Peace Plan Eludes Summit's Leaders

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — A peace formula eluded leaders at the Mideast summit Thursday and prospects for an early windup seemed to fade.

But President Carter kept up the quest. He met twice with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, once in the morning and again later in the day. Carter also held a separate session with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman.

Dayan then conferred with Sadat for an hour and a quarter at the Egyptian leader's lodge, the White House said. It provided no details about any of the meetings.

Flexibility Needed

In an assessment of summit prospects, spokesman Jody Powell said "more progress and more flexibility are essential" if Carter's unprecedented conference with Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin is to succeed.

At a briefing only 24 hours after he had declared the summit to be in its "final stages," Powell, the White House press secretary, told reporters "a framework for reaching peace" was still beyond grasp.

"How long the final stages will last is a matter of some conjecture," Powell said, speaking for all three governments at Camp David. "The final stage could be the longest stage."

Windup Discounted

At the same time, diplomatic sources who had said earlier in the day that the summit appeared headed toward a wind-up by today were edging away from their forecast.

One U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said the talks could extend beyond the Jewish Sabbath, a 24-hour period that ends at nightfall Saturday.

The official said Powell was trying to curb optimistic news reports indicating an early end for the summit. The official described the talks as staying at essentially the same stage over the past two or three days.

The White House announced late Thursday that Carter had asked Vice President Walter F. Mondale to stand in for him at an Italian-American dinner in Washington, then take a helicopter to Camp David.

Appearances Considered

On Capitol Hill, sources said thought was being given to inviting Sadat and Begin to make appearances after the summit is concluded.

One option is to have them brief the Senate Foreign Relations and House International Affairs committees separately.

Another is to have Sadat and Begin appear at a joint meeting of the House and Senate.

The announcement also said Mondale had cancelled, at the president's request, a political trip to Nevada and California today and Saturday. It said Mondale hoped to reschedule the trip before the November election.

Powell's call for more flexibility came in a formal statement approved by all three delegations. The statement claimed continuing progress — without providing specifics — and said "the intense efforts of the past few days are continuing."

City Sets State Record With Slash In Tax Rate

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE LUBBOCK City Council cut city taxes more than 20 percent Thursday when it approved a $1.12 per $100 valuation tax rate for the coming year.

The action gave Lubbock the distinction of having the largest property tax cut of any major city in Texas.

But not only will taxes be cheaper next year, electric bills will be less expensive as well.

The council reduced the fuel cost adjustment charge applied to electric bills, thus saving electric customers about $1 million the coming year.

The 29-cent tax cut — from $1.41 to $1.12 per $100 valuation — represents a 20.5 percent tax reduction.

For the owner of a $30,000 house, the tax cut represents a savings of $52 over last year.

Since Lubbock taxes only 60 percent of the market value of property, the tax reduction translates into an "effective tax rate" of 67 cents per $100 market value.

Half of the 10 largest cities in Texas granted no tax reductions this year, Mayor Dirk West said. While Lubbock's rate was reduced 18 cents, the rate in Austin was reduced 13 cents and the rate in Corpus Christi was lowered 6 cents. Amarillo reduced its effective rate 3 cents and Fort Worth lowered its effective rate 2 cents, West said.

The newly-approved tax rate gives Lubbockites the third lowest tax bill among major Texas cities, he said.

Property taxes on a $30,000 home will be $345 in El Paso, $303 in Dallas, $202 in Lubbock and $151 in Arlington, the lowest of the 10 largest cities.

Board's Suggestions Followed

In lowering the fuel cost adjustment on electric bills, the council followed the recommendation of the Electric Utilities Board.

The board suggested, and the council approved, returning 3 percent of the FCA to electric customers in the form of lower bills.

To an average user of 700 kilowatt hours of electricity, that means a savings of about $15 a year.

Another percent of the FCA collected by Lubbock Power & Light would be retained by the utility to establish a reserve fund for future expansion.

Four percent would continue to be transferred to the city's general operating fund. Previously the city received 8 percent of the FCA collected by LP&L which meant an additional $792,000 in city coffers this year.

Lost Revenue Mounts

The city revenues lost by the reduced FCA approximately equal the additional $613,000 the city will receive because the tax roll was larger than anticipated when the city prepared its budget.

The FCA reduction will cost Southwestern Public Service about $600,000 in what has been labeled "windfall profits."

Since the fuel is based on the actual cost for LP&L, SWPS received a bonus of about $1.1 million last year because the utility buys cheaper fuel.

Annexation Tentatively Okayed

Also Thursday the council tentatively approved the request of Yellowhouse Canyon Addition residents to be annexed by the city of Lubbock.

Residents of the 151-acre addition, located one block outside the southeastern edge of the city, originally petitioned the city to be annexed because of their lack of water.

Later it was determined the private water system supplying the area's water had an adequate water supply, but was poorly maintained.

Residents of the addition told the council Thursday they still wanted to be annexed, despite the fact that the Public Utilities Commission will have to determine whether the city can provide water to the area when it is annexed.

At a public hearing on the annexation Planning Director Jim Bertram told the council what it will cost the city to annex the addition.

Bertram said the capital cost of bringing the area up to city code, providing police protection and extending city water mains to the area would be over $113,000 which could be spread over three years.

The annual operations and maintenance costs for the area after it is annexed would be nearly $113,000, Bertram said.

However, the estimated tax revenues from the area come to only $26,800.

But Bertram said the Planning and

Policeman No-Billed In Fatal Shooting

By FRANK PATRICK

LUBBOCK County grand jury Thursday no-billed a police officer who shot and killed a man during an Aug. 16 altercation.

Exonerated by the jury panel was Officer Richard Foster, who fatally shot Tommy Earl Davis, 27, of 1710 E. 14th St., during the altercation at Davis' home.

Reports indicate Davis was shot once in the head.

Foster reported he shot Davis after he and other officers, who had gone to the scene in response to a family disturbance call, heard a muffled report of a gunshot coming from a pistol fellow Officer Pat Hastings was attempting to take from Davis.

Struggle Reported

Hastings reportedly yelled and jumped back after receiving powder burns from the gunshot. Officer Max Wilkinson said Davis then turned and pointed a .22-caliber pistol at Foster.

Reports say Foster picked up Hastings' revolver, which had fallen to the side of the bed in the struggle, and fired once at Davis, killing him instantly.

Officers reportedly arrived at the home Davis shared with his father and brother about 11:05 p.m., and the shooting occurred about five minutes later.

Wilkinson reported that officers were met by Davis' father Tommy Lee, who said his son was in the house and had been shooting at him and other people in the area.

Officers reportedly left the house after unsuccessfully trying to rouse Davis from his position on his bed. But they reportedly re-entered the home after being warned again by the father that Davis had a gun.

Officers again entered the bedroom, according to reports, and ordered Davis to "give us or show us the gun." But, officers said, Davis remained motionless except for opening his eyes.

Wilkinson then reportedly pulled away a pillow to reveal Davis pointing a pistol at him. Police said Hastings began grappling with Davis for possession of the pistol.

The three officers involved and Davis' father and brother were among witnesses testifying before the grand jury.

The 12-member jury panel investigating the black man's death included three blacks and three Spanish-surnamed citizens.

72 Indictments Returned

Also Thursday, grand jurors returned 72 indictments to Judge Robert C. Wright's 137th District Court.

Three murder indictments were returned.

Among persons indicted for murder was Damacio Villarreal, 26, of 2134 Emory St., Apt. 163.

Villarreal had been indicted for injury to a child after four-year-old Elias Caballero Jr. was admitted to a local hospital July 24.

The child, who had been connected to a life-support system after being admitted, died nine days later. The Criminal District Attorney's office had indicated that,

New Nonstop Flights Asked By Airline

HOUSTON (Special) — Texas International Airlines is seeking permission to inaugurate nonstop flights from Lubbock and other West Texas cities to Los Angeles with fares featuring discounts of as much as 50 percent.

Airline officials said Thursday they have filed with the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) for authority to operate nonstop flights between Amarillo, Lubbock, Midland-Odessa and Los Angeles.

The airlines told the board it proposes to operate daily nonstop flights and offer unrestricted "peanuts" fares at discounts up to 50 percent off current coast fares, between the Texas points and Los Angeles.

Under the proposed fare structure, passengers from Lubbock would realize a round trip savings of up to $109.

A range of from 20-50 percent off would be dependent upon CAB approval. Current one-way coach class to Los Angeles from Lubbock is approximately $109. Under the Texas International proposal, a round trip aboard the flight could be as low as $109.

Citing the inconvenience experienced by passengers on one-and-two-stop service, Texas International Vice President Gerry Ginter said his company is convinced that "the potential for profitable traffic development is most attractive."

The airline told the CAB it expects to carry more than 120,000 passengers and earn a profit of $1.7 million during the first 12 months of operation on the route.

Striking Teachers Sent To Jail In Connecticut

By The Associated Press

STRIKING school teachers in Bridgeport, Conn., and Dayton, Ohio, were learning civics the hard way Thursday, with a Connecticut judge sending scores of teachers to jail and an Ohio court threatening strikers with a similar fate.

Talks between striking Bridgeport public school teachers and the city's board of education broke down Thursday afternoon shortly after they had resumed at a National Guard camp where 135 jailed teachers are being held for refusing a judge's back-to-work order.

"They rejected us. They just turned us down cold," said Thomas Flynn, school board president, of the city's offer to submit the dispute to binding arbitration. He also said the city offered to put a "no reprisal" clause in any new contract.

Superior Court Judge James Henbery ordered 59 teachers jailed at Camp Hartell in Windsor Locks on Thursday and recessed contempt hearings until Monday morning, when 125 more striking teachers are scheduled to appear. Sixty-three were jailed Wednesday and 13 Tuesday.

The strike which began Sept. 6 forced the closing of all Bridgeport schools for the second straight day Thursday, leaving 22,500 students out of classes.

Sources close to the dispute have said the school board recently offered a 7 percent wage hike over two or four years. The teachers are asking for 7.5 percent, a dental plan and smaller classes. Salaries under the old contract ranged from $9,450 for a starting teacher to $30,180 for top-level teachers.

Dayton teachers defied a judge's order banning pickets in the 37,000-pupil district, thus flouting with jail sentences and continuing their strike for a seventh day Thursday.

The Dayton Board of Education asked Thursday that 19 leaders of the striking Dayton Education Association be found in contempt of court for picketing the southern Ohio city's public schools.

At the Montgomery County jail a spokesman said preparations were underway for the possibility of mass arrests among about 2,000 striking school employees.

Several pickets carried toothbrushes in anticipation of overnighting in jail and one elementary school teacher waved a tube of toothpaste and clean pair of undershorts and said, "I'm ready. Ready to go jail."

Teachers and the school board disagreed over availability of funds for the teachers' 8 percent to 11 percent salary increase request. The average teacher's salary is $14,500.

There also was a disagreement over funding in Cleveland.

Lawyers for the 100,000-pupil Cleveland system returned to Judge Harry A.

City Fiesta Queen Crowned

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

JOSIE PONCE, a 17-year-old Lubbock High School senior, was crowned Adelita of Fiesta Patria '78, during the annual celebration of Mexican Independence Day Thursday night at Atlan Park.

The Adelita is the symbol of the women who fought during the Mexican Revolution. The legend of the Adelita tells of a beautiful young woman, probably about 16-years-old, who fought during the war for her people's rights.

The six young women who competed for the Adelita title were judged on the basis of talent, personality, costume and knowledge of Mexican history.

Miss Ponce's Mexican folk dance in the talent portion of the competition was apparently the deciding factor in her selection.

Miss Ponce, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Margarito Ponce of 3322 Jarvis St., was awarded a $300 scholarship, a trophy and a Virgin de Guadalupe medallion presented to her by State Rep. Froy Salinas. She was sponsored by Ladies LU-LAC 281.

First runner-up in the contest was Armandina Barrera. Rita Ortega and Juana Montalvo tied for second runner-up.

Festivities in Atlan Park continue at 7 p.m. today with a local talent show, mariachi music and historical speeches concerning Mexico's independence.

The 10 p.m. coronation of the Reyna, the fiesta queen, will be the night's special event.

JOSIE PONCE
Crowned "Adelita Of Fiesta"

The "grito de independencia" (cry for independence) at 11:45 p.m., and the music of "Los Nortes de Cipriano Aguilar" will round out the evening's festivities.

The final day of fiesta activities gets under way at 9 a.m. Saturday with a breakfast, sponsored by the G.I. Forum, for the Reyna and the Adelita and their runners-up.

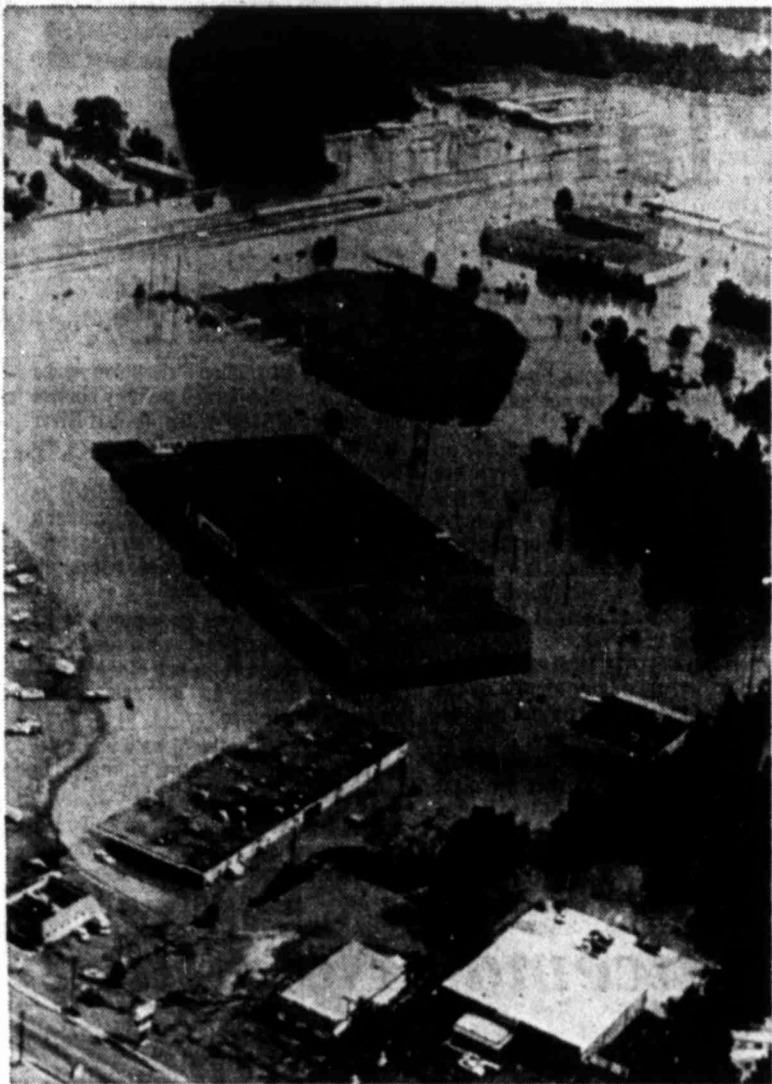

The traditional fiesta parade, which starts at noon at the fairgrounds, will wind its way to Broadway, onto Avenue O and then towards Atlan Park.

Activities in the park begin at 6 p.m. and will include mariachi music, the presentation of awards for best floats and the recognition of the new Adelita and Reyna.

Dancing, featuring Epifanio Ochoa and his orchestra, will conclude the three-day celebration.

Arkansas Flood Toll Hits 10

FLOODED SHOPPING CENTER — A shopping center in southwest Little Rock appears partially submerged Wednesday from flash floods which struck parts of central Arkansas. (AP Laserphoto)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — With at least 10 people known dead from torrential rains in central Arkansas, searchers got the break in the weather they were hoping for Thursday so inaccessible areas could be explored.

"We're definitely out of the woods, at least at the moment," said Robert McKechnie, a weather service forecaster.

Rescue workers continued the grim task of locating bodies in areas beginning to emerge from 6 feet of water.

"We hope we don't find any more (bodies), but we're afraid we'll find a few more," said Lt. Ed Ethridge of the Little Rock police.

The Arkansas National Guard began sending troops home Thursday as the floodwaters receded. The force of 116 men on duty Wednesday night was reduced to 28 Thursday. Guardsmen still were assigned to patrol one flooded subdivision Thursday night.

The floodwaters rushed to low-lying areas after a storm dumped between 6 and 12 inches on Little Rock and neighboring Benton, a community of 17,000 about 22 miles southwest of here.

Eight persons died in flooding in southwest Little Rock and two died in Benton.

The body of the 10th victim was found Thursday near Rock Creek in Little Rock. When the creek jumped its banks Wednesday morning, authorities had to use boats to evacuate residents in a 30-square-block area.

Gov. David Pryor has asked President Carter to declare the area a disaster area, which would make it eligible for federal assistance under several programs.

Flood damage was estimated at more than $11 million in the Little Rock area alone.

About 1,000 Little Rock residents fled their homes when floodwaters roared down swollen creeks, overturning cars and washing away some houses early Wednesday. By nightfall, the worst of the flooding was over, but persons living near the Arkansas River in east Little Rock were evacuated as tributaries began rising.

In Benton, two boys walking home from school were swept to their deaths in a flooded creek. Their bodies were found in a railroad yard.

Ethridge said police and the Arkansas National Guard were maintaining security in areas of Little Rock and Benton where flooding was the worst.

Maj. Jackie McRoberts of the Arkansas National Guard said guardsmen were making around-the-clock patrols of the flooded areas. He said trucks were on standby to evacuate residents requesting assistance but had received no requests Thursday.

The prospects of more rain in the area were not well received.

"It's not good at this point," said McRoberts as he watched it rain Thursday morning. "All the debris is blocking the drainage ditches. That could mean that flooding could be worse than yesterday if this keeps coming down."

A low pressure system drifting north-eastward from Texas was expected to bring more rainfall to central Arkansas.

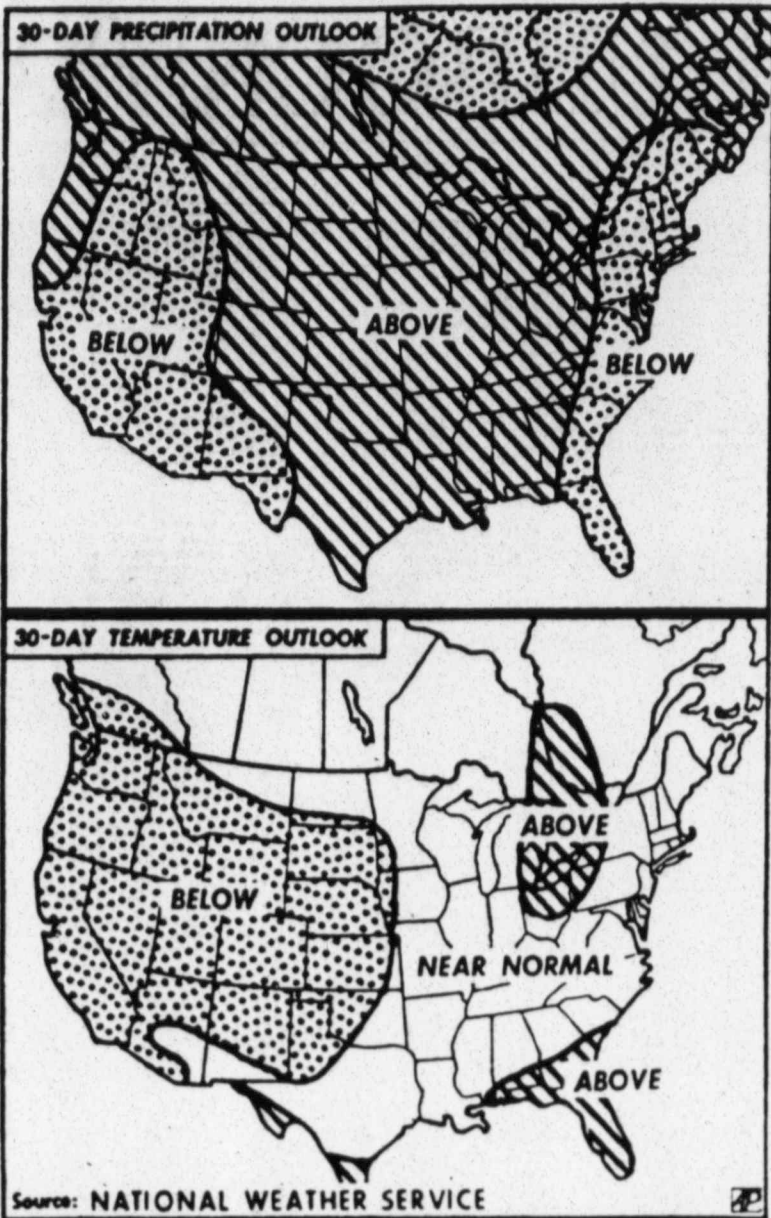

Much of East Texas was awash from the rains Thursday.

Up to 15 inches of rain fell on Center, Tex., before noon. Flash flood warnings were issued in parts of East Texas, South Texas and along six rivers emptying in the Gulf of Mexico.

One death related to the flooding was recorded in San Antonio on Wednesday.

Reporter Relates Terror Of Little Rock Rains

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Associated Press Writer Bill Simmons was one of the thousands of residents of central Arkansas trapped Wednesday by rising waters. Here is his personal account.)

By BILL SIMMONS
ALEXANDER, Ark. (AP) — It was a day of fear.

Shortly after 7 a.m., with coffee steaming in the pot, I parted the curtains at the den windows and watched a broad, deepening, and steady tide of water coursing across the backyard.

Fed by a ditch with links to the drainage around the base of Alexander Mountain, a small creek about 100 feet from the back of the house was brimming. Rain was pouring.

My eldest, Teddi, 14, went out — with my rain hat — to catch a ride with a neighbor, Shirley Boyette, to Mabelvale Junior High School. The Boyettes' van pulled away amid wind-driven sheets of rain.

Toby, 11, my youngest, went to the front porch to await the bus that would take him to Mabelvale Elementary. With a cup of coffee, and shrouded in a robe, I sat with him on the front stoop in a wet wind.

But, seized by a compulsion to have him in my personal care, I told him to come back into the house. I could take him to school myself. The television and radio newscasts had been sounding increasingly serious. I showered and quickly dressed for work, then hastily checked the rain gauge, which was full to the top: five inches. I don't know how long it had been full, but I emptied.

We packed into the Volkswagen and headed out.

We lost the brakes right away in the overflow on spots of Alexander Road, but it was generally passable, and we forged ahead. But at the junction with Viny Ridge Road, about one mile from home, Otter Creek came into view. Normally only 20 feet wide and perhaps a yard deep, it had become a spreading torrent that was overflowing the bridge. Three cars later would stall there and the rising water would cover them completely.

We turned left, aiming to try the route alongside Interstate 30. But the freeway traffic and that on the adjacent road was hopelessly blocked. Otter Creek was swiftly rising here, too. Turning back, we retraced the course through now broader swaths of swirling waters.

At home, the water had deepened; it tumbled like rapids across the yard; it encroached upon the house; it shoved one-foot stones aside and carved grooves through the gravel driveway; the chain link fence was keeling over under the pressure surging through it.

Pine logs that I had buried in the creek wall to shore up a weak point had been dug out and set afloat, flailing the trunks of the oaks that stood in the path of the raging current; I waded out to clear debris to keep the water level from rising, but it was better than knee-deep and I retreated for safety; part of a stone wall gave way; the waves reached a flower stand, dumping it and potted plants that submerged with other debris in the flood. A chunk of concrete 18 inches square was moved 50 feet, bulging into the fence.

Lightning flashed, crackling close. The rushing tide rose to within a few feet of the house. But agony began when we realized that we didn't know whether Teddi had arrived safely at school.

The telephone wouldn't yield a dial tone. The route to school was barred with connecting roads five feet under water.

Incoming calls arrived. Kathy Wright, a friend, and my wife, Jane, 36, agreed to cancellation of a women's Bible study session at Mrs. Wright's home. With a snapping sizzle, a lightning bolt split the air beside the den window — closer even than the cracklers.

My wife staggered, seeking support. Idiotically, I reached for the receiver, not her, as she said, "I got hit."

In her eyes was the look I have seen in the eyes of the dead — the look that seems to mix disbelief with the apparent perception of something mortal eyes do not ordinarily see. She turned ashen.

Toby and I, terrified — the phone wouldn't make outgoing calls, passage to the hospital was impossible — helped her to chair. What to do for Jane? Where was Teddi? How close was the water now?

We grabbed the medical books. Jane was breathing and had no burn, so there was little help for us in them. Dazed, sick, wondering why the taste of metal was in her mouth, fearful that her brain cells had suffered, with symptoms of medical shock, she heard us discover in Toby's Boy Scout manual that medical shock is "DEADLY SERIOUS."

In an almost surrealistic scene, our effort to calm and soothe her degenerated into an open argument — in front of the alarmed and shaky patient — about whether she was mortally injured or merely critical.

(She would tell me later: "I thought I was dead — for a moment. It was like an explosion inside my head and all through my body.")

Linda Pemberton, a neighbor, came to help. She came with tears — rain had flooded her parents house in Benton.

As the hours passed, rest made Jane better. With difficulty she shed the sense of wooziness. By mid-afternoon, we found that Teddi had reached school — and had a grand day, spending a lot of it in the gym, where a certain young man was seen sporting my rain hat. But there was no way to get to her from home.

At 3:16 p.m., the power went off. Otter Creek had submerged part of the grounds at the substitution of Alexander Road. Linda's husband, Bruce, who had gotten to work, called to tell us he had managed to reach the school and had Teddi with him and with his children. They made plans to spend the night at his office.

At 5:40 p.m., the power returned, and I sat down to write.

Crash Stops Daring Escapees

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Two of four prisoners who engineered a daring escape in Tennessee and ditched a hijacked airplane in Arkansas were seized Thursday after colliding with a police car.

The other two escapees were not in the car and eluded capture. They were believed to have two hostages.

Three other hostages who had been taken by the captured fugitives at various points along their trail were released unharmed.

Roadblocks were established on flood-drenched highways to Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma in an attempt to capture fugitives Larry Chism, 33, and Ronald Lyons, 30, who reportedly held an elderly couple hostage.

Officers said the two recaptured prisoners told them that Chism and Lyons talked about heading for Texas.

Authorities in north-central Arkansas, where a heavy downpour persisted for a second day, also set up roadblocks near a small town where the mother of one of the inmates lives. The convicts paired off Thursday morning after taking Mr. and Mrs. John B. King hostage at the couple's home in central Arkansas.

The episode had started Wednesday at a Dickson, Tenn., bowling alley where the minimum-security inmates had gone on a field trip. The inmates used shotguns, which police believe were stored in the bowling alley bathroom, to overpower guards, then hijacked a light plane to Arkansas.

The two captured inmates were seized after a high-speed chase Thursday morning along U.S. 67 in Lawrence County about 100 miles north of the Kings' home in Woodlawn.

They were identified as George Bonds, 24, and Floyd Ray Brewer, 28. The two men offered no resistance, but Bonds was injured in the crash. Officers found two pistols and a shotgun in the car.

"They challenged me to a head-on collision," said Lawrence County Deputy J. R. Hankins. The inmates' efforts to shake pursuers were thwarted when they smashed into Hankins' patrol car.

State police said a trooper had spotted the men and began following them, and the two men attempted to flee. The trooper radioed ahead and Hankins' car headed toward the fleeing vehicle.

The inmates first took a woman hostage at the bowling alley and made her accompany them to the airport. There they freed her and forced airport manager and pilot Mel Romine to fly them to Arkansas, where he landed on a muddy road in Lee County.

A short time later, Romine was released. But the inmate took a second hostage, Richard Rutledge, a farmer who drove to the airplane to offer his help. He was released Thursday morning.

In Nashville, Tenn., federal prosecutor Hal Hardin announced a grand jury returned five-count indictments against each of the escapees. The panel accused them of air piracy, kidnapping, conspiracy, possession of firearms to commit a federal offense, possession of firearms by a convicted felon and aiding and abetting one another in the commission of the first four crimes.

ALASKAN BATTLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department and environmentalists are preparing for a new battle to preserve Alaska wildlands — a battle that promises to create more strife.

Happy Hooper Flouts Henryetta Dance Ban

HENRYETTA, Okla. (AP) — It may be against the law to dance in public in Henryetta. But don't tell Charley McNeil.

Charley is about as public a dancer as you can find anywhere. He dances most of every day on the street corner near the theater. That way he can see all of the cars that go by, and people in them can see him.

The horns get to honking when Charley dances, and the more honking, the more Charley dances.

For a one-honk driver the right foot kicks back and the right arm flies into the air with a sort of cheerful how-are-you attitude. Two honks with kids in the car get a jig step with hands at the waist and for the occasional driver who goes by with a horn that plays Boomer Sooner — the University of Oklahoma football tune — all that is thrown together in a dance like they haven't seen at the discos yet.

"Here I am, 66 years old and still a little bitty kid," he says with a laugh. Nobody seems to know where Charley came from, or how he lives or what he did for a living when he was younger. And Charley doesn't answer that type of question.

He will tell you he was born at Hitchita and worked for a while in California. But that's about all.

Asked how long he has been dancing and he replied, "I never did keep a count on it."

How do you live? "I live on groceries" — and he laughs at that one. Ever married? "If I was, I'd look a lot older."

How long have you lived in Henryetta? "Quite a while."

Henryetta is in a big stir presently over a recent vote affirming a long-standing law prohibiting public dancing in the city.

"People tell me it's against the law to dance in Henryetta," Charley says. "I say, heck, I dance by myself. I don't take no girl up there."

"I just go up there and jump around and people call it dancing. I just done it for the fun of it and to keep in shape."

Deputy Thankful For 'Extra' Help

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark. (AP) — Jim Johnson, a Lawrence County deputy sheriff, said a shootout with two Tennessee prison escapees caught near Hoxie Thursday was avoided with a little help from the Lord.

Escapees Floyd Ray Brewer, 28, and George Bonds, 24, were apprehended near this northeast Arkansas farming community when their car crashed into a patrol car driven by deputy J.R. Hankins.

Johnson was in hot pursuit of the fugitives when the crash occurred.

"We bailed out of our car with our ammunition and approached their car," he said. "But we found they weren't in any shape to offer resistance. That's like getting a little help from somewhere else ... from up above."

Brewer received minor head injuries while Bonds received a more serious gash across the forehead. He was transferred to the University of Arkansas Medical Center at Little Rock. He was listed as seriously injured.

Johnson had just reported for work at Walnut Ridge when he heard on the police monitor in the office that the escapees had been spotted heading north on U.S. 67.

"I jumped in my car and started heading south on the highway," Johnson said. "Then they passed me by, with Mike Coy a little ways behind them."

Coy is a state police criminal investigator.

Johnson said he did a quick U-turn "and stomped it."

As Johnson chased the fugitives down the highway, he saw Hankins approach the convoy from the opposite direction.

"J.R. attempted to swerve sideways to stop them, but they kept going," Johnson said.

Hankins was later to say he felt that the escapees had intentionally challenged him as they approached each other down the highway.

"After I spotted them, the whole thing lasted maybe 30 seconds. It all moved along pretty fast," Hankins said.

Johnson was driving one of three Lawrence County patrol cars. "My only regret was that the crash wiped out a third of our fleet," Johnson said. And that one was brand new.

Jury Finds Man Guilty In Triple Slaying Case

HOUSTON (AP) — A jury deliberated about an hour Thursday in returning a verdict of guilty against David Roeder, 20, on a capital murder charge resulting from a January triple slaying.

Roeder was the first of four men charged to be tried for what prosecutors described as execution-style slayings of Donald Fantich, a pawnshop owner; Dr. William Fitzpatrick, a radiologist; and Georgina Rose, a jewelry store owner.

The bodies of the three were found buried in a common grave Jan. 24 on the Roeder family farm near Shiner.

Roeder was tried only on the charge involving the death of Fitzpatrick. It took three weeks to select the jury for the trial that lasted less than two weeks.

Defense lawyers W. B. House and Bob Scott rested their case Wednesday without calling any witnesses in the court of District Judge Lee Dugan.

House and Scott had sought unsuccessfully to place Roeder on the witness stand to testify only that a statement given to authorities had not been given voluntarily.

Prosecutors Doug Shaver and Ted Wilson objected to the defense strategy, arguing they would be free to cross-examine Roeder about the entire case if he decided to testify.

Also charged in the case are Claude Wilkerson, 23; Mark Cass, 22; and Robert Avila, 23.

In Roeder's statement introduced in the trial he was quoted as saying he, Cass and Avila shot the three victims as they knelt blindfolded beside a grave. Wilkerson was alleged to have masterminded the plot that also involved the disappearance of $180,000 in jewelry.

Prosecutors introduced more than 150 exhibits, including guns, tape that allegedly was used to tape the victims and photographs of the gravesite and bodies.

AN EDITORIAL:

New Crunch On Free Lunch?

ONE REASON taxpayers are convinced that their tax dollars are squandered has been brought into the sunlight again by two Lubbock school trustees.

They think the guidelines for eating tax-subsidized breakfasts and lunches are too liberal and that federal-state directives discourage weeding out unneeded freeloaders.

Trustees Harold Harriger and Giles (Buddy) Forbess, among others, are undoubtedly correct in that assessment. The free lunch and free breakfast program in the public schools from coast-to-coast is a multi-million dollar example of waste and extravagance.

MEANINGFUL reform is unlikely because of lobbying pressure on the one hand by liberals who think the government owes everybody a living and because fiscally conservative lawmakers fear being branded as heartless if they object too loudly or too long.

As a result, children from truly needy families are joined at the tax-subsidized food plate by children whose parents can afford to feed them and by others whose parents lie in order to qualify for the free lunch program.

This means taxpayers are paying for a lot of meals they shouldn't be paying for, all over the country.

Federal guidelines allow school systems to choose between two eligibility scales, one more liberal than the other. Lubbock uses the more liberal one, which allows a family of four with a gross income of less than $8,110 to qualify for free meals.

A family of four with an income up to $12,660 qualifies for reduced-price meals, which is 10 cents for breakfast and 20 cents for lunch.

That is, of course, ridiculous.

PARENTS MUST "certify" that they give correct family income information in order to qualify for free or reduced-price meals.

The probability of misrepresentation is evident, though, by the fact that about 11,000 of Lubbock's 31,000 pupils eat free meals and another 1,000 eat at reduced prices.

"No verification (of information submitted by parents) is permitted prior to taking an application. School officials must determine the child's eligibility based on the information submitted on the application and extend appropriate benefits to that child," the Texas Education Agency has decreed in interpreting federal regulations.

Power to investigate suspicious claims is granted but, in practice here and elsewhere, attempts to challenge the eligibility are relatively rare because of the bureaucratic discouragement.

Taxpayers are not heartless; they are not prejudiced against the poor or the needy. But they do resent freeloading and the sound of revolt against high taxes is in the air.

AN EDITORIAL:

Politics Not Splinter Game

IN RECENT YEARS, there has been much talk about what is happening to the traditional political party lineup in the United States.

On several occasions, it has been difficult to tell which side which candidate is on without a program, as it were.

Now, after a seeming shakedown period, the lines again may be falling into place, this time more in the context of Liberal-Democrats and Conservative-Republicans.

FOR THOSE who may argue that this is nothing new, we beg to disagree.

The implication here, in theory if not in practice—and there is much evidence of the latter—is that the Conservative element of the Democratic party may at long last be ready to shift to the Republican banner, if for no other reason than to more sharply define the political principles as well as players.

It may be just in time, too. A look at what has happened and is happening in those European nations where the political process has been factionalized and fractionalized is enough to cause many a voter to shift rather than fight.

AS A FOR instance, it takes little more than a drive around the Colosseum in Rome during rush hour traffic to convince most visitors that Italians have a certain kamikaze flair for the dramatic.

Speeding in and out among ancient ruins, Rome traffic seems to operate on the verge of some great self-destruct catastrophe. The same has been said of politics in Italy where 40 postwar governments have turned the nation into a theater of the absurd.

If people generally get the government they deserve," observes Joseph LaPalombara of Yale. "Then this law seems to work most sardonically and grotesquely in Italy, creating some of the most Byzantine political patterns known to the Western world."

THE SAME can be said with lesser degree for France, which turned away from the brink at the last moment, and in a few more removed countries, Greece among them.

The lesson here is that instead of going off in a half dozen directions, the U.S. citizen should choose his basic philosophical—and practical—belief, stick to it, and most importantly choose candidates and officeholders who will implement those beliefs.

Labels in the purist sense mean absolutely nothing, unless they stand for something. The question then is: "What do the labels mean, in terms of past, present and future performance?" It's something to think about as the Fall Elections draw nearer.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Light Brigade Charged Right Into A Disaster

LONDON—Britain has experienced many military disasters, but perhaps the worst was the British cavalry's Light Brigade's charge during the Crimean War.

This was later immortalized by poet laureate Alfred Lord Tennyson in "The Charge of the Light Brigade." And you would need a Tennyson to make a victory out of that ghastly debacle.

The charge was perhaps the most stupid maneuver in British military annals since General Sir William Pakenham led a frontal attack against General Andrew Jackson's earthworks in the War of 1812.

Sir William was slain. About 2,000 of his British troops were killed or wounded. We Americans lost 70 men. The battle lasted only a half an hour. And it remains famous for having been fought—due to slow communications—two weeks after the peace in the War of 1812 was signed at Ghent on Christmas Eve, 1814.

THE CRIMEAN War was precipitated by a dispute between Greek Orthodox and Roman Catholic monks over places Turkey held in Palestine. Russian Czar Nicholas I extended protection to the Greeks.

Russia occupied Turkish-held Moldavia and Walachia and France feared Russia's expansion. On Oct. 4, 1853, Turkey declared war on this country and France and on May 28, 1854, England and France declared war on Russia.

At first the British people welcomed the Crimean War. But it turned out to be an absolute disaster.

The British cavalry's Light Brigade was led by James Thomas Brudenell Cardigan, 7th Earl of Cardigan—called like Lord Brudenell.

Wealthy officers here the first Baron Raglan, the British commander in chief, and Major Gen. Lord Cardigan took their yachts with them. They sailed south in their yachts—everything spit and polish—to Gibraltar.

As though any war could wait, they dallied several weeks at Gibraltar. Then they sailed leisurely through the Mediterranean to Crimea.

Hard-eyed and constantly on the alert, Lord Cardigan was a masterpiece of arrogance. He was slippery as an eel and his movements were jerky and quick, like a bird's.

Lord Cardigan purchased most of his promotions and drove some of his officers to insubordination. But he made his cavalrymen the best dressed in the British service by spending large sums of his own money.

Baron Raglan's order was further confused in transmission. To Lord Cardigan it called for a charge over the full length of the valley rather than toward a Russian force withdrawing from a ridge.

THE RUSSIAN fire came from three directions. Lord Cardigan led his brigade through the Russian fire until he reached the end of the valley. Then, very slightly wounded, he left the battlefield while his cavalry were still fighting. Lord Cardigan returned to his yacht to sleep.

The charge was an effort to capture the wrong battery of Russian guns. It decimated 75 percent of Lord Cardigan's forces.

His own brigade called Lord Cardigan "a dangerous ass," but he set sail for Southampton in his lavish yacht and thence to London. The city turned out to lionize him, although he failed to mention leaving his troops on the battlefield.

Lord Cardigan dressed himself in the elaborate self-designed uniform of Balaklava.

LORD CARDIGAN served as inspector general of cavalry for five years and in 1861 was promoted to lieutenant general. But the bungling in the Crimean War was literally inconceivable.

The British troops were short of food, medical supplies, etc. Their death rate was at least 50 percent.

Only three features distinguished it: Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade"; history's first war correspondent, Howard Russell of the London "Times," who accompanied the British troops; and British nurse Florence Nightingale who established the world's first dressing stations.

Arrivals And Departures

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Big Jim's Not Sure

CHICAGO—Failure to scent tax-cut fever abroad in the land has quickly showed aside Gov. James (Big Jim) Thompson's presidential dreams and substituted a struggle for mere survival.

Most politicians still consider Thompson a sure winner over his under-financed, listlessly-supported Democratic opponent, State Controller Michael Bakalis. A Republican poll shows otherwise.

Kept top secret by the Thompson camp, it reveals Bakalis' within striking distance, one insider reports the difference less than 5 percentage points.

"When Jim read that poll," a Republican politician told us, "he couldn't believe he had gone down so fast."

Aides prevailed on Thompson not to attend the recent Governors' Conference in Boston where his presidential prospects would have been a center of media attention.

ANDREW TULLY:

Hook Up Of Horns

WASHINGTON—It was not on the agenda for the Camp David Middle East summit, but lower-level officials of the U.S., Egypt and Israel had informal talks on the current battle of words between the Soviet Union and Communist China.

The meat of these conversations was a naked fear that war could break out between those two Communist giants and the need for an international effort to head off hostilities.

Only hours after President Carter, Israel's Menachem Begin and Egypt's Anwar Sadat had their first meeting, an American official put it this way:

"If ever there was a need for the United Nations to get off its collective behind and use its influence, it is provided by the dangerous insults exchanged by Moscow and Peking. That's the way world wars start."

PERHAPS IT IS fatuous to expect the UN to do anything constructive about keeping the peace anywhere in the world. Africa is the latest example of its slothful inadequacies.

But the situation has become perilous when some high Western officials admit concern that the Soviet Union might launch a preemptive strike against Red China.

Chinese Defense Minister Hsu Hsiang-chien, in an article last month in the Chinese Communist Party's journal Red Flag, gently chided the U.S. for building up its war arsenal, but declined flatly that "the danger comes mainly from the arctic bear."

HSU WENT ON to declare that "the hands of the Soviet Union are reaching out farther and farther, thereby becoming a source of world war far more dangerous than the United States."

And he added that Red China would "help all who wage resolute struggle against the Soviet Union."

Commented a State Department official: "That comes as close to a declaration of war as you can without any shots."

Indeed, Hsu even spelled out Peking's official thinking on war with the USSR, which he seemed to believe was inevitable.

Hsu predicted that in the end China would prevail through a prolonged "people's war, our struggle will be easier only if we allow the enemy to come in and then strike at him."

MOSCOW'S OFFICIAL viewpoint, as presented by the government newspaper, Pravda, in effect accused Peking of treason to the Communist cause. "The present rulers of China are joining up with the most aggressive forces of imperialism and reaction," it cried.

It is all very well to conclude that this latest chapter in the Peking-Moscow quarrel is merely political infighting, with each side campaigning against the other's efforts to bolster its influence on international events.

But the Russians and Chinese are using real, bottled-in-bomb, fighting words—the kind used by Hitler to foment World War II. You don't talk about war, as one official Camp David observer put it, unless you're willing to fight one.

Like California's Gov. Jerry Brown, Thompson missed the public's revulsion over high taxes; this summer he vetoed two tax-cut proposals.

Unlike Brown, he bungled his recovery; the drive for a Thompson tax referendum has opened a snake's pit of political goblins undercutting his reputation as a crusading federal prosecutor which remains his basic political strength.

AS 1978 BEGAN, Thompson seemed the sure winner for re-election and Bakalis a sacrificial lamb.

Neither he nor his aides were interested in tax-cut measures introduced by state Rep. Don Totten, who ran Ronald Reagan's Illinois presidential campaign in 1976 and has promised to do so again in 1980.

When Totten visited Thompson to discuss a compromise version of his proposed constitutional amendment limiting state taxes, the governor turned thumbs down on "any" tax limitation. Thanks to Thompson's opposition, it died in the legislature.

But the Democratic-controlled legislature did pass a Bakalis-backed tax rebate and a Totten bill to automatically lower taxes as inflation rises. Thompson vetoed both, though Republican politicians believe he should have used the item veto to get an amended version.

IN FOLLOWING sound budgetary principles, Thompson was deaf to public anguish over rising tax burdens. Not until the hot breath of Proposition 13 reached the Midwest from California did the governor react.

He personally drafted a proposition for the November ballot asking whether the public wanted unspecified tax limitation at an unspecified time. With some justice, Bakalis called it "Proposition Zero."

Now, the political pitfalls faced by the outsider in office converged on Thompson. Republican party workers, ignored by him for 19 months, dragged their feet in collecting 589,000 signatures needed in a month to get the proposition on the ballot.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie was among those ignored. While publicly denouncing Thompson's proposition, Ogilvie privately told Republican allies: "We've got to stop him." That was interpreted as opposing Thompson's drive for the White House.

WORST OF ALL, Thompson did not appreciate the probability of forgery in an 11th-hour petition drive in Illinois. Despite highly publicized irregularities, the proposition has been put on the ballot, but court challenges and exposures persist.

Fairly or not, it tarnishes Thompson's reputation as the U.S. attorney who put crooked politicians in jail—by Thompson's own assessment, still his political longshot.

Nor has Thompson fully adjusted to the politics of tax revolt. When they debated over statewide television in Carbondale Sept. 6, Bakalis closed by accusing the governor of one of the great flops of all time in joining the tax limiters.

Oddly, Thompson ignored the remark and closed by refuting Bakalis' charges that the state has not claimed sufficient federal welfare funds. Earlier that day, Totten unveiled a new proposed constitutional amendment (intended for the 1980 ballot) limiting both state and local taxes.

Thompson called to kid him about stealing his thunder on the Thompson proposition. "Turnabout is fair play," Totten replied. Thompson told reporters after the debate he might support Totten's new proposal—about three months too late.

BAKALIS HAS TOLD Totten he might endorse the new proposal beating the governor to the punch. But Bakalis, too, is plagued by ambivalence on taxes. He is eager for backing from the well-financed teachers' union, formidable foes of tax limitation.

After the Carbondale debate, he told newsmen he opposed any "tax freeze" because "it puts government in a straitjacket" but the next day told us the Totten limitation is not a "freeze."

Thompson's greatest asset may indeed be Bakalis, who sounds like a liberal of the 1960s denouncing Thompson for not stressing rehabilitation at state prisons.

JAY HARRIS:

A Harvest Moon...

THOUGHT FOR Today: Tact is the ability to raise your eyebrows instead of the roof.

OVERHEARD: Anybody who has to ask for advice probably doesn't have any close relatives.

TIME WAS when one of the area's rituals of this season of the year, in addition to the Panhandle South Plains Fair, was any number of Harvest Festivals.

The custom, which for the most part has faded away, was a sort of pre-Thanksgiving rite. Usually, there were parades, bazaars, displays of canned food, sometimes crafts and clothing, crops and at night—under a huge Harvest Moon—dancing.

It is a custom dating back hundreds of years.

This year, if such events were still in vogue, this weekend would be it. The full moon which shines closest to the Sept. 23 autumnal equinox—when the sun crosses the celestial equator from north to south—has come to be known as the Harvest Moon. It reaches that point this Saturday.

During Harvest Moon time, the moon lights the early night sky for a greater number of evenings than at any other time of the year, providing full light from just after sunset to just before sunrise.

FESTIVALS LINKED to the gathering of crops have been held throughout recorded history.

Some kind of rite celebrating the harvest in early Autumn has been observed virtually everywhere in the world where grains such as corn and wheat are cultivated.

The Romans had harvest-type festivals, including feasts in honor of Ceres, the goddess of grain and agriculture. The Druids celebrated their harvest on Nov. 1.

Half way around the world, the Korean harvest festival occurs on the 15th day of the eighth lunar month each year. In 1978, it coincides exactly with the Harvest Moon. Koreans traditionally honor their forebears by visiting ancestors' tombs and leaving food offerings. The celebrants also thank the harvest's guarding spirits for nature's bounty.

For residents of New Zealand, Australia and a portion of South Africa, this year's Harvest Moon time will offer a bonus. Starting just before noon, Central time, there will be a total eclipse of the moon in those areas. Happy Harvest Moon time!

SLIDE ROAD Sam Says: With the bounty we enjoy in this area, every day should be Thanksgiving Day.

THE OFFICE Philosopher notes that well-balanced people seldom try to throw their weight around.

SOMETIMES, WE think, the movie-going public has some sort of disaster wish.

While the nostalgia kick is still alive and thriving, the biggest such as Star Wars, Jaws I and II, the Airport series, Swarm and the earlier Earthquake and The Towering Inferno all have done quite well at the boxoffice, thank you.

Just off the cuff, one would think that that list would just about exhaust the book for such things. Not so.

Recently, the next blockbuster was announced. "Outer Space Is Not Empty" a page ad we saw said: "A five mile-wide meteor is on a collision course with Earth. It will strike in June 1979 at leading theaters..." The name of the show: Meteor Naturally.

DESK SIGN: "It often shows a fine command of the language to say nothing."

IT'S HARD for a fellow to keep a chip on his shoulder if you allow him to take a bow.

HOW MUCH does the "first impression" in a political race affect the outcome?

How many times have you changed your mind about a candidate after hearing one or more in the same race speak? Do the polls sway your opinion, cause you to vote for "the leader," the underdog or just make you angry? Has anyone ever asked your opinion for one of those surveys?

Does the way a candidate dresses affect your vote? How about his looks, his financial status, his profession, his wife, what others say?

If it were possible to come up with surefire answers to those questions, a lot of Texas political hopefuls could save a lot of money and maybe even get elected.

WE GOT TO mulling over some of these things recently after listening to a number of persons voice their views on what "This or That Candidate or So and So" would make a good governor, congressman, dogcatcher.

The most garbled, and disappointing, thing we have observed is how so few people actually discuss what a candidate stands for. The Issues.

The reason, of course, is that far too many don't take the trouble to find out what "So and So" stand for on various issues.

Many voters, we feel, know what they themselves think and then attempt to link their views to a candidate, unless he has a voting record so crystal clear there is no escaping it. On the other side of the coin, it is equally amazing how much "word of mouth" campaigning plays a part in the outcome of some races.

All of which is to say there is still plenty of time left before Tuesday Nov. 7 general election to bone up on what "they" stand for. Stop, look, read and listen. We just might pick the best man or woman for the job after all...

NOBODY HAS ever turned down the nomination of the U.S. presidency after it was offered by the majority party.

A new bit of whimsy among the college crowd is the sale of individual foreheads for advertisements. Participants paste stickers on their brows which read: "Your Message in This Space." Believe a totally bald man started it. With such a sticker on top of his head.

Get it right, please: The Smiths outnumber the Johnsons in this country by at least half a million.

In the distance, if you knew where to look, you could barely see the life-size silhouette of a small bighorn sheep. It was the only remaining target of what had been a row of five rams.

Made of a commercial grade armor plate metal and painted jet black, the ram stood exactly 500 meters away from the shooting stand. The distance, almost a third of a mile, appeared to be much farther as heat waves shimmered near the target under a New Mexico sun.

The Hobbs marksman put a shell in the rifle's chamber and carefully closed the bolt. Slowly he brought the firearm down for the fifth time to sight through the rifle's telescope. Without the benefit of a steadying prop or even a sling, the shooter held the firearm steady for 10 seconds as he sighted the last ram.

Immediately, with the report of the rifle, there was the sound of metal being hit by the rifle's slug and the ram fell over. It had been a beautiful demonstration of high power metallic silhouette shooting.

Thomas B. Gatewood, secretary of the Hobbs Gun Club, said, "This is a good spectator sport because you not only hear the bullet hit the target, but you also see the animal go down. That's why you'll always see spectators at silhouette matches."

Silhouette shooting, although relatively new, is the fastest-growing shooting sport in the United States. The sport originated in Mexico as "Silvetas Metalicas" in the 1950s. It evolved from the shooting matches of pioneer times, and remains today in the form of turkey shoots.

On the silhouette range with the rams are metal silhouettes of of turkeys, pigs and chickens. The smallest target, a chicken, is 200 meters distant from the shooting stand — that's a little over 218 yards. The chicken, less than 12 inches in height, is the closest target. But it's still a distance of more than two football fields away.

"I've had people tell me about shooting a deer at several hundred yards," noted Gatewood, "but when they come out here and see the rams at 500 meters they just can't believe the ability of our shooters."

One member of the Hobbs Gun Club won the Texas State Silhouette Matches last year and placed third this year. Club members have also won two regional, placed 2nd in the New Mexico State Matches and 2nd in the Texas State Silhouette Matches the last three years.

Mike Whittaker, a recent devotee to the sport, remarked, "I like the competition of silhouette shooting. It gets kind of fierce out here sometimes." He added, "And it has really helped me with my hunting."

Lowell Trout, the newest member of the silhouette activists, said, "I've been hunting ever since I've been big enough to pick up a gun, and I fell in love with this sport."

Silhouette matches will find shooters, men and women, of all ages. The youngest silhouette shooter at the Hobbs range is 13, and the New Mexico state champion this year (an Arizona marksman) is 67 years of age.

Earl G. Owens took aim at a turkey and squeezed the trigger. Almost a quarter of a mile away (388 meters) the turkey flipped over backward.

Standardized silhouette rules established by the National Rifle Association, in-cooperation with a United States and an international silhouette association, require that a target must be knocked off its stand or over onto it to be considered a hit. Anything else, including spinning the target all the way around, is ruled a miss. The targets must also be knocked over in a consecutive sequence. Owens methodically knocked over the next turkey and then another.

Most hunting rifles weighing no more than 10 pounds 2 ounces with scope can be used in shooting. Specialized bench-type stocks and grips are not allowed. Palm rests, heavy gloves, shooting coats, or slings that would give artificial support are not allowed. The shooter has to maintain a standing position.

In silhouette shooting procedure, a shooter must fire five shots in a period of 2 1/2 minutes. The time factor can be unnerving on a gusty day when the wind velocity is variable.

Trout noted, "When you first come out here, it looks real easy. But, once you try it, you discover how difficult it is to knock over a distant silhouette without using some kind of support for the rifle. At my first meet, I was only able to hit two consecutive silhouettes. Now after a lot of practice and good coaching, I've been able to knock over 17 consecutive targets."

"Practice is very important," agreed Gatewood. "Right now I'm helping Lowell with the mirage factor. When flags indicate there is a breeze from one direction, but a mirage near the target is going another direction, then it's important to adjust for the mirage." He added that a good gunsmith is very important to the serious shooter.

Because metal for the targets has become so expensive, magnum loads are not allowed in silhouette shooting. Magnum ammunition would quickly make the targets unusable.

"We purchased enough armor plate metal this past year to make five rams," said Gatewood. "The metal cost nearly $400." He pointed across the vast range. "You're looking at between $2,000 and $2,500 for a full set of animals. Needless to say, we want these targets to last quite awhile."

The fast growing sport doesn't require a major investment for most shooters inasmuch as the sport is designed to use hunting type rifles. One of the most common of firearms seen at the Hobbs silhouette range is the 700 Remington varmint rifle.

A .308 caliber is adequate for all of the animals and the distances, but some shooters prefer a .30/06 caliber for its greater velocity and knock-down power. However, the .308 brass is plentiful because of military use.

With a membership of approximately 220 members, the Hobbs Gun Club range becomes a busy area with the approach of deer season. The range is a convenient place to sight-in a big game rifle.

About 25 to 30 of the club members are active in silhouette shooting; the same number of members are into black powder activities, and from 20 to 25 are active trap shooters.

More information pertaining to the club and silhouette shooting is available from Gatewood at (506) 392-5413 or 393-9176 in Hobbs. Or write Hobbs Gun Club, P.O. Box 2295, Hobbs 88240.

The best possible score in a high power metallic silhouette match is 40 consecutive hits; the official national record is 33 hits. Come the 24th of September and the 22nd of October, matches at the Hobbs silhouette range will see several marksmen with their sights adjusted for a perfect score.

Silhouettes of bighorn sheep march across a rail at the Hobbs Gun Club. Cutouts of chickens, pigs, turkeys and sheep are used in target shooting, much like the old-time carnival midway shooting gallery, but lifesize and at realistic distances.

Earl G. Owens uses a target scope to check a row of rams more than 546 yards away. Variables such as wind and mirage are taken into consideration when aiming at the animal silhouettes.

Members of the Hobbs Gun Club practice for a shooting match. The Hobbs marksmen consistently have placed high in competition, one member winning the Texas State Silhouette Matches last year.

Crews Sift Pit In Search For Amarillo Couple

DOLORES, Colo. (AP)—Montezuma County sheriff's officers and work crews have sifted through tons of river rock and dead timber in a 200-square foot pit, but have come up with no trace of a young Texas couple missing since Aug. 9.

Members of a county road crew shoveled through debris in a newly-filled pit through most of Wednesday, where they believed James and Janet Margene

Judge might have been buried. The pit is not far from where clothing and camping gear belonging to the missing Amarillo couple was found Sept. 5.

Sheriff Bob Hampton said after Wednesday's probe that organized search efforts for the newlywed couple will stop, but his department will continue to follow any leads it receives, he said.

"I sleep better at night knowing we have followed up on everything," Hampton said. "But it's still eating at me. What eats me is, one of the Tisons boys told us 'You will be surprised where you find them.'"

The couple was believed killed by a gang of Arizona men on Aug. 8 or Aug. 9. The couple had called relatives in Amarillo on Aug. 8 during their trip through the South Fork area about 125 miles east of Dolores. The Judges' van was used by members of the Tison Gang when they attempted to a lawmen's roadblock in Casa Grande, Ariz., on Aug. 11.

Captured in the shootout that followed were Arizona State Prison escapee Randy Greenawalt of Thornton, Colo.; and two sons of another escapee, Gary Tison.

A third Tison son was killed later, and Tison's body was later found in the Arizona desert.

was a big joke." He said no charges could be filed against them in Montezuma County because of a lack of evidence.

According to Hampton, the Tisons' activity in the area can be sketched from Aug. 6, when they were known to have spent the night at a Roswell, N.M., campground. He said he believes they made contact with the Judge couple on Aug. 9, sometime after 8:30 p.m., after the couple called their families in Texas.

Hampton said they could be traced though south fork to Bayfield, outside of Durango, and their van and a pickup were spotted across from the picnic area where some of their belongings were found.

FBI Investigates Terrorists

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The FBI confirmed Thursday that it is investigating the possibility of international terrorists having infiltrated the Iranian student movement.

Government sources say the terrorists may have triggered violence at a Sept. 1 demonstration in Los Angeles that left 48 persons injured, according to a report published Thursday.

FBI spokesman John Morrison, who said an inquiry is under way, declined to give details on the probe.

He also declined to comment on an article Thursday in the Los Angeles Herald Examiner describing the FBI probe and reporting leads being pursued by investigators.

That article said investigators suspect members of one group, the Organization of Iranian Peoples Fedayee Guerrillas, have a relationship with the Baader-Meinhof terrorists who have been blamed for arson, kidnapping and murder in West Germany.

Members of the Iranian student movement were not immediately available for comment on the report.

An unidentified FBI official was quoted in the newspaper as saying the probe was focusing on several individuals within the Iranian student movement and not on the student movement's leaders.

The newspaper said government sources believe some Fedayee guerrillas and members of other groups may have orchestrated the violent confrontation between police and demonstrators in downtown Los Angeles that left 48 persons injured, including nine police officers. Police arrested 171 demonstrators during the club-swinging melee.

Iranian student groups staged the demonstration to protest the domestic policies of the Shah of Iran.

The newspaper said investigators believe members of the Fedayee guerrilla group helped smuggle Kristina Berster, allegedly a member of the Baader-Meinhof gang, into the United States in July.

Miss Berster was detained at the U.S.-Canadian border in Vermont by U.S. Customs Service officials. She was later indicted for using falsified documents to enter the country. At the time of her arrest, she was reportedly using an Iranian passport stolen when radicals occupied the Iranian consulate in Geneva, Switzerland, in June 1976.

Two Workers Charged In Girl's Murder

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—Two migrant workers were charged with murder Thursday in the slaying of 13-year-old Tammi Lea Pearo, whose nude body was found eight days after she disappeared while bicycling home.

Her disappearance had prompted one of the most intense searches ever launched in western Michigan.

Kent County Prosecutor David Sawyer said he had issued warrants charging Thomas Nelson and James Muhamet with felony murder.

Nelson, 31, was in custody in Kent County.

Muhamet, an 18-year-old from Muskegon, had not been located. Sawyer said the search for him was concentrated in Florida where Nelson was arrested last week on a Michigan burglary charge.

Nelson was arraigned on that burglary charge Wednesday, with bond set at $10,000.

Sawyer refused to discuss what led to the issue of the warrants and would not comment on a possible motive in the case.

Miss Pearo's body was found in a densely wooded area on Aug. 29, about 20 miles from where authorities believed she was abducted while returning home from a store.

Variety Of People Make Up Sandinista Front

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The battle to end four decades of Somoza rule has transformed the Sandinista National Liberation Front from a small and shadowy Marxist revolutionary group into a movement its supporters say encompasses a wide cross-section of Nicaraguans.

"We are Sandinistas, like all of the people," said a statement issued recently by the "Group of 12," an organization of university professors, priests, doctors and lawyers that has rallied opposition to President Anastasio Somoza.

The Sandinistas have proposed the Group of 12 head a provisional government that would replace Somoza. One of the group, former National University Rector Carlos Tunnerman, announced from Costa Rica that they accepted the idea.

For the past week Sandinista rebels, many of them youths who have taken to the barricades on the spur of the moment, have been fighting government troops in a half-dozen Nicaraguan cities, trying to force Somoza's ouster.

Today's instant Sandinistas, led by a core of trained guerrillas, are much different from the revolutionaries who made up the original organization founded in 1960 by Carlos Fonseca Amador, a Fidel Castro-trained Marxist.

"What you have today is a wide variety of people who back the concept of Sandinismo," one diplomat said. "The concept is intertwined with the belief that this is a battle for national dignity."

The Sandinistas take their name from Augusto Cesar Sandino, a guerrilla leader who spearheaded the fight against U.S. Marines occupying Nicaragua in the 1920s and 1930s. Sandino was later killed on orders of Anastasio Somoza Garcia, the current president's father, who took power after being installed as head of the national guard by the Marines.

Reporters who visited Esteli, one of three major cities in rebel hands in northwest Nicaragua, were besieged by self-proclaimed Sandinistas who said they were not communists.

"This is just a city in revolt," said one young man who was armed with a pistol and wore a bandana across his face. Many young fighters wearing the red and black of the Sandinistas spoke in terms reminiscent of communist propaganda. But one informed source insisted, "There is a Marxist element in the FSLN, but it is obviously not in a position to control the movement."

Many Nicaraguans seem unsure what to expect if the Sandinistas gain real power in their country.

"What is it the Sandinistas want?" asked one young woman running a small highway-side motel between Leon and Masaya. "President Somoza says they are communists, but other people say they just want to help the people."

The magazine Sandinista Fight, in an edition distributed in Panama, recently listed what it described as minimum demands for change in Nicaragua:

— Formation of a popular democratic government that will favor small farmers, small businessmen and low-salaried public workers.

— Repeal of the nation's penal code, the radio and television code imposing self-censorship and the police code.

— An end to all dependency on "foreign capitalist powers."

— An end to "all repression against the people."

— An end to "all repression against the people."

— An end to "all repression against the people."

— An end to "all repression against the people."

tionwide after rebels seized the national capitol building Aug. 22 also called for establishment of an "army of the people" and denounced those who favor negotiations with Somoza.

The rebels took hostages in the capitol building and forced Somoza to release 59 political prisoners and give them $500,000 ransom and safe passage to Panama.

Assassination ended Caligula's Roman reign in 41 AD.

STREET FIGHTER — A Sandinista rebel darts across the street firing an automatic weapon at the National Guard in Esteli, Nicaragua, Wednesday. ## Rhodesians End Talks With Nkomo

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith on Thursday ruled out further contacts with black nationalist guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo and said Rhodesia's only hope for a peaceful settlement now lies with the American and British governments.

Addressing a packed news conference here, Smith described Nkomo as a "monster," and said the biracial transition government would ban local affiliates of the foreign-based guerrilla movements headed by Nkomo and Robert Mugabe.

"Certainly I haven't left any doors open and I sincerely hope I don't have to have any truck with the gentleman concerned," said Smith.

Nkomo's Zambian-based guerrillas and Mugabe's forces in Mozambique — armed respectively by Moscow and Peking — are linked in a fragile alliance known as the Patriotic Front, which has been fighting a six-year war for control of Rhodesia.

Smith and three black moderates have forged a transition government to bring black-majority rule to Rhodesia.

Referring to Nkomo's declaration that his guerrillas used a missile to shoot down a Rhodesian civilian airliner Sept. 3, Smith said, "this man (Nkomo) has put himself beyond the pale... his action has disclosed him as a monster of no mean proportions."

Rhodesia says 48 of the 56 persons aboard survived the crash and witnesses say 10 of the 18 survivors were murdered by guerrillas. Nkomo claimed his guerrillas downed the plane because Rhodesian civilian aircraft are sometimes used to ferry troops and supplies, but he denied his men massacred survivors.

Speaking in a national broadcast Sunday, Smith denounced the plane incident and initiated a crackdown on Patriotic Front supporters in Rhodesia.

In London, a top Nkomo aide said Thursday he fled to England to escape arrest and death in Rhodesia. About 300 Nkomo supporters were reported arrested by Rhodesian authorities in the Smith-ordered roundup.

Josiah Chinamano, vice chairman of Nkomo's Zimbabwe African People's Union, said he went into hiding after being tipped off about his impending arrest. He said he was able to fly from Rhodesia to South Africa and then to London because airport authorities hadn't been alerted.

"We had been warned that once we had been arrested we would be shot," he said.

In his Sunday broadcast, Smith had not ruled out new talks with Nkomo.

He and Nkomo had met secretly in Lusaka, Zambia, two weeks ago in an unsuccessful bid to iron out a settlement that would have brought Nkomo into the transition government.

Nkomo, however, said at a news conference in Lusaka Monday that U.S.-British efforts to bring the guerrillas to a conference with the transition government were now dead.

Commenting on the chances for a peace transition to black rule, Smith said, "The whole thing depends on whether the British and American governments have got the will to push for a settlement. We know they have the muscle."

Law Seeks Auto Linked To Steakhouse Murders

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Law enforcement agencies around the nation are on the lookout for a stolen car that may be connected to the murders of six steakhouse employees and three members of a Texas family.

The Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation describes the car as a yellowish beige, four-door 1978 Mercury Zephyr, with an Oklahoma license tag XK5886 and a tan interior.

The car was stolen June 23 from the Hertz Rent A Car lot at the Will Rogers World Airport here, OSBI agent Al Abernathy said Thursday, in announcing the nationwide search for the car.

The killers of the Melvin Lorenz family, of San Antonio, Texas, are believed by authorities to have driven the Lorenz's pickup truck to a parking lot of a motel at the airport after the Lorenz murders June 22.

The pickup was found abandoned a few days later in the motel parking lot.

Dick Wilkerson, assistant OSBI director, said the rental car was not reported stolen until about one week ago.

A Hertz spokesman said the company was unaware previously that the car had been stolen.

The murder of the Lorenz family near Purcell has been linked with the July 16 killing of six employees of a Siroloin Stockade restaurant in southwest Oklahoma City.

The guns were found abandoned last month in Oklahoma City.

In another development, police said they were checking a tip that a man had bragged about his involvement in the steakhouse murders recently.

The man, who was not identified, was expected to be sought for questioning.

The OSBI also announced it will send a third gun that was found along with the two abandoned murder weapons to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Washington for testing to try and determine its serial number. The serial number has been partially destroyed and officials have been unable to make it out.

The steakhouse killings were the worst mass murder in Oklahoma City history.

The six employees were killed execution-style and their bodies were found stuffed in a meat locker. The killers escaped with $1,200 to $1,500 from the restaurant. Officials believe the robbers killed the employees to eliminate witnesses.

Mevin Lorenz, 38, his wife Linda, 31, and Lorenz's son Richard, 12, were murdered while driving along Interstate 35 from San Antonio to North Dakota to attend a funeral. Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz were both Air Force sergeants.

Designer Denies Claims Of Kidnapping Daughter

NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion designer Calvin Klein swore Thursday that he had no part in planning his daughter's kidnapping, as has been claimed by a lawyer for one of two persons accused of abducting the 11-year-old girl last Feb. 3.

"Did you acquiesce to having your daughter taken off the bus, taken to the apartment at 60 E. 97th St. and confined there?" asked the prosecutor, Thomas Demakis.

finally, late that afternoon, racing to the upper East Side apartment building to reclaim the child.

"No," said Klein, testifying in the kidnap trial of Paule Ransay, 23, and her half-brother, Dominique Ransay, 19, in Manhattan Supreme Court before Justice Thomas Galigan.

A third person arrested with the Ransays, Cecil Wiggins, has pleaded guilty. Miss Ransay had been hired several times to babysit Klein's daughter, Marci.

The defense has maintained that Klein masterminded the plot, purportedly for publicity.

Klein, wearing a gray, double-breasted suit and beige tie, trembled as he described being informed of the kidnap of his daughter.

He also described the contacts that followed in which ransom of $100,000 was demanded. Klein paid the ransom before retrieving the child at the house where she had been kept for 10 hours.

"This voice said, 'Mr. Klein, your daughter has been kidnapped,'" Klein testified. "I said, 'This must be some kind of joke. Who are you?' And he said, 'This is no joke.'"

The designer said the man then demanded $100,000 for the child's release. He said the phone then was given to his daughter.

"She said, 'Daddy, I love you, I love you ...' I said, 'Marci, don't worry. Everything will be okay. Just try to be calm.' 'I was crazy at that point,'" he said.

Klein then described contacting the FBI that morning, gathering the money, bringing it to a drop designated by the kidnapers in followup telephone calls and

Ex-Professor Sentenced In Murder Plot

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A former college teacher accused of plotting to kill a businessman with cobra venom has been sentenced to a year in jail after pleading no-contest to a charge of soliciting first-degree murder.

Loren Moore, 47, of Milton was convicted after entering the plea in a plea bargaining arrangement in which he agreed to testify against Charlotte Durfee, the potential victim's former wife.

Mrs. Durfee, also 47 and from Milton, was convicted last month on a charge of conspiracy to commit first-degree murder. She was charged in connection with an alleged plot to kill her former husband, wealthy roofing contractor Miles Durfee, 76, of Janesville.

Moore appeared Wednesday before Circuit Judge Michael Torphy, who ordered a three-year prison sentence, then stayed it and placed the former college business teacher on probation for five years, with one year to be served in the Dane County jail.

Moore, who has been working at an axle factory, is free on $5,000 cash bail.

Mrs. Durfee is free on $25,000 property bond pending sentencing.

Moore testified that he had signed a contract with Mrs. Durfee calling for him to receive $15,000, a farm, a job and some remodeling work. Moore said, however, that he never intended to kill Durfee.

"It was a fascinating game, and I just kept getting in deeper and deeper," he testified.

A Madison zoo keeper testified that Moore contacted him, asking if he could obtain some type of snake poison that would give the symptoms of a heart attack. Moore was arrested after he left the zookeeper's apartment with a vial of colored water which he had been told was cobra venom.

ALASKAN BATTLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department and environmentalists are preparing for a new battle to preserve Alaska wildlands — a battle that promises to create more strife. The most immediate issue facing the administration is how to temporarily block development of the areas after the current law protecting the wildlands expires on Dec. 18. The House and Senate have been unable to agree on what portions of the land should be given to the state and Indian tribes.

Utilizing Tailwater Curbs Use Of Wells

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer
FLOYDADA —Catching excess irrigation water and recycling it through the system has decreased irrigation well utilization by at least one-third, Floyd County farmer Roger Dawdy said of his operation.
Two years ago, the Soil Conservation Service devised a tailwater recovery system for the 13/4 sections Dawdy farms west of Floydada.
Three pits, two of which are natural playa lakes and the other of which is man-made, comprise the system, which joins an underground irrigation pipeline. About 65 percent of excess water which is normally lost in irrigation can be recovered by the system, according to Jon LaBaume, district conservationist in Floyd County.

"The size of the pit is determined by how much water will be needed to irrigate the planned crops," LaBaume said. "Some pits can be constructed to utilize rain water, too."
In Dawdy's operation, which includes corn, cotton, milo and soybeans, water is released on the north side of the field. It flows to the south where excess water is collected into a ditch that flows east to a culvert. The water goes through the culvert to a silt trap for settling.
After settling, the water flows through a pipe to the main pit. On Dawdy's man-made pit, a floating electric pump which lowers as the water level declines, regulates the recycling. Two hoses tap the water back into the field through an underground pipeline system.
"Most tailwater pit systems connect with underground pipelines, although other irrigation systems can be used," LaBaume said.

"My land is so flat, we have trouble getting the water to go where it is needed," Dawdy added. "This way, the recycled water in the pit is like another well."
LaBaume said man-made pits usually cost about 50 cents per cubic yard to construct.
In addition to the furrow irrigation, Dawdy utilizes a pivot sprinkler system. "I think we're really saving a lot on the pivot," Dawdy said. "If we need two inches of water on the crop, the pivot can put two inches without having to flood the top to get water to the bottom of the field. I feel like we're using half the water we usually use."
LaBaume and Dawdy agreed that the pivot sprinkler system is not a cure-all. "It has its advantages and its disadvantages," LaBaume said. "You need an adequate supply of water for any irrigation system. Then it's a matter of how you want to deliver the water to the field."
According to LaBaume, there are only about 20-25 low power sprinkler systems in Floyd County. The SCS is currently evaluating the systems that are available.

Wheat Grower Likes Farming Despite Mounting Problems

WALSH, Colo. (UPI) — Like the wheat he grows, Bud Bitner is a hybrid of tradition and innovation. He wears double knits instead of overalls, but his speech has an Oklahoma twang and he's fond of chewing tobacco.
A third generation farmer, Bitner blends a formal agricultural education with his farm heritage. His pointed-toe boots have kicked black soil around seedlings and also have paced the halls of Congress to demand a fair price for crops.
Bitner, 39, like many kids raised in the arid expanse of southeastern Colorado on the Oklahoma border, wanted to get out of farming, despite the 160 acres he had acquired by his senior year in his school.

But the era of the family farm is past because smaller operations can't afford the losses, even with set-aside programs and loans. Yet Bitner also has doubts about big operations which get mired in complexity and government regulations.
"You see lots of big corporations come in, buy up a farm, operate for a few years and then close down. They just don't make it," he said.
So although Bitner farms by heritage, he owns a supply store and runs 400 head of cattle. Logic tells him diversification is the way to survive low wheat prices and statistics tell him more than 50 percent of net farm income is produced by outside jobs.
"Trouble is, I didn't diversify out of agriculture," he said.

Dawdy said the concept of minimum tillage is a coming thing. "Anything that will save you a trip over the land saves you money," he said. "I planted corn into cotton stalks and saved many trips over the land."
"Minimum tillage is best when used with corn and milo production," LaBaume added. "If cotton production is involved, you need to know about chemicals that have been applied and other practices that may affect cotton."
About the Great Plains Conservation Program, Dawdy said, "Anything that will conserve water is time and money well spent."
"The program helps prepare against a drought ahead of time to prevent a recurrence of the dust bowl days," LaBaume said.

Cattlemen To Discuss Impact Of Regulations

Everette Harris, who has just wound up 25 years of helping the Chicago Mercantile Exchange to grow, is one of the speakers who will address a Golden Spur Symposium on Livestock and Money from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Sept. 22 at Texas Tech University.
The symposium's eight sponsors, including all the major livestock associations in the nation, have invited five speakers to discuss the impact of government regulations on the livestock and ranching industry.
Harris, president-emeritus of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, will talk about "How Free are Free Markets in 1978?"
He was a farm boy who built his career on the philosophy that "the greatest and most unusual successes come to courageous young men and women who don't know it can't be done."

In 1965 under his leadership the exchange pioneered the idea of trading futures in live cattle. Harris calls this idea "my monument."
Although his idea was new, it extended eventually to live hogs and feeder cattle. In 1977 live cattle were the most active contract at the exchange, with 2,639,517 contracts changing hands.
In 1972, under his leadership the exchange created a successful International Monetary Market division, but Harris predicts its success will not overshadow the traditional agricultural contracts traded at the exchange.
"The cattle and hog markets are very basic," he said, "and they'll continue to grow much, much more."
Harris began his career with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, was a senior economist in the U.S. Department of Labor Bureau of Statistics and was in retail marketing before becoming executive secretary of the Chicago Board of Trade. He became president of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange in 1963 and the International Money Market in 1972.
Other speakers will be Gene Edwards, board chairman, First National Bank, Amarillo, speaking on "What the Future Holds for Financing Livestock Production;" W.D. "Bill" Farr of Farr Feeds, Greeley, Colo., talking about the "Impact of Regulations on Livestock Production;" and Robert Jensen, head, Department of Nutrition, University of Connecticut, "Meat in your Diet? — Why Not?"
The luncheon address is entitled, "Regulation of ANY Industry is Really Regulation of ALL Consumers," is by EVERETTE HARRIS presented by Barbara Keating of Consumer Alert.

The chuckwagon luncheon, furnished by the Texas Trails Chuckwagon of Albany, is included in the symposium registration fee of $15. It will be served on the patio of the Ranching Heritage Center while all other events will take place in the main building of The Museum of Texas Tech University.
Charles Ball, executive vice president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association, will be the moderator. Chairman Robert L. Pfleger of the Texas Tech Board of Regents will welcome the guests.
The symposium is being held in conjunction with the National Golden Spur Award and Prairie Party, which begins at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 22, in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center and Ranch Day on Sept. 23 at the Ranching Heritage Center of the Museum of Texas Tech University.
Tickets for all events may be obtained by sending checks to the Ranching Heritage Association, P.O. Box 4499, Lubbock, Tex., 79409. Prairie Party tickets also are $15 each or $120 for a table of eight. Ranch Day tickets are $5.50 for adults and $2.50 for children, including a barbecue lunch, $4.50 and $1.75 for members of the Ranching Heritage Association. Anyone may join.
Symposium sponsors include the Texas Tech University College of Agricultural Science, the American Quarter Horse, National Cattlemen's, National Wool Growers, Ranching Heritage, Texas Cattle Feeders, Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers and the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers associations.

Lobbyist Group Unites Women From Varied Economic Strata

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Add Rural American Women, Inc. to a long list of Washington lobbyists.
Add Jane Threault, president, to a list of thousands trying to push the right buttons in the nation's capital to help shape federal policy.
Place a question mark after "Will she succeed." It's too early to tell.
Miss Threault—with her own chutzpah, two low-paid assistants working in a tiny downtown Washington office and scores of volunteers—believes she has found a common denominator among farm, Chicano, black, Indian and Appalachian women who have joined the group.
Skeptics have asked how well-to-do farm women and poor field workers can get along in the same coalition. They say the organization, founded last October, may be too broadbased to affect any single policy.

When people she talked with said they thought a coalition for rural women was a good idea, Miss Threault set about organizing.
Now she sees Rural American Women, Inc. as providing the impetus for involvement of rural women who tend to be skeptical about the political process.
"They're not particularly joiners," she said. "But when you come right down to it, they represent everything America stands for."
A major project will be a film to educate rural women on their political power.
Miss Threault tapped the "good old girl" network which is beginning to connect people with jobs and causes.
With just $2,000 in the group's treasury, she first approached Judy Carter, the president's daughter-in-law.
Then she enlisted Ms. magazine editor Gloria Steinem; White House consumer advisor Esther Peterson; Liz Carpenter, co-chairwoman of ERA America; and Millie Jeffrey, national chairman of the National Women's Political Caucus.
Supporters of the equal Rights Amendment recognized a need for help from rural women.
"They did make a mistake on ERA in not focusing on rural women and southern women," said Miss Threault.
A conference held outside Washington in February brought together 10 diverse rural women leaders. They included Carolyn Aderson from a Birney, Mont., ranch; Anita Blackwell, black mayor of Mayersville, Miss., and Agnes Dill, a Pueblo Indian leader from Isleta Pueblo, N.M.
Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn., made her first major address as a senator at the conference. Several male politicians also spoke. But mostly it was rural women telling Washington leaders what was happening in the nation.
Miss Threault raised the conference's cost, $62,000, from private and public sources — the Agriculture Department, Appalachian Regional Commission, Alliance to Save Energy and four oil companies.

To those critical of her turning to oil companies and other large corporations for sponsorship, Miss Threault replied, "We don't want all our money from government. We want to sensitize corporations and foundations. It's not just getting money. It is sensitizing."
It took six months to get a $5,000 grant from one oil company. "I think a lot of them gave us money just to get rid of me," she laughed.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THIRTEEN CERTIFIED COTTON INTEREST organizations met earlier this month in Dallas and selected 20 Texas representatives — including 14 from the High Plains — for positions in national cotton industry groups.
The High Plains was represented by Lloyd Cline of Lamesa, president of the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. Cline was named the official PCG representative by the organization's Executive Committee. He was accompanied by PCG executive vice president Donald Johnson.
Three members and three alternates were named as directors to Cotton Inc. (CI), the national cotton producers' fiber company which conducts research and market development programs under the Cotton Research and Promotion Act.
FOUR MEMBERS AND FOUR ALTERNATES were nominated for two positions on the Cotton Board, the administrative body responsible for collections, disbursements and project approval in the CI program.
The secretary of agriculture is required by law to appoint two of the "pairs" submitted by interest organizations and normally chooses the two for whom the organizations express a preference.
Three producer delegates and three alternates were named to the National Cotton Council (NCC), the industry's seven-segment research, promotion and service organization.

ON THE CI GOVERNING BODY the group placed J. D. Smith of Sudan, L. C. Unfred of New Home and Donnell Echols of Lamesa. Alternates are Gerald Caswell of Meadow, Clifford Hoelscher of St. Lawrence and Don Marble of South Plains.
Nominated as first choice for members and alternates, respectively, of the Cotton Board were Dan Davis and Donald Johnson, both of Lubbock, Mike Burkholder of Pecos and A. D. May of Rule.
For second choice members and alternates, respectively, the caucus submitted T. W. Stockton of Crosbyton and Marion Bowers of Seminole, and Homer Easterwood of the Coastal Bend area and Norris Anders of Rule.
AS PRODUCER DELEGATES TO THE NECC the organizations named Cline, W. B. Criswell of Idalou and Wilbert Braden of St. Lawrence. Alternates will be Joe B. Pate Jr. of Lubbock, Gary Ivey of Ralls and Rusty Andrews of Brownfield.
In addition to the PCG, six other regional cotton producer associations and the Texas Farm Bureau participate in the naming of producer delegates to the National Cotton Council.
These plus the Texas Farmers Union, the Texas Federation of Cooperatives, Texas Cotton Growers Cooperative, Southwestern Irrigated Cotton Growers, and Greenbelt Cotton Growers are certified by the secretary of agriculture as interest organizations for the selection of Cotton Board and CI board members.

New Mexico Cotton Program Applauded

LAS CRUCES (Special) — In their biannual meeting, the New Mexico Cotton Advisory Committee unanimously passed a motion that commended the New Mexico cotton breeding program.
The program was commended for developing and maintaining cotton with high fiber quality, good tolerance to Verticillium wilt, resistance to bacterial blight earlier maturity, and for increasing lint and seed yield in the recently released varieties Acala 1517E-1, Acala 1517E-2, Acala 1517-75 and Acala 1517-77.
The advisory committee also commended the progress made in developing hybrid cotton.
The group toured research plots at the Plant Science Research Center in the morning and observed new experimental cotton strains, hybrid cotton, variety yield tests, insect resistance studies and guayule research plots.
A business meeting was held in the afternoon with Tom Simmons of Deming serving as chairman.

Late Liquidation Trims Gains After Surge In Cattle Futures

By REUTERS
CHICAGO — Cattle futures ended up 55 to off 7 points after aggressive liquidation in the final minutes trimmed gains of as much as 87 in nearby October, Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

January led the advances in volume estimated at 24,392 contracts. Traders said earlier support was attracted from limit level up moves in the pork complex and higher cash cattle. Continued firm tone to carcass beef was also noted. However, profit-taking ahead of the cattle-on-feed report halted further advances late in the day, and forced prices to close near daily lows.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 83 to 84 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were steady to up 50 cents with the best top $56 per hundredweight.

Slaughter Thursday was 144,000 head. The major terminals expect 5,500 head today. Feeder cattle futures closed up the daily 150 limit in September and up 112 to 52 in other contracts.

New seasons highs were posted across the board. The limit advance was reached minutes before the close as feeder futures rallied on local buying and were unaffected by late liquidation in live cattle futures. Total sales were estimated at 1,808 cars.

While earlier upward moves were hampered on profit-taking ahead of the cattle-on-feed report, later activity was predominantly fresh buying by local and commission houses.

Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $2 with the best top $80 per hundredweight at Kansas City. There were 77 deliveries. Receipts today are expected to total 2,000 head at the major markets.

Retention Of Prime Farmland Goal

COLUMBUS (UPI) — U. S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Douglas M. Costle announced formation of a new agency designed to stop the conversion of prime farm land to other uses.

In a speech before the National Association to States Departments of Agriculture, Costle said the policy "makes sense" because "the most productive farm lands are also the ones that are the most environmentally useful."

Costle noted that since 1967 more than 30 million acres of prime farm land has been converted to other uses, including urban development, reservoirs and other urban oriented programs.

"If they are taken out of production to be used as the sites for new homes or shopping centers, or other kinds of development, farmers will be forced to turn to more marginal lands," said Costle.

"The result will be more use of energy and fertilizers, and more runoff, in other words, more pollution," Costle said.

The new policy, he said, is generally an internal document and will be forwarded to all regional U. S. EPA officials for implementation on a "case by case" basis.

Local short covering found commission house buy stops, traders said, which fueled the advance to the limit.

An estimated 7,602 contracts were traded with about 200 unfilled orders to buy in the nearby contracts.

Light receipts and possibility for a small decrease in the kill encouraged support, offsetting negative ideas stemming from lower cash markets and weakness in wholesale hams.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to off one cent at 83 to 84 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to off 50 cents with the best top $49.50 per hundredweight.

Kill was 309,000 head. The six major markets expect 19,000 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures rallied sharply in the final minutes to end up 192 to 150 points, at daily highs.

February advanced the limit before light profit-taking trimmed the gain. Total sales were estimated at 5,519 cars.

Traders felt the day's large advances came on short covering and technical buying following Wednesday's late break to limit down across the board. Spillover buying was noted on the limit advances in hog futures, overshadowing the continued easing tone to cash bellies and lower cash hog markets.

Wholesale bacon was off one to 3-1/2 cents at 52 to 59 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Engraving Returned

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An almost five-century-old engraving stolen from the Philadelphia Art Museum two years ago has been returned anonymously in a plain brown envelope.

The engraving, "Christ before Caiaphas" by 16th Century German artist Albrecht Durer, arrived last week in the envelope marked "confidential" with two $10 bills, museum officials said.

Kneeland McNulty, a museum curator, said the print, engraved in 1512 and valued at $2,000, appeared to be in excellent condition. It had been removed from its plexiglass cover on Dec. 10, 1976.

Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed $1.25 to $2.90 a bale higher Thursday.

Prices fluctuated without pattern before closing higher, brokers said.

The average price for strict low middling 11-16 inch spot cotton declined 102 points to 58.99 cents a pound Wednesday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Nicaraguans Battle Over Seven Cities

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza, in a bloody struggle to save his government, mobilized national guard reserves Thursday to throw into the fight against rebels in at least seven Nicaraguan cities and towns.

About 500 heavily armed troops launched a counterattack Thursday afternoon at rebel-held Leon. They were backed by at least one helicopter gunship that warned people with a loud-hailer to clear the streets and then shot up rebel positions, Associated Press Correspondent Vicente Morales reported from the scene.

Leon was one of three key cities of Nicaragua's populous northwest in rebel hands, their national guard garrisons hemmed in by insurgents. Somoza's commanders were trying to move reinforcements to relieve besieged troops in the other two, Esteli and Chinandega.

New Rebel Attacks
New rebel attacks were reported against Diriamba, 20 miles south of this capital city, and Penas Blancas, on the Costa Rican border. A spokesman for the national guard, this Central American nation's army and police force, said the border town attack was repulsed.

AP correspondent Lew Wheaton reported by telephone from Diriamba that "there is sniping on both sides."

Sporadic street fighting was reported in Rivas, 80 miles south of Managua, and Masaya, 18 miles southeast of the capital, where troops who won control at the town Tuesday were mopping up rebel stragglers.

Wheaton visited both towns and said they were quiet late Thursday. He said "the guard is in complete control" in Masaya.

Curfew Declared
Somoza's government declared a curfew in the capital Thursday night, and an official spokesman predicted the national guard would be in complete control of the country in a few days.

"The people of Nicaragua are ignoring the insurgents," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified. "They have rejected the guns the Sandinistas have tried to give them to fight the forces of the government."

He said morale of guardsmen was high and that the troops were "united with President Somoza to defend the interests of the people of Nicaragua."

Bodies were being burned in the streets of some towns by Red Cross workers, Associated Press newsmen in the countryside reported.

500 Estimated Dead
The casualty toll from the anti-Somoza rebellion, in its sixth day, could not be determined precisely. Red Cross officials estimated at least 500 persons had been killed and 1,000 wounded since the pitched battles erupted Saturday.

But it was not known how many of the dead were rebels, civilians or soldiers of Somoza's right-wing authoritarian government.

The Nicaraguan war threatened anew to involve other nations.

Lt. Col. Diego Landa Cerano, defense minister in neighboring Honduras, said other Central American armies might go to Somoza's aid if the Nicaraguan president asks for assistance under the Central American mutual defense pact.

Voluntary Brigade
In Panama, about 1,500 people were said to have enrolled in a voluntary brigade that organizers said would fight against Somoza's forces if he accepts outside help.

A terse government radio announcement said Somoza was mobilizing the guard reserves under the nationwide martial law he declared Wednesday. The number of reservists being called up was not given.

Telephone communications were out between Managua and the provincial cities.

In the south, the Sandinista territorial area is being established a firm territorial foothold along the Costa Rica border in order to establish a provisional government, Sandinistas have infiltrated back and forth across the border.

Taxes, Power Rates Reduced By Council

Zoning Commission recommended the area be annexed because the area will only get worse and cost the city more to annex in the future.

The council plans to consider an ordinance officially annexing the area at its Sept. 28 meeting. However any final decision on the annexation rests with the Justice Department which must determine whether the annexation will dilute the voting strength of minorities.

The council approved various uses for $2.7 million in federal revenue sharing funds Thursday including $1 million which will be used for general operating expenses for the city next year.

In other action Thursday the council approved the application for two federal government grants to benefit the transit system totaling $3.3 million.

The bulk of one grant would finance the renovation of an old Pollard Ford building at 9th Street and Texas Avenue to become the transit operation and maintenance facility.

The second grant would allow the city to replace old buses presently being leased to provide bus service at Texas Tech.

The purchase of the 15 new buses would reduce the city's lease payment by $37,000 a year, transit board chairman John Kreiger told the council. In addition, he said the city would receive increased revenues through additional charters of the new buses.

The cost to the city is nothing, Kreiger said, since the city's share of the project costs will come from the city's previous purchase of the building to be renovated.

Denzil Percutt, city director of public services, said the purchase of the new buses would allow the city to "negotiate a more favorable contract with Texas Tech" for bus service.

On the recommendation of city attorney John Ross, council members took no action regarding the city's solicitation ordinance which was recently declared unconstitutional by a federal judge.

Ross urged the council to wait until a model solicitation ordinance is prepared by the national organization of municipal lawyers.

Peace Formula Eludes Summit

refused to give that commitment.

In an interview with ABC News, Hussein said Sadat told him by telephone Monday the summit is "very tough." The king also said Sadat promised to call him again "when things become a little clearer" and to keep him abreast of any progress.

But Hussein said Sadat had done neither thus far.

The king also said he "could not live with" an Israeli military presence on the West Bank unless it was for an interim period. He said he will try to minimize the damage of any Camp David plan for a Middle East settlement that is "not good."

Hussein said he does not plan to come to the summit or to send a minister.

Powell said he had been authorized by the Israeli government to "deny emphatically" a published report that Begin had agreed in principle at Camp David to an Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank.

Powell also denied a report that Begin had committed Israel to withdraw. Earlier, Israeli officials who barred the use of their names called the report "pure, unadulterated, undiluted rubbish" and "completely without foundation."

If an accord can be achieved, it would meet at least the minimum requirements for a just settlement.

Panel Working Toward Lowering Tax Burden

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee took the first step Thursday toward offsetting higher Social Security taxes for most Americans and voted to expand a major tax break for the working poor.

The committee indicated it will vote next week for additional individual tax cuts of around $2 billion to neutralize, in most cases, the income tax burden added next year because of inflation.

In its first action on the tax bill, the panel:

— Approved a provision in the $16.3 billion tax-cut bill passed by the House that would increase the current $750-per-person exemption to $1,000 but eliminate the existing individual tax credit of at least $35 per person.

Those two changes, aimed at simplifying the tax-filing process, would result in a net tax cut of about $1.3 billion in 1979.

— Voted to increase the existing $400 maximum earned-income credit to $600 and make some part of it available for the first time to working families with earnings of up to $12,000 a year. This change, costing $1.8 billion a year, would benefit 7.6 million families earning between $4,000 and $12,000 a year.

High-income families would benefit most from raising the $750 exemption and repealing the individual credit because the exemption, which reduces income subject to taxation, is worth more as income rises. In contrast, a credit, which is subtracted directly from taxes owed, is worth the same at all income levels.

This action by the committee goes in the opposite direction of what President Carter proposed. But his recommendation, to expand the existing credit to $240 per person and eliminate the $750 exemption, already has been rejected by the House.

The Finance Committee voted to expand the earned-income credit for the poor. The prospect of further rate cuts next week for middle- and lower-income groups would result in individual tax reductions far closer to what Carter proposed than the House approved.

The individual credit the panel voted to end allows a person to reduce taxes by $35 for himself and each dependent or by 2 percent of the first $9,000 of taxable income, for a maximum $180 credit.

The biggest part of the individual tax cut passed by the House has yet to be acted on by the Finance Committee. This is the provision that cuts some middle-income tax rates and widens the tax brackets by 6 percent to offset the higher taxes caused by inflation.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the committee chairman, instructed aides to submit a new set of lower tax rates that would result in an additional tax cut of about $2 billion.

Such a reduction, coupled with Thursday's actions, would mean a typical person probably would pay no more federal tax next year than this year, despite the higher Social Security taxes due to take effect next Jan. 1.

"We are going to make everybody whole on his Social Security taxes come January," Long said. "There's going to be enough tax cut so that everybody making $30,000 or less — maybe $50,000 — is not going to have a tax increase because of Social Security."

Carter Defense Plan Turned Down Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee on Thursday unanimously rejected Defense Secretary Harold Brown's plea for hundreds of new military projects.

A House panel had turned Brown away on Wednesday.

Brown, fighting for $2.2 billion worth of alternate programs to replace the $2 billion nuclear aircraft carrier scuttled by President Carter, was told by the chairman of the Senate committee, John Stennis, D-Miss., that "we've worked on this bill for a year, and I don't want to go back and redo all this stuff."

Instead, the panel followed the course of the House Armed Services Committee on Wednesday. That, simply, was to re-submit the same defense authorization bill vetoed by Carter — but minus the big carrier the president didn't want.

Brown, who pressed Carter's plea for scores of substitute projects ranging from tanks to new missiles, conceded that the president might have to try again next year for the $2.2 billion package.

The bill, without the carrier money, would total $35 billion in military authorizations — legislation needed each year to provide the military with ongoing or new programs such as manpower levels or construction of new weapons. Coupled with other measures, it would drop Carter's overall defense budget ceiling from $126 billion to $124 billion, Brown claimed the extra money was "essential to our security."

Congress is anxious to dispose of the bill with the November elections looming, but Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., threatened another snag over his complaints about the Navy's $931 million settlement with two shipbuilders. The Pentagon needs an additional $209 million, approved by the House and Senate panels, to pay the settlement.

Proxmire has pushed for congressional rejection of the agreement with General Dynamics Corp. and Litton Industries, even though the deal calls for payment of less than half their original claims for cost overruns in building submarines and helicopter assault ships.

Proxmire's resolutions of disapproval were rejected 13-0 by the Senate committee in separate votes Thursday, but the senator threatened earlier to filibuster the defense bill unless he gets a vote on the Senate floor over the issue.

Proxmire declared Thursday that "The Navy is turning military muscle into fat by using funds that could build ships to pay for the cost overruns."

He noted that the settlement still would give the two firms $541 million more than the amount Navy examiners deemed justified.

But Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., warned that rejection of the settlement could have "a severe impact on our strategic preparedness" by delaying the shipbuilding program.

Pell termed the deal "the only realistic option the government has to deal with the difficult problem presented by shipbuilding cost overruns ... to disapprove simply does not make sense, from the standpoint of either the American taxpayer or national security."

More Striking Teachers Sent To Jail

Hanna's Common Pleas courtroom Thursday hoping to change his mind about ordering an end to the 6-day-old strike by 10,000 teachers and non-teaching employees. The judge Wednesday refused to order the workers back, and instead ordered the school board to make an effort to find the funds to negotiate a contract.

The school board received an emergency $20.7 million state loan in August to enable it to open its doors. But the state Controlling Board barred the use of the funds for salary increases.

In Massachusetts, a superior court judge Thursday retracted his own back-to-work order issued the day before against the 850-member teachers union of Fall River. The retraction allowed the state Labor Relations Commission act.

The commission then ordered the Fall River Educators' Association to end its four-day-old strike by this morning, according to Commissioner James Cooper. He said the commission ruled that the strike is unlawful.

There was no immediate word on whether the union would comply.

In Boston, where teachers voted Wednesday night to accept a new contract, a school spokesman said teacher attendance Thursday was better than normal. Fred Foye said 2.2 percent of the city's 5,500 public school teachers were absent Thursday, compared with a normal teacher absenteeism rate in the 69,000-pupil system of 3.2 percent.

In San Francisco, a judge ordered teachers striking six suburban San Francisco high schools back to work Thursday while teachers vowed to continue the disruptive walkout.

San Mateo County Superior Court Judge William Lanam granted a preliminary injunction banning the strike by the 336-member American Federation of Teachers Local 1481 against the Jefferson Union High School District in Daly City.

Three Murder Cases Included In 72 Indictments By Jury

because of the death the case would be re-considered by the grand jury which reported Thursday.

Murder indictments returned against a Lubbock teen-aged girl and a 50-year-old Carlisle man.

Stabbing Suspect Indicted
Bobbie Laverne Toier, 17, of 809 David Ave., was indicted as a result of the Sept. 4 stabbing death of Dessie Nellows Ward, 4, of 909-B 40th St. Reports say that Ybarra was Palacios's father-in-law.

Mrs. Ward, according to witnesses, was driving by a residence when words were exchanged. Witnesses said Mrs. Ward got out of her car and approached another woman, and that the two women struggled before Mrs. Ward was killed.

Matilde Reine Ybarra of Carlisle was indicted in connection with the Sunday shooting death of Eddie Joe Palacios, 19, of 909-B 40th St. Reports say that Ybarra was Palacios's father-in-law.

Deputies investigating a report of a pre-dawn shooting arrived at a Carlisle residence to find Palacios lying on the living room floor of the residence with a gunshot wound to the left side of the neck. Deputies confiscated a .22-caliber pistol.

Debra Gay Adair, 28, of Levelland, was indicted for involuntary manslaughter in connection with an Aug. 14 highway fatality.

Pearl Fahnert, 63, of Clovis, N.M., was pronounced dead at the scene of the two-car accident on Loop 289 between the East 4th Street and East 19th Street exits.

In a rare occurrence for a grand jury here, no robbery or aggravated robbery cases were considered.

Six persons, including Foster, were not-billed, thereby clearing them of any accusation of guilt in connection with cases considered.

Other persons not-billed included: Virgil Lee Merriweather, 29, of 1813 E. 25th St., cleared of a forgery charge; Raymond Gonzales, 18, of 1819 Ave. H, rear, cleared of a burglary charge; Fernando Alvarado, 20, of 3214 1st Pl., cleared of a burglary of a vehicle charge; Ricky Phillips, 17, of 805 Ave. S, cleared of an aggravated assault charge; and Ira Vaughn Ainsworth, 19, of 208 Kimberly Dr., cleared of a burglary of a vehicle charge.

Bush Hints Hance Must 'Toe Mark'

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Republican Congressional candidate George Bush offered a smorgasbord of opinions to Texas Tech students Thursday, including the statement that party affiliation definitely is a campaign issue.

Bush explained to about 35 students that a 19th Congressional district representative's effectiveness will depend somewhat on "how much he will have to play along" with party politics. His statement was a veiled reference to opponent Kent Hance's Democratic party membership and the fact that the President and majority of Congress are Democrats.

A "muddling of party loyalty" appears to exist in Washington, Bush said. Strong loyalty, however, is there, and the Carter administration already has warned its party members that they will be expected to toe the party line, he said.

Bush spoke at the invitation of a campus student organization. Hance also initially accepted an invitation to appear, but later withdrew because of scheduling conflicts.

Cancellation Unannounced
Hance's cancellation was not revealed until shortly before the session began, and Bush hastened to assure the audience that he did not believe the non-appearance was because of political reasons.

Calling Hance "a friend of mine," Bush added that he "understands" scheduling pressures in a campaign and said he hopes for a joint appearance with Hance later.

In his brief address, Bush touched on several topics, including foreign affairs, the farmers' plight and the domestic economic scene.

The 32-year-old Midland oilman said "a no-growth economic policy is one that tends to stratify our society," explaining he believes the federal government is "draining the private sector of capital dollars."

Bush said he believes "it is virtually impossible for a federal government to re-distribute the wealth."

Must Stimulate Growth
Instead, he said, the government must stimulate growth through incentives.

One way to use incentives to aid farmers is to bypass the State Department and overseas contract negotiations for agricultural products, Bush said.

He explained he favors letting producers negotiate prices rather than federal employees who want to maintain good relations with foreign countries.

When asked to elaborate on his agricultural position, Bush added that he agrees with the American Agricultural movement position that producers should have strong input into State Department export decisions and added he would be willing to spend federal dollars on programs to promote overseas agricultural exports.

On foreign affairs, Bush warned that the Soviet Union is out to spread its philosophy and that the United States must hold its political cards "to our vest." He also said the United States has a "very interesting role of balancing peace" in the strained relations between China and Russia.

Italian Police Pursue Aldo Moro Kidnappers

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Anti-terror specialists, feeling closer than ever to cracking the Aldo Moro case, are analyzing documents and other material found in the apartment of a captured fugitive suspected of being the mastermind of the Red Brigades, police sources said Thursday.

Authorities considered the arrest of 30-year-old Corrado Alunni a major breakthrough after months of groping by investigators trying to track down the Red Brigade terrorists who kidnapped and murdered the former Italian premier last spring.

Minor terrorist violence erupted elsewhere just hours after Alunni was captured by police raiders Wednesday night at his rented apartment in a Milan suburb.

Three men fired pistol shots at the walls of the Nuove prison in Turin, where Red Brigade suspects had been held during their trials earlier this year. Also in Turin, arsonists set fire to a car belonging to the U.S. Consulate. No injuries were reported in either incident.

The police sources here said experts were digging into "relevant" documents found in Alunni's apartment, looking for clues to the ultimate strategy of the Red Brigades and possible past and future plans for terrorist attacks.

CORRADO ALUNNI

Police were tight-lipped on whether Alunni, in his arms-and explosives-filled apartment, might have been preparing a major action by the Brigades, Italy's most feared terrorist group.

But one officer said that with material found by the raiders "we ascertained close links between the Red Brigades and other extremist organizations, such as Front Line, which are ready to support and continue Red Brigades attacks."

Police said the apartment contained 14 pistols, two submachine guns, thousands of cartridges, explosives, a hand grenade, firebombs, fuses, timers and a manual about use of arms and explosive.

Drug Conviction Stuns Houston Medical Man

HOUSTON (AP) — Dr. Robert W. Hennessy, 27, says he has no idea how he became involved with illegal narcotics.

"But I'll have 30 years to think about it," he said.

Hennessy was arrested Thursday, two months after he fled a courtroom shortly before a jury sentenced him to 30 years in prison. He had been convicted on a charge of possession of a synthetic heroin with no intent to sell it.

Narcotics officers said the arrest was made on information from an informant after Hennessy returned from California.

Hennessy said he fled the courtroom because he knew he was going to jail "and I just wasn't ready."

"I came back to Houston to be with my wife and two children," he said. "We were trying to get a little more time."

An unidentified blonde woman was taken into custody a few hours after Alunni's arrest when, unaware police were inside, she knocked at the apartment door, police sources said.

With his arrest, six of 17 persons charged in the Moro case are in custody. Eleven remain at large.

The raiders also found two uniforms — one a postman's and the other an army officer's — in the apartment.

A master at disguise, Alunni had been sought by authorities since 1976. He was wanted in connection with 12 murders, including the killings of Moro and his five bodyguards.

"If he is not directly involved in assassinations, he might have been the ideologist and planner of many of them," a Milan police officer said.

Alunni, an employee of a Milan electronics company before turning to underground guerrilla activities in 1973, is reputed to have succeeded Renato Curcio as leader of the Red Brigades and chief proponent of a radical, violent line for the gang. Beginning in 1976 — the year

Curcio was arrested in Milan — the gang engaged in a series of assassinations, knee-cappings and arson attacks.

Alunni's ability to masquerade his identity greatly hampered police in their long hunt for him. A disguise enabled him to escape from a hideout in the city of Pavia two years ago, just before a police raid.

"He looked like another person, certainly much different from the guy with a black beard and spectacles we had on pictures," one policeman said after the arrest Wednesday.

Police officers disclosed that Alunni had been targeted since mid-August, when his hideout was located by anti-terrorist policemen.

When arrested, they said, he refused to answer any questions, just giving his name and claiming to be "a political prisoner and a communist fighter."

Three Blacks Killed In Shantytown Raid

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Police used teargas, batons and bullets Thursday against blacks who countered with sticks and stones to fight off an attempt to drive them from a squatters camp on the outskirts of Cape Town. Witnesses said three blacks were killed, including a baby trampled to death.

The witnesses said numerous persons were hurt and hundreds of blacks were arrested when police raided the sprawling Crossroads shantytown, home of 20,000 blacks.

It was the fourth raid on the Crossroads camp in as many weeks.

Authorities have been trying for more than a year to evict tens of thousands of blacks from similar makeshift villages on the fringes of Cape Town and return them to tribal trust territories created under South Africa's apartheid policy of racial segregation.

About 90 percent of Crossroads' inhabitants live there illegally. Most are dependents of black men who are allowed to work in the area.

Among those arrested were 16 white clergymen and community workers.

Brig. J. F. Rossouw, the area police commander, said squatters attacked his men with sticks and stones and police were "forced to take action." He said 10 of his men were injured.

Rossouw declined to say how many persons were arrested. He said the fatalities were being investigated.

A year ago authorities bulldozed camps housing 26,000 squatters, and earlier this year another camp of 20,000 was razed.

Crossroads residents were repeatedly warned that their shantytown was next. They responded by sprucing up the camp, setting up schools and soliciting international support for their right to live as families.

About 600 police, dressed in camouflage fatigues, first arrived at about 1:30 a.m. on what Rossouw called a "routine crime prevention" mission. He said they found the camp "wide awake."

Camp residents said they had been expecting the police and had kept a vigil around campfires.

Sister Binigna, a Roman Catholic nun, said residents formed groups along the perimeter of the camp, determined to stop the police from coming in.

The nun said blacks fell back from the perimeter after police fired what she described as pepper gas into the crowd.

"The people would not let the police near their huts. Only the children were left behind in the homes," Sister Binigna said. "The police came as near as they dared and then started bombarding the entire camp with teargas for almost two hours. They could not get into the camp, despite all the weapons they brought with them."

Court Appointee Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bruce S. Jenkins, President Carter's nominee to succeed the late U.S. District Judge Willis Ritter of Salt Lake City, said Thursday he favors allowing the news media "easy access" to court proceedings.

Appearing at a confirmation hearing by the Senate Judiciary Committee, Jenkins was asked by Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, to comment on an order by Ritter restricting news coverage in and around the federal courthouse.

Jenkins declined to comment specifically on the order, noting that it has been appealed to the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

But, he said, "I think that except in the most unusual circumstances, court proceedings are public proceedings and persons who conduct themselves appropriately are entitled to come to court. Whether they are representatives of the news media or members of the general public, they ought to have easy access to the proceedings."

Ritter, who died in March, issued an order several years ago prohibiting sketching, photography or tape recording anywhere in the court building or on its sidewalks.

The order has been appealed by Sigma Delta Chi, the Society of Professional Journalists.

Judge Alden Anderson, who succeeded Ritter as chief judge, has said the order will remain in force. Hatch said he believes this may not reflect Anderson's personal views, but may be only because of the appeal.

Nation's Christmas Tree Dies In Park

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in as many years, the National Park Service has to find a replacement for the nation's official Christmas tree. The latest casualty, like its predecessor, has died.

The 30-foot Colorado blue spruce was transplanted to the Ellipse, a park behind the White House grounds. But the tree has fallen victim to the elements, knocked down twice last winter by heavy winds.

Park Service officials plan to replace it with a 26-foot blue spruce that now stands in the front yard of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Myers in York, Pa.

Saccharin Uproar Quiets As Testing Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Americans don't hear much about banning saccharin anymore, the controversy has not ended with the warning signs in supermarkets and new labels on diet food.

The proposed ban on the artificial sweetener has only been delayed, not lifted.

And scientists throughout the country are busy trying to resolve the dilemma of what to do about the popular food additive, which may cause cancer and for which there is no substitute.

In recent weeks, more studies have been thrown into the controversy but none resolve the issue.

—In an exhaustive 700-page review of every major saccharin study, Dr. Morris F. Cranmer of the Food and Drug Administration concluded that better tests must be done before anyone realistically can determine human cancer risk from the sweetener. Because of the uncertainties, he urged the government to move cautiously on a ban.

—A Johns Hopkins University study comparing the lives of bladder cancer patients with a similar group without the disease found no cancer link with moderate use of artificial sweeteners. A similar Canadian study earlier said it found a positive association between artificial sweeteners and bladder cancer in males.

—A survey of doctors and other health professionals found that up to 70 percent oppose a saccharin ban because they feel that benefits may outweigh known risks and that the data on saccharin is inconclusive.

The National Academy of Sciences, conducting a federally funded study of the nation's food safety policy in general and saccharin in particular, is reviewing these results and much other data. The academy's saccharin findings will be sent to the FDA in November and the complete study is to be finished by February 1979.

The FDA tried to ban saccharin last year, mostly because of a Canadian study linking large doses of it to bladder cancer in male rats and indications of a possible human cancer link. The ban was called for under the Delaney clause, a law requiring a ban on food additives linked to cancer regardless of other benefits they may have.

A loud public outcry followed because saccharin is the only general-use artificial sweetener approved for use in this country. A debate ensued over the wisdom of the Delaney clause in light of the need for an artificial sweetener, not just by casual dieters but by diabetics or others for whom obesity is a health problem.

Congress last November delayed the ban until June 1979, required warning labels on saccharin products and authorized further study.

Of the new reports, most attention focused on the one by Cranmer, former head of FDA's National Center for Toxicological Research.

The Cranmer report, a survey prepared at the request of FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy, says the benefits of saccharin may be found to outweigh potential harm — something not covered by the Delaney clause.

The agency has not endorsed the report and considers it a working paper. "The Cranmer report at the present time has no status," said FDA spokesman Wayne Pines. "It was compiled by an FDA official and represents an individual's view on saccharin. It is in circulation among other federal agencies for comment."

The report said a review of previous data indicates saccharin is a weak carcinogen, or cancer-causing substance, by itself. However, it said, the sweetener may be more hazardous as a cancer "promoter," a substance that boosts the cancer-causing effect of some other unknown carcinogen.

Cranmer said better tests should be conducted to see if there are "safe" intake levels below which some carcinogens would not cause cancer. He added that he thought it "likely to be possible" to set a safe limit on saccharin.

But Cranmer mostly emphasized how much was not known about testing chemicals and applying these results to determine human risks. He noted that it "isn't enough to identify a chemical which has the potential to produce cancer."

SACCHARIN STILL CONTROVERSIAL — A shopper scans the shelves in a New York City grocery store last June shortly after large red and black warning signs were posted that proclaim that the grocery store sells food items that contain saccharin which "may be hazardous to your health." Although Americans don't hear much about banning saccharin anymore, the controversy has not ended with the warning signs in supermarkets and new labels on diet food. (AP Laserphoto)

Body Book Earns School Library Ban

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — A controversial book about the female body and sexual relationships, "Our Bodies, Our Selves," has been banned from Helena school libraries. School District No. 1 trustees voted 7-3 to ban the book permanently, although a special review report recommended only a temporary ban until the controversy died down. Marc Racicot, chief of the Montana attorney general's county prosecutor services, said keeping the book in the libraries could be a criminal offense if it contributed to the delinquency of a minor. Helena Capital High School principal Howard Voiles took the book off shelves in April for review following parental complaints.

Buddhism was introduced during the reign of Chinese emperor Ming-ti, 58-76 AD.

Northern Demos Oppose Tax Cut

NEW YORK (AP) — A plurality of the Democrats who went to the polls in two populous Northern states this week oppose a property tax cut and a re-election bid by Jimmy Carter in 1980. These sentiments of Democratic voters in New York and Connecticut, found by the Associated Press-NBC News poll, are the opposite of the views of Democrats across the country.

Interviews with 4,900 Democrats as they left voting places in the two states Tuesday found that 38 percent favored a one-third cut in property taxes, even if that meant a cut in state and local services. Forty-one percent opposed such a tax cut, and 21 percent were not sure.

That finding is quite different from a nationwide AP-NBC News telephone poll in early August. That survey found that Democrats favored such a tax cut by a 52-39 margin, with the entire population favoring the tax break by a similar edge.

Democrats who voted in Tuesday's Connecticut gubernatorial primary said they opposed a Proposition 13 measure in their state by a 42-38 edge. Twenty percent were not sure.

The sentiment in the state against a tax cut like the one voted in California this June may be linked to a greater concern about the imposition of a state income tax. Such a new levy became a major issue in the gubernatorial primary between Gov. Ella Grasso and Lt. Gov. Robert Killian when Killian said it was inevitable. Mrs. Grasso easily won the primary.

Connecticut Democrats may fear that a cut in property taxes, which are a major source of revenue in the state, would force the imposition of an income tax.

New York Democrats' sentiments were more closely divided. They split 38-38 against a property tax cut, with 23 percent undecided.

President Carter's hopes for a second term do not fare well with his party's partisans in the two states.

Only 24 percent of the Democrat voters in the states said they wanted Carter to try for a second term. Forty percent said they don't want him to run and 26 percent are not sure.

That finding is also opposed to the AP-NBC News national poll in August. Half of the Democrats questioned in that survey favored a Carter re-election bid with 39 percent opposing it. Eleven percent were not sure.

For all respondents nationally regardless of party affiliation, 50 percent did not want Carter to run, with only 38 percent favoring a bid for another term. Twelve percent of the 1,600 adults questioned Aug. 7 and 8 were undecided.

B METRO

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal

The sentiment against a Carter re-election bid was stronger in New York than in Connecticut.

In the Empire State, Democratic voters split 42 percent to 32 percent against a try for a second term for Carter.

In Connecticut, the party faithful were more evenly split, dividing against Carter by a slim 38-36 margin.

As with any sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News polls could differ from the results of interviews with all Democratic voters in the two states because of chance variations in the sample. The size of the possible variation depends on the number of interviews.

For polls of about 2,700 interviews, as in New York, and 2,200 interviews, as in Connecticut, the results should vary no more than 2 percentage points either way simply because of sample errors. That is, if one could talk to all those who voted in the Democratic primaries in New York and Connecticut, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results would vary from the finding of this poll by more than 2 points.

Fair Band Day Standout Groups To Win Prizes

An "outstanding band" will be named for the first time at the climax of the "Parade of Bands," a popular feature of the Panhandle South Plains Fair.

This year's 10 a.m. parade through downtown Lubbock is scheduled on Sept. 25 — area school day — and is expected to draw more than three dozen bands from throughout the South Plains, eastern New Mexico and even more distant points.

In addition to "outstanding band" crown, the aggregations will be competing for $2,250 in prize money and other trophies.

First place winners in Classes B, A, AA and AAA will received $150. Other cash awards include $125 for second, $100 for third and $75 for fourth.

A traveling trophy will be awarded to the "outstanding band," according to fair general manager Steve L. Lewis. The traveling trophy will be permanently awarded to the school which wins it three out of five years.

Judges this year are Charles Traylor of Abilene Christian University, Harris Brinson of Angelo State University and Dan Gibbs of Monahans. Bands will be judged as follows: playing, 50 percent; marching, 30 percent; appearance, 20 percent.

The eight-day fair run, which begins Sept. 23, features several stars nominated for Country Music Association honors this year.

Mel Tillis, who will be on the stage in Fair Park Coliseum at 8 p.m. Sept. 29 and at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sept. 30, has been named as one of the "Entertainer of the Year" nominees.

And the Dave and Sugar trio, which will be appearing with Charley Pride at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Sept. 24, are "Vocal Group of the Year" nominees along with the Statler Brothers. The Statlers will be at the fair for 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. shows on Sept. 25.

In addition, Jim Ed Brown and Helen Cornelius, due here for an 8 p.m. only show on Sept. 27, have been picked as one of five competing for "Vocal Duo of the Year" honors. Wendy Holcombe also will be on that bill.

Other stage attractions include the Johnny Rodriguez show, with Linda Har- grove, 8 p.m. only Sept. 26; and Eddie Rabbitt and Jerry Clower, 8 p.m. only on Sept. 28.

All seats are reserved and tickets are $4, $5 and $6 for all shows. Tickets may be obtained at the Fair Park Coliseum box office (phone 744-9557) from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, Sears and Hemphill-Wells stores in South Plains Mall, Luskey's Western Wear, Dunlap's and Ed's Wagon Wheel.

Four big free acts also are on tap. Lubbock mime Ruth Rubin and magician Bob Ford will team up for 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. shows daily on the outdoor stage. Also on the outdoor stage at 7:15 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. daily will be Vandermeide, Europe's fastest hypnotist. At 7 p.m. daily, the Amarillo Gunfighters' Association will perform.

Near the center of the fairgrounds, a double sway pole act — the Swaying Bil- ros — will leave crowds gasping at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. each day.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Everyone, at one time or another, has had to deal with peer pressure. Somewhere, there is an invisible, prevailing dominant force that dictates that we either act like the majority of people act, or we're subject to censure. You either fight 'em... or join 'em.

In Jane Howard's book, "Families," she touched upon one form of it when she described an agnostic divorcee who moved to Atlanta from Minneapolis. She got so tired of having neighbors ask which was the church of her choice that she finally hit upon a plan to get them off her case.

Every Sunday morning, she and her children would don their best clothes at half after 10 and pull out of the driveway in their car to return a couple of hours later. It was a Sunday ritual. They never told anyone that they spent the entire time at Dunkin' Donut.

An elderly woman once confided to me that she got so bored with people who appraised her white hair, her age and her status as a grandmother and said with shock, "You're kidding about not being able to knit, aren't you?" that she finally bought a knitting bag with little legs on it, filled it with yarn and carried it everywhere she went to ward off people bent on her conversion.

Somehow, I always feel sorry for the non-drinker at a cocktail party when he or she announces, "Just something non-alcoholic, please."

Better to admit he drinks the blood of an ox or request hemlock over ice than to bring the room down on him.

It is incomprehensible to anyone that in this day and age of legalized alcohol there is someone who doesn't indulge.

I've seen people one at a time try to break the mystique of someone who stands around with a soft drink all night. "My uncle had a problem too," offers one.

"I'll bet it's an allergy, isn't it?" "I knew it. You're on a diet. Don't you know Scotch has fewer calories than..."

I know one teetotaler who starts out the evening spilling his diet cola on the rug. It seems to make everyone feel better about him.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Every expert has been asked, "Do you really use point count in your slam bidding?"

We certainly do to find if a hand is in the slam zone. Thus, we try to find 33 points. After that, we check for losers. The 33 points mean we have the ammunition but we can't make 12 tricks if we lose the first two.

South's four-club bid suggests slam possibilities.

North's four-heart bid accepts the idea of a spade slam and announces a heart control.

South has already decided there are enough points for a slam. He now is sure that there aren't two quick losers. He goes right into Blackwood and finds out that his side has all the aces.

A conservative South might well just settle for six. His point count does not indicate that there is a grand slam, but this South decided to bid five notrump to show that all aces were accounted for.

When North responded to show two kings, South then settled for six.

There was no play problem. South won the heart lead, drew trumps with three leads and went after diamonds. He discarded one heart on a high diamond, cleared the fifth diamond by ruffing East's jack and eventually lost a club trick.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: So many children feel guilty when they must take an aged parent to a nursing home. I read something recently in the Daily News-Tribune (LaSalle, Ill.) that gave me an entirely new slant. It also made me feel better. Please print it, Ann. — Anonymous Friend

Dear Friend: Herb Hames, Editor of the LaSalle News-Tribune, gave us permission to reprint the piece as it appeared in "Open Forum." I do so with pleasure.

"I had to take my Mom from her home for safety's sake because she was no longer able to be alone and care for herself. The others in the home, like Mom, had to be brought here, unless someone could move in and watch them 24 hours a day.

"I pity those who are ill and suffer with pain, but a lot of those old folks are like my Mom. They don't suffer — they are senile. Very little of their minds are left. These are the people who reach out to you as you walk down the hall. Don't pity them because they look bored and appear to have no interest in life. They live in a world that is very interesting to them.

"My Mom sits in a chair doing nothing, but she isn't in that chair at all. She is years away, visiting with her mother, or perhaps she's out to a dance. One day she may be playing with her sister or brother. The next day she may be raising her family. Then again, she may be doing her housework, even cutting up Fels Naptha soap.

"Far-fetched? The last time I left her room she said happily, 'I'm going to visit Mama's today. We're going to have cookies and milk.'

"I replied, 'Enjoy yourself — and say hello to Grandma.'

"Old age robs people of a great deal but it leaves them the precious gift of memory. They are able to recall every detail of an incident that happened 70 years ago, but they can't recall what they had for supper.

"When you see a very old woman smile for no reason, or nod, and greet an imaginary 'friend,' don't think she is crazy. She sees someone you don't see — a loved one back in the memory.

"Mom doesn't have any more stress and strain in her life. She has been through all that. Now is her time to relive her life without expending any energy. She can enjoy her days now as she couldn't before — when she was too busy.

"We younger people live for today and tomorrow, but Mom lives each day in the past. Who is to say that is so unpleasant? Many people believe when we die we will be reunited with our loved ones, but my Mom has already been reunited with hers. She sees them every day. This is the way I prefer to think and it has helped me accept this last phase of my mother's life.

"I won't know if I'm right until I, too, reach senility, and when I do, I will probably be too confused to tell others about it. But I hope those who come to visit me will believe as I do. It will make life easier for everyone. — An Only Daughter"

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope and Help" by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and long stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Dear Daughter: It should be comforting to know that the authorities on senility say the world these folks live in is the only world they know. To them it is reality. Your mother is having a ball.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You mentioned recently that some drug can make one's skin particularly sensitive to the sun's rays. Which ones? What is a good sun-blocking preparation? Can you get a sunburn in winter? — M.V.

The list is wide, but chiefly they are some of the antibiotics, and antibacterial agents such as those used in medicated soaps and creams, also birth control pills. Even barbiturates can make the skin more susceptible to burning. The American Cancer Society adds some of the perfumes to the list of products that can cause a sensitive reaction.

There are many sun-blocking agents available. One used extensively by life-guard is zinc oxide, a white ointment.

You can get a sunburn in winter. In its publication, "Sense in the Sun," the American Cancer Society points out that you don't have to be hot to get a severe sunburn. There is less atmosphere on mountaintops for filtering out the sun's rays, and snow reflects the rays, so skiers can get sunburn.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a woman ovulate more than once a month? — Mrs.

TWEED CLASSIC — It's a classic fabric that will be one of the mainstays of men's fashions this Fall. This vested tweed suit is styled with patch pockets that have an inverted pleat decorated with a touch of cotton suede. The fabric, of polyester and wool, is an oatmeal shade with brown and orange flecks.

H.P.

A woman ovulates only once during each menstrual cycle. The timing of ovulation in two consecutive cycles might occur within a single calendar month. Sounds like a trick question.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been diagnosed as having angina pectoris. I have read much about it, but I wondered what the death rate is from this. Have you got any statistics? — G.L.

It's not wise to toss around statistics about any specific disease. None is absolute. As a matter of fact, angina pectoris is a symptom and not a disease per se. Death is due to the underlying cause of angina pectoris — disease of the coronary arteries (those supplying the heart). Generally, the outlook (prognosis) in angina pectoris is good — quite good. The latest statistics I have show an annual death rate of 1.4 percent in men with angina and no history of heart attack or poor blood pressure. The individual outlook might be less favorable depending on other factors, such as the number of heart arteries involved, age, etc. But these can be balanced out by prompt and conscientious adherence to instructions on how to live with the condition. The recent spurt of coronary artery bypass operations probably lowers the general mortality statistics somewhat, how much cannot be measured at this point.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently I was involved in an auto accident and fortunately came out with only a back strain. While the doctor was examining my X-rays he told me that my bones were much older than my age (28). Should I seek advice from another doctor, and if so what kind? I have no regular family physician to turn to. I am worried about this. — A.R.S.

Only the doctor making that statement knows what it means. This could be one of those meaningless incidental remarks doctors sometimes make that do more harm than good. The obvious answer for your anxiety is to settle matters. Go back to the doctor and ask him what he did mean. If you have had no bone problems up to now, you can probably assume that your bones are just about "as old" as you are.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently had a small stroke. My hand and arm were not affected, so I am thankful I can write this to you. My main concern is how to avoid having another one. — A.L.F.

About all you can do to avoid another is to keep your blood pressure under control, lose weight if you are overweight, quit smoking, and avoid emotional tension.

Is angina pectoris dangerous? Is there a cure? If you would like to learn more about this heart condition, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Handle Angina Pectoris." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
When I am in the dark, I turn to Heloise: someone will light a spark — under her auspices.
So this I now request of anyone who is aware: How can I get the best of that dogged tenacious dog hair? — Anne E. Hill

You're as cute as a button, and thanks for the vote of confidence.
But now, to try to keep Bowser and master happy, here are a few suggestions on getting rid of dog hair.
Try dipping a sponge in diluted vinegar (half vinegar and half water), squeeze out the sponge and wipe the upholstery. This will pick up the hairs.
Also, try using the dog's wire brush to get hairs caught in the carpet and left after using the vacuum cleaner.

These methods are not for your more sensitive fabrics (satin, velvet, etc.), but for the more sturdy and practical kind. Be sure to test your fabric in an inconspicuous place first.
Anyone else out there have a sure-fire way of helping us animal lovers protect our household furnishings? — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I'm 12 years old and I occasionally wear costume jewelry, but I can't stand it when I can't find my rings.
So, to prevent misplacing my rings, I slip them on my nail polish caps (the tall, slender caps), and presto, my rings can always be found.
Now, when I'm getting ready to go out, I can be doing something else in the time I'm usually looking for my rings! — Marcy Woodruff

DEAR HELOISE:
When my daughter started kindergarten, she left a sister at home lonely and feeling left out.
So I bought her a school box of her very own. It was filled with a little notebook, pencils and coloring book.
She also received some pre-school activity books.
She loves playing school and cutting up old toy catalogs.
Any younger child would love picking out her or his own school things with the older school kids. — Trina

DEAR HELOISE:
I think I've found another use for nylon net!
Recently I purchased kitchen curtains, but couldn't find the right size for my odd-sized kitchen door window.
I went to the fabric shop, hoping for ideas, when there before my eyes was the answer to my problem. Nylon net!
I bought yards of the net and draped it evenly over the top rod of my window. I then thumbtacked it at the bottom, gathering the net as I went along.
Now I have a pretty curtain that lets in plenty of light, yet no one can look in to see what's cooking!
I might add, if you sew, you can make a casing at the top and bottom to fit your window rods — Marlene Baggerly

DEAR HELOISE:
Want to try something a little bit different?
Next time you're baking apples, fill the centers (after the core has been removed) with a brown-and-serve sausage.
Delicious! — P. Reid

DEAR HELOISE:
If your car's air-conditioning (hot or cold) seems to have "bad breath" when you first turn it on, secure a half sheet of foam fabric softener to the front of one of the vents with tape.
Do not let it interfere with the circulation of air, of course.
An instant cure, and also keeps the car smelling fresh all the time — M.W.

DEAR HELOISE:
THIS COLUMN is written for you — the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Your Personal Biorhythms

by Bernard Gittelson

Figure your numbers here — For your own permanent biorhythm number for the Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I) cycles, just follow these steps:

STEP 1	YEAR OF BIRTH
STEP 2	A-B MONTH OF BIRTH
STEP 3	DAY OF BIRTH
TOTALS

BIORHYTHMS FOR SEP. 15, 1978
PHYSICAL				EMOTIONAL				INTELLECTUAL
CRITICAL:	10	22	33	45	56	68	79	91	102	114	125
HIGH:	1-9	21-30	40-50	60-70	81-90	99-108	117-126	135-144	153-162	171-180	189-198
LOW:	11-20	31-40	51-60	71-80	81-90	91-100	111-120	131-140	151-160	171-180	191-200

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2 — Month of birth. Find the corresponding numbers for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Jan.	Feb.	March	April	May	June	July	Aug.	Sept.	Oct.	Nov.	Dec.
P E I	P E I	P E I	P E I	P E I	P E I	P E I	P E I	P E I	P E I	P E I	P E I

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I).

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings.

Tech Student Seeks Campus Pot Protest

A Texas Tech University student Thursday asked for a federal court order requiring university officials to permit a campus protest of Texas' marijuana laws.
Student John Paul Jones asked U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward to issue a temporary restraining order authorizing the proposed Saturday demonstration.

Jones, member of a campus group called Concerned and Political Students, said in an affidavit that plans called for a discussion of proposed legislation and peaceful protest against current laws.

The filed affidavit said approval of the protest permit by university officials included objectionable conditions.

As cited in the affidavit, those conditions included the provision that no announcements by the organization would suggest that persons could choose to violate the laws as a form of protest.

Another condition cited was a provision that the organization had to provide the names of five of its members who could be contacted during the event by university officials.

The suit also seeks a permanent injunction prohibiting discriminatory policies affecting demonstrations, a judgment finding that the Code of Student Affairs violates the U.S. Constitution and $11,000 in damages for alleged violation of Jones' civil rights.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. An electric utility company in which I own some common stock pays good dividends and has increased those dividends almost every year. I suppose this makes it one of the "typical utility commons" you sometimes write about. I am happy with this investment but am confused on one point.

Each year, the company sends me a notice stating that a percentage of the dividend I received "represented a return of capital" and is not taxable as ordinary income. I read the footnotes to the financial statement in the company's annual report, but I still don't understand. Can you explain, in simple English?

A. I'll try but you'll have to forgive me if I stray from use of the truly simple words in the language. This is one of the most complicated accounting and tax situations the ordinary investor runs into.

A utility can pay dividends part of which are counted as a return of capital if the utility uses accounting procedures through which the earnings it reports for tax purposes are different than the earnings it reports in its financial statements to stockholders and to the world.

You might ask if keeping two sets of books isn't dishonest. The answer is no, because the utility is following tax rules and regulations right down the line.

On its regular financial statements, it "capitalizes" part of the money it uses to build new power plants, powerlines and other facilities. And it capitalizes other costs related to construction. These accounting entries increase the stated cost of everything the utility builds.

On its tax books, however, the utility reports all those construction-related items as expenses — thereby reducing its income for tax purposes. Some additional — very complex — procedures can be used to make the difference between the income for "book" purposes and tax purposes even greater.

A utility using these accounting methods distributes the difference between its book income and its taxable income to stockholders as part of its dividends. And, under the Internal Revenue Code, that portion of the dividend is counted as a return of capital and is not taxable as ordinary income.

Q. If there is a depression and the dollar becomes worthless, will the federal government stand behind U.S. Treasury bonds or will those bonds become worthless? What is a safe way to save?

A. Easy, now. Don't get into a personal panic. You remind me of a former neighbor who, after hearing some doomsday predictions on the radio, withdrew all the family's money from the bank and put it under the mattress. Her husband had to take the next morning off from work, to put the money back where it belonged — in insured checking and savings accounts.

The "safe" way to save is in insured savings accounts and in obligations of the federal government — U.S. Treasury and Savings bonds. I can't guarantee you that there won't be a terrible depression of the type you conjure up. But I don't believe there will be. Stop worrying.

Q. On June 5, 1978, I bought 100 shares of stock through a broker and paid by the "settlement date," June 12. The stock went ex-dividend on July 3. The dividend was payable Aug. 1, to stockholders of record July 10. I expected to receive the dividend check shortly after Aug. 1. Aug. 1 came and went. I still don't have the dividend.

Then I looked at my stock certificate and saw it was dated July 17. Is this a normal way brokers have of ripping off customers?

A. No. You're entitled to that dividend, because you bought before the ex-dividend date. The date on the certificate doesn't change that. It often takes a month or more to get the stock transferred from the seller to the buyer and to have the certificate issued.

Your broker now has an obligation to track down that dividend and see to it that you get the check you have coming to you.

High Level Executive Chosen In Move By Ford Motor Firm

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Philip Caldwell, 58, once described as "the torse who outran the hare," was elected Thursday to succeed Lee A. Iacocca as president of Ford Motor Co.

The action by the board of directors gave Caldwell a third title and more firmly entrenched him as No. 2 man at the No. 2 automaker. He was already vice chairman and deputy chief executive officer.

In another move, John McDougall, 62, a ranking executive with engineering credentials, was shifted into a key spot in Ford's auto operations.

Henry Ford II, who dictated the controversial firing of Iacocca in July, remains chairman and chief executive officer.

Caldwell, a Harvard Business School graduate whom colleagues call a personal opposite of the brash Iacocca, had already been performing the duties of president and his election to the post was no surprise.

It will maintain a management "troika" — the Office of Chief Executive — composed of Henry Ford II, Caldwell and William Clay Ford, Henry's younger brother.

The only other executive prominently mentioned as a possible president was William O. Bourke, who remains executive vice president for North American Automotive Operations. McDougall, also named an executive vice president, will report to Bourke.

Analysts have become increasingly hesitant to make predictions about management at Ford Motor, noting the unexpected firing of Iacocca and other presidents over the years.

Just two days ago, the chairman was quoted as saying the board would take no action on a new president at this week's board meeting. A company spokesman said Ford must have been "misunderstood."

But industry analysts outline this scenario as Henry Ford II, who turned 61 earlier this month, nears retirement.

Caldwell will become chief executive officer when Henry steps down from that post, as he has said he will do in 1980. William Clay will become chairman, keeping the family atop the company, if Henry leaves the chairman's post as expected in 1982 at age 65.

Caldwell labored at a series of jobs in Ford's truck, Philco and other operations before becoming chairman of Ford of Europe Inc., in 1972 — a time when Ford's European subsidiary was growing quickly in importance to the corporation.

Iacocca, meanwhile, became known as the "father of the Mustang." Ford's trend-setting sporty small car introduced in 1965. He became widely known outside the company as a sales and marketing genius.

Caldwell vaulted over Iacocca in April 1977 in the first management shuffle to pave the way toward Henry Ford's retirement. Iacocca remained president but Caldwell was named vice chairman as Henry Ford created a triumvirate of himself, Caldwell and Iacocca. Caldwell, not Iacocca, was in charge when Henry was out of town.

That lineup was solidified last June when Caldwell got the additional title of deputy chief executive officer, William Clay was plucked from a minor vice president's job, and Iacocca stood still.

A month later, as apparent personal friction between Henry Ford and Iacocca came to the surface, Iacocca was fired.

Iacocca remains president in name until Oct. 15, but is already out of the picture at Ford headquarters here. Caldwell takes the president's title on Oct. 16.

Belgian Secretary Sympathetic To Americans' Financial Woes

HOUSTON (AP) — Belgium's budget secretary says he listens sympathetically when American businessmen complain of the cost of investing in his country.

Dr. Mark Eyskens says he answers the complaints by telling the businessmen part of their problem is the depreciating dollar.

Eyskens told a group of businessmen Wednesday the breakdown of the international monetary system was ushered in by President Nixon's 1971 declaration ending the gold convertibility of the American dollar.

Since then, he said, the value of a dollar in Belgian francs has dropped from 50 to 31.

The depreciation of the dollar, he said, is a matter of growing concern among Europeans, adding that if the dollar continues to sag Europeans can only suspect it is a case of dollar dumping.

"The present crisis, which not only has an economic and structural origin, threatens a number of Western countries with a latent or real impoverishing process," he said.

Eyskens called for unity between the United States and Western European nations over the next decade while they will have to lead the world in helping Third World countries develop sufficiently to trade with industrial nations.

Eyskens' Houston visit was sponsored jointly by the Houston Chamber of Commerce, World Trade Association, Institute of International Education and Port Houston Authority.

Administration Aims Inflation Fight Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter's top domestic affairs aide told an audience of business executives Thursday the White House has ruled out imposition of "mandatory wage and price controls" as a way of controlling inflation.

Stuart E. Eizenstadt said President Carter's advisers are considering "a number of different options" involving voluntary wage or price restraints, but added the President "has not received a recommendation" yet.

Eizenstadt, assistant to the President for domestic affairs and policy, spoke to about 700 executives at the Conference Board's "1979 business outlook" meeting. The Conference Board is a private business research organization.

The White House adviser did not detail the wage-price restraint plans under discussion, but many widely circulated proposals have centered around the use of tax incentives or penalties to keep inflation in check. Most of the programs would need congressional approval to take effect.

Even though Eizenstadt said mandatory restraints aren't due, he maintained inflation is "our number one economic problem and in many respects our number one domestic problem."

Administration officials have estimated inflation will reach 7 percent to 8 percent this year, and Eizenstadt said the White House has taken concrete steps to cut the cost of living.

Among the steps Eizenstadt cited was a reduction in the federal budget deficit from $66 billion when Carter took office in 1977 to a projected $43 billion in fiscal 1979 and to "the $30 billions" by 1980.

Government deficits can pull the economy out of recession by substituting public outlays for lagging private spending. But continued high levels of public spending as the economy nears full capacity can fuel inflation by putting excess demands on credit markets and on providers of goods and services.

Earlier in the day, Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. Chairman Elmore C. Patterson said more fiscal restraint is needed.

"A federal budget deeply in deficit in the fourth year of (economic) recovery, at a point where resources are approaching relatively full utilization doesn't exactly suggest that serious fiscal restraint ... is being practiced," he said.

The Senate is considering — and the House soon may take up — a bill lifting many natural gas price ceilings. Eizenstadt called passage of the bill "of critical importance" because it will cut billions of dollars from the nation's trade deficit by encouraging domestic gas production while allowing the United States to curb some of its oil imports.

Earlier in the day, Assistant Treasury Secretary Daniel H. Brill said the administration's fiscal 1979 tax cut proposal, pruned by $10 billion from its original $24 billion, includes "powerful incentives for business investment," to spur needed private spending on new plants and equipment.

But Brill called proposals to cut capital gains taxes as a spur to business spending "wasteful" and "of remote significance."

Evidence provided by capital gains tax-cut backers "doesn't prove a darn thing" and is based on "assertion, assumption and the use of faulty statistical methodology," he said.

Hospital Addition Proposal Dropped

AUSTIN — Lynn County Hospital has withdrawn its application to the Texas Health Facilities Commission for approval of a 1,900 square foot addition to the Tahoka facility.

The application was "administratively withdrawn," a commission spokesman said, after the hospital apparently did not correct deficiencies in its earlier application within the 180-day limit set out by the commission.

In its application, the hospital sought to create four semiprivate rooms, containing eight beds, a medical records room and additional space for maintenance and repair.

Stamp Honors Human Rights

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

The West German government has issued a new 50-pfennig stamp by the Federal Republic of Germany to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights.

The stamp is one of five new adhesives issued by the Federal Republic and Berlin, according to the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The dates 1953-1978 appear at the top of the stamp.

Another new stamp marks the 65th annual conference of the Interparliamentary Union in Bonn. The new 70-pf stamp depicts an artist's conception of the Bundeshaus — the German Federal Parliament Building.

A new 40-pf stamp honors the 85th Congress of German Catholics being held in Freiburg. The design shows the rosette in the northern aisle of the Freiburg Minster.

The fourth stamp pays tribute to Clemens Brentano, one of the great poets of German Romanticism, on the 200th anniversary of his birth. The 30-pf stamp has a profile of Brentano with the wings of a butterfly.

The third World Swimming Championships held this summer in West Berlin are hailed on a new 40-pf stamp featuring three aquatic athletes in swimming competition. Swimming, diving and water polo were highlighted at the games.

The new German stamps are available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department.

The Curtiss "Jenny" is again featured on a new U.S. postal item.

The Jenny appears on the 21-cent U.S. international airmail postal card just released by the U.S. Postal Service. The plane was a U.S. Army training plane modified to carry mail and was depicted on the first U.S. airmail stamps issued in 1918 in 6-cent, 16-cent and 24-cent values.

The Jenny became legendary in the philatelic world when one pane of the 24-cent airmail stamps, was printed with the vignette inverted, and an "upside down Jenny" is one of the most prized stamps in existence today.

Requests for first-day cancellations should be sent to: "Airmail Postal Card, Postmaster, San Diego, Calif. 92199." Do not send cash. Money orders are acceptable for payment. Orders will be accepted through Oct. 2 and must be postmarked by that date.

To eliminate the requirement for Postal Service personnel to apply return addresses, collectors are asked to send self-addressed envelopes of an appropriate size or return address labels with their orders.

The 1979 edition of Stanley Gibbons' "British Commonwealth Catalogue" is now on the market featuring many notable price increases for classic stamps. The 81st edition contains 1,000 pages of essential information for the collector of Commonwealth items and is fully illustrated.

Canada's 1851 12-pence black is up from 25,000 pounds to 28,000 pounds unused. Other stamps showing marked increases are the 1897 Queen Victoria Jubilee set of 16 stamps, Bermuda's 1865-1903 imperforate 1-pence Rose-Red and Vancouver Island's 1865 imperforate 5-cents Rose. The British Virgin Islands "Missing Virgin" 1-shilling Rose Carmine error now stands at 30,000 pounds, unused.

Children's Emotions Shown In Photos

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

When it comes to photographing children with skill, sensitivity and expert psychological understanding, the name of Suzanne Szasz comes to mind. Her long-standing reputation in that area is now more greatly enhanced with her newest book "The Body Language of Children."

Almost a summing up of her life's work — 30 years of professional photography

— the book's 193 photographs reveal the emotional clues of children (and parents) as expressed in physical attitudes of hands, eyes, head and the body. It is a significant body language that conveys the various emotions of love and happiness but also of anger, frustration, jealousy and hostility.

The high standard of Suzanne's photography and her psychological interpretations of the photos is applauded by Dr. Benjamin Spock, world-famous pediatrician and children's psychiatrist, in the book's Foreword. He was deeply moved by the pictures and delighted with the book.

Spock notes that we photographers and parents always try to get happy, smiling photos of our children.

"I suppose the deeper meaning is that we yearn to have them happy always, no matter how unrealistic that hope is," he points out. "We want to recall them later as responding joyfully to us. We want them to appear happy when we show their pictures to relatives and friends."

We also try to get adults to smile for pictures, too. And in elections, it's usually the candidate with the reassuring smile who wins our confidence and votes.

"We seem to want to forget and deny the negative feelings," Spock says, "so we try to keep anger, anxiety, jealousy and sorrow out of our pictures. Perhaps unconsciously and superstitiously we are trying to protect our children and friends from these painful emotions by this kind of photography-magic."

"But when we ignore all the moods except happiness in our pictures," Spock adds, "we leave out vital aspects of our children's personalities and experiences. These are aspects that would fascinate us to recall when we look at their photographs in later years."

As a professional with great understanding, Suzanne Szasz has never focused exclusively on smiling happy babies; she has revealed the widest variety of moods and personalities in children in those early dramatic moments when they first occurred.

She has been able to get her remarkably candid pictures by fading into the background near her subjects, working unobtrusively — almost as though she were invisible — and with a minimum of equipment.

She points out that feelings and "gut-level" emotions are often expressed in ways that do not use words: in body language. And sometimes what people say in words is at variance with what they convey in their expression, gesture or body attitude. We can often recognize a person's mood or feeling without a spoken word.

She adds that the body language of children is a reliable way of understanding their feelings and desires. It is especially important with infants who haven't yet learned to talk. When a baby cries, parents have to learn to distinguish whether it's from hunger, boredom or pain by observing the infant's physical clues.

The book's photographs are analyzed to show how children and parents communicate their feelings by physical interaction. Arms and hands can be relaxed or protectively touching to indicate serenity and love; or they can be tense, conveying rejection or hostility. There are clues in the tilt of the head, shoulders and eyebrows; the line of the lips, mouth and eyes; and in other positions of the hands, fingers, arms and body.

"A good parent-child relationship demands that parents quickly tune in to their children's nonverbal language," she says, "and at the same time, the children learn what their parents' body language is telling them."

Spock sums it up well when he says Suzanne Szasz is more than a skillful photographer of children; she is a sensitive student of their feelings. She has worked closely with professionals in the field of child guidance but her shrewd observations of how children express their feelings through facial and bodily movements are her own. And she has perfected this knowledge by taking, studying and analyzing thousands of her own photographs, and the situations under which the photographs were made.

Dust Continues To Be Problem In Varnishing

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

The story goes — and there is at least one written account of it — that many years ago, professional wood finishers in some factories had to take off all their clothes before applying varnish to furniture.

Why? Because the dust and lint from their clothes would have settled on the wet surfaces and ruined the work. It doesn't matter much whether the tale has been exaggerated, because the premise behind it is as true then as now.

Whether old-line natural-resin varnishes or the newer and better synthetic varnishes, their enemy continues to be dust. All newly finished surfaces must be kept free of dust, but the battle need not be as intense against such quick-drying materials as lacquer and shellac.

When varnish is being used, it is important the project be carried out in a room which no one is likely to enter while you are at work and preferably for several hours. The room should be as dust-free as possible, which in some cases means using a vacuum cleaner before starting, working very carefully, since the procedure itself sometimes stirs up dust.

After the surface has been sanded, it must be wiped thoroughly with turpentine or mineral spirits to get rid of the grit caused by the sanding. Pros use a tack rag, which is moistened with turpentine and a bit of varnish. You can buy one at almost any hardware or paint store.

If you wish to make one, sprinkle a clean cloth with turpentine and then add a little varnish. Ring out the cloth until nearly dry, then wipe the surface with it. After you have finished with it, put it in an airtight metal container and it can be used over and over again. (The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Another professional trick calls for the use of a picking stick. Here again you can buy one, although only in certain stores. But you can accomplish the same purpose — removing dust specks — with an ordinary wooden toothpick. Lightly touch the end of the toothpick to the bit of dust and it will come up. The wet varnish will then close in around the spot and smooth it out. This works only when the varnish is still very wet.

Varnish is applied with flowing brush strokes. Do not brush it back and forth. Work against the grain of the wood in a small area, then do the same thing with the grain. Stroke the brush across the grain or something similar to remove excess varnish, then draw the bristles lightly across the work surface with the grain. This last operation, in which only the tips of the bristles touch the surface, is called tipping and is an important smoothing-out step.

Some varnishes require only a single coat, but this depends on a number of factors, including the kind of surface to which the varnish is applied. Since different manufacturers' brands call for different treatments, read the label carefully. If you apply more than one coat, each should be sanded lightly after it is completely dry.

Scrub Stained Areas Before Laying Tile

By The Associated Press

Q. — There are some grease stains on the concrete floor of our garage. They have been there for several years and we never thought much about them, but now we plan to refinish the garage for use as an extra room. We expect to install vinyl asbestos tiles on the floor. Will the stains have to be removed and how do we go about it?

A. — Before applying adhesive to the floor for the tiles, wash the stained areas thoroughly with a solution of trisodium phosphate, which can be purchased in most hardware stores, lumber yards and building supply establishments. Use a scrubbing brush with a long handle to ease the task. You may have to do this several times before the stains — or most of them — disappear. After each application and scrubbing, rinse thoroughly with clear water. Should there still be a light coloring in the concrete after three or four applications, it won't interfere with the installation of the tiles.

Q. — The back portion of our house is covered with asphalt siding. We want to put aluminum siding on the house. Will the asphalt siding have to be removed first?

A. — Generally, aluminum siding can be applied over other types of exterior walls, but the decision should be made by the contractor because of special conditions that may be present and can only be detected by a personal inspection.

Q. — Our attic has been unfinished for years, but we now expect to make it into two bedrooms. There is some insulation in the attic floor, but we are somewhat confused as to where we must now insulate in order to make the rooms livable. We want to use the batt type of insulation that can be stapled in place. Do we have to insulate only behind the walls of the enclosed area or along the inside of the roof or both? Can you go into some detail about this?

A. — Space limitations prevent complete details of where and how to insulate an attic, but you can find them in the booklet, "Save Money by Insulating," which can be obtained by sending 35 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. In answer to your query, insulation is usually applied to both places.

(Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.

Duck Flight Captured In Needlepoint

There is nothing more majestic than a mallard in flight. And, pictured at left, it's captured radiantly in needlepoint. The grace of the bird and the serenity of the sky lend a peaceful beauty to any wall in the house.

Although stitcheries have been thought of traditionally as women's crafts, today more and more men are experimenting with the precision of needlepoint to translate favorite subjects into heirloom display pieces. For anyone who loves the outdoors, the mallard in needlepoint is fun to create — or to receive.

Using only two basic stitches, brick and continental, the 14-inch diameter stitchery can be completed easily in a fairly short time. Although originally suggested as a pillow, the Mallard in Flight would make an attractive wall decoration in a den or office.

The kit comes with the full-color design printed on 12-mesh canvas, wool yarn, and step-by-step instructions. This is truly a kit for the experienced "stitcher" or the novice.

TIPS FOR GARDENERS

Diet May Help Fight Caterpillar Problem

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

An effort is being made to control voracious, crop-devouring caterpillars through enforced diet that sends them on "bad trips," giving them the shakes and causing them to fall off the plants.

The larvae of caterpillars such as the corn earworm, cotton budworm and tobacco hornworm spend their lives eating in preparation for their brief adult life as moths or butterflies. But pesticides that could get rid of them also kill many beneficial insects and other predators, so spraying is a problem.

This is what researchers at Purdue University report about use of a new type of pesticide — the formamidines — that attack caterpillars by putting them on a diet.

The first unusual discovery was that these compounds are not highly toxic to insects.

The caterpillars feed quite happily on treated foliage, but rapidly develop tremors and fall off the plant. Although they may recover sufficiently to climb back on, they very quickly go on another "bad trip" and fall back off, eventually starving to death.

If a passing bird or other predator makes a meal of the dieting caterpillar the small amount of the ingested pesticide won't affect it.

The formamidines excite the nervous system of the insect, turning on some of the connectors that cause the nerves to fire and the attached muscles to contract and cause shakes and twitches. Thus the caterpillars fall off the plant and miss a meal.

"We believe these pesticides act in a way that is quite novel," says Prof. R.M. Hollingworth. "When we understand more about these synapses (nervous system connectors) and how the pesticides excite them, we hope to be able to devise other ways to interfere with these nerves and thus achieve highly selective and safe plant protection."

Hollingworth said the formamidines were very toxic to insect embryos and very young larvae.

Mesh Bags Repel Deer
While riding through Don Baker's orchard of young dwarf apple trees in Livingston, N.Y., we noticed small mesh bags attached to the central crown of each tree. Don explained it was an experiment to repel foraging deer.

Into each bag — the size of a small onion container — is placed a couple of handfuls of human hair swept up at a nearby barbershop. Baker says it has discouraged deer but that men's hair is better than women's, because hair-set spray apparently makes it less effective.

The Cooperative Extension Service said the technique was about the only repellent that worked in the area this summer in deer control. Tree sprays aren't potent for long; fences are expensive and not very effective unless they are tall. A material known as "lankage" put in bags and tied to each tree, also an expensive, laborious process, seemed to work for a while.

EDUCATOR BACKLASH

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Parents who sue educators for allegedly failing to teach their children could find themselves the targets of a backlash by school officials, warns U.S. Commissioner of Education Ernest Boyer. Boyer, in Madison to address the State Superintendent's Conference for School District Administrators, said Wednesday that educators could start demanding that parents and students be more accountable to the school system.

Police Seeking Man Following Robbery

The 7-Eleven Store at Detroit Avenue and Colgate Street was robbed shortly before 3 a.m. Thursday — the third time in the past four weeks the store has been victimized.

In the most recent hit on the all-night convenience store, the suspect, toting a blue-steel, long-barreled revolver, made off with $100, police were told.

Police are looking for a short Mexican-American man, with black hair and brown hair. The suspect was last seen wearing a green shirt and blue jeans.

The store's attendant, Tony Ramos, told investigating officers he was talking on the pay phone when the suspect walked in, got a soft drink from the refrigerator and went to the counter.

The clerk said he then walked to the register and was confronted with the man's cocked gun. Ramos said the gunman demanded all the money in the register, plus the contents of his pockets.

Ramos said the robber left the store with about $100, and was last seen going around the southeast corner of the building.

Johnston, whose Navajo Code confounded the Japanese in World War II, has died in the Veterans Administration hospital in San Diego.

Johnston, a summertime Flagstaff resident, would have been 86 Thursday. He died Monday.

Graveside services were set for Friday at Glendale, Calif.

Johnston grew up on the Navajo Reservation as the son of Presbyterian missionaries. When he was 9, Johnston served as interpreter for a meeting between President Theodore Roosevelt and Peshlakai Etselti, a Navajo leader.

He served with the U.S. Army in France in World War I, and suggested using the Navajo language for secret communication in World War II. U.S. Marine officials at Camp Pendleton, Calif., accepted the idea and made Johnston a technical sergeant, in charge of recruiting Navajo code talkers from the reservation in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah.

The Japanese were unable to decipher the code. In 1969, more than 20 years after the war ended, Johnston was given a special congressional medal for his work.

Enticing City Property Keeps Burglars Active

Burglars continued to make costly hauls from Lubbock homes and businesses, with one machine company owner complaining of the loss of worth of equipment.

Corky Bozeman said someone cut through a portion of chain-link fence surrounding the storage yard at Bozeman Machinery Tractor Salvage Inc. at 122 Idalou Road and took 30 car radiators and 10 tractor radiators. He said the intruders also caused $50 damage to the fence.

Marnette Reeves said whoever broke the bathroom window at her 1610 59th St., No. 5, residence got away with $1,110 worth of property.

She listed as missing two leather coats, a sewing machine, diamond earrings, jewelry, television, stereo and three pairs of jeans.

Burglars with an apparent interest in athletics broke into an annex building northeast of Bozeman Elementary School, 3101 E. 2nd St., and took $140 worth of sports equipment.

School principal Clarence Priestly said the intruders tore a screen off a window to get inside the storage facility and took 10 basketballs and seven footballs, together valued at $140.

Robert Leo Bell, manager of the Britany Restaurant at 2424 14th St., said whoever pried the front door of that establishment got away with about $100 cash.

About $60 of the money came from a cigarette machine, juke box and electronic game, whose change boxes had been pried, Bell said. The burglars also rifled through office drawers, he said, and took about $40 from a drawer in one of the desks.

A 45-year-old Lubbock man was taken to Health Sciences Center Hospital shortly before 3 p.m. Wednesday after he was beaten up while in the "drunk tank" of the county jail.

The victim, who had been picked up several hours earlier for public intoxication, was treated and released at the hospital, and was back in jail Thursday.

Jail correctional officer Lonnie Bright said he noticed the man lying on a bunk bleeding severely from the face and his shirt was covered with blood.

The officer, reports show, asked other prisoners in the cell what happened, and one of the inmates answered, "I did it, I hit him."

It was not known Thursday what provoked the attack.

Police Det. Ronnie Goolsby said Thursday no arrests had been made yet in connection with the reported theft of 7,916 gallons of gasoline, totaling $4,540 from a local service station.

Dalton Strong, an employee at the Chevron Service Station at 2602 Parkway Drive, told police the station's underground tanks, which were supposed to have been filled last week, were checked Monday, and found to be full of water rather than gasoline.

Reported missing were 762 gallons of unleaded gas, totaling $453; 3,643 gallons of regular gas, totaling $1,985; and 3,511 gallons of ethyl fuel, totaling $2,008.

Strong said Thursday a tank truck could have been used to pump the fuel out of its storage.

Police Thursday were looking for a young, short black man who allegedly attacked an 18-year-old student at her apartment shortly before midnight Wednesday.

The woman said the man, wearing a brown T-shirt and white pants, entered her apartment, went to the bedroom and attempted to rape her. However, the woman resisted, according to reports, and the suspect left after putting the student in her bedroom closet.

A 14-year-old girl told police she and a friend were at her 36th Street residence about 9 p.m. Wednesday when a two-door, black and white Pontiac drove up in front, and one of the two occupants of the vehicle shot several times at the house and then sped off.

The teenager reportedly was hit in the shoulder by a bullet, but was not hurt seriously.

Two persons, patronizing a popular nightclub for college students early Thursday, said they were assaulted by the club's security guard and another man.

Alfonso Urias, a 24-year-old out-of-town salesman, said he was confronted by the guard about 1:30 a.m. and was told, "Didn't I tell you to get out of here."

Urias told police he was forced into a back office where he was hit in the nose, and then thrown out of the club.

Robert James Roberts, 25, of 1802 Sixth St., Apt. 27, said that he was also assaulted by the guard and another man at the club. Roberts said his date had gone to the bathroom about 1 a.m. when the men escorted him into the club office and pushed him around.

In one of several reported burglaries, Sam M. Sheldon of 2323 6th St., Apt. 6, said his residence was broken into Wednesday and $1,500 in stereo equipment, a television set and records were stolen.

Sheldon said he had been attending classes at Texas Tech University, and returned home to find his apartment ransacked.

Two diamond rings, valued at $650, were reported stolen from Donna G. Delp's residence at 8410 Flint Ave. between Sunday and 11:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The 22-year-old housewife said the rings had been in a jewelry box in a back bedroom.

Key Witnesses Testify Man's Shooting Death 'Accidental'

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Two key witnesses Thursday said William Drew Young III, allegedly shot to death inside a local bar last Christmas Eve, was killed by accident.

The testimony from Homer V. Lowrance Jr. and Jan Payne came after the state, in a surprise move, had rested its case against murder defendant Kenneth Wayne Herndon.

Earlier Thursday, both Lowrance and Miss Payne, called by the state, said Young, 28, was killed in a back office of the Salt River Saloon, 2311 19th St., when a gun held by Herndon discharged.

After prosecutor Jim Darnell made the surprise announcement that the state had rested, Gerald Anderson, handling the defense along with attorney Jim Alexander, said he wanted to call Lowrance, 38, back to the stand for additional cross-examination.

Prefacing his question with the statement that Lowrance had earlier told him he thought the shooting accidental, Anderson asked if that were his opinion.

"At the time I thought it was an accident," the witness answered.

Anderson asked if Lowrance still felt the shooting was accidental. "Yes, sir," Lowrance said.

The defense lawyer then called Miss Payne. "In my opinion, I'd say it was," she said, when asked if the shooting had been accidental.

Anderson asked if Herndon had shown surprise and remorse after the gun went off. "I think we all did," she replied.

Lowrance, his wife Tico, 28, and Miss Payne were charged with murder in the case but were promised they would not go to prison if they testified in the trials of three additional persons charged.

Herndon, 36, is accused in connection with the Dec. 24, 1977, death of Young. The victim's body was found stuffed inside the trunk of his burning auto south of Lubbock.

Unique Linguist Dies In Arizona

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Phillip Johnston, whose Navajo Code confounded the Japanese in World War II, has died in the Veterans Administration hospital in San Diego.

Johnston, a summertime Flagstaff resident, would have been 86 Thursday. He died Monday.

Graveside services were set for Friday at Glendale, Calif.

Johnston grew up on the Navajo Reservation as the son of Presbyterian missionaries. When he was 9, Johnston served as interpreter for a meeting between President Theodore Roosevelt and Peshlakai Etselti, a Navajo leader.

He served with the U.S. Army in France in World War I, and suggested using the Navajo language for secret communication in World War II. U.S. Marine officials at Camp Pendleton, Calif., accepted the idea and made Johnston a technical sergeant, in charge of recruiting Navajo code talkers from the reservation in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah.

The Japanese were unable to decipher the code. In 1969, more than 20 years after the war ended, Johnston was given a special congressional medal for his work.

Lubbock about 10 p.m.

The two other persons charged were Kenneth Owen Jaycon, 32, and local bar owner Jim Gordon, 42. Jaycon was convicted during an earlier trial at which the Lowrances and Miss Payne testified.

It had been expected that Mrs. Lowrance would testify in Herndon's trial. There is a possibility she may still be called as a rebuttal witness.

Presiding 99th District Court Judge Thomas L. Clinton announced that the trial will be recessed until 1:30 p.m. today.

During earlier testimony Thursday, Lowrance and Miss Payne had described their version of events inside the office bar on the evening of Dec. 24.

Rasping into a courtroom microphone because of a sore throat, Lowrance said Herndon, carrying a .357 magnum pistol, was inside the bar office with other persons, including Young.

Young, he said, was seated on a couch while being interrogated about some missing money. The witness had earlier explained that Young, a former bartender at the business, had been suspected of stealing money from the cash register.

Lowrance said Gordon had hit Young three or four times with a clenched fist, questioning him about the alleged missing funds.

According to Lowrance, Herndon told

Gordon he did not need to get into any trouble.

The witness said Herndon got up from a corner barstool and said, "Where is the damned money?"

Lowrance said Herndon told Young he would give him until the count of three to tell where the money was.

He said Herndon began counting and the gun went off before he got to the number three.

Lowrance said he saw blood coming from the back of Young's head. "It was about like you would pour a glass of water out," the burly former truck driver said when Darnell asked about the quantity of blood.

The witness indicated he had been looking toward Gordon when the gun went off. He specified that he had not seen Herndon point the weapon at Young.

According to Lowrance, he, his wife and Miss Payne had gone to the club, managed by Mrs. Lowrance, about 5 p.m. after being informed that Young had earlier caused a disturbance there and threatened to return.

Judge Rules Tyler Cannot Charge Aliens

TYLER (AP) — A federal judge said Thursday the Tyler Independent School District cannot charge tuition for illegal alien children, a ruling that could have statewide impact.

U.S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice signed a permanent injunction against the Tyler board of education and the state, which was a co-defendant. It enjoins the district from charging tuition or otherwise bar illegal alien pupils.

Although his order was carefully directed toward the Tyler case, he did discuss the constitutionality of a state law which says school districts can charge tuition. The state statute has recently been upheld by an appeals court in a case from Houston. The Texas Supreme Court, although it did not hear arguments, in effect upheld the state law by refusing to review the lower court ruling.

The Houston appeals court had said that a free education is not a fundamental right guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

Justice's decision said the state law conflicted with federal law and policies related to education and its funding, leaving the door open for other groups to challenge the state law in federal court.

He based it upon the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which guarantees equal protection under the law.

The Tyler district had charged $1,000 tuition per illegal alien pupil. That was challenged by a suit filed on behalf of 16 illegal alien children. Among the plaintiffs was the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund of San Francisco.

On Sept. 11, 1977, Justice issued a temporary injunction against the policy. Last December, the judge took the case under consideration after hearing several days of testimony.

In February, the Justice Department filed a 33-page post-trial brief recommending that the judge declare the Texas law unconstitutional.

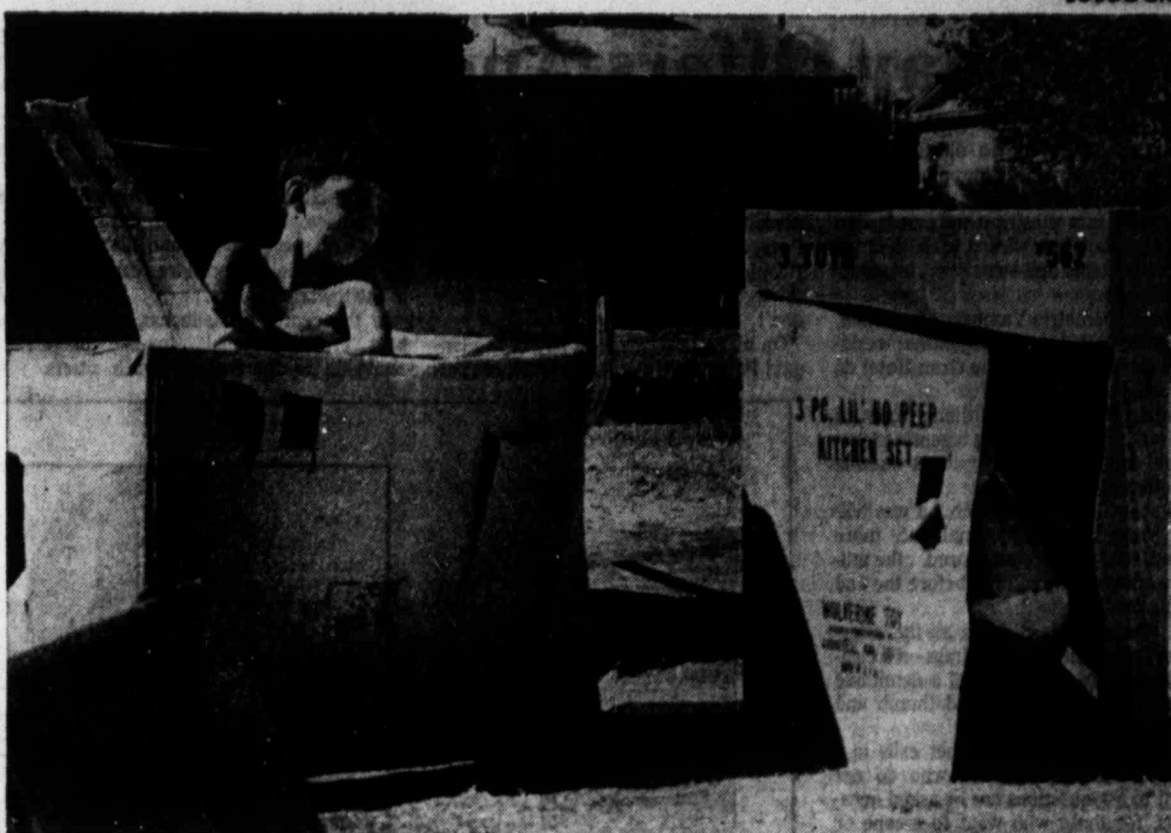

The Justice Department alleged that Section 21.031 of the Texas Education Code violates the equal protection clause of the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

At the trial, witnesses testified that children of illegal aliens generally perform better than native-born minority children and that illegal aliens are not a drain on the U.S. economy.

Salinas To Attend President's Brunch

State Rep. Froy Salinas announced Thursday he has been invited by President and Mrs. Carter to a Sunday brunch at the White House in honor of Hispanic Celebration Week.

Salinas and his wife Olivia plan to attend. Both said they are very excited and honored by the invitation.

House Okays Airline Tax Rebate Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted Thursday to give airlines a tax rebate to help them absorb the cost of muffling or replacing some 1,600 noisy jet airplanes over the next five years.

Opponents assailed the tax rebate plan as a handout to a prosperous industry, but supporters said it was needed to enable the airlines to meet federal noise standards.

The Senate Commerce Committee has approved a similar bill, but the Finance Committee must also act before the measure can go to the full Senate.

Quick action is not expected, because the Finance Committee is preoccupied with major tax legislation as Congress approaches adjournment planned for October.

The final vote in the House was 272-123, but an earlier vote of 227-170 on a procedural move more nearly reflected the division among lawmakers on the issue.

The money would come from a 2 percent tax on passenger fares and freight charges. But the cost of airline tickets and freight charges would remain about the same because there would be a reduction in ticket taxes that go into a fund for airport improvement.

The money collected in ticket taxes would be passed along by the federal government to the airlines in the form of a rebate.

The change in the tax structure would last for five years, beginning Oct. 1.

According to a House Public Works Committee report, approximately 1,600 large jet airplanes out of a U.S. airline fleet of 2,150 are noisier than federal standards permit.

They include four-engine Boeing 707 and McDonnell Douglas DC-8 aircraft and two and three-engine Boeing 727 and 737 and McDonnell Douglas aircraft that were produced before Dec. 1, 1973.

The airlines have been ordered to replace the 727's and 737's or bring them into compliance by Jan. 1, 1983. Half of the 707's and DC-8's must be retired or brought into compliance by the same deadline and the rest by 1985.

The tax rebate money could be used by the airlines to pay up to 90 percent of the cost of putting sound-muffling material into engines, up to 75 percent of the cost of new engines and up to 40 percent of the cost of new airplanes.

Rep. Lloyd Meeds, D-Wash., who supported the proposal, said the tax would yield about $2.7 billion. But Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, who led the fight against it, said the figure could be as high as $4 billion.

"You are putting into motion an inflationary spiral for the benefit of the most coddled industry on the American scene," Vanik told the House.

But Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., argued, "If some program such as this is not adopted there is no possibility in the world of the airlines meeting the standards."

Foreign airlines flying in the United States would receive the rebates if they met U.S. noise reduction standards.

Commandments Law Challenged

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A law requiring that the Ten Commandments be posted in Kentucky classrooms was challenged Thursday by five Louisville residents who claim the act violates the state and federal constitutions.

The five, of differing beliefs, filed suit in Franklin Circuit Court at Frankfort seeking to void the law, passed by the 1978 legislature, and requesting an injunction against its enforcement.

Circuit Judge Squire Williams issued a temporary restraining order later Thursday barring implementation of the act pending a hearing.

TRIAL SLATED

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Nov. 6 has been set as the new date for the mail fraud trial of Tenneco Oil Co., which is accused of paying $60,000 illegally to St. Bernard Parish Sheriff Jack Rowley.

State Rep. Claudia Riner, D-Louisville, who sponsored the legislation, said the constitutionality of the law had been upheld and that the plaintiffs were "an extremist group out for publicity."

The five are Sydel Stone, a Unitarian; Judy Matheny, a Quaker, Anne Bowers, who described herself as a non-believer in organized religion; Patricia Ann Brickley, a mother of three children, and Martin Perley, a rabbi.

The suit said the law violates Section 5 of the Kentucky constitution "in that it constitutes the giving of a preference by law to a religious sect, society or denomination, particular creed, mode of worship or system of ecclesiastical polity."

The five also asserted that the act violates the First Amendment to the U.S. constitution because it is a law "respecting an establishment of religion by prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

MIDLAND (Special)—Teachers of the English language from elementary to college levels will meet at Midland College Saturday at 8:30 a.m. in the Fine Arts building for a regional workshop.

The fall workshop of District XVII, Texas Joint Council of Teachers of English, is expected to attract 75 to 100 representatives from schools in 15 West Texas counties.

Dr. Al G. Langford, president of Midland College, will welcome delegates to the meeting at 9 a.m. Dr. Robert Miller, English instructor at Midland College, is district chairman of the English teachers council and Mrs. Dorothy Davis of Andrews High School is program chairman.

Speakers and their topics are: Dr. Phyllis Bridges, dean of the Graduate School at Texas Woman's University, "Reading, Writing and the Road to Parnassus"; June Johnston, Odessa High School, "Dynamo, Self and Wasteland: Modernism"; and Jack Fryar, Midland Lee High School, "Individualization of Reading and Writing at Lee High School".

Dr. Miller will preside at the business session.

During the conference, a number of book publishers will have displays of the latest in textbooks, workbooks, and library materials.

Williams Named To Co-Op Post

A-J Correspondent

Clovis, N.M. — David Williams, manager of the Farmers Co-op Elevators, Clovis was elected vice president of the New Mexico Cooperative Council during their 23rd annual meeting in Ruidoso recently.

Other officers are Roger Buddington, Southwestern Irrigated Growers of El Paso, president; Wesley Mc Clendon, Luna Cotton Co-op of Deming, treasurer; and Ray Owensby, Extension food distribution specialist of New Mexico State University, secretary.

Don Caviness, public relations director of the Wichita Bank of Cooperatives outlined the activities and functions of other state cooperative councils in Colorado, Oklahoma and Kansas.

The Extension's education program relating to cooperative was explained by Owensby during the meeting.

The Council which is made up of members from New Mexico and West Texas voted to continue offering its annual scholarship to a student at New Mexico State University.

Paraguay Offers Anonymity To Exiles

ASUNCION, Paraguay (UPI) — In the cavernous hollow of an old-time hotel restaurant, a stranger dines alone, a rose in a vase at his table.

Dressed in a pinstripe suit, an Italian cut, with dark hair slicked back, the man leaves his table and steps over, introducing himself.

Name, Demetrio Vazquez; occupation, Peronist exiled from Argentina; residence for the moment, the Gran Hotel de Paraguay.

Sitting together in the dining room of the same, Vazquez begins a gentle monologue, smiling but fervent about wanting to return home a Peronist.

"I spent 15 months in jails... I was telling some Brazilian journalists... more than 50,000 people disappeared... the military government will fall before the end of the year," he says.

A breeze fluffs curtains as the afternoon lingers on. Vazquez drags on a cigarette, pinches the handle of a demitasse cup in between fingers and thumb and sips down a syrupy coffee.

The Peronist is just another exile in a land which harbors those who do not want to ask questions nor be asked questions, for those who want to escape or just to be left alone.

In 1928, the persecuted Mennonite religious sect, born of German Protestants, sought refuge in Paraguay's hinterland. The sect still lives there, unpersecuted.

Nazi war criminal Edward Roschmann fled to Asuncion last year to die peacefully, a pauper. Another Nazi, Dr. Josef Mengele, whom concentration camp survivors call the "Angel of Death," reportedly lives in the east, in undisturbed luxury.

Maybe Gaspar Rodriguez de Francia, the dictator known as "El Supremo," set the trend during his reign from 1814 to 1840. "El Supremo" laid down a set of simple rules for isolation. Nobody could leave the country, nor enter it, and no trade was allowed.

Under President Alfredo Stroessner, whose six terms of office over 24 years have made him the most stable South American leader, the rules have changed but the effect is the same.

Trade, to a large extent contraband, is permitted as "the price for peace" within Paraguay, in Stroessner's own words. People are welcomed in, if they accept things as they are, and booted out, if they don't.

On a rise overlooking a bay of the languid Paraguay River the government palace in all of its white majesty reigns over the surrounding landscape.

Crowded along the shores of the bay are ramshackle huts. Behind the fence of the palace, a soccer field, on Sunday filled with soccer players and kite flyers.

From the field the children can look up at the towering palace.

In the center of Asuncion, shoeshine boys crowd a small, toy-like plaza, scurrying to the feet of bench sitters.

Taxi drivers line up waiting for customers. A boy washes their cars.

Over the plaza, a neon light repeatedly flashes "President Alfredo Stroessner."

Stroessner, the leader of the Colorado party, had 1 million other Colorados marching along with him on the 15th of August when he began his sixth term of office, his propaganda posters say.

"They went along for the show," a Paraguayan said of the parade.

Indian Complaints Halt Mummy Sale

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The mummified body of an Indian woman has been withdrawn from sale after Indian leaders protested that the sale was offensive for religious reasons.

The body, contained in a glass case and thought to be about 1,000 years old, was one of 500 items slated for auction over the weekend. Zuni Pueblo leaders objected to the attempted sale and complained to the district attorney's office.

Oil Officials Arrested For Price Manipulation

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Two former top officials of Florida Power Corp. were arrested Thursday on charges of conspiring to manipulate the price of fuel oil sold to the utility during the nation's 1973-74 oil crisis.

Angel Perez, 70, former president of the St. Petersburg-based utility, and Richard Raymond, 63, who recently retired as executive vice president, were among seven persons indicted by a federal grand jury.

The FBI said it was one of the nation's first criminal indictments in connection with the Arab oil crisis.

The other five individuals, from Houston, were oilmen or oil industry consultants.

Perez, charged with one count of conspiracy in the 12-count indictment, surrendered to his attorney, Raymond, charged on all 12 counts, was arrested by FBI agents.

The indictment accuses them of conspiracy, mail fraud and fraud by wire, in an alleged system to manipulate the price of fuel oil to reap excessive profits.

It was alleged that the over-charges, reportedly totaling as much as $8.5 million, were paid for by Florida Power customers in the form of monthly fuel adjustment charges on their bills.

Also indicted were James B. Clark, president of Larcon Petroleum Corp. of Houston; Ronald Pruitt, 36, a Houston attorney and part-owner of Larcon Petroleum Inc.; John L. Burns, 50, a former executive with Charter International Oil Corp. of Houston; Walter L. Ballard, a former officer of Signal Oil and Gas Co. of Houston; and Raymond F. Granlund, 73, a Houston-based oil broker.

The five from Houston also were charged on all 12 counts.

Perez, if convicted, faces a maximum of five years in prison. Each of the others faces a maximum of 60 years in prison.

Reports Show Increase In Dry Oil Wells

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of successful oil wells drilled in the United States during the first half of this year declined 5.4 per cent, while the number of dry holes increased 11.4 per cent, the American Petroleum Institute said Thursday.

The institute's "Quarterly Review of Drilling Statistics" showed that the number of wells reported to the API in the first two quarters of this year totaled 8,549 compared with 9,036 during the same period last year. Dry holes increased from 6,889 to 7,671.

Successful natural gas wells showed a 17.2 per cent increase, rising from 5,068 to 5,940.

The decline in successful oil wells and the rise in successful natural gas wells coincided with a 20.9 per cent increase in the total number of exploratory wells drilled for oil and natural gas. The total number of development wells showed an increase of 1.2 per cent.

Most exploratory wells are drilled some distance from known oil or natural gas fields and development wells are drilled in or near proven fields.

Electrical Co-Op Schedules Tuesday Supper, Meeting

The influence and impact of the farm cooperative business on the economy will be discussed Tuesday at the annual membership meeting of the South Plains Electric Cooperative in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Following a 6 p.m. buffet supper, a business meeting will begin at 7 p.m., which will include annual reports and the election of two directors from Districts 4 and 6.

Organized in 1937 and energized with its first line to Cooper Rural High School in 1938, the electrical co-op has grown to a $20 million, member-owned enterprise serving 18,000 consumers.

The South Plains Electric Cooperative Member Services Committee will act as host for the event. Entertainment will be provided for the children.

HEARTLINE

HEARTLINE is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 514 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am going to start drawing my Railroad Retirement benefits very shortly. I am also planning to work parttime. I have always read about the earning restriction on people drawing Social Security, but I never see anything on people drawing Railroad Retirement. Can you tell me anything about this? — E.Q.

The earning restrictions for someone on Railroad Retirement benefits is the same as that for a person on Social Security benefits. Annuitants age 65 or over can earn $4,000 in 1978 before work deductions are made; for annuitants under age 65, earnings of $3,240 in 1978 are allowed before deductions are made. For annuitants over age 65, the annual exempt earnings amount increases to $4,500 in 1979, $5,000 in 1980, $5,500 in 1981, and to $6,000 in 1982.

HEARTLINE: My father is going to be 65 years old in September of this year. He will be retiring and going on Social Security and Medicare. My father has a heart problem which requires that he go to the doctor quite frequently. I have read that Medicare is not adequate coverage for retired people. Yet, I do not know much about purchasing a health insurance policy for someone on Medicare. Can you give me any advice? — J.B.

There are many different types of Medicare supplement insurance policies that are offered by many insurance companies. A person shopping for this type of policy can usually get one to pay any of the deductibles under the Medicare program. Listed below are the most basic types of coverage offered by Medicare supplements:

— Pays the first $144 of your hospital stay which is not covered by Medicare Part A.

— Pays the Part A $36 deductible per day from the day 61 through day 90 of hospitalization.

— Pays the Part A $72 deductible per day while you are using your 60-Day Lifetime Reserve.

— Pays so many dollars a day from the day 90 on (for a certain number of days) in the hospital.

— Pays so many dollars a day from the first day of hospitalization above and apart from the deductibles.

— Pays the $60 deductible on your doctor and medical bills which Medicare Part B does not cover.

— Pays 20 percent of the reasonable charges of your doctor and medical bills after your $60 deductible, since Medicare will only cover 80 percent of the reasonable charge.

Remember that not all Medicare supplements pay all that is listed above. Some supplements pay a few of these. Very few, if any, pay all of them and a policy with all of the above coverage would be extremely expensive. Most supplements offered contain the coverage listed in numbers one, two and four above, four being the most important supplemental coverage. It would also be wise to get one with the coverage listed in number seven above.

For people who need health insurance, Heartline has written a book to assist you in purchasing your policy. Heartline's Guide to Health Insurance can be ordered by sending $1.50 to the above address.

HEARTLINE: My 12-year-old daughter is permanently disabled. I would like to know if she is eligible for Social Security benefits. If so, when and for how long? — G.W.

A person disabled before age 22 may get benefits on the basis of a parent's work record beginning with the month the parent starts receiving retirement or disability benefits or the month the insured parent dies. However, no determination of disability is necessary until your child is within three months of her 18th birthday (or age 22 if she is still in school) because she would be eligible for benefits in the above situations under those ages as a dependent child.

'Sting' Operation Arrests Under Way

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Police here have begun rounding up 43 adults and juveniles in a five-month "sting" operation in which undercover officers recovered $135,000 worth of allegedly stolen goods.

Twelve persons were arrested Wednesday in the fourth such operation in the state this year to employ plainclothes officers posing as fences who purchased hot property.

Portuguese Government Falls As Legislative Plans Fail

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Parties of all shades brought down Prime Minister Alfredo Nobre de Costa's 17-day-old government of nonpartisan technocrats by joining in parliament Thursday night to reject its legislative program.

Socialist, conservative and far-left deputies voted for a Socialist Party rejection motion, providing more than 140 anti-government votes, a majority in the 263-seat Assembly of the Republic.

Nobre de Costa and his 14-member cabinet were constitutionally required to resign but were expected to continue as a caretaker government pending efforts to form a new Cabinet, which would be the third in about eight months.

Nobre de Costa was appointed by President Antonio Ramalho Eanes in hopes of solving the government crisis brought about by the breakup of Prime Minister Mario Soares' coalition and the fall of his minority Socialist government July 27.

Soares had told parliament earlier his party would join others to reject the legislative program. "This government has no support from anybody," Soares said. "They are ignorant of the political world."

Leaders of the Socialists, center-right Social Democrats, conservative Social Democratic Center and Moscow-line Communists made final attacks on the Cabinet before the vote, winding up four days of debate on the government program.

Nobre de Costa, responding to the criticism from the left, right and center, denied his Cabinet leaned either toward communists or capitalists and questioned whether the deputies could reject the government with a clear conscience since they, themselves, had accomplished so little.

"I am surprised that they criticized the government's program when during the past two years they have not been able to find solutions," Nobre de Costa said.

His assault on the parties drew applause from a crowded public gallery. On the street outside the chamber, about 250 seamen demonstrated to back up pay demands in an 11-week strike that has idled Portugal's merchant fleet.

Some party leaders urged early elections and some proposed renewed negotiations among the parties, under Eanes' leadership. There was no immediate comment from Eanes, who has constitutional authority to resolve the situation. It appeared likely he would bring the parties into another round of discussions next week.

Legislative officials said those voting against the government included more than 90 Socialists, about 40 conservatives, and some left-wing independents, totaling 141. Center-right Social Democrats, dissatisfied with the government but in favor of retaining it temporarily, cast 69 votes for Nobre de Costa. Two dissident conservatives voted for Nobre de Costa, giving the government a total of 71 votes. Forty Communists abstained.

Soares' first government fell last December, but the Socialists persuaded the conservative Social Democratic Center to support them in exchange for three cabinet posts — foreign affairs, trade and tourism, and administrative reform. They quit the Cabinet July 24, contending that Socialist Agriculture Minister Luis Saia favored the Communists in land reform policies.

Raza Unida Officials Accuse Legislature Of Harming Party

AUSTIN (AP) — Two officers of the Raza Unida Party accused Democrats and Republicans on Thursday of a concerted effort to use the Legislature and the legal system to kill their party.

"We feel there is a planned, concentrated effort to destroy the Raza Unida Party and its power base among the Mexican-American community," said Robert Maggiani of Austin, a member of the state executive committee.

Paul Velez of Austin, state treasurer, said in some counties Raza Unida candidates are arrested, then the charges are dropped after election day.

He also said the Legislature stacked the deck in 1973 by raising the percentage of votes a party must get in order to have a primary from 2 percent to 20 percent.

"This was a direct effort to stultify our efforts, and it did. We appealed to the Justice Department and it took resources we couldn't afford," Velez told a news conference.

Maggiani said that at one time there were 30 lawsuits against Raza Unida activists in Zavala County, where the party controls local government in Crystal City but not the district court.

He said the attorney general kept a three-man staff in Crystal City full time for more than a year in an attempt to find evidence of wrongdoing. He said three persons were indicted but all were acquitted or the charges against them were dropped.

Maggiani said the major parties are ganging up on Raza Unida because the five southwestern states will have Mexican-American majorities in the next 20 years. Mexican-Americans are maintaining a separate culture, and Raza Unida appeals to that culture, he said.

Velez said Raza Unida hopes to attract Anglo voters with the platform approved at its Sept. 9 and 10 convention in Lubbock. He typified the platform as "progressive, not just for Mexican Americans."

"There are a lot of things in it that are consumer oriented," he said.

Democrats and Republicans speak of progress for the average citizen, he said, but "there is no commitment."

The Raza Unida platform calls for a $3.50 minimum wage for all workers, an end to "the use of the grand jury system... as a political tool of repression," taxation of intangible property and decriminalization of marijuana for personal use.

The party convention delegates re-elected Maria Elena Martinez of Austin as state chairperson and Ramon Sanchez de Vasquez of San Antonio as vice chairman.

Midland Jury Names Indiana Financier

AUSTIN (AP) — The Midland County grand jury has indicted Alex S. Beloff, Richmond, Ind., for alleged violations of state securities laws and for theft of $10,000 or more, the State Securities Board said Thursday.

The board said the grand jury acted Wednesday.

Previously, Beloff was indicted in Travis County on a related transaction and pleaded guilty April 11 to selling unregist-tered securities in American Heritage Acceptance Corp. He received a 10-year probation sentence and was ordered to make restitution of $5,000 in the case.

The securities board said Beloff allegedly told a Midland investor that an investment in the common stock of American Heritage Acceptance Corp. would provide an estimated return of at least 42.84 percent, without any risk.

Request To Carter To Aid Vesco Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence submitted in federal court Thursday indicated that around the time President Carter assumed office attempts were made to contact two of his closest advisers about helping "a Costa Rican gentleman." A court witness said she believed the man was fugitive Robert Vesco.

Columnist Jack Anderson reported earlier this week that Vesco directed "a high pressure lobbying campaign" at the pair — Hamilton Jordan and Charles Kirbo — in an attempt to end his legal problems.

Jordan called Anderson's story "an incredible fabrication and despicable lie." Kirbo called it "an absolute lie by an irresponsible reporter."

Both denied having made any effort to intercede on Vesco's behalf, and said they had not even been asked to do so.

Vesco fled to Costa Rica in 1973 to avoid trial on five indictments charging he stole millions of dollars from a publicly held corporation. He was also accused of offering a $200,000 contribution to the 1972 campaign of former President Richard M. Nixon in order to win favorable treatment from the administration.

The U.S. attorney's office has been unsuccessful despite years of efforts to extradite Vesco. A few months ago, Vesco left Costa Rica and is believed to be living in the Bahamas.

A pair of letters submitted during a Securities and Exchange Commission action in U.S. District Court showed that letters were written to Kirbo and Jordan, although there was no evidence that they either received the letters or intervened on anyone's behalf.

The documents were produced by SEC lawyer Gregory Glynn, who was seeking to have U.S. District Judge Charles E. Stewart cite Vesco for contempt for violating a 1973 order forbidding Vesco and others from dealing in certain stock issues, including the PRL issue mentioned in the letter to Jordan.

The letters were submitted as Gerolyn Hobbs of Albany, Ga., former secretary for businessman R.L. Herring, testified that she received frequent "personal" calls during 1977 and this year about an unidentified man in Costa Rica she believed was Vesco. She said she took the calls at Herring's Albany office. Mrs. Hobbs was not asked why she believed the man was Vesco, nor did she say why she thought it was the fugitive financier.

Both documents included the typed name of a Herring associate, Spencer Lee IV.

The letter to Kirbo, dated Jan. 14, 1977, read: "Dear Charlie. Enclosed is a copy of how the Costa Rican gentleman wishes to have his matter resolved. I had a long talk with him and I feel that the plan we discussed will be successful and also fruitful."

The letter continued: "It is very hard for me to contact Hamilton because of his busy schedule, but he told me last week that he would condone any decision that I had made along the lines that we had previously discussed... I will proceed as planned and see you in a few days."

'Big Thicket' Funds Cut By Legislator

WASHINGTON (AP) — In order to maintain "a little leverage" with the Big Thicket Association, Rep. Charles Wilson sliced almost $2 million from funds earmarked for the Big Thicket National Preserve.

As House and Senate conferees acted this week on the Interior Department Appropriations Bill, Wilson asked for and received $4.5 million for Big Thicket land acquisition. The Senate version of the bill called for $6.38 million.

The Lufkin Democrat, whose district contains most of the $4,550 acres intended for the Big Thicket, said he wanted to hold the Big Thicket Association to the original acreage agreement approved by Congress in 1974.

Wilson has taken exception to the association's intent to increase the acreage to 100,000 with the difference being set aside as a state park.

"We had agreed on 84,550 acres and know the Big Thicket Association wants 100,000 acres from the state," said Wilson. "I'm trying to enforce the original agreement. The Corps of Engineers (the purchasing agent for the Interior Department) told me they only wanted between $4.5 million so I split the difference."

Wilson added that he initially went along with the Big Thicket Association when "they told me the state didn't have eminent domain. When I heard that, I said okay...if they are going to buy from willing sellers. But then I learned they intended to use eminent domain and were indeed condemning more land and I don't want anymore land condemned."

The move by Wilson to trim the Big Thicket funds appeared to conflict with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen who had placed the $6.38 million in the Senate version of the bill. The House version called for no additional funds for land acquisition at Wilson's request.

Bentsen, however, cited rising land costs in asking for the maximum amount of additional funding. Congress can increase funding by 10 percent above the original $63.8 million appropriation.

"I would have preferred that the conferees provide the full $6.38 million that we got the Senate to approve," Bentsen said. "The way land costs are rising it is going to cost taxpayers more money to fund this on a piecemeal basis."

The original appropriation called for land to be bought at an average price of $754.58 an acre. Since that time, however, the Interior Department has spent an average of $1,288.20 per acre for the 41,748 acres purchased as of July 30.

Ironically, the Interior Department had asked for no Big Thicket funds in its 1979 budget request. "I don't know why they didn't request a dime," said Wilson. "If they haven't got enough money and they want more why didn't they ask for it and they've been asked to ask?"

Renee Minnick, an official in the Interior Department's Land Acquisition Office, said Thursday that the department's budget was compiled 18 months ago and only after both the House and Senate had held hearings on the matter did an "overview" reveal the need for additional funds.

EMERGENCY ENDED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national emergency is over.

The extraordinary and sweeping powers granted the president by Congress on four separate occasions over the last 45 years finally expired on Thursday as required by a law enacted two years ago. The sweeping powers granted presidents in four declared states of emergency had remained at the disposal of the White House long after the actual emergencies themselves had ended. These included the power to seize property, organize and control the means of production, seize commodities, declare martial law, control all transportation and communications, regulate the operation of private enterprise and restrict travel.

Oswald's Widow Denies Certain Knowledge Of Assassination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lee Harvey Oswald's widow, insisting she has no first-hand knowledge that her husband assassinated John F. Kennedy, conceded under intense questioning Thursday that she believes he did murder the president.

"Yes, I do believe he did. I believe the man was capable of it," said Marina Oswald Porter, who has steadfastly maintained that she is not qualified to say whether Oswald killed Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Mrs. Porter told the House assassinations committee that if Oswald did in fact murder Kennedy, he most likely was motivated by an obsessive and irrational bid to gain recognition.

"I'm just as anxious to find answers as everybody else is," she said.

Under persistent questioning by committee members, however, Mrs. Porter acknowledged her apparently longstanding personal opinion that Oswald shot Kennedy.

Testifying for the second day, she also said she believes her husband acted alone because his secretive nature would not have allowed him to confide in anyone about an assassination plan.

Mrs. Porter was asked whether Oswald's motives would have been political or the product of mental instability.

"I really don't know what to say about the motive," she replied, adding:

"If you want my personal opinion as to whether it's mental or political, I would have to say it's the mental state of the person. The whole matter is so irrational it's difficult for us to come up with any rational answer."

She said: "I don't think a person who kills somebody is stable, whatever the reasons are." As for Oswald's motives, she added: "I still don't think it's strictly political."

Mrs. Porter agreed that there was some merit to a contention by Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., that Oswald may have chosen to kill Kennedy because he thought assassinating a president would bring instant recognition.

On Wednesday, she had refused to say whether she believes Oswald killed Kennedy. And Mrs. Porter acknowledged only that she "felt very uneasy" at the time because she thought he might be involved.

"It crossed my mind," she said then. "I hoped Lee was not involved."

Preyer had asked her if she could say now whether Oswald did it.

"I don't know if I am qualified to make statements like that because I knew one side of Lee but I did not know his whole character," she replied.

Mrs. Porter also was quizzed vigorously Thursday on subtle differences between her current testimony and the accounts she gave the Warren Commission, the FBI, the Secret Service and author Priscilla Johnson McMillan.

She had testified on Wednesday, for example, that she believed Soviet authorities censored mail and bugged the apartment where she and Oswald lived in Minsk in the months after their marriage in April 1961. Mrs. Porter said then she had no direct knowledge that they were under surveillance but assumed from gossip that the authorities would spy on an American living there.

Mrs. McMillan's book about the Oswalds quotes Marina as saying that a Soviet commissar told her the couple was under surveillance. She told the committee the McMillan account is correct and that she failed to recall the situation fully in her testimony.

Mrs. Porter also testified that she and Oswald stayed in a boarding house in Rotterdam, the Netherlands, as they traveled from the Soviet Union to the United States in 1962. Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., noted that she has previously testified they stayed in a private apartment there.

"That's what I call a boarding house. There's a difference?" she responded. "It looks like a private house and you rent a room and the lady of the house prepares a meal."

It was not immediately clear what the committee was trying to establish, but most of the questions on her contradictions appeared to go to the point of Oswald's possible involvement in any sort of conspiracy.

Oswald Photo, Walker Shot Cited At Hearing By House Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five days before Lee Harvey Oswald shot at retired Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, he sent George de Mohrenschildt a picture of himself holding a rifle and a pistol, according to evidence produced Thursday by the House assassinations committee.

Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter, told the committee that she later heard de Mohrenschildt "make a joking remark, 'You missed him, Lee.'"

She said she could not tell if de Mohrenschildt really knew that Oswald had shot at Walker or was only joking. Mrs. Porter said Oswald looked at her as though he thought she might have told.

The testimony raised new questions about de Mohrenschildt, a Russian emigre who befriended the Oswalds when they were in Dallas. He committed suicide in Florida last year while a House committee investigator tried to interview him.

Sources on the committee say they don't know if the recently discovered photo means that de Mohrenschildt knew in advance about Oswald's attempt to shoot Walker in April 1963, about seven months before the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Walker, who was waging a vociferous anti-Communist campaign at the time, told police that he was sitting at a desk working on some tax papers when a bullet shattered his window. Walker was not injured.

A handwriting expert, Joseph P. McNally, testified Thursday that it was Oswald who wrote, "To my friend, George, 5-IV-63" on the back of the picture.

The figures represent the date April 5, 1963, and Oswald's widow told the panel that her husband was the person who shot at Walker on April 10, 1963.

Another notation on the picture says "Copyright G. deM," probably in connection with a book manuscript de Mohrenschildt wrote before he died.

At the top of the photo, written in Russian, is the phrase: "Hunter of fascists. Ha. Ha. Ha."

Mrs. Porter testified that Oswald told her he had shot at Walker because he considered "Mr. Walker a fascist."

The handwriting analyst said neither Oswald nor his wife wrote that inscription.

In fact, McNally testified, those words on the picture now appear to have been written by someone unfamiliar with Russian, tracing over someone else's writing underneath.

Rep. Floyd J. Fithian, D-Ind., said his knowledge of Russian makes him think one person wrote "Hunter" on the back of the picture and someone else later added "... of the fascist. Ha. Ha. Ha."

Fithian said the style of writing is so different between the first Russian word and the others that it could have been written by people educated during two different periods in Russia.

"If other words were added to 'Hunter' we might take away an entirely different historical interpretation," Fithian said.

Virus Threat By Extortionist Sparks Tucson Police Action

TUCSON (AP) — An unsuccessful attempt was made Thursday to deliver money to an extortionist who has threatened to contaminate the city with an unspecified virus, police said.

The money was delivered to a location near Mount Lemmon north of the city, but no one showed up to pick up the cash, police Maj. John Carter said.

The extortion attempt was similar to another last spring in which the extortionist said he would contaminate the city's water supply with typhoid bacteria. Carter said the latest threat made no mention of the water system and did not say what kind of bacteria would be used or how it would be introduced.

Carter downplayed any danger to Tucson residents, saying there is "not a great degree of threat."

The amount of money demanded in the letters was not disclosed, although the letters sent to Mayor Lewis Murphy last spring demanded $750,000. The latest threats were also reportedly made in letters to Murphy.

Carter said the person making the latest threats was "possibly" the same one who was involved in the earlier extortion attempt, adding he hoped officials would hear from him again so police could renew their efforts to capture him.

Carter discounted a suggestion that the threats are being made for thrills or publicity, noting the extortionist asked specifically for money.

When the threats were made last spring, city officials said they had taken steps to improve the security of the water system, although they said the system was already fairly safe.

The Mt. Vesuvius eruption that destroyed Pompeii occurred in 79 AD.

Hill Optimistic About Governor's Platform

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate John Hill said Thursday he was confident his party would adopt a platform he can be comfortable with, even as liberal factions circulated a 12-point program featuring some things Hill doesn't particularly like.

Asked if he would speak with a gay rights caucus if invited, Hill said he would.

"I don't expect it (the platform) to include gay rights," Hill told newsmen after he addressed the State Democratic Executive Committee.

The state convention was scheduled to be gavelled to order Friday night. First order of business was to be a speech by Hill to be carried on statewide television at 6:30 p.m. CDT.

Some rumblings about opposition to Hill's choice of Houstonian Billy Goldberg as party chairman made their way through the Thursday meetings, but party insiders said no serious opposition was expected.

Hill also reiterated his desire for a presidential primary. Some Democrats oppose such a primary, to the extent that a legal challenge to state Republican rules for a primary could be made by Democrats.

"I think it would be a mistake (not to have a primary)," Hill said. "I would like to see it separated from the regular primary so we could analyze whether we can give Texas some political clout."

Hill said he had not ruled out a separate date for a presidential primary, nor did he exclude the regional primary, in which Texas and other states would participate.

Hill told the executive committee they were "under the spurs of the GOP," which he said will spend between $5 and $10 million campaigning between now and November.

"We can't afford to lose any of our troops here because of fights," Hill said as he plugged for party unity. "We've got all the fighting we can handle...when we go out to fight the Republicans."

The candidate's own ideas for a platform weren't quite finalized, but Hill said he expected to finish that project sometime Thursday.

In preaching on behalf of an open convention, Hill said he thought all ideas should be presented, though not necessarily to the entire convention.

"I would hope for the most part that it would work through the committee process. I'm sure I'll oppose some of it, but I don't want to be a dictator."

"I don't believe there will be anything passed here that I can't support."

Official Says Arson Proposal Not Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department official told Congress on Thursday that no new law is needed at present to give federal officials more jurisdiction over arson-related crimes.

While the federal government pursues arson investigations in some instances through its Organized Crime Strike Forces, Robert L. Keuch told a Senate subcommittee that fighting and investigating fires is primarily a job for local units of government.

"While the federal government can offer a material kind of assistance to state and local officials, it is they who must bear the general law enforcement responsibility for crimes of arson," Keuch told the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations.

The panel has been conducting hearings into arson-for-profit, which Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and others have claimed is a nationwide problem costing billions of dollars annually in insurance claims.

A General Accounting Office report released earlier this year concluded that the federal government lacks a coordinated anti-arson strategy, and suggested that Attorney General Griffin Bell take the lead in developing one.

Arson is not a federal offense in most cases, although there are exceptions.

Another witness, meanwhile, told the panel that FAIR plans — insurance pools set up by private firms within individual states to sell insurance policies for high-risk properties — are necessary to make sure that deteriorated neighborhoods don't fall apart.

Gloria Jimenez, director of the Federal Insurance Administration, said, "FAIR plans must continue to offer coverage of potential victims of arson — they are victims of society's breakdown and they should not be doubly victimized by being asked to shoulder that burden alone."

A second GAO report said some insurance officials believe FAIR plans, in operation in more than 20 states, create an incentive for arson-for-profit in part by making insurance available above the fair market value of a building.

Keuch, deputy assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's criminal division, said Bell has ordered a number of research projects to gather information about arson, including one to study sentences handed to persons convicted in federal court of arson-related crimes.

Such projects will take about a year, at which time the Justice Department will be able to make recommendations about changes in the law, he said.

FAIR stands for Fair Access to Insurance Requirements.

MOSCOW (AP) — Passenger flights by the supersonic Tu-144, the Soviet Union's much-delayed answer to the Anglo-French Concorde, have been suspended until the end of this year, it was learned Thursday. Western aviation experts in Moscow said the most recent Tu-144 flight they could confirm, between Moscow and Alma Ata, in Soviet Central Asia, was on June 6.

Dockery Emphasizes Full Concentration

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

Even if Tech Dockery wanted to look ahead to Sept. 23 and the home opener against the University of Arizona, he kept looking back Thursday afternoon.

It was the Raiders' workout which kept turning his head.

"We didn't have complete concentration," said the Tech head football coach following Thursday's good spots-bad spots workout. "It was like the Southern Cal game (when Tech had led 9-0 at the half only to lose 17-9). For the first three-quarters of our workout, we looked good, but we just lost concentration."

"We have to have more concentration. We need to get better as a team. We're young, and that probably has something to do with the lack of full concentration. We have a chance to be good, but we have to be ready to play every minute."

The Raiders were able to run a heavy-contact scrimmage, since they're off until the Arizona game.

Although it was not on the practice field, Tech came up with a slight injury. Field-goal specialist Bill Adams sustained a slight cut over his left eye while lifting weights. The injury isn't considered serious, however.

While Adams was receiving medical attention, the Raiders continued to work on the kicking game, an area Dockery feels needs improving. Freshman Maury Buford, who booted at a 45.8-yard clip against Southern Cal, and sophomore Steve Hollifield were punting.

Following the workout, Dockery pointed to the need for help in backup roles for his youngest players, the freshmen.

"Ron Reeves (the Monterey ex) is getting better every day at quarterback," said Dockery.

"We need some people to come on and develop for us."

The heavy contact work is expected to continue for a few more days before the polish work sets in for Arizona. The Wildcats, who whipped Kansas State last week, will host Pac-10 foe Oregon Saturday before coming to Lubbock.

Ali Ready For Rematch

ship fights on the card will be televised.

After his upset loss to Spinks, for which he weighed 224 pounds, Ali said, "I'll weigh 215 next time. I'll be in better shape."

Ali seems to be in shape but he weighed in officially Thursday at 221. Spinks, who was at 197 in Las Vegas, weighed 201.

Ali's try at becoming the first three-time heavyweight champion comes 14 years and seven months after his first won the title by knocking out Sonny Liston in seven rounds. It was taken away in 1967 for his refusal to enter military service but he won it back at age 32 by knocking out power-punching George Foreman in the eighth round in Africa, Oct. 30, 1974.

The only other fighter to regain the heavyweight championship was Floyd Patterson. He won the title, made vacant by the retirement of Rocky Marciano, by knocking out Archie Moore in 1956. He lost it on a knockout by Ingemar Johansson in 1959.

and Ben Pollard of Coronado.

The top defensive back of the week was Shawn Williams of LCHS, with two interceptions for 68 yards. He also had 11 tackles for the Eagles. Andy Barron of Monterey (one interception), Willis Flowers of Estacado (two interceptions), Allen Lynch of LHS (six tackles), Mike Baldwin of Dunbar and Randy Lusk (1 fumble, 12 tackles) of Coronado, also received nominations.

Danny Andrews of Lubbock topped all defensive linemen with 13 tackles last week. Karl Lusk (12 tackles) of Dunbar, Monterey's Paul Kaelin (10 tackles), LCHS' David Wisniewski (12 tackles), Estacado's Lupe Martinez, and Danny Jacobs (8 tackles) of Coronado, were also cited.

also shouldered with a few injuries, including defensive tackle James Cox (shoulder), tight end Shawn Williams (back), cornerback Kent Allison (ribs), tailback Steve McMinn, and tackle Roger Baily.

LCHS opened the season last week by beating Christ The King 26-0.

WESTERN HILLS-FCGCS

Western Hills Baptist Academy will meet the First Church of God Christian School at 5:30 p.m. in a six-man contest today at the Connie Mack Field in Mackenzie Park.

Western Hills started the season off right by knocking off Plainview Evangel Temple 44-6 last Friday.

CTK-TEXICO

Christ The King will attempt to bounce back from a 26-0 opening-night trashing at the hands of Lubbock Christian, when it takes on its visitors from New Mexico, Texico.

The game is set for 7:30 p.m.

Prep Teams Begin Week Two

Floydada, Muleshoe Highlight Tonight's Card

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

"Hooooo," L.G. Wilson said. "It's going to be pretty big."

Wilson is understandably excited. He is the football coach at Floydada and he has won his district eight times in the last 11 years.

Last year was one of the black three, and he is anxious to prove himself anew. He and the Whirlwinds will get their chances tonight when they host Muleshoe at 8.

Last week Floydada sneaked by Dimmitt 7-6. At the same time, Muleshoe

(one of the favorites in District 3-AA) was beating a fine Portales team.

So this game should go a long way towards bringing either team along this season.

"It's going to be a pretty good game," Wilson said. "I think it'll probably be one of the best games in the area. Muleshoe will probably have a pretty good ball club."

Does he think the Mules will be a strong team for his team?

"Hoooooo. Hoooooo. Definitely. I think really it's more like I hope we can be a test for them," Wilson said. "I think the shoe will be on the other foot from that."

Wilson says he sees his club making progress.

"We weren't too well pleased with the first ball game," he said. "We didn't feel we played a real good game for the first three quarters. We really didn't do anything."

"Our defense was fairly good, but our offense couldn't do anything. Of course, we didn't have real good field position but still we weren't consistent at all.

"We've got to come a long ways to be a sound ball team. The one last week should have helped us. But our line is awful young and awful green."

"We think they're going to come around. They've just got to get their nose in the dirt and get their ears beat down some and get some experience."

From all reports, Muleshoe might just be the team to do some mighty fancy nose-rubbing and ear-beating. At any rate, Wilson is worried.

"The way they execute their offense (is the biggest concern)," he said. "They run, they pass. They're very balanced."

As far as his squad goes, Wilson said, "We're going to try to do the same thing we've been doing, but we need to do everything a little bit better or we'll get blown out of the ball game."

The Whirlwinds could be in for tough sledding in the district race this year. Especially if the first week's action is any indication. Everybody in 4-AA won last Friday night, and all of them are active again tonight.

Tulia, a 26-0 winner over Friona last week, travels to AAA Canyon. Lockney, a 10-0 victor over Post, takes on Friona. Abernathy beat Petersburg 28-13 and is at Olton tonight.

And last, but by no means least, district favorite Idalou, a 27-0 winner over New Deal in the opener, hosts Petersburg.

In other games of note, always-tough Odessa Permian will travel to Amarillo to play the top-rated Sandies, and Amarillo Tascosa will head south to Plainview, a 40-6 winner over Estacado in its opener.

In another contest, Class AA Littlefield will test AAA Levelland.

In Class A, New Deal will travel to Plains to try and bounce back onto the winning track.

Class B Sundown will visit Seagraves, one of the favorites in 5-A. The other 5-A pick, Stanton, will visit Coahoma.

New Mexico Champions Hit Comeback Trails

Avalanche-Journal News Service

Southeastern New Mexico is home to three of the four defending state football champions this fall. However, like comedian Rodney Dangerfield, they don't seem to get no respect.

Of the three defending kings in the Land of Enchantment, only one — Clovis — made it through opening weekend of the 1978 football campaign unscathed.

Clovis, voted the team most likely to succeed in New Mexico's 1978 Class AAAA polls, proved that a change in coaches hasn't slowed it down a bit. The Purple Pack, now under the head coaching hand of Eric Roanhaus (who replaced Dunny Goode when he headed for Eastern New Mexico University), opened the season with a 41-2 blitz of Los Alamos, which is expected to be one of the stronger teams in northern New Mexico.

Eunice and Hagerman, defending champions in classes AA and A, respectively, didn't find the going quite as happy. Eunice, which won the 1977 state title in Cinderella fashion after losing its first five games, lost out to Texas Tech Seagraves 14-0. Hagerman was also blanked 28-0 by Class AA Estancia.

In what could have been the best matchup in the southeast last weekend, Hobbs showed that it may be back on the road to respectability by sidelining Class AAA's No. 1-ranked Artesia 26-14 behind fullback Alton Patterson's 130-yard, three-touchdown performance.

The list of unbeaten in the southeast stands at eight, but that's bound to dwindle this week. One of the games in the spotlight sends unbeaten Jal (2-0) against undefeated Lovington (1-0) in a Lea County matchup. The Panthers have downed Class AAAA Anthony Gadsden and AAA New Mexico Military Institute in their two outings so far in 1978, and coach Frank Gage is hoping his charges continue playing the giant-killing role.

Among the other games to watch are Artesia at Roswell, Dexter at Hagerman and Tatum at Carrizozo.

Tech Freshmen Recognized By Alumni Picnic

Texas Tech freshman athletes will be honored with the Ex-Lettermen's Association's annual picnic Saturday, reported association president John Farquhar.

The program will be held at Hillcrest Country Club. However, the freshmen and members of the ex-lettermen's group will meet at the Tech athletic dining hall at 6 p.m.

Each freshman will be "sponsored" by a Raider ex-lettermen who will furnish transportation from the dining hall to the site of the program.

Farquhar said any member of the ex-lettermen's group that has not been contacted is welcome to attend and help greet the incoming frosh. Members of the Tech coaching staff will be on hand.

Amazing Bouton Gives Atlanta Win Over Frisco

By The Associated Press
Right-hander Jim Bouton, making a comeback after an eight-year absence, didn't allow an earned run in six innings and pitched the Atlanta Braves to a 4-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Bouton, whose last major league victory was on July 11, 1970, limited the Giants to three hits and one unearned run before being replaced by reliever Craig Skaggs at the start of the seventh. Gene Garber relieved in the ninth to record his 24th save of the season.

Bouton, who started his comeback with a loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers on Sunday, walked three and struck out two as the Giants suffered their sixth straight defeat.

Atlanta took a 1-0 lead in the second with an unearned run off loser Ed Halicki.

i. 8-9. Dale Murphy was safe on an error, stole second, went to third on an error and scored on Glenn Hubbard's squeeze bunt.

ANGELS 16, RANGERS 1
Rick Miller and Lyman Bostock each batted twice and drove in three runs as the California Angels scored 13 unearned runs on 10 hits off five Texas pitchers in a record ninth inning for a 16-1 romp over the Rangers.

The explosion, aided by two Texas errors at the start of the inning, set an American League record for ninth-inning runs.

Meanwhile, Don Aase pitched a five-hitter to help the Angels snap a two-year, nine-game losing streak at Arlington Stadium.

METS 7, EXPOS 6
Ed Kranepool's three-run pinch homer in the sixth enabled the New York Mets to come back from a six-run deficit and defeat the Montreal Expos 7-6.

Kranepool's homer off loser Randy Miller, 0-1, was his third of the season, all as a pinch hitter. It was also the second time he had beaten Montreal with a pinch homer this year.

YANKEES 4, TIGERS 2
Graig Nettles hit two homers and drove in three runs, helping Ed Figueroa record his sixth consecutive victory and carrying the New York Yankees to a 4-2 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

The triumph, New York's eighth nine games, boosted the Yankees' first-place lead to 1½ games over Boston in the American League's East Division.

The game was delayed 43 minutes by rain in the eighth. Rich Gossage relieved Figueroa, 17-9 and gave up a two-run

ROYALS 5, A's 1
The surging Kansas City Royals rode Paul Splittorf's four-hit pitching and Amos Otis' home run and two singles to a 5-1 victory over the Oakland A's.

Oakland dented Splittorf, 17-12, for a run on Glenn Burke's RBI single in the fifth, but the Kansas City left-hander handuffed the A's the rest of the way, striking out two and walking two.

The victory was the Royals' fourth straight and 10th in 13 games.

Kansas City got three runs in the second on five straight two-out singles, the last by Otis, to take a 3-0 lead off Steve Renko, 6-11.

Against reliever Bob Lacey, Otis led off the fifth with his 21st homer of the season. Kansas City added a run on Hal McTear's sacrifice fly, which followed a two-base error and John Wathan's bunt single.

INDIANS 4, RED SOX 3
Rookie Wayne Cage stroked a two-run homer in Cleveland's three-run first-inning and Buddy Bell singled home the winning run in the seventh as the Cleveland Indians nipped the Boston Red Sox 4-3.

It was the 12th loss in 15 games for Boston, which remained second behind the New York Yankees in the American League's East Division. The Red Sox

Colt Owner Irsay Attacks Cosell

Monday Night 'Cheap Shots' Cited

BALTIMORE (AP)—Sportscaster Howard Cosell "might be coming dangerously close to abusing the power of the public airways" in his criticism of the Baltimore Colts and should be investigated by the Federal Communications Commission, Colts owner Robert Irsay said Thursday.

In a statement released by the Colts' office, Irsay said that while "everyone is entitled to his own opinions and freedom of expression... I don't believe the FCC had in mind that an announcer is to use public air to repeatedly condemn a city and a sports franchise."

At the same time, Irsay continued, the ABC-TV star has "constantly showered praise on his inner circle of friends in the National Football League."

The owner seemed to imply that the group included Joe Thomas, fired as Colts' general manager by Irsay last year, who once gave a party here in honor of Cosell. Thomas, now general manager of the San Francisco 49ers, was not mentioned by name.

"His conduct is reprehensible and it seems to me the FCC might want to investigate it," Irsay said.

When told of Irsay's statement, Cosell said, "I think it's absurd. I have no comment. My comments on the air speak for themselves."

During the Colts' meeting with the Dallas Cowboys in the season's first Monday night game, Cosell repeatedly blasted the Colts, who lost to the defending Super Bowl champions 38-0.

While other members of the ABC-TV broadcasting team also criticized the Baltimore game plan and execution, Cosell was the most heated. At one point he referred to the Colts' situation as "tragic," a point that particularly annoyed Irsay.

"A tragedy is when there is a human life at stake," Irsay said. "It isn't winning or losing football games. When there are serious problems people have to contend with I doubt that America is amused in hearing Cosell call an 0-2 record in professional football tragic."

The owner also said that Cosell had failed to mention the Colts' AFC East championships in each of the past three seasons and the long list of injured starters plaguing the team this year.

"This is a distortion and his self-serving tactics are recognized by the people in Baltimore and most of the people in the league," Irsay said. "I think what he is doing is trying to embarrass the Colts and cause resentment against them so that some of his friends, formerly here, can look good."

"Other men with other teams in football know he is delivering cheap shots that are disgraceful to journalism."

Cosell "has attempted to plant seeds of discontent in Baltimore by making constant derogatory references to our team (his) deliberate attempt has caused too strong a response toward him in our city," said Irsay, who owns an air conditioning manufacturing firm in Skokie, Ill., and commutes here for Colts home games.

The comments by Cosell in the Colts-Dallas game Sept. 4 were his second attack on a Baltimore sports team during a national telecast in recent weeks.

While telecasting an American League game between the Orioles and the New York Yankees here Aug. 14, Cosell said an electrical failure that knocked out some of the lights at Memorial Stadium "wouldn't have happened in a major league city."

The Colts are scheduled to appear on next week's Monday night game on ABC-TV, against New England at Foxboro, Mass. Baltimore will host a Monday night game when the Colts take on the Washington Redskins Nov. 6.

GUESS HOWE—Gordie Howe has announced that he will play for the New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association for another year. Howe, 50, said that the game is still fun for him and he feels he will enjoy playing for another season. At left is Larry Pleau, whose retirement from the Whalers was announced at the same time. ## Can Joe Out-Woody Woody? It's No Use, Bucks Picked

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Some coaches prepare for upcoming games by studying films of future opponents' offense, defense and kicking game. For Saturday's meeting with Ohio State, Joe Paterno apparently has decided to zero in on the coach, as well.

Following Penn State's unimpressive 26-10 victory over Rutgers last week, Paterno spotted some Ohio newsmen in the dressing room and quipped, "Would Woody Hayes let you into his locker room?"

A few minutes later Paterno let the writers out — ushered them out, actually — saying, "Let's get these reporters out of here. They're asking 7 million questions. Let's go."

Paterno didn't punch out any writers or slug any cameramen. But he's only in his 13th season as a head coach, compared to 33 for Hayes. If he scouts Woody long enough he may get there yet.

Saturday will find Paterno and his Nittany Lions in Columbus to meet Hayes and the Ohio State Buckeyes in one of the weekend's most attractive pairings.

Penn State has struggled past Temple (10-7) and Rutgers while it's Ohio State's opener. Hayes calls the two games under Penn State's belt "a tremendous advantage." Nevertheless, the pick is... Ohio State 21-19.

Last week's score was 38 right, 14 wrong and one tie for a 731 percentage. For the season it's 43-19-1—694.

Alabama at Missouri: It's one down (Nebraska 0-3) and 10 regular-season games to go as the top-ranked Crimson Tide goes all out after the national championship. And it's one down (Notre Dame 3-0) and three to go in a killer Missouri schedule that starts with ND, Bama, Ole Miss and Oklahoma. The Tide has lost its two previous meetings with Missouri but this won't be the third strike. Alabama 27-6.

Vanderbilt at Arkansas: The SEC cellar against the SWC champ. In the wake of last year's Orange Bowl rout of Oklahoma, the Razorbacks are going for all the national marbles this time. But they'd better not forget that Vandy gave Oklahoma a fit in last year's opener... Arkansas 31-7.

West Virginia at Oklahoma: Can a team that barely beat Richmond slow down the Sooner Schooner? Nope... Oklahoma 49-14.

Illinois at Michigan: It shouldn't even make any difference if the Wolverines are looking ahead to Notre Dame. But why should they? Notre Dame's just another winless team... Michigan 42-0.

Texas at Rice: A perfect opener for the Longhorns to find out how well they've replaced Earl (Heisman) Campbell and Brad (Outland) Shearer... Texas 30-9.

Southern California at Oregon: The Trojans (John Robinson is an Oregon grad, so it shouldn't be too bad. Besides, USC has Alabama next week... Southern Cal 35-7.

UCLA at Tennessee: On paper this is a mismatch, but it's about time for Johnny Majors to work his first miracle in Volville: Upset Special of the Week... Tennessee 19-17.

Indiana at Louisiana State: The Hoosiers have never seen anything like Mike the Tiger and the Bayou Bengals on a Saturday night. And the tiger has never seen anything like Indiana Coach Lee Corso... LSU 27-14.

Pitt at Tulane: Muhammad "The Greatest" Ali will be in New Orleans on Friday night. And Pitt wide receiver Gordon "Too Much" Jones ain't too shabby at what he does, either... Pitt 28-7.

Kentucky at South Carolina: The Wildcats are an unknown quantity until quarterback Mike Deaton proves himself. The Gamecocks may be better than anyone suspected. Second Upset Special... South Carolina 21-14.

San Diego State at Iowa State: A victory over a Big Eight team would finally get San Diego the national recognition it deserves. Unfortunately... Iowa State 30-24.

Air Game Could Be Crucial Element In Buckeye-Penn State Matchup

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A television monitor may play a vital role Saturday in the Penn State-Ohio State college football showdown.

Ohio State assistant Coach Alex Gibbs concedes the television helped him overcome rustiness as a scout. Gibbs spied on the Nittany Lions' 26-10 victory over Rutgers last week.

"I hadn't done any live scouting for five or six years by myself. Trying to see both sides at once is quite interesting," said Gibbs.

New National Collegiate Athletic Association regulations this season permit one visit by one scout of an upcoming opponent's game.

John Morris, Penn State's sports information director, provided Gibbs with the TV monitor.

With the TV, I could see replays. It sure helped. I thanked Morris afterward. I don't think he was too happy about it," said the Ohio State sleuth.

Gibbs, as an offensive coach, dwelled on fifth-ranked Penn State's defense. He says it revolves around Bruce Clark and Matt Millen, a couple of tackles in the 260-pound range.

"They have two of the best defensive linemen in the country on the same team," said Gibbs after watching Clark and Millen stymie the Rutgers' attack for a 2-0 start.

The Buckeyes, No. 6 nationally, are making their debut Saturday.

"We've got to block their line pressure. To move the football, you've got to control those big linemen," said Gibbs.

Coronado Tops Lubbock High

Alan Harp scored one touchdown and kicked four extra points to lead the Coronado sophomore football squad to a 28-8 win over Lubbock High Thursday afternoon.

Harp started things off right for the Pomies, scoring a touchdown on the first offensive play for CHS from eight yards out.

Donald Ewing added a 78-yard run, and Noel Medrana scored from seven yards to up CHS' lead to 21-0, before Wayne Dell of Lubbock bulldozed over from eight yards to cut the margin to 21-8, following a two-point conversion by Chan Garcia.

Coronado tacked on its final TD in the fourth period when Brian Davis scored on an eight-yard dash.

Coronado, now 2-0, rolled up 272 yards offensively, while LHS, 0-1, managed only 54.

Abel Castro scored on a 14-yard run with 1:10 left in the game as the Coronado junior varsity defeated the Palo Duro JV 13-8.

Castro then intercepted a long pass on

The Ohio State scout hinted that Penn State's only defensive weakness may be in its backfield.

"Their secondary is young — two games young. Both teams (opening opponents Temple and Rutgers) tried to pass on them with moderate success. They try not to give up the big pass and wait for their defensive line to get you," said Gibbs.

Despite losses, Temple and Rutgers hit a combined 22 of 44 passes for 228 yards.

Gary Tranquill, another Ohio State assistant, said Penn State's attack has not changed much under Coach Joe Paterno.

"They still have great balance between their rushing and passing," he said.

Tranquill labeled quarterback Chuck Fusina of Penn State the best passer the Buckeyes have seen in their last 13 games.

"Somehow," said Tranquill, "we've got to control him, not give him an opportunity for 75 snaps. He can pick you apart. He reads defenses well. He has the ability to pass the ball in the defensive seam."

Tranquill expects Penn State, trying to snap a two-game losing streak to Ohio State before a vast regional television audience, to rush with the ball at the outset.

"We're going to have to stop their running game," he said. "Paterno always wants to run the football first."

Walton Drumming about Egypt With Rock Group Grateful Dead

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Bill Walton with drumsticks in his pocket and a cast on his left leg, is working out with a rock music group in Egypt while he ponders his future in professional basketball.

"I hope to be playing this season, but training camp starts Friday and I won't be there," Walton said during an interview Thursday in a garden within drabbling distance of the Sphinx.

The 6-foot-11 basketball star came to Egypt to escape the controversy swirling around his contract dispute with the Portland Trail Blazers and to seek solace with his friends in the Grateful Dead rock band.

For exercise, Walton has been hopping around the Pyramids Plateau in Giza on five-foot aluminum crutches and sitting in on drums with the Grateful Dead as it rehearsed for a charity concert near the Sphinx.

But he says the bitterness he feels over being sidelined at the start of the season is "hard to disguise, when the injury comes at the hands of a doctor."

Walton led the Trail Blazers to the National Basketball Association championship and was voted the league's most valuable player in 1978. Despite the success on the court, Walton demanded to be traded. He claimed the team doctor gave him an injection of xlocaine to numb a foot injury so he wouldn't miss the playoffs but that playing caused a stress fracture in his left foot that has kept him on crutches since April.

"I won't play for Portland again," Walton said once again. "I'm looking for a good team with a management attitude that if a player is injured they don't jeopardize his career by making him try to play."

Walton said he has "several things working" but that he is still most interested in playing for the Golden State Warriors.

"Golden State is a super team," said Walton, praising Coach Al Attles and General Manager Scotty Stirling. "We've had talks but there is a way to go yet."

He said the issue "isn't money," but refused to go into details, adding, "I don't think it is a good idea to negotiate in the press."

Walton feels he has gotten a "bad press" as a result of the controversy, and

Davis Rebreaks Bone In Leg, Possibly Lost For Season

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston Oiler running back Anthony Davis has rebroken a small bone in his leg and may be lost for the rest of the season, an Oiler spokesman says.

Davis originally broke the bone on the first day of Oiler training camp and x-rays Wednesday night revealed the same bone had been rebroken during last week's 20-17 victory over Kansas City.

The injury reduces the Oilers' running back corps to four and Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips said he hasn't decided if he will place the 26-year-old Davis on the injured reserve list, which would put him out for the season.

Davis, obtained during the off-season in a trade that sent fullback Don Hardeman to Tampa Bay, returned for the final Oiler preseason game and the first two regular season games.

He was used mostly as a kickoff returner and carried from scrimmage only once for a one yard gain.

Earl Campbell, Tim Wilson, Rob Carpenter and Ronnie Coleman are the current Oiler running backs.

Walton's Future Uncertain

Walton has left his scars.

"I wouldn't get bad press if I'd do commercial or underwear commercials or if I wore a suit and tie around or if I thought the doctor who did this to me was all right," said Walton, who was dressed in bermuda shorts for the interview.

"These things don't sit well with me and I try my best not to associate myself with them. I'd rather associate with the Grateful Dead."

By his own admission, Walton is a "Deadhead," as fans of the rock band call themselves.

On Wednesday he hopped up several flights of stone steps into the Great Pyramid for a look at the 5,000-year-old tomb of the pharaoh Cheops. "I got a handful of callouses as a result," he said.

Walton was accompanied by Grateful Dead drummer Mickey Hart, who said he had been giving Walton lessons.

NFL Should Protect Quarterbacks, Berry Says

By The Associated Press
Raymond Berry wouldn't pay money to watch a second-or-third-string quarterback, and he doesn't think fans should either.

"They can change the rules, but the way to put more offense in the game is to protect quarterbacks," says Berry, the Hall of Fame receiver who is now a New England Patriots assistant coach.

"Quarterbacks are valuable to owners. They put points on the board. But, they are completely unprotected. You see quarterbacks with their arms in slings and their knees in casts. If I was a fan and saw those guys on the sidelines, I'd demand my money back."

If that happened, the Patriots would be flooded with refund demands Monday night when they play the Baltimore Colts on national television.

Star Colts passer Bert Jones will be on the sidelines with a shoulder separation.

Berry's job as coach of Patriots' receivers makes him a student of NFL defenses. But, the trim Texan who once was Johnny Unitas' favorite pass catcher, figures the easiest way to beat defensive trickery is to have a healthy, experienced signal caller.

It angers him that the NFL doesn't take immediate steps to penalize offenders who try to hurt quarterbacks.

"Let's be honest," Berry says. "Players do try to inflict injuries." "Patriots defenders, too?" "Yes, some of them."

New NFL rules to spice the offense, and build fan interest, may lead eventually to higher scoring games, Berry says.

But the rules won't help a backup quarterback like Baltimore's Bill Troup, who doesn't have much game experience.

The 45-year-old Berry ought to know, having devoted his football lifetime to the refined art of out-thinking defenses.

After a 13-year NFL career— including 631 pass receptions for 9,275 yards and 68 touchdowns—Berry worked as an assistant coach at the University of Arkansas and for three NFL teams before joining the Patriots this season.

Double coverages of receivers and shifting defensive alignments have almost ended the days when a pass catcher had to beat a defender one-on-one.

"A play that works once usually won't work the second time anymore," Berry says. "If you are looking for a challenge, try working on a pass offense. It's like tinkering with the atomic bomb. You never know when it'll blow up in your face."

Or in the face, leg or arm of a quarterback.

Red Raider Net Squads To Compete

MIDLAND (Special) — The Texas Tech men's and women's tennis teams will face some of the top tennis talent in the Southwest this weekend when they open the 1978 fall season at the Midland Tennis Club Tournament today and Saturday.

Such tennis powers as Trinity, SMU, TCU and Oklahoma will be on hand, along with teams from Texas A&M, West Texas State, Midland College, Pan American and several college schools.

Defending tournament champion in men's singles, Erick Isersky, will lead the Trinity team. Doubles champions Tut Barten, Jr. and Randy Crawford of the TCU Horned Frogs also return.

The Red Raiders will open singles competition when David Crissey goes against Oscar Ontiveros of Midland College. Harrison Boves will battle Drew Gitland of SMU, and Greg Davis will play Paul Nunley of West Texas, while Tech's Chow Wah matches up with Reed Freeman of Texas A&M.

In doubles action, the Raiders' Crissey and Wah will play Trinity's John Benson and Dan Weber, and Davis and Boves go against A&M's Alberto Jimenez and Mike Moss.

After the Midland tourney, the Raiders are idle for more than a month before traveling to Abilene to compete in the Abilene Halloween Tourney.

The Tech women's team will be under the guidance of Joneen Cummings, while regular coach, Donna Stockton, is on her honeymoon.

Karen Schuchard will play No. 1 singles for Tech, followed, in order, by Debbie Donley, Peggy O'Neil, Sandra Carrillo, Lesa Booker and Terri Moore.

In doubles, Miss Schuchard and Miss Donley will play No. 1, followed by Miss O'Neil-Miss Carrillo, and Miss Booker-Miss Moore.

Today's competition will be the first as collegians for freshmen Miss Carrillo and Miss Moore.

TV Show Portrays World Of Radio Broadcasters

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Set your dial for "WKRP in Cincinnati" and stay tuned for what looks like the funniest new show of the season.

It's about the folks at a fictional Cincinnati radio station that suddenly switches its musical format from geriatric tunes to rock 'n' roll. The disc jockey, Dr. Johnny Fever, played by Howard Hesseman, manages the shift in mid-record, and it's a hilarious sequence.

Gary Sandy stars as Andy Travis, the newly hired program manager who orders the change. Gordon Jump is station manager Arthur Carlson, whose most fervent hope is that his mother, who owns the station, doesn't find out and kill him. Or worse, fire him.

"WKRP" could do for local radio what "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" did for television news. It's also from MTM Enterprises.

The show premieres on CBS at 8 p.m. EDT Monday, and though it looks like a hit, the going could be rough. It's up against two winners in the ratings, NBC's "Little House on the Prairie," and ABC's "Welcome Back, Kotter," which has been shifted to Monday.

The series also stars Loni Anderson, Richard Sanders, Tim Reid, Frank Bonner and Jan Smithers.

Sandy, 32, comes to "WKRP" after three soap operas and a regular role in the syndicated series "All That Glitters." This is his first starring role.

"I did a lot of guest shots on television," he said, "ranging from crazies to whatever. This is one of my first likeable roles. I wasn't too likeable in 'Glitters.' I was pushy and trying to get to the top."

Sandy, a tall, slender man with longish blond hair, said he auditioned for the role in "WKRP." "It came so quickly. More than any time in my career, I realized you don't know what's going to happen next."

"Three days before I had auditioned for the second time for another pilot at heard of. Usually, you don't get the scripts until the day before you start a show. I think that's respectful to give the actors the scripts ahead of time so they'll know where their characters are going."

Sandy, unmarried and a native of Dayton, Ohio, moved here from New York three years ago. He had worked on three soap operas, "As the World Turns," "Somerset" and "Secret Storm," and had appeared in more than 40 plays in stock and summer theater.

"I left New York just when things were starting to happen for me," he said. "Producers were starting to ask for me for roles. It probably wasn't the best time to leave, but it seemed right to me.

"I'm drawn to the theater. I saw a lot of people coming from L.A. with television and film names and getting all the good parts. I knew I was going to have to have a name to get anything good. That's what I want to accomplish here, make a name so I can go back and star on Broadway."

"I want some prestige. I don't want to be thought of as just a TV personality. I'm not implying that I'm not respectful of the opportunity I've been given, but you have to put it to your advantage."

CBS. Another guy got it. I really wanted that part, it was a great role. The pilot didn't sell.

"On the strength of that screen test, CBS called MTM and told them about me. They were down to the wire and I think they must have lost somebody for the part. I went in, read on Friday, tested on Saturday, was told I had the part on Sunday and started rehearsals on Monday."

Like Mary Tyler Moore in her show, Sandy is the straight man in "WKRP," the oasis of sanity amidst all the craziness.

"That's a challenge for me because they want me to be laid back and easy going and still keep the pace going," he said. "There's a fine line between laid back and boring."

In an upcoming show, Sandy has to cancel a preacher on the early Sunday morning religious program because he's hawk-ing things like "New Testament steak knives." He's the Rev. Ed "Little" Pembroke of the Toe-to-Toe With Satan Church of the Mighty Struggle. No one's ever seen him because of the early morning hour, so when Sandy shows up to fire him, "Little" turns out to be a 280-pound ex-wrestler.

Sandy said he was also impressed with the respectful way people on the show treated each other.

"When we came back after the pilot to start the series, the producers gave us all of the scripts for the series. That's un-

Suspected American Terrorist Detained

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — An American woman has been formally arrested on suspicion of belonging to a West German terrorist group calling itself "Revolutionary Cells," the Chief Federal Prosecutor's Office said Thursday.

A spokesman said Leila Bocooc, in her early 20s, was detained with several other suspects in Wiesbaden Tuesday morning during a police search for terrorists in the Rhein-Main region around this city 20 miles west of Frankfurt. A formal arrest warrant was issued against her late Wednesday.

Though born in West Germany, Miss Bocooc is a U.S. citizen. Her father is American and her mother is Turkish, and both live in Wiesbaden, the spokesman said, adding that U.S. consular officials have been notified of the arrest.

An unidentified woman arrested with her was appearing before a Federal Supreme Court examining judge here Thursday pending a decision on her formal arrest. Other suspects detained with the two women this week have since been released.

Australia's Little River Band Hailed In U.S.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The continent of Australia, it is safe to say, has had no profound effect on the evolution of American-style rock 'n' roll.

The wellsprings of early rock were hill-billy juke joints and black jazz and blues dives, and it wasn't until the British invasion of the '60s that aliens had much say in the American art form. But even when English mopheads were invading our shores by the boatload, the Aussies never really got in on the doings.

AUSTRALIAN ROCKERS — The Little River Band, above, is the latest Australian rock act to break in America. Their specialty is smooth commercial pop with a tinge of country. (AP Laserphoto)

To Australian rockers aiming at the big-time, success in America was just a faraway dream too awesome to imagine. The bulk of the ambitious Aussies set their sights on Britain; some succeeded, some washed out, but few even tried America.

In the past few years, though, there has been a sort of mini-invasion from Australia. Olivia Newton-John has found a broad American audience, the Bee Gees have been reborn since discovering disco, and the Bee Gees' little brother, Andy Gibb, has found consistent commercial success since coming to America two years ago.

The Australians have found success with pleasant, commercial pop, but none has shaken rock to its foundations with innovation or challenged the mainstream with spirited rendition. One Aussie band does come close.

The Little River Band, the latest Australian rock act to break big in America, displays much of the gloss and sweet harmonies Americans have come to expect from down-under artists, but the band tries hard to be something more. In 2 1/2 years, on and off, in America, the seven-member group has earned a reputation as a hard-working road band that seemed destined to transcend its role of supporting act.

Little River lacks the hard edge of Bruce Springsteen or the Tom Robinson Band, but urgency and tension are not what they're after. Their specialty is smooth, commercial-hook pop with a tinge of country, and of that ilk, few of the newer bands compare.

Their "Sleeper Catcher" album is progressing steadily up the charts, and a single from the record, "Reminiscing," is one of the big hits of the summer — at last look still gaining momentum.

Three of the band's seven members write songs, which is one of the reasons Little River stands apart — they care about lyrics. Not all of their songs are compelling, but at least you get the feeling these guys are serious about their work and try to go beyond the superficial formula writing that characterizes so much of the stuff on the market.

"Because we have three writers in the band, we come up with a lot of varied material," says guitarist-songwriter Beeb Birtles. "It's a matter of getting acclimated to each other's musical styles," adds

Graham Goble, another writer-picker, "absorbing it all, then being able to pull your own stuff out of that."

"But we do the stuff we like and we write from the heart. We don't write to a formula. We're very conscious of the lyrics and we spend a lot of time on them."

Birtles, Goble and the other principal writer, guitarist David Briggs, dip below the surface for their material, probing loneliness, life on the road and melancholy love, as in "Reminiscing."

Another of the reasons Little River has been a hit with American audiences is that the music is styled more after American rock than British.

"For most of the past 20 years, rock 'n' roll in Australia has been closely attuned to English stuff," says Goble. "But now, groups like the Eagles and Chicago and other world-famous American groups have a great influence on Australian rock."

"We're one of the few touring Australian bands," says Goble. "In the last few years people have realized that we can work in America. Before that, America was always the pie-in-the-sky, it's always been too hard to break in."

Little River Band was born of the remnants of a group named Mississippi, which included Goble, Birtles and drummer Derek Pellicci. They made it big in Australia, but flopped in England, and decided to pack it in.

Broke and thinking they might need to gig their way home on a cruise, Goble, Birtles and Pellicci picked up the services of vocalist Glenn Shorrock. They didn't have to play the boat, but they did have a new band. Add Briggs and bassist George McArdle, and Mississippi was ready for another try.

Responding to criticism of their Yank name, they became Little River Band, after a tiny town 30 miles outside Melbourne. They made two albums, and brought their act to the United States, where they met responsive audiences while backing the Average White Band.

OLYMPIC PROTESTS
PARIS (AP) — Soviet dissident leader Andrei Sakharov, in a French newspaper interview, says he does not believe Western nations should boycott the 1980 Moscow Olympics to protest alleged human rights violations in his nation. But he suggested that each national team "adopt one political prisoner" to help publicize the situation.

Art Festival To Focus On New Mexico Talent

The second annual Festival of the Arts will take place Oct. 6 through 15 in Santa Fe, N.M. The 10-day festival will feature art exhibits, films, lectures, concerts and plays.

An event conceived two years ago, the Santa Fe Festival of the Arts celebrates the abundance of art that is created in Santa Fe and the Southwest. This year the festival will focus on the artistic talents found in New Mexico.

The two main fine art shows are "Santa Fe Selects" and "Santa Fe Salutes," which cover the various directions pursued by contemporary New Mexico artists.

Other shows to be featured this year include the Armory Show, the Artists' Equity Show, the Contemporary New Mexico Crafts Exhibit, the Contemporary New Mexico Photography Exhibit, the Guadalupe Historic Foundation exhibit "Historic Hispanic Art," the Institute of American Indian Art show "Images From the Earth," the Plaza Sculpture Show and the Wheelwright Museum's exhibit "Hopi Art Today."

In addition, the Museum of Fine Arts is planning three exhibits: "In Honor of..." "Installations" and "Paul Strand: The Mexican Portfolio." Many Santa Fe galleries also plan special shows for the festival.

The second weekend of the art festival will spotlight an auction predominantly of early New Mexico art. Additional opportunity to view and purchase art will be provided through special exhibit and sales rooms, which visiting art dealers will set up for the weekend in the Inn at Loretto.

The Festival of the Arts is a vast cooperative community effort, staffed by a volunteer force of Santa Feans. Businesses and individuals alike have purchased colorful, specially designed banners to decorate the city streets. The performing arts groups of the community will stage special shows to enhance the festive spirit.

Students Charge Censorship

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — High school journalists continued a strike against their prize-winning newspaper Thursday to protest school officials' seizing galley proofs and replacing the journalism teacher.

Kathy Echave, an English and journalism teacher who served as the adviser to The Oracle student newspaper for seven years, was ordered replaced by school principal Charles Hall, who appointed another teacher in her place.

The proofs of this month's edition were taken from the printer on Sept. 7 without the knowledge of the publication's staff, students said. Hall said Thursday the only reason the proofs were taken was to give them to the new faculty adviser for the newspaper.

He said he had not reappointed Mrs. Echave because she didn't apply for the position in time. Extra-service contracts must be renewed each year. This year the application deadline was changed from September to June. Mrs. Echave said she was unaware of the new deadline and applied Sept. 6, as soon as she found out about it.

Mrs. Echave filed a grievance with the teachers' union, and declined to discuss the matter on Thursday.

Actress, Director Team Again In Tense Drama

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Both have been exiles, she from her native Greece, he from his adopted Hollywood. They have remained indomitable, uncompromising in art as well as politics.

Melina Mercouri and Jules Dassin have been visiting the United States to call attention to their new film, "A Dream of Passion," which Avco-Embassy is releasing next month. Both admit the film needs selling, since it is not exactly sure-fire entertainment.

"A Dream of Passion" reflects the artistic integrity of the married pair, whose collaboration has produced "Never on Sunday," "Phaedra" and "Topkapi." The new film is an unrelenting study of two women: a Greek actress (Mercouri) returned from exile for a production of "Medea"; an American army wife (Ellen Burstyn) who killed her three children as revenge on her unfaithful husband.

Dassin's inspiration for the story began 25 years ago when he witnessed the sentencing of a Milan woman who had murdered her lover's three children. In "A Dream of Passion," he interweaves the real infanticide with an onstage version of "Medea," some of it in English, some in Greek.

The film often focuses on the antagonism between the actress and the play's director. Is this taken from life?

"There are superficial parallels," the director-writer smiled.

"Absolutely not," the actress corrected. "I love working with Julie."

The film's most controversial scene comes when the actress accepts the challenge of a BBC camera crew to speak the truth on tape in the manner of Marlon Brando's soliloquy in "Last Tango in Paris." It is a harrowing piece of self-revelation.

"But I had no intention of writing about Melina," Dassin explained. "The speech was written for her; in fact, I rewrote it many times. She did the four-minute scene in one take. Five seconds before it happened, I knew she was going up. She did, and I simply calmed her from behind the camera. She continued, never losing her intensity and concentration."

"I was lost," she admitted. "It was like being under an anesthetic, like moving in a dream. I heard a voice and I saw Julie mouthing words behind the camera. I knew I couldn't do the scene twice. I'm sure Brando didn't."

The lives of both Jules Dassin and Melina Mercouri could make absorbing films. He grew up in Harlem, came to Hollywood in the late 1930s as an actor, directed films like "Brute Force" and "Naked City" that created a new sense of realism in the American film.

He was backlisted during the McCarthy era, moved to Europe and established a new career with "Rififi" and "Never on Sunday." He co-starred with Mercouri in the latter movie, "because I couldn't afford to hire a better actor."

Melina Mercouri was born to an influential Athens family, did her first film "Stella" with Michael Cacoyannis in 1955, started with Dassin in 1960 with "He Who Must Die." She was appearing on Broadway in "Illya, Darling" when the military junta seized control of Greece in 1967. Her bitter opposition to the regime cost her citizenship and possessions.

She returned to Greece after the junta's collapse in 1974 and now serves as a Socialist member in the Greek parliament.

"My areas of interest are sewers, schools, child care and pollution," she remarked. "Pollution is a very serious problem in my area, which is Piraeus. We have many problems, because the people are poor and there are many refugees from Asia Minor."

She and Dassin live in Athens but her party chose Piraeus as her district "because that's where 'Never on Sunday' took place and because it had been a difficult area for the Socialist Party."

No dilettante deputy, she said she often spends from 8 a.m. to 4 the next morning at her chores. She receives $2,000 a month but must pay for an office in Piraeus and other expenses — "and I pay more, because I am considered to be rich."

TOGETHER AGAIN — Actress Mercouri and director Jules Dassin are shown together in a recent trip to Los Angeles. They were promoting their most recent film production, "A Dream of Passion." (AP Laserphoto)

Angola Intervention Warnings Went Unheeded, Ex-Aide Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Kissinger and Gerald Ford chose to "roll the dice against the longest of odds" in an unsuccessful attempt at covert intervention in Angola that they had been advised would fail, a former top aide to Kissinger says.

Nathaniel Davis, in an article published Thursday in the quarterly journal "Foreign Affairs," said Ford and Kissinger viewed the Angolan situation as a challenge to the United States by the Soviet Union rather than as an African problem.

Davis was Kissinger's assistant secretary of state for African affairs when the decision to use the Central Intelligence Agency to intervene in the Angolan civil war was made in the summer of 1975.

He resigned when his advice was not heeded but said nothing publicly then about his reasons. Davis, a career diplomat, is still employed by the State Department as its adviser at the Naval War College.

His article was cleared for publication by the department. Under Cyrus A. Vance and the new assistant secretary for African affairs, Richard Moose, the department has adopted a policy much closer to what Davis advocated in 1975 than to Kissinger's.

Kissinger, through aide Robert Hyland, said the article was "one-sided and distorted." He said he was "shocked" the State Department would authorize its publication. And he said allowing the criticism was not conducive to a "bipartisan foreign policy."

Hyland said Kissinger's version of the Angolan events would undoubtedly be part of the book Kissinger is now writing.

Davis' account begins in the spring of 1975, when Kissinger asked him to become assistant secretary for African affairs. One of his first assignments was to head a task force to assess the situation in Angola and recommend a course of action.

At the time, three different Angolan liberation groups were struggling to end Portuguese colonial rule and assume power. One, headed by Augustinho Neto, was Marxist and had Soviet support. Another, headed by Holden Roberto, was assisted by the United States had even then channeled $300,000 in covert aid to him. A third, headed by Jonas Savimbe, was the most democratic and was getting assistance from South Africa.

Davis said he recommended that the administration work through diplomatic means to try and reduce the flow of arms into the country and bring the competing groups together in a coalition. He said a major program of covert aid, as proposed by the CIA, would probably fail. He also predicted that it would not remain a secret.

But he was outflanked. When his paper was passed along to the White House, Kissinger's national security staff changed it so the recommendation for a diplomatic effort was downgraded to an option. The other options were doing nothing and mounting a covert operation to assist Roberto and Savimbe.

Davis said he was not invited to attend a crucial meeting of Kissinger's "Forty Committee." It pushed the covert operation option toward Ford's attention.

When Ford decided on covert aid, Davis said, he resigned. But he did not announce his resignation, and agreed to take a vacation at the time of the next scheduled Senate hearing on African affairs, thus avoiding the possibility of having to testify on Angola.

Davis' warnings eventually were proven true. Neto, with the aid of thousands of Cuban troops, won the civil war, although Savimbe reportedly still is fighting a guerrilla campaign.

U.S. involvement soon leaked through the press. Eventually, Congress passed legislation prohibiting further U.S. involvement in Angola.

Davis said he could not fathom "why the secretary was so determined to push ahead on a course I thought was so clearly destined to fail. The secretary and the president seem to have believed that it was better to roll the dice against long odds than to abandon the competition against our great adversary. The secretary would freely acknowledge, I believe, that he saw Angola as part of the U.S.-Soviet relationship, and not as an African problem."

CONFIDENTIAL SOURCES RULING

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A circuit judge has ruled that The Capital Times does not have to reveal news sources sought by a former Madison mayoral candidate in a libel suit against an underground newspaper. Judge Richard Bardwell, citing Wisconsin Supreme Court precedent outlining a journalist's constitutional right to protect confidential sources, rejected on Wednesday efforts by Anthony Amato to learn the identities of sources for stories printed by The Capital Times last year.

Smoke Detector Use Urged By Bureau

WASHINGTON (AP) — With autumn approaching, it's time to consider home heating and one of its dangers: fire.

If a space heater or smoldering cigarette started a fire in your home tonight, would you wake up in time?

According to the National Bureau of Standards, an inexpensive smoke detector can substantially improve your chances.

The bureau has prepared a booklet telling all about smoke detectors: how they work, where to install them and what different types are available.

For a copy of "Smoke Detectors" without charge, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 610F, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Ozone Layer Data Said Faulty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ominous warnings that mankind is destroying the ozone layer — the earth's vital atmospheric shield — are based on unreliable data and should be confirmed, a scientist contends.

Yet those warnings are leading to major political and economic decisions such as opposition to supersonic transport planes and to the use of aerosol sprays, said Dr. J.V. Dave of the IBM Scientific Center in Palo Alto.

"I'm not saying anything about whether the ozone is actually being destroyed or not," Dave said in an interview. "What my research says is that we do not have sufficiently accurate data... to say what we are doing to it."

The problem, he said, is that instruments used to measure ozone do not take into account such variables as atmospheric dust, clouds and natural changes in the concentration of ozone.

Therefore, he said, "You cannot really say that the ozone is being depleted. This may be a pseudo-result caused by any number of factors."

Dave has designed computer models to measure the effect of atmospheric variables on ozone measurements. He said the computer simulations indicate existing data could be off by 8 percent or more.

Dave's research, funded in part by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, was published recently in the Journal of Atmospheric Sciences.

Ozone, a form of oxygen mostly concentrated 8 to 15 miles overhead, acts as a translucent shield that allows most sunlight to filter through while it blocks hazardous ultraviolet rays.

Without the shield, some scientists believe, skin cancer would reach epidemic proportions, the earth's climate could change radically, plants could die and animals might be blinded.

The controversy began about 1971, when research showed that exhausts from supersonic transports flying through the ozone layer cause chemical reactions that destroy ozone. Later research incriminated fluorocarbons used in aerosol sprays and nitrogen oxides from artificial fertilizers.

Through the Ozone Layer Cause Chemical Reactions That Destroy Ozone

Dave does not question the destructive power of the chemical reactions. But he said a better measurements must be made because "the problem of atmospheric ozone has moved from an area of academic interest into the arena of political, economic and environmental interests."

"Laws have to be passed and decisions involving billions of dollars must be made," he said. "But how can we make these decisions if we cannot say what we are doing to the ozone? We must have more data and better data."

The man most often credited with the first warnings of ozone damage is Dr. Harold Johnston of the University of California at Berkeley.

Johnston agreed that "questions of how well can we look" need to be explored in greater detail.

"This gets pretty interesting," he said, "because all the theories on the fluorocarbons say that a longterm reduction is to be expected and the theories are begin### ning to say that we ought to begin seeing the impact."

Johnston also said fluorocarbon damage to the ozone seems to be a delayed-reaction — a sort of ecological time bomb.

Fluorocarbons now being released probably will not reach the ozone layer and begin causing problems for perhaps a decade or so.

CHILDREN REDEEMED
TOKYO (AP) — Fifty-six young people who were put in detention camps because they were the children of out-of-favor Chinese Communist officials have been cleared of the false charges against them, China's Hsinhua news agency reported Thursday. Hsinhua blamed agents of the late Defense Minister Lin Biao and the radical "Gang of Four" for having ordered the incarceration of the 56 between 1968 and 1972. These agents "tried to force these young people to write 'evidence of crimes' against their parents," Hsinhua said. The young people were all released in 1971 but their records had not been officially cleared until now.
