Israel Withholding Major Concessions

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — Despite a "gigantic effort," President Carter has been unable to gain major concessions from Israel at the Mideast summit, diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

"Getting Israel to move was the problem all along, even before the summit began," said an official who asked not to be identified. About the outcome of the summit, however, the official said, "It's too early to make a judgment either way."

Carter met for a second consecutive day with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat after a scheduled meeting Monday night between Egyptian and U.S. ministers was called off, without explanation.

Urges New Ideas

The ministerial meeting subsequently was held Tuesday afternoon.

It was understood that Carter was soliciting new ideas from Sadat as well as inviting the Egyptian leader to respond to Israeli thinking. Carter has followed a similar procedure during meetings with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

As the summit rounded out a week, Sadat and Begin remained apart. They have not met face-to-face at the negotiating table since last Thursday.

Jody Powell, White House press secretary and summit spokesman, cautioned reporters not to draw any conclusions from the suspension of three-way meetings.

"There hasn't been any need for one," he said.

"Gigantic Effort"

Powell agreed that Carter was making a "gigantic effort." The spokesman said "there has been flexibility shown on both sides." But he did not claim the president had gained major concessions.

In the talks, Powell said, all summit participants have been exchanging "thoughts, ideas, questions and suggestions" from the outset.

Again, he provided no details.

It is known, however, that the discussions have centered on the fundamental issues in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

These include Arab demands that Israel give up the land it captured during the Six-Day war of 1967 and recognize that the Palestinian Arabs have "legitimate rights," including the right to a homeland on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

Sadat Phones Hussein

Powell disclosed that Sadat telephoned King Hussein on Monday, but there was no report about the substance of their conversation.

Hussein, who lost the West Bank to Israel after 19 years of control by Jordan, has ruled himself out of Mideast peace talks until Israel commits itself to withdraw.

"There are no plans for King Hussein to come to Camp David," Powell said.

Carter is now to be exploring with both the Egyptians and Israelis provisions of a proposed declaration of principles regarding the future of Palestinian Arabs.

The goal is to settle on language that is acceptable to both the 1.1 million Palestinians living on the West Bank and in the Gaza region of the Sinai Desert.

Under an earlier Begin plan, Palestinians would have remained under Israeli military control. Sadat has rejected that idea. Carter is trying to forge a compromise.

mise acceptable to both sides and which would draw Jordan into the peace process in the future. Such a move would provide much needed Arab support for Sadat, who has been alone in negotiating with Israel.

Refusing to speculate on when or how the summit might wind up, Powell said: "I'm not being evasive. There simply is not a good basis for predicting or guessing how it will conclude."

He said there are no plans to change Carter's weekend travel arrangements, which call for him to visit North Carolina and South Carolina on Friday and Pennsylvania and Ohio on Saturday.

"If we reach the point where that becomes an issue, we'll deal with it then," he said.

Carter, making a "more intense effort" according to his press secretary, has shuttled between Sadat and Begin, looking for compromises on the future of the West Bank and Palestinian Arabs.

Powell has said Carter would bring the two leaders together at an appropriate point.

As Powell has described it, the negotiating process is reminiscent of difficult labor-management relations, with a mediator shuttling between the contending parties.

Begin was temporarily on the sidelines. He found time Monday night to play chess with Zbigniew Brzezinski, the head of the U.S. National Security Council staff.

Brzezinski won, breaking their 1-1 tie.

Leaders Named In Tax Revolt

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE LOCAL tax revolt acquired a new complexion Tuesday when the Lubbock Property Owners Association elected a permanent board of directors, only three of which were board members when the organization began.

About 200 persons meeting in the Monterey High School auditorium voted to reduce the number of board members from 14 who served on the interim board to nine permanent board members.

The only three board carryovers were association co-founder Bob Green, Jim Black and Jerry Thornahlen.

Noticeably absent from the permanent board was interim chairman Gene Medley, whose name had become synonymous with the LPOA.

Carryover director Thornahlen explained that many members, including Medley, found the time demands of the organization excessive and said some were caught off guard by unfavorable reaction to the association's activities.

Others elected to the board were D.J. Faulkner, Elmer East, Norma Webb, Jan Chapman, Jack House Jr. and John Smith.

Preliminary indications at Tuesday's meeting pointed to a more reasonable and more organized tax revolt effort.

Elmer East urged the group "not to be so critical as to criticize everything." East also said he was disappointed on the "effect we've had on the local school and city" and said the association needed to be broadly based and more organized to be more effective.

Urge Waste Cutting

Board member House urged association members to contact City Hall employees and Lubbock Independent School District employees to "help locate the waste."

House said any board member obtaining such information from government workers should forward it to the LPOA directors by mail.

The meeting became somewhat of a free-for-all with a parade of association members detailing their tax woes and gripes about the city and school district.

One member suggested cutting taxes by the amount of revenue increased over last year. City manager Larry Cunningham and his department heads "ought to be recalled if they can't make the cuts."

Another man suggested "getting rid of the deadwood in City Hall" rather than eliminating city brush pickup as the council has voted to do. The "deadwood," he said, is in the "secondary administration" at City Hall.

Association attorney Warren Goss chastised the group for talk of what had or had not been accomplished, saying "talk is cheap."

Goss said the organization had "achieved some degree of success," and questioned whether a 100 percent success rate is possible.

The permanent board of directors will meet soon to select a new board chairman.

Mail Strike Threats Withdrawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — A labor mediator moved Tuesday to settle the deadlocked postal contract dispute on his own as big city union leaders backed down from earlier threats to stage an illegal mail strike this week.

Mediator James J. Healy said he would make a final, binding contract decision by Saturday because the Postal Service and three unions representing 516,000 workers had failed to make progress toward a settlement after 10 days of talks.

Healy said the two sides still could reach their own agreement before Saturday's 9 a.m. CDT deadline, superseding his decision. But "while a negotiated settlement is still possible, it is almost certain now that it will be necessary for me to resolve the issues," he added.

The unions are seeking to improve a 19.5 percent wage increase contained in a proposed three-year contract rejected by workers last month. Management, however, wants to remove a no-layoff clause contained in the rejected pact.

Meanwhile, the head of a group of postal local leaders of the American Postal Workers Union said Tuesday that he probably would call off plans for wildcat strikes around the country today because of a lack of member support.

"I really don't expect it to come off," said William Burrus, president of the Cleveland-area Postal Workers local and chairman of the group of dissident leaders.

"I anticipate at this point that it (strike) will be called off in the morning unless something drastic happens," said Burrus. He said the only strong commitments for striking have come from locals in New York, Detroit and Pittsburgh, beside his local.

The local leaders had threatened to strike, contending that a settlement by Healy is unacceptable because workers

Filibuster Indicated On Gas Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said Tuesday that opponents of a natural gas pricing compromise that would lift price controls from new-found gas by 1985 may be forced to resort to a filibuster as a means of defeating the proposal.

While the outcome is still uncertain, Baker conceded that opponents are short of the votes needed to kill the critical natural gas section of President Carter's energy program.

As the Senate began its second day of debate on the energy bill, Baker said he would personally work to defeat the compromise.

"I intend to be active," said the Tennessee senator, who belatedly joined a coalition of conservative Republicans

New Guidelines Urged On Free School Lunches

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LUBBOCK public schools next year may use a more restrictive income scale for determining who gets free lunches and breakfasts.

School trustees Harold Harriger and Giles "Buddy" Forbes, among others, believe the present criteria are too liberal — and that children who can afford to pay their own way are getting completely tax-subsidized meals.

Adopting a "more realistic" income eligibility scale would be a start toward ensuring that free meals go to only truly needy families, Forbes said.

Other Problems Encountered

Eligibility guidelines are just one problem with the National School Lunch/Breakfast Program, Forbes said. Another, he contends, is that schools are helpless to verify the information put on free-meal applications by parents.

"By law, you can't require proof of a family's eligibility before you approve their application. This really bothers me — we have no checks and balances over who is or is not eligible," Forbes said.

"It's hard to turn people down if you can't check out what they say their income is. It seems everybody who applies gets on free lunch."

Forbes said Lubbock and other school districts must rely on the "honesty and integrity of people. Most people are very honest; they are not going to abuse the system. But there's a small percentage of people who may not be entirely truthful about what they put on their application."

Fighting Spreads In Nicaragua

OUTSIDE MASAYA, Nicaragua (AP) — Bloody street fighting raged through embattled Masaya Tuesday as national guard troops fought for ground inch by inch against rebels trying to overthrow President Anastasio Somoza.

In Managua, Somoza told a news conference he would fight to the finish. "If they want peace we will give them peace," he said. "If not we will give them no quarter."

The bitter conflict threatened to involve Costa Rica to the south and Honduras in the north.

In San Jose, Costa Rica, the civil guard director said a Nicaraguan plane strafed a vehicle Tuesday morning on a Costa Rican road two miles from the border town of Penas Blancas. Ramon Umans said he had no information about casualties, but the attack spread panic among Penas Blancas' 6,000 residents.

Honduran customs agents said at least 2,000 Nicaraguans had arrived at border outposts in the previous four days. Some sought refuge in Honduras while others bought food and then went back to Nicaragua, they said.

Somoza made no mention of an air raid into Costa Rica but acknowledged at his news conference that Nicaraguan guerrillas — who serve as the army and police force of this Central American nation — might have crossed the border.

He said 50 guerrillas entered Nicaragua from Costa Rica early Tuesday and advanced about four miles before being driven back by Nicaraguan troops who might have entered Costa Rica "in pursuit" of the invaders.

Somoza called the revolt "the most violent and bloodiest uprising" in Nicaragua in 50 years and predicted the fighting would continue for a week.

He said 30 national guardsmen have been killed and about 70 wounded, but "I have no figures on civilian casualties." Various other reports including opposition claims put guard casualties much higher — at least 200 dead since Saturday.

Commenting on reports of hundreds of civilian deaths, Somoza said, "It is unfortunate that the guerrillas enter private homes. We regret the action we must take but we have to neutralize the guerrillas."

He also reported the national guard had secured Masaya at noon. A trooper at a roadblock on the outskirts of the city, 18 miles southwest of the capital of Managua, told journalists:

Saudi Promises No Oil 'Weapon'

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Prince Saud el Faisal of Saudi Arabia said Tuesday his country will not use oil "as a weapon" if the Camp David summit fails to bring peace to the Middle East.

Faisal, who is Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, made the comment to reporters on the opening day of the 22-nation Arab League's annual meeting. Foreign ministers from 15 other Arab countries also are attending.

Mahmoud Riad of Egypt, secretary general of the Arab League, opened the meeting by calling for Arab solidarity, an end to feuding among Arab countries and a solid Arab front to find ways to end the 30-year-old Arab-Israeli dispute.

Informed sources said the Arab diplomats will discuss what Arab strategy will be if the Camp David summit ends inconclusively.

U.N. Panel Urges Puerto Rican Vote

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Cuba and Iraq steered a resolution through a U.N. committee Tuesday calling for self-determination for Puerto Rico, now a U.S. commonwealth.

The U.N. Special Committee on Decolonization approved the resolution 10-0 with 12 abstentions after rejecting an Australian amendment that would have softened language critical of the United States.

Cuba began trying 13 years ago to reverse a resolution that removed Puerto Rico from the U.N. list of non-self-governing territories.

The United States is not a member of the committee, whose resolutions are non-binding and are strictly advisory in nature.

Thousands Skip School In Busing Protest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thousands of white parents kept their children away from city schools Tuesday as the first day of a massive integration program got rolling in the nation's second-largest school district.

Early attendance reports showed that many students assigned to travel from the predominantly white San Fernando Valley to inner-city schools avoided classes.

Leaders of an anti-busing boycott, who staged a rally attended by 4,000 persons Monday night, hope to force cancellation of mandatory parts of the plan by stripping the district of white students.

The otherwise smooth start of school was marred by scattered picketing, a bomb threat, four minor bus accidents and a bus lost in traffic for four hours.

Early figures from schools receiving youngsters from the inner city and East Side indicated that black and Mexican-American parents did not heavily participate in a boycott of classes.

At Sequoia Junior High School in the Valley, for example, about 400 black and Hispanic students arrived at school. But of the 396 white students scheduled to travel the other direction from the Valley to Stevenson Junior High School on the East Side, only 85 showed up.

Many white parents simply kept their children home Tuesday while others sent their youngsters to newly created private schools and tutoring groups established by anti-busing parents as legal alternatives to the busing plan.

Board of Education member Bobbi Fiedler, a busing foe, said 15 percent to 25 percent of the white pupils scheduled for busing went to school Tuesday and most of the no-shows will not return.

"I don't think what you're seeing is a boycott," said Mrs. Fiedler. "It's a withdrawal from the school system."

But school officials stressed that some schools had received phone calls from parents who planned to keep their children home only the first day to see how the busing plan worked out.

"We will be announcing that school opened uneventfully, peacefully and well," said school board president Howard Miller.

Despite the high white absentee rate, Miller and Mayor Tom Bradley said the start of integration in the 711-square mile district was a success.

"I'm most pleased by the response of the people of Los Angeles," said Bradley. "I'm very pleased at the way this has all come together, the way the community has come together."

Asked about some buses running near-empty, he said, "I don't anticipate any significant boycott. I think the overwhelming majority of people in this city are going to obey the law whether or not they like it."

Most of the partially filled buses were those which left the predominantly white San Fernando Valley for inner-city minority schools. Attendance was heavier for students going in the other direction. Only 13 of 62 students scheduled to ride one bus from the valley were aboard when the vehicle made its last stop and headed for the freeways.

In the outer reaches of the San Fernando Valley, youngsters and parents had to wait for up to an hour at assigned stops. Some parents just gave up and took their children home.

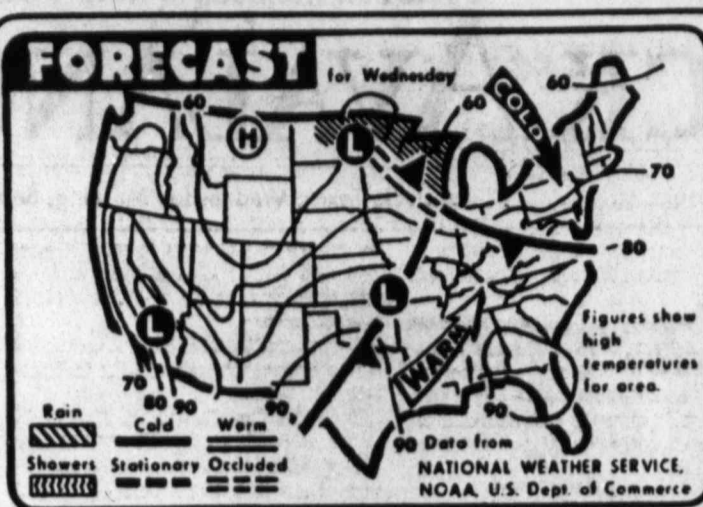

Compounding the delays was heavy rush-hour traffic on the freeways. Four minor traffic accidents involving buses were reported, but police said no one was injured.

Of the district's 570,000 students, 35 percent are Hispanic, 34 percent white, 24 percent black and 7 percent Asian. The busing plan covers 62,000 students in the fourth through eighth grades — 30,000 of whom volunteered to be bused.

While the district began its integration program, parents and youngsters who were not on the buses began classes at neighborhood tutoring sessions and new private schools.

At Bonnie Shuben's home in Canoga Park, a Valley community, six sixth-graders were tested by a tutor to determine their competency. In another part of the house, parents discussed the three-hour sessions, in which more than 400 youngsters were enrolled as a legal alternative to busing.

Dorothy Swift, two of whose five children were to be bused, kept all of them home, hoping a boycott would force the board to reconsider its plan.

Typhoid Cases Confirmed In Britain

LONDON (AP) — Six confirmed cases of typhoid fever were reported in Britain Tuesday. Health authorities said three of the victims became ill after a cruise on a Soviet liner.

Health officials said they were trying to trace another 500 persons who went on cruises aboard the Soviet liner Litva last month.

They said there was no firm evidence yet that the infectious disease is being spread by the Soviet ship, and three of the confirmed cases appeared to have no connection with it.

The typhoid alert began last weekend when three Britons, including a 12-year-old girl, came down with the disease two weeks after returning from a cruise on the Litva. They now are in hospital isolation wards.

Three new cases identified Tuesday were unrelated to the ship, officials said. Medical checks are planned on the liner and its crew when it docks at Tilbury, east of London on the River Thames, on Saturday.

Last month more than 100 passengers who took a two-week Litva cruise signed a protest petition saying cockroaches, unwashed crockery and other unclean conditions caused food poisoning on board. One passenger, Terence Starr of Bristol, said: "It was an awful trip. The food was dreadful and I was ill for some of the time."

The ship docked Tuesday night at Lisbon, Portugal, on its return from a Mediterranean cruise. Some passengers complained of bad food, but port authorities in Lisbon allowed them to leave the ship to tour the city.

"There are no cases of food poisoning. There are no problems on board. There is no risk in letting these people off," said Lisbon's port physician, Dr. Ruben Cunha.

The ship's captain, Valentin Stebnovsky, and an agent for the liner, declined to answer reporters' questions.

"What is this, Western propaganda? British propaganda?" asked the agent, who did not give his name.

Passenger Reg Jones, 59, of Cardiff, Wales, described the food as "bloody awful" and said his wife had been "very ill with tummy trouble from a few days after we set sail."

THE ROAD IN EDUCATION — Los Angeles Unified School District buses Tuesday travel along the Hollywood Freeway bringing children from the San Fernando Valley area schools back to their homes across Los Angeles. More than 62,000 pupils were assigned to bus rides of up to two hours round trip across Los Angeles — geographically the nation's largest school district. (AP Laserphoto)

Skies should be mostly sunny today, with northwesterly winds at 10-15 mph. Tonight's low is expected to dip into the lower 60s.

Fair skies allowed temperatures to soar to 96 by 5 p.m. Tuesday, following an early morning low of 69. Winds blew over the South Plains from the south and southwest at 10 to 15 mph.

Most of West Texas enjoyed clear skies, except for southern portions of the region where scattered rains from the weak cold front fell late Tuesday.

Partly cloudy skies and rains also were reported in parts of East Texas. Tuesday afternoon temperatures around the state ranged from 98 at Childress to 76 at Tyler.

Showers are expected to remain in the east today, while fair and partly cloudy skies are expected for the rest of the state.

Hearings' Opening Nearer For Koreagate Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee moved closer Tuesday to opening hearings on four congressmen accused of accepting funds from former South Korean entrepreneur Tongsun Park, who was waiting in the wings as a surprise witness.

Rep. John J. Flynt, D-Ga., chairman of the committee, said he hoped to clear up all legal technicalities and secondary matters by the end of the day. If so, he said, the hearings could begin Wednesday.

Park, who flew from South Korea to Washington Saturday night, said he did not know whether he would be called to testify in any, or all, of the cases.

"I came to avail myself as a witness," the former rice dealer said, adding that he was "totally prepared" to testify on whatever matters the committee desired.

The appearance of Park, who has been accused of trying to buy influence in Congress for the South Korean government, surprised many who were waiting for the committee to clear up technical matters in preparation for the start of the hearings.

Bus Screening Yields Aliens

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Labor and Standards hopes it can repeat an experimental operation it made with the U.S. Border Patrol to inspect labor buses, Commissioner Lynn Tate said Tuesday.

"It is our intention to continue and expand this project in El Paso and extend it down the rest of the Texas-Mexico border," Tate said.

State investigators recently teamed with border patrol agents to inspect labor buses during an eight-day period in El Paso. The operation led to 256 arrests of illegal aliens as well as citing of 10 drivers of the buses.

Tate said the border patrol reported that the operation resulted in "contractors screening potential workers more thoroughly, thereby reducing the number of illegals boarding labor buses which is, of course, a definite asset to our operations."

The Justice Department has agreed to drop all 36 criminal charges against Park in exchange for his truthful testimony. Park previously had testified before the committee on payments to some 30 present and former congressmen, and his testimony was the basis for the charges against the four.

The committee alleged in a complaint issued two months ago that the four violated House rules.

It accused Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., of failing to report a $1,000 cash contribution from Park in 1974, of converting the cash to his personal use, of testifying originally that he received no funds from Park and of testifying in an amended statement that he accepted the funds but put the money in his campaign account.

It accused Rep. John J. McFall, D-Calif., of failing to report a 1974 campaign contribution of $3,000 from Park, of converting those funds to his personal use and of conducting himself in a manner that did not reflect creditably on the House by accepting $1,000 in cash in 1972, a $500 tea set in 1973, and $3,000 in cash in 1974 from Park. It accused Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., of falsely stating to the committee that he received nothing from Park. The committee contended that Wilson received $600 from an agent of Park in 1975.

It accused Rep. Edward J. Patten, D-N.J., of conduct unacceptable to the House by allegedly violating the laws of New Jersey when he gave a $500 contribution to the Middlesex County Democratic Organization, claiming the contribution as his own when it actually came from Park.

If the committee determines the violations in fact occurred, the four could face penalties — imposed by the full House — ranging from a reprimand to expulsion from House membership. In addition, the House could recommend that criminal charges be turned over to the Justice Department.

New York's first daily newspaper, The Morning Post and Daily Advertiser, was founded in 1792.

Ex-Colombian Official Assassinated

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Two assassins masquerading as soldiers shot and killed former Interior Minister Rafael Pardo Buelvas as he was shaving in his home Tuesday morning, police reported.

Pardo Buelvas, 52-year-old leader of Colombia's Conservative Party, died while being taken to a hospital, police said.

Informed sources said the killing was believed to be revenge by leftist groups for the interior minister's actions as head of the nation's police during a September 1977 national strike. Fourteen persons died in confrontations with the police and the army in connection with the strike, called to demand wage increases.

The killers, whom police assumed to be members of a guerrilla group, entered Pardo Buelvas' home after identifying themselves to his wife as members of the Colombian army.

"We are here to protect Dr. Pardo Buelvas, in fulfillment of the government's new security measures," they reportedly told his wife, who directed the two men to the bathroom where her husband was shaving. The pair, wearing uniforms, helmets and carrying rifles, opened fire and riddled the political leader's body with bullets, then fled, police said.

Pardo Buelvas was named agriculture minister in 1977 by President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen. Two years later he was promoted to interior minister.

Thousands of soldiers and police were pressed into the hunt for the killers, setting up roadblocks and making security checks. Government sources said a number of persons had been detained for questioning.

Gen. Luis Carlos Camacho Leyva, minister of defense, said the government would use all means at its disposal "to capture and punish those responsible for the crime."

AN EDITORIAL:

Better To Be Led Than Red

WHILE THE U.S. is attempting to put out "brush fires" in far-away places, one thing is clear: the problems in the not distant future.

We refer to the confrontation in Nicaragua, where an old "friend" of sorts of the U.S. is facing a severe challenge.

Whether Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza can hold onto the reign his family has enjoyed in the once-thought-of "banana republic" is a matter of pins and needles. But, whatever happens, the U.S. is bound to suffer.

ARMED REBELLION is an old story in Nicaragua, and so is U.S. military intervention in the nation.

As far back as 1855, for instance, a band of American adventurers led by one William Walker helped Nicaraguan rebels overthrow the government and form a new coalition.

Walker and his fellow Americans ran the country until driven out in 1857.

So far, though, the U.S. has managed to remain aloof from the turmoil that threatens to topple the Somoza government now.

Or has it?
Eden Pastora, the leader of a rebel band that invaded the National Palace in Managua on Aug. 22, claimed that the group acted in response to a letter President Carter sent to Somoza three weeks earlier.

Carter praised Somoza for permitting the Human Rights Commission of the Organization of American States to visit the country for the first time to study reported human rights violations.

PASTORA TOLD The Washington Post that his group decided to strike when "we saw the determination of the U.S. to keep Somoza in power until 1981."

The Somoza family does have close ties with the U.S., members of the family having been educated and trained in U.S. schools and colleges.

But, this fact should not obscure one major point in the Nicaraguan upheaval.

The rebels, backed by the Cubans, not only lean to the far left, but obviously have been infiltrated by Communist sympathizers if not outright leaders.

Perpetuating a dictator in power may not be exactly in line with the administration's human rights goals, but accepting another Moscow-connection in the Caribbean area isn't our way of stopping the spread of International Communism either.

Closed DOE Shuts Out Sun

FOR THREE years Joseph C. Yater has struggled in vain from his suburban home in Lincoln, Mass., trying to convince the federal government to explore a promising new approach to harnessing energy from the sun. In theory, Yater's task ought to be an easy one. The need for drastic action to alleviate the critical energy shortage has become an item of faith among the nation's leaders, and solar power has emerged as one of the most promising alternatives.

In practice, however, the Department of Energy, primarily responsible for identifying and developing new sources of energy, has remained stubbornly committed to nuclear fission as the sole feasible alternative.

THAT'S BECAUSE for more than a quarter-century nuclear power virtually monopolized the government's research and development efforts. The work was conducted by the Atomic Energy Commission, recently incorporated in DOE.

Despite the change in the name of the agency, the players remain the same, thousands of men and women (including DOE Sec. James Schlesinger, former AEC chairman) who have devoted much of their adult life to the promotion of atomic energy.

They pay lip service to the potential of solar power, but invariably insist that many years of technological refinement are needed to make it commercially feasible as an energy source.

That's where Yater enters the picture. Three years ago, he asked the National Bureau of Standards to examine his revolutionary concept of using the fluctuating energy of electrons that have been heated by exposure to the sun.

A respected and responsible physicist, Yater developed a plan for a device that he believes could convert solar energy, at relatively low cost, into massive amounts of usable electrical power.

NBS SCIENTISTS analyzed Yater's theory and with MIT colleagues unanimously agreed that construction of a small working model is the necessary next step in testing the idea.

Such a demonstration model probably could be constructed in less than a year, Yater predicts, at an estimated cost of $250,000, a relatively minuscule fraction of the billions of dollars the AEC and DOE have poured into nuclear research.

Instead of proceeding with that step, an unenthusiastic DOE insisted on conducting another theoretical review. After 18 months of skeptical examination, DOE informed Yater this week that it will not support further effort on his concept. Boom. The entire project is killed.

Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., is trying to ex-clude the matter by convincing the NBS to conduct another full review. But the future of all solar research remains in doubt because, as Ryan notes, DOE "has exhibited no real interest in moving forward" to develop alternative energy sources.

ART BUCHWALD:

With Three You Get Break Fast In Court

WASHINGTON—I stepped on a tennis ball this summer while running for another ball. I wouldn't mention it except that Time magazine did a piece on people over 40 who still think they're youngsters when it comes to sports.

They ran a picture of me in a leg cast (I had a badly sprained ankle) and they called me a klutz, which means a klunk who doesn't know what he's doing.

Naturally, I was offended, because Howard Rossell has said on many occasions that my performance on a tennis court could only be compared to Nureyev's on a ballet stage.

The problem with having any kind of sports injury when you're over 40 is not what it does to your body or even to your pride. It's the flak you have to take from well-meaning people who keep asking you what happened.

SINCE I WAS in the cast for six weeks, I was able to break these people down into categories. In the first category were those who demanded to know why I stepped on the tennis ball. My lack answer for them was:

"I always wanted to do it but I never had the nerve. It beats the hell out of ballooning, because when you're flying through the air you have a complete sense of weightlessness."

The second category of sympathizers I ran into would ask, "Why didn't you move the extra tennis ball off the court before you started playing?" "Because that would have taken the fun out of the game," I would reply. "The thrill of tennis is to get the ball back without stepping on the one you left on the court."

I SAID THIS with so much conviction that most people would reply, "I didn't know that."

"Of course, why do you think you play with three tennis balls? You need two to serve with, and one to leave on the court so you can trip over."

The real agony of being in a cast is that you have to listen to everyone else's cast story. I don't believe I ran into one person who hadn't been in a cast at one time or another.

And when you're on crutches, it's very hard to move away when someone starts telling you his or her own tale.

They were all horror stories and ranged from the fact that their bones hadn't been set right and had to be set again to how they were driven up the wall when their injured leg started itching and they had to poke knitting needles down the cast to get relief.

"THE WORST thing," one lady told me, "is that when they take the cast off and you see what your leg looks like, most people faint."

After a while I realized that people were not impressed with how I was injured, so I devised a story which would get their attention.

When asked what happened, I would say, "It's very boring, but if you're really interested—I was on a tennis court, and suddenly this flying saucer landed by the net and a little green man got out wielding a laser pistol."

He said, "Take me to your leader." I didn't know who to take him to—so he shot me in the leg."

You would think that your own orthopedic surgeon would have sympathy for someone over 40 who had suffered a sports injury.

But when I returned to Washington and went to my doctor to have the cast removed, he took one look at my leg and all he said was, "Did you have a nice summer?"

Jest For Fun...

In answer to the sportscaster's inane questions, coaches come out with statements that are equally inane.

A coach once replied to a question, "Well, I'd say that our greatest weakness is our lack of strength."

Another coach once said, "I think you'll see a lot of improvement as we get better."

'Easy, Now--One Step At A Time'

M. STANTON EVANS:

State Of The Church

WASHINGTON—The investiture of Pope John Paul I has prompted a lot of pontificating in the secular press about the supposed problems and opportunities of the Catholic Church.

Most of this commentary has been to the effect that the Church must make its peace with a changing world.

One journalistic account suggests Catholicism has lost adherents because of the late Pope Paul's objections to abortion and birth control.

Another argues that the Church must lead the way to a collectivist ethic of "redistributionism."

The common theme of these assertions is that the Catholic Church—or any other—can hope to survive and prosper only by aligning its views with those prevailing in the secular community.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Focus On Red Bloc

PRESIDENT CARTER knows that the Soviet Union demands freedom of action to wage what the Kremlin calls "wars of liberation," but what the United States calls "wars of Soviet domination." And he has fallen into the same old Soviet trap: "What's ours is ours, what's yours is negotiable."

Soviet policy is that all Communist nations are off-limits for the United States, but the remainder of the world is open hunting ground for the Soviet Union.

But today that power is used everywhere, including whenever the Soviets use it to serve their basic interests.

The Soviet Union taunts the United States whenever we do decently what it does brutally—and this taunt, in turn, is a part of the Soviet plan.

CARTER, HOWEVER, is grievously at fault in not following the sensible guideline of treating different Communist states differently. Our policies should adjust to internal developments and external orientation in the light of the Communist's bloc diversity.

The scope and character of Carter's policy must not be simply an adjunct of U.S. relations with the Soviet Union.

The Soviets reminded Hungary in 1956 and Czechoslovakia in 1968, suspecting that each might leave the Soviet bloc, that the Soviet Union supports its stooges militarily, and with a brutality both remember.

Go to Czechoslovakia, the westernmost Soviet satellite. You find no freedom.

BUT SURVIVAL is a Czech art form. And Carter would be well advised to cash in on Czechoslovakia's latent urge to be somewhat independent of the Soviet Union.

The Hungarian People's Republic—officially the Magyar Népkoztársaság—borders on free Austria and Czechoslovakia. But it is not a Communist satellite. It is a Soviet-occupied country.

Szolnok, 100 kilometers southeast of Budapest on the Tisza River, is the Soviet Red Army headquarters in Hungary, housing a mechanized division of the Soviet central reserve.

Another division rings Budapest's two million Hungarians, and another confronts the Romanian border. Two more face the Czech frontier. Eleven airdromes house the Soviet air force, geared to infantry and tanks.

BUT THE Hungarians are a freedom-loving people. This dates back long before the 1956 anti-Soviet revolt, which centered on downtown Engels Platz and the Kalesi railroad station—a broad concrete expanse, the high-domed ceiling more appropriate to a cathedral than to a station. More than 32,000 Hungarians were killed, and about 200,000 fled to Austria.

The Hungarians detest Communist Party leader Janos Kadar, a Soviet stooge. Like a snake, he waits for his opponent to make one false move; then he pounces, striking again and again in stunning fashion until the opponent is caught and thwarted in a desperate, last-ditch try for survival.

However, a great deal of the spirit of freedom seeps through the Iron Curtain to Hungary from Austria.

President Carter needs long-range policy decisions—and the Soviet satellites are places to start down this promising road.

JAY HARRIS:

Texas As One-Way

THAT BIG HOLE in the ground near Fourth Street and Avenue H isn't a place for some oil sheik to put his gold and rubies.

It's the start of a major street project which will affect hundreds of motorists daily, a project which most Lubbock residents probably have forgotten was even on the drawing boards.

The project involves construction of an underpass from Texas Avenue where it dead-ends at Sixth Street over to Fourth and Ave. H. It also involves extensive changes at the intersection and widening of Avenue H north from that point.

When the $1 million-plus project is completed about December 1979, Texas Avenue will become one-way going south from Fourth to 29th Street and Avenue H one-way north from 29th to Fourth.

THE WHOLE THING was conceived some seven or eight years ago, according to Bill McDaniel, City Traffic Engineering Director.

The federally-funded program under which the work was made possible, TOPICS, long ago ceased to exist. Fortunately, the authorization and money didn't. When the whole project is finished, Fourth and Ave. H may join 19th St. and University, Fourth and University and 50th and University, along with a few other "fender crunching" intersections, as one of the busiest in the City.

An elaborate series of lights, turns and more lanes will make it possible for three busy thoroughfares to funnel traffic in and out of the hot spot without too much trouble, or fender-benders, Bill assures us.

Actually, it was way back in the early 1970s that the project was put on the agenda. Funds and right-of-way were obtained over a period of time. Finally, everything is "Go."

WE WON'T GO into all the mind-boggling details of how trucks and cars, people and motorcycles and stray dogs are due to find their way through what at this point seems like the making of a maze.

But, McDaniel, who by now ought to know his traffic signals as well as right, left and wrong turns, says "It'll work as smoothly then as it does now, or smoother." Briefly, here is what is in the works:

Traffic coming north on Avenue H will be a choice, which must be made about 8th St., of which side of the current Ave. H underpass to use. Huge overhead signs as well as a new median—to keep the careless from abutting the abutment—will be erected.

At Fourth, such traffic can go any one of three ways, straight, left or right. Traffic coming from the north on Avenue H also will have multiple choices, including angling off into the new Texas Avenue underpass. Sounds simple, doesn't it?

THERE WILL BE some in the city who will jump up and down on the gas pedal and wonder out loud why $1 million is being spent in this part of town when the Brownfield "Y" and the Tech Freeway-Fourth St. "messes" beg for attention.

Well, the Texas-Ave. H-Fourth project has been in the mill a long time, as a part of the city's long-range traffic plan. Other problems will be faced later.

And, because Texas Tech threw up the road-block and controls it did on Indiana Avenue, there is a study still underway about making Quaker Avenue and Fourth St. major thoroughfares around the campus.

This would be a waste of huge sums of money which could better be used elsewhere. But, the study is still in the works, we understand. In the meantime, Indiana, even in the horse-and-buggy status it enjoys—including the dangerous ground level grade crossing—is serving a vital purpose.

STUDIES ALSO underway, we have been told, concerning major interchanges at the Brownfield "Y" and Tech Freeway and the Freeway and Fourth. But, that is a long way off.

In the meantime, the tedious task of seeking the best route for I-27 continues. Thus far, no definite site location has been chosen.

The consensus seems to be that the extension of the city's first Interstate might go through the eastern part of the business area, specifically along Avenue A or slightly west of that route.

Hopefully, the final route can be moved as far west as possible, especially as it relates to helping funnel traffic out of and into Downtown Lubbock and the Civic Center area.

IT'S TOO BAD the route couldn't have gone down somewhere west of Avenue Q or at least as far west of Avenues K-L once past 19th St.

But, the problems and expense, the experts claim, are too great, the problems outweighing the expense probably.

The argument that no matter where an Interstate goes through a Metropolitan area it tends to "split" the city just isn't necessarily so. In practice, such arteries tend to pull the entire community together.

Such could be the case in Lubbock, providing the city's heavy East-West traffic can be funneled onto an Interstate which will get people into and out of the Midtown area with a minimum of fuss and extra distance.

The truth of the matter is that most Interstate projects work go through Metropolitan areas carry far more local traffic than they do Interstate cross-town traffic. Amarillo, San Antonio, Houston, Austin are classic examples, not to mention Dallas and Fort Worth.

Lubbock still is the largest city in the nation without such a project. It's something to think about...as you wait in those long lines of stacked up rush hour traffic these days...

Ancient Graffiti Helps Date Greek Arched Tunnel

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Archaeologists say that ancient Greek athletes who scratched their names on the damp, stone walls of a passageway have helped establish that it was built 2,300 years ago, the oldest known arched tunnel in the Western world.

The 120-foot-long tunnel, excavated this summer in Nemea, Greece, by a team from the University of California, is believed to have been built around 320 B.C.

Youths and their trainers participating in ancient Panhellenic games at a stadium in Nemea are thought to have used the tunnel as a sort of locker room, carving graffiti on the walls of wedged stone while waiting their turns, UC-Berkeley archaeologist Stephen G. Miller said Tuesday.

Then, the athletes likely charged dramatically through the tunnel onto the field of the stadium, much like modern football players, Miller said.

"The tunnel had to have been placed where it was for effect," not practicality, said Miller, who led the team that has worked for five summers at Nemea, one of four sites of ancient Panhellenic festivals.

One key to dating the tunnel was a name found among the graffiti on the walls — Telestas, a young boxer who records indicate was victorious at Olympia around 340 B.C.

"If we assume he also was at Nemea as an athlete, then the tunnel must have been built by 320 B.C.," said Miller. Pottery shards from trenches in the tunnel's foundation also date to 320 B.C.

"The Romans get credit for developing the vault in the Western world, but it's clear now that it was already in use in Greece before the Romans began using it," Miller said. "The tunnel at Nemea is securely dated earlier than any known Roman vault."

Many of the names found on the walls are followed by the Greek word "kalos," meaning beautiful or fine. Miller guesses the athletes' trainers may have made those inscriptions.

Only about 20 percent of the original graffiti is intact, however. The rest has flaked off over the centuries, and archaeologists are trying to piece the flakes together now.

Miller described the discovery of the tunnel: "I poked a shovel through the dirt at the entrance and hit nothing — air. It was terribly exciting, almost unbelievable, to realize that the vault was still intact."

"We actually had very little work to do to clear it out. When we brought in lights we could see the names of athletes scratched on the walls." Coins and food remains found in the tunnel also indicate it was used by Greeks as a shelter since they were buried later, during a brutal Black Plague of Greece in 542 A.D. How the Greeks knew the tunnel existed remains a mystery, Miller said.

Gold Coin Buyers Receive Caution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Buyers of gold coins are being cautioned by the U.S. Customs Service to check the authenticity of any gold coins they may purchase abroad.

Private mints in Europe are issuing copies of out-of-circulation European gold coins, the service said.

Film Firm Given Fine In 'Star Wars' Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 20th Century Fox Film Co. pleaded no contest Tuesday to a federal charge that it forced theater owners to accept a less popular movie if they wanted to show the box office best-seller "Star Wars."

U.S. District Judge Edmund L. Palmieri in New York fined the film company $25,000 plus a substantial amount of court costs. The exact amount of the costs was not disclosed, but it will include reimbursing the government for a lengthy grand jury investigation, travel expenses for witnesses, and attorneys' services.

In New York, the film company released a statement saying the complaints "related to a few isolated incidents." The statement added: "To the extent that any incidents of 'block-booking' may have occurred, they would have been clearly contrary to the company's policy."

The indictment charged 20th Century engaged in a practice known as block-booking in distributing "Star Wars," the highest grossing film in history.

The company was accused of forcing theaters to show "The Other Side of Midnight," a significantly less successful movie, in order to obtain the right to show "Star Wars."

The contempt citation stems from a 27-year-old court order that prohibits block-booking.

The court decree against block-booking was upheld in 1951 by the Supreme Court. At that time, the government concluded an investigation that charged 20th Century-Fox and other major motion picture companies with monopolistic practices, including conspiring to restrain interstate trade.

Under the practice of block-booking, the movies are not shown simultaneously as a double bill. Normally, the theater owner is required to show the less popular movie for several weeks before he can show the more successful feature.

There have been reports that owners of about 25 New England theaters provided federal investigators with documents that purport to show 20th Century engaged in block-booking.

The indictment cited branch offices of 20th Century in Boston and in Minneapolis, which serves the upper Midwest.

Alleged Diamond Broker Murderers' Trial Starts

NEW YORK (AP) — The prosecution, opening its case in the trial of two diamond cutters charged with murdering a diamond broker, said Tuesday that they were unable to dispose of Pinchos Jaroslawicz's body because the main street of Manhattan's diamond district was closed for repairs.

Assistant District Attorney Peter Stevens said Shlomo Tal, 32, and Pini Balabin, 30, bludgeoned and choked Jaroslawicz in Tal's tiny office on the 15th floor of their West 47th Street building on Sept. 20, 1977, and then stuffed the body of the victim in a small box beneath a workbench.

Stevens told the jurors that he would produce no eyewitnesses to the killing, but would offer circumstantial evidence, including statements made by Tal to police.

"Much of the case against Shlomo Tal comes from his own lips," Stevens told the state Supreme Court jury.

Tal's lawyer, Stephen Hyman, said in a brief statement that the "critical fact" in the case was that Tal eventually led police to the body. "Were it not for the words of Shlomo Tal, he would not be on trial today," Hyman said, adding that his client cooperated fully with police.

Balabin's lawyer, Abraham Brodsky, spoke for only three minutes, saying his client also was innocent.

Tal says two masked and armed men came to his office on the day of the murder and waited in ambush for Jaroslawicz, who was carrying more than 100 diamonds valued at between $600,000 and $750,000.

Balabin was mentioned only briefly by Stevens.

"After a period of initial reluctance" by workers in the secretive diamond district, "people came forward and said, 'Pini Balabin told me he killed Jaroslawicz,'" Stevens said. "In effect, Pini Balabin confessed to the murder."

Tal and Balabin are resident aliens from Israel.

TOMB UNCOVERED

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese archaeologists have unearthed the tomb of a monarch buried more than 2,400 years ago that contains more than 20 smaller coffins, showing that the man's servants were buried alive along with him, the official Hsinshua news agency said Monday. The bronze and wood coffin weighed seven tons and held a skeleton draped in jade and gold.

Angel Dust Use Rate 'Alarming'

HOUSTON (AP) — The chief of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) said Monday the use of "angel dust" is increasing at an alarming rate and sentencing in this area is a disaster.

Peter B. Bensinger, speaking at the annual conference of the International Narcotics Enforcement Officers Association, said the DEA is "fighting with one hand tied behind its back" in the move to stop the sale of the drug.

Bensinger said he favored a bill introduced recently by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., that would increase the jail terms and fines for trafficking in angel dust, the common name for pencyclidine hydrochloride.

Last year, he said, only 110 of the 247 angel dust trafficking cases resulted in jail terms, with the average sentence only two years.

While angel dust has not yet become as serious a drug problem as heroin, the DEA chief said dealers in New York have started selling the substance to offset losses from a decrease in the heroin supply.

Bensinger said the supply of heroin was down 30 percent and that the Mexican government should be commended for their efforts in fighting the drug trade.

Southwest Reports Passenger Increase

DALLAS (Special) — Southwest Airlines carried 40 percent more passengers in August 1978 bringing the monthly total to a new high of 328,801. This compares to 234,190 passengers carried during August 1977.

Revenue passenger miles were up 37 percent to 99,254,567 versus 72,678,873 during August 1977. Load factor for the month was 71.88 percent and available seat miles were up 34 percent.

Howard D. Putnam, president of Southwest Airlines, attributed these results to the continued growth of Southwest's existing markets, the addition of Austin service last September, and a 33 percent increase in aircraft and available seats.

ROUNDUP

Hobbs Police Chief Resigning

A-J Correspondent
HOBBS, N. M. — Hobbs Police Chief Jim Palmer, the city's first black police chief, has announced his resignation, to be effective Sunday.
 Palmer has been a member of the Hobbs Police Department for 27 years, the last five years as chief of police. He is seeking medical retirement.
 In his letter of resignation to Hobbs City Manager Joe Harvey, Palmer said he has experienced almost continuous physical problems which "I feel are contributed to generously by the stress factor in my present job."
 During his five years as chief, Palmer instituted "Operation Quien Sabe," and "Operation Saturation." The two programs are credited with lowering the crime rate in Hobbs during the past two years.
 Maj. Bob Cheney, 37, second in command, will be appointed interim police chief of the 82-member police force. No plans exist at this time to advertise for a new chief.
 A native of Plano, Palmer served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and won the Purple Heart. He serves as a member of the Governor's Council of Criminal Justice Planning and has been a guest lecturer at the New Mexico State Police Academy in Santa Fe.

City Gets Funds For Water Supply

ABERNATHY (Special) — Abernathy has received a $260,000 loan from the Texas Water Development Fund, according to the Texas Department of Water Resources.
 Bond proceeds, along with a $246,000 Farmers Home Administration drought relief assistance grant, and $150,000 from bonds sold in commercial channels will be used for a water supply improvement project. The money will be used for a 200,000 gallon elevated storage tank, new supply lines, land acquisition for a new well site, and modification of existing wells.
 High demands for water have in the past caused the city to request that Abernathy school sharply reduce water usage.
 Drought conditions and peak water usage place a high priority on maintaining a sufficient water supply for fire protection. The existing water supply for the city is severely lacking in capability to meet such demands.
 Completion of the loan transaction involved purchase by the Water Development Fund of City of Abernathy Waterworks and Sewer System Junior Lien Revenue Bonds, Series 1978.

Howard Treasurer Not Resigning

A-J Correspondent
BIG SPRING — Frances Glenn McKenzie, Howard County treasurer, has advised the commissioners court that she has changed her mind and will not resign her post until her term expires Dec. 31.
 In a move to prevent adjustment of her $15,168 annual salary, Mrs. McKenzie thus negated a decision made last week, at which time she said she planned to quit Sept. 15.
 Mrs. McKenzie said that she will take two weeks vacation before her December departure and added she would recommend that Bonnie Franklin, the unopposed Democratic candidate for the office, fill in while she is gone.
 The commissioners court, according to some sources, can only adjust the salary of the office when it is vacant, and only for the coming fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1. Mrs. McKenzie's delayed resignation probably will result in maintaining the salary level of what one official called "the plum of court-house political offices."

Area Fair Begins Thursday

TULIA (Special) — The annual Swisher County Fair is set for Thursday through Sunday and the top event on hand is a tractor pull.
 The second annual Class A tractor pull is scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday and at 1:30 p.m. Sunday two miles east on the Love Road and one mile north of FM 1318 at the Cobb-Wheeler-Mote Rodeo Arena.
 All events are being sponsored by the Swisher County Activities Association.

Hospital Seeks Renovation Okay

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Cook Memorial Hospital, Levelland, has applied to the Texas Health Facilities for approval of its plans to renovate and remodel its building to correct deficiencies in the Life Safety Code.
 The commission is scheduled to consider the request at its Sept. 14 meeting.

Solar Home Open House Set

CROSBYTON (Special) — The Friends of the Library Sunday will hold open house for "La Casa," a solar home being constructed 13 miles north of the city.
 Open house is slated from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., and persons will be charged $1.50 each to tour Georgia Mae Ericson's home. Proceeds will go to a fund, established to build a new library in Crosbyton.
 The event is open to the public.

Ruling Goes Against Physician

A-J Correspondent
MIDLAND — U.S. Dist. Judge John H. Wood Jr. Monday denied a temporary injunction against an Odessa physician who was seeking to restore his staff privileges at Odessa's Medical Center Hospital.
 Dr. Inayat I. Lalani and his lawyer, Dan Sullivan, said they were not surprised at the outcome and added they planned to appeal.
 Sullivan was trying to prove that Dr. Lalani was denied procedural due process during an ad hoc committee review hearing at the hospital. At the hearing, the committee chose to uphold Lalani's May suspension from the hospital.
 During the three-hour hearing in federal court in Midland, Judge Wood heard testimony from the former director of records at the hospital and two staff physicians.

Indian Land Purchase Funds Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House gave approval Tuesday to a bill granting Rhode Island's Narragansett Indians money to buy 900 acres of land as compensation for tribal property seized nearly 100 years ago.
 The measure, which gives approval to a settlement of the land claims negotiated by tribal, state and federal government representatives, would authorize the spending of $3.5 million in federal money to buy the privately owned land.
 The property would be added to another 900 acres transferred to the tribe by the state of Rhode Island.

Narragansett filed suit seeking possession of 3,200 acres in the vicinity of Charlestown, R.I., alleging that the land was taken by the state in 1880 in violation of the 1790 Indian Trade and Intercourse Act.
 The 1790 law has been interpreted as meaning that no land could be taken from Indians without the consent of the federal government.
 Opponents of the bill argued that it would set a costly precedent, perhaps affecting the negotiations of the land claims of Indians in other states.
 "This will set a precedent we will come to regret," said Rep. William Cohen, R-Maine. He said the bill would cost some $4,000 per acre and at that rate the claims of tribes in other states could exceed $25 billion.

 Cohen said all the claims pending in the 1790 act should be dealt with in one piece of comprehensive legislation.
 Passage came on a vote of 388 to 125. A similar bill has cleared the Senate, which now must decide whether to accept the House version or request a conference committee to work out differences.

Police Try To Head Off Biko Commemoration

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Security police rounded up at least 11 friends and relatives of black leader Steven Biko in an apparent move to keep them from commemorating the first anniversary of his death Tuesday.

Police confirmed 11 arrests, including Biko's sister Nobandile Mvovo and her husband, Mxolisi Mvovo.

Biko died of massive brain injuries Sept. 12, 1977, after three weeks in police detention. A magistrate absolved police of responsibility at an inquest, but Biko's

Unification Church Sues Nine Cities

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church has sued nine Ohio cities that will not allow church members to solicit money and hand out literature.

The cities have denied the church permits to solicit based on ordinances that death set off strong reaction around the world against South Africa's treatment of its black majority.

The outcry led to a crackdown last Oct. 19 against persons and organizations critical of the government's apartheid policy of racial separation and the U.N. Security Council voted unanimously to impose a binding arms embargo on South Africa.

The black newspaper Johannesburg Post said authorities made the raids Sunday and Monday in the black townships in East London, Port Elizabeth, King William's Town, Johannesburg and elsewhere, invoking powers of an internal security act that allows police to seize people without charge. Those arrested included former detainees or "banned" persons restricted to their homes and prohibited from making public statements.

No memorial services had been publicly announced at the time of the detentions. The police and justice minister, Jimmy Kruger, said he had "no comment at this stage" on the arrests.

Gen. David Kriel, deputy commissioner of police in charge of riot control, said no special precautions were taken and no "problems" were expected in connection with the anniversary.

The liberal Rand Daily Mail newspaper of Johannesburg criticized the government for what it said was a failure to learn from Biko's death.

employees testified during a 15-day inquest that Biko was kept naked in a cell in Port Elizabeth and was chained to a grill for two days and nights in an interrogation room. Magistrate Marthinus J. Prins said in his verdict that Biko probably suffered his fatal head injury "in a struggle with members of the security branch." Prins said "evidence does not prove the death was brought about by an act or omission including an offense by any person."

At the United Nations in New York, U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young marked the anniversary Tuesday by saying "Steve Biko will continue to live on even more powerfully in death than in life."

He said Biko "emerged in the midst of a society characterized by strident racism with the revolutionary idea of non-racism and awakened in the South African people a powerful movement for change."

Approved Texts Vary On Treatment Of Evolution

AUSTIN (AP) — Two seventh grade life science books attacked for slighting the theory of evolution and one heavily criticized for overplaying it were approved Tuesday by the State Textbook Committee.

Committee members generally leaned away from more controversial volumes. Final adoption of textbooks will be made by the State Board of Education in November after a public hearing. This year's adoptions, generally for five years, will cost the state about $40 million.

Life science texts chosen by the committee were Holt's "Holt Life Science," Laidlaw's "Exploring Living Things," Silver's "Life Science," Webster-McGraw-Hill's "Challenges to Science" and Merrill's "Focus on Life Science." Americans United for Separation of Church and State had opposed the Holt and Silver volumes, saying each "ignores almost completely" the theory of evolution.

"From the Scopes trial in 1925 to the Texas Education Agency hearings in 1977 the fundamentalist anti-intellectuals have struck fear into the faint-hearted," the Americans United protest said.

On the other hand, Merrill's "Focus on Life Science" prompted a long protest from Dr. and Mrs. Monty Kester of Baytown, who contended it treated evolution as fact, not theory.

They faulted the book for omitting "creationist materials" from its list of suggested readings.

Texas members of the National Organization for Women had objected to Laidlaw's "Exploring Living Things" because drawings showed the position of female reproductive organs but not that of male organs.

Laidlaw said another illustration showed the location of "male gonads in the body."

Earlier, the committee recommended seventh and eighth grade readers that feminists and conservative critics alike found acceptable — with exceptions.

"I batted 1,000," said conservative protester Norma Gabler of Longview.

The books were Houghton's "Vistas," MacMillan's "Journeys" and "Caravans," Harcourt's "Rally," Ginn's "To Make a Difference" and "Gifts of Promise," and Economy's "Keys to Reading."

Twiss Butler of Nassau Bay, coordinator of the women's group's textbook protests, said all but one or two of the readers were generally acceptable.

"There are no non-sexist readers at this point. But progress is being made," Miss Butler said.

She said Macmillan's "Journeys" perpetuated stereotyped gender roles. She called it "an old-fashioned basal reader in which men and boys were presented as bold, courageous adventurers and women and girls — what few there were — were taught lessons of humility and patience in domestic settings."

Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Baruch of Burleson objected to "Journeys" also, particularly to a story about a boy who is bused from the suburbs to a ghetto —

WESTERN ENVOYS MEET

VIENNA (AP) — Interior ministers from five nations met in a heavily guarded former palace for the second West European conference on combating international terrorism. The conference was closed to the press.

with his parents' approval.

"Selections like this can only tend to aggravate racial tensions that may be present in a community," they said.

In 1974, the committee approved a version of the Economy series of readers that was similar to the one recommended this time. But the books were rejected by the state board in the face of heavy protests from both conservative groups and feminists.

Economy sued the protesters for $30 million but later dropped the suit.

The chief criticism was of violence in several selections. In this year's protests, Drusilla Bearden of the Daughters of the American Revolution said some selections undermined parental authority.

Liz Taylor Injures Eye

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor on Tuesday temporarily called off campaign appearances on behalf of her husband, John Warner, because of an eye injury.

Warner, a former Navy secretary, is the Republican candidate for U.S. Senate in Virginia.

Spokesmen at Warner campaign headquarters here said Miss Taylor was eating in a Richmond pizza restaurant Monday night when a small metal fragment somehow became lodged in her right eye.

They quoted her as saying she felt a sudden, sharp pain "like lightning going through my eye."

LIZ TAYLOR

Sam Johnson Hospitalized

AUSTIN (AP) — Sam Houston Johnson, the only brother of the late former president, Lyndon B. Johnson, has been admitted to St. David's Hospital.

Johnson, who was admitted Monday, had fallen recently and was experiencing other difficulties, a family friend said.

Johnson, 65, underwent surgery for lung cancer in 1976.

Obeys T-Shirt Command

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Orlando McIntosh had no doubt about what to do when a gunman walked into the service station where he was working. He followed the instructions printed on the gunman's T-shirt.

McIntosh told police the man carried a pistol and on his T-shirt were the words, "Stick Em Up," which is just what McIntosh did.

He told police the gunman took $454 and fled.

Queen Mother Appointed

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother is to be the new Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports. And that means she will have to pledge herself to "maintain all the franchises, liberties, customs and usages of the ports," which do not exist as an entity any more.

Four of them aren't even on the sea any more, and in any case there are seven of them, not five, as the old English word "cinque" indicates. And the Lord Warden's main job — acting as a high-class messenger between the sovereign and the medieval barons owning the ports — disappeared centuries ago. It's just one of those quaint old customs the English are reluctant to see disappear.

The 78-year-old Queen Mother, whose appointment was announced Tuesday by the government, is the first woman ever to be appointed Lord Warden.

She succeeds Sir Robert Menzies, former Australian prime minister, who died last year. Menzies in turn succeeded Sir Winston Churchill.

QUEEN MOTHER

Opossum Hides In Hair

WOODLEAF, N.C. (AP) — Petey the opossum keeps getting into Kathy McCloud's hair, but the 15-year-old Woodleaf resident doesn't mind.

Kathy rescued Petey and his 11 siblings last month, and, since then, the furry marsupial has come to think of her as his mother. And like any other toddler, he follows her everywhere.

When Kathy stops, Petey and his unnamed brother — the only other opossum remaining with Kathy — scamper up her legs and then up to her shoulders, where they like to rest. On occasion, they hide in her hair.

The family dog loves the opossums and also lets them rest in her long hair. However, they are regarded as possible menu items by the family cat.

Kathy and her mother, Pauline, say Petey and his brother have proved that opossums are intelligent pets, despite reports to the contrary.

"The book says they're dumb, but they do lots of things I think are intelligent," Mrs. McCloud said. "They play like kittens and they wash as soon as they wake up. They learned the human scent in two days."

Couple Entertain Chimp

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — What do you do when a chimpanzee walks in through the back door and makes himself at home in front of the television set? Offer him some refreshment, of course.

That's what one hospitable couple did when Simon, a 4-foot tall, 100-pound chimp, broke out of his cage Sunday night and decided to meet his neighbors.

"I guess he just wanted to take a look at the neighborhood," said police Sgt. Lee Weigel.

Simon escaped from his owner while being fed, said Weigel. "He threw the owner aside and just walked away," he said.

Simon, described as a "gentle monkey," caused some damage as he sauntered through the neighborhood. He dented a car hood while bouncing on it, pulled out shrubs, threw patio furniture and even tore a door off a metal shed in which he was briefly confined.

The gutsy monkey then walked through the back door of one couple's home, Weigel said. "... walked into the living room, sat down and started watching TV. They offered him a piece of cake, and he ate it."

He finally was coaxed into returning to his cage — only to escape again Monday. This time he was apprehended by a police officer who, Weigel said, "chained him to the patrol car" until his owner could take him.

Baby, Priesthood Awaited

MILWAUKEE (AP) — James E. Groppi, a civil rights activist in the 1960s and a former Roman Catholic priest, says he anticipates becoming a father and an Episcopal priest.

In a letter published here Monday, Groppi said he is teaching at George Washington University in Washington, D.C., and is studying at Virginia Theological Seminary to become a priest in the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan.

Groppi, who was once jailed by the Wisconsin Legislature after leading students and welfare recipients in a takeover of the state Assembly chambers, said his wife, Peg, is expecting a child in March.

After his separation from the Roman Catholic Church because of his 1976 marriage, Groppi applied to the Milwaukee Episcopal Diocese for priesthood but was rejected.

In his letter, Groppi said he had been accepted by Bishop H. Coleman McGehee of the Detroit Episcopal Diocese who he said "did not even require me to explain myself."

Korchnoi Employs Meditation For New Chess Tourney Game

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Soviet defector Viktor Korchnoi went into deep meditation Tuesday before facing defending champion Anatoly Karpov in the 21st game of the world chess championship. The game was adjourned after 42 moves and experts disagreed over who had the edge.

After spending his morning hours in a meditation center of a yoga society, Korchnoi engaged Karpov with one of his favorite white openings, a pawn to queen four.

Karpov leads 4-1 in the $550,000 tournament. The first player to win six games gets $350,000, the loser $200,000. Drawn game do not count.

Korchnoi sealed his 43rd move and the game was suspended until today.

"I'm not so sure yet, but I think white is better," commented British grandmaster Raymond Keene, chief representative and second for the challenger, shortly after the adjournment.

Argentine grandmaster Oscar Panno said "Viktor has a good chance to win the game." But Lodewijk Prins, international master and journalist from Holland, was more cautious.

"They are not so sure of themselves," Prins said. "White has all the chances but it all remains to be analyzed."

British grandmaster and author Harry Golombek said "Korchnoi played very well ... and I think he'll probably win the game." But Yugoslavian national master and journalist Miroslav Radovic said "it's easier for black to draw than for white to win."

After initial moves, Korchnoi initiated an attack that resulted in a fierce exchange of pieces. Korchnoi provoked Karpov into swapping his two bishops for knights and maintained a one pawn advantage.

Before the game, Korchnoi and his close confidante, Mrs. Petra Leeuwerick, visited a hilltop meditation center where he spent 1 1/2 hours in a yoga session. Dada Viira Bhadharananda, an Indian national who has been practicing yoga for 20 years, said the session involved "higher spiritual courses."

"The process relaxes the mind," the yoga teacher said, adding that Korchnoi is now in the second stage of the meditation process. Dada Viira said Korchnoi has completed the "mental concentration" stage and now is working on "control of thoughts."

Man Sought In Campus Slaying

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A murder warrant was issued Tuesday in the slaying of a University of Michigan employee who police said was attacked on the campus and shot repeatedly as he tried to flee through the music building.

John D. Maddox III, believed armed with a .32-caliber handgun, was sought on an open murder charge for the death of William Van Johnson, 48, also of Ann Arbor, said Lt. Donald Johnson of the city police.

Investigators said Van Johnson was confronted by Maddox early Tuesday outside the music building, one of the locations where Van Johnson nightly met custodians and maintenance workers under his supervision to collect building keys.

According to witnesses, Maddox pulled a handgun and began shooting.

Co-Pilots Marry In Flying Fashion

SEATTLE (AP) — Sal Liguori and Susan Cory chose the natural setting for a couple wishing to be married on a wing and a prayer.

Liguori, 34, was in the pilot's seat and his 36-year-old bride was at the co-pilot's controls as they exchanged vows Saturday with their twin-engine Cessna 310 in a holding pattern at an altitude of 2,500 feet.

Liguori met his bride when he was a flying instructor for Willard Flying Service at Paine Field, about 25 miles north of Seattle, and she signed up for lessons.

Dallas Blaze Kills Six; Said City's Second-Worst Fire Toll

By PAT R. TEAGUE

DALLAS (UPI) — A fast moving fire Tuesday at dawn destroyed the second floor of a two-story brick apartment building near downtown, trapping five persons in one apartment bathroom and fatally injuring a sixth.

Working in a light rain and fog, firemen pulled an unconscious woman from one apartment, but she died shortly after arriving at Parkland Hospital. The bodies of a husband and wife, their two young girls and a guest in their apartment were found huddled in a narrow bathroom of the $180-a-month efficiency.

Fire officials identified two of the dead as Manuel Solis, 38, a visitor at the apartment who was believed to be from Mexico, and Sylvia Montesinos, 20, of Dallas, who died at the hospital. The others were not immediately identified.

Witnesses said the fire began in a northeast corner of the building and spread across the top floor, blocking rescue efforts up the only staircase. A chance telephone call which awakened one family as the fire began, and other quick rescue efforts kept the toll from being higher.

Investigators at the scene said the fire was caused by one of "two or three things," but declined to elaborate. Arson was ruled out, however.

A fire department spokesman said the death toll represented Dallas' second-worst fire tragedy, after a 1941 fire in which 14 persons died at a Salvation Army Center. Eight persons died in a 1972 fire and explosion, but Lt. Tom Oney of the Dallas Fire Department said only four of those deaths were attributed to the fire.

The guest killed in Tuesday's fire was believed to be a native of San Luis Potosi, Mexico, who worked with the family at a bar-restaurant a block from the fire.

The woman who died at the hospital had collapsed between a bed and wall, firemen said.

Ray Synder, an employee of the Dallas Department of Human Resources who was driving to work, said he and carpenters from across the street helped in the first few minutes of the rescue.

"People were standing in the street screaming for help and I stopped," he said. "The fire appeared to begin in the northeast corner of the building. A woman was trapped in the apartment upstairs at the time I arrived."

"The carpenters came over from across the street. We tried to go up the stairways, but it was impossible. It was engulfed in flames."

"We were finally able after several minutes to break out a window and the fire department arrived shortly after that and brought the woman out."

A chance phone call about 6 a.m. Tuesday may have saved the lives of Iram Guzman, 28, his mother and two other persons.

Martha Tarin, 30, of nearby Farmer's Branch, said she had celebrated with Guzman, her fiance, and others the night before and had arranged to wake them early Tuesday to go to work.

"The 11 years I have worked, I have never gone in at 7 a.m.," she said. "Today, I did and I woke the others up at 6. He's got a heavy sleep ... if I wouldn't have woke him, well ..." she said. Her voice trailed off and she embraced Guzman outside the charred building.

Guzman said he got up about 6:20 a.m. Tuesday, realized his apartment was on fire and smashed through a front window. He said he ordered his elderly mother to jump to the wet, sloped lawn below, then joined her and others in his own survival leap. He sustained only a superficial cut during the incident.

Miraculously, no one else was hurt and the fire was controlled about 35 minutes after firemen arrived at 7:08 a.m. More than 50 firemen and 16 pieces of equipment were needed in the four-alarm blaze.

Firemen estimated damage to the structure at $75,000.

Ailing Cincinnati Newspaper In Suit For Merger

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Post should be considered a failed newspaper, an attorney for the E.W. Scripps Co. said Tuesday at a federal hearing to determine if the Post should be allowed to combine its business and production operations with The Cincinnati Enquirer.

"There is no doubt that not only is the Post in danger of failing, but by financial criteria, it has already failed," Jonathan Thackeray said in his opening statement.

The hearing, which began Monday and is expected to continue through much of the week, is being held under provisions of the Newspaper Preservation Act, adopted by Congress in 1970.

The act exempts joint publishing operations from federal anti-trust restrictions if one of the newspapers is in danger of failure and if the proposed agreement would preserve editorial competition.

MILLION SEE SHROUD

TURIN, Italy (AP) — More than one million pilgrims have viewed the Holy Shroud during the first 16 days it has been on display in the Turin Cathedral. The linen burial cloth is imprinted with the image of a crucified man, believed by some to be Jesus Christ.

Under the proposal to combine the business and production operations of the two newspapers, the editorial and news staffs would remain separate.

The E.W. Scripps Co. operates Scripps-Howard Newspapers, which publishes the Post, an afternoon newspaper. The morning Enquirer was recently sold by Combined Communications Corp. to Gannett Newspapers.

"The Post, considered as a separate entity, is a failed enterprise," Thackeray said. "Without massive infusions of capital of several million dollars, the Post would have had to cease publication years ago."

Thackeray said that Scripps has pumped $8 million into running the afternoon newspaper, "with no hope of repayment."

The Scripps attorney advised presiding

U.S. Justice Department Federal Administrative Law Judge Donald R. Moore that evidence would be supplied from "charts and graphs," economists and financial experts who would testify about the Post's financial status.

Jeffrey Freund, representing the International Typographical Union and The Newspaper Guild, said that prior to the Newspaper Preservation Act Scripps-Howard had a history of making such joint operating agreements.

"They show a corporate propensity to enter into these arrangements," Freund said, "and now they are trying to cover that policy with what they claim is fairly uninteresting statistical data."

Freund and several other attorneys attacked a decision by the Post not to raise prices last November, when the Enquirer raised its daily price from 15 cents to 20 cents. The Post sells for 15 cents.

They also criticized the Post for not going into the Sunday newspaper market and for refusing to discuss selling the newspaper.

John Getgey, representing 107 Post employees, questioned whether the consolidation might not have some effect on the independence of the two papers. "He who pays the piper calls the tunes," Getgey said.

It has been estimated that as many as 550 jobs — exclusive of those in the news and editorial operation — could be eliminated at the Post if the consolidation is approved by U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell, who will make the ultimate decision.

Reporter's Hearing Set In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A hearing has been set for next Tuesday on a motion filed on behalf of a Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reporter seeking to have a federal subpoena against her quashed.

Reporter Joyce Gemperlein was to have appeared before a grand jury Thursday, but that appearance has been delayed because of the hearing date.

Miss Gemperlein was subpoenaed following a story she wrote based on a memo within the U.S. Attorney's office, which the government says contained secret grand jury testimony.

The memo dealt with prosecution plans in a sex-blackmail attempt involving Allegheny County Commissioner Robert Peirce.

U.S. Attorney Blair Griffith sought the subpoena, saying the reporter is a necessary witness in the investigation of apparent grand jury abuse.

The U.S. Attorney's office sought to have the hearing on the motion held before Miss Gemperlein's scheduled grand jury appearance.

But U.S. District Judge Donald Zeigler said the federal court docket was too tightly scheduled to fit the hearing in before next week.

The motion to quash contended that Griffith lacked jurisdictional, statutory and constitutional grounds to subpoena Miss Gemperlein.

Assistant U.S. Attorney David Curry fought the delay by arguing that the grand jury assigned to hear the case is scheduled to adjourn for five weeks after Friday.

London Periodical To Publish Business Weekly For U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Financial Times of London announced Tuesday that it will publish a weekly, made-for-America magazine of international business news.

The new magazine will be called World Business Weekly and "is aimed at a gap perceived in the American market, which needs more international business news ... than it is currently receiving," said Alan Hare, chairman of the Financial Times, who will publish the new magazine.

The first issue is planned for Oct. 30 unless there is a postal strike, he said.

The magazine will be put together in London. Filmed pages will be flown to New York on Friday so they can be printed and distributed to subscribers and dealers the following Monday.

The newsstand price will be $2.50. A year's subscription will cost $100.

ERA Supporters Fined, Sentences Suspended

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Two female activists were fined and given suspended jail sentences for a disturbance that followed the defeat of the Equal Rights Amendment in the Virginia General Assembly last February.

Marianne Fowler was found guilty on Monday of trespassing and assault, and Jean M. Clarke was found guilty of trespassing.

Police testified that after committee action that defeated ERA for the sixth year in Virginia, ERA supporters began singing songs, chanting and otherwise causing a disturbance.

Analysts Testify One Bullet Hit JFK, Connally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gunshot lines computed from a film taken during John F. Kennedy's assassination support the Warren Commission's conclusion that a single bullet struck both the president and John Connally, a team of photo analysts testified Tuesday.

Reviewing the now-famous roll of film taken by amateur photographer Abraham Zapruder, Calvin McCamy, speaking for a 22-person panel of photoanalysts, said virtually all the experts agreed that the film might show Kennedy and Connally reacting to being hit by a single shot.

The testimony, coming on the fifth day of the hearings by the House assassinations committee, provided new support for the "single bullet theory" relied on heavily by the Warren Commission in concluding that a lone assassin shot Kennedy.

McCamy testified that the film also may show that Connally heard a shot that missed just before a bullet hit him after passing through Kennedy's neck. A third bullet exploded Kennedy's skull.

He said the panel agreed by a vote of 15-1 that the film shows Kennedy and Connally were lined up in such a position that a single bullet could have struck both of them as the presidential limousine was moving through Dallas that day.

In other testimony, space engineer Tom Canning disputed conspiracy theories that the so-called "magic bullet" could not have hit both men. Canning, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration engineer, said the gunshot lines traced on the film show the opposite.

Critics of the Warren Commission have said it is inconceivable that a single bullet could inflict such serious wounds on the two men at the same time.

However, Canning testified, "The bullet would have had to be substantially deflected to miss the governor."

Asked if the tests show Kennedy and Connally could have been hit by the same bullet, Canning went further and said, "I'm confident that is in fact the case."

The Warren Commission concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in assassinating Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963. It said Oswald fired three shots from a sixth story window in the Texas School Book Depository.

Canning said the panel's tests traced the shots inflicting Kennedy's and Connally's wounds, to find out where they came from. All the gunshot lines went back to the sixth floor window of the book depository, he said.

Gunshot Lines Traced
Canning said two gunshot lines were traced back to close to the window from which Oswald is supposed to have fired, and one was traced to within several feet of the window. He testified that all trajectories were within allowable margins of error.

Canning said the margin of error was computed by determining how far wrong the experts might have been in fixing the exact positions of Kennedy's head and neck and Connally's chest when they were hit.

McCamy said the panel generally agreed that Zapruder's film of the assassination shows both Kennedy and Connally reacting to a shot a second earlier than the Warren Commission thought.

None Unanimous
But he said none of the panel's conclusions were unanimous. Although 22 photo analysts participated in the panel's studies at various times, the individual conclusions were decided upon by no more than 17 at any given time.

McCamy said the panel agreed by a vote of 12-3 that the film shows Kennedy reacting to being hit that early. He said it agreed by a vote of 11-3 that the film shows Connally reacting, seemingly to a bullet, shortly after Kennedy was struck by a bullet.

McCamy also testified that the panel agreed 15-1 that Kennedy and Connally were lined up in such a fashion as to have been vulnerable to being struck by the same bullet.

Ford Says Texas Vote Referendum On Carter

AUSTIN (AP) — The nation's top Republican vote getters campaigned in Texas Tuesday trying to turn the tide against the Carter administration.

They also had a good word for GOP gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements and various Republican congressional candidates.

"Let us face it, the 1978 Texas gubernatorial election is a referendum on the Carter policies," former President Gerald Ford said at a Houston breakfast where he shared honors with former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"We hope you can do what you can to turn things around," Ford told a crowd of several thousand University of Texas students and supporters at a noon rally in Austin. "We have double-digit inflation and a record deficit. That is not the way we can strengthen our democratic system."

While Ford spoke in Austin, Reagan was in San Antonio appearing for congressional candidate Tom Loeffler.

They reunited in Dallas for a $1,000-a-plate dinner that Clements hoped would add $2 million to his already substantial campaign funds.

Telethon Sells 400 Symphony Season Tickets

Approximately 400 season tickets, priced at $20, $25 and $30, plus $500 in cash contributions were collected during Tuesday night's Lubbock Symphony Telethon.

Kay Greer, publicist for the symphony, reported that money from season ticket sales comprises 44 per cent of the season's budget.

The money goes towards paying the orchestra's members, its special guests, music rentals and the use of the civic center theater.

Mrs. Greer said that there are about 400 season tickets still available in all price ranges and added that students may purchase $25 tickets at half-price.

As a follow-up to Tuesday's telethon, the Lubbock Symphony Guild today will hold a phonathon at the symphony office beginning at 10 a.m. Interested persons may purchase season tickets by calling 762-4707. The phonathon is scheduled through Friday.

The symphony this year begins its 33rd season under founding conductor William Harrod. The first concert is slated Oct. 2 and features baritone William Walker.

Government Autos Denied Justices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The eight associate justices of the Supreme Court will have to get by for at least another year without having the government lease automobiles for them.

A House-Senate conference committee, in reaching agreement Tuesday on appropriations for the judiciary in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, deleted $28,000 for the leased cars.

The automobiles had not been requested but the Senate Appropriations Committee added them on its own initiative and the full Senate approved.

The House did not vote any funds for leased automobiles.

ated rebel attacks late Saturday. One refugee fleeing Masaya and waving a white flag said he had covered on the floor of his house for two days, listening to ricochets from automatic weapons.

"It was shooting without end," he said. "There were rockets, bombs, gunfire, everything all night."

A group of farmhands gathered on a dirt road leading to Masaya said their woman employer was killed by guardsmen.

"The Senora asked us to come with her to climb a small hill on the ranch to see what was happening," said one woman who asked not to be named. National guardsmen started shooting at them, she said, and her employer was shot in the leg.

"We said 'Please don't kill us. We are on our own land,'" said the woman. She reported their employer told them to flee and when they returned later they found her lying in a field, her chest riddled with bullets.

Red Cross workers along with journalists were barred from Masaya, but the heavy gunfire could be heard from the vantage point of a national guard barricade outside the town.

One soldier said the 7,500-man national guard planned to continue what he called after two games on Saturday night.

Meanwhile, in Bonn, West Germany, Syrian President Hafez Assad blasted Sadat's Mideast peace initiative and the Camp David summit, saying there can be no peace until "the rights of the Palestinians" are restored and occupied Arab lands returned.

Assad spoke at a state banquet Monday night. He did not mention the summit or Sadat directly. But he deplored "the individual action" which led to "weakening of Arab solidarity" — a clear reference to Sadat's peace overtures and trip to Israel last November.

Assad condemned all peace movements that take place outside the United Nations and without Palestinian representation.

In Thurmont Md., outside summit press headquarters about six miles from Camp David, Robert Basil, president of the American Lebanese League denounced Assad, saying: "We want Assad to get out of Lebanon."

Basil, a Washington, D.C., businessman, said the league supports the summit and wants it to "reaffirm not only the territorial integrity of Lebanon but also its democratic, western-oriented pluralism."

Praises Students
Ford told the students he has visited 35 college campuses since leaving Washington "and I have come away from the exposure to your generation with great faith. You and those like you will do a great job in government, both state and local, when you get a chance."

Ford said Clements did "a good job running the Pentagon" when he was deputy secretary of defense "and he will do a good job in Austin for the people of Texas."

At the Houston breakfast, Ford said Texas voters should realize "they can't rewrite 1976 (when Carter won election) or leap frog to 1980 (the next presidential election). This year they can send a message to Washington."

"High And Dry"
Reagan told the Houston breakfast that "President Carter won't serve liquor in the White House but his staff is on pot. This is the only administration I can recall that is high and dry."

He later told a news conference that it was too early to announce any plans for a presidential race "but I have not closed the door on that possibility, and it would have to be an unforeseen event to make me close the door."

The former governor said there was no split remaining in the Republican party and "I think today proved that. The president and I broke bread together and we didn't throw rocks at each other."

"clean-up operations" in Masaya through the night.

The latest round of violence against Somoza's authoritarian military government erupted three weeks ago when Sandinista guerrillas stormed the national capitol building. Uprisings in several Nicaraguan cities since then have involved both Sandinistas and local dissidents, mostly youths.

The president of Nicaragua's central bank Tuesday suspended conversion of the national currency, the cordoba, into other currencies. No reason was given, but such a step can be aimed at preventing the flight of wealth from the national currency in times of crisis.

In Managua, government troops uncovered what they described as "enormous" caches of weapons in several rebel hideouts. A source said the weapons include numerous automatic rifles, rockets, homemade noise bombs and Molotov cocktails.

Managua was calm compared with the scene a day earlier, when sporadic gunbattles broke the pre-dawn quiet. Shoppers were at the public market early Tuesday, some stockpiling enough provisions to last two weeks.

Streets leading to military installations were blocked by troops and at one barricade a soldier held a rifle at a reporter's head as he demanded identification. Most stores and offices that joined the general strike remained closed Tuesday. But government offices and other businesses sympathetic to Somoza defied reported threats from anti-Somoza rebels and opened their doors.

Spokesmen for national business organizations estimated that 75 percent of businesses in the capital continued to remain closed despite crippling losses.

Somoza has refused to yield to pressure to resign since the murder of opposition publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro on Jan. 10.

Businessmen who support the general strike resent the Somoza family's vast business holdings and also fear that the longer the president stays in office the more support the leftist guerrillas will attract from moderate Nicaraguans.

Other non-leftist, anti-Somoza Nicaraguans resent what they call brutality carried out by Somoza's national guard against the citizenry.

The Sandinistas favor a socialist state. They take their name from Augusto Cesar Sandino, a rebel leader who died fighting U.S. Marines occupying this Central American nation. There were U.S.-supervised elections in 1928 and in 1937 Somoza's father assumed power, starting the family dynasty.

Mail Strike Threats Withdrawn

would be denied a vote on the new agreement.

National union leaders generally discounted the threats. "Only a few people with a death wish are going to walk out," said one official of the 299,000-member Postal Workers.

Even so, officials of the union sought Tuesday to undercut opposition from local leaders by announcing that they will submit an arbitrated settlement to their members for re-ratification, even though a vote would have no legal force.

Risk Of Rejection
While the largely symbolic vote might curb complaints by local leaders that a contract was being forced down postal workers' throats, the move also subjects national leaders to the risk of a second rejection that might force them to call a strike.

Burrus said such a vote would not meet his group's demands, however, because it has no legal force behind it. "We demand the right to rejection, not just an opinion poll," he said.

The other two unions involved in the talks reportedly have no plans for similar ratification votes, in part because their treasuries cannot afford the cost of conducting a second mail vote.

Judge Bars Strike

Mail strikes — like all walkouts by federal employees — are illegal and can leave strikers subject to dismissal, fines and jail terms. A federal judge already has issued a temporary order barring a strike, and Postal Service officials say they will move swiftly and sternly against any striking worker.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger said Tuesday that if "some militants" strike, "I am prepared to act accordingly."

The Postal Workers, the nation's largest postal union, represents mail clerks and other employees who work indoors. No similar strike threats have come from the other two unions involved in the dispute — the 181,000-member National Letter Carriers Association or the 36,000-member Mailhandlers union.

Arbitration Agreed

The two sides agreed to an unusual 15-day bargaining-arbitration period that began on Sept. 1 as a last-minute compromise to avert a nationwide strike.

Leaders of the Postal Workers and Letter Carriers had threatened to strike unless management agreed to renegotiate the rejected contract. In agreeing to do so, however, the Postal Service won the unions' agreement to resolve their dispute through binding arbitration if a settlement was not reached in 15 days.

Under the compromise, a negotiated settlement would require a second ratification vote by union members, but a ruling by Healy would not.

Pay Hike Cited

The 19.5 percent wage increase in the earlier package, which includes cost-of-living raises, would increase the average annual salary of a postal worker from $15,900 to $19,100 in 1981.

Meanwhile, a shoving match broke out Tuesday as Postal Workers Union President Emmet Andrews was confronted outside the negotiations by angry New Jersey postal workers who were fired after staging a wildcat strike on July 21 to protest the earlier agreement.

Andrews had to push his way past the handful of shouting pickets, who demanded amnesty as part of any new contract.

New School Lunch Guidelines Proposed

School principals contacted by The Avalanche-Journal bristled at such criticism. They said they do try to check out free-lunch applications — not every application, but those that look suspicious.

The district recently distributed to principals a Texas Education Agency explanation of the federal regulations on the lunch and breakfast programs. The document says: "No verification of information submitted on free-lunch applications is permitted prior to taking action on the application. School officials must determine the child's eligibility based on the information submitted on the application and extend appropriate benefits to that child."

At the same time, however, principals are correct in saying they have the power — and take the opportunity — to look into suspicious applications. TEA notes:

Challenges Possible
"If a school desires to make verification checks, it is emphasized that such checks are to be made after applications are approved; that challenges can be made only if the checks show there is reason to believe the children are ineligible; and finally, that the children must continue to receive free and reduced-price meals pending the verification and the outcome of any challenge."

In other words, the information on a free-lunch application is assumed to be true when the application is initially processed. But school officials then may check out and contest the information.

In practice, principals said formal investigations or parent conferences regarding free-lunch applications are relatively rare. They said they lack the time and staff to attempt many verifications; that the vast majority of parents are honest; and that most principals know their patrons well enough to spot quickly suspicious applications.

Some Applications Disallowed

Some principals said they disallow "several" applications a year, by phoning parents and questioning their self-reported income. Others said they disallow none.

Ideally, Forbes feels, every family that applies for free meals should be required to attach to the application "some kind of proof of income," such as a W-2 form or income-tax statement.

But that sort of requirement certainly would be prohibited by current federal regulations, he said.

What the Lubbock Independent School District can do, Forbes said, is tighten up on the income eligibility scale for free and reduced-price meals.

The federal government allows school systems to choose between two different scales. Lubbock traditionally has used "Exhibit B," the more liberal guidelines. This scale first was adopted by the school board several years ago, apparently because "they felt it best met the needs of the community," said Melvin Johnston, the school district's food services director.

Last month the current school board requested that the district's administration "present the alternate eligibility income scale for consideration for the 1979-80 school year in addition to the Exhibit B income scale."

Eligibility Grounds
Under the existing Exhibit B, a family of four qualifies for free meals by having a gross annual income less than $8,110. A family of four with an income between $8,110 and $12,660 would qualify for reduced-price meals.

In contrast, the alternative Exhibit A would set $6,480 as the maximum income for a family of four to be eligible for free meals. Under this schedule, a four-member family earning $6,490 to $12,660 would qualify for reduced-price meals.

In the same way, Lubbock's Exhibit B allows a family of seven to earn up to $11,600 and still qualify for free meals. Exhibit A would drop this family's cutoff for free meals to $9,280. Under both scales, the ceiling for reduced-price meals for a seven-member family is $18,100.

Forbes and Harriger, who in recent years have voted against participating in the federal meals programs, say the current Exhibit B is "too liberal."

For students who don't qualify for free or reduced-price meals, a school breakfast costs 30 cents; an elementary lunch, 55 cents; and a secondary lunch, 65 cents.

Other Students Pay
Students eligible for reduced-price meals pay 10 cents for breakfast and 20 cents for lunch.

All meals — from "free" to "full price" — are subsidized by the federal government to the extent that the school system breaks even on its cafeteria operations.

Johnston said that last year Lubbock and other Texas school districts started putting on their free-meals applications an oath parents must sign. The statement reads:

"I hereby certify that all of the above information (on income and family size) is true and correct. I understand that this information is being given in connection with the receipt of federal funds; that school officials may, for cause, verify this information; and that deliberate misrepresentation may subject me to prosecution under applicable state and federal criminal statutes."

Johnston said a principal "will accept an application on its face, based on the information given. But if he has a feeling some of the information is false, he has the right to ask the family to verify the information."

"We try to be as diligent as possible. Certainly we can't check every application. But principals seem to know their families well enough to be able to pick out the applications that may need some follow-up," Johnston said.

Of the approximately 31,000 students in Lubbock, about 11,000 qualify for free meals and 1,000 for reduced-price meals.

People Find Sharks Interesting — From Distance

IN CAPTIVITY — A brown shark collected off the Florida Keys is lifted into a boat by employees of Sea World of San Diego. The creature was among about 50 sharks recently put on display at the Southern California marine attraction. (AP Laserphoto)

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The very thought of the sinister dorsal fin rising from the water — the stuff of legends and, more recently, movies — is enough to send the bravest swimmer splashing pell-mell for shore.

But at a safe distance, swimmers and nonswimmers alike are fascinated by the shark. Witness the $2 million shark exhibit opened this summer at Sea World aquarium here and the 18 percent rise in aquarium attendance for which the sharks are mostly credited.

Sharks are dangerous, of course. That's part of their fascination. But they are also among the world's oldest creatures. They are actually picky eaters. Some swim in fresh water.

"They're magnificent, beautiful animals — not something that should be killed on sight. They've kind of gotten a bum rap," said Raymond Keyes, curator for Sea World and an authority on sharks.

Keyes concedes sharks are imminently suited for killing. But he believes an irrational, almost primitive fear — the revulsion usually reserved for snakes — keeps most people from appreciating the shark's near-perfect adaptation for its role in the natural order of the sea.

"Sharks are the lions and tigers of the ocean — the top carnivores," he said. "They prey on most things and very few things prey on them."

Almost any shark can be dangerous to swimmers in certain situations, Keyes said, "but you have to remember that there's nothing personal about it. It's not like they're seeking people out to attack them."

"Usually the shark is defending his territory. Or he makes a mistake and thinks the man is something else flopping around in the water. He thinks the man looks like something to eat."

A few species — such as the great white, villain of the movie "Jaws" — are aggressive by nature. But, said Keyes, "in many instances, when a shark sees something he doesn't understand or something that frightens him, the shark will flee."

Sharks have a major role in preserving ecological balance. In their search for food, sharks impose the law of natural selection, removing the sick and the weak of other species so only the fittest survive.

Keyes said that with about 30 sharks of nearly a dozen species in the tank here, workers have to make sure that the sharks don't follow all their natural habits — such as imposing their own pecking order.

"There is usually a top animal and we see this in our enclosure as well," he said. "But in here you have a condition with very confused territories. When there's aggression between animals in the wild, one will usually flee to another area."

But in the tank, there is nowhere else to go "so we're very careful not to stir things up."

That especially applies at feeding time, when each shark is fed individually with long-handled tongs. Keyes said the animals receive frozen fish and squid that are fortified with vitamin supplements.

"Contrary to what we are led to believe," Keyes said, "the shark is a very, very delicate animal. They're very selective in what they will eat."

Keyes said the shark tank at the profit-making Sea World — billed as the largest collection of captive sharks — is intended to educate the public about the shark and to serve as a research center.

"To do scientific research on any animal," he said, "you have to be able to keep that animal in your laboratory. This is our laboratory and it's a rather sophisticated one."

Keyes said surprisingly little is known about sharks, although they are among the most ancient of living creatures.

"Sharks are found in the fossil record as far back as 250 million years ago," he said. "They developed before the dinosaurs and their basic bodies are still the same."

Through all those millions of years of evolution, sharks have developed into several dozen species that fill different ecological niches in virtually all the world's oceans.

In fact, Keyes said, some sharks have adapted to fresh water.

Bull sharks, for instance, have traveled 1,000 miles up the Mississippi River and regularly migrate up Central American rivers.

In Central America, he said, "the natives are just terrified of them. And with good reason. Bull sharks are mean fellows."

ICC Asked To Ease Rules For Railways

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission was asked Tuesday to help financially strapped railroads by easing regulations and adopting a liberal pricing policy.

In making the request, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said that unless the financial condition of the railroad industry is improved "the long-run consequences of inadequate revenues will be the financial failure of a large part of the railroad industry."

Adams said many railroads are already showing signs of worsening financial problems, including deterioration of plant and equipment.

FARMERS DOWN ON CARTER

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — An opinion poll published in the latest edition of a major agriculture magazine says Iowa farmers are down on President Carter.

When asked about the job Carter is doing, 54 percent said they either mildly or strongly disapproved while 20 percent weren't sure and only 26 percent approved. The survey of 501 Iowans was taken in July by the Des Moines-based "Wallaces Farmer."

Change Would Bar Future Dam Holdup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key members of a House subcommittee, meeting privately, apparently reached a shaky agreement Tuesday on a plan designed to head off controversies like the one over the Tellico Dam.

Exact terms of the proposal were not available (the public was barred from the meetings) and several sources emphasized that no agreement would be considered final until its formal language was accepted.

"They have agreed in principle and now we need an agreement to the words," one source said after the daylong series of talks.

Several sources said, however, that the proposal would give a top-level federal commission authority to grant exemptions under the Endangered Species Act if certain conditions were met.

The proposal was likely to come to a vote in the subcommittee today and in the full Merchant Marines and Fisheries Committee within a few days.

The proposal would follow the general lines of a measure approved earlier this year in the Senate.

Senators voted in July in favor of legislation permitting exemptions under the 1973 law, which prohibits federal agencies from taking any action that harms an endangered animal or plant species or its critical habitat.

Controversy over the law has been sparked by a dispute involving the $119 million Tellico Dam and reservoir project, a Tennessee Valley Authority project, and the snail darter, a three-inch fish on the endangered species list.

The Supreme Court ruled earlier this year that the floodgates of the dam could not be closed because to do so would wipe out the habitat of the fish and thus violate the law.

The House subcommittee originally was expected to debate the measure in public Tuesday, but before the session began Reps. Robert Leggett, D-Calif., John Dingell, D-Mich., Edwin Forsythe, R-N.J., and David Bowen, D-Miss., decided to meet privately, barring staff aides, lobbyists, spectators and reporters.

While there has been general agreement among subcommittee members that the law should be changed to permit exemptions, there has been bickering over the terms and conditions.

Leggett, the subcommittee chairman, later denied the 90-minute session was secret. "We've got to limit the participants," he said.

The four met later in the day with staff aides present to complete their discussions.

Dingell and Forsythe in general have backed proposals that would make it tougher to get an exemption than it would be under alternatives backed by Leggett and Bowen.

Message To Washington

MESSAGE — I am a private pilot. Last May my aircraft was stolen from its hangar. The plane was later recovered by Treasury agents, but all of its registration papers were gone. I contacted the Federal Aviation Administration to get replacement papers and they notified me that a $2 fee would be required. I sent the check (which they have cashed), yet I have received no papers. I have telephoned — when the line wasn't busy — only to be repeatedly cut off, losing a long distance call. I sent telegrams without response. To date I have heard nothing further from FAA. Surely, three months is plenty of time for them to process such a request. What is wrong? Can you help me get my registration? — J.W., San Antonio.

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — Done! You should have the registration papers for your airplane by the time you read this. FAA officials advise me they have sent them to you along with apologies for delay.

MESSAGE — This is in regard to my wife's disability under Social Security and the problems we are having in getting this matter straightened out. Back in 1974 our doctor stated that my wife was disabled and advised her to file for Social Security disability. We did so in January of 1975 and she began to receive checks in June. In February of this year, however, her checks stopped. We weren't told why until April, when the Social Security Administration informed us that my wife was able to return to work. We retained a lawyer and appealed. A hearing was held and a decision was reached by the judge that my wife was able to return to work. She remains disabled, though, and cannot work. Can you do anything to straighten this out? — R.A., Paris

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — The Social Security Administration informs me that the opinion of the Administrative Law Judge was reached after careful consideration of all the medical evidence on record. Your testimony, in addition to all reports from your wife's doctors and surgeons were taken into account. You still have the right to seek a judicial review of the ruling, but I would suggest that you seek the advice of the attorney who is representing you on this question.

Tide Of Illegal Aliens Mounting Across Area

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Faced with a staggering task, four U.S. Border Patrol Agents stationed in Lubbock have the responsibility of rounding up all illegal aliens within the surrounding 28-county area.

The number of aliens caught yearly by the border patrol here shows the agents are earning their salaries, but it is only a small percentage of this area's increasing population of illegal aliens, most of whom are crossing over the United States-Mexico border.

There may be as many as 100,000 illegal aliens living in the Lubbock Station Area of the Marfa Sector, according to a border patrol spokesman.

Billy Rowe, agent in charge of the patrol's Lubbock Station Area, said one of the main reasons for the growing number is the realization by illegal aliens that there is work available to them in areas other than just agriculture.

Another factor could be that the four-agent station's jurisdiction covers 28 counties and 24,707 square miles.

The patrol's fiscal year begins October 1 and ends September 30 of each year.

Rowe said that up to Monday afternoon, 3,171 illegal aliens—commonly known as "wetbacks"—had been picked up in his area, a figure which already surpasses last year's final count of 2,791.

Rowe estimated that by the end of this month, and the patrol's current fiscal year, at least 3,400 illegal aliens would have been picked up in the 28-county area and taken back to Mexico.

Whether the figure reaches Rowe's estimate or not, the figure is still a relatively large increase compared to 10 years ago when 2,291 aliens were apprehended. In 1967, 1,797 aliens were sent back to their own country, Rowe said.

A total of 426 illegal aliens were picked up last July, which, according to Rowe, breaks the record for the number of persons apprehended by the border patrol within a one-month period in the Lubbock Station Area.

The area Rowe is in charge of is bounded by Bailey County on the northwest side, Yoakum County on the southwest, Wichita County on the northeast and Young County on the southeast.

The federal government's main concern, according to Rowe, is that illegal aliens take away jobs from American citizens and legal aliens.

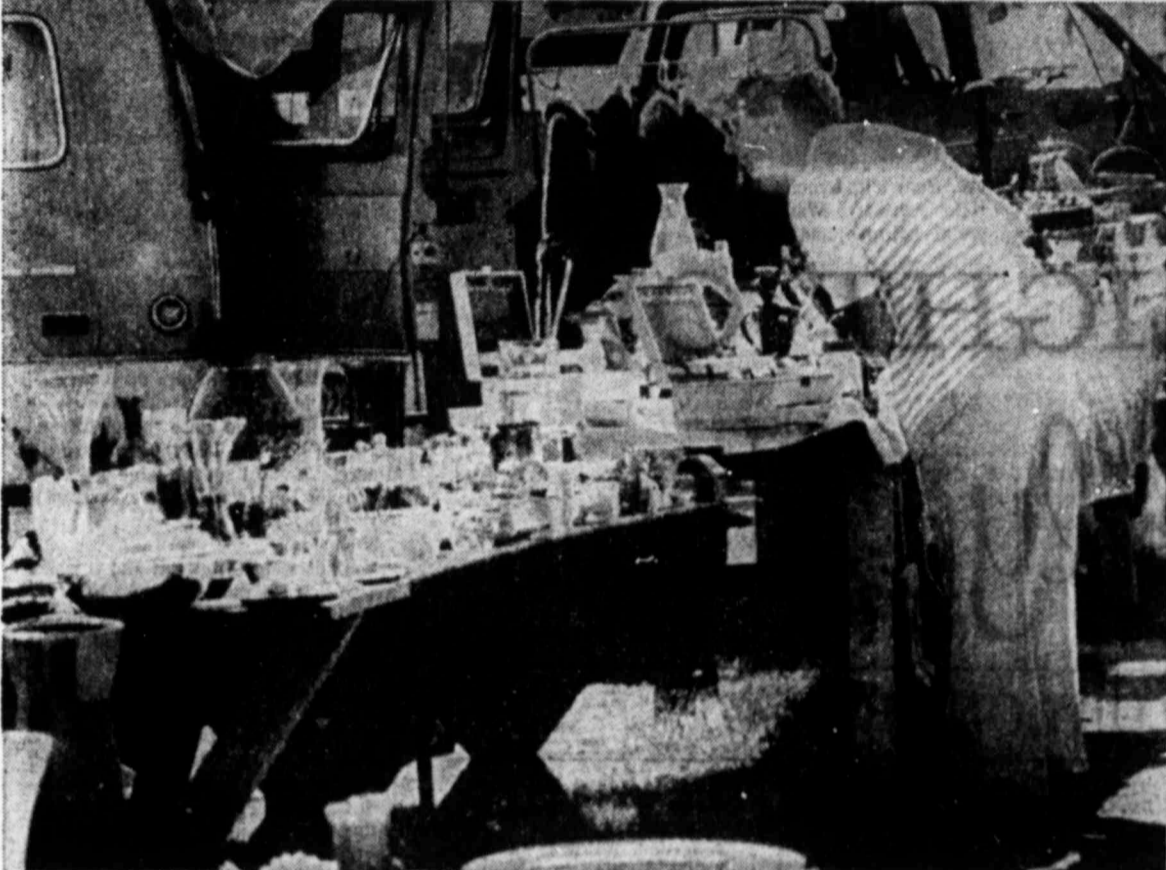

The U.S. Border Patrol places persons who are in this country illegally in four basic categories. They are:

- Entry without inspection (EWI), the largest category.
- Visitor, one who has been given permission to come into the United States, but has overstayed the time allotted by the government or has been caught working.
- Student, an alien who has been allowed to enroll in a school in this country, but has dropped out or taken a job.
- Illegal immigrant, a foreigner who has been given permission to reside in the United States, but has committed a deportable offense, such as knowingly transporting illegal aliens into this country.

Rowe said an alien in the EWI category, which consists mainly of Mexicans, is the proverbial "wetback," a term U.S. Border Patrol Commissioner Leonel Castillo is attempting to replace with "undocumented worker."

Records show that in the 28-county area in 1977, 2,481 EWIs, 294 visitors, one student and one illegal immigrant were caught. In a farm-ranch check, 943 illegal aliens were caught.

FLEA MARKET — Along Maine's section of U.S. 1, near the town of Orland, Don Bridges and his wife run a stall in the flea market selling items that vary from old fur coats to small pocket knives. (AP Laserphoto)

'Junk Junkie' Feeds Addiction Through Roving Flea Market

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

ORLAND, Maine (AP) — When this month ends, Don Bridges' business will fade away and he will go somewhere else. He hasn't decided where. Probably south, with the birds.

"I'm not much for making plans," he said. "I go from day to day."

"That's why this business is good for me. I like my own judgments, my independence. This business is about the last one I can think of that isn't ruled and regulated to death."

Don Bridges is a flea market man. A junk junkie. About flea markets, his own judgment might be right.

For unfettered free enterprise, the roadside flea market is just a shade less disorganized than that other grass roots institution by which Americans swap discards, the garage sale.

Don Bridges goes from day to day, from flea market to flea market, in a wonderful contrivance. It is a pickup truck with a big rack welded on top for toting things and a big trailer hooked on behind for toting more things and also for living in. A mobile attic.

He has only to park, drop an awning, set up a table and lay out his assorted old tools, old glass, old stuff picked up at auctions all over the country, and he's in business.

"I've been collecting and dealing in antiques for 55 years," he said. "I can't quit. It's the worst addiction there can be because there is no cure."

He might be right about that, too. Who can pass up a flea market? Who can resist poking wistfully among all those familiar worn out things you've thrown away over the years, with price tags on them?

On this day, Don Bridges was parked along Route 1, a busy road. The next day he would move toward Bar Harbor, hunting tourists. In Maine, he knows his spots.

He was born in 1911 on the Maine coastal island of Vinalhaven. His father was a stonemason and his uncle a blacksmith so he learned to work with his hands. He also developed a fondness for old tools, still a favorite stock in trade.

Vinalhaven might also be where he developed his notions of independence. Today, those islanders are petitioning to secede from Maine. They want to run their lives themselves.

Don Bridges is a big-shouldered man, rugged. His face is craggy, like the Maine coast. His eyes are as blue as the cold Atlantic and his down-east accent as salty. He says words like sou'west. He'd have made a perfect sea captain.

Instead, as a boy, he saw a movie about structural iron workers and decided that was the romantic life for him.

"I traveled the country from one job to the next, building skyscrapers, bridges. At quitting time most iron workers look for a gin mill and a poker game. I did my share of that, too, but mainly I looked for antique shops."

"It got in my blood. As I said, an addiction. You have to keep up with the business constantly because the prices for antiques have gone crazy. I sold a desk last year for $45. This year it went for $130, to a dealer."

"On the other hand, I've got a carpenter's plane for sale marked $12.50. I saw the same plane in an antiques book last year priced at $160. Everybody who can spell antiques has written a book about them, full of misinformation."

"It's insane, this business. But at least it isn't ruined, not yet. The prices are what the market makes them. The hours are what I make them. I like that."

Ghost Road Trees Saved

KOUNTZE (UPI) — Ghost Road and its legend of phantom lights will retain its spooky, overhanging forest.

Hardin County officials have given up plans to sell the timber to logging interests. Residents fought the action, but officials said the main reason for their decision was no one had bid on it.

Commissioner T.S. Hooks had pushed the timber sale, arguing the trees created a maintenance nuisance along the narrow roadway. The county commissioners voted to go along with Hooks.

Carter Uses Bicycle On Camp Tours

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Carter, who has been trying to promote togetherness through informality at the Mideast summit, is using a bicycle on some of his meanderings around this 134-acre compound.

The White House press office released a photograph of Carter, seated on the bicycle, conversing with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Kamel and two other Egyptian delegates.

Jody Powell, the president's spokesman, joked to reporters: "You'll notice the photograph has been carefully cropped so it is not possible to tell if trainer wheels..."

Laughter drowned him out at that point.

More seriously, Powell reported that bicycles are a common means of transport at Camp David and that Carter frequently uses them here "for exercise."

Perhaps by coincidence, the Israeli government earlier in the week released a widely published photo in Tel Aviv that showed Defense Minister Ezer Weizman on a bicycle at Camp David.

South Plains Fair Schedules Four Top Outdoor Attractions

Blazing guns may help provide an OK Corral atmosphere around the outdoor stage of the 61st annual Panhandle South Plains Fair here Sept. 23-30.

The Amarillo Gunfighters Association will provide the fireworks, according to general manager Steve L. Lewis, when they tangle in gunfights to delight young and old alike. The gunfighters will be using blanks, however.

Signed as one of four free attractions, the gunfighters' shootouts will be realistically staged at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. daily.

Also appearing free on the outdoor stage will be Europe's fastest hypnotist, Vandermeide, at 7:15 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. daily; and magician Bob Ford and Lubbock mime Ruth Rubin, at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. daily.

The swaying Bilbros, a unique double sway pole act, will be appearing near the center of the fairgrounds at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. daily, Lewis said.

The gunfighters were organized by Ace Howard, former Hollywood stuntman to help preserve a part of the old West. They have been "gunslinging" from Dodge City to Mississippi and Arizona for the past 10 years.

In addition, Howard has another specialty — a spine-tingling, knife-throwing act — done with a female "victim."

Members have been trained to be shot off rooftops, leap from a galloping horse, be "hanged," and a variety of other stunts.

Six country and western shows have been signed for the stage of Fair Park Coliseum, including: the Charley Pride show, with Dave and Sugar, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m., Sept. 24; the Statler brothers, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m., Sept. 25; the Johnny Rodriguez show, with Linda Hargrove, 8 p.m. only, Sept. 26; the Jim Ed Brown show, with Helen Cornelius and Wendy Holcombe, 8 p.m. only, Sept. 27; Eddie Rabbitt and Jerry Clower, 8 p.m. only, Sept. 28; and Mel Tillis, 8 p.m. only on

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I wanted to buy white stocking caps for my little girls, but the only ones I could find were ones without pompons at the crown.

I purchased them anyway, but to me, pompons just make the hat, so I bought some white yarn and made my own to add to the caps. Here's what I did:

First, cut two circles three inches in diameter (these can be cut smaller or larger depending on the size pompons you want) from plastic lids. If you have lids of two different colors, cut one of each color.

Put a circle about the size of a nickel in the center of each disk. This hole is large enough for a nice full pompon (but if you want a not so full pompon, cut the hole in the center of the disc the size of a penny, for example).

Place the two circles together and thread a darning needle with the yarn. Go in and out the center hole, winding the thread around the disc, pulling it rather taut, until you have completely filled the center hole. Use a double thread for this as it goes faster.

You'll have to rethread the needle several times before you are finished, but just hold the ends of the yarn in place until you get started winding it again. Don't worry about any uneven ends — they'll be cut off later.

When finished winding the yarn, slip your scissors between the two outer edges of the circle and snip the yarn (all around the outside edge of the circle). The two different colors of plastic makes it easier to see where to insert your scissors.

After cutting the yarn, spread the discs apart slightly and slip a piece of yarn about eight or ten inches long (dental floss is good, too) between them.

Bring the two ends of the string together and tie through the center of the pompon as tightly as you can, but don't cut the ends of the string off.

Remove the plastic circles and poke the ends of the string through the crown of the cap and tie securely. In lieu of tying, you can also stitch the pompon on with a needle and thread. Trim off any uneven yarn ends and your pompon is finished.

If you have any caps around with lost pompons, you might like to try this. They're fun to make and very inexpensive. The kids love to make these in their school colors to decorate their shoes, etc.

— C. Carlton

Sounds as if you came out way ahead money-wise, appearance-wise and, I know, fun-wise.

A little friend and I tried making them. We were both fascinated! Put a crown on top of your head for being so clever. — Hugs, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

How about using a two- or three-pound coffee can for kitchen utensils...

Cover it with adhesive plastic and place the utensils in the can handles down. You can then easily see the one you want.

I use one can for wooden ware — even my rolling pin.

One can is for spatulas, large spoons, potato masher, etc. Another is for a food chopper (unassembled), wire whips or portable mixer beaters.

Sure beats having to dig in drawers. — Eva Gilman

It sounds like it is attractive, too! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I am a domestic engineer by choice, not by chance and, believe me, if it wasn't for your helpful hints, I could never be the professional that I am.

Wow! I'm in great danger of having my head turned by such lavish praise! You're very kind — and were so sweet to write. Your letter was my big spirit lifter-upper for the day. Thanks! — Heloise

Some great players say they always play the percentages. Do not believe them. They would not be great players if they followed their own advice. In bridge there is a time for almost everything.

West's three-club preempt was hair-raising and not recommended. He wanted to generate action and in that respect he was successful. South's double was unusually light; he was short in clubs and afraid West was trying to steal the contract. North bid three notrump — he had 13 points and a club stopper — and East rocked the table with his double. South retreated to four spades and East boomed out a second double.

West's opening lead of the heart jack was a continuation of his unlightened tactics that had begun with the unwise preempt. Declarer won the opening lead with the king and led the queen of

PRECIOUS TIME

Time is very precious these days to the busy homemaker and using the speed-set method is the easy way to prepare a delicious gelatin dessert for family meals. Dissolve a 3-oz. package of your favorite fruit flavor gelatin in 1 cup boiling water. Add 2 cups ice cubes and stir until the gelatin starts to thicken, 3 to 5 minutes. Remove any unmelted ice and chill. The dessert will be soft-set and all ready to serve in 30 minutes.

trumps from dummy, won by East's ace. South's plan, difficult to execute, was to keep his losers to the three outstanding aces.

East led a heart which was won by South's 10. East had given his partner more credit than he deserved and assumed that the opening lead of the heart jack also indicated the 10.

Declarer played the singleton jack of clubs and when West covered with the queen declarer, knew East had the ace. He allowed West's queen to win. West led the 10 of diamonds which East won with the ace. East returned a diamond to dummy's jack.

When five cards in a suit are outstanding there is a 60 percent chance the suit will break 3-2. Percentages dictate that declarer, upon winning the 10 of hearts, should draw trumps by playing the king-jack. Against a 3-2 break this will work, but it will fail against the actual holding.

Fortunately, declarer was no slavish follower of conventional wisdom. It was obvious to him from East's emphatic double, that trumps were not going to break 3-2. He led the four of trumps from dummy and when East covered with the two he won the trick with the five. The king-jack of trumps now drew East's 10-nine.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

There is no one on the face of this earth for whom I feel more compassion than the mothers of children who are on half-day sessions at school.

My neighbor, Iris, went through an entire year of this schedule and we almost lost her. We all went over one day and literally dragged her from the utility room and set her down in the living room.

"Where are we?" she mumbled numbly.

"In your living room," we said gently.

"I've never been here before," she said.

"Of course you have. It's the room right off your kitchen and utility room. Remember?"

She shook her head.

"All I remember is in September I went into the kitchen and the utility room and I've been there ever since. Rinsing breakfast plates, putting them in the sink, clearing the table, starting the washer..."

"It's all right," we said. "Don't dwell on it."

...and then picking up the pajamas and washing them, and making beds and it's lunchtime again and the kids are home and it's time to pick up the school clothes and wash them, and set the table and get lunch and rinse the plates and do the dishes and clear the table and it's dinnertime and I set the table and rinse the dishes and start the washer...did I say that before?"

We nodded.

My kids went through it and it was a period that I paranoically refer to as the "Clothing Connection." It was like a game. Every time they moved ahead two spaces, they passed go and went directly to the closet. My five-year-old once set a record for changing clothes. Within a 14-hour period, he changed clothes nine times. He had an outfit for eating breakfast, going to school, running through the house, using the phone, eating lunch, answering the door, riding his bike, weighing himself and one that he wore because there was nothing else clean left to wear.

I couldn't walk through a room without encountering a pile of his clothes. It was like picking your way through cow chips.

I'll never forget poor Iris if I live to be 100...her hands shivered from hand washes, her sinuses filled with laundry bleach, her brain fogged by lint. "When does it all end?" she said. "All this washing and ironing?"

We smiled. "On the day your kids start to do their own laundry."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: All the hullabaloo about Princess Caroline's wedding reminded me of that great definition you gave a long time ago for "class" — something about "grace under pressure." Will you repeat it? — Bellaire, Ohio

Dear Bell: Actually it was a definition of "grace under pressure": I said it was Her Serene Highness wearing her 1952 girle.

Dear Ann: I am just an average person with a simple story to tell. My wife doesn't nag me about my snoring or other annoying habits. My father-in-law doesn't try to borrow money from me. My daughter isn't going with a bum who gets on my nerves. My son isn't spaced out on drugs or in jail for stealing cars. I have a healthy bank account and plan to take a trip to the Orient next month. Last year I went to South America for three weeks and to Florida in February. Next year I'm going to Australia and New Zealand.

I am in good health and have never messed with tranquilizers or booze. My blood pressure is like a 25-year-old's, although I will soon be 60.

How do I manage this? The answer is simple. I never married. Please pass this formula on to your readers. — Happy As A Lark

Dear Lark: So you never married? Where should I send the medal? Granted, marriage is not for everyone, but every study I have seen shows that married men live longer — and don't tell me it just SEEMS longer. Married men also enjoy better health than their unmarried brothers. If you think bachelorhood is a guarantee against being broke, sick, alcoholic and miserable, just look around, chum.

Dear Ann Landers: What should you do when you're ape over a guy and you write him a letter telling him how you feel and the next day about ten people come up to you and say, "I saw that letter you wrote to Bill! Wow!"

Ann, I didn't mean for Bill to pass my letter around. I had some awfully personal things in there. Now I am so embarrassed. I can't see straight. I also found out the letter led to some very personal questions and Bill answered them all, which I don't think was very nice. What should I do about this messy situation? — Feeling A Little Betrayed In Idaho

Dear Ida: Sounds like Bill has a mouth that would make the Grand Canyon look like a buttonhole. Give him the deep six — and fast. Any fellow who is halfway decent goes out of his way to protect the reputation of the girls he goes with. Bill is a heel.

Dear Ann Landers: What is the world coming to when a retired person's small gift of money is returned?

I sent a lovely card to a graduate and enclosed a few dollar bills as my gift. I was heartsick when a family member returned the money with a nasty note.

Should I send a larger amount and apologize, or what? I feel so humiliated I don't know how I can ever face these folks again. — Columbus, Ohio

Dear Friend: Some people consider a gift of money "indelicate," but there is no excuse for returning it with a nasty note.

I suspect there is another explanation. Perhaps they felt you could not spare the money and didn't want to accept it for that reason.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read your printed material on colitis, but am still confused. I have had mucous colitis for about a year. My doctor has me on a fiber diet with tranquilizer and stool softener. I understand that you recommend a bland diet. Upper G.I.s and barium enema X-rays show only an irritated colon. I have lots of mucus discharge with three bowel movements a day. There is no pain. I worry so much about cancer with this going on for so long. Please help me understand what is going on. — I.A.

The first thing to understand is that this is not an infection. Your tests show no ulceration present. Your bowel is structurally OK, just not functioning correctly, and from your description I would suspect tension as the chief cause. You don't seem to realize this. The section on "mucous colitis" in the booklet refers you back to an earlier section on "ulcerati colitis." You don't have that, but since nerves play a role in both, that section is pertinent for you.

The tranquilizer helps keep your apparent tension under control and at the same time eases any spasm of bowel muscles. The stool softener helps you utilize the roughage necessary for your proper bowel function.

No medicine will do what you must do yourself, and that is to bring your fears and emotions under control. It doesn't happen overnight. Your cancer fear seems unwarranted, and, indeed, may be contributing to tension. With this in mind reread the booklet. Food sensitivity can also be involved. Many patients have to avoid foods such as milk, for example, a prime source of sensitive bowel.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a woman in her 40s and have terrible back pain recently. My doctor took X-rays and said I have a "mild degenerative disc disease." He also said I have spurs. I don't understand either of these terms. My doctor can be very evasive when I ask questions. He also said there is no cure, but that I can take pain killers. Could you please explain what the terms mean? Is there anything I can do to prevent too much pain? — L.U.

Spurs are overgrowths of bone usually seen with osteoarthritis, either of the spine or one of the extremities. Mild degenerative disc disease means the thickness of the spinal discs between two or more vertebrae (spine sections) is less than normal. This can be due to injury or changes caused by arthritis.

Putting the back to rest usually helps.

This does not mean absolute bedrest. The condition can be helped by braces or girdles in many cases. In others, carefully prescribed exercise can help. I suggest you see an orthopedic doctor regarding this. Pain killers are not the most efficient means of dealing with a chronic pain as yours, certainly not at the expense of attempting some of the methods I mention above. At your age (40) therapy can be more helpful than if you were older.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son's little toe on one foot has turned under the toe next to it since birth. Is it true that as long as it doesn't make the child uncomfortable there is nothing to worry about? Is this inherited? I understand my aunt's toe turned under this way. — Mrs. K.M.

Although it is giving him no trouble now, this matter should be corrected, because it undoubtedly will cause some discomfort later on, a fact your aunt would probably verify. Such a defect is usually inherited. For a better understanding of colitis and other intestinal ailments, their causes and treatment, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Outlook Good For Juvenile Center Funds

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Prospects appear good that the Texas Criminal Justice Division will approve a request for $500,000 for the construction of a Lubbock County juvenile detention center, according to Lloyd Watts, administrator of the county juvenile probation department.
Speaking before a Tuesday luncheon of the Lubbock League of Women Voters, Watts said the feasibility study and design of the facility have been completed and construction is projected to begin in January and require approximately a year.

The project will cost at least $1.16 million, he told the audience, with $500,000 being sought from the state and the remainder coming from the local area through county commissioners.
Asked when he expected the State Criminal Justice Division to consider the $500,000 grant request, Watts said, "Whether or not we will get the answer by October, I am not certain. I will know the answer by the end of the year."
The proposed site for the center is on nine acres of recently purchased county land at North Loop 289 and Akron Avenue. The center will be housed in a one-story building containing four dayrooms, three classrooms, a recreation room, an open courtyard and 36 rooms for confinement.

Watts said the Lubbock center will be one of the first two centers in Texas to offer long-term as well as short-term care for juvenile offenders. This will enable parents to maintain closer contact with children than is currently possible under a system which sends more serious offenders off to Texas Youth Council centers.

The Lubbock facility is intended to serve the regional area encompassed by the South Plains Association of Governments.

Good, Bad News Reported About Ozone Layer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sunbathers may be heartened to learn that the atmosphere's protective ozone layer no longer appears threatened by nitrogen fertilizers.

But before anyone gets too comfortable, they should know that another chemical seems to be menacing the earth's radiation shield.

The good news and the bad news came Tuesday from scientists summarizing the latest atmospheric research results at a national meeting of the American Chemical Society.

Dr. Hanwant B. Singh of SRI International, a private research group in Menlo Park, Calif., said a three-year survey of global atmospheric chemicals indicates nitrogen fertilizers do not alter levels of nitrous oxide.

Five years ago, some scientists warned that nitrous oxide rising from fertilized ground would migrate to the upper atmosphere and attack ozone, a form of oxygen that protects the earth from excessive ultraviolet solar radiation.

Scientists say reduction of the ozone could result in more skin cancer, biological changes in plants and animals and possible shifts in climate.

"We suspect that the nitrous oxide problem at this time is purely a speculative one," Singh told a news briefing.

But the survey, sponsored by the Environmental Protection Agency, showed increasing levels of methyl chloroform in the lower atmosphere that could migrate upward and destroy ozone, he said.

Singh said the level of the chemical in the air is increasing at a rate of 20 percent a year.

Dr. Philip Hanst, an EPA scientist from Research Triangle Park, N.C., said his agency is studying possible controls on methyl chloroform, which is used primarily to degrease metals.

Hanst said a regulatory problem is that the chemical is increasingly used by people switching from another substance called trichloroethylene, which produces unhealthy smog and causes cancer.

"The question is which is worse and is there a substitute?" he asked.

Ozone destruction became an issue several years ago when Dr. Mario Molina and Sherwood Rowland of the University of California said there was evidence the chlorofluorocarbons, used as refrigerants and spray-can propellants, migrated to the upper atmosphere and destroyed ozone.

Federal regulators subsequently restricted chlorofluorocarbons in aerosol products, responsible for half the use of the chemicals, and the government is trying to decide what to do about refrigerants.

Faubus, Wife Missing, Say Arkansas Kin

HUNTSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Orval E. Faubus, 68, and his wife, Elizabeth, have left Huntsville, and maybe the state he governed for 12 years at the height of its desegregation resistance.

But no one's sure.

"He hasn't left any word with anyone that we know of," his sister-in-law, Ruby Faubus, said from her home in Fayetteville. "We missed him Saturday. It was decoration day at the cemetery, and he always goes there, but he wasn't there that time."

However, there are some indications that they have left.

—No one answered the telephone at their 12-room mansion in northwest Arkansas.

—A note signed "Orval" told J.E. Dunlap, publisher of the Harrison Times: "I am moving with no new address yet established."

—Terry England, manager of Arkansas Western Gas Co., confirmed that gas to the Faubus house was shut off Monday.

—Roberta Appleton, postmistress at Huntsville, said Faubus told her to hold his mail until further notice.

—Employees of the local bank said Faubus told them goodbye Friday. His job at the bank office ended a few months ago.

In 1957, Faubus, elected three years before to the first of his six two-year terms as governor, ordered the National Guard to block the enrollment of blacks at Little Rock Central High School.

President Dwight Eisenhower sent the 101st Airborne Division to Little Rock to protect them. Soldiers used bayonets to quell rioting.

In 1970 and 1974, he lost bids for Democratic gubernatorial nominations and, as his political star waned, his troubles grew.

gal aliens were discovered last year; 1,005 were found in rural towns or cities (Wichita Falls and Lubbock); and 843 were turned over by other law enforcement agencies.

Rowe said that within the last 10 years the number of illegal aliens caught by the border patrol in this station area has shown an increase, with the record year being 1975, when 3,621 aliens were sent back to their countries.

The head agent said he does not have figures on how many aliens are found yearly in the Lubbock vicinity, but that their numbers are heavy in and around the city because of the large cotton industry.

Patrol agent Dean Hall said this year's busiest day so far has been July 19 when 55 Mexicans lacking legitimate passports were caught and placed in Lubbock's old city jail — where all aliens discovered by agents in the 28-county area eventually find themselves before being transported back to their countries.

Thirty-four illegal aliens were apprehended by border agents last Thursday in the Lubbock and Levelland area, Rowe said.

Seventeen persons arrested on misdemeanor offenses during the Labor Day weekend were transferred from the Lubbock County Jail to the old city jail after the border patrol learned the prisoners were Mexicans in this country illegally.

Rowe, a 22-year veteran with the border patrol who has been in Lubbock a little over a year, said the number of aliens federal agents capture does not accurately reflect the much-larger number of non-U.S. citizens actually here.

Asked about the illegal alien population in the Lubbock Station Area, Rowe said, "I wouldn't be surprised if there are 100,000...it probably would scare us."

Rowe said he does not know of any viable solution to the increasing flow of illegal aliens into this country, unless it would be to either fine or take legal action against employers who knowingly hire "wetbacks."

Right now, businessmen who are caught with illegal aliens in their employments are not considered lawbreakers, the head agent said.

Three popular Lubbock restaurants lost employees as the result of border patrol agents apprehending eight illegal aliens living in one house on August 24. The Mexicans were employed in such jobs as dishwashers and bus boys.

The common practice of hiring illegal aliens in eating places—in Lubbock and elsewhere—is especially disturbing, Rowe said, because of the possibility of customers being exposed to tuberculosis—a communicable disease much more prevalent in Mexico than in the United States.

"I had two friends (patrol agents) who got tuberculosis," Rowe said. For people in the border patrol, "it's become an occupational hazard," because they come in contact with aliens who might be carriers of the disease.

The problem the border patrol is attempting to remedy has two major contributing factors—the alien who is coming to this country because there's more money here, and the employer who seeks out the alien because he or she does not demand high wages in many cases.

Border agent Allen Sparks said he was told by a captured illegal alien recently that the average pay for field workers in Mexico—many of whom eventually attempt to cross over to the United States—was about 40 pesos a week, or a little under $2 weekly.

That doesn't hold a stick to some of the wages illegal aliens in this area were making before being caught by Rowe. There was the bricklayer making $9.60 hourly and the $8-an-hour concrete finisher caught by the border patrol last month.

"We regularly catch them making over $5 an hour," Rowe said. "We also regularly catch them making $1.50 an hour and less."

The majority of the jobs held by illegal aliens are not the ones people are beating down the doors to get. "Whether we like it or not, there's a social stigma on manual labor, and a lot of people think it's below their dignity to take some of the jobs the aliens take," Rowe said.

Attempting to reflect the employer's viewpoint, Rowe said, "If you were going to employ a dishwasher, would you like one that you knew didn't like his job, or would you like the one who was glad to get the job and would keep his mouth shut when you told him to do something?"

Jobs are not the only thing illegal aliens are taking away from the American people, however. Their presence means the need for the U.S. Border Patrol, and that agency is not all that cheap.

Congress allocated $27,184,450 to run the patrol's Southern Region, said Jack Ray, with region headquarters in Dallas. The region is just one of four in the U.S. Border Patrol and it takes up 13 states, including Texas.

Asked about the border patrol's estimated expenses for next year, Ray said, "It probably will exceed last year's."

Kansas City Merchants Unafraid Of New Flood

FUDDLE JUMPER — Katy Carson, 6, jumps across Brush Creek in the Country Club Plaza of Kansas City, Mo., as dark clouds float overhead. KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A year ago Tuesday, 10 to 14 inches of rain poured down on Kansas City for 24 hours, sending normally placid creeks rampaging from their banks. Thousands of people fled their homes. 25 died and damages totaled $90 million.

Today, most shop and home owners are back in their same locations on the flood plains, and they have done little to protect themselves from another disaster.

John Robert Flynn can look out the all-glass front of his book shop at two-foot-wide Brush Creek.

"Sure I think about it... every time it rains," he says. "I'll always think about it — a memory like that doesn't go away in a year."

Brush Creek washed through the old homes and chic shops around the Country Club Plaza in south Kansas City. When the water receded, Flynn helped shovel $500,000 worth of soggy books from what had been his shop.

He bought out his partner and redecorated. He says he never considered moving to higher ground. "If I did think about it, I just put it in the back of my mind and began to rebuild."

Brush Creek's rapid rise was the result of an unusual rain storm that hovered over the city. Such a flood occurs about once every 100 years, the Army Corps of Engineers notes, but that is only an average — it could happen again tomorrow.

Most shop and home owners in the area believe it won't.

"We really believe it was a once in a 100 years event, or at least once in a lifetime," says Elynn Abloff Bold, executive vice president of the Plaza Merchants Association. "We feel the flood was last year — it's over. And we were able to bounce back."

Indeed, the plaza has four new shops — all located in a section that was destroyed by fire during the flood. And even though the flood knocked out half of the plaza's 155 stores for a short time, they have all reopened.

There have been several attempts in the past year to lessen the effect of floods.

A bond election that included $38.5 million for flood protection — $11 million along Brush Creek — failed to get the required two-thirds approval it needed last month. It was the third flood protection bond issue to fail here.

"There is a false sense of security which suggests there will not be another flood for centuries," says Col. Richard L. Curl, until recently head of the Kansas City district office of the corps. "Another flood could occur at any time."

The City Council also is studying proposed ordinances that would place strict controls on construction along the city's creeks and rivers. They are needed to keep the city eligible for federal flood insurance.

But many businessmen and other landowners oppose the restrictions and the City Plan Commission has recommended they not be approved. Mayor Charles B. Wheeler has requested an extension for further study, although he opposes construction that could increase the chance of floods.

"I'll be glad to go out of office without another 13-inch rain," he said. "But I'll say this: When it comes, we ought to be ready."

Trevor Howard Prefers Acting To Lounging In Isle Paradise

BORA BORA (AP) — Seventeen years after "Mutiny on the Bounty," Trevor Howard was back in French Polynesia in the South Pacific for another movie, but he didn't see it as a return to paradise.

Howard, who was Capt. William Bligh in "Bounty" to Marlon Brando's Fletcher Christian, plays kindly Father Malone in the remake of the 1937 film "Huzricane."

Asked his feelings about coming back to Polynesia, he shrugged. "It doesn't matter where I go to make a movie," he said.

He said he remembered his time in nearby Tahiti as being "pretty much the same." He recalled that the first jet airplanes landed in Papeete while he was there, bringing Tahiti into the air age.

"They changed everything, but one expected that," he said. "What else? It was more primitive then."

Howard sat in the open-air lounge of the Hotel Marara, under the high-domed thatched roof. The beautiful white sand beach and a lagoon that changed from emerald green to deep blue stretched to the coral reef a mile away. He was casually dressed in shorts and had a blue terrycloth hat on his head. A red beard partially covered his craggy face.

Bora Bora is a feast for the senses. Author James Michener calls it the most beautiful island on earth. Two extinct volcano peaks dominate the tiny island. The lagoon water is so clear the tropical fish seem suspended and coral is visible 40 feet deep. Larger neighboring islands sit upon the horizon like ghostly sentinels.

But Howard would have preferred being back in London. Not that he didn't appreciate the beauty. He was bored with not working.

"This is a part I could do in a week," he said. "But I've got a five-month contract. That's awful. But the reason is because the tank they intend to make the hurricane in isn't finished yet. So we've got to wait for it."

"Most of my time here I'm not working. What do you do? That's it. After a week you've already done it, I expect."

Shifting in his chair, he admitted he was bored, but said, "I haven't opened the Scrabble board yet. I read a lot. You go snorkeling in the lagoon a few times and that's enough. There's not much more for me to do here except finish the film. I'm ready to go bonkers. I won't, but I'm ready to."

His last stay in Polynesia was extended, too. He said, "We got here and there was no Bounty. No script. And if that's the way you want to make pictures, you're not going to be very successful. Then when the ship arrived, the rains came. So we left. After three months we went back to Tahiti. But it was no more protracted than some other pictures. You can't make pictures in a hurry."

Howard said he was fascinated by one attribute of the Tahitian natives on Bora Bora, which is part of the Society Islands. It lies 165 miles northwest of Tahiti. The airport and the road circling the island were built by American Seabees during World War II.

"I don't know of any place else where the native can't be bought by money to go back to work," he said. "They won't work until they're ready. I think that's totally admirable. I think we could learn a bit from that, but then we live in a totally different world."

The Dino De Laurentiis movie is pumping $20 million into the island and seems ready to overwhelm the island and its population of 2,500. One long-time resident said there was more drunkenness and auto accidents, that the "Italians" — as the moviemakers are called despite their many nationalities — are having an enormous impact, and he fears the island will be changed forever. The presence of the moviemakers has also caused some discontent among the islanders.

Asked his observation, Howard replied, "We can only judge by what we've done to Tahiti," he said. "Papeete has changed some to accommodate the American tourists, but the rest of the island's the same."

"Papeete remains a very fascinating little town. The thing I would say what spoils Tahiti is that if you get off the plane there are those hotels which are totally American. They look like hotels you see everywhere. The rooms are the same, the food's the same. That is not Tahiti at all."

Howard said he did not mind that De Laurentiis was planning two films on the Bounty mutiny "if they make it honest." One film focuses on Capt. Bligh and the other on Christian. Screenwriter Robert Bolt and producer David Lean were working on the scripts in Papeete.

"Ours was sort of rubbish and so was the other one before," he said, referring to the 1935 film with Clark Gable and Charles Laughton. "The point of view of history is total rubbish. I haven't talked to David about the picture but it has to be another conjecture, because there's really no historical facts on what actually happened. So it gives them an awful lot of leeway."

Howard sighed and said, "It's the sitting around. I like to work."

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Rats were reported invading mountains of garbage piled in streets and yards in Copenhagen as a strike by some 200 garbage collectors entered its 12th day Tuesday. Although the workers appear ready to return, a key obstacle is lack of agreement on how much they should be paid to clean up the trash that piled up during the strike.

Most Teacher Walkouts Continue; Two Settled

By The Associated Press
Jeering pickets forced Cleveland school administrators to move a Tuesday workshop that was to help them cope with the city's school strike, one of the series of walkouts around the country that has delayed the school year for some 400,000 youngsters.

Meanwhile, the 91,000 students in New Orleans went to school for the first time this year as teachers and officials agreed to a 7 percent raise added to salaries that now range from $10,096 to $15,000. A teachers strike in Cranston, R.I., also was settled one day before classes were slated to begin.

Strikes continued in California, Connecticut, Illinois, Michigan, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Washington. Most of the disputes centered on wages.

The session for Cleveland school administrators on security and education during a strike had to be moved from a high school to a motel when pickets blocked entrances to the school during the fourth day of the walkout by 10,000 teachers and non-academic employees.

There were no classes Tuesday but the school superintendent was considering trying to re-open the 100,000-pupil school system Wednesday.

The unions struck because the debt-ridden school system failed to respond to demands for a 20 percent salary increase. The last negotiated pay hike was two years ago. The starting salary for teachers is $9,100 a year.

Thirteen union leaders in Bridgeport, Conn., were jailed on contempt of court charges Tuesday as 1,200 teachers refused to return to work. The union leaders were also to pay fines of $350 for each day they refuse to honor a judge's back-to-work order. The Bridgeport Education Association, which represents the teachers, also was fined $10,000 daily for each day of the strike.

Superior Court Judge James Henery warned some striking rank-and-file union members that they would be sent to jail beginning Wednesday if the strike continued. He scheduled hearings for more teachers later in the week.

Eight Pennsylvania school districts were closed, idling nearly 35,000 students and 2,000 educators.

Picketing by teachers in seven Michigan school districts kept some 53,000 students out of the classrooms. About 2,500 teachers were on strike in the Scottville-Mason County Central, Mona Shores, Grand Haven, West Branch, Warren Consolidated, Swartz Creek and Durand school districts.

Officials in Fall River, Mass., attempted to open schools Tuesday morning for 14,500 students, but the high school closed its doors after 10 minutes and most students at other schools were sent home after teachers walked out. The dispute centers on a demand for a pay increase of 6 percent to 8 percent. Currently, top-scale teachers earn $15,476.

Teachers in the Jefferson Union School District outside of San Francisco remained on strike after a judge refused to grant a temporary restraining order. Half-day classes continued at six high schools affected by the strike.

There also were strikes in Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., affecting a total of 90,000 students.

No talks were scheduled in Seattle where teachers, custodians, gardeners and food-service workers were on strike.

The 26,000 students in Elgin, Ill., and the 10,300 in Thirton, Ill., also were out of school because of strikes.

And teachers in Dayton, Ohio, continued their strike over demands their average wages of $14,500 be raised by 8 percent to 11 percent.

Panel Scorns Formation Of Drug Abuse Agency

AUSTIN (AP) — A House committee trying to strengthen drug abuse laws Tuesday backed away from recommending a new state agency to oversee drug abuse and alcoholism efforts in Texas.

"A single agency would lead to proliferation of state agencies and would lead to increased costs," said Ben McDonald, executive director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs, which now controls state drug abuse activities. "A single agency would not do away with present duplications and the costs that are now being paid by TDCA would have to be paid by the single agency."

McDonald raised his objection as the House Select Committee on Drugs and Alcohol Abuse and Control considered the final draft of its report to the 1979 legislature.

After McDonald's objections, the committee deleted staff plans to create either a single state agency for drug abuse or a single agency that would handle both drugs abuse and alcoholism.

The report that will go to the 1979 legislature recommends merely that the governor appoint another study committee on alcohol and drug abuse. Another part of the report, approved in August, recommends increased appropriations for more and better enforcement of drug control laws.

"Basically we are asking for more enforcement, both on coastal areas and along the border," said Rep. Robert Maloney, R-Dallas, chairman of the House committee.

The drafted report, which the committee did not accept, said "current structuring of the Drug Abuse Prevention Division within the Texas Department of Community Affairs inhibits the creation of the statewide service network necessary to combat drug abuse."

"Coordination among the nine other state agencies delivering drug abuse services is restricted because of the 'division' status drug abuse holds in Texas. Additionally, efforts toward the needed coordination and joint program with the Texas Commission on Alcoholism under the current system becomes such a technical and administrative quagmire that avoidance and a lack of coordination are the end results," the report said.

Errant Skylab Under Control; Scientists Eye Re-Entry Plan

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab, America's aging 85-ton space satellite that less than two months ago threatened to fall prematurely back to earth, apparently has decided to behave itself.

Toward the end of July, the huge space station obeyed commands given to it by Johnson Space Center controllers that would allow the space craft to remain in earth orbit until late next year or early 1980.

Prior to those computer commands, the satellite had acted like a petulant child, swerving out of control, refusing to obey certain commands and misinterpreting other commands.

All that has changed and space center officials are confident of keeping control of the spacecraft until they can figure out a way to either keep it in orbit or control its re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

"We have a much better idea now of what we're working with," JSC spokesman Charles Redmond said. "We know more about the limitations of the equipment, the power requirements and how to use the onboard power supply."

The space agency wants to keep Skylab aloft until a planned space shuttle mission in 1980 could attach a booster rocket to Skylab and raise it into a higher orbit. The alternative is an early return to earth that could scatter debris over populated areas.

Scientists are beginning to look at ways of controlling such a re-entry, Redmond said, but no plans have been announced.

Prior to the electrical failure earlier this year that started the series of Skylab problems, two 12-man crews of controllers monitored Skylab's movement on a 16-hour schedule.

Space center officials now have made plans to add a fourth tracking station at Santiago, Chile, and currently are training three additional groups of controllers.

When the Santiago tracking station is ready, possibly in mid-November, the three additional groups of controllers will begin watching Skylab on a 24-hour basis.

About 110 controllers here and at Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala., will be involved in monitoring Skylab when the Santiago tracking station goes into operation.

Present tracking stations are located at Madrid, Spain, Goldstone, Calif., and Bermuda.

Skylab has been getting added attention from controllers and more computer equipment during the past five weeks and that is part of the reason for its current good behavior, Redmond said. "About once every two weeks, controllers sent up modifications to make sure it stays in proper position," Redmond said. "There haven't been any anxious moments during the past five weeks."

Skylab currently is orbiting at about 230 miles and although it is still losing altitude, the rate of loss has been reduced by more than half during the past several weeks, Redmond said.

In 1967, Israeli forces carved a 30-mile front along Egypt's Mediterranean coast in the Six-Day War, and Egypt closed the Suez Canal.

Moslem Leader, Journalists Arrested In Iran Crackdown

TEHRAN (AP) — A hardline Moslem leader and several journalists were among scores of persons arrested Tuesday in the sweeping clampdown on opposition groups ordered by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

They were seized under provisions of the martial law decreed after more than 100 persons were killed during new anti-government protests that erupted Friday in Tehran and other cities.

The Moslem leader picked up in the latest wave of arrests was identified as Sheik Yahya Nasiri Noori. Police sources said agents found documents in his home advocating the burning of theaters, banks and liquor stores.

Journalists arrested included three reporters for a local newspaper. Friends said they were not charged but were accused of writing "provocative" articles.

An estimated 1,000 persons have been killed in eight months of disturbances led by conservative Moslems opposed to reform programs ordered by the shah. They include transfer of land formerly owned by religious groups to peasants, more freedom for women — including an end to segregation in universities — removing some restrictions on the sale of alcoholic beverages and a relaxation of religious censorship of movies and television.

The shah has said "Islamic Marxists" have taken advantage of the unrest and are organizing the riots.

In a move to bolster support, the government also has used the martial law to crack down on alleged corruption.

Government sources said a list has been issued naming some 1,000 officials and businessmen banned from leaving the country and facing arrest for illegal profiteering.

A former minister of health and two of his aides have been arrested and charged with misappropriating social security funds.

Among businessmen detained were the head of a trucking company, the leader of a Tehran shopkeepers syndicate, a fruit importer and the directors of a real estate company and a rural cooperative.

The lower house of parliament, the Majlis, continued its debate on the new government of Prime Minister Jaafar Sharif-Emami, appointed by the shah Aug. 28 to appease the conservative Moslems.

His program includes creation of a new ministry for religious affairs and a promise to "respect religious society and Islamic laws."

Sharif-Emami presented his cabinet Sunday and has asked for a vote of confidence.

The Majlis debate is to continue today. Sharif-Emami is expected to receive a comfortable majority from the 365 deputies.

Increased Use Of Braces By Adults Noted

HOUSTON (AP) — Those braces on the teeth once associated only with teenagers are flashing more and more on the choppers of adults, so says the president of the American Association of Orthodontists.

Dr. Raymond Thurow, speaking to some 400 dental specialists in Houston Monday, said 10 years ago only 5 percent of orthodontist patients were adults. Today, those over 21 years of age make up 25 percent of the practice, and the figure is climbing each year.

Most adults get braced to improve their self-image, the dentist said. "Some people are badly disfigured by their teeth, but it is one disfigurement you can do something about."

"Others wear braces to correct dental problems like gaps between the teeth. You can't separate appearance from good dental health. What is healthiest will also look best," he said.

Thurow told the orthodontists from Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Kansas, that once an adult decides to wear braces few object to the appearance of the metal wires in their mouths.

Medical Experts Study Defector's Death

LONDON (AP) — Medical experts Tuesday found that Bulgarian defector Georgio Ivanov Marcov died of blood poisoning, giving some credence to his hospital bed statements that he was poisoned by a man who poked him in the thigh with a lethally tipped umbrella.

The 49-year-old Marcov worked for the British Broadcasting Corp.'s East European service and reportedly had an intimate knowledge of the Bulgarian leadership. Besides his work for the BBC, he did free-lance broadcasting for the American-financed Radio Free Europe.

He died in a London hospital Monday, four days after the umbrella incident.

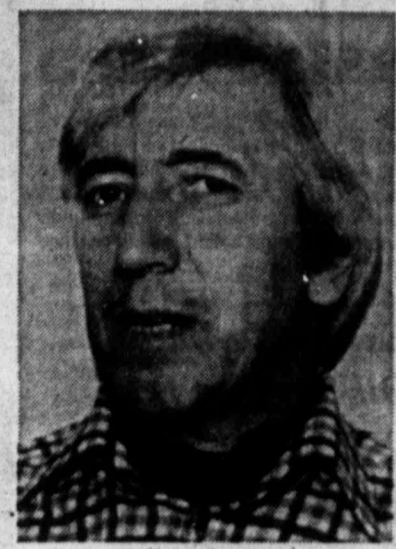

Scotland Yard, in charge of the investigation, said an autopsy was performed Tuesday and that Marcov, a handsome, gray-haired man, died of septicemia, a form of blood poisoning caused by bacterial toxins.

A spokeswoman said samples were taken at the autopsy for further examination by the Yard's forensic scientists. She would not disclose what kind of samples were taken but said forensic experts would use them to try to determine how the toxins got into Marcov's blood.

"No natural cause of death is apparent at this time," said a Scotland Yard statement.

Teo Lirkoff, who worked with Marcov at the BBC and was a close friend, said Marcov repeatedly told him from his hospital bed that he had been poisoned. "He believed he had been murdered," Lirkoff said.

Lirkoff, 53, said Marcov told him he was walking along the sidewalk outside a BBC building in central London at about 6:30 p.m. last Thursday when a man

GEORGIO MARCOV "pushed him in the leg with the point of his umbrella."

He said Marcov described the man as well-built and said the man "told him 'I am sorry' in a foreign accent and got into a taxi." Later that evening at work, Mar-cov said he wasn't feeling well and showed Lirkoff "an angry red spot, like a pimple, on the thigh of his right leg at the back."

The next day Marcov, a playwright who defected from Bulgaria in 1969 and settled in Britain in 1970, "had a shocking cough and temperature" and had great difficulty talking, Lirkoff said. He was rushed from his home to a hospital.

Peter Fraenkel, head of the BBC's East European service, said Marcov had spoken to friends about threats to kill him and was worried about the possibility of kidnap.

"He said he had had threats, but I don't think anything he did for the BBC would have put him in danger," Fraenkel said.

He said Marcov had a weekly BBC program on the British cultural scene "and, of course, he covered plays and that sort of thing which would have a relevance in Eastern Europe."

Lirkoff said his friend's work for Radio Free Europe, however, made him "very much an enemy" to the Bulgaria's communist leadership.

"Corruption was one of his favorite targets, and he talked about the state of the (Communist) party and what the relationships of the bosses were," Lirkoff said.

Fraenkel said Marcov had done a series of broadcasts for foreign stations from his own memoirs, which included "intimate knowledge of Bulgarian party leaders."

"He had been doing this for a number of years, and it would have caused some annoyance to some leaders in Bulgaria," Fraenkel said, emphasizing Marcov never made such broadcasts for the BBC.

Some of Marcov's free-lance broadcasts to Eastern Europe reportedly named high-ranking officials allegedly involved in political scandals and corruption and even gave the names of some Communist leaders' mistresses.

A spokesman for the Bulgarian Embassy declined comment on Marcov's death. But he said that suggestions in the British media that Bulgarian agents might have been behind it "are absolutely unfounded in our opinion."

In 1942, an order-in-council declared the Communist Party of Canada and other bodies, including fascists and Jehovah's Witnesses, illegal.

Firm's Baltimore Canyon Well Third Dry Hole In Coastal Area

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston Oil & Minerals Corp. said Tuesday it found "no producible hydrocarbons" in its exploratory well in the Baltimore Canyon off the New Jersey Coast.

The well is located near where Texaco found a small quantity of natural gas last month and Exxon reported it had found traces of hydrocarbons. Both companies said they were conducting further tests.

Houston Oil's well joined wells drilled by Shell and Continental Oil on the list of Baltimore canyon "dry holes." All three wells were located about 75 miles east of Atlantic City, N.J. The Exxon and Texaco projects are about 25 miles further east.

Houston Oil spokesman Keith Anderson said the cluster of three unsuccessful wells did not necessarily mean that part of the Baltimore Canyon is unproductive.

Banning Of Additive May Increase Fuel Cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency, in action Tuesday that probably will increase the cost of unleaded gasoline, banned refinery use of a gasoline additive because it contributes to air pollution.

The EPA said it is prohibiting the addition of methylcyclopentadienyl manganese tricarbonyl — MMT — to unleaded gasoline. The compound is used to increase octane ratings.

The Ethyl Corp. is the sole manufacturer of the gasoline additive.

An EPA announcement said the agency decided to ban MMT because it increased hydrocarbon emissions, a major urban air pollutant.

"It's rather difficult to say that one well, two wells, three wells or more, are an indication of anything," he said. "You can miss by an inch or you can miss by a mile."

"Naturally, we are disappointed that the well ... wasn't a discovery well," said John Walters, vice president of Houston Oil. "But we remain encouraged by our prospects in the area."

Houston Oil said it will abandon the well and drill a second well about 15 miles southeast of the initial project.

The dry well had been scheduled to go down 13,000 feet, but was halted at 12,500 feet after the drill hit a large deposit of salt.

Houston Oil and its partner in the project, Phillips Petroleum Co., spent $5.3 million to drill the exploratory well. The project is located on a 5,693-acre block the two companies paid the federal government $5.7 million for in an auction of drilling rights in August 1976.

Other companies with major involvements in Baltimore Canyon exploration are Mobil and Gulf, and several other firms have small interests in wells owned by the larger companies.

The U.S. Geological Survey estimates that 13.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and 1.02 trillion barrels of oil lie off the coast of New Jersey — small amounts compared to annual U.S. consumption but enough to put a dent in U.S. reliance on foreign fuels.

Exxon To Build Oil Support Base

HOUSTON (AP) — Exxon Co. USA has selected Brunswick, Ga., as its on-shore support base for initial exploratory oil and gas tests off the South Atlantic Coast.

Exxon said today it has leased about 1,500 square feet office space in Brunswick and is negotiating rental agreements for three acres of open storage area and for 4,000 to 6,000 square feet of covered storage.

Discovery of oil and gas in commercial quantities, Exxon said, would lead to later selection of a site for a permanent onshore support facility for production operations.

Winds Confuse Forest Firefighters Near Denver

DENVER (AP) — Swirling winds — sometimes gusts, sometimes only breezes — puzzled firefighters Tuesday as they fought for the third day against a fire that has blackened about 3,100 acres of timber, brush and grass.

The fire, about 20 miles southwest of Denver, has threatened scores of expensive homes and summer cabins since it started Sunday.

Only one unoccupied home and an out-building have been destroyed, officials said.

But nervous residents — with garden hoses, makeshift pumps and fire-fighting tools nearby — watched the blaze carefully.

Some homeowners nailed rotating lawn sprinklers on rooftops to put out blowing embers.

Commuters driving along Interstate 25 saw towering clouds of white smoke rising from the blaze.

A fire spokesman at Inter-Canyon Headquarters southeast of the most severe portion of the fire was optimistic about controlling the blaze. "If it keeps up like this, we'll be OK," he said.

But Rural Electrification Administration officials worried about the fire destroying power line poles. "If they go, we could have long term power outages," one REA worker said.

Neal Amarino, a spokesman for Johns-Manville, a construction products manufacturing firm with its headquarters in the fire area, said the wind had picked up Tuesday.

There has been no fire damage to the firm's headquarters, but smoke has circulated through the building, keeping its 1,600 employees off their jobs Monday and Tuesday.

"Before that (wind increase), firefighters had made good progress," Amarino said. "Two helicopters had been dropping water, and the U.S. Forest Service dropped slurry in the northwest sections of the ranch."

Amarino was referring to the Ken-Caryl Ranch, which is being developed as residential property. Buildings in the subdivision have not been damaged.

"They had a fire line on the north and northwest edges of the fire, and had six bulldozers and six pumps available," he said.

Also, a Jefferson County sheriff's department spokesman said, fire lines were built on the southeast edge of the fire. He said areas where the fire had burned Sunday and Monday "are in a cold condition."

Helicopter pilots and observers said herds of deer had been driven eastward by the fire and had gathered in safe places on mountain ridges.

About 140 members of the U.S. Forest Service from Montana and Idaho were flown to Denver early Tuesday to help firefighters from California, who arrived Monday.

SPC Adult Courses Registration Slated

South Plains College at Lubbock will add an international element to its Adult Education Program when registration begins Thursday.

Cotton Ginning, one of the nine vocational-technical training courses offered, already has attracted a student from Johannesburg, South Africa, and two from Haiti.

Registration will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Thursday, and on Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Students can sign up at the college building at 1302 Main St.

Courses to be offered, besides Cotton Ginning, include Machine Shorthand, Interior Design, Basic Typewriting, Financial Analysis for Secretaries, Nurses' Aide, Medication for Nursing Homes, Nursing Home Administration and Speedwriting Shorthand.

Classes will meet Mondays through Thursdays, but exact times and the length of each course will vary, said Mary Rooker, special services director for the college's Lubbock campus.

Fees also will vary, she said, adding that additional information about tuition and class times will be available at registration.

Anyone may register for the courses, Mrs. Rooker said, and only high school transcripts are necessary for registration in the college's two-year vocational-technical training programs.

Registration for those accredited classes also will be conducted Thursday and Friday, she added.

Mrs. Rooker said this semester marks the first time the college's Adult Education Program courses will be held at a central location.

The college has conducted the program since 1975, she said, "but we had no facility before so we were limited as to what we could do."

The college recently located its Lubbock campus in the former West Texas Hospital building on Main Street. The building's owners donated it to the college, which then used $2 million in federal grants for renovation.

Because the college was not sure the building changes would be completed in time, the Adult Education Program has gotten off to a slow start, Mrs. Rooker said.

However, the college plans to make up

Anti-Inflation Program In Works

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new anti-inflation program, including voluntary wage-price guidelines, may be disclosed by President Carter as early as next week, administration sources said Tuesday.

Carter's advisers are considering limiting wage increases to 7 percent a year and price increases to 5 1/2 percent, the sources said.

The administration could not enforce such a limit but it could put pressure on businesses and unions that exceeded the guidelines. Carter has flatly ruled out wage-price controls.

The sources said the program, drafted by the high-level Economic Policy Group, might be ready for disclosure by next week.

The new program would be aimed at reducing the inflation rate that has been nearly 10 percent since the start of the year. Although the increases have been abating, the administration still expects prices to rise 8 percent for the entire year.

In April, the administration announced it would fight inflation by holding down government wage increases and trying to persuade businesses and labor to follow the example.

Increases were supposed to be smaller than in the previous year. The new program would go a step further by setting target numbers for new increases.

As another weapon against inflation, the administration is considering keeping the budget deficit down to $30 billion for fiscal 1980, the sources said. Previously, it had been estimated at about $37 billion to $38 billion.

The smaller deficit would require deep cuts in some programs. The administration also is considering a freeze on filling some government job vacancies, but this idea is only tentative, a source said.

Officials also are considering penalizing government contractors who exceed the guidelines by restricting contracts with them.

The wage and price figures would be used for all kinds of industries but it would not be rigid, sources said. There could be adjustments if the prices or wages were exceptionally low or high. A big wage increase might be allowed in the first year if it was smaller in succeeding years.

HIGHWAY PROJECTS IN DANGER
AUSTIN (AP) — Texas highway construction projects being built with federal aid will be brought to "a screeching halt" if Congress adjourns without passing the Surface Transportation Act, the president of the Texas Good Roads Association said Friday. Eugene Robbins told the association's board of directors that $300 million in highway funds, which Texas would receive in the next fiscal year, is at stake.

Three Children Die In Washington Fire

HOQUIAM, Wash. (AP) — Fire swept through a wood-frame house here early Tuesday, killing three children ranging in age from 18 months to 9 years, authorities said.

Fire Chief Bob Wiley said the children were found in the living room of the home. He said the fire apparently started in a downstairs bedroom, but the cause was not immediately determined.

Grays Harbor County Coroner Blaine Jex identified the dead as Geraldine Broten, 9; her brother, Harold, 4, and her sister, Tera, 18 months.

Their father, Ed Broten, said he and his wife were away at the time on a commercial clam dig at Taholah, 40 miles north of Hoquiam. He said they returned to their home shortly after the fire occurred.

Dying Woman Urges Home Care Approval Plan

AUSTIN (AP) — A Beaumont woman dying of a rare spinal ailment urged approval Tuesday of Texas' first hospice to provide physical, emotional, spiritual and economic support for terminally ill patients.

Tears glistened in Connie Langton's eyes as she said, "I'm seeking the right to die at home in my own bed, with people who care, who I can contact 24 hours a day."

She testified before examiner John Neel of the Texas Health Facilities Commission, which granted a rehearing for Southeast Texas Hospice, Inc., after refusing its application June 8.

The application — the first in Texas — seeks a nonprofit hospice based in Orange to serve Orange, Jefferson, Hardin, Newton and Jasper counties.

If it is approved, groups in other cities are expected to seek certificates for hospices from the commission.

Support for the Orange application came from the Texas Conference of Churches, with 2.8 million members, and director O.P. Bobbitt of the Texas Center for Volunteer Action in the governor's office.

Bobbitt, the brother-in-law of former President Lyndon Johnson, said his wife died in February of cancer after a lengthy illness, and he added, "I wish to God we had had that kind of organization (hospice) available."

Those opposing the application include agencies already providing some type of home health care.

Langton, a former welfare worker, said she has seen what type of home care is provided. "Thank you, but no thank you — I don't want to die that way," she said.

The hospice concept involves a total care package for dying patients and their families, with emphasis on care in the patient's home and 24-hour call service seven days a week.

Langton said when she contacted a home health agency and asked what it provided, she was told a registered nurse would look in on her one to three times a week and a "provider" would check on her one to six times a week to take care of her personal hygiene needs and do some cooking.

Asked what more a hospice could provide, she replied, "I would hope to receive the caring that I have seen in these people — you can't hire a person to care."

"Death is part of life," said Dr. Gloria

Castro-Zappia, an Orange physician who treats terminally ill cancer patients. "It is not something you shove away in the corner, hoping it will be forgotten — which is happening to a lot of terminally ill patients now."

"These patients feel," she said, "They feel pain, they feel emotion, they feel neglect."

Government Regulations Assailed

HOUSTON (AP) — A study by the Rice Center for Community Design and Research shows the cost of a home built on an average lot in Houston has increased $35,000 in the past 10 years and that most of the boost can be blamed on governmental regulations.

Donald Williams, president of the research center, said the consumer paid about $3,200 for a lot in 1967, but by 1977 the price had soared to $10,200.

This increase, the study revealed, was caused by growing governmental regulations, such as federal flood insurance and environmental impact requirements.

Robert Eury, director of research for the center, said 10 years ago a home could be built on a $3,200 lot for a total cost of $16,000. Today, he said, the same home would cost $51,000.

Governors Carey, Grasso Win

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

Govs. Hugh Carey of New York and Eli A. Grasso of Connecticut overcame challenges from their lieutenant governors Tuesday and won renomination on the year's busiest primary day.

Carey, seeking his second term, easily defeated Lt. Gov. Mary Anne Krupak, who bolted the Democratic ticket after charging that Carey was "inaccessible" to the public and legislators. State Sen. Jeremiah Bloom, an advocate of the death penalty, ran a distant third.

Carey will face Assembly Minority Leader Perry Duryea, who was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

In Connecticut, Mrs. Grasso was outdistancing Lt. Gov. Robert Killian by a margin of more than 2-1. Killian had called for tax reform and more attention to urban problems. Mrs. Grasso will face Rep. Ronald Sarasin, who was unopposed in the Republican primary.

In Washington, D.C., Mayor Walter Washington was running slightly behind City Councilman Marion Barry in a tight three-way race in the District of Columbia's Democratic mayoral primary.

Here is a state-by-state rundown of the other races:

NEW HAMPSHIRE: Gov. Meldrim Thomson, one of the nation's most conservative major office holders, easily defeated former Gov. Wesley Powell in the state's Republican primary. And Sen. Thomas McIntyre easily overcame retired Navy Capt. Raymond Coughlan to win renomination in the Democratic primary.

MARYLAND: Acting Gov. Blair Lee, who took over when Marvin Mandel was convicted of bribery, was ahead by about 500 votes with less than 10 percent of the vote in. Former U.S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall led in the GOP gubernatorial primary.

FLORIDA: State Atty Gen. Robert Shemin took the lead in the seven-way Democratic primary for governor. Drugstore magnate Jack Eckerd led in the GOP race. And former U.S. Sen. Edward J. Gurney was leading in his bid for the Republican nomination in the House district that first sent him to Washington.

VERMONT: Gov. Richard Snelling was unopposed in the Republican primary. State Rep. Edwin Granai led Bernard O'Shea, a newspaper publisher, in the Democratic primary.

MINNESOTA: There was a challenge from the conservative side of the Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party by Robert Short, former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee. He faced Rep. Donald Fraser, the candidate designated by the party for the late Hubert Humphrey's Senate seat, which is now occupied by Humphrey's widow, Muriel. David Durenberger, a lawyer, was the favorite among five Republicans.

WISCONSIN: David Carley was challenging acting Gov. Martin Schreiber, who took over when Patrick Lucey became ambassador to Mexico a year ago.

ARIZONA: Gov. Bruce Babbitt was expected to win the Democratic gubernatorial primary over token opposition. There was a three-way race for the Republican nomination.

COLORADO: Rep. William Armstrong faced former astronaut Jack Swigert in a Republican primary to determine an op-

Bomb-Maker Given Seven Life Sentences

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A 26-year-old Belfast man who admitted making killer bombs for a Northern Ireland terrorist organization has received seven concurrent life sentences from a Belfast court.

James Watt, a self-confessed member of the Protestant paramilitary Ulster Volunteer Force, was jailed for life Monday for a double murder, then returned to Belfast City Commission court Tuesday to face four more murder charges and two counts of attempted murder. He pleaded guilty and was given a life term on each count, all to be served concurrently.

Watt admitted making a car bomb that exploded in Belfast last April, killing two mourners waiting to take part in the funeral of a young member of the Irish Republican Army Provisional wing who was shot dead by British troops. The bombing injured 26 people.

He also pleaded guilty to bombing a Belfast bar in May 1976, killing two and injuring 30.

The Provisionals are the militant wing of the mostly Roman Catholic IRA, and have been responsible for many terrorist acts in Northern Ireland's 10-year sectarian conflict. The IRA's aim is to wrest control of the province from the British and unite Northern Ireland with the Irish republic, where Catholics are dominant.

Recent Votes By Area's Congressmen Recorded

By Roll Call Report
 WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes immediately following the summer recess.

HOUSE
SPYING ON FOREIGNERS
 Adopted, 178 for and 176 against, an amendment making it easier for the U.S. government to conduct electronic surveillance on foreigners in the U.S. The amendment eliminated a proposed requirement that the government obtain a court warrant for electronic spying on foreigners suspected of threatening national security.

It stipulated that such surveillance need be authorized only by the attorney general and a designated "national security official" in the executive branch. It was attached to HR 7308, a bill setting stricter rules on U.S. government spying on foreigners. The bill was headed toward final passage and consideration by the Senate.

Rep. Eldon Rudd, R-Ariz., a supporter, said: "It makes absolutely no sense whatsoever for our intelligence personnel (to) obtain judicial warrants to conduct electronic surveillance against foreigners visiting our country — when those persons might have known or suspected ties to Communist governments or terrorist organizations."

Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass., an opponent, said: "History shows and the record proves that oftentimes the information which was collected under the guise of surveilling foreign powers, foreign embassies and consulates was used against American citizens. That is the reason why we have an across-the-board warrant in this bill."

Members voting "yea" favored eliminating the warrant requirement.

Reps. Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Bill Archer, R-7, W. R. Poage, D-11, Jack Hightower, D-13, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Omar Burleson, D-17, Abraham Kazen, D-23, Dale Milford, D-24, Manuel Lujan, R (N.M.)-1, and Harold Runnels, D (N.M.)-2, voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Jim Mattox, D-5, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jke Pickle, D-10, James Wright, D-12, Barbara Jordan, D-18, George Mahon, D-19, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, and Bob Gammage, D-22, voted "nay."

Other Uses For Money Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown proposed more than 100 military program restorations Tuesday to replace $2 billion designated for a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier in a bill vetoed by President Carter.

Brown made it clear the Carter administration is not willing to surrender the $2 billion, but believes the money should be "applied to other defense needs, including weapons, equipment, ammunition, readiness, research and development, and other naval ships."

"It is essential to our security that defense be funded at or very near" the $126 billion level proposed by Carter for fiscal 1979, the defense secretary said in a letter to Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

After the House upheld Carter's veto of a $36.9 billion weapons authorization bill by a wide margin last week, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, suggested Congress ought to simply pass the same bill once more with the $2 billion in carrier money omitted.

Brown was summoned to testify Tuesday before Price's committee, and his letter was obviously designed to lay the basis for that testimony.

The list accompanying Brown's letter, which also went to Stennis and Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, covered a wide variety of weapons, research programs and readiness items.

The biggest called for restoration of $330.6 million in funds for operation, maintenance, supplies and stockpiles. This category includes such things as spare parts, overhaul of ships and aircraft and other means for maintaining the readiness of existing forces.

The list also included many types of missiles, tanks, artillery pieces, electronic equipment, bombs and ammunition, anti-submarine warfare ships, communications gear and other programs.

The list actually totals over $2.2 billion, but Brown indicated the administration was willing to forego about $200 million of that.

The letter said about $45 million of the total require specific authorization, and which were not included in the vetoed bill, although the president had asked for them.

The remainder, Brown said, are items for which funds can be voted without specific authorization, and he said, "The administration will seek such restoration in the appropriate legislation."

Ag Council Holds 'Citizens' Audit'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Council of America began listening Tuesday to hundreds of callers about the part federal regulations play in their lives.

The project will be continued Wednesday and Thursday in what council officials say is part of "a citizens' audit of federal regulation" intended to "gain the broadest possible reading of the American people on what's working and what isn't and why."

The council was formed five years ago to help improve communications between farmers and consumers.

Reps. Ray Roberts, D-4, Olin Teague, D-6, John Young, D-14, and Robert Krueger, D-21, did not vote.

NEW YORK AID Passed, 233 for and 132 against, a measure (HJ Res 1088) giving final congressional approval of the $1.65 billion federal loan guarantee said necessary to prevent New York City's bankruptcy. The bill, which now goes to the Senate, follows up the 1975 financial bail-out legislation for New York that expired June 30, 1978. In part, it appropriates the $1.65 billion on a standby basis.

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., a supporter, said: "I hope that this assistance will not only enable New York City to avert bankruptcy, but also will give the city an entry to the credit markets."

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., an opponent, said: "Here is the first chance for us to save some money for the people back home and at the same time force fiscal responsibility on the city of New York."

Members voting "yea" favored the loan guarantee for New York.

Wilson, Eckhardt, Wright, Jordan, Mahon and Gonzalez voted "yea."

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Archer, Brooks, Pickle, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Gammage, Kazen, Lujan and Runnels voted "nay."

Teague, Poage, Young, Krueger and Milford did not vote.

Abortion Adopted, 224 for and 131 against, an amendment to prohibit U.S. Civil Rights Commission involvement in the abortion issue. It was attached to HR 12432, a bill extending the life of the commission through 1983. The bill was sent to conference with the Senate.

The commission was created 21 years ago to function as a federal watchdog over civil rights violations and make policy recommendations in that field. In recent years it has taken an interest in federal abortion policy — offering the rationale that anti-abortion laws discriminate against the poor, minority women by denying them equal protection under the law.

Rep. Thomas Hagedorn, R-Minn., a sponsor of the amendment, said: "The issue of abortion, in itself, is a critical one — but it is not a civil rights matter."

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., an opponent, said: "Sometimes we disagree with the suggestions that the Civil Rights Commission makes. It does not mean that we should indulge in congressional censorship."

Members voting "yea" felt the commission should stay clear of the abortion issue.

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Archer, Wright, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Mahon, Gammage, Kazen, Lujan and Runnels voted "yea."

Wilson, Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Jordan and Gonzalez voted "nay."

Teague, Poage, Young, Krueger and Milford did not vote.

SENATE

BUDGET CUT? Rejected, 25 for and 44 against, an amendment to lower by $17.7 billion the amount of the fiscal 1979 federal budget. It was proposed to H Con Res 683, the resolution setting budget ceilings to guide Congress in its consideration of individual spending bills. H Con Res 683, which now goes to conference with the House, already had cut existing fiscal 1979 budget authority by $11 billion, to $557.7 billion. This amendment sought an additional, across-the-board cut, to $540 billion. Fiscal 1979 begins Oct. 1.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a supporter, said: "The reason that spending is out of control is that the Congress does not give as much weight to defending the taxpayer's purse as it does to accommodating pressure groups and building its spending constituencies."

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Me., an opponent, said: "There are program needs that cannot be further compromised or cut, or whose constituencies are such that there is no practical way to achieve further cuts."

Members voting "yea" favored cutting the 1979 budget across-the-board by $17.7 billion.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted "yea."

Sen. John Tower, R, did not vote. Sens. Harrison Schmidt, R (N.M.), and Peter Domenici, R (N.M.), voted "nay."

Airlines To Cut Funds Available For Strikes

NEW YORK (AP) — The 15 U.S. airlines involved in the Mutual Aid Pact, which provides financial aid to airlines involved in labor disputes, decided Tuesday to cut back the amount of money paid a struck airline.

There have been charges from unions and other groups that the pact could ensure an airline of profits even if it were shut down by a strike.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, which must approve the 20-year-old pact every five years, earlier this year put off the latest extension of the plan, facing pressure from unions and Congress.

"I think it's the belief now of the airlines that this will be approved and Congress will find it acceptable," said David C. Frailey, a spokesman for American Airlines.

The modifications of the pact, which must be approved by the CAB, will cut by about one-third of the guaranteed payments made to a struck airline by other airlines.

Under the new rules, a struck airline will be guaranteed 35 percent of its normal operating costs in the first two weeks of a strike, down from 50 percent under the current arrangement.

The airline would be guaranteed 25 percent of normal costs in the next eight weeks of the strike and nothing after the 10th week. Currently, the percentages are 45 percent in the third week, 40 percent in the fourth and fifth weeks and 35 percent from the sixth week until the end of the strike.

The new plan does not change another clause, under which competing airlines must give the struck airline any extra profits they receive from flying over routes the struck airline is kept from operating on because of the labor dispute.

The Airline Pilots Association charged during its recent prolonged strike with Northwest Airlines that Northwest was receiving enough under the Mutual Aid Pact to keep the line earning a profit without operating. The pilots said this was providing incentive to Northwest to wait as long as possible to settle the dispute.

The airlines involved in the pact are American, Braniff, Continental, Eastern, Frontier, Hughes Airwest, National, North Central, Northwest, Ozark, Piedmont, Texas International, TWA, United and Western.

Eastern Airlines said in July that it would withdraw from the pact at the end of 1979. Eastern said it had paid $74 million to other airlines through the end of 1977 while receiving only $26.1 million.

"At one time, Eastern considered mutual aid to be a 'dread disease' insurance policy," Eastern Chairman and President Frank Borman said in announcing the plans to withdraw from the arrangement. "But with the excellent attitude of our employees and their outstanding contributions to current wage programs, the cost of the insurance premium exceeds the value of the benefits."

Pan American World Airways withdrew from the pact several years ago for similar reasons.

Suspected Killer Sought In Akron

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Police were seeking a gunman who shot and killed a church secretary and wounded the pastor of Christ United Church in West Akron Tuesday.

The Rev. Clyde A. Cox, 41, told police he heard shots in the church and when he investigated he apparently surprised the gunman and was shot in both arms. The Rev. Mr. Cox said he found the secretary, Norma Schoenheit, lying in a pool of blood in her office.

Mrs. Schoenheit, mother of two, had been shot in the chest, it was reported at Akron General Medical Center.

Police searched the area around the church for the man, described as in his late 20s, 5-foot-8 and weighing about 150 pounds.

Police were unable to give a motive for the shootings and could not say whether robbery was involved.

New Exchange Starts Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The ringing of a bell borrowed from a four-masted sailing ship on Tuesday sounded the opening of the newest commodity exchange in New York City.

The ceremony on the floor of the American Stock Exchange marked the start of sales of interest rate futures in Government National Mortgage Association mortgage pools, also known as Ginnie Maes.

The new AMEX Commodities Exchange, already known by the acronym ACE, will compete head-on with the financial futures market now flourishing in Chicago.

Sounding the bell to open trading at 9:50 a.m. were New York City Mayor Edward I. Koch, stock exchange chairman Arthur Levitt Jr. and new ACE chairman George D.F. Lamborn.

The bell had been borrowed from the sailing ship Peking, a cargo carrier now docked permanently at the South Street Seaport.

"This signals more business activity," Koch said. "The exchange is participating even more in the renaissance of New York."

Lamborn predicted that trading volume would be "equal to or above our competition in this particular contract."

Seconds later, the first trade occurred. The firm Shearson, Hayden, Stone agreed to purchase one contract ($100,000 principal balance) for $93,097.50 with a November 1978 delivery. The seller was Stotler & Co.

Levitt formerly was president of Shearson, Hayden, Stone, Lamborn, in addition to being ACE chairman, is senior executive vice president of the firm.

ACE was approved as a contract market for government mortgage futures on Aug. 22 by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

Pending are ACE applications to trade futures in 90-day treasury bills and long-term treasury bonds.

The last commodities exchange opened in New York City more than 40 years ago with the consolidation of several exchanges into an entity now known as Com-

Net Lauds Lifting Of Air Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A broadcasting network lauded a proposed overhaul of the Communications Act Tuesday for its steps toward less federal regulation, but said one provision could be highly dangerous to the broadcast industry.

Gene F. Jankowski, president of the CBS-Broadcast Group, noted that the draft bill stresses diversity of broadcast media, but that at license renewal time the government could consider "any other communications medium in the market."

"This broad language might be construed as authority to the regulators to deny a license renewal on the basis of such ownership, without even defining what is a 'communications medium,'" Jankowski said.

"Accordingly, 'diversity' could be interpreted as a directive to use the new licensing procedures to restructure completely the broadcast industry. We regard this as highly dangerous," he said.

The CBS spokesman also expressed reservations about another section of the bill at a hearing by the communications subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee, which drafted the proposal.

It would levy a fee on all broadcasters, based on broadcast revenue, with the money going to support government regulation, public broadcasting and assistance to minority broadcast ownership.

Jankowski said CBS has a long record of support of public broadcasting and minority ownership, but he added:

"However, we strongly believe that it is totally offensive to democratic principles, and offensive to sound budgetary and tax principles, for an independent agency of the federal government to be given the authority to fund favored enterprises in the communications field and the power to tax commercial broadcasters to raise money needed for such purposes."

FCC member Joseph R. Fogarty objected to a provision of the draft bill that would give radio stations indefinite term licenses, rather than the present three-year period. He suggested an extension to 10 years, saying this would permit an accountability of performance to determine operating deficiencies needing corrective action.

Another FCC member, Tyrone Brown, endorsed a proposal for a random selection process where there are competing applications from qualified interests for new broadcast licenses. But, he said, the commission should be given authority to give added weight to minority ownership.

Brown said also that the commission might well be given authority to grant longer term licenses to TV and radio stations which it finds provide outstanding service to their communities.

REWARD RENEGE
GENEVA (AP) — The World Health Organization says the discovery of a case of smallpox in Britain does not qualify for its widely publicized reward of $1,000 to be paid for confirmation of a new case of the disease. The organization said the reward is for discovery of a person-to-person transmission. The British case involved a woman who worked at a Birmingham University laboratory where the virus is kept.

Furniture Firm Plans Expansion

MIAMI (AP) — Levitz Furniture Corp., which owns 69 furniture warehouse showrooms around the country, may become a new company in an $80 million deal, the Miami-based company announced Tuesday.
Principal shareholders have informed Levitz they were negotiating with a private investment group to form a new company.
A company representative declined comment but said one requirement for the deal would be continuity of the present management, headed by President Robert Elliott.
The company said the new firm, if contingencies are resolved, intends to offer to acquire all outstanding shares of Levitz not held by the Levitz family at a price in the range of $25 per share.
Levitz' sales and profits have been sharply higher since 1976 when Elliott took over as chief executive officer.
The firm reported record profits for the year that ended January 31.

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 116 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 43081. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am a senior citizen. I have read in the newspaper that there are various organizations to aid senior citizens, yet I don't know where I can find out about them. Do you know if there is anyone I can get this information? — R.G.

Aid for senior citizens who need information about organizations, clubs and programs for their special benefit is now available. In the yellow pages of the Bell System directories there will be an increasing appearance of a heading titled Senior Citizens Service Organizations, which aims to provide the names and telephone numbers of senior citizens' service centers, clubs, houses and apartments, luncheon clubs, medical consultants, Salvation Army residences and daytime centers. Under the heading Government — United States the location of the local Social Security office is provided as well as listings for the Office of Health, Education and Welfare. Useful agencies may also be found under the heading Government (your city) and Government (your state). Under Social Service Organizations there are often useful listings of foundations for specific diseases, Community Service Societies, Meals-on-Wheels and senior citizens' service programs. Listings in the senior citizens' section of the yellow pages are reported to be increasing year by year as the public awareness of the senior citizens' needs increases.

HEARTLINE: My husband is a veteran of World War II. Can you tell me what the requirements are for a veteran to be eligible for prosthetic appliances? — J.B.

To be eligible, a veteran must meet the basic requirement for out-patient medical treatment, or be receiving hospital or domiciliary care, and be in need of a prosthetic appliance for at least one of the following:

1. For service-connected disabilities or adjunct conditions.
2. For disabilities for which hospitalization has been authorized, or disabilities associated with and aggravating the condition for which hospitalization was authorized.
3. As part of domiciliary care when necessary.
4. For any disability of veterans who are 80 percent or more disabled because of service-connected disabilities.
5. When in receipt of special monthly compensation or increased pension based on the need for regular aid and attendance, or for being permanently housebound.

HEARTLINE: I am going to be retiring from my Civil Service job with the government in July of 1979. At the time of my retirement I will have approximately six months of unused sick leave. Can I use this time toward my retirement benefit? — B.C.

Yes, this can be done. When the employee retires on an immediate annuity or dies, the time represented by the accumulated unused sick leave to the employee's credit is added to the employee's actual service used in computing annuity. An immediate annuity is one which begins no later than one month after separation from the service. This includes annuity to an employee who retires optionally, or who retires for age, disability or due to being involuntarily separated from the service. It does not include annuity to a separated employee entitled to deferred retirement at a future date.

ERA Faces Delaying Tactic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said Tuesday he expects the Equal Rights Amendment extension to reach the Senate floor soon, and he thinks time is on the side of its opponents.

Garn, who threatened last month to lead a filibuster against the extension, said 14 or 15 senators, including Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, have agreed to assist him in the delaying tactic.

"Certainly time is to our advantage," Garn said. "The later it is in the session, obviously the more easy it is to sustain a filibuster."

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., has said he is not sure the extension issue will be brought up during this session because of the press of other legislative business and the threat of a filibuster against it.

"My own feelings are it probably will come up," Garn said.

The ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex, must be ratified by 38 states by March 22, 1979, to become part of the Constitution. To date it has been approved by 35 of them, but four have since rescinded approval.

The validity of that move still is in question and the Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide. The states that have rescinded approval are Kentucky, Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska. Kentucky's action was vetoed, however.

The House voted Aug. 15 to extend the deadline to June 30, 1982. Garn, an opponent of the ERA, announced the next day that he would lead a filibuster against the extension unless the Senate agreed to two amendments.

The amendments would require a two-thirds majority for passage of the extension and permit states that have ratified to withdraw their approval during the additional time period. Supporters of the extension oppose both moves.

There has been no previous request for a time extension on ratification of a constitutional amendment. And until some amendments earlier in this century, Congress put no time limit on the ratification process, although the Constitution gives Congress the power to set such a limit.

Garn appeared with Phyllis Schlafly, national chairman of Stop ERA, at a news conference during a day-long meeting of a coalition formed to support the filibuster.

Mrs. Schlafly said more than 250 persons from every state but Alaska and Hawaii attended.

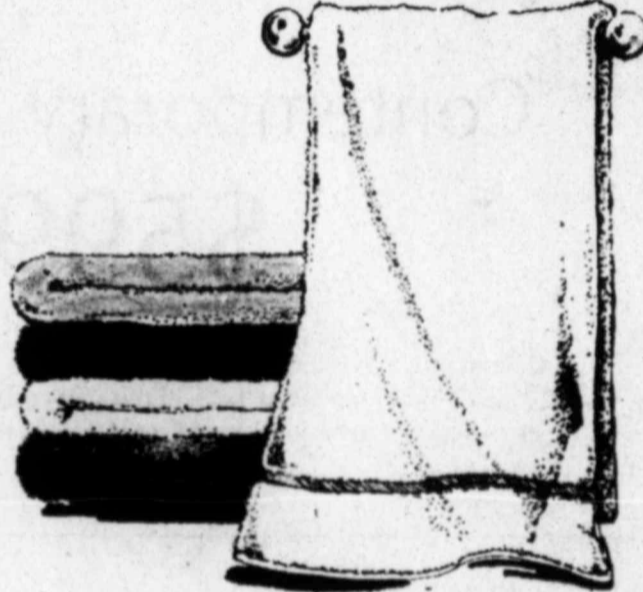

Earlier, she told members of the coalition that in lobbying their senators on the issue, they should concentrate on convincing up votes to defeat an effort to cut off debate.

Garn said he believed ERA supporters did not yet have the necessary 60 votes to halt a filibuster.

He said those who had agreed to help him included at least seven senators, including Baker, who opposes the extension although they supported the ERA. He did not name the others.

TIA Seeking Merger Despite Pan Am Deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Texas International Airlines said Tuesday it will "continue to pursue aggressively" its effort to obtain control of National Airlines despite the merger agreement signed last week by Pan American World Airways and National.

TIA also filed a complaint with the Civil Aeronautics Board alleging that the proposed Pan Am-National merger, which would create the nation's second-largest airline, violated antitrust laws.

TIA, located in Houston, owns 20.1 percent of National and has filed an application with the CAB to acquire control of the Miami-based carrier. Pan Am, which holds about 4.8 percent of National, has filed a similar application.

"We believe — although we cannot make any predictions — that the CAB will approve Texas International's acquisition of control of National and will disapprove a merger of National and Pan Am," TIA President Frank Lorenzo said in a statement released in Washington. A scheduled press conference was canceled.

In addition to the antitrust charge, the complaint filed with the CAB said that Pan Am has gained "unlawful control" of National through its acquisition of National stock and influence over National in putting together a merger agreement.

Pan Am Chairman William T. Seawell said the airline had not received a copy of the TIA complaint, but will file a response with the CAB when it receives one. "We are confident, however, that our actions with regard to National Airlines have been completely legal," he said.

Pan Am is offering $41 per share for National's stock, which closed Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange at $37.25, up $1.25. Should a Pan Am-National merger be approved by the CAB and the shareholders of the companies, TIA could wind up a big winner, having bought its National stock at an average of $27.82 per share.

Such a merger would give Pan Am a long sought-after domestic route system. Should National and TIA join, it would allow TIA to expand from its role as a regional airline into a nationwide carrier.

Pan Am closed at $10, down $7.75, while TIA stock closed unchanged at $15.88.

Dunphy Ready For Title Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Dunphy, boxing's broadcast link for a generation of Americans, returns to ringside Friday night to do blow-by-blow coverage at the heavyweight championship fight between Leon Spinks and Muhammad Ali.

Dunphy's call of the fight will be carried over the ABC radio network and radio is where his boxing roots are. For almost a quarter-century, most of it on radio, he was the voice of the Friday Night Fights, part of the familiar Gillette Cavalcade of Sports, one of the most successful sports series in broadcasting history.

"I've done between 40 and 45 heavyweight championship fights alone, starting with Joe Louis and Billy Conn, June 18, 1941," said Dunphy.

"I guess they figured if I could pronounce those names, I deserved the job," mused Dunphy.

He won't go into Friday night's Spinks-Ali rematch cold. Just as the fighters have been in training, so has the announcer. He broadcasts imaginary phantom fights to practice technique and style.

"I do vocal windsprints ... practice blow-by-blow for 30 seconds, then stop for 10, then go for 30 more," he said. "If I didn't do that, I'd last about 1 1/2 rounds because of the pace of boxing."

What happens if Dunphy runs into a dud of a fight?

"Well, there's always movement, even if there are no punches," said Dunphy. "I still go at top speed. One time, though, I was doing a dull fight and I heard a fan behind say to his buddy, 'I'll bet they're bleeding to death on the radio.'"

There are perhaps a half-dozen bouts of the hundreds that Dunphy has broadcast that stick out in his mind's eye and certainly every time the heavyweight crown is up for grabs, it creates a special electricity for the fans and the announcer. But the fight Dunphy remembers best

Lessons Learned

LOS ANGELES COLISEUM really looked large, especially for a guy who is shrinking. Besides, Jim Ned — where Johnny Quinney went to high school — didn't have any structures to match that historic West Coast sports palace.

But, Quinney learned quite a lot out there last Saturday. After watching Southern Cal hurl its best shots at the Tech defense, the Raider free safety walked away with a bit more confidence in his and his teammates' abilities.

Quinney was credited with a dozen tackles against USC, a total topped only by strong safety Larry Flowers' 15 and linebacker Don Kelly's 14. Naturally, Quinney's total indicated he was on the field most of the afternoon.

Tech's defense, especially in the last half, had to see a large percentage of the action, and those were good people rushing in his direction. The experience gained was both sobering and enlightening.

"Sure," Quinney remarked Tuesday, "we play Texas and Arkansas and A&M every year. And a few years ago when A&M was ranked second in the nation, there weren't any teams in the nation with as much talent. But, Southern Cal ... it has all that tradition, Tech had never played them, they're in the Pac-10 ... it was something to think about."

"Before the game, we were looking around and seeing something we'd never seen before. But, when you start playing, (after) three or four plays, then you do what you've been taught to do, play the best you can."

"After we got to playing, we felt we could play with them. We suddenly realized we weren't getting killed, they weren't blowing us out."

THAT REALIZATION COULD have helped when the Raider defense kept its goal untouched from 4 yards away in the first half. Four times, USC tried the middle and four times Tech repelled the thrusts.

"We'd gone over everything they had done," said Quinney of the preparation. "But, in the second half, they changed their pass routes. And (Charles) White is so fast. We couldn't hold him all day."

White escaped for 156 yards rushing, as USC bounced back from the Raiders' 9-0 lead.

"But, you look at it, they have two all-Americans on the line and one in the backfield, so, I thought the defensive line did a great job. They helped us (the secondary) so much."

QUINNEY CAN'T FIGURE it out. He's put on 10 pounds since his high school days at Jim Ned, near Abilene, but he's lost half an inch in height.

"When I first came to Tech, I was 6 feet tall and weighed 186 pounds. But, this fall, when we reported in, I was only 5-11 1/2, but I weighed 195. I don't know what it is. Both times, the measurements were right; it wasn't a wrong measurement."

But, while making the physical adjustment, Quinney has had to make a mental one, also. He was recruited at a time when Taylor McNeel was in charge of the secondary. Later Gary Wyant took over that coach spot when McNeel moved to the offensive staff, and this year, with Wyant going into the financial business in Tennessee, Quinney and his mates find themselves under the direction of Jim Bates.

There is a difference. "I was a freshman under Coach McNeel, so I didn't work with him that much. Under Coach Wyant, you have to remember he was working with an older group, so he had a more involved defense, more variations."

"Coach Bates is working with younger players, and he is having to keep it simple for that reason. He wants us to know what we're going and just play football. He'd rather us have just a few defenses and know them well, instead of having several and be confused about what to do each time."

"I think the secondary is real close, and we're pulling together. But, it's like Coach (Rex) Dockery said, we have to get back to fundamentals. We have to keep from missing tackles."

"Personally, I need to work on breaking on the ball. I need to anticipate and not have to wait for the (passer's) release before breaking. Also, I missed some tackles (against USC). I need to keep my head up and move under control."

"It'll make a difference when everybody is well. We rotated six people Saturday, but (juno transfer) Ted Watts has been hurt. When you are fresh, you can break on the ball, be aggressive, go for the interception. But, when you get tired, you're not as ready to take responsibility, not ready to take a chance. That really makes a lot of difference."

Especially when playing folks like Southern Cal.

Reed Makes Smiles

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

From the first step of the wind sprints, Curtis Reed was out front.

The 240-pound defensive tackle strided the 100-yard sprints as if carrying a relay baton. And, usually, by the time he crossed the end line, the rest of the linemen would be 10 yards back.

Every sprint, Reed finished in front as head coach Rex Dockery closed the Raiders' workout with the conditioning runs.

"He always finishes in front, because he's in shape," commented Tech's defensive line coach Bob Patterson. "And that's why he's playing so well. I think he ought to be the (Southwest Conference) lineman of the week."

Reed had made seven tackles against Southern Cal in last Saturday's 17-9 defeat, had a big hand in a first-half, goal-line stand. Said Patterson, "Nobody could have played any better than Curtis."

The wind sprints finished off Tuesday's practice session, a lighter-than-usual workout since the Raiders have two weeks to prepare for their next opponent, Arizona.

"We spent a long time looking at films," commented Patterson, "and worked on correcting mistakes. We made some mistakes, too, execution mistakes ... first-game mistakes."

"Of course, Southern Cal is the type of team that will force you into mistakes."

Tech had taken Monday off, following the contest, and marched through the Tuesday workout in sholder pads, shorts and helmets.

The schedule is expected to intensify daily as the Sept. 23 Arizona game nears.

Arizona is 1-0 after having crushed Kansas State 31-0 last Saturday, rolling up 300 yards on the ground. The Wildcats will host Pac-10 foe Oregon State Saturday night.

ALI RELAXES—Muhammad Ali leans back on the ropes and talks to the fans after finishing his last hard workout for his rematch with Leon Spinks in the Superdome Sept. 15. Ali said he has worked harder and is in better shape than he has been in four years. See related story Page 4F. (AP Laserphoto)

Allen Rivalry Gone But Not Forgotten

DALLAS (AP)—Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry said Tuesday he will miss his rivalry with George Allen.

Allen, who was one game behind Landry in their head-to-head meetings, was fired after two preseason National Football League games with the Los Angeles Rams and replaced by Ray Malavasi.

The unbeaten teams collide Sunday in Los Angeles, and Landry was asked about Allen sitting the year out as a television commentator.

"I'll miss competing with Allen—it brings out the best in you," said Landry.

Numerous feuds broke out during the Landry-Alen confrontations. Once, the Cowboys accused Allen of sending spies to the Dallas practice field. Then Allen charged that the Cowboys were using illegal crackback blocks.

Allen always saved his strongest pep talks for the Washington locker room when the Redskins were going against the Cowboys.

Landry could be counted upon to have a trick play or two in his bag for Allen's team.

Both had grudging respect for each other.

In a telephone interview, Malavasi was asked Tuesday if he felt any pressure moving into Allen's job with hated Cowboys on the horizon.

"If you don't like pressure you better not be in this game...you better get into something else other than pro football," said Malavasi. "I think our players have a very good attitude and are playing hard."

Landry said that even without Allen the Rams play an Allen-like defense.

"The defense looks the same to me—excellent," said Landry.

On another topic, Landry said that defensive end Harvey Martin was ejected from the New York Giant game last Sunday because the All-Pro was reacting to an illegal block by running back Willie Spencer.

"Tempers were hot and Spencer tackled Harvey and Harvey tried to kick loose... Harvey was the last one the referee saw," said Landry. "What Spencer did was illegal."

On an earlier play, Martin was flagged for unnecessary roughness when he tackled quarterback Joe Pisarcik.

"That was a good call," said Landry. "There was too much enthusiasm on the tackle. You can't use your forearm when you tackle. Harvey hit him in the back and knocked him down."

Landry said strongside linebacker Thomas Henderson was a doubtful participant against the Rams because of a badly sprained ankle.

"His chances of playing are slim," said Landry.

Mike Hegman is Henderson's replacement.

Seagraves--Back On Track?

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Seagraves graduated 11 all-district football players last season and the whoosh of air expelled in sighs of relief by coaches in District 5-A was audible as far north as Amarillo.

But...

The Eagles came up with a strong 14-0 win over Eunice Friday night. In case you hadn't heard, Eunice was the defending New Mexico Class A champion and returned about a zillion starters — including three all-stars.

Was Seagraves coach Jim Eddins pleased with the win?

"Well, we are," he said. "Eunice has a real good ball club, you know. They've got quite a few starters back, and their defense is real, real large."

"We knew we would have some problems moving the ball on them. Our line, our whole team knew it. But we felt like our defense would keep us in the game until our offense could put some points on the board."

"Our defense played real well. We held them to something like four first downs (five by actual count)."

Meanwhile, in another part of the world...

"We dropped a touchdown pass, and they did some good things," said Stanton coach David Thompson of his squad's 34-7 loss to Tahoka.

"I don't feel bad about getting kicked by them. They've got a good team."

The significance of that quote is that Stanton is the squad that is supposed to take up where Seagraves left off.

"They're the ones we've got to beat," Thompson remarked. "They're the defending champions, and you've got to take it away from them."

Saying Seagraves is the defending champion is like saying Steve Martin is "wild and crazy."

Seagraves is THE defending champion. The Eagles have had the league sewn up for the last three years, advancing to the state semifinals twice and the championship game once.

But nobody's ready to concede anything yet.

Tahoka is only one of the top teams in this area, class lines aside. And, as Thompson is quick to point out, with 5:37 left to play the score was only 14-7.

"We scheduled these folks, because we figure that will help us when we get into district," Thompson said. "We got the idea that we might get better if we can compete with them, which we can."

And Seagraves is still short of inexperience, first game results notwithstanding.

"There are still some teams in our district that are going to be good football teams," Seagraves boss Eddins said. "Shallowater is, O'Donnell is, Plains got upset but I think they'll be good, and Stanton's got a good bunch."

"Evidently Stanton can play pretty good football."

Season Tickets Remain On Sale

A few season tickets remain for Texas Tech's home football schedule, ticket manager Carol Baker reported this week, and the season tickets present a way to obtain entrance to the University of Texas game.

Only the limited number of season tickets and seats on the grass slope on the north end of Jones Stadium remain for the Texas game here Sept. 30, Mrs. Baker reported. Since Tech opened on the road last Saturday, there will be no loss of value to the season-ticket books.

Mrs. Baker reported that "pretty good" seats remain for the Arizona game here Sept. 23, and there are some tickets on sale here for the Texas A&M game in College Station on Oct. 7. A&M officials have tagged the game a sellout, but some tickets remain in the section allotted to Tech.

Tahoka's Bailey Leads Pack Of Friday Night Superstars

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The first week of the 1978 high school football season got off with an offensive bang, with four players nearing the 200-yard mark in total offense.

Leading the pack and heading the Avalanche-Journal's weekly Honor Roll was Tahoka's superlative Clifford Bailey. All he did in the Bulldogs' 34-7 win over Stanton was everything. As usual.

Bailey, a 6-3, 200-pound all-everything last season as a junior, carried the ball 31 times for a total of 207 yards, including scoring jaunts of 85 and 12 yards.

But that's just half the story.

He also played almost the entire game at cornerback, picking off one pass and deflecting three others that coach A.D. Shavers says "were sure touchdowns."

Shavers also added, "He plays corner, and they just didn't run that way very much. To be honest..."

In some ways Plainview's Royce Coleman had a better night, though.

Coleman only carried the ball 18 times, but he made the most of his opportunities — gaining 212 yards. He also scored a pair of touchdowns on runs of 42 and 70 yards.

yards passing against Denver City; Amarillo Tascosa fullback Ray Scott had 143 yards on 22 carries (24 yards more than the entire Midland team he faced).

Morton quarterback Joe Bob Wynn completed five of nine passes for 152 yards and carried 22 times for 82 more.

Lazbuddie halfback Russell Windham piled up 131 yards on 20 carries, scoring four times. On defense, he was in on 18 tackles (seven unassisted) and recovered a fumble.

Hart fullback Jackie Ethridge carried the ball 16 times for 110 yards, scoring four times also.

Sundown tailback Larry Henderson had 121 yards rushing and receiving; Monahans runningback Eddie Enriquez carried 20 times for 100 yards; New Home's Isiah Roberson totalled 119 yard rushing.

Tony Acosta got 108 on 14 carries for O'Donnell, and Roosevelt's Junior Vasquez carried 23 times for 116 yards while foe Greg Cunningham of Lorenzo gain 137 yards on 33 tries. Also for Lorenzo, Mark Hood had 16 tackles (two unassisted).

teammate Daryl Lawson had 17, and Joe Castillo 15 tackles.

Valley's Darrell Dowd rushed for 112 yards and Olton's backfield combination of Brad Allcorn and Charles Brown rushed for 115 and 123 yards, respectively. The Mustangs ended up with 307 yards on the ground in a 6-0 squeaker with Farwell.

Other two-way stars in Lazbuddie's win were defensive back-quarterback Charles Steinbock and guard-linebacker Keith Smith. Steinbock went 129 yards on 13 carries and completed five of six passes for 44 yards. He returned two punts for 22 yards and kicked three times for a 44-yard average.

Smith, playing despite an inner ear infection, graded 89 percent on his blocking and was in on 13 tackles (seven unassisted). He also caused two fumbles and recovered another.

In a 14-0 loss to Loraine, Dawson linebacker Wade Bennett was in on 22 tackles, caused two fumbles, and recovered one fumble.

Boston Loses Again, But Yankees Can't Gain

By The Associated Press
Right-hander Dennis Martinez scattered three hits and the Orioles scored the winning run off Mike Torrez on a ground out as Baltimore beat the Boston Red Sox 3-2.

Martinez, 13-11, handed Boston its 10th loss in 13 games, allowing only a single run in the first inning and Butch Hobson's solo home run in the fifth.

Baltimore scored an unearned run off Torrez, 15-10, in the fifth when George Scott and Hobson bobbled consecutive grounders and Torrez threw Andres Moras's sacrifice bunt into left field.

Torrez walked Ken Singleton leading off the sixth. After Doug DeCinces singled, Singleton scored on Eddie Murray's base hit to tie the game 2-2. Lee May knocked in the game-winner with a force out at second, scoring DeCinces.

TIGERS 7, YANKEES 4
Steve Kemp blasted a three-run homer in the first inning and Ron LeFlore and Rusty Staub hit solo shots in the third as the Detroit Tigers snapped New York's six-game winning streak with a 7-4 victory.

Detroit had built up a 6-0 lead for rookie Kip Young, 6-5. He was touched for a run in the sixth and then was rocked by a three-run homer from Reggie Jackson in the eighth inning before John Hiller came on to pick up his 13th save.

New York could have taken sole possession of first in the AL East with a victory, since first-place Boston dropped a 3-2 decision to Baltimore. Instead the YANKEES remained one-half game off the pace.

Yankees starter Dick Tidrow, 7-10, lasted only 21-3 innings. LeFlore opened the game for Detroit with a double, Staub walked and, with two outs, Kemp blasted the first pitch into the upper deck in right-field for his 13th homer.

PIRATES 5, PHILLIES 1
A pair of two-run homers by Dave Parker and a solo shot by John Milner powered Pittsburgh to a 5-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, snapping a five-game losing streak and reducing the Phillies' lead in the National League East to four games over the runner-up Pirates.

Parker, who started the game leading the league in hitting, third in RBI and

Skimpy Costumes Too Revealing Pardee Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins Coach Jack Pardee wishes the team's cheerleaders, with their new, revealing costumes, would go away — at least to the other side of the football field.

The outfits, which feature bare backs, fringed, plunging necklines, and diamond-shaped cutouts at the midriff, were sported for the first time Sunday and got a huge cheer from fans who were accustomed to seeing burgundy-and-gold jumpers.

But Pardee thinks that the uniforms are better suited to night clubs than to football fields.

"I find it in very poor taste," said Pardee, "whether it's at a football game or any other place. Not only them (the Redskins cheerleaders) but the Dallas girls and all the other teams doing that."

"That's a carte blanche statement, not just referring to the new uniforms our girls here have, but the whole league."

Pardee did not exactly call the cheerleaders and their costumes a distraction, but said, "I think they're unnecessary anywhere. But if they're going to be there, put them on the other side, not our side."

Pardee smiled. "That's a coach talking," he said. "I guess other people feel differently or the teams wouldn't be having them. But I think we have a good enough product to sell without having to do that to put on a show."

Should the Redskins drop the cheerleaders and their cut-out costumes?

"I'm not in position to say that," said Pardee, smiling.

Minnesota Survives Close Call

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Was he running or was he trying to pass?

That was the controversial question Monday night surrounding the Minnesota Vikings' 12-9 overtime victory over Denver in which the Broncos were allowed to line up for a game-tying field goal after time had apparently run out.

Rick Danmeier, who was signed as a free agent by the Vikings and placed on the injured reserve list last season, booted a 44-yard field goal with 2:56 elapsed in sudden death overtime to give Minnesota the triumph.

With the Vikings ahead 9-6, reserve quarterback Norris Weese brought the Broncos down to the Minnesota 5-yard line, with 11 seconds left and Denver out of time outs.

Weese rolled to his right and was dumped for a loss with three seconds showing on the clock. Minnesota felt it had the game won, but referee Don Wedge stopped the clock, giving Jim Turner time to get his kick off.

"Anytime the quarterback is sacked trying to pass behind the line of scrimmage, the clock is stopped, the ball is spotted and the clock doesn't start again until players from both teams are lined up," explained Wedge.

But the Vikings were livid, claiming Weese was running a bootleg and had no thoughts of passing. Minnesota Coach Bud Grant, shedding his conservative, stoneface image, burst onto the field to confront Wedge.

"He (Wedge) was just about incoherent when I got there," said Grant of the mayhem which followed. "He was asking for help from other officials."

"There is no explanation to my way of thinking. He was running all the way. With three seconds to go how can you put a ball in play and get the kicking team on the field?" he asked.

Weese, who replaced starter Craig Morton, admitted that he was running.

"I was running a quarterback bootleg and I slipped," he said. "Fortunately for us it was called a sack."

Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton, who suffered a bruised thumb and left the game in favor of Tommy Kramer in the Vikings' ensuing sudden death drive, offered further explanation.

"When the officials visited our training camp in August we were told that a passing play becomes a running play when the quarterback leaves the pocket," he said. "That generally is the area between the tackles. Weese was way out of the pocket."

"Some of the officials said I was right, and that the clock should have run down. But the head official (Wedge) wouldn't change his mind."

Wedge said he told Tarkenton that when Weese raised his arm it became a pass and that it didn't matter if he had left the pocket.

Under NFL rules, an automatic referee's time out is called "... from the time an intended passer is downed behind the line until all players involved in a clearly intended pass have had reasonable time to reassemble."

Kramer engineered Minnesota's drive to the Denver 26, where free agent Rick Danmeier kicked his fourth field goal of the night — a 44-yarder — to give the Vikings their first victory of the season. Denver is also 1-1.

Horns To Redshirt Quarterback Ansley

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — University of Texas sophomore Sam Ansley will be redshirted this season, reducing the Longhorn quarterback squad to four.

Head coach Fred Akers said his decision was influenced by Ansley's having three years of eligibility left.

The four quarterbacks making the trip Saturday to Houston for the season opener against Rice will be starter Randy McEachern, junior Mark McBath, freshman Donnie Little and senior Ted Constanzo.

Ansley, 19, from Cypress-Fairbanks, started against Texas Christian last season after McEachern was injured.

Ali's Controversial Career Created Loyalty, Kilroy Says

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "Loving Muhammad Ali is easy; living with him is hard," said Gene Kilroy, who defied social and economic pressure to join Ali during the worst period of the former champion's life.

"He has an antique car that he dusts and polishes and pets. If he took care of his body the way he takes care of that car, he could go on for 10 years," said Kilroy.

"It's hard to love a man and see him abuse his body the way he does. If he'd watch his diet and take care of himself year round, he'd go on forever."

Kilroy, 37, grew up in the hard coal region of Pennsylvania. He went to Cornell as a football player but had to give up the game because of knee injuries. After duty in the Army, he went to work for the former owner of the Philadelphia Eagles.

It was while he was with the Eagles that Kilroy met and grew to love Ali.

"He has the dignity of a man and the innocence of a child," said Kilroy. He listed numerous unpublicized instances where Ali had gone out of his way to give time and money to helpless persons in desperate circumstances.

When the Eagles changed owners, Kilroy went to work with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and was with the motion picture company when he learned that Ali had refused induction into the Army.

"That's when I went with him," Kilroy said.

"In this country, you're supposed to be innocent until you're proven guilty. But they stripped him of his title, wouldn't let him make a living and took away his passport before he ever had a day in court. He didn't have a thing."

Ali was already disliked by millions of Americans who had grown up believing that athletes should be modest in victory and gracious in defeat. For those, his refusal to accept induction was the final straw.

"It was awful for him," said Kilroy.

"I caught a lot of flack, but he caught it, too — both of us. They were calling me 'nigger lover' and 'traitor.' At the same time, he was being asked why he kept this 'White Devil' around."

They withstood the pressure and grew closer. Now, Kilroy describes himself tongue-in-cheek as Ali's "administrative assistant," which he says means he does anything he can to make Ali's life easier — financial advice when needed and asked for, hotel reservations, social secretary, shepherd for the Ali has said he plans to retire after his Friday night fight against Leon Spinks — win or lose. Kilroy said he's not looking for a place to land.

"I've thought about settling down, getting married, starting a family," Kilroy said. "But if he wants me, I'll stay on."

"The man's prospects are enormous. His new organization for world peace can't miss."

"Let's face it. He's the only private citizen in the world who could pick up the phone and call Sadat, Begin, Marcos, Amin, any of them, and have them return his call."

Fumbles Restricted USC Might Have Gained 600 Yards, Robinson Says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although eighth-ranked Southern California's 1978 college football opener wasn't exactly a crowd-pleaser, coach John Robinson says he essentially was pleased with the Trojans' outing.

"I think a lot of people who came to the game to see us win big, roll up the score, may have been disappointed," Robinson said Tuesday. "But I told our players heading into the game that it was going to be a tough game, and that all we were interested in was winning, not running up the score, beating the point spread."

The Trojans, favored by three touchdowns over Texas Tech, scored two touchdowns in the third quarter and went on to win 17-9 Saturday after trailing 9-0 at halftime.

Southern Cal fumbled nine times, losing five — three of those by tailback Charles White, two by fullback Lynn Cain.

"If we hadn't fumbled so much," Robinson said, "We probably would have gained 600 yards, and that's a lot of offense. As far as the fumbles go, we've worked on holding the ball during practice, and we'll work on it more."

The coach said he was generally happy with both the Trojans' offense and defense. The offense, led by quarterback Paul McDonald and White, rolled up 468 total yards. The USC defense, with linebacker Dennis Johnson and nose guard Rich Dimler spearheading the effort, held Tech to 161 yards — just seven in the second half.

"I thought McDonald played very well," Robinson said of the junior quarterback making his first start. "He threw the ball very accurately, and he audibilized probably more than any quarterback we've had here."

"And," Robinson remarked, "exclude the fumbles and I think White played one of his best games ever. He ran hard, he blocked well, and he caught passes."

White, a junior who gained nearly 1,500 yards last season, picked up 156 yards on 30 carries and caught three passes for 61 yards against the Red Raiders.

"Just think, if we had been playing a team that was considered even or better than us," Robinson said, "people would still be talking about our great comeback."

"I've said before that the key to power football like we try to play is to keep pounding, keep going after the other team. Although we hurt ourselves a lot with fumbles, we hammered away and wore them down."

Following the game, the Trojan players said they felt confident they would win despite the 9-point deficit at halftime.

"Well," Robinson said with a smile, "they probably felt the same way I did. Half of me was saying that we would win, the other half was scared to death."

Csonka Bobble Cost Victory

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — For years, the New York Giants offense has been among the most predictable in the National Football League. They changed all that last Sunday.

The Giants threw on first down, ran on first down and added pizzazz that long has been lacking from their attack. The result was a 34-24 loss to the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys, but 343 yards of total offense was a pleasant surprise for coach John McVay.

"We had to be more aggressive on offense that we had been," said McVay. "We had to take more chances and be more diversified. It's the only way to stay with them. But that kind of attack is a high-risk offense. You run the risk of turnovers."

The Giants played a wide-open offensive game, conducive to turnovers. Quarterback Joe Pisarcik put the ball up 37 times, completed 15 to his own receivers and three to Dallas defenders.

The New York running game produced just 100 yards on 24 carries, with Doug Kotar's 26 yards tops. By comparison, the passing game netted 261 yards. Dallas had 401 yards of offense, 189 on the ground and 212 on the strength of Roger Staubach's right arm.

"Our offense is a good deal better," said fullback Larry Csonka, who carried the ball three times for just five yards. "It's a little more productive that past years. It's certainly evident we're on the rise. We're probably more of a throwing offense than running right now."

"But the offensive line is coming around and we'll become more diversified, more open. I hope the running game comes along."

"I just wanted to play more aggressive," McVay said. "It's more exciting for the fans, more exciting for the players and when we win it will be more exciting for the coaches."

A key fumble by Csonka eliminated any chance the Giants had of pulling a major upset. They trailed 27-17 in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter when Csonka coughed up the ball on a second and two from the Dallas 31.

"It was a big play when Csonka fumbled," Landry said. "They had the momentum."

Csonka, who has been slowed by injuries and a lack of playing time, was distressed with his miscue.

"I'm not a particularly happy guy," Csonka said. "They gave me the ball on a third and one (play) and I hadn't played that much. But that's what they pay me for. It was a close game and I fumbled.

"Personally, I don't like to lose to Dallas. I seem to fumble a lot against them. Maybe they should put me on the payroll."

Bum Happy With Late Oiler Surge

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips saw four years of work compressed into two Oilers touchdown drives that resulted in a 20-17 victory over Kansas City.

"That's what we've been trying to do for the past four years," Phillips said Monday in recapping the Oilers' desperate fourth quarter heroics. "That's what we've needed to win — to drive the ball on the ground, eat up the clock and not leave the other team much time."

That's just what the Oilers did against the Chiefs, who were leading the Oilers 17-6 going into the final quarter. Rookie Earl Campbell scored both touchdowns with the winning points coming with 1:53 left in the game.

"You don't get to work against it much during the week so anybody that runs an offense that is a big variation will cause some trouble. But their people did the job."

TV Rating Drama More Interesting Than Shows

By JERRY BUCK
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The most compelling drama of this fall's television season is being played out in the executive offices of the three networks, where the battle for ratings has become a free-for-all.

The suspense, tension, intrigue and machinations as ABC, CBS and NBC maneuver to be No. 1 in the Nielsen ratings pales anything offered on the small screen. And they are playing for keeps with each rating point worth $36 million to a network over a season.

None more so than Fred Silverman, who became president of third-place NBC last June after guiding perennial doorman ABC to first place.

Silverman plunged into his new job with such boldness, shuffling programs faster like a deck of cards, that he may be in danger of upstaging his own shows. Which, in fact, may be his object considering that most of the shows he has to work with are either weak and untried or are not of his own choosing.

The networks' frenzy for ratings has become so feverish that even television's moment of self-congratulation, the Emmy awards, is sure to take a pasting. ABC and NBC have heavily weighted the odds against the Emmy telecast next Sunday on CBS.

Going into the new season, ABC is solidly in first place. CBS and NBC trail in that order. ABC opens its season Monday, and although NBC and CBS don't officially begin until the following Monday, both networks are holding "sneak previews."

The network drama began to unfold last May when ABC was the first to announce its fall schedule. ABC, dealing from strength, added only five shows: three comedies, a private eye caper and "Battletstar Galactica," a big-budget space opera everyone is sure will be a hit.

CBS came next, making eight changes. Mary Tyler Moore was returning in a one-hour musical comedy. But CBS, which had boldly shed its conservative image for sophisticated comedy, was now aping

ABC with such shows as "The American Girls" and "Flying High."

All this time, even as NBC revealed its own schedule, Silverman was on the sidelines. He couldn't join NBC until his ABC contract expired in early June.

NBC, in its pre-Silverman schedule, introduced nine new shows, including "The Runaways," which had a four-show tryout in the spring under another name and with a different star.

After taking office, Silverman did two things. He accused the press of paying too much attention to the ratings, and thus, in his words, contributing to the competitive frenzy. Then, he proceeded to stage the biggest schedule flip-flop in the history of television.

Only 10 days on the job he made his first move. "Coastocast," a comedy about airline stewardesses, was jettisoned. Into its place went an unscripted documentary drama about the professional and private lives of real doctors, called "Lifeline."

"Legs," one of Silverman's few failures at ABC when it was called "Blansky's Beauties," underwent a sudden transformation. From a show about Las Vegas show girls, it suddenly became a show about raising kids in Las Vegas, called "Who's Watching the Kids."

The changes followed Silverman's new policy of de-emphasizing sex — a commodity that had speeded ABC's rise to the top during his tenure there.

In addition, two shows got snappier titles. "Live From Hollywood with Dick Clark" became "Dick Clark's Live Wednesday" and "Capra" became "The Eddie Capra Mysteries."

In early August, Silverman displayed his ability for razzle dazzle.

ABC was due to premiere its new shows a week before NBC, thus getting a head start. What Silverman did was leapfrog the opposition with a fast shuffle called "Sneak Preview Week." It came a week prior to ABC's premiere and was designed to take the luster off ABC's tweed rerun of "Roots," the most successful program ever on television. Silverman was responsible for its unprecedented eight-night run, but now he was not about to abandon the week to ABC.

This week, as ABC unveils its new shows, NBC is running what it calls "Warm Up Week." Silverman hopes to draw attention from ABC's new shows with a mini-series called "The Critical List." "Soap," which reveals the true murderer of Peter Campbell on Thursday night, faces the second half of the two-part introduction of the NBC series "W.E.B." There lies a twist — "W.E.B." is about network intrigue and sleight-of-hand.

The next move was up to CBS. It shifted four of its series to new times and dates. ABC, in its only move, switched two comedies.

At the end of August came the biggest shuffle of all. Silverman juggled five nights, dropped "The Runaways" and moved "Saturday Night at the Movies" — television's oldest, continuous movie night — to Wednesday.

ABC had scheduled its $7 million three-hour premiere of "Battletstar Galactica" against the Emmy awards. CBS then moved the start of the Emmy telecast up a half-hour, hoping to hook the audience.

NBC had planned to run a two-hour Disney 25th anniversary show and the first half of the movie "King Kong" against "Galactica" and the Emmys.

Instead, Silverman expanded the Disney show to four hours. The first half was moved to this Wednesday, aimed at defusing the premiere of ABC's "Charlie's Angels." The second half will run next Sunday and include the never-before-on-television "Dumbo."

The first half of "King Kong" was moved up one night, to next Saturday, with the second half following "Dumbo."

TV Film Examines Cab Drivers' Lives

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Judd Hirsch tries to pull the scarlet robe over Tony Danza's gloves as Carlos Palomino advances on him across the ring.

Danza, still hamstrung by his robe, turns to his opponent and says desperately, "Not yet!" Finally, the referee rips Danza's sleeves to free the gloves and the fight begins.

From the sidelines, a spectator yells, "It looks fake just hitting the gloves. You're really going to have to hit each other."

The boxers are for real — they're both pros — but the fight isn't. It's being staged for an episode of the new ABC comedy, "Taxi," which premieres Tuesday night.

Hirsch plays Alex Rieger, who drives a New York City cab and isn't crazy about the idea — but it beats unemployment. As it is, he's the only one at the Sunshine Cab Co. who's resigned to hacking. All the others, like Danza, want to be boxers, actors, receptionists — anything but cabbies.

"Taxi," a microcosm of life in a taxi garage, also stars pop boxer Danza, Jeff Conaway, Randall Carver, Marilu Henner, Andy Kaufman and Danny DeVito. The show's creators, James Brooks, Stan Daniels, David Davis and Ed Weinberger, came to ABC from "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

Brooks and company had first worked on the idea while still at MTM Enterprises. Brooks said, "We liked the idea of a cab company as an arena to show a group of contemporary men. In every New York cab garage, you've got men on their way to other professions. This is about the people who drive cabs, not about driving cabs."

Hirsch, who had previously starred in "The Law" on NBC and "Delvecchio" on CBS, left "Chapter Two" on Broadway to accept the role.

"They came to me while I was doing 'Chapter Two,' but I said I didn't want to go back to television so soon," said Hirsch during a rehearsal break. "I'd forgotten about it by the time the script arrived."

"They said they were going for a company of actors, which delights any actor. I didn't know much about the show. I thought they were going to shoot it in New York. Then when I saw they had cast Danny DeVito, an old friend of mine, and Andy Kaufman and the others, I said, 'My God, they really are going for actors.'"

Hirsch, unlike some actors, has never driven a taxi between shows. But he once drove one to a show.

"My first professional job in theater stock was in Colorado," he said, "and in order to get there I answered an ad to drive a car to Colorado. It turned out to be a New York City taxi cab. Some poor sucker had bought it sight-unseen from a catalog."

Between rehearsals, Hirsch recounted his first experiences in TV.

"The Law" was such a celebrated thing even for television," he recalled. "We were really flying high after the pilot. I thought I had really lucked out my first time in TV. Then we came back and did three episodes and they changed my character from a public defender to a private attorney."

"I thought being a public defender made it a guy who comes from behind to win everything. But it became just another lawyer show. So I was a little disappointed."

"In 'Delvecchio,' he played a detective. "It was the wrong time slot, the wrong year and the wrong network," he said. "All the violence shows were being questioned by the PTA and the American Medical Association. And it was the first year CBS took a nosedive in the ratings. ABC was on the way up."

His first two ventures were dramatic, but he has a long background of comedy on the stage. Last year he played a love interest on "Rhoda."

"I don't see any difference between comedy and drama," he said. "You use all the same faculties. When you're a good actor you can keep comedy from looking cheap."

"It's a matter of believability. Even farce has to be based in believability. If you suspend believability for too long you ain't got comedy, you ain't got drama, you ain't got a show."

"People have to care about your characters. A lot of TV comedies that have come and gone had characters you didn't care much about. They'll care about Alex as long as the care about him. He may be a loner on the outside but not in the garage. He doesn't care if a passenger gets in, tells him his destination and doesn't say another word."

"But this," he said, pointing to the garage set, "this is his home. This is where he really belongs — in the garage."

Hirsch, who recently completed starring roles in the movies "King of the Gypsies" and "Sooner or Later," said he plans to return to New York frequently to "stay in circulation." A play is being written for him for an off-off Broadway production in February or March when he finishes "Taxi."

Tech Faculty Set Chamber Recital

The first faculty concert of the 1978-79 school year is set for today at 8:15 p.m. in the Texas Tech University Recital Hall. Performing will be three members of the Texas Music Department: Susan Schoenfeld, viola; Keith McCarty, clarinet; and Trudi Post, piano.

The unusual combination of viola, clarinet and piano will be represented on the program by two works of Mozart and Schumann. The Kegelstatt Trio of Mozart exemplifies the very best of the genius's ability to create one beautiful melody after another. The Schumann Trio has a description name, "Fairy Tales," and contains four strikingly contrasting movements.

The third work on the program is the Concertpiece for Viola and Piano by the Romanian composer, George Enesco.

The concert is open to the public and is free of charge.

More Film Studio Gives Backing For Broadway Show

PURE PLATINUM — Movie star Alexis Smith, 50, rehearses with actor-singer Richard Cox, 30, in Los Angeles for the Broadway musical "Platinum." The musical will be Miss Smith's first venture into the rock world. (AP Laserphoto)

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Alexis Smith was rehearsing a dance number on stage 7 at Paramount studios, and something was missing. A camera.

The star was preparing for her role in "Platinum," which is not a movie musical but a Broadway-bound show. Paramount claims this is the first time that a film studio has extended its full facilities for the creation of a Broadway production. Could be.

"All right, let's take it from the top," instructed Joe Layton, a lanky, sweat-soaked director of stage ("George M") and television ("Color Me Barbra") musicals.

It was the beginning of the second act. Three backup singers (Damita Jo Freeman, Avery Sommers, Robin Green) were performing the title number in a recording studio, where the entire action takes place. Enter Alexis Smith as a veteran movie star trying to crack the rock world. The girls show her how to dance disco-style: she instructs them in the time step.

That's the story of "Platinum," movie queen tries to revive career, becomes involved with rock superstar Danger Dan.

During a rehearsal break, Alexis explained how she got involved: "I was in the housewares department at Bloomingdale's. James Coco, who was going to direct, came up to me and started describing the show. He gave such a performance that people started staring: it got to be a little embarrassing. 'Will you do it?' he asked.

"Is it a musical? I asked. 'Of course!' he said. So I listened to the music by Will Holt and Gary William Friedman of 'The Me Nobody Knows' and I was hooked."

Gladys Rackmil, Fritz Holt and Barry M. Brown are producing the show, which has a book by Will Holt and Bruce Vianch. Mrs. Rackmil was present at the rehearsal to explain how the unique project came about.

"Several film companies are interested in 'Platinum,'" she said. "Paramount was especially interested because one of the two starring roles is a 30-year-old rock singer, and the company had a new star in John Travolta.

The producers staged a trial run of "Platinum" in Buffalo last October. Paramount leaders Barry Diller and Michael Eisner flew from New York to see the show but their plane was unable to land because of clouds.

"It was like a scene from a bad movie," said Mrs. Rackmil. "We were holding the curtain for them, and they were circling above the clouds. They were about to give up when the pilot found a hole in the clouds and landed."

The Paramount brass liked "Platinum" enough to invest $300,000, for which it gained first call on the movie rights. Mrs. Rackmil added, "Paramount also told us: 'We want to be active participants. We will provide the full facilities of the studio in preparing the show, with our know-how in costumes, scenery, advertising, publicity."

With such backing, the producers had little trouble rounding up the rest of the $1.2 million capitalization of "Platinum." Because of a time problem, the set was constructed in the east. The show is scheduled to open tonight in Philadelphia. After a date at Kennedy Center in Washington, "Platinum" will premiere in New York Nov. 12.

"The casting of Danger Dan was crucial," said Mrs. Rackmil. "Alexis is 5-foot-10 and in her 50s, and we needed someone who was both tall enough and with enough intellect to make the romance convincing."

Fourteen hundred actor-singers were tried, and the producers chose Richard Cox, a 30-year-old New Yorker who played in a high school rock band as well as the TV series "Executive Suite" and stage roles from "Grease" to "Richard III."

Record Industry Head Pleased By Trade's Progress, Impact

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The president of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences says music is better than ever.

"Our product is better than it's ever been and it's getting better," Bill Denny, a Nashville music publishing executive, said in an interview. "There's a great deal spent on the recording of the product."

"Because of the increase in technical competence, it's difficult to make many mistakes. And from a creative standpoint, we're getting a broader spectrum of people in the music industry — people who can touch almost everybody in the population with songs and lyrics."

As president of NARAS, which is made up of some 5,000 recording artists, songwriters, musicians and engineers, Denny is chief spokesman for the recording industry. NARAS also is the organization that sponsors the Grammy Awards for musical achievement.

TV Files News Tape For Historical Use

NASHVILLE (AP) — When employees switch on the evening news each night on the second-floor of Vanderbilt University's library, they feel they've done un-born historians and scholars a favor.

The Vanderbilt Television News Archive, a not-for-profit service, has collected more than 6,000 hours of TV news shows in its 10 years. The collection is believed to be the oldest and largest in the country, and its tapes of newscasts from 1968-74 may be the only ones.

"Television was becoming the main medium of mass communication of our time, and no one was keeping keeping any of the tapes," James P. Pilkington, administrator of the archive, said in an interview.

"It would be easier to research the 1860s than the 1960s because the main medium of communication in the 1860s is available while that for the 1960s is gone," he said.

It was an insurance company's district manager, Paul C. Simpson, who decided 10 years ago that the nightly newscasts were worth preserving.

"I used to watch a lot of news programs, and felt they were having such a tremendous impact on the country. More and more people were depending on it for their news," Simpson, now retired but a consultant to the archive, said.

A self-styled news buff, Simpson discovered in early 1968 that the networks routinely erased their videotapes after about two weeks and used them again.

He put up $4,000 of his own money to get the project going with coverage of the 1968 Republican National Convention. The decision to begin with that meeting was fortunate because it gave scholars a chronicle of television coverage of Richard Nixon's presidency from his nomination to his farewell resignation speech to White House staffers in 1974.

CBS filed a suit in 1973, saying the project violated copyright law. But the suit was dropped and the problem resolved with passage of a new copyright law in 1976 which exempted the archive collection. The networks now save their tapes, dropping copies off at the National Archives.

The collection, which includes nightly news shows and specials such as presidential news conferences and the Watergate hearings, is available to anyone who wishes to view.

Borrowing a copy of a tape isn't cheap, however. It costs $2 an hour to view tapes at the archive and $15 per tape hour for duplicate tapes. Those borrowing a tape sign a statement promising not to copy or rebroadcast it.

The archive makes available tapes compiled by subject matter for $30 per tape hour.

Simpson said the collection will assume greater importance as years pass.

"I just didn't see how future historians can study what happened in this country without studying how it was reported on television," he said.

Denny, a low-key, articulate 43-year-old, said music is important to society because it stirs emotion.

"Songs speak to us because they relate to things that happen to us," he said. "Love is an emotion everybody goes through. If you have a happy love affair with a lady, a song reminds us of that. And we have other kinds of songs when things don't work out. Songs relate to the reality of life; they speak to these realities."

"During the war in Indochina, there was a lot of unrest in this country and one of the things that talked about it was the songs. Today, the songs chronicle the times."

Industry trade publications have reported that the record industry is a $3 billion-a-year business, growing at the rate of 100 percent a year. This makes it the largest grossing area of show business — outstripping television and the movies.

"It's estimated that one in every seven families has 'Saturday Night Fever,'" Denny said, referring to the Bee Gees' hit album. "The Bee Gees in general are very, very big. Disco now is very hot, but a few years ago it was unheard of. Disco has caused more disco records, and, in turn, movies."

"Records used to be sold in record stores only. Then along came racks and department stores, grocery stores and so forth. The marketing is much broader."

Recording artists seem to be better trained and harder working, he said.

"They seem to have been trained more and work more. There are a lot more clubs where artists perform and become better — get the edges knocked off."

Denny said music plays an important role in life at an early age.

"As youngsters, songs help us learn to count. As we get older, songs become memory joggers. I doubt that you can name someone who music doesn't mean something to."

Company Chairman Test Products On Campouts

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Sheldon Coleman has the look of a man who'd rather be fishing or canoeing than involved in management of one of the nation's best-known manufacturers of outdoor equipment.

And each summer, the 76-year-old chairman of Coleman Company Inc. yields to that desire, rounding up his top executives for a week's stay in the rugged wilderness.

They call it a product testing trip. And though Coleman admits with a gleam in his eyes that "we still work in a little fishing," he stresses that "these are serious testing trips."

"I just love the outdoors," he said in an interview at his office, where hunting pictures are prominently displayed. "I enjoy my job at the company but I admit I try to get outside every chance I get. I'm a good tester, believe it or not."

Last month, Coleman and the company's president, Lawrence Jones, each took separate groups of 12 executives to Montana and Wyoming — along with more than 200 canoes, lanterns, backpack equipment, tents, coolers and other outdoor products.

Coleman equipment, including new products as well as mainstays, is judged during the trips against similar equipment made by leading competitors.

"We make comparative tests to see how our products stack up against competition," Coleman said. "Most of the time we find we're better and sometimes, we find out we were not so good and in that case we send it back to the drawing board. We're not about to put out a product that isn't better than the competing product that's on the market."

On the Montana trip, the 25th such excursion Coleman has made to the West, humid conditions on the White River revealed that one of its backpack tent models developed moisture inside. It went back to the drawing board.

Outdoor products comprise about 40 percent of Coleman's sales, which totaled $256 million last year and are projected to climb to $275 million in the current fiscal year.

In the past 10 years, when Americans' love of camping has blossomed, Coleman profits have climbed from $4 million to $15 million.

Besides the lanterns, coolers, camp stoves, heaters, tents and sleeping bags familiar to many outdoorsmen, Coleman makes almost half of all the heating equipment used in U.S. mobile homes. It recently introduced a heat pump it hopes will be just as popular.

Coleman's father, W. C. Coleman, who founded the company in 1900, was selling typewriters before he got into the business of selling and maintaining forced gasolene lamps.

Various models of lamps were sold, many to rural residents without access to electricity. A company landmark was reached in 1914 with the introduction of the Coleman lantern. About 30 million have been built.

More than a million lanterns were sold to American farmers during World War I to help extend their work days to supply Allies with food. In World War II, the Coleman pocket stove was so popular among GIs that war correspondent Ernie Pyle termed it and the Jeep the two most important pieces of non-combat equipment to come out of the war.

Sheldon Coleman's love for the outdoors was expressed in jobs as a mountain climbing guide in Colorado while he was a teen-ager and as a canoe trip guide in Canada while he was attending Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

He joined his father's firm in 1925, became general manager in 1932 and chief executive officer in 1940, when sales were less than $6 million. W. C. Coleman died in 1957 at the age of 87.

Sheldon Coleman, who split the chief executive officer's duties with Jones seven years ago, remains one of the company's most active promoters of its products.

Four times a year, he takes a five-day "barnstorming" tour of about 20 customers to get their feel for products. He addresses financial gatherings twice a year. He'll even surprise a visitor by climbing on top of the "Oscar" cooler and jump on it to demonstrate its strength.

"If I had a first interest, it would be product," Coleman said. "You've got to have your product right. It's got to be built right. It's got to have the features, it's got to fill a customer need."

"If you don't start with a good product then all the money you spend in advertising, all the money you spend in sales simply goes for naught. If your product's bad, all your advertising does for you is more people find out you've got a lousy product."

Coleman, a lean 6-foot-1 man who will reach his 77th birthday in November, has given up mountain climbing but he still canoes. "I've paddled more than 5,000 miles in canoes," he said.

"I've often said to myself, I'm a very fortunate man to be in a business where you can help millions of people enjoy the outdoors because they have better equipment to use," he said.

Being an outdoorsman isn't a prerequisite for advancement in his company, he admits with a laugh. "I can't think of any of our executives, though, who doesn't like the outdoors," he added.

TRYING OUT PRODUCTS — Sheldon Coleman manages one of the nation's best-known manufacturers of outdoor equipment, the Coleman Co., but he admits "I try to get outside every chance I get." One of those chances occurs each summer when he rounds up company executives for a week's trip to the West to test Coleman products against top competitors. Canoes such as he is guiding are among more than 200 outdoor items they take along. (AP Laserphoto)

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I'm not expert on high finance but I think people who put money into savings certificates at banks and savings and loan associations are being discriminated against. Instead of keeping my money in savings accounts, which pay only 5 or 5.25 percent, I would like to put my money in certificates, which pay higher interest.

A. If you buy a certificate, I am told that I cannot withdraw the interest until the certificate matures — without incurring a penalty. The bank or S&L would be using my money to make money. Shouldn't I be able to get my interest, without penalty?

A. Sure, you should. And you can. What you were "told" was bad information. In most cases, there is no penalty for withdrawing interest from bank or S&L savings certificates.

The penalty comes into play only if you redeem a savings certificate before it reaches maturity. That penalty amounts to the loss of one quarter's — three months — interest and the reduction of interest for the rest of the time you have held the certificate to the regular savings account rate. So, if you don't cash in your certificate, there's no penalty.

With few exceptions, banks and S&Ls allow certificate holders to withdraw interest as it accrues. Some banks and S&Ls have arrangements for mailing interest checks to certificate holders on a monthly, quarterly or semi-annual basis. Some, however, allow withdrawal of interest only at specified periods of time — such as during the 10-day period following the date on which the interest was credited to a certificate.

These are among the things you should check out with the individual bank or S&L, before you put money into a savings certificate. Make sure you know ALL the terms of each certificate.

The big exception to the freedom of interest withdrawal rule is in the case of the new six-month certificates, on which the interest is geared to the yield on 26-week U.S. Treasury bills. On those certificates — minimum size $10,000 — no interest is paid until the certificates mature and are redeemed.

Q. I have substantial investments in a few common stocks. If I thought it advisable to attend the annual stockholders' meetings of those companies, could I take the expenses as deductible items on my income tax return? Would the Internal Revenue Service allow it?

A. Yes, you can take those expenses as tax-deductible items by reporting them as "miscellaneous deductions" on Schedule A of your federal income tax return.

The IRS shouldn't even cock an eyebrow at legitimate deductions such as that. There is, however, a "reasonable-ness clause" in the tax regulations covering deductions of this type. If you claim a big deduction for flying off to the annual meeting of a company in which you have only a small investment, you can be sure that the revenuers will jump on you with both feet.

Q. You told a reader who owns just a few shares of stock that he might as well hang on, because the brokerage commission for selling would be more than the market value of his stock. I'm in the same boat — with one, two or three shares of 30 different stocks.

The companies send me dividend checks, ranging from 25 cents to 65 cents. Considering the cost of postage, doesn't this seem foolish?

A. Indeed, it does. Add to that the cost of printing and mailing proxy statements, stockholder reports and other literature, plus record-keeping expenses and you realize that it is uneconomical for companies to have really small stockholders.

Some companies — not many — have attempted to solve this problem by offering to buy back the holdings of small stockholders, at no commission cost. I doubt, however, that will happen with all companies in which you own those small numbers of shares.

Casino Group Planning To Expand Operations

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Resorts International Inc., owner of the East's only legal casino, will expand its gaming operations into Florida and New York should gambling be approved there, chairman James M. Crosby said Tuesday.

But, Crosby said, the firm has no interest in gambling in Nevada or Pennsylvania.

Speaking at his firm's annual stockholders meeting at the casino-hotel here, Crosby also said the casino's average daily win, or its gross revenue, has continued to rise beyond the $759,208 a day reported for August, despite the end of the summer season.

"We continue to be very optimistic," he said.

Crosby said Resorts International now owns or controls 27 percent of Atlantic City's Boardwalk area property.

"We own more land here than all potential casino-hotel investors combined," Crosby said.

The meeting of about 1,000 stockholders in the hotel's show theater resembled a high school pep rally. The stockholders were in a jovial mood following the rapid rise in the value of the company's stock.

The company's more common A stock, which sold for 36 1/2 when the casino opened May 28, closed at 134 1/2 on Monday. The B common stock, which sold for 54 1/2 on May 26, closed at 165 1/2 on Monday.

The stockholders approved a previously announced 3-for-1 stock split for Wednesday's shareholders of record.

"I've been in America since 1922 and I've been poor all my life until I bought this stock," David Alexander of New York proclaimed to Crosby.

Crosby said Resorts International, which technically has headquarters in North Miami, Fla., is "actively pursuing" a study of the Florida referendum to legalize casino gambling in the Miami Beach area.

"If casino gambling passes in Florida, we will be a very strong participant," he said. "We feel very much at home there."

Later prodded by a shareholder from New York, Crosby added he was "sure we'd be in the throes of it (in New York) if it passed."

But, he said, the firm was not interested in Nevada because of the large number of casinos already in the state. He said casino gambling in Pennsylvania does "not appear imminent."

Crosby would not give shareholders a hint on the company's estimates of 1978 profits, or its plans for the famous Steel Pier, which it purchased in July.

However, he said estimates that the company could earn $15 a share this year "is achievable" because of the casino's phenomenal daily win, which has been running more than three times the amount taken in by the largest Las Vegas casinos.

Resorts International has reported daily wins of $438,504 for the last six days of May, $534,627 for June, $666,209 for July and $759,208 for August. The casino has taken in more than $61 million since May.

New Jersey Hotel-Casino Complex Set

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — The owner of the Las Vegas casino Caesars Palace plans to break ground Wednesday for this resort's first new casino-hotel complex and the first major new hotel in a decade.

If the Caesars project opens as planned next summer, it would be the second casino-hotel in Atlantic City. Resorts International Inc. opened the first U.S. casino outside Nevada on May 26.

Caesars World Inc. of Los Angeles plans a major $30 million addition to the Howard Johnson's Regency Motor Hotel here. The new casino hotel complex will be called the Boardwalk Regency Hotel.

However, Nevada Gaming Commission Chairman Harry Reid says there is no assurance that Nevada will approve Caesars' project here. He said if Caesars World were licensed by New Jersey officials and goes ahead with plans to operate here, it could lose its Nevada license.

Reid said Nevada's approval of Caesars hinges on Nevada's analysis of New Jersey's gaming control laws — something he said was still several months away.

Actress Ann-Margret is scheduled to attend the ground-breaking ceremonies today of the Boardwalk.

The firm announced that Gov. Brendan T. Byrne would also participate in the ceremonies, but Joseph Santangelo, the governor's spokesman, said the governor will not be present.

Caesars World's use of the governor's name on invitations, including a full page advertisement in Tuesday's Press of Atlantic City, "is unauthorized," Santangelo said.

The present 425-room hotel is scheduled to be expanded to 537 rooms with a 52,000 square foot casino.

The company also plans to build a casino hotel on the Boardwalk site of the former Traymore Hotel here. The firm has applied for a New Jersey casino license.

Women's Earnings Far Below Men's For Comparable Tasks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women working full time earn an average of $5,000 a year less than men in most large metropolitan areas, according to figures released Tuesday by the Labor Department.

"This difference has been quite consistent over a long period of time. Annual data back to the mid-1950s show women's earnings have averaged between 58 and 64 percent of men's," said labor economist Howard Haythe.

He explained that employed women have traditionally been concentrated in clerical and service jobs, which are generally lower paying than the posts held by men.

"And even when they enter the professional-technical occupation group, women are concentrated as teachers, nurses and occupations that are relatively poorer paying than traditional male jobs such as lawyers and doctors."

"The movement of women into male-dominated occupations has tended to be very slow," Haythe said.

The department reported that in most parts of the country between 50 and 60 percent of the women over the age of 16 had jobs, while 77 to 87 percent of the men were employed.

The survey, covering 1975, disclosed the lowest proportion of women workers in West Virginia, and the lowest for men in Florida.

The study disclosed that the median income for men, nationwide, was $12,770 while for women it was $7,531. Add a college education and the gap gets even wider, with men earning $17,891 and women $10,861.

The narrowest gap between men's and women's earnings was in the east south central states, where earnings for both sexes were lowest.

In these states — Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi — median income for men was $10,747 while women was $6,517 for a difference of $4,230.

And the biggest difference, $6,013, appeared where both sexes made the most money.

In the Pacific states, men had a median income of $14,281 and women $8,268. This area includes Washington, Oregon, California, Alaska and Hawaii.

Here is the breakdown of men's and women's earnings in other areas:

New England, men $12,720, women $7,593; middle Atlantic, men $13,220, women $8,270; east north central, men $13,496, women $7,805; west north central, $12,163, women $6,938; south Atlantic, men $11,764, women $7,102; west south central, men $11,586, women $6,542; mountain, men $12,877, women $7,347.

The median income is that figure with half of the people earning more and half earning less. It is not necessarily the average income.

White House Says Bill Favoring U.S.-Made Goods Inflationary

WASHINGTON (AP) — A change in procurement laws that would give American-made goods more of an edge over foreign products in government purchasing contracts would be inflationary, the Carter administration told Congress Tuesday.

"We cannot agree that it is time to move on this kind of legislation," Lester A. Fetting, administrator for federal procurement policy, testified at a Senate hearing.

Fetting, an official of the Office of Management and Budget, said a bill proposed by Sen. John Heinz III, R-Pa., "would be counter to our efforts to combat inflation."

But Bruce Davis, general counsel of Bethlehem Steel Corp., endorsed the legislation on behalf of the American Iron and Steel Institute. He said the existing preference is "irrelevant, unsound and uneconomic."

The Buy American Act, which has been on the books since 1933, allows the executive branch to establish price differentials between American-made and foreign goods. Within that established price range, domestic goods will be bought even though they are more expensive.

The basic differential is now 6 percent, doubled in the case of small businesses and firms in labor surplus areas. Since 1962, the Defense Department has applied a 50 percent differential to avoid contributing to an unfavorable balance of payments.

The Heinz bill would establish a single price differential of 10 percent, to be applied against "freely and fairly traded" foreign articles. For other articles, the differential would be from 30 to 40 percent.

The higher rate would apply when the foreign products had recently been the objects of anti-dumping or countervailing duties, or when the president had acted to counter the foreign country's barriers against imports of similar U.S. products.

In addition the bill would require an article to be at least 75 percent domestically made, measured by value, in order to qualify as a U.S. product. The preference is now available to articles containing 50 percent domestic components.

Fetting said the bill would interfere with negotiations under way in Geneva for an international agreement calling for major countries to "reduce, if not completely eliminate, the impediments to foreign suppliers." He said "considerable progress" had been made toward such a code.

Heinz, who presided over the hearing by the subcommittee on federal spending practices of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, said the code was a good idea but legislation was needed also.

He argued that the code would be useless during worldwide recessions, because no government would "stand by and watch its procurement dollars go to foreign firms while unemployment plagues some basic industry."

In addition, he said, the code would not help American firms compete against subsidized foreign industries. And he said it could increase U.S. purchases of unfairly traded foreign products.

Record Corn Harvest Looms For U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are harvesting another record corn crop of about 6.8 billion bushels, grain that will make up most of the feed to produce meat, poultry and milk in the coming year, the Agriculture Department said.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said that based on Sept. 1 surveys the corn harvest appears to be 5 percent larger than the 6.5 billion bushels indicated in August and 7 percent more than the then-record of 6.37 billion bushels of last year.

After a late start in planting last spring, corn in key production areas thrived with ample moisture and generally good weather this summer.

Also, farmers did not idle as many corn acres as government planners had hoped they would under set-aside rules intended to help reduce a buildup of U.S. grain supplies.

The board also said that, based on Sept. 1 surveys, a record of more than 1.77 billion bushels of soybeans are being produced, up from last month's estimate of less than 1.77 billion bushels and 3 percent more than the 1977 harvest of 1.72 billion, the previous record.

Soybeans provide high-protein meal used in many livestock feeds. Along with corn, they provide key nutrients for producing the meat, poultry eggs, milk and other dairy products in the year following harvest.

Those foods account for more than one-third of what the consumer spends on groceries.

Although bumper crops can mean lower cash prices for farmers, an abundance of feed can help stimulate larger output of cattle, hogs and other livestock, thus insuring ample supplies in the future.

Food prices this year are expected to average 10 percent more than in 1977, government economists say, but most of the increases have already occurred. It would be the greatest food-price inflation rate since 1974, when prices rose 14.5 percent for the second straight year. They rose 6.2 percent in 1977.

A major reason for this year's food-price climb has been a reduced beef supply caused by farmers and ranchers sharply reducing herds after four years of losses. Weather damage to fruit and vegetables this spring also have been a big factor.

The board said the sorghum crop — another major feed grain — is estimated to be 703.3 million bushels, down 11 percent from last year. Sorghum was estimated at 712.4 million bushels last month.

Cotton production was indicated at 11.2 million bales, down 22 percent from last year's crop of 14.4 million bales. The August forecast was 11.8 million bales, 6 percent more than the new estimate.

The total wheat crop was pegged at 1.79 billion bushels, 12 percent less than 1977 and 2 percent below the August estimate of 1.82 billion bushels.

In all, the board said 1978 crop production this year is expected to average 28 percent above production in 1967, a year used as a base. That compares to the record of 29 percent set in 1977.

Winter wheat production, which accounts for about three-fourths of the total and has been harvested, was estimated at 1.24 billion bushels, compared with less than 1.25 billion a month ago and last year's harvest of 1.53 billion bushels.

Durum wheat, in demand for making spaghetti and other pasta, was estimated at 126.3 million bushels, compared with about 134.1 million in August and the 1977 crop of 80 million.

Other spring-planted wheat was estimated at 417.7 million bushels, compared with 434.5 million in August and the harvest last year of 419.1 million bushels.

Although corn acreage is down this year to 67.7 million acres from 70 million last year, the good weather has raised the expected national average yield to 100.3 bushels an acre — exceeding the previous record of 97 bushels in 1972. The yield last year was 91 bushels an acre.

Wheat yields were estimated at 31.6 bushels an acre, compared to 30.6 last year.

Soybean yields were projected at 28 bushels an acre, compared with 29.6 in 1977.

Sorghum yields as of Sept. 1 were estimated at an average of 52.3 bushels an acre against 56.2 in 1977.

The report also showed a sugarbeet crop of 25.5 million tons, a 2 percent increase over the 1977 harvest. It projected ed a sugar cane crop of 27.4 million tons, a 2 percent increase in growers' production.

Oats production was estimated at 595.9 million bushels, down 20 percent from 747.9 million last year. The August forecast was about 636.8 million bushels.

The oats average yield was projected at 49.9 bushels an acre, compared to 55.6 bushels in 1977.

The barley crop was reported at 438.4 million bushels against the August forecast of 440.4 million and last year's harvest of 415.8 million bushels.

Barley yields were said to average 48.1 bushels an acre, compared with 43.8 in 1977.

Collectively, corn, sorghum, oats and barley are the four major grains used in U.S. livestock feeding.

The report included estimated production for these other 1978 crops, compared to 1977 harvests:

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

COTTON TRADERS VIEWED THE USDA'S September crop estimate Tuesday of 11,154,900 bales, down from 11,819,900 a month ago, as basically neutral.

The estimate fell in the middle of the expected range of 11.0-11.3 million bales.

Most traders said they believe the actual crop is below 11.0 million bales, with the bulk of the estimates in the 10.6-10.9-million-bale area. Guesses as low as 10.3 million bales also have been made.

One top trader said the market probably will ignore the USDA estimate because of the belief that the actual crop is lower. Another noted that the large carryover and sluggish demand will help to offset the expected sharp reduction from last year's 14.2-million-bale crop.

THE USDA ESTIMATED THE OUTPUT in the Texas High Plains crop reporting districts of 1-North and 1-South at a combined total of 1,980,000 bales, down from 2,355,000 a month ago.

The new total included 480,000 bales in 1-N, up from 465,000 in August, and 1,500,000 bales in 1-S, down from 1,890,000 a month earlier.

Reconciling the geographic differences in the two crop reporting districts and the 25-county Lubbock area would indicate a margin of about 47,000 bales in favor of the 25-county region.

This would indicate a reconciled USDA estimate for the 25 counties of about 2,027,000 bales, about 215,000 bales above an estimate made earlier this month by a committee of the Lubbock Cotton Exchange.

Some veteran crop observers now believe the USDA's High Plains estimate is the closer of the two to current production prospects.

THE INITIAL REACTION OF BROKERS at the Chicago Board of Trade to other USDA crop estimates was neutral to slightly friendly on soybeans and extremely bearish on corn.

Opinions were mixed as to whether beans will pull up corn today or whether corn will pull down beans, although most opinions lean to corn weighing on beans.

THE FEDERAL GRAIN STANDARDS Advisory Committee held its first meeting Tuesday in Washington with USDA officials to discuss the department's draft rules to implement changes to the U. S. Grain Standards Act.

Officials of the USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS) told the panel that recent public hearings across the country received most comment on the record keeping and public accessibility aspects of the rules.

The voluminous 427-page draft sets out the FGIS administration of weighing and inspection services.

THE PROPOSED GRAIN STANDARDS ACT regulations detail the conditions requiring federal inspection and weighing, the fees, the methods to be used by federal officials, the duties of the elevators, and the procedures for appeal of weighing or inspection.

Department officials responded to the panel's questions on its interpretation of the rules. In today's session, the committee will comment on substantive changes and clarifications needed in the rules.

Several members were concerned that small elevators exporting directly to Canada or Mexico will be forced to follow rules so stringent that exports would not be possible.

Research Projects Viewed At Field Day

HALFWAY (Special) — A wide variety of farm research projects was seen by an estimated 1,000 persons here Tuesday at the annual field day of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Halfway.

Visitors toured the 320-acre research farm on tractor-drawn trailers.

An early sight was soybean research where advanced experimental lines in maturity groups IV, V and VI are being compared with proven varieties of similar maturity in field scale strip tests.

Released varieties and experimental lines also are being performance-tested in replicated trials. An additional area is devoted to a breeding nursery.

Included in the breeding nursery, tour guides said, are early selections, lines with better resistance to seed shattering, and those that are more specifically adapted to this area.

Visitors saw a cotton research project involving recovery from simulated hail damage. This research is supported in part by the National Crop Insurance Association and the Crop Insurance Research Bureau.

The purpose of the study is to determine the rate and amount of recovery by the cotton plant from varying degrees of damage inflicted by simulated hail (crushed ice propelled by air at a high velocity).

Information provided by this research, officials said, is used by the Crop Insurance Association in preparing charts which reflect estimates of actual losses inflicted by hail storms on the High Plains.

Next on the tours was a test where dryland grain sorghum is involved in a study to determine if surfactants sprayed on the soil surface and in irrigation water before planting time have any influence on the rate of water intake and crop yield.

"This is the first year of the study and no results are available," officials said.

By exposing various corn lines to herbicides, researchers have gained information as to the degree of varietal response.

In this test, 55 single and double crosses of corn containing the parentage of many area commercial lines have been evaluated against 20 herbicide treatments.

The study also includes the post-plant incorporated application of dinitroaniline type herbicides on sorghum and corn.

"These treatments have given excellent late-season grass control," said John Abernathy, weed control researcher.

Tour guides pointed to a study consisting of a grain sorghum-wheat-fallow-cotton rotation. The wheat is sown directly in the grain sorghum stubble with a summer fallow period following wheat harvest. Cotton then is planted the following spring.

"The extent to which this rotation enhances water conservation and disease reduction is being determined," officials explained.

Also, weed population and species changes are being observed in the long-term crop rotation study.

A test is being conducted to evaluate high sugar sorghums for sugar yield. In a double-cropping residue research project, wheat and triticale will be planted following the harvest of corn, grain sorghum, soybeans and cotton now on the land.

"The experimental design of this study is such that the effects of herbicide and crop residues on small grain seedlings can be evaluated," officials said.

Sunflowers can be a profitable crop in West Texas, officials said, reporting on a breeding nursery with more than 500 selections for use in developing new higher yielding hybrids having greater tolerance to diseases and insect pests and a combined planting date-hybrid performance trial.

Twenty commercial hybrids and two open pollinated sunflower varieties are being tested for seed yield, oil content, oleic and linoleic acid content and for insect tolerance.

The hybrids were planted April 19, May 23, June 16 and July 21. The effect of planting date on seed yield, oil percentage and fatty acid composition will be measured.

Visitors saw where 27 experimental herbicide treatments are being evaluated for control of various weeds in cotton. The primary emphasis of this study, officials said, is to gain more information on cotton tolerance to herbicides that control nutsedge.
