Arabs Vow U.S. To 'Pay Price'

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas will begin attacking American targets everywhere to make the United States "pay the price" for inspiring the Camp David accords, Palestinian leaders said Thursday.

A high-ranking guerrilla official who asked not to be identified said the decision to strike against the United States and other Western targets was reached during a special meeting of all the main guerrilla group leaders Wednesday. He did not name specific targets.

The meeting took place just before the Palestinian officials attended the opening session of a summit conference here of leaders of "rejectionist" Arab states and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

George Habash, leader of the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine — part of the PLO — said Thurdsay in a joint interview with the three U.S. television networks the guerrillas "will do all we can to make America's present leadership pay the price for what it is doing at the present moment, against our national aims, our national rights."

Actions Not Specified

The Palestinian sources did not elaborate on what anti-American actions might be planned. There was no immediate indication whether the reported Palestinian stand was gaining support from the other summit participants — the presidents of Syria, Algeria, Libya and South Yemen.A PLO spokesman earlier this week made a similar threat of stepped-up guerrilla action against the West.

The summit participants were officially reported to be considering "practical and realistic steps" to neutralize the U.S.-mediated Camp David agreements between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam hinted some of their moves might be aimed at undermining Sadat's political position at home.

"The Arab nation is in a position to provide the conditions to foil the Camp David agreement," Khaddam told a news conference.

Precedent Cited

Under questioning by reporters, he refused to describe the measures under consideration. But he said there was a historic precedent for them in the Moslem world.

In the 12th century, he recalled, "the ruler of Egypt gave up Jerusalem to the invading Crusaders," but the renowned Moslem leader Saladin "then went to Egypt and regained Jerusalem." He was referring to Saladin's role in the ouster of Egypt's Fatimite rulers of the time and recapture of Jerusalem.

Asked whether the hard-line states would seek Sadat's overthrow, Khaddam replied that they "will exert every possible effort to overcome the present situation, resulting from the falling of President Sadat into Israeli hands."

Syrian President Hafez Assad and the PLO oppose the Egyptian-Israeli peace negotiations because they say only talks involving all the Arab parties, and not bilateral talks, can produce a just settlement in the Middle East. Other hard-line Arab states denounce any dealings with Israel.

Conference sources said Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, who spoke in a closed session at the summit, proposed that the participants prepare for war as the only way to restore Arab unity.

Iraq, one of the most staunchly anti-Israeli states, was boycotting the summit because of a running feud with neighboring Syria.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is to arrive in Damascus this weekend to try to soften Syria's opposition to the Camp David agreements. Khaddam said the summit might extend into the weekend.

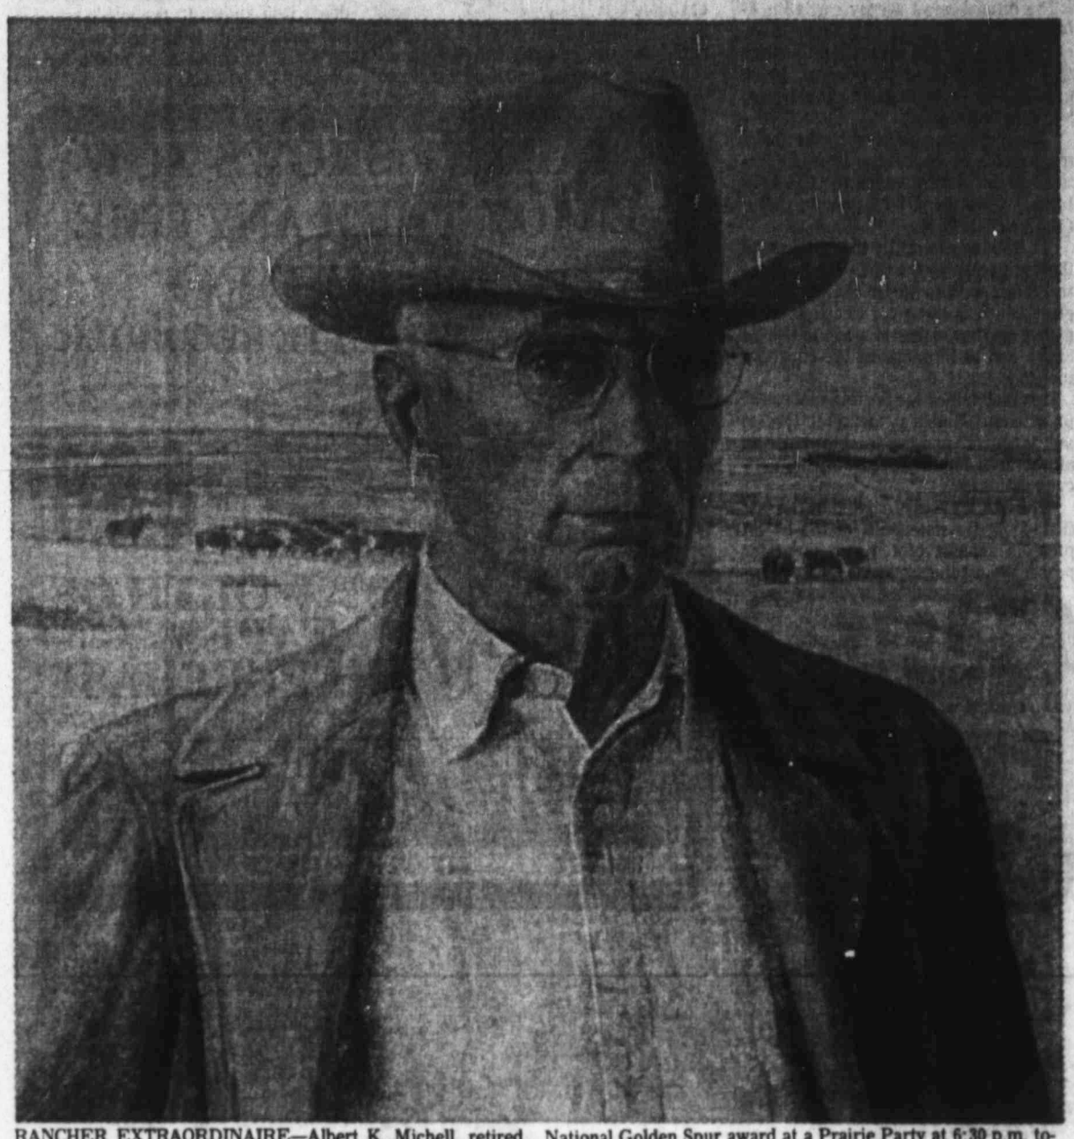
In other Mideast developments Thursday Jewish settlers fought with their fits Thursday as Israeli troops evicted them from a West Bank mountaintop, and Israeli television said two other settlements also were being thwarted by the government.

The settlers were challenging the Camp David accords that put at least a temporary ban on new Jewish settlements on the disputed West Bank of the Jordsan River.

"We will never give up," said a spokesman for the settlers. "We will continue to settle the and. This is our land and we intend to settle it."

About 200 residents of Kiryat Arbe, a Jewish town near Hebron, on the southern West Bank, occupied a hill and began building a house as soldiers were evicting the Nablus settlers. Israeli news sources said the army moved in to evict several hundred demonstrators there.

About 100 settlers moved into the first camp Tuesday, but the government ordered them out later that day. Troops surrounded the site, but more sympathizers slipped into the settlement



RANCHER EXTRAORDINAIRE—Albert K. Michell, retired New Mexico rancher who will be honored in Lubbock today, is depicted in a Peter Hurd portrait. Mitchell will receive the first National Golden Spur award at a Prairie Party at 6:30 p.m. today in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

New Mexico Rancher To Receive First Golden Spur Award

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

RANCHING heritage — the story of livestock from free range to computerized feedlots — will be lauded and one particular contributor to its status honored today in Lubbock at a Prairie Party launching the National Golden Spur Award.

More than 1,800 ranchers, descendants of ranching families and fans of the ranch story will gather in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center to enjoy a pioneer prairie party at which Albert Knell Mitchell, a retired New Mexico rancher, will receive the prestigious award.

A gilded spur is presented each year to an outstanding member of the ranching industry at a prairie party the night before the annual ranch day festivities at the Ranching Heritage Center at Texas Tech University.

Lottery Selects Recipients

The 1978 spur was donated by Watt R. Matthews of the Lambshead Ranch of Albany who is honorary chairman of the board of overseers of the Ranching Heritage Association. Future spurs from historic ranches will be selected each year by lottery.

Mitchell's life spanned the scope of ranching, from the days of riding herd on open range to driving a gather by helicopter.

His influence has touched many phases of the industry, as evidenced by livestock organizations he has headed: International Livestock Exposition of Chicago, National Western Stock Show in Denver, National Livestock and Meat Board, American Hereford Association, New Mexico Cattle Growers Association, American Quarter Horse Association, American National Cattlemen's Association and the board of trustees of the Cowboy Hall of Fame and Heritage Center.

Mitchell, who was born in Clayton, N.M., when his father was running cattle and sheep on open range, was educated at Cornell University, to which he later gave its first Hereford cattle and served on its board of trustees.

During the Depression he kept the massive Bell Ranch afloat, then purchased it in 1947 to divide it into seven ranches. Three years later, he was to begin disposal of 820,000 acres of the famed Matador Ranch.

Former Legislator

He served as a state legislator, was a member of the Republican National Committee from 1942 to 1965 and was chairman of one national party convention.

In addition, he was a member of the national advisory committee for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, chairman of the livestock industry advisory committee to the Secretary of Agriculture on hoof and mouth disease, a member of the advisory committee of the Commodity Credit Corp., Agricultural Research Administration, and chairman of the national livestock tax committee.

In 1976 he was elected to the Cowboy Hall of Fame's Great Hall of Westerners.

Lives In Connecticut

Mitchell is now retired in Connecticut while his only son, Albert J., operates the Mitchell Tesquesquite Ranch. His only daughter, Linda Mitchell Davis, lives in Cimarron, N.M. Both his son and daughter and their children will be in Lubbock for the award.

Others on hand for the award and prairie party will be represenatives of the sponsoring organizations: Lauren Carlson of Chokio, Minn., for the National Cattlemen's Association; Mr. and Mrs. James Powell of Fort McKavett for National Wool Growers Association; John S. Cargile of San Angelo for Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association;

New Boosts In Housing Costs Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing prices will soar at least 10 percent next year and families looking for homes will continue to see high interest rates, economists said Thursday.

The average American home buyer paid about $55,600 and got a mortgage interest rate of about 9¾ percent last month for both new and used houses.

But Michael Sumichrast, economist for the National Association of Home Buildzrs, predicted the cost of new and used houses should continue to rise at a rate of 12 percent to 14 percent over the next year.

10 Percent Hike

Government economists, less pessimistic, predicted that the average house will go up 10 percent in price in the next year.

"If anything is certain it is that the interest rates will keep going up," said Sumichrast. He predicted that interest rates will not decline substantially for the next three to five years.

However, one government economist said he thinks interest rates will reach their peak at the end of the year and possibly decline slightly.

"There should be some softening. It is unlikely, however, that they will get down to the 5 percent to 7 percent or 8 percent rates we experienced before 1968," said economist Dick Marcis. He is deputy director of economics for the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Buy Or Wait?

Marcis was asked whether people should buy a house now or wait in hopes the outlook for buyers will improve.

"If they have the financing arranged and have found the house they want, it does not make a lot of sense to wait for rates to get lower," he said.

"They may be gaining ¼ percent or ½

BUDGET SUPPORTED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Thursday approved 225-162 a 1979 federal budget which trims more than $20 billion from the deficit originally projectd by President Carter. It makes room for an income tax cut $2 billion larger than the $16.1 billion recently approved by the House.

School Bus Ditched By Floodwaters

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

UNREMITTING rains that battered the southern South Plains Thursday caused a Coahoma school bus to wash off the road and prompted minor urban flooding in Midland and Odessa.

The National Weather Service's alert for flash flooding, however, proved needless as the area's soil continued to soak up additional rain adequately. Parts of the South Plains, including Lubbock, have a slight chance of additional rain today.

Except for the driver, the Coahoma school bus was empty when it was washed off the road by high water about 10 miles east of Big Spring, according to an Avalanche-Journal correspondent.

Bus Remains Upright

The bus remained upright in a field bordering the road and water coursed through the coach, Tommy Hart of Big Spring said. The bus driver was not injured.

Hart added that parts of Howard County reported up to 6 inches of rain from late Wednesday night through Thursday morning.

As a chilling front continued its slow push through West Texas, it dumped 2.21 inches of rain on downtown Odessa, 3.50 inches at Sprayberry just south of Midland and 1.74 inches at the Midland Regional Airport since early Thursday morning.

A spokesman for the Borden County sheriff's office said about 2.6 inches of rain fell in that area from Wednesday night to noon Thursday, with unofficial

Development Funds Handling Rapped

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A SMALL but vocal group of southeast Lubbock residents told city officials Thursday night it's time to quit surveying and time to start spending Community Development funds in their neighborhoods.

About 30 persons attending the Sector 2 Community Development neighborhood meeting at Posey Elementary School made plain their displeasure with the fact the federal funds have not reached them.

City officials have gotten input from East Lubbock residents "over and over" in the five years since the CD program began, Lorenzo Sedeno said. "But some of the areas have not been touched since 1972.

Results Demanded

"We like to give input, but we like to see results too," he said.

"The first meeting here there was close to 200 people (attending)," Sedeno said gazing at the sparse crowd. "You raise the hopes of people then nothing is accomplished."

Sedeno recommended "raising a stink with the city council and parks and recreation. All we have is one lousy little park," he said.

"We need streets and street lights and better drainage. A lot of people can't get out of their houses because of poor drainage," he said.

However, Assistant City Manager Jim Blagg said he didn't understand how area residents could claim nothing had been done when nearly 40 percent of all the city's share of CD money for the past four years had been spent in Sector 2.

Quirt Avenue Demarcation Cited

But residents countered that most of the federal funds have gone for improvements west of Quirt Avenue rather than east of Quirt, specifically in the area between Quirt, Guava, 19th and 16th Streets.

When Urban Renewal director Orville Alderson told the residents not to give up hope and to keep requesting needed improvements, Mrs. Louis Gil noted sarcastically, "all we have to do is beg."

"You ask us to write down what are our needs, but since the program began we're still waiting" for results, she said.

"Something's got to be done or that lake of yours (the Canyon Lakes Project) is not going to look very pretty," Mrs. Gil said.

Residents of the Phyllis Wheatley area voiced the same frustrations as the Posey

Fair Launching Slated Saturday

"FAMILY FUN for everyone," and a lot more of it than ever before, is the word for the 61st annual Panhandle South Plains Fair which kicks off an eight-day run Saturday.

Fair Park will be bulging at the seams with: all the fun of old-fashioned fairtime competition, carnival and corn-on-the-cob when exhibits open at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Dished up on the side will be a large dose of the latest things in modern technology for home, farm or ranch.

Even 10,500 square feet of added space in a new $65,000 exhibit building couldn't take care of the overflow of a fair production termed topnotch by general manager Steve Lewis.

"Without question, we have one of the best fairs in history lined up," Lewis said, adding that the crowning ingredient for a successful run — cool weather — came right on schedule.

"Fair is synonymous with fall and this is great fair weather. Everybody likes to come out to the fair when it's cool."

Show Tickets Moving

Tickets for the outstanding lineup of country and western stars set for Fair Park Coliseum are going great, better than usual for this early, though there are some good seats left for all the shows: The Charley Pride Show with Dave and Sugar at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sunday, The Statler Brothers at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Monday, the Johnny Rodriquez Show with Linda Hargrove at 8 p.m. Tuesday, The Jim Ed Brown Show with Helen Cornelius and Wendy Holcombe at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Eddit Rabbitt and Jerry Clower at 8 p.m. Thursday, and Mel Tillis at 8 p.m. Friday and 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday.

A magician, a hypnotist, a daredevil swaypole act, a gunfight, a mime presentation and a contortionist are among free entertainment scheduled for fair fans.

Beginning at 6 p.m. each night, free entertainment will take control of the outdoor stage. There will be Bob Ford's World of Magic leading the way, followed by Ruth Rubin's mime show, the Swaying Bilros, the Amarillo gunfighters, Europe's fastest hypnotist Vandermeide and a repeat run beginning at 8 p.m.

The Bilros and the Amarillo Gunfighters will kick off a special appearance at 5 p.m. on both Saturdays and on Sunday.

Special Free Attraction

A special free attraction in the agriculture building will be April Tetro, appearing Saturday through Wednesday with her contortion act.

The actress, acrobat, dancer and special entertainer is sponsored by the fair association and the National DistrDistributing Co. which has a booth in the agriculture exhibits.

"She's the kind of performer who can tie her legs in knots and wrap them around her head," Lewis said of the added attraction.

Visitors to the Tetro show may find a familiar face seen on any number of video shows as an actress and on talk shows as a contortionist or dancer.

In the western field, books open at 8 a.m. today and close at 5 p.m. Wednesday for the All-Youth Rodeo that opens Thursday and runs through Saturday. A

One Slain, Another Hit In Shooting

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 27-YEAR-old Meadow man was killed and his father, of Lubbock, was critically wounded Thursday night when an apparent argument at a southeast Lubbock residence escalated into a shootout.

Johnnie Garcia of Box 253, Meadow, was pronounced dead at 9 p.m. by Justice of the Peace Charles Smith, who ruled the death a homicide.

Felipe Urria Garcia, 52, of Rt. 4, Lubbock, was in critical condition at 11 p.m. in Health Sciences Center Hospital undergoing emergency surgery for two bullet wounds to the abdomen.

Witnesses' Reports Sketchy

Police meanwhile were trying to piece together sketchy witness reports of the shooting outside of 5609 Magnolia St.

One witness told officers the father, son and three other men had been inside the residence when an argument broke out with another group of men.

After arguing briefly inside the house, both groups went outside to their cars where several allegedly reached for guns they had stored in their vehicles. Witnesses said two bursts of gunfire then erupted, with five shots being fired the first time and four more fired only seconds later.

Victim Hit Twice

The younger Garcia was struck at least twice, once in the head and once in the upper body.

The elder Garcia, who apparently was partially inside one vehicle when he was hit, was hurried out of the area by three companions who took him to his home near 98th Street and Quirt Avenue. He was taken from there to Health Scienes Center Hospital by an EMS ambulance.

Police late Thursday were searching for four or five Mexican-American males, reportedly travelling in a mid-1960s model green Chevrolet or Oldsmobile.

Services for Garcia are pending with Sanders Funeral Home. His death marked the city's 25th homicide so far this year.

Help For Cambodia Urged By Ex-Leader

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Cambodian President Lon Nol emerged from three years' isolation Thursday to make an emotional appeal for help in ousting Cambodia's extremist regime from the United Nations and ending the slaughter of his countrymen.

Sitting in a cane chair under a magnolia tree in the garden of his former Washington embassy, Nol branded the Marxist Khmer Rouge regime "barbarians and savage animals who do not deserve to be members of the human race."

Nol, now about 64, left Cambodia shortly before its fall in April, 1975. He has lived in seculusion in Hawaii.

Soviet News Agency Hits CIA

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass said Thursday tge CIA is spreading "crude lies and slander" about the Soviet mass media in an attempt to whip up anti-Soviet hysteria in the United States.

The official news agency carried a 1,000-word commentary denouncing a recently released CIA report the Congress that said the main purpose of Soviet propaganda is to discredit the United States by any means.

"The materials published by the Soviet mass media never had the sweeping 'anti-American' nature which the CIA tries to ascribe to them," Tass commentator Oleg Anichkin wrote.

"... Nothing can justify the actions similar to this step by the CIA — its provocative false report to the United States Congress which is obviously aimed at instigating anti-Soviet hysteria in the United States and at intimidating the congressmen."

Tass maintained the Soviet press works to promote Russia's "peaceful foreign policy course" and has tried to create an atmosphere for improved Soviet-American relations.

"The CIA is clearly irritated by the fact that energetic statements of the Soviet press in support of the movement for peace, against the arms race, prove effective," Anichkin wrote.

"The CIA is indignant that the ever-growing number of Americans, among them political leaders, wish to get truthful first-hand information about the Soviet Union.

"This is the reason why the CIA prepared for the congressmen the report containing crude lies and sander directed against the Soviet Union, against the Soviet mass media."

Tass noted that one target of the Soviet press has been the CIA and "its dirty deeds well known to the whole world," and said the U.S. intelligence agency has used the American mass media for its own anti-Soviet ends.

Commission 'Unaware Of CIA Plot'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford conceded Thursday the Warren Commission was unaware of CIA plots to kill Fidel Castro when it ruled out the possibility of a conspiracy behind John F. Kennedy's assassination.

Ford agreed that with this knowledge, the commission would have broadened the scope of its investigation. But he voiced doubt that a such an inquiry would have changed the commission's basic conclusion that Kennedy was shot to death by a lone assassin — Lee Harvey Oswald.

"Had the Warren Commission known of assassination plots directed against Castro, this might have affected the extent of the commission's inquiry," Ford told the House assassinations committee.

"It certainly would have required the commission to extend its inquiry into those operations," he added. "But I don't think they, in and of themselves, would have changed the conclusions."

Senators Okay Cuts In Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee approved on Thursday a $4-billion cut in the tax on capital gains and, in an effort to win President Carter's support, also endorsed a new alternative minimum tax aimed at the wealthy.

Committee aides estimated about one-third of the $4 billion of capital-gains tax relief would go to those with incomes over $200,000 a year. The new alternative minimum tax, which has not yet been approved, would raise more than $1 billion, about 90 percent of which would come from the over-$200,000 group.

As its part in the fight to hold down spending, the committee voted 8-2 to require that personal and business income taxes be raised automatically in future years when federal spending exceeds a set level.

When filing their income taxes, taxpayers would be informed for exactly what purpose the surtax was being levied — such as to pay for 50 new submarines or a new education program. The only exception from the surtax requirement would be when unemployment exceeds 7 percent.

The proposal, by Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., could be overturned when eight absent senators cast their votes.

The committee's proposed changes in capital gains taxes on individuals would be effective on Nov. 1, 1978, two months ahead of the corporate capital gains cut and most other changes in the tax bill.

The administration has insisted that any cut in capital gains taxes retain some type of minimum tax that would hit mainly high-income investors who use large deductions to pay little or no income tax.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee and one of the most vocal advocates of lower capital gains taxes, agrees.

Long told the committee he would withdraw his support from the capital gains cut unless the remainder of the tax bill is balanced "so that people of all shades up and down the ladder are treated fairly."

By that, he meant that the bill would have to give more tax relief to low-and middle-income groups than did the House bill.

By a 13-1 vote the committee agreed to exclude from regular income taxes 70 percent of capital gains, which are profits from the sale of assets held a year or longer. In combination with the proposed alternative tax, that would mean the maximum theoretical tax on capital gains would be about 21 percent.

The only vote against the capital gains tax cut was cast by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Current law excludes 50 percent of capital gains from the regular tax and subjects a portion of that to a 15-percent minimum tax. The result is a total tax of up to 49.1 percent. In reality, the average total is about 16 percent.

Energy Commission Studies Fuel Supply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission reported Thursday that the nation's interstate pipelines probably can get enough natural gas this winter to avoid numerous closings of industrial plants, although some plants may have to burn alternate fuels at times.

The commission staff, in a summary of reports collected from 29 major interstate pipelines that carry some 99 percent of the natural gas flowing across state lines, said the companies expect to have gas supplies slightly smaller than the amount delivered last winter.

The expected supplies do not include emergency gas purchases that might be necessary to meet surges in demand.

"It appears that the national impacts of natural gas curtailment this coming winter are generally manageable if gas supplies, including 60-day emergency volumes and alternate fuels, are available in anticipated quantities, and if weather is not extremely cold throughout the winter," the report said.

It said a preliminary Department of Energy study indicates that no significant shortage of alternate fuels such as propane and fuel oil is anticipated, even if the winter is colder than normal.

The report said 17 of the 29 companies "project no significant adverse impact" of natural gas curtailments. The 17 firms said they expect gas curtailments to be offset by use of alternate fuels or the availability of other gas supplies and did not forecast emergency purchases of gas.

The other 12 pipelines indicated they might need additional gas supplies, but most expected to need only "minor amounts."

Only two of the 12 — Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line and United Gas — expect to need substantial additional gas purchases, the report said.

But Transco's report said the company would make emergency purchases for its customers and no major problems are expected.

Transco said that "only one industrial customer (Farmer's Chemical Association of North Carolina) expects to shutdown due to a lack of alternate fuel capability" and this company "has not, nor does it intend to, request emergency gas."

United Gas expected "no adverse impact or shutdowns" in normal winter weather, but said it would have to rely on emergency purchases to keep all gas-burning plants open if the weather is colder than normal.

United said it could not estimate potential impacts, however, until the regulatory commission completes action on its proposed curtailment plan and alternative plans.

'LOSS' REDEFINED

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A judge has ruled that paralysis constitutes "loss" of feet under terms of an insurance policy. The judge ordered the insurance company to pay $10,000 to Richard Aronson, left paralyzed by a 1975 skiing accident. Aronson was covered by his parents' group accidental death and dismemberment policy providing for a $10,000 payment for "loss" of both feet.

Oil Group Gives Run Averages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Total crude oil runs to still averaged 15,475,000 barrels daily during the week ended Friday, September 15, the American Petroleum Institute reported Thursday. This compared with 15,523,000 barrels daily in the previous week and 14,765,000 barrels daily a year ago.

Crude runs east of California averaged 13,040,000 barrels daily compared with 13,092,000 the previous week and 12,336,000 a year ago.

Motor gasoline production for the latest week amounted to 7,403,000 barrels a day, compared with 7,326,000 barrels a day in the previous week and 7,028,000 a day a year ago.

East of California motor gasoline production was 6,369,000 a day compared with 6,219,000 a day last week and 6,015,000 a day a year ago.

Motor gasoline stocks at the end of the latest week were 217,005,000 barrels, versus 211,082,000 a week earlier and 247,068,000 a year ago.

East of California motor gasoline stocks totaled 191,230,000 barrels, compared with 186,209,000 in the previous week and 218,587,000 barrels last year.

Daily average gross crude oil and lease condensate production for the week ended Friday was 8,905,000 barrels compared with 8,644,000 last year.

Crude oil stocks totaled 325,339,000 barrels at the close of last week, against 325,482,000 a week previous and 330,299,000 a year ago.

East of California crude stocks amounted to 268,246,000 barrels, compared with 268,431,000 a week earlier and 270,295,000 last year.

Daily imports east of California for the week ended Friday were crude oil, 6,061,000 barrels, residual fuel oil, 1,281,000, distillate fuel oil, 122,000 and others 425,000, a total of 7,889,000 barrels.

California imports were: crude oil 319,000 barrels, and products 111,000, a total of 430,000 barrels, for a grand total of 8,319,000.

For the four weeks, daily imports east of California were: crude oil 6,109,000 barrels, residual fuel oil 609,000, distillate fuel oil 53,000, and others 183,000, for a total of 6,954,000 barrels.

For the four weeks, California daily imports averaged for crude oil 454,000 barrels, products 111,000, a total of 565,000 barrels, for a grand total of 7,519,000 barrels.

An Energy Bill--At Any Cost?

A NATURAL GAS deregulation bill abhorred by both producers and consumerists is moving toward almost certain approval for no reason other than that President Carter "needs" an energy bill of any sort to shore up his image.

Texas Railroad Commissioner Jon Newton says the compromise now before the Senate violates a producing state's constitutional right to conrol its own natural resources for markets within its own boundaries.

Consumer advocates oppose the bill because they think it'll drive up prices.

Federal energy regulators concede its complex provisions will be impossible to enforce.

Industry sources say it'll be a bottleneck, rather than a help, in making the nation more nearly self-sufficent in energy.

WITH ALL THAT opposition, why then is the bill about to be approved by the Senate?

Mainly because the President promised foreigners that he would shore up the dollar by passing an energy bill and the heat is on Congress to pass any sort of bill, no matter how bad, to keep him from losing face.

By a vote of 59-39, the Senate rejected an effort to send the bill back to conference committee—and thus in effect kill it—and will instead probably give it final approval next Wednesday.

Senators from oil-producing states and senators in the forefront of consumer protectionism—an unlikely coalition—voted to kill the measure, but after 17 months of haggling the majority is eager to get "an energy bill" behind them before the November elections.

AS IT NOW STANDS, the measure will gradually deregulate the price of natural gas produced in one state and consumed in another, completing the process by 1985.

In the meantime, however, federal price controls which were a leading cause of the interstate shortage which hit the nation in the mid-1970s will be extended to the intrastate market. Because the intrastate market has not been regulated, Texas itself has a surplus of gas right now although consumers here have been paying somewhat higher prices.

If controls were lifted immediately, many producers claim, market forces would go to work and, by 1985, prices likely would be lower than they're to be under the regulated price that will be in effect at that time.

MORE IMPORTANTLY, opponents of the pending compromise bill argue that unless the free market is allowed to work exploration for new gas will be discouraged and the nation is likely to remain an energy-deficient country too dependent on foreign oil.

The 23 different classes of gas provided for in the bill—each class carrying a different regulated price—will be a bureaucratic nightmare, energy officials concede.

Many congressmen appear incapable of understanding that market forces are better at controlling prices than are bureaucrats over the long haul or that the only way to get people to invest in high-risk ventures such as oil and gas drilling is to let the potential payback be worth the risk.

In the absence of such an understanding, it is no surprise that Congress will pass a bill which will bring higher prices on us without solving the energy shortage.

A 'Really Big Show' On Tap

ONE OF THE area's "show windows" will be opened this Saturday for what promises to be another successful run.

We refer, of course, to the 61st annual Panhandle South Plains Fair. The gates swing open Saturday and stay that way through next Saturday.

Before they close, upwards of 300,000 persons are expected to flock to the Fairgrounds in east Lubbock to view all sorts of agricultural exhibits, livestock, the Midway and a series of spectacular shows.

TIME WAS when the annual fair was almost the highlight of the year. Certainly, it still is one of the top features annually and is sort of an official "start" of Fall signal.

Annually, the exposition, recognized as one of the largest such regional events in the nation, draws some of the top exhibitors in the country.

Often, livestock shown here are taken to larger events, such as the State Fair of Texas. Personalities who perform in the Fair Park Coliseum are nationally known. The fun-carnival and local outlets, such as food services, and such always attract their share of the visitors.

ACTUALLY, THE Fair offers "something for everyone."

Whether it is a horse show, flower festival, canned goods, quilting, farm exhibits, military equipment, or commercial booths, the thousands who flock to the City usually find several hours of enjoyment, not to mention education.

This year, the Panhandle South Plains Fair comes at an appropriate time, just as the area's Harvest Season is getting underway.

Youngsters and area school students, of course, always find the Fair a welcome break.

As usual, Lubbock is honored to play host for this extravaganza. It is an opportunity for area residents to drop by, renew acquaintances, stop and shop and talk.

And as usual, we say "Welcome! And Y'All Come!"

M. STANTON EVANS:

CSC Can See No Evil; That's The FBI's Job

WASHINGTON—The collapse of the nation's internal security system not only continues but is now accelerating at a giddy pace.

A few weeks back this column reported the somewhat incredible news that the Civil Service Commission (CSC), which implements guidelines for federal employment, no longer considers "mere membership" in the Communist Party to be a hindrance to federal job-seeking.

Being a Communist, in the now-official view, is just a matter of constitutional right, and nobody ought to be denied a federal job for that.

The same applies to membership in a host of other subversive and/or terroristic organizations.

That disclosure, one might think, is bad enough; but now it turns out that there is more.

THE CIVIL SERVICE people admitted under questioning in the Senate that membership in a terroristic organization might possibly be a clue to something serious—such as committing terroristic actions—that is still considered a bar to getting a federal job.

But since the commission no longer takes official notice of such membership, following out this sort of lead becomes a little difficult.

The explanation for this see-no-evil attitude provided by spokesmen for the commission is that looking into subversion and terror is a job for the FBI.

As CSC chief investigator Robert Drummond put it in his testimony, "We rely heavily on the Federal Bureau of Investigation which really has the statutory authority for internal security.

"To the extent that we check a name against their files, if that individual has had any activity with these organizations, we should get it."

TO THE CASUAL reader that statement might suggest the problem is being taken care of by the FBI; but it has now become quite clear that this is not the case.

As Drummond himself observed, the bureau's activities in this area have been curtailed by Justice Department guidelines.

Moreover, in recent hearings before the House Intelligence Committee, Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, brought out the fact that the FBI is not conducting any investigations of possible membership in, or activity with, subversive organizations by employes of the federal government.

The exchange between Ashbrook and Sebastian Mignosa, chief of the Domestic Security Section of the FBI, was as follows:

"ASHBROOK: MR. Mignosa, your section is called the Domestic Security and Terrorism Section.

"In addition to terrorism cases, does your section handle the subversive organizations that come under the Loyalty and Security Program Executive Order 10450 (which supposedly bans employment by the federal government of people who might endanger national security)?

"Mignosa: We don't have those, no.

"Ashbrook: Who in the FBI handles this?

"Mignosa: There isn't any at the moment.

"Ashbrook: No one?

"MIGNOSA: There aren't any of those types of cases at the moment.

"Ashbrook: The Civil Service Commission recently told the Senate Judiciary Committee that they do not report mere membership in subversive groups to the hiring agency.

"I am just wondering, if the FBI does not watch the subversive groups, you don't report mere membership, is there any way to know if someone is a member, let alone if his membership activities are such that he would be barred from federal employment?

"Mignosa: There is not any way, sir."

In other words, the Civil Service Commission has closed its eyes to the question of membership in subversive or terrorist groups, partly on the grounds that looking after internal security is a function of the FBI.

But further inquiry suggests the FBI is not looking into the matter, either. So there is literally no one keeping watch to insure that potential terrorists, spies or saboteurs aren't being infiltrated into the federal government.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Young UN-does It

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Administration policymakers alarmed over loss of American export business are moving against human rights vetoes of commercial sales abroad with help from a most surprising source: Ambassador Andrew Young.

As a result, barriers to foreign trade imposed by Assistant Secretary of State Patt Derian's Human Affairs Bureau will soon be lowered.

These changes will remove some of the restrictions on Export-Import Bank credits for foreign sales, and assure foreign nations of new efforts to protect their traditional trade patterns with the U.S.

The intervention of Andy Young, a potent human rights disciple, came in a secret diplomatic cable Aug. 22 to national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Young warned that rigid application of Mrs. Derian's human rights standards was "denying jobs to U.S. workers" and "weakening" the U.S. economy.

YOUNG'S UNEXPECTED missive also went to Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, the administration's top human rights strategist, and Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps.

Its timing gives special significance to the warning from Young, who has frequently embarrassed the White House with rhetorical hip-shooting.

It coincided with the arrival on the President's desk of Secretary Kreps' proposals for beefing up U.S. exports—essential to strengthen the dollar and reduce the trade deficit. These proposals have been in the drafting stage for months.

One key part of the Kreps plan argues along the lines laid out in Young's cable to the White House.

Without quite demanding detailed studies on the cost-benefit ratio of foreign trade deals rejected by Derian's human rights office, the Commerce document argues cogently as follows:

U.S. EXPORTS are depressed by human rights vigilance as well as regulations restricting under-the-table payments to middlemen and dealing with the Arab boycott against Israel.

The implication is strong: benefits to American foreign policy of these restrictive measures must be weighed against their cost in terms of U.S. jobs and the U.S. competitive position in world trade.

Young posed the issue this way in his diplomatic cable to the White House:

"We should avoid using our economic power in a way that impedes (economic) development in the recipient countries while denying jobs to U.S. workers and weakening our economy and our balance of payments situation."

ONE CONSPICUOUS case is the Export-Import Bank's denial of credit, at the order of Derian's office, for the $270 million sale of turbines produced by Allis-Chalmers for the new hydroelectric dam on the Parana River between Argentina and Paraguay.

The two countries have just given an additional 30-day grace period to Allis-Chalmers, rather than order turbines elsewhere, in hopes that the Ex-Im Bank decision will be reversed.

A less publicized case involved a hydroelectric project called the Itaipu Dam between Brazil and Paraguay. With both Westinghouse and subsidiaries of General Electric as principal bidders for 18 large turbine generators valued at $700 million, the contract went to foreign producers, including Switzerland's Brown-Boveri.

ADMINISTRATION officials told us several factors were involved in losing that award, including Brazilian anger at President Carter's campaign against a nuclear reprocessing plant. But they also said human rights was a factor.

That was made clear in a brief aside to a U.S. diplomat by President Alfredo Stroessner of Paraguay shortly after the award was made.

Gen. Stroessner commented icily that Mrs. Derian ought to be informed that the contract had not gone to a U.S. source. The State Department was promptly informed.

One problem has been Derian's passionate conviction that the U.S. must use its economic power as a lever to pry concessions out of states guilty of human rights violations—many of which are right-wing dictatorships in Latin America.

UNTIL NOW, her zeal has carried the day within the bureaucracy. She has unquestionably caused some improvements, but at heavy cost. Now the tide is turning.

Economic officials at State and Commerce are joining forces in the campaign to dull her human rights sword without impairing its ideological sheen.

One high State Department official told us privately that Mrs. Derian "is now acknowledging that on occasion she herself may have overstated the human rights case."

The result of excess zeal: over-stress on human rights at the cost of U.S. jobs during high unemployment and record trade deficits.

ANDREW TULLY:

No Hope In Dope

WASHINGTON—When public schools opened, it was gratifying to learn that a few more of them had adopted something old, for a change.

That's what's good about the program called EXCEL—it's nothing new. More important perhaps than a return to the three R's, EXCEL emphasizes discipline, both self- and school-applied.

EXCEL is the brainchild of the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

The basic premise is that school children need a "high moral atmosphere," and encouragement at home and at school from parents, teachers and clergy in order to do well in the classroom.

This minister specializes in homilies that rhyme to sell motivation.

He seeks to challenge today's youth, making it plain to them that "the choice is theirs: they can put dope in their veins or hope in their brains."

AND, "WE MUST teach our children that if they can conceive it and believe it, they can achieve it. They must know it is not their aptitude but their attitude that will determine their altitude."

Schools in Kansas City, Los Angeles and Chicago, among others, have EXCEL programs, and more than 50 other schools have expressed an interest.

The program starts with students signing pledges in which they promise to "push for excellence by striving to learn as much as I possibly can...I will respect the authority of my parents and accept the help of my teachers."

Just as important, parents pledge to pick up their child's report card and make sure the child studies for two hours every day; teachers promise to "use all means available" to educate students and instill discipline and respect in them.

A FEW MONTHS back, I dropped in at a Howard University conference and listened to a smart cookie named James Ball, principal of Los Angeles High School.

Ball is intelligent, which is good. He's also tough, which in the context of the problem, is better. "You've got to put pressure on the kids," Ball said.

"If we find the kids in the halls we take them in the intake room and hassle them. If we catch them in the halls three times we call their parents. We want to counteract the pressures that are pulling them out of the classroom.

"It may sound juvenile, but it works."

EXCEL programs are funded by school boards, which appoint a council that decides how best to apply Jackson's ideas at their school.

SOME OF THE EXCEL schools also fund tutors, who work half a day with EXCEL students to help them improve their grades.

A "community liaison" observes classes, then tells parents what can be done to help their children do better.

Most of the students involved are black, and the Rev. Jackson has a set, pragmatic speech in which he explains why black students must try harder.

"We must excel because we are behind," he says. "There is one white attorney for every 680 whites, one black attorney for every 4,000 blacks; one white physician for every 649 whites, and one black physician for every 5,000 blacks."

When a man talks like that, an observer is tempted to applaud.

JAY HARRIS:

The High Fliers...

AS THE TWO young couples walked away from the Reese AFB flight line, one of the men turned to his companions and said:

"Now, that's something I don't mind my tax money going for. That was great!"

He, and thousands of Lubbock area residents had just witnessed an exhibition by the world-famous U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds. In so doing, they joined some 130 million around the globe who have watched the precision flying team in more than 25 years of "selling" the Air Force and the U.S. itself.

Now in its second quarter century, the Ambassadors in Blue epitomize "the dedication, discipline, hard work and perseverance of each Thunderbird to strive for perfection within the limits of his or her own abilities."

IT WAS AN elite audience which saw the spectacular show during RAFB's recent Armed Forces Day.

On hand were top brass, visiting firemen and Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi and Amb. Ardeshir Zahedi of Iran. The Crown Prince, of course, is training at Reese. The Ambassador had flown in for one of his frequent visits.

Later, we visited with the Thunderbirds. And although they perform like Supermen in the Skies, on the ground they are ordinary Americans with some extraordinary talents.

Talking with them, you come away prouder, walking taller because men like these are out there keeping this nation free.

IT MAY SEEM like long ago, and in point of plane and pilot progress it is, but it was 1953 to be exact, that the Thunderbirds came into being.

There had been other aerial demonstration teams. The first such group represented the Army Air Corps and the Navy.

Known as the Three Musketeers and the Sea Hawks, these two highly trained groups made their joint debut in 1928 at the National Air Races in Los Angeles, stunning 40,000 spectators with their precision flying and acrobatics. In the ensuing years, other groups performed, including the Air Corps 1st Pursuit Group, credited with perfecting the famous Bomb Burst maneuver.

With the end of World War II and the coming of the jet age, something new was added to the Air Force. As the Korean War came to a close in 1953, as a Thunderbird book puts it, "there were very few pilots in the world experienced in flying aircraft weighing 12 tons at speeds approaching that of sound."

IN AN EFFORT to demonstrate the safety and reliability of Air Force jets, an official Air Force Demonstration team was born.

Known as the 3600th Air Demonstration Flight, it got down to business June 1, 1953 at Luke AFB, near Phoenix. A special team of pilots and maintenance people was chosen and the first official show was given June 16 of that year at Williams AFB. By the end of the year, the group which included the only twins in the team's history, had given 50 performances before two million people.

It was "the start of something big." In the past 25 years, the Thunderbirds have presented more than 2,150 shows in every state in the U.S. and 45 foreign countries throughout the Free World.

IT HAS BEEN a magnificent story, much of it included in an impressive booklet, which features a crowd of Lubbockites.

It would be impossible to chronicle even a fraction of the history of the Thunderbirds here. Suffice it to say that in 25 years of thrilling millions and selling America at home and abroad, the various teams have mastered and demonstrated the versatility and safety of most of the Air Force's most sophisticated aircraft.

Today, the team uses the T-38A Talon, which is identical to the advanced training plane used at Reese AFB. The Thunderbirds began using it during the 1973 Oil Embargo to save fuel.

The Thunderbirds come by their name naturally. The team's first home near Phoenix is surrounded with Indian lore. Long ago, as thunder and lightning pierced the skies, Indians stood with arms outstretched in reverence, their eyes searching the heavens for the great Thunderbird responsible for the phenomenon.

The name was a natural. Today, the Air Force Thunderbirds also pierce the heavens and bring awe and respect.

LUBBOCK AND indeed West Texas long have had a love affair with the Air Force, having served as "home base" to thousands of Air Force personnel.

The area has sent its sons and daughters to the Air Force, many having paid the supreme sacrifice. In fact, a former Lubbockite—Capt. Jerry Bolt—was a narrator-slot man with the Thunderbirds from January 1971 to December 1972 when he died on a practice flight.

To Jerry and all the Thunderbirds, past and present, we think the poem at the back of the booklet says it all. Entitled "High Flight," by John Gillespie Magee, Jr., it reads:

HIGH FLIGHT

Oh, I have slipped the surly bonds of earth
And danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings;
Sunward I've climbed, and joined the tumbling mirth
Of sun-split clouds—and done a hundred things
You have not dreamed of—wheeled and soared and swung
High in the sunlit silence. Hov'ring there,
I've chased the shouting wind along, and flung
My eager craft through footless halls of air.
Up, up the long delirious, burning blue
I've topped the windswept heights with easy grace
Where never lark, or even eagle flew,
And, while with silent, lifting mind I've trod
The high untrespassed sanctity of space,
Put out my hand, and touched the face of God.

ANCIENT WALL decorations that date back to old Rome indicate the bikini bathing suit was worn many centuries ago. But the first bikini of modern times was modeled in 1946 by a dancer named Micheline Bernard. What was noteworthy about the event was that afterwards she received more than 50,000 fan letters.

Bergen Planning Retirement; Charley Going To Smithsonian

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The 56-year partnership of Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy is coming to an end, with Bergen easing into retirement and McCarthy headed for an eventual home at the Smithsonian Institution.

America's most successful ventriloquist and his top-hatted, monocled dummy appeared at a news conference Thursday to announce the parting.

Singer Andy Williams also was present to announce that the pair's final appearances will be with Williams at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas and at December concerts in Cleveland and Cincinnati.

McCarthy was his irrepressible self with reporters and camera crews. He gazed blankly at Bergen and cracked: "How can you retire when you haven't worked since you met me?"

When McCarthy accused Bergen of being unable to throw his voice without moving his lips, the ventriloquist responded, "I've taken a lot from you."

McCarthy: "Yes, and you've kept every penny."

Bergen, 75, admitted that he might make a few charity appearances and that the dummy would remain with him for his lifetime.

Why is he retiring? "I get tired of working and saving money and sharing it with those who didn't," he said.

For a voice-thrower whose lips move, Bergen has nevertheless made millions with McCarthy, the doltish Mortimer Snerd, the old maid Effie Klinker and other dummies. He traced his career through the Chautauqua circuit, the Lyceum theaters, vaudeville, radio, nightclubs, movies and television.

"In my senior year in high school in Chicago, my English teacher told me that I shouldn't count on graduating," Bergen told the news conference. That was when he began working with McCarthy, and when the teacher saw him perform, she agreed to his graduation, saying, "The world needs laughter more than another history teacher."

Bergen and McCarthy made their debut on May 9, 1937, on the Chase and Sanborn Coffee radio show. For years they were the No. 1 program in radio, and Charlie's feud with W.C. Fields became legendary.

Said McCarthy: "Are you eating a tomato or is that your nose?"

Fields replied: "Why, you blockhead! I'm going to feed you into a pencil sharpener."

In 1952, Charlie had a much-publicized radio wedding to Marilyn Monroe, who said she was "wearing my wedding dress ... something borrowed."

McCarthy replied: "You didn't borrow enough."

Oddly, the ventriloquist act did not transfer well to television. Bergen starred with Charlie in a few specials and has made numerous guest appearances but never succeeded with his own series.

In recent years the ventriloquist has been known to a new generation, mostly as the father of actress Candice Bergen. He is married to former model Frances Westerman, and they also have a teen-age son.

McCarthy remained tart-tongued to the end. When asked Thursday why Mortimer Snerd wasn't invited to the Smithsonian, he replied: "That shows good faste; he isn't very smart, you know."

Asked how it was working with Bergen all these years, Charlie remarked, "It hasn't been easy. The man has no talent."

RETIREMENT ANNOUNCED — America's most successful ventriloquist, Edgar Bergen, poses in a 1938 picture with Charlie McCarthy, left, and Mortimer Snerd. The 56-year partnership of Bergen and McCarthy is coming to an end, with Bergen easing into retirement and McCarthy headed for an eventual home at the Smithsonian Institution, Bergen announced Thursday at a Hollywood news conference. Scientists To Study Desert Structures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Using space satellites to chart their course, U.S. and Egyptian scientists will venture next week into an Egyptian desert seeking information that could slow the steady encroachment of deserts everywhere onto fertile soil.

The two-week, 1,000-mile adventure will take the explorers through massive sand dunes and trackless wastes once roamed by nomads and camel caravans, but which look intriguingly like areas on Mars that were photographed by America's Viking spacecraft.

The desert is the most desolate region of Egypt, where temperatures climb to 100 degrees in the sun and plunge into the 30s and 40s after dark.

There are 33 men, including drivers and guides, and one woman in the joint expedition, which will set out Monday in four-wheel-drive vehicles from El Kharga, about 325 miles south of Cairo.

They'll head southwest toward the oases of Bir Tarfawi and Bir Misaha before striking due west to their main goals, Oweinat Mountain and Gilf Kebir Plateau.

The principal test site is the Oweinat Mountain area where the caravan will camp for four days.

"It is here that we find the surface streak and sand dune features that are most similar to Mars," said Dr. Ted A. Maxwell, one of the American geologists who works for the Smithsonian Institution's National Air and Space Museum.

"Once we see what causes the colors and streaks at Oweinat we can compare them with the Viking photos of Mars. We might learn more about the form and structure of Mars."

Maxwell said archeologists also will search for artifacts in the area.

"We know the Oweinat area was arable land about 3,000 to 4,000 years ago and that people lived here," he said. "Shepherds left their marks on the mountainsides in the form of rock art or painted pictures."

The Gilf Kebir Plateau, where the expedition will camp for three days, also might provide clues about Mars.

"The plateau is dissected by canyons, probably from water erosion, which look very much like erosion patterns on Mars," Maxwell said.

Tracking the scientists all the way will be the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Nimbus-6 satellite, which will receive signals from an expedition radio beacon and relay them to the agency's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

The signals will enable scientists to pinpoint the group's location and later to locate where samples were taken and observations made.

Heading the expedition is Dr. Farouk El-Baz, research director of the Center for Earth and Planetary Studies at the Air and Space Museum. El-Baz, a native Egyptian, once instructed American astronauts on the geology of the moon.

Among other Americans on the team are an archeologist and three geologists from the U.S. Geological Survey, including the lone woman, Carol Breed of Flagstaff, Ariz. They will be joined by scientists from Ain Shams University in Cairo and the Geological Survey of Egypt.

"We are now at a stage where we must acquire a better understanding of the desert environment and of the ways and means to tame it, lest more areas of the Earth become wasteland," El-Baz said. He noted that Tunisia has lost about half its arable land to desert.

"One tool at our disposal is photography from space," El-Baz said.

A special photographic mosaic of the desert region was prepared by Goddard experts using imagery photos from America's Landsat earth resources satellite. The pictures also helped El-Baz map an expedition route.

"We'll sample the different colors of sand, grain sizes and composition, and by studying large dunes in the space photographs, we'll be able to identify which dunes are likely to shift and threaten arable land," Maxwell said.

"We know that near the Nile River, the lighter-colored sands are encroaching more rapidly.

"We can extend this knowledge to other deserts of the world, and once a bad area is located, something can be done to stop it, such as planting vegetation."

Firm Sets Award For Media Project

Three thousand dollars in awards will be presented to students who compete in the Tenth Annual Philip Morris Marketing-Communications Competitin for college students.

Purpose of the competition is to provide students with a practical and realistic business project, bringing them into direct contact with the business community.

Competition deadline is Dec. 15. Student committees of more than five students in undergraduate level or two or more at the graduate level must prepare proposals under the supervision of a full-time faculty member or a Topic choices are open to the parent corporation or any of its non-tabacco products and operations. The company is engaged primarily in the manufacture and sale of products in cigarettes and beverages industries. Two of its operations are Seven-Up and Miller Brewing companies.

A $1,000 grant will be awarded to winning entries at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. Runners-up will receive $500 grants and other finalists in the undergraduate and graduate categories special merit awards.

Marketing and communications experts judging entries include Eugene H. Kummel, chairman of Wells, Rich and Green; Arjay Miller, dean of Stanford Business School; William Ruder, president, Ruder and Finn; and James C. Bowling, senior vice kpresident, Philip Morris.

Jurist Leaves Kent State Suit Retrial

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — U.S. District Judge Don J. Young said Thursday that he has withdrawn as judge in the retrial of the $46-million lawsuit stemming from the 1970 shootings at Kent State University.

Young said that his efforts to bring about a settlement of a lawsuit without a second trial have failed, and, in a letter to attorneys in the case, said "My resources are exhausted .... I cannot do more."

Young had a pretrial conference with attorneys in the case in May and had expected to begin ruling on pretrial matters next month.

He said he had expected the second trial could begin some time early next year. The assignment of a new judge should not affect that timetable, Young said.

A jury's verdict clearing Gov. James A. Rhodes and other state officials of liability in the deaths of four Kent State University students and the wounding of nine others May 4, 1970, was overturned by the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in September 1977.

The appeals court said that the case must be heard again because one of the jurors had been threatened during the 15-week trial presided over by Young in 1975. The U.S. Supreme Court let that ruling stand.

Levelland Mayor Resigns

A-J Correspondent

LEVELLAND — Mayor Daryl Pults resigned his post during Tuesday night's city council meeting.

Pults, manager of J.C. Penney here, is being transferred to manage the company's store in Ada, Okla.

Pults, who has lived in Levelland for nine and one-half years, had been mayor for the past one and one-half years. Prior to becoming mayor, he had served on the city council for two years.

The council appointed fellow councilman Don Henderson to serve out Pults' unexpired term and named Lonnie Stern to fill out Henderson's term on the council.

Genealogical Workshop Slated

ODESSA (Special) — The Permian Basin Genealogical Society will sponsor a workshop from 4:30 p.m., Sunday in the Ector County Library here.

Lucile Boykin from the Dallas Public Library will conduct the workshop on "Historical Research and Genealogical Records."

A $5.00 fee will include packets.

Baker Vows Gas Regulation Struggle

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican attorney general candidate Jim Baker said Thursday that Texas should sue if Congress imposes price controls on gas sold and used strictly within the state.

He gave reporters copies of the suit he already has drafted — a petition that begins, "The State of Texas, by and through its Attorney General Jim Baker."

Congress currently is considering federal price controls on gas sold within a state as part of an energy package that gradually would phase out all gas ceilings.

Baker's suit would seek to have such controls declared unconstitutional.

Baker said in a position paper on energy that it would take a Republican attorney general to push such a suit.

"The attorney general must be insulated from the political pressures which will surely be exerted by the present administration to halt such legal action," he said.

He also suggested a slowdown in Texas' conversion from gas to coal as a boiler fuel if other states drag their feet. He said California's energy commission had urged a reduced pace "because the fast pace of coal conversion in Texas would free a supply of 'cleaner' Texas natural gas for California use."

"The Texas Railroad Commission and the attorney general must closely monitor the conversion efforts of other states to make certain they keep pace with those of Texas. Should those efforts slacken, I will urge the railroad commission to reconsider its timetable for coal conversion," Baker said.

He denied the proposal was vindictive.

"All I mean to suggest is there should not be a one-way street," he said.

Baker also said he would actively represent consumer interests on gas and electric price increases if he thinks they are unfair.

"I can tell you I would be in there as vigorously or more so than my opponent," Baker said.

The Democratic nominee is former Secretary of State Mark White.

Baker and White agree on one thing — suing Montana to force reduction of tha state's 30 percent severance tax on coal used mainly in other states for boiler fuel.

"If we lose that lawsuit, we may find ourselves in a tariff war with other states," he said.

Baker said he does not believe Texas should raise its natural gas production tax because "we enjoy a $1 billion surplus, and I don't think we should raise taxes unless we need the revenue."

He said that federal price controls on intrastate gas would hurt consumers even though they would peg gas prices at less than they are now.

If prices are lower, so would state revenue from gas production taxes, he said.

Phenomenal Waves Blamed In Tragedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — An old salt of the Great Lakes has rejected official accounts and has told Congress the S.S. Edmund Fitzgerald was swallowed up by "The Three Sisters," a trio of killer waves, when she went down with all hands.

The sinking of the freighter, bearing iron ore on a run from Superior, Wis., to Detroit, occurred during a violent storm Nov. 10, 1975, about 17 miles from Whitefish Bay. Capt. Ernest M. McSorley and the other 28 men aboard perished.

In a renewal of hearings into the tragedy, memorialized in a popular song by Gordon Lightfoot, the House subcommittee on coast guard and navigation heard a rehash of several contradictory findings by government, industry and labor groups.

But the most dramatic testimony came from Lyle A. McDonald of Laurium, Mich., who said, "My license to appear before you, gentlemen, stems from having lived a very rough life as a commercial fisherman on Lake Superior starting at age 7...I have lived the day and night of the Edmund Fitzgerald many, many times, on lesser ships and during earlier days."

"I respectfully submit...that the Fitzgerald did sink to the bottom of Lake Superior as the result of her having been caught precisely by the Three Sisters, or three big waves. The Fitzgerald submarined!"

The Coast Guard and the National Transportation Safety Board have theorized that the ship was done in when water rushed through the hatch covers on deck. The board says the covers collapsed, while the Coast Guard believes they simply were not battened down properly.

Some dissenters on the board as well as some maritime organizations believe, instead, that the ship crashed into shoals and ripped her hull apart below the water line.

But McDonald, in defense of McSorley's honor, argued that the ship was simply engulfed by the waves. "I am amazed that the phenomenon of the Three Sisters is not more widely known," he said. "Most certainly the older sailors...are fully cognizant of the fact that the Three Sisters are a reality on Lake Superior."

By his account, the winds on that day were greater than 60 mph, the conditions ripe for the killer waves. "What we are talking about is that at irregular intervals, during a storm, three waves will occur, possibly one-third larger than the average seas of the moment."

The average wave in the storm would have been about 18 to 20 feet, he said, while the Three Sisters would have been up to 30 feet. The Edmund Fitzgerald had less than 14 feet of freeboard, height from the water line to the deck.

"The Three Sisters swept up the full length of her decks and piled up against the after side of the pilot house," said McDonald. "The backwash of the first wave was met by the advance of the second, and both backwashes joined with the third sea. These seas were travelling twice as fast as the ship, and this permitted a tremendous weight to remain on the forward section of the ship."

Youngster Beats Long Odds With Recovery From Liver Cancer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two years ago, doctors found James Conway had cancer of the liver. They told the youngster's parents he had about two months to live.

His physician called several hospitals, "but they didn't want to see Jimmy because they said his condition was hopeless," said his mother, Nora Smart of North Ridgeville.

This summer, the 12-year-old youngster was back playing Little League baseball and throwing "a pretty mean fastball."

What is more, doctors at Cleveland Clinic, where James finally went in the summer of 1976, say he may have made medical history.

Dr. Edmund J. Doering III, clinic pediatrician who coordinated the boy's 14-month treatment, said Wednesday that James is believed to be the first person cured of multiple malignant tumors in both sides of the liver.

Doering said his patient has not needed additional intensive therapy for the past year, "and as far as we can see, his tumors are in a state of complete remission." However, he has continued to received limited treatment.

The disease, known technically as multifocal hepatocellular carcinoma, is a rare and often-fatal form of liver cancer, the clinic said. In adults, it is prevalent among alcoholics, but "cases in which children have been known to be affected in both lobes (sides) are extremely rare, with no more than 200 cases ever reported," said Doering.

James' illness was discovered in 1976, when his mother and stepfather, Nora and Wilfred Smart, noticed a lump on his stomach.

"I knew I was slowing down, but the lump was not bothering my Little League pitching," James recalled.

Then he began losing weight, dropping from 66 to 46 pounds.

The clinic started intensive treatment in July 1976, and during the next 14 months James underwent two operations to have some of the tumors removed. He had more than a month of frequent radiation therapy, and more than six months of chemotherapy to have the remaining tumors eliminated. The continuing treatment is designed to prevent a recurrence of the cancer.

During his treatment, James missed only about two months of school. With some help from his teacher, who took his homework to the hospital or to his home, he even managed to make the honor roll, said Mrs. Smart.

Don't just buy a roof. Call out the Guard.

Glassguard.

GLASSGUARD®. MADE WITH LONG-LASTING FIBER GLASS.
A Glassguard fiber glass based asphalt roof really has what it takes to resist the elements.

For example, a Glassguard roof won't blister, curl, warp, expand, shrink or absorb moisture—some of the problems associated with conventional roofing.

Glassguard is installed with a special sealing strip that assures a positive and long-lasting weather seal.

And you end up with a roof that's going to look great—and last for a long, long time.

GLASSGUARD. IT CARRIES THE TOP RATING FOR FIRE PROTECTION. CLASS "A".
Glassguard fiber glass based shingles have literally proven themselves under fire.

In a torture test in which burning brands were placed directly on Glassguard and conventional shingles, the conventional shingle burned through. Glassguard only scorched before burning itself out. And subsequently earned the highest U.L. rating possible —Class "A".*

GLASSGUARD. A LONGER-LASTING ROOF DESERVES A LONGER WARRANTY. 20 YEARS.
A Glassguard roof offers you an extra bonus—peace of mind.

In addition to fire resistance, every Glassguard roof is also U.L. rated for wind resistance.

Every Glassguard shingle is made of only the highest quality materials—and must meet the most exacting of quality control standards—CertainTeed's standards.

It all adds up to a 33% longer warranty than offered with conventional shingles—a 20 year limited warranty—backed with confidence.

GLASSGUARD. BEAUTIFUL SHINGLES. BEAUTIFUL COLORS. AND A BEAUTIFUL PRICE.
Glassguard offers a lot over conventional roofing.

And to get the advantages of Glassguard—the Class "A" fire protection, the greater durability, the longer warranty—you'll be happy to know you won't have to skimp on looks.

Because Glassguard fiber glass based asphalt shingles come in a wide choice of popular colors.

Rain Fails To Hamper Burglars Here

Burglars, apparently undaunted by the city's wet, cool weather, continued their raids on Lubbock homes and businesses.

Webster Wren Averyt told police that early Thursday intruders pried open the service window at the 1911 50th St. Taco Villa he manages and took $57 cash from an office and $20 worth of spoons from the kitchen.

Herbert Taylor also complained that the business where he is manager was hit by burglars. Taylor said two work jackets, valued at $20 each, were taken from Maben Wholesale Floral at 702 Main.

He said the intruders also broke an inner office door from its hinges, causing $100 damage. Officers were unable to find any sign of forced entry into the main building.

David Darden, a salesman with Empire Pawn at 1120 19th St., told police that he noticed Wednesday a $139 .44-caliber revolver was missing from one of the firm's showcases.

Gene Perry of 1709 23rd St. said he had been checking on Jimmy Farrell's residence behind Perry's home and discovered early Thursday that the front door of the Farrell home was open.

Reports indicate the door had been pried and Perry listed as missing a clock radio, dishes, clothing, records and tapes.

Dock A. Parker said someone broke into his vehicle late Wednesday or early Thursday while it was parked at his 3007 E. 3rd St. home and took an $89 CB radio, $26 8-track tape deck and two speakers, together valued at $14.

There was more dampness than the weather in an out-of-towner's arrival in Lubbock early Thursday, police were told. All of his clothing, except for what he was wearing, was stolen by two women who offered him a ride and help in finding a motel room.

Larry Dale Sharpe of Snyder said he was walking into town from Lubbock International Airport about 1:30 a.m. Thursday when the suspects, two white women in a white and black Chevrolet, stopped and gave him a ride.

He said he was taken to a motel in the 6000-block of Avenue A. Sharpe said that while he was talking to the desk clerk the two women drove off with all his clothes, which he estimated to be worth $400.

The suspects were last seen traveling east on U.S. 84.

Police today were investigating the theft of nearly $600 in city property Wednesday morning.

Jim From, in charge of equipment at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, told police a sound booth in a banquet hall was broken into about 11:30 a.m. Wednesday and an amplifier and two speakers stolen. He estimated the total value of the sound system to be $578.

Eugene C. Mojekwu of 2301 10th St. said vandals did about $400 damage to his car while it was parked in the 1100-block of Avenue F from about midnight to 12:30 a.m. today.

Reports show that the victim's vehicle had a hole in the windshield and the hatch window had been shattered.

Two shotguns, valued at $700, were reported stolen in a break-in Wednesday at Leland Holderman's residence at 3008 60th St. A neighbor told police he saw two teen-aged males walking around the house about 2 p.m.

About $380 in stereo equipment, a television and jewelry apparently caught the eye of burglars Wednesday night at Sherrod Afton Roach's apartment at 2402 9th St. Roach said the burglary occurred about 10 p.m.

School Racial Balance Said Achieved

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Court-ordered specifications for racial balance at eastside and northside elementary schools have been met or exceeded, school officials Thursday told U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward.

In a progress report on desegregation, Superintendent Ed Irons said only Dunbar-Struggs High School has not been able to achieve its projected enrollment. As of Sept. 8, that magnet school still lacked 62 white students, he said.

Nevertheless, the Dunbar-Struggs figures are not alarmingly low, school officials said. For one thing, since the Sept. 8 census, Dunbar-Struggs has picked up 11 more white pupils. And the proportion of whites in the school's student body is about 42 percent — just four percentage points below the projection.

Also, the Dunbar-Struggs figures do not include the 45 white students who are commuting to that school for only one or two courses, Irons' report said.

Generally, the study said, "The projections (on which the integration plan was ordered last spring) were unusually close to actual enrollment" experienced this fall. Dunbar-Struggs was one exception, and Iles Elementary was the other, Irons said.

He noted that the Iles magnet program greatly surpassed its projection by attracting 94 more white students than expected.

Unlike the voluntary magnet programs, the other previously minority schools in the plan have been integrated by mandatory reassignments — busing minority students out and white students in. These projected reassignments have materialized, Irons said.

Guadalupe Elementary was projected to have an enrollment of 333 students, 54 percent of them white, The actual enrollment shows 254 students, with 54.7 percent white.

Mahon Elementary was projected to have an enrollment of 289 students, 65 percent white. The actual figures are 298 students, with 65.4 percent white.

Martin Elementary was projected to have 418 students, with 68 percent white. The actual enrollment is 355 students, with 66.2 percent white.

Posey Elementary was projected to have an enrollment of 531 students, with 65 percent white. The actual figures show 471 students, with 65 percent white.

Wheatley Elementary was projected to have 466 students, with 60 percent white. The actual enrollment is 377 students, with 58 percent white.

"Our enrollment figures indicate a loss of approximately 800 students from the projected figure for 1978-79," Irons' report said.

"The enrollment decrease is on all levels and does not necessarily show that students involved in the desegregation process are those not enrollment for the 1978-79 school year.

"The district is now involved in a study to determine the number of students that moved from the district, enrolled in private or parochial schools, and those not enrolling for any other reason."

The report shows that Iles, which was projected to have only 143 students with 38 percent white enrollment, actually has 275 students, 54 percent white.

Dunbar-Struggs was projected to have 863 students, 46 percent of them white. The actual enrollment, as of Sept. 8, was 811 students with 41.3 percent white.

A census taken on Monday, however, shows Dunbar-Struggs with 826 students — 346 whites (41.9 percent) and 480 minorities (58.1 percent).

King Khaled Sets Visit To Clinic

WASHINGTON (AP) — King Khaled of Saudi Arabia, who underwent open-heart surgery at the Cleveland Clinic in 1972, will return there next week for tests, his ambassador here confirmed on Thursday.

The 64-year-old monarch, whose views on an Arab-Israeli settlement are considered vital to its success or failure, has led the oil-rich nation since March 1975. He succeeded King Faisal, who was assassinated.

Khaled's support for the Camp David summit agreements is being courted by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who is on a visit to the Middle East. President Carter dispatched Vance to try to rally support from Jordan, Syria and Saudi Arabia.

President Carter has been in contact with the king, but the two are not expected to meet while Khaled is in the country, officials said.

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose i to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printe in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am presently 58 years old and still working. I am a widow and I have only been working the last two years since my husband died. I plan to quit work when I am 60 and start drawing Social Security widow's benefits. I know that there will be a reduction. Can you explain how it will work? — B.J.

If you draw Social Security benefits prior to the age of 65, your benefits are reduced 19/40 of 1 percent per month for each month prior to age 65 that you begin drawing any Social Security widow's benefits. If your husband never received any Social Security benefits, then your percentage is figured on his unreduced benefits. If your husband was drawing Social Security benefits at his death, then your widow's benefit percentage is based on the amount of money he was drawing. At age 60 your percentage is 71.5 percent, age 63, 88.6 percent age 64, 94.3 percent and age 65 — 100 percent.

Once a widow begins to draw benefits at a reduced rate, then she must stay on this reduced rate as long as she draws.

For people nearing the age of retirement who need information on Social Security, Heartline has written a book. Heartline's Guide to Social Security is written in easy-to-understand question-and-answer form. To order, send $2.00 to Heartline, P.O. Box 11934, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: My husband and I have just retired. We are planning to move to a warmer climate. The last time we moved, when my husband changed jobs, we were able to deduct some of the moving expenses from our taxes. Will we be able to again deduct these expenses? — H.J.

Since you are moving to a warmer climate for pleasure reasons and not a job change, your moving expenses will not be tax-deductible. The only way that a person can qualify for this tax deduction is if the move is for a job change and the new job site must be at least 35 miles away.

HEARTLINE: My husband retired from a Civil Service job due to disability in 1976. He has been drawing Civil Service disability ever since. Last week he received a letter from Civ Service saying that he had to have a medical examination for hi disability. Does this mean that they will take his disability benefit away from him? — K.C.

No. Periodic medical examinations are required for a disability annuitant until he or she reaches the age of 60, unless, in the meantime, it is found that the disability is of permanent nature. A finding of permanent disability may be made upon the examination, and generally will eliminate the need fo any further examinations.

The government pays the expenses for these examinations and if travel is required, the annuitant may be reimbursed for any reasonable expenses.

If your husband is found to have recovered from his disability, the annuity is continued temporarily (not to exceed one year) to give him an opportunity to find a position. If he is reemployed in government service within the year, his annuit will stop upon reemployment.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.
Luke 1:25-46 Living Bible

25 "How kind the Lord is," she exclaimed, "to take away my disgrace of having no children!"
26 The following month God sent the angel Gabriel to Nazareth, a village in Galilee,
27 To a virgin, Mary, engaged to be married to a man named Joseph, a descendant of King David.
28 Gabriel appeared to her and said, "Congratulations, favored lady! The Lord is with you!"
29 Confused and disturbed, Mary tried to think what the angel could mean.
30 "Don't be frightened, Mary," the angel told her, "for God has decided to wonderfully bless you!
31 Very soon now, you will become pregnant and have a baby boy, and you are to name Him 'Jesus.'
32 He shall be very great and shall be called the Son of God. And the Lord God shall give Him the throne of His ancestor David.
33 And He shall reign over Israel forever; His Kingdom shall never end!"
34 Mary asked the angel, "But how can I have a baby? I am a virgin."
35 The angel replied, "The Holy Spirit shall come upon you, and the power of God shall overshadow you; so the baby born to you will be utterly holy—the Son of God.
36 Furthermore, six months ago your cousin Elizabeth—'the barren one,' they called her—became pregnant in her old age!
37 For every promise from God shall surely come true."
38 Mary said, "I am the Lord's servant, and I am willing to do whatever He wants. May everything you said come true." And then the angel disappeared.
39,40 A few days later Mary hurried to the highlands of Judea to the town where Zacharias lived, to visit Elizabeth.
41 At the sound of Mary's greeting, Elizabeth's child leaped within her and she was filled with the Holy Spirit.
42 She gave a glad cry and exclaimed to Mary, "You are favored by God above all other women, and your child is destined for God's mightiest praise.
43 What an honor this is, that the mother of my Lord should visit me!
44 When you came in and greeted me, the instant I heard your voice, my baby moved in me for joy!
45 You believed that God would do what He said; that is why He has given you this wonderful blessing."
46 Mary responded, "Oh, how I praise the Lord.

Wheat Acreage Boosted By Deaf Smith Farmers

With Eye To Grazing Advantages

By JIM STEIERT
A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD--Deaf Smith County farmers are moving ahead with the planting of a larger wheat crop this year while samples of corn have been arriving at area elevators during the past week as a prelude to the fall grain harvest here.

Although wheat planting is on the upswing after last year's severe reduction of the crop, a lot of winter months and economic factors remain to contend with between now and harvest time, 1979.

Many area producers are sowing their wheat with an eye toward the marked improvement in cattle prices over the past few months, according to John Fuston, exectuve director of the Deaf Smith County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Fuston explained that pasture for stocker cattle is a major factor in the expansion of wheat planting, as farmers look to realize more income from wheat by putting it through their cattle.

"Folks are busy sowing wheat in the dryland country in the western and northwestern portion of the county. There is good soil moisture available, and planting is up to 50 percent complete in some dryland areas," Fuston indicated.

"Planting of irrigated wheat is running a little slower, and is only 20 to 30 percent complete," he added.

Fuston pointed out that even though many local farmers are eager to take advantage of the grazing offered by a good wheat crop, it will still be another two to three weeks before any local fields offer sufficient forage.

"It will be October 1 at the very best before we have any grazing here, and we are going to need some rain to get that. Dryland wheat will provide some good pasture for cattle this winter if we get the rains we need, but most farmers have learned not to graze dryland wheat if they don't get enough moisture, in order to prevent a blowing problem later on," Fuston said.

Turning his attention to late summer forage and fall grain crops, Fuston indicated that the area's corn ensilage crop is reasonably good.

"A lot of the silage corn is yielding 20 tons per acre, and we have had some 25-ton yields. There have been a couple of exceptionally good silage yields of 30 tons per acre," said Fuston.

In an unusual turn of events for the local area, Fuston related that dryland milo in some of the western and northwestern portions of the county shows the potential for excellent yields.

"A lot of the dryland milo needed one more rain that it didn't get, but we still have some scattered dryland milo fields that look good. A lot of it will have to mature in a hurry in order to make harvesting it economically feasible, but there are some fields in the northwestern portion of the county that should cut excellent dryland yields of 2,500 to 3,000 pounds per acre.

"There is a beautiful dryland milo crop in the Adrian area as well. Dryland milo looks good wherever moisture happened to fall at the right time," Fuston commented.

The ASCS executive pointed out that a yield of 500 pounds per acre is the critical point at which the line must be drawn on the economic feasibility of harvesting, and added that dryland sorghum yields county-wide will range all the way from 500 to 3,000 pounds per acre.

"Any field that cannot be feasibly harvested fron an economic standpoint must be appraised by the ASCS before the owner can turn livestock in on the sorghum to graze it," Fuston stressed.

Corn harvest should be gathering steam here in the next few weeks.

Numerous samples received by local elevators during the past week as farmers began checking on the moisture content of their crop before launching the corn harvest in earnest.

Pasture for cattle should become an important consideration in the wake of corn and sorghum harvests.

"I expect a lot more people to be turning cattle out on their stalks this year. Grazing them means cheaper gains on cattle, and farmers are keeping their eyes on the improved cattle market," Fuston concluded.

WHEAT PLANTING TIME — Wheat planting is continuing in Deaf Smith County, with sowing up to 60 percent complete in dryland areas west of Hereford. Acreage will be up this year as farmer-stockmen take advantage of grazing offered by the crop with an eye on an improved cattle market. (Correspondent Photo by Jim Steiert)

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

SOUTHERN GOVERNORS WERE WARNED this week that excessive new dust standards imposed by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration will cause their states irreparable economic harm.

Lon Mann, president of the National Cotton Council, told the Southern Governors' Conference at Hilton Head, S. C., that the standards jeopardize more than 500,000 jobs provided by about 95,000 cotton farms and businesses operating mainly in the southern half of the United States.

"These businesses generate $16.7 billion in revenue and add nearly $1 billion to your state tax rolls," Mann pointed out.

In Texas, the largest producing state, there are 27,500 cotton farms, gins, warehouses and other cotton-related businesses. These establishments provide jobs for almost 70,000 Texans, generate $2 billion in revenue, and pay $66 million in taxes.

THESE CONTRIBUTIONS COULD CHANGE drastically within a few months if OSHA's standards are allowed to stand as issued, Mann emphasized.

He said the standards not only are "non-productive and economically unfeasible" but also are technologically impossible to meet in some work areas of textile plants, cottonseed oil mills, and other industry sectors.

OSHA has decreed two standards for the cotton industry.

The first — which applies to cotton compresses and warehouses, oil mills, merchants, textile mills, and related industries such as railroads and motor carriers — requires employers to assure that workers are not exposed to cotton dust exceeding specified limits. The other mandates similar requirements for cotton gins but does not require them to meet a specific dust limit.

INSTALLATION OF DUST ABATEMENT equipment required by the standard will cost $1.8 billion to $2.6 billion and will add 17 to 24 cents a pound to the cost of producing cotton fabric, Mann said.

In addition, the standards' total annualized cost is estimated at $550 million to $800 million.

Mann pointed out that U. S. cotton textile mills are faced with the alternatives of:

— Spending vast sums for dust abatement equipment.
— Substituting synthetic fibers in order to achieve specified dust levels.
— Moving operations off-shore to avoid compliance costs.
— Importing gray goods for further processing.
— Shutting down operations completely.

Each of these alternatives, he said, will adversely affect the cotton industry from the producer through the textile manufacturer.

THE COUNCIL PRESIDENT STRESSED that the cotton industry fully supports the need to protect worker safety and health.

"During the extensive hearings on the standard in 1977 and on many occasions since, cotton and textile people have detailed how workers could be fully protected at one-sixth the cost of the standards," Mann noted.

In addition, he said the cotton industry since 1972 has given top priority to finding a solution to the dust problem and — as a result — greatly expanded research has been undertaken by producers, the textile sector, government and private firms.

"The preponderance of evidence in the record indicates that less than 3,000 workers are affected from exposure to cotton dust — the vast majority are unaffected," Mann said. "The record also shows that mills already have taken actions that protect workers at risk from cotton dust."

Reagan Brown To Address Ginners Meet

Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Reagan Brown will speak at a luncheon at the annual meeting of the Plains Ginners Association Saturday at the Lubbock Country Club.

The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m.

About 350 High Plains ginners and representatives of related industries are expected to attend.

The morning session will feature talks by Donald A. Johnson of Lubbock, executive vice president of the Plains Cotton Growers Inc.; Tony Price of Dallas, executive vice president of the Texas Cotton Ginners Association; and Macon Edwards, vice president for Washington operations of the National Cotton Council.

Officers and directors will be elected. Joe Ellison of Sudan is president, Wayne Crossland of Savage is vice president and Roy Philpott of Lubbock is secretary-treasurer.

Directors are Melvin Bagley of Kress, Bob Belew of Earth, Alvis Collins of Petty, Maurice Goodwin of Ralls, Jerry Harris of Lamesa, Charles Jones of Amherst, Wayne Moses of Post, Alfred Newsom of Brownfield, Leland Phillips of Abernathy, and Tommy Woolam of O'Donnell.

High Plains Potato Growers In Chips

About 30 per cent of this summer's High Plains potato crop was grown for potato chip manufacturers, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has announced.

The rest of the crop, forecast at nearly 2.4 billion pounds, will be sold nationwde on the fresh market.

The crop of Kennebec, Round Red and Norgold Russet potatoes was down one percent from last year's summer production. Yields was expected to average 21,000 pounds per acre as compared to 23,000 in 1977.

Kennebecs are round white potatoes two and one quarter to three inches in diameter that are grown specificaly for potato chip companies.

According to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, harvest was active throughout August.

Corn Crop Estimate Believed Too High

By REUTERS

CHICAGO —Cooperative Extension Service Agronomists in key U. S. producing states feel U. S. Department of Agriculture corn production estimates for their states are too high for current conditions and some expressed surprise at their size even in terms of Sept. 1 conditions.

They generally felt the soybean estimate to be in line with their expectations, though some said there has been deterioration since Sept. 1.

Dr. Fred Welch of the University of Illinois expressed surprise that the state estimate was up, but said he has no basis to vigorously challenge the figure. The USDA estimated Illinois output at 1,241,200,000 bushels, up from 1,177,000,000 estimated in August, or a yield increase of about six bushels an acre.

This, he said, would put the state average yield at a record level.

In the last month, we've heard reports of fields detériorating but not reports of improvements," he said. "I would have expected the new estimate to be unchanged or lower."

The Illinois soybean estimate, which was unchanged at 312,300,000 bushels, was as he expected.

The estimated Iowa corn crop "could be in the field, but whether it can be put in the bin is another question," Dr. Harvey Thompson of Iowa State University said.

The USDA placed Iowa corn output at 1,391,500,000 bushels, up from 1,318,900,000 last month, for an increase of about six bushels an acre. "I didn't expect that much, but I wouldn't argue with it." Thompson said.

He said Iowa harvest losses this year will be more than normal. "We're already seeing ear droppage due to corn borders," he said.

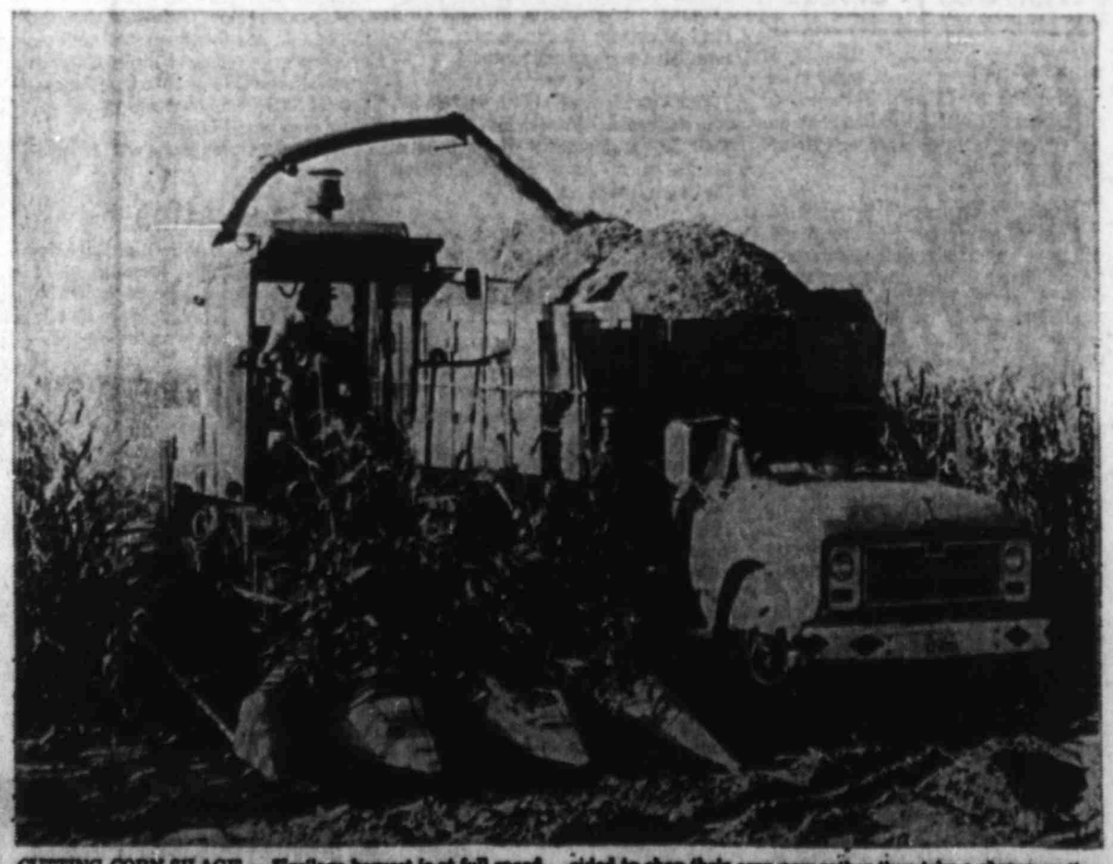
The Iowa soybean estimate of 262,500,000 bushels, up from 255,000,000 last month, is "entirely within the realm of the possible and harvestable," he said.

Indiana's corn and soybean crops are about as expected by Purdue University's Cliff Spies, though he was more surprised by an indicated increase in soybean yield of one bushels an acre than by the increase of two bushels an acre for corn.

"I would not have been surprised if there were no gain in soybean and more than one bushel would have been questionable," he said.

The corn crop is doing well, he said, with the only moisture problems in northeastern Indiana and these coming at late July, after the most crucial point in crop development.

The figures for Minnesota "may have been okay for Sept. 1, but not for now," Dr. Millis Anthony of the University of Minnesota said. "Hot weather has cut fields of corn and soybean and I would expect the Oct. 1 estimate to be closer to August than September.



CUTTING CORN SILAGE — Ensilage harvest is at full speed in the Hereford area, with yields reported as fairly good. With a resurgence in the cattle feeding industry brought on by improved cattle prices in recent months, many farmers have decided to chop their corn now rather than take a chance on the dry grain market in another month or two. A custom silage cutter is shown finishing a swath through a corn field northwest of Hereford. (Correspondent Photo by Jim Steiert)

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean prices plunged Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade, leading grain prices downward on the heels of a government report that soybean stocks are unexpectedly large.

A flurry of selling began at the opening bell in the soybean pit, leading to losses of 23½ to 27¼ cents a bushel. Traders said better-than-expected harvest time weather, combined with quiet export markets for soybeans and soybean products, helped deflate the bullish sentiments of earlier in the week.

The government reported Wednesday after the close that some 159 million bushels of soybeans are stored on farms and in warehouses nationwide, a figure 55 percent higher than last year's estimated supplies and 17 percent higher than traders expected this year.

Soybean oil prices dropped the penny-a-pound limit in several nearby delivery months.

In the corn pit, prices lost 3¼ cents across the board, partly on an improved weather outlook for harvest and partly on a government hog report released Wednesday. The hog report showed smaller-than-expected numbers of feeder pigs nationwide, meaning less future demand for feed grains.

Wheat prices also lost ground on increased country grain sales, and in sympathy with the soybean market.

At the close, soybeans were 23½ to 27¼ cents lower, November $6.52¼; wheat was 2½ to 4 cents lower, December $3.34; corn was 3¼ cents lower in all months, December $2.20¼; and oats were 2¼ to 2¾ cents lower, December $1.43.

Cattle Close Mixed After Early Surge

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures reacted sharply after a limit level gain of 150 points and finished 55 points lower to 27 higher Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

December was down the most after October lost 70 with August at the best gain. Sales totaled 31,080 cars.

Early buying was in response to the bullish pig crop report, but profit-taking quickly turned the market around. The nearby contract came under aggressive bear spreading as traders noted lack of aggressive demand for beef.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 82 cents a pound, for all weights, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were up 50 to off 25 cents, with the best top $56.50 per hundredweight at Omaha.

Slaughter was 140,000 head. The major markets expect 6,500 head today.

Feeder cattle futures shot up the daily limit of 150 and lifted all contracts to new season's highs before closing 2 to 80 higher paced by March.

January was briefly 35 lower. Volume was 2,306 contracts.

Outset buying was touched off by the bullish pig crop report. Declines in live cattle futures led to profit-taking and other selling here and traders also noted lack of aggressive demand for beef.

Cash feeder cattle were steady to firm with the best top $83.25 per hundredweight at West Fargo. There were 140 deliveries. About 4,500 head are expected at the major terminals today.

Hog futures finished 115 to the daily limit level of 150 higher. All contracts except nearby October were up the limit from the start. Sales were meager at 1,298 contracts.

December had about 700 unfilled orders and later months about 1,500.

Aggressive buying in response to the bullish pig crop report lifted the nearby contract to a new season's high and the highest since August, 1977, to $51.20. Mostly higher cash hogs on increased arrivals were also positive here.

Wholesale hams were up 1 to 4 cents at 90 to 95 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were up $1 to off 25 cents, with the best top $51.75 per hundredweight, which is the highest since June, at Sioux City.

Kill was 318,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to be 21,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures were locked up the daily limit of 200 from the start with volume held to only 272 cars.

February had about 1,000 unfilled orders and March 200 at the close. Prices rose to the highest since June, up eight cents from recent lows.

The primary influence was the bullish pig crop report, noting one percent less hogs than a year ago. The upswing in cash bellies and mostly higher cash hogs also contributed support.

Wholesale bacon was up 2 to 2 3/4 cents at 54 to 61 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading in the Lubbock spot cotton market was slow. Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy and demand was moderate.

Growers offered 1978 crop contracts at around 1,450 to 1,500 points over the 1977 loan rate. Most merchants were out of the market, however.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotation advanced 25 points.

California Economist Guru Of Tax Cut Move

By STEPHEN FOX

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A tax revolt is upon the land and one of its leading theoreticians, an economic guru to some, is Arthur B. Laffer of the University of Southern California.

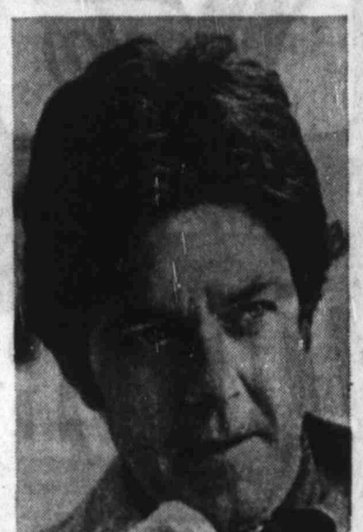
Laffer, an informal, enthusiastic 38-year-old professor of business economics, doesn't look like a spiritual leader. But his contention that government can cut taxes without losing revenues has brought him a large and devoted following.

Laffer is "the new guru, an economic genius" to Sen. William Roth, R-Del., who has drawn on the economist's views for the national tax-cut measure he is sponsoring with Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y. The Kemp-Roth bill would cut federal income taxes for individuals and corporations by 30 percent over three years.

Such a reduction actually would result in higher government revenues in the long run, Laffer argues, because companies and consumers alike would have greater incentives to invest and to spend.

"People don't work to pay taxes, they work for what they get after taxes," Laffer said. "So the higher the tax rates, the lower the incentive."

The Laffer approach has been seized upon by Republicans around the country, who are using it in political campaigns this fall. Kemp has become an especially popular speaker and this week 50 big-name Republicans took a three-day national tour to promote the proposed tax cut as the heart of the GOP's program.



ARTHUR B. LAFFER

Lower rates will cause the nation's economy and tax base to expand because of higher incentives, Laffer says, and government revenues, while "a smaller piece of a larger pie," will be higher or the same as before.

"People in government have historically tended to focus almost exclusively on what we call the arithmetic effect, which is 'If you lower tax rates, you collect less per dollar of tax base,' and that's unambiguously true," Laffer said in an interview. "But they have tended to miss what we call the economic effect, which is 'If you lower tax rates, you make the activity more profitable for the doer of the activity and therefore you expand the tax base.'"

But many economists scoff at Laffer's theory, saying a massive tax cut would creat virulent inflation because the economic stimulation would not match the resulting government deficit.

Laffer campaigned in California for Proposition 13 earlier this year, arguing that cutting property taxes would spur the state's economic growth and, therefore, result in more overall tax revenue.

"California has very high property taxes, vey high taxes in general," he said, "which means if businesses are looking to relocate, they would choose Texas or Oregon or Arizona or Nevada over California, on taxes. So a cut in taxes in California may well bring in enough business to more than offset the reduction in rates."

Laffer's theories also have come under severe criticism from some minority spokesmen who contend that slashing taxes eventually will mean cutbacks in social programs for the poor, a charge Laffer heatedly denies.

"If the economic expansion is sufficient, you'll reduce unemployment compensation — not because you take one penny away from a person who's unemployed — but because there are less unemployed. You'll cut welfare payments for the same reason, as well as all sorts of other government payments."

Present tax policies actually hit poor people the hardest, Laffer says, because benefit payments are reduced if income goes up. That discourages people from working to better their lot, he adds.

A family of four in Los Angeles County can get up to $718 a month in welfare benefits, Laffer notes. However, if a member of the family starts making $100 a month their income won't be $818 but $759 — because their benefits are scaled back.

"That's almost a 60 percent tax rate," he said, "and it can go as high as 86 percent. It shouldn't come as much of a surprise to us that black unemployment rates have risen relative to white unemployment rates because the incentives just aren't there. If you don't get paid for working, why work?"

Laffer has studied both the Keynesian theory of economics that emphasizes government spending for influencing business activity and monetarist theories that contend the nation's money supply is the prime determinant of economic growth. He defines himself, however, as neither a Keynesian nor a monetarist but a Walrafian, after 19th Century French economist Leon Walras.

Walras is generally credited with having developed the general equilibrium theory of economics, which holds that a change in one area of the economy will have an effect on other segments as well.

"Lowering taxes on one group will usually benefit other groups as well," he said. "For example, as a kid growing up in Cleveland, I was always taught that you need trucks on the road before truck drivers have jobs. Now, if you cut capital-gains taxes, companies will have more incentive to invest in such things as new trucks. Therefore, truck drivers are better off if you tax capital less."

There's also a hidden aspect to reducing taxes, Laffer contends, that means higher revenue for the government.

"Think about the amount of resources people use to avoid taxes or to evade taxes," he said. "Those are part of the tax burden on the people, but don't result in revenue to the government. And once you cut tax rates, of course you make all of these activities less profitable and so people do less of them and you collect more revenue."

EXODUS PROBLEM

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A civil grand jury has cited San Francisco's inability to stop the mass exodus of middle-class families to the suburbs as the city's worst problem. In a 110-page report, the jury urged the board of supervisors to start providing millions of dollars in subsidies to middle-class families for home rentals, a new home-building program and health and social services.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. You advocate "monthly plan" investments of $50 or more in the stock market. Around here, even the "discount" brokers have a minimum charge of $25 or $30 per transaction. Considering those commissions, how can an individual benefit when he invests $50 or so a month?

A. He can't. This column never said he could. If you have been reading the outpourings of this typewriter, you should be aware that the terribly high commission charges on the purchase or sale of small amounts of stock have been blasted here.

I never advocated what you say I did — putting small amounts of money into individual stocks. The commissions would clobber anyone who tried that.

I have advocated and will continue to advocate dollar averaging — the process of putting the same amount of money into the same security at fixed intervals. And it has been stressed in this space that, because of commissions on individual stocks, you can't do that — successfully — in small numbers. Instead, you should invest about $500 every month, three months, six months or, even, every year.

You can, of course, dollar average in small amounts with most mutual funds — preferably the "no-load" funds, which have no commission charge.

Until a few years ago, it was possible to invest as little as $40 a month or every three months through the New York Stock Exchange's Monthly Investment Plan — MIP, for short. The maximum cummission on MIP accounts used to be 6 percent. But, in one of its moves to alienate small investors, the NYSE scrapped MIP.

A few brokerage houses have set up somewhat similar plans — with relatively stiff commissions.

Q. I understand there is an organization that investigates old and dormant stocks, for a fee. Can you give its name and address?

A. The name is R.M. Smythe & Co., Inc. The address is 170 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10038. The fee is $20. This information appearing here may surprise some readers, because this column normally does not print names of companies and brokerage firms. The mailbag shows, however, that many readers need the kind of information the Smythe firm can provide.

And I have a pledge from the people at Smythe that the names of people who contact them are held in strictest confidence. So, readers of this column who write Smythe have no worry about their names and addresses being put on mailing lists.

• • •

Q. I bought 500 shares of stock. The broker quoted me a price of $4.75 a share. When I received the confirmation slip the next day, it was in the amount of $2,600. Did I pay too high a commission?

A. If you bought 500 shares, at $4.75 the purchase amount was $2,375. If the other $225 was commission, that means your broker charged almost 9½ percent. I'd certainly call that "too high" for a transaction of that type.

But remember that commissions on the purchase or sale of individual stocks are now "negotiated." It's up to you to check commission charges and negotiate, before you place an order to buy or sell.

You say the broker "quoted" the $4.75 price? It's possible the price went up and you had to pay more. The confirmation statement should answer those questions.

Every confirmation statement I have ever seen listed the name of the stock, the number of shares, the price per share, the amount of the transaction, as well as the commission and any other fees — all listed as individual items. Check your confirmation statement.

Berkeley Anti-Bias Decree Endorsed

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — An ordinance forbidding discrimination against homosexuals — believed to be the strongest measure of its kind — has been passed by the council in this university city.

The ordinance, passed Tuesday night, forbids discrimination on the basis of sexual preference in employment, credit, schools, education, city services and facilities, and housing, except for two-unit, owner-occupied dwellings.

Vance Shifts Plea To Saudi Arabia

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance failed to get quick Jordanian endorsement of the Camp David accords and flew to this desert capital Thursday to try to win Saudi Arabia's crucial support for the plan.

Although Jordan's King Hussein did not commit himself to the accords, he did promise not to close the door on the new peace initiative.

Vance's visit here tested the Carter administration's contention that cultivating the friendship of the Saudis — by selling them F-15 fighter jets, for example — has encouraged them to play a moderating role in Arab world.

Shortly after his arrival, Vance met with King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd in the royal "working palace."

Fahd is the real power in the Saudi hierarchy. Khaled takes little part in day-to-day government affairs and suffers from ill health. He underwent open-heart surgery at the Cleveland Clinic in 1972 and will return there next week for tests, Saudi Ambassador Ali Alireza said Thursday in Washington.

U.S. officials traveling with Vance said the American envoy's mission is being made no easier by public statements made by Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, including the Israeli leader's sharp disagreement with the White House over how long Israel agreed to freeze its settlement program in occupied territories.

In Damascus, meanwhile, Syria's foreign minister said the Arab "rejectionist" states would move to "foil the Camp David agreement"and hinted that this might include steps aimed directly at undermining Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's political position. Vance is to meet with the Syrians in Damascus this weekend.

Sadat was in Morocco Thursday, meeting with that country's conservative monarch, Hassan II, to solicit his endorsement for the accords, reached last Sunday at Camp David, Md., between Sadat and Begin with President Carter's mediation.

Jordanian Foreign Minister Hassan Ibrahim, seeing Vance off at the Amman airport Thursday, told reporters Jordan still has reservations about the Camp David peace plan but will continue to consider it and has not ruled out joining in the negotiations

Key To Peace Talks

Vance conferred with King Hussein for a second time Thursday morning. Hussein's participation in peace talks is one of the keys to success of the Camp David plan and an overall agreement in the Mideast.

The Jordanian indecision makes the attitude of the Saudis even more important. As custodians of Islam's holiest shrines they are regarded as religious leaders in the Arab world, and their oil riches and huge aid programs give them considerable sway over Jordan and other poorer Arab states.

The objections the Saudis have expressed to the Camp David plan are the same as those voiced by Jordan's Ibrahim — that it does not guarantee a total Israeli pullout from the Arab territories captured in the 1967 Mideast War, and it does not guarantee the right of Palestinians to form an independent state.

American officials believe it will take the approval of the Saudis, privately if not publicly, before Hussein would risk the wrath of more radical Arabs and join the negotiations.

Sadat's Replacement Feared

One point Vance was expected to stress to the conservative Saudis was that a collapse of the peace process could result in Sadat's replacement as Egyptian leader by someone aligned with radical Arab governments.

The Camp David "framework for peace" calls for Jordan to participate in talks with Israel, Egypt and representatives of the Palestinians in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip to settle the future of those two disputed territories.

In the West Bank on Thursday, Israeli soldiers dragged ultra-nationalist Jews from a mountaintop where they had tried to set up an outpost in defiance of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's agreement to suspend the Jewish settlement program under the Camp David plan.

The question of just how long the settlement program will be "frozen" remained unanswered, however.

Angry White House officials insisted Thursday that Begin committed Israel to a five-year moratorium on settlements — the period during which the future status of the West Bank and Gaza are to be negotiated. But Begin claims he made a commitment for only a three-month freeze — the period during which Israel and Egypt are supposed to negotiate a peace.

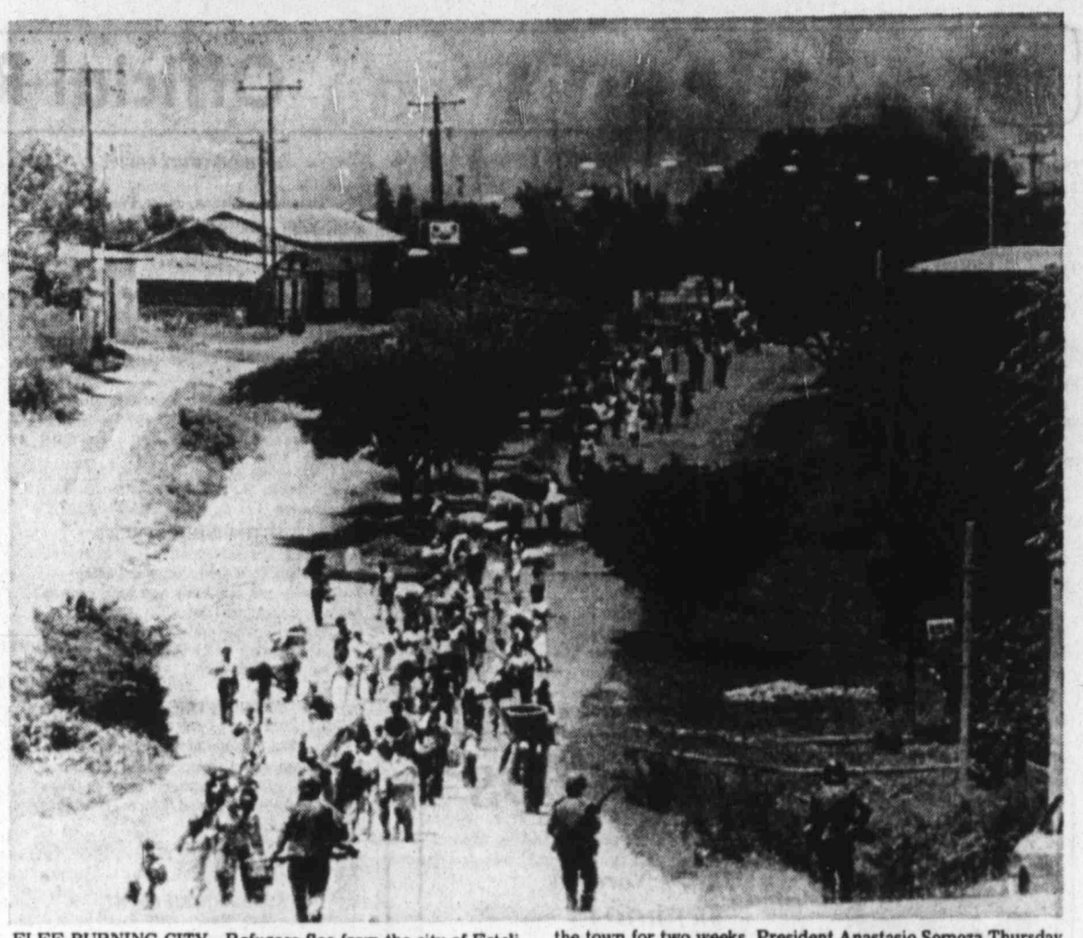
Begin said in a U.S. newspaper interview he would check his memory on this point with key Cabinet minisiters on his return to Israel. Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said in Israel the issue would be settled "in a few days."

But Dayan said Israel would insist on the permanent right of Israelis to buy land and build settlements in the West Bank as part of a peace settlement.

Treaty "Not Needed"

Dayan also said that during the Camp David talks Carter offered to sign defense treaties with both Israel and Egypt if they were necessary to bring the sides to an agreement at the summit. The Israelis responded that such a treaty was not needed, Dayan said.

Leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization and four Arab "rejectionist" nations opposed to the Israeli-Egyptian dialogue met for the second day Thursday at a summit conference in Damascus, Syria.



FLEE BURNING CITY—Refugees flee from the city of Esteli in Nicaragua as it burns from heavy fighting between Nicaraguan national guard forces and rebels who have been holding the town for two weeks. cutting horse contest preludes the Thursday show.

Special days for the fair begin with area school day Monday. Tuesday and Wednesday are Lubbock school days, with Thursday senior citizens day and Friday college and military day. Students will be admitted to the fair grounds on free passes distributed earlier and others will be admitted on personal identification.

Among outdoor military exhibits will be a mockup where visitors may take off from an aircraft carrier, make a bombing run, refuel in mid-air and return to the carrier. It will be at the fair only though Sunday.l

The cockpit from the S-2 turbo prop craft used by the U.S. Navy in anti-submarine warfare is the control center for the "flight" which can take eight passengers comfortably at a time.

The film viewed through the windshield is of an A-6 Intruder, a Navy jet, going through its Paces with the fair fan in on all the action.

Helping out at the van's weekend appearance will be Petty Officer 1.C Rusty Brooks, now stationed with Lubbock recruiting, who flew with Navy intelligence more than four years on an aircraft used as a sub-hunter.

The popular Navy exhibit is stationed in Washington, D.C., and makes more than 30,000 miles a year under the guidance of Petty Officer Lynn Dockey. College campuses are his major target with state fairs on his list when the college action is slack.

Other Attractions

Among other fair offerings are the traditional Parade of Bands on Monday, Gene Ledel's Million Dollar Midway with more shows and midway booths, an independent midway, the 4-H Children's Barnyard, a gem and mineral show, a flower festival and other exhibits in the women's building, and outdoor agriculture exhibits.

A round of judging gets underway Saturday with the pigeon and poultry show and the open horse show. Barrows go before the judges Monday while cattle and sheep make the judging arena beginning Tuesday. The rabbit show begins Thursday and the 25th annual West Texas Twirling Festival and the Quarterhorse Show rounds out the fair competition.

Kicking off everything Saturday will be the 11th annual oldtime fiddler's contest, playing off in Fair Park Coliseum to make plenty of room for its many fans.

Tickets for the coliseum shows are $4, $5 and $6. — GERRY BURTON.

Experts Claim Housing Costs To Go Higher percent by waiting, but they are taking a chance and are putting themselves through personal inconveniences," he said.

"However, if you are renting, haven't looked for housing much and it won't cause you any inconvenience, it might make sense to wait six months to a year to see if rates are in fact lower," he said.

Economists have been startled by the willingness of homeowners to pay interest rates as high as 10 percent for homes.

"There is a fundamental demand for housing among young, first-time home buyers, many with two wage earners," Marcis said in an interview.

"Many of them have waited for a long period. Now they are willing to go out and purchase a home at a higher price," he said.

Both the home loan board and the builders' group say that there is a limit to what homeowners will pay. They have been appealing to the Federal Reserve to stop driving up interest rates in its attempt to halt inflation.

GIRL, TOT DIE IN FIRE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A teenage girl and her baby sister were killed when fire trapped them in a bedroom of their home Thursday. The dead were Vickie Hall, 17, and Gina Hall, 2. Fire Lt. R.E. Huntley said the cause of the fire wasn't determined.

Development Funds Handling Rapped

residents. "People worked very hard last year. We recommended improvements last year and got our hopes up," one Phyllis Wheatley resident commented.

Following 45 minutes of discussion, Sector 2 residents finally were surveyed again about what they thought should be done with $3.7 million in CD funds which the city will receive June 1 and what should be done with the city's share of CD funds for the next three years.

Needed Improvements Listed

Housing rehabilitation, street improvements and enforcement of city codes pertaining to junked vehicles, weeds and trash, were listed as needs in the Posey and West Posey areas.

Those residents also requested street lights, a stop sign at East 13th Street and Oak Avenue, improved drainage, parks and spraying for mosquitoes.

Phyllis Wheatley residents requested relocation, street paving, removal of industry from the area and the control of air pollution.

Five west Lubbock residents attended the Sector 6 meeting at Bowie Elementary Thursday, also to comment on uses for the federal funds.

A man from the West End Addition, south of 19th Street and west of Loop 289, requested urban renewal monies for his neighborhood and additional paving, street lights and water and sewer lines. Some CD money already has financed improvements in the area.

Other suggested uses for the CD funds included a traffic signal at 29th Street and Chicago Avenue, a tree planting program and sidewalks on the Texas Tech campus.

Substantial Funds Involved

The city of Lubbock expects to receive $27 million in CD block grants over the next six years and already has received $20.2 million in the first four years of the program.

Of that money 39 percent has been used for neighborhood rehabilitation and 31 percent has been spent on public improvements such as street improvements, street lighting, traffic signals and utilitie

Federal guidelines stipulate 75 percent of the funds must be directed toward programs and activities that benefit low and moderate income persons. The remaining 25 percent may be used to eliminate or prevent slums and blight or to meet urgent needs.

There will be no neighborhood meetings next week to avoid any conflict with the South Plains Fair, but seven meetings will be held the following week beginning Monday, Oct. 2.

Area Clouds Due To Exit By Saturday

reports of up to 4 inches in parts of the county.

Snyder received 3 inches of precipitation from the storm system.

Midland and Odessa police department spokesmen said most streets in the cities had standing water in deep pools. But no streets were closed and no water was reported seeping into houses, they said.

Sheriff department dispatchers also reported no county roads closed because of flooding.

A Midland National Weather Service spokesman said he expected more rain starting around midnight and added the ground would not be able to absorb much more moisture.

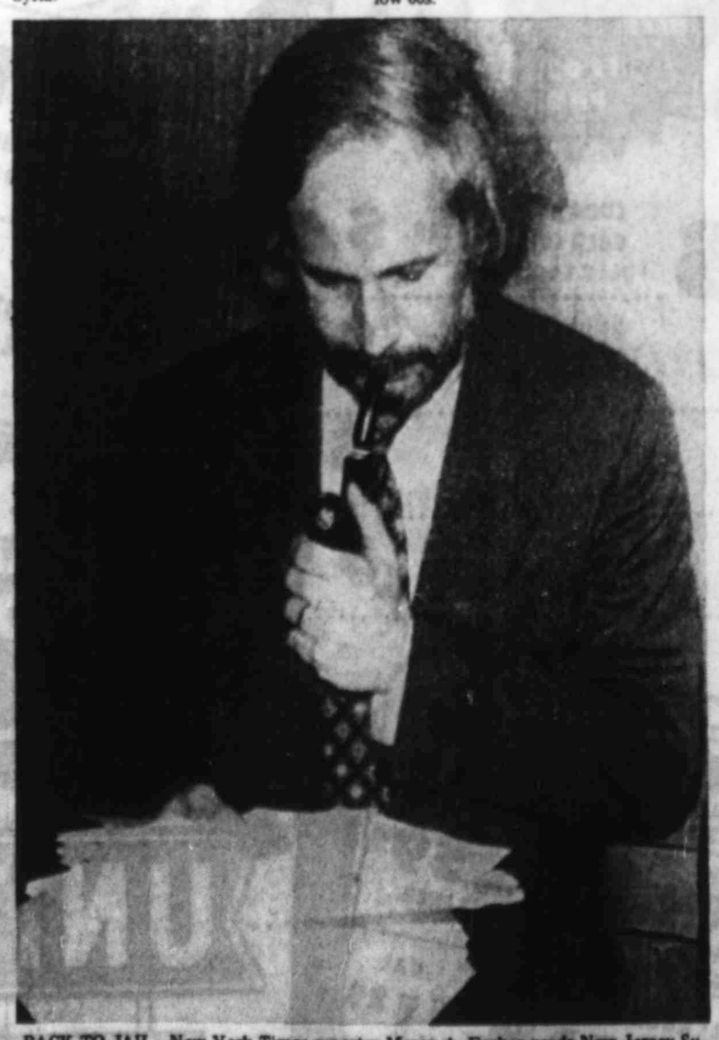
For that reason, he said, the flash flood watch likely would be continued through this morning.

Lubbock, which recorded only a trace of rain Thursday, has a 30 percent chance of rain today and a 20 percent chance tonight.

By Saturday, however, the dense cloud cover will break up and temperatures will warm. Today's high should be near 70 and tonight's low in the mid 50s.

Temperatures the past two days have recorded their first autumn-like cool readings as the cold front pushed through the area.

Readings ahead of the front edged into the 80s and 90s, while the Panhandle and South Plains residents shivered in temperatures ranging no higher than the low 60s.



BACK TO JAIL—New York Times reporter Myron A. Farber reads New Jersey Supreme Court decision sending him back to jail if he does not produce documents in his possession pertaining to the Jascalevich murder trial as ordered by the trial judge. Farber must report to jail in Hackensack Tuesday if he still refuses. (AP Laserphoto)

Court Rules Times Must Bare Notes

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Supreme Court upheld contempt convictions of the New York Times and Times reporter Myron A. Farber on Thursday, and ordered Farber back to jail unless he surrenders notes to a judge in a murder case by Tuesday.

Attorneys for Farber and The Times said they would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court — probably today.

In a 5-2 decision, the court found that neither the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution nor a state newsman's shield law protects Farber from having to surrender his notes in this case.

It found the shield law inapplicable when it conflicts with the constitutional guarantee of a fair trial — and particularly in this case, because Farber had cooperated with the prosecutors.

Constitutional Conflict

The case involves a major conflict between the constitutional rights to a free press and a fair trial. It could set important precedents defining the rights of reporters to protect confidential sources.

The decision, written by Justice Worrall F. Mountain, rejected The Tives' argument that the First Amendment allows a reporter to shield notes and confidential sources.

U.S. Overeaters Linked To Energy Drain

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the energy required to maintain the fat on overweight Americans was used to generate electricity, it could supply the annual residential needs of Boston, Chicago, San Francisco and Washington, D.C., two scientists say.

Drs. Bruce M. Hannon and Timothy G. Lohman of the University of Illinois at Urbana calculated the energy it takes to supply the excess food feeding the country's fat.

If all overweight adults simultaneously went on diets to reach their optimum weight, they say, the energy saved during the three-to four-month diet period would be equivalent to 1.3 billion gallons of gasoline.

And if the optimum weights were maintained, the annual energy savings would equal three-quarters of a billion gallons, enough to run more than 900,000 cars each year.

This also is enough energy to more than supply the electrical needs of the four metropolitan centers or the demands of 20 million persons in India, they added.

"We want to drive home the point that everything is connected and that being overweight is a social problem and not necessarily just a personal concern," Hannon said in a telephone interview Thursday.

In a report in the American Journal of Public Health, the scientists wrote: "The calculation of the fossil fuel energy required to supply the extra food calories to maintain excess body fat helps connect the impact of overeating on energy consumption."

Figures from the U.S. Department of Energy and other studies indicate it takes between 25 and 28 British thermal units of energy to deliver one food calorie from the farm to the dinner table. The scientists used these figures to convert food calories not eaten into energy saved.

Using 1975 census data and the results of a U.S. Public Health Service citizens' survey, the scientists calculated that the 146.8 million persons between the ages of 18 and 79 at the time were 2.3 billion pounds overweight.

About 1.5 billion pounds of excess fat resided on the 77.1 million women in the group and the 69.7 million men carried around 830 million pounds of extra lard.

The scientists figured that eating 600 fewer calories a day would be a healthy diet for losing about a quarter-pound of fat daily. At this rate, average overweight men would have to diet about 68 days and women 101 days to reach optimum weight, which the scientists described as that of an athlete in good condition.

Assuming that those most overweight would likely diet — about 50 million men and 60 million women — the scientists said total intake reduction would be about 5.6 trillion calories to get all the dieters into trim.

And to maintain their slimmer figures, the dieters would consume 3.4 trillion fewer calories per year than they normally would have.

Swing Musicians Revive 1940s Musical Efforts

AUSTIN (AP) — For a Methodist minister, Clifford Zirkel spent an unusual afternoon last Palm Sunday.

He organized a 17-piece band specializing in the Swing Era music of Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey and Harry James.

"It started out as a group of guys who just wanted to play music of the Swing Era," said Zirkel, 59. "It started out for fun once a month, then once a week."

From casual get-togethers, the band's practices led to an outdoor concert at Austin's Symphony Square in July where the 750 onlookers even cheered mistakes.

"It was amazing the number of young people who liked this music," Zirkel said. "They recognize the quality of the music. And it was the music, not us, that they came to hear. We were unknowns."

Other band members include a builder, Air Force lieutenant colonel, printer, state and college administrators and some University of Texas graduate students.

Swing music sends Zirkel into evangelistic fervor, he admits. He explains it goes back to his junior high school days in San Antonio and seminary years at Yale Divinity School.

"We were the Squeaking Deacons," he says of playing with fellow seminarians 30 years ago. "At practice intermission, we'd all go to work on sermons for Sunday morning."

Big Band music's popularity declined after Zirkel's ordination following World War II. He set it aside but never forgot it.

Strains of "In the Mood," "One O'Clock Jump" and "I'll Be Seeing You" drifted back strong sometime after Zirkel moved to Austin in 1968. He succumbed and bought a clarinet at a pawn shop six or seven years ago.

It's that clarinet and an alto sax that Zirkel plays now.

Throughout his love affair with the Big Band Sound, he has seen no conflicts between music and ministering.

"God made man to respond to rhythm," he said. "I've given Sunday night sermons on swing music. Take Tommy Dorsey's song, 'The Sunny Side of the Street.'

"It says, 'We can choose to walk on the sunny side or the shadow.' That's affirmation, like a doxology," said Zirkel, pastor of Decker United Methodist Church just east of Austin.

Swing music is inspiring others in large numbers, judging from offers Zirkel's group has received. Private professional groups, the city of Austin and others have scheduled the band for paying engagements.

"I tell them all that it won't be cheap. We charge a little more than the going rate to keep all our members, some of whom are professional musicians," he said. "You can get good dance music for a lot cheaper than from a 17-piece group."

A pair of rats can give birth to more than 350 million descendants over a three-year-period.

Rhodes Boosts GOP Tax Plans

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — House Minority Leader John Rhodes led a Republican "tax blitz" through the Midwest on Thursday, declaring the Democrats will "pay a terrible price" if the GOP can force President Carter to veto its tax package.

"I can't believe that any president is likely to veto a tax cut like this," Rhodes said at a breakfast forum in Detroit. "But if he does, then he's certain to pay a terrible price at the polls."

Rhodes arrived in Minneapolis predicting his party will pick up "a massive number" of seats in Congress this fall with the tax cut issue.

Although even its strongest supporters give it little chance of passage, the Republicans are hoping to make a lot of political hay out of their proposal to cut income taxes by 33 percent over the next three years.

The bill written by Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. William Roth, R-Del., has been rejected by the Democratic majorities in Congress, and Carter has said he will veto it if it ever gets to his desk.

"I'd like to see him veto it," Rhodes said. "I want it to become law, but I think as far as the politics of it are concerned, the people of this country want Kemp-Roth.

"I think they want desperately and need a tax cut," Rhodes added.

Rhodes said the taxpayer revolt which erupted in California in June with passage of the property tax-slashing Prop. 13 and is spreading to other states is proof that "the people of this country were angry, and it also showed the people of this country that if they get angry and if they can get moving, they can do something about these things."

The Democrats are proposing a tax cut of their own, but at a much lower level, and are insisting on doing it one year at a time instead of the three-year bundle pushed by the Republicans.

The Democratic-dominated House has passed a bill that would cut taxes $16.3 billion next year, compared to the $31.4 billion that would be cut in the first year of the GOP proposal.

Rhodes said in Minneapolis that the Democrats were going along with what he called a mild tax cut under GOP pressure and because they are "good politicians."

"We know full well their conversion is only rhetorical and is only temporary," Rhodes said.

The tax blitz is the national Republican Party's major effort of the 1978 election campaign with at least 50 big name GOP figures taking part at some point in the three-day, seven-state foray.

The tour opened with an airport news conference in Washington Wednesday and moved on to New York and Philadelphia with rallies, neighborhood and town meetings and street corner encounters with the voters.

After the morning event in Detroit, it spread through the Minneapolis-St. Paul area dispatching speakers to service club luncheons and staging a news conference and a noon rally at Government Center.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who was a contender for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination, joins the group in Chicago Friday, and his rival, former President Gerald R. Ford, speaks at a windup rally in Los Angeles.

Nigerian Airways Liner Crash-Lands

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — A Nigerian Airways jetliner on its way to New York with 103 passengers crash-landed here Tuesday night and two passengers were slightly injured, airport officials reported.

They said the DC-10 overshot the runway at Roberts International Airport and crash-landed 75 yards from the runway. The plane had come from Accra, Ghana.

The officials, who declined to be named, said the cause of the crash was not yet known and was being investigated.

Eased Air Rules Hurt Smaller Cities

B METRO

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Friday September 22, 1978

NEW YORK (AP) — The federal policy of fostering competition in the airline industry, while producing savings for travelers and profits for airlines, is leaving many smaller cities across the nation with reduced air service — or none at all.

In the second year of the policy easing 40 years of strict federal control over the industry, airlines are making banner profits. Now the Civil Aeronautics Board is cutting red tape even further to allow the lines to fly where it is most profitable, and many are discontinuing flights on routes that don't fill their planes.

Within the last three months, cities including Norfolk and Newport News, Va., Chattanooga and Memphis, Tenn., San Joaquin Valley, Calif., Louisville, Ky., Clovis, Hobbs and Carlsbad, N.M., and Medford, Ore., have lost some regularly scheduled commercial service, according to John Nammack of the CAB.

In New York State, the problem has reached epidemic proportions. State Sen. John Caemmerer says that in the last two years, Watertown, Jamestown, Glens Falls, Plattsburgh, Ogdenburg, Massena and Saranac Lake have lost all regularly scheduled commercial service.

In addition, Utica, Ithaca, Albany, Elmira and Binghamton have lost large portions of their regular air service.

"We're most unhappy about it," says Binghamton Chamber of Commerce official Harold Kammerer, referring to Allegheny Airlines' decision three months ago to reduce service from his city to New York's LaGuardia Airport.

"We're a growing city. If we're dealing with industrial prospects and they feel they can't have enough air service, they're going to look someplace else," Kammerer says.

CAB chairman Alfred Kahn, architect of Washington's policy on eased controls over airline rates and routes, conceded in an interview that "carriers have been pulling out of these communities by the hundreds." Ironically, Kahn's hometown of Ithaca, N.Y., lost service to Washington, D.C., at least partly as a result of his policies.

"But I think it's part of a healthy phenomenon. If you believe the industry will function better with competition, then you've got to be willing to let the forces of competition work," Kahn said.

Airlines are cutting back on these routes for several reason. As jet fuel prices have soared and more discount fares are offered, airlines have found that they must fly larger, more fuel-efficient aircraft. And more seats have to be filled for a flight to be profitable.

"Chairman Kahn's philosophy iy to leave this up to the airline management's judgment. Open entry to new routes carries with it open exit," says David Shipley, an official of Allegheny Airlines.

The CAB hopes that the solution for communities that are losing regularly scheduled service lies in attracting alternative air service — namely, so-called commuter airlines and air taxis.

At present there are about 2,200 air taxi and commuter airlines serving 350 communities nationwide, according to Nammack of the CAB. Largely because of the changes in regulatory climate, profits for those services grew about 20 percent last year, and about 8.5 million passengers now are using those services.

In Binghamton, for instance, the CAB is hoping to persuade three existing commuter airlines to fill the void left by Allegheny.

As further inducements, the CAB later this month will change its rules to allow commuter airlines to operate 60-seat aircraft instead of the 30 seats now permitted.

And if Congress passes a pending airline regulatory reform bill, commuter airlines could receive federal loan guarantees to purchase new aircraft. Without that legislation, industry analysts question whether those airlines can come up with the approximately $1 million that each new 60-seat plane would cost.

The CAB also plans within the next six weeks to open three new field offices in San Mateo, Calif., Boston, and either Kansas City or St. Louis to address the problems of communities that have lost air service. Atlanta will get a field office next spring.

Allegheny itself has tried to fill some of the service void by establishing arrangements with air taxis and commuter services allowing them use of Allegheny's airport and ticketing facilities.

But many communities fear their economic growth and their ability to attract new business will be stunted because some key routes they have lost may never be replaced. And some officials say their cities feel insulted when airlines close routes because they say they aren't important or profitable enough.

"Sure it's a blow to our ego," says Kammerer of Binghamton. "But what bothers us more is that it creates a problem for people who depended on the service."

RAISIN STANDARDS LOWERED

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Quality standards on 1978 domestic raisins have been lowered so growers can salvage more of their rain-damaged crop. The federal Raisin Administrative Committee raised mold tolerance on incoming raisins from 5 percent to 6 percent and mechanical damage tolerance from 10 percent to 15 percent. Because of the small crop, the Raisin Bargaining Association is asking $1,900 a ton for Thompson seedless raisins, $850 higher than ever previously received.

Kissinger To Speak At Chamber Banquet

Henry Kissinger, former U.S. secretary of state and Nobel Peace Prize winner, will speak at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce's annual banquet Nov. 17.

KISSINGER

U.S. Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock also will be on the program at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, banquet committee chairman W.R. Collier said.

Tickets will go on sale Oct. 16. Ticket prices were being set in chamber meetings today.

Kissinger was secretary of state from 1973 to 1977 under Presidents Nixon and Ford, and was an assistant to the president for national security from 1969 to 1975.

Playing a key role in negotiations ending American involvement in the Vietnam War and in reopening diplomatic relations with Red China, Kissinger won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1973 and the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1977.

He was a Harvard University professor when appointed to the White House staff primarily on the strength of books he had written on foreign policy.

He quickly gained influence on foreign policy-making and was known as "the second most powerful man in the world" after making a secret trip to Communist China in 1971 to arrange for the historic Nixon visit there the next year.

Kissinger, whose family fled from Germany to the United States in the late 1930s to escape Nazi persecution, has been writing his memoirs and making speaking engagements since President Carter took office in January, 1977, and Cyrus Vance was appointed secretary of state.

He also serves as an expert commentator on television news programs involving international affairs or U.S. foreign policy.

Sparrow Interrupts White House Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's welcome Thursday for President Jaafar el Numairi of the Sudan was interrupted by an unexpected visitor — a sparrow that flew around the White House Oval Office.

Numairi had entered Carter's office through the French doors that lead from the Rose Garden. The sparrow apparently made its entrance at the same time.

While the two leaders were meeting in the adjoining Cabinet Room, The bird flew out through doors that had been left open in the Oval Office.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am confused about hiatal hernias. I have one and my doctor insists I do not need surgery to correct it. Yet I have heard of people who have had such hernias that were corrected by surgery. Mine does give me trouble, but I am able to control things with the suggestions my doctor makes about raising the head of my bed, etc. Why can't it just be fixed surgically? — J.A.

Such hernias (where the gullet passes through the diaphragm) are quite common. The "sliding" type is the most common one. If you X-rayed the gullets of every adult in the country about 40 percent would show evidence of a sliding hiatal hernia. If every one required surgery, folks would be lined up around the block waiting their turns. The sliding type rarely requires surgery.

The other type of hiatal hernia is less common and poses a greater threat. In this type, a portion of the stomach bulges (herniates) through the diaphragm next to the gullet. This is called a "paraesophageal" hiatal hernia. It usually produces no symptoms, but because of its location there is a danger of strangulation. Hence, surgical repair is required if it enlarges.

The sliding type, as the name implies, may appear and disappear depending upon the pressures placed on it by nearby structures. This is why weight loss is usually required if one is overweight.

Your letter is not unusual. The term "hiatal hernia" sounds ominous, so many people panic when told they have it. But careful analysis of X-rays and symptoms show the seriousness of one and indicate whether surgery is needed or not. In most cases, it is not.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently you wrote that garlic has no medicinal value. Yet, I read where a biochemist claims garlic as well as some other foods are a good source of selenium. What is selenium and does it exist in garlic? Is it good for a person, or is it just something the biochemists have dreamed up? — A.R.

Selenium is a so-called "trace" metal in our diets. It was "dreamed up" billions of years before biochemists arrived on the scene. Not much is known about its role in human health, but it is closely related to vitamin E, about which, incidentally, not much more is known.

According to Douglas Frost in Food and Nutrition News, the body needs it in very small amounts. The greatest concern surrounds its potential toxicity (poisoning) rather than any medicinal value. Most foods contain it — meats, milk, vegetables, and grain — so I assume garlic contains it. Apparently, your source feels it is one of the substances richest in it. However, I see no need for you to sacrifice your social life by munching on garlic cloves to supply selenium. Any general diet supplies your ration. Folks have tended to get mighty fancy about nutrition in recent years.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any reason a person should suddenly notice a large toe on one foot taking on a dark hue? It is painless, and I don't recall bumping it recently. — N.F.

It's possible that the blood circulation has been closed off by tiny clots in small vessels there. The so-called "blue toe" symptom can mean occluded arteries elsewhere. It warrants an investigation to find out whether it is the result of some unsensed injury or of a chronic circulation problem.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How soon after delivery can a woman start exercising to get her stomach back in shape? — Mrs. B.

As soon as any scars have healed. Begin with mild exercises, such as bending at the waist or lying flat and raising the legs. The best rule is to let the doctor be the judge.

• • •

To learn of the many factors involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia (which concerns the esophagus), write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When I was having my debut, I found the exact dress that I wanted. Just one catch. It was a wedding dress.

You know mothers are the greatest!

She suggested that we buy the dress and put tiny yellow bows all over the skirt. (Yellow and white was the color scheme.) Well, needless to say, 120 bows later, it turned out beautifully.

We also had the store order extra material. Now when I decide to get married, if I have outgrown the dress, all we have to do is have a new bodice made and take the bows off. The skirt is very full and will present no problem.

Presto! A wedding gown. — Suzann Gonzalez

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

Fifteen cents is quite a lot to mail a letter. But I think of it as a visit with a friend! For $1.50 a month, I can have 10 visits!!

I sure can't go to Vermont, or New Mexico or Wisconsin for 15 cents. — Evelyn Chung

DEAR HELOISE:

I hope this is a helpful hint to your readers and friends.

After helping with gifts at birthday and baby showers and seeing the jumble of mixed, displaced cards that fall from packages, I find this appreciated by the receiver of the gift. On the card attached to the package I sign my name and make a note of the gift given, such as clock, blue towels, toaster, etc.y

Later when the recipient is ready to write a thank-you note, all she has to do is pick up the card with the name of the gift item before her. Much easier. — Opal Husted

DEAR HELOISE:

My mother made a cover for my string mop. She used a soft cloth, made a square bag, and ran elastic around the top to tie it around the mop handle.

It works beautifully and can be washed much easier than washing the mop.

Keep those good hints coming because they help me through the day. — Louise Kinsel

DEAR HELOISE:

To help pass the time in church for a pre-schooler, try giving him a piece of yarn.

You can do many things with it and it's so quiet. It beats drawing on the church bulletin. And what if he tickles himself and laughs — that's better than crying.

You can also give a small child a tiny pair of tennis shoes and a couple of shoe laces. He will sit through the entire service trying to get the laces in the shoes.

Of course, if the shoes are dropped on the floor, they are less noisy than some toys. — Mrs. Robert Walker

DEAR HELOISE:

A few days ago I made some gravy that was gray and yukky looking. To improve the appearance, I added a teaspoon of instant coffee.

It looked more appetizing and there was no coffee taste to the gravy — just nice and brown. — Margaret Lorz

DEAR HELOISE:

Those wicker-type baskets make a great place for storing vegetables and fruits.

The 10-inch-square basket holds ten pounds of potatoes. I use a smaller size for onions, a larger size for grapefruit, apples and oranges.

Very attractive and there doesn't seem to be as much spoilage as with an unvented holder. — L.C.

South decides that since the game is rubber bridge and the hour is late he will settle for six spades.

When he sees the dummy he is glad that he did just that. He also is slightly worried about six.

He takes his ace of hearts and plays his king of trumps. When both opponents follow he has no trump loser.

Victor Mollo asks, "Can South make sure of his contract at this stage in the proceedings?"

The answer is that he can, provided clubs don't break 9-0 or 8-1.

The correct safety play is to lead a club to dummy's ace, ruff a club, enter dummy with a trump, lead and ruff dummy's last club and play his last heart.

It doesn't matter which opponent wins that heart trick. A heart or club lead will allow him to ruff in dummy and discard one of his diamonds while a diamond lead will take his diamond finesse for him.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My mother always said, "You never know a man until you live with him." How right she was. "Bill" is 25 and I am 24. We've been married two years.

I don't know exactly how to say this, but I will do my best. It is not a subject that is easy to talk about.

Bill can go for two months without taking a shower. He never washes his hair because "water will make it fall out." I have bought him several different kinds of deodorants, but he never uses them. I don't remember the last time he brushed his teeth. I am sure it has been several months.

I've told Bill at least a hundred times that I cannot stand his carelessness in regard to personal habits. He gets mad at me and doesn't speak for days. Last week I slept on the couch because I couldn't stand to be near him. What more can I do? I told Bill I was writing to Ann Landers and he said, "That's fine with me. I'd like to know what she has to say about this. I hope she tells you to get off my back." — Waiting For Your Reply

Dear Waiting: You can call it "carelessness" if you want to, but the experts call it sick, sick, sick. An adult who has the personal hygiene of a goat demonstrates two things. First, a total disregard for others — and second, some mighty kinky notions about himself. Incidentally, you are not alone. I hear from dozens of women every week who are suffering with the same type of mate. (Sometimes men write, but the women outnumber the men at least 25 to one.)

People who refuse to bathe, brush their teeth, wash their hair, etc., need professional help. They are disturbed individuals who need to understand why they neglect themselves in this manner.

My advice to women or men who are married to these types is — sleep on the couch until your mate decides to get professional counseling and work at conquering the problem.

Dear Ann: Our daughter is being married in a few months and we are now in the process of formulating the plans. Molly has decided she does not want children at her wedding or the reception. She says she has seen too many weddings that have been ruined by noisy kids and she is not going to allow anything to mar the beauty of her day. The girl has made it clear that she wants no one under high-school age to be invited.

I feel I should respect my daughter's point of view, but how does one tactfully tell people when they ask if their young children are included? — Brick Wall

Dear Brick: People of good taste do not bring their children to parties or weddings unless the invitation specifically states "and family."

If someone asks if they may bring their children, simply say, "Sorry, Molly does not want anyone under high-school age, and we are respecting her wishes because it's her day." If people show up with their youngsters there is nothing you can do except be polite and hope the kids behave themselves.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

The world is divided into two groups: those who aren't crazy about cats and those who think cats are the greatest thing to hit this country since sliced bread.

I personally cannot relate to anything that licks its feet while I'm talking to it, but I have to say since seeing cats on television, I have never seen a more impressive animal.

I used to think cats wandered from room to room looking for a velour sofa to shed on, but since watching them on television I have gained a new respect for them. They type, answer the phone, play the piano, take baths and do the cha-cha-cha. In one commercial, there were 18 of them nudging one another out of a bowl of their favorite food.

If anyone out there has a cat out of work, it's their own fault.

As Mary Worth once said, "I don't mean to meddle," but it's my observation that dogs had better shape up. Just tipping over a 50-pound bag of dog food and panting isn't going to do it anymore. How much longer can they slide in on the coattails of Benji?

If dogs don't get an image-maker pretty soon, their popularity will go right down the tube.

Do dogs have a big poster going for them? Cats do. The picture of a cat hanging from a parallel bar saying, "HANG IN THERE, BABY" is a classic.

Have dogs made an impact on Washington? If so, then how come the words "fat cat" dominate the political scene?

And who can quarrel with cats' association with sex symbols? A starlet can purr like a sex kitten, but where is she if someone calls her a bow-wow?

I don't think I'm being dramatic when I say it's only a matter of time before cats hit Broadway in "CHORUS FELINE," take over movies with a thriller called, "CLAWS," and have their own TV series, "LITTER HOUSE ON THE PRAIRIE."

The other night as I was watching TV, my dog was lying on my foot snoring when I saw a cat dancing and singing on television.

That tore it. I got up and headed for the door.

"Are you going out to buy cat food?" asked my son.

"Are you kidding? I'm going out to buy a cat."

Five Special Days Slated During Fair

FAIR-ER SEX — Workman Stan Hoover fixes up a brightly painted fun house wall in readiness for the opening of the South Plains Fair Saturday. And who is the young woman pictured on the wall? Someone suggested she might be called Fair-ah Fawcett. (Staff Photo by Holly Kuper)

Five special days have been declared during the 61st annual Panhandle South Plains Fair which opens its eight-day run Saturday.

General manager Steve L. Lewis said that Monday would be the traditional "area school day" to coincide with the "Parade of Bands," set for downtown Lubbock at 10 a.m. on that day.

Lubbock schools days are Tuesday and Wednesday. Classes will be suspended early on Wednesday to allow the city's students to attend the fair. Free passes also may be used Tuesday, although classes will not be suspended early that day.

Approximately 160,000 tickets have been distributed to city and area schools and teachers, enabling them to gain free entry to the fairgrounds.

Senior citizens (60 and over) with identification will be admitted free on Wednesday. College and military day is Friday and college students and military and civilian personnel at Reese AFB will be admitted free upon presentation of appropriate identification.

Although these dates have been designated as "special days," fair officials said the public also is welcome on those dates.

A spate of free entertainment is on the menu for all fairgoers. On the outdoor stage Lubbock mime Ruth Rubin and magician Bob Ford will perform at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. daily along with Vandermeide, Europe's fastest hypnotist (7:15 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. daily) and the Amarillo Gunfighters' Association (7 p.m. and 9 p.m. daily).

In addition, a breathtaking double sway pole act featuring the Swaying Bilros will delight crowds at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. each day.

Six shows are set for Fair Park Coliseum, including the Charley Pride show, with Dave and Sugar, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sunday; the Statler Brothers, at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Monday; the Johnny Rodriquez show, with Linda Hargrove, 8 p.m. only Tuesday; the Jim Ed Brown show, with Helen Cornelius and Wendy Holcombe, 8 p.m. only Wednesday; Eddie Rabbitt and Jerry Clower, 8 p.m. only Thursday; Mel Tillis, 8 p.m. only Friday and 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. on the closing Saturday.

All seats are reserved and tickets are $4, $5 and $6. Tickets may be purchased at the Fair Park Coliseum box office (744-9557), Sears and Hemphill-Wells stores in South Plains Mall, Ed's Wagon Wheel, Dunlap's and Luskey's Western Wear.

Dave and Sugar, Brown and Miss Cornelius, the Statlers and Tillis all have been nominated for honors by the Country Music Association this year. Winners will be announced Oct. 9.

Traffic Light Ready

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation will place a new traffic light on flashing operation at 9 a.m. today at the intersection of Loop 289 and South Quaker Ave.

At 7 a.m. Monday the signals will be placed on standard stop and go operation.

Marilyn Todd Works To Be Shown Here

The paintings of Marilyn E. Todd, which depict West Texas ranch life and Rocky Mountain landscapes, will be displayed Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the El Centro Room of Texas Tech's Home Economics Building.

A doctoral student in higher education at Texas Tech, the artist is on leave from Midland College, where she teaches design and art history.

The 60-foot display, sponsored by the College of Education's Graduate Student Association, is being shown as part of an effort to portray diversified talents and interests of its members.

The 12 oil paintings, commissioned by Furr's Cafeterias, will be a permanent exhibit in Grand Junction, Colo.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Naked Biker Arrested

CHICAGO (AP) — A 22-year-old Wright College student was arrested sitting naked on his motorcycle at a traffic light.

Jeff Pietrecha told police at 1 a.m. Wednesday that he bet several friends $20 he could ride naked to a hot dog stand, buy the food and return.

He almost made it.

Several blocks from his goal, he stopped at a Northwest Side intersection to wait for a traffic light to change. A car pulled up next to him. Pietrecha looked over, nodded at the two occupants and chirped: "Hi, guys."

The "guys" were patrolmen cruising the streets in an unmarked squad car.

Pietrecha was charged with disorderly conduct. His friends paid his $35 bond and provided him with a pair of shorts to return home. But they figure that Pietrecha won his $20 bet even though he didn't complete his mission. They deducted it from the bond money and the biker in the buff wound up owing them $15.

Union T-Shirts Recalled

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The Coalition of Labor Union Women sold seven T-shirts emblazoned with the CLUW logo until a discovery prompted a recall — the shirts were made in non-union shops in the Phillipines.

The CLUW had set up a table at the annual Connecticut State Labor Council convention that began Wednesday. Other tables held pamphlets, buttons, posters and bumper stickers urging support for organized labor.

The idea — the T-shirts notwithstanding — was to buy products made in America by union members.

Carter Breaks Drink Rule

BOSTON (AP) — President Carter broke his one-drink rule after the Camp David summit meeting Sunday and had a second one, his son Chip reports.

CHIP CARTER

"He had a light Scotch and water and then Ted Kennedy called" to find out how things had gone. "He said, 'Have a drink for me,'

"So my father had another," said Chip, 28.

He said it was the only time he remembered seeing his father have more than one drink.

Chip Carter visited South Boston on Wednesday night on a campaign trip through New England for the Democratic National Committee.

Unwed Members Seeded

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — My, how times have changed.

A notice recently went out to members of an area community association soliciting entrants in what had traditionally been an annual husband-wife tennis tournament.

But the qualifications this year were broadened somewhat.

The tournament is open, the notice said, to married couples and those "who have established a substantial connubial relationship."

Singer's Jewelry Stolen

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Singer Rita Coolidge may now be singing the blues.

Police said a burglar removed jewelry worth $11,700 from her hotel while she and husband Kris Kristofferson were here for the Muhammad Ali-Leon Spinks fight.

Protesters Derail Honor

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A proposal to award the Empress of Iran an honorary degree from Syracuse University has been derailed by protesters who say the Empress is part of a repressive regime.

EMPRESS FARAH

"We didn't want to enbarass the university because of the threatened debate that would ensue. It would have besmirched the name of the empress," said Michael Marge, dean of the college of human development.

The empress was to be recognized for her work in education and women's rights.

Jail Bird Kept In Cage

BLAIR, Neb. (AP) — Washington County sheriff's authorities have a new jail bird on their hands — it's a myna.

The bird was left on a Blair couple's doorstep with a note that said, "My name is Benji." Authorities will keep the myna for 30 days, and if no one claims him, he will go to the couple.

Meanwhile, Benji sits in a cage in the sheriff's office — coughing, whistling, exclaiming: "Oh, God" or "Oh, Lord," and occasionally uttering something that sounds like "Deal the cards."

Deputies say they're watching their language — they don't want Benji to pick up any new words.

Two-Bit Traffic Jam Costly

DETROIT (AP) — It was a freeway free-for-all on the road to riches.

Dozens of people stopped their cars Tuesday afternoon to scramble for an estimated $5,000 worth of quarters that spilled from a moving armored truck on the busy Chrysler Freeway.

Street-level pedestrians swooped onto the freeway to join the two-bit fracas.

Several bags of quarters split open as they hit the pavement, scattering the coins along the concrete.

Traffic stopped and backed up for two miles in northern Detroit as word of the spill spread.

State troopers and traffic officers from the Detroit Police were called to help clean up the coins and return them to the Purolator Security Co. truck.

A swarm of quarter-grabbers was chased up the freeway embankment and over a fence by police. Some got away, including one youngster seen carrying a nearly full bag of coins.

Purolator employees spent the rest of the day trying to figure out how much money they lost. Each sack contained about $600 in quarters, said Al Young, Purolator's assistant operations manager.

From Snowbank To Bank

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Honesty paid off in a big way for 9-year-old Mike Larson of Maple Grove.

Mike who has a knack for finding money — $7 in a parking lot, 61 cents by a candy machine, odd change under the bleachers of a raceway — hit the jackpot last March when he found $500 in a snowbank.

Mike called police, who turned the money over to him Wednesday after an unsuccessful six-month search for the owner.

Mike said he plans to buy a 10-speed bike with the money and put all but $20 of what's left into a savings account. He plans to donate the $20 to his local church.

Waitress Held For Murders Of Children

ODESSA (Special) — A 20-year-old waitress has been charged with three counts of murder after she was arrested Wednesday for the suffocation deaths of three of her children over a four-year period.

Emma Jean Berry remained in Ector County Jail late Thursday in lieu of $300,000 bond set by Odessa Justice of the Peace Harold Sligar.

Ector County District Attorney Special Child Abuse Investigator Jerry Davis made the arrest after an autopsy on the latest infant showed it died of suffocation.

District Attorney John Green said his office was notified by a local hospital of the child's death and upon further checking, authorities discovered that Mrs. Berry's two other children also had died the same way.

According to Green, Mrs. Berry told police all the infants had suffered crib death.

Green said the first child, her 10-month-old son, died in Houston Jan. 27, 1974, and the autopsy conducted there also revealed "unusual circumstances" in the infant's death.

In 1976, Green said, after Mrs. Berry had moved here, her two-month old child also died of suffocation. And on Sept. 7, he said, an Odessa hospital reported that Mrs. Berry's two-week-old infant died the same way.

Although Mrs. Berry was married at the times of all three infants' deaths, Green said the Odessa investigation indicates the men were not involved in the deaths.

Green said that Ector County officials are working with the Houston authorities, who have asked the West Texas lawmen to try the cases in their jurisdiction first because Mrs. Berry was still a juvenile at the time of the first child's death.

Green said the case would be presented to the Ector County Grand Jury on Monday. He said he would seek the death penalty for the woman if she is convicted.

In 1950, the Niagara River Pact was signed by Canada and the United States, approving an increase in power output from the Niagara River.

ANTHONY OPAT — Not hired, then fired.

Unemployed 'Nonemployee' Employs Self At Ford Plant

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. didn't hire 19-year-old Anthony Opat when he applied at the huge Woodhaven stamping plant. So he sneaked in and spent three sweltering days on the assembly line before he was found out and "fired."

He's still waiting to learn if Ford officials were impressed enough to pay him and give him a job.

"The three days I worked were the hottest days of the summer — I never sweated so much in my life," he said. "I figured they'd think anyone who would work in that heat would be worth hiring."

John G. Grotz, industrial relations manager at Woodhaven, said that cases of people posing as employees were "extremely rare," but that "it is possible — in a plant with more than 4,000 hourly employees and several shifts — for a nonemployee to enter the facility and pose as an employee."

Opat, from suburban Melvindale, had lost a job as an ambulance driver before he applied for work at the plant Sept. 6. He said he was told there were no openings but he put on work clothes and showed up the next day at the afternoon shift change.

"I flashed my unemployment card at the gate guard and went on in with everyone else," he said. "He must have thought it was an ID card."

Inside the plant, Opat said he told a foreman he was a "new hire," was given a time card to punch and spent the next three days stacking auto hoods.

Opat revealed his identity to a fellow employee, who apparently told a supervisor because he feared Opat would get hurt on the job. On the fourth day, Opat was greeted by a foreman who took him to the plant office.

He said officials told him to keep the whole thing quiet and that he would get paid for the time he had worked and would be given a chance for a permanent job. But now, he said, "every time I call, they tell me to call back another time."

Ford officials refused to comment when asked whether Opat would be hired or paid for his work.

Sex Fantasies Aid Performance

NEW YORK (AP) — A specialist in marriage and family counseling says the use of books or pictures to stimulate sexual arousal is "neither perverted nor disloyal" and may bring new vigor to a tired sexual relationship.

Writing in the October issue of McCall's magazine, Marcia Laswell concludes that "sexual fantasizing is one of the more potent sexual stimulants."

However, she adds: "Ultimately, one inevitable fact must be faced: Marital sex cannot forever keep on being as new and as fresh as it once has been."

Given that, there are things couples can do to rekindle their sex lives, she argue.

For one thing, they need to make sure they have time for sex.

"Plan for it," the counselor writes. "Spontaneity is fine, but it isn't everything. As our lives get busier it may be harder to find the right moment for sex."

Laswell is associate director of the graduate program in marriage and family counselling at the University of Southern California.

Handmade Place Mats Simple To Make

If you occasionally browse through the linen department, eyeing lovely, lacy, handmade mats and napkin rings, or if you leaf slowly through magazines gazing enviously at the table settings so often displayed with exquisite lace place mats and napkin rings, dream no longer. You can make your own. It's easy to buy lace by the yard at a fabric store and hem by hand or insert a strip of lace in pieces of any fabric cut to size. But for a really distinctive table setting, you might like to try this lacelike set of four place mats and matching set of four napkin rings pictured above — made so easily with new needle weaving.

Replicating the old French lace net weaving, the place mats and napkin rings create an elegant effect whether placed on a polished wood table or atop a table cloth of your favorite color.

With the place mat kit, you can create any of three lace-inspired designs — Contemporary, Irish, or Queen Anne.

The napkin rings kit and the place mats kit both include polyester netting (6 threads to an inch), natural-colored all-cotton thread, size 16 needle, and instructions with graph. The design on one place mat in the kit has been pre-started to make direction easy to follow.

All of the needle-woven items are washable and require no finishing or blocking. Finished place mats measure 12½ inches by 18 inches.

Order kit no. 14987 for the place mats; kit no. 14988 for the napkin rings; kit no. 14989 for place mats and napkin rings.

The Place Mat kit is $14.99 plus $1.95 postage and handling: Napkins Rings are $4.49 plus postage and handling: Place Mats and Napkin Rings are $18.49 plus $1.95 handling postage and handling.

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

It's called The Courthouse Project, a vast photographic documentation that commissioned 24 photographers over a three-year period and produced a composite portrait of a historical architectural heritage of the United States: the county courthouse.

That composite is a mosaic composed of more than 8,000 negatives that is now part of our permanent archives, being donated to the Library of Congress. They portray 1,300 courthouses, more than one-third of the total number in the country, and represent the architectural ideas of community planners in each of the 48 contiguous states over a span of 250 years.

Fortunately, we don't have to search the archives to view or study this significant area of our heritage. A selection of 360 photographs, distilled from the collection, has been published in hard and soft cover editions by Horizon Press, N.Y. It's entitled: "Court House — A Photographic Document, Edited by Richard Pare." In addition, two sets of exhibition prints, numbering 120 photographs in each set, are now touring the country after an opening at the Art Institute of Chicago. They are under the auspices of the American Federation of the Arts and the National Trust for Historic Preservations.

The book has a foreword by Phyllis Lambert, the architect who conceived the idea in 1974 and directed the project in its entirety; and an introduction by Richard Pare, who assigned the 24 photographers, edited all the pictures and the book, and took many of the photographs himself.

In addition, to supplement the photos and add a colorful tapestry of information to go with them, the book includes three essays by knowledgeable authorities. The Hon. Paul Reardon, a retired jurist of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, sets the historical stage in the development of the judicial system at the county level. He cites some early-day hardships which prevented some county sheriffs from carrying out courthouse writs.

"Not executed," was one explanation, "by reason there is no road to the place he lives."

"Not executed," was another, "because the defendant's horse was faster than mine."

The course of county judicial history is marked by spectacular cases that riveted the nation's attention and, in some instances, altered history. Reardon recalls the Dred Scott Decision which divided the country on the slavery question and ultimately led to the Civil War. Other memorable cases mentioned that commanded headlines in words and photographs: The Scopes "Monkey Trial"; the Sacco-Vanzetti trial; and the Bruno Hauptmann trial for the kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Another essay by Calvin Trillin, staff writer for the New Yorker, delves into the fascinating sidelights of characters, atmosphere and folklore of contemporary county courthouses. Finally, two architectural historians, Henry-Russell Hitchcock and William Seale, explore the significance of the local courthouse in the general context of American architecture.

English-born photographer Richard Pare, who supervised the entire photographic program for the project, received his Master of Fine Arts degree in photography from the Art Institute of Chicago in 1973. He taught photography in colleges and was a Mellon Foundation lecturer in photography at Cooper Union in New York City.

After selecting the two dozen photographers to cover every section of the country, Pare briefed them on the purposes of the project and discussed the results of each shooting session as they came in, studying every set of contact prints with minute care.

"Photographers of architecture have only limited resources at their disposal," Pare says. "Much depends on the time of day and time of year. Each one has a basic choice of where to stand and what to select as significant. What you choose to include also determines the choice of what to eliminate. Often details can have great symbolism, although they are only a tiny part of a large structure."

In shooting interiors, photographers had to evoke an awareness of how it feels to walk through courthouse corridors and court rooms. Their images had to inspire viewers with a sense of being there and of recalling personal experiences from the past. Many of the photographs are straight-forward documents, but a large number are visually powerful statements due to the perception and talent of the photographer.

The Court House Project was carried out almost completely in black-and-white, but the book includes 16 color prints made by Jim Dow, Geoff Winningham and Stephen Shore.

My final reaction? How much easier and pleasanter it is to view a courthouse through these photographs than to undergo the frustrations and red tape that one normally experiences when a courthouse visit is necessary.

Free Wood Available In Forests

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — I clipped a story out of a magazine about where to get free firewood, but misplaced it. My brother thinks I must have read it wrong; that nobody is giving away free firewood when they can get high prices for it. Was I right? And where can one get such firewood?

A. — Presumably, you saw an item about the government's Forest Service. Under one of its regulations, anyone can get free firewood from specified national forests, which are located all over the United States. However, you must obtain a permit and must agree to cut and remove only the kind of wood specified. Get in touch with the local office of the Forest Service. It's listed in the telephone book under U.S. Government, Department of Agriculture.

Q. — Within a few weeks, I expect to seal my asphalt driveway with a coal-tar emulsion sealer. Since this sealer is advertised as waterproof, can it be applied in any kind of weather or must I wait for a dry day?

A. — You not only must wait for a dry day, you should undertake the task when there is no forecast of rain for the next day.

Q. — Our asphalt shingled roof was put up 19 years ago. We were told that it would last about 15 years, but we see no signs of aging. At least, none of the signs you said to watch out for a couple of months ago. Should we have the roof redone anyway?

A. — If there is no excessive loss of the mineral granules, no damaged shingles (that includes those that are blistered, curled or dried-out) and no roof leaks, let well enough alone. But keep on checking every so often, using field glasses to scan the shingles while standing on the ground.

(All the whys and wherefores of roofing and reroofing, plus an asphalt shingles color guide, are included in Andy Lang's booklet, "Guide to the Selection of Roofing," available by sending 35 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Shade Trees Help Cut Fuel Bills

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

While it is still mild outdoors let's think about both cold and hot weather back in the good old or bad old days before technology solved problems of discomfort from the climate.

There were ways to cool homes in summer and conserve heat in winter, and those methods are still available.

First, use energy supplies wisely. Make heating and cooling systems work efficiently and use them conservatively. Utilize other energy sources such as sun and wind, and reduce energy requirements in the home by controlling the effects of climate on the dwelling itself. Trees and other plantings will help you do all these things.

Open windows on hot days and let cool breezes in, channeled by dense hedges planted strategically. Plant leafy trees where they shade the house in summer.

You can landscape in the same fashion with trees, shrubs and evergreens. Advice is readily available. Shade trees help control climate in summer with shade umbrellas and cooling transpiration. In winter they shed leaves and let the sun come through, especially effectively on the west and south sides of the house.

Ivies planted on masonry or trellis help block out direct sun and the leaves set up a convection current behind them to draw away hot air. In winter, ivy on walls exposed to wind is an insulator against heat loss from inside.

In severe cold, an evergreen windbreak on the north and west sides of the house tempers winter winds. The American Association of Nurserymen estimates twice as much fuel is needed to heat a house at an outside temperature of 32 degrees Farenhite with a wind of 12 mph as for the same temperature with wind at 3 mph. They'll save you a lot of fuel.

Windbreaks generally are best on the windward side, where a double or triple row of trees will ease the wind-chill. For best results, plant the trees a distance from the house equal to about 1½ to 2½ times the height of the structure they are sheltering. If the building is 20 feet tall, the windbreak should be 30 to 50 feet from it.

In summer, a chair under a tree is in a temperature as much as 8 degrees lower than the open area around it. If the same tree is shading a window from direct sunrays, the temperature inside can be 20 degrees lower.

Trees are great air washers. A beech tree standing alone releases 75-100 gallons of water into the atmosphere during a summer day. The effect has been described as equal to 10 room-size air conditioners running 20 hours a day.

Trees, flowers and grass are like "blotters" soaking up dust and gases discharged into the atmosphere. These oxygen machines cleanse the air through photo-synthesis, removing carbon dioxide from the air, returning oxygen to it.

1979's Commemorative Stamps To Honor Different Subjects

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

The U.S. 1979 commemorative stamp schedule will consist of 14 subjects plus five postal stationery items, ranging from tributes to Martin Luther King, Jr., to Albert Einstein, and from seeing-eye dogs to the 1980 Olympics.

Here is the list as provided by Postmaster General William F. Bolger: Jan. 15 — a single stamp honoring Martin Luther King, Jr.; Jan. 21 — a single stamp for Robert F. Kennedy; Feb. 27 — a single stamp dedicated to John Steinbeck; March 14 — a single stamp commemorating Albert Einstein.

Other stamps announced, but without a date of issuance, are: one stamp for seeing-eye dogs, a block of four in behalf of endangered flowers, a single stamp focusing attention on the "International Year of the Child," a block of four praising American architecture, a single stamp for the "Special Olympics" in recognition of athletic competition for the mentally retarded; a block of four honoring Pennsylvania toleware; a single stamp dedicated to John Paul Jones; a block of four and two single stamps for the 1980 Olympic Games; a single stamp in tribute to Will Rogers and, as is customary, two single stamps in October for Christmas.

Commemorative postal stationery items will be issued on the following subjects: 1980 Olympic Games (one embossed stamped envelope, one aerogramme and three postal cards); Veterinary Medicine (one embossed stamped envelope); Historic Preservation (one postal card featuring the Iolani Palace in Honolulu, Hawaii); Gen. Casimir Pulaski (one postal card); George Rogers Clark (one postal card).

Bolger said that this was the complete commemorative program for 1979 and no additional subjects would be considered. Regular issue stamps, however, for 1979 will be announced at a later date.

Four new stamps with designs based on "Chinese Folktales" have been issued by the Republic of China on Taiwan.

The first stamp honors Tsu Ti, who lived during the Tsin Dynasty (265-316 A.D.). A great leader of troops, he was credited with defeating the Northern barbarian tribes. The second stamp is dedicated to Pan Ch'ao, who lived during the Han Dynasty (25-220 A.D.) and became famous as the military governor of the Western Region. The third adhesive is for a woman, Ling Hung-yu, who was the wife of Gen. Han Shih-chung of the Sung Dynasty (960-1278 A.D). She served with her husband during his military campaigns. The fourth stamp commemorates Tien Tan, a native of Chi State during the period of Warring States (481-221 B.C.).

These stamps are available at your local stamp dealer or department.

Ethiopia, which used to produce stamps depicting Emperor Haile Selassie, now has a new form of government with Soviet backing as noted on its new stamps. A set of five honors the 60th anniversary of the Russian Revolution. Another set features designs showing a map of Africa with Ethiopia covered by a hammer and sickle, armed soldiers leading the people and the national emblem with crossed rifles.

Elderly Divided On Idea Of Retirement Villages

(This is the first in a series of three articles on the results of a survey about retirement housing.)

By The Associated Press

Several weeks ago, some of the readers of this column were asked to state their views on housing for the retired. The questions were addressed only to those persons 55 years of age and older, since it was felt that few younger persons think specifically about their retirement plans.

While the response did not match last year's 4,300 replies to another housing study — directed to all readers — there was a remarkable return.

The mailman brought 1,846 letters replying to the questions. Six hundred and thirty-two were from men and women between 55 and 65; 1,002 from those between 65 and 75; 199 from those between 75 and 90; and 3 from persons 90 and over. Ten did not give their ages.

There was an overlap of the figures involving the non-retired and the retired, because some of those under 65 were already retired, some over 65 were still working, and some were working part-time. But on balance, 1,242 responders were retired, 604 not retired.

Some of the letters contained interesting comments. No names will be given because many asked that their identities not be revealed.

As one 74-year-old woman said, "If they find out how I feel about my apartment and this place, they may not renew my lease."

The first questions were: Do you expect to seek out a retirement community? If you already are retired and live in such a place, how do you like it?

Three hundred and eleven of the non-retired said they expected to settle down later in a community of elderly persons. Two hundred and forty-six nixed the idea. The others didn't know yet or gave answers that could not be categorized. The outstanding element of this part of the survey was that those planning to look for a retirement community made little additional comment, but those opposed were emphatically against it. Their opposition could be summed up in the words of a 59-year-old man who said, in exactly this fashion, "NO! NO! NO!"

Of the 1,242 retired persons, 302 (couples were counted as one) said they lived in retirement areas, including one-story housing developments, condominiums, rental apartments, mobile parks and combinations of two or more of them. One hundred and forty-two were satisfied with their arrangements, 104 found them adequate but not quite what they had anticipated, and 56 were unhappy about the whole thing, with most of those admitting that their finances would not permit them to make any drastic changes.

Here again, as with the non-retired, the minority group of retired — those dissatisfied with their housing arrangement — expressed strong views about the situation.

But one comment was hard to classify. It came from a 68-year-old woman living with her 71-year-old husband in a retirement village.

"Everything about the place is ideal," she said. "The weather is perfect, there's a large clubhouse, a nice golf course, shuffleboard lanes, beautiful landscaping and first-floor rooms. BUT one by one our friends get sick and die, which depresses us greatly."

Rate Increase For Child Care Proposed

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock County Children's Protective Services Board has recommended that the county adopt increased state rates for foster homes, child care institutions and institutions for handicapped and emotionally disturbed children.

Jonette Walker, a supervisor employed by the Lubbock County Children's Protective Services Unit, outlined the rate increases:

—Foster homes for children ages one to nine from $5.00 per day to $5.50 per day.

—Foster homes for children ages 10 to 17 from $5.50 per day to $6.50 per day.

—Basic child caring institutions (which includes Buckners, Texas Boys Ranch and Lubbock Children's Home) from $7.00 per day to $7.50 per day.

—The maximum allotment for children in institutions for the mentally and physically handicapped from $13.50 per day to $15 per day.

—The maximum allotment for children in institutions for the emotionally disturbed from $34 per day to $38 per day.

These state approved rates will become effective Jan. 1, according to Mrs. Walker.

The unanimous vote of approval reflected board sentiment that failure to match state rates would lead to poorer care for children not qualifying for state funds.

The existing eligibility requirements for the state Aid for Families with Dependent Children program also came under close scrutiny at the meeting.

Pete Harland, chairman of the board and also a member of the State Children's Protective Services Board, commented that "roughly 50 percent of the children do not qualify for AFDC care in Texas." This means that all those children must be provided care with county funds, he said.

Harland informed the board members that the state board may soon recommend to the Texas Legislature revision of the state laws to liberalize eligibility requirements for AFDC.

He added that a strenuous lobbying effort will be necessary. "If we (State Board) can get this support from the local grass-roots, have it spread to the regional boards. . . then we think we can get this legislation passed," Harland told the members.

As the system currently operates, the Texas Department of Human Resources and the respective county commissioners' courts fund children's protective services boards and units in counties throughout the state.

With Harland as its spokesman, the Lubbock board is hoping that the state, through the AFDC program, will in the future provide for the care of more children, thus freeing county funds to aid additional children.

According to Mrs. Walker, income level is the major barrier preventing children from qualifying for AFDC in Lubbock.

Estate Planning Seminar Readied

Charge Follows Infant's Death

A criminal charge has been filed against a Lubbock man who allegedly caused the death of a small baby by leaving the infant strapped inside a closed automobile.

The misdemeanor charge of criminally negligent homicide was filed against Gary William Liles, 28, of 1601 70th St.

Maximim punishement upon conviction of the Class A misdemeanor is one year in jail and /or a $2,000 fine.

Liles was cited in connection with the Aug. 26 death of 4-month-old Jeremiah Chad Weaver, son of Robert and Terry Weaver of 3015 31st St.

According to reports, Liles' wife had been babysitting for the Weavers for about two months when the death occurred.

The official complaint alleges Liles left the child "strapped inside a motor vehicle with the windows...rolled up, at such a time as the temperature was sufficiently high that the death of the (child) resulted..."

The complaint says Liles should have been aware of the "unjustifiable risk" entailed in the alleged incident.

The baby's mother was employed as a registered nurse at St. Mary's Hospital, where the baby was pronounced dead around 5 p.m.

Mrs. Weaver, 29, indicated Liles was keeping the baby and other children at his residence because the defendant's wife was visiting, apparently at St. Mary's.

The mother of the dead child said Mrs. Margie Liles met her as she was leaving work at St. Mary's about 3:30 p.m. and told her she needed a ride home, and that her husband had been keeping the children.

Mrs. Weaver said that, after arriving at the Liles' home about 4 p.m., Mrs. Liles asked her husband where the baby was.

It was then, the mother said, that Liles said the baby was in the car.

Mrs. Weaver told police she thought Liles was joking and started toward a bedroom to get the baby. But, she said, Mrs. Liles hurried toward the car.

She said she followed and found the infant strapped in a car seat, slumped over.

According to Mrs. Weaver, Mrs. Liles exclaimed that the baby was blue.

The baby reportedly was taken inside to a couch. Mrs. Weaver told officers she said a prayer aloud and began attempting emergency resuscitation techniques.

Neighborhood Group Opposes Restaurant

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Despite the objections of the Overton South Neighborhood Association, the Zoning Board of Adjustment Thursday approved a request for a dance floor in a 19th St. restaurant.

The neighborhood association opposed the request of Donald Cage for a special exception to permit a 10-foot by 12-foot dance floor in the Casablanca Restaurant at 2138 19th St.

Overton South spokesman Ted Hogan accused restaurant owners of a "crass example of bad faith" because, Hogan said, the restaurateur's attorney had promised there would be no dance floor in the establishment.

Hogan said the association agreed not to oppose an earlier request for a variance of the parking requirements for the restaurant because of the no-dance-floor pledge.

"Without that concession, we would have adamantly opposed the request for a restaurant with liquor by the drink and inadequate parking," he said.

Cage, the restaurant owner, denied any such promise was made and said the small downstairs dance floor would be used only by customers waiting to be seated at one of the 15 tables upstairs.

ZBA members unanimously approved the special exception.

The board also dediced the Long John Silver's restaurant sign at 3415 S. Loop 289 is too large for the restaurant's frontage.

Harry H. Chapman asked the board to grant a variance to allow an 88-square-foot sign to remain in front of the restaurant, although it is nearly twice as large as permitted under the city's zoning ordinance.

For the restaurant's 114 feet of frontage, a 45.2-square-foot sign would be allowed. However, the existing sign is 88 square feet.

When applying for a sign permit, a restaurant representative used frontage of adjacent property which Long John Silver's Inc. owned but later sold.

"We weren't aware we were going to be in violation when we sold off the extra land," Chapman said.

Board members approved a special exception for the City of Lubbock to construct a pump station and reservoir east of Quaker Avenue and north of 78th Street.

City engineer Willie Watson said preliminary plans called for the pump station to resemble a residence and for the construction of tennis and volleyball courts on top of the reservoir, which would extend only about 2 feet above the ground.

Gordon Thompson, KFYO-Radio general manager, convinced the board to put a limit of 50 feet on the height of any future structure to prevent interference with the radio station's transmitting tower south of the reservoir site.

Board members approved a special exception to permit the expansion of a legal non-conforming use at 50th and Quaker as requested by Gene Faulkner for Horkey Oil Company.

Faulkner said the oil company wanted to enlarge a canopy to 30 by 50 feet to cover two 16-foot pump islands to be constructed.

The board also approved the following requests:

—Calvin Craig Jr., representing Service Optical Supply Inc. for a variance in the requirements for a screening fence and non-access to the alley at 2129 19th St.

—Raymond Hogan for a variance in the side-yard setback requirement for warehouses located at 1321 Jarvis St.

—Steve Hurt representing Lubbock Bible Church for a special exception to allow the construction of a church at 66th Street and Iola Avenue.

—Michael A. Solis for a special exception to allow a mobile home to be used as a dwelling for security purposes at 612 N. Ash Ave.

—Edith B. Pontheiu, representing Master Duplicating Service, for a special exception to permit a cassette duplicating business in a residence at 5309 49th St.

—O.V. Scott, representing First Broadway Company, for a variance of the parking requirements at an office building located at 2950 50th St.

The request of Donald E. Cummings for Don Gentry for a variance of the 200-foot separation from residentially zoned property and of the parking requirements at 39th Street and Avenue A was withdrawn.

Stickup Nets Patrons Free Beer

HOUSTON (AP) — It was beer on the house during a pizza parlor robbery.

Two armed men wearing ski masks and carrying a walkie-talkie took an undetermined amount of cash from the southwest Houston parlor Wednesday night.

Donald Eugene Benton Jr., 19, an employee, said about a dozen customers were unaware of the robbery until one of them walked to the counter to order a pitcher of beer.

"One of the robbers gave the customer his beer, then yelled 'Beer is on the house, but everybody remember this is a robbery'," Benton said.

Benton said he told the men very little cash was kept in the parlor because it had been robbed several weeks earlier.

"One counted the cash and said 'I ought to give this back. This isn't enough to go to jail for,'" Benton said.

The money was taken, however, and Benton said the men departed after one of them turned on the walkie-talkie and said "Cliff, come get me, and hurry up."

Jai-Alai Promoter Draws Stiff Fine

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — The state gaming commission Wednesday fined Hartford Jai-Alai Inc. and five of its top managers a total of $70,000 and suspended the arena's license for 10 days for failing to report an allegation of player-fixing in 1977.

The commission said the arena showed "a dramatic lack of corporate responsibility" in failing to notify the commission of the charges and an in-house investigation. Hartford Jai-Alai said its investigation showed the allegation of player-fixing was groundless.

House Gives Boost To Carter Petroleum Plans

ROLL CALL REPORT

Washington — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 7 through Sept. 13.

HOUSE

OIL POLICY Rejected, 194 for the 201 against, a motion to prohibit President Carter from imposing fees or quotes on imported oil. The vote was a victory for Carter's energy policy. He says the higher prices resulting from fees and quotes would discharge consumption of foreign oil. Spokesmen on the other side of the issue say such measures have the negative effect of holding back the price of domestic oil.

The motion would have forced House conferees on the Treasury appropriation bill (HR 12930) to agree to a Senate provision restricting the President's authority to regualate the price and availability of foreign oil.

Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, sponsor of the motion, said: "The imposition of a $5 import fee on crude oil would be nothing short of disastrous and it would have almost no effect on decreasing our import levels."

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., an opponent, said that by passing the motion the House "shall be saying to the world that we simply do not care, that we are content to keep coasting along, fat, dumb, and happy, until we spend ourselves poor on foreign oil and waste it and run out of it, and then we shall just depend on Divine Providence to protect us."

Most embers voting "yea" were opposed to Presidentially-imposed fees and quotas on foreign oil imports.

Reps. Samuel vHall, D-1, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Bill Archer, R-7, Bob Eckjardt, D-8, W.R. Poage, D-11, Jack Hightower, D-13, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Omar Burleson, D-17, Henry Gonzales, D-20, Bob Gammage, D-22, and Abraham Kazen, D-23, voted "yea."

Reps. Charles Wilson, D-2, Jim Mattox, D-5, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, James Wright, D-12, Barbara Jordan, D-18, George Mahon, D-9, and Dale Milford, D-24, Manuel Lujan, R-1, and Harold Runnels, D-2, voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague, D-6, John Young, D-14, and Robert Kruegar, D-21, did not vote.

AIRPORT AID Adopted, 213 for and 147 against, an amendment authorizing an additional $25 million in each of fiscal 1979 and 1980 for federal grants to general aviation airports such as those that serve many smaller cities. The money is in addition to at least $30 million annually already included in HR 8729 for such airports. The bill, the Airport and Aircraft Noise Reduction Act of 1978, was headed for final passage and debate in the Senate.

The amendment also sets a new distribution formula that pleased smaller-state senators. The $25 million will be divided evenly among the 50 states, rather than disbursed on the existing formula that favors sates with large populations and geographical size.

Rep. Joe Skubitz, R-Kan., the sponsor, said: "The general avaition industry will never reach its peak unless we provide an adequate airport sgystem. Industry in small cities not served by air will always be handicapped, unless business managers can travel fast and expeditiously."

Rep. Dale Mildford, D-Tex., an opponent, said: "To divide it equally between the 50 states in a stated amount totally disregards the distances involved, and the airplane attracts itsef to those states where we have vast distances. For instance, California has the highest number of airplanes."

Members voting "yea" favored the increased aid and formula change.

Wilson, Archer, de la Garza, White, Gammage, Lujan, and Kazan voted "yea."

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Eckhardt, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Hightower, Burleson, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez and Milford voted "nay."

Teague, Brooks, Young, Runnels and Krueger did not vote.

VETERANS Rejected, 149 for and 222 against, an amendment making it easier for veterans of the Vietnam theater to land Civil Service jobs. The amendment was unpopular because it also denied pre-Vietnam veterans the preference that now gives them an edge over non-veterans in competing for federal jobs. The amendment was proposed to HR 11280, the Civil Service reform bill later passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

The existing veterans' preference gives all veterans a five-point bonus on the Civil Service exam; disabled veterans get a ten-point bonus. The effect of this amendment, in part, was to deny the bonus points to individuals who entered the military before adoption of the Aug. 7, 1964 Gulf of Tonkin resolution. It also sought to limit the use of the veterans' preference to one time per veteran. After this vote, the House voted to keep the preference in its present form — which means a veteran of any era can continue to use it an unlimited number of times in seeking a U.S. Civil Service job.

Rep. Don Bonior, D-Wash., the sponsor, said the preference "was meant as a readjustment tool" but that even with it Vietnam veterans "cannot compete with the more experienced older veteran who enjoys lifetime preference."

Rep. Richard White, D-Tex., said he opposed any tinkering with the existing preference because that would break "a promise made to those who entered the armed services."

Members voting "yea" favored sweetening the veterans' preference for many Vietnam-era vets to the detrement of pre-Vietnam vets.

Wilson, Mattox, Poage, Hightower and Jordan voted "yea."

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Brooks, Wright, Young, de la Garza, Archer, White, Burleson, Mahon, Gonzalez, Gammage, Kazen, Runnels and Milford voted "nay."

Teague, Eckhardt and Krueger did not vote.

CARTER VETO Failed, 191 for and 206 against; to achieve the two-thirds majority necessary to overturn President Carter's veto of the $37 billion defence procurement bill for fiscal 1979. Since it takes only one house of Congress to sustain a veto, there will be no Senatgeg vote on the issue. Carter based his veto on the bill's inclusion of $2 billion for construction of a nuclear aircraft carrier which he said the nation does not need.

Rep. Robert Sikes, D-Fla., a supporter of overriding, said the veto "may be the final action in the gradual surrender of America's leadership of the free world....Killing the carrier may help to kill America's hope for a non-communist world in the future."

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., an opponent of overriding, said: "This is a day we should support the President, not take away the influence he should wield as President of the U.S. If war comes with the Soviet Union, the difference between 12 and 13 carriers won't matter."

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Archer, Poage, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Gonzalez, Gammage, Lujan, Runnels and Kazen voted "yea."

Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Wright, Jordan, Mahon and Milford voted "nay."

Teague, Young and Krueger did not vote.

SENATE

FEDERAL JUDGES Passed, 43 for and 31 against, a bill (S 1423) established a procedure for examing charges that a federal judge is incompetent or guilty of gross misconduct. Federal judges have lifetime appointments and, since they can be un-benched only by impeachment, there is virtually no watchdog over their performance.

The bill, whihch was sent to the House, would create a many-layered mechanism for screening and processing citizen complaints against federal judges. Judges so scrutinized would be federal district court judges, circuit judges, Supreme Court Justices, and court of claims, custom and patent judges. If an allegation made it to the end of the complaint process, a Court of Judicial Conduct and Disability could dismiss it or recommend to the House of Representatives that the jurist be impeached or censured.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a supporter, said: "As a result of its cumbersom nature, impeachment does not act as a real deterrent to misconduct on the bench."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., an opponent, questioned the constitutionality of the bill: "I do not think that the Funding Father's Concept of an independent federal judiciary serving on good behavior included a review of every complaint about some unpopular federal judge."

Senator voting "yea" favored the review procedure for federal judges.

Sen. Lloyd Bentson, D, voted "yea."

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R, Voted "nay."

Sen. Peter Domenici, R, John Tower, R, did not vote.

Message To Washington

MESSAGE — I am writing in the hope that you can do something to help us collect the Serviceman's Life Insurance my son was carrying at the time of his death. My son and his wife were killed in a private plane crash more than a year ago. Their son was the only heir and according to the will I am his guardian. The coroner initially made an error in listing the time of death on my son's death certificate. He eventually filed an amended certificate with the Serviceman's Group Life Insurance office. However, all we have had is requests for more death cerificates, newspaper accounts of the crash and in general a big put-off and runaround. We had a lawyer working on the matter but he has not met with sucess, so I am turning to you. Please help us. — H.S., Denver City

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — Serviceman's Group Life Insurance has now sent payment to you, with apologies for the delay. If the matter has not been resolved to your satisfaction, please feel free to call on me for further assistance.

MESSAGE — My taxes for the year 1976 were audited by the Internal Revenue Service. As a result of the audit I received a letter this past January asking payment of additional taxes. I mailed a check to the IRS, thinking that the case was closed. Now, I have received another letter stating that I owe additional fund. Can you get this harassment to stop, or will the IRS keep asking me for more money. I've paid what I owe and I don't think they are entitled to any more. — C.H., Dallas

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — The IRS advised me that the original payment you made included interest computed to January 9. Since you did not pay by that date you were charged for the additional plus a penalty for late payment. There are provisions for refunding the late payment penalty if you can show reasonable cause. If you believe there was reasonable cause for the late payment contact your local IRS office and they will be happy to explain the procedure.

Austerity Budget Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal budget plan paring the fiscal 1979 deficit to $38.8 billion, the lowest in five years, was adopted Thursday by the House amid expressed hopes the government might be able to balance the budget by 1981.

The Senate could act as early as today on the fiscal plan for the 12 months starting Oct. 1.

Although Senate-House differences kept Congress from meeting the Sept. 15 statutory deadline for adopting a budget, it appeared action would be completed before the beginning of the bookkeeping year.

"It may well be possible to erase the deficit entirely in two years," Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., chairman of the House Budget Committee, told his colleagues before the 225-162 vote.

Giaimo said such a feat would require continued restraint on spending by Congress and healthy growth of the economy.

The budget, which will become binding on congressional fiscal actions when it is finally adopted, calls for revenues of $448.7 billion and spending of $487.5 billion. The resulting $38.8 billion deficit would be the first of less than $40 billion since 1974.

The revenue figure makes room for a tax cut at least $2 billion greater than the $16.3 billion already voted by the House, which the Senate is expected to expand.

The proposed spending is about $21 billion below President Carter's original budget proposals last January, $9 billion below his revised proposals in July and more than $11 billion under the figure Congress itself set in the tentative budget resolution adopted in the spring.

Some of the reductions come from reestimates of need, others from deliberate cuts. Included was a $1 billion reduction in funds asked for health, education and welfare programs voted by the House on the ground the money could be saved by moving aggressively against waste, fraud and abuse.

Giamo was asked whether a balanced budget could be achieved in the near future without sacrificing such goals as welfare reform. Giaimo replied, "There could be all of these programs. They have to be truly reforms, replacing prior, unworkable programs instead of just adding on the existing ones."

Introducing two new soups with split personalities.

New Creamy Chicken Mushroom

At lunch, at dinner, or in between, Campbell's new Creamy Chicken Mushroom Soup really hits the spot. Made with pieces of chicken and lots of mushrooms in a creamy base.

Skillet Tuna Patties

1 can Campbell's Creamy Chicken Mushroom Soup
2 cans (7 oz. ea.) tuna, drained
½ cup cornmeal
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup finely chopped onion
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
¼ cup milk

Mix thoroughly ½ cup soup, tuna, cornmeal, egg, and onion. Shape into 6 patties. In skillet, brown patties in butter; remove. Stir remaining soup and milk into drippings; add patties. Heat; stir occasionally. Garnish with chopped parsley if desired. Makes 6 servings. M'm! M'm! Good!

New Beefy Mushroom

Here's a hearty-tasting new beef soup your whole family will go for in a big way. Campbell's new Beefy Mushroom Soup. Made with beef, mushrooms, and onions all cooked together in a robust beef stock.

Beef Oriental

1 lb. boneless round steak (¾" thick)
½ cup each diagonally sliced carrot, celery, green onions
¼ tsp. ground ginger
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 can Campbell's Beefy Mushroom Soup
1½ cups water
1 can (16 oz.) Chinese vegetables, drained
1 tbsp. each cornstarch, soy sauce
1 tsp. brown sugar
½ tsp. salt.

Freeze meat 1 hr. to firm (makes slicing easier); slice in thin strips. In skillet, cook carrot, celery, and onions with ginger in butter until just tender; push to one side. Add meat; cook until color just changes (about 3 to 4 min.). Add remaining ingredients. Cook, stirring until thickened. Serve over cooked rice with additional soy. Makes about 5 cups. M'm! M'm! Good!

Merger To Benefit Airlines' Customers

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (Special) — Almost $250 million in savings will be passed along to passengers if a merger of Continental Airlines and Western Airlines is approved, according to chairmen of the respective carriers.

The companies have filed an application with the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) to merge the two airlines. A ruling by CAB on the proposal is expected in March 1979, with action by the White House likely in May.

Joe Daley of Continental's Los Angeles office indicated that Lubbock service would be expanded by two flights. The early morning flights to the West Coast include an Albuquerque-Denver-Oakland route and an El Paso-San Francisco route.

"We're convinced that the new fare structure planned for the merged carrier will bring greater benefits to the passenger than anything in the economic history of commercial aviation," according to a statement by Continental's Robert F. Six and Western's Arthur F. Kelly, chairmen of the two airlines.

"We'd be able to cut fares on every flight up to 40 percent. Moreover, the savings to the nation's air travelers could top $3 billion as the other airlines and particularly the industry giants are forced to copy the low fares of our new merged carrier. We intend to meet them head-to-head on their major routes with a competitive impact which will compel them to reduce rates in order to exist in the marketplace," the joint statement said.

Lubbock's fares would also be reduced, though not all seats on every flight would receive 40 percent reductions, according to Daley.

Western and Continental Airlines are ranked 9th and 10th in size in the airline industry, generating 3.5 percent and 3.3 percent, respectively, of industry revenues.

Both Six and Kelly predicted extraordinary benefits to the passenger in a combined operation which would "aggressively attack pricing practices and routes" of the larger airlines.

Speaking of financial operations, the chairmen said, "Risks we could not assume alone are not only possible but indeed compelling as a combined company. We are anxious to reach out to the heavily travelled medium and long range routes between the West and East Coasts and vigorously compete with the larger carriers who have a virtual corner on these vital airline markets.

"Our productivity would increase 12 percent and our goal would be to use these cost savings to compete against the less efficient industry giants with even lower fares than we offer today.

Cost savings of $50 million would be realized by increased utilization of aircraft and staff plus significant productivity gains scored in computer services and complex maintenance procedures. More than $20 million in savings in capital expenditures and interest payments would also substantially reduce costs."

They predicted improved service for over 4 million passengers in almost 600 cities and the addition of 150 new flights to serve 121 of these locations from the outset.

"Our decision to merge was made only after an in-depth study extending more than six months. The results of that study which are contained in eight volumes of exhibits filed with the CAB convinced us that only through this merger could we bring huge benefits to the public, our employees, and our stockholders.

The Continental-Western merger seeks to provide enhanced competition, but not reduced service, according to the chairmen. "It aims for more flights — not less — and at cheaper prices. It seeks to bring new and significant competition to the major air routes of the nation," they said.

Trial Opens At Muleshoe

MULESHOE (Special) — A six-man, six-woman jury began hearing testimony Thursday in the 154th District Court trial of seven persons accused of being members of a Texas-New Mexico drug ring.

The jury was completed about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday after two days of proceedings had pared down 311 veniremen at Bailey County Civic Center and Coliseum.

With crucial testimony planned from an undercover agent indicted with 29 other Texas and New Mexico residents last March, Judge Pat Boone moved the trial from the coliseum to the meeting room of the civic center when the jury had been picked and the rest of the crowd sent home.

Mike Rodgers, a mysterious undercover agent known by an alias and so far not saying what agency he works for, has been scheduled to testify along with several others who pleaded guilty earlier this week or previously listed as witnesses for the state.

The trial may continue for several weeks, a defense attorney said Monday.

Your Personal Biorhythms

STEP 2. A-B MONTH OF BIRTH
STEP 3. DAY OF BIRTH
TOTALS

YOUR PERMANENT NUMBERS

BIORHYTHMS FOR SEP. 22, 1978

PHYSICAL
Critical 9, 17, 23, 40, 46, 63, 70 ... Don't be daring
Higher 7-40, 53-63, 87-87 ... Good day for self-test
Lower 1-6, 10-23, 41-46, 64-70 ... Rest and easy is the rule

EMOTIONAL
Critical 13, 37, 41, 65, 69, 93 ... Easy provoked
Higher 1-12, 29-40, 66-65, 89-93 ... Go for a night out!
Lower 14-28, 42-64, 70-92 ... Control your emotions

INTELLECTUAL
Critical 5, 25, 41, 57, 74, 89 ... Brains not infallible
Higher 1-23, 42-53, 78-89 ... Good for concentration
Lower 1-7, 33-40, 69-73, 91-99 ... Poor perception

Your Intellectual numbers are 22, 14, 37

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 10. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I).

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings.

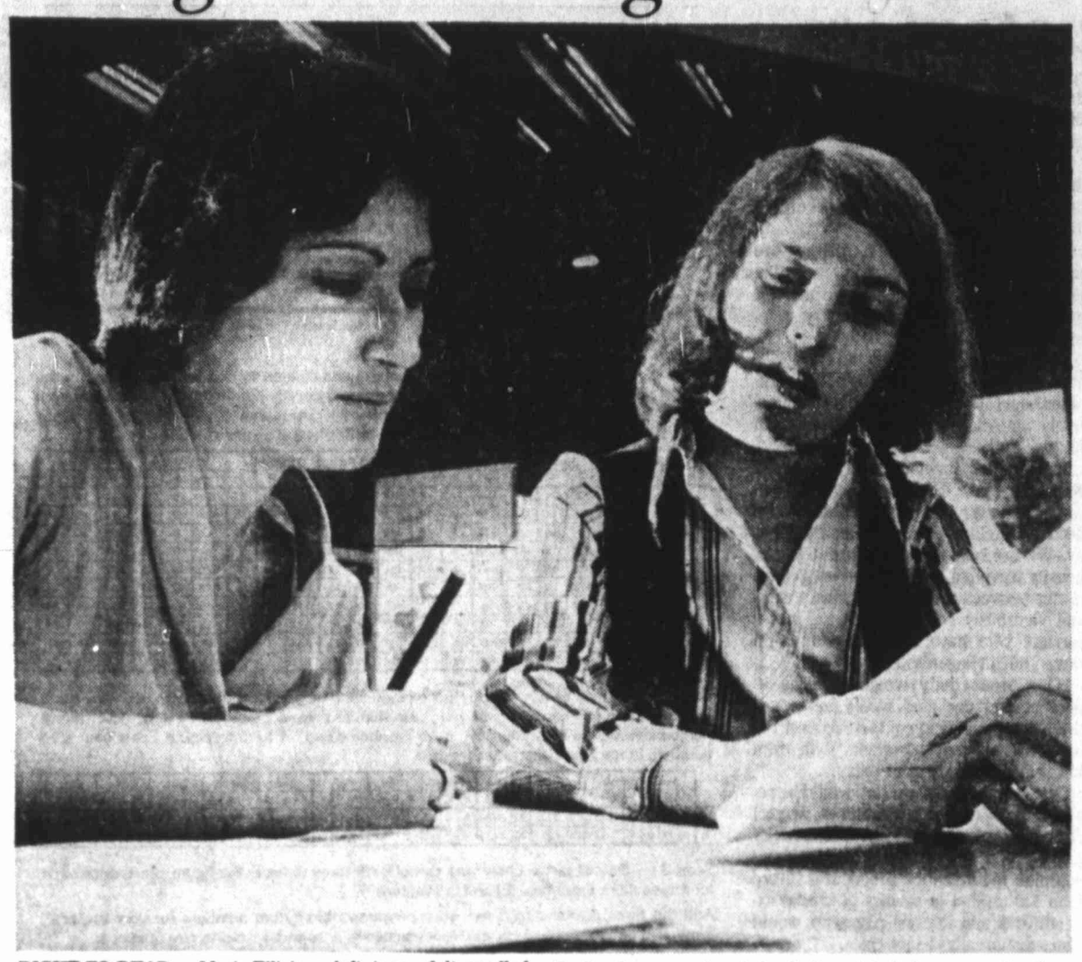
Program Designed To Assist Adult Illiterates



RIGHT TO READ — Maria Filiciano, left, is an adult enrolled in the Right to Read program in Springfield, Mass. The Right To Read program is a federal attempt to help persons develop reading skills. (AP Laserphoto)

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — You buy a can of dog food, thinking it's stew. You wind up in Lawrence when you want to go to Lowell. You poison yourself with four times the drug dosage prescribed.

You may be middle-aged and middle class, but you're also functionally illiterate.

To one in five adult Americans, this sentence is a meaningless jumble of letters and words.

They are not necessarily poor, foreign, stupid or high school dropouts. But they cannot read or write the English language.

"You hear about illiterate adults who have good jobs and have lived in America all their lives and you say, 'Oh, no.' But these people really exist," said Martha Hannon, Springfield director of Right to Read, a federal program designed to help them.

Right to Read is beginning its second year in Springfield under federal funding, but the city's public library has run a similar program since 1970.

Right to Read has programs in all 50 states, according to the federal Health, Education and Welfare Department. Volunteers tutor one student each, using materials paid for by the government. Often there is a specific goal, such as learning to read a newspaper or taking a driver's license test.

Students come from all backgrounds, but one type is particularly common — "the mother whose kids are getting old enough to realize she can't read" — said Joy Desrosiers, who works with the program.

"They're often self-conscious, and don't even want to admit they're illiterate," said Hannon. "So one-on-one tutoring works well."

Others who seek out the program include factory workers who never had to read but now are at vocational dead-ends. Many are children of illiterate parents, and many, said Desrosiers, are high school graduates.

Helen, 26, is a typical adult illiterate: married to a union carpenter, mother of three children, promoted through public schools because she attended class and kept quiet.

For awhile she was able to bluff her way through. For instance, she would go to the library, look at cookbooks with pictures and check out those that interested her.

At home her husband would read the recipe into a tape recorder, and Helen would play back the tape, listening to the recipe. She spent 2½ years using this method to memorize a driver's test.

But finally illiteracy caught up with her — unable to read instructions, she gave her infected child a wildly inconsistent dose of penicillin, almost fatally poisoning him.

"To see her, you wouldn't think she was illiterate," recalled Hannon. "She had a nice wool suit on, a nice haircut, and carried herself well."

Helen — whose house is next to the Western New England College campus in Springfield — started Right to Read tutoring sessions, and today she's working on a new goal: reading the Bible.

More proof of human ignorance came last month, when a flier describing the program was mailed by Western Massachusetts Electric Co. along with its bills as a public service.

"We were flooded with calls. Many were people asking about the program, but some people were complaining to us about their electric bills," Hannon said.

Life is not easy, she said, for those who can't read. "We had one man who always wanted soft drinks without ice. But he couldn't read, so he never pressed the button on soft drink machines that says, 'No Ice'."

Hugging Dentist Draws Prison Term

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Marvin Teicher, a dentist videotaped in the act of hugging and squeezing a woman he was treating in his office, was sentenced Thursday to four months in prison for sexual abuse.

Acting Justice Dorothy A. Cropper said in Manhattan's Supreme Court that she felt that "a prison term of four months is the appropriate sentence in this case. Dr. Teicher betrayed a professional and public trust..."

Execution of sentence was postponed until Sept. 28 to permit the defense to seek a stay pending appeal.

Earlier, the judge denied a defense motion for postponement of the sentencing.

Teicher, head bowed, told the judge, "I've done nothing wrong, nor have I committed any crime....I pray that you treat me fairly."

He said nothing as he left the courtroom with his wife after the sentencing.

Jacob Heller, the dentist's lawyer, pleaded with the judge "not to incarcerate this man. It would be a travesty under the circumstances and is not warranted."

He asked that the judge instead impose "a reasonable term of probation" and "limitations upon his conduct and his professional life."

Among limitations he suggested was that Teicher be made to give a bilingual written form to all his women patients for their signatures stating they were aware of his conviciton. Heller said that piece of paper would be "a written memorialization that he is forced to submit to every patient ... a 'mark of Cain' right on him."

Time Extension Set For Hearing

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission has set an application by White River Municipal Water District for an extension of time construct a 57,420-acre-foot reservoir in Garza County for hearing at 10 a.m. Oct. 26.

The application will he heard in the Stephen F. Austin State Office Building before a hearing examiner.

The reservior is to be built on North Fork Double Mountain Fork of the Brazos River, for municipal, industrial and mining purposes.

The permit, issued July 24, 1970, has been extended three times, and the current request is for a two-year extension, the TWC reports.

NEWSBOY'S KILLER SOUGHT

LONDON (AP) — British newspapers Thursday offered $16,000 in rewards for information leading to the killer of a newsboy who apparently surprised someone burglarizing a farm house. The story of the killing received prominent play in most British publications. Police said Carl Bridgwater was shot in the head with a shotgun at point-blank range while delivering an evening newspaper at a farm near Wolverhampton in the English Midlands.

HOW TO MAKE TIME FLY

Time flies when the hours pass unnoticed because you're relaxed and enjoying yourself. And that's just how you'll feel when you fly Braniff.

First you'll relax in the cool comfort of Braniff's exclusive all-natural leather seats on more and more flights. In Coach, when the center seat is not occupied the seat back folds down to become a table between passengers.

Then you'll enjoy Braniff's new fresh-food cuisine recommended by an advisory Board of Chefs. And service from flight attendants wearing a newly created wardrobe by America's foremost designer, Halston.

Giving you superior quality, comfort and extra touches in everything you see and experience in flight helps to make time fly. So, if your next flight on Braniff seems too short, that's the whole idea!

Mexican All-Stars Visit LCHS Tonight

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

When the Destroyers make a road trip, they really make a road trip.

In this case, the group traveled about 1,200 miles for a football game. Or in West Texas high school lingo about 4.7 chicken fried steaks per man—figuring, of course that a gridder devours, on an average, the delicacy every 250 miles.

The Destroyers, you see, hail from Mexico City, which is a few miles south of Tahoka, for those counting.

For the past five years, the team has played a squad of Texans. And this year is no different. So tonight the Destroyers will go against the Lubbock Christian High Eagles, hoping to notch their first win ever .

The cultural event is set for 8 p.m. at the Lena Stephens field.

And, according to head coach George Harper, the game against Mexico City's finest is "the biggest thing that's every happened here."

"Our kids not only think they're defending the honor of Lubbock," confided Harper, "but also Texas."

How about the U.S. of A?

"Well, maybe not that much."

But there is a lot of national pride, he pointed out.

For awhile though, it appeared the game, which pits 47 all-stars from Mexico City's eight military schools against LCHS, was about to crash before it got off the ground. It seemed an airline strike forced the group to alter their plans Wednesday afternoon.

So the team bypassed the commercial airlines and chartered a plane.

The game must go on.

"They said they were going to get here one way or another," said Harper. "And that's exactly what they did."

The Destroyers, a group of "all-star" cheerleaders, a few diplomats and some parents landed in Lubbock late Thursday evening.

A plan here and a tour there had to be altered, Harper said, but things are still going well.

"We had a lot of festivities that had to be changed," said Harper. "But the main thing is the football game. Nothing is going to stop that, though.

"From what I understand, the papers

Sandies Blow Past LHS 24-7

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

If a vote were taken rating Rusty Talbot as a human being, chances are he would wind up somewhere between awright and a good 'ole boy.

He's never been known as one to kick the wife or bite the dog. If the truth came out, he's probably never taken Knute Rockne's name in vain.

But still, there's someone up there that doesn't like him. Or so it seems.

That was apparent Thursday night at Lowrey Field as Talbot's Lubbock High Westerners put up a gallant showing before falling to the Amarillo Sandies 24-7.

The loss was Lubbock's third straight, while Amarillo climbed to a 1-2 mark.

Local High School Grid Teams In Third Week

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

By listening to the speeches from the various city high school football coaches during a press conference at the Coppercreek Mine restaurant, it's not hard to tell the winners from the losers.

Estacado's Louis Kelley, Dunbar's Van Jefferson, and Monterey's James Odom kept their speeches brief. Each of these coaches has seen his team on the short side of the scoreboard this season.

But Coronado mentor Jack Quarles is still getting a kick out of the press conferences. The Mustangs have won both of their contests.

Even the schedule maker doesn't dare tamper with Coronado's success.

Tonight, the Mustangs will battle the Estacado Matadors at Lowrey Field. Estacado is listed as the home team, but for some unknown reason, it's the Mustangs' homecoming. Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m.

"I don't know how that all came about," said Quarles while directing his answer to both the press and Kelley at the same time. "But I'llsay one thing. I'm not building a float."

"Maybe not," responded Kelley. "But he might be riding on one."

Coronado will enter the contest with victories over Borger (14-6) and Dunbar (17-12).

Estacado will bring a 1-1 mark into the Lowrey Field battle. The Plainview Bulldogs clobbered the Matadors in the opener for both schools 40-6, but the Matadors bounced back last week by blanking Lubbock High 27-0.

As the two teams prepare to enter the encounter, Quarles expresses concern over the Matadors passing game, while Kelley is worried about the Mustangs' running attack.

Last week against Lubbock High, Turner hauled in three passes including a 37-yard touchdown catch. Though Turner's only contribution was a 2-point conversion, his 6-4, 220-pound frame makes for a rather large throwing target.

Chances are, when Coronado's offense takes control of the football, the Estacado coaching staff will keep a glaring stare on Mustang running back Archie Moore.

Moore, the Avalanche-Journal's offensive back of the week, scampered for 154 yards and one touchdown in the Dunbar victory. After a slow start, Moore ignited for 127 yards of his total in the second half.

"You can't let him reach the corners on sweep plays," said Kelley. "All he needs is one step and it's all the way."

Will Estacado double team Moore?

"No," responded Kelley. "We're not going to make special defensive assignments to stop Moore." But I'm not going to say that won't change as the game goes along."

So with the stage set, Quarles best ended the conversation by saying, "If there is nothing else, I'll see you next week."

DUNBAR—LAKE VIEW

Dunbar Coach Van Jefferson is still wearing a smile two games into the 1978 football season, but admits, "there are tears behind that smile."

Tonight, the Dunbar Panthers will travel to San Angelo to meet the Lake View Chiefs.

Dunbar will enter the game still seeking its first win of the season, while Lake View will come into the contest with a 1-1 record. Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m.

"We haven't lost our confidence," said Jefferson. "But we haven't accomplished one goal yet that we set before the start of the season. We still haven't taken that victory dance."

The Panther offense has only put 12 points on the scoreboard. But the lack of offense doesn't seem to bother Jefferson.

"We're coming along," said Jefferson.

D SPORTS

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Friday September 22, 1978

Don Henry . . . Kicks And Picks

WHEN TIME AND space run short. . . Don't shed any tears for the field-goalers. Supposedly, the change in field goal rules (returning the ball after misses to the line of scrimmage if outside the 20) was made to corral the Ags' Tony Franklin and UT's Russell Erxleben. But, in the first two weeks of games, in the SWC, teams are kicking successfully two out of every three tries. A year ago, it was .9 out of every 1.7 — if one can break a field goal down that way. And nationally, there has been a very slight increase in the number of tries. In the conference, the longest has been only 46 yards (by Erxleben), the average attempt 35 yards, the average success 32 yards. . .

It's a young man's world. Not only is Tech freshman Maury Buford leading the league in punting average (45.8) and with the longest boot (57 steps), but SMU first-year man Jerry Kovar has the league's longest interception return (70) and Arkansas' Thomas Brown the longest kickoff return (96 yards) this season. . . Rice led Iowa State for a time and cut its losing margin by Texas in half from a year ago. Moral victories? "We cannot accept moral victories," says Rice coach Ray Alborn. "If you get content with those, you become a complacent loser. We play to win, no matter the odds." And he plays Oklahoma this week. . .

• • •

THE NETWORK WHICH is handling SWC radio broadcasts this fall passed out to Tech officials a list of the games over the state to be carrying the Arizona game. Turns out that about half the call letters and the cities did not correspond correctly. . . After that 17-3 loss to Memphis State, Houston coach Bill Yeoman commented, "If someone would have told me that we would snap the ball 91 times and not score a touchdown, I'm afraid I'd have had a hard time adjusting to it.". . .

That SWC broadcasting network is giving out, for some games, a defensive player of the game award, named for the commercial sponsor. But, somehow, the Lazy Boy Player of the Game just doesn't sound too swift. . . Tech's Buford stands fifth in the nation with that 45.8-yard punting average. West Texas sophomore Carl Birdsong is two notches lower, with a 45.4-yard average for 21 boots (three games). . .

• • •

A RECENT NEWSPAPER story out of Dallas hinted at a possible decline in Tech athletics' financial support as a result of the coaching and AD changes. Not so, says the Red Raider Club's Leete Jackson. As of Aug. 1, Jackson reports, the RRC's collections were $40,000 above the same time a year ago. As of May 31, 1978, when its fiscal year ended, the RRC had 171 full scholarship donors; on Sept. 1, the total was 184. "There has not been any dropoff," Jackson concludes. . . The Aggies recruited linebacker Mike Little out of Las Vegas, Nev. And why did Little pick A&M? "I just had a wild hair to play football somewhere in Texas. I'd heard of A&M and Texas. I knew after my visit to A&M that I was going to be an Aggie.". . .

• • •

THERE SHOULD BE enough games to go around; this is the only weekend all season that no conference games are on the schedule.

Arkansas at Oklahoma State — Everything is going the Razorbacks' way, after that warmup against Vandy. And the Cowboys are having their problems (0-2). Arkansas is looking for the ratings; OSU is looking for the next brick to fall. Arkansas by a bunch. . .

Utah at Houston— That loss to Memphis really stung. This time, the Utags will be stung — badly.

TCU at Oregon — The Frogs have had two weeks to try to correct mistakes from that 45-14 loss to SMU, and Oregon has lost twice. But the Ducks will be at home; that helps. Oregon by about a touchdown.

Wyoming at Texas — There will be quite a bit of hand-shaking here, since many of the Wyoming players were recruited there by UT's Fred Akers. After the renewal of acquaintances, however, the hammer will fall. Literally and figuratively, Wyoming is not in UT's league. Texas, by as many as Akers wants.

Baylor at Kentucky — If Baylor had not ruined Kentucky's unbeaten season a year ago, and if the Wildcats hadn't been tied by underdog South Carolina last week, and if the Wildcats weren't playing at home, and if the Bears weren't playing on the road for the second straight week, it could be a tossup. But these psychological factors seem to swing it in the direction of the hosts. Kentucky by a touchdown over a good Baylor team. . .

SMU at Penn State — The Ponies are quite frisky, after clipping TCU and then Florida last week. Penn State is feeling good, too, and this is one of the years the Lions could be bidding for the national championship. They could face a letdown, however, after whipping Ohio State. There could be an upset, but Penn State — but not by much. . .

Texas A&M at Boston College — If the cousins are speaking, Texas can tell the Ags something about playing at BC; remember '76? But the Ags' offense — and Franklin's toe — should be enough to insure a comfortable journey home. A&M by a couple of touches. . .

Rice at Oklahoma— Rice is trying, and making some headway. But, OU is trying harder — and with more and better folks. The Sooners by as many as Switzer wishes. . .

Arizona at Tech — After the past three years, points could come cheaply, but, both defenses appear stronger and could dominate. Arizona is striving for recognition in a stronger league, a league Tech tried in its only game. Playing at home may be a factor. Tech 24, Arizona 21. . .

Tech Golfers Place Ninth At Tourney

OKLAHOMA CITY (Special) — Texas Tech finished ninth of 18 teams in the Oklahoma City All-College Golf Tournament.

Oklahoma State won the tournament with an 851 total. Texas was third at 861, TCU eighth at 871, and Tech ninth with 873.

Teammate Dennis Northington had a 73—218, Mel Callender 76—221, Larry Seligmann 77—222, Mark Graff 78—223, and Randy Waterhouse 84—228.

Tech went into the final 18 holes tied for eighth after having been 13th following first round play.

Free Agent System Draws Differing Comments

NEW YORK (AP) — Free agency works in the National Football League, say the club owners, citing a 27.8 percent salary increase among players who tested the marketplace between the 1977 and 1978 seasons.

But that's misleading, the players' union responds, because the idea of free agency, namely the chance to bargain freely with any and all clubs, was short-circuited by "collusion" by the owners.

According to figures released Thursday by the owners' organization, the NFL Management Council, 93 players played out their options last year and received qualifying offers (minimum salary proposals based on the players' years in service, such as $40,000 for a five-year veteran) from their own clubs. That gives the team the right to match any salary offer made by another team.

Of those 93, nine either retired or signed with Canadian teams. The average salary of the remaining 84 rose from $57,629 in 1977 to $73,644 this sesson. And of those 84 players, 46 had been making less than $55,000 a year ago and received increases of more than 30 percent, the NFLMC said.

The average salary throughout the NFL last year was $55,288. This year's average won't be known until about Oct.1.

"The union contends the system isn't working," said Paul Sonnabend, executive director of the owners' group. "But it is our feeling that the players have had a chance to test their value and have been receiving better offers than in the past.

"You can contend the players aren't moving around throughout the league, but we believe movement isn't the key," Sonnabend added. "Most players feel they don't want to move, and it's advantageous to both the players and the clubs to have less movement. It's less disruptive."

But Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, thinks it goes far beyond that.

"Simply stated, the owners are cheating on the system," he said from NFLPA headquarters in Washington. "They're not bargaining for any free agents. They're using the compensation levels as an excuse." Under the bargaining agreement, a team losing a player through free agency receives draft choices as compensation from the team which signs him, the number and value of the choices based on the free agent's salary.

Garvey hadn't seen the NFLMC salary figures Thursday. Presuming their accuracy, he said, "it would be an indication something is working right — but I still would not say the system itself works because only a few players got offers from other teams. And not one of them, not one, signed with a new team.

"That discourages players from playing out their options. That's the major complaint, that it doesn't work," Garvey said. "We never argued that movement was a key element, but it is a key to having some form of competitive bidding for the athlete ... There's no doubt in my mind there was collusion last year among the owners because teams just didn't bid on free-agent players."

That, Garvey said, is one reason the players' union is asking Earl R. Larson, the U.S. district court judge in Minneapolis who approved the entire collective bargaining agreement, to review it.

Garvey also protests the owners' interpretation of another section of the agreement. "Let's say a guy plays out his option, goes through the free-agent system and either receives no bid or can't reach agreement," he said. "Under Section 17, Article 15 of the collective bargaining agreement, his club can then renew his contract for one more year at a 10 percent salary increase. We say after one year he's totally free. The owners say no, that they can perpetually renew his contract at a 10 percent jump each year, or at least for the length of the current agreement." It expires after the 1981 season.

"One big concern we used to have with the Rozelle Rule (named for Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who would decide what a team would get for loss of a player) was the unknown compensation. We thought if teams knew what it would be they would be less reluctant to bid for free agents.

Pirates B-E-A-R-L-Y Survive Chicago Challenge

By The Associated Press

Pinch-runner Matt Alexander stole second and scored on a pair of wild throws on the same play in the 14th inning, giving the Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Pinch-hitter Rennie Stennett started the inning with a walk off reliever Bruce Sutter, 8-10, and was replaced by Alexander. With Frank Taveras at bat, Alexander took off for second, continued to third when catcher Dave Rader's throw went into center field and scored when center fielder Bobby Murcer's throw got by third baseman Rodney Scott.

Ed Whitson, 5-6, the fourth Pittsburgh pitcher, got the victory.

The Cubs had tied the game 2-2 in the ninth with an unearned run off Pirate starter Don Robinson. Bill Buckner led off with a single. An infield hit by Greg Gross sent pinch-runner Jerry White to second. Mike Vail then grounded to shortstop Taveras. Taveras threw to second baseman Phil Garner to force Gross. But Garner threw wildly to first, allowing the tying run to score.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the first. Ivan DeJesus singled, stole second, went to third on a fly out and scored on an infield single.

The Pirates went ahead in the fifth, scoring two runs off Cub starter Dennis Lamp. Bill Robinson doubled and scored on Garner's double. After Don Robinson singled Garner to third, Frank Taveras bounced to shortstop DeJesus, who bobbled the ball and could get only a force at second as Garner scored.

ASTROS 2, BRAVES 0

Ken Forsch fired a five-hitter and struck out 10 while establishing a personal high with his 10th victory of the season as the Houston Astros blanked the Atlanta Braves 2-0.

Forsch, 10-6, walked only one and allowed only one Atlanta runner to reach third base. Phil Niekro, 19-16, absorbed the loss.

RANGERS 6, TWINS 3

Jon Matlack hurled a five-hitter and pinch-hitter John Grubb capped a three-run eighth inning with a two-run double, leading the Texas Rangers to a 6-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Matlack, 14-13, posted just his second road victory of the season against 10 losses as he struck out five and walked two for his 17th complete game of the year.

Rookie Gary Serum, 9-9, suffered the loss.

CARDINALS 6, METS 2

Len Urrea and Buddy Schultz combined on a four-hitter and Urrea belted a two-run single to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-2 triumph over the New York Mets.

Urrea, 4-9, who entered the game with a 5.64 ERA, permitted just a one-out single to Doug Flynn in the fifth inning and struck out four and walked three in seven innings. Schultz pitched the last two innings, allowing a run in the ninth on a triple by Lee Mazzilli and single by Tim Foli.

Loser Craig Swan, 8-6, allowed all six Cardinal runs in his seven innings, but only the first three were earned. Ted Simmons smacked a two-run triple for the Cardinals.

Urrea lost his shutout right away as the Mets scored an unearned run in the first inning.

RED SOX 5, TIGERS 1

Dennis Eckersley scattered six hits for his 18th victory and Carlton Fisk snapped a prolonged slump with an RBI single in a three-run first inning as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers 5-1.

The triumph kept Boston within two games of first-place New York in the American League East. The Yankees defeated Toronto 7-1 to cut their magic number for winning the title to eight — any combination of New York victories and Boston losses totaling eight.

Eckersley lifted his record to 18-8, going all the way for the 14th time. It was his ninth victory after a Red Sox loss the game before.

Rick Burleson opened the game with a single for Boston and Carl Yastrzemski walked with two out. Fisk followed with a run-scoring single, snapping an 0-for-22 string.

The runners advanced on a wild pitch by Milt Wilcox, 13-11, and Fred Lynn walked to load the bases. Butch Hobson then singled in two runs.

Jason Thompson's 25th homer leading off the seventh was the only run for the Tigers, whose manager, Ralph Houk, announced his retirement before the game, effective at the end of the season.

LCC Drops Contest To Hardin-Simmons

Tonya Cane scored 15 points Kim Binson and LeAnn Long each had 14 as Hardin Simmons defeated Lubbock Christian College in women's volleyball action Thursday night.

Hardin Simmons defeated Lubbock Christian College 12-15, 15-5, 15-6, 10-15, 15-7.

Cheryl Skaggs led the Lubbock Christian scoring effort with 13 points.

The win evens Hardin-Simmons record at 4-4. The loss drops Lubbock Christian College's mark to 4-3.

Lubbock Christian will be back in action tonight when they travel to Abilene to play McMurry College. The action is slated to get underway at 6 p.m.

LHS Loses Once Again

Take away a few bad breaks—namely a blocked punt that was returned for a TD, a meaningless sixer at the end of the game, plus another score with only 30 second left in the second quarter—and it would have been a whole new ballgame.

"We've still just got a lot of young people out there,' said Talbot, as he walked dejected off the Lowrey turf. "They are still making the mistakes we don't need too."

For the greater part of the night, it appeared the Sandies had Lady Luck in their corner. With only a minute left in the opening period quarterback Mik Munkres hit running back Mark Isaacson with a 13-yard scoring toss to make it 6-0.

On the play, however, Munkres actually bounced the ball off the soggy turf, took it on the bounce and found Isaacson roaming around in the defensive secondary all alone.

But the first Amarillo TD wasn't the one that broke the Westerner's back, it was the second one that did the trick.

It appeared the Sandies would head into the locker room with a narrow 6-0, but oh no. Instead the Amarillo group took the ball on their own 22th 2:54 left in the second period and marched the distance for the score.

Russell Allen banged over from the eight to up AHS' lead to 12-0. The extra point attempt failed.

The score came with 30 seconds left. And it was the third time this season the Westerners have surrendered a TD that late in the stanza. Against Estacado, Lubbock High gave up a score with 28 seconds left, then in a loss to Borger a TD came with 27 ticks remaining.

But if the truth came out, which it has a tendency to do on occassions, the first half was a bite more lopsided than the score indicated.

Amarillo rolled to 235 yards, compared to only 40 for the Westerners. The Sandies also garnered 13 first downs, whie LHS had 2.

In the first half though, the Sandies fumbled the ball away twice.

"It's sure good to win one," said AHS coach Larry Dippell. "But I'll tell you, Lubbock High has a heck of a team. They really get after you."

Dippell pointed out that the block punt, even more than the last second TD in the first half, spelled victory for the visitors from the north.

"Before that, it was still a heck of a game," Dippell said. "But they came back even after the score (the blocked punt) and gave us a heck of a game."

With 3:57 left in the third period, back Robert Carter cracked through the LHS line to block a Larry Walker punt. Edmund Balko gobbled up the ball on a bounce and headed 32 yards for paydirt, upping the count to 18-0.

But the never-say-die Westerners took the ensuing kickoff and moved 64 for their only TD for the dreary evening. A 15-yard run by Walker from the AHS 24 to the five helped set up the score.

With third and goal from the 11, Walker, who replaced starter Ricky Moreno in the second half, hit end Johnny Gomez with a strike in the end zone. Andy Vasquez nailed the extra point to cut AHS' lead to 18-7.

The score came with 11:06 left in the game.

Three plays later the Westerners, led by the running of David Rush, who ended the night with 44 yards on 10 carries, had the ball again.

Rusell Allen, subbing for Walker, had a hard time pitching tbe ball to back Isaacson. An alert Martin Garza hopped on the ball at the AHS 38.

But only five plays, Allen, perhaps redeemed himself, by picking off a Walker pass at the 30, thwarting LHS' comeback.

And that was it for the Westerners.

Amarillo added a final score with 1:23 left when Mark Mathiasmeier bulled over the four. By that time, though, the crowd had already cleared the stands.

ROYALS 8, BREWERS 4

George Brett singled home the tying run in the fourth inning then clubbed a solo home run in the sixth Thursday night to spark the Kansas City Royals to an 8-4 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Kansas City right-hander Dennis Leonard scattered 10 hits to win his 19th game against 17 defeats as the Royals extended their lead in th American League West to five games over idle California.

Kentucky Preparing Bear Welcome. . .

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Positive thinking is all well and good, but too big a dose can cause you to come unglued. Just ask Richard Jaffe.

Jaffe said he and his teammates were positive before last Saturday's game at South Carolina that the Gamecocks "were just gonna lie down and play dead.

"Our main problem against South Carolina was that we took them too lightly," said the pugnacious Wildcat noseguard.

Kentucky defense and Coach Fran Curci said his Wildcats were lucky to get out seof town with a 14-14 tie.

"The whole thing was mental," said Jaffe. "I personally got big-headed. I had one of the worst games I've ever had in college. I think that was the attitude of the whole defensive line."

Some attitudes have been overhauled this week in practice, which Jaffe described as "very intense."

"We've practiced very hard. It's been really hot, really scorching, but I think the aattitude is 100 percent better.

"Knowing we do have the potential on defense to be the best in the country, I think our pride has been hurt a little bit and I think you can see an improved Kentucky team this Saturday," Jaffe said.

"I think South Carolina played the game of their life against us. I really do," he said. "It was the Super Bowl for them. They took it to us and, from here on out, we're gonna take it to people.

"I think it's the best lesson we could have learned. We didn't play — and I'm being serious — at half of our potential."

With Baylor, it will be a whole new ballgame in more ways than one.

Jaffe, at 5-foot-11 and 227 pounds, goes nose-to-nose each week with the opposing center and will have a lot of weight to push around Saturday.

"They're just a big, physical team," he said. "I don't think there's anybody under 260 pounds on their line. I think their center is 6-5, 264. I'm not sure.

"They're not as quick a team as South Carolina, but I think they'll be more physical."

Jaffe said he was impressed by Baylor while watching films of the Bears' 16-14 upset loss last week at Georgia.

"They had three or four opportunities to score and beat Georgia and they just didn't," he said.

The South Carolina game snapped an opening-game winning streak for Kentucky dating back to 1971. On the other hand, the Wildcats haven't won the second game on the schedule since 1970.

A 21-6 second-game loss to Baylor last year cost Kentucky a perfect season, but Jaffe said the Wildcats had put it out of their minds.

"I don't look at that kind of thing," he said. "You try not to think about those kinds of things. That's superstition.

"As Coach (Dan) Coughlin says, after the first hit, it's just you and the guy in front of you. We've just got to go out there and play Kentucky football."

. . .As Penn State Readies For Ponies

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — When Brad Scovill opened the game at tight end for Penn State last week, he joined a select club of Nittany Lions — the walk-on starters.

The chances of a walk-on starting for a Penn State football team are about as good as those of an earthquake striking Philadelphia.

But coach Joe Paterno has had a few of note — Neal Smith, who played defensive back on two unbeaten Nittany Lions' squads (1968, 1969), and Ron Coder an offensive lineman in 1974 and 1975.

Tom Bradley, leader of this year's special teams, was a walk-on for three seasons. He received a scholarship this year.

There may have been others, but the memory of Penn State Sports Information Director John Morris can't produce any more in the Paterno regime.

On his first move against Ohio State last Saturday, Scovill, a 199-pound sophomore, jumped offside. But after that, the 6-foot, 3 1/2-inch tight end from Wyomissing, Pa., did a fine job.

Scovill caught two passes for a total 22 yards. One was a 13-yarder that produced a first down in a drive that led to one of Matt Bahr's four field goals. It was early in the fourth period and gave the Lions a 16-0 lead.

Whether Scovill starts Saturday against Southern Methodist depends on the physical condition of several other players.

After the third-ranked Lions had beaten coach Woody Hayes' Buckeyes 19-0, Paterno said, "The hero of the game to me is Brad Scovill. He came in and did a tough job in an excellent situation."

Someone asked Paterno if he wouldn't have to find a scholarship for Scovill, who still is paying his way through Penn State. "I guess I'll have to find one," Paterno replied. "Maybe I'll give him mine."

Scovill drew a starting assignment because of an injury to State's top tackle, Keith Dorney. Paterno moved Irv Pankey, the starting tight end — he played tackle last year — to replace Dorney. The coach planned to use Ron LaPointe for Pankey at tight end. But then LaPointe also was injured in practice, and Paterno turned to Scovill.

Scovill was a wide receiver in spring drills, but the Penn State coaches didn't think he had a future there. They suggested he put on some weight over the summer, projecting him as a tight end.

Scovill didn't exactly beef-up much. He put on seven pounds.

Why did Scovill want to pay his way at Penn State when he could have gone to a smaller school and been a regular?

"I have a lot of confidence in myself, although I knew it wouldn't be easy to make the team here," Scovill said. "I had some college offers from smaller schools ... Actually, I always wanted to go to Penn State."

Scovill, surprised that he was so open on his pass receptions, conjectured that it was because Penn State hadn't thrown much to the tight end in its first two games.

"Maybe Ohio State saw that and ignored me," Scovill added.

And maybe Ohio State figured Penn State wouldn't throw to a guy who was paying his way through school.

Plainview Steamroller Ready

Bulldogs Take On Midland Lee Tonight In Area Action

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

No doubt about it fans, Plainview is rolling.

And it looks like Midland Lee is going to be the next bump smoothed out by the steamroller

"Well, I see where they're picked No. 8 in the Harris Poll and they have three backs that are Southwest Conference prospects," said Lee coach Gil Bartosh. "They have to have a real fine football team. In fact, they seem to be one of the best football teams in the Panhandle from what I've heard."

But Lee is no slouch either. The Rebels overturned Snyder 32-8 in their opener and then aced El Paso Austin 32-6 last weekend.

Plainview, meanwhile, was running away with games against Lubbock Estacado and Amarillo Tascosa.

"I don't know much about the teams that they've played," Bartosh said. 'But I'd imagine Estacado is a good ball team if they beat Lubbock like that (27-0) and Tascosa has always been tough."

If they were tough, the Bulldogs didn't seem to notice. Plainview rolled over Estacado 40-6 and then walked past Tascosa 34-7.

But Bartosh knows what it's like to be the underdogs. He was the coach of the University of Texas at El Paso when everyone in the Western Athletic Conference looked forward to having an afternoon off against the Miners.

Things are turning around at Lee though.

"We've had a lot of inexperience," lamented Bartosh. "We've had some problems with our kicking game and things like that. We had only two offensive and two defensive strarters back from last year, but we feel like we'll be able to go in there and give them a game.

"They do have an awesome offense. They're a big play football team. All three of the backs have been breaking them, you can't overplay one or the other two will kill you.

"We've seen them on films and they look like they're executing real well. Defense-wise, people have been moving the ball on them but they've not been able to score."

Among other interesting games a pair of preseason No. 1s will face off. Clovis, the defending state champ and the heavy Class AAAA favorite in New Mexico, will be hosting Amarillo Palo Duro, picked No. 1 in this region.

Time has not been kind to the Wildcats. A resounding opening-game whipping of respectable Los Alamos was spoiled last weekend when upstart Cibola High of Albuquerque used a blocked punt to down Clovis 7-6 in Albuquerque.

Cibola is only in its fifth year of competition but last year advanced to the state football semifinals, where it was beaten by . . . you guessed it, Clovis.

Palo Duro, meanwhile, is 2-0, but just barely. It also enjoyed an easy opener, stomping Hereford 28-0, but last weekend it could only eke out a narrow 3-0 victory over Dumas.

In Class AA, preseason favorite Tahoka will be back in action tonight after a night off last weekend. It will be taking on Dimmitt in Tahoka.

A couple of undefeateds will be facing off in the top Class A game this weekend. Seagraves, 2-0, will host Lorenzo, 1-0-1.

And in Class B, Wilson, a 40-0 winner over Ropes in its last outing, will host 2-0 Amherst in what should be a fine game.

New Mexico football centers around what could be one of the top small-school games of the year. Eunice, the defending Class AA state champ, will host Portales, one of the premier Class AAA teams this season.

Mustangs' Nelson Tabbed Top SWC Defensive Player

DALLAS (AP)—Gary Nelson was a big man on campus back in Uvalde, Texas where he earned letters in four high school sports.

But he got no scholarship offers. So Nelson attended Southern Methodist University and asked its former Coach Dave Smith, for a tryout.

Smith was impressed enough to give the battling Nelson a scholarship.

"I tried to run Gary off when I got here because I frankly didn't think he could play major college football," said Ron Meyer, who took over when Smith was fired. "Boy was I wrong."

Meyer, who was a walk-on player himself at Purdue, said "His size (6-0 and 185) doesn't impress you. But he's a fighter."

Nelson earned The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week award Saturday with his performance in SMU's 35-25 upset victory over the Florida Gators.

The senior end celebrated his 22nd birthday with four quarterback sacks and some key tackles.

For good measure, he threw in a crushing block during D. K. Perry's 80-yard punt return for a touchown.

"Gary is tremendous on the specialty teams," said Meyer.

Nelson dropped Florida quarterbacks for losses totaling 51 yards including a 22-yard sack on second and goal from the three-yard line.

The sack took Florida out of field goal position then the Gators missed a 41-yard field goal attempt.

"We played probably the best defensive game since I've been here," said Nelson. "When we made that goalline stand, we turned the offense around."

Nelson added that SMU's defense played with great confidence after an early shaky start.

"When we stopped them on the first few drives it gave us the confidience we neded," said Nelson. "Like when they had a first down on our one, we had the confidence to stop them and we did.

"You could just feel the positive attitude on the whole defense. We knew we could do it."

And what about Penn State this week?

"I know Penn State has a great team, but I'm not so scared that I think we can't beat them" said Nelson. "I'm going in with the attitude that I want to win the game and I think we can."

Monterey Whips Dunbar, While Coronado Falls

Ronald Ewing rushed for 214 yards and scored two touchdowns to lead the Coronado sophomores over Lubbock High 40-0 for the second week in a row.

The win upped CHS' record to 3-0. Lubbock stands 0-2.

Ewing started the scoring for CHS in the first quarter, rambling for a TD from 20 yards out. He added another score, this one from 51 yards, later in the period.

Coronado continued to mount its lead in the second period when quarterback Alan Harp bulled over from the eight. Later Harp hit end Kerry Wimberly on a 10-yard pass.

In the second half, John Lord scored on a 19-yard reverse, and Ronald Boswell added a TD on a 21-yard run.

Harp kicked two extra points, and also scored a two-pointer to round out the scoring.

Tascosa-Cornado

Quarterback David Hawkins hurled two touchdown passes Thursday night as the Tascosa junior varsity defeated Coronado's junior varsity 12-7.

Hawkins connected with end Bill Fisher for a 50-yard score, and then found slotback Greg Guest free in the end zone on a four-yard score.

Coronado got on the scoreboard when quarterback Jeff Modawell teamed up with fullback Abel Castro for a 33-yard touchdown.

Monterey-Dunbar

Quarterback Glenn Roberson fired two touchdown passes as the Monterey junior varsity defeated the Dunbar junior varsity 22-14 Thursday night.

Roberson put Monterey on the scoreboard first when he threw a 30-yard touchdown pass to John Griffith in the opening quarter.

Roberson then found David Downum free in the fourth quarter for an insurance score. Roberson and Downum connected on a 10-yard score. Monterey was unable to convert any of its extra point attempts.

Troy Calender along with Brad Buhrmann and Joel Lee also put points on the scoreboard for Monterey.

Calender scored on a two-yard run in the first quarter while Bahruran and Lee scored a safety in the second period.

Dunbar got on the scoreboard in the second quarter when George Truss went into the end zone on a three-yard run. Robert Turner then took the ball in for the two-point conversion.

Turner scored Dunbar's final touchdown of the night, when he scampered 25-yards in the fourth quarter.

The win raises Monterey's record to 2-1. Dunbar dropped to 1-2 on the year.

Local Gridders Compete

"We've made progress since the beginning. I expect us to have our best game of the year against Lake View."

The Dunbar defense has only rendered 17 points. Yet, Jefferson shakes his head in a negative direction when asked if he was pleased with their performance.

"Our defensive line was beaten too many times on dive and trap plays by Coronado," Jefferson said. "We have to stop being beaten from tackle-to tackle."

Jefferson is making some adjustments in the Panther defensive line. The Panther coach has installed Rudy Hernandez (182, Jr); Sammy Williams (216, Jr), Juan Mendoza (207, Sr) and David Smith (182, Jr) along the front wall.

Will the Dunbar offense change strategies against Lake View?

"What do you mean?" said Jefferson, "If you mean we will stick strictly to the offense we've used all season (the veer), we will, but might add one, two or three new plays."

Will there be any razzle-dazzle?

"No," said Jefferson. "Really we're not going to do anything different. We plan to play basic football, but add a play or two or three that we haven't run this season."

Jefferson wouldn't offer anymore insight about the Panther game plan, but after a short pause said, "Come by tomorrow (Friday) after the paper is out and I'll tell you."

Monterey-Midland

The Monterey Plainsmen will be seeking their first win of the year tonight against the Midland Bulldogs.

According to head coach James Odom, the Plainsmen, now 0-1-1, are continuing to improvement.

"We played better against Wichita Falls (a 17-0 loss) than we did against Canyon," defended Odom. "We've still got a ways to go, but we're getting there."

Midland will enter the contest with a 1-1 mark, whipping Tascosa 7-6 on the opening night, then falling to El Paso Eastwood 21-14 last week.

"We're a lot alike," said Odom, comparing the the two teams. "We're both young with not a lot of returners on our sides."

On the injury front, Ricky Pinkerton is still hobbled with a sore ankle. Also suffering hurts are running back Dwayne Smith (wrist), back Tom Bevins (ankle) and Jeff Lewis (asthma).

"We're going to win some," said Odom, "So don't give up on us yet."

Christ The King-Loraine

Christ The King will host what Coach James Durham describes as a rather large Loraine football tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Christ the King is coming off a 9-7 victory over Texico, N.M.

"I really don't know much about them," said Durham. "But we expect a tough football game."

Western Hills-Wheeler Christian

Western Hills Baptist Academy will go on the road tonight to play Wheeler Christian Academy in a six man football game. Kickoff is slated for 5:30 p.m. at Southlawn Field in Amarillo.

Or some pretty dumb scribes.

Since playing U.S. teams, the Destroyers have been destroyed five straight times. Last year, Houston Kincaid dealt them a 21-0 thrashing.

"They've been playing AAA and AAAA teams," explained Harper. "That's some pretty tough competition. I think that's one of the reasons they are playing us. We are probably more on their line."

Harper said LCHS was notified last July that they had been selected to play the Destroyers. Since then, he has called the Kincaid coach, hoping to find out a few things about tonight's opponent.

"About all I know is they have a fast back and they run the wishbone," said Harper. "That's not a lot to gone on, but it beats nothing."

While in Lubbock, the team will also be treated to a day at the South Plains Fair. They will also visit other points of interest before departing Sunday for the trip home.

"There's so many extra things surrounding the game, " said Harper. "It's got me scared. The team is sure loose. After all, they're here to play football."

But there's also the dual pep rally, and a dinner or two, then...

Volleyball Meet Set For Tonight

Lubbock High School will be the favorite this morning as the first Lubbock Volleyball Tournament gets underway at Coronado High School.

LHS is 6-2 on the season so far with wins against city opponents Dunbar and Estacado. The Westerners will play the Monterey junior varsity at 2:30 in the opening round of the tourney.

The Monterey varsity is 3-3 with city wins against Dunbar and Estacado. It plays the Estacado junior varsity in the first game, at 8:30.

Estacado, 4-4 and victors over Monterey and Coronado, will play the Coronado junior varsity at 3:30.

Coronado will start with Levelland at 1:30. The Mustangs are 5-4 on the year but did well in the West Texas State Tournament last weekend, finishing third.

In other games, the Dunbar junior varsity plays Plainview at 9:30, Plains meets Sweetwater at 10:30, Brownfield faces Hereford at 11:30 the Lubbock JV faces Dunbar at 12:30.

High School Harriers Get Season Underway

Curtis Conaway will put his eight race unbeaten streak on the line today when the high school cross country track season gets underway at Mae Simmons Park.

The meet, which will pit a squad from the five Lubbock high schools against a team from Brownfield, begins at 4 p.m.

During last year's competition, Conaway won eight straight meets. However, at the regional and state competitions, the Monterey senior, placed second, trailing the state champion Kenny Schmidt of El Paso Austin.

Schmidt is gone now, leaving Conaway as perhaps the top harrier in the state.

The meet today begins a seven event schedule for the team headed by coach Jon Omdahl, winding up Nov. 11 at the District competition here.

According to Omdahl, the prospect for an outstanding high school track season for the locals is very good, maybe even great.

"We've really got some top runners coming back," said Omdahl.

With Conaway in its stable, perhaps Monterey returns the strongest team in the city.

The Plainsmen, the defending district champions, return only two lettermen, Conaway and Richard Davis. Davis, like Conaway a miler during the track season, posted a 4:37, one of the faster times in the four-lap race.

Also running on the MHS squad are senior Jon Rumsey, junior David Howard and sophomore Kyle Abernathie.

A team to watch out could be Coronado. Four lettermen return for the Mustangs, including miler Willie McCool. McCool ran the second best mile in the city last year, a 4:35.1.

McCool is joined by seniors Greg Johnson and Ronald Hewett. Junior Roger Robles and sophomore Reuben Rodriquez are also expected to turn in strong performances for CHS.

Coronado placed second in district competition last year.

The word at Lubbock High is youth where only one letterman returns, junior Randall Hendrix.

Three sophomores, Raymond Diaz, Tino Alvarez and Joey Criado, also comprise the youthful LHS squad.

Like Coronado, Dunbar returns four lettermen from a squad which finished third overall in the Small School Division at the Regional Meet. Last year's team also copped a ninth place showing at the State Meet in Austin.

Alabama Picked Over USC; Lions To Whip SMU

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — What a difference a year makes.

One year ago, Southern California was the No. 1 college football team and owned the nation's longest winning streak at 15 games.

That streak was snapped in Los Angeles by Alabama, 21-20.

Things have changed ... approximately 180 degrees. Alabama is presently ranked No. 1 and boasts the longest winning streak at 12 games.

And guess who's coming to dinner at Birmingham's Legion Field Saturday?

"These are the games you live for," says Southern Cal Coach John Robinson. "You anticipate the sheer joy of playing in them."

Is that true, Bear Bryant?

"Southern Cal is awfully big, awfully fast and awfully deep. I'm not too confident."

Sold. The pick is ... Alabama 16-14.

Last week's score was 42 right, 20 wrong and one tie — South Carolina battled Kentucky to a draw in one of the Upset Specials — for a percentage of .677. For the season, it's 85-39-1—.685.

Michigan at Notre Dame: A funny thing happened to those who thought this would be for the national championship — Notre Dame lost to Missouri. Can the defending national champions get off to an 0-2 start? That's the prediction ... Michigan 13-9.

Southern Methodist at Penn State: Yes, Virginia, there's another coach in Dallas besides Tom Landry. He's Ron Meyer, who has SMU rolling along at a 2-0 clip, including a road victory over Florida. This one will show just how much bucking power the Mustangs really have ... Penn State 28-14.

Florida State at Miami, Fla.: FSU went 10-2 last year and Miami was one of the two losses. Bobby Bowden wants this one bad ... Florida State 24-14.

Washington at Indiana: Lee Corso's improved Hoosiers gave LSU fits last week in Baton Rouge while Washington's on the road for the first time. How about the Upset Special of the Week ... Indiana 21-14.

Ohio State at Minnesota: Will Woody Hayes continue to throw the ball. Probably, because freshman Art Schlichter's going to be a great one and Minnesota's no Penn State ... Ohio State 35-10.

Mississippi at Missouri: After opening with Notre Dame and Alabama, and with Oklahoma coming up next week Ole Miss must seem like a breather to Ol' Mizzou. And that means trouble ... Mississippi 27-20.

Maryland at North Carolina: The winner of this one will take a big step toward the ACC title ... North Carolina 21-17.

Iowa State at Iowa: This intrastate series was long-dormant until last year, when Iowa won 12-10. It might be that close — or closer — again ... Iowa State 17-16.

Yale at Brown: Leave it to the Ivy League to match its two best teams right at the start. It's Brown's offense against Yale's defense, and even though defense wins games ... Brown 18-14.

USC Seeking Vengeance Against Tide

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Coach John Robinson, whose seventh-ranked Southern Cal football team has a revenge motive with an unusual twist in its game with No. 1 Alabama Saturday, has left himself an out no matter what happens.

"If we win and somebody says, 'You're No. 1,' I'm going to say they're crazy," he said.

"If we lose and somebody says, 'There goes USC's season,' I'm going to say they're crazy, too. Our goal this year is to improve as the season goes on."

The Trojans have no problem recalling what occurred a year ago when they were ranked No. 1 and had the nation's longest winning streak at the time, 15 games. Alabama visited LA last year and came out a 21-20 winner.

This time it is Alabama with the current longest streak, 12 games, and the top rating.

"Southern Cal embarrassed us the last time they came to Birmingham," Coach Bear Bryant said. "We talked about how the heat would affect them, and you know what happened." That was in 1970 and the Trojans, led by Sam Cunningham, won 42-21.

Southern Cal, Bryant said, "is capable of scoring from anywhere on the field and is loaded with great looking athletes.

"If we don't improve, we'll be embarrassed. Southern Cal is a lot stronger than anybody we've played so far."

Alabama has victories over two other nationally-ranked teams, Nebraska and Missouri, while the Trojans have defeated Texas Tech and Oregon.

As usual, the Trojan offense is built around the tailback and Southern Cal has two fine ones, Charles White and Dwight Ford. Fullback Lynn Cain blocks well and carries the ball often.

Paul McDonald, in his first year at quarterback, has hit on 16 of 25 passes for 240 yards.

Alabama's veteran quarterback, Jeff Rutledge, is below his previous average, with 10 of 25 for 124 yards. Missouri intercepted two of his passes after he had thrown 100 without an interception, an Alabama record.

The Tide's wishbone is built around alternating fullbacks Billy Jackson and Steve Whitman and halfbacks Tony Nathan and Major Ogilvie.

Kickoff for the nationally televised game is 3 p.m., CDT, with close to 80,000 fans expected at Legion Field.

ORU Said Looking At New Conference

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Oral Roberts University may become part of a new basketball conference if a Chicago school also decides to join the proposed league, Athletic director Bob Brooks said Wednesday.

Xavier, Butler, Evansville and Detroit are the other four schools committed to join the conference.

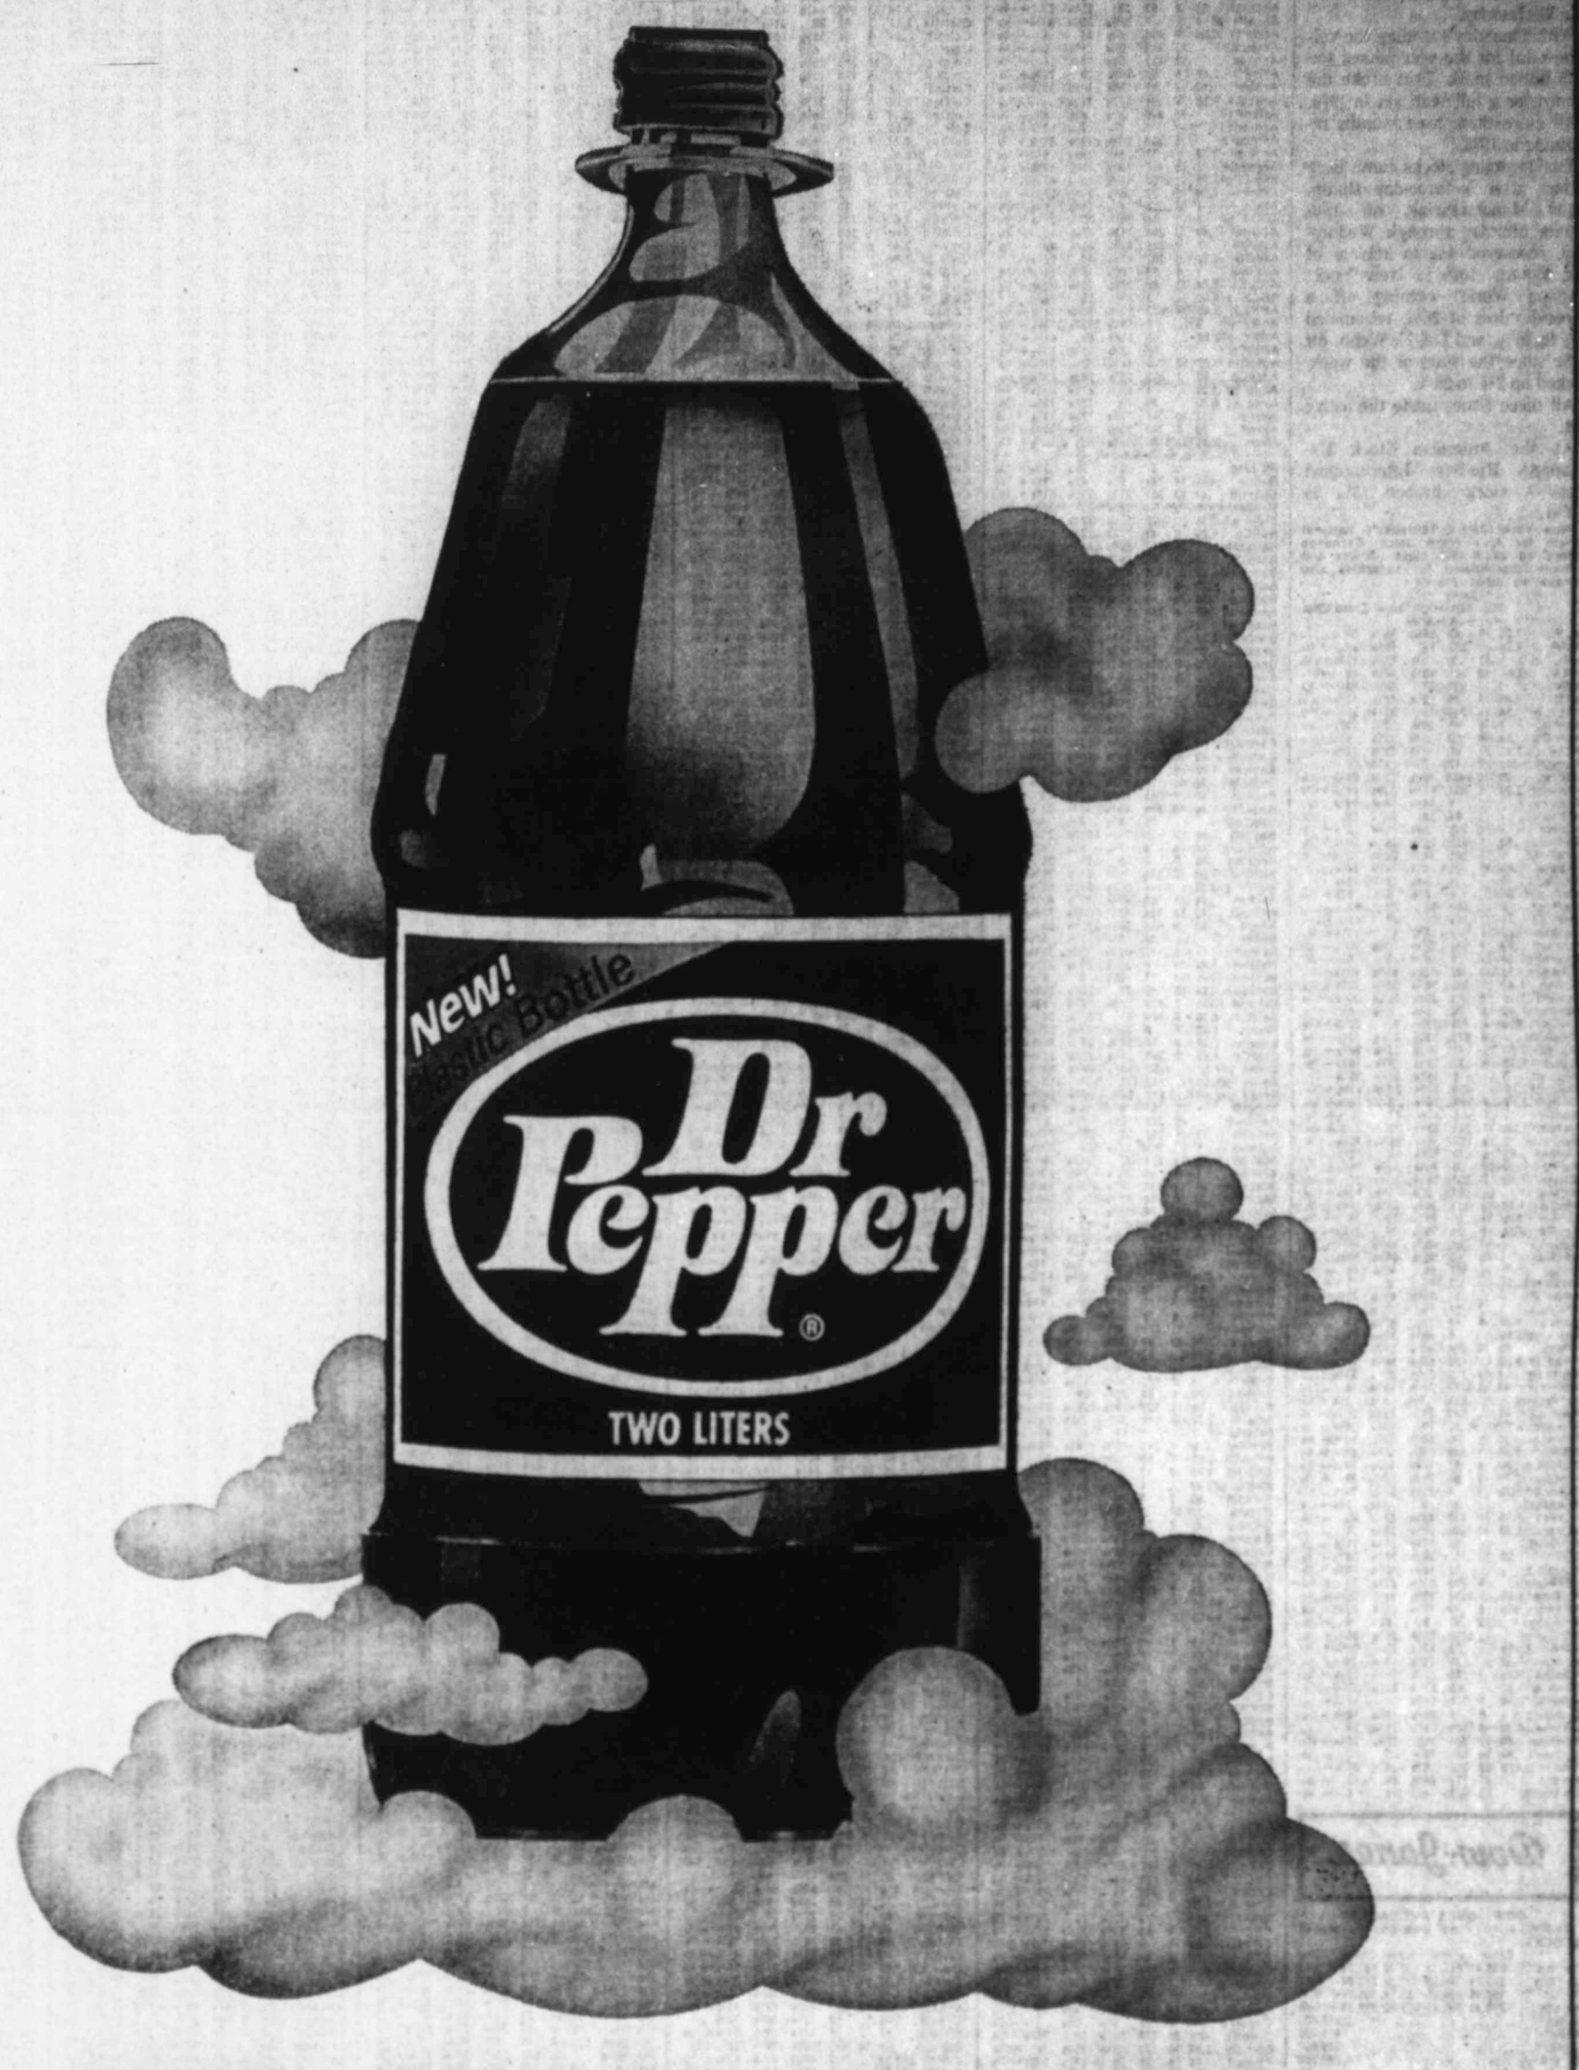
Brooks said Detroit's position is the same as that of ORU — both will join the new conference if DePaul or Loyola-Chicago agree to join.

"We would not be interested in joining unless one of the Chicago schools comes along," Brooks said.

A decision is expected within a year.

Brooks said metropolitan cities in large media markets were "what we are after, and we at ORU feel Chicago must be included. We are ready to commit to the league if either Loyola or DePaul commits. I think eventually this will come about."

Representatives of the schools met at Evansville last month.



OUR NEW PLASTIC BOTTLE MAKES TWO LITERS LIGHTER.

The only way to make Dr Pepper's great taste easier to pick up on, is to make the bottle easier to pick up.

So that's exactly what we did. With a new non-returnable plastic bottle that's a whole lot lighter than a glass bottle.

Shatterproof, too.

What's more, our new bottle has a special neck grip which also makes Dr Pepper easier to pick up. Easier to pour.

All in all, what could be better? You get our new, lighter two-liter bottle. And inside, 67.6 ounces of our great tasting original soft drink.

So, be a Pepper. Drink Dr Pepper in the new plastic bottle.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gambling issues and some of the blue chips recouped a small part of their recent losses in a mixed stock-market session Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had fallen more than 50 points from early last week through Wednesday's close, regained 3.98 to 861.14.

But losers outnumbered gainers by about a 4-3 spread on the New York stock Exchange.

Big Board volume totaled 33.64 million shares against 35.80 million Wednesday.

With Thursday's trading the volume total for the year passed the 5.36 billion mark. That broke the record for a full year, set in 1976, with more than three months remaining in 1978.

The gambling stocks came back strong after a three-day slump. Bally Manufacturing, off 15½ points Monday through Wednesday, recovered 4½ to 51⅞ as of the 4 p.m. close in New York; Caesars World, coming off a three-day loss of 26¼, rebounded 9⅛ to 46¼, and Del E. Webb, off 11¼ since the start of the week, picked up 2⅜ to 26⅛.

All three issues made the active list.

At the American Stock Exchange, Resorts International class A stock climbed 13¼ to 140¾.

New York (AP) — Thursday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

'Roots' Suits Dismissed

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge on Thursday rejected claims that author Alex Haley copied material for his best-selling book "Roots" from the works of another writer.

U.S. District Judge Marvin E. Frankel ruled, in Manhattan, that the catalog of alleged similarities cited by Margaret Walker Alexander was "strained, insignificant and devoid of legal substance."

He dismissed twin copyright infringement actions brought by Alexander against Haley, whose book was the basis for the popular televisionhminiseries "Roots," and his publisher, Doubleday & Co.

Alexander, a poet and professor of English at Jackson State College in Mississippi, filed both suits last year, claiming portions of "Roots" were copied from her historical novel "Jubilee" and a pamphlet entitled "How I Wrote Jubilee."

Both had been copyrighted before "Roots" was registered.

Frankel acknowledged similarities in both works, saying:

"Both 'Roots' and 'Jubilee' are amalgams of fact and fiction."

'Country-Rock' Musician Finds Labels Tiresome

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Richie Furay, who helped found two of the earliest — and most popular — country-rock bands, is tired of labels, especially the one that brands him as "country-rock Richie."

"There's more to me than that," said Furay, a key figure with Buffalo Springfield and, later, Poco. Both Southern California groups featured rockers playing music often flavored with country.

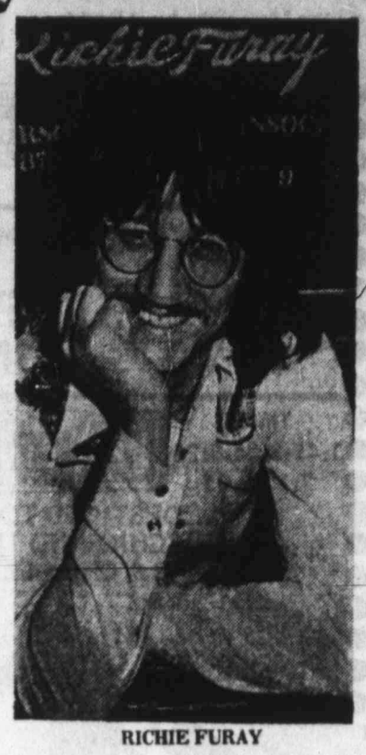
Now, Furay essentially is "starting over from scratch."

Here recently for a club appearance and to promote his new album, "Dance a Little Light," Furay said, "I don't really want to get involved in a group situation again. I want to make the decisions."

The 34-year-old singer-guitarist formed the legendary Buffalo Springfield with Stephen Stills in 1966 in Los Angeles. That group broke up in 1968. Stills eventually went on to Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young, while Furay joined Jim Messina and Rusty Young as Poco.

For five years Furay wrote most of Poco's songs and sang most of the lead vocals. The group generally was recognized as the first commercially successful country-rock band.

Now country music is sprinkled with singers and musicians who flavor their work with rock. Two of the biggest names in country music, Willie Nelson and Waylon Jennings, have won an ever-growing legion of younger, often rock-oriented listeners, by "crossing over," Furay said. "That's something we tried to do from the rock end."



RICHIE FURAY

Furay left Poco in 1973, intending a solo career, but was sidetracked by doing two albums with Byrds bassist Chris Hillman and songwriter John David Souther. Then he took a year off at his Colorado home after he injured his hand chopping wood.

Furay traces his varied musical roots back to his home state of Ohio and a radio program called "Midwestern Hayride." His early influences were country singer Hank Williams, Elvis Presley and Rick Nelson. "Then the folk singing craze hit," he said.

Now he tries not to listen to a lot of other musicians. "I don't really want to be influenced by anyone else."

Furay, who writes most of his own material, said he gets his best ideas when he's "very, very tired."

Sometimes when he's nearly asleep, he said, "There'll be all this music running through my brain. I'll hear this melody, fight for the light and find my tape recorder."

But his inspirations are not confined to the bedroom.

"Sometimes when I'm driving my car I'll feel the hum of the road and, if it's a bumpy road, I might hear a beat happening."

Furay lives in Colorado — "I couldn't deal with the L.A. freeways." — with his wife of 11 years, Nancy, and their three daughters.

Records Firm Aide Found Dead On Street

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A man found shot to death and apparently robbed Monday night was identified Thursday as Ralph Thompson, 31, assistant to the president of Motown Record Corp.

His wife, Karen Thompson, said her husband had gone to a bar to watch the Monday night football game. His body was found in a nearby street.

Police said Thompson had been shot once in the head and that his wallet was missing. The Thompsons had moved to Los Angeles from Chicago two years ago.

Star Wars Star Ford Once Doubled As Carpenter

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Harrison Ford's acting career was zilch at the time, so he eagerly accepted the role in a space movie.

"I knew we would all have to work real hard to make it work," he recalls. "I knew nothing about science fiction, so I was not in a judgmental position to say, 'You can't do that.' I had some misgivings about a film that relied heavily on special effects and walking fur creatures, but I recognized mine was a great part and the whole project was well intentioned."

The part was Han Solo, the movie "Star Wars," and Harrison Ford's career suddenly ascended from zilch to spacial heights.

Ford has since appeared in three films: "Force 10 from Navarone," a sequel to the 1961 hit "The Guns of Navarone," the new version starring the late Robert Shaw, Ford, Barbara Bach, Edward Fox and Franco Nero. It will be released this fall.

"Hanover Street," a World War II romantic triangle with an American pilot (Ford), a British intelligence officer (Christopher Plummer) and an English beauty (Leslie Anne Down).

"Apocalypse Now" as an intellectual colonel in Francis Coppola's long-shooting film about the Vietnam war.

Ford also played a secondary role in "Heroes," starring Henry Winkler. Ford explained: "I was advised not to do such a small part, but I felt it was important for me to play a character role after 'Star Wars.' Otherwise my entire career might become defined in the persona of Han Solo."

Having thus diversified his roles, he will be returning to the high-flying Han next February, when "Star Wars II" will begin.

"The second film will be better than the first," he declared. "Now we know what to do and how to do it; we can determine what the weaknesses are and how to cure them."

"The new film will not be a rehash, but a solid adventure with a lot of production values. We'll be able to develop the characters more. It's hard to keep the human element in mind in the middle of flash and hardware."

Harrison Ford has all the traditional qualities for a film leading man. Clean features, penetrating blue eyes, strong physique on a 6-foot-1 frame. At 36, he has the maturity to play commanding roles. Except for "Star Wars," he might still be playing small roles in TV movies while moonlighting as a carpenter.

Chicago-born, Ford had only a summer's stock experience as an actor when he landed a contract at Columbia Pictures in 1964.

"That was when the studio was trying to revive the contract player lists, and I was one of six men and six women who were hired," he said. "They were paying me $150 a week, and they had no faith in anyone they could hire that cheaply. Having so little experience, I was easily intimidated.

"I managed to get two bit parts as unnamed hippies. Then I went to a contract at Universal where I played hippies with names.

More jobs followed, mostly character parts — "everything from bitter homosexuals to teen-age car freaks." Married and with two small sons, he sought more regular employment as a carpenter. For three years he worked on building jobs, appearing in only four movies: "American Graffiti," Coppola's "The Conversation," Stanley Kramer's TV drama "The Trial of Lt. Calley" and the TV movie "Dynasty."

George Lucas remembered Ford from "American Graffiti" when he was casting Han Solo. The actor performed in a videotape test and was signed.

Women's Magazine Names Female Head

PARIS (AP) — "Elle" magazine, France's best-known women's journal, is getting a female editor-in-chief again after two years of male leadership, the directors announced Thursday.

Eliane Victor, a veteran radio and television journalist, succeeds Jean-Pierre Farkas, who edited the magazine from 1976. Before him another woman, Helene-Gordon Lazareff, was editor-in-chief of "Elle" which means "She."

Pablo Picasso often told biographers he would rather be remembered by posterity as a lover than as an artist.

"IF YOU'RE IN HIGH SCHOOL, IF YOU'RE IN COLLEGE, IF YOU'RE OUT OF COLLEGE, IF YOU'VE EVER HEARD OF COLLEGE, A NATIONAL LAMPOON FAN, A SATURDAY NIGHT LIVE FAN, or you're just ready for some wild college humor you will have a laughing good time at 'Animal House'." — GENE SHALIT, NBC-TV
"FRENETICALLY FUNNY...A RAUCOUS REMEMBRANCE OF THINGS PAST AND PASSIONATE. Good innocent fun mixed with enough wickedness to give it some character." — ROSA ARNETT, RADIO TV REPORTS
"VERY FUNNY! The film makers have simply supplied the appropriate panty-girdles, crew-neck sweaters, frat-house initiation rites and rituals of the toga party, AND LET ALL THAT IDIOCY SPEAK—VERY ELOQUENTLY, AND WITH A LOT OF COMIC FERVOR—FOR ITSELF!" — JANET MASLIN, NEW YORK TIMES
"RAW, RAUCOUS AND GLEEFULLY VULGAR, 'National Lampoon's Animal House' has but one redeeming social value... IT IS CONSISTENTLY VERY FUNNY! Peaceful Mennonites Tame Paraguay Chaco

FILADELFIA, Paraguay (UPI) — "Kaputi Mennonita," Paraguayan soldiers would say to the residents of a German religious colony in the jungle wilderness at the time of the Chaco war in the early 1930s.

The soldiers were marching through the prickly underbrush of the Chaco to fight Bolivians, primarily for control over the region's few waterholes.

But the Mennonites, a group of pacifists by faith with ties to the Amish of Pennsylvannia, quietly tilled their land and tended their cattle in their city of "brotherly love" until the war dragged to an end in 1935.

The Paraguayans were partially victorious in the war. The nation extended its control over the West Germany-sized Chaco but have since abandoned it to wild boars, pumas, armadillos, jaguars and Mennonites.

The soldiers may have thought the eight-year-old religious colony, 250 miles from civilization, would fail.

But more than 40 years later, the Mennonite community is providing inspiration for the real conquest of the untamed region — that of opening the area for economic activity and settlement by man.

"The Mennonite are a hardheaded people," said 59-yearold Russian-born Jakob Neufeld recently in the living room of his two story home in Filadelfia, one of a cluster of Mennonite colonies in the Chaco.

Neufeld, the son of Mennonites but not one himself, came to Paraguay from the Vstula area of Russia in 1929, along with 4,600 others of his family's faith. From Asuncion, the group headed off by train, boat and then ox cart into the isolation of the wilderness.

The Mennonites, members of a Protestant religious denomination that originated in northern Europe in the 16th century, frequently were persecuted for their refusal to perform military service and give oaths of allegiance.

The group fled to Russia in the 18th century and then to Canada, Central America and South America in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

The sect got its name from that of Menno Simons, a 16th century Dutch reformer. In 1978, it had 613,000 members throughout the world.

"At the beginning we ate peanuts," Neufeld said in a heavily German accented Spanish. "We had to clear the land by hand, and pick the cotton and peanuts that way too."

Several members of the sect were lost to the once savage Moro Indians, twirling razorsharp swords and shrieking, who would strike like lightning, Neufeld said.

In 1937 a large group of the Mennonites left after the soil and dryness of the Chaco caused another crop failure. But things have changed.

"Now everybody's buying autos and airplanes," he said. "it's not as rough as it used to be."

The success of the Mennonites is reflected in the late model Volvo sedans, Mercedes Benz automobiles and Volkswagen vans that cruise the colony's streets, while most of the rest of the Chaco remains abandoned to wild animals.

The community produces its own electricity, has a hospital and schools and exports cattle, cotton and peanuts among other products.

Neufeld sat back in an easy chair, a black-red-yellow West German flag sticking out of a vase and music from the homeland his family left long before his birth coming over a short-wave radio.

"Before 1950 we didn't have radios or electricity because of the religion," he said. "But now we have them, and even telephones in some places."

"But some families still refuse to use tractors, for instance. It's not because of the steel, which comes from the earth, but because of rubber, which they say is made by the devil."

In Paraguay, the Mennonites are known as a hard-working people who have made good in a land the locals considered an uninhabitable wasteland.

The group now takes the luxury of refusing to work on Saturday or Sunday, a practice Neufeld agrees with wholeheartedly.

"I could plant what they call a cash crop, but then we'd have to work weekends," he said. "A cow doesn't have to be told how to eat, so I can stay here at home."

Gene Test May Aid Prognoses

BOSTON (AP) — Researchers say a genetic test that identifies abnormal chromosomes can help doctors predict how long patients with leukemia will live.

The test, called a chromosome banding study, shows when genetic material is misplaced in diseased tissue.

Doctors at the University of Chicago examined 90 leukemia victims, of whom 80 were treated with conventional drugs. Among these patients, 43 had abnormal chromosomes.

They found that patients with normal chromosomes survived an average of 10 months, while those with misplaced chromosomes survived an average of four months.

The study was published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The researchers said doctors may want to take genetics into consideration when they decide how to treat leukemia victims.

They concluded:

"Our observations on these 90 patients suggest that the presence of a chromosome abnormality in patients with acute nonlymphocytic leukemia indicates a poor prognosis and that different treatment strategies need to be developed for these patients."
