

Carter Seeks Arab Peace Support

Vance To Visit Hussein, Khalid

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter told Congress Monday night that the Camp David agreement has transformed "this impossible dream" of Middle East peace into a realistic expectation, and said he is sending Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to seek support for the accord from Jordan and Saudi Arabia.

Carter went in triumph to a joint session of the House and Senate, took their cheers and applause and then presented his Camp David negotiating partners, Egypt's Anwar Sadat and Israel's Menachem Begin.

In turn, they stood to receive the ovation of the leaders of American government.

Prime Minister Begin and President Sadat flanked Mrs. Carter in the front row of the House gallery, reserved for the president's family and guests.

Carter said there has not been peace between Egypt and a free Jewish nation for more than 2,000 years. "If our present expectations are realized, this year we shall see such peace again," the president said.

In a nationally broadcast and televised report on the agreements reached during the 13-day summit conference at his retreat in the Maryland mountains, Carter said Vance will leave today for talks with Jordan's King Hussein and King Khalid of Saudi Arabia.

Seeking Support He said Vance's goal is "to secure their support for the realization of the new hopes and dreams of the people of the Middle East."

Vance plans to stop in Jordan before going to Saudi Arabia. Officials said the trip will be a brief one and that Vance intends to return in time to hold strategic arms limitation talks Friday in New York with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

The support of Jordan and Saudi Arabia are considered vital to the outcome of the U.S.-led peace drive.

One of the two agreements negotiated at Camp David envisions Jordan playing a prominent role in shaping a negotiated settlement for the West Bank of the Jordan River. But King Hussein has made no statement on the accords, saying he wants to study them first.

Previously Invited From start, the United States, Egypt and Israel have all tried to get Hussein to join in peace talks. He has held out for a commitment from Israel to withdraw from the West Bank. That territory was controlled by Jordan from 1948 to 1967, when it was lost to Israel in the Six-Day War.

Hussein must decide if Israel's promise to end its military occupation, while keeping security forces on the West Bank, is acceptable.

Oil-rich Saudi Arabia, meanwhile, bankrolls the Egyptians economy. It also is considered the spiritual center of the Moslem world.

A key problem in seeking King Khalid's support is likely to be the lack of agreement on the future of Jerusalem. The old Arab quarter of the city fell to Israeli forces in the 1967 war.

Bearing Carter told Congress that a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel is to be concluded within three months from Sunday night. He glanced up at Begin and Sadat as he did so.

They smiled and nodded at each other, and joined in the applause from the House floor.

Words Of Jesus Quoted Carter concluded his 32-minute report by saying that as a Christian, he offered the words of Jesus to the two Middle Eastern Leaders:

"Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be the children of God."

Carter's speech wound up a day in which the administration began a diplomatic and political offensive in support of the fragile Mideast agreement, signed in a White House ceremony Sunday night.

Begin and Sadat had spent Monday explaining their positions on the Camp David accord to their own people.

In a statement broadcast to the Egyptian people, Sadat said a "just peace" had been achieved and that Egypt "no longer has to send its sons to fight in Sinai."

Begin, reassuring his people in a television interview from here, said the agreement was a realistic one "the only way that can lead to peace—there is no other."

Administration officials, eager to prevent Arab divisions from tearing the summit agreement apart, said Palestinians on the West Bank of the Jordan River. See PEACE Page 14

Herbicide's Use Checked By USDA

By KATHLEEN HARRIS

Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer MINIMIZING the cost for farmers and ranchers in brush and weed control and protecting people's health are the main objectives of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's stance on the herbicide 2,4,5-T, according to Dr. Rupert Cutler, assistant secretary of agriculture.

Cutler and Dr. Steve Jellenik, Environmental Protection Agency deputy administrator for toxic substances, held a press conference Monday at Lubbock International Airport on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's investigation of the herbicide.

The herbicide 2,4,5-T has been used for almost 30 years for control of woody plants in pastures and forests and on some broadleaf weeds, officials of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station said.

Cancer Link Found But a chemical toxin in the herbicide has caused cancer, birth defects and spontaneous abortion in test animals, and the USDA currently is determining whether or not to recommend the continued use of the substance.

The USDA will recommend the use of 2,4,5-T if it is shown to be the only alternative, if it is economical and if there is no sign of human danger, Cutler said.

In such a case, the chemical will be controlled away from waterways and helicopter transport routes also will be controlled, he stressed.

Benefits, Risks Checked The question, Jellenik added, is whether the effects produced in test animals "will be produced in humans and if the benefits will outweigh the risks."

Cutler said one purpose for visiting the South Plains was to see how the USDA allotments are being spent. "I supervise the Forest Service, the Soil Conservation Service and the research and extension services. I have some discretion on how the budget is allotted for such things as integrated pest management," he said.

Cutler commended the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, saying it should be a model for other states.

As a decision-maker for the EPA, Jellenik said the South Plains trip was helpful. "We have to make decisions for the See HERBICIDE Page 14

SUMMIT REACTION—Two Egyptians are immersed in Monday's edition of Al Ahram, which carried the story on the end of the Camp David Mideast summit. Reaction to the peace proposals flowing from the summit and the signing of the agreement between Egypt and Israel was very low key in Cairo. There were no demonstrations or rallies. Muleshoe Drug Trial Launched

By BOB CAMPBELL

Avalanche-Journal Staff MULESHOE — A dozen of the 30 persons charged in a Bailey County drug bust last December and subsequent grand jury investigation early this year were brought to trial here Monday in the sweltering new county civic center and coliseum.

Three of the defendants pleaded guilty as Judge Pat Boone of the 154th District Court took pleas and motions through the morning and afternoon on charges of a scheme to make and sell methamphetamine.

The court was convened in the large facility because of the number of defendants and prospective jurors.

Sentences Assessed Plea bargains with Dist. Atty. Jack Young brought a five-year probation sentence to Steve Painter of Hobbs, N.M., and a three-month prison sentence with a possibility of probation afterwards for Pattie Baumgart of Clovis, N.M.

Mrs. Baumgart is pregnant and scheduled to deliver two weeks after her penitentiary release on Jan. 1. Judge Boone gave her a 10-year sentence which he said he will consider probation then. She has been subpoenaed to testify in the trial beginning today for the other defendants.

There will be 31 veniremen for defense lawyers and Young to question. The third defendant to plead guilty, Hal Mark Tibbets, 22, of Muleshoe, asked to have his sentence considered by a jury.

Charged were dropped Monday for lack of evidence against Michael Allen Tibbets of Muleshoe.

Scheduled For Trial Scheduled for trial after pleading not guilty are James Cunningham and Wilford Fritz Gallegos, both of Muleshoe, Billy Myers and Craig Chaney, both of Houston, and Gary Foster Levi, Jerry Rang Clayton, Dee Carter and Ron Shirley, all of Clovis, N.M.

Eight persons were arrested when officers converged on a remote farmhouse in western Bailey County near the Mexico border just before Christmas last year. The rest were indicted last March after a grand jury investigation.

Gallegos, 27, Mark Allen Tibbets, 25, and Levi, Mrs. Baumgart, Clayton, Charles Jenkins of Clovis, N.M., and Hal Mark Tibbets, all 22, and Deborah L.

Joy, Rage Triggered By Summit

By The Associated Press

Joyous Israelis popped open wine bottles and danced in the streets. Egyptians reveled in what they saw as Anwar Sadat's success at Camp David. But politicians and many ordinary people in both countries seemed perplexed about just how close peace really is.

In the rest of the Arab world the reaction ranged from rage to silence. Moscow was sharply negative, and Western European leaders cautioned against over-optimism.

"Oh, Allah, bring down your wrath on the head of Sadat! ... curse the Egyptians, they have sold us for a handful of dollars," wailed an old woman in a Palestinian refugee camp near Beirut, Lebanon.

War Step-Up Vowed A group of guerrillas standing nearby denounced the looming separate peace between Israel and Egypt. They waved their rifles and vowed to escalate the war against Israel.

Declared the Palestinian news agency Wafa: "The traitor Sadat has sold all the sacred territories, the Palestinians, the Golan Heights and the dignity of Egypt in return for a handful of sand in the Sinai." Hard-line Syria's state-run Damascus Radio sounded the same theme and called Sadat's actions "capitulation."

The executive council of the Palestine Liberation Organization, which met in emergency session in Beirut, pledged continued war against Israel and called for a general strike by Palestinians. The PLO said in a statement, "Palestinians cannot accept to have their fate determined. See MIXED REACTIONS Page 14

LONDON TIMES MAY QUIT

LONDON (AP) — The respected Times and Sunday Times newspapers will cease publication Nov. 30 unless there is agreement with unions on a number of issues, management officials said Monday.

Months of unofficial strikes have disrupted production and resulted in the distribution of 9.6 million fewer copies of Times publications than expected this year. Thomson Newspapers, owners of the Times, Sunday Times, and the Times Literary, Educational and Higher Education Supplements, said the disputes have cost about $4 million since Jan. 1.

But Azcue, now retired, told the committee he could be convinced he was wrong by scientific evidence. Committee sources said such evidence was forthcoming.

Azcue, testifying through a translator, told the committee the Oswald who came to his consulate in Mexico City was a "cold, hard" man, thinner than Kennedy's accused assassin.

He said the man demanded an immediate visa for entry to Cuba and became unpleasant when told it would require prior approval from Havana.

Azcue's recollections have caused speculation that a second man might have posed as Oswald in an elaborate conspiracy scheme.

"Fifteen years have gone by, so it is very difficult for me to guarantee it in a categorical sense," Azcue said, "but my

Murder Trial Jury Undecided

A JURY LATE Monday was still deliberating the guilt or innocence of Kenneth Wayne Herndon, accused of murder in connection with the Christmas Eve killing of William Drew Young III.

The six-man, six-woman panel in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th District Court, which had begun its deliberations shortly after 5 p.m., had not reached a verdict shortly before midnight.

Jurors had announced at 8:10 p.m. that they were unable to reach a unanimous verdict. Clinton, however, sent the jury back for further discussion.

Testimony during the trial, which began last week, indicated Young, 28, was killed by a gunshot Dec. 24, 1977, in a back office at the Salt River Saloon, 2311 19th St.

It would have been our moral duty to inform the United States," Castro said.

Castro, two former Cuban consuls in Mexico City and a consulate secretary all denied in statements or testimony to the committee that Oswald made the threat when he tried to get a visa for entry into Cuba.

Former Consul Alfredo Mirabal Diaz said the story is "completely absurd. It is completely false. It is a lie." And former Consul Eusebio Azcue Lopez said Oswald was angry and discourteous but made no assassination threat against Cuba.

Earlier Monday, Azcue said he believes a man who identified himself as Lee Harvey Oswald and angrily demanded a visa for Cuba in 1963 was not the same man named later as John F. Kennedy's assassin.

"This is absurd," the committee quoted Castro as saying in the interview. "It

Airlift Aims At Stronghold In Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Government forces were airlifted into positions around Esteli in northern Nicaragua Monday to attack the last guerrilla strongholds there.

Esteli has been in rebel hands since Sept. 9 although the national guard said Saturday it had overpowered sniper positions in the town of 30,000.

Earlier, the guard, Nicaragua's 7,500-member army, recaptured the towns of Masaya, Leon, Chinandega and Penas Blancas, routing rebels who are led by guerrillas intent on overthrowing the authoritarian government of President Anastasio Somoza.

Town "Looks Dead" Travelers from the Esteli area, including some who had flown over the town, said it looked dead. They reported no movement of civilians or automobiles. A fire burned near the center of town.

Rebels held the high ground leading into the city from the south. National guard forces manned a checkpoint on the Pan American Highway three miles south of the town and barred journalists from entering.

Mopping up action was reported from Chinandega, which the guard wrested from the rebels Sunday. There was scattered shooting overnight in Managua

Castro Knowledge Of JFK Plot Claimed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House assassinations committee, in a cautiously worded statement, said Monday it has been told there may be some support for a report that Fidel Castro knew in advance of an assassination threat against President John F. Kennedy.

Castro has called the report "absurd." Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, the committee's chairman, refused to go beyond an ambiguous statement that said an unspecified source had informed the panel that the story might have substance.

And Stokes and committee chief counsel G. Robert Blakey stressed that the committee itself was not vouching for the truthfulness of the report, only passing on the opinion of the unnamed source.

Blakey's statement said the story was written by Comer Clark in the tabloid National Enquirer. The story said the Cuban consulate in Mexico City told Castro that Lee Harvey Oswald had threatened Kennedy's life.

Blakey said the committee investigated the writer's reputation for truthfulness and "frankly, it was not good."

But Blakey said the committee did not ignore the story because of the information that it was supported by reliable government sources.

The committee's prepared statement said it "has been informed that the substance of the (story) is supported by highly confidential, but reliable, sources available to the U.S. government."

The committee issued the statement as it released an interview with the Cuban president in which Castro vehemently denied the report.

First GSA Indictments Could Come Soon, Top Official Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first indictments from two grand jury investigations of fraud within the General Services Administration could be handed down in about eight weeks, a top Justice Department official said Monday.

But a second department official said the cases "in a so-called advanced stage of development" involve "relatively low-level" persons.

Meanwhile, a congressional watchdog agency said fraud and reported white collar crimes against the government are not limited to the GSA and that such illegal activities cost taxpayers between $2.5 billion and $25 billion a year.

But officials of that agency, the General Accounting Office, said the estimate is at best "a wild guess."

"No one knows the magnitude of fraud against the government," said GAO Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats. "Fraud is happening without anyone knowing about it."

The testimony came as the Senate Government Affairs subcommittee chaired by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., held a hearing to learn how various government investigations of the GSA were progressing. Chiles' subcommittee on federal spending practices and open government will hear from GSA officials Tuesday.

Meanwhile, GSA administrator Jay Solomon issued a statement Monday announcing the formation of a new Office of Acquisition Policy, which he said would serve as a major step in tightening up the "loosely coordinated" GSA purchasing function.

Solomon said the new office will deal both in formulating policies for government purchases and for ensuring that the policies are followed.

In testimony before the subcommittee, Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti said the Carter administration has agreed to set up an interagency strike force to coordinate the various investigations. He said investigators are looking into allegations ranging over "six or seven subjects."

Civiletti said investigations in Baltimore and Washington were proceeding well and predicted that "fruits of the investigation will begin to be produced" in November. An investigation in Boston is not so far along, other Justice Department officials said.

The Baltimore grand jury is looking into alleged fraud at GSA self-service stores and in use of government credit cards. The Washington grand jury has been investigating alleged bribery and fraud in repair and alteration contracts for federal buildings in the Washington area.

Civiletti gave no details of the investigation, but in response to a question by Chiles, Deputy Assistant Attorney General John C. Keeney indicated that the first indictments likely would involve lower-level government employees.

Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann told the subcommittee that the strike force would work well. He said there was no need for the appointment of a special prosecutor to handle the investigation.

Heymann also said Charles Kirbo, the friend of President Carter who has been named by the president to assist in the proceedings, will not be involved in any part of the criminal investigation.

"He should not and he will not work on the criminal investigation side," Heymann said. He said Kirbo would be in-involved only in getting the GSA back on an even keel.

"No one will get in the way of my prosecuting anyone on this matter. If it leads to the White House staff, the House or the Senate, we will proceed," the attorney said.

Chiles hailed establishment of the strike force as "a big step on the road toward prosecuting the wrongdoers both at the GSA and in the private sector who have almost put an end to the day-to-day dealings of the federal government's landlord and supplier."

Staats said a GAO study of fraud against the government found that federal agencies have not been doing enough to identify fraud and that the Justice Department has been slow in assisting what efforts have been undertaken.

"The Federal Highway Administration, for instance, generally views contract violations as honest mistakes, with no consideration of the underlying reasons for the violations or potential fraud," a GAO report released at the hearing noted.

"The Department of Labor regards questionable personnel and training cost reports submitted by prime sponsors as possible funds to be recovered rather than possible fraud," the report said.

That report also found that agency investigators often do not have background, experience or training to detect fraud.

Financial Prospects Improve For Hospital

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Financially speaking, the Health Sciences Center Hospital may have started to "turn the corner" last month as cash collections showed a long-awaited improvement, the Lubbock County Hospital District said Monday.

The county teaching hospital's "accounts receivable" — the backlog of unpaid bills — increased by only $511,000 in August, district officials said. That is the smallest monthly increase since February, when the hospital had just opened and was doing only half as much business.

Bill Stinnett, associate director for fiscal and administrative services, said the improvement can be attributed to more stringent collection efforts. In July, he said, the hospital collected only about $200,000; last month, the figure was double that.

"The things we're doing are turning around our accounts-receivable problem," Stinnett said. He predicted September cash collections would be $500,000, and that within the next few months, another big jump would be recorded.

"The trend is notable," said Joe Stanley, a member of the hospital district's board of managers. He said collections will pick up even more "if we can get additional nurses in here and get these (presently unavailable) beds open." Toward that end, the board voted unanimously Monday to contract with Medrec, a San Antonio-based firm specializing in recruitment of overseas nurses. The hospital district will spend about $25,000 to bring to Lubbock 30 registered nurses from such countries as England and South Africa, the board decided.

Ben Robinson, chairman of the hospital board's finance committee, explained that the hospital's "gross revenues are $1 million off (projections) due to the fact that we don't have enough beds open, and so we don't have enough patients in the hospital."

The smaller-than-anticipated patient load also has contributed to a "significant reduction in operating costs," so that the bottom line of the hospital's finances is only $100,000 below the budget, Robinson said.

The hospital could wipe out that loss and make progress in reducing the accounts receivable by opening more beds and doing a greater volume of business, he noted.

The hospital still hasn't come close to breaking even on its monthly expenses. But Stinnett and Robinson said the hospital is getting there, albeit slowly.

The amount of outstanding bills had been increasing by as much as $700,000 a month. In August, however, when the district billed patients for some $900,000 in services, the backlog increased only about $511,000.

Eventually, said Stinnett, the hospital will be collecting more cash during a month than it is billing patients for. When that happens — possibly sometime in 1979 — the backlog in unpaid bills will begin to shrink drastically.

The hospital's current backlog stands at just over $4 million.

The hospital currently has about half of its approximately 300 accommodations open for use. Gerald Bosworth, executive director of the hospital district and hospital, said adjustments in staffing patterns may allow for the opening of additional beds this month.

PUBLIC NOTICE SUMMARY OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS GENERAL ELECTION NOV. 7, 1978

"The Tax Relief Amendment" (H.J.R. 1)

H.J.R. 1 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution allowing the legislature to exempt intangible personal property, requiring the legislature to exempt certain household goods and personal effects, and allowing the legislature to exempt all or part of the personal property homestead from state and local property taxation.

The amendment requires the legislature to provide for the taxation of farm and ranch land on the basis of its productive capacity instead of its market value and allows the legislature to provide for the taxation of timber land on its productive capacity.

The amendment permits local governments to extend the present exemption of not less than $3,000 of the residence homestead of persons 65 and older to include certain disabled persons.

The amendment grants an exemption from public school property taxes of $5,000 of the market value of the residence homestead. It authorizes the legislature to grant an additional exemption from public school property taxes of an amount not to exceed $10,000 of the market value of the residence homesteads of persons 65 years of age or older and certain disabled persons. If a person 65 years of age or older qualifies for this exemption, the total amount of public school taxes imposed on that person's homestead may not be increased.

The amendment prevents local governments from increasing property taxes unless the governing body provides public notice and conducts a public hearing. The amendment requires the legislature to provide by law for each property owner to receive notice of the revaluation of his property and the amount taxes will be increased.

The amendment limits appropriations from state tax revenue to an amount not to exceed Texas' estimated economic growth rate, with the legislature authorized to make exceptions for emergencies.

The amendment prohibits the statewide appraisal of real property for property tax purposes. Enforcement of uniform standards and procedures for appraisal of property for property tax purposes is required to originate in the taxing authority where the property tax is imposed.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

NUMBER ONE (S.J.R. 50)

S.J.R. 50 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to delete an archaic reference to the "Deaf and Dumb Asylum." The amendment would allow the State of Texas to purchase products and services done by handicapped individuals in nonprofit rehabilitation facilities without complying with bid requirements applicable to other state contracts. The amendment also would eliminate the formality of the approval of certain state contracts by the Governor, the Secretary of State and the Comptroller of Public Accounts.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

NUMBER TWO (S.J.R. 55)

S.J.R. 55 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to permit local governments to issue bonds for the reconstruction or acquisition of facilities (land, equipment and improvements) designed to develop employment opportunities. These bonds would be payable solely from the revenue from the sale or lease of these facilities. The building or acquisition of such facilities must be determined by the local government to be necessary to develop employment opportunities.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

NUMBER THREE (S.J.R. 44)

S.J.R. 44 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution which would allow the legislature to authorize cities and towns to issue tax increment bonds to finance the redevelopment of blighted areas. The bonds are to be paid solely from revenue from municipal tax increments. Payment cannot be made from the revenue of municipal taxes, utilities, or other services.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

NUMBER FOUR (S.J.R. 53)

S.J.R. 53 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to allow the legislature to exempt from taxation solar or wind-powered energy devices.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

NUMBER FIVE (H.J.R. 37)

H.J.R. 37 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to grant exclusive jurisdiction to justices of the peace in civil cases where the amount in controversy does not exceed $200, except where the legislature gives exclusive jurisdiction to another court.

The amendment grants justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction with county courts where the amount in controversy is between $200 and $500, except where the legislature gives the county court exclusive jurisdiction.

The amendment also grants justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction with both county and district courts where the amount in controversy is between $500 and $1,000, except where the legislature gives the county or district court exclusive jurisdiction.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

NUMBER SIX (S.J.R. 45)

S.J.R. 45 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to allow the legislature to expand the number of judges on any court of civil appeals. Presently courts of civil appeals are limited to a chief justice and two associate justices. The amendment would also allow the courts to sit in sections, with the concurrence of a majority of the judges sitting in the section necessary to decide a case.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

NUMBER SEVEN (S.J.R. 48)

S.J.R. 48 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution eliminating the State Building Commission and the State Building Fund. The authority of the State Building Commission has been transferred by law to the State Board of Control.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

NUMBER EIGHT (H.J.R. 42)

H.J.R. 42 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution allowing certain political subdivisions or districts in the state that can presently issue bonds or otherwise lend their credit to engage in fire-fighting activities and to issue bonds or otherwise lend their credit to support such activities.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

NUMBER NINE (S.J.R. 47)

S.J.R. 47 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to allow the legislature to grant exclusive jurisdiction to justices of the peace in civil cases where the amount in controversy does not exceed $200, except where the legislature gives exclusive jurisdiction to another court.

The amendment grants justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction with county courts where the amount in controversy is between $200 and $500, except where the legislature gives the county court exclusive jurisdiction.

The amendment also grants justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction with both county and district courts where the amount in controversy is between $500 and $1,000, except where the legislature gives the county or district court exclusive jurisdiction.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

Your Personal Biorhythms

by Bernard Gittelson

Figure your numbers here — For your own permanent biorhythm number for the Physical (P), Emotional (E), and Intellectual (I) cycles, just follow these steps:

STEP 1 — YEAR OF BIRTH

STEP 2 — MONTH OF BIRTH

STEP 3 — DAY OF BIRTH

TOTALS

YOUR PERMANENT NUMBERS

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2 — Month of birth. Find the corresponding numbers for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be B for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings. ## AN EDITORIAL: UN Still A Tower Of Babel

ONE OF THE most controversial organizations on the world scene today is ready to launch another Fall session. The 33rd regular meeting of the United Nations General Assembly opens today. Such news will be greeted with a resounding "thud" among millions in the U.S., and abroad for that matter. Viewed with a great amount of skepticism in this country even before its inception, the United Nations has done little to change its image, except for the worse, in the intervening years. BUT A NUMBER of other changes have been made, most of them questionable. When the first UN General Assembly convened in 1946, the world organization had 51 members. Today, it is comprised of 149 nations. But the near-tripling of its membership has not brought the UN a commensurate increase of power and prestige. Indeed, the General Assembly is widely viewed as an ineffectual and irresponsible debating society, dominated by Third World countries and "mini-states" like the Maldives Islands. SUCH CRITICISM has been voiced for years. "Too many items are placed on the agenda of the General Assembly," Sec. of State Dean Rusk said in a speech at Columbia in 1964. "Too many issues are debated and not enough negotiated." There are those who argue that if the UN

AN EDITORIAL: DOE Not Shut All The Way

CRITICS WHO allege that the Department of Energy "has exhibited no real interest in moving forward" in solar research got a hefty round of applause in this space a few days ago. This might have led regular readers to wonder if we had forgotten the studies being made in this area into ways in which the sun's energy might be harnessed to help meet the crisis of the future. After all, Texas Tech scientists have two solar research projects underway right now, both funded by the DOE, including a $4 million plant at Crosbyton and a Trans-Pecos undertaking with an initial cost of $500,000. "It is very difficult to get a project funded by DOE, but it is not guilty of total disinterest in solar energy," one of the Tech researchers points out. TO BE SURE, the Texas Tech researchers have been more successful in interesting DOE in their solar power concepts than has the man whose concept sparked a recent Avalanche-Journal editorial. Joseph C. Yater of Lincoln, Mass., struck out in efforts to get DOE funding for a $250-

DONALD F. GRAFF Congress Rises Again To Fiscal Upper Limit

IT HAS—or will have, when and if completed according to plan—16-foot ceilings, elaborate restaurant and recreation facilities and a pricetag of $85 million. Or maybe $113 million. Or possibly $135 million. It is the new Senate office building, construction of which promises to set a new high for federal government spending on its own housing. It is an issue in Washington—even the Senate prefers putting off $54 million in next-step construction funds until after the November elections. It is also a symbol, a particularly flamboyant one, of a significant shift in the balance of federal government powers. The building is needed, Capitol Hill leaders argue, to accommodate the burgeoning congressional infrastructure. Whether staff, or even senators, need be accommodated in quite such Carracallan splendor is a point for argument. But there's no arguing the fact of staff growth. IN THE CURRENT decade, congressional employment has increased by two-thirds—from some 11,000 in 1970 to 18,370 by latest count. The increase includes personal aides for senators and representatives, greatly expanded committee staffs and personnel for such new congressional support services as the Congressional Budget Office. There is more to it than routine empire building and the natural tendency of government to multiply, although a little of that is certainly involved. It is a consequence of congressional determination to equip itself to deal with the executive branch of government on an equal footing, developing its own sources of information and expertise independent of the executive bureaucracy. And it is a major factor in the development of what commentators have taken to referring to as the "imperial" Congress, successor to the Johnson-Nixon "imperial" presidencies and source of much frustration for the down-home presidency of Jimmy Carter. CONGRESS, IN effect, has seized power in Washington, Business Week magazine notes in a current analysis. This, rather than Carter's status as a Washington outsider, largely explains the

Levelland Farm Wife In Blast At Tower 'Record'

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Because it's an election year the people of Texas just might see John Tower, as the members of WIFE did last weekend in Lubbock. He asks the people of Texas to let him serve 24 years in the U.S. Senate. This paper quoted him as saying his voting record was not inconsistent. The record says otherwise. He talked of the dangers of inflationary automatic minimum wage increases but in 1977 voted for his own automatic cost of living raise. He now talks of helping beef producers but in 1973 supported extension of beef price controls. He now talks of deregulation issues after Bob Krueger got the ball rolling, but in 1973 John Tower voted for the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act leading to allocation and price controls on oil. He now acts like a friend of the farmer but in 1973 supported Nixon's plan to block disaster relief to farmers in economically hard-hit countries, voted against five-year farm price extension program to wheat, feed grains and wool, voted to sustain Ford's veto of the bill to increase the support price of milk to a minimum of 85 percent of parity and even authored a book advocating the elimination of all farm price supports. He voted to bail out N.Y. City with the Republican administration and against it with the Democratic administration. Why ever vote to bail out N.Y. City? Had Lubbock, Texas, been in the same situation would we have bailed out? Had John Tower's position on Civil Rights prevailed, the black aide that accompanied him to Lubbock perhaps could not have been served lunch at certain places in town. John Tower claims to be a leader in national defense but while serving on the Senate Armed Service Committee allowed nine Texas military bases to be shut down. He continues to shut out any communication with organized labor. Let's face facts. Organized labor is here to stay. Why not be a realist? John Tower is a threat to our Right to Work law. To force the issue could mean losing it as 28 states do not have right to work laws. Texas is in the minority. A positive open approach is desperately needed. Texans need and should demand a positive issue-consistent leader in the U.S. Senate. The question that should have been asked of John Tower in Lubbock was "What can you do for agriculture or any industry now that you have not or could not have done in the last 17 years?" On Nov. 7th, I know the people of Texas will join together to overwhelmingly say, "It's too late John Tower."

Reader Sees Feds Taking Control Of All Schools

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Like a giant octopus the federal government is establishing a hold on the public school system. One by one public schools are being replaced by federal controlled schools. The latest is in Los Angeles. Education is no longer the number one priority of the schools. The social-reformers have been victorious in making integration the number one priority. This has been made possible by the fact that federal judges have usurped their authority with the apparent approval of every U.S. President since World War II. The U.S. Supreme Court which has sworn to uphold the U.S. Constitution is in reality making a mockery of it! I wonder how much longer parents are going to allow their children to become pawns in the hands of the social-planners.

Aid Sought In Battle On Below Caprock Boll Weevil

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: As we can't seem to get any coverage from below the Caprock in the Lubbock paper and we feel the cotton producers on the High Plains who are helping to fight the boll weevil should know of extra efforts below the Caprock, I hope you will print this. First, all of us, the cotton producers on top of the Caprock and the ones in the control zone below the Caprock in parts of Hall, Briscoe, Floyd, Motley, Dickens, Kent, Crosby and Garza have been putting up the same amount per bale of cotton produced to operate the Diapause Control Program to stop the western migration of the cotton boll weevil and to prevent it from becoming established on the High Plains. So far this has been successful as there is no known overwintering of the boll weevil on the High Plains. Because the price of chemicals has gone up, the cost of application has gone up, and cotton acreage has been increased in all counties of the area, we in the control zone this year were asked to put up an extra $3 per land acre where cotton was planted to insure that we wouldn't be eliminated from the acreage to be sprayed this fall. Farmers of this area turned this down as there was no assurance an individual would receive a spray even if he paid. This we did do though. We started an In Season Pest Management Program to help us and the diapause program. All but a few cotton farmers waited until May 20 or after to plant, and we put up 20 cents per cotton acre to hire scouts to check our fields until the diapause program started. If levels of infestation that warranted control were found (and thank goodness there were none) the decision to apply controls rested entirely on the producer. The reason behind this action was that in the past, many times we received economical damage before the diapause program started, even though the goal of the diapause program was being met. Most of our cotton is dryland, and we don't produce many bales as compared to the irrigated acreage on top of the Caprock. As we are the battleground, we feel the ones we are protecting should know of our effort. If we lost the battle down here because of lack of funds, what is to stop the boll weevil from sweeping over the High Plains into New Mexico? A mile wide strip of cotton on the plains is covered with many more acres of cotton than in our area under the Caprock, so if the fight is moved west, the cost is really going to increase. Many of us have talked to cotton farmers on the High Plains, and most have said that if it costs more for us to keep the boll weevil down there, they will gladly pay, but we haven't been able to get this message to the producers on the High Plains as a whole, therefore your assistance is requested.

Inflation Proves Too Much For Littlefield Reader

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Stinson R. Behlens wrote exactly what some others think (Tues. Sept. 12). I did listen to your editorials but lost my vote to a lot of teeth. I intend to do as he wrote—if it seems as if I'm being robbed at the cash register—then I refuse to buy it. That's the only way I can see to keep prices from continuing to go up-up-up—is for people to stop buying on impulse regardless to value or cost—then wonder why the last pay check did not last until another one came. This goes for everything from a needle to a $4,000 tractor. If this doesn't work—then we have to wait for the worst which cannot be long—such as it is.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE: Sad Life For Pat

THE "INTIMATE book" about Pat Nixon is out, but don't rush off to your bookstore expecting an inside peek at her love life. There isn't any. No inside peek and, by implication, not much of the other, either. Life with Richard Nixon may have been dramatic, but it wasn't much in the moonlight-and-roses department. The title gives it away: "The Lonely Lady of San Clemente." And author Lester David leaves one with the impression that she was also the lonely lady of the White House. She was the wife Richard Nixon wanted her to be: loyal, hard-working, never controversial and always conservative in everything from her clothes to her political cliches. BUT WHILE he was on top he needed a campaign worker more than he needed a wife. It was politics, not Pat, that made his pulses pound. Not that she didn't try. Once she had discovered how dirty most politicians play (especially after the vicious Helen Gahagan Douglas campaign) and how the fallout affected her home life and her two young daughters, she set up her own campaign to get him to give it up. "Pat fooled everybody who did not know her intimately," David writes, "never letting on that most of the time she hated the whole thing." Her true feelings, he added, came out after her husband was nominated for the White House. Tearfully she confided to a close friend, "I've given up everything I've ever loved."

BUT HE promised her that after his term ended he would never again seek public office. He even put it in writing. Signed his name, wrote the date, and put the promise in his wallet. And broke it two years later. Pat thought she had it made after he lost to Kennedy (although she's convinced the election was stolen). She tried again when he talked about running for governor of California—and failed again. She didn't even want him to run for President in 1968, but when he ignored her wishes, she packed her bags and campaigned so hard she even wore him out. At every whistlestop her mask was firmly in place. But David shoots down the "Plastic Pat" myth. In public, maybe, but in private she was anything but. She had a temper (she is Irish, remember) and her few close friends report she could be as gay and giggling as anybody else.

SPITEFUL, TOO. She even snubbed Jackie Kennedy. As the outgoing Second Lady, Pat (still bristling over things the Kennedys had said about Nixon during the campaign) refused to chat with the new First Lady during the traditional coffee-and-cake ceremony preceding the Inauguration. Years later, when she was First Lady herself, she got her revenge. One of the first things she did after moving into the White House was banish a plaque from her bedroom that read, in Jackie's own handwriting: "In this room lived John Fitzgerald Kennedy with his wife Jacqueline during the two years, ten months and two days he was President." (It's now in the White House basement.) Then there was the matter of the painting. In her husband's memory, Jackie had donated a Monet masterpiece to the White House, where it hung in the Green Room. Pat moved it to a smaller room on the ground floor.

SHE ALSO quietly changed the name of the "Jacqueline Kennedy Garden," which Lady Bird Johnson had christened, to the "First Lady's Garden." So much for the plastic image bit. There is, of course, a chapter on the Nixons' sex life, but it's not exactly the kind of thing you might read in the National Enquirer. David makes it obvious that any coolness in their marriage was on Nixon's part, that Pat loved him all the way, in spite of the way he treated her. Like the time in Nashville, where he staged a birthday party for her at the Grand Old Opry House and then turned away from her attempts to hug him, choosing to play with a yo-yo instead. "He not only ignored her in public, he spent little time with her in private," David points out. "He would spend the weekend at Camp David alone—Pat would remain in Washington. When he vacationed at Key Biscayne or San Clemente, the pattern was often the same."

STILL, SHE stuck by him. All through the Watergate mess she kept insisting "the truth" would clear him. And when she discovered the truth, she urged him to burn the tapes. Once again he ignored her. Now she lives the life of a recluse in her sumptuous villa by the sea. She gardens a little and plays a lot of solitaire, using her left hand as part of her therapy to strengthen muscles weakened by her stroke. But her legendary energy is gone, and she tires easily. "She has come full circle," David writes. "She has returned with Nixon to California, where they started, to be sequestered inside their mansion amid the wreckage of his presidency. "She has had times of glory and now there is sorrow. She wanted peace and privacy, but she wanted them with grace, dignity and honor, not with the legacy of shame that, barring a miracle none can foresee, must be left to their descendants. "She chose to link her life to Richard Nixon and this is the way it turned out." It is a very sad book.

L.M. BOYD: ...Pass It On

QUESTION ARISES as to whether a carnivorous plant will eat hamburger. No, it won't. Its live meat has to struggle a little to trigger the plant mechanism that releases the digestive juices. Hamburger doesn't struggle. Or if it does, it certainly shouldn't be eaten, not even by a carnivorous plant, most probably. In Cocoa, Fla., is a Girl Scout troop with a membership made up exclusively of pregnant unmarried girls. Most nutritious of all the fast foods is said by researchers to be pizza. It's not illegal for a wife in Kentucky to pour castor oil into her husband's liquor. So ruled a court there. An ordinance in Portland, Maine, makes it illegal there to tickle a girl under the chin with a feather duster.

Governors Endorse Summit Agreement

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — The Camp David summit agreement was praised by members of the Southern Governors' Conference Monday not only for reducing the potential for conflict in the Mideast but for leading toward an improved American economy.

Governors unanimously approved a resolution written by North Carolina Gov. James B. Hunt that said, "We urge that no efforts be spared by Israel and Egypt in continued negotiations to reach full accord...and we pledge our strongest support to President Carter in pursuit of these ends."

Hunt told the conference the summit agreements go far toward ending what was described to the governors as a "crisis of confidence" in the United States, plus leading to a settled economy.

Economist Alan Greenspan, chairman of former President Gerald Ford's Council of Economic Advisers, had earlier praised the summit's apparent success. He said it was the most important thing President Carter has done to fight inflation.

tion, because, "If it succeeds in producing significant movement toward Middle East peace, it will remove a major threat to the United States — disruption of oil movement."

Greenspan said the United States' stability and ability to fight inflation are endangered by continued turmoil in the Mideast.

Eight of the 19 chief executives in the Southern region attended the first of three days of discussions on the economy, inflation and energy.

Greenspan and other panelists — bankers and businessmen — sounded several common themes:

- Spending programs of the federal government must be cut back or inflation will continue.
- Businessmen must be encouraged to spend more for new plants and programs.
- The confidence of the rest of the world in the American economy must be restored.

Proposition 13, the California vote in June that severely slashed property taxes, was called a forerunner of tax revolts in most other states. Walter Hooley, executive vice president of the Bank of America in San Francisco, said the vote reflected "a grassroots feeling that inflation is caused by government...and is measured in taxes."

Republican Tax Plan Rejected By Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Roth-Kemp tax-cut plan, which Republicans want to sell as a major issue for the November elections, was rejected Monday by the Senate Finance Committee as a prescription for future inflation.

By a 10-8 vote the panel defeated the effort to lock Congress into individual tax cuts averaging about 33 percent over three years.

"It's almost irresistibly attractive," said Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Texas, vice chairman of the Joint Economic Committee. "But it would obviously overwhelm our supply capacity and lead to roaring inflation, increase consumer prices and run up interest rates."

Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., who with Rep. Jack F. Kemp, R-N.Y., wrote the bill, called it overdue tax relief for working Americans.

"Middle America finds itself going down the economic scale, paying higher taxes on the same real income," Roth said. He said the bill "would be a long-term signal to the private sector that we are moving in a new direction...to lighten the tax burden."

Roth and his backers contended the tax cut would be such an effective stimulant for the economy that it would produce more new tax revenue than it would cost. Fifty Republicans are planning to whittle-stop across the country starting Wednesday in an effort to convince Americans that Democrats who oppose Roth-Kemp are denying them tax relief. The bill has the unanimous endorsement of the Republican National Committee.

The vote means the Finance Committee is likely to approve later this week a package of individual tax cuts that is nearly $4 billion larger than the House passed last month. The Senate version is expected to target more relief on those making less than $50,000 a year than does the House bill.

About $10.3 billion of the $16.3 billion House-approved cut would go for across-the-board reductions for individuals.

Like the House bill, the version being written by the Senate committee would cut individual taxes permanently but only once, in 1979. However, there is general agreement that, barring a major improvement in the economy, Congress is likely to cut taxes again in 1979 and 1980.

By contrast, the Roth-Kemp measure would make one cut in 1979, another in 1980 and a third in 1981.

If Congress sticks to the one-year approach, Roth said, "the average American is going to see himself ripped off again" because that approach would not even offset the tax increases expected to result from inflation in 1978 and 1979.

A family of four whose income is worth $20,000 at today's levels has seen its effective federal income-tax rate rise from 12.4 percent in 1968 to 16.2 percent today, Roth said. And by 1983, if current trends continue and the family continues to receive pay increases to match inflation, the tax bite will climb to 20.2 percent, he added.

When fully effective in three years, the Roth-Kemp plan would mean a $501 tax cut for a typical single person earning $10,000 a year who has deductions of 23 percent of income. A family of four under the same conditions would get a $228 cut; the four-member family earning $25,000 would get a cut of $1,103.

Assuming no further cuts are made in 1979 and 1980, the House-passed bill would mean a $15 cut for the $10,000 single person, a $62 reduction for the four-member family at $10,000 and $232 for the family of four at $25,000.

Magnetic Fusion Progress Slow

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel was told Monday that grinding work rather than dazzling breakthroughs is the outlook for developing magnetic fusion, a promising process for developing a vast supply of cheap electricity.

Edwin Kintner, director of the federal Office of Fusion Energy, told the Science and Technology Committee: "We have returned the kickoff to a good field position. We're at least at midfield."

He referred to a demonstration in early August at Princeton University hailed as a significant scientific milestone in the program.

At Princeton, scientists managed to produce temperatures of 60 million degrees centigrade, a key step in eventually controlling magnetic fusion — a continual blending of plentiful forms of hydrogen to produce heat to make steam, which would propel electric power generators.

Fusion offers the chance to meet power needs cheaply, and without much of the potential danger of nuclear fission — the process of splitting nuclear materials to produce heat which is used in today's reactors.

Fission reactors produce radioactive waste which poses a danger to man for thousands of years. The radioactive residues in a fusion reactor would be safe to touch in 50 years, the committee was told. Furthermore, the main byproduct of a fusion reaction would be helium, which also has uses.

When a committee member used the word "breakthrough" to describe the Princeton demonstration, Dr. John Deutch, director of the Office of Energy Research in the Department of Energy, disagreed.

Watershed Predicted In China Agriculture

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chinese agricultural policy appears to be at a watershed and the United States may play a role in policy changes as they come about.

The Chinese government is committed to upgrading living standards, and population growth is creating a greater demand for food.

The Chinese have invited Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to visit China this year. The dates have not been set because so many other Americans are visiting China that schedules must be coordinated.

When Bergland was invited, he expressed an interest in increasing trade. The Chinese expressed an interest in American agricultural technology and structure.

As for trade, so far the United States has been an alternative source to the regular Chinese suppliers of Canada, Australia, Argentina and third-world nations.

After an absence from the Chinese market, the United States has again begun selling farm products to China and almost $500 million worth are being shipped this year.

Beverly Horsley, an editor of Foreign Agriculture magazine, notes that last year China was one of the world's major farm product importers, buying 6.9 million metric tons of wheat, 362,000 tons of soybeans, 157,000 tons of soybean oil, 1.6 million tons of sugar and an estimated 1.5 million bales of cotton.

The United States had a relatively small $66 million share of that total, including 62,000 tons of soybean oil, 55,000 tons of soybeans, 8,000 tons of tallow and 57,000 bales of cotton.

The picture has changed for this year. So far the Chinese have bought from the United States 2.5 million tons of wheat, more than 350,000 bales of cotton, 42,000 tons of soybean oil, 14,000 tons of tallow and several thousand head of breeder pigs.

From the United States, Canada and Argentina, China has bought 6.5 million tons of a total 8 million tons of wheat purchases expected for 1978-79.

China also is expected to import several hundred thousand tons of coarse grain, mainly corn from Argentina, during the 1978-79 marketing year.

Foodgrain production in China has leveled off during the past three years at 270 million tons after rising in most years of the previous decade, except 1968 and 1972.

The Agriculture Department predicts larger Chinese crops this year.

A current 10-year plan calls for foodgrain production of 400 million tons by 1985, or 15 million tons a year, which is highly optimistic and would require major changes in fertilization and different plant varieties.

Population growth, at 1.7 percent a year, results in 17 million more people to feed each year and a need for 4 million tons more foodgrains a year.

Wages and living standards are rising gradually.

Even if crops increase in size this year, demand is likely to remain high for some products, especially cotton. Cotton products are important foreign exchange earners for China. Koy Neeley, former Agriculture Department representative to the U.S. Liaison Office in Peking, said there is no indication of increased cotton planting.

China has become one of the largest suppliers of U.S. cotton textiles and is Japan's No. 1 source.

Neeley said the new leadership is emphasizing mechanization of hog and poultry production and there is interest in grain feeding and use of chemical fertilizer, although he has seen little sign of that at farming communes.

He said that "it's hard to envision at the moment that the Chinese would adopt feeding programs similar to those in the United States."

"But obviously if they increase livestock production by using more grain as feed, they will have to import additional grain because domestic production now is fed mostly to humans and draft animals."

An American consultant is now in China helping develop mechanized poultry operations, Neeley said.

He said that the Chinese interest in mechanization appears to be an attempt to free some agricultural laborers for work in light industries. He reported that at some communes women dominated the agricultural work force and men apparently had shifted to light industry work.

Chinese harvest and cultivation is still largely done by hand.

They already use the land efficiently with double-cropping. In addition to chemical fertilizer use and improved plant varieties and mechanization, the Chinese could improve their output by opening up new land to production, setting aside some areas for specialized crops and improving the performance of communes.

The Chinese agricultural team which invited Bergland to China visited 13 U.S. states recently and toured operations representative of the advanced technology of American agriculture.

Fiber Market Drop Seen For Cotton

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cotton has long been the major fiber used throughout the world, but its share of world consumption last year fell below 50 percent for the first time in history.

The Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service says cotton had a market share of 49.3 percent in 1977. Competition was from man-made fibers.

An FAS report noted, "With the non-cellulosic fiber industry operating at less than 75 percent capacity worldwide, cotton is expected to continue receiving strong competition from man-made fibers."

"Organic farming may be all right for the backyard farmer who can readily see what problems he has in one plot. And from an environmental standpoint, the various chemicals have been tested time and time again. It's been shown most herbicides generally dissipate in a couple months and pose no real hazard to the environment."

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

BOLLWORM INFESTATIONS REQUIRING treatment still are being reported from several South Plains counties but are said to have diminished sharply from levels of the previous week.

"Bollworm moths are still being caught in high numbers in our light traps," says Dr. Jim Leser, area extension entomologist at Lubbock. "However, cool nights and clear days have suppressed egg-laying activity for the most part."

High egg deposits have occurred in some drought-stressed fields, Leser says. These eggs haven't amounted to much of a worm infestation, he says, due to a combination of factors, including weather, beneficial insects, and poor food supply.

"FIELDS WITH A GOOD SUPPLY of young bolls, blooms and squares probably will not completely lose a harvestable boll to worm damage," Leser says. He advises growers to "let the worms have this young fruit," adding that "very little damage will be sustained in bolls that are at least 21 days old."

"The economics of bollworm control is a real cloudy issue at this time of year," Leser says. "The relationship of the many factors which influence the development of infestations and resulting damage is uncertain."

Most bolls worth protecting at this point probably won't be totally lost to bollworm damage if attacked, the entomologist says. Damage probably would be limited to one or two locks or about one-fourth of a boll, he says.

"THIS MEANS THAT AT LEAST 32 bolls would have to receive damage per 13 feet of row (one-thousandth of an acre) to equal approximately a $10 loss.

This plus the fact that bollworm developmental time is being extended by poor diet and lower nighttime temperatures, Leser says, would indicate an infestation of 30 or more worms (one-half inch or smaller) per 100 plants may be required to justify treatment.

High daytime temperatures have bolstered the hopes of many producers for late fruit to "make."

"This is fine but a farmer should not compound his risk by applying a questionable bollworm treatment to save this marginal yield potential," Leser says. "The benefit derived from a control decision this late in the game must be carefully weighed against the odds that a bollworm infestation probably wouldn't produce economic damage."

BOLL WEEVIL NUMBERS AS INDICATED by trap catches have continued to increase along and below the Caprock but are still much lighter than in previous years.

Traps on individual fields are averaging zero to four weevils per week, just slightly higher than peak trap catches of emerging weevils in early June.

While USDA traps have caught weevils on top of the Caprock, no adults have been found in surrounding fields checked.

The number of fields involved hasn't increased significantly in past weeks. Infested fields checked below the Caprock in the control zone of the High Plains Boll Weevil Control Zone averaged 250-4,500 weevils per acre.

Only 40 percent of the fields checked had weevil infestations, compared with 100 percent a year ago.

Beef Futures Rally, During Late Trades

By REUTERS

CHICAGO — Cattle futures rallied from an early loss of 105 in October and finished unchanged to up 150 points, Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

August posted the limit level advance after most contracts were down the limit Friday. Sales totalled 29,640 cars.

Initial selling continued from Friday's reaction to record placements on feed during August. Late support spilled over from the pork pits and came despite easiness in beef. But higher cash cattle on increased arrivals sparked aggressive short covering.

Wholesale beef was unchanged to off 2 cents at 82 to 84 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were up $1.50 to off $1 with the best top $56 per hundredweight. Omaha's top was $55.75.

Slaughter was 140,000 head for the day. The major markets expect 14,500 head today.

Feeder cattle futures rebounded from an early loss of 75 to close 100 to 150 higher. September and January posted the limit gains. Volume was 3,831 contracts.

January ran up to a new season's high on the recovery and August equalled the season's high. Aggressive short covering and other buying was triggered by strength in the live cattle futures which in turn drew support from the pork pits.

Outlet selling was a carryover of Friday's limit losses on the bearishly constructed cattle-on-feed report.

Cash feeder cattle were off $5 to up $1 with the best top $86 per hundredweight at Fort Worth. There were 117 deliveries. About 2,000 head are expected at the major terminals today.

Hog futures climbed 10 to 117 led by December after October gained 147 early. The market bounced back from initial loss of 42. Sales were 7,502 cars.

Pigs were lifted to the highest since May on aggressive short covering and other buying which was stimulated by escalating cash hams, along with reduced hog runs and mostly higher prices.

The market gave ground initially in a carryover of Friday's selling which in turn was linked to easiness in cattle futures.

Wholesale hams were up 1 cent at 86 to 92 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to up 25 cents with the best top $50.25 per hundredweight.

Kill was 309,000 head. Receipts at the major markets are expected to be 30,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed the daily limit of 200 higher with buyers over across the board. Volume totalled 3,217 contracts. The market rebounded after an early loss of 25 in August.

The mostly local buying touched off stops which fed the upturn. Traders noted light hog runs and higher prices coupled with fresh strength in cash bellies. Also positive was continued heavy usage of storage products.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up 1 cent at 52 to 60 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Experts Discuss Organic Farm Difficulties

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Experts on agricultural herbicides and pesticides generally agree that without such chemicals the United States would not be able to produce an abundant harvest each year.

But they say organic farmers usually are good farmers who must depend on their sweat and know-how to survive.

Dr. Alex Martin, extension weed specialist for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said organic farmers use "basic, sound farming principles. It's how they handle the ground, how they till it. Chemicals may be beside the point."

Lloyd Bell, who directs the plant industry division of the Nebraska Agriculture Department, said "when you start talking about thousands of acres, and the amount of time it would take to rotate and plow under crops" farmers of large spreads would have a harder time growing organically.

"With 2,000 acres of soybeans, for instance, you'll have to minimize the weed problem later in the crop year," Bell said. "The farmer can't use up valuable time continually working his soybeans. To increase his yield, he may use chemicals to contain weed problems."

However, he added, "Chemicals aren't going to increase yields if a farmer doesn't follow the instructions on the label."

Bell said the government promotes certain organic farming methods, such as controlling pests with other insects. Such methods take time — as much as 7 to 10 years in some experiments — "and farmers don't have the time to wait," he said.

"My feeling is without chemical pesticides, herbicides and the whole bit, we would never be able to produce the world's supply of food we now do," said Don Carpino, technical service representative for the FMC Corp., which markets agricultural pesticides.

"Organic farming may be all right for the backyard farmer who can readily see what problems he has in one plot. And from an environmental standpoint, the various chemicals have been tested time and time again. It's been shown most herbicides generally dissipate in a couple months and pose no real hazard to the environment."

Strike Leaves American Tourists Stranded

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Thousands of travelers, American tourists among them, were stranded in airports across Mexico Sunday after Mexican air traffic controllers called a partial strike.

Major airports were reported jammed with stranded Mexican travelers wanting to return to the capital after the three-day Mexican independence from Spain holiday.

Both of Mexico's major airlines, Mexicana and Aeromexico, were forced to cancel all of their national and international flights after their pilots, members of the Union of Aviation Pilots, refused to fly because of safety conditions.

A union spokesman charged substitutes for the striking air traffic controllers did not have the needed experience and could endanger the lives of flying passengers.

The strike was called at 7 a.m. Sunday by the 950-member Radio Aeronautics Mexicana, S.A., a union that includes air traffic controllers and technicians.

A spokesman at Mexico City's International Airport said about 150 flights of Mexico's airlines were canceled, leaving approximately 20,000 people stranded throughout Mexico and other countries, mainly the United States.

In Washington it was announced that the Federal Aviation Administration barred all U.S. airline and air taxi flights into Mexican air space from 1 to 8:30 a.m. EDT Monday.

Earlier, the U.S. Airline Pilots Association had urged the FAA to impose the ban because of safety problems resulting from the strike.

Colson's Religious Movie To Debut

WASHINGTON (AP) — A movie based on Charles W. Colson's Watergate misdeeds and his religious conversion will be shown Sunday to an audience that may include a few of the Watergate principals.

A publicity man said that all 1,100 seats at the Kennedy Center have been sold for $100 apiece for the world premiere and that invitations had gone to key Watergate figures.

The proceeds of the Washington showing and subsequent previews in 34 other cities will go to the Prison Fellowship that Colson founded when he was released after seven months' incarceration.

The movie, "Born Again," is the second drama written by a Watergate figure that has sprung from the scandal. The first was television's "Washington Behind Closed Doors," based on the fictionalized account of John D. Ehrlichman, domestic adviser during Richard M. Nixon's presidency.

"All the President's Men," based on the book by reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, also became a movie. Colson, known as the president's hatchet man when he was special counsel to Nixon, was indicted in the two major Watergate cases: the White House-sponsored burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and the Watergate coverup.

The movie fails to mention those charges, which were dropped after Colson pleaded guilty to attempting to smear Ellsberg before his trial.

The film only alludes to Colson's misdeeds as pieced together from court testimony and the White House tapes. But it correctly quotes U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell as saying, at Colson's sentencing, that "morality is a higher force than expediency."

Colson served his time at the minimum security prison at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama and the picture shows him increasingly successful at converting fellow inmates to Christ.

Former Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, whose religious study group Colson joined, plays himself in the film. Dean Jones, himself a born-again Christian, portrays Colson.

'Battlestar' Tops Nation's Viewing

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's three-hour premiere of "Battlestar Galactica" captured larger audiences in three big cities than the tough competition on CBS and NBC, overnight figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

The space adventure show claimed between 40 percent and 44 percent of the audience in New York City.

Peace Accord Unfolds

er probably would be running their own affairs within three months, and that members of the Palestine Liberation Organization can participate in shaping the disputed area's future.

Framework Appears Fragile
But even before Carter addressed the joint session of Congress, there was mounting evidence how fragile the "framework for peace" really was. Begin attacked the PLO in a television interview. "They are killers," he told ABC News. "We don't want to talk to them. We don't want to deal with them."

Apparently in disagreement with concessions that Sadat made at Camp David, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed I. Kamel resigned, just as his predecessor, Ismail Fahmy, had done last year to protest the Egyptian president's historic peace overture to Israel. Sadat said he met with Kamel on Monday morning and accepted his resignation as of Friday. "We are a democracy," Sadat said in an ABC News interview. "He will not be put in prison or a concentration camp because he differed in opinion with me. Everyone is entitled to his own opinion."

The Camp David agreement showed further signs of strain when Begin told Israeli reporters that Israel did not consider itself bound to forego establishing further settlements on the West Bank.

Five-Year Ban
A senior American official, briefing reporters on terms of the agreement, said Israel was prohibited from setting up new settlements for at least five years. Beyond that period, the agreement is silent.

The official, who asked not to be named, said that after all the terms of the agreement are examined, other Arab countries will recognize that Sadat achieved "many of the long-desired objectives of the Arab world."

To bolster support for the accord, Carter telephoned Jordan's King Hussein "in the hope and expectation"—as the U.S. official put it—that Hussein would lend his crucial active support to the peace process.

The president said he also called King Khalid of Saudi Arabia to explain essential elements of the agreement, and was sending letters to heads of state of virtually every nation asking their support for the accord.

At a briefing for 75 members of Congress in the East Room of the White House, the president said the 13-day summit meeting which ended with signing of the peace framework Sunday night was "one of the most historic events I have experienced since I have been in political office."

Carter said the talks had produced "far more substance than anyone dreamed," and he added:

Race Pits Brooke, Strong Opposition

By The Associated Press
Sen. Edward Brooke, a liberal Republican whose admitted false statements about his personal finances led to an investigation by the Senate ethics committee, faces strong opposition from a conservative candidate Tuesday in the Massachusetts primary election.

Brooke, 58, is seeking a third term and is being challenged by Avi Nelson, 36, a former talk-show host who has received the backing of national conservative organizations.

In other elections Tuesday, candidates will be nominated for seven congressional seats in the Washington state primary, and Oklahomans will choose Democratic candidates for governor and one U.S. Senate seat in a runoff election.

Both Brooke and Nelson have avoided making a campaign issue of Brooke's disclosure that he made false statements about his finances in documents filed in 1977 as part of his divorce proceedings. The ethics committee's investigation remains at the staff level and has not resulted in hearings.

Brooke, the nation's only black senator, has attempted to swing black independent voters to the GOP ticket.

"It's not just an outline of general principles. It gets to the heart of every single issue that has divided Israel and Egypt."

According to Rep. Helen Meyner, D-N.J., Carter told the legislators there was considerable antagonism between Sadat and Begin and there were times when the talks were near collapse.

Israeli Attitude Changes
But toward the end of the summit, Carter was quoted as saying, there was "an enormous change" in the Israeli attitude which resulted in the Israelis recognizing for the first time on paper the "legitimate rights" of the Palestinians.

Carter's triumph drew plaudits from Democrats and Republicans and determination he has shown," said House GOP Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona. "It's been absolutely tremendous... a tremendous achievement," said Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

For his part, Begin announced he had won a U.S. promise to build Israel two new air bases in the Negev Desert to replace those in the Sinai being returned to Egyptian control.

Begin also said Israel planned to maintain a military presence on the West Bank, even after the five-year transition toward Palestinian autonomy in the region. U.S. officials confirmed that the agreement would allow 6,000 Israeli soldiers to remain on the West Bank—but away from population centers. Asked in an NBC News interview whether Israeli troops might remain on the West Bank for five, 10 or 15 years, Begin replied: "Yes, why not? Yes, possibly."

He said Israel wants a peace settlement with Jordan, Syria and Lebanon. "The idea is not to have one separate peace treaty between Israel and Egypt but to reach a comprehensive peace settlement," he said.

Major Provisions
The senior U.S. official listed five major provisions of the agreements to illustrate American contentions that Sadat, too, had achieved some of the Arab world's goals in its 30-year conflict with Israel.

These were:
—An end to Israeli military occupation of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. Israel will withdraw all military forces from the Sinai. 2—Palestinian Arabs living on the West Bank and in Gaza will have "self-governing authority with full autonomy" and civil self-rule, "probably in three months or so."

—Israel formally recognizes the "legitimate rights" of the Palestinians.
—The Palestinians will be allowed to participate in negotiations to determine the final status of the West Bank and Gaza, giving them "a real voice."

—Palestinian inhabitants of the territories will have the right to reject or ratify the ultimate agreement.

where businessmen vowed to continue a nationwide strike they called Aug. 25 to pressure Somoza to resign.

Correspondents in southern Nicaragua reported occasional firing near the outpost of Penas Blancas on the Costa Rican border. Guerrillas fought a withdrawal into Costa Rica. The guerrillas, led by the Sandinista National Provisional government and invite international recognition.

OAS Conducting Probe
An investigative team from the Organization of American States was in Costa Rica to examine Costa Rican claims that Nicaraguan forces crossed the border last week and fired on Costa Rican civilians.

Somoza has complained that Costa Rica gave shelter to what he says are Communists trying to overthrow him.

Nicaragua also said a Venezuelan fighter plane on temporary assignment in Costa Rica supported rebels in their Sunday foray against Penas Blancas. In Caracas, Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez said Monday the charge is "absolutely false."

In Washington, the OAS permanent council voted Monday to convene a affect the peace and which create a situation of an urgent nature and of common interest for the nations of the hemisphere."

Venezuela sent two light bombers, two fighter-bombers and a transport plane to Costa Rica last week and Panama sent four helicopter gunships. Costa Rica has no army but does have a 5,000-member civil guard force.

There are no reliable reports on casualties in the fighting which erupted throughout the country Sept. 9. But those who visited the recaptured cities say the toll was high. Residents of the towns claimed the national guard was executing people suspected of being snipers. Somoza declared martial law throughout the country last week.

Estimates vary as to the strength of the Sandinistas. Some put the figure near 400, but Somoza says there are between 1,000 and 2,000. Thousands of Nicaraguans back the guerrillas and have joined them or support them with food, information, shelter or money.

The Somoza family has ruled this Central American country of 2.3 million for more than 40 years.

an undercover narcotics agent when forced to reveal his witnesses two weeks ago.

Rodgers — the name is considered to be an alias — is a mystery man who appeared in the coliseum surrounded by law enforcement officers Monday.

He has been described by various sources as being from the New Mexico state police and the federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA). "The less we say about him, the better," said one officer Monday outside the makeshift courtroom.

Defense attorneys, of course, will bring out his identity when he testifies.

Texas and New Mexico state officers, the Bailey County Sheriff's Office and possibly the DEA reportedly were involved in the drug investigation and arrests.

The defendants are accused of involvement in a "combination" or organization to "manufacture, deliver dispense and distribute methamphetamines," or "speed."

They allegedly set up a laboratory to manufacture the drug at the farmhouse.

The charge under a new Texas law is a first degree felony carrying a penalty of five to 99 years or life in prison, Boone said.

Mixed Reactions Greet Mideast Peace Agreement

mined by the Camp David treason" and "Sadat and his allies cannot force their will on our great people and nation."

It said Arab countries should coordinate "all military, economic and political capabilities to safeguard the Arab liberation movement."

Some Exercise Silence
But there was silence in two important corners of the Middle East — Jordan, key to an eventual peace on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, and Saudi Arabia, influential bankroller of Egypt, Syria and other poorer Arab states.

The Camp David documents envision, after further negotiations over the Sinai Peninsula, the signing of an Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty within three months. But the "framework" for an overall Mideast peace leaves unresolved such key issues as the future of the Palestinian-populated West Bank.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli office workers broke out wine in impromptu celebrations of the promise of peace held out by the agreements, and groups gathered on street corners listening to transistor radios for news.

About 20,000 Israelis danced and sang songs in a peace rally in front of Tel Aviv's city hall. The national teachers' union, on strike for a week in a labor dispute, decided to return to classrooms today "in order to be with their students in these historic days."

People Confused
But people on the street seemed confused about what exactly may happen as a result of the two-week summit meeting of Egypt's President Sadat, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and President Carter.

"I hope this will mean something, but I'm not so sure," said Ruth Jacobson, 27. "I guess it's too early, but I have a lot of doubts."

Said travel agent Ron Schori, 27: "Maybe I'm just not prepared for such a thing, but I am full of doubts ... I hope that it's a start, if nothing more."

Begin, the "hawk" of old, suddenly had the support of the opposition Labor Party and Israel's "Peace Now" movement. But one of his own Cabinet members, Commerce Minister Yigal Hurvitz, signaled trouble ahead when Begin seeks the Parliament's agreement to pull Israeli settlements out of the Sinai Peninsula, as Egypt demands.

"Hard To Accept"
"If this is truly one of the conditions entailed in the settlement, I will find it hard to accept," he said. One Parliament member from Begin's own ruling Likud bloc called for a vote of no-confidence against him.

There was also potential political trouble at home for Sadat because of the growing gap between Egypt and the rest of the Arab world. American officials in Washington confirmed that Egypt's foreign minister, Mohammed I. Kamel, has resigned, apparently in protest of the Camp David developments.

Such prominent critics of the Sadat peace initiative as journalist Mohammed Heikal and Kamel's predecessor Ismail Fahmy, who had resigned for similar reasons, said they would have to study the documents before commenting.

But the man-in-the-street in Cairo seemed less unsure that Sadat was pursuing the right path.

"So what if it sounds like a separate agreement?" asked former banker Sherif Atallah. "The Sinai is ours and we shall have it again, and when we do we can start looking after ourselves."

"The Syrians and the PLO can go knock their heads against the wall," said merchant Amir Soliman. "If they had been smart they would have played the game with us and they'd have gotten something."

The Soviet news agency Tass, in a harsh attack on Sadat, said the Egyptian leader had "betrayed" his fellow Arabs and had accepted the dictates of Israel and Washington. One proof, Tass said, is in provisions stipulating that Israel need not pull out of the Sinai until three years after a peace is signed.

In Europe, the British and West German governments were among the first to issue statements, both underlining Carter's warning that there are difficult problems ahead. Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, a frequent Mideast mediator, noted that the central issue of the Palestinians' future remains unresolved.

Western European newspapers generally were more enthusiastic, many hailing it as a major personal achievement for Carter.

British Prime Minister James Callaghan sent Carter a letter of congratulations, describing the summit outcome as "encouraging." But he cautioned "it will of course be of vital importance to win the backing of moderate Arab governments for the Camp David principles and to secure Jordan's participation for future negotiations."

The anti-Sadat invective among the Arabs is expected to reach a crescendo Wednesday, when leaders of the PLO, Syria and the other "Steadfastness Front" nations — Algeria, Libya and South Yemen — gather for a mini-summit in Damascus to study future strategy.

Accords Called Illegal
Libya's JANA news agency said the Camp David accords were illegal, "imposed on Egypt under the threat of armed force and occupation." It said "the Egyptian army and the Egyptian people have the right and ability to nullify such agreement signed in their absence." Mass rallies were held in Tripoli to protest the Camp David agreements.

The threat of a stepped-up guerrilla war was brought home to Israelis Friday when military sources reported that three Palestinian guerrillas who infiltrated across the border from Lebanon had surrendered to Israeli authorities before embarking on an assigned mission of murder and hostage-taking in the town of Kiryat Shmona.

The report was also a chilling reminder to Israelis of the bloodshed of the past — 18 persons were killed in Kiryat Shmona on April 11, 1974, in one of Israel's deadliest terror raids.

identification, slapping and striking themselves in their ritual of grief. The workers spirited the bodies off for a hurried burial.

Gravediggers bit into the coarse, hard earth, scraping out shallow graves. Unable to keep up with the steady procession of bodies brought by truck and car, the dead lay in the sun as a Moslem cleric prayed over them.

The Iranian army sent 700 soldiers, four medical teams and numerous rescue workers to help house about 1,000 survivors in tents along Tabas' dirt airport runway.

Big C-130 Hercules transport planes from the Iranian Air Force buzzed overhead, continuing their airlift of blankets, food, water, tents and medical supplies.

"Where is the army?" one old man said, wandering through the ruins in the city square. "Why doesn't anyone help me?" The man, who was away from home at the time of quake, said that out of the 10 members of his family only one had been found — dead — and the others still lay beneath the rubble.

Empress Tours Area
Empress Farah, the wife of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, toured the area in an Army jeep, stopping occasionally to console panic-struck residents. The empress flew in from the capital on a military aircraft and stayed about two hours before returning home.

Meanwhile, new tremors were felt Monday. They lasted only a few moments, but residents feared a second quake.

Reports from the village of Boshruyeh, about 25 miles northeast of Tabas, said only 26 persons were injured and no one had been killed. However, the village of Duhak, 25 miles to the southeast, was destroyed and 2,000 were feared dead or injured.

An earthquake registering 6.5 on the Richter scale rocked the same area on Aug. 31, 1968. Tabas suffered some damage, and 12,000 people in the area were killed.

Sinking U.S. Dollar May Lower Deficit
WASHINGTON (AP) — While the slumping U.S. dollar is causing plenty of headaches now, the long-run effect could be beneficial, the International Monetary Fund says.

The IMF said the steep plunge in the dollar's value and the gains made by other currencies will help to narrow the huge U.S. trade deficit while erasing trade surpluses of countries like Japan and Germany.

Performers' Work Results In Emmy Awards

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Holocaust," NBC's saga of two German families caught in the Nazi terror, and "All in the Family," a comedy series about America's favorite bigot, won top honors at the 30th Emmy awards Sunday night.

The 9½-hour "Holocaust" miniseries was selected as outstanding limited series and won Emmys for stars Michael Moriarty, the sadistic Nazi major; Meryl Streep, the Christian daughter-in-law of the doomed Weiss family, and Blanche Baker, the Weiss daughter Anna.

The total awards for "Holocaust" came to eight, including two creative arts awards presented at a separate ceremony last week.

The awards were interrupted by a joint announcement at the White House by President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin at the conclusion of the 12-day Camp David Mideast summit.

The biggest applause came near the end of the long, four-hour program — which included the interruption — with the award for lead actor in a special to Fred Astaire. The hooper received a standing ovation from the crowd and mumbled, "My gosh, I never dreamed of this."

Astaire, who has won three Emmys as musical star, was named for his performance as the aging husband of Helen Hayes in "A Family Upside Down."

"I'm absolutely delighted with this," said Astaire. "I'm going to get off while I'm still ahead."

Joanne Woodward, the jogging housewife of "See How She Runs," was named outstanding lead actress in a special. The Oscar winner for "The Three Faces of Eve" remarked, "This is such a nice way to come back to television; I started out here 25 years ago."

For the fifth time, the saga of "All in the Family," the eight-year-old CBS comedy series about Archie Bunker and family, was named outstanding comedy series by the academy. Stars Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton were hailed outstanding lead performers in a comedy series for a third time.

The awards were interrupted by a joint announcement at the White House by President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin at the conclusion of the 12-day Camp David Mideast summit.

For the fifth time, the saga of "All in the Family," the eight-year-old CBS comedy series about Archie Bunker and family, was named outstanding comedy series by the academy. Stars Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton were hailed outstanding lead performers in a comedy series for a third time.

Rob Reiner, the liberal-minded "meat-head" of the show, won his second Emmy for supporting actor. Awards also went to director Paul Bogart and writers Bob Weiskopf, Bob Schiller, Barry Harman and Harve Prosten.

The only winner to break the "All in the Family" comedy sweep was Juliet Kavner, Brenda Morganstern of "Rhoda," who was selected best supporting actress in a comedy series.

The multiple awards to "All in the Family" evoked an outpouring of thanks to everyone connected with that show, and Miss Stapleton cited the gift of "artistic freedom from the day one" which the show's creators were accorded.

Reiner, who will not be returning as a regular in the oncoming ninth season, pointed out that the cast is leaving Saturday for Washington, where Archie and Edith Bunker's favorite chairs will be presented to the Smithsonian Institution. The "All in the Family" crew will also be greeted by President Carter in the Oval Office of the White House, Reiner said.

The awards were a triumph for Norman Lear, who helped change the face of TV comedy with "All in the Family."

Pregnant Woman Dies In Wreck

UKIAH, Calif. (AP) — A car carrying a pregnant woman to the hospital to give birth crashed head-on with a speeding pickup truck traveling on the wrong side of the road, killing the woman, her husband and the truck driver, authorities said. The baby also died.

Albertina Pena of Potter Valley died at Memorial Hospital in Santa Rosa, a few hours after her baby was delivered stillborn, the coroner's office said. Mrs. Pena's husband, Fausto, and the truck driver, Daniel Lee Porter, 20, also of Potter Valley, were pronounced dead at the scene of the crash Sunday, according to the Mendocino County sheriff's office.

Lear opened the show with a blast at NBC and ABC for mounting its heaviest programming against CBS' Emmy telecast.

Such competition "cannot be in the best interests of the industry, and it certainly isn't in the public's interest," Lear said.

To oppose the CBS program (the networks rotate in presenting the Emmys), NBC counter-programmed with "Dumbbells" and "King Kong" and ABC debuted its space epic "Battlestar Galactica." The displaced CBS pushed the Emmy start a half-hour earlier, but the actual broadcast time was dependent on the conclusion of an earlier pro football telecast.

"The Rockford Files," with James Garner as an ex-con turned private eye, was named outstanding drama series. Emmys for outstanding leads in a drama series were awarded to Sada Thompson of "Family" and Edward Asner of "Lou Grant." It was Asner's sixth Emmy.

"Lou Grant" also won an Emmy for Nancy Marchand, chosen outstanding supporting actress in a drama series for her portrayal of a newspaper publisher.

Robert Vaughn won the supporting actor Emmy for a drama series as an H.R. Haldeman-like character in "Washington: Behind Closed Doors."

"Holocaust" scored awards in a drama series category for writer Gerald Green and director Marvin J. Chomsky.

Broadway producer Alexander Cohen, who has been praised for his telecasts of the Tonies, was assigned as executive producer of the Emmys. He and director Clark Jones strove to keep the show moving, despite the 40-odd awards to present (compared to 25 Oscars). "The show will be three hours long," said Jones last week, "but it will be open-ended, just in case."

Other awards included: Direction in a comedy-variety or music series: Dave Powers of the "Carol Burnett Show," outstanding comedy-variety or music series: "The Muppet Show," classical program in the performing arts: American Ballet Theatre's "Giselle," single performance by supporting actor in series: Ricardo Montalban, "How The West Was Won," leads in single performance in a series: Rita Moreno, "The Rockford Files," and Bernard Hughes, "Lou Grant."

Nominations for the 39th Emmys covered the period from March 14, 1977, to June 30, 1978. This was the second year of awards under the auspices of the Hollywood-based Academy, which split from the eastern National Academy after a policy dispute that almost ended the Emmy awards.

A settlement was reached to grant the prime-time awards to the Academy and the news and daytime awards to the National Academy.

Fame Permits Author To Indulge Vulgar Taste

NEW YORK (AP) — After she finds more civilized quarters than the drafty Greenwich Village closet where she's lived for eight years, Fran Lebowitz says she thinks she'll buy a Rolls Royce.

"I'm running into a lot of opposition. My more rarefied friends think it's vulgar and my more practical friends think it's extravagant. But I don't care. I have very vulgar taste in cars."

For the first time in her 27 years, Fran Lebowitz has enough money to be as vulgar as she wants. Her first book — 177 pages of withering, opinionated humor entitled "Metropolitan Life" — has been on the best seller lists since May.

But behind the wise-cracking acidity of the book there is a surprise: Fran Lebowitz is a thoughtful, even mild woman who is delighted and, despite herself, befuddled by fame and fortune.

It's not her style, but Fran Lebowitz's story duplicates the American literary myth — it's hackneyed, even schmalzy, but true:

Kicked out of a New Jersey high school, eager young writer moves to New York. She starves on a poverty-level pay from odd jobs such as driving taxis and stuffing envelopes. She writes between midnight and dawn. Andy Warhol uses her columns in his "Interview" magazine.

A publisher sees them. Then the book. Reviewers compare the author to Oscar Wilde, Alexis de Toqueville and Dorothy Parker. The best seller list, TV interviews, good restaurant tables. Money.

Hackneyed or not, Fran Lebowitz thinks it's wonderful. This is remarkable because there are few things Fran Lebowitz considers wonderful. A partial list of her dislikes:

Radio alarm clocks — "If I wished to be awakened by Stevie Wonder, I would sleep with Stevie Wonder." Sports. Urban dogs. Pocket calculators. Clothes with writing on them. Mood jewelry. Houseplants. Brown rice — "overly chewy and possessed of unpleasant religious overtones."

Fran Lebowitz likes sleep, food, money, gambling and — because they "do not sit next to one in restaurants and discuss their preposterous hopes for the future in loud tones of voice" — children.

She is surprisingly small — just over five feet tall — and slight, even fragile. Thick dark hair, a long beak of a nose.

In writing, Fran Lebowitz slices directly to her point: "Large, naked, raw carrots are acceptable as food only to those who live in hutches eagerly awaiting Easter."

In person, the sharp edge is absent. At her publishing house, she collapses in a swivel chair and props her penny loafers easily on a desk. The voice is soft.

Fame is terrific. Appearing on television is fun. Having a book — especially a successful book — is exciting. And money. Money is wonderful. It buys food and big apartments and vulgar cars.

"I could live the way I've been living for the rest of my life on this money. But if I want to live like a waitress, I'll have to keep writing. Anyway, I want to prove I'm not a flash in the pan."

In the face of all this attention, Fran Lebowitz stubbornly keeps her balance. "Nothing about my career is haphazard. My life, but not my career," she says. She intends to keep it that way.

So she continues to write her column for "Interview." She also wrote one for "Mademoiselle" for a while but was canned when she missed a deadline.

She is negotiating a contract for a second book. She is considering appeals from editors to write for other magazines. And she is bracing for a "backlash" on her next book. Not from critics, she says, but from other writers and "the media."

"Sometimes I wish I was writing my third book now instead of my second. If you have three books come out and they're not financially successful and then your fourth book hits, you're okay because everyone thinks you've paid your dues."

"People think because this is my first book, you know, that I deserve to be punished or something with the second book. I'm already getting some backlash. I've been writing since I'm 20 years old, so I did it for seven years. I think that's paying enough dues."

For two months after the book was published, she couldn't write. She's writing now, but there are other troubles. Like money.

"It's not like being poor — that was a terrible time — but I had no idea, no concept of money. I had no idea about taxes. Today I got my first royalty check and I don't know what to do with it."

There was a deluge of offers to buy the book for movies — "Can you imagine what they'd do with it?" — and Broadway. She turned them down for now. She wants to finish her second book first. Like the first, it will be humor.

While she toils over the book — always after midnight — juggles accountants, agents, taxmen, requests for interviews and book autographing sessions, Fran Lebowitz looks for an apartment.

She wants to move before winter. She wants to be warm this year. The radiator in the Greenwich Village closet, she says, "wouldn't burn you if you sat on it naked." But her search moves slowly.

"It's very disconcerting," she mutters, "for someone who's been paying $120 a month their whole life to be talking to an agent who says to them: 'What do you expect for $1,200 a month? Two bedrooms?'"

Convicted Vietnam Spy Gains Prison Release

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Ronald L. Humphrey, 52, a former U.S. Information Agency employee convicted of spying for communist Vietnam, was freed from prison Monday after serving 7½ months.

His release was approved at a perfunctory hearing before U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr., pending the outcome of appeals to the U.S. 4th Circuit in Richmond, Va., and probably to the Supreme Court, a process attorneys estimate will require two years or more.

The judge attached no conditions other than to specify that Humphrey appear in court if ordered to do so.

Humphrey has been confined to the Alexandria city jail since his arrest last Jan. 31, unable to raise bail of $150,000 originally fixed by Bryan. Ten days ago the judge reduced it to $75,000, and the money was raised quickly from church groups in a campaign coordinated by the Rev. Dr. George W. Hill, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church in Washington.

Hill told reporters there were three major contributors: $20,000 from the American Baptist Church's Board of Ministries; $15,000 from the American Friends Service Committee; $11,750 from the Prison Fellowship headed by Watergate figure Charles W. Colson. There were also scores of smaller donations, he said.

Appearing in the brief court session were Humphrey's parents, Louis and Leah, of Burlington, Wash., a small town between Seattle and Vancouver; his principal attorney, Warren E. Miller; and his legal wife, Marylou. They have been separated for years but remain friends, and she supported his defense efforts.

After the court appearance, Humphrey had a reunion with the Vietnamese woman he calls his common law wife, Kim, and her four children. In a brief appearance on the courthouse steps, they displayed no public emotion. Humphrey insisted on his innocence. "I'm not guilty of the charges," he said.

Humphrey and a Vietnamese expatriate, David Truong, 32, were convicted by a jury after a three-week trial in May on a six-count indictment accusing them of espionage, conspiracy, theft of confidential documents and failure to register as foreign agents.

Bryan sentenced each man to 15 years; the maximum possible sentence would have been life plus 35 years.

Truong was free under $250,000 bail for several months before the trial, but Bryan revoked bond for both men when they were convicted.

Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan Jr., overruled the trial judge and the U.S. Court of Appeals in early August, saying bail should be granted since there was little likelihood that either would flee. Truong was released the same day.

Bryan then granted a defense move to reduce Humphrey's bond in half, saying it seemed unfair that Truong should be free while Humphrey remained in jail.

Humphrey was convicted of taking documents from the U.S. Information Agency and giving them to Truong.

Top Two Fair Housing Officials Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's top two fair housing officials have resigned their posts following reported high-level disappointment with their efforts to expand housing opportunities for minorities.

Housing economist Chester C. McGuire Jr., the assistant secretary in charge of HUD's Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity section, announced his departure effective Sept. 30. His top lieutenant, Herman "Tex" Wilson, also quit.

HUD Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris has been unhappy with the performance of McGuire and the fair housing staff, but HUD officials said she did not directly ask for McGuire's resignation.

McGuire, one of the highest ranking black officials in the Carter administration, said he was quitting to return to his work as a housing economist in the private sector.

"I feel this is the best time for me to make this career switch since it comes at the end of the fiscal year," he said in a news release.

According to the Washington Post, McGuire's resignation followed a highly critical report of the fair housing and equal opportunity operation by an outside consultant. The Post quoted a source as saying, "If someone handed me a report like that, my resignation would have been tendered by the end of the day."

Mrs. Harris, the only black in the Carter Cabinet, said at the beginning of her term that enforcing the fair housing laws would be a key element of her tenure at HUD. In previous administrations, civil rights compliance has had low priority in HUD housing and community development programs.

The Post said that a "sloppy" review of Philadelphia's HUD programs was an element in Mrs. Harris' displeasure with the Fair Housing staff.

When Philadelphia applied for $63 million in HUD funds early this year, McGuire was asked to review the city's record in complying with HUD regulations regarding targeting funds into low and moderate income neighborhoods, and compliance with fair housing laws.

The review, never released publicly, contended that Mayor Frank Rizzo's administration was spending HUD money too heavily in white neighborhoods, but it did not adequately document the staff's claims, according to the Post.

The newspaper quoted a source as saying, "The last thing you want to do is take on Frank Rizzo and get beaten on the head because you were wrong or fuzzy on the facts."

Eventually, the Philadelphia review was taken over by HUD's general counsel, whose report led to last May's agreement by Rizzo to step up fair housing efforts and to spend more of the city's HUD allotment in black neighborhoods.

Personal Income Growth Trailing Behind Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Total personal income of Americans increased only $8.6 billion or 0.5 percent in August, the smallest gain in seven months and an amount insufficient to keep up with inflation, according to government figures released Monday.

Manufacturing payrolls declined by $400 million or 0.2 percent, the sharpest decline since October 1976, when payrolls tumbled by a similar amount. The Commerce Department said fewer jobs in production lines were the chief cause.

The small August hike in personal income compared with an increase of $24.2 billion in July, although those figures were inflated by the result of tax-cutting actions in California and an increase in Social Security benefits.

A more reasonable comparison for the August figures would be with June, when personal income increased $13.5 billion. The August increase was the smallest since January, when income increased 0.4 percent.

Personal income is the money Americans receive from all sources — wage and salaries, rents, dividends and government payments. The small August gain in income could point to a slowdown in consumer buying, although one month does not establish a trend.

A monthly increase of 0.5 percent in income is insufficient to fully offset the effects of inflation, which has been increasing at an annual rate of nearly 10 percent.

The Commerce Department said total personal income in August was at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1,728.4 billion. Wages and salaries increased $3.4 billion, compared with $11 billion in July, and commodity-producing industries' payrolls increased $0.2 billion, compared with $4.5 billion in July.

The decline of $400 million in manufacturing payrolls compared with a July gain of $3.5 billion. The department said payrolls declined in most industries, especially in transportation equipment, primary and fabricated metals, rubber and food.

No-Frills Air Service Expands

LONDON (AP) — Sir Freddie Laker, whose no-frills trans-Atlantic air service netted nearly $2 million in its first eight months, announced Monday he is buying 15 more wide-body jets.

Five are American DC-10s, 377-seaters to use on his new London-to-Los Angeles service that begins Sept. 26. The other 10 are A300 Airbuses made by a consortium of European manufacturers.

The total order, if delivered now, would cost $748 million but deliveries will be spread out over the next five years. Laker should have little trouble paying for them.

The Laker Airways press office here had no up-to-date profit figures, but Laker said in May that 117,130 passengers had flown on his first 442 flights, which were 77.14 percent full and made a profit of $1,720,500.

By the end of its first year next week, a representative said, the Skytrain total will be up to 250,000 passengers on planes that averaged 83 percent full.

Skytrain fares are $116 from London to New York and $165 from London to Los Angeles.

The 305-seat Airbuses are to supplant 89-seat BAC-111 jets that Laker is phasing out on his charter flights to Europe.

Lab Funding Efforts Praised

WASHINGTON (Special) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Monday praised the efforts of U.S. Rep. George Mahon to assure initial funding for the Plant Stress and Soil Moisture Conservation Laboratory at Texas Tech University.

Bentsen, who has worked with Mahon to obtain the funding, said that House-Senate conferees have agreed to include $800,000 for the lab in the agriculture department's appropriations act for fiscal 1979.

The $800,000 will be used to accelerate the existing research in plant stress and moisture conservation, according to Dr. Jim Mertes, chairman of Tech's Park Administration Landscape Architecture.

If Congress proceeds in its usual manner, its next step will be to appropriate actual money for the construction of the laboratory, Mertes said.

"Chairman Mahon really came through for us on this one," Bentsen said.

"I'm pleased that we now have been virtually assured of the funds needed to start operation at this important research facility."

The new laboratory will be the focal point of a research effort to develop new strains of drought-resistant plants, study the implications of plant stress in low rainfall areas and improve procedures for water conservation through soil management practices.

"The southern Great Plains area is extremely vulnerable to devastating cycles of drought. A lack of rainfall has done serious damage to the cotton crop this year on the High Plains of Texas," Bentsen said.

"In addition, the availability of ground water is a serious problem for this area. The Ogallala Aquifer, which provides irrigation water for the High Plains, is rapidly being depleted and cannot be recharged. The need for new and improved varieties of drought-tolerant food and fiber crops could not be more apparent.

"I would add that these problems are not unique to this area. This new plant-stress lab is needed to help cope with problems caused by shortages of agriculture water throughout the world," Bentsen said.

Bell System's 'Mr. Wizard' Entertains

Give Bill Haenel 30 minutes and he'll enthrall any audience.

That was the consensus of the Lubbock Shriners at a Monday meeting in the Scottish Rite Center at Sixth Street and Avenue Q, where Haenel, Southwestern Bell's science demonstrator, presented his show on telecommunications technology.

The presentation, entitled "Through the Looking Glass — Lightly," begins with the rudimentary tin can and copper wire and ends with computers, lasers and pure glass fibers.

Intertwined with his remarks about the improving telephone, Haenel cited some Bell statistics: 97.2 percent of American households today have telephones; some 500 million calls a day are made in the United States through the Bell system; and in 10 years the number of daily calls is expected to double.

To cope with this increasing load, the speaker said Bell will be relying on recent developments that have set an historical precedent of sorts.

In 1880 Alexander Graham Bell invented the "photophone," an instrument that transmitted sound waves over light waves by means of sunlight striking a mirror and then being guided by a series of lenses to a receiving sound.

Unfortunately the device was severely limited in its use — it could only be operated in sunlight and between two direct places — but the principle of sound wave transmission over light waves had been established.

Today the light waves from laser beams are being used to carry electric waves through pure glass fibers.

"Laser light does not appreciably spread over great distances," Haenel told the audience, making it capable of transmitting over a greater distance.

The pure glass fiber is an improvement over copper wire for two reasons. It is nearly indestructible due to its flexibility, and it is a significantly more efficient transmitter of calls, according to Haenel.

Aiding these improvements is a revolution in microprocessing of computer data. Tiny chips, approximately one square inch in size, are currently able to store about 270,000 phone numbers.

The laser-pure glass fiber telecommunications system already has been successfully tested in parts of Chicago and now is in use in several cities in the southeastern United States. Haenel added that it soon may be installed in Lubbock.

Two more telephone features soon may be available to Lubbockites if testing proves successful.

One of the features will enable a person to check to see that all windows and doors are locked by dialing two digits. The other development will allow a person with a medical condition to contact his EMS system in an emergency by dialing one digit. In so doing, the EMS staff will be provided with a computer read-out of the person's condition and recommended treatment from his doctor.

Girlstown Ceremonies Held

Trudging across farmland still roughened from plowing, representatives from Girlstown USA and area Lions Clubs broke ground Monday for a Girlstown facility north of Lubbock.

The mid-morning ceremony marked the beginning of construction on the $200,000 cottage scheduled for completion in January. The five acres of tree-trimmed land is located two miles south of New Deal, one-half mile west of U.S. 87.

Representatives expressed thanks to the late Mildred Bigler and her parents, George and Mattie Bigler, for the donation of the site. Miss Bigler had intended to make her home on the property. However, following the advice of her father, the property was willed to Girlstown upon her death.

"We will be good neighbors," Girlstown Executive Director Marshall Cooper said of the campus' future residents. "We will try to be an asset to the community."

"For the last 14 years we have been wanting this kind of facility for girls to graduate from a regular academic program and go on to the work force, college or vocational training," Cooper said. The campus will accommodate 15 girls and house parents and the girls will be allowed many freedoms not granted to younger Girlstown residents.

In his opening remarks, chairman of the board Charley King said the location is valuable because of its nearness to Lubbock's vocational and educational facilities as well as area occupational opportunities.

Cooper said Girlstown supporters had originally priced property close to Texas Tech but found it too expensive. Donation of the land came at an opportune time, he said.

"During the last four or five years there has been a lot of groundbreaking for industry," Alan Henry, Lubbock mayor pro tem, said. "A lot of people in this area are not interested just in industry, but in people."

Reporter's Refusal Repeated In Court

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — New York Times reporter Myron Farber, who was jailed for refusing to surrender his notes on Dr. Mario Jascavech, repeated his refusal Monday while testifying in the doctor's murder trial.

It was the first time the jury in the seven-month trial learned of the fair trial-free press confrontation between Farber and court officials.

"I respectfully decline under the First Amendment of the Constitution, and the New York and New Jersey shield laws," Farber said from the witness stand when asked for the documents by defense attorney Raymond Brown.

The jury also learned of the newsman's negotiations for a $75,000 book contract about his investigation of several unexplained deaths in 1965 and 1966 at Riverdel Hospital in Oradell.

The case was reopened after Farber's stories about the deaths appeared in The Times.

Farber, 40, also testified that he lied "in a sense" when he wrote the word "official" in a log book of the Bergen County narcotics task force as the purpose of his visit to the task force's records section. That visit occurred during Farber's 1975 investigation of the deaths.

When Farber said that he wanted to explain why, Brown asked Judge William J. Arnold to direct Farber only to answer Brown's questions. The judge granted the request.

Jascavech is charged with three counts of murder in connection with the deaths. Two other counts against Jascavech were dropped. The newsman was jailed for three weeks last month and is free while the New Jersey Supreme Court determines whether all legal avenues were pursued before Farber was jailed for refusing to turn over the material.

Farber told the court that an anesthesiologist at Riverdel Hospital told him he believed Jascavech used curare, a muscle relaxant, to kill patients at the Riverdel hospital.

The newsman said Joseph C. Woodcock Jr., then the Bergen County prosecutor, had told Joseph Delaney, head of the task force, to allow Farber to look at files concerning the hospital deaths.

The judge allowed New York Times atorney Floyd Abrams to sit at the bar in case Farber wanted to consult with him regarding First Amendment or New Jersey shield law issues. The judge's action came despite Brown's opposition that "he's (Farber) no different from anyone else who comes in here to testify. This is a special privilege because he is a member of the press."

Farber and The Times were found in civil and criminal contempt for refusing to give up the files. In addition, the newspaper was fined $5,000 a day.

The Times, which has been unable to publish for more than a month because of a strike against the three major New York daily newspapers, has since released its documents in the case, and the New Jersey Supreme Court has stayed the penalties pending appeals.

Farber was released and his fine stayed pending a New Jersey Supreme Court hearing on whether all legal avenues were pursued before he was jailed. Times reporter Joseph F. Sullivan also has been subpoenaed to testify about an article he wrote on Farber's investigation.

New Yorkers Anxious To See Exhibit

NEW YORK (AP) — About 5,000 persons, standing in an eight-block-long line outside the Metropolitan Museum of Art and entertained by clowns and musicians, braved lousy weather Monday to reserve tickets for the "Treasures of Tutankhamen" exhibit.

The show, now in Seattle, has been in four other U.S. cities — Washington, Chicago, New Orleans and Los Angeles — since it came to the United States last November. It has already attracted an estimated 5 million visitors and is expected to draw an additional 1.3 million this winter in New York.

The four-month stop here is the last before the fabulous collection of ancient Egyptian treasures, dating back to the 14th century B.C., returns to the Cairo Museum in Egypt.

The exhibit is to open on Dec. 20 and close on April 15.

A few determined ticket-seekers started the line outside a side door of the huge Fifth Avenue museum at midnight Saturday. Sunday's weather was ideal — pleasant temperatures and clear skies — but it turned overcast and rainy on Monday.

One of those in the line early Monday was Henry Reed, 23, an anthropology graduate student at Columbia University. "Well, of course, I'm very interested in this," he said. "It was a bit of a wait, but I don't mind."

The exhibit covers the period of 1334 to 1325 B.C. and the objects making up the display include a gold mask inlaid with jewels that was placed over the dead king's face, gold figurines, delicately crafted jewels, furniture and other relics that survived his reign.

Richard Pierce, a spokesman for the museum, estimated that 900,000 persons would have tickets for the exhibit and that 400,000 would see it as part of special groups.

Inside the museum on Monday, Mayor Edward Koch and Egyptian U.N. Ambassador Esmet Abdul Meguid were among dignitaries present at the dedication of a $9.5 million wing housing the Egyptian Temple of Dendur.

The temple, built in 22 B.C. by the Roman emperor Augustus Caesar, was brought stone-by-stone to the U.S. from the banks of the Nile 600 miles south of Cairo. It was built as a tomb for two brothers who drowned in the Nile.

The ceremony came the day after the Camp David Mideast summit meeting concluded in Washington.

Rebozo Libel Suit Dropped By Court

MIAMI (AP) — A federal judge on Monday dismissed a $10 million libel suit banker Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, former President Richard Nixon's friend and Key Biscayne neighbor, had filed against the Washington Post.

U.S. District Judge Sidney Aronovitz ruled that Rebozo had become a public figure by the time the Post reported in 1973 that he had cashed $91,500 in stocks after being told they were stolen.

Since Rebozo was a public figure, Aronovitz said, rules set down by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1974 and 1964 prevent his winning a libel judgment against the newspaper.

Under the 1964 decision, in a case which had been filed against the New York Times, as expanded later by the high court, public officials and public figures may collect libel damages only if they prove there was malice against them. Aronovitz said Rebozo hadn't proved malice.

The 1974 decision defined public and private figures for purposes of using the Times case.

Rebozo has maintained the Post report was false and malicious.

In the report over which Rebozo filed suit, the Post relied on statements by insurance investigator George H. Riley Jr., who said he told Rebozo on Oct. 22, 1968, that 900 shares of IBM stock Rebozo had accepted as loan collateral had been stolen. The Post wrote that 300 of those shares were sold a week later, for $91,574.

Rebozo said that neither the broker from whom the stocks were stolen nor the broker's insurance company had known about the theft until Dec. 5, after the sale of the shares.

RAINY DAY LINE — Despite inclement weather, these New Yorkers brave a section of a line that consisted of over 2,000 people and stretched for five blocks along New York's Central Park Monday, they were seeking advanced tickets for the "Treasures of Tutankhamen" exhibition. The exhibit of treasures from the tomb of Egypt's boy king will open at the Metropolitan Museum of Art Dec. 20. This is scheduled to be the last stop of the tour. (AP Laserphoto)

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What should be done for a person having an epileptic seizure? — C.R.

A grand mal epileptic seizure can be a startling sight to the observer. The person suddenly falls to the ground and twitches, often grotesquely for from two to five minutes.

The chief role of the observer is not to panic. First aid consists, first of all, in moving the victim to a position where he will not hurt himself — away from a hot radiator or from the top of a stairway. A pillow should be placed under the head and clothing about the neck loosened. Something soft, such as small toweling, should be inserted between teeth to avoid tongue injury. Small or hard objects should not be used.

There is little else you can do until the attack subsides. Then the victim may be quite drowsy and even fall asleep. The main thought of the observer should be that the attack will be of short duration and his role is to prevent the person from injuring himself in that time.

After the attack the person might be eased onto a side so he can remove any mucus that may have collected. Since the epileptic will not recall the events during the attack, an observer should gently explain what has transpired and what was done for him. He may require medicine and should be asked about this. If the epileptic should go into a second seizure before he is fully recovered from the first, the physician should be contacted IMMEDIATELY for instructions. Most commonly, however, the victim is ready to resume activity after a brief rest.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am taking Quinamm for leg cramps at night. I also have arthritis. Aside from the fact that it is expensive, it has given me many side effects. Is there another drug I could take? — Mrs. E.C.G.

Quinamm is a commercial mixture of quinine sulfate and aminophylline. It is especially helpful for night leg cramps associated with arthritis. However the aminophylline can produce the discomfort some people experience with it, especially intestinal distress. You might try plain quinine (two or five grains at dinner and at bedtime) in place of the Quinamm. Also, calcium, either from milk or in tablet form, can be tried. Exercise, as an evening walk, or some mild calisthenics, can help nighttime leg cramps. My booklet on leg cramps may offer further leads. Send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I seem to recall reading a couple of years back in your column about exercises that are good for varicose veins. Can you give them for me? I am developing them. Are exercises better than the elastic hose? — Mrs. T.G.

Properly fitted elastic stockings help ease the discomfort of those who can be up and around. It is also helpful to keep the foot of the bed elevated. This reduces the fluid accumulation overnight. The person with V.V. should avoid long uninterrupted periods of sitting or standing or crossing of legs during the day.

The stockings, exercises and sensible activity during the day all work together in non-surgical treatment of varicose veins. I can't stress too strongly the importance of properly fitted elastic hose. The stress should be applied evenly along the leg rather than have the hose overly tight in one spot and loose in another.

Walking is an excellent exercise for those with varicose veins. I think the specific exercise to which you refer is the "Buerger's exercise." In this you lie at the edge of a firm bed, placing one foot on the floor. That leg is then raised and rested at bed level. Then it is raised and rested on an elevated area (such as a rolled-up blanket). The process is reversed, with the leg placed down on the bed, then lowered to the floor again. Repeat on the other side of the bed with the other leg. Do this several times at a few sessions daily, beginning in the morning upon arising.

Confidential to Mrs. R.R. — The swelling in the neck might be thyroid enlargement or swollen lymph nodes. The latter seems most likely at this point since you do not mention a sore throat. In any event, I seriously question the "nerves" diagnosis, and agree that you should consult another doctor.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Just have to sing the praises of electrical plastic tape. (A roll costs around a dollar.)

I mended the slashes in my garment flight bag (too much flying — the bag gets beaten up). A strip on the inside of the bag, a strip on the outside, and it's almost as good as new.

As an added bonus, I have a distinctive mark on the bag to recognize it as it goes by on the carousel!

The rubber knob was loose on my car gear shift. I wound tape about the metal stick part, fitted the rubber knob back on, then bound it neatly with more tape. Voila! Healed!

Outer bag on my sweeper vacuum (replacement costs $20) also got slashed. I'd sewn it up — ugly result. I removed the stitches, and pressed three strips, overlapping lengthwise on the cut. Again, success.

DEAR HELOISE:

Our new house has a carpeted bathroom. With three small boys, I was concerned about protecting the carpet.

We bought a clear plastic runner, the type used to protect entryways from wet boots. Cut it in half, put one half under the potty chair and cut the other half to fit snugly around the base of the commode.

The runner stays put and the beauty of the carpet still shows through. — Laurie B.

Ohhh...that's what I call smart!

Might be a good idea for mothers of young boys, even if the bathroom floor isn't carpeted! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Our kitchen drawer holding ladles, pancake turners and other large-headed tools was always a jumble. Everything shifted when the drawer was opened. The heads of the tools got jammed in the back of the drawer.

We solved our problem by putting the tools in the drawer with the large head to the front instead of the back.

It works like a charm. — Regina Mar-ion

DEAR HELOISE:

DEAR HELOISE:

Whenever a zipper sticks, either metal or nylon, a little table butter or margarine applied carefully (don't get it on the garment), does the trick.

To be sure to get to the spot of the trouble, zip it up and apply the butter to all of the zipper, work it a little and no more problems with sticking zippers. — Mrs. V.C. Jones

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED
NEW YORK — Out of the mouths of babes comes trouble in soap opera land. On "Days of Our Lives" Salem's love team of Marlena Evans and Don Craig would have been better off without the presence of delinquent, trouble-making Donna Temple, who's 15 going on 32 and desires Don for herself in the worst way. Donna arrived on the scene as Don's supposedly illegitimate daughter. After her mamma split town, Don took a paternal shine to the girl, even though it was revealed that she wasn't his daughter. But Marlena, wise gal that she is, could spot trouble a mile away when Donna began primping and pumping for Don's attentions.

Fifteen-year-old actress Tracy Bregman is a rarity among serial performers on several counts. She is one of the few "kids" on the soap block who plays a teenager and is actually a teenager herself. Most teens are portrayed by actors in their 20s and even 30s. But Tracy has the manners and grace of a young lady twice her age, which is a decided asset for someone portraying a teen temptress. She also has a mature, unsqueaky voice that doesn't sound like an imitation of pubescent Lolita.

Tracy was born in Munich, Germany, but was raised in London by her actress mother, Suzanne Lloyd, who starred in several nighttime TV series, including "The Saint" and "Zorro." Pappa is Buddy Bregman, a former musical producer for Ella Fitzgerald and Bing Crosby, and a producer of TV's "Circus of the Stars." Tracy has only been in this country five years, but she lost her British accent through studies at the National Academy of Performing Arts and the Lee Strasberg Theater Institute. She also studied jazz dance and her vocal training wowed the audience at the entertainment evening of the recent First International Soap Opera Exposition in New York City.

In addition to her wide theatrical background, Tracy has groomed and shown cocker spaniels at dog shows and is an accomplished horseback rider, a skill she honed while taking riding lessons at the Royal Riding Academy in London. And if her father ever needs an additional circus act for his TV specials, Tracy has mastered a daring stunt known as "the web and the cradle."

Prior to "Days" Miss Bregman appeared in a TV movie of the week but finds her serial chores demanding and disciplinary. At nights she does double duty by studying for school while also memorizing the following day's soap lines. She regards Jed Allan, who plays Don, as a father figure and considers Deidre Hall (Marlena) a great friend.

But on-screen this triangle is anything but lovey-dovey. Be prepared for fireworks to be ignited by the teen devil when you tune in tomorrow.

SHORT TAKES:
 Speaking of the First International Soap Opera Exposition, Joel Crothers (Miles Cavanaugh on "Edge of Night") was such a sensation as the variety program's emcee that he was booked for an October singing date at a Manhattan niterie called The Bushes.

Also causing near riots at the Expo were Deidre Hall and Josh Taylor (Marlena and Chris on "Days of Our Lives"). The ladies in the audience grabbed Josh in the most embarrassing parts of his body for a chance to snatch a kiss. He loved every minute of it, but still carries black and blue marks to prove that men aren't the only ones who are apt to pinch a sex symbol.

When Vice President Mondale was unable to deliver a speech in New Orleans a few weeks ago at a governor's conference, Don Steward (Mike Bauer on "Guiding Light") was flown in as a substitute. Don didn't give a speech. He sang for the assemblage and did it so beautifully that he was booked for a nightclub engagement in October at New Orleans' Fairmont Hotel.

With the trouble Mike is having in the Spaulding case on "GL," he doesn't have a moment to sing anything but the blues. As you'll see when you tune in tomorrow.

Don't ask us where North found his double of one spade or why East and West didn't bid four spades. That contract makes easily. However, South was allowed to play four hearts.

West opens the king of spades. Victor Mollo asks, "How can South be sure of his contract if clubs break 3-2 and what tricks does he lose?"

The answer is that he lets the king of spades hold the first trick. South discards a club. If West continues spades, South chucks a second club. If West shifts to a club, South takes dummy's ace, leads dummy's queen of spades and once more discards a club.

Thus, the defense has two spade tricks and still will take a diamond, but that is all. South will be able to set up dummy's clubs for two diamond discards.

The play is not complicated, but it is unusual since it is a double avoidance play. South must give away those two spades to get two club discards and avoid letting East get in to lead a diamond.

FUSE INFORMATION

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The chances of a car fuse blowing during hot weather driving are high, especially with trailers, says a St. Louis fuse manufacturer. He recommends carrying an extra box for emergency use. A spokesman for the Bussmann Manufacturing, a McGraw-Edison division, says replacing a car fuse is simple: turn off the ignition, pull the blown fuse with the tool that comes with the new fuses, and replace it with a fuse of the same amperage.

In yesterday's "Ask the Experts" the bidding with opponents passing was North opened one spade; you, South, responded two hearts; North bid two spades, and you bid three clubs.

Dear Ann Landers: In April my husband had his head shaved like Telly Savalas. He keeps it that way by going over it every two or three days with an electric razor. It has improved our sex life a lot which gives validity to that old wives' tale about bald-headed men being more virile.

Last week I asked my husband if he would shave my head. I've always wondered what it felt like to be bald. I wear wigs a lot so it wouldn't make any difference in my usual appearance. He was surprised at my request but not disturbed. His reply was, "I'll think about it."

I could shave my head without his help if I wanted to surprise him but I am undecided as to whether or not I should.

This is the age of "do your own thing." What do you think, Ann? — Jeanne In Hanover, Mass.

Dear Jeanne: I can't imagine any decision that is more your business and less mine. It's your head and if you want to shave it for whatever reason, be my guest. If you don't like being bald you can always let your hair grow back in.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 16-year-old daughter is pregnant with her second out-of-wedlock child. "Debbie" is in her fifth month and the doctor said he thinks she is carrying twins. During the first pregnancy (she was only 14) she signed her baby over to the home that took care of her. They were really wonderful — provided expert doctors and she even had tutoring so she wouldn't fall back in school. Last week we received a phone call from some wealthy people who heard about Debbie's condition. They have offered to pay her $7,500 if it is a healthy baby. Should she have healthy twins they'll pay $10,000.

Is there a law against this? I have a feeling it is immoral even if it is legal. Please answer. — Mrs. X.

Dear X.: It is against the law to sell a child. Your daughter could accept compensation for medical care but the transaction as you describe it is illegal. And

Dear Ann Landers: What can be done about relatives who don't know when to go home? My husband and I must be at work at 7 a.m., which means we get up at 5:30.

These people know our hours, yet they sit and sit and sit. If my husband doesn't get seven hours' sleep he is a wreck the next day. I get a splitting headache if I don't get at least eight hours a night.

Last night I started to hint at 10 that we had a big day coming up but this couple might as well have been deaf. They stayed until 12:30, talking nonsense and getting plastered on beer.

My husband and I were both exhausted and ugly to one another this morning. He suggested I write to you about this problem. — Tired Of Being Taken Advantage Of

Dear Tired: No one can take advantage of you without your cooperation. The best way to get rid of unwanted guests is the direct approach. Just say, "Sorry, we must get up early tomorrow. Good night and thanks for coming over."

MEANWHILE, DOWN AT ANN'S — Lloyd Ewing draws a beer at Ann's Place, a 50-foot mahogany bar dating back to the 1890s, in Kewanee, Ill. Cold beer and corn whiskey have been the order of the day in the showcase bar built by a Midwestern brewer. (AP Laserphoto)

S. Africa's Vorster Considers Resignation Because Of Health

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister John Vorster was reported Monday to be considering resigning the office he has held for the past 12 years because of ill health.
 Political sources said the 62-year-old Vorster planned to announce at a Cabinet meeting Tuesday whether he would step down or stay on.
 The stocky, somber-faced politician checked into a hospital three weeks ago for a routine annual checkup. Doctors subsequently announced that he was suffering from "physical exhaustion and a degree of bronchitis." But there have been unofficial reports that he is seriously ill.
 Four Cabinet members, all members of his ruling National Party, are considered likely candidates to succeed Vorster. All are Afrikaners, members of the Dutch-descended white ethnic group that has dominated South African political life since World War II and developed its strict policies of racial segregation.
 Press speculation has centered on Defense Minister Pieter W. Botha, 62, the senior Cabinet member, who is generally regarded as a hard-liner on law-and-order and military matters.

 Two other Bothas, no relation among any of them, are also mentioned as candidates: Stephanus P. Botha, 56, labor and mines minister, and R.F. "Pik" Botha, 46, foreign minister and former ambassador to the United States.
 The fourth candidate is Cornelius P. Mulder, 53, minister of plural relations, the term used to describe the government's apartheid policies of race separation.
 A new prime minister will immediately face several critical problems:
 — The future of the South Africa-administered territory of South-West Africa, also known as Namibia. South Africa and the United Nations are wrangling over a timetable for the territory's independence. Pieter Botha is said to be critical of Western efforts in the Namibia negotiations and reportedly would not tolerate a government ruled by SWAPO, the black political movement waging a guerrilla war against South African troops there.
 — The Crossroads squatter camp in South Africa's Cape Province. The government's latest bloody crackdown on this unauthorized shantytown of 20,000 blacks has sparked new outbreaks of racial repression. The Cabinet has vowed to demolish the camp by the end of the year and resettle the blacks in tribal homelands.

 — Rhodesia. With prospects dim for a final internal settlement by the end of the year, and with black nationalist guerrillas escalating fighting against the Ian Smith government, South Africa is increasingly concerned about its northern neighbor and its white minority.
 If Vorster steps down, political observers here speculate he might leave public life for good or accept the largely ceremonial job of state president.
 The last state president, Nicolaas Diederichs, died in office last month. The post can have some political influence, however, because the president must sign all bills before they become law.
 A caucus of National Party senators and deputies is already scheduled to meet Sept. 28 to designate the new president. It would also name a new party leader if Vorster resigns. The leader of the party is automatically prime minister.

Witness Identifies Patrolman's Killer

AUSTIN (AP) — A woman identified David Lee Powell on Monday as the man who stared at her through the shattered rear window of a red Mustang from which came the burst of AK-47 automatic rifle fire that killed Patrolman Ralph Ablanedo.
 Velma Bullard testified at the capital murder trial of Powell, 27, who is accused of killing Ablanedo shortly after midnight, May 18.
 Lawyers for Sheila Meinert, also 27, who was indicted with Powell, were present through most of the testimony. Miss Meinert, at her own request, will be tried separately.
 Mrs. Bullard said the rapid fire from the automatic weapon sounded like a string of firecrackers exploding.
 She said she was in her car behind Ablanedo's vehicle, which was trailing the Mustang slowly after stopping it. She said Ablanedo tapped his horn several times, stopping the Mustang again.
 That's when she heard the string of explosions.
 "I knew it came from in front of the policeman's car. I just thought somebody had thrown a string of firecrackers," said Mrs. Bullard, a programmer for the Texas Department of Human Resources.
 But when she passed the patrol unit, "there was glass everywhere and the light was on in the police car. I didn't see the policeman."
 Sensing something was wrong, she chased the fleeing Mustang to get the license number. Mrs. Bullard said the Mustang suddenly stopped after traveling a few blocks, and she drove to a few feet of its rear bumper.

 She said a man was outside the Mustang, then got in on the passenger side.
 "He turned around and was looking at me through the broken glass of the rear window," she said. "I looked at his eyes, and somewhere there I decided that maybe that was gunshots I had heard. ... I was scared. ... I thought he was seeing me as clearly as I was seeing him," Mrs. Bullard said.
 Asked to point out the man if he was in the courtroom, Mrs. Bullard looked at Powell and said, gasping for breath, "That person sitting over there at the end of the table."
 An electrical engineer who tried to clarify a police tape of transmissions from Ablanedo's car testified that one noise "sounds to me like a scream." Jay Riekenberg said he could not understand the words, even after "cleaning up" the tape.

1978 Good Year For Bordeaux Wine

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — You might wait a little longer than usual, but a 1978 Bordeaux wine could be worth it.
 Paul Glotin, President of the Federation of Bordeaux Wines, predicts a high quality grape in a harvest that may be two or three weeks late.
 The 1978 vintage should be of good quality, comparable to a 1966, officials said, and only slightly under the average in quantity.

Mysterious Outburst Of Gunfire Confounds Lubbock Detectives

Lubbock detectives late Monday were continuing their investigation into a mysterious spree of gunfire which erupted about 10:30 p.m. Sunday, injuring a 25-year-old Tech student as he sat in a car at Sixth Street and Avenue R and damaging several houses near the intersection.

The shooting victim, James Tibbets of 1802 Fifth St., Apt. 111, was in satisfactory condition late Monday at West Texas Hospital with a wound to the neck.

Steve Roark, the driver of the car, told police he had stopped at the intersection when gunfire was heard and Tibbets said, "I've been shot." Roark took the victim to the hospital.

Officers investigating the incident were told by Perry Jarrell of 509 Ave. S, Apt. 10, that 38 rounds of .22 caliber bullets, the same caliber of bullet that entered Tibbets' neck, were stolen Sunday night from his pickup while it was parked in front of his residence.

Jarrell found that his truck also had been hit by gunshot, according to reports.

James O'Neal, one of several persons living near the location of the incident involving Tibbets, reported damage to his residence from the gunfire. He said a bullet went through his front door and lodged in a wall.

Another homeowner said a bullet shattered one of his back windows and was imbedded in a closet door in his kitchen.

Police late Monday were seeking a suspect involved in the armed robbery earlier that day at the Town and Country Food Store at 3910 Ave. A.

Florentino Vargas, the 24-year-old clerk at Town and Country, said a Mexican-American man entered the store about 12:20 a.m. and waited until customers left before going to the counter, displaying a blue-steel pistol and demanding the money in the cash register.

The suspect, Vargas said, helped him put $76 in cash and $50 in food stamps in a paper bag. He said the man, between 22 and 24 years old and wearing a green plaid shirt and black hat, left the store after taking the money and was last seen going west away from 40th Street and Avenue A.

Vandals did more than $4,000 damage to vehicles and equipment at Lubbock Asphalt Products Inc., 2836 Clovis Road, sometime Saturday or Sunday.

Walter Jarnigan, owner of the company, told police that someone had taken a metal rod and broken the vent windows and control panel gauges in four of his vehicles. The radio antennas had also been snapped off the trucks, he said.

In addition, Jarnigan reported, extensive damage had been done to the asphalt machine control panel, a graph machine and to the windshields and door glass of four dump trucks. Several tools also were taken from the establishment.

In other vandalism activity, Joe W. Ray reported $150 in damage was done to his laundry at 4819 34th St. sometime over the weekend.

Ray told officers the vandals had cut off the power to his business, shattered the west door glass and broken the agitator caps off 25 washing machines. Ray said the caps were strewn throughout the parking lot.

In yet another incident of vandalism, Douglas Wayne Cannon told officers that $500 in damage had been done to his vehicle late Sunday or early Monday while it was parked at a theater at 4215 19th St.

Cannon reported that someone had shattered the right door glass and windshield, snapped the right mirror off and damaged the hood, right fender and sun roof.

Investigating officers said that the damage to the 1972 Buick Skylark had apparently been done with a two-inch square object.

Burglars, possibly desiring to become better swimmers, made off with 50 styrofoam swim kickboards from the K.N. Clapp Swimming Pool Building sometime over the weekend, along with five swim trophies and three phones for a total loss valued at $1,000.

Mike D. Harrison, supervisor of the pool, told police that he found the rear door open when he arrived at the building early Monday. Officers said the door apparently had not been forced open.

Someone with an apparent craving for watermelon stole 11 of the fruits from a 63-year-old Lubbock man's stand late Sunday or early Monday. George Houston Barker of 3802 E. 19th St. estimated the loss at $22.

A gold watch and diamond ring, valued at $600, were taken early Monday from Willie Dave Green's residence at 1303 28th St.

Green told officers that the items were removed from a chest of drawers in his bedroom.

Officers found no sign of forced entry to the residence.

Diane A. Massey Monday reported the theft of her purse, tapes and tape case from her car, which was parked at 2220 34th St.

Officers investigating the theft, which occurred between 8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. Monday, recovered the woman's empty purse in an alley north of the parking lot. Miss Massey estimated her loss at $245.

SANDWICHED — New England Patriots runningback Andy Johnson (32) is sandwiched by a pair Baltimore Colts, Lyle Blackwood (44) and Lloyd Mumphord (42) after gaining 7 yards in the first quarter of Monday night's game at Foxboro, Mass. (AP Laserphoto)

Colts Explode On Pats 34-27

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Baltimore exploded for 27 fourth-quarter points as halfback Joe Washington accounted for three touchdowns, including a 90-yard dash with a kickoff return with 1:18 left in the game, and the supposedly hapless Colts shocked the New England Patriots 34-27 for their first victory of the National Football League season Monday night.

New England had tied the nationally televised game with 1:32 left after recovering an onside kick and moving to the one-yard line with the help of a defensive holding penalty. Sam Cunningham bulled into the end zone and kicker John Smith, ailing with a pulled thigh muscle, booted the extra point to tie the game 27-27.

But Washington, acquired from San Diego in the trade that sent Lydell Mitchell to the Chargers, took the ensuing kickoff and broke up the left sideline behind a wedge of blockers for the winning touchdown.

Baltimore struck for three touchdowns earlier in the fourth quarter as Washington passed 54 yards to wide receiver Roger Carr on a halfback option play and took a 23-yard strike from quarterback Bill Troup, who was substituting for injured star Bert Jones. Troup apparently iced the game with a 67-yard bomb to Carr with 8:19 left for a 27-13 lead.

But the Patriots, 1-2, came back with a 4-yard touchdown run by quarterback

FOR MOST OF its history, Texas hasn't paid too much attention — at least from the football standpoint — to the folks on the West Coast.

The Raiders hooked up with Washington State a couple of times in their opening days as a Southwest Conference member, when they were trying to get some national recognition. But for the most part, Tech's looks westward have been to such institutions as St. Mary's, University of Pacific, and UC-Santa Barbara.

But, now, Dockery is getting his dose of Pac-8 and Pac-10 teams in a hurry. He'll have faced two of them in three weeks, by the time Saturday night slips off the day-by-day calendar.

First Southern Cal, now Arizona. And, judging from films, Dockery keeps wondering where all those big guys are raised. Those Southern Cal guys were so big they cracked the concrete ramp into LA Coliseum, and, the Arizonans are so tough, it's said that they scratch their backs with palm trees.

Size of the Trojans made as much an impression on Tech as their speed, ten days ago. Now, when Dockery tells his troops that the University of Arizona guys are almost as big, it should get their attention.

And, for emphasis, Dockery added a zinger: "I think they're as good as when they beat us out there a couple of years ago."

That was the time Arizona scored in the final seconds and nipped the Raiders 28-28 in a game at Tucson.

SINCE THAT GAME in LA, Dockery has had a week to work, to bring his team along. It was a needed week, too, he says. Now, it's as if the open date were forgotten. Monday was a regular Monday, the routine of two days after a game.

Now only was it that, but it was lab day on campus, which means the workout had to be short and later than usual. No pads, no contact, just learning.

Today, however, the pads will be on the shoulders, the contact on the schedule. And the workouts will be pointed toward Saturday night And gameplans will help decide what work is undertaken.

LAST WEEK WAS almost a continuation of the opening of fall drills... teaching... fundamentals... basics...

"We had only 19 days (before the opener)," said Dockery, "and we had to work over a week getting ready for Southern Cal."

"So (last week), we had to go back to teaching basic techniques. We had to re-teach, to try to correct the mistakes from that game... busted assignments. With the younger players, too, we want to work with them as much as we can."

Some of the younger players will be given chances to show their talents this week. Dockery said that he planned to play freshman runningbacks Kenneth James (Dunbar) and Phil Weatherall (Greenville) as much as possible against Arizona. The two are battling sophomore Don Earl for the starting halfback spot.

However, Dockery said he would not decide on a starter until Wednesday. James played some against Southern Cal, but Weatherall has been slowed, first by an injury in a summer all-star game, then by influenza. He only returned to full work last week.

"Arizona has to be one of the top teams in the nation in rushing offense. And they are probably one of the top teams in rushing defense. They've only allowed one touchdown (Oregon State) in two games."

And with all that size.

ARIZONA ONLY JOINED the Pac-8 — thus, with Arizona State, turning 8's into 10's — this fall, and it opened its new relationship by clipping Oregon State Saturday night. But, similar to pouring hot water on freeze-dried, Arizona has become instant Pac-8. The skill offenses of the WAC days aren't gone, but up popped a bunch of huge players.

"Big," grunted Dockery, as he reached for his baseball cap, nervously ran his fingers through his hair a couple of times, then replaced the cap. "You bet, they're big. Their line averages 253 per man. They have a bunch of transfers from Cincinnati (where head man Tony Mason formerly coached), and they got one big lineman from Purdue."

"And they signed one of the outstanding junior college runningbacks in the nation; everybody wanted him. Everybody. Both their starting halfbacks weigh 200."

"They have the same quarterback (Jim Krohn) that they have had. Shoooot, they're good."

Promoters Threaten Suit Following Ali's Charges

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Angered by Muhammad Ali's charges that a $1 million damage suit was racially inspired, two promoters of the Ali-Leon Spinks heavyweight fight said Monday night they will sue Ali for $10 million unless he returns to town and apologizes.

"Muhammad Ali is the greatest moral coward I have ever seen," said an obviously angered Jake DiMaggio at a late-night news conference.

"I call on him to return to New Orleans and look at every piece of paper connected with this fight and apologize for what he said."

Ali also told reporters that two black members of Louisiana Sports — Sherman Copelin and Don Hubbard — were innocent of any wrongdoing and were victims of bigotry.

Ali's comments were promoted by a $1 million suit by DiMaggio and Ciccio against Copelin and Hubbard. That suit, filed Saturday, was dropped before Ali spoke with reporters.

Ciccio and DiMaggio said later Monday night that legal action was still pending against Butch Lewis, a defendant in the suit and a former officer of Top Rank Inc., which owned the overall rights to the fight.

no white man involved in the brain work?" Ali said it was an atmosphere of racism which spawned the suit.

"I can't tell you exactly what they're suing about, but they can," he said, with a gesture to Lewis, Copelin and Hubbard.

DiMaggio and Ciccio had complained — among other things — of a $200,000 finder's fee that Hubbard and Copelin were to receive from Top Rank, which held the rights to the fight. The fee was to have been paid to Corporate Management Inc., which the two own.

Hubbard and Lewis said the fee was a legitimate business deal consummated months before the formation of Louisiana Sports Inc., of which Copelin and Hubbard were later made principal officers.

In their suit, the two white businessmen accused Copelin, Hubbard and Lewis — all black men — of conspiring to divert money and contracts away from Louisiana Sports Inc., the group which put up $3.5 million to buy rights to the live gate for the fight.

"I expected this when I saw that jam-packed house," Ali said. "I said to myself, 'Oh, Oh, this is too successful for the night to go smooth.'"

"Many sources were upset because they lost money betting against me. I'm a Muslim, and I'm black and I'm cocky, and that hurt so many bigots."

"For this nigger to get out on top must have hurt people. But not only that, niggers promoted the fight."

"Would you believe no blonde hair and no blue eyes involved? Would you believe

In a bitter and abusive afternoon speech, Ali had referred to DiMaggio and City Councilman Philip Ciccio as "them white dagoes" and said they were stealing funds from promotion of the fight from the very outset.

DiMaggio and Ciccio, white partners in Louisiana Sports Inc., which promoted the fight locally, said Ali had done them and the city an injustice with his statements.

"All's attorney has apologized and that's not good enough. His manager, Herbert Muhammad, has apologized and that's not good enough. We want him to come back and face us."

Linda Morin scored 11 points and Lubbock High scored on 84 percent of its serves to beat Dunbar in an intricacy girls volleyball contest 13-15, 15-1, 14-12, Monday night.

Lubbock also scored 89 percent on its service returns and 79 percent on its first hits on defense. The Westerners will play Lamesa tonight at home, and Dunbar will play hostess to Coronado.

The junior varsity score had Dunbar winning over LHS 15-7, 11-15, 16-14.

Plainview Crowned 4A Two-Game Champion

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Two games does not a season make, philosophizes Greg Sherwood. But it would sure be nice if it did.

Plainview, considered one of the favorites rather than one of the have-nots this season, has rolled to two easy wins so far this season—one over AAA power Estacado, the other a 34-7 thrashing of Amarillo Tascosa.

But, according to the PHS boss, things just might change this Friday night.

"Changes are a coming, all right," the first-year coach agreed. "Midland Lee's coming to town."

That doesn't sound like fun, huh?

"It won't be," confirmed the coach. "We are expecting a heck of a game."

During the past couple of weeks, Plainview has managed to put away opponents like a drunk does Ripple. Easily.

"We played a lot of people," said "But our starters have still been playing a lot. We had a tough time with Tascosa and really didn't put it away until the end."

Sherwood said it took a 96-yard stroll by fullback Royce Coleman before Plainview was assured of its second win.

"Before that," he continued. "The game still could have gone either way. We've been lucky like that all year. We've gotten the good breaks when we've needed them and also got some get effort out of our kids."

At 193-pounds with speed to burn, Coleman is considered one of the top backs in the Panhandle. Against Estacado, he rambled for 212 yards. He picked up an additional 165 against Tascosa.

"That's (the 377 yards) more offense than most of my teams get in a year," Sherwood said.

He also said he was kidding.

This is Sherwood's first season in the AAAA ranks. And so far, he says, it's going pretty well.

"It's really hard to say anything after just a couple of games," he pointed out when talking about the jump from AA ball. "About the only real difference is, now I have more good players to choose from. There's more depth. And I guess there are more good players to work with."

There has been talk that this year's Plainview team could be the one that wins the District 4-AAAA title, something no Bulldogs group has EVER managed to pull off.

"We need talk like that," said Sherwood. "Maybe that's what they needed more of around here. It sure can't hurt."

But when district times rolls around in another month, Sherwood said his club is expecting a strong challenge from Monterey, Coronado, Lubbock High and Herford.

In other words, the entire loop.

"It can't help that we've never won a title before," he said. "Tradition is something that is extremely important in athletics. That's why we expect a tough time with all of those schools, especially Monterey. They (Monterey) may be down a little right now, but when district gets here, they'll be ready."

He said the Bulldogs would too

Akers Pleased With Rice Game

By The Associated Press

Texas whipped Rice, 34-0, but Coach Fred Akers predicted the Longhorns will be even better in his home opener Saturday night against Wyoming.

Akers coached at Wyoming in 1975 and 1976 before returning to Texas, and he said, "I imagine they will be juiced up coming in here."

Split receiver Johnny "Lam" Jones, an Olympic gold medal sprinter, and defensive end Tim Campbell, the brother of 1977 Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell, were selected as Texas' outstanding players in the Rice victory Saturday.

Freshman tackle Terry Tausch, 6-foot-4 and 254 pounds, also received special praise from Akers at a Monday news conference for grading 96 on offense.

Jones, a 183-pound junior, grabbed three passes for 132 yards, including touchdown catches of 57 and 33 yards, and blocked so well that he had two "pins" — the designation for leveling a defender.

Campbell, a 195-pound senior, "did, indeed, have a sensational game," Akers said, keying a defense that held Rice to minus-36 yards rushing and 121 yards passing.

Campbell scored a touchdown when he caught a tipped pass in the Rice end zone, and six of his eight tackles were behind the line of scrimmage. He was credited with three sacks and pressured the passer five times, forcing another interception.

The only area in which Texas was not "100 percent," Akers said, was returning punts. Rice held highly touted Johnnie Johnson to nine yards on six returns, and Akers said, "It is not like us to play that portion of our game as poorly as we played it."

Southern Methodist Coach Ron Meyer said Monday his green but gritty team believes it can beat nationally ranked Penn State Saturday.

"Our freshmen think they can go up there and beat a team like Penn State," said Meyer. "I hate to tell 'em any different right now. ... I don't want their bubble to burst."

Meyer, who suits out 25 freshmen on his 61-man squad which has whipped Texas Christian and Florida, admitted his program "has a long way to go. Of course we're pleased with the first back-to-back wins we've had in three years. It's extremely encouraging. But I don't see too much light in the rest of our schedule."

SMU meets Penn State then plays Ohio State before embarking on a rugged Southwest Conference schedule.

"We'll be playing what (Penn State Coach) Joe Paterno calls his very best football team ever," said Meyer. "All I know is that when Penn State suits out, the field tilts."

Paterno in a telephone hookup Monday grumbled that he was behind on learning all there is to know about SMU because their film exchange with the Mustangs arrived late and also didn't have SMU's third touchdown drive in a 35-25 victory over the Gators.

The impact of the new field goal rule has yet to be felt in the Southwest Conference.

Rules makers decreed after last season that all missed field goal attempts from beyond the 20-yard line would be returned to the original line of scrimmage.

SWC Roundup

There was a feeling in the SWC the rule was passed because Texas AM's Tony Franklin, Texas' Russell Exleben and Arkansas' Steve Little were making the 60-yard field goal as common as ice in Alaska.

Through the first two weeks of the season, SWC teams are averaging one field goal and 1.5 attempts per game where last season they averaged 0.9 successes on 1.7 attempts per game.

Field goals have ranged from long successes of 46 yards by Exleben and Arkansas' Ismael Ordonez to a short of 26 yards also by Exleben.

Oilers Start, Finish Well

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's first touchdown drive in Sunday's 20-19 victory over San Francisco was "as good as man can expect," Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips says, but it was the final drive that won the game.

Between their first-and last offensive drives, the Oilers sputtered to a 17-6 lead in the third quarter and the fell behind 19-17 with 7:51 left in the game.

Then they came back for the second straight week to win it in the closing minutes, this time on a 19-yard field goal by Toni Fritch with 1:16 left in the game following an impressive 80-yard march by the Oiler offense.

"Our drive in the first quarter was as good as man can expect," Phillips said.

As for the final drive, Phillips said, "This is the first time in five years that I've been here that we know we can take the ball in that situation and go down and get the field goal."

"In the past, we had to rely a great deal on the bomb or a big play. We know that we can control it and score now."

Despite that knowledge, some of the Oilers, including tight end Mike Barber, would like to see the scores coming a little earlier.

"Hopefully, we'll start pulling away a little earlier in the games so we can get it over with and start relaxing in the fourth quarter," said Barber, who caught five passes for 56 yards. "I felt I caught the ball well today but I blocked better."

Houston, now 2-1, trailed 17-6 last week before coming back to beat Kansas City 20-17. Following that game, Phillips said he'd have planned it that way to give the Oilers confidence and character.

"I think last week's win produced this week's win," Phillips said.

Houston took a 17-6 lead late in the third quarter on a 13-yard touchdown pass from Dan Pastorini to wide receiver Ken Burrough, who used his speed and height advantage to beat cornerback Anthony Leonard.

"The TD play was one Dan and I have been running for nine years," Burrough said. "He threw the ball up and because I was taller than the defender, I just ran under it."

The Oilers host their second straight West Coast team Sunday when they meet the Los Angeles Rams in the AstroDome.

ACU Can't Rely On Last Year

By The Associated Press

Abilene Christian, the defending Lone Star Conference and NIAA champion, can't dazzle anybody on last year's laurels.

The Wildcats built up a 16-0 lead midway through the third quarter Saturday then had to survive a Northern Colorado rally for a 16-14 non-conference victory to preserve its No. 1 national ranking.

No. 2-ranked Angelo State ripped Eastern New Mexico 40-0 behind back Jerry Aldridge's 108 yards rushing and two touchdowns.

In other games involving LSC teams, Sam Houston State was blanked 12-0 by Southern Louisiana, Texas Lutheran downed Howard Payne 18-12, Texas A&I ripped East Central Oklahoma 27-7, Cameron University downed East Texas State 17-7, and Northwestern Louisiana rallied for a 21-14 victory over Stephen F. Austin.

ACC, Angelo State and Southwest Texas State are all 2-0 in non-conference action.

Angelo State is at Sam Houston in a non-conference game. Abilene Christian is at Cameron University, East Texas hosts Washburn, Howard Payne entertains Eastern New Mexico, S.F. Austin is at Lamar and Texas A&I is at Montana State in games this weekend.

Tight end Kirby Jones was the offensive star for Abilene Christian by catching two touchdowns passes. However, the Wildcats had to bat away a two-point conversion attempt to preserve their victory.

Idalou Racer Nabs Crown At Raceway

Charley Whorton, who launched the racing season last May with a series of wins only to see his lead melt under the assault of wrecks, broken engines and just plain bad luck, made up for it all Saturday night.

When the smoke and dust had cleared away at Lubbock Speedway, Idalou's Cheerful Charley had annexed the End of Season Championship race, a highlight of the 1978 Modified Stock Car division schedule and a bright spot in an extended racing career.

It wasn't the high point championship — Larry Johnson won that on the strength of past performances, although an ailing engine took him out of Saturday night's action — but it was a tribute to perseverance: Charley and chief wrench Marvin McKenzie kept the venerable Whorton Olds coming back for more despite numerous mid-and late-season problems that in many another driver would have triggered the "let's wait 'til next year" reflex.

It was a good night, too, for Don Spear, who won the corresponding race for the Volkswagen division title in the first year for Bugs to compete. Spear also snared the over-all crown, holding the high-point position throughout all but a few weeks of the season.

And, finally, modified driver Danny Everett, another hard-luck entry, made his mark in the rough-and-tumble division, winning the season-end Figure 8 competition in his by-now-battered Chevy.

One crash marred the program.

NFL Finds New Stars

By The Associated Press

The numbers remained the same — but some of the names changed.

O.J. Simpson, Chuck Foreman, Tony Dorsett and Walter Payton, who gobbled up huge chunks of yardage at one point or another last year, stubbed their collective toes Sunday while National Football League newcomers like Earl Campbell, David Sims and Tony Reed strode into prominence.

Simpson missed much of last season with an injury, but was still expected to revive San Francisco this year after being traded to the 49ers by Buffalo. His 205 yards in two games raised hopes, but they were dashed Sunday when Houston smothered him so thoroughly — seven yards in seven carries — that Coach Pete McCulley benched him in the second half.

McCulley's explanation was that San Francisco clearly wasn't getting a ground game going and had to try more passing.

"With a 16-game schedule and the best back in pro football, I'm not going to use him on every play in every game," he said.

The leading runner in pro football at the moment is Campbell, the Oilers' (and league's) No. 1 draft choice. He gained 76 yards rushing against the 49ers, raising his season mark to a league-leading 324 yards, 12 ahead of Mark van Eeghen. Oakland's star runner, second to Payton in rushing last year, had the weekend's most productive day on the ground with 151 yards against Green Bay.

Like Simpson, both Foreman and Dorsett had their problems. Foreman was held to just 25 yards by Tampa Bay, a prime reason the Buccaneers upset Minnesota. And Dorsett, who exploded out of the starting blocks this year with more than 100 yards apiece rushing and receiving in Dallas' season opener, came up with a scant 38 yards rushing and 32 receiving in the Cowboys' loss to Los Angeles. Still, Dorsett is No. 4 in the league in rushing with 296 yards.

Payton had a so-so day. He wound up with 77 yards rushing for Chicago — but it took him 22 carries against Detroit to achieve it.

One of the few other vets besides van Eeghen to churn up the acreage Sunday was Delvin Williams of Miami. The fifth-year pro obtained from San Francisco rolled up 125 yards on 24 carries and is third in the league now with 303 yards.

Reed, the mainstay of Kansas City's Wing-T ball-control offense, continued to roll up the Chiefs' yardage against the New York Giants. The second-year pro from Colorado got 114 yards on just 14 carries and has 287 yards this season, fifth in the NFL. He had 505 yards all of last season.

Sims, Seattle's second-year running back out of Georgia Tech, swept through the New York Jets for 121 yards on 23 carries, his biggest day in his brief pro career.

Dawson Pair Leads Honor Roll

Dawson High School sure doesn't lack offensive punch, especially not if last weekend's 67-0 devastation of Whiteface is any guide.

"We sure needed that," said coach Bill West. While a romp is a great morale-builder for any team, perhaps the Dragons went a little overboard.

Tailback Lupe Rivas and quarterback John Hataway were among the top offensive stars of the weekend and thus head the Avalanche-Journal's weekly Schoolboy Honor Roll.

Rivas, a 5-9, 160-pound sophomore, scored three touchdowns on runs of 20, 60 and 66 and gained 203 yards on only 11 carries. Hataway, a 5-10, 160 senior, carried six times for 62 yards and a touchdown but completed another six passes for 158 yards and another pair of scores.

All totaled, he had 220 yards total offense.

The defensive star of the week had to be Springle-Earth's Steve Monreal. A 125-pound, sophomore middle linebacker, Monreal was in on 17 tackles, nine of them unassisted.

He also recovered four fumbles and blocked a pair of point-after attempts in the Wolverines' 22-20 loss to Sudan. Coach Radford Taylor also said he was in on two of four key tackles in a goal-line stand.

Another offensive star was Lubbudzie's Charless Steinbock. The talented quarterback rushed 17 times for 143 yards and a touchdown and passed 10 of 11 completions for another 98 yards and a TD in a win over the Muleshoe JV.

In addition, Steinbock, who stands 5-10 and weighs 160, punted four times for a 35-yard average and returned three punts for an average of 17 yards apiece.

Lorenzo had another one of those power-packed backfields. Gary Cunningham, a 6-1, 180 senior tailback, rushed 12 times for 158 yards and a score.

The fullback, 5-9, 175 senior Dale Miller, carried another 16 times for 114 yards and a TD; and the quarterback, 6-0, 160 junior Bobby Brown, carried the ball only six times but wound up with three scores.

Wilson runningback Calvin Wilke toted his 5-11, 180-pound frame 201 yards on 23 trips Friday night and crossed the goal twice. His backfield mate, Tony Garcia, carried only eight times but rambled for 119 yards and another pair of scores.

Abernathy's Lee McCune is in the news again. He "only" gained 133 yards this time, on 22 carries. That, along with the opener, gives him 385 yards rushing in the two-game-old season.

Denver City's senior tailback Jerry Hill carried 27 times and wound up with 160 yards against Kermit.

And, Springle-Earth strong safety Kenny Wright (a 5-7, 135-pound junior) made 17 tackles, caused a pair of fumbles and made two fourth-down solo tackles.

Other heroes in other games included Crosbyton halfback Kelly Ferree who picked up 239 yards on 17 carries against Jayton in a 21-7 victory. Amherst's Wayne Johnson scored four times on runs of 35.8, 14 and 8 to lead the Bulldogs past Anton.

Whitharral's Jimmy Avery carried 23 times for 136 yards and also caught two passes for 73 yards, a total offensive output of 209 yards. Happy's James Moore and Eric Venhaus each scored three times as the Cowboys ripped past the Levelland sophomores.

Venhaus scored on runs of 78 and 58 yards and on an 87-yard kickoff return. Moore's scores were somewhat less spectacular but counted the same, his runs measuring 5, 16 and 23 yards.

A pair of hot rushers faced off in the Amarillo Tascosa-Plainview match. Rocco Coleman led the easy winner (Plainview, 34-7) with 168 yards on 14 tries while Jerry Johnson led the losers with 142 on 32 tries. Depth had something to do with it: the Bulldogs had Billy Williams take up 163 yards on only eight tries and Ervin Davis get 97 on 15 cracks.

Littlefield's Rudolph Smith got three touchdowns and 200 yards on 29 carries. His scores were 86, 25 and 18.

Shallowater's Pete Alvarado got 115 yards on 10 carries in the Mustangs' 39-7 win over Hart. That gives him 240 yards rushing in two games.

John Miles of Sudan, facing the tough defensive pressure of Springle-Earth, still got 180 yards on 26 carries and scored on a 30-yard run and a 50-yard pass play.

Tech Women Take On ASU

Texas Tech women will try to bounce back from a disappointing weekend when they play hostess to Angelo State in a volleyball match beginning at 7 p.m. in the women's gym.

The Raiders dropped their first matches of the season last weekend in the North Texas State tournament. Tech defeated Oklahoma and Texas Woman's University but lost to North Texas, Southwest Missouri and Texas-Arlington.

Angelo State comes in with a powerful net game featuring the hitting and blocking of 6-0 Mary Eudy and 5-8 Jennifer Cook.

Tech has beaten ASU once this year, in the Tech tournament.

Lowe's winning bird was timed in a speed of 1316.19 yards per minute, or 44.46 miles per hour. This week, the club will fly its birds from Ft. Sumner, N.M.

Texas Pro Stars Suffer Hurts

By The Associated Press

It wasn't a good time for Texas professional sports heroes this week as both the Dallas Cowboys and the Houston Rockets suffered injuries to key personnel.

The Cowboys got more hurt than their pride Sunday in a 27-14 National Football League licking administered by the Los Angeles.

They announced Monday that center John Fitzgerald with a shoulder and thigh bruise, and wide receivers Tony Hill and Drew Pearson with leg bruises were questionable for Sunday's meeting with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Probables included defensive end Harvey Martin with a sprained big toe, safety Cliff Harris with a thigh bruise, linebacker Mike Hegman with a groin injury, running back Preston Pearson with a bruised forearm and a sprained knee, tight end Jay Saldi with a bruised knee, and cornerback Mark Washington with a tight hamstring.

The National Basketball Association Rockets, riddled by injuries last year, already have two players sidelined after four days of practice—guards Calvin Murphy with a dog bite and Mike Newlin with a broken finger.

Newlin, being counted on fill the starting position left by departed John Lucas, broke a bone in his right hand at Monday's practice and will be out for about six weeks, a Rockets spokesman said.

Estacado Tips Coronado

Carla Washington scored seven points as the Estacado volleyball team bumped Coronado 11-7 and 16-14 Monday night. Lisa Spauld led the losers with six. Estacado hit 90 percent of its serves through the two games while Coronado managed 88 percent.

No Pity For Abernathy

By RUSS PARSONS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Most folks were ready to hang out the black wreaths for Abernathy before the season ever started.

The Antelopes had struggled to a 1-9 season last year, hadn't won a single district game, and had lost 15 starters to boot.

Most folks just didn't give them much of a chance. In fact, most folks thought they'd be doing well to finish last.

Well, the Antelopes and coach Larry Aldridge have laid their critics low.

First off, Abernathy beat Class A power Petersburg 28-13 in its opener. Then, the Antelopes repeated the deed by topping Olton 9-7. To put that in perspective, District 4-AA favorite Idalou just got past Petersburg this past weekend by 13-12.

All in all, Abernathy has surprised a lot of people. In fact, it sometimes seems coach Aldridge is among them.

"We feel real good about it (the season) right now," he said. "We sure do."

"Both games were come from behind wins. I don't know, we've gotten some breaks, but I feel like we've made some. These kids have a great attitude. I can't say enough about how they've worked in the off season and I think this is a carryover."

"Our senior leadership is just great and we have an outstanding junior class. I hate to sound confident, but I really think we can play with anybody in our league. I just feel these 'kids just have such a great attitude I guess it just flows to the coaches."

The Antelopes only had one player returning across the front wall but he (David Kennedy) was a three-year starter.

And with a back like Lee McCune you can get by with an inexperienced line.

McCune has rushed for 285 yards on 36 carries in the last two games, and, Aldridge says, has attracted attention from Oklahoma and West Texas State.

And well he should. He had a field day his first game out against Petersburg, scoring touchdowns on runs of 88, 75 and 31 yards and totalling 252 yards on 14 carries. Not bad for beginners.

But the coach is quick to point out that his defense has done a good job too.

"In our first scrimmage we were blown out and of course Petersburg moved the ball real well on us, but I feel like the defense has turned our whole season around.

"We're on the one yard line against Petersburg and we hold them for four plays. Then we turn around and drive 30 yards to tie it."

"I believe that turned our whole season around. That was the defense that did that and then it was the defense that won for us last night (Friday). They held Olton to a touchdown."

LAST WEEK'S RESULTS — Abernathy 9, Olton 7; Idalou 13, Petersburg 12; Muleshoe 27, Floydada 7; Friona 7, Lockney 6; Canyon 24, Tulia 6.

West Texas Favored At X-Country

PLAINVIEW (Special) — West Texas State's John Chemarungo will be the individual favorite, and the Buffaloes could be the top team as Wayland Baptist College hosts its annual cross-country meet this afternoon.

The four-mile race will begin at 4 p.m. for both senior and junior college divisions. Entering the senior college division will be the host Pioneers, Texas Tech, Lubbock Christian College, Eastern New Mexico, Angelo State, and WT. The junior college field will have South Plains College, New Mexico JC, and Odessa.

Chemarungo will lead the Buffs' Kenyan contingent today.

Tech will have a seven-man delegation on hand. Leading will be seniors Ricky McCormick and Tony Lozano. Filling out the squad will be juniors Greg Lautenslager, Randy Yates and Ray Rees, sophomore Robert Wilson, and freshman Ed Brunning.

Rees is a transfer from Phoenix, Ariz., JC. He finished 16th in the nation in the juno finals a year ago.

Today's competition will be a two-way affair for the senior colleges.

In addition to the invitational portion, which involves all schools, the NAIA members will be fighting for the District VIII championship. LCC is defending champion, and coach Hugh Rhodes will have three members of last year's team on hand, sophomores Kip Mibey, Joel Koeh and Michael Jenkins.

Joining them will be four freshmen, Robby Hartley of Sebastopol, Calif.; Glynn Donahue of Renton, Wash.; Samuel Motari of Kenya and Julius Ogaro of Kenya.

Mibey and Koeh are also from Kenya. Another member of the LCC squad, junior Elmer Chavez, is sidelined with mononucleosis.

One of the WBC runners is Fred Bulltron, a former Lubbock Monterey athlete. Bulltron finished his high school career at Costa Mesa, Calif., after attending Monterey, but he has been in the Marines for three years. He finished 60th in last year's Boston Marathon.

Lemon Gets Unanimous Praise

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

In his 30 years in major league baseball, Bob Lemon never has pulled a rabbit out of his hat. He would be the first to tell you that the only things he makes disappear are a couple of belts after the game.

"I never took the game home with me," Lemon said in 1976 before his induction into the Hall of Fame. "I always left it in some bar."

No, Lemon is not some magician. But the easy-going manager of the New York Yankees has been instrumental in helping turn a supposedly insurmountable 14-game deficit to the Boston Red Sox in the American League East into a 2-1/2-game lead through Sunday's games.

Since Lemon took over for fiery Billy Martin on July 25, the Yankees themselves have caught fire, playing at a .717 clip with a record of 38-15.

"A while back, when we were 14 games out, it stung our pride," said pitching phenom Ron Guidry, the Yanks' Mr. Consistency all season long with a record of 22-2. "We are world champions and we wanted to make it closer. Now what has happened is unbelievable."

Of course, the turnaround is a lot more than a twist of Lemon.

It's taken a combination of Boston's near-total collapse and a healthy Bucky Dent and Willie Randolph, who give the Yanks one of the most dependable double play combinations in baseball. Throw in Catfish Hunter's miraculous recovery from a shoulder injury to give the team an inspirational edge and eight important victories since he returned from the disabled list July 17 — and all the elements are there.

But it's taken Lemon's cool, steady hand to take advantage of those elements and keep everything running in smooth order, a state of affairs that was noticeably missing during Martin's explosive regime.

To be sure, Martin did win a world championship with the Yankees last year. But there were daily tensions. Martin, ever the battler, knocked heads with owner George Steinbrenner and some of his players, particularly slugger Reggie Jackson.

As Lou Piniella noted last year, all the in-fighting was draining; it was counter-productive to winning baseball games.

Martin's ego was so involved in the team's problems that he tended to add fuel to their brushfires, while Lemon's cool helps douse those flames. Lemon hasn't made Thurman Munson and Jackson fast friends but has made their feud irrelevant to the business of winning games.

"If you can't play for him, you can't play for anybody," said Hunter. "Things are different now. Instead of everybody worrying about what the other guys are doing, they are just going out every day and doing their jobs."

"This is a better team than last year. We're playing as a team, not individuals. Lemon has been very instrumental, especially with our pitchers. As a former pitcher himself, he spots little things."

He also ignores downplays little things, which because of Martin's temperament often became big things in the past.

For example, early in Lemon's tenure, pitcher Ed Figueroa left the mound in a huff before the manager could yank him from the game. Lemon reportedly followed the angry pitcher into the clubhouse and firmly explained that Lemon was the manager and Figueroa was the pitcher.

End of message. End of incident.

Asked about Figueroa's action, Lemon refused to enlarge it. "Everything's all right," he said, declining to start a controversy. Martin, who needed to constantly show and tell everybody that he was the boss, handled similar incidents differently. He often wouldn't let these disputes drop.

And now Figueroa is one of Lemon's biggest boosters.

"He treats me like a man," said Figueroa, who often asked to be traded during the Martin regime. "He lets me pitch the hitters my way. I have more confidence with him than with Martin."

Then there was the game in Baltimore last month when Jackson pulled himself from the lineup, complaining of a bellyache. He was later seen devouring soft-shell crabs, and some of his teammates suggested his illness was caused by seeing his name in the No. 8 spot in Lemon's lineup.

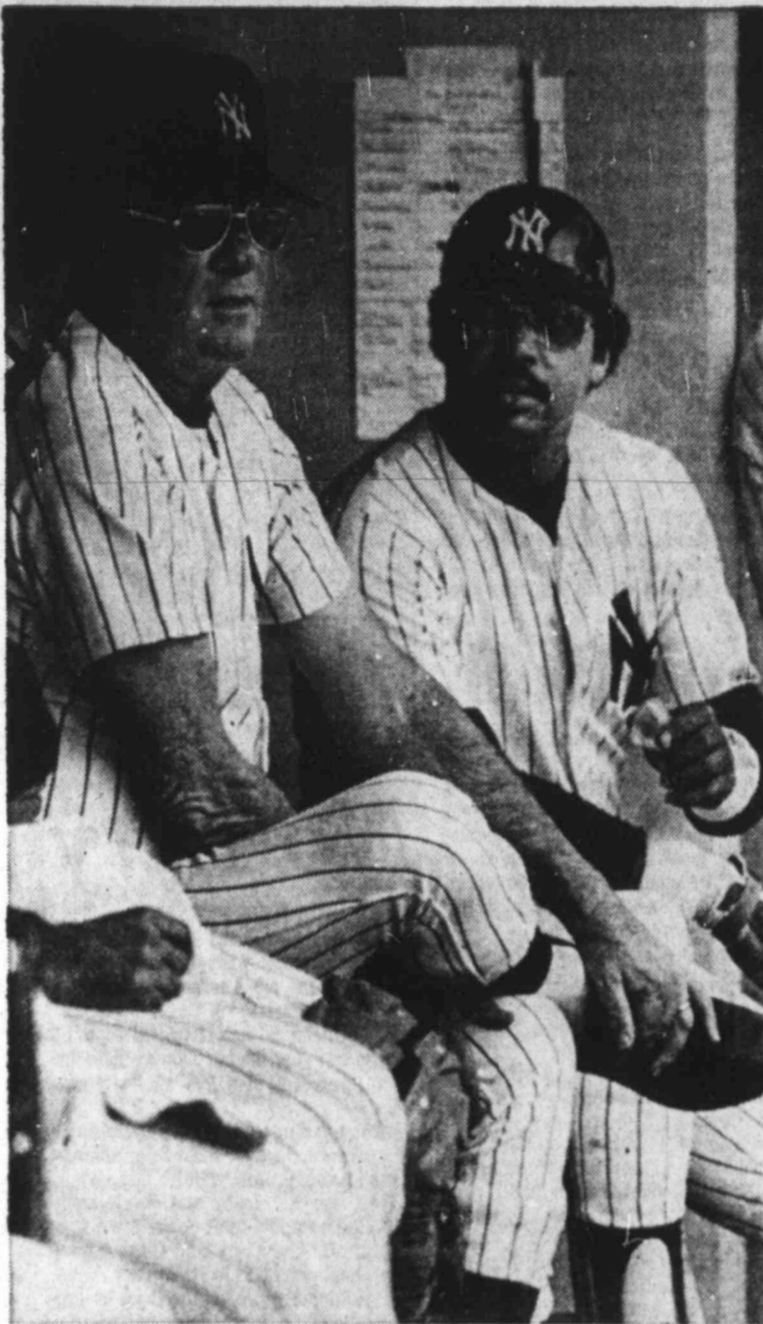

No one can be sure how Martin would have reacted to this situation. However, Martin never liked Jackson and used similar incidents to bait and bad-mouth the sensitive outfielder.

Lemon handled the matter his way. "All I know is that he told Clyde King he didn't feel good," Lemon said. "I'm not going to play the guy that isn't feeling good."

So then, Jackson has been a regular in Lemon's lineup — even playing with a damaged thumb — and he's been a big run-producer during the team's climb into first place.

"This is a whole ballclub now and it's playing very well," Jackson said. "Lemon has me a lot more relaxed. He has confidence in me and it's wonderful coming to the park and knowing you're going to play."

"Lemon tries to win every game and doesn't look for reasons to knock a guy or bench him or show him up. He just wants to win, not knock. "He isn't trying to make a fool of you all the time, like Martin did."

YANKEE PEACEMAKER—New New York Yankee manager Bob Lemon shares a bench and some conversation with Reggie Jackson. Team members and observers credit Lemon with New York's amazing comeback. (AP Laserphoto).

Then there was the incident in Seattle last month when Rivers, bothered by money problems again, played lethargically in a Yankee loss on Saturday night, then was late for the game Sunday. He was fined $250 by Lemon. Case closed.

"I'm not looking for any prolonged warfare," Lemon said. "He was late, I fined him, and that was it."

As is his style, Lemon downplays his role in pulling the Yankees together. "I think the main thing I contributed was leaving things alone and playing the lineup that won the world championship," he said Sunday after the Yanks had taken six of seven from the Red Sox in two crucial weekend series.

But if Lemon won't do the applauding, the team's record and his happy and winning players speak for themselves.

Court Ruling Could Affect Other Sports

DETROIT (AP) — Flashy young center Dale McCourt can begin training with the Detroit Red Wings, a federal court judge declared Monday in the first step of a lawsuit that could shake up National Hockey League play.

In allowing McCourt to stay in Detroit instead of reporting to the Los Angeles Kings, U.S. District Judge Robert DeMascio ruled that a league rule governing free agents was an illegal restraint of trade.

The rule allowed an NHL arbiter to award McCourt to the Kings as compensation for Detroit's signing of free agent goaltender Rogie Vachon.

Vachon became a free agent after playing out his option with the Kings last season.

DeMascio's ruling stemmed from McCourt's lawsuit against the Kings, the Wings and the National Hockey League Players' Association seeking to overturn the arbiter's decision.

The five-count complaint alleged that the three violated anti-trust laws, and attempted to restrain trade, restrain employment, breached his contract with Detroit and abused arbitration procedures in agreeing to the compensation provisions of the NHL.

McCourt's attorney Brian Smith said the 21-year-old center would report Tuesday to the training camp, which opened Monday in Kalamazoo. McCourt was in Canada and could not be reached for comment.

"Dale will be in Kalamazoo tomorrow with a smile on his face," Smith said. "He'll be overjoyed."

Although the judge ruled only on McCourt's request for a temporary restraining order, Smith insisted the decision would affect all league free agents.

"This will apply to all hockey players," he said. "This is a landmark decision."

A date for the hearing on the full lawsuit, which could shake the foundations of professional sports if upheld, was not set.

In agreeing to the injunction, DeMascio cited a suit filed by former Baltimore

Colt player John Mackey against the National Football League. That suit resulted in a court ruling against the so-called Rozelle rule. The rule imposed similar penalties on teams which signed free agents.

Like the Rozelle rule, DeMascio said the NHL's bylaw 9A "applies to all players without regard to their status or ability. It is more anti-competitive than the Rozelle rule."

He disagreed with the Kings' contentions that the rule was a good one, was fairly applied by the arbiter and was necessary to protect their financial interests.

He determined there was not enough evidence to uphold the Kings' arguments that without McCourt the team franchise was damaged, reputation eroded and ticket sales decreased by $300,000.

If anything, the loss of season ticket sales was due to the loss of Vachon and would not likely be made up by McCourt's addition to the team, DeMascio said.

"If 9A is necessary to protect gate receipts, why then is it necessary to be applied to all players?" DeMascio asked.

Yankee Power Strikes Brewers

By The Associated Press
Reggie Jackson and Lou Piniella slugged consecutive home runs and Mickey Rivers' infield single snapped an eighth-inning tie as the New York Yankees topped the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 Monday night.

Ceil Cooper's second home run of the game had tied the score 3-3 in the top of the eighth against Ed Figueroa, 18-9.

In the bottom of the inning, the Yankees loaded the bases on a hit batsman and a pair of walks, the second to pinch-hitter Cliff Johnson, who fouled off seven pitches before getting the base on balls from loser Bill Travers, 10-10.

With the infield in, Rivers drove a ball off shortstop Robin Yount's glove, delivering the winning run.

Jackson and Piniella connected in the second inning against Travers, who allowed only three other hits. Jackson's leadoff shot soared into the upper deck in right field, and Piniella followed with a long fly ball that fell into the lower stands in left field.

The Brewers tied the score on Cooper's first home run in the third inning and a homer by Sixto Lezcano in the fourth.

In the Yankees sixth, Chris Chambliss opened with a single and raced to third when Cooper booted Graig Nettles' grounder. Roy White followed with a fly ball to Larry Hise, and Chambliss raced home just ahead of the throw for the go-ahead run.

RED SOX 5, TIGERS 4
Jerry Remy's run-scoring single in the 11th inning gave Boston a 5-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers, thus keeping the Red Sox 2 1/2 games behind the first-place New York Yankees in the American League East.

Butch Hobson walked leading off the 11th and Jack Brohamer followed with a pinch-single — the first hit in 4 1/3 relief innings off rookie Steve Baker, 1-3.

John Hiller came in and got Dwight Evans to ground out and Rick Burleson to hit into a fielder's choice, with pinch-runner Frank Duffy thrown out at home.

Remy followed with his line single to center. Ron LeFlore might have had a shot at pinch-runner Garry Hancock at the plate, but overran the ball.

Andy Hassler, 3-4, the third Red Sox pitcher, was the winner.

The Tigers took a 2-0 lead against rookie starter Bobby Sprowl when John Workenfuss homered after a walk to Steve Kemp in the second inning.

The Red Sox scored in the fourth off Tigers starter Jack Billingham when Carlton Fisk hit a sacrifice fly following singles by Remy and Jim Rice.

Dwight Evans tied the score in the fifth with his 24th homer, then Rusty Staub put the Tigers ahead in the bottom of the inning with his 22nd homer.

The home run derby continued in the sixth when Fred Lynn followed Fisk's walk with his 22nd for a 4-3 Boston lead.

But Kemp tied the score in the eighth, tagging relief ace Bob Stanley for his 14th homer.

TWINS 10, ANGELS 4

Hosken Powell drove in two runs with a pair of singles and scored one run and Jose Morales had a two-run triple, highlighting Minnesota's seven-run fourth inning as the Twins beat California 10-4.

Winning pitcher Geoff Zahn, 13-13, allowed nine hits and six walks over 5 1/3 innings before needing relief from Stan Perzanowski, who earned his first save of the year.

In the fourth, the Twins sent 12 batters to the plate against three Angels pitchers, combining seven hits, two walks, two wild pitches and a fielder's interference into their highest scoring inning of the year.

Angels starter and loser Chris Knapp,

14-8, almost escaped the inning with just one run, but Rob Wilfong barely beat out a potential double play ball that would have ended the inning.

Dan Ford, who knocked in Powell with the first run, scored on the fielder's choice. Mike Cubbage singled in Wilfong for the third run, chasing Knapp.

ORIOLES 10, INDIANS 3

Rookie Gary Roenicke cracked his first major league grand slam home run. Billy Smith added a three-run triple and Eddie Murray scored four times, leading Baltimore to a 10-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Roenicke, called up from Rochester of the International League Sept. 1, hit his second home run of the season, highlighting a five-run first inning off Cleveland starter David Clyde, 7-11, who was knocked out during the uprising.
