House tax cut to Senate

By EDMOND Le BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $16.3 billion tax cut approved by the House is on its way to the Senate, where the figure is likely to grow — perhaps to $20 billion.

Ignoring President Carter's call months ago for a $25 billion tax cut and his last-minute $18.1 billion compromise effort, the House on Thursday adopted, 362-49, the measure written by its Ways and Means Com-

Indeed, most of the president's tax recommendations failed to survive House scrutiny, including his proposed curbs on the so-called threemartini lunch and a capital gains tax increase.

He's also unlikely to prevail in the Senate, where Sen. Russell B. Long. D-La., the Finance Committee chairman, has said a $16.3 billion reduction wasn't enough. He wants to add about $4 billion to offset inflation and next year's Social Security tax increase.

Long, who shepherds tax bills through the Senate, generally has his way on such legislation. His panel begins hearings on the tax cut bill

The House-passed bill would provide income tax savings of $62 for a typical family of four with $10,000 income, $77 for a $15,000 family, and $146 for a $20,000 family.

In passing the committee bill, the House dealt Carter a blow by defeating, 225-193, his compromise which would have cut taxes an additional $1.8 billion and would have directed the reductions more to those with incomes below $15,000.

At the White House, presidential press secretary Jody Powell issued a terse, one-sentence comment: "If you make $50,000 or more, the House vote

At the same time, however, he said the administration had been tardy in bringing in its compromise, saying, "If it had been brought in four or five months ago, it would have sailed through Congress.

In adopting the Ways and Means Committee version, the House further ignored Carter by voting to retain a Republican-backed addition that would take inflation into account beginning in 1980 when taxing capital cut capital gains receipts in half. Those gains are the profits from sales of stocks, real estate or other assets held at least a year.

The provisions most opposed by the administration would reduce the top tax on capital gains to 35 percent, from the present theoretical maximum of 49 percent. It also would eliminate the minimum tax on capital gains which is imposed on the very wealthy who would otherwise pay little or no taxes

As a concession to the administration, the committee wrote in an alternative tax designed to insure that even if sheltering devices were used, capital gains would be taxed at least 5 percent.

The bill also would give homeowners a break by providing that, once in a lifetime, a taxpayer could sell his or her principal residence and pay no tax on a gain of up to $100,-

Carter slipping; not tough enough, poll says

NEW YORK (AP) - Americans don't think Jimmy Carter has shown the toughness they want in the nation's leader, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows

This perception plays a major role in the continuation of the public's low rating of Carter's work in the White House. In the poll taken this week, his job rating was at the most depressed level of his term.

The public perceptions of Carter were not all dark ones,

People's trust in Carter, as distinguished from their rating of his performance, was up again this month. This continues a trend that began earlier this summer after 15 months of de-

The latest poll was taken Mon-

Two-thirds of those inter viewed said that, in general, Carter has not been tough enough as president in trying to get things done. About 25 percent said he has set the right tone and 3 percent said he has been too tough. Six percent were not sure. This perception is related to Carter's low job rating.

Among those who think Carter has set the right tone in the Oval Office, his job rating is a split 49-49. But among those who say he hasn't been tough enough, his rating is 19-80.

Overall in this week's poll, 26 percent of the public gave Carter a "good" or "excellent" job rating. But 73 percent labeled his performance "only fair" or poor". One percent were undecided.

In the June AP-NBC News poll, 27 percent gave Carter good or excellent marks while 70 percent rated his work only fair or poor. Since the error margin for a poll of 1,600 people is 3 percent, it cannot be said that this change is a significant one.

The perception of a lack of toughness in Carter's actions goes beyond this country's dealings with the Soviet Union - the

Before the change, now three years old, Midland Municipal Court shoul dered the same burden which Odessa Municipal Court now carries, said

After a defendant was convicted in municipal court, he appealed his case to the Midland County Court level. The cases were transferred over to the county court whether or not error was committed earlier, he said

There, the case was tried "de novo" or from the very beginning which required witnesses, law officers and others to re-assemble, recalled Ahders.

A court reporter takes notes of all trials in a court-of-record which develops a transcript to allow higher courts to search for error in such proceedings, Ahders said.

Municipal courts are where such cases as traffic, drunkeness, minor theft, disorderly conduct and criminal trespassing violations are heard. Even violations of city laws do not sescape the review of municipal courts, said Ahders. Minor said: "In July of this year alone, we had in the neighborhood of 400 cases which defendants chose to appeal to the county court level out of more than 2,500 cases that month!'

That figure excludes misdemeanor parking violation cases, he added. As a result, Minor said, the situation has caused a "burden" on his office to process the appeals.

have the staff to really handle it. I've ordered more file containers to increase our amount of storage capacity. More staffers are sought, too." While some attempts have been

"We are obviously processing so many cases for appeal that we don't made in the Texas Legislature to make all municipal courts in the state courts-of-record, such moves have consistently failed

Minor speculated there may be a similar move on behalf of the Odessa Municipal Court during the next session. "Just to cut down on the number of appeals, it would be good if we became a court-of-record," he

"Naturally when a large number of cases being appealed continue to flow through a local legal system, this causes the county court dockets to become crowded in addition to the workload of the municipal court." Minor added

He said the city of Fort Worth once sought a special bill from the legislature designating their municipal-court a court-of-record. However, he indicated the city never adopted a law finalizing such a change. However, Minor said he remains optimistic that the Odessa City Council "would probably go along with the idea, if we had our own state law passed approving it.

Until then, Minor said his municipal court staff will strive to operate as normally as possible, despite the mountains of paperwork caused by citizens appealing their conviction cases to a higher judicial level.

than the full amount In addition to rejecting the Carter plan, the House also voted down, 240-177, an official Republican Party proposal for a one-third slash in income tax rates over three years. Republicans have made that plan the spearhead of their fall congressional cam-

Although debate on the measure was sprinkled with references to a taxpayer revolt symbolized by California's property-tax-limiting Proposition 13, the final House bill was the the least costly — in terms of federal revenue lost - of the three major proposals.

The Republican proposal, embodying the heart of legislation pushed by Rep. Jack F. Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., was estimated to cut taxes by $31.9 billion in 1979, $69.8 billion in 1980 and $120.7 billion in 1981. Kemp and others argued, however, that the revenues would be made up by stimulating the economy through lower unemployment and greater investment.

After the House vote, Kemp and Roth told reporters the fight for their bill would continue in the Senate.

'We'll win later," Roth said. Kemp said, "I'm not going to let up. I'm looking at a proposal for a citizens' referendum to demand lower taxes. The House refused to allow a vote on a proposed amendment for an offset to the Social Security tax increases going into effect next year. The amendment would have allowed a taxpayer to subtract from income taxes 5 percent of the amount of Social Security taxes paid.

Democrats divided sharply be tween the committee-produced and the administration-favored bills, but the vote on the Republican proposal closely followed party lines.

Warm weather making return?

For the first time in about a week, residents in the Midland-Odessa area were exposed to 90-degree weather Thursday as an unseasonal August cooling trend appeared to break into warmer weather.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport recorded a high of 91 degrees Thursday and was forecasting highs in the middle 90s for today and Saturday. The record high for August 10 was 104 degrees set back in 1946. The evening temperatures overnight warmed up a little, but did hit a low of 64 early this morning. The record low for today is 60 degrees set back in 1931.

Crackdown on police brutality cases promised

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A top assistant to Attorney General Griffin Beil says new guidelines are being worked out to protect the rights of Mexican-Americans mistreated by law enforcement officers.

He told Mexican-American leaders the Justice Department will be more aggressive in the future regarding allegations of civil rights violations, should be implemented to investigate and prosecute civil rights violations. His comments followed a verbal barrage by Mexican-Americans against the federal government's alleged sluggishness in prosecuting civil rights violations and cases of police brutality against Mexican Americans.

Days said Bell directed him to "make assessments and report back to him on the steps I think he should take" regarding the Mexican-Americans' complaints about their treatment by law enforcement officials.

Ruben Bonilla, state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, called on the Justice Department to allow U.S. attorneys to investigate and prosecute civil rights cases without prior authorization from Washington.

Days was accompanied by several U.S. law enforcement officials in Texas. Nine federal officials met Thursday morning with 10 to 15 state and local Hispanic leaders during a closed session. The U.S. officials also held a private meeting to discuss possible ways to hasten investigations, Days said.

and 1979-80 for revenue they would lose to property tax relief measures.

Additionally, lawmakers passed a constitutional amendments package which backers claim would cut property taxes for homeowners, farmers and ranchers. Main feature of the proposal, which voters will decide upon this fall, is the taxing of all farm and ranch land based on its productivity instead of its market value (selling price).

Another aspect of the proposed amendment would restrict state spending increases to the same percentage as the Texas economy's growth rate.

Lawmakers specifically repealed the four percent state sales tax on residential gas and electric bills while they also raised the inheritance tax exemptions from $25,000 per person to $200,000 per person. The state sales tax cut - which could cut $4 from a $104 electric bill - takes effect with billings after Oct. 1.

The inheritance tax reductions apply to persons who die after Sept. Cost of the inheritance tax and sales tax reductions was estimated at $491 million through Aug. 31, 1981.

Craddick said the constitutional amendment which voters will decide upon in November, "could have been a lot stronger than it is." He said it could have been stronger if the issue was voted on during regular session with more time.

Still, he said, the amendment to be voted upon does have "a lot of good features such as the farm-ranch land provision.

He said he doubts if counties and school districts will be hurt by the provision because the state will reimburse funds to take up the slack caused by the absence of formerly regular sources of government reve-

Snelson said if the measure is approved by Texans, agricultural land will be taxed on the basis of productivity, not market value

"The way it is now, if farmers or ranchers have a bad year and their land market value is still high, they get taxed to death. That's why this revision is so important to agricultural producers.

Craddick said the spending limitation in the amendment should cut down state costs.

"Increases can only develop at the same percentage as the Texas economy's growth rate under this amendment. The Texas economy is booming statewide. But we also have vast state surpluses as a result.

Snelson said he is pleased that the inheritance tax exemption has been increased because "it will help a lot of people, especially the families of those persons who die and have prop-

Craddick said he is happy lawmakers were able to pass bills which will have the effect of decreasing the state's budget surplus by roughly $1 billion during the session.

In addition, Snelson expressed optimism about the increase granted taxpayers in their homestead exemption. 'Not only will it require a homestead exemption of $5,000 on their property, but it will also open up the possibility that those over age 65 may receive even higher exemptions by legislative

Snelson said the Legislature could set up criteria based on need in this area. "Older people on fixed incomes, in this way, would be provided some

He said the exemption has been on the books a long time, adding that the latest action merely increases the amount of the exemption affecting every homeowner in Texas.

He agreed with Craddick that the Texas economy as a whole "is very good because we will have a state treasury surplus when the Legislature convenes in January

Snelson also expressed satisfaction school districts will receive some reimbursement funds

"The proposed constitutional amendment will save local taxpayers about $450 million with the state required to make up the difference of what is lost as a result exemption increases. This helps school districts

"By increasing the homestead exemption, we decrease the tax base of school districts. So in this case, the state will make up the difference of what is lost to these systems as a result of the increased homestead exemption.

He estimated the latter action will save Texas taxpayers $450 million over the next three years. Also, he said,"The utility and inheritance tax moves will save state taxpayers $450 million over the next three years."

Craddick has served 10 years in the 68th District which includes Midland Glasscock, Reagan and Upton counties. He said he believes there is a "definite possibility" more Republicans may be elected to the Texas Senate and House "because of retirements and trends in the state. Snelson, who represents Midland

Cut the top tax rate on capital gains from 49 percent to 35 percent; repeal an alternative 25 percent tax on the first $50,000 of gains; take inflation into account beginning in 1980; and create a special once-in-a-lifetime capital gains tax break, allowing a $100,000 exemption on the sale of a main home.

The team made an on-site review of the effectiveness of the service's "total warning system" during the disastrous flash floods of Aug. 1-2 in Bandera, Kerr and Kendall counties which killed 24 persons.

Earl Estelle said the NWS was kept from knowing the magnitude of the record flood due to a shortage of rainfall-measuring stations and river level-measuring stations in the area.

"We knew something was going on," he said. "But only after the fact did we realize we had a monster of a storm on our hands."

If there had been more monitoring stations, Estelle said, "we could have given an accurate warning of what turned out to be the storm of the century there."

Better warning could have been given — and the death toll reduced if "the National Weather Service and the local officials had been in possession of more detailed information a few hours earlier," a preliminary report by the team states.

However, the report said, prompt evacuation efforts "helped to keep the death toll much lower than it might have been; hundreds could have "The most serious flooding and resultant deaths took place in the early morning hours of Wednesday, Aug. 2. Many people were asleep as the flood waters rose to record or near record heights," the report stated.

"They had gone to bed with full knowledge that the area was under a warning. The problem was that they did not feel sufficiently threatened. Previous floods with which they had experience never approached the same incredible severity," it said.

The 30 inches of rain which fell within the affected area caused flash flooding of "extraordinary magnitude...all-time record floods occurred at several places," the report said.

As an example of the flood's magnitude, Estelle said an old house built in the 1870s, which the local sheriff said had never been touched by flood waters, no longer exists.

"The house was one of hundreds of homes and trailers destroyed in what is basically a thinly populated area," anyone," he said.

Elsewhere in the state, particularly in the plains, areas that received lighter rain were benefitted. Relatively small amounts of rain improved crop conditions and should cause higher yields in the fall.

"In some cases there will be a significant benefit to crops already in production," Yates said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gunfire tests will be conducted in Dallas to determine whether an unidentified sound during the assassination of John F. Kennedy could have been a fourth gunshot, House sources re-

If the sound was a shot, it could have been fired by a second gunman besides Lee Harvey Oswald, House assassination committee sources said Thursday.

The unidentified sound was reported detected on a tape recording made from a motorcycle officer's radio during the assassination.

The sound was recorded only 1.4 seconds after the three shots the Warren Commission said Lee Harvey Oswald fired at Kennedy, said the sources, who asked not to be named.

The sources said the experts could not identify the sound. Experts said it was only a possibility that the sound was a gunshot.

The tests will be conducted Aug. 22, with the committee receiving help from the Dallas Police Department.

Call for caution

Defense Secretary Harold Brown, during recent meetings at San Diego, Calif., with South Korean officials, indicated thatthe Carter administration and Congress see eye-to-eye on military assistance to the Asian nation.

"Congress, like the executive part of government," he said, "recognizes the need for peace and security on the Korean peninsula."

But Congress obviously does not concur in President Carter's plan to withdraw the U.S. force of 33,000 combat troops.

Brown conceded that North Korea is building up an offensive capability along the demilitarized zone, but said the U.S. will proceed as scheduled with the pullout decision. The schedule, however, is uncertain.

Congressional objections already have influenced modifications in the timetable first announced by the President in April. The only firm commitment is to bring home 3,400 troops by the end of 1978 with the remainder to be withdrawn over the next four or five years.

In the foreign aid bill now moving through Congress, $800 million in equipment presently in American hands in Korea will be turned over to the South Koreans.

But of more significance. perhaps, is an amendment approved by a top-heavy 81-7 vote in the Senate.

The amendment warns the President to consult with Congress before proceeding with a withdrawal beyond the 3,400. The congressional concern is for the perceived "risk upsetting the military balance in that region."

The Carter administration goal is to help Korea build up its own forces to meet any security threat.

The 3,400 troop withdrawal figure might be considered a gesture to encourage a South Korean effort to improve the country's defensive capabilities.

The North Korean increases in artillery, tanks and aircraft along the DMZ, however, support the congressional call for caution.

And the defense secretary, speaking for the administration, wisely has left American options open to meet any change in circumstances.

He has acknowledged the complicated relationships involving North Korea and South Korea, Japan, the Soviet Union and China.

"We are not inflexible," Secretary Brown said.

And this is exactly as it should

This business of withdrawing troops out of South Korea is hazardous at best, and there undoubtedly are many, many Americans who frown on the idea, in the first place. Flexibility is a must in this particular situation.

Aiding flood victims

It is difficult even to imagine the suffering, the agony, the destruction wrought by flash floods such as those which struck Kerrville and other Hill Country points, and Albany and Graham in recent days.

Yet Midland and area residents were quick to respond to the disaster situation, inquiring where, how and when they could be of any possible assistance.

The Midland County Chapter of the American Red Cross, always quick to get into action in such situations, has established a center for receiving funds, clothing, canned goods and other items at its office, 2306 Elizabeth Ave. The telephone number is 684-

Manager Maurice Cole said the most pressing need is for financial assistance.

The Midland Amateur Radio Operators Club also merits commendation for its assistance in helping Midland and area residents make contact with relatives and friends in the flooded areas.

People really are wonderful when it comes to helping other people in distress.

CHARLEY REESE Let's put Mideast peace talks into perspective

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. - It's time to put the Mideast peace negotiations into perspective before the American people choke to death on all the smoke Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is blowing up their nose.

The first point to remember is that the loser of four wars is attempting to dictate the peace terms to the win-

If the Japanese had come aboard the battleship, "Missouri," in 1945 and demanded the return of the Phillippines and Manchuria before agreeing to discuss peace terms, they would have been booted right into Tokyo Bay. Yet, that is exactly what Sadat is doing. As you know, Sadat's demand is that the Israelis withdraw from all occupied territories. Now, Sadat is not saying that if the Israelis withdraw, that he will sign a peace treaty. Oh, no. He's saying that if they withdraw, then he may discuss the possibility of negotiating a peace treaty.

I don't know what the Israelis would have left to negotiate. Unless you're one of those people who just happen to hate Jews, you can certainly understand Israel's reluctance to rely entirely on the kindness and generosity of the Arab leaders.

In 1948, when Israel declared its independence, the Arab armies attacked with the intention of destroying the young state forever. They discovered, however, that Jews are pretty tough. In fact, the Jews whipped them to a stand still. Thus was born the state of Israel.

about the size of Connecticut. Beginning from before the war for independence up through 1967, the Israelis sought peace with the Arabs. The Arab leaders, however, refuse to recognize that Israel exists. You will not find the state of Israel to this day on any Arab map and if you are an overweight American. tourist with an Israeli stamp in your passport, you will not be admitted to any Arab state.

Remember, from 1948 to 1967, Israel did not hold any of the West Bank, the Sinai or the other areas the Arabs now claim must be evacuated before they will discuss peace. They didn't discuss peace for 19 years when these areas were under Arab control. Why should the Israelis believe that Sadat will talk peace after the lands are returned now?

These areas were captured by Israel in 1967 when she staged the brilliant Six Day War to pre-empt another Arab attack. From 1967 to today, Israel has been seeking negotiations for peace but until Sadat made his trip to Jerusalem, no Arab leader would even talk. Now, what concessions did Sadat make? Just one. He acknowledged by going to Jerusalem that a nation of 3 million people who had four times defeated Egyptian armies on the battlefield did after all really exist.

That's all. The simple-minded have fallen over in a swoon, hailing Sadat as the greatest peace-maker since St. Francis of Assisi just because he acknowledged the existence of a nation that the rest of the world recognized in 1948.

Yet so thick-headed are some people that they claim that Sadat, w has offered not one concession, is flexible and that Israeli Prime Minister. Menachem Begin, who has offered to return virtually the whole Sinai penninsula and negotiate everything else, is intransigent.

What Sadat is trying to do is split the Israelis, both in their own country, and from the sympathy of the American Jews and Gentiles.

We shouldn't fall for it. We should be putting pressure on Sadat to make some real concessions and to negotiate in good faith. If Sadat refuses, then we should do all we can to make sure Israel has the arms she needs to defend herself.

I think Sadat was ready to negotiate until he met President Carter and realized what a bowl of Jell-O he was. Since that meeting, he has been working on Carter and ignoring the Israe-

Israel needs the support and good will of the American people as never before. Only when Sadat sees that that support is unbreakable will he settle down to serious talks with

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

More drug-related headlines

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - Two of President Carter's former drug acolytes - Dr. Peter Bourne, who resigned as White House drug adviser, and Robert DuPont, who quit under fire as director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) - may soon be back in the news.

Both men were instrumental in the curious award of a multimillion dollar government research contract that. In April, Mello quit the government husband-and-wife team. Inspectors for the Health, Education and Welfare Department are now weighing whether to turn the case over to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

The case dates back to 1973, when NIDA was still an adjunct of the Nixon White House. Bourne and DuPont, who ran the drug office, were looking for someone to manage a heroin research project.

One interested prospect was John Mendelson of the McLean Hospital in Belmont, Mass. In a confidential memo to Bourne. DuPont noted that one of Mendelson's colleagues at the hospital "suggested that we hire Nancy Mello to do our $20 million project for six months." The two drug specialists, according to a later White House memo, gave her "primary responsibility" for the grant.

There was no mention, however, of the fact that Nancy Mello and John Mendelson were old friends who had written many publications together. It wasn't surprising, therefore, that Mello's review board gave a $3.9 million grant to Mendelson and McLean Hospital.

In February 1974, Mendelson asked

Mello for $8,000 so two investigators could go to Hong Kong to study heroin addicts. This would pay for "transportation and living expenses... bilingual translators" and other costs, he wrote. Mello approved the Hong Kong visit, calling it "an important and worthwhile extension of the original proposal ... Dr. Bourne has been informed of this request and is in agreement with my recommendation.'

Hospital. In June, she and Mendelson were married. And in November, the newlyweds had a honeymoon in Hong Kong with the federal funds that Mello had approved. This later caused a bit of a flap at NIDA, which DuPont tried to justify in an internal memo. "The fact that Dr. Mendelson and Dr. Mello had a long-standing professional relationship was a matter of public record ... there is no evidence to suggest ... that the grant process was in any way compromised," he insisted. "There is no definite evidence to prove that Dr. Mello ... had planned' to resign from the government and become one of those two investigators."

But DuPont conceded that if he "had known at the time of her personal relationship with Dr. Mendelson, we would not have selected her ... This coincidence of events certainly suggests at least the appearance of impropriety.

Footnote: Mendelson has maintained that he and Mello were totally qualified, that they completed their heroin research in Hong Kong, and that the trip was partially financed with private donations. ENERGY EDUCATION: More labeled his national energy plan the "moral equivalent of war." But apparently, the front-line troops of the Energy Department are failing in their effort to win the hearts and minds of America. James C. Kellett, the director of the Energy Department's education division, asked his assistant Robert

than a year ago, President Carter

mason to evaluate the department's progress in educating the public about the energy crunch. Mason interviewed 25 energy experts both within the department and outside of it. He then reported his findings in a private memo to his boss, which we have obtained. Mason found that "there is no real education program under way to help the American people understand the energy problem." And press releases, pamphlets and fact sheets are regarded by the public as "propaganda." The department's The department's 'statements and statistics," Mason found, "are regarded by literate people as serving the narrower interests of the agency or the Administration. The well-meaning bureaucrat went on to say "that many citizens do not believe the statements made by the Department of Energy. This lack of credibility harms the agency's efforts to promote public awareness of the energy problem, citizen participation in energy conservation, and political support for the National Energy Act." Mason concluded that alert citizens recognize the differences between propaganda and education, and "a true public education program would help remedy the situation.

ALIEN REPORT: One organization known to law enforcement officers as the "Vasquez-Herrera smuggling conglomerate" has been profitably bootlegging illegal aliens into southern California from Mexico and Central America. The gang, according to intelligence reports, "has emerged as the largest known smuggling group to date with apparent capabilities of smuggling and transporting upwards of 500 aliens per month" ... Illegal aliens from Haiti are paying smugglers up to $800 apiece to fly them from the Bahamas to Florida. The rate between Colombia and the U.S. via smugglers' aircraft is $1,500 per person. Smugglers are also arranging transportation for illegal aliens between Mexico and Vancouver, Canada, for $700 per person ... An illegal Mexican alien, dressed in a complete U.S. Army uniform, was recently arrested in El Paso. He said he purchased the official clothing at a store in Juarez, Mexico. Another Mexican alien was discovered to be working for the Job Corps in Clearfield. Utah. He was making $50 a week, plus room and board.

INSIDE REPORT:

Human rights controversy reaches the boiling point

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAKA

WASHINGTON — The conflict over President Carter's human rights program broke into an embarrassing boil on Aug. 3 when one of this nation's best Asian friends, Philippine Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo, boycotted Assistant Secretary of State Patt Derian's brief appearance at a meeting here of U.S. Asian

As Mr. Carter's human rights spearpoint, Miss Derian wields a sharp weapon which drew blood on her visit to Manila last year. "She was rude to President Marcos," one ranking diplomat told us. "Romulo was boycotting her here as an individual, not as a U.S. government offi-Allies of Derian insist she was only doing her duty in Manila. They insist, too, that the wave of new congressional laws requiring strict human rights accountability before U.S. arms, police equipment or ordinary commercial goods can be approved for export are making her job more complex than it used to be.

True or not, Miss Derian and her rapidly expanding Office of Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs are under attack - still largely subterranean - from the administration's political and economic specialists, from trade experts in the Commerce Department and from U.S. manufacturers. Thus far, the effect on the dauntless Miss Derian, a veteran of the Mississippi civil rights wars, is not noticeable.

On July 17 she hired liberal arms specialist Stephen Cohen from the State Department's policy-planning staff to supervise all security-assistance exports (arms and police equipment) from the human rights standpoint. Cohen was the 10th top professional named to Miss Dean's staff. At least two more are wanted.

Novak

Human rights activists at State argue that new laws linking arms sales to human rights made the hiring of Cohen mandatory. But the Pentagon, jealous about its arms-control powers, is angered. Cohen's new role is also resented by some officials in the office of Lucy Benson, undersecretary of state for security assistance.

More to the point is Miss Derian's zeal as a political activist. High-ranking diplomats report that to push human rights goals of Jimmy Carter, Miss Derian is blunt. She informed the highest leaders of at last one foreign country with a poor human rights record that, as the only assistant secretary of state sworn in by Mr. Carter himself, she posses special clout. Insiders say she is the only assistant secretary who rates a regularly-scheduled private weekly session with Secretary of State Cyrus Some sins attributed to her may be exaggerated. For example, consider the notorious case of the $411 worth of steel "groin protectors" and helmets for riot police in Indonesia (which has human rights problems but sells the U.S. 9 percent of all our imported oil). In fact, that deal was approved Aug. 4 after a delay of a mere two weeks. But Mark Schneider, MissDerian's top aide and Sen. Edward Kennedy's former legislative assistant, apparently disapproved the deal. His initials "M.S." appear on a confidential bureaucratic memorandum on which a lower-ranking official had written "no go" for the "groin" gear. Indeed, the higher-up decision to overrule Schneider may have resulted from press inquiries, including our own, curious over the fate of Indone-

These "protectors" are significant (except for those who wear them) only as a symbol of how encompassing the U.S. human rights role has become. The larger problem is agonizing delays in getting Miss Derian's approval for big, lucrative, commercial deals between U.S. manufacturers and foreign buyers in countries found guilty of human wrongs.

More than $600 million worth of American exports to Argentina (including $270 million for Allis-Chalmers generators) have been held up more than four months. The dozen U.S. producers all need Export-Import Bank financing. An additional half-billion dollars in military sales is in the same "hold" category, with no assurance that export licenses will be granted.

'Argentina is looking to Europe and Japan, even to the Soviet Union, for other sources for this stuff," a State Department economic expert told us. "Once these trade patterns change they tend to stay changed." Although both the military and commercial portions of these potential sales to Argentina are restricted by new human rights laws which limit Miss Derian's discretion, she and her mushrooming empire at State seem to want more, not less, restraints. That is clear from the initials "M.S." on the original decision to reject the 'groin protectors.'

Such zeal has led Miss Derian into deep trouble with the Philippines in the past. It could lead her into trouble with the White House in the near ORIAL

Rotarians Joe Kloesel, chairman of the Midland Area Sales Team (MAST) of the Chamber of Commerce, reviewed the chamber's activities in the area of economic and industrial development for members of the Downtown Rotary Club at their Thursday noon meeting

He traced the history of the Midland Industrial Foundation, which was sponsored in 1968 by the Midland C. of C., and told of the opening in 1970 of the first phase of its Midland Industrial Park. The second phase was opened in 1974, and land for the third phase, which now is being developed, was acquired in recent growth and potentials.

Methods used in locating, contacting and dealing with industrial prospects were cited by the speaker, who was introduced by Rotarian Bill Browder. He also described materials used in telling the Midland story and mentioned special information developed for interested clients. Much of the information, he said reflects what Midland has to offer in the areas of education, culture, schools, recreation, climate, citizen attitudes, and business and tax

Some Midland groundwater not included in estimates

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN-Certain groundwater supplies belonging to the city of Midland were not included in estimates of the water available to Colorado River Municipal Water District customers, the Texas Water Commission was told Thursday.

CRMWD engineer F.W. Freese, Fort Worth, testified he had not included Midland's groundwater reserves in Winkler County in his estimates filed in connection with the district's application before the commission seeking a permit to construct the Stacy Reservoir on the Colorado

The CRMWD wants to build the reservoir in Runnels, Concho and Coleman counties with funding from a utility consortium

Opponents, including the Lower Colorado River Authority and the city of Austin, are concerned about the effect of the reservoir on the amount of water which will continue to be available to downstream water users.

On cross-examination by LCRA attorney Fred Werkenthin, Freese acknowledged he had not included the Winkler County water supplies reserved by CRMWD customer Midland in his estimates of the area's future water needs.

Werkenthin suggested that CRMWD General Manager Owen Ivie had told the Freese and Nichols engineering firm not to include potential groundwater supplies in his forecast of a water deficiency for the CRMWD service area.

In a Feb. 14, 1977, memo written by Freese's son, L.V. Freese, it was noted that a telephone conversation with Ivie had occurred and that Ivie wanted the engineering firm "to assume that groundwater is not available" in estimates to be prepared in connection with the Stacy application.

Freese stressed that the memo "had nothing to do with my preparation" of the estimates, and he further noted he had included those wells not contributing to the water needs of the communities served by the district. "But not the Winkler County wells," Werkenthin insisted. Pressing Freese further on the issue of groundwater supplies. Werkenthin solicited that Freese had not "investigated the longevity of wells serving the rural areas" which the district is claiming as its service

Freese also acknowledged he did not investigate the possibility of the existance of groundwater supplies that might be serving various manufacturing concerns in the claimed service area. "I didn't make an investigation." he said, "but I know that area as well as anyone.

He also agreed that he had included the water needs of Ballinger and Winters in his projected water demand report, but had not included the reservoirs now serving those communities in his supply estimate.

Because of the "silted up" condition of Ballinger's reservoir, said Freese. its contribution is "negligible."

1,100 Memphis police walk off the beat

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) -Sheriff's deputies patrolled the streets of Memphis today after 1,100 police officers walked off their beats and onto picket

Mayor Wyeth Chandler said a state of civil emergency existed and that National Guard troops would be brought in to help protect this city of 650,000, Tennessee's largest. National Guardsmen were used five weeks ago when firemen struck for three

The walkout came as thousands of tourists flocked to Memphis for a week of activities marking the first anniversary of rock 'n' roll idol Elvis Presley's death Aug. 16.

David Baker, president of the Memphis Police Association, said Thursday night that the presence of tourists and Presley fans in the city had been a consideration in the decision to strike.

The strike was ordered Thursday night in a secret session of the union's executive board after member's rejected a city wage offer. Police and firefighters have been without contracts since July 1.

Picket lines went up at police headquarters and all four precinct stations and police headquarters at 11 p.m. CDT, 41/2 hours after officers voted 528-266 against the pay proposal.

The offer called for a 6.653 percent increase retroactive to July 1 with raises of $22.50 a month and 7.5 percent by Oct. 1, 1979. The package would have boosted a veteran officer's monthly pay from $1,148 to $1,-224 immediately.

Chandler asked citizens to stay home unless travel was absolutely necessary. During the firefighters' strike, he imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew after hundreds of fires broke out.

Major Gen. Van Nunally, Tennessee deputy adjutant general, said he would meet with his staff before deciding which National Guard units would be brought to Memphis.

Stanton suit charges racial discrimination

STANTON - Four Mexican-Americans earlier this week filed a class action lawsuit in federal court in Midland against Martin County officials in seeking equitable voting precincts

The four men allege that "discriminatory treatment" denies them and other Mexican-American residents "fair and equitable representation" in Martin County voting precincts, The county seat of Martin County is Stanton. The suit was filed Wednes-

Filed by San Antonio civil rights lawyer Luis M. Segura, the suit names Bonitacio Arguello, Santos Guevara, Ricardo Parra and Joe Luis Salgado as plaintiffs.

The men charge in the suit that the existing method of apportioning Martin County commissioner precincts involves "excessive population deviations" which makes the system "unconstitutional."

Defendants named include Martin County Judge Jimmy Mathis and commissioners Troy Bradsaw, M.D. Goggin, Ronnie Deatherage and Earle Newcomer.

The plaintiffs claim members of their race suffer from "common, adverse and distinct problems in the fields of education, employment, health, politics, economics and others.

The suit further contends that the Martin County Commissioners' Court last allotted "county commissioners precincts according to law many years ago and such apportionment now contains a population disparity in the neighborhood of 100 percent.'

They also charge that this situation "divides the Mexican-American communities of Martin County in such a way as to dilute and minimize their impact on elections."

Reached for a comment Thursday, County Judge Jimmy Mathis said, "I haven't been served with papers involving this yet. Evidently it has something to do with the way voting is going on; misalignment of voting pre-

He said the subject is on the Martin County Commissioners' Court agenda for 10 a.m. Monday to be discussed at "I believe the plaintiffs are ap-

He said he could not comment further until he had been served with the lawsuit.

"I have been talking to legal counsel and I don't care to comment further. The only thing they are seeking is to apparently redistrict county precincts. In the end, I'll make a statement at the proper time.

Segura, reached late Thursday, said "We filed this lawsuit after these people came to me about a month ago and complained of a disproportionate number of persons - resident-voters - in some county precincts. This has meant that the larger number of voters in one precinct dilutes the power of voting residents of another district." He said that under the federally mandated one person-one vote rule, each individual ought to count the same in one county precinct as in another. "This involves the right of citizens not to have their voting power diluted by gerrymandering," he said.

Segura claimed that there has been "lack of redrafting and redrawing of county precinct lines. We are suing Martin County because of the dilution of the Mexican-American vote there. Their voting power is in direct correlation to their ability to elect officeholders."

Researchers probing the effects of TV violence

By BOB BAKER

The Los Angeles Times LOS ANGELES - For years government researchers and private education groups have been hammering at the way television viewing molds children's minds.

The pressure has mounted since 1972, when a surgeon general's report ordered by Congress concluded that children often emulate the violence they see on

Senate votes to continue food aid to South Korea

The WashingtonPost

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted Thursday to continue food aid to South Korea in light of a recent agreement to allow congressional investigators to question a former Korean ambassador suspected of making payoffs.

After an appeal by Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., chairman of the Senate Ethics Commitee, the Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., to cut $56 million earmarked for Food for Peace aid to Korea from the Agriculture Department appropriations

"All these idle threats and bombast have made it hard to win Korean cooperation," Stevenson said in a phone interview after the vote. "Each time the House has made another threat, the Koreans have closed the door to negotiations." The House voted in June to trim the $56 million in food aid from the budget because the Koreans refused to make former Ambassador Kim Dong Jo available for questioning. He is suspected of making or directing illegal cash payoffs to as many as 10 current House mem-

OZONA - A San Antonio man was killed and three passengers also from San Antonio were injured in a one-car accident at 9 p.m. Thursday on Texas 163, about 18 miles south of here, said a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety.

Authorities said Jose Francisco Casares Jr., 31, of San Antonio, died at the scene.

Injured passengers were reported to be Juan Luna, 31, Jose Reyes, 48, and Jerry Gonzales, 17, all of San Antonio. They received cuts and bruises, according to a spokesman.

Authorities said the vehicle was northbound on Texas 163 when it failed to negotiate a curve. The vehicle reportedly overturned three or four times and went through a fence.

Man listed 'satisfactory'

A Midland man was listed in satisfactory condition in Midland Memorial Hospital today after receiving injuries when his motorcycle hit a curb in the vicinity of Kansas Avenue and Pecos Street, according to Midland Police officers. Dennis D. Wood, 20, of the 500 block of West Estes Avenue received a dislocated left hip, fractured pelvis and possible head injuries as a result of the 12: 40 a.m. mishap, said a hospital spokesman.

Police probe theft

Midland police Thursday were told by Ann Shankle of the 3200 block of Hill Avenue that belongings valued at an estimated $920 were removed from her home Thursday while she was away. Police said entry was gained by using force on the back door of the residence.

Drinking light beer can make a weight difference

Dear Dr. Solomon: Does drinking a light beer rather than the regular kind make any difference as far as losing weight is concerned?--Frank

Dear Frank: Most of the so-called light beers have just under a hundred calories per 12-ounce can, whereas the regular varieties weigh in at 150 calories. So the difference is about 50 calories. This doesn't seem like much, but it does mount up over a period of time. For instance, if you drink one can of beer a day, you could probably lose five or six pounds a year by switching from a regular to a light brew. If you drink an average of two cans a day, the change would be enough to take care of your 10 pounds.

The light variety is also better for your health, as it has less alcohol in it (almost all the calories in beer come brewers have reduced the car- recording of a heart beat and a bohydrate in the light brews as well-along with improving the taste. So I would say by all means switch to the light beer. Just be careful not to step up your intake.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine said she had heard that waterbeds are good for premature babies. Is this true?--Alicia D.

Dear Alicia: Little waterbeds, or perhaps we should say watercribs, have been used experimentally instead of standard incubators in the intensive-care nurseries of several big hospitals-with excellent results. The idea is to try to create an environment more like the uterus. In one recent test, reported in Pediatrics, 11 preterm babies were rocked on warm waterbeds for an hour before each woman's voice. Their growth was definitely better than that of premature infants receiving traditional care. As a matter of fact, they did as well as if they had spent their 23nd to 36th weeks in their mother's

Other tests, at Stanford University and the University of California at San Diego, showed that waterbed babies had fewer of the breathing difficulties that affect preemies. These "apneic" spells-breathing interruptions-apparently occur because the. tiny infants' involuntary nervous systems are not yet fully developed.

As far as I know, baby waterbeds have only been used in hospitals nurseries. By the time the premature baby is ready to go home, he'or she is

Vietnam says Cambodian revolt threatening Phnom Penh regime

By JOHN SHARKEY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Vietnam, which is engaged in a border war with Cambodia is reporting that a rash of insurrections has erupted across Cambodia over the past several weeks. Many of the alleged revolts are said to have been carried out by regular-army units. Analysts in Washington say they have no way of confirming the reports put out by Vietnamese media and are suspicious that Hanoi is orchestrating a Cambodian revolutionary movement to bring pressure on Phnom Penh to settle their violent dispute.

In an acknowledgement that at least some Cambodians have gone into opposition, Phnom Penh has begun denouncing "collaborationists" and "running dogs" who are helping the Vietnamese integrate Cambodia "into the Vietnamese-dominated, abominable Indochina fed-

Cambodia has long claimed that the border conflict has its roots in Hanoi's attempt to reduce it to a satellite, as it has done with Laos.

Analysts hesitate to guess whether Hanoi may want to press for the downfall of the government of Premier Pol Pot. To go that far would risk further deterioration of Vietnam's already tense relations with China, a strong political backer of Cambodia.

On the other hand, there is very little support elsewhere in the world for Phnom Penh. It has made itself an international pariah with its harsh treatment of its people. One analyst expressed the sentiments of many who have been watching the situation in Indochina when he said, "Hanoi would be doing the world a favor" if it could bring down the Cambodian gov-

The reports of the insurrections, always attributed to Cambodian defectors or prisoners of war, have been coming out two or three times a week since mid-June. At that time a statement reputedly made by a former Cambodian battalion commander said that "revolutionary forces" ... have established a base to fight against" Phnom Penh.

The base was said to be in Cambodia's Military Zone 203, which intelligence sources believe is near Mimot, a Cambodian town about 6 miles from the Vietnamese border. Since then uprisings are said to have taken place at scores of towns and villages in Cambodia. Most of them are in the eastern part of the country, places such as Snoul, Neak Luong and Svang Rieng. They have also included other parts of Cambodia, sucu as Battambang Province in the far west and Kampong Thom in the north. One former Cambodian soldier told of civilians, including civil servants, plantation workers and peasants turning on "cruel cadres" and "exterminating" them with bombs and

In what may be attempts to give the revolutionary movement the appearance of broad political support, it has been endorsed by a Buddhist monk and by a community of 5,000 Cambodian refugees living in Vietnam's Tayninh Province.

Only one individual has been named in connection with the uprisings. Ta Phoem, otherwise unidentified, was said by one prisoner of war to have en the leader of an uprising in the Neak Luong area. The POW also said that loyalist cadres told him and his comrades that Ta Phoem "wanted freedom ... wanted to salvage Buddhism ... wanted to topple the Cambodian (Communist Party) and put (Cambodia) under Vietnamese con-

Observers expect that if the revolutionary movement is to be developed beyond a hit-and-miss affair, a formal organization will have to declare itself the leader of the rebellion and set up a base, presumably near the Vietnamese border, if not inside that country, where it can be protected by Hanoi's forces.

Another logical step, they say, would be the appearance of a clandestine radio station identifying itself as the voice of the movement.

The analysts believe that Hanoi is prepared to turn the pressure of the Dream hospital has waiting list

By JANET CLAYTON The Los Angeles Times

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. - A hospital hostess tells the story of a patient, who, excuse the expression, would not be caught dead in a hospital. Now he signs a waiting list just to get into "Chez Hoag."

"Chez Hoag," as aficionados call it, is more commonly known as the 10th-floor tower at Hoag Memorial Hospital. Its price tag of $185 per day dictates its exclusivity.

"Anybody who's anybody in New-port goes to the 10th floor of Hoag," said Suzi Gurley, social director of the Balboa Bay Club. Ms. Gurley's late father, steel executive Sam Gurley, was a benefactor of the floor and a patient there intermittently for six

"Dad did a lot of entertaining and dining," she said. "The tower is very comfortable and well worth the extra money.'

The 17-room tower is a home-awayfrom-home, office-away-from-the-office setting considered ideal by corpo-rate executives, policians and "The Duke of Wayne," as the actor is af-fectionately called by one hospital

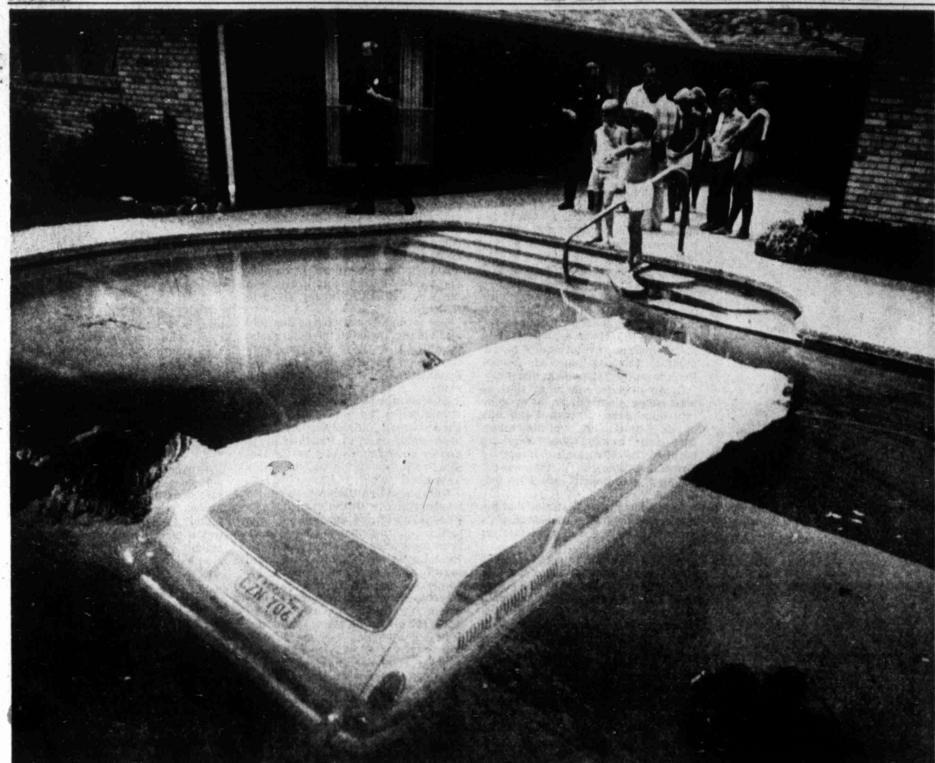

John Wayne was most recently a patient at the tower last March prior to his surgery to replace a heart valve. Although hospital sources deny that Wayne commands any special room or treatment, one employee said, "Anytime he wants a room, you can bet they'll find a way to accommodate him.'

The campaign was meant to be a tongue-incheek assault on anyone brazen enough to deny a beer drinker his can of Schlitz and take away "his gusto." But it backfired, stirring such resentment among viewers that it was canned 10 weeks after debuting in October.

And the strong ties between the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. and the Leo Burnett Co., one of the world's most successful ad agencies, were severed. A contest for a new long-term contract was won by the J. Walter Thompson Co., whose

Brain therapy: Educator creates geniuses in a day

By LEW SCARR Copley News Service

A therapist at United States International University in California has perfected a technique she thinks can turn average students into geniuses in a day.

Simply stated, the technique uses creative visual art - drawing - to enhance the entire perceptual system and data collecting facilities of the Carole Johnson's therapy reaches a part of the brain function she says has been left dormant by most educators.

"Our present school system does a super job of training the logical processes of the intellect," Johnson said in an interview at the school in San Diego. "Such things as math and language and science, but there is very little creative art.

'And the children come out of school not being self-motivated. They don't generate a lot of energy to solve their own problems, the feelings that come from creative art.

"Many children can read very well when they go to school, but by the third grade they can't read any more because the schools come to them from the intellectual side of the mind. "For those kids who respond to that, that is super, but the child (who is brain-oriented to creative skills) doesn't understand and therefore doesn't function."

Johnson said the great army of C students, the so-called average students, generally are those who can be creative but are not.

"I don't believe a lot of children are average," she said. "I was 'average." I wasn't intelligent enough for them to be interested in me when I was at school and I wasn't dumb enough for anyone to do anything about it.

"I recognized that when you take the power of both sides of the brain and integrate it so it functions with one side helping the other instead of one side fighting the other, the amount of power that the average human being has is almost immeasurable.

This integration of brain function is what Johnson says she is able to accomplish with art. She is able to take students who naturally or by training draw mechanical, analytical, carefully-measured intellectual figures, and teach them to produce spontaneous art of a quality, she said, that can be hung in museums.

"I teach that the way to contact the intuitive spontaneous mind is by closing your eyes so you cannot think and be critical about what you draw and then with one continuous, nonstop line produce a drawing in three or four minutes."

The continuous line permits no actual or mental erasures, no judgments, just expression. It allows the mind several thousand correct decisions in a row without a mistake.

"This is like skiing down a mountain," Johnson said. "So here is the integration. The intellectual mind says, 'You can do it, it is easy and it is fun and you are OK and you will get through the whole thing without making a mistake, and there is no reason why you should be any other

Johnson takes students back to the third grade where most of them are sidetracked from art and has them close their eyes and draw a continuous-line pumpkin. Then they draw themselves or their hands.

She said that in six hours students can be drawing excellent hands, which are difficult to draw.

She has average people drawing hands in six hours. Is that genius? "I think I can turn an average person into a genius," she said.

'Actually increase an IQ to that level.

Life at sea: What one American family found

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Sturdivant family-Lee and husband Tal, son Flip and daughter Lisa—is home again in Del Mar, Calif., having explored the Baja California peninsula, the Marquesas and French Polynesia. and the Hawaiian Islands aboard their 52-foot ketch Little Revenge.

The grand adventure behind, Lee casts a look backward, detailing what these amateur sailors learned along the way.

By LEE STURDIVANT Copley News Service

It's been 18 months and 12,000 miles of sailing since we sold our Del Mar home, moved aboard Little Revenge and set to sea to see whether we really could learn to live such a different life - or whether we'd even want to.

During that time it's become obvious that for every sailor who leaves the dock and heads over that horizon, there are many more staying behind, waiting for a chance to try it and wondering, perhaps, "is cruising really the life for me?" We've been asked the same questions over and over again by these horizon-gazers. It's time to try to give a few tentative

What does the cruising life cost? Assume you can get your hands on a seaworthy boat, stock it with all the equipment and spare parts needed for long sea passages. That giant step alone may cost you (as it cost us) all

After that, I would estimate that a couple on a medium-size sailboat could cruise comfortably most places in the world for about $300 to $400 per month. That allows for some entertainment costs; an occasional car rental, museum fees, modest dinners out a couple of times a week, a small souvenir or two along the way. We have met people cruising who are trying to live aboard on far less they do a lot of fasting and meditating. We have met those who spend more cruising than they did before they left - nights in hotels, lots of parties and booze aboard.

There's also the very real necessity of a decent cash reserve to handle the big problems that always come up; major boat repairs, lost or stolen equipment, health care, cash deposits in some foreign countries, emergency trips home.

The more people aboard, of course. the greater the cost. Food costs, except in Mexico, are higher everywhere compared with California. The idea is to load your boat with all the non-perishable food it can possibly hold and then pay through the nose for everything thereafter.

The price in Tahiti for three tired little ribs of celery was 75 cents; for one load of clothes to be done at the Laundromat, $4. I splurged on the celery but backed right out of the

Were you scared? Is it very dangerous?

I know this question stops a lot of people, especially women whose men are chomping at the dock lines waiting to get away. And this answer comes from a bona fide, 18-carat, practicing (ask Flip) coward.

If you could leave freeway driving for a year and then come back to it with fresh (terrified) eyes, you would no longer think of sailing (or mountain climbing or sky diving) as that dangerous. And we hit those freeways every day. Incredible.

Once you're confident of your boat and captain (if you aren't, don't go) the rest does come rather easily. My one constant worry was of losing someone overboard (especially at night) for which we took several precautions; harnesses, personal strobe lights, etc.

Twelve thousand miles and 18 months of pleasure and adventure can hardly be written off with three bad days of a storm — no matter how grim. If we had to face a lot of those. I'd quit. But we don't (I hope) and I won't (until then).

Do you miss all the things you had before? Only the dog. What a reflef to be rid of almost everything else. We had 25 years of home and possessions great years at that - but who wants to live the same way forever? Ugh.

It may be a bit harder to get used to the inconveniences aboard - saltwater washing and bathing leave much to be desired but what really happens is an internal adjustment that soon accommodates all that.

Ashore we live a push-button existence in order to have more free time for other, presumably more fun or adventurous doings. But free time and adventure is what cruising is all about every single day. Doing your chores the old-fashioned way (hand washing, bread baking, walking everywhere you go) just fits in very naturally. After a few months, you seldom think about it. Then, when you do get a chance for a freshwater shower, or a washing machine, you really notice and appreciate it. And realize you've made a great trade-off. What about living in such a small space? At sea, the tiny cabins are a snug refuge from the endless sky and sea around you.

In port, everyone goes ashore at least once a day. You live almost all your life out-of-doors where there's really no sense of confinement at all.

But the real heart of this question is having compatible people aboard and, without family ties (and sometimes with), that seems to be nearly impossible to maintain over very long trips.

In the South Pacific, we were almost the only boat with non-family members aboard that remained together. The boats pull into Papeete Harbor and the crewmen jump off (or are thrown off) almost immediately. Then a comic game of musical boats begins for the next leg. It soon becomes clear that that's the way it will go all over the world: crewmen leaving and joining boats all along the way, telling funny stories of crazy captains. And captains searching for new crew while telling wild tales of the last "dummy" aboard. You listen to all the tales and end up knowing that both the captain and crew should only commit for one leg at a time. And hope they don't try to throw each other off during that.

After all, the very idea of a captain with the absolute and final say over other people's lives is an anachronism these days. It's bound to cause problems and tense traumas especially among young, freeswinging Americans.

But mob navigation doesn't really work (we've tried it), and in a real emergency you're so grateful for a captain aboard that the whole system suddenly makes sense. Total responsibility in dangerous situations without any outside help is another idea out of another age and that's the captain's role. He's welcome to it.

FALL FORECAST '78

We were very lucky to have remarkable, helpful crew all the time (I'd go to sea with any of them, tomorrow) — but we also had a captain who could handle all the responsibility and stress without pushing the others aboard beyond their capacities. (Except, one time he told me I had to - oh well, never mind. That's all water under the

Home-made driers cheap

By PATRICK DENTON

Copley News Service

During the growing season, health food stores do a furious business in food driers. These are expensive home dehydrators for the drying of various fruits and vegetables from the home garden and orchard.

If you are the least bit handy, a home food drier can be put together for a quarter of the price of a commercial one. All that most plans call for is a sheet of plywood, some screening and assorted inex-

Plans for a home-made drier can be found in the local library-look for books on organic gardening Some health food stores have plans for driers to give their customers, and some Department of Agriculture offices have published plans for driers. When you find a plan for a drier, you also will find no lack of material on the dehydrating of food. Many books and booklets have been published on this sub-

One plan is simply a plywood box with a hinged front opening. Four or five wire screen racks slide in above a bank of nine 100-watt light bulbs, with a fan beside them to circulate the heat. Usually the drying process is begun with a two- to four-hour drying period with all nine bulbs on. This gives a temperature of 160 degrees. Then the drying is finished off at lower heats. Leaving six bulbs on yields 140 degrees of heat. Three bulbs give 120 degrees.

Many backyard gardeners would find a food dehydrator to be a real boon. Surplus vegetables can be steamed, chopped or flaked and dried for a homemade vegetable soup mix.

Vegetables to be dried need to be steam-blanched to neutralize their enzyme action. Steaming makes them drier than blanching them in boiling water, and so makes the drying process easier. Vegetables should be steamed only until the colors change to a vivid brightness. Don't leave them in for the time recommended on the freezing charts.

Put the vegetables straight from the steamer into the dehydrator racks. As the food dries, check a cooled bit for doneness. Don't make the mistake of testing the food straight from the dryer, because you won't have an accurate picture of what it will be like Fisher-Webb, Inc., of Abilene announced potential tests for two wells in the Arledge (Pennsylvanian sand) pool of Coke County, 15 miles northwest of Robert Lee.

No. 2 Gargile, one location east of production, finaled for a daily flow of 105 barrels ofd 41-gravity oil, no water, through a 10/64-inch choke and perforations from 5,296 to 5,300 feet. Gas-oil ratio is 647-1.

The pay was fractured with 20,000 gallons.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section

308, block 1-A, H&TC survey. No. 1-B Gartmen (formerly carries as No. 2 Gartman) completed for a 24-hour flow of 92 barrels of 41-gravity oil, no water, through a 10/64-inch choke and perforations from 5,297 to 5,315 feet after 20,000 gallons of fracture fluid. The gas-oil ratio is 652-1.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 308, block 1-A, H&TC survey.

Gas yield decreases

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas natural gas production decreased by 6.65 percent in May 1978 from a year earlier, the Texas Railroad Commission reported Thursday.

Texas wells produced 585,375,925 thousand cubic feet (mcf) of gas during the month. Marketed gas production totaled 493,155,533 mcf, down 7.24 from last year. Marketed gas production measures gas in transmission lines, carbon plant, plant fuel and lease use.

Gas exports were 166,665,067 mcf. down 16.20 prcent from May 1977. Although totals were down from a year ago, gas production compared favorably to the 574,875,325 mcf extracted in April.

Sterling well takes final

Texaco Inc. No. 3-O Sterling Fee is a new well in the Conger (Pennsylvanian) field of Sterling County, 16 miles southwest of Sterling City.

Operator reported a daily flow of 140 barrels of 48-gravity oil and 29 barrels of water, through perfora-tions from 7,871 to 8,320 feet. Gas-oil ratio is 2.572-1.

The pay zone was acidized with 5,000 gallons and fractured with 86,000 gallons Total depth is 8,350 feet and 5.5-inch casing was cemented on bottom. The plugged back depth is 8,340 feet.

Location is 1,814 feet from north and 1,754 feet from east lines of section 32, 75-S, T&P survey.

New firm organized

HOUSTON (AP) - Resource Drilling Inc., a contract drilling firm, has been organized as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Superior Oil Co.

Bob R. Dorsey, chairman of the new firm, said Thursday orders have been placed for 16 land rigs at a cost of about $70 million.

Dorsey, former chairman of Gulf Oil Corp., said the first of the rigs are scheduled for early 1979 delivery with the remainder to be delivered over the following 12 months. President of Resource Drilling

U.S. companies, China deal on oil development

By LARRY MARGASAK

WASHINGTON (AP) - Four U.S. oil companies and Chinese officials are attempting to negotiate agreements for sharing development of China's vast oil reserves, the State Department confirmed today.

Pennzoil, Exxon, Union Oil and Phillips Petroleum are talking with the Chinese, who have both offshore and onshore reserves and are in the midst of an oil development boom. While it is not known whether the arrangements would bring Chinese oil to the United States, a U.S. oil expert said any significant increase in world production could make more oil available to this country.

'I will affirm the four oil companies have been for some time involved in business arrangements with the Chinese government," said John F. Cannon, a State Department public affairs adviser.

"The nature of those arrangements are private and they do not involve the United States government. They involve oil exploration in various areas, but we're not in a position to characterize their (the companies') arrangements with China or the Chinese government's arrangements

Although Cannon described the talks as "company-to-government," the negotiations have the backdrop of a major public and private effort here to increase trade with China.

U.S.-China trade, which totaled $375 million last year, will probably top $700 million this year, Commerce Secretary Juanita M. Kreps said in According to the Interior Department, China's crude petroleum production increased by 13 percent from 4975 to 1976, from 571.6 million barrels to 645.9 million barrels. A barrel holds

What will swallowing a college get you?

By JERRY SCHWARTZ

NEW YORK (AP) - Can a tiny Canadian liberal arts college solve its financial problems by swallowing Columbia University whole?

John Godfrey seems to think

Following an interpretation of history that harkens to "The Mouse that Roared," Godfrey says Kings College in Halifax, Nova Scotia, is the rightful owner of Columbia's Morningside Heights campus and its land in the Wall Street area and Rockefeller Center.

Godfrey, who is president of Kings, wants it. All of it. "Columbia is an illegitimate fragment - it has no right to exist," he said. To back his claim, Godfrey cites the history of Columbia, starting in 1754, when King George II granted the university a charter under the name Kings

In the 1760s, Godfrey said, the college's endowment grew from money solicited in England on the understanding that Kings would remain an Anglican institution, headed by Anglicans.

"Then you fellows got a little unruly, and the result was those troubles we had in 1776," Godfrey said. "Kings College went into a bit of a decline. In fact, no students showed up for classes.'

The college was re-established in Nova Scotia, while the old Wall Street campus - itself a gift to the college from Trinity Church, an Anglican institution — became Columbia in 1787. In 1802, George III transferred the charter from Manhattan to Nova Scotia.

The two institutions went their separate ways. Columbia grew to a university of 17,500 students and 4,000 faculty members, with an annual budget of $248 million and an endowment of $460 mil-

Kings now has 360 students and 15 to 20 faculty members, with an annual budget of $1 million and an endowment of $3

Godfrey says Kings College is the legitimate owner of the land because "We've kept the faith, baby," remaining Anglican while Columbia went secular. This is not to say that Godfrey is unreasonable. He met with Columbia President William McGill in June and offered to settle for $50 million. The offer was rejected, as was a proposal that Kings take over Columbia.

"Now look," said Godfrey.
"Look at all of the land they've got. Look at that ridiculous endowment they've got. And what do they do with it, anyway?' Columbia noted that Godfrey is in the middle of a $2.5 million fund-raising campaign. "We're amused and wish the best for Kings College in their fund-raising effort," said a university spokesman.

Godfrey remains undaunted. The two institutions have set a debate on the subject for the fall. Godfrey says he is considering ransoming Columbia's debaters for $50 million.

But he is also mindful that higher principles are involved.

Pentagon's primary problem still lack of people

By WARREN ROGERS Special to The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - In Congress, and wherever else the Pentagon fights its budget battles, the headlines go to SALT, mobile missiles, supersonic bombers and interservice squabbles over who gets what and when. But almost nobody wants to dig into the really crucial, overriding issue - the people problem — mostly because nobody has any answers that are politically acceptable.

The Defense Department's all-volunteer establishment of 2-million-plus men and women (781,000 Army, 529,-000 Navy, 191,000 Marines and 570,000 Air Force) has troubles, and they're growing. Unless war clouds gather or the U.S. economy worsens, neither of which is predicted, the armed forces could run out of people — even if more women are brought in.

THE PROBLEM IS EXQUISITE-LY complicated, but it can be boiled down to the old Army equation of too much and too little. The Army and the other three services have high rates of desertion, high incidences of abuse of alcohol and other drugs, high percentages of dropouts before completion of a first term, high figures on the decline of National Guard and reserve strength - about all that is low are enlistments by the kind of people the services must have to maintain an adequate system of defense in today's Critics may be guilty of catchy overstatement in attacking the all-volunteer force as "too dumb, too black, too small and too expensive," to quote Rep. Les Aspin's summary of their charges.

force is less of a success than the Pentagon says it is. And the worst is

Desertion rates remain unconsciounably high. In fiscal 1977 the Navy recorded 3.16 per 100 enlisted personnel, its highest since World War II. The rate was 1.33 in the Army, .05 in the Air Force, and a whopping 4.70 in the Marines. At the same time 40 percent of those who enlisted in the Army in 1974 failed to complete three years. The dropout rate was 38 percent in the Navy, 42 percent in the Marines and 29 percent in the Air

WHAT MAKES THE FUTURE BLEAK, on top of all this, is today's lower birth rate. The number of 18year-old American males by 1985 willbe some 15 percent below what it is today. This means the armed forces be facing even stiffer competition for bright, healthy youths, competition from colleges and — assuming President Carter is right and unemployment stays below 6 percent of the labor force — from the civilian job

The biggest headache for Pentagon planners is that, without the draft as an incentive, the National Guard and military reserves are withering away. They have dropped 15 percent in the past five years and remain short of enlisted personnel.

The shortages are across the board — in units and among trained specialists not affiliated with units - and they spell dangerously poor preparedness, because the nation traditionally depends on its reservists as the bulwark of all mobilizations until regular forces can be recruited and

THE PENTAGON'S FOCUS, THEN, is not entirely on whether it gets the MX missile, but as much, maybe more, on whether it gets enough CAT-IIs and CAT-IIIs — that is, the category of enlistees scoring on intelligence tests in the 65 to 92 percentile (Category II) and the 31 to 64

percentile (Category III).

Very few CAT-Is (93 to 100 percentile) show up in enlisted ranks, and CAT-Vs (0 to 9) are rejected by law. Altogether too many CAT-IVs, with IQ scores in the 10 to 30 percentile, are coming into the services, and it is these "dummies," as Rep. Aspin calls them, who are by and large the best the services can attract at a time of growing sophistication of weapons, and who are accounting for just about all of the negative statistics.

Aspin currently is engaged in a running battle, mostly in the newspapers, with Rep. Robin Beard, R-Tenn., over whether the Army needs more dumb soldiers or more smart Aspin, noting that the Army consistently overruns the 18 percent quota for CAT-IVs set by Congress, insists the services should scale down their standards to levels that would accommodate CAT-IVs, half of whom never complete their terms after using up more training and disciplinary time than other enlistees. Beard opposes any lowering of mental standards and wants the services to try harder to recruit more CAT-IIs and IIIs.

MELVIN R. LAIRD FORESAM RECRUITING problems when he announced the birth of the all-volunteer force on Jan. 27, 1973, jsut two days before stepping out assecretary of defense: "Use of the draft has ended. . The all-volunteer era. . . is upon

He cautioned that Congress, which set force levels and signaled it would end the draft, would have to provide pay and other incentives to achieve those levels without conscripting some 300,000 men a year.

He made it clear he meant the total force - reserves as well as regulars and particularly such short-supply specialists as doctors and other health professionals.

Laird's current successor, Defense Secretary Harold Brown, insists the all-volunteer force is working, but as he told University of the Pacific College of Dentistry graduates (whom he tried to recruit for the military) on June 23 any "major military involve-ment" would mean a quick return to the draft. Brown emhasized that the force is "more equitable than the system of conscription it superseded" and "billions of dollars cheaper than universal military training or some form of national service" - both suggested among possible alterna-

MOST EXPERTS CONCEDE THAT EITHER of those altenatives would bring in more recruits than any of the services could handle. Any effort to pick and choose among such a nationwide crop would promptly create a hue and cry about favoritism, draft-dodging and the like.

Also, the costs would be many times over the $3 billion now going each year for the all-volunteer force. All things considered, neither could get anywhere politically.

The fairness of the all-volunteer force, as against the kind of multi-exemptioned draft-operating during the Vietnam conflict, is borne out in military manpower tables now being prepared for presentation to Congress. They show that regional representation follows the population precentage for eligible youths, that half come from the urban centers where half the population lives, and that most come from families with annual incomes of about $14,000, just about the median level for the country as a whole.

One table confirms what has been a trend since President Truman ended racial segregation in the Army in 1948 - the turning by black Americans to the military as a career. One out of every four enlisted men and women in the Army is black. The Army figures are 24 percent total (26 percent en-listd, 6 percent officers).

WHILE BROWN AND OTHER TOP LEADERS put up brave words about the progress ("continuing success" is the buzz phrase) of the all-volunteer force, they are quietly casting about for solutions to their continung per-

One segment of the population to which they are turning is women. The proportion of women in the force, during its five years, has grown from 2 percent to 6. Facing up to the 1980 pinch, the plan now is to double female strength by fiscal 1983 to 199,999, and instead of recruiting 370,000 males as planned for that year, cut back to 331,000. The question of women serving in combat remains a hot potato, even though recent court decisions indicate they will be allowed to, and quite soon.

Top priority is being given to efforts to cut down on first-term attrition. The Pentagon says vaguely it hopes to do this through "improved management techniques" — such as cutting the Army's 40 percent drop out rate by more carefully matching a soldier's training to the assignment he gets and hiring civilians to do more

This approach would call for abandoning a relatively new approach" as with modern-day autombile repair, in which a defective part is simply replaced and discarded rather than re-paired, the military forces now give discharges freely instead of court-martialing or otherwise disciplining rulebreakers.

ALCO, MILITARY PLANNERS ARE TALKING about "varying enlistment standards to increase the number of eligible recruits." That is Pentgonese for lowering the stan-

What is planned as well, however, is to go all-out in simplifying the individual components of today's sophisticated weaponry so that even some of Aspin's "dummies" can operate and maintain it. This already is being tried with some aircaft: the F-15 fighter, for instance, has been designed so that plug-in boxes contain its various parts, to be whipped out and replaced in the field and sent to the rear, where experts, perhaps civilians, can do the repairing.

What is particularly worrisome at this time - five years after Laird's cautions to Congress — is that the all-volunteer force has never been properly anchored. There is no standby authority on the books for con-

IN THE EVENT OF A NATIONAL emergency, a draft law would have to be enacted to provide the legal authority for calling up the people needed in addition to those who volunteered or who alreay were in the National Guard and the various re-

With the glaring faults demonstrated for both universal military training and national services, primarily that they would be enormously expensve and provide for more recruits than needed in peacetime, neither is likely to win much support in Congress, not after such taxpayer revolts as the passage of Proposition 13 in California. A more viable alternative, or at least one that has been gaining some attention and support lately, goes like

-Standby authority for the president to order an all-out draft, such as during World War II, in the event that full national mobilization is indicated by the world situation.

-A scaled-down draft system in operation, covering both men and women, calling up a token force of perhaps 2,000 each month.

-Concurrently, recruiting efforts as heavy as those under the all-volunteer force, forming the backbone of the military forces.

Such a combination of standby power, minimal conscription and voluntarism, according to advocates, would have a number of positive ef-

For one thing, it would go a long way toward meeting the National Guard and reserves problem, with a steady stream of semi-trained personnel moving into those backup components. And for another, it would keep every young man and woman in the country aware of a responsibility to perform military service, if reuired, as part of the duties that go along with the privilege of being an American citizen.

Anyone who had missed the game and had just walked into the clubhouse off the parking lot would have suspected Darrell Turner had just blown a heartbreaker.

Almost as bad, but not quite. The 6-3 righthander from Ocoee, Fla., had nursed a three-hit shutout into the ninth as carefully as the teetotaler trying to fit into a nightclub scene when he spilled it all in his

All Darrell got out of it was his third victory in a row and all the Midland Cubs got was their 10th straight Cubs Stadium win. The 4-2 victory, more importantly, preserved Midland's field on first place in the Texas League West and gave the Bruins a 2-0 edge in the series against the Amarillo Gold Sox going into tonight's 7: 30 Two-Bit Beer Night game.

"No, I wasn't upset by the walk," Turner said of his two-out free pass to Steve Smith, the only batter he had come close to walking, in the ninth. "I just stuck the ball right where he wanted it. If I was going to do it, I wish it had been earlier.'

Barry Evans deposited the infamous Turner pitch over the left field wall to narrow Midland's lead to 4-2, but after an error, Turner got Paul

O'Neill on a loft to center for the final

UNTIL EVANS hit his ninth homer of the season, it looked as though a nifty double play in the seventh had saved Turner's shutout for him. Smith reached first on an error and then Evans collected his second of three hits and Smith moved to third as Tim Derryberry grounded into a force out at second. O'Neill then drilled a seeing-eye hopper up the middle. Shortstop Steve Macko got to the ball behind second and backhanded it to second baseman Kurt Seibert, who somehow made the pivot and throw to first where Billy Evers completed the DP with a out-saving stretch.

Until Evans homered in the ninth, that was the only hint of trouble encountered by Turner all night as he mowed down the Sox with his fastball in four-hit style. He had the Sox pounding the ball into the ground all night, witness seven assists and two putouts by Macko, who came up with several defensive saves that only a powerful arm could turn into outs.

SEIBERT, WHO has a .486 onbase average, delivered the big blow for the Cubs in the second when he tripled down the right field line to drive in two runs, after a walk to Jim Joe Carroll, not long up from Reno of the A California League, proved a capable mound foe for Turner, but was done in by his defense. Midland scored what proved to be the winning run in the fourth when Tracy beat out a grounder to first and raced to third when Carroll's pickoff throw to first was wild. Fierro's fly to left then plated the run.

In the seventh, Midland added an insurance run when Seibert peached first and came around on three walks, one intentional and one by relief pitcher Bob Tellman.

The Cubs collected seven hits, two each by Grandy, Tracy and Evers with Evers' lining a triple off pitcher Tellman's leg in the eighth. The ball caromed past a diving Dane Ilertsen at first and rolled into foul territory. Tellman, lucky to escape with his leg in one piece, was replaced by Barry Biggerstaff, who got the final two

Jim Tracy...collects two hits Bowa accused of hitting writer PHILADELPHIA (AP) - A base- grabbed Bowa, who struggled to ball writer allegedly was struck in the face Thursday night during an argu-ment with the Philadelphia Phillies' Larry Bowa over a column critical of the National League All-Star short-Ray W. Kelly, 37, a baseball report-er for the Courier-Post in Camden, N.J., for 14 years, suffered a slight bruise on the right cheekbone.

Bowa later denied that he struck But the Courier-Post said it was considering taking legal action against the shortstop. The Philadelphia chapter chairman of the National Baseball Writers Association protested the incident. And Phillies' Manager Danny

Ozark issued an apology.

Kelly said he did not see who hit him, but Ray Didinger, a Philadel-phia Bulletin columnist, said Bowa's open hand brushed the writer while the shortstop was struggling to get free of Ron Reed, a 6-foot-6 teammate who had restrained Bowa.

"If I can get out of the grasp of Ron Reed, I'm sure a strong human being," said the 32-year-old Bowa after helping the Phillies beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-1, Thursday night. "I'll see you in court I guess." Bowa added, "I did not touch a human being, and I'm willing to swear on a million bibles in a courtroom filled with anybody you want." The trouble actually started in St. Louis Tuesday night when Bowa had words with Mark Heisler of the Bulletin, who was digging for some information on a closed-door team meeting. Ozark had lectured his players on their poor performance in recent On Wednesday night, while the Phillies were still in St. Louis, Bowa told Kelly, who was interviewing utility player Jim Morrison, that writers

In the Tuesday night confrontation with Heisler, the writer said he was asked to leave the locker room by Ozark to avoid any further disturbance. He said he hard Bowa scream, "I'll fight him in the hall."

Kelly, who was in the dugout Thursday night, said he was lured to the clubhouse by a groundskeeper who nformed him he had a telephone call in the locker room.

"Ray Didinger and myself walked up to the clubhouse and Bowa was waiting by the door," Kelly said.

Kelly quoted Bowa as greeting him with a long string of obscenities and offering the writer the first punch.

"I stood my ground and waited to see what he would do," said Kelly. Reed, a Phillies' reliever, then

Barber still likes challenge of tour

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — At the age of 47, and a millionaire in 20 years on the pro golf tour, Miller Barber still enjoys the challenge, refusing to give in to the PGA's "Young Turks."

"I still have the desire to play," Barber said Thursday after firing a 5-under-par 66 to share the lead with Ben Crenshaw in the opening round of the $225,000 Pleasant Valley Classic.

"I still like to beat the young guys," he added. "I also feel I know more about the game than ever. I'll hang it up only when I lose that competitive

Guidry wins 16th with three-hitter

By The Associated Press

"I don't know where you'd find a better arm. If you went looking for the best arm you could find, that's the one you'd settle for.' That was Manager Bob Lemon speaking about Ron Guidry, the New York Yankees' ace left-hander. And Lemon should know what he was talking about.

Not only is he a Hall of Fame pitcher, but Lemon tried to acquire Guidry last year when he managed the Chicago White Sox.

Lemon was the Yankees' pitching coach two years ago when Guidry was a seldom-used rookie.

"I knew he was a great prospect," Lemon said Thursday night after Guidry boosted his record to 16-2 with a three-hit 9-0 shutout over the Milwaukee Brewers. "When you saw that arm, you had to fall in love with it."

A year later, the Yankees were after Chicago shortstop Bucky Dent and eventually surrendered outfielder Oscar Gamble and two minor league pitchers. But the one Lemon really wanted was Guidry.

"I tried to get him in the Dent trade," said Lemon, "but we couldn't work it out.'

Then came the strange turn of events that saw Lemon fired by Chicago in June and hired by the Yankees last month. In his debut as manager of the Yankees, Guidry shut out Kansas City.
"I'm glad I didn't get him," Lemon said in his best Yogi Berra imitation, 'because now I've got him."

In other American League games, the Boston Red Sox edged the Cleveland 6-5 in 13 innings, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Kansas City Royals 3-2, the California Angels trounced the Oakland A's 16-5 and the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the White

three-hitter. "Warming up, I didn't feel espe-cially quick," he said. "But nobody's up there swinging, so you can't tell if your fast ball is running or if it has any zip. When the game starts, then you know.'

When the game started, the Brewers knew: Guidry retired the first 12 batters, striking out seven, and didn't allow a hit until Robin Yount doubled leading off the sixth.

"When you start like that, it helps you because it puts their batters more on the defensive than anything else," Guidry said. "They know you're throwing hard and they can't go up there just whaling away."

Rick Burleson's single capped a two-run rally in the bottom of the 13th inning. Burleson's smash caromed off shortstop Tom Veryzer's glove and Gary Hancock, running for George Scott, who had doubled, raced home. The Red Sox tied the game earlier in the inning when the leadoff batter, Butch Hobson, was safe when first baseman Andre Thornton dropped his pop fly. Hobson continued to third and then home when catcher Bo Diaz threw wildly after fielding the ball.

The Red Sox trailed 4-1, but Fred Lynn hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Jim Rice tripled home the tying run in the seventh.

"They don't represent the general run of fans. Everybody knows that fans are fickle. It's their nature. It's their right. There's never been a ball player who ever lived who hasn't been booed. That includes Babe Ruth, Lou Mickey Mantle and Roger-Maris.

"I just don't like it when it gets Unfortunately, it has grown ugly in the case of Jackson, who has been made the villain in the bizarre sequence of events that has seen Martin tearfully resign as manager of the Yankees after blasting both Jackson and Steinbrenner only to recant and be rehired, effective in 1980.

It was all Reggie's fault, Martin continues to insist.

The fans, who find a kindred spirit in Billy the Kid's street fighter instincts and open defiance of the boss, quickly lined up with the contentious little skipper, treating him to a sixminute standing ovation at the Yankees' annual Old Timers' Game.

Cheers faded into jeers for Jackson who hit three home runs in the clinching game against the Dodgers last October and who rapped another in his first time at bat in the Stadium this year, triggering a rain of "Reggie!" bars.

The fickleness of the fans was demonstrated in Wednesday night's game against the Milwaukee Brewers, won by the Yankees 8-7 on a five-run ninth inning rally:

"Boo! Boo!" bellowed the fans every time Reggie went to the bat rack earlier in the game. In the ninth, he came up with the bases loaded. This was a Jackson situation. This was raw drama. The crowd's disposition underwent a remarkable

"Reggie!" "Reggie!" they screamed - 1977 all over again. He refused to duck a fastball and kept the rally alive when he was hit by the pitch. Roger Maris was booed because he was going after one of Babe Ruth's cherished home run records. Ted Williams carried on a feud with spectators. The outbursts against Jackson stem directly from the Martin case. "I have tried too impress on Reggie how important he is to our ballclub,' Steinbrenner said. "We have no intention of getting rid of him - unless he insists.

"As for the boos, we will ride them out. If they want to boo me and tell me how much they love Billy, okay. I like for the Yankees to be a symbol of the city where it's an all-day battle to survive, the hecticness of it. I just don't like for it to get vulgar or vile."

Automated sports writer must be resourceful

They changed the phone system and phone numbers at the Los Angeles Times for the first time since the days of the crank telephone the other day. It's all in the name of automation, but you'll pardon all of us ink-stained wretches if it makes us a little nervous. I mean, today the phones, tomorrow the staff. Nineteen-eighty-four is a little nearer. Big Brother is coming. If they automate the phones, when will they automate the stories? What will become of Hildy Johnson? Will Grantland Rice be made out of tin in the future? Damon Runyon a data bank? Richard Harding Davis just a lot of circuitry with a passport.

A computer programmed to crank out sports stories is just a couple of transitors away. Of course, it will have to be programmed. First, if they listen to us, it will have to learn a few basics. Such as the questions:

'What kind of a pitch did he hit?" must be asked of a pitcher who has just lost a World Series in the bottom of the 12th, 1-0. The computer must be programmed to duck as it asks it. Otherwise, the paper is stuck with the biggest hunk of scrap metal this side of the stretch at Indy.

THE COMPUTER will have to learn to enter the dressing room of a fighter who has just been carried in with (1) a broken nose (2) broken ribs (3) black eyes (4) dented Adam's apple which will make him sound like a ransom call the rest of his life (5) hemorrhages on both arms (6) blood trickling out of his ear (7) teeth trickling out of his mouth. It will have to ask: -"Did he hurt you at any time, Bat?" If the fellow is still conscious, or, at least alive, teach your computer to lean down and ask: "Would you

Your computer will have to learn to be resourceful. Look for the pithy quote even when you don't get it from the athlete. If a golfer shoots 80 and says, "I kept hitting it into sand traps," you quote him for the headline, "Needed a Camel, Not a Caddy' Says One-Putt of His 80." The quote will make all the anthologies, and, within a week, one-Putt will think he actually said it.

Stories without quotes will be even easier. Just keep a stock of standing heads: "Rams Blow Super Bowl To Minnesota Again" is good any December. Even the story accompanying will just need blanks to be filled in: "The Los Angeles Rams blew their chances for the Super Bowl again this year when the Minnesota Vikings defeated them because of (choose one) a blocked field goal, intercepted pass, rainstorm, sunshine, heavy overcast, superior coaching, or, all six.

And with baseball, remember that the fans like figures, and give them to them: "The Los Angeles Dodgers drew their 4 millionth fan, sold their 16 millionth hot dog, tapped their 5 millionth barrel of beer, sold their 3 millionth bobble-head doll and had their 2,709th straight overflowing parking lot yesterday. The message board saluted the 2 millionth sepuagenarian couple form Nepal, welcomed the 150,000 Rotary Club and announced that next Saturday will be 'Mafia Night,' with everyone carrying a violin case or horse's head to be admitted free.

BASKETBALL WILL be no problem. Keep this standing story: "The (leave blank name of franchise) today signed All-American center 'Treetop' Tarheeler, the all-time Atlantic Coast Conference scorer with 1,000 points a game, to a multi-year, no-cut contract believed to call for Rhode Island, parts of Wilshire Boulevard and the mineral rights to the Gulf of Mexico. The deal also includes his parme officer, the widow of the man he killed with a tire iron and the judge who invalidated the three previous contracts he puts his 'X' on and the playground director who taught him not to bite people on court.

Auto racing? Easy. Just remember death is a "mar" in auto racing. As in "Leadfoot Lonergan won the 57th running of the Fireball 500 today in a race marred by the death of ..." You just have to fill in the number of drivers and-or spectators. In bullfighting, remember death is not a mar, it's a must. If the bull doesn't die well, he gets bad notices.

Don't worry about stats. Just feed your machine a daily diet of bubblegum cards and it will know more sports trivia than a Boston cop.

AFTER A YEAR or so on the beat, though, your machine will begin to act strange. It will keep its hat on in the office. It will begin to drink. It will begin to speak of the home team as "we." It will get sick of people asking, "What's wrong with the Rams?" It will start to complain about box lunches, the Ram offense, and the amount of space it gets for its story. Its mate may start to hope the home team doesn't make the playoffs so it can stay home for Christmas for a change.

And then will come the day when it will start to write about a mark being set for right-handed, half-Portuguese, half-Italian third basemen, about the "Z-outs" run by the tight ends, and it will start storing up nonwinning fractions in dual meets — and you'll know it's the beginning of the end. When it starts to write "Outlined against a blue-gray October sky..." or "Give me a handy guy like Sande..." then you'll know it's time to go to the graduating class of Princeton and wait for the first kid out of English Lit. and say, "Do you know who Ty Cobb was?" And if he says, "Who?" grab him. You'll know you have yourself the perfect computer

Connors enjoys winner's role

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Jimmy Connors realizes he's expected to win every time he walks onto a tennis court and he likes the idea.

"I worked 26 years for that role," said Connors Thursday after advancing to today's quarter-finals in the $210,000 68th U.S. Open Clay Court tennis championships.

"I had the other role (being an underdog) for a long time. The thing about being in my position is it brings out a different level of play. Even if I'm not hitting the ball that well, I'm going to squeak through a lot of matches just because of it."

Connors led a parade of seeded players into the quarter-finals. He was scheduled to play No. 6 seed John McEnroe in a rematch of their 1977 Wimbledon semifinal in one of today's Defending champion Manuel Orantes, seeded third, met Jeff Borowiak; No. 2 seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina battled No. 7 Jose Hi-Barazzutti, seeded fourth, met Kjell Johansson of Sweden.

to rejoin Twins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Minnesota Twins Manager Gene Mauch was to be released from St. Mary's Hospital today and is expected to be back with the team for a double-header tonight against the Oakland A's. A team spokesman said Thursday that Mauch, 52, had been suffering from a staph infection of the right foot. He was hospitalized earlier this week and had missed the Twins' last Thursday's third round, getting by 10th-seeded Jaime Fillol of Chile 7-5,

"It was a good match for me to get under my belt," said Connors, who is competing after a two-week layoff. Connors took a 5-2 advantage in the first set, but Fillol rallied to tie at 5-5. but Connors broke Fillol's service in the 11th game, then held service to decision over Hungary's Balazs Taroczy; Orantes scored a 6-3, 6-1 verdict over Argentina's Jose-Luis Clerc; Borowiak rallied for a 5-7, 6-3, -4 triumph over Zan Guerry; hansson ousted Austria's Peter Figel 4-6, 6-4, 6-3; Barazzutti overcame a challenge by Italian Davis Cup teammate Adriano Panatta, 5-7, 6-4, 6-0; Higueras eliminated Chris Lewis of New Zealand 6-3, 6-0 and Vilas routed 1977 semifinalist Phil Dent of Austra-

The match was the fifth in four days for Vilas, who had to play twice on Monday to win a tournament at South Orange, N.J., before his openinground match here.

In women's semifinals, Janet Newberry was scheduled to meet Argentina's Viviana Gonzalez and Jeanne Evert met UCLA team member Dana Gilbert, an 18-year-old who has reached the women's semifinals despite being ranked No. 134 in the latest women's tennis rankings.

Newberry defeated Caroline Stoll 6-2, 6-1; Gilbert defeated Jeanne Du-Vall 6-3, 6-4; Evert topped Valerie Ziegenfuss 6-7, 6-1, 8-6; and Gonzalez bested Kate Latham 7-5, 7-5.

Jim Rice is study in contradiction

By SKIP BAYLESS The Los Angeles Times

BOSTON - Though game time was two hours away, several hundred fans were clamoring in Fenway Park's center-field bleachers, his favorite target. As he dug in at the plate, the visiting Minnesota Twins quit playing catch or pepper to watch.

Boston's No. 14 swung easily at the first batting-practice pitch, but the impact resounded through the nearempty grandstand. Another souvenir streaked toward his fan club.

Come one, come all Tim Rice was flexing his muscles again. Twenty-five times he swung, and 23 times the ball hit the wall or the seats or disappeared toward the Massachusetts Turnpike. Sixteen blows cleared the left, center or right-field barriers, including seven straight.

Leaning on the batting cage, Boston manager Don Zimmer spat and muttered, "In all my years in this game (30), I've never seen a more awesome exhibition."

LIKE MANY of the Twins, Boston first baseman George (Boomer) Scott was shaking his head. "Every once in a while," said the 12-year veteran, "a person comes along who is just great. A politician or athlete or whatever. Jim Rice will be the Willie Mays of my son's time. If he stays healthy, there's no question he'll break (Hank) Aaron's record (755 career home

Yet, a few minutes later Rice returned to the clubhouse and began taking armloads of bats out of their wooden shelves and heaving them back in with a thunderous clatter. Heads turned. Rice smiled, The other players quickly returned to what they were doing. "He's just blowing off steam," said one, shrugging. "That's just Rice." That indeed was James Edward Rice, the only person standing be-tween himself and superstardom.

RICE IS a small-town product -Anderson, S.C. (pop. 40,000) - with enormous talent, pride and sensitivity. In three major league seasons, he's handled pitchers much more easily than life in the limelight.

Rice has become a study in contradiction, simple yet complex. He said he's "very, very moody - most power hitters are." Yet his coaches marvel that he has the most consistent disposition of any young player they've seen.

Rice complains that he doesn't get the publicity he deserves. Yet he's an increasingly uncooperative interview, snubbing reporters and complaining that he's often misquoted.

Rice said that being accepted by his teammates is a top priority. Yet some said he sometimes acts as if he's too good for them.

"He can be very boastful, very cocky," said Milwaukee's Cecil Cooper, a former Red Sox player who is Rice's closest friend. "He is very introverted and hard to get to know. He's very private and won't open up to strangers. A lot of times he gives you one impression, and he's just the

Some players say Rice has a "mean streak." Yet he spends much of his free time visiting children in hospitals or holding autograph sessions aound town without charge. When asked if hitting a homer is the best feeling he knows, Rice snapped, "I'd much rather make a kid happy than hit a home run. If you're power hitter, you know that eventually you'll hit one out. But how many kids can you make

RICE IS among the leaders in homers with 25. Yet he said he's prouder of his batting average .305. He said his power is "a gift, totally natural." Yet former Red Sox star Ted Williams says that Rice is "the most dedicated hitter in baseball. He's the only guy I've ever seen who practices hitting as much as I did."

Rice's lawyer, Tony Pennachia, wants to make Rice the highest-paid player in all of team sport, raising his present $125,000-a-year contract to over $800,000 (he has one year remaining, plus an option year). Yet Rice said: "I don't want to be the highest paid. The more you're paid, the more they (the fans) want you to do. The more they get down on you. Look how they were on Lyman Bostock's case (the Angels' free agent outfielder). I don't want that."

When Jim Rice is hot, there's nothing like him this side of Cincinnati's George Foster.

MINNESOTA manager Gene Mauch, never frivolous with praise, said: "What he is is scary. There'; just no ballpark built to hold him. You take his pull field away (pitch him outside) and he'll put you away in the opposite direction. Awesome strength. Just awesome. And he knows how strong he is and doesn't try to muscle the ball. "I've been going to ballparks for 35 years, and they point to where Ruth hit and Foxx hit one. Well, pretty soon they'll point to where Rice hit one."

Rice hit .309 with 22 homers in his rookie year, tailed off to .282 but hit 25 more in '76, then served notice last season: .320 with 206 hits (the first Red Sox player over 200 since Johnny Pesky in 1946). And he led the league in homers (39), slugging (.593), total bases (382, the most since 1940) and extra-base hits (83). Besides homers, Rice is leading the majors this season in slugging (.605) and triples (15).

The statistics, of course, indicate that Rice is a hitter, not just a slugger. A right-handed batter, he doesn't have the long, classic home-run uppercut of Reggie Jackson or Dave Kingman. Rice's is a short, level stroke which produces as many line drives to right as towering drives to left. His hair-trigger rip allows him to wait on the pitch and slash it to any field. As his total of triples increased, with shots ricocheting all over the park, the Kansas City Royals fought the onslaught with four outfielders.

At 6-2, 205 pounds, Rice stands tall at the plate, feet apart, stance square, bat cocked just behind his ear, clutched tightly in gloved hands. He swings so effortlessly, that it's often hard to believe the way the ball bullets from the bat.

RICE'S ARE sleek, supple muscles at the disposal of a superior athlete (a 9.9-second 100-yard-dash man in high school, he was heavily recruited in both football and basketball). There may be baseball players who are stronger, but probably none who maximizes efficiency like Rice, with his timing, hand-eye coordination and uncoiling quickness.

His well-proportioned upper body tapers to a 31-inch waist. But he seems to generate his power with his wrists and enormous thighs. Several players say that in Detroit last season, Rice cracked a bat checking a swing with his wrists.

Slugging tales, like fish stories, are sometimes embellished with age. But here are a few the tell about Rice: -As a high school sophomore, Rice hit a line drive which carried 500 feet on the fly. Rice says he was stronger in the 10th grade than he is now. -At Fenway last year, Rice connected with a fastball thrown by Kansas City's Steve Busby, and the drive hadn't reached its apogee when it cleared the famous 37-foot high Green Monster wall and the net above it.

Late Boston owner Tom Yawkey said

500-footers," Harrelson said.

it was the longest ball he ever saw hit at Fenway. Yawkey owned the team for 43 years. -Last season, Rice hit a ball off the handle, splintering the bat, and it ended up in the seats 350 feet away. "That impressed me more than his

Barber still likes challenge of tour

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — At the age of 47, and a millionaire in 20 years on the pro golf tour, Miller Barber still enjoys the challenge, refusing to give in to the PGA's "Young Turks."

"I still have the desire to play," Barber said Thursday after firing a 5-under-par 66 to share the lead with Ben Crenshaw in the opening round of the $225,000 Pleasant Valley Classic.

"I still like to beat the young guys," he added. "I also feel I know more about the game than ever. I'll hang it up only when I lose that competitive

Barber, who has earned more than $1.4 million since joining the pro tour in 1959, carded an eagle and four birdies with only one bogey while sporting tape at the base of his left finger. He went out in 5-under 31 and came back in par 35.

"I played extremely well, for me," said Barber, who won the Phoenix Open earlier this year for his 11th tour victory. "You've got to drive the ball well on this course and that's the strong part of my game.

"I'm hitting the ball as far as I ever have. At least, I don't think I'm getting any shorter. I'm not getting any longer, either.'

Crenshaw, 26, made his pro debut on a sponsor's invitation here in 1973. He has gone on to win more than $675,000, but he's bidding for his first 1977 victory.

"It was a nice and comfortable round," Crenshaw said after his 32-34-66 in the morning. "I made only one mistake, hitting three bad shots on the 16th, so it was a good solid round.

Barber and Crenshaw held a onestroke lead over Mark Hayes and defending champion Ray Floyd heading into the second round today of the 72-hole tournament, worth $45,000 to the winner.

Floyd, who called the course "shoddy" after the pro-am event Wednesday, said "playing conditions were better." He added with a grin: "I think I've found a course I can

Guidry wins 16th with three-hitter

By The Associated Press

"I don't know where you'd find a better arm. If you went looking for the best arm you could find, that's the one you'd settle for."

That was Manager Bob Lemon speaking about Ron Guidry, the New York Yankees' ace left-hander. And Lemon should know what he was talking about.

Not only is he a Hall of Fame pitcher, but Lemon tried to acquire Guidry last year when he managed the Chicago White Sox.

Lemon was the Yankees' pitching coach two years ago when Guidry was a seldom-used rookie.

"I knew he was a great prospect," Lemon said Thursday night after Guidry boosted his record to 16-2 with a three-hit 9-0 shutout over the Mil-waukee Brewers. "When you saw that arm, you had to fall in love with it."

A year later, the Yankees were after Chicago shortstop Bucky Dent and eventually surrendered outfielder Oscar Gamble and two minor league pitchers. But the one Lemon really wanted was Guidry.

"I tried to get him in the Dent trade," said Lemon; "but we couldn't work it out."

Then came the strange turn of events that saw Lemon fired by Chicago in June and hired by the Yankees last month. In his debut as manager of the Yankees, Guidry shut out Kansas City.
"I'm glad I didn't get him," Lemon

said in his best Yogi Berra imitation, 'because now I've got him."

In other American League games, the Boston Red Sox edged the Cleveland 6-5 in 13 innings, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Kansas City Royals 3-2, the California Angels trounced the Oakland A's 16-5 and the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the White

three-hitter. "Warming up, I didn't feel especially quick," he said. "But nobody's up there swinging, so you can't tell if your fast ball is running or if it has any zip. When the game starts, then you know.'

When the game started, the Brewers knew. Guidry retired the first 12 batters, striking out seven, and didn't allow a hit until Robin Yount doubled leading off the sixth.

"When you start like that, it helps you because it puts their batters more on the defensive than anything else," Guidry said. "They know you're throwing hard and they can't go up there just whaling away.'

Rick Burleson's single capped a two-run rally in the bottom of the 13th inning. Burleson's smash caromed off shortstop Tom Veryzer's glove and Gary Hancock, running for George Scott, who had doubled, raced home. The Red Sox tied the game earlier in the inning when the leadoff batter, Butch Hobson, was safe when first baseman Andre Thornton dropped his pop fly. Hobson continued to third and then home when catcher Bo Diaz threw wildly after fielding the ball.

The Red Sox trailed 4-1, but Fred Lynn hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Jim Rice tripled home the tying run in the seventh.

Orioles 3, Royals 2

Lee May, hitless in his last 10 trips, rapped a tie-breaking two-out single in the eighth inning after Ken Singleton tied the score with a two-run homer in the sixth. Doug Bird was charged with the loss even though he was removed before any runners reached base in the eighth.

It was all Reggie's fault, Martin continues to insist.

The fans, who find a kindred spirit in Billy the Kid's street fighter instincts and open defiance of the boss, quickly lined up with the contentious little skipper, treating him to a sixminute standing ovation at the Yankees' annual Old Timers' Game.

Cheers faded into jeers for Jackson, who hit three home runs in the clinching game against the Dodgers last October and who rapped another in his first time at bat in the Stadium this year, triggering a rain of "Reggie!" bars.

The fickleness of the fans was demonstrated in Wednesday night's game against the Milwaukee Brewers, won by the Yankees 8-7 on a

Automated sports writer must be resourceful

They changed the phone system and phone numbers at the Los Angeles Times for the first time since the days of the crank telephone the other day. It's all in the name of automation, but you'll pardon all of us ink-stained wretches if it makes us a little nervous, I mean, today the phones, tomorrow the staff. Nineteen-eighty-four is a little nearer. Big Brother is coming. If they automate the phones, when will they automate the stories? What will become of Hildy Johnson? Will Grantland Rice be made out of tin in the future? Damon Runyon a data bank? Richard Harding Davis just a lot of circuitry with a passport.

A computer programmed to crank out sports stories is just a couple of transitors away. Of course, it will have to be programmed. First, if they listen to us, it will have to learn a few basics. Such as the questions:

'What kind of a pitch did he hit?" must be asked of a pitcher who has just lost a World Series in the bottom of the 12th, 1-0. The computer must be programmed to duck as it asks it. Otherwise, the paper is stuck with the biggest hunk of scrap metal this side of the stretch at Indy.

THE COMPUTER will have to learn to enter the dressing room of a fighter who has just been carried in with (1) a broken nose (2) broken ribs (3) black eyes (4) dented Adam's apple which will make him sound like a ransom call the rest of his life (5) hemorrhages on both arms (6) blood trickling out of his ear (7) teeth trickling out of his mouth. It will have to ask: -"Did he hurt you at any time, Bat?" If the fellow is still conscious, or, at least alive, teach your computer to lean down and ask: "Would you like to fight him again?'

Your computer will have to learn to be resourceful. Look for the pithy quote even when you don't get it from the athlete. If a golfer shoots 80 and says, "I kept hitting it into sand traps," you quote him for the head-line, "Needed a Camel, Not a Caddy' Says One-Putt of His 80." The quote will make all the anthologies, and, within a week, one-Putt will think he actually said it.

Stories without quotes will be even easier. Just keep a stock of standing heads: "Rams Blow Super Bowl To Minnesota Again" is good any December. Even the story accompanying will just need blanks to be filled in: "The Los Angeles Rams blew their chances for the Super Bowl again this year when the Minnesota Vikings defeated them because of (choose one) a blocked field goal, intercepted pass, rainstorm, sunshine, heavy overcast, superior coaching, or, all six.'

And with baseball, remember that the fans like figures, and give them to them: "The Los Angeles Dodgers drew their 4 millionth fan, sold their 16 millionth hot dog, tapped their 5 millionth barrel of beer, sold their 3 millionth bobble-head doll and had their 2,709th straight overflowing parking lot yesterday. The message board saluted the 2 millionth sepuagenarian couple form Nepal, welcomed the 150,000 Rotary Club and announced that next Saturday will be 'Mafia Night,' with everyone carrying a violin case or horse's head to be admitted free.

BASKETBALL WILL be no problem. Keep this standing story: "The (leave blank name of franchise) today signed All-American center 'Treetop' Tarheeler, the all-time Atlantic Coast Conference scorer with 1,000 points a game, to a multi-year, no-cut contract believed to call for Rhode Island, parts of Wilshire Boulevard and the mineral rights to the Gulf of Mexico. The deal also includes his parole officer, the widow of the man he killed with a tire iron and the judge who invalidated the three previous contracts he puts his 'X' on and the playground director who taught him not to bite people on court.

Auto racing? Easy. Just remember death is a "mar" in auto racing. As in "Leadfoot Lonergan won the 57th running of the Fireball 500 today in a race marred by the death of ..." You just have to fill in the number of drivers and or spectators. In bullfighting, remember death is not a mar, it's a must. If the bull doesn't die well, he gets bad notices.

Don't worry about stats. Just feed your machine a daily diet of bubblegum cards and it will know more sports trivia than a Boston cop.

AFTER A YEAR or so on the beat, though, your machine will begin to act strange. It will keep its hat on in the office. It will begin to drink. It will begin to speak of the home team as "we." It will get sick of people asking, "What's wrong with the Rams?" It will start to complain about box lunches, the Ram offense, and the amount of space it gets for its story. Its mate may start to hope the home team doesn't make the playoffs so it can stay home for Christmas for a change.

And then will come the day when it will start to write about a mark being set for right-handed, half-Portuguese, half-Italian third basemen, about the "Z-outs" run by the tight ends, and it will start storing up nonwinning fractions in dual meets — and you'll know it's the beginning of the end. When it starts to write "Outlined against a blue-gray October sky..." or "Give me a handy guy like Sande ... " then you'll know it's time to go to the graduating class of Princeton and wait for the first kid out of English Lit. and say, "Do you know who Ty Cobb was?" And if he says, "Who?" grab him. You'll know you have yourself the perfect computer for the year 2000.

RICE'S ARE sleek, supple muscles

His well-proportioned upper body tapers to a 31-inch waist. But he seems to generate his power with his wrists and enormous thighs. Several players say that in Detroit last season, Rice cracked a bat checking a swing with his wrists.

Slugging tales, like fish stories, are sometimes embellished with age. But here are a few the tell about Rice: -As a high school sophomore, Rice hit a line drive which carried 500 feet on the fly. Rice says he was stronger

Jim Rice is study in contradiction

two games.

BOSTON - Though game time was two hours away, several hundred fans were clamoring in Fenway Park's center-field bleachers, his favorite target. As he dug in at the plate, the visiting Minnesota Twins quit playing catch or pepper to watch.

Boston's No. 14 swung easily at the first batting-practice pitch, but the impact resounded through the nearempty grandstand. Another souvenir streaked toward his fan club. Come one, come all, Jim Rice was flexing his muscles again. Twenty-five times he swung, and 23 times the ball hit the wall or the seats or disappeared toward the Massachu-including seven straight. Leaning on the batting cage, Boston manager Don Zimmer spat and muttered, "In all my years in this game (30), I've never seen a more awesome runs)." Yet, a few minutes later Rice returned to the clubhouse and began taking armloads of bats out of their wooden shelves and heaving them back in with a thunderous clatter. Heads turned. Rice smiled, The other players quickly returned to what they

"He's just blowing off steam," said Rice, the only person standing between himself and superstardom.

RICE IS a small-town product -Anderson, S.C. (pop. 40,000) - with enormous talent, pride and sensitivity. In three major league seasons, he's handled pitchers much more easily than life in the limelight.

Rice has become a study in contradiction, simple yet complex. He said he's "very, very moody - most power hitters are." Yet his coaches marvel that he has the most consistent disposition of any young player they've seen.

Rice complains that he doesn't get the publicity he deserves. Yet he's an increasingly uncooperative interview, snubbing reporters and complaining that he's often misquoted.

Rice said that being accepted by his teammates is a top priority. Yet some said he sometimes acts as if he's too good for them.

"He can be very boastful, very cocky," said Milwaukee's Cecil Cooper, a former Red Sox player who is Rice's closest friend. "He is very introverted and hard to get to know. He's very private and won't open up to strangers. A lot of times he gives you one impression, and he's just the

Some players say Rice has a "mean streak." Yet he spends much of his free time visiting children in hospitals or holding autograph sessions aound town without charge. When asked if hitting a homer is the best feeling he knows, Rice snapped, "I'd much rather make a kid happy than hit a home run. If you're power hitter, you know that eventually you'll hit one out. But how many kids can you make

RICE IS among the leaders in homers with 25. Yet he said he's prouder of his batting average .305. He said his power is "a gift, totally natural." Yet former Red Sox star Ted Williams says that Rice is "the most dedicated hitter in baseball. He's the only guy I've ever seen who practices hitting as much as I did."

Rice's lawyer, Tony Pennachia, wants to make Rice the highest-paid player in all of team sport, raising his present $125,000-a-year contract to over $800,000 (he has one year remaining, plus an option year). Yet Rice said: "I don't want to be the highest paid. The more you're paid, the more they (the fans) want you to do. The more they get down on you. Look how they were on Lyman Bostock's case (the Angels' free agent outfielder). I don't want that."

When Jim Rice is hot, there's nothing like him this side of Cincinnati's George Foster.

MINNESOTA manager Gene Mauch, never frivolous with praise, said: "What he is is scary. There's just no ballpark built to hold him. You take his pull field away (pitch him outside) and he'll put you away in the opposite direction. Awesome strength. Just awesome. And he knows how strong he is and doesn't try to muscle the ball. "I've been going to ballparks for 35 years, and they point to where Ruth hit and Foxx hit one. Well, pretty soon they'll point to where Rice hit one."

Rice hit .309 with 22 homers in his rookie year, tailed off to .282 but hit 25 more in '76, then served notice last season: .320 with 206 hits (the first Red Sox player over 200 since Johnny Pesky in 1946). And he led the league in homers (39), slugging (.593), total bases (382, the most since 1940) and extra-base hits (83). Besides homers, Rice is leading the majors this season in slugging (.605) and triples (15).

The statistics, of course, indicate that Rice is a hitter, not just a slugger. A right-handed batter, he doesn't have the long, classic home-run uppercut of Reggie Jackson or Dave Kingman. Rice's is a short, level stroke which produces as many line drives to right as towering drives to left. His hair-trigger rip allows him to wait on the pitch and slash it to any field. As his total of triples increased, with shots ricocheting all over the park, the Kansas City Royals fought the onslaught with four outfielders.

At 6-2, 205 pounds, Rice stands tall at the plate, feet apart, stance square, bat cocked just behind his ear, clutched tightly in gloved hands. He swings so effortlessly, that it's often hard to believe the way the ball bullets from the bat.

at the disposal of a superior athlete (a 9.9-second 100-yard-dash man in high school, he was heavily recruited in both football and basketball). There may be baseball players who are stronger, but probably none who maximizes efficiency like Rice, with his timing, hand-eye coordination and uncoiling quickness.

in the 10th grade than he is now.

-At Fenway last year, Rice connected with a fastball thrown by Kansas City's Steve Busby, and the drive hadn't reached its apogee when it cleared the famous 37-foot high Green Monster wall and the net above it. Late Boston owner Tom Yawkey said it was the longest ball he ever saw hit at Fenway. Yawkey owned the team for 43 years.

-Last season, Rice hit a ball off the handle, splintering the bat, and it ended up in the seats 350 feet away. 'That impressed me more than his 500-footers," Harrelson said.

Kicks kick Tulsa in NASL playoffs

"We was robbed," cried the Tulsa Roughnecks. "Bring on the Cosmos," yelled the Minnesota Kicks.

The contrasting atmosphere of the two locker rooms was obvious following Minnesota's fiercely contested 3-1 North American Soccer League playoff victory Thursday night before 36,-478 fans at Met Stadium.

The triumph vaulted the Kicks into the National Conference semifinals against defending NASL champion New York next week, while Tulsa was eliminated from further competition.

'What happened out there was a travesty," said a distraught Noel Lemon Tulsa general manager. "The d-be ashamed of itself for letting that happen. I think the league wanted Minnesota and New York in the playoffs before the game even Lemon's anger stemmed from two goals that were disallowed by referee John Davies. Tulsa had one apparent goal taken away at 51:00 when it was called for pushing in the crease with the score knotted at 1-1.

Then, with the Roughnecks trailing 2-1 and less than nine minutes remaining in the game, another goal was disallowed when Tulsa was ruled

"The officiating was horrendous out there," said Lemon. "We asked the league to change the officials two days ago because we had trouble with them before up here, but they

Meanwhile, the Minnesotans were jubilant after beating the team that had defeated them twice during the regular season. And no player was happier than Alan Willey, who scored two second-half goals.

"We played probably the best we have all season in the first half," he said. "We'll definitely be ready for New York now. They've been beaten five or six times this year and we should have beaten them up here. "If we beat New York we'll go all

Ron Futcher, starting at striker in place of the injured Charley George, scored at 28:03 to give Minnesota a 1-0 lead, but Tulsa tied it three minutes into the second half on a superb, overhead scissors shot by Billy Cas-

Then came Willey's two goals, and the pair of non-goals by Tulsa, which had the Roughnecks' bench so irate two substitutes - Darryl Wallace and Billy Gazonas - were ejected.

"Tulsa protested everything," said Minnesota Coach Freddie Goodwin. "The pitch (field), the weather, the time and day of the game. They should be ashamed of their behav-

Bouton may have earned another shot at majors

ATLANTA (AP) - No longer a publicity gimmick, Jim Bouton's summer of content at Savannah may have earned the best-selling author another crack at the major leagues. Armed with determination and a knuckleball instead of the fastball that earned him the nickname "Bulldog" during the 1960s with the New York Yankees, the 39-year-old Bouton has baffled his detractors and Southern League hitters in chalking up a 9-6 pitching record.

"I feel I have proven myself," the former World Series hero said Thursday of his record with the Class AA Savannah Braves.

"I didn't want to get called up right away," Bouton said in a telephone interview. "I didn't want to be a gimmick. I didn't want it to appear as a stunt. I wanted to earn my chance. That's why I'm glad I was sent down to the minor leagues and allowed to pitch a lot.

'But now, I've had 16 starts and 12 of them have been real good. I feel that now I'm one of their best pitching prospects.

Bouton, author of the best-selling book "Ball Four," was referring to the National League Atlanta Braves and owner Ted Turner, who signed the right-hander in May after Bouton pitched batting practice for the Braves' Richmond, Va., farm club for

"I'm ready to pitch in Atlanta or anywhere else," said Bouton, who last pitched in the major leagues eight years ago. "I really believe that I deserve a shot. I've proved I could win. I've shown that my age isn't a factor because I've won after allnight bus rides, pitched extra inning games and pitched nine complete games." The record bears out the controversial Bouton, who gave up a job as a sportscaster for a New York City television station and sold his New Jersey home for a smaller one to concentrate on his comeback.

After 16 starts, Bouton owns nine complete games and an earned run average of 2.73.

"Like I said at the beginning of the season, if Hoyt Wilhelm could throw knuckleballs at 49, then anybody in good shape should be able to do the same thing," said Bouton, who is in excellent shape at 5 feet 10 and 165

"I feel I-have the potential to pitch in the big leagues for 10 more years," said Bouton, who claims he is not upset at remaining in Savannah despite his success.

"No, I'm not disappointed. I said at the beginning that part of the satisfaction comes just from playing baseball and that I would be fulfilled and happy just to come back," he said. "I don't care when I'm called up, although the sooner the better. All I want is a chance. That's all I've been asking for ever since I started this whole thing," said Bouton.

But he doesn't want to step on any toes in getting there.

"I don't want to put anybody on the spot. Ted Turner gave me a chance and I really don't want to put him on the spot," said Bouton. "We all want to make the major leagues and when it gets as close as you can see it right in front of your face, it's hard not to expect. But if I do, I'd say it's not a gimmick. I've proven myself."

WACO, Texas (AP) — North Hous-ton National and Lake Jackson will meet at 8 o'clock tonight for the Texas Little League championship and the right to advance into next week's Southern Regional tournament at St. Petersburg, Fla.

North Houston National eliminated Houston Braes Bayou 9-6 in extra innings Thursday night, while Lake Jackson won its berth in the finals with an easy 14-2 triumph over Gregory-Portland.

Saturday's Dallas-Denver rematch shapes up as matter of pride

DENVER (AP) — A Super Bowl grudge match? No. But not just another preseason game

Saturday's National Football League clash between the Dallas Cowboys and the Denver Broncos shapes up as a matter of pride for most of the participants. And both coaches, while insisting it's important to get a look at their younger players, expect inspired performances from their players.

"The fact that it's a sellout, that it's a Saturday afternoon game on national TV and the fact that we played each other in the Super Bowl will indicate that there is likely to be a little more fire," said Dallas Coach

"Naturally there's a little added incentive on the part of our players this week as Dallas did stop us from being world champions," said Denver Coach Red Miller.

Exasperating turnovers, many of them caused by a fierce Dallas pass rush, wrecked the Broncos' Super Bowl plans in New Orleans last January as the Cowboys walked away with a 27-10 triumph. The Broncos are out to prove they're a better team than that. The Cowboys are convinced the better team won and will do so again.

Still, neither coach has lost sight of the main objectives during the preseason.

"The important thing in a preseason game is to play well and improve," said Landry. "This one doesn't put a ring on anyone's finger.

Miller echoed those sentiments, saying that "both clubs are a lot more interested in getting ready for Sept. 3 than they are worrying about what happened last January."

While each team's starters will slug it out in the beginning, many new faces will make their appearances during the course of the game. For some, it will be their last. NFL teams must trim their rosters to 60 players next Tuesday, and both Denver and Dallas currently are carrying more than 70 players.

Landry plans few lineup changes. Second-year pro Andy Frederick will start at offensive right tackle in place of veteran Rayfield Wright, who is bothered by a knee injury. With Efren Herrera still refusing to report to camp, the Cowboys will continue to experiment with aspiring place-kickers.

Miller made five changes in his starting lineup from last week's 17-12 victory over Houston, including the insertion of Bill Bain at offensive left tackle in place of Andy Maurer. Rob-Nairne will open at an outside linebacker position, replacing the ailing Bob Swenson.

Texans lead Eagles to Houston

HOUSTON (AP) - Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil hopes his Eagles will be able to fly against the Houston Oilers in a National Football League exhibition game Monday night with a pair of former Texas collegiate stars at the running back positions.

Former Baylor great Cleveland Franklin will start at fullback and Wilbert Montgomery, who set a collegiate record 37 touchdowns his freshman year at Abilene Christian, will be the running back.

Philadelphia is 1-1 in exhibition play with a 17-3 victory over Miami in the Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio and a 14-7 loss to New Orleans last week in Mexico City. Houston lost its opener to the Denver Broncos 17-

"I believe he's going to be a class football player," Vermeil said of Montgomery, who led the National Football Conference in kickoff returns last year as a rookie. "I have a tendency to get too high on people I

"But right now everybody on the field is impressed with Montgomery including the defensive people who have to tackle him. He's picked up our system. Now there's less thinking and more reacting."

Franklin, an eighth round draft choice last season, carried the ball only once but has displaced starter

Mike Hogan as the starting fullback. "Cleveland Franklin will be tough to get out of the fullback spot," Verbut holy mackerel, everything Cleveland does is 100 per cent. He hasn't embarrassed himself yet." Vermeil and Oiler offensive line coach Joe Bugel both spent last week solidifying their lines. Vermeil has installed Dennis

Bugel expects his offensive line to contribute more than it did in the opener, when the Oilers gained only' 150 yards in total offense and got only two first downs in the first half.

Bugel said the offensive line wants to provide more running room for rookie Earl Campbell, who gained only 29 yards on 12 carries in his pro debut against the Broncos.
