

Influx Of Illegal Aliens Into Area Increasing

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Faced with a staggering task, four U.S. Border Patrol Agents stationed in Lubbock have the responsibility of rounding up all illegal aliens within the surrounding 28-county area.

The number of aliens caught yearly by the border patrol here shows the agents are earning their salaries, but it is only a small percentage of this area's increasing population of illegal aliens, most of whom are crossing over the United States-Mexico border.

There may be as many as 100,000 illegal aliens living in the Lubbock Station Area of the Marfa Sector, according to a border patrol spokesman.

Billy Rowe, agent in charge of the patrol's Lubbock Station Area, said one of the main reasons for the growing number is the realization by illegal aliens that there is work available to them in areas other than just agriculture.

Another factor could be that the four-agent station's jurisdiction covers 28 counties and 24,707 square miles.

The patrol's fiscal year begins October 1 and ends September 30 of each year. Rowe said that up to Monday afternoon, 3,171 illegal aliens—commonly known as "wetbacks"—had been picked up in his area, a figure which already surpasses last year's final count of 2,791.

Rowe estimated that by the end of this month, and the patrol's current fiscal year, at least 3,400 illegal aliens would have been picked up in the 28-county area and taken back to Mexico.

Whether the figure reaches Rowe's estimate or not, the figure is still a relatively large increase compared to 10 years ago when 2,291 aliens were apprehended. In 1967, 1,797 aliens were sent back to their own country, Rowe said.

A total of 426 illegal aliens were picked up last July, which, according to Rowe, breaks the record for the number of persons apprehended by the border patrol within a one-month period in the Lubbock Station Area.

The area Rowe is in charge of is bounded by Bailey County on the northwest side, Yoakum County on the southwest, Wichita County on the northeast and Young County on the southeast.

The federal government's main concern, according to Rowe, is that illegal aliens take away jobs from American citizens and legal aliens.

The U.S. Border Patrol places persons who are in this country illegally in four basic categories. They are:

- Entry without inspection (EWI), the largest category.
 - Visitor, one who has been given permission to come into the United States.
- See ILLEGAL ALIENS Page 10

Dallas Blaze Kills Six At Apartments

DALLAS (UPI) — A pre-dawn fire gutted an aging two-story brick apartment complex near the downtown area today and killed six persons, including four members of a family who were trapped in a bathroom.

Working in rain and a heavy fog, firemen pulled five bodies — a husband and wife, their two children and a family friend — from the charred, narrow room.

Another woman resident died at a nearby hospital from injuries received in the blaze.

Witnesses said the fire started in the northeast corner of the building and spread rapidly throughout the top floor, and then into the first floor. The blaze was brought under control in about a half-hour.

A fire battalion chief said the flames were "very extensive" on the second floor of the complex when firemen arrived about 7 a.m. He said his men entered a front window on ladders in an attempt to rescue the trapped victims.

"We went in and got one woman out," he said. "But the fire finally cut the men off."

Fire Capt. C.D. Langran said the bodies of Jose Moreno, 34; his wife, Esperanza, 26; his daughters Alicia, 2, and Celina, 3; and family friend, Manuel Solis, 23, were found huddled in the burned-out bathroom.

The other victim, who was not immediately identified, had been trapped in another apartment.

Friends told firemen Solis, believed to be from Mexico, had moved in with the Morenos only a month earlier. Moreno, his wife and Solis were all employees of a nearby bar and restaurant.

Ray Snyder, an employee of the Dallas Department of Human Resources who was driving to work, said he and carpenters from across the street helped in the first few minutes of the rescue.

"People were standing in the streets screaming for help and I stopped," he said. "The fire appeared to begin in the northeast corner of the building. A woman was trapped in the apartment upstairs at the time I arrived."

"The carpenters came over from across the street. We tried to go up the stairways, but it was impossible. It was engulfed in flames."

"We were finally able after several minutes to break out a window and the fire department arrived shortly after that and brought the woman out."

Patricia Castillo, who lives near the apartment complex, said: "I heard people screaming to help them and I saw smoke. Then the firemen came and the guys were getting this ladder and breaking the window and the firemen went up and they found the lady unconscious."

The fire started at about 7 a.m. and firemen arrived on the scene a few minutes later. More than 50 firemen and 15 pieces of equipment participated.

Firemen fought the fire in a steady downpour and a thick fog.

"There is no idea on how the fire started," Langran said. "It may have originated in the apartment where the (bodies) were found."

Fireman said damage to the dwelling was estimated to be about $75,000.

Evidence Offered By State

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A tip-off to a probable later key development in the Kenneth Wayne Herndon murder trial came today before jurors ever entered the courtroom to begin hearing evidence.

Jim Gordon, 42 — one of five other persons besides Herndon to be charged in the current case — was sworn in as a defense witness.

The state had earlier indicated it will elicit testimony from three other persons charged in the brutal Christmas Eve slaying of William Drew Young III. If Gordon testifies, it will, according to accounts given by witnesses at an earlier trial, give the defense its own purported eye witness to Young's death.

Young's body was found in the blood-stained trunk of a burning car about 10 p.m. Dec. 24, 1977. The auto was found by law enforcement officers on South Avenue P, less than a mile from the FM 1585 intersection south of Lubbock.

During the trial of Kenneth Owen Jaycon, conducted last April, witnesses Homer V. Lowrance Jr., 37, and Tico Lowrance, 27, had testified Herndon fatally shot Young, 23, inside a back room of the Salt River Saloon at 2311 19th St.

Witnesses also said Gordon was there when the gun went off.

Herndon, 36, is being tried for murder before a six-man, six-woman jury in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th District Court.

Although the victim's body was found inside the smoldering auto, complaints filed in the case allege Young was shot to death at the 19th Street bar.

Forest Fire Spreading

DENVER (AP) — Gusting, shifting winds pushed flames from a forest fire farther across the timber and brush southwest of Denver today, reaching dangerously close to $250,000 homes and defying efforts to bring the 3-day-old blaze under control.

By morning, state forest officials said the blaze had spread to more than 3,100 acres along the front range of the Colorado Rockies, some 20 miles from downtown Denver.

More than 250 firefighters, including U.S. Forest Service crews from Idaho and California, manned fire lines, and a call went out for all possible volunteers to help in the rough terrain.

The flames licked to within a few hundred yards of two homes on the exclusive Ken-Caryl West Ranch before dawn this morning, but Alan Babcock of the State Forest Service said later that he believed the immediate danger was past.

Buses Roll Despite Boycott

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hours after 4,000 persons at an anti-busing rally were urged to boycott classes, about 2,000 yellow school buses rolled out across Los Angeles today in a program aimed at integrating the city's schools.

Some buses that were scheduled to hit the freeways fully loaded carried just a few students. Only 13 of 62 students scheduled to ride one bus leaving from the San Fernando Valley were aboard when the vehicle made its last stop and headed for the freeway. In a heavily Mexican-American area on the city's East Side, only half the students expected at one stop boarded their bus.

Some buses were reported running an average of 10 minutes late, but no major problems were reported.

A special police task force, utilizing the city's $50 million emergency command center and 15 helicopters to monitor the situation, had no immediate reports of incidents.

More than 62,000 fourth-through-eighth grade pupils were assigned to bus rides of up to two hours round-trip across the sprawling 711-square-mile district, geographically the nation's largest.

About 30,000 of the 62,000 pupils volunteered for the busing. The district has an enrollment of 570,000.

The Los Angeles busing plan is in response to a 1976 state Supreme Court integration order in a case that was filed in 1963. A state appeals court blocked mandatory parts of the busing plan 19 days ago, pending its review of an appeal, but the state Supreme Court overturned the order several days later. Two U.S. Supreme Court justices rejected appeals to hold up the plan.

First-day absenteeism was expected to be high, judging by the estimated 4,000 parents and children who attended an anti-busing rally Monday night in the San Fernando Valley.

Deputy District Attorney Sidney Trapp, an outspoken busing foe, and more than a dozen other speakers elicited loud cheers and repeated chants of "Boycott, Boycott" as they urged that children not go to school today.

"If those buses are going to roll tomorrow, let them roll empty," Assemblyman Robert Kline, R-Northridge, told the crowd.

However, school board President Howard Miller predicted the boycott's effect on attendance would be minimal.

Although most of the students expected to stay home today live in the predominantly white San Fernando Valley, members of the large Mexican-American and black communities also have criticized the lengthy bus rides.

White students make up 34 percent of the enrollment in the Los Angeles Unified School District and have been in the minority since 1971. The district is 35 percent Hispanic, 24 percent black and 7 percent Asian.

City Attorney Burt Pines warned that parents who refuse to send their youngsters to school face a $25 fine and five days in jail for a first offense. But school Superintendent William Johnston said the district would not seek prosecution of boycotting parents.

Community leaders have worked for months to ensure smooth implementation of the integration plan, which is costing the district an estimated $120 million. School officials, Mayor Tom Bradley, Police Chief Daryl Gates and others urged parents to comply with the plan peacefully.

Many of the students not returning to public school because of busing also began classes today, including 340 enrolled in schools operated by the Neighborhood School Planning Corp., created by a Valley parent as an alternative to busing.

About 400 youngsters are being tutored under a program set up by United Parents Against Forced Busing.

Downpours Hike Flood Threat In South Texas

A-J News Services

A dying tropical depression, which dumped up to a half foot of rain on portions of the Texas Gulf Coast, today moved slowly toward the Louisiana border trailing heavy thunderstorms and gusty winds.

Flash flood warnings were extended from Corpus Christi to just south of Houston. The National Weather Service said the warnings would probably be extended northward as the storm moved into Southeast Texas.

In contrast to the tropical monsoontype weather on the Gulf Coast, heavy snow warnings were issued for the mountains of Wyoming and northern Colorado. Stockmen in those states were warned to prepare for cold temperatures and precipitation.

A weak cool front rolled into the Texas South Plains region, but it brought only gusty winds and the promise of slightly cooler weather to the dry region.

The hardest hit Gulf Coast areas were Colorado, Wharton and Matagorda counties, where the National Weather Service said rain in excess of 5 inches has occurred during the past 24 hours.

"At the present time radar indicates rain and some heavy thunderstorms over these areas and more accumulation is expected," a Houston NWS spokesman said about midmorning. "The thunderstorms are moving north."

More than 6 inches of rain had been reported at Victoria.

Meanwhile, another frontal system was entering the state from the north, but the cool air was not expected to bring any additional precipitation to the state.

After a night of water "up to car hoods" on Corpus Christi streets and the isolation of the police department at one point, the rains in the coastal city had begun to diminish somewhat today.

Several roads, including Highway 59 between Victoria and Goliad, were closed because of water. There were reports of deep water on some low-lying roadways and several cars stalled on city streets.

"It's been raining all night and still is," said a police dispatcher early today. "All I know is that we've got lots of streets flooded."

The National Weather Service said the Guadalupe River had risen six feet since Monday morning and could reach flood stage later today.

There had been unconfirmed reports of funnel clouds dancing across Corpus Christi Monday night, but police said no damage was reported and they were more concerned with the street flooding.

"Within the city itself, things are pretty well bunged up," police spokesman Jack Clemmons said Monday night.

"We're pretty well isolated by the high

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiri plans to meet with President Carter, address the United Nations and visit California during his first official tour of the United States next week.

Vigoda Returning To Stage

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Abe Vigoda says he's going back to the stage — not to the squad room.

Vigoda, who left the ABC comedy series "Barney Miller" two years ago when aging Detective Fish got his own series — "Fish" — says he and ABC can't agree on a salary for his return to the show.

He said Monday that he's headed for Chicago, where he will star for six weeks in Neil Simon's "God's Favorite" at the Arlington Park Theater.

"Fish" was canceled by ABC after a two-year run.

Rizzo Eyes Re-Election

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mayor Frank L. Rizzo says it's a matter of choice. And he's choosing to run again, despite the city charter's limit of two terms for mayors.

It is, the flamboyant former patrolman and police commissioner says, a "fundamental American principle — the right to choose."

Rizzo said "thousands of Philadelphians" had urged him to seek another four-year term.

He'll need more than urging — the voters must approve a change in the charter Nov. 7 to allow Rizzo to run for re-election to a third four-year term.

Lillian Carter Campaigning

CHICAGO (AP) — The last time Lillian Carter stumped for U.S. Senate contender Alex H. Seith, she had some trouble pronouncing his name. But no more — "it rhymes with Jimmy's teeth" quipped the president's 80-year-old mother.

Mrs. Carter visited nine or 10 homes in Chicago Monday, shaking hands and even holding a baby in the best political tradition. Democrat Seith seeks the seat held by Sen. Charles H. Percy, a Republican.

"I've been assured by so many people who know Mr. Seith what a good man he is," said Mrs. Carter. "So I'm convinced that he'll make a good senator."

Lots Of Light

DENVER (AP) — Tired of being hit with big utility bills every winter, Steven Bobrick decided to pay in 12 estimated payments — a new program for Public Service Co. of Colorado.

Then he got his first bill: $340,015.06. That's for a 940-square foot home.

And it would be about $4 million a year. "My first reaction was panic," Bobrick said. "Then I just sat down and giggled. It wasn't easy to stop."

He called PSC, and the customer-service agent, he says, "just kind of went, 'Oh, God!'" and told him to move the decimal point.

Bobrick's final tab: $34.

Nixon May Have Elected To Delay World Tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon may have decided to put off the around-the-world trip that has evoked antagonistic editorials and a cool reception from at least one head of government.

As he arrived in New York Monday to sign a contract for another book, Nixon told a reporter, "I don't have plans to go abroad soon because of the work I have to do when I return to San Clemente."

He said that he would "for a while be pretty busy, working hard to meet my book deadline" in June.

It indicated that Nixon's aides, who were against the 3 to 4 week journey, may have dissuaded him from making it at this time. The proposed itinerary included South Asia, Eastern Europe and Africa and talks with leaders in the various countries.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Thailand's foreign ministry said today that Nixon has called off a visit there originally scheduled for late this month.

The spokesman said Nixon's staff notified the ministry Monday of the cancellation but did not specify a reason. Nixon had earlier told the Thai foreign ministry that he would make a brief visit as part of his worldwide tour, the spokesman said.

Nixon had a double purpose in coming to New York: to sign a contract today with Warner Books and to attend a private memorial Wednesday for Elmer Bobst, once a major Nixon financial backer. Bobst died Aug. 2 at the age of 93.

He planned to have breakfast today with Henry Kissinger, his former secretary of state and national security adviser. He had other reunions scheduled later in the week with two other former cabinet members, William Simon and William Rogers.

The new book, looking toward the U.S. role in the world the rest of the century, is intended to be a far less ambitious work than the 1,120-page memoirs Nixon completed in the spring after working on it for 3½ years. Warner Books paid Nixon $2 million for "RN: The Memoirs of Richard Nixon," now in the third hard cover printing.

Nixon wrote one earlier book, "Six Crises."

In preparing for a possible world tour, Nixon's aides sifted long-standing invitations and sounded out chiefs of state to see if the welcome mat was still out. Australia was the only one to publicly say "no" but it was known there were others.

On Monday, Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser of Australia said in a television interview that it would be "offensive and wrong" to deny Nixon a visa, but he said "we cannot stop him."

The former president served part of his world War II Navy duty on Green Island, off the coast of Australia, and had wanted to make a nostalgic return visit.

Local Residents May Get Cheaper Utility Bills In 1979

Electricity, as well as taxes, may come cheaper for Lubbock residents next year if the city council approves an Electric Utilities Board recommendation.

The board voted Monday to support a 3 percent reduction in the fuel cost adjustment (FCA) passed on to electric customers. The reduction would mean a total savings of more than $1 million for Lubbock Power and Light and Southwestern Public Service customers.

Another $145,800 of the FCA charged LP&L users would be retained by LP&L to establish a capital improvements fund under the recommendation.

Currently 8 percent of the FCA charged LP&L customers is transferred to the city's general operating fund each year. Last year that meant an additional $792,000 to the city and should mean an additional $1.1 million next year.

It had been suggested that the city reduce the FCA by that 8 percent, thus reducing the electric bills of both Lubbock Power and Light and Southwestern Public Service customers.

One reason cited for a reduction in the FCA is the "windfall profits" being reaped by SWPS on the FCA.

Since the fuel adjustment is based on the actual cost of fuel for LP&L, SWPS should receive a bonus of $1.6 million next year because it has access to cheaper fuel.

"It's morally wrong," electric board chairman George Meenaghan said. "LP & L is working at break-even, while the competition is making a windfall."

Last month Meenaghan was successful in convincing the council not to set the city tax rate until all the ramifications of the FCA reduction were explored.

An electric board ad hoc committee which studied the suggested reduction found that an 8 percent FCA reduction would require a four-cent increase in the tax rate tentatively set by the council.

The additional $540,000 the city will have next year because the tax roll was higher than expected would take care of 4 percent of the FCA reduction. The remaining 4 percent would have to come in an increase of the $1.12 per $100 valuation tax rate tentatively set by the council.

However, there would be no actual tax "increase" since the $1.12 rate represents a 29-cent decrease from last year's $1.41 rate.

Under a second option considered by the electric board, the FCA would be reduced by 4 percent, leaving the tax rate at $1.12. All 4 percent would be returned to electric customers through lower bills.

Another option would have allowed LP&L and SWPS to continue to bill customers for the full value of the FCA and 4 percent of the FCA collected by LP & L, or about $540,000, would be retained by the utility for a capital improvements fund.

LP&L would have retained nearly $440,000 for such a fund under City Manager Larry Cunningham's proposed budget. But the fund was a casualty of the council's budget-cutting efforts.

Without such a fund, any capital improvements for LP&L must be financed by a bond issue which board member Jack Powers described as "always walking a tightrope."

The compromise recommended by the electric board gives "something to everybody," Meenaghan said.

Electric customers would pay cheaper bills. LP&L would retain a portion of the FCA for capital improvements and the city would continue to receive 4 percent of the fuel adjustment collected by LP&L.

However, the most attractive quality of the compromise to the board members was that the $1.12 tax rate would not have to be revised upward.

If the adjustment were reduced by 8 percent, Meenaghan's committee discovered the city would lose about $1.2 million in revenues and customer's bills would be reduced by $2.8 million.

The city council will consider the electric board's recommendation Thursday when the council is expected to set the tax rate for the coming year.—SYLVIA TEAGUE

Ag Economist Sees Water Regulation

LAS CRUCES (Special) — "By 1983, agri-businesses use of water could be strictly regulated by Section 208 of the Water Pollution Control Act," says Dr. Garrey Carruthers, agricultural economist with New Mexico State University's Agricultural Experiment Station.

Carruthers explains that Section 208 is "geographically comprehensive because the courts have decreed that the Environmental Protection Agency must have 208 plans for every square inch of the United States" including those areas that were not previously designated.

"Section 208 is here to stay," the economist says, "and it is essential that agri-business people attend 208 hearings to help develop the water management practices which will regulate their use of water."

Carruthers explains that Section 208 requires the nation's waters to be clean enough for fishing and swimming by 1983. He also explains four options for planning and implementing programs under Section 208.

According to Carruthers, "Section 208 attributes water pollution to either point or non-point sources. Point sources are easily identified because the pollution comes out of the end of a pipe."

As examples he cited water from a city's sewer system or water from an industrial complex.

On the other hand, the economist says non-point sources are diffuse or area-wide and are much more difficult to define and manage.

Again he cited examples: runoff from farms and feedlots, sediment from construction, mining or forestry activities, urban storm runoff and seepage from rural septic systems.

"New Mexico's agricultural industry is the state's largest water user, having rights to approximately 90 percent of both ground and surface water," Carruthers says.

In addition, agriculture has been identified as a major contributor of non-point pollution. Hence, agriculture's stake in 208 planning is high.

"Soil erosion and pollution of return flow water, through the use of fertilizers, herbicides, and insecticides, are often noted as major agricultural non-point pollution problems." Carruthers points out. The problem with Section 208, as it relates to agriculture, is a lack of information on causes of and remedies for non-point pollution.

Carruthers also explains some of the options which will permit New Mexico to meet the spirit, and begin to meet the requirements, of the law while not subjecting citizens or industries to undue or uncertain water quality regulations.

Work Site Chemicals May Cause Cancer Deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exposure to cancer-causing chemicals at American work sites may cause at least 20 percent of all cancer deaths — or nearly 80,000 people each year — with asbestos apparently the No. 1 chemical killer, government scientists say.

The new estimates are sharply higher than past figures which placed the cancer toll from occupational exposure at only 1 percent to 5 percent, Joseph A. Califano Jr., the secretary of health, education and welfare, said Monday.

Indeed a single chemical, asbestos, may account for 17 percent of all cancer deaths annually. Other chemical culprits include arsenic, benzene and vinyl chloride.

Scientists from the National Cancer Institute and the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences said 20 percent was a "conservative" estimate of the cancer toll from work sites, estimating it could run as high as 38 percent.

The scientists based their findings not on new medical research, but on new statistical analyses of the number of workers exposed to cancer-causing chemicals on the job and their risk of incurring cancer.

Califano told an AFL-CIO conference on occupational safety and health about the new estimate and released a five-page draft summary of the study. HEW scientists are putting the study into final form to submit to the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration by Friday.

OSHA is preparing new standards for regulating hundreds of known or suspected cancer-causing agents at work places in hopes of accelerating federal action to ban or restrict them.

Critics of the plan have said it could cost industry billions of dollars, and some have said the standards are not needed because the incidence of occupational cancer was low.

Dr. David P. Rall, director of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, said scientists who made the low estimates "just haven't looked carefully enough at the problem."

The study singles out asbestos, the fire-resistant chemical used in a host of fields from construction to auto brake linings, as the worst offender. HEW began a campaign in April to alert the estimated 8 million to 11 million Americans who have been exposed to asbestos since World War II about its long-term effects.

The HEW study said at least 2.15 million of those workers will die from asbestos-related diseases, or 67,000 a year for the next 30 to 35 years. It blamed asbestos for 17 percent of all cancer cases.

The study says 5.8 million workers were potentially exposed to arsenic, benzene, vinyl chloride, coal tar pitch and coke oven emissions, which could cause 1 percent to 3 percent of all cancers each year.

Some 7.5 million workers potentially were exposed to four other substances, chromium, iron oxide, nickel and petroleum distillates, which could cause 3 percent to 18 percent of the cancers, the study added.

The total for all chemicals would be 38 percent, the top-range for the cancer-toll estimates.

The National Cancer Institute says 390,000 Americans die from cancer annually. The new 20 percent minimum estimate for all worker deaths from chemicals would mean 78,000 deaths. The number of new cancer cases diagnosed each year is 700,000.

The study listed a dozen occupations in which it said the workers showed excessive cancer rates, but they have not been traced to any single chemical. They included coal miners, chemists, foundry workers, textile workers, printing pressmen, metal miners, coke byproduct workers, cadmium production workers, and lead, rubber, wood and leather workers.

The AFL-CIO convention on worker safety was called to rally opposition to a proposal that would exempt businesses with fewer than 10 employees in non-hazardous industries from inspections by OSHA.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale pledged the support of the Carter administration Monday in fighting the amendment which has won Senate approval. It is pending before a House-Senate conference committee.

Compound Found In Lab Feed

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Nitrosamine compounds, some of which cause cancer, may contaminate more products than previously suspected, including feed for laboratory animals used to test other substances for cancer, scientists say.

Thus, it might be difficult to tell if any cancer that appears in the animals is from a test chemical or from nitrosamines in the food, said Dr. David H. Fine of the Thermo Electron Cancer Research Center in Walham, Mass.

Fine spoke Monday before a session at the national meeting of the American Chemical Society here.

Nitrosamines form more easily and under a wider range of conditions than previously believed, Fine said, and their presence should be suspected whenever compounds that can form them — organic chemicals called amines and agents that can supply nitrogen — are in the same product.

He said recent tests done at his center found low nitrosamine levels in commercial dog and cat foods. However, levels more than 10 times higher — from one to three parts per billion — were found in eight out of nine feeds used for laboratory animals.

Most surprisingly, a new formula rat and mouse feed that the National Institutes of Health recommended for test animals had the highest level of any tested, 52 parts per billion. Fine said fish meal used in the feeds probably was the source of contamination.

The presence of nitrosamines at this level, he said, "represents an awkward problem" for researchers in long-term studies to see if test chemicals are carcinogens — cancer-causing agents.

Another complication, he said, is that two or more carcinogens can work together to cause cancer worse than any of them acting alone.

"We recommend that the N-nitrosamine level of the control diet be reported in future carcinogenesis studies," scientists from the center said in a summary paper.

Some of the scientists at the presentation questioned the extent of the problem and whether nitrosamine levels in feed were high enough to affect cancer data. But Fine said it was enough of a potential problem to test the feed and make note of it in the results.

Nitrosamines are abundant in the world, occurring naturally in the human body as well as in some plants. Not all of them cause cancer, but some have proved to be potent carcinogens in animals.

Federal authorities are considering reducing or banning sodium nitrite, the most widely used meat preservative. Recent evidence indicates it not only may cause cancer itself, but that cooking meat converts it into nitrosamines.

Fine's group earlier found low levels of nitrosamines in some shampoo, hand lotions, cosmetics and detergents, but the implications of those findings have not been determined.

Fine said nitrosamines were thought once to form slowly under certain acidic conditions. Recent work shows they can form very rapidly, he noted.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

It Pays To Play 'Dirty'

ALMOST EVERY federal program, once initiated, achieves almost instant immortality because an iron triangle builds up among the congressional committees that developed the program, the bureaucrats who administer it and the constituency that benefits from it.

SILBERMAN SUGGESTS that President Carter might do well to emulate a political tactic developed by the Environmental Action citizen's lobby.

Paul Scott: Irish Sweep Stakes Rates

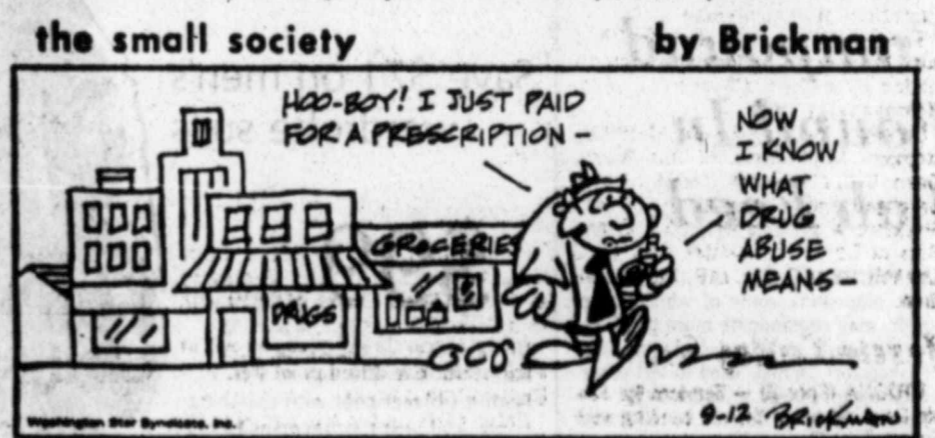

WASHINGTON—When it comes to slashing property taxes, state, county, and city officials in the U.S. could learn a few lessons from the Irish.

LEVIES ON FARMLAND and on commercial property will not be affected, according to leaders of the ruling party. Collections on these "rates" will continue and there appears to be no major movement to either repeal or reduce these taxes.

THE CENTRAL government, which foots most of the bills for public transportation, education, and other social services, is counting on an expanding economy to make up the revenue lost from the repeal of the residential taxes.

Irish diplomats and travel agencies here are encouraging U.S. groups proposing property tax reduction to have their members take working vacations in the land of the 40 shades of green to study their successful tax reduction experiment.

Sylvia Porter: Buy Now, Don't Wait To Replace Furniture

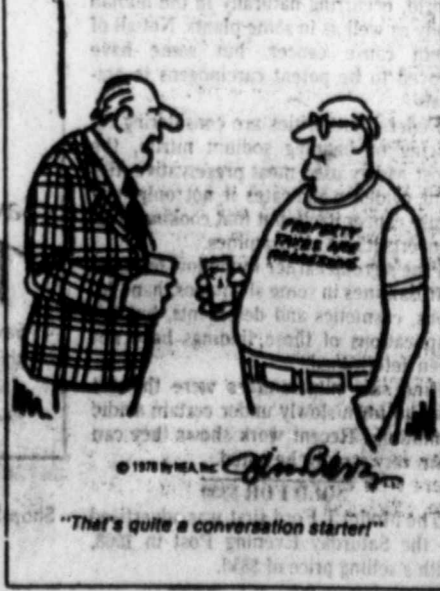

THIS SEPTEMBER—a traditional "bargain" month for buying furniture—may launch the last good opportunities you will have to buy furniture in terms of price value in years—barring a business slump in the U.S. so severe it forces prices down.

WITH THE LARGEST single plant in the world under one roof, plus three others for which to buy lumber, he notes that the price escalation has not followed the usual pattern of seasonal peaks and valleys.

IN EFFECT, this becomes a commodity speculation as manufacturers try to anticipate supply-demand forces that ultimately govern prices of the finished product to you.

THESE COUNTRIES have been buying top grades of American lumber; enormous increases have been recorded for such furniture woods as ash, oak, cherry, walnut, among others.

Junior High Textbooks Satisfy Critical Groups

AUSTIN (AP) — Both feminist and conservative critics expressed general satisfaction today with junior high readers approved by the State Textbook Committee.

The committee leaned away from heavily protested titles in recommending five supplementary readers each for seventh and eighth grades but did select a revised version of a series that was strongly protested a few years back.

"I battled 1,000," said Norma Gabler of Longview, who has been protesting school books from a conservative and traditionalist stance for more than a dozen years.

A feminist spokeswoman also said she was generally satisfied. But she said she would have preferred that Macmillan's "Journeys" for seventh graders and "Caravans" for eighth graders not be adopted.

"There are no non-sexist readers at this point, but progress is being made," said Twiss Butler of Nassau Bay, a Texas leader of the National Organization for Women.

The committee recommended the Economy Companies "Keys to Reading" series, a revised version of a set of books that was turned down several years ago.

Economy filed but never pursued a $30 million lawsuit against both feminist and conservative critics who had attacked it before the textbook committee. The critics said the series contained too many violent and depressing selections.

At this year's hearings, Drusilla Bearden of the Daughters of the American Revolution, contended some selections were depressing and undermined parental authority. She said a selection mentioned the painter Pablo Picasso without disclosing he was "a self-proclaimed Marxist."

Other books recommended by the committee were Houghton-Mifflin's "Vistas" series, Harcourt's "Rally" series, Ginn's "To Make a Difference" for seventh graders and "Gifts of Promise" for eighth graders.

Seventh and eighth grade math texts were approved Monday. The final decision on textbook adoptions will be made by the State Board of Education after a hearing in November.

Conservative and traditionalist textbook critics were largely silent about math — a subject where protests have been lodged in the past, particularly over "new math" content.

"Math is a real pleasure this year. These are the kinds of books we asked for five years ago... They are good in every way. They have really rewritten these books. There are very few instances of stereotyping — women buying fabrics and men buying houses," said Twiss Butler of Nassau Bay.

Mrs. Butler, a housewife with five children, is coordinator of the Education Task Force of Texas NOW — the National Organization for Women.

One of the few math protests was made by Mrs. John Graves of Fort Worth, who objected to Scott Foresman's "Mathematics Around Us" for 7th graders — a book that got 11 out of 15 possible votes.

A photo of rolling dice, used to illustrate the concept of probability, "encourages disobedience of the law in the state of Texas where gambling is not permitted," Mrs. Graves' written protest said.

Alice Kidd, the Texas Education Agency's program director for mathematics, said some of the math books recommended by the committee are "computationally oriented... This is how you do it. Get the answer."

Others, she said, are oriented toward "understanding the way the number system works."

"We moved away from the modern math in 1965, so this adoption won't affect that at all," Mrs. Kidd said.

Math books that are recommended are the 7th and 8th grade editions of Macmillan's "Series m," Harcourt's "Growth in Mathematics, Silver Burdett's "Mathematics for Mastery," Addison's "Mathematics in Our World" and Scott Foresman's "Mathematics Around Us."

Law Officers Still Hunting For Couple

CORTEZ, Colo. (UPI) — Southern Colorado law officers are checking out reports from psychics, anonymous phone callers and letter writers in efforts to locate a Texas couple who vanished on a honeymoon trip more than a month ago, the Montezuma County sheriff reported.

The couple, James Judge, 26, and his wife, Jeannette, 24, of Amarillo, are believed to have been abducted by a pair of Arizona prison escapees and three accomplices who fled in the couple's van. Colorado authorities believe the Judges were murdered and their bodies hidden somewhere in the Rockies.

Some clothing and equipment the couple carried with them on their honeymoon trip to Colorado was found last week, but searchers have not found anything else belonging to the newlyweds.

"We're still looking," Sheriff Bob Hampton said Monday. "Some psychics are starting to get involved now. You've got to follow it up. You never know. We're also getting anonymous letters and phone calls, and we're following them all up."

Hampton said the last word from the newlyweds was Aug. 8 when they telephoned relatives from South Park, Colo. Their van was recovered when the two escaped convicts from the Arizona State Prison tried to crash a roadblock Aug. 10 in Arizona.

Two people in the van died, including one prison escapee and his son. Three others survived, but have refused to say what happened to the Texas couple, whose van they were driving.

Hampton said he and a deputy found a blouse belonging to Mrs. Judge in the west fork of the Dolores River last Friday.

"We got one letter today which spelled out a section south of Dolores where the bodies might be," Hampton said. "Some of these letters don't even specify the county."

Hampton said he usually sends one or two deputies to check out reports, but sometimes as many as four or five if a tip looked good.

"There was an area back up at the head of Fish Creek which we worked today, and over the weekend," he said. "It's a rough area and you have to walk for miles. We didn't find anything today, but we still have more leads to check out. We'll be out again tomorrow and see what we can come up with."

The first non-stop flight from Europe to the United States was completed in 1930 by two Frenchmen.

Ag Council Requests Comments On Effects Of Federal Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — In its most ambitious phone-in project yet, the Agriculture Council of America today begins listening to hundreds of callers about the part federal regulations play in their lives.

Although the council, which was formed five years ago to help improve communications between farmers and consumers, is coordinating the project, Eskin said it is separate from previous "farm line" efforts to survey farmers' opinions.

The project will be continued Wednesday and Thursday in what council officials say is part of "a citizen's audit of federal regulation" intended to "gain the broadest possible reading of the American people on what's working and what isn't and why."

Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., is the chairman of the forum's congressional committee, which is comprised of more than 150 members of Congress.

Jim Eskin, council news director, said that the telephone call-in is similar to others the group has sponsored in recent years but that the current campaign "is much larger" and is being directed at "consumers and everyone."

Rose said that "there's been a lot of theorizing and speculating in Washington but too little input from the people actually affected" at the grassroots by federal regulations. The telethon is the part of the group's first phase of a longer-range effort to examine the effects of federal regulation. A mail survey being handled primarily through congressional supporters will be tabulated by Jan. 1, the council said.

After that, the forum will "develop a specific code of principles to improve the federal regulatory process, test these principles for improvement, and seek public support necessary to bring about needed changes," spokesmen said.

Extensions Granted For Export Credits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Export credits totaling $30 million have been extended to four countries by U.S. tobacco. The Agriculture Department said Monday that the credit included: Australia, $8 million; Ireland, $7 million; New Zealand, $5 million; and the United Kingdom, $10 million.

Soviet Goal Unaltered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nothing has happened to upset prospects for a bumper grain harvest in the Soviet Union, according to Agriculture Department experts.

A special task force on Soviet grain Monday estimated the harvest at around 220 million metric tons, unchanged from its forecast in August.

But, as is the practice, the task force hedged a bit by saying that chances are 2 out of 3 that the total 1978 grain yield will be between 210 million and 230 million metric tons.

The report said that while the overall grain estimate is the same as a month ago, the proportion of some grains in this year's harvest has changed somewhat from then.

Soviet production last year was 195.5 million metric tons, short of Moscow's planned goal of 213.3 million metric tons.

Total wheat output now is estimated at 110 million metric tons, compared with 107 million forecast in August.

Flood Embankment Bursts

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Ganges River flood waters burst through an embankment and rushed through nearly 100 villages in the eastern state of Bihar, reports reaching New Delhi said today.

The current monsoon floods in India have killed more than 1,000 people and caused more than $100 million in damages.

In Nepal, the monsoon floods have killed at least 195 persons and caused about $1 million in damage, the official national news agency said Monday in the capital of Kathmandu.

Indian news reports said a boat struck an embankment in Bihar's Monghyr district, about 600 miles southeast of New Delhi, Monday, and within hours the flood waters poured through the nine-foot-high dirt embankment.

The reports said the water was six to nine feet deep in some areas of Monghyr city, which has a population of some 118,000.

The waters cascaded through almost 100 villages, and army and civilian rescue workers tried to evacuate threatened residents. About 8,000 acres of crops were submerged, according to initial reports.

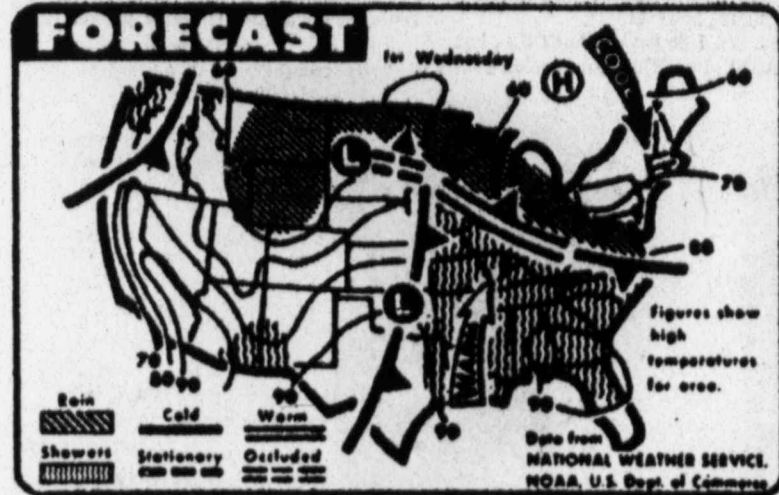

In West Bengal, the situation in the districts of Malda and Murshidabad, 120 miles north of Calcutta near the Bangladesh border, was reported "still critical" by state government officials.

Army troops are helping out in the two districts, which were hit by floods three weeks ago.

To the west, in Uttar Pradesh, India's most populous state, waters of the Ganges and Jamuna rivers continued to recede, in some places at the rate of three or four inches an hour.

Villagers in hard-hit areas have not yet been able to return to their homes. Officials have authorized special rebuilding grants and cash payments for relatives of people killed in the floods.

Air Force planes again dropped food packets to villagers marooned by floods considered among the worst in recent years.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast Wednesday in a band from Montana, Idaho and Wyoming through the Great Lakes states and Canadian border area to Delaware. Showers are forecast by the National Weather Service for the mid-Atlantic states to the Great Plains and northern Florida. Scattered showers are predicted for parts of the Northwest, Arizona and New Mexico. (AP Laserphoto)

Lightning Bolts Strike Grid Field, Kill Coach

WHITMAN, Mass. (UPI) — Lightning bolts struck a high school football field Monday, killing an assistant coach and slightly injuring 14 players and two teachers as they scrambled from the field.

Police said Dennis O'Brien, 30, had just ordered his team to leave the field at Whitman-Hanson regional high school because of a threatening thunderstorm when the bolt hit at 3:09 p.m. He was killed instantly and his clothes were set on fire, a spokesman said.

"I was running down the field and just before I reached the gate I heard one bolt land behind me," said Timothy Cox, a sophomore who was practicing with the soccer team on the field at the time. "I didn't turn around to see where it landed, I just started running faster."

Cox said a second lightning bolt struck a fence a foot and a half behind him as he continued running.

It was only after he was inside the school building that he learned the football team had been trapped in the storm.

"Get an ambulance! Get an ambulance!" Cox recalled his fellow students screaming.

"The players and coaches were knocked to the ground all over the place," said Michael Shey, 16, of Hanson. "I was knocked to the field and was stunned but never lost consciousness. My feet were numb. I had seen the lightning moments before, so I knew exactly what hit me. The next thing I knew, there were ambulances and police cars all over the place," said the timber offensive guard and defensive tackle.

"I would say that he was hit directly by the bolt," said Dr. John C. Angley, medical examiner for the second district of Plymouth of O'Brien. "It entered the left side of his head and I think his right foot went into a puddle and grounded, then the left foot (grounded)."

"His shoes were quite badly burned," Angley said, adding O'Brien had some second and third degree burns, "but not many third degree burns."

Oliver Amado, a security guard at the school, said the lightning bolt appeared to strike in the middle of the group and tossed one person about 25 feet into the air.

A spokesman for Brockton Hospital said 11 persons, including the head coach and an assistant coach, were treated and released. Two others, Ronald Scully and Wade Keene, both of Whitman, were admitted for observation overnight.

Treated and released were: head football coach Robert Bancroft and assistant coach Dennis Lotzi and players Joseph Cote, Paul Duksevics, Eric Dupont, Randall Gimmert and Mark Tavittian, all of Whitman and Domingo Amado, Mark Forrand, Peter Lima and Michael Shey.

The three admitted to South Shore Hospital in Weymouth were identified as Edward DeCouto of Hanson, Raymond Lirosi and Gregg Lirosi of Whitman.

O'Brien, a Northeastern graduate, lived with his parents, Frank and Josephine O'Brien in Whitman. He graduated from Whitman-Hanson in 1966. At Northeastern he was named the most valuable member of the football squad.

O'Brien served as an assistant football coach at Northeastern and a substitute physical education teacher at Whitman-Hanson.

Firm To Offer Liquor In Powder Form

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taking a powder? That phrase soon may take on new meaning as powdered booze is introduced to the American market.

"We're looking initially to the outdoor market and the fellow who doesn't want to keep large inventories of different kinds of liquor around," said Mike Hill of Global Marketing Inc., the Portland, Ore., firm handling the product.

Known as "Sure Shot," the powder will be test-marketed as single-serving cans for $1.39, but Hill said future plans call for foil pouches and larger containers.

Developed in Japan, it is being produced in Placentia, Calif., and will be test-marketed in Southern California in the next few weeks, Hill said.

Sale of the powdered alcohol was held up for several months while the Treasury Department decided how to tax it.

Officials finally settled on taxing the mix based on the volume of alcohol, which is in tiny particles suspended in a powder that looks like gelatin desert mix.

In fact, the first Japanese sales were as a rose wine gelatin.

All that's needed to drink one of the powdered cocktails is to add water.

Hill says he doesn't think people would be likely to eat the powder as children do with soft drink mixes — at least not more than once. It would be a very strong taste, he said.

Mixes now being produced include vodka sour, apricot sour, chi-chi, screwdriver, cappuccino and cafe de menthe. If successful, other flavors could include bloody mary, pina colada, margarita and banana and strawberry daiquiri, Hill said.

Safety Agency Backs Actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Is the automobile industry overregulated? The nation's automakers think so, and they claim the extensive federal regulations are harming them economically.

But the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says its efforts to improve safety are justified by the highway death and accident toll claiming 47,000 lives a year.

The agency says the average consumer cost for auto safety features is about $250 with the consumer spending three to four times that amount for comfort and convenience features such as air conditioning and vinyl roofs.

The automakers, on the other hand, claim the government-mandated safety features cost twice the NHTSA figure.

The traffic safety agency has completed a study justifying its efforts and is seeking comment from the public.

You can obtain a copy of the study without charge from Barry Felice, National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Washington, D.C., 20590.

And if you want to comment on the agency's safety efforts the deadline is Sept. 15. Send comments to the Docket Section, National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Washington, D.C., 20590. Refer to docket number 78-11.

STRIP FOR CHARITY
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Gossis invited to a glittering ball next Saturday night will be asked to take off their clothes. The Fashion Group of St. Louis, sponsoring the benefit ball, plans to sell the clothes to promote the arts. The organization said it believes its Clothes-Off-Your-Back Ball is without precedent. It is expected to draw about 500 couples, who will not be asked to undress until they are ready to go home. The evening includes supper and dancing. Because many guests will not want to leave in the nude, the sponsors will provide plastic bags to wear home.

PUBLIC NOTICE

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

GENERAL ELECTION NOV. 7, 1978

"The Tax Relief Amendment" (H.J.R. 1)

H.J.R. 1 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution allowing the legislature to exempt intangible personal property, requiring the legislature to exempt certain household goods and personal effects, and allowing the legislature to exempt all or part of the personal property homestead from state and local property taxation.

The amendment requires the legislature to provide for the taxation of farm and ranch land on the basis of its productive capacity instead of its market value and allows the legislature to provide for the taxation of timber land on its productive capacity.

The amendment permits local governments to extend the present exemption of not less than $3,000 of the residence homestead of persons 65 and older to include certain disabled persons.

The amendment grants an exemption from public school property taxes of $5,000 of the market value of the residence homestead. It authorizes the legislature to grant an additional exemption from public school property taxes of an amount not to exceed $10,000 of the residence homestead of persons 65 years of age or older and certain disabled persons. If a person 65 years of age or older qualifies for this exemption, the total amount of public school taxes imposed on that person's homestead may not be increased.

The amendment prevents local governments from increasing property taxes unless the governing body provides public notice and conducts a public hearing. The amendment requires the legislature to provide by law for each property owner to receive notice of the revaluation of his property and the amount taxes will be increased.

The amendment limits appropriations from state tax revenue to an amount not to exceed Texas' estimated economic growth rate, with the legislature authorized to make exceptions for emergencies.

The amendment prohibits the statewide appraisal of real property for property tax purposes. Enforcement of uniform standards and procedures for appraisal of property for property tax purposes is required to originate in the taxing authority where the property tax is imposed.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment providing for tax relief for residential homesteads, elderly persons, disabled persons, and agricultural land; for personal property exemptions; for truth in taxation procedures, including citizen involvement; for a redefinition of the tax base; for limitations on state spending; and for property tax administration."

NUMBER ONE (S.J.R. 50)

S.J.R. 50 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to delete an archaic reference to the "Deaf and Dumb Asylum." The amendment would allow the State of Texas to purchase products and services done by handicapped individuals in nonprofit rehabilitation facilities without complying with bid requirements applicable to other state contracts. The amendment also would eliminate the formality of the approval of certain state contracts by the Governor, the Secretary of State and the Comptroller of Public Accounts.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment deleting the archaic reference to the 'Deaf and Dumb Asylum,' allowing certain products and services of handicapped individuals to be used by agencies and departments of state government, requiring the procurement of other products and services required in the operation of state government to be made under bid awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, making all such procurement processes subject to laws enacted by the legislature, and eliminating the requirement that the Governor, the Secretary of State, and the Comptroller of Public Accounts of Texas be personally involved with such transactions."

NUMBER TWO (S.J.R. 55)

S.J.R. 55 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to permit local governments to issue bonds for the reconstruction or acquisition of facilities (land, equipment and improvements) designed to develop employment opportunities. These bonds would be payable solely from the revenue from the sale or lease of these facilities. The building or acquisition of such facilities must be determined by the local government to be necessary to develop employment opportunities.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to provide that the legislature may permit political subdivisions to issue revenue bonds to develop employment opportunities for its citizens."

NUMBER THREE (S.J.R. 44)

S.J.R. 44 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution which would allow the legislature to authorize cities and towns to issue tax increment bonds to finance the redevelopment of blighted areas. The bonds are to be paid solely from revenue from municipal tax increments. Payment cannot be made from the revenue of municipal taxes, utilities, or other services.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment permitting the legislature to increase the number of justices on a court of civil appeals, permitting a court of civil appeals to sit in sections, and requiring a concurrence of a majority of the justices sitting in the section necessary to decide a case."

NUMBER FOUR (S.J.R. 53)

S.J.R. 53 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to allow the legislature to exempt from taxation solar or wind-powered energy devices.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to exempt from taxation solar and wind-powered energy devices."

NUMBER FIVE (H.J.R. 37)

H.J.R. 37 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to grant exclusive jurisdiction to justices of the peace in civil cases where the amount in controversy does not exceed $200, except where the legislature gives exclusive jurisdiction to another court.

The amendment grants justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction with county courts where the amount in controversy is between $200 and $500, except where the legislature gives the county court exclusive jurisdiction.

The amendment also grants justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction with both county and district courts where the amount in controversy is between $500 and $1,000, except where the legislature gives the county or district court exclusive jurisdiction.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendments authorizing certain districts to engage in fire-fighting activities and to issue bonds or otherwise lend their credit for fire-fighting purposes."

NUMBER SIX (S.J.R. 45)

S.J.R. 45 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to allow the legislature to expand the number of judges on any court of civil appeals. Presently courts of civil appeals are limited to a chief justice and two associate justices. The amendment also would allow the courts to sit in sections, with the concurrence of a majority of the justices sitting in the section necessary to decide a case.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to extend the jurisdiction of justices of the peace in civil cases."

NUMBER SEVEN (S.J.R. 48)

S.J.R. 48 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution eliminating the State Building Commission and the State Building Fund. The authority of the State Building Commission has been transferred by law to the State Board of Control.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to repeal the constitutional authority for the State Building Commission and the State Building Fund."

NUMBER EIGHT (H.J.R. 42)

H.J.R. 42 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution allowing certain political subdivisions or districts in the state that can presently issue bonds or otherwise lend its credit to engage in fire-fighting activities and to issue bonds or otherwise lend its credit to support such activities.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendments authorizing certain districts to engage in fire-fighting activities and to issue bonds or otherwise lend their credit for fire-fighting purposes."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: On November 16, 1977, my wife and I read the following item in your column in the Herald-News in Joliet, Ill.

"Dear Abby: I've just had the biggest slapdown in my life. My insurance company has disallowed the prosthesis I bought for the mastectomy I had four years ago.

"It's not a case of vanity, or of replacing a piece of female equipment. It's a case of restoring equilibrium. Without proper balance, a woman cannot walk straight. Also, her neck and shoulders ache from the lopsidedness.

"Those little pads and falsies from the department store don't work. At my son's wedding, I was dancing and having a marvelous time, when my sister caught my eye and whispered urgently in my ear, 'Please go to the ladies' room and check your falsies!' (It had worked its way up to my shoulder!)

"After that, I phoned my local American Cancer Society to find out where to get a properly fitted prosthesis. Just two days after I had it, my neck and shoulder pain disappeared. And it feels so good and looks so natural.

"Abby, if you print this, maybe some bright insurance executive will see it and realize such a prosthesis is not simply cosmetic. It's vital to the health to a woman who has had a mastectomy.

"ST. LOUIS WOMAN"

And then your reply: "DEAR WOMAN: 'Here's your letter. Insurance executives?'"

Well, this is what ensued: My wife, Barbara, who is also my business associate, read that article and with the ammunition you provided, plus her knowledge of the health insurance business, we convinced one of our primary health insurance agencies that breast prosthetic devices should be considered a legitimate expense for insurance purposes!

In addition to altering current practice, we were able to obtain favorable consideration for a claim made two years ago.

Abby, what you publish does have impact, and you are to be complimented for bringing this matter to the attention of the public.

Very truly yours,
BEN C. HILL C.L.U.
LEMONT, ILLINOIS

Dear Ben: Your letter made my day. Thanks for writing.

everybody knows everybody else, and I have a close (and nosy) relative who works at the newspaper, so I'm not about to spill my guts (excuse me) in a dear Abby letter in care of the newspaper.

One more question: Must a letter be signed to make your column?

PROBLEMS GALORE

Dear Problems: I answer every letter accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope. If you do not send the required stamped envelope, I am not obligated to respond.

Letters may be unsigned and still make the column, however.

And, yes, I do have a Post Office box. It's ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif.

of the cards and, perhaps, a miscue by the opponents, you will still emerge triumphant. South's technique on this hand is exemplary.

The auction was simple enough. Rather than show his ragged heart suit, South made a value bid of two no trump, North had something in reserve for his raise to game.

West led the king of hearts and, as a matter of form, declarer held up for one round. After winning the second round of hearts with the ace, declarer surveyed his prospects. He had seven tricks on top and could develop another in spades. The only practical chance for a ninth trick was to find the diamonds 3-3, but even then, declarer might lose five tricks before he could come to nine.

Declarer saw that he did not really need a successful spade finesse in addition to an even split in diamonds—providing West could be prevented from cashing his high hearts too quickly. So, at trick three, South led a diamond to the nine. East won, and to defeat the contract, he had to return a spade. But he made the more normal play of exiting with a club, and declarer was quick to seize his opportunity.

He cashed his three top clubs, then the ace-king of diamonds. When that suit split 3-3, declarer took the thirteenth diamond. Next came a heart off dummy, straddling West with the lead.

West could cash his fourth heart but, in the end position, he was forced to lead away from his king of spades, presenting declarer with two tricks in that suit and his vulnerable game. In all, South lost three heart tricks and a diamond.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? Before I waste another postage stamp on you, I want to find out if you answer letters from people who want a personal reply. I wrote you two long letters and you never answered either one of them.

I would also like to know if there is some box number I can write to instead of sending my letter in care of the newspaper here. I live in a small town where

Clip 'n' Cook

GARDEN SKILLET
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter
3 zucchini, cut in 1/2-inch slices (about 4 cups)
1 head cauliflower, cut in flowerets (about 4 cups)
1 green pepper, cut in strips
2 tbsps. chopped onion
1 tsp. garlic salt
2 tomatoes, cut in wedges
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Melt butter in skillet; add zucchini, cauliflower, green pepper, onion and garlic salt. Cover, simmer 12 to 15 minutes or until vegetables are almost tender, stirring occasionally. Top with tomatoes; cook 3 minutes longer. Sprinkle with cheese. Makes 8 servings.
Variation: Substitute 2 packages (10-oz. each) frozen cauliflower, thawed, for fresh cauliflower.

Food Editor Provides Solutions For Homemade Jam, Jelly Problems

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Making of jellies and jams is increasingly popular as more persons come to appreciate having a few homemade sweets on the cupboard shelves or in the freezer throughout the year.

Much of the guesswork is gone from the process that once was a tiring, all-day chore. Just follow the simple equation of having the three essential ingredients — sugar, acid and pectin — in correct proportion. It's the proper proportion of these elements that make the jelly "jelly" and the jam really "jam."

However, problems do develop. Here are some of the most common ones in jam and jelly making and their solutions:

Cloudy Jelly

- Jelly poured too slowly or too late. Well-set started to form and jelly particles hold tiny air bubbles.
- Pulpulent juice — can be strained through clean, wet jelly bag.
- Premature setting — usually result of using fruit too green, which contains too much natural pectin and acid.

Color Changes

- Darkening at the top — caused by too warm storage temperature or by air getting through paraffin. Need tin or tight paper covers in addition to paraffin.
- Fading. (Some fruits fade easily, especially strawberries and raspberries.)
- Keep jellies in cool, dark place.

Crystals in Jelly

- Too much sugar.
- Too slow or long cooking (causes excess evaporation).
- Too little cooking, so that sugar is not completely in solution.
- Tartrate crystals in grape jelly — seldom found when short-boil method is used.

— Evaporation of uncovered jelly (crystals on top only).

Fermentation

- Too little sugar. Do not reduce sugar called for in trying for less-sweet jelly. A certain percentage of sugar is necessary for jelly set. Either the necessary amount must be added at the beginning, or jelly must be boiled down until evaporation gives proper proportion. Jelly will be just as sweet either way.

— Improper sealing or storing. Cover jelly at once with new hot paraffin (one-eighth inch thick). Leave one-half inch space at top of each glass. Cover with scalded tin or paper covers when paraffin has hardened. Store in cool, dry place.

Floating Fruit (in Jam)

- Fruit not fully ripe.
- Fruit not crushed or ground thoroughly.
- Fruit not cooked enough.
- Jam not cooled five minutes, with skimming and stirring, before pouring. As it cools, jam thickens slightly, holding the fruit in suspension in the syrup.

Gummy Jelly

- Overcooking. Too much invert sugar formed (sugar turns to syrup).

Mold on Jelly

— Imperfect seal. Use new paraffin. As soon as jelly is poured, cover with thin coat (one-eighth inch) hot paraffin. To make sure it is smooth and of even thickness, measure melted paraffin into tablespoon and pour over hot jelly.

When filling glasses, leave one-half inch space at top — so separation of small amount of liquid which is normal will not run over. After paraffin has hardened, cover glasses with scalded tin or tight paper covers.

Cut out mold and use jelly. Or remedy by pouring one-fourth teaspoon brandy or grain alcohol over jelly; roll glass so liquid covers entire surface. Then light and when alcohol has burned off, re-apply jelly at once.

Stiff Jelly

- Fruit not fully ripe (too much pectin).
- Overcooking (causing excessive evaporation). Cook quickly, over highest heat.
- Too much pectin or sugar.

Syrupy Jelly

- Too little pectin, acid or sugar to balance proportions.
- A great excess of sugar.

Thin Jelly

- Too much prepared juice. Follow recipe proportions exactly.

— Inaccurate measurements. Use standard, level measurements. Measure prepared juice and sugar by cup, or weigh both.

— Increasing recipe. Mistake may be made in measuring and it is difficult to get full rolling boil with larger quantity.

— Insufficient sugar. Never reduce amount called for in recipe, as balance of ingredients will be destroyed.

— Lack of acidity. Overripe fruit may be excessively sweet. Taste prepared fruit. If it seems unusually sweet or bland, add two to four tablespoons lemon juice before measuring. And never omit lemon juice if it is called for in recipe.

— Judging set too soon. Jellies sometimes take a week or so to reach a final good set.

Weeping Jelly

- An unbalanced recipe — high in acidity.
- Too heavy layer of paraffin.
- Too warm storage. (Keep below 65 degrees F.)
- Changes in temperature.

PEACH JAM

2 1/2 cups prepared fruit (about 2 1/2 lbs. fully ripe peaches)
1 tsp. ascorbic acid crystals (optional)
6 1/2 cups (2 lbs. 14 oz.) sugar
1/3 cup lemon juice (2 or 3 lemons)
1 bottle (6 fluid oz.) liquid fruit pectin

First prepare the containers. Use only containers 1 pint or less in size that have tight-fitting lids. Wash, scald and drain containers and lids; or use automatic dishwasher with really hot (150 degrees or higher) rinse water.

Then prepare the fruit. Peel and pit about 2 1/2 pounds peaches; chop very fine or grind. Measure 2 1/2 cups into a large bowl or pan.

Add ascorbic acid crystals.

Then make the jam. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit; let stand 10 minutes. Squeeze the juice from 2 or 3 lemons; add 1/3 cup to fruit pectin in small bowl. Stir into fruit. Continue stirring about 3 minutes (A few sugar crystals will remain.) Ladle quickly into containers. Cover at once with tight lids. Let stand at room temperature until set (may take up to 24 hours); then store in freezer. If jam will be used within 2 or 3 weeks, it may be stored in the refrigerator. Makes 7 1/2 cups or about 8 (8 fluid ounces) containers.

Blender method: An electric blender can be used to chop or grind fruit — place a few pieces at a time into blender container so blades are just covered, cover container, and turn control from off to low several times until fruit is chopped or ground as specified in recipe. (Do not puree.)

Note: Addition of ascorbic acid helps maintain color and flavor of fruit; ascorbic acid crystals may be purchased at local drug store.

HALF-CROCKED PEACH JAM

3 lbs. fresh, ripe peaches
2 tbsps. lemon juice
1 pkg. (1 1/2 oz.) powdered fruit pectin
5 1/2 cups sugar
Port, bourbon, brandy or rum (optional)

Paraffin

Peel peaches by dropping peaches into boiling water for 30 seconds. Transfer with slotted spoon to cold water; slip off skins. Halve and remove pits. Finely chop or grind peaches to make 4 cups; add lemon juice. In a 6-to 8-quart saucepan, thoroughly mix peaches with powdered fruit pectin. Over high heat, cook and continuously stir until mixture comes to a full boil. Add sugar; bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; skim off foam with metal spoon. Stir and skim 5 minutes. Into clean, hot, sterilized crocks or jelly glasses, pour 1 tablespoon of suggested liquid. Add hot jam, leaving one-half inch space at top. Cover jam immediately with one-eighth inch hot paraffin. Gently tilt jar so paraffin "climbs" and seals edges all around. Store in dry cool place. Makes 6 to 7 cups.

Notes: A gro grain ribbon "lifter" can be placed on jam to help lift out paraffin. Pour a thin layer of paraffin onto the jam, lay ribbon in paraffin and pour another layer of hot wax over the ribbon. Secure end to crock with tape, until paraffin sets firmly.

Jam can be poured into jelly glasses with 2-piece metal lids. Leave one eighth inch at top. Tighten lids on jars, one by one and invert. When all jars are sealed, stand upright. Cool.

RED RASPBERRY AND PEACH JAM

3 cups prepared fruit (one 10-oz. pkg. frozen red raspberries)

In quick thaw pouch and add about 1 1/2 lb. fully ripe peaches)
4 1/2 cups (2 lb. 2 oz.) sugar
3/4 cup water

1 box (1 1/2 oz.) powdered fruit pectin

First prepare the containers. Use only containers 1 pint or less in size that have tight-fitting lids. Wash, scald and drain containers and lids; or use automatic dishwasher with really hot (150 degree or higher) rinse water.

Then prepare the fruit. Thaw and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time. 1 package (10 oz.) red raspberries. Pit, peel and grind or finely chop about 1 1/2 pounds peaches. Combine with raspberries. Measure 3 cups fruit into large bowl or pan.

Then make the jam. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit; let stand 10 minutes. Mix water and fruit pectin in small saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Stir into fruit. Continue stirring about 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals will remain.) Ladle quickly into containers.

Blender method: An electric blender can be used to chop or grind peaches — place a few pieces at a time into blender container so blades are just covered, cover container, and turn control from off to low several times until fruit is chopped or finely ground. (Do not puree.)

SWEET CHERRY-ORANGE JAM

2 cups prepared fruit (1 orange and about 1 1/2 lbs. fully ripe sweet cherries)
2 tbsps. lemon juice (1 lemon)
4 1/2 cups (2 lbs.) sugar
3/4 cup water

1 box (1 1/2 oz.) powdered fruit pectin

First prepare the containers. Use only containers 1 pint or less in size that have tight-fitting lids. Wash, scald and drain containers and lids; or use automatic dishwasher with really hot (150 degrees or higher) rinse water.

Then prepare the fruit. Grate the rind from one orange; set aside. Section or grate, trimming off all membrane. Dice sections and measure one quarter cup into large bowl or pan. Add rind. Pit and grind very fine about 1 1/2 cups sweet cherries. Measure 1 1/2 cups and add to orange and rind. Squeeze the juice from one lemon; measure 2 tablespoons. Stir into fruit mixture.

4 cups (1 1/2 lb.) sugar
1/2 cup lemon juice (2 lemons)
1/2 bottle (3 fluid oz.) liquid fruit pectin

First prepare the containers. Use only containers 1 pint or less in size that have tight-fitting lids. Wash, scald and drain containers and lids; or use automatic dishwasher with really hot (150 degrees or higher) rinse water.

Then prepare the fruit. Pit and grind or chop about 1 quart sweet cherries. Measure 1 1/2 cups into a large bowl or pan.

Then make the jam. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit. Let stand 10 minutes. Squeeze the juice from 2 lemons. Add 1/2 cup to fruit pectin in a small bowl. Stir into fruit. Continue stirring about 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals will remain.) Ladle quickly into containers. Cover at once with tight lids. Let stand at room temperature until set (may take up to 24 hours); then store in freezer. If jam will be used within 2 or 3 weeks, it may be stored in refrigerator. Makes 4 1/2 cups or about 5 (8 fluid oz.) containers.

Note: Cherries may be ground in an electric blender. Place a few at a time in blender container, so that blades are just covered. Cover container and turn control from off to low several times until fruit is ground. (Do not puree.)

DELICATE DESSERT CREPES

2 eggs
1 tbsps. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 cup cold water
1/2 cup light cream
2/3 cup all-purpose flour

(* Or use half and half; add 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine.)

Beat eggs with hand beater, electric mixer or in an electric blender until very light and frothy. Then beat in sugar and salt. Add water and cream alternately with the flour, a small amount at a time, beating well after each addition. Let stand 1 hour. For each crepe, pour 2 tablespoons batter into hot well-buttered 5-inch skillet, or 5 tablespoons into a 6 1/2-inch skillet, tilting pan to spread batter and turning to brown both sides. Spread with jam, fold in half, then in half again to form a triangle. Makes about 18 five-inch or twelve 6 1/2-inch crepes.

Note: Store leftover batter in the refrigerator; beat thoroughly before using. Recipe may be halved.

To freeze crepes: stack between layers of wax paper, wrap and freeze. To reheat, brush frozen crepes with butter and place in shallow baking dish. Cover and heat at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

BANANA JAM

12 cups sliced bananas (about 20 medium)
6 cups sugar
1 1/2 cups orange juice

1/2 cup lemon juice
3 strips orange peel
3 strips lemon peel
2 cinnamon sticks
6 whole cloves

Combine sliced bananas and remaining ingredients in large kettle. Stir over moderate heat until sugar dissolves. Boil rapidly for 10 minutes, reduce heat and simmer, stirring constantly, until thickened, about 15 to 20 minutes. When jam is thick, remove from heat and ladle immediately into sterilized jelly or jam jars. Fill to within one-eighth inch of top. Screw cap on evenly and tightly. Invert for a few seconds and stand jars upright to cool. If jam is to be stored for a long time, place jars on rack in a large kettle and cover with boiling water. Boil for 10 to 15 minutes. Remove from water and cool. Makes about 5 pints.

Small quantity banana jam: Combine 1 1/2 cups sliced bananas, 3/4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons orange juice, 5 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 small cinnamon stick and 1 whole clove in 2-quart saucepan. Stir over moderate heat until sugar dissolves. Boil rapidly 5 minutes, reduce heat and simmer, stirring constantly until thickened, about 10 minutes. Pour into small jars or other container, cool and store in refrigerator. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

PINEAPPLE-STRAWBERRY JELLY

2 1/2 cups prepared juice (1 small fully ripe pineapple and about 3 lbs. fully ripe strawberries)
5 cups (2 1/2 lb.) sugar
1 box (1 1/2 oz.) powdered fruit pectin

First prepare the juice. Pare 1 small pineapple. Chop very fine or grind. Crush thoroughly, one layer at a time; about 3 pints strawberries. Place fruits in jelly-cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure 3 1/2 cups into a large saucepan.

Then make the jelly. Measure sugar and set aside. Mix fruit pectin into juice in saucepan and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Immediately add all sugar and stir. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, skim off foam with metal spoon, and pour quickly into glasses. Cover at once with one-eighth inch hot paraffin. Makes about 6 (6 fluid oz.) glasses.

Mediator To Settle Postal Pact Hassle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid continued threats of a mail strike, a special mediator decided today to settle the postal contract dispute himself, saying the Postal Service and its unions appear unable to reach a settlement on their own by Saturday's deadline.

Mediator James J. Healy told bargainers of his decision when the Postal Service and three unions representing more than 500,000 workers resumed their deadlocked negotiations today.

"I have decided to render a final and binding decision on the unresolved issues in dispute," Healy said. "While a negotiated settlement is still possible, it is almost certain now that it will be necessary for me to resolve the issues...."

His decision to settle the lengthy dispute with binding arbitration appeared likely to fuel strike threats by some local postal union leaders, who contend that the bargainers should settle the issues on their own and submit the agreement to rank-and-file ratification.

Meanwhile today, a shoving match broke out as the president of the largest postal union was confronted outside the site of the talks by angry New Jersey postal workers who were fired for walking off the job in July.

Emmet Andrews, head of the 299,000-member American Postal Workers Union, had to push his way past the handful of angry pickets, who screamed at him to win amnesty for them as part of a new contract settlement.

As Andrews entered the building, security guards had to restrain the demonstrators from pursuing him.

The workers were fired when they staged a wildcat strike on July 21 at the bulk mail center in Jersey City, N.J., to protest the tentative contract agreement reached that day.

Some big-city union leaders have threatened to call an illegal mail strike for Wednesday, but they say they may cancel the job action if they fail to marshal enough support from union members.

National union leaders said they believe few members would be willing to participate in the strike, which is barred by federal law.

Meanwhile, Postmaster General William F. Bolger said today he is prepared to "do what is necessary and required by law" if there is a strike.

However, he repeated his prediction that that there will not be a strike. "I simply do not believe our employees will let the American people down," Bolger said in a speech prepared for a convention of business mailers here.

In his statement, Healy held out hope that the two sides would settle on their own before their self-imposed deadline of 9 a.m. CDT Saturday.

But he said he would have to begin deciding the issues on his own on the assumption a negotiated settlement will not be reached in time.

A negotiated settlement would have to be resubmitted to union members, who rejected the previous contract offer last month. But a decision by Healy would be final, requiring no ratification vote.

When he entered the stalemated talks Sept. 1, Healy said he would begin moving toward binding arbitration today if it appeared the two sides could not negotiate a settlement.

There has been no report of progress in the talks since then, and union threats of an illegal strike remain.

"Unless there is a last-minute agreement, it looks like arbitration. And I see no evidence of any breakthrough," a union source said Monday.

Healy, a Harvard professor of industrial relations with long experience as a labor trouble-shooter, is supposed to either mediate a settlement by the Saturday deadline or resolve outstanding issues by binding arbitration.

Postal labor and management remain apart on the issues of pay and layoffs. The three unions are trying to sweeten pay increases of 19.5 percent over three years which their members have already rejected, but the Postal Service has been unwilling to offer more money.

Postal management wants to delete a clause from the earlier contract proposal banning layoffs, but the unions have said they would not sign any contract without protection against layoffs.

"The Postal Service doesn't want to give on wages without getting something in the no-layoff area," a source close to the talks said.

National union leaders and Postal Service representatives have agreed to abide by any binding arbitration by Healy.

Reagan, Ford Back Texas Republicans

HOUSTON (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford and one-time California Gov. Ronald Reagan, bitter opponents for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination, appeared together in Houston today to boost the campaigns of GOP candidates in Texas.

Both spoke briefly at a breakfast attended by 250 party workers and both called for the election of a Republican governor in this traditionally Democratic state.

This was one of the few times the two one-time rivals have appeared together and the first time in Texas, which was a strong supporter of Reagan during the 1976 convention.

Ford said if a Democrat is elected in Texas it would "indicate that this state supports the policies of a Carter administration. Let us face it, the 1978 Texas gubernatorial election is a referendum on the Carter policies. If there is not a change to the Republican party, the voters will be endorsing the Carter administration, one which has promised much, but done little."

Bill Clements, a millionaire Dallas businessman, is the Republican gubernatorial candidate challenging Democratic Attorney General John Hill.

The former president said voters should realize "they can't rewrite what happened in 1976 or leapfrog to 1980. This year they can send a message to Washington."

Reagan praised Ford for his vetoes against "excessive spending bills" while in office.

Reagan said "President Carter won't serve liquor in the White House but his staff is on pot. This is the only administration I can recall that is high and dry."

The former governor said states rights has been destroyed by an "army of bureaucrats. Only the election of Republican governors and congressmen can stop this trend."

Reagan spoke Monday night on behalf of Ron Paul, the GOP candidate for the hotly contested seat held by U.S. Rep. Bob Gammage, whom Reagan referred to as a "economic Typhoid Mary."

Evidence Bared In Slaying Case evidence which they feel will ultimately link Herndon to the grisly crime.

The pieces included the burning auto, alleged blood stains found near the bar and a separate fire discovered by state troopers about 90 minutes after Young's body was found.

Sheriff's Deputy Delwin "Sonny" Kee-see rendered a graphic picture of the auto which held Young's body.

The windshield had completely melted and run down into the car — part of it was still hanging from the dash area," he said, saying the windshield looked like icicles.

Keesee said Young's body, apparently doused with a "volatile" substance, was lying in the trunk with the head facing toward the interior of the car.

He said a "tremendous amount of

JFK Report Backed By New Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — A space engineer and a photo analyst told Congress today their studies show that President John F. Kennedy and John B. Connally could have been wounded by a single bullet fired from the Texas School Book Depository.

Their testimony before the House assassinations committee supported two of the major conclusions of the Warren Commission, which said that Lee Harvey Oswald fired from a window of the building and was the lone gunman who killed Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

Tom Canning, a space projects engineer with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said mathematical calculations showed that Kennedy and Connally were seated in the presidential limousine in such a way that a single bullet could have struck both.

That was the bullet which hit Kennedy from the back and passed through his neck. Connally, sitting in front of Kennedy, was wounded in the back. Kennedy's most serious wound was a bullet in the head.

Warren Commission critics argue that the two men were struck by separate bullets and that this indicates a second gunman was involved.

But Canning and photo analyst Calvin McCamy testified that an analysis of films and photos taken during the assassination provide the basis for computations of the relative position of the two men.

Canning said he was then able to construct the line of sight from the camera positions to Kennedy and Connally and determine with considerable precision Connally's position in front of and just to the left of Kennedy.

Then, he said, he used medical findings on the wound locations to construct lines in the direction of the gunfire.

The trajectory lines for both of Kennedy's wounds led to the book depository.

The trajectory for a single bullet striking both men had a margin of error of about five feet, meaning the bullet came either from the sixth-floor window, where the Warren Commission said the shot was fired, or from within a five-foot area around the window.

blood" was found in the area where the victim's head had rested.

The deputy said he later viewed the body at a local funeral home and found wounds including a gash on the back of the left side of the neck, a hole in the right cheek "big enough to stick your finger in" and a wound to the back of the head, bone-deep.

State Trooper Max Gunn said Herndon and Jaycon, 31, were seen shortly before midnight — about 90 minutes after the body was discovered — near a burning cardboard box.

The trooper said he was attracted to what resembled a campfire near the intersection of FM 1585 and Quirt Avenue, approximately two miles east of the point where Young's body was discovered.

Gunn said that as he approached the site of the fire, an auto which had been parked nearby began proceeding east on the farm road.

According to Gunn, he followed the car for some distance and then stopped it. He testified Herndon was the driver of the car, and that Jaycon was a passenger.

Gunn said he arrested Herndon on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Keesee also testified he went to the Salt River Saloon about 3:30 a.m. Dec. 26 and found what appeared to be blood on a sidewalk area east of the bar. He said a baseball cap with the word "CAT" was also found lying on the sidewalk in the same area.

The deputy said Young was known to have worn such a cap.

Illegal Aliens Pose Problems

but has overstayed the time allotted by the government or has been caught working.

—Student, an alien who has been allowed to enroll in a school in this country, but has dropped out or taken a job.

—Illegal immigrant, a foreigner who has been given permission to reside in the United States, but has committed a deportable offense, such as knowingly transporting illegal aliens into this country.

Rowe said an alien in the EW1 category, which consists mainly of Mexicans, is the proverbial "wetback," a term U.S. Border Patrol Commissioner Leonel Castillo is attempting to replace with "undocumented worker."

Records show that in the 28-county area in 1977, 2,481 EW1s, 294 visitors, one student and one illegal immigrant were caught. In a farm-ranch check, 943 illegal aliens were discovered last year; 1,005 were found in rural towns or cities (Wichita Falls and Lubbock); and 843 were turned over by other law enforcement agencies.

Rowe said that within the last 10 years the number of illegal aliens caught by the border patrol in this station area has shown an increase, with the record year being 1975, when 3,621 aliens were sent back to their countries.

The head agent said he does not have figures on how many aliens are found yearly in the Lubbock vicinity, but that their numbers are heavy in and around the city because of the large cotton industry.

Patrol agent Dean Hall said this year's busiest day so far has been July 19 when 55 Mexicans lacking legitimate passports were caught and placed in Lubbock's old city jail — where all aliens discovered by agents in the 28-county area eventually find themselves before being transported back to their countries.

Thirty-four illegal aliens were apprehended by border agents last Thursday in the Lubbock and Levelland area, Rowe said.

Seventeen persons arrested on misdemeanor offenses during the Labor Day weekend were transferred from the Lubbock County Jail to the old city jail after the border patrol learned the prisoners were Mexicans in this country illegally.

Rowe, a 22-year veteran with the border patrol who has been in Lubbock a little over a year, said the number of aliens his federal agents capture does not accurately reflect the much-larger number of non-U.S. citizens actually here.

Asked about the illegal alien population in the Lubbock Station Area, Rowe said, "I wouldn't be surprised if there are 100,000. It probably would scare us." Rowe said he does not know of any viable solution to the increasing flow of illegal aliens into this country, unless it would be to either fine or take legal action against employers who knowingly hire "wetbacks."

Right now, businessmen who are caught with illegal aliens in their employ-

Begin Faces Pressure From U.S. Troops Advance Against Rebels

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Carter is making a "gigantic effort" to gain concessions from Israel but there is no evidence yet that he is succeeding in his uphill quest, diplomatic sources said today.

"It is too early to make a judgment either way," said one official, asking not to be identified. "But getting Israel to move has been the problem all along, even before the summit began."

A meeting announced for Monday night between the U.S. and Egyptian delegations was postponed without explanation. However, Carter arranged to meet with Egypt's Anwar Sadat today.

With Carter acting as go-between, there has been no face-to-face conference involving Sadat and Israel's Menachem Begin since last Thursday.

There was no indication that the two would meet today either, but Jody Powell, sole official spokesman for the participants, said Monday that Carter will bring President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin together at an appropriate point.

Powell, the White House press secretary, dismissed a reporter's suggestion that the hiatus in direct talks between Sadat and Begin indicated a stalemate.

"I don't think it would be appropriate to draw that conclusion," he said.

Powell said the summit had moved into a time-consuming phase of American-Egyptian and American-Israeli discussions, after a weekend review by all three delegations of "apparent progress" made last week on some key issues.

Carter, he reported, is making an "even more intense effort" to bridge differences between Egypt and Israel, but that "neither optimism nor pessimism is justified at this point."

As Powell described it, the process was reminiscent of difficult labor-management negotiations, with a mediator shuttling between the contending parties.

Carter met alone with Sadat for two hours Monday morning. In the evening, an American-Egyptian conference at the ministerial level was announced. But it was this session that was postponed.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Heavy fighting raged today in the embattled city of Masaya, where national guard troops were reported advancing house to house under heavy sniper fire to root out leftist guerrillas fighting to overthrow the family dictatorship of President Anastasio Somoza.

Red Cross workers and journalists were barred from entering the city, a rebel stronghold 18 miles northwest of Managua, but the sound of heavy gunfire could be heard from the vantage point of a national guard barricade outside Masaya.

Troops in this capital city, meanwhile, reported discovering what they described as "enormous" caches of rebel weapons as they pressed their search for guerrillas in Managua.

In Masaya late Monday, helicopter gunships strafed the Sandinista guerrillas from overhead and Somoza's soldiers dashed from doorway to doorway, trying to evade the rifle fire of guerrilla snipers. There was no letup in the din of machine gun and rifle fire and bomb explosions.

Refugees reported the city of 40,000 was without electricity and running water. A military source said the rebel weapons caches here included automatic rifles, rockets, home-made noise bombs and Molotov cocktails. The weapons were found in several rebel hideouts, the source said.

Fighting also was reported in the cities of Leon and Esteli, and sporadic shooting and explosions could still be heard in Managua as the capital's central market and gas stations closed for the first time in the 18-day-old general strike against Somoza.

Reports from medical sources and visitors to hospitals indicated at least 100 dead in the Managua area, but many of them apparently were brought in from other areas.

Convoy of national guard trucks and jeeps armed with machine guns passed into Masaya Monday evening. A barricade of rocks and debris formed a checkpoint for the national guard, Nicaragua's army, which barred all civilian traffic and kept the city hidden from view behind a hill.

The soldiers rounded up reporters in Masaya on Monday afternoon and took them out of the city, sealed it off to outsiders including the Red Cross, then launched an attack. Four of the journalists were fired on by an army helicopter, but none was hit.

The fighting in Masaya erupted late Saturday night as part of a coordinated attack on smaller army and police posts in most of the Central American nation's cities. The Sandinista guerrillas drove the guardsmen and police from the posts, then waited in hiding to ambush the reinforcements who were sent to man the posts.

Reports from Esteli, 90 miles north of Managua, were sketchy. Telephone communications were cut Sunday night, but a refugee said Monday that fighting was still very heavy and that he had seen five truckloads of guerrillas approaching from the north.

Security precautions in Managua were extremely tight. The Hotel Intercontinental, normally flood-lit at night and a prominent feature on the Managua skyline, was blacked out and soldiers patrolled the roof. Guests were warned not to let any light filter through the heavy curtains in their rooms.

Even stricter precautions were in force around the Bunker, Somoza's live-in-office building in a military compound down the street from the Intercontinental.

C&K Petroleum sent its respective complaint filed against Carlsbad, who removed as operating well.

After a day-long session took the matter. It probably will be a decision is reached.

water) here at the station," he said, adding officers were forced to enter and exit the building by a back entryway to avoid the high waters.

However, officials said water was draining from the streets quickly — a good sign in light of the additional rainfall expected today.

"It's just been a good ol' thunderstorm and we understand there's another brewin' up," said Clemons. "See, the front has stalled over the city. We're sure catchin' the rain end of it."

The rains, associated with a slowly dying tropical depression that moved northward through the state following its landfall Sunday in northeastern Mexico Sunday, had caused some concern in the Hill Country, ravaged by Tropical Storm Amelia last month.

However, the National Weather Service said that while several weeks of heavy rains had weakened earthen dams in Banderita County, the latest rainfall was not expected to cause flooding similar to that which swept across the area and killed almost 30 people in August.

Street flooding was reported again Monday in Baytown, where heavy rains had caused minor flooding of a subdivision and cafeteria Sunday night. The rains Monday caused minor flooding at the police department, hampering officers trying to park cars. Texas 146, near Loop 201 in Baytown, was closed for a time Monday due to rising waters.

A cool front moving through the South Plains today was changing the wind direction and little else.

The wind was shifting to the northwest at noon, the NWS station at Lubbock International Airport reported, with passage of the cool front.

The wind should be northerly and northwesterly at 5 to 10 mph tonight, the NWS said.

Partly cloudy skies and slightly cooler temperatures are predicted for today and Wednesday.

Temperatures should be in the high 80s today, near 60 tonight and in the low 80s Wednesday.

Security Guard Catches Supermarket Food Thief

A Lubbock man's dinner plans were altered about 4:30 p.m. Monday when a security guard at the United Super Market at 50th Street and Slide Road noticed him walking around with a ham hidden under his shirt.

The 36-year-old man realized he had been detected and put the ham back, reports show. But police say the guard followed the suspect out to his car where a stack of meat was found on the vehicle's floor.

Police reports show further investigation revealed the food had been lifted from five different local grocery stores. The man who had hoped to feast off his loot was, instead, taken into custody and transported to the county jail.

In an early-morning reported assault, James Allan Clevenger of Rt. 6, Box 141, Lubbock told deputies someone knocked on his trailer door about 3:50 a.m. today, and when he answered it, hit him in the mouth.

He said the man who hit him, along with two other men, entered his residence and began beating him up.

Deputies said the man received two black eyes and a split lip before his attackers left. However, he was not thought to have been injured seriously, and nothing apparently was stolen from the trailer.

The sheriff's office today was also investigating a report of a burglary at Lily Rodriguez' house at Rt. 8, Box 848, Lubbock between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday in which more than $1,000 in property was taken, including two television sets, a .22 caliber pistol, stereo equipment, cooking utensils and jewelry.

Billie Lee Lawson told police Monday that she was attacked by a man about 1 a.m. Sunday and dragged behind a club at 35th Street and Avenue A, where her attacker robbed her of a necklace and $70 in food stamps.

The 45-year-old woman was not hurt seriously in the reported assault.

Miscreants struck at three houses under construction in the 4900 block of 63rd Street and stole chandeliers sometime between Sunday afternoon and 8 a.m. Monday.

Norman Ray Hargis told police two of his uncompleted houses at 4907 and 4909 63rd Street were broken into and four light fixtures, totaling $500, stolen. Hargis lives in the partially built house at 4907 63rd St.

Gerald Long of 3106 42nd St. said the house he is building at 4903 63rd St. was also entered and four chandeliers, estimated to be worth $550, were taken.

Both Long and Hargis said they were victimized between Sunday and Monday morning.

In one of several costly burglaries in the city, Annie Letha Reeves, owner of Reeves Camera Store at 1719 Broadway, said her business was broken into between the time she closed shop at 4:30 p.m. Saturday and 8-20 a.m. Monday.

She reported $2,000 in camera equipment missing. Entry appeared to have been gained by taking off the hinges of the door on the north side of the structure.

Dr. R.H. Meyer said his office at 3728 37th St. was burglarized Sunday night or Monday morning and narcotics, among other things, were stolen.

The doctor, who estimated his loss at $1,350, said that other items taken were a TV set, slide projector, camera equipment and stereo equipment.

More than $3,000 in property, including stereo equipment, two televisions, a CB radio and microwave oven apparently caught the eye of burglars who reportedly entered Tony L. Barnett's residence at 5311 23rd St. between 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. Monday.

Michael Sizemore, owner of J&M Enterprises at 820 19th St., told police $1,155 in tools, sound systems and a television was stolen when his business was burglarized between 8 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Monday.

Answering a burglary alarm about 8:30 p.m. Monday, police went to Associated Supply Co. at 2402 Ave. H and found that the business' four front windows had been broken. One window was shattered, reports show, while the other three had bullet holes.

The owner of the business, J.W. Wright, estimated the damage at about $800.

Police late Monday were looking for two suspects involved in the early afternoon strongarm robbery of a service station attendant at 2801 Clovis Road.

Seventy-three-year-old Roy Robert George, owner of the station, told police that shortly before 2 p.m. two men entered his office, one of them asking for a dollar's worth of change.

George said he opened the register and made the change, but before he could close the register the man asked him for a tire patch.

As the attendant bent down to get the patch, one of the men grabbed George from behind forcing him to the floor while his companion took $65 from the register.

George told officers that both men fled on foot to a vehicle described by a witness as a late model grey Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

George described the two as Mexican-Americans, 18 to 25 years old. He said one of the men was short and of medium build while the other was heavy-set and of medium height.

In other activity, police early Monday arrested a man in connection with the attempted burglary of a residence at 2722 29th St., Apt. A.

Viki Yvonne O'Connor told officers she had been plagued by prowlers recently and had asked her sister and brother-in-law to watch her house early Monday.

The couple parked their car at the southeast corner of Canton Avenue and 29th Street at about 5:30 a.m. and observed a man prowling around Miss O'Connor's home.

Her brother-in-law, who was armed with a pistol, told police he walked over to the house and saw the man stick a small, long object through the window screen.

The man then told the suspect to lay face down on the ground until the police arrived.

When officers arrived at the scene, the suspect told them he had run out of gas and was just crossing the yard on the way back to his house to get some gas.

Police found the suspect's car about three-fourths of a block north of the residence and after testing, found that it appeared to be running normally.

Police recovered a piece of long, thin metal pipe at the scene.

Joe Ines Montalvo, owner of a club at 1108 25th St., reported that sometime between 12:10 and 12:25 a.m., someone entered the establishment through an old air conditioner and made off with an undetermined amount of money from the office.

Manuel Lopez Moreno reported that $300 in damage had been done to his car's front and rear windshield, while it was parked at a club at 5200 34th St. between 7 and 11:45 p.m. Sunday.

Investigating officers discovered that apparently a small caliber weapon had been fired through the rear window, with the bullet also striking the front window.

The Red Raider Inn was the site for two apparently related car burglaries early Sunday.

Ben Gonzalez of Pecos reported the theft of a CB radio, valued at $165, while Michael Bryant told officers that a $2,000 surveying instrument had been taken from his pickup.

Burglars apparently entered both pickups by prying open the left door window.

Harris County Warned About Disease Threat

HOUSTON (UPI) — Health officials have received a confidential memorandum warning Harris County may be vulnerable to an outbreak of the non-fatal Dengue Fever now plaguing Latin American countries.

Mosquito Control District Director Robert Barnett said in the memorandum that an expert, John Scanlon of the University of Texas School of Public Health, was concerned about local presence of the mosquito that carries the disease.

"He feels... we are in an extremely vulnerable position in Harris County because of the (carrier) of that disease, Aedes aegypti, occurs throughout Harris County in artificial breeding containers," Barnett's memo said.

But both Barnett and Scanlon, associate dean of the School of Public Health and a member of the Mosquito Control Board, cautioned against alarm and said the approach of cooler weather reduces the risk.

"This is nothing to be alarmed about so far as Harris County is concerned," Scanlon said. "But it is something to keep an eye on."

"In a few weeks, the temperature will be too cold to support the disease. It is a disease that thrives only in hot climates."

"We simply want to be prepared to deal with the problem should there be one," Barnett said.

Dr. Marjorie Orr, city health director, said what Dengue Fever the United States has had in recent weeks has been brought in mostly from Puerto Rico and that there is little chance of the disease occurring in Lubbock.

Edwin Smith, vector control supervisor for the city, said the aedes aegypti mosquito is not believed to live north of a Seymour-Abilene line in Texas.

Texas Man Identified As Slaying Victim

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — A man found slain in a desert area in South Tempe Friday has been identified as a Texas businessman, police said Monday.

William George Reeves, 51, of Mesquite, had been in the Valley on a business trip, police said. An autopsy showed that he had been shot twice in the head with a small-caliber weapon.

Investigators are looking for Reeves' red 1976 pickup, which had a Texas license plate.

His body was found by dove hunters near an irrigation canal.

CLOTHES REMAKE THE MAN? — Presidential Press Secretary Jody Powell has changed the image he projects during briefings — from the loosened tie and rolled up sleeves at a White House briefing in 1977, left, to the carefully tailored look at right as he is surrounded by reporters at the American Legion Hall in Thurmont, Md., after a briefing last week as spokesman for the Mideast summit at Camp David, Md. (AP Laserphoto)

Jody Powell Drops Casual Style For Summit Duties

By BARRY SCHWEID

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — He sweeps into the makeshift newsroom in the Edwin C. Creager Jr. American Legion Post No. 168, cameras trailing behind.

He walks briskly to the small stage in front of the room, his casual, campaign image of country boy cast aside.

The president's 34-year-old press agent is the official spokesman for the Mideast summit, and reporters hang on his every word. For they are massed here, six miles from Camp David, their "sources" dried up, muzzled by President Carter in his drive for a Mideast settlement.

By agreement of the three governments at the summit — some reports say it was given only grudgingly by Israel — the White House press secretary is the spokesman for all officials here.

Powell begins with schedule information, which means mostly announcing that a meeting has taken place hours earlier.

One meeting, between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, was announced a day late.

The meeting over the weekend among Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Weizman and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan was never formally announced.

Powell conducts his briefings once a day, at about 1 p.m. There was no briefing at all Sunday, although reporters were permitted to watch Carter take Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin on a guided tour of the Civil War battlefield at nearby Gettysburg, Pa.

Carter, Begin and Weizman offered a remark or two, giving the tea-leaf readers in the press corps something to ponder.

The reporters have been kept off the Camp David grounds except for a show Carter had the Marines put on Thursday evening for Sadat and Begin.

The justification for the extraordinary secrecy was given by Carter, himself, before the summit began. He said it would free the participants from the temptation to engage in "political posturing."

After the sketchy schedule information, Powell sometimes offers a well-considered statement. It is carefully balanced to the point of offering equal measures of optimism and pessimism.

Moreover, he remembers to caution reporters against drawing any conclusions from the little that he has said. Powell tries never intentionally to disclose what Carter is actually discussing with Begin and Sadat and so far has succeeded.

As a result, the public remains mostly in the dark. Authorized photographs are periodically released showing the summit participants in apparent good humor. But for all reporters and other outsiders can tell, they might as easily be having pitched battles.

Oil Firm Admits Filing Late Reports

SANTA FE (AP) — Officials of a Texas oil company conceded the corporation had been tardy in the past in filing required state reports on drilling activities, but told the New Mexico Oil Conservation Commission they will mend their ways.

C&K Petroleum Inc. of Houston presented its response Monday to a complaint filed against it by Bill Taylor of Carlsbad, who seeks to have the company removed as operator of an Eddy County gas well.

After a day-long hearing, the commission took the matter under advisement. It probably will be several weeks before a decision is reached.

Taylor owns about 13 percent interest in the well — 45 acres of a 336-acre drilling unit.

Thief Escapes With $71,000

FORT WORTH (UPI) — A store clerk suspicious upon seeing "two legs and an arm" disappear through a hole in a ceiling soon discovered the intruder hadn't left empty-handed.

The bodyparts belonged to whoever took $71,000 in cash and checks from the cashier's office at Montgomery Ward & Co. Monday afternoon before escaping through a ceiling hole, police said.

Clerk Debra Pinson said she was working in the office with another worker when she went to investigate the noises she thought she had heard.

"I joked that it must be ghosts, but then I heard the noises again," she said.

She said she walked around the corner of the L-shaped office just in time to see a man disappear into the ceiling, and then discovered a money-filled bankbag also was missing.

Police said the man apparently climbed a ladder that he had placed in a woman's restroom, removed a panel from the ceiling and climbed through the hole. Officials believe the man then traveled along a walkway, removed a panel and dropped into the cashier's office.

The man then scooped up the bag and disappeared back through the hole, police said.

He contends C&K has failed to comply with state regulations governing well operations, and therefore should be removed as the well operator.

He also asks the commission to relieve him from payment of a 120 percent risk factor assessed against interest owners in the well who chose not to participate in the original drilling costs.

Taylor said he intended to participate in the drilling, had notified C&K of this intent and had the money available to participate. But he contends he was not allowed to participate.

Taylor presented his case against C&K at a hearing before the commission in early August. The company presented its defense against Taylor's allegations at a day-long continuation of the hearing Monday.

Company witnesses conceded that required reports to the state were not filed on a timely basis when the well was drilled and brought into production in early 1977.

Gilbert C. Tompson of Midland, C&K's production manager, told the commission steps have been taken to prevent a recurrence of these oversights and that submitted reports which contained errors have been amended.

Since Taylor presented his case nearly five weeks ago, C&K has hired an independent auditor to review the records relating to the drilling costs and production payments made to the interest owners of the well.

Oil Firm Admits Filing Late Reports

Dorothy Brown, an auditor with H. Gene Brown and Associates of Houston, told the commission Monday it is common to find a 7-10 percent rate of error in an oil company's accounting of drilling costs. The C&K well cost $563,000 to drill and a 10 percent error rate would amount to about $56,300, she said.

The exceptions found in the audit of the Eddy County well totaled about $20,000, or substantially less than 10 percent, she said.

H. Gene Brown, president of the independent auditing firm, said he had reviewed the audit conducted by Miss Brown. He concurred with her statement that it is common to find a 7-10 percent range of error in accounting for drilling costs.

State To Appeal Prisons Ruling

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — State officials were mapping plans today to appeal a federal judge's ruling Monday that the McAlester prison and Granite reformatory, Oklahoma's two primary penal institutions, must be almost completely rebuilt or closed.

Gov. David Boren, saying it would cost between $30 million and $50 million to comply with U.S. District Judge Luther Bohanon's order, has asked the attorney general and Corrections Department officials to "immediately begin the proper process for appealing" the ruling.

Bohanon, in the strongest of his series of strong orders requiring the state to improve conditions and relieve overcrowding in its prison system, established a schedule for compliance that will put the next Legislature and Boren's successor as governor squarely under a great deal of pressure unless the ruling is overturned.

Dr. Ned Benton, state corrections director, said if the state loses the appeal, the judge's ruling "condemns four of the five cell houses at (McAlester and Granite). It would appear to require the substantial replacement of the penitentiary and reformatory."

When asked if the state could comply with the order within the time frame Bohanon established, Benton said, "Not without a substantial series of appropriations."

He said it would take about $30 million for new construction at McAlester and Granite and about $20 million to comply with the judge's environmental standards.

Bohanon's order said funds "must be appropriated" by next July 1 to replace both cellhouses at Granite and two of the three cellhouses at McAlester or "those facilities shall be closed to further habitation."

He also said ground must be broken by Nov. 1 next year for the new construction or the cellhouses "shall be closed to future habitation." By May 1, 1981, he said, the four cellhouses "shall be permanently closed for habitation."

In addition, he ruled that the state had to meet environmental standards established by the American Public Health Association and American Correctional Association at all other state penal institutions by Dec. 1, 1979.

Boren, in ordering the appeal of Bohanon's ruling, said, "I am confident that most Oklahomans share my strong feeling that a federal judge has no business being able to tell the taxpayers and their elected representatives how to write a state budget."

But Bohanon sharply criticized state officials last week for failing to comply with his previous orders and indicated then that his inclination was to agree with the American Civil Liberties Union that the state had to be put on a strict time schedule or nothing would be done to alleviate the problems.

The ACLU, joined by the U.S. Justice Department, brought the 1972 prison overcrowding suit that resulted in Bohanon's series of prison orders.

The judge ruled earlier that the inmate populations had to be reduced to 800 at McAlester and 450 at Granite. He reinforced that decree in his 32-point order Monday by ruling that only one inmate can be housed in each cell at the two institutions, effective next April 1.

Carl Stevens, an ACLU attorney, said the order will bring the state substantially into compliance with the inmate limitations the judge established earlier.

Currently, there are 1,189 inmates at McAlester and 490 at Granite.

Bohanon also said each inmate in other institutions must have at least 60 square feet of cell space or 75 square feet if he lives in a dormitory by Aug. 1 of next year.

Other major rulings by the judge included requirements that the state:

— Close the wooden dormitories now used to house a few trustees at Lexington by Dec. 1.

— Present a life safety code audit by next Jan. 1 and comply with its requirements by April 1.

— Bring water, sewage, plumbing and electrical systems up to state Health Department standards by next July 1.

— Improve health service standards by Dec. 1 "to the standards adopted by this court in its findings of fact" and be in full compliance with the court's plan by Nov. 1, 1979.

— Provide 24-hour nursing care for bedfast inmates and institute regular visits by physicians.

— Provide "competent civilian legal advisors in sufficient numbers to insure inmates the means to frame and present legal issues effectively for judicial consideration" by Sept. 1, 1979.

Italian Sociologists Want To Abolish Language

Film To Aid Observation Of Atoms

By ED LION
CHICAGO (UPI) — University of Chicago scientists have made the first color films of atoms, the tiny building blocks of matter.

The color filming, the scientists said, will allow researchers to better observe atoms in their natural state and could lead to improvements in atomic engineering, development of better alloys and more knowledge about controlling chemical reactions.

"It could be of considerable practical importance," said physicist Albert V. Crewe who worked on the filming with fellow physicist Michael Isaacson. "Anytime man builds a machine allowing him to see better he learns more facts about nature."

The scientists made about eight minutes of 16mm color film showing individual indium, uranium, platinum and palladium atoms. They showed some of the color film recently at a science conference in Toronto.

To make the film they used a specially designed device they developed and gists and men of letters as to whether English should become compulsory for all Italians, with Italian remaining as a parallel language or even being abolished.

Underlying the movement that is now discussed almost daily in newspapers and magazines is the feeling that the influence of the Italian language throughout the world has been dying for centuries and that Italians had better move fast if they are to be able to continue to communicate.

To speak Italian or not has even become a political issue, with some sociologists and authors claiming that English is now the language of Italy's technical and industrial ruling class and the proletariat must be given an equal chance of understanding what is going on.

The man who kicked off the debate was sociologist Francesco Alberoni, who said in a front page article in Italy's biggest newspaper, Corriere della Sera, that "Italian has ceased to be a universal vehicle of communication and is becoming a European dialect."

Italian is spoken today by 56 million Italians at home and 6 million abroad.

It is used on musical scores, offered in schools in 88 countries and comes 11th on the list of most widely spoken languages.

But Alberoni maintains that, as in Holland and Scandinavia, Italy should have English as a second language and thus become a bilingual nation.

"English is rapidly asserting itself as the only dominant language at world level... as Greek and Latin used to be," Alberoni says.

If Italians don't learn English, they will not be able to engage in a dialogue but only to "receive dumbly, like a mute or an illiterate," he says.

Many wealthy and influential Italians already speak English and send their children to English schools, creating two different classes, Alberoni says.

"A revolutionary act is needed to avoid this danger. The new Latin must be made available to all at all scholastic levels from the kindergarten to the university. It must be adopted as the current scientific and commercial language until widespread bilingualism is achieved," he said.

Rome University's language philosophy dean Prof. Tullio De Mauro agreed that there should be a second accepted language but that it should be Spanish or French, both easier to learn because of their common Latin roots.

Author Nanni Balestrini is all for abolishing the language of Dante, Boccaccio and Moravia.

"I would just have English for communicating abroad and local dialects for communicating among ourselves," he said.

Alberto Moravia himself said: "I think it is right that everyone should learn English, not just the sons of millionaires. English should not just be a privilege as it is today."

Author Manlio Cancogni, who lived and taught for four years in the United States, contradicted Alberoni saying: "The only thing I like about Italy is the language."

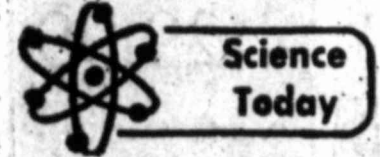

Maria Corti, Professor of Italian language history at Pavia University, said Italians have not even learned Italian yet. "In more than 100 years of unity and national education it has not yet become a language," she said.

In some areas of Italy, especially the poor south, up to 30 percent of the population speak only their own dialect and Italian is as foreign to them as English, Prof. Corti said.

In a recent survey some people shown 50 Italian words in the Abruzzo and Calabrian provinces were only able to identify eight, even though they were simple words like "table" and "apricot."

If Alberoni and his supporters ever get their way, the millions of American, British and other English-speaking tourists who swarm to Italy every year will see a widespread fallacy come true — if you speak to the natives loud and clear in English they will understand.

But then English speakers would no longer be able to plead lack of understanding when a policeman stops them for speeding or running a red light.

called a scanning transmission electron microscope.

It magnified a tiny field of atoms some 15 million times — enough to blow up a grapefruit into the size of the earth. The team added color to the black and white images from the microscope using color conversion instruments.

Atoms do not naturally have color because they are smaller than light waves, the scientists said. But heavier atoms appear brighter in black and white under the scanning transmission electron microscope.

The scientists arbitrarily assigned different colors to atoms of different brightness so they could more easily observe their movements in the time lapse films.

"The color makes it easier to see," Crewe said. "It's like an Atlas, assigning a color scheme to a map."

In 1970 Crewe took the first still photograph of individual atoms and in 1976 he and Isaacson developed the first black and white motion pictures of the atoms. Isaacson and Crewe plotted the changing locations of the atoms in the films and placed the data in a computer for analysis.

Isaacson said by carefully observing the films scientists can learn more about atoms and their behavior. He said new knowledge from the film observations may help scientists learn more about how atoms line up together, per se paving the way for new alloys through development of smaller computer circuitry only a few hundred atoms wide.

Better observation also may help scientists learn more about harnessing catalysts, which are clusters of atoms that trigger chemical reactions, Isaacson said. Catalysts are widely used industrially in oil refining, anti-pollution devices and manufacture of drugs and chemicals.

For the filming, the atoms are placed on a small grid coated with a super-thin background layer of an element, usually carbon. The grid is then put in a vacuum chamber in the microscope.

The microscope is covered with special vinyl to prevent sounds from shifting the atoms during filming. An electron beam is aimed at the grid, resulting in images appearing on a monitor.

The scientists film during offhours for quiet. All elevators in their laboratory building are shut off to prevent the magnetic field of the elevators from disrupting the atoms.

With time lapse photography of one minute for two hours of real time they can watch atoms moving about over a period of hours.

Cancer Cause Hinders Cure

BOSTON (UPI) — Children are winning more battles with cancer than ever before, but a specialist says the war will not be won until scientists discover the causes of the disease, still the leading killer of youngsters.

Dr. Giulio J. D'Angio of Philadelphia said no matter how good cancer treatment becomes, cancer warriors must find out how the disease starts so they can learn how to prevent the seeds of cancer from being sown.

He told an opening session of a national conference on childhood cancer that an expanded army of scientists is needed "for this last battle and preparations must be made without delay so that it can be put into the field."

"It is on these fronts that the really significant advances will be made."

Nevertheless, the director of cancer centers at Philadelphia's Children's Hospital and the University of Pennsylvania said major progress has been made in attacking the disease.

"The outlook for the child with cancer 20 years ago was appalling," D'Angio said in a paper prepared for the meeting. "Every child with acute leukemia was dead within weeks of the time of diagnosis, and it was a rare boy or girl with the so-called 'solid' tumors who survived."

Now, he said, more than half the children stricken with leukemia survive for more than five years.

THE CYCLE REPEATS

Rights Issue Goes Back Many Years

By ROBERT E. CULLEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chain of events is familiar.

In Russia, there is a crackdown against Jews. In the United States, American Jews bring pressure on the White House to do something.

The president publicly protests, condemning the Russians for human rights violations. The Russian leadership responds that it's no business of the United States. The crackdown continues.

Finally, Congress passes legislation revoking trade benefits previously negotiated with the Russians. The hope is that economic leverage can be brought to bear where moral protests were unavailing.

It could be a summary of the past year in U.S. Soviet relations.

But all of the incidents above occurred between 1870 and 1911.

The president who defended human rights was Theodore Roosevelt, not Jimmy Carter. The Russian leader who told him to mind his own business was Czar Nicholas II, not Leonid Brezhnev. And the trade agreement Congress revoked was not a product of the detente of the early 1970s. It dated from 1832.

This example from history illustrates the fact that this summer's chill in relations between Moscow and Washington was not unique.

Periods of cooperation and agreement between the two countries have been rare, particularly since the Russian Revolution of 1917.

But the historical pattern also indicates the United States and the Soviet Union may have a fleeting opportunity to improve relations in the next few months, an opportunity that could soon be lost.

The Soviets may have signaled they want to seize the opportunity by their decisions to drop a slander case against two American reporters and to seek only a suspended sentence for Frank Crawford, a U.S. businessman accused of currency violations.

Since the Russian Revolution, there have been several periods of detente between the two powers — with one notable example the joint fight against Nazism in World War II. That evaporated as soon as the Germans were crushed, and was quickly followed by the Cold War.

Another occurred after the Cuban missile crisis. President John F. Kennedy, having stood at the abyss with Nikita Krushchev, made a dramatic 1963 commencement speech at American University.

"No government or social system is so evil that its people must be considered as lacking in virtue," he said, adding that both superpowers "have a mutually deep interest in a just and genuine peace and in halting the arms race." That summer saw agreement on a nuclear test ban treaty, a Washington-Moscow "hot line," a ban on nuclear weapons in space, a $250 million grain sale to Russia.

But the brief flowering of detente was cut short by Kennedy's assassination, by expansion of the Vietnam War, and by Krushchev's ouster. New Soviet leaders, jockeying for power, adopted a cautious attitude toward the United States and embarked on a spending program to close a strategic weapons gap exposed in the Cuban crisis.

The most recent detente, during the Nixon Administration, brought the signing of a strategic arms limitation agreement, increased grain sales, and such joint efforts as the Apollo-Soyuz space flight.

That Nixon detente of the early 1970s is all but gone, the victim of tensions raised by Soviet actions in Africa, of Carter's human rights campaign and the Soviet crackdown on dissent, and of the inability, thus far, to come up with a second strategic arms agreement.

But relations have not deteriorated to the level of much of the post-World War II era, a period when confrontation and crisis snuffed out nearly every hopeful development.

The World War II era of cooperation ended with the Berlin crisis of 1948 and the atomic weapons race. The "Spirit of Geneva" in 1955 died when the Soviets crushed the Hungarian revolt in 1956. The 1960 summit was wrecked by the U-2 spy plane incident.

Then followed the Berlin Wall crisis in 1961 and the missile crisis. President Johnson's hopes for arms talks faded because of Vietnam and the Soviet crushing of the Czechoslovakian liberalization in 1968.

Nonetheless, Carter administration Soviet experts, speaking privately, find reason in this gloomy history to hope that relations can improve in the near future. They point out that past periods of detente have occurred when both sides had experienced leadership which was unaltered by political challenges from "hard-liners."

Market Wary Of 'Gambling Fever' Outbreaks

NEW YORK (AP) — Speculators have been placing some heavy bets lately on the future of the legal gambling business in this country.

Their hopes that the gambling industry can win approval to spread out from Nevada and Atlantic City, N.J., and accelerate its already strong growth rate have inspired a much-publicized bull market for stocks with links to the business.

Wall Street investors, of course, are always busy trying to catch a ride on the wave of the future. This has led to a steady succession of stock-market fads — bowling, mobile homes, CB radios and many more — most of which eventually collapsed.

But the fact remains that a lot of money has been made, at least on paper, in the gambling stocks. According to figures compiled by Barron's magazine, the aggregate market value of 12 gambling-related stocks increased by some $2.26 billion in the first eight months of the year.

Caesars World shares gained more than 600 percent in price; Resorts International and Golden Nugget each rose better than fivefold; Playboy Enterprises and Bally Manufacturing tripled; and Ramada Inns, Del E. Webb Enterprises and Harrah's more than doubled.

Most of these stocks have been heavily traded, contributing to a record pace of activity for the year to date on the New York Stock Exchange. Such a booming market would appear to be a stockbroker's dream, since it helps generate extra commission dollars, which are still a basic source of revenues for the securities industry.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two federal departments are working with the railroad industry and organized labor to develop vocational educational training programs. The aim of the program is to assist the industry in meeting its need for skilled workers, according to a joint announcement by the departments of Transportation and Health, Education and Welfare.

But many Wall Streeters profess wariness or downright concern over the periodic outbreaks of "gambling fever" that have hit the market. And in the past few days leading exchanges and brokers have limited or barred altogether any buying of the stocks on credit.

"With recent prices five or 10 times this year's low quotations, anyone who calls these things 'investments' probably thinks a lottery ticket is as sure a thing as a certificate of deposit," said William LeFevre, an analyst at Granger & Co., in his latest market commentary.

"Caveat emptor, where the gaming stocks are concerned, is perhaps an understatement."

Brokers involved in giving market advice are supposed to issue such warnings whenever they feel speculation has overheated.

The gambling stocks also have acquired a reputation for depressing the rest of the market whenever they have one of their periodic runups. Because they are so speculative, brokers say, they scare some conservative money managers away from the market entirely.

And even though the market is usually thought of as an amoral mechanism that concentrates on matters of dollars and cents and leaves value judgments to others, many brokers evidently feel more comfortable putting their customers into steel or computers or food than into gambling.

In fact moral, social and aesthetic questions, not just sheer economics, are closely involved in the industry's long-range prospects, just as they are in debates over whether gambling should come to Miami Beach, New York City or other possible sites.

In a report on the industry's history and outlook, which attracted wide attention in the financial world last month, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith analyst Harold Vogel observed:

"Although employment for thousands would undoubtedly become available from such investment, there is a moral question, answerable only by society at large, as to whether nationwide investment in gambling plant and equipment totaling billions of dollars is desirable.

"The answer will in part be reflected by the taxes imposed on the industry. High taxes would obviously reduce the potential return on investment, thereby making such investment relatively less attractive."

Shortage Of Labor Forecast

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — By 1990 the United States will have a chronic labor shortage instead of chronic unemployment, and the quality and mix of workers will change along with the employment pattern, a General Electric Co. public issues consultant says.

The views of Ian Wilson, an Oxford scholar, are contained in the autumn issue of Advance Management Journal, published by American Management Associations.

The coming decades also will see the development of a college-educated working class whose positive self-image will not tolerate authoritarianism or organizational rigidity in business.

Interestingly, Wilson thus contradicts the direful predictions of novelists like George Orwell ("1984"), and Kurt Vonnegut Jr. about the future of the economy and society in the English-speaking world. Both wrote about very authoritarian societies masquerading as "utopias."

Wilson does say, though, that failure of business leaders to "tune in to the values and aspirations of prime working age employees and reflect these in organizational changes ... can lead to a politicizing of the world of work and a loss of productivity by alienating what will be the best-educated work force in history."

The political problems of recruiting and maintaining a workforce likely will become more complex no matter how well management adapts to changing conditions, Wilson said.

In predicting a chronic labor shortage by 1990, Wilson said the growth of the American labor force will peak around 1980 and slow dramatically after that. He sees the growth rate of the work force dropping from the 2 percent a year we have become used to down to 1.1 percent after 1985.

The growth in the teenage labor market, a major factor in the present unemployment rate, will disappear entirely by 1980 and there will be an actual drop in the number of teenagers thereafter, Wilson believes.

Wilson also predicts a relative drop in the dramatic penetration of women into the labor force, which some experts have called the most revolutionary change in several centuries. However, Wilson says that women now in the work force are likely to remain there longer.

Wilson also said trends indicate that the proportion of working age males in the population should rise to 58.5 percent by 1985. The last firm figure is 51.6 percent for 1975.

Wilson bases this conclusion in part on the biological fact there normally more boys than girls are born so the cumulative effect of the baby booms of recent years will cause a bulge of males.

Even more important, Wilson believes a bigger proportion of men than of women will be entering the labor force. There will be no absolute drop in the number of women entering the labor force only the rate of increase.

Wilson believes the erosion of the so-called work ethic in the United States has been exaggerated, and he predicts it will remain a vital force in our society.

He said dislike for authoritarianism and the rigid patterns of past employer-worker relations often is mistaken for erosion of the essence of the work ethic, the personal commitment to, and pride and satisfaction in work.

But he conceded that the work ethic could be lost by a substantial degree if employers, private and corporate, attempt to live by rigid outmoded methods of recruiting, managing and motivating people.

He said finding better ways to motivate workers is the biggest task facing business.

Nixon To Give Veteran Speech

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon will make a Veterans Day speech Nov. 11 in the Mississippi congressional district where he got his best percentage in his 1972 landslide, American Legion officials say.

Harvey Pucher, commander of the Joe Graham Post 119 in Gulfport, said he had received word that Nixon "is willing and anxious to come to the Coast."

There was no immediate confirmation from Nixon.

The speech, scheduled for the Mississippi Coast Coliseum between Biloxi and Gulfport, would be one of the ex-president's few public appearances since he resigned in 1974.

In 1972 Nixon got 60 percent of Mississippi's popular vote — his best percentage in any state. In the 5th Congressional District, which includes Biloxi-Gulfport, he got 87 percent — his best total in any district in the country.

Paul Trehern, a Legion official, said Nixon was asked to speak at the Veterans Day gathering because the former president "has been a good friend to the veteran." Trehern said the invitation was extended through Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss.

Architecture Of Churches Hikes Fuel Bills

By PETER B. CAWLEY
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Special lighting and architectural features like high ceilings can enhance the solemn ambience of churches and synagogues, but they can also contribute to rising fuel bills.

"Most of them were built before there was any problem with energy," said Stephen J. Keating Jr., who runs a state program to teach energy conservation to priests, pastors and rabbis.

"Churches are very awkward in shape. Heat likes to rise and it doesn't do you much good when it rises 50 feet off the ground," Keating said.

Casting light down from a vaulted ceiling can cost a lot of candlepower, he said, and there is the precious organ — a delicate instrument which demands careful attention to heat and humidity exposure.

Keating's Energy Management Division has examined churches and scheduled workshops across the state with a one-third share of a $1.1 million federal grant to study energy conservation in Connecticut. The division also examines public buildings and museums.

Other portions of the grant are used by the University of Connecticut to work with homeowners and by the state Department of Commerce to acquaint small businesses with conservation measures.

The first conservation measure taught to officials at the 3,000 churches and synagogues in the state is a less prodigal use of heat, said George Early, a former church business manager who heads the church project in Keating's department.

"They'll have to tell their congregation to dress a little more warmly. For years and years our pilgrim forebears did it; there's no reason why we can't," he said. When church buildings such as schools or halls are unoccupied, their thermostats should go down to 55 degrees and the church shouldn't be coddled just because it may be a historic landmark.

"If the church is that old, it was seeing temperatures like that or lower during the earlier days," he said. Early said the organ doesn't present the problem that some church officials fear. He said manufacturers say organs can stand low temperatures as long as they're tuned for the temperature they will be played at and the heat is not turned up too fast for services.

Early also said church officials are fond of what he termed "over-illumination," though he conceded having brighter lights than one needs is a question of aesthetics for which churches and synagogues have unique guidelines.

But he said he advises churches to use clear bulbs in frosted fixtures, which can save a great deal of money over the long run.

These and about $15,000 worth of heating system changes are already saving one prominent state church — Hartford's Cathedral of St. Joseph — $35,000 an annual heating bill that used to run $100,000. Early said.

Dutch Millionaire's Retrial Postponed

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Dutch millionaire Pieter Menten's retrial on Nazi war crime charges has been postponed for three months so the court can investigate his claim that a former justice minister promised in 1952 that he would not be tried again.

The claim was rejected at Menten's 1977 trial, when the 79-year-old art collector was found guilty of killing 29 to 30 Jews in a Polish village in 1941 and sentenced to 15 years in prison. The Supreme Court found there were procedural errors and ordered a new trial.

HERE COMES THE JUSTICE — Henry Fonda smiles Tuesday during rehearsals of "First Monday in October," a new Broadway play concerning rivalry between the first woman to be named to the Supreme Court, who happens to be an arch conservative, and an incumbent justice, who is a banner-waving liberal. Fonda plays the liberal, Justice Daniel Snow. The comedy opens in New York in October. (AP Laserphoto)

Newspaper Chain Boss To Retire

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Paul Miller, who led Gannett Co. Inc. to its current position as the nation's largest newspaper group, will retire as chairman of the board on Dec. 31.

The 71-year-old Miller also has announced that he will remain as a director and as chairman of the executive committee and will continue to be active in mergers and acquisitions.

Allen H. Neuharth, 54, who succeeded Miller as president in 1970 and as chief executive of the Rochester-based newspaper and broadcasting company in 1973, will become chairman as well on Jan. 1, 1979.

Miller and Neuharth said the moves have been approved by the Gannett board of directors and will be detailed in proxy material that will go to shareholders in connection with the proposed merger of Gannett and Combined Communications Corp.

Combined Communications is a broadcasting, publishing and outdoor advertising firm headquartered at Phoenix, Ariz.

Miller, a native of Oklahoma, was an assistant general manager of The Associated Press and chief of the Washington Bureau when he resigned in 1947 to join the Rochester executive staff of Frank Gannett, founder of Gannett Co., Inc.

He had had AP assignments around the country as a writer and editor and as a corporate executive in New York.

Within a few years, Miller became executive vice president of Gannett and succeeded Frank Gannett as publisher of the Gannett Rochester Newspapers. In 1957, Miller became president.

He also succeeded Gannett as head of the Frank E. Gannett Newspaper Foundation, which makes contributions to worthy causes. The foundation owns more than $195 million in Gannett common stock. Miller will continue as foundation chairman.

When Miller took Gannett public in 1967, there were 27 Gannett newspapers in five states — New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Illinois and Florida. In the years 1968 through 1971, 21 newspapers were added nationwide and extending to Honolulu and Guam.

Now with 77 newspapers, Gannett is the largest U.S. newspaper group.

In 1950, Miller became the first former AP employee elected to the board of directors of the worldwide news cooperative. In 1963 he was elected president. He was re-elected annually for 14 years and later served in the same position when his title was changed to "chairman." He stepped down last year although continuing as a director ex officio.

Neuharth, a native of South Dakota, was assistant executive editor of the Detroit Free Press, of Knight (now Knight-Ridder) Newspapers, when Miller brought him to Gannett as general manager of the Rochester Gannett newspapers, Gannett's largest, in 1963.

Neuharth was elected as a director and executive vice president of Gannett in 1966. He recently was elected president and chairman of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Al-Islam Chief To Step Down

ATLANTA (AP) — Wallace Muhammad, leader of an estimated one million members of the World Community of Al-Islam, has announced that he will step down from his political post of chief imam of the predominantly black group.

Muhammad, speaking Sunday here, said, "I refuse to accept the authority of the chief imam. That's what you have to accept."

He asked followers to accept the leadership of a 17-member council of imams — local Islamic leaders.

Muhammad said he intends to remain active in the group — apparently primarily as a spiritual leader — and would spend some of his time writing.

The group also discussed the possibility of moving the group's headquarters from Chicago. Houston and Atlanta are two cities being discussed as possible relocation sites, said Hassan Shariff, a spokesman for Muhammad.

Conglomerate Stocks Regain Market Popularity

NEW YORK (AP) — Though their collective image took a severe beating a few years back, the diversified companies known as conglomerates have hung on to a prominent place in American industry.

At the moment, few observers foresee a return to Wall Street's conglomerate craze of the 1960s, when a good many companies went on acquisition sprees merely for the sake of making acquisitions.

In the siege of recessions and bear markets that followed, a lot of the shaky empires that were built up in those years collapsed or had to be at least partly dismantled.

But recently conglomerate stocks have shown signs of regaining some of their former allure for investors on Wall Street.

Conglomerates' continuing importance to the economy is evidenced by the brand names that still represent them — Canada Dry soft drinks (Norton Simon Inc.), Fruit-of-the-Loom garments (Northwest Industries), Kent cigarettes (Loews Corp.), Gibson musical instruments (Norton Corp.) and Paramount Pictures (Gulf & Western Industries), to name a few of the most familiar.

Actually, there is no "conglomerate industry." Business and securities analysts tend to group the companies together simply because they are too diversified to fit into any of the traditional industry categories.

"We use the term 'conglomerate' to describe those multi-industry companies commonly included in that grouping even though a 1960s definition of the term no longer is applicable," the brokerage firm of E.F. Hutton & Co. said in a recent report.

"The wheeling and dealing of flamboyant conglomerate users using 'Chinese paper' and accounting gimmicks to acquire multi-armed empires has been severely restricted since the 'good old days,'" wrote analyst Roland Williams.

Among present day conglomerates, he said, there are "no two even remotely alike or guided by the same destinies."

"The quality of companies, growth prospects and market appeal among conglomerates range from very high to very low. Some of the old-line multi-industry companies such as Minnesota Mining, Textron and TRW were only partially involved in the frenetic acquisition activity of the 1960s and required fewer adjustments in the post-acquisition digestion period."

Among the conglomerates formed in the 1960s that have survived, Williams noted that some are still struggling, but that others have grown into "solid organizations."

He also expressed the view that "diversification is a valid approach to corporate expansion and improved earnings stability."

The conglomerates' return to respectable status has been accompanied, as one might expect, by an improved showing in the prices of their stocks, many of which nosedived between 1968 and 1974.

In the 90 days ended Sept. 1, the Value Line Investment Survey reported, the average conglomerate stock price rose 11.5 percent, outpacing the 8.5 percent gain recorded by the Dow Jones industrial average.

Williams said some of this might simply reflect "bargain hunting in a good market." But he also suggested that it might stem from a new appraisal of the stocks by some investors who no longer regard "conglomerate" as an off-color word.

Pinball Becomes Faster

By WILLIAM P. MOORE
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pinball enthusiasts walking into corner bars and drug stores these days may find their favorite machines replaced by flashy, higher-priced digital contraptions.

The pinball machine has been revolutionized by the micro-processor chip, which allows for instantaneous digital readouts, faster action and increased reliability.

All of which may or may not be a plus for flipper fiends.

Pinball purists are all for the new, harder-to-cheat machines, but many amateur aficionados miss the erratic, eccentric old relics.

"They had more character," one player complained. His old favorite guaranteed him a free game if he slid a matchbook cover under the left leg and banged on the right side three times.

Where that machine once stood, now stands a digital machine with sparkling lights and musical bells, and a one-game-per-quarter price compared to the old two-for-a-quarter standard (two-for-a-nickel 15 years ago).

It's great for bar owners since cheating is reduced and the game itself has a memory by which he can check receipts against games played and games won.

It's great also for pinball manufacturers and leasing firms since there are far fewer breakdowns. A micro-chip can replace 50 integrated circuits and do away with 1,800 interconnections — the spot where most failures occur in electronics.

And for the competitive player, the new machines are faster and instantaneously compare his score to the highest score that day, that week, or ever on that machine. It can be a very humbling experience.

The microprocessor chips — six of them, each no larger than a piece of confetti — replace literally miles of spaghetti wiring, latches, coils and relays.

The chips derive from the electronic digital computers invented in the mid 40s, followed by the introduction of the integrated circuit around 1960 and then the MOS, or metal-oxide-semiconductor, process.

The MOS-LSI met the pinball machine through a cooperative effort of Rockwell International, Pittsburgh, and D. Gottlieb & Co., Chicago.

The chips are not simple to make. Through an intricate process of design and testing, the Rockwell engineers devise a computer "brain" capable of performing desired functions. This is translated into master drawings — 10 times the final size of the chip face — which are engraved on a photographic plate by needle-thin lights.

Then precision carriers reduce the drawings to the size of a 2- or 3-square inch wafer of silicon. Each wafer will contain about 100 circuit chips — each about the size of a capital 'O'.

Not that pinball machines are the only use. The microprocessor chips are showing up on car dashboards, cash registers and in the cargo manipulator arm of Rockwell's Space Shuttle Orbiter, a navigational satellite scheduled to orbit the earth in the 1980s.

Tom Herrick, a spokesman for the Chicago gamesmaker, hailed the chip as re-

Goats Helpful In Preventing Forest Fires

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The federal government has found that goats are useful and economical allies in the war against forest fires.

The Forest Service said goats were used in a two-year experiment to keep wildland firebreaks clear by chewing up brush and the program was a success.

And now, a herd of 800 Spanish goats in the Cleveland National Forest 50 miles east of San Diego will be increased to 2,500 beginning today.

Economics is what makes the proposition attractive. Not only is the use of goats cheaper than manpower or machinery, but the federal government does not have to pay for the animals or the herders who watch them.

Beene Bros., a private ranching firm, entered into a five-year agreement with the Forest Service in 1976 to herd the goats in the 400-acre Morena Goat Enclosure. In return, Rocky and Tommy Beene are allowed to graze the goats on federal land — firebreaks — free of charge.

The brothers sell the adult animals to "jobbers" who, in turn, market them for meat in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The government's investment in the program so far has been about $30,000, most of which went for manpower and fencing materials, according to Dave Jones, the Forest Service's recreation resources staff officer, who came up with the idea.

Fences must be built along the firebreaks to keep the goats from eating brush outside the cleared areas, Jones said.

Additionally, if enough goats escaped to form a herd or wild population, they would start crowding deer populations, which eat the same plants, Jones said.

A herder is required to be with the goats constantly to make sure the animals do not break through the fences.

Readers Offer English Abuses

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. — "My husband smokes like a fish," complained the woman in the supermarket the other day, which reminded me that another seminar in Overseas English might be in order now that a new school term is beginning.

Overseas English, you may recall from a previous simmering here in the stew pot, is delivering a glancing blow to the language so that everyday expressions and well worn cliches emerged slightly askew.

James Thurber, who lived in these esuriant parts, first discovered this phenomenon in a house maid named Della who bit the mother tongue with her eye tooth so that she seldom could see where the rest of the sentence was going. She regularly startled the famous humorist with questions like: "Do you want cre-tonnes in your soup tonight?" and "Shall I burn the refugees in the incinerator?"

Since I last wrote about this rare knack for putting a little reverse English on the Queen's English, a number of readers have written in, reporting on how our living language is fertilized in their area and enclosing documented evidence.

From La Verne, Calif., Clarice Kunz submitted a newspaper article on the "Taiwan Scene" that began: "QUEMOY, Republic of China — The crew that sicks in the throats of the Red Chinese is this little island just a couple of miles off the mainland in the Formosa Straits."

It's enough to make Edwin Newman swear off crawfish for life, especially in Chinese restaurants.

A Seattle basketball fan wrote that he heard a sportscaster predict his beloved SuperSonics would have a hard time in the championship playoffs with the Washington Bullets because "Slvin Hayes can come at you from any direction, he's gifted with perennis' vision."

A Fort Lauderdale, Fla., psychiatrist could hardly adduce a head memor's club at a coffee house, heard himself introduced as "a representative member."

Perhaps because of its French and Spanish heritage, New Orleans remains a treasure house of inventive neologisms. Not long ago, I saw an advertisement for a year ahead, my wife was quoted by a random reporter as part of the language with: "Oh Brigid, we couldn't remember what you looked like, but you look just like we remember you."

A customer once lectured Jimmy Brennan of the famous French Quarter restaurant that "tipping should be included in the bill, like the tip in France.
That way, it's a lot less painful." Then there is attorney Thomas G. Quinn, the always eloquent voice of the 9th Ward in New Orleans, who told a Senate subcommittee looking into urban crime patterns: "We got every kind of crime inaginable here in the 9th Ward; muggings, drugs, rape, gun law violations, unsuspected mothers."

Politicians seem to have a flair for this sort of verbal adagio. Tip O'Neill, the speaker of the House, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington he would "urn every stone" to get to the bottom of the Korean influence-peddling scandal.

Med Costs For Pets Run High

PLANO (UPI) — Schultz takes an insulin shot each day, follows a diet and exercises properly. He also is allowed in the house a lot.

Schultz is a 10-year-old dachshund, and an example of the medical help available for pets nowadays if the master is willing to pay the price.

Schultz, a member of the Joe Campagna family, was taken to a veterinarian when he began to lose weight and wet the carpet, something he had not done since he was a pup.

"The first vet told us there was nothing wrong with Schultz except he needed a special body-building dog food," Campagna said. "We knew our pet better than that, and a couple days later we took him to another doctor."

Gary Brantley of the Richardson Veterinary Clinic said he knew immediately there was something wrong with the dog. He ran laboratory tests — including detailed blood work — and kept the pet in the clinic.

"When the blood tests came back, my first fears were confirmed," Brantley said. "While studying at Texas A&M they sent unusual animal diseases to us on referrals from vets all across the state — just so we could get a look at them while we were studying. One case we studied was diabetes."

He said the blood sugar level in the average human and dog is from 85 to 120. But in both dog and human diabetes, it is much higher. When Schultz' blood was tested, his sugar level was over 400.

After confirming the disease, Brantley kept Schultz about a week in order to get him regulated, just like a physician does for humans. He wanted to set the diet and insulin dosage.

"Many people don't know it, but just about everything that can be done for humans can now be done for animals," he said. "The major factor is cost. Most people don't want to pay what it costs for many animals."

Brantley said during the past six years he had discovered diabetes in dogs on the average of about six cases a year. Of those, he said he was able to regulate the animal on daily insulin shots and a controlled diet without complications within about a year.

"We diagnose the disease in dogs about the same as in humans," he said. "And, we treat it about the same."

Schultz uses U40 insulin, and takes a half cc a day. Campagna, an insurance man, gives the Schultz a shot every morning about 30 minutes before the dog eats. A second meal is required about 12 hours later when the insulin peaks.

"The vet told us we would have to adjust our lifestyle to the needs of Schultz if we wanted him to regain his health and resume a near-normal life," Campagna said. "He has to maintain the same schedule daily — just as a human diabetic does."

The Campagnas admit they knew little about diabetes until their dog got it, much the same as families without a history of the disease have to do when someone in the family is diagnosed.

"We buy insulin, test-tape to check the sugar level in the urine and needles at the drugstore for Schultz just as a human diabetic would get his," said Mrs. Campagna.

"We've learned a lot about it because of our dog. Perhaps if more people knew about the disease, and that dogs could develop it the same as humans, they could take better care of their pets."

In less than six weeks, Schultz has shown much improvement, including regaining some of the weight he lost as a diabetic out of control.

Sheep Prefer Weed Tastes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists at the University of Minnesota have been using a panel of sheep to taste weeds.

Of 12 weeds tasted by the sheep, eight came through with high ratings and six of those actually were "apparently enjoyed" by the participants.

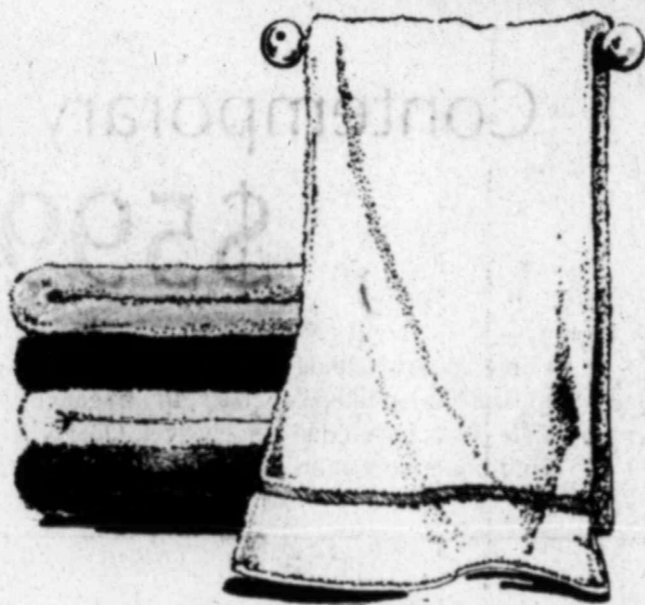

The weed tasting was described in a current issue of "Agricultural Research" published by the Agriculture Department.

One objective of the tests was to see if some common weeds scattered in newly planted alfalfa might not be as large a problem as many farmers suppose.

The researchers, Drs. Gordon C. Marten and Robert N. Anderson, reported that "some of the weeds found in hay fields are just as good as alfalfa if they are harvested at early stages of maturity."

Minnesota Nips Denver In OT

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — It took the steady foot of a placekicker who wanted for four years to give the Minnesota Vikings a 12-9 overtime victory over Denver Monday night in a nationally televised NFL contest.

Rick Danmeier, who was signed as a free agent by the Vikings and placed on the injured reserve list last season, booted a 44-yard field goal with 2:56 left in sudden death overtime to give Minnesota the triumph.

"It was just a matter of kicking the ball straight and getting it up in the air," said Danmeier, who had tryouts with Atlanta in 1974, Minnesota in 1975, Chicago in 1976 and the Vikings again in 1977.

Danmeier, trying to erase memories of a recently retired kicker Fred Cox, also kicked field goals of 24, 46 and 21 yards to give Minnesota a 9-0 lead after three quarters.

The Vikings felt they had the game won in regulation time, but a controversial 25-yard field goal by Jim Turner as time expired sent the game into overtime.

Earlier Denver scored on a 1-yard run by Jon Keyworth, but Alan Page blocked the extra point try.

Trailing 9-6, substitute quarterback Norm Weese engineered a 37-yard drive to the Viking 5-yard line with 11 seconds to play and the Broncos were out of time.

Weese rolled to his right and dropped for a 3-yard loss, but the officials stopped the clock with three seconds left, which gave Denver time to line up and get the kick away.

The Vikings were infuriated. Coach Bud Grant, in an uncharacteristic display of emotion, rushed onto the field to argue with referee Don Wedge and had to be restrained by Page.

"With three seconds to go how can you put a ball in play and get the kicking team on the field?" Grant asked.

Q. What were Ray Chester's totals last season with Baltimore? Why was he traded back to Oakland?

—Ethel Washington, Norfolk, Va.

A. Chester caught 31 passes last season, for an average gain of 17.9 yards, and three touchdowns. Chester was so critical of quarterback Bert Jones, both in the locker room and in print, after the overtime playoff loss to Oakland that Colt coaches didn't think the pair would be productive as a battery in 1978. Jones was happy to see him leave.

Q. Even though I am not a baseball fan, I can't for the life of me understand why Hack Wilson has never been inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Is it because of his drinking exploits that he has been kept out? Does he have any living relatives?

—Charles Wyzard, Jeffersonville, Ind.

A. Wilson had two great seasons, 1929 and 1930, for the Chicago Cubs. He hit 345 and 356 and knocked in 159 runs one year and 190 the next, the latter a figure that will probably never be surpassed. That was also the year he established the National League record for home runs at 56. He was 30 years old at the time, and otherwise he had an undistinguished career—except for the drinking.

Q. How many cities have had professional soccer franchises since the two leagues began in 1967? Has anyone estimated how much money has been lost altogether? Also, I understand the sport is in financial trouble in England. Is this so?

—G. L. Janeway, Passaic, N. J.

A. At last count 42 cities have had franchises, some of them more than once, and total losses are near the $100 million mark.

Indeed, the sport is suffering in England, the home country. The prestigious Lloyd's Bank Review just concluded a study of the English leagues and predicted there would soon be a super league of 16 healthy clubs (instead of 22 to 24 in each of four divisions), with the rest playing on a semi-pro basis. The way has already been shown by the Scottish League, which broke into a premier circuit of the top 10 teams and is faring well.

Idle Alabama Hangs On As AP, UPI Leader

By A.J. Wire Services

When Warren Powers paid Washington State $55,000 to break his contract so he could succeed Al Onofrio as the head coach at Missouri, his friends were startled.

After all, Missouri's schedule shows the Tigers start off against Notre Dame, Alabama, Mississippi and Oklahoma. With luck, they said, Powers could be 1-3 after the first four weeks of the season. With luck, they said, Powers could still have a squad after the first two weeks.

The surprising Tigers are 1-0 now and ranked No. 11 in the nation in The Associated Press college football poll after stunning Notre Dame 3-0. The loss dropped the defending national champions from fifth place to 15th.

Alabama and Arkansas held on to the top two spots in the poll of a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Alabama received 51 of 63 first-place votes and 1,247 of a possible 1,280 points.

Alabama was idle last weekend but beat Nebraska in its season opener two weeks ago.

In United Press International ratings, Alabama received 30 of 39 first-place votes and 558 total points from the 42-member coaches board to hold on to the No. 1 spot. Oklahoma remained in the No. 2 spot while Arkansas grabbed the No. 3 position.

Missouri took over the No. 10 spot in UPI voting. Michigan moved up two places to No. 4 and Southern Cal, a 17-9 winner over Texas Tech last week, also climbed two spots to No. 5.

Six coaches from each of the nation's seven geographical regions make up the UPI ratings board.

On the AP list, Arkansas, which opens its season Saturday, received 11 first-place ballots and 1,139 points. The other first-place vote went to Penn State, who slipped from third place in the pre-season poll to fifth.

Oklahoma climbed from fourth to third with 1,044 points after defeating Stanford 35-29, and Michigan, which hasn't played yet, moved up from sixth to fourth.

Texas holds down seventh on both lists. Texas A&M is ranked 10th on the AP version but is rated a notch lower by the UPI voters.

Ohio State is sixth in the AP rankings with 891 points. Southern Cal is eighth with 780, and UCLA is ninth with 777.

Muhammad Ali: 'I Realize It's The Last Fight'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Muhammad Ali said his fight against Leon Spinks Friday night is the most important of his illustrious career because "I realize it's the last fight."

"I couldn't go on much longer if I wanted to," said the 36-year-old Ali after an unimpressive workout in his preparation for a bid to become the first ever to win the world heavyweight championship three times.

Ali and Floyd Patterson are the only fighters ever to twice win what probably is the most coveted individual championship in sports. Ali first won it by stopping Sonny Liston in seven rounds in 1964, then, after having the title taken away for his refusal to enter military service in 1967, won it again by knocking out George Foreman in the eighth round in 1974.

Ali, who has twice before announced his retirement only to change his mind, said Monday that he would have quit the ring "if I didn't get another chance at Spinks or if I didn't think I could beat him."

This time, Ali's talk of retirement has the ring of being genuine. He badly wants to leave the fight game with the title he lost to the 25-year-old Spinks on a split decision last Feb. 15 in Las Vegas, Nev. And another fight after Friday's, should Ali win, would be risky at his age.

If he beats Spinks, Ali would consider himself champion of all the world, even though the World Boxing Association is the only one of the two major boxing governing bodies that recognizes the fight in the Superdome as a title bout.

The World Boxing Council, which withdrew title recognition from Spinks for failure to live up to an agreement to fight Ken Norton, considers Larry Holmes champion.

"Holmes is a paper champion," said Ali. "I will go down as the first man to win the title three times. It will be no contest. He won't be as good as he was the last time. He can't be."

Ali, who is back in full voice for this fight after refusing to talk to the media for 2½ months leading up to the first fight, foend time to recognize Spinks youth and ability.

"If he is as good as he looked the first time," said Ali, "he'll be around for five or six years. He's a good heavyweight champion because he beat me."

All looked less than good Monday in six rounds of sparring with amateur Tony Tubbs.

Tubbs scored repeatedly with jabs and quick rights to Ali's head, and at one point during the session, Ali's long-time aide Bundini Brown shouted, "Don't make a habit of catchin'."

Another time, Ali said through his mouthpiece, "He's tired," and a fan yelled, "He's doing all the work."

After the workout, Ali said, "My goal today was defense. I was making myself tired. I was pushing myself. My reason is to toughen myself in case I have to take a couple (hard punches) in the fight."

"He was flat," said cornerman Angelo Dundee. "I'm glad he got it out of his system today."

Pirates, Giants Falter

By The Associated Press

The pennant hopes of the Pittsburgh Pirates and San Francisco Giants may be turning into so many shattered dreams thanks to untimely losing streaks and the winning ways of the teams they are chasing.

The Pirates, the hottest team in baseball less than a week ago, lost their fifth straight game Monday, a 10-3 pasting by the first-place Philadelphia Phillies. That dropped Pittsburgh five games behind the National League East leaders.

The Giants also fell five games back in the NL West by losing to Los Angeles 7-2. The Dodgers have beaten the Giants three times in eight days and San Francisco has lost five of its last six.

Pirates' Manager Chuck Tanner isn't ready to give up the chase, not with 18 games left, including five more with Philadelphia.

"We can't throw in the towel," said Tanner, whose Pirates won 21 of 23 games to climb back into the East race. "Anybody who does is a quitter. We still got a chance. We've just got to win more games than they do."

Pittsburgh started off well against Steve Carlton, getting three runs and seven hits in three innings. Willie Stargell had a two-run homer in the third, but

Carlton wasn't sure he would be able to pitch until gametime.

"I've kind of regressed," said the left-hander of his sore pitching shoulder. "I don't know what happened. Maybe I slept peculiar, with my arm over my head. I've been keeping the shoulder as quiet as possible."

Giants Manager Joe Altobelli was grim after Davey Lopes drove in three runs and Ron Cey belted two homers to beat San Francisco 5-1 on Monday.

"We have no options left," he said. "We have to win the next one with them, then have a strong homestand."

Expos 3, Cardinals 1

Ross Grimsley retired the first 22 batters before George Hendrick lined a double to break up the perfect game. With the victory, Grimsley, 18-9, who signed with the Expos as a free agent last winter, tied Phil Niekro for the league lead in victories and equaled the Montreal club mark set by Carl Morton in 1970.

Cubs 9, Mets 4

Bobby Murcer had three hits, including a three-run homer, while extending his consecutive hit streak to eight at-bats, two short of the NL record. Dennis Lamp went the route with a 10-hitter.

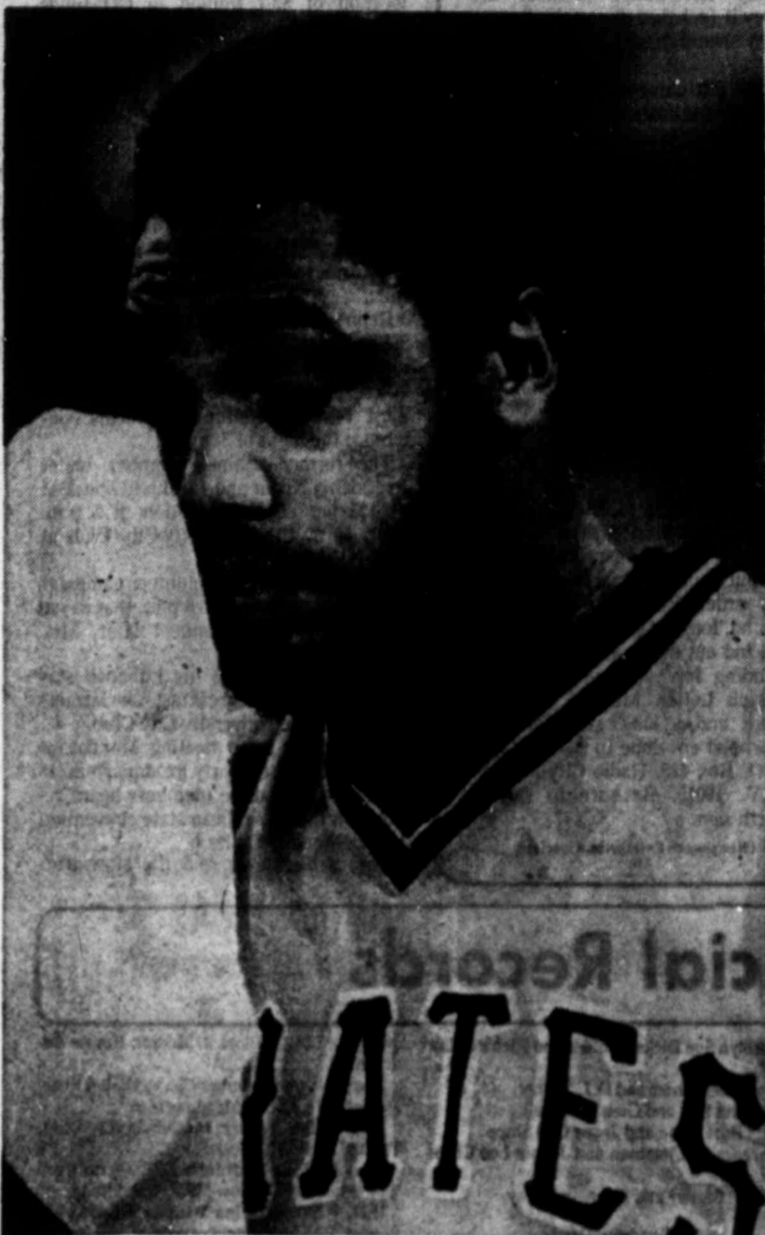

Reds 9, Astros 8

Cincinnati scored six times in the seventh, with George Foster's grand-slam homer the big blow, to take a 7-6 lead. Houston jumped ahead 8-7 in the top of the ninth on consecutive home runs by Bruce Bochy and pinch-hitter Jesus Alou. Then Ken Griffey pinch-hit a two-run single in the bottom of the ninth to vault the Reds to victory.

Braves 7, Padres 2

Gary Matthews slammed five hits, including a homer and a double, and Larry McWilliams won his eighth game in nine decisions since joining the Braves in mid-July.

Rangers Blank Angels

ARLINGTON (AP) — Ferguson Jenkins cracked the top 10 list of baseball's all-time strikeout leaders, but the California Angels downplayed the three-hit, 1-0 shutout the Texas Ranger hurler picked up against them Monday night.

Jenkins, with the help of a RBI single from Mike Hargrove in the fifth, allowed only four base runners and twice retired nine straight batters. His five strikeouts raised his career total to 2,584, past Bob Feller (2,581) and Warren Spahn (2,383) and made him the ninth best strikeout artist in history.

In one dressing room, Jenkins was calling the performance "a real high point for me. To get my name in the record book with such great players as Bob Feller and Warren Spahn is a big thrill for me."

Angel Manager Jim Fregosi wouldn't agree that Jenkins had a good performance against his team.

"I didn't think he pitched well at all. We should have had three home runs," said Fregosi, whose team fell 1½ games behind Kansas City in the American League West race with the loss.

Gary Linares sent Al Oliver to the left field wall in the first. Lynn Bostock sent Juan Beniquez to deep right center in the fourth and Ken Landreaux sent Bobby Bonds to deep right in the fifth. The wind held all three up for nothing more than long outs.

"Whoever built this place, they ought to cut off his fingers so he could never build nothin' else," complained Bostock.

Jenkins, who raised his record to 15-8, agreed that Arlington Stadium is a pitcher's park.

"They hit three balls that might have been out if Mother Nature hadn't been on my side. But that's always been a part of this ballpark," Jenkins said.

Paul Hartzell, 6-10, gave up 10 hits but scattered them. The Rangers had runners on first and second in the third and fourth innings but couldn't get them far.

Texas got its run in the fifth. Kurt Bevacqua singled, but was out on Toby Harrah's sacrifice bunt attempt. Harrah advanced to second on Bump Wills' slow grounder and scored on Hargrove's sharp single to center.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unless there is some type of profit motive at stake, you're not apt to extend yourself too far for others tomorrow. Compensation shouldn't become more important than friendship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your judgment in matters other than financial is quite keen tomorrow. Where dollars and cents are concerned, you could make some reckless moves.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be careful of your demeanor tomorrow. Your actions could be misinterpreted by others. Do nothing erratic that companions will find offensive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have a tendency to jump to conclusions tomorrow. This could create some unnecessary problems for you. Judgment should be based only upon complete evidence.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In handling material matters tomorrow you might have difficulty finding the middle ground. You may either be extremely wise or extremely foolish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Temper your ambitions tomorrow with a philosophical outlook. If you make achieving too important you could use measures you won't be proud of later on.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't let hunches supersede logic in commercial affairs tomorrow. Be practical and businesslike so that you can turn a tidy profit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you show partiality tomorrow you could hurt the feelings of one who is fond of you. You might even descend to the bottom of this person's list.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be on your toes in situations relating to your career tomorrow. Something you feel is a snap could prove to be quite difficult and complicated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't expect others to do your work tomorrow if you fritter your time away frivolously. Chances are they'll feel that if you don't care, why should they?

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Pie-in-the-sky ventures may be profitable for others tomorrow, but not for you. Stick to solid blue chip enterprises.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your mate may be a trifle difficult to understand and get along with tomorrow. Take extra pains to be patient and forgiving.

CDAC Suggests Dividing Funds

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Community Development Advisory Committee Monday recommended that the Lubbock City Council allocate $156,600 in CD funds to residents of the Stubbs School Area in southwest Lubbock and the Meadowbrook Villa Area in northeast Lubbock.

Earlier this year the money was allocated to the Overton South Neighborhood, which recently returned the funds to the city after it was decided a better use could be found for the funds.

Although the main purpose of Monday's CDAC meeting was planning the allocation of $3.7 million in CD funds which become available June 1, the 23-member committee found itself weighing requests for the money from six neighborhoods.

The city's Urban Renewal Board supported using the $156,600 in the Stubbs School Area to make low interest government loans available for housing rehabilitation.

The Stubbs area, which recently was designated a CD area, is bounded by 34th Street, Slide Road, Quaker Avenue and 42nd Street.

The Urban Renewal recommendation of how the funds should be allocated sparked the board's first controversy of the year.

The Rev. A. L. Davis, a board member, questioned why Urban Renewal vice chairman Tommie Stevens and Urban Renewal director Orville Alderson felt the money should not be spent in the Phyllis Wheatley Addition in southeast Lubbock.

Davis said the addition is the location of "the most substandard houses in Lubbock. Phyllis Wheatley is in grave need of something being done to it. More than 17 years I've worked to get something done" without results, Davis said.

Alderson explained that the Phyllis Wheatley addition would require "heavy demolition and removal of houses" at an estimated cost of $2.3 million "to do what is needed to be done."

tains about 950 single-family residences, contains about 40 houses which would have to be demolished, with the remainder considered rehabilitable.

The Urban Renewal Board favored CD funding for the area because the blight is at a reversible stage.

Bob Gschwend Jr., who requested CD funding for the Meadowbrook Villa Area, said that neighborhood contains about 65 homes, about 40 percent of which are owned by low or fixed income persons.

Located west of Estacado High School, the Meadowbrook Villa area also will become eligible for low-interest federal loans if the CD funds for the area are approved.

Local GOP Reveals Plans For Butz Visit

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County Republican executive committee members Monday night laid plans for the Sept. 27-28 Lubbock visit of former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz.

Republican county chairman Ruth Schiermeyer said Butz has been scheduled to appear at a county GOP fund-raiser reception prior to his speech at the West Texas agricultural chemicals conference the night of Sept. 27.

The former cabinet member under Presidents Nixon and Ford will speak at a $125 per couple reception at 5 p.m. Sept. 27 at the University-City Club at 2601 19th St.

He will meet party volunteer campaign workers from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. that day at a place to be determined later, Mrs. Schiermeyer said.

Butz will conclude his Lubbock stay with a 7:45 a.m. breakfast for farmers Sept. 28 at the University-City Club.

In an hour long meeting Monday at 2606 Boston Ave., party headquarters, 15 executive committee members heard reports on the Republican state convention last weekend in Dallas.

Mrs. Schiermeyer said the state convention reflected in attendance and in the number of resolutions proposed statewide, the initiative the party is taking to elect more candidates this year. "I saw very few empty seats on the convention floor, and that is very unusual," she said.

An estimated 3,000 persons attended the Dallas Convention Center gathering.

The executive committee approved a 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. telephone operation beginning Monday at party headquarters to pinpoint support in the county.

Volunteers will be calling Monday through Saturday in an attempt to determine voter preferences on various area and statewide candidates.

Committee member Bill R. Neel won approval of a resolution opposing "plans of the Carter administration to build up the strength of Communist China by giving them sophisticated equipment like the C-130 military aircraft, computers, radar, anti-submarine warfare equipment, satellite reconnaissance equipment and other advanced technology."

Texas Drivers Sitting Lower

AUSTIN (AP) — Most Texas drivers are sitting lower than ever before — and it's dangerous, says a preliminary study by Texas A&M University.

A brief summary of the study was published Monday in a newsletter by the Governor's Office of Traffic Safety.

Road design and traffic engineering assumes that a driver's eye is 3.75 feet higher than the pavement.

The A&M study, however, shows that 80 percent of the compact and smaller passenger car drivers and 73 percent of the drivers of intermediate and full passenger cars drive at less than this standard eye height.

This standard height is used in calculating the length of no-passing zones and the design of curves.

A&M doctoral candidate Wiley Canigan, who worked on the project, said: "The specifications for the lengths of no-passing zones should be changed. The current standards don't allow sufficient time for lower cars to return to their lane. The sight distance is just insufficient."

"And in the design of curves, the areas of passing will need to be extended to take into account the differences the new cars have made in drivers' vision."

Eye-height measurements were obtained by taking photographs of 160 vehicles.

Strokes Called TIAs

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please write something about little strokes? I would like to know: What causes them? How to prevent them? What else are they called? What medications, if any, can you use? Must one stay on medication for a period of time and must one live in fear of having a big one? Are there any warning signs?

DEAR READER — A stroke refers to an area of damage to the brain. The "big one," as you refer to it, is the one everyone recognizes which may cause loss of speech, paralysis of body parts and other major and obvious symptoms.

Little strokes are sometimes called transient ischemic attacks, TIAs. They may cause exactly the same symptoms as a major stroke but the symptoms may be of very short duration, after which the person may recover completely normal functions.

Since there are large parts of the brain which are even silent, as far as we can tell in terms of function, it's possible to have many small areas of damage in the brain and never know it. That is one explanation for the personality changes that gradually develop in some people as they get older.

The area of the brain involved in one's personality has gradual changes from multiple episodes of damage to small areas. There are probably not very many real warnings of an impending little stroke other than the same symptoms that you see with the big stroke which may occur just momentarily, such as paralysis of the arms and legs or something of that nature.

Some authorities think little strokes are caused by clots that may be in the artery in the neck and then gradually let small pieces of the clot break off and be carried with the blood stream to lodge in small arteries in the brain. Others think they are caused by tiny cells we call platelets, that are normally in the blood, clumping together in an abnormal fashion and causing transitory blocking.

There is evidence that a daily small dose of aspirin will help to prevent blood clotting or to prevent the clumping of the small platelet cells that I mentioned.

Usually this medicine has to be taken for prolonged periods of time or perhaps for life in an individual who definitely has such attacks, or for that matter in individuals who have recovered from a "big stroke."

The best way of preventing these problems relates to preventing fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. Disease of the arteries can cause strokes if the arteries involved are in the brain, or they can cause heart attacks if the arteries involved are in the heart.

The fatty-cholesterol deposit abnormality is the same. It's just the location that's different.

To give you more information on strokes I'm sending you The Health Letter number 2-5 Strokes: Cerebral Vascular Accident — Cerebral Thrombosis. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Church Panel Plans To Boycott Bank

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Council of Churches says it will close its checking account with the Continental Bank of Illinois because the bank refuses to bar future loans to South Africa.

The council said it objected to "the support that loans provide for apartheid and white minority rule." The association of 31 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches said the account had an average balance of $75,000 last year. The Rev. W. Sterling Cary, past president of the council's governing board, said the bank participated in loans of $82 million to South Africa, including money for airplanes.

Cardin Initials Claimed Phony

WASHINGTON (AP) — French designer Pierre Cardin has put his initials on everything from ties and towels to televisions, but lately those little PC's have been showing up where they're not supposed to.

"PC here in Thailand. PC in Singapore. PC in Hong Kong," said Cardin pointing to a scrapbook of photographs and clippings of labels on clothes that he did not make. "I am so sad because the customer is being cheated."

Cardin, who said he has lost millions of dollars from such commercial counterfeiting, met last week with Robert Strauss, President Carter's special trade negotiator. Cardin urged support for a new international effort to stop the flow of fraudulent merchandise.

Still, those legitimate PC's on more than 350 items produce about 250 million dollars in sales annually for the dapper, 66-year-old designer.

Scientist Says Vitamin C Can Prevent Rust

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Someone has found yet another use for vitamin C. It can prevent rust.

Many scientists still question some of the medical claims for vitamin C, sometimes touted as a panacea for conditions ranging from colds to cancer.

But a scientist said today there is no doubt the vitamin, also known as ascorbic acid, is a good corrosion inhibitor for metal surfaces.

Nicholas T. Castellucci, a research scientist with PPG Industries Inc., of Springdale, Pa., reported the discovery at the national meeting of the American Chemical Society.

Castellucci said ascorbic acid could partially replace chrome-related processes in metal treatments.

Stock Prices Dip Slightly To 904.80

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined slightly today, backing off a bit after what analysts described as a disappointing showing by the market on Monday.

Losers held a 5-3 lead over gainers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, and the noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 2.94 at 904.80.

Analysts said high hopes for this week had built up among investors after the Dow Jones industrial average reached its highest level in more than a year last Friday.

But after an early 6-point advance Monday, the Dow turned back and finished unchanged for the day.

The economic news background was varied. The action of the money markets Monday seemed to confirm that the Federal Reserve had sought to tighten credit further.

On the plus side, analysts cited apparently improved prospects for Senate passage of a bill calling for gradual removal of price controls on new discoveries of natural gas.

Most energy stocks were fractionally higher.

Del E. Webb Enterprises dropped 1 1/2 to 30 1/2 in active trading. The company said preliminary operating results for July and August indicated its third quarter earnings would be down as much as 30 percent from the like period last year.

The NYSE's composite index lost .13 to 60.25. But the American Stock Exchange market value index, already at a new high, gained another .18 to 176.48.

Volume on the Big Board slowed to 14.86 million shares as of noon-time, against 19.14 million at the same point Monday.

Indictments Name 24 In Pot Scheme

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — New Jersey authorities today announced the indictment of 24 persons in an alleged multimillion dollar conspiracy to smuggle marijuana from the jungles of Colombia to small airports on the Eastern seaboard.

"The magnitude of the smuggling scheme was extraordinarily large," said state Attorney General John Degnan. He said none of the marijuana was intended for use in New Jersey but rather for other states such as Connecticut and Florida.

Degnan said the alleged conspiracy took place in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Florida, Alabama, North Carolina, Illinois, New York, Connecticut, California, Ohio, Columbia, Jamaica, the Bahamas, the island of Aruba and in New Jersey.

"The amount of cash that changed hands is almost mind-boggling," said Degnan.

He pointed out, as an example, the operators of the smuggling operation bought airplanes for $100,000, paid pilots as much as $275,000 a flight and bribed authorities with $120,000 in the Bahamas when two men were seized.

But the attorney general said the profits were also immense.

The street value of marijuana is $700 a pound here, he said, while it can be purchased for $10 a pound in Colombia.

Degnan said police in the various states were in the process of making arrests, and nine men already involved in the conspiracy were in custody.

Officials said the massive investigation involving state and local police and federal authorities was initiated when an airplane delivered 4,200 pounds of marijuana to the Trenton-Robbinsville Airport on May 10. That shipment, valued at $3 million on the street, was delivered.

But acting on information from the airport authorities early on July 8, state police arrested six at the facility, seized a DC-6 airplane and 18,070 pounds of the drug.

The attorney general would not comment on whether organized crime was involved in the smuggling operation.

Korchnoi Holds Advantage In 21st Game

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Challenger Viktor Korchnoi and defending champion Anatoly Karpov adjourned the 21st game of their world chess championship match after 42 moves today, with Korchnoi holding a slight advantage.

Korchnoi, playing white, opened with a pawn to queen's bishop four. The Soviet defender sealed his 43rd move after five hours of a queen's gambit declined, a variation both grandmasters played in three previous games, including the 13th, which Korchnoi lost.

Play will resume Wednesday. The challenger trails Karpov in the tournament four games to one. The first player to win six games in the competition will take a $350,000 purse. The loser gets $200,000.

The game started with the same dull line as their ninth game but took a turn into the 10th move when Korchnoi went into an early attack.

"I'm not sure yet, but I think white is better," said British grandmaster Raymond Keene, Korchnoi's chief second.

"White probably has a winning chance with his better position," said international master and chess author Harry Golombek of Britain. Dutch international master Lodewijk Prins agreed and said that although the position remains to be thoroughly analyzed, Korchnoi "has all the chances and they are as clear as glass."

On the 10th move, Korchnoi sent a pawn to queen's rook three and the 27-year-old champion replied with a rook to king one. The move allowed Korchnoi to launch an attack and trigger an exchange of pieces starting from the 15th move, with Korchnoi losing his two bishops but capturing his rival's knights.

Following is the move-by-move of the 21st game:

Biko Becomes African Symbol

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A year ago today, Steve Biko died naked on a prison floor and became South Africa's first black martyr. His name a year later is a household word all over the country and a symbol abroad of the victims of white rule in southern Africa.

For the conservative Afrikaners who dominate the South African government, the 30-year-old founder of the Black Consciousness movement represents "swartgevaar," the black danger they see threatening to engulf them.

For Biko's fellow blacks, his life and death dramatize their frustration under the apartheid policy of racial separation.

Biko died after three weeks in police detention, of extensive brain damage, a government autopsy said. Police officers and other government employees testified during a 15-day inquest that he was kept naked in a cell in Port Elizabeth and was chained to a grill for two days and nights in an interrogation room, mummified, under blankets wet with urine and unwilling or unable to eat or drink.

Magistrate Marthinus J. Prins in his verdict said Biko probably suffered his fatal head injury "in a struggle with members of the security branch" on Sept. 7. Four days later he had collapsed and was frothing at the mouth, but a government doctor said he was in "satisfactory" shape to be moved to Pretoria, 750 miles to the north. So the police transported him by road, in the back of a Land-Rover, still naked under blankets. He died the next day.

The magistrate absolved the police, ruling: "The available evidence does not prove the death was brought about by an act or omission including an offense by any person."

The storm of foreign condemnation that followed for the South African government's racial policies, its security police and the security laws which permit indefinite imprisonment without trial had one good effect. Twenty other political detainees died in police custody in the 20 months before Biko's death, and nothing was done about any of them. Three have died since, and six policemen have been charged with murder, three security officers have been transferred to new posts and three other policemen have been sus-ended.

However, Biko's death also resulted in a government crackdown on virtually every black organization in South Africa, the closing of two black newspapers and the detention of more than 50 black leaders, some of whom have been released in the past few months.

Justice Minister James T. Kruger, who said Biko's death "leaves me cold," came under fire from opponents of the government in Parliament and the English-language press. But this strengthened his position within the ruling Afrikaner-dominated National Party. Party congresses lauded his handling of the case.

Kruger continues to silence any black individual that criticizes the government and outlaws black groups nearly as soon as they are formed. He put a leader of the big Soweto township south of Johannesburg, Dr. Nthato Motlana, under a muzzling ban for the month of September for fear he would make an inflammatory speech today. Police arrested 11 friends or relatives of Biko on Monday, and the English-language press was warned to be careful in its anniversary comments.

Moslem Sect's Spiritual Head Still Missing

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Imam Moussa Sadr, spiritual leader of Lebanon's Shiite Moslems, has not been heard from for nearly three weeks, and a leftist newspaper said Iran's secret service may have kidnapped him because of his opposition to the Iranian government and support of Moslem foes of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Sadr, the religious leader of Lebanon's 800,000-900,000 Shiites, has not been heard from since he left Beirut Aug. 25 on an official visit to Libya. Officials said that the Lebanese government has been trying for two days to get information about him from Libya, Italy and France.

The Libyan government reported Sadr left Tripoli with two aides on an Alitalia plane for Rome Aug. 31, but his arrival in the Italian capital has not been confirmed. Lebanese government sources said.

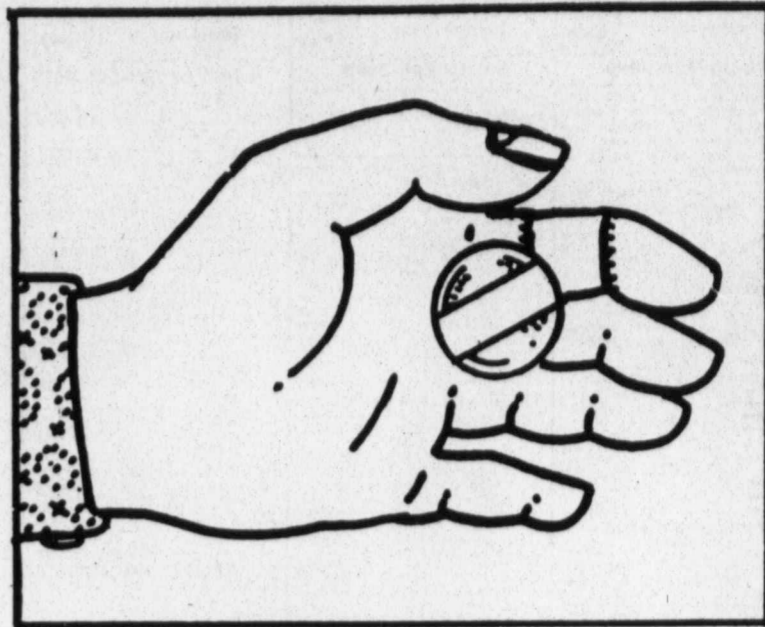

The sources said Sadr's wife, who is undergoing medical treatment in Paris, has not heard from him since he left Beirut.

The leftist, pro-Libyan As Safir said SAVAK, the shah's secret police, are suspected of kidnapping Sadr because of his open support of Ayatullah Khomeini, the exiled Iranian Shiite leader who has been inciting Iranian Moslems to demonstrate against the shah and his reform program.

Sadr, a native of Iran who has been the religious leader of the Lebanese Shiites since 1960, was stripped of his Iranian citizenship last year by the shah's government because of his support for Khomeini.

Meanwhile, the Syrians, who have been policing a 23-month-old armistice between Christians and Palestinians in Lebanon, reported sporadic volleys of machine gun fire in Beirut Monday night.

A spokesman for Yasser Arafat's Palestinian military command said the predominantly Shiite town of Nabatiyeh in southern Lebanon came under heavy shelling from Christian gunners in neighboring Marjayoun.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Magician's Coin Trick Explained

By SHARI LEWIS

You can't imagine how embarrassing it was to grow up as a magician's daughter. First of all, my father was so much fun, all my dates wanted to be with him rather than me. And then there was that trick called the Miser's Dream!

My father pulled coins out of everybody's nose, ears, chin, elbows. I had the feeling that everybody knew it couldn't be that easy to make money, but Daddy did it so well that all I could see was coins falling from smiling faces. Now you can do it, too.

You will need: a length of clear cellophane tape and a coffee can full of nickels.

Before the trick: Wrap tape tightly around one nickel and then around your pointer finger. The coin must hang loose behind your hand, but should show below your hand. In your other hand, hold the can full of nickels.

With the coin hidden behind your fingers (and making sure your audience can only see the back of your hand) reach upward and outward, and at the same time flick your wrist in the same direction.

The nickel will flip up. Close your thumb on it and you will seem to have "found" the coin in the air.

Now, pretend to throw the coin into the can. As you throw your hand in the direction of the can, let go of the nickel. It will fall back to the hidden position behind your fingers. As you make your "throwing" move, rattle the coins in the can as if the coin you've "thrown" has fallen in.

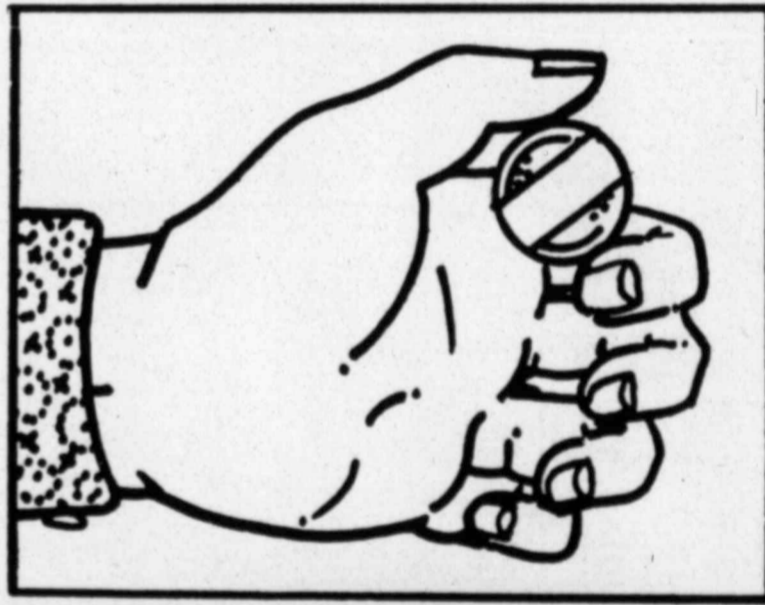

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Somewhere in this sentence is a misspelled word. Can you find it.

ANSWER: Misspelled is one — it has too "Ss," not one!

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: If a basketball team was chasing a baseball team across the stadium, what time would it be? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Castro Journeys To Ethiopia To Take Part In Celebrations

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Cuban President Fidel Castro arrived in Ethiopia today on his first visit to the African continent in more than a year, Addis Ababa radio said.

The broadcast, monitored here, said Castro's arrival in the east African nation was announced to the country by Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam, chairman of the ruling Dergue, who was addressing a mass rally.

Castro was invited to participate in the Marxist governments' celebrations marking the fourth anniversary of the overthrow of the late Emperor Haile Selassie and his regime.

Mengistu told the participants at the anniversary rally not to leave, and drop off to Bole International Airport to meet the Cuban leader and bring him back to the festivities, the radio said.

Also taking part in the celebrations was Robert Mugabe, co-leader of Rhodesia's patriotic front guerrilla alliance. There was speculation that Mugabe and Castro would hold talks on the escalating war in southern Africa.

Addis Ababa radio did not indicate whether Castro, whose government maintains an estimated 30,000 combat troops on the continent, would visit other African nations on his tour.

But there was speculation that Mugabe and Castro would meet to discuss the deteriorating situation in Rhodesia, where a biracial interim government is struggling against escalating guerrilla attacks.

Castro's government has an estimated 12,000 troops stationed in Ethiopia, 18,000 men in Angola, and hundreds of advisers in a dozen other countries including Mozambique, which borders Rhodesia.

Castro's policy of sending combat troops to take part in African wars has raised serious concerns in Western capitals, particularly the United States, which sees the soldiers as surrogates for Soviet expansionism.

The policy is often cited as the major reason why the Carter administration has not moved to establish relations with Havana, although Castro has indicated he is interested in such an improvement in relations.

Castro's government became heavily involved in Ethiopia last year following Somalia's invasion of Ethiopia's southeastern Ogaden region.

The Cubans sent a total of 19,000 soldiers who, backed by $1 billion in Soviet military hardware, were instrumental in defeating the Somalis in March of this year.

During Castro's last trip to Africa last spring, he reportedly attempted to arrange a Marxist federation among Ethiopia, Somalia and South Yemen across the strait of Bab el Mandeb, but the Somalis rejected the idea.

In addition to the Horn of Africa, he also visited Angola and Mozambique.

While Ethiopia and Cuba maintain cordial relations as the result of Havana's continuing military assistance, there have been major policy differences between the two governments.

Storm Causes Injuries Aboard Luxury Liner

ABOARD THE QUEEN ELIZABETH 2 (AP) — An unusually powerful North Atlantic storm slammed the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2 midway in its voyage to New York, causing serious injuries to several passengers and crewmen.

Waves up to 50 feet high and winds up to 72 miles an hour buffeted the 66,851-ton ship Monday.

The injuries were caused by sudden lurches that sent passengers and furniture flying. One crewman was reported to have suffered a broken collarbone; another a severely gashed leg when a refrigerator pulled loose from a wall in the galley.

An officer said 18 passengers were treated in the ship's hospital for sprains and bruises. One woman suffered a shoulder separation, he said.

One elderly man was catapulted from his chair by a sudden tilt of the ship and slammed head first into a wall. He suffered a severe bruise.

Waves broke every four to five minutes over the bow of the 963-foot-long vessel, which carried 1,213 passengers who paid between $800 and $3,175 each for the 5½-day crossing from Southampton, England, and air fare back. It also carried a crew of 1,000.

Capt. Doug Ridley termed the storm exceptionally severe. "Some of my senior officers have never seen one this bad," Ridley said. "I've only seen it two or three times in my life."

One of the ship's senior officers said a "wall of water" bent the rails around the ship's bow.

The QE2, which normally makes about 33 mph, could manage only about 7 mph against the storm. It sailed only 60 miles in 12 hours. Ridley announced over the loudspeaker system.

The captain said there was no way to estimate arrival in New York. The ship had been due to dock Wednesday morning but was running from 12 to 24 hours behind schedule. It diverted from its normal trans-Atlantic course and headed south to escape the weather.

Despite the constant pitching and rolling, life aboard the ship went on normally with restaurants and bars nearly full. But clothing and souvenir shops were closed after the storm tossed merchandise about.

The ship's kitchen was littered with broken crockery. In one first class lounge only 26 of 80 china teapots remained intact, and a waitress remarked: "Those who want tea better get here on time."

The bandstand of the lounge was a litter of fallen music stands and scattered drums.

Imports To Japan Rise 14.1 Percent

TOKYO (AP) — Licensed imports to Japan in August on a dollar basis rose 14.1 percent from a year earlier to $7,005 billion, and the gain from July was 5.1 percent, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry said today.

Licensed imports, which reflect import trends about one or two months ahead, on a yen basis were down 12.8 percent from a year before to 1,429 trillion yen and down 3.2 percent from July.

The ministry based the August dollar figures on a conversion of 203.97 yen to one dollar. In August 1977, the conversion rate used was 266.99, and in July the rate was 221.48 yen to the dollar.

Danish Bull Sires 220,000 Offspring

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Soenderjylland's Jens will leave 220,000 survivors when his productive life is ended next week.

And that's quite a bit of bull.

Soenderjylland's Jens, which means "Jens of southern Jutland," is a bull of the Danish black-and-white milking variety. Now 11 years old, he is the nation's number one breeding bull with 220,000 offspring. Some believe this to be a world's record.

But old age has come to Soenderjylland's Jens, and he is scheduled to be put to death at the Royal Veterinary and Agricultural High School in Copenhagen next week. His skeleton is to be set up as a monument at the high school's Institute of Animal Husbandry.

Pinochet Gives Transition Plans

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Augusto Pinochet says his military government will appoint a National Congress in a year or two as its second major step to return Chile to civilian rule.

The 62-year-old army commander outlined his plans for the transition in a speech Monday on the fifth anniversary of the coup in which Marxist President Salvador Allende died.

Pinochet said a two-house congress will be appointed soon after the new constitution is approved in a plebiscite. A commission named by the president recently completed the draft of the constitution, and it is now being studied by Pinochet's four-man junta and other influential groups in the regime.

The plebiscite, expected next year or in 1980, will begin a six-year transition period. Pinochet said. Congress will be appointed during the transition, but after it all members of the lower house, some of the Senate and probably the president will be elected.

Pinochet criticized opponents demanding election of a special assembly to write the new constitution and the inclusion of alternative constitutional proposals in the plebiscite.

"Perhaps they have forgotten that our country arrived at the brink of civil war, at the doors of falling forever into Communist totalitarianism, and reached the gravest moral and socio-economic chaos of its history, without giving up elections at any level — a formula that these people now proclaim as the true panacea," he said.

The president complained about the Carter administration's pressure on him to expand political freedom.

"We cannot hide the fact that the resurgence of interventionist tendencies behind new faces, which today predominate in influential sectors of United States power or opinion, have not favored the relations between two sovereign states," he said.

He said his government recognizes that it must cooperate in solving the 1976 murder in Washington of exiled Chilean Socialist Orlando Letelier. But he did not reverse his refusal to extradite his former police chief and two other former officials indicted for the killing.

Saleh Escapes Murder Try

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — North Yemen's new president, Ali Abdulla Saleh, escaped unharmed from a recent assassination attempt in San'a, the capital of the Red Sea republic, the independent Beirut newspaper An Nahar said today.

The report quoted Arab diplomatic sources as saying the president's aide was killed in the attack. The aide was not identified.

The paper said the assault aggravated tensions between conservative North Yemen and South Yemen, the only leftist-governed state in the oil-rich Arabian peninsula.

Relations worsened between the two Yemens when the North accused the South of engineering the assassination of former North Yemeni President Ahmed al-Ghassmi in June.

South Yemen's own president was executed by pro-Soviet leaders of the ruling National Front, who accused him of trying to mount a coup two days after the Ghassmi murder.

An Nahar said the slain South Yemeni president's followers in the army had since taken to the mountains and were fighting a guerrilla war against loyalist forces backed by the Soviet Union and Cuba.

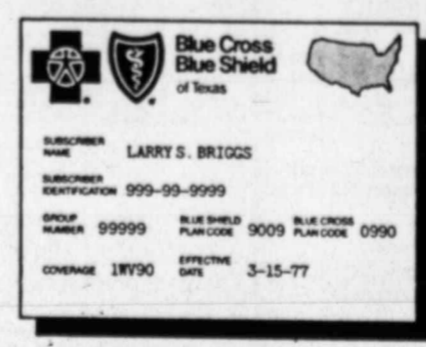

Fertilizer Export Pact Arranged

TOKYO (AP) — C. Itoh and Co., a major Japanese trading house, said today its U.S. unit, C. Itoh and Co. (America) Inc., has arranged the export of phosphate fertilizer to China.

Under the arrangement, Phosphate Chemicals Export Association Inc., of the United States will ship $13.2 million of fertilizers, including 900,000 metric tons of phosphoric acid, a C. Itoh spokesman said.
