FBI Confirms Checking Theory Of Shredding

DETROIT (UPI) — The FBI said Sunday a newly published theory that James R. Hoffa's body was shredded or incinerated at a suburban disposal company was one of several "working theories" investigated after the former Teamsters Union leader vanished.

Agents, however, said Steven Brill's new book, "The Teamsters," contained references to the case that were speculative or, in one instance, inaccurate.

But Brill's theories on disposal and the alleged involvement of Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons conform to the popular scenario of Hoffa's kidnap and presumed murder on July 30, 1975.

"The theory that Mr. Hoffa's remains were disposed of at a private suburban sanitation facility was explored at the outset of the case," said Special Agent Robert Knapp.

"It was subsequently determined that the source of the information was not reliable. No search warrant was ever requested, issued or executed by the FBI concerning the sanitation company."

The last statement contradicted Brill's report that search dogs went to the company but failed to find Hoffa's scent.

Brill, an attorney and contributing editor for Esquire Magazine, devoted a 30-page chapter to the Hoffa case. He quoted a document from the FBI's "Hoffex file" tracing the body to the now-defunct Central Sanitation Services in suburban Hamtramck.

Brill quoted an FBI affidavit saying, "Hoffa's body was destroyed at the premises ... by means of a shredder, compactor, and/or incincerator located on the premises."

The author also quoted witness statements to the FBI that Fitzsimmons met with the company owners, Raffael Quasarano and Peter Vitale, a few days before Hoffa vanished.

The Brill hypothesis joins other theories that have Hoffa's body:

— dumped into the trash of a Southfield meeting hall and then hauled to a landfill.

Philip Van Dam, who was U.S. Attorney in Detroit when Hoffa disappeared, said Brill's report sounded logical but was not conclusive.

"Whatever it is, it's nothing more than a working theory," said Van Dam. "If they knew what happened, there would be an indictment. I don't think anybody knows what happened to Jimmy Hoffa's body."

Brill repeats the theory that Hoffa went to a suburban restaurant to mend fences with New Jersey Teamster Anthony Provenzano and Anthony Giacalone, both reputed Mafia figures.

But instead, Hoffa allegedly was met by self-styled foster son Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien and two other men, was abducted and then killed.

The motive, according to Brill and others, was to keep Hoffa from regaining the union presidency and ending organized crime's access to Teamster funds.

Civil Strife Continues In Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Battles raged between national guardsmen and leftist guerrillas in Managua and other Nicaraguan cities Sunday as rebels stepped up their fight to overthrow President Anastasio Somoza.

Red Cross officials said at least 20 persons were killed and 100 wounded in fighting in Managua and five other cities that began Saturday night and continued Sunday. They reported there were eight known deaths and some 30 persons wounded in fighting in the capital.

"The number of dead and wounded in Managua could be much higher but we are not permitted to evacuate them," said Red Cross director Miguel Schiebel.

Witnesses said the gun battles in Managua began when 15 youths, some wearing olive-green military uniforms, opened fire on a national guard outpost. Other military stations in Managua were attacked a few minutes later, they reported.

"All I can tell you is that we immediately started hiding in order not to be hit by the intense firing from both sides," one witness said.

Fighting in Managua tapered off Sunday morning but there were reports that battles continued in Leon, Masaya, Chinandega, Granada and Esteli.

A Red Cross spokesman said communications with provincial cities were spotty and it was impossible to determine the exact number of casualties outside the capital.

Government sources who asked not to be identified said it appeared the fighting was a coordinated offensive launched by guerrillas of the left-wing Sandinista National Liberation Front.

A government communique said "casualties among the terrorists were high" but gave no figures.

Col. Aquiles Aranda Escobar, spokesman for the national guard that serves as Nicaragua's army and police force, said a "clean-up operation" was launched Sunday in the capital and other cities but refused to elaborate.

National guard troops erected steel barricades near their training center in downtown Managua, where Somoza lives and works in a well-guarded compound called "the bunker."

Convoys of heavily armed guardsmen patrolled city streets and troops carrying Israeli-made Galil automatic rifles guarded roadblocks, searching all passing vehicles and their passengers.

The national guard said guerrillas assaulted five police stations and ambushed buses in the capital late Saturday

Wind Switch Due To Lower Temperatures

FAIR SKIES should remain over the Lubbock area today as temperatures rise from a morning low near 60 to an afternoon high in the mid 80s.

Southwesterly winds blowing 15-20 mph today are expected to shift to the northwest Tuesday, causing cooler temperatures later in the week.

A slight chance for widely scattered showers and thundershowers is forecast for eastern portions of the South Plains by Wednesday.

Temperatures, however should remain in the 80s and 90s during the afternoons through Friday with overnight lows in the 50s and 60s.

Sunday, while Lubbock enjoyed fair skies and afternoon temperatures reaching 88 degrees, National Weather Service radar indicated scattered showers and thunderstorms in Childress, Dickens, Kent and King counties.

The clouds, however, began to dissipate by dusk, producing only traces of precipitation in the area.

Radar indicated the storm systems were moving north at 10 mph.

While fair skies remained over much of the state Sunday, a flash flood watch was posted for parts of extreme South Texas as a tropical depression moved inland toward the north from the Gulf of Mexico. At 6 p.m. the center of the low pressure system was about 30 miles west of Brownsville.

The system, which stretched from near Port Arthur to Brownsville late Sunday, carried winds of 40-50 mph and was expected to turn to the northeast today.

Forecasters said it may develop into a tropical storm, bringing heavy rains to South Texas, by early today.

By The Associated Press

A DETERMINED group of teachers' union officials in Tacoma, Wash., were locked in an unheated room at school headquarters for a fourth day Sunday. They dined on chateaubriand, but admitted "things are somewhat cramped and getting kind of smelly."

Elsewhere, negotiators on Sunday presssed to end strikes that have delayed classes for 625,000 students in 13 states. Teachers in 56 districts were on strike, with money and class size the main issues in dispute.

In Washington state, negotiations resumed Sunday aimed at ending strikes by teachers in Seattle's 55,000-pupil system and Tacoma's 31,000-pupil system.

Despite the resumption of talks, several negotiators for the Tacoma teacher union — the exact number was not immediately known — remained locked in one room at school headquarters.

Ten union representatives originally barricaded themselves in Thursday to protest the departure from the talks of school board negotiators. Temperatures during the weekend dipped into the 40s while highs rose to the 60s. A union spokesman said Sunday they would remain until school administrators resume face-to-face talks.

"They've tried to cut us off, but we're a little more resourceful than they give us credit for," Warren Henderson, spokesman for the Tacoma Association of Classroom Teachers, said of the school board's attempt to block the flow of supplies by posting guards outside the room.

"Let's see ... We had chateaubriand served to us last night," Henderson said. "The chef at the Summer of '52 restaurant brought the meal down and cooked it at a table on the sidewalk below."

"They do let us use the bathrooms next door," he added. But there is no heat in the room where the union representa-

Summit Progresses; Begin Optimistic

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Sunday the Mideast summit is "going well" but other sources were more cautious in their assessments.

"We need another two or three days to crystallize things," Ezer Weizman, the Israeli defense minister, commented as President Carter led Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat on a tour of the Civil War battlefield here.

Afterward, Carter met with Begin at Camp David, Md. Key U.S. and Israeli advisers also attended the working session at Holly Lodge.

Sources close to the Egyptian delegation said the summit, now in its fifth day, was moving slowly and that there was no breakthrough so far.

Begin made his optimistic comment as Carter joked briefly with reporters at a monument to Confederate soldiers who suffered a decisive setback at Gettysburg in the Civil War.

Asked how the talks were going, the prime minister replied: "You can see they are going well."

He seemed to be referring to the evident rapport between the participants rather than to the Arab-Israeli dispute itself.

With their talks in temporary recess, the three summit leaders, traveling together in Carter's bullet-proof black limousine, drove from Camp David, Md., to visit the battlefield where Carter's native south took a terrible drubbing.

The Georgian, showing his guests a monument to the southern troops who were overwhelmed, said they could have won, "with tanks."

Carter showed Begin and Sadat several of the high spots of the 1863 campaign in which Southern forces led by Gen Robert E. Lee were repulsed with heavy casualties in their second and last effort to invade the North.

"They could have used President Sadat, Moshe Dayan and Ezer Weizman," the president quipped to reporters trailing behind. Dayan, the Israeli foreign minister, and Weizman, the defense minister, are both former generals and heroes of Israeli wars with Arab neighbors.

The sightseeing, which White House press secretray Jody Powell said was prompted by Prime Minister Begin's interest in the Civil War, extended the weekend slowdown in Mideast summitry.

The only sesssion of note was held Saturday, between Weizman and President Sadat. The two are reported to have established a personal rapport and Weizman was often at Sadat's side as they examined the monuments and cannons on the battlefield.

Reporters were kept far enough away from the summit principals to maintain the Carter-imposed secrecy that has marked the five-day-old conference at the presidential retreat.

"We're going smartly, don't you think?" Weizman said, sidestepping questions from a straining press corps.

"How are you doing," a reporter persisted.

"We are doing," the defense minister responded cryptically.

Park visitors and other Sunday tourists were kept at a safe distance. Robert Prosperi, a park historian, filled in the details for the president.

Also on the trip were the president's wife Rosalynn, daughter Amy, Mrs. Begin, Dayan, Weizman, Egyptian Ambassador Ashraf Ghorbal and lower level members of the three summit delegations.

The skies were overcast and the air cool. Begin wore a cardigan sweater under his suitcoat. He placed a grandfatherly arm on Amy's shoulder as Carter and Sadat poked around a Confederate cannon.

Wright Nays U.S. Troops In Mideast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas said Sunday Congress might accept American observers in the Middle East but will not permit U.S. troops to be stationed there.

Wright said the U.S. radar observatory presently in the Sinai Desert is the only kind of military presence either Congress or the Egyptians or Israelis would accept.

"We are there for the moral suasion we can bring on both sides," he said on CBS' "Face the Nation" program.

Nevertheless, Wright said he was confident Congress would support whatever might be agreed to at the Camp David summit talks to establish peace.

He said most members of Congress believe Israel must be more flexible, especially with regard to the Sinai settlements, which he termed a "needle in the side" of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

"But I think if the chips were down, Congress and the American people would support Israel in any future confrontation," he said.

On energy, Wright predicted Congress would pass a natural gas deregulation bill, which he said had been delayed by "regionalism and factionalism" and intense lobbying.

"Without that bill, there's no way we'll get a handle on the inflation problem," he said. "I think it's a real bill and also has symbolic importance to the rest of the world."

But he said the legislation is only the first step. Once it's passed, he said, alternate energy resources will have to be found for the day when the nation runs out of oil and natural gas.

Regarding President Carter's relations with Congress, Wright said "the perception has changed but the reality hasn't."

He said the president and Congress have worked closely together for the last 20 months, resulting in unemployment dipping 2 percentage points, the projected budget deficit being the lowest in five years, the stock market up and the rate of inflation beginning to abate.

GSA PROSECUTOR?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter was asked Sunday to endorse creation of a Watergate-style special prosecutor to investigate the scandal-marred General Services Administration. Sen. William Roth, R-Del., told Carter in a letter that and internal investigation of the agency would not suffice.

Homicide Ruled In Shooting

Eddie Joe Palacio of 909 40th St., Apt. B, was dead at 5:54 a.m. on arrival at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital. Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ruled the death a homicide.

Lubbock County sheriff's deputies, investigating the report of a shooting at 4:50 a.m., arrived at the Carlisle home to find Palacio on the living room floor with a gunshot wound to the left side of his neck.

EMS attendants called to the scene worked for 20 minutes to revive the young man before transporting him to Methodist.

Apparently the shooting stemmed from a family disturbance, officers reported. Deputies recovered a .22 caliber revolver at the scene.

He was a member of Christ the King Catholic Church.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Palacio of Lubbock; eight sisters, Mary Rodriguez, Minnie Rodriguez, Arleen Orta, Diana Palacio, Joan Palacio, and Betty Jean Palacio, all of Lubbock, Dora Lara and Nancy Garcia, both of Killeen; and two brothers, Raymond and Ernest Jr., both of Lubbock.

Griffin Backing New Gas Measure

DETROIT (AP) — Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., will vote for President Carter's natural gas compromise bill, the Detroit News reported in Sunday's editions.

The senator is expected to announce his decision in a speech when the Senate begins debate on the bill this week.

Ian Smith Orders Martial Law

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said Sunday he will introduce limited martial law and "liquidate" parties in Rhodesia representing foreign-based black nationalist guerrillas.

While he gave few details of the new measures, they appeared less drastic than expected. Smith had said earlier his speech would chart a "new course" for Rhodesia following the guerrilla attack on a Rhodesian airliner Sept 2 that killed 48 civilians.

Smith said Anglo-American "cynical expediency" and the guerrillas' Communist backers share blame for the civilian deaths — a reference to American and British attempts to include the guerrillas in Rhodesia's new bi-racial government.

Smith, in a 28 minute broadcast speech, did not spell out what he meant by "modification of martial law." Observers said the government may place some areas, particularly the guerrilla-infiltrated black reservations comprising half the country, under military control.

He said the modified martial law would streamline the war effort but leave civil authority intact.

"It will be introduced to particular areas as and when required, and not on a nationwide basis. It will lead to tougher, stronger measures against our enemies," Smith said.

The country already has emergency regulations vested in the civilian authorities and security laws, which permit, for example, detention without trial and death penalties for guerrillas and their helpers.

PRIME MINISTER IAN SMITH
Plots "New Course" For Rhodesia

He did not rule out further contact with Zambia-based Joshua Nkomo, who says his guerrillas shot down the Air Rhodesia Viscount. Nkomo has denied Rhodesian government claims his guerillas murdered 10 of the 18 crash survivors. The guerrillas say Rhodesian plans are used to ferry troops and supplies.

"I must warn the neighboring states to the north and the east (Zambia and Mozambique) that we cannot tolerate a situation in which these murderous terrorists can operate from within their borders with impunity," said Smith. "If they permit this, then they must bear the consequences of any defensive strikes we may undertake."

Shortly before Smith spoke, Nkomo's chief aide here, Josiah Chinamano said police arrested 19 officials of Nkomo's Zimbabwe African People's Union, or ZAPU. Chinamano said he expected to be picked up soon.

No comment was available from the radical People's Movement, which represents Robert Mugabe, Nkomo's partner in the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance now stepping up the six-year war.

A 14-year ban on ZAPU and Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union, or ZANU, was lifted in April at the urging of the three moderate blacks joined with Smith in the six-month-old transition government. Most of the estimated 900 persons detained without trial were released.

Chinamano said a renewed ban on ZAPU and ZANU would escalate the war by cutting off communication with Nkomo.

Nkomo was not available for comment on the Smith speech. An aide in Lusaka, the Zambian capital, said there would be a news conference Monday.

Smith said he met Nkomo "having been assured that he was at heart a man of peace."

"Regrettably, however, events have proved that Nkomo is a prisoner of the front-line presidents and in particular of (Tanzanian President Julius) Nyerere, supported by (Mozambique President Sa-

Survey Finds Cities Across Country Have Same Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The typical problems of cities are not confined to the Northeast and Midwest, but are shared by those in the South, a Congressional Budget Office study suggests.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., who requested the study, made it public Sunday with the comment that it "should help reinforce the perception that severe urban problems, warranting national attention, are by no means limited to the Northeast and Midwest."

Reuss, chairman of the House Banking Committee and its subcommittee on the city, cited a composite index devised by the Budget Office from data on such things as high unemployment and low per capita income and applied to a sampling of 39 cities.

On this "composite measure of social need" Newark, N.J., appeared as the neediest of the 39 urban areas indexed. But four of the 10 "high need cities" were from below the Mason-Dixon line. In addition to Newark, the 10 were Cleveland; St. Louis; Detroit; New Orleans; Buffalo, N.Y.; Miami, Fla.; Gary, Ind.; Baltimore and Tampa, Fla.

Birmingham, Ala., headed the list of "moderate need cities," followed by Philadelphia; Jersey City, N.J.; Atlanta; Boston; Chicago; Cincinnati; Louisville, Ky.; Rochester, N.Y.; Pittsburgh; New York; Sacramento, Calif.; Milwaukee; San Jose, Calif.; Akron and Columbus, Ohio; San Diego, Calif.; Norfolk, Va.; and Oklahoma City, Okla.

Listed as "low need cities" were Kansas City, Mo.; Los Angeles; Phoeniz, Ariz.; San Francisco; Houston; Indianapolis; Denver; Minneapolis; Seattle and Dallas.

Analyzing five programs for cities, several of which are before Congress for continuation or modification, the study found the Antirecession Fiscal Assistance and Local Public Works programs to be especially responsive to the three categories of need — social, economic and fiscal — which it considered.

The Community Development Block Grants program was projected to do equally well as changes in its distribution formula take effect.

Other programs studied were the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) and General Revenue Sharing.

Security Tight For Shah's Son

LUBBOCK (UPI) — Strict security measures remain in effect as Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi, the 17-year-old heir to the Iranian throne, continues his flight training at nearby Reese Air Force Base.

The prince arrived in late July to begin a 49-week undergraduate pilot training program, although he already is an accomplished flier.

At age 11, the prince made his first solo flight and two years later received his commercial pilot's license. He also has flown the F-5 bomber, a mainstay of the Iranian air force.

State department officials and members of the protective service division of the Air Force's Office of Special Investigations have been protecting the prince since his arrival.

An Air Force official refused comment recently on the exact number of men assigned to protect the prince.

"We don't really get into that," said Capt. Robert Brus, wing information officer at Reese. "That would tend to compromise his security."

Maj. Carroll G. Bartley, head of the Lubbock police department's uniformed division, said his officers have no specific contingency plan to protect the prince in the event of violent protest. He said his officers would "respond normally" to any situation.

Bartley confirmed, however, that Lubbock police would provide intelligence to Reese officials and the state department if it were learned that a major protest was eminent.

In late July, about 700 Iranian students marched several miles through the city on a route that took them past the prince's weekend residence.

Permission to make the march was gained when a visting federal judge ordered the city not to enforce its ordinance prohibiting marches in residential areas.

Protestors reserved their loudest slogans and epithets until they approached the prince's residence in the affluent neighborhood, but the prince was away at the time.

Although he stays on base during his 14-hour work days and lives in spartan bachelor officers' quarters, the prince has access to a 4-bedroom, ranch-style house on weekends. The house also is occupied by the prince's live-in guardians.

The structure sits on an oversizd lot hidden to some degree by manicured shrubs and a low wall. A medium-sized swimming pool graces the back yard.

Outside, guards stand at the ready.

Bartley said Lubbock police officers, paid by the Iranian government, keep the house under surveillance "24 hours a day." Like Brus, he refused to comment on the number of officers watching the house.

Though the protestors said in July they could gain no advantage by harming the prince, recent strife in Iran has caused some officials to fear for his safety.

Fighting in Tehran last week erupted between a mixed alliance of demonstrators and government troops, resulting in scores of deaths. The struggle has generated concern in some quarters that the shah's regime could falter.

United Way Planners To Meet

United Way campaign organizers will have its first in a series of meetings today to prepare for the public kickoff of this year's fund drive.

The captains of the Metro division will have a breakfast meeting at 7 a.m. in the Toreador Room of Furrs Cafeteria in the Town and Country shopping center to plan Sept. 18's kickoff meeting of the division.

The state division also will meet today at noon in the Lubbock Club. The state division is comprised of state employees residing in Lubbock. Division chairman is Nathan Martin of the Department of Human Resources and George Wall of the Department of Highways and Public Transportation is vice chairman.

The professional division will meet at 7 a.m. Tuesday in the Civic Center. George Nelson, chairman, and Dr. Jack Rudd, vice chairman, head this division composed of 13 professional categories.

The United Way campaign cabinet, comprised of chairmen and vice chairmen of all divisions, will have its regular weekly meeting Wednesday.

The combined federal United Way campaign will kick off its activities at noon at Reese Air Force Base. Col. Charles Bishop is chairman of the combined federal division, and Maj. Robert Clark and Laura Peacock, director of the Social Security office, are vice chairmen.

On Thursday, the business division will hold a 7 a.m. breakfast meeting in the Toreador Room. That division, calling on firms of five employees or less, is headed by chairman Jim Gilbreath and vice chairman Bob Thompson.

The employee division will host campaign coordinators at a noon meeting at the Civic Center. More than 400 firms are represented in the employee division chaired by Bob Suter and Randy Neugebauer.

The public kickoff of this year's campaign will be at noon Sept. 26 in the Civic Center, according to campaign chairman Don Douglass. Most of Lubbock's civic clubs will participate.

First speaker of the House of Representatives was Frederick A.C. Muhlenberg, a Federalist from Pennsylvania, who served from 1789 to 1791.

Miss America Known As Typical Girl

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The new Miss America, pretty and petite Kylene Barker of Virginia, sees herself as "the all-American girl next door" who enjoys having men open doors for her and take her to dinner.

"I feel that I am a typical American citizen," said Miss Barker, 22, looking fresh with only 2½ hours sleep on the Sunday morning after becoming the 51st Miss America.

"I think a Miss America should look like an all-American person, like the girl next door, and not someone superficial that people are afraid to touch. I don't want people to put me on a pedestal," she said.

Miss Barker, a former college cheerleader, defeated 49 other state contestants here Saturday night for a $20,000 scholarship and more than $50,000 in personal appearance bookings that go with being Miss America.

She said she "enjoys the advantages of being a woman" and likes fussing with her hair and makeup. "That's why I competed for Miss America and that's why I'm standing here today," she said.

"I don't get upset when someone calls me a girl."

Born on a dairy farm near Galax, Va., the blonde, green-eyed Miss Barker was named after her father, Kyle, a supermarket meat cutter. She is a recent graduate of Virginia Tech, where she majored in apparel design and fashion merchandising.

Becoming Miss America, she said, "will add a little prestige" to the dress shop she had planned to open in Roanoke, in her home state. But now that she's Miss America, Miss Barker said, "I might just start out on Worth Avenue in Palm Beach."

Unlike most Miss Americas, Miss Barker has no desire to be an entertainer. Her talent competition was a lively gymnastics floor exercise to the music of the movie "Rocky" and the current hit instrumental "Feel So Good."

Miss Barker was only the ninth Miss America who didn't win a preliminary talent or swimsuit competition. She defeated Miss Alabama, Teresa Cheatham, who won both a talent and swimsuit competition, and six other contestants who had taken one of the preliminaries.

At 5-feet-4, Miss Barker is the shortest Miss America since Norma Smallwood, Miss Tulsa, Okla., the same height, won the title in 1926. The shortest was the first Miss America, Margaret Gorman, Miss Washington, D.C., 5-feet-1, who won the title in 1921. The pageant was not held for five years during the Depression.

The new Miss America offered some opinions on social issues:

On marijuana: "I feel that if you start out with marijuana, then you could eventually go to the harder drugs. So I would not vote for the legalization of marijuana." She said she has not smoked it.

On the Equal Rights Amendment: "I'm for the equal employment and equal pay...but I think they're taking a little bit too far. Essentially, they want a sexless society and I still believe there is a big difference."

On abortion: "I do not personally endorse abortion, but I feel that in some cases it may be necessary."

On gay rights: "I believe a human should have the right to do anything he wants to."

Boston Newspapers Face Strike Threat

BOSTON (AP) — Typographical workers at The Boston Globe and The Boston Herald American voted Sunday to authorize their union negotiators to call a strike if negotiations this week break down.

After two hours of debate in the Knight's of Columbus Hall in nearby Charlestown, the workers voted 556-19 to authorize the strike, said Henry Vitale, president of the International Typographers' Union Local 13.

The union's executive board will meet Tuesday and Wednesday with the negotiators for the two newspapers. Vitale said a strike could be called as early as Wednesday night if the talks falter.

Vitale said the workers wanted to walk off their jobs Sunday. But the executive board reasoned with them to wait for results of this week's negotiations, he said.

The workers have been without a contract since Jan. 1, 1978.

Vitale said the primary issue is job security, with the newspapers wanting to eliminate various jobs. The same issue is involved in the strike that has shut New York City's three major newspapers.

As many as 200 workers could lose their jobs in Boston if the union concedes to the papers' demands, Vitale said.

Typographers last went on strike in Boston in 1966 and stayed off their jobs for about 30 days. They currently earn $310 weekly for working during the day and $8 more for night work. Salary is not an issue.

James T. Dorris, publisher of the Herald American, said he was confident that the differences would be settled this week.

The Globe had no comment.

Han dynasty came to end in 220; China was divided and invaded for next three centuries.

Carter, One Up, Some To Go

THE BIG NEWS in Washington the past week, other than nearby talks on the Mideast, was the fact that President Carter finally had scored a major legislative victory.

It came as a result of the House upholding the President in his veto of the Defense Authorization Act and its $2 billion nuclear aircraft carrier project.

As a result, the overall $37 billion measure vetoed by the President was sent back to committee, where the carrier, decried by Carter as wasteful, will be deleted and other projects may be added at his behest.

WHILE IN THIS instance we certainly agreed with Mr. Carter, the "victory" angle may have been overemphasized by the Washington press corps.

Actually, the President had some pretty authoritative and hefty help in turning back his challenge on the nuclear carrier, including none other than U.S. Rep. George Mahon.

In arguing for upholding the veto, Mr. Mahon, whose opinions carry much more weight on the defensive front than perhaps anyone else in the nation's capital, told his colleagues that "whether we build another nuclear carrier that would be ready in seven or eight years is not all that vital. If war comes with the Soviet Union, it won't make any difference whether we have 12 or 13 carriers in our fleet."

IN TAKING a look at the White House stance on the nuclear carrier, and its veto victory, it should not be overlooked that this administration also has some marks against it on the defense front.

Mr. Carter's real motives in cancelling the carrier may be multi-fold, to save money as well as stop what he considers an unnecessary project.

It should not be forgotten that the President took the lead in scuttling the B1 bomber project, that he has held up deployment of the Neutron Warhead and has appeared to be willing to negotiate with the Russians on the deployment of the Cruise Missile.

ALL OF THESE weapons, unlike the nuclear carrier, hold the potential for keeping Soviet arms and missiles at a safe distance, if not striking terror in the heart of the Russian heartland itself.

But, this does not make him the final and absolute authority on defense matters. Nor does it set him up as being able to judge the motives of the Kremlin vis-a-vis the U.S. in the arms race.

We would hope that the President would do some second guessing on the vital weapons we just mentioned and rely on the counsel of such men as Mr. Mahon in reaching a decision on those "survival" systems before it is too late.

AN EDITORIAL:

For Citizens--A Last Chance

SCHOOL AND CITY officials here have one more chance to make themselves popular with the citizenry, thanks to the discovery that property tax rolls are higher than estimated earlier.

For the City Council, this means a $540,000 windfall which should make it easier to grant the public relief from skyrocketing electric bills.

For the School Board, it means $330,000 more revenue than it has budgeted and should prompt the trustees to cut the school tax rate by another 2 cents per $100 valuation.

WITH SCHOOL enrollment dropping by 1,000 under what had been expected, the trustees also have about 40 more teachers on the payroll than historic pupil-teacher ratios would justify.

School administrators say this could mean a cut of about $538,000 in state funds —which are based on average daily attendance—but this should be offset to a great extent by trimming personnel rolls through attrition.

If the unexpected enrollment drop persists throughout the school year, the trustees also could look forward to smaller revenue needs next year by eliminating teaching and administrative positions from the payroll.

This means the carry-forward balance can be cut to the bone this year without creating fiscal problems down the road.

THE CITY COUNCIL can save the taxpayers/electric consumers more than $2 for every $1 they cut out of the City budget by reducing the fuel cost adjustment on electric bills.

That's because the City Council in effect levies an 8 percent tax on the FCA "pass-through" to Lubbock Power and Light customers but allows Southwestern Public Service Co. to retain about $1.5 million in unearned income.

The $540,000 that the Council had not counted on when adopting next year's budget would go a long way toward easing the "pain" of eliminating the $1.1 million rake-off of LP&L cream into the City's general fund.

By allowing customers of both electric utilities a reduction in their monthly bills, the Council would be doing its part to fight inflation and would be ending the indefensible practice of using the fuel cost adjustment as a significant source of City Hall revenue.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Weak Dollar Seared By Inflationary Heat

WASHINGTON—What's happening to our money? Chances are, if you have been depending on financial-section updates about trade deficits, efforts to strengthen the dollar in world markets and the like, that the answer to this question is a trifle murky.

As usually treated, the whole affair seems totally incomprehensible and remote. Who cares about Eurodollars, yen or the balance of payments?

In fact, the subject is both comprehensible and of the utmost importance to the average citizen.

FOR WHAT IS happening to the dollar in global money markets—what has been happening to it throughout the 1970s—is simply another way of looking at inflation.

And that has countless implications on the homefront, in terms of paychecks, interest rates, availability of jobs and the buying power of your income.

What does it mean when the Japanese yen increases in value by 30 percent against the dollar since June a year ago?

Simply that the inflation we are experiencing in the United States has so eroded the buying power of the dollar that it will purchase only as much as 185 yen rather than 265.

THE SAME IS true, with changes in the arithmetic, with the weakening of the dollar relative to the German mark, the Swiss franc and other currencies.

Granted that there are other factors involved in our current economic troubles—such as lagging productivity, excessive regulation and the like —which have driven American capital overseas and contributed to our unfavorable trade balances.

The fact remains that the weakening of the dollar in relation to other currencies is purely and simply a result of our domestic inflation.

It will be corrected, if ever, only when we stop inflating.

DOES IT MAKE any difference to the average American? Anyone who has shopped around for a Toyota or a Datsun or anything else imported from Japan (or Germany or Switzerland) can supply an answer.

And since countless Americans buy imported items of every description (often without knowing it), the constant fall in the purchasing power of the dollar means higher prices all along the line.

The corrosive impact of inflation also explains such otherwise esoteric events as the "closing of the gold window" in 1971, when the United States had to acknowledge that the official price of gold had been hopelessly undercut by the inflation of our currency.

THIS MEANT THAT countries which had accepted dollars in the belief that they could be converted to gold were nicely stiffed by the United States; our promises to pay dating back to the postwar era were simply abrogated.

It isn't just imports, of course, that go up in price. Domestic prices rise as well; that's the name of the game.

Escalator clauses in wage contracts, spiraling interest rates, rising costs at every point in the economy are symptoms of the selfsame process.

The readjustment of the dollar in the international markets is merely a recognition globally of what is already apparent at home.

In the decade 1967-76, the money supply as usually defined increased 119 percent, and consumer prices rose by 74 percent.

And the process is continuing.

For the year that ended in June, U.S. consumer prices went up by 7.5 percent, compared to 2.7 percent in Germany, 3.6 percent in Japan.

We are systematically destroying the purchasing power of our money and the gyrations of the dollar in the global money markets are a reflecting of this lugubrious fact.

MARTHA ANGLE & ROBERT WALTERS:

Tax Reform Fumble

AUGUSTA, Maine—What if they held a tax revolution and nobody came?

That's approximately what occurred here recently after Gov. James B. Longley, an independent, called Maine's state legislature into special session to deal with the "tax rebellion" supposedly sweeping the country.

Three legislative committees convened a week ahead of the full session to receive testimony at public hearings.

Having heard and read the apocalyptic warnings about a massive grass-routes uprising over government spending, they reserved the largest hall they could find to accommodate the outraged public.

The unusual session was held in the vast arena of the Augusta Civic Center, capable of seating more than 8,000 people.

But only about 250 showed up—and many of them were fellow legislators, state government officials, lobbyists and reporters.

THAT POOR TURNOUT shouldn't be attributed entirely to a lack of citizen interest in the issue, because the meeting was held on a mid-week workday.

The legislators remained anxious to produce some panacea before election day, but they decided against holding public hearings in Portland, Lewiston-Auburn, Bangor and other population centers in the state.

The recent events here are unfortunately typical of the haste, confusion and demagoguery in evidence throughout the country as self-proclaimed citizen groups and terrified politicians mindlessly leap aboard the "tax reform" bandwagon without knowing its route, destination or fare.

IN TEXAS, A legislative committee plowed through 45 separate proposals to amend the state constitution, some unworkable and others bizarre, before a special legislative session could fashion its version of tax reform.

In several other states, citizen groups are circulating petitions that are legally worthless because the state constitution contains no provision for placing initiatives on the ballot.

Here in Maine, the state legislature earlier this year approved a $19.8 million tax reduction package of personal income and sales tax reductions.

Because local politicians are practitioners of Yankee frugality, state government can hardly be accused of wasteful or wanton spending.

But only a few months after the California tax reform vote, the Maine Tax Limitation Committee, an organization claiming broad public support, surfaced with a demand for a constitutional amendment to limit state and local government spending.

LONGLEY ENDORSED that approach, then proposed resolving the controversial issue during a one-day special session—an invitation to hasty, sloppy lawmaking.

Although more than two dozen alternative schemes promptly surfaced, only five survived by the time the legislative committees retreated from their stand in the vast arena to a more modest and suitable hearing room in the state capitol.

Faced with disparate plans for homestead exemptions of different sizes, reductions of various taxes and limits on government spending, the legislators were forced to grope and fumble for a solution.

Uncertain about even what basic approach to embrace, they and their colleagues in other states might have fared better if they followed the lead of Kansas, where Gov. Robert F. Bennett, a Republican, has emerged as a rare example of moderation.

Warning against "demagogues" seeking to take advantage of the furor over taxes, Bennett's measured response was to appoint a special citizens' committee to study tax reform, then to offer some presumably rational proposals to the legislature.

CONGRESSIONAL leaders, in conjunction with administration officials, have drawn up a list of a dozen top-priority bills they hope to enact before adjournment this fall.

A few, like the Middle East arms sale package, have already made it through the mill. But at least half the proposals on the list may never see the light of day, or not in forms acceptable to Carter at any rate.

The energy package, tax reduction, hospital cost containment, labor law revision and lifting of the embargo on arms sales to Turkey—all are in deep trouble on Capitol Hill.

On the other hand, at least half of the dozen bills on a second list—measures Carter objects to for one reason or another—appear almost sure to pass.

These range from budget-busting appropriations for parks, public works, labor, health, education and welfare to the tuition tax credit.

The net result is that Carter may end up with the worst win-loss record in Congress of any President in recent times.

DONALD F. GRAFF:

Bit And Pieces...

PRESIDENT GEORGE Meany of the AFL-CIO is not one to be put off by a President of the United States.

As he has amply demonstrated in a quarter century as the country's No. 1 labor leader, confronting and outlasting in power five of that transient breed.

But he may have gone too far with a sixth. Reports have it that the present occupant of the White House has had it with Meany's repeated criticism of administration labor and economic policies.

President Carter is slow to anger, but now his patience is "used up," declared a White House aide quoted at length in one wire dispatch from Washington.

Meany's public fingering of the administration for the defeat in Congress of the labor law reform bill "is the last straw." The White House has had enough. No more being Mr. Nice Guys in response to Meany's bullying.

The era of presidential accommodation with Meany may be drawing to a close, warns the aide, who asked not to be identified.

UNDERSELLING competitors on world markets is a speciality of the Japanese, but they may be in for a shock at home.

An American firm, a leader in its field, has opened an office in Tokyo with an offer potential Japanese customers are likely to find difficult to refuse.

Beneficial Corp., the consumer finance outfit, is offering loans at annual interest rates of 36 to 48 percent. That compares to rates up to 90 percent charged by Japanese lenders.

The business generated may not make a major dent in the payments deficit, but every little bit helps.

★

MOONLIGHTING becomes increasing numbers of Americans, judging by a recent survey.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics puts the number of individuals holding down more than one job at some four million.

Most are in professional fields such as education or accounting, and most also find second jobs in similar areas.

The great majority of moonlighters are men, usually with families. But almost one quarter —more than 900,000—are women.

★

SPEAKING OF working women, a group on the West Coast is pioneering a special type of job training.

They are corporate wives, and under a program being developed by Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. in its Coast facilities, they are learning more about their husbands' work than is usually the case in a well-ordered marriage.

Named IRIS after the mythological Greek messenger and goddess of the rainbow, the program fills the wives in on not only their husbands' specific responsibilities but the company, its products and its role in society.

The program, intended eventually to be available at company facilities nationwide, is designed not only to increase a wife's understanding of her husband's career but to expand her own capabilities.

The result could be a corporate couple whose sum is greater than its parts.

JAY HARRIS:

The VIP Town...

IF THAT FELLOW from Chicago who told us recently he had not heard about Lubbock has been paying attention, he could have boned up on the city lately.

About the city and some of its residents, past and present, that is.

Actually, Lubbock is not as anonymous as the gentleman might think. The city, Texas Tech and some of the leading industries here are well known in various parts of the world, as well as the U.S.

We recall standing near the towering statue of Christ overlooking Rio de-Janeiro three years ago and mentioning to two visitors that we were from Lubbock.

"Oh yes," one of them exclaimed. "That's where they are building that huge Medical School." Seems he and his fellow American were from Minnesota and California, respectively. Experts in the health field, they were in Brazil to do research on an unusual jungle disease.

THE TRUTH is that Lubbock and the area have had more than their share of VIPs in several lines of endeavor.

The South Plains has had any number of up and coming musicians who made it to the big-time. And we certainly haven't been left out in the cold when it comes to politicians, both at the state and national levels.

In the musical category, you can add the likes of such personages as John Denver, once a Tech student, Mac Davis, Waylon Jennings, Ralna English (now wed to Guy Hovis) to name only a few.

In the political arena, there's Cong. George Mahon, former Gov. Preston Smith, former House Speaker Waggoner Carr, current Speaker Bill Clayton and others, including Tech grad and Demo National Chairman John White.

In the area of business and industry, the list would fill a book as well as some of the more prestigious boardrooms of the nation. But, we digress, but only slightly.

NOT LONG AGO, Lubbock got some national publicity in People magazine when the publication did a story and series of pictures on The Buddy Holly Story.

The three page spread told about actor Gary Busey's visit to Lubbock for the premiere of the film, his visiting with Buddy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Holley (Buddy dropped the "e" for stage purposes) and the recreation area named after the original rock 'n roller. While not the type thing the Lubbock C-C might send out, it still was publicity. The kind you can't buy.

As we understand it, People magazine plans to do another blurb which will center around Lubbock and some of its residents.

When Sarah Weddington, President Carter's newly named adviser on women's issues, was here last weekend to visit her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Doyle Ragle, People had a photographer on the scene.

ACCORDING TO Sarah's mother, the People man met the whole family in Midland on Friday and stayed with them through last Sunday.

He enjoyed home cooking and home made ice cream with the family in the process.

Mrs. Ragle says Sarah flew to Austin before the weekend for a party hosted by former friends at the state capital where she served in the Legislature from Travis county.

Then Sarah, a brother and a sister met the Ragles in Midland and went to Odessa where everyone attended the 83rd birthday celebration for Mrs. Ragle's father, R. P. Morrison. After visiting with her father and mother, the family returned to Lubbock.

Mrs. Ragle says the photographer made pictures of Sarah helping Mr. Morrison hoist a flag, which had been flown over the nation's Capitol, on his garage flagstaff.

AFTER CHURCH Sunday, the People man got a real taste of West Texas hospitality.

President Carter's new women's specialist helped the family peal peaches picked from her parents' yard, then helped make home-made ice cream.

"Mike (the photographer) made pictures of just about everything we did," Mrs. Ragle said. "I'm anxious to see what comes out in the magazine."

Such attention isn't that unusual for the attractive Mrs. Weddington. Nor is finding herself in heady political company unique.

"She has always seemed to be at the right place at the right time," her mother says. "When she ran for the Legislature for the first time in 1972, she had pretty strong opposition. Her male opponent referred to her as 'that sweet little girl'."

"THAT SWEET little girl" won the hard-fought race, and according to Mrs. Ragle, her opponent's friends never have let him forget the remark.

Mrs. Weddington, a divorcee, went on to win re-election in 1974 and 1976. She was a successful Austin attorney, specializing in family relations cases.

She later went to Washington, at then Asst. Sec. of Agriculture John White's behest and was legal counsel for the department with some 250 lawyers working with her. When a Mrs. Rosalynn Carter called her recently to offer her the White House women's post, Mrs. Weddington was in Little Rock on business. The people taking the call knew who Sarah was, but had to be told the Carter calling was the First Lady, Mrs. Ragle says.

"She was going on vacation," Mrs. Ragle says. "But that's out for the time being..."

Sarah Weddington has no illusions about the task ahead. Nor how she got where she is. "One of my bosses told me," she says, "where you are tomorrow depends on who you meet on the way to work today. More than anything else, it's how you deal with people." To say the least, she has her work cut out for her. And Lubbock has another notch on the national publicity meter.

Tax Revolution Reaching Local Level

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

From New England town meetings to Midwest budget hearings, local officials are feeling the sting of Proposition 13, as protesters take aim at what they consider unnecessary spending and unfair tax bills.

A survey by The Associated Press and its member newspapers found that the casualties and potential casualties of anti-spending sentiment range from high school football to shopping centers. Tax assessments are under appeal; tax assessors are under fire.

Most of the efforts are far smaller in scope than the well-organized drive that led Californians to approve Proposition 13, providing a 57 percent cut in property taxes. The California vote touched off similar statewide drives in about a dozen areas. It also helped crystalize public discontent over pocketbook issues.

In Kingston, Mass., a small community south of Boston, tax bills soared last year because of a property revaluation. This year, 1,350 people turned out for the July 15 town meeting and rejected every increase in spending that was proposed.

In Council Bluffs, Iowa, 300 persons appeared at a June 19 hearing on the Pottawattamie County budget, protesting a proposed 60 percent boost in property taxes. The state appeals board subsequently cut the increase to 20 percent and two taxpayer groups have been formed to monitor spending and push for change.

There are numerous other examples of officials backing down from planned spending or tax boosts because of public opposition or the threat of it. Among them:

—A group called Concerned Citizens successfully lobbied the county commission in Williamson County, Tenn., to reject a school budget that would have required a tax increase.

—The West Hartford, Conn., town council rescinded a proposed budget increase after two retired businessmen gathered more than 3,000 signatures demanding a public referendum on the issue.

—Cumberland County, N.J., freeholders cited Proposition 13 as the reason for their decision to abandon plans to acquire a golf course for the county recreation department.

—Hundreds of Gorham, Maine, residents turned up at town meetings, chanting "Cut the budget, cut the budget." In a July 25 referendum, voters rescinded a $3.9 million budget which had been approved by the town council and school committee, based on a tax rate of $16.90 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. Now, officials are working on a new budget, based on a tax rate of $15 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Tax increases are being rejected by the voters, even when a rise in one levy would be offset by a drop in another.

Nineteen Kansas cities and counties proposed sales tax increases to the voters in Aug. 1 elections. "In most of these instances, it was a clear choice, with a commitment on the part of the city for substantial property tax reductions," said Ernie Mosher, executive director of the League of Kansas Municipalities. Despite the commitment, 14 of the proposals were turned down.

In Houghton County, Mich., the defeat of a proposed property tax increase led to the layoff of 80 county highway workers. Nearby, in the towns of Manistique and Stephenson, high school football was eliminated after voters rejected two separate tax proposals.

A high school remodeling project in Columbus, Neb., was the victim of voter rejection of a proposed $1.3 million bond issue.

The fate of a propsed income tax in Jackson, Ohio, is still in doubt. On July 17, the city council voted to impose a 1 percent tax, starting Oct. 1. Less than a month later, faced with petitions calling for a referendum on the issue, the council repealed the tax. Now, however, it has decided to risk the referendum Nov. 7.

A Nov. 7 vote also is expected in Wausau, Wis., where a campaign is under way to forbid the city council from spending any tax money to acquire land for a proposed downtown shopping mall.

The tightfisted mood of the public is evident even when taxes are not immediately involved. In Porter County, Ind., for example, strong opposition has developed to the formation of a county park system. Protesters claim the system would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to develop and maintain.

Not all the efforts have been successful. In Anchorage, Alaska, a group called the Libertarian Party submitted a petition to amend the city charter to require voter approval of any new or increased taxes A judge ruled, however, that the proposal could not appear on the ballot because it would unconstitutionally limit the municipality's ability to levy taxes to guarantee bond debts.

Another unsuccessful drive was in Richmond, Va., where the Independent Taxpayers' Association failed in its efforts to force a referendum on a plan by the city council to sell bonds to finance a shopping mall complex.

Tax collectors and assessors have come under new pressure.

The Benton County, Wash., Board of Equalization, for example, has received 385 appeals of its 1978 appraisals; there were only about 120 last year. In Sherman and Palestine, Texas, suits by taxpayers have temporarily blocked the certification of 1978 tax rolls which reflect increased valuations.

Several hundred residents of Carrollwood, Fla., near Tampa, have vowed to sue the county property appraiser over his practice of reassessing only part of the county each year.

Winnebago County, Ill., taxpayers filed suit against the board of review, challenging the way property taxes were computed. A circuit court judge agreed with the plaintiffs and ordered refunds totalling $77,000. "You can fight city hall," said Janice Thorpe of the Winnebago County Taxpayers Federation.

In York County, S.C., the tax assessor himself is a protester. Ike Oates says a 1976 law designed to make assessments fairer for farmers will result in sharp boosts in residential tax bills and he says he will resign rather than collect the boost. "Tax assessors are getting blamed for a lot of stuff we have absolutely no control over," he said. "I'm not going to sit here and take the heat."

Governors Challenged

By The Associated Press

Incumbent governors in New York and Connecticut are being challenged by their own lieutenant governors in a round of primary elections Tuesday in 14 states and the District of Columbia.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey is favored to win renomination for a second term over his second-in-command, Lt. Gov. Mary Ann Krupsak, who bolted his ticket in June, accusing Carey of ignoring her. The winner will face Assembly Minority Leader Perry Duryea, the Republican candidate, in what may prove to be a close general election.

In Connecticut, Gov. Ella Grosso, whose incumbency was seen as being in doubt a year ago, is expected to survive a challenge from her lieutenant governor, Robert Killian. Republican Ronald A. Sarasin is unopposed.

Elsewhere, the Minnesota Senate seat occupied by the late Hubert Humphrey is up for grabs with the once-powerful Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party on shaky grounds.

Humphrey's widow, Muriel, who was appointed to fill his unexpired term, decided not to seek election, and a lively campaign developed between Rep. Donald Fraser and Robert Short, a millionaire businessman and former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee. Lawyer David Durenberger has the Republican Party endorsement in a five-way race, with his chief opposition coming from Malcolm Moss, former president of the University of Minnesota.

In Minnesota's other Senate race, polls show incumbent Sen. Wendell Anderson, who is unopposed in the Democratic primary, trailing far behind Rudy Boschwitz, a 71-year-old former governor who is expected to be his Republican opponent in the general election.

Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich, a Democrat, and Rep. Albert Quie, a Republican, are expected to have little trouble in their re-election bids.

In a primary election Saturday, voters in Delaware nominated James H. Baxter Jr., a 30-year GOP veteran, to oppose incumbent Democrat Joseph Biden in the general election. And in Alaska, Republican Gov. Jay Hammond was certified Saturday as the winner over Walter Hickel, a former governor and secretary of the U.S. Interior Department. The official count gave Hammond a 101-vote margin in the Aug. 22 primary.

A mayoral election of interest is being held Tuesday in Washington, D.C., where Mayor Walter Washington is in a tight eight-way race. And in Providence, R.I., where Mayor Vincent A. Cianci Jr., having vigorously denied an article in New Times Magazine that alleged he raped a woman at gunpoint while a law student 12 years ago, is expected to win re-election in the Republican primary.

Other states with primary elections Tuesday are Wisconsin, Maryland, Florida, New Hampshire, Arizona, Colorado, Wyoming, Nevada, Vermont and Utah.

Dead Woman Accused Of Breaking Rental Lease

EAST DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A landlord and the mother of a deceased tenant both claim the right to the $120 security deposit paid on the late tenant's apartment. Paula Franer, 20, had a six-month lease on an apartment, but according to landlord Edward E. Larrick, she "broke the lease" when she died April 19 in a car-train wreck.

Robert Tongren, chief of the consumer frauds and crimes section of the Ohio Attorney General's office, said Larrick had profited from "to me, unconscionable circumstances and he ought to give it (the deposit) back" to Miss Franer's mother, Pat. But he said there are "a lot of legal issues," which may require a look at the landlord-tenant statute.

Reagan Begins Tour To Aid Candidates

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — With the November general election less than two months away, Ronald Reagan launches a 26-state tour this week to campaign for Republican candidates, including some who opposed him in his own presidential campaign.

"We're going where there's a chance to do some good (for the Republican Party). We don't want to waste time where there's a sure thing. By the same token, we don't want to waste time in a district so Democratic that a Republican doesn't have a prayer," Reagan said

Citizens for the Republic, formed with Reagan's leftover campaign funds from his unsuccessful 1976 race for the Republican presidential nomination, picked most of the candidates for whom he is campaigning.

Reagan is not limiting his campaigning to conservatives who supported him for president. The congressional and state candidates Reagan is campaigning for in 60 cities spread "across the whole spectrum of the Republican Party" and include some who endorsed former President Ford and worked against Reagan in 1976.

Reagan says he won't make any decision about running for president until early 1979.

"I've made no secret of it. I haven't closed the door to becoming a candidate again," the 67-year-old former California governor said in an Associated Press interview last week.

Golden Spur To Be Awarded At Prairie Party

More than 1,000 persons are expected to attend the Sept. 22 National Golden Spur Award and Prairie Party in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

The first National Golden Spur Award, a gilded OK working spur encased in Steuben Glass designed with a reflection of trail dust, will be presented to Albert K. Mitchell, a rancher from Albert, N.M. He was chosen by representatives of all major facets of the livestock and ranching industry.

The Prairie Party, to include 19th century pageantry and music, is one of a trio of events scheduled in conjunction with the award.

Among those toasting the ranching industry will be an emissary from Great Britain expected to bring messages from Queen Elizabeth II and the National Trust, an organization charged with the preservation and restoration of England's historic places.

Margaret Douglas is a retired official of the National Trust who was involved with the resoration of Old Washington Hall north of London where George Washington's ancestors were the land and cattle barons of their time. Descendants of many cattle barons of the Old West, who helped build the heritage preserved by the Ranching Heritage Center at Texas Tech, will be in attendance.

The Livestock and Money Symposium will be held from 10 a.m to 2 p.m., Sept. 22, at The Museum of Texas Tech University. Moderator will be Charles Ball, executive vice president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association. Speakers include Everette Harris, president emeritus of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange; Gene Edwards, board chairman, First National Bank, Amarillo; W.D. "Bill" Farr, Farr Feedlots, Greeley, Colo.; and Dr. Robert Jensen, head of the Department of Nutrition, University of Connecticut.

President Barbara Keating of Consumer Alert, Stamford, Conn., will be the luncheon speaker and the chuckwagon lunch is included in the symposium registration fee of $15.

Ranch Day begins at 9 a.m., Sept. 23, at the Ranching Heritage Center of The Museum of Texas Tech University. Activities will be going on in all buildings at the center until 11:30 a.m. A chuckwagon lunch will be followed by entertainment and a brief annual business meeting of the association, including election of officers.

All activities are open to the public. Ranch Day, including lunch, is $5.50 for adults and $2.25 for children for nonmembers of the association and $4.50 and $1.75 for members.

Wray Finney, seventh generation cattleman and past president of the Oklahoma Cattlemen's Association, will speak at Ranch Day. The group Ft. Griffin Fandangle will perform.

The National Golden Spur is to be presented annually to an individual for outstanding contributions to the livestock and ranching industries, with special emphasis on humanistic contributions.

Tickets, at $15 each or $120 for a table, are available through the Ranching Heritage Association.

For reservations to the symposium or the Prairie Party, checks should be sent to the Ranching Heritage Association, The Museum of Texas Tech University, Lubbock, 79409. Ranch Day tickets may be purchased up to the day of the festivities.

Representatives of early ranching families will model fashions from the historic collectiion of The Museum of Texas Tech University.

Proceeds from the Prairie Party will benefit the Ranching Heritage Center, a 12-acre outdoor exhibit of authentic ranch structures at The Museum of Texas Tech University, depicting the history of ranching in the American West.

Pope Praying For Success Of Camp David Summit Talks

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul I, declaring "all men are hungry and thirsty for peace," told a crowd of 80,000 Sunday he is praying for the success of the Mideast peace talks at Camp David and is impressed that the men involved seek help in public prayer.

Speaking in Italian from the window of his apartment overlooking St. Peter's Square, the pontiff said the desire for peace was especially fervent among the poor, "because they suffer the most as a result of troubles and wars."

Begin observed the Jewish Sabbath on Saturday and President Carter participated in Protestant services Sunday.

"I have been very impressed by the fact that the three leaders have wanted to pray in public, expressing their hope in the Lord with their prayers," the pontiff said.

This was the second time that Pope John Paul had publicly referred to the Camp David talks. He also spoke hopefully of the talks at his first weekly general audience Wednesday.

"Everybody is watching with interest and great hopes the meeting at Camp David," the pontiff said Sunday. He added, "and the pope too, who has prayed, asked for prayers, and continues to pray that the Lord aid the efforts of these politicians."

N.M. Savings, Loan Convention Slated

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (Special) — Keynoting the 51st Anniversary Year Convention of the New Mexico Savings and Loan League will be John Hardin of Rock Hill, South Carolina, Immediate Past President of the United States League of Savings Associations.

Hardin will address the first general session of the savings and loan meeting at the Inn of the Mountain Gods in Mescalero, September 20-22. League president Bill McAlpine Savings & Trust, Roswell, said Hardin is one of the savings and loan leaders in the nation.

A former three-term Mayor of Rock Hill, S.C., Hardin first served on the Rock Hill city council. He served on the school board there, and later as president of the South Carolina Muncicpal Association. In addition to his position as president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Rock Hill (assets $130 million), Harden served two terms as director of the Federal Home Loan Bank in Greensboro (now Atlanta). He is a past president of the Southeastern Savings and Loan Conference and the South Carolina S & L League, as well as United States League, and currently serves on the Federal Savings and Loan Advisory Council.

Rounding out the first general session Thursday morning will be addresses by: Jim Coles, president, Federal Home Loan Bank of Little Rock; Arthur Edgeworth, vice president and director of operations, United States League — Washington office; and Dr. Ron Schillereff of Texas Tech University, Lubbock.

New Mexico League President McAlpine said the convention at Mescalero shapes up as one of the larger gathering in recent years, with more than 350 persons expected. The League is the trade association for the savings and loan business in the state, representing 30 S & Ls with combined assets approaching two billion dollars.

Tech Head Named To Science Post

President Cecil Mackey of Texas Tech University has been appointed to the National Science Foundation Advisory Council.

The Advisory Council is a 24-member group that reviews and provides advice on NSF issues of concern to Director Richard C. Atkinson, to the scientific community and to the public in the administration of NSF programs for the support of science.

Founded a year ago, the Council has considered the role of universities as centers for basic research, of NSF and the public and of scientific cooperation with Western Europe.

Council membership represents a cross section of scientific disciplines and includes non-scientists as well. Members are appointed by the NSF director in consultation with the National Science Board. Former Tech President Grover E. Murray is vice chairman of the Science Board.

FUND-RAISER SET

AUSTIN (UPI) — Attorney general candidate Mark White has scheduled a $50-a-person fund-raising reception for Sept. 18. White, who is opposing Republican Jim Baker, said Thursday 155 Austin residents would serve as co-sponsors for the reception.

Weapons Indicate Guerrilla Escalation

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The use of a shoulder-fired, heat-seeking missile to down a Rhodesian civilian airliner could mean sophisticated communist-supplied weapons are being readied for the conflicts in southern Africa, intelligence sources here say.

South African and Western intelligence experts have been predicting a major escalation of the guerrilla wars in Rhodesia and South-West Africa (Namibia) for months. They base their predictions on information that more sophisticated military hardware is being channeled to the black nationalist groups fighting in Rhodesia and South-West Africa.

The Soviet Union and Eastern bloc nations have been delivering rockets, heat-seeking missiles, and multiple-tube rocket launchers called "Stalin Organs" to Rhodesian insurgents under Joshua Nkomo based in Zambia, intelligence reports say.

Robert Mugabe, Nkomo's partner in the fragile guerrilla alliance called the Patriotic Front, bases his forces in Mozambique. Intelligence reports say his primary source for light arms is China. But South African military sources said that over the past year heavy military trucks and some armored vehicles have arrived at various ports in Mozambique. Mugabe's guerrillas shelled Umtali, Rhodesia, on the border with Mozambique, with mortars and rockets last Thursday.

The Patriotic Front has rejected the transition formula to black rule in Rhodesia worked out by white Prime Minister Ian Smith and three black moderates, sharing power in a biracial administration.

All of the intelligence sources commenting on the situation asked to remain anonymous because of the nature of their work.

Nkomo said his guerrillas shot down the Air Rhodesia Viscount with 56 persons on board Sept. 3 but he denied a Rhodesian government claim his men later massacred 10 of 18 whites who survived the crash. The guerrillas claim Rhodesia uses its civilian airline to move troops and military supplies.

Earlier this month guerrillas of the South-West African People's Organization fired rockets from Zambia at a South African base at Katima Mulilo in the Caprivi Strip in northeastern South-West Africa, killing 10 South African soldiers. It was the first use by SWAPO of the 112mm six-mile-range rockets.

The SWAPO guerrillas are fighting to end South Africa's administration of neighboring South-West Africa. The South Africans run the territory under a League of Nations mandate since revoked by the United Nations.

The Soviet-made SA-7 heat-seeking missile used on the Rhodesian plane was widely used by North Vietnamese forces after 1972 in the Vietnam war. It has a two-pound explosive head that homes-in on an engine's exhaust. It can rise more than 10,000 feet.

Jorge Sangumba, foreign minister of the pro-West UNITA guerrillas fighting the Cuban-backed government in Angola, claimed recently that various southern African guerrilla groups were being trained on sophisticated weapons by East Germans and Cubans at Luso in central Angola.

Military experts in South Africa say the next step in the Rhodesian war will be increased shelling of border towns such as Umtali, Victoria Falls and Kariba with single rockets and possibly Stalin Organs or artillery.

However, they say that Stalin Organs or artillery must be protected by infantry units and anti-aircraft guns to stop the Rhodesians from knocking them out. They claim that only foreign troops, such as the Cubans, could provide the shield behind which the guerrillas could fire on Rhodesia. U.S. and other Western quarters estimate there are about 45,000 Cuban personnel in Africa, primarily Angola and Ethiopia.

The heavy shelling of towns would escalate the Rhodesian war and possibly cause Rhodesia to go on the offensive in Zambia and Mozambique, military analysts say.

President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia reiterated last Friday that he would call in foreign troops if Zambia were threatened, but he declined to say which ones.

In Windhoek, South-West Africa, the territory's administrator-general told a gathering Thursday that SWAPO was planning to continue violence while a peaceful settlement was being worked out in the United Nations.

South African security police claimed a few months ago that 4,000 South African blacks were undergoing military training in various nearby black states. The security police said they have intercepted hundreds of young blacks trying to infiltrate back into South Africa from Swaziland, Mozambique and Botswana.

Right-To-Work Controversy Resurfaces

By CARROL W. CAGLE
A-J Correspondent

SANTA FE — Although the New Mexico teachers' association isn't called a union, it's taking a strong stance against the political resurgence of the "right-to-work" concept which would ban the union shop.

Right-to-work was one of the major issues between Democrats Bruce King and Bob Ferguson in their gubernatorial primary last June.

And, although other issues are emerging in the race between King and Republican Joe Skeen, right-to-work still is expected to be an important factor in their contest.

One measure of that importance is the front-page editorial against right-to-work in the publication of the National Education Association of New Mexico (NEA-NM) by the association's executive director.

Edmund A. Gaussoin wrote that right-to-work "is gaining momentum as the candidates continue their campaigns and as the date for the 1979 Legislature gets closer."

Gaussoin also specifically singled out a key legislative leader and criticized his stance in favor of right-to-work. The editorial referred to State Sen. Bob Wood, a banker from Portales who is No. 2 Democratic leader in the Senate.

After referring to Wood's suport of right-to-work, Gaussoin wrote:

"It is different to understand how anyone who has taken the time to analyze this issue can support the philosophy, the rationale or anything other than the title itself."

The editorial added that "the main focus of right-to-work forces is the destruction of organizations that represent employees."

Right-to-work was a big issue in the 1977 lawmaking session. Although vigorously opposed by the unions and the Apodaca administration, it cleared the Senate and narowly failed in the House.

National proponents of right-to-work have identified New Mexico as a key state for potentially adopting such a measure next year.

The prospects for passage in the 1979 Legislature are indefinite at this point, but the election of legislators leaning one way or the other could be decisive. Already, right-to-work backers appear to have scored successes in primary election battles for legislative seats in Dona Ana County, Gov. Jerry Apodaca's home county.

The Committee of Political Education (COPE) of the AFL-CIO has endorsed King, as has the Political Action Committee for Education (PACE), the political arm of the NEA-NM.

But King, realizing the delicate political situation involving right-to-work, has moved to defuse the issue slightly by saying he feels the voters for New Mexico should have the right to vote on the issue.

Meanwhile, good sources say Apodaca himself is no longer friendly with his old allies in the NEA-NM.

The current estrangement came because the organization voted a "premature" endorsement of the re-election to the U.S. Senate of Republican Pete Domenici — at a time when Apodaca, one of the biggest supporters of NEA in the political arena over the years, was still contemplating a race for the Senate himself.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I'd give anything if my husband watched football.

There's something so "American" about sitting up there in the stands Saturday after Saturday watching 22 burly men pitted against one another in brute, animal strength to see who can get that ball over the goal.

Oh, I know what you're thinking. You're remembering all those rotten things I used to say about my husband when he watched football. About how all our our children talk like Howard Cosell. How we moved once and he didn't even notice. How I used to wear nightgowns made out of Astro-Turf to get his attention. How he'd seen more bowls than the latrine officer at Ft. Dix. How we used to decorate him for Christmas and he never even moved.

I was kidding.

Why, there's no healthier sport for a man in this world than a football game. His Saturdays used to be like a ritual. Fill the thermos, sling the blanket over his arm, the binoculars over his neck and hit for the stadium. No weather was too inclement. No season too scoreless. No bed or disease that could restrain him come Saturday.

And how I used to tease. The time I hired the Goodyear blimp to inform him I delivered a son. (And he called me at halftime.) And what about Mother's Day, when I put his mother in a band uniform and he waved and thought it was his dental hygienist? Those were the good old days.

Last Saturday, he got up at the crack of noon, filled his thermos, slung his blanket over his arm and his binoculars over his neck and we hit for the stadium.

"It looks like a split end to me," I said sullenly.

"Would you look at that line?" he said shaking his head in disbelief. "That is some kind of defense."

"I think it's offensive."

"That's because you don't know anything about the game. Oh, oh, backfield in motion! I tell you that center has to be the kicker of the century."

The pom-pom girls — 50 girls — at that moment left the field taking their spaghetti legs, their concave stomachs, and the inflatable made-in-Japan chests with them.

"Let's get something to drink," said my husband, "while the game is being played so we'll make it back in time for halftime when the girls come back."

I'd give anything if my husband watched football again.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR FOLKS:

OK! — I give in. In answer to your numerous requests, we are reprinting the recipe for Peking Roast Beef. It first appeared in the column years ago, and was an instant hit.

One dear lady even sent me a yellowed copy of the recipe she had clipped from the original column, which she said was much used. She thought it was so good she wanted me to share it again with our readers.

It is good. Just wait until you smell it cooking, not to mention how terrific it tastes when done. And most any cut of roast, including the cheaper ones, oan be used with fantastic results.

So if you would like to try cooking your next roast by the following method, here's the recipe for what I call "Peking Roast Beef."

Take any three-to five-pound roast and use a large knife to cut slits completely through the meat. Insert slivers of garlic and onion into these slits, or, if you do not like the taste of garlic, onion alone may be used.

Put the beef in a bowl and pour one cup of vinegar over it, making sure the vinegar runs down into the little slits. Place this in your refrigerator for 24 to 48 hours.

When ready to cook the roast, pour the vinegar off and place meat in a heavy pot (an iron one if possible), and brown in oil until very dark on both sides. Then pour two cups of strong, black coffee over the roast. Add two cups of water and cover.

Cook this slowly for six hours on top of the stove. If your roast is cooked too fast, or, if the lid on your pot is not tight enough, you may need to add additional water, but never add more than one cup at a time.

Do not season with anything else until 20 minutes before serving and then add salt and pepper. That's all.

Gals, your roast will fall apart with the touch of a fork no matter how tough the meat was originally.

And wait until you taste that yummy black gravy. It may be thickened or left as is. If you want more gravy, add a little water to it.

I've been cooking my roasts this way for quite a while and the platter is licked clean every time. I think it will be at your table, too. — Kisses, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

We live in a small, older home with limited closet space. In fact, our baby daughter's room doesn't even have a closet.

To solve the problem of where to hang her dresses, I suspended a hula hoop by sturdy yarn from a hook in the ceiling in one corner of the room.

This "circular closet" not only provides the needed hanging space, but will make a colorful room decoration as well, when no longer needed to hang clothes. — Brenda

DEAR HELOISE:

After experimenting for some time, I've finally found a solution for cleaning stainless steel thermos bottles, though it should work on other types of vacuum bottles as well.

I put two tablespoons of a product made especially to clean coffee pots in the thermos and pour boiling water in the bottle. Let the solution remain for one-half hour or so (in the sink), then rinse thoroughly.

The vacuum bottle came out terrific, with no odor and no stains. — Roberta Rinck

DEAR HELOISE:

As the mother of a recent bride I have a success story to share with all brides-to-be.

To decorate the newlyweds' car, I bought white and yellow nylon net, a yard of each and made the usual pom-pons.

Then I measured the car and bought four-inch wide white ribbon, stapling the pompons to the ribbon, alternating colors, and taped it to the oar.

As it sprinkled rain just as the happy couple drove away on their honeymoon, we were glad we hadn't used the usual facial tissue "flowers."

Not only did the net stay perky, but my daughter saved the pompons and started out her married life wih a good supply of kitchen aids. — Barbara Wagoner

VARIED COOKING TIME

Cooking time varies with the intensity of heat produced. This means a roast cooked on an outdoor rotisserie may require a longer time to cook on a breezy day than on a sultry day.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I was shocked to see two government science researchers come out with a statement that a person could consume a pack a day of the "new low tar" cigarettes without apparent risk. This certainly refutes the Surgeon General's report of several years ago which made it mandatory for cigarette companies to put a warning on each pack saying, "Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined that Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health."

My husband, who has emphysema and heart trouble, was told by his doctor not to smoke. He quit four years ago but since this new report he has started again.

What IS the truth, anyway? — Mad As The Dickens

Dear Dickens: I am not an authority on the subject so my word doesn't mean anything. I do have access to the latest, however, and this is what the experts say:

Dr. Julius Richmond, the nation's top health officer, stated: "While some cigarettes are less hazardous than others, there is no data anywhere in the large body of scientific evidence on the dangers of smoking that holds out any hope that there is a 'safe' cigarette."

Dr. Robert I. Levy of the Heart, Lung and Blood Institute said, "Unfortunately people who have stopped smoking may start again with a false sense of security because of this recent report."

Conclusion: The tobacco lobby is rich and powerful. It is not about to let its clients go down the drain without a fight. The truth is — the only safe cigarette is one that is unlit.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a kind and thoughtful man, but I live in fear that one of these days he will kill me and the children — or some innocent person. No — he's not mentally ill. He wouldn't think of owning a weapon, but he'll do it with his car.

When he gets behind the wheel he becomes a different person — aggressive, impatient and unbelievably vulgar. If another driver fails to give him the right-of-way, he "gets even" by speeding, passing him at all cost, using profane language, leaning on the horn and behaving like a spoiled child. I know many accidents have occurred because of just this kind of anger. It's a miracle my husband hasn't been involved in a serious wreck.

This is more than a safety problem, it's a marital problem. My husband's driving has been the cause of dozens of arguments an,' ruined many an evening. May I hear from you? I need your help. — Unstrung Wife

Dear Wife: You aren't alone. If all the wives who had this problem were lined up, they'd reach from the emergency ward of Cedars of Lebanon in Los Angeles to the Manhattan Morgue.

Half of my readers are men. To you I say, if you see yourself in my column today, cool it, before you become a murderer or a suicide — or both.

How to — and how much? Find out with Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠95 ♡KQJ10763 ◇852 ♣6
Partner opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you respond?

A.—The choice is between a response of three hearts and four hearts. We recommend the more aggressive action for two reasons: (1) Partner will be reluctant to move over three hearts if he is short in your suit for fear of two trump losers when, in fact, your suit is capable of playing for one loser opposite a void! (2) You have length in partner's suit, which increases the trick-taking potential of your hand. With a different distribution or concentration of high cards we would be content with three hearts.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK83 ♡954 ◇K6 ♣QJ104
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner's jump is forcing, so we must bid, but we do not relish our rebid. Three no trump might be our only makable game. However, we cannot bid it because we do not have a heart stopper. The only solution is a waiting bid of three diamonds. Even though partner might think our hand is unbalanced, that seems to be the lesser of evils because it doesn't bypass our probable game.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠5 ♡A1072 ◇83 ♣K109843
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
3 ♠	4 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—If partner feels he is strong enough to force you to select a contract at the five-level, you surely have enough strength to contract for a small slam. We would make the straightforward response of six clubs. If partner passes, fine. Should he correct to six diamonds, we would recorrect to six hearts. (On this sequence partner would be marked with a heart-diamond two-suiter.)

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ1052 ♡AK ◇A83 ♣A103
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Although North's bid is preemptive, it is difficult to imagine him making that bid without the ace of spades, a minor suit card and a singleton. That should give you reasonable play for slam, so we would take a shot at six spades.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K7 ♡AJ872 ◇KQ83 ♣95
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	4 ♠

What action do you take?

A.—Double. You have a minimum hand with nearly a quarter of your values in the opponents' suit. Since you are likely to incur a minus score in five hearts, you must warn partner not to bid again. If you pass at this point, which is forcing, partner will place you with little or nothing in spades, and is likely to make the wrong decision.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A95 ♡AK843 ◇KQ ♣874
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—The purpose of your two-spade bid was to prepare for a slam try if North jumped to game over two spades. Even though North has not shown much more than a minimum, the fact that you have so many controls could mean that slam depends on no more than your partner's club holding. You can highlight this by bidding five diamonds, even though this entails a slight risk in that partner, too, could have three losing clubs.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK6 ♡AK1072 ◇92 ♣875
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 NT	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—There are only two reasons why North would refuse to play three no trump—either his hand is too weak and distributional to play in no trump, or he is interested in slam. In either case, it would be wrong to rebid your hearts or repeat your no trump bid (which would be natural, not Blackwood). The correct action is a cue-bid of four spades, telling partner you have a good hand and allowing him to make the final decision.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ73 ♡AJ1082 ◇6 ♣KQ6
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ◇	Dble.	1 ♠
Dble.	Pass	Pass	2 ◇
Pass	3 ◇	?

A.—It looks as though West was taking advantage of the vulnerability to throw a monkey wrench into the auction. Partner has shown good spades by making a penalty double of one spade, and you have much more than you might have had for a takeout double. Bid three spades.

Have you been running into double trouble? Let Charles Goren help you find your way through the maze of Doubles for penalties and for takeout. For a copy of his Doubles booklet, send $1.70 to "Goren Doubles," P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J., 07648. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.

Report Reveals Junk Foods Alter U.S. Diet Pattern

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Did you eat your fill of red succulent watermelon this summer? Probably not. Americans are eating less of this fruit today.

Why? One reason may be because that increasingly popular ice cream and soda pop are taking up more room in our 3-pint stomachs.

The alterations in American eating habits are far greater than one might suspect. "The Changing American Diet," a recent 80-page report by the Center for Science in the Public Interest in Washington D.C., compares eating patterns of 1910 and 1976.

The report, based on figures compiled by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, was written by Letitia Brewster and Michael Jacobson.

According to the report, our passion for junk foods has changed our food patterns. Traditional home cooking is becoming less and less popular.

We shy away from many foods we used to eat because they are said to be bad for the heart. For example, the average American now eats two or three eggs a week, compared to at least two eggs a day years ago. And heavy cream is no longer a household staple; many of us buy only skim or non-fat milk.

Fear of putting on weight has limited our consumption of some foods, such as potatoes, breads and rolls. On the other hand, purchases of pizzas and pasta continue to rise.

While we use less butter, coffee and wheat flour, we consume more chicken, fresh and frozen fish and canned tuna. "Beef consumption keeps going up and up," Jacobson adds.

The modern American consumes nearly the same number of calories — about 3,400 a day — as his or her counterpart of 1910. "But since we get less exercise, our weight has increased substantially during the last 15 years," Jacobson notes.

The booklet points out some interesting inconsistencies. Though we eat three times more fresh carrots and corn than people did in 1910, we prefer our vegetables either frozen or canned.

A postscript on "The Changing American Diet": Not only is watermelon being snubbed, but the consumption of apples has decreased remarkably.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I wish you would discuss peptic ulcers. My husband has one in the stomach and his doctor, much to our surprise, told him that diet is not all that important. He just gave him a few things to avoid. Other than that he can eat about what he wants. I always thought the opposite. Has thinking changed? What about emotional stress? Isn't this to be avoided? How common is peptic ulcer? — Mrs. P.R.

Thinking about control of peptic ulcer has changed considerably in recent years. Formerly, the ulcer patient lived in a world of stringent dietary no-no's. Today, he can eat about what he wishes, with some exceptions.

Because stomach juices (acid) play such a prominent role in ulcer formation, treatment today is directed at reducing the production of those acids. There seems little real value to the so-called bland diet in doing this. How one eats seems of more importance that what one eats. Food acts as a protection agains the acids. (The ulcer patient can tell you that symptoms are worse on an empty stomach.) Thus, one goal of treatment is to continue to keep food in the stomach with frequent smaller feedings — three meals to which are added mid-morning, mid-afternoon and evening snack meals.

If any food bothers him, he should avoid it, but definite no-no's remain. Alcohol is out because it promotes production of the juices mentioned. Skim milk is preferred over heavy fat milk. In fact, fats in excess are avoided no matter what the source. For the same reason, coffee and tea should be avoided. Peptic ulcer occurs in about 20 of every 1,000 adults. The role of stress seems verified. For example, the incidence of peptic ulcers increased sharply among European populations during the two world wars.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our daughter is 13 months old. Her doctor insists we immediately get rid of her bottle and pacifiers. She hasn't had a bottle now in four days and is not very receptive to the cup. She will not sleep without the pacifier. Her doctor says the rubber nipple and pacifier pick up too much bacteria. Doesn't she get bacteria anyhow just crawling around the house? Also, how can I make sure she is getting enough liquid? She eats well otherwise. — Mrs. J.B.

Since she is eating well, I wouldn't worry about the bottle. She'll get used to the cup or glass in short order. You can make sure she's getting adequate liquids by offering juices, water or milk from time to time during the day. If she is thirsty, she will drink. She gets some liquid in her solid foods. As to the pacifier, I wouldn't worry too much about the germs, and it is true that the floors of homes have more than ample supply of germs of all types for her to run into crawling around. Most youngsters need some security at bedtime, so instead of the pacifier you might try a teddy bear or other companion.

It's all up to you, of course, but I see nothing to be gained by going counter to his suggestions.

• • •

A new vaccine has been developed that provides 90 percent protection against 14 of the most serious varieties of pneumococci germs. The 14, according to the developers, are responsible for about 80 percent of all cases of pneumococcal pneumonia. There are 83 types in all. But the vaccine does not protect against the more common virus pneumonia organisms.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain about amenorrhea and galactorrhea. I am 28 and have had both for two years. I stopped taking the birth control pills two years ago. According to my physician I do not have any hormonal or nerve disorders — S.J.G.

Two years is a long time to have these symptoms, especially the amenorrhea. If X-rays to determine the status of your pituitary gland have not been done they should be. Note: amenorrhea is absence of menstruation, galactorrhea an excessive flow of milk. These symptoms can occur with a pituitary growth or when the gland is producing too much prolactin, which stimulates milk flow (lactation). Whether this is related to the Pill is unclear. They may persist in some women following pregnancy.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any vitamin or mineral that can be taken to make my breasts grow? — E.F.W.

No.

• • •

What are ulcers? How can you help yourself get rid of ulcers and stay rid of them? Read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers." For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is excellent for gaining the goodwill and active assistance from those in high places and who can help you build a more secure future in your line of endeavor.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Do those things that will help improve your image with the public in general. Avoid the social in the evening and study.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Find new interests through which you can increase happiness. Try to make your home life more ideal than in the past.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Follow your intuition during the daylight hours since it's more accurate at this time. Use extreme care in motion.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend a special meeting today that can bring you more success. Be careful of an opponent who is working against you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Schedule the work ahead of you early in the day and then you can perform with greater efficiency. Improve your appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make early arrangements for the amusements you want to enjoy later in the day. Study a talent you have before putting it to use.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Begin the week properly by making those who dwell with you happier in some way. Take steps to gain the backing of higher-ups.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Come to a better understanding with associates. Strive for increased happiness with family members.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can easily improve your monetary affairs at this time. Your hunches are good now and should be followed for best results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan time to improve your appearance and then follow personal aims with confidence. Sidestep a foe who is jealous of you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more practical in planning the future and you can advance faster. Talk over joint projects with higher-ups and get fine results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Look to an older friend for the support you need for something that is important to you. Strive for increased happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will have much ability in getting ahead in the business world since higher-ups will take an interest in your gifted progeny. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life. One here who will do well in sports.

Waitress Disturbs Prime Minister

DARWIN, Australia (AP) — A waitress at a government banquet reached over Prime Minister Macolm Fraser's shoulder and ate a slice of tomato from his plate, then threw wine in the face of an official when she was asked to leave.

Security police dragged the young woman from the room. They said she was "stoned" during the incident and was not charged with a crime.

Officials said the waitress was hired shortly before the Thursday evening banquet through a government employment office. The party marked the opening of the legislative assembly of Australia's Northern Territories.

Income Tax Cut Decision Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will decide this week how big a reduction in income taxes it wants to vote this year for individuals and businesses.

Lawmakers will require another month to work out details of the tax reduction. But budget-writers will try to decide Monday or Tuesday whether the tax cut should be held to the $16.3 billion favored by the House, the $19.4 billion recomended by the Senate, or somewhere in between.

House leaders generally favor the lower figure for fear that a tax cut that is too large would worsen inflation. But there is strong sentiment in the Senate for a bigger tax reduction in an effort to keep the economy growing.

Meanwhile, the Senate begins its long-awaited debate Monday on a compromise natural gas bill that has been 16 months in preparation. The bill, a part of Carter's energy plan, would end federal price controls over newly discovered natural gas by 1985 and gradually raise the price of other gas.

An estimated 30 senators say they are undecided on the measure, which is under attack from consumer groups as too costly and from producers as resulting in too much government regulation.

What could be the critical vote on the compromise is likely Wednesday or Thursday. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, will attempt to have the bill sent back to the conference committee which wrote it. That probably would kill the bill for the year.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd conceded Sunday that supporters of the bill do not yet have the votes needed to save it, but repeated his assertion that he is "increasingly optimistic that the votes will be there when the roll is called."

He made the comments on the ABC interview program "Issues and Answers."

A House vote is likely Monday on Carter's proposal to streamline the civil service system, which already has passed the Senate. Later in the week, House members will decide whether to trim the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, the main federal job-creation program.

The House assassinations committee will hear a report Monday on acoustics tests carried out recently in Dallas in an effort to determine how many shots were fired when President John F. Kennedy was killed.

The Warren Commission said it is most likely that three shots were fired. Some persons who suspect a conspiracy in the assassination claim four shots were fired.

The committee also will focus on the life of Lee Harvey Oswald, who the Warren Commission said acted alone in killing Kennedy.

Congress is required by law to complete action this week on a federal budget for the new fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1. There are several minor differences between the spending and taxing figures agreed to by the Senate and House, but little of major importance, other than the size of the tax cut, for conferees to work out.

After the budget is agreed to, it will limit federal spending and tax cuts during the following 12 months.

The Senate voted to limit spending to $489.5 billion and anticipates revenues of $447.2 billion. The House settled on $489.8 billion as a spending limit and forecast tax collections of $450 billion.

The final compromise will result in a deficit about $20 billion lower than was forecast when President Carter sent his budget to Congress last January. Most of the trimming represents a reduction in the tax cut favored by Carter and the inability of some federal agencies to spend money as fast as was anticipated.

Indian Flood Death Toll Over 1,000

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's official death toll from monsoon-season floods is 1,023 and the havoc, hunger and misery is spreading along the rain-bloated Yamuna and Ganges rivers.

Figures on the number of flood-related deaths since the monsoon rains began in late June were given by Irrigation Secretary C.C. Patel. Unofficial estimates are much higher.

Patel told reporters an estimated 34.5 million persons — one Indian in 18 — have been displaced or otherwise affected by floods. He said damage to crops, structures and public utilities is estimated at $111.6 million.

The Yamuna and Ganges slowly receded from the flooded cities of Delhi, Mathura, Agra, Allahabad and Benares in northern India. But hundreds of thousands remained in refugee camps or searched for missing relatives.

Flood alerts were sounded at Yamuna River cities below Agra, 180 miles southeast of New Delhi, and at Ghazipur, Patna and Malda on the lower Ganges.

Army units were rushed to northeast India's Malda District, near the Bangladesh border 180 miles north of Calcutta, where the situation was described as grave.

Large areas of Agra, site of the Taj Mahal, and Benares and Mathura, two of the seven sacred cities of the Hindu religion, remained under water.

The 300-year-old Taj Mahal was closed to tourists Friday night when the Yamuna covered the roads to Agra but the structure was not flooded.

Many Hindu temples were flooded in the Mathura area 125 miles south of New Delhi and thousands of pilgrims were reported trapped in hostels by water entering the lower stories.

The Khrishna Janma Bhoomi temple complex at Mathura, said to be the birthplace of Lord Krishna of the Hindu deity, was spared.

Bob Hope Honors Hotel Picket Line

CHICAGO (AP) — When Bob Hope honored a picket line set up by striking maintenance workers at a Chicago hotel this weekend, it may have been a first for the comedian, according to a long-time associate.

Hope's conductor, Geoffrey Clarkson, said Hope refused to cross a picket line Friday night at the Mariott Hotel where he was scheduled to appear at a black-tie fundraiser for the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse.

When Hope arrived at the hotel and saw pickets, he returned to his own hotel and taped a monologue that was presented at the dinner, Clarkson said.

Survey Shows Citizens Favor U.S.-China Ties

By LOUIS HARRIS

By a wide 74-17 percent, a majority of Americans would favor friendlier relations between the United States and the People's Republic of China.

Specifically, a 66-25 percent majority supports full diplomatic recognition of China by this country. And a substantial 62-30 percent majority favors increasing trade in non-strategic goods between the two countries.

These results would appear to fit well into the new initiative by the Carter administration to establish closer ties with Peking. However, in-depth polling in this recent Harris-ABC News Survey of 1,500 adults nationwide turned up a number of areas of public opinion that could give the Carter administration real problems in playing their so-called "China card":

— By 71-20 percent, a majority opposes the notion that "the United States work together with Communist China as a force against Russia." The idea of the United States playing a balance of power role with the two leading communist powers in the world is viewed as a high risk course which could lead to involvements that the American people are not now prepared to make.

— A lopsided majority of 81-11 percent is opposed to "the sale of U.S. electronic military defense systems" to China, an idea reportedly under discussion with the Peking government. For several years now, Americans have been steadfastly opposed to this country engaging in any shipments of military equipment to communist countries. The People's Republic of China is no exception to that rule today.

— The issue of U.S. relations with Taiwan, the home of the Chinese Nationalist government, is one that stands between this country and mainland China. By 66-19 percent, a majority of Americans is against our withdrawal of recognition of the government of Taiwan, and by 64-19 percent, an almost identical majority wants the United States to maintain its current defensive alliance with the Nationalist government there.

It is unlikely that Communist China will agree to full normalization of relations with this country unless we are willing somehow to forego our recognition of the Nationalist regime. Yet public opinion indicates that Americans are not ready for that step.

Thus, overall, the Carter administration would appear to be courting some real trouble if the "China card" is played to the hilt. Most Americans want closer friendship with China. But they are also well aware that Peking is a communist superpower, and they think it is very risky for this country to join with China in working against the Soviet Union.

Dealing with American public opinion on the question of China policy appears to be every bit as treacherous for the Carter administration as are the negotiations with the regimes in Peking and Taiwan themselves.

Doctors Prove You Can Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieve Pain And Itch Too.
Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.
When inflammation and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.
Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or stinging, smarting astringents of any kind.
You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H®. Preparation H also lubricates to protect the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H. In ointment and suppository form. Tribe Angered By Salmon Fishing Ban

KLAMATH, Calif. (AP) — The Yurok Indians of the rugged northwest corner of California are locked in a dispute with the federal government over a two-week-old ban on salmon fishing they say is insensitive to their economic and spiritual needs.

"There's a lot you guys have got to learn," Walt Lara, a tribal leader, told Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus at a tense meeting last week.

At the meeting, Indians battling for the right to fish on the scenic Klamath River repeatedly told Andrus that the ban threatened their survival. They also contended that the area is sacred ground and that they attach spiritual significance to fishing.

"It's the concept of religious freedom you're interfering with," Robley Schwenk, another Yurok, shouted at Andrus. "President Carter talks about human rights. What about our human rights?"

At one point during a salmon lunch, an Indian thrusting his finger into Andrus' chest was restrained. A woman yelled: "It's got to be settled now. We're tired."

Since imposition of the ban two weeks ago, several Indians have been arrested, including six who allegedly attacked federal agents with boat oars. Others have been cited for violating the ban.

The proscription was imposed after biologists noted an alarming drop in the number of salmon swimming up the Klamath River to spawn. The drop is attributed, among other things, to heavy fishing on the river and logging operations in the lush, nearby forests.

Under terms of the ban, commercial and sport fishing is prohibited, though Indians are allowed to fish on a subsistence basis five nights a week.

Andrus, who flew Thursday to this timber-rich coastal area just south of the California-Oregon state line, staunchly defended the ban and said he wouldn't lift it until biologists determined that at least 115,000 salmon had safely made the upstream trek this summer. He said only 55,000 salmon had made the run, compared with a normal run of about 200,000.

The Indians demanded that Andrus impose a moratorium on commercial fishing permits up to 200 miles from the river's mouth, order a halt to logging and the use of herbicides in the Klamath watershed, and grant the Indians unfettered fishing rights and allow them to make and enforce their own rules.

Andrus conceded that fishing on the reservation should be controlled by Indians, but said they first must agree on a common governing body.

At that point, the issue takes on another dimension because of a 100-year rivalry between the Yurok and Hoopa tribes, which were united into one reservation — the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation — by a 1974 U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

The Yuroks, who tend to congregate along the Klamath, lack organization and a formal tribal council. The more rigidly governed Hoopas, who are concentrated in an area at the fork of the Klamath and Trinity rivers, have been reluctant to share the resources of the entire reservation with the Yuroks.

Litigation over sharing resources has been in the courts for nearly 20 years.

Andrus told the Indians they first must agree on a means of identifying a true Yurok. Because of intermarriage, blood lines are clouded and some Yuroks have blond hair and blue eyes.

"Help us resolve the Indian nation," Andrus said, "so we can get out of your hair and the regulatory role that we're thrust into."

Rodeo, Art Highlight Boys Ranch Fundraiser

POST (Special) — Ken Curtis, the Festus of "Gunsmoke" fame, and the Texas Playboys will be added attractions when 32 top Western artists and 36 champion ropers get together at the annual OS Ranch Steer Roping and Art Exhibit.

The two-day event, which runs from Sept. 30 through Oct. 1 at the OS Ranch 13 miles southeast of Post, benefits the West Texas Boys Ranch.

Jackpot team roping, a cutting horse contest, an invitational calf roping, special match roping and open barrel racing will lead up to the main event of steer roping.

A Saturday night dance and Sunday morning brush arbor service are regular events along with an Old-Timers Breakfast and barbecue.

Curtis, arena director for this year's action, will be the special guest for the Friday night preview peek in the OS Ranch house of the latest work of some of the nation's outstanding artists.

The Texas Playboys will be adding the legendary sounds of Bob Wills during the Sunday barbecue.

Thousands of art and roping fans take the OS trail each year to see the arena events and add the best in Western art to their collections.

Hundreds of art collectors will donate $20 this yea to preview the art show and rub elbows with many of the artists at a barbecue.

Tickets to the regular events will be a $5 donation to the Boys Ranch to cover the day's events and $2.50 for the barbecue. A percentage of art sales and proceeds from the sovenir catalog sales also will benefit the Boys Ranch.

Terrorists' Return To Germany Feared

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Three women on the list of West Germany's most wanted terrorists may have slipped back into the country to plot new activities, police said Sunday.

Cruising police vans blared appeals to the public for help in the search and loudspeakers on streetcars startled passengers with tape-recorded descriptons of the suspects.

The women were named as Adelheid Schulz, 23, Silke Maier-Witt, 28, and Angelika Speitel, 26.

On a tip from a diner in a Chinese restaurant four days ago, Duesseldorf police surprised and gunned down 28-year-old Willy Peter Stoll. He and the three women were being sought for the 1977 murders of Federal Chief Prosecutor Siegfried Buback, banker Juergen Ponto and kidnapped industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer.

Duesseldor police also found a vacant apartment that they said had been used by members of the Red Army Faction, which emerged from the Baader-Meinhof anarchist gang.

Police said they found a stockpile of arms, 9mm submachine-gun ammunition, 7.62-caliber bullets, shotgun ammunition, disguises, blood plasma and other medical supplies in the apartment.

Federal Criminal Office president Horst Herold, who coordinates West Germany's anti-terrorist effort, told the weekly newsmagazine Der Spiegel that the apartment probably served as a logistics and planning center.

He said clues in the apartment indicated the former occupants were able to count on 30 to 40 sympathizers, some of whom may prove to be a new generation of anarchist recruits.

Until recently, German authorities thought most of the Red Army Faction leaders had fled Germany to avoid the intense search that followed the 1977 killings.

Nine major suspects captured earlier this year were seized abroad — four in Yugoslavia and one in France last May and another four in Bulgaria in June.

Authorities have set up a computerized information system that feeds 1,300 points — police stations, airports, border points and other public offices — with data on terrorist suspects. The system helps authorities check identity papers and other information at a moment's notice.

But embarrassed police acknowledged last month that Stoll, Schulz and another suspect, 26-year-old Christian Klar, were photographed by police when they said they were a television crew filming a prison in southern Germany and they were not detected.

'Sex Permit' Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — A man walked into the Yonkers Police Department looking for a permit to patronize the world's oldest profession, but he didn't get very far.

Sgt. Nick Bianco, head of the police sex crimes unit, said a 30-year-old single man approached about a month ago with a request for a "sex permit."

"I ride to work and I see the prostitutes along Larkin Plaza and it's very difficult for me to refrain," the man told Bianco. The man said he had "a stronger than normal sex drive — and my doctor told me the best thing for my mental and physical health is to seek out prostitutes."

TV Newsman Says Taboos Fall Fast

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — As a veteran of 30 years in the news business, CBS newsman Douglas Edwards says he has seen "taboos fall by the wayside, with little or no regret.

Even so, network broadcast news is better than when he went on the air in 1948, Edwards said, although network television has its "dark side."

As an example of fallen taboos, Edwards told a meeting of New England Radio and Television News Directors Association that when he started in network radio news in 1942, rapes were not carried in newscasts.

Edwards said "the dark side of this exciting business" is that television must accept some responsibility for declining literacy among American children.

Television's pluses are its role in entertaining and informing the elderly and handicapped and its success in bringing politics to the people, said Edwards, who also believes television "contributes to the longevity of the elderly."

Women Competing For 'Adelita' Title

Carrying on the tradition of the women who fought for Mexican Independence, six young Lubbock women will compete at 8 p.m. Thursday for the title of "Adelita."

Dressed in the traditional costumes of revolutionary women, the contestants will compete at Aztlan Park. The selection of the "Adelita" will be one of the first activities planned to celebrate "El diez y seis de Septiembre" — Mexican Independence Day.

The legend of the Adelita tells the story of a beautiful young woman, probably around 16 years old, who fought for her people's rights during the war for independence. She is a symbol of all the women who fought in the war.

The winner will be selected by six judges on the basis of talent and costume. The winner will replace last year's Adelita, Nelda Flores, and preside over 11 different fiesta activities.

Adelita candidates are Armandina Barrera, 19, of 2414 Fifth St., who is sponsored by the Raza Unida party, and Juana Montalvo, 18, of 2211 20th St., who is sponsored by the Bidal Aguero Campaign Committee.

Rita Ortega, 20, of 3310 Emory St., is sponsored by Montelongo's Restaurant, and Josie Ponce, 17, of 3322 Jarvis St., is sponsored by Ladies LULAC Council 281.

Elizabeth Mary Vasquez, 18, of 1923 E. Brown St., is sponsored by Ramon Castro Motors and Amelia Soto, 18, of 2106 38th St., is sponsored by All-American Real Estate.

LONG MOUSTACHE

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Bozo Korica, a farmer in the village of Mogoric in western Yugoslavia, wears a moustache that is more than 27.5 inches long, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported Sunday. The report said elderly men in the region are the more respected and dignified the longer their moustache. Korica wears his over the ears, with ends tied together at the back of his neck, the report added.

HEARTLINE: Quite a few years ago I applied for and received a Social Security number. I got a number for a savings account I had. I never worked under Social Security because I was always a housewife. Now that my husband has retired I am drawing Social Security benefits.

I just turned 65 and became eligible for Medicare. When my Medicare card came it had my name and my husband's Social Security number. Why is this? Don't you think that this should have my Social Security number on it? — P.L.

No, your Medicare card should not have your Social Security number on it. It should have your husband's number on it. The number on your Medicare card (your husband's number plus the letter B) is to be used only for your Medicare claims. This is done because you are eligible for Social Security benefits and Medicare due to your husband's work record. This is only your Medicare claim number.

The Social Security number you were originally issued should be used for any purposes of identification. Use the other number (your husband's number plus the letter B) when you are talking to the Social Security people about your benefit or you are making a Medicare claim.

Heartline has developed a simplified easy to understand book on the whole Medicare program. To order: send $1.75 to Heartline's Guide to Medicare, in care of the above address. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: I am 64 years old. I draw my Social Security benefits and my company's private pension. I also have to take two different types of medication daily. I am seeking information about how the body reacts to mixing different foods and drugs. I am concerned that medications I take should not be combined with some of the things I eat and drink. Do you have any information on this or know where I can get it? — E.J.

A recent pamphlet published by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) states that dairy products interfere with the body's ability to absorb the antibiotic tetracycline and may counteract the effects of the drug. The report further says that soda pop and fruit juice produce excess acidity in the stomach and cause some drugs to dissolve too quickly for the desired effect.

Alcohol doesn't mix well with antibiotics, tranquilizers, antidiabetic drugs and high blood pressure drugs because the combination causes drowsiness. Inhibitors, often prescribed for depression or high blood pressure, combined with cheese and yogurt sometimes force the blood pressure to dangerous levels.

These and other warnings are included in the FDA pamphlet Food and Drug Interactions. For a free copy, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 698F, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

HEARTLINE: I know that a person can retire under Social Security at a reduced benefit. Can you explain to me how the reduction is figured? — Y.B.

The reduction for drawing your Social Security benefits early is five-ninths of 1 percent per month for each month prior to your 65th birthday that you draw a Social Security retirement check. When figuring your reduction on your birthdays, at age 62, your reduction would be 20 percent of your age 65 benefit. At age 63, your reduction would be 13.3 percent and at age 64, your reduction would be 6.6 percent.

If you start drawing your benefits early at a reduced rate, you will continue to receive this reduction as long as you draw Social Security. Your benefits will not be increased to 100 percent at age 65.

Texas Cities Expanding By Annexation

AUSTIN (AP) — Annexation — not Sunbelt migration — has been the most important factor in sustaining the population growth of Texas cities during the past 20 years, two researchers said Saturday.

In an article for the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research, Alfred Watkins and Arnold Fleischmann said:

"Were it not for annexation, the state's metropolitan areas would resemble those of the industrial northeast, where urban areas are often characterized as doughnuts: an empty center — composed of a central city with a shrinking population, eroding tax base, rising social problems, and a declining industrial base — surrounded by surburban areas containing an ever-increasing share of the metropolitan area's population, jobs, and wealth."

Philadelphia, for example, last expanded in 1854; New York last altered its border in 1898; and New Orleans has been unable to spread beyond its 1874 boundary.

Since 1935, the authors said, almost all Central Texas cities have expanded their land areas from 400 to 1,000 percent.

They have been able to do this, they said, because of a 1912 state constitutional amendment that allows home rule cities to annex according to their charters.

"Since the 1930s," the authors noted, "most (Texas) cities simply have relied on the passage of ordinances to acquire adjacent territories, often without the consent of the residents living in the areas being annexed."

The pace of annexation in 1950-59 was "frenetic," the authors said, but declined "dramatically" in 1960-69. They said data covering 1970-75 indicates the "1970s could become one of the most active decades of urban" expansion in Texas history.

"Almost all of the available evidence indicates that the migration flows into the metropolitan areas of the state are continuing at a healthy pace," the authors said.

Three factors, however, could cause Texas cities to stop annexing, they said.

— The 1975 federal Voting Rights Act, which requires federal clearance of boundary changes that might dilute the voting strength of minorities.

— Growing conflict over the high cost of providing services to new areas.

— Opposition to taxes, as illustrated by the passage of Proposition 13 in California.

"Several obstacles to continued annexation are rapidly emerging in Texas," the authors concluded, "and, should they succeed in blocking or even slowing the pace of territorial expansion, problems similar to those of the northeastern cities may soon emerge in Texas.

Abilene 8.3 and 74.9; Amarillo 16.9 and 70.7; Austin 20.4 and 101; Beaumont 10.1 and 71.6; Port Arthur 8.5 and 49; Brownsville 5.7 and 24.3; Harlingen 1.9 and 22.9; San Benito 1.9 and 7.8; Corpus Christi 5.2 and 175.7; Dallas 40.9 and 309.3; El Paso 13.5 and 161.1; Fort Worth 46.4 and 230.1; Galveston 7.8 and 21; Houston 71.8 and 489.2; Laredo 14.3 and 20.6; Lubbock 6.2 and 83.8; San Angelo 6.5 and 37.2; San Antonio 35.7 and 263.5; Sherman 5.1 and 21.5; Denison 3.5 and 15.5; Texarkana 3.1 and 19.8; Tyler 9 and 30.7; Waco 12.5 and 71.8; and Wichita Falls 10.7 and 76.4.

The following comparisons of land areas are for cities from 1940 to 1975 because 1935 figures were not reported:

Orange 2 and 16.8; Bryan 5.4 and 18.4; Texas City 2.9 and 67.1; McAllen 2 and 19.2; Edinburg 2.5 and 7.3; Midland 4 and 33.8; and Odessa 2.1 and 24.8.

In addition, College Station grew from 6.5 square miles in 1950 to 20.5 square miles in 1975, and Pharr grew from one square mile in 1950 to 6.4 square miles in 1975.

STEEL COMPANY PAYS

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bethlehem Steel Corp. has agreed to pay a $27,200 fine as part of a settlement resulting from a fatal accident at the company's Sparrows Point plant in June. Under an agreement with state officials, the company has also decided to drop an appeal of 34 serious safety violations cited by the Maryland Occupational Safety and Health unit. In addition, the steel company announced plans to install cages with a safety switch over wire drawing machines by March 1979, a move expected to cost the company more than $100,000.

Tech Fashion Program Set For Thursday

Fashion, food and fun will entertain the public Thursday at 6:30 p.m., in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center with spotlights on Texas Tech University women.

Texas Tech's Department of Clothing and Textiles will front-stage students as models in a fashion show highlighting the third annual meeting of the Food and Fiber National Institute of Achievement.

Round roast and smoked turkey will be served with the trimmings at the "Taste of Texas" buffet, catered by the Texas Agriculture Products Marketing Division of the Texas Department of Agriculture. The dinner begins at 6:30 p.m.

Beginning at 8 p.m., original creations by Christian Dior, Chanel, Bill Blass and many other top designers' will be shown. A special showing of gowns worn by Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford and other movie stars will be followed by "The Fashionable Ladies of Texas," honoring donors of the collection.

The garments are part of a $4 million designer original collection, "The 20th Century in Fashions," from the Texas Center for Fashion Studies-Dallas Museum of Fashion at North Texas State University.

Betty Marzan, curator of the Center-Museum, will serve as commentator. Dwight Byrd of the Dallas Apparel Mart will choreograph the program.

John W. Arnn, executive director of the Food and Fiber Institute, said the institute's goal for the fashion show and buffet is to "communicate to the general public the impacts of changes in food and fiber production and processing technology."

Seminars and exhibits of the institute's meeting will be at the Civic Center. Individual contributors to the fields of food and fiber will be recognized.

Marilu Grace, instructor in the Department of Clothing and Textiles, sponsors the Fashion Board who chose the models.

Tickets for the buffet and fashion show are $5. Those interested in the style show only may purchase a $2 ticket. Tickets may be obtained from Food and Fiber Institute, Box 10436, Lubbock, 79408, and at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, Hemphill-Wells, Sears and Furr's Family Center.

Few Cards Around For New Holiday

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — If you had trouble finding a greeting card for Grandparents Day on Sunday, there was a good reason. The first new holiday in more than 50 years caught most of the greeting card industry unprepared.

Hallmark Cards Inc. was the only major greeting card manufacturer ready for the new holiday, and it offered only a fraction of the number of designs it has for Mother's Day and Father's Day.

"They just jumped the gun on us," a spokesman at American Greetings said of Hallmark. He said, however, that if the holiday is continued American will have plenty to offer next year.

Your Personal Biorhythms

by Bernard Gittelson

	P	E	I
STEP 1. YEAR OF BIRTH
STEP 2. A-B MONTH OF BIRTH
STEP 3. DAY OF BIRTH
TOTALS

BIORHYTHMS FOR SEP. 11, 1978

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 6, 18, 29, 41-52, 64, 75 ..... Relieves off
Highs: 1-5, 19-28, 42-51, 65-74 ..... Good endurance today
Lows: 7-17, 30-40, 53-63 ..... Your resistance is down

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 2, 15, 28, 44, 58, 72 ..... Feelings unstable
Highs: 1, 17-29, 45-57, 73-85 ..... Can't be dismayed
Lows: 3-15, 31-43, 59-71 ..... Easily discouraged

INTELLECTUAL
Criticals: 13, 30, 46, 63, 79 ..... Easy to be stupid
Highs: 1-12, 31-45, 64-78 ..... Good day to study
Lows: 14-29, 47-62, 80-95 ..... Poor comprehension

Robert Redford's permanent numbers are 26, 35, 62

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

9	A6	10	22	A2	23	12	A26	7	1	A16	20	24	A11	4	13	A7	17	3

Step 2 — Month of birth. Find the corresponding numbers for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

	Jan.			Feb.			March			April			May			June			July			Aug.			Sept.			Oct.			Nov.			Dec.
	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I).

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings.

Rape Report, Robbery Keep City Police Busy

The reported rape of an 18-year-old city waitress, and the armed robbery of a local convenience store topped the weekend's criminal activity.

The young woman told police that she had been walking near the 200 block of Cherry Street Saturday night when two men confronted her and forced her into their car.

She reported that one of the subjects pulled a knife on her and told her, "I'll cut you up," if she didn't go with them.

The woman related that the duo drove north on the Amarillo Highway to a dirt road where both men took off her clothes and raped her.

After the incident, the woman said she was dropped off at a dirt road around 1528 E. Broadway. The victim described the two suspects as Mexican-American, 18 to 25 years old and of medium build.

The 7-11 convenience store at 27th Street and Ave. Q was the object of the city's latest armed robbery.

Sales clerk William Bell told officers that about 3:05 a.m. Sunday four young men approached the store, three of them entering the establishment while the other man stood outside. Bell, who was standing near the cash register, said the three men walked toward him and that one of them asked him for a pack of cigarettes.

The sales clerk bent down to get the cigarettes. As he got up, however, he reported that one of the men pointed a pistol at him and demanded all the money in the register.

Bell told officers he removed the money and gave it to the men in a paper sack. The robbers told the sales clerk to go to an employees' room before they made their escape with an undetermined amount of money.

Bell described the men as Mexican-American, 17-20 years old, about 5-feet 9-inches to 6-feet tall and of medium build. He said the men, who all had shoulder-length black hair, were wearing blue jeans, blue jean jackets (with the sleeves cut out) and no shoes. One of the men had a three-inch scar on his left cheek, Bell told officers.

In other criminal activity, a laundry at 121 North University Ave. was the site of a Saturday night strongarm robbery.

Attendant J.P. Hammons told police that about 9:20 p.m. Saturday two men entered the business and asked him where the restroom was.

Hammons reported that the men went to the restroom, came out, grabbed him and dragged him back to the restroom.

While in the restroom, the men demanded Hammons' cash. He gave them his billfold which contained $150. The attendant told police that the men took his cash, threw his wallet to the floor and told him to stay in the restroom until they made their getaway.

The suspects were described as Mexican-American, about 26-35 years old, tall, muscular with black hair.

Jesse Dawkins told police that he had met a woman at a local nightclub and had gone to her home. Dawkins reported that two men began beating and kicking the front door, entered the house and began hitting him.

Burglars and mischief makers also were making their presence known throughout the weekend.

Kenneth S. Smith of 3009 Bates reported the theft of more than $1,000 worth of household goods. Thieves made off with a 10" color TV, a microwave oven and a stereo from Smith's home sometime late Saturday or early Sunday.

Dewitt C. Simons Jr. returned to his 4931 17th Place residence Saturday afternoon only to find burglars had taken a portable black-and-white television set, a gold watch, cash and numerous valuable coins.

Albert Chavez of Jayton told police that someone had taken $670 in tires and wheels from his car, which was parked at a grocery store at 1701 Parkway Drive. The theft occurred sometime between 4:25 p.m. and 4:45 p.m. Saturday.

James A. Copeland of Anton told police that someone had removed the guns and CB radio from his pickup, which was parked at the west side of the theater. He estimated the loss at $600.

Rodney Dale Ray, who had his car parked on the east side of the theater, lost his tapes, tape player and CB radio to the thieves. The items were valued at $500.

And some residents in the 3600, 4000 and 4200 blocks of 40th Street got more than their share of criminal mischief.

Bob Harris of 4202 40th St., Niki Cumbie of 4008 40th St. and Ken Easley of 3612 40th St. reported Sunday that someone had thrown a brick through the rear windows of their automobiles.

Combined damage to the vehicles was estimated at $750.

Crawford Sentence May Thaw Frosty U.S.-Soviet Relations

MOSCOW (AP) — It has been a long, cold summer for Americans in Moscow, but they are hoping for a thaw now that the trial of American businessman Francis J. Crawford is over.

U.S.-Soviet relations plunged this summer to their lowest point in the decade-old era of detente, but with the release of the International Harvester salesman on a suspended sentence last week, one of the last major sore points between the nations appeared to be smoothed over.

As the trial ended, U.S. arms negotiator Paul C. Warnke met with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in a new effort to seek a new arms limitation pact, and Western diplomats were talking about a possible Brezhnev-Carter summit meeting if the talks are successful.

There is a feeling here that the leniency for Crawford, who was convicted of currency violations but allowed to leave the country, is the first act in a scenario already worked out between the Kremlin and the White House.

According to one theory, the way is now cleared for an exchange of two Soviet employees of the United Nations accused of espionage in the United States for Russians the Americans would like to see free.

These could include Jewish activist Anatoly Shcharansky, whose conviction and 13-year sentence on spy charges July 14 still could imperil Senate ratification of a new arms pact.

There also is Anatoly Filatov, sentenced to die for spying, apparently for the United States.

American-Soviet relations took a beating in the three months between Crawford's arrest in June and his trial last week, but on most fronts, things are looking up. For example:

—A crackdown on dissidents was brought to a climax with a series of trials that drew loud protests from the West. But the major trials are now over and the outcry has died down.

—Two American reporters were found by a court to have slandered Soviet television for stories they wrote about a dissident trial. But a judge dropped his demand for a retraction, and settled for fines.

—An American diplomat was shoved by Soviet guards as he entered the U.S. Embassy and other Americans were barred from entering in separate incidents, apparently as harassment.

—On the evening of Crawford's arrest, the government newspaper Izvestia published an attack on alleged U.S. spying in the Soviet Union and threatened future revelations. There was detailed reporting of the Filatov trial, but no repetitions of Izvestia's accusations.

—The Soviet press constantly accused the United States of returning to the Cold War, of playing dirty politics in its friendly overtures to China, and of hungering for military control of the Middle East. It is too early to attribute any new policies to the Soviet press, but the Tass news agency reported optimistic remarks by President Leonid I. Brezhnev Saturday during a Kremlin chat with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

The Soviet actions appeared in part at least to be reactions to the arrests of the two Soviet U.N. employees and U.S. reports of Russian spying on the American Embassy in Moscow.

The Soviet Union obviously is concerned about China, which has opened a diplomatic offensive including overtures to Eastern Europe and Washington.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.

Mark 15:41-47; 16:1-11, The Living Bible

41 They and many other Galilean women who were His followers had ministered to Him when He was up in Galilee, and had come with Him to Jerusalem.

42,43 This all happened the day before the Sabbath. Late that afternoon Joseph from Arimathea, an honored member of the Jewish Supreme Court (who personally was eagerly expecting the arrival of God's Kingdom), gathered his courage and went to Pilate and asked for Jesus' body.

44 Pilate couldn't believe that Jesus was already dead so he called for the Roman officer in charge and asked him.

45 The officer confirmed the fact, and Pilate told Joseph he could have the body.

46 Joseph bought a long sheet of linen cloth and, taking Jesus' body down from the cross, wound it in the cloth and laid it in a rock-hewn tomb, and rolled a stone in front of the entrance.

47 (Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joses were watching as Jesus was laid away.)

CHAPTER 16

1,2 The next evening when the Sabbath ended, Mary Magdalene and Salome and Mary the mother of James went out and purchased embalming spices. Early the following morning, just at sunrise, they carried them out to the tomb.

3 On the way they were discussing how they could ever roll aside the huge stone from the entrance.

4 But when they arrived they looked up and saw that the stone—a very heavy one—was already moved away and the entrance was open!

5 So they entered the tomb—and there on the right sat a young man clothed in white. The women were startled,

6 But the angel said, "Don't be so surprised. Aren't you looking for Jesus, the Nazarene who was crucified? He isn't here! He has come back to life! Look, that's where His body was lying.

7 Now go and give this message to His disciples including Peter: 'Jesus is going ahead of you to Galilee. You will see Him there, just as He told you before He died!'"

8 The women fled from the tomb, trembling and bewildered, too frightened to talk.

9,11 It was early on Sunday morning when Jesus came back to life, and the first person who saw Him was Mary Magdalene—the woman from whom He had cast out seven demons.

10,11 She found the disciples wet-eyed with grief and exclaimed that she had seen Jesus, and He was alive! But they didn't believe her!

Syrians Bombard Beirut Christians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian gunners rained more than 2,000 rockets on Christian neighborhoods in Beirut overnight, killing three persons and blasting gaping holes in 300 apartments, Christian militia sources said Sunday.

Sixty persons were wounded as rockets and tank fire set 22 buildings ablaze, the sources said.

The Christians' Voice of Lebanon radio said Syrian gunners opened fire again Sunday afternoon, using heavy artillery and rocket-propelled grenades in an hour-long barrage that damaged scores of apartment houses.

"Local residents scrambled anew for shelter in basements, to avoid this indiscriminate shelling," the radio said.

It also broadcast "an urgent appeal" for blood donors at a number of hospitals in east Beirut, saying, "Every drop of blood you donate can save the life of an injured citizen."

Syrian snipers fired throughout the day at key intersections in Christian areas, impeding civilian traffic, the radio said.

Rightist Christian leaders claimed the Syrian offensive was an attempt to sabotage the Mideast peace talks at Camp David. Syria has declared its opposition to the U.S.-sponsored meeting of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Premier Menachem Begin.

The Syrians have not said what prompted the latest fighting.

"There is no justification for this escalation of hostilities by the Syrians," former President Camille Chamoun said in a statement broadcast by Voice of Lebanon radio. "The Syrians are trying to undermine the Camp David summit."

Phalangist Party leader Pierre Gemayel, who commands the strongest Christian militia band in Lebanon, urged the Camp David conferees to take up the Lebanese crisis as part of any Middle East settlement.

Sunday was the fourth day of the latest round of fighting between Christian militiamen and the Syrian forces, who form the bulk of a 30,000-man Arab League peacekeeping army.

The Syrians came to Lebanon at the request of the Christian-dominated government nearly two years ago to quell the 1975-76 civil war between the rightists and an alliance of leftist Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas.

The Christians are protesting Syria's continued presence in Lebanon and its efforts to disarm the militias. The Syrians are chafing over the Christians' cooperation with Israel in southern Lebanon. Israeli forces, aided by the Christians, began a 90-day occupation of a large section of the south on March 15 to ward off Palestinian raids into Israel.

GOP Leaders Seek Party Unity For Fall

DALLAS (AP) — John Butler Jr. of Houston said he made his point, even though he was soundly trounced Saturday by Ray Barnhart of Pasadena in their battle for the chairmanship of the Republican Party of Texas.

Butler entered the battle fairly late and stumped for party unity through neutrality, an indirect slap at Ronald Reagan, whom Barnhart favors for president.

Texans John Connally and George Bush could figure in presidential politics, at least as far as their home state goes.

"I don't care who wins Republican presidential primaries because I know they'll be conservative," Butler said after his defeat.

Barnhart, winner by a 1,023 to 600 vote over Butler, also preached unity. "The question was unity, and we've got it," Barnhart said. "The proof of the pudding will be in November when we elect a whole bunch of folks."

Closely tied to their fight was a resolution that Butler withdrew in committee after his defeat. That resolution sought to ensure that the state chairman remain neutral in all contested primaries.

While the chairmanship and neutrality issue was at issue, party members were unanimous in their determination to hold a presidential primary, adopting a party rule establishing such a primary in November despite an expected legal challenge from Democrats. The Democratic Party does not favor a presidential primary.

The complicated rule provides for a majority-winning candidate within a congressional district to be given all three of that district's delegates. A plurality winner would gain two delegates, with the next-highest vote getter getting one, unless the second-place finisher received less than 20 percent of the vote. In that event, the top vote getter would get all three delegates.

Barnhart carried Dorothy Doehne of San Antonio to victory in the race for vice chairman as she beat Butler backer Amelie Cobb of Beaumont.

The convention lasted well past its scheduled adjournment time, with a few sparks flying through a sparsely-populated Dallas Convention Center late in the evening.

An anti-abortion platform plank won eventual approval. It calls for opposition to use of tax money for abortions, except for rape, incest or when the life of the mother is endangered.

Campaigning and speechmaking took up the convention's morning session, kicked off by gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements, who openly invited dissatisfied Democrats into the GOP fold.

"Watch your convention next weekend," Clements said for the benefit of Democrats. "If you don't like the turn your party takes, come help me in this campaign."

Clements also took a shot in the Sunbelt vs. Frostbelt fight:

He said the state needs a "tough as nails governor who will not stand for Northeastern plundering of our energy assets when the inevitable energy emergency hits."

Carter Affirms Support Of Troubled Shah

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Carter lent his personal support Sunday to the Shah of Iran while also calling for more "political liberalization" in the troubled country.

A carefully worded statement was issued by the White House press office as the president resumed his Mideast summit conferences by holding a meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Carter, in telephoning the shah, reaffirmed the U.S. commitment to the embattled monarch, according to the statement.

At the same time, the president backed reform in Iran by expressing "the hope that the movement toward political liberalization would continue," it said.

Anti-shah demonstrators turned up at the press center in Thurmont, Md., some six miles from Camp David, on Saturday calling for an end to this support.

In Iran, a wave of violent anti-government protests has claimed more than 1,000 lives this year. The latest outbreak has caused the shah to postpone visits to Romania and East Germany.

In the telephone call, the White House statement said, "The president reaffirmed the close and friendly relationship between Iran and the United States and the importance of Iran's continued alliance with the West."

Carter also "expressed his deep regret over the loss of life and his hope that the violence would soon be ended."

Iran has strong ties with Egypt and has backed President Anwar Sadat's call for Israeli withdrawal from territories captured from the Arabs in the 1967 war.

World Opinion On Summit Pessimistic

By The Associated Press

SYRIAN President Hafez Assad predicted in an interview published in West Germany Sunday that the U.S.-Egyptian-Israeli peace summit at Camp David will fail.

Even if Egypt's President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin reach a peace accord with President Carter's help, it would not last long because "the Arabs cannot accept territorial compromises," Assad said.

"How would Sadat justify dividing Sinai with Israel and presenting it as a compromise? And compromises are the best that Sadat could achieve in America," Assad told the West Germany weekly news magazine Der Spiegel in an interview in Damascus.

In Moscow, the official Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda said the United States is not trying to find peace at Camp David but is involved for its own purposes.

"There are plans for U.S. presence in the Middle East for ensuring U.S. oil interests and creating guarantees for U.S. monopolies in the region," Pravda said.

Israel refused comment on progress at the Camp David after Sunday's Cabinet meeting at which ministers were to hear the first official reports from the talks.

At the Vatican, Pope John Paul I told a crowd of 80,000 Sunday that he is praying for success of the talks and said he was impressed that the three leaders had expressed their hopes peace in public prayer.

From the window of his apartment overlooking St. Peter's Square, he said all men want peace, "especially the poor because they suffer the most as a result of troubles and wars."

Anti-Shah Deputies Stalk Out Of Session

A-J News Services

TEHRAN, Iran — Opposition deputies protesting the killing of anti-government demonstrators by troops during a clash in Tehran walked out of the Iranian Parliament Sunday shouting anti-government slogans.

Moshen Pezeshkpour, leader of the opposition Pan-Iranist Party, and three colleagues left when the newly appointed prime minister, Jaafar Sharif-Emani, attempted to present his new program. The opposition deputies claimed Sharif-Emani's new government is "illegal" because it imposed martial law without sufficient grounds to do so.

At least four independent deputies in the 268-member Parliament supported the walkout. Ahmed Bani-Ahmed, an independent, said he is observing a hunger strike until the new prime minister resigns.

Troops patrolled the capital Sunday, where relative calm prevailed, but in the holy city of Qom, troops opened fire on anti-Shah demonstrators.

Radio Iran said Sunday troops opened fire on protesters defying a martial law ban on public demonstration in Qom, killing at least one person. The report said the troops fired point-blank into the crowd after demonstrators became violent. No other details were given.

Tehran was reported quiet after two days of demonsrations since the imposition of martial law Friday. Soliders in battle gear patrolled the streets.

The military governor of Tehran said military courts are being set up and persons convicted of acts against Iran's constitutional monarchy will be executed. He did not define those acts.

The government also imposed censorship on all news agency photographs transmitted out of the country.

An estimated 1,100 persons have been killed in anti-government protests so far this year, including at least 86 who died when troops fired on rioting demonstrators in Tehran Friday.

The opposition to the shah, who has absolute power in this Moslem country, is led by traditional Moslems who reject his liberalization program which includes granting of rights to women and land reform that transfers lands formerly owned by the clergy to rural residents. Also opposing the shah are leftists and an underground group the government calls Islamic Marxists.

Sharif-Emani, a devout Moslem, was appointed Aug. 27 to appease church leaders. He legalized participation of political parties in the government, closed gambling houses and shuffled his Cabinet, but the protests of the shah's rule continued.

Highlights of his program, as presented to Parliament, include exemption of agricultural products from all taxes, pay raises for all civil servants and tax breaks for those at the bottom of the pay scale, governmental noninterference in the judiciary, investigation of the source of wealth of rich government employees and universal suffrage elections. Currently, members of the outlawed Communist Party cannot vote.

Civilians Not Immune From Nicaraguan War and early Sunday. Other reports said more than a dozen police stations were attacked and the guerrillas captured several but withdrew after setting them afire.

The attackers were masked and used automatic weapons and pistols, the guard said, "assassinating innocent persons and causing many injuries, among them women and children."

These reports were received from various provincial cities:

—Leon. Sources said five persons were killed in the city of more than 70,000 persons 60 miles northwest of Managua and guerrillas beseiged the local outpost of the national guard. A Red Cross volunteer said "a large quantity of homes and business establishments were set on fire."

A national guard statement said troops had "dislodged subversive elements" in Leon and captured "sites occupied by snipers."

—Masaya. Red Cross officials said guerrillas set fire to the main courthouse in Masaya, about 18 miles southeast of Managua, and at least four persons were killed and 20 wounded there. Nicaraguan Red Cross President Ismael Reyes termed the situation in Masaya "critical." One unofficial report said hundreds of refugees holding white flags were trying to flee the city.

—Esteli. A local newspaper reporter, Bernardino Rodriguez, said by telephone from Esteli, 90 miles north of Managua, that "this city is in a state of insurgency" and guerrillas were asking residents to join in the fight. He said 150 guerrillas seized the local national guard headquarters and other strategic locations in the city.

Rodriguez reported three known deaths and at least seven persons wounded and said "doctors have issued a call to anyone with a knowledge of medicine to come and cooperate because they think they cannot handle all the wounded arriving at the hospital."

In San Jose, Costa Rica, a government official said Nicaragua had closed its southern border with Costa Rica and was turning back travelers seeking to enter Nicaragua. Nicaragua has accused Costa Rica before of serving as a refuge for Sandinista guerrillas.

The violence and a nationwide general strike are aimed at pressuring Somoza, whose family has ruled this Central American nation since the 1930s, to resign.

The current outbreak was triggered Aug. 22 when Sandinista guerrillas took over the National Palace in a raid that left eight persons killed and captured some 1,500 hostages. They demanded and got a $500,000 ransom and safe passage to Panama for themselves and 59 political prisoners. A general strike called by opposition leaders began Aug. 25.

In Caracas, Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez said his government had accepted a request from Costa Rica to put off efforts to convene a meeting of Latin American foreign ministers to give Costa Rica a chance to mediate the dispute.

Venezuela suggested last week convening a meeting of Latin Amrican foreign ministers to discuss solving the Nicaraguan crisis "through pacific means."

The front-line states spearhead the black African effort to end white minority rule in southern Africa.

Smith reiterated the transition government will continue and will attend new talks with guerrilla leaders if they are not aimed merely at engineering a handover to the Patriotic Front. "At present we are not satisfied on this score, with some justification," said Smith.

Smith criticized the United States and Britain for cold-shouldering the transition administration and continuing to enforce international trade embargoes. "They must now admit they are guilty of a grotesque misjudgment of the Rhodesian case, and have the courage to make a change of direction."

Suspected Mystery Disease Spiraling

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent publicity about an outbreak of Legionnaires disease here has resulted in 97 suspected cases of the disease, health officials said Sunday.

Officials have confirmed six cases of the disease, two of which have died. One person suspected, but not confirmed, to have the disease also died.

Dr. Paul Caswell, deputy director of operations for the Legionnaires Disease Task Force here, said the rise in suspected cases — the figure went up by 25 on Sunday — was "a result of the publicity given in recent days" about the outbreak.

The actual and suspected disease victims are among the 75,000 employees in the garment district, an area in the shadow of the Empire State Building.

Postal Mediators Hold Sunday Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal union leaders met Sunday with a special federal mediator and a representative of the Postal Service in what was described as an informal session.

John Rogers, spokesman for the federal mediation service, said special mediator James J. Healy would meet with the three union chiefs again late Monday morning at the mediation service headquarters in Washington.

The Sunday session, Rogers said, lasted about 2½ hours. He described it as informal, without the usual staffs and attorneys present.

"They discussed some possibilities," Rogers said, "... an opportunity to get together on what they could and could not do." He did not elaborate.

San Antonio Pair Charged In Deaths

BISHOP, Texas (AP) — Two San Antonio brothers have been charged with the shooting deaths Saturday of three Kingsville men in a Bishop tavern.

Three counts of murder were filed against Juan Villanueva, 32, and Tomas Villanueva, 28, and they were placed in the Nueces County Jail at Corpus Christi under $25,000 bond for each count.

The victims were identified as Lucio Cortez III, 24; his brother, Mario Cortez, 17; and their cousin, Adan Cortez, 20, all of Kingsville.

Teachers Still Striking Across United States

In New Orleans, school officials and the union representing 5,300 teachers resumed negotiations Sunday in an effort to end a strike that began Aug. 30 and has affected 91,000 pupils. A union official said discussions on Saturday proved more productive than he expected but added that the "talks could still break off."

Cleveland's 100,000 students were awaiting word on whether they should try again today to start the fall term. The semester was to resume Friday, but with 10,000 teachers and other employees on strike, most principals did not try to open their schools.

The strike began Thursday and will extend at least until Tuesday, when a judge will accept written arguments from the school board on its request for a back-to-work order.

In Dayton, Ohio, a judge was expected to wait at least until today to act on the Board of Education's request to order the city's 2,200 teachers back to work.

In Chicago, 1,450 teachers in nine city colleges remained on strike. The key issue in the strike, which began Aug. 18 and affects 112,000 students, is the number of hours teachers work.

Some 250,000 students prepared to return to classes today in Philadelphia, the nation's fourth largest city, where a five-day strike by 13,000 teachers ended last week.

Classes also were scheduled to resume Monday for the 7,200 pupils in Collinsville, Ill., in the wake of a tentative contract agreement reached Saturday between the school board and the Collinsville Education Association, which has been on strike since Aug. 27. Teachers ratified the pact on Sunday.

Foothills Fires Erupt At Denver

DENVER (AP) — A fast-spreading forest fire raged out of control Sunday through more than 1,000-acres of crackling dry timber and brush in the foothills and canyons southwest of Denver.

Authorities ordered residents to evacuate some of the expensive homes that dot the steep ridges. At one point, flames were within a half of a mile of the $55 million world headquarters complex of the Johns-Manville Corp.

On the exclusive Ken-Caryl West Ranch development, flames were reported within 50 yards of homes ranging in value from $185,000 to $400,000, said Charlie Wilson, director of marketing.

Two firefighters suffered minor injuries, and the cause of the blaze was not immeidately known.

Two helicopters made repeated sweeps over the rolling hills, dumping 250-gallon buckets of water on flames as 250 firefighters from 10 departments and the State Forest Service fought the blaze using hand tools, bulldozers and backfires.

Gusty winds blew the flames up the canyons, covering hundreds of yards in minutes. One fire crew lost nearly 200 yards of hose when the fire surrounded them, forcing them to run for safety.

Plane Explosion Probed

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Air Force officials began Sunday the tedious process of trying to determine what caused a C-130 Air Force cargo plane from Little Rock Air Force Base to crash into a hillside in central Arkansas Friday night.

The bodies of the eight crewmen aboard were recovered late Saturday from the rocky, wooded area of Faulkner County where the plane apparently exploded.

Three of the victims were students, stationed at other bases, who had come to the Arkansas base for training.

They were identified by Air Force officials Sunday as 2nd Lt. Mark Shadbegian, 23, of Springfield, Mass.; Capt. Ronald Fagan of Annandale, Va.; and Capt. Lanny Ewert, 27, of Pemberton, Minn. Fagan's age was not available.

The other victims were identifed Saturday night as Capt. Edwin Hayashi, 29, of Aiea, Hawaii, commander of the aircraft; Capt. Dennis Fabor, 31, of Fort Worth; Capt. Thomas Smith, 29, of Fort Worth, instructor-navigator; Staff Sgt. Randall Vogel, 28, of Red Banks, N.J., flight engineer; and Staff Sgt. William Ramsey, 27, of Cincinnati, a load master.

Air Force officials said it might be months before the investigation into the cause of the crash was concluded.

It was the sixth fatal crash of a C-130 from the Little Rock base since the cargo planes were first brought there in 1970.

Ten persons were killed in 1971 in the worst of the C-130 crashes. Prior to Friday, the most recent crash occurred last April when three crew members were killed and three others injured when a C-130 from Little Rock crashed in a training exercise in California. The cause of that crash is still under investigation.

The transport planes were sent to the base shortly after the base was transferred to the Tactical Air Command with a primary mission of training.

Before April 1970 it was under the Strategic Air Command.

Little Rock, with 90 C-130s, is the largest tactical airlift wing and the only training base for C-130s in the world. It averages 40 missions a day, including training missions.

Record Altitude Try Fails

RIDGECREST, Calif. (UPI) — A rupture in a hot air balloon plummeted two daredevil airmen down to earth from 30,000 feet, foiling their attempt to set high altitude records for a balloon and hang glider.

The two landed almost unscratched in a restricted area of the China Lake Naval Air Station Saturday.

Frenchman Stephane Dunoyer de Segonzac, the hang glider pilot, landed on the Naval Ordinance Test Center air strip. Because it is restricted military territory, Dunoyer was held for questioning until government authorities realized why he had landed there.

Balloonist Gary Cervany of Glendale, Calif., rode his ruptured balloon down at 1,200 feet a minute, calmly protecting $5,000 worth of camera equipment as he prepared for the rough landing 10 miles east of Ridgecrest.

The two men were attempting to break the world record for a high altitude hang glider flight of 31,600 feet set two years ago by Bob McCaffery of Sylmar, Calif. Their goal was 40,000 feet.

Until sealed barographs aboard both crafts are examined next week, it will not be known how close they came.

The ascent almost aborted 200 feet over California City Airport, 50 miles south of Ridgecrest, when another balloonist collided with Dunoyer as he hung suspended under the experimental 160,000-cubic foot balloon.

Somehow the other balloon, whose pilot was not identified, did not rupture and Dunoyer was not harmed. After that, the ascent was almost routine and the two men reached 30,000 feet in about half an hour. Suddenly, however, Cervany felt his gondola shake and looked up to see a 20-foot rip in one of the seams in the canopy.

He said he tore off his oxygen mask and yelled to Dunoyer, who did not hear him, that he was going to drop the hang glider pilot.

Meanwhile, Dunoyer said he sensed something was wrong when his altimeter showed that he was not climbing any more and he prepared to be dropped by moving forward on the parakite.

He dropped 2,000 feet, he said, estimating his speed at more than 100 m.p.h., before he could bring the kite under control.

He looked for an airfield so that one of the chase planes involved in the record attempt could recover him quickly, Dunoyer said, but he picked the highly restricted China Lake naval base.

Gas Bill Passage Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., predicted on Sunday that the natural gas deregulation compromise would be passed narrowly in the Senate, mainly because something has to be done, and its opponents offer no alternative.

The compromise would effect gradual deregulation, with controls on new-found natural gas lifted entirely by 1985. Some liberals want complete regulation and some conservatives back deregulation.

Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, said he did not think Congress could afford to "look bad" by adjourning with the compromise defeated and no alternative in its place.

Jack Warner, Last Movie Mogul, Dies At 86

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack L. Warner, one of the four legendary Warner brothers who pioneered the era of talking motion pictures and produced such movie classics as "The Jazz Singer" and "Casablanca," is dead at age 86.

The last of the movie moguls who ruled Hollywood during its golden years, Warner died Saturday of an inflammation of the heart at Cedars-Sinai Hospital. He had been hospitalized since Aug. 13.

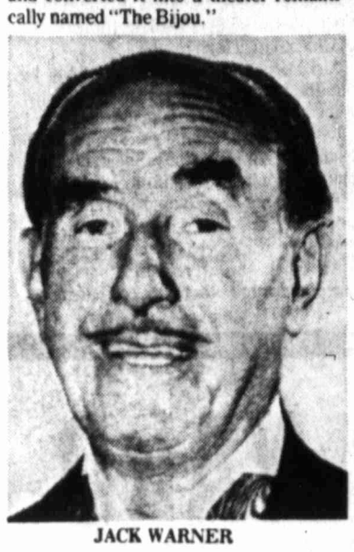
Warner, a dapper man with a pencil-thin moustache and a flamboyant style, sandwiched tennis games and high-stakes casino gambling between such deals as buying the film rights to "My Fair Lady" for $5.5 million and signing an unknown Errol Flynn for $150 a week.

He was known as a man of few mistakes, although he did pass up a chance to produce "Gone With the Wind."

It was perhaps typical of his wry sense of humor that he began his 1964 autobiography with details of his erroneously reported demise in a 1958 car crash on the French Riviera. He took great pleasure in noting that a sandwich, a mountain and a street were named after him.

Jack Leonard Warner was born Aug. 2, 1892, in London, Ontario, Canada, one of 12 children of Ben Warner.

Stirred by the 1903 release of "The Great Train Robbery," Warner and three of his older brothers, Harry, Sam and Albert, all of whom Jack outlived, formed Warner Bros. that year. They scraped together $1,000, including $150 from a horse Jack pawned, bought a projector, rented a vacant store in New Castle, Pa., and converted it into a theater romantically named "The Bijou."



JACK WARNER

Since the 99 chairs were borrowed from an undertaker, customers had to stand whenever there was a funeral.

The brothers soon branched into motion picture production, moving first to St. Louis and then to California. Their first effort in 1917, "My Four Years in Germany," was a critical success that grossed nearly $2 million and established them as major producers.

Jack, even then known for his dashing ways and sharp dress, was named head of production at age 22 and began making the nearly 5,000 pictures which won him acclaim as a cool-headed showman of remarkable taste and set him up as a rival to such studio bosses as Louis B. Mayer, Jesse Lasky, Harry Cohn and Adolph Zukor.

In 1927, Warner Bros. produced the first talking film, "The Jazz Singer" with Al Jolson, which Jack Warner in later years said gave him the most satisfaction of any film produced under his half-century command of the studio.

The brothers' corporation was reported to be worth $16 million in 1928 and $230 million two years later. The studio grew to the biggest in town, with actors from John Barrymore to Rin Tin Tin under contract.

Warner Bros.' corporate descendant, Warner Communications Inc., reported revenues of over $1 billion last year from its movies, records, books, television shows and other enterprises.

"No lecherous boss was he!" actress Betty Davis once wrote of Warner. "His sins lay elsewhere. He was the father. The power. The glory. And he was in business to make money..."

Three of Warner's productions, "The Life of Emile Zola," 1937; "Casablanca," 1943; and "My Fair Lady," 1964, won Oscars as best pictures of the year. Warner won the coveted Irving Thalberg Award in 1958 for his service to the industry.

In 1956 the Warners sold control of Warner Bros. for a reported $19 million. Jack Warner stayed on as production boss until he sold his interest in the studio in 1966 for a reported $32 million, but remained a participant until 1969, when at age 77 he struck out as an independent producer.

He never became reconciled to the faceless, corporate-board Hollywood of the 1960s and 1970s, however, and put out few films. One of them, "1776," was a birthday gift to America completed several years before the bicentennial.

He is survived by his wife, Ann, a daughter, Barbara Howard, and a son, Jack. The funeral will be private.

Business & Industrial Review

Beck's Warp 'n Weave Unveils New Class Schedule, Products

Beck's Warp 'n Weave, at 3021 34th St. in Lubbock, not only has a tremendous selection of yarns and supplies for fiber arts, but it has an instruction schedule "second to none."

In fact, it is said to be the only complete spinning and weaving shop in a vast region bounded by Austin, Denver, Albuquerque and the Dallas-Ft. Worth area.

Owned and operated by Tom and Nancy Beck, the shop has a most appreciated selection including great yarns not found elsewhere (most in wools and wool blends), but immediate concern probably is the fall class schedule where an invitation to a fall of fun is extended to both beginners and advanced students.

Classes start the week of Sept. 18, and early inquiry is advised, as pre-registration is necessary.

Classes Outlined

Classes include Harness Loom, Beginning Frame Loom, Advanced Frame Loom, Tatting, Advanced Tatting, Basketry — Coiled and Natural, Cardweaving, Navajo Weaving and Rigid Heddle.

Tom Beck will instruct in the Multi-Harness Loom, with instruction including dressing (warping) the loom, plain or tabby weave, various twill weaves, lace weaves, tapestry, double weave and one pattern weave per student.

Modest Cost

(As example of the cost and duration of classes, this one involves 15 hours of instruction at $36; loom rental of $10 per month; and supplies of $15 to $30. Time schedules for this and other instruction are available upon inquiry, with both day and evening classes offered. Limited number of students of necessity are accepted in each class.)

Qualified Instructors

Beginning Frame Loom is under instruction of Nancy Beck who is most adept in the field. Instruction includes weaving a sampler, and thus learning warping, tapestry, knotting, piles, laces and other basic techniques.

Beginning Frame Loom instruction also will be given by Lynn Haney, well-known art instructor at Atkins Junior High School. Lynn has been recognized in national publications and is a most valuable member of the Warp 'n Weave instructor staff. This particular class will involve methods of warping, simple design, variety of weaves, inclusion of beads, feathers, found objects, slides and demonstrations. Lynn also will instruct in advanced frame loom.

Rigid Heddle Loom will be instructed by Tom Beck, with individual instruction given upon request, with arrangements possible on individual basis.

Cardweaving will be under direction of Virginia Riggs, and includes warping, weaving and drafting of patterns.

Coiled Basketry classes are directed by Lynn Haney, with attention to techniques using a jute, fiber rush or rope core wrapped and stitched with yarn.

Natural and Yarn Basketry is under instruction of Nancy Beck, with study of natural and manmade fibers including cane, reed, pine needles, raffia, fiber rush, yarn, seagrass, etc., and actual construction of basketry.

Tatting, by Betty Bradford, is offered on both beginning and advanced levels, with the numerous stitches utilized and with the advanced unit expanding basic techniques into making medallions, crosses, etc., using different threads.

Navajo weaving, by Tom Beck, will include building, setting up and warping a Navajo style loom, starting the basic rug and one or two simple designs and stitches.

What an opportunity for fun and achievement is made available through this comprehensive class presentation!

The Becks continually are studying and seeking ways to better serve in the Lubbock shop. They recently attended "Convergence '78" in Ft. Collins, Colo., the bi-annual conference of the Handweavers Guild of America, and attended up to five sessions daily there in broadening their knowledge and in making personal contact with suppliers to better serve their Lubbock area customers.

Nancy also has studied basketry under Papago and Apache weavers.

Preferred Supplies

Among these supplies are the "Incredible" rope machines for sale, and it is pointed out that many yarn belts seen in boutiques are made from the yarns carried at Warp 'n Weave, a most, most unusual but appreciated kind of store.

Fullest Customer Assistance Among Hughes Services, HUCO Assurances

For full janitorial services with "plus-benefits that we like to prove", the name to know in Lubbock, Amarillo and throughout the South Plains and Panhandle is Hughes Services, Inc., 101 Sherman Ave. in Lubbock!

(And for purchase of professional maintenance supplies, at the same Lubbock location, there is HUCO Products Co., taking pride in stocking the very best in equipment and related needs.)

Hughes and HUCO each "go the extra mile" in assisting the customer, helping in maximum benefits from both the services and equipment selection and use.

Customers have long profited from the learning and experience, plus capacity for service, of the Hughes and HUCO personnel. Offices are maintained in both Lubbock and Amarillo, and counties throughout the area are well served by Hughes (with current accounts noted in Levelland, Slaton, Hereford, Canyon, Plainview and other area points.)

"Are you included?"

Hughes Services has a record of customer assistance . . . such as supervision to assure the right procedures and results for each account.

"If your building has a problem in janitorial servicing, there is no charge from Hughes for an in-depth survey and recommendations."

And if a housewife has a problem on floor care within the home, we are glad at Hughes and HUCO to tell what use and how it should be used.

All this is made possible by "the right products, the devotion to service, and the training that is a continuous procedure for all staffmembers."

Demonstrations, films, on-job training — all are part of the Hughes and HUCO concept of fullest service, and in keeping with a record of foresight and achievement that might be dated from establishment of Hughes Service back in 1954 and the addition of HUCO Products in 1970, with numerous additions to products and services marking the intervening and ensuing years.

"We believe a professional wants strictly professional merchandise; hence any product we sell is used in our own professional maintenance business; we have tested it before recommending and selling it, for sure."

Specifics Cited

Briefly, eight prime reasons are itemized here to be considered in knowing the Hughes firm better:

(1) Hughes services banks, school office buildings, manufacturing plants, churches, public utilities and more.

(2) As the oldest janitorial service company in Lubbock, Hughes has been in business since 1954 — 24 years of service.

(3) Free estimates at no obligation are gladly given.

(4) A maintenance program "for you" can be professionally and correctly planned by the qualified staff.

(5) References are gladly furnished.

(6) Hughes Services, Inc., is insured and bonded.

(7) Employees are thoroughly trained by demonstration, training films and regular rigid inspection.

(8) And not the least of the considerations is equipment: Hughes has the best equipment and cleaning supplies to be found.

LARRY GOLDSTON, TRADE EXCHANGE PRESIDENT

West Texas Trade Exchange Cites Barter Program Benefit

"Kings do it; countries do it; huge conglomerates do it! And now with the widespread use of the computer, according to Larry Goldston, president of the West Texas Trade Exchange, small business can participate in the newest trend in business purchasing: bartering."

For insight into the multiple advantages of the bartering practice, one can read in the September issue of Texas Business, with a comprehensive report explaining how hundreds of Texas businessmen are buying goods and services without paying cash . . . through organized bartering.

Even better understanding of the program . . . and how it can work for you . . . is available at the West Texas Trade Exchange, a member of the International Trade Exchange, located at 7212 Joliet St. Suite 3-B (just off South Loop 289 and Indiana Avenue) phone 793-0731, Lubbock.

Growth — With a Reason

The local West Texas Trade Exchange has been under ownership of Goldston since May 1, and the membership growth has been tremendous . . . exceeding 100 at this time! In fact, there already is a waiting list in some professional and business categories, as only one member in each category is accepted.

(Not only are businesses members, but recent publicity pointed out how an area college was utilizing the Exchange's services.)

Program Explained

Membership in the West Texas Trade Exchange is open to qualified businesses that have goods or services to offer.

Briefly, exchange members' trade goods and services with each other. The club takes a small percentage for the bookkeeping. For example, suppose a business needs printing, advertising or remodeling. By taking in the members business in trade dollars, the small business person can use them to pay for the printer, the advertising, or the contractor. In turn, these other businesses spend their accumulated trade dollars for their business needs.

This revolving system of TD and debits has several key features. For one, cash outlay is reduced, freeing it for other uses. Let's say, a business spends $500 a year on printing. By purchasing the printing from another exchange member with the TD, the proprietor is only out his wholesale cost of doing business, say 50 per cent or $250. He has obtained the $500 worth of printing for $250; the other $250 is like cash in his pocket, since he has paid for it with his wholesale costs of merchandise or service and not hard currency. Naturally, when an exchange member comes to him, the full retail price is charged — in the TDs. Whether it's an accountant, dry cleaner, or florist, the same principle of trading each one's essentially wholesale costs at retail prices holds true. Indeed, members in some exchanges have been known to sign up long standing business associates so they can continue to do business — this time on a trade basis rather than cash.

Another significant element of an exchange system is that it steers new customers in the door — customers that would not normally come in. Since the other members have to spend their TDs, it makes sense for them to use the professional and business services listed in the exchanges' directory. In addition, there's the ripple effect. Satisfied customers will recommend more customers, this time cash paying ones. Therefore, if an exchange is able to refer more business, increased profitability occurs with no increase of overhead.

Who Can Benefit?

What types of businesses and professions are involved? Besides the standard categories of office supplies, data processing and answering services, exchanges deal in real estate, restaurant supplies, accounting and growing plants — almost every conceivable thing available. One exchange boasts of a local college that needed some remodeling done. They offered 10 scholarships in exchange for the contractor's work. The college got 10 new students and some newly refurbished offices and classrooms — all on barter.

There are even some sister exchanges that have their Chamber of Commerce and Better Business Bureau on the exchange. They take TD for membership and in turn use it for office supplies, gasoline and routine expenses. It also helps build membership among smaller business that would not normally join those organizations.

"We've all heard rumors of possible recession. In bartering, it can help curb that scare because it really doesn't make any difference what happens to our dollar, goods and services are going to remain sound."

Actually a mature exchange can offer the businessman an economy within an economy. Members will trade and barter for a majority of their needs and bank their cash. What ever is happening to the U.S. economic picture will have less effect on an exchange member.

Esquire magazine summed it up in its May 26 article on inflation when it stated, "Bartering is inflation proof."

"In bartering one is only limited by his imagination. For instance, several large scale trades are pending, one is the construction of a camera store in the South Plains area, another is a several hundred bale of cotton trade pending with several farmers. The exchange has the ability to offer unencumbered cotton almost 20% more than the current market price. This is a little closer to parity to the farmer. Another trade pending is with a local auto dealer. Cars for computer equipment — about a hundred thousand dollars worth."

Get full details now; meet Larry Goldston and staff . . . and profit accordingly; the bartering program can work for you, too!

Texas Insulation Systems, Lockney, Affords ThermoCon Process, Products

Specializing in ThermoCon spray-on and loose-fill for residential, commercial and industrial applications, Jerry Ulmer and staff are masters in their field. For full details see Ulmer at the Lockney facilty, write Box 591, Lockney, Tex. 79241, or call (806) 652-3348.

Spray-on ThermoCon affords temperature, sound and fire control in one application!

Because of its chemical content, it permanently bonds to steel, wood and masonry surfaces painted or not! It provides a strong color-stable environmental system that will not chip, shed, flake, dust or be subject to rot or fungi. ThermoCon is odorless and non-toxic.

Because it forms a monolithic seal, it can be used wherever temperature, sound or fire control is needed on ceilings or walls, exposed or unexposed. No latning, undercoating or preparatory base is required!

Because of its workable fibrous texture, ThermoCon can expand and contract with your building without losing its hold. Its built-in flexibility makes it easy to cut, saw, mold, shape or paint.

Because of its application by pneumatic spray, it is much faster and more economical than conventional insulation, Ulmer emphasizes.

Appropriate buildings for this ThermoCon system include farm buildings, airplane hangars, industrial plants, warehouses, auditoriums, gyms, showrooms, supermarkets, mobile homes, apartments, condominiums, office buildings, etc.

"It is twice as effective as wire-backed fiberglass batts; heat intense enough to melt metal will not penetrate ThermoCon's protective barrier!"

LIMITED-TIME FRANCISCAN SAVINGS PROVIDED

September Franciscan Event Spells Savings At Pigg Bros.

"It is the sale you can't afford to miss!"

It is the once-a-year gigantic Franciscan September Fest underway at Pigg Bros. Shamrock Jewelry, 2147 50th St.

Franciscan Specials

A full 40 per cent off on three-piece place settings!

And 20 per cent off on selected open stock items.

A whopping 33 per cent off on place setting pieces;

Select from Franciscan patterns including Apple, Desert Rose, Ivy, Meadow Rose, and new October, an example.

It is a great opportunity to buy the very pieces one needs, on sale. Buy extra bowls, replace some cups, add place settings, go for that nice-to-have platter, gravy boat, coffee pot and other serving pieces — over 50 in Desert Rose alone!

Specific Savings Cited

Examples of the dollar-and-cents savings include the three-piece setting (dinner plate, cup and saucer, regular $14.65 but sale priced at just $8.79! And three-piece settings in Dogwood, Hacienda Gold, Hacienda Green, Jamoca, Madeira, Mirasol, Picnic, regular $12.90 but now $7.74 during the September Fest at Pigg Bros.!

So . . . the wise word is to select your dinnerware now, for your own collection and use or for gifting.

It is possible, though not probable, that some may know of Franciscan's quality features . . . such as its high resistance to chipping. It never fades and it never crazes. Every piece of Franciscan dinnerware is decorated by hand.

(The Franciscan sale has been held annually for 26 years at Pigg Bros., but this one is said to be truly the finest ever.)

Gift Needs

While taking advantage of this sale, it also would be prudent to consider the opportunities in the wide jewelry selection at Pigg Bros.

There are numerous unique and quality gift items . . . such as the Bowl of Roses ($23.95 for the grouping of three red roses: $29.95 for five; and $27.95 for the light-colored roses).

And the musical figurines of porcelain; the diamond drops and ear screws; a large selection of rings (dinner, engagement, diamond guard, etc.)

Layaway

Pigg Bros. is not trying to rush the season, but "if you have a someone very special in mind for a very special Christmas gift, why not do some planning and looking ahead (and using layaway) at Pigg Bros. Shamrock Jewelry, 2147 50th St. in Lubbock?

The gift choices there reflect the firm's consideration for every age group.

Fine watches are stocked, of course.

And there are baby gifts, birthstone rings, costume jewelry, beautiful lockets, pens, pencils and lighters, Franciscan Ware, and more!

Optical Store & Boutique's Concept, Products, Services Distinctly Unique

"Our Boutique is Unique."

It is The Optical Store & Boutique, the first and only of its type in the area, located at 5202 Slide Road, phone 792-0901.

Quality lines in frames and glasses are just as near as The Optical Store & Boutique where a departmentalized arrangement of rooms and areas provides the four distinct categories: (1) economy, (2) quality, (3) designer frames, and (4) Boutique.

So, whether the need is economy and quality in frames and glasses for the student, as example, or the very finest in choices from the Designer collection or the unusual and expensive lines within the Boutique, this Lubbock facility is outstanding, in a class by itself.

(Opened July 15 at the Slide Road address, both a Boutique and optical store is provided, with a sister operation under the same ownership providing an optical store in the Town & Country Center, especially convenient to Tech students.)

Upon entry into The Optical Store & Boutique, one is impressed with the pleasing but striking decor (such as the art deco in the Desiger Room carried out in mirrors, pictures and fixtures), a customer consideration that exemplifies the firm's uniqueness.

One may first discover the Designer Collection where an area is devoted entirely to designer frames by Ralph Lauren, Givenchy, Diane Von Fustenberg, Oscar de la Renta and other top designers.

Then there is the Children's Corner in another segment of the complex.

And who could not help but be most intrigued by the Boutique where antique decor dominates and where the unusual and expensive lines are displayed. Some glasses are set with diamonds, some with 18k gold settings, some with real cultured pearls. Custom design with special precious stones, etc., is a specialty.

Lines are out-of-the-ordinary, with some exclusive in Lubbock to the Boutique, such as the Martin Creations from West Germany.

"See what we mean when we say that 'Our Boutique is Unique,' providing a product and service seldom experienced anywhere?"

"May we have the pleasure of your visits? We know we can serve you within one or more of our departments."

Business & Industrial Review

Storkie's Opens With Complete Lines Clothing, Gifts For Mother, Baby

"Have you discovered Storkie's with its complete line of clothing and gifts for mother and baby?

"Perhaps you have not learned of this entirely new home-owned and home-operated business at 3414-B Ave. H (in Family Park Shopping Center, next door to Anthony's), for it only opened Sept. 1.

So ... let's get acquainted, and we'll help at Storkie's by inviting registration for a free gift certificate to be awarded Oct. 7. And we'll help by providing a really great selection of maternity fashions, baby gifts, Christening sets and baby furniture.

"Isn't this a great service, especially in the south Lubbock location?"

Owners and founders of the attractive store are Genevieve Judd and Faye Spoth, both of whom are active in the business, and both of whom are long-time Lubbock residents with a host of friends.

They invite and merit your trade.

And lingerie by Mary Jane.

The maternity fashions are priced in a range from budget to better, and from casual to formal.

Many baby and gift items, especially designed for Storkie's, are in stock, plus Christening sets and take-me-home outfits for infants.

Really gorgeous hand bags, custom made for Storkie's, are stocked and must be seen to be fully appreciated for their beauty and quality.

Fashion designing in ladies wear is provided by Genevieve as another of the "plusses" at Storkie's.

The shop is open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., six days a week, and layaways are invited as are Master Charge and Visa purchases.

"Aren't you glad that there is a Storkie's to serve you? Let's get acquainted (or renew acquaintance); we want to be your kind of store."

Shallowater Mix & Match Shop Continues Savings Tradition

The Mix & Match Shop in Shallowater approaches its Fourth Anniversary with greater values than ever before!

Owned and operated by Barbara and Al Monteith, the shop opened in late '74 and has made friends throughout the region by catering to the cost-conscious buyer of quality ladies' wear in latest styles ... pleasing folks who recognize the fashion and price "rightness" at Mix & Match, No. 1 South Ave. L in Shallowater.

New Additions

Some new additions to the inviting stock include junior tops and pants in sizes small to large, with one price of $6.99 for tops, and $8.99 for pants. These are the latest styles and come directly to the shop from the factories.

These are latest styles "not available in other shops because they come directly from the cutting tables at the factory."

There is a complete line of gabardine pants in polyester cloth which is the wash-and-wear fabric needed and wanted for the "in" look of today, with waist band and zippered front.

For the ladies (and juniors love these) ... there are the bubble blouses in small sizes through the extra large, and the shirt blouses in sizes 8 to 44, in both solid colors and prints ... all top grade fabric with pants to mix and match.

Junior tops are now on sale at $6.99 (for any item on the junior rack), and $8.99 for any of the gabardine pants, remember.

Volume Savings

Ladies full-cut pants also are $8.99 or 3 for $24. Blouses, size 8-44, are at $11.45, or 3 for $30, with all of these special prices available to group purchases, too.

And look at this service:

Barbara will be glad to notify you of new shipments and sales at Mix & Match if you will let us have your phone number and home address.

Also check the close-out rack at Mix & Match, where prices are below factory cost, the owners emphasize, with some of the items perfect and of current style, but marked down to make room for new shipments.

Would you believe ladies pant suits at $12.49! Double knit pants at $3.49? And many more items similarly reduced.

And there is a good supply of panty hose and knee-hi hose at 3 pair for 99 cents!

"For a friendly, convenient store, easy to find and providing a real service to a wide Lubbock, Shallowater and South Plains area, it is the Mix & Match, 1 South Ave. L in Shallowater, where you can save on your clothing needs."

SPRING CREST, RIGHT FOR EVERY ROOM

Spring Crest Draperies Tells Special Prices For September

"Isn't it time you moved up to Spring Crest?"

This move can now be made at special economy . . . with Spring Crest Draperies of Lubbock now conducting a special sale throughout September.

Among the sale values at Spring Crest, 5302 Ave. Q (in Briercroft Shopping Center) are three of special note:

(1) Del Mar woven woods are marked at a full 15 per cent off;

(2) There is a tremendous 50 per cent saving on lining and used in custom draperies!

(3) Crestwood decorator rods are sale priced 15 per cent off.

Such values make it exceptionally easy to secure "something better for your home", affording a great opportunity to get acquainted with Spring Crest in Lubbock . . . with the products and services afforded, and with the very personable husband-wife team manning the home-owned and home-operated business.

Fair Display

Ben and Brenda Powell are owners, and they not only invite visits during the sale but also at the booth they are arranging at the South Plains Fair later this month.

Free estimates are a feature of Spring Crest of Lubbock, and there is full assurance that each valued customer is completely satisfied with the latest in design and workmanship that are hallmarks of Spring Crest, "the finest in the industry"

Hang From Steel Spring

Why is Spring Crest different?

Furthermore, aside from their beauty and simplicity, they are competitively priced.

Warranty Unique

There is 10-year warranty on drapery hardware.

Only three to four week delivery time is involved for the custom made drapes.

Also available are woven woods, shades, shutters, custom bedspreads and the Classique metal blinds.

Drapery hardware is stocked for the "do it yourself" trade, too, with its simplicity lending itself to ease in installation.

Crestrand, the alternative to sheers (the elusive sheer that is different and popular) is stocked. It is beautiful, unique and thoroughly different.

BankAmericard and Master Charge purchase plans are welcomed at Spring Crest Draperies of Lubbock, located remember in Briercroft Center, between Earl Ray Music Co. and Maxine's Accent, with plenty of off-street, at-the-door parking for customer convenience.

And remember this:

"No matter what your style, Spring Crest can dress your windows better; these custom draperies add elegance to the most formal setting, but also can be the perfect finishing touch to a casual room. These unusual draperies are formed by threading a spring steel pleater through a narrow hem at top of the material. Result: a drapery that hangs beautifully with rounded, supple folds rather than the sharp, stiff edges of conventional pinch-pleated draperies."

Modern, Knowledgeable Service Sure At Harold Harvey Agency

"Is your insurance program up to date, meeting the needs of today and tomorrow?

"Does your insurance fully serve the purpose of your personal preference?

"Does it need review by a trusted and knowledgeable expert in the field?"

Then, turn to Harold Harvey, whether the need is for complete planning, for review, for mortgage cancellation life insurance or whatnot.

Harvey takes pride in representing companies with good records, and prompt payments can be (and should be) a big factor in choosing one's insurance agent. Harvey prides in promptness.

The Harold Harvey Agency calls to attention some other situations in which they can be of prime benefit:

Harvey points out the value of an "inflation-guard endorsement" that annually increases the insurance coverage of the home. This endorsement can be put on an annual basis on current home-owners' policies at a cost far from prohibitive. It provides a realistic protection of values.

Among the key areas in which Harvey can render a special service is that of home owners mortgage cancellation life insurance, paying off the mortgage in full should the breadwinner die.

The complete homeowners and mortgage cancellation package can be placed through Harvey with one company for maximum convenience and efficiency — the Floyd West Co. organization with which Harvey has had close contact since back in 1959.

Harvey also is a specialist in bonds, whether the need is administrator, guardianship, various types of court bonds, etc.

Whatever the insurance or bond need, Harold Harvey can simplify the problem. It is as elemental and easy as that.

Applicable to commercial interests including hotel-motel and office, institutional, apartment, mercantile, processing and industrial, the Multi-Peril "package plan" is now available in Texas, and Harold Harvey at No. 5 Briercroft Office Park, is eager to assist with this program in improving one's insurance situation.

'I know why I smoke.'

"So when I switched to low tar, I wasn't about to give that up. If you don't smoke for taste what else is there?

"But there was all that talk about tar.

"Vantage gives me the taste I enjoy. And the low tar I've been looking for."

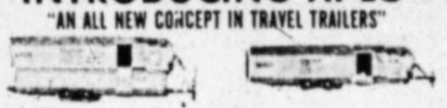
INTRODUCING HI-LO
"AN ALL NEW CONCEPT IN TRAVEL TRAILERS"



- HI-LO achieves the best gas mileage.
- HI-LO is much safer to tow because of its low height and low center of gravity.
- HI-LO handles better than any other trailer in tow (Ask an owner!)
- HI-on Living: LO on gas.
- HI-LO totally metal construction

'Bomb' Testimony On Kennedy Assassination Claimed By Agent

DALLAS (AP) — The FBI agent who monitored Lee Harvey Oswald in Dallas before the assassination of President John F. Kennedy said he will have explosive, new revelations if the House Assassinations Committee calls him for public testimony.

James P. Hosty Jr., an agent in Kansas City, told the Dallas Morning News in a copyrighted story that the committee apparently is trying to get out of calling him, however. He declined to detail his information.

"If they are going to try and contain this (assassination probe) like the Church (Senate Intelligence) committee and the Warren Commission, they don't want me up there," Hosty said.

He said committee investigators gave him the impression last month they were "all done with the investigation and they were writing the report (due in December) — that they were not opening any new grounds any more. They almost didn't call me. I had to ask why I wasn't called (to testify in private) before they would call me."

Hosty said the "bombs" that could be dropped during the committee's public hearings this month are unrelated to a threatening note Oswald delivered to the Dallas FBI in early November 1963 or to recurring rumors that Oswald was an FBI informant.

Hosty gave a deposition Aug. 25, but is not scheduled to testify publicly at the Sept. 20 hearing on the FBI and Department of Justice.

The agent was in Dallas before and during the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination. Only hours after the assassination, Dallas police detective Jack Revill sent a memo to Police Chief Jesse Curry quoting Hosty as telling Revill the FBI knew Oswald was "capable" of killing Kennedy before he allegedly did.

Curry then drew the wrath of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover the day after the assassination by saying the FBI knew, but did not inform Dallas police, that Oswald was working in a building on the presidential motorcade route.

Hoover denied Hosty made the remarks to Revill, but suspended Hosty for a month without pay and reassigned him to Kansas City.

Hosty's name, auto license and telephone number were in Oswald's personal notebook when he was arrested, but the FBI did not disclose that to the Warren Commission in its first report on the notebook. The FBI reported it to the commission in a "supplemental" report after the news media picked up the story.

In 1975, it was revealed that Oswald left a threatening note at the Dallas FBI office about two weeks before the assassination. The note, Hosty said, warned Oswald "would take action against FBI ... if I did not stop talking to his wife."

Israeli Legislator To Aid Christians

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A member of the Israeli parliament said through a spokeman Sunday he plans to raise $10 million and recruit thousands of volunteers to help the embattled Christian community in Lebanon.

The spokesman for Samuel Flatto-Sharon said the legislator and financier wants to establish an international foundation to raise the money and attract volunteers willing to fight beside the Lebanese Christians.

Last spring, Flatto-Sharon offered terrorists of Italy's Marxist Red Brigades $5 million for the release of former Italian Premier Aldo Moro, but Moro's kidnappers killed him.

Flatto-Sharon now hopes to recruit 20,000 volunteers, base them in Europe and send them to Lebanon as needed to "help in every way," the spokesman said.

"Many will be doctors or nurses or medics, but there will also be some who will fight alongside the Christians. We plan to bring innocent woman and children from Beirut to Israel if necessary to save them from the Syrians," he said.

Syrian forces in Lebanon, who make up the bulk of a 30,000-man Arab League peacekeeping army that ended the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war, have been battling right-wing Christian forces in Beirut and other parts of Lebanon since July 1.

The Syrians sided with the Christians in the civil war, which pitted the rightists against an alliance of Moslem leftists and Palestinian guerrillas. But Syrian-Christian feuding began after the Christians refused to turn over their positions to the Syrians. The Syrians also were angered that the Christians cooperated with the Israelis in southern Lebanon to remove Palestinians from the area.

The spokesman for Flatto-Sharon said, "We have already spoken to the mayor of Kiryat Shmona," a development town on Israel's northern border where the Israeli lawmaker apparently hopes to resettle refugees from Lebanon. The mayor of Kiryat Shmona was unavailable for comment.

Flatto-Sharon is trying to arrange meetings with Lebanese Christian leaders Camille Chamoun and Pierre Gemayel and will send an emissary to the pope to urge him to take steps to help the Lebanese Christians, the spokesman said.

Flatto-Sharon is a controversial figure in Israel, where he won election to the Knesset last year. As a member of parliament he gained immunity from extradition to France, where he was wanted on fraud and tax evasion charges.

Earlier this year, Flatto-Sharon claimed partial credit for arranging a three-way swap in which an Israeli pilot was released from prison in Mozambique and an American from East Germany in exchange for Robert Thompson, convicted of spying in the United States for East Germany.

More recently, Flatto-Sharon claimed he was working on the release of Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky, who was sentenced in July by a Soviet court to 13 years at hard labor on espionage charges.

Flatto-Sharon frequently announces unusual proposals. Before offering to pay the Red Brigades for the release of Moro, he said he wanted to build a joint Egyptian-Israeli experimental farm on the banks of the Nile River.

Legislators Seek Voter Input

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two conservative members of Congress Sunday challenged state legislatures to submit referendums in November asking voters to choose between a balanced federal budget or continued deficit spending.

"This situation has come to a head with amazing speed," said Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., and Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio.

Curtis and Ashbrook are sponsors of legislation inviting states to put an advisory referendum on the November ballot letting voters choose between starting to cut the budget immediately and balancing it within two fiscal years or continued deficit spending.

"It is likely that most candidates seeking election to Congress and to the Senate will commit themselves, if elected, to carry out the wishes of the majority in their congressional district or state," the two lawmakers said.

They noted states already have authority to submit the question to voters without waiting for Congress to act on their bill.

"No constitutional or other change is required," Curtis and Ashbrook said. "Nothing more than a simple act of legislation is needed although it may be necessary to convene a special session in some states.

"The only remaining question is how many states will give their citizens the opportunity to vote and express their wishes and how quickly will they do so. Even if some fail to act in time, the voters in those states which do act will have a significant and possibly controlling effect on the next Congress and the president."

The only role the legislation gives to the federal government is to pay a small sum to any state that does so and reports the results of such a referendum to the president and Congress.

Defense Saves Korchnoi From Chess Defeat

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Soviet defector Viktor Korchnoi survived an expected defeat with excellent defensive play Sunday to salvage a draw from the adjourned 20th game against champion Anatoly Karpov in the world chess championships.

No one offered a draw, said Deputy Arbiter Murmslav Filip of Czechoslovakia. The players merely glanced at each other and signed their scoresheets, ending the game after 63 moves.

"It was an excellent defense. Korchnoi really made the best out of it," international master Lodewijk Prinz of Holland said of Korchnoi's unexpected recovery.

The Soviet defending champion leads the tournament four games to one. The first player to win six games claims the world chess title and a $350,000 purse. The loser gets $200,000. Draws do not count in the scoring.

Only a handful of spectators were present Sunday to watch what British international master and chess author Harry Golombek described as one of the worst end games played in a major match.

He said Karpov, 27, made several weak moves, missing his chance to win the game. "Even his sealed move was quite bad," commented Golombek, who, with others, thought Karpov's sealed move was the capture of a pawn by his queen. Most experts agreed that if Karpov had made that move, he could force Korchnoi, 47, to resign in four or five moves.

Counselor Raps Abortion Law

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A counselor for a planned parenthood organization has testified in federal court that she will stop referring women to Akron abortion clinics if the city's ordinance regulating abortions is put into effect.

Marsha Parker, counselor for Stark County Planned Parenthood, said Thursday she objected to a section of the Akron ordinance requiring notification of the parents of a minor seeking an abortion. She said such notification without the consent of the minor violates Planned Parenthood's guidelines for confidentiality.

Mrs. Parker was called to testify by American Civil Liberties Union lawyers who are challenging the constitutionality of the Akron ordinance. The case is being heard by U.S. District Judge Leroy Contie Jr.

Another witness, Dr. Adelle Hoffman, an instructor at the New York City Medical School and head of the Adolescent Health Clinic at Bellevue, testified that she has witnessed depression afterwards in about the same number of teen-agers who decide to carry pregnancies to term as she has in those girls who decide to abort.

City Councilman Reggie Brooks described the legislative process leading up to passage of the ordinance last Feb. 26. He said council voted on the ordinance without all councilmen having the opportunity to read the final draft.

Contie has barred the city from putting the ordinance into effect, pending the outcome of the present hearing, which started Monday.

Man Claims Gifts Belonged To Ford

DETROIT (AP) — A man who claims to be the illegitimate son of Henry Ford said he is auctioning his mother's estate, including what he said are Ford's own baby crib and other gifts to his mother from the auto pioneer.

John Cote Dahlinger has been trying for three months to sell the estate, a 37-room mansion in suburban Dearborn Heights valued at $1.25 million.

An weekend auction featured 600 items including the two dozen which Dahlinger says were gifts from Ford to his mother.

Dahlinger, 55, is the author of a book published last February, "The Secret Life of Henry Ford," in which he details his contention that he is Ford's illegitimate son.

Plane Crash Kills 19 Passengers

The craft, owned by Linea Area de Centro S.A., was on a flight to Morelia on the western slope of the Sierra Madre Occidental, about 190 miles from Mexico City.

The pilot and a co-pilot were among the dead, the Red Cross said.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I put $100 a month into a mutual fund plan for 10 years. I completed the plan in 1969. At today's values of the fund's shares, my investment is about double the $12,000 I paid into the plan. I am 62 and will retire in three years. Do you think I should redeem my fund shares and put the money into an annuity? Or do you think I should stay put and have the fund send me a check each month, when I retire?

A. Based on the information in your letter, the $24,000 or so present value of your mutual fund investment seems to be a major part — if not the biggest part — of your retirement nestegg.

It's time for you to start shifting that money into something less risky than that mutual fund. The very large mutual fund you named in your letter invests in common stocks. And, three years away from retirement, you should be moving most of your assets into fixed-income investments.

An annuity is almost that. But the checks you receive from an annuity include some from income on your investment and some your own money being returned to you.

I feel you should shift into an "income fund" run by the same organization that manages the mutual fund you now hold or a no-load income fund. Either way, you wouldn't be hit with a fat commission. Reinvest all dividends, until retirement time.

Then, after you retire, start taking a check a month — through a "periodic withdrawal plan." Almost all mutual funds have such plans. You put money in for years. When you retire, it's time to start taking money out. And, as long as you don't set your withdrawal sights too high, your capital could remain intact and continue to earn more money for you.

Q. Please advise a widow, 59, what to do when a $30,000 savings certificate comes due. I receive a pension of $12,000 a year, before taxes. I find taxes eating away at my income. Should I buy tax-exempt bonds, E bonds or a savings certificate again? I already have $20,000 in tax exempts.

A. With a $12,000 a year pension and, from what you say, very little other taxable income except the interest from that savings certificate, I do have to fault you having tax-exempt bonds at all.

Unless you have quite a bit of other income, you are not in a high enough income tax bracket where the tax-free income from municipal bonds does you any good. You could get more "keeping money" from the higher — but taxable — interest available on corporate bonds.

When that savings certificate matures, you should put it back into another certificate or into investment grade corporate bonds — if you need more income. An insured savings certificate gives you absolute safety of principal. Corporate bonds pay higher interest but can rise or fall in market value, in line with money market conditions.

Q. You tell people who want to know the current values of their Series E bonds to write to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office Washington, D.C. 20402 and pay 75 cents for a single copy or $3 for a two-year sscription. Is that bother and expense really necessary? I get copies of that booklet from my banker. Isn't this permissible?

A. Sure it is. The U.S. Bureau of the Public Debt supplies limited numbers of copies to banks and other "qualified paying agents." You evidently have a friendly banker who has been willing to give you spare copies. Most banks can't pass out copies, because they don't have many spares.

Houston Betters KC 20-17

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Earl Campbell scored two fourth-quarter touchdowns to give the Houston Oilers a 20-17 come-from-behind National Football League victory over the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday.

Campbell, last year's Heisman Trophy winner and the No. 1 player taken in the last college draft, hurdled a stacked-up Chiefs defense from two yards out with 1:50 remaining to climax a 69-yard drive and give the Oilers, 1-1, the lead.

Kansas City, 1-1, had taken a 17-13 lead in the third period on a 19-yard scoring burst on a double reverse by Tony Reed, who totaled 141 rushing yards out of the Chiefs' Wing-T offense.

After taking a 6-0 lead on a pair of Toni Fritsch field goals, the Oilers fell behind at the half, 10-6, when Jan Stenerud booted a 41-yard field goal and Ted McKnight tallied on a three-yard touchdown run.

Campbell, who ripped huge holes in the Chiefs' defense in the first quarter, swored from one yard out early in the fourth period after Emmitt Thomas, Chiefs cornerback, was called for a 38-yard pass interference penalty.

Reed, a second-year pro from Colorado, got the Chiefs rolling on their fourth possession of the first half by gouging 25- and 15-yard gains on successive sprints through the Oiler defense.

The Chiefs tried a pass from the Houston 20 and Jim Young, defensive end, was flagged for roughing the passer. With a first and goal from the 10, McKnight plowed ahead for four yards, Reed slanted right for three and McKnight slashed into the end zone with about 1:30 remaining in the half to give the Chiefs a 10-3 advantage.

NY Gives Dallas Battle Before Stumbling 34-24

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Their receiving styles are identical — curling routes to the middle of the defense, where some of pro football's most violent collisions occur. And that's why Drew Pearson of the Dallas Cowboys thinks about Darryl Stingley so often.

Pearson caught six passes for 89 yards Sunday as the Super Bowl champion Cowboys defeated the New York Giants 34-24 in a National Football League game. It maked the 47th consecutive contest in which Pearson has had at least one catch, a club record.

Many of those receptions were on that familiar curling pattern — the same one that Stingley, New England's wide receiver, was running when he collided with Oakland's Jack Tatm in a preseason game and suffered a paralyzing injury.

"That's my bread-and-butter play," said Pearson, "over the middle. I'm not afraid of getting hurt but I think about Stingley a lot. He ran that same pattern. When I heard about his injury, I was shocked. I thought to myself, 'Why him and not me?' I say a prayer for him every week before I step on the field."

Pearson's catches softened the Giant defense and he helped position the ball for two touchdown passes by Roger Staubach. Robert Newhouse added a pair of scores as the world chanpion Cowboys whipped the Giants. But the victory didn't come easily.

"Everybody's shooting for us," said Staubach, "and we're not playing the kind of football we can. Our offense is not up to its abilities. I feel we'll improve."

Staubach softened up the Giant defense with completions of 20 yards to DuPree and 12 to Tony Hill during the 80-yard, 11-play drive that produced the Cowboys' first touchdown, the pass to DuPree. It was the only score of the first period.

The next Cowboys drive started with runs of 13 and 15 yards respectively by Dorsett and Newhouse and included passes of 12 yards to Hill and 24 to Drew Pearson, who extended his club record to 47 straight games with at least one catch. The key play of the drive came on a third-and-13 at the Giant 21 when Staubach's pass defected off Pearson's hands and was caught by Newhouse for the first down.

The Giants came back, scoring on Pisarcik's 4-yard pass to Al Dixon. Earlier in the drive Pisarcik hit Doug Kotar on a 19-yard play and found Jimmy Robinson for 51 yards. Ernie Pough added 25 yards on an end-around.

The Cowboys made it 21-7 after Benny Barnes intercepted Pisarcik at the Giants' 45. Consecutive passes to Hill and Pearson picked up 28 yards, then Saldi, the backup tight end, garbbed the 2-yard catch for the TD.

Staubach, who passed for 212 yards, connected with tight ends Billy Joe DuPree and Jay Saldi for the TDs covering four and two yard. Newhouse punched over from the 2-yard line for his first score and then from the 1 and running partner Tony Dorsett added a 3-yard TD.

Connors Takes Men's Title, While Evert Rules Women

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors, beginning his retribution against Bjorn Borg, beat the top-seeded Swede 6-4, 6-2, 6-2 Sunday and regained the U.S. Open tennis championship, while Chris Evert won her fourth consecutive women's title with a 7-5, 6-4 victory over 16-year-old Pam Shriver.

Connors, who lost the title to Guillermo Vilas last year, jumped in the air, his arms raised, walked to the net and affectionately rubbed Borg's head after the decisive victory.

Borg, his thumb bandaged to protect a swollen, infected blister, lost his racquet twice while serving. It was not immediately known whether he had played with the aid of painkillers. He did not ask the trainer's assistance during the match.

Evert, 23, became the first woman since 1935 to capture the U.S. crown for four straight years. The last woman to do it was Helen Jacobs.

But it wasn't easily. Shriver, the youngest person ever to play in the final of the American championship, used a strong, attacking game to make the final Evert's toughest test in the tournament.

Connors, taking chances and attacking from the start, broke service in the fifth game. Games went with service the rest of the set.

Borg opened the second set with two aces, both down the middle. He took the game at love, reaching 40-0 with an overhead cross-court and taking the game on a service winner.

But his serving success was spotty thereafter. Connors broke him in the third game, allowing him only one point. The fifth game went to deuce five times, with Connors getting break point twice. The second time, Borg's racquet flew from his hand as he served and landed near the net post.

He didn't even move to recover the racquet as Connors' return whizzed by him. He did, however, maintain his cool, and served out the game, winning the next three points.

But Borg lost a 40-15 lead in the seventh game, hitting a forehand long and watching one of Connors' numerous backhands rocket down the line. They went to deuce four times. Connors got the last two points when Borg's backhand hit the net and his forehand went long.

NY Ties Boston For East Lead

By The Associated Press

Graig Nettles, Roy White, Thurman Munson and Bucky Dent had three hits apiece as the New York Yankees went on an 18-single binge Sunday in completing a four-game series sweep with a 7-4 victory over Boston, moving into a tie with the Red Sox for the American League East lead.

RANGERS SWEEP A's

Tim Hosley's run-scoring single capped a two-run rally in the ninth inning as the Oakland A's came back to beat Texas 2-1 in the second game and split a doubleheader.

CUBS 6, EXPOS 3

Mick Kelleher, a first-inning replacement at third base for the ejected Rodney Scott, had a pair of run-scoring singles as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Montreal Expos 6-3 for a sweep of their three-game series.

ASTROS 3, PADRES 2

A run-scoring double by Wilbur Howard and Jesus Alou's RBI pinch-hit single highlighted Houston's two-run seventh inning, lifting the Astros to a 3-2 victory over the San Diego Padres.

METS 11, PIRATES 9

Elliott Maddox delivered a run-scoring single and John Stearns knocked in another run with a groundout, capping a two-run eighth-inning rally and leading the New York Mets to a wild 11-9 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

REDS 8, GIANTS 1

Cincinnati's Johnny Bench drilled a three-run homer and Dave Concepcion drove in two runs with singles, helping Tom Seaver defeat San Francisco for the first time in five tries this season with an 8-1 victory over the Giants.

ANGELS 13, ROYALS 3

Don Baylor drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a single as the California Angels walloped the Royals 13-3 to move within a half-game of the American League West leaders.

CARDS 8, PHILLIES 6

CHISOX 2, MARINERS 1

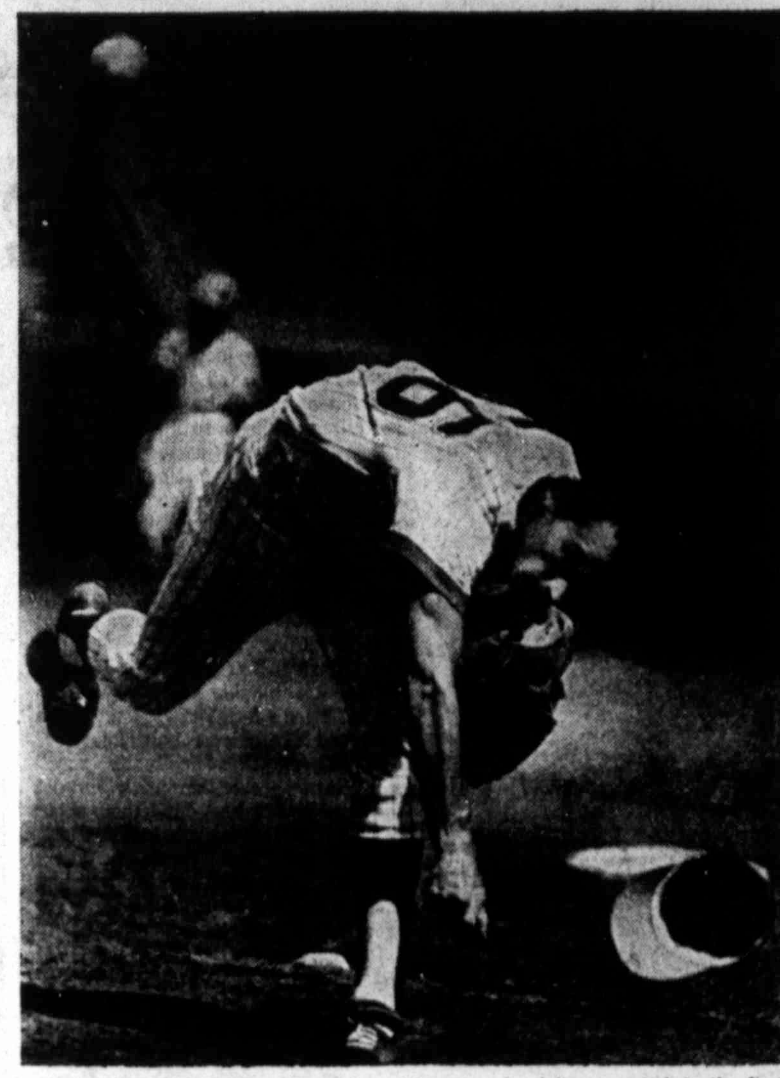
Thad Bosley scored the tie-breaking run on an errant pickoff attempt by pitcher Glenn Abbott and the Chicago White Sox edged the Seattle Mariners 2-1.

INDIANS 7, TIGERS 4

Rick Manning greeted reliever John Hiller with a run-scoring single in the ninth inning and Buddy Bell followed with a two-run homer to give the Cleveland Indians a 7-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

TWINS 3, BREWERS 1

Glenn Borgmann's two-run homer snapped a 30-inning scoreless streak for Minnesota and Dave Goltz won his 12th game of the year as the Twins beat the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1.



BOUTON RETURNS—Jim Bouton loses his cap as he delivers a pitch in the first inning against the Los Angeles Dodgers in Atlanta Sunday. Bouton joined the Atlanta Braves after pitching in the Savannah farm team this season. He was pulled in the fifth inning after suffering through six runs.

Bouton's Return Upsets Dodgers

ATLANTA (AP) — Jim Bouton expressed satisfaction with his return to major league baseball Sunday, but Davey Lopes and Reggie Smith of the Los Angeles Dodgers blasted the move by the Atlanta Braves.

"Yes, it's a joke," said Smith. "At some point (Braves owner Ted) Turner is going to have to stop making fun of this game."

"I think a lot of people were disturbed because it was a circus-type atmosphere," said Lopes. "He showed me nothing. Nothing."

Bouton, making his first major league appearance since 1970, allowed six runs in five innings as the Dodgers smashed the Braves 11-5 and stretched their National League West lead to four games over the San Francisco Giants.

"The only way the Giants could feel it would be fair would be for Bouton to face them," Lopes said. "That's the only way they can cover up for what they did today."

Bouton no-hit the Dodgers through the first three innings, fanning three before running into trouble in the fourth when he allowed five runs and four hits, including a three-run homer by Rick Monday.

Lopes had a leadoff homer off Bouton in the fifth and the 39-year-old knuckleballer was lifted for a pinch-hitter later in the inning.

"I think I proved I belong out there," Bouton said.

"I was satisfied," he added. "I think I showed everybody I had enough pitches to get people out again. I had butterflies when I started and about the fourth inning they went away. Maybe that was the problem."

The defeat evened Bouton's major league record at 61-61, with most of those victories coming during 1964 and 1965 when he starred for the New York Yankees.

"I just hope I can show enough in each outing for them to give me a chance in the spring," Bouton said. "They swung and missed a couple by a foot today. I threw plenty of pitches to get people out."

"I thought he threw some real good knuckleballs," Lasorda said. "He definitely had our hitters off stride and remember, we got some runs off somebody else besides him today."

Smith said Turner's use of Bouton is "like he's saying, 'Okay, I give up.' The man is making a joke of it. They are not going with their best."

Bergman, McGee Win Divisions

Don Bergman of Amarillo and Scott McGee are reigning season-end champions in sprint car and street stock car auto racing, respectively, at Lubbock Speedway.

Bergman won everything but the semi — in which he placed second — as he bested a slim field over the 3/8 mile dirt oval.

McGee had it a little tougher; the main was the only event he won, but it was enough. As the feature lined up, McGee had only a third in the consy to show for his night's efforts.

Fans Line Up To See Ponies, Frogs Square Off

By The United Press International

Texas A&M may have rolled up more than 400 yards with the help of a new formation and Texas Tech and Rice may have played much better than expected, but perhaps the biggest news around the Southwest Conference on opening weekend was that there was a traffic jam at the Cotton Bowl.

Despite a threat of rain, which later materialized, people actually lined up to get in to see TCU and SMU play a football game last Saturday night.

There were 41,112 of them in all and those two teams had not drawn that many people since Don Meredith was throwing the ball for the Mustangs 20 years ago.

"We've already made progress," beamed promition minded SMU athletic director Russ Potts, who took over at the school last spring with the goal of boosting the Mustangs attendance.

The SMU football team seems to have made progress, too, while TCU, alas, has not.

Among other things SMU produced a 94-yard opening kickoff return by D.K. Perry, a 70-yard interception return by freshman Jerry Kovar and a 57-yard touchdown throw from Mike Ford to Emanuel Tolbert in running up a 45-14 victory. But the Mustangs also committed a school record 161 yards worth of penalties.

"I'd like to say we are a lot better football team than people think," said coach Ron Meyer. "But I can't. We're just too sloppy."

Texas A&M was the only other winner in the league Saturday, overcoming a threat by Kansas to run away with a 37-10 decision.

Texas Tech and Rice, meanwhile, almost pulled off huge upsets. The Raiders and Owls, popular picks for eighth and ninth in the SWC race this year, fought USC and Iowa State to a standstill before Tech fell to the Trojans, 17-9, and Rice was edged by the Cyclones, 23-19.

A&M coach Emory Bellard has promised to use the "I" formation this year in conjunction with the wishbone and he made good on his word in the Aggies' win.

Curtis Dickey, often running from the "I", picked up 128 yards on 25 carries and helped spark the Aggies to a late surge that broke up a 10-10 ball game.

Quarterback Mike Mosley threw touchdown passes of 7 and 17 yards to Doug Teague and backup quarterback David Beal ran 80 yards for another score to pull the Aggies away from the pesky Jayhawks.

"I thought we played outstanding defensive football, considering it was the first game," said Bellard. "We looked like we had control at all times. We never gave the any of the big stuff."

Three field goals by Bill Adams gave Tech a 9-0 halftime advantage over USC and the Trojans fans booed them off the field at intermission. But even though USC turned the ball over three times in the second half it still dominated play to rally.

In Houston the Owls seemed to be on their way to a monumental surprise, owning a 19-10 advantage early in the final period. But the Cyclones came back, thanks in part to a key 28-yard interception by Mike Cleamons that set up the winning touchdown. It was Rice's 11th straight setback.

Miami Butchers Hapless Colts

By The Associated Press

The Baltimore Colts, blasted out of hostile Texas Stadium 38-0 by the Dallas Cowboys last Monday night, found home no more to their liking Sunday as the Miami Dolphins clobbered them 42-0 in National Football League play.

Don Strock, playing in place of injured quarterback Bob Griese, pierced the Colts' defense with three touchdown passes — a 5-yarder to Nat Moore, a 2-yarder to Bruce Hardy and a 14-yarder to Andre Tillman.

The Colts, unable to muster a scoring drive with Mike Kirkland at quarterback against the Cowboys (replacing injured Bert Jones), tried Bill Troiup this time with equal success. Troup was intercepted five times, one of them returned 53 yards by Norris Thomas for a Miami touchdown.

In other NFL action it was Oakland 21, San Diego 20; Cleveland 13, Cincinnati 10 in overtime; Dallas 34, the New York Giants 24; Green Bay 28, New Orleans 17; Washington 35, Philadelphia 30; Pittsburgh 21, Seattle 10; New England 16, St. Louis 6; Houston 20, Kansas City 17; the New York Jets 21, Buffalo 20; Los Angeles 10, Atlanta 0; Chicago 16, San Francisco 13 and, on Saturday night, Detrot 15, Tampa Bay 7. Denver is at Minnesota Monday night.

Tight end Dave Casper fell on a fumble in the San Diego end zone on the game¾s final play and Errol Mann kicked the extra point that gave Oakland its victory over the Chargers.

With 10 seconds to play and the Raiders on San Diego's 14-yard line, quarterback Ken Stabler was hit by defensive end Fred Dean and fumbled. The ball toward the San Diego goal line, Casper got to it first, bobbled it into the end zone and fell on it for the score.

It was Oakland's second TD of the fourth quarter, wiping out the Chargers' 20-7 lead. With 8:26 to play Stabler hit Morris Bradshaw on a 44-yard TD bomb.

Don Cockroft kicked a 27-yard field goal with 4½ minutes gone in sudden-death overtime to give the Browns their victory over Cincinnati. The Browns' Larry Collins sprinted 41 yards to the Cleveland 47 with the fifth-period kickoff and quarterback Brian Sipe passed 18 yards to tight end Ozzie Newsome in the march to the winning score.

Washington quarterback Joe Theismann threw three touchdown passes, one of them a 37-yard flea-flicker to Danny Buggs, and ran for another score to help turn back Philadelphia. Terry Bradshaw's touchdown tosses of 4 yards to Lynn Swann and 20 yards to running back Sid Thornton led Pittsburgh over the Seahawks.

Pate Captures Win At Southern Event

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Defending champion Jerry Pate dropped in a 12-foot birdie putt on the 15th hole Sunday to halt the bid of a charging Phil Hancock and capture the $175,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament by one stroke.

Pate, who finished with a 69 over the sweltering 6,791-yard Par 70 Green Island Country Club course for a 72-hole total of 269, 11 under par, played steady par golf until the 15th, a par 4, 440-yard hole. He then calmly dropped in the winning putt to snap the deadlock.

Hancock, playing about a half hour ahead of Pate, had finished second to Pate here a year ago. He came closer this time, however, than the seven-stroke difference in 1977.

It was the fifth tour victory for Pate in his third full season, jumping the 24-year-old from Pensacola, Fla., into ninth place in earnings with $167,999.

Raider Defense Shows Strength

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

If Rex Dockery could have had his way, no doubt he would have stopped the game between his Texas Tech Red Raiders and the Southern California Trojans at halftime, packed up the Q—T and headed home to Lubbock.

But that's just ain't the way it works, he said.

"I felt we played them pretty even in the first half," the first-year coach pointed out. "Our offense and defense both did a good job. But in the second half we didn't execute offensively and the game changed momentum."

After getting field goals of 39, 33 and 27 yards from Bill Adams, the Raiders held a 9-0 the upper hand over the Trojans at the halftime break.

However, the Trojans, ranked ninth nationally in the preseason poll, put their game faces on during the intermission and went on to post a 17-9 victory over Dockery's club Saturday afternoon in the season opener for both teams.

Some say it was a moral victory for the Raiders. But not so, says Docker: "We don't look at it as a moral victory. But we didn learn some things, both positively and negatively about the team."

Dockery said he feels the team learned they could stay on the field with any team, be it USC or anyother

"We showed something with the goal line stand," said Docker. "And we took the ball on the one and drove it down to their 20. That showed a lot of character, too."

Dockery was refering to, of course, Tech's stand in the second period, when it held the Trojans out of the end zone from inside the five on four tries.

In the second half though, the Trojans used their superior size and strength, scoring a pair of touchdown in the third quarter and adding a 34-yard field goal by Frank Jordan in the closing moments of the contest.

Heisman cadnidate Charles White, the owner of a 1,500 season as a sophomore, and running mate Lynn Cain spearheaded the USC groud attack. White carried 30 times for 156 yards, while Cain added 70 yards on 18 tries.

However, both had trouble hanging onto the ball. White lost three fumbles —one at the Tech 12, another at the Raider goal line—and Cain bobbled twice.

Raider Johnny Quinney recoveted two miscues and also intercepted a Paul McDonald pass, to pace the Tecg defensive unit.

Tech quarterback Tres Adams and fullback James Hadnot played well in the opening half to help the Raiders. Adamit hit four of six passes for 89 yards during the first two periods. He wound up, however, with 8 of 17 for 110 yards.

Hadnot, a coverted tight end, collected 54 yards on 16 carries in the first half, but ended up with just four yards on five more carries in the final two stanzas.

"We going to be trying to get better as a football team," said Dockery. "We've got a couple of weeks before we play Arizona. And we plan to take advantage of it.

Andretti Nabs World Title, But Not Race

MONZA, Italy (AP) — Veteran driver Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., clinched the Formula I world auto racing championship Sunday in an accident-marred and controversial Italian Grand Prix which was won by Austria's Nikki Lauda.

Andretti, 38, had mathematically clinched the title after Sweden's Ronnie Peterson was injured in a fiery collision involving 10 cars just seconds after the start of the race before an estimated crowd of 150,000 at the Monza Autodrome.

Peterson and Vittoria Brambilla of Italy were taken to a hospital. Peterson broke both legs and suffered burns while Brambilla suffered head injuries and was reported in serious condition.

Blocker Pleased With Team's Opening Night Performance

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Even before viewing the game films, Fort Stockton Coach John Blocker didn't have any trouble summarizing the performance by his team Friday night against Cantuillo.

Said the Panther mentor: "We got a few points."

You'd have to agree with Blocker's analysis after knowing that Fort Stockton scored the first six times it touched the football. The Panthers went on to record a 47-0 triumph.

In fact, Fort Stockton scored so frequently that Blocker couldn't recall all of the touchdown drives. Wouldn't every coach like to be in that situation?

But Blocker didn't have any trouble remembering the players that made the evening pleasent.

The coach turned that attention to the offensive performances of runningback Paul Pogue and quarterback Rick McIvor.

Pogue only carried the ball five times against Cantuillo, but picked up 68 yards including a 32-yard scamper.

In regard to quarterback McIvor, Blocker said, "what can I say other than Rick threw a 91-yard touchdown pass."

Blocker, however, didn't want to create the impression that Pogue and McIvor are the whole Panther team.

Helping the duo cover the real estate included halfback Billy Ray Gordon and fullback Brad Jackson. Gordon had 70 yards on six carries, while Jackson ran for 55 yards on five attempts as Fort Stockton accumulated 340 yards total offense in the first half.

"I can't recall who are leading tackler was," said Blocker. "We sent our second and third teamers in the game pretty early so no one dominated the defensive statistics."

Last year, Fort Stockton finished the season with an 8-2 record. This year, the Panthers are the early favorite to win the 2-AAA district title.

But even with the credentials of fielding mostly an experienced senior team and a 47-0 winning start, Blocker still sees room for improvement.

"We have some things to work on," said the Fort Stockton mentor. "We had too many penalities (eight for 116 yards) and we need some work on our overall passing game."

So if the Panthers corrrect the aerial game and the mental mistakes against this week foe Alpine, then maybe Blocker will be satisfied. That is, until he checks the game films.

Riverboat Skipper Resists Retirement

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Capt. Harris Underwood has piloted boats up and down the Tennessee, Mississippi and Ohio rivers for 61 years. And at 80, he's still not ready to call it quits.

"I don't want to work a regular job any more," Underwood said, "but I don't count myself retired. They still call me up when somebody's off for sickness or something."

In fact, he said, he would have been on the river that day piloting a sand boat except for the death of a friend.

Capt. Underwood — the title is honorary — got his pilot's license in 1917 but his career on the river began even earlier. He recalls that when he was 10, his father, also a lifelong riverboat pilot, learned he was smoking cigarettes and playing hooky from school and said, "Doggone it, I'll put him to work." And he did.

One of Underwood's first jobs was waterboy, finding cool spring water and carrying it in big buckets to the boats.

"It's much easier today to be a river pilot, with the dams, locks and modern equipment," Underwood said. "Now there's no heavy current and pilots run by maps. I've seen the Tennessee River from one end to the other."

In the old days, the pilot had to know his river intimately, its sandbars and reefs and treacherous currents. There were no markers and the pilots had to follow natural landmarks along the way, Underwood said.

In those days, when a boat would get stuck on a reef, you had to pull it off by hooking a line to a tree or some other solid object ashore. "You just had to keep it jumping until you got it over the reef," he said.

But today, with uniformly deep water, lack of strong currents, boats equipped with radar, sonar and better steering, "it's just like driving a car."

Underwood achieved national publicity about 10 years ago when he piloted the sternwheeler Belle of Louisville to victory over the bigger and more powerful Delta Queen in races at Louisville.

Actually, Underwood won the race three or four times — he couldn't recall the exact number — after losing his first outing because of a faulty boiler.

He said he had an advantage over his opponent because he had worked for several years on the Delta Queen making excursion runs on the inland waterways. "I knew what she could do," he said.

Underwood said he got the smaller and lighter Belle off to a faster start and piloted her into the channel to force the Queen into shallower water where the big paddlewheel becomes much less effective.

Gulf Keeps Old Vessels Well Hidden

By Bill Kidd
A-J AUSTIN BUREAU

AUSTIN — The Gulf of Mexico, which three centuries ago swallowed up two of the ships of the French explorer Rene Robert Cavelier, Sieur de LaSalle, has refused to yield the remains of those historic vessels.

Marine archaeologist Barto Arnold, who headed efforts this summer by the Texas Antiquities Committee to locate the wreck of the "Amiable" and a smaller vessel, said this summer's TAC field season failed to find the sites, if they are in fact within Matagorda Bay near Port O'Connor.

Arnold said "documentary evidence" indicates the vessels were lost there in 1685, but a magnetometer search of five square miles of the sandy bay bottom (guided by 17th century maps as well as 20th century technology) failed to locate the French ships.

Twelve "anomalies" were located, five of those turned out not to be shipwreck sites, according to Arnold, including one "interesting" wreck of a small sailing vessel dating to the period of the Civil War or slightly later.

Two of the vessels date from this century, Arnold said, while two seem to date from the prior century. Anothere is a late 19th or early 20th century wreck.

Unless additional information relating to the LaSalle ships is found, Arnold said, "I don't think we'll be doing anything else in this area," since the "prime" sites where the wrecks were expected to be found have been searched.

Meanwhile, the TAC is continuing its work on the 1554 Spanish shipwrecks from offshore Padre Island with a just-completed 800-page typescript of the documentary material relating to those wrecks going to the printers.

The material includes such things as a daily account of the Spanish salvage operation and a manifest of one of the vessels as it sailed from Vera Cruz, the archaelogist said.

That report should be out by Christmas, Arnold said, while another volumn on the TAC's work on the 1554 wreck sites is due in November.

Fire 'Victim' Found Alive, Well 13 Years Later

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — A North Dakota farmer who was believed to have died in a motel fire here almost 13 years ago has been found working on a ranch, police say.

Investigators said Clayton Kenneth Weedeman, then 42, discovered the day after the Dec. 4, 1965, fire that officials believed he was the man found dead in the room he had rented at the East Shore Motel.

They said Weedeman seized on the mistake as an opportunity to drop out of sight and start a new life. He adopted the new last name of Olson and held several jobs in the next few years, police said.

"We have determined that he was not involved in the fire," an investigator said. "Now all we've got to do is find out who it was who died there."

Great Falls police said an investigator for the North Dakota Bureau of Criminal Investigation, Jack Westphal, located Weedeman at a ranch in Powell County about 100 miles southwest of Great Falls where he had worked for two years.

Westphal began his investigation after hearing rumors earlier this year that Weedeman had visited relatives in his hometown of Parshall, N.D., at least twice after his supposed death.

Great Falls detectives said Weedeman was an alcoholic at the time of the fire and that although he now is recovered, he remembers nothing about the fire or who may have been in the room he had rented for six days.

They said Weedeman apparently was passed out in downtown Great Falls when the fire broke out and did not learn of it until the next day.

Investigators assumed the severely burned body found in Weedeman's room was his. A pair of pants with Weedeman's identification was found on the floor, and his car was parked outside the room.

"He thinks it's possible he came to Great Falls with another farm hand from North Dakota, but he can't say for sure," a detective said. "About all he knows for sure is that he had a lot of problems with debts, creditors and his marriage, and the fire provided him with a good chance to lose himself."

Police Open Fire On Refugee Camp

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Eight Burmese were killed and six wounded when police opened fire to disperse an unruly crowd at a refugee camp, government officials here said Friday.

The camp is one of 11 along the Burmese border housing a total of some 225,000 Burmese Moslems who fled to Bangladesh this year claiming they were persecuted in heavily Buddhist Burma.

Repatriation for the refugees starts Sept. 15 under an agreement signed in July by the two countries.

'Jiggle Shows' Bounce Way To Top Of Ratings

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Jiggle shows."

It began three years ago with "Charlie's Angels" which starred Farrah Fawcett-Majors, Jaclyn Smith and Kate Jackson as a trio of stunning detectives jiggling hither and yon in pursuit of the bad guys.

Lynda Carter as "Wonder Woman" and Lindsay Wagner as "Bionic Woman" contributed their share of interesting bounces to the tube.

Then along came "Three's Company" with Suzanne Somers and Joyce De Witt sharing an apartment with John Ritter. Ritter doesn't jiggle but Suzanne and Joyce more than compensate for what he lacks in anatomical acrobatics.

The Sept. 3 national Nielsen ratings reported the top four shows were jigglers: 1. "Flying High" 2. "Three's Company" 3. "Laverne and Shirley" (girls with less jiggle) 4. "Charlie's Angels."

Network panjandrums are convinced the viewing public at this moment in time would rather see beautiful females on TV than almost anything else.

Ergo, there are two new jiggle shows scheduled for the coming season. "Flying High" features Kathie Witt, Pat Klous and Connie Selleca playing airline stewardesses. "The American Girls" stars Debra Clinger and Priscilla Barns as investigative TV news researchers.

"The American Girls," which makes its debut Saturday, Sept. 23, stretches viewer credulity with the premise that two gorgeous young things crisscross the country in a van digging up stories for a TV network. But then "Charlie's Angels," after all, isn't a documentary either.

Invariably and with some justification, the actresses who star in the jiggle shows resent the insinuation that they have been hired solely or principally because of their ability to jiggle and bounce.

But in fairness, it should be noted none of the ladies is flat-chested either.

She is an auburn-haired, green-eyed beauty in her mid-20s with a full figure and a sense of humor. Debra is also single, a Mormon and doesn't believe in cohabitation without a marriage license.

"We women happen to have good bodies and they happen to jiggle," Debra said with a giggle during a lunch break at the Burbank Studios the other day. "Our anatomy is such that we just bounce up and down. I suppose all females do.

"I've never really noticed my own or anyone else's jiggle, not even when I see the dailies of our show. Maybe it's my family and Mormon upbringing.

"I have a different quality. I don't think of myself as sexy. I'm more the wholesome all-American type.

"But it upsets me that they call 'The American Girls' a jiggle show.

"Sometimes I ask myself why can't we have women's shows without the sexual overtones. Then I answer myself by saying good-looking women are sexy. But so are good-looking men and they don't call men's series 'macho shows.'

"There's no way I think our sort of show is exploitive of females. If people want to look at attractive women, I think that's fine. I'm glad it's happening.

"All my professional life I've been told that girls aren't happening. TV series were all cops and cowboys and doctors and lawyers. There was hardly any future for women. Show business was a man's and boy's world."

Debra began her career as a member of the Clinger Sisters singing group. Like the singing Osmond family, fellow Mormons and close friends, the Clingers toured the country singing in concerts, state fairs. They made regular appearances on "The Andy Williams Show."

When the group broke up, Debra joined two other female vocalists to form The Rock Flowers and toured with Tom Jones for nine months. But the country wasn't ready for an all-girl rock group.

Thereafter Debra became Super Chick, a member of Kaptain Kool and the Kongs on "The Krofft Super Show," a Saturday morning kid program, for three years. That led to acting assignments in "The Hardy Boys" and "Barnaby Jones."

"Everthing is different now," Debra said. "Girls are in, and I think 'Charlie's Angels' is responsible. Those girls really broke the ice.

"Men watch the show because the girls are pretty. Women watch to see the hair and clothes styles — just like they used to tune in to see what Cher was wearing and how she fixed her hair.

"As little as three years ago hardly anyone had heard of Farrah, Kate, Jaclyn, Lynda and Lindsay. They are all talented in their own way.

"I think my timing is right. I've been lucky. But I'm also a hard worker.

"Priscilla and I met for the first time when we made the pilot. We've become good friends and, like the 'Charlie's Angels' actresses, we aren't competitive with one another. We're quite different. I'm a tomboy and Priscilla isn't.

"She's younger than I am but she plays the older girl in the show. We're both single and we love what we're doing."

Police Rescue Hostage, Quell Jail Uprising

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Police pulled a hostage clear, and fired shotgun blasts into the receiving area of a jail that had been seized by about 30 inmates, ending a seven-hour standoff early Sunday.

Six of the prisoners were wounded by the shots, but none of them seriously.

Chatham County guard Mike Daniels, 23, was freed after authorities persuaded the inmates to allow Daniels to talk to his mother by telephone in the jail's receiving area. Only one of the inmates bringing Daniels to the telephone was known to be armed, said chief jailer Luke Sims.

When Daniels came close enough, a deputy pulled him through the door, and another officer fired several shotgun blasts at the prisoners nearest the door, Sims said.

One inmate was hospitalized with leg wounds and the others were treated and returned to the jail, Sims said.

Sims said Daniels, who was not injured, did not know of the rescue plan. "We didn't tell him anything," said Sims. "We just hoped and prayed we could save him. He ducked down and one of the county officers grabbed him and at the same time the man with the gun went in and did his job."

He said between 40 and 50 officers wearing bullet-proof vests and helmets entered the jail, ending the uprising that began Saturday night when an inmate, convicted bank robber Joseph Bennett, pointed a .22-caliber pistol at guard Eugene Ryea.

"He said, 'Open this cell or I will blow you to pieces,'" Sims said. Ryea was put in Bennett's cell, Sims said, and Bennett then used Ryea's key to unlock other cells in the 91-year-old jail.

Ryea later escaped to another section of the jail, where he was freed from the outside.

Two other guards, Ray Chambers and Bryden Henderson, ran upstairs to the top floor of the four-story jail, and barricaded themselves into a room. Officers outside pulled bars from a window and two officers joined Chambers and Henderson inside.

Sims said when Ryea was seized, none of the guards in the jail were armed. County Sheriff Paul Griffin said it was not determined how Bennett acquired the pistol.

While Daniels was being held, two prisoners were beaten and there were threats that other inmates would be beaten every five minutes until prisoners' demands for four automobiles were met, Sims said. The threat was not carried out and the automobiles were not delivered, he added.

A new county jail has been built, but since it is not completely furnished, it is not being used.

On Saturday night, about 190 men and 60 women were being held in the current jail. None of the women were involved in the incident, Sims said.

Reporter Suffers First School 'Daze' With Son

By LARRY McDERMOTT

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — There's no question that the first day of school is the hardest. But who suffers the most? The parents or the child?

Here's a vote for the parents.

Monday morning came so quickly. Suddenly, I sat up in the bed. One of my worst fears had been realized — I had turned off the alarm clock and slept an extra 30 minutes.

While Linda rushed to get our 3 1/2-year-old son, Marshall, dressed and fed, I dashed to the shower and turned on the water — ready for the sting of hot water that would fully awaken me.

Twisting the knobs was no help. For the first time, I showered and washed my hair with three ounces of water.

My hands fumbled with the tie, and not until the third attempt did I get it right.

Marshall paused in the doorway, then astounded us by tossing aside a small pillow given to him by his great-grandmother and dragged without fail to homes in different cities and across untold miles of travel.

Suddenly and painfully, he seemed much older. In tossing aside that pillow, he abandoned some dependence — an act we had hoped for aloud but secretly feared.

He strode through the doorway toward the car, I moped behind him.

"Come on, Daddy," he said with glee.

I mumbled something and kept trying to swallow a lump in my throat.

A gasoline tank needle on "E," a long line at the gas station and an attendant who moved with the speed of a glacier put us behind schedule. Then, it was bumper-to-bumper until we reached the small school.

Children and mothers — where were all those liberated fathers? — bustled about. Strangers, every one. Then, I rubbed my chin and realized, to my horror, that I had forgotten to shave. Would they refuse to admit the son of an unshaven character?

Without a word, he communicated in a language reserved for a father and son. The lump in my throat returned. What was I doing?

Miss Becky, his teacher, spoke warmly and softly to Marshall, coaxing him from his death grip and tenderly taking him toward the dark depths of the school.

Just before they disappeared into the classroom, Marshall turned and gave me one more final plea without uttering a word. I screwed up all the courage within me and smiled. And then, he was gone.

Walking to the car, I felt like a traitor. Would he still love me? Would he adjust?

Not only do schools educate children, but they also make little men out of little boys. Somehow, that seemed unfair to me.

Hearst Says Story Will Shock Public

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patty Hearst's 22-year-old sister, speaking publicly for the first time about the imprisoned heiress' ordeal, predicts that people will someday be "shocked that after what she went through she could be convicted."

In an interview with KPIX-TV here, Anne Hearst said the effort to free her sister from prison was helped by the admission by William and Emily Harris two weeks ago that they kidnapped Patty Hearst.

"I'm very glad they came out the way they did, as viciously as they did. I thought it was good for some of the people in this country to really take a look at the Harrises and see what they're really like.

Patty Hearst has served 17½ months of a seven-year term for participating in a San Francisco bank robbery with the Symbionese Liberation Army terrorists who kidnapped her from a Berkeley apartment in 1974.

"I think eventually people will look back and be just so shocked that after what she went through ... and then she robbed a bank surrounded by people with machine guns ... that she could be convicted under the circumstances," Anne Hearst said.

Commission Seeks To Ban Sambo Name

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Calling the Sambo's restaurant chain name "a constant reminder of slavery," the head of the Rhode Island Commission for Human Rights Sunday said he would seek state legislation banning it.

James R. Warrick Jr., the commission's executive director, said he would support a bill to amend the restaurant chain's corporate charter so it couldn't use the name in Rhode Island.

Presently, the California-based chain has two Sambo's in Rhode Island and two more under construction. The Legislature does not meet again until January.

"Minorities resent having to live in a community that permits businesses to openly advertise a name that provides a constant reminder of slavery," Warrick said.

The name Sambo's is commonly associated with the children's book "Little Black Sambo," about a boy who is chased by tigers which eventually turn into butter. The boy takes the butter home for his mother to make into pancakes.

The chain has changed the name of some of its restaurants to "The Jolly Tiger" in communities where complaints were loudest. But it maintains changing all the names of all would be too expensive.
