WASHINGTON (AP) - Bill Milliken, a close Carter family friend, got a $10,000 gift for his youth programs from a busi-nessman he provided assistance in seeking a large federal grant, it was reported

Milliken put the businessman, George Zamias, in contact with Richard Fleming, a deputy assistant secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, The Washington Post said in today's editions.

Milliken, who came to the Carters' attention through his programs for povertystricken and disturbed young people, acknowledged he asked for and took the donation, The Post said.

Zamias, a Johnstown, Pa. developer, said he gave it, and Fleming said he set up a meeting for Zamias with HUD officials, the newspaper reported. All denied any wrongdoing.

Fleming could not be reached to con-

the HUD action grant program, the newspaper said.

Ford Supports Warren Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Presiduring the commission's investigative dent Gerald R. Ford told Congress today that the Warren Commission would have broadened its inquiry into the murder of President John F. Kennedy had it known of CIA plots to assassinate Cuban leader

But he said he doubts that such an inquiry would have altered the commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald killed Kennedy and that he acted alone.

Ford, one of the three still-living members of the commission, testified before the House assassinations committee. The other two, former Kentucky Sen. John Sherman Cooper and former Kennedy adviser John J. McCloy, were to appear later in the day.

Ford said the commission knew nothing about CIA plots to assassinate Castro and CIA contacts with organized crime figures as part of those plots.

"Had the Warren Commission known of assassination plots directed against Castro, this might have affected the extent of the commission's inquiry," he said. "It certainly would have required the commission to extend its inquiry into those operations. But I don't think they, in and of themselves, would have changed the conclusions."

Panel Gets HEW Data On Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) - An effort to cite Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano for contempt of Congress is being dropped now that information sought by a congressional committee has been obtained from HEW

Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., said Wednesday that although the information was edited, it apparently confirms indications that some "name" drug companies placed their labels on generic drugs actually made by other firms and then charged higher prices for them.

Gore, a member of a Commerce Committee subcommittee investigating drug prices, said he will recommend that the contempt proceedings against Califano

"By supplying this additional information and by promising to draft regulations to deal with this problem, Secretary Califano has demonstrated his desire to cooperate," Gore said.

Califano is proposing new labeling requirements aimed at forcing drug companies to play a larger role in the manufacture of drugs that are to be sold under their brand names.

The subcommittee, looking into the firms' claims that they currently have their own employees in the generic plants to supervise the manufacturing process, subpoenaed forms the companies file with HEW.

workers say they will be glad to support President Carter in a stepped-up fight against inflation, but not if it means restraining wage increases.

Carter went before a convention of the United Steelworkers union on Wednesday to seek organized labor's cooperation with a tougher anti-inflation program that he said would be announced soon.

"Sure, he'll get cooperation from us," said Domenick DiPilato, a delegate from North Adams, Mass. "That is, to the degree we can give it to him. But he's got to do something in regard to prices, espe-

Carter confirmed for the first time that his administration was preparing a new inflation program, which he said would strengthen "our limited arsenal of weapons against inflation."

He promised the program will be "fair" to labor. "At the same time, it will be tough. I will ask for restraint and some sacrifice from all," he said.

The program reportedly centers on vol-untary guidelines that would seek to limit wage increases to about 7 percent a year and price increases to less than 6 percent. Inflation currently is running at an annual rate of nearly 10 percent.

Labor leaders say such a program would be unfair to unions because the guidelines would be more effective in olding down wage gains than prices.

Federal Judge Refuses To Block Movie, Novel

NEW YORK (AP) - A federal judge has refused to block distribution of a movie and novel based on mystery writer Agatha Christie's brief, unexplained disrance in 1926.

U.S. District Court Judge Lawrence W. Pierce on Wednesday dismissed two lawsuits brought by the late writer's estate and by her only child, Rosalind Christie Hicks, who argued that the defendants were infringing on her right of publicity.

The right of publicity covers use of a personality's name or likeness. A recent U.S. Court of Apppeals decision involving the estate of rock 'n' roll singer Elvis Presley established that the right of publicity is transferrable and inheritable.

However, in dismissing the suits, Judge Pierce concluded that because the "Agatha" plots were fictional and not biographical, "this court finds that the First Amendment protection usually accorded novels and movies outweighs whatever publicity rights plaintiffs may possess and for this reason their complaints must

Time Now Threatens raising prices and wages just to protect Full Employment Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Humphrey-Hawkins "full employment" bill, which appeared ready to breeze through Congress earlier this year as a final tribute to the late Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, now faces a less certain future.

"Time is the major enemy right now," said one Senate aide, who asked not to be identified. "If we had four months to go to the end of the session we'd be sitting

Senate leaders have set Oct. 14 as the target for adjourning the session, and backers of the measure say they expect a filibuster, although no opponent has yet announced plans to lead one.

Last week, Sen. Robert C. Byrd, Democratic majority leader, told the Senate there are 22 "must bills" to be dealt with including tax cut legislation and President Carter's energy proposals — but the Humphrey-Hawkins bill was not among

However, a spokesman for the majority leader said Wednesday that Byrd hopes to bring up the bill, which sets a goal of reducing national unemployment to 4 percent by 1983.

Last year, Carter gave supporters a big boost when he endorsed a revised version. Then, one aide said, when Humphrey died last winter the bill looked ready "to go through (Congress) in a

Since then, though, several obstacles have cropped up:

- Two Senate committees with jurisdiction over the bill disagreed sharply over key provisions, failing to agree on a single version for floor debate.

- The threat of a filibuster makes Byrd less willing to bring up the bill this late in the session unless there are 60 votes to choke off debate.

- The mood in Congress is growing more conservative, according to most observers, with members expressing increased concern about inflation and government spending. Such concern appears to conflict with the original aim of the measure, which was to declare jobs the nation's top priority. The measure, named for Humphrey and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., breezed through the House of Represent atives earlier this year on a vote of 257-142 and it is strongly backed by a coalition of labor and civil rights groups. But unlike earlier versions, the measure does not mandate any programs to meet the unemployment goals. While the Senate Human Resources Committee passed a bill similar to the to better safeguard their homes and themselves in the event of a tornado.

And while the tornado season is still several months away, what the story had to say. about facts and fancy associated with the deadly twisters is worth considering.

The major finding, of a continuing series of studies by a team of Texas Tech professors is that dwellings could be better "anchored" and bound together to withstand severe wind stress.

ACCORDING TO the report, entitled "The Tornado: An Engineering-Oriented Perspective," for the sum of about $100 a person can have a safer home.

The three professors, Drs. Joseph Minor, director of Tech's Institute for Disaster Research, James McDonald and Kishnor Mehta, note that for a small outlay most homes could be "reinforced" with special metal stripping connecting side walls with the roof and foundation.

Such "binding," the profs' report indicates, tends to keep the dwelling from "exploding" during high winds.

ALTHOUGH IT is difficult to put such stripping on homes already built, if the cost Vice President-General Manager J. C. RICKMAN JAY HARRIS

In this respect, the Lubbock tornado also turned up in its early stages of study a new concept. Before the massive twister here, it popularly was believed that one should get next to a wall or area nearest the corner from the direction the tornado was approaching, often the southwest.

Studies here showed that those persons who took refuge in the center of their homes, preferably in closets or the bathroom and protected by mattresses or such, escaped with no harm or minor injuries.

THE RESOLUTION, adopted over stormy protest at the Fort Worth convention last weekend, gives Republican nominee Bill Clements the only opening he's had to chip away at Hill's obviously growing strength.

Whether the GOP challenger can do better with this thin hope than Leon Spinks did against Muhammad Ali remains problematical.

What the Democratic delegates did do, though, is line their party up for a toe-to-toe fight with the still-young Tax Revolt.

With pay and fringe benefits accounting for a majority of state and local budgets, encouraging collective bargaining for public employes is tantamount to handing an unreformed alcoholic an opened bottle of Scotch.

Ironically, the delegates' ill-considered resolution came on the same weekend that a tenured

Police, firefighter, garbage worker, teacher, ad nauseum, strikes over the country recently show how serious is the threat that collective bargaining poses to self-government and a reasonable lid on the cost of public services,

THE POSTAL SERVICE is a classic example of the way labor unions that grow too powerful abuse the public trust.

When Congress killed the U.S. Post Office in 1970 and replaced it with a semi-independent agency, it was thought that applying business principles to moving the mails would make the service more efficient.

The fatal flaw in this plan was giving the postal labor unions power to thwart modernization. Postal wages then were in line, maybe a bit on the low side, with comparable pay in the private

SINCE THEN, though, average pay has shot from $10,200 to $19,500 under the new pact-and the 1970 figure includes fringe benefits, whereas the new figure is exclusive of even better fringes.

With personnel costs accounting for 84 percent of the Postal Service budget, it's easy to see why rates already have jumped from 6 cents to 15 cents for a first-class letter with some critics predicting it'll go to 36 cents by 1984.

Pay and benefits aren't the only reason why personnel costs are getting out of hand under collective bargaining, though.

The postal workers unions' "no layoffs" stance and their veto power over management's ability to reassign employes to other duties make it impossible to modernize the system as it should be.

THIS IS THE SORT of thing that happens when public employes have the power of collective bar-

In private industry, management at least has the incentive to hold down wage and benefit settlements because of competition. But management negotiators with public employe unions know that the employes comprise a powerful special interest group to be reckoned with at the next election. Also unlike private industry, which can at least raise prices on its products or replace workers with automated equipment, negotiators at City Hall, the school house or the state capitol have no alternative but to raise tax revenues to pay for higher costs of government.

YOU JUST DON'T replace teachers, firemen or policemen with a machine. Nor can the public turn to a competitor for service if these public employes decide to strike for the benefits they are demanding through collective bargaining.

Since Hill didn't embrace the resolution-and since voters don't take party platforms all that se-riously anyway-it's doubtful Clements can turn this issue to much advantage.

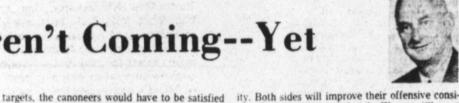

But the resolution by "Hill's people" does renew moderate-conservatives' old suspicions about just how liberal Hill is and it could give him trouble unless he takes pains to repudiate it fully

Housewife Is Worth At Least $1 Million

ITEM: DONALD JOHNSON, a "timber managkeep your home going, educate your children. er" in Grants Pass, Ore., has just won $375,000 from a New York jury deciding a suit he had brought against Pan American Airways and KLM Royal Airlines as "just compensation" for services he and his children lost when his wife, Beverly, was killed in a collision of two jets in the Canary Islands last year. Johnson had sued for $1 million and in my judgment, even that total would have been modest compensation for the multitude of services Beverly had performed.

Item: The American housewife who stays at home and is paid $000.00 a week for taking care of her husband and youngsters a minimum of 12 to 14 active hours a day, seven days a week, is a dwindling species. But she still numbers in the millions and her performance of at least 12 different occupations without any pay in dollar terms-and even in the face of scorn from her jobholding sisters-cries out for recognition.

HER CONTRIBUTIONS can be easily translated into a minimum of 99.6 hours of hard work per week, at least $11,607 a year at merely today's $2.65 per hour minimum wage.

As Seth C. Macon, senior vice president of Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co., among the 15 largest stock life insurance companies in the U.S., headquartered in Greensboro, N.C., put it to me, "Even in Greensboro, a widower will be lucky to find a suitable housekeeper for $4 to $5 an hour, or even more, depending upon the specific duties involved."

ITEM: If you sew a magnificent wardrobe for yourself and if you're a (nonpaid) housewife, all that counts toward the nation's output (gross national product) is what you spent for materials. trimmings, thread, etc.

Not a penny of your contribution in labor is included. But if you had bought that same ward-robe, every dollar you spent—a giant part of the cost rellecting the labor involved in sewing the clothes—would be included in GNP.

My life as a working-for-pay woman is much more rewarding than yours.

Outside of the obvious fact that this is unjust and wildly discriminatory against you, what else does it mean?

(1) It underlines again that "wife insurance" is among the most neglected fields in insurance in this era. If you, a wife and mother, were to die prematurely and leave young children as well as a husband, it would cost him from $18,000 to $25,000 just to replace your regular services (love and devotion not counted).

IT IS NO more than common sense for a wife to be insured so that her major services could be replaced, if necessary.

(2) "And if you're a working wife and mother,"

Macon insists wife insurance "is equally vital for you, so your earnings can be replaced to help maintain your family's standard of living. (3) As for your contribution to our GNP, that must be recognized by development of a conserv ative total representing the nonpaid services of the wife and mother-when (and if ever) we finally tackle the task of revising this obsolete ba-

Mountains, the summer slips imperceptibly into fall, the seasons merging as softly as the hills merge with the afternoon haze. September is like April, a month of endings and beginnings, a time for putting away and getting out. This has been a good summer for Rappahan-nock County. God knows the farmers had it coming. Our principal crops are apples, peaches and hay, and while we don't raise enough of any of

BUT THIS HAS been a perfect summer in the orchards—plenty of rain, almost no hall, the trees heavy with fruit. This week, the growers are picking in earnest, and it looks very good.

The cattle raisers, for their part, have as little to complain about. Beef prices are pleasantly high, and next week's feeder calf sale in Culpeper will see $50 heifers.

Twenty-one families in our county still raise lambs, and they're doing fine, too.

Twenty-one families in our county still raise lambs, and they're doing fine, too.

Just about everyone in Rappahannock raises a vegetable garden. With summer's end, the gardens are a bedraggled mess, overgrown with weeds and crabgrass, but they have been wonderfully productive for the past two months.

There must be a moral in the persistence of crabgrass. It is the Third World of the kingdom of plants, stubborn, shabby, wildly reproductive; it claws into the rocks and red clay and shoulders the blue grass aside.

IF THERE WERE any profit in selling crabgrass seed, our people would be pushing wheelbarrows to the bank. The summer hasn't altogether been paradise.

This has been the worst year we can remember for bugs and stinging things. Swarms of gnats made the gardens unbearable for hours on end. We have been plagued by grasshoppers, mealy bugs and Japanese beetles. The beetles were the worst. They attacked a green gage plum tree and feasted on the fruit; they were followed by squadrons of white-faced hornets, the meanest and most vicious of them all, and we surren-

M. STANTON EVANS, my brother columnist, has a theory that this summer's bug epidemic is a result of the guv'mint's blundering efforts to regulate effective pesticides out of the market.

Maybe so, but I have a notion that the forces of nature are stronger even than the forces of bureaucracy. Things go in cycles. Over at Colonel Carney's place, they plucked a five-inch horned hickory caterpillar off a pine tree, an enemy as beautifully sinister as Darth Vader in "Star Wars."

It has been five years since they had seen one. Whence came this armored foe? There are mysteries all around us, miracles in weeds, wonders in the wings of a moth.

LONDON (AP) — The British government is giving priority to research into the use of the waves that pound its coasts to provide energy when coal and North

Day in and day out, waves sweep in from the North Atlantic and dissipate their force on the beaches and cliffs of northwest Scotland and southwest England. Waves from the North Sea wash the east coast of Britain, which has a total coastline of about 4,500 miles.

'Surrounded as our island is by energetic waves, wave power probably offers a greater potential for the United Kingdom than any other natural renewable energy source," says Alex Eadie, Parliament undersecretary of state in charge of the quest for alternative energy sources.

Experts have worked out that a 600mile stretch of wave energy machines set off the southwest coast of England and off the northwest of Scotland to capture the energy of the Atlantic could, in principle, provide about half of the U.K.'s present electricity demand."

The country's 235 power stations, using such fuels as coal, oil, gas and fissionable material, had a total output capacity of 67,431 megawatts of electricity at the end of 1976, the latest year for which figures are available. A megawatt is equal to a

Life-Saving Drugs Now Available

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR ATLANTA (UPI) - For thousands of Americans, a supply of little-known experimental drugs stored at the national Center for Disease Control is their main defense against death or serious illness.

A distribution system operating around-the-clock is capable of delivering these life-saving agents to any part of the nation within a matter of hours.

The direct beneficiaries of the CDC's guardian drug system are the thousands of children and teen-agers with deficient immune systems, and other thousands of

Science Today

Americans who come down with exotic diseases that cannot be successfully treated with routinely available medicines.

All of these drugs bear the investigational label. They are not licensed by the Food and Drug Administration, and are available only through the CDC by special clearance from the FDA.

One of them, varicella-zoster imm globulin, is stored in vials at the CDC and is used in children and teen-agers with leukemia or lymphoma who have been exposed to chickenpox, an ordinarily mild disease that can be fatal to cancer

It also is used to prevent chickenpox in people with congenital or acquired immunodeficiency, those under immunouppressive medication, and in the new ly-born of a mother with chickenpox.

Dr. Stephen R. Preblud, of the CDC's immunization division, says the globulin does not confer long-lasting immu but is highly effective in protecting against one exposure to chickenpox.

It also has to be administered very soon after exposure to the disease. "We don't think it will do any good unless it is given within 96 hours of exposure," he said. He said ZIG, as the drug is known, "is the only thing we have right now," to prevent chickenpox infection in immuno-deficient children.

The CDC has provided ZIG since January 1972 to more than 1,500 children within 72 to 96 hours of exposure to chickenpox. The drug was prepared from the blood plazma of healthy donors convalescing from herpes zoster infection (shingles), an infection in adults caused by a virus similar to chickenpox.

Preblud said, however, the supply of ZIG fell far short of the need because there were not enough donors. In an attempt to meet increasing demand, he said CDC contracted with the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute and State Laboratory Institute of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health to provide the drug from plasma obtained from blood

The new system of supply has allowed the CDC to provide the globulin to more people but Preblud said "there still is a very fixed set of criteria for those who can get it. It is still in limited supply."

"Death from chickenpox itself after ZIG has been given is very rare," he said. "It also appears to be very successful in preventing complications from chicken-

The CDC also has stockpiled a formidable array of other investigational drugs to combat a wide variety of illnesses that occur infrequently in this country, in-cluding African sleeping sickness, South American sleeping sickness, amebic dys-entery and Oriental sore, to name but 1 few, all caused by parasites.

Dr. Dennis D. Juranek of the CDC's parasitic diseases division, says an average of 2,500 to 3,000 patients are treated with these drugs annually.

seems the most promising.

Earlier this year Britain's Natural Energy Center, an independent group of engineers who advocate exploitation of re-newable power, reported that the energy crossing a 1,700-mile imaginary contour, 10 miles off Britain's northwestern coast, is about 500 million megawatt hours a

Each raft would be about 100 yards long and 50 yards wide and consist of pontoons hinged together.

As the pontoons move up and down on the waves, the motion would be used to

In an operational system, a single raft might generate two megawatts of electricity, according to Wavepower Ltd., the company the 68-year-old inventor set up to develop the device.

A series of rafts, stretching over a length of 15 miles a distance of 5 to 10 miles offshore, might provide the equivalent of a 500-megawatt power station, Wavepower said.

Another plan involves the "Salter duck," developed by an Edinburgh University research team headed by Stephen Salter.

Group Cites Lawmakers' Extra Salaries

WASHINGTO (UPI) - Congress has at least 48 members who draw two government salaries and some who draw three, says the National Taxpayers Union.

The nonpartisan taxpayers lobby said recently that five members either turn over the additional income to charity, return it to the U.S. Treasury, or have it deducted from their congressional salary.

Of the "double dippers" in Congress 18 get military pensions or pay in addition to their congressional salary; 14 receive veterans' compensation, and 16 collect federal, state, city or county pen-

The three "triple dippers" are Rep. George Danielson, D-Calif., who collected $878 for the fourth quarter from the state retirement system and $492 a year veterans disability in addition to his salary; Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa. who got $1,390 for fourth-quarter state retirement and $492 a year veterans disability; and Rep. Harold Johnson, D-Calif., who received $1,938 fourth quarter state retirement pay and $1,060 fourth quarter Social Security System funds.

Of the members who receive military retirement pay, Sens. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Rep. Keith G. Sebelius, R-Kan., turn over the money to charity. House GOP leader John Rhodes gives his to the Treasury Department with instructions to use the money to reduce the national debt.

Rp. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., returns his monthly $1,109 check, which accounts for more than 100 percent veterans disability, to the Treasury.

Rep. Eldon Rudd, R-Ariz., has his FBI pension deducted from his salary. The others who receive military retirement are Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, Rep. James Lloyd, D-Calif., Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., Rep. John Flynt, D-Ga., Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii; Rep. J.F. Al Ullman. D-Ore., and Rep. J.A. Young, D-Texas.

In addition to Danielson, Eilberg and Bennett, those getting veterans benefits are Rep. Ike Andrews, D-N.C., Rep. Mark Anrews, R-N.D., Rep. Silvio O.

Conte, R-Mass., Sen. William Hathaway, DMaine, Rep. Frank Horton, DN.Y., Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., Rep. Robert Michel, D-III., Rep. William Nichols, D-Mont., Rep. Checker Brancel, D.N.Y. and Ala., Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., and Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa

Besides Rudd, Danielson, Eilberg and Johnson, those getting federal, state, county or local pension benefits are Reps. ## Pardon Blamed In Ford Loss NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Ford says she and former President Gerald Ford believe his pardon of Richard Nixon after the Watergate affair was the main reason Ford was not elected in 1976.

In her new autobiography, excerpted in the October issue of Ladies Home Journal, the former first lady said that when Ford pardoned Nixon in September 1974 her husband told her it was "the right thing to do.

"And he's never changed his mind" she writes, "though we both believe the par-don, more than anything else, cost him the 1976 election.'

Explaining the reason for the pardon, Mrs. Ford quotes Hugh Sidey's book "Portrait of a President," as saying "it rested upon the simple convictions of a plain person that the nation needed to put Watergate behind it and that a sick and burdened man needed now to be left

She contends that "it was the plain truth, but the public didn't buy it."

And even though the new president's popularity "plummeted almost over-night," Mrs. Ford said her husband "was not resentful.

It was just 18 days after the Nixon par-don that her doctors discovered she had

Mrs. Ford, who has suffered for years with a pinched nerve and arthritis, also tried to put an end to "public conjecture about my health" that has stemmed from her 1974 breast cancer operation.

After two years of chemotherapy, she now has "a bone scan every six months, and that's about it." "Apart from the arthritis and the pinched nerve, I'm fine," she said. "My cancer checkups show I'm clean." The book also reveals that while Ford was vice president, their daughter, Su-san, was put under Secret Service guard because she had apparently been selected

Women Receive Higher Pay In New York

NEW YORK (AP) - Women working full-time in the New York metropolitan area in 1975 earned 25 percent more than the national average, ranking second behind Washington, D.C., a government report says.

Findings from a report from the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics also said female residents of New York State earned a median salary of $8,746, which was 16 percent above the U.S. average of $7,531 and ranked them fifth highest in the country.

Female residents of New Jersey averaged $9,128 in 1975, more than 20 percent above the average. They ranked third among the 50 states and the District of Columbia, according to Herbert Bienstock, Regional Commissioner of Labor Statistics, who disclosed the findings at a meeting of personnel consultants.

Although earnings for men were higher. Bienstock noted that the male earnings advantage for the New York City area was not as pronounced.

New Jersey male residents earned $13,-799, or 8 percent above the national average of $12,770. This 8 percent advantage compared to a 21 percent advantage for New Jersey women.

New York State males earned $13,472, about 5 percent above the national average, compared to 16 percent for women.

GM To Barely Pass Fuel Standards

MILFORD, Mich. (UPI) - General Motors Corp. will barely pass federal fuel economy standards with its 1979 car line and will need computerized space-age technology to meet future fuel and emissions requirements, company officials

GM Executive Vice President F. James McDonald said the company now estimates the combined average fuel economy of the cars it sells in the 1979 model year will be 19.2 miles per gallon, just two-tenths above the federal standard. Earlier this year, GM officials were estimating a 1979 average of 19.7 mpg. McDonald said changes in Environmental Protection Agency testing procedures and technical changes resulted in a lower mpg with no room to spare.

The EPA can invoke fines and penalties against the automakers if their fleet averages fall below the federal mini-

McDonald, speaking to reporters at the opening of GM's 1979-model preview, said the firm will complete its first round of vehicle down-sizing next spring with the introduction of its redesigned compacts — a front-wheel drive Chevrolet Nova, the Oldsmobile Omega, the Pontiac Phoenix and Buick Skylark.

Then it will begin again, downsizing its entire lineup to meet 1985 federal fuel economy standards of 27.5 mpg.

CROCODILE ATTACK

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — A saltwater crocodile nearly 20 feet long attacked and sank two fishing boats in two days in Australia's northern territory, according Max Curtain, a Melbourne tour director on the crocodile-hunting trip. Curtain said the crocodile charged at his oat "out of the blue," but he and a companion managed to swim 100 feet to shore. Two fishermen the following day also escaped as the crocodile punctured and sank their boat, he said.

The authorities had turned up a list with three names on it written by the Symbionese Liberation Army, she said.

"One of the people, a college professor, had already been shot and killed, the second person was Patty Hearst, who'd been kidnapped. And Susan, because she was the daughter of the new vice president, was the third," Mrs. Ford said, describing the previously undisclosed threat.

Hawes, who has been compiling guides to schools for 25 years, said he's put in all this new information to help prospective students and their parents answer the question: How good is college X?

"Most often veiled behind the question is another: "How does college X rate in social prestige - or snob appeal?"

This concern, according to Hawes, is understandable when one considers a bachelor's degree now costs $30,000 or more at a prestige school and is expected to be priced at around $40,000 by 1982. "This real concern is perfectly under-

Top U.S. companies paid their chief ex-ecutive officers an average of $302,000 in 1977 and the demand for executives is up.

Despite the decline in the economy, total compensation - salary, bonus, deferred compensation and director's fees for chief executives hit a record high last year. They earned 13.1 percent more than they did in 1976.

Wytmar & Co., international executive recruiting consultants, compiled the figures from 790 major corporations.

Average total compensation ranged from $138,000 a year for companies with $50 million to $100 million sales volume to $552,000 for major corporations with sales over $5 billion a year.

Another survey indicates demand for executives rose to a nine-year record in the first half of 1978, gaining 5 percent over the high level of the last half of 1977.

Executrend, a study of newspaper dis-play advertising in major markets, con-ducted since 1954 by Heidrick and Strug-gles, executive selection consultants, also showed demand for the first six months of this year is 15 percent ahead of the same period last year.

"Particularly at the top levels, there are more multibillion dollar corporations seeking presidents than at anytime in the history of the firm," said Gerard R. Roche, president of Heidrick and Strug-

"Directors are demanding excellence at the top levels and are not hesitating to go outside," Roche said. The era of the million-dollar executive finally arrived as four chief executives earned in excess of $1 million in 1977," Wytmar said.

A heavy industrial construction firm paid the most, $1.1 million, followed by an ethical drug firm, a movie maker and an automotive manufacturer.

"Fifty-six percent of the chief executives earned $100,000 to $300,000, while 30 percent were paid $300,000 to $500,000 a year. CROSSROADS, South Africa (AP) We have come only to work and live. We have come on our knees to the white man for work, and he kicks us," said the black man in Crossroads, the shantytown outside Cape Town that South Africa's white government says it is going to de-Wonga, 34, supports his wife and four children by doing odd jobs in nearby Cape Town. He and all his children were born in Cape Province.

It's Sunday morning, and Wonga is wearing a dark suit and tie for church. His children are washing in a large bucket of water his wife has brought from one of the 10 communal taps in the camp, and the used water is poured on the thriving vegetable patch.

Wonga's corrugated iron shack is painted bright silver outside. Inside it is pap-ered with bright wallpaper, and the linoleum on the floor is spotless. Behind a partition, several large pots are bubbling on a kerosene stove. A door leads to the bedroom.

Three days earlier, about 270 policemen with dogs, staves and guns descended on the camp before dawn on a "crimeprevention operation." the residents, forewarned, met them outside. At least one man was killed, several were injured and hundreds were arrested. The government claims that 90 percent of the 20,000 blacks living in Crossroads are living illegally in the province. It says it will dismantle the camp by the end of the year and send the illegals to tribal homelands.

A recent study by two University of Cape Town urban experts found that although 90 percent of the residents were illegal residents, only 6 percent of the heads of households were unemployed, and most of those with jobs were legal residents of the province. Most of the illegals were women who had come to live with their husbands and their children.

A meek, slender man, Wonga vows his family will never go to Transkei, the homeland to which they are assigned by the government. If chased out of Crossroads, he says they will live in the bush, where his wife has taken refuge more than once before.

His vow is echoed by dozens of other blacks in the heart-shaped community of 3,500 shacks, most similar to Wmnga's, within sight of Cape Town's famed Table Mountain

According to the university study, the Crossroads men have been in Cape Town for an average of 18 years, the women an average of 11 years, and most have no place to go to. There are no jobs in Transkei or Ciskei, the homelands to which these people of the Xhosa tribe are as-signed, and the men say they will not live apart from their families.

Crossroads is the last of Cape Town's black squatter communities. Three oth-ers — Modderdam, Werkgenot and Unibel - were razed in the past 13 months. Community leaders say most of their residents have either come to Crossroads or have moved into the dense bush around Cape Town. Only a handful accepted the government's standing offer of a train ticket to a homeland.

Unlike the other squatter camps, Cross-roads bears the stamp of official toler-ance, having been designated in 1975 as an emergency camp. The Cape Divisional Council provided the 10 water taps, a mo-bile health clinic and sewage and rubbish

Houses are numbered and registered and residents pay about $8 a month rent for their plots of land.

The uneven huts stand on bare ground, chickens and dogs abound, and fencing is often of rusted bedsprings or pieces of

among the lowest in the Western Cape. In addition, a number of white church and social organizations provide legal and financial assistance through a coordinating body called Veritas

Most huts are brightly painted outside and papered inside. Hundreds of small stalls throughout the camp sell vegetables, milk and meat. A variety of local residents provide services ranging from appliance repairs to tailoring and water delivery.

A white visitor is welcomed at every home he approaches and scores of people stop in the street to shake hands and exchange greetings. There are virtually no beggars.

So far the government has made no move to bulldoze the camp. But the demolition of the previous camps and the reg-ular night-time raids have begun to breed bitterness.

Johnson Mgxobongwane, chairman of the Main Committee and thus the unoffi-cial mayor of Crossroads, was badly bat-tered by police during Thursday's raid and greets a visitor in bed, barely able to speak through the pain.

"I'm getting fed up," he mumbles.
"They come with clubs, guns, doge.
They're brutal. They kicked me with boots. The people are getting fed up. they have nowhere to go."

"If the government is determined to remove Crossroads, there will be a very big confrontation, "said the Rev. Wesley Mobuza, a Methodist community leader who was arrested Thursday and charged with illegal assembly

"We are no longer afraid, and not being afraid is part of freedom. Something within me says we shall overcome."

Carter Gets City Man Faces Support Charge In Death For Nobel

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) -The Southern Governor's Conference has recommended President Jimmy Carter for the Nobel Peace Prize by a 12-0 vote for his efforts at the Middle East summit but it really wasn't that unanimous.

With announced reluctance Wednesday, Republican Govs. John N. Dalton of Virginia and James B. Edwards of South Carolina supported the resolution. They had argued that it was too early to tell if Carter's meeting with the leaders of Egypt and Israel at Camp David would bring peace to the Middle East.

"One robin doesn't make a spring, and one framework doesn't make lasting peace," Edwards said.

Democratic Gov. Ray Blanton of Tennessee, who sponsored the resolution, said later: "It almost went into partisanship, but fortunately that was avoided."

In other action, the governors proposed that Congress adhere to traditional methods of alloting anti-poverty funds. Drafted by Georgia Democrat George Busbee, the proposal reflected the governors' fears that money destined for the South in past years is now being diverted to Northern and Midwestern areas in spite. of proven need in the Sun Belt.

James T. McIntyre Jr., the director of the federal Office of Management and Budget, expressed the Carter administration attitude on the controversy when he said, "It is important that all of us work together to dampen the heat and emotion often connected with this subject."

The annual meeting of governors from 17 states and two territories ended with the election of Louisiana Gov. Edwin H. Edwards as chairman of the conference, succeeding Edwards of South Carolina. The new chairman said next year's conference will be in New Orleans

Gov. Pierre S. duPont of Delaware, one of the three Republicans in the conference, was elected vice chairman.

The baby reportedly was taken inside to a couch. Mrs. Weaver told officers she said a prayer aloud and began attempting emergency resuscitation techniques.

A multimedia presentation depicting the 1900 Storm and Galveston's reconstruction era precedes the tour which begins in the adjoining carriage house.

Galveston Filled With Fall Beauty

Galveston Island with its 32 miles of beaches has long been a mecca for summer vacationers from throughout the nation. However, fall is perhaps the year's most beautiful season in Galveston bringing mild weather and generally lower

In the fall, the warm Gulf waters still eagerly invite swimmers, and surfing is a year-round sport. Tides are usually lower this time of year providing beachcombers a paradise among the summer's deposit of seashells, Bike riding along the famed 11-mile Seawall is always popular and bikes are available at reasonable rental rates. Autumn visitors discover that many hotels and motels offer reduced rates and children are always welcome.

Gourmets will appreciate the fact that the restaurant chefs in the fall and winter cook the same fabulous seafood dishes that make Galveston a summer delight. Also, fresh seafood can always be pur-chased at fish markets along the Galveston wharves complex where the famous "Mosquito Fleet" of shrimp and fishing boats sell their daily catches.

Sightseeing is a must in the Galveston area and Seawolf Park (on Pelican Island adjacent to Galveston Island) is perhaps Texas' most unusual park. It features a World War II Naval display, great fishing. playground, and a pavillion — all over-looking ships from every nation as they visit Galveston's harbor. Built in honor of the World War II submarine USS Seawolf (SS-197), once described as "the greatest warship in the history of the United States until her loss," the park stands a proud tribute to the sub credited with sinking 27 enemy ships and damaging 13 more during her 15 patrols.

Undisputedly, Seawolf Park's tribute is truly outstanding. For a small admission fee, the public can tour the USS Cavalla submarine, the USS Stewart destroyer escort, a tank, anti-aircraft gun and a jet lighter plane.

The Cavalla submarine sent two freighters, a destroyer and the mighty Japanese aircraft carrier, Shokaku, to the ocean's floor.

Now firmly wedged in 15 feet of sand, the submarine provides visitors an educa-tional pleasure as they examine her fascinating interior, gaze through her historic periscope and get a realistic idea of how her operators once lived cruising below

The USS Stewart, a destroyer escort, which sailed under both the U.S. and Japanese flags during the World War II, is also open for exploration.

During WWII, the U.S. Navy attempted to scuttle the Stewart in the Pacific to prevent enemy capture, but Japan re-floated and reoutfitted the vessel for duty. Reports of an enemy ship "that looks like one of ours" were not fully explained until the war's end when she was found. afloat in Japan.

The beautifully landscaped family park area overlooks Bolivar Road, a major shipping lane where vessels from around the globe pass on their way to and from the bustling ports of Galveston and Houseal sun nurture Seawolf Park's lush gardens of palms and oleanders. Containing shaded picnic tables, restrooms and im-aginative playground area, the park af-fords a wonderous setting for family out-

Another highlight is the striking three-level pavillion at the park's edge. As car-go ships, tugboats, sailing vessels and fer-ries pass at eye level, the 360 degrees view is unforgettable. The thrill of wit-nessing gigantic ships from distant nations passing close enough to exchange greeting with deckhands is a unique experience.

The pavillion's observation deck's telescopes give close-up views of a World War I concrete ship, the Selma, whose ghostly deck looms up from its final resting place on the Bay's shallow bottom.

A handy snack bar on the pavillion's ground floor provides tasty fare for pavilion dining or picnicing. A commercial ishing pier, jutting 380 feet out over the bay, is known for some of the area's best

All the park's main attractions are situated on 38 acres of beautifully landscaped tropical gardens. In the spring and early fall over 20 species of tropical flowers, many of which are rare, bloom and fill the garden with the beauty of a true polynesian island. Dining tables surround the garden patio area just outside the Pirate's Nook snack bar. Although the patio area is popular at lunch time, many visitors prefer to picnic on the grassy areas surrounding Lost Lagoon or just to stand below the roaring waterfall and feed unusual and exotic birds. The gardens are interwoven with winding paths which lead terwoven with winding paths which lead to exciting exhibits including the Amazon River display and the Garden of the Sightseeing is a must in the Galveston area and a drive through the historic sections of the city reveals some of the most interesting and varied architecture in the United States. Galveston has long been known for its unequaled display of early Greek Revival and Victorian gingerbread architecture.

Plan your vacation to enjoy Galveston's beautiful fall or winter seasons. As a rule, short sleeves and shorts are fine for day wear. A sweater may be needed in the evenings for dining or dancing over the Gulf of Mexico, a moonlight stroll along the seawall or on the beach.

Caribbean Connection Booming

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) - Customs inspectors made a routine check on a Nashville, Tenn., woman's baggage and said they found 47 pounds of cocaine. A similar check netted four pounds hidden in a statuette bought by a woman arriving from Peru.

Drug officials say the women are "mules" - carriers of illegal drugs - that are working the new Caribbean connection that has developed since authorities cracked down on the old Mexico-Texas route.

Here there are special problems. Cruise ships and airplanes carry large numbers of tourists to this resort island both from South America and the U.S. mainland. Once inside Puerto Rico, tourists do not have to undergo thorough customs inspections before leaving this U.S. commonwealth on the way to the

The two recent seizures were only minor raids by law enforcement officers on the new routes from South America that have made Puerto Rico a convenient jumping off point to the profitable U.S. market.

In a larger operation — which is an ironic twist — the U.S. Coast Guard is now making the raids on "mother ships" on sea lanes where pirates used to raid Spanish galleons. Ronald Seibert, regional director of the Drug Enforcement Administration, said these Colombian ships carry as much as 100 tons of mari-He estimated that some 1,500 pounds of cocaine destined for the U.S. Eastern Seaboard are smuggled annually into Puerto Rico from South America. There is no realistic estimate of other drugs passing through the Caribbean lanes now being used by smugglers following the crackdown on more established routes through Mexico and other points. Most of the smuggling is not done by the ships, but in smaller quantities by "carriers" lost among the thousands of tourists passing through Puerto Rico and other Caribbean resort areas.

Travelers are "home free" once they get into Puerto Rico, Seibert said. He explained that people coming from South America must go through customs upon arrival, but face only a routine Department of Agriculture check when they go on to the U.S. mainland. Agriculture inspectors look mostly for forbidden plants and fruits.

Customs and Drug Enforcement Administration agents seized 76 pounds of cocaine in the first six months of 1978. Seibert said authorities estimate they confiscate only about 10 percent of the total destined for the mainland.

On Aug. 25, agents arrested Betty Inman, 37, of Nashville, Tenn., as she landed in San Juan from Caracas, Venezuela. Authorities said three of her 14 bags contained 47 pounds of cocaine with an estimated street value of $14.3 million

She also had $64,676 in cash and more than 100 gold jewelry items, they said.

Seibert said that young, middle-class U.S. carriers who are paid $1,000 for each kilo of cocaine they carry back to the United States are the ones usually caught. Most are disguised as tourists.

Cruise ship passengers are allowed to disembark in San Juan and the U.S. Virgin Islands, a short distance away, for several hours without need to go through customs and can easily bring ashore unnoticed several kilos of cocaine or heroine. From here it is no problem to fly it into the U.S. mainland.

In the Virgin Islands, five persons have been arrested this year following their arrival from the French-Dutch island of St. Maarten with one to six kilos of co-

Seibert said the most ambitious operations are carried out by Colombians who have around 40 World War II vintage vessels they use to transport mari-

The "mother ships," he explained, carry their cargo compressed into 60pound packages wrapped in plastic and burlap sacks. The ships then head north through the Windward passage between Jamaica, Cuba and Haiti to rendezvous at sea with smaller ships, which then carry the load to the Florida, Georgia or Seibert said the U.S. Coast Guard has made a strong effort to intercept the mother ships and the smugglers now also are using the alternate route around Puerto Rico to the Atlantic and into the Bahamas.

Coast Guard officials said that last December the captain of a seized "mother ship" carrying 15,000 pounds of marijuana told them he had "come around north of Puerto Rico because he heard the Coast Guard was pressing its searches in the Windward passage"

DEA has made 47 arrests this year, but Seibert said "the carriers are not our targets. We are after the sources and the recipients.'

Only once in a while is a big "money man" arrested, according to Seibert. Last February, Teodoro Ariza Ibarra, a Colombian, was arrested with $5 million in bank checks hidden inside his shoes. His mistake, Seibert said, was that he tried to sell 25 kilos of cocaine and 50,000 pounds of marijuana to an undercover Ariza's bond was set at $10 million, the highest bond ever set in the United States for this type of crime. He was later convicted and sentenced to 15 years in

nance Committee voted today to slash the tax on capital gains by $4 billion.

The action, approved by a 13-1 vote, is conditioned on the assumption the panel will write a new alternative minimum tax, aimed at high-income investors who pay little income tax. That alternative levy would bring in about $1 billion.

The committee's proposal would provide about three times the capital-gains tax relief voted by the House last month. The federal government now collects about $9 billion a year in capital gains

Under current law, 50 percent of capital gains, which are profits from the sale of assets, are taxed at the same rate applied to a taxpayer's other income. After ject to a 15 percent "minimum tax." All told, the maximum theoretical federal tax rate on capital gains is 49.1 percent, although the average rate paid is only about 16 percent. The House voted a reduction to no more than 35 percent.

The Finance Committee plan would result in a maximum rate of 21 percent. Seventy percent of a gain, rather than the current 50 percent, would be exempt from regular taxation.

The new alternative minimum tax being considered by the committee would be paid on such "tax preferences" as the untaxed portion of capital gains only if it exceeded a person's regular income tax.

Meanwhile, Republican efforts to guarantee tax cuts in future years are faring poorly against Democratic opposition, despite the likelihood that President Carter will ask Congress next year to pass additional reductions.

The difference in approach is that Democrats generally oppose committing the government now to tax cuts beyond 1979 on grounds it is impossible to forecast how the economy will be faring in the future. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, offered colleagues on the panel another reason Wednesday to cut taxes a year at a time.

"Think of all the joy you'd be missing (by not being able to vote for tax cuts) in future years," he said. "There won't be anything left to cut." If Congress approves a big phased-in reduction for business, Long added, "it's going to come back from the president's desk with a big veto on it and it's going to be sustained. Long's point did not fall on deaf ears. In two cliff-hangers, the committee voted against automatic yearly individual tax cuts to help offset inflation and against a

Tied up in the Senate Energy Committee, he had missed the earlier voting. Haskell's delayed vote meant a 9-8 margin against the guaranteed cuts for indi-viduals and a 9-9 tie, which loses, on the

People Offer Blood For Ailing Minister

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - More than 100 people volunteered to donate blood for a Presbyterian minister who has leukemia, blood bank officials said. The donations relieve the family of the Rev. Dr. John S. Brown of Ginter Park Presbyterian Church of the responsibility of paying for his transfusions.

Of the 116 people who volunteered about three-fourths gave blood, said Wendy Hosick, an assistant supervisor at the Richmond Metropolitan Blood Bank. We have never, ever, since we have been in business, had as many people do-nate for one person in particular," she

Vance Fails To Get Hussein's Support On Summit Accords

unified Arab front against the plan. Syria's foreign minister said Vance's visit to Damascus Saturday would have no effect on President Hafez Assad's unequivocal rejection of the Sadat-Begin ments and all Sadat's dealings with Carter spokesmen insisted during the administration's bitter fight last spring to sell the Saudis 60 F-15s that the sale was part of a plan to bolster American influence with the conservative Arab government in an effort to achieve a peace settlement for Israel.

Vance has two other levers to use on King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd: the network of business and military con-tacts between the two countries, and the American contention that collapse of the peace process could result in Sadat's replacement by someone aligned with the radical Arab regimes.

U.S. officials do not expect the Saudis to use their influence publicly to rally support in the Arab world for Camp David. They believe private acquiescence would be sufficient for other Arab leaders to take the public steps neccessary. The Saudi influence derives from several sources. As custodians of the holiest shrines of Islam, they are important religious leaders. As the Middle East's largest oil producer and the owners of the world's largest proven oil reserves, they subsidize Syria, Egypt, Jordan and other

However, the Saudis in a statement Tuesday said the Camp David accords cannot be considered a final acceptable formula for peace because they do not guarantee Israeli withdrawal from all occupied territory, including East Jerusa-lem; the Palestinian right to self-determination and their own state, and recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization as the sole, legitimate representative of the Palestinian people.

Begin, in a New York speech Wednesday to officials of major American Jeworganizations, said Israeli forces would stay on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip beyond five years to "insure Jewish blood is never shed again." He said he was responding to an "unknown spokesman" of the U.S. State Depart-ment who said Israeli forces would remain in the disputed territories only five

The Camp David accords says Israeli roops in those areas will move into unspecified garrisons, but they spell out no

The Israeli prime minister also said his nation would never surrender part of Jerusalem to the Arabs or turn over Syrian territory it occupies on the Golan The Saudis also called for a unified Arab stand, presumably to come at an Arab summit. American officials believe such a meeting can only result in a tougher Arab stand toward Israel. The Camp David agreement calls for Jordan to participate in negotiations with Israel, Egypt and representatives of the Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza to settle the future of those two disputed territories. The United States and Israel hope the negotiations will produce a fed-eration of the territories with Jordan, to prevent an independent Palestinian state controlled by the PLO.

Syrian President Assad was meeting in Damascus with his allies in the militant Rejection Front - Libya, Algeria, South Yemen and the PLO — to formulate plans to sabotage the Camp David accords. He told them the agreements were "the biggest victory that the enemies of the Arab nation could have achieved" and that Sadat had "turned his back on

Town's Council Drops Plans To Rename Manhole Covers

WOONSOCKET, R.I. (UPI) — Woonsocket's city councilmen would rather risk being called male chauvinists than be laughed at by the rest of the country.

The council has dropped a proposal to rename the city's manholes as "personholes."

"We're sick and tired of the adverse publicity we were getting," council President Gaston Ayotte Jr. said this week. "All over the United States people were laughing at Woonsocket personholes."

Two weeks ago, the council gave unani-

Two weeks ago, the council gave unanimous first approval to a personnel ordinance amendment that changes "utility man" to "utility person." It also said he— or she— will have tasks including "building personholes."

"I think a few people liked this personhole idea, but more people laughed at it," Ayotte said.

He said he was particularly insulted by a syndicated Washington columnist who called him up to interview him about the personhole vote.

"He kind of made fun of me," Ayotte

said.

The council Monday night acted to stop being the butt of all jokes. They kept "utility persons" in the ordinance but went back to manholes.

"The public works director told us we had to change manhole. But a stipulation in our charter said any references to gender, male or female, refers to both," Ayotte said.

Councilman Francis Lanctot read aloud a poem he wrote for the second vote. It brought down the house.

"I pride myself on common sense.
I usually know right from wrong.
But after that vote on personholes,
I'm sure I deserve the gong.
They said it was a federal law.
And like a moron I took the bait.
And conclusively proved to one and all
That fools sail our ship of state.
But it's not too late to make amends
I refuse to say a person.
Back it goes to manhole covers

For every person in the United States today, there is almost $500 in currency and coin in circulation.

Before this foolishness worsens.
Never again will I make this mistake
To hell with women's lib.
And since my wife resents my stand
From now on she sleeps in the crib.

Liquor Sale Ruled Legal In Abilene

Another off-premise beer permit, one for sale of mixed drinks and a wholesale liquor distributor's license were approved later.

Texas' highest court said Wednesday that an Austin district judge had no right to interfere with an Abilene local option election over the sale of liquor and beer.

Wednesday's hearing in the Texas Supreme Court resulted from a June 17 local option election in Abilene on legal sale of beer and liquor. A July 10 vote canvass showed the "drys" won by a narrow vote. Then an Abilene district judge wiped out the July 10 vote on grounds that ballots from voting Precinct 19 were not counted and a July 20 canvass showed the "wets" won by a narrow Anti-liquor forces brought the legal fight to Austin and obtained a court order on Aug. 8 from District Judge Charles Mathews that voided the "wets" victory and said the July 10 decision for the "drys" would stand.

Both the "wets" and "drys" filed election contest suits in Abilene but neither has been set for hearing.

The Alcoholic Beverage Commission asked the Supreme Court to tell it what to do, specifically asking that Mathews' decision be cancelled.

"The mandamus is granted that Judge Charles Mathews issue an order setting aside his judgement of Aug. 8," the Supreme Court said Wednesday after hearing an hour and a half of argument. No motion for a rehearing would be consi-

"It concerns me that the counting of votes in Abilene is being interrupted by what happens here in Austin," said Associate Justice Jack Pope.

Conventioneers lar state — in Texas' case Sen. Lloyd Ben-In Dallas Get Disease

DALLAS (AP) - Two of the 35,000 conventioneers at the Veterans of Foreign Wars national gathering here in August contracted Legionnaire's Disease.

An inspection team from the Commun icable Disease Center in Atlanta visited several Dallas hotels Wednesday searching air conditioning systems, water coolers and other environmental items for clues to the illness' mysterious habits.

"We're still unsure as to how this disease is spread," said Dr. Stella Goings of the CDC. "The organism that causes the disease seems to like water."

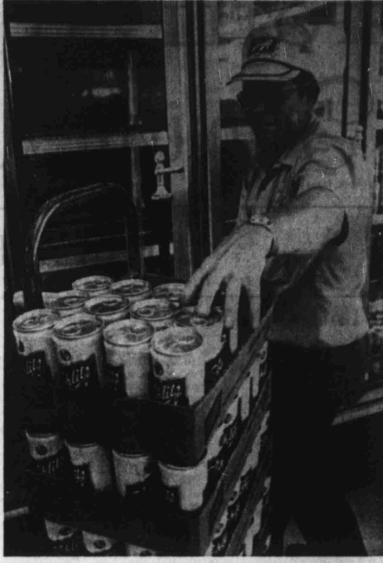

Neither of the two cases involved a Texas resident, but Dr. Goings said identification of those afflicted would have to come from local authorities. CDC officials in Atlanta reported both were "appropriately treated and doing well."

Dr. Goings said two other conventionrelated pneumonia cases were "pres-umptive" Legionnaire cases, and six other pneumonia cases gave no signs of being Legionnaire-suspect.

The VFW convention ended Aug. 25. Since the incubation period for the disease is 14 days, the doctor said there would be no reason to believe latent cases will be reported.

Schools May Face Reduction In Aid

Avalanche-Journal Staff
The next time the legislature doles out aid for public education, Lubbock could find itself taking a $2 million cut—and local taxes would have to be raised to make up the difference.

That was the conclusion of state and local officials Wednesday after they analyzed a School Tax Assessment Practices Board (STAPB) report on the "true wealth" of school systems in Texas.

The poorer a school district, the more

The poorer a school district, the more aid it gets from the state. Lubbock typically has been classed as poor because its tax base is small compared with other districts. But the new STAPB report makes Lubbock appear very rich.

The reason is that, for the first time, the state has included "intangible" property — bank deposits, stocks, bonds and the like — in computing the theoretical tax base of Lubbock and other districts.

Under the Texas Constitution, such property is supposed to be taxed. But in practice, tax authorities ignore that provision because they have no way of finding out how much each resident has in the figures. Also in on the discussion were John Brooks, city-school tax assessor-collector; and state Rep. Joe Robbins, the Republican candidate for the Texas

Afterward, Irons said that if the 1979 legislature uses the STAPB study as the basis for allocating future school funds, Lubbock "definitely would suffer.

Board Suggests Superintendent Ed Irons and his staff met Wednesday to go over the STAPE Rate Increases

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
The Lubbock County Children's Protective Services Board recommended
Wednesday that Lubbock County adopt increased state rates for foster child caring institutions and institutions for handicapped and emotionally dis-turbed children.

Jonette Walker, a supervisor employed by the Lubbock County Children's Prot-ective Services Unit, outlined the rate in-

-Foster homes for children ages one to nine from $5.00 per day to $5.50 per

-Foster homes for children ages 10 to -Basic child caring institutions (which includes Buckners, Texas Boys Ranch and Lubbock Children's Home) from $7.00 per day to $7.50 per day.

The maximum allotment for children in institutions for the mentally and physically handicapped from $13.50 per day to $15 per day.

—The maximum allotment for children in institutions for the emotionally dis-turbed from $34 per day to $38 per day. These state approved rates will become effective Jan. 1, according to Mrs. Walk-

The unanimous vote of approval re-flected board sentiment that failure to match state rates would lead to poorer care for children not qualifying for state

The existing eligibility requirements for the state Aid for Families with Dependent Children program also came under close scrutiny at the meeting.

Pete Harland, chairman of the board and also a member of the State Children's Protective Services Board, commented that "roughly 50 percent of the children do not qualify for AFDC care in Texas." This means that all those children must be provided care with county funds, he said.

Harland informed the board members

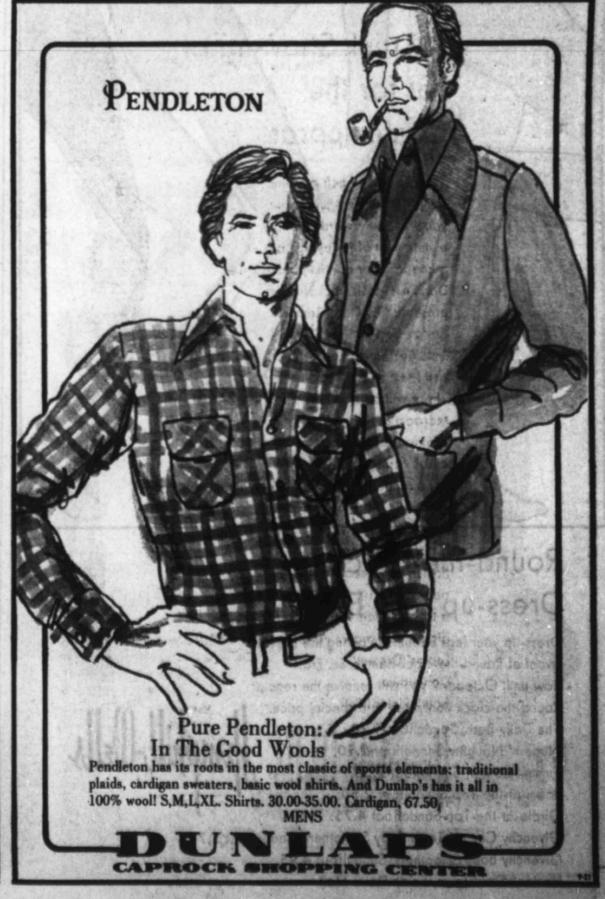

Harland informed the board mem that the state board may soon re-mend to the Texas Legislature revision the state laws to liberalize eligibility

He added that a strenuous lobbying effort will be necessary. "If we (State Board) can get this support from the local grass-roots, have it spread to the regional boards... then we think we can get this legislation passed," Harland told the members.

As the system currently operates, the Texas Department of Human Resources and the respective county commissioners' courts fund children's protective services boards and units in counties throughout the state.

With Harland as its spokesman, the Lubbock board is hoping that the state, through the AFDC program, will in the future provide for the care of more children, thus freeing county funds to aid additional children.

'Hypersomnia' Symptoms Cited

NEW YORK (Special) - Should you be concerned if you sleep 14 or 15 hours a

Yes, says a non-profit research organization that makes available information about sleep and sleep problems. Anyone who regularly needs more than 12 hours of sleep a night may have hypersomnia, according to the researchers, who suggest that long sleepers take this quiz:

1. Do you regularly require more than 12 hours of sleep a night?

2. Do you have difficulty awakening? 3. If you take a nap during the day, is it for longer than 60 minutes?

4. Do you feel confused, disoriented or sleepy after waking up?

5. Is there a family history of excessive

6. Do you fall asleep at night within seconds after going to bed? 7. No matter how much sleep you get, do you still feel drowsy during the day? Anyone who answers yes to questions 2-6 may simply not be getting enough sleep. However, if the answer is yes to all these questions, then the person may well be a hypersomniac.

Anyone who answers yes to most of these questions ought to be studied by a physician for a possible diagnosis and treatment of hypersomnia, says the re-

"It's important that anyone with a problem of excessive sleeping or drowsiness be examined so that any organic disorder or a narcolepsy condition can also be considered," says Dr. Wilse B. Webb, a sleep researcher at the University of Florida and a member of the organization's board of directors. "However, 10and 11-hour sleep needs are not unusual and should not cause an overreaction. When in doubt, I recommend keeping a sleep diary for several weeks since we often over or under estimate our sleep amounts.'

Hypersonnia is frequently undiagnosed and untreated, with hypersomniacs simply being considered as lazy or very lowkeyed people. Some people are chronic sufferers, continually needing an excessive amount of sleep. Others, however, experience it only three or four times a year, when there will be a sud-den and overwhelming urge to sleep for 18 or 20 hours, followed by a return to a normal schedule after 3 or 4 days.

Various disorders such as uremia, diabetes, brain concussions or tumors and encephalitis have been found to have caused hypersomnia. Often, however, patients have suffered from hypersomnia since childhood, before they'd experience any other disease or disorder. Treatment usually involves taking stimulants at bedtime or upon awakening in the hypersomniac is getting up, according to the research team. Since they rarely wake up on their own, hypersomniacs have to be awakened with special devices and through sustained efforts by family members.

The prolonged ringing of a clock or telephone is simply ignored or shut off before instantly returning to sleep. Even special devices such as repeating alarm clocks, resonators and amplified sounds are ineffectual. Most patients must be awakened forcefully and persistently. Usually this involves shaking the person several times before any reaction is gained.

Once awake, a hypersomniac is liable to appear very confused and disoriented and will react very slowly or not at all to outside events. If left alone, they are likely to return to sleep and not remember having been up before.

Many people feel they that they don't get enough sleep. find it hard to get up in the morning and when they get a chance may sleep for a long time. These are not certain signs of hypersomnia, say the researchers, but are more general signs of not getting enough sleep. They recommend a single cure: get more sleep.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Over the years I've read many letters in your column from people complaining that a friend, relative or neighbor habitually imposes on them. Then they ask, "What should I do?" And you always trot out your stock answer, "TELL THEM HOW YOU FEEL!"

Then I'd say to myself, "What a copout. Everybody knows that, but they're hoping Abby can offer some magic words that will make it easier for them.

Then I was faced with a very irritating situation. A couple I'd known for years made a habit of dropping by our lake cot-tage uninvited every Sunday morning. They'd even bring some of their friends and spend the entire day eating our food, drinking our beer and using our towels which we'd find wet all over the place.

I finally got fed up and told this couple in no uncertain terms that they are not to come over unless invited!

At first they were hurt, but they got over it, and when we invited them they came gladly. We're still good friends, and now I'm sorry I didn't tell them sooner.

I just want to say that what appears to be a stock answer, "TELL THEM HOW YOU FEEL," shouldn't be dismissed as a cop-out. It's really the only workable solution to many a tough problem. NEW YORK POST READER

Dear Reader: Thanks, I needed that. Telling someone how you feel doesn't necessarily mean telling them off.

If divorce is contagious, some smart scientist could make a fortune if he came up with a vaccine to prevent it. What are your thoughts on the subject? YOUNG PROFESSOR

Dear Prof: Divorce is not contagious, but it breaks out in certain communities because some people who have only considered it have gathered the courage to go through with it after friends and relatives have made the daring plunge.

The only way to prevent divorce is to eliminate marriage.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when people ask to borrow your comb? I wash my hair and comb it every day before school, and find it very annoying when kids ask me if they can use it. I feel like a snob and get mean looks if I say no. What alternatives do I have? ANNOYED

Dear Annoyed: Carry two. One for your own use and the other for lending.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

disasters you quickly become a special-ist," says Herbert S. Groper, acting chief of the unit. "But it's not easy to get the public to work closely with you."

Here is a rundown on some major threats and what Groper says you should do about them:

LIGHTNING — It may be even more deadly than you think. Lightning is credited officially with an average of 100 deaths and 288 injuries a year. That is more deaths than are caused by floods, hurricanes and tornadoes. And recent investigations indicate that the actual tolls are twice that. Moreover lightning can be sneaky: Bolts sometimes strike two or three miles ahead of a thunder cloud.

Use the telephone only in emergencies. If caught outside, do not stand on a hill or under a tall, isolated free.
Lie low in a boat, or in a cabin if there is one, and avoid metal fixtures.
Avoid wire fences, clotheslines, metal really may not be dead.

TORNADOES — Most tornadoes occur TORNADOES — Most tornadoes occur in late afternoon on a hot day. They are four-pronged threats. Not only do 200-mile winds swirl around their funnels, endangering everything they touch, but accompanying lightning, heavy rain and hail are all hazards. So when you hear a tornado-warning broadcast, or hear the roar of one approaching, or see the funnel of a tornado heading your way, take immediate action.

Get off the street.

In homes and small buildings, go to the basement or to an interior area on the Crouch beneath a heavy table or some-

In high-rise buildings, go to interior small rooms or hallways.

If you are in a mobile home or other vehicle, get out and go to a substantial structure. If one is available, lie flat in the nearest ditch with your hands sheltering your head

FLASH FLOODS - These are sneaking threats also. You may be in a dry valley when a flood storms down as the result of rain in distant hills. Close to the coast, moreover, a flash flood may be combined with a tidal surge to create an especially dangerous situation. Cars, campers and mobile homes may be carried off; trees, roads and bridges ripped

Following an afternoon crowded with talks, many involving Mondale, the American president brought Begin and Sadat together for a third time.

By the time Carter adjourned the session at 6:55 p.m., he had decided it would be best to keep Sadat and Begin apart fest their sometimes acrimonious arguments impede progress.

Making Milk Products

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - Thanks to your column on problems caused by milk, I am now enjoying my cereal with Lact-Aid milk and avoiding all other foods in which milk makes up a very large portion. It's great not to have those awful cramps and diarrhea with no apparent answers.

There are quite a few people who cannot digest lactose, the sugar that's in milk, because they lack an enzyme that breaks it down into single sugars for absorption. These individuals do have gas, diarrhea and difficulties which you have experienced.

A new product called Lact-Aid can be added to the milk and it will break down the milk sugar before you use it. You can get more information about it from Sugar-low Company, 3540 Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic City, New Jersey 08404. Incidentally, some dairies in selected regions of the United States have started marketing milk that has already been treated with Lact-Aid so that people won't have intolerance to milk sugar. Of course, once the milk has been treated with the enzyme then you can use the treated milk to make your own homemade ice cream or cottage

There are a variety of calcium tab-lets that you can take if you cannot increase the calcium intake in your diet. In addition to the bones in sardines as a calcium source, don't forget canned salmon. Another way to increase your calcium intake is to use skim milk powder and make extra rich milk. To this mixture you can add your Lact-Aid powder to digest the milk sugar that would be in the reconstituted milk. This super rich milk can be used for gravies, puddings and other cooking items and, in this way, you can significantly increase your calcium and protein in-

Panel Approves Payment

By ESTHER LONGORIA Avalanche-Journal Staff

The airport board Wednesday night, approved a final payment of $9,308 to the Hunter Construction Co., for remodeling the old terminal building.

Total cost of the remodeling, which is now completed, totalled $55,424. In other business, board members decided to let the airport staff further study a request by Crown Air, a New Mexico based commuter service, for counter space at the airport.

Bob Michaelson, a Crown representative, had requested counter space, saying that the commuter firm was growing and needed an established location at Lubbock International Airport.

Board members also received a progress report on the east-west taxiway ex-tension on new parking facilities at the airport from Bill Wauer, project engineer with Parkhill, Smith, & Cooper, Inc. Wauer told the board that construction on the east-west taxiway extension should resume within the next few weeks. Construction on the project had been at a standstill because of a cement shortage, he said.

The engineer also advised the board to relocate the short north-south runway ap-proximately 140 feet to the east. The board okayed his request.

Waver also informed the board that in order to meet the city's building code for safety a stairway would have to be constructed in the central portion of the proposed two-story parking facility.

However board members unanimously decided to ask the city council for a waiver concerning the stairwell, citing the potential hazard of "having a big mass of concrete with one big hole in it." Board members also said that the con-

on of the stairwell would mean the loss of four parking spaces and that

Appeals Court Upholds Local Burglary Ruling

AUSTIN - The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled Wednesday on a number of area cases, including that of Kenneth Jerome Alberts, convicted of burglary of Lubbock's Wayfarer Motel in June 1976.

The high court overruled Alberts' claims that evidence doesn't show his fingerprints were on the underside of the television stand when the television set was taken from the motel.

Fingerprints were taken from other parts of the stand, the court said, and that evidence is sufficient to uphold the conviction.

In another case, the court upheld the conviction of Charles Gormany, who was assessed a four-year prison term for the November 1975, burglary of a vehicle. Court records show Gormany was accused of taking a CB radio from the car of Willie M. Hoover while Hoover was in the L&H Drugstore.

Gormany claims the trial court that originally convicted him erred by permit-ting Hoover to make an in-court identification of him because the lineup in which Hoover made the initial identification was "suggestive."

He also claimed he was denied the right to counsel at the lineup.

But the court, citing U.S. Supreme Court rulings, said the right to counsel charge ..."

Although Gormany had been arrested, the court said, he had not been charged with criminal conduct, and was not yet entitled to assistance of counsel.

The court also overruled Gormany's claims he was denied due process because of an "impermissibly suggestive" lineup, saying Hoover got a good look at Gormany outside the drugstore when the offense occurred.

The court also dismissed the appeal of Martin Daniel Lunde, seeking a reduction in bail; affirmed the guilty verdict returned against James Kenkins, convicted of violating a liquor law in Floyd County; and affirmed the driving while intoxicated conviction of Harvey Lee Williams, sentenced in Terry County to a three-year prison term.

Also upheld was the probation revocation of Guy Talamantez in his appeal from a Howard County court ruling. Talamantez was convicted of aggravated assault Feb. 17, 1976, and given 10-years probation. However, on September 14, 1977, the court found he had violated terms of his probation by driving intoxicated, failing to report to his probation officer and to pay his probationary fees.

The court revoked his probation, found sessed a five-year prison term.

Talamantez claimed evidence was not sufficient to show he had committed the DWI offense, but the high court ruled testimony of a Highway patrol officer who stopped him was sufficent to revoke probation for the DWI offense. The court also said Talamantez has not supported his claim that revoking his probation without hearing in an abuse of the Adult Probation Act. Talamantez made no motion for a revocation hearing, the court said.

The court also affirmed the probation revocation of Joe Rodriquez. In a Hale County case, Rodriquez' court appointed attorney filed a brief with the trial court saying the appeal is "wholly frivolous and without merit."

Different counsel had been appointed to represent Rodriquez before the court of criminal appeals, the court said, but that attorney has not filed a brief to review lower court records.

There is a small, unnoticed war going on between single-sidebanders and the AMers who do not want to give up any of their 40 channels for SSB access.

Citizens band radio is AM with a power level of 4 watts. Single sideband is FM

Just how many single-sidebanders there are right now is hard to report. There are no reliable figures available. It is obvious, though, that the number has in-

as people move out of the cities, They're gaining power and the cities are losing

Many of the problems that got New York into trouble, he says, are common to many other cities. "The flight of the middle class, high unemployment among minorities, the problems of the national economy — they're all part of the picture, but they're things the cities can't do much about. If we don't get these people jobs, if we don't get them education and some dignity. I'm afraid we're headed for some dignity, I'm afraid we're headed for serious trouble. But Washington is anticity and is likely to become more so."

Rohatyn doesn't claim any expertise on other urban areas, but he says there are many cities with problems similar to New York. "They don't need as much money as New York, but they don't have the same huge resources, either.

"Most local governments," he said.
"operate on a Band-Aid basis. This year you sell the sewer system to raise cash; next year you sell the water work, and they you sell something else. Sooner or later, you run out of things to sell and you're in the soup.

"Local governments operate on yearly budgets; they don't have any long-range planning system. Before you start curing a problem you have to know what the problem is. In Cleveland, for instance (which is now shut out of public borrowing markets), they don't know what the numbers are. Then you have to have a realistic notion of how the numbers might evolve over a few years. It's only then that you can start making plans."

When New York officials began pressuring for loan guarantees early this year, the outlook was bleak. Led by Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), chairman of the Banking Committee, legislator lined up to oppose a "bail-out" for the Big Apple.

By summer, after intense lobbying and pressure from the White House, the picture changed and last month Congress voted overwhelming approval of the 15-year loan guarantees. "I testified that if they renewed the seasonal loan plan, I'd guarantee we'd be back in four years. If they went for the guarantees, I didn't think we'd be back. They really didn't want to see us again, so they went along with the guarantees.'

Rohatyn said that the guarantees give New York leaders "Their only chance to make it. If they run it right, if they spend money wisely, if there is a viable no economy, if controlling the budget is more than rhetoric, if they manage the city properly, then New York can make it. Those are a lot of ifs."

The city's problems, he said, were not the fault of any one person or group, but developed over a number of years.

"For ten years, everybody was scratching everybody's back," he asserted. "The unions were taking, the politicians were

While critics argued that the gua While critics argued that the guarantees would set a precedent for other cities to beseech the federal government to bail them out, Rohatyn doesn't agree. "If a city a prepared to do what New York did, if it wants to control its budget, if the state wants to raise some money, if its pension systems can buy large amount of unguaranteed bonds, if they really cut their budget the way we did then I know their budget the way we did, then I k of no reason why other cities shouldn

Smithsonian Has Chairs From Show

By EILEEN ALT POWELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — For nearly eight years on national television, Archie Bunker has held court from a rust-colored, wingback chair.

lored, wingback chair.

It has been his soapbox for tirades against Jews, Poles and blacks. A place to worry out loud about job and family. A launching pad for verbal strikes against his "dingbat" wife, Edith.

But as of this week, Archie Bunker can stop worrying about protecting his throne from would-be usurpers, notably his sonin-law. His chair is now in the Smithsonian Institution as a cultural exhibit.

The public will be able to view the chair — encased in plastic along with the patterned armchair used by Edith — in the "Nation of Nations" wing of the National Museum of History and Technolo-

"They're on the second floor to the left of George Washington," one guide said of the chairs' location relative to a statue of the first president.

What the 1940s chairs — old when acquired for "All in the Family" from California prop warehouses — are doing in the national museum was explained by S. Dillon Ripley, secretary of the Smithsonian

"Museum people have a high regard for objects that tell a story," Ripley told some 800 persons at the opening exhibit. "By honoring these chairs, we give recognition to a popular television series that we hope has stimulated audiences to reexamine their values and prejudices, dreams and desires."

The chairs have been central to the story of the couple from Queens since "Family" premiered on CBS television on Jan. 12, 1971.

on Jan. 12, 1971.

From their living room, actor Carroll O'Connor and actress Jean Stapleton have dealt with topics from the Vietnam War to inflation, menopause and racism — often in a simultaneously distasteful and amusing way.

As son-in-law Mike once tried to explain Archie to guest star Sammy Davis Jr.: "He's not so bad. He wouldn't burn a cross on your lawn."

To which Davis responded: "No, but he might stop to toast a marshmallow."

The comedies — or what Ripley suggested might better be termed "social commentaries from one family's living room" — have won the show 50 million weekly viewers, more than a dozen Emmies, financial security for creator Norman Lear and star status for O'Connor, Miss Stapleton and former regulars Sally Struthers and Rob Reiner.

And protests, too, from Polish-Americans, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith and others offended by the Bunkers' words or deeds.

But Lear told those at the Smithsonian that having a positive influence on American viewers was the show's aim:

"We were happy tossing our pebbles into the streams of social awareness, and we will continue to throw more. Should an appreciable portion of the nation elect to join us at the water's edge, perhaps our combined efforts will be measurable."

Lear, 54, said that "Family" also reflected one of his late father's traits — "a territorial imperative about his chair."

His show became the first TV situation comedy that "examined social issues at the heart of American life," said Smithsonian curator Carl Scheele. "It changed the face of a lot of TV's approach ... I don't think television could revert to the pre-Archie Bunker era."

The museum's exhibit has the chairs separated by a small walnut end table, topped with a doily, a glass ashtray and a partially smoked cigar. Floral wallpaper forms the backdrop.

Nearby in the wing dedicated to America's ethnic background are a rainbow-colored Wurlitzer, the white gloves and blackface makeup used by Eddie Cantor and a reconstructed 1925 Italian-American kitchen, complete with replica of stewing chicken.

"Family" cast members thought it was appropriate to put the chairs in the Smithsonian.

"It's better than being cast in wax," concluded Miss Stapleton.

O'Connor, prevented from attending the ceremony and a White House visit by continued treatment for high blood pressure, used a long-distance phone hookup to say that admission to the Smithsonian "is really a great thrill to me. No other honor done to Norman and the rest of the cast can possibly equal that."

The show goes on, despite the contribution of its chairs to the national museum. An assistant to Lear said replicas of the "originals" complete with frayed threads and stains have been created for future episodes of "All in the Family."

Indian Issue

By JIM POLING
FREDERICTON: New Brunswick
(AP) — Indian sovereignty is looming as an issue of national significance in Canada, some of whose tribes, such as the Blackfeet, Cheroke and Cree, overlap into the United States.

The question of whether Indian populations ever can be treated as self-governing nation is being thrust upon Canada's provincial and federal governments as well as the general public by a new restiveness among the Indian leadership.

The National Indian Brotherhood spent considerable time on the question during its annual three-day assembly here recently. Indians in the United States, while not pressing for sovereign nations, are seeking more control over their lands, and a closing down of the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs which administers these lands. these lands.

Canadians had heard about Indian sovereignty long before. It has been an issue since the signing of the first treaties and gained some prominence a few years ago when the Indians of the Mackenzie River Vallers in the Northwest Tarritories do.

But it always has been a dead, or at least isolated, issue.

The difference now is that the Brother-hood has adopted it as a goal for the 300,-000 registered Indians it represents through its affiliated provincial and territorial Indian associations.

For instance, Starblanket has been saying that Indians as a founding people should be allowed to participate at federal-provincial meetings.

An Indian leader from the Northwest Territories, George Erasmus, told Faulkner: "It's not enough. We don't want control over our own little communites. We are nations!"

Erasmus pushed sovereignty into the 1970 spotlight with his demand that Ottawa negotiate a deal in which Indians would govern the Mackenzie Valley as a quasi-province. The idea has been followed since by the Inuit (Eskimos) in the Northwest Territories, the Indians of the Yukon and British Columbia and now the Brotherhood.

Atlanta Eyes Completion Of Terminal

Terminal Complex.

"There will be no gradual phasing in." said John Braden, an administrative assistant for Atlanta's Department of Aviation. "One plane will be flying in to the old complex, and the next will be directed to the new complex."

Construction is about 30 percent done, on schedule for the completion date of Jan. 1, 1981, Braden said.

135 airplanes at once, and 60 million pas-sengers per year, compared to the pre-sent terminal's capacity of 104 planes and average of 30 million passengers a year. That would make it second to Chicago's O'Hare Airport among busy airports in the world.

But numbers are not the only awesome aspect of the "midfield expansion." The complex's futuristic design, encompassing underground walkways, computerized people-movers and 1,000-foot con-courses, seem equalty impressive.

A $300-million bond issue is paying for the project. Braden said leases to airlines will provide Atlanta with the money to retire the bonds at low interest, with no cost to the taxpayer.

The concrete used in paving the con-course taxiways is enough to pave 100 miles of interstate highway, or build sev-en 30-story office buildings the size of one city block, Braden said.

But the typical air passenger will not notice the concrete, mainly because he'll be traveling under it when going from the main terminal to the boarding gates.

A mile-long "people mover" mall is being built to connect the terminal with the four concourses from which passengers will board their planes. The mall is an elaborate tunnel which intersects the four 1,000-foot concourses where planes are parked.

Travelers will have three options: the can walk, board a moving sidewalk ride an automated guideway transit mi se, will be controlled by co puter. There are no engineers. "We house guarantees that the system have more than 99 percent available Braden said. "No car will be do more than three mi

By GORDON BOCK NEW YORK (UPI) — Sonny Rollins is a Virgo and that, he says, makes him a

"perfectionist" who "wants everything to come out just so."

The astrological sign poses potential creative problems for the New York-born tenor saxophonist, who has played jazz with such greats as Miles Davis, John Coltman and May Rosch Coltrane and Max Roach.

"When you're dealing with spontaneous creations, after you listen back to something, you say, 'well, I could have done this better, I could have done that better," Rollins sighed.

Early in his career, stuffed into a cramped apartment and bowing to the needs of a pregnant neighbor who said she needed sleep, Rollins — ever striving to perfect his art — took to practicing on a footpath of the Williamsburg Bridge, which connects Brooklyn and Manhattan.

But now, Rollins, pianist McCoy Tyner, bassist Ron Carter and drummer Al Foster are visiting more conventional concert settings in a bundle of cities as members of a quartet whose individual strengths and combined force may be unparalleled in recent jazz history.

On Sept. 16, the group opened a tour that takes them to such cities as Seattle, San Francisco, Denver, Cleveland, Minneapolis, Chicago and Boston — winding up Oct. 29 in Philadelphia, Tyner's birthAlong the way are stops Oct. 21 at the Beacon Theater in New York — Rollins' home turf - and Oct. 14 at the Royal Oak Theater in Detroit, where Carter was born 41 years ago. In all, the tour includes concerts in 19

The musicians conceded the nationwide crisscross was conceived by Milestone Records to make them more visible and advertise their newest releases. Still, the trip brings back nostalgic moments.

"I worked with Sonny for about 10 or 12 weeks in the late '60s in a trio," Carter said of Rollins. "I've made McCoy's last five or six records. And Al Foster and I worked together for Horace Silver's last five or six records.

Settling his lanky frame into an armchair, Carter, also a one-time Miles Davis sideman, said, "I've played with them all at one time or another

For Tyner - once at the nucleus of saxophonist Coltrane's revolutionary jazz band — there were similar memories. 'Ron's done a lot of recording with me," he said. "I just did a thing in Japan which was a live concert, and we had a night of my music and he had a night of his mu-sic. He's been doing a few things with me off-and-on.

Tyner, 39, recalled that the first time he worked with Rollins "was at the age of 18 in Max Roach's group."

Rollins, 49, thought about the two intervening decades and laughed: "I was pretty young, myself." Jazz aficionados caught a brief preview of the group — with drummer Roach subbing for Foster — at the tribute to the Newport Jazz Festival held June 18 on the White House lawn.

Ron Carter came face-to-face with another Carter - Jimmy - and the quartet played "Sonnymoon for Two," which one critic in attendance said Rollins "stomped out ... mightily, his tone bold and smooth."

Tyner has played plano, harpsichord, celeste and dulcimer on recent recordings. He believes in experimentation, a trait that also marked the work of Coltrane, whose moving ballad, "Naima, appears as an unaccompanied piano solo on Tyner's latest disc. "I sometimes put myself in different positions just as a challenge to myself and just to see what I come up with," Tyner said. "Sometimes people are offended, but there are others who tell me they enjoy it."

Carter, a bearded pipesmoker with mu-sic degrees from Rochester's Eastman School of Music and the Manhattan School of Music, has backed up a wide range of performers - from Davis to Phoebe Snow, James Brown and Aretha

With a piccolo bass in hand, he now commands his own quartet. The unusual instrument — about half the size of a bass allows for "guitar-type" sounds Carter describes as "much more brilliant" than the average bass.

English author and historian H.G. Wells was born on Sept. 21, 1886. On this day in history:

In 1893, the first successful Americanmade, gasoline-operated motor car appeared on the streets of Springfield Mass. It was designed and built by Charles and Frank Durvea.

In 1938, an estimated 600 persons were killed by a hurricane which battered the coast of New England.

In 1976, former Chilean Foreign Minister Orlando Letelier was killed when a bomb exploded in his car as he drove along a street in Washington, D.C.

In 1977, President Carter announced the resignation of Budget Director Bert Lance and at the same time defended Lance's honor and integrity. Lance, a Carter appointee, had come under criticism for questionable banking practices.

A thought for the day: British author H.G. Wells said, "Human history becomes more and more a race between education and catastrophe.'

court judge, overriding defense motions, today moved the murder-feg-hire trial of millionaire Cullen Davis from Fort Worth to Houston

State District Court Judge Arthur Tipps said he was moving the case to the 184th District Court in Harris County, where Judge Wallace C. Moore presides.

Defense lawyers Richard "Racehorse" Haynes and Phil Burleson argued against the move. Prosecutor Jack Strickland argued in favor of it.

Tipps ruled immediately after both sides completed their arguments today.

Defense lawyers Wednesday attempted to call State District Court Tom Cave as a tness, but Tipps did not allow it.

Reese Worker Fights Smokers

By JEFF SOUTH

Avalanche-Journal Staff
A civilian employee of Reese Air Force Base says her rights to a job and a safe working environment are going up in smoke — tobacco smoke, that is.

Smoke makes me so physically ill that I feel like a fugitive. When a person with a lighted tobacco product walks into the room I am in, I panic. I just have to leave," said Shirley Wassom, 44.

Such circumstances, she says, prompted her to walk off her $12,000-a-year job at Reese on Oct. 17, 1977. According to Mrs. Wassom, the government says she must return to work by Monday or be

Mrs. Wasson, who says she wants to come back to the base, filed suit Wednesday in U.S. District Court in hopes of forcing the government to provide her a smoke-free workplace.

"The time has come in this government when the rights of those addicted to tobacco must yield to the rights of those who wish to work in a healthy environment," Merrell Frazer, Mrs. Wassom's attorney, said at a news conference before filing the suit.

"Smoke if you wish, we say, but smoke on your own time, smoke in your own place and smoke in such a fashion that the life you endanger is but your own,"

In the suit, the Austin lawyer asked U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward

-Stop the Reese civil service officer from discharging Mrs. Wassom until the case can be heard.

-Order the base to give Mrs. Wassom a "totally smoke-free environment" so she can return to her job as an accounting

-Have the U.S. Department of Defense review its smoking regulations to protect those workers, both military and civilian, who are hypersensitive to tobacco smoke."

Frazer said Mrs. Wassom falls into that 'hypersensitive" category. She is "extremely allergic" to smoke and has "suffered physical damage as a result of having to work in close proximity to those who smoke ... Her lungs already are showing signs of regression" due to her work at Reese.

Mrs. Wassom said she has worked on and off at Reese since 1951. "I resigned several times just to get away from smoke," she said. In the past, she said she always had returned, and managed to build up 13 years' experience in federal job last year because a co-worker was a chain-smoker. Since then, Mrs. Wassom said she has used up her vacation time and sick leave and has been on leave without pay for several months.

'Now the civil service personnel at Reese seek to remove her from the federal service, simply because she cannot work in a smoke-polluted atmosphere,' Frazer said. He said if Mrs. Wassom is fired, she will lose her retirement bene-

"Her employers say she is a skilled worker and that they want her to return to her job. We say, excellent. Provide her a place to work where she will not be subjected to physical injury, and shegladly will return." Frazer said.

Frazer said Reese officials have been sympathetic to Mrs. Wassom's plight. They have assigned her a desk next to a window and placed smoking co-workers at the other end of the room, the attorney

Yet Mrs. Wassom said the efforts have not been enough. Just a whiff of tobacco smoke, she said, makes her wheeze and cough and gives her a sore throat, headaches and hearing problems.

According to Defense Department regulations, Reese officials cannot prohibit workers from smoking on the job, Frazer said. Unless the regulations are revised, the only adequate remedy is for Reese to "create a separate work area for nonsmokers," he said.

"The right to smoke is not at issue here. What is at issue is the health and physical safety of a human being," Frazer said

Frazer, who has received attention for his efforts to free Nazi war criminal Rudolph Hess, has been active in seeking the rights of non-smokers. A few years ago, in a case similar to Mrs. Wassom's, Frazer got a state health department employee reinstated to her job.

Frazer was recommended to Mrs. Wassom by Action on Smoking and Health (ASH), a Washington, D.C.-based organization to which Mrs. Wassom belongs.

Mrs. Wassom and Frazer said the rights of non-smokers are an "up-and-coming issue" in society and politics. On Nov. 7, California will vote on Proposition 5, which would ban smoking in most public places. A Houston legislator is expected to propose a similar law for Texas, Mrs. Wassom said.

Local Schools' Aid May Face Cutback

School District was found to represent .6923 percent of the state's total taxable property.

But in the STAPB report, with the inclusion of intangibles, Lubbock would represent .7426 percent of the state's wealth, Irons explained. "This is a significant increase" in Lubbock's ranking, he said.

Consequently, Lubbock would be classified as a wealthy district and expected to pay a greater local share toward the cost of schools, Irons said.

If intangible property is deleted from the STAPB study, the Lubbock tax base would represent only .6382 percent of the state's total wealth, Irons said. In other words, the district would be considered even poorer than before, and qualify for more state aid.

At a press conference Wednesday, Robbins said the difference between inclusion and exclusion of intangible property could mean about $4 million for Lubbock

Under current funding formulas, Lubbock would gain about $2 million in annual state aid if the legislature uses the STAPB figures minus intangible property, Robbins said.

But Lubbock would lose $2 million in state funds if the STAPB figures including intangibles are used, Robbins said. To make up the loss, the Lubbock school district would have to raise its tax rate about 18 cents or fire teachers and cut the quality of education, he said. Robbins called the inclusion of intangible property in determing a school district's wealth a "drastic change...pointing a knife directly at the financial heart of the Lubbock school system and the already overburdened Lubbock property

So what can the district do? Irons said he had considered appealing the STAPB findings. But he said that according to the Texas Education Agency, this would be fruitless because the district can't prove that the numbers themselves are wrong.

In the alternative, Irons said, "The main thing is to get the taxation of intangibles out of the state constitution. In this way, there would be no reason for the state to include intangibles in defining a district's wealth."

Robbins urged citizens to vote for the proposed tax-relief constitutional amendamendment, he said, would make the taxation of intangible property permissive, not mandatory.

If the amendment passes, the 1979 legislature officially can decide whether to exclude intangibles from taxation, or to give tax assessors the legal means to tax intangible property, Robbins said. He said he would vote for the first alternative, since the inclusion of intangibles would "result in higher property tax-

The issue is expected to pit rural against urban lawmakers, Robbins said. He said rural citizens feel their farmland values are too high and that taxing urbanconcentrated intangible property would even things out.

Robbins accused E.L. Short, the Democratic candidate for state senate, of being in favor of taxing intangibles

Irons said that the STAPB report generally "confirms the excellent operation of our tax office." According to the study, Lubbock is only about 3 percent too low in its appraisals on real estate and other tangible property.

In contrast, most school districts - because they are lax in revaluing property and getting new items on their tax rolls were found to be under-appraising tangible property by 33 percent.

The state board contends that the total value of all taxable property in the Lubbock school district is $3.45 billion. The district itself reported a tax base of just $1.86 billion.

The main difference is that the state board claims Lubbock has $1.47 billion in intangible property. That figure came from estimates of bank deposits, bonds and stocks. Brooks said that while it is possible to estimate the value of intangibles within a taxing jurisdiction, it is impossible to get figures on each and every resident.

Early-Day Knights

Ligar Notices E Spur Award Likened

A gilded spur was the reward for making it as a knight in the days of chivalry. When he had won his spurs, the knight was a veteran in tournaments or battle, in religious matters and polite society.

Eight centuries later, the cowboy of the West also had to win his spurs — with hard work, long hours and loyalty — to be worthy of those spurs jingling on his western boots.

Folklorist, John Lorney noted that the Folklorist John Lomax noted that the cowboy had the same qualities as a knight of the Round Table — "dauntless, reckless, loyal-hearted without the unearthly purity of Sir Galahad, though as gentle to a pure woman as King Arthur" and was "truly a knight of the 20th Century"

Century."

For these reasons, duly noted on a program accompanying festivities set Friday in Lubbock, a gilded spur was selected as the way to bestow honors on a modern member of the knights of the range.

The first golden spur will be presented Friday at a 6:30 p.m. Prairie Party in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Its prolific use may have stemmed from its list price from the manufacturer, from $6 to $12 per dozen, a price well within the reach of any dollar-a-day

On the other hand, its popularity might be attributed to the unique design of the spur and strap which, according to Lub-bock spur authority John Montford, would stay put on the boot and not ride up and down during the work day.

As a cowboy passed his first trials with merit and settled into life work, pride usually took him to the blacksmith shop for some hand-tooled spurs made to his own design or to a fancy type already being handmade.

ranch hand.

This time span, however, came 26 years and more after the OK first began appearing shortly after the Civil War. It was believed to have been designed after the Confederate cavalry spur which was designed to keep from injuring the horse.

The "working spur" reputation, and its familiarity with some of the earliest 19th Century ranches won it the honor of becoming the golden spur award when one was available from a ranch donor.

Montiord believes, from his own extensive research on spurs, that the spur was designed from suggestions made by various cowboys. Although the plant turning out OK spurs — under the "Patent Spur" labels for "Star Brand, genuine-putent O.K. Spurs" with a star and the initials of the manufacturer, August Buermann — was in New Jersey, the manufacturer apparently came west to get his designs.

The origin of the O.K. stamp has been lost.

There were two styles, the short shank and the long shank plus a variety of rowels and a number of finishes from "blued steel" to nickel-plated.

Whatever the history of the spur, its place in cowboy history is assured. The working cowboy — with a day's work beginning before daylight and lasting until dark seven days a week — wore them. The rancher and top hands could afford handmade spurs.

And, it is the working member of the ranching industry, the person making an impact at the national level through his or her own hard work for the betterment of the industry, who will receive the National Golden Spur Award each year — at a prairie party the night before Ranch Day at the Ranching Heritage Center at Tech.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Saddened by reports of her reclusive life and tragic brush with death, dozens of teen-age girls want to befriend Rachel David, the sole survivor of her family's mass suicide plunge from a hotel balcony last month. Rachel, lying semi-conscious in LDS Hospital's intensive care unit, is unaware of the people she has touched.

"We've had a lot of letters from teenage girls who say they want to read to her, or talk with her and be her friend," said Karen Haeckel, a hospital spokes-woman. But the offers have been turned down because no one is allowed to see

Rachel's father, Immanuel David, pro-claimed himself God and gathered a handful of believers who supported the David family in some of Salt Lake's most expensive hotel suites.

Her eldest daughter suffered extensive

Dr. Terry Clemmer, head of intensive care, said Wednesday that she probably will become fully conscious slowly. He does not believe she will remember much of what happened to her, at least not immediately not immediately.

He said the hospital will do everything it can to protect her privacy and shelter her from a curious public.

The letters to Rachel have been forwarded to her grandmother, one of only three known living relatives. "She wanted to answer them all herself," Mrs. Haeckel said.

A Montana man sent a letter via a tele-rision station offering to make Rachel a beneficiary of his estate, she said. That offer was forwarded to the lawyer ap-pointed to represent Rachel's legal inter-

"We've had some crank calls," sai Mrs. Haeckel. "One man called almost daily from San Francisco and said he' had a vision that he was supposed to be present when Rachel woke up. When we told him that wasn't possible, he became HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) - The New Jersey Supreme Court upheld the crimi-B.H. Bird and wife to Lester O. Farber today for withholding notes in a Judy Sue Smith and others to Roy Stewart and wife, 2 acre of SE /4 Section 10, Block E. Arnold F. Mincey Jr., to Erma J. Owen, Lot murder case.

The high court ordered Farber to report back to jail on Sept. 26.

Glen R. Ivey to William Michael Eggar and wife, Lot 182, Mesa Park Addition. The case has attracted national attention, and its outcome could set a precedent on freedom of the press.

There was no immediate comment from Farber or The Times. Both were expected to appeal.

The court said in a 5-2 decision that James R. Rhodes and wife to Evelyn Dare, Farber and The Times must obey a subpoena to turn over notes in the murder trial of Dr. Mario Jascalevich who is charged in connection with three murders at Riverdell Hospital in Oradell.

The court rejected the newspaper's defense that the First Amendment protected their privilege to protect confidential sources. "In our view, the Supreme Court of the United States has clearly rejected this claim and has squarely held that no such First Amendment right exists," the opinion said. The court said that although reporters must cooperate when subpoenaed in a trial, the media still has "First Amendment protection." "They include, among others, the right to publish what the press chooses to publish, to refrain from publishing what it chooses to withhold, to seek out news in any legal manner and to refrain from revealing its sources except upon legitimate demand." the opinion said.

The decision said that the nation's highest court already has decided "the weighing and balancing" between a defendant's right to a fair trial and free press.

New Jersey's shield law, enacted by the Legislature to protect reporters' sources, must yield to the defendant's right to a fair trial, the court said. Farber was jailed for 27 days after he refused to give his notes to the judge presiding over the murder trial of Dr. Mario Jascalevich, who Farber dubbed Dr. X in a series of articles for The Times. Farber, meanwhile, was served Wednesday with yet another subpoena for the notes he took while investigating a series of patient deaths at Riverdell Hospital in Oradell in the mid-1960s. The subpoena, which seeks his notes on any interviews conducted with three physicians at the hospital, was the third served on the reporter since the Jascalevich trial began in February. Eugene Scheiman, Farber's attorney, said the reporter would not surrender the

After The Times published Farber's articles. Jascalevich, the hospital's former chief surgeon, was charged with murder in connection with five deaths at the hospital. He was acquitted of two of the murders.

The two, both head high school grid coaches — Talbot at Lubbock, Dippel at teams into tonight's encounter at Lowrey

Field with identical 0-2 marks.

The W-L - that's where the main similarity lies. But there are others, too. Consider this:

•Both the Westerner's and the Sandies' offensives have had a hard time pushing the ball into the end zone, scoring only one TD each this season.

•Both had have tough schedules to contend with—the Westerners facing Es-tacado and Borger, while Amarillo met Odessa High and Permian.

Both the Westerners and the Sandies are searching for their first win. And, without being too profound, it appears one may put a scratch under the "W" to-

The 7:30 p.m. contest will be the 60th meeting between the two, with Amarillo holding a 45-13 edge overall. For those counting, there's been a tie, too.

The winner of the contest may not go on to win the state AAAA title (as has been the case on seven different occassions). But that doesn't mean there won't be some hitting. On the contrary, says going," said the LHS boss. "I think we have a good football team here. Now all we have to do is cut down on our mistakes. If we can do that, I think you'll see an improvement."

The Westerners, who have lost to Borger and Estacado, were victimized by the bobble during each game. Last Thursday, Estacado took advantage of three LHS turnovers, turning all of them into scores.

"We were toe-to-toe with them (Esta-cado)," explained Talbot, "until we start-ed turning the ball over,"

They wound up getting the boot, how-ever, falling 26-0.

But that was last week, Talbot said.

Now it's time to get it on with the Sand-

"They have a good team," said Talbot.
"The teams (Odessa 39-0 and Permian 43-6) they've lost to are really super. Their record doesn't show the kind of team they really have."

He said the same about the Westerners— about the team and the record, that is. "We're continuing to improve," he mentioned at Wednesday's news conference at the Coppercreek Mine Restaurant. "If we can keep everyone healthy.

Talbot pointed out that the Westerners have been unable to keep their opponents out of the end sone late in the second quarter. And thai's hurt a bunch, he said.

"Borger scored with 28 seconds left in the half and Estacado with 27," he said.

"That hurts. We plan on doing something about that."

Asked if there was much left to the old Lubbock-Amarillo rivalry. Talbot replied: "Sure there is. That's because the kids here still take a lot of pride in their school."

Soft Issue

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. Why is the NFL so cold-hearted regarding player safety that it won't add padding to the helmets and the shoulder pads as so many writers are suggesting? Is such a precaution being considered?

-King Dahlgren, Rutherford, N.J.

A. Putting padding in helmets and shoulder pads has been considered by the NFL and rejected - for a very good reason, unknown to the numerous writers clamoring for same: It would make matters worse. For one thing, a clash of padded helmets would "stick" and not glance off. For another, padding over a hard surface does not decrease the impact of the hard surface.

That's why "soft" synthetic turf fields which feel good when you walk on them are more injurious than fields with a thinner but firmer layer over the asphalt. A body falling on a soft turf field crunches through to the asphalt quicker So you see, it's a more complex question than most commentators suppose.

The bottom line is that there are enough rules in the NFL book now to cut down on injuries — if the NFL office would just insist that the officials call them, such as all blows to the head anywhere on the field and late or unnecessary hits.

Q. To solve a bet, can you tell me how many players from the Oakland Raiders' offensive team played in last year's Pro Bowl?

A. Seven, in addition to punter, Ray Guy, who should be regarded as a defensive weapon. The seven: Art Shell, Gene Upshaw, Dave Casper, Ken Stabler, Mark Van Eeghen, Cliff Branch and Dave Dalby.

Q. I read that Joe Kapp lost his lawsuit against the NFL for barring him after he refused to sign a player's contract. What was the contract offered and why didn't Kapp continue playing while the suit went on?

A. The contract offered Kappy by the New England Patroits would have paid him a total of $800,000. You're right that he could have played while the suit was strung out, but Kapp gambled that he would eventually collect treble damages. That is, he was wagering $800,000 against $42.4 million that he'd win in court. Kapp still has the option of appealing to the U.S. Supreme Court, but it's unlikely he'll pursue the case.

Q. Why is Brad Van Pelt allowed to wear the No. 10 for the Giants as a linebaker? It's my understanding the rules stipulate a similar range of numbers for different positions.

-Walt Seifert, Independence, Kan.

A. That was Van Pelt's number at Michigan State. The Giants accommodated him and bent the rules by listing him as their backup field goal kicker. (Do you have a question about a sports personality? Send your questions to SPORTS HOT LINE, 6700 Squibb Rd., Mission, Kan. 66202. Because of the vol-

By HOWARD SMITH

Associated Press Sports Writer Hank Stram, long a recognizable figure plotting strategy and prowling the sidelines at National Football League games, is confined to the broadcast booth this season. But he's brought his enthusiasm and passion for organization with him.

When I got involved with broadcasting I sat down and analyzed the situation," says Stram. "What can I contribute to the broadcast? Some guys want to be comedians. Some want talk about the past all the time, things that are not really rele-

"I became determined to talk about the game that people are seeing right now. Let someone else talk about past history. I'm very careful to talk about the game as it

Stram will have plenty of opportunity this season. On Sundays he works as a football analyst on CBS Television and on Monday nights he joins veteran Jack Buck to call the game for CBS Radio. Few broadcasters will see more football than Stram this season and that's just fine with him.

"I'll see more games this year than ever before," says Stram, who attended one game a week as coach of the Kansas City Chiefs for 15 years and the New Orleans Saints for two. "This job provides me the opportunity to stay abreast artistically and keeps me current as far as personnel is concerned. And I love the game."

Stram is no stranger to the microphone. During his tenure in Kansas City and New Orleans he had his own radio and TV shows.

"I enjoy this because it gives me the opportunity to watch football games just like I'd do at home," he says. "Only at home I'd just sit and watch. Now I can make observa-"What I want to do is add a dimension to the broadcast that others can't. Former players can talk about their specific positions but a coach can see the entire picture. I try to make sure I provide a dimension nobody else can.

"The one thing I have to be careful with is not being too technical. I make it a point to control my thoughts. There have been times at clinics where I have talked for more than an hour about one play. You have to get in and out with your thoughts on TV and radio. And your explanation of a play has to be very vivid and clear so people know what you're talking about."

Stram says he is not reluctant to point out errors on the field.

"If you have to worry about saying things that will bother other people you are in the wrong job. You have to say what you think. If a guy makes a mistake, say, throwing into double coverage when he had a tight end free, I will say it was a bad call and explain why. That's my job."

HANK STRAM

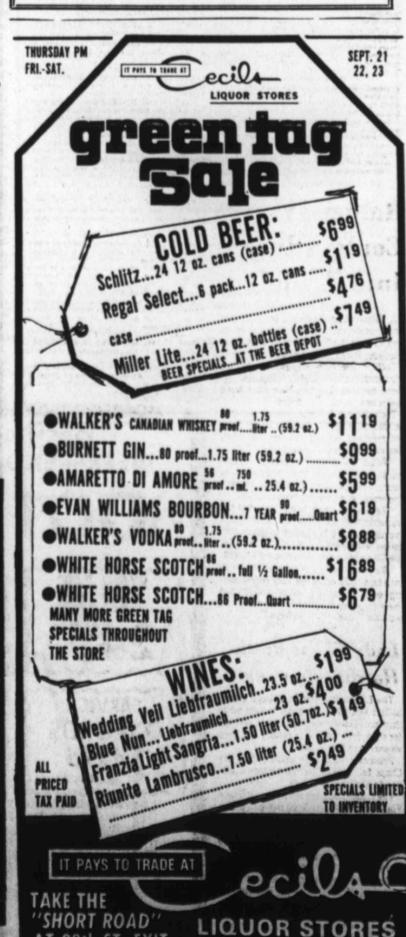

Up until last winter, Stram's job was trying to build the Saints into a competitive ballclub. He was two years into his program and felt he was making progress when the ax, wielded by phlegmatic owner John Mecom Jr., was lowered. Stram didn't like it much but he was not surprised.

"I've always felt if a coach is making progress, if he's had a record as a consistent winner, if he's won the big one (a reference to Kansas City's victory in Super Bowl 1V), he's earned the right to stay ... But the thing you have to realize about coaching is that it's a high profile, high risk business ... You have to realize that's what the situation is.

"I really think the winners lick the problems, the losers are swallowed up by the problems."

Before too long, if past performance is any guide, there will be a couple of openings in the NFL coaching ranks, but Stram insists he has not given any thought to returning to the sidelines.

Raider JV Contest Runs Into Trouble

A funny thing happened to the Texas Tech junior varsity football squad on its way to play the New Mexico JV in Albuquerque: Paperwork stopped it all.

Tech athletic officials reported
Wednesday that tonight's scheduled JV game between the two teams has been postponed, possibly canceled. Tech JV coach Jerry Bomar said that

24 members of the Picador squad have not received official clearance to play, thus causing the postponement. "We're using only walkons (volun-teers), and eight of them were short of hours," Bomar said. "The other 16 were freshmen who have not been certified. "We have transcripts on them, but the transcripts don't show the grade-point averages, which is needed to get certification. We've written the high schools for the GPAs but on the 16 we haven't heard. "We're not using any scholarship freshmen on the JV team -if they're not playing on the varsity, we're red-shirting them (now legal under NCAA rules). So we have to depend on walkons."

Lady Chaps Battle Hardin-Simmons

The Lubbock Christian College volley-ballers will have two goals tonight when they host Hardin-Simmons: gain revenge for their first setback in history and keep an unbeaten home slate.

Lubbock's Malcolm Garrett Jr. last weekend grabbed the Sports Car Club of America Southwest Division crown in United States Road Racing Champ ship competition and now is setting his sights on the national title.

During the 13-race season in the SCCA's Southwest Division, which includes Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas, Garrett attended 11 races and posted four wins, three second places, two thirds and once failed to finish. In another race he failed to grid the car because of a mechanical problem.

Schmidt, Luzinski Pace Phillies Past Montreal

By The Associated Press
The Philadelphia Phillies got a diet of fastballs from Dan Schatzeder. That's the kind of stuff big league hitters fatten up on. Especially hitters like Greg Luzinski and Mike Schmidt. "If they throw you enough of them and keep coming after you with fastballs, you can make an adjustment and maybe find can make an adjustment and maybe that your stroke," says Schmidt, who found his Wednesday night while helping the Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 4-2.

Schmidt belted his 21st homer following Luzinski's 32nd in a game-breaking, three-run sixth inning at Montreal's

Olympic Stadium. "This park has been tough on us in the past," noted Schmidt. "I think it's a pitcher's ballpark. But I finally got a good pitch for me to hit. I had been swinging at some high stuff out of the strike zone. I probably should be walking a little more than I am, but I'm just overagressive I guess.

The power show by Philadelphia's two sluggers and a strong performance by pitcher Randy Lerch came at a most opportune time. Coupled with Pittsburgh's 5-1 loss to Chicago earlier in the day, it improved the Phillies' lead over the Pirates to two games in the National League

It also made Manager Danny Ozark extremely optimistic.

"It was an exceedingly good day for us," said Ozark. "We gained a game on Pittsburgh. Randy Lerch pitched a heck of a game, we got some good power out of Luzinski and Schmidt, good defense. I thought we played very well. I hope we do the same thing tomorrow and I hope they do the same thing tomorrow.'

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3; the San Francisco Giants defeated the San Diego Padres 6-3; the New York Mets nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 and the Atlanta Braves beat the Houston Astros 3-2.

Lerch, 10-8, scattered eight hits, including a two-run homer by Tony Perez, before getting relief help in the ninth from

Mike Krukow upped his record to 8-2 with a four-hitter and Bill Buckner drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice tly to lead Chicago over Pittsburgh.

"The defense came up with some great plays," said Krukow. "I guess you could say I was on the lucky side of the breaks.

'Keeping (Dave) Parker off base was a hore, but it has to be a factor," added Krukow, who held the National League's leading batter hitless in three at-bats. Parker reached base in the first on a

Grain Futures CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and wheat prices scored substantial gains and corn futures were mostly higher Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Prices for September soybean con-tracts soared by 24 cents to $6.891/2 a bushel before that month's contract went off the board at noon. Traders said there was heavy buying by commission houses and local speculators who apparently were caught short of soybeans to meet September contract obligations.

September is a cash crop now, and there's a shortage of deliverable stocks (of soybeans) in Chicago," said one trad-

A more normal situation marked trading in September corn deliveries, which went off the board at noon 1% cents lower at $2.12 a bushel. Prices for all other months rose as traders said the weather was the major market factor. Forecasts of rain this week in parts of the Midwest that could delay harvest, combined with warnings of early frost in Nebraska and the Dakotas as part of an eastward-moving cold front, led to heavy buying in corn and soybeans.

Wheat futures drew strength from other commodities, and also from reports that Pakistan and Bangladesh have indicated they will buy wheat on world markets. Strengthening export demand for wheat in recent days has led to light buying in the wheat pit. Board Of Trade

ackie Onassis Regarded As Top U.S. Celebrity

By GAY PAULEY
NEW YORK (UPI) — "It is as if Jackie carried her own spotlight with her," says a biographer, Stephen Birmingham.
Birmingham, long a chronicler of society's upper crust, thus summarizes the public's fascination with the upper crustiest of them all — Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis.

Kennedy Onassis.

To Birmingham, Mrs. Onassis, going on 50, is "sphinx-like, Garbo-like, our greatest, most tantalizing, most exasperating

The writer, who set out to analyze Mrs. Onassis's continuing allure for both the common and uncommon of the world, told in an interview of the effect she has on people by citing her appearance at one party last spring.

Birmingham recalled, "All of a sudden there was this surge of people. My date and I were pushed against the wall. "This was a sophisticated crowd, used to celebrities, but they wanted to see Jackie.

"It was like the Red Sea parting when she appeared.

"She was-as usual-radiant and beautiful. She stayed only briefly, but long enough for photographers to scramble for pictures. She seems to hold her head into the lights the way a movie star does. "In the crush, I was standing on some woman's feet. She didn't even seem to

Carter Near Victory On Reform Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) - There is no question that federal civil service jobs are eagerly sought, especially in times of economic uncertainty. Government jobs at all levels have always provided respectable work and good fringe benefits. If the work was dull, at least it was hard to get fired. And in recent years salaries have shot up, making government one of the best employers around.

Analysis

With all that going for civil servants, it is little wonder they are sometimes hard to move when it comes to putting into effect a president's policies and sometimes a little less energetic than they might be if paid by a profit-hungry boss.

So, in what could be the most far-reaching of his domestic achievements, President Carter proposed a broad reform of the federal civil service and is on the verge of getting it passed by Congress largely intact.

Strangely, however, while a balky House finally got ready last week to pass the measure giving Carter authority he wanted to clear out the deadwood, it also took two actions that would keep fresh islent out of government.

First, it voted against Carter's move to eliminate the hiring preference given to veterans, which effectively blocks entry and promotions for blacks, women and Second, it voted overwhelmingly for a ceiling on government employment at its Jan. 1, 1977, level of 2.1 million, meaning about 112,000 current jobs would be lost through both attrition and layoffs.

The second vote was politically irresistible. The bill's floor manager, Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., soft-pedaled his opposition and even Rep. Gladys Spellman, D-Md., one of the most vigorous defenders of put-upon bureaucrats voted for it.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., who favored ending veterans preference and putting a cap on employment, linked the two issues. During debate on an ill-fated amendment to limit the preference only to Vietnam combat veterans, she said allowing the advantage for all vets sets up a pool of 28 million persons competing for about 150,000 new jobs, instead of just the 8 million Vietnam veterans. "If we could do this vote by secret ballot, it would pass by a very heavy margin," she aid. "Why? Because everybody talks about wanting to have the veterans all get a crack at the jobs, but nobody is for in-creasing the federal service so they will all have that crack."

It is likely, however, that both House actions, taken for purely political reasons, will be reversed sooner or later.

The job ceiling and employment freeze was not in the Senate version of the bill and is subject to further action by the joint conference committee meeting this week to iron out difference. Given the fact the amendment was defeated during original committee consideration and that Civil Service Commission officials say thousands of workers would have to nds of workers would have to by thousands of workers well to be one of fired, the provision is likely to be one of the things ironed out of the final bill.

Another biography due is "Jackie Oh!" (Lyle Stuart, Inc.) by Kitty Kelley.

No doubt, Mrs. Onassis will be the subject of biographers many more times.

ject of biographers many more times.

Birmingham, talking from his home in Cincinnati, said his biography was not an authorized one. He did, however, talk to many close to her, her jet set friends, many of the Kennedy clan, and to her mother, Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss.

The biographer said he visited Mrs. Auchincloss at Hammersmith Farm, Newport, R.I., where Jacqueline and her sister, Lee Radziwill, spent their growing-up years. At Hammersmith, he went through family memorabilia and recalled a pencilled self-portrait Jacqueline had done when she was 12. It was titled simply, "Me." And Birmingham conceded his temptation to snitch that one.

Among the Kennedys, he had talks with several in-laws including Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, the Stephen Smiths, the Sargent Shrivers, and Patricia Kennedy Lawford.

He did not talk to Mrs. Onassis, who simply refuses interviews. But Birmingham said he had known Aristotle Onassis, the second husband, for several years.

The fascination of Jackie started early. Birmingham recalled "she already was a legend ... bright, interesting, pretty, very sweet, but very aloof" when he went to Hotchkiss prep school and Williams College while she was at Miss Porter's in Farmington, Conn., and later at Vassar. "A boy really prized a date with her,"

he said. "Some people called her shy. "I remember at her coming-out party, everyone was saying, 'My, how she has blossomed.!

"I think a lot of what shaped Jacqueline was her upbringing. She was a child of the depression, she watched her father deteriorate into alcoholism, her mother re-marry a very rich man. She was surrounded by money, but with not much of her own.

"And we all like power. Certainly the White House gave her the chance to exercise it. But she's had to work pretty hard for what she's got ... she's now enjoying the spoils."

Birmingham said that when Kennedy died, she and the children came into a $10 million trust fund

Then Birmingham quotes from his sources (he will not disclose them) the marriage contract between her and Onassis — among other things it provided an outright gift of $3 million, plus jewels and paintings. It included $33,000 a month for her own expenses, $10,000 a month for the children, as well as clauses that she was not required to give him a child and that they have separate bedrooms.

According to Birmingham, Onassis became disenchanted when she wanted to

It was at this point, sources said, that Onassis reduced the amount she would receive on his death from the original $100 million to the $26 million she eventually received.

"I think marriage to Kennedy was for love ... at first," said Birmingham. "But it could not have been an easy marriage. He was a male chauvinist.

Other women who knew Onassis said he had a terrible temper ... he was very abusive. Not physically but verbally.
"Maybe she married him not only because he offered money and power, but as she told Nancy Tuckerman (longtime friend and spokesman), 'Nobody knows how lovely I've been.'' If Mrs. Onassis marries again, Birmingham said, the man "would have to be somebody special ... with money and im-portance. Who is there! At the moment she seems just using her male friends as escorts. She enjoys being a public figure, yet keeping her privacy.

In his book, a kindly portrait, Birmingham believes the widow follows the coaching of her father, Black Jack Bouvier - "Don't give too much of yourself, withhold a little, keep them guessing they may not always like you, but at least, darling, they'll never forget you."

"Greensville County: Where Promo-tion Is Based on Achievement." So reads a sign on the small red-brick building in Emporia, Va., that houses the county school system's administrative offices. The sign sums up the most ambitious approach yet to an important new idea in American education; "minimum compe-

The idea is simple: before any student is promoted to the next grade, he or she must take a standardized test to demonstrate a certain level of competency in reading, writing and other basic subjects. So far, only a small percentage of the nation's 16,200 public-school districts use minimum-competency tests — and in most cases, only as a graduation requirement. Greensville goes further: it requires such tests for grade-to-grade promotion as well notion as well.

In varying degrees, the rest of the na-tion's public schools promote automati-cally. It is a policy that has been accom-panied by an alarming slide in academic levels and achievement. Two examples:

Last October, when all 116,000 eleventhgraders in Florida's public schools took a literacy test — in which they had to figure sales tax and handle other routine real-life situations — only 63 percent passed the math portion. At Ohio State University, 23 percent of the incoming freshmen had to enroll in remedial English classes and 27 percent in remedial math.

men had to enroll in remedial English classes and 27 percent in remedial math.

Many proponents of automatic or "social" promotion concede the failures of modern education. But, they insist, minimum-competency tests and "earned" promotion are not the answer: this policy tends to discriminate against minority. tends to discriminate against minority and other underprivileged students. Be to quantify academic achievementhrough a standardized quiz. Administering such tests, he believes, is "demeating, wasteful of time and counterproductive."

Sam Owen, superintendent of Greensville's schools, argues the other way. His school district is proof that insistence on minimum competency works. And many educators are beginning to agree with this 55-year-old revolutionary.

During Greensville's school-integration years earlier. Owen had inspired confidence as a man with a quiet, folksy way of getting things done. At least partly because of the goodwill he had built up then, more than half of the concerned parents went along with him now, agreeing to have their children held back.

The test series used in Greensville is designed by Science Research Associates, a division of IBM. The tests, administered by a panel of trained, independent proctors, cover either three or sis subjects, depending on the grade level. MIAMI (AP) - Barbara Freund was always one of the brightest in her class

By the time she was 12, she had skipped two grades and was busy helping slower classmates when she was not breezing through her own ninth-grade work. She prayed she could pursue a career of helping the handicapped.

But an automobile accident in 1966, as her family drove north from a Florida holiday, left her paralyzed and speechless. Her doctors said she would always be that way. They were wrong. While her brain had been badly damaged and her thought and movement suppressed, she and her family drew from deeper resources.

"I felt in some way the accident was God's answer to my prayers," she says

Aching all over, Barbara learned to move her arms, to pull herself along, eventually to walk on legs that hung useless before. She learned to speak again, laboriously trying to make words over and over.

"My mother simply wouldn't let me give up," she said. "She kept saying to me, 'You can do it, you can do it.' I heard those words even in my sleep.

Returning to school, she was told she would have to start at the level of a 5-year-old. Some teachers had little sympathy. "Can you imagine," she said, "I'd never made a grade lower than a 97. Now I was making zeros. It was heartbreaking. At night, I'd try to study and the next day I couldn't remember a thing.'

Her family moved to Miami in 1967, and Barbara finished high school and Miami-Dade Community College. At Florida International University she majored in special education.

"I felt that there would be no problem in getting a job," she said. "I am a living example that people with disabilities can be helped. However, when she looked for work she found her disabilities stood in he way. Her speech is still slow and her handwriting awkward.

'At first, this frustrated me," she said. "Then I decided to do private tutoring and sometimes I'm called to substitute teach. Now I'm not sure that I want to teach in a regular classroom setting. I have had so much success with the oneto-one tutoring I do.

There is more to Barbara's story. There is Sandy Levy, the commercial photographer she wed three months ago.

"I knew right away he was the one," she recalls of their meeting at a party. Sandy ignored her that first night, but both turned up at another party. "This time, I plopped myself down next to him, and talked his head off," she said. Levy noticed.

"I saw the real Barbara," he says. "She was beautiful. I didn't see her handi-

The heart of the GOP strategy is a proposal to cut income taxes by 33 percent over the next three years. That would put an extra $500 in the pockets of a family in the $10,000 annual income bracket and progressively more through the middle

The Senate Finance Committee nar-

The House has passed a bill that would cut taxes $16.3 billion next year, compared to the $31.4 billion that would be cut in the first year of the GOP proposal to reduce taxes by a third. Questioners at the rallies, town meetings and street corner confrontations are sometimes skeptical of the Republican leaders but seldom disagree with the idea of lower taxes.

"If you ask people how they feel about taxes today, they'll tell it to you straight - taxes are unfair and they're unfair because they're too high," said Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa.

"Inflation and taxes and the cost of living is the No. 1 issue in the 1978 congressional elections," said Baker, who is running for re-election in Tennessee this year. "And I think 1978 will mark the beginning of the resurgence of Republicanism in this country.

"After the CBS television special honoring Hollywood's Diamond Jubilee in November, the value of that sign is going to be incredible." he predicted. The new sign will be unveiled during the two-hour in writing." Sims said. "Of these, only three or four are serious offers.

'Nobody has made a substantial enough offer yet. We've been offered everything from $2 per square foot up to between $5,000 and $10,000 up front and a percentage of retail.

Well, said Sims, "they want to make replicas of the Hollywood sign, jewelry and all different kinds of things.

"We're most concerned about quality and how the old sign is used," he added. We don't really want it turned into ashtrays or something like that.

"We may be giving pieces of it away at the Diamond Jubilee party," he said. People like Hugh Hefner and Gene Autry who helped save the sign will all be getting substantial mementos

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "How can they call an eight-hour, $8 million TV movie a mini-series?" David Janssen asks. "There's nothing mini about it."
Janssen was talking about "The Word," the TV version of living Wallace's best-selling novel, in which he stars beginning Nov. 12 for eight consecutive nights on CBS.

A veteran of more than 30 feature move-

A veteran of more than 30 feature mov ies, four TV series and a score of TV films, Janssen believes distinctions of quality and content between theatrical pictures and major TV features no longer can be drawn.

Who's to say that pictures for the tube are inferior to theatrical films? he asks. In recent years Janssen has seen TV budgets soar, shooting schedules lengthen and quality of casts upgraded.
"I'm in 95 percent of the scenes in 'The Word,'" he said. "My role was as demanding as anything I've ever played in a theatrical feature. It was the equivalent of doing four movies.

"In terms of production values, there's no difference between movies and TV films. There was a time when 10 percent more money and 10 percent more time would have made a TV film 5 percent "In the old days of episodic TV, the crews were geared to complete from 6 to 15 pages a day with great production values. Take that same crew and give them only 21/2 pages for a feature film and the quality of work would be the same as in a theatrical.

"The difference is purely psychologi-cal. The big budget and luxury of time just changes the pace on the set.

"Today in long-form TV shows, which I like to call major movies, you are better off than in theatrical films because there is more time to be creative.

"'The Word' couldn't have been done properly as a feature picture because of matter how well it's done."

Janssen said there is a growing trend among the networks to base long-form features on best-selling novels. More and more authors are eager to sell to TV rather than movie studios.

Historically, big-name authors have been appalled at what motion picture producers do to their novels. Two or three-hour movies truncate the narrative, cut characters and change emphasis of their stories.

With rare exceptions such as "Gone With The Wind," it is absolutely necessary to pare down historical epics and sweeping cavalcades.

But TV long-form films may run as long as 26 hours, as in the case of "Centennial," allowing filmmakers to include most of the original material.

"Both Irving Wallace and James Mich-ener have expressed delight with the way their books have been treated on TV," Janssen said. "And Alex Haley was very happy with the way 'Roots' turned out. It never have been done as well in a

"That makes me question the validity of the difference between TV movies and feature films. There are few subjects that can't be handled just as well on TV as in a feature film these days.

The success of long-form TV films has put a negative pressure on theatrical pic-tures. Producers are in the position of making films they hope will lure viewers away from their sets.

"Why should viewers gamble on paying a small fortune to go out and see a movie when quality TV films with top creative talent and distinguished authors can be films.

"I don't think television can any long be called a great wasteland. Not why you consider the quality long-form moies that are being shown on the tube. I' not trying to say TV films are better the theatrical movies. Not at all.

"But I do believe they are just as goo—and getting better every day."

Stock Mart Prices Rise, Then Fall

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market headed lower again today after its second abortive rally attempt in the past two days.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 3 points in early trading, was down 1.91 at 855.25 by noontime. The average fell more than 50 points from early last week through Wednesdays

Losers held a 5-3 edge on gainers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Analysts noted some early buying by investors looking for "bargains" with prices of many issues having pulled back to their late-July levels.

But they said the market was unable to make much headway in the face of concern over Federal Reserve credit-tightening and a new slump in the dollar against leading foreign currencies over the last couple of days.

House Gives Approval To Budget Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House to-day adopted and sent to the Senate a fed-eral budget plan with the lowest project-ed deficit in five years. A key congressman predicted the government's books could be balanced by 1981.

The prediction was made by the House Budget Committee chairman, Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., preceding a passage of the budget plan by a vote of 225 to 162. Giaimo said a balanced budget could be attained "if Congress continues to exercise restraint on spending and if the economy continues to be healthy." The Senate was expected to act on the budget plan, a compromise worked out by a House-Senate conference committ-

tee, possibly on Friday. The conferees, who had been deadlocked over financing a special public works program, compromised and agreed Wednesday on a fiscal plan projecting a deficit of $38.8 billion.

The agreement also would allow for reducing taxes at least $2 billion more than the House voted in a $16.3 billion tax relief bill. The Senate Finance Committee already is enlarging the tax cut. The conference committee budget calls for revenues of $448.7 billion and spending of $487.5 billion in fiscal 1979, which begins Oct. 1. The resulting $38.8 billion deficit would be the first since 1974 under $40 billion. The present fiscal year is expected to end with a deficit of about $51 billion. President Carter's original projections for 1979, since modified, envisaged a deficit about $21 billion greater than the one now projected. The dispute involved $2 billion for special public works jobs programs, includ-ing several that figure in President Carter's urban package.

The House included the figure in its original version of the budget resolution, but the Senate had no corresponding fig-

The conferees agreed on an overall fig-ure that included the public works program along with several others. Their report will say the House conferees assume sufficient money will be provided for the public works program, while the Senate panel will say it believes the amount will take care only of existing programs.

ABC began its fall season Sept. 11, and the network's new shows swamped the opposition fare of reruns and assorted specials, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show. CBS and NBC begin their new programing this week.

ABC claimed the 12 most-watched shows during the week ending Sept. 17, and a rating of 25.9, compared with 15 for CBS and 14.5 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute, 25.9 percent of the homes with

All that was hardly news, in view of the competition. But there were some facts worth noting: -More people watched ABC's broadcast of the heavyweight championship rematch between Muhammad Ali and Leon Spinks than any other televised sporting event. ABC estimated the audience at 90 million for the main event.

The week's fifth-rated show, "Battlestar Galactica," won the prime-time competition Sunday evening against some tough competition. Up against a threehour special premiere of ABC's new space adventures were the Emmy awards show on CBS, No. 21 for the from New Orleans from 10 p.m.-11:45 week, and Part II of NBC's broadcast of the "King Kong" remake, No. 30.

-ABC had but three programs below 12th place in the ratings, "Fantasy-Island" in 17th, "Welcome Back Kotter" in 23rd and "Lassie" in 43rd.

A two-part sneak preview of NBC's new series, "W.E.B," was among the programs at the bottom of the ratings. A CBS animated special, "Popeye," was No. 45, followed by Part I of "W.E.B.," "Quincy" on NBC, Part II of "W.E.B.," and a CBS movie, "Buffalo Bill and the

By MARY CAMPBELL
NEW YORK (AP) — German bass
Kurt Moll made a stirring debut at the Metropolitan Opera's opening night of the season Monday night, as the Landg-rave in "Tannhauser," in the handsome production new last December.

Richard Cassilly, native of Maryland, sang the title role. He took over the opening night after James McCracken can-celed two weeks ago, in a dispute with the Met over televised opera perform-

Cassilly sang Tannhauser last season. His voice probably does not have quite the heroic proportions the role needs but he husbanded his resources on opening night. In act one, he only sang out with full force at the end of each scene.

Highest vocal honors went to soprano Teresa Zylis-Gara and to Moll, whose voice dominates everything while he sings. Moll is a true bass, his voice rich and authoritative, with no thinning of tone no matter how low he needs to sing. Miss Zylis-Gara, who is from Wilno, Poland, sang Elisabeth, Tannhauser's sacred love, in this tale of sacred and pro-fane love. She sang to convey feeling, pu-rity, intense caring and excitevent. She is pure but she is also in love with Tannhau-and watch elegantly garbed patrons ar-rive were somewhat disappointed since most of those in elaborate evening dress were already inside this year. However,

New York native Tatiana Troyanos sang the love goddess, Venus. She has a voluptuous figure but needs more honey in her voice for Venus.

Tenor Richard Kness, born in Rockford, Ill., also made his debut in a small part which has an extended aria in act two. He sounded somewhat constricted in that aria, which may have been due to nerves.

Baritone Bernd Weikl, who sang Wolfram last season, sang the part again, to much credit, with straightforward man-ner and attractive tone. James Levine conducted a fine reading of Wagner's

Critic Dubs 'Billy Budd' 'Opera Masterpiece'

NEW YORK (AP) — A 20th century opera masterpiece, "Billy Budd," starring Richard Stilwell, with the original Capt. Vere in the cast and the original Billy Budd in the audience, was done for the first time - and brilliantly - by the Metropolitan Opera this week.

"Billy Budd" had its world premiere at Covent Garden in 1951 with an Englishman, Peter Pears, as Vere and an American, Theodor Uppman, in the title role. The composer, Benjamin Britten, con-

It was first performed in America in 1952 on NBC-TV, and later that year was staged at Indiana University.

The Met production makes a stunning impact, visually and musically.

Musically, Britten used only men's voices and still made variety of sound. His melodies are beautiful, intensifying the action and making the characters so vivid and human that one identifies with them, sometimes painfully. The score is rich in woodwinds and brass.

Scenically, an English warship of 1797 is stage center, its guns pointing out toward the wings. Its decks can raise and lower. At one time, one may see the captain's cabin with the main deck above and behind and a catwalk above that. At the time the ship is about to meet a French warship, while the chorus alternates between a stirring song and hymn-like musical lines, sailors are lined up on four decks which are above one another.

The story is about the clash between good and evil and also the bittersweet human condition of some bystanders to the main event. It is based on Herman Melville's last book.

Conductor Raymond Leppard of London aquitted himself admirably in his Met debut. William Dudley of London also was making his Met debut, designing the set. -Mary Campbell
