Solons Reveal Grim Report On Gasoline Supply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee charged today the Department of Energy has kept from the public indications of a possible major gasoline shortage in the United States by 1980.

The charge was made by the investigations subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee, as part of a report concluding the department's case for lifting gasoline price controls is "unlearned, disingenuous, and unpersuasive."

The subcommittee released a 134-page report on the department's justification for decontrol.

Oil and its products were once under strict federal controls, which have gradually been lifted from some products such as heavy fuel oil, heating oil and some others. Gasoline is one of the few major oil products left under price controls.

Under a 1975 law, the Department of Energy must submit decontrol plans to Congress for approval. Either house can turn down the plan.

The decontrol plan for gasoline first was suggested in early 1977 by the Federal Energy Administration, which later withdrew the plan for further consideration. Federal energy officials compiled data supporting the plan, and the investigations subcommittee began an inquiry into the adequacy of the official justification for lifting the controls.

"Unless the Department of Energy can correct the defects in their published analysis, it is difficult to see how the House could accept a decontrol proposal," said Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the subcommittee.

The subcommittee report said the department had withheld information from the public "that indicates a potential major gasoline shortage by 1980."

Internal documents in the agency forecast a potential shortage of 400,000 barrels a day, the subcommittee said.

"The failure of the department to discuss this potentially grave problem in their published assessments of the impact of decontrol raises serious questions as to the credibility of the department," it added.

A shortage of that magnitude would itself boost prices up to 40 cents a gallon if controls were lifted, the report said.

The subcommittee said the department contends gasoline retail prices were below legal ceilings, so decontrol would not boost prices.

But it argued that some of the department's own figures show unleaded gasoline from full-service pumps selling within a fraction of the allowable price.

The department also contended decontrol would have no significant environmental effect.

The subcommittee report disputed that, saying it had found such a large price difference between leaded and unleaded gasoline that motorists had a strong incentive to switch to leaded gasoline "with the resulting adverse effect on the environment."

Inflation Outlook Gloomy

WASHINGTON (AP)— In a pessimistic new assessment of the nation's troubles with inflation, a member of the Federal Reserve Board said today that inflation might be worse next year than the 8 percent rate so far this year.

"Inflation has clearly accelerated, from the 6 percent area into the 8 percent area, and threatens to accelerate further next year," said board member Henry C. Wallich.

Wallich urged that the government consider a tax incentive program to penalize or reward business and labor for their price and wage behavior, depending on whether it conforms with government anti-inflation goals.

A new approach is needed, he said, because the government's traditional ways of controlling inflation through spending and interest rate policies are not working.

Such a tax incentive plan is "tough," Wallich said, "but we have run out of pleasant options."

He added: "The same or even more drastic remedies would confront us at higher levels of inflation, plus possibly a severe recession. I hope it will not take such higher levels to convince people of the need for action."

Wallich made his remarks in a speech prepared for the Allied Social Science Association in Chicago. The text was released here.

In its latest inflation report on Tuesday, the government said consumer prices rose by 0.5 percent in July, the smallest increase this year. However, virtually all the improvement was attributed to the first decline in grocery prices in a year.

Prices for non-food goods increased 0.7 percent, about the same as in previous months, indicating there has been little if any progress is slowing overall inflation.

The dollar plummeted sharply against major foreign currencies with a companion announcement by the Commerce Department that the U.S. trade deficit in July was $2.99 billion, nearly double the deficit for June and the fourth largest monthly gap ever between U.S. exports and imports.

The dollar fell nearly six yen on the Tokyo foreign exchange today, opening at 188.50 compared with Tuesday's close of 194.30. Similar declines were posted against the West German mark, the Swiss franc and the French franc, and the price of gold — a traditional investor refuge when the dollar falls — soared above $200 an ounce.

In a speech Tuesday before the National Governors' Conference, President Carter's chief inflation adviser, Robert S. Strauss, said consumer prices probably will increase 8 percent this year, worse than the administration had forecast.

Enrollment Lags Here

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

First-day enrollment in the Lubbock public schools was much lower than expected — but the attendance problems did not seem to signal dissatisfaction over court-ordered busing.

Indeed, attendance was very strong among students, especially whites, who were being reassigned for integration purposes, according to Lubbock Independent School District figures.

The weak spots in enrollment were most evident in schools unaffected by the district's integration plan; and among the vast majority of youngsters, particularly minorities, who were to continue to attend neighborhood schools under the plan.

School officials were somewhat baffled, though not alarmed, by the pattern. They said they expect enrollment to pick up quickly, and that the district will have a more accurate reading after Labor Day.

The districtwide enrollment report for Tuesday showed 28,111 students, compared with 30,090 on the first day of the previous school year. That represents a 1,879-pupil difference.

The drop was evenly divided between elementary and secondary levels. First-day enrollment for elementary children, who are most affected by the integration plan, was 13,206, down from last year's 14,097.

The school system last year had a peak enrollment of 31,758. The district had been projecting a peak this year of 31,485, a 273-student decrease.

There were signs that Tuesday's enrollment was artificially low. A number of schools polled said today they have signed up 10 or more students since turning in Tuesday's data.

Another pupil census, this one by race, will be taken today.

The integration plan involves reassigning about 2,000 elementary children and several hundred secondary students. Most of them did materialize Tuesday. Racial balance was at or above projected levels for many campuses.

"Bus ridership has been very close to what was predicted," Robert Miller, the district's transportation supervisor, said.

In fact, added Superintendent Ed Irons, some elementary schools — nota-

Teachers Strike At New Orleans

A-J News Services

NEW ORLEANS — Public school teachers, demanding a 9 percent pay raise the city says it cannot afford, voted overwhelmingly to strike today and quickly set up picket lines around schools already crowded with students.

With their voice vote, members of the United Teachers of New Orleans this morning rejected a 4 percent pay raise offered by the school board during an all-night bargaining session that ended only hours earlier.

Striking teachers quickly set up picket lines and school officials voiced fears of possible violence, but the first day of classes began as scheduled.

Substitute teachers reported to work at double the salary they received one year ago.

Nearly half of the city's 4,200 teachers gathered on the second floor of a department store for the strike vote, which came an hour after most of the city's 91,000 students had reported for classes.

The vote had been scheduled for 7 a.m., but was delayed two hours while union members checked identifications and passed out typewritten explanations of their stand.

The written policy statements ended with the line: "We must prove to them that we are strong in our demands!"

Union negotiators originally demanded a 9 percent pay raise, which city officials said would cost $5 million. Nat Lacour, president of the teachers' union, agreed on the eve of the strike to lower his demand, but flatly rejected the 4 percent offer.

Dr. Jerry Lee Hart, chief negotiator for the school board, said earlier this week he feared violence if the teachers walked off their jobs.

"Every parent has to take into consideration what we've seen building up — the emotional factor on the part of the union," Hart said. "The injury of any child involved in the confrontation would be a blemish on this community."

Despite Hart's feelings, the school board Monday night encouraged substitute teachers to cross picket lines by raising their daily salaries from $24 to $49.

The board then sent out letters warning contract teachers they could lose jobs, tenure or other privileges if they went on strike.

The strike was the first in New Orleans public schools since April 3, 1969, when 900 teachers walked off their jobs. Twenty-nine of the city's 130 schools closed briefly then, but teachers returned to work without a pay increase just two weeks later.

Every year since 1969 teachers have threatened to strike, but the walkouts were averted by last-minute settlements.

Eighty percent of public school students in New Orleans are black, with most whites attending private or parochial schools in the suburbs.

Superintendent Gene Geisert had said earlier that students who failed to show up for classes would not be truant.

"We realize some parents might be apprehensive about sending their children to school where there is a threat of strike," said Giesert.

Pay scales start at $10,096 for those with a bachelor's degree and go up to a maximum of $15,250 for an experienced teacher with a doctorate.

Plane Crash Fatal To 10

NORTH LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A twin-engine Las Vegas Airlines plane plunged to the ground shortly after taking off from the North Las Vegas Air Terminal today, killing all 10 persons aboard, authorities said.

The Piper Navajo crashed about 7:50 a.m., moments after it left the general aviation terminal northeast of Las Vegas.

Chief Deputy Clark County Coroner Dick Mayne said the plane was on a flight to Santa Ana, Calif. According to the flight plan, Mayne said, there were 10 persons aboard. A quick inspection showed there were no survivors, he said.

Don Donohue, a spokesman for the airline, said the plane had a pilot and nine passengers. They were not immediately identified.

Cause of the accident was under investigation.

The blue, white and green plane lay on its belly in a dusty, sage-covered field. The back of the craft was broken, but the plane was relatively intact. It did not catch fire.

Windows had been popped from the plane, and bodies of the passengers were visible, several of them slumped forward in their seats.

Richard Jameson, a Las Vegas contractor and private pilot, was landing at the airport and said he saw the plane go down.

The take-off seemed normal, Jameson said. "It was climbing, but it violently and suddenly pitched to the right and crashed," he said.

Jameson said he saw "something falling with the airplane ... it was separate" but landed near the plane. It was not immediately known what the object was.

There were no skid marks, indicating the plane dropped straight down.

The weather was clear, officials said.

The airline has no scheduled flights, Donohue said, but flies on an on-call charter basis between Las Vegas and other Nevada and California points.

"It was a high angle impact which means it was steep going in," Donohue said. "He (the pilot) took off on schedule, but he never got outside the airport boundary. We can't tell what happened."

Judge Tough On Hookers

FORT WORTH (AP) — "Fort Worth has enough prostitutes without importing any from California."

With those words still ringing in her ears, Deborah Elder, 21, found herself bound back for Fresno earlier this week, the graying, grizzled visage of County Court Judge J.C. Duvall stamped permanently on her soul.

The 80-year-old judge, known for his sometimes off-beat brand of justice, told the woman he would not fine her if she promised to go home.

"You be back in court by 2 p.m.," Duvall croaked in a voice that has been compared to a parrot with strep throat. "I'll have your plane reservations ready."

Miss Elder gladly paid her plane fare and vanished. But four others, called "local talent" by Duvall, didn't do as well. Each hapless hooker got a $250 fine and 120 days as guests of the county.

Debra Triggers Floods In Arkansas, Missouri

A-J News Services

The remnants of tropical storm Debra, centered over northeastern Arkansas and moving north-northeast, spawned rain and flash flooding from Arkansas and southeastern Missouri to the Ohio Valley today.

Flash flood watches were in effect from Arkansas into Indiana. Parts of southeastern Missouri have received as much as 5 inches of rain since Tuesday morning.

Most of Arkansas received 2 to 4 four inches of rain from the storm, with as much as 6 inches falling in the central part of the state.

Other shower and thunderstorm activity extended from eastern New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle into eastern Colorado and western Kansas, and from portions of western and southern Texas along the Gulf of Mexico coast area into the Florida panhandle.

Lubbock missed the brass ring again Tuesday night as rain fell elsewhere over the South Plains, but forecasters were giving the Hub City area a slight chance for another shot at some moisture today and tonight.

Rain chances were listed at 20 percent for both this afternoon and tonight.

Partly cloudy skies and temperatures in the low 80s are predicted for today.

The low tonight should be rather cool — in the high 50s — and the high Thursday in the mid-80s as the sky clears.

Winds were expected to be easterly at five to 10 mph today and southeasterly tonight, weathermen said.

Tuesday night rains totaled .20 of an inch at Dimmitt, .17 at Floydada, .45 at Friona, .88 at Hereford, .28 at Levelland, .15 at Muleshoe and a trace at Crosbyton.

There were widely scattered thundershowers from northern California into southern Oregon, near the North and South Dakota border, and along the east coast of Florida.

There was extensive cloudiness along the Pacific Coast, but inland skies became clear to partly cloudy across the Rockies through the northern and central Plains into the upper Great Lakes. Skies were mostly clear across the Florida peninsula.

Mild temperatures were forecast from the Ohio Valley through the upper Great Lakes, the Mississippi Valley and much of the Plains into the southern two-thirds of the Rockies. Temperatures elsewhere across the nation were expected to remain seasonable.

Unmarried Family Heads May Get Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, which usually weighs tax bills for their effect on a "typical family of four," is under pressure to vote tax relief for 5 million Americans who don't fit that mold.

Twenty-three senators have signed a bill by Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., that would cut taxes for unmarried family heads at a cost to the Treasury of more than $600 million a year in tax revenues.

The Senate Finance Committee will consider the Packwood bill next week as it begins work on its version of the tax cut package recommended by President Carter.

At issue are unmarried heads of households with at least one dependent. Eighty-five percent of these families are headed by women, most of them divorced and with minor children.

Such heads of household already qualify for a lower tax rate than do single persons with no dependents, but not as low as that allowed married couples filing a joint return.

However, the head of household may use only the $2,200 standard deduction allowed a single person, not the $3,200 deduction given a married couple.

As a result, a single parent with a dependent generally will pay about 10 percent more in income tax than if he were married. Packwood says the average income of a one-parent family is less than half that of the two-parent family.

The Packwood bill would give the head of household the same standard deduction as the married couple and move the tax rate closer to that paid by couples.

Opponents, who call the bill an incentive for divorce, say a couple with two children might divorce so that each parent could take one child, qualifying each parent for the full deduction now available only to a married couple.

Packwood, who called this argument "ridiculous," says he "cannot believe that very many people will make fundamental life decisions based on the size of the standard deduction."

Packwood's bill also would allow the higher deduction for single taxpayers who claim a parent as a dependent.

Until three years ago, the maximum standard deduction was the same $2,000 for all taxpayers. In 1975, Congress voted one standard deduction for singles — with or without dependents — and a sharply higher one for couples after it concluded that the old system was an incentive for "living in sin."

This theory held that many couples would forego marriage because a trip to the altar would cost them one of their $2,000 deductions.

But in trying to reduce the "marriage penalty," Congress worsened the plight of the single-parent family.

Under current law, the unmarried head of household who does not itemize deductions (three-fourths of Americans do not) is allowed to reduce income subject to taxes by $2,200, the same as a single person with no dependents. The couple filing a joint return is allowed a $3,200 deduction.

The bill the House passed earlier this month would increase that $1,000 difference to $1,100 by raising the deduction for single persons to $2,300 and for couples to $3,400.

Mrs. Carter To Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Rosalynn Carter will hit the campaign trail next month for Democratic candidates in Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Florida, Iowa and Indiana.

The appearances for Mrs. Carter were announced by her White House staff on Tuesday. She has a Texas visit slated for next week.

On Sept 23, the first lady will speak at a Media, Pa., fundraising dinner for Rep. Robert Edgar. On Sept. 28, she will appear in Asheville, N.C., for Rep. Lamar Gudger, followed by a dinner for Rep. Claude Pepper in Miami Beach.

The following day, Mrs. Carter will fly to Iowa to stump for U.S. Rep. Mike Blouin in Cedar Rapids and for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Jerry Fitzgerald in Des Moines.

En route home Sept. 30, Mrs. Carter will stop in Terre Haute, Ind., to appear with House candidate Charlotte Zietlow.

Actor Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of actor George Hamilton's business dealings are under scrutiny by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The Los Angeles resident was accused Tuesday of violating anti-fraud provisions of securities law in the purchase two years ago of stock in two corporations, the SEC said.

In a consent order filed in U.S. District Court in New York, Hamilton agreed not to engage in such activities, although he did not admit or deny the allegations, the commission said.

The complaint charged that Hamilton artificially inflated the price of IPM Technology stock that he bought in 1976. After buying the stock, Hamilton urged his accountant and an acquaintance to purchase IPM stock, while at the same time entering orders to sell his own shares, the SEC charged.

The commission also accused Hamilton of benefitting from "insider" material not generally available to the public when he purchased stock in Pulte Home Corp. in July and September 1976. The information concerned "a proposed business combination between Pulte and another corporation," the SEC said.

Actress Out Of Hospital

MISS MILLS

It was the second hospital visit for the 20-year-old performer in less than a week.

Miss Mills said after being discharged that her condition was diagnosed as a disrupted metabolism caused by a lack of salt.

Last Friday, Miss Mills started crying and collapsed on stage during the second song of the New York production, which is based on "The Wizard of Oz."

Miss Mills didn't appear in Tuesday night's performance and she said she did not know how long she would be out of the cast.

"They're telling me I should take a rest, but I don't know," Miss Mills said.

Connally In Rhodesia

CONNALLY

The Republican attorney arrived Tuesday from South Africa and is due to return there tonight.

Connally, a former secretary of the Navy and the U.S. Treasury, was to meet separately with Smith and three black members of the six-month-old transition government.

Early Tax Protester

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George Wallace says he didn't have to go to the meeting of the National Governor's Association in Boston this week to learn the nation may be in for a tax revolution.

WALLACE

"All they've talked about up there is tax revolt and I've been talking about that since 1968," Wallace told The Associated Press on Tuesday.

He was referring to statements made at the governors' conference by California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and others that government must cut expenses or face an uprising by taxpayers.

"What they are saying now is exactly what I, and the people of Alabama, have been saying for years," said Wallace. "If you tax the middle class to death, you will destroy our country. And the people are not going to put up with it."

Wallace added, "If I had gone to Boston, I could have been their Paul Revere, shouting, 'The revolution is coming, the revolution is coming.'"

Shah Of Iran, Chinese Leader Begin First Round Of Talks

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Chinese Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi began their first round of talks today aimed at rejuvenating a 2,000-year-old relationship and reaching common ground on the sensitive issue of security.

The shah greeted the Chinese leader at the entrance stairs of the ornate Saadabad summer palace, where they sat down with their respective delegations for two hours of discussions.

Details of the talks were not reported, but informed government and newspaper sources indicated that the question of big-power rivalry in the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean region was high on the agenda. The presence of top Chinese and Iranian military officers at the first round tended to support this speculation.

Tehran and Peking agree that this strategic oil-rich region is vulnerable to superpower designs, particularly from the Soviet Union.

Within hours after arriving to a royal welcome Tuesday, Hua indirectly attacked Soviet intentions with the familiar Chinese criticism of superpower "hegemony" but the shah concentrated in his opening remarks on reaffirming Iran's insistence that the states of the region should be solely responsible for their own stability and security.

Both Hua and the shah have said their countries will sign a cultural cooperation agreement and formalize a scientific-technical cooperative program during the Chinese leader's three-day visit.

Iran has taken care not to further irritate its Russian neighbor to the north over the visit by the leader of Moscow's communist arch-rival. The official Soviet press showed particular annoyance at Hua's earlier remarks in Romania and Yugoslavia, the most independent countries in Eastern Europe.

This is the first trip by a Chinese Communist leader to a capitalist country, and Iranian demonstrators have made efforts to have him notice protests over government policies. Hua's quarters at the Golestan guest palace overlook south Tehran where disturbances resumed Tuesday night, but it is not known whether the Chinese leader saw them.

Report Says Cambodian Government Strict On Sex

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Premarital sex is strictly prohibited by Cambodia's Communist rulers, conversations between men and women on any subject but business are forbidden, and even flirting may be punished by death.

The harsh restrictions of the new regime, described by President Carter as the "worst human rights violators in the world," were described in a detailed State Department report on conditions in Cambodia, recently submitted to the U.N. Human Rights Commission in Geneva.

The report contains statements by identified and unidentified Cambodian refugees to American diplomats in Thailand and diplomatic reports about life in what now is called Kampuchea.

Mon Sieu, a 30-year-old man who fled to Thailand June 15, discussed the government's control over the sex life of Cambodians.

"We were warned about premarital sex. If you want sex, you have to get married. There was no case known in our village of premarital sex," he told an American diplomat.

"Except during the mating period," said refugee Sen Chul, 27, in statements to U.S. officials, "young men and women were not allowed to talk to each other ... I knew of about 20 young men and women caught flirting who were executed. No romantic chit-chat is allowed.

"If the Khmer Rouge knew that you had violated this 'ethics code,' you would both be executed," Chul said.

The topic of sex also emerges in other refugee statements and in reports by the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok:

"One of the sadder features of Cambodia today is that having 'love affairs' is considered to be a crime," said a 1977 U.S. Embassy report.

A year earlier, the embassy reported: "As for sexual intercourse, refugees claimed unmarried civilians — even if they had the energy — were not allowed to have intercourse, this being a pleasure limited to the KC (Khmer Communists) ... (another refugee said) a man cannot even talk to a woman about anything except business."

Sen Chul summed up the situation in Cambodia this way in a conversation with an American diplomat in June:

"There are no rights or freedoms in Cambodia.

"The Khmer Rouge have clamped down on every facet of life.

"The central government's policy is to exterminate all the old people to have a new generation of Cambodians who have never known a good life.

"Their policy can be compared to burning a field of grass so that new grass can replace the old."

"They are succeeding very well because they are killing everybody."

State Department officials recently described the situation in Cambodia as "one of the great human tragedies of our times."

Squatters Moved To Apartment

MOSCOW (UPI) — For the first time in more than two months, seven Pentecostalist squatters slept on a bed Tuesday night instead of the green plastic couches in the lobby of the U.S. Embassy.

Western diplomatic sources said the seven squatters were moved to a tiny apartment in the embassy basement that "gets them out from under the public eye."

"It was the best solution to a problem that doesn't seem to be going away," the sources said.

The seven — including five members of one family — rushed into the embassy past Soviet guards June 27.

They said they will stay until Soviet authorities give them permission to leave the Soviet Union.

They were joined in mid-August by an Armenian woman and her two sons who also want to emigrate. She was moved into the apartment with the Pentecostalists.

Western diplomatic sources said the small efficiency apartment has a stove, kitchen, sink and beds. It normally is used by couriers or by embassy employees awaiting permanent housing.

The 10 squatters had been spending all day in the lobby of the consular office, reading, playing games and knitting. Embassy employees have pinned a list on a bulletin board and take turns bringing them food.

Embassy officials will not force them to leave, but clearly are irritated over their presence. The officials have been appealing almost daily for the squatters to leave.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said a senior official spoke with the group Tuesday and expressed sympathy for their situation, but told them the sit-in was not helping their case.

"He noted that the sit-ins were making more difficult the embassy's task of assisting others who need and deserve the embassy's help," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the group "decided to remain," however.

Guatemalan Farmers, Officials Disagree On Aid

By KAY McCARTHY

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Guatemalan community leaders and farmers who have worked for years to improve farmland in their country are in the midst of an unusual disagreement with the U.S. government over money.

The farmers — many of whom work part time for an Oklahoma-based organization, World Neighbors — have asked U.S. officials not to give a $250,000 loan to Guatemala, if the money is to be handed out to farmers.

"We believe it would be better to invest the AID (U.S. Agency for International Development) money in promoting methods for training the farmers, rather than for a humiliating system of charity," reads a letter signed by 14 Guatemalan community leaders and farmers.

They recently wrote the head of the AID mission in Guatemala, Fred Schieck, to try to halt the plan of paying cash incentives to farmers from the $250,000 loan.

For six years, the farmers have used methods taught by World Neighbors, a non-sectarian self-help group, and have watched their corn grow tall and lush, World Neighbors leaders said.

By teaching some of the farmers to be trainers so they can instruct classes of their own, the World Neighbors program has spread to about 5,000 farmers in the San Martin Jilotepeque area in six years. World Neighbors president James O. Morgan said the cost has been just $100,000.

World Neighbors, founded in 1951 in Oklahoma City, assists people in 27 developing nations by teaching them to raise more food, plan families, improve their health and start small industries. It derives its income from individual and foundation donors, as well as churches, other organizations and corporations, and interest and dividents on investments.

The Guatemalan farmers who have been working with World Neighbors fear the flow of government money with no instruction on how to use it will stop the growth of conservation methods in the country.

"They're just going to say, 'here's the money to dig conservation ditches', but there will be no education on how to dig the ditches," said Dale Levy, World Neighbors public relations director.

World Neighbors and the farmers feel "there's an approach that works and it is not nearly as costly as this approach," he said.

"This is treating people like they don't have the intelligence to understand what you're talking about," he said.

The leaders who signed the letter to Schieck also said they feared the distribution will be unfair.

"In any given community, there are many people who are attracted to charity. How much area do you expect to cover with this system? How many years will it take to cover the country? Will the plan be continued until all farm owners and renters are benefited?" their letter read.

The letter signers also wondered about the reaction of farmers who have stood the cost of practicing conservation, only to have the government pay "the more negligent farmer" to do the same.

"Without knowledge, without conviction, without free choice, there will be no desire to intensify and improve the work paid for by DIGESA (the Guatemalan General Office of Agricultural Services)," they said.

The farmers said the inefficiency of the government program is shown in a money comparison.

World Neighbors has spent $100,000 teaching agricultural and health practices to 5,000 farmers, each with an estimated three "cuerdas", or land units. The cost breaks down to $5.66 per cuerda. In contrast, the U.S. loan would pay $14.35 per cuerda for 15,000 cuerdas, it noted.

One signature on the letter is that of Marcos Orozco Miranda, who founded Guatemala's soil and water conservation department and headed it for 14 years. Another is Anacleto Sajbochol, who has been working with World Neighbors in agricultural and paramedical projects since 1963.

All the signers have been active in teaching an expanding network of farmers to build contour ditches, dig waterways, rotate corn with wheat and beans to enrich the soil and use compost and fertilizer.

The farmers called for using the Guatemalan agricultural services office and other organizations to teach the rural people before any money is handed out.

World Neighbors regional representative Paul McKay, Orozco and the others are still awaiting word from the AID mission on whether the money will be distributed.

"People with resources but without knowledge do nothing. People with knowledge, even though they have no resources, are capable of doing much," they said.

Egypt Puts Silencer On Comments

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egyptian officials are under instructions not to make any public comments that could in any way cast shadows on next month's Israeli-Egyptian-American summit on Middle East peace in Maryland.

President Anwar Sadat himself has set the example in a public speech saying he will say nothing now about Camp David except that he will do his utmost for its success and will be seeking an overall, not partial, settlement.

The reason, according to insiders, is that Egypt wants to help President Carter's mediation effort au much as possible. Cairo also does not want to give Israel any pretext for "raising difficulties" at the summit. All personal attacks on Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, rampant in Egyptian media until Carter initiated the summit, have stopped since.

Preparing Options

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel is preparing various options for a peace agreement to present to Egypt at the Camp David summit, possibly to forestall imposition of a peace plan by the United States.

Backstopping Prime Minister Menachem Begin's 28-point peace plan already rejected by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat are concrete proposals for a partial peace settlement and several ideas for reformulating a declaration of principles guiding an overall agreement.

Sadat wants President Carter to become a full partner in the negotiations. Begin wants Washington to remain in its role as mediator, fearing an imposed settlement that could force Israel to withdraw from most occupied Arab territory.

Talks, Oil Linked

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The key to next year's oil prices may lie in Camp David, diplomats in the Arab world say.

Saudi Arabia — by far the largest producer in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — has been sending out mixed signals on how it may act at OPEC's scheduled price-fixing session in December.

Diplomats believe the Saudi stand will depend in large measure on what comes out of Camp David. If President Carter shows signs of pressing Israel for real concessions, the Saudis probably will take a very moderate line.

If he doesn't — and if Egyptian President Anwar Sadat comes away empty-handed, one of the first results may be higher western oil bills, the diplomats speculate.

Hua's Projected Visit

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Diplomatic circles believe there is more than meets the eye in Chinese Chairman Hua Kuo-Feng's recent offer to visit Egypt.

Over and above a Chinese desire to strengthen bilateral ties, shared by Egypt, diplomats see in the offer a continuation of Hua's active anti-Soviet drive which began with visits to Romania and Yugoslavia this month (August).

Although Romania and Yugoslavia are both Communist countries and Egypt is not, all three have something in common — a determination to be free of Soviet influence. Hua's anti-Sovietism, in the view of the informants, will find an even better audience in Egypt, whose relations with Moscow have been on the rocks for years.

Sadat has sent word to Peking he would be "very happy" to host Hua at any time he chooses.

Weapons For Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel apparently will get as much weaponry as it wants from the United States. The only barrier is money.

U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown expects his Israeli counterpart, Ezer Weizman, to go to Washington immediately following the Camp David summit.

Weizman told the parliamentary foreign affairs and defense committee that Israel is short about $500 million which it needs for weapons, most of it to pay for F15 and F16 warplanes that cost about $20 million each with spare parts.

Bikini's Delayed Fallout

HISTORY EVEN if it is not repeating itself certainly has a grim sequel for the residents of the remote Pacific Island of Bikini.

Some 33 years after they were leveled by atomic bombs, the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki are thriving. The casual visitor to the cities might infer that aftereffects of an atomic attack are not so long-lasting after all.

But, there is another side of the story.

THE RESIDENTS of Bikini were evacuated from their homes when the island was chosen as the site of the first postwar test of an atomic bomb, June 30, 1946.

Shortly before some of them were permitted to return in 1969, the U.S. government planted 50,000 coconut trees and built concrete block houses to provide them with food and shelter. Bikini, the islanders were assured, was now virtually free of radio active contamination.

Now they are being told they must pack up and leave once again. Tests taken over the past three years have shown higher-than-normal amounts of strontium, cessium and plutonium in their bodies.

All three radioactive substances are known to cause cancer.

As a result, the 140 people currently living on Bikini this week are being moved to Kili, an island 509 miles to the southeast. It is now believed that Bikini will be unsafe for human habitation for 30 to 50 more years.

Actually, Bikini's experience is in no way comparable to that of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Each of the Japanese cities was destroyed by a single bomb. On the other hand, Bikini was the site of 23 atomic and thermo-nuclear tests between 1946-58.

A thermo-nuclear device exploded at Bikini March 1, 1954, had an explosive force of 15 megatons—1,000 times the power of the bomb dropped on Hiroshima. Its destructive force caught even its developers by surprise.

It raised a nuclear cloud 17 miles high, scattered radioactive debris over hundreds of miles and contaminated 7,000 square miles downwind.

THE SECOND evacuation of Bikini is not just a tragedy affecting a small group of natives on the island, but mankind in general. In an editorial in the Saturday Review, Norman Cousins wrote:

"The biggest lesson to be learned from the Bikini tests—and from the bombings at Hiroshima and Nagasaki—is that true security depends not on the accumulation of nuclear force but on the control of nuclear force.

"Once the bombs go off, no security system will mean anything; we all will be huddled under the same tiny umbrella, trying to protect ourselves against a hurricane of radioactive fire."

Then, political philosophy, race, creed and wealth will be on the same equation —survival.

Open Up Hart; Let Sunshine In

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Kenneth May and One Man's Opinion will be absent with leave from this space for a few days. While Mr. May enjoys a brief sabbatical in the hinterlands, nationally syndicated columnist Paul Scott will stand in.)

WASHINGTON—What could turn out to be the most important energy-related legislation that Congress passes this year is now on President Carter's desk awaiting his signature.

This is the $4.1 billion military construction bill containing a little-noticed provision requiring the use of solar energy in future military housing and construction projects.

In urging President Carter to sign the measure and make a big show in doing so, Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., ranking member of the Senate Armed Service Committee and author of the sleeper amendment, has told the White House that it could trigger the breakthrough in the development of solar energy that the administration has been asking.

"IN MY JUDGMENT, this is a very important breakthrough on the part of the federal government and could amount in fact to be the most important item of energy-related legislation that this Congress produces this year," reported Sen. Hart in winning strong bipartisan Congressional approval for his measure.

The significance of the Hart amendment (section 804) is that it requires the incorporation of solar energy systems in all new military family housing and in at least 25 percent of all other new military facilities that are put under design.

Only requirement is that these solar systems must be shown to be cost effective before they are built.

In making his report to the White House, Sen. Hart stated that the legislation would immediately boost the development of solar energy in at least two important ways.

FIRST, ANY new military family housing that goes under contract must consider solar energy systems.

Since the legislation gives the Secretary of Defense authority to increase costs necessary to accommodate solar systems, Hart contends the majority of the 1,500 units of new family housing authorized would be equipped with systems using the sun.

Second, under standing authorization, appropriations will be made this year for the planning and design of military projects that will be authorized for construction in future years.

These appropriations will total about $300 million and the new solar energy provision requires that 25 percent of all new facilities that are under design include solar systems as an option.

This means that about $50 million in design and planning funds will be spent next year, starting 90 days after President Carter signs the legislation, and each year thereafter, to design projects with solar systems.

IN INFORMATION furnished the White House, Sen. Hart stressed that the legislation will create a mass federal market for solar systems for the first time which would lead to a bigger private market.

Sen. Hart and his supporters contend that the legislation, in creating this new military market for solar energy, will lower prices, encourage innovation and mass production and further accelerate solar application.

The legislation, approved by large votes in both the Senate and House, was designed to influence public perception and acceptance of solar energy as a source of power.

In effect, the legislation will cause the building of solar systems at military bases all across the U.S.

PEOPLE AROUND the country will then see the federal government installing solar heating and cooling systems. In the judgment of Sen. Hart, this will foster widespread public acceptance of using the sun to heat and cool buildings.

If and when President Carter signs the legislation, the big job for Congress will be to get the Defense Department to implement it.

During the hearings on the military construction measure, Defense Department officials vigorously opposed the solar energy amendment on the grounds that its use was "not cost effective" and that the military shouldn't get involved in boosting solar energy.

In sharp contrast to this negative position, officials of the new Energy Department, including Sec. James Schlesinger, have applauded Congress' approval of the amendment.

President Carter is now weighing whether to sign or veto the legislation.

Holmes Alexander:

Say It Isn't So, Mr. Jimmy

MEXICO CITY, MEXICO—Before leaving here on a "routine visit" to Washington, Ambassador Patrick Lucey made a point of telling the press that despite "a few problems" between his country and this one, there was nothing that could not be remedied "within the framework of reciprocal cooperation and justice."

Superficially, the statement seemed no different from the usual diplomatic blah except for two points. One, the Ambassador took the occasion to stress President Carter's "great interest" in Mexico and said Carter "probably" will pay his first visit here in January.

That would make it two years that the President has put off what might have been one of his earliest courtesy calls, but instead has tested the waters by sending his wife, his vice president and treating Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, also a new man in office to a White House visit.

MEXICANS THINK IT shabby treatment, and the talk is that Carter was not exuding his warmest charm when he met with Portillo during the ceremonies that featured the Panama Canal treaties.

It is noteworthy that Ambassador Lucey was vague in his promise to fetch Jimmy who, frankly, is not in great demand here.

The other point, or coincidence, that sets the Ambassador's pronouncement a little out of the ordinary was the top story in a Spanish language newspaper, Uno Mas Uno, which carried this head: "Killing A Mexican A Month In Texas."

The story was datelined Washington, August 9, and bylined Raymundo Riva Palacio, correspondent. I made random inquiries about the newspaper and got the impression it was second-rate, but not disreputable, and definitely not Communist.

BUT THE STORY itself is replete with the elements that bespeak credibility. It carries dates, place-names, proper names, including that of Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell.

The half-dozen Mexicans to whom I showed the clipping accepted its contents with no sense of shock. They believed that Mexicans and chicanos were being gunned down by lawmen all over the southwestern states with impunity and without publicity.

Correspondent Riva Palacio based his story on a report by a Mexican-American organization which called upon "procurador general Griffin Bell" to take some action against "los gendarmes" and live up to his administration's professions of "human rights."

Thus far, Mr. Bell's only move has been in the killing of one Santos Rodriguez in Houston, according to the story. Bell arranged for the charges of assassination and violation of human rights to a lesser charge. Instead of a life sentence, the accused drew five months for accidental homicide.

Because these crimes allegedly have not been locally reported, and because there is considerable popular resentment of Americans, I give some names taken from the article of murdered persons: Larry Lozano in Odessa; Danny Vazquez in El Paso; Frank Garcia in New Mexico; Gregorio Espino in Kingsville; Timoteo Rosales in Plainville; Juan Benito Martinez in Loredo; Pablo Martinez in Perryton, as well as Rodriguez and others.

At this distance and without first-hand facts, I call this story to public attention for whatever official investigation and comment it draws. Believe me, it is not pleasant to feel dislike and distrust of one's country which, though it has only a little better record than most, strikes a pious attitude and has undertaken to make man more humane to man.

Sylvia Porter:

Profit Trails Price In Rare Book Race

FOR THE FIRST time in 52 years, individual collectors had a chance to bid at auction this past spring for a Gutenberg Bible, the book of books that rare book collectors covet beyond all others as the greatest masterpiece of printing in world history.

It fetched $2.2 million for the General Theological Seminary of New York, which had owned it, and which put it on the market to raise funds to create an endowment fund for the seminary's library.

It was the second example of the work of Johannes Gutenberg (the 15th century inventor of moveable type) to have changed hands in 1978, though.

Early in March, Hans P. Kraus, New York-based rare book dealer, sold his copy to the Gutenberg Museum in Mainz, West Germany, for $1.8 million.

THIS HAS BEEN one of the richest years ever for rare book collectors and dealers, with the marketing of such coveted rarities as a 15th century Flemish Book of Hours; a first edition of Mark Catesby's "The Natural History of Carolina, Florida and the Bahama Islands," the earliest known book on American birds, with colored illustrations; Ezra Pound's first book, "A Lume Spento"; plus a large collection of Ernest Hemingway correspondence.

Never has interest in this type of investing been so acute, reports George Lowry, president of Swann Galleries, New York, largest specialty rare book auctioneers in the U.S.

The signs: increased membership in the industry trade association, the Antiquarian Booksellers Assn. of America (ABAA); mushrooming of new dealers; multiplication of book fairs; accelerating auction activity.

LONG NEGLECTED by the public, rare book collecting has been viewed in the past as a classical form of investing, a rich man's hobby.

While old coins, stamps and art have boomed, rare books have climbed in value at a steady but unspectacular pace.

But now...a copy of James Joyce's first edition of "Ulysses," in good condition, one of 100, and signed by Joyce, was auctioned at $10,000 last year against $2,100 in 1968.

William Faulkner's first book, "The Marble Fawn," published in 1924, inscribed, sold recently for $6,250. A signed art book by Chagall, published as recently as the 1950s for $35, now sells for $1,000.

If you are a neophyte, don't enter this area to make a quick killing. Buy rare books and manuscripts first for the love of the items, the pleasure of ownership—and view money-making as a corollary, after you've educated yourself on how to collect.

YOU CAN COLLECT in many fields: paperbacks (the first Penguin Paperback is now worth over $100); mysteries, science, telephone books, directories (the first New York City Directory sold a short while ago for more than $1,000).

You can create your own field. "Why not collect every book published in Cleveland in 1931, for instance?" says Lowry. Or:

(1) You may specialize in scientific and medical papers describing vital discoveries and inventions.

"De Revolutionibus," Copernicus (1543), which went from $11,000 in 1963 to $40,000 in 1974, is now over $100,000.

H. D. Smyth's report heralding the Atomic Age, published in 1945, is now at the $1,000 mark.

(2) MODERN FIRST editions. In addition to Faulkner, other hot authors are F. Scott Fitzgerald, John Steinbeck, and Ernest Hemingway.

(Hemingway's high school yearbook of February 1916, containing his first published story, "Judgment of Manitou," recently sold for $1,000.)

(3) Press books: important names are Doves Press, Kelmscott Press, The Limited Editions Club.

(4) Children's books. Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" commands $10,000 to $20,000. Perfect copies of children's books are rare.

(5) Books on photography, maps, atlases, and 19th century literature in fine condition command good prices.

(6) Limited and signed art books. In addition to Chagall, Picasso, Calder and Dali books draw premiums.

IN GENERAL, if you, an amateur, are starting to collect rare books, concentrate on books published today, signed books, first editions, limited editions.

As for the book itself, put it on the shelf clean, don't touch (and certainly don't read!) it.

Educate yourself. You can't go it alone.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Life Is Just A Bowl Of Pits

WASHINGTON—Proponents of the D.C. amendment to the Constitution needed 66 votes Tuesday before last. In the showdown, they got 67.

If Barry Goldwater had only voted the conscience of a good conservative, this grotesque proposition would have gone down in deserved defeat. Instead, it has gone out to the states for ratification.

Doubtless, Goldwater was persuaded to vote for the resolution by the proponents' appeal to human rights and to what Sen. Edward Kennedy called "simple justice."

These appeals are valid, but they were misplaced in this botched-up amendment. Goldwater and his companions voted in haste. Lovers of the Constitution will repent at leisure.

The amendment says, in Section 1, that "for purposes of representation in the Congress, election of the President and Vice President, and Article V of this Constitution, the District constituting the seat of government of the United States shall be treated as though it were a state."

THE WORDING is clumsy, clumsy, clumsy! The chefs who cooked up that syntactical hash never heard of the rules of parallelism. Section 2 is worse.

Section 2 says: "The exercise of the rights and powers conferred under this article shall be by the people of the District constituting the seat of government, and as shall be provided by the Congress."

James Madison, roll over in thy grave! Does anyone profess to know what is meant by Section 2? To be sure, if the District of Columbia is to elect two senators and one representative, the people must elect them.

Who else would elect them? But let us pursue the whole of this mishmash amendment as it flaps and stumbles its way toward a place in the supreme law of the land.

The District is to be treated "as though it were a state." This hypothesis is to apply in three functions only: (1) representation in the Congress, (2) election of Presidents, and (3) the exercise of powers under Article V, which provides for future amendments to the Constitution.

BUT EVERYONE knows that the District is not a state. The District is to remain subject to the most positive, least ambiguous provision in the whole of the Constitution:

"The Congress shall have power to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district...as may become the seat of the government of the United States."

Under this proposed amendment, the District of Columbia becomes nothing but a nothing; it is not a thing at all.

It is not to be a state in terms of interstate compacts. Its judicial proceedings are not to enjoy full faith and credit. It gets no guarantee against domestic violence. It has no reserved powers under the 10th Amendment. It does not qualify under the 14th Amendment. And so on.

UNDER ARTICLE V, constitutional amendments may be ratified by the "legislatures" of three-fourths of the states. Are we to understand that the District's City Council is to be metamorphosed into a legislature?

So great a transformation has not been seen since Puck slipped the ass's head upon the shoulders of Nick Bottom.

The amendment simply is out of tune. It is a stylistic abomination.

And to talk politics for a moment, as distinguished from constitutional exegesis, the effect would be to send two liberal, urban Democrats to the Senate in perpetuity, with all the foreseeable consequences in terms of treaties, filibusters, committee membership, and the like.

I SAID AT the outset that appeals to human rights and simple justice are valid. They are valid, and they are overblown.

The clamor for voting rights for the District's residents is the amplified bullhorn clamor of a few activists.

The people of Washington have had the power to vote for President, Vice President, congressional delegate, mayor, council and school board, and their voting turnouts have been abysmal.

But if equal representation is the be-all and end-all, the answer is to cede the whole 62.7 square miles back to Maryland and be done with it.

True, Maryland has done nothing to deserve such a fate, but who ever said life is fair?

Neighbor Helps Collar City Burglary Suspect

A 16-year-old youth was captured Tuesday afternoon after he reportedly was seen burglarizing a home in the 2400-block of East 10th Street.

The teenager, who was turned over to juvenile authorities, allegedly broke into the 2422 E. 10th St. residence of Harvey Alvin Robb Jr. about 2:15 p.m. and attempted to make off with $308 in property, including clothing and a large amount of change.

One of Robb's neighbors told police he saw the boy leaving the house with a suitcase. He said he went after the boy after noticing Robb's back door kicked in.

The neighbor said the boy dropped the suitcase when he noticed he was being followed.

Three other men joined in the chase, according to reports, and the young suspect was apprehended about 2:30 p.m. in an alley near East Ninth Street and Zenith Avenue.

All the stolen property was recovered, reports show, but Robb said $160 damage was done to his back door.

In other reported crimes, Stanley F. Smith of 4007 68th St. told police he and his daughter returned home about 5 p.m. Tuesday to find his residence broken into and $2,500 in stereo equipment and household goods missing.

Smith had been away since Monday afternoon. A neighbor told police that just before Smith returned, she saw a "boxy" type car in his driveway.

Juan Robledo of 1916 Ave. P reported the theft of four shotguns and two rifles. The guns, Robledo said, were in a locked case at his home which appeared to have been pried open by a screwdriver.

Richard Tankersley of 908-A Ave. V said his house was burglarized Tuesday and two televisions, a CB radio and an electric razor stolen. He estimated his loss at about $900.

Police this morning were looking for Scott L. Longshore's $350 gas barbecue grill, which was reported stolen from the backyard of his home at 2015 71st St. Longshore said the theft apparently occurred between 9 p.m. Monday and 4:40 p.m. Tuesday.

Betty M. Countryman told police she left her 5434 43rd St., rear, residence unlocked Monday afternoon while she went for a walk. Upon returning, she said, she found that someone had taken the cash from a wallet she kept under her bed mattress.

Maria L. Davis said whoever entered her 107 N. Detroit Ave. home through a window that earlier had been broken made off with $900 worth of goods, including a television and two rings.

Gene Barber told officers that someone took $755 worth of tools from the bed of his pickup truck early Tuesday. The vehicle was parked at Barber's 4509 40th St. home at the time of the theft, according to reports.

Burglars also concentrated their efforts along Emory Street last week, taking about $1,300 worth of goods from two houses under construction, according to reports.

Ron Steel told police that the burglars took $390 worth of light fixtures from a residence at 1515 Emory St. and $900 worth of goods, including light fixtures and a range, from a house at 5617 Emory St. Reports indicate that officers were unable to find any sign of forced entry at either residence.

Study Finds Local Ideas More Help To Projects

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Billions of federal dollars have had little impact on education, mainly because local officials didn't get involved and teachers weren't taught how to teach better, a Rand Corp. study says.

The net return to the federal investment, the researchers said, "was the adoption of many innovations, the successful implementation of few and the long-run continuation of still fewer."

The four-year study commissioned by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare examined 293 federally financed projects, including some aimed at eliminating illiteracy and others at improving vocational and bilingual education.

Whether a program survived past the end of federal financing, the study found, was unrelated to how much money was spent and what kind of materials were bought. Rather, the amount of local ideas put into the project often meant the difference between success and failure.

"The ultimate responsibility for really making these programs work over the long run (rests) with the local people," Paul Berman, one of the chief researchers, said Tuesday. "The problem is not how to get more money, but how to get these people motivated.

"If schools are going to change, they have to learn to change themselves — to learn how to teach better," he said in an interview. "The federal money is just a help in getting them started."

Instead of simply pumping money into the nation's classrooms for poorly planned and ultimately short-lived programs, the federal government should adopt "a long-term goal of helping school districts develop the capacity to improve their own performance," the Rand report said.

However, the study also pointed out that the impact of the federal money — although short-lived in most projects studied — was not insignificant.

"Federal seed money allowed some districts to undertake activities that their staff were anxious to pursue but that could not be supported out of district funds," the report said.

But the underlying theme throughout the report is that the attempt to improve education must be de-centralized. The study said federal projects that try to impose identical programs on many different schools may die out because local officials are not committed to keeping them going.

"In all too many cases, the availability of federal 'seed money' precipitated a rush for funds on the part of school districts without appropriate planning or a commitment to solving local problems," the report said.

Berman said another factor that limits the life of federal programs is "an unrealistic expectation about how long it takes to do things and to introduce change."

The study said, "It takes on the order of seven years before the education effects of a new policy can be tested. But federal policy-making often has not shown that much patience."

TV Show Upsets Flight Attendants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sexy mentality of the new television program "Flying High" insults every flight attendant, the president of the Association of Flight Attendants says.

"The show concentrates more on bosoms than brains, and on sex more than safety," Patricia D. Robertson said Tuesday after viewing a pilot film for the series, which will be on CBS this season. A spokesman for CBS, asking not to be identified, said, "It certainly is not our intention to put flight attendants in a poor light or to downgrade them or embarrass them in any way."

Crop Tour Set In Deaf Smith

HEREFORD (Special) — Disease and insect control, irrigation practices and alternate crops will be shown at the annual crops tour in Deaf Smith County Sept. 6 beginning at 1 p.m. The tour will begin at the museum parking lot north of the courthouse.

KPAN radio here will broadcast a discussion of the exhibits as the tour progresses for those who follow the tour in an automobile. Buses will also be available.

Cotton variety, insect control and irrigation will be displayed at the Clark Andrews farm. Charles Schlab's farm will exhibit variety, insect control and irrigation of corn, along with soybean production and sugar beet irrigation.

A demonstration of bindweed control, irrigation well-pumping efficiency and corn fertility will follow. Next, sugarbeet research and grain sorghum production will be discussed.

Refreshments will be available during the tour.

MARINE — Laurie Glenn Jacobson, a five-foot, 118-pound Marine Corps second lieutenant who is 5½ months pregnant, is nearing the end of a 21-week officer training course at Quantico, Va. Her husband is a Marine first lieutenant stationed on Okinawa. (AP Laserphoto)

Pregnant Marine Endures Training

QUANTICO, Va. (UPI) — Marine Corps Lt. L.G. Jacobson is nearing the end of a grueling, muscle-aching training course that includes forced marches and mock battles — aven though she is 5½ months pregnant.

Slightly more than three months from now, Laurie Glenn Jacobson will be setting aside her M-16 rifle to cradle her new baby.

But until then, Mrs. Jacobson has no intention of setting aside the rigors of Marine Corps training at the Quantico Marine base.

Mrs. Jacobson is one of the first women ever to undergo the harsh course at the Marine Corps Development and Educational Command school, a corps spokesman said.

Until last year, the course was for men only.

"I believe my body will let me know when I'm doing something I shouldn't do," said Mrs. Jacobson, one of 15 women assigned to the 244-member Charlie Company.

"The baby wasn't any problem," she said.

Until July 1975 pregnant Marines were discharged automatically. The current policy is to leave the matter up to the woman and her physician.

Mrs. Jacobson will have to worry about being discharged only if the health of her or her child becomes endangered, or if she can no longer perform her duties.

Marine officials said that of the 5,000 pregnant women currently in the corps, only 44 have chosen to stay on active duty.

With 10,000 women expected in the Marine Corps by 1985, the headquarters is designing a Marine maternity uniform.

The only exercise Mrs. Jacobson has not participated in was a three-day mock battle during which trainees were teargassed.

"The doctor told me not to take aspirin, so I thought tear gas would be a bad idea," she said.

Mrs. Jacobson said she left her job as a technician and part-time director at a Wilmington, N.C. television station to become a Marine because of promises of equal pay and opportunity.

After her enlistment last January an completion of officer candidate school, she was commissioned a second lieutenant.

She said she is not trying to make any political statement by toughing it out with the other Marines in Charlie Company.

"They were kind of patronizing," she said of her comrades' conduct when they learned she was pregnant.

"They asked if they could lift things for me. Now they don't even bother asking," she said.

Under the law, women Marines are banned from taking part in active combat, but Mrs. Jacobson's regimen at Quantico is the same as the men's.

REPLACEMENT DRUG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Makers of a non-narcotic painkiller, just approved by the Food and Drug Administration, say it can relieve severe pain without subjecting the patient to risks of addiction. Bristol-Myers Co. said Tuesday that Stadol can be used as a replacement drug for highly addictive painkillers such as morphine and Demerol.

LISTENS TO RETURNS — U.S. Representative Larry McDonald, D-Ga., listens to early election returns at a Marietta, Ga., hotel Tuesday night as his wife, Kathy, looks on. McDonald and challenger Smith Foster battled nip-and-tuck as returns came in for the runoff contest for the Democratic nomination. (AP Laserphoto)

Georgia Congressman Gets Nod In Close Democratic Runoff

ATLANTA (AP) — Rep. Larry McDonald won the Democratic nomination for re-election early Wednesday in a cliff-hanging runoff against conservative businessman Smith Foster, whom McDonald had criticized as too liberal.

Returns from metropolitan Cobb County, delayed by a computer malfunction, gave McDonald the victory after midnight, but Foster refused to make a concession statement because of the closeness of the totals.

With all 199 precincts counted, McDonald had 46,083 votes or 51.3 percent. Foster had 43,611 votes or 48.6 percent.

McDonald will be opposed in the November general election for the 7th Congressional District seat by Republican Ernie Norsworthy.

Foster told reporters, "The results are so close. They may be right, and if so we can live with it. But we'd like to wait until tomorrow before making any statement."

In another run-off, Virginia Shapard, a 42-year-old mother of four, defeated Peter Banks to win the Democratic nomination for the seat of retiring U.S. Rep. John J. Flynt. She will face Republican Newt Gingrich in the November general election.

The vote in that race, with 214 of 221 precincts counted: Shapard, 30,029 or 53.2 percent; Banks, 26,392 or 46.7 percent.

Mrs. Shapard told supporters, "We've run the cleanest campaign the state of Georgia has even seen."

Flynt, Democratic chairman of the House Ethics Committee, is stepping down after 24 years in Congress.

Foster had campaigned as a conservative, but was labeled a liberal by McDonald. Foster finished fewer than 900 votes behind McDonald in primary balloting three weeks ago.

McDonald labeled his challenger a "counterfeit conservative" and accused him of being beholden to labor bosses and liberal groups.

McDonald, 43, a Marietta urologist, stepped up his campaigning when faced with the runoff. He told voters he stands for "a balanced budget, less government and a strong national defense."

Foster, 45, a lanky, north Georgia man with textile interests and a mountain twang, argued that McDonald leans so far to the right, he has little effect in Congress.

In past months, McDonald has led an unsuccessful attempt to impeach U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young and has threatened to oppose U.S. Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia for re-election because Nunn supported the Panama Canal treaties. He also was taken to court on a malpractice charge for using the substance Laetrile to treat a cancer patient. McDonald was acquitted in that case.

During the runoff campaign, McDonald attempted to paint Foster as a tool of liberal interests. He charged that Foster received support from groups supporting gun control and the Equal Rights Amendment.

Foster said he supports the ERA, but not the extension of its seven-year deadline for ratification. He said he supports the rights of local governments to pass gun control ordinances without federal interference.

Campaigning in the 6th District race was more sedate, with both candidates running as conservatives. Both issued voluntary financial statements, which led to the only serious dispute in the race.

Banks said Mrs. Shapard's disclosure was incomplete because it failed to show the wealth of her husband's family, which has textile interests. Mrs. Shapard said that was unimportant since her relatives were limited by the same law that restricts the amount other contributors can give.

Pollution, Disease Study Inconclusive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first report of a task force studying the relationship between chemical pollution and cancer and lung and heart diseases sheds little light on the problem. But the researchers did say the United States should be spending much more on research.

Douglas Costle, chief of the Environmental Protection Agency, said the government spent $207 million last year to discover how chemical pollutants cause these diseases in humans. Costle said stepped up efforts were needed "to reduce the risk and occurence of these diseases."

He made his comments in the report by the Task Force on Environmental Cancer and Heart and Lung Disease. The report said there was evidence to link pollution and the diseases, but the evidence was "diffuse and in many cases inconclusive."

New Women's Adviser In Favor Of Abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sarah R. Weddington, the Texas liberal who will take Midge Costanza's place as the White House adviser on women's issues, disagrees with her new boss on one matter: abortion.

Mrs. Weddington, 33, a lawyer, native of Abilene, and general counsel to the Agriculture Department for the last year, has been a leader of pro-abortion forces.

President Carter has said he personally opposes abortions and federal financing for them.

Mrs. Weddington explained her views to Carter at a White House meeting with some delegates to the International Women's Year convention held in Houston last November.

By all accounts, Carter was impressed.

"She was at her Texas, soft-voiced best," said another participant in the meeting who asked to remain anonymous.

"She told Carter he should know from the start that she is from the South, the daughter of a Methodist minister, and that she understood his position.

"Then she outlined her own position in terms that Carter couldn't disagree with. I don't know any other person in this town who could have pulled that off. Everyone, including Carter, was impressed."

Mrs. Weddington is no stranger to the abortion controversy. As a private attorney, she represented "Jane Roe," the pregnant Texas woman whose lawsuit led the Supreme Court to strike down state anti-abortion laws.

Mrs. Weddington later was elected president of the National Abortion Rights Action League — an office that took her on speaking tours around the country.

The White House acknowledged on Tuesday that Mrs. Weddington is under consideration as Miss Costanza's successor, but an aide in presidential assistant Hamilton Jordan's office said no decision would be made until Carter returns on Wednesday from his Western vacation.

Mrs. Weddington's soft-spoken style contrasts with Miss Costanza, who was best known for her frank, outspoken ways.

Miss Costzana resigned July 31 after her White House duties were downgraded and her appearance on a network television show was canceled by White House media adviser Gerald Rafshoon.

"Sarah Weddington won't cause a ruckus in the White House, but women's organizations and women in general will be well served," said a colleague and friend. "She'll never cause any grief, but she will never back off an issue she believes in."

"Don't let her sweet blue eyes and strawberry-blonde hair fool you into thinking she's a pushover," said the friend. "She's not."

Mrs. Weddington, a graduate of McMurry College in Abilene, received her law degree from the University of Texas Law School in Austin. She then became an assistant reporter for the American Bar Association, where she helped write the lawyers' code of professional responsibility that is used throughout the United States.

She was elected to the Texas Legislature in 1972, the first women representative from Travis County. She served until September 1977 when she was appointed to the Agriculture Department position.

She is a member of the National Women's Political Caucus and the Sierra Club. She is divorced and has no children.

Nuclear Blast Scheduled

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (UPI) — A nuclear warhead will be exploded 2,233 feet beneath the desert at the Nevaja Test Site Thursday in a test code-named "panir," the seventh nuclear blast announced by the United States this year.

The explosion is scheduled for 9 a.m. CDT, a spokesman for the Department of Energy announced.

It will be the 317th underground blast at the site since a treaty with Russia banned atmospheric testing in 1963.

The announcement said the explosion's power will be in the range of 20 to 150 kilotons, a deliberately vague range that covers virtually all nuclear test explosions and does not reveal the size of the bomb.

In 1935, the Jonkers Diamond, 726 carats, arrived in New York City from England for 35 cents postage, registered mail.

Texan Declines To Sell Antique Tractor Collection

GEORGETOWN (UPI) — Someone with $1 million couldn't buy Louis Miller's antique tractors, and a hefty percentage of that could not make Miller part with his pride, a 1914 Waterloo Boy, the predecessor of the John Deere tractor.

Miller has a scattering of old tractors he and his brother, Ray, have restored in the last decade. Miller allows people to come see them. He transports them to shows. But he won't sell — not at any price.

"I wouldn't take $5,000 for it (the Waterloo Boy)," he said. "There are only two in Texas and the other one hasn't been restored."

Miller owns 75 old tractors, including 12 he has restored. The Georgetown native has combed just about every farm, field or pasture in the state in search of old tractors.

And he said he'd continue preserving history with his restorations "until they haul me off."

"I have a '69 Ford pickup with 209,000 miles on it," drawled Miller. "And a good bit of those miles are from traveling around looking."

It takes Miller and his brother about a year to restore a tractor. The Waterloo Boy was a bit of a rush job.

"I really wanted this one bad," he said as he admired it.

It took Miller three years to buy the Waterloo Boy once he located it at a farm near Pflugerville. A John Deere Tractor Co. dealer told Miller he had heard the tractor was on a farm near the Central Texas town.

"I'm kind of a pest," said Miller. "I try not to be. I went door-to-door to every farm around Pflugerville. Finally, a man at a store told me where it might be.

"And then it took me three years to convince the owner to sell it to me. I kept asking him about it and then one day he gave in."

Miller was born in Williamson County 54 years ago. He's been around tractors all of his life. He is an historian, although he doesn't call himself one.

He's a tall man with buck teeth. His wide grin exposes empty gaps and a baseball cap hides an almost bald head. His blue work shirt is drenched in sweat.

His shop — Miller's Mechanical Mart — is pitiful looking at best. It's housed in an aluminum building surrounded by tall weeds and a sprinkling of old frame houses. There's hardly a spot on the concrete floor that isn't covered with oil.

Some of the tractors are stored in old shacks around the shop. Other priceless tractors are hidden by the 5-foot tall grass and weeds in the yard.

But that matters little to Miller. And he cannot conceal his pride.

"If people keep taking their old tractors to junkyards, then it won't be long before grandfathers won't be able to show their grandsons anything from the past," he said.

And there's another thing that makes him restore tractors.

"I have a very good friend who's my age. He loves dogs. He was orphaned when he was very young and he lived with an uncle who was a dentist. But he wasn't allowed to have a dog," Miller said.

"Well, my friend grew up loving dogs, I guess, because he couldn't have one when he was young. And now there isn't a dog he doesn't love.

"I'm kinda of the same way about tractors. My father had an old Fordson but he didn't like it. But I did and I wanted one since I was a kid."

And once he acquired and restored his first tractor, Miller's passion became insatiable.

Among his prized possessions are a 1919 Fordson, an early model designed by Henry Ford, and a 1914 International Harvestor Titan he found in Helotes. He has another International Harvestor model, a four-cylinder tractor built in 1918.

Miller also owns a 1919 Case model that features a crossways motor.

"That one had been stored in a shed since 1936. I found it two years ago," he said.

His oldest tractor is a 20-ton steam-engine model built in 1909, which he occasionally drives in parades.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

American actors Fred MacMurray and Raymond Massey were born on Aug. 30 — the former in 1908 and the latter in 1896.

On this day in history:

In 30 B.C., Cleopatra committed suicide by allowing an asp to bite her.

In 1780, Revolutionary Army Gen. Benedict Arnold betrayed his young country when he promised secretly to surrender the American fort at West Point to the British army. A British spy subsequently was hanged but Arnold escaped.

In 1830, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad abandoned the horsepowered locomotive for steam.

In 1862, the Union Army commanded by Maj. Gen. John Pope was defeated by Confederate troops in the second Battle of Bull Run.

A thought for the day: American poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow said, "Music is the universal language of mankind — poetry their universal pastime and delight."

Free Class Loses To Proposition 13

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — Because of Proposition 13, residents no longer will be able to take — free of charge — a Parks and Recreation Department course on basket-weaving.

The department said Monday residents will have to pay $12 for the course this year and at least six persons must enroll for it.

Rent Control Measures Spring Up Across Country

By LEE MITGANG

NEW YORK (AP) — Rent control, dropped in the nation's major cities save this largest of them following World War II, is cropping up across the country again, not only in cities but in suburbs.

Los Angeles and other California cities are considering imposing rent limits. Washington, D.C., and Boston have such limits. And other cities in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and New York have adopted rent laws in the recent years of inflation and unemployment.

"The middle class is hurting. Their lifestyle is impeded. And they've discovered rent control," explains Dr. George Sternlieb, an urban expert from Rutgers University in New Jersey, a state where many cities and suburbs have adopted rent controls in the 1970s.

In some cases, government-imposed rent limits follow economic developments beyond inflation. Alaska, for example, set up rent guidelines when the oil pipeline caused speculation that sent rents up 200 percent to 300 percent.

Now, a number of California communities are considering rent control as a way to force landlords to share with renters some of their savings from Proposition 13, which required a cut in property taxes.

However, the state Senate on Monday defeated a bill that would have forced most owners of rental property to roll back rents to May levels and give tenants 80 percent of their Proposition 13 tax savings.

Assemblyman Tom Bates, sponsor of the legislation, predicted the defeat would spur efforts to impose local rent control laws.

Sternlieb, who oppose rent controls as unfair and impossible to administer, sees another reason why suburbs are now imposing them.

He says a hidden appeal — "the middle class's dirty little secret," he calls it — is that it tends to discourage new apartment construction. A suburb that wants to stay small, and keep poorer city dwellers from moving in, often finds rent control a convenient ally.

Thus the "no-growth" fringe benefit of rent control may give the system special allure in California, Sternlieb says.

Rent limits are controversial wherever they exist. In New York, landlords and tenants have been arguing over them for years.

One problem here is confusion over a many-layered and chaotic bureaucracy that has grown up in the last 30 years. For 500,000 apartments, mostly older high-rises with long-time tenants, there is rent control, the strictest system. There is less strict rent stabilization for 770,000 others and no control at all for the remaining 600,000, mostly in smaller or new buildings.

Until recently, the city kept controls to help the poor. Now rent control has become a middle-class issue. Proponents including Mayor Edward I. Koch, who himself has a rent-controlled flat, argue that the city must keep some controls to prevent the middle class from fleeing.

Landlords argue that rising property taxes and utility and upkeep bills prevent fair profits under rent control. They also blame it for abandonment and deterioration of buidings, saying this causes property values to drop and leads to higher property taxes for small homeowners.

Tenant leaders contend, however, that real estate speculation, redlining and a host of social ills are more to blame for New York's housing problems than is rent control.

These have been the experiences in some other areas:

—Washington, D.C., has had rent control for three years. It is criticized by landlords because of red tape involved in getting rent increases and by tenants who feel the increases granted are too large.

It was nonetheless extended this year in modified form for another three years. Local observers say the City Council extended it because landlord groups fought so zealously to end controls that the council feared decontrol would lead to explosive rent increases.

A study titled "Rent Control" by Monica Lett of Rutgers University cites an acute housing shortage, rapid rent increases and evictions as factors leading to controls in the nation's capital.

—Boston began controls in 1969, followed by nearby Brookline, Cambridge and Somerville. Rent increases are granted mostly on a case-by-case basis, according to Ann Goggin of the Boston Rent Control Board. But last year, landlords were granted a citywide 11 percent increase to cover higher utility and property tax costs.

A housing shortage and one of the nation's highest per capita rent levels are the main reasons Boston turned to controls. The large student population creates a special problem for other residents. Landlords might charge, say, four students $150 apiece to live in a single apartment, which might raise a single family's rent in a similar apartment to $600 without some kind of rent control.

The city passed a law for gradual decontrol in 1976, but up to two-thirds of apartments remain under control. The rent ordinance expires in 1979, however, and then rent control could end altogether.

First In A Series

—Miami Beach, Fla., had rent control for three years, but the Legislature ended it by limiting the law to apartments renting for $250 or less a month — far below most rents in Miami Beach.

City spokesman Zeke George says a push for a new form of control could come if Miami Beach votes in November to legalize casino gambling, setting off real estate speculation.

—In Connecticut, cities including Danbury, Hartford, New Haven and Stamford have a mild system that allows tenants to complain to a local fair rent board that can roll back exorbitant rents.

—About 130 New Jersey communities including Newark have local rent control. The model for their ordinances, and the place where controls are under hottest dispute, is Fort Lee, a city just across the Hudson River from New York with many luxury high-rise apartments. Fort Lee's law effectively limits rent increases to 2.5 percent a year.

Landlords took the city to New Jersey Supreme Court in May, calling the law "confiscatory and invalid." No decision has been issued.

'His Worship' Rescues 'Damsel'

NEW YORK (AP) — Dita Vadron of Toronto, Canada, lost her earring in a storm drain when she visited New York City, and she figured she'd write to someone who could help her out.

She addressed the letter to "His Worship, The Mayor of New York." Marc Marchese, a spokesman for Mayor Edward Koch, said Mrs. Vadron explained that "only your sweeping powers can solve the problems of a damsel in distress."

She included a photocopy of the remaining earring and a map showing where the lost one disappeared. Koch called Transportation Commissioner Anthony Ameruso, who sent a team to the site.

There, under the debris and goo, was the silver, 2-inch-long earring. Koch sent it to Toronto, along with a letter.

Archaeologist Says Bronze Age Cultures Similar To Today

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Imagine trying to describe 20th century America based solely on a few sales slips and a handful of charm bracelets.

That essentially is what Dr. John G. Younger is doing with two Bronze Age cultures, the Minoans from the Mediterranean island of Crete and the Mycenaeans from what now is Greece.

Younger, an archaeologist and professor from Duke University, examines the civilizations' clay accounting tablets and carved, thumbnail-sized stones for clues on how the people lived 1,200 to 3,000 years before Christ.

"What emerges is how little they are changed from today," Younger said. "They are very sophisticated, very cosmopolitan. Their level of engineering is just as complex as our own. Their bureaucratic procedures are infinitely more complicated than our own."

Younger said digs in Greece during the past few years have uncovered hundreds of tablets recording the crops area farmers were required to give the state. The food would be stored in state-owned bins and later distributed to hungry areas.

"The business records are scanty, but you can ferret out the level of bureaucratic interest they have," he said. "Also, occasionally titles will be mentioned, like secretary of the treasury or chief priest. One does get an echo of the social hierarchy."

The stones, called sealstones, usually were pierced and strung on necklaces or worn as rings, Younger said. Peasants also used the sealstones as a tool to stop bleeding.

"What I'm doing basically is making an assumption that these rings were made by artisans whose work was recognizable, like one can look at a Jackson Pollock work today," he said. "There are 4,000 (of them) and I'm trying to assign them to 50 hands."

Younger said the rings dealt mostly with religion, which appears to have revolved around a goddess who communicated directly with her faithful.

"We have several scenes where the goddess floats down to make an intercession," he said.

The religion also featured such monsters as a man with wings and a goat's head and a man with a bull's head.

The language used by the Mycenaeans was an early form of the Greek spoken more than 1,000 years later by Plato, Socrates and other members of Greece's Golden age. Linguistically, it is as far removed from Golden Age Greek as Chaucer's English is to ours, Young said.

Unlike the later Greeks, the Mycenaeans and Minoans didn't leave any books or plays.

"This means we're limited to strict fact; they built their buildings this way and brought in their heads of cattle like this," Younger said. Because there are no books or plays, "you have to have your own vision" when studying them.

"One of the things with literature is it lets you look at their aspirations and dreams and see if they reached them," he explained.

Younger will present his theories at a symposium on Minoan-Mycenaean sealstones Sept. 26-30 in Marburg, Germany. He predicted his claim that the sealstones can be categorized will produce reactions that will "range from incredulity to downright scoffing."

UFO Claims Not Just 'Tall Tales'

TORONTO (UPI) — Psychologists who hypnotized persons claiming to have been kidnapped by space ships say they believe the victims were telling the truth. They're just not sure the stories were "real."

The psychologists, in reports to the American Psychological Association's annual convention, also said the popular notion that only "kooks" see UFOs was wrong.

Dr. W.C. McCall of Anaheim, Calif., said he used hypnosis to make 35 people relive their alleged abductions by space beings and the emotions many of them showed "seems to lend credence to the story they are telling."

But McCall and Alvin Lawson of California State University at Long Beach both cautioned there is a fine line between memories of a real event and fantasies so real the person believes them even under hypnosis.

"The greatest danger in using hypnosis for UFO investigations ... may be that witnesses subtly merge fantasy and reality in Close Encounter reports — without witness or hypnotist being aware of what is happening," Lawson said.

But Lawson stressed, "If any part of UFO abductees' narratives can be considered true, they will have to be taken seriously by traditional science and scientists in the future."

Dr. Leo Sprinkle of the University of Wyoming had another theory on how the stories of people who claim to have been kidnapped by alien beings can be "real" yet false.

Sprinkle said he has tested some 150 people of all ages and walks of life who claimed to have seen UFOs, and about 25 of them claimed to have been abducted or studied by alien beings during their experience.

"I have concluded, tentatively, that there is little evidence to support the 'psychosis hypothesis' that only kooks see flying saucers," said Sprinkle.

"My personal and professional bias is to accept, tentatively, the claims of UFO abductions as 'real,'" Sprinkle reported to the convention.

"However, I do not know if these 'abductees' have experienced physical abduction or whether they have experienced 'out of body' events."

Americans Tolerant Of Mixed Marriages

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Americans are more tolerant of interracial marriages than they were 10 years ago, a recent Gallup poll shows.

The poll reveals that 36 percent of those surveyed approve of interracial marriages and 54 percent object. In 1968, when the question was first asked, 20 percent approved and 72 percent disapproved.

Other results, based on questions first asked in 1963, show white Americans are more tolerant of blacks, but blacks have not noticed much change in attitude.

The two-part survey released this week also showed that prejudice toward a black presidential candidate has declined.

The Gallup organization last month questioned 1,555 adults in more than 300 communities nationwide. Of those polled, 1,336 were white.

The results showed 77 percent of all respondents would vote for a black as president, compared to only 47 percent in 1963.

Only 16 percent of the whites questioned said they would move or might move if blacks moved next door. In 1963, 45 percent of those surveyed showed a desire to relocate.

Thirty-eight percent of the northern white parents questioned said they would object to sending their children to schools if more than half the students were black. In 1963, 53 percent said they would object. For southern white parents, the percentage declined from 86 to 49 percent.

While 71 percent of the whites said blacks were treated as equals, only 34 percent of the blacks agreed.

The poll's findings show 13 percent of the whites did not think blacks were treated well in their communities and 45 percent of the blacks agreed.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Older Children Can Help Working Moms

By SHARI LEWIS

It's frustrating to have something to offer and not know where to offer it! Lots of kids write to tell me how much they want to help, and how often people turn them away — saying they should come back when they're older.

Well, I know one group of people who won't turn away your offers of time and friendship.

The working mothers in your community would love to know of an 11-or 12-year-old available to be called on when things get hectic.

The toughest time for a working mother is from 3 to 5:30 p.m., when she's still at work and her youngsters are out of school. The minute the plans she's made for her little one fall through — say, the baby sitter gets sick — the mother feels the crunch.

Often, mothers who would not hire anyone under 15 or 16 to baby-sit on a regular basis will leave their youngsters with an 11 -or 12-year-old for a short period of time. And as the mother's confidence in you grows, she may change her mind and hire you for longer baby-sitting chores.

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: What is it that money cannot buy?

ANSWER: Poverty.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: A long time ago, a popular game was called "Handies." You did funny things with your hands and said, "what's this?" For example, look at this picture and tell me, "What's this?" (See Illustration.) (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

(Do you have something you like to do to give a helping hand to others — people or animals, friends or strangers, youngsters or senior citizens? Share your "helping hand" idea with me, and I'll send a free copy of my new book, "The Kids-Only Club Book," as a prize for the helping hand idea submitted that we print. Just write to KIDS-ONLY CLUB, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.)

Griffin Controversy, Wyoming Trip Trouble President Carter

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two recent events illustrate the "damned-if-you-do, damned-if-you-don't" nature of the presidency in the 1970s.

One was the way President Carter handled the crisis at the General Services Administration. The other was the way he handled his own vacation.

In the GSA flap, Joel Solomon, Carter's appointee to head the huge federal housekeeping and purchasing agency, got crosswise with his deputy, a veteran federal official named Robert Griffin.

Solomon, with Carter's support, tried to get Griffin to quit. When Griffin stood fast, he was fired. But there was more to the story: Griffin had a powerful political friend, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

Apparently Carter's congressional contact man, Frank Moore, did not give O'Neill what the speaker considered adequate warning of Griffin's imminent sacking. The O'Neill stack blew through the Capitol dome.

So Carter tried to make it up to O'Neill. He gave Griffin a job in the White House.

Incident two was Carter's vacation trip to Idaho. The president decided to take his family into the wilderness for a couple of days of white water rafting. The idea was to proceed directly to the river for the excursion with none of the big deal ceremonies that usually accompany presidential visits outside Washington.

The Carters were greeted in Idaho with criticism of his plan to partake of the state's scenic and recreational wonders without mixing with its people. So when Air Force One touched down in Boise, Carter spent what was described as an unusual amount of time shaking hands at the airport and rode to town with the governor.

When Griffin was fired, it was said Carter had once again blown the elementary political requirements by failing to at least keep O'Neill informed, whether or not there was any way to keep him happy. That was damned-if-you-do.

When he hired Griffin for the White House, the uproar became partisan as the Republicans cried (with outrage that barely masked their glee) that Carter had been panicked into an overt political payoff by O'Neill's reaction. That was damned-if-you-don't.

In the Idaho situation, by trying to keep his trip relatively private, Carter opened himself to the charge of callous disregard for people. But had he combined the trip with a lot of public appearances, he would have been vulnerable to the familiar accusation that he was trying to make political capital under the fictional cover of a vacation.

By now, this whipsaw should be familiar to the president. But to the rest of us, it might suggest that there might be a better way to look at the presidency.

Three Political Candidates Forsake Writing In Search For Votes

By JURATE KAZICKAS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressman Leo Ryan is a politician who likes to write. Dwight Jensen is a writer who hopes to become a U.S. Senator. Rep. William Cohen is a published poet.

With elections in November, all three men have put campaigning before creative writing and are selling themselves more intensely than their books these days. But sometimes the politician and the penman are inseparable.

"Occasionally while I'm campaigning, someone will ask me to autograph my book," said Jensen, an Idaho Democrat in his first political foray. His first novel was published in July.

Whether a novel is a campaign asset is still a question.

"If people make the connection that the values I portray in my book coincide with mine as a candidate, then maybe the book could work to my advantage," said Jensen. His novel, "There Will Be a Road," set in Idaho during the Depression, is about the friendship of two young men in the wilderness.

Cohen, a Republican from Maine, thinks his book of poems, "Of Sons and Seasons," may have added another aspect to the public's perception of him. "But I don't think it has added or subtracted to the political aspect."

Now campaigning extensively for a Senate seat, Cohen said he might drop by some book stores to sign some copies of his poetry collection. But he doubts his free-style verses on love and solitude will swing any votes for him in the polling booths.

California Democrat Ryan's novel about international terrorism isn't in the book stores yet. He's still looking for someone to publish it.

"It's a hell of a story," said Ryan, who got the idea for his book from information he picked up as a member of the House International Relations Committee. "No one has seen anything like it except in scholarly journals, but it could really happen."

Ryan got the writing bug a few years ago when he kept a diary of his investigative stay in a prison and transformed it into a play. Neatly typed and leather-bound, the play lies unpublished.

The still undiscovered novelist has already started another novel.

Jensen is a newspaper columnist and TV anchorman who decided to try for the U.S. Senate a few months before his novel was published.

Nicaraguan Planes Bomb Rebel Force

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Air force planes bombed Nicaragua's third largest city and civilians battled President Anastasio Somoza's soldiers in other towns, as a general strike to drive the Somoza dynasty from power gained important new support.

Two planes bombed Matagalpa, 100 miles north of Managua, for two hours Tuesday, killing at least four persons and wounding many others, a Red Cross official there said. The military garrison in the city of 40,000 had been under siege for three days, with the civilian population in virtual control of the streets.

The Red Cross source said it was impossible to determine the exact number of casualties because many victims were taken home by friends and relatives who feared the national guard, Nicaragua's 7,500-man army, would raid the hospitals.

He said 80 troops had been rushed in as reinforcements, the town had been blacked out by a power failure, the Red Cross appealed to Managua for desperately needed blood and plasma, and the people appealed to the archbishop of Managua, Miguel Obando Y Bravo, to intercede with the government for them. The archbishop was the chief mediator between the government and the leftist guerrillas who seized the National Palace last week.

In Managua, a bomb killed five national guardsmen patrolling in a jeep, a doctor in the military hospital reported. Frequent street battles were reported in Leon, a city of 50,000, and a Red Cross source there said the general strike had paralyzed business.

Esteli, 90 miles north of Managua, was tense, a Red Cross official there said, but the national guard was reported occupying the heart of the city and keeping it under control.

Meanwhile, the country's most powerful business organization, the Nicaraguan Development Institute, declared its support for the anti-Somoza strike that began last Friday and urged its 700 members to join in the "political-labor" protest.

"The government is extremely weak when compared to the morality of the Nicaraguan people and that fact along with the honor of the people will finally bring an end to this long travesty of liberty in Nicaragua," said Manual Jose Torres Barrios, the president of the the institute, which supported another anti-Somoza strike in January that last two weeks.

An official of the Managua Chamber of Commerce said 70 percent of the businesses in the capital were closed Tuesday, the fifth day of the strike, and the institute's support was expected to shutter more of them. The strike was reported even more effective in other cities and towns.

Somoza defied his foes, telling reporters his resignation would invite "chaos and ararchy" and would "betray the aspirations of Nicaraguans who want to live in a free society."

"The issue in Nicaragua today is the survival of democratic government," he declared. "Nicaragua is far from perfect, but it is moving toward a democratic government. I intend to fulfill my constitutional duties and remain as president until my term expires in 1981."

The president claimed nearly all the national guard supports him, despite the announcement Monday of a plot within the army to oust him. He said eight to 10 officers and 25 enlisted men had assumed he was going to resign and "had begun to prepare for that and along the road decided to take over power themselves."

Other sources said more than 100 members of the guard had been arrested.

Airliner Hijacked; Nine Seek Asylum

BERLIN (AP) — A lone gunman hijacked a Polish airliner with about 60 persons aboard today and forced it to Tempelhof Airport, a U.S. air base in West Berlin, an Air Force spokesman said. Nine persons, including the hijacker, asked for asylum in the West, official sources said.

Most of the passengers on the flight were East Germans, the Air Force spokesman said.

"The hijacker surrendered peacefully as soon as this thing landed," said information officer Lt. Col. Gerald R. Roys, gesturing toward the Tu-134 twin-engine jet of the Polish airline LOT.

The hijacker, who was not further described, had put a pistol in the face of the pilot and told him to land in West Berlin instead of East Berlin as scheduled on the flight from Warsaw and Gdansk, Poland, Roys said.

The first person off the plane, a man carrying a brown bag, was escorted peacefully away, witnesses said. The official sources said eight other persons asked for asylum after the plane landed.

The blue-and-white plane, surrounded by Air Force guards, was parked on the apron of the airport on the other side of the terminal from where President Carter gave a speech last July.

The plane was further delayed from returning to Poland because of technicalities stemming from the special occupied status of Berlin.

Polish officials refused to talk with West Berlin police and demanded to see Allied officers. Berlin is still occupied by troops of the victorious World War II allies — Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

U.S. Brig. Gen. Calvert Benedict then arrived to get statements from the crew. The persons seeking asylum were questioned by West Berlin police, Roys said.

Air controllers at Tempelhof said the plane circled the air field three times before landing at 10:04 a.m. (5:04 EDT). That was nine minutes after it was scheduled to land in East Berlin.

While they waited, the 51 passengers wanting to continue on to East Berlin were fed, under heavy guard, in a German employee canteen in the terminal.

Enrollment Lags At City Schools

That has prompted the school district to increase the number of buses on certain desegregation runs. For instance, the district today added another bus to the Wester-to-Posey elementary route. Wester had been scheduled to send 72 children to Posey, but the actually number is around 85.

Another bus was added to the Rush-to-Mahon elementary run. Instead of the original projection of 78, Rush is sending about 90 students to Mahon.

The school district today also increased shuttle service between the Dunbar and Struggs campuses of the Dunbar-Struggs High School. Another bus also was added to the route that brings westside students (mostly Coronado and Monterey) to the Dunbar-Struggs magnet program.

"The morning bus runs today were great," Miller said. "We have a number of minor problems to work out, but nothing of major consequence."

He said buses generally were on time, but some were running 10 minutes late.

Bill Parker, the district's pupil personnel director, said he has received "numerous requests" for student transfers. "A number of parents say that if one of their children is to be reassigned (to a sister school), then all of their children should be reassigned," Parker said.

"They want to keep brothers and sisters together."

Such requests are approved automatically, he said.

Administrators reasoned that low attendance may have be caused by families still being away on vacation or in migrant farm work, and by parents delaying enrolling their children until they see how the integration plan works.

Despite low enrollment on the first day, racial balance was substantially in line with school district projections. Examples:

—The Iles Elementary magnet program, designed to draw students voluntarily from throughout the city, had 255 pupils, including 147 whites. This far exceeded the Iles goal of 143 students with 54 whites.

—Dunbar-Struggs High, also a magnet school, recorded a "fulltime student" enrollment of 301 whites (43 percent), 213 blacks (30 percent), and 187 Mexican-Americans (27 percent). While the total student body was far below the projected 863, the percentage of whites was close to the school's 46 percent goal. Besides fulltime students, about 50 pupils attended Dunbar-Struggs for one or two advanced courses.

—Previously minority Martin Elementary, which is receiving students from four predominantly white schools for integration purposes, had 308 youngsters, 84 percent of them white, in grades one through six. The district had projected 371 pupils, 76 percent of them white.

—Previously minority Posey Elementary, also receiving westside students by mandatory reassignments, had 425 pupils, 82 percent of them white, in grades one through six. The district had projected 488 students, with 71 percent white enrollment.

Bell Refused Rate Boost

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Public Utility Commission refused 2-1 today to reconsider its decision granting Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. a $124.5 million rate increase.

Bell officials, who had sought to increase rates by $214.3 million, had asked the commission to reconsider its order.

Commissioner Garrett Morris, who proposed Bell be allowed a $42.3 million rate increase rather than the $124 million, voted in favor of reopening the rate case.

The higher rates will not affect charges for residential or commericial service, long distance calls or pay telephone charges.

There will be increases, however, in charges for installation and repairs.

The PUC order also requires Bell to institute on at trial basis a measured residential service offering reduced rates to telephone subscribers who make a limited number of calls.

The new service would reduce bills by 30 to 40 percent for persons who make 25 or fewer calls per month.

Food Agency Drops Iron Requirements

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has dropped plans to double the amount of iron required to be added to flour and bread products.

The plan was intended to overcome any dietary iron shortage in Americans, but FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy withdrew the proposal Tuesday, saying the increase in iron has not been proved to be needed, safe or effective.

Foe Of ERA Rapped At Labor Meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor is angry.

Angry enough that its leaders mounted a stage Tuesday and called its enemies names: Equal Rights Amendment foe Phyllis Schlafly a "rich bitch:" would-be tax-cutter Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., "a double-plated, triple-coated, four-faced, five-plied phony," and some advocates of Proposition 13 "racists."

The forum was an AFL-CIO conference, continuing today, on the nature and effects of the attack from the far right on the labor movement and the social causes it espouses.

The sobriquets for Mrs. Schlafly and some of the Proposition 13 advocates came from machinists union president William Winpisinger and the digital denigration of Kemp came from Al Barkan, head of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education.

Davis' Attorney Grills FBI Man

FORT WORTH (UPI) — An FBI agent who participated in the arrest of T. Cullen Davis on charges of soliciting the death of a judge today testified the state's star witness was in control of the tape recorder used to record an incriminating conversation with Davis.

Davis' defense attorneys have maintained throughout the millionaire's bond hearing that David McCrory, the 40-year-old friend-turned-informant, could have used the tape recorder selectively rather than recording all of an Aug. 20 meeting between the two men.

At the conclusion of the conversaton, Davis, 44, was arrested and charged with soliciting a "hit man" to murder divorce court Judge Joe Eidson, who was presiding over Davis' stormy divorce case.

"He (McCrory) had the capability of shutting it (the tape recorder) off," FBI agent Ronald K. Jannings said.

Could it be done at any time, defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes asked.

"Yes, sir," Jannings answered.

The tape recorder was attached to McCrory's back before leaving for the Davis encounter, and the on-off switch was taped to the inside waistband of McCrory's trousers.

McCrory, however, testified earlier in the bond hearing that he did not touch the switch again after activating the recorder. He said had he done so, Davis would have suspected he was being recorded.

Today was the sixth — and possibly last day of the bond hearing. District Judge Arthur Tipps has promised a speedy decision on a defense request that Davis be permitted to post bond until he can be tried.

Tuesday, the FBI agent said McCrory was "quite scared" shortly before an earlier meeting with Davis Aug. 18, in which McCrory was also equipped with a hidden tape recorder.

"I was watching him (McCrory), his reactions, how he felt. He was quite scared," Jannings testified.

Haynes, who was forced to call Jannings as a defense witness because prosecutors did not seek his testimony, suggested McCrory was breaking the law by possessing the gun and might have pending "federal involvement" as a result of failing to file income tax returns for four consecutive years.

But Jannings said he did not ask McCrory about the weapon, or try to prevent him from carrying it, and testified no consideration was given to making an offer of immunity to McCrory on any possible federal violation in exchange for his testimony against Davis.

Jannings testified federal jurisdiction in the investigation was established on the basis of McCrory's claim Davis "wanted his brother killed and kidnapped."

He also testified the FBI moved against Davis solely on information from McCrory, a self-described friend and employee of Davis. McCrory earlier testified — then disavowed — he stole $5,000 from the millionaire.

Davis was arrested Aug. 20 on charges he gave McCrory $25,000 to relay to a hired killer in payment for the shotgun slaying of Joe H. Eidson, presiding judge in Davis' bitterly contested divorce. Eidson, who was not harmed, cooperated in the case by posing for a photograph and supplying identification to be used to persuade Davis the judge was dead.

Jannings testified he had never heard of McCrory before their Aug. 17 meeting, after which Jannings said the FBI and federal attorneys began arranging to monitor and record meetings set up between McCrory and Davis Aug. 18 and 20.

Haynes questioned Jannings about how federal involvement was justified and the agent responded:

"Mr. McCrory advised us Mr. Davis wanted his brother killed and kidnapped."

McCrory had earlier identified Davis' younger brother, Bill, who is currently residing in Connecticut, as one of 15 persons Davis wanted killed.

FEC Loses Battle For Group's List

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission cannot force the National Right to Work Committee to disclose names of its members or contributors, U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker has ruled. The committee contended disclosure would violate its contributors' freedom of association.

The FEC has accused the organization of taking political contributions from non-members, a violation of federal law.

Christians Slain By Syrians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian peacekeeping forces killed 54 Christians in their crackdown in northern and eastern Lebanon and left most of the bodies to rot, Christian spokesmen said today.

A spokesman for the Phalange, the biggest Christian party, said the bodies of 30 young men were decomposing in a valley of pines near the village of Kour, 35 miles north of Beirut.

Kour was the main target of Syrian operations begun Friday to disarm Christian militias outside Beirut. The village, on a hill commanding a road network in the Batroun region, was overrun by helicopter-borne Syrian troops backed by tanks.

The spokesman said 18 Christian bodies were recovered from Kour by a Red Cross team, "but the rescue team was not able to go down the valley to get the 30 other bodies."

After firming up their hold on Batroun, the Syrians turned to the neighboring province of Bcharre in a similar three-day operation of house-to-house searches for arms and Christians.

Six bodies of young men from Bcharre were reported found in woods near the city Tuesday. Bcharre's two representatives in parliament rushed to the presidantial palace in Beirut to charge the Syrians with "intolerable massacres."

President Elias Sarkis sent Col. Sami Khatib, the figurehead Lebanese commander of the peacekeeping forces, to Syria. An announcement afterward said a number of Syrian officers and soldiers were to be questioned about "transgressions inconsistent with standing orders."

In Israel, meanwhile, Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman met with U.S. Charge d'Affaires Sam Hart and expressed Israeli concern that Washington is too passive in restraining Syrian attacks on Lebanese Christians, Israeli radio said.

The radio, quoting "informed sources," said Israel feels "American passivity in Lebanon is encouraging the Syrians" to attack Christians.

Syrian troops intervened in the Lebanese civil war of 1975-1976 to prevent defeat of Christians by the Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies because Syrian President Hafez Assad did not want a radical government in Lebanon even if it was Moslem.

The civil war was fought because Moslems wanted a greater role in the political and economic life of Lebanon.

The Syrians stayed on in the guise of an Arab League peacekeeping force to enforce the cease-fire but did not disarm the Palestinians, and the Christians consequently refused to disarm their militias and put their territorial areas under Syrian control. Now the Syrians are trying to get control of the Christian areas outside Beirut before turning their attention to the capital, where they have been fighting Christian militiamen periodically all year.

Farsighted Nixon Plans For Future

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon says he wants to live into the 21st century, and he is planning a book on the long-term future of the free world and western civilization.

Nixon disclosed his hope for a long life in an interview with the San Jose Mercury-News.

"I want to live in the next century," he said. "I'll only be 87 years old. I have a fairly long lifetime on my mother's side. My grandmother lived to be 94. My great-grandmother lived to be 96.

Nixon said he hoped to give the free world a sense of the future with his next book.

"The Communists look forward for a century, but we Americans have no sense of history. We think in terms of about five years," Nixon said.

DEFLATED BLIMP — A Goodyear blimp, which was temporarily docked at an airport in Augusta, Ga., broke loose from its moorings during a thunderstorm Tuesday and was blown about 200 yards before it flipped over and deflated. One of the crew members was slightly injured. The craft was en route from the golf tournament at Pinehurst, N.C., to Birmingham, Ala., for display during the Alabama-Nebraska football game Saturday. Jurors Discuss Jackson's Fate

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A jury this afternoon was still deliberating the fate of Dennis Keith Jackson, convicted late Tuesday of aggravated rape as the result of a July 1 attack on a northwest Lubbock resident.

The 10-woman, two-man jury in Judge Robert C. Wright's 137th District Court had deliberated about two hours and 20 minutes before finding Jackson guilty of the attack.

A 19-year-old who, according to psychological testing has an IQ of 145, Jackson was convicted of raping a 28-year-old woman at knife-point inside her apartment.

The defense contended during the case that Jackson should be found not guilty by reason of insanity.

Court-appointed defense attorney George Thompson today asked for probation.

"I don't believe there is one of you who doesn't believe we have a young man who is infirm of mind," Thompson told jurors.

He called the jury Jackson's only "hope," only "future" and only "tomorrow."

"We just want a little light at the end of a long, dark uphill tunnel," Thompson said.

Prosecutor Jim Darnell asked the panel to assess a punishment of from 40 to 60 years in prison. "There is no reason we should force (the victim) or any other woman in Lubbock County to face that again," Darnell said.

The attractive brunette victim had taken the witness stand Tuesday to describe the mid-afternoon attack.

"The attacker kept saying not to scream, to do what I was told or he would cut my throat," the victim testified at one point.

The complainant, who is single, said she was sitting at a vanity table inside her two-bedroom apartment when she was assaulted.

The woman, who kept her composure throughout her stint on the witness stand, said she noticed a figure out of the corner of her eye and was then struck with enough force to knock her to the floor. She said she was thrown a distance of about six feet.

Darnell asked if she was terrified.

"Shocked would be more accurate," the victim replied.

The assailant had a pair of panty hose covering his face, the woman stated. She said she recognized the garment as one she had put in her patio area to dry.

The witness said the attacker held a knife with a four-inch blade to her neck. She said the man then raped her and placed her inside a closet before leaving.

The victim said that at one point during the attack she remembered looking at a door and "wishing I'd locked it..."

She also said that the rapist at one juncture pulled the pantyhose which had been hiding his face up to near eyelevel.

According to police testimony, Jackson was arrested at his 2002 5th St. apartment after the victim discovered a billfold with identification papers inside it on the floor of her apartment near a living room couch.

The woman's testimony indicated she recognized her assailant as the same person whose photograph was on a driver's license in the wallet.

Darnell asked if she saw the person in the courtroom. "It's the person...in the green-and-white plaid shirt," the complainant said, pointing out Jackson.

Gordon testified he had examined the defendant in December, 1977, and believed Jackson is suffering from a condition known as psycho-motor seizure.

The condition can reduce impulse controls, the neurologist said, and normally lasts from five to 10 minutes.

Darnell asked on cross-examination if a person suffering from such a seizure could perform the purposive action of rape as recounted by the complainant.

"It would be extremely difficult, as you point out, to say it would be responsible for his whole actions," Gordon responded.

The state had earlier elicited testimony from Dr. Preston Shaw, a psychiatrist, who said that in his opinion Jackson was an anti-social personality but did not suffer from the seizure.

Legally, a person is adjudged insane if it is found he has a mental disease or defect which renders him incapable of knowing right from wrong or from conforming his conduct to the law he is alleged to have violated.

Darnell argued the rapist's actions proved he knew what he was doing was wrong.

"Why did he cover up his face? Why did he have to have a knife? Why did he have to close the sliding glass door and draw the drapes? Because he knew it was wrong," Darnell argued.

Darnell recounted that the victim had been knocked to the floor and held with a knife to her throat, and asked jurors to imagine themselves in the same position.

Thompson said the evidence "screamed out" that his client was mentally ill.

"The state says on the one hand how carefully and cautiously planned this was, then on the other hand how he leaves a wallet and a large comb.

"If a person has control, do you think he's not going to realize his billfold is missing?"

Thompson said the victim was left with psychological bruises that would last for years, but stressed testimony in which the complainant had described her attacker as sick and in need of help.

"Remember? She said he was sick and needs help. That's what we're asking for," Thompson said.

San Antonio Woman Injured In Mishap

The woman, who remained unidentified this morning pending notification of relatives, was eastbound on U.S. 84 in her compact car when she apparently went to sleep, causing her vehicle to go off the roadway, Slaton Police Chief Jim Estes said.

The only passenger in the woman's car was her dog, which was uninjured in the mishap. The pet was being cared for by the police dispatcher, Estes said.

Local Store Robbed By Job Seeker

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The man who entered the 7-Eleven Store at Ninth Street and University Avenue about 4:30 a.m. today and asked for a job, probably won't get it — especially since he pulled a gun on the store clerk who was looking for an application form.

Store clerk Brad Joseph Flaten told police the man walked into the store and asked if "7-Eleven was hiring." The clerk said yes.

Flaten said he stooped down behind the store counter to get an application when the suspect pulled a small chrome-plated revolver and ordered the clerk to go into a back storage room.

Another man reportedly entered the store, and both suspects followed Flaten into the back room. The clerk said he was ordered to take off his store smock, which one of the suspects then put on.

The clerk said that after he told the robbers he could not open the store safe, he was locked in a bathroom while the two men tried to break open the cash registers.

Failing to open the registers, the two suspects went back to Flaten, according to reports, and ordered him to "hurry up and open the registers," which Flaten said he did.

John Abraham, district manager for 7-Eleven Stores, had not disclosed to police early today the amount of money taken in the holdup.

The clerk said that after the men took the money and his wallet containing $26, he was ordered out to the parking lot and was told to start walking south.

Flaten said he told the suspects no, "because you'll run over me." The clerk said he then ran west around the back of the store, and the two men took off west on University Avenue in their gold-over-brown, two-door vehicle.

Flaten described the suspects as two black men in their late teens or early 20s. Both were about medium height, one "well-dressed" in a short-sleeve shirt.

This morning's robbery was apparently the second hit by criminals on a 7-Eleven Store in the past several days.

Abraham told police $1,852.37 was missing from the safe at the 7-Eleven Store at 4th Street and Avenue W.

Police were told that Harold Ferguson, 7-Eleven area supervisor, picked up bank deposits from the safe at 10:30 a.m. Monday, and when he returned the same time Tuesday, $1,720 in cash and $132.37 in checks were missing.

Police had made no arrests in connection with either case as of late this morning.

Pair Arrested For Robbery

Police Tuesday arrested two suspects, an 11-year-old boy and his 17-year-old male companion, in connection with the Aug. 20 armed robbery at the Cactus Inn Motel, 401 N. University Ave.

The two young suspects were taken into custody about 6:30 p.m. in the 3100-block of Emory Street, said Sgt. A.R. Mason with the police department's juvenile division.

The arrests stem from the holdup of 74-year-old Tulia Brashears, motel manager. She said the two Mexican-Americans made off with about $25 after one of the suspects confronted her with a knife behind the check-in counter.

Mason said descriptions of the suspects and their vehicle by Mrs. Brashears and witnesses to the robbery led to Tuesday's arrests.

Two Men Discover Following Dream Hard, Fun

By DALE SINGER

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — For years Mike Johnson had a normal 9-to-5 career in the banking business while Jim Oakley worked his way up to a secure job in the printing field.

But the longtime friends spent much of their spare time fixing old cars, and they finally decided to turn avocation into vocation and become their own bosses.

Eighteen months later, J & M Auto Sales is doing well enough to pay the bills, the men said, but they have learned that changing careers and starting a business is not as simple as it may sound.

"If someone had written a manual saying this is how you go into the used car business on a shoestring and detailing all of the problems involved," Johnson said in an interview at the firm's drab office, "we probably would have stayed at our old jobs."

The men met as teen-agers — "Mike had an old Nash he thought could beat my Oldsmobile," Oakley recalled — and their enthusiasm for making old cars run like new was stronger than their satisfaction with their old jobs.

So they decided to find out the public's answer to the decades old question: Would you buy a used car from these men?

"I think we both knew we'd find out real quick whether it would work," Johnson said, "and we both figured, darn it, it's either do it while we're in our middle 30s or never do it at all."

They bought an established lot along a busy street with several car dealers, new and used. They scouted the classified ads and bought some old cars. They fixed them up. Then they waited for customers — and the customers came.

"It took off better than we ever thought it would," Johnson said.

But that was before the heavy snows of last winter, when no one showed up for days at a time.

Sales have since picked up, but neither man realized business would be so erratic.

"You sell them all at once," Johnson said, "then you run around trying to find more nice ones to fix up. Then you sit for a few days with nothing, then you sell them all at once again.

"That was half the excitement at the beginning. You'd sell something, then you'd figure, great, we've got the money now to go out and buy another car."

Both Oakley, 37, and Johnson, 36, appreciate the support they have received from their families, both moral and financial.

But Johnson said, "If you want to be truthful, it does help to have a wife who's working."

Their experience with cars has helped shape their business, too. They tend to buy the type of cars they like themselves — Firebirds, Camaros, Cougars — and they are learning what the public is willing to spend for the right car.

"We had a 1973 Nova sit out there for a month with a $400 price on it," Oakley said. "But a 1965 Plymouth, a good one, can sell in a day for $300. You take an old car, fix it up, put a little pizzazz on it and you have something everybody wants."

Right now Oakley and Johnson do as much of the fixing as they can by themfelves — "We still get pretty greasy occasionally," Johnson said — and they'd like to keep it that way. As the business grows, they'd like to sell better cars, not necessarily more cars.

They don't want to become executives overseeing a staff of salesmen and doing nothing but bookkeeping. After all, that's why they left their old jobs in the first place.

"So many people work at a job all their lives," Johnson said, "and they realize, 'My God, I wasn't happy for 30 years.' It's much better being broke and happy, I guess."

CLEANUP COSTLY

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Crowds visiting Elvis Presley's gravesite at Graceland mansion have been leaving behind 4½ tons of trash that costs the city $800 a week to clean up. Trash left daily by the visitors — nearly 10,000 on the first anniversary of the singer's death, Aug. 16 — is "as much as 100 residences generate in a day," Claude Pearson, city sanitation director, said.

A-J Writer Samples Local School Busing

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Avalanche-Journal reporter Jeff South has covered school desegregation in Lubbock from the first hint that the case was to be reopened, to the implementation of large-scale court-ordered busing on Tuesday. On the opening day of classes, he rode a bus crosstown with first-graders. The following are his impressions.)

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

This day, I sensed, would be a pleasant surprise. I knew it the moment I sat down for breakfast in the cafeteria of Stewart Elementary School.

On the menu were grape juice, cinnamon toast, milk and "individual servings" of Frosted Flakes. It was the last item that had me worried.

Childhood taught me that such "individual servings" were eaten right out of their tiny boxes. One had to rip open the "doors" of the packet — whose perforated lines were strictly for show — and pour in milk. Somehow, I always ended up munching more waxed-paper lining than flakes.

To my delight, I found at Stewart that modern technology had solved the problem. Cereal now comes packaged in its own plastic bowl. All I had to do was peel off the lid. No longer were "individual servings" reserved for professional safe-crackers.

Principal Jerry Hale and I were among the few eating breakfast at his school Tuesday. Participation will pick up, he assured me, when the cafeteria starts serving pancakes, eggs and the like. "Breakfasts are new this year," Hale said. He added an unintentional pun: "The kids will learn about the program by word-of-mouth."

Later I learned from Frank Mullican, Maedgen Elementary principal, that many parents thought breakfasts were available only to children on free lunches. I know for a fact that's not true. Hale said he'd pay for my breakfast Tuesday, but next time — like most of his students — I'd be on my own.

I picked Stewart for this story because, under the new court-ordered integration plan, Stewart is sending first-graders across town to Martin Elementary. If there is apprehension about the plan, I figured, I'd find it at Hale's school.

"At first we were kind of skeptical," admitted Tom Keener, whose daughter Mary Lynn is to be bused this semester because her last name falls in the top half of the alphabet.

"But we've visited Martin — it's a good school. My little girl is excited about going there. We're looking forward to a good school year," Keener said.

Most of the children gathering in the cafeteria were smiling, but a few cried — very loudly. Joyce Humphrey, whose son Lin was well prepared for his travels, explained why:

"First-graders are apprehensive. They always are about school. They think their parents are going to leave them. It's a terrible fear, that while they are at school, their family will pack up and move away," she said.

That is why Mrs. Humphrey took time to tell Lin that "we'll be waiting for him when the bus returns this afternoon."

Departure of the bus from Stewart to Martin was delayed while a few unregistered students enrolled, as Hale explained to parents and children the afternoon pickup procedures, and while some families took pictures of their kids.

Janie Andrade, who drives the bus and will serve as a school aide this year, took time to introduce herself. She was so friendly, a parent remarked, "I wish my kid had her as a teacher."

"Don't cry. It's going to be all right," Mrs. Andrade told a sobbing first-grader after roll call was taken. She was warm ("Wave goodbye, tell your parents you'll have a good day"), but stern ("No pushing, no fighting. When you get off the bus, line up in single file").

I found out just how stern when I was interviewing students during the bus ride. "Keep your legs out of the aisle, Mr. South. Don't lean out of your seat," Mrs. Andrade boomed over the bus' loudspeaker.

Two or three of the first-graders kept crying until the bus came to a stop sign one block from the Stewart campus. Then, no more tears.

I finally figured out why those few students stopped sobbing. To them, this stop sign was the point of no return, I presume. By now, they probably thought the moving men were well underway. Having abandoned hope of ever seeing their families again, the youngsters must have decided that tearful resistence was useless.

I myself had reason to regret getting on this bus. As we pulled away from the Stewart schoolhouse, I noticed I had left my car in a no-parking zone. What if the police tow it away? Will I ever be reunited with my auto?

First-grader Randy Hines consoled me with his observation that the trip to Martin is like a visit to a store.

"It's going to be fun," said Randy, recalling a trial run during the spring.

Insurance Panelist Blames Hawkins

AUSTIN (AP) — Stiffer laws would not necessarily have prevented an insurance scandal like the one involving Great Commonwealth Life, according to Deputy Insurance Commissioner Tom McFarling.

"We have the laws. The companies can be regulated," McFarling told the House General Investigating Committee Tuesday. "We have the staff... You've got to have another ingredient.

"We've got that ingredient, thank God. You must have a commissioner who is a man of integrity, and without casting any stones, we have such a commissioner," McFarling said.

He referred to E.J. Voorhis, who replaced Joe Hawkins last year after Hawkins was convicted of accepting an airplane ride from Great Commonwealth, fined $2,000 and given a probated prison term.

A spokesman for the House committee said the panel decided to do a follow-up investigation of the Great Commonwealth scandal to see if any new laws were needed. But McFarling said the problems were caused by a human failing rather than by a lack of laws.

He said Hawkins violated his oath of office by failing to take action against Great Commonwealth Life Insurance Co. for making an illegal loan that benefitted Louisiana promoter Roger LeBlanc.

McFarling said a $3 million loan to Centram Corp. violated several state laws. The committee previously heard testimony that Centram used the money in a Louisana real estate deal in which LeBlanc was a party.

At the time of the loan, made in the summer of 1975, LeBlanc controlled the holding company that owned Great Commonwealth and was chairman of Great Commonwealth's board of directors.

Since then, LeBlanc has resigned as board chairman, the Insurance Department has pronounced the company solvent and the firm has come under new ownership and management.

McFarling said the loan violated Texas laws against insider dealings and was not approved by Great Commonwealth's board of directors as required by state law.

McFarling said he and other members of the insurance department staff urged Hawkins both orally and in writing to place Great Commonwealth in conservatorship, which would put the insurance department in charge of its day-to-day business.

Committee Chairman DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, asked McFarling why nothing was done.

"The ultimate decision-maker decided not to take action," McFarling said.

"That was Mr. Hawkins?" Hale asked.

"Yes, sir," McFarling said.

"Did he have discretion in that matter? Why would we permit him to have discre-

Property Owners Eye Utilities, City Board

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Property Owners Association, fresh from battles to cut city and school budgets, plans next to tackle Pioneer Natural Gas, Lubbock Power and Light and the Board of City Development.

Interim board member Jim Black, outlining the group's goals, urged about 400 members Tuesday to attend a Sept. 13 city council meeting at which gas company officials will present testimony regarding a proposed industrial gas rate.

Group members should fill the council chamber to overflowing and express their opinions about the rate proposal, Black added.

Black, presenting the interim director's recommendations for future group action, listed the following goals:

— Investigation into how the Board of City Development spends its annual allocation from the city. "Is it really necessary? Is there an audit made on these monies?" Black asked. "We have a right to expect an accounting from them," he added to applause.

— Active questioning of whether Lubbock Power & Light is a "burden or money maker." At the association's request, Black said, the city staff is conducting a feasibility check into how LP&L would function under a budget separate from the city.

— Continued watchdogging of how to provide best quality public education for the least cost.

Black also appealed to apartment residents and to property owners in the city's northwest quadrant to become active in the property owners group, formed about two months ago primarily by southwest Lubbock taxpayers upset over property revaluations.

Property in the city's northwest sector will be the next area to be reassessed.

At Tuesday night's general meeting, first of its kind since the association wrung promises of significant tax rate reductions from the city council and school board earlier this month, the group also decided to meet in two weeks to elect a permanent board of directors. At that meeting, a nominating committee made up of the interim board will present a slate of candidates.

As another possible group project, interim board member Mike Stevens proposed that the group sponsor regular public forums with political candidates, both on the national and local levels.

Salaried officials, such as the city manager and school superintendent, also would be interviewed and their views published and widely circulated, Stevens added.

"By graduation, the average high school student will have viewed 18,000 hours of TV and attended only 11,000 hours of formal classroom instruction. They will have witnessed 13,000 TV killings and will have seen 350,000 commercials."

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS FOR TELEVISION GRADUATES

Good morning, Graduates.

Thanks for allowing me to preempt the test patterns for my message this morning. You know, a funny thing happened to me on the way to the studio. Come to think of it, if you've watched 22,836 sitcoms, you've probably heard it before.

Today, my friends, you're standing on the brink of prime time...a new life where you'll leave the house and get jobs and — actually they won't be as good paying jobs as $20,000 Pyramid or Hollywood Squares or Joker's Wild, but...

What I'm trying to say is that all you professional viewers aren't going to be renewed next season. You're going to have a taste of real life for a change like riding the subway, sitting at a table for meals...or to put it another way...a documentary without commercials. You're ready to see the world.

Oh, I know you've seen all the Olympic games, live, seen every inauguration, every country and its leader in the world, mass on Christmas Eve in Rome, climbed the Himalayas, but your travels this time will take you several feet away from your TV screen — and that's a little scary.

You've all known about sex since the age of two and regard it as about as exciting as flossing your teeth, but trust me, there's more to getting married than the ratings.

Your education up to now has been one of the most unique in the history of civilization. You know how to unclog drains, shake up your mouth, aid indigestion, clean your oven while you sleep, deal with irregularities and fight cavities.

But have you no curiosity as to what happened to Mr. Olsen? How long Charlie Tuna can handle rejection? And what Sandy Duncan replied when her husband said, "This is ridiculous, but I thought I saw you today standing in a wheat field with a box of crackers."

About violence...what can I tell you? You've seen it all...war, riots, assassinations, terrorists, rapists, murders and cities burning.

What you don't know...and what the real world can provide — is the means to do something about it and the love and compassion to feel. Stop observing the world and start living in it. Good luck!

The careful planning allows for shared audio equipment, individual television sets, a sewing machine and room for homework, visiting friends and even snacking and catching up on teen gossip.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I'm new in town. My feet were giving me a lot of trouble, so I looked in the yellow pages for a foot doctor. I knew some corns had to be removed, and one toe felt as if I had an ingrown toenail.

I selected a podiatrist who was located on the bus line and whose name I could pronounce. I phoned him and made an appointment.

When I got there, I showed him my feet and told him I didn't want him to DO anything until he gave me an estimate on how much he would charge to do what had to be done.

He got a disgusted look on his face and said, "Lady, I treat patients — I don't give estimates." Then he practically threw me out of his office.

Was I out of line to ask him for an estimate? If he charged more than I could afford to pay, I would have tried another doctor. Isn't that better than letting him do the work and then making him wait for his money?

OUT OF LINE, OR NOT?

Dear Out: When you booked the appointment, you should have asked how much the doctor charged for an office visit. No one should expect a free examination, which is what an "estimate" entails. All a professional person has to sell is his (or her) knowledge and time.

DEAR ABBY: I plan to announce my engagement soon, and my problem is this: My fiance's mother wants us to have a big wedding, and I don't want a big wedding.

My fiance's family is quite wealthy, and his mother says they will pay for everything. Abby, I don't want to accept this kind of a gift from my future in-laws. Besides, aren't the bride's parents supposed to put on the wedding? Mine can afford only a simple little family affair, which is all I really want.

My fiance's mother already has a "tentative guest list" of 300. She says she "owes" so many people, and she has friends who will not invite HER to their children's weddings if she doesn't invite THEM to hers. (She's already picked out the bridesmaids' dresses. How about that?)

Another thing. She told me she wanted me to have a baby right away because all her friends have grandchildren and she is way behind. Abby, I intend to teach school while my husband finishes law school, and we don't plan to have a baby "right away."

What should I do? My fiance is in the middle. He doesn't want to hurt his mother, but he doesn't want me to be unhappy either.

NEEDS ADVICE

Dear Needs: I think you are right in refusing to allow your future mother-in-law to use your wedding to repay her social obligations. Tell her as respectfully as you can that YOUR parents will put on the wedding. And make clear that you will have a family when YOU decide you want one.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were divorced several months ago. The divorce was on very friendly terms, and we see each other occasionally at social gatherings, etc. It is very awkward to introduce her as my "ex-wife."

Is there a less embarrassing way?

STUMPED

Dear Stumped: Yes. Introduce her by name only, and skip her marital history — unless somebody asks.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Here's a chance for you to test your skill at playing the hand. Cover up the East and West hands and see if you can guarantee South's club contract after a spade lead, providing neither defender is void in clubs.

Looking only at the North-South hands, we would much prefer to play game in no trump or slam in diamonds (which requires only a 4-3 spade split), but neither player did anything terribly wrong on the diagrammed auction. South felt obliged to rebid his five-card club suit at his third turn, and North could not be sure who had the queen of diamonds. The final contract is not the best, but you are saddled with the task of delivering 11 tricks.

Against your five-club contract, West leads his top spade. A survey of your resources reveals the fact that you have no losers outside the trump suit. Therefore, your only problem is how to hold your trump losers to two regardless of the distribution of the club suit.

If you win the first spade and cross to dummy to take a club finesse, you could go down. West might capture your queen with a singleton king, leaving East with the J-9-8, and you would still have to lose two more trump tricks.

You have available a safety play that guarantees your contract if the trumps are no worse than 4-1. At trick two, lay down the ace of clubs. If both defenders follow, you can virtually claim your contract.

You simply continue by leading a low trump toward the ten. As the cards lie, West will win the jack. You take any return and lead the ten of clubs, forcing out the king. Now your queen will draw the remaining trump and you are home.

What if West shows out on the second club? You are still safe. East captures the ten with the jack, but you win any return, enter dummy and lead a trump toward your queen. No matter what East does, he will be able to score no more than the king of clubs.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

The delicious taste of fresh peaches deserves to be savored without cooking...so, if you're keen on peaches, you won't want to waste them by baking a peach pie. (If you're a waistline-watcher, you certainly won't want to waste the calories, either!)

Today, we're sharing some favorite low-calorie peach sweets that retain that fresh fruit flavor:

FRESH PEACH-FILLED CHEESE CAKE

12-oz. container cottage cheese, low-fat
1/3 cup yogurt, low-fat, vanilla
3 tbsps. honey (or sugar substitute to equal 2 tbsps.)
3 egg yolks
4 egg whites
pinch of salt
Filling:
1 cup peach or apricot nectar
1 tbsp. lemon juice
4 sweet peaches, very ripe, pitted, peeled, sliced
optional: few drops honey to taste

Combine cheese, yogurt, sweetener and egg yolks in covered blender and blend smooth. Combine egg whites and salt in an electric mixing bowl and beat stiff. Pour the cheese mixture into egg whites and gently but thoroughly fold together. Spoon mixture into a 9-inch round cake pan or springform pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 45 minutes. Remove from oven and cool, then chill. Cake sinks in the middle to form a depression for fruit filling. Remove from pan before filling.

To prepare filling: Simmer nectar in an uncovered sauce pan until reduced by half. Remove from heat and allow to cool. Stir peach slices with lemon juice. Arrange peach slices in the center of the cheesecake, overlapping. Coat with fruit nectar. Return to refrigerator and chill thoroughly. Makes nine servings, about 110 calories each.

'CHEESECAKE' PEACH PARFAITS

1¼ cups cold skim milk
1 cup cottage cheese, low-fat
4-serving envelope instant vanilla pudding mix
4 ripe peaches, pitted, peeled and sliced

Combine milk and cottage cheese in covered blender; blend smooth. Add pudding mix; blend smooth. Chill in refrigerator until thickened.

Layer cheese-pudding mixture with sliced peaches in 8 stemmed parfait glasses. Chill until serving time. Makes eight servings, about 100 calories each.

PECHES AUX FRAMBOISES
(Peaches with raspberry sauce)

3 peaches, large, ripe, sweet, peeled, pitted and sliced
optional: 1 tbsp. brandy or rum
10-oz. pkg. raspberries, frozen, sweetened, partially thawed (or 2 cups raspberries, whole, unsweetened, if frozen — partly thawed)

Stir sliced peaches with brandy or rum, if desired, and divide among 6 stemmed glasses. Puree raspberries in blender; spoon on top of peaches. Serve immediately. Makes six servings, about 70 calories each with brandy and sweetened berries, or 45 calories each without sugar or brandy.

Don't blow your cool with heavy sweets! For homemade low-cal ice creams and frozen treats (no special equipment needed) send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents to SLIM GOURMET FROZEN DESSERTS, in care of this newspaper, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

ICED TEA AGE

Iced tea was invented in the United States at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904. In the sweltering Midwestern heat the tea concession of an Englishman named Richard Blechynden was being passed by; in desperation he added ice to the steaming brew. Refreshing served as is, iced tea can also be complemented with bruised mint leaves, lemon slices, sugar or honey. Avoid Chinese teas for iced tea because they are too weak to stand up to melting ice.

Eye Problems, Treatments Topic Of Program Today

By BEVERLY O'BRIANT
Family News Staff

According to the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, half of all blindness is preventable, yet many live in darkness because they have not been treated or sought help in time.

A program called "Eye Alert for Senior Citizens" will be presented at 3 p.m. today in the Skylight Inn at John Knox Village. The film, "Cataract," will be shown, followed by a question-and-answer period conducted by Dr. John Lamberts of the ophthalmology department of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine (TTUSM) and Earline Lewis, R.N., director of nursing service at John Knox Village.

This program is designed to inform all interested persons, especially older persons, of the danger signals for sight loss and what steps to take to seek help.

Cataract is the major cause of blindness, according to Dr. Lamberts, and the majority of cataracts are related to aging.

Other causes of cataracts are accidents, infection or inflammation of the inside of the eye and inherited diseases. Some cataracts develop quickly, but others do not causing problems for many years.

Even if a person has cataracts, Dr. Lamberts said, they may not have to be removed. When vision is impaired so that the person cannot do the things he wants to do, cataract surgery is in order, he said.

Misconceptions often prevent those afflicted with cataracts from seeking help, although, Dr. Lamberts noted, about 95 percent of all cataract surgery results in the recovery of vision.

Modern cataract surgery is frequently done with the use of a microscope, he said, and the hospital stay is only about 3-4 days. The patient is free to move around, read and watch television. Dr. Lamberts explained that cataract surgery is "one of the easiest eye operations performed."

Once a cataract has been removed, a procedure which involves making an incision in the eye and removing the opaque lens, the vision must be corrected by one of three methods.

The first and most conventional method is eyeglasses. This is the simplest technique, Dr. Lamberts said, relatively inexpensive and with no complications. Cataract glasses, however, are very thick and often cosmetically unappealing. Images are often distorted, he said, making adjustment difficult for some people.

For some persons contact lenses provide a solution. The magnification factor and visual distortion are eliminated with contacts, said Dr. Lamberts. There are few complications with contacts. The most obvious problems are an inability to adjust to the lenses or to handle them easily, and this is especially true with soft lenses. Those who wear contact lenses have to wear glasses in addition to contacts when reading or doing close work, Dr. Lamberts said.

The third and most advanced technique is the placement of intraocular lenses.

Considered the "trend of the future," these artificial lenses replace the lens in the eye. When the cataract is removed, it is replaced with the intraocular lens and held in place with minute suctures or clips.

With the intraocular lenses, vision is good and there is no distortion. The surgery is more complicated, Dr. Lamberts said, "and more surgery opens the door for more complications."

The advantages, however, so greatly outweigh the disadvantages that it is believed that more and more cataract surgery will involve the intraocular lens, Dr. Lamberts said. (TTUSM will start performing intraocular lens placement in the next few months.)

The program will try to inform the public of problems and clarify questions which may be included in the discussion of eyesight.

Again, the program begins at 3 p.m. today in the Skylight Inn at John Knox Village. There is no charge for admission.

SPAGHETTI WITH SALMON BALLS

1 (7¾ oz.) can salmon
¼ cup chopped onion
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tbsp. chopped parsley
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. dry mustard
3 tbsps. salad oil
8 oz. spaghetti, cooked
Lemon sauce
Chopped parsley
Grated Parmesan cheese

Flake salmon and combine with onion, bread crumbs, lemon juice, eggs, parsley and seasonings. Shape into small balls. Brown on all sides in hot oil. Toss lightly with hot cooked spaghetti and Lemon Sauce. To serve, sprinkle with chopped parsley and grated Parmesan cheese. Serves 4.

Lemon Sauce:

¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dry mustard
Dash paprika
2 cups milk
1 tsp. grated lemon peel
3 tbsps. lemon juice

Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Blend in flour and seasonings. Gradually add milk, stirring until thickened. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon peel and juice. Makes about 2 cups.

Fresh Pears Ideal For Snacks, Desserts, Salad Combinations

PORTLAND, Ore. (Special) — With their delicate sweet flavor and juiciness, fresh pears have long been a favorite for numerous salad combinations. In this delightful luncheon salad, chunks of pears combine with cooked diced chicken, green onions and crunchy celery, green pepper and water chestnuts.

For the easy-do dressing, creamy mayonnaise is blended with Italian salad dressing mix and curry powder. The flavorful Pear-Chicken Salad is served over weges of fresh pears arranged on crisp lettuce and garnished with frosted grapes.

While Bartlett pears are favorites for fresh eating in salads and out-of-hand, they are also ideal for baking into tempting desserts, pies and pastries. This is also the variety best suited for canning and turning into sparkling preserves.

Pears are one of the few fruits that benefit from being harvested when still green. If the fresh pears you buy are not fully ripe, just leave them at room temperature a few days until their skins turn a sunny golden yellow and the fruit yields to gentle pressure when held in the palm of your hand.

Storing the fresh pears in a paper or plastic bag will hasten the ripening. Ripe pears will keep several days in the refrigerator.

WESTERN PEAR-CHICKEN SALAD
4 fresh pears
3 cups cooked diced chicken
3 green onions, sliced
2/3 cup diced celery
1/3 cup diced green pepper
¼ cup sliced water chestnuts
¾ cup mayonnaise
1 pkg. Italian salad dressing mix
½ tsp. curry powder
Lettuce
Frosted grapes

Core and dice pears to make 1½ cups. Cut remaining pears into wedges and reserve. Toss diced pears, chicken, green onions, celery, green pepper and water chestnuts. Blend mayonnaise with salad dressing mix and curry powder. Add to pear and chicken mixture, mixing lightly but thoroughly. Arrange reserved pear wedges on 6 lettuce-lined plates. Top with pear and chicken salad and garnish with frost grapes. Makes 6 salads.

Frosted grapes: Brush small bunches of grapes with slightly beaten egg white. Sprinkle with granulated sugar. Let dry on a rack.

Another salad idea adds color to a fall buffet menu. Fruited Buffet Pears feature a colorful mixture of pineapple, dates, pecans and maraschino cherries in the centers of glistening pear halves. The dressing is a cooked variety using the syrup drained from the pineapple along with sour cream and citrus flavoring.

FRUITED BUFFET PEARS
4 fresh pears
Lemon juice
1 can (8¼-oz.) crushed pineapple
3 tbsps. chopped dates
2 tbsps. chopped pecans
10 maraschino cherries, diced
Creamy fruit dressing

Halve and core pears. Brush cut sides with lemon juice. Place, cut sides up, on salad platter. Drain pineapple, reserving syrup for dressing. Combine crushed pineapple, dates, pecans and maraschino cherries. Spoon pineapple mixture into centers of pear halves. Serve with creamy fruit dressing. Makes 8 salads.

CREAMY FRUIT DRESSING
1/3 cup pineapple syrup
2 tbsps. sugar
2 tsps. cornstarch
Dash salt
1 egg, slightly beaten
¾ tsp. grated orange peel
1 tbsp. lemon juice
½ cup dairy sour cream

Combine pineapple syrup, sugar, cornstarch and salt in saucepan. Cook until smooth and thickened. Add to beaten egg, then return to saucepan. Cook over low heat 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add orange peel and lemon juice. Cool. Stir in sour cream. Chill dressing before serving. Makes about 1¼ cups dressing.

Israeli Flower Production Boosts Nation's Exports

By DIANA LERNER

JERUSALEM — You can "say it" almost anywhere in the world these days with Israeli flowers.

Thanks to advanced growing techniques and more sophisticated methods of distribution, the sales of Israeli flora and foliage are mushrooming during the winter months, particularly in northern countries. For the current season flower exports — about 80 per cent of the total production here — are expected to earn $50 million for Israel.

According to Professor Avraham H. Halevy, an international expert on plant physiology and ornamental horticulture, cultivation of flowers shot up from 300 million grown in 1977 to 500 million expected this year.

Professor Halevy supervises the horticultural research station at the Agricultural faculty of Hebrew University, where students conduct on-going experimental projects which flower growers can immediately try out and evaulate.

The most important advances of the station he supervises, according to the professor, are the development of better methods for controlling flower quality and later, more effective routines for handling and packing flowers, both in Israel and abroad.

Together with Dr. Shimon Mayak, who is in charge of the post harvest handling studies, Professor Halevy recently announced three innovative machines now in operation which will insure a fresher product on delivery.

From one of the machines, cold air is pumped through hundreds of hoses into boxes of flowers to keep them fresh longer at low temperatures.

Another machine produces sheets of ice in plastic bags which are placed in the flower boxes to cool these down to 36 degrees F. The ice sheets are in lieu of crushed ice which often results in deterioration of boxes and their contents.

The third machine, used solely at the packing plant, pumps a chemical solution called "Floron" which improves the quality and prolongs the longevity of the flowers.

Additional experiments in handling, reports Professor Halevy, are currently underway in Holland and the West Coast of the United States. "Because we are dealing with a luxury product, there is no place for second grade produce," says Halevy, "Our product must be competitive."

The Hebrew University agricultural station is also experimenting with changing the flowering time of Israeli flora. In this way blossoms can be increased in winter to feed the European appetite for flowers during dormant growing months there. Right now the major thurst of Israeli export is between October and May, but efforts are being made for year-round shipments.

Israelis enjoy a fine reputation for rose growing. "Special hormones are injected to prevent malformation and assure a full-blown culture," explains Halevy, pointing to his patch of different colored roses in the station's greenhouse.

In her efforts to expand floral exports, Israel has joined hands with Holland to export flowers to the United States and Canada. This was announced recently by Reuven Eiland, borad chairman of Agrexco, Israel's agriculture export company.

"The idea," said Eiland, "is to provide a larger variety of flowers for North American households." Israel will export mainly "miniature carnations" and Holland its famous tulips.

Eiland sees the market in North America as "immense." He explains, "So far, Americans and Canadians only spend seven dollars per capita per year on flowers. Studies show that Americans usually buy flowers for ceremonial occasions or as gifts. Eiland hopes to tempt Americans into enjoying cut flowers everyday and spending more.

Reputedly the fastest growing agriculatural commodity in the country, Israeli roses, carnations, gladioli, irises, myrtle and other green leaves are a new boon to the Israeli economy. Jumbo jets carrying Israeli-grown flowers as well as vegetables, fruits and citrus arrive nightly during the winter months in snowy European capitals carrying first-rate produce from Israel's sunny desert kibbutzim and moshavim (communal settlements).

Among the best sellers, however, are various dried flowers found along the marshes of the Jordan Valley, which combine well with a bouquet. Also popular is the Star of Bethlehem, a bulb whose blooming time has been changed to make it available for Christmas trade abroad and wildflowers such as the Madonna Lily and tulips, known in the Bible as the "Rose of Sharon." Incidentally, the so-called Dutch tulip bulb, according to Professor Halevy, is not native to Holland, but to the Mediteranean area and grows wild in the Sharon Valley of Israel.

Ten years ago in this county, floral agriculture was practically unknown. Today, however, it is growing by leaps and bounds. Expectations here run high for still more profitable production in the future because flowers and plants require relatively small areas of land and less rainfall, as compared with other crops.

Researcher Claims Suicide Rate Increasing Among Black Males

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — The suicide rate for young black men is increasing rapidly because of changing lifestyles caused by blacks' rising expectations, a researcher says.

Robert Davis, who is spending two years at the University of Wisconsin as a research associate of the Institute for Research on Poverty, said two-thirds of all suicides in any given year are committed by white males.

But he said there is an increasing suicide rate among black men, ages 20-34, and for that group the suicide rate is higher than white males.

Some 47 percent of black suicides occur among blacks aged 20 to 34, who comprise 22 percent of the black population, he said.

"These are young men and women in the prime of their lives," Davis said.

Data also indicates the ratio of black male to black female suicide is about three to one for all age groups, with the ratio increasing to four to one in the 20 to 34 age bracket.

Davis says there are some striking contrasts between black and white suicides.

For instance, suicide among whites increases in direct relationship to advancing age, but suicide among blacks reaches its peak in the youthful years. Older blacks seldom take their own lives, he said.

Davis said he has developed an "external restraint theory" to explain the increase.

He said there is a strong correlation between high suicide rates and high education levels — that those states having a low percentage of blacks with fewer than nine years of schooling display high black suicide rates. In states having a high percentage of blacks with fewer than nine years of schooling, there is a lower suicide rate.

Davis argued that because there has been an increase in social opportunities for some blacks, young black males and females have experienced an uplifting of goals and expectations.

But he said this loosening of restraints has produced a false sense of freedom and security "which has tended to loosen or weaken the community and family ties previously serving as a buffer against suicide."

Congressional Rating Tops Carter's

NEW YORK (UPI) — The latest Harris survey indicates Americans give neither the president nor Congress high marks for performance, but for only the second time in 15 years, Congress has the edge.

In a national Harris-ABC poll of 1,200 adults, 63 percent said Congress was not getting the job jone, while 34 percent disagreed. But 69 percent gave President Carter a low grade, with only 30 percent dissenting.

Not since the House of Representatives conducted hearings in 1974 on the proposed impeachment of President Nixon has the legislative branch enjoyed an edge over the executive branch in the public's perception of its effectiveness, according to the Harris organization. In both instances the congressional nod was based on Americans' disenchantment with the President rather than strong approval of Congress.

Congress' present rating, however, does not dramatically change on the basis of whether it agrees with or challanges President Carter's recommendations.

A 63 to 30 percent majority disapproves Congress' ratification of the Panama Canal treaties, measures strongly urged by Prasident Carter.

On another Carter initiative, the package sale of U.S. fighter planes to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia, Congress receives a 57 to 30 percent negative rating for its passage of legislation authorizing the sale.

At the same time, Congress received a 67 to 23 negative rating for its failure to pass an energy bill, despite an energy situation demanding "the moral equivalent of war" according to President Carter.

The poll concluded that such a turnabout indicates congressmen up for re-election this fall may emphasize their personal records more than Congress' as a whole and focus more on local than national or foreign issues.

Nuclear Arsenal Strong Enough

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's arms control agency says America's nuclear arsenal will be more than adequate through the mid-1980s.

Right now, said an agency study released Tuesday, the United States could take a Soviet first strike and still destroy 58 percent of the potential targets within the Soviet Union.

By the mid-1980s, the study said, the Soviets' missile development campaign will make them the equal of U.S. strategic forces.

But even then, the study concluded, American forces could retaliate after a Soviet first strike and destroy 82 percent of potential Russian targets.

The study bases this increased ability to retaliate on the assumption that the United States would have both more numerous and more accurate warheads than it does now and also would have deployed the cruise missile, which resembles a small, unmanned airplane.

The study, which assumes both sides will soon be under the now-tentative SALT II strategic arms limitation treaty, does not allow for possible American development of the improved MX mobile missile, which the treaty would allow.

"The public is entitled to know that some of the alarmists' comments are incorrect," said Paul Warnke, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, which made the study.

Warnke, while not identifying the "alarmists," was clearly referring to groups such as the Committee on the Present Danger.

In frequent studies and reports, that group has maintained the administration's arms control policies, particularly the SALT II treaty, would leave the United States dangerously vulnerable to a Soviet first strike by the 1980s.

The study did confirm two major points made by arms control critics.

— It acknowledged that the Soviets, at the rate they are improving their missiles, could destroy 90 percent of land-based U.S. missiles by the mid-1980s.

— It said the Russians, gaining on the United States in numbers of warheads, accuracy and other measures, will achieve parity by the mid-1980s.

But Warnke said neither development was as dangerous as the critics claim.

He said even a successful pre-emptive Soviet strike against land-based missiles would still subject the Russians to destruction by American submarine-based and air-launched cruise missiles.

And he said Moscow already has "effective parity" with the United States, as its forces could absorb an American first strike and still devastate the United States in return.

California Income Tax Cut Bill Slated To Get Final Approval

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A final Assembly vote that would be little more than a formality is all that is needed for passage of a $1 billion state income tax cut.

The measure, expected to pass today, then would go to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. for his promised signature. Last week, the Assembly approved the major features of the same bill in a bi-partisan 73-0 vote.

The plan would give a one-time $75 state income tax cut for 1978 to each Californian filing a separate return along with a $150 tax cut to each couple filing a joint return.

The measure — sponsored by Brown and Democratic leaders of the Legislature — is a combination of earlier tax cut proposals authored by Republicans.

GOP leaders in both houses have complained that the Democrats are stealing their proposals in an election year political maneuver. But Republican lawmakers have nonetheless unanimously supported the bill by Democratic Assemblyman Lawrence Kapiloff of San Diego in a series of committee and floor votes over the past two weeks.

The Senate — graveyard of other tax cut proposals this year — voted 39-0 for the tax cut on Monday, thus ending the greatest potential threat to passage.

The combined effect of the proposed income tax cut and Proposition 13's property tax cuts would reduce the average homeowner's annual tax bills by $750 to $1,000.

Senior citizens — both renters and homeowners — would get up to $375 each in additional tax cuts under the income tax cut bill.

In addition to the one-time tax credits, the Kapiloff bill would adjust state income tax brackets annually with inflation so that most workers receiving only cost-of-living increases would not move to higher state tax brackets.

That so-called "indexing" has been a top priority of Republicans in recent years and was opposed vigorously by most Democratic leaders until this summer when the tax cut fever of Proposition 13's passage swept through the Legislature.

The income tax cut would be financed from the state's budget surplus, now estimated at up to $5 billion annually for the next few years. The rest of that surplus is tentatively earmarked for local governments, whose revenues were slashed by Proposition 13.

Brown, who predicted a statewide business recession and eventual state tax increases if Proposition 13 passed, now says California can afford more tax cuts because the state is receiving excess income, business and sales tax revenues "

Vietnam Seems To Be Willing To Release American Remains

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Vietnam has more remains of missing American servicemen, it may be willing to notify lower-level U.S. officials without awaiting another visit from a congressional delegation, a State Department official says.

Frank Sieverts, deputy assistant secretary of state who coordinates prisoner of war and missing-in-action affairs, said on Tuesday the Vietnamese seem "quite receptive" to the idea of making information about recovered American remains available to U.S. officials "at a working level."

This most likely site would be Bangkok, Thailand, where both the United States and Vietnam have embassies.

Once the information is provided, it is possible the Vietnamese would permit a U.S. Air Force plane to fly to Hanoi to pick up the bodies, Sieverts said, rather than waiting for the arrival of another official U.S. delegation.

The return of the remains of 15 U.S. servicemen -- 11 from Vietnam and four from Laos — with a visiting congressional group this week brought to 76 the number of Americans whose bodies have been recovered. But 2,467 others, most of them pilots, still are unaccounted for in the Vietnam War.

Navy Capt. Raymond Vohden, who handles MIA matters in the Defense Department's internal security affairs division, said that "if the Vietnamese devoted resources to one monumental effort — perhaps for a year or so — they could recover 95 percent of those that are recoverable."

The less formal arrangement of returning bodies was raised when the first official postwar U.S. delegation, the presidential commission headed by former United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, visited Hanoi in March 1977.

The matter was discussed again when Vietnamese representatives visited the U.S. Central Identification Laboratory in Honolulu last month to see how American technicians identify the remains.

An important part of such an informal arrangement, from the American view, would be to shift the MIA issue into a purely technical channel and away from the political arena, where it has been tied to such questions as U.S. diplomatic recognition of Vietnam.

"We are interested in having ever closer relations with the Vietnamese at the working level of this very concrete problem," Sieverts said. "Henceforth it is possible that turnovers will be effected in this low-key manner.

"The Vietnamese were quite receptive and seem to be ready to carry on through this channel," he added.

Sieverts acknowledged the contention of some families of MIAs that the Vietnamese might be collecting and holding in reserve the recovered remains of Americans to try to extract some political or diplomatic concessions from the United States.

"It's possible that they do hold on to them to some extent," he said, "but I'm not sure how important that is as an issue. Obviously the Vietnamese are going to try to take advantage of a visit by officials or something of that sort."

Bus Company Limits Speed

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the nation's largest transportation firms is limiting the highway speed of its vehicles, an action being both praised and condemned on safety grounds.

D. Wayne Strout, a vice president of Trailways, said the bus company is planning to install governors on its buses to limit their highway speed to 57 miles per hour.

In addition, the firm has petitioned the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to require similar governors on all commercial vehicles.

But the Teamsters Union, which represents drivers, claimed it was an unsafe idea.

"It is basically unsafe to restrict driver ability to pass a vehicle in an emergency situation," commented Teamster spokesman Bernie Hamilton.

But Strout cited "a whole file of letters" from state and local police departments praising the plan. And he added that the 57 mile-per-hour limit will allow a margin for passing vehicles traveling below the 55 mph limit.

Joan Claybrook, administrator of the highway traffic agency, has told Strout her agency is considering a requirement for governors on commercial vehicles.

The system, he said, uses an air switch in the transmission shift linkage and a special engine governor allowing the engine to operate at higher speeds only in lower gears.

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I received your diet for weight reduction and am very pleased with it. I think it is something I could live with for the rest of my life. However, there are some items that I would appreciate knowing about and I am including a list of these in the hopes that you might comment on them.

DEAR READER — Of the items you have on your lists, cottage cheese is an excellent food, particularly if you use the uncreamed cottage cheese, because it contains very little fat. It's a low-calorie food which contains a lot of good quality protein plus calcium.

String beans are fine and are a low-calorie food as long as you don't add fat in their preparation. Most of the fruits, if you don't go overboard, are fine for people and should be part of a normal balanced diet. As you will notice, orange juice is included on the diet and you could substitute an orange for a glass of orange juice.

You asked about eggs and they are acceptable in a small amount and, again, it depends on how you prepare them. The American Heart Association recommends that men not have more than three egg yolks a week from all sources because of the cholesterol content.

You might ask about some of the egg substitutes that are on the market that contain no cholesterol, but I'm sorry to say most of these that are commonly used today also contain a lot of fat, although it is unsaturated fat.

The diet is probably better if you limit the fat intake. As far as the jack and cheddar cheese are concerned, these are high in fat and frequently high in cholesterol. A little bit of these processed cheeses add a large number of calries to the diet so they should be used sparingly, if at all.

You can prepare gravy and cream sauces and cream soup with non-fat dry milk powder and proper seasonings so they contain a limited amount of calories. Unsweetened canned pineapple is a reasonable source for fruits and often goes well with uncreamed cottage cheese.

You also asked about butter and margarine. If you are losing enough weight or maintaining your weight at the level that you want, then you can use these in limited amounts.

But all fats, whether they come from margarine, butter, vegetable oil of all types, or from meats of all types contain lots of calories. Anyone who needs to limit his calories will need to limit his intake of fatty foods as well as the foods that contain lots of sweets or concentrated sugars.

In the last analysis, the test of whether a diet works for a person or not is whether it safely enables him to gradually lose excess fat or enables him to maintain his weight at the desired level.

In addition to meeting this requirement, the diet should be sufficiently well balanced to provide all the necessary vitamins and minerals. Unless a person learns these features, the fad diet efforts won't be very effective because most of these people lose weight and then regain it as soon as they return to their previous dietary habits.

Others readers who want the dietary plan that you spoke of can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Fish Federation Eyed

CHICAGO (AP) — Fishing organizations throughout the nation will be invited to Chicago soon in hopes of forming a federation of fishermen.

"We'll invite the leaders (of fishing groups) to come in and have a meeting and discussion and see how we might have an effective voice in Washington," said Tom Schedler, executive vice president of the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Association. "Whether and how it will take off remains to be seen."

Schedler said the proposed federation would provide a stronger lobby in Washington.

"We don't have a lobbyist in Washington but we have one here in Chicago who spends most of his time in Washington," Schedler said. "Several other fishing groups have lobbyists but it would be better to come in with one loud voice rather than 14 little ones."

Another backer of the proposed federation, Jim Chapralis of PanAngling Ltd travel service, says goals of the proposed group would include control of commercial fishermen, who have over-fished some areas; education of young fishermen; and fighting anti-fishing forces, including the Cousteau Society, which says sportfishing is "perverse."

Schedler said the proposed federation meeting might be held as early as next month at AFTMA's new building and museum in Arlington Heights.

Civic Center Bills Demos For Removing Stickers

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Demetrious Sazani says campaign stickers are fine for bumpers and lapels. On floors and walls, they're a headache.

Sazani, manager of Lansing's Civic Center, is billing the Michigan Democratic Party $500 to peel away political advertisements from places they shouldn't have been.

That sum represents extra labor and materials costs for cleaning up after Democrats who held their state convention during the weekend in Lansing.

Republicans, who met the same weekend in Detroit's Cobo Arena, apparently were less messy.

"It's par for the corse," Sazani said this week. "It shouldn't happen, but it happened.

"It isn't the Democrats, the people that run the convention. As a whole they ran a nice convention. It was well organized," he said.

"But some people get overzealous. They don't mean to do it really, but it's done. Just like children."

Two trash receptacles had to be repainted because the stickers pasted on them took away layers of paint when they were removed. Sazani said. Walls had to be retouched and workers had a devil of a time scraping up from the convention floor lapel stickers boosting the U.S. Senate campaign of Carl Lavin.

"That thing sticks and you can't get it off," Sazani said.

The extra charges were levied because Democrats signed a standard contract pledging not to affix banners and other items to the walls, Sazani said.

Despite the extra cleanup, he responded positively when asked if he would like to host the same convention next time.

"Oh yes," he said. "You can't blame the whole group for the individuals."

Study Claims Brain Able To Produce Pain-Killer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some people are able to produce their own pain-killers — natural narcotics — after being given a useless solution of sugar known as a placebo, medical researchers said this week.

That conclusion points toward dramatic new directions in the study and control of pain and may account for maladies and cures often dismissed as being "all in your mind."

Doctors at the University of California-San Francisco said their research shows that as many as one-third of all patients can combat pain by unconsciously ordering the brain to produce endorphin, a chemical similar to morphine.

Results of the study were to be outlined in Montreal during the Second World Congress on Pain.

Dr. Howard Fields said in a telephone interview that the experiment indicates that endorphins can explain a long-standing medical puzzle: why patients are frequently helped by taking a placebo.

A placebo is a sugar or saline solution that does absolutely nothing. Yet, Fields said, decades of research prove that about one-third of all patients respond to them.

The placebo effect traditionally has been written off as a purely psychological reaction. Fields said the new study proves otherwise.

"Something the patient has in his body makes the placebo work," he said. "The pain is real. And the fact that you get relief (from a placebo) depends on your expectation of getting relief. So to that extent, it may be psychological. But the pain suppression is real."

Fields said a better understanding of the endorphin-triggering mechanism might one day lead to drug-free treatment for people suffering from severe burns, progressive diseases or other maladies.

"But at this point, we don't know why it works in some people and not in others," Field said.

The trick would be to teach patients how to pull the endorphin trigger themselves.

"We think this is why people have such different tolerances to pain, why some people can take it a lot longer than others," Fields said.

Fields said he and his co-workers, Drs. Jon Levine and Newton Gordon, conducted the experiment with 50 dental patients who had teeth pulled a few hours earlier.

Endorphins are the best explanation for those results, he said. The self-produced pain-killers were identified just three years ago and little is known about how or why they are produced.

Psychologist Tries To Pick Up Ants' Talk

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dr. Burton Weiss wants to talk to more than a million ants in his laboratory, but so far he's at a loss for words.

If he cracks the communication barrier with the multitude of ants, Weiss wants to tell them to stop devouring crops in South and Central America and parts of the United States.

Weiss, an associate professor of psychology at Drexel University, has been using sensitive microphones to record high-pitched sounds the ants make. He hopes to communicate with the insects by playing back portions of their sounds and seeing how they respond.

The ants belong to a race called the Attines, and they make sounds by rubbing together a "rasp and file" on their abdomen, similar to the way crickets make noise. Some are audible by man, while others are above the human hearing threshold.

While not as well known as termites, army ants or the fearsome fire ants, Attine ants are more economically destructive.

"With termites, you're talking about a house or some wood, and at least army ants hit some place and then move on. Fire ants are simply defending themselves when they attack some person who destroys their mound," Weiss said.

Attine colonies can contain billions of members and strip acres of crops overnight.

While the ants take crops, they don't actually eat them. Instead, they cut up the plants, carry them underground and use them to grow a mushroom-like fungus they then consume.

Their undergound colonies are so complex that poison is ineffective, because the ants simply shut off tunnels and chambers that have been poisoned. And because the ants only eat their own "crops," poisoned food doesn't work.

"The thought of ants growing their own food is fascinating, but if you're a farmer in tropical America, it's also a frightening thought because when Attines live near your land, you grow only what they want you to grow."

Weiss has conducted the research on his own, without any government funding, but he has been warmly welcomed by Texas farmers when he traveled there for his research.

"Farmers told me that they were forced to watch their entire new crop disappear down the tube, into the ground," Weiss said.

HY GARDENER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: I've heard that if the dissension between the Soviets and U.S. continues, the 1980 Olympics, scheduled to take place in Moscow, may be switched elsewhere. Won't that leave NBC, which made a multi-million-dollar deal with Russia for television rights, holding the bag? — The Dodds, Maywood, N.J.

A: No. Anticipating the possibility of such a situation, NBC is insured by Lloyds of London for the full amount of its losses ... less the cost of the premiums — estimated at $2,000,000. While anti-Carter critics explore the idea of the U.S. boycotting the games as a protest to Russian treatment of dissidents, an NBC spokesman reveals, "If the U.S. doesn't send a team: NBC Sports will not be interested in the Olympics."

Q: More trouble brewing in the Mideast? I heard that as an aftermath of Vice President Mondale's visit to Jerusalem, that city's Mayor Teddy Kollek asked the foreign ministry hereafter to house visiting VIPs at the Hilton rather than the King David Hotel. Why? Is it too dangerous — M. Stevens, Milwaukee.

A: No. Just a matter of convenience. Mondale's presence at the King David created enormous traffic jams in the downtown area where the hotel is centrally located. The Hilton, located at the city's entrance, surrounded by arterial roads, is more accessible.

A: Not entirely. Sir Cecil, 74, partially paralyzed in his right arm and leg by a stroke, is shooting portraits again. But he's also taught himself to draw with his left hand.

Q: Dick Clark looks so young. Yet it seems like he's been in TV forever. When did he start? — P. Singer, Miami Beach.

A. In 1953: when he attended Syracuse University and became news anchorman at WKTV in nearby Utica. Clark made his network TV debut in 1957, as host of "American Bandstand" (which continues to be aired on the ABC-TV network). When he introduces his new "Live Wednesday" variety series in a few weeks he'll appeal to a typical Ed Sullivan audience. Something for everybody — young, old and in between. One of Dick Clark's "problems," now that he can look back on his career, was that he always looked like a handsome college freshman. Now he looks more like a handsome college senior.

Q: We keep seeing reruns of delightful old Marx Brothers movies and love them. Were the Marx Brothers ever awarded Oscars? — Mitch Smith: Trenton: N.J.

A: Yes. Belatedly, in 1973: the Marx Brothers were honored with a special Academy Award for past performances on the silver screen.

Q: Wouldn't it be a warm and lasting tribute to Totie Fields if saddened members of the profession and showbusiness unions sponsored a pemanent memorial in the form of a foundation and scholarships in the courageous comedienne's name? Also a movie? — T.P.M., Brooklyn.

A: We're certain such a project is already in the minds of Totie-lovers and will come to pass. As Lucille Ball said when se learned that her friend had died: "Totie was one of the bravest ladies I have ever, ever known." Lucy spoke the sentiments of all of us.

Send your quetions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," are of this newspaper, P.O. Box 11748, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Marilyn and Hy Gardner will answer as many questions as they can their column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

You and the Law

Presented by the State Bar of Texas

Q: An ice skating rink in our city refuses to allow my children to take private lessons in the rink during them months when the rink is sponsoring group lessons. Is this legal?

A: Any property owners is free to use his property for any purpose he wishes so long as there is not unreasonable infringement on the rights of others or some violation of the law. There is no provision in consumer laws requiring business to use their property for any purposes other than those they choose. And, the consumer is given no legal right to require a business to change its policies merely to make them conform to the desires of the consumer.

Q: Is it possible to have my child support payments reduced? Would I need an attorney for this procedure? Can you tell me the legal fee involved?

A: The court which granted your divorce and initially set the child support payments can revise the amount of the child support payments at the request of either parent. The procedure involves the filing of motions in court, and an attorney usually is required to prepare these motions and present them to the court. The amount of the fee would depend on whether your former wife wishes to contest your request and the amount of time involved in preparing and presenting information to the court to justify your request.

Q: My husband died in 1972, and I haven't had his will probated yet. Our only property is a house. Is it necessary for me to probate the will?

A: Probating your late husband's will would become important in your specific case to satisfy legal requirements concerning property rights only if you wish to sell your house. The law also provides an alternative and less expensive means of confirming transfer of property rights; this simplified form of probate can be used if no debts or taxes are owed by your late husband's estate and there are limited assets involved in the estate.

Q: If I am involved in an auto accident, can I drive my car to the curb to move out of the traffic?

A: Yes, state law allows you to move a vehicle involved in an accident if moving the vehicle will relieve traffic congestion and reduce the possibility of another accident. The law also requires you to remain at the scene of the accident, if there were no injuries, until a law enforcement officer arrives. If the accident resulted in injuries, the law allows the injured person to seek medical attention. Anyone involved in the accident and not injured has a duty to call for medical attention for the injured or to carry the injured to a hospital or other medical facility.

Send your questions to "You and the Law," State Bar of Texas, P.O. Box 12487, Austin, 78711. Answers may appear in columns in hypothetical terms; personal answers are not possible.

Study Shows Transplants Should Be Tried Twice

BOSTON (AP) — Many patients whose bodies reject a kidney transplant should be given a second opportunity because there still is a reasonable chance of success, researchers say.

The findings, which are contrary to the usual belief of doctors, should allow second and even third kidney transplant operations for many patients whose first try failed, researchers said.

The study shows it is possible to predict which patients have the best chance of undergoing a new operation after their bodies reject their first transplanted kidney. Some of them do better than first-time organ recipients.

The research, conducted at UCLA Medical School, was published in a recent edition of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Doctors have believed patients developed an immunity after an unsuccessful transplnt attempt that often prevented them from accepting a new kidney.

"Doctors have been very reluctant to do repeat transplants," said Dr. Gerhard Opelz, who directed the study. "They have been done, but not very enthusiastically. The feeling is that if somebody has already failed one, he must be a terrible candidate to work with."

However, Opelz said his research disproves the immunity idea.

"It turns out that overall, the retransplants are not doing much worse than primary transplants," he said.

Each year, about 3,000 Americans receive transplanted kidneys after their own organs fail. However, about 1,000 people lose these organs annually because their bodies' natural defenses reject them.

The researchers reviewed the cases of people who had received kidneys from cadavers. They found that 47 percent of the first-time recipients still had their new kidneys after one year, compared with 43 percent of the second-time transplants.

The success rate for people who received transplants from relatives was higher. In these cases, doctors remove one of a relative's two kidneys and place it in the patient. For both the first and second-time transplants, the success rate after one year was the same — 69 percent.

Washington In Midst Of Summer Doldrums

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Carter returns from his abbreviated vacation today, he will find most everybody else on theirs.

Washington is in the end-of-summer doldrums.

Carter lopped two days off his holiday at Jackson Hole, Wyo., to come back and do some personal lobbying for compromise legislation that would ultimately lift federal price regulations on newly discovered natural gas.

But the lobbies are empty. The House and Senate are in recess until after Labor Day, and only a handful of legislators is in town.

So Carter will have to do most of his persuading by telephone. He could do the calling from Wyoming as well as from Washington, but there is a certain symbolic value to the early return, particularly for a president seeking to show that he does have a firm hand on the controls.

Presidents not infrequently fly back to the White House from someplace to take personal command of an effort to deal with one issue or another. The gesture usually is as significant as the geography.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said even with the communications that accompany a president on the road, "it does not substitute for having the president there in the center of activities with his advisers and staff people right there."

Besides, Powell said, if Carter is going to be working day and night on energy and other congressional issues, he might as well do it at the White House.

Analysis

There is more perking than energy.

The House will vote early next month on Carter's civil service reorganization bill, and the president already has been lobbying for that one. He has written each of the nation's governors asking for help in getting the bill passed.

"Anything you can do to remind the representatives from your state of the importance of enacting this legislation could help the federal government to be more effective and productive," he wrote.

In addition, the House is to vote Sept. 7 on Carter's veto of a $37 billion defense authorization bill, which he rejected because it would have allocated $2 billion for a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier the administration does not want built.

All of that was on the congressional docket before Carter's vacation began, but the natural gas compromise had seemed fairly secure. It came undone in a dispute over administration tactics and policy after the White House made what seemed a concession on nuclear power development in an effort to gain a key vote on the natural gas measure.

As a result, a formidable Senate coalition is lined up against Carter on the natural gas measure.

"The president will be talking by telephone and perhaps meeting personally, if that need should arise, with members of Congress," Powell said.

The White House has a list of about 20 uncommitted senators to get special attention in the lobbying effort. It will take about 20 long distance phone calls to get them. Maybe more.

They may have to leave a message for Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, who said before he went home to Vermont that he would walk around the fields of his farm "and think about it and make up my mind how to vote."

If Carter needs to consult Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, he could dial Coolfont, W.Va. Byrd said he would be there Saturday, playing some bluegrass music on his fiddle.

The Marquis de Lafayette was commissioned a major general in the Continental Army on July 31, 1777.

Disabled Veteran To Run Marathon

SOUTH HOLLAND, Ill. (AP) — Wearing jogging shorts, a T-shirt emblazoned "Super Vet" and an artificial leg he designed himself, Jerry Benson is training for a 26-mile marathon run.

Benson, 28, a former Marine who lost his left leg in Vietnam, began a rigorous exercising program July 17 in preparation for the Mayor Daley Marathon Sept. 24 in Chicago.

Each day he swims 1½ hours, walks in water for 30 minutes "for resistance," rides a bicycle 20 miles and runs a five-mile course.

Benson said that for the race he will wrap his artificial foot in foam rubber and a tough outer covering. On his right foot he will have a sock, a tough covering and tape.

"I am in the marathon not just for myself, but for disabled and handicapped people," he said. "I could live with myself whether I finished or not. But I'd sure like to finish. Maybe then more veterans would get the same ideas I did — that much more is possible and open to them if they try."

Scientist Says Even Fake Shroud Miracle

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Even if the image of a man on the Turin shroud, believed by many to have wrapped the body of Christ after his crucifixion, should prove to be a forgery, the forgery itself would be a miracle, according to a scientist who will examine the artifact in October.

Jet Propulsion Laboratory scientist Donald Lynn said he does not believe science can duplicate the image as it is.

Lynn will be on a scientific team named to investigate the shroud, on display now in Turin, Italy, for the first time in 45 years, during a 24-hour period beginning at midnight, Oct. 9.

Lynn is supervisor of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory's image processing division and a veteran of the Viking Mars probe.

The linen shroud bears the negative image of a man who appeared to have been crucified, whipped, stabbed in the chest and crowned with thorns.

"If the shroud is a forgery it would be a greater miracle than if it is real," said Lynn, who used computer enhancement on photos of the shroud two years ago.

A 30-member scientific team has been granted permission by the Bishop of Turin to examine the shroud, which has been the property of the Dukes of Savoy since 1453.

Lynn, currently a member of the Voyager space probe mission, said he and Jean Lorre will spend two weeks in Turin working on their part of the investigation.

"There is nothing comparable to the image on the shroud," Lynn said in an interview. "I don't think we could duplicate it right now.

"If you ask if any person on the project could create that image right now, photographically or otherwise — well, we just don't know how to do it."

Lynn and Lorre are to take photographs of various parts of the shroud and subject them to computer enhancement along with color spectrum experiments to determine exact wave lengths of different portions of the image.

The experiments are among a half dozen to be performed within the 24-hour period.

"It has been in controlled ownership since about the 14th Century," he said. "As a photographic negative, it's perfect.

"There was no way to do that in that time. There's no way now. It also is anatomically correct and the knowledge of anatomy isn't that old.

"It's truly astounding."

Lynn said while he is a religious person, he is approaching the project scientifically.

"It's a religious problem, but it's also a scientific problem and must be approached that way. But it has many other implications," he said.

"Look at the impact of the King Tut exhibit. He was a kid who didn't do anything. There is nothing to compare with the religious impact of this.

"So, let's leave religion out and look at the historical impact. If there is a way of verifying that what we see on the shroud agrees with the Gospels, the Gospels would have much more historical meaning — not just tales handed down, not folklore, not just symbolism.

"It is of great significance. There is a problem and we don't know the answer to it."

NO Seeks 1980 GOP Convention

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Several large luxury hotels have been built since the Republican Party rejected the city's invitation to host the 1976 convention, and the mayor and a congressman believe the Cresent City has an excellent shot of winning the 1980 convention.

At a joint news conference Tuesday, Mayor Ernest Morial and Rep. David Treen, R-La., said they have opened negotiations with with Republican National Committee for the July or August convention.

"I think we have a very substantial chance in getting the convention here," Treen said. "The Republican Party is looking to the deep South for its gowth and if they really look seriously at the deep South, New Orleans is the ideal place."

New Orleans was competing with Kansas City, Miami, Detroit and San Francisco for the GOP meeting.

"One advantage we have over many other cities is the compactness of our downtown area and the close proximity of first-class hotels," Morial said.

The mayor said Gov. Edwin Edwards has invited GOP chairman William Brock to New Orleans to tour the city's facilities and has promised "to the fullest extent to accommodate the convention's needs."

The city bid for the 1976 political conventions, but lost out to Kansas City and New York because of a shortage of hotel rooms and scheduling problems with the Superdome.

Since then, however, the Hyatt Regency and Hilton Hotels have opened with more than 1,000 rooms each. A Marriot addition of 500 rooms presently is under construction and an addition to the Hilton is planned.

Another 500-room hotel at the foot of Canal Street also was being planned.

Morial said one political convention could pump from $40 million to $50 million into the city's economy.

"The benefits to the city would be great," he said. "The economic impact would be not unlike that of a Super Bowl, of the Treasures of Tutankamun exhibit or the upcoming championship fight."

Treen said the Republicans were impresed with the number of hotel rooms available in the New Orleans area and the Superdome.

The Republicans' site selection committee will meet in Washington in two months and its decision probably will be announced in January, Treen said.

Morial said the city also has put in a bid for the 1980 Democratic convention. However the big push was for the Republicans because they will decide on a convention site first.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled 5-4 in 1967 that an American's citizenship cannot be taken away without his consent.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Mart Rally Gains Momentum

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rose today as a rally gained momentum despite a ¼-point jump in the prime rate.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead 1.73 at 881.93. The Dow, off by nearly 7 points late Tuesday, began gaining toward the close and cotinued its rise today. Advancers slightly outnumbered decliners among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, and Big Board volume picked up to 16.76 million shares from 14.43 million at noon Tuesday.

The round of prime rate increases was kicked off early this morning by New York's Chase Manhattan Bank, which boosted its charge on loans to top-rated borrowers to 9¼ percent. Numerous major banks followed Chase's example minutes later.

News of the prime rate rise sent the dollar higher in New York and on some European exchanges. Recent Federal Reserve moves to push up many market interest rates had led several analysts to predict the prime rate move. The Fed has been acting to combat inflation and to make the sagging dollar more attractive to foreign investors. The foreign interest may help offset the traditional market depressant of high interest rates.

Ramada Inns led the NYSE most-active list, down ⅞ at 12. Pan American World Airways was unchanged at 8⅛ and Eastern Air Lines rose ½ to 15¼. U.S. Steel lost ⅜ to 26⅝. News reports said the Treasury may be on the verge of reducing its minimum prices for imported steel. Resorts International class A was up 4¼ to 116¼ on the American Stock Exchange.

The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped .15 to 58.53; the Amex market value index was up 1.73 at 167.36.

Man Assessed Probation In Shooting Of Student

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A three-year probated prison sentence was assessed Tuesday against a man convicted of shooting a Texas Tech University student during a party outside a fraternity house April 14.

The sentence was assessed against Jacinto Herrera, 20. It had taken jurors in Judge William R. Shaver's 140th District Court only 12 minutes earlier Tuesday to find Herrera guilty of aggravated assault. The nine-man three-woman panel deliberated about 30 minutes before granting the probation.

Herrera, who lived at 2823 Fordham St. at the time of the offense, was convicted of shooting Greg Potter, 21. Potter was wounded in the left shoulder during the incident outside the fraternity lodge at 14th Street and Avenue X about 5:30 p.m.

Potter, who was treated at a hospital and released the same day, indicated he was shot as he was throwing beer from a plastic cup toward the defendant and a companion.

According to testimony, Herrera was a passenger in an auto passing the fraternity house. Potter said he was 15-20 feet away from the car. "I started throwing a beer, and I saw this guy here (Herrera) come up with a gun," Potter testified.

Potter told assistant district attorney Cindy Miller that after seeing the firearm he turned to walk away. "I heard a shot — there was a second shot — and I realized I had been shot," Potter said.

The complainant testified that the car containing the two men drove for about a half block on 14th Street toward University Avenue and that a third shot was then fired.

Under cross-examination from defense attorney Patrick Abeyta, Potter said he never saw the gun pointed directly at him and never saw the defendant aim the gun.

"I just saw him with the gun and then knew I had been shot," he said.

Testimony indicated approximately 30 persons were standing outside near the fraternity lodge front yard when Potter was shot. The group reportedly included several women.

Potter said he had consumed several beers in the hour or so preceding the incident.

Witnesses indicated that words had been exchanged between students at the party and the two men in the car.

Witness David Clark said he had seen the car go by the fraternity house twice before Potter was wounded. On the second occasion, according to Clark, he had thrown beer on the driver of the car.

When asked why he had done so, Clark said he had reason to believe the man had been bothering some of the people in the yard.

Herrera took the witness stand to deny having precipitated any exchange of words.

He indicated he had exhibited a pistol because he was frightened. The defendant said the gun discharged by accident.

When the vehicle containing Herrera was stopped, according to police, a pistol was found in the car. Police testified the weapon contained only one spent round.

A-J Staffer Takes Trip On School Bus

"Last time we were at Martin, they gave us milk and cookies."

The bus went south on Quaker Avenue, got on Loop 289 and skirted along the city's edge to East 19th Street. The trip takes about 30 minutes, one of the longest in the desegregation plan.

The rows of seats on the bus are positioned very close together, making it virtually impossible for a child to slip to the floor. The arrangement is somewhat inconvenient for adults, however. I wondered whether secondary students — such as those riding to Dunbar-Struggs High — were saying the same thing.

The Stewart-to-Martin bus was carrying 23 first-graders. The school district had projected sending 41 on this run, but Hale said that number had since dropped to a projected 34. One factor was that the district's plan of assigning students by alphabet did not cut Stewart's first-grade class exactly in the middle. More first-graders apparently are in the bottom half of the alphabet and will go to Martin the second semester of 1978-79.

Another factor was that many parents elected to drive their children to Martin themselves. Some parents appeared concerned indeed: while their youngsters were on buses, they followed in cars.

Stewart first-graders amused themselves by talking about the scenery and pretending to help Mrs. Andrade steer the bus.

"It's going to be fun. I like riding this bus. And we're going to make lots of friends at Martin," Mary Lynn Keener said.

When Stewart's eastside "sister school" came into view, Mary Lynn declared: "See it, see it? That's Martin, that's our school."

Due to the late start, ours was one of the last buses to arrive at Martin. It was nearly 9 a.m. Bob Peterson, Martin principal, and his faculty already had greeted children from Dupre, Parsons and Wheelock elementary schools.

Mrs. Andrade noted how obediently the other students had lined up — single file, of course — as they stepped off their buses. "Let's show them we can do it, too," she said.

In the Martin schoolyard, I ran into Gary Hurt, a parent from the Parsons area.

"I don't understand this busing," he told me. "It really blows my mind. But it's not bothering the kids as much as the parents. As long as parents don't complain in front of their children, it'll be all right."

Peterson, who nearly an hour earlier had seen his own Martin students safely off to Maedgen Elementary, said he expected the opening of schools to be smooth, "but not this smooth.

"Parents are to be commended. They've had excellent attitudes through all this," he said. With that, I managed to catch a ride back to Stewart.

Incidentally, I found my car precisely where I had left it. And I was told in early afternoon that the first-graders on the Stewart-to-Martin run had found their families and homes the same way.

Texaco May Fight Citation Of Safety Violations

PORT ARTHUR (UPI) — Texaco is expected to protest, all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary, a citation of safety violations from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Federal job safety enforcers have accused the energy company of five serious and three willful violations that allegedly contributed to the July 6 death of a 52-year-old refinery worker, Clarence J. Martin Jr. He was overcome by nitrogen mistakenly pumped into a tank he was inspecting and cleaning.

A spokesman for Texaco's Port Arthur refinery, Larry Bingaman, confirmed receipt of the alleged violations Monday, but said only that the citations were "under review." The company has until Sept. 12 to accede to $34,500 in fines proposed by OSHA or protest the citations.

If the charges are contested, the case would go to an administrative judge. From there, it could be appealed to a review commission and beyond that stage to the Supreme Court.

"They (Texaco) can request an informal conference to talk about this," said Noah M. Shopen, OSHA's Beaumont district supervisor. "The other thing they can do is protest either the alleged violation or the penalty or both.

"When this occurs — and I would assume this is so since it's Texaco and their track record is to contest everything — it goes before a commission judge."

Insurance

tion if there was a violation of the law?" Hale asked.

"I don't believe there is such discretion. When you take an oath to uphold the law, that takes away a lot of discretion," McFarling said.

McFarling said if any new laws are needed, these would include criminal penalties for submitting annual insurance company financial statements to the Insurance Department that contain misstatements of fact. Great Commonwealth's 1976 financial statement did not mention the $3 million Centram loan.

China Scores Major Coup In Treaty With Japan

By ROBERT CRABBE

TOKYO (UPI) — In a sudden show of deft diplomacy, China has just scored one of its biggest foreign policy coups in years, getting Japan to sign a mutual nonaggression traaty over the angry objections of the Soviet Union.

The Chinese and Japanese foreign ministries were stalemated for years over the proposed treaty. There was widespread betting in the Tokyo diplomatic corps before the talks resumed that agreement would prove impossible.

Inevitably, the treaty set off guessing in Tokyo that the Chinese might apply their newly displayed flexibility to another problem — opening full diplomatic relations with the United States.

The best guess is that it will be later, not now.

"The Carter administration is showing signs of giving serious consideration to embarking on recognition (of China) in the next six or eight months," said Columbia University's Joak Barnett, one of America's top authorities on China, in an interview Aug. 13 with the Asahi newspaper of Tokyo.

Shanghai-born Barnett added that before opening an embassy in Peking, President Carter would have to assure a skeptical U.S. Congress of two things.

One is that there would be no invasion by China of the island of Taiwan, base of the Nationalist Chinese government now recognized by the United States.

The other is that Taiwan could continue to buy American military hardware.

"Whether China is willing to display flexibility on these restrictions is the key to whether normalization will be realized," Barnett said.

Analysis

China's 1949 Communist revolution was a psychological trauma for the U.S. government and the American people. The American-backed regime of the late Chiang Kai-shek was driven from the Chinese mainland to Taiwan.

In the cold-war atmosphere of the time, American policy tilted strongly toward Chiang. Any lingering chance of recognition of the new Communist regime in Peking vanished when China intervened in the 1950-53 Korean War and frustrated the hopes of the United States and South Korea for a clear-cut victory.

The United States ever since has had its China embassy on Taiwan. It tried for 20 years to cripple China's economy with an economic boycott. Former President Dwight Eisenhower once threatened to "unleash" Chiang's armies on the Chinese mainland.

A thaw began in 1971, when then President Richard Nixon sent his top foreign policy adviser Henry Kissinger to Peking. In 1972 Nixon went to China himself. An American liaison office, which performs most of the duties of an embassy, was set up in Peking.

However, U.S. diplomatic relations with Taiwan continue. Peking insists there never will be full, formal ties with the United States until Washington closes its embassy in Taipai, and cuts off all military support for the Chinese nationalists.

"From our viewpoint, there are certain anti-revolutionary elements in Taiwan," said Chinese vice-premier Chi Teng-Kuei in 1977. "I believe that liberation may not be possible, unless it is a military liberation by our own efforts."

Whether the Carter administration could get recognition of Peking, and downgrading of Taiwan, approved by Congress on any terms grows more doubtful evary day.

"I don't think we would stand for it," House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said at a news conference Aug. 5.

Conservative Republicans already have signaled that any congressman wanting their support in future elections had better be firm on the subject of keeping the embassy in Taiwan.

On the other hand, conditions have changed a lot since 1949. Far from being a firm ally of the Soviet Union, as the United States once feared, the Chinese amerged as Russia's most vindictive enemy.

As a goodwill gesture toward Peking, the American military garrison on Taiwan has been scaled down from 10,000 in 1972 to about 1,200 at present.

AMC Seeks Labor Pact With UAW

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — American Motors Corp. will seek a multi-year labor pact with the United Auto Workers in an effort to speed a proposed linkup with French automaker Renault, the head of the U.S firm says.

AMC President Gerald C. Meyers said last week that a longer contract would be a signal to Renault that joint operations of the two firms would enjoy stable costs.

Meyers said talks with Renault are continuing but that the deal is more complicated than either side expected. He said emphatically that the linkup announced March 31 will go through as planned.

The U.S. firm's latest one-year pact with the UAW and its 11,500 members in Wisconsin and Ontario expires Sept. 15. Unlike the three-year UAW contracts with the Big Three automakers, AMC has had two consecutive one-year agreements since September 1976.

"A longer-term agreement is in order, and we're working in that direction," Meyers said. He would not elaborate on details of the bargaining taking place with the UAW in Milwaukee. After two days of preliminary talks this week, bargaining teams have recessed until after Labor Day.

AMC and Renault announced plans to sell Renault's Le Car through AMC dealerships and Jeeps through Renault dealers in Europe, and to eventually build a Renault car in Kenosha, Wis. At the time, the firms indicated they expected to reach final agreement by early summer.

Meyers said the scope of the planned operation with Renault has not changed, despite the delay in signing the papers. But he refused to give a new target date and at one point said it could be "several months."

At another point, he said it was still possible that the minicompact Le Car could reach AMC dealerships this fall.

Meyers said sales of AMC's 1978 compact Concord will "substantially" exceed the company's goal of 100,000 cars. He predicted the new 1979 Spirit, replacement for the subcompact Gremlin, would enjoy "similar success."

But he hedged when asked whether AMC would post a profit for the fourth quarter ending Sept. 30.

Religion Takes Precedence In Ruling

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — A judge who ruled that ancient Indian remains found in a Milwaukee suburb must be reburied says the case involved a unique conflict between religion and science.

Waukesha Circuit Judge Max Raskin said religion should take precedence in the case of the remains found at a construction site in Elm Grove.

Indian groups had argued that exhuming the remains amounted to a sacrilege. They first attempted to have the site protected, then asked to take custody of the remains for reburial.

Richard Watkins of the Intertribal Cultural Committee testified that human remains should get different treatment than artifacts such as the Dead Sea scrolls.

But David Overstreet, president of the Great Lakes Archeological Research Center, said scientists should be allowed to complete research on the remains, which include seven skeletons, a partial skeleton and various artifacts believed to date to Indian cultures of 3,000 to 5,000 years ago.

"Our only interest was in the collection and dissemination of information that, if lost, could never again be duplicated," Overstreet said.

"It is truly unfortunate that Native American religious and spiritual interests are at odds in this instance," he said. "The real tragedy of this event is that everyone loses. The probable outcome will be the willful destruction of knowledge that can never be replicated."

Robert Canard of the Milwaukee Indian Health Board said the remains would be reburied at a secret site on a northern Wisconsin Indian reservation.

Successful Pancreas Transplant Made

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Johns Hopkins Hospital surgeon has salvaged the insulin-producing cells from an Illinois electrician's pancreas, implanting them into the man's liver in what he says is the world's second fully successful pancreas transplant.

Dr. John L. Cameron removed 51-year-old Richard Foster's badly diseased pancreas, separated the functioning cells and dispersed them throughout his liver.

"I now believe that within five years this will be the established procedure for treating chronic pancreatitis," said Cameron. "The only effective treatment (to date) ... is removal of 95 percent of the pancreas, which leaves the patient a diabetic for the rest of his life," the surgeon said.

HOUSTON—Workouts aren't so bad, but that registration...

Two years ago, Danny Davis reported for fall workouts wearing a t-shirt which had SWC champions stamped on it. The Houston Cougars wound up in the Cotton Bowl.

Last fall, he popped up with one which read national champs. But, two games later, Davis went out with a shoulder separation, and national hopes dwindled to a 6-5 record.

This time, Davis is back, but he's not sporting any predictive attire. Also, he and his teammates are not saying much about any titles, and Davis is trying to get registered for fall classes.

"I read the date wrong and didn't get to preregister," Davis commented Tuesday. "Then, I got fouled up on the regular registration. I have to go over there and try to register tomorrow (today). But, he added with a grin, "outside of that, the only problems are with my girlfriends."

Davis, very articulate, very witty and very talented, displayed a very confident air but not the cooky one which the team displayed a year ago. But, with Davis and linebacker David Hodge back leading their respective halves of the team, Houston appears loaded with championship potential. And coach Bill Yeoman threw out enough positive vibes to leave the impression that this could be a productive year.

Unlike Davis, who was sidelined by an injury, Hodge gave up football and dropped out of school. He stayed away from football completely, to the point of not reading about the Cougars. But, he is back, dominating the defense from sideline to sideline, and providing leadership which was lacking a year ago.

With Hodge back, "linebacker (as a position) was never better here," added Yeoman.

And with Davis back at quarterback, along with Delrick Brown, who handled most of the work when Davis was hurt, the quarterbacking is in "good shape."

"Danny's shoulder is okay," said Yeoman. "Danny is in good shape and he will get the rust off by our first game."

With Davis at the throttle, Houston won 12 of 13 games (1976 and the first game of 1977) and now, he has one more try. "I'm a senior, so I'll throw my body in there," he said Tuesday. "If I get hurt, I get hurt. . ."

Even if he should be hurt, there is Brown to guide the veer offense designed by Yeoman. Behind the two quarterbacks will be a group of runningbacks possibly not as strong as the past two years, but the running will be adequate, (using senior lettermen Emmett King and Randy Love), Yeoman estimates.

The offensive line needs improvement, but the Cougar coach feels it will come along. There is a concern about tight end, where Garrett Jurgajtis (229) is situated. The tight end is a key position in the Houston scheme, "and we're not getting out of it what we're used to."

But the defense is where the Cougars could shine. Yeoman doesn't hide his confidence in the defense, especially with Hodge, a 217-pounder, as the leader.

"David is a player," a term used to describe an outstanding athlete. "We've never had a better one at Houston. And with him on the field, the others will play better."

"I'm very encouraged by the defense," Yeoman said. "We're so much more aggressive, and I think David has a lot to do with this. Our defensive line has respectable depth, our defensive ends are completely adequate, and our secondary is very effective. Part of that is because of our (better) pass rush."

Yeoman points to more depth at defensive tackle than ever, and all are timed at 5-flat in the 40-yard sprint. Hosea Taylor, a sophomore letterman, is down from 290 pounds to a svelte 250 and holds down one tackle spot. Grady Ebensberger (250)

Tech's Nelson Excels

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Brian Nelson heeded the words of Ricky Nelson (no relation) and became a "Travelin' Man" Tuesday afternoon.

Nelson—not Ozzie and Harriet's crooner, but the other one—proved to be about the only punch in the Red Raider offensive unit during a scrimmage session totally dominated by the defense.

The former Wichita Falls Rider Raider traveled 55 yards with the two passes he caught—the later a 40-yard touchdown strike from quarterback Tres Adami.

"I'm one person that's glad he's back," said head coach Rex Dockery about the flanker, turned split end.

After suffering a knee injury which required surgery during spring training, Nelson was considered one of the question marks for Texas Tech this fall. But no more, he said, pronouncing the right wheel fine and dandy.

"I got a lot of confidence back," the split end said. "I've been cutting real well and it really feels good."

Asked if he was a might gun-shy about getting hit, Nelson replied: "No. I really didn't think about it. All I wanted to do was catch the ball. You can't think about getting hit or you won't be able to catch it."

Makes sense.

At the start of fall workouts, Nelson said he had trouble cutting on the knee, but now that problem is over.

Pssst, his knee told him so.

"I couldn't cut at all the first day," he pointed out. "Then it was like my knee told me it was ready and now I'm not having any trouble.

"I'm glad to be back, too. It's good to be out here working with my teammates... contributing something."

According to Dockery, about the only ones contributing much Tuesday was the defensive unit, not the offense.

"The defensive is getting better all the time," Dockery said. "They were very together, very agressive.

"They are showing signs of becoming a good football team."

What about the offense, coach?

"The offense had no polish," he said. "They are no where close to where they were Saturday. They just couldn't do it against the defense."

Dockery said one of the problems with the offense is no one has stepped forward and taken command at the tailback slot, now occupied by scatback Don Earl.

"We're still looking for someone to be our starter," he said. "But no one has done it yet."

While praises were few and far between Tuesday, Dockery did laud the performances of defensive backs Ted Watts, Tate Randle and Alan Swann.

Borg, Austin Grab Easy Victories

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Open Tennis Championships have started with an entirely new flavor. And at least two top players, Bjorn Borg and Tracy Austin, have yet to acquire a taste for it.

Both won their opening-night matches easily Tuesday, but Borg was troubled by the pacing of the surface, a fast, synthetic covering, and Miss Austin felt the fans were a little stand-offish.

"The players are going to have to take more chances," said Borg, who is seeking his first U.S. Open crown. He obviously had some misgivings about the man considered his strongest opponent. "This is Connors' best surface. He's grown up on it."

Borg, the three-time Wimbledon champion, claimed he was more cautious than usual but he had no trouble taking down South African Bob Hewitt 6-0, 6-2.

Miss Austin, the 15-year-old fifth-seed in the women's draw, downed Trish Bostrom 6-0, 6-1.

As the men's first round continues today, defending champion Guillermo Vilas was to play Cliff Drysdale, Connors was to battle Tom Gullikson, Vitas Gerulaitis was to meet Pascale Portes of France, and it was to be John McEnroe vs. Sherwood Stewart, Brian Gottfried vs. Australian Phil Dent and Arthur Ashe vs. Ross Case of Australia.

Borg's and Miss Austin's matches were the christening for the brand new National Tennis Center, the $10 million effort by the U.S. Tennis Association to give the Open a home suitable to its long-burgeoning popularity. The move also took the Open away from the slow clay-like courts of Forest Hills, a change that is likely to benefit Americans.

Set among 15 acres that were the grounds of the 1964 World's Fair, the modern center features a stadium holding a 20,000 center court arena and a 6,500-seat grand stand. The old stadium at the tradition-laden West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills seated only 12,000.

The first-night attendance was 6,186, and Miss Austin noticed a difference in the way they received her.

"I don't think they're rooting for me as hard as they did last year," the blonde prodigy observed. "Then I was the new kid."

But the speed of the surface, apart from surprising her, didn't seem a bother. "It plays like a normal hard court," she said.

Miss Austin breezed past Miss Bostrom, who entered the draw as an alternate when Francoise Durr defaulted with an injury suffered in a bycycling accident.

A Record Is A Record In Extended NFL

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Writer

Unlike major league baseball, which turned "asterisk" into a four-letter word, the National Football League has decreed that a season is a season and a record is a record and that's all there is to it.

Bravo!

Roger Maris has had to live with the stigma of a parenthetical note which somewhat accusingly points out that he hit his record 61 home runs in a 162-game season while Babe Ruth's 60 were hit in 154.

The NFL expands its season from 14 to 16 games this year and, just as when it went from 12 to 14 games in 1961, every number in the record books is up for grabs without reservation.

So whoever shatters any of the league's single-season records like O.J. Simpson's 2,003 yards rushing, Joe Namath's 4,007 yards passing or Charley Hennigan's 101 passes caught — or Dan Pastorini's 17 fumbles or George Blanda's 42 intercepted passes, for that matter — won't have to share his record, statistical purists notwithstanding.

That irks Hennigan, a subscriber to the asterisk principle. In fact, he thought there'd be one in the books.

"I'm proud of the 101 passes I caught," Hennigan said, "but I'm even prouder of my other record (1,746 yards gained receiving). And both of them are real special now 'cause I know they'll never be broken, 'cause they were set when they played 14 games and there'll be something to point that out."

Sorry, Charley.

"Oh," he said, then paused. "Well, that's a real shame. Hey, if I'd had two more games to play in '64 (when he caught his 101 passes) then maybe I'd have caught 120 or 130 or something."

Analysis

It might be noted that the yardage record he broke — in 14 games — had belonged to Elroy "Crazy Legs" Hirsch, 1,495 yards — in 12 games.

"Well, yeah," Hennigan admitted, then quickly insisted, "but I passed him in 12. It didn't take me all 14."

Simpson, conversely, says he won't feel cheated if his 2,003 yards are obliterated. "So what?" O.J. shrugged when someone mentioned the possibility of his rushing record succumbing to a longer season. "It won't make any difference to anyone else in 10 years whether I hold a record or not — and it won't make any difference to me, either."

"I feel the same way," said Blanda, who owns a lot of passing, scoring and longevity records along with his 42 interceptions. "Most of my records more than likely will be broken and that doesn't bother me. Heck, when I broke somebody else's records it didn't change my life — and when somebody broke one of mine it didn't affect me, either.

"I feel good that I've done a few things. I even feel good about those interceptions. It's not a bad thing. I saw a game recently where a quarterback threw three swing passes for minus two yards late in the game and his team lost 27-3 and he got credit for three completions. We didn't do that back in the AFL. We went up in the air. We tried to score. We threw 50 or 60 passes a game. That was the nature of the game. That was our format, to make the game exciting and to score a lot of points.

"We tried to win and so what if you get one or two picked off when you're trying to come back from a desperate situation? So I look at interceptions a little bit differently."

Pastorini has a sort of schizophrenic outlook about his record for butterfingers. "Gee, you mean I'm really in the NFL record book? " he mused, almost proudly. Then, after a moment's reflection, he said: "I don't really think I want to be — but it's gonna take some doing to get me outta there."

It may take longer than some people think for some of those records to fall. Consider that a runner will have to exceed 125 yards a game, every game, to beat O.J., that a receiver will have to catch more than six passes a game to surpass Hennigan ... and that a quarterback, to outdo Blanda, will have to put roughly three passes into enemy hands every game — without getting benched.

Oilers Cut Punter, Duniven

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers now have the 45 men they hope will take them to the championship of the National Football League.

Four-time NFL punting champion Jerrel Wilson and 12-year cornerback Zeke Moore were among the final six cut Tuesday by the Oilers, who pared their roster to 43 before adding two players previously placed on waivers.

Those two were Johnny Dirden, a rookie wide receiver from Sam Houston State, and Kurt Knoff, a three-year safety who was waived last week.

Dirden was waived in Tuesday's cuts along with Wilson, Moore, second-year quarterback Tommy Duniven from Texas Tech, veteran tackle Kevin Hunt, and rookie safety Guido Merkens.

Defensive end Jim Mol, a ninth-round draft choice from Morningside, was placed on the team's injured reserve list.

Wilson, 36, lost out in a duel for the punting job with second-year man Cliff Parsley. Wilson appeared to have the edge after two exhibition games, but Parsley, the Oilers' regular punter last year, kicked well in the final two games.

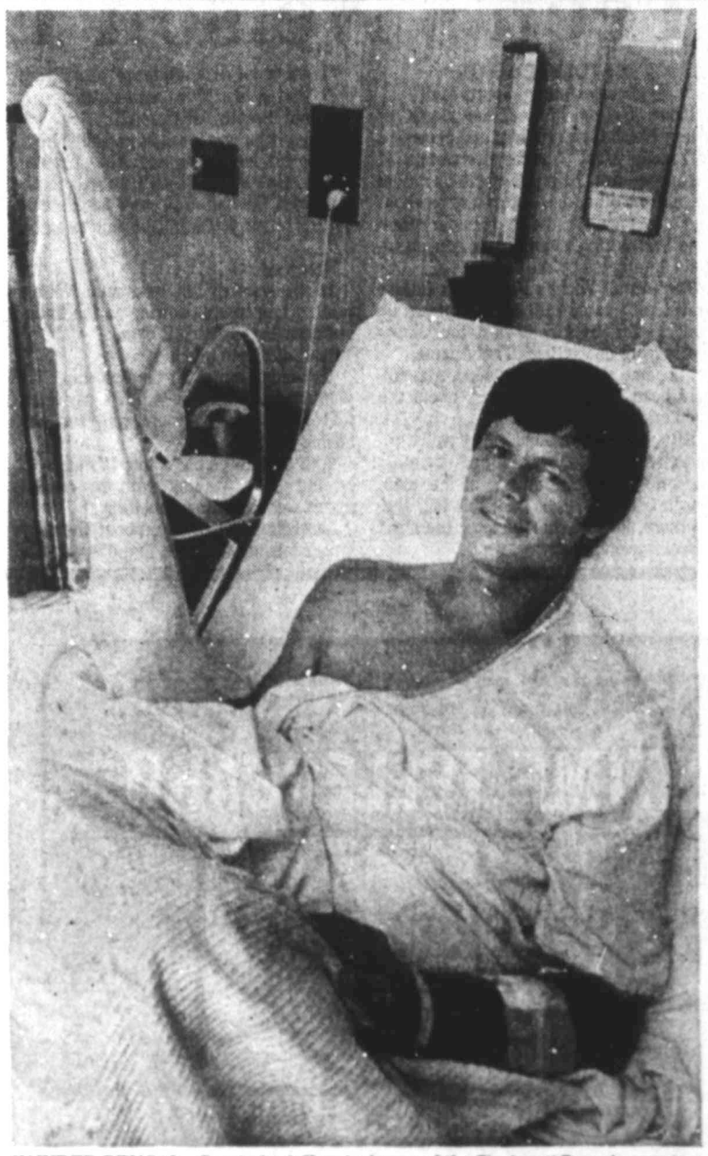
Parsley came to the Oilers last year in a trade with New Orleans and averaged 39.4 yards a kick.

Moore apparently lost out to a youth movement in the Oiler secondary. J.C. Wilson, a rookie from Pittsburgh, made the team ahead of Moore, who has played all 12 seasons with the Oilers.

Moore played in the 1971 and 1972 Pro Bowl games and led the Oilers in interceptions in 1975.

Duniven spent most of his rookie season a year ago with the Oilers on the inactive reserve list and saw action in just one game.

He competed with rookie quarterback Gifford Nielsen of Brigham Young for the No. 2 job behind starter Dan Pastorini.



INJURED BENGAL—Quarterback Ken Anderson of the Cincinnati Bengals rests in a Louisville hospital after surgery Tuesday on his right hand. He was injured in last Saturday's exhibition game against Green Bay. Although he plans to leave the hospital today, he is expected to be out of action for five to six weeks. (AP Laserphoto)

Landry Urges Officials To Aid Quarterbacks

DALLAS (AP) — Quarterbacks in the National Football League need more protection — not from their offensive lines, but from the game officials — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry says.

"The officials should watch the quarterbacks closer than they've been watching them in preseason," Landry said Tuesday.

Five quarterbacks were hurt last weekend in NFL exhibition games.

"The quarterbacks are getting hit too much, and the officials aren't calling it," Landry said at his weekly press luncheon. "They need to, because the quarterback needs to be protected."

The Cowboys' starting quarterback Roger Staubach has escaped injury in preseason, but Landry seemed worried about keeping him in good health.

"The rules don't need to be changed," Landry said. "The officials just need to call them more strictly. Once you call them stricter, the quarterback will be protected."

Landry announced some roster changes and some changes in the starting lineup of the Super Bowl champions who open their season Monday night when they host Baltimore.

The Cowboys' biggest problem right now is finding a place kicker to replace Efren Herrera, who had contract problems and was traded to Seattle.

Tryout Jay Sherrill, who missed two field goals and an extra point against Pittsburgh, was placed on waivers Monday and was not claimed by any other club. The Cowboys coaches say they will decide this week whether to keep the rookie free agent from North Carolina State or find someone else.

"We're checking three or four other kickers right now," Landry said.

The team also announced it signed rookie offensive guard Tom Randall of Iowa State, who was the team's seventh round draft pick. That brings the roster to 44, with one slot left to fill — the place kicker.

Andy Frederick will start at right tackle, and Pat Donovan will be at left tackle, where he has played for the four-game preseason. Donovan replaced Ralph Neely, who retired.

This means veteran Rayfield Wright, trying to gain top form after an injury, will be the backup right tackle.

"Tony Hill is one of the most exceptional receivers we've had, especially in his ability to adjust to the ball and go for it," Landry said. "He has great potential." Hill is a second-year man out of Stanford.

He said Richards and Johnson performed as well in preseason as they had ever had but that Hill was so exceptional the decision was pretty clear cut.

"I haven't made a decision on shuttling Hill," Landry said, referring to his practice last year of alternating his tight ends to get plays to the huddle.

"If I don't, I'll probably shuttle guards."

Rose To Take Two-Day Rest

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds third baseman Pete Rose — who earlier this season excited the baseball world with a a 44-game hitting streak — has been given a two-day rest on the bench to cure a slumping batting average.

Rose will not play here today or Thursday in St. Louis, according to Reds Manager Sparky Anderson.

The Reds captain has one hit in his last 22 tries and his batting average has tumbled to .299.

Rose was the last remaining .300 hitter on the slumping Reds, who had lost six straight games going into Wednesday's contest.

"This thing (the Reds losing 16 of 22) is getting to him," Anderson said. "I know how he likes to win. But it's been all of it. To me, he's just not swimming like he can.

"I think, too, that the 44-game streak did more than any of us know. He may be the strongest man in the world, but that had to drain him and I think we are seeing the effects now."

"Pete's bat is a little slow," said Reds batting coach Ted Kluszewski. "He could be tired."

Bell Tolls For Hauss, Barney

By The Associated Press

Len Hauss and Lem Barney are no longer asking for whom the bell tolls — it tolls for them.

Hauss, the anchor of the Washington Redskins offensive line for over a decade, and Barney, who patrolled the secondary for the Detroit Lions for 11 years, were the latest victims of the National Football League's final cutdown before the 1978 season opens this weekend.

"Yes, it's a hell of a way to go, but that's how things happen in this business," said Hauss, a five-time All-Pro who played in every one of the Redskins last 196 games, starting all but the first four.

"They'll get along without me. Every team gets along so it really won't matter. Everybody leaves, it is nothing new."

Hauss, who joined the Redskins out of Georgia in 1964 and is president of the NFL Players Association, was one of five players cut by Washington to reach the 45-man limit.

"Why be bitter? I'll always be a friend of the Redskins. I'm going home to Georgia. It's that time.

Barney's time also came as he was placed on the waived-injured list as the Lions reached the NFL's 43-man roster limit.

"I wasn't expecting it or anything. I guess I'm in a rebuilding outfit and they want to go with younger guys.

The three-time All-Pro selection intercepted 56 passes during his career but lost his job to a nagging groin injury and Luther Bradley, Detroit's No. 1 pick this season.

"There's no bitterness. I've been around 11 years, starting my 12th year, and I've seen a lot of things happen to good friends of mine. You are always prepared for the unexpected."

Tight end Jim Mandich, an integral member of the Miami Dolphins' consecutive Super Bowl champions in 1973 and 1974, was also released by the Redskins.

Veteran kickers Tom Dempsey, Errol Mann and Jerrel Wilson also heard the bad news.

Wilson, who spent 16 seasons with the Kansas City Chiefs and won four punting titles before winding up in Houston, was cut by the Oilers along with Zeke Moore, who played all 12 of his NFL years with Houston.

Dempsey, who holds the NFL field goal record of 63 yards, was released by Buffalo, as was Mann, who led the NFL in scoring last season but failed to report to the team after being acquired in a trade from the Oakland Raiders on Monday.

Buffalo also released veteran linebacker John Skorupan and defensive tackle Bill Dunstan.

The start of Carl Eller's 15th NFL season was short-circuited when the Vikings placed him in limbo for his failure to attend a practice session last Sunday. Officially, he was declared exempt, which means he is neither cut nor on the roster.

Detroit placed veteran running back John Brockington and third-year offensive tackle Craig Hertwig on waivers, while selling third-year linebacker Garth Ten Napel to the Atlanta Falcons.

The New England Patriots cut three players, including 11-year veteran defensive back Bob Howard.

John Hicks, acquired from the New York Giants last summer in the Steelers' first major trade in six years, was among Pittsburgh's cuts.

Hicks, the No. 3 player chosen in the 1973 collegiate draft, was placed on the waived-injured list. Waived were rookie linebacker Doug Becker and running back Jack Deloplaine, who was later claimed by the Redskins.

The Giants cut three players, including five-year veterans Clyde Powers, a safety, and Karl Chandler, a center.

Seattle placed seven players on waivers, including cornerback Eddie McMillan, who has started all 28 regular season games for the Seahawks.

Orantes Claims Pro Crown

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)— Manuel Orantes of Spain is the U.S. Pro tennis champion for the second year in a row, but he doesn't think too highly of his chances heading into the U.S. Open.

"I'm not too confident because I don't have any time to get ready for the Open," Orantes said Tuesday night after retaining the U.S. Pro title with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over veteran Harold Solomon of Pompano Beach, Fla., on Longwood's clay courts.

The 29-year-old Spaniard broke a long winless streak in whipping Solomon in the rain-delayed final of the $200,000 U.S. Pro event at Longwood. He hit a slump after winning here last year, showing only a victory in Tokyo in the fall until his return.

Solomon was bucking odds in more than one way. He has managed just two victories in 12 matches with Orantes. And only two Americans, Bob Lutz and Jimmy Connors, have won the U.S. Pro title since the event was salvaged from a scrap pile by Longwood and the sponsoring New England Merchants National Bank 15 years ago.

Orantes needed just 1 hour and 34 minutes to dash Solomon's hopes and walked off with top prize money of $27,200 in the 51st annual pro tournament.

The Spaniard saved two break points in holding service in the opening game of the match. Then, he broke Solomon in the second game. Orantes lost his service for the only time in the ninth game, but broke right back for the first set.

Orantes needed just 39 minutes to end the match with the second set victory, breaking Solomon in the eighth game.

"It was a much tougher match than the score shows," Orantes said. "There were some long points. However, I served much better than usual with six aces and lobbed very well."

"I didn't play the big point well and he did," said Solomon, who earned $13,600 as runnerup. "I felt I played pretty well and had a good chance to win. However, I wasn't able to put away enough overhead shots."

Balazs Taroczy of Hungary and Victor Pecci of Paraguay won the doubles championship with a 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 victory over Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland and Van Winitsky of Lauderhill, Fla.

The winning team split $12,000, with the runnerup getting $6,000.

Baltimore Sweeps Season Series Against A's

By The Associated Press

You could say that the Baltimore Orioles have the Oakland A's number. They've had it all year.

The Orioles have won all 11 games they've played with Oakland this season, but they won't have the A's to kick around any more in 1978. The season series between the clubs is over.

"It's old news to me and I don't want to talk about it," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "The other guys we did that to are getting even now."

Baltimore, which has won eight straight games, are just the second team to sweep a season series in the American League. The Orioles did it in 1970 when they beat Kansas City 12 times. It has been done three times in the National League, but not since 1899.

"We beat the Royals all those times and they were 8-2 against us this year," noted Weaver. "Besides, Oakland's been a good team all year. We caught them in two losing streaks when we were getting hot."

Oakland has lost nine in a row and 15 of 16.

"It's enough to drive you to drink," said A's Manager Jack McKeon. "They said there'd be days like this, but you hope they'd at least end."

The Orioles got two RBI from Lee May and Ken Singleton and a homer from Rich Dauer. Dauer was involved in a collision with Oakland starting pitcher Mike Norris in the third inning when Norris fielded a bunt and threw it over third baseman Wayne Gross' head. When Norris attempted to recover the ball, he and Dauer, who was rounding third, smashed together.

"I thought the ball was high enough that I could get it on the first bounce," said Norris, who suffered injuries to his shoulder, neck, ribs and groin and left the game. "That's the last I remember. It felt like I was tossed from a helicopter. I might go back to school to take some crash-landing courses."

Elsewhere in the AL, the New York Yankees edged California 4-3 in 11 innings, Boston bombed Seattle 10-5, Milwaukee blanked Cleveland 6-0, Detroit beat Minnesota 4-2, Chicago topped Kansas City 9-3 and Toronto was a 4-1 winner over Texas.

Yankees 4, Angels 3

Paul Blair was twice a hero for the Yankees. He advanced two bases on a sacrifice bunt in the eighth, then scored on Willie Randolph's triple. In the 11th, with the bases loaded, Blair smashed a 400-foot single to deep center to score Graig Nettles with the winning run.

"Dave LaRoche is a high fastball pitcher," said Blair. "I was afraid of popping up. My job was to get the ball out of the infield and that's all I was trying to do."

Red Sox 10, Mariners 5

George Scott smashed his third career grand slam and Dick Drago won in his first starting assignment in more than three years.

Drago, who had made 135 straight relief appearances, made his last start July 11, 1975. His last victory as a starter was on Sept. 26, 1974. He worked six innings before giving way to Tom Burgmeier.

Scott refused to acknowledge shouts of "Boomer, Boomer," by coming out of the dugout for a bow after his homer. Pitcher Luis Tiant substituted for the first baseman and received wild cheers from the crowd.

Brewers 6, Indians 0

Milwaukee won its 13th game in the last 17 behind Andy Replogle's seven-hitter and Don Money's three-run homer.

"The kid has improved an awful lot this season," said George Bamberger, manager of the Brewers. "I had never seen him before we got him. He was inconsistent at first ... wild high. But he's done a hell of a job (he's 7-2) for a kid who never played above Double A ball.

"His control has been better. The most important thing in pitching is consistency. You stay ahead and keep throwing as many strikes as possible and you'll be all right."

Tigers 4, Twins 2

Milt Wilcox hurled his 15th complete game this season and his fourth in a row, a seven-hitter that was his sixth straight victory.

Wilcox, 12-8, got help from Rusty Staub's two-run double as Detroit scored all its runs in the fourth inning.

"I was as loose as I've been in two or three months," Wilcox said. "My fastball had a lot of pop and had good control. As hard as I throw, it's not easy to have good control.

"I didn't feel good warming up. I didn't know if I'd be able to pitch because I was pretty tight, the shoulder was stiff. I've had the same problem before and sat out two weeks."

White Sox 9, Royals 3

Mike Proly pitched three-hit ball for seven innings before a Darrell Porter line drive hit his hand and fractured his right thumb.

"It was a rocket," said Proly. "I was probably just trying to get out of the way. I know it was hit.

"The doctors say I'll be out three weeks but they're always pessimistic. I'm looking more at two weeks."

Ranger 'Fan' Stops Texas For 4-1 Win

ARLINGTON (AP) — Young Balor Moore says he's a fan of the Texas Rangers, but you couldn't convince anybody of that Tuesday night.

Moore, a native of Deer Park, Texas, stopped the Rangers on five hits as the Jays clipped Texas 4-1. It was the 54th victory for expansion Toronto, equaling the team's number of wins last season in their first year.

"He (Moore) kept everybody off balance," said Ranger Manager Bill Hunter. "You know we've knocked him around pretty good in the past. The difference tonight was his location."

Moore got a two-run homer from Otto Velez in the second inning to go with a first-inning marker and that was plenty for him.

"I wanted to stay aggressive by establishing the fastball in and off the plate," he said. "I wanted to show them I wasn't afraid to challenge them so they couldn't lay back and wait for the slow stuff. And (catcher Rick) Cerone called a heck of a game.

"I really am a Ranger fan," Moore said. "From tonight on they can win every game and I won't care."

Hunter said, "Well I'm no Balor Moore fan tonight."

Toronto opened the scoring in the first when Bob Bailor singled, Velez walked and Willie Horton was safe on an error. Doug Ault slashed a single off third baseman Kurt Bevacqua's glove to score Bailor.

The Jays padded their lead in the seventh, knocking loser Jon Matlack, 12-11, out of the box on three singles, the last by Horton, scoring Bailor with the final Jay run. Reggie Cleveland came on to fan Dave McKay with the bases loaded, ending the inning.

Texas threatened in its half of the first when Toby Harrah walked and took third on Bevacqua's double inside the third base bag. Al Oliver grounded hard to third, but Bailor was able to nail Harrah at the plate. Bobby Bonds ended the inning by striking out.

Moore ran his record to 6-5, striking out five and walking five.

Toronto Manager Roy Hartsfield said Moore's outing wasn't his career best. "He's had a few for us," Hartsfield said. "You know he was put in the starting rotation out of necessity and he's done a fine job."

Cincinnati Officials Start Probe

CINCINNATI (AP) — University of Cincinnati officials are conducting an investigation into possible rules violations cited by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The school's president, Dr. Henry Winkler, has called the probe "a matter to be taken very seriously."

"I'm a supporter of intercollegiate athletics, but only so far as they are truly intercollegiate and only so far as they are played by the rules," Winkler said Monday.

He said it was "inappropriate to make any further statement prior to the official NCAA statement."

The school is to report its findings on 40 specific points raised to the NCAA's committee of infractions Nov. 3.

Lawrence Hawkins, senior vice president for administration, said basketball Coach Ed Badger and football Coach Ralph Staub are not implicated in any way.

Forsch Guides Houston Past Cardinals 6-3

By The Associated Press

Ken Forsch is what you might call a long reliever — like nine innings.

A mainstay in the bullpen for most of his eight years in the majors, the Houston Astro right-hander was thrust into the starting rotation a week ago. Tuesday night he started for the second time this season and came away with a nine-hit, complete-game 6-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, his second straight win.

"I like to start," Forsch said after going the distance for the first time since July 26, 1975. "I really wanted to go nine innings. I was thinking about it from the first inning.

"I was really nervous at the start of the game and I was running out of gas at the end, but I'm looking forward to my next start (in Chicago) this weekend."

In other National League games Tuesday, Atlanta nipped the Chicago Cubs 4-3, Pittsburgh blanked Cincinnati 5-0, Philadelphia defeated San Diego 9-5, Los Angeles downed Montreal 4-1 and San Francisco clipped the New York Mets 2-0.

Forsch walked only one and struck out seven in running his record to 8-4. He also knocked in two runs.

"He (Forsch) will be in the starting rotation for the rest of the year," said Astros Manager Bill Virdon.

Pirates 5, Reds 0

Bert Blyleven's four-hit shutout was backed by Willie Stargell, who drove in three runs, one on his 20th homer of the season, to give Pittsburgh its victory over the skidding Cincinnati Reds. It was Cincinnati's sixth straight loss.

Blyleven, 12-8, faced only 31 batters, allowing only four singles and a walk to pinch-hitter Dave Collins.

Dodgers 4, Expos 1

A three-run homer by Joe Ferguson backed Tommy John's six-hit pitching as Los Angeles posted the 10th victory in its last 14 games and retained a one-game lead in the NL West.

John became the fourth NL pitcher to win 16 games as he walked four and struck out six in throwing his seventh complete game of the season.

Giants 2, Mets 0

Bob Knepper's four-hit shutout and Jim Dwyer's bat and arm gave San Francisco its win over New York. It was Knepper's fourth shutout of the season.

Dwyer hit his fourth home run of the year in the first inning, then threw out Elliott Maddox at home plate in the sixth inning. Maddox was attempting to score on a fly ball to medium center field.

Phillies 9, Padres 5

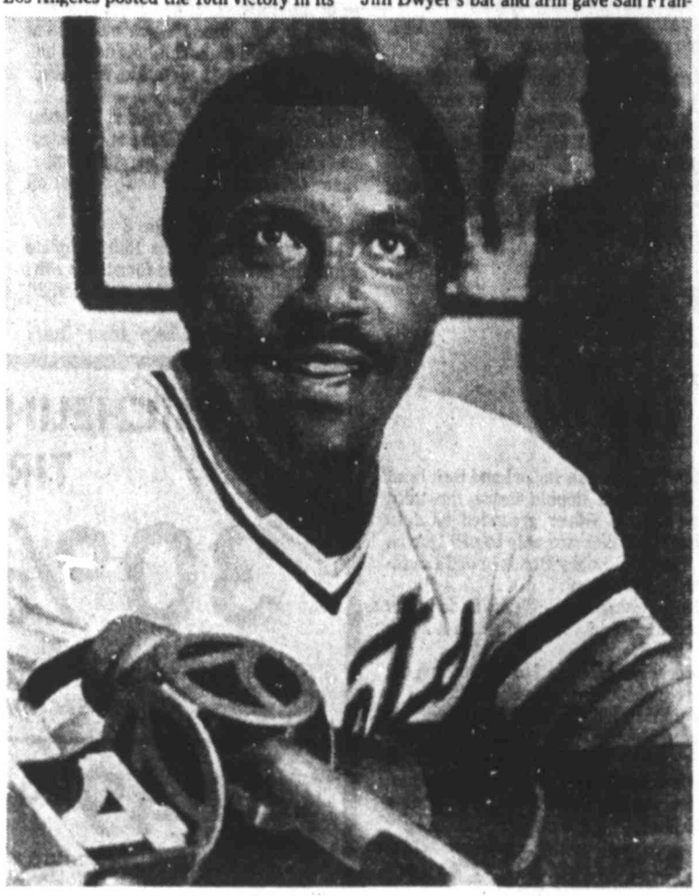
Jerry Martin homered and tripled, driving in four runs, and Garry Maddox drove in three more to power Philadelphia past San Diego.

In the third inning, Jose Cardenal stole home on the front end of a double steal, the first Phillie theft of home since Larry Bowa did it on Aug. 28, 1970.

Braves 4, Cubs 3

Gary Matthews' three-run homer powered Atlanta to its victory. Chicago starter Rick Reuschel did not allow a runner past second base in the first five innings before the Braves scored in the sixth.

Reuschel left the game after walking Jerry Royster and giving up a single to Bob Beall in the seventh. Matthews then slammed the first pitch by reliever Lynn McGlothen over the wall.



ALL SMILES—Vida Blue is the picture of a happy man after announcing at a Tuesday night news conference that he has agreed to a long-term contract with the San Francisco Giants. The former Cy Young award winner has posted a 16-6 record in his first season with the Giants. (AP Laserphoto)

Blue 'Signs For Life'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Vida Blue Tuesday got the contract he always had hoped for. The pact, with the San Francisco Giants, is for six years plus four option years.

Neither the Giants nor Blue care to say how much money is involved. But the best guess is Blue—the Giants' No. 1 pitcher with 16 victories—will receive more than $2 million over a period of years.

"Let's say I signed for life," Blue kidded. "Honestly, it's the last contract I'll ever sign in baseball. Six more years will take me to my 34th birthday and after that it will be a matter of going from year to year to see if I can still pitch effectively. Both the club and I are protected in the option years."

Blue did very little of the negotiating, leaving that chore to his attorney, Richard Sequeira, and business agent, Chris Daniels.

"I always knew the Giants would give me a reasonable contract," said Blue, "so the thought of going the free-agent route never crossed my mind. Actually, I never wanted to be in a position of selling myself like a piece of meat to the highest bidder. This was a better way to do business."

Bob Lurie, Giants co-owner, was as happy with the agreement as was Blue.

"It starts up in 1979 and runs for six years," said Lurie. "I hope he can pitch beyond that and if he can, so much the better for everyone. Look at what a fine job he has done for us this year. Obviously, we think he can do it for a long time to come."

Uproar Irritates Reds' Catcher

CINCINNATI (AP) — Disturbed that some felt his second-guessing was undermining Manager Sparky Anderson, Johnny Bench wanted to make something clear.

"I was not in anyway knocking him as a manager," said Cincinnati's All-Star catcher, irritated at the uproar over remarks he made.

"I simply said we needed our butts kicked," Bench said Tuesday night, 24 hours after the controversy surfaced.

Bench played down the matter, saying it was difference of opinion, not a dispute. "We're not having any problems," he said, while playing backgammon in the clubhouse with pitcher Tom Hume.

But his remarks that Anderson is "too nice, perhaps in awe of us" struck a nerve. He suggested that Anderson is "intimidated" by the team's high-paid stars and has "withdrawn from it all."

Cricketer Introduces Sport To America

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Sir Garfield Sobers, one of the world's all-time great cricketers, insists that the 100 mph fireball of baseball's Nolan Ryan would hold little or no terror for him.

"Cricket is much more hazardous for the batsman than your diamond sport," the 42-year-old West Indian insisted after arriving here to introduce the old British sport to the American public.

"The ball we use is about the same size as a baseball but it is twice as hard. It travels at better than 90 miles per hour but, unlike the thrown baseball, it is bounced off the ground, which can make the pitch very deceptive and unpredictable."

"The thrown baseball travels through the air. It may curve or drop but the batsman can follow its flight easily. In cricket, the ball comes off the ground with all sorts or crazy spins and bounces. The batsman needs remarkable quickness to protect himself."

Sir Garfield will be a member of an international cricket team playing an all-star America squad in Shea Stadium next Saturday. The game is a distant cousin of baseball, played with a strange-looking paddle, a wicket and 11 players to the side — most of them lolling in their white pants and funny caps in the outfield.

He said he regretted that an injury will keep Ryan from appearaing with the Angels against the Yankees in the series here.

"I have heard much of him," the dark-skinned native of Barbados said. "Just as I have heard of Babe Ruth, Joe DiMaggio and Mickey Mantle. I would love to see how hard your Nolan Ryan really throws."

Sir Garfield was the epitome of propriety as he shared tea and crumpets with U.S. newsmen in the executive offices of American Airlines, sponsor of the cricket match.

He declined to be lured into a controversy on the respective merits of the two games, although he was quick to refute the suggestion that cricket is a tutti-fruitti sport played interminably by gentlemen in long white flannels while spectators doze in the stands.

"It is true cricket is not as fast as your baseball," he conceded. "Your game is run-run-run, slide-slide-slide. In cricket, one does not need to run unless he wishes to do so. A test match lasts six hours a day for five days, sometimes six days.

The handsome West Indian said the Yankee misconception of the sport probably stems from the fact that it always has been known as "the gentleman's game" and source of the phrase, "That's not cricket."

Player Faces Dilemma

PLAINFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Accept a college scholarship to an American school or turn professional? That is the dilemma facing Wayne Player of Johannesberg, South Africa, 16-year-old son of Gary Player and the youngest competitor in the 78th U.S. Amatuer Golf Championship.

The teen-ager does not have to come up with an answer until he completes at least a two-year compulsory hitch with the South African army. And that tour of duty does not start until January, 1980 when Player turns 18.

In the meantime, the amazing look-alike of his famous father hopes to play the kind of golf that he has displayed on a six-month tour of Europe and the U.S.

UP THERE—Wayne Player, 16-year-old son of golfing great Gary Player, tees off Tuesday during the first round of the U.S. Amateur Golf Championship in Edison, N.J. Young Player won his match. (AP Laserphoto)

Tuesday, after holding a five-stroke lead with six holes remaining, Player finally beat back Flint Lincoln of Longmeadow, Mass., 3 and 2. The teen-ager had six birdies and was 2-under par when the match ended on the 16th hole.

"This is my fourth tournament in the U.S.," said Player. "My best showing was a tie for 20th in the Porter Cup (Niagara Falls, N.Y.)

"I also played in Great Britain and France. It has been a good experience. That's the main thing. Colleges have approached me about schloarships but I have to wait until completing my army service.

"High school is all over for me, so I'll go on the amateur tour in South Africa when I go home. I'm returning right after this tournament."

Does Player expect to play a lot of golf while in the service?

"I expect to be sent to the border and guard against the terrorists," replied Player. "There are a lot of Cubans around there.

"By the time I get out of the army, I may decide to turn pro right away. If not, then I'll consider college. Nothing is definite right now.

"There is even a chance that I'll have to serve three years in the army. The minimum time is under discussion right now."

"There are disadvantages and advantages," said the 5-foot-8, 160-pounder who used his father's caddy Al (Rabbit) Dyer Tuesday. "People expect too much from me.

"The other day I shanked a shot and some guy walked up and said 'what would your father say about that?' I just walked away from that person. People like that don't understand golf.

"An advantage is the way most people treat you. They are nice and I'm always given a place to stay. On the course, I never copy anything my father does. He studies his favorite players and I study mine."

Dyer, who travels with Gary, was available because the elder Player is home in South Africa handling business afairs. Dyer volunteered his service to Wayne. Now if he can only help him get the same scores as Gary Player.

U.S. AMATEURS WIN

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — Terry Francona of Arizona cracked four hits in six times at bat Tuesday as the United States rained 19 hits on Belgium and won 15-0 at the World Amateur Baseball Championship tournament. The game was called after seven innings because of a 10-run rule.

JENNERS IN TRAINING—Olympic champion Bruce Jenner and his wife Chrystie are still in training as they go through exercises for an upcoming event in their lives —the birth of their first baby. The baby is expected in September and Jenner will act as his wife's labor coach. (AP Laserphoto)

Great Gate Crasher To Strike Again In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Age and electronic security measures have narrowed Pinky Ginsberg's options, but the self-proclaimed greatest gate crasher in the world says he'll attend the Ali-Spinks heavyweight championship fight without buying a ticket.

A ringside ticket for the Sept. 15 bout costs $200. The cheapest seat goes for $25.

"Yes, sir, I'll be there. No, sir, I won't pay," the 74-year-old Ginsberg said.

His 58-career as a gate crasher is documented in a bulky album of press clippings, letters and photographs. Since crashing the 1920 World Series he's been an uninvited guest at the White House for 12 presidential inaugurations and has attended numerous state affairs and sports events all over the world.

He said he anticipates no problems getting into the Ali-Spinks fight.

"I got three ways to get in," he said.

"One way is to get a white uniform and carry a doctor's bag. The second way is to dress as a bandmaster. The third way is to dress as a security guard with a roll of empty shells and carry a toy pistol and carry a bag with rocks.

"I went there yesterday and cased the place and I found the best gate to get into.

"Ten minutes before the fight starts, I'll make up my mind what to use."

"All you need is a smile on your face," he said. "Just walk right straight. Don't look around and stop and stutter. If you do, they'll spot you for a phony right away.

"Just keep walking and walking and walking. Once you're inside, look for the press box where they got the chicken and beer."

The press box has been his most frequent vantage point for the big events, he said. "Everybody takes a break once and a while, so you just look around until you spot an empty seat. Then you sit down and wait until the man comes back, and then you move."

Ginsberg said it's getting harder and harder to crash gates.

"I don't advise anybody to start gate crashing," he said. "Right now, with the fires, the bombings, the assassinations and the kidnappings, it's a very, very hard career.

And his age has narrowed his range of possible disguises, he said.

"I do not go to any small events," he said. "I'm 74 years old, now. I can't do the things that I used to do.

"I can't dress as a fireman; I can't dress as a policeman; I can't carry a photographer's camera with me."

He said he's not looking past the big fight for gates to crash, but admitted he'll attend the World Series "if the Good Lord's willing."

"I may be around for that, and I may not be," he said.

STILL CRASHING—Pinky Ginsberg, the self-proclaimed greatest gate crasher in the world, looks at a scrapbook of his 58-year career in New Orleans. Ginsberg, who is 74, plans to attend the Ali-Spinks fight, as usual—without a ticket. (AP Laserphoto)

Paterno Says Penn State Already Tired

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Penn State hasn't played a game, but already coach Joe Paterno says he's tired and that his pre-season third-ranked football team looks the same way.

"It's too long a season," complained Paterno, whose Nittany Lions open Friday night in Philadelphia against the Temple Owls, unranked and a distinct underdog.

"In all fairness, it's been hot, but we are dragging, sloppy, dropping passes ... We look awful sluggish," says Paterno, who still believes his team has the talent to be among the best in the nation.

"Maybe we're bored, waiting to play," said Paterno, who until this week had been running his team through two-a-day drills since pre-season practice opened Aug. 12.

"We're very unsettled," observed the coach as he prepared for the earliest opening in Penn State's 92-year football history. "I don't like opening this early, but we were forced to switch the game (from Nov. 18) because of a conflict with our final exams."

Paterno scoffs at those who claim he switched the Temple game so Penn State could have two warm-ups before meeting Ohio State in Columbus Sept. 16. The switch also gives State a week off before its final game of the season against the tough Pitt Panthers.

Paterno, who has a 12-year record of 112-24-1, also claims he isn't overjoyed opening against a hungry Temple team, which in 1975 and 1976 fought the favored Lions to one-point games. Penn State won 26-25 and 31-30.

"We'll go down there and they'll throw a lot," Paterno predicted. "I have to go by past records and I'm sure they'll test our secondary.

"I know (Brian) Broomell," said Paterno of the starting Temple quarterback. "We talked with him, tried to get him."

"(Anthony) Anderson is a good back," Paterno said of Temple's top running back. "(Mark) Bright is solid and (Zach) Dixon can run." Bright and Dixon are two more of Temple coach Wayne Hardin's runners.

Rudy's Back, Healthy Again

Tomjanovich played well and shot well for an all-star team of NBA players in a 129-122 benefit exhibition victory over Athletes in Action at the San Diego Sports Arena Tuesday night.

The Houston Rockets' forward had 10 points and four rebounds, scoring on a 30-footer to open the game. He made five of his eight shots.

"I have been playing in practices for a Los Angeles summer league team," Tomjanovich said, "In tonight's game as then, I have not felt any ill effects from the injury.

"I am two weeks away from training camp, but I feel I am at my normal level for this time of year.

"I love the game of basketball and I want to quit when I want to quit, not because of something like this," Tomjanovich said of the severe injuries suffered when he was punched by former Los Angeles Laker forward Kermit Washington during a game last Dec. 9.

Tomjanovich had rushed up to Washington, just after Washington and another Houston player had scuffled. The blow caved-in the bones in the center of Tomjanovich's face.

Potential Fills Cougar Squad

mans the other. And there's 6-7, 265-pound Leonard Mitchell as a reserve.

Houston was last in the league in pass defense a year ago, but the stronger front line and the addition of a transfer enhance the secondary's potential. Gerald Cook, Earl Chumchal and kicker Kenny Hatfield form a solid trio at cornerback, and addition of transfer Tommy Ebner (from North Carolina State) makes safety a "strong position" in Yeoman's eyes.

"We have more speed (defensively) than we've ever had," commented Yeoman. "We have some good kids over there."

"If Danny comes along, we will be a respectable threat. The runningbacks and tight end have to come through.

"The return of the two obvious leaders has to help. We were 6-5 last year, and either of them could have helped that."

Now, both are back. So, the show should be lively all fall.

QUOTE BOX

Wide receiver WILLIS ADAMS, on not being heavily recruited out of high school: 'I just weigh ed 179 then (195 now), so I went to junior college (Navarro)".

Returning starting safety Elvis Bradley, on UH having the worst pass defense in the league: " My season went like the team's. I had to cover up for some of the other players, but now with (David) Hodge back, I don't have to do that."

Quarterback DELRICK BROWN, on last year's 6-5 record: "Last year, we were talking about the national champio nship. We were a little cocky. Not now; now, we just want to win."

Linebacker DAVID HODGE, on giving up football for a year: "I had been playing (organized football) since the fourth grade. I was just tired of it. But, the time off helped: I'm more relaxed now."

Quarterback DANNY DAVIS, on last year. "After the Cotton Bowl, we did a lot of talking about it. We got up for UCLA and Penn State. We wanted to beat them. Nobody had ever beaten two teams like that in the same week (UCLA on Monday, Penn State on Saturday). Even Guinness would have put us in his book for something like that." On any special team UH would like to beat. "The coaches don't like for us to say it, but I'd like to beat Arkansas. They're picked first, and also, they've beaten us the last two years, 34-0 last year."

On the bright side for the Raiders, Mike Patterson sustained a sprained ankle—instead of break, as feared—during Monday's practice. The defensive back is expected to return next week.

NOTES: Running backs Steve Dawson and Tim Orr were lost officially for the season Monday because of grades...Fullback James Hadnot was the leading ballcarrier Tuesday, rushing for 69 yards on 14 plays...Quarterback Tres Adami hit five-of-eight passes for 101 yards, leading all passers...Also returning to work was linebacker Jeff Copeland.

Webster Respects New Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Webster says broken promises are the reason he is now a member of the New York Knicks.

The 7-foot-1, 240-pound pivotman, who led the Seattle SuperSonics to the National Basketball Association championship series last season before becoming a free agent, says he was all set to sign a new contract with the SuperSonics last Friday.

"We had reached an agreement, but some things turned out not to be true," Webster said at a news conference at Madison Square Garden Tuesday. "I thought we had agreed on certain things, but when we sat down I saw that was not the case."

Webster and his agent, Larry Fleisher, then reopened negotiations with the Knicks, who had been after Webster all summer long, especially after failing to lure Bill Walton from Portland. They met with Knicks President Mike Burke over the weekend and signed a contract on Monday.

"The Knicks sat down and told me things and they turned out to be true," said Webster. "I respected that. They treated me honestly. That's why I'm here. It wasn't a matter of money at all. It was the way I was treated."

But the money didn't hurt. Knicks officials would not reveal the precise terms of the contract, but Madison Square Garden President Sonny Werblin did say it made Webster the highest paid Knick ever. Bob McAdoo currently earns $500,000 a year, while Webster's contract has been esimated at $3 million over its five-year duration.

"I consider myself a pretty good center and expect to be paid as such," said Webster. "But really, money was not the decisive factor."

Antelopes Still Healthy

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

ABERNATHY—After coach Larry Aldridge walked into his office from an Antelope workout, he sat down, propped the front legs of his chair in the air and formed a satisfied grin on his face.

"Much improved," said Aldridge. "We're way ahead of last year at this time."

Last year, Abernathy struggled through a 1-9 season record. The Antelopes were 0-4 in district 4-AA play.

However, Abernathy's poor record wasn't a true indication of the talent on the team.

"We were hit badly by injuries," said Aldridge. "So far, this season in workouts, we've stayed healthy."

The Antelopes return about the same number of lettermen as they lost to graduation, which means that Abernathy's roster will have almost the same number of experienced players as last year. The Antelopes lost 15 players. They have 14 lettermen returning.

"That's true," said Aldridge. "But we will have more experience at the skill positions."

Leading the Antelopes' running attack will be tailback Lee McCune. McCune (180, Sr) was one of the key figures hit by a knee injury early last season.

"Lee was hurt in the third game of the season," said Aldridge. "He missed the rest of the year. We sort of went downhill from there."

But this season, McCune's knee seems to have regained full strength, and he should be as tough a runner as ever.

"Lee has been bothered by some minor bruises, but he hasn't missed a workout and has looked good in practice," said Aldridge.

A pleasant surprise, according to Aldridge, has been the play of the offensive line.

"Except for David Kennedy, we're counting on all new players to open holes along the offensive line," said Aldridge. "They have lived up to the task by playing smart football."

Kennedy (175, Sr) is a two-year letterman. Joining Kennedy on the offensive line are guard Buddy Bowen (180, Sr), center Wade Henderson (180, Jr), tackles Eric Harkey (210, Sr) and Lance Horsford (185, Jr) and tight end Jimmy Runnels (165, Sr).

Aldridge said his team's first goal this season is to win the first football game. That will be Petersburg.

"I can't think of a tougher opponent," said Aldridge of the current 4A district champions. "If we beat Petersburg, we'll win more than one game this season."

Defensively, Aldridge is concerned with the lack of depth in the linebacking corps.

Again, he is relying on Kennedy to set the example.

"Gilbert Cuevas (195, Jr), is quick, has good anticipation and knows how to read offenses," said the Antelope mentor. "Gilbert should be able to take some of the pressure off David's shoulders."

Trevino Knocks 'Classic Swings'

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Golf books and club pros shouldn't worry so much about "classic" swings and high, arching right-to-left shots, says Lee Trevino. He just aims left of the target and lets fly with the flat swing that has made him a PGA $1 million winner.

"I've done okay with it. I've won a few pesos," Trevino told fans at a charity golf clinic and exhibition, then showed them he can hit the kind of fade most pros prefer. "I could do that all day, but you can't win money with a big old ugly hook."

Trevino mixed some serious golf tips with the one-line humor that has made him a crowd favorite on the tour.

"This is probably the easiest game there is to play," he said. "The ball's not moving. It's just sitting there waiting for you to hit it.

"I enjoy doing this, giving clinics, because I know what the hell I'm talking about and you're all mixed up."

Trevino shared top billing with LPGA professional Jan Stephenson.

"It's very difficult for me to do a clinic with a lady player because I talk so much about the lower body. I mean, the movement of the lower body" in the golf swing, he said.

Trevino said he often gets paired in pro-am events with chairman- of-the-board types whose golf handicaps match their hefty bankrolls.

"They all have a God-awful slice," said Trevino, "so the first thing we do is establish a hunt rule — I don't hunt for their ball and they don't hunt for mine."

Then he glanced at Miss Stephenson, an attractive Australian who was LPGA rookie of the year in 1974.

"If we were playing together you'd have me hooking in those woods," Trevino leered. "If we had a hunt rule, on I'd be down in those woods all the time."

But in the end he sensed the crowd preferred the wisecraking Lee Trevino to his serious alter ego.

Pressure On Mondt Hangs Over UNM

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Bill Mondt's lack of job security was one of the worst-kept secrets of college football last season.

Several times during the year, reports surfaced that Mondt was gone. But reports of his demise proved to be greatly exaggerated and, after the New Mexico football team won four of their last seven games to finish at 5-7, he was retained — but presumably with a win-or-else ultimatum from his superiors.

That black cloud hangs over the Lobo football program this fall. But if the pressure is bothering Mondt, he isn't letting on.

"There aren't more than three football coaches in the country who have any security anyway," the UNM coach told sports writers and broadcasters assembled here on the Western Athletic Conference Skywriters Tour. "I don't feel any different than any other year."

Helping boost his spirits are the 42 lettermen who have returned from last year's young squad, along with some fine freshman recruits, in particular running back Mike Carter. The Lobos obviously expect improvement this fall, and some even talk of a WAC title.

An easier schedule also will help. Last year, after opening at Hawaii, the Lobos faced four straight nationally ranked teams — Texas Tech, Colorado, Brigham Young and Arizona State — and three of those games were on the road. There's none of that this time around.

The problem is especially acute on defense, a unit that yielded an average of 370 yards and 28 points a game last year.

"Last year, we weren't physically strong enough up front to take on people who ran right at us," the Lobo coach says. "So we had to stunt, take chances, and it hurt us.

"If our off-season weight program produces results, our defense will be a good group this year."

Standouts on the defense are free safety Max Hudspeth, middle linebacker Mike Forrest, tackle Robert Rumbaugh and end Charles Baker.

Hudspeth, the son of former Detroit Lion Head Coach Tommy Hudspeth, is a hitter despite his 5-foot-11, 165-pound frame. He is also the team's punter and ranked fourth in the nation with a 13.2-yard punt return average last season.

Forrest, a 6-2, 228-pound junior, was fourth on the team in total tackles in 1977. Moving from strongside to middle linebacker this fall he figures to see even more action.

Rumbaugh, a two-year starter at 6-3 and 228 pounds, made 14 tackles in UNM's victory over Utah.

The 6-2, 210-pound Baker was being compared to Robin Cole after leading the team in tackles and quarterback sacks as a sophomore.

Nobody runs between the tackles better than fullback Mike Williams, the leader of the Lobo offense. The 6-3, 225-pounder led the WAC in rushing for the second straight year despite missing the final two games with a knee injury. He finished with 1,096 yards on 265 carries, including a school-record 236 yards on a WAC record 47 carries against Texas-El Paso.

Quarterback Noel Mazzone, fifth in the WAC in total offense in 1977, is back for his senior season. The Lobos have some swift, sure-handed receivers in flankers Keittight, end Chris Wyrick, split end Ricky Martin and tight ends Chris Combs and Walt Arnold.

Contender Dies

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Paul Neilson, the No. 1 contender for the Canadian heavyweight boxing title, died early today when the car he was driving overturned on a private road near Myrtle Beach, authorities said.

Highway Patrolman W.E. Thompson said Neilson, 30, failed to negotiate a sharp turn near the beach about two miles north of the Myrtle Beach city limits. He died on the scene.

President Joins Olympic Effort

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — President Carter today joined in the bid to get the 1984 Summer Olympic Games staged in Los Angeles.

As the executive board of the International Olympic Committee sat down to consider a new plan for taking the financial burden of the games off Los Angeles taxpayers, IOC President Lord Killanin received a cable from the White House.

President Carter messaged: "On behalf of the American people, I expend sincere hopes that the International Olympic Committee will act favorably on Los Angeles' bid for the 1984 Olympic Games. Best regards. Sincerely, Jimmy Carter."

No One Laughs At Denver Now

DENVER (AP) — You could hear the laughter from coast to coast.

Tom Jackson, the Denver Broncos' ebullient linebacker, predicted on the eve of the 1977 season that his team would win "at least 11 of our 14 games."

But Jackson had the last laugh. No one else came as close to predicting Denver's 12-2 season.

So what does he see in his crystal ball this time around?

"If we avoid injuries to our key personnel, we'll be 13-3," he said.

You can bet that, over in Oakland, Al Davis & Co. aren't chuckling. Instead, they're gearing up for being better than 13-3 and reclaiming the American Conference's West Division title, which went to the Broncos for the first time last season.

The 1978 division race shapes up as another close battle between the Broncos and Raiders, with the San Diego Chargers looming as a darkhorse contender.

Most National Football League observers, apparently viewing Denver's Cinderella season as a fluke, have forecast that the Broncos will slip to second or even third place in the division this year. But Jackson doesn't agree.

"We'll be good," said Jackson, one of five Bronco defenders to play in the Pro Bowl. "I have no doubt we'll be somewhere around the playoff picture again. There won't be any big dropoff for us — unless we have some major injuries."

If the Broncos are to stay on top, they'll need more than just an avoidance of injuries. Denver must get the same fierce, ball-hawking style of play from its "Orange Crush" defense, and the same consistent, almost flawless quarterbacking from Craig Morton.

Coach Red Miller plans few changes in the Bronco lineup this fall. Miller hasn't tampered with the defense, highlighted by its active linebacking corps that includes Jackson and Randy Gradishar. Other defensive standouts are end Lyle Alzado, cornerback Louis Wright and safety Bill Thompson.

The offensive line emerged as a weak spot, especially during the Super Bowl loss to Dallas, but Miller expects improvement with the return of tackle Bill Bain, out last season with a knee injury.

Morton ranked third in the AFC in passing last season and threw a league-low eight interceptions. But he also was sacked an alarming 43 times.

You won't find any 1,000-yard rushers on the Broncos roster because of Miller's policy of rotating his backs. Otis Armstrong paced the team with 859 yards last year. Haven Moses heads up the solid receiver corps.

Jim Turner, the fifth leading scorer in NFL history, is a reliable place-kicker. Punter Bucky Dilts, as a rookie, averaged only 39 yards a kick but showed amazing accuracy.

Unlike the Broncos, the Raiders were devastated by injuries in 1977. It began with linebacker Phil Villapiano in the season opener and ended with wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff in the AFC title game.

"Injuries just killed us," said Davis.

The Oakland secondary, a potential weakness, has undergone some shakeups. With safety George Atkinson having been released and cornerback Willie Brown beginning to show his 37 years, youngsters Charles Phillips and Lester Hayes will see much action, along with newly acquired cornerback Monte Jackson, a former Los Angeles Ram. Elsewhere on defense, the Raiders are solid.

Two changes are in store in the offensive line. Second-year pro Mickey Marvin appears to have beaten out 10-year veteran George Buehler at right guard and Henry Lawrence will take over at right tackle for the injured John Vella. Mark van Eeghen, the slashing fullback who led the AFC in rushing last year with 1,273 yards, heads the running back corps.

Ken Stabler, whose "off" year in 1977 — when the Raiders were 11-3 — would have pleased most NFL quarterbacks, will be throwing to a classy receiver corps in Biletnikoff, Cliff Branch and tight end Dave Casper. Ray Guy is the top punter in the universe.

San Diego, better than last year's 7-7 record would indicate, looks for improvement. The Chargers have been working on sharpening their running attack, which finished a disappointing 22nd in the league in 1977. Guard Ed White was acquired from Minnesota and running back Lydell Mitchell from Baltimore. Both should help.

White's 270 pounds give the Chargers a huge offensive front. Dan Fouts, who held out for nine games last year, and James Harris are vying for the starting quarterback spot. Top draft choice John Jefferson figures to be a starter at wide receiver.

Dolphins Confident In Backups

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins, who've seen it happen before, don't think the loss of star quarterback Bob Griese is enough to end their Super Bowl hopes.

Griese, an 11-year veteran coming off his finest season statistically, will be sidelined several weeks — possibly for the season — with a knee injury suffered in last Friday's preseason victory over Tampa Bay. Veteran backup Don Strock and rookie Guy Benjamin think that they can handle the pressure of leading the Dolphins, and their teammates agreed.

"We have all the confidence in the world in Strock. I think he's proved in the past he could step in and do a good job," Griese said. "Both of these guys can, that's why you talk about depth, in case someone gets injured."

Center Jim Langer said the Dolphins remember that after Griese suffered a broken leg in 1973, backup Earl Morrall led the Dolphins to the Super Bowl.

"The first time it happened we were in the process of a winning season, and it hit me hard. But I learned that year that other players can come in and pick the team up," Langer said.

"We know we can win with Don Strock, and we're not just blowing smoke. He's come in with less experience in the past and done a good job," Langer said.

Strock, who threw only four passes last season, said he's "a little excited because I'm going to start.

"I feel I'm in control of the situation. I'm going to give it my best shot," he said.

The unflappable backup said he feels his past performances should inspire confidence. In 1975, he stepped in for the injured Griese and now-retired Morrall to complete 12 of 15 passes in a victory over Buffalo, then helped Miami battle the Baltimore Colts into overtime before losing 10-7.

Asked how he will do against the three-four defense, Strock replied, "I face the best three-four in the league every day at practice.

"I'm not fantasizing about leading the team to the Super Bowl or anything. I don't know whether I'll be playing all year. I'm just going to play my best. If Griese comes back, then he'll probably start," Strock said.

Benjamin, a second-round draft choice who led the nation with a 60.6 completion percentage at Stanford last season, said he'll be ready if Strock falters or is injured.

"I made some stupid mistakes at first in the preseason games, but I think I'm coming along now. I've always been preparing for each game as if I would start," Benjamin said.

"What can I say? Sure there would be pressure, but that's part of the game. If I couldn't handle it, I wouldn't be here. I can't do what Griese can do, but I can go in and do what I do best," Benjamin said.

Murray Olderman's PRO CHARTS

PROSPECTUS

There's too much unrest in Colts' stable to suit me. Lydell Mitchell has missed most of camp; John Dutton's been reluctant warrior. They haven't been able to solve some defensive problems. Of course, basic talent that propelled them to third straight division title is still there, so you can't low-rate them.

OFFENSE

Bert Jones is the leader. He's the most exciting quarterback in the game and right at the peak of his prowess, both as a talent and as team leader. Mitchell has been superb all-duty back spelled by Don McCauley, who, like Lydell, is excellent receiver. At fullback, Ron Lee, a better runner, might oust Roosevelt Leaks. Roger Carr's failure to pass physical dampens receiving corps. Must also replace Raymond Chester at tight end with rookie Reese McCall. Retirement of Elmer Collett finally gives Ken Huff chance at guard. Top man up front remains George Kunz, who makes Pro Bowl every year and is joined by vet brigade. Toni Linhart is consistent on field goals. Rating — B+

DEFENSE

That's a fine front four when all are ready to play: John Dutton and Fred Cook at ends, Mike Barnes and Joe Ehrmann inside. Strong against rush, also adept at harassing passer. Search continues for middle linebacker because Willie Lanier couldn't hack it at his age. Tom MacLeod's retirement also opens up spot on outside. Stan White is opportunistic outside backer who remains. Maybe Mike Woods, touted rookie linebacker, can lick rep as problem player and step in. The secondary is fairly set since ex-Card Norm Thompson stepped into corner post last year. Safety Lyle Blackwood led NFL in intercepts. The returns are in good hands, and David Lee has punted steady since '66. Rating — B

PREDICTION

Ted Marchibroda is an astute coach, but I've got hunch that Colts are due for a fall. They'll still have a winning record because of Jones & Co., but I pick them THIRD in AFC East.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

PROSPECTUS

Chuck Knox, coming across from Los Angeles, starts from scratch, literally. Money, omnipresent in NFL these days, is about all Bills have. The O.J. Simpson era is over. But I have a lot of confidence in Knox's ability as organizer and astute football theoretician. On that basis alone, there will be improvement in '78.

OFFENSE

Even without O.J., all is not lost. The line has a pair of guards, Joe DeLamielleure and Reggie McKenzie, who'll match up with anybody. Tackle Joe Devlin is a comer, Paul Seymour could always be moved from tight end. For offensive sparkle, Joe Ferguson has already proved he can heave touchdown passes in bunches. The problem is finding a target. Bob Chandler, one of best in game, is virtually only one among wide receivers. And he's not a real deep threat. At tight end, Reuben Gant is fine for passing situations. No one says O.J. won't be missed, but rookie Terry Miller was a prize catch in the draft. The placekicking job is open, with Tom Dempsey likely. Rating — C+

DEFENSE

Raft of problems beset this unit. Mike Kadish, their best lineman, failed to report because of contract hassle. A rookie, Dee Hardison, has been pencilled in at tackle, alongside Phil Dokes, a failure in '77. The ends, Sherman White and Ben Williams, haven't delivered pass rush. The linebacking is a battle zone. Only one they can count on is Shane Nelson, a free agent from last year. It gets a little better in the secondary, where the lineup is the same, with quality players in Mario Clark at the corner and Tony Greene at free safety. They'll be poring over the waiver lists for help. Rusty Jackson has been brought in to challenge punter Marv Bateman. Rating — C-

PREDICTION

Look for rookie back Miller to be first-year whiz. Other than that, Bills are not going to have much to brag about in this first rebuilding season of Knox regime. Pick 'em FOURTH in AFC East.

Tigers Announce Managerial Shift

DETROIT (AP) — At a time of the baseball season often rife with managerial shakeups, the Detroit Tigers have announced a front office reoganization that made nearly everyone involved happy.

The changes, made Tuesday, probably won't faze the average fan. But club owner John Fetzer hopes they streamline the Tigers operation, giving him more time to handle major problems and provide a more efficient chain of command.

"It isn't that I'm taking to the rocking chair in any sense of the word," said the 77-year-old Fetzer. "But this will help to facilitate handling of problems that lie ahead. I want to carry on with a broad scope of problems."

Japanese Slugger Hits 800th Homer

TOKYO (AP) — Sadaharu Oh of the Yomiuri Giants, who surpassed Hank Aaron's American record of 755 home runs last Sept. 3, hit the 800th homer of his 20-year baseball career Wednesday night.

The 800th homer came in the 2,562nd game of his career — on his 8,330th trip to the plate.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices, under pressure from favorable growing conditions, closed mostly lower on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday.

Continuing rains following the previously dry conditions touched off active trading that caused moderate drops in the soybean, wheat and corn pits.

Also adding to the weakness was a weekly grain export report showing lower soybean, wheat and corn exports than had been expected.

At the close soybeans prices ranged from 1¼ cents to 5 cents lower with September contracts quoted at $6.49½; wheat was 2¼ to 4¾ cents lower, September $3.26¾; corn was 1½ to 5½ cents lower, September $2.14½ and oats were unchanged to 2½ cents lower, September $1.23.

Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed $1.25 a bale higher to $1.50 lower Tuesday.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading in the Lubbock spot cotton market was active. Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy and demand was good.

Growers offered 1978 crop contracts for 1,300 to 1,400 points over 1977-loan rates.

Marine Recruiter Acquitted By Jury

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — A court-martial jury has found a Marine recruiter innocent of charges of dereliction of duty in knowingly recruiting illegal aliens into the Marine Corps.

The jury of four officers and three enlisted men deliberated about 15 minutes Tuesday before acquitting Staff Sgt. Artis Washington of illegal recruitment and falsifying documents. Three other sergeants from a New York City recruiting station also faced court-martial on charges of illegally recruiting Panamanian nationals.

Solon Raps Office Renovation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A recent $47,496 office renovation for an Agriculture Department official was needless and "imperial," Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Tuesday.

The Foreign Agricultural Service asked the General Services Administration to refurnish and renovate the offices of FAS Administrator Thomas Hughes about a year ago, and the work was completed in April, Proxmire said in a statement.

The agency explained its request at the time — and in response to later questions about it — by saying the suite had had no work done on it for 22 years, except for occasional painting.

Proxmire said, "Those 20 years set a marvelous precedent and one that should have been followed by Mr. Hughes," who was appointed administrator in July 1977.

An FAS spokesman, Don Looper, said the suite contains four rooms, not six as Proxmire said, and five persons work in them.

Proxmire was particularly critical of a $2,448 expenditure for Canadian antique birch paneling, but Looper said all the items bought for the renovation, including the paneling, drapes and carpeting, were in GSA's standard catalog for government office equipment.

The agency also had said, Proxmire noted, "that a complete renovation was needed 'to enhance this agency's image to the general public, foreign visitors and others visiting the agency head'."

"To this, I respond that the image of the FAS would have received the greatest enhancement through a continuing example of prudent spending on the administrator's suite," he said.

Seminar Set On Feedmill Management

More than 80 industry representatives will attend a Feedmill Management Seminar at the Texas Tech Lubbock County field laboratory feedmill on Sept. 12.

The laboratory is east of New Deal on Farm Road 1729.

The seminar is co-sponsored by the Texas Tech College of Agricultural Sciences and the Allied Industries Committee of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association (TCFA).

Sessions will begin at 9 a.m. when Dr. A. Max Lennon, assistant dean for research of the college, welcomes participants and makes introductions.

A discussion on "Energy Costs — What Can You Do About Them?" will be directed by Dr. James H. Strickland, Texas Tech associate professor of mechanical engineering; Dr. John McNeil, livestock specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service; and Dr. Hollis Klett, Nutrition Service Associates, Inc., consultant.

Dr. C. Reed Richardson of the Texas Tech animal science faculty and seminar coordinator will join Dr. Chet Fields, Farr Better Foods nutritionist, in discussing, "Quality Control and Inventory Control — How Important?"

"Medicated Feeds — An Update on Regulation" will be discussed by Dr. Richard McDonald, executive director of TCFA; Dr. Tom Snodgrass, regional veterinary medical officer of the Federal Drug Administration, Dallas; and I. J. Shenkir, assistant director of feed for the Texas Feed and Fertilizer Control Service.

The seminar is open to the public. The registration fee is $10.

Bullet Found Inside Egg

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — What? A bullet from a pullet?

After she cracked an egg into her frying pan, Althea Lyshon found a .22 caliber bullet lodged in the egg white.

Just how the live round of ammunition got into the pan is anybody's guess. Mrs. Lyshon is sure it wasn't stuck to the outside of the egg.

Someone at the Maine Department of Agriculture told her it could have been ingested by the chicken when it got mixed up with a load of grain.

PBS Stations To Present Thornton Wilder Plays

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The dramas you see on public TV usually are made in New York, here and London. But now, the Midwest will be checking in with a half-hour work from WHA-TV in Madison, Wis.

It's "Wilder Wilder," consisting of four short plays by a Madison lad who made good — the late Thornton Wilder, author of such classics as "Our Town" and "By the Skin of Our Teeth."

PBS's national air date for "Wilder Wilder" is tonight, but check your TV listings for the local telecast of the show, a pilot for a possible series of dramas by Midestern playwrights.

The program's wee plays aren't too well-known. They're "The Flight into Egypt," "Now The Servant's Name was Malchus," "The Penny that Beauty Spent" and "And the Sea Shall Give Up Its Dead."

Performed by members of the Milwaukee Repertory Theater, the dramas come from a collection of Wilder's early writings, "The Angel That Troubled The Waters," published in 1928.

The playlets always were thought impossible to put on stage, says producer-director Rudi Goldman, because not only were they brief, each "had a liberal dose of outrageously demanding requirements."

These include, he noted, a lavish personal jewelry store owned by a French king in "Penny," a talking donkey in "Egypt" and last, but not least, the end of the world in "Sea."

But suspicion lurked at WHA-TV, operated by the University of Wisconsin, that TV might be able to deal with the visual demands made in these wild, pre-TV plays of Wilder, he said.

He said the show began taking form with class exerises in reading Wilder's early plays. The classes were run by Esther Jackson, a Wilder expert and a member of the univerity's theater department.

"Before we produced anything, they (students) tried them out in classes and workshops, tried playing some of them," Goldman said by phone from his office at WHA-TV.

Then, he said, John Dillon, artistic director of the Milwaukee Rep, perused the "Angel" collection, picked four of the book's 16 plays, and summoned his players for rehearsals.

Filming started last August and ended in January. The total cost, Goldman said, was $90,000 — a sum that would buy a 30-second prime-time commercial on network TV.

Goldman, a former Air Force C-130 transport pilot whose acclaimed aviation documentary, "Affair in the Air," was on PBS this summer, said the world-ending "Sea" segment was his hardest task.

It involved a decision to depict the grand finale with an implosion instead of a big bang, much electronic wizardry, and many consultations with the university's chemistry department.

Prior to all that, he laughed, "I almost went nuts. I sat around in bars asking people, 'How does one destroy the Earth?'"

Art Work Of Family

By MICHAEL WEST

LONDON (AP) — Two leading British experts say many pictures attributed to John Constable, the famous 19th century English landscape painter, are really the work of little-known members of his family.

Leslie Parris, deputy keeper of London's Tate Gallery, and Ian Fleming-Williams, the Tate's art historian, say their findings will force reassessment of hundreds of Constables in the Tate, the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford, the Paul Mellon Collection at Yale University, the Philadelphia Museum of Art and other collections.

Critics and dealers said Parris and Fleming-Williams so far have proved "beyond reasonable doubt" that at least 20 oil paintings, drawings and sketches attributed to Constable are the work of his fourth son, Lionel, who was nine years old when his father died in 1837.

The Constables rarely signed their works. The two experts' said their findings are based on slight differences in style as well as evidence supplied by present members of the Constable family and by Leggatts, the London art firm that bought 177 works attributed to Constable from the artist's grandson, Hugh Constable, in 1899.

The family just did not know the difference between the work of John and Lionel Constable, the experts said.

Dealer Hugh Leggatt said the work of Parris and Fleming-Williams was "a major breakthrough in the art world" and "a remarkable piece of art detection work."

"I think it means that Lionel Constable will now become a major artist in his own right and the value of his work will have to be reassessed," he said.

Leggatt added that the confusion between John and Lionel Constable was just the tip of the iceberg.

"Three other sons painted — John Charles, Charles Golding and Alfred," he said. "His daughter Isabel painted flower pictures. His grandson Hugh painted marine and country scenes. It is clearly possible that some of their work is masquerading as that of John."

One well-known painting the two experts now attribute to Lionel Constable is the Tate's "Near Stoke by Nayland."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The quiet manner in which you set about doing things tomorrow should prove to be highly profitable. Without outside influence you'll be able to do what you know to be right.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your highly receptive mind puts you in an excellent position to learn something new tomorrow. This knowledge will enable you to go after a personal goal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It will not be important to show your strength tomorrow. Placing all your energies on your inner resolve will win you your prize.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The soft-sell approach will be the right one tomorrow. Apply your charm and humor to any situation, and you'll woo others into your corner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) While doing for others you will gain a great deal of ground tomorrow. You won't have to settle for second best, even though you concentrated on someone else.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) People will be sensitive to your needs tomorrow. If there is a favor you've been wanting to ask for, tomorrow will be the day to do it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Tasks you will tackle tomorrow will be accomplished with ease and efficiency. You should be able to take great pride in the results.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The blending of enthusiasm with warmth will produce for you tomorrow a mannerism others will find most appealing. Your company will be welcomed in any circle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your efforts for loved ones tomorrow will be well spent. You'll be able to help them overcome tasks that appeared insurmountable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It will be to your advantage to be a good listener tomorrow. Someone with your best interests at heart will be trying to tell you something to help you socially.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your chances for acquisition look quite promising because of the resourceful manner in which you will approach a task tomorrow. Follow through on any clever idea.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Tomorrow should be a fun day, involving much activity. It's probable you'll be the one who gets the gang really jumping.

Your Birthday

Aug. 30, 1978

There are changes in store for you this coming year which you might feel you don't have control over, but it won't be anything to worry about. In fact, the more you relax and flow with events, the more gains will come your way.

California Approves Med License Bill

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Some foreign physicians who have moved to California could practice medicine without a state license under a bill approved by the Legislature.

The state Senate, following the House's lead, approved a bill Monday prompted by the case of two Soviet Jewish doctors who fled the Soviet Union 2½ years ago.

Sen. Alan Robbins of Van Nuys said that because of language difficulties the two doctors could not pass the California test given only in English.

Robbins hailed the doctors as "two of the most qualified anesthesiologists in the world" and said his bill would provide help for future doctors in a similar situation.

Critic Has High Praise For CBS Special

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Everyone knows Lawrence Welk, but how many people out there in champagne music land ever heard of Lance and Louie Welk, the brothers who never made it past the beer and pretzel stage?

You can see them on "The Funny World of Fred and Bunni," to be broadcast by CBS tonight at 7.

Fred is Travalena, a one-man variety show who specializes in imitations, although he also sings and tells jokes.

Travalena and guest Pat Harrington (without the mustache he wears as Schneider on "One Day At A Time") do a number in which they play Lance and Louie, the forgotten Welks. Every time Harrington exclaims, with Welkian accent, "Sonja Henie's tutu!", Travalena, who's supposed to be playing the other brother, breaks up.

There's no way to tell how much is rehearsed and how much is real, but the combination of the double Welk accent and the break-up provides one of the funniest few minutes on television in a long time.

Over-all, the show is pleasant and entertaining, relying heavily on Travalena's talents as a mimic and innovator.

One innovation that may be part of a new television trend is the combination of animation with live actors — starting out with the Bunni of the title, a gorgeous cartoon strip of a girl.

Every so often a funny little green cartoon man with a Peter Lorre accent pops up on the screen and the show has its house critic in a bright yellow star with a Paul Lynde voice that interrupts to insist, "Boring, bor-ing."

The big number of the show comes when Travalena imitates Barry Manilow, Henry "The Fonz" Winkler, Frank Sinatra and Paul Williams in a musical number. Thanks to the magic of television gimmickry, all appear on stage together, although not all the imitations are as successful as Travalena's Sinatra, which is terrific.

Among Travalena's repertoire of impersonations are Jim Nabors, Clint Eastwood, Howard Cosell and, of course, Jimmy Carter.

One unsettling thing for anyone old enough to qualify as a long-time fan of impersonators — here's a whole hour of imitation without one Jimmy Cagney, Jimmy Stewart or Ronald Coleman.

Sandy Duncan and Vicki Lawrence are Travalena's other guests, and both are fun to have around.

Travalena's talent makes him a candidate for many more television appearances, and the cartoon touch is provided by the ubiquitous Hanna-Barbera production firm, with Joseph Barbera as executive producer.

Actress' Adopted Daughter Tells Of Mistreatment

NEW YORK (AP) — The late Joan Crawford is protrayed much like one of the bizarre characters she played in the horror films of her later years in a book written by her adopted daughter, Christina.

Christina Crawford Koontz is one of four adopted children. The actress, who died May 10, 1977, at the age of 69, left $77,500 each to two other daughters but nothing to either Christina or her brother, Christopher. Christina and Christopher are contesting their mother's will.

The daughter writes that Miss Crawford lavished "affection, attention and adornment" on her, gave her birthday parties that featured full-sized merry-go-rounds, clowns, puppet shows and organ grinders and finally, on her fourth birthday, "a private circus, a miniature Disneyland before one ever existed for the public."

"She saved every bit of hair cut from my head, every tooth from my mouth," Christina writes. "All were carefully sealed in envelopes and labelled in her generous handwriting.

"There were gifts for which she wrote little notes — 'to my beautiful infant,' 'I love you my darling, beautiful child.'"

But as Christina and her brother, Chris, also adopted, grew older, she writes, the actress frequently made their life a horror with her obsessions about cleanliness and neatness.

As punishment for tearing a bit of wallpaper off her bedroom wall, Christina writes, Miss Crawford took the girl's favorite yellow dress, cut it to shreds with scissors then forced her to wear it for a week, even during appearances before company.

The daughter writes that Miss Crawford locked her in closets, tied her up in the shower and fashioned a "sleep safe" to tie Chris into bed so he could not go to the toilet or get a drink without permission.

She says she was ordered to clean her mother's dressing room as a punishment. When Miss Crawford found streaks on the floor, she flew into a rage, beat the 7-year-old child over the head with a can of cleanser until it exploded, spraying all over the room, then forced Christina to clean the room again.

"I truly wished that the earth would open and just swallow me up and take me out of this eternal misery and punishment," writes Christina.

She says the children were frequently subjected to "night raids" during which Miss Crawford would storm into the room, wake them up and make them clean their rooms.

In the worst "night raid," she says, the victim was not a child but a beautiful rose garden in full bloom.

Christina relates how Miss Crawford went out on a moonlit night and hacked every rose bush to the ground. She made the children and servants carry them away, then demanded a saw and cut down an orange tree full of fruit.

'La Familia' Band Draws Big Crowds

By SUSAN LINNEE

TEMPLE (AP) — Sometime during the last century in south Texas, Mexican-American musicians playing traditional Mexican rancheras on big guitars ran across Czech immigrants playing polkas on accordions. The result was a musical hybrid that Jose Maria de Leon Hernandez thinks might follow the route of tacos and chili to Americans' hearts.

"Ten years ago what did an Anglo know about a burrito or a taco or a nacho?" asked Joe Hernandez, better known as Little Joe, the high priest of musica chicana, or Tex-Mex, or simply the Brown Sound. "Now, you can drive north from Brownsville and know there will always be a taco somewhere."

Hernandez, with his brother Johnny, leads a band called La Familia that can easily draw several thousand to a dance at one of the many ballrooms in Mexican-American communities throughout Texas. And wherever Mexican-Americans have migrated, Little Joe and his musical family is a star attraction.

But Hernandez, one of 14 children from a family of migrant workers who made their home base in Temple, thinks musica chicana, like other Tex-Mex specialties, is ready for a wider audience.

The roots of the music are in the northern Mexican ranchera, traditionally played on a bajo sexto guitar, accompanied by bass and drums. But the addition of the accordion and the polka beat gave what used to be called "happy music" a sound all its own.

Little Joe took out the accordion but kept the beat, added keyboards and horns and turned what younger Mexican-Americans used to think of as old folks' music into a tight, hard-driving sound that makes people rush out to the dance floor as soon as the band plunges into "Chaparrita de Oro" ("Little Goldie").

"Chicano music is closely related to country-western, and although its roots are Mexican, it is not Mexican music," said Hernandez, who spent time in California with Santana and other Latin-based musicians until he realized it was time to come home with what he had learned.

"In the past 20 years Chicano music has taken a turn. It's been 'Americanized,' if you want to call it that," he said, "but it's still our sound and our feeling."

Chicano music has suffered from too little organization and lack of access to big labels and distributors that assure entry into the major markets. Promoters of salsa, which differs from musica chicana in its Afro-Cuban rhythm, face similar problems, but disco dancing is introducing many people to sounds they once thought were too foreign.

But even in Texas where it all began, it is still difficult to find Chicano music outside barrio record stores. Hernandez conceded that Spanish lyrics may create a barrier to wider acceptance but feels they are vital to the culture of which his music is a part.

Hernandez, who said the quality of production may be a key to getting the Brown Sound to a wider audience, is putting the finishing touches on his own studio in Temple where he will record La Familia and other Chicano and Mexican groups on his new Leona label.

"After investing hundreds of thousands of dollars in other people's studios, I thought it was time to set up my own," he said. "If I hang on long enough and produce my music well enough, sooner or later they have to recognize that it's not only Mexican-American — it's music."

Balloonist Trio Back At Work

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Three trans-Atlantic balloonists are settling back into the routine of business this week, at least until a scheduled reception at the White House Friday.

"I have to go back to work. There are many things to be done," Maxie Anderson said Monday. "I'll try to catch some rest on weekends."

Anderson, the president of Ranchers Exploration and Development Corp., a uranium and copper mining firm, joined Ben Abruzzo and Larry Newman for the history-making voyage across the Atlantic in the Double Eagle II earlier this month. The trio returned home Saturday.

"I'm going to get back to my business and get organized again," said Abruzzo, who owns the Sandia Peak Tram Co. and a realty business. "We also have to decide how to handle the unbelievable response we've gotten."

Newman, head of Electra Flyer Corp. which manufacturers hang gliders, said he was looking forward to returning to work.

"My business is pleasure," he said.
