

Student Busing Opens New Era

Officials Hail Smooth Start

By JEFF SOUTH

The Lubbock Independent School District today hailed the start of a new academic term — and an historic era for desegregation in the city — as an estimated 30,000 students reported for morning classes.

A new court-ordered integration plan, involving grades one through 12 and nearly every part of the city, was in effect. Though most children continue to attend neighborhood schools, about 2,300 pupils were scheduled to be reassigned this semester for integration purposes.

"It went very well," said Superintendent Ed Irons, who monitored bus activities from a radio command center in the district's administration building. "We couldn't have asked for a better start of the new school year."

There were no protests over the desegregation plan, Irons said "only minor problems" were experienced — most buses were running a bit late, a few were overcrowded and some children missed their bus.

"All in all, it was very smooth," Giles M. "Buddy" Forbess, a school trustee who spent the morning with Irons, said.

Irons said he wouldn't have any figures until late today on the number of students reporting for school — and in particular, the number riding to elementary "sister schools" for integration purposes.

However, principals reported that according to preliminary headcounts, most of the children projected to attend did indeed show up.

Principal Bob Peterson of Martin Elementary said his school was expected to receive about 280 white students — from Stewart, Wheelock, Dupre and Parsons elementaries. By early morning, the number that actually had materialized was about 240.

School officials said that figure should increase, as more families return from summer vacations.

Also, Dr. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration, said some parents may be delaying enrolling their children until they "see how the first few days go."

A number of schools ended up sending more students than projected to sister campuses. Hardwick Elementary, for example, was supposed to assign 51 sixth-graders to Mahon Elementary — but actually sent 55 students.

The increase, said Hardwick principal Deniz Minyard, was due to families moving into the Hardwick zone and to families that opted to send to Mahon students not required for reassignment.

For instance, one Hardwick family with a sixth-grader assigned to Mahon elected also to send along a fifth-grader, Minyard said.

Buses generally were late because many students had to register at their home school before taking the trip to their sister school. Also, principals took extra time to reassure parents.

"It's been a little hectic," said Charles Taylor, principal of Posey Elementary. "But every school year is, in some way." He estimated that 300 of the 340 students expected to transfer to Posey from west-side schools materialized.

"By 9:15 a.m., if you had visited our school, you'd get the impression that we had been in session for a month. It's fantastic," Frank Mullican, principal of Maedgen Elementary, said.

Most elementary children gathered in their neighborhood schools between 7:30 a.m. and 7:55 a.m. There, they had a chance to eat breakfast, a new feature of the school system.

Cafeterias served cereal, milk, toast and grape juice for the first day. Participation was mixed. Some schools served several meals — 61 ate at Guadalupe Elementary. At a few schools, no students ate.

Principals said it would take a while to get the word out about the breakfast program.

The school district this year projects a peak enrollment of 31,485 students, down 273 from last year. Of the drop, about 100

Testimony Of Ranger Aids Davis

PORT WORTH (AP) — The prosecution in the Cullen Davis case rested today after the defense had cross-examined a Texas Ranger involved in the eavesdropping on the millionaire oilman charged in a murder-for-hire plot.

Ranger Jim Hogg testified under cross-examination by defense lawyer Phil Burleson that he did not see any money change hands when the key prosecution witness, Charles David McCrory, met with Davis Aug. 20 at a southwest Fort Worth restaurant.

Hogg said FBI agents taped a transmitter to McCrory's leg and hid another transmitter into a Kleenex box in his car before the former karate instructor left to meet Davis.

Neither transmitter was able to pick up conversations when McCrory was allegedly given $25,000 for the purported murder of a judge.

Hogg said his transmitter only picked up static.

He also testified that as far as he knew, there was no mechanism to allow McCrory to turn his transmitter selectively on or off, as the defense has contended.

The defense called FBI special agent Ron Jannings as their first witness today. Jannings was a principle figure in five-day flurry of activity from the time McCrory contacted the FBI until Davis' arrest.

McCrory was excused late Monday after two days of sometimes searing cross-examination by defense lawyer Richard "Rachorse" Haynes.

McCrory, who claims the millionaire industrialist instructed him to hire a gunman to execute several persons, had been on the witness stand for a total of four days, testifying and corroborating evidence obtained through electronic surveillance.

Davis, 44, is charged with solicitation of capital murder and has been jailed since his arrest Aug. 20.

During Monday's questioning, McCrory continued to display a clouded memory about certain details of the purported plot and Davis' part in it. In answer to

Price Spiral Slows In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government had the first good news for inflation-weary Americans in months today, reporting that consumer prices were held to an 0.5 percent increase in July as grocery prices declined for the first time in a year.

The July increase compared with price gains of 0.9 percent in each of the previous three months and was the smallest rise since a 0.4 percent gain last December.

Last month's increase, if continued for an entire year, would result in a 12-month inflation of 6 percent. The annual rate of price inflation in the three previous months was 10.7 percent.

The Labor Department attributed the improvement to an 0.4 percent decline in grocery prices, the first drop since July 1977, and an 0.6 percent drop in the price of clothing, particularly for women and girls.

While the price report was a welcome development for consumers, it also should give support to the troubled U.S. dollar on world money markets, where the currency's value has declined because of inflation and the nation's trade deficit.

In an adverse development for the dollar, however, the Commerce Department said the nation had a deficit in its foreign trade balance in July of nearly $3 billion, the fourth largest on record. It said exports declined 3 percent to $11.8 billion, while imports rose 8 percent to $14.8 billion.

The figures were certain to be highly disappointing to the Carter administration, which had hoped for a continuation of the trend in recent months toward smaller monthly trade deficits.

The Commerce Department said there was a big increase in auto imports, which rose $206 million during the month. There were also substantial increases in imports of sugar, coffee and fish, although imports of oil were down 4 percent from the previous month, continuing the recent decline in oil imports.

The country had a trade deficit in June of $1.6 billion. Even the most optimistic experts see no way the country can avoid topping last year's record trade deficit of $26.7 billion.

Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisors, said the price slowdown in July was a "very heartening" development. He predicted food price increases will be comparatively small the rest of the year.

"We had been expecting the rise in food prices to abate during the latter half of the year, and that expectation is being realized," he said in a statement.

Schultze expressed disappointment in the July trade figures, but said there should be some improvement in months ahead.

The Labor Department said its Consumer Price Index in July stood at 196.7 of the 1967 average of 100. This means that goods priced at $100 11 years ago had increased in price to $196.70 last month.

The total increase in consumer prices since January has been 5.4 percent, compared with an increase during all of last year of 6.9 percent. The Carter administration now hopes to hold inflation to an 8 percent increase during all of this year. It had set a 6.1 percent target at the start of this year.

Busing Reactions Vary

Here's a sampling of reactions to the start of a new school year in Lubbock:

Tom Keener, whose first-grade daughter is being bused from Stewart Elementary to Martin Elementary for integration purposes: "At first we were kind of skeptical. But we've visited Martin — it's a good school. My little girl is excited about going there. We're looking forward to a good school year."

Joyce Humphrey, who is sending a first-grade son from Stewart to Martin: "I explained to him that we'll be waiting for him when the bus returns this afternoon. First-graders are apprehensive — they always are about school. They think their parents are going to leave them. You have to take time to reassure them."

Gary Hurt, whose third-grader is being reassigned from Parsons Elementary to Martin: "I don't understand this busing. It really blows my mind. But it's not bothering the kids as much as the parents. As long as parents don't complain in front of their children, it'll be all right."

Bob Peterson, Martin principal: "Parents are to be commended. They've had excellent attitudes through all this. I thought the opening of school would be smooth, but not this smooth."

Duane Bowen, principal of Wheatley Elementary: "It's a whole new ballgame. It will take a while for everybody to get used to it. The important thing is for parents to get their children to school early enough so they won't miss the bus."

Mary Lynn Keener, first-grader going from Stewart to Martin: "It's going to be fun. I like riding this bus. And we're going to make lots of friends at Martin."

Storms Trigger Deluges From Rockies To Dixie

A-J News Services

Torrential downpours drenched western Louisiana today as the remnants of tropical storm Debra moved inland with threats of tornadoes and flash floods.

A tornado touched down at Turkey Creek, Miss., at 8:15 a.m. today, killing one person and injuring several others. Officials said at least one house and three mobile homes were destroyed.

Tornadoes were sighted in other areas of Mississippi, including one on the ground southwest of Jackson, but officials said no injuries were reported.

Tropical storm Debra triggered the twisters and thunderstorms, along with flash flood warnings for much of the state.

Thunderstorms also lashed West Texas from the South Plains to the Rio Grande

Monday night and early today, while a massive storm system battered Colorado from the east slope of the Rockies to the Kansas border. A severe hailstorm pounded Colorado Springs and blocked traffic on highways in the region.

Tropical storm Debra never reached hurricane force and came ashore near Grand Cheniere about dark Monday night with highest winds gusting around 70 mph.

There was little damage and the only reported fatality was at sea, where an offshore oil worker was washed off a rig by a 15-foot wave.

However, the storm dumped 6 inches of rain on Lafayette and Lake Charles, 3 inches on Shreveport, 3½ on Monroe.

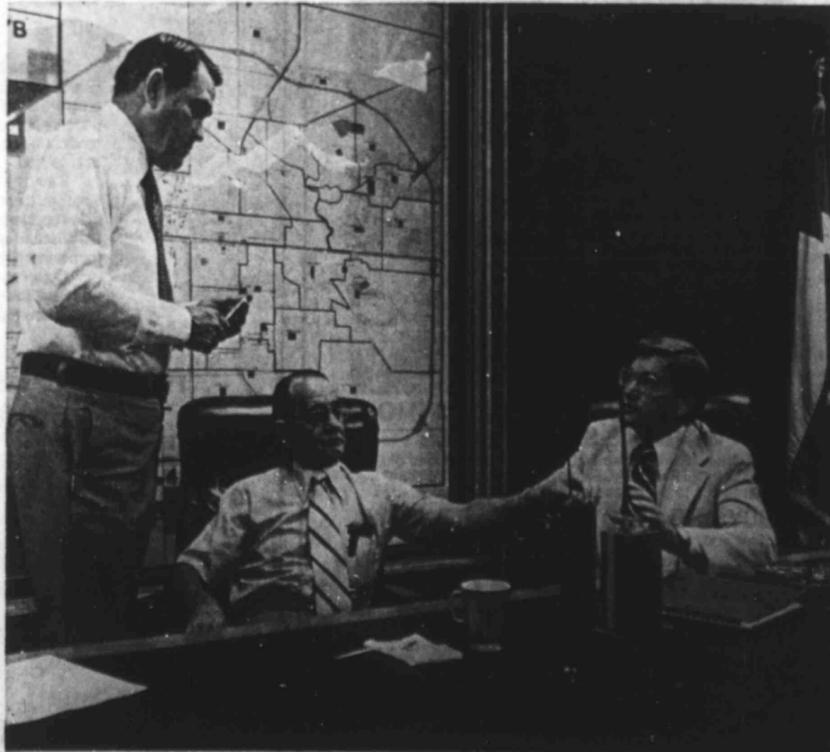

More than 6,500 residents of low-lying Cameron Parish moved to higher ground to spend the night inland. They jammed the port of Lake Charles with their boats and filled every motel by 4 p.m. About 200 stayed in refugee centers in Lake Charles.

At dawn, officials said roads were clear and the swollen tides had receded. Most residents started heading back home.

The storm left flooded streets all across the coastal area. Gulf States Utilities reported widespread power failures from Lafayette to the Texas line, but said overnight crews had everybody back in service by daylight except for a few isolated customers.

Reasoner May Return To Program

CHICAGO (AP) — Harry Reasoner, one of the two original anchors on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" news program, may be returning to the 10-year-old show.

REASONER

The Chicago Tribune reported Monday that CBS will announce Reasoner's appointment around Labor Day. The newspaper said the change would take effect in October or November.

In New York, CBS said it has considered adding another person to the show, but a spokesman said no decision has been made on who it would be. Reasoner recently rejoined CBS from ABC-TV, where he shared the evening news anchoring job with Barbara Walters. He now serves as principal anchor of the "CBS Reports" documentary series. The current anchors of "60 Minutes" are Mike Wallace, with whom Reasoner worked in the program's first two years; Morley Safer, who joined in 1970 when Reasoner jumped to ABC; and Dan Rather, who became the third anchor in 1975.

Wendy Yoshimura Makes Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wendy Yoshimura, who was arrested as a fugitive with Patricia Hearst in 1975, has asked a state court to overturn her conviction on weapons charges.

MISS YOSHIMURA

Miss Yoshimura contends her association with Miss Hearst led to conviction on charges that were filed in 1972, before she met the publishing heiress.

The 35-year-old artist asked the California Court of Appeal on Monday to reject the 1977 conviction on the ground that Miss Yoshimura's links with Miss Hearst and with the Symbionese Liberation Army were improperly brought to the attention of the jury.

Miss Yoshimura was convicted on charges of possessing an explosive, a machine gun and materials with the intent to make an explosive device. Free on $50,000 bail pending appeal, she could be sent to prison for a minimum of one year.

Actress Seeks Carter's Help

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda and her husband, political activist Tom Hayden, want President Carter to diplomatically intervene in Cambodia to stop widespread executions reported there.

But the couple, outspoken opponents of the Vietnam War, told Carter in a telegram Monday that they disagree with a suggestion by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., that an international military force be formed to topple the communist government in the Southeast Asian nation.

McGovern claimed last week that 2.5 million of Cambodia's 7 million citizens had died of starvation, disease or execution since Communists took power three years ago. The telegram said Carter should urge China to discontinue its military support of Cambodia. Hayden suggested that in return, the United States promise to improve relations with China and normalize relations with Vietnam by lifting a trade embargo against that country.

Governor's Wife Wins Post

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts' first lady, Kitty Dukakis, is the new vice chairman of the National Governors' Association's subcommittee on the arts.

MRS. DUKAKIS

"This is the first time a spouse of a governor has been elected as a voting member of a committee," New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne, chairman of the subcommittee, said after the election Monday.

Mrs. Dukakis, wife of Gov. Michael Dukakis, has been active in promoting the arts in Massachusetts. She was appointed by her husband as his representative to the committee.

The committee, which heard Mrs. Dukakis speak on financing of the arts in Massachusetts, passed a resolution urging greater federal and state support of the arts.

"I just hope as a subcommittee that we can influence states reluctant to raise their budgets for the arts," said Mrs. Dukakis.

SPIVEYS CORNER, N.C. (AP) — The 1984 Olympic Games won't be held in Spiveys Corner's Midway High School after all.

The Spiveys Corner Olympic Committee received the sad news Monday from F. Don Miller, executive chairman of the International Olympic Committee.

A letter described the Olympic committee's regrets that Spiveys Corner, population 50, couldn't be considered as a site for the games because the complicated applications had to be turned in by August 1977, and Spiveys Corner only started to apply in June of this year.

Officials of the local Olympic committee said they won't press the issue.

Los Angeles, the main contender to be host city, has been bickering with the international Olympic group over who would pick up any financial losses from the 1984 games.

Spiveys Corner made its bid when it appeared Los Angeles would withdraw its offer to be home for the '84 games.

NANCY HAYS TEETERS

Carter Tabs Woman For Fed Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first woman member of the Federal Reserve Board will be Nancy Hays Teeters, an economist with a reputation for accurate forecasts that don't always agree with those of the administration.

President Carter's selection of Mrs. Teeters, 48, to serve out the remainder of Arthur Burns' term on the Fed's Board of Governors, was announced Monday.

Burns resigned from the board when Carter decided not to reappoint him as chairman. His term expires Jan. 31, 1984.

Mrs. Teeters is rafting on the Colorado River, on vacation from her post as chief economist for the House Budget Committee, and not available for comment on her appointment which was announced by the White House.

It has been Mrs. Teeter's task at the committee to prepare economic forecasts for the coming year.

Sources close to the committee say her forecasts have been a bit less optimistic — but on a number of occasions, more accurate — than those prepared by the administration.

These forecasts play a role in decisions made by the Federal Reserve as well as determining much of the federal budget.

Mrs. Teeters received her B.A. degree from Oberlin College in 1952 and her M.A. from the University of Michigan in 1957. She has been a senior specialist of the Congressional Research Service and was a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution from 1970 to 1973.

She also worked in the Office of Management and Budget as a fiscal economist from 1966 to 1970. Before that she was an economist with the Federal Reserve Board. During the Kennedy administration, she served for one year with the Council of Economic Advisors.

She has been with the House Budget Committee since it was organized in 1974. If confirmed by the Senate, Mrs. Teeters will become one of seven Federal Reserve Board governors who oversee operation of the 5,000 American banks which comprise the Federal Reserve System.

Hormones Increase Birth Defect Risk

CHICAGO (AP) — Women who take hormones to control the threat of miscarriage or as a pregnancy test run higher risks of having babies with birth defects, a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association says.

Results of several studies show that twice to four times as many congenital heart defects occur after maternal exposure to exogenous female hormones.

Judge Claims Times 'Sanitized' Papers

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — A New Jersey Superior Court judge has lashed out at The New York Times, accusing the newspaper of "sanitizing" its files on the murder case of Dr. Mario Jaslavich.

In his decision Monday refusing to absolve the Times of civil contempt, Judge Theodore Trautwein stopped short of accusing the newspaper of committing a crime. But his remarks added new fuel to what is developing into a landmark free press-fair trial controversy.

Trautwein said the newspaper "inflicted a charade" upon the state and the court by turning over "worthless" documents.

Trautwein asserted that "the files of the Times were clearly and unequivocally sanitized. I don't know whether there was a break-in, or who did it, but it lies at the feet of The New York Times."

Times publisher Arthur Ochs Sulzberger replied in a statement: "The unfounded attack on the integrity of The New York Times is a graphic example of the appalling state of justice with which the Times has been confronted since the Dr. Jaslavich trial began."

Sulzberger said the allegations were "flatly untrue."

The publisher said the integrity of the Times has remained unquestioned since the newspaper's founding in 1851. "Judge Trautwein has now added gratuitous insult to what we firmly believe to be decisions that will be reversed in the appeal process."

Parole Denied To Schoenfeld

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — The only convicted kidnapper eligible for parole in the Chowchilla mass kidnapping case has been declared "unsuitable" for release.

After a two-hour hearing Monday of the Community Release Board, officials announced the finding concerning Richard Schoenfeld, currently in San Quentin state prison for his role in the 1976 kidnaping of 26 Chowchilla school children and their bus driver.

Gary Macomber, a state parole board spokesman, said the board denied the 23-year-old man's bid for freedom on grounds that six months was "insufficient time for an in-depth evaluation of his suitability for release." He said Schoenfeld would be eligible for another parole review in a year.

Under a youthful offender's law in effect at the time of the abduction, Schoenfeld was eligible for parole consideration after six months behind bars.

The other convicted kidnappers, Schoenfeld's brother James, 28, and Fred Woods, 26, were sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole.

Macomber said the board's decision was based partly on "the planning and sophistication" of the kidnap.

"The board tends to be more lenient on candidates who have been convicted of spur-of-the-moment crimes," Macomber said, "while they tend to be more stringent on those who commit crimes that have taken a lot of time, money and planning."

On July 15, 1976, driver Ed Ray was forced to halt the bus carrying 26 children near the San Joaquin Valley farming community of Chowchilla. The captives were put in vans and driven 95 miles to a quarry at Livermore where they were placed in a buried van.

Abandoned Baby Found In Gas Station Restroom

RED LION, Pa. (AP) — Her first crib was a trash can, her first blanket a wrapper off a roll of toilet paper.

Stephanie Lynn Doe was born Sunday in a darkened gas station restroom near here, then abandoned.

The first person to hold her was Spencer Gohn, the gas station owner. He never saw her mother, but he said he saw a man waiting nervously outside the restroom.

Several times, he said, the man went in the restroom, and once he got a handbag from his car — a green two-door sedan.

From inside his office, Gohn said he heard the woman talking to the man. But he said he never heard the sound of child labor.

Then they left, and the baby cried.

"I heard a noise and I knocked on the door," he said. "No one answered, so I knocked again."

The baby cried again and he opened the door. "There was blood all over the floor," he said.

He ran back to the office to call police. Then he returned to the restroom and discovered the baby in the trash can.

She was covered with the toilet paper wrapper discarded when Gohn changed the roll that afternoon.

An ambulance took the baby to York Hospital where nurses held her and fed her and gave her her name. She weighed seven pounds.

Doctors said it was a near miracle she had not been injured. "She's doing fine," they said Monday.

Gohn and police are trying to find her mother. While they search, Stephanie Lynn Doe sleeps alongside babies whose births caused joy. Their first blankets were pink and blue, and their first cribs clean and warm.

In a few days they will go home with their mothers.

Casino Expansion Bid Approved

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The owner of the Las Vegas casino Caesars Palace has received final approval to expand the present Howard Johnson's Regency Motor Hotel here into a $25-room casino hotel.

The approval was granted Monday by the Atlantic City Planning Board. David Jacobson, architect for Desert Palace of New Jersey, said the Caesars Palace owners hope to open the casino hotel by next Memorial Day. Desert Palace is a subsidiary of Caesars World Inc. of Los Angeles, which owns Caesars Palace.

Marketing Specialist Expects Price Rise In Feeder Cattle

LAS CRUCES (Special) —Although feeder cattle prices have been somewhat volatile so far this year, prices should climb through April, said Robert Coppersmith, extension marketing specialist at New Mexico State University.

"Choice-grade, 650-750 pound yearling feeder steers should sell for $57-$59 this fall and winter," Coppersmith said. "Prices should raise to the $60 level by April of next year."

Choice 500 pound feeder calves will sell in the $63-$66 range this fall, rising to about $68-$70 by next spring, Coppersmith said.

Record cattle prices this spring gave cattlemen a glimpse of the inherent volatile nature of a rapidly rising, dynamic and somewhat psychological market, Coppersmith said. This suggests that the general cattle market trend is upward, but not without occasional setbacks.

In contrast to the past three to four years, it may be difficult to buy cattle "cheap," Coppersmith said. The major factors in the current forecast include the cattle supplies and current inventories, grain costs, beef prices, feeding programs, forage conditions and the demand for beef.

Although feeder cattle supplies are down from recent years, further reductions will occur, Coppersmith said. This reflects previous declines in the cow herd and calf crop. Strong demand, stemming from feedlot replacements and herd rebuilding, should tighten the supply.

In addition, severe liquidation almost assured that it may be at least 1981 before any significant increase in feeder cattle supplies is possible, Coppersmith said. Even then the rate of increase may be limited by the low cow numbers.

The industry now has an inventory near the 1970 levels. Meanwhile, general income has more than doubled and human population is 6.4 percent higher than it was at that time.

Feed grain costs are another factor. Grain costs are low by historical standards but rising from depressed 1977 prices.

Over time, grain costs should rise. However, Coppersmith said, impact on feeder cattle demand may be partially blunted by feeding practices, such as a shorter time on feed.

Cattle feeders may also adjust their programs so that the numbers of cattle placed on feed may not decline as much

Parole Board Approves Prisoner Review Plan

AUSTIN (AP) — A new prisoner review system that could increase the number of inmates on parole has been approved by the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

The three-member board and the six commissioners appointed to help deal with its caseload held a "work session" Monday on details of the new review system.

In most cases, panels consisting of two commissioners working at the prisons and one Austin-based board member will decide whether to parole an inmate.

"The three of us can't carry the load," chairman George Killinger said of the board. "We are working ourselves to death. . . . I talked to the governor, and they agreed we should try it (the new panel system)."

He added, however, "I think there will be more turndowns by the governor's office."

This apparently was a reference to the fact that commissioners have tended to be more willing to grant parole than the board members.

Board members will have exclusive power in death penalty clemency cases and those involving sentences of 45 years or more.

"We've got public accountability, you know. We can't let it go to hell," explained board member Clyde Whiteside.

For the past year or more, parole decisions have been made by panels consisting of a single commissioner and two board members.

Commissioners often were voted down, 2-1, by the board members and complained both publicly and privately. Commissioner Paul Mansmann once testified 40 percent of the paroles he recommended were voted down by the two board members who reviewed them.

"This thing about a fight between the board and the commissioners has been overplayed," Whiteside told reporters.

He said that the commissioners had "been unhappy for a while that so many of their decisions have been turned down by the board."

But sometimes commissioners have not given enough information to support their parole recommendations, leaving the board majority no alternative but to vote "no," Whiteside said.

Now the commissioners will hold the majority on most cases.

The governor has the final say on paroles but cannot grant a parole unless the board recommends it. Gov. Dolph Briscoe has been turning down about 15 percent of the paroles recommended by the board.

American poet Oliver Wendell Holmes was born Aug. 29, 1809.

On this day in history:

In 1852, Brigham Young proclaimed the "Celestial Law of Marriage," signifying his approval of polygamy (more than one spouse) among Mormons, a practice later officially outlawed by the Church of the Latter-Day Saints.

In 1960, the premier of Jordan and 11 others were killed when a time bomb exploded in his office.

In 1965, American astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad landed safely to end the eight-day orbital flight of Gemini 5.

In 1973, President Nixon was ordered by Judge John Sirica to turn over secret Watergate tapes but he refused and appealed the order.

A thought for the day:
Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "Put not your trust in money, but put your money in trust."

Cotton Industry Waging War

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—The president of a major cotton marketing and research company said that the cotton industry is engaged in a "nasty, grubby, dirty war" with the synthetic fibers industry.

"And we're going to win it," said Dukes Wooters, president of Cotton Inc., a New York-based company.

Cotton Inc. markets cotton products and conducts research for United States cotton producers.

Wooters was interviewed on a Jonesboro television interview program Sunday.

He said domestic consumption of cotton products is down from previous levels, but he expects it to rebound, especially when a 100 percent cotton durable press shirt is developed. Wooters predicted that such a shirt would be marketed by next summer.

"This is very exciting news for the American cotton producer," he said. "No woman in America wants to be a washerwoman for her family and slave over a hot iron."

Synthetic fiber sometimes is preferred to cotton because it is durable and press cotton is not, he said. The development of a durable press cotton shirt could change that.

"No one fiber remains at the top of the fashion heap forever," he said.

Wooters also said that the devaluation of the dollar on the world money market "unquestionably has helped" make American cotton more competitive worldwide.

Paul Scott:

Uncle Sam Doesn't Need Losers

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Kenneth May and One Man's Opinion will be absent with leave from this space for a few days. While Mr. May enjoys a brief sabbatical in the hinterlands, nationally syndicated columnist Paul Scott will stand in.)

WASHINGTON—The All Volunteer Military Force has serious—if not insurmountable—problems, according to Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Ind.-Va., a ranking member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Sen. Byrd's findings are expected to play a major role in future congressional hearings to determine whether the All Volunteer Military Force should be continued.

His inquiry reveals that one of the most serious problems is that of attrition—the failure of individuals to fulfill their commitment of service.

IT IS NOT generally known that more than 40 percent of those joining the armed services now fail to complete their first tour of duty.

The rates for the individual services range from 37 percent for the Air Force to 42 percent for the Army.

Failure of these "volunteers" to complete their tour of duty is costing American taxpayers an estimated $1 billion a year, according to Sen. Byrd's study.

But this is only a small part of the cost to the nation's national security. The money wasted by attrition buys no defense capability for the U.S.

Of the 134,000 individuals who left the services in Fiscal Year 1977 before completing their first term, over 97,000 (75 percent) left for failure to meet minimum behavior or performance standards.

THE REMAINING 25 percent were discharged because of such factors as medical problems, hardship, death, and other causes.

Desertion and absenteeism have been major factors in the soaring attrition problem.

In 1977, for example, the Navy's desertion rate reached an all-time high of 31.6 desertions per 1,000, totaling 14,539 desertions during the past year.

At the same time, the Navy's absentee rate climbed to a near-record rate of 76.9 per thousand.

Both those rates are considerably higher than those encountered even at the height of the Vietnam war.

The Marine Corps and the Army have also experienced high rates of desertion and other offenses with the All Volunteer Forces, although Army rates have recently improved considerably.

EVEN MORE DISTURBING than the high rate of disciplinary problems, however, is the fact that the majority of these individuals who have left the service for failure to meet minimum performance or behavior standards can and do qualify for veterans benefits.

An individual becomes eligible for such benefits after serving six months and a day.

Even worse in recent years, according to Sen. Byrd, the Navy has actually been providing an incentive for desertion. This may be part of the reason for the Navy's soaring desertion rates.

"In effect what this policy does is say to the sailor who wants to get out of the Navy: 'Go over the hill, desert! Stay away a few months and then turn yourself in.'

"The Navy will let you out of the service and give you a discharge which qualifies you for veteran's benefits. Uncle Sam will reward your desertion by sending you to college."

IT IS SEN. BYRD'S conclusion that "these problems have contributed greatly to the unacceptably high rate of attrition which our Armed Forces have experienced in recent years.

"It is time that the Defense Department and the individual services take strong action. We cannot continue to waste our tax funds and we cannot afford to permit high rates of indiscipline in our Armed Forces."

As a starter, Sen. Byrd calls for a tightening of recruiting procedures to screen out more substandard performers. He also wants the practices within the services which reward failure to meet standards ended.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Stuck In The Up Position

REGARDLESS OF what liberal economists may argue, most of us are firmly convinced that big federal deficits are a prime contributor to inflation.

Obviously attempting to respond to that perception, President Carter finally is putting the screws on Congress and his own department heads to hold down federal spending.

His crusade no doubt will draw cheers in most quarters, but there is another element to the deficit crackdown that may not prove so popular, i.e., a conscious decision to abandon any further tax reductions beyond the modest cuts Congress is likely to enact this year.

WITH A BIG Social Security tax increase kicking in next year, and inflation driving all wage-earners into higher income tax brackets, the practical effect of Carter's decision will be to increase the total federal tax burden on a majority of Americans.

James McIntyre, Carter's Office of Management and Budget director, said this week that current policy precludes any new tax relief in the fiscal 1980 budget Carter plans to send to Congress in January.

The primary emphasis, according to McIntyre, will be on reducing the deficit—a goal which could not be achieved if revenues drop.

"We're very serious about a tight budget for 1980," McIntyre said. "The size of the deficit has a tremendous psychological impact. The American people feel deficit spending does have a significant effect on inflation, so we've got to get it down."

Carter and McIntyre have set a deficit target of $35-$40 billion for FY 1980, and OMB is said to be leaning hard on all departments to hold spending requests to a level that will permit further reduction.

MCINTYRE WAS careful to leave open the possibility of a Carter tax reduction proposal for fiscal 1981, which begins, you see, just one month before the 1980 presidential election.

But that may be too little, too late to satisfy a public that is in the throes of a tax revolt right now. Carter is effectively caught between a rock and a hard place, given the conflicting popular demands for lower federal deficits and lower federal taxes.

As of now, Mr. Carter has decided to go for lower deficits rather than major tax relief.

What remains to be seen is whether voters want to see continued shrinkage of the deficit badly enough to tolerate an actual increase in their total federal tax burden over the next two years.

Holmes Alexander:

Did Destiny Slay The Dreamers?

WASHINGTON—As usual, Congress is going home with unfinished business. The House select committee on assassinations, which has had all year to make a believable public presentation of what or who killed Dr. Martin Luther King, seems not to have the foggiest.

One opinion which I solicited from a staffer who has followed the unfolding of evidence closer than most, proposed that the missile which slew Mr. King came out of "nowhere" and might well have been propelled by a mystic force which was guarding the status quo of the American nation.

Without accepting or totally discounting this eerie thesis, one may put two and two together. The opening witness before the House committee, Dr. Ralph Abernathy stood to profit most from King's removal.

DR. ABERNATHY was the younger man's successor to leadership, just as Lyndon Johnson was to the Kennedy presidency. Dr. Abernathy told us that King has a premonition of assassination (so did Kennedy) and was chiefly rueful that his work would not be carried on.

Dr. King's "work," if the testimony tells us true, was the abolition of inequality in America. In the crudest sense this meant to his successor, Dr. Abernathy, the equal distribution of wealth and property, benefiting for the most part, black Americans.

Had JFK cared primarily for his "program" including civil rights, he could not avoid believing that its extension was safest in the hands of Vice President Johnson, a populist and a parliamentary leader who, in fact, put over the Kennedy program of civil rights so that the country has never been the same.

BUT WE KNOW now that Kennedy's desire to survive a normal life began with the yen for reelection in the year he never lived to see, 1964. We know that he and his family much preferred someone other than Lyndon Johnson.

Just as criminal pathologist Dr. Michael Baden destroyed the certitude that the bullet which killed Dr. King came from the rooming house bathroom where James Earl Ray was lurking with a 30.06 rifle, admittedly purchased, doubt has not disappeared that the shot which killed John Kennedy came from the book repository where Lee Harvey Oswald supposedly lay in wait for the President with a mail-order rifle.

In both instances, the guns may have been fired from places of startling similarity. In Dallas there was much talk about the "grassy knoll" as the origin of the shot that killed the President.

In Memphis, the testimony of Dr. Baden suggests a "bushy area" as the hideout of the assassin. In any event, so long as there are two places where the trigger could have been pressed, there is doubt as to from where the fatal missile was launched. Since doubt exists, all possibilities exist, and this is why the suggestion of an extraterrestrial source is not as flippant as it seems.

Looking back, it does not seem that Dr. King was getting very far in the eternal quest for human equality. He was in Memphis to support a strike by trash-collectors, and seemed very discouraged as to succeeding.

Kennedy was in Dallas, on a tour of Texas, as a hard way of proving to the Right Wing that he was not afraid to tangle with world Communism.

If the two bullets from unearthly places, and if destiny pulled the trigger, then Dr. King's death showed a heavenly will against the distribution of American wealth, and President Kennedy's was a divine intervention to prevent the re-election of a man who had not the nerve to use the vast superiority of nuclear weapons that we then possessed, but have since frittered away.

Sylvia Porter:

You Can't Always Take Coins At 'Face Value'

IN CHICAGO 10 days ago, a coin collection of 1,530 pieces, one of the most important in the nation, was auctioned off piece by piece for $2.25 million, well above the experts' expectations.

A $5 gold piece, 1825-over-1824, went for $140,000 to a coin dealer. Even though only two such coins are known to exist, the price paid was characterized as "way over the estimated value."

This is merely the latest manifestation of the big boom in coins not meant for spending, along with the upsurge in books not meant for reading, paintings and sculptures not necessarily for viewing.

Do you own a 1964 50-cent piece, minted in honor of President John F. Kennedy the year after he was assassinated? It's now worth $2 or four times its face value, a 100 percent increase just since 1974 when it was worth twice its face value.

OR A 1940 quarter from the Philadelphia mint, all silver and never circulated? It commands $9, or 36 times its face value, up from $7.50 just three years ago.

And how about a 1950 Jefferson nickel, minted in Denver in limited quantities? That nickel will bring you an astronomical increase of 220 times its face value—or $11.

And a 1909 penny V.D.B. (Victor D. Brenner series) uncirculated? This one will get you a 1,250 times increase over face value, or $12.50. Only four years ago, it sold at a hefty 500 times its face value.

But how do you find out if that box of collected coins in your attic has any real value?

The chances are your "collection" is only an "accumulation," says George Parota, spokesman for the numismatic division of Deak-Perera, New York-based dealers in international currencies. But to make sure:

- (1) TAKE THE COLLECTION to two or three respected dealers, ask each what it would pay for the entire collection, not just best pieces. Dealers will charge for a formal, written appraisal. (Deak-Perera, for instance, charges a fee of 1 percent of the total value of your coins with a minimum fee of $25.) The appraisal is refunded—if you sell the collection through that dealer. (2) Do not make your own inventory of the coins to present it to a dealer for appraisal. The dealer wants to see the coins. (3) Under no circumstances, try to clean the coins! A poor cleaning job can drastically slash a coin's value. Using pencil erasers, silver polish or baking soda won't make the coins more valuable. You can only harm them. (4) Rare coins, like other antiques, are most desirable.

Lightly Speaking...

A guy was talking about a problem that occurs on morning newspapers. The editor insisted that the day of the week be used in stories, rather than "today," "yesterday" or "tomorrow." A reporter used a quotation from Shakespeare: "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow..." A copy editor changed it to: "Wednesday and Wednesday and Wednesday..."

Overhead: "I'm glad they can't all win in politics."

Downhill Drag!

James J. Kilpatrick:

Reason Has Fled The Temples

WASHINGTON—One of the most depressing aspects of our supposedly free society is the government's itch to regulate the lives of the people. A companion aspect, equally depressing, is the people's willingness to have the government regulate their lives. The pending pop, gum and candy decree provides a case in point.

Back in April, the Food and Nutrition Service of the Department of Agriculture put forth a proposal having to do with the sale of foods in competition with lunches sold under the National School Lunch Program.

The rule would prohibit the sale of soda water, frozen desserts, candy and chewing gum on school premises until after the last lunch period.

Carol Tudor Foreman, assistant secretary for food and consumer services, justified the proposal in this fashion: Many parents, nutritionists, school administrators, teachers and physicians have become increasingly concerned about competitive foods in the public schools.

THEY BELIEVE the sale of these snacks may contribute substantially to increased plate waste, reduced participation in the program, and a general decline in the consumption of nutritious foods.

Mrs. Foreman emphasized that her department did not intend to be unreasonable. We are aware, she said, that many nutritious items are sold in the schools, including fruits, soups and ice cream.

These could still be sold at any time. The intent is to prohibit the sale of only those foods "that do not make a positive nutritional contribution in terms of their overall impact on children's diets, dietary habits and appetites."

On that basis, Mrs. Foreman proposed to crack down on sales of soda pop, chewing gum, sherbets, ices, and an array of candies including, but not limited to, hard candies, creams, jelly and gum-like candies, marshmallows, nougats, fudges, toffees, caramels, chocolates and chocolate-coated fruits and nuts.

THE DEPARTMENT advertised the proposed regulation on April 25, and at first set June 9 as the deadline for comments. The idea was to get the rule into operation by August 1, so that it would apply to the entire school year.

But so many comments came pouring in that the deadline was extended to June 28. When they finally called a halt, 2,176 letters had stacked up.

Last week the School Programs Division completed an analysis of the comments. The melancholy fact—melancholy to me, anyhow—is that 82 percent of the letter writers approved the proposed regulation.

That is not all. Of the nearly 1,800 approving letters, roughly half asked that the regulation be amended to make it stronger. Many persons wanted competitive foods banned entirely.

Others wanted the list of prohibited items expanded. On the opposing side, not even 10 percent protested the regulation as an unnecessary intrusion upon the responsibility of parents and school officials.

Brighter Side...

A doctor returned from making a house call. His wife inquired: "Well, dear, what was it this time?" He told her, "Nothing much. Fellow just got sick on some fermented blackberry wine." Said she: "I see. Just another wild juice case."

Fish Limit Helpful To Countries

KINGSTON, R.I. (UPI)—Canada and the United States may be a long way from solving their ocean boundary dispute, but government officials agree that the 200-mile limit is helping their fishing industries.

In fact, it's working so well that both countries are planning to export fish to other nations.

The 200-mile limit, which went into effect March 1, 1977, restricts the number of foreign ships allowed in the area and sets quotas on catches of various species of fish.

Senior U.S. and Canadian officials attending the American Fisheries Society's national meeting at the University of Rhode Island said Tuesday the restricted foreign fishing has helped rebuild fish stocks along both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

"Some 60 percent of our fish exports go to the U.S. Now that we manage the entire resource out to the (200-mile) limit, there's an opportunity to diversify our market, particularly in Western and Eastern Europe and Japan," said Kenneth C. Lucas, senior assistant deputy minister for Canada's Fisheries and Marine Service.

Terry Leitzell, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's assistant administrator for fisheries, said his agency is meeting with industry representatives and members of Congress to develop a program to establish new markets for fish.

DR. LAMB Oils Trap Moisture

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 72 years old and until the last few years I've had what my friends call a beautiful complexion. Nothing ever seemed to irritate it in any way. For about the last three years I've had too to be very careful. Almost any cream I use, cleansing or moisturizing, will cause my skin to itch and causes a rash. I finally started using Vaseline. I have used castor oil and olive oil. I would like to know if Vaseline is good for the skin or would it be better to use olive or castor oil?

DEAR READER — It really doesn't make much difference. Any of the oils or Vaseline and other oily salves and skin lotions really act to trap the moisture in the skin. These oily substances are impermeable to water. Well over 50 percent of your body is water and this oily barrier prevents the evaporation of moisture from the skin and prevents drying of the skin.

In the last analysis almost any of the standard oils and salves are good for this purpose. The addition of other so-called beauty ingredients usually doesn't add a great deal. In your case, you could use any of the cooking oils that you want, Vaseline or even baby oil if you want to try it.

To give you more information about taking care of the skin, I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spo's and Cancer. Others who want this information can send 30 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What would cause a person's heart to burst and kill him? What would cause a person's urine to have an extremely unpleasant odor and what would the cure for it be?

DEAR READER — The heart is a hollow organ. When it bursts there is a hole or tear through its wall. This can follow an acute heart attack when the muscle has been severely damaged to the point that the blood heart tissue simply tears apart leaving a giant hole in the wall of the heart itself. When this occurs blood rapidly pours out of the heart into the chest cavity. Such a blow-out is not likely to occur unless a person has had a very recent heart attack with heart muscle damage.

Urine is nothing more than the filtered solution taken from the blood stream. If you eat products that create odors, these may be eliminated through the urine. One of the classic examples here is asparagus. And if you react to try for yourself, eat some asparagus and notice the change in the odor of the urine shortly thereafter. This will persist until all of the chemical from the asparagus that is responsible for the odor is eliminated from your body.

There are other factors which affect the odor including concentration, and the formation of ammonia by the kidney. In any case, in most instances the odor of the urine is not really very important.

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

The United States dominated the Fifth World Pair Olympiad in New Orleans, winning the Charles Solomon Trophy for the best performance by a country for the fifth straight time. American representatives were particularly strong in the Mixed Pairs event, where they swept the top five places.

One of the most spectacular results from the Mixed Pairs occurred on this deal, which featured aggressive bidding by North, Judi Radin, who had just won the Women's Pair Championship, and brilliant play by South, Gerald Caravelli of Des Plaines, Ill. North's one-club opening was artificial, showing 16 or more points, and one diamond was negative. At his second turn, South cue-bid the opponent's suit, asking for a stopper to play a no trump contract, but North couldn't oblige. Instead, she boldly introduced her diamond suit, and South went on to game.

West led the ace of hearts, ruffed in dummy. A club to the queen lost to the king, and the heart return was again ruffed. Caravelli cashed the ace of trumps, noting the fall of the nine. He now proceeded to read the hand perfectly.

After cashing the ace of clubs, he ruffed a club to set up the suit. He played the queen of spades, then ruffed a heart with the jack of trumps. Obviously, declarer was playing East for all the missing trumps. East tried to act as though he didn't have the queen by refusing to overruff. (It would not have helped him to ruff with the queen—declarer would simply win the spade return in dummy and play clubs until East ruffed, to trump coup him.)

But there was no deflecting declarer on his path. Caravelli continued to run winning clubs. When East finally decided to ruff with the ten of diamonds, declarer did not overruff—he simply discarded again. At the end, declarer was left with the K-8 in diamonds over East's Q-6, with the lead in dummy. The defenders could not make another trick—they had to settle for one club and one trump trick.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? Rice Enhances Flavor, Texture Of Dishes

NEW YORK, N.Y. (Special) — Like the simple, basic dress that fashionable ladies dress up or down for many occasions, rice is a basic cereal that appears on dining tables around the world in hundreds of different ways. In China it accompanies meat and vegetable dishes, unseasoned and ungarished. The Chinese say that its neutral flavor cleanses the palate, making it more sensitive to the individual flavors and textures of other dishes served with it. Many epics agree.

One of the popular uses of rice in Japan is in sushi. Cooked rice is mixed with vinegar dressing and arranged into a kind of sandwich with slices of fresh, raw fish. Indian cooks like to use ghee (clarified butter) highly seasoned with garlic, cardamom, turmeric, cinnamon stick, coriander and cayenne. The seasonings cook in the ghee to blend flavors, then rice and vegetables are added. The result: a richly seasoned cereal that is delicious served with a yogurt and cucumber relish called raita.

The Middle East is famous for pilaf of which there is infinite variety. With the addition of sugar, nutmeg, raisins and nuts, rice becomes an exotic dessert. Seasoned with herbs such as sage, thyme, rosemary and parsley and cooked with vegetables in season, pilaf is an appropriate accompaniment for chicken, beef, pork, lamb and fish.

The accompanying recipe for Rice and Vegetable Pilaf uses corn oil margarine instead of butter which makes it eligible for persons on low saturated fat diets. Served with shish kebabs, a leafy green salad and fruit for dessert, the menu is relatively low in calories yet generous in nutrients for persons on low cholesterol and low saturated fat diets.

RICE AND VEGETABLE PILAF

1/2 cup (1/2 stick) corn oil margarine
1 cup chopped onion
1 1/2 tps. salt
1 cup long grain rice
2 cups water
5 pkg. frozen string beans, thawed
3 med. carrots, cut into julienne strips
3 med. green pepper, coarsely diced
1/2 tsp. sage

1/2 tsp. thyme
1 tsp. chopped parsley
In a very large saucepan or Dutch oven melt corn oil margarine over medium heat. Add onions and salt; saute onions until golden. Add rice and water; mix thoroughly. Bring to a boil over high heat. Stir in beans, carrots, pepper, sage and thyme. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 10-15 minutes until all water is absorbed and vegetables are tender. Transfer the rice into a serving bowl and garnish with finely chopped parsley, if desired.

VERSATILE HERRINGBONES — Maybe their versatility is the reason herringbones are one of the most long-lasting of menswear patterns. Or maybe it's their inherent good looks. Here's a trio of styles that proves both points. DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I'm sitting here in the county jail and I have a problem I need help with. Since I've been here I have fallen in love with a wonderful guy who is locked up on the floor below me. We have been talking through a crack in the floor, and have really gotten to know each other very well. We went to the same high school together, but we never dated.

We did a lot of talking back and forth, and he wants to marry me when we get out. Do you think it's really love or are we just lonesome? I am nearly 20, and he is the same age. I sure could use some good advice, so please answer soon.

IN LOVE AND IN JAIL

DEAR IN: Being locked up and lonely can distort one's thinking, so don't make any decisions until you are free.

Get to know each other better, then decide whether you want to marry. "I do" is a two word sentence — for life!

DEAR ABBY: I am a faithful reader of your column, and I kept hoping to come across a problem similar to mine from one of your readers, but so far no one has dared to declare himself.

I know I need help, but I don't know how to get it without incriminating myself. I am a shoplifter. I have been shoplifting for a long time, but it just dawned on me that I am doing wrong and I must stop myself before I get caught and disgrace myself and my family.

I am a woman in my late 50's. I have a wonderful husband and family, all the money I need, plus charge accounts in all the best stores.

Most of the things I take I neither need nor want. Please direct me to the right place for help.

CAN'T SIGN

DEAR CAN'T: Your problem is a medically recognized illness. Ask your family physician to recommend a psychiatrist or psychologist. And don't delay treatment out of shame. Your problem is not as uncommon as you think.

DEAR PET OWNER: With summer here, please do not take your pet along for the ride and leave him locked up in a parked car while you do errands and shopping.

When the temperature is 85 degrees outside, the temperature inside a parked car (even with the windows slightly opened) will reach 102 degrees within 10 minutes. And in 30 minutes it will reach 120 degrees!

The normal body temperature of a dog is approximately 102 degrees, and it can withstand approximately 108 degrees for a very short time without suffering irreparable brain damage or death.

So the next time you're tempted to take your dog along for the ride on a hot summer day, if you must leave him locked in a parked car — leave him home!

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal, unpublished reply, write: Abby: Box

Medical Director Believes Food Affects Children's Behavior

NEW YORK (WNS) — Food can very definitely affect your child's personality, according to the head of a national non-profit center specializing in the diagnosis and treatment of hyperactive, underachieving and learning-disabled children.

"Allergies, food sensitivities, and the inability to properly digest carbohydrates could lead to behavior patterns in their children which may well cause parents worry and distress," says Dr. Alan C. Levin, medical director of the New York Institute for Child Development here, who has been a pediatrician in private practice for close to 40 years.

Levin has felt for many years that certain behaviors such as hyperactivity can be caused by foods containing artificial additives. But he is beginning to think the biggest culprit is sugar.

"Just think of the Saturday afternoon birthday party," Levin explains. "It probably begins calmly enough. Mother can certainly control the kids' natural excitement. But by the end of the day — when all the ice cream, cake, soda and candy are gone — wrestling matches have wrecked the woodwork, all the balloons have been exploded and Mother is ready for a long vacation. And believe me, those kids will be hyper for several days."

What's a mother to do? To determine whether your child is really sensitive to certain foods in his diet, Levin recommends the following guidelines:

1. Keep a diet record of everything your child eats for at least seven days. Make sure you include all the bubble gum, candy, sips, nibbles, snacks and, of course, meals.
2. Keep track of the time of day each time he has something to eat or drink.
3. Observe your child and note if he shows the following behaviors (if any): Mood swings; crying jags; unusual fatigue; crankiness; itching or rashes; pallor; increased or decreased activity level; running nose; circles under eyes; headaches or stomach ache.
4. Match up the foods, times eaten and behavior.
5. If you think you notice a pattern or relationship, contact your family doctor.

If any of the child's reactions occur within three to four hours of eating a certain food, or if you notice a pattern between his eating habits and his behavior, Levin suggests, "Try a little ice-box psychology." Such as:

1. Try to eliminate the most suspicious food first. Usually this is the food that is eaten most frequently and it could be the culprit.
2. Reward your child for not eating the suspicious substance. Pennies or tokens that can be redeemed for a trip to the movies or staying up late are a good idea.

3. Give your child a standard multivitamin — but not one that is sugar-coated or artificially flavored. Your child's diet may not be nutritionally complete, and that could be causing some of the problems.

4. Try to eliminate the junk foods and empty-calorie snacks. Instead, substitute protein snacks such as cheese, nuts, seeds, fruit or meat. Eaten mid-morning, mid-afternoon and after dinner, these snacks will help keep your child's behavior on an even keel.

5. Set a good example for your child. Chances are if you follow the same guidelines you'll feel better too.

Book Provides Air Travel Tips

By BETTY YARMON
Women's News Service

NEW YORK (WNS) — Do you want to improve your chances of getting a seat on or near the date of your intended trip on one of the bargain airlines that offers stand-by seats on a first-come, first-serve basis?

Here are some hints from the new 1978 edition of "Charter Flight Directory and Guide to Other Air Travel Bargains," put out each year by travel expert Jeans Jurgen.

Learn how to read the Official Airline Guide (OAG), formidable directory of all flights of all airlines, which is to be found conveniently handy at the office of travel agents and of airlines.

From this directory you will be able to make up a list of those airlines offering stand-by flights on the day you have chosen to your destination, with flight numbers and departure time.

Armed with this information, call all the airlines involved — they have toll-free numbers — and check whether stand-by fares are still available, and whether stand-by seats have been sold for a particular flight. Ask what the booking situation looks like for that day, city, and flight.

If you are flexible in your plans, ask if another flight, perhaps on a later day the same week, would be more promising.

Find out exactly where the stand-by line forms at the airport. Sometimes this is at the information counter. On the other occasions it could be a certain ticket counter at the airport or even in a separate area of the terminal.

Keep your luggage light so that if you fail at one airline and want to move on to another, you won't be unduly burdened. Some stand-by travelers arm themselves with sturdy baggage carts so that they can speedily make the journey to the next counter. If you are traveling in twos, one partner can stand with the luggage while the other, unencumbered, moves from airline counter to airline counter.

Since the first-come, first-serve rule holds, be sure to get to the airport at the earliest possible hour. Stand-by tickets can often be bought before dawn even though a flight may not be scheduled to leave until evening. (This three-hour limit apparently was set so that travelers arriving at the airport with regular, higher-priced tickets wouldn't be able to trade them in, in effect, for the lower-priced stand-by tickets.)

There is still a chance, of course, that you will not be able to make one of the stand-by tickets, particularly in the busy summer period, when travel generally is at its year-round peak. In that case there is still hope. For example, charter organizers are permitted to accept last-minute bookings — even at the airport — to fill seats that either are unsold or where a passenger has turned into a no-show.

Jergen's directory lists charter flights — more than 20,000 of them, including ABCs, OTCs, and ITCs — so having a copy of his 128-page book with you can help you spot charter departures. Often charters are posted on the department boards of the various airlines, or there are signs over certain check-in counters.

Charter seats, incidentally, are not sold by the airline but rather by the charter operator who generally had a representative stationed at or near the check-in counter. He may well have a seat available under the fill-up or substitution allotment. If he has many empty seats you might even be able to strike a special bargain — but as this point you usually will have to pay for your seat in cash.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Weekend rain over most of the Midwest growing area, particularly in Arkansas, depressed grain and soybean futures sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Analysts said the Arkansas rain apparently ended drought conditions that had prevailed in that state, the third largest in the country in soybean acreage.

Heavy country selling of corn and soybeans over the weekend also was a weakening factor in the market.

Traders also considered the purchase of half a million tons of U.S. wheat as less than that expected and triggered selling in that pit.

At the close of trading soybeans were 13 1/2 to 15 1/2 cents lower, with September contracts quoted at 46.50 1/2 a bushel; wheat was 3/4 to 1 1/2 cents lower, September $3.31 1/2; corn was 2 1/4 to 3 1/2 cents lower, September $2.12.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON

U. S. Department of Agriculture
Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market was slow to moderate. Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy and demand was moderate to good.

Growers offered 1978 crop contracts of 1,250 points over 1977 low rates. A few hundred acres were booked late last week.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotation held steady.

LUBBOCK SPOT COTTON

Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing Service for qualities equal to the U.S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mix) readings of 3.5 through 4.6, in mixed lots, uncompressed, free of all charges in the warehouse in the market.

Price trend: steady on Monday.

Phony 'Special Investigators' Rob Lubbock Man

A Lubbock man told police he was beaten and robbed early this morning after agreeing to drive a woman from an East 50th Street bar to her motel in the 1000-block of North Avenue Q.

Harry Lee Terrell of 2406 33rd St. said he was driving the woman to the motel about 1:30 a.m. when two long-haired white men in a pickup drove up beside him and one yelled, "Special investigators, pull over!"

According to reports, Terrell and the woman, who is now a suspect in the case, were northbound on U.S. 87 with the suspects' pickup following behind. One of the suspects reportedly kept yelling for Terrell to pull over.

Terrell said his car was rammed several times by the pickup before he and the woman confronted the two male suspects in the motel parking lot.

The woman ran off, reports show, while Terrell was beaten by the two men and his wallet containing $50 in cash stolen. Terrell said when the suspects drove off, he could not tell whether the woman, also white and in her early 20s, was in the pickup.

Terrell, who could not find his car keys after the assault, said he "hot-wired" his vehicle and drove to police headquarters to report the incident.

In one of two other recently reported robberies, police found a 37-year-old man on the ground about 11:30 p.m. Monday near East Second Street and Loop 289.

The man, Kenneth M. Phillips of 1916 E. Cornell St., told the officers he had been robbed by two men who offered to give him a ride after his 1963 Volkswagen stalled near the loop's East Second Street exit.

Phillips said he was traveling with the two suspects in their pickup and drinking a can of beer he had been offered when he suddenly passed out. The next thing he said he remembered was being thrown out of the truck and being kicked in the stomach while one of the suspects looked for his money.

Phillips said his attackers made off with $65, leaving him with an empty wallet and his stalled car.

The third robbery was reported by an 11-year-old boy. He said he and a friend were riding their bicycles about 4 p.m. Monday in a vacant lot in the 1800-block of Avenue A when a white man and black man came up and threatened to beat him and his friend up if they did not give up their bikes.

The two suspects were given the bikes, according to reports, and were last seen pedaling west on Avenue A.

A fight over a pool game about 10:30 p.m. Monday resulted in four teenagers being beaten in front of a club in the 2300-block of 19th Street.

Three suspects, according to reports, were angered after losing a pool game to one of the teenagers, and decided to take revenge by jumping on the young victims in front of the club.

The four were escorted to Methodist Hospital after flagging down a policeman. Their injuries were not serious.

Gary Urbanowicz, a 27-year-old Air Force Captain stationed in New Mexico, told Lubbock police three flying helmets and oxygen masks, totaling $1,500, were stolen from his car while it was parked at a motel in the 2100-block of the Amarillo Highway between 10 p.m. Sunday and 7 a.m. Monday.

He also reported $55 in tapes taken from his vehicle.

A 16-year-old Lubbock boy told officers he was shot at by another teenager about 1:30 p.m. Monday at his parents' apartment in the 2700-block of Weber Drive.

He said the gun-wielding boy, thought to be about 13 years old, kicked open the front door. The youngster told police that when he turned to run to his bedroom, the boy holding a .22 caliber rifle shot at him, but missed.

The young suspect then left. The 16-year-old said he had had trouble with the suspect in the past.

Robbers were at it again recently, striking terror and misery into the hearts of two Texas Tech students and a city man, but for sheer pecuniary loss vandals took top billing in recent criminal incidents.

The microcreants entered the yet-to-be-completed Applegate's Landing, 2415 19th St., over the weekend and caused between $25,000 and $40,000 damage, a spokesman said.

Three roof skylights provided access for the vandals, police reports indicated, and damage to the broken skylights alone was $2,400.

Once inside the building, the intruders played out a frenzied scene of paint-throwing and splashing — ruining brick, naturally-stained woodwork, paper and wood and stone floors in the process.

The "criminal mischief," as it's known under the penal code, set the firm's grand opening back at least two weeks, Joe Young said.

An unauthorized version of "Supermarket Sweepstakes" landed a 26-year-old man and his 24-year-old wife in the county jail recently.

The pair had toured a Safeway store at 2014 50th St. Sunday and allegedly were attempting to exit without paying for nearly $53 worth of groceries and supplies.

After reportedly being spotted by a grocery store employee, the couple was detained by police officers in the parking lot, where they allegedly were attempting a getaway.

Upon investigation, officers found a receipt in the man's pants and a couple of items and a pound of school supplies in the woman's outdoor purse.

Another round of burglaries brought misery to homeowners and businessmen and more legwork to police.

Charlotte Barnett of 9425 19th St. said someone stole her bike and skateboard Monday, a loss she estimated at $320.

Thomas McCown of 5401 4th St., No. 194, said car burglars broke into his vehicle Monday and swiped tools and a cassette player valued together at $500.

McCown's neighbor in No. 210, Tim Gage, said his car also was hit, as he lost guns and a camera, all valued at $220.

Jack Given, a house builder, said miscreants smashed seven windows at a house at 2815 9th St. over the weekend, causing $600 damage.

Ricky Hightower suffered the same financial loss when someone smashed his $600 compressor into a construction site in the 2400-block of Erskine Avenue.

Another pair of neighbors was hit by burglars recently, reports indicate.

Robert Vansory of the South Park Apartments, 3181 S. Loop 289, said his van was entered Monday and a tapehead and gun was missing. The property, Vansory said, was worth about $600.

Terry Daniels of Italia, who also was at the apartment complex Monday, said burglars inventoried his glove box, but found nothing they wanted.

Burglars took a $52 television set from Torbie Balaban's apartment at 307 Ave. U Monday, reports indicate, and vandals caused more than $600 damage to a house under construction in the 2300-block of Erskine Avenue last weekend, according to Ross Phillips of Phillips Red-Built Homes.

James Partridge of Partridge Construction said thieves cut a steel cable over the weekend to take his $295 welding unit, and Charlotte Bailey of 2511 29th St. said her $40 bike was stolen.

Dunbar Principal Optimistic About Second Integration Attempt

Is integration better the second time around? Dunbar High School — or, as it's now called, Dunbar-Struggs High — is about to find out.

"We have more going for us than in 1970. There has been more time to prepare, more time to build enthusiasm. I foresee a successful year ahead," said Roy Roberts, principal of the eastside magnet-school complex.

Eight years ago, just a few days before classes started that term, U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward issued his first order affecting Dunbar. He extended westward the attendance zone of the then all-black school, in an attempt to bring in white and Mexican-American students from Lubbock High and Monterey.

It wasn't altogether a failure. True, the projected numbers of pupils — especially whites — did not materialize. But those youngsters who have shown up acclaim Dunbar as a warm, friendly campus, with high scholastic standards and good discipline.

Woodward's new integration order, which took effect with the start of classes today, uses a different approach regarding Dunbar.

Instead of expanding the attendance area, the order enlarges the Dunbar campus — now to include the former Struggs Junior High facilities. And instead of reassigning students by edict, the new desegregation plan relies on voluntary transfers.

Most of those transfers are the result of the school system's decision to move to Dunbar-Struggs four cooperative vocational (work-study) programs previously offered at Monterey and Coronado High. Thus, to take such courses, westside students must drive or take a bus to Dunbar-Struggs.

"When the plan was first announced, the feeling of many Monterey and Coronado students was, 'We're not coming.' But the teachers got out and contacted their students. The kids visited our school, met our faculty and students. For the most part, their attitude has changed — they are coming." Tom Brown, the new assistant principal of Dunbar-Struggs, said.

Roberts said there is "no comparison" between the desegregation efforts of 1970 and 1978.

Eight years ago, he said, the school district "just didn't have time to prepare." In contrast, the district has been working for months getting Dunbar-Struggs ready for this latest initiative.

Not only has the district been orienting students and teachers, but school officials also have done extensive renovation of Dunbar-Struggs facilities — modifying classrooms for new programs and students. The cost, including similar renovations for the Elementary magnet school, has been about $183,000.

The 1978 desegregation efforts are special in another respect. Brown says the emphasis is not exclusively on racial balance — but on academic quality and enrichment of curriculum.

"What we're doing at Dunbar-Struggs will improve the educational opportunities for students throughout the city. We're opening up to students courses never before available in Lubbock," he said.

Those courses include class piano (each student will have his own electric piano), jazz-rock, computer science, commercial art and watercolor painting.

Even courses that have been offered in Lubbock all along — but are being moved to or consolidated at Dunbar-Struggs — will be greatly improved, officials said.

For instance, the school district's only electronics course and student radio station (KOHM-FM) are being relocated from barracks at Monterey to a wing of the Struggs campus. "Students will have ample space and the most sophisticated equipment to work with," Brown said.

Another example is the Distributive Education program (DE), which had been offered at Monterey, Coronado and Dunbar. By combining all DE students of those three schools at Dunbar-Struggs, "the program will definitely be stronger," said vice principal Mike Payton.

With more students come "multi-teacher departments and greater flexibility," said Olan Rice, the district's vocational director. He said courses like DE, cooperative health education, industrial cooperative training and home economics cooperative education each span broad skill areas. By consolidating students and faculty at Dunbar-Struggs, teachers in each program will be able to specialize, he said.

"Students will get better attention because teachers will be able to teach to their strengths," Rice said.

Dunbar-Struggs also is unique in its concept as a "metropolitan" high school. Students can opt for early-morning (7:30 a.m.) classes and early-afternoon dismissal. They can attend Dunbar-Struggs fulltime, for all their courses, or part-time, for just one or two courses — and yet still have the choice of graduating with their "home" high school.

Dunbar-Struggs students also will experience "an extra sense of self-responsibility," Brown said. Many will be shuttling between the Dunbar and Struggs facilities, as well as driving or taking a bus from their home school to the eastside complex, he said.

"There'll be a certain period of adjustment. I feel most people are looking at how many problems we're going to have. So me, it's how many opportunities," Brown added.

Payton said enrollment has picked up in recent weeks. Transfers for vocational programs alone have now topped 300, and the number of part-time students is up to 45 — which will bring Dunbar-Struggs very close to its goal of 800 pupils.

"I see things taking shape," Payton said. "Every student I've talked to has a positive attitude about the coming year. It's rubbing off on all of us."

That attitude, added principal Roberts, is better than in 1970. "Spirit is high among students. They're enthusiastic; they want to be here."

Students transferring in say the move to Dunbar-Struggs has advantages and disadvantages — but the former outweigh the latter.

"The sad part is we're leaving our friends," said Derenda Key, a Monterey senior transferring to Dunbar-Struggs for cooperative health education. "But we'll make new friends here."

"We've got to give it a chance. It's the only way we'll find out whether this plan works." — JEFF SOUTH

Fired SPAG Employees Claim Rights Violated

Two former employees of the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) Monday sued the organization, claiming their constitutional rights were violated when they were terminated from their jobs.

Filing the suit in U.S. District Court were G.A. Monasch and Russell Montgomery.

Monasch, of 2615 27th St., was described in the petition as a payroll specialist who was in the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program.

Montgomery, of 3209 67th St., was employed by SPAG as a finance officer, the petition says.

Monasch is seeking $136,500 in damages, while Montgomery asks for $25,000. Plaintiffs also ask U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward for injunctive relief.

SPAG executive director Truett Mayes, organization president Glenn W. Thompson, and Henry Heck, a SPAG vice-president, were also named defendants in the suit.

The suit alleges that Mayes, acting without regard for SPAG organizational responsibilities and obligations of the CETA program, terminated plaintiffs' employment April 3 without notice or just cause.

The plaintiffs contend false grounds were given for the dismissals. Plaintiffs contend their rights were subsequently violated during a grievance action.

The suit says Thompson appointed Heck chairman of the grievance committee hearing the case, and that Heck ruled at an April 14 hearing that the three-member committee would not hear plaintiffs' evidence.

The committee then voted to uphold Mayes' action, the suit says. According to the petition, Heck accepted his appointment despite a conflict of interest of a personal sort which would affect his ability to be impartial.

The suit also contends that on April 11, prior to the grievance hearing, Mayes presented information on the case to the SPAG executive committee, including Thompson and Heck, in the absence of the plaintiffs.

Plaintiffs claim the alleged actions denied them due process and equal protection of the law.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB More Reversible Letters Given

By SHARI LEWIS
A few weeks ago, this Kids-Only Club column had a Brain Twister that said: "Eight capital letters in the alphabet are totally reversible — they can be seen in a mirror without changing shape. Can you figure out which they are?"

The next day, we printed our answer: A, H, M, O, T, V, W, Y.

Well, I heard from everyone and his uncle about that! The sweetest letter came from Pasadena, Tex. Brenda Ann Mogu wrote, "You left out three more that are totally reversible. They are I, U and X. I don't mean to be mean or anything. I just wanted to let you know!"

Everyone and his uncle was right! And it's funny that I left out those letters, because when I was in school, I spent lots of time writing things backwards. I know that was misspent youth, but it used to please me.

But Corinna Smith's letter also pleases me. From Colorado Springs, Colo., she wrote, "Print the word CHOICE in capital letters, turn it upside down and look at it in the mirror. It looks as though you are looking at it the same as when you printed it. Right side up!"

I think reading things backwards is fun, but the same can't be said of the kids in this picture. Can you read what it says on the board? I'll give you a hint. The kids are in Sunday school and these are the names of three people in the Bible. Don't hold this up to a mirror until you see if you can read it backwards!

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Which do you think weighs more — a pint of milk or a pint of cream?

ANSWER: Cream seems to be heavier because it is thicker. But when you think about it, you'll find cream at the top of the bottle, proving that it is lighter than milk.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: What is it that money cannot buy? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only column.)

Postal Talks Avert Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service and union negotiators are going back to the bargaining table under a delicately crafted agreement that removes the threat of a nationwide mail strike for at least two weeks.

"The nation can now be assured it will continue to enjoy uninterrupted mail service," said Postmaster General William Bolger after the compromise was reached on Monday.

Under the accord, the Postal Service and three unions will resume collective bargaining for 15 days under the auspices of a federal mediator, who will arbitrate any unresolved issues by the end of that period.

Both sides made concessions for their gains. Union leaders won further bargaining on key terms of the tentative contract that their rank-and-file had rejected earlier, at the cost of possible binding arbitration.

The Postal Service conceded reopening the bargaining, but won the element of arbitration and avoided — at least for now — what one government source said would have been "a very messy situation."

While the agreement appears to make a strike less likely, it does not rule out a possible rejection by union members of any future contract. Nor would it guarantee there would be no wildcat walkouts in the event of a mediated settlement.

Morris Biller, president of the 23,000-member New York City area local which staged a wildcat strike earlier this year, today called it "a ploy" and an attempt to mislead the rank-and-file members. Biller said "this is not collective bargaining, but binding arbitration and mediation." He would not, however, predict a strike.

James LaPenta, a spokesman for the mail handlers division of the Laborers International Union, the smallest of the three national unions, said he was sure the agreement would lead to a settlement and that the procedures "almost guarantee" against a strike.

The agreement came six hours before one union was expected to go on strike unless contract talks were resumed.

The strike, expected at midnight Monday, would have been illegal.

On Saturday, a federal judge issued a restraining order prohibiting any work stoppage or slowdown.

The Postal Service had been preparing contingency plans for a strike, which Bolger said would cause widespread economic problems and threaten the future of the Postal Service itself.

Chief Federal Mediator Wayne Horvitz, flanked by union and Postal Service leaders, announced the accord for further negotiations at a news conference and said he would appoint the mediator within 48 hours.

If a new contract emerges from the talks, Horvitz said, it will be submitted to the rank-and-file members for ratification. Those members brought about the labor impasse last week by rejecting a tentative contract agreed to July 21.

But "if agreement is not reached on the issues in question," Horvitz said, "then the individual (mediator) appointed will decide the remaining unresolved issues."

Although neither Horvitz nor the two sides would publicly go into the issues open for renegotiation, government and union sources confirmed that the two key areas of dispute — wages and the Postal Service's right to order layoffs — are among them.

The unions, representing more than half a million workers, had fought hard and won retention of the no-layoff clause.

Bolger, under pressure to hold the line on wages and costs, insisted just hours before the announcement Monday that he would not resume negotiations on the wage issue.

"Both sides are gambling on something," said a government source knowledgeable about the agreement. "But the stakes were very high. We were facing the prospects of a very messy situation."

The government source said the prospects of a strike were greatly lessened with the agreement, although after the 15 days union members conceivably still could reject whatever new contract might emerge, producing another strike threat.

If the issue is decided by the federal mediator, the source, who asked not to be identified, said union leaders would be hard pressed to go along with a strike since they already will have agreed to abide by the mediator's decision on any unresolved issues. There was no assurance, however, that wildcat strikes would be precluded.

The two largest unions — the 299,000-member American Postal Workers Union and the 181,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers — had been mandated by their members to strike within five days after the contract was rejected. That deadline was midnight Monday for the letter carriers and this Wednesday for the APWU.

Although the third union, the 36,000-member mail handlers division of the Laborers International Union, had no such mandate, its workers presumably would not have crossed picket lines.

Union officials said the main issue has been wages and they argued that the increased rate of inflation has made the tentative money package unacceptable.

Under the tentative contract, all workers would get a 19.5 percent increase over three years — a 10 percent hike in base pay and a maximum 9.5 percent cost-of-living increase during the life of the pact.

The Postal Service says the average base wage of its employees is $15,577 a year, including overtime. The tentative contract would increase that figure to about $19,200.

Leaders of all three unions hailed the agreement. Emmet Andrews, the APWU president, called the return to negotiations "a surrender by the Postal Service."

Bolger said in a statement that he was "satisfied with this agreement."

Army Men Seized In Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — More than 100 army men were reported under arrest today for plotting to oust President Anastasio Somoza, and reports from the countryside said anti-Somoza popular uprisings continued in major towns. The country's third largest city, Matagalpa, was said to be in a state of siege.

A highly placed source in the national guard, Nicaragua's 7,500-man army, said 12 officers and 85 soldiers were arrested, but another source put the total at more than 100 and said they included two colonels.

A general strike called to demand Somoza's resignation was spreading, but a spokesman for Somoza said the president had no plans to resign.

A Red Cross spokesman in Matagalpa, about 100 miles north of the capital, said a three-hour battle between government troops and civilians had just ended and "we don't know how many dead and injured we have."

But correspondents returning to the capital from the city of 61,000 said five persons had been killed during what they called a state of siege there. They said residents armed with pistols and bombs controlled most of Matagalpa and the national guard remained isolated in one part of the town.

The government said eight persons had been killed and more than 50 wounded in clashes in Esteli, about 65 miles north of the capital, and in Jinotepe, 18 miles south, over the past three days.

Testimony Aids Davis

seven questions in a row, he answered that he did not remember.

In four days of testimony, McCrory has claimed he did not remember certain details of the case more than 150 times. McCrory earlier testified about how he shuffled $9,500 among himself, his son and his wife, claiming he didn't know what eventually became of the money. Monday morning he said he gave it to his son for college expenses in the event something happened to him.

Under cross-examination by Haynes, he attempted to recant his earlier admission that he had actually stolen part of the money from Davis.

"I don't feel like I stole anything," he said. "I felt like I was just paying myself...of what I was going through...the anguish and the mental torture."

McCrory also admitted Monday that Pat Burleson, his former partner in a Fort Worth karate school, had been the one to arrange a meeting with the FBI.

FBI agents equipped McCrory with hidden recording devices after he claimed Davis had approached him to hire someone to kill the judge presiding in his divorce case, among others.

Tape recordings and videotapes of alleged meetings between Davis and McCrory were introduced into evidence at the bond hearing last week.

At the time of his arrest Aug. 20, Davis was free on $325,000 bond on charges stemming from a midnight shooting spree at the Davis mansion in August 1976.

Davis was acquitted in Amarillo last November of a capital murder charge stemming from the incident, following Texas' longest and costliest murder trial. Another charge of capital murder and two charges of attempted murder from are still pending against him.

blocks in Vernon Parish. There were reports of roof damage and broken trees in Lake Charles. New Orleans and in towns all along the coast.

By morning, skies were clearing over southwest Louisiana and the squalls spread north and east.

"It was like a summer thundershower," said Calcasieu Sheriff's Deputy Odell Dyer. "We had a lot of rain, but no real problems."

Authorities in Cameron Parish, where the center of the storm hit, said winds were clocked at more than 60 mph, but there was very little rain.

However, flooding was reported in some coastal areas as tides rose five feet above normal. Flooding also was predicted for interior areas such as Rapides Parish as the storm moved northward.

Minor street flooding was reported Monday in the Beaumont-Port Arthur area of east Texas after nearly 3 inches of rain fell.

The decision to evacuate in Cameron Parish, an area devastated in past by killer hurricanes, came long before the storm struck.

"We didn't want to take any chance of having an evacuation at night," said assistant Civil Defense Director Phillip Troscclair.

Exxon, Shell, Chevron USA and other oil companies cautiously evacuated about 1,000 men from offshore drilling rigs and platforms.

"They were surprised to find out we had brought in this many people," said a spokesman for Shell, which pulled 300 men out of western Gulf locations. "It's a judgment matter. Our philosophy is, if there's any doubt do it."

A spokesman for Exxon said about 420 men were evacuated from the eight drilling rigs in the area. Chevron pulled its people off three rigs and said it was a precautionary move forced by the fact that the rigs were at that stage of operation where a shutdown would require 12 hours or more instead of two or three.

While the upper Gulf Coast battled high winds and heavy rain, thunderstorms boomed across West Texas again Monday night and early today. Lubbock stayed bone-dry, while parts of the South Plains got more than an inch of rain, but the city still has a chance for showers today.

Weathermen give the Hub City a 20 percent chance of daytime rain, a 30 percent chance tonight and a 20 percent chance again Wednesday.

Big Spring led area cities in rainfall with 1.96 inches.

Others were Brownfield, 1.26; Lamesa, .88; Levelland, 1.46; Morton, .36; Plains, .82; Seminole, .65; and Tahoka, .08.

showers possible in the afternoon or night.

An east wind today carried a hint of autumn, with temperatures expected to climb no higher than the low 80s.

The low tonight should be near 60, and the high Wednesday in the upper 70s.

Five to 10-mph easterly winds today were due to shift slightly and become southeasterly tonight, the forecast said.

After temperatures mostly in the 90s Monday, the South Plains was autumn-cool overnight.

It was 52 at Dimmitt, 56 at Hereford and 57 at Friona, Littlefield and Morton. Lubbock extremes were 87 and 66.

Rainfall around the state Monday included 2.74 at Beaumont-Port Arthur, 1.43 at Lufkin, 1.10 at Texarkana and .68 at Dallas.

The National Weather Service has recorded only .34 this month and 8.04 this year at Lubbock International Airport.

At Colorado Springs, an intense thunderstorm dumped as much as 8 inches of hail Monday night, stranding some motorists in their cars with hail up to the windows, authorities said.

Authorities reported no injuries from the storm, but firefighters were called out to battle two house fires reportedly started by lightning.

The storm prompted flash flood warnings in the area.

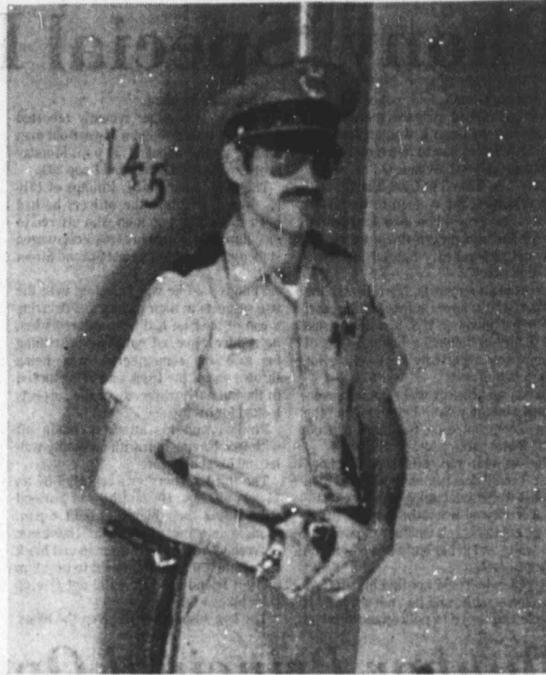

In low-lying intersections of the city, hail was piled 4 feet deep at one point just before midnight, said Lt. Ronald O'Connell of the Colorado Springs police.

The number of traffic accidents soared between 10 p.m. and midnight, O'Connell said, and police officers were kept on duty an extra hour to handle the reports and aid stranded motorists.

The National Weather Service said official precipitation measurement at Peterson Field was 1.35 inches — all within about an hour. Several unofficial readings of 3 inches of rain in less than an hour were reported, a spokesman for the service in Denver said.

THREAT INVESTIGATED — Idaho Falls policeman Michael Campbell stands guard in front of a motel room where a threat against President Carter was found written on a mirror. Idaho Falls is about 70 miles west of Jackson, Wyo., where the president and his family are vacationing. (AP Laserphoto)

Officers Probe Carter Threat

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Police and Secret Service agents today were seeking a man who wrote "the president will die Thursday" next to a picture of President Carter pasted on a hotel mirror, knocked a maid unconscious and set fire to a mattress.

Carter has been vacationing at Grand Teton National Park, Wyo., 70 miles east of Idaho Falls where the hotel is located.

Hal Thomas, head of the Secret Service security detail on Carter's trip, said: "It's under investigation by our people over there (in Idaho Falls). We don't know if it's genuine or a hoax."

Thomas said he hoped to make that determination later today.

"We've got to hear more from the intelligence agents who are over there looking into it," he said.

Police Lt. LeRoy Nelson said officers were summoned to Room 145 of the Ramada Inn Monday morning to investigate the incident.

The maid, Kathy Wagoner, told Idaho Falls television station KID that she saw the message, written on the mirror with soap, when she entered the room. Pasted on the mirror was a picture of Carter, apparently torn from a newspaper or magazine, she said.

When she turned around a man with a gun came toward her and said, "You should not have walked in here," she told police.

She said he hit her on the head with the gun, knocking her unconscious.

The maid said the man wore a tailored suit with a flashy tie and shirt that did not match, was good-looking and spoke with an Eastern accent.

KING-TV in Seattle reported that a Secret Service agent confirmed a mattress in the room had been set afire, but the flames had gone out before the woman came to. Police were called at 9:37 a.m.

The room was sealed off by police, who were joined by security officers from Air Force One — the president's plane parked at Idaho Falls Municipal Airport. Carter is scheduled to fly by helicopter to Idaho Falls Wednesday to board the plane for the trip back to Washington.

Secret Service personnel flew in from Jackson, Wyo. Monday night.

The incident came nine days after a Twin Falls, Idaho, man, Donald Bressette, 48, was charged with threatening Carter's life.

Authorities would not say what threats were made, but the Twin Falls Times-News said they involved anonymous phone calls and letters composed of printed cut-out lettering.

School Term Opens Without Incident

pupils are expected to be lost at the elementary level. The district usually reaches its peak enrollment six weeks into the scholastic term.

The decline in enrollment projected by public-school officials may be too conservative, according to reports from local private schools. Most private schools in Lubbock are experiencing record enrollments.

Harley Tefertiller, new superintendent of Lubbock Christian Schools, said enrollment there is up about 75 students, to 700-725.

Dr. Gonzalo Cartagena, administrator of Christ The King School, said his school's enrollment is about 500 students, an increase of approximately 50.

All Saints' School will have about 240 students, also up 50 from last year, said principal Betty Snyder.

Jo Moore, administrator and teacher at St. Elizabeth-St. John Neumann Catholic School, said enrollment there has increased from 180 students last year to 215 this year.

Cecil Murphy, new principal of Western Hills Baptist Academy, said he is projecting an enrollment for his school of 200 students, compared with about 140 last year.

Dorothy Winfrey, director of Winfrey Private School, which recently moved into new facilities south of Loop 289, said she'll have about 150 students — versus 30-50 last year.

Administrators of private schools here generally said they have been experiencing enrollment increases the past several years, and that it would be a mistake to attribute much of this year's jump as opposition to public-school desegregation or court-ordered busing.

"There are a few who say, 'We don't like the busing situation,' but most come to us for religious reasons or because they have a general discontent with the public schools," Tefertiller said.

"Our growth has not been related to busing," Murphy added. "Busing might account for some of the increase, but not the majority of it. Most of our families are interested for one reason — they want a Christian-based education for their children."

St. Elizabeth-St. John Neumann, All Saints' School and Christ The King each said they actively have discouraged families from trying to escape public-school desegregation or busing. They said most of their enrollment increases have come from families new to Lubbock.

"When we get the slightest hint that their interest is because of busing, we tell them we cannot accept them for that reason," Mrs. Moore said.

Her school and Lubbock Christian started classes Monday. Western Hills begins today. All Saints' School, Christ The King and Winfrey Private School start Sept. 5.

Sarah Weddington Set To Get Women's Post

A-J News Services
 WASHINGTON — President Carter reportedly will name Sarah Weddington, general counsel for the Department of Agriculture, as his top assistant for women's issues after he returns from his Wyoming vacation late Wednesday.

A White House source who asked not to be identified said today that Mrs. Weddington, 33, a native of Abilene, was the "front-runner" for the $56,000-a-year post formerly held by Midge Costanza.

The source said, however, "the final choice of a successor will not be made until the president returns."

The daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Doyle Ragle of Lubbock, Mrs. Weddington was elected to the Texas House from Travis County three times before resigning in 1977 to assume the post at the Department of Agriculture.

The Rev. Ragle said his daughter will be the "youngest person ever to serve as general counsel of a cabinet-level department."

Tom Sand, press secretary to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, confirmed earlier reports that Mrs. Weddington would be named to the post.

"It has been confirmed to Bergland," he said.

"It couldn't have been a better choice," Sand said. "It leaves a definite hole here at the Department of Agriculture... We expect to fill the job as soon as possible."

Her arguments before the U.S. Supreme Court in 1973 in the landmark case, Roe vs. Wade, led the court to declare Texas' abortion law unconstitutional.

Widely known as an advocate of women's rights, Mrs. Weddington was instrumental in organizing the Texas Women's Political Caucus.

The Rev. Ragle, pastor of education and programming at St. John's United Methodist Church, could not confirm reports that his daughter would be named to the women's issues post, but said he knew she was considering taking the job.

He said he was "a little surprised" that his daughter would consider another job because "she was enjoying very, very much her job with the agriculture department."

But, he said, "whatever she does is fine with us. We're proud of her and glad for her to do whatever she feels she should."

Mrs. Weddington is scheduled to visit her parents this weekend and make an informal speech on life in Washington at St. John's Church Sunday, but her father said he wasn't sure whether recent developments would keep her from visiting Lubbock.

Others being considered for the women's issues job include Mildred E. Jeffrey, chairman of the National Women's Political Caucus; Jane McMichael, executive director of the caucus; and Donna Shalala, assistant secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Carter was scheduled to return to the capital Wednesday, cutting short a western vacation because of problems with a congressional compromise on his natural gas pricing bill.

Mrs. Costanza, a former vice mayor of Rochester, N.Y., told Carter she was resigning from her White House post July 31. She has agreed to remain on the job until a successor is chosen.

"Although we share common goals and concerns, it has become clear that our approaches to fulfilling them are different," she said in her letter of resignation.

The 33-year-old Texan has a reputation for political savvy and sophistication.

"She's a very good person," said an unidentified aide at the National Women's Political Caucus.

Mrs. Costanza quit her job this month after being reassigned to a basement office and shunted off a national television interview program.

Mrs. Weddington is a native of Abilene and a graduate of the University of Texas Law School.

In 1972, she was elected to the Texas Legislature. She served as a delegate to the Texas Constitutional Convention in 1975.

PULL UP A TRUCK — Buyers at the world's biggest garage sale found a place to sit down and take in the action Monday as equipment from the Alaska oil pipeline was put on auction. The auction is expected to return some $15 million from the 2,000 bidders. (AP Laserphoto)

Sale Brings Fitting End To Project

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP) — Like oil through a pipeline, the money flowed — averaging more than $1 million an hour — as Alaska pipeline builders held a two-day, gone-out-of-business auction.

The sale, which continued today, was a fitting finale to the three-year, $7.7 billion construction project. Everything was big.

—The construction equipment, some pieces weighing more than 100,000 pounds. The equipment stretched for blocks in tidy rows across the former Navy air base where the sale was held.

—The prices, up to $160,000 for a single piece of machinery. Bidding was stiff for the hard-to-get equipment, and sales were expected to reach $15 million by the end of the bidding blitz.

—The crowds, with nearly 2,000 buyers from all over the nation and several foreign countries.

—The risks. Machines were fixed and prettied up with a fresh coat of paint. But merchandise was sold strictly "as is, where is."

—Cash on hand. Nobody's credit was good. Sellers wanted payment in full.

"This is one helluva sale," beamed auctioneer William Miller of Fort Worth. The prices, he said, were right up where he wanted them even though the machines were veterans of rugged Alaska winters.

A typical buyer, E.A. "Jim" Hendricks, paid $30,000 for a grader and figures he beat some 30 other bidders. However, he does not know for sure if it will run once he gets it back to his heavy equipment business in Pendleton, Ore.

"When you get a new husband or boy friend, you don't know if they're going to work right either," he said. "That thing could have a broken crank shaft for all I know. If it does, we'll fix it, go behind the barn and cry a little."

But before Hendricks finds out if his new machine works, he and all the other buyers have to figure out how to get their tons of machinery home.

A buyer from Florida who paid $52,000 for a crawler tractor could be facing an additional bill of from $3,000 to $8,000 — depending on size — just to get it home, said Gary Mors of International Transport, Inc.

And the traffic jam that is likely to erupt when trucks start moving more than 700 pieces of equipment out of the old airport could delay deliveries by a week or two, he said.

Lubbock Man Dies In Crash

An Air Force officer from Lubbock was killed in the crash of an F-4 Phantom Jet in northwestern Utah Monday night.

Capt. Ronald Wayne Brownlow, 29, who was weapons systems officer on the plane, and the pilot, who was not immediately identified, perished when the plane went down about 6:30 p.m.

The plane, from Hill Air Force Base in Utah, was presumed to be on a low-level navigation mission when it crashed, according to an Air Force spokesman.

Capt. Brownlow, born and reared in Lubbock, was a 1967 graduate of Coronado High School. He attended Texas Tech University and received his bachelor's degree from North Texas State University.

He had been in the Air Force since early in 1973.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Woman Tells Jurors Of Attack In Home

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An attractive restaurant employee today testified she was attacked inside her northwest Lubbock apartment residence by a man who uput a knife to her neck and threatened to kill her unless she submitted to his demands.

"The attacker kept saying not to scream, to do what I was told or he would cut my throat," the victim, 28, said.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Jim Darnell asked the witness if she believed the man would have done so.

"Yes, sir, I do," she answered.

The testimony took place during the first day of the aggravated rape trial of Dennis Keith Jackson, 19, who lived at 2002 5th St., No. 13, at the time of the July 1 incident.

Jackson is being tried before a 10-woman, two-man jury in Judge Robert C. Wright's 137th District Court.

The brunette complainant, who said she is unmarried, took the witness stand late this morning.

She indicated she was attacked inside her apartment about 3:30 p.m., as she was getting dressed preparatory to reporting to work at the restaurant at 4 p.m.

The woman said she was sitting at a vanity table when she noticed a figure out of the corner of her eye and was then struck with enough force to knock her from the table. She said she was thrown a distance of about six feet.

"I guess I was just cognizant of movement and power — it was not like I was looking at anyone," she witness said.

Darnell asked if she were terrified. "Shocked would be more accurate," the victim replied.

According to the woman's account, her assailant had a pair of panty hose partially covering his face. She said she recognized the garment as one she had put in her patio area to dry.

The witness said the man held a knife with a four-inch blade to the side of her neck and threatened to kill her if she did not cooperate.

The woman told jurors the assailant then raped her and placed her inside a closet before leaving. The woman said she later discovered a comb and a wallet lying by the living room couch.

The victim had not completed testimony on the rape examination when court recessed at noon.

Statue Design 'Unacceptable'

KENT, Ohio (AP) — The design for a statue commissioned to commemorate the 1970 slayings of four antiwar demonstrators at Kent State University has been rejected as "unacceptable."

A university spokesman said Monday that sculptor George Segal declined to change themes and that the proposed memorial to the May 4, 1970 slayings of four protesters by National Guardsmen may be dropped.

Robert McCoy, an assistant to Kent State President Brage Golding, said the consensus of the May 4th Observance Committee and the president's cabinet was that Segal's use of an Abraham-Isaac theme was undesirable.

Segal's design showed Abraham about to kill his only son to demonstrate his devotion to God, the university said.

Although Segal was commissioned by a private foundation in Cleveland, McCoy said the university had the right to review the work at each stage.

The initial concept showed a middle-aged Abraham figure dressed in rolled-up work trousers and work shirt, McCoy said.

"The Isaac figure appears to be a male between 20 and 30, unclothed except for athletic trunks ... kneeling before Abraham in the posture of supplicant, his hands bound before him. Abraham's right hand holds a knife. The inescapable first impression is that an older person is threatening to kill a younger person who is pleading for his life," McCoy said.

He added that "it was thought inappropriate to commemorate the deaths of four and wounding of nine others ... by a statue which appears to represent an act of violence about to be committed."

The Earl of Leicester was $3 million poorer after playing host to Queen Elizabeth I of England at Kenilworth castle in 1575.

Industrial Firms Use 'Garage Sales' To Remove Surplus Items

By LeROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI) — The "garage sale" flourishes in almost every residential neighborhood in the land but the really big garage sales are held by giant corporations.

With the big fellows it's a highly organized operation. Companies like DuPont, Cyanamid, Allied Chemical, Monsanto and many others belong to the National Industrial Salvage Conference, which exchanges lists of machinery, plants and materials that have become white elephants to the company that owns them but may be quite valuable to other companies.

The bird cages, baby cribs, lawn mowers and old toys offered in residential garage sales are replaced by agitators, dust collectors, demineralizers, big motors, large flame arresters. Even buildings come on the block to be torn down for salvage of the steel and sometimes even the brick and concrete work, which can be useful for landfill or for putting low retaining walls and jetties in bays, lakes and rivers.

A typical operation of this kind is run by Bruce O'Connell of Cyanamid, Wayne, N.J. He has a resounding title as manager of the Investment Recovery Section of the Materials Planning and Procurement Division.

"It just means I'm the company junkman," he explained.

Cyanamid always has sold off its surplus equipment but it wasn't until four years ago that it created a special staff to do it more efficiently. In the four years since, the department has netted about $1 million a year in disposing of unwanted.

Not everything that becomes surplus is sold. Cyanamid is a big company with lots of plants and often a piece of valuable equipment that becomes useless at one plant is actually needed at another. Yet in such a big company, this could be overlooked in a given instance without someone having a duty to monitor the stuff.

The breakdown of a costly drying machine threatened to force a year's shutdown of one manufacturing process at Cyanamid's big Linden, N.J., plant. It would have taken that long to order a new machine and get it installed. But Cyanamid happened to have a similar machine standing idle and taking up room in its Bound Brook, N.J., plant, where a similar process had been discontinued.

"Little time was lost in moving the machine to Linden and getting production started again," O'Connell said.

If no Cyanamid unit can use something that is surplus, O'Connell offers it for sale. This can save a lot of money. Recently, a process was discontinued at the Wallingford, Conn., plant and the space occupied by the building that housed the discontinued plant was needed. The estimate for tearing down the building and junking the equipment was $153,000.

Instead, O'Connell's division succeeded in selling the machinery for $100,000 and remodeled the building for continued use.

Often, O'Connell said, unused machinery and scientific equipment is donated to colleges and universities which can use it for demonstration purposes.

When a building has to be torn down now it may contain enough steel in good condition so that a scrap buyer will tear it down to get the metal and haul away both the steel and concrete refuse.

One of the more unusual items O'Connell disposed of was a sightseeing bus formerly used by its Lederle Laboratories Division at Pearl River, N.Y. When the plant ceased to be a tourist attraction, O'Connell sold the bus to Callaway Gardens, a tourist attraction run by a charitable foundation in Georgia. The foundation got a bus for $15,000 that had cost several times that.

Q. I have attended several golf tournaments and observed that Lee Trevino is very courteous and appreciative of the gallery. Can you tell me if he has a good manager and an outside business such as Jack Nicklaus has?

—Mrs. A. T. Smith, Jupiter, Fla.

Q. Does Lee Trevino have an outside business such as Palmer and Nicklaus do?

—Mrs. M. C. M., Jensen Beach, Fla.

A. Though Trevino no longer has anything going with Dodge or Dr. Pepper, he is doing very well through the auspices of manager Arnold Salinas in Dallas. The Neuhoff packers offer Lee Trevino Hot Links, Rawlings sells a complete line of golf equipment in his name, and the Tex-Ace hat company in San Antonio distributes a golf cap with his sombrero trademark on the front.

But where Trevino cleans up for really big money is in Japan where he has contracts with two firms, the Hodogaya Chemical Company and the Fuji Spinning Company, for a full line of golf equipment and clothing.

Q. I know that Jesus Alou is with the Houston Astros, but can you tell me what became of his two brothers, Matty and Felipe?

—Ken Drago, Louisville.

A. They have both returned to the Dominican Republic, where Felipe is making a new name for himself as a sportscaster.

Q. An article in The Sporting News by a writer named John Steadman predicted that there will be a scandal soon about the low pay of cheerleaders by pro football teams. The article said they are paid $15. Is this true everywhere? Do you agree with the writer?

—Alice Neilsen, Ada, Okla.

A. Cheerleaders throughout the league are paid a nominal sum, if any at all, yet there are no enforcers selling these girls into slavery. They apply for the roles because girls 1) love to be glamorous and the NFL has the glamour game, and 2) they love to be on coast-to-coast TV.

Aside from that, the jobs can be lucrative, with personal appearance and commercial fees added. Some Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders made about $2,000 from such fees last year and will probably double that total this season.

Q. Can you tell me how Texas Rangers second baseman Bump Wills got his nickname?

—G. J. Granville, Farmington, N.M.

A. There are two versions. His mother maintains she called him Bump because that's what he did most of the nine months before he was born. Father Maury says he was away playing minor league baseball when his heir was born and that mama named him Elliott, her maiden name. "I was a great fan of Bump Elliott when he was playing college football," says Wills. "so I announced, 'Well, I'll just call him Bump.'"

To carry this thing to the end, we checked with the original Bump, athletic director at Iowa, and he says no one in his family remembers why he came to be called Bump. This fishy story is borne out through a further check with brother Peter, now on Bud Wilkinson's staff in St. Louis.

Rice's Alborn Lauds
Passing Combination

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

HOUSTON—About the time (1959) an all-America receiver by the name of Buddy Dial and Geno Jones were feared around the Southwest Conference as an outstanding pass-catching combination, Ray Alborn was watching from the sidelines.

Tech Coach
Shuffles
Giles, Reed

By JIM FERGUSON

Rex Dockery continues to shuffle his lineup more than the boys in the backroom at Reba's Lounge do their dominos.

"Right now's the time we need to find some things out about who wants to play," the head coach pointed out Monday afternoon.

So with that note, Dockery, who recently moved tight end James Hadnot to fullback, shuffled Jamie Giles (6-0, 250) to the starting noseguard slot, and Curtis Reed (5-11, 240)—the man Giles replaced—over to defensive right tackle.

"After looking at the scrimmage, we felt it was the best move," Dockery said, following a workout session. "Jamie had a good scrimmage."

And is that the end of the shuffling? "We're going to continue to shuffle people around until we put the best eleven players on the field," the coach emphasized. "People are going to have to do it everyday, or they may lose their place."

So far now, the defensive line reads: left end Jeff McKinney, left tackle David Hill, noseguard Giles, right tackle Reed and right end Olan Tisdale.

"It will stay like that until someone comes to the top," the Dockery said.

On a sour note, starting right cornerback Mike Patterson sustained what appeared to be a broken ankle Monday afternoon.

"We're going to X-ray and take a look at it tonight (Monday)," Dockery said, "and hope everything works out all right."

Patterson injured the ankle while

He saw enough of them to evaluate their abilities. Even today, he can look back at them on film.

Also today, he can look—both on film and in person—at Doug Cunningham and David Houser as they work at catching passes. And, the Houser-Cunningham team is better, says Alborn, now Rice University's head football coach.

"As a combination, those two (Cunningham and Houser) are the best Rice has ever had. They're as good at their position as on any team in the country."

Houser, going into his senior year, is in a position to better Southwest Conference record-holder Mike Renfro (TCU) on the all-time list. And Cunningham, who missed last season with injuries, was the No. 5 receiver in the country in 1976.

They'll have the SWC's leading passer from last year as the triggerman, too. Randy Hertel will be only a sophomore this year, his injured knee has been repaired by surgery, and the two positions are among the team's strengths.

But, Alborn, as he starts his first year as head coach, won't be throwing the ball as much as last year. He wants to establish the running game, and the change in strategy will, he hopes, lift Rice above last year's 1-10 record.

It's all part of Alborn's plan, his coaching philosophy, as he replaces Homer Rice as head man. Alborn was named head coach just hours after Rice resigned to join the Cincinnati Bengals' staff. He has replaced Rice's complex, pass-oriented attack with a fundamental approach, more keyed to the run.

"We will run a multiple offense, but not the triple option. We will continue to

San Francisco Cuts Plunkett;
Cowboys Trade Bill Gregory

By The Associated Press

Jim Plunkett saw the writing on the wall last week—but not all of it. "I think I can assume I'm not going to start," Plunkett said last week after completing one of his last 18 passes as the San Francisco 49ers compiled a 1-3 National Football League preseason record.

What Plunkett failed to read was the fine print that said he would be cut along with seven other San Francisco players Monday as the 49ers reached the 43-man roster limit.

The NFL roster limit will go back up to 45 players by Sunday, when teams can recall two players they previously placed on waivers.

"It's kind of a relief," said Plunkett, who for eight seasons has been one of the NFL's premier quarterbacks. "I guess I'm not too surprised. You shouldn't be surprised by anything in professional football," the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner added.

The Dallas Cowboys traded defensive tackle Bill Gregory and an undisclosed draft choice to the Seattle Seahawks in exchange for undisclosed draft choices.

The 6-foot-5, 260-pound Gregory, the Cowboys' third-round draft choice from Wisconsin in 1971, was a parttime starter for Dallas in 1975 and 1976. He started the final two games last season as well as the Super Bowl against Denver. A knee injury slowed him during the early part of last season.

The 49ers had another surprise in store Monday when they placed All-Pro wide receiver Gene Washington on the injured waived list and announced that Steve DeBerg, a third-string quarterback a year ago, would be their No. 1 man this season.

The second-year player out of San Jose State completed 23 of 46 passes in the exhibition season.

DeBerg wasn't the only young signalcaller to earn the starting nod for a 1978 NFL regular-season opener.

June Jones III, listed as the No. 4 quarterback on the Falcons' depth chart when the exhibition season opened, was named Atlanta's starting quarterback for its opener Sunday against Houston.

Jones, who will replace Steve Bartkowski, the Falcons' starter last year, saw action in Atlanta's final game last year, but earned the starting berth by leading them to two preseason victories this year.

Atlanta also cut seven players including five-year veteran quarterback Kim McQuilken and placed defensive tackle Brent Adams on the injured reserve list to reach the 43-man limit.

Starting quarterback decisions were also announced in Cincinnati and Baltimore. Ken Anderson, the Bengals mainstay in recent years, will have an operation Tuesday on his injured right hand and will miss at least the first five weeks of play. John Reaves will assume his duties.

The Baltimore Colts had better news. Bert Jones, who suffered an incomplete separation of his right shoulder in last Saturday's preseason finale against the Detroit Lions, thinks he will be ready for the Colts opener against the Dallas Cowboys Monday night.

Joe Washington should also be in uniform for the Colts. Washington, acquired in the trade that sent holdout Lydell Mitchell to the San Diego Chargers, announced he will report to the Colts training camp this week. The former Oklahoma running back had informed Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda early Monday that he will not be reporting to the team, but changed his mind later in the day.

Baltimore also announced the acquisition of veteran cornerback Dwight Harrison from the Buffalo Bills for a draft choice.

In another trade, the New Orleans Saints acquired eight-year veteran linebacker Floyd Rice from the Oakland Raiders for an undisclosed draft choice.

The Detroit Lions acquired rookie defensive tackle Karl Baldschwieler from the Miami Dolphins in exchange for a future draft choice while the Buffalo Bills got kicker Errol Mann, the NFL's leading scorer last season, and two other players from the Raiders for past considerations.

Dallas placed four players on waivers, including second-year running back Larry Brinson, second year defensive tackle Greg Schaum and rookie defensive end Dave Kraayeveld, along with an unnamed player.

Punters also were in the limelight Monday. Veteran punter Larry Seiple was placed on the injured reserve list and Miami placed five other players on waivers as the Dolphins trimmed their roster to 43 players.

Seiple, a 12th-year pro, suffered a severely sprained knee in the Dolphins' preseason victory over Tampa Bay last Friday night.

Veteran punter Mitch Hoopes was one of seven players released as the Philadelphia Eagles reduced their roster to 43.

Rice's Alborn Lauds Passing Combination

(Continued From Page One) pass, with all the skilled people we have, but we don't plan to drop back and throw 60 times a game.

There is no question in Alborn's mind about the throwing and catching part, only the line's ability to allow Hertel to load his rifle. And, Alborn indicated Monday that the line, under the guidance of coach Ted Unbehauen, "is coming off the ball well."

But, "we have to run the football. In the past, we have been known as a completely passing team, but we have the runningbacks capable of running the ball."

The ones Alborn is using are underclassmen, with Bo Broorson (175) and Laney Royal (185) at tailback and Calvin Fance (207) and Earl Cooper (226) at fullback. Cooper led the team in yardage last year with 598 steps, or 4.4 yards per carry. As a team, however, the Owls averaged only 2.7 yards, compared to the opposition's 5.2.

Both these figures helped formulate Alborn's philosophies.

"I try to coach and watch on both ends of the field. Many head coaches work only with the offense, but I feel I have to know what the defense is doing. So far, we have emphasized fundamentals, and this goes back to my coaches, Jess Neely and Joe Davis.

"But, the defense is much better. I'm concerned about depth in the line and at linebacker, but the secondary is the best since I've been here (six years)."

Alborn terms his ends as more than adequate, his tackles as thin in depth, although Dwight Moyer (240) "has all-conference potential." Noseguard Darryl Grant (239) was a center last year "but is getting better every day."

Linebacker is a spot bothered by injuries, returning Robert Williamson (215) is out with knee problems, and his backup, John Stroman (222) is nursing a pulled hamstring.

Lamont Jefferson (206) is at the other linebacker spot, with freshman Harris Simion (220) ready to duty.

The secondary is strong enough that a

The American team of Robert Jackson, Nick Nerd, Joe Bottom and McCagg finished the men's medley relay in 3:44.63.

In the diving competition, Louganis, 18, from El Cajon, Calif., edged East Germany's veteran Olympian Falk Hoffmann for the gold.

The championships saw 14 world records broken or tied, with eight of the performances by Americans.

Stage Set For U.S. Open Play

NEW YORK (AP) — Bjorn Borg continues his quest for the Grand Slam, while Martina Navratilova attempts to reinforce her position ahead of Chris Evert in the women's rankings at the $577,480 U.S. Open Tennis Championships that begin tonight and run through Sept. 10.

The tournament has been moved from the stately West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills to the brand new National Tennis Center in Flushing Meadows, and the matches will be played on a fairly fast, Deco-Turf II surface over a concrete base instead of the slow, clay-like Har-Tru.

More fans than ever will get a chance to see for themselves, thanks to the expanded facilities and the 27 1/4 hours of television coverage planned by CBS, including late-night highlights and live coverage of both the men's and women's finals.

A field of 128 men and 96 women will be competing for singles prizes of $38,000, but when the finals are played Sept. 10, it will be a major surprise if anyone other than Borg, Jimmy Connors, Miss Navratilova and Miss Evert is wielding a racket.

They have emerged as the dominant figures in the sport and their respective rivalries are its premier attractions.

"The Open this year means more to me than ever before," said Borg, who has already won the French Open on clay and Wimbledon on grass, the first two events in the Grand Slam. Victories here and in the Australian Open in December would complete the Grand Slam, a feat achieved only by Don Budge and Rod Laver.

"The Grand Slam is always on my mind," the 22-year-old Borg reflected last week.

And so is Connors.

"I look forward to playing Jimmy," said the Swedish star. "I think he is the man I must beat now. He is a fighter — very tough. He beat me often early in my career, but now I think I have learned how to beat him."

Connors is particularly tough in the U.S. Open. He won this event in 1974 and 1976 and was runnerup to Manuel Orantes in 1975 and Guillermo Vilas last year. He'd like nothing better than to avenge his straight-set wipeout at the hands of Borg at Wimbledon.

"Long after I'm six feet under they'll be talking about this rivalry," said Connors. "I'd follow him to the ends of the earth now."

The faster surface should not make much of a difference to either player, since both have proven they can win on any surface. As for the other men, it will help the serve-and-volley players like John Alexander and Roscoe Tanner and hinder the baselines retrievers like Vilas and Harold Solomon.

Following dedication ceremonies tonight, the top-seeded Borg plays South African Bob Hewitt. Tracy Austin, No. 5 among the women's seeds, was to have played Francois Durr of France. However, Miss Durr was injured in a bicycling accident and will be replaced by Pat Bostrom of Seattle. A full slate of men's singles will take place Wednesday, with the women swinging into action on Thursday.

Connors is seeded second behind Borg.

with Vilas third. Vitas Gerulaitis, winner of the recent WCT Invitational, is fourth and Eddie Dibbs, the hottest player on the summer circuit, is fifth.

Brian Gottfried is seeded sixth, followed by Corrado Barazzutti, Raul Ramirez, Orantes, Sandy Mayer, Tanner, Solomon, Jose-Louis Clerc, Wojtek Fibak, John McEnroe and Arthur Ashe.

On the women's side, this provides an opportunity for Miss Navratilova to prove once again that she has dethroned Miss Evert as the queen of tennis — and an opportunity for Miss Evert to regain the crown she has worn for the past several years.

Miss Navratilova's power game is better-suited to the new surface than Miss Evert's patient baseline play which has helped her win 118 straight matches on clay or clay-like surfaces, including the last three U.S. Opens at the West Side Tennis Club.

Miss Navratilova is the top seed, with Miss Evert No. 2. Virginia Wade, last year's Wimbledon champion who should do well on the faster courts, is seeded third. Wendy Turnbull, the U.S. Open runnerup last season, is fourth and Miss Austin is fifth.

Completing the list of seeded women are Dianne Fromholtz, Betty Stove, Kerry Reid, Marise Jausovec, Virginia Ruzici, Regina Marsikova, Mariata Redondo, JoAnne Russell, Kathy May and Pam Shriver.

Transsexual Renee Richards is in the women's field, a fact that has gone virtually unnoticed.

Billie Jean King, Evonne Goolagong and Rosie Casals will not be competing in women's singles because of injuries, although Mrs. King will play doubles. Ilie Nastase is missing from the men's field because of his suspension from Grand Prix tournaments.

Meanwhile, USTA officials expect record crowds to swarm about the 15-acre National Tennis Center, built in one year at a cost of about $10 million. They say many of the frills have not yet been completed but all the essentials are ready for the Open.

The stadium at the site of the 1939 and 1964 World's Fairs has been divided in two and enlarged, creating a main arena with nearly 20,000 seats and a secondary amphitheater seating 6,500. In addition there are 23 other outdoor and nine indoor courts, wide walkways and larger lockerroom facilities than were available at Forest Hills.

Americans Rack Up Gold

BERLIN (AP) — The American-dominated World Swimming championships, the last big international swimming event of the year, has left battered East Germany looking for answers for the 1980 Olympics.

"There are still two years," East German freestyle swimmer Barbara Krause said after winning her country's only gold medal of the nine-day event.

"Swimming will develop and it will be harder to win," she said, assessing her own prospects and those of her teammates. "It's hard to tell who will be there."

A new generation of young American swimmers dethroned East Germany's famed women swimmers at the West Berlin meet, breaking four of their records.

The Americans won 23 gold medals and accounted for eight of the 14 world records set or tied at the International Swimming Federation (FINA) championships.

"We had several chances that didn't work out," Krause said after winning the 100-meter freestyle in the meet's final night Monday with a time a little more than a quarter of a second short of her own world record of 55.41 seconds.

"The Americans were simply better,"

she said. "You could see that very clearly."

Floridian David McCagg won the 100-meter men's freestyle with a time of 50.24. James Montgomery of Madison, Wis., took second at 50.73, finishing just ahead of bearded crowd favorite Klaus Steinbach of West Germany, a light-training 25-year-old who set a European record of 50.79.

Australia's diminutive Tracy Wickham left Americans Cynthia Woodhead and Kim Linehan in second and third place to pick up her second gold medal of the meet with a time of 8:24.94 in the women's 800-meter freestyle. The time was 0.32 of a second over her own world record.

An American relay team of Robert Jackson, Nick Nevid, Joe Bottom and David McCagg won the 400-meter medley with 3:44.63, more than four seconds ahead of runnerup West Germany.

Greg Louganis, 18, of El Cajon, Calif., won the world championship in men's platform diving with 844.11 points to East German Olympic veteran Falk Hoffmann's 836.76.

The last day's events left the Americans with 473 points to 204 for their nearest rival, the Soviet Union.

Russians collected six gold medals and the meet's only doping charge, which team officials called a political provocation.

"How else can you explain this?" asked Soviet Coach Sergei Vaitsekhovskia in an angry protest over the ruling that took the 100-meter backstroke bronze medal from swimmer Viktor Kuznetsov.

Meet officials heatedly denied Soviet accusations that Kuznetsov had been improperly singled out for testing, his urine sample tampered with and Russian observers not permitted to see a laboratory doublecheck.

"We reject it as sharply as possible," said Joerg Haake, general secretary of the meet's organizing committee.

Dr. Reinhard Meyer-Rosorius of the organizing committee said Kuznetsov just happened to finish in one of 80 places selected for doping tests, that urine samples had been properly sealed and safeguarded and that the Russians had not taken advantage of two offers to watch the doublecheck.

In what was likely to be a political blow to West Berlin's hopes of hosting major international sports competitions, Soviet delegation chief Anatoli Kolosov charged that "certain circles in this city tried to increase tensions and create a hostile atmosphere against our team."

Knicks Reportedly Ink Webster To Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks planned to announce the signing of Marvin Webster at Madison Square Garden today, which they hope will solve the center problem that has plagued the National Basketball Association team for at least five seasons.

Webster, who helped lead the Seattle SuperSonics into the NBA finals against Washington last season, played out the final year of his contract and became a free agent after the playoffs.

The 7-foot-1, 240-pound center, who played his college ball at Morgan State, where he earned the nickname "The Human Eraser," apparently was ready to sign with the SuperSonics on Friday.

Phillips Wants Oilers 'Scared'

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips hopes his Oilers will be "scared to death" Sunday when they open the National Football League regular season against the Atlanta Falcons.

The Oilers certainly didn't have that attitude Saturday when they dropped their final exhibition game to the New Orleans Saints, 17-3.

"We went into the game with the idea that there was no question we would beat them it was just a matter of how bad," Phillips said. "We got impressed with the fact that no matter who you are, you've got to take it seriously."

"You've got to go into a game scared to death that you're going to do well and we didn't do that."

The Oilers played well in an impressive 27-13 victory over Super Bowl champion Dallas, but couldn't muster much enthusiasm against the Saints. Houston didn't cross midfield until half way through the third quarter.

"There's not that much difference in any of the teams in this league," Phillips said. "There might be a difference between the top and bottom teams but there probably is not more than a point difference between us and New Orleans."

Phillips said he's not concerned about Houston's lethargy extending into the regular season.

However, Knicks President Mike Burke called Webster's agent, Larry Fleisher, over the weekend and convinced him and Webster to reopen discussions with the Knicks, a source said. The deal reportedly was finalized Monday.

Details of the deal were not known, and neither was it known what form New York's compensation to Seattle would take.

Asked Monday night about the deal, Burke would only say: "I'll have more to say about that tomorrow."

Webster was reported to have flown to New York Monday to appear at the news conference with Burke and Fleisher.

Webster came to the Sonics from the Denver Nuggets on May 25, 1977 as part of a five-player deal. The Sonics acquired Webster along with Paul Silas and Willie Wise for center Tom Burleson, Bobby Wilkerson and a draft choice.

Webster missed much of the 1975-76 season, his rookie year, with the Nuggets, then in their last season in the American Basketball Association, because of illness. During the following season, he played backup to Dan Issel. He never averaged more than seven points a season with Denver.

But at Seattle, the 25-year-old Webster began to earn his nickname. While averaging eight points a game, he led the team in rebounding, collecting a Sonics record 1,035 during the season for a 12.6 average, and had 162 blocked shots.

He also led the Sonics in average minutes played, 35.5 per game, and games started, 79, to shed the image as a fragile player.

Although the Sonics lost in seven games to Washington in the NBA title series, Webster was one of the reasons Seattle got there. Now the Knicks hope that Webster will give them the same stability at the center position he gave the Sonics.

The Knicks had been playing three men at center — Bob McAdoo, Lonnie Shelton and Spencer Haywood — and they had courted Webster since he became a free agent.

Diablos Pound Midland 10-4

By The Associated Press

Bob Clark added another tally Monday to his Texas League-leading home run list as the El Paso Diablos crushed Midland 10-4.

In other games, Amarillo downed San Antonio 3-1 and Tulsa squeaked past Shreveport 3-2. Jackson at Arkansas was postponed because of rain.

Clark's homer produced two runs in the second. Floyd Rayford added a three-run homer for the Diablos in the fourth.

Midland's Gary Krug smacked a double and went four for five.

The largest El Paso crowd of the season — 7,982 — turned out to watch the Diablos reduce their distance from the Western Division lead to two games.

Midland trails first-place San Antonio by one game.

Tim Derryberry singled in unearned runs for Amarillo in the first and fifth innings of the outing against San Antonio. Dane Ibertson drove in Amarillo's earned run in the fourth.

Larry Monroe, 3-5, picked up the victory. Bill Swiacki, 4-4, took the loss.

Spinks To Earn More Than Ali

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Leon Spinks is being paid $3.75 million for his upcoming championship fight with Muhammad Ali — $500,000 more than the former champ.

But Ali is getting some perks of his own, like 25 first class hotel rooms for more than two weeks and 40 free airline tickets for his friends.

Those details were spelled out in the contracts for the Sept. 15 fight on file with the Louisiana State Athletic Commission and state attorney general's office.

The contracts between the fighters and Top Rank Inc. of New York show that Ali will receive $3.25 million. It had been said that Ali would get less money than the man who beat him in February, but until the contracts were made public, it was not known how much less.

Ali will be able to soothe his ego with 50 first class round trip airline tickets and 10 economy tickets from anywhere in the United States.

And he will get four two-bedroom suites and 21 other hotel rooms for 16 days at sites approved by advisor Herbert Muhammad. As well as three chauffeur driven limousines for the same period and 200 free fight tickets.

However, Top Rank said in the contract that it would not reimburse Ali or Spinks for liquor expenses, entertainment expenses or the cost of long distance phone calls after they arrive Aug. 31. And it cautioned hotel not to accept such charges either.

In another fight development, Miami attorney Ellis Rubin says he will hold a "Talkout the Blackout" at Tulane University on Sept. 1-2 in an effort to end the scheduled 200-mile television blackout of the bout.

Economists See Evidence Of Trouble In Consumer Spending

By CHET CURRIER
 NEW YORK (AP) — Economists manning the lookout posts for signs of a business slowdown have sighted evidence of possible trouble in the area of consumer spending.

Their accounts differ considerably, however, on whether this dark speck on the horizon is likely to become any kind of serious navigation hazard.

After a strong early spring showing, retail sales have flattened out recently, rising by just 0.2 percent in May, 0.1 percent in June and 0.2 percent in July.

"Consumer spending has undergone a discernible change over the past few months," New York's Bankers Trust Co. noted.

"But whether the consumer will continue marking time for a while, as has happened on several previous occasions since the current business expansion began, or whether a real retrenchment in buying lies in the offing is far from certain."

The available data aren't much help in making the picture clearer. On the plus side, government figures showed personal income — naturally a central factor in spending plans — rising faster than inflation in July, following slight declines in the inflation-adjusted figures for the two previous months.

Less favorable indications come from the survey of consumers sponsored by the Conference Board, an independent business research organization. Its index of buying plans, calculated from a survey of 5,000 households nationwide, dropped last month to its lowest level in more than three years.

Merrill Lynch Economics, Inc., bases its generally negative forecast on the tendency of both consumers and businesses lately to accelerate their spending in anticipation of continuing inflation — buying to beat expected future price increases.

"Buying in advance is by definition a temporary activity and involves borrowing from future demand," the firm said.

"Thus, current strength in particular areas of spending is unsustainable. Spending in other areas is likely to be restrained by inflation, which is eating up the purchasing power of consumer income, especially for discretionary items."

The firm foresees a sharp slowing of consumer spending, leaving businessmen with excess inventories by the end of the year. The likely result, it says, is a recession in 1979 "of about average duration and magnitude for the post-World War II period."

Bankers Trust economists, though they use softer language, agree that retail sales are likely to be "less than exuberant" in the coming months.

"Even the most optimistic industry spokesmen concede that new car sales have passed their peak for this cycle and that the pace of buying will slacken later this year — and again in 1979. And buying of home appliances and home furnishings will be affected by the impending decline in housing activity, although probably with a lag."

"In sum," they concluded, "consumer spending, having led the business expansion for most of the past 2 1/2 years, now seems to be moving to a position where, for a while at least, it no longer will be a contributor to economic growth."

This kind of warning, of course, does not sit well with many businessmen who feel that gloomy forecasts can be self-fulfilling.

An executive of one consumer-goods company, when asked recently if he was worried about a possible recession, replied: "No. And if anybody would shut up, there won't be one."

Hearst Names New Publisher

BOSTON (UPI) — The Hearst Corp. has announced that James T. Dorris has been named publisher of the Boston Herald American and Sunday Herald Advertiser, replacing Robert C. Bergenheim.

The announcement was made by Frank A. Bennack Jr., executive vice president and chief operating officer of The Hearst Corp., and Robert J. Danzig, vice president and general manager of the Hearst newspapers.

Dorris is a former executive with the Detroit News and its parent company, the Evening News Association. Dorris resigned recently as executive vice president of the Evening News Association.

"Tom Dorris is an outstanding newspaper executive, accustomed to operational excellence in a large, competitive newspaper city. He brings maturity and certified leadership to the Boston Herald American, an important Hearst newspaper," Danzig said in making the announcement.

Bergenheim has been reassigned to special projects for The Hearst Corp., including newspaper acquisition activities.

Bergenheim became publisher of the Herald American in 1975. Prior to that he was director of operations of the McClatchy Newspapers and executive manager of the Christian Science Publishing Society.

Agency Airs Warning On Ford Cars

WASHINGTON (AP)—As one federal agency warns millions of Ford owners their vehicles may have lethal transmission defects, another agency is removing subcompact Ford Pintos from a federal motor pool until their gas tanks are rid of potential fire hazards.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration today issued a consumer advisory bulletin advising about 9 million owners of Ford cars and light trucks they should shut off their engines and make sure the gear selector is firmly in the park position before they leave their vehicles.

The agency said it is investigating complaints that Ford automatic transmissions on 1970 through 1978 models have slipped from park into reverse. It said it has reports of 777 accidents, 23 fatalities and 259 injuries allegedly caused by this problem.

The investigation could lead to a recall, which would be the biggest in history. "We are pursuing this investigation on a priority basis and plan to complete it in the near future," said agency administrator Joan Buckley.

Meanwhile, the General Services Administration, the government's housekeeping agency, says it is removing the 300 Pintos from its 85,000-car interagency motor pool because of reports that gas tanks have caught fire in rear-end collisions. The GSA did not mention such incidents occurring in the government fleet.

While Ford already has announced a recall of 1.5 million Pintos and 30,000 Mercury Bobcats to correct the fuel tank problem, the NHTSA is studying possible recall of the 9 million Fords manufactured between 1970 and 1978 to fix the faulty transmissions. It would be the largest recall in automotive history.

The Center for Automotive Safety, a private monitoring organization affiliated with Ralph Nader, says 100 accidents and 12 deaths have been caused by the transmission failures in practically all Ford cars with 300-cubic-inch engines or larger and light trucks with engines of 350 cubic inches or more.

Ford has argued that the accidents might be caused largely by driver carelessness in putting the shift lever into park. The company says there are no flaws in the transmissions.

While the NHTSA's 10-month old study is expected to be completed next month, agency officials said consumers still should receive today's warning.

"We keep getting complaints," said Hal Parris, a spokesman for the NHTSA. "While the investigation is continuing, we want to alert people to the possibility that if the transmission problem can occur."

Parris had this advice for Ford owners whose vehicles were manufactured between 1970 and 1978 with C-6 or FMX automatic transmissions: — Shut the engine off before leaving the vehicle.

— Make certain the gear selector is in the park position. — If possible, turn the engine off before putting it in park. — Use the emergency brake.

"There have been cases where just a slam of the door can move a car into reverse and start it running backward," Parris said.

The GSA urged other federal agencies to follow its lead in removing Pintos from their fleets. The government began using Pintos after the Arab oil embargo in 1973.

It was not immediately known how many Pintos were in the overall government fleet of 400,000 vehicles, which includes the interagency pool.

Workshop Set By Realtors The Texas Association of Realtors will sponsor an all-day workshop for Lubbock realtors Wednesday at the South Park Inn.

The gathering has been entitled "Sales Update for '78," and discussion will be confined to the subject of how to list properties.

Out-of-town leaders who will present the workshop include Erv Luedtke, Austin, TAR executive vice president; Gerhardt Schulte Jr., Austin, TAR director of public relations, who will report on the results and implications of the recent special session of the legislature; and Frank Tomkins, Corpus Christi, a teacher of real estate courses.

Wallace A. Moritz of San Angelo, president of the TAR, will be the luncheon speaker.

Troubled Ship Sold At Loss

NEW YORK (AP)—The SS America, which suffered a near-mutiny on its disastrous "Cruise to Nowhere," has been sold to its previous owners for $4 million less than what they sold it for earlier this year.

Chandris Cruise Lines bought the ship Monday for $1,010,000 at a court-ordered auction aboard the vessel. Last April, the Greek company sold the ship for $5 million to Venture Cruise Line, which hoped to use it for inexpensive, minicruises this summer.

Those plans went awry after the ship completed two of 35 scheduled trips. Passengers on the three-day "Nowhere" cruise and another to Nova Scotia complained of overbooking, cockroaches and faulty plumbing.

Federal officials fined Venture $439,000, the ship flunked two health inspections and creditors filed suits for $7 million. Then a federal judge ordered the America sold.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

Trade News Overcomes Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market fell today as the announcement of a widening trade deficit overcame encouraging news about inflation.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial was off 1.22 at 883.66. New York Stock Exchange volume peaked up to 14.43 million shares in the first two hours of trading from 13.32 million at noon Monday. Declining issues slightly outnumbered those advancing among NYSE-listed issues.

The Commerce Department said the trade deficit totaled $2.99 billion in July, up from June's $1.6 billion. The July tally, the fourth-largest ever, had been expected to show a decline rather than an advance, and the government said it still expects the trade gap to narrow in coming months.

The announcement of the deficit sent the dollar sharply lower and gold higher. The Federal Reserve has been pushing up interest rates to fight inflation and make the dollar more attractive to investors. But the higher rates cut stock and bond yields and, traditionally, depress security prices.

The Labor Department said real prices rose 5 percent in July, after three consecutive monthly gains of 0.9 percent. President Carter's inflation fighter, Robert Strauss, estimated prices would rise by a minimum of 8 percent this year.

Airline issues were generally higher. Pan American World Airways, which is offering $35 a share for National Airlines, rose 1/4 to 8 1/2 while National jumped 1/4 to 39 1/4. Continental Air Lines was up 1/4 at 16 1/4 and Eastern was ahead 1/4 at 14 1/4.

Gambing industry issues continued to gain, with Ramada Inns leading the NYSE most-active list and rising 1/4 to 13 and Caesar's World ahead 5/8 at 47 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped 0.13 to 58.67; at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .22 to 166.77.

Agency Airs Warning On Ford Cars

WASHINGTON (AP)—As one federal agency warns millions of Ford owners their vehicles may have lethal transmission defects, another agency is removing subcompact Ford Pintos from a federal motor pool until their gas tanks are rid of potential fire hazards.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration today issued a consumer advisory bulletin advising about 9 million owners of Ford cars and light trucks they should shut off their engines and make sure the gear selector is firmly in the park position before they leave their vehicles.

The agency said it is investigating complaints that Ford automatic transmissions on 1970 through 1978 models have slipped from park into reverse. It said it has reports of 777 accidents, 23 fatalities and 259 injuries allegedly caused by this problem.

The investigation could lead to a recall, which would be the biggest in history. "We are pursuing this investigation on a priority basis and plan to complete it in the near future," said agency administrator Joan Buckley.

Meanwhile, the General Services Administration, the government's housekeeping agency, says it is removing the 300 Pintos from its 85,000-car interagency motor pool because of reports that gas tanks have caught fire in rear-end collisions. The GSA did not mention such incidents occurring in the government fleet.

While Ford already has announced a recall of 1.5 million Pintos and 30,000 Mercury Bobcats to correct the fuel tank problem, the NHTSA is studying possible recall of the 9 million Fords manufactured between 1970 and 1978 to fix the faulty transmissions. It would be the largest recall in automotive history.

The Center for Automotive Safety, a private monitoring organization affiliated with Ralph Nader, says 100 accidents and 12 deaths have been caused by the transmission failures in practically all Ford cars with 300-cubic-inch engines or larger and light trucks with engines of 350 cubic inches or more.

Ford has argued that the accidents might be caused largely by driver carelessness in putting the shift lever into park. The company says there are no flaws in the transmissions.

While the NHTSA's 10-month old study is expected to be completed next month, agency officials said consumers still should receive today's warning.

"We keep getting complaints," said Hal Parris, a spokesman for the NHTSA. "While the investigation is continuing, we want to alert people to the possibility that if the transmission problem can occur."

Parris had this advice for Ford owners whose vehicles were manufactured between 1970 and 1978 with C-6 or FMX automatic transmissions: — Shut the engine off before leaving the vehicle.

— Make certain the gear selector is in the park position. — If possible, turn the engine off before putting it in park. — Use the emergency brake.

"There have been cases where just a slam of the door can move a car into reverse and start it running backward," Parris said.

It was not immediately known how many Pintos were in the overall government fleet of 400,000 vehicles, which includes the interagency pool.

Woman In U.S. Custody

SEATTLE (AP) — Canadian authorities have turned over to U.S. custody a woman arrested after a phony bomb threat which diverted a United Airlines DC-8 with 159 persons aboard.

FBI spokesman Ray Mathis said Diane Benson, 27, of the Mount Vernon, Wash., area, would appear before a federal magistrate today to be charged with making a threat against an aircraft.

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office said she could face up to 20 years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Mrs. Benson was given a medical examination at Vancouver General Hospital on Monday before being turned over to U.S. authorities, said Inspector Al Sabeen of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

She was arrested Sunday night after United Flight 179 from Newark, N.J., and Denver to Seattle was diverted.

Chess Match Delayed By Challenger

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — With his opponent only two games away from victory, challenger Viktor Korchnoi postponed the 18th game of the world chess championship match today. He said he wanted to relax, and his delegation head said he would not quit the competition.

Asked if Korchnoi was preparing to concede to Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union, who leads 4-1, Petra Lesuwerick said, "Of course not. No. The match will continue."

Korchnoi scheduled a news conference Wednesday and said he would "tell the world how bad the situation is in Baguio," the mountain resort 125 miles northwest of Manila where the match is being played.

"I'm not satisfied with the arrangements of the organizers," he said. "The arrangements are all for the Soviets, so I want to tell the world of the gloomy situation."

Asked why they had left Baguio, Mrs. Lesuwerick said they were meeting an important person "at the airport. Later Korchnoi said the arrival was a Yugoslav friend."

A spokeswoman for the Philippine Chess Federation said the 18th game had been put off until Thursday, when the 19th game would have been played.

The first player to win six games wins the championship and $50,000, the largest purse in chess history. The loser gets $200,000.

Karpov, the 27-year-old champion, won his fourth victory Saturday by enticing Korchnoi's king into a trap. The challenger, who defected from the Soviet Union in 1976, was forced to resign on the 28th move.

Korchnoi refused for 13 minutes to make his first move Saturday because of the presence in the fifth row of spectators of Vladimir Zoukhar, a Soviet parapsychologist and neurologist who Korchnoi claims has been trying to hypnotize him since the the match began July 18.
