

Pope's Induction To Be Simplest, Least Pompous

ROME (AP) — This Sunday's installation of Pope John Paul I will probably be the simplest and least pompous coronation in modern papal history, Vatican officials said Monday.

A new pope traditionally goes through a coronation much like the crowning of a king, and with much the same regal trappings including a bejeweled papal tiara.

This time, however, the Vatican isn't even calling it a coronation. Vatican Radio says it will be "a solemn Mass for the start of the ministry of the supreme pastor" and barring bad weather will be held in St. Peter's square, as was the precedent-setting installation of Pope Paul VI. Previous papal coronations took place inside St. Peter's Basilica.

Vatican officials say the ceremony would be more of an "enthronation," during which the pontiff would take possession of his throne.

Papal pronouncements on vital matters of faith and morals are said to come "ex cathedra," Latin for "from the throne," signifying the authority of the pope extending back to the throne of St. Peter.

The papal tiara, the elaborate bee-shaped headdress with origins dating back to the 3rd century, has been a traditional part of coronation ceremonies, but probably will not be used this Sunday.

Pope Julius II, the worldly, warring pope who brought Michelangelo to Rome, ordered a jeweled tiara in 1513 that would have had a price today of more than $1 million.

Pope Paul wore a tiara that cost an estimated $10,000, given him by his former diocese of Milan for his coronation on June 30, 1963.

But the pope gave it to U.S. Cardinal Francis Spellman in 1964 as evidence of Paul's concern for the world's poor, and it was used to raise funds for charity. It is presently at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C.

Whether the Venice diocese of the former Cardinal Albino Luciani will volunteer to make a new tiara remains an open question.

Advocates of a "poor" church have long questioned the elaborate coronation rite, saying the pope is the vicar of Christ on earth and that Christ would never have accepted a king's crown.

Evidence of Cardinal Luciani's simple lifestyle appears in the motto "Humility" emblazoned on his coat of arms and it appears from statements of those who know his habits that his installation will not be a fancy affair.

"After Popes John and Paul, the church has taken a new direction," said Cardinal Michele Pellegrino, former archbishop of Turin. "It is particularly significant that Pope Paul's testament requested that he be buried in that bare earth and not under a marble monument."

Talks Accord Delays Postal Strike 15 Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service agreed Monday to bargain some more with its unions, delaying for at least 15 days the threat of a national postal strike. Chief Federal Mediator Wayne Horvitz announced.

In agreeing to renewed talks, the Postal Service appeared to be conceding to union demands that key parts of a tentative agreement rejected by union members be renegotiated.

Union leaders urged members to stay on the job.

Both Horvitz and the Postal Service refused to answer directly reporters' questions about whether the Postal Service had backed down from its frequently stated refusal to return to the bargaining table.

However, the announcement by Horvitz said, "The parties have agreed to a procedure to resolve their dispute over the terms of a new postal contract...That procedure is in effect a continuation of the collective bargaining process."

Talks Previously Rejected
Only hours before the agreement to go back to bargaining was reached, Postmaster General William F. Bolger had said, "As far as I'm concerned, we did our bargaining...I could not in good conscience agree to anything more at the bargaining table now."

Bolger said in a statement following Horvitz' announcement: "I am satisfied with this agreement which provides a mechanism for a speedy resolution of the issues. The nation can now be assured it will continue to enjoy uninterrupted mail service."

Horvitz said the unions and postal management had agreed to let him name a person to mediate remaining issues between the two sides. He said he would name a person within 48 hours.

Mediator May Rule
If agreement is not reached, the mediator will decide on his own the remaining unresolved issues within 15 days after the mediation begins, Horvitz said.

A union source said the Postal Service agreed to reopen talks on the two most controversial sections of the tentative agreement. The two areas are whether the Postal Service has authority to lay off

Kennedy Fires Health Care Measure Blast

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy took another slap at President Carter on Monday, declaring that tying national health care to economic indicators is a denial of human rights.

The Massachusetts Democrat said health care is a "basic human right" and that "a conditional right is basically not a right."

Although Kennedy did not name Carter in his speech to the National Governors' Association, he attacked the key qualifiers in the health care program outlined by the administration last month.

"It is wrong to tie the pledge and commitment of a right to the American people on some predictions that may or may not happen," he said. "We don't condition Social Security on the rate of inflation or the size of unemployment or the size of the deficit. We don't condition public education of the young people in our states on the size of the deficit or the size of unemployment."

Kennedy addressed the opening general session of the governors' group. See KENNEDY Page 18

An Air Force reconnaissance plane reported Debra was centered 65 miles south of Port Arthur at 5 p.m. CDT, at latitude 29.0 north and longitude 94.0 west. The storm was expected to drift north-northeast at 10 mph.

Highest sustained winds were clocked at 55 mph and could approach hurricane force of 74 mph, forecasters said.

Storm Poorly Organized
"The storm was poorly organized early during the day but this afternoon the center was finally shaping up, with the possibility that she would be into our area at about 1 a.m. We didn't want to take any chance of having an evacuation at night."

Debra was a wet, broad disturbance a notch below a hurricane. Gale winds lashed the coast from Galveston eastward to Grand Isle, La.

In Louisiana, evacuation orders were issued for the town of Cameron and the smaller communities of Creole, Holly Beach, Johnson's Bayou and Grand Cheniere. All squat so near the beach even a brisk onshore breeze can put water in the streets. Water, not wind, is always the most dangerous factor along this coast.

Evacuation Not Mandatory
An evacuation order is not mandatory, Trosclair said, but he estimated that 75 percent of the coastal population obeyed it. It is difficult to drive out of this area after flooding begins, he said.

At Abbeville, La., Vermillion Parish authorities "suggested" that residents in flood-prone areas move inland, but there was no formal evacuation.

Debra was heralded by warnings of possible flash flood conditions far inland in Texas, Mississippi and the entire state of Louisiana.

A spokesman for Penrod Drilling Co. in Dallas said the body of Danny G. Jackson, 27, of Winnboro, La., was retrieved from the Gulf several hours after he was swept to his death by a 15-foot wave about 80 miles south of Cameron, La.

Exxon, Shell, Chevron USA and other oil companies cautiously evacuated about 1,000 men from offshore drilling rigs and platforms. The move came as a surprise to some oilmen.

"They were surprised to find out we AUTHORITIES recommended the evacuation of low-lying coastal areas along the Louisiana coast Monday night as tropical storm Debra moved toward the mainland with 50 mph winds and heavy rains. An estimated 5,000 people moved to higher ground.

At least one death of an oil rig worker was reported because of rough seas. Several companies said they ordered their personnel to shore.

"It was a sort of last minute decision," said Phillip Trosclair, assistant director of Cameron Parish Civil Defense, which urged the evacuation.

Revolt Threatening Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaraguans shuttered their shops Monday — sometimes in the face of threats — as a general strike appeared to gather steam in a bid to topple the military government of this Central American nation.

"Everybody is scared," said one Managua, commenting on rumors of a possible military coup against the government of President Anastasio Somoza.

Stores and larger markets were closed in nearly all the shopping centers in this capital city. Some shopkeepers said they joined the strike, aimed at paralyzing the economy, after being threatened.

But buses were running and gas stations, banks and government offices were open.

There were reports of demonstrations, shootings, and bombings in every major city in the country. Demonstrators built bonfires and barricades in the streets.

Revolt has been openly discussed in broadcasts over national guard radio frequencies, according to guard sources.

Foreign diplomats, however, said they believed that Somoza will be able to retain control of the 7,500-man guard. He must have the support of the guard, Nicaragua's army, to remain in office.

The guard's leadership reportedly was angered by Somoza's capitulation to the 25 leftist Sandinista Liberation Front guerrillas who seized the National Palace last Tuesday and held more than 1,000 hostages. The guerrillas demanded and got safe passage to Panama along with 50 political prisoners freed by the government and a $500,000 ransom.

Somoza is the third member of his family to rule Nicaragua since the U.S. Marines put his father in power in 1937. The Sandinistas take their name from Augusto Cesar Sandino, a guerrilla leader who died fighting the Marines.

Popular opposition to Somoza's authoritarian rule has snowballed since the Jan. 10 assassination of newspaper editor Ped-

Busing Test Highlights School Opening Today

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff
SUPERINTENDENT Ed Irons this morning will be at "central command" to monitor by radio the buses taking children cross-town for the start of an historic academic term for the Lubbock Independent School District.

A new court-ordered integration plan, involving grades one through 12 and nearly every part of the city, takes effect today. Though most children continue to attend neighborhood schools, an estimated 2,300 students are scheduled to be reassigned this semester for integration purposes.

No Big Problems Foreseen
Irons and other school officials expect a smooth opening of schools. "There will be no doubt be some confusion over bus routes and times, but I can't foresee any major problems," the superintendent said.

"I've told our principals to be flexible. It will probably be a week or so before we can all get settled in to the routine," he said.

For elementary pupils, that routine means congregating between 7:30 a.m. and 7:55 a.m. in the cafeterias of neighborhood campuses, where they will have a chance to eat breakfast, a new feature of the school system.

At about 8 a.m., students scheduled for reassignment will take buses to "sister schools" generally on the opposite side of town. In most cases, the ride is 20-25 minutes.

Buses Radio-Equipped
All buses are equipped with two-way radios. Irons said he and a group of administrators will "keep in constant contact" with the operation from a command post in the board room of the school district's administration building.

Also, Irons said he has assigned six top assistants to be stationed at points throughout the city in case their help is needed.

There have been no rumors of protests or any such trouble over the desegregation plan. What the district is on watch for, said Irons, are "the little things" — like bus delays.

Parents or students who have questions about school procedures should contact their neighborhood school or phone 765-8546, the number for the information center of Lubbock's Opportunity for Our Kids (LOOK), a desegregation transition group.

Dunbar Starts Second Integration Attempt

IS INTEGRATION better the second time around? Dunbar High School — or, as it's now called, Dunbar-Struggs High — is about to find out.

"We have more going for us than in 1970. There has been more time to prepare, more time to build enthusiasm. I foresee a successful year ahead," said Roy Roberts, principal of the eastside magnet-school complex.

Eight years ago, just a few days before classes started that term, U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward issued his first order affecting Dunbar. He extended westward the attendance zone of the then all-black school, in an attempt to bring in white and Mexican-American students from Lubbock High and Monterey.

Warm, Friendly Campus
It wasn't altogether a failure. True, the projected numbers of pupils — especially whites — did not materialize. But those youngsters who have shown up acclaim Dunbar as a warm, friendly campus, with high scholastic standards and good discipline.

Woodward's new integration order, which takes effect with the start of classes today, uses a different approach regarding Dunbar.

Instead of expanding the attendance area, the order enlarges the Dunbar campus — now to include the former Struggs Junior High facilities. And instead of reassigning students by edict, the new desegregation plan relies on voluntary transfers.

Most of those transfers are the result of the school system's decision to move to Dunbar-Struggs four cooperative vocational (work-study) programs previously offered at Monterey and Coronado High. Thus, to take such courses, westside stu-

"We will try to operate as nearly as possible on schedule," Irons said.

A problem, he added, is that some elementary students who are scheduled for reassignment may not yet be registered for school. Such students must enroll at their neighborhood school before they get on a bus for their sister campus, Irons said. Waiting for those pupils to register may delay some bus runs approximately five minutes, he said.

The school district this year projects a peak enrollment of 31,485 students, down 273 from last year. Of the drop, about 100 students must drive or take a bus to Dunbar-Struggs.

"When the plan was first announced, the feeling of many Monterey and Coronado students was, 'We're not coming.' But the teachers got out and contacted their students. The kids visited our school, met our faculty and students. For the most part, their attitude has changed — they are coming." Tom Brown, the new assistant principal of Dunbar-Struggs, said.

Roberts said there is "no comparison" between the desegregation efforts of 1970 and 1978.

Previously Lacked Time
Eight years ago, he said, the school district "just didn't have time to prepare." In contrast, the district has been working for months getting Dunbar-Struggs ready for this latest initiative.

Not only has the district been orienting students and teachers, but school officials also have done extensive renovation of Dunbar-Struggs facilities — modifying classrooms for new programs and students. The cost, including similar renovations for the Iles Elementary magnet school, has been about $183,000.

The 1978 desegregation efforts are special in another respect, Brown says. The emphasis is not exclusively on racial balance — but on academic quality and enrichment of curriculum.

"What we're doing at Dunbar-Struggs will improve the educational opportunities for students throughout the city. We're opening up to students courses never before available in Lubbock," he said.

Those courses include class piano (each student will have his own electric piano). See DUNBAR Page 18

Feeder Cattle Prices Up

LAS CRUCES (Special) —Although feeder cattle prices have been somewhat volatile so far this year, prices should climb through April, said Robert Coppersmith, extension marketing specialist at New Mexico State University.

"Choice-grade, 660-750 pound yearling feeder steers should sell for $57-$59 this fall and winter," Coppersmith said. "Prices should raise to the $60 level by April of next year."

Choice 500 pound feeder calves will sell to about $63-$66 range this fall, rising to about $68-$70 by next spring, Coppersmith said.

Record cattle prices this spring gave cattlemen a glimpse of the inherent volatile nature of a rapidly rising, dynamic and somewhat psychological market, Coppersmith said. This suggests that the general cattle market trend is upward, but not without occasional setbacks.

In contrast to the past three to four years, it may be difficult to buy cattle "cheap" Coppersmith said. The major factors in the current forecast include the cattle supplies and current inventories, grain costs, beef prices, feeding programs, forage conditions and the demand for beef.

Although feeder cattle supplies are down from recent years, further reductions will occur, Coppersmith said. This reflects previous declines in the cow herd and calf crop. Strong demand, stemming from feedlot replacements and herd rebuilding, should tighten the supply.

In addition, severe liquidation almost assured that it may be at least 1981 before any significant increase in feeder cattle supplies is possible, Coppersmith said. Even then the rate of increase may be limited by the low cow numbers.

The industry now has an inventory near the 1970 levels. Meanwhile, general income has more than doubled and human population is 6.4 percent higher than it was at that time.

Feed grain costs are another factor. Grain costs are low by historical standards but rising from depressed 1977 prices.

Over time, grain costs should rise. However, Coppersmith said, impact on feeder cattle demand may be partially blunted by feeding practices, such as a shorter time on feed.

Cattle feeders may also adjust their programs so that the numbers of cattle placed on feed may not decline as much as suggested by lower supplies. To meet the demand for processed beef, short-fed programs utilizing some cattle that traditionally have not been placed on feed may become more common, the NMSU specialist said.

As the country recovers from the drought, forage may not limit cattle numbers and the demand for cows and yearlings as it has in recent years. Fewer cattle numbers should relax the strain on forage supplies. However, this does not mean that grazing costs will drop, Coppersmith said.

Finally, increases in income and generous consumer expenditures are expected to generate a good demand in beef.

All in all, higher prices for cattle and beef are in sight, Coppersmith said. Price increases for feeder cattle should be more rapid, however, than for slaughter cattle.

Choice slaughter steers should rebound to around the $56-$57 level before the fall seasonal decline, said Coppersmith.

The low for choice-fed cattle prices this fall will be in the $54 range. Third quarter 1978 prices will average near $56 with fourth quarter prices averaging around $55.

Coppersmith expects strong prices in 1979. For most of the year, prices will average between $62-$64. Barring a federal price freeze, the seasonal high price for 1979 may approach $68-$70.

The July 1 cattle-on-feed report from the U. S. Department of Agriculture showed 12 percent more cattle on feed than last year. There is no big increase in the heavier weight groups to push prices down before fall.

Prices may drop by as much as $3 per hundred in late August and September. However, by December prices should be back up to the $57-$58 level, Coppersmith said.

Low Corn Prices Not New To Farmers

RIDGE FARM, Ill. (AP) — Alvin "Sonny" Neubert figured his corn was suffering from LP disease, so he plowed it under. That's LP disease — Low Price.

Low Price is an old story for American farmers, Neubert says, and he was willing to destroy $6,600 worth of corn — 25 acres — to make his point.

"We've got a disease on this corn," said Neubert. "That's why we are plowing it up. It's called LP, low price."

The corn, he said, would have sold for $1.90 a bushel, some 24-cents a bushel less than it cost to produce.

"I never imagined it would get so cheap," he said. "I'd like to work for a little above cost."

Most farmers, Neubert said, complain about low prices but don't do anything. "They all sit around and say they want the government to do this or do that. That's like waiting on your boss to give you a raise."

Neubert, a member of the National Farmers Organization who drove his tractor to Washington in 1977 in a farmers' protest, isn't one to sit on the porch complaining. He likes to be more visible.

The corn crop he plowed under, which was about 15 percent of his total crop, was on well-traveled Illinois 1.

A sign next to the field proclaims $3.70 a bushel as the parity price of corn, the amount farmers say would give them a fair profit.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

BOLLWORM INFESTATIONS CONTINUE to cause problems in High Plains cotton.

While some cotton is being abandoned due to the long dry period, higher-than-average temperatures continue to push the crop rapidly toward maturity.

"Where fields are irrigated or where rainfall has been good, even June cotton is looking better every day," says Dr. Jim Leser, area extension entomologist at Lubbock.

"Moisture-short fields continue to 'burn up'. Many fields are 'cutting out' and will be less prone to have problems with bollworm infestations."

Bollworm activity is picking up again as the area heads deeper into the second egg laying cycle, Leser says. Many fields didn't see egg laying pressure slacken between the two activity cycles, he adds.

"THIS NEXT PEAK SHOULD BRING MORE fields under attack but not necessarily increase the level of infestation in some of the earlier hit and heaviest hit fields," Leser says.

"The second egg laying cycle also will begin dumping bollworms in increasingly larger numbers into other crops, such as soybeans and sorghum," he adds. "Tobacco budworm activity would be expected to increase also during this time."

In general, as more fields "cut out," pressure on the remaining actively growing cotton will increase, the entomologist says. But because of the heavy egg lay expected in some areas, some fields not normally thought of as bollworm fields could get into trouble, he adds.

"Don't assume anything during the next couple of weeks," Leser advises growers. "Check fields at least every three days or more often if necessary to keep on top of the situation."

MOST BOLLWORM ACTIVITY IS BEING reported to the north of U. S. Highway 82 to the east of Lubbock and north of U. S. Highway 84 to the west, Leser says.

"Infestations are scattered, even within a given community," he says. "Infestation levels can range from none to extremely heavy in fields across the turn-over from each other."

Terry, Swisher and Lubbock counties have joined the growing list of counties which have been granted a Section 18 emergency exemption to use some of the newer chemicals for bollworm-budworm control. This brings the total to 10.

A farmer needs to use treatment levels based on information obtained from frequent, thorough field checking, Leser says. In light of moderate infestations when green squares are plentiful, he says, treatment may be warranted if 8 to 10 percent of the green squares are damaged.

"Moderate to heavy infestations require other criteria because if you wait for square damage to show up, you may get 'blown away,'" Leser says.

Ten or more one-fourth-inch or smaller worms per 100 terminals can produce serious trouble, the entomologist says. Also, he adds, 20 or more eggs can lead to excessive damage if enough hatch.

In most fields checked last week, Leser says, only 20 to 35 percent of the eggs found had produced damaging worms. Weather and beneficial insects were doing the job.

CONTROL DECISIONS ARE EXTREMELY difficult on a lot of fields with bollworm infestations, Leser says.

"Each egg lay just isn't quite enough to warrant treatment," he says. "But after a few days of this constant low pressure, the cumulative effect is disastrous."

The entomologist says beet armyworms are "cycling back" in heavy numbers. In some areas, he says, the bollworm is taking a back seat to the beet armyworm.

"Beet army worms are primarily foliage feeders and do not generally warrant control when their damage is confined to leaves and bracts," Leser says. "When they begin damaging fruit, use the same green square damage economic threshold as used for bollworms."

Exchange Reports Cattle Futures Off

Cattle futures were off 32 to 72 points led by nearby October with only distant December at Friday's close, Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The market tumbled 90 in nearby October before uncovering support. Sales totaled 18,690 cars.

The much heavier than expected arrivals, along with increased slaughter Friday, brought selling. Buying in the late trade was stimulated by the mark-up in carcass beef.

Wholesale beef was unchanged to up one cent at 79 to 80 cents a pound for all weights, which was a two-week high.

Exchange Reports Cattle Futures Off

Cattle futures were off $1 to up 50 cents with the best top at $53 per hundred-weight at Omaha.

There were 250 deliveries and a slaughter of 138,000 head. The six markets expect 15,000 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 25 to 67 lower led by November. That contract along with September fell 97 for a time. January briefly was up 10 for the only gain of the day. Sales were 1,951 contracts.

The market reacted after sharp advances Friday with much of the pressure spilling over from the live cattle futures. Increased arrivals of both slaughter and feeder cattle also brought pressure which was partially relieved by strength in beef and some higher cash feeder cattle prices.

Cash feeder cattle were up $2 to off $1 with the best top being $80 per hundred-weight at Greeley. There were 113 deliveries. Receipts at the major terminals today are expected to be 1,900 head.

Hog futures ended 57 to 102 lower led by nearby October after distant October fell 130 early. July briefly gained 5 for the only plus sign of the day. Volume was 5,074 cars.

Pressure was associated with lower cash hogs on reduced arrivals coupled with increased kill Friday and mostly lower cash hams.

Wholesale hams were off 2 1/2 to up 1/2 a cent at 83 to 85 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash hogs were steady to off $1 with the best top $50.50 per hundred-weight.

Vandals Devastate Unfinished City Restaurant

Robbers were at it again recently, striking terror and misery into the hearts of two Texas Tech students and a city man, but for sheer pecuniary loss vandals took top billing in recent criminal incidents.

The miscreants entered the yet-to-be-completed Applegate's Landing, 2415 19th St., over the weekend and caused between $25,000 and $40,000 damage, a spokesman said.

Three roof skylights provided access for the vandals, police reports indicated, and damage to the broken skylights alone was $2,400.

Once inside the building, the intruders played out a frenzied scene of paint-throwing and splashing — ruining brick, naturally-stained woodwork, paper and wood and stone floors in the process.

The "criminal mischief," as it's known under the penal code, set the firm's grand opening back at least two weeks, Joe Young said.

Meanwhile, police were seeking the city's latest group of bandits, who struck twice in a three-hour period late Sunday and early Monday.

Rusty Harlan, 19, of 2124 16th St., said he answered his door about 1:10 a.m. Monday and came face-to-face with a sawed-off shotgun.

Harlan told officers he was ordered to lie face down on his living room floor, while another bandit entered a roommate's bedroom and told the roommate to get into the living room and do the same.

The suspects demanded money, Harlan said, and were directed to $30 on the fireplace mantle. Meanwhile, another suspect went into a bedroom and returned with a shotgun.

Harlan's roommate reportedly was struck in the mouth when he questioned the robbers' intentions.

Just before leaving, Harlan said, one of the suspects placed his gun next to the Harlan's head and said, "I'm going to kill."

With that, Harlan said he rolled over and grabbed the bandit's gun, but let go after being kicked.

In a second hold-up, Jose Peralta said three suspects robbed him about 10:30 p.m. Sunday at a bar in the 700-block of 13th Street.

Peralta, of 2000 E. 44th St., said he was led back to the nightclub where one of the suspects revealed a gun and demanded money.

According to reports, one of the suspects took Peralta's $20 and ordered the victim to remove his boots.

After looking through the boots, the bandit reportedly became frustrated and hurled the footwear at Peralta when no money was found. But as the boot flew through the air, reports indicate, $200 fell out. The trio of men left — $220 richer.

An unauthorized version of "Supermarket Sweepstakes" landed a 26-year-old man and his 24-year-old wife in the county jail recently.

The pair had toured a Safeway store at 2014 50th St. Sunday and allegedly were attempting to exit without paying for nearly $53 worth of groceries and supplies.

After reportedly being spotted by a grocery store employee, the couple was detained by police officers in the parking lot, where they allegedly were attempting a getaway.

Upon investigation, officers found a roast in the man's pants and a couple of hams and a passel of school supplies in the woman's outsized purse.

Another round of burglaries brought misery to homeowners and businessmen and more legwork to police.

Charlotte Barnett of 5428 15th St. said someone stole her bike and skateboard Monday, a loss she estimated at $320.

Thomas McCown of 5401 4th St., apt. 104, said car burglars broke into his vehicle Monday and swiped tools and a cassette player valued together at $500.

McCown's neighbor in apt. 210, Tim

Gage, said his car also was hit, as he lost guns and a camera, all valued at $230.

Jack Givens, a house builder, said miscreants smashed seven windows at a house at 3014 86th St. over the weekend, causing $400 damage.

Another pair of neighbors was hit by burglars recently, reports indicate.

Robert Vanstoy of the South Park Apartments, 3101 S. Loop 200, said his van was entered Monday and a tape deck and gun was missing. The property, Vanstoy said, was worth about $800.

Terry Daniels of Ralls, who also was at the apartment complex Monday, said burglars inventoried his glove box, but found nothing they wanted.

Burglars took a $512 television set from Toribia Balbuena's apartment at 367 Ave. U Monday, reports indicate, and vandals caused more than $500 damage to a house under construction in the 2300-block of Erskine Avenue last weekend, according to Ross Phillips of Phillips Red-Built Homes.

James Partridge of Partridge Construction said thieves cut a steel cable over the weekend to take his $895 welding unit, and Charlotte Bailey of 2511 39th St. said her $400 bike was stolen.

Paris Pretty, But Mayor Loves N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — Fresh from a week in Paris, Mayor Edward I. Koch said Monday that France is marvelous, but New York has his heart.

"New York is the city I love. There's not another place like New York City. If it didn't exist, we'd have to invent it," Koch said moments after he disembarked from the supersonic Concorde that carried him home.

Before he left Paris, where he had joined 10 other big-city mayors as a guest of Mayor Jacques Chirac, Koch told reporters, "Paris is the most beautiful city in the world, but New York is the most exciting."

AN EDITORIAL:

Smoke Signals Political Fire

ARE THE FOLKS who brought us Proposition 13 about to spring another one on us?
 California's voters could be preparing to do just that.

Only this time it's labeled Proposition 5 and the subject is nothing so tame as taxation. Rather it's the separation of the smokers from the non-smokers—possibly belliger-ently.

On the state ballot this November is a proposal for what is generally regarded as the most comprehensive regulation of smoking rights and wrongs in public places yet attempted in a broad jurisdiction.

SPECIFICALLY, Proposition 5 (aka The Clean Air initiative) is two pages of legalese boiling down to a declaration that smoking in certain enclosed areas is "a public nuisance and a cause of material annoyance, discomfort and physical irritation to non-smokers."

Exempt would be bars—"impossible" to regulate, even the anti-smokers admit—private hotel and hospital rooms, and professional entertainment and sports events.

The initiative already is heating up as a public issue under the leadership of two organizations, support being led by the Campaign for Clean Air and opposition by Californians for Common Sense.

Two's Too Much Too Soon

NOW ORDINARILY, disposing of a mere $1.294 billion wouldn't be much of a problem for your average federal agency. But currently it's a big one for the U.S. Treasury.

Treasury, you see, has got that much sunk into $2 bills, which, as far as most Americans are concerned, it can keep on keeping.

It all dates back to 1976 when the two, withdrawn from circulation nearly 40 years earlier, was re-introduced. It looked like a denomination whose inflationary time had come.

AS IT HAS turned out, the two had everything going for it except public acceptance.
 Treasury has printed 647 million in the last two years, but the denomination still is virtually uncirculated.

Some have disappeared into collections.
 Tellers say customers are as likely as not to refuse to accept twos when offered. Treasury still isn't precisely sure what went wrong, but it has a number of theories.

The established heavy traffic in $20 bills could be a factor, with the public preferring not to take the chance of confusing the smaller denomination with the familiar big bill.

Superstition may also be at work. The old $2 bill was widely considered to be unlucky, possibly through its association with betting.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Bureaucracy Officially Deaf, Dumb and Blind

WASHINGTON—As part of the ongoing lunacy that has virtually destroyed the nation's internal security program, the U.S. government no longer considers membership in the Communist Party to be a bar to federal employment.

In fact, the Civil Service Commission (CSC), which is in charge of administering guidelines for federal job-seekers, does not believe the "mere fact" of Communist Party membership should be entered into an applicant's record.

Such membership, according to the CSC, is simply an exercise of First Amendment rights, and thus not only shouldn't be held against an applicant or recorded in his file, but should not even be asked about when somebody comes around to seek a federal job.

THIS IMPROBABLE but all-too-official state of affairs is revealed in hearings just released by the Senate subcommittee on criminal laws and procedures.

Under questioning from Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., spokesmen for the CSC asserted that the Federal Privacy Act of 1974 and recent court decisions make it improper to ask prospective federal employees about membership in the Communist Party, the Maoists, the Trotskyites, the American Nazi Party or any other such organization, however violent or subversive.

CSC Chairman Alan K. Campbell and director of personnel investigations, Robert J. Drummond, told Thurmond that only if an applicant had committed an overt illegal act would his political affiliations be considered relevant.

BUT "MERE" membership in the Communist Party or other such organizations, including groups involved in supporting terrorism, is not to be inquired into, even in hiring for sensitive positions.

Thurmond: Is it accurate that the Civil Service Commission, some time ago, ruled that applicants for federal employment could not be asked whether they are or have been members of the Communist Party or other organizations that are committed to the violent overthrow of American society, or whose sympathies lie with a government other than the U.S. government?

 "And is it accurate that the Civil Service Commission, a few months ago, ruled that such questions may not be asked even of applicants for sensitive positions?"

"CAMPBELL: YES, it is true that we were advised by counsel that in relationship to the protections in the Privacy Act, such questions were inappropriate."

As for maintaining data in the files, chief investigator Drummond explained that "both the Privacy Act and court decisions preclude our maintaining in our files the mere fact that an individual is a member of one of these organizations with no information to show that he has committed any unlawful acts."

In response to questioning, Campbell added that if an individual were found to be a member of a Marxist terrorist-support group—in this case one controlled by Fidel Castro—that, "standing alone as mere membership, the information would not disqualify him."

THE CSC chairman also testified that his agency has no way of knowing which organizations are terrorist in nature, and that the Justice Department does not provide such data on any sort of systematic basis.

In a Catch-22 aspect of the discussion, the witnesses acknowledged that data about membership in a subversive or terrorist group might be the starting point in inquiring after other facts that might prohibit employment.

But, as the committee observed, it is hard to use such membership as a starting point if the fact of membership is never asked about.

Campbell agreed that there should be criteria for determining whether an individual applicant is loyal to the United States but acknowledged that his agency has no such criteria at its disposal.

In short, with respect to possible Soviet penetration, Communist subversion or infiltration by potential terrorists, the U.S. government today is officially deaf, dumb and blind.

'I Think All This Smoke Has Affected My Eyes'

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

The Canal Boo-Boo

WASHINGTON—Implacable opposition at the top of the powerful State and Defense Departments killed a politically vulnerable White House proposal to transfer operation of the Panama Canal from the Army to the Transportation Department, which would have greatly reduced Pentagon control over the strategic waterway.

The proposal, disclosed here for the first time, was designed to remove the U.S. Army from its traditional role as operator of the famed canal during the transition period between 1979 and 2000, when Panama takes control.

 But in asking Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Secretary of Defense Harold Brown to consider this shift, on the advice of his Latin-American staffers, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski ignored a political reality: taking the canal out of Army control would reactivate the strong lobby that fought the Panama Canal treaties early this year.

IT WOULD jeopardize new legislation to be sent to Congress next year.

That legislation, called for by the treaties, will set up a new U.S. "agency" to run the canal.
 A presidential decision to take the canal away from Pentagon control would gravely worsen Carter's problem—bad enough anyway—to push the new law through Congress.

Within days after Brzezinski's proposal reached Vance and Brown, it died a silent death.
 The canal will remain under military control.

LONG BEFORE President Carter vetoed the defense authorization bill to prove his political manhood, his advisers had convinced him that vetoing a budget-busting public works appropriations bill would be far preferable to working out a compromise.

Consequently, when Sen. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana sat down across the table from administration officials to try to arrange a compromise on water projects, he found no give at all.

Kathy Fletcher of the White House domestic policy staff refused to amend the now-famous Carter "hit list" of water projects.

To Johnston and other members of Congress this was proof that the Carter team had learned nothing over the last 18 months.

Actually, a lesson had been learned, but one not congenial to Capitol Hill.

"I would say the biggest mistake we've made so far is backing down on the water projects issue last year," one Carter aide told us. "We won't make that mistake again."

CONTRARY TO published reports that government troops are deteriorating in Rhodesia, Western intelligence agencies report severe difficulties by guerrilla forces.

Recent government cross-border strikes did major damage to Joshua Nkomo's Soviet-oriented guerrilla army, which has been building up in neighboring Zambia for two years.

Intelligence evaluators now doubt whether Nkomo's forces are capable of functioning effectively.

Meanwhile, Robert Mugabe's rival guerrilla army operating out of Mozambique—which has borne the brunt of the fighting—is riddled by factional disputes.

THE CAUTIOUS reentry of Richard M. Nixon into politics came on Aug. 22 when he met privately with the guru of the Republican tax cut movement, Arthur Laffer.

Nixon had expressed curiosity about the Laffer curve which seeks to justify the wholesale tax cut embodied in the Kemp-Roth bill.

So Laffer, a University of Southern California economics professor, and his wife were invited to lunch at San Clemente.

Earlier Nixon broke his no-interviews policy by talking to Hugh Sidey of Time magazine and Godfrey Sperling of the Christian Science Monitor.

Nixon told Sperling that Ronald Reagan, front-runner for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, is lacking in "substance." Nixon's choice: John B. Connally.

NOVAK

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

H-e-e-r's Grannie!

TECHNOLOGY IS wonderful. Now you can (get ready for this one, folks) put your last will and testament on videotape and play it back to your heirs after you've gone.

I am not making this up. There are eight or nine companies around the country that will actually film the reading-of-the-will ceremony for less than $100.

That's for black-and-white. If you want it in "living" color (so to speak) it'll cost you extra.
 Either way, you have to share the spotlight with your lawyer; he has most of the lines.

There's nothing to it, really. Sets are simple (all you need is a table and a couple of chairs), the only "prop" involved is the will itself (and maybe a glass of water if it's a long, involved one) and the lawyer is the only actor who gets paid. (If he has enough ham in him he might even do it for free.)

HERF'S HOW it works:
 Once you have your last bequests all figured out, the lawyer puts them in the usual legal dou-letalk (fiduciaries, trusts, liabilities, etc.) and sprinkles in the customary "wherefores" and "whereases."

Meanwhile, you make your deal with the cameraman and then rush out to have your hair done.
 (Well, you want to look your best even though you're no longer around, don't you?)

On the big day you, your lawyer and witnesses, if any; simply stroll into the taping room, sit down at a conference table, and do your stuff.
 You're in show biz at last—and I do mean "last."

It's not much of a part, though, since the lawyer is the one who reads the will. About all that's required of you is to identify yourself as the one who's giving away all the goodies.

SO FAR, MOST clients have simply stood up, faced the camera, and flashed a drivers license or credit card (zero in here for a closeup) to prove to the greedy gathering it's them, all right.

It also shows any disgruntled heirs that you really were of "sound mind and body" when you cut them off with a lousy buck or two.

Sort of an extra display of competency (since a traditional will would be filed anyway) to discourage them from trying to break it in court.

But just because most people stay in the background doesn't mean you have to. You're the one who's paying for the movie, so if you want to pad your part, go ahead. There's no law against it.
 Not yet.

The possibilities here are mighty tantalizing.
 Especially since most of us are snapped off before we've had time to tie up all the loose personal ends, give our survivors the benefit of our last-minute advice, or even—if we're so inclined—settle a lot of old scores.

I'M KIND OF tempted to have a go at it myself. Who among us is strong enough to turn down a chance to speak from the grave? And coming back as an electronic ghost sounds like fun.

Those who've done it say it's "interesting." A lukewarm reaction at best. That's probably because they didn't think it through; they weren't mean enough, maybe, to see this as a chance of a lifetime, even if it's only after life.

Most of us are too kind-hearted (all right, chicken) to come right out and tell our loved ones face-to-face why one of them gets the family silver and the other doesn't.

But with a video will, there you are—big as life up there on the screen—explaining why you divided up the heirlooms the way you did. And knowing full well they can't argue, pout, or try to talk you out of it.

WELL, THEY can. But they'll be arguing with your technician remains and a fat lot of good that will do them.

I've already done the traditional will bit (par-celing out what few valuables I haven't had to hock to pay the grocery bills) so all I have to do is pin on my most beguiling smile and explain the reasoning behind my decisions.

I will tell my next of kin that I did my best to be fair about it all and that it wasn't easy, believe me. But if they want to get together on a barter-and-trade session with the various bequests, they should feel free.

And somewhere in there I will reveal what didn't seem dignified enough to include in a formal will: That tucked into the encyclopedia (under P for "plumbers") is a $50 bill.

THAT'S FOR weekends when the sewer backs up and the plumber is off on a Caribbean cruise, spending what I've shelled out for previous floods.

As for Old Dad, have I got a word for him?
 That's what he finds out that, after churning out that blasted Christmas letter for all those ho-hoho years, I am turning the have-a-merry chores over to him.

I will remind him that the address file is on the third shelf in my office, next to the desk. And that it's his turn now to lick hundreds and hundreds of yucky-tasting holiday stamps. (Stage note: a nasty chuckle would go well here.)

No doubt about it. Coming back in glorious color sure beats haunting houses.

POW Pilot Learns Harsh Realities Of Captivity

EDITORS NOTE: The first days after his capture by the North Vietnamese were frightening for Commander Richard Stratton. POW Stratton faced a mock firing squad and burial, and later was transported blindfolded through hostile villages to the infamous "Hanoi Hilton" prison. Interrogation began, and when Stratton refused to answer questions, he was tortured. Stratton's first exposure to the land and people of North Vietnam is revealed in this second of a six-part series from the book, "Prisoner at War," by Scott Blakey and published by Doubleday and Co. Inc.)

(c) 1978 By SCOTT BLAKEY

Richard Allen Stratton, only a few minutes ago free as a bird in his A-4E attack plane, now was stripped of his clothes, tied, tethered, and at the mercy of captors he understands neither verbally nor psychologically and who do not understand him. All were scared as they slogged through rice paddies in Thanh Hoa Province.

Word of the American spread quickly. By the time Stratton and his captors passed through a small hamlet not far from the scene of the crash, the crowd following him had increased by perhaps a quarter to a third. Eyes found tongues and there was no longer a silent sea. It was loud and angry. As the official quarter passed through a second hamlet, an old man took off one of his sandals and threw it at Stratton. Then the other. It was probably his only pair. More sandals were flung, and by the third hamlet Stratton and his captors were moving quickly, pushing and pulling each other through the ditches, over hillocks, along the paths.

The crowd pursued and the air filled with sandals and clods and words and stones and cooking pots, some of them complete with contents and hot off cooking fires. The barrage was so heavy many of the missiles missed their target and struck other Vietnamese. There were yells and thumps with hands and shaking fists. The crowd grew larger, kept following. It was something Stratton understood.

"They were understandably angry. One thing I was told as a cadet was to be sure never to land in an area where you have been bombing or strafing because the reception committee is not going to be too friendly."

The last mile of this initial journey was thus covered at a dead run and they had gone a little more than two miles in all when they came out of a ditch into a tiny village — the place, apparently, where the young man with the machete escorting Stratton lived or worked or both.

Someone motioned to him to lie down on a stretcher. He obeyed. A blanket was unfolded and he was covered from his toes to the top of his head. Then the young man with the machete uncovered the pilot's face, put forefinger to lips signaling silence, and then recovered him. The stretcher was heaved up and Stratton felt himself being carried through a screaming mob. He did not know how long they ran or in what direction, but he thought he smelled the sea. The stretcher was set down finally, tilted, on an incline.

There was another smell that, like the others, he recognized from his youth. It was fresh-turned earth. He worked the blanket aside a bit and managed to see that he was lying beside a freshly dug hole with the dirt thrown on the far side away from him. It took him, tired and frightened as he was, but a millisecond to realize it was a grave.

His grave.

Now he sweated with the last liquids left in him. This was it. Why had he bailed out at all? No priest. No last rites. No friends. No family. God why?

He sensed the footsteps coming. He closed his eyes.

He felt the muzzle against his head. His chest was exploding and he felt the pain down into his bowels. It was over. They would throw him in the earth and cover him over.

It was that simple, dying?

There were no questions. The muzzle never moved. It was as if he could see it: the finger on the triggering tightening. Tightening. Snap! Release. The spring inside the bolt uncoils. The firing pin slashes forward. Strikes the brass cartridge. Ignites the powder.

The explosion was deafening.

The rifle discharged just once, a flat, compressed "thwack." The sound rolled away into the trees.

What confused Richard Stratton was that he could still hear the ringing in his ears. His body was cold with evaporating sweat, but he could feel it. His mouth was dry and his swollen tongue filled it, but he could feel them.

His mind raced to assemble some detail, some order, out of it. He realized now that the rifle that had fired was another short distance away, not the one pressed against his forehead. It was a ruse. Why? The blanket snapped back from his face and he squinted up into the sudden light. Looking down on him was the face of the young man who had helped capture him. The face was smiling. It winked at him and said, "Shhh..." and his face was covered again.

At nightfall he was blindfolded and ordered into a truck which transported him to the "Hanoi Hilton" prison. It took all night to get there.

There they sat him down on a tile floor. The tile was red and cold. They left him. It was quiet. He dozed intermittently. Afraid. What next, he wondered. Perhaps two hours went by, he couldn't really tell.

He waited.

They came for him.

He was both apprehensive and relieved: now they could get on with it, the questions, the slapping around (he was prepared for that; he expected it), and maybe the black box number and all the rest of the survival school lessons he had learned. But that would be the end of it. Hanoi, after all, had signed the Geneva pacts regarding the treatment of prisoners of war. And there was the American Code of Conduct governing the actions of captured Americans. Hanoi certainly knew about that, what with 140 airmen already bagged and imprisoned. There was respect between fliers, and between military peers. He would be able to honor his oath as officer.

Stratton felt fumbling hands loosening the knots of his bonds. His arms ached as blood flowed unimpeded through the vessels. His blindfold whipped away and light splashed into his eyes. He was pushed forward, blinking like an owl in the sun. He came to attention and saluted. It was returned, one military man to another. Hands pushed him down onto a stool barely eight inches off the floor. There was a small table lamp. Seated behind and at the ends of the table were six men, all in uniform.

"What is your name?"

"Stratton Richard Allen."

"Your ranking?"

"Lieutenant Commander, United States Navy."

"Number?"

"Six-oh-two-oh-eight-seven-slash-one-three-one-oh."

"You were born when?"

"14 October 1931."

"Now, Stratton, what is the name of your ship?"

"I am not required under the terms of the Geneva Convention to answer that question, nor am I permitted by my government to answer that question. I am required only to give you my name, rank, serial number and date of birth, and this I have done."

"Stratton," the interrogator persisted softly. "What is your squadron?"

The Geneva Convention.

"What aircraft do you fly?"

The Geneva Convention. Geneva Convention, Geneva Convention; we know all about the Geneva Convention.

The interrogator's hands pressed calmly together, resting on a blue cloth. Two miniature table lamps reflected off the lenses of his rimless spectacles.

"Stratton, you do not seem to be aware of your situation. You are a military man and you obeyed the orders of your superior officers. Now you are here, and you must obey our orders because you are subject to our military laws. Now, what is the name of your ship?"

It was all quite civil, this required just. All of the information that Stratton refused to divulge was painted clearly in precise block letters on the sides of his aircraft and had been dutifully copied off the undamaged portions of the fuselage and forwarded to military intelligence in Hanoi, along with the report on the American's capture.

The inquisitor stared at him without expression. Staring back, Stratton studied a distinguished-looking, gray-haired man perhaps 55 years old.

"Morality dictates, Stratton, that you answer our questions, that you make up for your past sins and offenses against the Vietnamese people."

He continued his monologue, describing an illegal, unjust and immoral war perpetrated against the Vietnamese Fatherland, against innocents, by U.S. aggressors. He explained briefly, with some care, the bloody history of four thousand years of Vietnamese resistance against other aggressors, their crimes, their errors, their arrogance, their demise.

Still civil but with a new hardness in his voice, the Vietnamese said, "Stratton, we can harm you. We can hurt you. We can kill you, and we shall not hesitate to do this. We can harm your family; this we can do, too. You are dependent upon us for your survival."

Stratton nodded from his perch. All that was true, but he still could not answer, would not.

They gave it up.

The interrogator stood, gathering his papers. The others stood. The guard heaved Stratton to his feet and the strained leg muscles barely held him upright. The interrogator's mouth was tight.

"Now I give you two hours to think this all over. Then, if you do not agree that you are subject to us and answer all our questions, then you shall be severely punished."

He turned and left. Stratton never saw him again.

The others left with him. The guard collected the blue cloth and the lamp, motioned Stratton to a corner and for him to sit, and then he, too, was gone. The door was closed and bolted.

He slouched down in the corner, glad to be alone. It was going down by the book, but it was nerve racking. What a pesthold this place was; it stunk. It was cold, and he was tired and hungry. How long without sleep? By his reckoning, at least 28 or 30 hours, and no food.

The door swung open smartly. There were three of them, one of the officers who had sat in before and two others. One wore a jaunty pith helmet garlanded with a camouflage covering of dried leaves and twigs.

"You, Stratton, have you understood what you are told?"

"Yes, I understood."

"Have you changed your thinking? Will you answer our questions?"

"No way."

They left, closing and bolting the door behind them.

In a matter of minutes, the officer and the noncom with the bonnet returned. The officer seated himself casually on a chair. The man with the hat, known to other prisoners as Vegetable Vic, dumped a load of nylon cargo straps on the floor and produced a pair of steel manacles. He moved behind Stratton, pushing him away from the wall, pulling his hands behind his back, slipping the manacles around his wrists.

These devices were opened and shut by means of a key wrench — they did not stop closing just because flesh got in the way, only when the wrench stopped turning and the steel vices slowly chewed through skin and subcutaneous tissues and blood vessels and tendons, stopping finally by bone barring the hinge. The pain was so terrifying he nearly fainted; his eyes watered and he swallowed a scream of shock. He felt the blood, warm and sticky, just before his hands went numb.

A length of nylon strap was knotted tightly around his left arm, just above the elbow, and the tight end passed over and around his right. He was rolled onto his side and Vegetable Vic, in his leafy hat, stood on his arms as he drew the elbows close together.

"Now, Stratton," the officer said casually, "you must be severely punished."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you please tell me something about the parathyroid glands? I have been told I have too much calcium. I have been having blood tests every three months, and the doctor says they are going to watch this and that I will eventually have to have surgery. I am now restricted on dairy foods. I just don't understand it all. — N.L.P.

The parathyroids are small glands (about a quarter-inch in diameter) located on or near the thyroid gland, which is in the neck area. There are usually four of them, which produce a hormone that controls calcium levels in the bone. If they overproduce the hormone, too much calcium leaves the bones to appear in the blood (hypercalcemia). This can be due to overactivity of the parathyroids, and surgery to remove them corrects matters. Another cause of the hypercalcemia is vitamin D poisoning. That vitamin also plays a role in the body's calcium level. Removal of the parathyroids is usually necessary because of the many complications that can occur with hyperparathyroidism, not the least of which is serious kidney damage. Peptic ulcer has also been a complication in some hyperparathyroidism.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother is plagued with muscle spasms. She is 67 and arthritic. They are getting progressively worse through the side and the back area. Her doctor tells her to relax and they'll go away, but she is unable to relax. She uses a heating pad and menthol rub when at home, and even these are becoming ineffective. Can you comment? — Miss M.S.

Considering her age and the arthritis, one might also suspect polymyalgia rheumatica. This causes muscle aches and is readily treated with steroids. If these are true muscle spasms, perhaps a little calcium would be in order, as from milk or supplement tablets. Be careful she does not harm herself with the heating pads. The rub is of doubtful value.

The pain location (back and sides) might indicate spine changes caused by the arthritis. That, too, should be investigated. When injury occurs in the spine, nearby back muscles may go into spasm as a protective device.

I can only suggest these broad avenues of investigation. If she has a poor understanding of arthritis she may want to read my booklet, "How You Can Control Arthritis." For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You mentioned that athlete's foot fungus can be transferred to the hands by contact. How about transferring it to the scrotal area? — J.A.

The fungus can be transferred to any area of the body where it is made "welcome," that is where a suitable environment for it exists. That would include the scrotal area.

SPECIAL NOTE: After writing about the value of stroke clubs in helping stroke victims become rehabilitated, I have been asked for addresses for those who wish to start local clubs. The best address I have at the moment is the following: Stroke Clubs of America, P.O. Box 15186 — 860 N. Highway 183, Austin, Texas 78761. Write "Attention: Stroke Club Coordinator."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was unhappy with your recent article on homosexuality, and being a gay myself, I thought it presented a distorted picture of the situation. — J.S.K.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm writing to commend you on your recent article "Several Theories on Homosexuality." It's one of the most sensible articles I've read recently. Being gay myself, it makes me happy to read an article that isn't anti-gay, so to speak. — D.A.

Thanks, for both opinions.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently took two different hard-coated brands of vitamins — one a well-known brand, the other an "off" brand. I dropped one of each into a separate glass of water. After four hours I checked and found that neither one had softened up. Will the stomach fluids digest them or will they pass through like a rock with no effect? — L.H.

The stomach fluids, unlike the water, will digest the outer coating and absorb the vitamins into the system.

Did you know that 80 percent of stroke victims resume to some degree their former lives? In "Stroke Recovery — Hope and Help," Dr. Thosteson describes the causes and treatment of stroke. For a copy write Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 35 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I nearly dropped my eyeglasses in the coffee when I read your advice to that 40-year-old woman who just learned she was pregnant. You said she should be thrilled. You gotta be kidding, lady.

That woman has a married daughter and a son in college. Now, after all the years of freedom, she's going to start in again with bottles, diapers, colic, whooping-cough shots, and PTA.

I was 38 when my last child was born. After the 20th woman told me how happy I should be I told her to put that show on the road. It was interesting that not a single dame with a kid under 12 opened her mouth — only the ones who had had hysterectomies.

I was not happy THEN and I'm not happy now. Our "late dividend" is three years old and he is driving me bananas. I live for the day when this holy terror starts school so I can get off tranquilizers and back on food. — No Liar

Dear N.L.: Your letter sounds as if it was written at the end of a bad day. Write to me after you've had a good night's sleep, dear — in about three years from now.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother was a strong, domineering woman. She was also the most efficient and best organized person I ever knew. But she never allowed me to make a decision. It seemed whenever I attempted to do something on my own it turned out badly. She would then say, "See — next time ask ME!"

Although I am now married and have three children of my own I still torture myself over trifles. "Why didn't I buy the blue dress instead of the green one?" Or, "Why didn't I serve shrimp salad to the bridge club instead of chicken salad?"

The quality I admire most about your column is the one I lack. It's the ability to cut through to the heart of the problem — make an instant decision and never look back. How do you do it? — The Wafler In Wyoming

Dear Wyoming: Thanks for the compliment, but those "instant" decisions often represent hours of work. The answer that sounds as if it rolled off my typewriter is probably the one I struggled with for half a day, made three phone calls about and then reworked four times.

But you're right about never looking back. I do my best with every reply and then I go on to the next one. Post mortems are for coroners — not columnists.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 21-year-old female, considered attractive, but I'm only five feet tall and would love to be taller.

I have heard of operations to make people shorter. I believe they take some bones out of the legs or saw them down.

Can anything be done about the shorties? — Looked Down On In Sulphur Springs

Dear Sulphur: Anyone who looks down on you because of your height isn't worth a second look.

I know of no surgical procedure to make people taller, but young children sometimes can be helped to grow taller with drugs that stimulate the pituitary gland. This procedure is considered experimental and the results are uncertain. Careful regulation and observation by a competent physician is essential. I am NOT recommending it.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED
NEW YORK—For 23 years, a soap opera viewer could tune in to "As the World Turns," secure in the knowledge that essentially the same people were involved in essentially the same stories or types of stories: plots about "good old-fashioned" infidelities, divorces, illegitimate children and Nancy Hughes' kitchen-setting advice. Two weeks ago, in a sudden and unexpected move, all that changed. One can no longer know what to expect from "ATWT."

The program always began with the show's logo and the announcement, "And now for the next full hour, 'As the World Turns.'" Then the scene moved into a four- or five-minute segment that normally consisted of recapitulation involving several characters discussing what occurred to several other characters during the last few days. Nothing earthshattering or terribly exciting. The mood was quiet and discursive. Now, when the "ATWT" hour begins, the cameras move from three or four short prologue scenes that consist of volatile action or confrontation. "ATWT" is definitely making moves to rid itself of its stereotypical slow-moving pace and emulating the story and production techniques of "newer" serials, most especially, its chief rival, "All My Children."

And Irna Phillips, the creator of "ATWT" is probably squirming in her grave at some of the characters and plots recently introduced on her most successful serial product. There have been a few "shady" or disreputable gents and ladies on "ATWT" over the years, but as far back as anyone can remember there has never been a practicing prostitute.

Prostitutes, hookers, or, more politely, "ladies of the night," inhabit towns on most of the current soap operas. But never, never, never have they taken center stage on "ATWT." Now, there's not only bargirl, Ginny, who filched drunken Kevin's wallet, but also her cohort in shame, Lois. And don't be surprised if there are further characters introduced who come from "the shady side of the street."

In addition to an influx of new characters, "ATWT" has built, believe it or not, a discotheque setting. This wouldn't be big news on any other soap, but for one that has always stressed home and kitchen settings, it's downright revolutionary. And risky.

"ATWT" audiences are acknowledged to be the most conservative in soap opera land. Will the radical changes alienate the long-time viewer? Will the "spiced-up, turned-on" scenes that are in the offing make the "ATWT" fan tune out? The producers and writers are handling the changes with a modicum of sensationalism. In carefully measured moves, scenes are appreciably more active and rapid. New actors and replacements for familiar but admittedly "everyday-looking" performers are in the beautiful and sexy mold that seems to be sweeping the soap opera scene. Frankly, the program looks more appealing visually than it ever has. Still, it's a risky business to alter, however carefully, a long-running serial's format.

The results will be monitored by the ratings when you tune in tomorrow. SHORT TAKES: One of the newcomers to "ATWT" is Robin Groves, who last played Logan Swift's secretary, Maggie, on "Edge of Night." On "ATWT" Robin is called upon to play the aforementioned lady of the night, Ginny.

Another former "Edger" joins "ATWT" this week Kipp (C.G.) Whitman, who was hoodlum Chip Banner on "EON" before the character was bumped off several weeks ago, will portray Jay Stallings' new boss, Hank Robinson. Kipp, incidentally, is the brother of Hollywood film actor Stuart Whitman.

Rebecca Hollen, who played a bit part on "One Life to Live" a few months ago, debuts on "ATWT" this week as Tina Cornell, Nick Conway's "secret" New York girlfriend who hopes to cash in on the financial bounty of Nick's wife, Valerie.

Richard Hatch, whom many remember as the original Chuck Tyler on "All My Children," is shooting for bigtime fame as the star of ABC's fall blockbuster series, "Battlestar Galactica."

Tune in tomorrow to see how the current Chuck fares in his love fantasies over his former wife Tara on "AMC." (Send your questions about soap operas to "Tune In Tomorrow," 230 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Questions cannot be answered personally but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The difference between expert play, ordinary play and bad play doesn't show up on every hand. Sometimes all lines of play produce the same result.

All declarers win the heart lead with the ace. The bad player cashes his ace of trumps, enters dummy by ruffing a heart or leading a diamond, leads a club to his king and winds up with the loss of three clubs and one trump.

The ordinary declarer cashes his ace of trumps at trick two and starts on diamonds. If East follows to three diamonds our ordinary player gets to discard a club on the fourth diamond and is home. Unfortunately, East ruffs the third diamond, leads the queen of clubs and the defense gets that same three club tricks.

Bad luck indeed, but now watch the expert at work. He ruffs a heart at trick two, leads a trump from dummy and ducks when East plays the jack. West is in with the queen and the contract is safe.

Suppose East plays his king of trumps? If he does that our expert has to pay off the same as the others.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
 This note is to those lovely gals who are married to handsome pals who earn and provide their family subsistence with their muscles (or perspire a lot).

Buy extra bars of deodorant soap and put one of these bars in your laundry room.

Use this bar of soap on the underarms of your hubby's shirts and undershirts. Then wash as usual. Behold! No body odor left in the shirts.

Use the same method on those smelly socks as well. Works! — Trudy

DEAR HELOISE:
 I travel at least twice a month. In order to save time when packing, I made a list of all the items I usually need on the trip and taped it to the inside of the closet door.

This is a wonderful way to have a checklist at a moment's notice and no more forgotten items. — Elisa Smith.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER
DEAR HELOISE:
 The newspapers are full of appeals these days to help the ecology by recycling what we can.

Everyone is doing a fantastic job from the signs I observe as I drive down the street — only they're calling it a garage sale... — Bea

DEAR HELOISE:
 I am sure many Moms with babies or small children have thought up many uses for the empty containers damp clean-up tissues come in. I have one which I would like to share...

Remove the lids of the containers, wash them and put the containers in baby's or a small child's drawer and fill them with booties or socks.

This keeps the socks and booties from scattering all over the drawer and getting lost. — Marnie Staples

No-Fault Approach Simplifies Divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Phyllis Eliasberg of Los Angeles remembers her divorce as "delightful ... absolutely amicable ... the most liberating thing that had ever happened to either of us."

James Q. of Pittsburgh remembers his divorce as "very troublesome ... lies ... a meaningless ritual."

Census Bureau statistics show that in 1965-1976, the U.S. divorce rate doubled; almost one of three marriages today ends in divorce.

The ending of a marriage is emotional, often agonizing. How emotional and agonizing — and how easy — can depend on the law.

"It's become more and more simple according to the laws," says matrimonial law expert Doris Jonas Freed.

California, where Miss Eliasberg lives, was one of the first states to pass a no-fault divorce law. Pennsylvania, home of James Q., — he asked that his identity be concealed — is one of only three states to retain the fault concept in divorce. (The others are Illinois and South Dakota.)

Washington Mayor Gets Election Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayor Walter E. Washington, who is running for reelection in the District of Columbia, got a boost from the liquor store lobby recently.

Washington's campaign organization said it has received at least $10,000 — more than half of it on a single day — from about 40 liquor dealers many of whom want longer store hours and a city-run lottery to help the industry recover from sagging sales.

Until 1970, most states operated under laws that required one spouse to bring charges against the other. Even in cases where both husband and wife wanted the divorce, where they agreed that no one was at fault and no crime was involved, one party had to be named as guilty.

No-fault changed that. Marriages end by mutual consent. Louis Kiefer, a Connecticut divorce lawyer, said no-fault generally has eliminated the situation where one spouse "blackmailed" the other, threatening to file charges of adultery, for example, or refusing to agree to the divorce without a large economic settlement. "For the most part," Kiefer said, divorce is "less disagreeable."

California recently liberalized its divorce law still further. Beginning Jan. 1, couples who have been married less than two years, have no children and little property, can get a divorce without appearing in court.

Miss Freed, a New York lawyer who is chairman of the American Bar Association Committee on Research, Family Law Section, said that as long as both parties agree, divorce is relatively simple even in the states where guilt must be proved.

The difference is that these states, she said, "put a premium on hypocrisy and lying." One party must testify that the other is guilty — even if he or she doesn't believe it.

"You know all these things are lies," said James Q., whose 11-year marriage ended earlier this year. "The lawyers tell you, 'Look, this is the thing you've got to say.' ... The notion that I was innocent and my wife was guilty ... that's silly. We were both guilty."

James Q. divorced his wife on the grounds of "indignities," a category that can cover everything from yelling at your spouse in public to refusing to let your mother-in-law come for a visit. There were no children and no complex property settlements.

Lawyer Bob Raphael of Pittsburgh, who is working to change the Pennsylvania law, said the fault concept in divorce "makes absolutely no sense."

James Q. is bothered not only by the fact that he had to lie, or at least exaggerate, but also by his belief that no one seemed to care whether his reasons for ending the marriage were valid. "I found the hearing very troublesome," he recalled. "It was a meaningless ritual ... Here's the lawyer and you sitting in this little room with ... a clerk who swears you in so fast you can't understand what's been said ... Everybody treats it as a joke."

Miss Eliasberg and her husband decided in 1974 to separate after 17 years of marriage. They agreed to share custody of their three sons. They filed the appropriate papers saying their marriage had broken down irreconcilably and, with a minimum of fuss, they were divorced.

"It was so simple and so easy and there was no assessment of fault or guilt," said Miss Eliasberg, who, although she is a lawyer herself, was one of the earliest backers of the do-it-yourself divorce concept for couples involved in uncontested separations.

Miss Eliasberg admits that no-fault divorce has its drawbacks. "A lot of divorces have become whimsical," she said. "Like instant rice and instant coffee, you can have instant divorce."

Linda X. of New York, who asked not to be named, is in the midst of a no-fault divorce. She filed a separation agreement last December and, when the required year is up, plans to convert it to a divided. The process is simple and inexpensive, but it is not without pain. "It's still very upsetting," she said, discussing the end of her 10-year marriage. "Neither my husband nor I has ever gotten over it ... It makes it easier that there's no-fault. (Otherwise), at the very minimum, you're forced to lie in a court ... maybe not lie, but exaggerate or at least hang out your dirty linen in public. It's humiliating and painful."

Mary W., another Pennsylvania resident who wanted her identity hidden, confirmed that view. She said her divorce last November after nine years of marriage, on the grounds of indignities, was made more difficult because "one party had to be guilty. It's very uncomfortable ... I did not feel a lot of hostility (toward my husband), but I was very uncomfortable about 'going public.' ... It was unpleasant."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I was recently widowed and sold all my stocks. I purchased bonds rated A and AA, because the interest on those bonds is higher than the dividends on the stocks I sold. Was this OK? I collect Social Security.

A. Also, I live alone in a one-family house that is much too large for me. But I love it. My health is good and I can afford to stay here. But I am under constant pressure from my family to sell the house and go to an apartment. I cannot make a decision. What do you advise?

A. Let's hope your family isn't arguing about your switch from stocks to bonds. That was a logical move for someone in your situation, for exactly the reason you cite — to get higher income.

A- and AA-rated bonds are counted as being of "investment grade" — meaning that you have little or no worries about those bonds meeting their interest payments and paying off at par value when they mature. They are well suited for you.

The only problem is that bonds are fixed-income securities and offer no protection against inflation. It might have been wiser to have part of your money in common stocks of good utility companies, which can be expected to gradually increase their dividend payments in the years ahead.

As for the house, my advice is to stay there — as long as your health stays good. There's an intangible benefit — which certainly can't be measured in dollars — in living in a home you love. Besides, that house is probably the biggest investment you have. As long as it is maintained well, it should continue to grow in value.

Q. My husband has heard of a "sure way" to make money, by investing in postage stamps through a mail order outfit. They guarantee that our money will double in two or three years and claim that we can't lose. I'm a skeptic. Is this for real?

A. It's a real money-maker for the people who are promoting it. You can be sure of that. But I'm even more skeptical than you about your chances.

There is no denying that money can be made in stamp-collecting. But, like other "exotic" things, it's a very specialized and time-consuming field. I have a couple of friends who are album-deep in stamp collecting. They turn some profits, from time to time, because they know what they are doing and devote a lot of hours to their hobby.

But they warn about stamp outfits "guaranteeing" profits. If I owned something I absolutely knew would double in value in only two or three short years, would I sell it to you at today's market prices? Not unless I was about three pickles short of the barrel.

Q. I have a large number of Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds which I bought during my working years. I cash each year, to supplement my pitiful Social Security check. From your column, I learn that the government may stop granting "extended maturities" on E bonds and they will stop accruing interest. I bought most of the E bonds I still own between 1956 and 1964. When will those bonds stop accruing interest?

A. The best way I can figure out to handle this — and head off a batch of letters from readers with similar questions — is to print the following table. The first column lists the month in which an E bond was issued; the second column gives the length of time during which the bonds are now scheduled to accrue interest.

Yes, it is confusing. But the confusion would be cleared up if the U.S. Treasury Department would get off its bureaucratic rump and grant further extended maturities to all E bonds. Then patriotic citizens such as you wouldn't have to worry and keep checking their calendars for the months in which their E bonds are scheduled to stop accruing interest.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

For information on corporate and tax-exempt bonds, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your requests to William A. Doyle, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Island's Governor Advocates Statehood

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo of Puerto Rico advocated statehood for the U.S. island commonwealth in a speech Monday to the U.N. Special Committee on Decolonization.

Romero Barcelo said Puerto Ricans are free either to declare themselves independent or to choose to incorporate the island into the American republic as the 51st state.

In a slap at Cuba, a frequent advocate of Puerto Rican independence, he said, "It would not be necessary for a totalitarian adversary of the United States to bring the matter (of independence) to the attention of this committee."

He invited members of the committee to visit Puerto Rico to see "the extent to relationship with the mainland United States in a free and democratic plebiscite."

"In 1953, accordingly, the United Nations General Assembly recognized that with the creation of the Commonwealth, the people of Puerto Rico had effectively exercised their right to self-determination," Young said.

Puerto Rico became a U.S. possession after the Spanish-American War of 1898. In 1917 Puerto Ricans were granted U.S. citizenship. In 1952, the island became a self-governing part of the U.S. federal system.

Shah Awaits Clergys' Reactions To Reforms

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Fourteen political parties surfaced Monday within 24 hours of the shah's announced political liberalization, but the government awaited word from its single largest opponent — the powerful Moslem clergy.

Political sources said Prime Minister Jaafar Sharif-Emami sent word to the Moslem clergy that "it is now time to talk" since he and Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi already had made sizable concessions to the opposition.

Sharif-Emami, 68, himself a devout Shiite Moslem, closed casinos, banned gambling, revoked a "non-Islamic" calendar, eased press curbs and lifted a ban on political parties — all within hours of his appointment Sunday.

In a separate announcement, the military command said the shah's physician, Dr. Abdul Karim Ayadi, and three war ministry generals were being retired.

Ayadi, who also held the rank of general, was the target of frequent opposition attacks for belonging to the Bahai sect of Islam.

Sharif-Emami was named prime minister Sunday to succeed Jamshid Amouzegar following weeks of bloody riots throughout Iran by Moslem extremists opposed to the shah's modernization program as un-Islamic.

Political sources said progress between the new government and the clergy had not been "dramatic" because the priests still awaited some "basic commitments" from Sharif-Emami.

The new premier has not said when he will dissolve parliament or order new elections. The clergy also demanded freedom for "more than 230" priests arrested or exiled during the past nine months of unrest.

Ahmad Baniahmad, leading opposition member of parliament whose Social Democratic group was one of the 14 to emerge as a result of the liberalization, said:

Area Rail Safety Hearing Scheduled
A-J Acstin Bureau
AUSTIN — Rail safety hazards in the Lubbock area will be the subject of a public hearing by the Texas Railroad Commission in Lubbock Oct. 11.

The hearing, scheduled for 9 a.m. in Memorial Civic Center, will take public testimony on area rail hazards and may result in the commission's issuing proposed safety regulations.

Commission Transportation Division director John G. Soule is in charge of the hearings.

The federal Railroad Safety Act of 1970 took responsibility for rail safety away from individual states, except in purely local standards, Soule notes.

"The scope of the hearings will have to be limited because of the federal law. But they will still be useful in that they will point out many problems which might not otherwise come to our attention," Soule said.

Bandido President Murdered At Light

FORT WORTH (AP) — The president of the Fort Worth chapter of the Bandidos motorcycle club was shot six times and killed early Sunday as he stopped his motorcycle at a downtown traffic light.

Police said Johnny Ray Lightsey, 29, who had been wounded in shootings twice previously, was killed in a hail of gunfire about 1 a.m. Sunday.

"He pulled up at a red light, somebody drove up next to him, pumped six bullets into him and drove away," said homicide investigator Darrell Thompson.

Lightsey, who had been arrested on assault charges after seven persons were stabbed in a scuffle with Bandidos during a chili cook-off in Grand Prairie in April, was dead at the scene.

No arrests had been made late Sunday.

WAYNE BRISTOW TEAM

Fifth Anniversary Celebration

Five years ago the evangelistic team consisting of Wayne Bristow, Jimmy Hodges and Felix Snipes was born. Since that time, Outreach Evangelism, Inc. has grown to involve seven evangelists in the United States and Africa, plus five other staff members at the Lubbock headquarters. The five years that Outreach Evangelism has been in existence represents only a fraction of the organization's 73 plus years of combined experience in crusade evangelism on four continents and in over twenty countries.

Beyond their Fifth Anniversary, the team is challenged by a 1979 schedule which includes 22 crusades in twelve states. Eight of these will be area-wide campaigns involving large numbers of evangelical churches. 1980 will be highlighted by eleven major crusades in India and a continuing turn toward area-wide campaigns in the United States. In addition, the team's Associate Evangelists will minister on an equally wide-range geographical basis in America, India and Africa.

Snyder Man Drowns At Lake Sweetwater

A-J Correspondent SWEETWATER — A 23-year-old Snyder man, who had been swimming on an inner tube at Lake Sweetwater, drowned Sunday evening at the Nolan County recreational area, situated five miles southeast of Sweetwater.

Leslie Charles McDonald was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace C.F. Rose.

McDonald had been swimming on the inner tube with Larry McElrath, also of Snyder. McElrath told Nolan County authorities that his companion had fallen off the tube and that he had jumped in to find him but had no luck. He then notified authorities of the mishap, which occurred about 6:10 p.m.

Nolan County authorities dragged the area for about an hour and a half before recovering McDonald's body.

The incident was the first drowning at Lake Sweetwater this summer, Dale Pearce, Nolan County game warden, said.

Services for McDonald are pending with the Dorsey-Keatts Funeral Home in Hillsboro.

ark, where he was reared and lived on a ranch. He attended school in Newark and Rome.

In 1910, Burrows moved to Petersburg, living there until 1915 when he moved to Plainview.

At that time he was employed by Gilbert Transfer Co., driving a horse-drawn bus and horse.

After deciding to become a bookkeeper, he attended night school.

His first bookkeeping job was with Knight Auto and Machine Shop and then he worked for McMillan Drug.

During the depression years banks in Plainview folded one by one and McMillan became the town banker, thus giving Burrows his first banking experience.

He was asked to be a teller in 1934 when the Hale County State Bank was organized, and he transferred to the Plainview National bank, now City National Bank, in 1937.

Burrows returned to the Hale County State Bank in 1945 as vice president and a member of the board of directors.

He retired in 1967 but remained as an advisory member to the board.

Burrows was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife, Jewell; a daughter, Mrs. Aubrey Harmel of Miami, Okla.; a son, Kenneth E. Thompson of Plainview; three brothers, Hugh and Henry, both of Tipton Okla., and Kenneth of Kermit; a sister, Mrs. Bertha Guillett of Tipton; and five grandchildren.

Two Arrested In Post Shooting

POST (Special) — Authorities here have two of three suspects wanted for questioning in the fatal shooting of a Slaton man.

The suspects were arrested late Sunday. The second of Crosbyton. One is 30 and the second is believed to be 23 to 25 years old.

The incident, which occurred about 12:10 a.m. Sunday behind the Blue Bird Inn here, left Vincent Flores, 23, dead.

Garza County Sheriff Jim Pippin said two suspects, along with a 16-year-old boy, were arrested in a grove of trees about a dozen miles south of Crosbyton. The Crosby County Sheriff's Department and DPS troopers aided in making the arrest, Pippin said.

It was unclear whether the third suspect in the killing was also in the clump of trees when officers arrived. "A highway patrolman said he thought he saw one of the suspects get away, but I didn't see him," Pippin said.

All three of those arrested, Pippin said, are illegal aliens from Mexico.

Witness statements led officers to the suspects, Pippin said.

Another man wanted in connection with the shooting is the brother of the 30-year-old, Pippin said.

zazz-rock, computer science, commercial art and watercolor painting. Even courses that have been offered in Lubbock all along — but are being moved to or consolidated at Dunbar-Struggs — will be greatly improved, officials said. For instance, the school district's only electronics course and student radio station (KOHM-FM) are being relocated from barracks at Monterey to a wing of the Struggs campus. "Students will have ample space and the most sophisticated equipment to work with," Brown said. Another example is the Distributive Education program (DE), which had been offered at Monterey, Coronado and Dunbar. By combining all DE students of those three schools at Dunbar-Struggs, "the program will definitely be stronger," said vice principal Mike Payton. With more students come "multi-teacher departments and greater flexibility," said Olan Rice, the district's vocational director. He said courses like DE, cooperative health education, industrial cooperative training and home economics cooperative education each span broad skill areas. By consolidating students and faculty at Dunbar-Struggs, teachers in each program will be able to specialize, he said. "Students will get better attention because teachers will be able to teach to their strengths," Rice said.

Early Classes Available Dunbar-Struggs also is unique in its concept as a "metropolitan" high school. Students can opt for early-morning (7:30 a.m.) classes and early-afternoon dismissal. They can attend Dunbar-Struggs fulltime, for all their courses, or part-time, for just one or two courses — and yet still have the choice of graduating with their "home" high school. Dunbar-Struggs students also will experience "an extra sense of self-responsibility," Brown said. Many will be shuttling between the Dunbar and Struggs facilities, as well as driving or taking a bus from their home school to the eastside complex, he said.

"There'll be a certain period of adjustment...I feel most people are looking at how many problems we're going to have. To me, it's how many opportunities," Brown added.

Payton said enrollment has picked up in recent weeks. Transfers for vocational programs alone have now topped 300, and the number of part-time students is up to 45 — which will bring Dunbar-Struggs very close to its goal of 860 pupils. "I see things taking shape," Payton said. "Every student I've talked to has a positive attitude about the coming year. It's rubbing off on all of us."

Student Spirit High That attitude, added principal Roberts, is better than in 1970. "Spirit is high among students. They're enthusiastic, they want to be here." Students transferring in say the move to Dunbar-Struggs has advantages and disadvantages — but the former outweighs the latter. "The sad part is we're leaving our friends," said Derenda Key, a Monterey senior transferring to Dunbar-Struggs for cooperative health education. "But we'll make new friends here." "We've got to give it a chance. It's the only way we'll find out whether this plan works." — JEFF SOUTH

F-4 Phantom Jet Crashes In Utah

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (AP) — An F4 Phantom Jet from Hill Air Force Base crashed Monday night between Park Valley and Rossette in northwestern Utah, a base spokesman said.

The fate of the two occupants, who were not immediately identified, was not known, according to an early report from spokesman Bob Bowman. Two helicopters were sent from the base to search for the pilot and weapons systems officer, Bowman said. The plane was presumed to be on a low-level navigation mission when it crashed at 6:30 p.m., he said.

Kennedy Fires Health Care Measure Blast

whose name was changed from the National Governors' Conference last year. When Carter outlined his ideas, he did not specify the indicators to be used, but he said any national health care plan should be phased in gradually, with the introduction of each new phase dependent on the general economic climate. In a news conference July 28, Kennedy called the qualifications "built-in self-destruct buttons" and accused Carter of a "failure of leadership." In asking the governors for support Monday, he said "this is a fundamental question that he has to deal with."

Carter has said the public would not accept an inflationary health plan, but Kennedy said "the issue before the American people is not can we afford national health insurance — it can we afford not to have it." Kennedy said soaring health costs are beginning to reach middle-income citizens and could set off an insurrection to rival or surpass the current taxpayers' revolt.

"My friends, I know as you know that the fundamental issue on the minds of governors and people all over this country is one basic issue and that is Proposition 13," he said. Proposition 13 was the ballot initiative in which California voters ordered a property tax rollback last June. Taxpayers groups in many other states also are campaigning against high taxes and expensive government.

"I would say if there is one example of government out of control, it is in the health care area," Kennedy said. "If there's one example of our inflated costs with less services, it's in the health area." In a prepared text released before his speech, Kennedy had predicted that failure of health care in this country could become "a disaster which will destroy federal and state budgets."

Revolt Threat Paralyzes Business In Nicaragua

in the capital had their shelves picked clean as thousands stocked up with food. "What you see is all we have left," said Alicia Aguado, cashier in a small market on the southern outskirts of Managua. "We got milk deliveries this morning but all the other distributors have joined the strike. The boss is waiting to see what happens before he decides whether to close." The woman said a caller had said the store would be bombed if it didn't close. Leaflets signed by the Sandinistas were circled in Managua, instructing residents to stock up on food and medicine and to leave their doors open to anyone seeking refuge from the National Guard.

Managuans huddled around radios trying to get news of the strike but little was available. Most radio stations broadcast programs calling on residents to join in the protest.

Heavy gunfire was reported in Matagalpa, 105 miles north of Managua, and there were widespread but unconfirmed reports that troops had been flown in to quell the disorder. A man at the central morgue in Managua said two bodies had been flown in from Matagalpa, but he refused to give any more information.

The Somoceros-owned newspaper Novedades showed pictures of three mangled bodies on the front page and identified them as peasants who had been killed by Sandinista guerrillas.

had thronged in this many people," said a spokesman for Shell, which pulled 300 men out of western Gulf locations. "It's a judgment matter. Our philosophy is, if there's any doubt do it." A spokesman for Exxon said eight drilling rigs were evacuated of about 420 men. Chevron pulled its people off three rigs and said it was a precautionary move forced by the fact that the rigs were at that stage of operation where a shutdown would require 12 hours or more instead of two or three.

Area Sections Drenched Across the South Plains, heavy thunderstorms late Monday popped up in portions of Terry, Cochran, Gaines and Yoakum Counties, but Lubbock and vicinity remained parched for another day.

The National Weather Service, however, is predicting a 30 percent chance of showers for the Lubbock area today and a 20 percent chance of rain for tonight. Temperatures will be cooler today because of northeasterly winds, which followed the passage of a weak cold front through the area Monday. Highs today will be in the upper 70s, with the low tonight near 60.

The northeasterly winds will be blowing at 10 to 15 mph today. Heaviest shower activity Monday was reported in Terry County, west and northwest of Brownfield; in Yoakum County to the northeast of Plains; and on the New Mexico state line in southwestern Cochran County.

The thunderstorms were spotty, with one report indicating one and a half inches of rain south of Plains and a trace of precipitation on the northern edge of the city. Skywatchers in Seminole reported marble-sized hail with the shower activity while an observer in Seagraves said they had some small hail and heavy thunder and lightning accompanying the storms.

Andrews received about half an inch of moisture, and Denver City just over an inch from the scattered showers. A NWS spokesman attributed the spotty thunderstorms to easterly surface winds working with an upper level trough, which stretched from Minnesota into Eastern New Mexico. The lower pressure and cooler temperatures associated with the upper level disturbance decreased stability causing the storms, he said.

Board Approves Casino's Plans

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Atlantic City Planning Board on Monday gave final approval to plans by the owner of the Las Vegas casino Caesars Palace to expand the present Howard Johnson's Regency Motor Hotel here into a 525-room casino hotel.

The decline in enrollment projected by public-school officials may be too conservative, according to reports from local private schools. Most private schools in Lubbock are experiencing record enrollments.

Harley Tefertiller, new superintendent of Lubbock Christian Schools, said enrollment there is up about 75 students, to 700-725. Dr. Gonzalo Cartagena, administrator of Christ The King School, said his school's enrollment is about 500 students, an increase of approximately 50. All Saints' School will have about 240 students, also up 50 from last year, said principal Betty Snyder.

Jo Moore, administrator and teacher at St. Elizabeth-St. John Neumann Catholic School, said enrollment there has increased from 180 students last year to 215 this year. Cecil Murphy, new principal of Western Hills Baptist Academy, said he is projecting an enrollment for his school of 200 students, compared with about 140 last year.

Dorothy Winfrey, director of Winfrey Private School, which recently moved into new facilities south of Loop 289, said she'll have about 150 students — versus 30-50 last year.

Administrators of private schools here generally said they have been experiencing enrollment increases the past several years, and that it would be a mistake to attribute much of this year's jump as opposition to public-school desegregation or court-ordered busing. "There are a few who say, 'We don't like the busing situation,' but most come to us for religious reasons or because they have a general discontent with the public schools," Tefertiller said.

"Our growth has not been related to busing," Murphy added. "Busing might account for some of the increase, but not the majority of it. Most of our families are interested for one reason — they want a Christian-based education for their children." St. Elizabeth-St. John Neumann, All Saints' School and Christ The King each said they actively have discouraged families trying only to escape public-school desegregation or busing. They said most of their enrollment increases have come from families new to Lubbock. "When we get the slightest hint that their interest is because of busing, we tell them we cannot accept them for that reason," Mrs. Moore said.

Banks Get Motive To Borrow Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government threw reinforcements Monday into its battle to help the U.S. dollar, this time by giving American banks incentives to borrow surplus dollars from overseas.

Even more significant for the long-run future of the dollar, however, will be reports the government will issue Tuesday on the nation's inflation and trade performance in July. The nation's high inflation rate, currently over 9 percent, and the huge trade deficits are considered the major causes of the dollar's steep decline in recent months.

Dollar Up Slightly The dollar rose slightly Monday, compared to last Friday's close, in Tokyo and Zurich, was slightly down in Frankfurt and Paris, and down in Rome and Amsterdam. Trading was subdued.

Trade deficits and other factors have created a pool of more than $500 billion in foreign-held dollars, known officially as "Eurodollars."

To help bring some of these dollars back to the United States, the Federal Reserve Board announced Monday it is removing the requirement that U.S. banks must keep a reserve equal to 4 percent of the amount of money they borrow abroad.

It did not change the reserve requirements for domestic borrowings, which are much higher. The minimum reserve for checking account deposits, for example, is 7 percent.

"The effect of the reserve reduction is intended to encourage member banks to substitute Eurodollar borrowings for domestic borrowings as a source of funds," the board said in a statement.

Improve Dollar's Position It called the action "a further move to improve the international position of the dollar..." Eliminating reserve requirements has the effect of making it less costly for banks to borrow abroad.

If the move is successful, overseas borrowing by U.S. banks will reduce the amount of foreign-held dollars, many of which have been used by speculators to drive down the value of the American currency.

Foreign governments and financial institutions have complained that the flow of dollars outside the United States for trade and other purposes has far outstripped the need for the American currency, making it easy for speculators to drive the dollar value down.

Bank Under Investigation Government sources disclosed Monday that banking authorities have been investigating whether the nation's second largest bank, Citibank of New York, is among the speculators who have been trying to deliberately drive down the value of the dollar for their own profit. But the results so far have been inconclusive, they said.

Removing reserve requirements was the third official action to help the dollar in less than two weeks, after President Carter expressed his "deep concern" over the greenback's plunge to record low levels in the past 18 months.

The Federal Reserve Board previously had increased interest rates to make holding dollars more attractive, and the Treasury Department last week announced an increase in the amount of official gold it sells each month, also to support the dollar.

Help But Not Solution A government analyst, who did not want to be identified, said eliminating the reserve requirement "is one more measure that may help," but as with the other measures won't solve the overall problem.

"I would not expect it to have a major effect," he said. "My guess is the market will be looking at more fundamental things such as inflation and an energy program. I would think progress on those would have a considerably bigger effect than this."

The administration is trying to deal with the so-called fundamental problems, too, but so far without much success.

It is known to be at work on new steps to control inflation, probably including wage and price guidelines for business and labor. Carter cut short his vacation to return to Washington this week to try to steer his long-delayed energy program through Congress.

Currency dealers will be extremely interested in the Labor Department report on consumer price behavior in July. Consumer prices increased 0.9 percent in each of the three previous months, much worse than expected, and the administration is hopeful the gain in July will be somewhat less.

McCroxy Testifies Money From Cullen Went To Son, Wife

FORT WORTH (AP) — The chief prosecution witness in the Cullen Davis case testified Monday that he shuffled $9,500 among himself, his son and his wife and said he didn't know where the money is now.

David McCroxy, who claims the millionaire oilman hired him to set up the deaths of several persons, said Monday morning he gave the money to his son so he could go to college if anything happened to him.

McCroxy tried to recant under cross-examination his earlier admission that he had stolen part of the money from Davis. "I don't feel like I stole anything," he said. "I felt like I was just paying myself...of what I was going through...the anguish and the mental torture."

Son Returned Money Monday afternoon McCroxy said his son, who has not been identified, returned the money to him. He said he then gave $4,500 of it to the FBI, which later returned it.

Next, he gave it to his wife "wherever she is and I don't know where that is." "You don't know where it is or she is?" defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes asked.

"That is correct," McCroxy replied. The testimony came in the fourth day

Natural Gas Confrontation Heating Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — A behind-the-scenes congressional battle over a natural gas pricing compromise intensified Monday following President Carter's decision to cut short his vacation and help drum up votes for the plan.

Both sides scurried for additional votes, with the fate of the deregulation legislation, which the White House is depicting as crucial to Carter's energy plan, apparently in the hands of undecided senators.

There are from 12 to 21 undecideds, depending on who is doing the counting, with neither backers nor foes able at this point to claim a clearcut victory.

Supporters of the measure, calling for the lifting of federal price controls from natural gas in 1985, were optimistic that personal contacts by President Carter might pick up the needed votes to assure passage of the plan.

Carter's original April 1977 energy package called for continued price control on natural gas, although at higher levels than present to encourage exploration for new supplies.

However, when it became clear that measure could not pass Congress because of strong Senate opposition, Carter announced he would accept the deregulation compromise in its place — even though administration officials had previously argued against deregulation as too costly to consumers.

The Senate is expected to take up the controversial legislation the week of Sept. 11. Opponents are expected to promptly move that the measure be rejected in favor of a short bill just giving the president emergency powers to deal with severe natural gas shortages.

This is the key vote on which both sides are now focusing their attention.

of Davis' bond hearing. The industrialist is charged with solicitation of capital murder and possession of a prohibited weapon. He has been in jail since his arrest Aug. 20.

McCroxy's Gambling McCroxy had said earlier that he gambled heavily in Las Vegas and that he stole $5,000 from Davis.

He also said he told practically everyone he saw after the trip to Las Vegas that he had been a heavy winner. He said it was Davis' idea to tell people he had won $20,000.

"When asked why he told everyone about his alleged winnings, McCroxy said, 'I was afraid he (Davis) would check.'"

Haynes also asked if McCroxy had signed a statement regarding his activities in Amarillo, where Davis was acquitted last year on charges of murdering his stepdaughter.

"Have you ever told anyone you endeavored to bribe jurors in Amarillo Texas," Haynes asked.

"No, sir, not in those kinds of words," the witness said.

McCroxy claims the millionaire industrialist paid him to set up the judge in Davis' four-year-old divorce case. An employee of one of Davis' businesses, McCroxy said Davis gave him 15 names of persons he wanted dead. Most were connected with the divorce and the killing of two persons at the palatial Davis mansion in August 1976. Witnesses that fatal night claimed Davis was the killer.

Mail Dispute

workers and the salaries of union members. A possible walkout had been threatened as early as midnight Monday, despite a federal court order prohibiting a work stoppage or slowdown.

Deputy Postmaster General James Conway, who took part in a news conference with Horvitz and union leaders, declined to answer questions.

Union Leaders Pleased However, union leaders clearly were pleased. "We were successful in getting the Postal Service back to the bargaining table," said President J. Joseph Vacca of the National Association of Letter Carriers.

A spokesman for Emmet Andrews, president of the American Postal Workers Union, called the return to negotiations "a surrender by the Postal Service."

The Postal Service for weeks has been developing contingency plans which would include the use of federal troops to help sort and deliver the mails. But Bolger conceded that a strike would cause widespread economic problems, and if prolonged could threaten the future of the Postal Service itself.

President Carter, vacationing in Wyoming, told reporters he has been in touch with Labor Secretary Ray Marshall about the postal dispute, but would not comment further.

Wanted Talks Maintained The unions have maintained that formal contract negotiations must be reopened to avoid a strike, but Bolger on Monday repeated his earlier opposition to such a move. Bolger has said the issue can be resolved through fact-finding and arbitration and doubted that a walkout would take place.

Orderly School Opening Seen

Private School, which recently moved into new facilities south of Loop 289, said she'll have about 150 students — versus 30-50 last year.

Administrators of private schools here generally said they have been experiencing enrollment increases the past several years, and that it would be a mistake to attribute much of this year's jump as opposition to public-school desegregation or court-ordered busing.

"There are a few who say, 'We don't like the busing situation,' but most come to us for religious reasons or because they have a general discontent with the public schools," Tefertiller said.

"Our growth has not been related to busing," Murphy added. "Busing might account for some of the increase, but not the majority of it. Most of our families are interested for one reason — they want a Christian-based education for their children."

Her school and Lubbock Christian started classes Monday. Western Hills begins today. All Saints' School, Christ The King and Winfrey Private School start Sept. 5.

Classes for the Lubbock public school system officially get underway at 7:30 a.m. at the Dunbar-Struggs High School. Dunbar-Struggs is the only school in the city offering such optional early-morning classes for students who want to get out early or take extra courses.

Most schools start classes at 8:20 a.m. Schools will adjust their time schedules to accommodate arrival of bus students, Irons said.

For the first few weeks of the school year, all first-graders — and all kindergarten students who ordinarily are scheduled for full-day sessions — will be dismissed at noon.

Parents of first-graders reassigned for integration purposes should expect to pick up their children at neighborhood schools about three hours early than the regular afternoon times.

Under the integration plan, Dunbar High has been combined with Struggs Junior High as a magnet high school; Struggs students have been dispersed among Atkins, Hutchinson and O.L. Slaton junior highs.

At the elementary level, Southeast has been closed and zoned into Brown, and

Six elementary schools — Guadalupe, Iles, Mahon, Martin, Posey and Wheatley — will send half the minority students in each grade except kindergarten to designated predominantly white schools.

In turn, each predominantly white school in the city will send white students in one or two grades to either Guadalupe, Mahon, Martin, Posey or Wheatley. (Iles is a magnet school, receiving students by voluntary transfer.)

Transfer Schedule Half of the students in a designated grade will be assigned to a sister school for the first semester, and the remainder for the second semester.

Bill Parker, the district's pupil personnel director, said "several" families have opted to exceed those requirements by sending to sister schools children not required for reassignment.

The elementary assignment plan is expected to involve busing about 2,000 students a day — approximately two-thirds of them white. Since the white students will switch at mid term, about 3,200 will experience transportation during the 1978-79 school year.

Painting's Return Depends On Lawyer

NEW YORK (AP) — Officials of the Museum of Modern Art, caretaker of the late Pablo Picasso's masterpiece "Guernica," said Monday that when the museum gives up the painting to Spain it will be only on the recommendation of Picasso's attorney, not that of the U.S. Senate.

So far the Parisian lawyer, Roland Dumas, has been content to let the wall-sized mural remain in New York, waiting for democratic reforms in Spain that he feels meet Picasso's wishes.

When Picasso died five years ago, he left specific instructions that the painting, which recalls the terror bombing of the Basque village of Guernica during the Spanish Civil War, be returned to his homeland only when every trace of dictatorship was gone and a totally democratic regime was established.

Dumas said in April 1977 that those conditions had not been met, although he acknowledged there had been some political progress in Spain since the death of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Since then Dumas has been silent, but the U.S. Senate this year passed a resolution declaring that Spain has taken major steps towards democracy and urging that the masterpiece be returned. The Prado museum in Spain has been making preparations to receive the painting.

"We are all, obviously, assuming that the painting will go back to Spain. It is not in our power or, really, in the hands of the Senate. It's all in the hands of Mr. Dumas," said Richard E. Oldenburg, museum director.

Picasso painted "Guernica" in 1937 at the request of the Spanish Republican Government, which was eventually defeated by Franco with aid from Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy. In that prelude to World War II, the Republic had aid from Russia and from volunteers from other countries.

Picasso was furious at the Nazi bombers' attack on a civilian area, then a shocking new tactic of warfare. He used only black, white and gray to depict abstract figures, including a weeping woman holding her dead child, a terror-stricken horse and a screaming warrior with a broken sword.

CYPRUS VISIT

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS
By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Year	Physical	Emotional	Intellectual
1900-09	P 13, E 1, I 1	P 13, E 1, I 1	P 13, E 1, I 1
1910-19	P 13, E 1, I 1	P 13, E 1, I 1	P 13, E 1, I 1

1930-39	P 13, E 1, I 1	P 13, E 1, I 1	P 13, E 1, I 1
1940-49	P 13, E 1, I 1	P 13, E 1, I 1	P 13, E 1, I 1

1970-79	P 13, E 1, I 1	P 13, E 1, I 1	P 13, E 1, I 1

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

SPAG Ex-Employees Allege Wrongful Firing

Two former employees of the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) Monday sued the organization, claiming their constitutional rights were violated when they were terminated from their jobs.

Filing the suit in U.S. District Court were G.A. Monasch and Russell Montgomery.

Monasch, of 2615 27th St., was described in the petition as a payroll specialist who was in the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program.

Montgomery, of 3209 67th St., was employed by SPAG as a finance officer, the petition says.

Monasch is seeking $136,500 in damages, while Montgomery asks for $25,000. Plaintiffs also ask U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward for injunctive relief.

SPAG executive director Truett Mayes, organization president Glenn W. Thompson, and Henry Heck, a SPAG vice-president, were also named defendants in the suit.

The suit alleges that Mayes, acting without regard for SPAG organizational responsibilities and obligations of the CETA program, terminated plaintiffs' employment April 3 without notice or just cause.

Plaintiffs contend their rights were subsequently violated during a grievance action.

The suit says Thompson appointed Heck chairman of the grievance committee hearing the case, and that Heck ruled at an April 14 hearing that the three-member committee would not hear plaintiffs' evidence.

The committee then voted to uphold Mayes' action, the suit says.

According to the petition, Heck accepted his appointment despite a conflict of interest of a personal sort which would affect his ability to be impartial.

The suit also contends that on April 11, prior to the grievance hearing, Mayes presented information on the case to the SPAG executive committee, including Thompson and Heck, in the absence of the plaintiffs.

Plaintiffs claim the alleged actions denied them due process and equal protection of the law.

Commissioners Award Jail Contract, Receive Hospital Budget

Lubbock County Hospital District Monday turned in its 1979 budget to the county and county commissioners awarded the final contract for construction of the new $3.6 million county jail.

The consolidated hospital district budget, including Emergency Medical Services and other operations, is $22,984,596, while the budget for operation of the hospital alone is $22,128,000.

It will be considered along with the county budget in a September public hearing.

The budget for the hospital alone next year compares with a 1978 projected figure of $17,581,966.

J.C. Rickman, hospital district board chairman, and Ben Robinson, finance committee chairman, made the budget presentation.

They also asked for and received commissioners court approval of district by-laws revised according to accreditation requirements.

Rickman said the board has tentatively estimated a five percent increase in hospital costs for next year.

The final contract for the new $3.6 million Lubbock County jail, already under construction, also was approved.

The low bid for jail kitchen equipment was $53,324 by Custom Craft Equipment Company of El Paso.

Gernsbacher's of Fort Worth bid $63,100 and was the only other bidder for the jail kitchen equipment.

Contracts for the general construction and for electrical and mechanical work and laundry equipment already had been let for the project, which is slated for completion in January, 1980.

The commissioners authorized computer center director Bill McCullough to negotiate with Ite! Corp. on extra memory banks that came unexpectedly with the IBM computer recently installed on the courthouse fourth floor.

The computer has a third more capacity, McCullough said, because the salesman was not aware exactly of what equipment was on the used machine.

Ite! offered to sell the county the extra banks plus maintenance for $15,000, and the county will use it free for two months before deciding whether to keep it.

McCullough told the commissioners the county will need the extra capacity eventually, possibly before the $358,500 system as originally planned is paid for in five years.

The computer should be "up" and running sometime this week, he said.

C.B. Thompson construction company failed to meet the Aug. 10 contract deadline for converting 2,300 square feet of storage space into the data processing department because of delays in receiving materials, he said.

The $98,700 contract should be completed within a few days, McCullough said.

Plans are for the department to take on the property tax rolls and voter registration Oct. 1.

In other business, a $2,500 bid from Terry County for Lubbock County to buy a used asphalt distributor was approved. Terry County was the only bidder.

In a sale of used county equipment, Strong Paving Co. had high bids of $100 for a crusher and compactor, $3,750 for a self-propelled roller and $200 for a 1953

GMC 2-1/2 ton truck; W.C. Weams of Idalou had high bids of $125 for and $135 for two trucks and $215 for a roller; and Smith Diesel Service of Odessa had the high bid of $620 for a fork lift.

Harvest Moon Ahead As Summer Ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — The harvest moon will shine on Americans in September as summer winds to an end and the autumn season gets underway.

Fall begins officially on Sept. 23 at 5:26 a.m. EDT when the sun will cross the Equator, heading south.

A week earlier, though, it'll be time for that bright evening beauty, the harvest moon.

To be technical the harvest moon is the full moon nearest the equinox. At this time the moon provides an extra measure of light in the early evening, useful for farmers struggling to complete the harvest.

King Cepheus and his wife, Cassiopeia, will be the two constellations high in the sky this month. Cepheus will be rather dim, but his wife is much brighter. She is the large "W" in the northern sky.

Turning to the planets, Mercury and Mars will be too close to the sun to be visible.

Venus will be low in the southwest, setting about 1 1/2 hours after sunset.

Owls: No Where To Go But Up

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor
HOUSTON—After an opening, 31-20 win over Idaho, Rice's football season went only one way: Down.

Now, almost a full 12 months later, there's one way to go: Up.

And that's the way new coach Ray Alborn wants to move. He feels the movement just might be coming. However, he's realistic enough to think that, with Iowa State, Texas, Oklahoma and LSU as the first four foes, it's no time to enjoy a day at the beach.

When Alborn took over in the spring after Homer Rice's departure for the Cincinnati Bengals, Alborn set aside Rice's multiple offense with the emphasis on the pass, went back to fundamentals, pumped enthusiasm into the defensive unit and came out this fall with a revitalized unit.

There will be more running the football—although he has not junked the passing with some of the top skilled people in the southwest. There will be fewer offensive formations. There should be power defensive alignments. And, Alborn hopes, there is more confidence on both sides of the line.

Even the coaching personalities are different; or maybe the coaching philosophies are different because of the two men. "Coach Rice is a quieter person," Alborn commented Monday. "I bounce around." And the sandy-haired, blue-eyed Alborn paced the floor as he talked.

"We will run a multiple-I, with motion, but we will not run the triple option (as used by Rice in his offensive scheme). You can't teach the drop-back pass and the triple option at the same time.

"We're not getting away from the passing, not with the skilled people we have. But, we don't plan to drop back and throw 60 times a game. It's quite difficult to teach linemen to pass block all the way down the field to the 10, then clear out for running plays. We just have to try to simplify it for them."

On hand is Randy Hertel, only a sophomore but one who led the Southwest Conference in passing last year, the first time in history a freshman has won such a title. And he appears recovered from summer knee surgery.

And to help him out are a pair of receivers with national recognition.

B SPORTS

Doug Cunningham finished third in the nation in receiving in 1976 before being hurt last year. And David Houser wound up second in the SWC last year. Alborn termed the two as good as any pair in the country.

There is no question in Alborn's mind about the throwing and catching part, only the line's ability to allow Hertel to load his rifle. And, Alborn indicated Monday that the line, under the guidance of coach Ted Unbehagen, "is coming off the ball well."

But, "we have to run the football. In the past, we have been known as a completely passing team, but we have the runningbacks capable of running the ball."

The ones Alborn is using are underclassmen, with Bo Brooron (175) and

Don Henry Getting The Right Number

HOUSTON—The word got around quickly...once it cleared the city limits of Houston.

David Houser, the Owls' MVP last fall, received a call from his brother in Dallas early that Monday morning. "Hey, Dave," the conversation went (a loose recollection), "what's this about Homer Rice leaving?"

"I don't know what you're talking about," replied the Rice receiver. As Houser recalled it Monday, "My brother said he had heard about Coach Rice leaving on his radio. I told him to my knowledge, there wasn't anything to it."

"Then, before I went to class, I got this call from a Dallas sports writer, who said the same thing. He said it was true; that was the first I really knew about it. I might have have said something I shouldn't, because I was in shock."

And, suddenly, two days after the end of spring training's close, Rice pulled up and left for the Cincinnati Bengals and professional football. Rice University, after having Jess Neely around for 27 seasons, would now have its fifth coach in 12 years.

It left the university—and its players—in shock. Houser wasn't alone in this dimension.

RAY ALBORN HAD gotten the word a few hours earlier than Houser, but like the pass catcher, Alborn heard about it from a sports writer, and, yes, he, too, was surprised.

The way he recalls it, he was roused out of bed about 1:30 that Monday morning, to learn from a Houston sports writer about the story that came out about Rice's resignation. From there, the scene changed almost by the minute for Alborn, at that time was an aide on the Owls' staff.

"When I heard it, was I interested?" he asked, in answer to a question. "Well, I got the word about 1:30, at 1:29 and a half I decided I wanted the job. That's why I'm in the profession, to be a head coach. Sure, I wanted it."

Alborn came to work early that morning, and about 9 a.m., he got word he was to be interviewed over at the administration building. About 2 1/2 hours later, he tried out the desk in the head coach's office. Just a few hours later, school officials informed the staff of the promotion, and Alborn went before the team in a meeting to start a new regime.

And, for the first time in history, Rice turned to one of its own for a head football coach. A new era?

ALBORN HAD BEEN defensive coordinator at the time of the change, and, according to Houser, when the players heard about Rice leaving, "We hoped that either Coach Alborn or Ted Unbehagen (a former Tech aide and then on staff here) got it. I think we were all pleased."

The job was Alborn's, but there was no time left to make any adjustments in the spring; all had to come in the fall. There have been some changes, both in approach and in the playbook. Out the window went a complex offensive system outlined in a book bigger than the Houston Yellow Pages. Out went a standoffish attitude. In came a return to fundamentals and a get-with-it approach to the game.

"Coach Alborn is a fiery-type guy," commented defensive back Carlton Derrett. "I feel that if anybody can get us up for a game, he could do it. He brings a lot of enthusiasm to the game."

"The big thing (change) is in attitude," remarked Houser. "He's one you want to play for. You can talk to him."

ALBORN SIMPLIFIED THE offense, put the defensive emphasis on enthusiasm, and turned more to the running game. And he's attempting, at the same time, to lure fans back into the stadium and alumni back into the financial corner. First, he went to work on the players.

"Look, he said Monday, as he addressed a group of sports writers, "I don't want to give you a lot of garbage about our team, how great we are. But, I think we'll be more aggressive. I told the team last spring that if they didn't feel they could play with intensity and work hard, I didn't want them around. We would honor their scholarship, but this fall would not be for the faint-hearted. No one checked out."

"I think I understand Rice University, what makes it tick. There are an awful lot of Rice people. Most of my buddies are engineers, doctors, English professors. These people (Rice graduates) want a program."

"Listen, we've given up 70 points twice (consecutive weeks, 77-0 to LSU, 72-15 to Texas). I didn't sleep all that night after LSU when the people in the stands were hollering for 100 points. We started home, driving, my wife and I, the next morning. We stopped in a cafe and the guy in the next table opened up a paper and there was that big headline with the score."

"I couldn't take it; we got up and walked out and didn't eat a bite."

"I'm interested in 1978; we got to do something this fall out here. I'll worry about '79 next spring."

"This is a great place; there's no reason why it can't be again. We're gonna try to turn some heads this fall."

Plunkett Waived By 49ers

By The Associated Press
Jim Plunkett wasn't injured like a lot of other National Football League quarterbacks last weekend, but he suffered the unkindest cut of all Monday when he was waived by the San Francisco 49ers.

Plunkett, a Heisman Trophy winner and an eight-year veteran quarterback, was waived as the 49ers sought to reach the NFL's 43-man roster limit by a 4 p.m. local deadline.

The NFL roster limit will go back up to 45 players by Sunday as teams can recall two players they previously placed on waivers.

49ers in 1976 in a trade with the New England Patriots, completed just one of his last 18 passes during the exhibition season.

Plunkett and defensive back Bob Jury, an All-American defensive back from the University of Pittsburgh, were among eight players waived Monday by the 49ers. San Francisco also placed veteran wide receiver Gene Washington on the injured waiver list.

The 49ers weren't the only NFL deciding or finding out who their quarterbacks would be for the 1978 season.

June Jones III, a relatively unknown quantity when the NFL started its exhibition season, was named the Falcons' starting quarterback for Atlanta's regular season opener Sunday against the Oilers in Houston. The second-year signal caller from Portland State appeared in Atlanta's final game last season but earned the starting nod this year, directing the team to two preseason victories.

Jones will replace Steve Bartkowski, the Falcons' starting quarterback last season and their No. 1 draft pick in 1975.

Atlanta also cut seven players including five-year veteran quarterback Kim McQuilken and placed defensive tackle Brent Adams on the injured reserve list to reach the 43-man limit.

The Cincinnati Bengals announced that quarterback Ken Anderson will have an operation Tuesday on his injured right hand and will miss at least the first five weeks of the season. John Reeves will assume Anderson's duties.

The Baltimore Colts got some good news and some bad news.

Quarterback Bert Jones, who suffered an incomplete separation of his right shoulder in last Saturday's preseason finale against the Detroit Lions, thinks he will be ready for the Colts opener against the Dallas Cowboys on Monday. The bad news was that running back Joe Washington, acquired in the trade that sent holdout Lydell Mitchell to the San Diego Chargers, informed Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda that he will not be reporting to the team.

Dockery Continues To Shuffle Lineup

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Rex Dockery continues to shuffle his lineup more than the boys in the backroom at Reba's Lounge do their dominos.

"Right now's the time we need to find some things out about who wants to play," the head coach pointed out Monday afternoon.

So with that note, Dockery, who recently moved tight end James Hadnot to full-back, shuffled Jamie Giles (6-0, 250) to the starting noseguard slot, and Curtis Reed (5-11, 240)—the man Giles replaced—over to defensive right tackle.

"After looking at the scrimmages, we felt it was the best move," Dockery said, following a workout session. "Jamie had a good scrimmage."

And is that the end of the shuffling?

"We're going to continue to shuffle people around until we put the best eleven players on the field," the coach emphasized. "People are going to have to do it everyday, or they may lose their place."

So for now, the defensive line reads: left end Jeff McKinney, left tackle David Hill, noseguard Giles, right tackle Reed and right end Olan Tisdale.

"It will stay like that until someone

Borg, Connors Rematch Eeyed

NEW YORK (AP) — When the inaugural matches at the sparkling new National Tennis Center begin tonight, the U.S. Open tennis championships will almost certainly be headed toward a resumption of the year's greatest tennis rivalries — Bjorn Borg vs. Jimmy Connors and Martina Navratilova vs. Chris Evert.

Peculiar things can happen in the course of a two-week tournament; unsung players can come out of nowhere to become contenders. But the something extra these four champions have is the desire to battle each other.

"Long after I'm six feet under, they're going to be talking about this rivalry," Connors said recently of his struggle against Borg, the man who has beaten him in the final of the past two Wimbledon. "I may follow him to the ends of the earth."

Borg has an added incentive: his drive for the first Grand Slam since Rod Laver's of 1969. He already has won the French Open and Wimbledon title this year and is still seeking the U.S. and Australian crowns. He never has won the U.S. — he dropped out midway last year with a shoulder injury, leaving Guillermo Vilas to beat Connors in the final.

Connors' incentive, although he probably would not admit to being anxious, is a little darker. His showing here will say much about his right to consideration as the top man in the game. While he has beaten Borg in eight of the 14 lifetimes meetings, the 22-year-old Swede has beaten the 26-year-old American in five of their last six matches.

"In his head he wants to play me," Borg says of Connors. "He is eager to beat me. In my head, I look forward to playing him. I'm very confident when I play him. I even look forward to playing him here."

On opening night, top-seeded Borg plays South African Bob Hewitt and Tracy Austin, the fifth-seeded woman, meets veteran Francois Durr of France.

Connors' first-round opponent will be American Tom Gullikson at a date to be announced.

Ironically, the setting for the men's championship is somewhat the reverse of last year, when Connors and Borg had injuries and Vilas was the powerhouse. This year Connors and Borg are healthy; it is Vilas who may suffer. He experienced tendinitis in his serving shoulder last week and has had stomach trouble.

Vilas has disappointed this year after his stunning 1977 season in which he won 27 Grand Prix tour events. He has lost to some unlikely opponents this year and never seemed comfortable with a new experimental service motion. He has changed his serve again for the open, eliminating an extra little step toward the baseline and bringing down the height of his toss.

Seeded third, Vilas is scheduled to play Cliff Drysdale in the first round.

He is followed in the seedings, in order, by Americans Vitas Gerulaitis, Eddie Dibbs and Brian Gottfried, Italian Corrado Barazzutti, Mexico's Raul Ramirez, Spaniard Manuel Orantes, Americans Sandy Mayer, Roscoe Tanner and Harold Solomon, Argentina's Jose-Louis Clerc, Poland's Wojtek Fibak and American's John McEnroe and Arthur Ashe.

The women's championship will test Evert's recently waning hunger to win. She has won the Open three years in a row, but lost Wimbledon two years in a row, failing to England's Virginia Wade in the semis in 1977 and Navratilova in the final this year. She played only a small part of the winter tour.

"She's tougher than I am," Evert said of her old friend after Wimbledon. "I have to want it a little more... The desire is there, but the intensity is not the same."

Navratilova took advantage of Evert's absence this winter, dominating it with the way Evert always had. She ridded herself of the near-hysterics and jitters that characterized her earlier big matches and was supremely confident at Wimbledon, but certainly is not satisfied with one major coup.

"My cup is half full," she said recently.

Navratilova and Evert have played World Team Tennis all summer and will probably meet in the WTT championship series between Evert's Los Angeles Strings and Navratilova's Boston Lobsters after the Open.

Each has a first-round bye, as does Wade.

"I think I'm in with a great chance," said the 33-year-old Wade, who won the American championship in the first year of the Open era, 1968.

Wendy Turnbull will be the top player in the first round as she meets Katja Ebbinghaus of West Germany.

They are followed in the seedings, in order, by Australian Dianne Fromholtz, Betty Stove of the Netherlands, Australian Kerry Reid, South African Marise Kruger, Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia, Romanian Virginia Ruzici, Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia and Americans Marita Redondo, JoAnne Russell, Kathy May and 16-year-old Pam Shriver.

Bench Lashes Out

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, aiming rare criticism at Manager Sparky Anderson, feels the slumping Reds need more forceful leadership to snap out of a puzzling tailspin.

Bench suggested Monday that Anderson has become intimidated by the club's high priced players whose productivity has plunged this year.

"Our manager is too low key," said Bench. "This is just one man's opinion, mine, but Sparky has withdrawn from it all."

Bench was quoted as saying in an article by baseball writer Hal McCoy of the Dayton Daily News.

"Intimidated isn't exactly the word... but it's close," Bench said.

Bench's sharp words brought retaliation from Anderson Monday night.

"The only people who can turn it around are the people sitting out in that room," said Anderson, waiving toward the clubhouse prior to Monday night's nationally televised Cincinnati-Pittsburgh game.

Bench said Anderson "is too nice, perhaps in awe of us. This team won't get the World Series for him twice, actually did it for him. It's very difficult to manage a team that has been as successful as ours."

Reds President Dick Wagner was shown the article and first responded by saying: "A manager can't play for his players. But John brings out some objective points."

"I'm not going to comment on his (Bench's) remarks about Sparky because they are good friends."

"But John has played here 11 years and he's seen us go from a growing club at Crosley Field to a pennant winner, to this situation, his message tells quite a story," said Anderson, waiving toward

Royals Pull Out Win In Bottom Of Ninth 3-2

By The Associated Press
Willie Wilson's ninth-inning sacrifice fly to deep right-center scored John Wathan and gave the Kansas City Royals a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox Monday night.

The victory was only the second in six games for the Royals but widened their margin in the American League West to 1½ games over the California Angels, who lost to New York 4-1.

Wathan opened the ninth with a double into the left-field corner, his third hit of the game, and moved to third on Frank White's infield hit to set the stage for Wilson's game-winning fly ball.

Reliever Al Hrabosky, 6-6, picked up the victory after coming in at the top of the ninth and retiring two White Sox batters with a runner in scoring position. The loss went to Chicago starter Ken Kravec, 10-12.

The White Sox grabbed a 2-0 lead in the fifth with a pair of unearned runs off Paul Splittorff. Mike Colbern beat out an infield hit behind second and Thad Bosley's turn moved him to second. Ralph Garr then hit a comebacker to Splittorff, but the Kansas City pitcher threw the ball past first base as the runners moved up. One out later, Chet Lemon drove in both runners with a single.

ORIOLES 7, A's 3
Doug Decinces' two-run homer highlighted a four-run Baltimore eighth inning as the Orioles defeated the Oakland A's 7-3 and extended their winning streak to seven games.

Oakland has lost eight straight and 15 of its last 16 and has lost 11 consecutive decisions to Baltimore extending back to last season.

RANGERS 11, BLUE JAYS 3
Al Oliver, whose error gave Toronto a run in the top of the first inning, singled home two in the bottom half and Toby Harrah homered in the second as the Texas Rangers beat the Blue Jays 11-3.

The Blue Jays took a 1-0 lead when Bob Bailor singled and came home on Al Woods' double to left that was by Oliver. Texas scored three times in the bottom half. Harrah drew a leadoff walk and took third on Bump Wills' single. Kurt Bevacqua lifted a sacrifice fly to left that was dropped by Woods as Harrah scored and Wills took second. Oliver delivered both runners with a bad-hop single past John Mayberry at first.

BREWERS 10, TIGERS 1
Jerry Augustine fired a two-hit batter and Robin Yount smashed a three-run homer as the Milwaukee Brewers routed the Detroit Tigers 10-1.

The only hit off the left-handed Augustine were singles by Ron LeFlore in the fifth inning and Lou Whitaker in the eighth. LeFlore's single extended his hitting streak to 19 games and scored Aurelio Rodriguez, who was hit by a pitch and took second on a walk to Alan Trampell.

BRAVES 4, CUBS 3
Jeff Burroughs' second home run of the game, a two-run blast in the sixth inning, gave Atlanta a 4-3 triumph over the

BIRDCAST FOR A FALCON 3-2

Chicago Cubs and halted at seven games the Braves' longest losing streak of the season.

YANKEES 4, ANGELS 1
Ed Figueroa pitched hitless ball for six innings and combined with Rich Gossage on a three-hitter as the New York Yankees defeated the California Angels 4-1.

RED SOX 10, MARINERS 9
Butch Hobson doubled home two runs to cap a three-run ninth inning and Fred Lynn went 5-for-5 and scored four runs as Boston won a 10-9 slugfest over the Seattle Mariners in a game marred by the beating of Red Sox outfielder Dwight Evans.

Alborn Eyes Better Days For Rice Owls

Vikings Expected To Regain Top Central Spot

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Chicago Bears led a charmed life during the 1977 National Football League season, but it will take more than charms if they are to dethrone the Minnesota Vikings in the NFC Central Division in 1978.

The Bears were blessed with the easiest schedule in the NFL last year based on win-loss percentage, while the Vikings suffered through their worst season since 1972. In addition, Chicago got 1,852 yards rushing from Walter Payton and won six games in a row at the end of the season after being blown out 47-0 by Houston.

"I don't know," admits new coach Neill Armstrong, former defensive coordinator of the Vikings. "Not many coaches inherit a 9-5 team. I feel fortunate and privileged to take over the club, but I also know it will be much tougher this year."

The Bears and the Vikings both finished at 9-5 last season, but Minnesota was awarded its fifth straight divisional crown because it scored more points than the Bears in the two games the teams split.

"It's going to be a dogfight with Chicago again, especially with Neill Armstrong there," says Minnesota coach Bud Grant. But with the 16-game schedule for all teams, the Vikings' superior depth should give them a distinct advantage.

Also, the Bears have a much more difficult slate this season, despite the new formula which supposedly evens out the competition.

"We don't have any area where there has been a complete breakdown," points out Grant. "What that means is that we're building on strengths, not trying to correct a weakness. We're not revamping our entire operation."

Minnesota does have some age problems — on the defensive line, at center, free safety and quarterback — but has taken steps in each of those spots to protect themselves.

The Vikings played two seasons in 1978 — one with quarterback Fran Tarkenton and one without him. The 38-year old signal-caller suffered a broken leg in the ninth game against Cincinnati, the first major injury of his record-setting career.

But Tarkenton appears to be full strength again and says he wants one more shot at winning the Super Bowl. Should he falter along the way, Minnesota has capable backups in Bob Lee and second-year man Tommy Kramer, who is perhaps the best young quarterback in the league.

Although the Vikings are not a high-scoring team, they do have many potent offensive weapons, beginning with versatile Chuck Foreman in the backfield. Foreman rushed for 1,112 yards and caught 38 passes in 1978. He may be joined by Ricky Young, who was obtained in a trade with San Diego for Ed White. Young led the Chargers in rushing for three years and also is an excellent receiver.

Ends Sammy White and Ahmad Rashad, two of the best around, will benefit greatly from the new "no-bump" rule.

Defensively, Minnesota remains strong, although age is a factor on the line, where Jim Marshall is starting his 19th year, Carl Eller his 15th and Alan Page his 12th.

Three of the last four No. 1 draft picks by Minnesota have been defensive linemen, however, with 1978 choice Randy Holloway already pressing for a starting spot and both Mark Mullaney and James White also ready.

Chicago is a young and exciting team to watch, but Dallas proved in the playoffs that if you stop Walter Payton you stop the Bears. Fortunately for Chicago, there may be no one in the Central Division who can do that.

Payton set an NFL record against the Vikings last season with 275 yards rushing and had 10 games of 100 yards or more. The NFL's Most Valuable Player in 1977 is also durable, and at 24 is the type of player around which a team builds its offense.

General Manager Jim Finks has given Payton a fine offensive line, probably the youngest in the league, and tough blocking backs such as Roland Harper and Robin Earl.

Defense is Armstrong's main concern. The Bears ranked 22nd overall in total defense last season, giving up more than 300 yards per game and recording just 26 quarterback sacks.

Tommy Hart has been picked up from San Francisco to beef up the defensive line, and Allan Ellis, Virgil Livers, Gary Fencil and Doug Plank combine to provide a strong secondary.

The rest of the division is weak, but surprising Tampa Bay will probably be the most improved team. The Buccaneers, after a winless 1976 campaign, won their final two games of the 1977 season, and three of four preseason contests this year.

Although the offense managed just 103 points last year, the defense was one of the better units in the NFC, spearheaded by end Lee Roy Selmon.

Tampa has taken some measures to improve the offense, though, acquiring Don Hardeman from Houston and drafting Johnny Davis to team with Ricky Bell and Jimmy DeBose in the backfield.

Tight end Jimmie Giles will help the passing game, which finished dead last in 1977, but coach John McKay must decide between Gary Huff, Mike Boryla and rookie Doug Williams as his starting quarterback.

Injuries plagued Detroit last season, especially on offense, where the line allowed a league-high 54 quarterback sacks. Running back Horace King maced 521 yards rushing and 238 more on 40 passes, but new coach Monte Clark will be seeking more consistency from the entire offense to go with a defense which ranked fifth in the NFC.

Green Bay coach Bart Starr admits that his squad is still a few years away from divisional contention, but offensive tackle Mark Koncar is an example of the good young players Starr is putting together.

Quarterback is still a questionmark, with David Whitehurst battling injury-prone Lynn Dickey for the starting job. The Packers drafted sensational James Lofton to give the team a deep threat at wide receiver.

Ali Training Hard For Bout With Champ

DEER LAKE, Pa. (AP) — Running, punching, talking, playing, praying — it's all part of a day in the life of Muhammad Ali, preparing for his return fight with Leon Spinks in New Orleans Sept. 15.

"I'm 10 percent fighter and 90 percent

Pennsylvania Poconos is a veritable beehive of activity as the 36-year-old Muslim convert prepares for his comeback.

"The champ has never been more serious or more determined," members of his entourage insist.

Ali begins his day at 5 a.m. with a three-mile run over the hilly terrain in semi-darkness.

He returns and crosses a gravel parking area to a small white building with stained-glass windows — the mosque where he practices his Islamic faith. With a copy of the holy Koran nearby, he removes his boots and falls to his knees and prays — facing East. Then he reads from the Koran.

Sometimes Ali's wife, Veronica, accompanies him on the jog over the Pennsylvania countryside.

The former champion's workout, usually held in sweltering heat inside a cramped cabin, consists of punching the heavy and small bags, skipping rope and going through a rigorous session with three sparring partners.

Every move is taped on a recorder for showing in the evening when all the chores are done and the sprawling camp is relaxed.

"Ali already has boxed more than 200 rounds," an aide says. "Before the Spinks fight last February, he didn't box for a month."

It's not all work and no play for the once lowly sign painter's son from Louisville. After a dinner of Kosher beef, vegetables and fruit — no pork — Ali and friends sit around and watch the ex-champ's newly learned card tricks, view home movies (always featuring Ali) and turn on television.

About midnight, a weary Ali dozes off. Tomorrow is another day.

His title was stripped from him then and he went through 3 1/2 years of ring rust before coming back to recapture the crown. Next month he will be seeking to become the first fighter in history to win the heavyweight championship three times.

Morgan Slaps 200th Homer, Reaches Goal

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds second baseman Joe Morgan has reached a lifetime goal in the midst of a baseball season stained by injury.

The two-time Most Valuable Player hit his 200th career home run Sunday, to become the third second baseman in baseball history to reach that figure.

The all-time leader is Rogers Hornsby, who hit 302, followed by Bobby Doerr of the Boston Red Sox with 223.

"For a little kid out of Oakland, it's a thrill," Morgan said. "I mean, if someone had told me then that I was going to hit 200 home runs in the major leagues, I'd have kissed them."

Morgan had to wait 77 days between home run number 199 and number 200. Part of the delay was caused by pulled muscle problems which have forced him to the sidelines periodically throughout the season.

"I've been shooting for 200 homers and 600 stolen bases," Morgan said. "I'd hoped to get both this year. But I haven't been able to steal bases and I didn't expect to have to wait this long for number 200. Now I'll have to shoot for something else, something like 250 and 600."

Going into Tuesday's game, Morgan had a .245 average with nine home runs and 16 stolen bases. He has 570 stolen bases so far in his career.

Morgan notes his home run total is more unique because of his size. "Not bad for a guy who is 5-foot-7 and 150 pounds," Morgan said.

Morgan's homer Sunday was the Reds' only run of the game. "This is the most frustrating time I've gone through since I came here," Morgan said. "I still know how good a team this is. I still know what good players we are. When we get hitting — we don't get any pitching. When we get pitching — we don't hit. I know we're not scoring any runs now, but we're not winning any 1-0 games either."

The Reds second baseman is optimistic.

"It'll be a new day tomorrow," he said. "Right now, it's just a matter of ever-baseball has captured the interest of many Twin Citizens.

"There are thousands of fans, both young and old, who have had the dream of Moe Hill," one fan wrote in a letter to Griffith. "Let him be a symbol of patience and dedication. Let me and thousands of other fans see the great American dream fulfilled."

A local advertising agency might sponsor a Moe Hill Day at Metropolitan Stadium. The Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce is considering presenting Hill with their Outstanding Achievement Award.

"If it's humanly possible I'd like to bring him up," said Griffith. "Not just for good will, because I hope I do that every day, but because he's been with our organization for eight years."

"I'll talk with Gene Mauch (Twins manager) at the end of this week. We'd have to clear out someone from our roster and Gene may want to take a look at some people."

"It's a case of whether or not the move is feasible," said Mauch. "And I think it would be presumptuous on my part to say what I would or wouldn't do with him in a game. I know the guy can hit; people have told me that."

And all it would take is one at bat in the major leagues to make Moe Hill — The Man of La Mancha at Wisconsin Rapids — happy.

Wepner To Defend New Jersey Crown

TOTOWA, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey heavyweight champion Chuck Wepner signed Monday to defend his title for the first time in four years, against Scott Frank on Sept. 26 at Ice World Arena.

Wepner, 39, has not put his title on the line since he stopped Randy Newman on cuts in the sixth round of a 1974 bout at Madison Square Garden.

Wepner, of Bayonne, owns a 38-13-2 record, including a 15-round unanimous decision defeat to then heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali in 1975.

Frank, 20, of Oakland, N.J., is a veteran of just four professional fights. He had an outstanding amateur career, capturing the New Jersey Golden Gloves and Amateur Athletic Union heavyweight title before turning pro in May. He is undefeated with three knockouts and a decision.

The fight, under the direction of Dan Duva of Main Events promotions, is scheduled for 12 rounds.

"I think Scott is ready for this fight. Leon Spinks only had seven fights before fighting for the championship," said Frank's manager Lou Duva, who was the Main Events promoter until going into managing full-time.

"I brought him through the amateur ranks and taken him all over the world," Duva said. "It's going to be one hell of a fight. We're going into training first for the New Jersey title then a world championship."

Wepner, at 6-foot-5, 225 pounds, has a considerable size advantage over the 6-2, 208 pound Frank.

Chiefs Hope For Breaks To Turn Season Around

CROSBYTON — "What's it going to take to turn things around here?" Crosbyton coach Tommy Davis asked himself. "Experience," he answered. "We've got to get some kids in here with some playing time. That's what has hurt us in the past."

Davis can cite a few times when "lack of experience cost us a football game."

"We lost games last year that could have gone either way," he said. "We lost to Matador 22-18 in the closing minutes, to New Deal 16-14 and Dimmitt 12-9 after we lost the ball, he pointed out.

"It was a rough year."

This year, however, the Chiefs have the experience that it will take challenge for the District 4-A title.

"We've got eight offensive and seven defensive starters coming back," Davis said. "And that the most since I've been here."

Davis is in his second year at the helm of the Crosbyton program, finishing 3-7 last year.

Along with the return of the majority of last year's starters, Davis said he also has a few more things on his side this year.

"The community is really behind us and giving us a lot of support," he said.

"In a small town, that's really important. It has been awhile since they've won a district championship over here, too."

Davis continued: "They know we have the potential to have a fine team. And they are excited, too."

Crosbyton has not won a loop title outright since 1968. However, it did manage a tri-crown in 1971.

Davis said he is expecting "outstanding" seasons from runningback Kelly Ferre (5-10, 170), guard Terry Gilbreath (5-10, 180), quarterback Chad Davis (5-9, 145) and LaVance Coppage (5-10, 170).

"We've really got the nucleus of a good team," Davis said. "Now all we have to do is put things together and hope for a few breaks to go our way."

Of the group Davis singled out, Coppage is perhaps the fastest, recording a 9.9 time in the 100-yard dash as a sophomore. Ferre, an honorable mention all-district performer last year, has a 10.2 clocking under his belt.

"We've got the speed all right," Davis said. "If we stay healthy back there, then we'll be in good shape."

"We are looking forward to this season," he concluded. "We have a lot of enthusiasm, but perhaps our biggest plus is that we're ready to come out and get after it."

Clovis Eyes Another Title

CLOVIS, N.M. — Dynasty isn't the word that is brought up too many times—especially when talking about a high school football team.

But in one case—namely the Clovis Wildcats—an exception could be made.

Clovis, the New Mexico AAAA state champions last year and winners of the District 4-AAAA title for the past five years, looks even stronger than ever. And that pleases first-year head coach Eric Roanhaus.

"We lost some people off last year's team," Roanhaus said. "But I think we've still got some around that can take up the slack." I think we've got the potential to play good football this year. A state championship? We like to think so.

Roanhaus, the head junior varsity coach for five years, took over the reins at Clovis High last February when Danny Goode became head coach at Eastern New Mexico University.

Roanhaus said he couldn't have stepped into a better situation.

"There are some good athletes left here," Roanhaus said. "And I know the personal very well. It wasn't like I had to come in and start from scratch. About all I did was change desks."

The Wildcats are definitely loaded this year.

Starting at quarterback is Layne Walker, a 6-3, 190-pounder, who Roanhaus said has already attracted more than a few college scouts.

"It will be hard to find anyone that can throw and play any better than Layne," Roanhaus said. "He has the size and the quickness to be as good as he wants to be."

Walker will be joined in the backfield by all-state running back Gus Williams. However, it could be awhile before Williams goes full speed. He suffered a broken arm earlier in the summer.

Sammy Martinez, all 6-2, 240-pounds of him will anchor the offensive and defensive lines. He will be joined by Joe Jones, an all-district defensive tackle who stands 6 feet and weighs in at 240 pounds.

Ervin Beachman, one of the smaller players on the team at 5-9, 150 pounds, returns at defensive halfback, a position the 4.5 sprinter made all-state.

"We've got the speed and size both," Roanhaus said. "That's awful important."

But there is also something else Clovis has on its side—tradition.

"People know when we line up that Clovis is ready to play football," said Roanhaus. "We got that winning tradition on our side. And that can win some football games for you."

The first thing Roanhaus did after taking over as head coach was change offenses. This year, the Cats will operate out of the veer, and not the wishbone.

"I left it (the veer) was the best thing we could run," explained Roanhaus. "And that's what I wanted to do."

He's the coach.

Klondike Team Blessed With Size, Experience

By JIM FERGUSON
 Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
KLONDIKE—When Mickey Finley talks about the Klondike Cougars, he smiles a lot. And for a good reason too.

"We are tremendously big for a Class B school," Finley said. "We have got some size all right."

Then he smiled even bigger than before.

back," he continued. "That's something we haven't had a lot of since I've been here."

"This time he went as far as to chuckle. "We are ready for this season to start," he said. "We are really excited about our prospects."

But first of all, Finley wanted to talk about the Cougs' size on the offensive line.

"It is going to be hard to find anyone that is as big as we are," he explained. "No matter what class it is, we're big."

Leading the pack is Ricky Carstensen, a 6-1, 230 pound sophomore. He is joined by James Martin, no tyke at 6-2, 225. Also in the trench for Klondike will be Randy Holcomb, a 6-2, 215-pounder.

"They (the linemen) have really worked hard during the off season," Finley pointed out. "They reported in good shape, now all we have to do is work on their blocking technique. I think, they are going to be able to push some people out of the way, this year."

When the line does open the holes, Finley says, he has some backs who will be able to scoot through the openings without any trouble.

"You just can't stop at our line," he said. "Our backfield will be able to carry its own too. It is really nice to look back there and see the kind of athletes we have."

A trace of a smile cracked his lips.

Leading the charge is running back Mike Holcomb. Last year, the 200-pounder picked up 650 yards. This time around, though, Finley is expecting a 1,000-yard season.

"He is capable of it," Finley said. "He should be a good one."

Joining Holcomb in the backfield are runningback Tommy Hayes and quarterback David Cox. Cox, a transfer student, did not play with the team during games, but still worked out on his own.

This season, Finley said the Cougs will run out of the I-formation, utilizing their speed and size.

"We plan on mixing things up quite a bit," Finley said. "With our personal that shouldn't be hard. We would like to run most of the time, though. But we'll throw when we have to."

Finley expects a strong challenge from Wilson, New Home and Meadow, for the district crown. And he added every team in the loop will have to be contended with.

"We are in an extremely tough Class B district," he said. "You really can't count anyone out."

Including the Klondike Cougars?
 "We think we'll be in there," he said.

Salinas' Army Ready For Play

PORTALES, N.M. — The thermometer read about 95, but that's not the reason Army Salinas is already looking ahead to November.

He has another reason. And the cooler weather has nothing to do with it.

"That's when the playoffs start," Salinas, the head coach of the Portales Rams, said. "And that's what we are aiming for. We like to think that we can make it all the way to state this year."

Salinas has some good reasons to be optimistic, too.

"In the six years that I've been here," Salinas said, "this is the best we've ever looked at this time of year. We have the enthusiasm that it takes to be a real winner."

Salinas pointed to the fact that the Rams have been working out, morning and evening, in extremely hot weather.

"There's been times when it's been 102 degrees out here," Salinas said. "And not once have I heard one of our players complain about it. They accept it. They know they have to put out a little extra now, so it won't be as hard later in the year."

Last year the Rams made it all the way to the quarterfinals before being knocked off the title-chase ladder. Salinas feels the Rams will "at least make it that far (the quarterfinals). At least."

David Herrera, an all-state kicker last year, returns to lead the Ram defense. The 5-11, 200-pounder will anchor the defense from his end position.

"I've never seen anyone like him," Salinas said about Herrera. "He is never out of position. And he will hit you every-time. He is an awesome hitter."

Herrera also gives the Rams an extra dimension with his kicking ability. Anytime Portales moves with their own 45-yard line, Herrera is within field goal range.

Compliment Herrera are teammates Paul Hatch, Rod Bonham (6-0, 230) and Steve Gares (5-10, 170). At 230 pounds, Bonham could be one of the biggest fullbacks in New Mexico.

"Our backs really bring out the best in each other," Salinas said. "Hatch and Gares are both good athletes who are extremely quick. Bonham will be able to pick up the tough yards up the middle."

The Rams will operate out of a multiple offense. And Salinas said that will help quite a bit.

"We are able to catch some teams a little off balance with our offense," Salinas said. "With our backs, we are able to do a lot of different things."

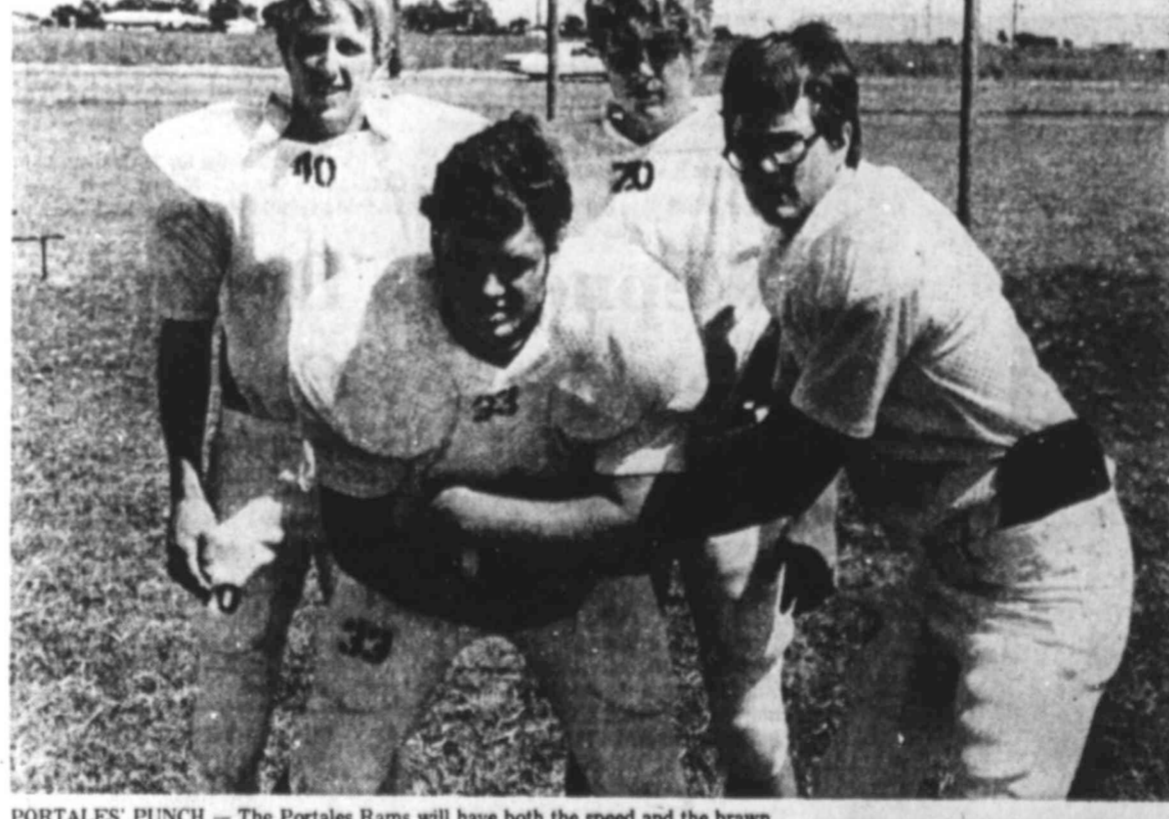

But mostly, Salinas said, the Rams will run.

Portales will open the season against highly regarded Muleshoe, a Texas team picked to finish high in the state rankings. The Rams will turn around the next week and head to Roswell for a tussle with Goddard, also a toughie.
