Canadian College Claims Ownership Of Colum

NEW YORK (AP) — Can a tiny Canadian liberal arts college solve it cial problems by swallowing Columbia University whole?

John Godfrey seems to think so.

Following an interpretation of history that harkens to "The Mouse that Roared," Godfrey says Kings College in Halifax, Nova Scotia, is the rightful owner of Columbia's Morningside Heights campus and its land in the Wall-Street area and Rockefeller Center.

Godfrey, who is president of Kings, wants it. All of it.
"Columbia is an illegitimate fragment — it has no right to exist," he said.
To back his claim, Godfrey cites the history of Columbia, starting in 1754, when King George II granted the university a charter under the name Kings

In the 1760s, Godfrey said, the college's endowment grew from money solicited in England on the understanding that Kings would remain an Anglican institution, headed by Anglicans.

students showed up for classes

The college was re-established in Nova Scotia, while the old Wall Street campus—itself a gift to the college from Trinity Church, an Anglican institution—became Columbia in 1787. In 1802, George III transferred the charter from Manhattan to Nova Scotia.

Manhattan to Nova Scotia.

The two institutions went their separate ways. Columbia grew to a university of 17,500 students and 4,000 faculty members, with an annual budget of $248 million and an endowment of $460 million.

Kings now has 360 students and 15 to 20 faculty members, with an annual budget of $1 million and an endowment of $3 million.

Godfrey says Kings College is the legitimate owner of the land because "We've kept the faith, baby," remaining Anglican while Columbia went secular.

Russians Criticize Summit

A-J News Services
The Soviet Union accused the United States today of trying to scuttle a Geneva peace conference and aggravate tensions in the Middle East by holding a U.S.-Israeli-Egyptian summit at Camp David, Md., next month.

The official Soviet news agency Tass called the meeting "a new point" in the "unprincipled and utterly deadlocked policy" of negotiating a separate Egyptian-Israel peace deal.

"This settlement game, aimed at strengthening the position of American imperialism in the Middle East, relying on Israel and the reactionary forces of the Arab east, has nothing in common with a genuine and just settlement of the Middle East conflict..

"The unceasing sabotage of the Geneva peace conference, the forum for reaching such a settlement, and the course of sepa-rate deals can but lead to another sharp aggravation of tension in the Middle East with all consequences flowing from this," Tass said.

The Soviets are stepping up their criticism of American incentives in the Mideast and have come down particularly hard on Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's current Mideast mission.

President Carter met with Vance for one hour today and afterwards the secre-

The Soviet Union and the United States are permanent members of the Geneva peace conference which has been postponed indefinitely because of the difficul-ty of getting all sides to attend.

The news agency said Sadat will be forced to continue making concessions to Israel since Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government "continues taking an irreconcilable stand on such key problems of a settlement as the withdrawal of the troops from the occupied territories and the setting up of an independent Palestinian state.

"In other words, Washington once again pushed Egypt to the signing of a separate peace with Israel on terms dictated by Tel Aviv," Tass claimed.

Cairo's only hope, Tass suggested, is for the United States to exert pressure on Israel at the summit while at the same "advancing some settlement plans of its

Railroad Warnings Remain In Limbo

Avalanche-Journal Staff Efforts to require gates at Lubbock's more dangerous railroad crossings remained sidetracked today as city administrators and railway officials attempt to assess the costs involved and who pays

Cost of the gates could run as high as $25,000 at each intersection. "If it's a matter of safety and the cross-ment provided encouragement to grocery shoppers today with a report showing that wholesale food prices decreased in July for the first time in 10 months.

But while food prices declined 0.3 percent from June, prices of other products continued to rise.

Overall, wholesale prices rose 0.5 percent, the smallest increase in five

Consumers usually can expect to see changes in wholesale prices reflected at the store checkout counter within a few months.

The decline in wholesale food prices followed increases of L8 percent, 0.5 percent and 1.1 percent in the previous three months. It was the first time the prices have gone down since September 1977, when they declined 0.1 percent.

Beef prices, which climbed steadily during the winter and spring, began to drop in July as more cattle became available, the Labor Department said.

able, the Labor Department said.

Prices for poultry increased in July, but at a slower rate than in June, the department said. Prices declined for rice, coffee and vegetable oil products.

On the other hand, prices accelerated for fruit, vegetables, fish, flour mixes and prices went up sharply for passenger cars, home appliances, furniture, jewelry and health products.

The government report measures the prices of finished goods, which are products ready to be sold to consumers. The prices do not reflect the markup that retailers take before offering the goods for sale to consumers

At earlier stages of production, price increases also appear to be slowing

Prices of crude goods, such as raw farm products, iron ore, crude oil and natural gas, were down 0.6 percent in July.

Lower prices for farm products ac-counted for all of this decline, dropping 2.5 percent.

Prices of products halfway through the processing stage, such as steel, lumber, flour and motor vehicle parts, rose 0.5 percent, slightly below average for this

The Producer Price Index for finished goods, the leading measure of wholesale prices, stood at 195.9 in July. This means that a product costing $100 in the base period of 1967 cost $195.90 last month.

The Labor Department switched this year from its Wholesale Price Index to the new producer index, which it says is a better measure of future retail price changes. Officials said the old wholesale index often measured price increases more than once in various production stages, thus exaggerating the actual changes in prices.

Labor Raps House Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp of the nation's major federal jobs and ing program by the House is being demned by labor leaders as an elever vendetta against the poor.

And more cuts are envisoned before the House finishes work on a four-year $11 billion extension of the act. Final ac tion probably will not come until Friday

"I think there is a mood by the Ho to cut back on programs for the poor and lower-middle class," said AFL-CIO lobbyist Kenneth Young.

"The members are running scared. They think the more conservative they vote, the better off they are back home,"

Evelyn DuBrow, a lobbyist for the In-ternational Ladies Garment Workers Unternational Ladies Garment Workers Union, said many members of Congress be-lieve unemployment is down and infla-tion is up, reducing the need for CETA job training and public service job pro-grams for the poor.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young called the cuts "insensitive and irresponsible." Young, who had led a delegation from the U.S. Conference of Mayors to lobby for the CETA bill this week, said that "trimming 100,000 jobs from the pro-gram is false medicine for Proposition 13

The House voted a $10,000 wage ceiling for most CETA jobs, although the maximum would be $12,000 in high-cost areas. Young predicted that ceiling would "cause havoc in employment practices in city halls across the country."

Current law says the average salaries in most CETA projects must not exceed $10,000, although there is now no lid on individual salaries. That has led many big cities to supplement federal funds with their own. The average CETA salary nationally is now $7,100. tionally is now $7,100.

Almost 400 Women Ready To Board Navy Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nearly 400 Nawomen will form a small wave of the ture this fall when they begin boarding essels as full-fledged crew members. Except for nurses on hospital ships in past wars, these 16 officers and 375 enlisted women will be the first to serve on oceangoing Navy ships. Others will fol-low later.

Recent federal court and congressional action convinced senior Navy officials they can go ahead with their plans in September or October. This will mark another important stage in the nearly 10-yearold evolution of women's role in the armed services, despite lingering resist-long-term Women at Sea program will be measured and careful, Navy officials

The first group, which has been in training for months, will crew a destroyer tender, a submarine tender, two technical ships and a submarine rescue ves-

The current plan is to assign women slowly to 49 non-combat ships - about 10 percent of the Navy's total fleet. Fulltime service by women aboard fighting ships is not now planned.

The present target calls for 5,120 enlisted women and 210 officers to be at sea by 1984. Navy officials said the program likely will be expanded if it works,

Since 1970, the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines all have opened most of their military specialties to women, except for strictly combat assignments. All are actively recruiting more women. Navy women have been concentrated chiefy in clerical and medical assignments.

Pentagon officials - convinced that women will be increasingly essential as the young male population declines are planning to more than double the present total of about 95,000 enlisted women within five years. That goal, over 200,000 women, would represent about 10 percent of the entire U.S. armed forces of roughly 2 million

Present goals could be raised, but defense officials feel legal restrictions on the Navy and Air Force must be overcome if current growth objectives are to be worthwhile.

The Army is under no congressional curbs on where women soldiers may serve and is credited with making the most extensive role changes so far.

Recently, there have been key moves was brought by six Navy women. toward ditching limitations on Navy and Air Force authority to use women - the Navy at sea and the Air Force in combat

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, on July 27, ruled against a 30-year-old law that says women may serve only on hospital ships and transports, none of which are in active service.

Since then, Congress has virtually completed passage of legislation, which Navy lawyers say will square with the Sirica decision.

The legislation would permit assigning women full-time to noncombat ships and for limited periods on fighting ships in peacetime.

The Navy proposed this legislation last winter. Its officials insist their bill was not prompted by the court case, which Anticipating congressional action, Navy officials said they have been training selected enlisted women in seagoing procedures, firefighting, damage control and other jobs.

The first five ships were picked be-cause they were the easiest and cost the least to modify to accommodate women, officials said. The total cost of altering 49 ships to accept women crew members will be about $10.3 million over five years, they said.

Speed Test Deemed 'Rigged'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) - It took three days and nearly 900 gallons of No. 2 diesel fuel, but the war is over and both sides claim they won and that the other side cheated.

The results from the U.S. Department of Transportation's "Double Nickel Challenge" at the Transportation Research Center showed that 18-wheel tractortrailer rigs get between 15 and 20 percent better mileage at 55 mph than at any higher speed.

You'll never convince me the whole thing wasn't rigged," said Michael Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association, and probably the country's leading critic of the 55-mph speed limit.

"There were very few surprises," said Bert Grayson, a U.S. DOT consultant who coordinated the tests. "I think the independent owner-operators are far more suprised than the DOT."

There were only five "surprises" among the 33 rigs that circled the 7.5mile test track at different speeds over the three days. The five truckers got up to 9 percent better mileage above 60 mph than at 55 mph.

Three of them cheated, Grayson charged, by driving their fully-loaded rigs in a manner totally unlike they would in a regular driving situation," using lower gears and more fuel during their six laps "I suppose that one day the weight of

"To assume a truck's fuel mileage can be determined this way is as scientific as determining a jet engine's potential fuel consumption by mounting it on a test rack and running it at a constant speed, with no provision for load factors, altitude or atmosphere," he said.

Each of their engines was finely tuned and their brakes, lights and transmissions adjusted for free by factory mechanics before their runs.

The truckers also went home with three T-shirts, seven hats, a DOT certificate of their participation, a belt buckle, a clock radio, a cordless power drill and a wrist watch.

The first thing I did was thumb through it to see if he'd written about me. He hadn't. There goes my opportunity to either sue him for libel or become famous in Literature, like Annabel Lee.

ED IRONS ISN'T in the book, either, though. Before he came to Lubbock, Irons was with the Tyler school system for years and was a buddy of Uncle Hubert's.

More recently, Uncle Hubert has quit being a Tyler elementary school principal in order to get back into teaching math but I was hoping he'd have some snappy verses about Irons' tenure at Something, you know, like "My poems would be like Byron's were it not for old Ed Irons," but if it's in the book I can't find it.

Certainly he didn't have Irons in mind when he UNCLE HUBERT was always the one in the wrote these lines:

HUMOR, PHILOSOPHY and religion, along with a generous helping of nostalgia, can be found in "Just Recollectin'.

In a poem debunking Modern Math, for example, Uncle Hubert has this to say in the first couple of verses:

> The autocratic mathematics Always seemed so stable-A bunch of facts, precise, exact-A most convincing fable.

But social change and theories strange Have joined in dark collusion To chart a path for modern math Which leads to mass confusion.

In another offering, he says that "Today is the reality between Yesterday's dreams and Tomorrow's memories.

He also makes light of his own writings:

There's nothing worse than reading verse And finding nothing in it. This silly rhyme will waste your time, Unless you don't begin it.

Having begun, I read on for two full pages to see if he were right. He wasn't.

I don't suppose poets, even published ones, ever get rich from their writings but some of them do get famous. If that happens to Uncle Hubert, re-member I claimed him when he was just a school principal goofing off and writing:

With thoughts galore, I would write more Except for these two quirks; I'm getting tired-and may get fired-Unless I get to work.

PRESIDENT CARTER flew to New York this week to take political bows while signing a $1.65 billion financial aid bill guaranteeing Big Apple residents that you and I will keep them out of bankruptcy.

The federal loan guarantees were made by Congress despite New York's refusal or inability to whip its fiscal ship into shape In Lubbock, meanwhile, Mayor Dirk West assures and reassures me that Lubbock's proposed use of $1 million in federal revenue sharing funds is a one-year deal that won't be perpetuated. Lubbock, thanks to West and other members of the City Council-and others before them-not only is in good financial shape but, comparatively, also has a much tauter-run ship than most cities have, especially New York. Even so, as more and more cities lean on federal funds for operating costs, it's becoming more and more difficult to see a happy ending in sight.

Paul Scott:

Young's Rope Needs Testing

WASHINGTON-To keep a potentially explosive issue from getting out of hand, Congress should launch a fullscale inquiry into the allegations of "political prisoners in the U.S.," the domestic and foreign forces behind these charges and the reasons for their surfacing at this time.

The inquiry is urgently needed since neither President Carter nor Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell has publicly refuted the undocumented charges made by Ambassador Andrew Young, U.S. representative to the UN and member of the cabinet.

While the President publicly criticized the negro leader for making his pronouncement about "political prisoners in the U.S.," he didn't challenge its content.

With Ambassador Young now indicating he will have more to say, a Congressional committee with jurisdiction over the Justice Department must summon and place the controversial cabinet member under oath to determine the truth before additional damage is done to this country's image and institutions abroad and in this country.

THIS IS THE POSITION of a bipartisan group of House members headed by Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill., a ranking member of the House Judiciary panel.

The Hyde group wants the Judiciary Committee to direct Young to furnish names and evidence of "political prisoners,"—if such exists—to determine the validity of his charges or whether Young is spouting the Kremlin's propaganda line on the controversial issue.

One member of the group, Rep. John Ash-brook, R-Ohio, is seeking to have Young questioned about his close relationship with Stanley New York lawyer and le er of both Young and the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Levison, who took the 5th amendment when questioned in 1962 by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee about his Communist connections, was the adviser to King that caused the late Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy to authorize the wire-tapping of the civil rights leader during the

At the time, Levison was advising King on strategy, writing his speeches and raising money for King's organization.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF Levison with Young have been taken since the negro leader took over his U.S. position at the United Nations and became a member of the Carter inner circle.

UN sources reveal that Levison advises Young on Africa and a number of controversial statements he has made on Soviet armed Cuban and East German troops in the region.

As a starter, the Hyde group would like to see Atty. Gen. Bell called to answer Young's allega-tions. Several of the lawmakers want Bell to furnish the Judiciary Committee the entire FBI file on the King-Young-Levison connection, including all the secret tapes and reports that were ordered by a U.S. federal judge early in 1977.

So far, Rep. Peter Rodino, R-N.J., chairman, has refused to even put the question of an inquiry before the committee, contending there is no need to look into Young's allegations since no specific individuals were mentioned. What makes the need for a Congressional probe so urgent is that Young and his supporters are continuing to make the allegations and appear to be orchestrating their own campaign to obtain a controlled federal investigation of "political prisoners in the U.S." on their own terms.

Their campaign parallels a similar one launched by the Kremlin to turn President Carter's human rights drive in foreign policy against this country's institutions while creating conditions for building a militant mass street-action and political movement. A preview of what is coming was the recent visit to the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, by Jesse Jackson, a former aide of Dr. King and close friend of Young.

With permission of the Justice Department and approval of the White House, Jackson addressed the 1,650 inmates, of which about 40 percent are from minority groups. In his talk and statements to reporters later, Jackson defended Young stat-

Some may debate Andrew Young's diplomacy, but they cannot debate his accuracy. The facts speak for themselves. That is political."

Meals High? Here's 'Food For Thought'

WITH MEAT PRICES way up, heading higher (but at a slower pace) and sure to remain at lofty levels during the next few years or until this phase of the so-called cattle cycle runs its course (and cattle producers again increase their herds), your food budget is "stuck." What can you do to help keep your food costs

Of course, an obvious answer is to prepare meals which rely less heavily on meat-and in other areas, to select vegetables, poultry, fish, grains, eggs and dairy products when they are in ample supply and relatively inexpensive.

ALSO OBVIOUS are such moneysaving hints

-Shift your family to less expensive cuts of each type of meat, which have a nutrient content at least as great as the more costly cuts and a fat content that is significantly lower and healthier;

-Experiment with the help of a cookbook in preparation of such "variety" meats as liver, sweetbreads, tripe, etc., which rank high in nutrition and are among the "great" foods in Europe;
-Follow your cookbook's rules on heating your oven, to minimize shrinkage and keep your meats

-Investigate "family packs," such as bulk ham-burger, chops, chicken, almost invariably offered at lower prices than in smaller packages, and learn to do a bit of home butchering;

-Try buying meats at local discount stores where you often can achieve perceptible savings at the price of less convenience

-Shop for meats in terms of meals, figure out what you will do with leftovers to avoid any

-Read labels with utmost care, and be sure you are aware that 3 1/2 pounds is not 3 pounds, 5 ounces, but 3 pounds, 8 ounces;

-At today's prices, pay more attention than ever to shopping the meat specials regularly and seriously and stocking your home freezer when you find unusual bargains early in the day.

BUY ACCORDING to the true value of any type or cut of meat—as measured in terms of the true cost of a given portion of the final cooked product. (You'll get only one or two servings from each pound of meat loaded with fat, bone or gristle-rib chops, spareribs, etc.-as against two to three cooked servings from each pound of roast beef, pork, lamb, etc.)
In addition to these basic rules, two federal actions are pending which may help curb the costs of meat and poultry.

(1) The U.S. Agriculture Department has proposed that the net weight listed on a package of, say, chicken or bacon, must be accurate.

The USDA has set narrow, specific limits by which a single package can be over or under the stated weight, but the average lot of an item must have the same weight when you buy it as when it left the packaging plant. In addition, the liquid which drains from meat or poultry into the tray must not be included as part of the net weight.

Package weights can be accurate. So USDA has moved to make its federal net weight standards as tough as the best state laws (in California and Michigan). The Supreme Court has ruled that federal regulations-vague or even negative -must take precedence over state and local regu-

(2) USDA ALSO HAS proposed a variety of reg-ulations to make its voluntary system of meat grading more accurate, honest, uniform and in-

All lamb and beef, for instance, sold at retail would be marked with quality grade labels such as "prime" or "choice" (to which you are accustomed) and with new labels as "US ungraded" or "House graded."

Today, if a cut of meat does not make the "choice" grade, some retailers promote it with store labels which can be misleading—such as "blue ribbon" or "premium quality." Ungraded meat is, as a result, frequently overpriced.

This one mange in federal grading rules should curtail misrepresentation, a USDA spokesman told my Washington associate, Brooke Shearer, without discouraging the use of housebrands.

CETA Has No Right To Life

be shouted down and stomped on.

Instead, the bill is likely to be wafted toward the Senate on waves of hot air and good intentions. Barring a full-scale revolt, another $10 billion to $12 billion of your money is about to gurgle down the drain.

"CETA" is the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973. It is now set to expire Sept, 30. The pending bill would rewrite portions of the original act, in an effort to prevent multises, and would extend the program for

The authors of this grotesque imposition on the taxpayers could not prevent abuses if they kept at the rewriting job till Christmas.

Nothing in my experience—not food stamps, nor foreign aid, nor the old Job Corps, nor the follies of the arts and humanities people—nothing has approached the sheer mind-boggling, boondoggling waste and corruption of the CETA hillions.

THAT IS NOT even the worst that can be said of the program. The original idea was to train the hardcore unemployed for productive jobs in the private sector. The original idea was to rely upon public service jobs in local government only as temporary expedients.

accomplished-is to transfer a few hundred thousand jobs from the private sector of our economy to the public sector. This is marvelous, is it not? In Massachusetts, newsman Warren T. Brookes has reported, between July 1974 and January 1978, government employment rose by 23,500 jobs (mostly CETA), while the state's private sector actually lost 26,700 jobs. The effect of the program is to damage the very private employers who in the past have supplied the most employment to marginal workers.

BROOKES HAS SOME figures on CETA employment in public service. In May 1977, for example, Boston had 1,221 CETA jobs under the city government. By March 1978, the number had

In New Bedford-Fall River, city jobs under CE-TA swelled from 402 to 2,106 in the same period. The jobs pay an average salary of $10,000, far above what an untrained 18-year-old could get in private employment, but the jobs have no permanence and few of them provide serious train-

Doubtless, the CETA outlays have helped some jobless men and women. It would be incredible, considering the billions that have been spent, if some persons had not been constructively assisted. But the program is riddled with abuse.

Here in Washington, a spendthrift District government used $480,000 in CETA funds (translation; your tax funds) to set up a massive bureaucracy staffed in large part by relatives and cronies of City Council members.

The 56 CETA recipients on Council's payroll averaged $18,000 a year for jobs that paid only $8,- 571 in other government agencies. Writing in Reader's Digest, Ralph Kinney Bennett chronicles other outlays of your money.

There was the payment in Atlanta of $475 a month to a former leader of the Black Panthers just "to keep an eye on city, county and state governments and their jiving off the masses." There was the $640,000 turned over to the Gay Community Service of Los Angeles, "to provide education about gay people's problems."

ANOTHER $34,000 went to the Gay Alliance of Rochester, N.Y., to provide speakers at local campuses so that students could learn about homosexual lifestyles. And then there was the grant in Miami for "nude sculpting workshop" in which naked men and women "ran hands over one another's bodies...(o help them discover that they had 'both male and female qualities."

There is no way—no way on earth—that this miserable boundoggle can be retrieved for socially useful purposes. The House amendments make some feeble gestures toward reform, but a close reading of the changes suggests that local sponsors will evade the tighter requirements with

The CETA program, launched with good inten-tions five years ago, has come to a woefully bad end. If the House has any regard for the people's taxes, the House will let CETA die right there.

Lance Issues Apology

ATLANTA (AP) — Explaining he didn't mean to offend anyone, Bert Lance, former federal budget director, has apologized for a remark about "the great Jewish ownership of the press."

Lance, in a statement aired Wednesday during a newscast on Atlanta's WXIA-TV, clarified remarks published in the Aug. 6 issue of the Atlanta Jour-nal-Constitution Sunday Magazine. The article focused on investments by Saudi Arabian businessman Ghaith

Pharaon, to whom Lance sold his interest in the National Bank of Georgia. Lance referred to American reaction to Arab investments in U.S. businesses and was quoted as saying, "I don't know whether all the hurrah stems from the great Jewish ownership of the press or not."

Lance, who resigned as budget director amid controversy over his personal finances, said Wednesday, "In the context of the conversation, I did not perceive this to be an offensive remark. And if, to the contrary, my statement offended anyone in any way whatsoever, I truly regret it."

Gordon MacRae Ailing

FLINT, Mich. (AP) - Singer Gordon MacRae is recovering from a bout with laryngitis that ended his "Wand'rin" on a Flint stage this week.

MacRae had to be helped off the stage of a Flint theater twice due to the ailment and medication to combat it, witnesses said. The first time was Tuesday, midway through the opening number in a sum-mer stock production of "Paint Your Wagon." Witnesses, including a news-paper reviewer, said MacRae was un-steady as he went on stage and sang MacRAE off-key and barely audible.

On Wednesday he was believed to be fully recovered and ready to perform. He blamed his unsteadiness on too much medication for the laryngitis, although he couldn't remember what the medication was. "I don't drink," MacRae said. "I was fighting laryngitis. I hope I'm over it. Every actor keeps thinking he can go on." In the middle of his rendition of "Wand'rin"," the stage went dark and cast members could be seen helping him toward the wings of the Star Theater.

Understudy Ralph Braun was summoned, the overture was repeated and the musical started over. A few in the audience left when they saw MacRae's troubles, but most of the 1,500 people saw it through. Braun got a standing ovation when it was over.

his campaign.
"Supporters will put my name in nomination before the Republican State Central Committee on Saturday." Warner said Wednesday. "I'm ready to hit the deck and start running hard," he said.

Picking a new GOP nominee became the work of the 78-member committee when Obenshain died in a plane crash Aug. 2. Obershain had defeated Warner for the nomination in a June state party convention. Warner appears the likely nominee since all other potential rivals have removed their names from consideration.

Warner, a millionaire, said that if he gets the nomination, his actress wife "will join very actively in my campaign."

She was hit "very severely" by Obenshain's death, he said, because one of her previous husbands, film producer Mike Todd, was killed in a plane crash.

Obenshain "was a good friend, he waged a good fight and gave all he had," Warner said. "Fate has dictated that ne must step up and assume that responsibility.'

layors Predict Urban Violence If City Aid Fails

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a lobbying victory that could salvage one of three major urban aid bills, the leader of a group of big-city mayors says congressional opposition to urban spending threatens to rekindle the urban violence of the late 1960. of the late 1960s

Thirteen mayors, led by Detroit's Coleman Young, ended a two-day effort Wednesday to win support for three Cart-er administration urban bills — totaling $15 billion over several years - imperiled by a cost-cutting fever on Capitol

The mayors encountered such opposition to the spending plans that Young bit-terly criticized Congress for "a selfish, me-first attitude." And, within hours after the mayors left town, the House voted sharp cuts in the $11 billion Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CE-TA), which funds 725,000 jobs in state and local governments around the coun-

The city leaders' major accomplishment in meetings with congressional leaders Tuesday was to hammer out a compromise on the administration's plan for $1 billion in supplementary fiscal assistance to areas with high unemployment. This measure would replace a multi-billion dollar program expiring Sept.

During a 25-minute meeting at the White House Wednesday, President Carter criticized a House subcommittee which voted 7-6 to kill the proposal last week and said that, thanks to the mayors' lobbying. "we still have a chance of redeeming that."

Young told reporters, "I don't think I have seen recently a more selfish, mefirst attitude expressed by many, many members of Congress who have in the past been able to take a national view."

If these urban programs are defeated, Young said, the nation will be back where it was in the late 1960s.

Asked if he was referring to the racial rioting of that period, Young replied, "Yes, I am. There is a growing dichotomy between the haves and the have-nots in this country.

"If you're working in Detroit either in an auto plant or, with all the overtime, in the building trades. you're making over $20,000 a year, which is a middle-class standard. But if you're unemployed, you're below the poverty line. Now there's a built-in explosion with people living right next to each other with these contrasting ways of life. I think that's what happened in 1966-67. There's no question that potential exists now." Young added that this time not only blacks but also poor whites and Spanishspeaking people were feeling this crunch. The mayors had little success on two

Indiana Bat May Block New Dam

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) - Federal and state efforts to dam the Big Blue River have encountered an obstacle that could have even worse effects than a decade of funding delays — the Indiana bat.

Like the tiny snail darter that blocked a major dam project in Tennessee recent-ly, the little bat is listed by the Interior Department as an endangered species.

It spends summer days sleeping in woods along the Big Blue and nights feeding on insects over the water.

The reservoir project is favored by the industrial interests of the Wabash Valley Association and the chambers of commerce of some of the communities along the river. But it is opposed by environmental groups and is being reconsidered by the state, which already has scrapped another large project — Lafayette Lake of Wildcat Creek.

If the Army Corps of Engineers goes ahead with plans to dam the river, the resulting Big Blue Lake will destroy some of the bats' habitat. That would be a big step toward extinction, said Dr. James Cope, an Earlham College zoologist.

He is under contract to study the bats for the Corps and plans to submit his re-port later this month. Corps officials in Louisville say their actions will be gov-erned by decisions of Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service.

Only three colonies of the bats ever have been found in the summer — all three with river habitats, said Cope. They three with river habitats, said Cope. They were located only in the past five years.

"It would destroy those particular individuals, I suppose," Cope says. "They have a very strong homing instinct and would return to the same area. The young would be destroyed.

"We're dealing with small numbers—only about 50 adults per colony."

The bats eat nothing but insects and "are very closely related to the stream habitat. No feeding over open fields has been observed."

habitat. No feeding over open fields has been observed."

Cope has been studying bats about 30 years. He knows many people dislike them, although, "when you think of the number of insects they consume, they're of benefit to mankind."

He and his students banded bats to trace their migration and learned they disperse considerably for hibernation. Adults from one small colony were found in hibernation in five separate caves.

The Indiana bat hibernates in caves in southern Indiana, eastern Kentucky and in Kentucky's Mammoth Cave region.

But American businesses often spread their money around to several banks, according to a new survey, keeping a close watch on the health of the institutions. And the study, prepared by Fortune magazine's market research department, says quality of service and personnel and efficiency of operations are among the things businesses look for in a bank.

According to the survey, the average large American firm uses eight banks for credit and puts its deposits in another 22. The number varies substantially, based on the size and needs of the company. Sixteen percent of the more than 1,000 companies surveyed — and 22 percent of the 500 largest companies queried — each use more than 100 banks for deposits. A handful have credit at more than 50.

There he was drawn toward Iraq's more radical line, denounced Arafat as a traitor and rounded up a rival team bent on "revolutionary violence."

In 1974, Fatah accused Abu Nidal of plotting a mutiny against Arafat and other leaders in the mainstream Palestintan faction and sentenced him to death in absentia.

The emnity escalated into a full-sci-thowdown with the assassination earling this year of two long-time arafat as-tiates and friends — Said Hamman the PLO representative in London, a Kuwait PLO envoy Ali Yassin.

In the weeks after Ali Yassin's murder, Palestinian guerrillas started hitting Iraqi targets. Betrut guerrilla sources said Fatah is behind the campaign.

The recent attacks on Iraqi embassies and diplomats in London, Paris, Beirut and Karachi follow Katah charges that Iraq has not only harbored Abu Nidal in a thickly shuttered hideaway outside Baghdad, but has also actively helped him.

In a rare public broadside by Fatah or fellow Arab group, Arafat's wing publicly demanded Abu Nidal's extradition fler the Ali Yausin slaying.

Arab diplomats disclosed that following a grenade attack last week on the Iraqi ambassador's car in London, the No. 2 Iraqi leader, Saddam Hussein, sent a last-chance verbal message to Arafat. Battles Rats In Chicago

By ED LION
CHICAGO (UPI) — An army, complete with reconaissance scouts, intelligence officers and attack forces, is waging a fierce "battle of wits" against a major public enemy roaming city streets -

The 160-member "army" under a single command was deployed in April to fight the hordes of rats that thrive in some sections of Chicago.

"It's run like the military," said Madison L. Brown II, chief of Chicago's $3 million Comprehensive Rodent Control Program. "It's a real battle of wits. I would say the rats are a serious problem here as they are in most cities."

Brown said he can't even guess how many enemies he faces but they number are maintained properly to keep rats out. Residents with reports of rat invasions can call a central command post and the army will try to get to the scene within three days.

"We're not naive enough to think we'll end the rat problem," Brown said. "We do see signs of improvement - mainly less active rat signs and good reports from residents. But we have a long battle ahead. It's far from over."

Because rats are intelligent creatures, city officials have developed a special strategy to "broadcast" the rodenticides.

First, unpoisoned oats are placed in "rat runs" to prevent the rats from developing "bait shyness," Brown said. Then, poisoned oats are laid down to kill the bythen confident rats.

In addition, the rodenticides must be alternated to prevent rats from developing immunity or tolerance to them.

Brown said a common rodenticide used by the city inhibits the coagulation of the rodents' blood, causing it to thin.

The results of the Chicago "broadcasting" strategy is being studied by researchers at Bowling Green University in Ohio, Brown said. The results could be useful to other cities, he said. In Chicago's 22nd Ward on the Southwest side, officials have mounted their own "bounty" program to battle the rats. Alderman Frank Stemberk offered during a several week period last fall and spring a $1 bounty for each confirmed dead rat reported by an adult. About $1,-750 in contributions and ward fund money was awarded for dead rats. "We had a plague of rats," Stemberk said. "You could see them scurrying in broad daylight. One woman said a rat even jumped on her baby's carriage."

Stemberk said the campaign riveted attention to the rat problem and the rodent population in his ward seems to have dec-

House Debates Tax Cut Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House began debate today on three variations of a tax cut bill, quashing a last-minute effort to partially offset the Social Security tax ncreases going into effect next year. The House refused, 284 to 130, to overturn its Rules Committee's recommenda-tion against allowing a vote on a Social Security-related amendment. The pro-posal would have reduced an employee's income tax by 5 percent of his or her Social Security payroll withholding. Handlers of the legislation renewed promises that the whole issue of Social Security financing will be reviewed next

The debate came seven months after President Carter called for a $25 billion tax cut to boost the economy. None of the three options under consideration closely resembles the administration proposal.

But any of the three bills, if chosen by the House and eventually enacted, could save middle-income families up to hundreds of dollars on income That would at least ease the bite of higher Social Security taxes next year. And the Senate is likely to sweeten whatever package the House adopts.

Acting after months of wrangling and stalemate among House tax writers, the Rules Committee on Wednesday cleared for consideration:

-A $16.3 billion tax cut bill approved by the Ways and Means Committee with bipartisan support, but distasteful to

A letter signed by 132 of the 146 GOP House members was sent to the Senate Rules Committee on Wednesday, saying they have nothing personal against Zago-ria. But the Republicans are upset that two other names submitted by the GOP leadership were bypassed by President Carter in his consideration of who will fill the Republican vacancy on the com-mission. Some Republicans fear Zagoria would support public financing of elections, which they oppose.

Filmmaker Loses Stop-Show Effort

BOSTON (AP) - A documentary about racism in Britain will be broadcast tonight on Public Broadcasting Service's television affiliates, despite attempts by the filmmaker to stop it.

"Blacks Britannica," produced by WGBH-TV as a segment in its PBS "World" series, won a go-ahead ruling Wednesday from U.S. District Court Judge Charles Wyzanski.

Citing the First Amendment guarantee of free speech, the judge denied a mot-ion to prevent the airing sought by Dav-id Koff, a Cambridge filmmaker, and Colin Prescod, a participant in the film.

-An amendment to substitute an $18.1 billion tax cut package worked out with Treasury Department assistance. It would be slightly tougher on capital gains and direct other tax savings more toward middle and lower incomes. The administration has accepted this compromise but without visible enthusiasm.

—The official Republican Party measure calling for a one-third slash over three years in income tax rates. The committee, however, gave the GOP only a relatively limited opportunity to offer this bill. It would be allowed as a substitute at the end of debate on the main bill and

The committee, which sets procedures for full House actions, also allowed consideration of a measure that would simply continue the tax cuts voted two years ago and scheduled to expire this year, without any further reductions.

The committee also proposed that the House might vote on one other change in the Ways and Means bill, deleting a provision that would adjust capital gains taxes after 1980 to allow for inflation.

It denied, by an 8-7 vote, an opportunity sought by liberal Democrats to add to whatever tax package is approved a parti-al offset to the higher Social Security taxes going into effect next year. Without the provision, they contended, the contemplated income tax cuts could be less than the payroll tax increases, meaning that many families would end up with heavier tax burdens in 1979 than in 1978.

But whatever the House adopts will have little resemblance to the elaborate tax package Carter sent to Capitol Hill early this year.

The administration retreated step by step from its goal of a $25 billion reduction and changes in the tax code in the name of reform. In the face of congressional opposition and long periods of stalemate in the tax-writing committee, Carter finally agreed to the $18.1 billion

The bill Congress is expected finally to enact before adjourning, however, could come closer to the administration's totals, if not to its reform recomi

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Wednesday he favors a cut in the $19 billion to $20 billion range and remarked that the pending House bill is not large enough to cover the Social Security and inflation-induced tax increases next year.

"It would be a breach of faith if we failed to do that much," Long said.
The basic Ways and Means bill was estimated to yield income tax savings of $62 for a typical family of four with $10,000 income, the compromise measure $260 and the Republican bill - named for Rep. Jack F. Kemp of New York and Sen. William V. Roth Jr. of Delaware — $228 when fully effective.

The estimated savings for a four-member family earning $20,000 were $146 under the Ways and Means bill, $228 under the compromise and $792 under Kemp-Roth: for a $30,000 family $304, $423 and

But those who argued unsuccessfully for an additional Social Security offset said that without it the net result for the $20,000 family, for example, would be a total tax increase of $115 next year under the committee bill, a $33 increase under the compromise. The figures for Roth-Kemp were not firm because of the three-year nature of its effects.

Taxation of capital gains, the profits from sale of stocks, real estate or other assets held at least a year, proved the most difficult issue for tax writers. Carter wanted capital gains taxation stiffened. That tax now is imposed at a rate of about half the tax on ordinary income. Republicans and many Democrats wanted it reduced.

Both the Ways and Means bill and the compromise set a top rate of 35 percent on capital gains. Under present law the theoretical top can be 49 percent, but the treasury says in practice it is around 40 percent. The compromise has somewhat tougher provisions against devices to escape capital gains taxation entirely.

Both bills would give a break to the kind of capital gains affecting most unsophisticated investors — the profit on sale of a home that has increased in value with inflation. They would allow a home-owner, once in a lifetime, to sell his principal residence and pay no tax on the first $100,000 of capital gains.

Shah Favors Increase In Oil Prices

NOUSHAHR, Iran (AP) - The Shah of Iran said today the scheduled December meeting of members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Abu Dhabi should raise the world price of oil for 1979.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, speaking at a news conference in this Caspian Sea resort, did not predict the size of the December price hike, saying Iran will wait for OPEC nations to adopt a uni-

He said that because of the dollar's declining value, the purchasing power of a barrel of crude oil sold for $12,77 is actually $7.70 outside the United States

Responding to reports that some OPEC members currently are underselling OPEC's price, particularly in heavy crude oil, the shah said "so far Iran has not played that game. We are selling all the oil we can produce" without any dis-

He indicated that by 1979, when the present glut will end and when the world economy picks up, the oil price undercutting will disappear.

The falling value of the dollars OPEC members are receiving for their oil is one of the prime factors behind the OPEC push for a boost in oil prices. The consensus after a price setting meeting earlier this summer in Geneva, Switzerland, was that a "revision" - meaning a price hike - was in order for 1979.

The benchmark price of $12.70 per barrel of light Saudi Arabian crude has stood since mid-1977. There have been published reports that OPEC ministers will meet next month to raise prices 5 percent for the first half of 1979. But OPEC spokesman Hamid Zaheri said in Vienna, Austria, on Wednesday, "We do not know any-thing here about an extraordinary meet-

Reservation Virtually Unchanged

BY TED SIMON

A-J Trevel Editor

"The white man today is our friend and we must be a brother to him. But we must not try to be a white man ourself. We must learn new things but we must keep our old way too."—Baldwin Parker (Comanche and son of Chief Oursele Parker. che and son of Chief Quanalt Par-ker) speaking to the Alabama-Coushatta Indians - 1936.

Now there are modern conveniences on the reservation but much of the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation has not changed over the past 200 years. Located 85 miles north of Houston on US 190 between Livingston and Woodville, the 4,600 acres of virgin timberland make up the oldest Indian reservation in Texas.

Modernity for the reservation consists of a hospital, school and the usual 20th century amenities. But, tradition and a pride in their heritage can be seen today in the Living Indian Village where native crafts are demonstrated.

Basket weaving, beadwork, pottery making and the use of primitive weapons are in the Village, a feature attraction within the reservation for visitors. Tribal representatives explain the arts, crafts, social system, and history of the Alabama and Coushatta people. Visitors learn that the reservation is the home for two separate but united tribes. The tribes have been associated with one another for so long that the hyphenated name gives the impression that there is only one tribe. The two tribes were already nearly indistinguishable in cus-toms and language when the first Eu-opeans arrived in the New World.

It is the era of the mid 1800's, when the tribes settled in the Big Thicket, that the Living Indian Village preserves. The Indians of the period quickly adopted the wearing of skirts and trousers as used by early settlers. Log cabins were also built in the manner of the pioneers. Today, many of the log structures can still be found in the deep woods.

Big Thicket is a very appropriate name when a person explores the heart of the area. The forest of trees is so thick with bushes and vines it proved impassable to some pioneers. But, the Indians found the tangled brush amid the tail trees a haven for game.

The Big Thicket and the Alabama-Coushatta Indians have been a part of each other for so long that the names are almost synonymous. Consequently, each other for so long that the names are almost synonymous. Consequently, one of the best ways to see and understand some of the area's flora and fauna is to take a Village originated tour.

A miniature railroad and special swamp buggies make several trips into the forest on a regular schedule. Indian guide-naturalists identify the tropical-like flowers that bloom throughout the year. The history of abandoned dwellings are related to give visitors an understanding of what life was like before the turn of the century.

The tour takes in area that includes swamps and jungles. It's easy to see how

The tour takes in area that includes swamps and jungles. It's easy to see how convicts, outlaws and slaves were able to escape forever in the forest.

Here also bobcat, coyote, and wolf have found a sanctuary. Cypress, elm. hackberry, hickory, magnolia, maple and pine provide room and board for more than one-third of the bird species in the linited States.

It takes only a few minutes inside the Big Thicket to understand why Gen. Sam Houston became so familiar with the area. If his attack on the Mexican army at San Jacinto had been unsuccessful the Texas leader planned to hide what was left of his army in the natural maze. The image of a young Sam Houston brings us back to the Alabama-Coushatta tribes. The Indians having been driven from other lands and oppressed by white men sought a moment of respite by remaining neutral in the war between Texas and Mexico.

Still, a Coushatta chief named Kalita and several of his tribesmen sympa-thized with their friend Houston and served as guides and messengers for the Texas army. The small group of Indians also fed and nursed many settlers during the Texas revolt. Some of Kalita's warriors also spied on Santa Anna. enabling the Texas army to surprise the Mexican

ALL SEASONS-The beauties of nature are apparent every season at the Alabama army that memorable day of April 21 on the banks of the San Jacinto River. Houston remembered his Indian Houston remembered his Indian friends and did his best to reward the Alabama-Coushatta tribes with good lands and honest policies. But the general's idealism wasn't shared by others. Dark days fell upon the tribes after Texas became a republic. Chief Kalita, shortly before he died, wrote to M.B. Lamar, president of the Republic of Texas: "I will live here till I die which cannot be long, and I want to know what is to become of my people."

The sad years that followed that plea of concern are described in "Kalita's People" by Aline Rothe -printed by Texian Press in 1963. The Daughters of the American Revolution did recognize Kalita's help during the birth of Texas.
The historical and patriotic group of women erected a small monument near Liberty, Texas. The stone marker notes:
"Kalita Chief of the Coushatta Indians -

Friend of the Pioneers."

A historical outdoor drama -"Beyond the Sundown" -tells the story of the friendly tribes that settled in the Big Thicket. A modern 1,600-seat amphithea-ter has been built especially for the spectacular production. The outdoor drama is presented nightly (except Sun-days) from June 23 through Aug. 26. This writer has met many travelers who have visited various Indian reservations across the nation. Quite often the visitors note what has been described as a "silent dislike" toward the tourist. Warranted or not, it seems the camera toting reservation visitor is considered by some Indians to be a necessary evil.

But, a friendly welcome is emphasized at the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reser-vation. Chief Kalita's friendship for the pioneers has been reaffirmed in a friend-ship toward today's visitors from all parts of the world.

For more information, call (713) 563-4391, or write to the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation, Rt. 3, Box 640, Livingston, TX 77351.

A visit to the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation can be a memorable trip for any person interested in history and wanting to experience the special beauty of the Big Thicket.

Russian Oil Deal Gains Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration has approved the sale to Russia of a $144 million facility to produce oil drilling equipment, the first such approval since the White House anunced new controls on U.S. Soviet

The approval came on Wednesday in the form of a Commerce Department export license for a $1 million computerrun welding machine, which had held up the entire plant package, according to a Commerce Department official.

The move brought quick criticism from Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who originally had sought to cancel the deal altogether in light of the Soviet conviction of two dissidents - Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginsburg - last

Jackson said he had asked President Carter several days ago to hold off on the export license until his Senate subcommittee could examine whether the Soviets were gaining "certain technological advantages" with the proposed plant. "The administration made a mistake in

However, Postmaster General William F. Bolger has adopted a take-it-or-leave-it policy. He said Wednesday that he turned down a request from one union president to renegotiate the contract.

"We have completed our negotiations," Bolger told the Washington Press Club.

The union president later was identified as Emmet Andrews of the American Postal Workers Union, the largest of the "I told him 'no'," Bolger said of An-

Congress' Gimmickery Gains Media Coverage

The master of manipulating the med most certainly must be Sen. Willia Proxmire, D-Wis.

He very frequently skips the period congressional recesses and stays in tow to hold hearings.

As the only show on Capitol Hill, Pros-mire is virtually assured of exposure — even when the hearing is a dog.

But almost no one else is willing to for-feit his or her vacations, frequent as they

One popular method, used by many committee and subcommittee chairmen over the years, is known as the "hood."

Most recently, this was used by Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y. (who, believe it or not, is head of the House Irish caucus) in drumming up publicity for a hearing featuring a drug-smuggling pilot.

Blaggi's announcement said the witness would be wearing a hood to protect his identity as he told all.

That kind of a come-on — hooded witness, drug smuggler and so forth — is almost irresistible, especially for television cameras.

True to the announcement, the witness came, face shrouded by a hood with holes came, face shrouded by a hood with holes for eyes.

But, Biaggi did not protect the identity of the witness too well. His name was on the witness its given to reporters and to the official recorder.

After smothering through a few questions, the hooded one asked, "Can I take this thing off?" He was given permission. When the hearing was over, the witness freely told reporters it was the subcommittee's — not his — idea to have him

The border between the United States and Canada is the result of no less than seven treatles. Negotiators who signed the Treaty of Paris in 1782 relied upon earlier in defining the border. The map's inaccuracies raised boundary questions that were not resolved until the Treaty of 1925.

Analysis

It was first used by the late Sen. Estes

Two former Houston insurance agents are expected to contend they lost their licenses because the department let them take the blame for a scheme hatched by Gulf Atlantic Life Insurance Co.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I just read about that father who broke his nose when he fell off his 14-year-old son's skateboard. I can understand why he would be upset, but I think throwing his son's skateboard in the trash was inexcusable.

I'm a 65-year-old grandmother. Last year I fell off my grandson's skateboard and broke my wrist, but it was my own fault, and I certainly wouldn't punish my grandson for it. It was great fun, and I may even try it again sometimes.

I took a lot of ribbing from everyone who knew about it, but I just laughed right along with them.

If you can get in touch with that father. Abby, please tell him for me that a nice move would be to buy his son a brand new skateboard.

SKATEBOARD GRANDMA LAWRENCEVILLE, ILL.

Dear Grandma: You sound like the kind of grandma every kid would like to have. However, if all grandmas were to

DEAR ABBY: I'm going with a wonderful man who wants to marry me. I am a widow, and he's a widower who has lost two wives. We seems so right for each other, but something bothers me.

He still wears two wedding bands. I haven't worn my wedding ring since I start-ed to date after my husband's death. (The sight of it brings back so many memories, and I don't want to live in the

He seemed to appreciate my little joke, but I notice he is still wearing his rings. Should I bring it up again? It really bothers me to see those reminders of this former wives.

Dear Problem: What your "wonder-ful" prospective husband wears on his fingers is less important than what is in his head and his heart. If he's right for you, and wants to marry you, don't let his jewelry get in the way.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is me. I never know what to say when someone asks me a question that I prefer not to answer. For example, questions of a private family nature, such as, "What happened between your sister and her husband?" Or. "Why doesn't your son marry that girl he's been living with for so long?"

Other questions that aren't all that per-

I suppose I could say, "It's none of your business," but I don't have the nerve, so I find myself answering a lot of questions I don't really want to answer.

Women's Continuum Aids Mature Students

Family News Staff
If you've been thinking about going back to college to begin or complete a degree program or to take a personal or professional enrichment course, the word from the Office of Student Life (OSL) at Texas Tech University is "Don't just think about it — come on back!"

Ridgley Denning, assistant to the director of the OSL, said feelings of acceptance and accomplishment can be highly rewarding to the returning student.

"My first experience with the 'mature student' (the term used by the university to refer to a student 25 years of age or older who is returning to the college cam-pus) came when my mother decided to go back to school," she said.

"After her first exam, on which she recieved a grade which she considered 'revoltingly' low, she called me long distance and mouned 'Why am I back? What did I do wrong?"
"We talked for a while, quite a while, and she went on to get a 4.0 gradepoint (a perfect average) for that and the next two

What we do is to try to serve as a clearing house for information and to coordinate workshops and seminars on topics of interest to people coming back,

Those are the goals of the Women's Continuum, organized in September 1975. Since its inception the agency has worked primarily with women returning to school, because that was the 'target group' the university felt could most profit from the services the Women's Continuum could provide.

To hetp eliminate confusion, the name was changed to Services for Mature Students, "but we found that a year later, we were still getting calls for the 'Worn-en's Continuum,' and that that was what we were still being called," Miss Denning said with a laugh. "So the name was offi-cially changed back to 'Women's Contin-

For men and women returning to school after an absence of a few years or of several, the Women's Continuum can help personalize and individualize the university, can help cut through 'red tape' and occasionally confusing tanguage in the catalogs and course prospectus.

"We'll help point the student in the right direction for financial aid, if he needs it." Miss Denning said, "or we'll put him in touch with specific administrators, professors or associate deans who are particularly concerned with advising students."

Miss Denning said the concerns heard nost often by Mary Reeves, also an asdistant to the director of the OSL, and herself include 'Can I study as well as the recent high school graduate?' 'Will I be accepted by the other students on reampus?' 'How can I overcome the generation gap?' and 'Will I be able to do the compressork?' ough these apprehensions are real to the student, Miss Denning said her office has discovered that the mature student "usually makes a much better student because he or she is excited to be here, is highly motivated and is here after making a very difficult and wellthought-out decision.

She said most mature students are accepted by the 'traditional' (in terms of age) students because the younger students find their older classmates are interesting, are interested in them and make helpful contributions (in class). In fact, she noted, after a single semester it's usually the mature student who is helping the others.

"It's interesting to us that the reaction luctant to return is often one of 'I'm really excited to find out how much I know," she said.

She added that if there is any resentment on the part of the younger students, it's because the mature students are "darned good students and often wreck the (grade) curve."

Miss Denning said her office estimates that more than 20 percent of the student body at Tesh is 25 years of age or older. and, in certain programs, the percentage is much higher.

The College of Business Administration, which in 1977 was able to offer a full and consistent schedule of graduate courses at night (for its 'MBA at Night' program) has reported that approximately 90 percent of all the students in its master's degree (MBA) program are mature students," she said.

And there is no telling who the mature student will find in the next seat in his classroom, she added.

"Last spring, President Cecil Mackey and George Fielding, director of development for the university, were enrolled in an undergraduate class for their own personal enrichment (with no special consideration!)," she said.

Others returning to campus include professionals who have been working for many years and who are taking courses to complete a degree or to upgrade their technical knowledge, women who are dent Life at 742-2192.

taking courses in the humanities for the sole purpose of self-enrichment.

For the prospective student who is more than mildly apprehensive about having to take the standardized entrance examinations, Miss Denning has encouragement and practical assistance. 'Although entrance examinations are required in most cases, the staff here can advise and help prepare students to take them," she said. "For those entering the graduate program and required take the Graduate Record Exam (GRE), we even have an eight-week seminar to help the student prepare."

Some non-degree students - those taking a course or two but not pursuing a degree - can even waive the entrance examination requirement, she noted, but she stressed that each case is a matter to be considered individually.

"If you've been thinking about coming back to school this fall, there is still time," she said.

Regular registration is scheduled Aug. 31-Sept. 1, and there is still time for the returning student to complete the paperwork and iron out details before the semester begins Sept. 5.

NEW YORK (WNS) - Should you accept an invitation to become a member of a corporation's board of directors? The best answer: Maybe, it all depends.

Obviously there is prestige in being able to list company boards on your curriculm vitae. And you will be compensated well: the pay for outside directors averaged nearly $8,000 last year, with some of the larger corporations paying as much as $25,000 a year. Expenses are extra, and all this is not bad for what at best is a part-time function taking up minimum

There are other advantages: - Valuable contracts with top executives, bankers, and professionals. Expoşure to problems and problemsolving methods of other companies, which could improve your ability to handle problems at your own company. Access to inside information about an industry and about other companies. - A chance to use skills other than those you normally are called upon to use in pursuance of your own job. The main drawback: the matter of liability. And it's a big drawback. It turns out that board members increasingly are being held responsible for the harmful effects of actions they may have approved. There is paticular potential for trouble if you accept an invitation to become a member of a bank's board.

One special problem is that of the company pension fund. With pension funds becoming increasingly the main recipient pension fund becomes more and more crucial. It is to the board of directors that everyone now looks for supervision of the management of the pension fund.

Meanwhile many companies, it turns out, do not have ample liability insurance to protect directors against stockholder suits, which are increasingly common.

First thing, then, would be to check into the company's liability insurance what types of problems are covered, and for how much.

In addition, insurance companies are now offering what is called D and O (for directors and officers) insurance, which an individual may buy as personal protection beyond that provided by the company itself.

The reason for the problem arising at all is that there is a major effort afoot in American industry to recruit outside directors. The demand for such change comes in part from recent pay-off scandals, publicity about misuse of fringe benefits, and huge business collapses. Harold Willimas, the new chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and himself a veteran of corporate boards, has ben arguing that American industry should switch dramatically to independent outside boards - and that means excluding even people like lawyers and underwriters who render services to companies, as well as retired executives who once served the same companies as full-time managers.

Instead, corporations are being encouraged to look to such outsiders as college presidents, former government officials. executives of companies in unrelated fields, people who are professional directors in the sense that they might make this their main function, and representatives of consumer and civil rights groups. What does an outside director - or, for that matter, any director - do? Experts say the main function is to see to it that the company is being managed in competent fashion - in allocating capital, in appointing people to management and other key positions, in respect to innovation, and in having strategic plans that are both adequate and reliable. Beyond that, directors have the responsibility to see to it that the management develops future managers who will assure the company's succeed the Socialist leader. Asked whether his party would support Nobre da Costa, Soares replied: "Eanes didn't even ask us that." Soares, who has headed the last two governments, appeared angry because the president did not ask his party, Portugal's largest, to form still another goverment.

The Socialists hold 102 of the 263 seats in Parliament, 29 short of a majority but enough to prevent Nobre da Costa from getting one if the 40 Communist members also oppose him. Communist party leader Alvaro Cunhal said he did not think Eanes had violated the constitution by naming an independent. But he refused to say whether the Communists would support him.

Soares' first government, a one-party minority cabinet, fell last December. Then he formed a coalition with the conservative Social Democratic Center Party, but the conservatives defected on July 24 and Eanes fired Soares.

Nobre da Costa, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was chosen by industrialist Antonio Champalimaud when he was 27 to head Portugal's biggest cement plant. Four years later Champalimaud made him technical director of the nation's only steel mill. and after eight years he became head of EFACES, an electronics giant.

Balloonists See Storm As 'Push'

PRESQUE ISLE, Maine (AP) - With Hurricane Cora providing the push, three New Mexicans hope to begin the first trans-Atlantic balloon voyage on Ben Abruzzo, Maxie Anderson and Larry Newman - calling themselves Double Eagle Two - went into their 72hour, pre-launch alert Wednesday.

A Friday launch looked possible, Abruzzo said, because a Hurricane Cora in the South Atlantic is forcing weather patterns north, which is the direction the balloonists want to take when they leave Merle Sprauge's grassy, sloping pasture south of here.

Dressed in slacks and shirtless in the sticky weather. Abruzzo and Anderson worked on their 112-foot-high balloon's rigging while waiting for Newman to arrive from Albuquerque.

"Just peachy," Abruzzo said, when asked about his state of mind.

Abruzzo and Anderson went flying in Double Eagle one last year, which lifted off from Marshfield, Mass., and came down ahead of schedule, just off the coast of Iceland.

Looking up at 60 percent more balloon this year. Abruzzo says he feels "ten times more confident" about the attempt. Last year their balloon passed right over Presque Isle, so this year they figured to skip the Marshfield to Presque Isle leg and leave from right along the Canadian border. Rising to 4,000 feet the first night, the balloonists then plan to go up to about 12,000 feet the next day. Wearing oxygen masks once they go above 13,000 feet, they may go as high as 20,000 feet. Their planned route takes them over Newfoundland, which was the launch site for two British balloonists who came within 117 miles of the French coast two weeks ago.

"They were good sports," said Abruz-zo, 48, President of the Sandia Peak Tram Co. and Ski Co. in Albequerque.

Anderson, 44, president of a uranium and copper mining company, and Newman. 31, a hang glider expert, will join Abruzzo in the catamaran-shaped gondola. Suspended underneath will be a hang glider designed by Newman, in which he plans to glide down once they reach a

Fire Hazards Under Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Consumer Product Safety Commission will focus on products that may cause cancer and those linked to fire hazards, the new head of the agency says.

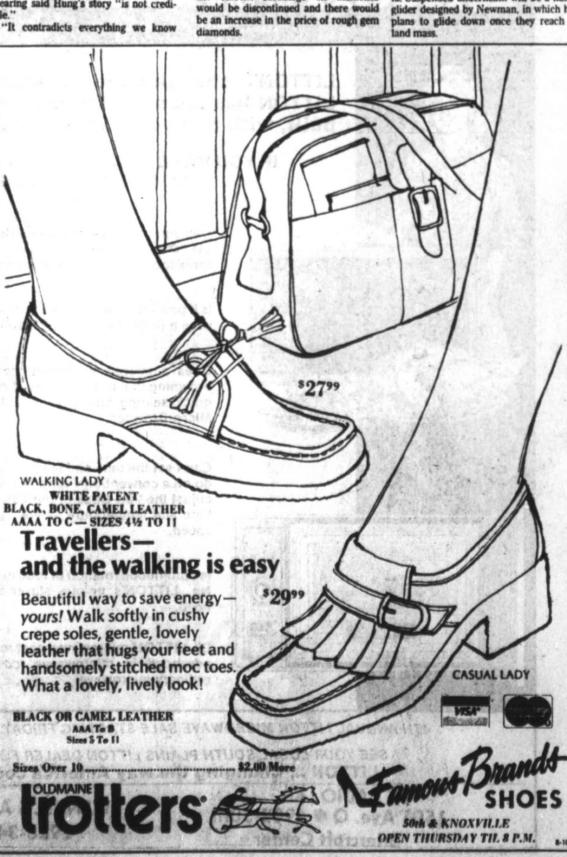

Susan B. King said Wednesday the commission will study the chemical benzene, which has been linked to cancer and other diseases; asbestos, a possible cause of cancer when inhaled; cellulose home insulation that may be a fire hazard, and furniture upholstery that can be ignited by smoldering cigarettes.

In her first press conference since becoming chairwoman June 30, Ms. King said the agency now has 24 high-priority goals instead of the 800 projects it worked on before. "We can't be all things to all people. she said. "There has been an attempt in the past to try to deal with too broad a range of subjects. I'd like to focus on specific hazards and accomplish something important there.

The commission has been criticized during its five-year history for failing to deal quickly enough with unsafe prod-ucts. Ms. King said the reduced number of projects should lead to faster action on major hazards.

She added that the agency is willing to work with manufacturers to develop voluntary safety standards that would avoid federal regulation.

The two morning papers, the Daily News and the Times, and the afternoon Post, ceased publication late Wednesday when negotiations with 1,550 pressmen failed to win relief from what the publishers see as overstaffing.

The three papers have a combined cir-culation of about 3.25 million.

The dailies carried through with a threat made two weeks ago that they would post new work rules at a specific time if no settlement was reached to replace a contract that expired March 30. The rules institute an attrition program to reduce pressroom workers by as much as 50 percent over several years.

The pressmen warned that such unilateral action would result in an immediate strike. The newspapers countered that they would not publish if the pressmen struck.

Alleged Murder Attempt Lands City Man In Jail

A Lubbock man who told officers Wednesday night he had been shot at by a woman at a club in the 1500-block of Ave-nue C, was himself arrested several hours later for allegedly attempting to kill the owner of the same nightspot.

The 21-year-old black man flagged down two policemen about 10:45 p.m. at the intersection of 13th Street and Avenue C and told of the woman at the club shooting at him.

The officers, according to reports, went to the club and found a .22 caliber pistol in the woman's purse. Another person at the bar told police he was hit in the face while attempting to break up a fight be-tween the man and woman.

However, no arrests were made until officers returned to the club about 1:15 a.m. today after hearing gunfire. Club owner Robert E. Locke told police he was getting out of his car in front of the nightspot when someone started shooting at him, one bullet lodging in his Arresting officer Bobby Westmoreland said a large crowd had gathered as he chased the man who earlier had been a complainant at the club. Westmoreland apprehended the man in an alley in the 1400-block of Avenue C, where Locke reportedly ran up and said, "That's him. That's the man who shot at me.

The suspect was taken to Lubbock County Jail on suspicion of attempted murder. A .22 caliber rifle was found near the spot where the early morning gunshots were heard.

In another of several recently reported assaults, a 26-year-old woman was shot in the shoulder about 11 p.m. Wednesday as she drove west in the 2700-block of East Ninth Street.

Ethel Humphery told police she and a friend were traveling on East Ninth Street when a 1965 black Ford began following them. She said she was making a stop at a stop sign when someone from the Ford began shooting at her car.

One of the five bullets which struck Mrs. Humphrey's pickup reportedly lodged in the victim's shoulder. The suspect then drove off, and the two women met with police about a block from where the shooting occurred.

Two men in a 1971 brown Plymouth backed into an attendant at Pat's Service Station, 519 Idalou Highway, about 8:45 p.m. Wednesday after apparently getting angry over the service they were getting. A station employee, Leonard A. Warren, told police the suspects drove up and began yelling at him when they were unable to pump the gas themselves.

The driver allegedly got a tire tool and threatened Warren, while the other man went into the station. Edward Hamilton. another employee, then appeared and the suspects drove off. But not before backing into Hamilton, who was standing in the service drive. Hamilton was not seriously injured.

After the suspects left, a .38 caliber pistol was discovered missing from a drawer in the station.

Calvin Desmond's attempt to teach two men how to be more polite to a lady ap-parently caused him to get beat up at the intersection of Third Street and University Avenue about 1 a.m. Wednesday

Desmond, of 5326 21st St., said he got out of his car near the intersection after two men in a red, two-door Chevrolet yelled obscenities at his girlfriend. However, the men also got out of their car and proceeded to beat up Desmond, reports show. The suspects were described as being in their 20s.

Mike Bedford, music director of Bacon Heights Baptist Church, 5039 53rd 5t., said be discovered a $1,350 drum set missing from the church. He said the set could have been stolen at the beginning of the scouth.

could have been stolen at the beginning of the month.

Grave robbers apparently struck City of Lubbock Cemetery within the past month, stealing a $500 statue of Christ off a marble stab. Nora Lee McCrary told police the theft must have occurred between July 26 and Wednesday.

Lewzetta J. Gloyna of Lockney said she left her spot at the Mahon Library about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, and when she returned her purse, containing $55 and several credit cards, was gone. The purse was later found in front of the library, but it had been emptied.

A $600 television set was the apparent target for whoever entered Ricardo Arguelles' residence at 1620 Beech Ave. Wednesday. Arguelles and several neighbors reported seeing suspicious vehicles roaming the residential area several days before.

A burglar or burglars apparently far-cied Joe Gonzales' stereo set-up, valued at $600, when they broke into his home at 1710 Spruce Ave. He told police the equipment apparently was taken while he was gone from 11:30 p.m. Wednesday and 1:10 a.m. today.

Johnny Rodgers, owner of Lubbock
Music Center, told police he suffered a loss of $1.560 when his 1722 Broadway store was burglarized about 1:15 a.m. today. He reported a door glass broken and two accordions stolen.

Large amounts of cash seemed to be the target of burglars in the latest reports of such incidents.

Catherine E. Pierson, ma Catherine E. Pierson, manager of the KoKo Club at 5101 Ave. Q. told officers that sometime Tuesday burglars, after gaining entry to the main building. pushed out the ceiling tile in the down-stairs club to get into that room.

She said that cash from a money bag in the club's office, change from the ciga-rette machine and juke box and 42 packs of rigarettes were taken. She set the loss, which included damage to the ceiling and pool tables, at $1,200. David L. Holtkort said that who

U.S. Artist Uses Living Models To Help Recreate Masterpieces

NEW YORK (UPI) - It all started face. with the Americanization of Rembrandt. Tom Lohre was wandering the halls of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, trying to decide which masterpiece to copy to prove his skills as an artist.

His eye caught Rembrandt's "Duke of Orange" and he set up his easel in front of the portrait by the 17th-century Dutch

"As I was working, I noticed something odd about the stern-faced aristocrat," Lohre said. "Then it hit me - he was a dead ringer for my friend Bill Tobey."

Excited, he completed the canvas, leaving only the face blank. Back in his studio, he had his friend pose and filled in the

Now, Lohre has parlayed his technique for facelifting old masterpieces into a business venture, even taking out advertisements in a local newspaper promising "your face in a famous painting" for fees ranging from $500 to $1,000.

His latest undertaking is brushing the face of a businesswoman into a likeness of Vermeer's "Woman with a Lute."

"It's fun," the dark, casually dressed artist said over coffee in a sidestreet cafe. "Of course, I have to make subtle alterations in color tones and facial shapes, but the result is surprisingly authentic.

"I think people are intrigued by the thought of becoming part of a master-piece. It makes them feel important and gives them a sense of permanence, For some, it's the fulfillment of a fantasy."

He scoffs at the notion he's promoting a gimmick to make a few extra bucks. 'This is not a get-rich-quick scheme, by any means," he said. "It may be different, but it's still art."

In fact, he said, most of his income comes from original portraits, although even in that field he specializes in the off-

For example, a Frenchman asked Lohre to portray him in a setting that would convey the flavor of his hometown, the port city of Marseille. The artist showed his customer pulling a large fish from the inside of a white sport coat, waves crashing in the background.

'He loved it," Lohre said. "It's a matter of illustrating the unique characteristic of an individual. For example, I'd love to the president of IBM standing over a computer."

But what, he was asked, would the old masters think of his unorthodox tampering with their own works?

"As long as I did a good job reproducing their color, form and brushstroke and made my subject look as if he be-longed — I'm sure they'd approve wholeheartedly," he said.

But in truth, many of them are appalled. They know (or should know) that there is lard in government at every level and most now realize that they should have been whacking away at it long ago.

But in the meat-ax approach of Proposition 13, many see the French Revolution's Reign of Terror, with Howard Jarvises all over the country eager to drop the guillotine on any public official who suggests there are some government services worth continuing even at the expense of retaining current tax levels.

Some also see darker forces. One politi-cian who has addressed this was Michi-gan Republican Gov. William Milliken, who warned against letting tax cutting Spanish-speaking and the poor, the GOP should disassociate itself.

Republican National Committee Chairman Bill Brock is fully committed to deep tax cuts at the federal level, but he does not want that to be taken as endorsement of every proposal to reduce the bite on taxpayers. While in Detroit re-cently, he agreed with Milliken that the Proposition 13-like Tisch initiative offered in Michigan was a far different proposition than the real thing in Califor-

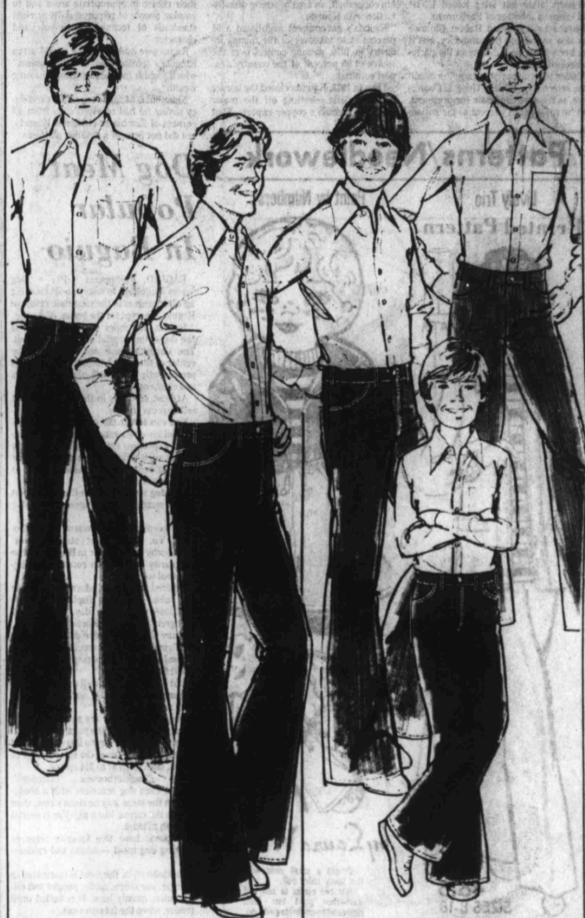

And former President Gerald Ford, who was counted among the supporters of Proposition 13 in California, went out of his way to let voters in his home state know that he could not be so characterized on the Michigan proposal.

It probably is true that American politicians have misjudged the temper of the people they are supposed to be represent-ing and leading. Their best hope now is that it isn't too late for them to channel the revolt that happened without them into reforms they should have been work-

Zambia's Only President Faces Tough Opposition

By SHAD SOKO

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Kenneth
Kaunda, Zambia's only president in 14 years of independence from Britain, is facing a strong challenge from two veteran opponents in presidential sweepstakes next month

next month.

Simon Kapwepwe, 56, who was successively Kaunda's childhood friend, top lieutenant, vice president and detained opponent, has posed the most serious threat. He has promised, if elected, to reopen Zambia's economically vital border with Rhodesia to the south and scrap socialist policies that now are the rule for the south-central African nation's 5.5 million people.

His pledges could find strong support among members of Zambia's sole legal party, the United National Independence Party (UNIP), who claim Kaunda's closure of the Rhodesian border and his socialist policies have brought serious economic problems to the landlocked country bounded on the east and northeast by Angola, the north by Zaire and Tanzania, the west by Malawi and southeast by Marambique.

Another opponent is Harry Nkumbula, a 64-year-old veteran of African nationalism with a strong personal following in the South. Nkumbula fought Kaunda decision in 1972 to turn Zambia into a one-party state but later joined UNIP and is now a member of Parliament.

Lusaka businesssman Robert Chiluwe has also announced his candidacy, but it has been given no publicity in the party-controlled press.

Under the one-party system, the candidate selected by UNIP's General Conference, is the sole candidate for president. But he must get 51 percent of the national vote to be elected.

The date for national election has not been announced, but the General Conference, at which the party's candidate will be selected, has been set for Sept. 9-12.

move, and sian black president government as a "from as

The party's National Council has already declared Kaunda its choice and the party-controlled Times of Zambia has declared: "This is not the time to change the presidency. It is time to consolidate the support of the masses for President Kaunda."

For the 55-year-old president, the challenge is not the first in a stormy political career. He was jailed by the British rulers of what was Northern Rhodesia before independence in 1964, and his declaration of a one-party state was a calculated risk to defuse bickering among Zambia's 73 tribes.

The risk appeared to pay off when Nkumbula, with a powerful following in the South, and Kapwepwe, who draws support from the powerful Bemba tribe in the North, joined UNIP. Until then Nkumbula had talked of a possible civil war and Kapwepwe had been detained with more than 100 of his followers.

But now political sources here believe that Kapwepwe's return to the party last year was a preparation for a challenge to Kaunda. Significantly, Kapwepwe announced his candidacy in Zambia's northern copperbelt, an area of strong dissatisfaction with Kaunda.

Kaunda's government negotiated a 51 percent state takeover of the mining industry in 1970, gaining control over the source of 95 percent of the country's export earnings.

Then in 1973, Kaunda closed the border with Rhodesia, shutting off the major route for Zambia's copper exports. That move, and Kaunda's support for Rhodesian black nationalist guerrillas, won the president the respect of black African governments and gave him a major voice as a "frontline" leader in southern Afri-

But in later years the price of copper plummeted, the export route through Angola was severed by the civil war there, and the only other route — through the Tanzanian port of Dar Es Salaam — proved incapable of coping with Zambia's export and import needs.

The economy has rapidly deteriorated. There are periodic shortages of basic food items and spare parts in the country. Earlier this year the United States, Britain and the International Monetary Fund agreed to inject massive loans and credits to stave off bankruptcy.

Announcing his candidacy, Kapwepwe vowed to scrap Kaunda's socialism and to eliminate alleged official corruption, robbery and other crimes by creating more employment.

"Immediately on taking office, my government will see to it that all available routes for exports and imports are open with greater emphasis on the use of the most economic and secure routes," he said.

"Private investors will be welcomed and encouraged to open up industries of their choice in appropriate areas and to employ people of required skills or right standards of technical know-how and character."

Kapwepwe added that he would scrap Kaunda's philosophy of "humanism" which forbids individuals from amassing wealth.

Nkumbula, 64, announced his candidacy saying he had received calls from all corners of Zambia to challenge Kaunda, but did not present a detailed platform.

Dog Meat Popular In Baguio

BAGUIO, Philippines (UPI) — Dog lovers don't have to worry about cleaning up after canines in the mountain resort of Baguio — except for the bones, of course.

Baguio. 120 miles north of Manila, is the dog-eating capital of the Philippines. The slaughterhouse and market in the center of the city of 100,000 features dogs prominently along with pigs, goats, cows and chickens, At least six stalls in the public market

You can forget the old fable about unscrupulous chefs substituting dog for the more expensive cuts. Dog is a delicacy and as such is highly prized; it sells for about 82 cents a pound, almost twice as much as pork.

"It keeps the body warm," said Dolores Yu, a dog-meat stall operator. That's why it is popular in Baguio, whose popularity comes from constant, springlike cool weather.

Severed dog heads adorn the stalls in the public market to display the breeds available on a given day. Small black mongrels are a local favorite. Many Filipinos believe dog's blood has Dogs for slaughter are sold by lowland villagers, who truck the pups up the snaking mountain highway to Baguio in lots of at least 50 at a time. On the paw, so to speak, dogs fetch $7 to $14 apiece.

cooking dog meat — adobo and caldere-

In adobo styla, the meat is marinated in vinegar, soy sauce, garlic, pepper and citrus juice, mainly lime. It is boiled until lender, when the fat oozes out.

Caldereta is preferrad by beer drinkers. This style demands the meat be cut into fairly small pieces, then sauteed with garlic, pineapple juice, tomato sauce, potato cubes and a healthy dose of small, mouth-searing green chill peppers.

This goes on under the umbrella of Advanced Placement, a College Board program installed in 4,300 secondary chools nationwide. That's up from 3,240

Last May, 94,000 high school youths took the hard Advanced Placement examinations to show their expertise at college-level performance in one or more of 13 subjects studied the college-way while a sophomore, junior or senior. Most, as

"While meeting needs of the first group, the school has not ignored the potential of the second," Hanson said.

"Some of Banning's Advanced Place-

Hanson said private and public colleges in every state recognize a good exam score as proof of college level achievement.

Harvard University, for one example, every fall lets about 300 freshmen enter as sophomores on the basis of their Advanced Placement grades. That saves student and family a year's college expenses, now around $8,000 at that school.

At the University of Michigan, advanced students make up almost 25 percent of freshmen classes. At Clemson University in South Carolina, 15 percent.

Many advanced students use time saved in college work to enrich, diversify and strengthen their academic programs. Others put credits earned in high school toward their college degree, grad-uating early, also "earning" early if they

This is an almost universal syndrome among the very bright high school students nation-wide who have taken all the hard courses their schools offer and done well. There is nothing left to challenge them that last year, so they become bored and apathet-

In schools with advanced courses this senior slump doesn't happen and the abler students who thrive on challenge do not get bored.

But there's more to it than avoiding apathy. Hanson said students in the courses learn the study habits required in college. The confidence gained through the knowledge of surviving and doing well in college-level work pays off in other ways.

"These habits appear to have lasting benefits," Hanson said.

"Study after study has shown that Advanced Placement students continue to achieve at a high level.

"They take more college courses and earn higher grades than students of similar ability who enter college without this experience."

Major costs to schools offering the college level courses: the expense of running smaller classes and requiring more teacher preparation.

anks Offer Service To Help Grieving Families

By JOHN CUNNIFF NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walker's heart always will be bigger than his wallet, and that says a lot. Bill isn't poor.
"You can't help people without helping

Eight years ago, Bill was selling life in-surance — more than a million dollars worth a year — a good friend died, leaving behind the usual confusion of records for his family to work through Somebody, he thought, should make a career of helping survivors determine their benefits. The idea possessed him, and so on Jan. 28, 1971, he founded S.O.S. in his hometown of Athens.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Vjenceslav Cizek, a political activist who fled to West Germany in 1972, was arrested after he returned to Yugoslavia illegally and has been sentenced to 15 years in jail, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported.

The report said that while in West Germany, Cizek became a leader of the Croatian Republican Party. It said the party was a fascist organization opposed to Yugoslavia's Communist government.

ARE YOU STILL TAKING HEADACHE TABLETS TO RELIEVE LOW BACK PAIN?

There's a big difference in pain relievers. And a big difference in pain. When back muscles go into spasms they become stiff and knotted. The pain feels different than simple headache pain. You want more than an ordinary headache remedy.

MOMENTUM® Tablets are specially formulated to relieve low back pain...not simple headaches. In minutes, painful spasms start to relax. Tense, tight muscles loosen.

MOMENTUM has extra painfighting medicines. A fast-acting pain reliever. A longer-lasting one. And a special calmative doctors often recommend. It relieves the tension that helps cause your muscles to tighten. If you're suffering lorv back pain...don't expect an ordinary headache remedy to give you all the strength and relief you get from MOMENTUM. Discover the big difference in MOMENTUM Tablets, Use only

Deaf Customers Get Assist From Bank

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Deaf customers at the First National Bank of St. Paul have a bank officer who speaks their landers with the street of t ghage — sign language.

Personal banker John May, 29, has no hearing impairment, but he became interested in "signing" while watching deaf bank employees communicate. He began taking most of his breaks with them to develop his signing vocabulary.

May remembers one occasion when the May remembers one occasion when the sign language was particularly helpful. A deaf woman had come to the bank to wrap up details of a home improvement loan in the presence of three contractors and two bank officers. None knew sign language.

"A total misunderstanding had developed. The woman was in tears," May said. "I was called over and when I began signing, the woman immediately relaxed. In 10 minutes, we were able to go ahead with the loan."

Another encounter with a female cu

tomer ended as happily, but not without some preliminary difficulties. May recalled signing to an attractive deaf customer that he was hungry and getting ready to go to lunch. While he thought of what to say next, he repeated the sign, which he explained is the equivalent in sign language of a stutter or stammer.

"In signing, hunger and passion have the same symbol — except that the passion sign is repeated. She understood that I was extremely passionate for her. But we soon solved it," May said.

May took training sessions at St. Paul Technical Vocational Institute to perfect his signing methods. "But most of my learning has really come from the customers," May said.

He estimated the bank has up to 200 deaf customers. About 50 of them contact him for regular banking services or when they run into a problem caused by inability to communicate, he said.

If CB radio had been around in Horatio Alger's day, this would be a story for While going to high school, Randy Veselka of Corpus Christi did odd jobs to make an extra buck. He'd gotten married at 16, and he needed the money. CB was a hobby he'd gotten interested in. He loved it so much that he scraped together $500 when he was 17, bought 10 CB units from a distributor he had gotten to know, and sold them for a handsome profit. Plowing back the profits as fast as he could, buying and selling more units, he built up his capital to $20,000. This was in 1975.

Randy decided to set up shop and go into the CB business real. He had his eyes on the big time and CB was the way to do it.

eyes on the big time and CB was the way to do it.

"It only took me five days to sell my first 10 CB radios," Randy explained.

"That opened my eyes to the opportunities that were all around me. I needed to find a way of letting people know about me. I couldn't afford advertising in the traditional way. So, I just had a bunch of leaflets printed up and after school every day, I'd put them on windshields of cars on shopping center parking lots, and at night clubs in the evenings. The leaflets had my telephone number and the calls started coming in."

These efforts have led to the CB Warehouse, Inc., a company completely owned by Randy. Now 19, Randy operates from a 650-square-foot store in Corpus Christi. He's now constructing a larger facility. This year his business will have gross sales of nearly $1 million. And this is only the beginning.

"We've got 11 employees now, four trucks and about 500 items in our line," he said when interviewed in his store. "Dad sold out his own business and joined us about a year and a half ago. I had decided we should expand from exclusively CB into the broader scope of automobile sound, which meant a tremendous expansion for us. We had developed a lot of customers from our CB sales and service that wanted other sound items for their cars and I knew we could handle the expansion."

Randy has been proven right from the very beginning of his CB days. Starting out, he bought from Texas distributors and retailed his products. As he grew, he began to buy from manufacturers direct because his volume was sufficient to earn the attention of the big boys. Now he does much of his own importing, gathering nearly 75 percent of his CB gear from the Far East himself. He has manufacturers supplying him from Japan, Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong. Later this year he plans to become a national distributor and expand CB Warehouse even further.

"I plan for our company to do about $6 million in sales by 1983," he added.

"About $1.5 million of this will be retail here in Corpus, and $4.5 will be whole-sale through our distribution division. CB still represents about one-half our total volume and it is as steady as a rock."

Randy says that his profits have been steady, too, ever since he started in business. He reports that 50 percent of his CB sales are to new CBers, 40 percent are CBers buying second sets, and about 20 percent are replacement units. To Randy, now the father of two youngsters, living in his own townbouse, and driving a new CB-equipped car, life is great.

Dow Jones Up 3.03 To 894.66

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market turned upward today after taking a short pause for profit-tak-

The Dow Jones index of 30 industrials was up 3.03 to 894.66 at noon. Declines outnumbered advances by a slim margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Big Board volume totaled 16.77 million shares in the first two hours of trading, down sharply from 22.17 million by noon the day

The Dow, up by more than 11 at one point Wednesday, fell back later in the day as the market retreated. The pullback continued into today's early trading before the mar-ket did an about-face, shrugging off news about inflation and crude oil prices.

In Washington, the government said wholesale prices rose .5 percent in July, the slowest gain in five months

A survey of government securities dealers, meanwhile, indicated they expected the Federal Reserve to report a sizable jump in the nation's money supply today, bringing on fears of new credit-tightening moves. But Fed Chairman G. William Miller told reporters today he expects loan demand to slacken and hopes interest rates will peak by the end of the year.

In other news, the Shah of Iran said the Orgnization of Petroleum Exporting Countries should boost the price of oil by an unspecified amount when it meets in Decem-

Ramada Inns topped the NYSE most-actives, up 1/4 at 93/4. Charter New York was up 11/2 to 33% and Pan Am, hit by a Teamsters' walkout, fell ¼ to 7%. LTV rose % to 11½ and Borden was ahead ¾ at 28%. A 207,300-share Borden block changed hands at 28%. 1BM was up 11/2 at 2901/4.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .05 at 58.80 while the American Stock Exchange's market value in-dex rose .52 to 160.56.

Kidnapping Charges Filed Here

Two Lubbock men were charged today with aggravated kidnapping as a result of an early Monday incident in which a young married woman said she was attacked near a laundromat at 9th Street and Avenue V.

Named in the charges were Neal Williams, 18, of 2623 E. Bates St., and Stephen Craig Finch, 17, of 3310 E. Baylor

Following the recommendation of the criminal district attorney's office, Justice of the Peace Charles Smith today set Williams' bond at $100,000 and set a $25,000 bond on Finch.

The 18-year-old woman indicated she had been sitting near a phone booth waiting for a telephone call, since she had no telephone at her residence. The woman said she had spoken to two men a couple of times when they approached her be-fore the alleged attack.

According to the woman, one of the two men began following her as she at-tempted to walk away. She said the man grabbed her from behind and started pulling her toward an alley.

In a statement given police, the young woman said the man threatened to shoot her if she screamed, and also threatened to beat her.

The woman screamed, she said, and was then hit on the left side of the head. Reports indicate the woman grabbed a stairway of some apartments. The woman told officers the assailant and his companion both then started pulling her toward the alley.

The woman said she was released when she noticed a man standing by a residence and called to him for help.

The incident reportedly took place shortly before 1 a.m. Williams and Finch were arrested by police in the 2300-block of Main Street about 1:25 a.m.

According to reports, the woman identified the two suspects as the men involved in the incident. A Texas Tech University student who lives near the laundromat also identified the two suspects, police reports showed.

Korchnoi Win Evens Score At Tourney

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Soviet defector Viktor Korchnoi won his first victory in the world chess championship match today, defeating champion Anatoly Karpov in a dramatic finish of their 11th game and pulling even in the overall score.

Karpov, playing black, resigned after making his 50th move.

Both the 47-year-old challenger and the 27-year-old Soviet champion now have one victory each. Their other nine games all ended in draws.

The first man to win six games is the champion and receives $350,000. The loser gots $200,000. The match, which began July 18, is expected to last two or three months.

NL NL

Karpov had just completed his 50th move — a queen's check to Korchnoi's king — when he resigned after taking a glimpse of Korchnoi's 51st move as the challenger was sealing it. The move, a queen to bishop 2, protected his king. When he saw Korchnoi's 51st move. Karpov wrote on his scoresheet "1-0," which signified his resignation," chief arbiter Lothar Schmid of West Germany said.

Korchnoi's opening move appeared to catch Karpov by surprise. He engaged Karpov in a close Sicilian game, which had not been used previously in their tournament. It took Karpov two minutes to answer Korchnoi's pawn to king's knight 3 opening. He finally composed his first move, a pawn to queen's bishop 4, which eventu-ally led to the Sicilian variation. In previous games, Korchnoi made several blunders that cost him a shot at victory, but this time it was Karpov who succumbed to errors, especially in the 25th and 26th moves. Before the game began, Karpov accused Korchnoi of using the tournament as "a cold war battlefront. It was the latest in the series of insults the two have hurled at one another since the tournament began.

Following is the move by move of to day's victory by Korchnoi.

Labor Allegations Under Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal Organized Crime Strike Force reportedly is investigating allegations that a New Jersey Teamsters local is pressuring members into contributing to the de-fense fund of a former union boss con-

A source familiar with the investiga-tion said the strike force is looking into reports that the union members are being pushed to contribute money for "Tony Pro" Proventano.

If you really want to splurge, there are screened concrete cottages, with rooms 15 feet by 15 feet, at $18.50 daily for two ($21 in November) with electric lighting, twin beds and the same equipment provided tent renters. The rates for additional persons - no more than four for a total of six in a cottage - is the same as in the rented tents.

There are 40 cottages, 40 prepared sites with tents and 10 bare sites. No equipment is rented to bare-site tenters. The other rentals require a $20 deposit on utensils and linens.

The campground facilities also include four bathhouses with flush toilets and cold water showers. Many Nations Flying Own Flags On Ships

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) - The flag of convenience trend which has mushroomed so dramatically in ocean shipping since World War II will grow less rapidly in the years ahead, says the Liberian Shipowners Council, Ltd.

The council is composed of large American, European and Asian ship operators, particularly American oil companies. The Liberian flag fleet is the largest in the world, although it dates only from

The council, of which Jeremy M. Smith is executive director, has issued a study flags or flags of convenience. giving the following reasons for forecasting that relatively fewer American and European-owned ships will be registered under Liberian, Panamanian, Honduran or other flags from now on:

-Increased national protectionism around the world. More governments are changing their laws to offer incentives to

Officer Says Allegations Unfounded

CLEVELAND (UPI) - A Marine Corps general Wednesday claimed that allegations of massive recruiting fraud in the Cleveland area were unfounded but admitted high school records of 15 recruits had been doctored.

Brig. Gen. Roy C. Moss, assistant commander of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C., disclosed at a news conference part of an in-house investigation into the allegations of fraud by Marine recruiters in northern Ohio.

Moss said a spot check of about 90 high school recruits showed that 15 of them had been changed to make the individual eligible for the Marine Corps. The investigation was launched after

Sen: Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, called for a probe following the attemted suicide of a Cleveland youth who claimed he was duped by recruiters into joining the Marines

The recruit, Kevin McNeeley, 18, said promises made by recruiters before he oined the Corps were never kept. He drank brass cleaner after officers refused to discharge him. McNeeley has since been discharged.

Moss said from Jan. 1, 1978 through July 21, 1978, 943 applicants were recruited by the Marines in the Cleveland area. A check of recruit records through this time turned up the 15 doctored diplomas. Seven recruiters were identified as the recruiters of record in these instances with four out of the seven having only one false document," said Moss. "All the allegations about recruiting practices in the Cleveland area are unfounded." Moss said. Moss also said felony records of some recruits were waived as has been the practie of the Marine Corps for some time if the individual is deemed worthy of the Corps.

The senator disclosed that more than 12 former and current Marine recruiters have given sworn testimony about irregularities in recruiting practices.

Improper practices allegedly included hiding felony conviction records of some applicants, supplying illiterate or nearly applicants with entrance exams prior to testing, forging letters applicants appear to be high aduates and hiding serious phystheir shopowners to register vessels under their own flags.

-The spectacular rise of "third world" fleets, such as those of Brazil, Hong Kong. South Korea. These are not flags of convenience. The ships are owned or chartered by nations of those countries. Brazil has become one of the world's top ship-builders.

Rate-cutting by ships built, owned and operated by the communist bloc nations, which in turn forces cuts and rebates by western shipping lines whether they operate under their own national

-The general change in the nature of ocean shipping other than big tankers, to container ships and specialist ships, which may require more highly trained

-Worldwide demands for higher and more costly safety and inspection standards for flag of convenience vessels. These demands grow out such oil spill disasters as the collision of the Liberian flag tankers Pacific Glory and Allegro in the English Channel in 1970; the Argo Merchant wreck off Nantucket shoals at the end 1976: the collision of the tankers Venpet and Venoil, under charter to Gulf Oil, off the South African coast, last year: the explosion of the Sansinema in Los Angeles harbor in December, 1976, and several others.

In addition, the Liberian Council conceded that the activity of the International Federation of Transport Workers ultimately may limit the use of flags of convenience by European shipowners. The ITWF is a federation of unions and, according to the Liberian Shipowners council the main thrust of its activity is to compel European shipowners to hire European seamen no matter what flag their

Two influential British periodicals that follow shipping closely, The Financial Times and Seatrade Magazine, appear to give considerable weight to the efforts to the ITWF to organize an European boycott of Liberian flag ships.

Insofar as the United States shipowners are concerned, the trend to flag of convenience operation is more likely to continue to grow. The Merchant Marine Act of 1936 requires that all U.S. flag shipping must be built in American yards and crewed only by American citizens. The earlier Merchant Marine Acts of 1916 and 1920 leaned in this direction. The Liberian Shipowners Council study says this requirement raises the cost of U.S. flag ship operation to as much as three times that foreign flag operation and that U.S. government subsidies cannot offset this.

The Liberian Shipowners Council, which includes such magnates as D.K. Ludwig, C.Y. Tung and the Onassis Estate and such petroleum giants as Exxon, Mobil. Shell, Gulf, Amoco and Conoco, is much exercised though over the bad images the Liberian flag has presented to the world because of the oil spill disasters of recent years.

The council contends that these disasters are great exceptions, that the safety standards of most of the vast Liberian flag fleet are equal to those of ships flying the Stars and Stripes and often superior to the standards of British ships. pay for officers and crews on Liberian ships is below that maintained by American unions, the council contends that the scales are higher than those paid on many European and Asian flag ships.

The officers and crews of the Liberian flag ships are drawn from all over the world. Very few of the seamen come from the tiny African republic of Liberia, founded by slaves repatriated from

She wore a simple black sundress. At 34, she is a petite "gamine" type turned-up nose, broad smile, sparkling brown eyes, curly dark hair. She speaks refined French in a cultured, deep voice. One might not guess that for five years she was a prostitute in various Paris brothels that welcomed hundreds of customers day and night.

Jeanne Cordelier is a new best-selling author for having exposed her very unproper life in her sordid but compassionate autobiography, "Le Derobade" (The escape). It has sold 300,000 copies since 1976 in France alone. It has been translated in 18 countries and finally was published in the United States in July under the title, "The Life: Memoirs of a French Hooker.

"I left prostitution 10 years ago," she said. "I worked in it for five years beginning when I was 20. My father was a thief. We slept nine to a room in a Paris

Her book opens with reflections on what she could have said to a Paris policeman who arrested her: "I could have replied to the cop who asked my why, that it was simply because I was fed up with six of us brushing our teeth with the same brush, scratching it on laundry soap wallowing on the kitchen sink, or even more that the hunt for bedbugs did not thrill me.

"Prostitution should be killed," Miss Cordelier said with emotion while her aged bulldog named Sweetia snored on her sunny terrace. "Women do not profit doctors, hotels, pimps.

"Prostitution is increased by everything in society. Advertising, radio, all those things you want to possess and to get them you need money.

The ex-prostitute reflected that prostitution apparently has not decreased since the sexual revolution gave "respectable" women the liberty to pursue sex just as men do. "Sexual revolution," she said with a bitter laugh. "Those are only words, a cliche, it's not real."

After working in brothels, Miss Cordelier decided to change her life and moved to Canada. There she kept house and tended children for a family in Montreal.

"They knew about my past, they helped me," she said. "I started work on the book there. Then I returned to France and lived in the country in an old house and finished it."

A friend took her manuacript to a publisher. Now she has written and sold a novel about "love and life," and started on a third book

Since her book thrust her into the literary limelight she has received many letters from readers, "people in despair." "I have learned to live with myself," she said with a smile. "I tried several times to kill myself but that's over now. "Everybody must seek contentment within themselves. No exterior person doctor, priest - can do this for you. I did it all by myself. My father has found himself, too. He runs a little restaurant now.

"You can find someone to love after you find yourself. I live with a man but I do not want to marry. Marriage is a celebration. It's administration. It's prison.

The smile faded. "Sometimes I still have difficulties," she added, biting her lower lip and looking down at her hands.

The government has made changes in the plan over the years and, I imagine, will continue to do so. A major reason for the most recent changes was to make the program less likely to belly-up in your lifetime.

Last year's Social Security legislation increased premium contributions and put them on a rising scale to help offset the constantly growing benefits being paid out. (Some members of Congress, however, are talking about cutting back that increase and making up the difference from the government's general reve-

If you were not worried about Social Security's stability 10 years ago, you have less cause to lose sleep now. Let's hope our elected officials will continue to keep a close eye on "our" insurance policy.

QUESTION — I am disabled. It looks like I will be off work for a year or maybe more. Do I have Social Security benefits coming?

ANSWER - If you are 24 or under, you must have credit for 18 months of work during the three years before your disability. From ages 25 to 30, you must have work credit for 50 percent of the time between your 21st birthday and the time of disability.

Disabled people 31 or older must be fully insured and five years of their work must have been in the 10 years prior to disability. Blind people need only to be

A retired person could earn any amount — yes, even $1 million — in one month and then make less than $333 a month during the rest of the year. He or she would forfeit one month's Social Security check, but would receive benefits from Uncle Sam for the other 11 months.

Wall Street Split Over Stock

There's nothing very new about Wall Street's being split over the merits of a stock. After all, even when a stock zooms upward, there has to be a seller for every yer. But the differences that have de-oped over a current hot number have veloped over a current hot number have seen some of the biggest guns in the investment community shooting it out from opposite sides of the street.

Leading the charge is normally careful Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., which has thrown caution to the winds with an unusually glowing report on the impact a newly developed drug might have on the fortunes of Squibb Corp., the pharmaceutical manufacturer.

Fueled in part by the support of the Fueled in part by the support of the world's largest brokerage house, Squibb stock, which had been in the doldrums for the last few years, moved from $25 to $35 in a relatively short period starting in April. What's more, volume soared, topping the million-share mark during a number of weeks, more than tripling the highest weekly volume figures of the previous five years.

That's part of the rub, though. "If there hadn't been serious selling pressure at the same time, the stock would have shot even higher on that kind of sudden volume," a broker who follows the stock closely told us.

Among those arrayed on the opposite side from Merrill Lynch is Blyth Eastman Dillon & Co., Inc., whose research department has been known to feel that buying Squibb stock might be premature, considering the difficulties and delays involved in introducing a new drug, as well as the stock's recent run-up. Word from the floor of the New York Stock Exchange is that Blyth has been a heavy

Blyth informed its registered reps in a conference call of its views on Squibb. but, oddly, it never followed up with a written report. The report never got completed, an official of the firm told us

At Merrill Lynch, however, there are no such reservations about the drug in question, which is called captopril and is now being tested in animals and humans to reduce high blood pressure. The firm says that in early clinical trials, captopril "has shown a degree of effectiveness and freedom from unwanted side effects unparalleled among antihypertensive drugs now being marketed."

But after that caveat, the thundering herd really picks up steam, adding: "On the assumption that safety will be established, however, we believe that captopril represents a breakthrough"—a drug so effective and so superior to existing products that it will revolutionize a critical area of chemotherapy."

Those are strong words, especially from Merrill Lynch, but they're only openers. The reports, written by analyst David N. Paisley, goes on the say: "We believe that in the discovery of captopril, But after that caveat, the the

Woman Held In Child Custody Case

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The grandmother of missing 2-year-old Shane Clark remained jailed early today after being charged with helping the child's mother take him from state welfare authorities.

Air Force Staff Sgt. John Clark, jailed for three weeks because he wouldn't reveal the whereabouts of his missing son, was released Tuesday after promising to help authorities find the infant.

Margie Hightower, 42, was arrested Wednesday in Abilene and charged with interfering with child custody. She was being held here today in lieu of $50,000 bond set by State District Judge Fred

Shannon had awarded temporary custody of Shane to state welfare officials because the infant had received burns from a hot iron. Doctors testified the burns had been made deliberately.

After a visitation session on June 22. the boy disappeared with his mother, Gail Clark. Clark testified during a subsequent permanent custody trial that he knew nothing about the disappearance. After a jury gave permanent custody of the child to welfare authorities on July 18. Clark was held in contempt of court and jailed.

Shannon had issued a warrant Saturday charging child custody interference by the missing Mrs. Clark. Clark, 23, admitted during a court hearing Tuesday that he had lied and said the couple's families, a pastor and several friends had been involved in the plan to take Shane from welfare authorities. The sergeant said the plan was hatched by his former attorney Benjamin Lucas.

"The plans were initiated and they were both made by Mr. Lucas," Clark tearfully told the court. The plan was concocted, Clark said, after Lucas had told Clark and his wife, "If you and Gail want that baby back, the only way you're going to do it is by taking

Lucas, who was fired Saturday as Clark's attorney, denied Clark's allegations. "I did not cook up any plan." he said. "As of this minute. I don't know where the child is and I haven't all

Jabbar 'Chopped' In Movie Debut

HERSKOWITZ

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. According to Variety, the show-business paper, Kareem Abdul Jabbar made his movie debut in the last movie starring the late Bruce Lee, "The Game of Death." The movie is supposed to be breaking box-office records now in Hong Kong. When will it be released in the U.S.A.?

A. Bruce Lee died about three years ago, and every month or so there is another "last" movie of his. The actor's estate, incorporated in Hong Kong, is recycling out-takes of previously discarded film footage to piece together these highly popular films. Jabbar's action was spliced in with a double for Lee, who calls himself Bruce "Li." Says the Laker center, "In my big scene, I got chopped up like a balsa wood ladder. I came down in sections.

The film is distributed piecemeal by regions, so all you can do is keep a sharp eye on the movie listings in Louisville.

Q. Whatever became of Larry Kelley, the former Yale great end and I believe the first lineman ever to win the Heisman Trophy? Where is he living now and

-Edward T. Koczela, Tampa, Fla.

A. Kelley is retired from his job with the Peddie School of Hightstown, N.J. (his old prep school) and is living in Pensacola, Fla., "playing golf and mowing the lawn." At age 63, he plays to a 12-handicap "working toward a 9." He regularly hears from his battery mate, Clint Frank, who is retired and living in the Chicago area, with a winter home in Flordia, too.

Only one other lineman, Leon Hart, of Notre Dame, ever won the Heisman Trophy. Kelley won the Heisman in 1936, Clint Frank in 1937.

Q. I have been asked this question about 30 times, so I thought I would go to the pros for an answer. Does Gary Player pay income tax to the U.S. and South Africa for his winnings in this country? I say he does. -Paul Webber, West Palm Beach, Fla.

A. You are correct. Player pays the U.S. taxes on his winnings here, and he pays tax on the remaining balance to the collectors in South Africa. The procedure is the same around the world.

HOT LINE FEEDBACK

(From Bob Rule, Navasota, Texas): "Your answer in regard to Charlie Sifford and the Legends of Golf tournament shocked me. The information about (promoter) Fred Raphael having any sort of police protection during the Legends is 100 percent wrong. I was with Fred every day of the tournament, and the only police on the grounds were county deputies I hired to assist with traffic. As for Sifford playing next year, there is virtually no chance. There are hundreds of players better qualified than he is. To my way of thinking, inviting Sifford would be discrimination of the worst sort-reverse discrimination- and we don't need that in sports.'

IN REPLY: If you were with Raphael all the time, Bob, one question: Were you wearing a gun? Sifford's sole qualification is that he was the first black to win a PGA tournament, sort of a milestone all its own.

However, Harper says, it's a challenge he considers an honor to have.

Lubbock Christian and the City of Lubbock have been selected from a field of 14 to host this year's edition of a cultural exchange program between Mexico City and Texas cities. The program, which was held last year with Kincaid High School in Houston, is culminated with a football game between high school allstars from Mexico City and the host

The Mexican all-star team will spend a week in the city prior to the game visiting various city attractions. The all-stars are expected to tour Reese AFB and the city's public and private school systems, spending several days inside LCHS class-

One of the prime reasons for Lubbock was selected over the other 13 cities is the Operation Senoritas exchange program for students between the two cities. Harper said. Also, those selecting the site may have wished to visit a different region than in the past.

Harper admitted he knows very little about the Mexican all-stars, but did say they will probably have quickness and possess a great deal of team speed. Although being beaten handily in previous games, Harper said he expects the team will show improvement and will "play fairly competitively." He added that many of the players on the team were on last year's team as well.

Harper said he doesn't know the statistics on the size and weight of the all-star team, but added that further information will be forthcoming from Mexico City.

Martin Rekindles Jackson Feud

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin is still annoyed with Reggie Jackson, but all of a udden, less than two weeks after their latest kiss-and-make-up session, the New York Yankees appear annoyed with Billy Martin.

And just when it seemed that all was going to be peaceful and serene until Martin reassumes the managerial reins in 1980, the turmoil and controversy that has turned. Yankee Stadium into a second Bronx Zoo resurfaced all over again.

The latest furor ignited Wednesday when Martin, with the knowledge of club President Al Rosen, summoned a handful of hand-picked writers to a question-and-answer

And over the spaghetti, ravioli and steak pizzaiola, Martin said that anger over Jackson's actions upon his return from a five-day suspension prompted him to resign as manager of the Yankees and to utter his ill-advised "liar" comments about Jackson At the same time, Martin again said he was sorry that he described Steinbrenner as a "convicted liar" but he refused to back down from his statement that Jackson is a

However, the controversial slugger was summoned to Steinbrenner's office less than an hour before Wednesday night's game with Milwaukee.

Grand Slam Lifts Tigers Past Texas

DETROIT (AP) — Many of the 30,515 a Jim Umbarger curve ball in the upper deck in right field with the bases loaded fans at Tiger Stadium Wednesday night came to see Mark Fidrych, but they left talking about Kip Young and Tim Corcorstrike pitch. "With two strikes on me I choked up on the bat a couple inches because I just wanted to make contact." Corcoran said. "He hung a curve ball and I got all of it." Corcoran has been platooned with Mickey Stanley or John Wockenfuss most of the season, and he thought Manager Ralph Houk might pinch hit for him with the lefthanded Umbarger on the mound. "I didn't think Umbarger was pitching that well tonight and I knew if I pulled Corky they would bring in a righthan-der," Houk said.

Prissy Gold Digger clocked the distance in 20.58 and returned $3.80, $4.20 and $2.80. The filly is owned by Robert W. Moore of Oklahoma City.

Mr. Kleberg Meyers splashed in second and Go Go Gay took third.

Because of the soggy conditions of the turf, all Thoroughbred races, starting with the sixth race, were switched to four

Brewers Falter; Yanks Nab Second

By The Associated Press
Some comedy writer must have gotten hold of the script for the American League East Division pennant race. A few changes here and there, and — voila
— the Boston Red Sox are playing like the Boston Sweat Sox, there's trouble brewing for Milwaukee and the Baltimore Orioles are becoming the official more Orioles are becoming the official bird of the State of Shock.

What's going on here?

-The first-place Red Sox, who dropped a 5-1 decision to the Cleveland Indians Wednesday night, have lost 13 of their lost 21

-The Brewers, in second for all but one day since June 28, gave up five ninthinning runs to New York and suffered an 3-7 defeat - "My worst game in 57 years," was how Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger put it.

—The Orioles managed to lose 2-0 to Kansas City although pitcher Scott McGregor retired the first 20 Royals bat-ters. The setback was their fifth in a row and the eighth in 11 games

Magically, with all this going on, the Red Sox' lead is 7½ games — a margin that would seem comfortable if unseen gremlins weren't so intent on fouling things up and if the Yankees weren't in

The Yankees, of course, are used to chaos and seem to thrive in spite of it. Rudyard Kipling once wrote, "If you can keep your head while all about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you ... then you'll be a man, my son.'

That seems to be what's going on. The victory over Milwaukee, the Yankees' fourth in a row and sixth in the last nine, sent them into second place for the first time since July 6. Under new Manager Bob Lemon they are a modest 11-7, but with everything else going on, New York has stayed in the thick of a battle that may well get more intense as days pass. In other American League games Wednesday, the Toronto Blue Jays blanked the Chicago White Sox 8-0, the Detroit Tigers slammed the Texas Rangers 5-2 and the Seattle Mariners downed the Minnesota Twins 4-1.

Cecil Cooper's ninth-inning home run, Milwaukee's third of the game, seemed to be icing on the cake: It gave the Brewers a 7-3 lead.

But Mickey Rivers cracked a two-run shot to whittle New York's deficit to two runs. Then Chris Chambliss mashed a monstrous drive to center with two men on that missed being a game-winning homer only because Gorman Thomas leaped above the fence to keep the ball in play and hold Chambliss to a double, leaving the Yankees down 7-6.

But it only forestalled a gloomy end for the Brewers. Reggie Jackson, batting with the bases loaded, was hit with a pitch to force in the tying run and when catcher Buck Martinez mishandled Lou Piniella's squeeze bunt on the next pitch. Chambliss stormed in from third to win

"Unbelievable," said Bamberger, "We wind up sitting in the clubhouse when he had a lock.

Poke Regulars To Face Denver

Dallas Cowboys will go with their starting lineup most of the way in their battle Saturday in Denver in a rematch of Super Bowl XII, Coach Tom Landry

"Some of the regulars will probably play as much as three quarters. I think the national television and the 'Orange Crush' crowd make this a little different from most pre-season games," Landry

Landry said he probably will go with quarterback Roger Staubach the first half and alternate among Danny White, Glenn Carano and possibly rookie Ken Smith the last half.

Although he said veterans will play much of the game in the effort to beat Denver, Landry added that the new players will see action. With 71 players in camp, plus holdout kicker Efren Herrera also on the roster, Landry must cut the roster by 12 players next Tuesday to meet NFL 60-player limits.

His sentiments were echoed by NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien, who said he had a reputation as a pessimist, then added, "even in that context I have a reasonable degree of optimism and that's a lot for me, I can assure you."

By unanimous voice vote, the governors authorized O'Brien and the NBA advisory committee to fold the financially troubled Nets if the deal outlined Wednesday is not wrapped up by 12:01 a.m. EDT Aug. 26.

O'Brien said that in the meantime the league would not draw up a new schedule excluding the Nets. He also said the deadline would not be extended.

At their annual summer meeting June 14. the governors gave Nets' principal owner Roy Boe until July 26 to straighten out the franchise's financial situation or face league sanctions.

But on July 26, an agreement in principle to sell the team to a group including Cohen and New Jersey businessmen Joseph and Daniel Taub for an undisclosed amount was announced. A special meeting was set for Wednesday, at which the governors had hoped to give final approval to the deal.

But they found several matters unre-

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) -Steve Cauthen, the first jockey to earn more than $6 million in purses and the rider of 1978 Triple Crown winner Affirmed. has a slight shoulder separation that may jeopardize his ride in the upcoming Travers Stakes.

Cauthen was injured in a spill at Saratoga Wednesday was taken to Saratoga Hospital where X-rays revealed no definite fracture, Dr. William Newey, the hospital's chief of radiology, said. The 18year-old jockey was then released and taken to his family's summer residence in Saratoga.

"Steve Cauthen suffered a slight separtion of the right stenro-clavicular joint," Dr. Newey said. "No definite fracture has been determined at this time.

Cauthen and his mount, Cute As A Button, went down at the quarter mile pole as the pair were battling Frank's Ego for the lead in the third race. The 3-year-old filly, who set the pace in the six-furlong race eventually won by Judging Man, suffered a compound fracture of the cannon bone and had to be destroyed.

Dr. Newey would not speculate on how long the injury would sideline the young jockey. Cauthen was scheduled to ride in the Travers Stakes Aug. 19 Saratoga where Affirmed will renew his rivalry with Alydar, the horse that finished second in each of the Triple Crown

Rose's Challenge Revives Record Searching

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Special Correspondent
Pete Rose's exciting if abortive pursuit of Joe DiMaggio's 56-game baseball hitting streak has revived a once popular parlor pastime — record searching

Once Babe Ruth's sacred home run marks of 60 a season and 714 a lifetime were erased — by Roger Maris and Hank Aaron, respectively — diamond buffs began looking around for other achievements that appeared to be inviolate.

Knocking out the "iron man" feats of baseball's cradle days when an indefatigable machine named Charles "Ole Hoss" Radbourne pitched 60 victories in a single season and the Cincinnati Red Stockings won 130 games without interruption, the most learned baseball professors chose these records as least likely ever to be duplicated:

DiMag's 56-game hitting string.
 Lou Gehrig's longevity of not missing a day's work in 14 years — 2,130 consecutive games in Yankee uniform.

Rose's dramatic challenge to DiMaggio indicated that this record perhaps is not as unreachable as everyone suspected although a case may be made that Rose's miss by 12 games is proof enough of its sanctity.

When in our national pastime will another man come that close? Maybe nev-

Although baseball seems rooted in tradition and sustained by statistics, other sports have had their Mt. Everests, one of the tallest the 100 points scored by basketball's Wilt Chamberlain in 1962. Who in the NBA will ever top it? Don Weiss, Commissioner Pete Rozelle's astute deputy over at the National Football League, cites a couple of passing records of the 1950s and 1960s as the most apt to stand up under the ravages of time. 'Johnny Unitas' feat of throwing a touchdown pass in 47 consecutive games is one of the most fantastic marks in our record book," Weiss says. "It covered a period of five seasons — 1956 through 1960.

"It was during this same era that Bart Starr of the Packers was setting a record of throwing 294 passes without an interception. It may be a long time - if ever - before that record is beaten. Milt Plum came closest with 208.

George Blanda's 335 field goals won't be easy to match because few football players have careers, as Blanda did, spanning four decades (1949-1975). Once Jim Brown's 12,312 yards rushing were considered as unattainable as Babe Ruth's home run production, but then O.J. Simpson came along (10,183 and still The AP's radio sports sage, Charles Morey, a devotee of the sport of kings, re-calls that a horse named Rushaway once won two derbies — the Illinois Derby at Aurora and the Latonia Derby in Kentucky — on consecutive days.

"A rare feat for a horse," says Morey, comparing it to Johnny Vander Meer's consecutive no-hitters for the Cincinnati baseball team back in 1938.

Tennis hasn't produced any staggering highs although Chris Evert is working on a four-year, 118-match winning streak on clay — she has lost on Wimbledon grass and synthetic surfaces — and Guillermo Vilas spun off 51 straight clay court victories in a sweep that included the U.S. Open at Forest Hills last year.

Net historians contend Don Budge didn't lose a match of any description on any surface during his peak years of 1937-38.

Pro golfers are getting bigger, stronger and smarter every year but none is likely to threaten Byron Nelson's record of 11 straight tour victories in 1945. Also, it is inconceivable that any man will overtake the record in major champ ships compiled by Jack Nicklaus, who has 15 Grand Slam titles — Masters. U.S. and British Opens and PGA, each at least three times around - and is still counting. His cache could reach 20 or more.

Records, they tell us, were made to be broken, but there still are some which. because of a unique combination of individual skills and circumstances, hold up like cliffs of solid stone.

THE WHITE HOUSE Fun, Frolic For Aides Disappear

By JAMES GERSTENZANG WASHINGTON (AP) — There are no more water pistol fights in the corridors outside President Carter's Oval Office.

outside President Carter's Oval Office.

There are no more gags, such as White House aides sending to each other a ticking, old-fashioned alarm clock wrapped in a box, pretending it is a time bomb that may explode at any moment.

"No sir. No fun and frolics," reported one White House staff member hired within the last year. "They must have been before my time."

The fun and frolics, actually, reached a height during one week last summer when the president and his wife left the White House and steamy Washington for the rustic, and cooler, climate of Camp David, Md.

That was when a blazing gun battle erupted near Carter's office when junior staff members shot each other with water from squirt guns.

The first family has already taken one vacation at Camp David and is planning another break from Washington later this month. But apparently, the pranksters have already disappeared.

sage on the rear bumper of her small foreign car. But Carter's chief aide, Hamilton Jordan, who was given one of the stickers by Brzezinski, hasn't yet placed it on his car.

Well-Fed Wildlife

The wildlife on the White House grounds has flourished this summer, whether Carter is in residence or at Camp David.

Fortunately for one of the many squirrels that frequent the quiet grounds, one member of the press office staff, Kate King, was at her desk overlooking a secluded path the other day. She maintains a store of unroasted peanuts to feed wrens, pigeons and squirrels and aced only open a window and reach out with a handful of food to attract a

Miss King took advantage of a quiet ternoon to check up on the birds living the Rose Garden outside of Carter's ice and the Cabinet Room.

A family of robins took up residence earlier this summer in a nest just outside of the french doors of the Cabinet Room, After touring the garden and checking on the youngsters in the family, Miss King reported in an announce-ment to no one in particular: "The rob-ins are OK."

U.S., Turkey Begin Base Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) - The decision by Congress last month to repeal the arms embargo against Turkey is already ulting in moves to reopen American bases in that country.

Although President Carter hasn't yet signed the legislation — which he re-quested — State Department officials said Tuesday they have met with Turk-sh envoy Sukru Elekdag and see no maor obstacles in the way of opening four American bases that have been effectively closed since the embargo was imposed in 1975.

Montezuma Canyon, located southeast of Blanding in San Juan County, has been nominated to the National Register of Historic Sites. But the Nancy Patterson area of the canyon, which contains a large Anassati site, is on private land and falls prey to vandals.

"We assumed it was public land, and when we found it was private land, there was nothing we could do about the vandalism," said Bruce Louthan, Bureau of Land Management archeologist from the Moab District.

He said unless vandals are caught with artifacts taken from public lands there is nothing anyone can do. He said some archeologists call the Nancy Patterson site "a key to the whole area." It appeared to be a ceremonial site which had never been studied by scientists.

"And now it never will be," Louthan said.

"The bullozers — the pothunters — usually concentrate on burial areas. They seem to be callous. They are destroying everything, the buildings, the burials, ev-

Theater Unites Coward, James

ICHESTER, England (UPI) - Sir Neel Coward had an unerring theatrical touch, though in his later life critics loved to take him down a peg. Henry James, the American novelist, was a theatrical disaster by any standard. So it was adventurous of the Chichester Festival theater to end its annual summer season by pairing them up — Cow-ard in a play adapted from someone else, James in a play someone else adapted. Both "The Aspern Papers," Sir Michael Redgrave's dramatization of a James story, and "Look After Lulu," Coward's version of a Georges Feydeau farce, appeared on London stages in 1959.

The late Vivien Leigh persuaded Coward to rewrite Feydeau's "Occupe-toi d'Amelie" as a starring vehicle for her. Ordinarily "The Master" preferred writing plays of his own.

Coward is well remembered as a performer, songwriter and raconteur, actor and professional wit. Yet he was first and foremost a playwright — he produced more than 50 plays, and only two were

Henry James wrote play after play -Redgrave recalls in a program note his "long and notorious courtship of the theater" - and produced flop after inevitable flop.

Yet his turn-of-the-century novels and stories have been quarried by adapters for 50 years. From "Berkeley Square" to "The Heiress" to "The Turn of the Screw," adapations of James material have succeeded as plays, movies and a Benjamin Britten opera.

Redgrave's version of "The Aspern Papers" is delicate and haunting. It follows an American professor to a crumspinster niece. Jill Bennett as the niece, Kenneth Haigh as the professor -Redgrave him-self played the part originally - and Cathleen Nesbitt's ancient beauty were warmly praised in Chichester's revival.

Coward's contribution could not be more contrasting. Its characters and complexity belong to Feydeau, but its scalpel wit and innuendo are typical Noel

"We wanted to take those people who were part of his life to talk about Elvis as only they could, to really let you know what made the guy go, what he was like in the recording studios, at home, how he reacted to living in Hollywood, why he performed even though overweight and in failing health.

Veteran Musician Enjoys Organizing Prison Groups

SOLEDAD, Calif. (UPI) - Guys who are doing time should learn to keep time, says Buddy Harper. Harper, 75, definitely knows how to keep time. He played piano and composed music for the likes of Duke Ellington, Louis Armstrong, Fats Waller, Nat "King" Cole and Lena Horne during the big-band era of the 1940s and 1950s and still occasionally performs in public.

But for the past seven years he has spent most of his time traveling around the California prison system encouraging inmate musicians to stick with their music, getting beginners involved and organizing prison music shows.

Currently he's at the Correction Training Facility at Soledad, planning a "big blowout" later in the month he hopes Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and other notables will attend.

"I teach, I am an instructor, I write music, I do the whole thing," he says of his prison activities. "In order to be on the 'heavy side,' you got to be able to do just about all of it."

He often stays at a prison for a month or two, living on the grounds, organizing and rehearsing combos and giving beginners lessons when he has the time. Harper recently had a warm reunion with Soledad's prison chaplain, Fred Venecia, whom he hadn't seen in 18 years. Valencia played trombone for Lionel Hampton, Billy Holiday and Lena Horne before entering the ministry and becoming a prison chaplain 12 years ago.

Prison officials say more than 100 inmates of the more than 2,000 at Soledad's three facilities are taking part in the music training and many others have ex-pressed interest. They termed it one of the prison's most successful programs. Harper spends time trying to get the public to donate old or used instruments to the prison system. "My whole purpose in all of my traveling is to integrate people," says Harper.

"And that's not an easy thing. But so far,

I'm very thankful for the progress. It is

Harper says music gives the inmates something they can wake up to in the morning. It helps them pass the time.'

"Music makes me happy at all times," he adds. "If I turn off this music I get no vibrations. You know the Duke used to say we were very fortunate and blessed that God gave us these vibes and we should share them. That's what doing.

How to pull the plug on high electric bills.

Getting angry at the electric company about high bills won't help one bit. Because the problem is probably in your own home. If your heating and air-conditioning system is one of the old, low efficiency types, for example, a General Electric Executive high efficiency system is probably just what you've been wishing for it's the most energy-efficient GE unit available today. Imagine what that can do for your pocketbook!

So, don't get mad at the electric company next time your bill seems too high. Replace your old inefficient unit with a GE Executive high efficiency air conditioner. It has the lowest operating costs in the entire GE line. And, that's a pretty good plug.

The cherry trees were planted partly in the landscaped areas of the Chapultepec Zoo and the remainder were set out on the third section of Chapultepec Park on the western slopes of Mexico City, the Federal District government said.

Sixteen varieties were planted in the park's third section in an experiment to see which thrives best in the climate

Mexico City is at an altitude of 7,350 feet and has a rainy season lasting from June through September. Snow occasionally falls on the upper heights of the city in January and February.

In return for Nagoya's gift, city authorities here have sent a full-sized replica of the Aztec Calendar Stone. The original was carved in two years from 1479-81, stands 12 feet high and weighs 24 tons.

Also sent as a gift to Nagoya from Mexico was a life-sized replica of one of the mysterious Toltec stelae at the Tula archeological site, north of Mexico City.

But when Gaichi visited the ornithology section of the Chapultepec Zoo, he was so impressed by a pair of prince condors that he asked Mexico City officials to give them to Nagoya, the government

Merger Plans Revealed By Olinkraft

WEST MONROE, La. (UPI) - Olinkraft Inc. and Texas Eastern Corp. have signed a $460 million merger agreement to make the paper products company a wholly owned subsidiary of Texas Eastern, a Houston-based energy holding

The merger was in the negotiation stages for several weeks and a formal agreement was announced Tuesday. Olinkraft announced both companies will vote on the merger proposal at meetings

The merger also must be approved by the Securities and Exchange Commis-

Under terms of the agreement, Texas Eastern will take over all of Olinkraft's 29 plants in the United States and Brazil. Among the company's plants in Louisiana are locations at West Monroe, Shreveport, New Orleans and Winnfield.

The company employs more than 3,000 people in West Monroe and 7,000 throughout the world.

Texas Eastern, which said the merger is part of an overall diversification plan, had 1977 revenues of $2 billion and a net income of $123.7 million. Olinkraft re-ported 1977 sales of $381.2 million and net income of $34.6 million.

Goodrich Accused Of Price Fixing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government says the B.F. Goodrich Co. conspired with independent wholesalers and retailers to fix the prices of its tires in Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, Oregon and Washington.

The Justice Department filed a civil antitrust suit against the company Tuesday seeking to restrain Goodrich from continuing the alleged conspiracy. It

Bowdach Tells Panel About Legal Entangling

By JAY PERKINS
WASHINGTON (AP) — A convicted loan shark testified today that he used the Freedom of Information Act to the up law enforcement officers and to find out what the government knew about him and where they were getting the informa-

Gary Bowdach told the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations that although he never was able to identify the informants who were the informants who were supplying infor-mation in his case, he was able to identify the informant on one of his friends.

Asked what happened to that informant, he said he did not know. But he added that judging from the comment of his friends, "I don't expect him to be living

Bowdach estimated that 50 percent of the legal motions such as habeas corpus he filed for himself were frivolous. He said about 75 percent of the motions he filed for other inmates had no merit.

Some were totally frivolous and were just to aggravate" the prosecutor who

"We basically tried to bog down the system, to tie up law enforcement officers and prosecutors. They would have to drop the cases they were working on. It just created total turmoil for them," he

Bowdach also said he used the Freedom of Information Act, which is designed to open non-confidential govern-ment records to the inspection of private citizens, "to determine whether that agency had any pending investigation" that might involve him.

In the case of one request where he said an informant was identified, Bowdach said the name of the person had not been completely deleted. He said the inmates were able to identify one letter in that name. They measured the size of the deletion and "backspaced to see how many other letters were left in the name."

sent Bowdach to jail, he testified. "I could not get a document that he request-would send him (the prosecutor) his copy directly.

"We basically tried to bog down the said the document later arrived in the

The document, he said, "could very well have cost the life" of his prosecutor. The document contained the prosecutor's opinion that Bowdach "was extremely dangerous and completely without feelings."

Bowdach said the document angered him because the prosecutor "was not compelled to submit this document. It was optional. The fact that he did, I felt he was shooting at me."

He also said the prosecutor's characterization of him as completely without feelings angered him because "I do have Bowdach said he assumed transmission of that document to him was inadvertant and occurred because the agency "was so bogged down with requests."

Bowdach also noted that even documents that completely deleted the name

"If I knew I met with you in a restaurant in Miami and I got a report that said a confidential informant who met with Bowdach at a restaurant on a certain date said something. I wouldn't need to know your name," he said.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the investigations subcommittee, had said earlier that he believed criminals were using the Freedom of Information Act for such purposes.

Bowdach, who served four years in prison, was testifying for the fifth day before the panel. In earlier appearances he detailed his life in organized crime and in the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

An official of the FBI said in a tele-phone interview Wednesday that "quite a few" requests for information on what the FBI files have on an individual come from prison inmates. "The general procedure now is for a fellow to check into prison, get his greys

FBI's freedom of information branch.

At one point, the FBI had so many requests that it took 12 to 13 months to answer a letter asking for information. Eventually, at the prodding of Congress, the agency transferred 300 agents from field offices around the country and temporarily assigned them to Washington to process the requests.

The agents "were all investigatory field agents with a legal background." said McCreight. Most spent three months to five months in Washington helping clear up the backlog.

"Obviously that's going to have some impact on your investigatory work," he noted.

At present, the agency takes 90 days to 120 days to process a request. McCreight said. The law requires that requests be processed within 10 days.

The FBI currently has authority to permanently employ 379 persons to handle Freedom of Information Act requests.

emment agencies, would cost asiny about $50,000 to administer in the first year and $100,000 in each of the next five years, the FBI alone spent $9.1 million in 1977 on Freedom of Information requests. It is expected to spend about $7 million in this fiscal year.

Bowdach testified Wednesday-that the Atlanta federal prison is run like a country club and that "weapons are about as easy to get as a tooth brush."

Bowdach also said inmates at the prison often were better armed than their guards, that murders could be ordered for as little as $500 and that narrotics flowed freely.

He also told of six murders at the prison, several of which occurred while he was not in the jail. He said his information in two cases came from the information in two cases came from the information came from eyewitnesses to the acts. He did not say where the information came from in the last two murder cases.

Measles Epidemic Predicted; Group Starts Shot Campaign

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - A campaign for strict enforcement of laws requiring immunization against measles has been launched by a group that says without the preventative measures there is a strong chance of an epidemic in 123 cities within the next three years. "Measles is not a harmless childhood disease. It can be fatal," said Dr. James Bowes, president of End Measles, Inc. 'Children can suffer permanent ear and eye damage, bronchial pneumonia or encephalitis."

Bowes said the findings were the result of a computer analysis of measles cases and immunization rates, along with the per and density of susceptible children in 18 states. Bowes, chief of the Marion County Health Division here, said the research established as an epidernic any outbreak of more than 26 cases of measles per 100,-000 persons in any one school season. The number should prod health officials to step up active, community-wide immunization programs, he added.

Thirty-nine cities, including Baltimore, St. Louis, Memphis, San Francisco and Honolulu, showed a 95 percent chance of a measles epidemic, Bowes said. Another 84, including Indianapolis, New Orleans, Denver, Detroit and Omaha, have a 75 percent chance, he said.

Eight states — Indiana, California, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, Rhode Island and Tennessee — had be-tween a 75 percent and 95 percent chance of an epidemic, he said.

There never has been a gauge before on when an outbreak became an epidemic," Bowes said. "The history has been that most health people wait until it gets so full blown that it's obvious to every- Kokomo, LaGrange, Muncie, New Alban-body and then they either start large-scale immunization or try to ride it out until the school year ends.'

He said that for example there already have been 6,600 cases of measles in Michigan this year - 6,000 more than what the Bowes formula figures as an acceptable level for that state. There have been just 22,000 cases nationwide, he said.

The End Measles group was formed to urge rigid compliance with laws requiring children to be immunized against measles before starting school and to push for such laws in areas that don't

The group's advisory board includes Mrs. Dale Bumpers, who organized a successful immunization program while her husband was governor of Arkansas, and Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex.

Lawyers Seek Contract Information

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) - Any contracts entered into by jailed New York Times reporter Myron A. Farber and two publishers on the Dr. X murder case may affect the journalist's credability, the trial judge said. Judge William J. Arnold ruled Wednesday that the contractual information be-tween Farber and Doubleday and War-ner Communications should be given to attorneys for Dr. Mario Jascalevich, the surgeon the reporter dubbed Dr. X.

Some of the material contained in the publishers' files "is very relevant to the issue regarding the relationship of Mr. Farber to this case and may affect his credability." Arnold said.

Jascalevich's attorneys have alleged that Farber, motivated by his own per-sonal financial gain, collaborated with authorities to bring about the surgeon's indictment on five murder charges. The defense said the contractual information was needed to support the allega-Farber is serving an indefinite jail term for refusing to surrender his files on the series of curare deaths at Riverdell Hos-pital in Oradell 12 years ago.

pital in Oradell 12 years ago.

Jascalevich is being tried on charges he murdered three of the patients.

Arnold examined the files of the two publishing houses after hearing arguments in chambers Monday from attorneys representing the publishers.

He ordered Doubleday to turn over its files containing "contracts," and "additional contracts," An "editor's file" was ordered surrendered with limitations.

Warner Communications was ordered to turn over "non-privileged files," which Arnold indicated had contractual information.

The exact nature of the contractual information was not disclosed. In an interview from his cell, Farber said he negotiated a $75,000 advance from Doubleday for his book on Jascalev-ich. The newsman said he secured the contract two months after Jascalevich was indicted on May 18, 1976. Farber denied allegations he brought about the indictment for his personal gain. "I never would have entered into a contract that depended on someone's conviction or acquittal," he said.

The judge said both publishing houses had argued that the subpoena for the files violated their right of a free press and the public's right to know. Meanwhile, the murder trial, now in its 24th week, continued Wednesday with testimony by a second defense witness that dog blood was found on viles of curare and syringes taken from Jasalevich's hospital locker in 1966. The witness, Eve Gordon Arons, is a retired serelogist for New York City's chief medical examiner's office. She testified that she performed serology tests on the items in 1966 and detected animal blood. The testimony supports the defense's claim that Jascalevich was using the curare in experiments on dogs.

Tech Student Answers Question On Seed Germination In Thesis

In areas with limited rainfall and high temperatures, when is the "right time" to seed forage grasses?

This question was partially answered by a Texas Tech student in his master's thesis on water and temperature influ-ences on germination of range seedings.

Using four temperatures (63, 75, 86 and 100 degrees) and 16 combinations of dry and wet days, each wet day receiving two-tenths of an inch of rainfall, David B. Wester of the range and wildlife management department concluded that two consecutive days of two-tenths of an inch of moisture at 75 to 86 degrees would result in maximum germination of range

Wester's thesis, supervised by Dr. Bil-

Nuclear Protesters Freed Without Bail

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — About 240 anti-nuclear demonstrators are free today after a hearing in which all but one pleaded innocent to misdemeanor charges stemming from protests at the Diablo Canyon nuclear power

Those who appeared in San Luis Obispo Municipal Court Wednesday had refused to accept release without formal arraignment. They were released without bail after entering pleas. The remainder of the 402 people arrested in the two-day protest were freed Tuesday after promising to appear in court later.

Demonstrators "are pleading not guilty because the acts were done in self-defense." said Fred Cook of the Abalone Alliance, which sponsored demonstrations Sanday and Monday at the Pacific Gas Electric Co. plant west of here.

lie E. Dahl, used alfalfa, sideoats grama, weeping lovegrass, and Kleingrass for the controlled moisture-temperature study.

"The failure of many seeding projects is often blamed on unsatisfactory moisture and temperature conditions," said Wester." My thesis was aimed at putting a value on the conditions so that ranchers may get a better idea of when to seed their range land."

Of the four species, Kleingrass did not perform well under the low moisture levels even after two consecutive days of watering, while the other three grasses demonstrated 60 to 90 percent germination.

The rate of germination for the four forages occurred progressively slower as the number of days between the first and second watering increased. Thus two consecutive days of watering produced high germination rates, as opposed to one day of watering followed by one, two or three dry days, Dahl explained.

Two consecutive days of watering also reduced the amount of days the seed took to-germinate, although all grasses took at least two days to germinate after the first watering.

"The significance of Wester's work," Dahl said, "is in the fact that if a rancher can expect two consecutive days of rainfall at prescribed temperatures, then he can also expect a better germination rate from the seedings."

At 100 degrees, germination of all four species was extremely low, while germination at 63 degrees was slower than at other temperatures.

Name Causing Firm Problems

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — Almost 80 ears after "Little Black Sambo" first affed children to sleep, the tale about a by who watched tigers turn to butter is ripping up a national restaurant chain. Pickets, political debates, outraged pe-tion drives and threats of court suits we popped up since the chain decided branch into the Northeast. And all bese of its name — Sambo's.

mbo" is offensive, the opponents ay, because the word was once an insultnickname for black people.
When the California-based string of restaurants began putting up Sambo's signs in New England, protests followed. Now, one town is holding up its permit while officials consider banning the name. Another has the town lawyer looking into he same thing.

Because of the opposition, the chain has changed the names of 13 of its res-taurants to "Jolly Tiger." But Sambo's does not like to do that because these restaurants cannot take advantage of Sam-bo's national advertising, says the chain's spokesman, David Severson.

The chain, though aware that some find Sambo's" insensitive, says it has a legal right to keep its name and plans to do so. Opponents say the issue is more than a matter of nursery stories. They worry that Sambo's signs will stir up racial trou-

"What if black people opened a res-taurant and put a sign in the window that said 'kike' ... Wouldn't the Jewish com-munity be upset?" asked Rudy Santos of Brockton, a leader of the opposition.

Severson said Sambo's has been operating for 21 years, but the name brouhaha is new. "We're expanding all over the country, and the Northeast is where the objections have come from," he said.

Sambo's was started in Santa Barbara, Calif., has restaurants in 47 states and plans to open its 1,000th next month. Severson says the name does not come from the children's story but was a combination of the names of the founders, Sam Battistone and Newell Bohnett.

However, the chain capitalized on the coincidence. Signs at its older restaurants show a little black boy and a tiger. Murais from the book decorate the walls. Now, however, Severson says that tiers are the only vestige of the story left in the new restaurants' decor.

The anti-Sambo's movement has ained intensity in New York and New England, but it seems to be strongest in southeastern Massachusetts, a mostly white area of mill cities, fishing ports, wealthy suburbs and trendy ocean re-

In Brockton, a mill city south of Boston, the License Commission is withholding the restaurant's license while the city solicitor decides whether the commission can order Sambo's to change its name. "When we issue a license, and we see that the name is going to cause problems, it is our business to look into it," said Matthew A. Vosgerchian, one member of

At a meeting packed with Sambo's foes, the City Council voted 8-1 to ask the commission to ban the Sambo's name.

If the restaurant eventually wins city approval, Santos says, the opponents will try to get a court order to block it.

On Cape Cod, selectmen in Hyannis also have asked the town lawyer to see what can legally be done to get the name changed.

Price Fixing Study Urged By Solon

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., is urging the Justice De-partment to determine if timber compa-nies are fixing prices for redwood timber in anticipating the expansion of Redin anticipating the expansion of Red-woods National Park. Ryan, in a letter to Attorney General

Ryan, the chairman of a House sub-committee on the environment, energy and natural resources, said the March law expanding the park was based on es-timates that the federal cost of acquiring an additional 48,000 acres of redwood timber holdings would be about $300 mil-lion But, Ryan said, between March and this week, when the federal appraisal of redwood timber land is about to begin, the price of redwood lumber has doubled from $190 per thousand board feet to $380.

At the higher price, the ultimate cost to taxpayers for the expansion could be $750 on, Ryan said.

million, Ryan said.

"The rapid escalation in price can apparently not be explained by geeral economic conditions. The escalation may well be evidence of price-fixing by the companies which stand to gain by such an escalation," he said.

"It may be no coincidence that the escalation has occurred just prior to the commencement of a federal appraisal which is to determine the value of the tands acquired from several timber companies," he said.

"Under these circumstances, I request that you commence an investigation as to whether an timber to an unex price fixing his driven the price of redwood timber to families, the new Sambo's was picketed when it opened this summer. And nearby in Rockland, people are organizing a peti-tion drive against a Sambo's planned there.

In two other communities, North Dartmouth and Fall River, Sambo's agreed to rename the restaurants "Jolly Tiger."

One Urban League branch requested the state attorney general to prohibit use of the word on restaurant signs. "Using the word 'Sambo' is tantamount to yelling fire in a crowded theater," said Emergy N. Jackson, president of the Urban League of Eastern Massachusetts. "It stirs up such hostilities."

Jorge Loboton of Brockton's Association San Martin de Porres said people of mixed black and Indian blood are called "Sambo" in the Caribbean. "Right now," he said, "that word is unknown to most people. But I assume that if we have Sambo's restaurants, it's going to be a common term to use against black peo-

Most of the critics of "Little Black Sambo" said they had not read the story since childhood and could not exactly remember its plot.

The 1,000-word tale, written by Englishwoman Helen Bannerman in 1899, is about Sambo, a young boy in India. Tigers snatch his new clothes, argue over them, race around a tree and turn into butter. Sambo's mother makes pancakes with the butter, and the lad eats them.

"We want to see that very negative story wiped off the face of the Earth," said the Urban League's Jackson.

Presidential Problems Stem From In Party

WASHINGTON (UPI) - This may be the summer of President Carter's discon-

His bad luck streak is continuing and with friends like he has in the Democratic party, who needs enemies?

Since Carter's successful trip to the Bonn economic summit, the roof has been falling in. The president made points at the summit and in the heat of the battle seemed to score with the leaders who see the U.S. as economically weak and vulnerable.

But the president came home to find that economic statistics notwithstanding, ome more human, more personal probems were to beset his administration.

He was back only two days when he picked up the morning newspaper to earn that his drug abuse adviser, Dr. Peter Bourne, was under investigation on allegations of using a fictitious name on a drug prescription.

It took Carter and his staff hours, too many hours, to handle the problem, first ompassionately to help Bourne, and then to assess the damage to the White

Then came the president's highly public break with Speaker Thomas O'Neill over the firing of O'Neill's friend Robert Griffin as No. 2 man at the Ganeral Services Administration. Carter sided with administrator Jay Solomon in his personality conflict with Griffin, and gave the go-ahead for Griffin's removal.

The firing came at a time when the GSA iu being investigated for widespread Joan Kennedy's "tell all" magazine inter-fraud and corruption. Despite Carter's at-tempts to appease O'Neill by offering Griffin another job, O'Neill was "deeply hurt" and he denounced the White House at a news conference.

Analysis

The flap prompted observers to wonder whether O'Neill, purportedly an ally of Carter's on the Hill, will now be lukewarm in his support for administration initiatives. It was reported last week that O'Neill no longer speaks to Frank Moore, Carter's congressional liaison.

On the same day, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., stepped front and center to denounce the president's guidelines for a comprehensive national health insurance plan - a full day before Carter formally unveiled them.

The Massachusetts senator has worked for national health insurance for many years, and is knowledgeable on the subject. When he held a news conference to assail the administration's approach geared to inflation factors - Kennedy was flanked by labor giants, including AFL-ClO President George Meany. Kennedy made it clear that while differing strongly on the health plan, he continues to back Carter in other areas. Some Washington observers saw the break as the kick-off for a Kennedy presidential boom. That, coupled with related problems, is viewed in some quarters at least as clearing the decks for

The president's popularity decline and failure to rally supporters in his own par-ty have hurt him and given the Republicans a field day. All the GOP has to do is to sit back and enjoy it.

Judging from the telephone call that
Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill. got from former President Richard Nixon they are doing just that. Nixon, in expressing his regrets about Michel's recent mugging near his Capitol Hill home, said Carter's presidency was a real boon to the GOP.

Then there was the meeting Carter had with young congressmen at which he told them it would do little good for them to campaign against the White House.

Crane To Sponsor Anti-Search Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, says journalists shouldn't be forced to turn notes and other records over to courts.

Crane said Monday he will introduce legislation within the next two weeks that would ban all courts from issuing subpoenas for such records. "It would apply to all courts, because in my opinion that section of the Constitution is unqualified: there shall be no law restricting the freedom of the press,' Crane ex-

'Big Al' To Change Shape Of Security

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) - "Big Al" is a security guard who never sleeps on the job, never asks for a raise, never takes a lunch break.

His makers, Quasar Industries Inc. of Rutherford, N.J., tout "Big Al," also known as Altor and Sentry II, and his brother robot, the smaller indoor Sentry I, as the ultimate in protection services.

Quasar and its marketer, Taxter Enterprises Inc. of Torrance, unveiled the Sentry robots Wednesday to police departments, private security firms and electronics compa

"Let me put it this way," said Quasar President Tony Reichelt, 38. "If you were a bank robber, would you go to the bank that has a 7-foot, 685-pound robot in the lobby, or to the bank across the street that has a 68-year-old guy with a slingshot in his belt and a uniform?"

The robots were 10 years in the making, Reichelt said. Taxter already has received orders for the robots, which sell for more than $100,000 each. Buyers can program the robots to their own specifications.

Reichelt was reluctant to disclose exactly how the robot would catch a thief. "We don't want to give robbers any hints." he said.

He did, however, describe how a factory would use the robot to monitor who goes in and out.

"Essentially, the robot — equipped with a modulated voice — will demand that anyone who crosses its path identify himself," Reichelt said. If everything checks, the person will get by. If something's amiss, the robot will order him to

"If the person moves outside a 3-foot radius, that's when the robot gets a little nasty," Reichelt said.

First, the robot will emit a high-pitched sound "that will drop you to your knees and give you one helt of a headache," said Reichelt. If that doesn't work, the robot clamps his hands - which have a 1,000-pound squeeze capacity around the person and hangs on until authorities arrive.

Abernathy Fears For Ray's Safety

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - A former chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference says he fears for James Earl Ray's life when Ray leaves a Tennessee prison to testify before a House subcommittee about the 1968 assassination of Martin Luther King Jr.

Ralph Abernathy, the former SCLC chairman, made the statement Wednesday in an interview with the Washington bureau of The Commercial Appeal, a Memphis daily newspaper.

"My only hope - let's say worry - is for his safety," Abernathy said. "I just hope he'll get out of the Brushy Mountain prison and back. It's a conspiracy, I believe, and conspirators will go a long way to silence truth." Abernathy, in whose arms King died 10 years ago in Memphis, is the initial witness scheduled next week in the first public hearing by the House select subcommittee investigating the death. Abernathy said he is prepared to testify

Contacted today for reaction to Abernathy's statements, a spokesman for Memphis police referred all comment to E.W. Chapman, city police director. Chapman was not immediately available for comment.

Abernathy was asked if he meant Memphis police were involved in a conspiracy He replied. "To some degree." He declined to elaborate.

Abernathy said he has received a typed letter from Ray promising to tell enough at the hearings to "lead the police to the real killer" if he can get a new trial. Abernathy said the letter also pleaded for President Carter to intercede to guarantee a full trial. "I'm with that wholeheartedly." Abernathy said. "He says he has the information. He will tell enough that will actually he believes the FBI and Memphis police lead the police to the real killer of Martin aided conspirators in helping Ray leave Luther King."

Abernathy said Ray's letter admitted Ray dislikes blacks but asserts he did not

"He was honest enough to say he doesn't like blacks," Abernathy said. "But he said emphatically he did not kill Dr. King, but he has an idea of someone who supplied him the money."

Gov. Hugh Carey's office said today he has signed a bill requiring extra welfare grants to pay for food for the seeing-eye dogs who help blind welfare recipients.

The amount of the extra grant will be determined later by regulations of the Department of Social Services, and the cost shared between the state, local governments and the federal government.

Tax Relief Options Cleared For House Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) - Seven months after President Carter called for a $25 billion tax cut to boost the economy, the House is scheduling debate on three op-tions — none closely resembling the administration proposal.

But any of the three bills, if chosen by the House and eventually enacted, could save middle-income families up to hundreds of dollars on income taxes. That would at least ease the bite of higher Social Security taxes next year.

And the Senate is likely to sweeten whatever package the House adopts.

Acting after months of wrangling and nate among House tax writers, the Rules Committee on Wednesday cleared for consideration:

Sen. Russell B. Long. D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Wednesday he favors a cut in the $19 billion to $20 billion range and remarked that the pending House bill is not large enough to cover the Social Security and inflation-induced tax increases next year.

"It would be a breach of faith if we failed to do that much." Long said.

The basic Ways and Means bill was estimated to yield income tax savings of $62

But those who argued unsuccessfully for an additional Social Security offset said that without it the net result for the $20,000 family, for example, would be a total tax increase of $115 next year under the committee bill, a $33 increase under the compromise. The figures for Roth-Kemp were not firm because of the three-year nature of its effects.

Chief Inspector Joseph Golden said Wednesday ballistics tests by the police department showed the bullet that killed officer James Ramp came from a .223caliber Ruger rifle, one of 11 weapons and 1,600 rounds of fired and unfired ammunition found in the house.

Police Commissioner Joseph O'Neill said five of the weapons had been fired in Tuesday's incident.

Golden denied the possibility that Ramp had been fired on by a sniper shooting from across the street from the MOVE compound.

There is no physical evidence to confirm that rumor," Golden said. "To the contrary, our information so far says this is false.

Senate Blocks President's Plan To Ease East Coast Fuel Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted to block the Carter administration from giving the East Coast a generous break in the price paid for imported oil. Instead, the Senate voted 53-40 on Wednesday to permit a modest increase in subsidies designed to offset the high price of foreign oil compared with cheaper domestic fuel. On the surface, the compromise pro-posed by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., would appear to be a defeat for 13 states along the Eastern Seaboard plus Michigan which rely heavily on imported residual oil for industries and utilities. The Carter administration had tentatively planned to more than triple the size of subsidies which refiners of domestic oil are required to pay refiners and importers of foreign oil.

The subsidy is intended to even out the wide variation which now exists between federally controlled prices of domestic oil versus imported fuels.

Such East Coast senators as Edward Brooke, R-Mass., had threatened a filibuster against Johnston's original effort to flatly prohibit the proposed tripling of

In addition, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger agreed to recommend that President Carter take another action fa-

Under that plan. Carter would continue a freeze on a currently existing tariff on imported oil. Continued suspension of the tariff will equal the equivalent of an additional 20 percent in subsidies for the East Coast. Brooke said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Illinois House member says government officials waste money when they travel because they fail to use discount air fares and take the train for short distance

Rep. Marty Russo, a Democrat, said Wednesday the waste may cost taxpayers an extra $50 million to $100 million a

A General Accounting Office report said the nation's official travel bill for fiscal 1976 was $450 million. Russo, citing a separate report by the subcommittee, offered several examples of waste in travel:

Franklin said the last time the comet visited Earth, several large fragments may have fallen from its dwindling nucleus - fragments which, lacking the energy to travel as far from the sun as the main mass, may have returned early. They are the ones that blaze as spectacular fireballs and sometimes survive their flaming trip through the atmosphere to crash on Earth as meteorites.

For purists, Franklin explained that cosmic rocks or metallic masses are meteoroids while drifting in space. They become meteors when the atmosphere sets them afire, and meteorites if they last long enough to impact.

Holy Site Marked By Chapel, Mosque

ST. CATHERINE'S MONASTERY, Is- renamed St. Catherine's. raeli-occupied Sinai (UPI) - The best way to reach the summit of Mount Sinai is to get up with the moonrise and climb the steep road and 700 winding steps to the summit in the dark.

The sky is clear and the stars fade in the west. Cliffs of red granite and black volcanic rock catch the first sunrays. The view is breathtaking. So is the altitude.

Hikers with wobbly knees and wheezing lungs stop for an orange and a slug of water and wonder at the ingenuity of Greek monks and Bedouin workmen who created a road six feet wide on the side of a mountain that looms like a skyscraper. At 7,500 feet, Mount Sinai is one of the highest peaks in the barren, isolated region, which has drawn holy men for thou-

From the mountaintop 3,000 stone stairs spill down to the monastery of St. Catherine. "The heart of the desert," an Israeli guide calls it.

For the believers it holds a convenient group of biblical sites, the burning bush where Moses spoke with God, the plain where the people of Israel waited for him to come down from the mountain, the the iconoclasm of the eighth and ninth centuries because of a bishop's defiance of orders from Constantinople. There are pages from the fourth century Codex Sinaticus, one of the first translations of the Old Testament into Greek. A framed letter on the wall of the library complains that a Russian researcher took most of it away in 1865 and it was sold to the British Museum.

Monks have been here since at least the fourth century, served by their own Bedouin tribe, the Jabalis, or hill people Tradition says they trace back to Roman slaves brought to Sinai by the Emperor Justinian to build the monastery.

Before the coming of Islam, the desert buzzed with the movement of hundreds of hermits and thousands of pilgrims and it was green with the vegetables grown for their food.

Now there are 15 monks in the monastery and perhaps 1,000 Jabalis in their goatskin tents and stone houses.

Dairy Stockpiles Fail To Halt Production

By THOMAS KENT
BEEZ, Belgium (AP) — With West Europe's stockpiles of surplus milk and butter climbing ever higher, farmers like Henry Mauroy are hard at work these days — producing still more milk and still more butter.

The European Common Market countries' warehouses are bulging this summer with 811,000 tons of surplus milk powder — enough to powder over all of Manhattan two inches deep — and 420,000 tons of butter, an all-time record. There are 273,000 tons too much beef.

There are 273,000 tons too much beef, and excess sugar may add up to 1.5 million tons by autumn.

But like many farmers. Mauroy dismisses claims that something is drastically wrong with European agriculture—that the Common Market's agricultural system is wasting money on a price-support system that encourages overproducport system that encourages overproduc-tion and small-farm inefficiency.

In mud-spattered work boots and chomping a cigar, with a beret covering his stubby gray hair, the 54-year-old Mauroy stirs his farm's own cream into a cup of coffee and declares:

"A farmer is a citizen, too, and has a right to live. If you don't have a support policy for agriculture, farming will fall apart and it will just swell the numbers of unemployed."

The Common Market nations — Britain. France. West Germany, Italy, Ireland. Denmark. Belgium. Holland and Luxembourg — have long lived with their "butter mountains" and "beef mountains," the surplus produce of the nine notions joint agricultural policy.

But now, there may finally be enough pressure for substantial change in the way the agricultural system works — largely brought on by Britain and West Germany, which believe the Common Market can no longer afford agricultural extravagance.

is it just extravagance? More than 9 million people in Common Market countries earn their living from agriculture. tries earn their living from agriculture, and have always made up a powerful voting bloc. The "common agricultural policy" is part of the bedrock of the Common Market and has two related purposes: to shield the nine countries from imports of cheaper foreign food, and to support the prices European farmers get from their production.

At least wall now the few has a

As in the United States, this is a time when the survival of small farms is Greatened by rising costs and other economic pressures.

With the supports, the Common Market is able to produce 91 percent of all grains it consumes, 100 percent of the potatoes, 95 percent of the sugar, 79 percent of the fruit, more than enough mile products, 97 percent of the mest. And agricultural exports totalled $11.8 billion in 1976, compared with total farm production of $106 billion.

But this is also a time when the United States, Australis and many other food-exporting countries have been sharply criticizing the Europeans for keeping out large amounts of foreign food. Meanwhile, price supports cost the Common Market some $12 billion a year, and and in Brussels, good-quality steak costs $4.37 a pound, butter $2.27 a pound, milk 57 cents a quart. In New York, the prices would be $2.50 for the steak, $1.49 for the butter, 49 cents for the milk.

European consumer groups have complained about both the prices and the surpluses while other people in the world starve.

the Common Market.

Opposition to the farm policy is now growing from Britain. Italy and West Dermany, but for different reasons. Italy claims more support should go for crops grown in southern Europe. Britain and West Germany — the country which produces most of the surplus butter — are more industrialized than such nations as France, Ireland and Denmark and thus more willing to take some heat from farmers. They are interested mostly in

Direct Market Bill Runs Into Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's promotion of farmer-to-consumer marketing is in trouble in Congress, even though a survey last winter found that 38 percent of the population buys some food directly from farmers at roadside stands and the like.

Opponents say that it simply hasn't proved itself in 18 months.

The law to revive that kind of shopping came in response to consumer demands for fresher foods and complaints by both farmers and consumers that the 60 percent or more of the food dollar that goes to "middlemen" is too much.

Under the law, the Agriculture Department approves and underwrites plans submitted by state agriculture agencies to develop new projects — from conferences where farmers share marketing ideas to bringing consumer co-ops and small farmers together to setting up inner-city market stalls.

About 13,000 direct-marketing outlets were in operation when the measure was passed in late 1976, the department says, compared to three times as many regular food stores. It did not have 1978 figures.

Direct sales account for only a small part of the food sold in the country, the department says — 3 percent of the fruits and vegetables, for example.

But some small farmers make sizeable portions of their annual incomes that way. For example, spot checks of road-side stands in 17 states in 1976 found $208 million in gross sales.

Last year, supporters such as incoming side stands in 17 states in 1976 found $208 million in gross sales.

Last year, supporters such as incoming House Appropriations Committee Chairman Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss., and Rep. Frederick W. Richmond, D-N.Y., proposed to make the expansion program permanent. That plan became a bid to extend it for six years and then for three.

Now the House Agriculture Committee has approved, 26 to 6, a one-year extension, to Sept. 30, 1979. The Senate has passed an identical measure.

The committee said it intends that ongoing projects be completed and no new ones started. The Carter administration budget-makers didn't want even that.

Republicans such as Rep. Charles Grassley of Iowa and Steve Symms of Idaho led parlimentary hit-and-run operations against the extensions.

Democrats such as Rep. Dawson Mathis, D-Ga., said no one knows where the $2 million so far has gone or whether farmers have been helped.

USDA Raises Pay For Disease Loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal payment rates for farmers whose cattle herds have been hit by brucellosis have been raised by up to $150 a head by the Agriculture Department to more closely reflect market values of lost animals, of-

Traffic and other travel bussles were the major complaints cited by both those who do and those who don't take advantage of direct marketing.

Screwworm Cases Spill Into Texas

MISSION (AP) — Massive increases in screwworm cases in Arizons and New Mexico apparently are spilling over into West Texas, officials say.

Statistics compiled at the Screwworm Eradication Program show the number of cases in Texas is up from last year, but still comparatively low.

The screwworm, which enter animals through wounds, can cause large-scale livestock loss.

The statistics through July show, Arizona reported 1,893 cases — up from 65 for the first seven months of 1977. New Mexico reported 449 cases, up from six cases during a similar period in the previous year.

A concentrated effort in Texas last pear held the 1977 total to 39 cases. The 1976 total was a staggering 29,241.

Dr. Alvis Belcher, area veterinarian for the Texas Animal Health Commission at Brackettville, said there it evidence that "hitchiking" screwworm files may be coming into Texas on trucks coming from New Mexico.

A breakdown of the confirmed accounterm cases shown a concentration

A breakdown of the confirmed screwworm cases shows a concentration of cases in West Texas. El Paso County had 27 cases through Aug. 8.

"Of course, Arizona and New Mexico will deny they are shipping their files to Texas, but when those drivers stop for a cup of coffee at a truck stop, the files can get on, Beicher said.

Kathy Ellis, information officer for the Animal and Plant Health Inspection. Service, said the Arizona situation is a disaster. Officials here blame a warm winter and some careless ranchers for the vast increase in screwworms in Arizona.

One-third of the 465 July cases studied in Arizona were found in man-made wounds inflicted during routine surgery. In the July cases in New Mexico, 66 percent were discovered in man-made wounds.

Officials here are disheartened at the tack of cooperation among some ranchers.

"It begins to get discouraging when, after hammering away since 1963 at postponing surgery until the danger of attack is the least, consideration given to timing by some of our ranchers," a recent program release said.

Don Nielson, program spokesman, said ranchers should wait until the cooler months to perform the necessary sur-er months to perform the necessary surgery.

Officials here also are alarmed at the number of screwworm cases found recently in dogs. Of 214 cases discovered in June, 19 percent were in dogs.

Miss Ellis said screwworms can attack any warm-blooded animal, including homans. Pets should be periodically checked for small wounds.

Nielson said screwworms were discovered recently in an El Paso child. In the past five years, he said, six cases have been reported in humans, with one faiality.

FCC Won't Add Eighth Dirty Word

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Communications Commission says the word "nigger" won't be added to its list of dirty words whose usage that can get broadcasters in trouble.

Georgia State Sen. Julian Bond had asked the FCC to add the word to the seven dirty words whose frequent airing may bring penalties to broadcasters. FCC official Wallace E. Johnson replied the Communications Act of 1934 prohibits the FCC from censoring broadcast matter. Johnson added the Supreme Court ruling allowing penalties for broadcasting the seven dirty words does not apply in this case.

Driggers says he was a company bookkeeper and sales manager who was "just passin' through" Iowa from Arizona two years ago when he was arrested and convicted in Black Hawk County for writing three bad checks. It was his second of-
