Compromise Plea Greets Leaders To Mideast Summit

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Carter flew to this Marine-guarded Mideast summit site Monday, pleading for compromise and saying chances for complete success are very remote.

"Compromises will be mandatory," Carter said as he left the White House. "Without them, no progress can be expected. Flexibility will be the essence of our hopes."

He confirmed that the summit, which has no time limit and could go on for a week or more, will be held in extraordinary seclusion.

"I would say that we will be almost uniquely isolated from the press and from the outside world," Carter said. "My hope is that this degree of personal interchange, without the necessity for political posturing or defense of a transient stand or belief, will be constructive."

Carter Praises Leaders

Carter praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin for "their willingness to come when the political consequences of failure might be very severe, and when the prospects of complete success are very remote."

He said he is convinced both men want peace, but he offered a guarded outlook for the meeting.

Issues "Very Complicated"

"No one can ensure the degree of success which we might enjoy. The issues are very complicated. The disagreements are deep.

"Four wars have not led to peace in that troubled region of the world. There is no cause for excessive optimism, but there is also no cause for despair.

"The greatest single factor which causes me to be encouraged is my sure knowledge that Prime Minister Begin and President Sadat genuinely want peace. They are determined to make progress, and so am I."

As host to the unprecedented and politically risky summit, Carter was first to make the helicopter trip to this Catoctin mountaintop, 65 miles from Washington, that is best known as a presidential playground.

Sadat and Begin will be welcomed here by Carter on Tuesday afternoon. The summit gets underway formally on Wednesday.

Begin, Americans Meet

Begin was in New York City on this U.S. Labor Day holiday, meeting with American Jewish leaders and others.

Sadat was in Paris for talks with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. Diplomatic sources said Sadat was seeking French support for his Camp David negotiating position.

Carter prayed for peace on Sunday at a Bible school session at First Baptist Church, where he regularly attends services when in Washington.

"Let every heart involved be cleansed of selfishness and personal pride. Let us all turn to thee, God our father, for true guidance, wisdom, forgiveness of others, in the search for common ground," the U.S. president said.

Begin, upon arriving in New York City on Sunday, declared: "We want peace more than any nation on earth."

Sadat has described the Camp David conference as "a last chance" for a Mideast settlement — a position challenged by Begin, who has talked of it as a possible prelude to further, prolonged negotiations.

U.S. officials have contented themselves with expressing hope that Begin and Sadat will be able to make the compromises necessary to give new impetus to the stalled peace process.

To help them, the Carter administration has prepared dozens of options and proposals for possible compromises on difficult points.

Begin was accompanied on his half-mile walk by his military advisor, General Poran, left, and Begin's security guards. Later in the day Begin and his aides flew to Camp David where the Mideast summit will be conducted during the coming days. Playing principal roles will be Begin, President Anwar Sadat of Israel and President Carter. (AP Laserphoto)

Hurricane Ella's Fury Aimed At Newfoundland

A-J News Services

HURRICANE Ella increased her threat on Newfoundland late Monday as the storm moved northeast across the north Atlantic at 45 mph, heading for Cape Race.

A hurricane warning was issued for southeast Newfoundland at 8 p.m. Monday (CDT). The National Weather Service reported winds reaching about 140 mph over open water and gales extending 175 miles to the east and south and 50 miles to the northwest of the storm's center.

A gradual weakening of the hurricane was expected as it continued to move over colder water.

Meanwhile, tropical storm Flossie, the sixth storm of the season, continued to strengthen and is likely to reach hurricane strength by today.

Flossie Moving Westward

The storm, which had been centered halfway between the west coast of Africa and the island chain that rims the eastern Caribbean Sea, began to move west at 15 mph late Monday. With winds estimated at 55 mph, the storm should resume a course toward the west-northwest today.

Disturbances of another sort plagued northern California, as a widely felt earthquake shook the area 15 miles southeast of Lake Tahoe at 3:54 p.m. The quake reached 5.3 on the Richter scale, as recorded by the U.S. Geological Survey at Golden, Colo.

In Texas, heavy thunderstorms which roamed over most the state, including the Lubbock area, caused some damage Monday afternoon near downtown Dallas. No serious injuries were reported.

Dallas Twister Spotted

A possible tornado and high winds in the industrial section northwest of the central business district in Dallas, just 10 miles west of Texas stadium, blew a billboard onto a grocery store roof, causing the owner to receive a minor blow to the head.

Other damages in the storm included two trailers for semi-tractor rigs overturned, several aluminum building twisted into wreckage and a 10-foot section in a cinderblock building knocked out when a delivery truck was blown into it.

Power lines and trees also were knocked down in the industrial and southwestern residential area of Oak Cliff. The weather did not affect the Dallas Cowboys-Baltimore Colts football game scheduled in the stadium Monday night.

Slaton Sighting Unconfirmed

Unconfirmed sightings of funnel clouds near Slaton at 3:30 p.m. brought no reports of damage. The National Weather Service, however, posted a tornado warning for southeastern Lubbock County until 4 p.m. as stormy skies continued to build over the South Plains.

The afternoon and evening thunderstorms which threatened the South Plains and much of the rest of Texas Monday with funnel clouds, small hail, gusty winds and heavy rain, are expected to return to the Lubbock area today and Wednesday.

Forecasters are predicting a 30 percent chance for returning showers later today as winds blow southerly at 5 to 10 mph. Temperatures should remain in the upper 80s this afternoon and Wednesday, with tonight's low in the mid 60s.

A slight chance for thunderstorms generally producing less than 1/2 inch of rain and unseasonably warm temperatures are expected to continue over the South Plains through Saturday.

More Rain Forecast

Forecasters predict more widespread rain and thunderstorms across the state today including those areas near Tomball, San Angelo and Van Court where heavy thunderstorms roamed late Monday.

Near Lubbock, quick forming thunderclouds moved slowly across the South Plains Monday afternoon, stretching southeasterly about 100 miles from the Hub City, north to Plainview, and formed some isolated clouds south and west of Lubbock.

Radar at the National Weather Service indicated the heaviest thunderstorm activity in Kent, Garza, Crosby, Floyd, Hale and Dickens County.

The heaviest rainfall amounts reported in the area Monday were an inch at Plains and .75 of an inch in Dickens.

Rainfall totaling .25 of an inch was reported at Floydada, Petersburg, Tahoka and Wilson.

Traces of moisture were reported in Andrews, Crosbyton, Hale Center, Jayton, Lamesa, Littlefield, Lockney, and Matador.

Showers also were reported in Post, Ralls and Slaton.

GSA Probe Gets Carter Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter moved on Monday to emphasize that the burgeoning investigations of the General Services Administration will go after whatever high officials have been involved in corruption and fraud.

Carter held a surprise Labor Day meeting with Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti and GSA Administrator Jay Solomon, just before the president left for Camp David to prepare for the Middle East peace summit.

Solomon and Civiletti said Carter reaffirmed his support for the probes into allegations of bribery, fraud, corruption and theft at the $5 billion-a-year agency that is the federal government's main landlord and supply house.

Civiletti said after the meeting that the investigation will be pursued wherever it leads.

"No One Is Exempt"

"No one is exempt from the investgation at all — either inside or outside of the government," he said.

A White House official who asked not to be named said Carter wanted to signal to possible witnesses in the scandal that they should implicate whatever high officials are involved.

"This thing is getting to the point where some high officials are involved, and some people are uncertain whether to name the bigger fish," the official said. "Some people apparently thought that this was all going to go away, and they could keep their mouths shut. Well, it's not going to go away."

Indictments Expected

Solomon said he briefed Carter on the last month of activities by the various probes into GSA wrongdoing. Solomon said last week as many as 50 people would be indicted in the scandals.

"We wanted just to appraise him of everything that was going on ... no specifics, just in generalities and so he would feel comfortable that we were pursuing the investigation," said Solomon, who was on a hiking trip in the Shenandoah Mountains when the White House called for the meeting.

"I think it's very important to have the backing of the White House. I've had it all the time," he said.

Civiletti said that the investigators would not be afraid to probe the activities of anyone, including Robert Griffin, who was fired by Solomon as deputy GSA administrator and then given a job by Carter in the office of Special Trade Negotiator Robert Strauss.

"We wouldn't be afraid to pursue Mr. Griffin or anyone else involved in activities that we thought we had grounds to investigate," Civiletti said.

But he refused to comment on whether Griffin was being investigated, saying he would not discuss any person in particular.

Both Solomon and Carter have said there have been no allegations of wrongdoing against Griffin.

Monday's meeting was unusual not only because it came on a holiday, but because Carter scheduled it just 90 minutes before he left by helicopter for Camp David.

The allegations under investigation by several grand juries, the FBI, U.S. attorneys across the country and an internal GSA task force are varied, ranging from simple theft to complicated contract rigging and bribery.

There have been allegations of theft and fraud at GSA self-service stores, where other government agencies obtain office and other supplies. Another probe is aimed at vendors who supply less goods to the stores than contracts call for

$29 Million Raised By MD Telethon

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I doed it! I doed it!" Jerry Lewis screamed Monday after soliciting pledges for a record $29 million to fight muscular dystrophy.

The money was promised during Lewis' 21 1/2-hour annual Labor Day telethon, which began Sunday evening and ended late Monday afternoon.

Lewis' spokesman Horace Petzall said pledges totalling $29,074,405 were phoned in to the regional television stations that carried the telethon, topping last year's $26,841,419.

(The South Plains area also set a record and exceeded its goal with residents contributing and pledging in excess of $137,331.)

(The total surpassed last year's contributions totalling $135,644.)

(Lubbock residents gave $49,938; Abernathy, $618; Brownfield, $2,604; Crosbyton, $577; Lamesa, $34,091; Levelland, $31,444; Littlefield, $1,555; Muleshoe, $1,963; Plainview, $4,922; Post, $1,472; and Tahoka, $908.)

About 100 stars joined Lewis to raise the funds, Petzall said, including entertainers Paul Anka, Patty Duke and her husband John Astin, Tony Bennett, Sid Caesar, Vicki Carr, Ray Charles, Sammy Davis Jr., Mike Douglas, Robert Goulet, Lou Rawls, Buddy Rich, Keely Smith, Sally Struthers and Sara Vaughn and sports celebrities Joe Frazier and Wilma Rudolph.

Petzall said a Farmington, Conn., man, who ran 2,525 miles to raise money for Muscular Dystrophy research, flew to Las Vegas to join Lewis on the air Sunday. Andy West began his journey in northern Main on July 1 and arrived in Marathon, Fla., Saturday — 64 days and seven pairs of running shoes later. West estimated he raised between $80,000 and $100,000.

Stars, 'Worst' Films Take Lumps In Book

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — According to a couple of teen-aged movie buffs, "Airport 1975," was among the 50 worst films of all time. So was "The Omen," and Bing Crosby's "Say One For Me," was right up there with "Godzilla Vs. The Smog Monster."

It's all in a soft-cover coffeetable sized book appropriately entitled "The Fifty Worst Films of All Time (and how they got that way)."

Gregory Peck, Richard Burton, John Wayne, Crosby and other biggies take their lumps from the co-authors along with a list of deserving unknowns. The pair, who vanquish their victims with broad humor, may be the most self-punishing movie fans in the history of cinema.

2,000 Films Endured

They went through more than 2,000 forgettable films from libraries at UCLA, USC, The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and Twentieth Century-Fox for their research.

Harry Medved, 17, and Randolph Dreyfuss, 19, are cousins and the reader is informed that duringf the preparation of the book Dreyfuss provided the transportation because Medved wasn't old enough to drive.

John Wayne's "The Conquerer," the story of Ganghis Khan, made by Howard Hughes, was among the great flops of Hollywood. The authors add considerable insight to each film, including how it was made, why, how mluch it costs and how much is profited.

"The Conquerer," for instance, was made for $6 million, grossed $4.5 million, but made up for the loss in overseas sales.However, Hughes fell in love with his project and eventually shelled out $12 million to buy all the prints so no one else could see it.

"For 17 years no one in the world was allowed to see the film except Hughes himself," the authors say. Then Paramount bought the rights to reissue it.

Wayne's idea, Medved and Dreyfuss said, was to have the film premiered in Moscow. But after a screening at the Russian Embassy in Washington, Russia banned it.

Fifty Worst Films gives a better insight to Hollywood's past than many more serious books because it gives the story be-

Pickup Points South Of Loop Sought For Direct Busing

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE LUBBOCK Independent School District is enlisting the help of churches and parents so that three "direct route" bus stops can be established south of Loop 289 for elementary children involved in court-ordered desegregation.

Currently students who reside south of the loop must report to schools immediately inside the loop — such as Williams, Murfee or Parsons elementaries — before they can catch a bus to their eastside "sister schools."

Superintendent Ed Irons said the district hopes to remedy that inconvenience by providing direct transportation between the city's far south side and eastside sister campuses.

Three Locations Needed

"We are looking for three pickup points south of Loop 289 — perhaps churches, or a community center or some kind of business establishment," Irons said.

"These would be places that students who are being reassigned for integration purposes, could gather in the morning to wait for their bus and could be dropped off in the afternoon," he said.

"Having bus stops south of Loop 289 would help out tremendously. This would save a great deal of time and trouble for families who live outside the loop."

Irons said he'd like the pickup points to "have some kind of shelter for children in case of rain or bad weather." He suggested that church facilities may be the most suitable.

"We would not necessarily have to have a building, though that would be nice. At the very least we need some type of cover," Irons said.

Parent Volunteers Wanted

He said he also is looking for parent volunteers to supervise the bus stops. "This would be an excellent opportunity for parents to help us out," Irons said.

Lubbock's Opportunity for Our Kids (LOOK), a desegregation transition group, is helping conduct the search for bus-stop facilities and the recruitment of volunteers, Irons said.

He said the new bus routes will be initiated as soon as arrangements are made for the pickup points.

The three elementary attendance zones involved are Williams, which is sending fifth-graders and sixth-graders to Posey Elementary; Murfee, which is sending fifth-graders and sixth-graders to Wheatley; and Parsons, which is sending third-graders and fourth-graders to Martin.

Large Subdivisions Involved

The Williams, Murfee and Parsons attendance zones include large subdivisions south of Loop 289. Each school is sending 140-180 students, approximately half of them residing south of the loop, to the designated sister schools.

Ordinarily the school system provides only school-to-school transportation under the integration plan. But the new routes have been proposed because of the distances and traffic barriers in the Wil-

Violence To Sweep Managua, Official Forecasts

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaraguan Red Cross President Ismael Reyes said Monday he expects violence to sweep from the countryside into the capital as anti-government groups step up their drive to oust President Anastasio Somoza.

"We understand things will explode at any time," he said. "We are laying out medicine, building 20 emergency centers. We believe what is going to happen in Managua will be much worse than in other parts of the country."

The government apparently is receiving similar reports. It announced Sunday that 500 civilians were being added to the forces patrolling Managua streets. They were patrolling in 100 vehicles pressed into service from various government agencies.

The government said Sunday night it had arrested more than 200 opposition leaders in Managua on charges of planning demonstrations.

There were widespread reports of new arrests Monday, including those of members of the Broad Opposition Front.

The front called Aug. 24 for a general strike aimed at toppling the government. The strike has met with mixed success. It is strongest outside Managua, and in some communities 90 percent of the businesses are reported closed.

The Managua Chamber of Commerce, which supports the strike, said 78 percent of the businesses in the capital were closed.

The chamber bases its survey on shopping centers. Gas stations, most banks, government offices and the open-air market remained open.

The government withdrew the chamber's charter after it joined the strike last week.

The Somoza family has ruled Nicaragua since the late 1930s. The current wave of violence and strikes followed the takeover of the National Palace by members of the Marxist Sandinista National Liberation Front late last month.

The guerrillas, seen as heroes here by many, demanded and got freedom for political prisoners and safe passage to Panama for the prisoners and themselves in exchange for the release of the hostages in the palace.

The Nicaraguan Development Institute reiterated support of the strike and said its vice president, Jose Francisco Teran, had been taken by the national guard, Nicaragua's 7,500-man army and police force.

The institute, representing 700 leading industries and executives, said that by staying in power, Somoza is forcing many to turn to leftists advocating violence and abolition of free enterprise as the only alternative to his rule.

The institute called for a democratic government that would implement "social, political and economic reform oriented toward improving the living conditions of the Nicaraguan people."

A source at the Banco Nicaraguense, one of the country's largest banks, said 800 employees met with the bank president to tell him they wanted to join the strike. "He pleaded with us to wait to see if other banks would join, but we told him we planned to join anyway," the source said.

The bank was closed Monday morning.

Thousands Homeless, 63 Dead As Monsoon Rains Deluge India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's summer monsoon rains struck with a fury this weekend, swelling rivers over their banks in seven northern states and forcing hundreds of thousands to flee their swamped villages.

Thousands of persons were unaccounted for near Calcutta in West Bengal, the worst hit state. Jyoti Bosu, chief minister of West Bengal, denied reports that 15,000 persons had been washed away there, but said, "It is one of the greatest disasters."

Authorities confirmed at least 42 persons drowned or killed by collapsing houses in West Bengal, where water was reported up to 20 feet deep. Sixty-three flood-related deaths were reported over the weekend in the Himalayas near Simla.

Relief officials reported many survivors in West Bengal perched on housetops and in trees.

Cholera was reported in the state's Midnapore district west of Calcutta. The United News of India said patients were being treated on the roof of the area hospital because the ground floor was under water.

The monsoon has killed more than 800 and affected 1.8 million in some way since it started in June. About 10,000 homes have been reported destroyed.

Police and army units evacuated tens of thousands of residents from low-lying areas of the national capital district of old and new Delhi, both threatened by the fast-rising Yamuna River. The river has flooded dozens of villages in Haryana and Uttar Pradesh states to the north.

Indian air force helicopters were operating in Haryana, west of Uttar Pradesh, and other states, dropping food and supplies to stranded villagers. In Orissa state, on the Bay of Bengal, about 750 marooned communities are dependent on the airdrops, the United News of India said.

Delhi municipal officials have asked about 200,000 refugees to shift to relief camps set up in schools and stadiums in the capital area. Many camps provide tents and drinking water but lack electricity and basic sanitation facilities.

Irrigation minister S.S. Barnala, making a tour of stricken parts of the capital, said flooding would reach a critical stage early Tuesday.

"It's much worse than last year," Barnala told The Associated Press. "Large areas are being evacuated."

Several thousand residents of Jhangirpuri, about 13 miles north of New Delhi, fled Monday, taking what they could in trucks and horse-or tractor-pulled carts and moving to relief camps on higher ground.

Southwestern Bell To Vote On Strike

By CARRIE LINE CURTIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. here faces the possibility of a strike by members of the local chapter of the Communications Workers of America.

Sherry Lindsey, president of the local union, said members will take a vote tonight to determine whether the local members wish to strike. She added that the vote will be taken regardless of the outcome of a labor-union management dispoute in Corpus Christi.

Mrs. Lindsey said approximately 100 Corpus Christi telephone employees have been suspended in recent weeks for refusing to work enforced overtime.

Presidents of local unions in the San Antonio region met last week and found that enforced overtime was occurring in other Texas cities as well, according to Mrs. Lindsey.

Mrs. Lindsey said she will contact the union's District 12 office in Austin today to find out what the situation is in Corpus Christi.

The local union president said relations between the company and labor force have been strained recently, contributing to the possibility that local union members will vote to strike against the company.

Mrs. Lindsey said ill will between the company and its labor force locally was increased recently when she and Glenn W. Smith, union vice president, were suspended from their jobs for 10 days without pay.

Bob Dunbar, division manager for Southwestern Bell in Lubbock, said the management action stemmed from the union's activity in honoring a picket line July 26 at Bell's downtown headquarters.

The local CWA honored a picket line by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, who were striking against a non-union contract. One hundred-fifty CWA members honored the picket line.

Dunbar said the employees were suspended because "we considered it improper action on their part in keeping employees from coming to work at their scheduled times. In excess of 60 employeees were kept off their jobs, and that requires strong disciplinary action on our part."

Mrs. Lindsey said that contact with the union's office in Amarillo showed that some employees there had been suspended for refusing to work enforced overtime.

Mrs. Lindsey said the local union has about 800 persons working for Bell in Lubbock.

Dunbar said that the company has a contigency plan whereby management personnel will perform essential services if the union votes to strike.

Pair Sought In Abduction-Murder

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dozens of officers aided by a helicopter and an airboat combed through marsh 30 miles east of here Monday for two men who abducted a teen-age couple from a park and shot them, killing the young woman and severly wounding the boy.

Patrolman Gus Krinke said the two men, armed with a .16-gauge shotgun and believed to be fugitives from a New York state bank robbery, apparently shot their victims "just to keep them quiet."

A statement issued by the sheriff's office said it was possible that the men, described as in their mid-20s and dressed in olive drab clothing, already had stolen another car and escaped.

John Chantrey, 16, of suburban River Ridge, was in critical condition at a hospital after being shot in the stomach and hip and left for dead beside U.S. 90, the statement said.

The body of his companion, Rachelle Rees, 18 and from River Ridge, was found 300 feet away — shot in the shoulder and left leg. Her car was found abandoned nearby.

The area of the search was just east of the bridge over the Ringolets, a water channel connecting Lake Pontchartrain with the Gulf of Mexico.

"This is a salt marsh, primarily salt water on one side, fresh water on the other. It's knee-high marsh grass laced with a lot of bayous, ponds and lagoons," said a state police sergeant who asked not to be identified. "At best it would be near impossible for someone on foot to just walk through."

Chantrey and Miss Rees apparently were abducted in New Orleans' City Park, a mile-long patch of green in a residential area that is a favorite parking and cruising spot for young people.

Krinke said the incident began about 9:30 p.m. Sunday, when the two men were seen shooting at a Mercedes on a tree-lined boulevard near the park's golf course.

He said police believe the men were firing at their own car. The bullet-scarred Mercedes was abandoned on the street.

A check of license plates showed it was reported stolen and wanted in connection with a bank robbery in Mt. Vernon, N.Y., on Saturday, the St. Tammany Parish (County) sheriff's office said.

Krinke said detectives speculated that the two men made their way through the golf course and either came upon or flagged down the couple, who were in Miss Rees' 1975 car.

Olympic City Hitting One Snag After Another

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — This mountain village with one traffic light started out to stage a "human-sized Olympics." Now, with the games just 18 months away, the town is finding the project many times more expensive and more complicated than it imagined.

Although one motto of the games is "Olympics in Perspective," and although Lake Placid has experience at these things — it was host to the 1932 Winter Olympics — the overall costs have zoomed from initial projections of $80 million to nearly $150 million.

They could go to $200 million before the games start Feb. 13, 1980.

When the village was awarded the games in 1974, organizers pledged a "no frills" Winter Olympics, in contrast to other recent extravaganzas.

Now the Rev. J. Bernard Fell, executive director of the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee, is seeking more federal money. "There should be no scrimping," he says.

But "scrimping" is just one issue. Virtually every project is over budget. Some are four months off schedule. And the problems are many:

—Some simple plans have grown elaborate. Minor changes in the 1932 Olympic Arena were sought at first; now organizers want a new roof.

—General building costs are up. The construction budget could double, from $70 million to $140 million.

—The bureaucracy of staging the games has grown. Administrative costs could be $60 million — five times what was predicted at first.

—Transportation is a problem. Lawsuits have delayed widening the two-lane main road into Lake Placid. And there is a general plan — but few details — for busing 55,000 spectators a day around town.

—It will be January before organizers finish a plan to get 440,000 tickets to the general public. Another 110,000 will go to donors.

—And things could get worse. An early winter could shorten the construction season and throw a key building project, the ski jumps, so far off schedule that the games themselves might be jeopardized.

It seems unlikely, of course, that Olympic organizers, or the state and federal governments, which have already committed more than $70 million, would let anything jettison the 1980 Winter Olympics.

The governments pay much of the cost — for building and renovating facilities. Private contributions pay administrative costs. So far, the organizers — primarily local business figures and sports enthusiasts — still predict that they will find the money they need.

But Vernon Lamb, one of the host of local figures who worked for years to bring the Olympics back to Lake Placid, is uncomfortable.

"There's just a lot of little problems creeping in," he said.

One obvious problem is that the first cost estimates were too optimistic. Organizers say the single biggest reason is the soaring cost of labor and materials for construction.

When construction began, as many as 20 companies would bid for a contract. Most were right on or slightly below budget. Now, partly because of an upswing in construction activity elsewhere, some projects attract no more than one bid. And most are well over budget.

Then there are special problems. Take the ski jumps. Two concrete towers jut out of an Adirondack hillside, but work has been virtually halted since the spring, when the steelwork contractor went bankrupt.

Dominion Bridge Co. of Montreal was brought in to start building "in-runs" — the sloping extensions down which skiers speed. But this work is done in the open, and a bad autumn or an early winter would hurt. And with the project so far off schedule, workers will be earning plenty of overtime in any event. So federal officials say the projected cost has risen from $2.8 million to $4.5 million.

Organizers find the jumps especially worrisome because the International Olympic Committee requires all facilities to be used in Olympic-level competition before the games. Such a competition is slated for the jumps late this December, and they must be done then.

The cost overruns were admitted publicly in August, when the organizing committee announced it would need $18 to $20 million more from the federal government — above the $58 million appropriated.

New York State, which has committed $12 million to improving ski trails at Whiteface Mountain and refrigerating the bobsled run at Mount Van Hoevenberg, is likely to be asked for another $7-8 million.

Olympic officials have yet to itemize which projects need extra money, but the federal Economic Development Administration, which funnels federal funds to the Olympics, has made its estimates public.

It says construction, once pegged at $70 million and now estimated at $110 million, could climb to $140 million. It adds that the administrative costs could be even more troublesome.

In 1976, organizers estimated administrative costs at $11 million, in 1977 at $20 million, and now at $50 million. Federal officials say they could reach $60 million.

So far, the committee says it has raised $23 million toward that, some in donations of goods and some through sales of such things as television rights. Ticket sales of $10 million or more are expected.

But that is well below the total. Jack Wilkins, a real estate agent who heads the marketing committee, says the committee will find the money it needs. But David Bochnowich, who supervises the federal effort, isn't so sure. He says there may be a $12-25 million deficit.

All of which recalls Lake Placid's first Olympics.

In 1932, 332 athletes participated — one-quarter as many as the 1,200 estimated for 1980. They did it at a total cost of $1 million — miniscule next to the $200 million that the 1980 games may cost.

That $1 million, small as it sounds today, was still three times the original estimate of $330,000.

Greek Bishop Accused In Sex Scandal

By PAUL ANASTASIADES
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A sex scandal involving color photographs showing a 66-year-old Greek Orthodox bishop with an unidentified woman has shaken the church here. The bishop claims the pictures are forgeries but a government investigation says otherwise.

Ioannis Varvitsiotis, the government minister of education and religion, turned the pictures over to church officials and told the press about them, saying, "I consider it my duty to protect the standing of the church."

DENIES SCANDAL — Bishop Stylianos of Preveza, denied accusations brought by Ioannis Varvitsiotis, the government minister of education and religion, that he was involved in a sex scandal. The 66-year-old Greek Orthodox Bishop said the pictures, which supposedly show him with a woman, are a "forgery, blackmail, a communist plot," to undermine his position. (AP Laserphoto)

The case has made headlines here, aroused the bishop's parish in a drive to oust him and caused turmiol within the church hierarchy.

At the root of the scandal are color photographs purportedly showing black-bearded Bishop Stylianos of Preveza, in western Greece, having sex with an unidentified woman.

Church officials said the woman in the pictures apparently is a priest's wife or the wife of a Preveza notable whose identity is being protected.

The bishop claims the pictures are a "forgery, blackmail, a communist plot to undermine my position." He said they were forged by his former chauffeur, also a priest, demanding the equivalent of $6,000 in blackmail.

A church spokesman said an investigation by the State Criminal Research Department "proved beyond doubt that the pictures are genuine."

The spokesman said Varvitsiotis turned the pictures over to Archbishop Serapheim after they were certified as genuine.

Varvitsiotis did not say how he got the pictures.

The archbishop showed them to the Holy Synod, the 12-member governing body of which Bishop Stylianos was then a member.

"There were cries of horror from the bishops," the spokesman said.

Greek bishops are forbidden to marry and are vowed to eternal celibacy. Junior priests may marry and have children, but if they do, they cannot rise in rank.

Church officials said the bishop will ultimately go before a church tribunal and be defrocked if found guilty. The religious charge against him is "scandalizing the conscience of the Christian faithful."

The bishop gives a political explanation to the scandal. He suggests he is resented because he reached his position during the 1967-74 period of military dictatorship in Greece by allegedly supporting the dictators.

A new organization in his parish, the "Preveza Christian Fighters," circulated leaflets calling for his ouster, terming him a "porn-monger."

Some Greek newspapers demanded a "thorough investigation, purge and punishment of the scandal-mongers and criminals within the church." Others called for understanding of the bishops' physical needs and a reform of church laws.

Another prelate, Archbishop Serapheim, asked for a refrain from accusations prior to the outcome of the legal procedure. He said church prestige was already damaged enough.

The scandal is the latest of a recent series which have shaken the institutions of Greece's official state religion. These have mainly been sexual offenses but also include alleged embezzlement of the vast fortune the church handles.

The Greek Orthodox, or Orthodox Eastern Church, differs from the Roman Catholic Church mainly on the issue of papal supremacy, which the Greek church rejects.

The differences culminated in the excommunication of the patriarch of Constantinople by Pope Leo IX in 1054. The schism became official in 1439.

Couple's Voyage Stalled In Illinois

CHICAGO (AP) — Lucy and David Winton sought the freedom of the seas, and their dreams came true until they were locked out in Illinois.

The Boynton Beach, Fla., couple sailed their sloop Espirit in the Atlantic from Florida to New York and cruised up the Hudson River to the Great Lakes without a hitch.

After conquering the lakes, the mighty Mississippi River was next. Then they planned to glide into the Gulf of Mexico, the Caribbean Sea and back home to Florida before winter.

But the Wintons didn't count on the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The Corps has closed locks on the Illinois River at Marseilles, Dresden and Starved Rock for repairs until midnight Sept. 30.

The couple — he's 62, she's 58 — left March 15 and planned to be back home and back to work Nov. 15. If they wait for the locks to re-open, they say they'll be a month overdue.

They left their home with $4,000 and have $1,000 left. They could have the sloop trucked around the locks, but it would cost at least $800.

"That leaves us with $200 — not enough to get back," he said.

BIG PIG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Full-grown hogs commonly tip the scales at 800 pounds, but the heaviest on record was a pig in North Carolina that weighed 1,904 pounds, says the National Geographic Society. That is about the same weight as a Volkswagen Beetle, the society points out.

Secrets Not Secret Anymore

THE UNWANTED rebirth of wholesale invasion of personal privacy without any awareness on the part of those being victimized can be wrapped in swaddling clothes and placed on the doorsteps of Congress and the Supreme Court.

Acting without any court order, a federal law enforcement officer can pry through your personal financial records to identify your creditors, your doctor, your psychiatrist or even your favorite liquor store.

This unconscionable opportunity is provided by the Bank Secrecy Act, circa 1970. Among its lesser faults is a grossly misleading name, since it actually eliminated any vestige of secrecy by requiring commercial banks to make copies of the front and back of all customers' checks and deposit slips, and to retain those microfilm records for five years.

THE WELL-INTENTIONED law was designed to give federal investigators a valuable new tool in pursuing political corruption, drug trafficking, organized crime activities and other forms of white collar crime.

But it is applicable to all of the country's estimated 200 million checking accounts, most of them maintained by law-abiding citizens. The number of checks written (and photocopied) now exceeds 35 billion annually.

The law contains no standards for establishing access to checking account information. With no statutory requirement for the issuance of judicial warrants or subpoenas, "a person today has no protection from prying government agencies," says Rep. John J. Cavanaugh, D-Neb.

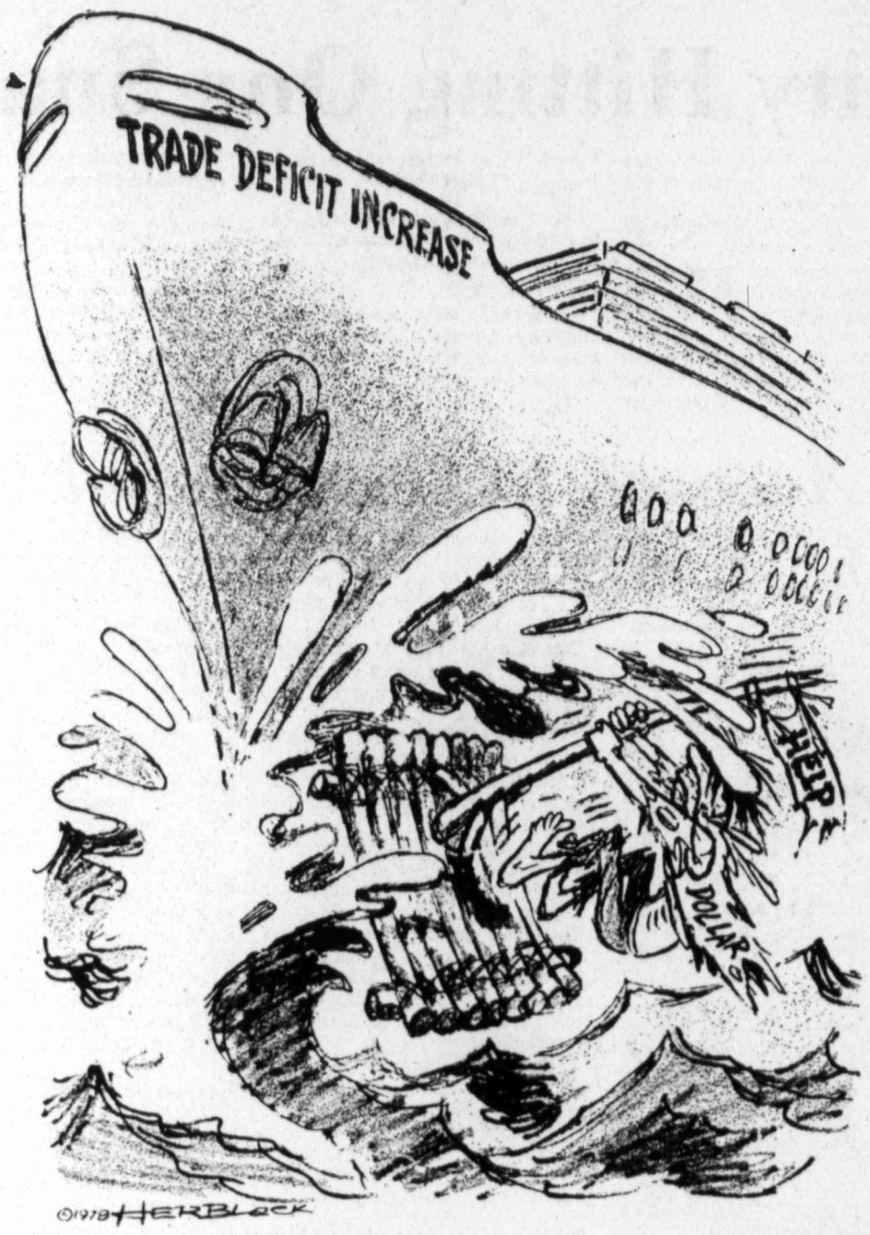
Robert Ellis Smith, publisher of Privacy Journal newsletter, claims there have been "numerous instances of past abuses of the law because federal agents have gained access to checking accounts in cases where there was not even the suspicion of criminal activity."

A 1976 COURT case defendant attempted to apply the same Fourth Amendment protection to cancelled checks held by a bank as those kept at home. But the Supreme Court ruled that bank customers had no "legitimate expectation of privacy concerning information kept in bank records."

Cavanaugh recently convinced the House Banking Committee to approve legislation requiring a federal agency seeking access to personal financial records held by a bank to first notify the customer of its intentions.

There are exemptions covering national security, grand jury proceedings and other sensitive criminal investigations.

It is important that Cavanaugh's proposal gains full legislative approval in the waning months of the current Congressional session. If a few individuals take unfair advantage of the law, the solution is to punish those few instead of denying every other citizen the right to privacy in the name of administrative efficiency.



AN EDITORIAL:

Enigma Wrapped In Mystery

ANATOLY SHCHARANSKY, Aleksandr Ginzburg and Vladimir Slepak are the names and stories in the headlines in this summer of discontent, e.g., Jewish dissidents denied permission to emigrate, defendants in current Soviet show trials sentenced to labor camps or internal exile.

Not to mention the issues in a diplomatic and propaganda duel between Washington and Moscow. But there is also another story that does not make headlines.

From January through July of this year, more than 13,000 emigrants left the Soviet Union. Almost all Jews, they are the latest in a continuing exodus that in this decade already numbers more than 150,000.

ISRAEL IS THE final destination of about half. The others scatter from Vienna, the point of entry into the non-communist world, primarily to the English-speaking countries.

No one—neither the emigrants themselves nor the various agencies which assist their resettlement—knows for certain why the Soviets permit the emigration.

Detente, as promoted during the Nixon administration, would appear to have been a factor initially.

But this does not explain continuation during recent, less diplomatically relaxed years. For the entire decade of the Sixties, authorized emigrants number only 10,000.

But beginning in 1971 with more than 12,000, there has been a sharp increase.

The approximate figures for succeeding years are 31,000 in 1972, 34,000 in 1973, 20,000 in 1974, 13,000 in 1975, 14,000 in 1976 and 17,000 in 1977.

Compared to the vast numbers who would like to leave the Soviet Union, the flow is a trickle rather than a stream. But it exists, and that is enough for those lucky enough to be included.

IT FLUCTUATES from year to year and week to week for reasons, if any, that are a mystery to the refugee agencies.

A slight fall off was noticed during the Shcharansky trial. But even with the current headlines, 1978 emigration only halfway through the year is approaching the 1977 total. The headlined show trials are real, and so is the unheadlined emigration.

What they add up to is another of Winston Churchill's Russian mysteries wrapped within enigmas, evidence again that occurrences in the Soviet Union rarely have a simple explanation, or are quite what surface appearances might suggest.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Struggle For Survival Has Only Just Begun

WASHINGTON—Every once in a while it's a good idea to stand back a bit and get an overview of what is happening to us in the struggle with the Soviet Union.

Such an overview, however, is often hard to come by. The thread of relevance that connects events in Nicaragua, Iran, Rhodesia, Vietnam and other trouble spots is not always apparent to the casual observer.

This natural confusion is intensified by the ideological murk arising from talk about "detente," "Eurocommunism" and other fashionable phrases allegedly describing shifts of mood or strategy in the relationship of East to West.

Cutting brilliantly through all of these confusions is a recently published study by Brian Crozier of London's Institute for the Study of Conflict ("Strategy of Survival," Arlington House).

CROZIER IS widely heralded as one of the leading strategic thinkers in the West, and it is easy to see from this incisive volume why he is so regarded.

The book is a magnificent statement of the issues facing the United States and other Free World nations in confrontation with the Soviets.

On Crozier's showing, all the non-Communist states have been locked in what he describes as "World War III" with global communism for upwards of three decades.

This war has been thrust upon us by the hostility of the Communists, who are committed by ideology and perceived self-interest to our destruction and who have not relented from that position in the slightest through any of the phases of the conflict.

CROZIER SHOWS the strategic connection among events in various sectors of the globe—the fall of China, war in Korea, the Berlin Wall, the Cuban missile crisis, the Vietnam struggle, the battle for control of Africa.

He argues that in all these cases the Communist and pro-Communist forces have been constantly on the offensive, while pro-Western forces have retreated in vacillation and confusion.

Far from relieving this problem, Crozier contends, the notion of "detente" has greatly intensified it.

The Soviets use the illusion of peaceful coexistence to get technology and credits from the West, plus a relaxation of Western vigilance which permits the Communist onslaught to proceed with even more rapidity.

RATHER THAN signaling a trend toward peace, as Westerners naively believe, "operation detente" is the culminating phase of the Communist drive for total victory.

Throughout this process, the Communists' motives and objectives are relatively plain.

And, despite occasional setbacks, the results from their perspective must be extremely gratifying.

The three decades analyzed by Crozier have seen a steady shrinkage of the non-Communist world and expansion of the Communist one, more or less in conformity with the Communist game plan: Eastern Europe, China, Cuba, Cambodia and South Vietnam, Angola and Mozambique—one by one they have been tumbled into Communist slavery.

FROM THE Communist standpoint, the whole procedure is perfectly rational. It is from our standpoint that things become difficult to understand.

Why we insist on acting as if the struggle is over when it is raging at its zenith; why we give material aid to the Communist war machine in the form of our advanced technology; why we continually attack our few remaining anti-Communist allies such as Rhodesia or Chile or Taiwan, are interesting questions psychologically.

Suffice it to say that Crozier's discussion shows all these attitudes to be mistaken and suggests our only hope of survival is to abandon them forthwith, inform ourselves about the nature of our enemy and mount a policy in intelligent resistance.

In that pursuit, there can be no better starting place than Crozier's own invaluable study.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Naval Battle Unroyal

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—President Carter's effort to put a short leash on his admirals has run into their determination to maintain U.S. naval supremacy against arms control pressures inside the administration.

Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, newly installed chief of naval operations, is caught in the middle. On Aug. 18, he gave verbal orders to senior officers not to speak out against the President's veto of the defense bill (which authorizes a new nuclear aircraft carrier of the Nimitz class.)

But those orders evoked such anger in the Navy that Hayward's private memo to flag officers a week later was an exercise in ambiguity which avoided clear support of the President.

In truth, the naval brass clearly support an override of the President's veto with nothing less at stake than naval superiority—not mere equivalence with the Soviet fleet.

The conflict resulted in peculiar circumstances attending the retirement of Hayward's predecessor, Adm. James L. Holloway III, two months ago.

Holloway, who advocates a nuclear carrier, was denied the visit with the President traditionally accorded to a military chief completing his term.

Even more revealing was Holloway's experience in making farewell remarks at Annapolis July 1. Submitting prepared remarks to the office of the secretary of defense June 28, the admiral was informed that five references to "maritime superiority" must be eliminated or softened.

AN AIDE TO Holloway snapped that Pentagon civilians would have midshipmen exhorting their football team to "tie Army" next year.

Holloway appealed the blue-pencilling, making clear he would talk about "maritime superiority" at Annapolis, with or without approval. Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense Tom Lambert rescinded all but one of the changes but insisted on keeping one.

Hayward had been no less an advocate than Holloway of naval supremacy and the nuclear carrier, but encountered new White House determination to leash the joint chiefs of staff.

That resolve hardened after the defense bill veto became a centerpiece of the President's campaign for political rehabilitation.

Accordingly, meeting with several assistant chiefs and other flag officers at the pentagon Aug. 18, Hayward supported the veto and ordered the officers not to help the override.

HIS MOTIVES seem clear: not to jeopardize White House backing for a conventionally powered (non-nuclear) carrier next year. Besides, the President's veto then seemed sure to be sustained.

But Hayward was rocked by criticism from naval officers over his capitulation to Carter just as support for the override was building in Congress.

The result was an Aug. 25 "confidential" memorandum from Hayward (signed "Tom") for eyes only of the Navy's flag officers. It is a masterpiece of obfuscation.

"Our fundamental goal at this point must be to preserve the momentum already obtained for the early authorization and funding of a follow-on carrier to replace (the) Midway," Hayward told his fellow admirals.

"MY POSITION HAS been, and remains, that we must start as soon as possible on a replacement for Midway, and that the replacement must be at least as capable as the ship replaced."

This delphic utterance falls obviously short of Defense Secretary Harold Brown's desire that a conventional carrier be endorsed.

Nor does Hayward's memo flatly instruct the admirals to stay clear of the veto override fight, saying instead:

"It is important that we refrain from any actions which could jeopardize the existing basic support for a follow-on carrier, or diminish our influence over decisions relating to it."

This could be interpreted as follows: if you lobby to override the veto, don't get caught!

ALTHOUGH HARD-NOSED admirals feel Hayward abandoned naval interests, it is doubtful whether he could do more under the intense pressure he faces—as when he attended the Armed Forces Policy Council meeting Aug. 28.

Deputy Defense Secretary Charles Duncan instructed all present to help sustain the President's veto (informing them they would be coordinated by Richard Moe, political aide to Vice President Mondale).

The admirals view such activity as incompatible not only with traditions of American naval strategy, as laid down by Adm. Alfred Mahan, but with Defense Department Directive 5100.1 instructing the Navy "to gain and maintain general naval supremacy."

In a difficult hour, Adm. Hayward's memo avoids violating that trust.

ANDREW TULLY:

Set 'Em Up, Joe

(Repeated by request)

WASHINGTON—Once upon a time, I did rewrite on a story out of Brooklyn about a saloon patron who shot and killed, in rapid succession, a woman, the bartender and himself.

As Mike Feeney told it by phone from the wilds of Utrecht Avenue, the patron had pleaded with the woman to stop playing the same song on the juke box.

She kept telling him to get lost. So he put an illegal hole in her head and when the bartender intervened disposed of that gallant with two bullets in the abdomen before taking himself out of the world.

NOW THEN. It must be remembered that this happened in the era of Perry Como, the Andrews Sisters and Frank Sinatra. Their stuff was mostly soft and low.

Anyway, God only knows what mass slaughter that impatient beer drinker would wreak in today's gin mills. After five minutes of suffering through the torture of rock, he'd be even money to take every last one of the customers with him and then head for the White House with a bazooka.

There was a time when a philosophical man could seek out the companionship of serious fellows over a dram of spirits in a quiet neighborhood bar. That time is dead.

It goes without saying that the juke box is civilization's greatest scourge since the enactment of income taxes.

I could tolerate this Frankenstein when it spewed forth pop music that had a tune, but the boniface who permits a salesman to install in his juke box records that sound like a fireworks display interspersed with frequent bursts of whining shrieks emitted by juvenile delinquents can strike me off his charge list.

I was lured into one of those living hells on a recent evening by a friend who promised the joint had no juke box and that the only sounds I would hear would be the gurgle of good whiskey transferring itself from bottle to glass.

THE FRIEND WAS wrong. The proprietor greeted us with the news he had just installed one of the monsters "by popular demand." We fled.

In short, I am one with a departed friend, a New York World-Telegram pal named Douglas Gilbert, known far and wide as a peerless critic of the times and connoisseur of literary hangouts with liquor licenses.

Gilbert once erupted in epic wrath when a mental midget kept feeding money into the juke box of a joint named Nick's.

He picked up his hat and made a little speech to the publican. "I am leaving," he said. "If I ever frequent your establishment again I will be carrying an axe with which I will forthwith chop that misbegotten box into tinder and feed it forcibly to your customers. Meanwhile, I shall pray that the atom bomb hits here, first."

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Give Me A Break

THE MOST EXCITING thing about the tax-relief bill that's floating through Congress isn't the $16 billion (and maybe more) it will let us squirrel away from the internal revenooers.

That's chicken-feed compared to what we'll save on the house gimmick.

For once (and name the last time Washington did us a favor) the boys on the Hill have come up with one great whoop-de-do of a tax break. A tax "bonanza" might be a better way to put it.

This one's not measured in thousands, but in tens of thousands. And, if it's passed into law, it will be available to any homeowner of any age who sells his house.

That's on top of the income-tax cuts passed by the House. They range (depending on your earnings and how many dependents you have) from $12 to around $1,000 and they are not to be sneezed at.

NEITHER ARE the proposed increases in the personal exemption from $750 to $1,000, nor the stretching of every tax level by six percent to help keep inflation from boosting us into a higher bracket.

But the biggest is the capital-gains exemption of the first $100,000 profit on the sale of the family homestead. It's a one-shot deal that would be good, retroactively, for any sale after July 26, 1978.

And I do mean "good."

Say you bought a house 10 years ago for $100,000 and sold it last week for $200,000. That gives you a $100,000 profit—on which you wouldn't have to pay a single penny of federal tax. That's a saving of at least $25,000.

If (and this isn't unheard of in these days of wildly inflated real estate) you sold the same house for $250,000, you'd still get your tax-free profit of $100,000, but you'd pay the usual capital-gains tax on the remaining $50,000.

THERE ARE A couple of strings on the proposal as passed in the House, but, compared to most government fine print, these aren't too bad.

For one thing, you have to have lived in your house for two of the three years preceding the sale. And it has to be your home, the one you live in. Not one you own as an investment and collect rent on.

This loophole could be used only once in a lifetime. You could apply it whenever you want to, but once you've used up the exemption, that would be it. If you made a bigger profit on a future sale, you'd be stuck with the regular tax bite.

It's almost too good to be true. And it isn't—yet. But the general word is that the Senate is 90 percent certain to pass it, with maybe a little minor hemstitching here and there.

IT'S OBVIOUS this is a whopping break for homeowners. What it will do to the economy depends on which expert you listen to.

Most real estate folks, needless to say, are ecstatic. They think it would encourage retired people to sell homes they've been rattling around in for years, but couldn't unload because their pensions wouldn't stretch as far as the capital-gain tax.

People over 65 get a special break already under present laws; they can exclude up to $35,000 of the sales price in calculating their profits. But here again, a lot of them feel that's not enough, that on a fixed income they still couldn't afford to get rid of the old place.

Mortgage firms are all for it. They figure this will make home-buying more attractive to a lot of young couples.

ESPECIALLY IF they're guaranteed higher profits when they're ready to sell.

But there are those who are afraid it might flood the market with so many houses at one time all real-estate prices will take a nosedive. If that happens, say other analysts, it won't be for long. They say the same tax inducement would also flood the market with buyers, which would send prices up again almost immediately.

Wall Streeters think it would be a shot-in-the-Dow-Jones for the stocks-and-bonds business. They, too, figure there are a lot of widows out there who're clinging to homes that are too big for them, but who haven't the spare cash to cover the capital-gains tax.

UNDER THE proposed law, they could use some of their profits to rent a smaller place and then invest the rest of their windfall in Wall Street.

The big worry is what the government will do to make up the $750 million it would lose every year in federal revenues. But that's only a small part of the $16-billion-plus tax cut picking up speed in the Senate. (Finance Chairman Russell Long says he's leaning closer to $20 billion.)

What they have in mind, no doubt, is more federal borrowing, which we all will have to pay for eventually in some form of "hidden tax." But with any luck, it wouldn't gobble up all our house profits, so we might still come out ahead.

Even a little bit would be a novelty.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

NOT MANY, if any, writers were more prolific than the late Edgar Wallace. He turned out 173 books in 34 years. Better than five books a year. That alone made him most unusual. But something else did, too.

His abhorrence of exercise. His intimates said he'd take a taxi rather than walk 100 yards.

How long would you guess it might take a piranha to eat a trout of approximately said piranha's size? The science boys tossed two such fishes into a tank to find out. The piranha polished off that trout—bones and all—in 25 seconds.

Official slogan of Hot Springs, Ark., is "We Bathe the World." Might be something to it. Many a racetrack visitor there has taken a bath, don't you know.

How do you make ink from mushrooms? It can be done. Lot of people in the days of the quill pen used mushroom ink.

Most of the sportscasters who toss off the word "zip" for "zero" aren't aware that the expression was likewise common about 75 years ago. It died out, then returned only recently. Zip is like neat and nifty. They come and go.

At a place on one street in Edmonds, Wash., there are "Duck Crossing" signs. About 18 inches off the ground. For the view of the ducks, presumably.

Local Lawmen Put Crimp On Labor Day Revelry

They may have been in front of bars earlier in the day, but several Lubbockites found themselves behind bars Monday as they attempted to make Labor Day a real holiday.

As the state's motorcide total eclipsed that of all other states early in the Labor Day weekend, Lubbock pedestrians and drivers were offering a clue, perhaps, as to why.

A 34-year-old laborer had luck on his side about 3:20 a.m. Monday, when police found him slumped behind the wheel of his car in the 3300-block of Duke Street.

As police approached the vehicle, it was obvious the engine still was running and the headlights were on. The driver allegedly was asleep at the wheel, his foot and weight pressed against the brake. Beneath his right hand, police said, was a .22-caliber pistol.

The man was arrested on suspicion of public intoxication and unlawfully carrying a weapon.

Police said they found four live rounds and two spent rounds in the weapon, which was seized.

About 25 minutes later, another 27-year-old suspect was offered a free ride to jail as he sought to relieve himself on the parking lot of a South Lubbock shopping center.

The suspect, standing outside his car with flashers operating, was arrested for public intoxication and indecent exposure.

At 4:10 a.m. Monday, a 56-year-old New Deal man was helped to the county jail, after he slumped against a light pole at Broadway and Avenue H, only a block away.

The parade to the pokey continued into mid-morning, when a 42-year-old car salesman was escorted to jail by officers, after his late-model Pontiac jumped a curb near the Lubbock Country Club and skidded across a cotton field.

Witnesses said they'd seen the man slumped over the wheel earlier, had noticed him driving erratically for some time and had attempted to alert the Department of Public Safety about the driver before the car left the road about one-tenth of a mile north of Yucca Avenue.

The suspect, who demanded a breath test, failed it.

Earlier, a teen-ager and two 20-year-olds got chauffeured service to the county jail, after they allegedly evidenced their drunkeness in the 2400-block of 10th Street.

Police responding to a report of three men in a car wielding a firearm, pulled over a 1969 Chevrolet El Camino.

A trio of young men, two of them brothers, were asked to exit and were patted down for weapons.

Just then, two young women approached and told officers the trio had made lewd advances toward them minutes earlier as the women walked down the street.

At one point, the women told police, all three men exposed themselves. After one of the trio reportedly pulled a rifle from the rear of the vehicle and yelled "I'll be there in a minute," toward the women, police were notified.

The young men were arrested on suspicion of public drunkeness and the two women were advised to file charges on the other complaints.

When, at 2:45 a.m., police asked the trio of men what time they thought it was, all three replied "about 11 p.m.," reports indicate.

Police also were called to the Health Sciences Center Hospital early Monday, where a 15-year-old Slaton youth apparently had overdosed on some kind of narcotics.

The youth, who reportedly got sick at his home, reportedly had tried to stab out his eyes with a pair of scissors and had tried to commit suicide "by unknown or imaginary means," police said.

The youngster reportedly had asked for a "dose of cocaine," police said, and had admitted smoking "cow weed" and drinking two large glasses of rum.

Officers were unable to interview him as emergency room staff worked on the patient.

An 18-year-old Lubbock clerk said a visitor had come to his apartment early Monday to visit the clerk's roommate.

When the visitor left, reports indicate, the man accidentally knocked down a "for rent" sign outside, invoking the wrath of a fourth man.

Though the victim told police the visitor had attempted to replace the fallen sign, the fourth man apparently was in no mood to ask any questions.

After knocking at the unwitting victim's door, the suspect reportedly punched the victim when the door opened. The suspect reportedly also carried a gun of some type and threatened to "blow (the victim) away."

The victim told police he went outside and replaced the fallen sign and attempted to explain to the distraught suspect what had happened. For his trouble, the victim said he was struck in the face again.

Police are investigating the incident.

In a pair of separate burglaries recently, break-in artists made off with an aggregate of property valued at $8,000.

Larry Vaughn, manager of an office at 4714 67th St., said burglars broke in between Saturday and Monday and made off with a calculator, a teleprinter, an AM/FM radio and three typewriters, property valued at $5,000.

Steven Riggs of Moore, Okla., told police someone broke into his truck Sunday or Monday, while it was parked in the lot at a South Lubbock motel.

Thieves took jewelry, a "dog crate," a lamp, guns, clothing, a CB radio, luggage and bed sheets. The assorted property was valued at $3,000.

While some Lubbockites were getting "potted" Labor Day, Ellen Wilson of 5401 12th St. was getting her potted plants stolen. Four of the plants, valued together at $60, were taken, she said.

Robert Thiel of 4509 18th St. said someone stole two tool boxes from his truck Monday, a haul he valued at $700 to $800.

Allis Robinson of 2303 10th St., apt. 20, said his $50 car battery was stolen Monday morning.

Burglars failed at kicking down a door at Perkins Music Co., 1320 Ave. Q, Monday, so they drove a vehicle into the door.

Once inside, the thieves took four guitars and $12 in change, inflicting a $652 loss on owner Clyde Perkins.

A paint spraygun and two electric saws were stolen from James Beck's garage recently. The Route 1 resident estimated his loss at $950.

Johnny Rodriguez of Slaton said someone broke into his home during his absence and swiped four guns, $200 cash, a checkbook and $275 worth of clothing. The total loss was more than $850, reports indicate.

A 14-year-old Lubbock girl told police she was raped by two black males while at a friend's house about 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

The girl said she was in the hallway of the East Lubbock residence, and her friend was in another part of the house, when she heard one of the suspects say, "Let's go rape her."

Police were told the girl was grabbed by one of the suspects, dragged into a bedroom and thrown on a mattress where she was raped.

The teenager said that after the initial rape, the other suspect came into the room and sexually assaulted her.

Reports show the girl was taken to Health Sciences Center Hospital where she was treated and released.

The girl described her attackers as in their mid-to late teens. Police juvenile authorities said Monday they had made no arrests.

In one of two recent shootings, a 35-year-old Lorenzo man was rushed to West Texas Hospital after being wounded about 2 a.m. Monday in front of a club at Broadway Street and Teak Avenue.

The victim, Francisco G. Ortiz, who was in satisfactory condition Monday at West Texas, said he was shot in the stomach by a man he had had past disputes with.

There had been no arrests Monday.

A 62-year-old Lubbock man was taken to St. Mary's Hospital Sunday afternoon with a gunshot wound in the head.

Answering a family disturbance call, police found Jesus Flores sitting on the front porch of a residence in the 2100-block of Duke Street bleeding from a head wound.

Following the 4:30 p.m. incident, Gonzales, of 2101 Emory St., was taken to the hospital where he was listed in satisfactory condition Monday.

Johnny Rodriquez of Slaton told sheriff's deputies $200 in cash, five guns totaling $385 and $275 worth of clothing were stolen from his home while he and his family were out of town between 10:30 p.m. Saturday and 7 p.m. Sunday.

Deputies also investigated Ruby Joyce Barnes' complaint that she was shot at about 9 p.m. Saturday while driving on FM 40. Mrs. Barnes, of Rt. 1, Box 57, Lubbock, said the shot shattered her vehicle's right window and caused her to run into a ditch.

A man later told authorities his 12-year-old son had done the shooting with a B-B gun as the result of a dare made by some of the boy's friends. No charges were filed.

Mike Ray Yeager said his room at the Travelodge, 714 Ave. Q, was burglarized between 11:45 a.m. and 8:15 p.m. Sunday and a television set, guitar and tape recorder stolen. Yeager estimated his loss at $550.

News Brief

C.B. Nowlin, 70, of Meadow was in serious condition Monday with injuries he sustained Aug. 25 in a two-vehicle collision about five miles south of Lubbock at Slide Road and Woodrow Road.

Sixth Union May Join News Strike

NEW YORK (AP)— Angered by unconfirmed reports that this city's three largest newspapers may attempt to publish despite a strike that has closed them for 27 days, a sixth union is expected to join the growing walkout, sources said Monday.

George E. McDonald, president of the coalition of newspaper unions here, has called a Wednesday night meeting of the Mailers Union, which he also heads. McDonald would not discuss the purpose of the meeting, but a source close to the situation said McDonald was furious at what he saw as management attempts to break the strike.

The source said McDonal planned to ask his members to join the five other unions officially on strike.

Word of the mailers' meeting circulated following reports that Rupert Murdoch, publisher of the New York Post, and the publishers of The New York Times and Daily News were seeking to make a deal with the newspaper deliverers union and had asked for police protection of trucks that would distribute papers printed by non-strikers.

The reports were vehemently denied by Douglas LaChance, president of the deliverers union, by Mayor Edward I. Koch and by Murdoch, and there was not indication that the three papers were gearing up to publish.

Two-Year-Old Tied In Car By Parents

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A 2-year-old girl was found bound and gagged in a stifling, locked car Monday, police said. Her parents, who had been dining in a restaurant, were charged with child abuse.

"The child had a washcloth-like piece of material stuck in her mouth as a gag to keep her from crying out," said Cpl. M.E. Bailey of the Youth Aid Division of the Montgomery Police Department.

Bailey said John Luter and his wife, Jeanie Luter, both of Hampton, Va., were charged with child abuse and placed in the Montgomery city jail. They were being held in lieu of $20,000 bond each.

He said they would not talk to police about the incident.

Bailey said a motel worker spotted the child in the car and told the motel manager, who called police.

The child was treated by paramedics at the scene, Bailey said, and then taken to the emergency room at St. Margaret's Hospital, from where she was released to the custody of the Alabama Department of Pensions and Security.

Bailey said the child will be placed in a shelter home until a hearing can be held before a family court judge in Montgomery.

All the windows in the small, two-door sedan were rolled up when the child was found, Bailey said. Afternoon temperatures in Montgomery soared into the 90s.

The child, whose name was being withheld by police, was lying down in the back seat of the car when she was rescued.

Area Teen-Agers Injured In Auto Mishap

FLOYDADA (Special) — A 13-year-old Floydada girl late Monday remained in critical condition at Lubbock's Health Sciences Center Hospital with injuries sustained in a one-vehicle mishap earlier that day.

Elvira Cortinas was one of six teen-agers in a 1976 Chevrolet Nova, which struck a building here about 12:30 a.m. Monday.

Four of the victims were rushed to Lubbock's Health Sciences Center Hospital, and the other two were admitted to Caprock Hospital here. All were from Floydada.

Labor Day was only 30 minutes old, Floydada Police Chief Royce Gilmore said, when the car, reportedly traveling at a high rate of speed, entered the north city limits on U.S. 70.

The driver, Esmerelda Rodriquez, 18, apparently failed to negotiate a curve in the road, lost control of the car and hit a cement tile building occupied by Adams Well Service.

Miss Rodriquez late Monday was under observation with multiple injuries at Health Sciences Center Hospital, and Adam Hernandez, 14, was in stable condition there with a broken arm and leg. Robert Cortinas, 17, was treated and released at the Lubbock hospital.

Jamie Cortinas, 18, and Roy Guzman, 15, were admitted to Caprock Hospital following the mishap. A hospital spokeswoman late Monday described Cortinas' condition as fair and Guzman's as good.

Traffic Violation Leads To Confession In 17 Alleged Murders

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A man stopped by traffic patrolmen for a broken taillight Monday told police he had killed 17 people over the past two years — most recently the owner of the car he was driving, authorities said.

Officers said they had verified the man's account of the most recent slaying and were checking with Ohio and Pennsylvannia authorities on the others.

"He said he had enough ammo to kill several more people in the Nashville area and he was then going to kill himself," Detective Bill Robeck said.

Asked whether he believed the multiple confessions, Robeck said, "I don't know. I believe him on one. How much is fact and how much is fiction, I can't say."

Charged with murder, armed robbery and auto theft was Kenneth G. Taylor, 37, an unemployed Lima, Ohio, man who said he was hitchiking to the West. He had been driving the car of a man who picked him up on the city's interstate system, police said.

Detective Sgt. Henry Rodgers said two patrolmen pulled Taylor's car over "because it was driving around with no taillight. As they approached him, he said, 'I'm glad you stopped me. I just committed a murder.' He gave them a weapon and told them where they could find the body."

Following directions to a downtown alley, officers found the body of David R. Willie, 36, also unemployed. The car Taylor drove is registered to Willie.

Robeck said that once at the station house, Taylor listed a series of alleged slayings he said he had committed, including the murder of a husband and wife in Boardman, Ohio, earlier this year, and several homicides in the area of New Brighton, Penn. about 20 miles from Boardman.

"I talked to the authorities in New Brighton," Robeck said, "and they confirm that they had a bunch of homicides. They said they would be very interested in talking with this subject."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I was recently divorced and have to handle my own finances to find good investments. I am the beneficiary and owner of my ex-husband's life insurance policy. I can borrow on the cash surrender value of that policy, at 5 peroent interest.

I am considering borrowing $5,000 on that policy. I would then buy two $1,000 bonds of what I consider to be a good company. The bonds pay 11¼ percent interest, are due to mature in 1986 and are B-rated. I would use the other $3,000 to buy high-yield utility stocks. What do you think of this plan?

A. I think you're a very sharp person. If you handled the family financial affairs as well as you have thought this one out, it's an amazement that your spouse let you get away.

Borrowing on the cash surrender value of a "whole life" insurance policy at a low rate of interest and putting the money to work at a higher rate works out fine — as long as the investments do well.

Your plan is clearly designed to provide you with more income. I really can't argue your investment choices. The dividends on many good utility stocks provide yields of better than 9 percent. You should be aware, however, that the "B" rating on those bonds means they are of less than investment grade. In other words, they are counted as risky. My recommendation would be to go for A-or AA-rated bonds.

Most whole life insurance policies have provisions allowing the owners to borrow at interest rates well below the high interest rates prevailing in the open market these days. So, more and more people — married, single or divorced — are doing what you propose.

The rub, of course, is that the death benefit of the policy will be reduced by the amount of the loan. But, as long as the money you get from the loan is working well for you, you won't be out any dollars if your ex-husband dies.

• • •

Q. At age 49, I have nothing put aside for my old age, apart from a few U.S. Savings Bonds purchased through the payroll savings plan. I have saved $1,000 cash and would like to invest it for the best return. What do you advise?

A. To increase your deduction through payroll savings, to buy more Savings Bonds. That seems to be the only way you can accumulate anything. Payroll savings, more than anything else, are a relatively painless way to put money aside in an investment vehicle paying absolutely guaranteed interest.

You seem to be typical of all too many people — who spend just about every dollar in their paychecks. But, by having money for Savings Bonds taken out before you get your paycheck, you'll build up a nestegg for your retirement years — which, in your case, aren't all that many years away.

You certainly can't afford to invest, speculate or do anything else with that $1,000 — which is less than the minimum amount you should keep handy for emergency purposes. The $1,000 belongs in a savings account.

Carter, Congress Showdown Over Pending Legislation Imminent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The clash between Congress, which approved building a $2 billion nuclear aircraft carrier, and President Carter, who calls it wasteful, climaxes this week as the lawmakers return from the Labor Day recess.

Carter's veto of a $37 billion defense authorization bill containing authorization for the carrier is the strongest move he has yet taken to uphold his priorities against congressional challenge or inaction.

The House has scheduled a vote Thursday, one day after resuming sessions, on overruling the veto. Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill predicted that the needed two-thirds vote would not be forthcoming, so the veto would be sustained.

However, supporters of the carrier are mounting a strong campaign.

If the House sustains the veto, there will be no vote in the Senate. A two-thirds vote in both chambers is required to override.

If the veto stands, the House Armed Services Committee presumably will move quickly to produce a compromise defense authorization in time for passage before Congress adjourns.

The Senate debates Wednesday a budget for the year beginning Oct. 1 calling for $489.5 billion in spending, with a $42.3 billion deficit.

The fiscal plan, drafted by the Budget Committee, compares with the revised Carter proposal for spending $496.6 billion with a $48.5 billion deficit and the House-passed budget resolution, which contemplates $489.8 spending and a $39.8 billion deficit.

Senate leaders hope to conclude the budget debate, then bring to the floor the natural gas compromise considered crucial to end the 16-month stalemate over the Carter energy policy.

The outcome is in the hands of a large bloc of uncommitted senators and both sides are waging an all-out lobbying campaign. The opposition includes liberals who say the plan would be too costly to consumers and conservatives who complain it does not remove price controls soon enough. The plan calls for lifting federal price controls from newly discovered gas in 1985, with some provisions for cushioning consumers from sudden increases.

Debate is scheduled to resume in the House Thursday on President Carter's proposals to streamline the federal Civil Service personnel system and make it easier to reward good performance and penalize shortcomings.

The Senate has passed its version of the legislation, but the bill has run into difficulties in the House.

The House takes up Wednesday an appropriation to carry out plans for federal aid to fiscally struggling New York City. The basic legislation for $1.8 billion, principally in guarantees to help the city borrow money for its needs, already has been enacted.

Mediator Joins Postal Union Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mediator James J. Healy met Monday with officials of the Postal Service and three major unions in negotiations aimed at resolving a longstanding contract dispute.

The two sides began on Friday 15 days of new talks.

Healy, a Harvard professor with long experience in labor-management mediation, was called in last week to try and settle the dispute.

On Friday, U.S. District Judge John Pratt extended until Sept. 18 his temporary restraining order barring a postal strike by the two largest unions. Strikes by postal employees are illegal, and the court order is intended to strengthen enforcement of that law.

Last Monday the Postal Service agreed to go back to the bargaining table until Sept. 16. At that time the arbitrator must resolve the disputed issues if he first determines that a negotiated settlement is not possible within the time period.

However, a nationwide mail strike still is possible. Any agreement during the new round will be subject to ratification by union members, the same hurdle the earlier agreement failed to clear.

The earlier agreement included a 19.5 percent increase in wages and cost-of-living allowances and a no-layoff requirement reluctantly accepted by postal management on the last day of the original three-month bargaining period.

The unions involved are the 299,000-member American Postal Workers Union, the 181,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers and the 36,000-member mail handlers division of the Laborers' International Union.

State leaders of the 38,000-member National Rural Letter Carriers Association approved the contract reached tentatively July 21.

Golf Course Robbed By Worm Poachers

TORONTO (AP) — Bruce Thrasher, 27, a Toronto golf course superintendent, says worms are being "poached" from his golf course.

Thrasher gave a group of wormpickers permission to use his course if they gave him a cut of their profits.

However, the pickers have been sneaking into the course at night and ignoring Thrasher's request.

The standard notrump opening is 16-18 points. If you prefer something different go ahead and use it.

Most experts do use 15-17. However, don't use a scatter-gun notrump, such as 15-18. The notrump opening should be a picture bid and too wide a range puts the picture out of focus.

The key notrump numbers are: Game 26. Small slam 33. Grand slam 37.

If you have a balanced hand with 0-7 high card points just pass when your partner opens one notrump. You don't belong in game. With 10-14 you belong in game. How about 8 or 9?

With a poor 8, stop at one. With 9 or a good 8, invite game. Treat a good 9 as 10 and bid game.

North has a fair nine pointer. He raises to two and South, with 17 plus two tens and a nine, is glad to go on to the game.

West gets off to his best lead, a diamond, and South sees he has no time to develop the club suit. Reaching dummy with a heart, he goes after spades. The spade finesse works and he winds up with four spades, three hearts, two diamonds and the necessary nine tricks.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes potassium deficiency and what are the dangers? What is the remedy and how can one guard against it? — H.G.

You needn't worry about getting enough potassium in the diet. Almost all food contains it. When a deficiency in the body does occur it is usually because too much is being lost. Probably the most common cause of potassium deficiency today is long-term use of potent diuretics (water pills). Severe and prolonged vomiting or diarrhea can also remove too much of it and cause a deficiency. Deficiency can also occur with diabetes, cystic fibrosis and other system-wide illnesses.

Potassium seems to have its greatest importance in maintaining the health of muscle tissue. For this reason a deficiency may produce weakness, muscle paralysis, disorders of the heart action and low blood pressure. If the heart is involved there is a characteristic reading on the electrocardiogram.

There are various preparations to correct a potassium deficiency, and fruits (as bananas and oranges) are comparatively rich in it. But, as I have mentioned, there is no need for the average person to worry about getting sufficient potassium in the diet.

And another related letter:

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Regarding the problem of leg cramping. My husband and I have cured this simply by eating a half of a banana daily. Why not recommend this instead of medicines? It is cheaper, more pleasant, and has no side effects. — Mrs. H.D.A.

I seriously doubt whether the half a banana a day is having all that effect on yours and your husband's leg cramps. Bananas are relatively high in potassium and potassium lack may produce various muscle symptoms. However, I would be the last to argue with apparent success, and I agree that the half a banana is certainly cheaper and more pleasant than medicines. There's an old medical adage that says anything that helps and cannot hurt is OK. You might gain a better understanding of such cramps from my booklet, "Leg Cramps." For a copy send 35 cents and a stamped self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago Ill. 60611.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Six months ago I had an operation for complete removal of my thyroid gland. I had a partial removal 10 years ago. I am relatively young, but my doctor tells me I must take medication for the rest of my life. I would like to know more about the thyroid and lack of it. — T.M.

It's certainly correct that you will need medication (thyroid replacement hormones) the rest of your life. There's just no other structure to take over for the thyroid when it is removed. You apparently had an overactive gland. The goal of the earlier surgery to remove a portion was to cut down on the hormone production. It didn't work for you.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You won't think this is an important problem, but I am bothered by mosquitoes that seem to attack my scalp right through the hair. Why does this happen and what can one do for it? — J.D.

No reason why mosquitoes should find your scalp any more attractive than the rest of your body. Sometimes hair sprays and lotions will send off a scent that is attractive to the pesky things.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I agree with you that the word "senile" is a medical term that has been greatly misused. Don't you agree that, medically at least, a person is only as old as he feels? — J.W.

Couldn't agree more. In fact, one older writer informs me that he uses the metric figure "23 Celsius" to indicate his 75 years, because, he says, he "only feels about 23."

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes warts? — L.G.

The common wart is caused by a virus (verruca vulgaris).

• • •

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's booklet, explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a long-time reader and have learned a lot from your column. I've learned even more from your booklets, which some people don't even know about. The city I lived in carried your column but they didn't print anything about your booklets. Don't they realize that a lot of people need to know more than you can squeeze into your allotted space? Also, you can't say certain things in the paper, especially in the South where they are more conservative about sex as well as politics.

I have a suggestion which I hope you will take. (Ha — me giving advice to Ann Landers! That's a switch!) Why not list all your booklets every few weeks rather than mentioning them one at a time at the foot of your column? It would be a lot easier to order several at once instead of sending 50 cents in dribs and drabs. — From Missouri

Dear Missouri: Thanks for your suggestion. And now I'd like to make it clear that I am not in the booklet business. The profits go to charity.

Here is a list of the booklets and the prices:

Dear Ann Landers: For several years my husband has let both fingernails on his little fingers grow much longer than the others. I've asked him several times why he did this. He always has some silly answer.

Recently, I noticed another man who did the same thing. I'm sure the fellow is gay. Is it possible that my husband is that way, too? What other explanation could there be for this bizarre quirk? — Worried Sick

Dear W: If your husband were gay, you'd have other evidence by now.

Some cocaine addicts let their little fingernails grow long and use them as "spoons." Does your husband's nose run? Are his nostrils red? Does he sometimes seem "high" for no explainable reason? These are all telltale signs.

If the answer to all these questions is "No," accept the fact that your husband likes a couple of long fingernails and that's all there is to it.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED

NEW YORK — Practically everyone in CBS-TV daytime heaven was there.

John Aniston (Eddie Aleata on "Love of Life") and Nick Troiano ("LOL's hairsytlist) recently opened a posh eating and drinking bistro, The Fives, at 555 West 57th St., directly across the street from the CBS Broadcast Center in Manhattan. Other partners in the restraunt venture include Jean Arley ("LOL's producer), Clarice Blackburn (Marion Connelly on "ATWT"), Ken Roberts ("LOL's announcer) and Ron Tomme (Bruce Sterling.).

Because of The Fives' convenient location, cast and crews from all of the CBS daytime serials attended the official opening. Christian Marlowe (Andy Marriot on "LOL") brought along his stepmother, half-brother and father, Hugh Marlowe (Jim Mattews on "Another World"). Val Dufour (John Wyatt on "Search for Tomorrow") had a reunion with Judith Barcroft (the temporary Susan Stewart on "ATWT" while actress Marie Masters is on a leave of absence.) Val and Judith played husband and wife Walter and Lenore Curtin on "AW" several years ago. Judith announced she'll be vacating "ATWT" in early September when Marie returns. But Judith's experience on an hour serial is tempting her to reconsider "All My Children's" offer for her to resume her role of Anne Martin, who's been off-screen since that show went the hour route. Charita Bauer (Bert Bauer) headed the "Guiding Light" entourage which included Fran Myers (Peggy Thorpe) and her husband Roger Newman (ex-Ken Norris).

Gordon Rigsby (Dean Blackford on "GL") sported two newly acquired black eyes, hidden behind dark glasses. Gordon explained that he'd been bicycling near his country home, traveling at 35 mph, when he struck a rock and was sent flying. One of his cheeks required stitches, and some bones set, as well as stitches in the inside of his upper lip. Despite his facial multiple injuries Gordon laughed that they weren't as serious as his problems with his hair. Gordon has undergone several changes of hair color since he joined the show half a year ago until the producers decided which shade best suited the character...is it blond?

Sammy Davis Jr., who's long-time fan of "LOL" and several other soaps, made a surprise appearance at the party. Before he had to dash off for the curtain of his limited engagement appearance on Broadway in "Stop the World I Want to Get Off," Davis conversed with "LOL" cast members. He analyzed Veleka Grey's character of Mia Marriott and warned Audrey Peters and Ron Tomme that they'd better not split up as Van and Bruce Sterling, even though Bruce appears to be dying. Even Kathryn Hays (Kim Stewart on "ATWT"), who rarely makes personal appearances, dropped by on the arm of her castmate Jon (c.q.) Cypher (Alex Keith) to wish Aniston and company congratulations.

Aniston's venture, however, still has a few loopholes. The kitchen won't open for a few more weeks and the pub will only be open half days until then. But for anyone who is a CBS soap star fan, The Fives is the place to go for star gazing over dinner and drinks. Tune In Tomarrow to see what's in the stars on the tube.

MAIL BAG: I want to know if the previous Dr. Rick Webber on "General Hospital" was really married to the actress who plays Lesley and whether the old Dr. Rick is coming back. — J.B., Worcester, MA.

It was the decision of the "old" Dr. Rick, as you refer to him, young actor Michael Gregory, to leave the show. And he won't be returning. Michael was not married to Denise Alexander (Lesley). But the new Rick, actor Chris Robinson, is making the Hollywood dating scene with Denise.

What character did Helen Stenborg play on "Another World"? I understand she's the wife of Barnard Hughes who played "Doc" on CBS. — T.W., Baltimore, MD.

Helen played housekeeper Helga Svenson and she is indeed the wife of Barnard Hughes, who himself has appeared in tons of soaps. He's currently starring in the award winning play "Da" on Broadway.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

My daughter was away at college and would not be home for her birthday.

In the middle of the night I had a brainstorm. A surprise birthday party by proxy!

I got in gear the next morning and called a college friend and asked if she would take care of the final steps.

We made posters the size of our faces and drew and colored pictures of all of us at home, including the cat and dog.

Gifts were sent from home along with all the necessary paper napkins, plates, cups, crepe paper for decorations and balloons.

I sent money for cake, ice cream, punch and other refreshments.

Our daughter was really surprised and everyone had a great time.

To top it off, the kids took snapshots and mailed them to us so we could enjoy the fun. — Mrs. Gilbert Casson

College-bound students will get a bang out of this idea. Helps to overcome that homesick feeling they might have on this special occasion. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Ever try to get the gummy labels off plastic kitchen wastebaskets?

I have used nail polish remover but was afraid this would soften the plastic so I used a facial tissue moistened with baby oil.

The label and gummy deposit came off slick as a whistle. In fact, every little mark disappeared and my wastebasket is super new. — Eloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

This hint is for those who live in the warmer parts of this country. Warm enough, that is, for fig trees to grow.

When the birdbath needs a scrub (there really are dirty birds!), I grab the hose and a couple of fig leaves and go to work.

The bottoms of the leaves are just rough enough to remove the sludge and tough enough to last until the job is done.

Then just throw the leaves on the compost heap or under a shrub; they are biodegradable as well as free.

The fig leaves work just as well for similar cleanup jobs — dirty scrub buckets, muddy garden boots and tools.

While I've never tried them for clothing, I'll bet Adam and Eve wore theirs rough side out!

Yours for more freebies... — A.T.

Yours for more good hints — as well as laughs! Do write again! — Love, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

While cutting and writing recipes, I thought of this hint.

Copy the recipe from the magazine onto an index card. Cut out a colorful picture of the dessert or whatever and glue that to the back of the recipe card.

Now you won't forget how good the food looks. It's also a lot easier to remember how good it is. — Lynn Metzler

A friend who has arthritis tried my suggestion for washing walls and she said it worked fine.

Here it is. Run a bucket full of cleaning cloths through the rinse and spin cycle of the washing machine.

When you've used all the cloths, run them through the washer again.

Man Says Wife Died From Broken Heart After Death Of Son, 13

MIAMI (AP) — Just 36 hours after 13-year-old Jeffrey Perez died from inhaling cooking oil spray, his grieving mother died, too. She was 37.

Mattie Perez' shattered husband believes a broken heart killed her. Police suspect an overdose of a prescribed anti-depressant. Medical examiners are not sure, saying more tests are needed.

"She was the best woman I ever met in my life," sobbed her husband, Monserate Perez. "I don't think she overdosed. She was too worried about me. She always took care of me and the children and the house and the animals, two dogs and three cats.

"She loved us all."

An investigator said a nearly full bottle of the anti-depressant medication was found.

Perez, 38, a $170-a-week cook, is left with a 17-year-old retarded stepson and a 7-year-old daughter.

The double deaths Friday and early Sunday climaxed a year of agony for the couple that began when police caught Jeffrey with a marijuana cigarette. They called another time at 4 a.m. to say he was caught in a stolen car.

Mrs. Perez stopped buying cooking spray when Perez caught their son "high as a kite, with a face full of grease."

"I tried my best," Perez says. "I didn't know how to help him. I kept asking him, 'What can I do for you?' He wouldn't tell me."

On Friday, the teen-ager cut classes with a 13-year-old buddy. They bought a can of cooking oil spray and took two plastic bags into the woods. They sprayed the oil into the bag and inhaled.

The other boy stopped after he got high — Jeffrey didn't. He collapsed and fell over.

"There was a considerable period of time which the other boy thought he was just fooling around," Miami Metro homicide Detective Joel Whalen said.

Finally, the other boy ran for help and got a woman to call an ambulance. The boy then dragged and carried Jeffrey out of the woods to the side of the road and flagged down a police car. Paramedics rushed him to the hospital, but he was already dead.

Whalen tried to comfort the mother. "The father was sobbing. The mother was sad but not hysterical," he said.

Grieving, desperate and wondering how he would afford the funeral, Perez said he walked into the North Miami Beach Police Station Saturday night.

"'Can I help you,' the desk officer asked. I said 'No' and walked out. I went home and sat on the porch," Perez said. "She was worried about me and asked where I was. She was afraid I might do something. I told her I was feeling better."

They went to bed at 1 a.m. "I told her 'Honey, I love you so much.' She held my hand and she hugged me."

Her gasps woke Perez at 4:20 a.m. "I gave her mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but it didn't work. I knew she was dead. It was too late."

The paroles of three other area men were revoked.

Ernest Devero (Ernest Devroe) received a seven-year sentence in Lubbock County for burglary of a habitation. He began serving the sentence July 29, 1975, and was granted parole Dec. 30, 1975.

His parole was revoked for unsatisfactory adjustment.

Also revoked for unsatisfactory adjustment was the parole of Paul Landeros, convicted in Hale County of forgery by taking and burglary.

Landeros began serving a five-year sentence July 2, 1975, and was granted parole June 16, 1977.

Coast Guard Alters Boat Vapor Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coast Guard is proposing new ventilation rules to help prevent gasoline fumes from accumulating in boats.

Under the rules, boats with inboard motors will have to have a powered ventilation system to discharge vapors in the engine area prior to starting the motor. The system would be powered by an electric motor.

A natural ventilation system will also be required of both inboard and outboard motors to eliminate any fumes which may build up during engine operation.

The Coast Guard is seeking comments from the public until Sept. 25 on the proposed rule. Details of the regulation can be obtained from, and comments may be sent to: Commandant (G-CMC-81), (CGD 76-082), U.S. Coast Guard, Washington, D.C., 20590.

Hale County Notes First Cotton Bale

PETERSBURG (Special) — Hale County's first bale of 1978-crop cotton came off the press at 2 p.m. Monday at the Petersburg Co-Op Gin, according to Melvin Dutton, manager.

Jimmy Byrd, who farms about 2 miles east of here, produced the cotton. About 2,240 pounds of seed cotton yielded a 530-pound bale for a gin turnout of 23.6 percent. There were 860 pounds of seed.

Byrd will receive a premium from the Petersburg Chamber of Commerce and the gin will pay him a premium price of 75 cents a pound for the lint and $150 per ton for the seed.

This season's first bale came later than last year when the Petersburg co-op processed the first cotton from the 1977 crop on Aug. 29.

Dutton said the Petersburg area "has a pretty fair crop," but added that "this dry weather has hurt it and a lot of it is popping open pretty fast."

Tragedy, Protests Mar Holiday

By The Associated Press

Some traditional end-of-summer celebrations were disrupted Labor Day, one with tragedy when a helicopter hurtled into a crowd of picknickers at a Pennsylvania church festival.

In Michigan, demonstrators used the once-a-year opening of a pedestrian walkway to dump 150 pounds of what they said was tainted meat into the strait connecting Lake Huron and Lake Michigan. In Maine, a bogus report of a 60-foot tidal wave cleared beaches along the southern coast.

In Ohio, about 100 migrant workers, striking for better wages from tomato growers, picked Labor Day to begin a 100-mile march to the statehouse in Columbus.

The helicopter crash in Derry, Pa., killed at least six persons and injured at least seven, police said. It apparently occurred as the craft swooped down to drop prizes to some 500 festival goers at St. Joseph's Church.

"The helicopter was hired to drop ping-pong balls with numbers worth prizes attached. On its approach, it came in too low and evidently struck a utility pole and fell into the crowd," Latrobe Police Sgt. Joseph Muchinski said.

Many other holiday deaths were predicted across the nation. The National Safety Council said 470 to 570 persons would die on U.S. highways between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday.

By mid-Monday afternoon, 441 had been killed in traffic accidents.

Members of the American Agriculture Movement used the traditional opening of the Mackinac Bridge to pedestrians to dramatize their protest against imported beef.

They tossed some 150 pounds over the side, with Louis Saunders of Quincy, Mich. saying: "It doesn't hurt the fish any more than it does us."

Labor Day is the only day the 5-mile span across the strait between the two Great Lakes is open to pedestrians.

Beachgoers in Maine fled the coast early Monday afternoon after a big wave was reported to the Coast Guard by a yacht some 14 miles offshore. The Coast Guard alerted state police, and the alarm was sounded.

"Bare as February," was the way Kennebunk Police Chief Frank Stevens described the coast line 10 minutes after the alert was issued. A Coast Guard helicopter devgloped engine trouble and was unable to check the report.

The alarm was called off when the wave failed to materialize within 45 minutes, and the sun-worshippers returned to the sand.

Parades were held in many areas across the nation, and spokesmen for organized labor took the opportunity to remind the public of past union victories and future problems.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, in a statement prepared for broadcast on CBS radio Monday night, appealed to the rich and powerful to make the first sacrifice in fighting inflation. He said the nation's workers would follow.

Meany said that "in the past, workers have been called upon to sacrifice first to fight inflation. And they have. But the corporations and the bankers never did their share and there is no evidence they will do so now.

"I don't think it is too much to ask of those who have reaped the most from the American economic system — the wealthiest individuals, corporations and banks — to take the first step in combatting the economic evils of inflation," Meany said.

School Teachers Absent As Year's Term Begins

By The Associated Press

Classes reopen for the fall in many school districts this week, but in thousands of classrooms the teachers are likely to be absent.

School strikes are underway in Philadelphia and New Orleans, in Pontiac, Mich., and in such small districts as Richmond and Marion, Ind. More strikes are threatened — in Cleveland and Dayton, Ohio, for example, and in Boston and Seattle.

In Philadelphia, with classes scheduled to open Friday for 250,000 students, school officials were to resume negotiating on Tuesday with the Talks broke off Friday after the old contract expired, and the teachers crew of administrators, substitutes and a few teachers, but by Friday bus drivers and janitors had joined the strike and only a third as many students as normal were in class.

The teachers want an 8 percent pay raise. When talks broke off, the board was proposing 4 percent — an average raise of $471 a year for teachers now earning from $10,096 to $15,250. Meanwhile the Teamsters Union, crew of administrators, substitutes and a few teachers, but by Friday bus drivers and janitors had joined the strike and only a third as many students as normal were in class.

The teachers want an 8 percent pay raise. When talks broke off, the board was proposing 4 percent — an average raise of $471 a year for teachers now earning from $10,096 to $15,250. Meanwhile the Teamsters Union, representing 290 drivers and 500 maintenance workers, wants a 7 percent increase and has rejected a 4 percent offer.

Cleveland and Dayton both face problems compounded by deep fiscal worries.

Cleveland classes are to open Friday but teachers, due back Thursday, don't want a third straight year without a pay raise. Despite the strike threats, officials say they can't afford a raise this year because the system has received an emergency $20.7 million loan that requires budget-cutting. Talks are scheduled Tuesday.

The Dayton Education Association votes Tuesday on whether to strike that city's schools, which serve 37,000 students. School is to open Thursday, with teachers reporting Wednesday. School officials have been blaming a desegregation plan, now in its third year, for the failure of three tax levies in two years. Now the district is offering the 2,200 teachers — 1,600 of whom are in the union — the same contract they had last year. The DEA executive board is recommending a strike.

In Boston, where classes are to open Wednesday for 69,000 students, contract negotiations are stalled over salary, class size and working conditions, according to Henry Robinson, president of the Boston Teachers Union. A strike vote is scheduled Tuesday.

Weekend negotiations failed to produce agreement in Pontiac, Mich., and the school board ordered teachers who have been on strike in advance of school's opening to report to work Tuesday or be fired. But with talks still on, Superintendent Odell Nails delayed the start of classes for 21,000 students from Tuesday to Thursday.

The Pontiac Education Association, representing 1,100 teachers, wants a pay raise of 7 to 8 percent. The board is offering 5 percent.

Ranchers Review Area History

A 72-year heritage of ranching and cattle breeding will be shared with participants at the ninth annual Ranch Day beginning at 9 a.m., Sept. 23, at the Ranching Heritage Center of The Museum of Texas Tech University.

Wray Finney, a cattle industry representative and seventh-generation Oklahoma rancher, will speak at the Ranch Day noon luncheon.

The chuckwagon-style barbecue lunch will feature homemade sourdough pancakes, sauerkraut, applesauce and tea cakes, prepared in the historic houses on the 12-acre site. The center chronologically traces the development of the West through more than 20 structures originally used by the Southwest's first ranchers.

Center visitors will be able to watch docents in authentic costumes as they prepare epicurean delights from the pioneer days, after which visitors will be allowed to sample the finished products.

T.J. Nabors-Pearson of Lubbock will also be on hand to demonstrate the art of spinning at the Hedwigs Hill double log cabin, and square dancers and fiddlers will also be on hand.

Entertainment will continue during the luncheon, which will be followed by Finney's speech and the annual business meeting and election of officers for the Ranching Heritage Association.

All events, including the luncheon, will be open to the general public.

Finney, his son and his father operate the family ranch near Fort Cobb, Okla. The ranch, a cow-calf and yearling cattle operation, was established in 1906. Finney is also a managing partner of the Western Trio Cattle Breeding Fund, a cattle management firm in Guymon, Okla.

After serving two years as first vice president of the American National Cattleman's Association (ANCA), Finney was elected to two terms as president.

He has also served on such committees as the Agriculture Standards Advisory Committee of the U.S. Department of Labor and the Cattle Industry Advisory Committee of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Finney was inducted in 1977 into the American Polled Hereford Association's Hall of Merit for public affiars service to the cattle industry. He has also been a recipient of the Progressive Farmer magazine's Man of the Year in Southwest Agriculture award.

Tickets for Ranch Day, including the meal, are $4.50 for adults and $1.75 for children for members of the Ranching Heritage Association, and $5.50, adults and $2.25, children, for non-members.

Tickets are available from the association, P.O. Box 4499, Lubbock, 79409, 806-742-2498.

Group Opposes Wilderness Plan

A-J Correspondent

CLOVIS, N.M. — New Mexico's largest farm and ranch organization has called for the citizens of the state to take part in the current U.S. Forest Service RARE II program.

A.W. "Bill" Langenegger, president of the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Buraeu, said in Hagerman his organization is asking for all land in the Forest Service RARE II study to be designated for non-wilderness based on the multiple-use principal that Congress has established.

"Economically, more wilderness means the loss of jobs for the citizens of our state, so that a select few can have a private playground on weekends. Our state does not have the kind of economic base to support more wilderness," he said.

"We feel New Mexico already has enough wilderness areas and in those existing areas nature itself has caused many environmental problems which will have to be addressed in years to come," Langenegger said.

"The Forest Service has announced that public participation in the RARE II program in New Mexico has been low. Citizens of New Mexico must speak up now or our future and the future of our children may be endangered," Langenegger said.

Coast Guard Admirals' Travel Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wives of U.S. Coast Guard admirals took 24 trips at government expense last year and in most cases it was their husbands who officially approved the travel, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Monday.

"It's the kind of thing a big shot in a banana republic might do," Aspin said in a statement.

The congressman said he plans to broach the issue to Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, who has authority over the Coast Guard in peacetime.

Coast Guard spokesmen had no immediate comment.

Aspin said that at his request the U.S. General Accounting Office checked the 1977 travel of the 12 Coast Guard district and area commanders.

"These 12 admirals made 74 trips aboard government aircraft last year," said Aspin. "Amazingly, they needed their wives along on 24 or one-third of those trips."

In 18 of the 24 cases, the officer who approved the wife's flight was her husband — the district or area commander, said Aspin.

Coast Guard regulations permit district or area commanders to approve spouse travel only when the wife's presence "is in the national interest, essential to mission accomplishment, or desirable for diplomatic or public relations reasons."

But Aspin noted that when a question of propriety arises, the Coast Guard manual says the spouse's trip should be submitted to a higher command.

"I can't see how there could be any doubt in anyone's mind that 'propriety' is involved when a husband authorizes his wife to fly off with him to the high spots of the Pacific at U.S. government expense," said Aspin.

In a letter to the GAO, Aspin said his concern is "not to prevent any travelling officer from enjoying the company of his wife."

Rather, Aspin said, he is worried that existing rules only encourage abuse by senior officers.

For example, he said, officers could design pleasant trips and propose entertainment at the other end so the presence of wives would then be logical.

Skaters Collect Telethon Funds

A group of Lubbock junior high students, who held a 12-hour roller skating marathon Sunday and Monday, raised almost $4,500 for the 1978 Jerry Lewis Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy.

According to Jamey Pior, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Hester of 4712 59th St., the youngsters skated non-stop from 8 p.m. Sunday to 8 a.m. Monday to raise funds for the annual telethon.

A total of about $4,400 pledges had been collected from the skate-a-thon by Monday afternoon, a telethon spokesman said.

IN CHAINS — Louis Gossett Jr., left, appears in a scene from ABC-TV's "Roots" in which he becomes the "trainer" of Kunta Kinte, Levar Burton, right. ABC-TV will take a big step toward its 1978-9 season with a rebroadcast of the award winning series in five complete episodes.(AP Laserphoto)

ABC Repeating 'Roots'

NEW YORK (AP) — Ratings were the highest ever for a prime time program; the 12-hour miniseries led to some major changes in TV programming; it piqued Americans' interest in their ancestors.

It was "Roots," and the first time round, the immediate and consuming popularity caught even ABC by surprise.

ABC takes a big step toward its 1978-79 prime time season with a rebroadcast of the record-smashing miniseries, beginning tonight at 9 EDT. The rerun is complete in five parts instead of the eight aired Jan. 23-30, 1977.

The rebroadcast, though technically not a part of the new season, is designed to whet the viewer's appetite for ABC's fall programming, which begins the following Monday, Sept. 11. "Roots" will run opposite a "Sneak Preview Week" lineup on NBC.

The rebroadcast of "Roots," based on Alex Haley's best-seller that traced the history of his family from its origins in Africa in 1750 through 100 years of slavery and freedom in this country, is important to ABC in another sense.

The network has "Roots: The Next Generations" in production for broadcast later in the season.

"Roots" was broadcast initially in four two-hour and four one-hour installments. The miniseries averaged a 66 share of the audience, which means nearly two-thirds of the people watching TV at the time saw the program. The concluding, two-hour espisode pulled a 71 share.

ABC estimated the audience for "Roots" at 130 million.

The program's success was a huge boost for the miniseries format. Indeed, NBC, which suffered in the ratings through much of the past season, scored with a miniseries of its own, "Holocaust," based on a novel about the persecution of Jews in Nazi Germany.

The telecast stirred widespread interest in family history, and schools across the country were quick to follow with family tree-type projects. Books and discussions on tracing ancestry flourished.

"Roots" starred LeVar Burton as Kunta Kinte, Cicely Tyson as his mother and Thalmus Rasulala as his father, and featured Moses Gunn, Louis Gossett Jr., Edward Asner, Lorne Green and Vic Morrow.

ABC has packaged "Roots" for rebroadcast in three two-hour episodes and two three-hour installments. The schedule is 9-11 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, 8-11 Thursday, 9-11 Friday and 8-11 Sunday.

Four directors currently are filming the continuation of "Roots," including Georg Stanford Brown, who played Alex Haley's great-grandfather in the concluding episode of the original miniseries. Brown recreates the role in the first four hours of "Roots: The Next Generations."

The upcoming 14-hour miniseries traces Kunta Kinte's later descendants through nearly 100 more years of American history, beginning in 1882. The cast, in addition to Brown, includes Olivia DeHavilland, Ja'net DuBois, Henry Fonda, Greg Morris, Marc Singer and Richard Thomas.

Scripts are based on Haley's new book, "Search," which will be published in the fall.

College Preserves Folk Art, Lore Of Scotland

ST. ANN'S, Nova Scotia (AP) — A neighbor once called the cops on Andy Berthoff for practicing his bagpipe in his suburban St. Louis, Mo., backyard.

But here among the Scottish descendants of Cape Breton's highlands, Andy is with friends.

Andy, 14, attends summer camp at the Gaelic College in St. Ann's, a school offering courses in Scottish folk art and one of a few North American institutions teaching the Gaelic language.

Joan Smith, the school's director of studies, says its purpose is to keep alive Scottish lore: bagpipe, folk dance, songs, literature and the ancient Gaelic language.

"In my parents' generation you were considered lowbrow to speak Gaelic," Miss Smith says. Now, she says, the college requires it for most students.

"The important thing here is trying to preserve and promote our Scottish heritage, Miss Smith says, herself of Scottish extraction and a Cape Breton native. "With the current revival in ethnic backgrounds, Scottish people certainly are not left out."

Andy, who enters 10th grade at University City (Mo.) High School this fall, says he took up bagpiping a few years ago after visiting relatives in Scotland.

About a quarter of the students live near St. Ann's, a small town on the south-facing side of the cape's northern fork. They continue playing in the school's pipe band after the summer school ends.

Most of the students, ranging in age from 8 to 17, come to learn bagpiping or dancing and don't like being forced to take Gaelic. Even the school's director admits "you don't get very proficient in two weeks."

Still, she says, some are able to follow it up in their schools, particularly on Cape Breton, and the language course has been an important part of the college since it was founded in 1939 by Scottish descendants who feared their ancient dialect was being lost forever.

Eleven-year-old Patricia Vickers, a Cape Breton resident who prefers bagpipes to Gaelic, started playing she says, "because my grandfather said it would be nice to keep up Scottish ways."

Stephen Albans, 13, of Bangor, Maine, says he started playing because there was a set of pipes lying around the house.

For Andy Berthoff, though, bagpiping is "something different." He says he started it as a casual hobby, but gradually he became more interested and recently traveled as far as Atlanta and Kansas City for bagpiping contests.

Back home in Missouri, bagpiping also can be profitable. Andy hires himself out at parties for $50 a shot.

But it also can bring problems, like the time the neighbor "who hates any kind of noise," called the cops.

That turned out to be kind of funny when a policeman finally came, Andy says. "He sat there watching me play ... and told me to keep on playing."

Presidential Quirks Listed In New Book

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Garfield could write Greek with one hand and Latin with the other at the same time. Howard Taft fell asleep at conferences. Ulysses S. Grant smoked 20 cigars a day, and Calvin Coolidge walked a pet raccoon on a leash.

It takes all kinds to make presidents, one deduces from a new book of little-known facts about the 37 first families who occupied the White House before and after President Harding saved a dog's life by executive clemency.

Brought into the country illegally, the dog had been sentenced to death by a Pennsylvania judge. After Harding wrote a personal plea, the governor of the state pardoned the pooch.

Andrew Jackson kept a stable of thoroughbred racehorses on the grounds, and Taft's Holstein, Pauline Wayne, is the title animal of "The Last Cow on the White House Lawn and Other Little-Known Facts about the Presidency," by Barbara Seuling.

Some presidential contrasts:

— Abraham Lincoln lost eight straight elections before becoming president, while in a span of 3½ years Grover Cleveland was mayor of Buffalo, N.Y., governor of the state, and president.

— The Dwight Eisenhowers were ardent TV fans and watched while dining on TV dinners; the John Kennedys hated it and had all sets removed from the White House living quarters.

— John Adams was a notoriously shabby dresser, but Chester Arthur had a valet and a rumored 80 pairs of trousers and 25 coats.

— James Polk worked 12 to 14 hours a day in the White House; Coolidge from 9 to 12:30, then to lunch and quitting time in midafternoon.

— Franklin Roosevelt thought the number 13 unlucky and wouldn't sit at a table with 13 guests; Wilson deemed it lucky and once had a ship slow down to arrive in France for a peace conference on the 13th.

The presidents had varied tastes in foods: George Washington liked peanut soup; James Buchanan, sauerkraut and mashed potatoes; Cleveland, corned beef and cabbage; Theodore Roosevelt, sweet potatoes; Franklin D. Roosevelt, scrambled eggs; Eisenhower, prune whip.

But the book errs when it says, "President Ford's favorite lunch was cottage cheese smothered in catsup."

That, of course, was the dish of his predecessor — Richard Nixon. Correctly identified is Gerald Ford's breakfast delight, an English muffin toasted by himself.

'Sleep King' Devises Methods To Assist Insomniacs Snooze

EAST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — When Norman Dine is awake, he's putting people to sleep.

"The inability to sleep well is universal," says the self-proclaimed Sleep King.

Insomnia, Dine says, does not discriminate between the rich and the poor or the famous and the not-so-famous. Anyone who has trouble releasing tension has trouble sleeping, he says.

Dine, who solved an insomnia problem of his own, has made helping people sleep well his business for 35 years.

The 70-year-old Dine moved his customized beds and sleeping aids to his sleep center here from New York 10 years ago. And with Beth Shapiro, his "Lullabye Lady" and main salesperson, he devises new ways to establish sleep inducing conditions.

Zsa Zsa Gabor, Walter Winchell, Otto Preminger and Tallulah Bankhead have sought Dine's advice on sleep, he says, as have Nelson Rockefeller, the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower and thousands of other tired souls.

Eisenhower, Dine says, slept very little, making up for the lack of sleep with short catnaps. Dine says he provided the late general and former president with an inclined cot. Sleeping with the head down and legs up facilities circulation and improves the rest, he says.

"Rockefeller was a traditionalist. He did not want the newer type of bed. We made him an all horsehair bed that was very firm. It made him rest better," Dine says.

Miss Gabor said she had a "marathon mind" and couldn't sleep, Dine recalls. The Sleep King sold her a device which, through pitch, frequency and rhythm lulls the person to sleep. Milton Berle also bought a similar device to end his sleepless nights, Dine says.

For a veteran who hurt his back, Dine developed his ocean bed, essentially a tub filled with water kept at 98.6 degrees, body temperature. About 25 pounds of salt are added to the water to keep the sleeper bouyant.

Dine, who sleeps 5½ hours a day, studied mental hygiene at Columbia University Teacher's College, specializing in the problems of sleep. He also attended sessions at sleep research centers in Chicago and Pittsburgh.

"There are various ways to solve a sleep problem," Dine says. "You can take drugs, of course, but this is the worst thing you can do. You can learn meditation, and this is good, but it requires a great deal of work. Or you can find some mechanical means to set you at peace."

For two people in the same bed, Dine created his compatibility bed, customized to "reconcile" the different demands of each sleeper.

Earphones, customized pillows, masks and a snore control that keeps jaws closed to prevent snoring assist sleeping.

But, he says, a person can't sleep forever.

"If you can't get up in the morning, we can solve that too," he says. "Our ejection bed, which raises the head and foot mechanically at an appointed time, is enough to get anyone up."

Japanese Exhibit Defiled U.S. Goodwill Dolls

TOKYO (AP) — "Mommie, is it true that dolls like these were burned?" asked the little girl, clinging to her mother's hand.

"Yes, Mari-Chan," the mother replied. "I was about your age when it happened. It was sad and disturbing ...."

The child and mother were among a crowd at a popular exhibition of some "blue-eyed dolls," survivors from a vast number sent from the United States in 1927 as a gesture of goodwill.

Most of the original delegation did not survive World War II. They were tiny, curious victims of the war's hate and anger.

Those at the exhibit here had such names as Alice, Ruth, Virginia, Patricia and Mary. They had big blue-eyes with long lashes and blonde curly hair. Each carried a U.S. passport and a message of goodwill.

The 12,000 original dolls made up the largest peace emissary of its kind ever sent from the United States. It was designed to strengthen friendly ties, with an exchange later of Japanese dolls in colorful silk kimonos representing 68 cities in Japan.

Some of the Japanese dolls are believed to be in American museums now. The exhibit here included a photo of a display of Japanese dolls in Riverside, Calif., shortly after they arrived in the United States.

The arrival of the American dolls in Yokohama on March 1, 1927, sparked parades and exhibitions and a song by noted composer Ujo Noguchi that became a bestseller. With its lyrics about "honorable blue-eyed dolls," crying because they "don't understand a word of Japanese," the song is still a nostalgic favorite.

The dolls, which could close their eyes and say, "Mama" — something Japanese dolls could not do then — were sent to kindergartens and schools where they were treasured. Some even went to the imperial family's palace as "state guests."

But war clouds eventually engulfed Japan, and the dolls became victims of a "hate-America" campaign.

Two years after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, the war began turning in America's favor. In 1943, Japanese military authorities issued an order — fantastic as it may seem — that the dolls be destroyed in public. It was reminiscent of Nazi book-burning.

The orders were obeyed almost to the letter. The dolls were removed from honored places and destroyed. One report gave this description:

"The dolls were dragged out onto the school grounds, pierced or smashed with bamboo spears, doused with gasoline and burned together with their passports and other belongings in a ritualistic display on how to loathe the enemy ...."

Miyuki Hoshi of Aizu-Wakamatsu recalls "the pain in my heart" when teachers at her school burned the students' doll in front of them. She secretly saved the doll's clothing and wishes she'd had the courage to save the doll.

Chiyoko Ota of Yamagata recalls being told to destroy her school's doll. "But I couldn't do it. I hid the doll and was reprimanded by the principal, and again told to destroy it. This time I sank it in a swamp after covering it with a red mantle."

Despite the wartime animosity, there were others who secretly defied the order and saved some of the dolls.

The dolls' story came to light when Ayako Ishimaru, a teacher, read a news report five years ago about an American doll treasured by a school in Kofu, 150 miles from Tokyo. She visited the school and learned the doll's name was "Ginella, 3-years old" and its donor was a Dr. James Wilbur Hondorf of Rochester, N.Y.

Ishimaru says she wrote a letter and later visited Rochester, where she learned there had been a Dr. Hondorf but he had moved away and not been heard from.

Ishimaru returned to Japan determined to locate other dolls that may have survived. Her search uncovered 16 dolls.

Then a committee was formed and began collecting photos, news reports and the dolls and passports — issued by the U.S. government.

The committee learned that 33 of the dolls sent to Japan 51 years ago under a "world peace program" had survived.

It was able to assemble 20 for the exhibit, which opened Aug. 15 to commemorate the 33rd anniversary of Japan's defeat in the war.

Jiro Amano of Maebashi, a committee member, says: "I am confident that there are others, perhaps 100 in the rural areas that lived through the war and hate. I hope they can be brought together in the interest of everlasting Japan-U.S. friendship."

Dentist Prevents Toothless Wedding

DONCASTER, England (AP) — Bridegroom Steve Morris of Doncaster flushed his top set of false teeth down the toilet on the eve of his wedding.

Morris phoned a dentist friend, who managed to put the smile back on his face just in time for the wedding.

His wife said he never complimented her on her wedding dress, but "just kept on about his teeth."

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

TAKEN INTO CUSTODY—Police officials round up preotesters outside the White House Monday after they left a tour group and assembled on the lawn of the Executive Mansion. 'Most Serious' ChallengeFaced By Iran's Shah

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The explosive religious and political protests boiling in Iran for the past nine months have presented Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi with the most serious challenge to his reign in the past quarter-century.

Anti-government demonstrations by groups of 500 to 50,000 people in cities across Iran, often followed by clashes with authorities, have taken an estimated 1,000 lives so far this year.

Choice Faced

Both supporters and opponents of the Shah believe the demonstrations have pushed the 58-year-old monarch into choosing between a dictatorship more repressive than his critics have attributed to him or handing over substantial power to the people.

The source of the current turmoil is Iran's rush into the 20th century, engineered by the shah over the past 15 years. In 1963, a decade after the United States helped him seize power, he began his effort to bring Iran's feudalistic society into the modern world.

Revenue from the nationalized petroleum industry has provided funds for the industrial development that the shah envisioned for his 34 million people, 98 percent of whom are Moslems. It has also provided money for an arsenal of modern weapons unequaled in the Persian Gulf, including $18 billion worth of U.S. arms bought in the past 20 years.

But modernization has collided with ancient social and religious traditions, whose proponents refused to budge. And critics say the shah neglected to include one key reform in his campaign — democracy.

A rising middle class, students and intellectuals and conservative religious leaders with their poor city-dwelling followers have all found their own reasons to oppose the shah's reforms.

Moves Challenged

He stripped powerful Moslem leaders of vast land holdings, gave factory workers shares in production and bestowed equal rights on women, moves which disturbed conservative religious factions.

He banned all but a few obedient political parties and made use of U.S. help to set up a repressive secret service known by its Persian acronym "SAVAK," which alienated the shah's political opposition.

"Unfortunately, the government failed to create the political machinery to cope with all the new changes," said a political scientist from Tehran University who asked not to be identified. "By 1976, we had become an economic giant but a political dwarf."

Last January, residents in the holy city of Qum clashed with police and nine protesters were killed in the first demonstration against the liberalization program.

Since then, the government says 300 persons have been killed, some of them policemen, in clashes throughout the coutry. But dissidents claim the toll is closer to 1,000, and well-informed sources claim the dissident toll is more accurate.

The estimates don't include at least 377 Iranians burned to death in an arson fire at a theater in the oil port city of Abadan Aug. 20.

The shah's opponents have accused his regime of setting the blaze as an excuse to start a crackdown on dissenters, but Prime Minister Jaafer Sharif-Emami has angrily denied the charge and no evidence has emerged to support it.

The government repression expected by the shah's foes didn't surface after the fire.

"He could have rolled up the sidewalks," said a Western diplomat, "but he decided to keep the liberalization movement alive."

Authorities have arrested a 24-year-old Iranian in connection with the fire. They said he is an "Islamic Marxist," a terrorist group whom the government claims is supported by foreign communists and is exploiting the protests to overthrow the shah and proclaim a Marxist state.

To mollify the grievances of his religious opponents, the shah removed his year-old Cabinet and replaced it with politicians more sympathetic to their complaints.

Changes Instituted

The new government, which took office last week, set up political parties, lifted press censorship, closed all gambling casinos and abolished a cosmetic cabinet post for women's affairs. It also returned to the traditional Moslem calender to satisfy leaders of the country's most predominant sect, the Shiite Moslems.

Despite these concessions, the rioting has continued.

In latest flareup, Monday, prayer meetings marking the end of the Moslem holy month of Ramadan erupted into anti-government protests in 11 major cities and numerous towns.

Nuclear Arms Protest Waged

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet police broke up a disarmament demonstration by seven U.S. tourists in Red Square Monday and briefly detained 13 Westerners, including four of the protesters, two U.S. correspondents and a cameraman covering the story.

Members of the same disarmanent group, the War Resisters' League, staged an almost simultaneous demonstration on the White House lawn in Washington. Eleven persons were arrested there and charged with unlawful entry and failure to move.

Jerry Coffin, an organizer of the Moscow demonstration, said "It was probably the fastest bust I've ever been in." Coffin, 33, an executive with an independent New York broadcast firm, was one of the four demonstrators questioned for an hour by Soviet officials and then released.

"No Place For Demonstrations"

Authorities told the protesters and newsmen they had "nothing against" the War Resisters' League, but they said Red Square — in the shadow of the Kremlin — was no place for demonstrations.

No action was taken against any of the detainees.

The Moscow group, visiting the city on two-week tourist visas, unfurled a red and white banner in the center of brick-paved square. Printed in Russian, it read, "Disarmament now, U.S.S.R. and U.S."

They also handed out leaflets in Russian that protested nuclear weapons. Several members of the group yelled "peace" and "friendship" to the crowd that had gathered as police moved in, ripped down the banner, tore up the leaflets and scattered them.

About a dozen police officers, some uniformed and some in plainclothes, pushed and shoved the demonstrators before dragging four of them off to a nearby car.

They also detained six British tourists from Kent, England, who had picked up the leaflets.

Also seized were Charles Brierbauer of ABC News, Jim Gallagher of the Chicago Tribune and Kurt Haefle, a West German cameraman for CBS News.

Police tried to wrest away Bierbauer's television camera and thumped him on the back.

Besides Coffin, the other U.S. demonstrators were Craig Simpson, 28, a union organizer from Albuquerque, N.M., Scott Herrick, 52, a teacher from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., David McReynolds, 47, a field secretary of the War Resisters' League from New York City, Steve Somerfield, 24, a community organizer from Chapel Hill, N.C., and Pat Lacefield, 25, a journalist from New York City.

Simpson, Somerfield and Lacefield were detained with Coffin.

The sole woman in the group, Norma Becker, 50, a school teacher from New York, said the Soviet police were "quicker than we thought" in breaking up the demonstration, which lasted only about five seconds.

Girl Held In Stabbing Death Here

City police had a 16-year-old girl in custody Monday, following a stabbing incident in East Lubbock that left a 24-year-old woman dead at the scene.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ruled homicide in connection with the 6:37 p.m. incident which left Dessie Nellows Ward of 2807 Ivory St. dead from a single stab wound to the chest.

Witnesses said the woman had driven by a residence at 809 David Ave., when her car splashed through mud. A group of persons sitting nearby reportedly laughed at the driver and jeered.

Moments later, witnesses said, the driver backed the car up and an argument ensued.

Mrs. Ward received superficial cuts in the struggle, police said, and the single, fatal chest wound.

Following the scuffle, the suspect then asked a friend of the victim's to remove the body from the yard, police said. Officers found marks leading away from a large pool of blood that indicated the body had been dragged several feet toward the dead woman's car.

Witnesses told police the suspect gathered up her infant moments after the incident and left the scene.

After family members were asked to return the woman for questioning, the suspect arrived on the scene minutes later, apparently unaware that the victim had died.

The teen-ager was arrested and taken to police headquarters where she gave officers a statement.

No weapon has been recovered, police said.

The incident marked the city's 23rd homicide of the year, according to police records.

The body was taken to South Plains Funeral Home where services are pending.

Young Authors Pan 'Worst' Films In Book

hind the making of each film. As bad as they were they began mostly as serious projects, many with top stars.

The authors don't seem to take take Hollywood seriously, which may show either the shortcomings of youth, or exceptional perception.

Incidental information runs through the book, from critics' pans to insider information such as the advertising campaign for "The Omen," which cost more than the picture itself "and showed a good deal more imagination."

In the making of "Jonathan Livingston Seagull," we learn, the most important seagulls in the film were kept in room 336 of the Holiday Inn in Carmel, Calif., where 10 sheets were placed around the room to protect the carpets and were changed daily.

"A ritual gag," the authors said, "was to assign a new maid to change the sheets in room 336," proving that chain motel operators have as much humor as film makers.

Good Marks Given Busing's Kickoff

liams, Murfee and Parsons zones, Irons said.

He plans to establish one pickup point south of the loop in each of the three zones. That way, students "would not have to get up so early" to go first to their "neighborhood schools," Irons said. He said buses would leave the pickup points about 8 a.m. and return about 3:20 p.m.

The school district hopes eventually to build three new elementary schools south of Loop 289. Bonds for that and other construction, however, are tied up in court pending a final outcome of the desegregation case.

The district today enters its second week under the desegregation plan, which involves busing about 2,000 elementary students and several hundred secondary students. School officials said last week went well.

"No question about it, it has been just great," said school board vice president Monte Hasie.

Refining Bus Schedules

Irons said the district still is refining bus schedules and procedures. He said his staff is looking at one problem in particular — the afternoon run from Brown Elementary to Yellowhouse Canyon. Last week, Yellowhouse Canyon students weren't getting home until about 4 p.m.

Buses should be running on time this week, Irons said. The district also hopes to have installed on the buses seat belts, which hadn't arrived until last week.

As a sign that the transition has been made, LOOK announced that it has closed its information center on school desegregation and has unplugged its hotline.

During the four weeks the hotline was in operation, LOOK handled about 500 telephone queries. The center was staffed by about 70 volunteers, representing dozens of local civic and service organizations.

Even members of We the People, an anti-busing group, said the desegregation plan appears to be off to a good start. "Parents are trying to be as positive as possible," said Lenda Tarlton, a founder of the group.

"But parents still don't like it. They are very dissatisfied with having to bus their children."

Mrs. Tarlton said children, too, will be dissatisfied once the novelty of busing wears off. "As long as we have busing, we'll have buses running late, children having to stand in the rain and children wasting time that could be spent on something productive."

Researchers Credit Garlic As Solution For Chloresterol

BONN (UPI) — West German researchers have a new solution to the knotty problem of chloresterol-clogged blood vessels — garlic.

Old wives have for centuries claimed that garlic cures many ills, from snake bites to toothache.

Now, according to Professor Hans Reuter of Cologne, there is proof that garlic helps clear the fat accumulating in the blood vessels of those who love to eat rich food, thereby reducing the danger of heart attacks.

Tests showed that volunteers fed butter containing 50 grams (under two ounces) of garlic oil in gelatine capsules had a chloresterol leval considerably lower than that of a control group fed butter without garlic.

In another experiment, patients ate thcee grams of raw garlic daily. After four weeks their chloresterol level dropped markedly.

Simple, Smelly Way

It's a simple, if smelly, way to get rid of those worrying visions of heart failure as we spread a little bit of butter on our breakfast piece of bread.

But, according to Reuter, garlic not only drives out those unwanted fats in the blood, but according to tests, the herb also kills off other bacteria, among them those causing diptheria and tuberculosis.

Reuter said garlic was in some cases more effective than penicillin and other conventional antibiotics.

Side Effects Almost Nil

And, apart from the smell, garlic has no undesirable side effects.

"If everybody were to eat garlic regularly, as in many southern countries," Reuter said, "the smell would bother no one."

Reuter reported that in Greece, Russia, India and China,nwhere garlic is a traditional must in most meals, there are significantly fewer cases of arteriosclerosis.

Rauter said ct would be wrong to attribute this to garlic alone. "But," he added, "together with other favorabla elements, garlic greatly contributes toward better health."

To get the full benefit of this herbal cure, he said, fresh garlic must be used. Garlic powder won't work any medicinal miracles, since the plant loses its healing properties when processed.

Holiday Road Deaths Hit 450 Mark

By The Associated IPress

The Labor Day weekend highway death toll passed 450 Monday as heavy homebound traffic built up.

There were 456 traffic deaths by Monday night.

The National Safety Council estimated before the three-day weekend began that there would be 470 to 570 deaths. During a three-day non-holiday period at this time of the year, 430 traffic fatalities could be expected.

Last year, 469 motorists lost their lives during the Labor Day weekend. Ten years ago, there were 688 fatalities, the most fatal Labor Day holiday on record.

Guerrillas Accused Of Killing 10

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Ten passengers, including six women, who survived the crash of a Rhodesian airliner near the war-torn Zambian border were gunned down by black nationalist guerrillas, Rhodesia's military command said Monday.

A communique issued here said 18 of the 56 persons on board survived the crash, and five went for help. The guerrillas arrived and opened fire on the other 13, the statement said, killing 10. The three survivors of the guerrilla attack reported the massacre, the military said. The five who went for help were found in the bush by rescuers.

The other 38 persons aboard were believed to have died in the crash.

Missile Prospect Raised

The military announcement further fueled speculation that a guerrilla-launched ground-to-air missile may have downed the four-engine Viscount turboprop shortly after it took off from the resort town of Kariba for Salisbury 200 miles to the southeast Sunday evening.

Nationalist guerrillas of Joshua Nkomo's Zambia-based Zimbabwe African People's Union are thick in the area and said to possess Soviet-made missiles which home in on the engine heat of aircraft.

"Security force members arriving at the scene of the crash this morning said a starboard engine appeared to have exploded and the starboard external side of the plane was heavily scorched," the communique said.

The pilot, John Hood, 36, had frantically radioed that "I have lost both starboard engines," before the plane disappeared.

All the passengers were whites except for eight members of two Rhodesian Asian families. All were Rhodesians or South Africans except a Scottish couple visiting Rhodesian relatives.

Ordered To Feet

The military communique said the guerrillas arrived at the scene shortly after the crash and ordered the passengers to their feet.

"The terrorists then opened fire with Communist-made AK-47 assault rifles and 10 of the passengers died in a hail of fire," the communique said. The shooting victims were not identified, but six were said to to be women.

The military said the guerrillas then looted the aircraft and the bodies of those who died in the crash.

Security forces were at the scene Monday night picking through the wreckage to determine the cause of the crash. A military spokesman said it would be impossible at this point to know if a guerrilla missile were responsible.

In June 1977, guerrillas fired a ground-to-air missile at a private plane near the Zambian border. But it missed and hit a hotel, causing heavy damage.

The Viscount crashed 35 miles from Kariba Airport. Despite guerrilla activity, the area is popular with vacationers because of the nearby artificial lake formed by the Zambezi hydroelectric project on the border of Zambia and Rhodesia.

The crash site is in a low range of granite hills called Whamira in the local African dialect, meaning "You go no farther."

The eight survivors were in good condition at hospitals, the military said.

The area where the plane went down is heavily infiltrated by Nkomo's guerrillas. Nkomo forms the more moderate half of an often-shaky alliance known as the Patriotic Front.

Relieves Tormenting Rectal Pain And Itch, Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...Due to inflammation. Gives prompt, temporary relief from such burning itch and pain in many cases.

The burning itch and pain caused by infection and inflammation in hemorrhoidal tissues can cause much suffering. But there is an exclusive formulation that in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from this itch and pain so that the sufferer is more comfortable again. It also actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation and infection.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center reported similar successful results in many cases. This is the same medication you can buy at any drug counter under the name Preparation H®.

Preparation H also lubricates to protect the inflamed surface area and it doesn't sting or smart. In fact, it has very soothing qualities which make it especially helpful during the night when itching becomes more intense.

There's no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

Crash Victims Identified

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands (AP) — Two of four persons killed in a seaplane crash off St. Thomas were tourists from Inglewood, Calif., authorities reported Sunday.

The victims were identified as Jerry Jackson, 62, and Hazel Fay Bell, 33. Also killed in the accident Saturday were Charles Blair, 69, the pilot of the amphibious Grumman Goose and husband of actress Maureen O'Hara, and Vernon Scipio, 40, a resident of this U.S. Virgin Islands. There were seven survivors.

Jackson previously had been listed by rescue officials as a resident of Kansas.

Blair was the owner of Antilles Airboats and was making the regular flight from St. Croix to St. Thomas when the craft plunged into the ocean as it approached Charlotte Amalie harbor here.

Witnesses said one engine of the two-engined plane appeared to explode and the craft flipped over as it struck the water and sank.

Officials at Knud Hansen Memorial Hospital reported all of the survivors were recovering and would be discharged within a few days.

They were named as Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wagner, both 36, and their sons Michael Jr., 10, and David, 8, from Jersey City, N.J., and three residents of New York City, Frank Knoble, 51, Lisa Devine, 36, and Christopher Devine, 13.

Small boats managed to rescue the survivors before the plane sank in about 50 feet of water. Divers recovered the bodies of the victims trapped in the plane.

Blair and Miss O'Hara had their home on St. Croix, but she reportedly was at their other home in Ireland when the accident occurred. Miss O'Hara was active in the management of the all-amphibious airline.

Blair was considered by many islanders as the person most responsible for linking the U.S. Virgin Islands of St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John to each other and to the outside world with his airline. He was a former pilot for Pan American World Airways.

Blair broke several records when he flew a World War II P-51 fighter across the North Pole in 1951.

Meeting To Study Effects Of Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Georgetown University will host a conference later this month aimed at studying the long-term consequences of the tax-cutting movement. University officials say the Sept. 15-16 meeting will include participation by White House officials, members of Congress, national polling organizations and state and local government figures.

"This conference will focus particularly on how Proposition 13-type movements will affect the way governments operate," says Frank Sandifer of the university's Public Services Laboratory.

Earlier this summer, voters in California approved a referendum requiring a reduction in that state's property taxes.

RICH CHAMPION — Jockey Jackie Martin boots Moon Lark (4) home first by a length to win Monday's $1,280,000 All-American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs, N.M. Osage Juana (6, foreground) finished second and Holme Maid (1, background) was third. (AP Laserphoto)

Moon Lark Triumphs

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. — For a second or two, it appeared the Howard clan was about to hoist Moon Lark on its shoulders and carry him into the winner's circle at Ruidoso Downs.

There were enough Howards to do just that, too.

Moon Lark, a 9-5 favorite heading into the 20th running of the All-American Futurity, coasted to a surprisingly easy win at the "World Richest Horserace," beating second-place finisher Osage Juana, by almost a full length.

After Moon Lark's incredible win, the Howards — all 200 or so — started crawling out of the bleachers and onto the soggy track, running, jumping, and hugging each other — or anyone else that just happened to get in the way, for that matter.

They had their reasons to holler, too. About $437,000 of them.

But there were some other reasons to rejoice, too.

The Moon Lark story is one of those Cinderella jobs.

First, the three Howard brothers — Paul, James and Sam — purchased the mama of Moon Lark for $750, which isn't much considering horsemen are used to talking hundreds of thousands of bucks for a champion.

Then the trio "scraped up" $2,500 and bred the mare to Top Moon. From that duo came Moon Lark.

And that's not the end of the story. According to Paul, at one point, the trio didn't have enough money to even pay for Moon Lark's room and board at the Ruidoso Downs stable.

"We didn't have much to start with," said Paul. "But it certainly looks like our luck has changed a lot. I couldn't be any more happier, I'll tell you."

But money was not the only problem for the Coppell, Tex., brothers. Their prized possession, they later learned, also has a breathing problem.

But you couldn't tell that by the way he covered the quarter-mile in 21.84 seconds on the soggy turf.

"It would be hard for him to run much more than 440 yards," said trainer Jack Brooks. "After he runs that far, we have to walk him around and cool him off, insteading of jogging back to the stables."

Jockey Jackie Martin said the way the horse was performing Monday, he could have run all day. . . and night.

"I knew I had it when I came over the hump (the halfway point)," said the slender rider. "I looked on my sides and didn't see anyone close. That's when I knew I had 'em.

"In a way it was almost frightening, we were so far out."

Martin, who had ridden in only two stakes races prior to Monday's million-dollar affair, said he expected more of a challenge from Vespero, the pre-race favorite.

So did the 15,000 fans who had made Vespero, the winner of last month's All-American Derby, an 8-5 choice.

"I don't think he (Vespero) was ever in the race," sid Martin.

He wasn't, finishing fourth in the nine-horse field.

Vespero, considering one of the premier Quarter Horses in the country, got off to a slow start and could never make up the distance between Moon Lark, Osage Juana, and third-place Holme Made.

Martin said he faced the Labor Day Classic like any other race.

"I wanted to do everything right," he said. "The most important thing is not to make any mistakes early. In a race like this (440 yards), that will kill you.

'Pokes Drub Colts 38-0

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach winged four touchdown passes, including a 91-yard pass play to slippery Tony Dorsett, Monday night as the world champion Cowboys crushed the punchless Baltimore Colts 38-0 in the National Football League opener for both clubs.

Staubach completed his last 11 passes and finished the night with 16 of 22 for 280 yards.

Dorsett, the NFL's offensive rookie of the year last season, rushed 15 times for 147 yards and caught three passes for 107 yards through the stunned Colt "Sack Pack."

The Cowboys rolled up their second largest offensive total in the club's history, 587 yards.

After a slow first quarter in which Baltimore's weaponless offense flubbed two scoring chances, Dallas struck for three touchdons in the last eight minutes of the second quarter in the nationally televised rout.

Baltimore, the defending American Conference Eastern Division champions, sorely missed injured quarterback Bert Jones and runningback Lydell Mitchell, who was traded after a feud with management.

Tony Hill ignited the Cowboys on a 45-yard pass and run from Staubach to set up Doug Dennison's 1-yard scoring plunge.

The Cowboys scored again in less than three minutes when Dorsett caught a tipped pass, dodged three Colt tacklers and zipped 91 yards with a convoy of four blockers. He was so wide open he slapped hands with two teammates before crossing the goal line.

An 8-yard Staubach pass to Billy Joe DuPree gave the Cowboys a 21-0 lead before the sellout crowd of 65,000 at Texas Stadium.

Stabach rifled a 38-yard touchdown pass to Drew Pearson and tossed a 1-yard TD pass to Jay Saldi in the third quarter before retiring in favor of Danny White.

Third-string quarterback Mike Kirkland, starting his first NFL regular-season game, was sacked four times in the first half as the Dallas "Doomsday Defense" held the Colts to a minus-6 yards passing.

It was the 14th consecutive season-opening victory for the Cowboys.

Reese McCall recovered Butch Johnson's fumble of the opening kickoff at the Dallas 20 but the Cowboy defense held firm and Toni Linhart missed a 27-yard field goal attempt.

On Dallas' next possession, cornerback Norm Thompson intercepted a floating Staubach pass to give Baltimore possession at the Dallas 40. Again the Colts couldn't move and had to punt the ball away.

Dallas then ripped 79 yards from its 20 to the Baltimore 1 where Saldi fell down as Staubach's pass floated past his head. Rafael Septien, obtained by the Cowboys after the Los Angeles released him a week ago, was wide on an 18-yard field goal try.

Then Hill took off on his long scamper with a short screen pass.

Packing Time

'FRAGILE, HANDLE WITH CARE," reads the label. "Visitors Dressing Room, Los Angeles Coliseum, Los Angeles, Calif.," it continues.

The boxes are ready to be packed, stashed away, and delivered, all in one parcel to that West Coast destination. They contain shoulder pads, elbow protecters, and other shields of warfare. They're the ones the Raiders will don Saturday afternoon as they prepare for the battle in storied LA Coliseum against Southern Cal.

Although the team will not leave until Friday, the heavy padding can be shipped now; it won't be used until gametime. Rex Dockery shut down on the heavy contact work Monday afternoon.

"From here on," the Raider head man commented Monday, "we'll take it easy. We have all our stuff (gameplan) in, but we won't have any more contact work.

"We had a good workout today (Monday), a lot of intensity," Dockery added. "But, you just don't want to take a chance of getting anybody else hurt, this close to the game."

• • •

AND THE TIME is getting closer to Dockery's head-coaching debut. All the alfalfa is just about hoisted into the loft.

Some of the problems Dockery knew he faced when spring training have been eased, but others remain.

There was youth, which Dockery realized. Now, he is even younger than he might have thought: On his two-deep roster, offense and defense, he has but 21 juniors and seniors. The rest are still shopping around for one of those close shaves and some of that stuff that make you smell like a man. Maybe a dozen fresh will make the trip westward.

Monday, Dockery spoke of some of those youngsters, many of them freshmen, and how they could contribute. Monterey's Ron Reeves could be the kickoff man when the Raiders line up against Southern Cal. Reeves has been working on the assignment along with letterman Bill Adams.

Linebacker C.M. Pier (Plano) has moved to the front of the linebacking reserves. "C.M. has had a great pre-fall. He comes from a good program, and he has shown a lot of maturity."

• • •

DOCKERY ALSO MENTIONED Tate Randle, from Fort Stockton, as impressing with his reserve efforts in the secondary.

"Randle and Ted Watts (a juco transfer) are playing well," the coach said. "Watts will probably return punts and kickoffs. We've found some depth (these two included) in the secondary. We've improved tremendously (there) since spring."

The defensive side of the football appears to be developing, although Dockery is concerned about team speed and the Raiders' ability to rush the passer. On offense, however, some losses and injuries have changed the situation.

"Depth is a concern," Dockery commented. Travis Mileur, regular backup at center to Kim Taliaferro, is being used to work behind quick tackle Ken Walter. And, starter Joe Walstad is stepping over to back up Taliaferro at center.

"It hurt us offensively to lose people like Tim Orr, Sam Bailey and Steve Dawson (at the runningback spot). And we're still trying to find a punter. We're trying (freshman) Maury Buford and (sophomores) Steve Holifield and Eric Jones, but Jones has been hurt."

On the flanks, however, Dockery is pleased with the return of veteran Brian Nelson as well as the work of freshman Randy Page.

"Brian (coming off knee surgery) is ready to play. There will be some doubt in his mind until he plays the first game. But, I think he'll do okay.

"Page (a converted quarterback from Oklahoma City) is really improved in the week he's been playing a wide spot. He has a lot of talent. We'll keep him there the rest of the season and then look at him at quarterback in the spring."

The work has been done, now the Raiders will try to regain their life from the rigors or two-a-days, in preparation for meeting the Trojans. The youth movement begins Saturday.

Guidry Stops Tigers; Boston's Lead Cut By O's

By The Associated Press

Scott McGregor retired 23 consecutive batters after Jim Rice slugged a three-run homer in the first inning Monday night, and Lee May's two-run sixth-inning double put Baltimore ahead to stay — leading the Orioles to a 5-3 over the Red Sox.

The loss reduced Boston's American League East Division lead to five games over the New York Yankees, who split a doubleheader with the Detroit Tigers.

Players from both benches dashed onto the field in the Baltimore seventh after Boston pitcher Dennis Eckersley, backing up the plate, knocked down the Orioles' Larry Harlow after a play at home.

Harlow was caught trying to score on a single by Pat Kelly. After Harlow collided with Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk, who applied the tag, Eckersley knocked Harlow down with a double forearm shove.

DODGERS 5, GIANTS 4

Rick Monday's 16th homer of the season launched a five-run Los Angeles fifth inning and gave the Dodgers a 5-4 victory over San Francisco expanding their National League West lead over the Giants to two games.

After Monday's homer, Bill Russell, Steve Garvey and Dusty Baker singled home runs as the Dodgers rallied from a 4-0 deficit.

BREWERS, MARINERS SPLIT

Gorman Thomas belted a two-run homer and Ben Oglivie added a bases-empty shot to back Bill Travers' six-hit pitching, leading Milwaukee to a 5-0 second-game victory over Seattle and a doubleheader split. The Mariners won the opener 4-3 as Lee Stanton, batting .181 before the game, singled home Tom Paciorek with one out in the ninth inning to break a 3-3 tie.

INDIANS 5, BLUE JAYS 4

Gary Alexander cracked a two-run double, then scored on a double by Ted Cox, highlighting a three-run Cleveland sixth-inning and carrying the Indians to a 5-4 victory over Toronto.

Bake McBride doubled, tripled and scored two runs and Mike Schmidt lashed his 17th home run, powering the Philadelphia Phillies to a 10-2 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals for a split of their doubleheader.

The split kept the Phillies one game in front of Pittsburgh in the National League's East Division.

EXPOS SWEEP CUBS

Gary Carter's squeeze bunt in the 10th inning scored Larry Parrish from third base to give Montreal a 6-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs and a doubleheader sweep. Warren Cromartie's two-run single which Ivan DeJesus lost in the sun, and three hits by Tony Perez, including his 11th homer, gave the Expos a 5-3 victory in the first game.

PADRES 8, BRAVES 4

Jim Wilhelm's first major league hit, a two-run double in the fifth inning, triggered San Diego to a 8-4 triumph over Atlanta and handed Braves' rookie pitcher Larry McWilliams his first major league defeat.

TWINS 2, WHITE SOX 1

Geoff Zahn's four-hitter and runs batted in by Roy Smalley and Mike Cubbage led the Minnesota Twins to a 2-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Zahn, 11-13, outduelled Francisco Barrios, 8-13, who allowed just six hits. Zahn struck out two and walked three en route to his 10th complete game of the year.

YANKEES, TIGERS SPLIT

Ron Guidry scattered five hits and became the first 20-game winner in the majors as the New York Yankees scored eight runs in the seventh inning and trounced the Detroit Tigers 9-1 in the opener of a Labor Day doubleheader.

The Tigers won the second game 5-4 when pinch-hitter John Wockenfuss doubled with one out in the eighth inning and scored the tie-breaking run when right fielder Gary Thomasson misplayed Mark Wagner's two-out line drive for an error.

The Yankees snapped a 1-1 tie in the seventh and ended the personal six-game winning streak of Detroit starter Milt Wilcox, 12-9.

REDS 6, ASTROS 3

Bill Bonham scattered eight hits over the first six innings to pick up his first victory since the All-Star break and Joe Morgan collected three hits to lead Cincinnati to a 6-3 decision over the Houston Astros.

Quarterbacks (Past And Present) Keys To NFL Decisions

By The Associated Press

For the most part, the quarterbacks who weren't supposed to start Sunday shouldn't have. The same could be said for most of Sunday's favorites as well.

In a first weekend of National Football League action that had all the so-called experts tearing up their predictions (and tearing out their hair), seven of the games were won by underdogs — and a few of those were outright shockers.

With quarterbacks Ken Anderson of Cincinnati and Bob Griese of Miami out of action, the Bengals and Dolphins took it on the chin. Kansas City, projected as a patsy for most of its games, stung the Bengals 24-23 while the New York Jets, rated as easy pickings for any team needing a victory, picked apart the Dolphins 33-20.

New Orleans, supposedly a pushover, shoved Minnesota 31-24. Green Bay, a consensus last-place selection, stunned Detroit 13-7. Washington, cast as a team of fading oldsters, beat younger New England 16-14. Atlanta, supposed to wilt under Earl Campbell's assault, turned on the defense again and beat Houston 20-14. And Denver, labeled a one-year wonder by some, started out this year by zapping the Oakland Raiders 14-6.

It was a weekend in which several starting quarterbacks never stepped onto the field because of preseason injuries, in which a few more starters got flattened and in which the reserves just didn't have what it takes to come out a winner.

If Anderson had been calling Cincinnati's signals, things might have been different, but his broken finger made journeyman John Reaves No.1 — and Reaves had a mediocre day, completing 10 of 24 passes for 157 yards and two interceptions.

"I'm not a quitter," Reaves proclaimed after the loss. "We'll never give up." The Chiefs' quarterback, by the way, also was a replacement. Tony Adams took over early after Mike Livingston suffered a concussion, passed just 10 times, completing six for 66 yards, but directed Kansas City's ball-control offense to three scoring drives of more than 50 yards.

When Griese tore up a knee in the final weekend of exhibitions, some fans dredged up memories of 1972 when Earl Morrall replaced him as Miami's No. 1 quarterback early in the season and directed the Dolphins to a perfect record.

But this time, Don Strock couldn't even manage victory No. 1. He completed 10 of 23 passes for 108 yards and had two passes picked off, each leading to a score by the Jets. "The truth is, I didn't play well," Strock said. "Once you're in the hole, it's hard coming back out. But of course, I put us in that hole."

Another youngster who hoped to carry his team's honor was Steve DeBerg, the almost unknown San Francisco quarterback who was leapfrogged from No. 3 to No. 1 when Jim Plunkett was dumped and when Scott Bull didn't perform well enough in the exhibitions.

But DeBerg's preseason flash faded in Cleveland. He completed 16 of 32 passes for 174 yards but had three passes picked off, one of them preceding the Browns' winning touchdown. "I wasn't happy with my performance," he said. "I'm a better quarterback than that. . .I'm just glad the first one's over with, but I wish it would've been on a winning note."

On Saturday night, the starting quarterbacks for both the New York Giants and Tampa Bay Buccaneers wound up on the sidelines with injuries. Jerry Golsteyn of the Giants, sandwiched by linemen Dave Pear and Lee Roy Selmon, suffered injured ribs while rookie Doug Williams, clobbered by Gary Jeter while running out of bounds, sagged to the ground before the next play began and was helped off the field with a shoulder injury.

Just about the only "kids" who came out of the first weekend unscathed were Green Bay's David Whitehurst and Atlanta's June Jones III.

Whitehurst got the Packers' starting quarterback job by default last year when Lynn Dickey suffered a broken leg. He received a shoulder separation in the final preseason game, but started against Detroit. Statistically he wasn't overwhelming — completions on three of nine passes for 30 yards — but as coach Bart Starr said, "He showed how much grit he had during the entire game." The Packers won with defense, most notably eight sacks of Lions quarterback Greg Landry, five of them by Ezra Johnson.

Jones hit 10 of 23 passes for 104 yards and, like the Packers, the Falcons rode their defense to victory — two fumble recoveries, two interceptions, four sacks and a key blocked punt which wound up as an Atlanta touchdown when Tom Moriarty recovered the ball in the end zone.

Safety Tommy Myers, who wanted to be traded from New Orleans last year but changed his mind when coach Hank Stram was canned after the season, was the big cog in the Saints' defense. He intercepted three Fran Tarkenton passes, returning one of them 97 yards for the winning touchdown.

And defense, as usual, was Denver's thing. The Broncos converted two Oakland turnovers into touchdowns, picking up where they left off last year when they beat the Raiders in the American Conference championship.

Kite Answers Golf Skeptics

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Kite says there are still doubters who say he cannot make it on the professional golf tour because he is not a long ball hitter.

"It burns me up when they say I can't make it on the tour. I have made it," said the slender Texan who won the $225,000 B.C. Open Monday.

After joining the tour six years ago, Kite said he changed his swing, lengthening his drive off the tee. He now considers himself to be an average driver on the tour.

But the reputation as a pro who can't hit a long ball still lingers.

"They don't even know I've changed my swing since college. When you get a reputation like that, it's awfully tough to live it down."

Kite didn't need to hit the long ball at the En-Joie Golf Club where the narrow fairways favor the placement specialist.

Kite ran off four straight birdies to put an end to a challenge of friend Mark Hayes to win the tournament by five strokes Monday.

Kite never trailed during the fours days of golf in the tournament named for a comic strip drawn by local cartoonist Johnny Hart.

The slender Texan finished with a 17-under-par 267 and finished Monday's round with a three-under 68 that put down a challenge from Mark Hayes.

Hayes eagled the third hole to move to within two strokes of Kite when the 28-year-old former NCAA champion from Texas bogeyed the fourth hole. But Kite came back with four straight birdies to put down Hayes' challenge. Hayes also finished the round with a 68.

Peter Jacobsen of Portland, Ore., finished third, eight strokes behind Kite.

Kite earned $45,000 in winning the second tournament of his career since joining the tour in 1972. That gave him $149,737 for this year with second place finishes in the Hall of Fame Classic and the British Open.

Navratilova Gains Net Quarter-Finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova, who is seeking to solidify her status as the top woman tennis player in the world, marched into the quarter-finals of the $552,480 U.S. Open championships Monday with a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Ann Kiyomura.

"I've proven myself on every surface," the 21-year-old Czech expatriate said about her new role as the queen of tennis. "Now I know I've done it, so I don't feel like I have to prove myself. I've beaten the best."

Miss Navratilova, who dethroned Virginia Wade at Wimbledon in June and is trying to do the same to Chris Evert here, had lost just five games in her first two matches, against Gail Lovera and Marie Pinterova, following a first-round bye.

The 23-year-old Kiyomura provided a stiffer test, scoring a pair of service breaks in the opening set. But the hard-hitting Miss Navratilova responded to the challenge by breaking right back both times, then breaking Miss Kiyomura at love in the 10th and final game of the set.

She broke with another love game to take a 2-0 lead in the second set and went on to wrap up the match with ease.

"Today was the first time I really was pushed," said Miss Navratilova. "I was kind of panicking in the first set because I'm not used to somebody half-volleying on my serve. It took me awhile to get used to her game, but once I did I was fine."

Miss Navratilova said there have been no major changes in her life since her victory over Miss Evert in the Wimbledon finals stamped her as No. 1.

Meanwhile, the men began best-of-five set competition, and the extra margin for error proved comforting to fourth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis.

He dropped the first set to 31-year-old Bob Lutz, but had plenty of time to come back for a 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 victory to move into the quarter-finals.

The men play best-of-three sets for the first three rounds and best-of-five the rest of the way. The women play best-of-three throughout.

Gerulaitis played his normal, aggressive, serve and volley game. Lutz scored well with passing shots in the first set, but Gerulaitis' net play improved as the set wore on and this turned the match in his favor. Lutz committed 26 unforced errors with his forehand and 23 with his backhand, giving the 24-year-old Gerulaitis all the chances he needed.

After the match, Lutz was bitter because of a line call which had originally gone in his favor but was changed after a complaint from Gerulaitis and prolonged discussion among officials. But Gerulaitis said he has seen several bad calls in his matches, and that playing a let — a do over — is the fairest thing to do when the officials can't reach agreement.

Another seeded player from the metropolitan New York area, No. 15 John McEnroe of Douglaston, N.Y., also moved into the quarter-finals with a 7-6, 6-3, 6-3 victory over Colin Dowdeswell of Australia before a crowd of 15,577.

And in a battle of unseeded players, hard-hitting 20-year-old Johan Kriek of South Africa defeated Brian Teacher 7-6, 6-3, 7-6.

EHS Volleyballers Face Loop Tourneys

Estacado volleyball coach Sue Frymire exhales a nervous laugh when talking about this year's district race.

The reason for the nervousness is two-fold: First, EHS will be competing in a new loop, and second, it will face a different district format.

This year, because of realignment, Estacado will be a member of District 1-AAA, after competing in 3-AAA in 1977.

Instead of playing a round-robin schedule as in the past, this year, the district champion will be determined after play on consecutive Saturdays in Canyon.

On Nov. 4, the five 1-AAA schools will meet to decide a first-half champion, then on Nov. 11, the teams will again get together to find a second-half champion.

If the first-half champion is different from the second half winner, there will be a playoff on Nov. 18 to determine the champion.

"If a team gets sick, you're going to be in trouble," said Miss Frymire. "But all of the teams are in the same situation, so there shouldn't be any team with an advantage."

For the most part, this will be a rebuilding year for Estacado. Only senior Felisca Johnson will return to a team that finished second in the 3-AAA race last year.

"Felisca will be our team leader," said Miss Frymire. "She will have a lot of weight on her shoulders as she will be surrounded by five junior varsity players."

But Estacado will have some height. The team will average 5-7. The tallest player on the squad is Stephine Peoples, at 5-8. She will join Miss Johnson as a spiker.

Other members of the Estacado team will include spikers Chantel Jackson, Joy Guyton, Cynthia Harris, Jewel Armstead, Maxine Walker, and Carla Washington, and setter Venus Armstead.

Though Estacado will be a relatively inexperienced team, changing districts may be beneficial to EHS this season.

"In all honesty, 1-AAA isn't as tough a volleyball district as 3-AAA," said Miss Frymire.

The coach described 3-AAA as a power volleyball district.

"By power volleyball, I mean that 3-AAA teams have been playing the game long enough that they have the timing down on the three basic hit (relay, set and spike). Thus they are able to get the maximum results out of those shots. But 1-AAA hasn't been competing in volleyball as long, and as a result the shots are inconsistent."

Miss Frymire believes that Dunbar is the team to beat in the district. Dunbar also changed from 3-AAA to 1-AAA this season.

"But you really never know. I've watched 1-AAA teams play, but things could have changed since I've seen them. You really never know. They could have improved more than I anticipate."

Of course, Miss Frymire isn't going to count her team out of the loop race.

"If we keep progressing like we have the past two weeks, we'll have a shot at it (the district title). We have a tough non-district schedule, which I'm hoping will get us ready for the district tournaments."

THE SCHEDULE

Sept. 7— Palo Duro; Sept. 11— at Lubbock; Sept. 12— at Monterey; Sept. 15-16— West Texas State Tournament at Canyon; Sept. 18— at Coronado; Sept. 19— Monterey; Sept. 22-23— Lubbock Tournament; Sept. 25— Coronado; Sept. 26— at Frenship; Sept. 29-30— Denver City Tournament.

Oct.5— Frenship; Oct. 9— Brownfield; Oct. 12— Lubbock; Oct. 17— at Levelland; Oct. 19— at Lamesa; Oct.24— Lamesa; Oct. 26— at Snyder; Oct. 31— Levelland; Nov. 4— District 1-AAA Tournament; Nov. 11— 1-AAA Tournament; Nov. 18— district playoff (if needed).

Yarborough Captures Record Fourth Southern

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Cale Yarborough held off a challenge by Darrell Waltrip Monday to win his fourth Southern 500 stock car race, a record number of victories in the annual Labor Day event.

Yarborough, in an Oldsmobile, won $30,000 of the $225,000 purse in the 29th running of the "granddaddy" of NASCAR's superspeedway races.

Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., averaged 116.828 mph and finished three seconds ahead of Waltrip, who had started his Chevrolet in the second front row position beside Mercury-driving David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C.

Pearson was knocked out of the 367-lap race on the 167th lap by a four-car pileup that also included Coo Coo Marlin of Columbia, Tenn., in a Chevrolet, D.K. Ulrich of Harrisburg, N.C., also in a Chevrolet, and Grant Adcox of Chattanooga, Tenn., another Chevrolet driver.

Ulrich and Adcox were taken to a nearby hospital for treatment but both were conscious when they left the track in an ambulance. The other two drivers involved in the mishap escaped without injury.

Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., finished third in a Chevrolet, Terry Labante of Corpus Christi was fourth in a Chevrolet and Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., was fifth in a Ford.

The race got off to an ominous beginning when Tieghe Scott of Ten Agrly, Pa., in a Chevrolet, spun out on the 25th lap, raising the first caution flag of the day.

Neil Bonnett of Hueytown, Ala., in a Chevrolet, coming in for a pit stop after Scott's spinout, hit a pole and knocked down a power line, and laps 26-38 were run under a caution flag until the lines were repaired.

The only other person to win more than two Southern 500 races over the treacherous Darlington International Speedway, a 1.4-mile banked oval that recently underwent repairs to make it safer, is Allison, who has three victories under his belt.

Allison, in a Ford, made a run for the lead late in the race but could not catch the elusive Yarborough.

Yarborough held the lead seven times for a total of 203 laps, including the last 107 laps of the race.

He entered the race as this year's point leader with a 3,347-3,139 lead over Dave Marcis of Skyland, N.C., whose Chevrolet was knocked out of the race on the 123rd lap after being involved in a collision with Bobby Wawak of Villa Park, Ill., and Ricky Rudd of Chesapeake, Va., who were also in Chevrolets.

There were 21 lead changes involving 10 drivers with nine caution flags involving 73 laps.

The four-car wreck was one of a number of accidents that forced a number of the drivers in the 40-car starting field to the sidelines during the four-hour marathon attended by 76,000 persons under a blazing South Carolina sun.

Except for Ulrich and Adcox, no other injuries to drivers were reported.

The four-car collision occurred when Adcox slammed into the wall as he entered the second turn, setting off a chain reaction that caused the other cars to smash into each other.

Forbes Takes Can-Am

TROIS-RIVIERES, Quebec (AP) — Elliott Forbes-Robinson of La Crescenta, Calif., drove his Spyder NF10 to a convincing 25-second victory over fellow-Californian Warwick Brown of Costa Mesa Monday in the eighth event of the 10-race Citicorp Cup Can-Am series for 1978.

Alan Jones of Britain, the series leader, drove his Lola T333CS to a third-place finish. Brown also was driving a Lola T333CS.

The race originally had been scheduled for Sunday but was postponed because of heavy rain. Bill Brack of Toronto was the winner of the rain-shortened Trois-Rivieres Molson Grand Prix for Formula Atlantic cars on Sunday.

Forbes-Robinson averaged 83 mph over the 42 laps on the 2-mile course. His total time was 1 hour, 4 minutes and 14 seconds.

The triumph was the second of the season for Forbes-Robinson, who also won the series race at Charlotte, N.C., May 27.

In spite of his third-place finish here, Jones remained the series leader with 2,280 points, compared with 2,020 for Brown.

The victory was worth $18,000 to Forbes-Robinson, with Brown collecting $11,000 and Jones earning $7,200. The total purse for the race was $75,000.

The next race in the Can-Am series will be held at Monterey, Calif., Oct. 8, with the season final at Riverside, Calif., Oct. 15.

Brack was the ultimate beneficiary of an accident during the rain in the Formula Atlantic race on Sunday, which saw March 77B driver Michael Rocke of Castro Valley, Calif., suffer two broken legs and a broken arm when his car went into the guard rail on the back straight during the 10th lap.

Brack was in third position at the time of the accident, behind Howdy Holmes of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Ricardo Patrese of Italy.
