Martial Law Declared In Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) - President Anastasio Somoza declared martial law throughout his embattled nation Wednesday night as national guard troops clashed with guerrilla-led rebels trying to overthrow him.

The decree, which Somoza said will last 30 days, suspends constitutional guarantees.

Earlier Wednesday, Somoza sent battle-weary troops to northwestern Nicaragua to dislodge rebels dug in at three key cities in a fight to control this Central American nation.

Troops On Move Government sources said troops tired from five days of battling insurgents in Masaya and other cities were moved toward Leon, Estili and Chinadega, major cities in Nicaragua's most populous northwestern sector. The number of troops involved was not immediately known.

In 1974, after a guerrilla raid and kidnapping of 40 prominent Nicaraguan citizens that brought the first world attention to the Nicaraguan guerrilla movement, Somoza declared martial law in a decree that wasn't lifted until a year ago, and then only under American pres-

Heavy fighting also broke out again in the south Wednesday. The Red Cross said it received requests for medical supplies to be held on standby for use in the Rivas City area, 80 miles south of Managua and 15 miles from the Costa Rican border.

Heavy Firing In Masaya, Associated Press reporter Vicente Morales said there was heavy firing, ditches dug by rebels blocked the streets, and pedestrians waved white flags at combatants.

A six-year-old, a white rag tied to his arm, skipped over black puddles of water. An old lady followed, sobbing, a white flag held high. Gunfire was everywhere, but nobody dared run. "To run is to commit suicide," said Jeronimo Sanchez, a Masaya resident.

"We could not pay such a high price in blood to hold Masaya," said a rebel fighter, admitting defeat. "We only lost the battle, not the war. The war against Somoza will be won."

that city of 100,000. Fighting was reported heavy there, with hundreds of residents fleeing on foot, carrying a few belongings in battered suitcuitcases or on their backs. Most carried white flags, hoping the soldiers and guerrillas would not shoot at

In preparation for the government sweep, guerrillas threw up cobblestone barricades on the Pan American Highway leading to the three cities, stopping all traffic.

More than 400 persons have been killed and at least 800 wounded since the bloody street fighting erupted Saturday night when the guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front launched their offensive against government troops, according to Red Cross estimates. No official death toll was available, See NICARAGUAN Page 14

Candidate Gets Aid From Ford

By BOB CAMPBELL

Avalanche-Journal Staff
BIG SPRING — Ending two days of Texas politicking, former President Gerald Ford spent two hours here Wednesday booming a Republican congressional candidate and blasting President Carter and his policies.

Ford also denied having made a decision to run for president again in 1980, but many of his remarks had the air of a candidate in the making.

His visit to Big Spring on behalf of 17th Congressional hopeful Bill Fisher of Abilene was the first stopover in the city by a president or former president.

The former chief executive held an unusually lengthy news conference at Big Spring Airport shortly after his arrival, spoke at a noon luncheon to 700 persons and was in the air again and halfway out

Asked in the news conference if criticism of Carter as weak and indecisive is accurate, he said, "I would put it some-what differently. I think there is too much uncertainty. One day he is, apparently, by word, hard-line against the Soviet Union; the next day he cuts back the various weapons systems for the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines.

'One day he takes one tack on a piece of domestic legislation, and the next day he reverses it.

"For example, in 1976 he promised the people of Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma that he was for deregulation ef natural gas. Legislation that he submitted to the Congress in April of 1977 was for continuation of regulation.

"Change from a promise to performance, I think, has upset a great many Americans."

Criticizing Carter also for inconsistency in foreign policy, Ford said, "I think a president has to have a basic philoso-

Postal Settlement Due; Strike Threats Fizzle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Threats of whether to grant union pleas for a bigger pay raise than the Postal Service is offera special arbitrator prepared to impose a binding settlement in the 5-month-old postal contract dispute.

After holding a final meeting with the Postal Service and three unions representing 516,000 workers, Harvard professor James J. Healy went into seclusion Wednesday to draft the ruling that is is due by 10 a.m. EDT Saturday.

Healy will decide two disputed issues:

ing and whether the current contract ban against worker layoffs should be weakned as management wants.

Meanwhile, dissident local leaders of the largest postal union, angry that Healy's ruling will deny members a contract ratification vote, said they have all but given up earlier plans to stage illegal walkouts that were to begin Wednesday night in large cities across the country.

"It does not appear at this time that there will be any strike action," said William Burrus, president of the Cleveland local of the American Postal Workers Union and leader of the dissident group.

Burrus said hopes to spark a nationwide walkout, which is illegal under federal law, have been dampened by a lack of support within the 299,000-member union.

Union President Emmet Andrews, who has sought since the start of negotiations

Andrews also warned in the latest issue of his union's magazine that scattered wildcat strikes could result in "disaster." The Postal Service has vowed to fire any striking workers, who also could be fined and sent to jail under the law. Additionally, a federal judge has issued a re-straining order against a strike to serve as one more deterrent against a walkout. But Andrews' aides said privately that the possibility of a nationwide mail strike could resurface if Healy produces a settlement that the union considers unsatisclause, which management fought to eliminate, in an earlier contract settlement that union members rejected last

However, in exchange for keeping the clause, the unions accepted a relatively modest wage increase of 19.5 percent over three years. The wage hike, which includes cost-of-living raises, would boost the average salary of a postal worker from a current $15,900 to about $19,100 a year in 1981.

The contract was rejected largely because of the wage package, and the un-ions threatened to strike unless management improved its wage offer.

A strike was averted when the two sides agreed to a 15-day bargaining effort mediated by Healy, who will issue a binding decision by Saturday if the two parties fail to reach agreement.

However, the new talks remained deadlocked from the start, and the two sides gave up trying to negotiate a settlement on their own after 10 days. They now await a decision by Healy, who might issue his ruling by Friday.

Although Healy's decision is legally binding, thus requiring no ratification vote, the Postal Workers union plans to hold a second vote anyway to undercut member complaints that they are being denied the right of approval.

But the vote would be legally meaningless, and some Postal Workers officials acknowledged thaat a rejection could invite chaos within the union.

Nine-Digit Zip Code Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Postal Service said Wednesday it plans to start using a nine-digit zip code to increase automation and hold down postal rates. "Although the five-digit zip code has served and continues to serve an important purpose, we are now at the point where progress requires that we add to it in order to take full advantage of modern equipment and techniques," Senior Assistant Postmaster General Pete Dorsey

The service would continue using the five-digit code, adding four extra numbers over the next 21/2 years, Dorsey told a convention of business mailers. The additional numbers would allow the Postal Service to purchase machines that can read zip codes and put mail in the proper mail sack, eliminating the need for handling by clerks, Dorsey said.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger told reporters later that full automation would allow eight workers to do the mail sorting now done by 20 people. Because labor costs account for 85 percent of the Postal Service budget, holding down employment would reduce the need for postal rate increases.

The current five-digit code was instituted in 1963 to reduce the need for postal clerks' memorizing on which routes addresses were located.

"It is one of the prime reasons why the Postal Service has been able to mechanize and absorb an increase of 35 percent in mail volume since 1963 with only a 12 percent increase in staffing," Dorsey He said the mail agency now is in a position similar to that of telephone companies years ago. Dorsey said telephone companies added area codes to telephone numbers, allowing installation of automated switching devices. The banking industry has done something of a similar nature by assigning magnetic code numbers to checks for automatic sortation," Dorsey said.

Postal officials said they were not able now to say what the cost savings would

Civil Service Changes Win House Okay

The legislation was passed by an overwhelming vote of 385-10, making way for a conference to negotiate with a Senate-passed bill.

Sponsors claim the areas of dispute are minor and predicted that the legislation will be sent to the president for signing before Congress's planned adjournment in mid-October.

"If you look at the total bill, the only significant loss is in the veterans preference area," said Civil Service Commission Chairman Alan Campbell.

The House decided to retain existing laws which give retired military personnel an advantage in hiring and retention when they seek and obtain federal jobs. This position, which was taken earlier, was affirmed by a vote of 327 to 70.

The administration had hoped to place limits on the practice which would diminish the damage done to women and minorities seeking decision-making jobs.

Designed to allow better management of the bureaucracy, the House civil service bill would make it easier to fire incompetent employees, base hiring and firing on merit system principles and establish a Senior Executive Service whose members would receive merit pay instead of regular raises as an incentive to improve performance.

year-old Vermilion Parish man became ill last month.

State officials said the case was believed to be only the third of the epidemic strain of the disease in the United States in the last 10 years.

Cherry said Wednesday a special team of investigators including a physician and microbiologist from the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta are in the Abbeville area doing detailed sampling to find the source of the bacteria.

"Now we've isolated where the bacteria might have come from" Cherry said.
"Before, it was a mystery."

The bacteria, he noted, was not found in specimens collected last week from the patient or from his relatives or close associates.

The man became ill Aug. 10, Cherry's office said. He was treated by a physician on Aug. 13 and was released from a hospital on Sept. 1. State and National Cen-ter for Disease Control officials an-nounced Friday that he had had epidem-ic cholera.

The disease is contagious, but last Friday the state epidemiologist said the case appeared to be isolated and a further outreak or secondary cases was not expect ed.

Cholera is a painful gastro-intestinal disease which occurrs mainly in the tropics, where sanitation is poor and drinking water and food become contaminated.

Symptoms include severe diarrhea, vomiting, collapse and muscle cramps. The disease is usually transmitted by water or insects.

Cherry said specimens taken from pa-tients hospitalized with diarrhea in the Abbeville area were also negative and emergency room records reveal no recent increase in that illness.

The border crossing between Spain and Gibraltar was closed in 1969.

LA Building Busing Blocks

LOS ANGELES, like Lubbock before it, accepted forced busing peacefully this week but there is mounting evidence that the public will demand an end to the practice as it proves more and more to be economically wasteful and educationally unsound.

Anti-busing forces in Los Angeles had been more vocal than they were in Lubbock before 2,000 of this city's 31,000 public school students began boarding buses this term for daily crosstown trips.

In L.A., about 62,000 of the district's 570.-000 students will be bused in order to achieve a racial balance in the schools.

FIRST-DAY ABSENTEEISM was high in Los Angeles, where a state appeals court had temporarily blocked mandatory parts of the busing plan 10 days ago, but school officials predicted growing acceptance of the

There, as here, community leaders worked for months to assure smooth implementation of the plan, which is costing the district's taxpayers an estimated $120 million and forcing students to spend time on the bus that could be more profitably used in the classroom.

Actually, white students are in the minority in Los Angeles, comprising 34 percent of the enrollment. Browns make up 35 percent, blacks 24 percent and Asians 7 percent.

Studies have indicated that massive desegregation plans do not improve educational quality. Other researchers have concluded that forced busing causes more, not less, separation of the races in neighborhoods because of increased "white flight.

ARMED WITH THIS kind of evidence. those who believe that assigning pupils to schools on the basis of their race is indefensible are certain to press efforts to outlaw forced busing as an integration tool.

There are others, of course, who cling just as strongly to the belief that systemwide integration plans are the only way to bring about racial equality and are a satisfying way of punishing this generation of whites for past discrimination against minorities.

What is encouraging about the whole situation this fall is that, for the most part, adults on both sides of the controversy are content to fight their battles in the courthouse and in the political arena instead of in street

This represents great progress from the days when integration plans sparked noisy demonstrations in such cities as Boston and Louisville.

It means that we may be learning to be a little more patient, secure in the belief that justice will prevail if passions are allowed to

You Want To Make A Vet?

THE PRESTIGE of various professions tends to wax and wane over a period of time. But one profession whose prestige clearly is in the ascendant right now is veterinary medicine.

Indeed, only 15 percent of all qualified applicants currently are admitted to the nation's schools of animal medicine, as compared with a 45 percent admission rate for regular medical schools.

The present popularity of veterinary medicine has no single, readily identifiable cause. Some attribute it to the series of best-selling books by James Herriot, a British veterinarian, e.g., "All Creatures Great and Small." "All Things Bright and Beautiful" and "All Things Wise and Wonderful."

LEARNING HOW to treat the full range of animal illnesses is a lengthy undertaking. The basic course of study lasts four years, and there are residency requirements for certain specialties, just as there are in regular medicine.

According to the American Veterinary Medical Assn., the number of veterinarians has roughly doubled over the past 20 years to the estimated 30,400 now in practice.

Time magazine reports that America's vets "treat pets for allergies and sagging jowls, give them abortions, tonsillectomies, blood transfusions, caesarians, cataract operations and pacemaker hearts, as well as hundreds of thousands of routine injections against rabies and distemper.

Pharmaceutical companies manufacture dozens of drugs for pet ailments. New York's Animal Medical Center has been described as a "Mayo Clinic for pets," providing veterinary internship and residency programs, conducting extensive research and offering sophisticated diagnostic equipment and intensive care facilities.

Taxation Action Spurs Victory For Incentive

WASHINGTON-When the history of the 95th Congress is written, it should be remembered as a time when our lawmakers rediscovered the virtues of incentive.

Such appears to be the lesson emerging from the pulling and hauling that finally produced a tax bill in the House and is moving toward a similar outcome in the Senate.

While the bill approved in the lower chamber is far from perfect, it is by general consent the best thing to come out of Congress on this subject in upwards of a decade.

The key feature of the package is, precisely, its pervasive emphasis on incentive.

THE MAJOR ITEMS in the House-passed bill are its reductions in taxes on capital gains, both through a lowering of the maximum rates (from 49.1 to 35 percent) and by "indexing" to account for increases in property values traceable to infla-

The bill also increases the personal exemption, reduces the corporate rate by two percentage points and liberalizes the investment credit.

In addition, it sets aside most of the Carter "reforms" that would have had the effect of raising taxes instead of lowering them.

Slashing the maximum levy on capital gains was the biggest victory for the forces of incentive, and much of the credit for this outcome goes to Rep. William Steiger, R-Wis.

He was foremost among a group of lawmakers in the House (Sen. Clifford Hansen of Wyoming has played a similar role in the upper cha stressing the adverse results of the capital gains

AS A RESULT of this increase, Steiger contended, there has been a drastic slowing in the pace of investment and a consequent lag in prod-

"In 1968," Steiger observes, "300 high techno gy companies were started. In 1976, there were "In 1969, 698 firms with a net worth under $5

"Yet from 1962 to 1969, a period of low taxation on capital, stock market investments increased by 70.7 percent."

WHAT WAS ignored by the sponsors of the '69 increase was the impact of higher taxes on incen-

The sponsors thought they could raise the burden of taxes on the economy and not affect the level of transactions. It obviously didn't work that way.

Now the lawmakers are moving to apply the lesson in reverse: By lowering tax rates, thereby increasing the level of incentive, it should be possible to increase the volume of transactions and thereby give a boost to the economy.

This is a language Congress has begun to speak with increasing frequency.

In the upper chamber, Sen. Russell Long, D-La., of the Finance Committee talks of the need to "shoot ahead of the ducks" and to compute the changes in the level of economic activity to forecast results of changes in the tax law

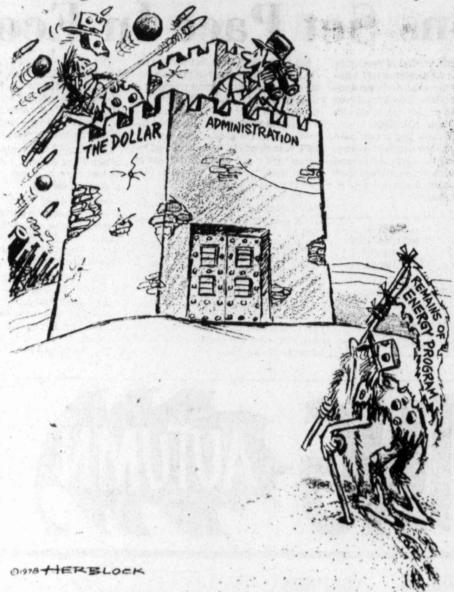

THIS PROMISES well for the modest legislation now before the Senate, and at a future time for the more ambitious proposals still before the House: Steiger's original bill, which would cut the capital gains tax to 25 percent, and the bill promoted by Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. William Roth, R-Del., which would cut back indiidual income taxes by 30 percent across the

A Tower In Defeat?

WASHINGTON-What started as a bold Republican move to take over the Texas state government could end in defeat for Sen. John Tower. who 18 years ago broke the Democratic monopoly on Southern senators. Oil millionaire William Clements, former deputy secretary of defense, has mobilized his formidable energy and vast fortune in a campaign long anticipated by Texas Republicans. But it has turned out to be a severe disappoint ment, with Clements running far behind state Atty. Gen. John Hill, the Democratic nominee. What's worse, some influential Republicans be

ANDREW TULLY:

WASHINGTON-At a dinner party recently, a woman guest shocked some other members of the assemblage by saying calmly "You're damn

But I agreed with her. The woman who tries to fight back against such an attacker risks serious injury or death. Submitting to rape is not the ideal solution. But it is prudent. Getting justice is another story. A lawyer who has represented many rape victims over the much as regular doctors, says the AVMA. course of a quarter of a century once called rape an almost riskless crime. Trials are tougher on the victim than on the accused.

And that is why women's rights groups, cogently and admirably, continue their vigorous campaign for tougher rape laws.

It is one of their crusades that should have 100 per cent male support, if only because no male can be sure that the woman closest to him will not some day be thrust into the victim's role.

THESE THOUGHTS are prompted by a report of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration which says that only one out of every five men brought to trial for sexual assault in the District of Columbia is convicted. That rate of conviction is far below that for murder, robbery and burglary. Moreover, the situation is much the same nationwide

One, reason advanced by the LEAA for the scandalous District record is the tendency of prosecutors to challenge the victim's credibility. Says the report:

We cannot tell from our analysis whether complaining witnesses in rape cases lie or exaggerate more frequently than complaining witnesses in other cases, but it is clear that they are perceived as doing so.

"It is not the victim's discouragement with the case that leads to the high attrition in rape cases, but the decisions made by the prosecutor and judge.

ACCORDING TO the study, the prosecutor's or judge's decision to drop a case or dismiss it "may be made in anticipation of a jury's response to the victim's case if the case goes to trial. Some anticipation. If a case goes to trial, it is the prosecutor's duty to try it as hard as he can, and the judge's to see that the case is presented according to the laws of evidence.

Besides, what's a prosecutor doing taking a case into a courtroom if he thinks the victim is a

In the District, few rape cases go to trial, Most fall out of the system before they reach that

Of the 1142 sexual assault defendant cases studied, only 22 per cent resulted in conviction.

THIS RATE compares with the rate for other crimes, which is between 30 and 35 per cent. Moreover, the report also shows that when men were convicted in sexual assault cases, the convictions were "often" for lesser offenses than the Of those sent to prison, 57 per cent of those convicted of rape while armed and 20 per cent of those convicted of forcible rape (is there really such a thing as unforcible rape?) got minimum lieve Clements' hard-nosed conservative style is so abrasive that it is undercutting the entire state ticket-including Tower's bid for a fourth term in the Senate. Tower is now in a virtual dead heat with Democratic Rep. Bob Krueger.

DESPITE SIZABLE Democratic support for the Kemp-Roth tax-cut bill, Democratic national chairman John White unleashed an assault on the proposal in a private letter to top Democrats around the country, calling it "shoddy" and 'reckless. Accompanied by an inch-thick back-up dossier attacking the 33 percent, three-year tax reduction proposal of Rep. Jack Kemp and Sen. William Roth, White's Aug. 23 letter was his latest in a series attempting to rally Democratic support around President Carter's major legislative pro-

On Kemp-Roth, White minced no words, describing "this shoddy, highly inflationary proposal (as) a clear sign of intellectual bankruptcy.

YET, WHEN Kemp first brought his tax cut to the floor of the House on March 15, as an amendment to the Humphrey-Hawkins full-employment bill, 52 House Democrats supported Kemp. And when Kemp-Roth came to the floor as an amendment to the Ways and Means Committee's tax-cut bill, 38 Democrats voted ves White's letter, in the words of one Democratic state chairman, is a "standard" effort to rally

Democrats around the party banner. In fact, it may reflect two deepening concerns:

how Democratic candidates can best handle the Kemp-Roth issue; and how to cut down Jack Kemp, a possible 1980 Republican presidential contender against Jimmy Carter.

THE HIGH-PRESSURE White House lobbying campaign to pass the natural gas bill has succeeded admirably in one of its primary purposes: to split corporate executives from their Washington The carefully staged White House shows, featuring President Carter himself, have exerted immediate impact on chief executive officers of companies not directly affected by the gas bill. Although their permanent Washington representatives in many cases recommended non-support of the bill, the top brass was bowled over by the President. A typical case concerned one large manufacturing firm with important international trade matters now in the hands of the administration. Acting on the advice of its permanent Washington lobbyist the company weeks ago decided to stay neutral in the natural gas fight.

BUT THE COMPANY'S chief executive officer emerged from his White House meeting determined to switch positions and actively support

The overt reason: even though the substance of the issues involved seemed murky, the President of the United States had asked his help in the national interest.

However, the corporate president also may have been considering tariff questions, wholly unrelated to energy but vital to his company's future, now under consideration by the administra-

Nevertheless, the technique has two limita-

First, it is questionable how many times Carter can go to the well with this increasingly frequent lobbying tactic; second, whether those chief executive officers can sway any senators in the 11th hour of the long natural gas fight is even more debatable.

JOHN SEARS, the brilliant but controversial manager of Ronald Reagan's 1976 presidential drive, is slated to be relieved of day-to-day control over the 1980 Reagan campaign but will retain overall strategic direction.

According to the arrangement being worked out inside the Reagan camp, Sears will be "campaign manager" while somebody else is 'campaign director."

However, this will not satisfy conservative Republicans who have never forgiven Sears for advising Reagan to take on Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania as his running-mate.

That attitude is particularly intense among party leaders in Reagan's home state of California, led by Republican state chairman Mike Montgomery.

View..

MILLIONS OF Americans are getting broader beamed, if not broader minded.

That is the conclusion of the people at the American Seating Co. in Grand Rapids, Mich., as well as a number of doctors and others who have been studying citizens' eating, sitting and no-walking habits. The end result of the problem is that it not only is unhealthy, it is causing headaches for those who fashion seats in theaters, airplanes and for the dining table and sofas for the television room. As a matter of fact, say the experts, therein is the rub. Far too many Americans rush home from work, sit down to eat a bite, then sit down to watch the little boxes. And although they aren't glued there, they act like it, except for an occasional trip to the kitchen or the bathroom.

AS A RESULT, not only Mom and Pop, but the kids and the singles are getting wider astern than they used to be, according to an item in The St. Petersburg Times.

Once in the dark, dim past, after people pushed their chairs away from the table, they often would take a nice evening stroll.

But, according to Harvard Anthropologist

Alfred Maddon, "Nobody gets much exercise at night any more.. 'After dinner, too many people sprawl out and watch the little box for the rest of the evening. It doesn't matter what is on. They just sit there and stare at it-and pile on the extra weight. "Most people are active during the daytime," Maddon notes. "But at night, all they do is sit and stare. Is it is any wonder that extra pounds have been added in certain locations? IT'S NOT JUST the living room movie machine that is solely to blame, although it is a major fac-

As Maddon observes, when people walked and took more exercise to control their weight, they worked at it. Today, everyone is on some sort of diet, they say. "That leaves them free to watch television all night long.. And if it isn't that, he says, then it's into the car and a trip to the drive-in or theater or stadium or some such to, you guessed it, sit some more. And don't forget the snacks. And even there, the felony is compounded. According to George Armelagos, University of Massachusetts anthropology prof: "We're increasing in size. We're getting bigger every day. For one thing, the nutritional values in the food we eat are higher. As a result, Americans are reaching full growth at an earlier age, and they are becoming taller and wider."

to what he calls the "national nightly sit-ins." He argues that millions sit in their cars on the way to and from work. Many sit in offices all day. When they return home, they sit to eat and sit to watch television. More and more people are carrying around more and more weight-much of it right where they sit. He asked: "Do you realize that the old-fashioned Pullman seat on a train just wouldn't be large enough for two people nowadays?" That is precisely the point of the broad survey the American Seating people made. A total of 7,-710 men and women between 18 and 78 were checked for now, and posterity. The results will be used to determine if wider seats are needed in such places as schools, churches, theaters, sports stadiums, and yes those lounging chairs and sofas which are used for you know what.

CURRENTLY, THE standard width of such seats is 22 inches.

At the rate things are spreading, that may have to be changed to 24 inches, or more bluntly, to a full two feet! No wonder the airlines are going to wide bodied" aircraft.

And speaking of wide bodies, the study checked more than just one facet of the problem. Seems that when one sits, the entire anatomy gets involved. Some sit up straight, some slump, some slide and slip, some lean, and some "just can't sit

From all this data, fed into a computer sitting in the corner, natch, the American of the 21st Century will be "something else." Women on the average will stand 5 feet 8. Men will be Texas tall 6 feet 6

As a result, doors, chairs, clothes and seats will have to be made larger. What this will do to the trend to smaller cars is anyone's guess.

ACTUALLY, THE problem goes a bit deeper than just the seat of things.

While it may be argued that such a life-style isn't harmful, quite the contrary is so, if most doctors are correct. And in this case they are. A good brisk one to four mile walk, if one is in relatively good shape, will do more to keep one healthy and extend one's life than all the pills and miracle drugs in the world. Although we keep unbelievable hours while traveling abroad, we also toss in three to six miles of hoofing it in order to get close to the things we want to see. And we feel better then

As for broadening one's knowledge, if not vision, with all that television viewing, there's room for argument. The truth of the matter is that while Americans may be somewhat better 'informed," in sort of a hit-and-miss fashion, they aren't really knowledgeable about the world about them.

In-depth education doesn't come in staccato, form delivered between deodorant blurbs. It comes with calm reading, discussion and an interchange of ideas. In this respect, a broad beam doesn't necessarily guarantee a

Clements Defends $3.5 Million Campaign Chest

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements Wednesday defended spending $3.5 million on his campaign, and said if opponent John Hill only spends $1.1 million, "then he's thrown in the towel.

Speaking to about 50 members of the Lubbock Executive Association, Clements discarded his prepared speech on national security and said he would "just talk politics" with the group of business managers and owners.

Clements arrived in Lubbock some what tired from a $1,000-a-plate GOP fund-raising dinner in Dallas Wednesday night which added $1.5 million to his campaign funds.

In answer to a question on the accelerating cost of political campaigns, Clements, a political newcomer, said he never realized "how expensive it is" to run a

But he added that he didn't feel the expense of running for office excluded the common man.

'Political organization is expensive, but you need it to get out your vote and get your message across. Sixty percent of all your campaign costs will go for media by the people, he continued, "then you

Bodies Of Missing Climbers Found On Mount Rainier

PARADISE, Wash. (AP) - The bodies of two missing climbers have been found at the 13,300-foot level of Mount Rainier, a park spokesman said.

Recovery teams were kept off the mountain by a storm Wednesday, and officials were waiting for improving weather before sending a helicopter in for the bodies, said Larry Henderson, Mount Rainier National Park spokes-

Avalanche danger was reported as high because of falling snow and winds.

The bodies were found after a lowflying search and rescue helicopter from Fort Lewis spotted ice axes in the snow Tuesday and searchers landed to check the area.

ver, and Guillermo Mendoza, 28, of Saltillo, Coahuila, Mexico, were found buried in snow. The two mountaineering school instructors were two days overdue on a climb to the summit of the 14,410-foot

"It doesn't appear they were caught in an avalanche," said Henderson. "It looks like it was just the weather. We've had several days of very bad weather where they were. There's been a lot of snow falling."

The Dallas oil drilling magnate again challenged Attorney General Hill to a debate, saying "I figure my opponent won't debate me because he has something to

He also said Hill's charge that Clements will spend $7 million campaigning "is an out-and-out lie. "

"I also think it's a fabrication that Hill will only spend $1.1 million. I hope that's all he spends because that means he's thrown in the towel," Clements said. The gubernatorial hopeful outlined for his audience the major issues he feels are facing the state. On the subject of energy, Clements again called both President Carter's proposed energy package and the compromise version now before the Senate "a "I would rather have no bill" than either the president's bill or the proposed compromise plan, he said. President Carter also was denounced by Clements for his "amnesty program for illegal aliens."

The candidate said the president's plan. would make 3 million illegal aliens now in Texas "instant citizens (and) that would place a tremendous burden on our schools and civic services."

Clements advocated a work permit program for aliens, while allowing those who have been living in the U.S. for several years to become citizens "through the proper procedures."

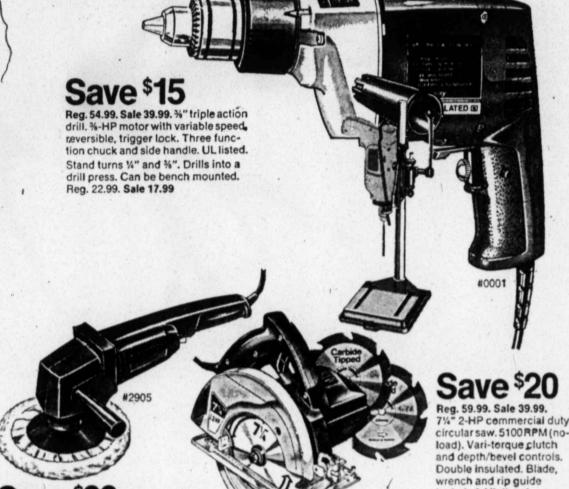

He reiterated his stance that education is the "number one priority for people all over the state," but said upgrading the quality of education would take six to eight years of hard work.

His plan to improve the quality of education in Texas includes standardized testing not only for pupils but for teachers; strengthening the required curriculum for a teaching degree; make the teaching certification process more difficult; increasing teachers' salaries to a level comparable with other state employees; getting "back to the basics" of "putting discipline back into the classroom.

Clements repeated his now familiar slogan, "If you like Mr. Carter, you're going to love John Hill," and asked the group if they really wanted to vote for a man who "has been running for governor for 10 years.'

Ford Hit By New Indictment In Pinto Fatali

The panel said the tanks were "recklessly designed and manufactured in such ' a manner as would likely cause (the Pinto) to flame and burn upon rear-end impact, and that the Ford Motor Co. had a legal duty to warn the general public."

Ford, which is involved in multi-million dollar civil suits concerning the Pinto, announced in June that it was recalling 1.5 million 1971-76 Pintos and 30,000 Mercury Bobcats to improve the safety of the fuel tanks, but the recall is just getting under way.

The grand jury, impaneled by Elkhart County Superior Court, indicted Ford on three counts of reckless homicide and one count of criminal recklessness. Maximum penalties would total $35,000 in

Ford called the action unprecedented and "unwarranted" and said it had not broken any Indiana laws. H.R. Nolte Jr., Ford vice president and general counsel, said in a statement released in Detroit that the automaker would study the indictment and "take appropriate action."

Elkhart County Prosecutor Michael A. Cosentino said he expected Ford to challenge the indictment, which he described as "certain to make law."

The charges stemmed from the Aug. 10 deaths of Judy Ulrich, 18, of Osceola, Ind., her sister, Lynn, 16, and their cousin, Donna Ulrich, 18, of Roanoke, Ill The three girls burned to death when their

New Airline Rule Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's airlines would be allowed to offer free or reduced rate trips to employees of foreign airlines under a new rule proposed by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Such service is available to employees of foreign airlines which also serve the United States, but not to workers on airlines which have no U.S. service.

Nineteen U.S. airlines asked permission to extend the service to all foreign

The service would allow the U.S. airlines to improve their relations with the foreign carriers and thus increase the generation of traffic from them, officials

Also, he CAB noted that most foreign airlines do not restrict free transportation to employees of carriers serving their home country and it understands the desire of the American lines to offer reciprocal service. Before taking effect the rule will be open to public comment until Oct. 10. Interested persons can write to Docket 32420, Civil Aeronautics Board, 1825 Connecticut Ave. NW, Washington, D.C., 1973 Pinto sedan exploded after being hit recklessly done, that Ford came to know from behind by a van on a northern Indiana highway.

The driver of the van, Robert Duggar, 21, of Goshen, was not indicted because, the grand jury said, "although he may have been negligent, we do not believe it constituted a criminal act."

Consentino said individuals could have been indicted by the grand jury but it decided to go with the corporate indictment, which cannot include a jail term. Had individuals been indicted, the penalties could have been as much as 2-8 years in prison for each count of reckless homicide and up to a year in prison for the criminal recklessness charge.

Cosentino said, "The thrust of the state's case will be to show that the design, engineering and manufacturing of the Ford Pinto was inapporpriate and of the car's defects and did nothing about

Ford denies the tanks on the Pintos and Bobcats are any more susceptible to explosion than those of other small cars from early model years, when no federal rear-end collision standards existed.

The recall could cost Ford $40 million or more. The company also has been hurt by the fact that sales of 1978 Pintos have declined, even though these models contain a redesigned fuel system, introduced in 1977, which Ford says eliminates the

The Association of Trial Lawyers of America said in June there are up to 50 Pinto-related civil suits pending in various courts. At least six suits have been settled out of court by Ford, including three of more than $1 million. The biggest jury award came Feb. 6 when an Orange County, Calif., jury awarded $127.8 million — including $125 million in punitive damages — to a teen-ager badly burned when his 1972 Pinto burst into flames after being hit in the rear by a car going 35 mph. The plaintiffs argued Ford knew from its own tests that the Pinto tank would rupture too easily, but sold the cars anyway to save $10 a car.

That was believed to be the largest punitive award in any product liability case. The trial judge later reduced the award to $6.3 million, including $3.5 million in punitive damages, and Ford is appealing.

The Pinto-Bobcat recall was announced June 9, but was delayed by wrangling over modifications to be made. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration announced Aug. 21 that the first correction proposed by the company failed to correct the problem, but it said additional modifications apparently would do the trick.

When it announced the recall, Ford said the modifications would cost $20 to $30 per car, or $40 million if all Pinto owners returned their autos for repairs. It is not known whether the additional modifications will increase the cost.

Indianapolis attorney William Conous, who helped draft the Indiana penal code under which the action was brought, said despite the fact that the state had no fuel tank safety requirements when the car was manufactured, "what counts is what happened on Aug. 10."

He added that although the penalties for criminal charges were not as stringent as civil damages might be, "the very nature of criminal prosecution is an inducement for others. Once a corporation has been prosecuted or convicted of a crime, it has a certain stigma in its own right."

Los Angeles safety consultant Byron Bloch, whose testimony helped bring the indictments, said the indictment "clearly sends a message to Ford and the rest of the auto companies that they must start getting serious about this and shape up their act immediately with regard to fuel tank safety."

Smith's Policy Speech Disappoints Rhodesians

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) -Prime Minister Ian Smith, complained a disgruntled serviceman hunched over a beer, "weaved and weaseled like some rocket was chasing him.'

The man was referring to Smith's policy address Sunday night, when he covered every angle and touched every base.

He promised ultimate victory. He promised a continued search for peace. He warned of Rhodesian anti-guerrilla strikes across the borders. He threatened a crackdown against guerrilla sympathizers locally

He said he had a novel new pian devised with "typical Rhodesian ingenuity" to impose "a modification of martial law in certain parts of the country - if and when deemed necessary."

Nobody is yet quite sure how this differs from the current situation, whereby all able-bodied white Rhodesians are called to serve and the awesome term free-fire zone" applies to great chunks of the country.

Smith had promised that the speech would augur a new "positive and firm" course for the country to follow after black terrorists shot down a civilian airliner with 56 aboard and slaughtered 10 of the 18 survivors last Sunday

But when the last note of the martial trumpet music that ended Smith's broaddesia - 260,000 whites in a country of 6.7 million blacks - was a bitterly disappointed community.

After the speech, telephone calls came into the offices of the mass-circulation Herald. People expressed disgust. Some said they reached the stage of tears.

But for many, what was more disappointing than being told little about hitting back was the realization that there was little to tell, that options were running out for Smith.

Witnesses May Aid Marcov Death Probe

LONDON (AP) - Police said Wednesday they have found witnesses who may be able to corroborate the death-bed statement of Bulgarian defector Georgi Marcov, who claimed he was stabbed spy-style with a poison-tipped umbrella.

Marcov, a 49-year-old writer and employee of the British Broadcasting Corp., died of blood poisoning Monday in a London hospital.

Before he died he said he was stabbed in the right leg last Thursday by a man with an umbrella. Marcov said the man who stuck the umbrella in his leg was standing in line for a bus outside a BBC building.

Marcov said the man, who spoke wih a thick foreign accent, apologized and then

Police stopped hundreds of taxi drivers Wednesday in the vicinity of the alleged umbrella incident. "We have now found several people who may be able to help us, but we are very anxious to talk to the driver who picked up this man at the Aldwych last Thursday evening," said Detective Chief Inspector Colin Reeve. He appealed to the driver to come forward.

Marcov was a well-known writer in Angry Residents Attend Murder Suspect's Hearing

HOUSTON (AP) - A group of angry residents from a Pasadena neighborhood packed a Houston courtroom in an effort to see that a man charged with murder be returned to jail.

State District Court Judge Thomas Routt warned the crowd Tuesday that they couldn't unduly influence the judi-

Then, Routt ordered Charles Edward Bell be held under a $125,000 bond and undergo a psychiatric examination.

Bell, 39, of Crystal Beach, was released on $40,000 bond Aug. 24, the day after he was arrested and charged with murder and four counts of indecency with a child.

Bell is accused of the fatal shooting of Larry Dean Dickens, 26, of Pasadena. Testimony given during the bond hearing showed that Dickens had attempted to hold Bell for police after the man (Bell) was seen walking around the neighborhood naked from the waist

Routt said he received several telephone calls and letters urging him to keep Bell behind bar and if he didn't he wouldn't be re-elected.

His widow, Annabel, told the British Press Association Wednesday she was convinced her husband did not die of natural causes. "I have no doubts he was murdered, and there was every reason why someone should want him killed," she said. "His work was the motive."

She said Marcov once was a friend of Bulgarian head of state Todor Zhivkov but he decided to leave the country because he feared for his safety.

"He was beginning to overstep the mark politically in his writing." Mrs. Marcov said. "It was his relationship with the president which probably kept him out of danger as long as it did. His defection caused rage and shock in Bulgaria. He had been afraid for years. Very close friends often teased him that he was paranoid. We know now that he was right.

She said Marcov never answered a knock at the door unless he knew who it was, and carefully screened his circle of friends.

Mrs. Marcov said her husband's anticommunist broadcasts had become stronger since last year when his father fell ill in Bulgaria. Marcov and his brothers asked permission to return to be with him, but were refused.

"Georgi was so incensed by his father's death that his broadcasts for Radio Free Europe became absolutely vitriolic," she said. "He named mistresses of the highups, really smearing mud on the people in the inner circles. His father's death made him more and more angry and determined to cause embarrassment."

She said her husband was regarded "as a tremendous enemy" inside Bulgaria because huge audiences listened to his

We gave the stock to our daughter not him. He could have looked up the price of the stock in the newspaper the day we gave it to her. Shouldn't that have been enough "price" information for

A. No. Maybe this column can pour some oil on troubled family waters by explaining that your daughter has to know your cost of that stock for tax purposes.

On gift stock, the recipient's "cost basis" is either the donor's cost basis or the value of the stock on the date of the gift - which ever is lower. So, if you bought that stock at a price lower than its market value on the date you made the gift, the price you paid is now your daughter's cost basis.

If she ever sells the stock, her capital gain or loss will be the difference between the stock's cost basis and the proceeds from the sale. She would have to know the cost basis, to report the sale correctly to the Internal Revenue Serv-

But let's say she never sells but, years from now gives the stock to her children. Your grandchildren would have to know the cost basis of the stock.

Your son-in-law asked what was really a sensible and important question. I urge you to give him and your daughter a factual dollars and cents answer.

Q. Next month, $10,000 of the $50,000 we have in insured savings certificates will mature and be available for other investments. We are 64 and 62. In addition to this money, we have a small pension and Social Security. In view of inflation, can you advise us how to invest the $10,-

A. With an eye toward the damage inflation is doing to the purchasing power of the dollar, I suggest you put about half of that $10,000 into common stocks of quality utility companies and the other half into investment grade corporate bonds. And do the same thing with the next $10,000 certificate that matures. Past that, however, I feel you should keep the rest of your money in insured savings certificates — for safety sake.

Utility commons should gradually increase their dividends, as they have in the past. Bonds, rated A and AA, now yield more than certificates.

But common stocks and bonds are both subject to ups and downs in the market place. In your situation, I doubt that you should put any more than 20 percent of your available assets into anything that does not have the safety of fixed dollars as savings certificates do.

Q. Where can a person obtain the official U.S. government circular explaining how Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds, can be exchanged for Series H Bonds? I have asked my local banks, my congressman and the U.S. Government Printing Office - to no avail. How can the federal government expect the public to continue buying savings bonds, when they don't provide the information needed?

A. It would be nice to think that yours is an unusual letter. But it's not. The mailbag indicates a breakdown in the U.S. Savings Bond effort at local levels, because some people who are supposed to handle the sale, redemption and exchange of savings bonds at banks and savings and loan associations aren't doing their jobs right.

All kinds of literature explaining savings bonds is provided to "qualified paying agents" - banks, S&Ls and such. The one you are looking for is Treasury Circular No. 1036. Ask for it at your local banks, again. If you come up empty, write to the Office of Public Affairs, U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, Washington, D.C. 20226.

More respondents told the Conference Board's poll-takers in August than in July that they intend to buy autos, homes, major applances and carpets in the next six months. But Federal Reserve figures suggest the nation's buying plans may be turning down, rather than up.

In its monthly report for July, the Fed said consumer debt grew by $3.3 billion, a slowdown from the $3.8 billion gain in June and the average growth of $3.9 billion a month recorded in March through May.

Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Pioneer Natural Gas official warned Wednesday residential gas users will pay the price if the Lubbock City Council lowers the rates the utility can charge industrial customers.

But the city's rate analyst emphatically denied the gas company contention and accused the utility of "trying to stir up public opposition to the city's case" on PNG industrial rates.

The comments followed a day-long hearing in a rate case initiated by the city council last November after PNG proposed an increase in the base rate for industrial contracts.

Pioneer was seeking a two-cent per

A-J Correspondent

FRIONA - The 22nd annual three-day "Maize Days" celebration kicks off here today with the Maize Queen pageant slated at 8 p.m. at the Friona High School auditorium.

Twenty-two young women are vying for the title.

An arts and needlecraft show at 617 Main St. is on the agenda for Friday. Entries for the show will be accepted from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. today.

Saturday's festivities begin with a pancake breakfast, sponsored by the American Legion, at the high school cafeteria. Breakfast will be served from 6:30 a.m. to 8:30 a.m.

Other activities will include a 10 a.m. parade, a noon barbecue at the city park and a 1 p.m. slow-pitch softball tournament at the West Little League Park. Teams interested in participating in the softball tournament may call Joe Tongate at 247-3411. Entries will be accepted through Friday.

The celebration continues with a pet show on the library lawn and with a sixmile marathon; both events are scheduled at 2 p.m.

The marathon race will begin at the "Anthony Corner," six miles north of the city on Hwy. 214 and will wind up at the community center.

Open roping and barrel racing at 6:30 p.m. at the arena will conclude the three-day celebration. Persons desiring more information may call 247-3073.

YMCA Sets Free Physical Fitness Testing Session

A free physical fitness testing clinic at the Lubbock YMCA Saturday will offer interested persons a chance to evaluate their physical condition.

From 9 a.m. to noon the YMCA will administer free tests determining percentage of fat, blood pressure, resting and exercise pulse, muscular flexibility, lung capacity and abdominal strength.

The clinic, conducted approximately four times each year, is a public service project available to men, women and children. Applicants will be asked to sign a medical release.

Pamphlets concerning such subjects as heart condition and exercise also will be available at the YMCA, located at 1601 24th St.

MINISTER RE-ELECTED

SIBASA, South Africa (AP) - Chief Patrick Mphephu was unanimously reelected chief minister of Venda in the black homeland's legislative assembly Wednesday. His political opponents were in jail or boycotting the election in protest. His re-election was seen as another step forward for South Africa's policy of "grand apartheid," or separate racial development of areas within the country. Mphephu supports independence for the 450,000-member Venda tribe.

Bob Mills, PNG public relations director, said the rates charged residential and commercial users would have to be increaser to supply revenue lost from lower industrial rates if those rates are reduced by the council

M.D. LaGrone, PNG senior vice president, agreed, saying, "Anytime one class (of customers) pays less, others pay

Any residential rate increase would be in addition to the gas company's June 30 application for an average 26.36 percent increase in the rates charged residential and commercial customers.

City rate analyst Ervin Looney called PNG's suggestion that one class of customers subsidize another "illegal" and said the pending domestic rate case "is not related to what goes on today.

Looney said the council will establish industrial rates based on "the cost of providing service customers" and said the domestic rates will be determined the same way.

Industrial rates will not be lowered below the cost to provide service for those customers," he said.

Raising domestic rates to make up for lower industrial rates amounts to "discrimination between classes, which is il-Gas customers also may take it on the

However, Looney said state law leaves it up to the council, as the rate-making authority, to determine which rate case expenses will be borne by consumers.

A study performed by PNG consultant Dennis Gillmore indicates the gas company's revenues were about $8.6 million less last year than the cost to provide service to all Lubbock customers.

However, those figures are "adjusted" and much of Wednesday's testimony concerned those adjustments.

City Attorney John Ross questioned Gillmore extensively about the rate base weighting used by the utility, which Gillmore acknowledged is the highest allowed by law.

The weighting used by PNG gives the most emphasis to the current cost of replacing gas company facilities and the lowest possible emphasis to the original cost of facilities.

Gillmore said the weighting used by PNG is that employed by the Railroad

Test-Tube Fertilization Poll Released

NEW YORK (AP) — Fighty-five per-cent of American women believe that couples who can't have children should be able to resort to test-tube fertilization, according to a poll published in Parents magazine.

At the same time, 63 percent would prohibit the procedure until it is determined that it will not cause birth defects, and half oppose any féderal funding for research in that area, the magazine says.

The survey of 1,501 American women

18 years of age and older was conducted by pollster Louis Harris between Aug. 4 and 6, a week and a half after the July 25 birth of the world's first test-tube baby,

The margin of error was plus or minus 3 percent.

According to the survey, 58 percent of women of childbearing age would consi-der using the "in vitro" method of fertilization. Sixty-one percent of women be-tween 18 and 39 approve of the proce-dure, compared with only 43 percent of those 40 and older and 52 percent over Sixty-six percent of those who intend to have children approved of the procedure.

Part of the reason for the support for the new procedure, according to the poll, is that 28 percent of those women polled had trouble becoming pregnant, and 20 percent said they tried unsuccessfully to become pregnant for a year.

Among those women who disapproved of the procedure, 47 percent said they felt test-tube fertilization was unnatural, 30 percent said they felt it was wrong for moral or religious reasons, and 17 per-cent felt it was dangerous.

The desire for children was strong, however. Forty-nine percent felt that a married couple should be able to use another man's sperm if a husband's sperm cannot fertilize his wife's egg, and 28 percent of women of childbearing age said they would be willing to use another man's energy.

Given a choice, though, 57 perc the women said they would opt for tion if they could not conceive nor

Panel Defeats Carter's Military Spending Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Armed Services Committee voted 36-1 Wednesday to deny the Carter Administration any new military programs in place of the $2 billion nuclear aircraft carrier vetoed by the president.

Instead, the panel simply deleted the carrier from the same overall defense authorization bill, now totaling $35 billion, and sent the measure back to the floor.

Earlier in the day, Defense Secretary Harold Brown unveiled a shopping list for more than 100 military projects that would have cost about $2.2 billion more than the carrier, which Carter had termed a waste of money when he vetoed the bill in August.

Though the House sustained the veto by a hefty margin last week, the armed services panel turned a deaf ear to the requests for restorations throughout the defense budget. The list included tanks, missiles, aircraft, research and development, fuel supplies and $2.8 million for morale improvement counseling.

The Senate Armed Services Committee appears headed on the same course, despite administration claims that the restorations are essential to national security. Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., has introduced a version identical to that approved by the House panel.

The committee's action would not preclude the president's coming back later and asking for supplemental appropriations in fiscal 1979 to accomplish the same goals. Brown confirmed he would likely do just that if the House committee prevails on the current bill.

Carter and his defense secretary sought to maintain an overall spending total of $126 billion for the military in fiscal 1979, a figure which Brown termed "essential to our security.'

Congress had whittled $2 billion from the Carter programs while adding the same amount for the unwanted carrier. But the chairman of the House committee, Melvin Price, D-Ill., and others insisted the cuts were made on their own

"I oppose the addition of any new items to the bill," Price declared before the vote. "There is not time to have a complete review of all of the items that would normally go into a new defense authorization bill.

The new fiscal year begins Oct. 1. Congress is anxious to adjourn for the November elections

"There is nothing sacrosanct about the figure of $126 billion," said Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif. "To come up here and say that since we can't have a nuclear aircraft carrier we have to spread that money someplace else is just ludicrous, ridiculous, totally absurd.

Dellums cast the sole vote against reporting the bill as before, minus the aircraft carrier funds, and "I do that because I'd like to cut $9 billion from this bill, not just $2 billion.

Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., went down the item-by-item list of projects Brown wanted restored and exploded at Brown: "You're playing fast and loose with the (legislative) process. Some of the things you've asked for are just plain turkeys" which were rejected earlier.

Said Brown: "Should Congress pass this bill and not restore what we're asking for, that poses a risk to national defense and Congress will share the respon-

He said no one of his requests was major, but he added that "When the structure topples, it will not be possible to say which soft spot did it.'

Test Announced At Nuclear Site Beneath Nevada

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - The U.S. Department of Energy conducted an underground nuclear weapons effects test today at the Nevada test site, north of here, a department spokesman said.

Dave Miller of the DOE said the test, which took place 1,274 feet under Ranier Mesa, had a yield of less than the force which would be caused by detonation of 20 thousand tons of dynamite.

The test, code-named Diablo Hawk, was conducted for the Department of Defense to test the effects of a nuclear blast, particularly radiation, on military hardware or material. Miller said. He said there was no radiation leakage and the test could not be felt here, 90 miles away.

It was the eighth announced nuclear test announced this year and the 318th test at the site announced since the Limited Test Ban Treaty went into effect in 1963, restricting all nuclear testing to underground locations, Miller

He said it was the 492nd announced test at the Nevada site and the 614th announced by the Department of Energy.

Rail Tunnel Fire Resists Put-Out Effort

GARBERVILLE, Calif. (AP) - A stubborn fire in a 4,200-foot railroad tunnel continued to burn Wednesday, a week after it began, despite efforts to douse the flames with water and foam. Most of the fire along 200 feet of the out, but a portion of overhead timber supports continues to burn, said railroad information officer Jim Loveland. Meanwhile, shipments of lumber and other wood products from Eureka have been held up because the track is the only rail route between a large part of California's timber region and points south.

Estimates by the California Department of Forestry are that Northwestern Pacific, a subsidiary of Southern Pacific, is losing business at the rate of $300,000 day because of the blocked track. Loveland said the company had made no estimate of its losses.

The fire began Sept. 6 in the tunnel through Island Mountain, next to the Eel River in Humboldt County and 12 miles southeast of Garberville At first, railroad officials said a spark from a passing train caused it, but Loveland said the cause remains unknown He said plans are to close off the tunnel on both sides of the fire and pump in chemical foam to try to choke out the fire in the next couple of days. Then, fans will be used to clear the tunnel of fumes, burnt ties will be replaced, and the charred timber supports Nigerian children in carved wooden canoe paddle past oil terminal at Escravos, in Nigeria's delta region.

In past centuries, the Portuguese traded beads and gunpowder for slaves in and around the mangrove swamps of Escravos, Nigeria. Now the area is rich in 20th-century terms: in oil.

Nigeria's production of crude oil is running at about 1.8 million barrels a day at present—that makes Nigeria the world's sixth largest oil producer and Africa's second largest, after Libya. The Escravos oil fields have helped make Nigeria, with a population of 80 million, the richest country in sub-Saharan Africa. Oil accounts for 90 percent of its exports. Cocoa is next, way behind.

Nigeria is ahead in another way, too, as a pioneer in the struggle by black Africans to "Africanize" their previously white-run economies. It has forged ahead despite angry opposition from some foreign businessmen, and sharp criticism of the sometimes chaotic results. Everyone, however, seems to profit in the end. And that economic fact of life is the one that counts most on the bottom line.

New Talks Seen On Mideast

Despite the step-up in U.S. efforts, there was no sign that Carter was imposing a deadline to end his talks with Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat even though Carter is coming up against a speechmaking and politicking schedule.

There has been no visible breakthrough on the Palestinian issue or on any other key issue in the Arab-Israeli conflict. Carter has not brought Begin and Sadat together to the negotiating table since

Even though no new three-way meeting has been set. Powell said, "the intensity and specificity of the discussions" has increased between U.S. and Israeli and U.S. and Egyptian officials and within the three delegations.

Carter is determined to wrap up the conference with tangible results, perhaps in a nationwide telecast.

A top Carter priority is to produce a declaration regarding the 1.1 million Palestinian Arabs living under Israeli military control on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza district on the Sinai desert.

Begin has offered the Palestinians administrative self-rule. Sadat, rejecting the plan as inadequate, has insisted on Israeli military withdrawal.

Carter's task is to find a middle ground based on a softening of both the Israeli and Egyptian positions acceptable enough to Jordan's King Hussein to draw him into the negotiations eventually.

Jordan controlled the West Bank for 19 years before losing it in 1967 to Israel in the Six-Day war. Like Sadat, the king of Jordan is demanding restoration of Arab sovereignty after 11 years of Israeli con-

Acting as go-between, Carter held his second meeting Tuesday in two days with Sadat. He then summoned Begin to Aspen Lodge, the presidential headquarters in this forested retreat, for a talk Tuesday night lasting close to an hour and a half.

since the Red Cross has been prevented from clearing the dead in some of the most embattled areas.

In Washington, a ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Somoza appeared "at the end of his rope" and suggested the United States cut off economic aid in order to hasten the president's downfall.

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Fenton said some guerrillas manning the barricades in Leon, 45 miles northwest of the capital, were armed with belt-fed heavy caliber machineguns, shotguns, rifles and handguns.

The rebels said they intended to hold Leon, Nicaragua's second largest city, until Somoza steps down, Fenton reported from Leon. Travelers arriving in Managua said the national guard garrison in Chinandega. 65 miles northwest of Managua, was totally restricted to its barracks. One said guerrillas were looting stores and passing out food to the people. Electricity and water was unavailable, he said.

The national guard - a 7,500-man force that serves as both the army and police - appeared to have regained control of Masaya, 18 miles southeast of the capital, after four days of fierce battles. But heavy gunfire continued there Wednesday

Red Cross workers spent three hours in the city Tuesday afternoon and then withdrew because of gunfire. Red Cross Secretary-General Leopoldo Navarro said a few bodies were decomposing in the streets, and about 1,000 persons had taken refuge in the Red Cross center and a nearby convent National guard troops were conducting a house-to-house search for snipers. There was new shooting Wednesday in the central market area, which burned Sunday. A Red Cross worker said people were digging out burned food and other goods from the market when a national guard jeep arrived and soldiers started hooting at them.

"I cremated three bodies near the market," said one rescue worker. He said another body was buried in the Soldiers patrolled the streets of Managua and stood guard behind barbed-wire barricades. Most stores remained closed as part of a general strike against Somoza, but the central market was open and some shoppers were stocking provisions. Gasoline was scarce.

Postal service was suspended as government workers were pressed into service with the military. Other government employees said they had been told there was no money to pay them.

The central bank halted conversion of the national currency, the cordoba, into' other money, apparently to prevent the flight of wealth.

Thousands of refugees fled north to Honduras and south to Costa Rica.

Costa Rica's civil guard said Wednesday its troops arrested 10 Nicaraguans who claimed to be Sandinistas near the Nicaraguan border.

The Costa Ricans said they took American-made M-16 rifles and ammunition plus bombs from the guerrillas.

The guerrillas said their raiding party of 37 attacked a Nicaraguan national guard post at Sapoa a mile from the border Tuesday then broke into two groups and entered Costa Rica.

A Sandinista broadcast from Costa Rica Wednesday urged Nicaraguans to join the guerrillas, occupy a strip of Nicaragua near the Costa Rican border and set up a provisional government there.

Costa Rica said a Nicaraguan air force plane strafed a truck on the Costa Rican side of the border Tuesday, wounding the driver in the leg. It asked the permanent council of the Organization of American States in Washington for "urgent application" of OAS peacekeeping Inflation Gains Seen He said inflation was 12 percent annually when he went into office and 4.8 percent when he went out in January 1977 but has increased to a "double-digit" level again under Carter.

Ford said inflation could be reduced by cutting the annual growth rate of federal spending and by Congress passing the Kemp-Roth bill to cut federal taxes by 30 percent in three years to stimulate economic growth.

He recommended, however, that the cuts be of 8, 10 and 12 percent over the three years instead of 10 percent per year so that the economy would have more time to respond to the change.

"I can tell you directly that we had policies that we were to pursue in '77, '78 that would have reduced further the inflation impact on our economy."

Ford saved his most severe criticism of Carter defense policies for the lunch-

Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., asked her if, with 15 years of hindsight, she could say whether Oswald did in fact assassinate the president.

"I don't know if I am qualified to make statements like that because I knew one side of Lee but I did not know his whole character," she replied.

Italian Police Arrest Terrorist Suspect In Aldo Moro Killing

MILAN, Italy (AP) - Corrado Alunni, wanted in the kidnap-murder of former Premier Aldo Moro and reputed to be the new leader of the Red Brigades terrorist gang, was arrested Wednesday evening in Milan, police said.

They said Alunni, 30, was caught by surprise in a terrorist hideout in a suburban residential district near the Malpensa Airport when four police officers rang the door bell. The officers pointed pistols at Alunni as soon as he opened the door, police said.

Police said they found "large amounts of firearms, ammunition and important documents" in the apartment. The area around the high-rise apartment building was sealed off. Alunni was held at the central police headquarters for questioning, police said. His name was mentioned by investigators immediately after Moro was kidnapped and his five bodyguards shot dead in a street ambush March 16 in Rome. An arrest warrant was pending against Alunni on charges of having taken part in the ambush and the May 9 slaying of the Christian Democrat politician.

Alunni has been considered the leader of the most radical and determined group inside the Red Brigades. Police often referred to him as the new leader of the terrorist organization after the arrest of Renato Curcio, who is serving a 15-year jail term for terrorist activi-Alunni was born in Rome, but worked for seven years in Milan at the Sit-Siemens electronics firm, a favorite target of terrorist attacks over the past few He had never been arrested before although there were two more arrest warrants for him, one in the north Italian town of Pavia on charges of subversive activities and another on charges of helping Curcio escape from the jail in Casale

Monferrato in 1975. On Feb. 15 of that year several terroyists led an armed raid on the jail and freed Curcio, who was recaptured one

A photograph released by police at the time of the Moro kidnapping pictured Alunni with black, greasy hair, a long moustache and glasses. A police source said Alluni's appearance had changed Police had staked out the apartment for several days but did not know the man inside was Alunni, officers said. Sources said police were surprised when Alunni identified himself. Alunni moved to Milan in 1968 when he went to work for Sit-Siemens. When in ly in a working class district.

was found on documents seized in Pavia following a raid on a terrorist hideout. Police said they believed he went into hiding in Rome for several months and then began moving from one hideout to another throughout the country. The Rome police investigating the Moro case said they would leave Thusday morning for Milan to be present when Alunni is questioned. After the bold, well-planned ambush in which Moro was seized, the Red Brigades ssued statements saying they were holding Moro for a "people's trial." Moro later wrote letters saying the government exchange prisoners for him. After a spate of statements from the Red Brigades in which they demanded release of prisoners, including Curcio, Moro was murdered. His bullet-riddled body was found May 9 in the back seat of a car in downown Rome. The Italian government has charged six persons in the Moro case. Five of the suspects were arrested a few days after Moro's body was found. One suspect, Mario Moretti, was charged in absentia.

Press reports quoting witnesses and some police sources said about a dozen persons were thought to have taken part in the bloody shootout in which Moro was kidnapped.

Morris said Project Match, which is costing the government $1 million to run, has already paid for itself.

"We figure on average every ineligible case is worth $2,000 a year in AFDC, plus food stamps, plus Medicaid," he said. That would amount to more than $2.2 million a year for the 1,132 ineligible workers found so far. He said several hundred cases have been referred to U.S. attorneys for possible prosecution.

Cathedral Ruins Found During Plumbing Job

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) Ruins of the medieval Cathedral of Florence Outside the Walls have been discovered near a shop below the Basilica of San Lorenzo the commission in charge of monuments reported Wednesday.

The find was made by a plumber installing a boiler in a shop beside the basilica. Noticing that there was a space behind the wall he was working on, the plumber opened a hole in it, discovering three skeletons in a 10-by-23 foot

One of the walls of the room is that of the old cathedral, which was destroyed in the Middle Ages. The present basilica was built during the 1400s over part of the ruins of the cathedral.

Natural Gas Pricing Compromise Gains Support

WASHINGTON (AP) - Support for a natural gas pricing compromise built rapidly Wednesday, but the Senate failed to reach agreement on a firm date to vote on the measure.

The result is that opponents may still mount a filibuster aimed at defeating the compromise, which has become the most important remaining piece of President Carter's energy program.

The measure would lift federal price controls on natural gas by 1985, but prices would be permitted to rise by about 10 percent annually between now

TOTAL FOR OR LEANING FOR (43):

WASHINGTON (AP) - Here is a rundown on how senators are lined up on the natural gas compromise the administration wants enacted, based on an Associated Press survey:

Prices for homeowners would go up, but some specialists say the increase would be about the same under the current system of regulated prices.

The compromise picked up support Wednesday from four previously uncommitted Democrats: Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire, Thomas Eagleton of Missouri and Dick Clark and John Culver, both of Iowa.

And Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., who had been listed as leaning against the compromise, said he would vote for it. An Associated Press informal count shows 44 senators firmly supporting or leaning toward the compromise.

There were 40 firmly or tentatively opposed, including Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., who said Wednesday he would vote against the gas bill. Schweiker said the measure would bring sharp increases in prices for industrial users in Pennsylvania, driving more manufacturers to move from the Northeast to the Sun Belt.

That left 16 uncommitted votes. But most private counts showed a clear majority of those voting for the natural gas compromise which is the product of 10 months of delicate House-Senate negotia-

Nonetheless, the final outcome appeared extremely close.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said, "I do not believe. . . either side has 50 votes. It is still up in the air."

By late Wednesday, Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd believed he had obtained agreement for a final vote next Tuesday from opponents.

But it takes only one senator to object to setting a firm time and date for a vote. That one Wednesday was Republican Dewey Bartlett of Oklahoma, who said,

"I want to keep my options open." Byrd said a new attempt would be made on Friday to reach agreement on concluding a Senate debate which has continued since April 1977 when Carter first sent his energy plan to Capitol Hill. While it appears that Byrd and other administration allies are close to gathering enough votes to pass the gas compromise, it is not clear that they can shut off

It takes 60 votes to end Senate debate. Earlier Wednesday, Hansen said the White House has mounted such a heavy lobbying effort that opponents have not had a chance to air adequately the defects he sees in the compromise.

Gasoline Inventories Show Slight Dip

NEW YORK (AP) - Despite a decrease in gasoline production, inventories of the product declined only slightly in the latest reporting week, the American Petroleum Institute, an industry trade group, reported Wednesday.

Kennedy Popularity Not Based On Liberal Views

The rise of Sen. Edward Kennedy to his current position of dominance in the polls as the strongest potential candidate for president in 1980 forcefully points up the fact that ideology is not the key to modern American politics.

At the moment, Kennedy is leading President Carter by roughly a 2 to 1 margin as the choice of Democrats and independents for the Democratic nomination. and he easily outdistances nine other possible candidates recently tested in a special Harris-ABC poll. Kennedy's lead is found in every region of the country, among the young and the old, those with high incomes and with low incomes, and among conservatives as well as liberals. Expectably, it is particularly strong among blacks, Catholics and Jews, trade union members, liberals and big city resi-

There is no doubt that Kennedy is a liberal. By and large, he votes as a liberal in Congress, and he is perceived as one by a substantial 40 percent of the public. Seven percent look upon him as a radical. (It should be noted, however, that he is believed to be middle-of-the-road by 5 percent of the public, and conservative by 14 percent.) That Kennedy does not enjoy his commanding lead because of ideology is evidenced by the fact that only 20 percent of Americans call themselves liberals, and only 4 percent radicals. Of the rest, 34 percent say they are middle-ofthe-roaders, and 32 percent conservaMETRO is looking for candidates who will reflect either a conservative or a liberal philoso-At the other end of the political spectrum is former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who is thought to be conservative by 44 percent of the public nationwide, middle-of-the-road by 13 percent, liberal by 10 percent and radical by 7 percent. Reagan tried to make his conservatism the cornerstone of his appeal for election to the presidency. Yet, in the polls of 1976, Reagan ran 6 to 11 points behind Gerald Ford when paired against Jimmy Carter. Recent reports indicate that Reagan feels he has learned a lesson, and now has muted some of his front and center appeal as a conservative. For example, he refused to take the lead in the drive to get Proposition 13 passed in California. Ford rarely made his conservatism the central thrust of his appeal, although even now, 38 percent of the public views him as a conservative.

President Carter appears to have carefully positioned himself as a middle-of-

News survey of 1,499 adults nationwide 50 percent of the public views Mr. Carter's political philosophy as middle-of-theroad, 15 percent as conservative, 10 percent as liberal, and 5 percent as radical. This is a marked shift from the way people classified him when he was elected in November 1976, when only 32 percent thought he was a middle-of-the-roader, 17 percent a conservative, and a much higher 30 percent a liberal.

Even Vice President Mondale has taken on less liberal overtones during his time as the No. 2 person in the federal government. The number of those who view Mondale as a liberal has declined from 33 to 17 percent.

Various conclusions can be drawn from this latest Harris-ABC Survey. Come people might say that one of the reasons President Carter is so weak now is the fact that he has lost his liberal image of 1976. Some might also echo a popular view that the country is going conserva-

But both these statements would be misleading. The fact is that most Americans are far more pragmatic than ideological. And in their choice of a candidate for president, they are much more likely to vote for the man who they think will he a leader in the White House and who will take decisive steps to help solve some of the problems which they, the country and the world are facing.

Potato Growers Marshal Forces To Beat Stuffin' Out Of TV Ad

BOISE, Idaho (AP) - Tired of seeing TV husbands choose stuffing over mashed potatoes, American's spud growers are squaring off against General Foods to tell the world that potatoes "beat the stuffin' out of stuffing."

The National Potato Promotion Board, a Denver-based association, decided recently to launch a campaign to counter the food packaging giant's widely shown commercial for its Stovetop Stuffing mix.

The ad presents a husband and wife who are given the choice of mashed potatoes or stuffing. She predicts he'll pick potatoes, but the husband chooses stuffing.

"At first, we took the attitude that they were mentioning potatoes so why should we worry," said Bob Mercer, promo-tion board executive director. "We believed a negative mention of a commodity such as the potato did more good than harm. But we didn't reckon with the growers."

When growers in Idaho, Maine and other parts of the country expressed their outrage, Mercer said the board wrote to General Foods, asking them to modify or cancel the ads.

"When they didn't respond," he said, "we told them we didn't think their ad was unbiased and said we didn't think they could find a husband that would actually do it." General Foods spokeswoman Trecie Fennell said the firm has no record of a letter from the board. She said the commercials were based on extensive research. "There are very strict rules governing the shooting of those commercials, and if they gobble their words, they can't reshoot it," she said. The potato board is taking a low-key approach in its ad campaign, planning newspaper advertisements in major Eastern metropolitan cities. "We're showing the potato has much more nutritional value and the comparison will hopefully convince the Madison Avenue people to withdraw the ad that's really just attacking potatoes." Mercer said The board's ad states that a small potato has one-third the minumum recommended daily adult requirement of vitamin

C, Mercer said. Stovetop Stuffing, on the other hand, has virtually no vitamin C, he added.

Ms. Fennell acknowledged mashed potatoes with milk and butter has greater nutritional value than Stovetop stuffing. But she said the nutritional value of the two products com-

Television Comment Deadline Extended

WASHINGTON (AP) - Citing public interest in its investigation of television programming for children, the Federal Trade Commission has extended the deadline for comment.

Originally set for Oct. 24, the deadline is now Nov. 24 and comments should be sent to the Presiding Officer, "Children's Advertising," Federal Trade Commission, 6th Street and Pennsylvania Ave. NW, Washington DC, 20580.

The agency is considering problems that may be caused by television advertising directed at children and what rem-

Council after hearing the recommendation of Police Chief J.T. Alley. The commission members also reviewed the probationary reports of the present rookie class for the Lubbock Fire Department and four separations of men

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: At what point in a baby's development should a parent be able to understand him? Mine is three and I don't believe I have been able to get an intelligible word out of him. Is this abnormal? - Mrs. K.H.

It is difficult to say without observing and listening. He should be using intelligible speech by now. In a guide for parents published by the American Speech and Hearing Association, the general rule is given: "At three to three and a half years of age, most children use language understood most of the time by most people. This does not mean that they are speaking adult language; it means that most of the time people understand what these young children say and mean.'

So if I am to take your statement literally, that you have "been unable to get an intelligible word" out of your three-year-

DISHWASHER-SAFE

It is recommended that smaller, lighter and more delicate items be placed in the top rack of a dishwasher. Plastic items that are labeled dishwasher-safe should also go topside. Place open ends down so they will drain. Be sure lightweight items are anchored in place. Other articles that and small bowls and lightly soiled pans.

old. I would recommend consultation with the pediatrician or a speech specialist. Many large medical complexes have speech and learning disability centers where he can be tested easily. (I am grateful to Prof. R.L. Anderson of the University of Redlands, Calif., for some data he sent me recently on this subject.)

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why do you say that diabetes that comes on later in life is not as serious as the juvenile kind? -

Any diabetes is serious. I said diabetes that appears later in life tends to be milder in symptoms. Diabetes - at any age means a failure of the cells of the pancreas to produce sufficient insulin to "burn up," so to speak, the sugars in the food we eat. Hence, the sugar build-up in the

The kind that develops later in life ("maturity onset") represents a gradual deterioration of the pancreas cells. The pancreas goes on working, but at the reduced rate. Some insulin is produced, so the problem can be controlled with diet and pills. About 80 percent of maturity onset diabetes have been obese. Often weight reduction helps considerably.

Juvenile onset diabetes, on the other hand, is more sudden and dramatic reduction of insulin production. This is a serious matter, and the patient will need insulin injection to stay alive and ward off the serious complications that can occur. I trust this clears up your confusion. If you have further questions, see my booklet, "Diabetes: The Sneaky Disease." For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611. The fact that 300,000 deaths a year are attributed to diabetes points up the importance of control - at any age.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I get pains in my right jaw, starting from the lower cheek to my forehead, even affecting one eye. It lasts for about 15 minutes and I get them sometimes three or four times a day. Can you help? - Mrs. E.C.

This can be part of the temporomandibular joint syndrome, a defect in the jaw joint. The symptoms might occur from chewing or even talking excessively. This possibility should be investigated. Teeth bite should be checked by the dentist as well as the possibility of impacted teeth. Arthritis of the jaw joint may also be a

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Why do you take such a stubborn stand against wife-spanking? As a student of psychology you should know that women respect men who assert their maleness.

It took two divorces before I learned how to handle females. I tried to reason with my first two wives but soon realized they were a couple of brainless donkeys. My superior mind was wasted on them.

My third marriage got off to a good start. Midway into our first argument she began to scream at me and stamp her foot. I took her over my knee and spanked her with a hairbrush. I told her if she was going to behave like a child I was going to treat her like one.

Since that time I've had very little back-talk. I've given her an occasional spanking but not nearly so severe as the Republican executive committee asked Robbins not to run for office as a Republican, citing his lack of accountablity to the Republican platform and party.

Last September, local Republicans expressed dismay over his announcement of plans to draft legislation to create a state income tax. Party members also were embarrassed about his arrest for public drunkenness in Austin in 1976 and his apparent support of the Equal Right The charges against Robbins were later

Members of the Republican executive committee passed a resolution in July supporting the full slate of GOP candidates "without exception," opening com-munication between Robbins and his estranged party.

Robbins claims to have healed his differences with the party and has recently returned from the state Republican convention. His contentment with the party platform is due, in part, to his work with the resolutions and platform committee at the convention, he said.

Robbins said he expects no more major problems between himself and the Re-

Cartoonist Turns Children's Classics Into Films

By JEFF SOUTH Avalanche-Journal Staff

When his classmates were poring over their arithmetic lessons, Gene Deitch was using his math book in another way. He'd draw tiny stick figures on the margin of each page, positioned in such fashion that, by flipping the leaves with his thumb, the characters would come alive. That pastime is familiar to any youngster bored with school. But Deitch has made a career of it - and his works now are familiar to millions.

Remember Terrytoons — the fast-moving confrontation of cats and mice? It was Deitch who, as the studio's creative director, won the series its first Academy Award nomination.

Or the "Tom Terrific" cartoons of Captain Kangaroo fame? Deitch was the producer.

The adventures of Popeye, Tom and Jerry, Crazy Cat - Gene Deitch worked on all of them. "You can still see many of these cartoons on television today," he noted.

Chances are you haven't seen what Deitch has been doing the past 10 years, since he got out of the Saturday-morning craze. From a studio in Prague, Czechoslovakia, Deitch has been animating classic children's literature - from ancient fairy tales to the finest of modern storybooks.

His work now isn't geared for mass consumption via TV networks. "They'd want 26 30-minute versions of each story. They'd ruin it," Deitch says.

Though shown occasionally on television, his current films are used mostly in schools, including those in Lubbock. And they are good - good enough for an Oscar, five Oscar nominations and numerous other awards, most recently from the New York Film Critics.

Which is exactly what brought him to Lubbock this week. Deitch has been contracted to animate a story by Barbara Walker, a local author of 17 children's

At a breakfast at Mrs. Walker's home, 3703 66th St., Deitch spoke to Lubbock public school officials about his craft. Books are still the permanent means of storytelling and storage of literature, always at hand for the immediate retrieval of their messages," he says. 'Our aim is to so illuminate each book that a child will find his way back to it.

'Why should we try to make films of picture books? Movies, audio-visual media and especially TV are very powerful forces. The audio-visual flood cannot be dammed, but it might be directed," Deitch adds. "We are trying to provide a channel which flows toward books rather than away from them. Through book-related films, a child sees that books do have a life, that there is movement and sound in them, and participation, too. We try always to leave room for his imagination to contribute.' Deitch's imagination also does a lot of contributing. He is associated with

Weston Woods Films, which provides him the books to animate. Deitch attempts to keep the original illustrator's style, but to add a flair that accentuates

An example is his six-minute film of Ed and Barbara Emberley's book, "Drummer Hoff."

"Hidden among the bright colors of this outwardly lighthearted book are some interesting clues as to its real depth. As the grandly uniformed soldiers strut along, intent on assembling their technological triumph (a cannon), they don't seem to notice the flowers underfoot nor their tiny observers, the birds and insects.

"In our film, I was able to show the soldiers actually stepping on the flowers and shooing away the birds, thus supporting the meaning of the last page of the book and the final shot of the film — nature winning out over the posturings of man and his destructive machines," Deitch said.

"Now, I don't expect that children will ingest all of this as such, but perhaps a flavor will linger. And I do expect that when they pick up the book again maybe because the film has now made it 'famous' for them - they will see some things that might not have registered before.

"My hope is that they will love the book more for having seen our film of it." Deitch is not opposed to the use of violence in cartoons. But he decries the way violence has been exploited on the Saturday-morning shows.

"The kind of violence or implied violence in a classic fairy tale is quite different from the kind of violence on Batman. In a fairy tale, the violence represents a conflict that the hero feels in an effort to find himself. It's a means of achieving maturity - a process with which a child can identify.

"TV-cartoon violence is often so meaningless. Saturday morning television is for demented adults. I don't see what children get out of it.'

Grave Digger Takes Pride In Hand-Hewn Holes

HURRICANE, W.Va. (AP) — Walter J. "Junior" Rose is a proud practitioner of a dying art. He's a professional grave digger.

And what's more, he's a purist. He not only fashions his creations with a master's touch, but he does so with a pick I don't guess I ever will.' and shovel only.

"No back hoes or fancy digging ma-chines for me," the thin, gray-haired man said last week, when interviewed in his tiny, four-room house across the road from Valley View Cemetery. "I've never used anything but a pick and a shovel and

For 30 years, the 58-year-old Putnam

County native has been Valley View's caretaker. When someone dies, relatives call Junior Rose "Oh, once in a while a group of men will pitch in and dig a grave for a friend or relative, but not very often any more," he said. "I've dug 600 or 700 graves in this cemetery alone, not to mention all the ones I've dug in the little surrounding cemeteries. I'd hate to guess just how many graves I've dug in my time.

Rose gets his pay from the funeral directors. When he first began, back in the 1940s, he got $10. Now, the price is weeks will go by. And then, three or four people will call. I've saw him soaking wet with sweat and soaking wet with rain. And I've saw him covered with icicles.

"The only money we really can count on is the $100 a month my husband gets from the people that own the cemetery. That's $93.95 after taxes and they charge us $20 a month rent for this place, which doesn't have an indoor toilet.

But Junior Rose isn't a complainer. He said he likes his work, tending the graves of friends and neighbors. And he doesn't mind living next to the cemetery.

There is one thing that gets him riled. 'That's those danged plastic flowers," he said. "You can't mow over them, so I have to get off the mower a hundred times each time I cut the grass. And they fade and look awful." But all in all, he said he's not sorry he followed his father's footsteps. "He was the caretaker here at the cemetery for 17 years. I use to help him dig the graves when I was a boy. Then, after he died, I took his place. I never had much education and I've always consi-

Mystery Surrounds Moon Worshipers' Retreat

HUDSON, N.H. (AP) - Talk of love, God and family is constant in the ivy-covered house in Hudson, while whispers of brainwashing, kidnapping and prison spread through the community outside.

"There's a mystique that surrounds it," says Police Capt. Kenneth Seddon, describing the house that has been converted into a training center for members of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification

Residents of the town of 15,000 on the Merrimack River are wary of their unusual neighbor because of "the fear of the unknown," says Seddon. "Even I don't know what's going on and, as a cop, that

About a year ago, members of the Boston branch of the church leased the twostory house on Route 102 for a retreat for new members of the controversial religious organization.

Recruits are kept busy during threeand seven-day workshops. Clusters of new and veteran church members move from the living room for lectures, to the lawn for discussion to the volleyball net for vigorous exercise combined with cheers of "We're No. 1."

But some people outside think the workshops are not the religious retreats the church claims. They suspect the incessant action weakens children, making them susceptible to brainwashing so they will believe in the Korean minister's phi-

Most of the departures have been peaceful, except for one which resulted in an assault conviction for a church member who hit a mother retrieving her

"I've talked to approximately 100 young people who have come out of cults and about 90 percent said they could not locked because they secure you through fear. If you are convinced that Moon is the Messiah and you walk out on the Messiah, you walk out on God," says Swope, who last year at his home in Bradford ran the only half-way house in New England for young people who have left new religious movements. Swope says it is not "the bizarre religious beliefs" that bother him. Instead, it is "the mind control, and their procedures of recruitment and maintenance of Bonnie Kamp, whose mother was hit by church member Richard Jones, says her peers at Hudson made her feel guilty about wanting to leave.

She says they told her stories of disasters visited on the families of young people who abandoned the church.

But Seddon says there is nothing police can do even if people are being held cap-tive psychologically. "No one's been able to show people are being held against their will. They may be being mentally restrained, but New Hampshire has no laws for that," he says.

Aidan Barry, director of the Boston branch of the church, rejects criticism of Moon and says people oppose the church because we're trying to do something much more profound than other church-

"We're trying to save the world or to change the tradition of love in the world so people will begin to live for others.'

He claims leaders of other religions try to discredit the church because they are having trouble attracting young members while the Unification Church's popularity wil young people is particularly strong.

"I think they're worried about it because they don't have it themselves. Brainwashing is just a negative word for conversion," says Barry.

OIL FIELD REPORTED

MILAN, Italy (AP) - Montedison, the Italian petrochemical company, said Wednesday it has found an oil field off the southeast coast of Sicily. Reliable sources said the field may be large and of high quality oil.

Workers Tame Wild Gas Well Off Gulf Coast

CAMERON, La. (AP) - Troubleshooters seized control of a wild natural gas well in the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday, packing the hole with heavy mud and then clamping on a valve system.

Clean up work on the fire-blackened, twisted Tenneco Oil Co. platform, standing in 50 feet of water 35 miles southeast of Cameron, began immediately.

A spokesman for Tenneco in Lafayette, La., said the derrick, crane, top deck and sub deck of the platform was a wreck but the basic foundation remained solid.

Dollar damage could reach into the millions, but no specific figure was avail-

The well blew wild last Saturday as drillers were changing the bit. Spewing gas was ignited by a spark a day later. Blowtorch flames turned the steel platform cherry red. Then, as troubleshooters tried to figure out the best course of action, the well abruptly shut itself off on Monday.

Oilmen said such shutoffs are treacherously unpredictable. When it seemed this one would hold troubleshooters went on the blackened hulk of the platform to close down the well.

The platform was set up as a base for drilling 12 wells. When they are completed it will be converted into a production

Eight other wells had been drilled but not brought into production.

Island's Legion Disease Fear Ends

BOSTON (AP) - Seven Martha's Vineyard vacationers feared to have had Legionnaires disease, instead suffered from a rare form of pneumonia, health officials said.

Laboratory studies revealed Tuesday that the six members of the Howard Coe family and a friend were infected with tularemic pneumonia, a disease that usually occurs in animals, while they vacationed on the island in early August. All seven have been reported in good condition, although one group member was seriously ill for a week following the

University Hospital Accredited

University Hospital has achieved the maximum two-year accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH), according to administrator Mel P. Mot.et.

One of the 4.800 accredited hospitals out of the 7,150 in the United States, University has met health care standards set by JCAH and published in the Accreditation Manual for Hospitals, he said.

Hospitals are not legally required to meet these standards. Mottet explained, saying the aim of the JCAH is to help hostheir patients than that required by the governmental licensing process.

The Joint Commission began in 1918 under the auspices of the American College of Surgeons, the American College of Physicians, the American Hospital Association and the American Medical Association. It is a Chicago-based, non-governmental. non-profit organization, including programs for the accreditation of long term facilities, psychiatric facilities,

The broader aspects of U.S.-China relations still have to be resolved, including the question of full diplomatic relaions between the two countries, before there can be serious talk of farm trade

Brown said TDA has sampled pesticides under state law for years. But a current $403,000 federal grant permits the department to expand its pesticide enforcement activities while adhering to EPA regulations. The amount of a 1979 gant has not been announced.

at Texas A&M University for analysis. Under EPA procedures all active ingredients will be analyzed and each product will be checked for cross-contamination of chemicals. In the past, TDA has analyzed only the primary active ingredient due to a lack of funds. "If a violation such as a shortage of acive ingredients or contamination does occur, we will place a stop-sale order on the product in question," Brown said. "The formulators of such a product will be subject to fines and penalties imposed by state and federal law.' Last year, 8.7 percent of products sampled violated some part of state enforcement regulations.

Inspectors will be required to make a complete label review of sampled pesticides. State law required a partial review that included the product's active and inert ingredients. The men will send label information to TDA headquarters in Austin for comparison with the approved registered label.

Inspectors also will check production records and shipping invoices. They may testify in federal court if a violation oc-

This year, China has bought about 2.5 million metric tons of U.S. wheat, the first grain from this country in four years. There had been some sales of cotton and soybean products in the interim.

By comparison, the Soviet Union which has a longterm agreement to buy U.S. wheat and corn-has purchased almost 15 million metric tons for delivery in the 1977-78 year that will end Sept. 30.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., is an enthu-siastic supporter of China trade and wholeheartedly endorses Bergland's trip to Peking. Findley visited China earlier this year and returned filled with optimism about the country as a potential U.S. farm market.

Findley told a reporter that Bergland's trip is very timely since, he said, China is seeking ways to increase its own agricultural production.

They'll need our technology, our breeding stock, our machinery, our seed, Findley said. The more we deal with them, the better off we are in the long term, he added Findley, whose home state of Illinois is the leading U. S. soybean producer, said China is deficient in protein for animal feed, a necessary ingredients for top efficiency in the production of livestock and poultry products. According to Findley and others, if

China can elevate its own livestock sector this could mean a stronger market for U.S. soybeans and grain and on a regular basis

Bergland also recognizes the importance of China if it emerges into the U.S. trade sphere on a grand scale. But he also sees the hurdles ahead.

There are many sensitive factors to be overcome before we can establish solid relations with the People's Republic of China but the signs are most encouraging at this time, Bergland said recently in a speech to western wheat growers.

Barring a sudden, unexpected breakthrough in U.S.-China relations, a willingness on the part of Peking to engage in scientific exchange—with an emphasis on agricultural technology—may by the most import long range item on Bergland's agenda when he visits there.

Underlying this possibility, will be the extent to which the Peking regime is China's labor-intensive agriculture by importing and embracing western ideas and technology.

Those are internal political decisions that have to be made by China's leaders, and no amount of diplomacy by Bergland or anyone else can have any effect unless such decisions are made by Pek-

Wheat Loan, Target Prices Draw Fire

CLOVIS (Special) - Wheat farmers, cLOVIS (Special) — Wheat farmers, already plagued by low prices and an inadequate farm program, now are faced with the prospect of being short-changed again in 1979, New Mexico Farmers Union president Paul Hudson contends.

Hudson's comment came in response to the 1979 wheat loan and target prices announced recently by the Carter administration. The 1979 wheat loan rates ministration. The 1979 wheat loan rates and target prices announced recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture were unchanged from the 1978 program. The loan rate for wheat was pegged at $2.35 per bushel and the target price at 'The adminstration's program completely disregards the continuing increases in production costs and other inflationary costs that farmers are forced to absorb." Hudson charged.

'It is difficult to understand the logic behind that kind of decision," the New Mexico farm leader continued, "Nobody, including the President, would expect wage earners to accept an agreement for a reduction in income. et that is exactly what the new administration proposal amounts to for farm-

Hudson explained that the $2.35 loan rate amounts to just 44 percent of parity while the $3.40 target price comes to only 64 percent of parity. The current full parity price for wheat would be $5.30 per bushel, but as of July 15 the average price paid to farmers was just $2.78-52 percent of parity.

'The administration has given farmers no choice." Hudson continued. "We will have to go back to Congress and lobby for a new farm bill that will at least take into account the inflated cost of production and hopefully go even farther to-

THE BOLLWORM THREAT IS DIMINISHING for most cotton farmers on

Dr. Jim Leser, area extension entomologist at Lubbock, says fields of cotton with tender top growth still are the No. 1 target for bollworm moths to lay their Cotton with open bolls is not an uncorrmon sight, Leser points out, and cotton in many other fields is blooming at the top.

"These crop conditions are good insurance for minimizing bollworm infestations," Leser says. "Most bolls that are worth saving are full grown and safe from bollworm attack."

IN AREAS WHERE HEAVY EGG PRESSURE persists, the entomologist says, treatment still may be needed to protect the boil crop.

While full grown boils usually are safe from damage, he says, the only "truly safe" boil is an open boil.

"Treatment levels based on worm counts probably will need to be adjusted to compensate for crop and weather conditions at this time of year," the entomologist says. "Counts greater than 10 one-fourth inch or smaller worms may be necessary to justify treatment."

Percent egg hatch will increase this month, Leser says, but adds that most of

The so-called "nickel and dime" fields, where the cumulative effect causes all the problem, probably will be the most common type of bollworm infestation from here on out, the entomologist says. The majority of these fields, he says, won't require treatment.

WHEN SEVERAL SIZES OF WORMS are found in a field, a "nickel and dime" egg lay can be expected to have been the cause, Leser says.

"Insecticides are generally ineffective when aimed at the larger worms," he points out, "and this should be taken into account when checking a field such as Higher rates of a pesticide can kill larger worms - but only if the chemical makes contact with the worm, Leser empasizes. He advises producers not to give much weight to medium-sized worms, and even less weight to large worms, when making bollworm counts for control decisions.

"Egg counts should be used only as indicators of what is to come and not as an economic threshold," Leser says. "Eggs have been used too often this season as an indicator of when to spray. Research does not support this kind of treatment level, nor does field experience.

COOLER WEATHER WILL SLOW bollworm activity, Leser points out. Boll-worm larvae frequently remain sluggish until midday before they commence feeding, he says. This, he adds, will prolong their developmental period and minimize damage on a day-to-day basis.

"Low temperatures and clear days will spell the end for most egg-laying activity." Leser says. "But cloudy weather can prolong the flight period of the bollworm moth into the day and increase daily egg deposits. However, egg-laying activity will be minimal during nights when the air temperature is in the low

The beet armyworm threat appears to be nearing the end of its cycle, Leser says. No new egg lay has been reported. Cotton aphids are still heavy in several fields south of Lubbock. Beneficials such as lady beetles, green lacewings, syrphid flies and an undetermined species of aphid parasite have prevented these infestations from reaching economic proportions, Leser says. Live Cattle Futures

Higher On Exchange ward providing a fair and equitable reready to commit itself to upgrading

CHICAGO - Cattle futures ended in the upper end of wide trading ranges, 75 to 5 points higher on 26,303 cars, Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Traders felt caution ahead of today's cattle-on-feed report trimmed gains of as much as 100 points in September in the final hour.

Continued firmness in careass beef which gained one cent, as well as instances of sharply higher cash markets encouraged support, traders said. One cash connected commission house was a buyer throughout the day with fresh local buying noted near the close.

Wholesale beef was unchanged to up one cent at 81 1/2 to 84 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, for all weights. Cash cattle were steady to up $1.50 with the best top $56.50 per hundredweight at Peoria. Omaha's top was $55.75.

Slaughter was 147,000 head. The major terminals expect 12,000 head today. Feeder cattle futures closed up 80 to 5.

January was the strongest with November posting a new contract high. An estimated 3,390 contracts were traded. Floor sources felt upward moving grain futures as well as instances of harply higher cash feeders and light receipts prompted support. Gains in wholesale beef also led to buying, which was predominantly local, traders said. Cash feeder cattle were up $4 to off $2 with the best top $96 per hundredweight at San Antonio. There were 77 deliver-day are expected to be 7,600 head.

Hog futures ended off 20 to 147 points.

Prices ended near daily lows, pressured by the late limit level break in pork belly futures and the sharp declines in cash. Aggressive local and com house selling was noted, with stop loss orders appearing at the lower levels, traders said. Large losses in cash hams and instances of sharply lower cash marselling was also cited as prices approached a technical resistance point basis nearby October and Decemb Wholesale hams were off 1 1/4 to 3 1/2 cents at 88 3/4 to 85 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to off $1 with the best top $49.75 per hundred-weight. Kill was 320,000 head. The six major markets today expect 25,000 head. Pork belly (bacon) futures tumbled the daily 200 limit level across the board be-fore ending there in March and May.

Other contracts closed off 157 to 180.

The market opened lower, but recovered the loss later in the day only to break to the limit level in the final hour. Local liquidation accelerated the break which uncovered sell stops on the scaledown. Sharply lower cash bellies fueled the declines, traders said, with expecta-tions for a continued heavy kill stimulating further offerings.

Wholesale bacon was off 2 to 23/4 cents at 60 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, for all weights.

Supper, Meeting Scheduled Here By Cooperative

The influence and impact of the farm cooperative business on the economy will be discussed at the annual membership meeting of the South Plains Electric Cooperative, Sept. 19 in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Following a 6 p.m. buffet supper, a business meeting will begin at 7 p.m., which will include annual reports and the election of two directors from Districts 4 and 6.

Organized in 1937 and energized with its first line to Cooper Rural High School in 1938, the electrical co-op has grown to a $20 million, member-owned enterprise serving 18,000 consumers.

The South Plains Electric Cooperative Member Services Committee will act as host for the event. Entertainment will be provided for the children.

Record Enrollment Announced

ODESSA (Special) — Final fall semester enrollment figures at Odessa College tabulated Monday, show a record count of 4,174.

Late registration closed late Friday.

The previous all-time high enrollment was set in the fall of 1976, 3,711 students.

This fall's enrollment is a 16 percent increase over last fall and a 12 percent jump over the previous record headcount.

Classes began at OC Aug. 23 and will continue through Dec. 16.

Midland Rate Hike Okayed

By RANDY HICKS

A-J Correspondent

MIDLAND (Special) — The Midland City Council voted Tuesday to accept a consulting team's recommendation that Texas Electric Service Company rates be increased 6.7 percent.

TESCO had requested a 24.4 percent rate hike.

The Midland council had joined with several other cities in the TESCO service area in hiring a consulting team to study the rate request. The team reported it believes a 6.7 percent increase is adequate.

TESCO can appeal the council's decision to the Public Utilities Commission.

The electric company, which is headquartered in Fort Worth and which serves much of West Texas, asked for and received a 7 percent increase last year. Company officials indicate they will seek an additional increase soon.

Additional revenues will be used to finance the company's switch to coal-

Winston Barclay, TESCO district manager, said he did not know how much the 6.7 percent increase would raise average bills.

Brownfield Readies Harvest Fete

BROWNFIELD (Special) — The 1978 Harvest Festival here will begin at 10 a.m. Oct. 14 with a parade downtown.

The parade will go to Coleman Park, where entertainment will begin at noon and continue through the day at the American Legion Memorial Amphitheatre in the park.

The Havest Festival queen, selected from amoung eight candidates, will be crowned at 7:30 p.m. Grand prizes, including a Caribbean trip for two, a 25-inch console color TV, a microwave oven and a deer rifle, also will be given away at the crowning.

The contestants, each sponsored by a Brownfield civic group, are Cynthia Campbell, Kiwanis; Kathy Dodds, Evening Lions; Danette Chambers, Cotton Boosters of Terry County; Teressa Hawkins, Optimist; Leah McBride, Rotary; Cynthia Leavelle, Noon Lions; Suzanne Cooper, Jaycees, and Neisha Knowles, DeMolays.

Tell Vote Canvass Scheduled Today

A-J Correspondent

CHILDRESS — County Commissioners today will canvass votes cast in Tell's special liquor election Saturday. Balloting then resulted in a 37-37 tie on the question of legalizing sale of liquor for off-premises consumption. The votes will be canvassed at 9:30 a.m.

The Tell residents also petitioned the commissioners to dissolve the precinct in an effort to stop the balloting in the community.

County Judge Harper Knight advised the group that the precipct could not

County Judge Harper Knight advised the group that the precinct could not be dissolved because there are more than 70 qualified voters in the area. A precinct can be dissolved only when there are 50 or fewer qualified voters, he said.

FDA Head Defends Small Drug Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy, reiterating his confidence in generic drugs, sharply criticized on Wednesday a report by a major pharmaceutical firm that concluded small drug companies had the worst safety record.

Small companies frequently sell generic versions of costlier name-brand drugs marketed by the big companies. The FDA is preparing a list of equivalent drugs to encourage states and consumers to buy the less expensive products.

Brownsville Schools In Predicament

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Brownsville schools are in dire economic straits because of an influx of students who are born in the border city but are reared in Mexico by their Mexican parents, the head of the district said Wednesday.

Brownsville, a city of 75,000, already has 25,000 students in its schools, 4,500 of whom are legal aliens or U.S. citizen children of Mexican parents, Superintendent Raul A. Besteiro Jr. told the Texas Advisory Commistien to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

Besteiro said the district has counted, through midwives, about 950 births in Brownsville to Mexican mothers during the past year. The mothers then return to Mexico, but can bring their children to Brownsville schools when the children reach school age.

Those children are admitted to the schools as legal U.S. citizens, although they live in Mexico.

Ti.ree other lower Rio Grande Valley school districts — Mission, Pharr-San Juan-Alamo and McAllen — generally refuse to admit such students if their parents do not live in the district, as specified in Texas law.

That policy has been unsuccessfully challenged in federal court by attorneys who claim the U.S. citizen children are being denied their basic constitutional right to a free public education.

The Brownsville school district, Besteiro said, simply doesn't have the tax base to support any more children of aliens. The district's tax rate is higher than any other in the lower Rio Grande Valley and it has so many bonds outstanding that no more can be issued to pay for any new buildings, he added.

Its teacher-to-student ratio of one-to-35 is already higher than state standards. "But even if I had more teachers, I'd have to put them under trees because there are no buildings," he said.

Kennedy said his agency has found "no evidence of widespread differences in quality between brand-name drugs and generic drugs, or between the products of large versus small firms."

In the small percentage of cases where a drug fails to meet the government's standards, Kennedy said, "it is just as likely to be a brand name as a generic drug."

Kennedy's remarks were in a statement that he delivered at a news conference in St. Louis, Mo., at the FDA's National Center for Drug Analysis. The statement was distributed in Washington.

He branded as "superficial and selfserving" a recent analysis by Eli Lilly and Co. of recalls and other drug problems encountered by 23 "research-intensive" firms and their smaller counterparts.

Kennedy charged that Lilly failed to include among the large firms one with a $37 million research budget that had a large number of recalls. "We also have found that Lilly measured, not the volume of the drug being recalled, but only the number of recalls that took place," he said.

A Lilly spokesman in Indianapolis said

A Lilly spokesman in Indianapolis said the firm was preparing its response to Kennedy's charges.

The Lilly study, dated June 1, said the 23 large firms "provide a high proportion of the prescription drug products in the marketplace. When properly weighted to reflect this fact, their products are recalled much less often, and they have far fewer seizures, injunctions and prosecutions and fewer drug product problem reports than 'other' companies."

Lilly claimed firms with comparatively small research budgets showed at least seven times more recalls, 43 times more FDA-initiated court actions, and 1½ times more drug product problem reports.

Parade To Launch Independence Fete

Approximately 60 vehicles, including floats, vans, motorcycles and bicycles, have been entered for Saturday's Mexican Independence Day parade.

However, Raul Sanchez, parade chairman, says he's "hoping to get more." Persons or groups interested in participating in the parade may call KWGO at 745-4148 or KLFB at 765-8114.

Parade participants will assemble at the fairgrounds at 10 a.m. The parade starts at noon and will move along Broadwayn to Avenue O and thence to Aztlan Park.

Two State Witnesses Fail To Identify Herndon

By FRANK PATRICK Avalanche-Journal Staff

FER!

Two former cocktail waitresses testiied Wednesday they saw William Drew Young III being led into a local bar the night he was killed, and that one of the wo men with him was carrying a gun. Both witnesses said Young was herded nto a back office of the Salt River Saloon at 2311 19th St. They indicated they later heard a sound like a gunshot coming from the office, and said they never saw Young alive

But neither Pamela Ann Eggers nor Sherry Ann Lindell, the two witnesses, identified Kenneth Wayne Herndon as one of the persons who went inside the bar office with Young.

Accounts from the two young women highlighted the second day of testimony in Herndon's murder trial, being conducted in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th District Court.

were charged with killing Young, 28, last Christmas Eve. Young's body was found stuffed inside the trunk of his burning auto south of Lubbock about 10 p.m. Dec. 24, 1977.

Prosecutors allege that Young, a former bartender at the Salt River Saloon, was gunned down inside the bar earlier Charged with murder along with Herndon were Tico Lowrance, 27; her husband, Homer V. Lowrance Jr., 37; Jan Payne, 26; Jim Gordon, 42; and Kenneth Owen Jaycon, 32.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowrance and Miss Payne turned state's evidence during an earlier trial in which Jaycon was convicted, and are expected to testify again for

During the earlier trial, the Lowrances said Herndon shot Young inside the office while they were present.

Miss Eggers, 22, said Wednesday she had worked for about two years as a waitress and burlesque dancer in various nightspots operated by Mrs. Lowrance.

On the night in question, she said she was returning to the Salt River Saloon about 7 p.m. and noticed Young sitting in an auto parked outside the club.

The witness said she went in and informed Mrs. Lowrance, who, she indicated, was sitting at a table with Gordon and her husband, that Young was outside. Miss Eggers said Gordon then told two other men Young was outside.

She identified one of the men as Jaycon. She said she did not know the other

According to Miss Eggers, Jaycon and the other man went out a back door and returned shortly thereafter with Young.

"Jaycon had W.D. by the arm and they were leading him toward the front." Miss Eggers said. She said a tall man was walking behind Young and Jaycon.

Once Young was inside, the witness said, Gordon slapped him 'It was either with his backhand or palm -- just once,"

Miss Eggers said she was playing pool during the episode "I heard a 'pow' after they went in there after about 20 minutes, I believe it was," she said. The witness said the report from the office "sounded like a car backfiring.

"You could hear it all over the building." Miss Eggers said she and her companions stood for a few minutes and then started playing pool again. She said that Miss Payne, also a bar employee, eventually came from the office. "She told us we were closing up, to get everybody out," Miss Eggers said.

Darnell asked if Miss Eggers saw a gun during the episode. "I saw a gun in the tall man's hand," she answered.

After that, according to Miss Eggers, Young was herded into the back office. She said Gordon, the Lowrances, Miss Payne, Jaycon and the other man went into the office with Young.

Miss Lindell — who agreed in response to a question from Darnell that she had later moved to her home state of Pennsylvania because she feared for her life — basically corroborated Miss Eggers' accessed.

She said Young looked "stoned" when he was brought into the bar: "He wasn't really with it the way he looked. I never saw him look like that," she said.

According to her, Gordon was shoving Young when the group went toward the

"I heard what sounded like a gunshot," she said, when asked what occurred after

Young was escorted to the back room. Miss Lindell said she could identify nei-ther of the men who brought Young into the club. She said one of the men with Young held a "long gun" behind his Finally, she told Anderson that she did not know what expression was on Young's face.

At one point, after advising her to listen carefully to the question, Anderson asked Miss Eggers if she were not a "common prostitute." The witness said she was

Also Wednesday, Dr. Melvin Golden, a local radiologist, testified that X-rays of Young's body, which was exhumed for autopsy Jan. 23, were "very characteristic of gunshot wounds."

Testimony in the case was to resume at 9 a.m. today

Reese Readying For Annual Open House Saturday

Avalanche-Journal Staff
Aerial spectaculars will thrill the more than 10,000 South Plains visitors expected to throng Reese Air Force Base for the annual open house Saturday.

The Thunderbirds precision flying team will be performing breathtaking maneuvers and the Navy parachute demonstration team will add its aerial skills to the sky show.

Lt. Dennis Wise, a world champion skydiver and holder of a world diving record, will join the Navy team in demonstrating the style and accuracy of parachuting.

Wise recently won his wings at Reese, with graduation delayed a few months due to international competition as an Air Force athlete.

The Reese flight line will be chockful of more military and vintage aircraft than ever before, with about two dozen military and 16 to 25 Confederate Air Force craft plus a number from the Lubbock chapter of the Experimental Aircraft As-

Exhibits from all branches of the service, with an extra number showing the Reese part in teaching men to fly, will be on display near the flight line. Action will include a radio-controlled model airplane demonstration by the SPARKS club.

Putting together a daylong spectacular like the annual open house takes months of spare time for more than two dozen Reese volunteers

Work for the next gets underway as soon as one is over; the request for the Thunderbirds was placed before the 1977 Reese event. This will mark the precision team's first weekend appearance on the South Plains in a number of years. On

IT SAYS HERE - Maj. Dale Liesch, project officer for the Saturday open house at Reese Air Force Base, checks over his list of happenings with Capt. George Porter, left, and Capt. Bruce Schoefer. Porter is coordinating the arrival of aircraft from the Confederate Air Force and Schoefer is handling the appearance of the Thunderbirds. Maj. Dal Liesch, whose regular Reese job is flight management officer, coordinator of aircraft and simulator flying for the 64th Flying Training Wing, started working steadily in the spring as overall project officer.

Also getting their workload early were Capt. Bruce Schoefer, who is coordinator for the Thunderbirds' appearance, and Capt. George Porter, who is working with the Confederate Air Force.

All three, in addition to other duties, are instructor pilots in the T38 Talon, which the Thunderbirds also use.

Liesch, who won his wings at Reese in 1966 "when 50th Street was Lubbock's south limit," flew as the GIB (guy in back) of the F4 Phantom when two pilots were put into the fighter.

The Whittenberg, Wis., native then chalked up 250 hours in the F4 on 100 combat missions in Vietnam. Before returning to Reese he spent five years as an instructor pilot in the T37, the student pilots' first jet, at Vance AFB and four years as a physical education instructor at the Air Force Academy.

Schoefer, who hails from Yardley, Pa., and won his wings at Moody AFB, flew the reconnaisance version of the Phantom in Vietnam, making high speed runs over enemy targets to photograph bomb damage and prospective targets.

At Reese, he coordinates with Fort Worth for air space needed for the T38 segment of flying. For the open house show, he had to arrange Federal Aviation Sunday, the Thunderbirds move over to Cannon AFB at Clovis for Community Appreciation Day.

Administration for the waivers the Thunderbirds will need to perform in addition to coordinating all other team needs.

Porter, who is on the Reese operations staff, flew a propeller-driven plane capable of "carrying smoke cannisters to hide the survivor and ordinanace to go down and protect him" in Vietnam.

Although search and rescue was only a part of his combat role, it had personal connotations - he had been on the re-

He was circling a target, getting set to bomb it, when his engine failed and he bailed out into a night filled with the enemy searching for him.

"Your religious beliefs suddenly be-come very strong," Porter said of the night he hid under a fallen tree and waited for daylight and hoped-for rescue.

"They found my parachute about an hour and a half before I got pulled out."

In combat, his role was mostly support of troops on the ground. At Reese, he has the same role as all other personnel support of the flying training mission.

Frank Mulligan and Marie Walker directed their comments toward the elementary and secondary public school libraries. Immediate needs, they said, include the provision of a full-time professional librarian for every elementary school in Lubbock, additional personnel for expanded programs, equipment for media production and additional funds for materials budgets.

Alison Seidel reviewed the national outlook for libraries, outlining a plan for cooperative sharing of all library resources. Benefits of such a program would include receiving optimum value for the library dollar nationwide.

Sign Up For Independence

When young people sign up for newspaper route work, they are really signing up for independence. The kind of independence that goes with earning your own money, running your own business and dealing with people on a one-to-one basis.

Our carriers are young business men and women. They provide a vital service, handle their own finances and reap a handsome profit from their efforts. What better training to prepare them for the future?

If you are interested in stepping into the business world and declaring your own independence, contact our carrier manager right now. He'll give you all of the important facts about carrier work. Then, if you are still interested, he'll provide the pen and show you where to sign . . . even if your name is John Hancock.

Gurney On Comeback Trail With Victory

By The Associated Press

Seven incumbent governors and three U.S. senators easily turned back nomination challenges on the heaviest primary day of 1978. But in a major upset, acting Gov. Blair Lee was ousted in Maryland.

In Minnesota, businessman Robert E. Short narrowly won nomination for Hubert Humphrey's old Senate seat, while in Florida, former Sen. Edward J. Gurney succeeded in the first round of a Former Maryland Transportation secretary Harry Hughes' victory over Lee in the Democratic primary was the biggest surprise Tuesday as 14 states and the District of Columbia held primaries.

It was seen as a repudiation of suspended Gov. Marvin Mandel, who was forced to step down in favor of Lee after being convicted of mail fraud and racketeering. Former U.S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall had no problem gaining the GOP gubernatorial

In Washington, D.C., City Councilman Marion Barry held a slender 1,000-vote lead in the mayoral primary with incumbent Walter Washington running third behind Sterling Tucker, also a council member. Election officials said the outcome might not be determined until absentee ballots are counted. Art Fletcher, who served in the Ford administration. won he GOP race.

Gurney — who retired from the Senate after being indicted on conspiracy, bribery and perjury charges of which he was later acquitteed - returned to the political scene as he captured the Republican nomination in the House district that first sent him to Washington.

In other Florida races, State Atty Gen. Robert Shevin and state Sen. Robert Gra- face state Sen. Ted Strickland. ham qualified for the Democratic runoff for governor and the former head of the Government Services Administration. Jack Eckerd, won the GOP race.

Short's triumph in Minnesota came at the expense of Rep. Donald Fraser in the sembly plant walked off the job Wednes-Democratic-Farmer-Labor primary. Short will face Republican lawyer David Durenberger in November, with the winner replacing Muriel Humphrey. She was appointed after her husband died but decided not to run for election.

Incumbent Wendell Anderson, a Democrat, won nomination for Minnesota's other Senate seat and will meet Republican Rudy Boschwitz. In the governor's race, another incumbent Democrat, Rudy Perpich won the right to face Republican Rep. Albert Quie.

Two Eastern Democratic governors, New York's Hugh Carey and Connecticut's Ella Grasso, had no trouble defeating their own lieutenant governors -Mary Anne Krupsak and Robert Killian. Carey will meet Assembly Minority Leader Perry Duryea in November, while Mrs. Grasso will face Rep. Ronald

Also in New York, Rep. Fred Richmond won Democratic re-nomination after facing some opposition for his admission that he had solicited sex from a 16-year-old boy.

Besides Anderson, other senators winning nomination fights were Rhode Island's Claiborne Pell and New Hampshire's Thomas McIntyre, both Demo-

Other incumbent governors who won nomination were Martin Schreiber, Wisconsin's Democratic acting governor who will face educator Lee S. Dreyfus; Meldrim Thomson, a New Hampshire conservative who will meet Democrat Hugh Gallen: Bruce Babbitt, an Arizona Democrat who will face conservative Evan Mecham; and Ed Herschler, a Wyoming Democrat who wil oppose Republican John Ostlund.

Governors who had no primary opposition were Richard Snelling, a Vermont Republican, who will face State Rep. Edwin Granai in November, and Richard Lamm, a Colorado Democrat who will

FLOOD'S HAVOC-Heavy rains measuring more than 5 inches brought flash flooding to the northern portions of San Antonio Wednesday night, blocking freeways, stranding dozens of motoristrs and killing at least one person. These cars, which had been abandoned by their drivers, were tossed about by the raging waters. Some areas of the city measured a total of 6 inches of rain. (AP Laserphoto)

Deluge Floods San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A predawn deluge of more than five inches of rain flooded northern portions of the city Wednesday, blocking freeways, stranding dozens of rush-hour motorists and killing at least one person, authorities said.

Fire department officials said Ray Rowe, 61, drowned when his car was submerged at an intersection by more than four feet of water. His body was recovered when the auto was pulled from the water.

Assistant Fire Chief Roger Penrod said Wednesday morning that "between 50-100" rescues of stranded motorists were performed by firefighters, police officers and volunteers.

One city bus, with only the driver inside, was forced off a street by swirling water nearly five feet deep. The driver waded to safety in neck-high water, clinging to a rope dropped to him by a police helicopter.

Rescuers used small boats in some

Busy Loop 410 was covered in some places by water from flooding creeks, stalling cars and further snarling traffic. Numerous cars were covered with water at low-lying intersections.

A thunderstorm began lashing the nation's 10th largest city about 5 a.m.,

Murder Trial Brought To Abrupt End

HOUSTON (AP) - Testimony in the trial of David Roeder, charged with capital murder in connection with the deaths of three persons, ended abruptly Wednesday with defense attorneys declining to call a single witness.

A jury in the court of State District Court Judge Lee Duggan will begin deliberating the case today.

Roeder, 20, is charged in a case involving execution-style slayings of Don Fantich, Georgina Rose and Dr. William Fitzpatrick in January. The bodies were recovered on the Roeder family farm

Roeder, whose statement concerning the case was admitted into evidence, was charged only in the death of Fitzpatrick, apparently an unsuspecting visitor who appeared at the wrong moment when the trio was abducted in Houston.

Also charged in the case are Roberto Avilla, Mark Cass and J.C. "Claude" Wilkerson. They are to be tried separately at a later date.

Roeder's attorneys hoped to persuade Duggan to consider a statement signed by Wilkerson as the first link in a chain that led to Roeder. Duggan refused, however, to consider the issue, having already ruled Roeder's statement into Prosecutors Doug Shaver and Jack Frels presented evidence recovered from Roeder's apartment, pictures of the bodies and Roeder's statement in which he describes the slayings.

Secretary Of Labor, Top Teamster Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) - Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons have held what a union spokesman describes as a

'get-acquainted meeting." However, Labor Department officials seemed reluctant to disclose the meeting, acknowledging only that Marshall was among a group of administration of-ficials who had met with Fitzsimmons, the head of the two million-member Teamsters. The government officials had gone to lengths Monday to conceal that the meeting was taking place.

The Teamsters spokesman, Bernard Henderson, said Fitzsimmons and Marshall exchanged views on inflation. Relations between the union and the government have been strained ever since the Labor Department began in-vestigating some of the Teamsters' scan-dal-ridden pension funds.

businesses along the city's popular Riverwalk about dawn, but flood control measures had returned the river to its banks by mid-morning.

Parts of San Marcos, 50 miles north of San Antonio, were flooded after 2.6 inches of rain fell in less than three hours. High waters from heavy rains also plagued the Lavaca County town of Hallettsville, and residents of nearby Wilson, Gonzales and Karnes counties were also warned to stay off roads as bulging rivers

KORCHNOI (White) WINS Yoga Student Korchnoi

Chalks Up Second Win

U

BAGUIO, Philippines (UPI) - Viktor Korchnoi, pitting yoga against mindbending, won his second game in the world chess championship Wednesday and reduced titlist Anatoly Karpov's advantage to 4-2.

Karpov calmly turned off his time clock and signed his score card on the 60th move, resigning in the face of a strong attack and a hopeless defense The first man to win six games becomes the champion. The challenger's victory, his first in 11 games, capped a comeback that began Sunday and put him back in contention for the $350,000 first prize. It also gave him a major psychological boost in his war of nerves with Karpov.

Just 10 days ago, Korchnoi began yoga lessons with two American gurus of the Indiabased Ananda Marga sect. Both were out on bail on convictions for attempted murder.

The 47-year-old Russian defector said through aides he was able by yoga to "exorcise" the alleged mind-bending powers of a Russian hypnotist from the Karpov Last month, upset because he believed

Don Henry A Red (Raider) In Red Square

AFTER SEVERAL SEASONS of Lubbock Coliseum experience, one could envision the scene: Gerald Myers, seeing an infraction which the ref didn't, ripping off his coat, charging onto the court, and the official - through an interpreter yelling, "Ye're out of the country, Com-

There were a few times a couple of weeks back, when Myers disagreed with the officiating, but that was okay; half way around the world, one tends to be a bit less vocal with protests.

Even in Russia, Myers saw some situations where he differed with officials, but these situations never had the urgency of one, for instance, in the final 30 seconds of an Aggie game.

Myers is now back in his office in the Tech dining hall, following his participation in an international tournament in Russia, but not a single Communist tract or newspaper remains on his desk, just the usual letters to recruits, scheduling folders, while-you-were-out messages and pictures of his family.

But, the experiences remain.

MYERS WENT ON the Russian tour as assistant coach to Bill Vining, coach at Ouachita Baptist College of Arkansas and an NAIA officer. With them were 12 of the top young basketballers in the nation. Only college freshmen and sophomores were taken, as the trip was Olympic oriented and U.S. officials wanted only athletes that would be available for the '80 Olympic games.

The U.S. team finished second to the Russians in the six-team tournament at Vilnius, the capital of Lithuania. The U.S. group split a pair of exhibitions with the Russians before falling in the tournament finals.

"The Lithuanians don't like the Russians," said Myers. "The place where we played would only seat about 5,000, but it was filled every night. But, when we played the Russians, if there was a (refs') call which the fans didn't like, one which favored the Russians, they'd whistle and jeer. And, as soon as we got the ball, they'd start cheering.

"Finally, one of the Russian coaches asked me, 'In your country, do they cheer for the other team?' I told him, 'Not

THE HOTEL ACCOMODATIONS in Vilnius, a city of about 400,000, weren't the best, admitted Myers, "but everywhere we went, we were treated well. Seemed like they went out of their way to take care of us, even more than the others (Lithuanian, Czech, and Mexican

"If the food didn't suit the players, they'd get something else, or if one of the guys asked for more meat, they'd get it. But, the Lithuanians don't like the Russians. One night, some Lithuanians knocked down one of the Russian players, before the rest of the Russian team could reach him,"

The U.S. group went through Moscow both on their way and returning from Vil-

"It took a while before it dawned on me," Myers said, "but when you land there (Moscow), you're isolated from the rest of the terminal until they check your baggage and passports. We had this room all to ourselves, with all this Communist literature laying around everywhere. Then, later, it dawned on me: Every one of the pamphlets and magazines and newspapers was in English, as if placed there strictly for us."

MANAGING A GROUP of the top players in the nation is not so much coaching as getting them to play together, said Myers.

"I think that Bill did an excellent job of that. Each one of these guys (including North Carolina's Mike O'Koren, Michigan State's Earvin Johnson, Kansas' Darnell Valentine, Duke's Gene Banks) is one of the top players on his team, so in a tight situation, he wants the ball.

We had a few cases where they would try to hold onto it, take the shot themselves, not give it up. But, fitting the personalities together was the big thing for us. I don't think there was any problem for him, being from a small school, in getting their attention or respect."

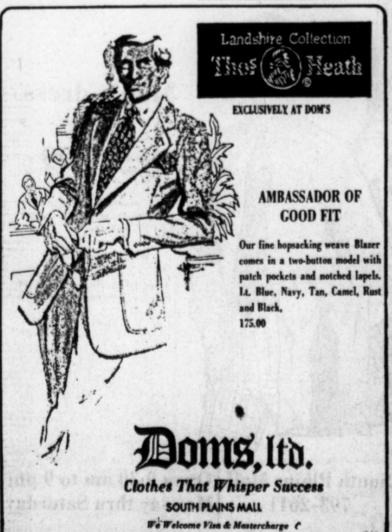

The Russians had two teams in the to the ones which played in the last Olympics. The Czechoslovakian team had several young players, one of which was of college age. A prospect.

"Yeah, I checked on how I could get him in (Tech), but they told me there was no way to get him out of his country. He was good enough to play, and I tried"

Tonight, however both the Estacado Matadors and the Lubbock High Westerners hope to give their respective coaches something to talk about when they battle in a nondistrict game at Lo-wrey Field. Kickoff is slated for 7:30

Both teams will enter the contest without the services of key players.
"We're suffering from a lot of rib bruises," said Kelley. "That's the type of injury you suffer when your players lay back." The only Matador player that will miss the contest is wingback James Rose. Rose (172, Jr) has a shoulder separation. "We have a lot more injuries," said Kelley. "But the rest of our kids will play. "What we're going to do is play two-platoon. That way those who have played both ways for us in the past we'll get some rest at least half the game .'

The Estacado fatalities are only a scrape compared to the casualties the Westerners' suffered.

Lubbock High fullback Bobby Mitchell (195, Sr), who led the Westerner rushing attack last season with 499 yards on 99 carries dislocated his ankle, and not only will miss the Matador contest but four more games as well.

Asked if the loss of Mitchell would force Lubbock High to change its offen-sive strategy, Talbot smiled and said, "No, we don't know that many plays as it

Mitchell is only the beginning of the Westerners' injury problems.

End Russell Stabler (150, Sr) will miss the tilt with a knee injury, while guard Jamie Greene (160, Sr) will be out of action with a strained back.

Substituting for Stabler will be David Sykes (155, Sr) and filling in for Greene will be Martin Garcia (153, Jr).

The Westerners' injury situation has affected the Matador game plan. "Lubbock High likes to option the football," said Kelley. "But with Mitchell not in there we feel that the key will be stopping the quarterback Ricky Moreno.' Moreno led the rushing attack for Lubbock High against Borger. The 160-pound senior signal caller scampered for 60 vards on 12 carries. Talbot was more diversified about stopping Estacado.

"They're quick (Estacado) and this kid Turner (tight end Dewey), throwing to him is like throwing the ball into a lake. said Talbot. "Turner is big and quick and

American Society, Politics

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Muhammad Ali probably mirrors the society in which he lives more than any other athlete in history

Sure, Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey served as symbols of the Roaring Twenties, but they didn't reflect their age as Ali has his, simply because Ali's career has far exceeded the bounds of sport. He is a socio-political symbol every bit as much as he is a sports figure.

Ali's ascendancy to the greatest single title in sports came in an atmosphere of active racial unrest. He won the title on Feb. 25, just 22 days after blacks had boycotted New York schools to protest de facto segregation and a day after police used dogs to quell three days of racial demonstrations in Princess Anne County, Md.

It was that year that Ali became a hate-love symbol with the general public. The next seven years were stormy ones, but they laid the foundation for the myth and reality of one of the best-known personalities of his generation.

Here is a look back at those years.

May 8 - United States sends 242 warplanes to bomb North Vietnam in one of heaviest air strikes of war.

May 25 — Ali knocks out Liston in first round at Lewiston, Maine. The fight, which raises cries of "fix" ended up in the little Maine community because no other city wants it because of Ali's Black Muslim connection. Adding to the furor is the fact that Ali has failed intelligence test for military service.

Feb. 9 — The Senate unanimously approves $4.8 billion for Vietnam war costs.

Feb. 10 - Draft Board tells Ali he's acceptable for military duty now that Army has lowered standards on intel-

Feb 12 - More than 10,000 people gather in Atlanta to hear Secretary of State Dean Rusk speak at a rally called "Affirmation, Viet Nam.

May 12 - Ali asks local board to classify him as conscientious objector, but case is referred to Kentucky State Appeals Board. Chairman of local board says Ali filed two appeals of his 1-A classification and both were reject-

May 14 - Nearly 400,000 college students take draft deferment tests at 1,200 campuses throughout the nation amid scattered picketing and protests.

Aug. 14 - Chicago police battle crowds of whites in two sections of city after marches protesting discrimination in all-white neighborhoods.

Aug. 23 - Ali's attorney says he'll appeal to local draft board on grounds he is Black Muslim minister.

Aug. 26 - Planned march into Cicero, Ill., is called off by civil rights leaders following an agreement with Chicago city, church and business leaders to promote open

Jan. 10 - Ali loses bid to be classified as conscientious objector as appeal is turned down by Kentucky State Board of Appeals.

Jan. 12 - Request for draft exemption as Black Muslim minister rejected, according to draft board spokes-

March 22 - Ali knocks out Zora Folley in seven rounds in Madison Square Garden in what is to be his last fight for 31/2 years.

March 22 - A federal court orders the Alabama State Board of Education to begin desegregation of all public schools in the state by the fall of 1967.

April 15 - Hundreds of thousands of demonstrators march into New York City and San Francisco in twin rallies calling for an end to the Vietnam War.

April 28 - Ali refuses to be inducted in Army in Houston, saying "I ain't got no quarrel with them Viet Congs." June 20 - Ali is convicted of draft evasion, fined $10.-000 and sentenced to five years in prison; appeal pending. June 1 - U.S. losses in Vietnam are announced at 2,929 killed and wounded, a record for a single week. June 13 - Thurgood Marshall is named by President Johnson to be the first black Supreme Court justice in the nation's history.

June 22 - U.S. Supreme Court declines to give Ali permission to go to Canada to fight heavyweight champion Joe Frazier.

Sept. 14 - Ali is granted right to fight in New York State by a federal judge.

Oct. 14 - President Nixon's week-old cease-fire proposal for Indochina is formally rejected by North Vietnam; a statement by its foreign ministry says the Nixon proposal did not "at all contribute to the peaceful settlement of the Indochinese problems."

Dec. 7 - Ali knocks out Oscar Bonavena in the 15th round at Madison Square Garden to pave way for a title shot against Frazier. Commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars calls the scheduling of the fight on Pearl Harbor Day an insult.

March 8 - Ali is knocked down in 15th round and outpointed by Frazier in Madison Square Garden.

March 8 - Capt. Ernest L. Medina, as commander of an infantry company accused of over-running the hamlet of My Lai 4 and killing at least 100 South Vietnamese civilians, is ordered to stand court martial on charges of premediated murder and assault with a deadly weapon. June 28 - Ali is cleared by U.S. Supreme Court in 8-0. vote of charge of refusing induction into Army

On March 31, 1973, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong members of the Four-Party Joint Military Commission leave Saigon charging that the United States and South Vietnam had "systematically and very seriously sabotaged" major provisions of the Paris peace agreement. On the same day Ali has his jaw broken and loses a 12round decision to Ken Norton at San Diego. It might be the end of Ali's boxing career. But Ali came back to regain the title by knocking out George Foreman in the eighth round Oct. 30, 1974, at Kinshasa, Zaire. He lost it again when he was outpointed by Leon Spinks last Feb. 15 at Las Vegas.

Friday night. Ali will try to become the first man to win the championship three times when he fights Spinks at New Orleans. Vietnam is trying to improve diplomatic relations with the United States and is seeking U.S. aid.

Paterno Seeks First Win Over Hayes

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) - Penn State, expected to dazzle the football world this year with an explosive offense, just hasn't been impressive when it comes to getting a football across a goal

The Nittany Lions have scored only three touchdowns in their first two starts, relying on a solid defense and the golden toe of Matt Bahr to lift them to victories over Temple (10-7) and Rutgers (26-10).

CLEVELAND (AP) - The Cleveland Browns have signed free agent offensive guard Greg Fairchild, a three-year veteran from the Cincinnati Bengals, a spokesman for the National Football League team announced. Fairchild, 6-foot-4, 257 pounds, can also play tackle and center, the Browns said.

LA Files Lawsuit Against Rams, NFL

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Los Angeles Coliseum, losing its major tenant when the Rams move to Anaheim in 1980, filed an anti-trust suit Wednesday against the National Football League.

The federal court action attacks the legality of the NFL rule that prohibits teams from locating within 75 miles of an established franchise. The suit claims the 75-mile rule violates the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

Presently, the Coliseum has no firm bidder to replace the Rams, but it has courted n President William Robertson said at a news confer ence that local officials intend to press the matter "to a successful completion.

The Rams have a contract with the Coliseum through the 1979 NFL season and have announced plans to move 35 miles south to Anaheim in Orange County after that. "We view the actions of the NFL and its commissioner as totally unrealistic in terms factual population characteristics of Los Angeles and Oranges counties," said Robertson. Los Angeles County has a population of about 7 million and adjacent Orange County has a population of 1.8 million Robertson said the current NFL rule, which requires unanimous approval of all members before a team can be within 75 miles of another, would prevent Los Angeles County from obtaining a professional football franchise after the Rams move south. "The NFL's rigid adherence to unrealistic rules, in the face of the fact that their own surveys have told them there is sufficient population to support two teams, is surely evidence of their disregard for public needs," Robertson said. He added his belief that the NFL is vulnerable under the anti-trust laws. While he conceded that it looks fairly certain the Rams will move, Robertson said the Coliseum commissioners are "not closing their doors to them." The Rams and the City of Anaheim have announced agreement on the move, but contracts have not yet been signed. A move to make improvements in the 50-year-old Coliseum is underway but additional seating, proposed earlier by Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom, would probably not be possible until after 1984 if Los Angeles stages the Olympic Games that year. The running track would be eliminated under the proposed changes. Rosenbloom has said he personally would not oppose another team locating in Los Angeles, but Coliseum officials have expressed the fear that some other owner might vote an objection and thus nullify any plan to bring another team to the stadium. Robertson commented, "There are hundreds of people and businesses who depend for their livelihood on the Rams' games at the Coliseum. Not only will this affect hotels, restaurants, parking lot attendants and others who work at the Coliseum, but the closing down of any business has a ripple-effect throughout the whole community. This season the Rams play two preseason and eight regular season games at the Coliseum, paying a $500,000 rental.

Montreal Offical Upset With Engineering Firm

MONTREAL (AP) - A former city of Montreal engineer says he realized in 1974 that a consulting engineering firm that was drawing up plans for the Olympic stadium 'understood nothing" about building the structure.

Claude Phaneuf told the Quebec government inquiry into the cost of the 1976 Olympics Wednesday that representatives of the Montreal firm, Regis Trudeau et Associes, proposed a construction method requiring equipment that did not exist.

The company was among a number of firms raided two weeks ago by Quebec provincial police who said they were investigating alleged transactions between Olympic contractors and Gerard Niding, chairman of the City of Montreal executive commit-

Phaneuf, who now is in private practice, said three representatives of the firm were called to his office one Sunday afternoon in January, 1974, to explain delays in the production of stadium plans they had been working on since June, 1973.

Phaneuf, testifying for the second day, said he asked the firm's representatives to explain how the massive 40-ton cement blocks used in the stadium's construction weye to be put into place.

They suggested that large cranes on rails be used to install the blocks, he said. But the huge blocks would have to be moved several hundred feet and then installed as the huge blocks would have to be moved several hundred feet and then installed as high as 150 to 200 feet off the ground.

"It was then that I saw they understood nothing," Phaneuf said. "When I said cranes did not exist that could perform such a feat, they suggested placing the crane between sections of the stadium and building two sections at a time."

The 70,000-seat stadium, the main sports facility in the $850.6 million east-end Olympic Park, is built with massive concrete ribs that extend from the outside edge of the stadium and join an open circular ring high above the stadium floor.

Quebec Superior Court Justice Alert Malouf is chairman of the commission investigating how the cost of the Montreal Games rocketed from an original estimate of $120.5 million in 1969 to a final cost of $1.27 billion.

Phaneuf was responsible for the planning of facilities at a key pre-construction period in 1971 and 1972 and became superintendent of the Olympic Park division of the city's public works department in March, 1973, to direct Games construction.

a few minor things he'll have to discuss with Dennis Barry, an Owl starting defensive end from Sealy-like when to throw up.

"Some players get so excited they'll throw up before a game but Dennis is such a competitor he was still throwing up at halftime," Alborn said of the intense sophomore. "He's one of the most dedicated players on our team. Everything he does is full speed."

No one had to tell the Iowa State Cyclones Barry was a competitor. Barry personally stopped three scoring thrusts by the 20th ranked Cyclones as the Owls almost pulled off a major upset before losing 23-19.

For his work. Barry earns The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week honor.

'I don't think we surprised ourselves but we might have surprised some other people." Barry said of the Owls' opening game showing after losing their last 10 games in a row in 1977. "We're more excited and not making as many mis-

Why all the excitement about playing four consecutive nationally ranked teams to start the season (Iowa State, No. 19, Texas, No. 7, Oklahoma, No. 3, Lousiana State, No. 13.)?

'Coach Alborn is a fiery type coach." Barry said. "He talks to all the players, not just a few and he just gets you wanting to play. He knows all the players personally and he's not set apart like coaches at some schools.

"Last year, we didn't seem to get up emotionally for any game except the Aggies. Last Saturday, we played like we did against the Aggies.

Barry's most obvious big play came in the second quarter after Iowa State had driven to the Rice 25. Barry charged in and tackled Cyclone quarterback Walter Grant for a loss on fourth down.

Barry also had two other fumble recoveries that brunted Iowa State scoring

"They were trying to go outside and I just cut back inside the tackle and grabbed the quarterback." Barry said. "I didn't want to turn him loose." Barry says he thinks the Owls will have a similarly emotional effort against the seventh ranked Longhorns this week. "There used to be a rivalry between the offense and defense," he said. "But this year we are all pulling together. When something goes wrong nobody starts

New Faces Abound Among NBA Camps

NEW YORK (AP) - The Marvin Webster case is just one of seven free agent signings which took place this summer for which compensation has yet to be determined, even though the 22 National Basketball Association teams open their preseason training camps this week-

The New York Knicks' signing of Webster, however, is the only one of the seven in which NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien has been called in O'Brien has given the Knicks and Seattle SuperSonics until Friday to reach agreement between them, or else he will make the decision.

In the other six cases, the clubs involved are still trying to settle the issue

A total of 12 players have switched teams after becoming free agents at the completion of last season. In one instance, the Knicks' signing of guard Mike Glenn, no compensation was required because of a special clause in Glenn's contract with San Diego (then Buffaio).

Of the four others cases that have been closed, three were settled by the teams. Atlanta sent a draft choice and cash to Indiana after signing forward Dan Roundfield. Indiana sent a draft choice to Boston for signing guard Kevin Stacom and Los Angeles agreed to send "future considerations" to Chicago for signing forward Derrek Dickey.

O'Brien had to step in after the Golden State Warriors and Houston Rockets could not reach agreement following the Rockets' signing of star forward Rick

O'Brien then gave Golden State a choice of guard John Lucas and $100,000 or a first-round draft choice and $350,000. The Warriors took Lucas, making this the first compensation case decided by O'Brien in which a starting player was ordered to change teams

The Webster case is likely to be the second, since chances of the two teams reached an agreement on their own are very slim. The Knicks would love to lose only cash and draft choices, but Seattle has demanded at least one front-line player as compensation for the loss of Webster, the 7-foot-1 shot-blocking center who helped the Sonics to the playoff finals last spring.

One of the other unresolved cases has lasted more than three months. The Indiana Pacers signed Milwaukee's top reserve forward, Alex English, back on

"Looking at the players they have, we're pretty sure we would not be able to get the one or two we want," said Milwaukee executive John Steinmiller. Right now we're thinking in terms of cash and draft choices, so there's no immediate hurry to get it settled. We have no plans to submit it to the commission-

The other unresolved cases are Boston's signing of Houston center Kevin Kunnert and Washington center Joe Pace. Denver's signing of New Jersey center Kim Hughes and Boston center

Quarterback Rick Leach of Michigan University also plays baseball and is an all-Big Ten outfielder

Banner Gone: But Not Steel Curtain

By The Associated Press

A familiar banner has been conspicuous by its absence at Three Rivers Stadium during Steeler games this year.

The black-and-gold "Steel Curtain" banner with the picture of the front four no longer hangs from the end zone stands. It became obsolete when Ernie Holmes was traded away this spring.

Three years ago, the front four were on the cover of Time magazine. The question entering this season was whether they would be as obsolete as the banner.

Of the three remaining original members, L.C. Greenwood and Joe Green are 32-year old, and Dwight White is 29. But if the start of this season is any indication, the ravages of age haven't caught up back Jim Zorn in check last weekend. And both sounded the same as they reviewed the difference or lack of difference between last season and this one. Limited to 32 sacks last year, the Steelers have seven in just two games and appear to be putting more pressure on the quart-

Although they appear to be playing better this year, Greenwood and White don't concede that point. That apparently would make it look as if they didn't play that well last year, which ended in six

They feel their performances must be judged in the context of how the entire team is playing.

"I don't think it was a problem last year. You guys made it a bigger problem when you said we were getting old. There were a whole lot of other things happening at the same time," Greenwood said.

Greenwood was sidelined for five games last year after being hit with a knee injury in the eighth game. White says the Steelers are stronger

this year up front because "We not only have a lot of people, we have a lot of good

Noting the "coaches have done their homework," he feels the Steelers have taken away the first-down pass that hurt them last year. He also said better field position and punting helps the defense.
White scoffs at the suggestion that age is a problem, "It's a natural reaction to people to say we're four years older," he

"But people have been yelling for five years about how old Jim Marshall, Carl Eller and Alan Page are. The bottom line is how you're doing your job. I looked at them Monday night and they were still doing it."

Raiders Polish Up For Arizona Contest

Executive Sports Editor

Rex Dockery took off his cap, ran his hand through his hair and replaced his cap, pulling the bill down a bit farther over his eyes.

"Get back in there. Hurry back, hurry back. Run it again," the Texas Tech coach barked out.

The gathering of red-and white-jerseyed athletes returned to their respective positions. And the play began again. This time, the coach was better pleased. And told his troops so.

It was the latter stages of an afternoon of contact, scrimmaging. And, there is more on schedule for the rest of the week, as the Raiders try to erase the mistakes from last Saturday's 17-9 loss to Southern Cal. The heavy work remains, since Tech doesn't have a game this week, an open date preceeding the Sept. 23.

For the last part, however, the scrimmaging was among the scholarship freshmen and scout teamers.

We just wanted them and the ones that didn't play that much at Southern Cal to get some work," said Dockery. "Wes Hightower (200-pound runningback from Dallas Bishop Dunne) did a pretty good job today. Another freshman, Phil Weatherall of Greenville, participated in the scrimmage after having been out for a couple of weeks with influenza. It was his first day of heavy contact. The regulars, however, spent part of their time working on mistakes in kicking game. Although Tech averaged 45.8 yards per punt, and freshman Maury Buford emerged from the first game as the Southwest Conference's leading punter, there were areas of concern for Dockery.

We made a lot of mistakes, especially on our coverage. Three punts rolled... little things. We gave up 40 yards, and that's a drive. That's the difference in starting on the 3 and the 45.

"We needed some basic fundamental work, too," said Dockery, and the Raiders worked on passing, and the pass rush. USC gained 215 yards passing against the Raiders last Saturday.

With the open date, Dockery indicated that he planned two more days of contact work this week, before starting the polishing work for Arizona.

CINCINNATI (AP) - In less than a year, Bob Trumpy has gone from tight end to full-time broadcaster and he welcomes the criticism which has accompanied his change in status.

"I have been coached since I was 13," said Trumpy, who was the tight end for the Cincinnati Bengals until he retired at the end of last football season. "I want to

"Things don't normally come that easy." he admitted. 'I do sports a year and a half on radio and four games on local TV and I get a network show. You really can't blame me for being surprised and slightly apprehensive.

"I am a tight end, tight ends don't get these. Quarterbacks get them, along with the pantyhose commercials.

But idealists tell us that the real purpose of scholastic sports is the joy of competition, the character-building byproducts of 28-sweeps, trap blocks, looping tackles and down-and-outs.

"It's the kind of thing that causes you to lose sleep at night," Holtz said. "You lay awake wondering what if they do this or what if they do that. It's sort of like chasing ghosts.

ety of offenses in the past. -Arkansas did not get a film of the Commodores' spring game.

-The game Saturday night between Vanderbilt and the second-ranked Razorbacks will be the season opener for both

"We're really not sure ourselves," Pancoast said. "We'll kind of feel our way around and see what we can do best."

"They've run everything in the world known to man," Holtz said. "Missing a spring game is not that big of a problem es have an established theory." Pancoast calls Arkansas a complete

In addition, he says, Vanderbilt plays a smorgasbord defense.

Holtz says the Razorbacks have tried to prepare for everything. He is worried that they won't be well prepared for anything in particular.

"It's kind of like guerrilla warfare," Holtz said. "There's no way in the world you can adequately prepare.'

He is concerned that his offensive line -one of the few Razorback question marks at this point-will become confused by a variety of defenses.

"If the left guard reads it as one defense and the left tackle reads it as another, then we miss an assignment and turn someone loose," he said.

Bears Named Slight Favorites Over Dooley's 'Junkyard Dogs' ATHENS, Ga. ((UPI) - The Georgia will be included among Baylor's starting

Bulldogs, coming off their first losing season in 14 years with a revamped offense and a rebuilt defense, are slight underdo, s for Saturday's opening game against the burly and seasoned Baylor

The Bears junior-dominated offensive line averages 250 pounds from tackle to tackle with 263-pound Ronnie Lee billed as the best blocking tight end in college football this year. Their slightly smaller defensive front averages 240.

"I really think this is the best team I've had in my seven years at Baylor." said Bears coach Grant Teaff. "We have outstanding people in every position and have a good blend of experience and young players.'

Georgia and Baylor were both 5-6 last season. But Georgia lost most of its defensive starters plus ace running back Kevin McLee while only two sophomores 22 Saturday.

"We are especially concerned about our defense for the start of the season,' said Georgia coach Vince Dooley, "We have lost all of the original members of the 'Junkyard Dogs' and a lot of people we'll be starting are there only because we don't have the type of people we usually have Saturday's starting time was changed from 12:30 p.m. cdt to 12:50 p.m. cdt because it is being regionally televised. Classes don't start at Georgia until Sept. 22 and that is expected to hold the crowd down to about 45,000.

Georgia switched from the veer to the power-I last spring in an effort to reduce the rash of fumbles that plagued the 1977 Bulldogs. Junior Jeff Pyburn, who missed the last two and a half games with an injury, is back at quarterback. Georgia's running attack will be keyed around senior Willie McClendon who gained 705 yards last season when McLee gained

'This will be a mirror game for the two teams," said Teaff, "It is an unusual type of opening game. Usually it is tough to prepare or an opener because you don't know what to expect from your opponent. That was Buffone's reaction following his heroics in a 16-13 victory Sunday over the San Francisco 49ers. Buffone, The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week in the National Football League, intercepted two passes, including one midway in the final quarter which started Chicago on the eay to its winning touchdown. He grabbed it at the Bears' 42, ran to midfield, then lateraled to Virgil Livers, who carried to the San Francisco 35-had his string of 142 consecutive NFL games snapped when he ruptured his Achilles tendon on the artificial turf.

"That field nearly ended my career," he said, "so it owed me something. Buffone is bitter about football being played on artificial surfaces. "Football was made to be played on grass," he said. "I know they say there are no more injuries on artificial turf than on grass, but it takes longer to recuperate from injuries and the constant pounding hurts more.

"I guess I'm so slow that I just like to play in the mud," he said. "Grass also slows down those speedball backs. Sometimes they come bounding off the artificial turf like rockets and it makes them that much harder to stop. Buffone considers his best year the one in which he had four interceptions "But I just can't remember which year it was,

At age 34, Buffone admits he has become big-play conscious. "At first all you want to do is break up a play and knock the pass down. Then you take it one step further and want to intercept. And then another step further, you want to lateral it off to a faster man when you intercept.

"I'm not noted for interceptions. But the next thing I want is three interceptions in one game."

Will Lubbock High also play two-platoon football because of injuries?

"No," said Talbot. "Because we have a lot of injuries we plan on playing our kids both ways. Our belief is that it will strengthen them and help us keep injury free on down the road."

If the Matadors don't look like the same team that lined up against Plainview, there's a good reason. It won't be Because of injuries and because Plainview embarrassed the Matadors 40-6 in the opener, Kelley has made quite a few Robert Humphrey (160, Sr) will move from tailback to wingback, Anthony

Sanders (188, Sr) will replace Stacy Burrell (186, Jr) at fullback. On defense, Steve McGraw switch (159, Jr) will from middle linebacker into the line, which will have another new look as Todd Parsons (165, Sr) will take over for Mike Esquivel (167, Sr) at left end. The defensive backfield will also undergo a change as Mtchell Atkins (148, Sr) will replace Turner at strong safety and Preston Davis (143, Jr) will be relieved of his left cornerback chores because of a knee injury. Sophomore Jerry Gray (155) has been called up from the junior varsity to fill in.

Kelley admits that he hasn't felt comfortable since the Plainview game.

"You know it's strange," said the Matador coach. "We've had more people out for our booster's club meeting this week than at any time in the past. But no one asked a question or said a word about the game. That doesn't worry me. I'll start worrying when the administration stops talking to me."

So, as the kickoff approaches both coaches are puzzled about their teams and really don't know what to say. So, let's just leave at that.

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Broderick Perkins' two-run double and Fernando Gonzalez' run-scoring triple keyed a four-run sixth inning as the San Diego Padres snapped the Cincinnati Reds' four-game winning streak 6-2.

The Padres sent nine men to the plate and collected five hits and a walk off Reds reliever Manny Sarmient, 9-7, to give Bob Owchinko, 9-12, his first victory since August 2.

PIRATES 7, CARDS 1 Three-run homers by Bill Robinson and Willie Stargell powered the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

RANGERS 6, ANGELS 4

Toby Harrah crashed his second tworun homer of the game in the bottom of the ninth inning night to give the Texas

batters, but leading off the seventh, Greg Rangers a 6-4 victory over the slumping California Angels.

Harrah, who had hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning off Angel starter Chris Knapp, smacked a 1-2 pitch from reliever Dave LaRoche over the left-field wall to score Bump Wills, who had singled ahead of him.

BREWERS 7, ORIOLES 5 Sal Bando belted his 17th homer in the first inning and singled home two runs in a five-run Milwaukee second, and the Brewers held on to defeat the Baltimore Orioles 7-5 night.

The victory moved Milwaukee within four games of first-place New York in the American League East. The Yankees took over the top spot with a 7-3 victory over Detroit while Boston was beaten 2-1 by Cleveland.

EXPOS 4, METS 3

Gary Carter hit a two-run homer and rookie Scott Sanderson and Mike Garman combined on an eight-hitter to help the Montreal Expos to a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets.

Sanderson, 2-2, allowed all eight New York hits, striking out eight and issuing only one walk before getting relief help from Garman with one out in the ninth. Mets loser Nino Espinosa, 10-14, suffered his first defeat this season against Montreal after three victories.

The weapons include 50-caliber machine guns and many are of U.S. manufacture. Diplomatic officials here say Somoza's own 7,500-man national guard is probably the biggest source of the guns taken from fallen guardsmen, seized from garrisons overrun by rebels, or surrendered by deserters.

These observers speculate, however, that the weapons also could be coming

Just as unclear is what the Sandinistas would do with Nicaragua if they managed to topple Somoza.

Somoza claims communist Cuba is behind the current unrest, but the Marxistoriented guerrillas recently have been attracting youths of various political and social colorations.

If the Cubans are actively supporting the Sandinistas, they have been careful not to supply them any Soviet-bloc weapons. Some political observers say that the appearance of such weapons could trigger a local backlash that communist elements of the Sandinistas are not pre-

The Sandinistas are known to have found a steady source of weapons in the national guard. Since last October they have been attacking guard outposts, overrunning several and taking weapons. The Sandinistas also have urged guardsmen to desert with their weapons day, as rebels held large parts of the city, found a belt-fed 50-caliber machine gun mounted on a flatbed truck. The gun was manned by a masked youth who said he brought it with him when he deserted the guard.

Reporters saw and heard the rebels firing other automatic weapons in Masaya and Leon, scene of heavy fighting since last weekend. The national guard later confirmed the rebels had automatic weapons.

The situation was a drastic change from the recent disorders in Matagalpa, Jinotepe and Diriamba, where youths battled troops with mostly small-caliber handguns and black powder bombs.

One source said some automatic weapons were brought to Masava last weekend by Sandinistas who distributed them to eager youths, then left after the fighting had begun.

Another witness said the same thing - Clandestine arms markets outside had occurred in the Centro America neighborhood of Managua.

U.S. Backs Nicaraguan Mediation Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States lent its support Wednesday to a Venezuela-Costa Rica proposal that Organization of American States foreign ministers mediate the deteriorating political situation in Nicaragua.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the reported attack in Costa Rica by Nicaraguan planes "illustrates exactly why Nicaragua's internal turmoil is of such concern to its neighbors and to this hemisphere generally.

Carter said a meeting of foreign ministers is justified under the OAS charter, which states that such consultations are to be held when "problems of an urgent nature and of common interest to the American states" arise. The spokesman said he had no precise information on casualties from Tuesday's incursion into Costa Rican territory. Hours after the attack, Costa Rica Ambassador Jose Rafael Echeverria told an OAS political council meeting that "urgent application" of OAS peacekeeping mechanisms is required. Nicaragua's Ambassador Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa said any cross-border incursion was a "purely involuntary act," but he accused Costa Rica of giving re-

Diplomatic sources said the proposal most likely will be approved by a comfortable majority.

Carter said it would be an oversimplication to characterize the strife in Nicaragua as a struggle between a conservative government and leftist guerrillas.

He noted that the movement in opposi tion to President Anastasio Somoza in cludes not only Sandinist guerrillas, but business groups, elements of the Catholic Church and a number of political parties. Asked directly if the United States was calling for Somoza's resignation to facilitate a political solution, Carter said, "No. The United States is not in the business of calling for the downfall or the ouster

Assault Verdict Given

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) - A white man who killed a black man because the black brought him the wrong brand of cigarettes was sentenced Wednesday to pay a fine of $115 or serve 50 days in jail.

Hermans L. Louw, 27, was convicted on a charge of assault.

According to testimony in a Pretoria court, Louw and John Mokwena worked for a car rental ageny.

Louw told Mokwena to go buy him a pack of cigarettes and Mokwena returned with the wrong brand, witnesses said. That made Louw angry and he hit Mokwena, the court was told,

Another employee of the firm, Mrs. J.P. de Bruto, said Louw kicked Mokwena after he was down. Louw said that was not true.

Were you cross?" asked Magistrate W.J. Van den Berg. "Yes," Louw replied.

"Why didn't you do him further injury then?" the magistrate asked.

"I wish I could have," Louw replied. Passing sentence, Van den Berg sald, "A reasonable man could not have foreseen that the blow Louw struck could possibly have led to Mr. Mokwena's

He said Mokwena's death, therefore, would not be considered in imposing the sentence on the assault charge.

Frank Church Favors U.S. Cutoff Of All Aid Funds For Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United Church called for the United States to States should cut off all economic aid to Nicaragua to encourage the downfall of the regime of President Anastasio Somoza, a ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told the Carter administration Wednesday.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said opposition to Somoza is so broadly based that it is clear the Nicaraguan dictator is "at the end of his rope.

"The United States government should make it clear we do not support the re-Nicaragua," Church said, after a private committee session with State Department officials.

Church, who is in line to become the committee's chairman, said one way to drive the message home is to cut off aid to Nicaragua.

"I'm certain that in view of our own past association with the Somoza regime, the aid we have given and the (prospect) of still further economic aid creates the impression that the U.S. government continues to support Somoza," Church said, adding:

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., said the United States ought to make clear that its adherence to human rights also applies to the Somoza regime in Nicaragua.

He indicated he also believes the U.S. government should make clear it is not propping up Somoza.

Squatter Ouster Assailed

WASHINGTON (AP) - A group of tention of power by the Somoza family in U.S. congressmen joined Wednesday in statements strongly condemning the South African government's proposal to abolish the black squatters' community of Crossroads, near Capetown.

Terming the plan "as insensitive, cruel and brutal an action as the South African government could take," they renewed an earlier appeal to President Carter to "convey your concern for this most recent atrocity.'

On Aug. 31, 15 members of the House signed the letter to Carter, calling themselves the Congressional Ad Hoc Monitoring Group.

"We believe that although it may be too late for the United States to intervene in the situation, it is important for the United States to respond to this atrocity through high level expressions of concern," the letter said.

South African officials have announced their intention to move some 20,000 persons out of the Crossroads township, which was established in 1975 as a black squatters' community. The legislators said they were told that many of the residents of the area intended to defy government efforts to forcibly remove them to other locations.

In a news conference, members of the group noted that Tuesday was the first anniversary of the death of South African black leader Steve Biko, saying that "serves as a tragic reminder of our responsibility to focus international attention on the oppressive acts by govern-ments, no matter where they may be."

Rep. Andrew Maguire, D-Ind., who heads the ad hoc group, said it was hoped that the appeal could influence the South African government to abandon its plan to shut down the Crossroads township. Rep. John Anderson, R-III., conceded that the appeal, which included members of both political parties, could leave the congressmen open to charges of interfer-ing in the internal affairs of South Africa. "It could even be counter-productive but we hope not," he said.

'Soap' Premiere To End Prolonged Murder Case

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The big myster's murder no one — not even creator tery of the new television season is: Who and writer Susan Harris — knew who it killed Peter Campbell?

Who is the real assassin on ABC's 'Soap" who has gone free while Jessica Tate languishes in jail after her unjust conviction for the murder of the womanizing tennis pro?

At the conclusion of Jessica's trial last March 28, which marked the end of the first season of "Soap," we learned she was really innocent and that the killer was one of five people.

After nine months of suspense - Peter was shot, strangled, stabbed, bludgeoned and drowned on the Dec. 6 episode - the answer will be revealed during the onehour season premiere of "Soap" Thurs-

Not within memory has a television audience been kept hanging for such a long

over her affair with Peter. -Her daughter, Corinne, living with Peter. She may have learned he had twotimed her with her mother.

-Her brother-in-law, Bert Campbell, Peter's real father. -Her homosexual nephew, Jodie Dal-

-Her butler, Benson, who has a low opinion of both the Tates and the Camp-

The identity of the killer has been kept a tightly guarded secret. Hundreds of relatives and friends have tried to pry it out of the cast and crew, but no one is talk-

"It was very tempting to reveal it. We were besieged," said Paul Junger Witt, who is executive producer with Tony Thomas. "My own son worked on me for three straight days. I went to the doctor and the receptionist told me, 'If you don't want to wait, tell me who killed Pe-

Until the taping of the opening show, only a few people knew the killer's identity. In fact, it wasn't decided until a few weeks before the end of the season who the killer would be. At the time of Pewould be.

Only those who absolutely had to know were told. The script was kept in a safe. Because the show is taped before a studio audience - who could tell their friends - red herring scenes were written and taped to throw the audience off. In fact, up until premiere time they were still taping phony scenes that will never be aired, to keep the spectators confused.

Witt said that should the secret leak out they were prepared to switch the identity of the killer and use the red herring

"The interesting thing is that none of the suspects has been singled out," said Witt. "Everyone has a different choice. I think perhaps four-fifths of the audience will be surprised. We've heard a lot of opinions and it's pretty even who they think it is.

"So a fifth of the people will be pleased and the rest will understand. The motive will be unfolded over the next five weeks."

Originally, Witt, who also produced the hit TV movie "Brian's Song," said they had planned to just end the season with Jessica's conviction without revealing that she was innocent.

"We thought people would know she wasn't capable of murder." he said. "But say so and name the five suspects. They hooted and stomped and I thought they were going to come over the railing after

"Soap" was one of the few hits among new shows last year. But its birth followed a rough labor as the show was attacked before its premiere. Church groups, taking their cue from a magazine article, called it "moral pollution" and said it was the opening wedge of sexually explicit material on prime-time televi-

Once the show was on the air, the furor abated. The accusations turned out to be without substantiation and people saw that the series was rather mild.

"I think a lot of the pressure groups that had campaigned against us - especially before we got on the air - were embarrassed and withdrew," said Witt. They had mounted their campaign on false information. It was a frightening experience for us. We were totally unprepared for it. But it's over.'

The killer will be unmasked Thursday night. But I can't stand it any longer! I've got to tell you who the real killer is! It's none other than - You! What are you doing with that gun? And knife? And a bludgeon, Don't too.

Two Performances Reflect Dichotomy In American Culture

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - The culture gap in American society was nowhere more clearly defined this summer than at the Universal Amphitheatre, an adjunct to Universal Studios in the San Fernando

It is a jewel of an open-air theater, an intimate bowl that seats some 5,000 persons, who crowd it nightly during the summer months to applaud some of America's great pop concert stars.

'Two of the biggest attractions this year were Frank Sinatra and comedian Steve The difference in crowds for the two stars was astonishing. It was more than a contrast in cultures or lifestyles. The difference was as striking as if one group came from Jupiter and the other from Sinatra's audience was overwhelmingly composed of people in their middle years. They were fans who have been devoted to the country's foremost show biz legend since before World War II and in the years since. The audience was dressed moderately.

a preponderance of the men wore jackets and neckties. Many of the women were elegantly gowned and bejeweled.

There were young people on hand, to be sure. But there were surprisingly few in their teens and 20s.

Sinatra was preceded on stage by Sarah Vaughn, another oldtimer who sang her matchless reportory of songs before introducing Sinatra.

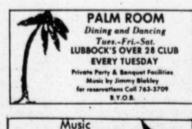

At intermission the audience repaired to a series of refreshment stands to buy wine, champagne and snacks.

When the lights went down, there was an aura of awe in the amphitheater, an anticipatory quiet. The feeling was not unlike the ambiance in a concert hall before the start of a symphony or an opera. Sinatra received ovations before and after his performances.

The crowd was hushed and respectful when he sang. It laughed politely at his irreverent one-liners. It giggled when the singer sipped from a glass from time to time, secure in the knowledge that it held Jack Daniels.

It was an evening of nostalgia. But Frank sang new songs as well as old favorites. His performance was polished. unflawed and perfect. The crowd filed out quietly at the end of the evening, content that they'd seen the master at his

Dick Tracy Movie In Works

BORA BORA (AP) - Screenwriter Lorenzo Semple Jr. was on this South Pacific island to make last-minute changes needed in the script of "Hurricane," but, strangely enough, he also had "Dick Tra-

"It's unusual for a writer to be on location," said Semple, "but the physical problems of making a movie like 'Hurricane' are so difficult. They've had a lot of trouble and have had to make changes. So it's very useful to have a writer here. You have to adapt the script to something that works."

But when he's not revising the remake of the 1937 "Hurricane" or serving as its executive producer, Semple has another script in his typewriter.

"I'm supposed to be working on the movie 'Dick Tracy,' if I haven't been fired for my slowness," he said. "We hope to shoot it in Chicago this fall. The producer came down to see what I'd done so far, and it was nothing."

The "Dick Tracy" film will be based on the comic strip detective created by Chester Gould, and is to include such haracters as Gravel Gertie, B.O. Plenty, Junior, and such infamous villains as U.S. Secretary of State George Marshall announced his Marshall Plan for the reconstruction of Europe in 1945.

Flattop, Mr. and Mrs. Pruneface, the Mole, Jerome Short, B.B. Eyes and Mr.

Part of the problem of working on the movie, Semple explained, is that a strange lassitude overtakes you on this French Polynesian island 165 miles northwest of Tahiti. He said, "It's like a great tranquilizer surrounded by a coral reef. Which it is as far as bringing brain power to bear on anything. You just find yourself putting everything off."

Even so, he has the movie pretty much in mind, if not on paper.

"It will be set in the late '30s or early '40s," he said. "Dick Tracy will stand for the old established values. It won't be campy at all. The villains will not be as freakish. It will be closer to 'Chinatown,' let's say, than 'Batman.' We'll treat Dick Tracy as a serious, first-rate, underpaid detective.

"We hope to have a real story between him and Tess. I mean a genuine, emotional story. It'll have a lot of action in it and a vast amount of violence, which I personally don't like that much. I mean. people will get shot. I was reading that big volume of 'Dick Tracy' and a lot of mayhem was done to him.'

The comic strip's wrist radio will also figure in the story — but without the lit-tle sign that still points it out 20 years after its introduction.

State Court Decides Houston Accountable In Damage Suit

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Supreme Court held Wednesday that a Texas city is not always entitled to governmental immunity in damage suits.

The court approved a decision awarding $288,500 to the survivors of a workman killed on a Houston sanitary sewer project. The action upheld decisions of a Houston jury and the Beaumont Court of Civil Appeals. The courts said Houston must pay the money to Magdelean Bush and her son, the survivors of Jimmie Lee Bush, who was killed in a ditch cave-in at the "Edloe Project."

Bush was ordered by a city inspector to go into the ditch after the shoring was removed to see if 12 inches of sand covered pipes that had been laid. The ditch caved n about 90 seconds later.

Houston claimed the laying of a sanitary sewer line was a governmental function, thus making it immune from suit. But the Beaumont court said there was evidence that the job also furthered construction of a storm sewer, a "proprietar-y" rather than governmental function of

"We would be remiss in the light of the recent vote on California's Proposition 13 .... in not pointing out the reason for the doctrine of governmental immunity," the appeal said.

That purpose, the city said, is to protect a government's tax revenues from being drained by lawsuits instead of being used for public programs. In other action the court:

—Upheld decisions of a San Angelo jury and the 3rd Court of Civil Apeals that uninsured motorist coverage can be rejected only in writing and remains an automatic part of a family auto policy if turned down orally. The case arose from a 1973 accident in which Cathy Sloan, a passenger in a car owned by Howe Mayse, was injured. Uninsured motorist coverage was omitted from Mayse's policy but he had rejected the coverage orally, not in writing. The appeals court held that the rule was valid and carried out the legislature's intent in passing the uninsured motorists law.

Newspaper Search Threat Minimal

By STEWART POWELL United Press International

Despite an outcry at the time of the Supreme Court's Stanford Daily ruling, law enforcement officials say news gatherers face little immediate threat of office searches by police and prosecutors.

Daily cooperation between the law and the media is so that most officials who need confidential information held by reporters or editors say they need only to ask for it, a nationwide UPI survey found.

The survey, sampling the opinions of police and prosecutors across the country, turned up little public eagerness by officers to search newsrooms. But one news executive active in press freedom cases says the problem is a growing "appetite" for evidence among judges and enforcement officials.

And a number of law enforcement officials say they would turn to warrants if cooperation failed. The issue arose from a high court ruling this year that gave officials with search warrants the right to look in newsrooms for information about a crime. The 5-3 ruling upheld a 1971 police search of The Stanford Daily, a student newspaper. The newspaper contended the search violated Fourth Amendment protections against unreasonable search and seizure. But the court, in a ruling written by Justice Byron White, said: "The critical element in a reasonable search is not that the owner of the property is suspected of crime, but that there is reasonable cause to believe that the specific things to be searched for and seized are located on the property to which entry is sought."

News executives assailed the decision, contending it could expose confidential sources and jeopardize a free press.

Police searches of newsrooms have been rare. Preliminary results of a survey conducted in August by the National District Attorneys Association found "no instance of search warrants issued against the press to obtain the source of news stories in multiple jurisdictions.

But journalists and other professionals with confidential client relationships have pushed for legislation to refine the court ruling. The media's position has been virtually uniform opposition to the justices' decision.

"I would wonder whether, as word of the police raid spreads around the community, such people ... wouldn't take a raid on the media as a warning not to talk, a signal that city hall has the power to harass the press and to break through journalistic confidentiality," Bill Monroe, moderator of the NBC interview program "Meet the Press," told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee.

Whatever the effect on news sources, there is little evidence that the high court ruling has sparked any public appetite among enforcement officials to invade newsrooms.

"The news people have always placed themselves in a position of cooperation any time their notes, records or information may go to solving a crime," said Eloy F. Martinez, a district attorney in New Mexico.

"I would think we don't have problems with them (reporters) some other places have or think they have," says Col. Lawrence C. Patton, police chief in Jefferson City, Mo. "Generally speaking here the people in the news media ...

are interested in the community rather than selling news." 'My feeling is that if the media felt it would be in the public interest, they'd cooperate," said Boston Police Commissioner Joseph Jordan.

Photographs taken of an assault during the city's school desegregation were obtained and used to identify the attackers, he said, and it's been that way for his 32 years on the force. "If it's in the public interest, I'd get it, probably without a search warrant.

In Omaha, "Friendship takes care of 90 percent of the cases," police chief Richard Andersen says

And the friendship is a two-way street, many police offi-

"We asked the newsman if we could talk to the person, he said yes, and the source then agreed to talk to us," Ferguson said. Similar solutions occurred elsewhere.

Police also say they don't like to search newsrooms because often the evidence they find is useless. A policeman is a better investigator than a reporter, officials insist.

A reporter's function is to "produce," says Providence, R.I., city solicitor Ronald Glantz. "He's doing a job someone else should be doing nine times out of 10. A reporter is not a policeman.'

Law enforcement officials additionally insist that if newsroom searches became widespread, reporters would find ways of getting around revealing information, either by stashing notes elsewhere, writing notes in code or simply destroving the material.

There seems to me to be ways to get around the problem

"The critical element in a reasonable search is not that the owner of the property is suspected of crime, but that there is reasonable cause to believe that the specific things to be searched for and seized are located on the property to which entry is sought."

cers say, with police expecting tips about crime in exchange for being forthright with a reporter.

"Reporters work closely with police as far as getting their stories," says Dallas district attorney Henry Wade, the man who prosecuted Jack Ruby for the murder of Lee Harvey

"I think in return if they turned up some evidence they would tell the police. 'You ought to check into this angle.' A police chief who worked nearby says a problem at Stanford was the absence of cooperation.

"If I had the same situation and the same kind of relationship with the university newspaper, I think I would use the same approach," says George Hansen, 57, the Lincoln, Neb., police chief who served as chief in Sunnyvale, Calif., nine miles from the Stanford campus, at the time.

Many police officials, dependent on informants themselves, express sympathy for reporters' fears about disclosure of confidential sources.

When I was a police officer, it was important for me to protect my sources," says Robert Colville, now district attorney in Allegheny County, Pa. "It's just as important for media people to do the same with their sources.

James F. McHenry, prosecutor in Missouri's Cole County since 1973, faced a situation in which a grand jury sought a reporter's source. "Frankly, I didn't feel too right to require a person to divulge his source," McHenry recalled.

Police say they don't need authority to stage surprise raids on newsrooms because often they can work out a compromise. In Crawford County, Pa., District Attorney Douglas Ferguson persuaded a reporter to act as a go-between with and I expect newsmen will come up with some very imaginative ways of doing so," San Francisco Police Chief Charles Gain said through a spokesman. Reporters might "write their notes in code and say, 'Here they are,' and refuse to Others might do what police officers do. "Many officers take their notes, right away formalize them into reports and then destroy them," notes Colville, the Allegheny County,

'If you ask them, they'll say, 'I had them, but I made them into a report.' They get rid of them. A police officer never has his notes on the day of court."

Merrimack County, N.H., prosecutor James Kruse wonders about the same problem. "Police are accused of occasionally hiding their notes somewhere in case there's some motion for discovery by defense counsel. I don't know whether we'll run into comparative problems with the press," he said

While immediate use of the power granted law enforcement by the Supreme Court appears unlikely, the future may be less certain.

The sweeping power may encourage cooperation where it did not exist before. And most prosecutors and police officials said if cooperation or coercion failed to produce the material they felt was essential to prosecution, they would seek the warrant.

"We're all on the same side," Pawtucket, R.I., city solicitor Moses Kando said. "I think if you people had something, you'd give it to (the police) voluntarily. Why permit the police to willy-nilly start removing files and stuff of that nature?"

Police officers generally have little use for the argument that a journalist's commitment to protect his sources must be honored even if it violates a court order or law.

"I have trouble with people not being willing to assist the police in an investigation, be they newspaper people or anyone else," Comcord, N.H., acting chief Bruce Russell said.

L. Craig Hallow, 36, prosecutor in Ohio's Miami County, agreed. "I think the press ought not to be in a super-citizen class. It ought to have the same sort of responsibilities and be subjected to the law just as the rest of the population is." "First amendment rights," said Pittsfield, Mass., chief John Killeen., come within the law, not outside the law."

Despite the findings of the survey, there is concern that the picture could change.

"The fact that policemen have not started indiscriminately raiding newspaper offices does not diminish the significance of the Stanford Daily case," said Anthony Day, editorial page editor of the Los Angeles Times and chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Most newspapers "have an informal relationship with the police as well as defense lawyers but that's not saying they work hand in glove." Day said.

But the appetite for all evidence evinced by both policemen and judges continues, Day said, and that is the concern.

Their view coincides increasingly with the views of judges on that score. Judges are asserting total control over anything having to do with evidence. I think it will be a problem, there's no question about it." Lincoln County, Mont., Sheriff Mike McMeekin, for example, was involved in a newsroom search by warrant that could have become the subject of Supreme Court action just as easily as the case involving the Stanford University student newspaper. Law enforcement authorities sought the tape recording of a reporter's conversation with a man accused of killing a Montana state highway patrolman, contending the suspect confessed the murder during the taped telephone conversa-Police obtained a warrant for the Associated Press bureau, arrived to conduct the search and then waited. "We sat there for hours waiting for the lawyers," the sheriff recalled. 'I got played for a sucker.' How would he handle the search the next time? Mc Meek-in was asked. "I'd say to heck with it. I'd have gone in there, put everybody in a corner and searched that office from end to end until I found that tape. If I heard or saw things i wasn't supposed to, that's their problem for not cooperating.

"Cooperation is a two-way street.

Osmonds' Fame Sinking

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The popularity of the Osmond family in England is sinking, and part of the reason may be that all the Osmonds are getting married, according to members of Osmond fan clubs there.

Before returning to England this week, a group of 128 girls - members of several Osmond fan clubs who came to Utah to see the singing family - told reporters that the Osmonds were much more popular in the United Kingdom a

A member of the British Osmonds Fan Club said that with the Osmonds all getting married, fans are losing interest in the Utah group.

Another said the only thing that keeps the Osmonds visible in England is the Donny and Marie Show, which is shown periodically on the BBC television network. Several of the girls said they wanted to see less of Donny and Marie and more of the Osmond brothers. The organizer of the South Wales Osmond Fan Club said five years ago she had more than 100 girls attending meetings. Now, she said she's lucky to get 10 to come out.

Alderwoman Marguerite Ford received the four watches at an Aug. 20 reception. She kept hers and gave the others to the mayor's executive assistant, Gerry Lenoski, to distribute to her colleagues.

Poisonous Snakes Banned

HENRYETTA, Okla. (AP) - It's official: Poisonous snakes are no longer welcome within the limits of this city

In keeping with the voters' wishes, the City Council enacted an ordinance Tuesday night banning the keeping of poisonous snakes or other dangerous reptiles.

City residents voted 886-418 on Aug. 29 to ban the creepy crawlers. The ordinance enacted by the council carried out the voters' wishes.

At the same election, residents voted 851-504 to retain an ordinance prohibiting the holding of public dances. The council said no action was needed on that matter since the anti-dancing ordinance already was on the books.

Watergate Luminaries Meet

NEW YORK (AP) - "Hello, pleased to meet you," said Alexander Butterfield, the former presidential aide whose disclosure of a White House recording system helped bring down Richard Nixon's presidency.

"Hi," replied Watergate burglary mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, first waving, then extending his hand.

The occasion of the first meeting between the two Watergate figures was a 10th anniversary party given Tuesday night by CBS for its award-winning TV newsmagazine program, "60 Minutes."

Prodded by a photographer, Butterfield reluctantly walked across the Four Seasons ballroom to where the tuxedo-clad Liddy was sitting with his wife, Frances.

"I don't believe we've ever met," Butterfield told Liddy. who served 52½ months for his part in the Watergate break-in and refusal to testify about it. "But I talked to you a few times when you answered John Dean's phone.'

Butterfield, the former head of the Federal Aviation Administration and now an executive vice president for International Air Service Inc. in San Francisco, told the iddys: "You both have been admirable in so many ways. We all have our stories to tell and I'm sympathetic to yours."

Liddy smiled. Outside the party lights, Butterfield said he hadn't meant to imply support for Liddy. "He has his principle and I have mine. I respect him for his discipline, but I don't admire him for what he did."

NBC Chairman Appointed

NEW YORK (AP) — Jane Cahill Pfeiffer, a former IBM executive who turned down President Carter's offer to become commerce secretary, will become chairman of the board at NBC, network President Fred Silverman an-

Mrs. Pfeiffer, 45, will replace Julian Goodman, a former president of the network who has been chairman since

Edgar H. Griffiths, president of RCA Corp., which owns NBC, said Mrs. Pfeiffer also will be named to replace Goodman on RCA's board of directors.

Calling her a "major acquisition for NBC," Silverman said Mrs. Pfeiffer would concentrate on government relations, legal affairs and employee relations.

Mrs, Peiffer was vice president for communications and government relations when she left IBM in 1976 and has worked as a consultant since then. In that capacity, she participated in the negotiations that brought Silverman to NBC from ABC this year.

She declined Carter's offer to serve as commerce secretary because of family and health reasons.

Texan Walks On Water

BOSTON (AP) - When Bill Tabor got bored a few years back with training horses in Austin, he decided to try something else - walking on water.

On Tuesday, Tabor, a 45-year-old father of three, crossed the Charles River in a water walker - an invention he has yet to name. If he can find a sponsor, in a few months he hopes to cross the English Channel.

The device, made of a hard plastic called Lexan and urethane, operates on a treadmill principle, navigated by the weight displacement of its passenger or passengers.

Prison Escapees Flee In Purloined Airplane

airplane carrying two shotgun-toting pris-on escapees and at least one hostage flew across northwest Tennessee Wednesday afternoon after a prisoner and a guard were shot in the escape.

Two and a quarter hours later, police dispatcher Larry Bruce said, "They are down somewhere. We just don't know exactly where it is. But they only had 90 minutes of fuel - unless they went to some private field and got some more gas without us knowing it. But we've got all the other fields covered.'

Official and private aircraft pursued. At one point, a dozen airplanes were reported aloft. One, a two-engine plane forced to land at one point for fuel, left Dickson just minutes behind. There was no report of contact by ground radar.

Bruce said the fugitives were residents of Turney Center, a state Correction Department minimum-security facility 25 miles away at Only. They were in Dickson, he said, for an outing to a bowling alley. Two other escapees, he said, were on "Four of them went to the bathroom and came out with high-powered shot-guns," Bruce said. "All we know is that there were two shotguns." He said they were the kind of shotguns issued to pol-icemen, but did not know how they obtained the weapons.

A guard and another prisoner were shot in the escape, he said.

A woman was taken hostage and some of the fugitives drove off with her in a stolen car. That car wrecked, he said, and the inmates stole another to make their way to the Dickson Municipal Airport.

There they freed the woman, unharmed, and captured airport manager Mel Romine, Bruce said. Two escapees flew away, presumably with Romine at the controls, in a single-engine Cessna 182 headed northwest.

The two remaining escapees were believed to have fled on foot, he said.

Radio communications from a private chase plane reported a sighting at Cumberland City, about 25 miles northwest of Dickson and about the same distance south of the Kentucky border. There are at least 40 airports in the area and the Cessna could land in nearly any large Romine was flying low, as if he were attempting to avoid radar, officers said. The plane was behind a line of thunderstorms moving west to east.

Dickson is about 40 miles west of Nash-

Jim McPeters, associate warden at Turney Center, identified the escapees as George Bonds, 24, of Granite City, Ill., serving a 20-year sentence for rape; Larry Chism, 29, of Forrest City, Ark., serving a 40-year term for selling a controlled substance and armed robbery; Ronald Lyons, 30, of Ohio, serving a 50-year sent-ence for robbery with a deadly weapon; and Floyd Brewer, 28, of Rutherford County, serving a 35-year term for rape.

McPeters said he did not know which escapees were in the aircraft.

Warden Jim Rose identified the wounded guard as Howard Talley, 35, of Centerville, a Turney Center guard for seven years. Talley, one of five officers in charge of transporting prisoners, was reported in good condition at a Dicason hospital, the warden said.

Edward Atchison, 46, owner of the Bowi-O-Rena in Dickson, said he was leaving the concession stand for change when four prisoners came out of the standard standard standard to the standard standard bathroom, shotguns blazing.

"It didn't look like they was trying to hurt anybody. They was just trying to get away. They was shooting at the ceiling. They shot one of the guards who was shooting back at them. And they shot one of the prisoners but that was an accident."

Atchison said the prison recreation program rents his alley four or five times a year. "We've never had any trouble out of them before," he said.

He said he thought the shotguns were left for them. "We did find in our restroom storage place, they were in there and did ransack that," he said. "Evidently they were looking for the guns. We feel they were looking for the guns. We feel like they were stored here earlier. Anybody could have brought them in. These tours are arranged a week in advance."

Identical Twin Gets Testicle Transplant

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A surgeon who estimates that one man in every 20 may be were normal, but his testicles were unamates that one man in every 20 may be infertile because of testicle inaded has performed his second human testicle transplant. The first took place in May

Dr. Sherman J. Silber said his transplant team at St. Luke's Hospital West transferred a testicle Friday from one man to his identical twin, who underwent the surgery because he was infertile. The surgeon said Wednesday he is "99 percent certain" the transplanted organ will produce normal amounts of sperm.

Silber said testicle transplants are being considered only for identical twins because of the ideal gene match between such twins and the low risk of a transplant rejection.

The patient, who asked that his identity not be disclosed, is 30 years old and from outside St. Louis, Silber said. The patient's reproductive organs produced ble to produce sperm.

In the original May 1977 transplant case, one twin was born without testicles and required weekly injections of the male hormone testosterone to maintain sex characteristics.

The organ Timothy Twomey of Carmichael, Calif., received from his twin, Terry, has functioned normally, Silber said. The recipient is able to father children, although his wife has not become pregnant, the doctor added.

Wider application of testicle trans-plants to infertile men is dependent on the development of better drugs that pre-vent rejection of donated organs, Silber

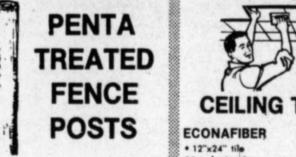

The doctor also estimates that about one in 50,000 males is born without testi-

Librarian Balks At Nancy Drew, Hardy Boys Books For Youngsters NEWTON, Mass. (AP) - Newton's public librarian, under pressure to stock the Nancy Drew and Hardy Boys books in her 11-branch system, says they are "soap opera narratives" not worth the expenditure of city funds.

But 77-year-old Harriet Stratemeyer Adams, who still turns out the detective stories for youngsters at a rate of two or three a year under pen names Carolyn Keene and Franklin W. Dixon, defends the works as good, clean fun for kids.

"I think that librarian is not up to date on the books," Mrs. Adams said Wednesday in a telephone interview from her northern New Jersey farm. The controversy arose at a recent meeting of the Newton

the books could not be found on the library shelves in this

Mrs. Adams said she writes for children 13 and under and, therefore, doesn't write about the "inner city," drug abuse, crime and sex - either in her books or the television programs based on them. A Hardy Boys television series runs PORTAGE, Mich. (AP) - The American Civil Liberties Union has gone to bat for a 14-year-old girl who was suspended from school for "disrupting the educa-tional process" by failing to wear a bra.

"I don't think you can regulate under-wear," said Bruce Stein, president of the local ACLU chapter. He said his group will ask the school board in this Kalama-200 suburb to change Portage Central Junior High School's dress code.

The unidentified girl was given two unexcused absences, or suspensions, last spring for violating a code that says "clo-thing should be neat, clean and not consi-dered distracting." The code was drawn up in 1975 by teachers, parents and students, and other girls have been suspended for violating it. The girl's father said a teacher's aide noticed his daughter was not wearing a bra during lunch. "How could it have been disruptive to the educational proc-ess if nobody noticed until lunchtime?"

At an ACLU meeting over the week-At an ACLU meeting over the week-end, the parents said the girl was taken to the principal's office and suspended after she confirmed she was not wearing a bra. She was suspended a second time when the principal, Richard Tyler, spotted her entering the school braless.

School superintendent George Conti-said he backed Tyler in the suspensions.

"If I say OK to a girl who feels more omfortable coming to school without a bra, what do I say to another student who wants to wear his pajamas or bathing suit?" Tyler added.

Asked whether every girl must wear a bra to school, Tyler said, it depends on whether it is distracting. "If it is not distracting — then I wouldn't know," he

PUTTING ON THE BITE - San Diego's KGB Radio's promotional chicken confers with Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner during the Braves-San Diego Padres game in Atlanta recently. Turner has offered a salary of more than $100,000 a year to the chicken, Ted Giannoulas, if he will fly east to become the Atlanta Hawk. Turner also owns the Atlanta Hawks basketball team. (AP Laserphoto)

Chicken Man Rarely Lays An Egg While Cracking Up Stars

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Ted Giannoulas looks on his work as fantasy come true. And lots of people think he's the funniest thing they've ever seen.

No one actually ever sees Giannoulas - what they see is a guy dressed in an orange chicken suit, a stunt that has become one of San Diego's most recognized symbols.

Giannoulas has hugged a president, sparred with boxer Ken Norton, toured with ex-Beatle Paul McCartney and made Elvis Presley crack up on stage. His antics were televised nationally earlier this summer during the all-star baseball game here.

He's a frequent attraction at San Diego Padres' baseball games, and often visits other ballparks. His imitation of Cincinnati Reds' star Pete Rose running the bases is hilarious.

Giannoulas was aspiring sportswriter in journalism school at San Diego State University in 1974 when a representative of KGB radio station strolled into a class and offered a job.

"All of our hands shot up," Giannoulas recalled in a recent erview. The warned us that it was an unusual job ing a chicken suit as a promotional experiment." Giannoulas may not be the KGB chicken much longer. Ted Turner, the flamboyant sailor and owner of two pro sports franchises in Atlanta, saw the chicken's act recently. Turner liked it so much that he has offered Giannoulas $100,000 to take the act to Atlnta. Giannoulas "is really a talented individual," Turner explained. Giannoulas says he will make up his mind by Friday.

Rick Liebert, KGB's production manager, came up with the stunt as part of a promotional war with a rival station. The plan was to dress someone in a chicken suit for a couple of weeks, said Liebert, and because it was Easter, they had Giannoulas pass out colored eggs at the San Diego Zoo. "From there, it just took off," he said. "We had no idea at the time that it would turn into the KGB chicken that we know and love.

All credit goes to Giannoulas, said Liebert, "because Ted is an excellent entertainer along the lines of Charlie Chaplin. If Ted wasn't around, the idea wouldn't have lasted more Giannoulas said he suspects he got the job because he is 5feet-4, 125 pounds and fit the suit.

"I work on the average of 10 hours a day, seven days a week," said Giannoulas, who prefers to submerge his human identity so much that he refers to the chicken in the third person and won't allow himself to be photographed out of costume. "It's more of a hobby, making people laugh. Mayor Pete Wilson calls me his goodwill ambassador and folk hero.'

The chicken appears at every imaginable event around town, and like the Pied Piper, children follow the whimsical character at sporting events and adults want to shake his hand.

"I do bar mitzvahs, weddings, birthdays, Little League openings, social functions and, of course, store openings," said the chicken. "About the only thing I haven't done is a funeral.

He's even written a book, "From Scratch." In his excitement-filled career, "meeting the president of the United States was the highlight," the chicken said. "I didn't know I had a fan in Gerry Ford.

It happened during Ford's 1976 campaign, "and that was by invitation from the White House staff," Giannoulas marveled. "Imagine - the Secret Service clearing a fuzzy little chicken with KGB written on the front."

So as millions of television viewers tuned in to "Good Morning, America" one day, Giannoulas recalled, "I ran across the stage and hugged him and two Secret Service men had heart attacks. I thought I was going to be carted away by "Another thrill was when Elvis Presley was here for a concert in 1976. I did a little dance while he was singing and the guy laughed so hard he actually lost all the words to the

"I don't date that much," said Giannoulas. "My social life is pretty nil because the chicken works mostly at night."

Giannoulas said he studies masters like Groucho Marx, W.C. Fields and even Steve Martin to prepare his routines. "I just say, what would make me laugh? And then I try to do

Park Tells House Committee Of Contributions To Politicians

Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park testified Wednesday that he gave Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., a $1,000 campaign contribution in August of 1974.

The House Ethics Committee also heard Roger Johnson, who was treasurer of Roybal's campaign fund in 1974, testify that he did not receive any $1,000 cash contributions from Roybal and that Roybal never told him of any contribution

The testimony came as the committee began presenting its evidence against Roybal, one of four congressmen accused of violating House rules in connection with the so-called South Korean influ-

the evidence as the hearing continues. The committee has accused Roybal of failing to report the campaign contribution and of converting the cash to his own use. It also has accused Roybal of testifying falsely that he never received the money and of later testifying falsely that he received the money but gave it to his re-election campaign.

Roybal is the first of the four congressmen to have the evidence against him outlined in an open hearing.

If the committee determines that he did, in fact, violate House rules, it can recommend penalties ranging from a reprimand to expulsion from the House.

The full House would decide the actual penalties

Park, who has been accused of trying to buy influence in Congress on behalf of the South Korean government, testified under oath that he gave Roybal $1,000 in cash after Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., told him Passman had "two dear friends" who needed campaign contribumeet Roybal in Passman's office and that Passman left the room after introducing him to Roybal. Park also testified that he gave $1,000 to former Rep. John Rarick, D-La., at Passman's request on the same day. That transaction also occurred in Passman's office, he said, and took place only minutes after he met with Roybal.

Passman currently is under federal indictment on a charge of accepting $213,-000 in bribes from Park. His case has not yet come to trial.

None of the four congressmen named by the Ethics Committee is facing federal charges. The House disciplinary proceeding is a separate affair.

A key to Park's testimony is the date of the contribution. Roybal previously has contended the gift was made in February and that it was turned over to his re-election committee at that time.

Park, who has agreed to testify truth-fully in all probes of the scandal in return for the Justice Department's dropping all 36 charges against him, said he made the contribution in August. He said he remembered the approximate time be-cause it was near Korean Independence Day and near the time of the Louisiana primary election.

Park said he knew neither Roybal nor Rarick prior to the meetings. As for the form of the contribution, he said, "The cash, as I always did when I made a contribution, was contained in an envelope.

Tourism Suit Settled

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Justice Department announced Wednesday it has settled a civil antitrust suit that charged five Hawaiian group tour operators with price-fixing.

Under the settlement, which was filed in federal court in Honolulu Monday, four of the defendants pleaded no contest and the charges against the fifth company, Hawaii Unlimited, were dismissed.

The settlement, which is subject to approval by the court, prohibits the firms from fixing prices and from exchanging price information, markups and the terms and conditions of the sale of tour

The government's documents said that sales of one of the two major types of tour packages exceeded $88 million in 1972 alone.

The packages consist of round-trip air transportation and generally include hotel accommodations and sightseeing features as well.
