Middle East Talks Opening In Discord

Views By Begin Irritate Sadat

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — Anwar Sadat and Menachem Begin went into mountaintop isolation Tuesday for a Mideast summit conference, immediately at odds over its goals and the role to be played by President Carter.

"This is no time for maneuver and for worn-out ideas," said the Egyptian president, signaling his impatience with Begin's limited objectives for the meeting at this Marine-guarded presidential retreat. "It is time for magnanimity and reason."

"We come here at a crucial crossroad," Sadat said. "The challenge is tremendous. We have no choice but to accept the challenge. We cannot afford to fail."

Labeled Groundwork For Future Talks

But Begin made it clear he sees the summit as an opportunity to lay groundwork for lower-level talks in the future. He said he would do everything "to reach an agreement so this peace process can continue and ultimately be crowned with peace treaties."

The Israeli prime minister acknowledged that this meeting — his fifth with Carter and third with Sadat — "is the most important, the most momentous of all."

"Let us hope out of that unique political conclave the day will come when nations of the world will say, 'Habemus pacem,'" Begin said. Then he translated the Latin: "We have peace."

Get Red Carpet Receptions

First Sadat, then Begin — about two hours apart — got red carpet welcomes from Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington. Defense Secretary Harold Brown joined the welcoming for Begin.

Both leaders were met as well by small groups of supporters, who sang national songs.

Sadat walked over to his assemblage of nearly 200 supporters and waved across security barricades. Begin greeted his group, about half that large, and reached across the barricades to hug and kiss a number of them.

After their arrival statements, Begin and Sadat boarded helicopters for Camp David, northwest of Washington, where Carter was waiting. Sadat hugged the president and his wife, Rosalynn, then kissed them on both cheeks — in keeping with Arab custom.

Carter met Begin's helicopter as well. Carter and Begin embraced, and Mrs. Carter got kisses on both cheeks. As he did with Sadat, Carter walked Begin to his rustic lodge in the Camp David compound, ignoring limousines and electric golf carts standing by.

Lodge Sessions Held

The U.S. president invited each of his guests to his lodge for about 15 minutes alone. White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said these were not business sessions, but that Carter explained "the layout of the camp, and so forth."

Powell announced a Carter-Begin session later Tuesday as the first business session of the summit. The press secretary said Sadat would meet with the U.S. president Wednesday morning. The three leaders were expected to get together later Wednesday.

The eve of the summit was marred by two explosions in Jerusalem. Authorities blamed bombs planted by Arab terrorists.

One blast seriously injured an attendant at a gasoline station and a police sapper who emigrated to Israel, after serving in the Vietnam war. The other blast damaged an empty tourist bus.

Newspapers around the world took note of the summit. The Maariv in Tel Aviv said "it's doubtful that there's ever been an international summit in modern times held in an atmosphere of such pessimism."

Caution Proposed

In Beirut, the independent An Nahar said Sadat "should enter Camp David with an olive branch in one hand and a gun in the other."

Tass, the Soviet press agency, said in Moscow that the "U.S. press is highly skeptical in assessing the possible outcome."

The Israeli prime minister, a negotiator with a reputation for time-consuming attention to detail, viewed the talks in the seclusion of Camp David as an opportunity to reaffirm the peace covenant he made nine months ago with Sadat.

Begin says he hopes a basis can be found for continuing Egyptian-Israeli talks — presumably at a lower, ministerial level — lasting months if necessary to achieve a settlement.

Sadat, impatient with details and given to bold, history-changing moves, considers the summit "the last chance for peace."

He has rejected Begin's suggestion of deliberate consideration over several months of the innumerable issues in

Lubbock Phone Dispute Settlement Step Nearer

By PAT TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

WITH differences between phone company workers and management resolved in Corpus Christi, members of the Communications Workers of America, local 12203 of Lubbock, decided Tuesday not to take a strike vote.

Sherry Lindsey, president, said the nearly 150 members of the local, representing Lubbock, Plainview, Floydada, Slaton and Lockney, were notified that the South Texas dispute had been cleared up about 2:30 a.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Lindsey stressed, however, that relations between CWA members and Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. management remain "extremely strained and will continue that way for some time."

She said local and statewide union membership is "in a turmoil" over the July 26 dismissal of Mrs. Lindsey and Glenn W. Smith, union officials the CWA contends were singled out by management when they were suspended for two weeks without pay.

Picket Line Honored

The suspension, union officials say, came when Mrs. Lindsey and Smith honored an International Brotherhood of Electrical Worker's picket line and other workers followed their example.

Separate grievances have been filed with two division level managers, Mrs.

Lindsey said Tuesday, as the employees seek backpay and the removal of "references" from their employee files.

Asked if union members statewide were "shocked" by the recent two-week suspensions handed down in Lubbock, Mrs. Lindsey said "mad" would be more accurate.

The prospect of a strike "can't totally be put out of the picture," she said, although she indicated that no special meetings of union members were planned in the immediate future.

"We'll still have our monthly meetings," she added.

One-Way Policies Claimed

The local CWA membership claim the recent suspensions here were symptomatic of the "one-way policies of Southwestern Bell's vice president and general manager, C. L. Todd."

"It's a signal to us that the two-way street of labor-management understanding and cooperation is in danger of being closed off," the union said in a prepared statement Tuesday.

Differences between workers and management in Corpus Christi stemmed from another problem, Mrs. Lindsey said: "forced overtime."

She said management had suspended workers who had refused to work overtime in Corpus Christi.

Dog-Lover Battles Insurance Charge

BOSTON (AP) — A woman who was assessed a $50 automobile insurance surcharge for hitting a tree while trying to avoid a dog has filed an appeal in Norfolk Superior Court on behalf of animal lovers.

Irmhild D. Holst, who has no legal training and was unable to find a lawyer to take her case, wrecked her car last November when she unsuccessfully tried to avoid hitting a dog. Her insurance company paid $2,215 for damages and imposed the surcharge. She said she has already spent more in filing fees and related expenses than the amount of the surcharge.

Local 12203 of the CWA has about 800 members employed as accountants, telephone operators, installers and directory salesmen.

Schools Show 1,000 Drop In Enrollment

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PUBLIC-school officials said Tuesday enrollment still is down by about 1,000 students. They said the resulting reduction in state funds may necessitate paring personnel rolls.

"If our loss is indeed what it appears to be, we will have to look at our pupil-teacher ratio. As we receive teacher resignations during the year, it may be necessary to leave some of those positions unfilled," said Dr. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration of the Lubbock Independent School District.

He commented on the matter after releasing enrollment statistics for Tuesday, the start of the second week of the 1978-79 school year. The report showed the district with 30,422 students, compared with 31,769 at the same time last term.

"We are still 1,347 students below the enrollment we had on the first day of the second week of the previous school year," Leslie said.

In one respect, he added, Tuesday's figure is encouraging. The district entered the new school term — character-

Woodward Approves Draining Of Lake

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CITING potential loss of life and property, U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward Tuesday issued an order granting the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service permission to drain Buffalo Lake.

The federal judge said the possibility of a flood disaster at the lake, nine miles northwest of Canyon, outweighed environmental and recreational considerations.

"It should be kept in mind that Tierra Blanca Creek flows eastward from the dam toward the south part of Canyon, Texas, and into the Palo Duro State Park, and any severe flooding of this area which might be caused by the breach of the dam would certainly impose a severe threat to life and to the destruction of property," an opinion accompanying the order stated.

Loss Of Life Feared

Woodward said evidence had convinced him that "unless the proper steps are taken, loss of life and property could possibly result."

The ruling means that drainage of the lake, which had been halted by a temporary restraining order Aug. 28, can now be resumed.

A group known as the Buffalo Lake Survival Committee had gained the restraining order at an Amarillo hearing last week.

Restraining Order Dissolved

Woodward's Tuesday order dissolved the restraining order and denied the group's bid for a temporary injunction.

Plaintiff attorney Ronald E. Walker, Jr., indicated Tuesday he was disappointed at the decision. "The evidence was clear that the hazard was there whether the lake held water or not," he said.

He said testimony indicated that, in the event of torrential rain, the lake bed would, even if dry, be flooded beyond the capacity of the spillway.

But the Amarillo attorney said there probably will be no appeal, even though he feels an appeal would have merit.

"Unfortunately, it appears we have no remedy," Walker said. "Apparently, we cannot get a bond pending appeal."

Without some sort of stay agreement, Walker indicated, an appeal would be rendered moot because the lake would be drained before the appeal was decided.

Walker said that after learning of the decision he had telephoned a Department of the Interior official to see if a stay agreement pending appeal could be negotiated, but was turned down.

The government decision to drain the lake came in the wake of Memorial Day weekend floods in Randall County, which were blamed for three deaths and $15 million in damage.

Evidence indicated there had been four

Elevator Fire Imperils Town

KINDE, Mich. (AP) — Dozens of residents were evacuated from their homes here Tuesday night as a fire which erupted at a local grain elevator blazed out of control.

Deputies could not immediately say how many residents of this town of 615 persons would be evacuated. Civil defense authorities escorted the evacuees from their homes to a local high school and a VFW Hall.

Units from virtually every fire department in Huron County were called to help battle the blaze, which broke out just before 8 p.m. at the Kinde Farmers' Elevator and quickly spread to the nearby Bad Axe Grain Co.

Evacuations began when the blaze began to threaten a storage area containing tanks filled with fuel oil, gasoline and liquid fertilizer, Huron County sheriff's deputies said.

There were no reports of injuries. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined, but deputies said it appeared to have started in an area used for drying grain.

City Retains Utility Sales Tax

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LUBBOCK residents will continue paying a one percent sales tax on residential utility bills even though legislators recently gave the city the option of dropping the levy.

During the recent special session, the state legislature repealed the four percent state tax on residential gas and electric bills.

That law also automatically repeals the one percent city tax on utilities Oct. 1, 1979, unless the city council votes to continue the tax.

Already 39 Texas cities have decided to follow the state and repeal the tax, while another 46, including Lubbock intend to continue collecting the tax.

City Manager Larry Cunningham said the council approved a budget "which represents what the majority of citizens have asked for" before it was known what action the legislature had taken regarding the sales tax on utilities.

"The city will retain the one-cent sales tax on utilities which most property owners believe to be the fairest form of all taxation," he said.

Cunningham called the state's four percent reduction "an overdue decrease in the surplus of the state government."

"If the city were to drop the one percent sales tax at this time, it would entail again increasing ad valorem taxes or further cutting services to make up for the estimated $600,000 that this would take out of the general fund," he continued.

However, Cunningham did not rule out the city council repealing the tax later.

"How long the city will retain the optional one-cent sales tax depends on what services and growth the city expects from Lubbock," he said.

"Forty-five cities in the state of Texas have voted to retain this fair sales tax and the 39 cities that are dropping it, we are sure, did very little to cut ad valorem taxes."

Were the city to repeal the tax the state comptroller's office would have to be notified this week.

Comptroller Bob Bullock said cities

Rep. Flood Indicted By Grand Jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., was indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday in Los Angeles on three counts of giving false testimony to a trial jury and a grand jury.

Flood, 74, faces up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count if convicted. The formal charges fall under the perjury statute in the U.S. Code. No date was set for arraignment.

At his home in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Flood said he had been informed of the indictment and "I completely deny all of these assertions and implications... I am certain that these charges will be proven false, charges made by desperate men under pressure."

Related Charges Pending

The veteran congressman is still under investigation by grand juries in Washington and Philadelphia which are looking into related charges. The House ethics committee also is investigating Flood.

As chairman of the House labor, health, education and welfare subcommittee, Flood has considerable influence over the distribution of billions of federal dollars to schools and hospitals.

Tuesday's indictment stems at least in

CHARITY HEAD

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul I has named African Cardinal Bernardin Gantin as president of the Vatican's One-Heart Council, the office which supervises the Roman Catholic Church's charities. The Vatican has announced.

Russian Orthodox Archbishop Dies During Papal Audience

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Russian Orthodox Archbishop Nikodim, an advocate of Christian unity and one of the six presidents of the World Council of Churches, died Tuesday of a heart attack during an audience with Pope John Paul I. The new pontiff gave him absolution and a final blessing.

ARCHBISHOP NIKODIM

Nikodim, the bearded 49-year-old metropolitan of Leningrad and Novgorod, had suffered from a heart ailment since 1971.

He had just conveyed his congratulations to the pope when he slumped in his chair in the pontiff's private library.

An aide dashed to bring pills from the Russian churchman's attache case and a doctor was summoned. But Nikodim, who had survived five previous heart attacks, succumbed. The pope then administered the last rites, officials said.

The body was removed to the small nearby church of St. Anne. It lay on a catafalque in the central nave, dressed in the flowing black cloak of Eastern Orthodoxy and with a round silver headdress symbolizing his office as archbishop.

Pope John Paul said he was "deeply moved" by Nikodim's death and called Nikodim a "devoted servant of his church."

The Soviet news agency Tass carried an announcement of the archbishop's death and called him "an active participant" in international peace movements. The dispatch from Moscow said he would be buried in Leningrad.

Nikodem said in the past he was not a communist but he consistently refrained from any criticism of the Soviet regime, which regulates and restricts religious activity.

Other Orthodox prelates and Dutch Cardinal Johannes Willebrands were present during the audience and a group of 20 ecumenical representatives waited to see the pope in an adjoining room.

Nikodim's death "cast a cloud over the whole occasion," said the Rev. Carl Mau, general secretary of the Lutheran World Federation.

The pope received the others briefly, but in one group rather than separately as had been planned.

"We thank God for the dedicated, untiring and courageous ministry of our brother and for his total devotion to his church in his life, his witness and the ecumenical movement," said World Council General Secretary Dr. Philip Potter. The council, based in Geneva, Switzerland, is a body of 288 Anglican, Protestant and Orthodox churches from 91 countries.

Nikodim was instrumental in bringing Russian Orthodoxy into the World Council in 1961. After being on the council's executive committee for 14 years, he was elected a president in 1973.

Nikodim represented his church during Vatican II and in theological talks between Rome and Orthodoxy since 1967. On several occasions Nikodim attended ecumenical meetings in the United States.

"He was a great and respected leader among the churches, and an old friend," said the Rev. Frank Northam, a representative of the Methodist World Council.

Nikodim was in Rome as head of the Russian Orthodox delegation to Sunday's inauguration of Pope John Paul.

Nikodim was born Boris Georgievich Rotov in Frolovo, 100 miles southeast of Moscow, and was ordained a priest-deacon in 1947, when he was 18.

After graduating from the Leningrad Theological Seminary in 1950, he went to Jerusalem in 1956 as a member of the Russian Theological Mission and eventually became its father superior. He wrote a book on the history of the group's work in the Holy City.

Nikodim also wrote books on two Orthodox saints, St. Tabitha and St. Kiriak Karlagensky.

He returned to Moscow to become head of the patriarchate's chancellery and then was named deputy chairman of the ecclesiastical relations department.

He was consecrated a bishop in 1960 and an archbishop the following year.

Nikodim was also chairman of the editorial board for the patriarchate's newspaper and head of its publishing house.

Pope John Paul's predecessor, the late Paul VI, had also given last rites in the first days of his pontificate in 1963 when an Italian monsignor died of a heart attack while waiting for a papal audience.

Christian Unity Top Concern For Nikokim

MOSCOW (AP) — Metropolitan Nikodim of Leningrad and Novgorod, who died of a heart attack Tuesday during an audience with Pope John Paul I, was a well-traveled representative of the Russian Orthodox Church.

Only 49 years old, he had traveled on church business to Greece, Ethiopia, Czechoslovakia, Finland, the island of Rhodes, India and Geneva.

Nikodim was chairman of his church's Holy Synod on questions of Christian unity and inter-church relations. He made many of the trips to attend meetings of the World Council of Churches, of which he was one of the six presidents.

Born Boris Georgievich Rotov in Frolovo in the Ryazan region 100 miles southeast of Moscow, he was ordained a priest-deacon in 1947.

Following his death, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported here that Nikodim had been suffering for many years from "a severe cardiovascular disease" and had had several myocardial infarctions.

"In church circles in various countries, Metropolitan Nikodim was known as an active participant in the movement against the danger of war," Tass said.

In the carefully controlled Russian Orthodox Church, the Soviet government allows top officials to make foreign visits and public declarations, focusing on anti-war statements and other proclamations that support the nation's own foreign policy.

Tass said that for many years Nikodim headed an international peace movement known as the Christian Peace Conference.

At the recently held 5th All-Christian Peace Congress in Prague he was unanimously elected honorary president of the conference.

Tass said Metropolitan Nikodim would be buried in Leningrad at the Nikolskoye Cemetery of the Alexandro-Nevskaia Monastery.

Cambodia Cites Soviet Interference In War

TOKYO (AP) — Cambodia charged Tuesday that the Soviet Union sent military advisers, tank crews and material to Vietnam last year to back a "large-scale" invasion of Cambodia by Vietnamese troops, the official Chinese news agency Hsinhua reported.

Cambodia, backed in its three-year border war with Vietnam by China, claimed the Soviet Union wants to gain control of Southeast Asia and has used Vietnamese forces as mercenaries, the Chinese news agency said in a dispatch received in Tokyo.

The Cambodian statement carried by Hsinhua reportedly was issued by the Foreign Ministry in Phnom Penh and broadcast by Cambodia radio.

According to the Chinese agency, the Cambodians said: "The Soviet Union supported Vietnam to make aggression, expansion and annexation of Kampuchea (Cambodia). By the end of 1977, the Soviet Union had taken in Vietnam's large-scale invasion of Kampuchea in a vain attempt to occupy Kampuchea in one morning by the strategy of a 'quick and decisive battle' just as it and its cohorts did in Czechoslovakia in 1968.

"Therefore," the statement said, "the Soviet Union sent the Soviets to take part in Vietnam's aggression against Kampuchea. Some of them were commanders and others tank-crews. Vietnam's strategy of a 'quick and decisive battle' against Kampuchea met with ignominious defeat."

A Cambodian-Vietnamese border war erupted shortly after Communist forces in those two countries defeated U.S.-backed regimes in the spring of 1975.

Moscow and Peking then expanded their ideological dispute, with China supporting Cambodia and the Soviet Union backing Vietnam.

The Cambodian statement said "the Soviet Union is now bolstering up Vietnam. It is concentrating its maritime and air means of transport to send military and civilian advisers and military materials to Vietnam, giving Vietnam a shot in the arm to carry on its aggression against democratic Kampuchea.

"At present, the Soviet Union is making use of Vietnamese as its mercenaries, just as it is making use of Cubans to play the same role in Africa, to realize its ambition of expanding in Southeast Asia, taking Kampuchea as a springboard. The diplomatic intrigue being carried out by Vietnam and the Soviet Union in the region also serves this criminal aim."

China and Vietnam are embroiled in a border feud that started after ethnic Chinese residents of Vietnam began leaving the country in an attempt to return to China. China claimed the Vietnamese persecuted the ethnic Chinese and expelled more than 160,000 of them.

China has since closed its border with Vietnam, charging the Vietnamese sent spies into China disguised as ethnic Chinese refugees.

AN EDITORIAL:

The 'New China' Connection

A NEW ELEMENT in international diplomacy is shaping up in the midst of a world already tense with various alliances and pressures.

Suddenly, Communist China is emerging as a force to be reckoned with in such diverse places as the Near East, Eastern Europe and Africa.

In most of these places, Peking is running head-on into an old adversary, Communist Russia, once a tenuous ally. The ensuing struggle promises to affect not only the current balance of power between the East and West, but poses a new threat of an atomic showdown.

IN A SERIES of lightning maneuvers, the mainland Chinese have signed a mutual non-aggression treaty with Japan, made major inroads in Romania and Yugoslavia and taken steps to cement relations with Iran.

In every instance, the coups are to the detriment of the Soviets' long-range goals.

It has long been to Moscow's advantage to keep Tokyo and Peking at one another's throats. And Eastern Europe, especially the "independent Communist" states, already are viewed with something less than mutual trust by the Kremlin leaders.

As for the ties with oil-rich Iran, the Tehran-Peking connection bodes trouble for Russia's current moves toward flanking Iran by seeking control in Afghanistan and Pakistan—and a pathway to the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean.

IN RECENT months, it has become obvious that the clash between China and Russia in Southeast Asia was being escalated and expanded.

Even in Africa, the Chinese have been moving to thwart Russian and Cuban expansionist moves.

For whatever the future may hold, the U.S. is no silent observer in all of this. Washington and Peking also have been moving closer toward an open alliance.

The major stumbling block to full diplomatic recognition for the mainland Chinese.

AN EDITORIAL:

Species In Danger

THE LUCKY few are getting fewer. We're referring to those taxpayers among us who are in the big-bucks category but manage to avoid passing any of them on to the Internal Revenue Service.

IRS now reports that the number of no-tax payers among individuals has taken a precipitous drop—from 230 in 1975 to a scant 57 in 1976, the most recent year for which complete statistics are available.

At this rate, they could well shortly disappear altogether as a tax class—and there are millions of small-bucks taxpayers who would say good riddance.

ART BUCHWALD:

Sorry, Charlie, 'Tuna' Needs Fishy Taste

WASHINGTON—On the question of human rights we must not overlook the highly respected Americans who receive large retainers from some of the most repressive regimes in the world.

Some are Washington lawyers whose names are household words, and others are American public relations firms who will do and have done anything for a buck.

The other day, at his behest, I met with Fish, president of a Washington PR firm.

Fish was in a fine mood. "We just got the South American country of Tuna as an account," he told me.

"But isn't Tuna ruled by a ruthless junta that has tortured and jailed thousands of opposition leaders?" I asked.

"THAT'S THE IMAGE they have now. But after we get our campaign under way it will be known as the bulwark of anti-communism in South America."

"How did you get the account?" I asked.

"I went down and made a presentation to Gen. Barracuda myself. I told him his country has a bad image in the United States, mainly because he keeps shooting all the opposition leaders."

"He said it was an internal matter. But I pointed out to him that the Carter regime is trying to cut off foreign aid to countries that do not respect human rights."

"Did you suggest in your presentation that the junta stop jailing and killing the opposition?"

"OF COURSE not. I would never have gotten the account. What I told him was that he could still do it as long as he has a good public relations firm in the United States to see that his side of the story is told."

"Did you explain how you'd do that?"

"By taking out ads in The Washington Post, The Washington Star, the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal announcing that the junta was only torturing and shooting the opposition until it could hold free elections."

"He liked that?"

of course, is U.S. ties to Taiwan, the Nationalist Chinese stronghold.

While the Carter administration has made all sorts of noises toward seeking a formal accord of some sort with mainland China, the future of Taiwan hangs in the balance.

MANY MEMBERS of Congress, and the diplomatic community for that matter, say that the U.S. is irrevocably bound to Taiwan by a mutual assistance pact, and that it cannot be changed at the President's whim.

Those in favor of playing what has been termed "the China card" against Russia argue that the Taiwan question can be held more or less in abeyance while the U.S. moves closer to Peking.

There are great risks involved at all levels.

IN MOVING TO challenge Russia on her own doorsteps, so to speak, Peking is risking the possibility of an armed confrontation, or at the least a violent ideological clash.

In getting in bed with the Chinese Communists, no matter the military or commercial expediency, the U.S. is shaking hands with a most bloody hand. China's Red repression is as massive and brutal as any in the world. And Carter's and Andrew Young's touted "human rights" mean absolutely nothing in the vast Asiatic human wasteland.

In brief, while perhaps applauding mainland China's challenge to an old bedfellow, America could well "stay put" with its own ideals, its own basic interest, its own type of freedom, human rights and self interest.

Anything less and we have diluted both our ideals, Democratic principles and self interests.

AN EDITORIAL:

A Real Trailblazer

DR. D.M. WIGGINS, who was buried here yesterday, was the man under whose presidency Texas Tech began the transition from an overgrown college to a true university.

Wiggins came to Tech in 1948 after a successful stint as president of what is now the University of Texas-El Paso and remained at the helm until 1952, when he resigned to go into banking.

During his tenure, doctoral programs were begun at Texas Tech and he took steps to improve and enhance the institution's image in many ways, from turning the dusty campus into beautifully landscaped grounds to reviving the Texas Tech Foundation and strengthening academic programs.

Dr. Wiggins continued to take an active and influential role in higher education after leaving the presidency and was one of the original members of the Texas Coordinating Board.

His death over the weekend at age 82 marks the passage of a man who contributed mightily to the growth of a great university.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Dubious Derian Air

WASHINGTON—A thrice-repeated but unsubstantiated indictment of Argentina by Asst. Secretary of State Patricia Derian testifying publicly before Congress reveals the shattering impact on U.S. foreign policy of human rights crusading.

Under questioning Aug. 9 by the House inter-American affairs subcommittee, human rights chief Derian responded with language seldom used by one friendly power to another, accusing the Argentine regime of killings, kidnappings and torture.

So harsh was her language that the State Department tried to expunge it from the record. But apart from being undiplomatic, there is considerable doubt of accuracy.

The impact could prove tragic for U.S.-Argentine relations and perhaps for Argentina itself.

MODERATE AND pro-U.S. elements within the Argentine junta have been weakened, deterioration of the U.S. position in the strategic southern corner of South America has been accelerated.

This cannot be dismissed as merely unfortunate ardor by an idealist unfamiliar with diplomacy.

Deterioration of U.S. relations with Brazil, Chile and now Argentina too closely follows the scenario of Latin American specialists in the Carter administration who privately predicted the human rights crusade would foster the left in the Western hemisphere.

Concern that the human rights tail is wagging the foreign policy dog is spreading in both the administration and Congress.

On Capitol Hill, growing attention is paid to the imminent loss of up to $1.4 billion in sales to Argentina—including $820 million in Export-Import Bank transactions.

SO, WHEN Mrs. Derian testified Aug. 9, she was asked by subcommittee chairman Gus Yatron of Pennsylvania why her human rights office recommended against the Export-Import Bank loans.

Even Derian's own aides were taken aback by her answer:

"The reason for our advice was the continuing violation of basic human rights by Argentina. The systematic use of torture, summary execution of political dissidents, the disappearance and imprisonment of thousands of individuals without charge, including mothers, churchmen, nuns, labor leaders, journalists, professors and members of human rights organizations."

Moments later, Derian repeated her indictment, adding "kidnappings" and "unwarranted killings" this time. In her soft Mississippi accent, she read the litany a third time, concluding: "We see nothing to indicate that there is a genuine trend toward human rights."

HORRIFIED OFFICIALS in the State Department's Inter-American Bureau crossed out Derian's indictment in the transcript, but it was too late. Word had gone to Argentina, where Pat (ex) Derian has become a household word.

The U.S. ambassador in Buenos Aires was called in for a stiff protest; the Argentine ambassador in Washington was called home.

The tragedy is that Derian's outburst may well weaken the junta's relatively moderate elements headed by the president, Gen. Jorge Rafael Videla, and strengthen the extreme right.

While President Carter's human rights admonitions probably have improved conditions in Argentina, the point of diminishing returns has been reached.

Apart from undiplomatic ravages, was Derian telling the truth? Her office insists the Argentine junta has "executed" 3,000 persons since seizing power in 1976 and at least another 5,000 persons are missing.

BUT THESE FIGURES come from private sources of dubious reliability. U.S. government bureaus with vastly more experience than Derian's say the figures cannot be verified and seem inflated.

Actually, the junta in confronting bloody far-left revolt in 1976 used an iron fist to prevent Communist takeover. But many killings and kidnappings are traceable to rightist paramilitary groups not under government control and should not be counted as government "executions."

Moreover, objective observers agree that Argentina's human rights record has improved markedly the past year.

Those nuances are disregarded by Derian's office. While unable to draw distinctions between moderates and extremists inside the junta, the human rights crusaders claim military rule in Argentina cannot last much longer and the U.S. should disengage from the junta.

SUCH A PROSPECT is rejected by Latin American experts, whatever their ideology.

But behind the naive, a pattern emerges. A prediction was made before Carter took office by Brady Tyson, now with the U.S. mission to the United Nations, that human rights would be used to support revolutionary forces in the hemisphere.

An identical prediction was made privately last year by Robert Pastor of the National Security Council staff. Mrs. Derian's undiplomatic incident could help fulfill those prophecies.

JAY HARRIS:

New Oil, Old Ties

THERE WAS A point in time when the U.S. reportedly could have sewed up most of Iran's rich oil production "almost for a song."

Today, it could all go down the drain in the swirling controversy now raging inside the ancient Persian kingdom.

Whatever happens, Lubbock residents, the heir-apparent to the Peacock Throne and protesting Iranian students may well be joint spectators to, if not participants in, the outcome.

How events seemingly far removed from U.S. citizens' doorsteps can affect those citizens, directly and otherwise, is coming home in no uncertain terms. The emerging picture is a confused one at this point. But not only is every American motorist linked to Iran each time he hits the gas pedal, but the West's survival may rest in part on what happens in the cauldron 8,000 miles away.

MOST AMERICANS, including many in Lubbock do not understand—nor want to become involved—in the turmoil surrounding Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's regime. They may have no choice.

The other day, when Amb. Ardeshir Zohabi of Iran was here, he related an intriguing story...

During the late President Kennedy's term and after President Johnson took office, Iran was seeking ways to cement some long-term arrangements on its new-found oil reserves.

There was no "energy crisis" as such at that point. The 1967 Six-Day War was still ahead. The 1973 Israeli-Egyptian clash and the Oil Embargo had not yet shocked the world. All was well, we thought.

THE AMBASSADOR says he visited President Johnson "with an iron-clad agreement in my pocket which would have assured the U.S. an ample supply of oil pegged near the domestic price per barrel."

In addition, the pact would have run for 45 years and Iran was willing to leave most of the money in the U.S. for purchase of goods and arms. Later, he said virtually the same offer was made to President Nixon.

The agreement obviously did not take place, although the U.S. later did, through private firms and with Washington's blessing, move to take most of the oil, as well as shore up the Shah, his armed forces, the government's secret police organization, SAVAK, and other aspects of a vital ally in a key hot spot of the world.

For whatever it is worth, and it is worth plenty, similar arrangements were worked out with Saudi Arabia. In the Yom Kippur War, Saudi Arabia joined other Arab nations in imposing the Oil Embargo. Iran, despite its Moslem masses, did not.

TODAY, BOTH Iran and Saudi Arabia loom large in any U.S. thinking on both the economic and military front. Without the Persian Gulf oil, the U.S. and the Free World would be severely crippled.

With that in mind, what is happening in Iran is of utmost importance to every person in this nation.

News reports from Teheran, Iran's capital, say that explosive religious and political protests pose a serious challenge to the Shah. Demonstrations involving thousands have boiled into the streets and resulted in the death of hundreds.

As a result, supporters and foes say the 58-year-old monarch may be in the unenviable position of having to invoke even more dictatorial terms or risk handing power to the people who themselves are split into factions.

IT IS MOST ironic that the major reason for Iran's turmoil is the nation's rush into the New World it helps fuel.

Although accused of an iron-handed rule, as far back as 1963, a decade after the U.S. helped him seize power, the Shah began to change Iran's feudalistic society into a more modern context.

The Shah used the billions from his nation's nationalized oil industry to rebuild his country into the most powerful industrial and military power in the Middle East.

In addition to providing factories and schools and hospitals and making investments abroad, Iran has spent $18 billion for U.S. arms the past 20 years alone. But it was either too much or not enough. The Shah's move into the new world collided head-on with ancient social and religious traditions. The people, for many reasons, including a lack of an education in democracy, weren't ready. The Shah's critics say he gave his nation everything except that.

AN OBSERVER wrote from Teheran this week: "A rising middle class, students and intellectuals and conservative religious leaders with their poor city-dwelling followers have all found their own reasons to oppose the Shah's reforms."

The Shah has made his share of enemies. He angered powerful Moslem leaders by taking their vast land holdings to give to the peasants, gave factory workers shares in production and gave equal rights to women.

The latter, as much as loss of the land, stirred the Moslem religious fanatics to a fury. Then joining in an Unholy Alliance with the middle-class landlords and Communist infiltrated student groups, the Moslem religious leaders stoked the fires of near revolt.

Unless Iran's armed forces revolt, the current unrest likely will not unseat the Shah. Nor can the student protests in the U.S. make any difference in the final analysis—except to lose the students the few friends they have left.

The Shah needs time to meet opposition demands and make haste more slowly. The status quo may not be the best of all worlds, but with a hungry Russian Bear licking its chops only a jet's brief flight away, it may well beat the alternative.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

A YOUNG elephant has four teeth, one tooth only on each side of both its upper and lower jaws. These wear down. Another tooth grows up behind each of the four to replace same. These, too, wear down.

And another tooth grows up behind each of the replacement teeth. This goes on through six sets of teeth, that's all. When the sixth set wears down so far that the elephant can't chew anymore, it dies. An elephant's life, please note, is linked to the condition of its teeth.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. We have $27,278.82 in banks and savings and loan associations, plus $8,000 in savings certificates. Other than our home, which is worth at least $40,000 and is mortgage-free, this is our total savings for a lifetime of work.

A. My husband thinks this is a lot of money. I don't. He thinks that, because we will receive $6,000 a year from pensions and Social Security we will be in good shape when he retires in two years. Can you advise me what I have done wrong?

A. Without knowing a great deal more about your financial affairs—particularly what your family income has been—I can't tell whether or not you have done anything wrong.

The assets you mention in your letter add up to just about $75,000. You might be amazed at the number of people who approach retirement time with a great deal less than that. And, although $6,000 a year is certainly not much, it's far from the lowest retirement income in the world.

Unless you lived a little too high during your family's earning years and didn't put money away when you had the chance, you didn't make any real mistakes.

All that, however, is water over the dam. Now, you have to try to get your assets working for you—to provide the highest income during retirement.

As I understand your letter, most of that $27,278.82 you have in banks and savings and loan associations is in straight savings accounts, where it most likely is earning 5 or 5 1/4 percent interest. That money should be switched into higher-yielding things such as savings certificates.

I also suggest you consider putting some of that money into investment quality bonds and the common stocks of good utility companies. And I hope your situation causes other readers to start planning their retirement financial affairs long before you did.

Q. More than 20 years ago, we started a mutual fund contractual plan of investing every month for 10 years. We were aware there was a high commission in the beginning. So, we carried it through to completion. We have been satisfied with this investment.

A. Recently, a young salesman pointed out that our mutual fund is not yielding income as well as we thought. He advises us to sell and buy shares of the mutual fund he is selling, which yields 9 percent. My husband doesn't want to do this, because he thinks we would have to pay another big commission. What is your opinion?

A. That salesman should be horse-whipped. Your husband is absolutely right about commission charges. If that fund peddler didn't make that crystal clear, you can drive him right out of the business. He was required to give you a prospectus for the fund he is selling when he made his first sales pitch. A prospectus is a disclosure document which spells out among other things, commission charges.

If you want higher yield from a mutual fund investment, you can get it—without being socked with another commission bite.

The mutual fund you own is one of a group of funds. You can switch your investment into an "income fund" in the same group and get about a 9 percent yield. Your only cost would be a $5 book-keeping fee.

Or, you can redeem the shares of your present fund and invest your money in a "no-load" income fund—at no commission charge.

Q. My husband has a very poor pension plan where he works. I have always remained at home raising our five children and now I am caring for my aging mother. I feel that housewives such as myself should be able to set up Individual Retirement Accounts on their own. Do you feel this injustice will ever be rectified?

A. I wish I could tell you yes. But I can't. There's no doubt in my mind that it is, indeed, an injustice. But the only way you'll get it rectified is through power at the polls. Start an IRA revolt.

Strategic Exports Considered

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States ran a record trade deficit last year of $26.7 billion and, according to President Carter, faces an even larger gap this year between its imports and its exports.

As one way of reducing the deficit—and of curbing pressure on the dollar—numerous economists have urged the Carter administration to begin a more aggressive export promotion program.

One facet of this program could be increased exports to the Communist world. But exporters thinking of selling goods or technology to Communist countries face problems of gauging the countries' needs and of getting around U.S. restrictions that bar exports for national security reasons.

The problems sometimes can be more severe. Francis J. Crawford, an International Harvester Co. executive in Moscow, is accused along with three Russians of taking part in a black market currency and contraband ring. He has pleaded innocent to charges against him, and sources close to the case have said in Moscow that the Soviets are anxious to swap Crawford for two Russian United Nations employees accused of spying in the United States.

Among the most widely-known exporters to the Eastern nations is PepsiCo Inc., which ships a concentrate to the Soviet Union that is turned into Pepsi-Cola in Russian bottling plants. PepsiCo, in turn, imports—through a license-holder—Soviet vodka into the United States. Occidental Petroleum Corp. also maintains a sizable export trade with the Russians. It sells superphosphoric acid—a fertilizer component—to the Soviets and buys ammonia, urea and potash in return. It also is designing chemical plants for the Russians under a $100 million contract and is taking part in a $300 million contract for the design of an ammonia pipeline network.

Overall, exports to Communist countries in the first half of 1978 totaled $2.4 billion, a 55 percent jump over exports in the first half of 1977. According to the Commerce Department, the Soviet Union was the United States' main Eastern trading partner, with Poland and China trailing.

Much of the 1978 export growth was due to grain sales, which can vary from year to year with the size of Russian or Chinese harvests. But Commerce Department experts said in interviews that opportunities exist for sales to the East of American machinery, agricultural products and knowhow.

The United States shipped more than $840 million of corn, wheat and soybeans to the Soviet Union in the first half of 1978, dwarfing the major U.S. industrial export of $24.3 million in temperature measuring devices. To China, U.S. shipments of cotton totaled about $80 million —and polyester fibers some $21 million more—again outpacing the $4.5 million spent on diesel engines. Such common items as tractors, oil and gas drilling machinery, steam turbine equipment and adhesive tape also dot the export lists.

In attempting to export these items, said David Bowie of the Bureau of East-West Trade, manufacturers can ask the Commerce Department to help them identify markets. The U.S. government and those of the Communist countries also run trade shows where American manufacturers can display their wares, and commercial officers at American embassies can assist exporters in reaching potential customers.

But one major roadblock is the national security clearance. Microprocessors, the tiny electronic devices that enable pocket calculators to "think" and which have drastically altered the computer industry, are in demand along with other electronic gear. But "manufacturers have trouble getting licenses" for exports, said Bowie, because the equipment is considered strategic.

Manufacturers and businesses wishing to sell their equipment or technology to the East can ask the Commerce Department to find out if a particular item or process will need clearance for export.

Sometimes the export issue reaches as high as the White House. President Carter last month allowed Dresser Industries Inc. to export sophisticated oil-drilling equipment to Russia as part of a $144 million deal. But Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, subsequently met with presidential advisers to consider revoking the permission after a government panel said the export could have military and national security implications.

Securities Analyst To Fight Punishment In Equity Scandal

NEW YORK (AP)—Securities analyst Raymond Dirks, who uncovered the Equity Funding Corp. scandal five years ago, said Tuesday he will appeal a Securities and Exchange Commission order punishing him for his role in the case.

"The government is attempting to punish the bearer of bad tidings. All of the corporations involved in this got off relatively unscathed. I'm the only one penalized," Dirks told a news conference. "I'll fight it all the way to the Supreme Court."

An SEC administrative law judge Friday ordered Dirks, now the research director of John Muir and Co., a Wall Street firm, suspended from the brokerage business for 60 days because he "selectively disseminated" information on Equity Funding.

The order censured Boston Co. Institutional Investors, Boston; John W. Bristol & Co. of New York; Manning & Napier of Rochester, N.Y.; and Tomlin, Zimmerman & Parmelee Inc. of New York.

A censure is the mildest form of punishment handed out by the SEC and does not directly affect corporate operations.

Judge David J. Markun ruled that the four investment companies violated provisions of federal "insider" trading laws by selling their holdings in Equity Funding after hearing rumors that a fraud was unfolding.

Equity Funding, based in Los Angeles, went bankrupt and a number of those involved with the firm were convicted on criminal charges after the firm was reported to have issued millions in phony insurance policies to inflate its sales and profit figures.

Stanley Goldblum, who was the company's president and chairman, was sentenced to eight years in prison and is the only one still in jail.

The SEC said Dirks, then a securities analyst with Delafield Childs Inc., learned of the situation at Equity Funding from a disgruntled former employee in early March 1973. After investigating, he told some of his clients about the information, and they sold Equity Funding stock.

At his news conference Tuesday, Dirks compared his actions to those of an investigative reporter, and noted the SEC had heard rumors of problems at the company before Dirks told any of his clients. The SEC judge, in his ruling Friday, said that was accurate.

"I've shown the SEC up for being inept and incompetent in this case. They consider me the son-of-a-gun who uncovered it, and uncovered that they failed to uncover it," Dirks said.

Dirks said he will appeal the ruling to the full SEC, which he said he expected will uphold the order. He said he will then appeal to the federal courts.

Officials at Manning & Napier and the Boston Co. said Tuesday they were studying the order before deciding whether to appeal. Officials of Tomlin, Zimmerman & Parmelee could not be reached for comment.

Boston Co. President Dwight L. Allison Jr. said the firm expected to use the full 15-day appeal period before reaching its decision. Boston Co. Institutional Investors is its subsidiary and until last year, when it became independent, John W. Bristol & Co. also was a Boston Co. unit.

"It should be noted that censure represents the mildest form of sanction imposed by the Commission. We disagree with certain of the Administrative Judge's findings of fact and conclusions of law but we must weigh the continuing cost of management and legal staff time in pursuing the matter against accepting the findings and getting on with our business," Allison said.

He added that he believed "the Commission's position has greater implications for the investment industry in defining future standards of disclosure than in judging a very complex issue that took place five years ago."

Hospital Care Asked For Alleged Mass Murderer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — While detectives from three states waited to question an Ohio hitchhiker who allegedly confessed to 17 murders, a public defender said the man "is in need of immediate hospitalization."

After conferring with Kenneth G. Taylor, who has been charged with one of the murders, lawyer Mike Engel said, "I think what we need to do first is address the question of this man's competency. I shall not permit this man to cooperate further, or cooperate at all with police, assuming he can cooperate, until we address that question first."

Traffic patrolmen arrested the 37-year-old unemployed Youngstown man when they stopped him early Monday on a downtown street for a broken taillight. They said Taylor blurted out a confession to the murder and $95 robbery of David R. Willie, 36, of Nashville and led them to Willie's body in a downtown alley. He was driving Willie's car, police said.

By afternoon, when Taylor quit talking and asked for a lawyer, police said he told them he had killed 14 people during the past two years in the New Lima, Ohio-New Brighton, Pa. area and three in Tennessee since he began hitchhiking Thursday.

A squad of detectives from Ohio, Pennsylvania and Tennessee were in Nashville to interview Taylor.

Three Ohio policemen and two from Pennsylvania want to talk to Taylor about more than a dozen unsolved murders. New Brighton Police Chief Phil Ri-ni said he wanted to ask about sexual attacks on a woman and her teen-age daughter.

Only the death of Willie, who police say picked Taylor up on the city's interstate loop and took him home to dinner before driving him back to the highway, has been confirmed.

"He expressed remorse over it. He said that he thought that Mr. Willie was a pretty nice guy," Detective Bill Robeck said.

Robeck said Taylor was briefly confined in a Boardman, Ohio, mental institution after attempting suicide earlier this year.

Authorities said Taylor had a .38-caliber pistol and 52 bullets. In night court after booking Monday, Taylor said he intended to use them on a Nashville slaying spree, saving a cartridge for himself. He is charged with murder, armed robbery and auto theft. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday.

"This is obviously a very disturbed man," Engel said. "The first issue is how serious is this apparent disruption that he has and what kind of attention this man needs. The position that we have at the moment, while we realize there are a large number of various law enforcement officers from various jurisdictions that have a substantial interest ... our first interest and first purpose here is to determine whether Mr. Taylor is in need of immediate hospitalization."

Detective Lieutenant Sherman Nickens said, "Right now we have a man who says he did this kind of thing and we checked with various parts of the country and they say they have had this sort of thing happen. We can't prove it or disprove it at this point."

Weather Fault Blamed For TV Confusion

NEW YORK (AP) — Some television watchers in parts of the Midwest saw portions of "Lou Grant" in the midst of American Broadcasting Co. football, and some others saw a piece of the same Columbia Broadcasting System show instead of the National Broadcasting Co.'s "Quincy."

Human error and the weather were at fault for the coincidental Monday night mixups, the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. said Tuesday.

A weather condition called "temperature inversion" interrupted "Monday Night Football" with pieces of "Lou Grant," said Nina Wood, spokesman for the ATT Long Lines Division.

She said the distortion, called "fading," began about 9 p.m. CDT Monday and had cleared up by 8:30 a.m. Tuesday. "Fading," in which the sound and picture from one network appears over another's transmission, was most evident in Indiana and Ohio, she said.

The "fading" also caused some distortion of picture and sound, she said.

Auto Service Recruitment Drive Pushed

For the second straight year, the Lubbock New Car and Truck Dealers Association is spearheading efforts to recruit young persons into a program designed to help alleviate the shortage of auto service technicians in West Texas.

The association, according to president Jim Hickman, is working with several national, state and local agencies in promoting the program.

Night classes at South Plains College at Lubbock are being scheduled. Apprentice level employment during the day at local dealerships also would be a feature of the program.

The program, with pay, will require three years to complete. Successful completion qualifies applicants as auto technicians, Hickman said, with associate degrees being awarded.

"It's not going to be too many years before car repairs and maintenance pose a serious problem — not only for dealers — but for every motorist," Hickman said, "unless we give this program our best efforts and successfully recruit young people into it."

Hickman, Frank Brown and David Montgomery compose a committee of association members overseeing the program.

Although enrollment has been open for some time, more trainees are needed to fill classes. Details may be obtained by calling 747-8111 or 747-0576. Registration will be Sept. 14-15 and classes will begin Sept. 18.

Applicants must pay tuition and for a basic set of tools. The program has VA approval. Financing is available, if necessary. Under that plan, trainees would be paid for their work in city dealerships in the apprentice phases and could repay the loans on a withholding basis.

Applicants must be 18 to 30 years old, be a high school graduate (or the equivalent), be physically fit and achieve acceptable scores on aptitude tests administered prior to acceptance.

Terrorist Bomb Explosion Injures Two Israelis

JERUSALEM (AP) — Two bombs planted by Arab terrorists exploded in Jerusalem Tuesday on the eve of the Camp David summit, seriously injuring a gasoline station attendant and a police sapper from America who emigrated to Israel after serving in the Vietnam War, authorities said.

Both of the injured were hurt in a bomb blast near a gasoline station. The second bomb went off under an empty tourist bus outside the Jaffa Gate entrance to the Old City and no one was hurt, the police said.

Those who had been on the bus are in Israel for a conference of international travel writers.

In Beirut, Lebanon, the Palestine Liberation Organization claimed responsibility for both blasts and vowed to step up "military action against vital targets in areas the enemy considers sealed off by security forces."

The injured explosives expert was quoted only three days ago by the Jerusalem Post newspaper as saying he realized his job was dangerous but that he tried not to think about it.

The newspaper said he served in with U.S. forces in Vietnam and worked as a policeman in the United States before moving to Israel in 1973. At police request the newspaper did not publish his name. Police withheld the names of both victims Tuesday.

Massive security measures have been ordered by Israeli officials to prevent terrorist attacks during the U.S.-Israeli-Egyptian summit meeting that begins Wednesday at Camp David, Md. Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat are attending the summit, hosted by President Carter.

The PLO communique said it would issue no statements on the summit but would "let our deeds speak."

Twenty-six bombs have been discovered in Israel or its occupied territories in the past five weeks. The blasts Tuesday were the first this month. Most of the bombs found last month were dismantled by police sappers before they exploded. Two men were killed by a bomb Aug. 23 in the occupied town of Gaza; another man was killed Aug. 30 in a blast at a water company, and one person died and 49 were hurt at Tel Aviv's open air Carmel market Aug. 3.

The police sapper and the gasoline station attendant were examining a suspicious object when the package blew up. The bomb had been placed between the station and a distribution depot for cooking gas cylinders on Bethlehem Road in Jerusalem's German colony. Neither the cylinders nor the gasoline pumps exploded.

"The first thing I saw was a red door flying through the air and lots of debris and dust," said witness David Eppel, an Israel Radio reporter. "People were running in all directions shouting that a bomb had gone off."

Eppel said both of the wounded were badly dismembered and thrown high into the air by the force of the blast. Cars were flagged down to take them to a hospital before ambulances arrived.

Police closed off the area to search for other explosives, and several Arabs were rounded up for questioning. The PLO said 160 Arabs were arrested but the Israelis did not say how many were rounded up.

INJURED IN BLAST — An Israeli police demolitions expert is carried away from the site of a bomb at a Jerusalem gasoline station. The blast was one of two which injured two persons. Israeli security forces are on top alert against terrorist acts timed to coincide with the opening of the Camp David summit. (AP Laserphoto)

Rhodesian Crash Debris Sifted

URUNGWE TRIBAL TRUST LAND, Rhodesia (AP)—Rhodesian troops stood guard Tuesday as airline officials sifted through an overgrown, abandoned cottonfield strewn with rubble from a plane that crashed in this remote tribal reservation 10 miles from the Zambian border.

Eighteen persons survived the crash, but survivors said black nationalist guerrillas murdered 10—seven women, two children and an old man.

The survivors, all whites, who sought help reported only one villager—an old man—gave them water. The others told them to go away, Farrell said.

"The tribespeople here are clearly intimidated by the terrorists and have disappeared for the time being because they don't want to get involved," Farrell said.

The crash site is in one of the most inaccessible parts of the country. Journalists were taken to the scene Tuesday in landmine-protected military trucks that wound for 2½ hours over rugged and dusty roads 40 miles from the nearest town, a small farming center, Karoi.

The soldiers left Tuesday evening, abandoning the rubble at the foot of a desolate range of low hills, named Whamira, meaning in the local dialect, "You go no farther."

The plane evidently broke up as it hit a 16-foot-wide gully seconds after pilot John Hood, 36, sent a distress signal that two starboard engines had failed.

"The pilot did an expert job," said Farrell. "In what must have been a split second decision he tried to get it down on the clearest looking patch. If it hadn't hit the gully, there could well have been more survivors."

Former CIA Watchman Facing Trial As Spy

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP) — A former employee of the Central Intelligence Agency pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges of selling a top-secret document to a Soviet agent.

U.S. District Judge Phil M. McNagney set a trial date of Oct. 30 for William Peter Kampiles, 23, Munster, Ind.

McNagney then reduced Kampiles's bond from $500,000 to $100,000, but said he would have to post the full amount before being released.

A six-count indictment returned by a grand jury here Aug. 25 accused Kampiles of giving the Soviets a top-secret document that describes the workings of the "Big Bird" photographic satellite used by the United States to spy on the Soviet Union from an earth orbit.

The satellite, no more than five years old, is said to be so precise that it can distinguish between civilians and people in military uniform and can pick out the makes of automobiles.

The indictment charged Kampiles with two counts of espionage and four counts of theft of government property. It said Kampiles turned the document over to a Soviet agent in Athens, Greece, earlier this year and received $3,000 in return.

If convicted, Kampiles could be sentenced to a maximum of life in prison on the two espionage charges and up to 10 years in prison on the theft charges.

The indictment said Kampiles turned over part of the document in February, apparently in an effort to convince the Soviet it was genuine, and then turned over the balance of the technical manual in March.

American Denies Charges In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — American businessman Francis J. Crawford told a court here Tuesday that testimony linking him to an international currency and contraband gang was fabricated, that evidence was forged and that key defense documents were missing.

"The prosecution's case is full of holes," the 37-year-old Moscow representative for International Harvester said to Western reporters after pleading innocent at the opening day of his trial.

Crawford's Soviet attorney, Leonid M. Popov, said the trial could end with a verdict today. If convicted, he faces up to eight years in prison.

The three Russians tried with him — seamstress Ludmila Kiselev, her husband Vladimir and a cashier Alla Solovyova, similarly charged, pleaded guilty and expressed remorse. Kiselev, who has a similar previous conviction, could receive the death sentence.

American Remains Composed

Taking the witness stand, Crawford remained composed as he attempted to pick apart the damaging testimony of Kiselev and his seamstress wife.

Kiselev said he met Crawford through a mutual friend in early 1977 and illegally traded currency with him from then on.

"I wanted to buy U.S. dollars. Crawford wanted to buy rubles. On both sides there was mutual benefit and interest," said Kiselev, a $177-a-month factory worker.

The Mobile, Ala., native is accused of buying 20,000 rubles from Kiselev, a large-scale currency manipulator whose clients included eight foreigners. The prosecution said Crawford paid $8,320 for the rubles, about a fourth of the legal exchange rate.

Crawford also is accused of buying six precious samovars from the Kiselevs. Samovars are classed as antiques in the Soviet Union and their export is forbidden.

Western Reporters Admitted

In contrast to the trials of Soviet dissidents, four Western reporters were admitted to the courtroom Tuesday along with Crawford's American fiancée, Virginia Olbrish of the U.S. Embassy staff; his American legal adviser, Peter Maggs; U.S. consular official Robert W. Pringle and U.S. commercial attache Stephen Sind.

"The testimony is a complete fabrication," Crawford told Judge Lev Mironov. He denied exchanging dollars except through legal banking channels.

Also testifying Tuesday were three Russian witnesses—an engineer accused of selling 200 pair of blue jeans on the black market, a bleached-blond woman in a slinky black evening dress and rabbit fur jacket who introduced Crawford to the Kiselevs, and a taxi driver who claimed he saw Crawford put two samovars in his car trunk.

A REAL BARN RAISER—The foundation of his 100-year-old barn was collapsing, so B.A. Dammen decided to give it a lift. He built a new foundation for it on his farm near St. Clair, Mich., and hired a crane company to make the move. The 110-ton crane picked up the barn and moved it 100 yards without a mishap. Cost of moving the barn was less than building a new one, Dammen said. (AP Laserphoto)

Atheist Leader, Judge Clash Over Jury Oath

AUSTIN (AP) — Atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair objected Tuesday to taking a juror's oath but later made an affirmation that left out the traditional ending, "So help me, God."

She ultimately was cut from a panel of prospective jurors, however, because 40 more were called than were needed.

"I am objecting to the ritual of swearing in with the words, 'so help me, God,'" she said after leaving State District Judge Hume Cofer's courtroom.

Mrs. O'Hair appeared for jury duty in Cofer's court after previously giving the judge her written reasons for objecting to the oath. Cofer called her to the bench and then asked her to leave until the other jurors were sworn.

"It seemed to me I was complying with her request not to be singled out," he said after the proceedings. "She came up to the bench and wanted to debate the issue while I had 200 people waiting. I asked her to be seated and remain seated and that I would talk to her later."

Cofer said she indicated she could not sit down while the oath was given, so he asked her to wait in the district judges' reception area.

The sharp-tongued Mrs. O'Hair described the exchange differently.

"He held me up to ridicule and scorn," she said. "He told me, 'I intend to swear the jury in this morning. You will go and sit down and keep quiet. You will not do anything disruptive.'"

After the other prospective jurors had left, Cofer summoned Mrs. O'Hair and her attorney, Barbara Epstein, into the courtroom. He offered her an alternative affirmation, which she accepted.

"Do you affirm that you will truthfully answer all questions asked of you under pain and penalty of perjury?" he asked, to which she responded, "Yes."

Cofer told Mrs. O'Hair she would be paid the regular $5 per day for jury service, although she would not sit on a panel.

"He skirted the issue nicely," she said after the second court appearance.

The affirmation is not unusual and is offered to anyone who prefers not to take an oath, Cofer said.

Mrs. O'Hair successfully filed suit which led to the U.S. Supreme Court's ban on prescribed prayers in public school. She also has sued to remove the motto "In God We Trust" from U.S. currency and to halt prayers in Austin City Council meetings.

Jailed After Spy Case

Crawford was arrested June 12 in apparent retaliation for spying charges lodged against two Soviet U.N. employees in the United States. Speculation here is that Crawford will be convicted, given a light sentence and swapped for the two Soviets.

The prosecutor claimed Crawford had not changed any dollars for rubles in 1978 even though he was paying his bills in rubles.

Crawford's lawyer produced a bank document dated Feb. 6, 1978, as proof that the businessman exchanged 4,000 rubles on that date.

Judge Mironov said he needed time to "study this new document."

Mrs. Kiselev claimed that Crawford asked her husband to get him 1,000 rubles by last Dec. 23 before he went on vacation to the United States and that the two men made the transaction as scheduled.

But Crawford in his questioning of the seamstress said he left for the United States Dec. 21, did not return until Jan. 27, and thus could not have met with Kiselev.

The businessman, in his opening statement, testified that he met the seamstress and her husband through Larissa Formotova, the blonde, and the only business they did was the sewing jobs he gave to Mrs. Kiselev.

In exchange, Crawford said he gave the Kiselevs small gifts, including inexpensive Western-made toiletry items, a Stetson cowboy hat for the seamstress and "I made Volodya a present of the pair of Western-made black slacks that he has on today."

Volodya is a nickname for the name Vladimir.

Woman Confronts Crawford

At one point the seamstress rose and confronted Crawford, and sneered, "Why can't you admit your guilt? Why can't you plead guilty like the rest of us?"

He replied coolly, "If you commit no crime, you certainly do not say to me, 'Cheer up, you're not the Americans in the court.'"

Schools Show Drop Of 1,000 Students

ized by large-scale court-ordered integration — with 1,517 fewer pupils than last year.

"In other words, we picked up 170 more students during the first week of this school year than we did during the first week of the previous year," Leslie said. He said he hopes the current pace of enrollment increases will continue.

Nevertheless, Leslie noted, "It would be unrealistic for us to think that we can make up" the entire loss of youngsters this year.

"We had anticipated a loss of approximately 300 students based on enrollment trends. What this means is that we are experiencing a loss of about 1,000 additional students," he said.

Overall, this is "not a terribly significant figure," Leslie said. He added that if new students continue to trickle in at a pace faster than last year, the deficit could be reduced even more.

The loss of students hurts financially because state public-education dollars are allocated on the basis of average daily attendance (ADA). Lubbock gets about $800 from state coffers per ADA.

Less State Funds

"We are going to receive less funds from the state," Leslie said. School officials could not say how much less because, even if the exact enrollment decline could be determined, part of the loss could be offset by good attendance among those students who are enrolled.

A drop of, say, 800 pupils in the Lubbock school system's year-end ADA could mean a loss of about $650,000 from the state.

The fiscal implications of enrollment decline "make it imperative that we continually evaluate our staffing," Leslie said. He said the district will try to maintain approximately the same pupil-teacher ratio that was plugged into the new year's budget.

Since the district will have fewer students than the budget projected, the district may need fewer teachers, Leslie said. However, any such staffing changes will be made only after "careful study," he said.

And if there is to be a reduction in personnel, it will be achieved through attrition. "It's possible that when we receive resignations this year, some positions can be absorbed" without hiring more teachers, Leslie said.

Reduces Teacher Positions

A 1,000-student enrollment drop would translate roughly into a reduction of 40 teaching positions. A problem, Leslie said, is that the enrollment decline may be spread among all grades and all schools, making it difficult to eliminate a teaching post without combining some students into large classes.

The current drop does indeed appear to have occurred at all levels, Leslie said. As of Tuesday, kindergarten enrollment stood at 1,878 students, down 177; elementary enrollment, at 14,024, down 765; and secondary enrollment, at 14,282, down 461. Enrollment in special education programs was at 258, up 56 students.

"What caused these things, we don't know," Leslie said. He said it would be impossible to attribute the loss wholly to the district's new court-ordered integration plan.

Under the plan, most students continue to attend neighborhood schools anyway. The plan calls for busing only about 2,000 elementary children and several hundred secondary students — the vast majority of whom have stayed with the public-school system.

Some Losses Anticipated

School officials said last fall they expected to lose some students initially to private schools over the integration-busing issue. But the district believes many students eventually will return to the public schools after their families see that the integration plan is working.

Leslie said each public school in the city will be checking on known students who have not reported, to determine why the enrollment drop occurred.

Draining Of Lake Approved

separate studies of the dam, constructed approximately 40 years ago, and spillway over the past 10 years.

After the May storm, the fish and wildlife service reportedly began draining the lake without filing an impact statement under terms of the National Environmental Policy Act.

Plaintiffs sought an injunction because of the reported failure to file the impact statement.

According to Woodward's opinion, however, the Council on Environmental Quality found an imminent emergency situation, making compliance with the act impractical.

The opinion says that, according to expert testimony, a 3.3-inch rain over the entire watershed for a period of six hours would destroy or wash away the uncontrolled spillway and perhaps weaken the dam so that impounded water would be released below the dam.

Government Testimony Cited

Woodward cited government testimony indicating that such a storm could occur once every 25 years, and noted that Texas requires in construction dams with a capability of withstanding floods having a frequency in excess of 100 years.

"Certainly a dam which falls so far below this standard could not be said to be sufficiently safe so as to excuse the government from taking any reasonable steps to alleviate the situation," Woodward's opinion says.

"The United States Fish and Wildlife Service has taken such reasonable steps in this case by draining the water before the emergency occurs."

The order further states: "Under the evidence before this court, the balance must be struck between the preservation of wildlife and recreational facilities on one hand against the possibility, under some circumstances, of the loss of life and the destruction of property on the other."

"In such a situation, the equities favor the defendants."

Rep. Flood Indicted By Grand Jury

REP. DANIEL J. FLOOD Indicted By Federal Jury

part from testimony by a former Flood aide, Stephen Elko, who is serving a three-year prison term on a conviction of accepting $25,000 in bribes to influence Flood in connection with federal funds for a now-defunct chain of trade schools in California.

The indictment charged Flood with living at Elko's trial in Los Angeles on Oct. 11, 1977, when he denied knowing that Elko received $5,000 from William F. Peters, a former trade school operator, in the spring of 1972. The indictment said Flood was aware of the transaction within a few days after the money changed hands.

Knowledge Of Payment Denied

Flood was called as a defense witness at Elko's trial and during re-cross examination, he was asked by Assistant U.S. Attorney David R. Hinden, "Were you aware of the fact that in the spring of 1972, Fred Peters paid Steve Elko $5,000 in cash?"

Flood replied, "No."

The second count accused Flood of testifying falsely to a federal grand jury on June 2, 1977, when he denied receiving $1,000 in cash at the Congressional Hotel in Washington from former lobbyist Deryl Fleming, a friend of Peters and Elko.

At Elko's trial, the defense submitted as an exhibit an FBI summary of an interview agents had with Fleming. His statement to the FBI described a meeting during the first three weeks of August 1972 in Elko's suite at the hotel.

According to the FBI's summary of Fleming's statement, "Flood appeared in Elko's suite in a bathrobe with bedroom slippers and he (Fleming) handed Flood $1,000 in cash which was in an envelope ... There was no discussion and Flood took the money with his right hand and put it in his pocket." Flood shortly thereafter said he was tired and Fleming suggested he go to bed, according to the summary.

According to the FBI statement, Fleming said he wrote, and Elko revised, an August 1972 letter to Flood's stationery to federal education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland Jr., demanding his help for Peters' trade schools.

The third count alleged that Flood lied when he told the grand jury he did not receive $5,000 in cash from Peters at Flood's command post for disaster relief after Hurricane Agnes hit Wilkes-Barre, Pa. in the summer of 1972.

Payoff Alleged

Elko has alleged that Flood took more than $100,000 in payoffs.

In addition, last May, Rabbi Lieb Pinter of Brooklyn, N.Y., pleaded guilty to paying Flood $5,000 in bribes for help in obtaining aid for a multimillion-dollar poverty agency and for a proposed school in Israel. Pinter said he paid Flood $1,000 apiece on five occasions between 1974 and 1976.

Mail Talks Resume With Pay Demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union negotiators pressed the U.S. Postal Service on Tuesday for a bigger wage increase as bargainers, seeking to avert a mail strike, resumed face-to-face contract talks for the first time in nearly six weeks.

With a Sept. 16 deadline hanging over them, officials from the Postal Service and three unions representing 516,000 workers held their first joint bargaining session since they reached a tentative agreement in July to avoid a strike.

That earlier settlement was rejected by union members, reviving threats of an illegal, nationwide mail strike and prompting a new, 15-day set of talks under the guidance of a special mediator.

The mediator, Harvard professor James Healy, called the bargainers into joint-session Tuesday following three days of separate "exploratory" talks he held with each side beginning last Friday.

Sources close to the talks said that during the two-hour meeting, union negotiators spelled out their demand for an improved wage settlement.

The unions want to remove a ceiling on cost-of-living raises so workers can stay abreast of a high rate of inflation. Under the rejected pact, workers could receive no more than $1,518, or 9.5 percent, in cost-of-living boosts over the three years no matter how high inflation is.

The unions also want to restructure general wage hikes so that workers get the largest increase in the first year of the pact rather than the third year, as written in the rejected agreement.

As they arrived for Tuesday's session, union leaders refused to talk about the nature of their planned discussions. "We're just going to negotiate," said James LaPenta, a bargainer.

TRADITION'S RETURN

HONG KONG (AP) — The cheong sham, the traditional tight women's gowns with slits in the sides, have appeared in China for the first time in 29 years, the Hong Kong Communist newspaper Ta Kungpao reported Tuesday.

The gowns, which disappeared after the Communists won control in 1949, were displayed a garment show in Peking, the paper said.

Colorado Quest For Amarillo Pair Narrows

DOLORES, Colo. (AP) — A search began near here Tuesday for the bodies of a missing Amarillo couple, believed killed by a gang of Arizona prison escapees after clothing and camping gear tentatively identified as the couple's was found.

"We have reason to believe the clothing effects and camping gear found near Highway 145 northeast of Dolores belong to Janet (Margene) and James Judge of Amarillo," said Montezuma County Sheriff Bob Hampton.

"One item, a budget, has been tentatively identified as belonging to the couple," the sheriff said.

A search of the area Tuesday by 25-30 persons was called off at dark and was to resume at 8 a.m. today, "with possibly three times that many people," Hampton said.

Hampton said the articles believed belonging to the missing newlyweds were found piled between two cottonwoods about 75-feet from the Dolores River's edge.

conflict between Israel and its Arab neighbors. "I say no to long, drawn-out talks," Sadat said before leaving home.

It was Carter who took the political gamble of inviting Begin and Sadat to Camp David.

But Begin feels any settlement must flow from direct bargaining between Egypt and Israel and cannot be imposed by the United States.

Chemical Theft No Laughing Matter To Hospital

Someone is having a laugh at University Hospital's expense. The hospital reported to Lubbock police Tuesday that a bottle of nitrous oxide, otherwise known as "laughing gas," was taken from a storage area behind the hospital over the weekend. The blue tank of gas, valued at about $195, apparently was pushed under a chain link fence, according to police reports. A rash of other thefts and burglaries occurred across the city recently, including the reported loss of a tool box valued at about $3,500. Joe D. Jordan of 1315 58th Place told police Tuesday someone broke into a workshop in his backyard and took a box filled with tools. The 18-year-old student estimated the total loss at about $3,500. Byron Hutto of the Ag Feed Bag reported the loss of a $400 sewing machine and $150 in toolboxes from the business warehouse at 1525 E. 35th St. Someone apparently entered the establishment through a sliding door sometime between

Sunday and Tuesday, police reports said. A 73-year-old woman, Francisca Garcia, reported a color television set missing Tuesday morning from her home at 3101 Second St., Apt. A. The set, valued at about $450, apparently was taken from a bedroom after the thief entered through a window. A witness told police she saw a dark tan pickup truck leave the residence. Burglars entered the home of Wanell Dorothy Peel Tuesday morning, making off with about $30 in jewelry, a $200 tape-deck, and a .38-revolver that cost about $200, the homeowner told police. Entry into the home, at 4121 17th St., apparently was made through an unlocked window, according to police reports. Burglars apparently kicked in the door of Priscilla Young's 2641 Hickory Ave. home Tuesday, and made off with a television set, valued at $177, police reports indicated. Several Lubbockites took heavy losses the past several days, when their home-were broken into and property stolen. Jim Leslie Patrick Jr. of 221 Eighth St. told police his residence was burglarized. Shooting Victim's Husband Jailed ANDREWS (Special) — An Andrews man was free on $15,000 bond Tuesday following a shooting incident Monday night in which his 32-year-old wife was killed. Elizabeth (Sally) Brooks was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Jay Williams. She suffered a single gunshot wound to the head. Her husband, John, 35, has been charged with murder and released from Andrews County jail on bond set by a district judge. Spread Of Contaminated Cottonseed Investigated

PHOENIX (AP) — Contaminated cottonseed, which caused a cancer scare among milk consumers in Arizona, has spread to other states, federal officials said Tuesday.

"It's gotten into New Mexico and Texas," said Douglas Payne of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's Phoenix office. "We found subdistribution into Utah and notified authorities there late last week."

Hundreds of tons of moldy cottonseed, contaminated with cancer-causing aflatoxin, were traced by the FDA to the Paloma Ranch at Theba, in southwest Arizona.

The contaminated grain is blamed for aflatoxin levels in Arizona milk which exceeded the FDA limit of .5 parts per billion for several weeks this summer. Several tankers of milk were dumped and most Arizona dairy farmers were ordered to stop feeding cottonseed last month, bringing the level within the federal standard, officials said.

But not all the contaminated cottonseed has been traced, and state and federal officials continue to track it down. "Our office in Dallas is probing a broker in Bovina (Tex.)," Payne said. "We're also talking to dairy farmers to determine who all bought the grain." Jerry Henderson of the Dallas FDA office said Tuesday the Bovina broker had bought 2,000 tons from the Paloma Ranch and agents were still checking where it went from Bovina.

Meanwhile, state chemist Gary Gilsdorf and his assistant, J.H. Paulson, found a batch of contaminated cottonseed Friday at Anderson Clayton Co. in Gilbert, and ordered its sale halted, the chemist's office reported.

Gilsdorf and Paulson also were traveling the state Tuesday. "They have stopped the sale of contaminated cottonseed with them," the spokesman said. The 160 milk-producer members of the United Dairymen of Arizona also face sanctions against the sale of aflatoxin-contaminated milk, said Bob Girard, executive director. The cooperative produces about 90 percent of Arizona's milk.

The price paid for milk will be reduced 20 percent when the aflatoxin level reaches 4 parts per billion, Girard said. "Just a shade over 4 and your milk will be dumped for three days."

Dairymen already report a 10 percent loss in production because they have stopped feeding cottonseed and protein pellets containing cottonseed, Girard said.

The value of dumped milk was about $200,000, Girard said, predicting that the aflatoxin scare will cost dairymen "in the millions."

"I think some is going to have to be passed on" in the form of higher prices to the consumer, he said. Milk prices normally increase in the fall as production declines and schools open.

"We've seen some decline in demand," Girard said. "We won't know how much until school has been in session for a couple of weeks."

At the State Education Department, nutrition director Junetta Barrett said school districts have expressed concern over the contamination but have been told to decide locally whether to serve milk with lunches.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture requires milk to be served before districts can receive subsidies for lunches. The subsidies range from 15 to 74 cents a meal.

State Farmers Sharing In 'Export Boom'

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas farmers are getting their share of the "export boom" and it is expected to continue, State Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Tuesday.

Brown said Texas exports increased 16 percent last year over 1976, with the value of 16 selected major commodities totaling nearly $1.2 billion.

Brown said the export market is even stronger this year, with the nation's agricultural exports likely to reach $26.6 billion. No figure was predicted for Texas.

Last year, however, cotton led the list of exports with a total of $559 million. The second highest money-maker was grain sorghum, with an estimated value of $191 million. It was followed by wheat, $165 million; rice $164 million; and soybeans $48 million.

"Agricultural commodities are our only products being sold in quantities large enough to lessen the gap in world trade," Brown said.

Sex Selection Techniques Prove Unreliable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Want a boy baby? Or a girl? Scientists are working on baby recipes, known as sex control, designed to improve the odds of choosing your child's sex.

But before painting the kid's bedroom pink or blue, take note: Even if you follow the unromantic directions — the most reliable involve artificial insemination — the results are far from foolproof.

And so far, the boy recipe has been the most successful. "Sex selection has virtually no credibility," says Dr. Ronald Ericsson, a reproductive physiologist in Sausalito, Calif., who has patented one technique for influencing the sex of babies.

"We don't claim to have a method that is absolute," said Ericsson, who did post-doctoral work in endocrinology at the University of Wisconsin. "We're dealing in biology, not witchcraft."

Basically, there are three techniques to select a child's sex: — The do-it-yourself method, requiring timing, chemistry and gymnastics. It calls for intercourse in specific positions at specified times during the woman's menstrual cycle and douching with baking soda for a boy or white vinegar for a girl. Popular and gadget-free, it is considered ineffective by most scientists.

— Sperm separation, the method patented by Ericsson, involving separation of the Y chromosome (male-bearing) sperm from the X chromosome (female-bearing) sperm. After the filtering process is completed, artificial insemination is required.

— Selective abortion, a controversial method in which amniotic fluid is taken from a woman's uterus during the fourth month of pregnancy to test for the sex of the fetus. If the sex is "wrong," an abortion can be performed. Most doctors oppose this method.

Dr. Paul Dmowski, a Chicago endocrinologist and gynecologist researching sperm separation, says eight out of 10 of his patients who used Ericsson's technique to have boys were successful. Dmowski said he thinks one of the other two women became pregnant by natural intercourse and the other couple had trouble with the sperm separation.

"We are not really able to guarantee in any way the outcome of pregnancy," said Dmowski, director of the fertility unit at Chicago's Michael Reese Hospital. "We can increase the chances from 50 percent which is natural to 75-to-80 percent. But if a couple is not willing to assume the risk of another female child, I do not accept them as patients."

Dmowski said work is being done to separate the female-bearing sperm, but the procedure is more difficult.

"Some methods are confirmed," he said. "But as far as I know, nobody is involved in the clinical application for improving the chances for a female child." Dmowski said the main cost for his sex-selection patients is airfare to Chicago and a hotel room for a week.

"There are some office expenses, but there is no charge for the procedure because it is experimental," he said. To hear Dmowski tell it, one benefit of selecting the sex of the unborn child is that it could reduce the size of families. He says many couples increase their families by continuing to try for the child's sex of their choice.

A problem with do-it-yourself is that two doctors who did much of the research on this method have come up with differing conclusions, according to the Population Reference Bureau Inc. of Washington.

In a pamphlet titled "Boys or Girls? Parents' Preferences and Sex Control," the bureau says Dr. Rodrigo Guerrero V, who has completed a fellowship at Harvard University's School of Public Health and is associated with the Universidad Del Valle, Cali, Columbia, suggests that a couple improves its chances for a boy by having intercourse six to nine days before ovulation.

On the other hand, Dr. Landrum Shettles at Gifford Memorial Hospital in Randolph, Vt., suggests a boy is most likely when a couple has intercourse at ovulation.

Another problem with do-it-yourself is that ways to determine when ovulation occurs — such as taking the woman's temperature — are not reliable.

"When ovulation occurs ... is almost impossible to determine exactly," said Dr. Robert Glass, a gynecologist who specializes in fertility at the University of California.

Glass said he would advise couples interested in selecting their child's sex to wait a few years to see if Ericsson's technique is improved. "I counsel couples not to rush into it," he said.

Social scientists raise important psychological and sociological questions about sex selection. Referring to studies showing that more couples prefer boys to girls, Nancy E. Williamson writes: "It is likely that sex control would be used more often to get boys than girls and that, if used, the (male) sex ratio would rise in some countries."

Dr. Ericsson said: "Like everything else, this may be misused. But it is something that society will have to come to terms with." Ericsson, who is now doing research in France with 6,000 cows, said work on human sex selection is at the bottom of his priority list.

Why? Because, said Ericsson, "Cows don't sue."

Father Determined To Locate Daughter

DETROIT (AP) — Joyce Marvin Stewart says not knowing for sure what happened to his missing daughter Ardella is "just literally killing me." So he has quit his job, sold his mobile home, and taken off on a cross-country search for her.

"I have nothing to live for but to find out if she is dead or alive," said Stewart, 58, in an interview before he left on his journey Monday. "Maybe it's only a faint chance she's still alive. I don't care how long it takes, I'm not going to give up."

Miss Stewart, who was 27 at the time, has not been seen since the night of May 28, 1975, when she called her common-law husband for a ride home from the factory where she worked. He arrived at the gate 10 minutes after getting her call but was unable to find her.

She has never tried to contact her son, who was 4 at the time. Her Social Security account has remained inactive.

Macomb County authorities, who found her glasses under a bush at the Champion Industries plant the day after the disappearance, surmise that she was abducted and killed. But they have no proof.

"All of the evidence points to foul play," said Oakland County sheriff's Sgt. Ronald Tuscany, who has been assigned to re-investigate the case.

Stewart, who was widowed 14 years ago and whose other daughter, 19-year-old Dannela, was stabbed to death 10 years ago at a state hospital, said he tried to adopt Ardella's son.

"But they wouldn't let me because I wasn't married," he said. The boy was adopted by another family.

Stewart, who gave up a job at a manufacturing company, said his search would take him to Chicago, Cleveland, Kansas City, Reno, Denver and San Francisco, where he has placed classified advertisements in newspapers seeking information about Ardella. He said he would also use the Citizen's Band radio network to seek help from those who might have seen his 90-pound, 4-foot-11 daughter.

"Ardella used to be in the Job Corps and she has friends in these cities," Stewart said. He has no other clues, or anything to support his belief that she might have run away or suffered amnesia.

Lois Hurr, a neighbor for the past six years, said Stewart was traveling by car and planned to sleep either in it or in motel rooms along the way.

"I hated to see him leave," said Mrs. Hurr, 54, "but if this is bothering him that much, I hope whatever it is that he finds, it'll give him peace of mind."

Candidate Hits State Drug Enforcement

AUSTIN (AP) — Jim Baker, GOP candidate for attorney general, said Tuesday the Texas Department of Public Safety should have more officers chasing dope dealers and fewer weighing trucks.

Redistribution of DPS resources was part of a 37-page anti-crime position paper that Baker issued as he began his fall campaign against Democrat Mark White.

He said he wants fixed sentences for various crimes, doing away with the latitude now given judges and juries. And the death penalty should be available for "murder as murder," he said.

Baker said that while two-thirds of the heroin entering the United States passes through Texas, only 4.9 percent of the DPS' commissioned officers are narcotics agents.

"In fact, they have more officers assigned to weighing trucks than to narcotics," Baer said at a news conference.

Baker said he would retain the attorney general's controversial organized crime division as a weapon against the narcotics traffic but with a "charter" limiting its authority.

"It would have a role in investigation but not with the power of arrest or the power to carry weapons," he said. Asked how the attorney general's investigators could defend themselves in tight situations without pistols, he said, "Their investigations would be for the purpose of trial, rather than undercover."

Baker noted that Texas law allows juries and judges to sentence criminals within a wide range of possible punishments. He recommended replacement of this with a system of fixed sentences.

"We need to state clearly and without hesitation a fair punishment to be exacted from criminals," his paper said.

The death penalty may be assessed under current law for murders committed in the course of another felony, murder for hire or the killing of law enforcement officers and firemen in line of duty.

Baker said it is "a deficiency in our capital punishment statute" that mass murderers cannot be executed unless they killed in conjunction with another crime.

"It makes no sense to say you can give capital punishment for murder during an aggravated robbery but not for murder as murder," he said.

'Misconduct' By Memphis Police Hit

MEMPHIS (AP) — Police misconduct in Memphis is pervasive, uncontrolled and "cause for public outrage," an arm of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission reported Tuesday.

The commission's Tennessee Advisory Committee said in a report on police-community relations that blacks in Tennessee's largest city are the victims of the overwhelming majority of police misconduct — ranging from lack of common courtesy to criminal physical abuse.

The report was prepared from hearings conducted in May, 1977, 15 months before police and fire fighters' strikes brought National Guardsmen to Memphis in August.

The 129-page paper criticizes the Police Department and its internal affairs bureau and the Memphis Police Association, a union representing about 1,100 rank-and-file officers. Also attracting unfavorable attention are Mayor Wyeth Chandler, the City Council, District Attorney Hugh Stanton and the city's business and religious leaders.

The committee said the department had shown an "inability and unwillingness" to respond to allegations of police misconduct against citizens. It said that failure has "logically resulted in open dissatisfaction, distrust and bitterness from those persons in the community who have attempted to have the MPD respond to police misconduct complaints."

The committee said the Memphis Police Association's contract with the city hampered effective investigations of police misconduct. The report blamed contract provisions which allow officers to refuse to submit to lie detector tests and require accused officers to be given the names of their accusers.

The day of the Mississippi riverboat gambler and his deck of marked cards is past, but an alert bridge player can often duplicate the feats of this legendary hustler by listening attentively to the bidding and applying logic. Many times the cards might just as well be marked, so certain can a player be as to where they are.

North-South have 24 high-card points out of a possible 40. Sixteen are missing. Declarer knows all sixteen are in East's hand because of East's strong one notrump overcall. This knowledge is all declarer needs to make four hearts. For all intents and purposes, South knows where every card in the deck is.

An opening club lead would have defeated the contract, but West cannot be faulted for leading the suit his partner had bid.

South won the diamond lead with the ace and played the king of hearts which he knew would lose to East's ace.

East returned a trump which was won in dummy. Declarer cashed the king of diamonds, pitching a low spade and ruffed a diamond.

He led the king of spades which East won with the ace. East returned the jack of spades which was won by dummy's queen. Declarer trumped a spade in his hand and led the 10 of clubs. The club 10 was ducked around to East's jack.

East can do nothing but lead away from his king-deuce of clubs into dummy's ace-queen, or lead a diamond that gives declarer a ruff and discard. The contract is now cold.

Even had East never bid, declarer should have played the hand the same way. East's bid, and declarer's logic, simply took the suspense out of the hand.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 26 years old and am happily married. The reason I am writing is that I have been suffering from periods of depression over the past few years. Nothing really serious, but I just seem to get depressed over nothing at all, and I can't snap out of it. This can hit me at any time, but it seems to get worse during my menstrual period. I have read that there is a drug prescribed for this sort of thing. Would this be something my family doctor could take care of? Or should I see a psychiatrist? — B.A.

This is not uncommon, which is not to say it is inevitable, nor to suggest that it is something you have to live with. Often the cause of such depression is physical. The fact is that bodily ills can lead to mental depression without our even realizing it. This is not well enough known. Certain events leading to menstruation include the retention of excess body fluid in some women. This can have various side effects throughout the body, creating a feeling of malaise and fatigue — and yes, depression.

Rather than looking for mental causes (which, indeed, may be present) look first to remedy any of the possible physical ones. Your family doctor has dealt with such problems in other women patients, so he will not think your complaints strange. He may want to prescribe a diuretic in the pre-menstrual part of your cycle to help your body rid itself of excess fluid (if that is what is going on). You may need thyroid medicine.

Many women suffer through monthly miseries needlessly when a little medical attention might end the problems. By all means consult your family doctor and explain your depressed periods to him.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In a recent column you wrote this about stroke: "Your letter illustrates the importance of recognizing pending stroke symptoms and taking action." Would you elaborate on both points: i.e., the symptoms and the actions? — J.K.

The symptoms of impending strokes are the so-called "little strokes" or transient ischemic attacks (TIAs). These are little irregularities involving speech, limb weakness, dizziness, or mental confusion, transient dimming of vision, one sided blindness attacks or episodes of double vision, lapses of memory, impaired hearing, temporary numbness and tingling in the arms or legs, sometimes unexplained headaches. These may be momentary or persist for several hours, then subside. Often the pre-stroke history is filled with repeated episodes of one or a combination of such symptoms.

That's what I meant by recognizing the symptoms. By action I refer to the need to get to a physician so that preventive measures can be started.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Tell me how I can put on weight. I'm like a rail. I feel fine and have no medical problems. I'm a young girl who'd like to be able to wear a fancy swimsuit some summer. — Miss H.B.

When a healthy person cannot gain weight, he or she is at about the weight that nature intended. The only suggestion I can make is to increase caloric intake. However, if you are like most skinnies you will very likely remain as you are no matter what you eat. Be thankful you have a healthy constitution if not a box-om body. If you are quite young, nature will make up for it in the years ahead; at least to some extent. Estrogen increase has a way of helping produce those extra layers of tissue that provide nicely-rounded feminine lines.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why does a doctor ask a woman before giving a pelvic exam or a Pap test whether "to your knowledge at the moment you are pregnant"? Is it because the exam might cause damage to the fetus? — D.J.

Yes. For this reason pregnant women are asked to avoid intercourse in these early weeks. The question is also part of the gynecologic history.

Did you know that 80 percent of stroke victims resume to some degree their former lives? In "Stroke Recovery — Hope and Help," Dr. Thosteson describes the causes and treatment of stroke. For a copy write Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 35 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Picking a lifetime career is pretty important. It must be a kick in the head when you've completed your education only to discover the supply far exceeds the demand.

It's happening to teachers who are facing a decline in population and journalists who are becoming disciples of Woodward and Bernstein and ending up in the unemployment line.

I read two stories the other day that are really discouraging. One said if crime didn't increase, they didn't know how they were going to take care of the lawbreakers as the jails are running at capacity. The other story said that future priests in the Episcopal Church far exceed the number of available congregations.

Now, if it doesn't pay you to be good — or bad — where do you turn for a job that you can count on?

I don't know about all of you, but I'm directing my sons into a career that never seems to have enough personnel, whose services are always in demand, and who are the darlings of every group where housewives gather: a washer repairman.

As I told my son, "Forget medicine. Forget law. Who gets rewarded for science and research that saves lives? You find out how to take a pair of training pants out of a clogged-up pump, boy, and you can write your own ticket."

How would you like to turn the corner of a street in your truck and see women rush into the street with flowers and shouts of "Liberator! Liberator!" I'm telling you a man never stands so tall as when he stoops to replace a timer.

It's not an easy road, believe me. Women throwing themselves in front of you saying "Me next!" I've been waiting since a week ago last Wednesday! Wading through dirty clothes up to your waist, working in a space so small the mice are crouching, blowing trails where no other man or woman has ever gone before — behind a woman's washer.

But you'll never be out of work. Laundry, like leftovers and junk mail, will always be with us.

But what about that washer repairman on television who says he's the loneliest guy in town?

You know, I smiled. "When you get to be really big you get an unlisted number."

BANANA GLACE

A quick epicurean dessert.
2 tbsps. butter
1 3/4 cup apricot preserves
1 3/4 cup white or golden rum
2 medium or large ripe (but firm) bananas
1 pint vanilla ice cream

In an 8-inch skillet over low heat stir together the butter and preserves until hot; stir in the rum and reheat. The heat will evaporate the alcohol. Remove from heat. Peel the bananas and cut each crosswise into sixths or eighths, add to the skillet. Over low heat spoon the sauce over the bananas, turning them as necessary, just until they are hot through. Serve at once over the ice cream. Makes 4 servings.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Today is my father's 90th birthday. When I asked him about what he wanted for a birthday gift he said, "Write a letter to Ann Landers and tell her I've been reading her column for years and I think she is the greatest. If she will run for President I will support her candidacy."

Dad is A.C. Eastridge and he lives in Spotsylvania, Va. I know he would get a big kick out of it if you would print my letter. Sincerely yours — His Daughter Claudette

Dear Claudette: Here's the letter and please tell your father I am blowing a birthday kiss all the way from Chicago. And tell him something else, while you're at it. I appreciate the compliments but I can't run for President. I'm busy.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is being married in the fall. His fiancée has decided to keep her own name. She wants this put on the wedding invitations. She has also made it clear that she wants no mention of her parents or of us to appear on the invitation — says "there's no point in it."

I have no objections to any of this but my husband is furious. He has told me he wants all the names of his relatives taken off the invitation list because he doesn't care to listen to their comments about his "Women's Lib daughter-in-law."

He also says he will not consider our son's wife as a relative of his since she doesn't want our name. More fallout: We had planned to give them a check for $10,000 for a down payment on a home but since she has come up with all these "regulations," my husband has decided that $1,000 is enough.

The parents of this young woman are very nice. They are as embarrassed as we are but her father confided to my husband that she has always been "headstrong" and there is nothing they can do about it.

Our son is an only child and I don't want to lose him. He says he believes his bride-to-be has a right to her own views and goes along with them. I need some advice on how to deal with this. — Mrs. E.W. Of Virginia doesn't want any of his relatives to be on the guest list, their names should be taken off. His rights deserve to be respected as well as "Miss Headstrong's."

Dear Mrs. E. W.: Since your husband

If you hope to maintain any kind of relationship with your son and his wife it will have to be on their terms. So, dear, do your best to keep the lines of communication open. It sounds as if your future daughter-in-law would like nothing better than to cut you off completely. Do your darndest to see that this doesn't happen.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife is a good person but she is a terrible liar. I hand over my paycheck every week and she is supposed to pay all the bills. I'm the type of person who wants my reputation to be clean. My wife spends money on things we don't need and then hides the unpaid bills and the dunning notices.

When I find these things (stuck in magazines and under the desk blotter) she cries and says she meant to tell me but it slipped her mind. I don't want to insult her by taking over. We've only been married six months. What do you suggest? — Sickavit

Dear S. Take over. NOW. You won't insult her — you'll relieve her. She has proven she can't handle money and you're a boob to let her run your credit. Give her an allowance and pay the bills yourself.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents in coin and a self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611. Copyright Field Enterprises, Inc.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I may be a bit late with my suggestion, but a trip to the cemetery this past week made me realize some do not know this.

At many of the memorial gardens we are limited to a vase set in the monument for our flower arrangements. An attendant years ago put me wise to this tip — I've been grateful ever since.

Using artificial flowers (there are so many pretty ones), your preparation must begin at home. I use a regular soda pop can, top removed, or holes punched in.

Fill the can three-fourths full with fine gravel or small stones (sand may work). Arrange the flowers, pour melted paraffin, with care, to fill the flower container. Let sit until firm.

I take heavy-duty foil along to the cemetery to put in the base of the vase so the can containing the arrangement will sit just right.

Almost no type of weather or wind has ever rearranged any flowers I've put there. — Mabel You're never too late in my book, especially when passing along such a helpful hint.

Lotsa folks are gonna love you for this one.
So do I. — Hugs, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

A small clipboard is a great helper when doing grocery shopping.

I clip my shopping list and any coupons I intend to use onto the board before going to the store.

The board gives a firm backing to check off items on the list and the coupons do not get lost.

I also keep a piece of blank paper under my list for quick figuring or making notes of prices for future reference. — Elaine Zimmerman

Sounds very efficient to me. Bet you're a whiz! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I deal with stray dandelions by filling an old detergent bottle, the kind with a pull-up top, with water and dandelion killer.

Then when I see a stray dandelion, I give it a squirt right in the center and it is done for! — A Reader

Just a word of caution: Be sure to label the bottle and keep it out of the reach of children. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

With paper being so expensive, check over your junk mail before discarding and retrieve the paper with blank backs to use for note pads by the phone, shopping lists, etc.

Like sizes can even be stapled together for little pads.

Recycling in this way will save you money and help the environment. — C.G.

DEAR HELOISE:

Ever had a terrible cup of coffee at a club or church affair where a 30-cup percolator is used?

Just use one cup of ground coffee per 30 cups of water.
Perfect coffee every time. — Joan

Maybe it tastes better because you wouldn't lose track of all those little scoops you have to measure. A good idea! — Heloise

THIS COLUMN is written for you...the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

I'm a teacher's aide in a school and here's a hint for mothers who pack lunches for their children:

Ask them what they want or will eat in their lunch.

It is appalling how much food is thrown away and when I ask the kids why they don't eat it, they say they don't like it.

Also, when kids buy their lunches, be sure they know in advance what is being served and give them a choice of that or taking their lunch that day.

When they don't like what we have, the kids eat next to nothing and it's hard for them to work on an empty stomach.

Keep up the good work. We're always looking for a way to make our job easier. — Bonnie Rogie

Together we can all make it... Thanks, Bonnie — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I use the foam fabric softener sheets and hated to toss them away after using — there must be another life for them.

I noticed a pair of pants had slipped off its hanger (one covered with a tube from a paper towel), so I took four of the used fabric softener sheets and stitched them over the hanger.

No longer do pants and slacks slide off the hanger. I'm gradually doing all of them this way, and the closet has a nice fragrance as well. — Marjorie Goode

Caution Pervades Southwest Oil, Gas Industry

(This is the last in a series of weekly energy columns which Jolly Schram has been writing for The Avalanche-Journal since the beginning of the energy crisis in the United States. Mr. Schram is discontinuing the column on a regular basis. This final column analyzes the oil and gas production trends for the final months of 1978.)

By JOLLY SCHRAM
A-J Correspondent

Just as plans are made for an new school, business lays plans for the final months of a calendar year.

The oil industry is no exception. Rather than seeing a happy "full speed ahead" attitude that marked the years since the Arab embargo in late 1973, today plans are surrounded with a noticeable wariness.

Such instinctive caution is seen in a falling of applications for drilling permits as reported recently by the Texas Railroad Commission.

Or caution is seen in the onshore production figures that have peaked earlier in the decade for both oil and gas in the Southwestern oil and gas states.

Or even more currently, a rig count that has been slackening recently in the Permian Basin area of West Texas and New Mexico, though holding more steadily in New Mexico, conveys concern.

There are a variety of explanations for the animal alertness that characterizes the oil industry today; and one is that these months are traditional ones for vacationing industry personnel and always tending to be lighter in work.

There are other possibilities. "Right now, the oil industry is trying to mark time until the government moves" on a final national energy plan, said Ed Thompson of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, Midland.

Until the recent Southland decision is resolved, which has in effect decreed that "once interstate gas, always interstate gas" producers will re-evaluate plans he added.

An instate glut of natural gas has slowed the market in Texas while other problems of shortages of equipment and skilled labor persist everywhere.

"We have millions tied up in shut-in wells for the last two years," appraised independent Bob Lambert, Midland, as the wells await interstate connections. "We need an aggressive interstate market" as the instate one is now oversupplied.

Prices, too are generally uncertain for the future as a many-tiered price structure is planned for natural gas if current bills are passed in Congress. These multiple prices may be subjected to bureaucratic interpretation, which again, inhibits a free and open search for new reserves.

Although oil is more stable at his point, drilling and completion costs in general are quickly reaching the pre-embargo days of 1973, spelled out another Permian Basin independent.

"Drilling and completion costs are catching up with the price increases" in products he said, and the economies will be less glittering than before.

Other factors that have hobbled the industry and their plans is the dollar drop and inflation. World concern about America's future persists and even pervades into the American Southwest as producers are acutely aware of the interest of Arabian and European capital investors.

On the plus side, though, well servicing companies are busy and appear to be scheduled for a busy final quarter.

Independents are active as smaller, safer prospects are being drilled in the face of some capital shortages. These prospects, however, have smaller risk factors, and thus, promise smaller returns.

Landmen, too, scurry around as companies — both large and small — still hunt good acreage to place in inventory.

As many leases are scheduled to expire late this year and in 1979 as five year leases activated by the Arab embargo expire, companies are vying for the choicest land. (Some of this acreage accounts, too, for current drilling as companies try to retain the best acreage of all through meeting drilling requirements.)

"I'm as busy as I can be" said one veteran landman in West Texas. Said a geologist who represents a Roswell producer. "The New Mexico state land sales are high these days — really high," which also indicates the scramble for good acreage.

Thus, in the final days for the industry in 1978, activity persists but not at a level that conveys unlimited optimism about industry in general.

Fuel Overcharge Claim Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Energy said Tuesday that Crown Central Petroleum Corp., a marketer of gasoline and home heating oil, may have overcharged more than $709,000 for its products and may have claimed an additional $3.3 million incorrectly as costs to be charged to customers in the future.

The department said its special counsel for compliance issued a proposed remedial order which would require Crown Central to refund $709,238 to purchasers, under procedures still to be established.

Any amount which could not be directly refunded would go, instead, to the U.S. Treasury, under the proposed order.

The $3.3 million in "banked" costs would be disallowed, under the order, preventing the company from recovering that amount in future sales.

Company Vice President William R. Snyder, asked about the proposed order, said Crown Central believed the department was applying the regulations incorrectly. He said the company would contest the remedial order.

Assassination Committee To Begin Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House assassinations committee begins hearings Wednesday on the murder of President John F. Kennedy, indicating in advance that the multi-million dollar probe found no conspiracy.

Theories that Cubans, organized crime, businessmen or even the CIA and FBI conspired to assassinate the president are to be dealt with in just four days at the end of the month-long hearings.

"You may get new insights into old problems," a committee spokesman told reporters at a briefing. "You will not necessarily get new results."

The hearings begin with the assassination in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963. Witnesses include former Texas Gov. John Connally, who was in Kennedy's car and was wounded.

Disagreeing with the Warren Commission, Connally has said he is convinced he was hit by a separate bullet, not one that went first through Kennedy's throat.

That raises the possibility of a second gunman, but Connally has accepted the commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, killed Kennedy.

United Way Slates Luncheon Meeting For Coordinators

Members of the division responsible for raising the largest share of the United Way campaign goal meet today to learn how that objective is to be accomplished.

Representatives from 150 Lubbock firms and organizations will be guests at the United Way Loaned Executive division kickoff at noon at the Memorial Civic Center.

As campaign coordinators, these representatives will operate in-firm or in-plant campaigns, contacting more than 23,000 employees.

Campaign coordinators will be aided by "loaned executives" who make up the division responsible for $625,000 of the campaign's total $1,682,369 goal.

Heading the Loaned Executive division are Roy K. Furr, chairman, and Giles M. Forbess and Carroll, McDonald, vice chairmen.

Coordinators at the luncheon, sponsored by Lubbock business organizations in addition to regular campaign contributions, will hear group solicitation techniques, be provided with campaign materials and will receive tips on determining individual firm quotas.

Don Douglass is chairman of this year's campaign and Joe Price is vice chairman.

LINER WITHDRAWN

GENOA, Italy (AP) — The luxury Italian liner Leonardo da Vinci has been withdrawn from service on its Caribbean routes and docked pending its sale, officials of Compagnia di Navigazione Italia said Tuesday. The state-owned shipping line decided to remove the 33,340-ton liner, built in 1960, because its service was no longer profitable, officials said.

The commission acknowledged the difference of opinion but concluded that Oswald fired three shots from a fifth floor window of the Texas School Book Depository.

Hearings Thursday and Friday should disclose results of committee experts' ballistics tests and a study of Kennedy's autopsy.

One of the committee's most intriguing findings may be dealt with Monday: a sound, during the seconds Kennedy was assassinated, that the experts said could be a fourth shot.

The consultants hired by the committee said that if the sound was a shot, it came too quickly after the first three to have been fired by Oswald.

And the experts say the sound was not necessarily a gunshot. They conducted tests including live gunfire in Dallas two weeks ago to recreate the sounds of the assassination.

The committee hearings then turn to Lee Harvey Oswald — evidence corroborating the finding that Oswald was the assassin, his time in Russia and his trip to Mexico before the assassination.

The committee will go over the performance of the Secret Service, the FBI and Justice Department and the Central Intelligence Agency in protecting the president and cooperating with assassination investigations. The House gave the committee $5 million to investigate the assassinations of Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King, with instructions to answer questions surrounding the two murders.

Opponents argued the money was a waste because no investigation could end the theories and speculation that always follow the assassination of a public figure.

The committee spokesman, who did not want to be named, told reporters that may prove true of the two-year investigation of the Kennedy assassination.

"Far from settling questions," he said, "we may raise more."

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very good time to show your affection and devotion to those you are fond of, but not by being extravagant; rather, let them know that you are looking for a satisfactory relationship with them. Study and ferret out answers you need.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Showing your devotion for the one you love is fine, but it is not right to spend too much money. Pay as many bills as you can.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) An associate may want to change a part of your agreement and it might be wise to do so. Make long-range plans with one you are fond of.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use your own good judgment in going after pleasures that please most. Improve your business affairs with the aid of a partner.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You know what fellow workers expect of you so be cooperative and get your work done. Forget a slight ailment you may have: it's only temporary.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A change of attitude is needed if you are to understand the situation at home better. Put those ideas to work that will add to present income.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to be diplomatic in going after a personal goal that means much to you. Use charm. Buy a gift for one with whom you have argued and pave the way for a reconciliation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Working on a good plan for bettering your position in life is wise now. Take a financial expert into your confidence. Don't take risks that could bring a money crisis to your door.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Concentrate on aims that mean the most to you and gain them with relative ease. Use charm instead of force with others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ideal time to confer with a bigwig and get needed support to improve your position in life. Give more attention to loved ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go to an older person for the aid you want for a personal aim and then you attain it. Avoid an associate who does not agree with your views now. Be careful of strangers today, tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan well before you tackle outside duties and then you get fine results. Later be charming socially. Take no risks with reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Look to a clever and serious friend for the assistance you need with a new project. Forget amusements for now and concentrate on the important. Make big headway and then rest.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be full of curiosity, which is fine, provided you teach early to go after only those things that are worthwhile. Also teach to confide in parents and later in partners instead of being so secretive.

"The stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you.

HEARTLINE

(Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast! If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 43081. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.)

HEARTLINE: I am 38 years old. Last week I had my eyes checked for the first time in many years. I was told that I needed glasses. Can you give some guidelines for the purchasing of eye glasses? — N.H.

Since you have found that you are in need of glasses, you should take your prescription and shop around and compare prices and services of the many outlets that sell glasses. In checking the many frames that are on the market, it is necessary to note the exact brand name to make a valid comparison of the price and quality. The cost of the lenses should not vary greatly.

Before buying a pair of glasses, ask the seller what services he offers after purchase, such as adjustments of frames.

Large frames are now very popular and glass lenses are often too heavy to rest comfortably on the bridge of the nose. In cases such as these, plastic lenses may be necessary. Plastic lenses however, require special care to keep them from scratching, and you should take this into consideration.

After receiving the new glasses if you note any eye discomfort or problems with the frames, you should return to the prescriber of the glasses and have them rechecked. There should be no charge for this service.

There is absolutely no truth to the myth that you should have your glasses changed each year. Many people can wear the same pair of glasses for years and be comfortable. However, we strongly recommend regular check-ups to determine the health of your eyes. There is more to an eye exam than just having a new pair of glasses.

HEARTLINE: My stepfather died last month. I paid for the funeral. Yesterday, my mother and I were looking through his papers and I found his discharge papers from the service. Can you tell me if it is possible that the Veteran's Administration might help with the funeral expenses? — G.R.

In order for your stepfather to be eligible, he must have been a wartime veteran or a peacetime veteran entitled to service-connected compensation at the time of his death or discharge or retired for disability incurred in line of duty.

You can receive up to $250 for basic burial expenses and an additional payment not exceeding $150 as a plot or interment allowance. If the death was due to service-connected disability, then payment can be up to $800.

HEARTLINE: I have been working in a Civil Service job my whole life (29 years). I am presently 52 years old. Right now I am planning to retire in 10 years, when I reach age 62. I have heard about many people making additional

Subaru Fuel System Flaw Sparks Recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government safety agency announced Tuesday that Subaru of America Inc. is recalling 23,000 of its 1978 BRAT vehicles because of fuel tank leaks.

The company said the tanks may develop hairline cracks because of a blockage in the fuel evaporative control system which creates abnormally high pressure.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Agency cautioned owners to examine their fuel tanks for bulges or signs of leakage and to contact their dealers if they observe such problems. It said it knew of no accidents or injuries caused by the problem.

Murder Trial Delayed

NEW YORK (AP) — The start of the murder trial of two diamond cutters in the bizarre slaying of diamond broker Pinchos Jaroslavic was delayed Tuesday for two days because of a death in the family of the prosecuting attorney.

Justice Aloysius Melia granted the request to push back the trial's start until Thursday when he was informed there had been a death in the family of Assistant District Attorney Peter Stevens, who is handling the case.

Jaroslavic's body was found stuffed in an air-conditioning carton in the city's diamond district a year ago. The search for his killers spread as far as San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The victim was believed to be carrying some $1 million in gems at the time of his death. The netwets are still missing.

The defendants, Pinhas "Pini" Balaban 36 and Shlomo Tal 32 are both Israelis. According to authorities in that country, both men have arrest records there. They have pledged innocent.

Tal has maintained that he and Jaroslavic were kidnapped by unknown masked men, who later murder his associate.

FTC Chief Opposes Congressional Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Trade Commission Chairman Michael Pertschuk is opposing an effort to give Congress veto power over the regulatory agency's actions.

The veto push is being led by Rep. Elliott H. Levitas, D-Ga., who says, "The FTC is really a mini-legislature, but the people who compose it have never suffered the inconvenience of running for public office."

Pertschuk, however, said that Congress lacks the resources for reviewing all decisions of such agencies as the FTC. He said Congress would be faced with lobbyists for every industry that does not like the way it is being regulated.

FDA Issues Warning On Acne Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retinoic acid, a widely prescribed acne treatment, may increase the risk of getting skin cancer from sunlight, the Food and Drug Administration said Tuesday.

Anyone using the medication should avoid or minimize the skin's exposure to the sun or sunlamps, the FDA said in a "Drug Bulletin" sent to one million doctors and other health professionals.

The FDA said the skin cancer warning, based on the preliminary results of a Temple University study on animals.

Retinoic acid, known generically as tretinoin, is sold by Johnson Johnson under the brand name Retin-A. It is not an ingredient in acne treatments sold without prescription.

The FDA said it does not know yet whether applying a sunscreen can make it safe for a person who used the medication to stay in the sun.

In the Temple study, hairless mice were treated with retinoic acid and exposed to simulated sunlight. About 80 percent developed multiple skin tumors, compared with only 6 percent of those exposed to simulated sunlight alone, and none of those who were not treated were exposed to sunlight.

In the same Drug Bulletin, the FDA said that doctors or nurses who are or may become pregnant should avoid using hexachlorophene surgical scrubs. It suggested they use substitutes as "an interim precaution" while it checks out a recent Swedish study on hospital personnel that reported a link between hexachlorophene and human birth defects.

The FDA said it has been in touch with Swedish Department of Drugs officials "who have serious reservations about the study because of its technical deficiencies."

The FDA said it will send a team to Sweden shortly to review the study, and that it also expects to receive another Swedish report that reportedly found no evidence of increased birth defects from hexachlorophene.

Until the matter is resolved, the FDA said, it would be prudent for female hospital staff who may become pregnant to use the available substitutes.

Hexachlorophene has been on the market since the 1940s, but scientists discovered in the early 1970s that repeated use could lead to significant levels of the chemical in the users' blood.

A French study found that infants accidentally exposed to high concentrations of hexachlorophene in talcum powder suffered brain damage, the FDA noted. In 1972, the agency banned non-prescription uses of it.

AIRLINES MERGER EXPECTED

NEW YORK (AP) — Pan American World Airways Chairman William T. Seawell predicted Tuesday that Pan Am and National Airlines will reach a merger agreement Wednesday. Directors of both firms met separately throughout the day Tuesday and planned to meet again today.

Late Summer Wetness Adds To Rivers' Flow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's five largest rivers recorded above-normal flows for the sixth straight month in August as summer came to a close on a wet note in much of the country.

The U.S. Geological Survey reported a sharp wet trend in parts of a dozen southern and eastern states where streams reversed the normal late summer slump with August flows higher than July.

The combined flows of the five largest rivers — Mississippi, St. Lawrence, Columbia, Ohio and Missouri — averaged about $16 billion gallons a day in August, about 100 billion more than normal.

The Big Five rivers account for the runoff from about half of the 48 coterminous states, providing a quick check on the state of the nation's water resources.

In the East, freshwater inflow into Chesapeake Bay averaged about 30 billion gallons a day in August, 53 percent above normal.

Much of the unusual flow came from the Potomac where the average flow of about 7.3 billion gallons a day at Washington was nearly four times the monthly normal.

Increased late summer flows in streams that normally decline at this time of year were reported in parts of New England, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Georgia, Louisiana and Texas.

Among the Big Five rivers, the largest upward surge was recorded on the Ohio at Louisville where the flow averaged 42 billion gallons a day, 117 percent above normal for August.

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Message To Washington

MESSAGE — I will appreciate very much any help you may be able to give me. The situation is this: my father died several months before my birth during the flu epidemic in Texas during World War I. Our home was destroyed by fire and all our family records were apparently lost in the fire. My mother died while I was still young and I have been unable to find very much information concerning my father. Since he was in the U.S. Army at the time he died, might there be records available? I would like to know his place and date of birth, next of kin, where he was buried and the date and cause of his death. Thank you. — H.N., Corpus Christi

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — The National Personnel Records Center has been able to verify the essential facts in your father's military service record. The Center advises me that each of your questions has been answered. To assure your privacy, the answers have been sent directly to you.

MESSAGE — I need your help with the Federal Worker's Compensation Program. I incurred an on-the-job injury in 1976. After attempting to go back to work several times — and suffering recurring troubles — I had to retire, unable to perform my duties. Civil Service has been sending me payments for retirement, but I have received only two checks from workers compensation. As of this date, I have heard nothing more from them. Would you please try and help me? — C.N., Conroe

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — According to the Department of Labor your claim for compensation has been held in abeyance pending receipt of medical evidence to support your claim. You need to provide them with a record of your clinical treatment and doctor's reports. A note of caution: since you are now receiving a Civil Service Disability, compensation benefits cannot be awarded concurrently. Should you be entitled to compensation benefits you would have to choose which one of the benefits you prefer to receive.

Senior Citizen Van Sought

The president of the local chapter (537) of the American Association of Retired Persons, is asking Lubbockites to contribute toward the purchase of a transport van for the Adult Senior Citizen Center, located at 26th Street and Avenue P. Mrs. Eunice Stephens says, the chapter's about "halfway there" in securing enough money to purchase a van, which would be used solely to transport retired persons to the center. Many older persons have no transportation whatsoever, she said, and are in dire need of such a van. The conveyance eventually might be outfitted with a hydraulic lift, she said, to aid in boarding. Mrs. Stephens said tax deductible contributions may be forwarded to Charlie Pope, finance chairman, at the First Federal Savings, 1300 Broadway. Mrs. Stephens also may be reached at 797-2517. The American Association of Retired Persons has about 12 or 13 million members nationwide, Mrs. Stephens said.

Discrimination Alleged Of FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Service Commission is reviewing a complaint by one of the first women FBI agents, who has charged the bureau with sexual discrimination.

The complaint, filed by Christine Hansen more than a year ago, has been assigned to Martha Lanphear, a hearing examiner with the Civil Service Commission. Mrs. Lanphear will make a recommendation after reviewing the evidence and ultimately the Justice Department will decide if there has been discrimination.

Mrs. Lanphear confirmed Tuesday a report by the Washington Star which said Miss Hansen alleged that many of the physical training requirements for FBI candidates are not necessary for most routine FBI work and have unfairly ruled out many women applicants.

Mrs. Lanphear, who said the complaint was "broad and far-reaching," said it also charged that women are discriminated against in the type of cases they are assigned and are sent to field offices on the basis of their sex rather than their abilities.

Miss Hansen, reportedly practicing law now in Iowa, joined the FBI as an agent in November 1972 when the policy excluding women agents was changed. She resigned a year ago after she was transferred from Washington to Phoenix, Ariz.

Miss Hansen's 80-page complaint is still pending, and the review by the Civil Service Commission is still in the preliminary stages.

The commission has already decided that there are grounds for a classification in the case, meaning that other current and former women agents may join in the complaint. Government officials declined comment on what type of relief or compensation the complaint seeks. But the Star reported that the intent is a change in recruiting, training and employment practices for women.

Women were excluded from becoming agents in the FBI and were limited to clerical and secretarial jobs until after the death of former director J. Edgar Hoover. His successor, L. Patrick Gray III, began to admit women in 1972.

There were 70 women out of the 8,500 FBI agents at the end of last year. Under the FBI's new director, William H. Webster, that figure has doubled.

Sources have said that in her complaint, Miss Hansen alleged she was transferred to Phoenix against her wishes because FBI officials decided a woman should be assigned to that office.

If Miss Hansen is not satisfied with the ultimate decision by the Justice Department, she has the option of appealing to the full Civil Service Commission or to a federal court.

Mondale Subs For Carter On Domestic Affairs

WASHINGTON (AP) — With President Carter preoccupied by foreign policy and the Mideast summit, Vice President Walter F. Mondale took charge of virtually all domestic affairs on Tuesday.

A little more than 12 hours after returning from ceremonies marking the installation of Pope John Paul I in Rome, Mondale was overseeing the administration's lobbying efforts in Congress.

The White House said last week that Carter instructed Mondale to handle most other business so that the president could concentrate on his talks with Egypt's Anwar Sadat and Israel's Menachem Begin.

"This is unique in the sense that you've not had a president nor a vice president with that degree of mutual respect," press secretary Jody Powell said last Friday, when the arrangement was announced at a White House briefing.

Mondale began his day by standing in for Carter at the daily meeting with Frank Moore, the president's congressional liaison.

Mondale and Moore were believed to have discussed three key issues facing Congress: an attempt to override the president's defense authorization veto, the natural gas legislation and the administration's plan to reorganize the civil service.

Mondale spokesman Al Eisele said the vice president spent about 30 minutes with Moore and other members of the congressional liaison. Then, the vice president spoke by telephone with Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, to review the administration's strategy for pending Senate votes.

Mondale, who served 12 years in the Senate, is often deeply involved in the administration's relations with Congress. However, Carter usually meets daily with Moore to discuss that subject.

Carter and Mondale conferred once during the morning, Eisele said. They reviewed by telephone Mondale's 29-hour visit to Rome, during which he met with the new pope and with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Argentine leader Gen. Jorge Videla.

Mondale met later Tuesday with Ed Sanders, the administration's newly appointed liaison with the American Jewish community.

Mondale's own involvement in the summit remained undefined as the talks were about to get under way.

He was called on to serve as the leader of the official welcoming delegation at Andrews Air Force Base for the arrivals of Sadat and Begin.

Late Tuesday, the vice president planned to drop by a seminar on natural gas in the White House Cabinet Room while the Middle East leaders headed for the Maryland mountaintop retreat.

Then, according to Eisele, "he'll go home and get a good night's sleep" to recuperate from the weekend trip to Rome.

Later in the week, Mondale is likely to attend the summit talks, Eisele said, adding that the vice president would attend a round of meetings Wednesday.

"He'll be shuttling back and forth," the spokesman said.

Israel Names Delegate To U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Yehuda Blum, a 46-year-old lawyer, became Israel's chief U.N. delegate on Tuesday and said he was hopeful that the Camp David summit could lead eventually to Middle East peace before the end of his term — which is three years from now.

Blum handed Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim his credentials as Israel's permanent representative to the United Nations succeeding Chaim Herzog, who has joined a law firm in Tel Aviv.

"I regard it as an auspicious omen that I should have presented my credentials on the eve of the Camp David talk," Blum said at a subsequent news conference.

"Israel hopes that these talks will take us one step further toward the establishment of a genuine peace in the Middle East and I am hopeful that during my term of office at the United Nations we shall witness the establishment of that peace."

The open-ended talks will involve Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and President Carter.

Managua Strikers Yielding

MANAGUA (AP) — National guardsmen surrounded one of Nicaragua's major banks Tuesday when some bank employees joined the nationwide general strike demanding the removal of President Anastasio Somoza.

About 100 persons demonstrated in a plaza adjoining the 16-story tower building of the Banco de America as eight Jeeps carrying rifle-armed guardsmen of the special antiterrorist unit arrived and took up positions around the structure.

The bank continued to conduct business and when the demonstrators dispersed quietly in small groups the guardsmen, who serve as Nicaragua's army and police force, drove away.

The general strike began Aug. 25. The Chamber of Commerce, which supports the strike, said Tuesday that a survey indicated it may be losing strength, at least in Managua.

More than 50 persons have been killed in strike-related violence, with most of the deaths reported last week in the city of Matagalpa, where guardsmen crushed an armed revolt.

Banks, gasoline stations and some central markets have remained open, with the chartered banks especially vulnerable to government warnings that action would be taken against firms shutting down.

Offices and branches of the Banco Nicaraguense remained closed for the second day Tuesday.

Federico Lau Chavez, chief statistician for the Federation of Chambers of Commerce, said a survey Tuesday found 71 percent of the businesses in Managua's 16 shopping centers closed. This compared to 78 percent Monday.

Reports say the strike has been 90 percent effective in some provincial cities.

Marvin Nino Ortiz, a spokesman for strikers at the Banco de America, which is not linked to the California-based Bank of America, claimed 80 percent of the employees walked off the job.

His figures were disputed by bank officials. Bernardo Vaughn, branch manager, said only eight of the 60 employees failed to report for work and there were few employees among the plaza demonstrators.

Business leaders supporting the strike have declared that if Somoza remains in power his policies will drive moderate Nicaraguans into the arms of radical organizations that have vowed to abolish free enterprise and establish a Marxist state.

The government told business owners Tuesday they would have to pay their employees whether they worked or not and a pro-government union declared that closed businesses should be charged with conducting illegal lockouts.

Somoza, whose family has controlled Nicaragua since 1937, has said he will not resign until his elected six-year term expires in 1981.

The national guard announced Tuesday that 70 persons arrested over the past few days had been released. Col. Aquiles Aranda Escobar declined to say how many persons were still in jail involving strike activities and demonstrations, but said prisoners were being released "little by little" as their cases are investigated.

Townspople Steer Clear Of Retreat

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — As world leaders gather at nearby Camp David to search for a Middle East peace agreement, residents of this small Western Maryland town seem willing to respect their privacy.

"The reason it was built was for the president to get away from it all, and we like to keep it that way," said C. Ray Weddle, Thurmont's mayor and substitute mail carrier.

Hardly anyone from Thurmont has been inside the fence that surrounds the heavily guarded presidential retreat, except for merchants summoned to fix broken washing machines or drop off a reupholstered chair.

Camp David, a secluded 300 acres where the talks will take place, is reserved for history-book names and faces, and the aides who carry out their wishes.

Thurmont is a cluster of well-scrubbed storefronts fanning out from a central square that has the town's only traffic light.

The 3,000 townspople are protective of the camp, which was christened Shangri-La by President Franklin Roosevelt in 1942 and renamed by President Dwight Eisenhower after his grandson. The people say they're nonchalant about the proximity of presidents.

President Carter drops by on occasion, and he has worshipped at the United Methodist Church during weekend visits to Camp David. Usually, though, the White House visitors go directly to the camp by helicopter and stay there.

"It never was a big deal," said Weddle, "except when Franklin Roosevelt used to drive up here. Truman, too."

The security and secrecy surrounding the camp will be tested this week. President Carter is meeting there with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

This is not Thurmont's first summit of the '70s. In 1973, Soviet chief Leonid Brezhnev met at Camp David with President Nixon. The Russian delegation stayed at the Cozy Inn, a restaurant-motel complex here.

The diplomats were so grateful for the hospitality extended by Jerry Freeze, the motel's owner, and his mother that they invited them to visit the Soviet Embassy in Washington a few months later.

Lockheed Talks Slated

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Four Big Spring civic workers will fly to Ontario, Calif., today to reopen negotiations with Lockheed Aircraft Service Co. for the rental of property in the Big Spring Industrial Park.

The four are city manager Harry Nagel, city attorney Jim Gregg, Harry Spannaus, manager of the Big Spring Industrial Park, and Clyde McMahon Sr., a member of the Big Spring industrial team.

Lockheed is bidding for a Department of Defense contract to modify the Navy F-4N fighter plane and any agreement worked out between the firm and the Big Spring delegation is contingent upon Lockheed winning the contract.

Even now, Lockheed is preparing its bid, working toward an Oct. 15 deadline. Winner of the pact will, according to information volunteered by Lockheed, be announced Sept. 1.

Lockheed officials contacted civic groups here after learning that the government would negotiate for the aircraft modification contract, indicating Big Spring would again be their first choice as a site to service planes.

The Ontario firm bid unsuccessfully for a contract to modify an Air Force fighter plane here months ago. The pact later was awarded to McDonnell-Douglas Aircraft Co. of Tulsa, but Lockheed officials have continued to monitor the situation here. They have indicated other government contracts will be put up for bids.

The Big Spring delegation expects to remain in California about two days.

Paducah School Enrollment Drops

A-J Correspondent

PADUCAH — The 1978 enrollment in Paducah schools, though down 29 from a year ago, increased to 523 students by Tuesday. On opening day Aug. 28, the enrollment was 508, according to Superintendent John Brinson.

Brinson said a loss in enrollment could mean that salaries for two teachers would be paid from local funds. "This (news), comes with a budget already cut to the bare bones," he added.

Paducah High School has 151 students this year, eight less than a year ago; Goodwin Jr. High School is down to 239 students, six less than last year; and Alamo Elementary School's enrollment decreased by 15 students to 133 this year.

The proposed school budget is $873,659, including interest and sinking fund money, Brinson said, an increase of $25,412 "mostly due to Title I and Title IV and special education funds, which are federally and state supplied."

Taxes will be some $5,000 less (from $286,000 to $281,000) because of a loss of allocation on oil and gas production in the county, the superintendent said.

Two new school buses have been purchased for the new year, Brinson said, one a 47-passenger vehicle and the other designed to carry 19 persons.

These purchases were made in addition to major renovation of the restrooms at Alamo School and new carpeting in the halls there.

'Good Stuff' Found In Trash

DENVER (AP) — James Jarrell says he's making $300 a week trading and selling items he finds in trash bins at Denver's more expensive apartments for singles and young married couples.

"These people move a lot, buy impulsively and throw a lot of good stuff away," said Jarrell, 33, who moved to Denver last month from Los Angeles.

The valuables he's found include a man's gold ring that he sold for $125, a new movie projector in its box with the sales slip, which he returned for a $159.74 refund, and $234 cash in an overcoat.

Older people tend to be more settled and frugal and don't produce such high quality garbage, said Jarrell, who sells and trades his finds at weekend swaps.

"I'm my own boss. I'm not taking a job away from anyone. I'm radical enough not to like paying taxes," he said.

Wife Eyes Star Counterpart

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — "She's a gorgeous woman, and I'm not," said Doris Miller, wife of Democratic Senate candidate Andrew Miller, about the wife of her husband's Republican opponent, actress Elizabeth Taylor Warner.

"She's obviously a celebrity, but I honestly don't know if that translates into votes," added Mrs. Miller, whose husband is battling former Navy Secretary John Warner for a Senate seat.

Her comments came during a Labor Day campaign appearance with Virginia Lt. Gov. Charles Robb at the University of Virginia.

Mrs. Miller joked that she has led "a very dull life... with one husband and three babies."

The 46-year-old Miss Taylor's marriage to Warner is her seventh.

But the women do have at least one thing in common. "We're the same age," Mrs. Miller said.

187 Miles Biked To Deliver

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Talk about service, Marie Jostad's optician bicycled 187 miles from St. Louis to Peoria to deliver her new glasses. "I thought he was joking," said Mrs. Jostad.

But it was no joke. There at the door Monday was Leonard Leighton, who left St. Louis Saturday and peddled 101 miles Sunday in the longest leg of his journey.

"I feel fantastic," said Leighton, 50, who covered the final 58 miles Monday. "Thank the good Lord there was no rain."

Mrs. Jostad used to work for Leighton and always had him fit her glasses. When she moved to Peoria about five years ago, she continued to have Leighton do the work.

Leighton said he delivers glasses to customers in St. Louis by bicycle and figured Mrs. Jostad's order was an opportunity for a road trip. His plans did not include a bike trip back to St. Louis.

Ferryboat Up For Auction

NEW YORK (AP) — The 40-year old Staten Island ferryboat Mary Murray will be placed on the auction block Wednesday.

The 2,100-ton vessel, which was commissioned by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia in 1938, has been in drydock since 1972.

Jeremiah T. Walsh, acting general services commissioner, said the boat was in fair condition and could be converted into a floating restaurant.

Aggies Play Flip's Jayhawks

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Comedian Flip Wilson is on the University of Kansas campus this week filming a television special in which he plays a backup quarterback for the Jayhawks.

Filming began Tuesday at Memorial Stadium, where the Kansas football team was to simulate a Kansas-Texas A&M game in which Wilson replaces the starting quarterback and leads Kansas to a touchdown.

Wilson's special, "Flip Wilson's Salute to Football," also has him drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals and leading them to the Super Bowl.

Wilson is to try out for the pom-pom squad Thursday as "Geraldine" in filming at Allen Field House.

Sophomore quarterback Harry Sydney was selected as Wilson's double for the show. It was not announced when or on what stations the show will be aired.

Teacher Strife Hampers Schools' Opening Day

By The Associated Press

Teachers stayed off the job or threatened to strike in dozens of cities Tuesday, disrupting the start of school for thousands of students.

Among the larger school districts, teachers were on strike or threatening to strike in Seattle, Boston, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Cleveland and Dayton, Ohio, and Pontiac, Mich.

Half the 331 striking teachers in Marion, Ind., were scheduled to appear in court Tuesday to answer contempt charges for defying a back-to-work order.

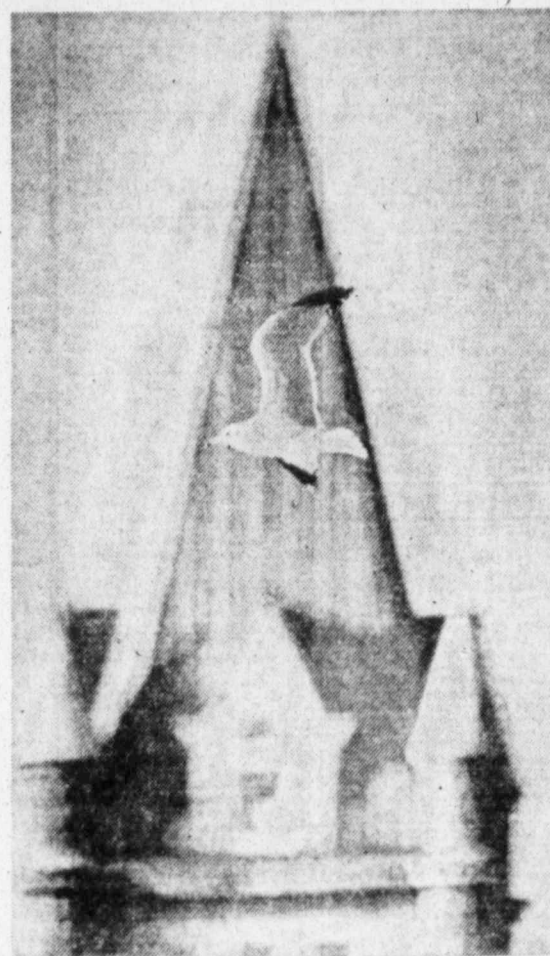

Boston teachers agreed to return to the classroom for the first day of school Wednesday, but the 5,000-member teachers union voted unanimously to walk off the job Sept. 14 if satisfactory progress is not made in negotiations with the city. The school system has 69,000 students.

Seattle teachers voted by a wide margin Tuesday to turn down the district's latest contract offer, and schools superintendent David Moberly said he would recommend that schools not open Wednesday.

In Dayton, the teachers voted 3-1 to strike, but officials said they would employ substitutes and administrators to open the schools on schedule Thursday for the city's 37,000 public students.

Teachers in Cleveland, Ohio's largest school district with 100,000 students, were meeting with officials Tuesday in attempt to gain a pay raise in a district that received a $20.7 billion emergency loan this year to keep schools open. Schools are scheduled to open Friday.

Teachers were striking in five Pennsylvania school districts, including Philadelphia, the state's largest, although classes do not begin until Friday.

Stepdaughter Threatened

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — A pipe-wielding man was arrested after he allegedly took a swing at a stepdaughter of actor Keir Dullea and tried to abduct her. Malibu sheriff's deputies said.

Robert R. White, 29, was booked for investigation of kidnapping and assault with a deadly weapon after the incident Monday, said Sgt. Ed Propersi.

Dullea, known for his roles in such movies as "David, and Lisa" and "2001: A Space Odyssey," had taken his 11-year-old stepdaughter, Sasha Coe, her sister and a friend to dinner at a Malibu restaurant.

The children had gone to the car to wait for the adults, Propersi said. As Sasha began to get into the car, a man approached her swinging a 14-inch long pipe. Propersi said, "just missing her head." He then grabbed her and began walking her down the street.

Malibu sheriff's Sgt. James Smith, on routine patrol, saw the pair and heard screams and apprehended White, he said.

Fast Halt Order Obeyed

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Indian leader Russell Means is back at the South Dakota State Penitentiary after spending nearly a week in the hospital suffering from effects of a month-long fast.

"He came back on Sunday," said Warden Herman Solem.

Means started the fast in July when he began serving a prison term for rioting, and doctors admitted him to a Sioux Falls hospital on Aug. 29. Following that, a state court judge ordered Means to break his fast, an order Means obeyed.

The Indian leader, who came to national attention with the 1973 takeover of Wounded Knee, S.D., was admitted to the prison infirmary upon his return.

"When he's strong enough we'll put him back in a cell block," Solem said, indicating that the move could be made at anytime.

Driver Proud Of Passenger

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Bus driver Jack Bridgeman won't be disappointed if he returns to New Hampshire without one of the six Miss America contestants he brought from New England. His daughter, Belinda, is Miss New Hampshire.

"To have my own daughter in it, it's fantastic," said Bridgeman, 42, of Merrimack, as he sat inside a McDonald's fast-food chain promotion he drives as a full-time job.

Dockery Lauds Kickers

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

Over the thump-thump-thump of the football could be heard another sound: "Good-Good-Good."

It wasn't a contest of any sort, just the action and reaction on the end of the Raiders' Tuesday workout.

Head man Rex situated himself so as to watch his young punters practice, both kicking into a south breeze, then turned around and using the wind to their advantage.

Dockery put the stopwatch to the punts as they thumped off the toes of a trio, but he was also putting the clock clicks to the snaps.

"(Maury) Buford has a heck of a leg," Dockery remarked later, after Buford, Eric Jones and Steve Holifield had completed their day's boots.

"Maury had four seconds or better on all his kicks with the team. You need four seconds or more (for coverage purposes).

"I was timing the snappers, too. They were getting it back in about two seconds. If it's 2.1 or better, you can't block it."

Dockery said that Buford, the freshman from Mount Pleasant, "right now," is the Raiders' punter, with the season opener against Southern California only days away.

Texas Tech will take on the Trojans in Los Angeles Saturday afternoon, and newcomers will handle all the kicking duties outside of snaps and holding for field goals.

Dockery said Ron Reeves, the versatile athlete from Monterey, will kick off. And Ted Watts, a transfer from Sun County (Fla.) JC, will handle kickoff and punt returns, "if he's well." Dockery said Watts had been slowed by an ankle injury.

"Maury has good leg snap," Dockery opined, concerning the freshman that Tech recruited strictly for his punting talents.

The Raiders worked in shorts and shoulder pads Tuesday, in tapering off toward Saturday's opener.

Only player definitely sidelined for the contest is offensive lineman Denny Harris.

Juco transfer George Smitherman was hobbled earlier by an ankle injury but is back at work in the offensive line.

"That's right, all the kickers and returns are new; we're just young, that's all there is to it."

Dockery indicated that the Raiders will have light workouts today and Thursday before flying to Los Angeles Friday.

Don Henry Looking Backward To Look Forward

JOE WALSTAD gave a slight shrug. The topic of conversation was the University of Southern California, a perennial top-tenner, producer of dozens of pro footballers, home of national champions, and one of those biggies that spends more time on TV than Archie Bunker.

"They're pretty fair-sized," said Walstad, who goes a pretty-fair 250 pounds himself.

"We've looked at them on films. I don't think anybody is awed by them."

Walstad didn't laugh, he didn't make a joke, but he didn't say it and run. It was one of those remarks delivered in a matter-of-fact manner by a matter-of-fact young man.

Now, the Raiders are young, they're picked all the way from sixth to ninth in the Southwest Conference. USC is pegged at the top of the Pac-10 and near the top in the nation.

But, Walstad explained his position.

"When you look at my freshman year, Colorado. That was a big team that came in here. That sticks in my mind. They were big (they were favored, too), and I know a lot of guys that played then, and we beat them (24-7 en route to the SWC co-championship in 1976).

"Southern Cal is big, but, gee, we beat Colorado."

WALSTAD WAS A freshman that September, but now, he's one of the Raiders' top linemen. He's lodged in at strong guard, but he's also tabbed for some center duty, too.

UT Moves Brooks To Halfback Spot

AUSTIN (AP) — Coach Fred Akers of Texas has switched two quarterbacks to other positions, leaving six to compete for the starter's job.

Sophomore Les Koenning was shifted to split receiver, and freshman Booger Brooks of Andrews was moved to halfback.

Left at quarterback were Randy McEachern and Jon Aune (both recovering from knee injuries), Mark McBath, Sam Ansley, Ted Constanzo and freshman Donnie Little.

It's a case of the Raiders being thin in reserve in the offensive line. So, Walstad, who played center part of the '77 campaign, will back up Kim Taliaferro at center.

It's not that much of change, though, he admits. "At strong guard, you know where the center is going on every play, so it's not that big of a deal."

"Southern Cal runs a '50' defense, two tackles and a noseguard. They're pretty fair sized, but we're going to depend on our quickness. I think we have a quick offensive line."

"Their noseguard (Rich Dimier) is 6-6, 255."

WALSTAD CAME TO Tech as a 265-pound youngster. That was only about 5 pounds over his high school weight while at Altus, Okla. But, the weight was kinda getting in his way. He wasn't too blessed with quickness at that size.

But, "As a freshman, I lost a lot of weight. I started to work on weights and run in the off-season and lost down to 240. I got rid of a lot of fat."

"When they recruited me, they thought they might make me into a center. But, last year, they had so many injuries at strong guard, Terry (Anderson, Tech's starting center) didn't get hurt much, but I could play when he needed a rest."

"It was probably better for me to be at strong guard, or I might not be playing as much."

"But, these young guys, they're learning the system. We have a lot of freshman, but it takes a while for them to learn. But, they are physically talented. When they get the mental part down, they'll probably do all right."

A YEAR AGO, Tech opened in the heat and humidity of Waco. Temperatures reached almost unbearable levels; Walstad lost about 12 pounds and didn't play that much.

"But, I don't think it will be that bad (at Los Angeles)."

"I think the starters are in the physical and mental shape to play a ball game. But, if we do get a rest, that'll be a plus."

"I think all the backups are capable of playing."

Walstad said it matter-of-factly, just as when he spoke of Southern Cal.

USC's Coach Ready For Raider Opener

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California football coach John Robinson can hardly wait for the Trojans' opening game Saturday against Texas Tech.

"The great thing about the first game is that you know it's the end of two-a-day practices and feeling like you're living in a closed world," Robinson said Tuesday at his weekly meeting with reporters. "You feel like you're escaping."

Robinson, whose Trojans are ranked ninth nationally in the preseason football polls, said he has the same worries most coaches have heading into the season.

"The big question is if you have your team ready," he said. "You've spent so much time practicing, trying to cover everything, and you wonder if you've missed anything."

The USC coach said he feels his team could better than the 8-4 Trojans of last season.

"We have a chance to be a more exciting team in terms of potential position by position," he said. "I'm excited about this football team, excited because we've got a lot of new players and I just don't know what's going to happen."

Listing a number of the Trojans' new starters, Robinson said: "I'm sure these guys are going to be good football players at this school; but I'm not sure they'll be good football players by this Saturday."

Although Robinson repeatedly insisted that there is too much emphasis placed on the quarterback's importance, a great deal of attention will be focused on new Trojan quarterback Paul McDonald Saturday when USC hosts the Red Raiders.

"Paul has done exactly what we asked for in practice," said Robinson. "He's thrown the ball exceptionally well."

"I guess you could safely say he doesn't yet have the charisma of a Fran Tarkenton or Ken Stabler. But to a USC lineman blocking in front of McDonald, charisma might mean seeing the ball go over his head and to a receiver in the end zone and the scoreboard light up points on our side. That's all the charisma McDonald needs."

A 6-foot-2, 180-pound junior, the left-handed McDonald was used sparingly in relief of senior Rob Hertel in 1977, completing 20 of 34 passes for 225 yards.

"We have a new quarterback, tight end (James Hunter), offensive tackle (Keith Van Horne) and center (Chris Foote)," said Robinson, "and those are four key positions in our offense."

"I figure our success this season will depend on one, these and the other new people developing quickly; and two, our veterans playing up to their potential."

Dallas Ships Richards To Bears

DALLAS (AP)—Golden Richards, a six-year wide receiver who has occasionally complained the game plan didn't include calling his number, was traded by the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League to the Chicago Bears Tuesday for two undisclosed draft choices.

Richards, who caught one pass for two yards in Monday night's 38-0 victory over the Baltimore Colts, alternated at wide receiver with Butch Johnson on last year's 12-2 team.

However, Richards and Johnson were beaten out by sensational sophomore Tony Hill, who took over the starting receiver post opposite Drew Pearson.

"We intend to bring in another player to round out the roster but can't say who it is," said a Cowboy spokesman.

Both Richards and Johnson caught touchdown passes in Dallas' 27-10 victory over Denver in Super Bowl XII.

Richards has said in the past that he felt the Cowboy offense would be more effective if he got the chance to catch more passes.

Pearson has been quarterback Roger Staubach's favorite receiver for the last several years.

Pirates Knock Mets, Climb Within Half Game

By The Associated Press
The Pittsburgh Pirates combined the four-hit pitching of Jerry Reuss with a five-run third inning to defeat the New York Mets 8-0 and move within a half-game of the Philadelphia Phillies for the National League East lead.

The victory was the 10th straight for the Pirates, who now have won their last 14 games in Three Rivers Stadium.

Reuss, beset with problems all season, won only his second game against as many losses this season. He didn't allow a runner past second base.

Jerry Kosman, 3-15, started for the Mets and allowed one run in the first inning, then gave up five hits, good for five runs in the third. Duffy Dyer's two-run double highlighted the big Pittsburgh inning.

Moreno had started the scoring in the first inning when he walked, stole second and came home on Phil Garner's single.

In the third, Frank Taveras led off with a single and when Moreno sacrificed, Kosman picked up the ball and threw it past first base and into right field. Taveras scored on the error and Moreno went to third. Parker was safe on an infield single and Moreno scored on Bill Robinson's sacrifice fly.

After Garner grounded out, Manny Sanguillen singled to score Parker and then went to third on Dale Berra's hit to center. Duffy Dyer followed with a double and Sanguillen and Berra crossed the plate.

The Pirates had a two-run seventh when Robinson singled and Garner doubled with Robinson stopping at third. Paul Siebert had a 2-0 count on Berra and was relieved by Dale Murray. Berra greeted Murray with a double to left center, scoring Robinson and Garner.

BRAVES 8, PADRES 1
A two-run homer by Jeff Burroughs, a solo blast by Dale Murphy and a grand slam by Rod Gilbreath backed the three-hit pitching of right-hander Phil Niekro as the Atlanta Braves posted an 8-1 victory over the San Diego Padres.

A walk by Gary Matthews and Burroughs' 21st home run of the season, a drive over the center field fence in the first inning, sent Niekro, 17-15, on his way to becoming the first 17-game winner in the National League. Niekro struck out six and retired 12 in a row during one inning in the game.

EXPOS 10, CUBS 8
Doubles by Warren Cromartie, Gary Carter, and Dave Cash keyed a four-run eighth inning and lifted the Montreal Expos to a 10-8 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The loss dropped the third-place Cubs five games behind the idle first-place Philadelphia Phillies in the National League East and was charged to relief ace Bruce Sutter, 7-7, who was unable to stop the Expos in the eighth.

Four Ex-Raiders Stick In NFL

Four of the five Texas Tech gridgers who were drafted last May by National Football League clubs have defied all the odds, survived the final roster cuts and made their debuts in the opening league games last weekend.

Another Raider draftee, tackle Dan Irons, is undergoing a knee rehabilitation program and will be competing for a place on the San Francisco 49er roster next season.

In addition to these players, quarterback Rodney Allison is playing at Toronto in the Canadian Football League.

As rookies, most of the former Techs are earning their pay the hard way — on the specialty teams often called the "suicide squads." But that's the way that all of the hopefuls except the superstars get their chance to advance to a starting assignment.

Runningback Billy Taylor has impressed New York Giant coaches, however, and got to carry the ball twice for 20 yards in the victory over Tampa Bay. The speedster also picked up 22 yards on a punt return.

Defensive tackle Jim Krahl, also drafted by the Giants, has seen limited duty with the specialty teams.

Former Raider linebacker Mike Mock won a place on the New York Jets' squad despite an injury on the first day of training camp which curtailed his playing time in the exhibition season. But Mock impressed coach Walt Michaels as a hitter, even when slowed by a pulled groin muscle, and is listed as a backup outside linebacker.

"Mike probably will be used chiefly with the specialty teams for a while, like most rookies," a Jets spokesman told The Avalanche-Journal. "But the coaches think he has a lot of potential. Mike is really aggressive."

Eric Felton, the former Lubbock West-erner who starred for Texas Tech the last four years, has earned a spot on the New Orleans Saints' roster at cornerback. Like his former teammates, he faces heavy duty on the kicking teams but is rated as a future contender for starting honors.

It is highly unusual for four players from one college team to win jobs with NFL teams. National powerhouses such as Notre Dame and Southern California sometimes send as many as a half-dozen players to the pros, but it is very rare in the Southwest Conference.

Oilers Seek To Eliminate Four Mistakes

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers, stunned in their season opener by Atlanta 20-14, went to work Tuesday to correct four mistakes coach "Bum" Phillips said cost them the game.

"Other than four plays, we played well," Phillips said. "We just made the critical errors and those four plays beat us. We had the breakdown on the blitz, the blocked punt and the two plays that gave them super field position for field goals."

All 20 Atlanta points were the result of Oiler miscues, Phillips said, but he added, "You don't judge a football team on one game. This is going to be a long year."

The Oilers had intended to run more against the Falcons, but quarterback Dan Pastorini ended up throwing 37 times and completing 20, but both Phillips and offensive coordinator Ken Shipp defended the Oiler attack.

"They played reckless," Phillips said of the Falcons. "They were putting nine people on the line of scrimmage. You can't let them do that."

Shipp said "Our problem wasn't our game plan. It wasn't our play selection. Dan called a good game. We would have liked to run Earl (Campbell) more, but there was no opportunity. Not when they put nine men on the line."

"I think they have the best defensive scheme in the league," Shipp said. "It's the kind of stunting and blitzing defense that can keep all the quarterbacks in the league talking to themselves. They beat hell out of the Rams with it last season."

Shipp said the Oilers were forced to throw against Atlanta because "with so many people up close we couldn't run. We just didn't hit all our passes. If the two that were called back had stood, I'm confident we'd have scored both times."

Holding penalties wiped out Pastorini passes of 55 and 23 yards to Ken Burrough at the Falcon 2-and 12-yard lines.

The Oilers travel to Kansas City Sunday before playing their first regular season home game Sept. 17 against San Francisco.

Acc kick returner Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, still hobbled by a knee injury, may miss the Kansas City game. Safety C. L. Whittington definitely is out because of a severely pulled muscle he received against the Falcons.

Flanker Eddie Foster, who earned a starting position last year as a rookie, starting running Tuesday for the first time since suffering a bruised knee early in training camp.

Warriors Accept Lucas, Money

OAKLAND (AP) — The Golden State Warriors, as expected, have decided to accept guard John Lucas and $100,000 as compensation for losing Rick Barry to the Houston Rockets.

Larry O'Brien, the National Basketball Association commissioner, had given the Warriors the option of taking Lucas and cash or a future No. 1 draft choice and $350,000. He presented those options last week and gave the Warriors until Tuesday to make their decision.

At Atlies, the Warriors' coach and general manager, talked to Lucas, one of the NBA's top playmaking guards, before the team's decision was formally made Tuesday and announced by Scotty Stirling, assistant to team owner Franklin Mieuli.

Lucas, 24, is 10 years younger than Barry, one of the highest scoring forwards in pro basketball history.

Landry Likes Play Of Team Against Colts

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas coach Tom Landry said Tuesday the Cowboys' 38-0 rout of the Baltimore Colts Monday night was "the kind of game you hope to have once or twice a year."

"I don't think we had any like it last year," said Landry. "You have to be sympathetic to the Colts. That's a situation you never want to be in."

The World Champions trounced a Colt team that was minus quarterbacks Bert Jones and Bill Troup because of injuries. Also, it was Baltimore's first game without disgruntled Lydell Mitchell, the leading ground gainer from 1977 who was traded to San Diego.

"That was not a realistic measure of the Colts and Cowboys," said Landry. "I hope we don't think we were THAT good. If we do, we're in for a surprise."

Landry said "we usually improve our fifth and sixth games each year and if the trend continues against the New York Giants we could have a solid foundation. We have a very explosive offense with Tony Hill and Tony Dorsett both in the game. Hill is the type of receiver who can turn a short play into a big play in a hurry."

Landry said the only injury reported was a knee problem by cornerback Benny Barnes.

"It helped that we got to rest our regulars a quarter," said Landry.

Landry said he was pleased with the debut of placekicker Rafael Septien, who missed two field goals before connecting on an 48-yarder in the fourth quarter.

"He is an outstanding prospect," said Landry. "There is no limit to his potential. He can kick 50 and 55 yards field goals very easily. But he is young and needs time to groove his swing. I'm confident he will be a good kicker. And he came back well after missing early."

Landry said the matchup Sunday with the rejuvenated Giants should provide a stern test for the Cowboys.

"The Giants always play us well," said Landry. "They hustle and played us tough twice last year."

He added "It gets a little tougher when you play opponents within the division."

Cowboys' Dynamite Explodes

DALLAS (AP) — The fuse sputtered a little before catching, but the Dallas Cowboys dynamite finally went off Monday night behind Roger Staubach's four touchdown passes as the Cowboys blasted Baltimore 38-0 in a nationally televised contest that was less than a thriller.

Staubach, runningback Tony Dorsett and receiver Tony "The Thrill" Hill all had impressive nights, but you wouldn't know it by their reactions.

Staubach, on 16 of 22, 280 yards, four touchdowns, and a club record-tying 11 straight completions: "I was good in some spots and bad in others. I wasn't particularly pleased."

Dorsett, on 147 rushing yards and 107 on receptions, including a 91-yard pass from Staubach: "I feel receiving is one of my weakest points and I need a chance to get accustomed to it."

Hill, whose 49-yard pass-and-run set up Dallas' first touchdown: "I wish I'd had more thrown to me, but so does every other receiver."

Coach Tom Landry, whose team never had to punt while rolling up 583 yards in total offense, second best in the history of the franchise: "Once we broke it open, it was hard for Baltimore to come back with (quarterback Bert) Jones out."

Jones and backup Bill Troup were both out with injuries, leaving the signal-calling job to third-stringer Mike Kirkland, who wasn't up to it.

The running of Lydell Mitchell was gone from the Colts arsenal, because he was traded to San Diego after charging the team with racism.

And to top it off, defensive signal-caller Stan White was hurt in the Cowboys contest and missed the second half.

"We thought we could beat them if we didn't give them anything," Baltimore coach Ted Marchibroda said. "It was a loss you couldn't blame on any one player. It was something all 45 had a part in."

Baltimore had two first-quarter chances, but couldn't capitalize on either. Dallas kick returner Butch Johnson fumbled the opening kickoff, and Baltimore recovered at the Dallas 25. That drive ended in a missed field goal. Later in the period, the Colts set up at the Dallas 40 after the first of their two interceptions of Staubach. They came up dry again.

Doug Dennison finally broke the ice in the second period after Hill's scamper to the one. Dennison cracked in and newly acquired kicker Rafael Septien's extra point opened the floodgate. Septien had missed a chip-shot, 18-yard field goal in the opening quarter.

Staubach ended up throwing touchdowns of 91 yards to Dorsett, 38 to Drew Pearson, 8 to Billy Joe Dupree and 1 to Jay Saldi. Septien added a 48-yard field goal in the final quarter.

Dorsett wasn't even the primary receiver on his 91-yarder. The ball was tipped in the line, and Dorsett alertly grabbed it and cut across field behind a convoy of blockers. He was so along that he stopped to slap hands with Drew Pearson and Hill before crossing the goal line.

Rose Advises Alborn To Use Passing Attack

HOUSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Reds third baseman Pete Rose, on the same program with Rice football coach Ray Alborn, Tuesday advised the Owls to pass against Iowa State in their season opener Saturday.

"I think you should throw the ball. Their pass defense is bad," Rose jokingly told Alborn during a session of the Houston Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association.

After it was pointed out to Rose that after opening against Iowa State, Rice must then play Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana State, Rose had some further advice: "Do you have a two-year contract, coach?"

"We'd like to run the ball on them, but I know we'll have to pass," Alborn said. "Iowa State is a solid football team."

Alborn will be going into his first game as head coach of the Owls since replacing Homer Rice shortly after spring training.

"We know the honeymoon is over," Alborn said. "We've been beating on each other since Aug. 20 and have sustained only one serious injury," Alborn said. "Otherwise we should be ready."

But that one injury could be costly to the thin Owl ranks. Linebacker Robert Williamson, who suffered a knee injury during the first week of fall practice, will be out for the year and likely facing surgery.

Alborn also said he hasn't decided on his starting quarterback for the opener. It will be either Mark Snyder, the opening game starter last season, or sophomore Randy Hertel, the defending Southwest Conference passing champion.

"Randy started off practice slow but he's really catching on to things now," Alborn said. "He may have been worrying some about his knee."

Hertel underwent knee surgery following spring training.

Grain Surplus To Force New Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — A surge in world grain production this year steadily adds more weight to decision making by the Carter administration on designing future acreage control plans for wheat and feed grains.

After 1972, when U.S. farm exports increased sharply, federal policy under Presidents Nixon and Ford was aimed at removing acreage restraints on major grain crops to take advantage of what seemed then to be a continuing price-boosting demand for U.S. wheat and corn.

But successive bumper crops rebuilt U.S. grain reserves to their largest levels since the early 1960s and the Carter government was faced with falling grain prices and near-revolt by farmers. So acreage restraints in the form of "set-aside" requirements were put into effect for 1978.

Although exports have been relatively brisk, they have not kept up with grain production. Wheat output was down sharply this year because of reduced acreage, but corn production earlier this month was estimated at a record high. Thus, as he was required by law to do by Aug. 15, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland recently announced that wheat farmers will be subject to the same acreage set-aside restraints in 1979 as they were this year in order to qualify for federal price supports.

The law also requires Bergland to announce by Nov. 15 what he intends to do about the 1979 crops of feed grains and soybeans.

Meanwhile, there is growing evidence that the world grain reserve next summer will be up sharply — about 7.2 percent — from its level this July 1. At an estimated 173.6 million metric tons projected for next July 1 against 161.9 million tons this summer, the mid-1979 world grain reserve would be the largest since 1971, according to figures by the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

Some 83.7 million tons of the total grain left over in reserve next July 1 is expected to be wheat and the remainder so-called coarse grains. They include corn, oats barley and other commodities considered in the United States to be primarily livestock feed grains.

This July 1 the global wheat carryover was about 78.9 million tons. That, however, was down substantially from a leftover reserve of 94.6 million tons on July 1, 1977, the most since mid-1970.

World grain production figures in themselves don't foretell how prospects for future U.S. exports shape up. Drought or other natural disaster in individual countries or regions can have a dramatic effect on a country's import requirements.

But for the short-term, USDA experts have to take seriously the crop prospects in major areas of the world when they consider what to do about 1979 acreage controls. That figured into the decision to continue with acreage set-aside for the 1979 wheat crop.

A recent analysis by the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said that wheat yields in the four top-producing countries are far above average this year.

The agency referred to wheat production in the Soviet Union, China, India and the United States. Collectively, they accounted for more than half the world's wheat output.

"In the last 28 years, only once — in 1970 — have the leading four countries all produced above average wheat yields in the same year," the agency said.

The Soviet Union's total grain crop is currently estimated by SDA at around 220 million tons, up from a disappointing output — to Moscow, at least — of about 196 million tons in 1977.

A metric ton is 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Because of the smaller-than-planned 1977 harvest, Moscow turned more heavily to U.S. grain for making up its shortfall, buying about 14.4 million tons of wheat and corn for delivery through Sept. 30.

How much grain the Soviets will buy in the 1978-79 year to begin Oct. 1 is conjecture at this point, except that they are committed under an agreement to purchase at least six million tons of wheat and corn combined during the year. Adding to the situation — and the decisions to be made on the 1979 U.S. crop programs — is the huge corn harvest now estimated for American farmers this fall, a record of 6.5 billion bushels — 165.2 million metric tons — against the previous high of 6.37 billion bushels from the 1977 harvest.

With the prospective record corn harvest this fall, the U.S. reserve left over by the fall of 1979 now may be about 1.3 billion bushels, up from 1.1 billion bushels expected to be stockpiled this Oct. 1.

Thus, unless something dramatic and unforeseen happens, Bergland will probably add corn and other feed grains to wheat in formulating the administration's plan to help ease the further buildup of grain surpluses in 1979.

Meanwhile, Bergland continues to court farmers to add more corn and other feed grains to a three-year reserve which is aimed at strengthening grain prices by allowing farmers to hold commodities in storage under federal loans until market prices go up and trigger their release.

As of mid-August, about 637 million bushels of grain were in the farmer-held reserve, including about 384 million bushels of wheat, well above the department's initial goal of 330 million bushels in storage.

But farmers have lagged in putting corn and other feed grains into the three-year program. Bergland now says that if the feed grains goal of 670 million bushels is not reached by this fall farmers will be allowed to put 1978-crop corn and grain sorghum under loan directly into the three-year program.

Responses by farmers to the three-year reserve program also will bear heavily on USDA decision makers as they mull over what to do about next year's feed program in the next couple of months.

Cattle Future Rally Stifled

By Reuters

CHICAGO (AP) — Cattle futures closed 33 points lower to equally higher on 24,333 sales, Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Nearby October was down the most with distant October at the best gain. Earlier, December was off 50 and June up 47 on bear spreading.

Initial buying followed steady beef demand and higher cash cattle despite increased arrivals. Late profit-taking came after prices failed to penetrate recent highs.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 81 cents a pound, for all weights, which was a three-week high. Cash cattle were firm to up $1.50 with the best top at $54. Slaughter was 148,000 head and 16,900 head are expected at the six major markets today.

Feeder cattle futures fell 47 in the nearby contract, but rose 5 to 45 in other months led by March. Volume was 2,036 cars. The nearby contract was down 97 on aggressive liquidation while later months were up 50 early.

Buying carried over from Friday as traders noted steady beef demand. Support also was attracted by higher cash feeders despite increased arrivals.

Cash feeders were steady to up $3 with the best top $82 at San Antonio. Arrivals at the six major markets numbered 2,000, up 200.

Hog futures finished 40 higher to 12 lower on 4,791 contracts. December and April were up the most with only distant October and December lower. July was up 62 for a time.

Some support was attracted on light hog runs and firmness in the pork complex. Traders also noted the discount of futures to cash. Selling on the scale-up stemmed from lower cash hogs.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up one cent at 79 to 83 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash hogs were weak to off $1 with the best top at $49.25, which is a one-week low. Slaughter was 297,000 head. The major terminals expect 24,000 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures rallied from an early loss of 27 and closed 30 to 80 higher led by August. The contract was up 90 just before the close. Sales totaled 2,478 cars.

Light hog runs and a heavy storage reductions brought support with selling traced to lower cash hogs along with weakness in feed grains.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up two cents at 53 to 60 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is a 3 1/2-week high.

Marathon Starter Is Goose Pimple

GOOSE PIMPLE JUNCTION, Va. (AP) — Yes, folks, there is indeed a Goose Pimple Junction, and on Saturday its population will almost double — but only for as long as it takes all the extra people to run away.
 That's because this curiously named Washington County community of 200, six miles from Bristol Va.-Tenn., will be the starting point for the 10,000-meter Mountain Empire Mini-Marathon.
 More than 100 runners from Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina and West Virginia already have entered, and sponsoring radio station WKYE says a lot more are expected by post time if the weather's good.
 Trained by rescue crews just in case someone requires help after falling by the wayside, the runners will leave Goose Pimple Junction at 10 a.m., or roughly thereabouts, via the Old Jonesboro Road. Then they'll wend their way down various highways and byways to their ultimate destination — State Street in Bristol, which separates the two portions of this bistate city of about 34,000.

Soviet Human Rights Stance Harming Scientists

MOSCOW (AP) — A backlash to Soviet human rights policies is threatening to isolate Soviet scientists.

Many Western scientists boycotted the recent international genetics conference here, and some who came used the conference to denounce Soviet policies.

Their message was that East-West scientific cooperation will suffer unless Soviet authorities ease up on political dissidents.

At issue are the recent trials of prominent Soviet dissidents and the Soviet refusal to grant visas for 13 of 31 Israeli scientists who had signed up for the conference.

Barring of the Israelis followed Soviet assurances that scientists from all nations could come if they applied for visas in time.

The decision to withhold visas from the Israelis raises implications not only for future scientific conferences here but for the 1980 Olympics.

Last week, Vladimir Kolav, vice chairman of the Moscow Olympic Organizing Committee, said in Prague that all member countries of the International Olympic Committee could participate in the 1980 games.

But there has been concern that teams or individual athletes from Israel, Taiwan and elsewhere may be barred from coming to Moscow.

At least 50 American scientists decided to boycott the 10-day genetics congress, which closed last Wednesday.

Among them were leading American geneticists, including professors Frank H. Ruddle of Yale University; Arthur Chownik, University of Connecticut; Ernest Chu, University of Michigan, and David Perkins, Stanford University.

U.S. sources at the conference said another University of Michigan scientist, James V. Neel, stayed home when the Soviets, without explanation, gave his wife a visa valid only for Leningrad.

A total of 196 Americans attended with about 400 geneticists from other Western countries, but most of the 3,457 participants were from Communist countries.

Publicly, Soviet organizers played down the impact of the boycott on the congress.

Soviet academician Dmitri K. Belyayev said of those who stayed away, "I think these scientists themselves probably lost more than the congress did by their absence."

But one American scientist said that professor Nikolai P. Bochkov, a top Soviet geneticist, appeared "deeply hurt" by the protests.

Bochkov, chairman of the Soviet organizing committee for the conference, was said to be particularly embarrassed that out of more than 50 scientists invited as guests with their expenses paid by the Soviet Academy of Scientists, only about 20 showed up.

The American scientist said he decided against boycotting the congress because "I really thought the wrong people were likely to be hurt. It's so important to keep up scientific communication."

A few Western scientists made their attitudes known publicly.

Professor Francisco Ayala from the University of California at Davis prefaced his scientific paper with a statement of concern over Soviet treatment of dissidents and denial of visas for the Israelis. The audience reacted with stunned silence, participants said.

Professor Ian Deak, a British geneticist working in Switzerland, tried to read a letter from the son of imprisoned Soviet biologist Sergei Kovalyov at the final work session.

Kovalyov, a founder of the Moscow chapter of Amnesty International, a London-based human rights organization, was sentenced in 1975 to seven years in a labor camp plus a term of internal exile.

Deak was quickly cut off by the American cochairman of the session, professor Clement L. Market of Yale, who said it was improper to bring up political matters at the scientific gathering.

DINOSAUR MYSTERY

BATE, England (AP) — The disappearance of the dinosaur, which has baffled scientists for generations, was due to tiny rodents who ate up all their food, according to English geologist Beverley Halstead.

Robber Escapes After Bank Heist

HOUSTON (AP) — A bandit escaped Tuesday with an estimated $4,500 from the Texas Commerce Bank in downtown Houston, the 13th robbery of a financial institution in the city during the 30 days. Police said a man handed a note to a teller demanding money, then took the note back as she handed over the cash. The teller set off an alarm, but the man, believed to be in his 30s or 40s, escaped.

A man robbed the same bank Aug. 8 and escaped with about $7,700.

Anheuser-Busch To Market Soft Drink

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The world's largest brewer of beer will soon begin marketing a new soft drink, August A. Busch III, chairman of the board and president of Anheuser-Busch Inc., said Tuesday.

Called "Chesea," the beverage was characterized by Busch Tuesday as "a unique blend of real lemon and lime juices, real apple, spice and other natural flavors."

John Purnell, the company's vice president for corporate planning and development, would not discuss test market plans for the drink except to say that it will be a national test designed to "provide an accurate picture of the true potential of the drink."

At 21, Actress Owns Impressive Video Credits

NEW YORK (AP) — Audrey Landers hardly looks the seasoned television actress, eight years in the business. But at 21, she's got two soaps, a number of guest spots and a string of commercials to her credit.

AUDREY LANDERS

And now Audrey Landers has a regular role in "The Waverly Wonders," the National Broadcasting Company's new comedy series featuring former pro football star Joe Namath.

"This year, I did three pilots that didn't sell," says the blond actress from New York. "It's one of those things. You get your hopes up and then the network doesn't buy it."

"Getting a series is like a dream come true." In "The Waverly Wonders," Namath is Harry Casey, coach of a hapless high school basketball team. Miss Landers plays Ginger, the school's head pompadour girl.

An episode from the new series will be broadcast at 7 p.m. CDT Thursday as part of a "Joe Namath Special" on NBC. The series will be aired Fridays at 7 p.m. beginning Sept. 22.

Audrey Landers spent four years as Heather Kane on the NBC daytime series "Somerset," and was Joanna Morrison for two years on Columbia's "The Secret Storm." She's also appeared on "Where the Heart Is," "Love of Life" and "Search for Tomorrow."

Prime time credits include appearances on "Happy Days," "Police Woman," "Marcus Welby, M.D.," "Emergency" and "Room 222."

Once a show gets rolling, Audrey says, it's five full days of work each week. "The Waverly Wonders" is taped before a live audience, "like putting on a little show each week," the actress says.

Namath has done some acting, both for television and in the movies, but "The Waverly Wonders" is his first series.

"He's a very down-to-earth person," Miss Landers says. "He takes his job seriously, and works as hard as everyone else. And he takes criticism gracefully."

A prime time series greatly increases an actor's opportunity for exposure, and Miss Landers says she takes that prospect seriously.

"Doing soaps made me aware that people take what I am saying seriously. I think it's important for television to get the right messages across, and that doesn't mean censoring, it means choosing parts that promote ideas you believe in."

Acting isn't all that's on Audrey Landers' mind these days. She's got a record, "The Apple Don't Fall Far from the Tree," coming soon, and says, "I want to pursue my singing career to the fullest. It's a chance to be creative, writing, singing..."

"I've always done several things at once," she says. "I'm hoping both careers will feed off each other."

Semi-Retirement Suits Actor In Changing Movie World

PALERMO, Italy (AP) — Omar Sharif, the darkly handsome Egyptian actor who leaped to stardom in "Lawrence of Arabia" and "Doctor Zhivago," is now semi-retired from film making because movies have changed, and so has he.

"In the '70s we have a new kind of cinema," he said in a recent interview while filming "Ashanti" in Sicily. "Now many films have a social content, deal with everyday problems. Actors for that kind of film should be native to the country in which it is set."

"There are fewer dramatic and romantic films, the type that provided employment for foreigners," Sharif said. "After all, in a time of wars and social problems you can't just go on making films about Prince Charming."

Tanned, impeccably attired in a dark blazer and grey slacks, his dark hair and moustache laced with grey, his eyes a bit bloodshot from the late night before, Sharif conveyed an exquisite sense of world-weariness as he sat smoking on the terrace of his hotel.

At 46, he feels "middle aged." Looking back on his 20-year career, he said the most satisfying role he played was that of the young sheik in "Lawrence of Arabia," which took three years to film and won him an Academy Award nomination for best supporting actor.

"When you spend such a long time in a role, you get attached to it," he mused. "But now I don't have the stamina to spend three years in the desert."

His decision to go into semi-retirement came, he said, "when I realized the important thing is to have time for living, seeing my son, having friends, having a home, getting a routine in my life."

Divorced from his Egyptian actress wife Faten Hamama six years ago, he lives in Paris, also has time to indulge in the three great passions in his life apart from women: bridge, raising race horses, and good food.

He acquired these tastes early in life from his father, a wealthy Alexandria importer, and his mother, a famous professional gambler noted for her beauty and her audacity at the gaming table.

Sharif said he quit gambling five years ago because he was "compulsive" about gambling, and was losing too much money.

Competition bridge now occupies a good part of his time. A four-time Egyptian national bridge champion, he has played in innumerable international tournaments, and in the 1964 and 1968 Bridge Olympics.

He said he hoped his business ventures, a travel agency and a hotel, will soon allow him to afford doing only one film every three years and spend even more time with his hobbies.

In "Ashanti," he plays a part not originally intended for him. The film was shot in Kenya, Israel and Sicily.

Following President Sadat's peace mission to Jerusalem, he was set to play the supporting role in the film, but when Sadat's initiative lost momentum and Israel invaded south Lebanon, he decided that the timing for his participation in film shooting in Israel was wrong. So Indian actor Kabir Bedi took the role, and Sharif took the smaller part of an Arab prince, which was shot entirely in Sicily.

Although he has chosen to settle down in Paris, Sharif still feels very much an Egyptian. Any doubts he may have had were dispelled two years ago when he returned to Egypt for the first time in 13 years. He said his one-month visit was urged by President Sadat, to whom he was introduced by former President Gerald Ford at a White House reception in Washington.

Lewis Outburst Surprises Staff

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Jerry Lewis' emotional denial that he made any money from his annual Labor Day Muscular Dystrophy telethon was not scheduled and caught the staff of the 21 1/2-hour show by surprise, a Muscular Dystrophy spokesman said Tuesday.

"It came as a complete surprise to all of us," said Horace Petzall. "He said he wrote it himself. He wanted to get this off his chest and he did."

In a rambling and emotional six-minute speech that was not heard by most viewers because it was made when the network cut away to local stations, Lewis said he had received 27 letters saying funds pledged to the telethon would not be paid until he assured the donors he worked for free.

"Twenty-seven letters question not only does Jerry get paid for doing this telethon — this hurts," the comedian said Monday in the final two hours of the telethon. "They assured us that they will not send the pledge they made until they are assured that he volunteered his time and talent. Well, they're holding back dollars from my kids. So I answered them."

In a statement he said he wrote about 3 a.m. Monday, Lewis said:

"... the answer is absolutely no. I receive nothing from the MD telethon or any of the MD activities throughout the year, and there are many of them. Every dime is accounted for, and through the Freedom of Information Act plus a variety of other laws you can get all the figures from our accounting and see where every penny goes, where every penny has gone and still goes."

Petzall, public relations director for the association, said 83 percent of the funds raised last year went to fight the disease, a non-contagious illness which causes the muscles to deteriorate.

He said the remaining 17 percent went for "fund raising and management in general." A total of $6,477,370, 13.7 percent, was spent on various fund-raising activities, while $1,573,157, or 3.3 percent went to management costs.

Of the 83 percent which went to fight the disease, a total of 31.3 percent, $1,738,255, went to muscular dystrophy research programs, Petzall said. Patient services received 28.6 percent or $13,481,932.

Crosby Sound-Alike Resumes Singing Career

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Listen to the mellow, fluid voice of Jack Harris, and you could become a believer in reincarnation.

Harris, a singer and entertainer in his own right, doesn't bear any physical resemblance to the late Bing Crosby, but close your eyes and listen to him talk or sing in that smooth baritone voice, and you'll swear Der Bingle has come back to life.

The uncanny vocal likeness — which Harris insists is unintentional and definitely not an imitation of the late singer — used to bring Harris nothing but good luck. "It seems that only good things have happened to me because of it," he told a reporter more than 20 years ago.

Harris, who admits only to being "over 30," worked for 16 years as a successful radio and television disc jockey and talk show host in Detroit — with the likes of Sammy Davis Jr., Milton Berle and Liberace, and even Bing's son Phil, appearing as guests. After the death of his wife, Harris decided to make the big move to California, "to find my fame and fortune."

But in 1975, Harris recorded a radio commercial for the Mark C. Bloomer tire company, and after pressure from Crosby's attorneys, Bloomer stopped running the ads and dropped Harris.

"They (Bloomer) were threatened with a lawsuit, so they left the decision up to me," Harris recalled recently.

So Harris sued Crosby and asked for $2 million dollars in damages. "I didn't want to, but I had no alternative," he says.

After the Bloomer commercial was pulled, Harris says word got around town fast that he was to be handled carefully because of the legal situation with Crosby.

"For the first year, I went around looking for a job, but I finally got the message," he said. "No one would touch me...I mean, I was down."

After that, "I turned into a recluse — I became the biggest loner ever," he said somberly.

His life for nearly three years consisted of court battles, mostly delays. Since work was impossible for him to find, he had a lot of spare time on his hands.

"Don't let anybody tell you it's fun to be out of work. Inactivity is a terrible thing," he advised.

Despairing, he wrote a letter to the CBS news magazine television show "60 Minutes," describing his situation. He says it was the best move he ever made.

Mike Wallace, who co-hosts the show, interviewed Harris, then flew to London to interview Crosby, who Harris says didn't appear to know that much about the lawsuit.

"I felt from the beginning that he didn't know that much about it," Harris said, "and I felt that when he found out, he was going to straighten it out."

That was pretty much Crosby's reaction, too. The Crooner admitted to Wallace that it would look bad for someone in his position to keep someone lesser known from making a living, Harris said. He agreed to rectify the situation upon his return to California.

At Wallace's suggestion, Crosby even offered to sing a duet on the show with Harris, and a date was scheduled.

But Bing died just six days after Wallace interview, after suffering a heart attack on a golf course in Spain in October 1977.

The "60 Minutes" segment was aired anyway, the weekend after Crosby's death. And since then, Harris' life seems to be on the upswing.

The $2 million lawsuit against Crosby was settled in early August for an undisclosed amount, and Harris was free to resume his singing career.

Bing's widow, Kathryn, wrote to Harris months earlier, "...Bing had no desire to harm you in your professional career and, had he lived, surely would have been more than happy to do what he could to alleviate any difficulty you may have had in securing employment in the industry..."

She continued, "I hope that this letter will eliminate any apprehension you or others may have concerning your prospective employment."

Immediately following the "60 Minutes" airing, Harris received several offers to do Crosby tributes, but "out of respect, I decided to wait until now. I took a rain check on them."

One offer he accepted immediately was to play the lead in a movie called, "The Crooner," which, it is quickly pointed out, is in no way related to Crosby. "It's about an aging movie star who hits the skids, then makes a comeback," Harris explained.

The character is Italian, which Harris isn't—but with his thick, salt-and-pepper hair and swarthy good looks, he looks the part.

He is excited about the project, which will mark the first time he has worked since the ill-fated tire commercial.

Harris also is looking forward to appearing in a "Tribute to Bing" segment of the Polies Berge at the Tropicana Hotel in Las Vegas.

The show's producer contacted him after viewing the "60 Minutes" show, but Harris put him off for six months, thinking that "it didn't look right" to be performing Bing Crosby tributes so shortly after the performer's death.

Although he only met Crosby once to face "for about 10 seconds" once, Harris says he respects the singer and only filed suit because he wanted to be allowed to work.

"He could do no wrong in my book," Harris said of Crosby. "There's only one Bing Crosby—he was one of a kind. I wouldn't be silly enough to think that I could hold a candle to his great talent."

"But I didn't think I should be penalized just because we happen to sound alike."

Mostly Mozart Draws Young Fans

NEW YORK (AP) — Mostly Mozart has ended its six-week run with about 400 tickets unsold out of 95,000, a rousing success which did everything right and still lost money.

It lost nearly $280,000 despite superb artistry: despite enthusiastic audiences filling all 2,742 seats at Lincoln Center's Avery Fisher Hall in 35 of the 37 nights; despite sales of Mostly Mozart T-shirts, jogging shorts, coffee mugs, tote bags and ties.

"If we shut all the buildings, our deficits would be less," says William Lockwood, the festival director.

But Mostly Mozart is not mainly about money, although it lost one dollar for every two it took in, Lockwood said in a recent interview. The unique venture in inner city music-making — a six week feast of Mozart, Schubert, Haydn, Beethoven and Bach — aims to build audiences of the future, and there it is eminently successful.

Although the festival was created to keep the symphony hall busy in the summer, its mission has been as matchmaker for young ears and old masters.

Audience surveys have found that 40 percent of the Mostly Mozart audience is under 35, and 25 percent is younger than 25. Lockwood said. About a third of the audience each year is new, half unmarried.

"It is more like a movie audience than what you see at the Metropolitan Opera or the Philharmonic," said Lockwood, who also is director of programming for the center, which includes Avery Fisher Hall, the Metropolitan Opera and the New York State Theater.

The bait for Mostly Mozart includes a low ticket price — $5.75 for any seat in the house, or $47.50 for a coupon book good for 10 concerts; informality, which has gone beyond open collars to tolerating jogging shorts and T-shirts; and first-rank musicians such as pianist Alicia de Larrocha, flutists Jean-Pierre Rampal and James Galway, horn virtuoso Harry Tuckwell and conductor-violinist Pinchas Zuckerman.

The first Mostly Mozart concert in 1966 — then called "A Midsummer Serenade — A Mozart Festival" — were a risk, Lockwood said.

"The conventional wisdom was that you cannot do it in the summer in New York, you cannot do just one composer and you cannot do it without superstars," he said. "This festival had to make it or break it on its programs. What the audience was buying was the music — not Leonard Bernstein or Beverly Sills."

Lockwood said part of the classical music audience had been shut out by high ticket prices. The New York Philharmonic's top ticket next season will be $12.50, but the best seats will go to those willing to spend up to $150 for a 12-concert subscription.

Mostly Mozart borrowed an idea from amusement parks — a discount coupon book good for 10 concerts. "You can take nine friends to one concert, take your wife five times or go alone to 10," Lockwood said. Unlike the subscription buyer, no one is stuck fidgeting and coughing at a concert not of his choice.

Mostly Mozart printed 6,000 coupon books this year, and sold them all in 72 hours.

"Each of those $5.75 tickets really costs $9," Lockwood said. The festival took in about $460,000 this summer but still lost $278,000, to be made up by Lincoln Center, private contributors, the National Endowment and the New York State Council on the Arts.

"We cannot raise prices to cover costs without driving away our audience. If we make all the concerts $9 or $10, sure, Alicia de Larrocha would sell out, but chamber music would not and the number of people under 35 would decrease."

For a one-composer summer series, the only choice was Mozart — not only because he wrote vast amounts of music in every idiom from chamber music to opera, but because he wrote for a smaller orchestra tailored to a smaller budget. As the years passed, Haydn, Schubert, Bach and Beethoven inflated, but it's still mostly Mozart.

"Mozart wears well," Lockwood said. "There are very few composers you want

Experts Check Paintings

LONDON (AP) — Ten paintings previously believed to be the work of the celebrated English landscape painter John Constable actually were painted by his son Lionel, art expert Leslie Parris said Tuesday.

Parris, deputy keeper of London's prestigious Tate Gallery, and the Tate's art historian, Ian Fleming-Williams, caused a stir in the art world last week with their disclosure that "at least" 20 oil paintings, drawings and sketches attributed to John Constable were in fact done by Lionel Constable.

A spokesman at the Tate said the works in question are exhibited in major collections in the United States, West Germany and Britain.

At a news conference, Parris said that besides the 10 now relabeled as the work of Lionel, four others are thought to have been done by him too. Lionel — Constable's fourth son — lived from 1823 until 1887.

The Tate official said he had no idea how many paintings by Lionel still exist "but he did not paint for any real length of time so we are really talking about relatively few works."

Parris said he plans to fly to the United States next month to pursue a different aspect of his Constable study and will visit Paul Mellon's Yale Center for the Study of British Art at New Haven, Conn.

"I shall obviously give my opinion on any picture I am shown in America," he said.

Richard Constable, a direct descendant of John Constable, said his grandfather Hugh Constable had sold 250 paintings by his distinguished ancestor.

But he said it would be wrong to suggest that four generations of the family, as well as art dealers, had known about the mixup. He said there was "no question" that Hugh Constable would have tried to falsify any paintings.

Three other sons of John Constable also painted — John, Charles and Alfred.

Hugh Leggett, a prominent London art dealer and expert who helped Parris and Fleming-Williams in their investigation, has said it will take many years to resolve the confusion over the verification of JOHN Constable's works.
