JERUSALEM (UPI) — Defense Minister Ezer Weizman will go to Egypt in October to start peace negotiations authorized by the Israeli parliament in an overwhelming ratification of the Camp David accords, the state radio said today.

The announcement came after the Knesset voted 84-19 with 17 abstentions to approve the Camp David agreement and remove Jewish settlers from Sinai as part of a peace treaty.

"Happy are we that we reached such a night," Prime Minister Menachem Begin said after the Knesset vote at 3:40 a.m. (8:40 p.m. Wednesday CDT).

The official government radio said Weizman would leave after the solemn fast day of Yom Kippur Oct. 11, almost five years to the day since the outbreak of the 1973 Middle East war.

The holiday fell on Oct. 6 that year, when Egyptian forces swept across the Suez Canal and Syrians smashed through Israeli lines on the Golan Heights.

Weizman's talks with War Minister Mohammed Gamassy will deal with converting the accords to reality by agreeing on new lines for the Israeli army, the radio said.

Other topics will include turning over Israeli army bases and air fields, allowing Israeli ships to sail through the Suez Canal and cooperation with the United States to exchange intelligence information.

Weizman left the parliament session for the Golan Heights, where he spent the day observing division-strength maneuvers involving land and air units facing the Syrian lines.

Begin held the parliament spellbound for 55 minutes as he summed up the 17-hour debate. Later he said it was "not bad for a nocturnal speech."

The Knesset approval of the Camp David accords paved the way for the Jewish state's first treaty with an Arab nation in what President Carter hailed as a "great step forward" to peace.

The 120-member parliament ended the longest debate in its history by voting to give up 20 settlements in the Sinai in exchange for the beginning of negotiations with Egypt — a decision legislators called the most momentous since Israel was born in 1948.

A peace treaty — Israel's first with an Arab nation — could be signed by Christmas, possibly even before Thanksgiving.

"This is a historical turning point of great importance," Begin said.

Carter, who engineered the twin accords in 13 days at Camp David with Begin and Sadat, received the news of the vote in a scrawled note passed to him during a political fundraising party. He announced to overwhelming applause: "We've made a great step forward in the negotiations."

"That's sure proof of the tremendous See PEACE ACCORDS Page 14

Carter Ready To Intercede In Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter prepared to step in today to force an end to a widespread, three-day railroad strike after union and industry negotiators failed to meet a midday government deadline for settling their dispute.

It appeared likely the president would use his authority under existing law to declare a national emergency and appoint a special board, with the effect of ordering striking rail employees back to work for a 60-day "cooling-off" period.

It was understood that Carter likely would announce his action during a previously scheduled, nationally broadcast news conference this afternoon.

Negotiators for the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks and the Norfolk & Western Railway met with federal mediator James J. Reynolds in around-the-clock bargaining.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, who had kept in touch with the negotiators by telephone throughout the night, met early today with Reynolds, a former under-secretary of labor, for a report on the talks.

Shortly before dawn, Labor Department spokesman Donald Smyth said the two sides had made "considerable progress" but that "a number of serious issues" were unresolved.

Although the union expanded its picketing Wednesday to all 73 railroads, virtually all major rail lines, the Association of American Railroads said about two-thirds of the nation's rail system actually was affected by the strike.

(Santa Fe Railway traffic through Lubbock remained at about a third of normal this morning. The company was still using supervisory personnel to operate as many trains as possible, said Susan Metcalf, a spokeswoman for the railway.)

Marshall did not specify what action the administration would take, but experts said the president's most likely options would be to force a temporary end to the strike by declaring a national emergency or seek emergency legislation from Congress to order striking workers back to their jobs.

The last nationwide rail strike, a 1971 signalmen's walkout, was ended by Congress after two days.

Technically, BRAC is on strike only against N&W, the nation's seventh largest carrier, but the union, in an effort to bring pressure on the Virginia-based railroad, expanded the walkout to 43 other rail lines Tuesday morning.

The walkout widened Wednesday to include virtually all the nation's major railroads when the union ordered picket lines thrown up against 73 rail carriers. The strike produced sharp, swift repercussions as millions of tons of freight were stranded and thousands of commuters were forced to their cars.

The nation's two largest auto makers, General Motors and Ford Motor Co., put workers in 17 plants in this country and Canada on half-day shifts because of parts shortages.

Thousands of coal miners were laid off because no railroad cars were available to haul coal. The American Association of Railroads estimated that shipments of grain were down 65 percent because of the rail shutdown, which comes at the peak harvest season.

Council Gets Request For Zone Change

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

If the Lubbock City Council approves a zone change request for the property at South University Avenue and Loop 289, it will clear the way for the construction of a Target Department Store.

Former Lubbock Mayor W.D. "Dub" Rogers, who is requesting the zone change, previously had refused to reveal the name of the business which would occupy the 100,000-square-foot building if the zone request is granted.

But Rogers revealed today the national Dayton Hudson Corporation, which owns Target Stores, wants to build a Lubbock location.

Target generally is known as a discount store, but Rogers said discount would be a "misnomer" as applied to the stores. Rather Dayton Hudson refers to Target as a "low-margin store."

Rogers, who approached the corporation about locating in Lubbock, said the Target store would create about 225 new jobs and have an annual payroll of more than $1 million.

However the construction of the store is contingent upon the approval of the zone change request from local retail (C-2) to general retail (C-3), which faces stiff opposition from occupants of profession-

City, Schools Clash On Crossing Guards

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock city and school officials are at a stalemate over which governmental entity should pay the salaries of the guards who help schoolchildren get across city streets.

The decades-old controversy was resurrected last month when the city council deleted the guards from the municipal budget and told the school board to pick up the cost. School officials seemed sympathetic and indicated they hoped to work something out.

But today — in the last scheduled week of city funding — school trustees said they can't assume fiscal responsibility for the crossing guards. They cited their attorneys' opinion that only the city, not the schools, can spend money on "general police powers."

After hearing of the school board's stance, Mayor Dirk West responded that one-way or another the school system will have to pay for the crossing guards.

"It's out of our budget and it's going to stay out," West said.

He and other municipal officials suggested the city may raise the fees it charges the school district for such services as garbage collection. Or, they said, the city may decline to pay some fees it has been charged by the district — using school gyms for city-sponsored recreation programs, for instance.

"It seems we have a problem here," school board president Charles Waters said when told of West's remarks. "What we need to do is have the city and school lawyers sit down, analyze the situation together and issue a joint opinion on how we can resolve it."

Waters said a trade-off of services — say, the city provides crossing guards if the school district provides free gymnasiums — is a "possibility that our attorneys will have to study."

Superintendent Ed Irons had proposed such a trade-off, but school trustees did not discuss the possibility at their meeting. Instead, they focused only on the legal aspects of direct payment for school crossing guards.

In any event, Waters said, the school district will "ensure the safety of our children. If the city were to abandon the crossing guards, law or no law, we (school officials) would do it ourselves."

At their meeting, though, school trustees seemed confident that the city would not drop the crossing-guard program. "If we don't pay it, they're going to continue to pay it," Waters had told his colleagues.

According to Irons, cost of the crossing guards — stationed at more than 30 locations in the city — is about $58,000 a year.

The same city-school conflict has surfaced in Amarillo and Wichita Falls, and was the subject of debate years ago in Lubbock, Irons said.

In 1962, for instance, school attorney Charles Cobb issued an opinion that the school district has "no legislative authority for such expenditures" as crossing guards.

Cobb stated, "A school district does not have general police powers." The school board relied on that same

Butz Says Assistant Secretary Works To Farmers' Detriment

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz today called an assistant secretary of agriculture for consumers "dangerous" and said she works to the detriment of farmers.

Speaking to more than 100 farmers and agribusinessmen at the University-City Club, Butz said Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Foreman is more effective and has a stronger political base than Secretary Bob Bergland.

"That's why she is a dangerous person where she is," Butz said.

One of his criticisms was that she was responsible, he said, for the Department of Agriculture's recommendation of 25 percent less meat in American diets.

"Carol Foreman has done for meat consumption in this country what the Titanic did for ocean travel," he said.

"I feel that if we're going to have an assistant secretary of agriculture for consumers, we ought to have an assistant secretary of labor for farmers."

Butz, secretary under Presidents Nixon and Ford, asked after the 7:45 a.m. breakfast how many farmers were in attendance. More than half raised their hands.

He spoke Wednesday afternoon at a fund-raising dinner for the Lubbock County Republican Party and Wednesday night at the West Texas Agricultural Chemicals Conference at the Civic Center.

Answering questions after his half-hour talk this morning, Butz said foreign investments in American

Fair Entertains Special Youths

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Hundreds of Lubbock area special children had their fling at the fair this morning with the grounds of the 61st annual Panhandle South Plains Fair geared for their particular needs.

Assisted by volunteers from the community, children handicapped in some way toured exhibit buildings, ate a sack lunch while enjoying Bob Ford's world of magic and rode free on Gene Ledel's slow rides.

Grounds were closed to all but the 1,100 children and volunteers until after lunch.

The fair association furnished ingredients for a hot dog sack lunch which Lubbock firefighters put together along with items donated by Lubbock merchants.

Gene Ledel, who has been making the Lubbock fair since his grandfather brought his carnival here, threw open the gates to rides slow enough for the children to enjoy.

Andy Rasoli, whose father Alex was a longtime veteran of the Lubbock midway, continued his father's tradition of offering free balloons.

Booths operated by Lubbock organizations on the independent midway distributed their wares free, adding things like cold drinks, cotton candy, popcorn, jewelry and some fun games to the day's excitement.

More than 700 of the children came from the Lubbock State School with others coming from all over the South Plains as part of the Lubbock Region Mental Health and Mental Retardation group.

Buses for the state school transfer to and from the fair were furnished by Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma Coaches, Inc.

Cokes were furnished by the local distributor, Morton Foods put in potato

Today At The Fair

Today is Senior Citizens Day with all persons over 65 admitted free. It also is the last Lubbock area school day with students and teachers admitted free on passes for any announced school day.

6-10 p.m. — Free entertainment, outdoor stage.

7:30 p.m. — All Youth Rides, livestock pavilion.

8 p.m. — Eddie Rabbit and Jerry Cleaver, costume show.

All Day — Junior high school creative arts show in 4-N Children's Barnyard, exhibits in all buildings, gem and mineral show, flower festival.

THRILLS APLENTY — The Panhandle South Plains Fair has had its ups and downs this week, and testing some of them Wednesday was Erin Hess, a Texas Tech University junior from New Jersey. The roller coaster may not be the world's biggest, but Miss Hess's face seems to show that it provides plenty of excitement.

Munich Passes Noise Controls

MUNICH, West Germany (UPI) — The world's beer drinkers are enjoying the 144th Oktoberfest in customary noisy fashion. Next year's revelers may not be as raucous if the Christian Social Union party has its way.

Noise swells daily from the beer tents on the world-famous Theresienwiese as brass bands blare away, rousing beer swillers to full-voiced renditions of German drinking songs as they link arms and sway from side to side along the long drinking tables.

The occasional scream from passengers on the giant ferris wheel or a yell from spectators witnessing a traditional beer brawl pierces the air, adding to the din.

All this adds up to 100 decibels worth of noise, sometimes more. Christian Social Union members, who control Munich's city council, think that's pushing traditional Bavarian hospitality too far.

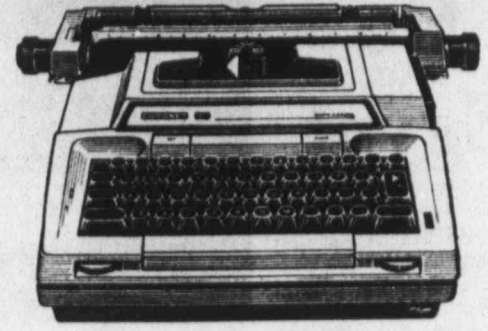

So they've passed a resolution proposing that the noise be kept down to 85 decibels. They claim the proposal is in the best interests of the conventional merry-making of the Oktoberfest.

The noise must be kept down, the council members explained, "so that the original, typically Bavarian cameraderie is not endangered, and so that the traditional Bavarian music of the brass bands in the tents is not buried by the din of electronic recordings."

It seems the politicians are thinking of another German tradition — the love of drinkers, or stop the sausage salesmen touting their tasty wares with loud appeals to the passing crowd.

Albania Eyes India As New Protector

By SYLVANA FOA
VIENNA (UPI) — Tiny isolationist Albania has focused on India as a possible new foster parent and protector to replace China, according to East European officials.

Since its 17-year alliance with Peking abruptly ended in July, Albania has been urgently seeking a new friend and ally — one large enough to provide long-term assistance, but not strong enough or close enough to be a future predator.

East European officials said the Albanians' search for the ideal ally had led them to dispatch several high-level trade delegations to India, a source rich in possible technical, if not material, aid.

Albanian diplomats refused to comment on reports Indian advisers might soon appear in their revolutionary nation strategically placed at the mouth of the Adriatic Sea.

"We have no information to give at this time," an Albanian Embassy spokesman said. "But there may be an announcement on this matter next week."

Other East European officials said Peking's cancellation of all economic and military assistance to Albania, once China's only European ally, had left Albania "high and dry."

"Albania has at least 15 major, unfinished projects left over from the Chinese," said one official. "The projects represent several billions of dollars worth of heavy industry and many are near completion."

The official said Albania was focusing on New Delhi because the Indians, for years the recipients of Russian aid, are highly experienced in Soviet technology and construction techniques.

"The Chinese were trained on the Soviet model and therefore projects begun in Albania under Chinese advisers are based on Soviet technology," the official said. "Albania needs advisers who can follow a Russian blueprint and the Indians fit the bill perfectly."

Indian diplomats said they had not been informed of any agreements between the governments based in New Delhi and Tirana.

"I don't even think we have diplomatic relations with Albania," said one Indian official.

Western diplomats said they "would not be at all surprised" to see Albania courting India.

"The Albanians have run through all their possible Communist patrons," said one diplomat. "First they broke with Yugoslavia for ideological reasons in 1948, then they quarreled with Moscow in 1961 and now they've broken up with China.

"The only Communist friend (Albanian leader Enver) Hoxha has left is Hanoi — and the Vietnamese have their own problems right now."

War-Fearing Americans Take Safety Precautions

By DONALD C. BROWN JR.
 United Press International Writer

In the thick pine forests about a mile from where the Atlantic breakers burst against the cliffs of Maine, Asa E. Phillips Jr. and his family of blueblood patriots are ready to ride out a nuclear holocaust in style.

Like a silent sentry on lookout for a nuclear doomsday, his cinder block fallout shelter waits beside the family's summer home. The shelter — 30 feet long, 15 feet wide and 12 feet high — is filled with the necessities of life — canned food, drums of water — and some of the luxuries like decanters of the most expensive liquor.

There has been a Phillips in America since before the War of Independence and Phillips is determined his family will survive any war — even one fought with ICBMs and fallout clouds instead of musket balls and cannon bursts.

"Every patriotic American should have a fallout shelter," or at least the knowledge of the use of one, said Phillips. "You know you don't need a complete shelter. You can make a corner of a basement into a fallout shelter if you know what you're doing."

"I think the danger is greater now than it was ever before. Eight countries now have the bomb," said Phillips, a Massachusetts lawyer and past president of the Order of Patriots and Founders.

"You know, Russia is way ahead of us on this thing. They have whole cities underground."

Halfway across the continent in the cornfield country of central Illinois, A. Webber Borchers also is ready to face the unthinkable.

Borchers, a wealthy former state lawmaker who decries the current state of nuclear preparedness in the United States, built a vault-fallout shelter at his Decatur, Ill., home in the early 60s.

"We are not well prepared and we should be," he said.

"The interest has fallen off and I think it's a mistake. In the olden days you never knew when the Indian attack would come but you still would have a blockhouse. We're not civilized yet and should have our blockhouses."

But in the Armageddon of atomic attack most Americans would be lucky to find a fallout shelter and if they did, they would likely have little more than a few stale crackers to last them through the hard rain of nuclear fallout.

American civil defense measures peaked during the 1962 missile crisis and have been near-moribund since.

Military and civilian supporters for a marked increase in civil defense claim that if the Soviets made an all-out first nuclear strike on the United States now that half the U.S. population — more than 100 million people — would die and another 35 million would require medical attention.

These same sources say that under the same general war, "worst case" conditions, the Soviet Union would probably suffer a loss of only 4 or 5 percent of its 260 million people because of vastly superior civil defense and evacuation planning.

rior civil defense and evacuation planning.

The supporters of civil defense got a boost earlier this summer when President Carter sent a message to Congress asking for the creation of a Federal Emergency Management Agency that would include an upgraded Defense Civil Preparedness Agency merged with groups handling natural disasters.

Administration officials say the agency would streamline the disaster bureaucracy and save millions of dollars. Part of the agency's purpose would be to better protect Americans in case of a nuclear war.

The announcement pleased state civil defense and natural disaster organizations that say the nation's civil defense capacity has deteriorated to a state akin to that of the now-moldering survival crackers that were stored in public shelters in the early 1960s.

"Pretty sad," was the way E. Erie Jones, director of Illinois' Emergency Services and Disaster Agency, described the United States' current state of civil defense preparedness.

"There's still a lot of rotten crackers and rusty water cans," he said about current food supplies in Illinois' fallout shelters. "You wouldn't eat the crackers unless you were literally starving to death."

Civil defense officials in other states echo that view.

"On a scale of 1 to 10, I would say we're at 2 compared to European countries," said Bob Gregory, Nevada's civil defense director.

The civil defense officials sadly contrast America's state of readiness with that of the Soviets, who give civil defense the same priority they do their armed forces and reportedly spent billions on their civil defense program last year compared to the $80 million the Carter administration requested in 1977.

Sources say the Russians have built hardened bomb shelters under most large apartment buildings in Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev and have a contingency plan to evacuate the population of these cities to collective farms within 72 hours.

The Soviet civil defense system even includes an estimated 100 hours of instruction for Soviet school children on the effects of nuclear weapons and civil defense procedures.

But while American civil defense officials are pleased with the new attention their program is receiving from the Carer administration, not everyone believes it is necessary or wise to increase nuclear preparedness.

Critics claim the United States and the Soviet Union, with their nuclear arsenals, have "assured mutual destruction" and no adequate protection is possible.

Other skeptics say new emphasis on civil defense would mean a return to the atomic fears of the 1950s and 60s and increase the global tension that could actually lead to a nuclear war.

But the civil defense officials, pleased with the attention after the long years of neglect, downplay such worries.

"I don't think this is a return to the clear fear of the 50s and early 60s," said Alexander Cunningham, director of the California Office of Emergency Services. "People are realizing you just can't give civil defense lip service."

San Francisco Outlawing Pet Excrement

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Some pet owners plan to rebel by walking their dogs in the dark or sneaking them into the bushes, but others are resigned to cleaning up dog droppings, as required under a new city ordinance.

The ordinance — similar to the one adopted in New York City — prohibits dog owners from leaving their pets' excrement on public or private property in San Francisco. It goes into effect Oct. 20.

"I want to make it clear that we will enforce this law," said Mayor George Moscone, as he signed the ordinance into law.

"Of course, I hope that enforcement will be largely voluntary on the part of citizens who own dogs," he added. "We don't want to make this a police state or a police city, and we can't afford to have a special police unit to deal with this matter."

Several dogs owners were already searching for creative solutions for the "pooper-scooper" dictum.

"I'll just try to give Patch his longest walk in the dark," said attorney Neil Goeteiner, who owns a 1½-year-old sable Sheltie.

Jean Walsh, whose Irish Wolfhound Woof races through the park every morning, said she would direct him to the bushes.

"But I can't imagine a cop having the nerve to approach me to hand me a summons, when I have Woof by my side," she said.

Police have already issued verbal warnings to owners whose dogs are caught leaving excrement on the pavement.

Walden Greenwell has been practicing for weeks during his walks with Winnie at Lafayette Park in the plush Pacific Heights section of the city. His coat is stuffed with tissue paper.

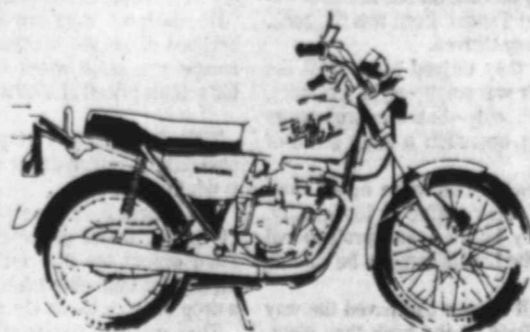

"It's about time. I think it's definitely a necessity, and a good law," said Nomi Zank, an accountant whose five-pound Maltese, Chee Chy, is paper trained.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kenneth May

Bare Facts, Ma'am

A FEDERAL JUDGE opened the doors of the New York Yankees' locker rooms to women sports writers, saying any player who felt this was an invasion of his privacy could wrap a towel around his naked body.

Baseball has lost its place as the Great American Pastime but the judge has returned the game to the fans.

Women's Libbers' joy at being given "the same access to the news and the newsmakers" as are male sportswriters was tempered a bit. It was a male judge who opened the door for them.

Male reporters covering the Miss America Pageant probably will be next to demand "equal access..."

The ruling in the Yankee case shows just how powerful a federal judge is. He's overturned Eve's conviction for eating the apple and sent the case back for re-trial.

JOHN HILL emphatically divorced himself here this week from a State Democratic Convention resolution endorsing collective bargaining for public employees.

"I simply do not support collective bargaining for public employees," the Democratic nominee for governor said. "I don't think we need it."

Hill had said earlier that he opposed the resolution. However, because he otherwise was in firm control of the convention, it could hang like an albatross around his neck unless he goes out of his way to denounce it.

By unequivocally opposing collective bargaining, he is reassuring conservative and moderate voters who would like to support him but distrust the liberals and ultra-liberals who have rallied around him and who currently dominate the state Democratic party.

His calls for tax relief and limits on state spending also will raise his rating with middle-roads.

Steelworkers Union members, whose wages are up 60 percent since 1974, say they'll join President Carter's fight against inflation—so long as it doesn't cost them anything.

If George Washington had had patriots like that, he'd have never made it through the winter at Valley Forge.

The mail brought a letter from someone who is mad at the Texas Highway Department and is "not afraid to speak up."

It was unsigned.

My Neighbor Twice Removed says his wife has been going through mental pause for 30 years that he knows of.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger says: "Were it possible for someone to have begun mailing letters the day David was crowned King of Israel, in 1000 B.C., and had he continued mailing at the rate of one piece per second until now, he still would not have dispatched 95 billion pieces (the amount handled each year by the Postal Service)."

Now we know why the mails are so slow. For heaven's sake, Mr. Bolger, put some more of your 500,000 employees to work! One man can't dispatch it all!

The Crosby County Noxious Weed Control District had a field day demonstrating the success of its work. I wish they'd have another one for the benefit of the Lubbock City Council.

SOMETHING'S WRONG when the games lawyers play won't let jurors learn all the facts.

For example, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has reversed the conviction of a man the jury had found guilty of breaking into a woman's apartment and attacking her.

Its reason? The jury had been allowed to hear the testimony of another woman who said the defendant had raped her three days before.

The testimony of the rape should not have been admitted since it did not bear directly on the burglary charge, the appeals court said.

Well, the law needs to be changed if that's the way it reads. A rape three days before certainly shows a pattern of behavior and would tend to remove jurors' doubts about possible misidentification or the absence of corroborating eyewitnesses to the second offense.

If the law isolates an event so that for all the jury knows it occurred in a vacuum of time, then the law is on the side of the criminal.

CAPE Crusaders All Wet

TAX-REVOLT vehemence apparently cannot seize the initiative with their pro-patriotism down. In the past, they've generally been able to defeat tax and spending limits proposed or placed on the ballot by warning that popular public services would suffer if such limits were imposed.

This time, it didn't work.

California voters, infuriated by spiraling property taxes and staring at a $5 billion state surplus, simply didn't believe the dire predictions. And their skepticism proved justified.

Now the government unions are fighting a rear-guard action to forestall similar tax initiatives or spending limitations in other states, but the momentum is against them. "It looks like we're headed for a wipeout in November," conceded Donovan McClure, associate director of CAPE.

CAPE IS AN acronym for the Coalition of American Public Employes, an umbrella group for five major unions and associations.

CAPE is making no attempt, from the national level, to stem the tide at the polls. Instead, it is saving its resources and energy for combat this winter in the various state legislatures where tax and spending limits are sure to come up.

And it is seeking to get off the defensive and seize the initiative by advocating tax relief through major tax reform, rather than meat-ax cuts that benefit the wealthy more than ordinary homeowners and taxpayers.

"Nobody benefits from a great confrontation between public employes and the public," McClure told news service interviewers. "We've got to get involved early...to guarantee relief to those who need it without sacrificing services for those who need them."

CAPE PLANS to concentrate its campaign in six or eight states where it believes the tax structure is both burdensome and inequitable.

CAPE has its work cut out for it.

Public employe unions have ridden the gravy train so long, without inquiring about its ultimate destination or the source of its fuel supply, that their attempts to get in front of the tax relief issue understandably will generate suspicion.

It will be interesting nonetheless to see what they come up with in the way of reform suggestions. The tax structure in many if not most states could use a thorough inspection, evaluation and overhaul.

And CAPE, for the wrong reasons, is right. It is high time those who spend our taxes start showing some sensitivity to the legitimate gripes of those who pay them.

Bern's Steak Meat Unmatched

TAMPA, FLORIDA—I flew down to Tampa the other day, on an engagement to talk to the Chamber of Commerce about the old virtues. As it turned out, I found the old virtues in a steak house. A story goes with it.

What are the old virtues? The ones I had in mind (there are many others) go to such traits as common sense, self-reliance, hard work, the willingness to take risks.

Add to these a sense of personal devotion and family solidarity. One more virtue: The desire to excel—really to excel—in one particular field.

Now, if you will, meet Bernard H. Laxer and his wife, Gertrude. Ordinarily you will find them at Bern's Steak House at 1280 South Howard Avenue in Tampa.

At other times you might encounter them in the vineyards of California, Germany or France.

Their own business holidays are infrequent, and the Bern's that Tampa loves is a 53-year-old, end-of-the-world, almost an immaculate two-story, black-and-white structure, with white socks and crepe-soled shoes. He never stops working—and he loves it.

THE LAXERS CAME to Tampa from New York in 1925. They wanted all the things that Florida offers—warm winters, clean air, fewer potholes than one encounters in Manhattan.

He was 27, and wasn't quite sure what he wanted to do. For a couple of years he tried the advertising game, but it failed to satisfy. He liked to cook. They talked constantly about a place of their own.

In June of 1931, they had saved $1,400. It was their whole stake, the painfully accumulated little nest egg of three hard years—and it wasn't quite enough to buy out a $1,500 diner.

They went to a Tampa banker who heard their story, made a swift and lucrative character judgment, and loaned them the $100. The Laxers paid it back in four quarterly installments. They laugh about it now, but it was a big deal then.

THEY WENT INTO business as Bern and Gertrude's Little Midway on Cass Street, in the downtown business area of Tampa. Bern was the cook, Gertrude the waitress. They thrived.

And the point is, they thrived because of the old virtues. The diner was small—eight feet wide, seating 26 customers only—but the proprietors brought to their tiny operation a large sense of service.

They made sandwiches that were minor masterpieces; they kept their coffee at top quality. Gertrude met all the key business and professional figures of the city. The Laxers came to be characters.

By 1956, their small success had paved the way to a larger plunge. Back to the bank they went, this time for a much greater loan. They bought out a place called "The Beer Haven" on Howard Street, and there they established Bern's Steak House.

AT ABOUT THIS time, Bern's fondness for good wine began to become an obsession. He studied the arts of enology incessantly. The enterprise began to grow.

A couple of decades can be summed up in a few sentences. The Laxers hired students from the University of Tampa and the University of

Beware Of Gods Bearing Gifts

WASHINGTON—"Why you. And why now?" were the first questions flung at Sen. Ted Kennedy at his recent press conference about his week in the Soviet Union.

If they were hostile darts, they were the only ones of that nature.

Ted is not on the Armed Services or Foreign Relations Committees, so why would he rate a two-hour interview with Brezhnev and other Soviet officials, "the primary emphasis" in the Senator's words, being on "arms control and military deployment, the political issues between our two nations and the issue of civil rights."

Kennedy had the answers in hand for his true believers. He was in Moscow as a delegate of Alma Ata, a UN-sponsored health program, and he had been invited more than a year ago, quite apart from the ongoing SALT negotiations.

ONLY KENNEDY cultists accept his innocence on any matter. Questions for skeptics: Is Ted letting the Soviets make him a peacenik patsy on their terms?

Is he playing one-upmanship on President Carter in foreign policy, so that peace, Soviet style will have Ted's support when SALT II comes to the Senate for ratification?

Will the undiminished Kennedy mystique seep through the country—even sweep through it—so that the all-too-mild terms of Carter-Vance-Warke will turn to mush and we find that the Soviet Union has effectively dictated disarmament rules?

Down the years, I have startled pro-American right-wingers by not being a Kennedy-hater. The only advantage has been objectivity and the ambitions of John, Robert and Edward Kennedy are as visible to me as to you.

THE SENATOR HAD a list of 18 Russian families who wanted to get out and whom he was able to spring. Nine of them would join relatives in Ted's home state, eight would go to Israel.

The 18th, Dr. Benjamin Levich, a respected physical chemist, will be permitted to accept an invitation on the MIT faculty. Among the group is an infant said to need Western medical care for indigestion.

There is a great deal here which smells of the smoke screen. The way to the American heart is the rescue of scientists and sick children, and Ted has done what Carter couldn't.

What this means in political profiteering is obvious, but Kennedy does not have to out the President in 1980 in order to make hay.

In the press conference, I had a question which the senator answered before I got it in. I wanted to know what he meant by his remark that there were "positive signals" of rapport and at least "a temporary thaw" in Russo-American relations, and that we should take advantage of the opportunity. He said release of these 18 families (50 persons in all), as well as the suspended sentence of the American white collar convict, Francis Crawford, was what he meant by the improvement in detente.

He didn't say that only Sen. Edward Kennedy could have brought off these humane-diplomatic coups. But the American people will think so, and will look to this man who could be mistaken

Is CAB Plane Fare On Charter Reforms?

NEVER BEFORE HAS the federal government pushed so aggressively to lower plane fares to save money for the millions of us who must or want to travel by air for business, vacations, etc.

On top of the sweeping new regulations from the Civil Aeronautics Board that could slash your coach fares by as much as 70 percent on scheduled airlines, the CAB is proposing reforms to make it easier for you to withdraw from charters in which significant changes are made at the last minute.

Under the board's proposals: You, a charter participant, could cancel your reservations and receive full refunds if any of several "major" alterations are made to the charter package after you have signed your contract. New disclosures also would be required in charter advertising.

A DETAILED REVIEW of these new proposals plus other comprehensive protection regulations is to be undertaken this coming month (October). And this is not all.

Other broad charter reforms were instituted by the CAB just a few weeks ago—with some effective immediately, others to go into effect starting Jan. 1, 1979.

In its earlier actions, the CAB liberalized charter rules to eliminate most current charter forms and to replace them with a single form called "Public Charters." As a result, there will be:

- No advance purchase requirements;
- No minimum stay requirement;
- No restrictions on discount pricing;
- No minimum group size.

IN ADDITION, while the CAB will permit one-way charters among others, it will bar open-end round-trip charters—great good news for all of you who have found yourselves stranded on the other side of the ocean after having paid for a return flight, but with no return charter flight and no funds to make alternate deals.

Charters were responsible for nine out of 10 complaints logged against agents and tour operators by the Office of the Consumer Advocate of the CAB last year.

Inherent in the problem was the infancy of the mass charter market, which really only began to take off three years ago.

Nightmarish stories spread about charter passengers sleeping at terminals overseas, about unexpected cancellations and defaults, about charters that took bookings and then never even got off the ground.

BUT NOW IF the CAB proposals are adopted and you are a charter passenger, you may be able to cancel your reservation if:

- * There is an alteration of departure or return date;
- * The origin or destination city is changed;
- * You are assigned a hotel other than the one named in the operator-participant contract;
- * The price of your tour is hiked 10 percent, whether all at once or in smaller chunks. No increases would be allowed after the 10th day before departure.

Should you be advised of a major change by the charter operator, you would have seven days in which to cancel and you would be entitled to receipt of a refund seven days after cancellation.

The bulk of all those confusing "alphabet soup" special regulation charter names will be eliminated beginning Jan. 1, 1979.

Due to disappear are such names as Advance Booking Charters (ABCs), Travel Group Charters (TGCs), Study Group Charters (SGCs), Inclusive Tour Charters (ITCs), and One-stop-inclusive Tour Operators (OTOs).

Affinity group and single-entity charters will remain because, says the CAB, of the specialized nature of the groups to which they appeal.

If you're among the never-to-be-counted thousands who have been through agony because of charter cancellations, slow refunds, poor or inadequate advisory service from charter tour operators, none of this big news about spectacular reforms will be much consolation to you.

YOU ALREADY have lost your vacation or money or had your dreams ruined.

But at least you—along with the countless numbers to follow you on charter flights—will have the assurance of new protections on future trips.

And the benefits should start to flow to you on any autumn or end-of-the-year holiday trip.

Should you wish to comment on any of the projected changes, write to CAB, Docket Section, Docket 29165, Washington, D. C. by the deadline of Oct. 23, 1978.

Fire Hits 'M-A-S-H' Set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "M.A.S.H." cast often comes under "fire" in the hit television series about the Korean War, but a real fire sent them scurrying from the set.

Alan Alda, Mike Farrell, Henry Morgan, Loretta Swit, David Ogden Stiers and Jamie Farr were working on an episode of the CBS series Wednesday when an electrical short apparently sparked a blaze in a wall of the set.

A spokesman for 20th Century-Fox said the fire was put out quickly and little damage was done. One member of the film crew suffered smoke inhalation but was not hospitalized.

Wallace Doubts Future Campaigns

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George Wallace, paralyzed since he was gunned down in 1972, says he doesn't expect to run for public office again.

WALLACE

"I might not be giving that same answer if I hadn't had something unfortunate happen to me," Wallace said Wednesday, referring to the assassination attempt that left him confined to a wheelchair.

Wallace completes an unprecedented third term as Alabama governor in January. He is barred by state law from succeeding himself.

He said he was not serious several months ago when he indicated he would run for governor in 1982 if he disapproved of his successor's performance.

Johnny Cash Hospitalized

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A hard singing tour through the West has put Johnny Cash in the hospital for rest and tests.

CASH

His secretary, Irene Gibbs, said Wednesday that the 46-year-old country-western singer entered Memorial Hospital on Tuesday and was expected to be discharged by Saturday.

"It's very routine," she said. "He just got back from a strenuous tour out West and also ran into some bad weather out there."

Cash had a cold and cough when he talked to a reporter last week.

No Celebrations

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be no official birthday celebrations for the Shah of Iran and Crown Prince Reza this year.

A spokesman for the Iranian embassy said Wednesday the shah canceled the Oct. 26 and Oct. 31 festivities to divert money to help survivors of an earthquake that killed an estimated 25,000 Iranians in the Tabas area.

Spokesman Ali Tabatabai said there was no estimate of how much money would go to the earthquake relief effort. But, he added, "It would be millions of dollars considering the number of embassies around the world and the celebrations in Iran itself."

Ultimate Gift

DALLAS (AP) — Neiman-Marcus, the Dallas-based specialty store, is now offering the ultimate gift for the person who has everything — a granite mountain cavern to store it in.

Neiman-Marcus's just-released Christmas catalogue contains three "his and hers" 700-cubic-foot, temperature- and humidity-controlled vaults deep within a 9,000-foot mountain in Utah's Wasatch Range. The price — $90,000 for a 50-year lease.

"One may store here, with impunity and far from all-uninvited eyes, the originals of oils you'd hate to lose, the real jewelry, a very rare vintage Bordeaux, a golden ingot or two ..." the catalogue says.

Protecting the vault, in addition to its natural setting, is a surveillance system with closed-circuit and hair-trigger alarms powered by waterfall-generated electricity.

Legionnaire Death Cited

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati health officials report the fifth case of Legionnaires disease in the city since January and the first fatality, but said there was no danger of an outbreak.

Dr. Arnold Leff, Cincinnati health commissioner, said Wednesday all of the cases reported so far have been isolated.

A 60-year-old Cincinnati man, admitted to a hospital with pneumonia and later diagnosed as Legionnaires disease, died Saturday, health officials said.

Dr. Stanley Troup, director of the University of Cincinnati Medical Center, said the disease was a contributing factor in the man's death but might not have been the exact cause. He said Legionnaires disease is a form of pneumonia caused by a bacteria.

Troup ordered the hospital not to release the name of the victim "to protect the privacy of the man's family."

Both health officials said the man, who lived in Millvale, a public housing project near an industrial area, was admitted to Cincinnati General Hospital four weeks before he died.

The disease was named after 29 persons died in Philadelphia in 1976 during a convention of Pennsylvania chapters of the American Legion.

New York City reported an outbreak of the disease in its garment district earlier this month.

Firm Sees Device As Means Of Reducing Auto Thefts

By JEFFERY L. SHELER
 DETROIT (UPI) — A small Detroit firm has come up with a device it says disproves the belief there is no sure-fire way to protect a car from a professional thief.

Officials of Keycon Corp. say their new computerized device locks and disables a car so effectively it renders other anti-theft devices "virtually obsolete."

"We even consulted with some ex-car thieves, and they said the system would delay a thief so long he probably would give up and go find another target," company president Donald D. Richardson said at a recent demonstration of the device.

The Keycon system consists of a small electronic computer fitted behind the instrument panel which automatically locks the doors, hood and trunk, disables the engine, raises all windows and closes the sunroof when the driver emerges from the car.

The system is activated when the driver removes the ignition key, gets out of the car and closes the door. If the keys are left in the ignition, the device sets off the horn and prevents the doors from locking.

The car becomes operable again only when the driver unlocks the door with the regular key and slips a specially coded plastic card into a slot on the dashboard.

Richardson said Keycon improves upon the "limited features" of anti-theft devices offered by auto manufacturers and could go a long way toward reducing car thefts which total more than a million a year.

"None of the others," he said, "automatically locks the doors, raises the windows, closes the sunroof, double-locks the trunk or activates the horn and prevents the doors from locking when the keys are left."

Richardson said other systems which lock the hood and disable the engine can be defeated by a "zealous, skilled thief who can crawl beneath the car and attempt to disconnect it."

The Keycon system, he said, disables the engine from the top and can be tampered with only by opening the hood — which is locked.

The system, which the company said took 10 years to develop, is designed primarily for luxury cars — the most frequent targets of professional thieves — equipped with automatic windows and central locking systems.

Cars with manual windows and locks still could be equipped with a scaled-down system that would disable the engine.

Richardson said production of the device is getting underway and will be sold through franchised automobile dealers and independent Keycon dealers.

The company is trying to convince automobile manufacturers to purchase the device for use as original equipment in some models. It said the device meets or exceeds specifications in a proposed federal regulation that would require anti-theft devices in all automobiles manufactured after Sept. 1, 1980.

IT'LL MAKE SOMEONE ELSE FEEL GOOD.

It's a good feeling to know you've helped someone in need, and that's what the United Way is all about. The child with a handicap who must be taught to cope within the limits of that handicap. The old man who's alone and sick and depressed. The family that's been twisted and torn by alcoholism. This year, give again to the United Way as generously as you can. So that those who can't help themselves today will be able to help others tomorrow.

Mission Proves Successful In Poor Neighborhood

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (UPI) — The side door of the Beacon Light Mission slammed open and a four-foot white boy with dirt on his cheeks scrambled inside. The white boy raced around a desk and to the side of a black minister, the Rev. George Cummings, 25. A black teenager backed through the open door, told a minor mob outside to shut up and closed the door behind him.

Cummings put a black hand on the white boy's shoulder. Looking at the teen-ager, Cummings said, "Curtis, what are they trying to do to Freddy?"

"Kill him," said Curtis. "They say Freddy stole the peanut butter." He grinned.

Cummings sucked in air and let it out slowly. He and a white minister, his college friend Al Chase, 31, had come to the Bridgeport mission this summer and their friends and advisers had told them they were crazy.

hood adults to connect up with government programs, with jobs, with remedial education, with better housing."

He gestured toward the street outside. "No one in this community has political clout. So we'll help the people help themselves."

Cummings nodded. "It's easy to get kids to the Beacon Light."

"It's harder to reach the adults."

And Cummings is here because so many of the West End adults are black. On the wall behind his desk is a framed drawing of the heads of Martin Luther King Jr., Malcolm X and Eldridge Cleaver.

"Al and I are not blithering idealists. Me, I grew up black in Brooklyn, hating. I didn't feel part of what America is supposed to be. My Christian faith is my root. I still have prejudices; I work hard at erasing them," Cummings said.

The black minister said he realized the problems of using a mission to help a racially mixed neighborhood as yet un-ware that help is on the way. Did he expect any trouble over being black?

Cummings shook his head. He said Chase was a white man who is not patronizing. Chase knows what to do and how to do it. The black man paused.

"If any white thinks I'm a nigger, they better know this nigger is smarter than they are."

"It used to be the thing to compartmentalize religion," said Chase. "But today religion is broader. Religion is out to take effect on all aspects of life. Not just the spirit, though that's most important, but also on how a man eats and works and lives."

The zebra team began talking about joint sermons. With the youth and their first neighborhoods contacts, they were at work on the West End's mind and body. The sermons begin the spiritual assault.

"Oh, we have big plans for the Beacon Light," said Chase. "We have $54,690 a year and all the good we can do." The zebra team smiled. The ministers each have a wife and Chase has two boys and both take $12,000 a year in salary.

Outside, at the front door, a neighborhood adult had stopped, looking at Curtis, Freddy and the other boys playing ball. The man started to move on. He turned and walked up the mission steps.

Inside, in the kitchen, Mrs. Petit washed a curtain in the sink. She said,

"The quiet is gone now. All the neighborhood youngsters coming in."

"They make lots of noise. One boy shoved another boy's head through a wall petition. Progress."

She turned and swung open the refrigerator. There was nothing inside but one jar. It was the peanut butter Freddy hadn't stolen.

Chase and Cummings had been graduated from the Gordon Conwell Theological Seminary in the Boston suburb of South Hamilton. A classmate was former President Gerald R. Ford's eldest son Michael. They each had been offered posts in rich Baptist churches. The two said no.

They said they wanted to work together, a black minister and a white minister.

"They called us a zebra team, George black and me white," said Chase. "They said zebra teams don't work," he said. Chase sat on a folding chair opposite Cummings' desk and beside the standing Curtis.

Cummings grinned. "I had an idea a zebra team can work," he said. "My wife is white."

Outside black youths made noises on the side porch of the three-story Victorian house, once the Lee family mansion in a post-Civil War neighborhood whose occupants had made Bridgeport into Connecticut's industrial capital but now a peeling eyesore in a West End area given over to food stamp users and factory workers.

The porch noises had changed. No more chants for Freddy's head. Dan Smith, a Newburyport, Mass., high school graduate and athlete recruited by Chase, had grabbed their attention with a soccer ball.

Inside, Cummings used a forefinger to lift Freddy's chin and he asked the boy about the peanut butter. "I didn't," the boy said. "I didn't."

The minister looked at the boy and then at Curtis. "Curtis, you take Freddy back outside and if anyone lays a hand on him, I'll have your head," he said.

Curtis ushered Freddy out. Through the door once had come the derelicts of Bridgeport.

"Businessmen founded the Beacon Light Mission. It was Dec. 3, 1936, depression days. In those days the mission had old women come in and do sewing and be preached at about womanly virtues," Cummings said.

"That was before the government got so big in welfare," said Chase. "The mission then was downtown. Then it moved over to Lafayette and then it came here."

Social Security, workmen's compensation, jobless benefits, the New and Square and Fair Deals of Washington, these and other welfare programs subtracted from the mission's work. And the Salvation Army began handling the drunks.

A fading, framed photograph in the mission's unused dining room — dishes stacked in a glass highboy — shows one of the groups of neighborhood children the mission sent to summer camp. Photographs of mission heyday leaders stare out from the wall in 1930s dress.

Upstairs, Dan Smith sleeps in what had been Mrs. Stella Buckley's room. Mrs. Buckley, now 88 and gone to a rest home, once tended the now gone garden flowers. Mrs. Irene Petit, 66, still lives upstairs, a living symbol of the mission's drift until the coming of Cummings and Chase.

The mission is Protestant. Mrs. Petit is Roman Catholic. But seven years ago she had nowhere to go on her small pension and so moved in. She became the curtain cleaner, window washer and floor sweeper in a mission of dwindling use.

For two years the mission trustees, donating money more out of habit than from interest, had installed a young college graduate, a student of sociology. Here, in a neighborhood of multiracial families chiefly concerned with mustering rent money, he had decorated the front room with daisies and opened a coffee house for college students.

That died quickly and the sociology student departed. The mission perhaps was dying. Still, the board sent out word it wanted a minister. To the board's surprise, Cummings and Chase applied.

"We may be the mission's last chance. We're do or die," Cummings said. The zebra pair came because they could work together on what they wanted — a mission in a poor neighborhood. "We're here to deal with the needs of the spirit, body and mind," Chase said.

"You cannot just deal with the spirit. You have to deal with the mind and the body as well. Which means we want to bring these people in the neighborhood Jesus Christ and also help bring them jobs, money, education, better housing."

Chase came to the mission with a background of youth and religious work in Chicago — "God sort of stacked the deck there for me; I was there in the summer of '68 and the police roughed me up a bit" and in St. Paul — "Some of the kids we managed to help but others went to narcotics."

Chase talked from his folding chair of first helping the youth of this neighborhood by giving them somewhere to play. There is not a basketball court in half a mile and the zebra team is planning to tear down the mission garage to make a court. There is a pool table in one room and in the front room with the altar is a pingpong table.

Chase talked of them using the youth as a road to their parents. "We can help the mind and body by helping the neighbor-

Publisher Raps Business' Obscure Terminology

By LEROY POPE
 NEW YORK (UPI) — There are those in business who complain they seldom know what graduate business school professors are talking or writing about. Jim Kennedy who lives in a town with the quaint name of Fitzwilliam, N.H., says they are perfectly justified. Kennedy is a former New York corporate public relations man who moved in to the field of management consulting and then into publishing a monthly news letter for the management consulting, accounting and executive recruiting businesses. Called Consultants News, the news letter deals with trends and personalities in the three fields and on occasion speaks out very bluntly about practices it considers unethical or foolish. As an old PR man, one of Kennedy's pet quarrels is with pompous and esoteric gobbledegook in business communications. Not long ago, he read the program of the 38th annual meeting of the Academy of Management in San Francisco. The more he perused the program notes about papers for the meeting supplied by a host of Ph.D.'s from various graduate business schools, the angrier communicator Kennedy got. Finally, he made up a list of the obscurantist terminology and printed it in Consultants News. Here it is and any reader who can accurately define 10 percent of these terms must be an impeccable scholar of virtually unimaginable profundity: Typology, heuristic decision making, cognitive style, coalitional theory, B-mod, data feedback intervention, paradigm, propositional inventory, collaborative values, organistically oriented intervention, role ambiguity, configural use utilization. Also, reprioritizing, multiple rationality, systematicity, metamorphic effects of power, contextual properties of organizations, environmental consonance, interactive integration, addressing problems holistically, summary matrix mode, multivariate studies, asymmetric rivalries and dominant-coalition agreement. Perhaps not entirely obscure to most readers are terms such as constellation of skills, contingency management, legitimation, predictive models and even empirical investigation of alternative methodologies, but there must be simpler ways of getting a point across. Kennedy insists this program is just an average sample of the kind of gobbledegook business school professors spout at executives who have no time to look up such terms even if their interest is aroused, which it usually isn't. But while urging business school professors to "drop their foggy terminology," Kennedy concedes that many of them are very knowledgeable. He notes that dwindling enrollments in the business schools is causing some of the professors to leave academe and set up as private consultants. "But if they are going to be successful, they'd better drop all that academic jargon," Kennedy advises.

Investing Dip Not Serious

By JOHN CUNNING
 NEW YORK (AP) — One week ago a foundation attracted considerable media attention, as it intended to do, by issuing what appeared to be a decidedly contrary opinion about the stock market.

Said the fund: "The declining role of individual investors in the nation's stock markets has been greatly exaggerated, according to a new study published today for the Twentieth Century Fund."

The reference apparently cast doubt on what has become accepted as an undisputed statistical fact — that the number of individual investors has shrunk markedly, and that huge institutions now dominate trading.

But on reading the scholarly report by Marshall Blume and Irwin Friend of the Wharton School, prosaically called "The

Analysis

Changing Role of The Individual Investor," one realizes there's no dispute at all. In the second sentence of the first paragraph of the first chapter of their report, for example, the two distinguished Wharton School professors state unequivocally:

"Among the enormous changes that have taken place in the economy of the United States since World War II is the sharp increase in the proportion of stock owned by institutions and the corresponding decrease in ownership by individual investors."

What the Twentieth Century Fund might more accurately have stated is that the consequences of the decline rather than the decline itself might not be as serious as some people claimed them to be. "It's not quite the way I would have written it," said Blume, disclaiming responsibility for the news release.

The authors don't merely concede there's been a dramatic shift of ownership that can hardly be exaggerated. They declare it, and document it. But they urge care when making interpretations.

For instance, said Blume, despite the growth in institutional trading to 70 percent, individuals still own more than half the shares outstanding. They own more shares but they trade less.

Whatever, he said, the point "wasn't the primary emphasis of the book; it's not the important factor."

The study, for instance, also casts doubts on tax proposals designed to spur investment. And it questions the judgment of individual investors. "I'm not sure if they're stupid or reckless," said Blume.

But these and other findings are for the moment lost sight of because of the misimpression that the authors challenge the decline of individuals and the rise of institutions as market forces.

In actual fact, various parties are concerned that transformation of the market — to one in which institutions do most of the trading in large, blue-chip stocks — has had material consequences.

Some capital-hungry companies, for example, maintain the institutions ignore their securities while filling portfolios with shares of a favored 50 or a favored 100 companies, such as AT&T and IBM.

Frequently it is observed that, unlike individuals, institutions cannot invest in small companies but, because of their great volume, must restrict their activities to only the very largest.

Such behavior over a period of time, it would seem, might deprive small but growing companies of capital, while enhancing the size of already large concerns, simply because they already are large.

Pension fund portfolio managers also concede they tend to be conservative rather than risk-takers because of the "prudent man" rule that makes them personally liable for their investment choices.

And, as Blume and Friend observe, institutions fail to exercise voting power in companies, choosing instead to express displeasure by selling shares, making the affected companies more vulnerable to takeovers.

Individuals, they say, might outperform institutions by investing in small issues that have the potential for substantial gains. In contrast, institutions rarely can outperform the general market.

And that, it would seem, is a very, very major difference between a market of individuals and one of institutions, a difference that by no means is greatly exaggerated.

Briton To Support Sadat For Nobel

LONDON (AP) — Patrick Cormack, a Conservative member of the House of Commons, says he is going to nominate President Anwar Sadat for the Nobel Peace Prize. Cormack says he doesn't undervalue the contribution of Prime Minister Menachem Begin or "the herculean efforts of President Carter. But ... without President Sadat's initiative and his refusal to be deflected by disappointment or bullying, there would have been no Camp David summit."

Japanese Doctor Sees Sex Crime Increase

TOKYO (AP) — A leading Japanese sex and marriage counselor says sexually frustrated Japanese wives will pass along those frustrations to their sons by pushing them to succeed.

Dr. Yasushi Narabayashi, head of a new clinic attached to the Japanese Family Planning Research Institute, said postwar social change combined with a lack of understanding of human sexuality in official circles is also likely to result in an increase of sex crimes in Japan.

"There is not a single Japanese medical school offering courses on human sexuality today," Narabayashi, author of a best-seller on sex, told the foreign correspondents club of Japan.

"A wife who is sexually frustrated will take a manic interest in her son," he said. "She will steer him toward the single goal of success in Japan's education-oriented society, thus passing all her own sexual frustrations on to him."

In Japan, more than 50 percent of high school graduates go on to a university, a requirement for success in Japan. But the price of such success can be sexual impotence, Narabayashi said.

"It is common for frustrated mothers trying to get their sons to study to instill their sons with negative thoughts about young women," he added.

"During all his youth, the young man has been told to treat women as the enemy, the stumbling block to success," he said.

Narabayashi said impotence and frigid-ity are major problems in Japan and there is very little clinical help for people suffering from sexual problems.

"Japanese authorities treat a person's sex as if it was his appendix — something only vaguely attached to the body," he said.

OUT-OF-POCKET — With row upon row of stuffed animals staring him in the face, Norman Libin isn't exactly doing a thriving business. Like many other midway operators at the Panhandle South Plains Fair, the Miami Beach, Fla., man says he is losing money because of the steady rain which came into town about the same time the fair did. ### Scout Camps Out For Four Years

COVENTRY, England (UPI) — After four years, three months and eight days, Graham Hurry has decided to come in from the cold — and his entry in the Guinness Book of Records.

On June 19, 1974, Hurry, then a 14-year-old Boy Scout, moved into a tent pitched in his backyard. After one year of camping out, he shared first prize in a national scouting competition, but decided to stay on in the great outdoors.

After three years, he won an entry in the Guinness Book of Records. But Tuesday, the 18-year-old announced he'd had enough and moved back into his parents' house.

Lawmakers Leery Of Attribution

By WILLIAM E. CLAYTON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The "source" story about Henry Kissinger is the most notorious example: when he was traveling about on diplomatic trips, he would tell reporters things that could be attributed only to "a senior U.S. official."

In time, it was obvious to everyone that the "senior U.S. official" was Kissinger, but the attribution persisted, because it was diplomatically better for him not to be given as the source of certain statements.

The secrecy, delicacy and controversy surrounding energy legislation have often made congressmen and their staffs leery of talking freely for publication. Reporters resort to the "source" device that is best used sparingly: attributing facts to "a source" when the name cannot be used.

Let that journalistic convention be viewed with too much suspicion, here are some of the ways that form of attribution has come about in coverage of the congressional wrangling over energy bills:

— Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and presidential adviser Stuart Eizenstat held a White House briefing one day to explain a particularly touchy side issue: policy on "breeder" nuclear reactors. Then they had a smaller group of reporters into a more informal "background" session where the ground rule was, nothing could be attributed directly to either man or his aides. So the stories came out using facts and quotes attributed to "a high government source" or "a White House source."

— "Markup" sessions of congressional committees, where bills are edited into a form to make them ready for floor debate, feature explanation by committee staff workers. They are often more knowledgeable about the bill at hand than the congressmen themselves, and so their comments on the bills are informed.

But some of the staff members are loath to be quoted, so that they do not overshadow their bosses.

A prime example was the late Laurence Woodworth, chief of staff on the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, which worked on energy taxation. A reporter could get all the facts and opinion he wanted from Woodworth, but had to call him "a committee source" or an "informed source" or "committee staff." Otherwise, Woodworth's name would have been sprinkled throughout the stories, much more than any congressman on the committee.

— At one point in the Senate's tense preparation to vote on sending the natural gas bill back to death in committee, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., had a tally sheet showing who was on his side and who against and who undecided. But because some of his pledges were conditional and others just shy of an early commitment, Jackson did not want his name used in stories citing the numbers on that tally sheet. So, he became "a Senate source" or "a source who would not allow his name to be used."

— An information officer with the Department of Energy was willing to talk about a meeting of officials, but not for direct attribution because he felt it was not his place to be recalling what others had said in a private meeting. "You cannot say you got this from me," he said. So, he became "an Energy Department source."

— Ari Weiss, House Speaker Thomas O'Neill's energy aide, was in on nearly all the energy conference committee sessions, but because his role was often a delicate one, he had to be quoted sometimes as "a congressional source."

Jury Says Professor Resigned

U.S. District Court jury has ruled against a Texas Tech University professor who claimed he was unjustly squeezed out of his duties at the School of Medicine.

The six-member panel, in the case decided Tuesday, agreed unanimously that Dr. James Frederick Johnson had resigned from his reported $70,000 per year position.

Johnson, 35, a pediatric radiologist, had sued officials, claiming in a petition his superiors had accepted a "fictitious resignation."

Tech officials contended, however, that Johnson had in fact resigned.

The dispute centered in part on a June 14 verbal confrontation between Johnson and Dr. Jay Sackler, acting chairman of the radiology department.

Testimony indicated there was a conflict over procedures to be used in the department. Sackler indicated that Johnson gave what amounted to a verbal resignation at that time.

Laetrile Supporter Says Drug Needs Help From Supplements

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government decision to test Laetrile on humans will not result in convincing evidence that it helps cancer patients unless they also are given vitamin and mineral supplements, a Laetrile proponent predicts.

While pleased with the National Cancer Institute's decision Wednesday to test the substance, Robert Bradford, founder of the Committee for Freedom of Choice in Cancer Therapy, cautioned: "Laetrile does not work by itself."

"Unless you use a totally metabolic-based Laetrile program, we're not going to get significant statistical evidence to warrant further investigation. ... But when that's done, we're going to see some phenomenal results."

Bradford, who sells Laetrile through a Redwood City, Calif., firm called Cyto Pharma USA, said a complete Laetrile program includes vitamins, minerals, enzyme therapy, individualized diets and amygdalin in various forms.

Laetrile is a derivative of the chemical amygdalin, which occurs naturally in peach, apricot and bitter almond pits.

Dr. Arthur C. Upton, director of the cancer institute, told 200 reporters and NCI workers he "would not rule out" giving Laetrile in combination with potent vitamins in the trial.

"Just how feasible this would be and how far we could go in that direction remains to be determined," Upton said.

Upton said he hoped the trial will settle "once and for all" the debate about whether Laetrile works. The NCI was first asked to test Laetrile on humans 15 years ago. The tests on about 300 advanced cancer patients would take six months and cost $250,000, he said.

Only patients for whom all other forms of cancer treatment had failed would be asked to participate, said Upton.

The tests could begin in January. The Food and Drug Administration must give its approval before they start, but FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy indicated that the NCI could meet its agency's standards to conduct the trial.

Upton said that although Laetrile has never been shown effective in animal tests, human tests were justified in light of the NCI's recent, inconclusive review of medical records of 93 cancer patients who claimed Laetrile helped them. Only 22 of the 93 had all the necessary records and had used Laetrile exclusively; of these, six showed improvement, nine stayed the same and seven deteriorated, the NCI said.

Kennedy said he did not feel the NCI review showed Laetrile was effective, but "there are other reasons that we all recognize that a controlled clinical trial might be desirable. ... It's a political as well as a scientific issue."

Despite a federal ban on interstate shipments of Laetrile, 17 states have legalized its use in recent years and in July a federal appeals court said dying cancer patients had a right to get Laetrile injections.

New Facility Opened By City Bank

Texas Commerce Bank held ribbon-cutting ceremonies Wednesday to mark the opening of its new motor bank facility at 14th Street and Avenue K.

Mayor Dirk West and Chamber of Commerce President Ray Diekemper clipped the ceremonial ribbon with scissors retrieved from one of the automatic stations.

C.B. Carter, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, introduced guests who included Lubbock businessmen, Chamber of Commerce representatives and members of Downtown Lubbock, Inc.

Tommy Stevens, president of Texas Commerce, told the gathering that the citizens of Lubbock have revitalized the city since the tornado of 1970. "We are proud to open this new motor bank facility," he said.

The lustrous white marble structure is diagonally across the street from the bank's main office at 14th Street and Avenue K. It features visual auto teller stations with convenient carriers which will enable customers to transact business at their own pace.

In addition to regular teller windows reached from the 14th Street entrance, a separate window for commercial transactions involving bulky materials and a night depository are available.

Entrance to the commercial window and night depository is from Avenue K.

Utility Workers Hold 'Sick-Out'

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — About 119 employees of the Texarkana Water Utilities Co. called in sick today, apparently to spotlight their demands for higher wages and better working conditions.

Stu Bach, a company manager, said that only 11 workers were on the job today. He said, however, that water service had not been affected.

The water company serves customers both on the Texas and Arkansas sides of this border city.

A spokesman for the workers said that they have hired a lawyer to represent them, but that city officials refused to meet with the lawyer on Wednesday.

The lawyer, Nick Patton, said that some of the employees are earning slightly more than minimum wage.

City officials declined to comment on the matter today.

Effective Oct. 1, all city employees, including the water department workers, will receive an 8.5 percent pay raise, and officials of the city governments in Texas and Arkansas have proposed raises for some water company employees of up to 25.7 percent.

One worker said that he doesn't know how long the employees will stay away from work. "I don't know when I'll get well," he said.

Four Signs Point To Business Ills

NEW YORK (AP) — Business executives can tell when their firm is heading for trouble when it experiences any or all of certain kinds of problems, according to April-Marcus, Inc., a merchandising consulting company.

The four most common signs were listed as inventory slackening, increased overhead, decreased profitability and a slowdown in cash flow.

Germany Deports 130 Pakistanis

BERLIN (AP) — The West Berlin government put 130 Pakistanis on a chartered flight to their homeland because they had entered the city illegally in an attempt to settle here.

Their departure Wednesday brought the total of Pakistani deportees from West Berlin to 2,000. Most of them had come via East Berlin, sent by agents who for a fee promised them residence permits in West Berlin.

Woman Opens Home To Foster Children

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one in a series of articles dealing with agencies supported by the United Way of Lubbock. The United Way campaign goal for 1978 is $1,682,369.

A heart "as big as all outdoors" belongs to Mrs. J'Ceal Alexander. She has to have a heart like that to provide love not only for her own three children and a niece, but also for five foster children.

Three years ago Mrs. Alexander learned of the children's plight through relatives. There were problems involving the natural parents, and the court thought the children would be better off in a children's home or separated in foster homes.

She wouldn't hear of it. As director of the Carver Heights Day Care Center, one of the three centers of the Day Care Association of Lubbock, Mrs. Alexander knew the importance of keeping the children together and providing a healthy home atmosphere. She wanted to help.

After much soul-searching and prayer, the court awarded the five children to Mrs. Alexander and her husband. She said she now knows her work in day care was a decided advantage in the court's ruling.

The Day Care Association of Lubbock is a United Way agency and will receive $135,860 for its three nurseries from the United Way's 1979 goal of $1,682,369.

She put her reasons for wanting the children simply: "I love children and everybody needs somebody." It might have been a tough decision for someone else, taking in five children ranging in age from pre-school to high school, children who the court said would be trouble for her and her family.

With a heart full of care and love, Mrs. Alexander helped the children through the years with education and training, which resulted in productive people.

The children all do well in school (one is an honor student), and in the summer they help as teachers' aides and maintenance personnel at the day care center.

When Mrs. Alexander joined day care in 1961, she said she was impressed with the services offered.

"It made me feel important to see how important day care was for other parents."

Miss Verna Collum, executive director of the Day Care Association of Lubbock, said the main purpose of day care is to "provide services for financially indigent families of parents who work or go to school in order to keep families together. We try to improve the family situation so families aren't divided, and we give the parent an opportunity to be productive, contributing member of the community."

Miss Collum explained that in addition to keeping the children, they provided annual physical and dental examinations. Immunization records are kept at the center. The children are fed a well-balanced breakfast, snack, hot lunch, an afternoon snack and, if they stay until 6 p.m. when the center closes, they are fed another snack.

Miss Collum said the fees charged by the agency are assessed on a sliding scale, and in many cases, these fees provide an opportunity for a woman to get a job or education and get off welfare without having to pay the rates of private day care.

The center also accepts children of handicapped mothers who could not normally care for the children.

The children, ranging in age from 6 weeks to 6 years, are accepted on a priority basis, which favors children such as those from protective services and children of working mothers who receive state assistance.

Mrs. Alexander said that in the day care center, children are given well-planned activities and a major portion of pre-school instruction. She said most of the children who enter elementary school after day care adjust very well to regular school curriculum.

The three day care centers are licensed to accommodate 244 children. A new day care center, which will keep 120 more children, is being planned.

The Day Care Association of Lubbock is among 34 United Way agencies.

Police Arrest Plane Looters

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Nine persons will be prosecuted on charges of attempted looting in the wreckage of the worst U.S. plane crash that killed 150 persons, authorities said Wednesday.

A total of 28 people were arrested after the crash Monday, police reported, but most were charged with failure to obey police orders to leave the scene.

The others were accused of trying to loot valuable articles from demolished homes and steal wallets, watches and other valuables from the shattered corpses of passengers and residents of the neighborhood, killed by flying debris and flames.

Police said many of those arrested were juveniles and some could be prosecuted on federal charges of stealing parts from an airplane. The other face misdemeanor theft charges, police said.

Bankrupt Firm Bids For Corn

AUSTIN (AP) — A firm that went bankrupt in Missouri is trying to make large purchases of corn in the Texas Panhandle, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said today.

Brown did not name the firm but said additional information could be obtained by calling the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"We have received inquiries from North Texas farmers concerning offers to purchase white corn for amounts that far exceed going market rates or futures prices," Brown said. "However, investigation has revealed that one firm making these offers defaulted on over $11 million worth of grain that it contracted in Missouri and declared bankruptcy in that state in December of 1977."

Brown said the department issued similar warnings last February when the same company was arranging questionable deferred payment contracts on white corn in the Rio Grande Valley.

"We are in no way implying that all firms buying corn or any other crops are not going to stand behind their obligations," he said. "But we do want farmers to check out potential buyers before they sign contracts."

Restaurateur Plans Expensive Dinner

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — John Grisanti is having 30 people over for dinner next month. He's either going to serve the world's rarest wine or the most expensive salad on earth.

Either way, it's going to be a very expensive meal. He's charging his guests $1,500 each. Grisanti, 49, a restaurateur, set a world record for the highest price paid for a wine when he successfully bid $18,000 for the only known jeroboom — four quarts, or more than five times as large as an ordinary bottle — of Chateau Lafite 1864 at a rare wine auction last May in Atlanta.

He plans to uncork the bottle at a nine-course dinner he's giving in Memphis Oct. 28 to raise money for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, a pioneer in leukemia treatment and research. That date is St. Jude's feast day.

The rich red bordeaux was described in 1867 as "nectar reserved for the gods of this world — that is to say, for those rich enough to pay for it." But Grisanti isn't sure the fabled wine will be good to the last drop.

If fact, he doesn't even know whether the first drop will be any good.

"I have no idea what this wine will taste like. I suspect it will have a heavy woody taste. I feel it will be in excellent condition, but I cannot guarantee it," Grisanti said this week when he came to Heublein, Inc.'s, warehouse to collect the wine.

J. Michael Broadbent, director of Christie's London-based wine department and the auctioneer at Heublein's annual rare wine sales, will attend the dinner to decant the wine and speak to Grisanti's guests "to prepare them for what to expect from this giant."

"If it's too vinegary to drink, we're going to serve the most expensive salad in the world," Grisanti said.

Being the successful bidder at the auction, Grisanti said, was an emotional high. "It was the moment of my life."

He never before had bid at a wine auction and the most he had paid for a bottle was $85.

"I got the idea for the charity dinner several months before the auction. But I had some reservations about it, too. I thought what would people say? He's crazy? He's an idiot? He's nuts?"

"I thought a lot about it the night before the auction. You might even say I talked to St. Jude a little bit and checked it out with him. It worked out perfectly."

Woman Saves Daughter From Sin By Killing Her

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Marilyn Dietl awoke one morning last May and thought to herself, "Today is the day she dies."
With tears in her eyes, Mrs. Dietl, 41, told a judge Wednesday that she took her 18-year-old daughter Judy for a drive in the family car later that day and shot her to death to keep her from running away to become a prostitute.
"I must have gone crazy, because I couldn't let her go," she told Chittenden County Superior Court Judge Ernest Gibson.
Mrs. Dietl had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to a first-degree murder indictment. She changed the plea to guilty Wednesday after authorities agreed to reduce the charge to second-degree murder.
State's Attorney Mark Keller said he agreed to the lesser charge because he did not believe justice would be served by sending Mrs. Dietl to prison for the rest of her life, the sentence in first-degree murder cases.
He said he would seek a sentence of up to 20 years.

Mrs. Dietl told Gibson it all began in 1977 when Judy went away to college in Boston. She said she learned her daughter moved out of the YWCA to become a prostitute.
"Judy got involved with a pimp in Boston," she told the judge. "When I found out... I brought her home. I did everything I could to keep her home."
The pimp pursued Judy at her home in Colchester, Vt., by letter and telephone, Mrs. Dietl said. Once, Judy tried to run away and was caught by her mother at the bus station.
Finally, Mrs. Dietl said, she told Judy she would have to stay home and cut all ties with Boston or "leave the house and never come back."
When Judy decided to leave, Mrs. Dietl said she awoke the morning of May 5 and thought: "Today is the day she dies."
"It was as if she was already dead," Mrs. Dietl said. "I felt so relieved she was safe."

Mrs. Dietl said she found her husband's two guns, a .38-caliber revolver and a .22 derring, in a closet.
She told her daughter they were going for a drive. The two drove to the shady parking lot of the Ohavi Zedek synagogue in Burlington, a place Mrs. Dietl had visited for rummage sales.
Mrs. Dietl asked her daughter to get out of the car. Then, she said, she began shooting Judy with the revolver.
"No mama!" Mrs. Dietl said her daughter cried. "No mama!"
"Judy, I can't let you go," Mrs. Dietl said she answered.
Breaking into tears in the courtroom, Mrs. Dietl testified she could not hear the sound of the shots.
"I kept hoping somebody would come out of the house (next door) and stop me," she said.
No one came until police arrived.

Pieter Botha Takes South Africa Reins

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Pieter Willem Botha, the autocratic 63-year-old minister of defense, was elected South Africa's new prime minister today at a caucus of the ruling National Party.
The balding and bespectacled cabinet minister — nicknamed "Pete the Weapon" for his hawkish military views — replaces ailing John Vorster, who resigned Sept. 20.
Botha has dedicated more than 40 years to National Party politics and was a prime architect of the Afrikaner-Nationalist Party's coming to power in 1948.
His popular image is of a brilliant political organizer dedicated to his party and forces of darkness," he declared before the plan was quashed.

In his public speeches, delivered in a defiant, tough style, Botha likes to blast communism, the West and internal opponents in the press and Parliament.
He describes attacks on South Africa as "a struggle between the Marxists and leftists, the forces of the dark, and the forces of freedom, those who wanted orderly government, Christian values and civilized standards."
He has described the opposition Progressive Federal Party as a "mouthpiece of all that is un-South African and disloyal," and has hinted of Soviet penetration into the opposition press.

As the autocratic leader of the National Party in Cape Province — which has a relatively small black population but a sizable number of coloreds, or people of mixed race — Botha has made few comments on black-white relations.
But he once stunned party faithfuls by declaring that "all men are equal before God." And he has publicly championed the lifting of barriers against colored people in theaters and the army.
While opposing petty discrimination, Botha has never questioned the principle of white domination in South Africa.
"Let us say to the black man: You have rights and we recognize those rights... but let us also say to them: Recognize our rights," he once said.

As minister of defense, Botha is admired for building up an efficient, modern and formidable military force.
"We will fight to the last drop of blood to maintain an orderly society," he has promised his troops.
But he was criticized for sending troops into Angola in 1975 to fight when the Marxist Popular Movement came to power. Expected U.S. support failed to materialize while thousands of Cubans came to the MPLA's defense, and the South Africans had to withdraw.

The debacle destroyed Vorster's efforts at détente with black Africa.
Little is known of Botha's private life. He is married and has two sons and three daughters. His biography lists his hobby as gardening.

He referred to an encounter early this year in Amarillo between Bergland and movement members.
Butz remarks to about 400 people at the 26th annual Agricultural Chemicals Conference went unheeded by the agriculture movement representatives, identifiable by emblem-embazoned hats and vests. The group did not have tickets to the event.
One member said the group wanted to talk with Butz. "But I don't think he wants to talk to us," he added.
Two uniformed policemen carefully scrutinized those entering and exiting the civic center's banquet hall, even checking identification of reporters. The officers locked the doors during Butz' hour-long speech, opening them to allow individuals access.
Butz, a Republican who served under presidents Nixon and Ford before resigning under pressure in 1976 because of an off-color joke that received nationwide publicity, had only praise for farmers and food industry middlemen.
Americans buy their food for a little less than 17 percent of their take-home pay, he said, adding that leaves them 83 percent for other things such as cars and televisions.
"I think it (that figure) is America's number one success story. And by George, we are letting them attack us for it," the 69-year-old Butz said.
And, he added, "It's because we are profit-oriented."
But, he said, "if there's not going to be a little profit for food, there will be no food for people."
Food still is the "cheapest thing you can buy in terms of how long you have to work to get it," said Butz, adding the food industry is "picked on" by inflation-courage of Prime Minister Begin and the Israeli members of the Knesset, who now have formed a possible partnership for the rest of our lives with their neighbors, the Egyptians, under the leadership of President Sadat," Carter said.

"Israel has taken another momentous and decisive step toward achieving its long sought goal of peace with its Arab neighbors," the State Department said.
Sadat stayed up late to await the results of the morning vote at his summer residence beside the Nile 15 miles north of Cairo. He gave up early today as the Knesset speeches droned on, but an official spokesman delivered the Egyptian government's reaction.
"The Knesset approval is a victory for the Camp David agreements and basic-ly a triumph for President Sadat's initiative in visiting Jerusalem last November."

The spokesman said the vote to abandon the settlements was spurred by Sadat. He said Israel's "change of attitude in such a short time is almost unprecedented in history."
The Egyptians announced Wednesday that an Israeli communications team would arrive in Egypt today to set up a "hot line" with Jerusalem for the peace talks.
At the United Nations, Britain supported the twin "frameworks for peace" — one for a treaty with Egypt and the other for a comprehensive pact in the Middle East. But France said "great uncertainty" surrounded the accords.
Asked if the process of peace will be hard to start after 30 years of hostility in which Egypt fought four wars against Israel, Begin smiled and said, "Not at all. It will be a smooth machine, I assure you."
In his speech before Parliament, Begin said peace with Egypt means "the vicious circle of wars will be broken."
"If Egypt leaves the cycle of wars, Syria cannot attack us because it means suicide, and Jordan cannot start up because the king of the Hashemites will lose his crown," Begin said.
Hundreds of Israelis who will lose their homes in the Sinai settlements as a result of the Knesset's vote were massed outside the Knesset to protest the decision.
"The settlers are in my heart," Begin said. "But when I hear that a peace agreement is almost in hand, I think of their sons, who would fall in a war if a war breaks out."

al offices adjacent to the proposed store site.
Opponents said they opposed the zone change because of traffic problems which were anticipated because of the building size, because they feel the store is not a use compatible with the professional offices along 74th Street and because of the aesthetics of the store.
Dwight Andrews, who represented the opponents, said 85 percent of those with offices on 74th Street south of the proposed store site are against the zone change.
"We're going to be looking at the back of a large building," Andrews said.
Andrews expressed concern about Rogers' request for a reduction of the zone setback on 74th Street from 43 feet as required by city ordinance, to 10 feet.
To illustrate the point, Andrews showed slides of the backs of large commercial buildings in Lubbock and photographs of the backs of Target Stores in Dallas.
Of the expected truck traffic at the rear docks of the store at 74th Street, Andrews said, "We are scared to death of that for the future values of our land."
He said the opponents of the zone change were "standing up to protect their investment."
Council members took no action on the controversial zone change request before lunch and were to reconvene this afternoon to make a decision on the matter.
The council postponed any action on the creation of a committee to study future options for Lubbock Power and Light until this afternoon.
Councilman Alan Henry said he wants the goals of the committee to be clearly defined before the committee is formally created.
The annexation of 151 acres southeast of Lubbock was approved by the council on first reading this morning. At its Sept. 14 meeting the council had approved the idea of annexing the Yellowhouse Canyon Addition but had taken no formal action on the annexation request.

Shells Hit Palace In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shellfire hit the Lebanese presidential palace and the courtyard of the premier's office today as Syrian gunners and Christian militiamen duelled in their heaviest exchanges since the Camp David summit ended nearly two weeks ago.
The Christian radio station accused the Syrians of escalating hostilities to "try to create suitable grounds for undermining the Camp David accords." Syria heads the Arab coalition opposed to President Anwar Sadat's peace negotiations with Israel.
A police spokesman said direct hits blasted the water reservoirs of the hilltop presidential palace in Baabda, 5 miles east of Beirut, and shattered the glass front of the palace press room.
President Elias Sarkis was in another part of the palace, and the press room was empty, the spokesman said.
Two other shells exploded harmlessly about 50 yards from the home of U.S. Ambassador Richard Parker near the palace, the spokesman added.
Three cars were destroyed when two shells landed in the courtyard of Prime Minister Salim el Hoss' office in Moslem West Beirut. There were no casualties, the police spokesman said.
Syrian artillery and rocket batteries in the Moslem district zeroed in on neighboring Christian residential areas in a bombardment that began shortly after midnight and was still raging at mid-morning.
Police said at least five persons were killed and 43 wounded. The shelling started fires in 14 apartment buildings and heavily damaged 17 others, a spokesman said.

A Christian commune said the Syrians were using a new type of heavy rocket for the first time in the eight months of recurrent attacks on the Christians in Beirut and northern Lebanon. A Syrian communiqué said the militia were using heavy artillery for the first time and had set up batteries in three mountain resorts overlooking Beirut.
The Christian commune also said Syrian 160mm artillery "left almost every street in the Christian district littered with smoldering cars, debris, knocked-out power poles and shredded telephone cables."
Syria, whose troops make up the bulk of the peacekeeping army policing Lebanon's 23-month-old civil war armistice, accused the Christians of starting the fighting.
"Our forces refrained from retaliation for five hours to avert wide destruction in residential areas but finally were regrettably forced to respond and are relentlessly bombing the sources of fire irrespective of their location," the Syrians said.

Earl Butz Lashes Out At Assistant Secretary

agriculture are not presently a cause for concern.
He said a recent survey showed that only 1 percent of farm property sales last year went to foreigners, and that most of them employ Americans to operate the farms and usually work to open up an export market for the produce.
"It makes headlines when it happens because it's in large blocks," he said, "but nationally it's not that important."
Butz criticized the Carter administration for holding large reserves of grain, which he said are to be released into the market against rising prices and work to keep commodity prices down.
"They said they were going to even out the booms and busts," he said. "You notice that the first thing they mentioned was the booms."
He called for opening foreign agricultural markets and the lifting of restrictions on production.
At the banquet Wednesday night, 25 American Agriculture Movement members waited outside police-guarded doors as he lauded farmers and middlemen and urged stepped-up food technology research.
No one identified himself as a movement member today, and there was no disruption or harsh criticism of Butz at the breakfast.
However, one man asked Butz as he was leaving what he thought of the American Agriculture Movement. Butz stepped back and snapped, "I don't think anybody should throw eggs on anybody else, and I don't think anybody should spit on the secretary of agriculture."

He referred to an encounter early this year in Amarillo between Bergland and movement members.

BUTZ CONGRATULATED — Lubbock Republican Mike Stevens tells former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz he did well in a breakfast talk this morning before a group made up mostly of farmers. agriculture are not presently a cause for concern.
He said a recent survey showed that only 1 percent of farm property sales last year went to foreigners, and that most of them employ Americans to operate the farms and usually work to open up an export market for the produce.
"It makes headlines when it happens because it's in large blocks," he said, "but nationally it's not that important."
Butz criticized the Carter administration for holding large reserves of grain, which he said are to be released into the market against rising prices and work to keep commodity prices down.
"They said they were going to even out the booms and busts," he said. "You notice that the first thing they mentioned was the booms."
He called for opening foreign agricultural markets and the lifting of restrictions on production.
At the banquet Wednesday night, 25 American Agriculture Movement members waited outside police-guarded doors as he lauded farmers and middlemen and urged stepped-up food technology research.
No one identified himself as a movement member today, and there was no disruption or harsh criticism of Butz at the breakfast.
However, one man asked Butz as he was leaving what he thought of the American Agriculture Movement. Butz stepped back and snapped, "I don't think anybody should throw eggs on anybody else, and I don't think anybody should spit on the secretary of agriculture."

He referred to an encounter early this year in Amarillo between Bergland and movement members.
Butz remarks to about 400 people at the 26th annual Agricultural Chemicals Conference went unheeded by the agriculture movement representatives, identifiable by emblem-embazoned hats and vests. The group did not have tickets to the event.
One member said the group wanted to talk with Butz. "But I don't think he wants to talk to us," he added.
Two uniformed policemen carefully scrutinized those entering and exiting the civic center's banquet hall, even checking identification of reporters. The officers locked the doors during Butz' hour-long speech, opening them to allow individuals access.

Many Americans Suffer Misery From Poison Ivy

EDITOR'S NOTE: Edward R. Ricciuti, a naturalist, writer and television personality, has recently completed his book "The Devil's Garden" about the number of dangerous plants found throughout the world. In this five-part series he tells how to recognize the plants and what can happen if they are consumed.

By EDWARD R. RICCIUTI
Of all the poisonous plants in North America, none has caused more misery for more people than the three-leaved menace, poison ivy.

Along with its close relatives, poison oak and poison sumac, poison ivy has afflicted about half of all Americans living today, despite the fact that most people know poison ivy is a plant to beware.

The rash caused by poison ivy is an allergy, an over-reaction by the body to a foreign substance or "allergen."

The allergen in poison ivy, oak and sumac is a toxic chemical called urushiol, which is found in the sticky sap of the plants.

If the sap comes in contact with the human skin — especially where it is soft and thin, as between the fingers — molecules of urushiol will penetrate it. Once within the skin, the urushiol is greeted by white blood cells, known as lymphocytes, part of the body's defense against foreign substances.

No reaction occurs at this first encounter, so people really never know the first time they have poison ivy. But from that point on, any time the lymphocytes are in the presence of urushiol a skin rash will break out.

The rash can occur on any part of the skin, because the lymphocytes spread through the body, carrying their sensitivity with them.

Each time a person gets poison ivy, he or she becomes more susceptible to it. Conversely, the longer a person goes without exposure to the plant, the less the body will react to it.

One can contract poison ivy without ever touching the plant. Urushiol can be picked up from shoes, trousers or other clothing that has brushed through poison ivy or from a dog or cat that has been in it.

Particles containing urushiol are carried by the smoke from burning poison ivy and can be inhaled into the lungs, where the resulting irritation is extremely painful and dangerous.

The rash caused by poison ivy appears anywhere from four hours to three days after exposure. The affected portion of the skin reddens, then breaks out into bumps and blisters, which soon begin to ooze.

Despite popular belief, the clear fluid from the blisters does not contain urushiol, so there is no danger of the fluid spreading the rash to other parts of the body. If the urushiol has not been completely washed off the skin, however, the allergen can be spread by touching it with the fingers.

Generally, the rash lasts a week or two, then disappears. But it can cause complications. Very rarely, a person with an extremely severe case of poison ivy can develop kidney problems, and people with bad cases have temporarily lost their vision when the eyelids have swelled and closed.

It is a good idea to know how to identify poison ivy and its cousins. The old saw,

Fourth In A Series

"Leaves of three, let it be," holds for poison ivy and poison oak because each stalk has three leaflets growing on it.

Other than this characteristic, there is great variability in the plants. The leaves can be edged with tiny teeth or smooth, and the plants can be vines or shrubs. Generally, the leaves are green, but some are dark in hue, others light. In autumn, the leaves turn yellow or bright red.

Poison ivy is most common in the central and eastern parts of the United States and nearby areas of Canada, although it can be found in virtually all parts of the United States except the desert southwest. The ivy grows best in damp, shady woodlands.

Poison oak grows primarily along the west coast, where poison ivy is rare.

Poison sumac grows mainly in the eastern half of the country, almost exclusively in swampy areas. It is a small tree about the height of a man, with a series of from seven to 13 leaflets per stalk. Late in the summer or early in the autumn, its leaves turn a vivid scarlet.

If one has been exposed to poison ivy, oak or sumac, washing the skin with strong soap as soon as possible will remove much of the sap and moderate the reaction. Calamine lotion and similar preparations can relieve itching, although severe cases should be treated by a physician.

Woman's Cast Catches Fire

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Leonard Canning was driving home from a shopping center when she smelled something burning.

She saw a man washing windows, pulled up, jumped out and shouted, "Sir, my car is burning! Can you help me?"

The man took one look. "It isn't your car, lady," he shouted back. "It's you."

Sure enough, the wooden frame that supported a shoe cast she wore for a fracture in her foot, was smoldering. Apparently, someone's hot cigarette ash had landed on the cast while Mrs. Canning was at the shopping center.

The man doused the fire with window-washing liquid.

Tax-Cut Petition Causing Trouble In Illinois

CHICAGO (UPI) — The tax-cut issue that seems to be helping candidates across the political map is turning into a can of worms in Illinois for Gov. James R. "Big Jim" Thompson.

The governor's attempt to capitalize on the tax revolt has embroiled his office and campaign in charges of forgery and other wrongdoing, adding some unexpected spice to what promised to be a rather dull election.

Thompson, a former federal prosecutor who has an eye fixed on the White House, defeated the Democratic machine candidate in 1976 by a record margin and appeared early in this year's campaign to be a shoo-in again.

And since the 6-foot-6-inch tall governor started talking wistfully about running for president before his election, another big victory appeared to be a key step toward the top of the Republican ticket in 1980 or later.

Then, late in the summer, Thompson announced a petition drive to put on the November ballot a non-binding referendum urging the legislature to limit taxes and spending. He dubbed it the "Thompson Proposition" and staked his personal prestige — and part of his campaign treasury — on it.

But he got a late start, had to pay for collection of signatures and leaned heavily on local Republican politicians to come up with others. He finally got barely enough names to meet the requirement, but that was when his troubles really began.

As Democrats, teachers union officials and others examined the signatures, they found some names appeared to be of people who died years ago. Others seemed to have been signed at "round table" parties, where party workers pass petitions back and forth, signing names found on voter lists. Some notary public signatures didn't check out.

A grand jury subpoenaed three aides to Thompson's lieutenant governor, then demanded petitions circulated by one of Thompson's press secretaries and a Thompson advance man. The investigation is continuing.

None of that escaped Thompson's opponent, state Comptroller Michael J. Bakalis, who has won state office twice by unseating an entrenched incumbent. Bakalis said the proposition wouldn't mean much because it is purely advisory, and dubbed it "Proposition Zero." But Bakalis waxes most eloquent when he gets started on the petition irregularities and Thompson's response to them.

"What has Mr. Thompson done?" Bakalis asked at a news conference. "He has declared that his petition drive will be investigated not by the attorney general, not by the appropriate state's attorneys, but by one of his own political appointees.

"This type of investigation, as in Watergate, simply will not clear the air. This type of investigation was made infamous, just four years ago, in the greatest political scandal in American history."

Bakalis has been pressing the Watergate comparison and, though that may not be the reason, he has appeared to be gaining ground.

In the state's other major race, Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy is seeking a third term. Percy, his appeal rooted in the middle ground of independents and in the liberal wing of his party, is challenged by Alex Seith, an international lawyer making his first bid for elective office.

Although Seith has conducted an active campaign, he has not been able to stir Percy into active conflict, even in three face-to-face debates. Percy has largely ignored Seith's charges and rested on his record.

Rio Grande Crest May Hit Presidio

A-J News Services

The Rio Grande, swollen by recent heavy rainfall and by releases of water from Mexican reservoirs, was expected to crest at Presidio well above flood stage, but perhaps just slightly below the tops of levees.

The flooding was triggered by a combination of heavy rains and releases of water from Mexican reservoirs. The Rio Grande was expected to crest at Presidio late today, forecasters said.

Recent heavy rains in Southwest Texas combined with large releases of water from Mexican reservoirs to send both the Rio Grande and Rio Concho near flood stage.

International Boundary and Water Commission employees worked throughout the night placing sandbags along the levees near Presidio where the Rio Grande crest was expected to reach 28 feet. Flood stage at the international bridge is 14.5 feet, but levees provide protection up to 29 feet.

A high-water crest brought flooding to Pecos Wednesday and continued down the Pecos River but only minor lowland flooding was expected between Pecos and Girvin.

Overnight showers and thunderstorms were scattered from Texas to the Gulf Coast and Florida.

There was good news, however, as the flood waters headed downstream. Forecasts called for partly cloudy skies and no additional rainfall in Southwest Texas.

Elsewhere around Texas, skies were mostly cloudy southeast of a line from Sherman to Midland and mostly clear in northwestern and southwestern sections of the state.

The only rainfall during the night was along the coastal plain between Brownsville and Beaumont. Forecasts called for the possibility of more light, scattered rainfall in Southeast Texas.

Skies were to be clear over most of the state today and highs were expected to be mostly in the 60s and 70s with readings in the 80s expected in some West Texas areas.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 50s in West and Northwest Texas to the 70s along the coast. Extremes ranged from 54 at Dalhart in the Panhandle to 74 at Galveston on the gulf coast.

The forecast for Lubbock and the South Plains calls for mostly fair skies through Friday. The gradual warming trend is expected to continue, with the mercury reaching the upper 70s today and about 80 on Friday. A low in the middle 50s is predicted for tonight.

With no rain in the forecast and about 11 hours of sunshine expected for at least the next two days, drying conditions are expected to improve from poor today to fair on Friday.

Southwesterly winds of 10 to 15 mph

A&M To Train Rural Doctors

GRAFFITI
© 1978 McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — The dean of Texas' newest medical school says the school will train physicians for rural practice, but that the era of the kindly old country doctor is gone and can never be revived.

"The country doctor conjures up an image of a kindly old man sitting by the bedside waiting for the crisis to pass," said Dean Robert S. Stone of the Texas A&M University College of Medicine.

"That is not what modern medicine is. The country doctor image is a man. The image doesn't include blacks, Latinos or women. The state of the art has moved past this apparition."

Stone said A&M has as its goal the training of family physicians for rural areas of the state, but that that goal should not cause the public to think the country doctor will rise "like the phoenix."

Stone, former director of the National Institutes of Health and dean of medicine at the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center and the University of New Mexico, said he was reluctant to make claims that Texas A&M will revolutionize medicine just because it is going to turn out "primary care physicians," the computer-age equivalent of a country doctor.

For one thing, he said, primary and family medicine has turned into a specialty and these doctors are no cheaper to produce than their specialist colleagues.

Stone said A&M will recruit and accept medical students from rural areas of the state, and he said that 99 percent of those interviewed for admission said sincerely they are interested in family practice. A&M students, he said, will spend the clinical phase of training in small hospitals — White in Temple and Veterans Administration facilities in Waco, Temple and Marlin.

Buses Involved In Accidents

By The Associated Press
Two separate school bus wrecks occurred almost simultaneously Wednesday afternoon in Texas, each killing one person.

A Department of Public Safety spokesman said both mishaps were reported to have occurred at 3:10 p.m. — one in Gregg County in northeast Texas and the other in Brazoria County south of Houston.

Bobbi Jo Franks, 6, was killed when she reportedly ran in front of a school bus on a private drive at the Lake Pine City Trailer Park in Gregg County. A DPS spokesman said the bus driver reportedly did not see the youngster dash in front of the slowly moving vehicle.

In the other accident, 18-year-old Katherine Jane Gilbert of Marvel was killed in a head-on collision with a school bus when she reportedly lost control of her vehicle and swerved into the path of the bus.

"Too often," he said, "medical students are educated in large, publicly run hospitals, where the pressure of taking care of so many people is such that humane aspects of medicine are often lost in the hurlyburly."

But, Stone said, a medical school has little or no leverage on the post-graduation career plans of its students.

He said he hopes that 60 percent of A&M's graduates will continue to serve areas defined as non-urban (communities larger than 1,000 but smaller than the census' Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas, and located far, even by automobile, from adequate medical treatment).

"Students change their ideas and beliefs," Stone said. "There is no way to assure that those selected will remain true to that interest. Some find that going out and practicing in the community reinforces their desire, while others decide that is not the life of the doctor as they romanticized it."

Another factor prevents a doctor from "sitting by the bedside" nowadays, Stone said, and that is the decreasing view among the public of the doctor as an authoritarian figure. A patient, he said, is part of the decision making process and is more and more responsible for his/her own health.

"We shouldn't look to the physicians for instructions not to smoke," Stone said. "We don't want to be hauled into the doctor's office to get a lecture on being overweight. Physicians no longer feel the need to be a father figure."

Tech Rolls Set Mark

Texas Tech University's fall enrollment of 22,745 set a record, surpassing by 165 the previous high of 22,580 set in 1975.

This fall's unofficial figure is based on a head count at the end of the 12th day of class, according to Dr. Robert Ewalt, vice president for student affairs.

"We are gratified with our increased enrollment and the new record, particularly at a time when college and university enrollments are leveling off in many areas," Ewalt said.

Males at Tech outnumber females this semester, with 12,803 men enrolled as compared women.

By classification, figures show 7,717 freshmen, 4,382 sophomores, 3,555 juniors and 3,706 seniors. There also are 2,858 graduate students and 527 law students.

The College of Arts and Sciences reported 7,263 students; Business Administration, 4,572; Engineering, 2,935; Education, 1,759; Home Economics, 1,483.

Life Assessed Area Woman

ODESSA (AP) — A 20-year-old Odessa woman has been given life sentences for the smothering deaths of two of her infant children in the past two years.

Emma Jean Berry pleaded guilty Wednesday to two murder charges, stemming from the deaths in Odessa of a 2-month-old son in September of 1976 and a 2-week-old daughter last month.

After pronouncing sentence on the two charges, State District Judge C.B. Milburn said prosecutors were dropping a third murder charge against her, stemming from the death of a 10-month-old son in Houston in 1974, when Mrs. Berry was 16 years old.

Each of the children had a different father, and each of the deaths were reported by the woman to have been mysterious "crib deaths."

Mrs. Berry was arrested in Odessa a week ago, two days after the Ector County sheriff's department turned the case over to the district attorney. She had been held under $300,000 bond.

Fair Highlights:

Fair Vendors Offer Some Nutritious Meals

By JANICE JARVIS
Family News Staff

The midway of the Panhandle South Plains Fair is lined with food stands which offer almost every imaginable concoction to tickle the taste buds.

Although that pink fluff called cotton candy might be tempting, its nutritional value is practically zero. With a little work, however, visitors to the fair can find nutritious foods from which to choose.

Although many of the foods available at the fair have little nutritional value, it is possible to make wise food choices, according to Patti Landers, a Lubbock nutritionist.

Probably the best choice is a cheeseburger, explained Mrs. Landers. The meat and cheese provide protein, and the vegetables (lettuce, tomatoes and pickles) provide some vitamins. Top that off with a glass of milk for a well rounded meal, she advised.

Hamburgers are also economical in relation to other fair prices, Mrs. Landers added, and they're available at almost every corner.

Although one stand off the midway does offer t-bone steaks, Mrs. Landers noted that for the price it offered no higher level of nutrition than a hamburger.

"It's good protein, but it's high in fat and considerably more expensive," she said.

Tacos, available at the Mexican food stand, are also an excellent choice. Because they contain meat, lettuce, cheese and tomatoes, they rate high in terms of vitamins and protein, Mrs. Landers said.

The Mexican food booth offers another real nutrition bonus — a lettuce and tomato salad — which is packed with vitamins. Burritos, also available, have some nutrient value, but rate lower than tacos.

For protein, tuna fish, hot ham and cheese and pimento cheese sandwiches are easy to find and are good choices, Mrs. Landers said. The barbeque sandwiches rate somewhat lower, having more fat than protein.

Visitors who find the usual fair menus less than tempting can find some good nutritional values in booths located outside the midway.

One place offers pancakes, eggs, toast and meat, all good choices, and especially when eaten together, according to Mrs. Landers.

With a little looking, the hungry fairgoer can also find a spaghetti dinner. Served with meat sauce, it rates high. The pasta is usually vitamin-enriched, and the meat provides protein.

Shrimp plates, also featured at the fair, are high in protein and iodine, but they are also very high in calories, Mrs. Landers said. Economically and nutritionally they are a poor choice, especially for the calorie conscious or anyone on a low cholesterol diet.

Liquid refreshments at the fair can add to the nutritional impact of a meal, especially drinks like milk or hot cocoa. Lemonade is loaded with vitamins, as is spiced tea, according to Mrs. Landers.

Coffee and iced tea are also available, but locating sugar substitutes is difficult. Diabetics and calorie watchers would be wise to bring their own sweetener, warned Mrs. Landers.

The worst meal choice is probably a hot dog, according to Mrs. Landers. A person would have to eat six hot dogs to equal the nutritional value of two ounces of meat, she explained.

One fair booth attendant reported that hamburger patties weigh about six ounces before they are cooked. The corn coating on a corn dog adds only empty calories to a hot dog. Topping a hot dog with chili adds only minimum nutrients.

Although candied apples have some vitamins, they are dangerous, Mrs. Landers warned. Candied apples, as well as taffy, can easily pull out dental fillings.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who had been married 15 years, had two kids and problems with her sex life (no kisses, and sex once every three months for 10 minutes) could have been written by me.

I did what you advised her to do. Got counseling. It was especially embarrassing for me because my husband is a psychologist who does family counseling.

I went to a mental clinic and the doctor there was considerate and understanding. He ordered complete physical check-ups for the whole family. We were then referred to an endocrinologist who examined us further and discovered that both my husband and I had low blood sugar — or hypoglycemia. Worse yet, our child was found to have diabetes!

The doctor told us to go home and throw everything out of the household that had sugar in it. We learned a lot about nutrition, and now we are doing well on whole grains, fresh fruits and vegetables, plenty of protein and very little fat. We feel better, have more energy and couldn't be happier.

ABBY FAN

Dear Fan: The search for solutions to life's problems should always start with a physical examination. Unfortunately, most people take better care of their automobiles than their bodies.

Let this serve as a reminder to call your physician for a thorough check-up. Teeth, too! And when did you last have your eyes and hearing checked?

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice. My husband and I have had some pretty heated arguments about drop-in company. I do not like to have people drop in on me. I feel that a call ahead of time is not asking too much. My husband feels that I should be all smiles and play the gracious hostess no matter who drops in — or when.

I work full-time and must do my laundry and housecleaning on weekends.

When I'm in the middle of my work, hot and sweaty and looking a mess, if friends drop in uninvited, I'm not about to put on a phony smile and pretend I am thrilled to have company. I'm steamed! And I guess it's obvious.

I wouldn't dream of dropping in on my friends, and I think they owe me the same courtesy.

What do you think?

HATES DROP-INS

Dear Hates: I'm with you.

DEAR ABBY: I am an adult woman living alone. For the last two weeks I've been frightened by obscene phone calls. They're always at night.

At first, when I answered the phone, no one would speak, but I could hear this heavy breathing — then an awful outpouring of filthy language would begin. I hang up as soon as I know it's this party, but he keeps calling back. Lately I've been taking my phone off the hook until morning, but I dislike doing that because I could be missing some important calls.

What is the best way to handle obscene phone calls, Abby?

JOLIET, ILL.

Dear Joliet: If the caller says nothing, hang up! If the caller uses foul language — don't listen, cut him off. If the calls persist, notify the police department and the telephone company. And it wouldn't hurt to keep a police whistle by the phone. The next time he calls, use it to blast him into the next country!

...

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

If you conducted a poll to find out who was the greatest of all American bridge players, chances are that our good friend Howard Schenken would top it by a wide margin. His name is engraved on almost every trophy in competition, frequently more than once. About the only event he hasn't won is the Women's Pairs!

Today is Howard's 75th birthday, and we would like to take this opportunity to express our admiration of his skill while wishing him many happy returns.

At an age when most players have difficulty holding 13 cards, his ability is virtually undimmed. This hand from a rubber bridge game at New York's prestigious Cavendish Club is ample proof of that.

Against Schenken's six club contract West led the queen of diamonds. Declarer won, led a club to the jack, and was jolted to discover the 5-0 trump break. However, Schenken quickly recovered from this unexpected development. He ruffed a diamond, cashed the three top spades, discarding two hearts from dummy, then followed with the three top hearts. That reduced the hand to this position:

Schenken led a spade, and West found that his magnificent trump holding could produce only one trick! If he ruffed with the ten, declarer would overruff with the ace, then ruff a diamond. West could overruff with the king, but declarer's queen and dummy's nine of trumps would take the last two tricks.

So West ruffed low, but he ended up no better off. Declarer overruffed in dummy with the nine, led a diamond from the table and discarded a spade from his hand. West was forced to ruff, but then he had to lead away from K-10 of trumps into declarer's combined ace-queen tenace.

Woman Steeplejack Enjoys Work, Life

By LILLIAN O'CONNELL
LIMERICK, Ireland (UPI) — Angela Collins-O'Mahony is one tough lady. The ladder she climbed to success was on the side of an industrial chimney stack.

Angela is a steeplejack — or should it be steeplejill? — and industrial chimney stacks run as high as 600 feet. She is also no mean entrepreneur.

Sitting down for an interview wearing an Ultrasuede dress worth a couple hundred dollars, Angela fired off answers as level as her gaze.

Claiming to be the only woman steeplejack anywhere, she began her story: "I was working for a steeplejack firm as a secretary and my employer was the type of man who gave me plenty opportunity to do my thing."

Angela's "thing," it evolved, was that she got tired of being at the bottom looking up.

"Say a man from Dublin would ring me up and ask me for a ladder (special ladders are used by steeplejacks) or something. I'd say, 'Fine, I'll get it for you in the store.' And I'd drive to Dublin, or wherever, but I'd be down below, and they (the steeplejacks on the chimney) wouldn't hear me and I might sit there until one o'clock waiting for them to come down to lunch. So, I'd just climb up to the top and say, 'Lads, I've brought the stuff; it's down there and I'm going home.' And I didn't think anything unusual about that. That was just a normal day's work."

She was 18 when she started and today, at 34, she is managing director not only of her own company, Collins Steeplejacks, Ltd., of Limerick, but also of a new company, Essco Collins Ltd., of Kilkishen.

The latter is a joint venture with a U.S. firm (Electronic Space Systems Corporation of Concord, Mass.) aided by Ireland's Industrial Development and Shannon Development authorities.

Essco Collins Ltd. is engaged in turning out radar domes — called radomes — protective canopies of plastic membranes bolted to aluminum frames which protect antennae and other radio transmission equipment.

The American company came to Limerick in 1969 seeking a contractor to erect a radome at Woodcock Hill, near Shannon, and Angela's company was given the contract. When the American firm decided to build a factory in Ireland to manufacture radomes, Angela sold them part of her farm land for $200,000 in her home village of Kilkishen.

She has four brothers, but her father left the farm to her "because I'm an only daughter and the youngest...and I could do nothing wrong in his eyes."

"We invested with the American company and part of our investment was putting up four acres of land to build the factory on. It was beautiful to go back to my village with this lovely venture."

Her work has carried her throughout western Europe. "I love my life. It's beautiful," she said, even though she admitted putting in 12-hour days. She still occasionally climbs alongside her men on contracts at home and abroad, on anything from church steeples to factory chimneys, from storage tanks to radomes. The work involves construction, inspection and repairs. Cracks must be fixed or heads replaced or aircraft warning lights installed.

The work can be tricky and dangerous. "You go up the sheer side of the structure. Grouting holds the stones together (on chimneys)...and when a big crack appears the chimney just separates and bulges open and you have to go up and put scaffolding around it, hold it together and take it down brick by brick, both the inside and the outside, and then build it back up again." Angela has never had any close calls in climbing. "The reason is that you HAVE to be safe. Accidents usually happen near the ground because people are careless."

The majority of her men were trained in England, where there is far more industry than in Ireland. "Steeplejacks are a dime a dozen now in England," she said. In Ireland, on the other hand, steeplejacks are king, according to Angela. "I think I have the majority of steeplejacks in Ireland."

Would she hire a woman as a steeplejack? She looks embarrassed. "No. It's a terrible thing to say. Nobody ever asked me. And I don't know; I've gone through an awful lot. I don't know any woman would go through the same thing."

On reflection, she says, "I'd give her a chance, but I wouldn't work with her or trust my life on her. I'd only work with my own men that I know and that I can rely on. But I'd give her an opportunity to learn like I do with other young fellows."

Angela's husband, John, whom she married in 1966, has joined the company. He had been a policeman. They have three children.

The couple recently purchased an estate house with 12 bedrooms — 30 rooms in all — which they hope to restore to its original state. It sits on 63 acres.

"It's a haven, with handcarved staircase. I love to paper and paint and decorate, and I'll do all of it. It will take time, but I'll do all of it."

"In the very early stages of my childhood, we were not well off — we had love but no money — so this is a beautiful ending."

Blazers Named Number One Fashion Look

By LYNN HOHERTZ
Family News Staff

Trying to coordinate a wardrobe for fall and wondering how to achieve today's fashion look?

During a recent fashion preview at the Hilton Inn, Billie Patterson, fashion coordinator for the Dallas zone of Sears, said blazers are the number one investment.

A herringbone tweed blazer, for example, can be worn one day with tailored trousers, another day with a dirndl skirt and yet another day with a soft sweater-dress.

"The blazer is the beginning of many different outfits," Miss Patterson said. She also predicts that the blazer will be popular for many seasons to come.

When selecting a blazer, Miss Patterson suggested investing in a well-cut, well-made style. Good fabrics for fall are corduroy, wool and wool-blend tweeds. The blazer should be roomy enough to slide over layers and be a flattering length for both skirts and pants.

Popular colors for fall are deep olive, medium gray and chamois. Layering is a popular fashion look for fall. It provides an assortment of looks that can be achieved by mixing and matching a variety of separates.

Miss Patterson noted that the menswear look is part of the fashion scene and includes high waisted pants, tuxedo shirts that are also a part of the Annie Hall look, bow ties and newsboy caps.

Accessories play an important part in the overall fashion look. Hats and stick pins are popular accessories for fall. Stickpins can be worn on blazers, hats or sleeve cuffs.

Boots provide warmth for those cold winter days and nights and complete an outfit fashionably. This year low-heeled riding boots as well as ankle-length, mid-calf and knee-high boots will be seen everywhere. Shoes for daily wear are sturdier looking with a lower heel, evening shoes however, will be femininely proportioned with extremely high heels.

A few well planned purchases will provide a go-anywhere, do-anything wardrobe for fall.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
 Today is Thursday, Sept. 28, the 271st day of 1978 with 94 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

American entertainer Ed Sullivan was born Sept. 28, 1902.

On this day in history:

In 1920, baseball's biggest scandal broke. A grand jury indicted eight players of the Chicago White Sox for "throwing" the 1919 World Series games with the Cincinnati Reds.

In 1937, President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River in Oregon.

In 1953, Robert Greenleaf, Jr. was kidnapped. The 6-year-old son of a wealthy Kansas City, Mo., automobile dealer was found dead and the kidnappers were eventually executed.

In 1976, Lebanese Christian and Syrian troops opened a major offensive against the Palestine Liberation Organization in Lebanon.

A thought for the day:

England novelist William Makepeace Thackeray said, "Next to the very young."

OUT-PATIENT

LONDON (AP) — Patient Brean Holland, 12, had a hospital staff and police worried when there was no trace of him in the hospital. He spent two hours in a museum because he was bored.

Grapes Main Ingredient In Californian's Vodka

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — A California winemaker is challenging traditional vodka producers by using grapes as the main ingredient instead of grain.

"Just which grape or combination of grapes are used is a trade secret, at least at this point," said Robert Ivie, president of Guild Wineries & Distilleries, which is introducing California Silverado Vodka in the state.

He said the vodka is being marketed first in the San Joaquin Valley on a volume basis after a series of test runs over the past few months in the San Francisco Bay area.

Ivie said the tests in the Bay area were "very encouraging," and he expects the vodka to do well throughout the state once it has been introduced and tasted.

He said the firm's researchers worked for a long time trying to find the right grape or combination of grapes to produce Silverado.

"We tasted seven different approaches, some with one grape and some with combinations," Ivie said. "We finally settled on one of them, and now it's our secret." Ivie did say that vodka is made from the same grapes that are used to make dry white wines.

The initial production of Silverado will be from Cribari Winery, a Fresno, Calif., subsidiary of Guild.

"The first release will be 20,000 cases, based on bottles which measure close to one-fifth of a gallon that will sell for $5.45 a bottle," Ivie said. "We're suggesting pricing in direct competition with Smirnoff which has been the premium American-made vodka."

While he won't get specific about the way Silverado is made, Ivie said the grapes are taken to the winery where their natural sugar is converted into alcohol. Once fermentation takes place, the liquid from the grapes becomes wine. It then is distilled into brandy or vodka.

One of the main differences between vodka and brandy is that brandy is aged in wooden barrels where it receives some of its flavor. Vodka is placed into stainless steel tanks and absorbs no outside flavor.

Radioactive Technique Gives Inside Look At Workings Of Organs

By AL ROSSITER JR.
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six American medical centers are testing a revolutionary radioactive medicine technique that gives doctors a cross-sectional inside look at the workings of some of the most critical organs of the body. Various uses of the still-experimental process were outlined last week to more than 2,000 scientists and physicians from around the world attending the second international congress of the World Federation of Nuclear Medicine and Biology. The procedure uses a newly developed machine called a positron emission tomograph which measures the radiation emitted when radioactive versions of chemical elements found in the human body are injected into a patient's blood stream. Specific radioactive drugs are used to seek out the part of the body in question. Unlike standard radio-assay processes, the new technique uses a ring of detectors surrounding the patient and a machine that rapidly converts the radiation data into high-resolution pictures that represent a cross sectional view of the organ examined, like viewing a slice from a loaf of bread.

ing changes in chemistry that preceded those structural changes. "The importance of this approach is that it is applicable to study of just about any organ in the body," Ter-Pogossian said at a briefing. Dr. Kenneth L. Gould of the University of Washington and his colleagues were awarded a $10,000 prize from the federation for showing how this non-invasive method could be used to examine coronary arteries for evidence of narrowing caused by the buildup of fat deposits on the inside artery walls.

Drink Lots Of Fluids

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — One of your columns recently talked about uric acid kidney stones. The treatment that you mentioned differed from that of our son's, so I thought you would be interested in our story. When he was 13 years old he was hospitalized with a kidney infection and found to have a large uric acid stone. He was placed on a very strict uric acid free diet with no red meats — only chicken, fish, turkey. He drank a glass of water each waking hour to keep his kidneys flushed, plus four glasses of orange juice and a solution of sodium citrate and citric acid which, in turn, caused his urine to become very alkaline. Bathing a uric acid stone in alkaline solution over a period of time dissolves stones. After three months of faithfully following the treatment, new X rays showed that the stone was gone and our son's kidney was back to normal. Surgery had been avoided. Our son is still checked at regular intervals but, to date, there has been no recurrence of uric acid crystals or infection. We learned a great deal out of this experience. First, that uric acid stones appear in children and calcium stones appear in adults. And that uric acid stones are transparent and, therefore, you can't see them on ordinary X rays, but have to inject dye to observe them.

DEAR READER — Most of the things you say are right on target and they are not particularly different from what I have commented on before in terms of uric acid stones.

The chief difference probably is in the method of making the urine alkaline. This can be done in several different ways with different medicines. It is perfectly true that a high percentage of uric acid stones can be dissolved. Unfortunately, it is not true in all cases.

There have been enormous strides forward in learning how to treat kidney stones in recent years. You have to know what kind of stone it is before you decide whether you want the urine to be acid or alkaline. Some stones dissolve in an acid urine, whereas other stones dissolve in an alkaline urine. Of course, there are stones that don't dissolve at all. With the current knowledge about stones, though, most of them can be prevented from enlarging further and a good many of them can be dissolved. Also, you can prevent formation of new stones.

It is perfectly true that uric acid stones cannot be seen on an ordinary X ray. It is not true that they occur only in children. Uric acid stones can and do occur in adults.

To give you more information about kidney stones and the current thinking about them, I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-2, Kidney Stones: Treatment Has Changed. Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Despite what kind of stone a person has, the one point on which there is almost universal agreement is that anyone who has such problems should drink lots of fluids, particularly water.

body are injected into a patient's blood stream. Specific radioactive drugs are used to seek out the part of the body in question.

Unlike standard radio-assay processes, the new technique uses a ring of detectors surrounding the patient and a machine that rapidly converts the radiation data into high-resolution pictures that represent a cross sectional view of the organ examined, like viewing a slice from a loaf of bread.

"We think this is an absolutely major breakthrough in diagnostic medicine," said Dr. Henry N. Wagner, president of the federation and head of nuclear medicine at Johns Hopkins University.

The medical centers now experimenting with the machines are the Brookhaven National Laboratory, Upton, N.Y.; Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston; Washington University, St. Louis; Franklin McLean Memorial Research Institute, Chicago; the University of California at Los Angeles and the University of California at Berkeley.

When used to study the brain, one version of the machine developed by Dr. Michel M. Ter-Pogossian at the Washington University School of Medicine can provide seven detailed images of the

Lubbock Teen-Ager Knifed At South Plains Fair

The Panhandle South Plains Fairgrounds was the scene of a Wednesday night stabbing which sent an 18-year-old Lubbock man to Methodist Hospital.

Lannon McLaurin of 6517 Ave. T told police he was walking down the midway about 11:15 p.m. when he was attacked by a knife-wielding suspect and another man who held him down during the assault.

McLaurin was treated and released at the hospital, even though he was reportedly stabbed in the chest, hand, arm and both hips.

The victim, according to reports, said he would not press charges in connection with the incident, the apparent result of a domestic quarrel.

Another reported assault occurred about 5:40 p.m. Wednesday at the fair grounds when Vickie Lynne Fultz, 26, a carnival worker, said she was slightly injured by three women she had asked to get off the counter of a booth she was working.

She said the three women, described as black, fat and short, were sitting on the counter and she asked them to get off because it might collapse. Apparently angered over the request, one of the suspects threw a board at Miss Fultz, hitting her on the arm.

Police this morning were continuing their investigation of a reported robbery about 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Fina service station, 34th Street and Avenue A.

It remained undetermined early today how much money was taken in the alleged holdup.

Station attendant Michael David Pirkle, 16, said a white man came into the station with his right hand in his pocket and told Pirkle he had a gun.

The bandit demanded "all the money," and threatened to shoot the employee if he did not comply, reports indicate.

The robber was described as about six feet and 150 pounds, with a mustache and long sideburns. The suspect reportedly grabbed the money and left the station, running south on Avenue A.

Police said the man turned into an alley where a witness said two other white men joined him.

The break-in of a van at Horizon Vans, 2316 Fourth St., netted the guilty party about $1,000 in stereo and CB radio equipment. The owner of the dealership, said his customer's van apparently was burglarized between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Don Wallace of 5202 Kenosha Ave. told police tools valued at $300 to $400 were stolen from his car while it was parked at Anderson Junior High School, 219 Walnut Ave., between 2 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Wednesday.

A 16-year-old Lubbock youth remained in the county juvenile ward today after he was arrested early Tuesday on suspicion of burglary and attempted rape.

Officers answered a call to the 2300 block of 5th Street about 3 a.m. Tuesday to check on a reported prowler. They discovered the teen-ager in the area and while talking with the suspect, a woman who lived nearby told officers someone had been leaving obscene notes on her door.

The youth was identified Wednesday in a police lineup by two women who said he had broken into their homes in separate incidents. One of the women said the suspect also tried to rape her but she fought off his advances.

In other activity Wednesday, police were investigating reports of two robberies and an attempted hold-up.

A 20-year-old waitress told police that a tall, thin black man, wearing a blue jogging suit, broke into her apartment about 5 a.m. and raped her in addition to taking her cash.

She said the man, in his 20s, held a knife to her throat and demanded money. The woman said she gave him $35.

According to police reports, the man then allegedly pulled the covers off the bed and raped her after warning that if she did not cooperate he would kill her. After the sexual assault, the suspect told the woman not to tell anyone what happened and left the apartment.

David Allen Dose, 22, of 2104-A 14th St. told police that shortly before 11 p.m. Tuesday he was robbed of about $140 in front of the U.S. Post Office at 1515 Ave. G.

Dose said he was walking to his car after mailing a letter when someone stuck a hard object to his back and said, "Give me your money or I'll kill you."

After giving the bandit the money, the suspect said, "Get into your car and drive off," according to Dose. The victim said he saw the man through his rear view mirror and described him as a "very tall" black man wearing a brown or gray coat and jeans.

Tommy L. Benton, 41, of 4001 4th St., No. 602, was released from Health Sciences Center Hospital about 4 a.m. Wednesday after he reportedly had been beaten by two men who tried to rob him.

Benton said that he had been at a club at 50th Street and Avenue H about 11:45 p.m. Tuesday when two white men, in their mid-20s, offered to drive him home.

On the way, Benton said, one of the suspects told him to hand over his money. Benton told police that when he refused, the suspects stopped their car in the 100 block of Indiana Avenue and started hitting him.

Benton said he jumped out of the car and hid in a nearby field until his two attackers left.

In the latest reports of property crimes, W.A. Lorenz said someone took two air-operated bumper jacks, together valued at $1,000, from in front of his service station at 2408 Ave. H. Lorenz said the chain that had secured the equipment to a pole in the driveway of the firm had been cut.

The Santa Fe Railroad Co. is out $1,000 after someone broke into one of the firm's trucks parked at 200 Ave. M and took five boxes of tools, according to reports.

Robert Edick of 6402 Albany Ave., No. 1303, told police that whoever broke into his 1977 Dodge van, while it was parked in front of his residence, made off with $960 worth of goods. He listed as missing a television, 25 8-track tapes, binoculars and two cameras and attachments.

Deputies Wednesday were searching for whoever took $1,000 worth of goods from Wilma Huggins' home in the southwest portion of Lubbock County.

Mrs. Huggins said she returned to her trailer about 1 a.m. Tuesday to find the front door unlocked and $400 worth of jewelry and personal papers and stock, valued at $600, missing. Deputies were unable to find any sign of forced entry.

Sam A. Holder, manager of Red Raider Auto at 5024 Ave. H, said someone scaled the fence surrounding the car dealership's storage yard and broke into two vehicles.

Holder said a 1968 AM-FM and 8-track tape player unit was removed from each of the vehicles, a 1976 Pontiac and a 1977 Ford van. He said the burglars also caused $200 damage to the Pontiac and $30 damage to the van.

Mary C. Rohr said whoever pried the front door of her 5003 Ave. D home sometime Wednesday morning took two televisions, valued at $100 each, a $120 high school ring, an $80 watch, $20 in bills and a $60 coin collection.

Television repairman Arturo Garcia Jr. said someone broke the panels out of the back door of Art's Used Appliance store at 3711 Fordham and took seven televisions, together valued at $200.

Wildlife Game Park Opens Near Dallas

By TED J. SIMON
A-1 Travel Editor

As the ostrich walked by the small herd of wildebeest, one of the wildebeest ambled over to the leggy bird. The ostrich quickly took its step and the gun kept pace. Suddenly, as if a person had said, "On your mark, get set, go!" — the race was on.

The unlikely pair ran all out for about a hundred yards, turned around and streaked back to where it had all started. The ostrich again resumed its walk and the wildebeest returned to the herd.

Marlin Perkins or a Walt Disney cinematographer would have been delighted and willing to travel to Africa for such a scene. But, the unplanned event happened near Grand Prairie between Dallas and Fort Worth.

Texas Safari and Game Farm, now in its first season as a fully operational game farm and wildlife game park, covers 350 acres one-quarter mile north of I-30 at Belt Line Road and Grand Prairie Exit.

If you're thinking, "Hey, that's where Lion Country was when I went to Six Flags a few years ago. But, that drive-through game park went out of business." Well, you're right. However, most of the animals have been there all this time. Now the facility is under new ownership and again open to visitors.

Rick Tomlinson, business manager and director of marketing and promotion for Texas Safari, stopped our car to allow a huge rhino to cross the road.

"The biggest difference between our game farm and an entertainment safari park," explained Tomlinson to this writer, "will be the number of lions you see. Here the lions are fewer in number and they're kept within a fenced area. That's why at Texas Safari you can drive around with your car windows rolled down."

Visitors to Texas Safari are delighted with the "windows down" liberty, and the new policy has been a winner with photographers. Trying to take pictures through a window without getting reflection can try the patience of any photographer — amateur and professional.

Another rhino crossed the road to join a large herd looking like a division of Sherman tanks. "We have one of the largest herds of rare white rhinos in North America," noted Tomlinson. "We concentrate on a specific species for raising, breeding and selling to zoos and safari parks around the world."

The overall emphasis of the Texas Safari and Game Farm, the only drive-through wild animal reserve and breeding farm in the Southwest, is toward the preservation of animals.

International Animals Exchange (IAE) purchased the safari property and assigned See TEXAS Page 9

SOFT AND CUDDLY — A young visitor to Texas Safari and Game Farm is delighted by a new friend in the special children's petting zoo.

AHOY THERE — Ducks and geese have the right of way over paddle boats on a small lake near the picnic grounds at Texas Safari in the top photo. The game farm is becoming a favorite area for many species of birds. Zebras can be viewed by visitors in the large area assigned to African plains animals. The area gives the animals a place where they can run unencumbered or just take it easy after a hearty breakfast.

Texas Safari Offers Close Look At Game

 nimals between Dallas and Fort Worth in 1977. Brian Hunt, president of IAE, changed the concept of the park to conform to his conservationist philosophy. Hunt has stated, "For many animal species, the only hope is in zoological or game parks, like the Game Farm."
 Tomlinson noted, "Some game parks have actually sent successful breeding species back to Africa. Operations such as this might be the answer to saving a species as less and less land becomes available in the animal's country of origin and poaching continues."
 He continued, "We've had a very successful year with healthy births from our zebra, buffalo, elk and lions. Those are good signs that our feeding methods and care are excellent."

being injured, then we will take the newborn and care for it and hand raise it if necessary."
 A series of successful cheetah births have taken place at the game farm. Because cheetahs are relatively high strung animals when in captivity, the births are considered an incredibly good record by the farm's personnel. The cheetahs are now at a zoo in California for continued research and breeding purposes.
 Five cubs were born to a lioness approximately a month ago at the Texas facility. A white rhino is presently carrying a calf, and Texas Safari personnel are looking toward the birth with anticipation.
 We stopped near a very large cage to watch two employees play with a couple of Siberian tiger cubs named Connie and Amir. One of the cubs is missing its tail because the cub was rejected by its mother at birth. The cubs are now so healthy and frisky that one of them was used as a model in a curio ad.

 "A lot of our work here will not be seen by the general public," noted Tomlinson. "But, the welfare of the animals is why we are here."
 Although primarily a game farm, visitors to Texas Safari will find the operation both educational and entertaining. Animal identification posters are placed throughout the park to enlighten visitors not familiar with some of the more exotic species. An entertainment area features animal shows, an elephant ride, paddle boats, a train ride, and a petting zoo. A cafeteria with fast food service, plus two snack bars are near a picnic area.

 Texas Safari and Game Farm is a place where you can spend an entire day viewing monkeys, camels, antelopes and Tibetan yaks in a natural environment. Visitors are encouraged to take their time, driving the roads and stop at their leisure to enjoy the various species that thrive in the pristine environment.
 Bird fanciers will be pleased by the abundance of birdlife. Exotic birds have been brought in by Texas Safari, but the preserve has also become a natural magnet for native migratory birdlife.

We stopped beside an ostrich as it settled down on several eggs. The game farm business manager explained that both the male and female ostrich take turns caring for the eleven eggs. It's likely that all of the eggs will hatch, but the young may be difficult to raise.
 "We prefer the animals to raise their young whenever possible," Tomlinson said. "If there is the danger of a newborn animal not being fed by its parent or

Earth's Inner Fluid Eyed As Fuel Source

By MICHAEL FLYNN
SEATTLE (UPI) — A unique deep drilling project carried out this summer in Iceland suggests that fluids are circulating deep in the Earth's crust at temperatures high enough to be tapped as an energy source, according to a leader of the project.

Dr. Nikolas Christiansen, professor of geological sciences at the University of Washington and a principal U.S. investigator on the project, said the two-month drilling found circulating fluids with a temperature of about 175 degrees Fahrenheit in the rocks about a mile deep.

"This is the first time we've had evidence that we could get into older rocks and find circulating water," Christiansen said.

"We discovered a large artesian system down there and found that the water is certainly hot enough to be an energy source."

"A key part of the discovery was learning that rocks are still open at that depth, fractured with water circulating through them," he said. "As a result of our findings, I think we'll discover the same situation exists in other areas."

Christiansen explained that in order for geothermal energy to be put to work, "you not only have to have high temperatures deep in the Earth, but some means to bring the heat to the surface."

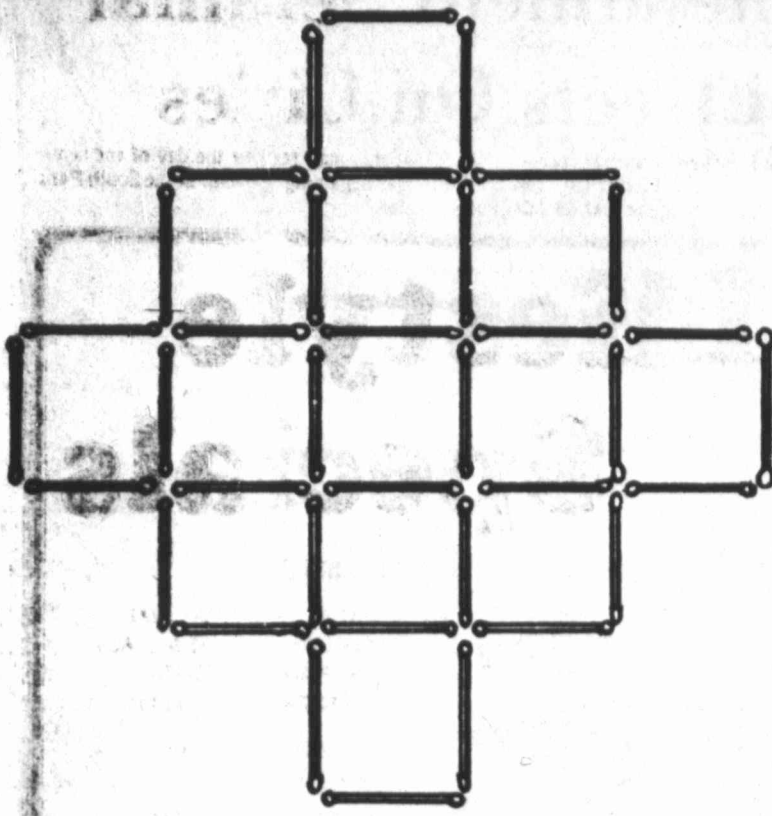

Temperatures at the 1,920-meter (6,330-foot) level were about 175-degrees, hot enough to use as an energy source "but not hot enough to bring to the surface as steam," he said.

Christiansen and two dozen other scientists from six countries were involved in the Iceland drilling effort and they plan to carry out a similar project at another site to help verify the findings in Iceland.

"We'll probably have another drill two years from now," he said. "We'll select another island, possible a location in the Canary Islands."

While the geothermal findings represent the most interesting aspect of the project for the general public, Christiansen said the core samples brought back from the site will provide important geological information.

The actual drilling site was located near a series of overhanging 4,000-foot cliffs. By examining samples taken from the cliffs, as well as the core samples from the mile-deep drill hole, the geologists are getting a look at a thickness representing 12 million years of Earth history.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Readers Provide Ideas On Birds

By SHARI LEWIS

I guess we only really value things when we're about to lose them. Now that many birds are winging out of winter's way, my mailbox is full of ideas from kids about birds.

- Some of the ideas are good:
  - When you get around to hanging birdhouses as winter homes, put them up high.
  - If you have more than one birdhouse, put each on a different tree (birds like privacy, too).
  - Place the birdhouse in partial sunlight, with the back of the house to the usual wind direction.
- Other ideas about birds sent in by kids are funny!
  - What bird is a letter?
  - What bird is essential to eating?
  - I'll give you the answers, so don't ruffle your tail feather!
    - A Jay.
    - A swallow.

Yesterday's Brain Twister: How many words can you think of that contain a double "v"?

Answer: I've thought of two — flivver and savvy. How about you?

Today's Brain Twister: I've made this pattern with cotton swab sticks, but you can use toothpicks or paper clips or blades of grass or whatever you have at hand. Can you remove just eight pieces so that you wind up with a pattern that consists of just six squares instead of the original 13? (Look of the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Coal-Waste Fuel Study Approved By Panelists

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Electric Utilities Board voted Wednesday night to explore the feasibility of a combination coal-municipal solid waste system to supply future Lubbock Power and Light fuel needs.

Board Chairman George Meenaghan suggested contracting for a professional study of both methods, and Bill Wood, city director of electric utilities, said he would have representatives at the next board meeting to discuss both energy sources.

It had been thought that a coal plant was not feasible because the plants produce too much power for the LP&L system.

However, Meenaghan said smaller plants now are being designed. Municipal solid waste, currently buried in a city landfill, could be used in conjunction with a coal plant to generate low pressure steam, Wood said.

Although the steam could not operate any LP&L generators, there are markets for the low pressure steam, he said. Meenaghan suggested paying for studies of alternate energy sources from a capital improvements fund recently approved by the Lubbock City Council. Next year LP&L will retain one percent, or $141,000, of the Fuel Cost Adjustment charge.

He said a study on municipal solid waste had been done in July 1976, but that study needed to be updated. Other alternative energy sources to be studied include solar and wind power.

Also Wednesday, board members discussed City Councilman Bill McAllister's proposed committee to study future options for LP&L, including the lease or sale of the municipally-owned utility.

Meenaghan said he wanted the board to "find some way to interface with the study committee," adding that the board could suggest possible members for the committee.

Board member Lonnie Hollingsworth noted that LP&L is "very political and a very big business, and there would be a tremendous amount of pressure put on" committee members.

The utility has been the victim of "erroneous information and rumors put out by prejudiced people," Hollingsworth said, adding, "LP&L is just a good deal, that's all there is to it."

Board members approved a policy for lighting the frontage roads of Loop 289 which provides that developers will bear the cost of installing a 100 watt residential sodium vapor light at each intersection.

That policy is subject to city council approval. Also Wednesday, board members approved an advertising budget for next year of $130,000 — $20,000 more than this year.

Health Food Exports Promoted By USDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — With "the first U.S. natural foods exhibit to be held overseas," the Agriculture Department is actively promoting exports of so-called health foods for the first time in its 116-year history.

The department announced Wednesday that foods grown without the use of chemicals are being shown to prospective buyers for two days in Zurich, Switzerland.

Board members approved a policy for lighting the frontage roads of Loop 289 which provides that developers will bear the cost of installing a 100 watt residential sodium vapor light at each intersection.

Taxation Amendment Seminar To Explore Effects On Cities

Tax relief or no tax relief. That is one of the questions to be answered at a daylong seminar here Friday on the taxation amendment passed in the special session of the legislature.

Sponsored by the Comprehensive Planning Institute of Dallas, the seminar specifically will explore the possible fiscal impacts of the proposed amendment on local governments.

Texas voters will determine the fate of the so-called tax relief amendment on Nov. 7 and its passage seems a virtual certainty.

And, although the exact impact on local governments is uncertain, the amendment's passage is expected to have a great fiscal effect.

The Lubbock seminar Friday at the South Park Inn is the last in a series of four workshops across the state to help local government officials prepare for the financial and administrative changes anticipated as a result of the amendment.

Each provision of the amendment will be examined by speakers from the University of Houston, the School Tax Assessment Practices Board, the Texas Farm Bureau, the Texas Research League and the Texas Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

A special two-hour workshop conducted by state Reps. Tim Von Dohlen and John Bryant will give an overall assessment of the amendment and explore legislative action which could lessen the fiscal impact on local governments.

Von Dohlen, chairman of the House Constitutional Amendments Committee, supports the amendment's passage, while Bryant has been vocal in his opposition.

Workshop participants will receive a handbook on the impacts of the various components of the proposed amendment and the cumulative impacts of the entire amendment.

The workshop should help each person attending make up his or her mind whether to vote for the amendment, seminar planners said.

The registration fee is $60 per person, or $50 per person for organizations sending more than one person. The fee includes the cost of lunch and the hand-book.

TRAIN WINDOWS IMPROVED
WASHINGTON (AP) — A demonstration of protective windows designed to prevent vandals from killing or injuring train crews and passengers will be held at the Transportation Department's Test Center in Pueblo, Colo., Friday. Federal Railroad Administrator John M. Sullivan will announce proposed regulations to make safety windows mandatory on engines, cabooses and passenger trains.

Participants may register the day of the seminar beginning at 9 a.m. at the South Park Inn.

Powell Rips 'Natural Showman' Efforts By Attorneys To Perform Tonight

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

Robert Palmer of the New York Times has described Eddie Rabbitt as "an unusually talented songwriter and a natural showman." Few would disagree now — but I can still remember the first time this entertainer was booked to play in Lubbock. Reporters in the A-J newsroom were asking, "Who, or what, is an Eddie Rabbitt?"

Now they know.

Eddie Rabbitt is an established country singer, boasting a smooth voice, a string of quality LPs and a handful of top-of-the-chart singles. And he'll be appearing in concert at 8 p.m. today with comedian Jerry Clower at the Panhandle South Plains Fair. Tickets are still available.

Recalling the confusion which reigned when Rabbitt first hit the music scene (as a performer, that is; he's been writing songs for years), it seemed almost necessary to ask him whether anyone had ever advised him to change his name. He answered during a recent telephone interview from Amarillo, "Yes. Me! I can still remember walking past the Hurricane Bar in Newark and seeing a sign which read 'Eddie Rabbitt appearing nightly.'"

"I thought it sounded like some damn magic act. A novelty act."

"So I changed my name to Eddie Martin. I'd just bought myself a new Martin guitar at the time. And, well, to show you just how well all this worked out, in three months I went from near obscurity to complete oblivion. So I took my real name back, and I think it's really been more of a help than a hindrance."

Rabbitt does not claim the usual "country background." You know, the one in which the singer grew up picking cotton and listening to the Grand Ole Opry on his battered Philco. Instead, Rabbitt was born in Brooklyn and grew up in East Orange, N.J. His country roots were planted by two people: his Irish immigrant father, who has played country music for years and even plays fiddle on Rabbitt's new LP, and his East Orange scoutmaster.

The latter's name was Tony Schwick-rath but, since that wasn't the snazzy type people remembered, he used the name of Bob Randall when he played country music every weekend. It was he who helped Rabbitt learn to play guitar, at least until the headstrong youth decided to quit school, take off and try singing for his supper.

Nashville was the place to go, of course. But not that many survived.

Rabbitt made it by hooking up as a staff songwriter for a publishing company. He made do on $37.50 a week for over two years, until finally he wrote "Kentucky Rain" and his producer was impressed enough to give him a recording contract. But a tape of the song was heard by Elvis Presley one night — and The King wanted it. Rabbitt had to face the following choices: "You can record this song. But you're a newcomer, an unknown. You don't have the savvy or knowledge to make it a hit. If you bomb, the song will be wasted. On the other hand, you can let Elvis record it and be pretty sure it will hit."

Rabbitt said "I tore me apart for awhile. He now calls the song "a special piece of history," but that staff producer didn't think it was such a hot idea at the time. He tore up Rabbitt's recording contract, saying, "If you're not interested in saving your best material for yourself, then why should I care about your career?"

"Kentucky Rain" turned gold for Elvis in 1971. Rabbitt then wrote another hit, "Pure Love," for Ronnie Milsap in 1973. In 1974, he was signed to a recording contract by Electra Asylum Records, a rock outlet just beginning to enter the country field. And about a year ago, he put together a band, kept the rabbit image by calling them Hare Trigger, and began touring.

The reviews have been exceptional — and almost as numerous as the groupies.

Country music groupies? You bet. Eddie Rabbitt has been labeled the newest sex symbol in the country field, and it's a tag he enjoys to the fullest. "Hey, I think it's great," he said. "There were a lot of lonely Saturday nights on the way up, you know. And all the women hanging around the stage just makes me and the band want to play that much harder."

There is talk of putting Rabbitt in the movies, to which he says, "Why not go the whole trip? I don't mind trying anything, but I'll never let it interfere with my music."

Reputed Mob Boss Says He Helped In CIA Plot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reputed mob leader Santo Trafficante told Congress today he participated in a CIA assassination plot against Fidel Castro because "I thought I was helping the United States government."

Testifying before the House assassinations committee under a grant of immunity, Trafficante denied that he served as anything more than an interpreter providing English and Spanish translations for the others involved in the 1960 plot against the Cuban president.

He said he knows nothing about any attempt by Castro to retaliate.

The committee subpoenaed Trafficante to testify on the final day of a month of hearings examining whether there was a conspiracy behind the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Some conspiracy theorists have speculated that organized crime figures plotted Kennedy's murder because of his administration's crackdown on the Mafia.

Trafficante, a hunched, gray-haired man of 63, has been identified by law enforcement authorities as the long-time boss of Florida crime syndicate operations. Until Castro came to power in 1959, he ran gambling casinos in Havana.

As Trafficante began his testimony, committee Chairman Louis F. Stokes, D-Ohio, asked the routine opening questions about place of residence and place of birth.

Trafficante declined to say where he was born, citing his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. The committee then presented him with a federal court order granting immunity from prosecution for anything he might say, and he agreed to testify.

He conceded that he lost thousands of dollars when the Castro government closed down the casinos and he acknowledged that he was detained along with other casino operators in "sort of a concentration camp" for about two months in 1959.

But he said he believes Castro's brother Raoul interceded in his behalf and he was released and allowed to remain in Cuba. He said he left voluntarily in mid-1960 and settled in Miami.

Late that year, gangster Johnny Roselli approached him about joining in the plot against Fidel Castro, Trafficante said.

"At that time, I thought it was a good thing," he testified. "He had established a communist base 90 miles from the United States. I go along with it because I figured it was like a war."

He said Roselli "told me the CIA and the United States government" wanted Castro killed.

An internal CIA report in 1967 described Trafficante as the courier who delivered poison pills to a Cuban contact to place in Castro's food.

Trafficante said the conspirators did decide to use poison pills but he denied that he ever delivered them.

The intelligence agency report said the Cuban who received the pills returned them after two weeks because he "got cold feet."

Unlike today, Trafficante was not granted immunity when he refused to answer questions before the committee during an early stage of its investigation in 1977.

The committee hopes to establish whether Trafficante had ties to Jack Ruby, the Dallas nightclub operator who shot and killed Lee Harvey Oswald in the Dallas police station. The Warren Commission concluded Oswald killed Kennedy and neither he nor Ruby was part of a conspiracy.

The committee on Wednesday produced a deposition from retired CIA official James O'Connell, who said he was the CIA's liaison with Trafficante and other mob leaders recruited to assassinate Castro in 1960.

Rio Grande To Crest

this afternoon were expected to shift to southerly tonight.

The week-long wet spell just ended left a total of 3.31 inches in the National Weather Service's rain gauge at Lubbock International Airport and pushed the city's total precipitation for the year to 11.35 inches, still considerably short of the 15 inches recorded up to this date last year.

A cold front moving through the lower Great Lakes spawned scattered thunder-showers from northeastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania into western New York.

A Canadian air mass chilled the upper Midwest. Temperatures in the mid 30s stretched from northern Minnesota into Upper Michigan. Readings in the 40s covered the rest of the Great Lakes and dipped into the mid-Mississippi Valley.

Frost warnings were posted for northeastern Minnesota, northern Wisconsin and some sections of Upper and Lower Michigan.

New Era Dawns

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ
And STEVE PERKINS

Q. When does the limit of 95 football scholarships per college team go into effect? I saw a published roster of the Washington Huskies which had 123 names on it.

—Ellis Real, Seattle.

A. What we have here is a new era in college football, the time of the "walk-on" or "student athlete." After a school has signed its limit of 95, it recruits other athletes to enroll, with various forms of help, all of them legal. The only catch is that once a "student athlete" appears in a varsity game, he must be counted among the 95 the following season.

Although nothing illegal has been documented, colleges all over the country are suiting out dozens of walk-ons. Nebraska and Kentucky, for instance, have from 40 to 50 such candidates working out with the team.

Q. Am I wrong in believing that there never has been an ex-quarterback who was a success as a head coach? The fortunes of Bart Starr at Green Bay have brought this to mind.

—Joe Dockery, Appleton, Wisconsin.

A. According to most archivists, Frankie Albert at San Francisco was the only former quarterback to finish with a career winning percentage (19-16-1). The others were Dutch Clark (16-26-2), Bob Waterfield (9-24-1), Sammy Baugh (18-24-0), Norm Van Brocklin (66-100-7) and Bart Starr, who had a 13-29-0 record going into this season.

However, another winning ex-quarterback has passed unnoticed, possibly because he spent his days with the Philadelphia Eagles as a second stringer, but Allie Sherman finished with a 57-49 record as head coach of the New York Giants.

Q. You said that an outfielder once had a fly ball hit him on the head and bounce over the wall. Could you document this please, by naming the player, the year and the ball park? I am skeptical.

—Joseph K. Rudy, Vicksburg, Miss.

A. His name was Stan Wetzel, with the New Orleans Pelicans, and he got conked by the fly ball in 1948 at Nashville's Sulphur Dell ballpark.

Outfielders were often accused of being ineffectual. Babe Herman of the Brooklyn Dodgers once offered to bet a writer that he wouldn't get hit on the head by a fly ball all season. The writer asked, "What about shoulders?" Babe replied, "Oh, no. Shoulders don't count."

Q. I can dimly remember years ago some series of batters being so hard to pitch to they were called "Murderers' Row." Can you tell me their names and when it was? Were they on the Yankees' team?

—Helen C. Ross, Tucson, Ariz.

Lam Jones Presents Challenge To Raiders' Defensive Squad

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

Mike Patterson looked around, as if surprised. "Have I run with Lam Jones?" Then the thought of the question soaked in, and he grinned—a begrudging grin.

"Yeah, I had to run against him some last year." People from all over the world have run with — or against — Lam Jones. Not many have stayed with him, however.

Patterson and his Tech mates remember the sprinter from Texas. He took a 57-yard bomb from Randy McEachern for the first score of the Tech-UT game a year ago, as the Longhorns posted a 26-0 shutout.

Now Jones, who ran on the winning U.S. sprint relay team in the Montreal Olympics two years ago, is one of the prime offensive weapons for the Longhorns.

And one of Patterson's challenges is to stop, overtake, or defend against the wide receiver. It will be one of Tech's challenges, as a defensive unit, too.

And that defensive unit spent its time Wednesday working to stop Jones, and the Texans. The Raider defenders face that challenge in full Saturday when the two teams collide in Jones Stadium at 7:30 p.m.

A packed house — of numbers up to or more than 55,000 — should watch the battle.

"He (Jones) doesn't run too many inside routes," said Patterson, Tech's starting right cornerback, "mainly outside stuff where he can turn it on."

"He's their main receiver, for the bomb. But, with his speed, you have to play off him. Sometimes, he'll loaf off the line, then take off. Other times, he'll just go right by you full speed."

"We'll get some help on him from the safeties, in some coverages."

"But, double coverage is best. One of the things is, you know that when they need it, they'll go to him. That might help some."

Jones has only caught four passes, to five for flanker Ronnie Miksch, but Jones' four have gone for 151 yards and two scores, Miksch's five for 67 steps.

"This is the first time we'll have played a team with a 4-3 defense," observed Tech head coach Rex Dockery at the end of Wednesday's workout.

"We haven't worked on that much, so we wanted our defense to see as much of it as we could. That was why we were running so many repetitions."

JOHNNY "LAM" JONES

Dockery had his troops behind locked doors, shuttered windows, and in the solitude of Jones Stadium for some phases of Wednesday's drills.

Tech will throw a five-man defensive front at Texas, the same formation the Raiders have seen in playing Southern California and Arizona.

But, in the secondary, for Tech, it'll be "double coverage for Lam Jones," remarked right cornerback Willie Stephens.

"He has good hands and excellent speed," added Stephens, "and that's all you need."

"He doesn't have the great moves like some of the receivers in the conference, but he doesn't need them with that speed. But, we'll try to double cover him when we can."

And what if it's one-on-one, what will Stephens do? He grinned and headed for the dressing room. "Pray."

Ponies Face Tascosa Tonight

By JIM FERGUSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Before heading out to the practice field Wednesday afternoon, Jack Quarles slipped on a black — rather than a red — warmup jacket and declared: "I'm still in mourning over our loss to Estacado."

Like an unfaithful wife, though, Quarles shed the black jacket about 10 minutes later.

It was time for another undertaking. So, the period of mourning had ended for the Coronado head football coach.

For Quarles and his Mustangs, it was time to start thinking about tonight's game with Amarillo Tascosa. The contest is set for 7:30 p.m. at Lowrey Field.

"I don't know how ready we'll be," the coach pointed out. "On Monday, they asked me if we'll work out in the gym. Then on Tuesday, they asked if we would have an easy practice. That's no way to start a week."

After suffering the first loss of the season — and Quarles' first as the head coach, a 14-7 setback by Estacado last week, the Mustangs enter the game with a 2-1 mark. Meanwhile, Tascosa is on the upswing, winning its first game last week (14-12 over Dumas) after dropping its first two.

Quarles, the George Gobel of the coaching profession, pointed out that there is one thing he and his staff do not have to worry about this week — homecoming.

"No more Windsor knots, mums and tuxedos for us this year," he told newsmen at the Coppercreek Mine Restaurant. "From now on, all we'll think about is football."

Football in general, he said, Tascosa is in particular.

According to Quarles, this year's group of Rebels "could be the best one Jocko (Harris) has had in a while."

"Their record," said Quarles, "sure doesn't show what they've got. They are a team you've got to contend with."

Leading the charge is Ray Jones, a back Quarles says "is fast as anyone we've seen this year. That includes the ones at Estacado, too."

Coronado, which boasts the likes of running back Archie Moore, won't be without a little speed in its corner either.

Moore, currently the city's leading ball-carrier with 283 yards on 46 carries, showed the crowd at Lowrey what kind of speed he displays by dashing 67 yards for a score. On the run, the 6-4, 175-pounder left a couple of Matadors standing in their tracks.

Despite the loss, Quarles pointed out that the Mustangs are "on the verge of having a good football team."

And what makes him say that? "I really don't know," he said. "It's just a feeling I've got."

"I have a lot of feelings about things. After being in the business this long, sometimes you get them. I feel something is about to happen."

NCAA Enforcement Procedures 'Fair'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the NCAA infractions committee told Congress today that the panel is not a "kangaroo court" that rubber stamps findings of the NCAA staff in meting out punishment to member schools, coaches and athletes.

Arthur R. Reynolds of the University of Northern Colorado, the outgoing chairman of the NCAA infractions committee, denied that the enforcement program contains "esoteric and inhuman rules and resists all efforts to reform its processes, exacting retribution from anyone who dares to challenge its authority."

"The fact is that the procedures are fair and fairly conducted and I believe that when you understand the NCAA enforcement program and the manner in which it in fact operates ... you will appreciate that the impression which has been created is misleading," Reynolds told the House investigations subcommittee.

Charles Alan Wright of the University of Texas, the incoming chairman, testified that when the facts about the enforcement program become known, "the conclusion would be that it is a good program, conscientiously administered ..."

Wright said of the program: "it is far more likely to exonerate the guilty than to convict the innocent."

Reynolds and Wright made their comments in testimony submitted to a House investigations subcommittee that has conducted a year-long probe into the enforcement procedures of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"I can assure you that there is no 'hit list' and there are no 'sacred cows,'" said Reynolds, a member of the infractions committee for the past 10 years and its chairman the last four. "Neither is it true that once a case is started some sort of penalty is inexorably imposed."

Forecaster Picks Missouri To Shock Sooners

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Special Correspondent

The No. 1 ranking in college football is like being top gun in one of those old wild west movies. There's always some young punk around eager to bump you off.

Missouri is more than a young punk. This is the team that took on national champion Notre Dame in the opening game and won. Then it tackled top-ranked Alabama and led into the third period. Then it beat a good Mississippi team.

Now it goes gunning for No. 1 again, this time Oklahoma, drunk from heady point-a-minute wine. Third time may be charm for the Big Mo.

The Southern Cal upset of Alabama featured last week's look into the crystal ball. Season's record 77-24, .762.

Missouri 33, Oklahoma 25: The Tigers are unawed by the Sooners' TD machine, which has ground out 153 points in three games.

Arkansas 36, Tuba 7: The Razorbacks, eyeing the No. 1 spot, won't need Ismael Ordonez' talented toe to win this one.

Southern California 24, Michigan State 14 (Friday): Charlie White's legs should be sore but he'll still soar.

Notre Dame 28, Purdue 20: A vital game for the Fighting Irish, who will be hanging on by their fingernails to escape utter disaster.

Penn State 35, Texas Christian 13: The Nittany Lions uphold the pride of the effete East.

UCLA 20, Minnesota 14: Even should the Gophers plug up Rick Bashore's passing lanes, there's always Theotis Brown.

Pittsburgh 20, North Carolina 17: Pitt's Willie Marsh has three interceptions this year. Do the Tar Heels want to try for four?

Texas 27, Texas Tech 3: How do you score if you can't see the goal line? The Longhorns lead the country in defense.

Alabama 25, Vanderbilt 7: Jeff Rutledge and his teammates emerge from the USC nightmare — the season is still young.

Ohio State 24, Baylor 7: Ron Springs may do a little more springing but QB Art Schlichter remains Woody's ace in the hole.

Michigan 35, Duke 14: If Notre Dame's agile behemoths couldn't stop Rick Leach's heroics, how can the Blue Devils do it?

Kentucky 21, Maryland 14: A spluttering start for the Wildcats after a 10-1 season, but the cylinders should start clicking.

Washington State 21, Army 7: It's a long way to come for the Cougars, who want more than a look at the Hudson.

Louisiana State 27, Rice 10: Tailback Charles Alexander puts in some goodicks in his bid for the Heisman.

Tennessee 15, Auburn 9: The Volunteers have to apply the brakes to Auburn's James Brooks, averaging six yards a zap.

Nebraska 25, Indiana 20: The Hoosiers are the year's major surprise, but Nebraska has too many horses.

Wilson Defense Racks Up Foes

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Would anybody like to take a guess at which team on the South Plains has the best defense?

In the unlikely event that you chose Wilson, pat your self several times on the back then get yourself on down to the high school to pick up your "Danny Chisum for President" or "Mustangs No. 1" bumper sticker.

Chisum's squad has allowed only six points in three games so far this year. And Wilson hasn't been knocking off paties either.

The season opened on a down note, a 6-0 loss to Class A O'Donnell. But it looks now like that was nothing at all to be ashamed of. O'Donnell is undefeated and appears to be one of the forces to be reckoned with in its conference.

"We knew they were going to have a good ball club," Chisum said of the game. "But our kids realized after the ballgame was over that we should have won the football game and that they had played a good Class A football team. 'Heck, we moved the football all over the field on them,'" he continued. "We just didn't score."

"We got 233 yards rushing and they had 187. 57 of that was on the touchdown run too. That one touchdown was the difference in the ball game. We dropped some passes in the end zone. We just didn't cash in on our chances."

After that, the Mustangs took out their frustrations on Ropes.

"I don't feel like losing to O'Donnell hurt us," Chisum said. "In fact I think it helped us against Ropes. We wanted to prove that we could beat a Class A team."

Consider it proven. Wilson took away a 40-0 win. Next on the list was Amherst. It too fell, its only loss of the season, a 28-0 decision.

"We feel like we have proved ourselves beating Amherst and now what we want to do is get some young people playing time and kind of polish up before we hit the district schedule," Chisum said. "We're trying to play a lot of kids this year," he continued. "We're trying to have our young kids come along so if we get somebody hurt in district or if we get a chance to do something they can help."

The Mustangs are loaded with experience. A total of 16 starters returned from last year's 4-6 team. That was Chisum's rookie year.

Tech Fems Enter Utah Event

PROVO, Utah (Special)—Coming off a win over Abilene Christian University Tuesday night, the Texas Tech women's volleyball team will compete in the Brigham Young University Tournament in Provo, Utah tonight and continuing through Saturday night.

Tournament play consists of four pools with 8th ranked California State-Long Beach, fifth ranked Brigham Young University, fourth ranked Utah State and Texas A&M favored in their respective pools.

Utah State won the Pepperdine Tournament last weekend in Malibu, Calif. The competition featured the four top women's volleyball teams in the nation — Hawaii, Pepperdine and UCLA.

Texas A&M winds up a 10-day tour of the West with the Brigham Young Tournament. The Aggies finished sixth in the San Diego State Tournament last weekend.

Texas Tech will play in pool II along with Cal State-Long Beach, Arizona, the University of Utah, Montana State, and the University of New Mexico.

The best-of-three matches on Thursday and Friday will determine the playoff berths for Saturday.

Texas Tech will match up with Montana State and New Mexico on Thursday. Tech will play Arizona, Utah and Cal State-Long Beach on Friday.

Other Texas teams competing in Utah include the University of Texas at Austin and North Texas State.

Said Texas Tech Coach Janice Hudson: "We are in the toughest pool. Long Beach is nationally ranked, and we'll have to play Arizona again this week. Last week, we split with them in California, but they eventually took fourth place in the tournament."

"Utah might have a good team since the volleyball around Salt Lake is good. They have to compete with Utah State and Brigham Young all the time. The other two teams in our pool are unfamiliar to me. I can't imagine losing to Montana State though."

Lady Chaps Compete In Tarleton Tourney

The Lubbock Christian College Lady Chaparrals volleyball team will travel to Stephenville to compete in the Tarleton State Tournament this weekend. Coach Larry Rogers looks at the action as a stepping stone to the future.

"We'll be getting a lot of competition from the caliber teams we'll be facing in the state tournament and, hopefully, we can gain some consistency from it. You can just see us improve game-by-game. But it's been awfully hard for us to maintain momentum. One of the reasons for that is this is our first year and these young ladies are still getting accustomed to one another."

The 12-team Tarleton State Tournament kicks off Thursday night, but LCC doesn't see action until 1 p.m. Friday, when the Lady Chaps face Mary Hardin-Baylor. Also Friday, LCC tangles with Charles Alexander, the star Louisiana State ball carrier, was a blocking back in high school at Galveston Ball.

Midwestern State at 5:30 p.m. and nemesis Hardin-Simmons at 8:30 p.m. LCC stands 5-3 on the year and two of the losses have been to H-SU, a three-set decision in the Abilene Christian Tournament and a five-set thriller in Lubbock.

Yankees, Red Sox Win; Boston Still In Running

By The Associated Press

One game — it could have been the loss to Cleveland in April, Toronto in May, Oakland in June, Minnesota in July or Seattle in August. Reverse the outcome in any of those games, and the Boston Red Sox would be in much better shape today.

They have been one game behind the New York Yankees in the American League East since Saturday and each day that one game looms larger.

Boston beat Detroit 5-2 Wednesday night, while the Yankees were defeating Toronto 5-1, so the Red Sox are still running, albeit running in place.

"It's never over until you're out of it, and we're not out of it — not in any way," said Boston's George Scott. "We're only one game out with four left to play. You can't call that being out."

"It's the same thing I've been saying for the last few days," said Manager Don Zimmer. "We've got to win tomorrow night (tonight) and hope for help. Here we are with 95 wins, four games to play, and we're fighting for our life."

That's because the Yankees keep winning, although they would prefer a little more breathing room.

"This is the tightest race I've been in," said Reggie Jackson, who played for three straight world championship teams at Oakland. "I don't like it."

Those A's teams took the AL West five straight times, winning the division races more comfortably than the 2½ games by which New York won last year and the slim one-game edge they hold going into the final four games of this season.

"Last year was close enough for me," said Jackson.

Elsewhere in the AL, one day after Kansas City won its third straight West title, the Royals lost to Seattle 4-2; Baltimore downed Cleveland 3-1; Texas thumped Minnesota 10-5 and California beat Milwaukee 4-1.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 2

The Red Sox, helped by a three-run first inning keyed by Carlton Fisk's two-run triple, posted their fourth consecutive victory and eighth in the last 10 games.

Scott, fighting a season-long slump, knocked in a pair of runs with a single and his 12th homer of the year.

Luis Tiant, Andy Hassler and Bob Stanley combined for a five-hitter, with Stanley picking up his 10th save.

Tiant, 12-8, allowed homers by Rusty Staub and Ron LeFlore before leaving after six innings because of a slight muscle pull behind his left knee.

Yankees 5, Blue Jays 1

Jackson and his old Oakland teammate Catfish Hunter helped reduce the Yankees' magic number to four in pursuit of their third straight division flag.

Hunter, 12-5, won his ninth game in the last 10 decisions with a six-hitter. He gave up his usual homer, this one to Roy Howell, who committed a key error in the Yankees' three-run second inning.

"Cat was super tonight, completely in charge," said Jackson. "But I've seen him better. I've seen him win Cy Young awards. I've seen him 21-5 when you'd get him two or three runs early and the game was over."

The three second-inning runs were enough, but Jackson and Graig Nettles belted booming solo homers for good measure.

Orioles 3, Indians 1

Dennis Martinez pitched in and out of trouble all game, giving up 10 hits and four walks. He stranded five runners in the first three innings but threw the right pitch at the right time to raise his record to 15-11.

Gary Roenicke doubled and scored one run, then bashed his third homer of the year. He has gone 7-for-13 since being recalled from the minors.

Mariners 4, Royals 2

Ruppert Jones slashed a two-run triple, highlighting a three-run ninth inning that rallied Seattle over Kansas City and prevented Paul Spittorff from gaining his 20th victory.

Byron McLoughlin, 4-8, pitched a seven-hitter.

Rangers 10, Twins 5

Toby Harrah rapped off his 1,000th career hit, a three-run homer that capped a five-run fifth and propelled Texas over Minnesota. The two-out homer came off reliever Mike Marshall and followed a two-run single by Juan Beniquez.

Angels 4, Brewers 1

Dave Frost scattered 10 hits before needing last-out relief help from Dave LaRoche, who picked up his 25th save.

Rick Miller's second double knocked in two runs in the fifth, breaking a scoreless tie. Ken Landreux hit his fifth homer for California in the seventh.

WILL THE REAL...—Chicago Cubs' Karl Pagel, left, models his version of the Dave Parker running mask at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh. Parker, right, broke a cheek bone in a home plate collision and has been wearing a football face guard on his batting helmet when running the bases since returning to the lineup. Pagel made his mask out of a Cubs helmet and trainer's tape. Currently Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates leads the National League in RBIs and batting average. (AP Laserphotos)

Watson Seeks Series Crown

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Tom Watson is seeking an accomplishment unique in our history this week in the prestigious World Series of Golf, the last major event on the year's schedule.
Watson, the heir apparent to Jack Nicklaus' longtime role as golf's leading performer, last season swept three major honors — Player of the Year, leading money-winner, and the Vardon Trophy for the low-stroke average on the tour.
Coming into the event that began today on the sprawling, 7,180-yard, par-70 South Course at the Firestone Country Club, Watson again led in all three categories. Should he win them all again, he'd be the first man ever to sweep all three in consecutive seasons.
"I'm not a specific, goal-oriented person," Watson said. "But I'd like to win the Vardon Trophy. That's important. That's the standard. Basically, over the years, we've played the same courses, so the stroke average means something."
And, as to the money-winning title, Watson grinned: "You win the Vardon Trophy, baby, and you're going to win some money."

And he's done that. He has collected $343,429 this season and very well could break Johnny Miller's 1974 single-season record of $353,021. A finish of fifth or better here would do it. The World Series of Golf purse is $300,000 with the game's biggest prize, $100,000, going to the winner.
His only challengers for money-winning honors are Andy Bean ($258,440 this year) and Nicklaus ($249,772). Either would have to win and have Watson play poorly to have any chance of catching him.
And Nicklaus appears the only challenger for Player-of-the-Year honors. Watson has won five times in this country, including his last two starts. No one else has won more than three American tournaments. Nicklaus has won three plus the British Open and would have to take this one to have a chance.
That's very possible. Nicklaus has an unmatched history of success on this course. He won the first World Series played under its present, expanded format. He won four of the old, four-man World Series. He won the American Golf Classic here and the PGA national championship. In all, he's taken more than one-half million dollars in winnings from events on this course alone.
And even though he plans to fly to Florida Friday night to watch his sons play high school football, then return to Akron, he's ranked as a co-favorite with Watson.

Lopez Weary As LPGA Event Opens

CALABASAS PARK, Calif. (AP)—Nancy Lopez, who's having a not-so-blazing finish to the most successful year in women's pro golf history, admits that she's weary.
"I never used to miss four and five-footers. I'm hitting the ball well but I'm not putting... One reason that I'm not putting well is because I'm tired, worn out," she said Wednesday after the pro-amateur preliminary to the $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Calabasas Park County club.
As the winner of eight Ladies Professional Golf Association events, including the record of five consecutive tour victories in May and June, Miss Lopez became the biggest money winner of any rookie in pro golf history, male or female.
Her last victory was Aug. 6 in the European Open. She finished eighth with Jo Ann Washam in a team event last week. But her 1978 LPGA earnings already are a record amount, $162,117, and Miss Lopez plans to make 1979 noteworthy as well by getting married to a Pennsylvania sportscaster, Tim Melton. The wedding is set for Jan. 6, her 22nd birthday.
"After I get married, I'm going to take a lot of time off next year. I'm getting a home and will try to settle down as much as possible."
"I made too many long range commitments this year," Miss Lopez said. "When I wanted to take time off to rest and practice, I couldn't because of some commitment."
Partly because Miss Lopez is in a slump, and partly because of her own credentials, Donna Caponi Young appears to be the favorite in the event being played at Mrs. Young's home course.
Mrs. Young comes off a victory at Alamo, Calif., earlier this month after a two-year winless streak.

Pirates Count On Final Sweep

By The Associated Press
The Pittsburgh Pirates have won 22 games in a row at their home park, Three Rivers Stadium. If they don't stretch the streak to 26, they can forget about winning the National League East title — and the Philadelphia Phillies will be division champions for the third straight year.
The Phillies, leading the NL East by 3½ games, and the Pirates, in second place, begin a crucial four-game series at Pittsburgh Friday night with a doubleheader. They play single games Saturday and Sunday.

Philadelphia needs only one victory to capture the championship. However, if the Pirates sweep the series, they would be one-half game ahead of the Phillies and would have to play a makeup game against Cincinnati Monday.
A victory in that game would make the Pirates champions. A loss would deadlock them with Philadelphia and the two teams would meet in a one-game show-down.

"If we don't win one out of four in Pittsburgh, we don't deserve to win it," said sparkplug shortstop Larry Bowa, voted the Phillies' most valuable player by the team's fans.
Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark agreed with Bowa. "If we can't win one, we don't deserve to win," he said after the Phillies had edged the Montreal Expos 5-4 Wednesday night.
The Pirates, however, are not giving up easily.
"The law of averages is with us," said Manager Chuck Tanner after Pittsburgh's 8-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs. "We're due to beat the Phillies because they've beaten us 10 times this season and we've beaten them four. We're a relaxed group."
"It's going to be a heck of a weekend," said Pirates right fielder Dave Parker, the National League's leading batter with a .332 average.
The teams have met five times in Three Rivers Stadium this season, with the Phillies winning four games — one in April and three out of four last month, shortly before the Pirates began their amazing home winning streak.

Phillies 5, Expos 4
Jerry Martin broke an 0-for-12 slump with four hits, drove in one run and scored another, helping the Phillies beat Montreal and reducing their magic number for clinching to two.
"I hadn't hit the ball hard since Moby Dick was a minnow," quipped Martin, who had not had a hit since Sept. 2.
Pirates 8, Cubs 3
Phil Garner's bases-loaded triple highlighted a six-run Pittsburgh uprising in the sixth inning and Parker slugged his 30th homer, backing the seven-hit pitching of Jerry Reuss against Chicago.
Despite Pittsburgh's victory and Tanner's enthusiasm, Chicago Manager Herman Franks doesn't believe the Pirates can overtake the Phillies.
"I don't think they can do it," said Franks. "Philadelphia is pretty strong, and that's a pretty big mountain to climb."

CB Convac

By INK DIPPER

A big 10-4 day is in the offing this October 4 when there will be a national celebration in recognition of citizens band radio and its 20th anniversary. Virtually all the states in the country have planned mini-blowouts. Leading CB organizations are participating to assure that the populace in general knows about CB and what it means to the nation.

The three national events include a giant birthday cake party at the office of Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin (D-Calif.). Van Deerlin is an avid CBER himself, as well as chairman of the House Sub-Committee on Communications. Charles D. Ferris, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, is expected to attend. So are a number of CBing politicians and industrial leaders.

Most of these activities are not spontaneous. They're being organized by the Electronic Industries Association to stimulate interest in citizens band radio.

The most meaningful part of the endeavor is a traveling CB exhibit which will open in San Francisco on October 4 and subsequently tour the major cities of the country. Thus far 11 science and technology institutions are booked and others will be scheduled. The exhibit will be on tour for at least one year. Put together by the University of California department of communications, the exhibit covers citizens band radio from its beginning 20 years ago, utilizing instruments from that period. It also offers a projection into the CB future.

Many of the devices presented in the exhibit will be interactive — visitors will be able to use the instruments on site. The devices have been especially created and built by various manufacturers for the show. Funds for the show were supplied by the University of California, the FIA, and the FCC.

The show promises to demonstrate the uses today of citizens band radio and to emphasize the highly personal aspects of CB as a medium. It just might convince the doubters that CB will be standard equipment for every vehicle in the future.

Timmy has won 28 of the 36 contests he has entered in the four years he has been fiddling. (AP Laserphoto)

Promotion Talks Slated

TOKYO (AP) — The president of Mitsubishi Motors Corp., Japan's fourth-largest car maker, is coming to Detroit to discuss with Chrysler Corp. ways of promoting sales of Mitsubishi cars in the United States, the Japanese company announced Wednesday.

Mitsubishi officials said the company needs to review the present U.S. sales network. Mitsubishi's passenger car sales in the United States from January to August this year were down 25 percent from a year earlier to 69,920 cars, officials said. Under a sales agreement, Mitsubishi vehicles are distributed by Chrysler in the United States. Chrysler owns 15 percent of Mitsubishi Motors and markets the Japanese firm's Arrow and Colt cars.

The officials declined to comment on local reports that Mitsubishi Motors planned to establish a new sales company in the United States that would be a joint venture of Chrysler and Mitsubishi Corp., a leading Japanese trading firm.

They said Mitsubishi Motors President Tomio Kubo was scheduled to reach Detroit around Oct. 15. He was to leave Wednesday for Europe to visit distributors of Mitsubishi cars in Switzerland, France, Belgium and Austria.

Family Votes To Turn Farm Into New Town

LIBERTY, Okla. (UPI) — It's difficult to get all the residents of a town together at one time. But it will be different at Liberty, Okla., where the population can meet over the breakfast table.

Liberty is Oklahoma's newest town. Its three residents — Jack Spradling, his wife and his mother — voted this week to incorporate, and that makes it official.

The town is made up of 40 acres of Spradling's farm.

The Spradlings awoke Tuesday and went into the living room to cast their ballots. The ballot box remained open until 4 p.m. under state law and it didn't take Spradling long to count the ballots.

"I just finished," he said. "The results are 3-0 in favor."

"All we've got to do now is file the results with the Board of County Commissioners." The same three voters who approved the incorporation earlier had signed a petition seeking the special election. The outcome was never in doubt.

"I would have to confess, I was not surprised," Spradling said.

Spradling says the new town will have to be divided into wards — a minimum of three is required under state law — and a town trustee will have to be elected from each ward.

The town Board of Trustees will then elect a president of the board to serve as mayor, and Liberty will be functioning as any other town and could even apply for federal funds, Spradling said.

"I doubt our share with a population of three would be more than a nickel, though," he said.

Agreement Proposed On Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public access to Richard Nixon's White House tapes would still be limited under a proposed agreement between the government and the former president, sources say.

One source, who asked not to be identified, said Tuesday the government has made a new proposal for settling its dispute with Nixon, but that the former president still has objections and has not agreed.

The source said the proposed agreement would include these limitations:

— The National Archives would be barred from reporting any taped evidence of apparent lawbreaking to the Justice Department.

— The Archives could not duplicate the tapes for public circulation and could make them available only in Washington and at 10 regional offices across the country.

— The government would limit materials to be made public to those which had a direct effect on official presidential duties.

— Nixon would get back originals of tapes which contain private conversations after the archivists decided what was public or private.

A source said Nixon also insists the archivists must not be permitted to listen to conversations he had with his wife and other family members. The government has not agreed to that proposal on grounds family conversations may concern official matters, the source said.

After Nixon's resignation in 1974, Congress authorized government control and custody of the former president's materials, including the White House tapes that helped lead to his resignation over the Watergate scandal.

Police Seek Stolen Dog

DETROIT (UPI) — A word of advice to whoever stole King, a German shepherd tracking dog, from the backseat of a squad car: Bring him back or incur the wrath of 5,500 of Detroit's finest.

King was taken Tuesday night from a squad car parked just a few blocks from police headquarters. About 50 officers scoured the area Wednesday without success, and the entire force was put on alert for the canine.

"My heart just sank down into my shoes," said officer Leonard Riccinto, describing his feelings when he returned to his patrol car and discovered King missing.

"I just couldn't believe he was gone. My partner and I started running around calling for him. People thought we'd gone crazy," he said.

Riccinto has been King's handler since February. Detroit's police dogs live at home with their handlers and Riccinto said he feels "like we've lost a member of the family."

King — K-9 badge No. 26 — is a 75-pound white German shepherd with a black spot on his tongue. Sgt. James Arthurs said King may have been "too friendly," thus explaining the apparent ease with which he was stolen.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, which had fallen 7.97 on Wednesday, slipped another 2.00 to 858.19 by noon today.

Loser outnumbered gainers by about a 7-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

An increase in the prime lending rate from 9 3/4 to 9 1/2 percent continued to spread steadily through the banking industry today.

Stock prices began to fall sharply Wednesday when several New York banks joined in the increase, which had been initiated Monday by the First National Bank of Chicago and Philadelphia's First Pennsylvania Bank.

There was speculation that the basic charge on blue-chip loans might soon move up to 10 percent in view of recent increases in other borrowing costs.

Meanwhile, a new stock issue that had attracted considerable advance notice reached the market this morning.

The NYSE's composite index eased .04 to 57.27, and the American Stock Exchange market value index dropped .13 to 167.30.

Volume on the Big Board dropped off to 10.70 million shares as of noon from 13.45 million at the same point Wednesday.

Court Gives Stay Of Execution

BEAUMONT (UPI) — An Odessa man who was scheduled to die by lethal injection before dawn Monday has been granted a stay of execution by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans.

Attorney Richard Clarkman said he was notified by a 5th Circuit clerk that Paul Burns, 25, of Odessa, was granted a stay and granted the right to appeal his murder conviction as a prisoner.

Burns was convicted by an Odessa County jury in 1974 of the beating death of G.W. McDonald, 96, at Odessa.

On Sept. 14, U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr. had refused to grant a stay of Burns' death by injection in the state penitentiary at Huntsville. The death was scheduled for dawn on Oct. 2.

Burns said the 5th Circuit also ordered a three-judge panel to conduct a hearing in the case on Oct. 30 at Houston. The lawyer said he did not know which judge or judges on the 5th Circuit approved the stay or which three would conduct the Houston hearing because he had not received a written order from the New Orleans appeals court.

After the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals denied a motion for a writ of habeas corpus on Feb. 22, 1978, the 16th District Court of Ector County recommended Burns to death before sunrise on Oct. 2.

In denying the stay request earlier this month, Woods called the case "extraordinarily heinous and gruesome" and noted the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court both had refused to hear appeals by Burns.

Clarkson is maintaining in his appeal that some potential jurors were unlawfully excluded from the panel that convicted Burns of capital murder, that the death penalty constitutes cruel and unusual punishment and that the new Texas death-by-injection statute is unconstitutionally broad.

Stop Smoking Clinic Slated

TV Star Namath Making Easy Transition

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — For 29 years roadway Joe Namath responded to autumn by pulling on pads to star on the gridiron, but this fall Willie Joe applies makeup in a Sunset Boulevard television stage far from the glory of football. The millionaire ex-quarterback was alone, stretched out in a dressing room at KTLA Studios, studying a script instead of a playbook, preparing for his role in "The Waverly Wonders," his new TV series. Gone are the golden afternoons of massive adulation in jam-packed stadiums, the agony of defeat, the excitement of cheers, the ecstasy of victory, the camaraderie of gladiator teammates.

Undone by the frailty of his own body, Joe says he could have played another few years were it not for injuries. But it is a torn hamstring, not the famed wobbly knees, operated on four times, which has sidelined him forever.

As cool and unperturbed as he was fading back to life as it comes, Namath takes life as it comes. But what about the glory, the thrill of those autumn Saturday and Sunday afternoons when one of his high, arching passes was caught in the end zone for a touchdown? Doesn't he miss all that?

Joe thought about the question for a minute, his blue eyes pensive. "It's different now," he said. "I miss the friendship of teammates, the trainers, the equipment managers. But I don't miss the pain. I never got to liking that."

"I've played football since I was six years old. And I've lived with the pressures and stresses of the game and learned how to deal with them. "But I don't miss the excitement of Sunday afternoons. I feel the adrenaline flowing every week on this show. I'm making an easy transition from one career to another, just like other people experience in their lives."

"I've been working in show business for 14 years so this isn't totally new to me. But I've never been so totally involved in such a demanding situation."

"The confidence I felt on the football field isn't easily transferred to acting. I'm not really confident now but it's building with every show."

Namath, whose image as a fun-loving swinger, two-fisted drinker and womanizer per excellence, more often than not projects a picture of arrogance. In fact, Willie Joe, if not modest, is a straight-ahead man, honest in his relationships and, on occasion, self-deprecating.

He speaks slowly and thoughtfully. His laid back attitude fails to conceal a quiet excitement about his new acting career. While he is paid a fortune for his starring role, it matters little economically if the show succeeds.

Joe earns more than a million dollars a year making television commercials and endorsing products.

He's buying a Beverly Hills mansion, owns a condominium in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., which he calls home, and flies to New York frequently for business meetings.

He represents men's cosmetics, shirts, suits, luggage, furniture, and popcorn poppers, among other things.

"Hopefully, I'm very selective about endorsements," he said. "There are things I wouldn't endorse. At first I did things only for the money, which is why I joined the Jets in the first place. But it's different now. I won't do anything solely for financial considerations."

Joe misses the outdoor life he knew as a professional football player. He compensates by swimming, fishing and playing golf at every opportunity. He is deeply involved in his boys' camp in Hamden, Conn., teaching youngsters to play football.

"There are some similarities between football and this television series," he said. "Success in both depends on teamwork. Nobody's really a star without the effort of 60 or 70 people. It's that way on a team and with a TV cast and crew."

"I'm accustomed to working with a lot of people, the personal relationships and cooperation. "The attitude going out on the field was one of coordinating physical and mental alertness and toughness. I don't have to get as mentally tough as in football because I'm not in the kill or be killed situation."

"I don't miss the competitive aspects of football. I lived with it too long. Now the competitive elements come from the networks and producers worrying about ratings. I try to stay away from that. I don't want to hear about it."

"I'm doing the best I can as an actor. And I'm optimistic. I'm playing a coach in this show and the fact that our series deals with sports makes it easier for me. I legitimately know where my character, Joe Casey, is coming from. I feel comfortable with the classroom situations. I've been there."

"During my years as a football player I took the good times with the bad and learned to work with other human beings."

"Look, we work three weeks and then have a week off. I'm working on a comfortable schedule and enjoying my life. I root for the Rams and the Jets and I watch football on television."

"I don't even throw a football anymore. What's the point?"

Sally Kellerman Returns To Television

By JAY SHARBUTT
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In 1971, Sally Kellerman, a hit in the original "M.A.S.H.," spoke of her career to Life magazine this way: "It took me eight years to get into TV — and six years to get out."

Well, Sunday, she'll be back in TV, as Robert Conrad's wife in the debut of NBC's "Centennial," a 26-hour adaptation (NBC says it cost $32 million) of James A. Michener's early-America novel.

Miss Kellerman, who rapidly departed obscurity when cast as Army nurse Hot Lips Houlihan in the Korean war comedy film by Robert Altman, was asked why, having escaped TV, she's at it again. "Because in my day" — she commenced chuckling — "the thing was, if you wanted to be in movies, you couldn't do television. And I always wanted to be in movies."

"So once I got in television, I kept trying to get out. So bang, I just took myself out. But television's become such a different thing. It's something to be reckoned with these days."

"There are such fantastic things they're doing on television now, some really quality work."

She indicated that the old Hollywood caste system that regarded TV actors as a lesser breed than the movie kind is disappearing, thanks to better scripts and bigger budgets to be found in TV nowadays.

"Now you have the freedom to go between the two," she said of TV and films. "So I'm going to where the roles are good, you know?"

The free-spirited actress, 46, spoke of all this at lunch. She wore a flower in her blonde hair. Her left arm was in a sling. She said she'd busted her elbow while ice-skating in Los Angeles, of all places.

While NBC's show marks her return to commercial TV, she made her public TV debut last year on PBS' acclaimed "Verona, U.S.O. Girl." She was asked what other things she's been up to late.

Miss K., a singer as well as an emoteur, said she's writing lyrics for tunes she'll do in a new album. And she recently finished a new movie, "A Little Love," sharing the bill with Laurence Olivier.

She was asked if she'll be making another movie with Robert Altman, having appeared not only in his "M.A.S.H.," but also his "Brewster McCcloud" and "Welcome to L.A."

"Yes, I happened to spend a lot of time with Altman in Paris last year and we're definitely going to do something together," she said. She didn't offer details of the new project.

"We'd have done a lot more, but we got separated along the way and now we're back together. I think of it as a break for Altman." Her eyes twinkled, and she rared back and loosed a mighty laugh.

Comedy, Drama Shows Put ABC Atop Nielsen Television Ratings

By JERRY BUCK
 HOLLYWOOD (AP) — ABC scored a victory with youth-oriented comedy and fast-action drama in the first fully-competitive week of the fall television season.

The network stretched its winning streak into a third year, topping NBC and CBS by at least 3.5 points in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings.

The Nielsen ratings gave ABC the top spot for the week ended Sunday with 20.9. NBC barely squeaked into second place with 17.4 to 17.3 for CBS.

It was the first week in which all three networks had new shows on the air, as ABC debuted its fall offerings the week before.

ABC, with six shows in the top 10, swung the week with such standbys as "Laverne and Shirley," "Three's Company," "Happy Days," "Love Boat" and "Charlie's Angels," as well as such newcomers as "Taxi," "Mork and Mindy," "Vegas" and "Battlestar Galactica."

CBS placed four of its returning favorites in the top 10, but NBC had none.

The fall season, the most competitive ever, was marked by NBC's pre-season juggling of its shows for competitive advantage under the direction of programming wiz Fred Silverman. The new NBC president was wooed to the network from ABC after helping boost ABC to its front-running position.

Although all three networks are reported to be making record profits, each is determined to be first for the additional advertising revenues top-rated shows command, and NBC had this in mind when it offered Silverman its presidential post. Each ratings point is worth about $36 million during a season.

ABC's "Taxi" was the highest-rated new show and the only one to make the top 10. It placed seventh, but its success seemed virtually assured by its time slot following the Tuesday comedy juggernaut of "Happy Days," "Laverne and Shirley" and "Three's Company."

Three other ABC shows made the top 20: "Mork and Mindy" in 13th place, and "Battlestar Galactica" and "Vegas," which tied for 16th place.

CBS's highest-ranked new show was "People," tied for 21st place with the second half of the NBC movie "Airport 77." NBC's highest-rated new show was "Dick Clark's Live Wednesday," which came in 42nd.

"Who's Watching the Kids," an NBC re-entree of the ABC flop comedy "Blansky's Beauties," came in 64th for last place.

Other new series apparently in trouble are ABC's "Apple Pie," No. 54; NBC's "Eddie Capra Mysteries," No. 56; CBS' "Paper Chase," No. 57; NBC's "Waverly Wonders," No. 58; NBC's "W.E.B.," No. 59; and CBS' "American Girls," No. 63.

Here are the top 10:

Final Tower Assembled For Long Power Line

HOWARD LAKE, Minn. (AP) — Workmen have assembled the final tower for a controversial high-voltage power line that stretches 427 miles from North Dakota to southern Minnesota.

The tower was put in place this week northwest of Howard Lake by workmen for United Power Association of Elk River and Cooperative Power Association of Edina. Construction was delayed for a time because of high winds.

Officials said the line will be operational by the first of the year and will carry power from a coal-fired plant in Underwood, N.D., to a substation in Delano, Minn., for redistribution to 33 member cooperatives.

The 400,000-volt, direct-current line has been the object of frequent protests and vandalism. Equipment has been damaged and several partially assembled towers have been unbolted.

In January, Gov. Rudy Perpich called out 200 state troopers to protect workers on the line. The troopers remained on duty in west-central Minnesota into March.

Many farmers in the area have opposed the line on grounds that it will interfere with irrigation equipment, is unsafe and lowers property values. Power officials have denied the charges.

The power companies received permission to go ahead with the $800 million project in 1976 after numerous hearings before state agencies, public forums and court suits by opponents.

Jackson, Rock Star To Meet

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson says he will meet with Mick Jagger of the Rolling Stones this week to protest the Stones' latest album, which he says has morally objectionable songs that insult blacks.

The black leader, who heads the Chicago-based Operation PUSH, blasted the album at a news conference this week after a speech exhorting students and administrators at Shaker Heights High School to pursue academic excellence.

Jackson said the title song on Jagger's latest album, "Some Girls," is "vulgar and obscene."

He said a meeting between himself, Jagger and Atlantic Records President Ahmet Ertegun set for Oct. 4 has been moved up because "I understand they (Atlantic) have received so many telegrams about the record album."

"We do not want to act like a censor," Jackson said. "We feel Mick Jagger has a social factor obligation to deal with in his music because (recording) artists reach the eyes and ears in nearly every home."

Romantic Stories, Religious Books Top American Reading List

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
 United Press International Writer

Give your usual American a book about the Lord or about a romantic adventure and it's a good bet the book will be read.

Love of the Lord and love of a good romantic story tied for first place in an American Library Association study of what subjects appeal most these days to America's bookworms.

The ALA said romantic novels, like "The Thorn Birds" by Colleen McCullough, and historical romances are the country's favorite fiction. In the non-fiction category, the Bible and a variety of religious books scored just as high.

Next on the popularity list: horror tales, including those with supernatural themes.

Books by J.R.R. Tolkien drew the most mention of any one author of fiction. In non-fiction, the topics drawing the most mentions were World War II and books on Nazi Germany.

Among the classics, favorites include works by Dickens, Tolstoy, D. H. Law-ence, Flaubert, Hawthorne, and Huxley.

Over the decades, the ALA said, the all-time popular American works include "Gone With the Wind," "Catcher in the Rye," "Rebecca," and "Catch 22."

The study on popular reading matter was conducted for the ALA by the Gallup Organization. Part of a larger probe of the public's perception of libraries, it was done in preparation for the 1979 White House Conference on Libraries.

Other highlights:

— There's a trend among American bookworms to get to the nub of a story fast. This conclusion stems from a finding that books condensing fiction and non-fiction are pretty popular.

— About one out of three American adults read a book a month or more. About one out of four read two or more a month.

— Women are more likely than men to read upward of 50 books a year, especially those in the 18-to-34 age bracket. Women also tend to borrow books from friends.

— About a quarter of the respondents said television influenced a book selection in the past year. "Roots" was the example most cited.

— About 38 percent said they read to their children under seven every day, as recommended by child development experts. But about the same percentage said they read to the kids far less frequently, if at all.

— Only a third of the parents interviewed believe watching less television would encourage their children to read more. Twenty-seven percent didn't know what effect watching less television would have on reading.

Commenting on the survey results,

MONDALE TOUR
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale announced plans Monday for an Oct. 3 trip to Minnesota, Missouri and Pennsylvania.

ALA Executive Director Robert Wedgworth said:

"The large number of parents who are not reading to their young children and the fact that 27 percent didn't know the reading level of their oldest child is consistent with the country's growing problem of functional illiteracy."

The Gallup survey, conducted by phone during July and August, also found library users tend to be satisfied with services and want them kept intact.

"These wishes must be contrasted with the growing demand for property tax cuts," Wedgworth said.

"Unfortunately, more than half the survey respondents were not aware that at least 80 percent of the funding for public libraries comes from local tax dollars.

"This is a paradox the public will need to deal with in the future."

Inflation Brings On Consumer Unrest In Brazil

By RICHARD W. FOSTER
BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Inflation has soured Brazil's "economic miracle" of the early 1970s, eating away at salaries and provoking widespread consumer unrest.

A ban imposed on strikes by the military government 14 years ago was broken last May by a walkout of 50,000 auto workers in Sao Paulo, gaining for assembly line workers wage increases above government-set inflation indices.

But under military rule, dissatisfied wage earners are never sure how far they can go without provoking police action against them.

On Aug. 27, when 20,000 Sao Paulo residents massed in a public square to call for inflation relief, they were met by club-wielding police who scattered them with dogs and tear gas. The protesters were part of the grass-roots Cost of Living Movement, founded five years ago by the Roman Catholic archbishop of Sao Paulo, Dom Evaristo Arns, and now gaining momentum under the weight of an inflation rate of 41 percent.

Three weeks later 21 representatives of the movement came to this national capital to present petitions that they said bore 1.3 million signatures to President Ernesto Geisel. The petitions asked for a government price freeze on staples such as rice and beans, wage increases above government set indices and immediate salary bonuses to compensate for buying power lost to inflation over the years.

Made up largely of housewives, the delegation was stopped by security officials 150 yards from the presidential palace. The group was told only five of them could enter the palace, to meet with Geisel, but with an adviser to one of his advisers.

The Sao Paulo housewives, most of them married to blue-collar workers, refused the audience with the minor official but did carry the petitions, weighing 200 pounds, across the street, depositing them in the palace's public records office.

"The government doesn't seem to worry much about our problems," Ana Maria Martins Soares, the wife of an electrician, told The Associated Press. "But we are not going to disappear. The movement is going to get bigger," she said.

In his public pronouncements, Geisel has expressed sympathy for the plight of the worker but many government actions have fired up popular resentment against his economic policies.

Shortly before the Sao Paulo auto workers' strike, newspapers charged Finance Ministry officials with a downward juggling of inflation figures, used to determine all wage increases. The errors had resulted in millions of dollars in lost wages over a five-year period, the newspapers claimed.

The government promised to check in to the charges but did not deny there had been miscalculations. No retroactive compensation has been offered.

A Brazilian journalist reported recently he asked Finance Minister Mario Henrique Simonsen about high interest rates for installment buying, and quoted him as replying: "Tell the people to pay cash. They can get a loan for less interest from a bank if they don't have the money."

The price of television sets in Brazilian department stores in 24 monthly payments are roughly double the cash price. But bank credit is hard to get for such a small purchase.

Until 1973 when oil prices quadrupled, the Brazilian economy, which imports 80 percent of its oil needs, was booming with average annual growth rates of 11 percent.

The boom became known as Brazil's economic miracle. In 1978 growth dipped to 4 percent and in August of this year, inflation had reached an annual rate of 41 percent, according to government figures.

Critics say the inflation is caused by the military government's investment in ambitious development projects, such as the $7 billion Itaipu hydroelectric dam in southern Brazil, billed as the world's largest. Borrowing for these projects over the years has built up a foreign debt, expected to reach $40 billion by year's end.

Geisel and his military backers say the investments in basic industry, highways, dams and bridges are necessary for the development of Brazil as a future superpower, a leader in Latin America, and a rival to Europe, the Soviet Union and the United States.

But more and more of Brazil's 110 million citizens are refusing to tighten their belts for future greatness. Like most people, they want a higher standard of living now.

Says Antonio Guimaraes, an office cleanup man here, "It's fine for Brazil to be strong in the world but it won't mean much if we are not eating well."
