Ben, Suzanne's natural father, puts up a fight for custody with her adopted pa, Elliot Lang.

East starts the defense off and running by playing his queen of diamonds at trick one. South can't afford to duck. For all he knows, the ace is in the West hand and a duck would give West the whole suit.

Now South cashes one high spade and runs off his clubs, hoping to get either diamond discards or information about the spade queen.

Here is where East must really help his partner by doing what he can to protect his partner's queen of spades. So his first discard on the clubs must be the ace of diamonds to tell West that his diamonds are all winners.

East's next two discards are the five and then the two of hearts. Thus, West can afford to chuck hearts at each turn.

Finally, South comes to the moment of decision. He has seven tricks in. He can get two more and make his game if he gets two more spade tricks.

What would you do if you weren't looking at all the cards? Just what South did. He tried a spade finesse; lost to the queen and was down two.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I read a hint in your column on how to impregnate paper towels, cut in small squares, with a silver polish solution.

You could then use them to polish small silver objects, or, as I do, polish just the tines of forks after eating eggs.

It works marvelously. I just put the piece of saturated paper on a damp sponge, clean the tines of forks, etc., then throw the piece of used paper away and wash the forks. I don't even have to wear rubber gloves. Never do I get dirty fingers from using this method to polish silver.

Now my supply has run low, and I do not remember what kind of solution to use for making these "polish papers." I am enclosing one of my last polishers.

Could you please tell me what to soak the paper towels in? — Mrs. deKoff versa, as I had always done.

You will have a pitcher full of tea instead of half foam. — Louise Courteny

Works same with just one glass too, hon! — H.

DEAR HELOISE:

Yard cleaning? Lot of twigs? Less mess by wrapping them in newspapers into "logs" and saving for winter fireplace-burning.

Place the twigs diagonally across a section of newspaper and wrap up butcher-fashion.

Kill two birds with one stone, as it were. — Stella Jaworowicz

And...we could all pat ourselves on the back next winter when these logs start saving us fuel! Thank, friend — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When making French toast, add a teaspoon of vanilla and cinnamon to the beaten eggs. (Less if desired.)

Sure peps it up a lot. — Mrs. Ethel Buck

Congress Members' Children Lobby For ERA

LOBBY FOR ERA EXTENSION — Three children of members of Congress sit outside the Capitol Wednesday where they have formed a lobby group to push for extension of the time allowed for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. Somali Officers To Go On Trial

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A second group of Somali army officers is scheduled to go on trial before the National Security Court in Mogadishu on Saturday on charges of attempting to overthrow President Mohammed Siad Barre. Mogadishu radio announced Wednesday. The radio said the 48 men were alleged to be part of the group of plotters who attempted to topple Siad Barre's military government April 9. The prosecutor at the earlier trial of 20 other officers allegedly involved in the abortive coup demanded the death penalty.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The children of some members of Congress are forming a group to lobby for an extension of time to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, saying their future is at stake.

It is believed to be the first such coalition of children of members of Congress. And some of the youths are on opposite sides of the issue than their parents, the elected officials.

At an organizational meeting Tuesday night, a core group agreed on a letter to send to members of Congress urging support for the ERA extension.

"We are stressing that we all feel strongly about the ERA and it is so important we are finally getting together as a group," said Kathy Rallsback, 19, a pre-law student who is the daughter of Rep. Tom Rallsback, R-Ill., a Judiciary Committee member.

"It is important to us as representatives of the next generation," she said.

Others in the group include Eleanora and Diane Anderson, daughters of Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill.; Margaret Morgan, daughter of Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C.; Denise DeConcini, daughter of Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.; Evan Bayh, son of Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.; Nina Lyons, daughter of Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., and Steve McGovern, son of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Miss Rallsback predicted that up to 50 daughters and sons would support the ERA letter and take a more active role in lobbying not only their own parents, but also other members of Congress.

Miss Rallsback became concerned about the ERA when she returned from Grinnell College in Iowa this summer and attended Judiciary Committee hearings on the extension, where her father played a key role.

Rallsback is sponsoring the amendment that would guarantee the extra time could be used not just to ratify the ERA but to permit states to rescind previous ratifications. That amendment lost in committee but will be offered again on the House floor.

ERA supporters say this would kill the extension proposal.

"That's been a little bit hard," Miss Rallsback, who opposes the rescission amendment, said of her father's proposal. "But he's been really supportive of me in forming this group."

She said she quotes to her dad a statement by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., a leading ERA supporter, that "in the future states won't take ratification as seriously as they should if you allow rescissions."

The ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex, must be ratified by 38 states by March 22, 1979, to become part of the Constitution. To date it has been approved by 35 of them, but four have since rescinded approval. The validity of that move still is in question and the Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide. The states that have rescinded approval are Kentucky, Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska. Kentucky's action was vetoed, however.

There has been no previous request for a time extension on ratification of a constitutional amendment. And until some amendments earlier in this century, Congress put no time limit on the ratification process, although the Constitution gives Congress the power to set such a limit.

The House Judiciary Committee last month approved an extension of the ERA deadline from March 22, 1979 to June 30, 1982. The ERA extension issue probably will be voted on by the House next week. A Senate vote is less certain. Supporters say they would rather kill the proposal than have it approved with a rescission amendment.

Labor Problems Confront Cities

By The Associated Press
 About 315 firefighters in Wichita, Kan., went on a wildcat strike Wednesday, were suspended from their jobs and were issued a court order to return to work. There was no sign that the firemen, locked in a pay dispute with the city, would return.
 The city also suspended 37 police officers who allegedly took part in a sick-out inspired by a related salary dispute.
 In Cleveland, a wildcat strike by city mechanics ended Wednesday and municipal services, including garbage collection, returned to normal. Resolution of the labor dispute through negotiations ended the latest crisis for Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich, who faces a recall election Sunday.
 The mechanics, whose picket lines had been honored by other Cleveland city workers since Tuesday, were to return to work Thursday.
 In Memphis and Chattanooga, Tenn., city officials made offers they hoped would head off strikes by unionized unskilled workers.
 Memphis police union leaders made no recommendation to their 1,100 members on whether to accept the city's offer.

Chattanooga officials were waiting for reaction from firefighters after offering the firemen an accelerated timetable for pay raises.
 No talks were scheduled between Wichita and its police and fire unions.
 The city obtained the back-to-work order Wednesday from Sedgewick County District Judge David Calvert. The order was issued on International Association of Firefighters Lodge 666, which has asked firefighters to go back to work and has declared itself uninvolved in the action.
 The firefighters were suspended after about 100 of them refused to report for Wednesday's first shift. The rest were suspended when they failed to respond to emergency calls to duty to replace the suspended firefighters.
 Police Chief Richard LaMunyon said the police force had been realigned to provide coverage for the city of about 300,000 persons, which covers 96 square miles.
 Officials said 84 firemen and supervisory personnel were manning nine city stations. Normally, 120 firemen would operate 16 stations. The Sedgewick County Fire Department, the McConnell Air Force Base Department and a reserve unit of 30-40 persons would be called in if the skeleton crews were unable to handle firefighting calls, officials said.

 Wichita firemen last Friday rejected the city's latest contract offer and officials said they then began a work slowdown. The firemen had been answering only emergency alarms and refused to make building, home or hydrant inspections.
 The city has offered the firefighters' and police unions a 6 percent raise plus $40 a month. For a rookie patrolman or fireman earning $9,887 annually, this would mean an increase of 10.8 percent.

Baby Whale Pronounced Able To Fend For Self

AVALON, N.J. (AP) — A baby white whale that strayed some 400 miles south of its arctic home needs no help from humans and won't be captured, officials decided Wednesday.
 Officials of the New York Aquarium viewed a two-minute tape of the beluga whale and decided it could care for itself, according to Jeff Cleveland, director of the center for oceanic studies of the Oceanic Society at Gardner's Basin, N.J.
 Originally, officials planned to capture the young whale and bring it to the Coney Island aquarium where it would be nursed by an adult beluga whale whose baby recently died.
 In 1580 B.C. Sirius ascended the throne of Egypt.

The firefighters are asking for a pay increase of 8 percent and $40 a month. The police union is seeking a 9 percent raise plus $40 a month.
 Members of the Wichita Fraternal Order of Police wrapped up three days of voting on the city's latest contract offer Tuesday, but no report of the outcome was expected until Thursday.
 In Cleveland, even before a settlement was announced Wednesday, picket lines were removed from city facilities, allowing garbage collectors and other civil servants to get back to work.
 The mechanics agreed to return to their jobs Thursday and were promised that there would be no reprisals, said Cleveland Law Director Jack Schulman.
 The striking workers, who walked out Friday, did not have the support of their union — Local 1363 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.
 They had said they would not return to work until they received pay increases negotiated with the city in June but yet to be approved by the City Council.
 The salary measure, caught up in the recall crossfire, remained unresolved Wednesday, although resolution was expected after the election.

Attempt To Cross Atlantic Abandoned

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa (AP) — The captain of an oil drum raft trying to cross the Atlantic to Uruguay said Wednesday the attempt was being abandoned because of rough seas. — The 55-foot raft named Apella, carrying a crew of seven, set sail from Walvis Bay on Saturday. The skipper, Tony Webber, said by radio-telephone that the raft was being forced back to the coast. A tug was reported on the way to tow the raft back to Walvis Bay.

Teen-Agers From North Ireland Get To Be Friends In America

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Pickering is 14 and Protestant. Peter Fleming is 15 and Catholic. At home in Portadown, Northern Ireland, those labels ensured they would never meet.

"Now we've become pretty good friends," said Peter, at the end of a 3½-week visit to the United States with 20 other teen-agers from Portadown, 25 miles from Belfast. Away from home, the labels lost importance as the youngsters got to know each other.

"Everyone has political views in common — they want peace," Paul said, summing up their new view of each other during a sightseeing stop in New York City on Monday before flying home.

"That's it," agreed Peter. "And the religious views aren't all that different. What was once a barrier has now been broken down. It's totally gone, it's nonexistent, it doesn't count."

Paul and Peter were brought here under the aegis of the Ulster Project, a 4-year-old "shoestring peace effort" of the Rev. Kerry Waterstone, an Anglican priest, and his wife, Edie.

"The idea is to get them to stop thinking of themselves as Catholics or Protestants but just as people, and then get them to look at the American scene," he said.

The project originated when two American Irish congregations in Manchester, Conn. — one Catholic, one Episcopal — asked him what they could do about the violence in Northern Ireland.

Recalling the impact of a visit to the United States on his own 15-year-old son, Waterstone suggested bringing a mixed group of young people for a stay in American homes.

"We think if you want to change people, 15 is an age you can impress with a new sense of values," said Waterstone, who serves a union of five parishes in Tullamore in the Republic of Ireland. The first group went to Connecticut in 1975.

This summer there were two groups — 28 young people from around Belfast who went to Lake Charles, La., and the Portadown group, which visited homes in Wilmington, Del. They were selected by their local clergymen.

"What we want is the natural leader among the 15-year-olds," said Waterstone. "We don't want them too goody-goody. We want the boy or girl voted most likely to succeed, that sort of thing."

Their experiences in this country occasionally betray the tensions under which they live at home. He recalled a Fourth of July fireworks display attended by the Lake Charles group this summer.

It began with three loud bangs but no visual display, he said. "Most of our kids flung themselves on the ground the minute they heard the noise. Their reaction was, 'It's a bomb!'"

"They were visibly under stress," he said. "They don't realize how much stress they're under because it has always been the same."

When their group first got together in Portadown, Peter said, "we segregated into Catholics and Protestants. It wasn't intentional, it just ended up like that."

He met Paul for the first time on the bus to the airport in Dublin. Their stay in Wilmington was sponsored by a group there called Pacem in Terris which raised $12,000 of the $16,000 cost of the trip. The rest was raised in Portadown.

In 1348, shipborne black plague arrived in England at Weymouth.

During their stay, they canoed together, went swimming at Rehoboth Beach, Del., and visited Washington, D.C.

Living with an American family, Paul discovered he "can't stand pizza" but appreciated the faster pace of life and the "much more relaxed atmosphere." Peter enjoyed the "places to go at night, all the cinemas."

Their activities culminated in a two-day "breakthrough" session. "It was just the Irish kids," said Peter. "We had a long talk about our feelings."

Before they came, he said, "each side thought the other side had bad views, each side thought the other side was worse than them."

Now they are looking forward to getting everyone together again back home. "It's a wasted trip if we don't," said Peter.

"It's been proved successful between us," said Paul, "so why can't it be successful between others?"

Area Members Votes In Congress Listed

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes July 27 though August 2.

HOUSE

RHODESIAN EMBARGO Adopted, 229 for and 180 against, an amendment ending U.S. economic sanctions against Rhodesia on Dec. 31, provided the white-dominated African country has installed a new government through free elections that include participation by all political groups in the country. The measure was added to the 1978 military foreign aid bill (HR 12514), later passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

The Administration opposed the amendment. It wants to retain the trade embargo as a lever in its efforts to have Rhodesian black guerrilla organizations included in the settlement designed to bring about majority rule in Rhodesia.

Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., sponsor of the amendment, said it does not require the present Rhodesian government of Prime Minister Ian Smith "to negotiate with the Communist-backed" guerrilla faction, which he said is "trying to shoot itself into power in Rhodesia."

Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., an opponent, said the amendment includes "no way to insure that external parties (the guerrillas) may participate in such elections or in the negotiating process."

Members voting "yea" favored lifting the embargo under certain conditions notwithstanding Carter Administration objections.

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-I. Charles Wilson, D-2. James Collins, R-3. Ray Roberts, D-4. Jim Mattox, D-5. Bill Archer, R-7. Jack Brooks, D-9. Jake Pickle, D-10. W.R. Poage, D-11. Jack Hightower, D-13. Kika de la Garza, D-15. Richard White, D-16. Omar Burlison, D-17. George Mahon, D-19. Henry Gonzalez, D-20. Bob Gammage, D-22. Manuel Lujan, R-1. Harold Runnels, D-2. and Abraham Kazen, D-23, voted "yea."

Reps. Bob Eckhardt, D-8. James Wright, D-12. Barbara Jordan, D-18, and Robert Krueger, D-21 voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague, D-6. John Young, D-14, and Dale Milford, D-24, did not vote.

AID TO SYRIA Adopted, 280 for and 103 against, an amendment cutting off U.S. economic aid to Syria for one year, starting Oct. 1. The aid totals about $90 million. The amendment was added to foreign aid bill (HR 12931), later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Ed Derwinski, R-Ill., author of the amendment, said: "The savage Syrian action in Lebanon threatens to drag the Middle East closer to an all-out war. He accused Syrian troops of 'slaughtering' Lebanese Christians."

Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., an opponent, argued the amendment "has the potential for serious damage to the (Middle East) negotiating process now underway." He added: "The Syrians have been playing a helpful role with regard to events in South Lebanon."

Members voting "yea" favored the aid cutoff.

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Archer, Brooks, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Gonzalez, Krueger, Gammage, Kazen, Lujan, Runnels and Milford voted "yea."

Teague, Young and Burlison did not vote.

TURKISH ARMS BAN Adopted, 208 for and 205 against, an amendment that lifts the embargo on arms shipments to Turkey, which was imposed by Congress after Turkey invaded Cyprus in 1974. The president must certify to Congress that it is in the best interests of the U.S. and NATO to sell the weapons and that Turkey is making a good-faith effort to settle the Cyprus problem. The measure was added to the International Assistance Authorization bill (HR 12514), a foreign military aid bill.

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., sponsor of the amendment, said: "The embargo has not produced a settlement on Cyprus. The southern flank of NATO has been weakened. The relations between Greece and Turkey have deteriorated. The relations of each to NATO have deteriorated. And our own position has deteriorated as a result."

Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., an opponent, said the amendment requires "not one concrete action on the part of the government of Turkey" and places "no restrictions whatsoever on Turkey's capacity to transfer additional arms to Cyprus or to ignore the cease fire."

Members voting "yea" favored selling arms to Turkey.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Archer, Brooks, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Hightower, Young, de la Garza, White, Burlison, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez, Krueger, Kazen, Runnels and Milford voted "yea."

Mattox, Eckhardt, Lujan and Gammage voted "nay."

ADJOURNMENT Adopted, 302 for and 44 against, a resolution (S Con Res 98) setting aside Congress' otherwise mandatory adjournment date of July 31.

There was no floor debate on the measure. Many of the members voting "nay" were making a symbolic gesture against the present Congress, which they think has met long enough and passed enough laws.

The mandatory July 31 adjournment was enacted a quarter-century ago in an effort to speed up congressional business, but the deadline has been extended every year since 1958.

The House, however, will recess this year from Aug. 18 to Sept. 5, and the Senate will be out Aug. 30 through Sept. 5. The target date for adjourning the 1978 session is Oct. 7. However, a lane-duck session after the November election is a possibility.

A "yea" vote favored staying in session beyond July 31.

Hall, Wilson, Mattox, Archer, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Poage, Wright, de la Garza, White, Burlison, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez, Gammage and Kazen voted "yea."

Collins, Lujan and Runnels voted "nay."

Roberts, Teague, Hightower, Young, Krueger and Milford did not vote.

SENATE

TRADE WITH UGANDA Voted, 46 for and 30 against, to table and thus kill soft House-passed language merely urging President Carter to take actions to penalize the Idi Amin regime in Uganda, which is said to be committing genocide against tens of thousands of Ugandans.

After this vote rejecting the soft approach to Amin, the Senate voted an almost total embargo on trade with Uganda, in hopes of depriving Amin of the hard currency he depends heavily upon.

The trade embargo was added to an International Monetary Fund authorization bill (S 2152), which now goes to conference.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., a supporter of tabling the soft language, said: "A man like Idi Amin does not respond to 'sense-of-the-Senate resolutions.' He only responds when it is clear the nation, and hopefully others on the international scene, will act."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, an opponent of tabling, said: "I think all of us recognize it is not within the power of the U.S. to reform or restructure or remodel other governments. As a practical matter, we must take them pretty much as they come."

Members voting "nay" favored the soft approach to Amin.

Sens. Harrison Schmitt, R. and Peter Domenici, R. voted "yea."

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D. and John Tower, R. did not vote.

WORKER SAFETY Failed, 42 for and 51 against, to table an amendment exempting businesses which employ 10 or fewer persons from regulation by the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). The Senate then announced the amendment by a voice vote, including it in a bill (HR 11445) authorizing Small Business Administration programs. The bill was passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., author of the amendment, said: "The current pace of inflation makes it increasingly difficult for small business to compete effectively in the marketplace. Excessive government regulation exacerbates their problems."

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and opponent, charged the amendment would "simply, on a wholesale basis, eliminate these workers just because they happen to work for small business. That does not in any way change the danger and damage to them."

Members voting "yea" favored keeping the small businesses under OSHA jurisdiction.

Bentsen, Tower, Schmitt and Domenici voted "nay."

DOCTOR'S EQUIPMENT Voted, 50 for and 45 against, to require doctors to get prior approval of equipment purchases exceeding $150,000 for their offices. The approval would come from the doctor's area health planning agency, which is a federally-created agency designed to upgrade health care and control medical costs. The American Medical Association opposed the requirement, which is included in S 2410, a bill extending a variety of health programs for three years.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., a supporter of the requirement, said: "We have established a floor of $150,000. We are not requiring that the doctors get a certificate of need for every thermometer or bedpan."

Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., an opponent, said it is "a private decision for doctors to equip their private offices and clinics. I think it is reasonable to assume that good businessmen, whether they be physicians or whatever, are not going to squander great sums of money on equipment."

Senators voting "yea" favored requiring prior approval of doctors' equipment purchases exceeding $150,000.

Bentsen, Tower, Domenici and Schmitt voted "nay."

Leban 'Ope

BEIRUT, Lebanon, proposing to maintain a balance of power between forces and local militias, informed sources said today. Sources said the financial situation was part of a strategy to end the fighting in the country that is in a state of anarchy.

In Lebanon, means removal of the 1975-76 civil war and Muslim sects.

As Lebanese Christians proposed a 36-hour Christian neighborhood by rockets and about 250 Christians with the Syrians since fighting began.

The current fighting was used to reduce the number of witnesses. Meanwhile, the Israeli military

Lebanon May Declare Beirut 'Open City' To End Warfare

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon is proposing to make this battered Mediterranean capital an "open city" to end hostilities between Syrian peacekeeping forces and local rightist Christian militias, informed sources said Wednesday.

Sources said the proposal to demilitarize the financial and commercial center was part of a stage-by-stage security plan to end the fighting in the capital of a country that is slightly smaller than Connecticut.

In Lebanese parlance, "open city" means removal of the barriers that have hampered movement between Christian and Moslem sectors of the capital since the 1975-76 civil war.

As Lebanese authorities formulated the proposal, a 36-hour lull in fighting in Christian neighborhoods was shattered by rockets and artillery fire at dawn. About 250 Christians have died in clashes with the Syrian peacekeeping forces since fighting began July 1.

The current lull in the Beirut fighting is being used to reinforce positions on both sides, witnesses said.

Meanwhile, Israel denied Syrian government press reports that more than 400 Israeli military experts were helping rightists fight Syrians. In Washington, a State Department spokesman said there was no evidence that Israel had sent American-made weapons to the Christians.

The Syrians had joined the Christian rightists in fighting off leftist Moslems during the civil war, but friction developed between the former allies after the Syrians stayed on to keep peace in rightist neighborhoods. The Syrians also have been angered by alleged Israeli aid to rightist Christians in Lebanon.

On Wednesday, Lebanese authorities ordered Israeli peace crusader Able Nathan to sail out of Lebanese territorial waters without delivering a cargo of emergency supplies to victims of the conflict. Nathan had appealed for permission to land Tuesday.

Col. Sami Khatib, Lebanese commander of the Syrian-dominated peacekeeping army, left Beirut to discuss the security plan with the Syrian government of President Hafez Assad, according to sources.

"There are security arrangements being taken to defuse tensions in the capital," Khatib said before his departure. "But it will not be in the nation's interests to reveal these arrangements at the moment."

Khatib spoke after a lengthy conference with President Elias Sarkis, Premier Salim el Hoss, and Fuad Butros, foreign and defense minister.

But sources said the plan involves:

- A ceasefire between Syrians and Rightists in the Christian sector of the capital.
- A pullout of the Syrian peacekeeping forces from Christian neighborhoods, to be replaced by regrouped units of the Lebanese army and internal security forces.
- Disarmament of rightist militias in the Christian sector and leftists in the Moslem sector.
- Syrians taking up positions around the capital to intervene when security violations warrant.
- Syrian control of Palestinian guerrillas in refugee camps and shanty towns of Beirut's southern fringes.

10 Semifinalists Announced In Symphonic Works Contest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy Center announced Tuesday the 10 symphonic works that have been chosen as semifinalists out of 54 submitted in the center's first Friedheim competition.

There will be cash prizes of $5,000, $2,000 and $500 for the three works finally selected. All of them had their first performances between August of last year and early 1978.

The 10 semifinalists were chosen by a jury representing the Music Critics Association. The qualifying list will be further refined to five compositions that will be performed at the Kennedy Center's concert hall on Sept. 17 by the Peabody Conservatory Orchestra of Baltimore.

The composers will be invited to orchestra rehearsals and the public performances to ensure the most accurate reading possible.

The competition is financed by the center and a foundation established in honor of the late pianist Arthur Friedheim by his son, Eric Friedheim.

The free concert on Sept. 17 will be broadcast live by National Public Radio and beamed abroad by the Voice of America.

The 10 selections so far qualified by the jury:

"Odeonia," by Marc-Antônio Consoli, New York City, first performed by the American Composers Orchestra.

"Earth Gods," by Jere Hutchinson, East Lansing, Mich., first performed by the Richards Quintet and the Michigan State Wind Ensemble.

"Concerto for Orchestra," by Henri Lazarof, Los Angeles, the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra.

"Hitt," by Carman L. Moore, New York City, the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra.

"Concerto for English Horn and Orchestra," by Vincenti Perischetti, Philadelphia, New York Philharmonic.

"Fiery Wind," by Roger Reynolds, Delmar, Calif., American Composers' Orchestra.

"On a Dream," by Gerhard Samuel, Cincinnati, Cabrillo Festival Orchestra.

"Janus," by Elliott Schwartz, La Jolla, Calif., the Domaine School Orchestra.

"Ricerari Notturmi," by Stanislaw Skrowaczewski, Minneapolis, the Minnesota Orchestra.

"Adios," by Aurelio de la Vega, Northridge, Calif., the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

The Kennedy Center-Friedheim awards will be presented annually to American composers for meritorious works. The 1979 awards will be for chamber music, and in subsequent years they will be presented in alternate years for orchestral and chamber music.

The critics association jury consists of Irving Lowens, the Washington Star; Elliott W. Galkin, former music critic of the Baltimore Sun; and Boris Schwarz, American music correspondent of the Neue Zürcher Zeitung.

BLACK HOLES AT CENTER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists have evidence that massive black holes — objects so dense their gravity doesn't allow even light to escape — may be at the center of certain star clusters in our galaxy. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Tuesday that data from the International Ultraviolet Explorer satellite raises the possibility of black holes in star groups called globular clusters.

Homecoming Exciting For Lad Born With Heart Outside Body

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — His eyes bulging from the wonder of it all, Christopher Wall Jr., the boy born with his heart outside his body, is home for the first time in his life — just in time for his third birthday Thursday.

"He's laughing and pretty excited," said his father, Christopher Sr., a Camden County detective. "We're ecstatic. This is the best thing that ever happened."

"From the time he came into the house (Tuesday) he acted like he always belonged here," said his mother, Teresa, a bank clerk.

The journey from Children's Hospital in Philadelphia to the Wall residence in Audubon, N.J. was filled with first experiences for the child.

"His eyeballs couldn't get any bigger," said his father. "It was his first car ride." And when the family got home, "it was the first time he saw a dog."

Christopher's "first two birthday parties were held in Children's Hospital, where he made medical history as doctors kept him alive with a series of operations and other treatment.

There are fewer than 200 recorded cases of the rare birth defect, and no other infant had survived for more than a few hours.

Christopher's heart developed outside his body because his breast bone was missing, a condition known as ectopia cordis.

He was transferred immediately after his birth to Children's Hospital and had four operations during his first year.

"We've been trying to get him home for the past eight months," Wall said Wednesday in a telephone interview.

"The problem was who would fund the at-home care."

Medicaid and the New Jersey Department of Health finally agreed to foot the bill. With daily eight-hour nursing care and equipment rental and supplies, it comes to about $25,000 annually.

The boy will have to make periodic hospital visits for further surgery to improve his condition. At the family's request, doctors decline to discuss details of future treatment or prospects for improvement.

Christopher is still attached to a ventilator (respirator) which breathes for him because his weak chest and muscles and damaged lungs cannot do the job alone. He can be removed from the machine for 30 minutes at a time, and the family hopes to wean him from the ventilator as he grows stronger.

Because his heart is protected only by a thin layer of tissue and no bone, he also wears a specially designed plastic shield over his chest when not in bed to protect him from a fall.

HOME AT LAST — Christopher Wall Jr., who was born with his heart outside his body, is home with his parents in Audubon, N.J., for the first time after being released from Children's Heart Hospital in Philadelphia on Tuesday. Christopher, who will be three-years-old Thursday, is the longest surviving child who was born with the rare birth defect. (AP Laserphoto)

Strike Deadline Nears

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Mediation Board directed final efforts to avert a Thursday strike that would ground Pan American World Airways at the height of the European summer tourist traffic.

Thousands of passengers booked on trans-Atlantic flights would be affected by a Pan Am suspension of service, involving 235 overseas flights daily at this time of the year.

Board member George S. Ives and board mediator Francis J. Dooley led the attempt at the Pan Am Building here to head off a strike by 7,500 ground personnel set to start automatically at 12:01 a.m. Thursday.

The threat of a walkout by members of Teamsters Local 732 arose when formal mediation ceased at the request of the union, starting a 30-day countdown before a strike would be legal under the Railway Labor Act.

An undisclosed management offer was made Tuesday night only to be rejected as inadequate by William F. Genoese, president of the local.

An aide said the parties were at odds over all facets of a proposed new contract, including wages, pensions, cost-of-living adjustments, hours and working conditions.

Among personnel involved in the dispute were employees handling reservations, sales, passenger service, cargo, medical and supply functions at international airports along the U.S. coasts and in Washington, Chicago, Hawaii and Guam. Others affected were Pan Am employees at the Cape Canaveral missile launching complex.

BEACH CLEANING COST
PARIS (AP) — The cost of cleaning the 100 miles of beaches in Brittany polluted by the wreck of the American-owned oil tanker Amoco Cadiz in March was $84 million, a French official said Wednesday.

Nevada Homeowners Buy 'Piece Of The Action'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Glazed eyes watch as the spinning wheels snap into position. Arms work mechanically, pulling the lever as nickels are pumped into the slot. A cheer is heard as three oranges pop up and the coins cascade into the pan.

New Use Discovered For Waste Fly Ash

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (UPI) — Fly ash, a waste product from coal-burning electric generating plants, is used as a partial replacement for cement.

It's a scene common in Nevada casinos where millions of people pump million of dollars into slot machines each year. Now businessmen in Las Vegas and Reno would like to see the action — at least some of it — in Nevada homes.

A number of firms in Las Vegas and Reno sell antique and used slots — fully reconditioned — to homeowners in the state who want an unusual conversation piece or just a tangible piece of old Nevada they can call their own.

While many of slots sold are antiques, others are similar to the device in hundreds of locations in the state, ranging from plush Las Vegas Strip resorts to neighborhood convenience markets.

"We like to call them an expensive bank," said Ron Lurie, who runs The Antique Gambler in Las Vegas.

"Home slot buyers are mostly people looking for an antique or looking for a piece of furniture for their home," said Lurie.

"People put them in dens and game rooms. I've seen them in entry ways and just wherever there's an empty spot in the house."

"We get all types of people that want to have them," he said. "It ranges from grandmothers to the newly married couples. Many new residents of the state have never had the opportunity to see or own a slot machine, and now they can. It just intrigues them to own one."

The slots don't come cheap. Lurie's cheapest machine goes for $675. If you want a real collector's piece, a Detroit Century manufactured shortly after 1900, you'll have to lay out $14,000.

Tony Mills, the grandson of slot piioneer Herbert Mills and the Mills company representative in Nevada, also sells old slots to Nevada residents.

"I just started about October," he said. "I noticed there was a great deal of interest in old machines."

Mills said he started advertising locally "and we got just fantastic response from local people who just wanted to own a machine."

The prices for the reconditioned Mills machine, which still are made in Chicago but not sold in the United States any more, range from $1,295 to $2,100.

"There's a local myth that five years ago you could pick up a machine for $50 to $100," Mills said. "That's just not true any more. A lot of the old machines have been shipped out of the country."

Lurie said eight states allow ownership of antique slots, defined as any machine built prior to 1941. Two other states are considering legalizing ownership of the old machines, he said.

But buying one in Nevada to take home to California or Oregon, for example, can be a problem, because federal law prohibits interstate transport of the machines. Lurie said Nevada's congressional delegation has been asked to work to amend the statute to allow antique machines to be transported across state lines.

George IV was crowned king of England in 1821.

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

Flamingo Fills Post For Pink Elephant

MORRISVILLE, VI. (UPI) — Pink elephants may abound at 1 a.m. But pink flamingos from the Philadelphia Zoo on a dirt road near the Morrisville town dump? One thing, it didn't fly from the City of Brotherly Love — its wings are clipped. So, officials conclude, it must have been stolen. The flamingo was found by Kevin Hicks when the headlights of his truck picked up a flash of pink on Garfield Road. "I guess the bird snapped at him a couple times, but then he was able to pick it up and bring it to the police," said veterinarian David Sequist, who was temporarily housing the bird. "It's very tame really," said police dispatcher Roberta Hodgdon. "We had it here at the police station and it was kind of friendly. You could hold it in your hands." Police discovered a band on its leg identifying it as the property of the Philadelphia Zoo. Larry Shelton, bird curator of the zoo, said two flamingos disappeared mysteriously from their cage on the evening of July 13. "At this point we have no idea how the bird was taken," he said. "Whoever took it might have been trying to get it across the Canadian border and got scared and turned it loose," he said. Shelton said a zoo employee will come to Vermont to recover the bird. Meanwhile, veterinarian Sequist said the bird had become "quite friendly," and had settled down to a meal of chicken feed.

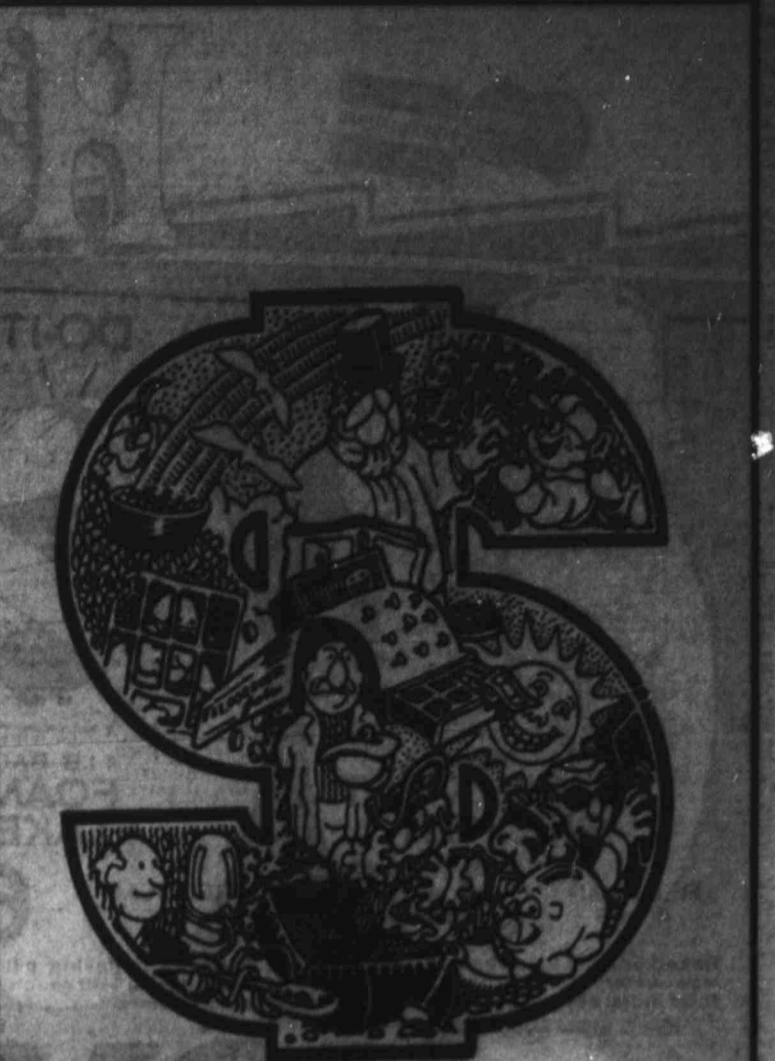

Troubleshooter Meets Karpov

BAGUIO, Philippines (UPI) — A chess troubleshooter who once calmed the tantrums of American genius Bobby Fisher met with world champion Anatoly Karpov Wednesday to discuss challenger Viktor Korchnoi's charge that Karpov has brought in a hypnotist to put a hex on him. Match officials refused to divulge details of their discussions with the Soviet champion, who currently holds a 1-0 edge over Russian defector Korchnoi in the battle for the world crown and $350,000 in prize money. "The meeting was fine," chief arbiter Lothar Schmid told reporters. Schmid, who moderated the hotly contested match between the temperamental Fischer and Russian Boris Spassky in Iceland in 1972, would otherwise say only that the talks covered general matters. These included Korchnoi's accusation that a mysterious Soviet doctor in the audience has been trying to hypnotize him into losing. The 27-year-old Karpov had earlier charged Schmid with losing his impartiality in authorizing a marshal to move Dr. Vladimir Zoukhar, a reputed telekinetic expert, from the fifth row to the seventh row in the middle of the sixth game. In an apparent reference to this, the arbiter said he sought to correct certain unspecified misconceptions in his talks with Karpov.

Loyalty Beer Ad Backfires

CHICAGO (AP) — The "Drink Schlitz or I'll kill you campaign," created to reawaken the loyalties of former Schlitz drinkers, has undone the 17-year relationship between one of the nation's top beer makers and its high-powered advertising firm. The advertising campaign, meant to be a tongue-in-cheek assault on anyone brazen enough to deny a beer drinker his can of Schlitz, backfired when it hit the television screens last year. Instead of bringing Schlitz drinkers and the beer together again, the ads stirred up such resentment among television viewers that the campaign was canned after 10 weeks. The campaign soured the stable relationship between Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. and Leo Burnett Co., one of the world's largest and most successful advertising agencies. The story was pieced together by the Chicago Tribune and reported in its Wednesday editions. The Schlitz-Burnett relationship began unraveling when viewers bombarded the beer maker with "very intense" letters. Schlitz was stunned and a source at Milwaukee headquarters described the outcome as "a great tragedy — really, really bad." The "Drink Schlitz or I'll kill you campaign," as it became known in the advertising trade, had its origins in Schlitz' desperate attempts to maintain its position as the nation's No. 2 brewer. Miller Brewing Co. was gaining as a result of the successful promotion of its Lite beer, introduced nationally in January 1975. Before there was Lite, Schlitz had successfully sold beer drinkers on the idea that sipping its brew instilled "gusto." But, later in 1975, Schlitz told Burnett "gusto" had come to convey the idea of a heavy-tasting beer and this theme should be abandoned. Burnett resisted dropping the "gusto" approach, but ultimately went along, "kicking and screaming," and came up with the slogan "When it's right, you know it." But things got worse, and in 1977 the sales of Schlitz beer declined for the first time in 16 years. Earnings were down 60 percent from the previous year. Something had to be done, the company decided. Schlitz and Burnett decided to resurrect "gusto," hoping to recapture their lost customers. So last September, Burnett's top executives reviewed the new, hard-hitting campaign. Four possible commercials were viewed and in each the announcer asked the characters to try another brand of beer. "What?" they answered. "You want to take my gusto away?" Each character then alluded to the physical destruction of the announcer. The campaign went on the air last October and the reaction was so violent that it was taken off 10 weeks later. "It was supposed to be fun, tongue-in-cheek stuff," said Richard Stanwood, Burnett's director of creative services at the time. Schlitz was so rattled by the experience it told Burnett to come up with a new short-term campaign and invited competitors to take a shot at it too. The brewer also invited competition for its long-term account. Burnett won the run-off for the interim campaign with a pitch described as "very up, lots of music ... and no tongue in cheek." But it bowed out of the long-term competition and that contract went to the Chicago office of J. Walter Thompson Co., whose first effort for Schlitz is expected to be aired shortly.

 WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon notified Congress Wednesday it plans to sell Israel 100 TV-guided "smart bomb" kits without high explosives for $19.6 million. This is the second U.S. sale of 100 such weapons to Israel. The GBU-15 "electrical optical glide bombs" are designed to be fired from F-4 fighter planes against ground targets.
