Rivers rampage; hundreds evacuated; Guard sent in

By The Associated Press

Police said "hundreds of kids" at summer camps along the rampaging Guadalupe River near Kerrville were being evacuated this morning as heavy rains continued to inundate the stricken Hill Country area.

National Guard units were mobilized and at least six Army and Department of Public Safety helicopters were launched to aid with air-to-ground rescue efforts.

A spokesman at the Kendall County sheriff's office in Boerne between Kerrville and San Antonio said all of the camps were safely evacuated by about 10 a. m. except Camp Capers at Kerrville.

"They can't get to them by land so it looks like they're going to have to pull them out by chopper," said the spokesman. He added that the small town of Comfort appeared to be virtually cut off and that "300 to 400 people" were in need of evacuation.

"All we are getting is on our radio," he said. "There is no other way to communicate with those people now. It looks pretty bad."

At the request of the DPS, Gov. Dolph Briscoe this morning mobilized National Guard units in Fredericksburg and Kerrville to help with the evacuation.

At 6:30 a. m., a Department of Public Safety spokesman said the Kerrville DPS office put out the call to the National Guard to help evacuate residents, some of whom were reported standing on the roofs of their submerged homes. Briscoe responded, ordering 15 men and six trucks from the guard unit at Fredericksburg to the scene.

An hour later, Fort Sam Houston dispatched four Army helicopters for air-to-ground rescues. Two DPS helicopters from Corpus Christi and Austin were also summoned and other police helicopters from Austin were placed on emergency standby.

Despite the widespread alarm, no deaths or missing persons had been reported by mid-morning.

Official reports from the stricken area said saturated bottom land near the south fork of the river had received 12 inches of rain by 11 p. m. Tuesday and 5.30 a. m. today. He said rainfall rates in the same area were continuing at about two inches per hour.

At Hunt, roaring brown flood water was two feet deep across Texas 39, the DPS said. At Ingram, water from the Guadalupe River was running four feet over a dam. At Center Point, the Guadalupe was running about 21 feet above normal, the spokesman reported.

Forecasters said the situation along Guadalupe River and along all its tributaries was "critical" and said the situation along the Sabinal and its tributaries was "serious."

The warnings issued by the NWS were blunt. "Please get away from the Guadalupe River at once," forecasters said in the warning issued at San Antonio.

There were no reports of injuries, but some communications facilities were damaged by lightning accompanied by the heavy, rain-soaked thunderstorms.

A Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman at San Antonio said the DPS reported that about 12 inches of rain fell at the headwaters of the Guadalupe River between 11 p. m. Tuesday and 5.30 a. m. today. He said rainfall rates in the same area were continuing at about two inches per hour.

At Hunt, roaring brown flood water was two feet deep across Texas 39, the DPS said. At Ingram, water from the Guadalupe River was running four feet over a dam. At Center Point, the Guadalupe was running about 21 feet above normal, the spokesman reported.

There were no reports of evacuations in the area, but telephone and power lines were downed in heavy thunderstorms and reports from the area were sketchy.

Lightning damaged some communications equipment at the DPS office at Kerrville, the spokesman said.

Forecasters warned all persons to stay away from both the Guadalupe River and the Sabinal River.

Some urban flooding was reported during the night in San Antonio as heavy amounts of rainfall were reported across a wide area of South Central Texas and in the Hill Country.

Skies were cloudy early today over most of Central and Southeast Texas. The low cloudiness associated with the warm, moist air blowing in from the Gulf of Mexico was expected to move northward into North Central Texas today, taking with it some of the heavy rainfall activity.

Early morning temperatures were quite warm. Most readings were in the 70s with extremes ranging from 58 at Marfa in the mountains of Southwest Texas to near 80 along the Gulf coast.

Forecasters called for partly cloudy skies over most of the state today. Showers and thunderstorms were expected to develop in areas from the Big Bend region eastward

Perez' claims at center of government review?

By MARK VOGLER
Copyright 1978, Midland Reporter-Telegram

An ex-jailer's claim that Ector County Sheriff Elton Faught sought to control the amount and nature of information made available to officials investigating the Larry Lozano case is now apparently a focal point of material being reviewed by U.S. Justice Department officials in Washington.

Gabriel R. Perez told a state attorney general investigator last February that he knew of possible violations of Lozano's civil rights during his confinement Jan. 10 to Jan. 22 in the Ector County Jail and had tried to advise the sheriff's department to that effect, according to three persons who reportedly witnessed the interview in Austin.

The jailer's account was part of the investigator's files turned over to a federal grand jury which recessed July 21 in Midland after hearing testimony from 66 witnesses, say sources close to the investigation.

Ector County District Attorney

John Green attempted without success to obtain a transcript of Perez' statement for the Ector County Grand Jury which July 24 conducted a one day in session probe of the Lozano case.

A transcript of some of the ex-jailer's conversations has been studied by The Reporter Telegram.

A U.S. Justice Department official in Washington, D.C., recently told the newspaper that the transcript was "privileged information" since it was part of the investigative files received by the grand jury, although the official declined to discuss the nature of its contents.

In an interview this week with The Reporter Telegram, Faught denied charges leveled at him by ex-jailer Perez, declaring "the whole thing is untrue." The sheriff added that he at no time following Lozano's death ever had the occasion to confer with Perez about what he (Perez) might know about the case.

Perez' deposition, which is now in the hands of U.S. Justice Department officials, has provoked much interest among followers of the Lozano case.

The jailer resigned July 24 following an appearance before the Ector County Grand Jury.

After his testimony before the county grand jury, it was reported by at least one Ector County official that Perez did not make any serious or damaging allegations against the Ector County Sheriff's Department.

However, the transcript reviewed by The Reporter Telegram claimed, among other things, that Faught:

—Helped to shape the story for a Jan. 23 press conference which reportedly altered versions offered by some of his underlings.

—Ignored Perez' contention during a period of time following Jan. 22 (the day Lozano died) that Lozano had been subjected to physical abuse and had not committed suicide.

—Arranged for and attended a Jan. 29 meeting — one week after Lozano's death — for the purpose of "getting the story straight."

—Urged Perez not to tell what he claimed to know about the case to investigators.

—Instructed Perez to meet with Faught and Green if contacted by the Lozano family's lawyer, Ruben Sandoval.

Faught disputed reports last week that Perez had been pressured to resign from the sheriff's department because of the jailer's attempts to expose potential evidence about the case to state investigators.

The allegations about the sheriff's possible involvement in certain aspects of the Lozano case are only part of the basis of Perez' statement, which was given in February by Perez to Dan Maeso, at the time an investigator for the state attorney general's office.

Perez was subpoenaed for a coroner's inquest held in April in Odessa, but he was not called to testify. The jury for that inquest ruled Lozano's death to have been accidental, an ostensible result of efforts by deputies to restrain him.

Perez' February statement to Maeso became a much-tossed-about bone of contention between Green and Texas Attorney General John Hill. Green has said Hill's office withheld the material from the coroner's inquest.

Hill has replied that his office's report on local handling of the Lozano case was not completed until after the inquest — that the inquest, in fact, was a point of discussion within the report submitted to him by Maeso.

In a related development, a government source close to the grand jury probe has confirmed that a state attorney general's office memorandum, incorporating Perez' allegations, was included in results of the U.S. attorney's office's investigation unveiled to the federal grand jurors.

The transcript included this statement by Perez concerning the Jan. 29 meeting allegedly called and attended by Faught: "I feel that the reason we were there was to harmonize the story where everybody would cover each other, which I felt I didn't have no part of it and shouldn't be involved in it."

Reportedly attending that meeting were Faught's attorney, Bill Barnes, and sheriff deputies who were considered to be potential witnesses in the Lozano case. Barnes testified before the federal grand jury, as did most of the deputies.

Sheriff Faught told reporters the morning after Lozano's death that the 27-year-old newcomer to Odessa (from Pecos) apparently went berserk in his cell and committed suicide by pounding his head against the plexi-glass window of his padded cell.

He said the man caused a disturbance on Jan. 21 and subsequently was transferred to an isolated cell. Faught said Lozano tore up the padding in that cell and stuffed it down a toilet, causing the drain to back up.

Then, on the afternoon of Jan. 22, according to Faught, Lozano was taken to Odessa's Medical Center Hospital for a shot to calm him down, after which he was returned to another cell.

The transcript to some extent details Perez' accounts of events he said he witnessed and conversations he said he had with other sheriff's department employees.

Perez' recollection of events, however, (Continued on Page 4A)

Roof collapses, six N.Y. firemen killed

By JOHN BLOCK

NEW YORK (AP) — The roof of a burning Brooklyn supermarket collapsed today, plunging a dozen firemen into an inferno and killing six of them, authorities said.

At least 28 persons were injured, including 23 who were taken to hospitals. At least seven of the injured were firemen, and dozens of fire fighters were treated at the scene for smoke inhalation.

There were no reports of injuries to customers or store employees.

Authorities said the six deaths were the greatest loss of life in the New York fire department in single fire in 12 years.

Squads of grim faced firemen, some with tears streaming from their cheeks, battled the fire at the Waldbaum's supermarket as it burned out of control for more than three hours.

The market, which was being renovated but was open for business, is located in the Sheepshead Bay section of Brooklyn, bordering Coney Island and about 12 miles from mid-Manhattan.

About 20 employees and customers were in the supermarket when the fire broke out.

Virginia Moore, a cashier, said "A workman came downstairs and said, 'There's a fire in the (second-floor) men's room. Get out of the store.'"

"There were at least a dozen firemen on the roof. All of a sudden, six or seven went down. A few, three or four, I suppose, got to the edges and went down the ladders."

The cashier said those in the store did not realize the fire "was that bad."

She said she "picked up the microphone and told everyone to get out. Some people — would you believe it — wanted to be checked out" with their groceries.

Joan Guinan, who lives near the supermarket, said, "When the firemen were on the roof — I'll never forget it as long as I live."

"It's hard to accept," said Mayor Edward Koch, who rushed to the scene. "It indicates how much we owe our firemen. It's just overwhelming. It's very difficult to talk about."

About 150 firemen from 30 companies fought the fire that escalated to a four-alarm in a short time.

Three injured firemen were admitted to Coney Island Hospital, which reported none of them was "in any life-threatening situations." They had suffered smoke inhalation and minor burns, a hospital spokesman said.

It was later determined, however, that one fireman was in serious condition and was being transferred to the burn center of New York Hospital in Manhattan.

The fire appeared to have started in a section of the building undergoing renovation, said Margaret Trudgen, who lives nearby. She said she could see heavy smoke coming from the building.

It was the greatest loss of life the department has suffered since 12 fire-fighters died in a fire that destroyed three buildings in Manhattan's Madison Square on Oct. 17, 1966.

The body of a dead New York fireman is removed through a hole in the wall of a supermarket in the Sheepshead section of Brooklyn today after the roof collapsed sending 12 men into the blaze. Six firefighters died in the four-alarm blaze, making it the worst disaster for the city' fire department. (AP Laserphoto)

Archbishop blasts Britain

LONDON (AP) — Ireland's Roman Catholic primate charged that Britain is keeping imprisoned IRA men under filthy, stinking "inhuman" conditions, but Britain's cabinet minister for Northern Ireland replied they were criminals who are "totally responsible for the situation in which they find themselves."

The Times of London commented that Archbishop Tomas O'Flaherty, in demanding that the guerrillas be given the status of political prisoners, had given the Irish Republican Army Provisionals battling British rule in Northern Ireland a "comprehensive endorsement."

He had a flat and stopped...

STANTON — A Snyder man walked away without a scratch, but his car was demolished during a bizarre car-train accident six miles west of Stanton Tuesday night.

Police said 50-year-old Kenneth Hughes Chambers apparently was fixing a flat tire at 10:15 p. m. on a railroad track crossing the southbound service road of Interstate 20, when a train came roaring down the track.

Chambers escaped unscathed, but the train, engineered by J.T. Anderson of Missouri Pacific, carried the car some 186 feet.

No charges have been filed in connection with the incident, which police said they still were investigating today.

Havana 'tribunal' hears CIA plots against Castro

By GEORGE GEDDA

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — CIA plots to assassinate President Fidel Castro and other acts of sabotage were foiled by double agents who posed as CIA operatives while working for the Cuban secret police, five Cubans told a "tribunal" at a world youth conference.

An American speaker before the invitation-only audience Tuesday, ex-CIA man Philip Agee, claimed the U.S. agency was responsible for the death of 100 Cubans in 1960 in the explosion of a ship carrying weapons Cuba had purchased from Belgium. But he gave no details.

One of the Cuban speakers, Jose

Fernandez Santos, said one attempt on Castro's life was to have taken place in Mexico in 1976, a year after the U.S. Senate Intelligence Committee issued a report on Central Intelligence Agency assassination plots against Castro and other foreign leaders.

The Senate committee said it knew of eight plans against Castro, and Castro has said he knows of 25 attempts against his life.

Fernandez Santos said two men, Francisco Manuel Camargo Saavedra and Patricio Sanchez, scouted Mexico City's airport and a downtown monument as possible sites for killing the Cuban leader. He said both men worked for the CIA.

He added that he was informed of planned attempts on Castro's life during a visit to Chile in 1971 and later in Cuba.

Another Cuban, Abel Haidar Elias, said the CIA assigned him to give a high-powered rifle to an agent named Saturnino Rondon on Jan. 1, 1965, for an assassination attempt the next day. Haidar said he did not turn over the rifle.

Nicolas Alberto Sirgado Ros displayed a brick and a two-foot-long stone, both of which he said were hollowed out to hold listening devices, miniature cameras and other equipment.

He said the CIA was so pleased with his work that a man who said he was a representative of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger presented him with a watch.

Two other Cubans told of efforts to send weapons to Cuba from the United States by sea and by air and of CIA tutoring of counter-revolutionaries in ways to sabotage the Cuban economy.

The audience also heard videotape testimony from persons purporting to be former CIA operatives who were caught and jailed and who said they had been "rehabilitated."

The anti-CIA hearing was held on the fifth day of the 11th World Festival of Youth and Students, attended by 20,000 delegates from 145 countries. The theme of the week-long festival is "anti-imperialist solidarity." Agee, who quit the CIA in 1969 after 12 years of service and has written or co-authored two books critical of it, told of the agency's alleged activities in the early 1960's to persuade Latin American governments to follow the U.S. lead and break diplomatic relations with Cuba.

He said the CIA fabricated a document purporting to contain names of Peruvians on the payroll of the Cuban Embassy in Lima, and after it appeared in a Lima newspaper, the Peruvian government broke relations with Havana.

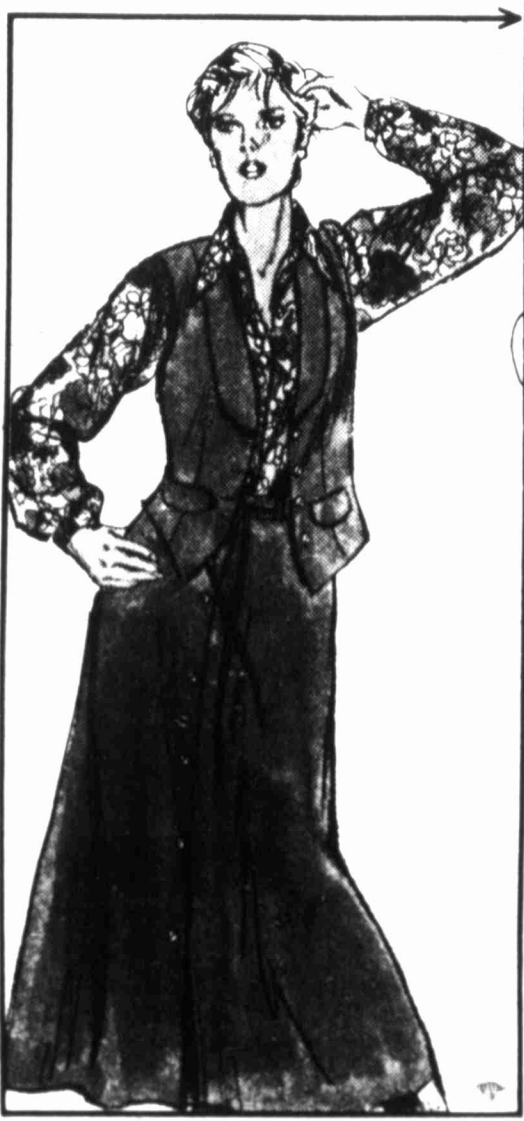

He said the CIA produced false documents alleging misbehavior in Uruguay by 11 Communist diplomats from Europe and Asia; the resulting outcry led to their ouster from Montevideo, and soon after Uruguay broke relations with Cuba.

Another speaker identifying herself as a former CIA employee, Elsie Wilcott, said she was a secretary in the agency's Miami office in the mid-1960s. She said so many anti-Castro saboteurs were on the payroll that the office on occasion had to make out 250 checks at a time.

Mrs. Wilcott said large sums of money were used to recruit personnel for counter-revolutionary activity against the Castro government, and prostitutes were used to blackmail prospective recruits into joining.

American Indian band leaves state land, mess behind

EAGLE BAY, N.Y. (AP) — The last members of a band of American Indians that had been occupying 612 acres of Adirondack forest in central New York for four years have left. A state senator says the Indians left a mess behind.

"The former occupants have made a sylvan ghetto out of the place," Sen. James H. Donovan, R-Chadwicks, said Tuesday.

"Their pronounced respect for their native land belies the condition they left it in," he continued.

Most of the Indians moved out during the past few months and relocated, under an agreement with the state, to state land in northern New York near the Canadian border in the Clinton County community of Altona.

The Indians, whose number was never known since they allowed no whites inside the area, was estimated by local reporters at about 50.

The last four Indians at the camp, who reportedly remained behind to clean up, left Monday evening. Left behind were partially disassembled cabins, an assortment of appliances, mattresses, clothing, toys and automobiles.

The Indians arrived here in May 1974 and declared 20,000 acres of northern New York and Vermont theirs under terms of an 18th century treaty between the Six Nation Confederacy and the United States.

The state's initial response was to simply say that the occupation was illegal. But after a period of mounting tension and some violence, the state agreed to meet with the Indians.

Lengthy negotiations between the Indians and the state resulted in an agreement in May 1977 whereby the Indians would move to the Altona site by Dec. 1, 1977 and would set up a museum there to depict their native lifestyle and history for visiting non-Indians.

The deadline was extended several times by the state at the request of the Indians, who said they needed more time to clear the land. The last deadline was July 5.

Secretary of State Mario Cuomo, who was responsible for the state's negotiations, said Tuesday he was still confident the Indians would live up to their part of the agreement, which included cleaning up the camp.

"I've said to the people of Clinton County that the state would live up to its agreement with the Indians. It was just as clear that the Indians should live up to their agreements with the state, and I have every confidence that they will do it," Cuomo said.

Chess round ends seventh in draw

By EDITH M. LEDERER

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Challenger Viktor Korchnoi's unofficial Israeli second found a sensational variation that brought the seventh game of the world chess championship to a surprise draw today instead of an expected victory for Soviet champion Anatoly Karpov.

It was the seventh straight draw of the match, in which one of the players must score six wins to get the world championship and $350,000. Experts figure the match, now in its third week and at three games a week, will last two or three months.

The 27-year-old Soviet champion offered a draw after Korchnoi's sealed 42nd move — an expected queen to rook 8 check — was opened.

It was Yasha Mured, who emigrated to Israel from the Soviet Union in 1976 and who was celebrating his 38th birthday, who came up with the series of moves that turned expected disaster for Korchnoi into an acceptable draw.

"This was Yasha's birthday present for Viktor, and it was found late last night," said Michael Stean of England, one of Korchnoi's official seconds.

"In a position which most onlooking grandmasters considered to be helpless for white, Yasha found a most unlikely looking king move which would have given Korchnoi surprising defensive possibilities.

"Karpov clearly respected Yasha's analytical abilities on his own birthday and offered a draw, rather than investigate the ramification of Yasha's discovery."

Stean said the key move, which never was played, was king to knight 1.

Korchnoi later told reporters that when the champion arrived about eight minutes late, he expected that Karpov would "immediately offer a draw."

The challenger added that Karpov might have had a better position but there was "no coordination of his pawns." He conceded that when he made his 32nd move Tuesday night, a pawn to queen knight 4, his play became "crucial."

Experts said then he had thrown away his third chance for a win.

The unexpected draw overshadowed the latest flap over a Russian parapsychologist who Korchnoi believes is trying to hypnotize him and muddle his thinking. The parapsychologist, who the Soviets say is not a member of their official delegation, had been sitting in the first or second row at every game, staring intently at the challenger.

Wright, 69, underwent a one-hour operation Tuesday to correct a muscle disorder in his legs "that has impaired his ability to walk," according to a statement from the hospital.

Peveto Bill dead; two hope to keep spirit alive

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Peveto Bill is dead, but two representatives hope they can keep its spirit alive and get a property tax relief proposal moving again.

Reps. John Bryant, D-Dallas, and Lee Jackson, R-Dallas, planned to offer a compromise today when the House takes up a tax relief constitutional amendment that has failed twice before.

"If our substitute is not adopted it is likely that the (special) session will end without any substantial action being taken," they said in a joint statement.

The compromise includes Senate language on a $5,000 homestead exemption from school taxes, the House's provision taxing agricultural land on productivity instead of market value and new property tax "reform" language.

If approved by both houses and the voters, the Bryant-Jackson substitute would require the Legislature to provide by Dec. 31, 1979, for uniform statewide standards for property appraisals. Assessment ratios would be outlawed, and all property would be taxed on 100 percent of market value.

Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, admitted defeat once again in his effort to pass a comprehensive property tax code embodying the principles of the Bryant-Jackson substitute.

Senators had killed their version, 18-9, Monday. Peveto's co-sponsor, Rep. Leroy Wieting, D-Portland, got no objection when he moved Tuesday to lay the House version on the table.

"This is a dead issue in this session," Wieting said.

Jackson told reporters Tuesday he felt broad constitutional language with the thrust but not the detail of the Peveto bill would have a chance of Senate acceptance.

"One of the biggest objections was to a state bureaucracy for property tax administration set up over the counties," he said. "There is increasing recognition that property tax reform is an idea whose time has come, and there is not as much objection to general language as to the Peveto Bill."

Any constitutional amendment purporting to give property tax relief must also go to the voters for approval, and it can't get on the ballot without a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate.

The House failed by one vote Friday, after three days of debate, 99-42, to get the required 100 votes. On Monday, the count was 94-45.

Meanwhile, a House-Senate conference committee was to continue working toward a final compromise on bills repealing the 4 percent state sales tax on gas and electric bills and raising inheritance tax exemptions.

There already is general agreement to raise the exempt portion of an estate from the present $25,000 per heir to $200,000 per estate, and raising that amount to $250,000 in 1982 and $300,000 in 1985.

Ford satisfied with tank modifications

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has refused to run more crash tests on the controversial fuel tanks of its Ford Pintos and Mercury Bobcats.

"We're satisfied that the modifications we've come up with are adequate," a Ford spokesman said Tuesday.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, which had asked for more tests, will run more tests of its own.

NHTSA says tests showed that 1971-76 Pintos and Bobcats, except for station wagons, suffer fuel tank ruptures when hit from behind at 30 to 35 mph, posing the danger of fire in accidents.

Ford is recalling about 1.5 million of the cars to install a plastic shield between the tank and the rear axle, a new, longer filler pipe and a new cap for the pipe.

NHTSA said in a letter to Ford it believes those measures are not enough because Ford's own tests were not as severe as the agency's.

Ford rammed a 4,000-pound, flat-faced block into rear ends of test cars at 25 mph. NHTSA rammed rear ends with full-size Chevrolets at 30 to 35 mph.

The agency said Ford's tests don't duplicate the "piercing" effect of real-life collisions.

Ford said filler caps popped off in its tests. The agency said two of 12 cars it tested caught fire, and some others showed substantial fuel leaks.

NHTSA's new tests should begin within two weeks, the agency said. If the agency is not satisfied with the results, it can order Ford to make more extensive modifications.

NHTSA says its files show 56 persons have died in Pinto and Bobcat crash fires since 1975.

Ethiopian army troops take highland towns

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ethiopian government troops have captured three more towns from rebel forces in the rain-soaked highlands of Eritrea province, Radio Addis Ababa reported today.

The government broadcast said a task force took Areza, Diga and Segenite on Tuesday after capturing large quantities of weapons in a four-day battle for Adi Keih in which many guerrillas were killed.

It said the Adi Keih hospital was damaged during the fighting and many patients and staff members died.

The official Ethiopian news agency said government forces broke an 18-month siege of Barentu, a district capital, on Sunday after thrusting northward along the Sudanese border.

A 10-month rebel siege of Asmara, Eritrea's capital, was broken Friday when a government column broke through guerrilla positions and linked up with another government force, earlier reports said.

Bond set on murder charge

BIG SPRING — Ralph Thorp Jr., 18, of Big Spring was free on $25,000 bond Tuesday after being charged Monday with murder in connection with the shooting death Saturday night of Billy D. Ramsey, 19, also of Big Spring, said authorities.

Bond was set by Peace Justice Bobby West.

According to a spokesman for the Big Spring Police Department, Thorp was arrested at 8:40 a.m. Sunday at his home.

Officers said Ramsey was with a woman friend at the time of the shooting, estimated to have been between 12:30 and 1:30 a.m. Sunday. The woman who reportedly was with Ramsey at the time of his death told police Ramsey was shot once in the back of the head by a man with a .22-caliber semi-automatic rifle, according to police.

The woman said the man later tied her hands and feet with bailing wire and dumped her in the vicinity of his home, according to officers. She then managed to get her feet untied and walked to a neighbor's house to seek help, police Detective Jim Hensley said.

Hensley said Ramsey subsequently was found dead, slumped between the bucket seats of his 1960 Chevrolet, which was parked between two tall cedar trees near the end of Thorpe Street.

A rifle was retrieved from beneath some bushes by investigators, police said.

Thorp "called up Big Spring police and said he had accidentally shot somebody. We went to his home and talked to him and arrested him on a murder charge," Hensley said.

Police said Thorp had been out rabbit hunting before Ramsey reportedly offered him a ride.

Get smart —
Get the edge

The edge in Sedgefield blue jeans, the first all-cotton jeans to behave the way jeans should. They fit perfectly wash after wash because there's no shrinking out of size.

They always look lean and clean because they resist wrinkling and puckering and ugh... those tacky twisted legs.

They also get softer faster and wear longer than ordinary cotton jeans.

And, Sedgefield does it all without putting plastic (polyester) in their jeans like some of the biggies. After all, if it isn't all-cotton it isn't really blue denim.

The best surprise of all? You get all this without paying any more than the regular price of the so-called big names.

I got smart. I got the edge—the Sedgefield edge.

Ken Hur; 'advertisin'est lawyer in country'

By TIMOTHY HARPER

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Ken Hur is a mountain of a man, 300 pounds in awning-sized denims and a white T-shirt emblazoned with the message "Need a Lawyer? Call The Legal Clinic."

Hur brags that he is "the advertisin'est lawyer in the country."

Since the 1976 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that allowed lawyers to advertise, Hur has been beating his own drum in newspaper, television, radio, billboard and even airplane ads.

"I was the first lawyer in the country to do my own television commercial," boasts the 54-year-old lawyer.

The Supreme Court ruling reinforced two First Amendment rights, Hur says: the free speech right of an attorney to advertise and the public's right to know.

"There's an insatiable appetite among the American people to learn about lawyers," Hur says. "They have not had access to the legal system. Who's better to show them the way than a guy like me who has a big mouth, is overweight, isn't very smart and loves his wife?"

Hur has tried big things like renting a plane to carry a "Call Ken Hur" banner over 77,000 football fans. And he has tried little things like painting "Sideswiped? Call Ken Hur" on bashed-in cars.

His daughter-in-law wears a neck brace as she cruises around town in a truck bearing the "Sideswiped?" message.

In his most recent effort, Hur parodies a local jewelry store commercial in which a seemingly unclad woman gracefully surfaces in a pool of water, laden with necklaces, rings and bracelets.

In his version, Hur rises out of the water snorting and puffing like a Moby Dick in scuba gear.

"Talk to a lawyer for $10," he bellows to the camera.

"There's too much celluloid-collar dignity among lawyers," Hur says. "That's what's been wrong with the profession for 100 years."

Hur—who wears a neck brace for a pinched nerve he says is unrelated to auto accidents or lawsuits—insists that none of his ads goes beyond the Wisconsin Supreme Court guidelines permitting all lawyer advertising unless deceitful, fraudulent or misrepresentative.

There has been no formal criticism from other lawyers, although some privately condemn the ads as unprofessional. Hur claims he has received hundreds of compliments from the public.

"I'm tweaking the nose of the bar and getting patted on the back by the people," he says. "I guess that's the only way we'll find out what the parameters are."

Hur says he had enough business even before he started advertising, and now does most of his ads on behalf of The Legal Clinic, a kind of poor man's law firm he started with four young lawyers. Hur says he is surprised few attorneys advertise, but he believes more young lawyers just getting started will eventually make ads commonplace and lead more people to use lawyers.

Truck swerves from interstate; strikes stranded car, kills 2

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Two women, one from Missouri and the other from Louisiana, were struck and killed early this morning after their car was disabled along an interstate highway in East Texas, state officials said.

The accident took place about 2:30 a.m. along I-20 west of here, the Texas Department of Public Safety said.

The women were hit by a truck that ran onto the shoulder where their car was parked, Troopers said.

The victims were identified as Rose Marie Vaughn, 25, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., and Diane Freeman, also 25, from Plaquemines, La.

The truck was driven by a Tyler man, who told authorities he did not see the women or their car. No charges were filed.

Oklahoma judge, victim of blindness, looks ahead

By DOUG HICKS

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — Tall, strong men cry. Not often. But they cry all the same.

If you talk with 6-foot-2 John Allen Phillips long enough, and if you know him well enough, he will tell you he has cried.

Phillips is an associate district judge who went blind on the bench after getting the appointment at age 65. Now, he awakens each day hoping to see.

Subconsciously, he holds his left hand in front of him and tries to distinguish one finger from another. But he can't. Maybe tomorrow.

To understand the kind of man Phillips is, it helps to know the kind of man he was. For 24 years before he donned the jurist's black robe in 1977, he was Durant's outspoken, sometimes controversial, always conservative city attorney.

Upon receiving his appointment to the bench from Gov. David Boren in February 1977, Phillips resigned as city attorney, closed his modest law office and, wearing his trade-mark Hush Puppies and string tie, ambled over to a new office in the Bryan County courthouse a block away.

In June 1977, he and his wife, Mary Elaine, traveled to the University of Nevada for a four-week course for judges. It was there that the nausea and the headaches began.

It was not until Aug. 21, after Phillips had been seriously ill and going blind in hospitals in Denison and Dallas, Texas, that he learned he had Cryptococcus meningitis.

Difficult to diagnose and considered incurable only 10 years ago, the rare disease was the same that had taken Mark Twain's daughter, Suzy.

During the following months, Phillips received heavy doses of drugs and later, in January, a shunt was placed in his head to relieve the fluids and pressure. The headaches began subsiding.

Virtually blind and undergoing heavy oral medication, Phillips was returned home March 22. He calmly, matter-of-factly told Mary Elaine he planned to return to the bench as soon as possible, even though he would have received judge's pay had he not.

"I wanted him to retire...not to go back," said Mrs. Phillips. (But) "I've never tried to talk him out of anything. That's part of our loving and living."

Phillips admitted there were "times I wanted to dig a hole and pull the dirt in over me. It took some nerve to return to the courthouse, but I felt I had to... that I might recover faster if I did."

On the morning of April 5, Mary Elaine dressed her husband in a dark suit, string tie and Hush Puppies. It was time. "He looked horrible and he sounded horrible," the tall, attractive housewife said. "I stood at the doorway and I prayed: 'Lord, don't let him look pitiful'... and he didn't."

In May, while regaining strength and weight, Phillips faced a personal trial. A group of local attorneys raised the legal question of whether he was fit to serve.

You may have read about that. It was national news.

The lawyers testified. Phillips testified. Then, May 22, the presiding judge of the Southeastern Judicial District ruled that Phillips, though blind, could continue his duties. The associate district judge received a vote of confidence — and an automatic four-year term — when no one filed against him July 10-12.

"They tell me I can expect a drastic improvement in my sight," the Bryan County native said, smiling at the good news. "Maybe in the next couple of months."

"I can't see you and I can't even begin to read. And I won't deny that this is a handicap, but it is not an insurmountable handicap."

"I still bump into walls, but I penetrate the darkness better than I used to do."

There was a long period of silence, and Phillips seemed somehow relieved after he again spoke.

Necessity alters Carter thinking about tax reform

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Back when President Carter was campaigning for a top-to-bottom overhaul of the federal tax code, his program was short of specifics except for one clear target.

He wanted to do away with the tax break for capital gains, the income derived from the sale of stock, real estate and other assets.

But Congress has other ideas. Now Carter does, too.

"We have spelled out our position very clearly," he said the other day. "I am not opposed to capital gains reductions as such."

Clarity never has been the Carter trademark on the tax issue. During his long campaign, he fended off questions about the specifics of what he said would be a total revision of the tax laws, saying he would need time in office to study the questions involved and put together a complete package.

But he did say from the beginning that all income should be taxed alike. "One provision would be to tax capital income and earned income the same way," he said as a candidate.

He tried to move in that direction in his tax proposal early this year, of lowering the capital gains rate.

"I think that is an unfair approach and it is unacceptable to me," he said. "Other modifications in capital gains rates would be acceptable to us."

But the modification obviously is going to be downward, not up, as he wanted it to be in the first place.

Carter said he is "flexible enough." It is flexibility with a purpose: to get the best deal possible out of Congress.

That certainly represents a change in tone from the position Carter took on June 26, when he said the capital gains tax provision pending then would be a step backward, away from the reforms he wanted, and threatened a veto.

His position now is that he will look at the final product, sign it if it is in the best interest of the nation, and veto it if not.

Whatever he gets, it will not come close to the proposals he sent Congress early this year, let alone the terms he outlined during the campaign.

"It is time for a complete overhaul of our income tax system ...," he said then. "It is a disgrace to the human race. All my life I have heard promises about tax reform, but it never quite happens. With your help, we are finally going to make it happen. And you can depend on it."

There is nothing mysterious about the transition from that point to this. Carter is not the first president to seek more than he could get, or to get provisions he does not want as part of bills he does want.

Part of his problem, and not only on taxes, may be that the changes from one point to the next come abruptly. It is not that Carter has not tried to keep campaign commitments on issues like tax revision but, rather, that there has been no attempt to explain why he can't when he can't.

seeking an increase of about $140 million in capital gains taxes.

But Congress is headed in the opposite direction, and the House Ways and Means Committee has approved a bill that would reduce capital gains taxes by about $1.3 billion.

Carter said he would not accept a tax bill that would undo the minimum tax on sheltered income in the process

Selective survival

The United States Senate, by a 94-3 vote, has approved a reasonable answer to the clout of the tiny snail darter, the small fish — or rather minnow — which has stalled a $119 million dam project of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled recently that the snail darter would be robbed of its habitat if gates of the near-completed Tellico Dam were closed to create a reservoir. The snail darter is protected under the five-year old federal Endangered Species Act.

The act, incidentally, can stop just about all man-made projects if they endanger some endangered species of flora or fauna. The law permits no flexibility. And in this particular case it mattered not that the dam, which is nearing completion, cost $119 million. Neither did it matter who or what it would serve.

The court, in its ruling, noted that the law is so rigid that it had no choice but to prevent use of the new dam.

The Senate legislation, however, seeks to restore a balance between protection of what critics call an "obscure" endangered species and essential programs.

It would establish a seven-member commission with the authority to grant exemptions. It is time that something is done in this regard.

The House should accept the measure as part of a pending proposal to renew the Endangered Species Act, which will expire at the end of the year. We would much prefer that the act not be renewed, but perhaps steps will be taken to make it more palatable to many Americans who feel that they are the ones who really are endangered.

The nation's taxpayers, too, are deserving of protection against broad, sometimes frivolous laws which multiply the costs of projects financed by the public.

And judged by the overwhelming vote of the Senate in this particular matter, it is evident that the voice of the people has been heard in the Senate chambers.

And as a matter of interest to snail darter lovers, biologists engaged in the project have announced that some of the fish, moved to a nearby river in 1975, are thriving and multiplying.

So, hopefully, everyone is happy — or will be when the Senate measure gains final approval.

'A helping hand'

In an open letter to the public, a Reporter-Telegram reader offers some excellent advice, as follows: "This may not help the cause but if it will make YOU stop and think and DO what this suggests, it will be worth it."

"It is the opinion of the writer that individualism is fine — everyone attending to their needs as they see fit. But there are many individuals in the city of Midland, as well as this nation, who could use a helping hand. An elderly lady who lives alone has a gate that needs mending; a blind man could use some assistance in getting an air-conditioner running, or just an able-bodied person who has a job to do and could use some help. How much better everyone would feel, and possibly the sense of frustration would go away just by your help.

"Some of my greatest blessings have come about by helping someone with his need! Not charity — just a helping hand when a helping hand is needed. Everyone is busy, but I dare say that you could take out and help someone with his or her problem without wrecking your plans. Then, the next time you have a job to do, maybe the person you helped would lend you a hand.

"There are young people home for the summer or otherwise — instead of relaxing in the lawn chair with a radio, and some sun tan oil, why not help your folks and/or a neighbor. Help your mother with her household chores, instead of waiting for dad or mother to wait on you. Fences need mending, lawns need mowing, flower beds need weeding — don't tell me you don't have anything to do."

Quite a thoughtful, helpful letter, isn't it? Or at least it strikes us that way.

Just letting someone know that you care enough to inquire if you can assist them in any way would make the other person feel good — and chances are it also would make you have a better day. And this goes for older persons as well as young people. Why not give it a try.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Miss Lillian 'scores' in Italy

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — After enduring the gaffes and goofs of Dr. Peter Bourne, Andrew Young, Bert Lance and pugacious brother Billy, Jimmy Carter is discovering that a fellow's best friend is his mother.

The troubled president found some welcome reading in a confidential State Department cable reporting on the success of his 82-year-old mother's visit to Italy.

Ambassador to Italy Richard Gardner was rapturous in his confidential account of Lillian Carter's meeting with Italian President Alessandro Pertini, himself an octogenarian and curmudgeon. Cabled the ambassador: "Mrs. Carter's call on Pertini couldn't have come at a better time. Pertini, elected less than two weeks before the meeting, can be highly irascible and in the past has been quite critical of American foreign policy.

"It is clear that Pertini was completely won over by Mrs. Carter's personal manner and by the purpose of her trip. The call almost surely has done much to soften his earlier critical attitude and to put his relationship to the American government on a friendly footing."

The confidential dispatch contained this eyewitness account of the session between the two senior citizens in the Quirinale Palace:

To break the ice, Pertini asked the mother of the American president if she had any advice for him as he began his seven-year term as titular head of a sorely beset Italy. Mrs. Carter, who was known to have spanked the president as a boy, responded: "Just do what you have been doing all your life — fighting for human rights and helping the poor."

Then she asked whether the veteran socialist had any advice for her son. Pertini counseled that Carter "should follow the example of his mother in her concern to alleviate hunger and hardship."

Warning up to each other, the two acknowledged their ages. Miss Lillian joked that "life begins at 80," and Pertini, a few months younger than his visitor, laughingly observed that "some persons are born old, some are born young and stay young all their life — like you and me."

Miss Lillian offered the Italian leader a pipe as a token gift and bantered about his famed collection of 200 rare pipes. She smilingly admonished that her own pipe was for smoking, not display.

Ambassador Gardner reported that the simple directness of Mrs. Carter, who enlisted in the Peace Corps in her 60s, "had a great appeal" for Pertini. At one point, he told her: "You are like me — you say what is on your mind and in your heart."

ART BUCHWALD Feeding the 'sleeping bags' can be expensive

I was very surprised to read in the newspaper last week that Mrs. Ford said her family was cutting down on their food bills as a way of fighting inflation. The reason I was surprised was that Mrs. Ford has teen-agers, and there is no way under the sun you can cut a food budget when you have teen-agers living in the house. It isn't the immediate family that costs money — it's feeding everyone else's children that sends your food costs skyrocketing.

In the past most of us could get away with giving a strange child a glass of milk and a cookie. But in recent years we seem to be sustaining large masses of youth, which I have dubbed, for the want of a better name, the sleeping bag generation.

Last month my grocery bill for a family of four on Martha's Vineyard was $791. This is what happened.

Three sleeping bags showed up at the door. A voice from one of the sleeping bags said, "We're very good friends of your daughter Hilda, and she said we could camp on your property when you got here."

"I don't have a daughter named Hilda," I said.

"What's her name?" a voice from another sleeping bag asked.

"Jenny."

"That's it," the voice said. "We're good friends of Jenny, and she said we could sleep on your lawn so we won't be arrested and tortured by the police with chains and rubber hoses."

"We won't be any bother," a voice from another sleeping bag said. "We have stale doughnuts for dinner."

I gave permission for them to camp out on the lawn. When my daughter came home I informed her that three of her dearest friends had arrived and set up camp.

"Boys or girls?" Jenny asked.

"How the hell would I know," I replied.

It turns out that sleeping bags require large amounts of nourishment. While those of us who lived in the house could get by on bluefish or eggs, the sleeping bags had to be fed steak, ham, imported cheeses, French bread, butter and a good brand of beer.

Every day my daughter, who never did find out their names, carried down provisions to the sleeping bags. The zippers would open up automatically and they would consume $60 worth of groceries at a feeding.

In exchange for the food, the sleeping bags strummed music on a guitar in our living room while I was trying to watch the evening news.

After the sleeping bags departed, a new group of sleeping bags arrived and said they were friends of my son Edward. I probably would have been nicer except that I have no son named Edward. The nearest thing to it was Joel. While it bothered me, it didn't seem to bother Joel. He took all the sleeping bags to Kronig's Grocery Store where they charged everything to me for a picnic they were holding with some other sleeping bags on the beach.

Now that I'm back in Washington, the sleeping bags are starting to show up here. Many turn out to be friends of the sleeping bags who camped on my property in Martha's Vineyard. If I refuse hospitality for them I am considered an ogre by my children, Hilda and Edward, or whatever their names are. But if I let them spread out on the grass I'm going to get another $800 grocery bill.

I'm sure Mrs. Ford is telling the truth when she says she's been able to cut back on her food bills. But I figure the only way she has been able to do it is by having the Secret Service boot all the goose-feather sleeping bag acquaintances of her children right off the White House lawn.

Noting the manner in which the London Daily Mail tactfully hustled the coverage of the test tube baby, you can see why Great Britain is now merely Pretty Good Britain.

The Daily Mail offered its exclusive subscribers 40 percent off if the baby failed to live a week. This paper makes the National Enquirer look like the Congressional Record.

NICK THIMMESCH

Who is Jimmy Carter? Who will Republicans run?

WASHINGTON — When I was interviewing government officials in Europe a few weeks ago, they invariably asked me questions as well.

The first always went something like this: "Please, would you explain your President Carter to me? We just don't understand him." Later, there was always this one, asked with a touch of curiosity and hope: "Who will the Republicans run in 1980?"

Somewhat, when I am overseas, I don't like to speak ill of any of our Presidents. So I told my questioners that Mr. Carter was serving at a difficult time because the American people are a bit cynical and even disinterested in government.

Still, I explained, Jimmy Carter, during his campaign, caused people to develop high expectations, and now they feel that he has come off the pedestal. He unwrapped too many ideas and programs in too short a time span and it all blurred. Then there was Bert Lance, and there's always Andy Young, and well, the President has good intentions and an acceptable program, but has difficulty in executing.

However, I went on, trying to balance, he is intelligent, and earnest, and as a Democrat, has a potentially strong base of political support. It is far too early to write him off, and he certainly shouldn't be dismissed as a one-term President, I explained, in my best analytical voice.

Europeans are largely interested in our President in terms of foreign policy and international trade. Apparently, Carter is a fuzzy figure to them, and they want clarity. Americans have only modest interest in foreign policy and international trade these days. According to Dr. Gallup, the cost-of-living and inflation question is overwhelmingly first in their minds. And while they still feel Democrats can best cope with their No. 1 concern, they're not keen on Carter's presidential ability, and also feel he is fuzzy.

The latest Gallup Poll shows that 40 percent surveyed approve of his performance, and 41 percent disapprove. Even in Jimmy Carter's South, only 46 percent approve. It is surprising that only 54 percent of non-whites, and 48 percent with only a grade school education approve, because these two groups usually give very high support to any Democratic president.

"It hasn't bottomed out yet," says a voice at the Democratic National Committee, "because people don't know what he has accomplished. Neither he nor his programs are getting into their heads."

There is an array of statistics showing that the majority of people don't know that unemployment has come way down, that the President is pushing hard for civil service and tax reform legislation, or that there has been revolutionary progress on an energy program.

It must be of small consolation to Mr. Carter that he won important victories on the Panama Canal Treaties and the Middle East airplane sale package, and will likely prevail on the Turkish arms embargo question.

The public's interest in these issues was short-lived. The exception is the Jewish community, still hopping mad at him over the airplane package. The latest Gallup Poll shows that only 26 percent of Jews surveyed give him an approval rating. Upwards of 75 percent of Jews vote for the Democratic presidential candidate.

While pressure groups are clear cut on issues, pressure groups do not an entire population make, and the majority of the people are either confused by Carter or don't care much any more. He does not draw the hate that, say, a Franklin Roosevelt or Richard Nixon would. Rather, it all becomes bland and limp, though most people also see him as caring and compassionate.

After Bert Lance and the Peter Bourne drug prescription affair, good souls have reason to suspect whether Mr. Carter is all that perceptive about peoples' failings, however. And where Bourne and his prescription were sent packing, it took a painfully long time for Jimmy to part with Bert Lance.

Similarly, Carter could have looked like a tough-minded President by firing Andy Young, and perhaps replacing him with a black less inclined to forever see "racists" under the bed, and more skilled in diplomacy.

But to further answer my European questioners — and a growing number of Americans as well — there is no real front runner here in the Republican ranks. And surprisingly, despite Carter's tepid standing in the polls, the public doesn't think the Republicans have the answers on spending cuts, maintaining prosperity and keeping us out of war.

Ronald Reagan has strength among Republicans, but Republicans are only one-fifth of the populace. People instinctively like nice-guy Jerry Ford, but I'm not sure that they will roll up their sleeves and fight for him.

John Connally thunders well at GOP fund raisers, but there is no clamoring crowd outside his door in Houston. Other Republicans mentioned melt away in most peoples' minds.

So for the Republicans to beat Carter in 1980, they need a somebody. Carter must know that Harry S Truman had only 39 percent approval in the spring of 1948, the year he pulled that great upset. Indeed, presidential popularity is terribly elastic. Consider that Truman is beloved today, but after he left office he had sunk to 23 percent. Even Richard Nixon went no lower than 24.

Lyndon Johnson soared to 80 percent in early 1964, and four years later wallowed at 35, behind Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, just as Carter now badly trails Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Carter is not very nifty and probably fusses too much with imagery. He can be no better than he is, and by today's standards, that might be enough for him to carry on and even succeed in 1980.

Gold's mystique not related to expense or rarity

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

"O cursed lust for gold,
To what dost thou not drive the hearts of men!"
"The Aeneid." Virgil.
70-19 B.C.

Gold. The dream at the end of the rainbow. The ring that ties two people together. The symbol of man's hope and of man's greed.
It is neither the rarest metal in the world nor the most expensive. But gold has a mystique that has lasted through the ages and has helped push its price to record highs in recent days.

What's so special about gold?
"It's a historic thing," said William Butterman of the Bureau of Mines. "It has a very ancient reputation... It's very durable in a chemical and physical sense... It's quite rare and was even more so in ancient times."
James Jolley, Butterman's colleague at the bureau, had another explanation. "There's a lot of charisma about it," he said.
Jolley is an expert on platinum, which is both rarer and more costly than gold. Worldwide platinum production in 1977 is estimated at just under 3 million troy ounces, compared to 38.5 million troy ounces of gold and 318.4 million troy ounces of silver. A troy ounce equals 1.097 regular ounces.

Platinum is selling at almost $250 an ounce, while gold — even after its sharp rise — is just over $200.
Platinum, however, doesn't have the same appeal. "It's just a white metal," said Jolley, adding that gold's yellow color is unique among the natural metals.
Gold is easy to shape and polish; it doesn't rust, tarnish or corrode. Because of its relative scarcity, it is prized as one of the few things which, in a time of soaring inflation and currency fluctuations, will always be worth having.

Most newly mined gold goes for jewelry and dental purposes. The rest of it is bought and sold, then bought and sold again, and again, by investors who swap paper certificates rather than actual gold bars.

The drawing power of gold goes back before the birth of Christ and it seems just as strong now as it was then. The Egyptian King Tutankhamen was buried in a solid-gold coffin more than 3,300 years ago; today, thousands of Americans are flocking to exhibitions of articles produced more than 600 million tons of coal in the same year.

Gold was, in part, responsible for the exploration of the Americas. "Get gold," was the message Spain's King Ferdinand gave his conquistadors when he sent them to the New World in 1511. From 1492 to 1600, more than 8 million troy ounces of gold — much of it mined by slaves or stolen from temples — came from South America. The Soviet Union and South Africa are today's biggest gold miners, but during the 17th and 18th centuries, South America mines produced up to 80 percent of the world's supply.

The discovery of gold in California and Australia in the mid-19th century marked another expansion in production. More of the precious metal was mined in the 25 years from 1850 to 1875 than had been mined in the preceding 350 years.
Exploration and modern technology have boosted production, but gold remains a rare commodity. The amount mined in 1977 throughout the entire world is the equivalent of just under 2,000 tons. In contrast, the United States alone produced more than 600 million tons of coal in the same year.

financial developments, including a drop in the value of U.S. currency, President Richard Nixon cut the link between gold and the dollar. The world monetary system was off the gold standard.

The move set off sharp increases in the price of gold on the free market, but the prohibition on American ownership of gold remained until December 1974 when Congress lifted the ban. There were predictions of a new gold rush, but the surge of demand failed to materialize. The price edged steadily up, but stopped just short of $300 an ounce. That barrier was not broken until last Friday when speculators looking for an alternative to the shrinking dollar pushed the price to a record of just over $201 an ounce. By Tuesday, gold had risen still further to more than $205 an ounce.

What makes gold so special? No one really knows. Sir Thomas More, in "Utopia," questioned why gold, which in itself is so useless a thing, should be everywhere so much esteemed.

Newspapers' deadline passes, Soviet heads take no action

By NIKKI FINKE

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities took no action against two U.S. correspondents whose newspapers defied today's deadline to publish court-ordered retractions of articles ruled slanderous.
"I haven't heard a thing," said Craig R. Whitney of The New York Times who was found guilty July 18 along with Harold D. Piper of The Baltimore Sun. Piper is vacationing in the United States until Aug. 14.

Whitney, who recently returned from vacation, said he hoped the entire matter would be dropped by Soviet authorities.
"I'd like them to quash the whole thing right here. That would be the most favorable thing from my point of view, and I think it would be reasonable," Whitney said.
Whitney and Piper were convicted of "crudely slandering" Soviet television in articles they wrote quoting relatives of Georgian dissident Zviad Gamsakhurdia casting doubt on the authenticity of his televised confession.
Gamsakhurdia testified that the confession was authentic and that the reporters' stories were incorrect.

Major school financing changes will be needed within 10 years

By KEN HERMAN

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — The consensus among state school officials meeting here is that major revisions in school financing will be needed within 10 years, according to the U.S. Commissioner of Education.

Dr. Ernest Boyer said money for public education has been a "key topic" among the officials from 47 states and territories here.
Top public education officials from across the nation have gathered here for the annual Chief State School Officers conference.
"There's a strong sentiment that there's going to have to be a change in the way we finance public education," Boyer said.
He added that the Proposition 13 attitude sweeping east from California will lead to changes in school finance methods.
"New finance patterns will turn up in the next decade. They will differ from state to state but, clearly, ways will have to be found to fund inter-district equality," Boyer said.
The federal government now contributes about nine percent of the nation's total public education expenses, according to Boyer. He said the states should not count on the federal officials to solve the

Both Whitney and Piper refused to take part in the court proceedings, arguing that the case was "tantamount to censorship."
Whitney said his newspaper decided not to print the retraction "with my full support" but noted that his editors have yet to make a decision on whether to pay court costs, as ordered July 18.
The Baltimore Sun has said it will pay its share of the $3,342 legal fees, due on Sunday.

Asked if he thought the slander charges would affect his credibility as a journalist reporting in the Soviet Union, Whitney said:
"I don't think the Soviet authorities have a different attitude towards me than to any of the rest of my colleagues really. We all work under the same conditions here and I don't see how this case changes that."
There has been speculation that Soviet authorities might decide to lift the accreditation of the two correspondents, which would prevent them from continuing their reporting duties here. But Whitney said he has not contacted the Soviet Foreign Ministry about this.
"I will not make any such inquiries because I have no reason to think my accreditation is at issue in this case," he declared.

finance dilemma.
Boyer suggested that including school districts in federal revenue sharing programs might provide some assistance.
The former chancellor of the State University of New York system also spoke of the use of teacher competency exams.

"I'm uncomfortable with single measures of teacher or student evaluation," he said. "Obviously, teachers have to know the material they teach. But the skill of teaching is profoundly more complicated."
More than half the Dallas teachers who recently took such exams failed the tests. Teachers' organizations are opposing the competency tests.
"Of course there's no way to defend sloppiness," Boyer said. "But there are important skills of teaching we can't measure."
The commissioner said he supports periodic evaluation of an instructor's performance. While at SUNY Boyer instituted school and faculty review of presidents at each campus. The presidents served 5-year terms and were reviewed at the end of a term.
Boyer planned to spend several days at the meeting here. The week-long session is dealing with political issues of education.

Vietnam vets in Congress ask Carter for expanded benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of Vietnam veterans in Congress asked President Carter on Tuesday to expand education, employment and health care benefits for former GIs of the Vietnam era.

The congressmen met at the White House with Carter, who acknowledged the federal government does not place special preference on hiring Vietnam veterans. He said most federal employees who are veterans predate the war in Southeast Asia.

"This means we don't have adequate opportunities for those who recently have been discharged in the last 15 years, and those who are permanently disabled," Carter said, "and that's what we want to provide."

Sen. John H. Heinz, R-Pa., told reporters the group requested the meeting to try to influence an inter-agency review, nearing completion, of government policy toward Vietnam veterans.
Rep. David E. Bonior, D-Mich., quoted Carter as saying he anticipated providing more money for psychological and health care and education.

The group wants an increase from $9 million to $18 million in federal funds for psychological treatment and health care, and an increase in education benefits of an undetermined amount.

Bonior said a side purpose of their organization was to build what he called a constituency for Vietnam veterans, who Bonior said are neglected by traditional veterans' organizations and by Congress because of the war's unpopularity.
The group asked the president to proclaim a Vietnam Veterans Week.

Water commissioner seeks Senate confirmation

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texas Water Commissioner Dorsey Hardeman, a former State Senator from San Angelo, will seek to be confirmed Wednesday by the upper chamber of the Legislature.

Hardeman cleared the Senate Nominations Subcommittee on a 7-0 vote Tuesday, following a sometimes bitter question-and-answer session with Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, Galveston.

Schwartz is not a member of the nominations panel, but was allowed to question Hardeman under Senate rules. The feud between the two dates back to when both served in the Senate.

Ironically, Hardeman was introduced to the Senate panel, and "sponsored" by Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland, the man who defeated him 10 years ago.

Hardeman was first appointed to the now-defunct Water Rights Commission in 1971. When the agency was consolidated with two other water agencies in 1977, Gov. Dolph Briscoe re-appointed Hardeman as one of three members of the Texas Water Commission.

The other two water commissioners have already been confirmed by the Senate, without dispute.

Schwartz raised two main allegations against Hardeman in Tuesday's hearing: The former West Texas lawmaker must consider himself to be a resident of the capitol city, and therefore needs the okay of Austin Sen. Lloyd Doggett if he's to be confirmed; and Hardeman has been selective in his rulings while on water commissions.

Before the committee, Schwartz argued, "San Angelo will be a principal beneficiary of Stacy Reservoir, a project which is currently being argued by the commission," and he maintained Hardeman should have disqualified himself from the case at the beginning of the hearings.

Opponents in the Stacy case have also maintained that Hardeman is biased towards construction of the reservoir, and should be disqualified. They base those arguments on Hardeman's past sponsorship of similar water projects while in the Senate and other cases he has heard on the water commission.

Hardeman also admitted to Schwartz he cursed one attorney outside the hearing room following a vote by the three commissioners on the disqualification issue in the Stacy case.

"He (the attorney) came running up to me, wanting to apologize," Hardeman testified. "I told him to kiss my 'blank.'" With persistence from Schwartz, Hardeman went on to testify he used a three-letter curse word for "posterior" in his remarks to the attorney.

Hardeman maintained it would have been improper under state administrative procedures to discuss a pending case, although Schwartz implied such comments were not warranted by a state official.

Hardeman has claimed San Angelo has been his official place of residence throughout his tenure on the water commissions. He told Senators he is still a registered voter of Tom Green County, owns property and has several commercial interests in San Angelo.

Schwartz' contention that Hardeman must live in Austin, while serving on the water commission, apparently was thwarted, with a rebuttal argument raised by Snelson.

Quoting provisions of the Texas Constitution, Snelson said a public official may be absent from his official place of residence while performing duties for the state.

Snelson said "there's no question but what" Hardeman "intends to make Tom Green County his home after leaving state service."

Snelson also accused Doggett of "picking and choosing" his constituents, with other officials, like Hardeman, who live in Austin while representing the state.

Sheriff fires two, suspends one for violating procedures

Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith announced today the dismissal of two officers and the suspension without pay of a third because of what he said were violations of department rules and procedures involving prisoners.

Smith said Capt. Ron Wildman of the Patrol Division was dismissed for violations of rules requiring the use of handcuffs, leg irons and waist restraints during the transport recently of four prisoners from three south Texas locations to the Midland County Jail.

"We're talking about the non-use of handcuffs, leg irons and chains around waists of prisoners in this situation," Smith explained.

Smith said Sgt. Lewis Acree of the Jail Division was dismissed for what Smith said were violations of rules forbidding prisoners to have cigarettes and other smoking material, as well as what Smith called violations of rules regarding the handling of prisoners in the jail.

Smith said Deputy John J. Kleinhans was suspended without pay for one week "because he was aware of the flagrant violation of department rules and regulations during the transportation of the prisoners over the weekend."

Smith said his office has been "working on these problems for three days. We have a very serious infraction of our department rules at this point."

He indicated policies involving the restraint of prisoners during trips from one facility to another "are designed not only to protect the prisoners, but also the officers and citizens exposed to the inmates at these times. I consider a violation of these rules as very serious."

Smith said no new officers have been hired to replace the two men dismissed.

Tax cut may lean to moderate income earners

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's administration began a move today to tilt a proposed $16.2 billion tax cut more in favor of moderate income taxpayers.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told reporters of the shift in tactics, saying Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal was visiting House tax writers with new proposals.

The administration earlier had pinned its hopes on a measure more to Carter's liking, to be offered as a complete substitute when the House takes up the bill the Ways and Means Committee has approved, probably about Aug. 15.

The amendments now being promoted by Blumenthal would include shifting the rate schedule in the committee bill so as to channel more of the relief to incomes under $40,000, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., a committee member, said. The proposals also were said to include increasing the present $35 tax credit to $100, which also would favor lower incomes, perhaps providing a partial offset to increased Social Security taxes, and strengthening the bill's provisions for an alternative tax on capital gains.

Meister, who is 4-foot, 11½ inches tall and weighs 105 pounds captured the AAU-sanctioned Women's National Weightlifting Championship title last April when she dead-lifted 310 pounds. Muscle lady has impossible dream

CHICAGO (AP) — Pam Meister is a little woman with big muscles and a big idea — the idea of lifting 400 pounds off the ground, an utter impossibility for most women, and men.

At 4-foot-11½ and weighing 105 pounds, Ms. Meister bills herself as "pound-for-pound, the strongest woman in the United States." She captured the title in April at the AAU-sanctioned Women's National Weightlifting Championships.

Her best dead-lift weight was 310 pounds, putting the 400-pound dream within the realm of possibility.

"I just love the challenge of beating that piece of metal," the 22-year-old woman said. "That's all it is, really." Just over a year ago, she ventured into the world of muscles when she strolled into the workout room of a YMCA in Canton, Ohio.

"I was scared to death to go in there," she said. "All those men just stopped what they were doing and stared at me. I was stepping into their world and they were probably ready to start laughing."

"But I just kept my mouth shut and started lifting and I liked it." With work and sweat came respect and victories at weightlifting events.

"Competition, how I love it!" she said. "Before I compete, I go off and I don't talk to anybody. After the national competition, I was sick, exhausted. I cried, I threw up for two hours. I couldn't even walk."

"But afterwards, I was stronger for it. I hope by next spring to lift 400 pounds — I'm working on it."

DEAR ABBY

His wife walked in as he was hugging his secretary

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Why can't women be as broad-minded as men? We've been married 15 years, and my wife is doing a super job with our home and children, but she's letting a small incident she happened to witness make a difference in our lives.

Now, you're a businesswoman, Abby, and you know how hard it is to keep a good secretary. Mine has been with me for five years and she does a great job. She's always on time, she's efficient, and the price is right.

Well, last week my wife dropped in at the office, and she happened to see me hug my secretary. I've made friendly gestures like this for some time to show I appreciate her, but now my wife is steamed, and she's giving me a hard time.

Abby, will you please say something in your column about how hard it is to find a good secretary?—JULIUS

DEAR JULIUS: A good plumber is also hard to find! I mean one who comes immediately when you call him, has all the parts he needs with him and does the job at a price that's right. How would you like to come home and find your wife "showing her appreciation" by hugging him?

The next time you want to show your "appreciation," try money.

DEAR ABBY: You told a reader that you took Catholic instruction to better understand Catholicism— "To learn, not turn." What a beautiful idea! I'm Catholic and regularly read publications of other religions.

Our small parish in Lockport, N.Y., has conducted a weekly series where ministers and pastors are invited to tell us about their beliefs and show us their churches (unfortunately, there is no synagogue nearby).

I hope your example prompts others among your millions of readers to become more curious and understanding, less prejudiced and blindly accusative.—A. M. Jr.

DEAR A. M.: So do I. Prejudice is based on ignorance. I can't stress strongly enough the importance of learning about religions that differ from our own. Where there is knowledge and compassion, there cannot be hate or prejudice.

DEAR ABBY: In a column, you used the phrase, "You can insure this feeling by..."

The word is Ensure, unless one can insure feelings as Betty Grable's legs were insured.

Words are our professional tools, and we do well to keep them sharp.—WILLIAM H. MEWITT: WHITTIER, CALIF.

DEAR MR. HEWITT: My Webster's New International Dictionary (Second Edition; unabridged) shows that "insure" is a synonym for "ensure"—and vice versa (Betty Grable's legs notwithstanding).

When you get right down to it, hell is relative

By ERMA BOMBECK

For the last seven years I have made my home in the sun belt. A couple of weeks ago I returned to my native Ohio to visit relatives and friends, the talk turned to the winter of '77-'78. A couple of times I tried to enter the conversation, but it was clear they looked upon me with the same contempt as the man who professed to be a ski instructor during World War II and was innocent as to what was going on.

coats to the dinner table?" asked a cousin. "Looking for the cap off your suntan lotion? Tough. And what were you doing when we were digging our cars out from under an avalanche of snow? Having trouble with your refrigeration? And what about when we ran out of fuel and we took our sled to the store for food they ran out? Let me guess. Someone threw you into the pool and your hair got wrecked. Well, we had kids home for weeks at a time making us crazy. And we tried to escape to the airports only to find out they were closed. And when we tuned in the news, do you know what we saw? A girl in the sun belt in a deck chair complaining she had should strap burns from the sun!" "I read the papers about..." "Listen to her. She read the papers. Well Bunkie, we WORE them to keep warm. Believe me, it was hell!" When my plane touched down at home, the temperature at 6:30 p.m. had dropped to 108. My wedding rings became soft...then solidified once more as they adjusted to the heat. My underwear turned into adhesive as I claimed my luggage. I slid into the car and started the motor. I smelled something. It was baked feet. The steering wheel was like a fire hoop. At home, my husband informed me the air conditioner was broken, the kids couldn't go outside because it was too hot, and we were limited on the amount of water we could use.

We watched the news. The forecast for the next day was 114. It showed a couple from Ohio riding their bikes on green grass with their sweaters on. They were breathing and everything. Hell is relative.

Don't pick up heavy stones; roll them on pipes

By AL CARRELL

For several years, we've had a stack of left-over ledge stones in the backyard. I have been meaning to move them and use them in some way. I finally decided on a use, and it didn't take but one effort at lifting the big flat stones to realize they had become heavier since I put them there 10 years ago. This brought to mind an old trick to save your back when you have such a chore. Just add wheels to the slabs and away you go. The "wheels" are just lengths of pipe, and you need at least three. You pry up an edge of the stone and slip a piece of pipe under it. Now the stone will glide over the pipe. As is does, you insert the other pieces of pipe so that they are all at right angles to the direction of movement. Space the pipes out so they support the entire expanse of stone. As you roll along, the pipes will work toward the rear. As one section comes out the back, it is replaced at the front. No hernias and no back break.

Dear Al:
I accidentally found a new use for that waterless hand cleaner that is used in the workshop. I had been changing the oil in the car and had applied the creamy cleaner to my hands. However, I forgot to bring a paper towel out, and in getting into the house, I got some of the cleaner on the door. When I came back to wipe it off before the little woman saw the mess, I found that when I wiped it away, it also removed a path of fingerprints around the door knob. (Our son is following in my footsteps.) I then applied some fresh cleaner over the door and completely cleaned away the grime. Then I tried this on the kitchen cabinets where there was airborne grease from cooking. Clean as a whistle. I've also used it to clean a piece of furniture that I dug out of the attic. I thought it would have to be stripped, but after the treatment and a coat of polish, it looks great. Try it. — P.G.

A SUPER HINT — As we've discussed, the home repair field is fraught with frauds. Another that I heard about involved the signing of a completion certificate before the job was finished! In one case, this completion certificate was included along with the contract, and like many people, the homeowner just signed all the "regular forms" without reading them. In another case, the job was almost finished but lacked a few more days. The contractor said he'd appreciate a favor of signing ahead of time so he could make his payroll since it was a pretty big job. The "nice guy" signed, the contractor collected the money from the bank, and the crew never came back. Don't agree it's complete until it is, because legally that's all the work that has to be done.

Dear Al:
If you're planning a vacation trip by car, be sure that you don't pack everything has to be removed before you can get to your tools and emergency kit. We did last summer and had to completely unpack to get to the flashlight and a fuse. This year, I kept this stuff out until the very last. — C.K.

SHOP TALK — If you've ever planted a vegetable garden, you know it requires kneeling and crawling along the trenches you've dug. Then, after the plants start growing, you usually have to crawl along again to thin them out. Now comes the seed wheel. It's a wheel-like contraption on the end of a handle. You pour the seeds in, and then turn a dial to the particular plant. As you walk along with the wheel in the row, it deposits a seed every so often at just the right distance for that species. But, of course, some folks like crawling in the dirt.

Got a question or a handy tip? Write to Al Carrell in care of this newspaper.

Use pesticides with great care

By TOM STEVENSON
The Washington Post

If you have a vegetable garden and feel obliged to spray, be very sure that the chemical you use is safe to use on that particular food plant, and that it will be effective. Otherwise, don't spray.

Don't jeopardize your own health and the health of others who may eat your vegetables.

Fresh vegetables from the garden, picked when just right, can be wonderful. Sweet corn, tomatoes ripened on the vine, even potatoes taste better when fresh from the garden. Don't spoil them by spraying them with some poisonous material that is not supposed to be used on them.

Insects are likely to attack vegetable plants. Green hornworms, for example, may chew the leaves off tomato plants, and Mexican bean beetles may damage lima and snap beans.

The first impulse of a new gardener may be to grab something in a bottle, supposed to be good to get rid of insects, and spray with it. At least, that is what I have been told by many who have called me afterwards.

Often the spray is of greater strength than it should be — a little bit extra for good measure.

Insecticides, in fact most pesticides, are poisonous. Used improperly, they can be harmful to human beings, pets, fish and wildlife. Used properly, they can be beneficial to a degree to vegetables to be used as food.

The information is on the label. Read it. Make sure the insecticide is safe to use on that particular crop. Make sure of the correct dilution to use, how long to wait before harvesting after application and whether the crop should be washed or treated before being cooked or stored.

If you harvest too soon, if the spray was too strong, you may do harm to yourself, your family and friends who eat the vegetables.

Do not use an insecticide on a food plant unless the label specifically states that it can be used, the safe dilution and the length of time to wait before harvesting.

Possibly there is some leeway, but who wants to skate on that kind of thin ice? If the label says use 2 tablespoons per 3 gallons of water, it means level tablespoonsful.

Using it as less than the recommended strength will be ineffective. Using it too strong will be harmful.

Protein supplement claims said false

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protein supplements are sold to health food enthusiasts through misleading claims that sometimes are blatant misrepresentations, a federal official concludes after conducting extensive hearings.

Christopher W. Keller, of the Federal Trade Commission, said on Sunday that contemplated federal regulation of the advertising and labeling of protein supplements was supported by expert testimony during 25 days of hearings over which he presided.

Keller, however, refrained from endorsing the key part of the FTC's proposal. That would require this message in all advertisements and labels for the supplements:

"Protein supplements are unnecessary for most Americans. The U.S. Public Health Service has determined that the daily diet of most Americans provides adequate protein."

Keller said that statement is factually correct, but questioned whether it would solve the problem he found. He cited the health warnings on cigarette packages and said the suggested message on protein supplements could be just as ineffective.

Protein supplements are powders, liquids and pills made from protein isolates. They are sold primarily through health food stores and by door-to-door and mail order sales.

During the hearings in Los Angeles, Boston, Washington and San Francisco, retailers of protein supplements and most health food consumers who submitted comments opposed the FTC determination.

However, Keller said his role was to determine facts and that he had to rely on the many experts who appeared.

Our food must provide missing link in building vital protein molecule

Copley News Service
 "The American Heart Association Cookbook" explains that more careful planning is required to get adequate nutrition from a vegetarian diet than from a diet that includes meat. The difficulty is getting enough of the right kind of protein.

Protein is made up of 22 amino acids, eight of which must be acquired from food; our bodies cannot make them. If one of the eight is missing in the correct quantity from the food we eat, then all of the others are useless. Without the missing link, they are powerless to build a single protein molecule, a situation that can lead to a deficiency in this vital body-building element.

Some vegetable sources, such as beans, seeds and grains, contain high-quality protein, but are better eaten in combination rather than alone because they can supplement one another to make far more of it available for body use. The key word here is "available."

Vegetable protein does not contain fat and is less costly than animal protein; but to get sufficient amounts of it, one must consume vegetables in greater bulk than is necessary with animal products. Eggs and low-fat dairy products have all the necessary amino acids, making them high-quality sources and therefore excellent dietary supplements. Unfortunately, the high-cholesterol content of the egg yolk makes it unacceptable for regular daily consumption, but no such limitation applies to the egg white — and the egg white is protein.

The vegetarian (vegan) who does not eat animal products must combine plant products very carefully to obtain enough usable protein, matching vegetables that lack certain amino acids with others that supply them.

"The American Heart Association Cookbook" has a guide in meal planning to obtain proper protein supply from vegetable sources.

These recipes contain skim milk products and eggs in small amounts. They are balanced to give you the right combinations of amino acids and still be low in cholesterol and saturated fats.

NEEDLEPLAY

Needlework not yet unisex

By ERICA WILSON

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

DEAR MS. WILSON: It was rather amusing to read the recent letter in your column from Mr. Passamonte. What was the point of his stating his height and size? Does this perhaps clear his mind about doing needlework? He must feel guilty about it.—Fran Kitchen, New York, N.Y.

DEAR MS. KITCHEN: Let's face it—many men who do needlework are led to believe they're intruding on a ladies' sport. So it follows that if men do it, they must be ladylike. Maybe we need to have a little more patience with the men who must "defend" their position as stitchers—at some point in the not-too-distant future, doing needlework will truly be an acceptable "unisex" undertaking.

My husband Vladimir is inching toward that goal. This summer he's teaching a stitchery class—for men only—at Manhattan's Cooper-Hewitt Museum. It will no doubt be filled with lots of summer bachelors whose wives and kids are off to the beach for the season, leaving them with plenty of time to learn the ABCs of needlework.

DEAR MS. WILSON: I recall having read one of your columns about quilting an item done in crewel. In 1964, I finished a bedspread in crewel and have never been able to use it. It has a design of a stylized tree in the center panel filled with multicolored birds, and it has a small border design as well. It is on linen and I can't get it to stay smooth on a bed. It needs a backing with some body and I've considered quilting it with a lightweight filler.

My problem is that I don't know how this should be done or what quilting design should be used. I don't want to detract from the design of the crewel. I'd be grateful for any advice.—Mrs. Marjorie Herring, Dallas, Texas

DEAR MARJORIE: I know the design you're talking about—it was originally done by Mary Breed in the 18th century and was reproduced as a kit by one of the manufacturers. The original crewel was a very fine soft linen, probably stitched in finer wools than those available today, so it would lie more smoothly.

I think your quilting idea is a good one—and probably the best technique would be something called "contour quilting." When the design is complete, you surround each motif (the whole tree, including the birds) with a line of running stitches about 1/4 inch from the outline of the shape. In other words, following the contours. Then you follow this with another line approximately 1/4 inch out from the first, and continue making flowing lines, which help to accentuate and frame the central design.

In the center of the large, open spaces between the tree and your smaller motifs, you could quilt a flower, butterfly or another bird and, in turn, surround them with contour quilting.

Dr. Guymon force behind brandy's technical quality

By NATHAN CHROMAN
 The Los Angeles Times

The next time you are warmed by a snifter of California brandy, offer a toast to the late Dr. James Guymon. Brandy makers and enology academicians everywhere agree that Dr. Guymon, who died recently, was the major force behind today's technical excellence in California brandy production.

Dr. Guymon authored more than 80 papers, books and articles on fermentation and distillation; his files, archives and bibliographies at home constitute a major library collection on brandy. But the collection is not outdone by his personal wine cellar which he enjoyed daily, not only for a good glass of wine, but also to inform his palate. He was one of the most respected and sought-after wine judges in the world. He judged at the Los Angeles County Fair for almost a decade and frequently chaired its dessert wine panel.

As a brandy expert, he was unsurpassed. Dr. Guymon was probably the first to encourage — indeed, demand — that the industry use young, fresh wine for its brandy production instead of older or secondary materials. These experiments confirmed maximum flavor and economy, precipitating a great California brandy interest. Today, 80 percent of the brandy consumed in this country is Californian.

Dr. Guymon did not come to wine and brandy as an educated oenophile, but rather as a mechanical engineer who later earned his academic stripes as a full professor in the world-respected department of enology at the University of California, Davis. It was his engineering knowledge and understanding of the operation of the still that enabled him to discover a method of returning "heads" or aldehydes back into the fermentation process so they could be redistilled. Earlier, aldehydes — which taste bad and harm the quality of good brandy — were considered useless. This new process had no negative effect on the quality of the brandy, but resulted in enormous savings to the industry in maximum use of material.

His "still palate analysis," a method of determining what type of alcohol and waste products were being formed at what level within a columnar still, for the first time allowed the distiller to exercise much greater control in the formation of an end product.

Crawford era, Edwardian look influence Paris haute couture

By SUZY PATTERSON
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) — Paris haute couture showed off its very best this week with a strong salute to the past.

Squared, big shoulders, tiny waists and hips, high heels and shorter skirts make this year's lean silhouette. Today's ideas are borrowed from the Joan Crawford swingtime era, but there are touches of the Edwardian dandy.

Now you can put all those voluminous blouson dresses and folklore costumes in mothballs for a while. It's the year of the diet, since these hip-skimming clothes look so much better on a beanpole.

The suit with skirt or pants has made a spectacular comeback.

Paris high fashion decrees a narrow wrap-around, slit or pleated skirt, generally 2 or 3 inches below the knee. It's shorter at Givenchy, who knows good proportions. Toppers include boleros or fitted busboy tops, fitted jackets.

The broad shoulder and sleeve are striking at Saint Laurent and Dior — puffing out from a square, padded shoulder. Versions of leg-o'-mutton crop up on everything from suits to evening clothes. Another idea is sleeves inset under an extended shoulder.

Daytime dresses are given short skirt, but they come in sheer, flowered wool or silk, are yoked chemise-style or made in pleated-skirt shirt-waist style, topped with bows, scarves or ruffles.

Paris high fashion decrees a narrow wrap-around, slit or pleated skirt, generally 2 or 3 inches below the knee. It's shorter at Givenchy, who knows good proportions. Toppers include boleros or fitted busboy tops, fitted jackets.

Coats might be squared-off and boxy, with stitched high collars, as at Saint Laurent and Dior. They turn up belted trench-style and fitted, for a 19 Century dandy air.

Trousers are straight and narrow, but not peg-style or ankle-length as in Paris ready-to-wear. These are elegantly tailored and reach the instep.

Sophisticated clothes demand beautiful fabrics — flannels, nubby tweeds, mohair. Prince of Wales, chevron and houndstooth patterns, the strong plaids show at Chanel and Saint Laurent. Velvet is the new look in details, skirts and jackets.

Black has taken couture by storm, but you'll also see soft autumnal shades, some claret and brighter reds.

For a cold winter, our Parisienne wears gloves and plenty of fur — fox coats and mink linings, fur edging and boas swathed around the neck.

By night the well-dressed woman is elegant, bewitching and sexy as Jean Harlow. Black opens up the cocktail lounges and closes down the discos with satin and velvets, highlighted by a Milky Way of shimmer in lame, elaborate embroidery, sequins or rhinestones.

Late afternoon brings back the little black dress, molding the figure into an hourglass shape. Givenchy comes up with every idea in the book, including chemises, slit sheath skirts, slashed, strapless or, camisole tops. They all have the couture cachet, though they sometimes give a lady-of-the-night effect.

Color adds dazzle to these vamped evenings. Shocking pink, tomato red, orange, electric blue or emerald green are striking in puffy taffeta skirts under velvet tops with narrow busts.

Couture-followers will wear a hat, another big comeback.

Feather pillows can be cleaned automatically

Altrusa Club has plans to award FFVA grants

The annual breakfast of the Midland Altrusa Club, Inc., was held poolside at Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Marilyn Van Petten, chairman of the vocational services committee, reported on the Founders Fund Vocational Aid grants the club is in the process of procuring for two Midland women.

This fund is used to rehabilitate or help in training of women, who are beyond college age, for jobs. These grants, administered by the local club, are maintained with funds from voluntary contributions of Altrusa clubs and their members.

A majority have taken practical or licensed vocational nurses training, with the next most popular training request being for office jobs. However, grants have been used in Midland to start such home businesses as dressmaking or a hand laundry.

It was announced at the breakfast that June Sparks will host the club's next social, an annual pool party, Aug. 24 at her home. The swimming will begin at 7 p.m., followed at 8 p.m. by a catered dinner. The cost is $3 per person, and members are allowed to invite guests and/or their Altrousers.

Evelyn Estes Melear and Audna Wilson were recognized as guests.

Members attending were Ada Phillips, Annie Ford, Mary Alice Tidwell, Katrena Cain, Loleta Guffey, Myrtle Bearden, Lois McHargue, Dorothy Cunningham, Elsie Ingham, Ann Hicks, Ginger Seago, Jean Reid, Pauline Simmons, Pam Johnson, Anne Kendall, Elizabeth Grimm, Connie Stirman, Thelma Gardner, Caroline Keisling, Florence Shade, Marilyn Van Petten, Rosellen Busby, Virginia Hoffman, Janice Whatley, Maurine Mims and Patsy Gordon.

New regulations passed for cellulose insulation testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Products Safety Commission has set new standards which require cellulose insulation used by the general public to pass flammability and corrosiveness tests.

The regulations announced last week also require that the insulation be labeled to inform the consumer that the product has passed such test.

The testing requirements are designed to reduce the flammability and corrosiveness of the insulation.

The regulations are applicable to products made after Sept. 8.

Cellulose insulation is one of the major types of home insulation and consists basically of groundup paper treated with flame-retardant chemicals.

Centers offer seniors recreation, numerous other needed services

CHICAGO (A.P.) — Retired Chicago businessman Morris J. Alford, 75, beats the high cost of living by doing his weekly grocery shopping at his local community senior center.

Gilford directs one of three food co-ops in the city run entirely by seniors under the auspices of the Jewish Community Centers of Chicago.

Now, in its fourth year, the food co-op represents a challenge for the elderly to beat inflated supermarket prices because staff members buy fresh produce and grocery staples at bargain-basement wholesale prices, according to Gilford.

"Everything here is fresh and clean and wholesome," he says as he unloads bags of apples. "As you get older and you're all alone, you can't easily use the large packages from the supermarket. Here, you can buy one piece of fruit or one vegetable."

The JCC's food co-op is just one way some 5,000 senior centers across the country help people cope with being older and alone, says DeWayne Oberlander, associate with the National Institute of Senior Centers of the National Council on the Aging.

These multipurpose senior centers offer a host of services: social events, arts and crafts, education, health maintenance and nutrition programs, travel, legal assistance and income supplements like the food co-op, Oberlander explains.

"About half of the people who participate in centers live alone," says Oberlander. "National figures show that only one-third of the total aging population lives alone, which means the centers are serving a lot of people who might otherwise be isolated."

According to Nelson Cruikshank, counselor to President Carter on the aging, not all senior centers encourage their members to remain active and alert.

"Some centers emphasize continuing citizen roles for their members—the seniors participate actively in planning and running the programs," says Cruikshank. "But others drain off the drive for citizen participation. Their members become satisfied, not with bread and circuses, but with bingo and bridge."

Marvin Schreiber, director of Chicago's JCC Senior Adult Department, says the right kind of senior center programs are vital in encouraging older people to remain contributing members of their community.

"Inactivity can be matched with isolation and depression," Schreiber says. "When older people are socially engaged and involved with activities of their own choosing, they're in better physical and mental shape."

Fun and challenges mark the JCC programs, according to Schreiber. For instance, disco dancing classes are a popular part of one suburban Chicago center's "Project Well Being," a comprehensive health care program aimed at keeping senior adults fit and active. In another center, art students recently painted a mural celebrating Chicago's 140th birthday; it occupies a place of honor in the city's exposition hall.

Many senior centers offer similarly innovative programs. A fiction, poetry and drama program at Over-the-Rhine Senior Center in Cincinnati's inner city gives seniors, many relatively unschooled, a chance to learn and share their thoughts with their peers.

In Durham, N.C., federal funding provides jobs, through centers, to elderly repairmen who maintain and improve the homes of other senior adults. When a homeowner has health problems or becomes frail, these repairmen might widen doorways or build protective handrails throughout the house.

Rural America has the Green Thumb project involving 15,000 seniors, including a 103-year-old South Carolina woman, in a community service employment program sponsored by the National Farmers Union. Green Thumb's Larry Anderson says nearly 50 percent of these older workers are employed by senior centers and nutrition centers.

"Many of the senior centers in rural parts of the country simply could not operate were it not for Green Thumb workers becoming staff members," he explains.

Green Thumb is also directing a nationwide effort aimed at motivating older workers to re-enter the job market, Anderson says. "We're trying to eliminate processes in employment offices that are intimidating," he says, especially to retired farmers who never before had to fill out a job application."

'No-frills' groceries popular with consumer

By J. JUICE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The tissues are unperfumed, the peas are uneven and the packages are unmarked.

But the prices are lower. And consumers apparently are willing to skip the trimmings on "no-frills" groceries and take the savings.

Retailers report that the unbranded products introduced in supermarkets from coast to coast in recent months are selling well, despite generally low-key advertising. They say they don't have — or won't release — specific sales figures, but spokesmen for some of the first stores to stock the products are unanimous in their enthusiasm for the concept.

The idea started in France in 1976 when a chain named Carrefour introduced a group of low-cost products packed in plain cans or boxes, without any brand name. Jewel Cos. started testing the plan in February 1977 and formally introduced it in Midwest stores eight months later. Star Markets of Cambridge, Mass., a part of the Jewel operation, followed suit and so did retailers across the country. A&P, the nation's second-largest chain, recently started a line of generic products in its stores in the Washington, D.C., area.

How much can you save by skipping the frills? Prices vary, but the products in the plain wrappers generally sell for 25 to 35 percent less than national brands. At one A&P store, for example, a 15½-ounce can of cut green beans was selling for 31 cents, about 33 percent less per ounce than the national brand.

In some cases, the no-frills products are virtually identical to national or house brands except for packaging. (Packaging costs vary widely, but the Department of Agriculture says that in 1976, the latest year for which figures are available, 8.7 cents of every dollar consumers spent for farm-produced foods went for packaging.)

In other cases, there is a difference. Paper products are often available in white only and lack perfume. Detergents may not be as strong as the brand-name cleansers. Canned fruits and vegetables are standard quality rather than fancy. Peas may not be uniform in size, for example, and fruit may be bruised, but the stores say the difference is a matter of eye appeal, rather than nutritional value.

Jewel says its 108 no-frills products sell for 10 to 35 percent less than national brands. "It is still in the expansion stage," said spokesman Michael Hatt. "Oh, yes," he added, when asked if the products were doing well. Hatt said people generally try non-food products first. "I suspect there's less brand loyalty in the non-food area," he added.

World's only Japanese Zero fighter still flying, soon to fly over Japan

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON
The Los Angeles Times

CHINO, Calif. — The pilot climbed into the cockpit of the Japanese Zero fighter plane, and Fabrics displayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — An exhibit titled "Printed, Painted, and Dyed: The New Fabric Surface" is on display at the Smithsonian Institution through Oct. 15.

The show "includes 42 works by 33 craftsmen, all of whom are concerned with the embellishment of preconstructed fabric with design and color."

"Among the objects are quilts, soft sculptural forms, clothing, wall hangings, a sleeping bag, a stuffed cotton 'music box,' a quilted moose head and a 33-piece chess set."

justed his goggles and flashed a salute to his ground crew as the fighter's engine roared to life. It could have been a scene from World War II except the location was Chino, 40 miles east of Los Angeles, the year 1978 and the plane the world's only Zero still flying.

This month the Zero will once again be flying over Japan at the invitation of that country's government.

The restored plane will be loaded aboard a freighter bound for Japan on Monday in Long Beach, Calif. In Japan, it will participate in special religious ceremonies commemorating the end of the war 33 years ago.

The plane, one of only eight Zeros left in the world, was restored to flying condition at the Planes of Fame Air Museum, a Chino organization that rebuilds and displays historical fighter aircraft. It had been in the possession of the museum since the end of World War II, but it was not until five years ago that the museum's founder, Edward Maloney, decided while on a trip to Japan to restore the craft.

Famous for its speed and maneuverability, the Zero was frequently used by kamikaze pilots, Maloney said. More than 10,000 of the planes were built during World War II, but most were scrapped at the war's end.

"We felt this airplane represented more significant history in Japan than anything else, and they didn't have one," said Don Lykins, a Western Airlines captain who accompanied Maloney to Japan. "We decided to restore our plane and bring it over. There was only one problem at the time — we didn't know how to do (restore) it."

After several trips to Japan and many hours of research, Lykins and Mahoney developed plans for rebuilding the aircraft. Engine, wings and tail all needed extensive restoration.

"We thought we'd have it done in one year," Lykins said, "but so many things in the plane are so complicated."

Finally, after five years of restoration, the fighter was painted in its original markings of the 261st Japanese Naval Air Corps and taken on a test flight by Lykins — the first time to his knowledge that a Zero had been in the air for 33 years, Mahoney said.

"We tested it along with two of its archenemies — P-51 Mustangs. Only this time they were watching over it rather than trying to shoot it down."

The test went beautifully, Mahoney said, and Lykins has now logged more than 20 hours of flying time in the fighter.

"We were invited by the Japanese to fly it over Tokyo in mid-August," Mahoney said. "Then we may take it on a tour of the major cities. Then we'll bring it back to the museum for display."

Mahoney said he doubted that another Zero would ever be restored.

"It took us several years and a large amount of financing to restore this plane," he said. "This is a very rare thing."

Hot stuff supply running low

WASHINGTON (AP) — The folks who make the sauce that makes Bloody Marys and chili-smothered hot dogs hot say they can't buy enough red peppers in the United States.

So the manufacturers of Tabasco sauce are asking the federal government for a break. They want the tariff suspended on the Mexican hot red peppers they import — ground and mixed with salt.

Their bill is one of 18 measures pending in Congress that would lower the nation's tariff barriers for certain imports. One would suspend the duty on live worms until June 30, 1981. Another would lift the duty on imported jewelry given away to carnival-goers.

The problem with peppers, it seems, is that it's tough to get American laborers to do the back-breaking picking. "We're working on a mechanical pepper picker, but we still classify it as experimental," Edmund McIlhenny Jr. told a Senate finance subcommittee on Monday as he sought support for a bill suspending the Mexican pepper tariff until June 30, 1981.

McIlhenny, representing the firm that bears his name and which has been manufacturing Tabasco sauce in Louisiana since 1868, told the subcommittee his company stands ready to pay a reasonable price for peppers. But he said the kind of pepper needed for the hot stuff can't readily be found in this country.

"We feel that the duty we are forced to pay on some of the pepper mash we import was not meant to protect this very specialized product and industry."

There is no tariff on peppers the firm imports from Guatemala, Honduras and Colombia because the U.S. government wants to help the economy of those three "developing nations," he said after the hearing.

But McIlhenny said his firm pays about $20,000 a year on the 300,000 pounds of mashed peppers it imports from Mexico.

"I think it's something worth saving for American gastronomy," Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said of the pungent sauce.

Expressing surprise that there are 30 million bottles sold each year, he said, "It seems to me that Tabasco lasts forever. You put one drop in a cocktail and that bottle never gets used up."

Woman vowing to use gun offered money, new home

KITTERY, Maine (AP) — A feisty, 65-year-old woman who vowed to use a BB gun to protect her farmhouse from a wrecking crew has been offered money, a new home and more BBs from sympathizers across the nation.

But Mary Kozlowski is still angry over the loss of her ramshackle home to an arsonist.

"The hell with being a star," she said Tuesday. "I want my house."

Miss Kozlowski, who supplements her Social Security income by picking blueberries, was in the national limelight earlier this year when she vowed to fight a state Department of Transportation decision to demolish her house to make way for a new highway bridge.

On June 19, the day the bulldozers were to arrive, Miss Kozlowski told reporters she would use a BB gun to defend the 80-year-old, two-story farmhouse where she was born and lived with her parents until they died.

Seven months ago, the state gave her and her 67-year-old brother new trailers to live in and money for the house and their blueberry field.

But Miss Kozlowski claimed the trailer was cold and dangerous. She asked the state to move her house across the road to a field.

Transportation department commissioner Roger Mallar says the woman has known for a decade that the state had the right of way to build a new Cutts Road bridge on her land, but did not react until June 19.

Then, on June 21, at the height of the dispute, the dilapidated building burned down.

A state fire inspector said the fire was "definitely suspicious." Bernard Emery of the fire marshal's office said an irregular burn pattern throughout the gutted house indicated the fire had been set.

No arrests have been made.

Since June, Miss Kozlowski has become a symbol to people who sympathized with her fight to save her home.

"I have nothing but respect for a person who has the guts to stand up for what is theirs," an Oakland taxi driver wrote to her.

A woman from Georgia said: "Us little people have been pushed around for too long. ... If you need more BBs let me know."

A San Francisco correspondent sent her a check with a note saying, "Please apply the enclosed to either a fund for a shotgun to replace your BB gun or to a fund to move your farmhouse."

Gold bracelet reported stolen from residence Monday

A gold bracelet, valued at approximately $1,000, was reported stolen late Monday afternoon by Jo Van Horn of the 400 block of Scharbauer Drive, according to Midland Police.

Officers said Mrs. Van Horn told them she left her home for a short period and, upon her return, she discovered the bracelet missing from a bedroom.

RECIPIENT of a partial scholarship from the women's division of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgy and Petroleum Engineers of the Permian Basin is Mark Edward Mear, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mear of 1501 N. C St. He plans to attend The University of Texas at Austin to study mechanical engineering. Mear was Midland High School's salutatorian for the Class of 1978. He also served as president of the Junior Engineering Technical Society at MHS.

Teachers attend workshop on law

Secondary special education teachers this week are attending a workshop in Midland on local, state and national law. The workshop is being conducted by Margaret Caylor of the Dallas Independent School District.

The teachers are meeting daily from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Anson Jones Elementary School where they are learning how to teach special education students about such subjects as the U.S. Constitution, bylaws, city government structures and the role of policemen.

"The workshop is primarily concerned with the development of law in our country," said Bertha Starks, coordinator of law-focused education for the Midland schools.

Mrs. Caylor is former elementary coordinator for Law-Focused Education Inc. of Texas and currently is a teacher in the Dallas public schools.

Local officials and attorney Ted Kerr will be special guests during the workshop.

Judgement upheld

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The Oregon Supreme Court has upheld a judgment of more than $50,000 in damages for D&L Oil Supply of Salem against American Petrofina Co. of Texas.

The court found on Tuesday that the Texas company, whose brand name is Fina, violated provisions of a 1971-74 contract with D&L.

The Salem firm bought gasoline wholesale from Fina and supplied Willamette Valley and coastal gas stations.

D&L contended Fina failed to live up to a verbal agreement that it would reduce prices to D&L if major retailers in certain areas dropped their prices.

Jackson says votes available

By MIKE SHANAHAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Energy Committee said Tuesday supporters of a natural gas compromise have the votes to break a filibuster planned by opponents of the pricing plan.

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he is much less confident that the natural gas bill will be approved by the Senate.

The bill, a critical piece of President Carter's energy plan, is to come before the Senate on Friday.

Democratic Sens. James Abourezk of South Dakota and Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio announced Tuesday they will seek to block a vote on the natural gas compromise by making repeated attempts to send it back to a congressional conference committee.

To break a filibuster led by Abourezk, Jackson and Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd must gather 60 votes to end debate.

"We have the votes for cloture (ending debate)," Jackson said in a brief interview, "but I am much less sure about the bill itself."

The legislation, the product of six months of negotiations between senators and House members, would allow natural gas prices to rise gradually until 1985 when controls would be lifted.

There was some indication that the compromise agreement might come unraveled before it reaches the Senate floor.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, of Oregon, one of three Republican supporters of the compromise, said he believes a provision designed to protect natural gas producers from inflation has been faultily drafted.

Asked if he will vote for the bill as presently written, Hatfield said, "Not now."

At a news conference Tuesday, Abourezk and Metzenbaum said that by supporting the natural gas compromise, Carter had sold out to the oil and gas industry.

Abourezk said in proposing his original energy program 15 months ago, Carter was interested in protecting purchasers from unreasonable price increases.

er is one of the most important options we have now," said Eric Beckjord of the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration in May, 1977.

"The breeder, while having the greatest long term promise, is not commercially demonstrated," commented utility companies specialists in a 1977 technical report. "There is no time to waste in getting it under way."

Others are concerned. Special interest groups perceive that carrying the Administration's energy policies to logical conclusion will put a lot of people out of work and deny others economic opportunity.

Shutdown of the Clinch River Project, a demonstration plant from which utilities companies would acquire production technology, "is a political thing, not technical," Cochran said.

Breeder reactors bypass the uncertainty of fuel supply for water reactors by producing additional fuel, along with electricity.

The breeder's fuel elements heat a liquid metal, or perhaps helium, that flash water to steam in a heat exchanger to drive turbines hooked to electrical generators. Gas-cooled breeder reactors have an advantage that helium cannot become radioactive.

The fission process in a fast breeder produces extra neutrons. They interact with fertile material in a "blanket" that is part of the reactor container, producing new fissionable material.

"It's advantage is that the breeder converts uranium 238, worthless for use in water reactors, to a fissionable material that can be used as fuel in other reactors," Cochran said.

He noted that processing of uranium ore produces less than one percent uranium 235 for water reactors, with the remaining 99.29 percent in the form of U-238.

"The Clinch River machine would have a breeding ratio of 1.2," Cochran added. "This means that in 10 years it would produce as much fuel as was originally in the reactor, providing fuel to keep it going or to start up others to generate more electricity."

The Experimental Breeder Reactor II near Arco, Idaho, has been operating since 1964.

"It's been proven we can run fast breeder reactors," Cochran commented. "We need to get on with demonstration projects so companies can get involved."

Senators accuse Carter of selling out to oil, gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Firing the opening salvos in a new congressional fight over the price of natural gas, liberal Senate opponents of deregulation today accused President Carter of selling out to the oil and gas industry.

Democratic Sens. James Abourezk of South Dakota and Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio said Carter is backing a natural gas compromise in the Senate only because he needs a political victory.

The compromise worked out in six months of negotiations between the House and Senate is to come before the Senate on Thursday or Friday.

Metzenbaum and Abourezk said they will seek to force "extended debate to educate the American people." They said the compromise gives too much to oil and gas producers at the expense of residential users of natural gas.

Abourezk and Metzenbaum made the comments at a news conference called to question the voluminous congressional conference report.

The report, released Monday, said that, by 1985, a natural gas compromise would result in a $13 annual increase in fuel prices for most homeowners.

Abourezk and Metzenbaum led an unsuccessful filibuster against lifting federal price controls a year ago and Abourezk has promised a repeat performance.

The compromise to come before the Senate Thursday or Friday provides for continued controls at higher prices until 1985, when deregulation, long sought by the oil and gas industry, would occur.

In the congressional conference committee report released Monday, House and Senate Energy Committee staff members estimated that, if the compromise were adopted, consumers would pay $4.80 per thousand cubic feet of gas in 1985, compared to current residential prices of about $2.50.

Under the current system of regulation, the conference report estimates, residential prices would go to $4.70 by 1985 for each thousand cubic feet.

The report, based on computer studies, made no estimate of how sharply residential prices would rise once controls are lifted seven years from now.

That would amount to about $13 for the average homeowner annually, compared to the prices that could be expected under continued regulation, the conference report said.

The federal Department of Energy has estimated that the natural gas compromise will add $29 billion to the revenues of oil and gas companies through 1985. The conference report set that figure at $9 billion.

The natural gas bill is a major element of President Carter's energy plan over which Congress has been struggling for more than 15 months.

Senate Majority leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said the newest natural gas debate in the Senate would run four days before an attempt would be made to gather the 60 votes necessary to cut off any filibuster.

Should several attempts fail to break a filibuster, the natural gas bill would die for this year, and Carter will have suffered a major political defeat.

Because conference reports cannot be amended but must be approved or disapproved as they are, Abourezk is expected to have more difficulty blocking a final vote than on other pieces of legislation.

He is expected to draw some support from conservative Republicans and oil-state senators who believe deregulation should come sooner than 1985.

One of those, Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., on Monday termed the compromise a favored attempt to find a ground on which 51 percent of the conferees can stand so that the president can say he has passed an energy plan.

Totie Fields felled by heart attack; era ends

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Comedian Totie Fields, who had been making a comeback after a leg amputation, two heart attacks and breast cancer, died today.

The once-rotund nightclub and television entertainer who had brought laughter to millions was 48.

Miss Fields, chosen by her colleagues as Entertainer of the Year in January, died of an apparent heart attack the day before she was to open at the Sahara Hotel. When she received the award at Caesar's Palace, another Las Vegas Strip hotel, she said: "I don't want anyone feeling sorry for me."

She was dead when she arrived at Sunrise Hospital in a private ambulance, said hospital spokeswoman Rena Lees.

Dick Mayne, chief deputy Clark County coroner, said, "the apparent cause of death is a heart attack. However, we are conferring on her past medical history with the battery of doctors who have treated her."

Television talk show host Mike Douglas said Miss Fields, who appeared on "The Mike Douglas Show" 125 times, was "a close, professional friend... Her great courage in dealing with her many health problems in recent years will always stand out as an example to everyone."

She entered St. Joseph Hospital in Stamford, Conn., more than two years ago for minor surgery. While there, she developed phlebitis in her left leg.

Cubs equal winning streak in 7-3 victory

BY TED BATTLES

Midland's Cubs equalled their longest winning streak of the season, seven straight, with a 7-3 win over Shreveport Tuesday night at Cubs Stadium, but they weren't ready to stop there and really couldn't afford to, not with San Antonio pushing them in the Texas League West Division pennant race.

AND NOT WITH a big series coming up later this week at San Antonio.

Midland opened up a 2 1/2 game lead over second place San Antonio when Jackson blanked the Dodgers 1-0 Tuesday night.

The Cubs and Captains close out their five-game series at 7:30 p.m. today with Lee Smith, 7-8, going for Midland against former major leaguer Randy Tate, 2-5, who already holds one victory over the Cubs.

Righthander Herman Segelke, looking like a new pitcher since coming off a month long layoff with arm trouble, hurled nine hit balls for his sixth win of the season and once again flirted with a shutout.

Designating a batting star for the game is a little more difficult, which may be one of the reasons for Midland's success. For a while the top three guys in the batting order were the catalysts, but now everyone is contributing. Eric Grandy hit his fourth homer, a solo job in the second to get the Cubs offense going. After that it Kevin Drury with a run-scoring double in the third, Bill Evers a run-producing double in the second and an RBI fly in the fifth.

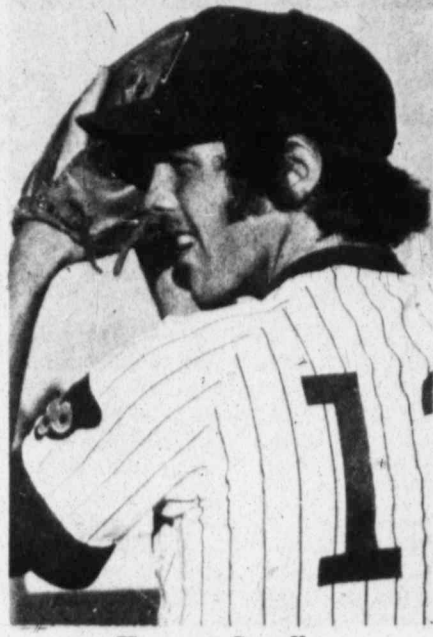

Joe Hernandez continued to be poison with men on, singling home Kurt Seibert, who had walked, and Steve Macko, who had doubled, in the fourth.

"THAT'S JUST the way it is with this club. That's what makes it so easy to pitch," says Segelke, a 20-year-old from South San Francisco. "Everybody thinks we can win when we go out there and a pitcher knows they're going to get him five or six runs."

Segelke made it four complete games in a row by Midland pitchers and was asked if he knew that the starting contingent is depriving the bullpen of gainful employment.

"They can use the rest. Four games won't hurt them and when we need them, they'll be rested and ready," grins Herman.

In his last three starts, the young righthander has gone the route twice and eight innings the other time for the kind of consistency that had been missing earlier.

Herman Segelke

"I've cut down on the walks and in the process built up my confidence," advises Segelke. "I never had control problems before this year, but early in the season I had 50 or 60 walks. Now I'm not scared anymore when I take the mound and I'm ready when I go out there. Tonight I didn't get tired at all."

SEGELKE CREDITS pitching Coach Barney Schultz with finding a flaw in his wind up. "I was stopping in my pumping motion and as a result wasn't getting my arm in front of my body in the delivery."

The evidence is conclusive. He walked only three Captains and one in his last start.

SEGELKE LOST his shutout in the sixth when one of those walks, Ossie Olivares scored on a single by Larry Littleton which left runners on first and second. John Dean followed with another single and an accurate throw from rightfielder Jim Tracy was cut off by first baseman Evers. He gunned it to second to catch Littleton off base and when Dick Walterhouse broke for the plate, the throw home caught the Captain in a rundown that prevented a big inning.

A leadoff single by Marc Rhea and a two-out homer by Juan Deliza, his fourth, with two out in the ninth accounted for the other two runs.

Segelke escaped serious trouble in the third when a walk and two singles loaded the bases with one out. Pete Ithier rapped back to the box and Segelke, ignoring the runner coming home, went to second and got the inning-ending double play in a successful but unorthodox play.

"Before the play even happened, they yelled from the dugout to go home if the ball was hit to me," Segelke explained. "For some reason, I turned and saw Macko (shortstop Steve) breaking for second so I went ahead and threw. I made a mistake, but it turned out okay. Next time, though, I'll go home."

CUB CUBES—Tate, tonight's Shreveport starter, spent 1975 with the New York Mets compiling a 5-13 record. "I might still be there if I could pitch against the Cubs all the time. I was 2-0 against Chicago and I'm 1-0 against Midland."...Actually, arm trouble (an injured rotator cup) kept him from staying in the big leagues. "I remember him," says batting coach Billy Williams. "He had a good fastball."...From Killen, Ala., Tate was drafted after a year of junior college ball and is in his seventh pro season...Steve Macko extended his consecutive game hitting streak to 10...Carl Sawatski, Texas League president, and his wife were spectators at Tuesday's game...The Cubs 11-hit attack against Waco's Jim Smith included doubles by Evers, Macko, Drury and Tracy. Hernandez, Tracy, Drury and catcher Greg Keatley all had two-hit nights...Reliever Rusty Johnson, however, didn't give the Cubs a thing over the final 3 2/3 innings...

Rose's batting streak ends after 44 games

ATLANTA (AP) — Pete Rose's dramatic chase of Joe DiMaggio's all-time record of hitting in 56 straight games has ended at 44.

"I would have liked to see what would have happened if I had gotten up in the 50s," Rose said Tuesday night after failing to hit for the first time since mid-June. He was 0-for-4 with a walk against rookie left-hander Larry McWilliams and veteran reliever Gene Garber of the Atlanta Braves.

"But 44 is not bad," said the scrappy 37-year-old captain of the Cincinnati Reds. "I'm not really disgusted because I hit the ball well. I'll come back tomorrow and get a hit."

IT WAS A sensational catch by McWilliams in the second inning that prevented Rose from moving out of a tie for the all-time National League record set by Willie Keeler in 1897 when he hit safely in the first 44 games that season.

Rose, who had walked on a full-count pitch to open the game, drilled a vicious liner through the middle on his first pitch from McWilliams in the second. The lanky 6-foot-5 McWilliams, appearing in only his fourth major league game, reached back and speared the shot about waist high.

Rose later grounded out to shortstop Jerry Royster in the fifth inning and lined into a double play to rookie third baseman Bob Horner in his first trip against Garber in the seventh, setting the stage for the final drama.

It came in the ninth after Garber had fanned the first two Reds he faced.

The crowd of 31,159 gave Rose a half-minute ovation as he stroled to the plate.

Rose fouled off the first pitch, attempting to bunt toward Horner at third. He then took two straight balls, low and inside, drawing a scattering of boos from the crowd. Rose fouled a 2-1 changeup at his feet and then struck out on another changeup, tipping it into the mitt of catcher Joe Nolan.

"Garber was pitching like it was the seventh game of the World Series," Rose said. "He had a 16-4 lead."

Asked if he were saying the Braves' right-hander should have laid one in for him to hit, Rose replied:

"No, I don't mean that. "But I hope I get to see him (Garber) again tomorrow in a one-run game," he added. "I hope I hit a frozen rope right up the middle."

Garber, who recorded his 13th save since coming to the Braves in a trade with Philadelphia earlier this year, was undaunted.

"I don't know how I'm supposed to pitch in the seventh game of a World Series, because I never had done that," he said. "I have an idea if I was pitching like it was the seventh game of the World Series, he probably was hitting like it was the ninth inning of the seventh game of the World Series."

"I wanted his streak to continue, but I wanted to get him out, too," Garber added. "That's what I get paid to do."

IT HAS BEEN a season of two major accomplishments for Rose, who broke into the major leagues in 1963 with the nickname "Charlie Hustle" for the extraordinary effort he put forth in games.

He started the year — his 16th in the majors — needing only 34 hits to become the 13th player in history with 3,000 career hits, and he attained that goal on May 5 with a single off Steve Rogers of the Montreal Expos.

Asked if that had presented more pressure than the hitting streak, Rose said, "No. I couldn't visualize a 34-for-600 season."

Rose was asked if he thought he might have another long streak in him.

"I don't know if I'm too old to have another streak like that or not," he said. "There are only, what, about 56 more games left. I don't want to do that again and

Jackson nabs TL victory

By The Associated Press

Mookie Wilson's bases-load bunt in the bottom of the 13th inning drove home Hubie Brooks with the winning run as the Jackson Mets took a 1-0 Texas League baseball victory Tuesday night.

In other Texas League action, Midland defeated Shreveport, 7-3, El Paso beat Arkansas, 6-2, and Amarillo edged Tulsa.

Wilson's bunt helped Kim Seaman boost his pitching record to 9-3. Seaman gave up only four hits. Mike Wilson, now 6-9, was the losing pitcher.

Eric Grandy's fourth homer of the season helped the Midland Cubs win their seventh straight Texas League game, a 7-3 victory over the Shreveport Captains. Herman Segelke, the winning Cubs pitcher, is now 6-5. Taking the loss for Shreveport was Jim Smith, now 4-11.

Danny Goodwin's 25th homer of the year helped the El Paso Diablos take a 6-2 victory over the Arkansas Travelers. The homer came in the fourth inning and moved the Diablos into a 1-1 tie. Diablos pitcher Dave Steck, now 9-8, was the winner.

Tech assistant seeks AD job at Vanderbilt

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Vanderbilt University committee screening candidates for the athletic director's job may wind up its hunt soon, the committee's chairman says.

"I promise you we're working as hard and as fast as possible trying to come up with a decision, but it just takes time," Paul Harrawood said in an interview Tuesday.

The committee is looking for a successor to Clay Stapleton. He has said he is resigning effective Aug. 31 as athletic director after five years in the position.

Texas Tech football assistant Bob Patterson, a former assistant at Vanderbilt, and Roy Kramer, football coach at Central Michigan, are in the running for Vanderbilt's athletic directorship, a Nashville newspaper has reported.

Astro streak stands at 11 with 4-2 victory

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros pitcher J.R. Richard was either stunning or stumbling Tuesday night and needed a little help from his friends before he finally subdued the San Francisco Giants 4-2 to extend the Astros' home win streak to 11 straight.

Richard either overwhelmed the hesitant Giants batters or walked them in giving up four hits and running his record to 11-9. Richard walked the Giants to give him 102 for the year and struck out 11 to run that league-leading total to 202.

The 6-8 Richard, with one of the fastest fastballs in the majors, needed Sambito to retire the last batter in the game, and a few friendly barbs from third baseman Enos Cabell to get him through his 182-pitch performance.

"I talk about him like a dog," laughed Cabell, who delivered a two-run single in the fifth inning for the game-winner. "I make him mad and he starts concentrating again. He gets so into the game that he forgets who he's pitching to."

"You never can relax," Astros Manager Bill Virdon said. "It was the same the last time he pitched. He doesn't give up many hits but there's always people on base."

Astros pitching coach Mel Wright counted Richard's 182-pitch total and said it was by far the most pitches he's thrown in a game this season.

"I talked to him the last two innings," Wright said. "He said he was feeling good and wanted to go back."

Nonetheless, when Richard put two runners on base in the ninth inning, Virdon called for Sambito, who retired Darrell Evans to end the game.

"That's his decision," Richard said of Virdon's move. "If it had been my decision, I would have stayed in and got the man out. But he runs the club and I just work here so I came out." Richard said he felt strong but did not have his rhythm against the Giants. "It's all a matter of concentration," he said. "The main thing I do wrong is start thinking about what I'm doing wrong. That breaks my concentration."

The Astros took a 2-0 lead in the second inning off starter Bob Knepper, 11-8, on Jose Cruz' sacrifice fly and a single by Richard.

San Francisco, struggling to hold onto its National League West lead, tied it in the third when Richard walked the first two batters, who scored on Jack Clark's sacrifice fly and a single by Darrell Evans.

The Astros chased Knepper in the fifth after the Giants pitcher had walked Richard and Terry Puhl. Cabell then hit the first pitch by reliever Randy Moffitt into centerfield for a single, scoring both runners.

"With that kind of great stuff, I'm glad he's erratic, I'd hate to have to hit off him," said Giants Manager Joe Altobelli. "We had plenty of opportunities tonight."

Simpson won't see duty against Dallas Saturday

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The lineup for Saturday's pre-season opener between the San Francisco 49ers and the Dallas Cowboys was to have included four Heisman Trophy winners, but word filtered into the Cowboys' camp here Tuesday that the marquee would have to be shortened by the elimination of O.J. Simpson's name.

In a telephone interview with the Dallas Times Herald Tuesday, the San Francisco running back said he probably would not play in the annual Salesmanship Club charity game due to a slight knee injury.

Cowboy officials had hoped Simpson's first appearance in a 49ers uniform would add special appeal to the contest that already boasted three Heisman Trophy winners — Dallas' Tony Dorsett and Roger Staubach and San Francisco's Jim Plunkett.

Dorsett suffered a knee bruise in practice Monday but was back in pads during Tuesday's afternoon session and is probable for Saturday night.

Meanwhile, linebacker Mike Hagman was sidelined Tuesday with a sore lower back that has plagued him for several days. His availability for Saturday was unknown Tuesday night.

FBI plans Olympic terrorist operation

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The FBI is preparing an antiterrorist operation for the 1980 Winter Olympics at Lake Placid, according to James Price, a member of the FBI's International Terrorist Unit.

FBI officials have met several times with New York state police who will be handling the primary security arrangements for the winter Games in the small Adirondack Mountain village, Price said.

Larry Eidson, a second-year tackle, was taken to a hospital Tuesday for treatment of a neck injury suffered in blocking drills against No. 1 draft choice Larry Bethea. Team doctors said he suffered a jammed neck and will miss Saturday's game.

Fullback Larry Brinson, also injured Monday with a strained groin, was back on the sidelines Tuesday but unable to work out. Team doctors list him as doubtful for Saturday.

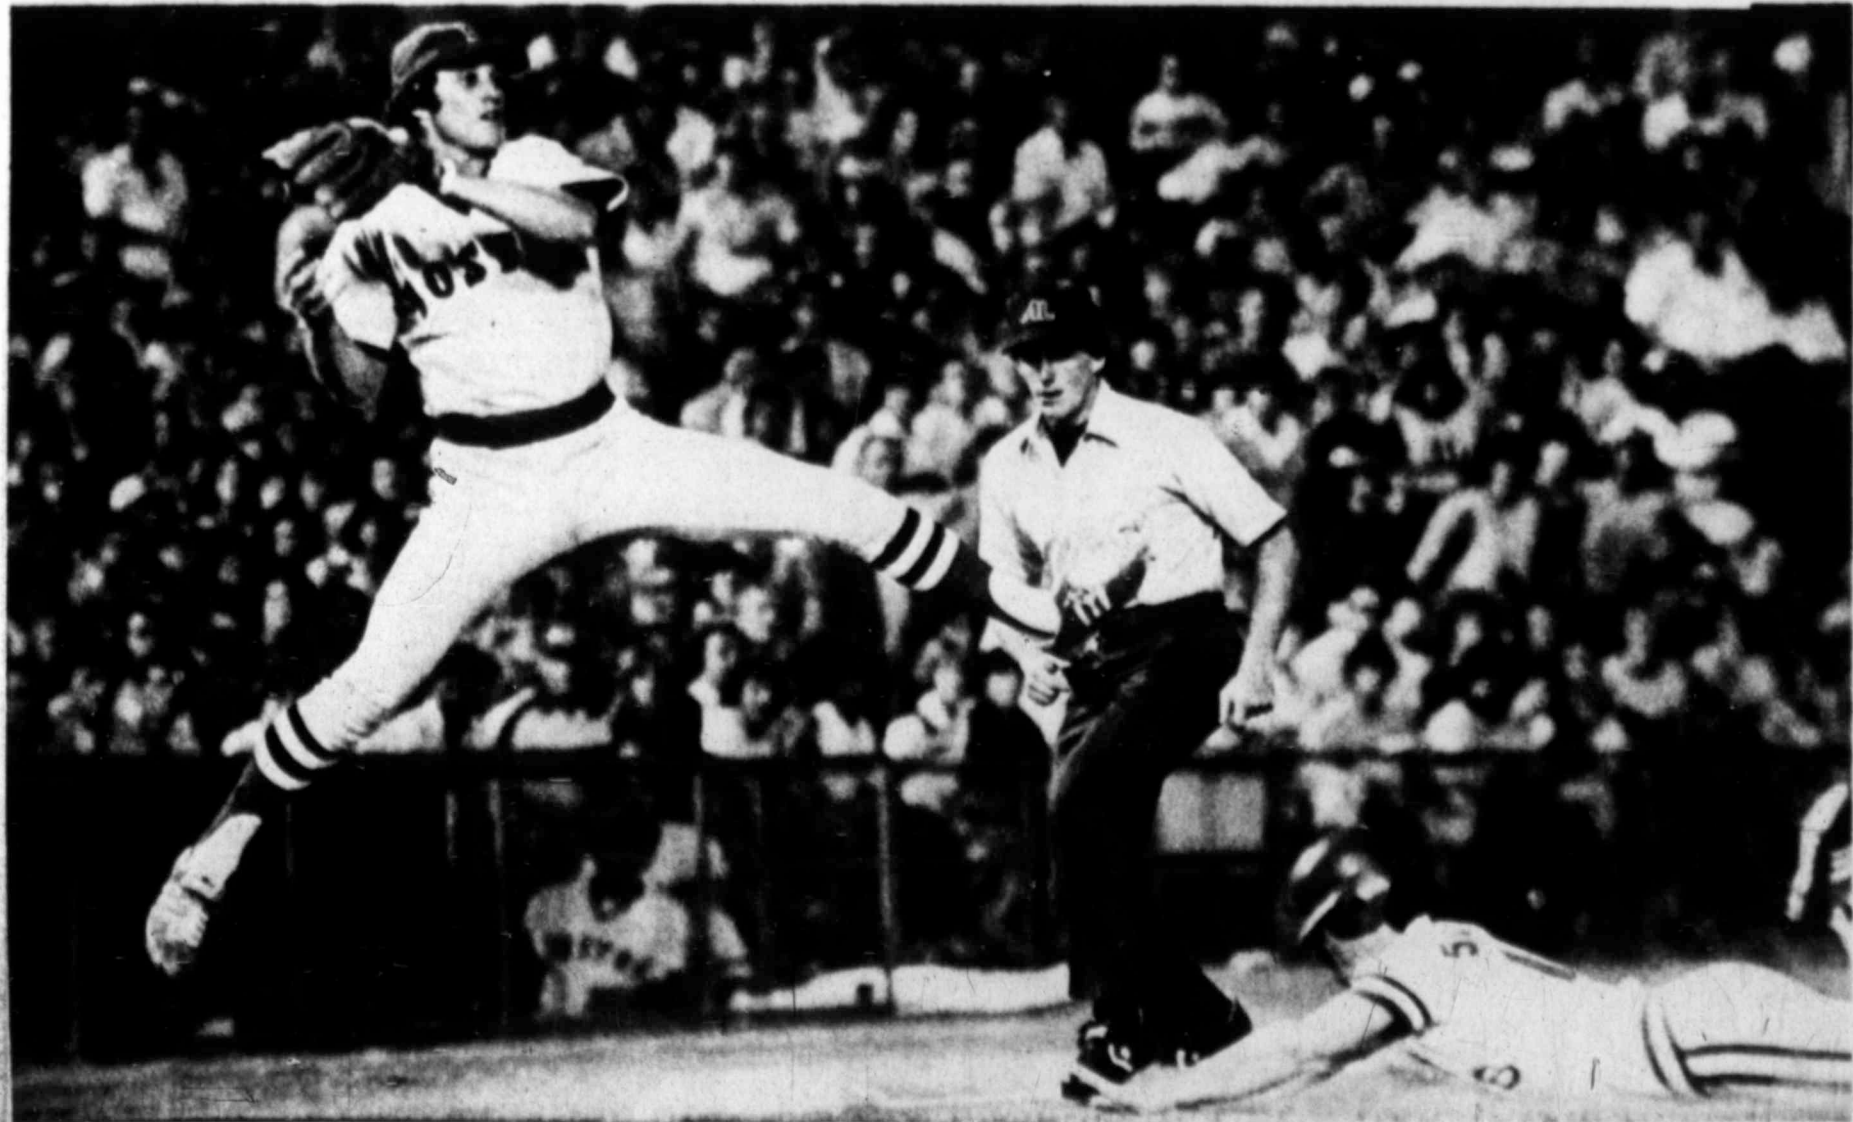

Twice-daily workouts concluded Tuesday with Wednesday and Thursday set aside to prepare to leave for Dallas Friday. The Cowboys return to training camp Sunday and will resume the two-per-day practices Monday in preparation for the pre-season game against Denver Aug. 12.

Babashoff likes women's chances

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Former U.S. Olympic swimmer Shirley Babashoff watched in amazement with the rest of the world at the performances of the American men and the East German women in the 1976 Olympics.

Now she thinks it's the U.S. women's turn to startle the swimming world.

The East German women dominated the women's swimming events and the U.S. men won 13 gold medals.

"I think they (U.S. women) are out for blood this time around," said Babashoff, here to watch the top American swimmers perform in the Amateur Athletic Union's Long Course Championships. "Most of them are younger and they are definitely stronger."

The AAU meet, which begins a five-day run at The Woodlands Swim and Athletic Center today, will serve as a qualifier for the World Championships scheduled Aug. 20-28 at Berlin, Germany.

Babashoff, who won eight medals during the 1972 and 1976 Olympics, says the American women are closing the gap that existed with the East German swimmers in 1976.

"We have better coaches and better training methods now," Babashoff said. "Many of the girls have started lifting light weights with a lot of repetitions to build strength and endurance."

"Several years ago only about two to three per cent of the women lifted weights but now it's more like 60 to 70 per cent."

Tracy Caulkins, 15, of Nashville, Tenn., and Cynthia Woodhead, 14, Riverside, Calif., represent the new breed of women swimmers taking aim at world record performances this week.

Caulkins won five individual events at the AAU Short Course Championships last April in Austin, Texas.

Six events were scheduled today including preliminaries and finals in the men's and women's 400 meter freestyle, 200 meter individual medley and 400 meter medley relay.

Brian Goodell of the Mission Viejo, Calif. Swim Club, was expected to take aim at his own world record in the 400 meter freestyle. Goodell set the current record of 3:51.56 at Berlin last August.

Goodell also set the world record in the 1500 meter freestyle at the 1976 Olympics.

John Naber, who won four of the U.S. men's 13 gold medals in the 1976 Olympics, says the U.S. men can only match in 1980 what they did in 1976 but the women are different.

"The U.S. women are now catching up to what the East Germans did in 1976," said Naber, here as a television commentator and swimwear representative. "You'll be seeing plenty of world records, or at least American records in this meet."

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A California woman makes her debut in Texas car racing this weekend in a mini-Indy event at the Texas World Speedway.

Nancy James — a 34-year-old mother of two from Fremont, Calif. — will try to be the first woman to win the Robert Bosch Volkswagen Mini Indy race at the speedway.

The race will be Mrs. James' first in a rear-engine car on an oval speedway such as the Texas World Speedway. She has been driving on road courses for four years.

Qualifying for the race begins Sunday morning, with the start of the event set for 1 p.m. It will be followed by the 200-mile Texas Grand Prix.

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — A Michigan team won the four-man club competition as the 94th annual National Target Archery Championships opened Tuesday.

The three-day individual competition began today, featuring a duel between 1972 Olympic gold medalist Darrel Pace of Reading, Ohio, and defending national champion Rick McKinney of Muncie, Ind.

Michigan scored 2,140 points in the warmup event. York, Pa., was second with 2,096 and Fond Du Lac, Wis., was third at 2,093.

Top shooter was Sgt. Dennis Shalenderger of Fort Gordon, Ga. He was competing for the Army team and had a score of 558. The Army team was not eligible to compete as a club team.

DALLAS (AP) — Judy Soutar moved into the final day of the $25,000 Women's Professional Bowlers Association Metrolplex Open today with a 67-pin lead after 26 games.

Soutar, a seven-time champion, won four of her eight match games Tuesday night to take the fourth-round lead, moving up from fourth place to supplant Pat Costello of Union City, Calif.

Earlier in the day, Costello, a 10-time titlist on the WPBA tour, had surged into the lead with a record-shattering 863 for three games, but she later fell off in match play and dropped to eighth place. The previous three-game record was 818 by Bev Orter.

Soutar has a 26-game total of 5,886 pins. Virginia Norton of South Gate, Calif., is second with 5,819 and rookie Martha McGowan is third with 5,808.

Kilmer signs with Redskins

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — Veteran quarterback Billy Kilmer has agreed to sign a new two-year contract with the Washington Redskins, officials of the National Football League club say.

Redskins President Edward Bennett Williams and General Manager Bobby Beathard refused to disclose specific contract terms or say exactly when Kilmer would be signing the new pact.

"But I'm happy," Kilmer said after the announcement Tuesday. The quarterback had been seeking a two-year contract that would guarantee him security with the club.

The Washington Post said today the new contract will pay him about $500,000 over the length of the pact, and quoted sources as saying it is guaranteed, meaning Kilmer will be paid for both years regardless of injury.

Kilmer, who will turn 39 on Sept. 4 and is the oldest player on the Redskins, will thus presumably finish his career in Washington.

Kilmer reportedly agreed to terms after an hour-long meeting with Williams, Beathard and Coach Jack Pardee at the Redskins' training camp here Tuesday. The quarterback had been earning an estimated $220,000 a year under his previous contract.

"I'm happy it's over," said Pardee. "I don't know anyone in professional football who is more respected than Billy Kilmer — both by his teammates and those from all the other teams in the National Football League."

Kilmer came to the Redskins in 1971. He helped lead the team to seven consecutive winning seasons, five trips to the National Football Conference playoffs and an NFC championship over the Dallas Cowboys in 1972.

Perfect skeet scores are recorded

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Perfect scores were recorded Tuesday by 35 of 100 participants in the 28-gauge event of the World Skeet Shooting Championships here.

Heavy rain fell during afternoon competition, but 545 shooters braved the weather to shoot in the small-gauge event.

Six remained after four rounds of 25 targets each when the tie-breaker was called due to lightning.

Those still in contention for the 28-gauge title are: Robert Paxton of Dallas; Chip Youngblood of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; Walt Badorek of Klamath Falls, Ore.; John Robertson of Opelousas, La.; Charles Brocato of Jackson, Miss.; and John Dail of Anderson, S.C.

Dail won the junior title with his 100 straight.

The 20-gauge competition begins Wednesday with 550 participants expected to compete.

Hamilton nabs shooting title

CAMP PERRY, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Navy Petty Officer Donald L. Hamilton of Kingston, Mass., captured the 22-caliber pistol event in the National Rifle and Pistol Championship with a score of 885 Tuesday.

Second at 884 was a tie between U.S. Army Sgt. 1st Class Max J. Barrington of the Army Marksmanship Unit at Fort Benning, Ga., and airline pilot Sam A. Baciocco of Poway, Calif., the only civilian among the top shooters.

Hamilton's mark was nine points off the national record in the pistol shooting event set by Sgt. 1st Class Hershel Anderson of Tracy City, Tenn., in 1974.

Ruby E. Fox, Army Reserve Staff Sgt. from Parker, Ariz., fired an 876 to win High Woman honors.

The 22-caliber event is one of three categories in the annual National Rifle Association championships. The total of the three events will determine the 1978 national pistol champion. The two remaining events are the center fire championship and the .45-caliber championship.

The pistol phase will be followed by smallbore and high power competition, which ends Aug. 23.

Jackson to remain

NEW YORK (AP) — Controversial outfielder Reggie Jackson will remain with the New York Yankees for the remainder of the season, team President Al Rosen said Tuesday night.

Atlanta pitchers end Rose streak go crazy all winter. But I'll be trying to start another streak tomorrow night."

ROSE HAD equalled the 5-foot-4 Keeler's NL record with a sixth-inning single off a rare fastball from Atlanta knuckleballer Phil Niekro Monday night before a crowd of 45,007, lured by the greatest run ever made at DiMaggio's mark.

The Yankee Clipper began his streak on May 15, 1941 — only one month and one day after Peter Edward Rose was born in Cincinnati.

When DiMaggio's streak reached 44 games, he had recorded 66 hits in 174 at bats for a .379 average. Rose went 70 for 182 with a .385 average during his 44-game streak that started on June 14 before taking the 0-for-4 collar Tuesday night. He had lifted his season batting average from .267 to .316 during the streak.

McWilliams was booed when he walked Rose in the first inning, although the Reds' infielder drilled a liner that landed about five feet foul. He fouled off two straight 3-2 pitches before the walk.

Then, in the second, Rose was out before he left the batter's box. When he realized McWilliams had made the self-defense catch, Rose dropped his bat and applauded the young Atlanta hurler.

He grounded out on a 2-0 pitch in the fifth inning and then lined hard into the double play to Horner in the seventh on a 2-2 count.

THEN CAME the strikeout in the ninth, only the sixth time Rose had fanned since his hitting string began.

"The last one was a great, great changeup," said Nolan. "He tipped it, and it stuck in the mitt."

The crowd stood and cheered as Rose returned, head bowed, to the dugout and back to the clubhouse.

A chant of "Pete, Pete, Pete" went up throughout the stadium and Rose returned to the field several minutes later, doffing his cap to another long ovation. He also received a bouquet of roses from the Atlanta organization for the second night in a row, the first coming Monday and containing 44 flowers, one for each game in his streak.

"If I had any guts, I'd have bunted that last changeup," Rose said. "It would have been a good pitch to bunt, too. It fooled me. He did a good job on me."

"There was just one thing on my mind, and that was to throw strikes," Garber said. "The last thing I wanted to do was walk him and stop the streak that way. I pitched him just like anybody else in that situation. Ask the other two batters how I pitched to them in the ninth."

"I'D LIKE to talk to Rose and congratulate him for a fantastic contribution to baseball," Garber added.

McWilliams, now 3-0, said he was "a little nervous, and excited" when the game began. After leaving for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the fifth, he said he returned to the clubhouse, took a shower and "listened to it on the radio and watched some of it on TV."

Rose said he wasn't relieved it had ended. "I'm teed off. I guess it is a load off my shoulders. What more appropriate way to end it than to end it at 44 in Atlanta?"

That was a reference to the uniform number of former Atlanta great Hank Aaron, who broke Babe Ruth's all-time home run record with No. 715 here on April 8, 1974, and went on to finish his career with 755.

"It's been exciting," Rose added. "I really enjoyed it. I'm glad now he walked me, for I might have been 0-for-5."

Boxing coach turns thoughts to Africa

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Since the Montreal Olympics, smooth talking Tom Johnson has graduated from the role of father confessor — for the likes of Leon Spinks — to boxing professor.

The man who coached the 1976 Olympic boxing team — five gold medal winners who are now professionals, including Spinks — has turned his attention to Africa.

"They call me professor over there," said Johnson, a trim 57-year-old ex-fighter who is coaching the Kenyan boxing team here as the Commonwealth Games near their opening ceremonies.

"I got 12 or 14 African countries asking the U.S. State Department to send me over to develop a lot of raw talent. I teach them training schedules and technique. Boxing is a discipline and it's my business."

With the State Department paying Johnson's way, the Indianapolis resident has spent the last six months touring Africa, giving boxing clinics and molding a stunning array of Kenyan boxing talent.

In effect, American taxpayers are subsidizing the enterprise, considered a goodwill program for the United States.

Johnson was a well-known boxing mentor before the 1976 Olympics. His hours of foreign countries for the United States began four years ago. But it was the American success in Montreal that really rocketed Johnson to prominence.

The U.S. team included Leon and Michael Spinks, Sugar Ray Leonard, Howard Davis and Leo Randolph. Leon Spinks, shocked Muhammad Ali for the world heavyweight title, and the others, especially Leonard, are rising in the pro ranks.

In fact, eight of the 11 boxers on that Olympic team have turned professional.

Johnson still keeps in touch with most of them, including the troubled Leon Spinks, whose runs in the ring have tarnished his image. "These boys were pretty well trained when I got them," Johnson concedes. But he takes special pride in having temporarily tamed the wild bull, Leon Spinks.

"We got 100 percent out of him," Johnson said during a ferocious training session for the superbly conditioned Kenyans.

"With Leon, you have to motivate his ego. Maybe his new people can't reach him."

Boston is losing games, confidence

By The Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox are losing confidence and losing ground.

Most of all, they're losing games — 11 of the last 14. The team some thought unstoppable has stopped hitting and stopped smiling.

Throats are starting to get a bit dry.

"In the first half of the season, every time we took the field, we felt as though we would win," said Boston captain Carl Yastrzemski. "Now, I don't know. We have to grind it out. We shouldn't think about losing."

BUT THE STANDINGS serve as a constant reminder. A 10-game lead that had seemed so comfortable now stands an uneasy 4 1/2 after a 5-2 loss to the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night. The Red Sox have seen their winning percentage drop in proportion to the team batting average: Jim Rice is 3-for-27 and George Scott is 1-for-28.

"We're just not swinging the bat," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "I know we have to wake up soon. Everybody knows that."

Three other teams are acutely aware. Tightly bunched in the pack that nips at Boston's heels are the Milwaukee Brewers, 4 1/2 back, the New York Yankees, 6 1/2 back, and the Baltimore Orioles, 7 1/2 back as the day that may begin to shape the East Division pennant race draws on the American League.

The Yankees and Red Sox open a two-game series Wednesday night, while the Orioles finish their suspended game with the Brewers before playing a regularly scheduled contest. A Milwaukee sweep, coupled with a New York victory, would bring the Brewers within three games.

"Maybe," said Yastrzemski, "maybe the first half came too easy. I don't know."

He may find out if the tails pin continues.

The Red Sox fell to Chicago rookie Mike Proly Tuesday night. The 27-year-old right-hander held Boston to six hits and got offensive support when Lamar Johnson and Bob Molinaro cracked home runs on consecutive Luis Tiant pitches in the three-run fourth inning.

IN OTHER AL contests, the Yankees bombed Texas 8-4, Oakland blanked California 1-0, Seattle blasted Minnesota 13-6, Cleveland edged Kansas City 2-1 and Detroit bested Toronto 3-2.

Tiant failed for the seventh consecutive time to win his eighth game as the White Sox beat the Red Sox for only the third time in 16 games this season.

Boston, with Yastrzemski back in the lineup after missing five games with back spasms, led briefly. But Tiant, 7-4, lost his grip and the Red Sox lost the game.

So the Yankees, 14 games out 14 days ago, are back in the race. The Brewers, 10 games out 25 days ago, never left it.

No one has to tell that to the Red Sox.

Collins has problems

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Browns rookie running back Larry Collins has been beset by problems since the day he set foot in the club's preseason training camp at Kent State University.

But the 5-foot-11, 189-pounder from Texas A&I has managed to keep his chin up, despite a series of obstacles that would leave most players singing the blues.

Actually, Collins' problems began even before the 1978 National Football League draft when he signed with four separate agents whom he said "only caused me heartaches."

"I signed with the wrong agents. They weren't looking out for my best interests," said Collins, who is the only National Collegiate Athletic Association player, except for Dallas' Tony Dorsett, to rush for 1,000 yards or more in four consecutive college seasons. He gained 5,300 yards with a 7.4 career average.

"One agent made a public statement before the draft that I was a contract breaker and a lot of pro teams avoided me," said the third round draft selection.

After Collins arrived in camp, he said he had trouble adjusting from the simplified free offense of his college days to the new, more complex offense introduced by Browns Coach Sam Rutigliano.

Collins suffered further anguish with the news both of his parents were ill. He says both are fine now. Collins himself has had trouble maintaining good health. He aggravated a groin injury in the first week of camp and gained only 28 yards in 16 carries in the first scrimmage between the Browns and the Buffalo Bills. In the most recent scrimmage between the two teams, he gained 22 yards in seven tries, but sustained a shoulder bruise that will keep him out of action and slow his progress further.

Nonetheless, Collins remains optimistic and feels he can develop into another great Browns running back in the mold of Jim Brown, Leroy Kelly and Greg Pruitt.

"It's hard to take a back seat after playing all the time, but Greg Pruitt has established himself," he said. "I'm not looking to take his position, but in a few years, I know I can make a name for myself."

"We'll have to be patient with Larry," said Rutigliano. "He's already started to learn from watching Greg Pruitt in practice and with a guy like Pruitt at halfback, it's easy to be patient with a guy like Larry."

Mariners are sold to businessman

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Mariners of the Pacific Hockey League have announced that former Pittsburgh businessman Elmer Jonnet has purchased the club from San Diego Sports Arena owner Peter Graham.

Jonnet, a real estate developer, said he'll meet next Monday with reporters to outline details of the 1978-79 season beginning in November.

Jonnet said his first priority is to make the Mariners winners in the PHL and revive hockey in San Diego.

San Diego's Rick Langford pitched a three-hitter and struck out 11 Angels, helping Oakland beat California to pull into a second-place tie with them, four games behind leading Kansas City.

Langford's performance outshined that of California's Nolan Ryan, who fanned eight, raising his career total to 2,590 and moving him past Warren Spahn and into eighth place on the all-time list of strikeout leaders.

The Oakland run scored in the second when Mario Guerrero walked, Taylor Duncan singled and Miguel Dilone hit a run-scoring single.

'Mary' may brighten next TV season

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One of the few promising attractions in what looks like a ho-hum 1978-79 television season is "Mary," starring Mary Tyler Moore.

How nice it will be to have Mary back, even though she'll be unaccompanied by Lou, Mur, Georgette, Sue Ann and the rest of the gang at WJM-TV.

On "Mary," her pals will be Dick (Shawn) Swoosie (Kurtz), Michael (Kurtz), James (Hampton), Judy (Kahan) and David (Leterman). They will comprise the resident company on the variety show, which CBS has spotted Sunday evening against the formidable competition of "Centennial," NBC's mini-series based on the James Michener novel, and ABC's space opera, "Battlestar: Galactica."

Having taped the first two shows of the season at CBS Television City, Mary had time to talk one late afternoon at the Bel-Air manse she shares with husband-producer Grant Tinker. She seemed as buoyant as ever. Also shorn.

"I cut my hair for two reasons," she explained. "First, I was going to spend four weeks in China, and they don't have things like blow-dryers there."

"Also I thought it would be a good idea to physically break as much as possible from Mary Richards on the new show. A new look couldn't hurt, and it might be a big help."

How did the new show originate? "It was probably my idea from the beginning."

The variety show provides a form and discipline of rehearsal life that suits me. I must say that I didn't encounter much opposition from Grant, even though the variety format is risky nowadays; there have been a number of notable failures.

"I had reasons for not wanting to try another situation comedy. Most of all, anything new I tried would suffer by comparison to the old show. Also, I have no feeling or empathy for the current comedy series. The emphasis is on ... lots of farce and slapstick. There's no attempt to get inside the characters and make the audience feel for them.

"I honestly believe that 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show' wouldn't be successful in today's television market. My God, I sound pontifical! Actually, it's Grant's idea that for whatever reason, people don't want to think.

Predictably, "Mary" will not be your garden-variety show.

"It will be much more intimate than people have come to expect from variety shows," Mary explained. "It won't be grand, glorious and glittery. There will be no guest stars, only seven characters who will do sketches, songs and dances. The production numbers will evolve out of what happens in the sketches.

"I do monologues. Not the usual 'Ladies and Gents' kind of thing. I simply talk to the audience about something that makes me mad or strikes me as ridiculous.

"If the sketches prove natural and funny, then we might repeat the characters from week to week. I'll do a date-of-the-week sketch in which I go out with a guy who turns out to be loser. I always pick losers.

"What we're striving for is to break down the wall between the show and the audience. I think of it as a casual jeans-and-sneakers approach. At the end of each show, all of us will go across the street to a bar and talk about the show as ourselves. I'll mention Grant and the others will talk about their own lives. They'll go to the piano and sing an old standard."

Despite a full five-day work week, Mary said that "Mary" is not as tiring as a half-hour situation comedy.

"I'm never bored," she remarked. "The music and the dance is a great goosie to keep my interest alive."

Solar heating can save money

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures

Solar energy is much on the homeowner's mind these days, and like any other technology there are many new terms to trip the neophyte prospective user.

How does it work? What is an "active" solar system? A "passive" one? What makes the solar heater tick?

The first thing it needs is the sun coming up every day! If it's cloudy or overcast, then a supplementary heating system is needed for backup.

How they make a solar heating system work: Orientation of the building is important. The proper siting of the solar collector takes into account the sky location of the sun — winter and summer.

In the northern hemisphere for instance, the north pole is tilted toward the sun in the summer — the earth is now farthest from the sun — and away from the sun in winter when the earth is closer. This creates the natural phenomenon of seeing the sun high in summer, lower in winter.

To the astronomer these facts make up the seasons. For the homeowner interested in building a solar collection system for his home, it means due south is the desirable position for locating the building. Roof overhangs and trees aid in cooling for the summer months.

In addition to the site orientation another important facet of solar heating is the selection of materials — all masonry, brick, concrete, adobe, stone have natural heat-holding qualities that make them attractive building materials for solar systems.

In practice, thick walls will change interior temperatures more slowly in reaction to outside temperature changes.

Hence the evolution of architectural designs of homes in the old days. Thick walls basically meant homes were cooler in summer and warmer in winter. Homes built with adobe, stone, or brick-type material accomplished this goal. The prevention of rapid heat changes in the interior was the secret.

A modern technical term to describe this is "time lag."

Today, this same formula applies to a home — whether solar energy heating is used or not — building materials are a primary consideration when conserving energy is a problem.

There are two basic solar heating systems — passive and active.

In passive systems the dependency is more on the type of building material instead of mechanical heat circulators.

The passive system uses the building walls to collect and store solar energy before passing it on to a storage device, which can be water, brick, concrete, rock, or air space. Through a natural event the air circulates — warm air moves up, cooler air moves back into the system by being fed through at a lower level.

Passive systems are attractive because they have no pipes to freeze or leak in colder areas and are not as sun-dependent.

Drawbacks of the passive system at this time, the brick experts say, are greater heat losses (in periods of no-sun) than with an active system. Also, design practices are more rudimentary at this stage in development.

Active systems are more complex. They consist of a solar collector, heat storage, pumps or fans. These systems collect solar energy through a plate, or plates placed over black heat absorbers. The absorber captures the heat which comes through and transfers the heat by mechanical means of circulation. That's where the fans, valves, pumps, pipes and ducts come into play.

Chief drawback to this system is the care which must be taken to prevent leaks in pipes (if water is used), the weight of the water reservoir on roofs and the prevention of cracking or seal-loss around the glass collector-plates.

One family's home in Royal Oak, Md., was built to take advantage of a passive solar heating system.

The family's 1,300-square-foot brick house has no roof-top collector but instead depends on a brick wall construction for their basic heat-by-the-sun thing.

During the winter of 1976-77 (a cold one) the family paid only $104 for electric heating from November to February. Their highest electric heating bill was $50 for the month of January ('77). A Franklin stove added to their comfort on very cold days.

The electrical supplier in the area estimated the family paid only one-third of the heating costs of a similar-sized home without solar heating.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Diet contributes to colon cancer

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm sure you have been asked this question nine million times, but do you think it is true that eating fiber really does keep you from getting colon cancer? Or is this merely one more fad everyone is swallowing? If it does do any good, is bran the best way to get it? — G. Mc.

Dear G. Mc.: There is indeed some evidence that a lack of fiber may be a factor in colon cancer. In poorer countries of Asia and Africa and Latin America, where food processing has not removed so much fiber from the wood, the rates of bowel cancer are much lower than in Europe and America. However, there are many other dietary differences, and it is hard to single out just one of them as the reason.

Excessive consumption of fat or meat, according to a number of studies, are important factors in colon cancer. As in the case of the fiber theory, all sorts of complicated chemical and bacterial processes in the intestines would also be involved.

The one thing that authorities are pretty much in agreement on is that there are a number of causes which act together to cause colon cancer. That is what a study by an international group just published in Lancet indicates. These researchers compared the diet and the bowel movements of two groups of people, one in Copenhagen, Denmark, and the other in Kuopio, Finland. They knew that Kuopio had a much lower rate of colon cancer than Copenhagen — almost 75 percent less.

The group found that the consumption of meat and fat was higher in Copenhagen. The consumption of fiber and milk was higher in Kuopio.

So this new study does indicate that fiber may play a role in protecting against cancer. But I don't think that means we should all go on a bran binge. It seems to me the best way to get a good amount of fiber is to eat plenty of whole grains and fresh vegetables and fruits.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I read somewhere last year that they were trying to develop eggs that are low in cholesterol. Have you heard anything about this—and whether they have gotten anywhere? My husband isn't supposed to have more than two or three eggs a week—and he finds it awfully hard to stick to this regime. — Eva N.

Dear Eva: I have seen a press report not long ago about a Canadian poultry scientist who claims to have made progress along these lines. He is said to have developed a chicken feed that reduced the cholesterol content of the chicken's eggs by about half. But I have not yet seen any account of this in a scientific journal.

Dear Dr. Solomon: As a professional psychotherapist and biofeedback training in your column. Not only are you helping to lead the public toward an exciting and effective approach for self-regulation, but also clarifying what the techniques cannot achieve. — S.

Four Bostonians form theater group

By JOHN J. MULLINS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The Boston Theater Collaborative, a recently formed group that hopes to begin productions in the fall, seeks to fill a gap perceived in the Boston theater scene.

"The strata is so clearly delineated," Tom Bloom, one of the five members of the collaborative, said of Boston theater.

There are the shows coming from or going to Broadway that play the large theaters, and there are small producing houses doing experimental theater but not drawing well commercially.

"There really is nothing in between," Bloom said. "A substitute professional theater where actors can depend on making a living while the show is running, like Off Broadway, just doesn't happen there."

That's the gap Bloom and the other four hope to fill and, in the process, offer more jobs to local actors. There won't be a resident troupe, but Bloom said they would try to cast shows locally, although he has no objection to going to New York for actors.

"We hope we'll be able to offer a little more work" to local actors, he said. "There is a lot of good talent here" and too few producers offering jobs.

The group won't have its own house either, but will rent theaters for its shows.

"It has advantages, not having a theater to worry about," Bloom said. "We can choose a theater."

Chances are the collaborative will debut this fall in the Hasty Pudding Club's theater in Cambridge with two one-act plays by David Mamet: "Sexual Perversity in Chicago" and "The Duck Variations."

Jonathan Margolis, a lawyer and member of the collaborative, said the group had an oral agreement for the theater and was negotiating for rights to the plays.

Bloom, Margolis and the other three members of the new group produced Mamet's "American Buffalo" last winter at what was The Proposition's theater in Inman Square. This led to formation of the new producing organization.

"The idea is we'll get the same group up in the fall," Bloom said of the five. "We'll stay together as a producing group. We'll raise the money, book a theater, and cast it," he said of plays chosen for production.

The other three members are "American Buffalo" producer, Joe Cacci; assistant producer, Michael Wikes; and fund-raiser, Andy Golov. "We have no titles (in the collaborative)," Bloom said. "Our duties will depend on whatever production we're doing."

Princess Grace joins newlyweds' reunion

OCEAN CITY, N.J. (AP) — Ocean dips, lunchtime hoagies and family chatter filled the weekend for newlyweds Princess Caroline of Monaco and Philippe Junot as they relaxed at the beachfront home of Caroline's maternal grandmother, Margaret Kelly.

Caroline's mother, Princess Grace, joined the family reunion as she flew in from Minneapolis where she was attending a board meeting of 20th Century-Fox. Mrs. Kelly, who will be 80 in December, was unable to attend the couple's wedding last month, so Caroline and Junot, following their Tahiti honeymoon, came to see her.

On Saturday night, Caroline and Junot presented a trophy to winning jockey Steve Cauthen and Mrs. Robert Levy, whose horse, Gay Jitterbug, won the Sunrise Handicap at the nearby Atlantic City race track.

Careful preparation needed for end play

Continuing a week-long discussion of end plays, we see that declarer must prepare carefully. When he eventually throws an opponent into the lead, all safe returns must be impossible.

The average players wins the first diamond and leads a club to dummy for the trump finesse. West wins and leads a diamond to the king so that East can return a heart.

South must finesse, and West wins with the queen. Now West gets out safely, and South eventually loses a second heart.

South must begin by refusing the first diamond. This keeps East from gaining the lead.

If allowed to win the first trick, West leads a second diamond. South wins and gets to dummy with a club to try the trump finesse, losing to the king.

DIFFERENCE

West gets out safely with a club or a spade, but the difference is that hearts have not yet been touched. Declarer draws trumps and runs the clubs before taking the first heart finesse.

West wins but cannot get out safely. If West returns a heart, declarer gets a free finesse. If West returns a diamond (the only other possibility), dummy ruffs while south discards a heart.

ANSWER: Pass. This aceless hand is just a shade too light for an opening bid. Change either king to an ace, and the hand becomes just barely worth an opening bid of one diamond.
