

Carter Pushes Anti-Inflation Plan

Appeal Hinted In School Case

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff
THE JUSTICE Department may have tipped its hand that it plans to appeal the Lubbock school desegregation case by the end of the week.

Government attorneys have asked the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for permission to file a brief that exceeds the court's limit of 50 pages. In its motion, the department said its brief may be as long as 75 pages.

The Justice Department has until Friday to submit its brief, or else the New Orleans-based circuit court will bar the department from appealing the Lubbock Independent School District case.

School attorney Charles Cobb said Tuesday he doesn't know what to make of the department's latest motion. "At this point, nothing they do would surprise me," Cobb said.

He said he has heard that the U.S. solicitor general still hasn't made up his mind whether to have the Justice Department proceed with an appeal. Mark Gross of the department's appellate section insists that is true.

"There has been no decision yet on the authorization" to submit an appeals brief to the 5th Circuit, Gross said. He added that the department is aware of Friday's deadline.

Extension Granted
The Justice Department originally had until Sept. 28 to file its brief. However, over Cobb's objections, the department was granted a 30-day extension.

Cobb notes that the department already has had several months to evaluate the desegregation rulings issued by U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward and to decide whether to appeal.

In a related matter Tuesday, the school system filed with Woodward a progress report on court-ordered desegregation here. The integration plan Woodward ordered Lubbock to implement this fall is going well, the study said.

Success Claimed
"The most significant fact of this report is that attendance and racial percentages in the court-ordered schools have attained and maintained the number of students as projected," school officials stated.

The report cited in particular the success of magnet programs at Iles Elementary and Dunbar-Struggs High, which are attracting youngsters — especially whites — from throughout the city on a voluntary basis.

Enrollment Changes
When the desegregation plan was designed last spring, Dunbar-Struggs was projected to have 863 students, 46 percent of them white.

A previous report to Woodward, detailing enrollment as of Sept. 8, showed enrollment and racial balance lagging at the eastside magnet complex. But the new report, based on an Oct. 6 census, shows things have picked up. Dunbar-Struggs now has 818 pupils, with nearly 44 percent of them white.

Whites in Majority
"Iles Elementary far exceeded our projections of volunteer students," the school system told Woodward. With voluntary transfers, Iles was projected to have only 54 (38 percent) white students. "But actual enrollment of non-minority students as of Oct. 6 was 144 or 53 percent," the report said.

Lubbock's court-ordered desegregation plan is a combination of mandatory and voluntary measures. The plan requires busing about 2,000 elementary students and several hundred secondary students.

Enrollment Off
The district's report said enrollment and racial balance at the schools being integrated by mandatory busing have materialized. Districtwide, however, enrollment still is off by about 1,000 pupils, standing now at about 31,000.

The desegregation plan was developed to remedy Woodward's finding that nine of the city's public schools were remnants of unlawful segregation.

Because of the limited scope of the plan, several schools here — those not cited by Woodward — still are predominantly minority.

Two Grounds Possible
The Justice Department has indicated it may appeal on two grounds. First, the department has contended that racial segregation has been systemwide and that a systemwide remedy involving integration of all schools is needed.

Also, the department has objected to the way the plan is devised. Federal lawyers feel the plan is unfair to minorities because they are being bused for longer.

Pair Nets $1,032 In City Heist

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
AN APPARENTLY well-planned heist netted two ski-masked bandits more than $1,000, after the pair held up a Lubbock insurance firm Tuesday just as the employees were counting the day's receipts.

Carrying small pistols, the two bandits grabbed $1,032 in cash and checks from the office safe before tying up the firm's manager and ordering two secretaries into a bathroom. The duo then escaped in the manager's car which later was found abandoned five blocks away.

Mike Thompson, manager of Western and Southern Life Insurance Company at No. 32 Briercroft Office Park along the 5700-block of S. Avenue Q Drive, said the pair entered the business about 3 p.m., just as he and the two women were beginning to tally the day's money for deposit.

Both bandits wore ski masks and mitten-type gloves, Thompson said, but he believed the men were Mexican-Americans because of their accents.

Upon entering, the taller man ordered the secretaries, 20-year-old Stella Torres and Dana McBride, 19, to turn around and face the wall, reports indicate. He then ordered Miss Torres to go into the bathroom, police said, and told Miss McBride to open the safe.

Miss McBride told officers that after she opened the safe, she too went into the bathroom but that the robber came after her a few moments later and told her to return to the office area and help him get the money.

Meanwhile, Thompson said, the shorter man had entered the manager's adjoining office where Thompson was talking on the telephone and told him, "Drop the phone."

The shorter bandit, Thompson said, appeared to be taking orders from the other robber, who remained in the outer office during the 10 minutes the two were inside the company.

Thompson said he didn't comply with

PROTEST PARADE — About 30 Iranian students gathered under cloudy, rainy skies Tuesday to hold another march against the presence of Iranian Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi in Lubbock, undergoing pilot training at Reese Air Force Base. The march along the eastern edge of Texas Tech University's campus was the result of yet another court battle. Tech officials earlier had deemed the protesters' request to march with masks, but last week a federal judge in Dallas upheld the Iranians' cause. (Staff Photo by Dennis Copeland)

Charges Against Iranian Student At Tech Dropped

MISDEMEANOR charges filed Tuesday against an Iranian student were dismissed later that afternoon to facilitate a State Department investigation of the matter, according to Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack.

The 30-year-old Iranian, a Texas Tech University graduate student, was arrested about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday at 16th Street and University Avenue where he was participating in a protest against his country's government.

The student was taken to Lubbock County Jail for allegedly threatening to kill a friend of Iranian Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi, now in pilot training at Reese Air Force Base.

Blalack set a $10,000 bond for the student pending a peace bond hearing.

Hossein Namdar, a purported friend of Prince Reza, filed a complaint with Blalack's office Friday morning alleging that he and his family had been threatened by the man and another Iranian.

Blalack said, however, that shortly before 5 p.m. Tuesday, he was contacted by the Criminal District Attorney's office in the matter.

"They asked me if I would consider dismissing the charge for the State Department to look into the matter," Blalack said.

"Naturally, because this is a delicate situation that could have international consequences, I agreed," he added.

In addition to Namdar's allegation that the arrested student had previously threatened him, Namdar said the protest leader came after him about 2:30 a.m. Tuesday with a knife while Namdar was attempting to enter his residence.

Namdar, who wouldn't give his age or address for fear of retaliation, said the man jumped out from some bushes and chased him with the knife. Namdar said he was able to run from the armed man, who gave up his pursuit when a car passed.

Asked what he thought provoked the threats and attempted assault, Namdar said, "Because we are not participating in the political activity. We're here to study."

"We're a guest of this country. On the other hand, we are experiencing the hate of the people of Lubbock because of the (protesting) Iranian student's activities," Namdar said.

Namdar noted he filed a complaint with the police department when he and his family first started receiving phone threats. "They (the callers) said, 'We'll get a gun and come and kill you.'"

Arresting deputy Jack Hill said Tuesday morning incident did not spark any violent reaction by the crowd of about 30 Iranians who were protesting the government of the Shah, the prince's father.

One Iranian came up to the deputies during the arrest and apparently asked about the situation, and the officers appeared to order him back to the main group of about 30 demonstrators.

The march continued without interruption.

Planes For Taiwan Rejected By Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has rejected a request from Taiwan for F-5G fighter planes, leaving that country with no real place to turn in its efforts to upgrade its air force.

State Department officials said there are no planes now in the American arsenal which the administration would sell to Taiwan which would be improvements over what the country's air force already has.

The officials, asking not to be identified, said they doubted that any of the countries which have superior planes, such as France, would sell to Taiwan for fear of disturbing relations with the People's Republic of China. The officials said they did not think the Israeli Kfir, which Taiwan could buy, would fill the requirements of Taiwanese military planners.

President Inks Decontrol Bill For Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed legislation Tuesday freeing the airline industry from federal regulation, saying it will "ensure American citizens of an opportunity for low-priced air transportation."

The legislation was one of the key measures in Carter's plan to reorganize the federal bureaucracy, eliminating unnecessary regulations.

"For the first time in decades we have deregulated a major industry," Carter said as he signed the inch-thick bill in the White House Cabinet Room.

The measure establishes a schedule for the gradual elimination of Civil Aeronautics Board jurisdiction over airlines' routes, rates and mergers.

Airlines will be allowed until 1983 to reduce their fares up to 50 percent without obtaining federal approval. Increases of up to 5 percent a year will be allowed in competitive airline markets.

CAB authority over routes will be eliminated altogether at the end of 1981, leaving existing airlines free to start new routes without any application process.

New airlines could be formed with a simple showing that they are "fit, willing and able." They would not be required to go through the extensive hearings that have preceded new airline certifications.

At the end of 1982, the board will lose its authority over fares and mergers, leaving the airlines subject to the same federal antitrust statutes regarding price.

GOP Rips Inflation Plan As 'Political'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's new anti-inflation program drew bipartisan support Tuesday from a group of congressmen who were briefed on it at the White House, but the Republican Party blasted the program as being "blatantly political."

And House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., offered only lukewarm praise.

After a briefing by Carter at the White House, O'Neill, whose efforts could be crucial in winning congressional support for part of the program, said: "I have given my word to the president I'll be supporting his plan."

At the heart of the plan are wage and price "standards" under which the government would set targets of 7 percent increases for wages and specific price increases for individual companies tied to previous price boosts.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall had emerged from a Cabinet briefing earlier in the day using the term "standard" instead of "guideline" to refer to the administration's new anti-inflation goals.

Carter put the finishing touches on the program Tuesday afternoon in preparation for a nationally broadcast speech. He briefed his Cabinet and then a handful of congressmen during the morning and afternoon.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said "I believe the president is doing the right thing in focusing on the major issue in the country and the world, which is U.S. inflation."

Javits said Carter's program has a chance of working if the public cooperates.

'Austerity' Program Voluntary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, declaring that Americans must face "a time of national austerity" to combat inflation, instituted largely voluntary wage and price guidelines Tuesday night. He coupled them with a call for "wage insurance" tax rebates to protect paychecks in case his program fails.

Carter appealed to the nation "to give this plan a chance to work," and said the administration will use both persuasion and punishment to enforce it.

In a nationally broadcast television and radio address from the White House Oval Office, the president set a guideline of 7 percent in 1979 for increases in wages and fringe benefits and a complex price guideline aimed at holding increases to approximately 5.75 percent next year.

Below Current Rate
Carter said that if the program is successful this would translate into an inflation rate of 6 percent to 6.5 percent in the next year, well below the current rate of about 8 percent.

He said he would ask Congress to enact tax rebates for workers who comply with the 7 percent wage guide and who would suffer when inflation exceeds that level. Carter called it "real wage insurance."

As part of his new assault on inflation, which the president said would be his administration's No. 1 domestic priority in the coming year, Carter pledged:

Program Outlined
— To cut the federal deficit to $30 billion or less next year.
— To fill only one of every two new job vacancies in the government for "an indefinite period."

— To "oppose any further reduction in federal income taxes until we have convincing prospects that inflation will be controlled."

— To seek legislation bringing increased competition in the railroad and trucking industries. Earlier Tuesday, Carter signed into law a measure that will phase out federal regulation of air fares.

Average 7 Percent
Carter's wage guideline is intended to limit both wages and benefits to an average of 7 percent a year for all workers except those making less than $4 an hour. Those persons will be exempted from the program.

Also exempted are future pay raises that have already been written into existing contracts.

"From tonight on, every contract signed and every pay raise granted should meet this standard," Carter said.

The price guideline is somewhat more complex. It seeks to limit the average price increase for a firm's product line to 0.5 percent less than the average for its price increases in 1976 and 1977.

Carter's advisers figure this would result in price increases across the economy.

Speaker Here Urges: 'Lean On S. Africa'

By KIM PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff
UNLESS Western World countries "lean on" South Africa diplomatically and economically, the situation in that racially torn country could explode into a black-white war, warned former South African newspaper editor Donald Woods Tuesday night.

"Unless use is made of the time remaining to change the government of South Africa there will be a civil war in four years," charged Woods, who now lives in exile in the U.S. populations if a civil war broke out in South Africa.

He urged the 200 people who came to hear him at Texas Tech to write their congressmen and senators and press for U.S. divestiture of economic investments in South Africa.

"Each dollar of investment into South Africa is taxed by the government (the) which allows further repression of the people," Woods said.

In Woods' travels around the world campaigning for an economic and diplomatic crackdown on South Africa, he said many people have expressed concern about the need for South African minerals.

About two-thirds of the world's gold supply is found in South Africa along with uranium and diamonds.

"Why send the minerals to the Eastern Bloc countries," Woods said. "The blacks of South Africa have appealed to the Western world for help and have been ignored. But the Eastern Bloc countries respond with money and weapons. If a civil war breaks out, who do you think will receive the minerals?"

Because of continued government criticism, Woods was declared a "public person" in October, 1977, by the South African government.

He was forbidden to communicate with more than one person at a time unless speaking to family members. He was barred from journalism and forbidden to write anything, even a postcard, and was

Memorials Set For Missing Couple

BORGER (UPI) — An estimated 450 mourners were expected at the first of two memorial services Wednesday for a honeymooning couple missing since Aug. 8 and presumed to be the victims of foul play.

Jim, 22, and Margene Judge, 24, of Amarillo had been married three days Aug. 8 when they called their parents in Texas from South Fork in southwestern Colorado.

Three days later officials began to fear for the couple's safety when their van, occupied by a group of suspected killers, ran through a roadblock near Casa Grande, Ariz.

For about two weeks after the Arizona murders were expected at the first of two memorial services Wednesday for a honeymooning couple missing since Aug. 8 and presumed to be the victims of foul play.

With the recent winter snows, the search has been abandoned "though we still follow up leads," Barnett Bauer, undersheriff for Rio Grande County said Tuesday.

Bauer said one deputy was climbing a mountain near South Fork Tuesday to inspect an area where two crosses were sighted recently.

The Rev. Charles Thrasher, who will officiate at the 10:30 a.m. Borger service and assist at a 4:30 p.m. service in Amarillo, said the services may help the surviving relatives and the community.

"These people (the parents) have not been able to grieve. The community has not been able to grieve. We prayed (the couple) would be found. They haven't been, and it doesn't look like they will. We need an act of finalizing," he said.

"One of the things (the survivors) are hoping this service will do is open them up to grieve and get rid of some of the bitterness," Rev. Thrasher said.

Sheriff Jerry Wright of Del Norte, Colo., was en route to Borger Tuesday for the services, Bauer said.

"They, the victims, have become like part of our family. We're come to know and love the whole family, especially Sheriff Wright and me," Bauer said.

Bruce Sexton, a Church of Christ minister who married the couple Aug. 5 and now lives in Hugoton, Kan., will assist during both services Wednesday.

This may be just a story, but they say President Carter tried George Washington's stunt of throwing a dollar across the Rappahannock. A Virginia farmer picked it up on the other side, took one look at it and threw it back. — Changing Times.

Grand Jury Indicts Eilberg

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., was indicted Tuesday on a conflict of interest charge by a federal grand jury which said he unlawfully received compensation for helping a Philadelphia hospital obtain a $14.5 million grant.

The indictment stemmed from an investigation first launched by former U.S. Atty. David Marston, who was fired by President Carter at Eilberg's request. The Marston firing fueled a major controversy because Carter had promised during his campaign that U.S. attorneys would be free from politics.

Eilberg, seeking his seventh term in the House, said through an aide he had no comment on the indictment.

A second indictment handed down by the grand jury charged three others with mail fraud and bribery in connection with construction contracts at Hahnemann Hospital.

Lake Discharge Banned

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has ordered three oil operators to suspend immediately use of Whelan Lake in Andrews County as a site for salt water disposal.

The panel instructed Chief Engineer Bob Harris Monday to notify the operators to discontinue use of Whelan Lake as an oilfield waste disposal site "effective 5 p.m. Oct. 23, 1978."

A hearing to review disposal practices of the Whelan Corp. at the lake had been called in a formal order issued by the commission Aug. 18.

"At that time, a commission spokesman reported the hearing was simply a review required by the company's operating permit, and said there had been no complaints regarding the disposal practices."

The panel said Monday the "thrust" of that hearing would be changed "to a show cause proceeding on why the operators should be allowed to discharge oilfield waters into the lake."

The shutdown order was issued, by telephone and certified mail, to the Whelan Corp., Phillips Petroleum Co. and Petroleum Corp. of Texas.

The panel reported the notice by Harris contained the following:

"This is to confirm my phone conversation advising you that the Commission, on Oct. 23, 1978, based upon the personal observation of the Director of the Oil & Gas Division that substantial pollution is occurring at Whelan Lake, Andrews County, Texas, and that little or no progress has been made toward correcting the situation even though repeated attempts have been made by the Commission to obtain corrective action, ordered that all discharges presently being made into Whelan Lake by Whelan Corp., Phillips Petroleum Corp., and Petroleum Corp. of Texas be discontinued effective 5 p.m. Oct. 23, 1978."

"Further, the Commission ordered that the hearing presently set for Oct. 26, 1978, to consider the continued discharge of oilfield waters be in the nature of a show cause proceeding wherein the operators named above should show cause why they should be permitted to discharge oilfield waters into Whelan Lake, Andrews County, Texas."

Cool Weather To Continue Across Area

Cool temperatures, along with a threat of showers for tonight, are in store for the South Plains today as a result of a cold front over Wyoming which is continuing to surge southward.

Temperatures should be warmer than Tuesday's, with the high expected in the mid-60s. Tonight the mercury will drop to the low 40s.

The National Weather Service placed the probability of rain at 30 percent tonight.

"Winds today will be gusty at 15 to 20 miles per hour."

"The extended weather outlook for West Texas is for partly cloudy skies and warmer days Friday through Sunday."

"Lubbock recorded a 51-degree high Tuesday and .02 of an inch of precipitation."

"Across the state Tuesday, rains in excess of an inch fell in areas near the Pecos River, and the National Weather Service said frequent showers in Southwest Texas will cause a rise in the Rio Grande near Presidio. However, the rise is not expected to reach flood stage."

WASHINGTON —

Vance Visit Warms Frosty U.S.-Soviet Relations

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union appear headed toward a warmer chapter in their relations following Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's nuclear arms limitation talks at the Kremlin.

Vance spent two days with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and nearly two hours with President Leonid I. Brezhnev. Some issues remain unresolved, but the sessions Sunday and Monday seemed to demonstrate Soviet confidence in the Carter administration as a negotiating partner.

On the eve of Vance's departure, it became known the Soviets had taken another step to improve their image and the bilateral relationship by giving Dr. Benjamin Levich, a prominent physicist, permission to emigrate after nearly seven years of waiting.

Brezhnev's reference in his talks with Vance, as reported by the Communist Party newspaper Pravda, to "negative moments in relations in the past year," suggested that both sides had put this period behind them.

A commentary by the Tass news agency said the two sides "were brought closer in some questions" during the talks.

but added that "certain differences remain in the approach to some matters."

The cordial atmosphere that prevailed during the visit contrasted sharply with the months of acrimony that threatened the accommodation between the superpowers known as detente and had some speaking of a resumption of the cold war.

Major areas of tension remain — Africa, the role of China, the Middle East and human rights. There always will be competition between the superpowers but each side now realizes the necessity of regulating such competition, an American official said.

In the periodic swings of relations between Washington and Moscow, the mood at the moment is up. U.S. officials and Soviet sources appear hopeful that the obstacles blocking a new SALT agreement can be resolved in time to permit its signature by Brezhnev and President Carter before the end of the year.

Both sides regard such an accord as the centerpiece of detente and say its conclusion would give U.S.-Soviet relations a major boost.

In the meantime, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal is due here in December for talks on trade, which is Moscow's favorite topic after disarmament. There had been a summer moratorium on high-level travel to protest the dissident trials.

One source suggested the present impasse on the nuclear weapons accord could be broken through a "political decision" by the sides without the necessity of another Vance-Gromyko meeting.

Chief U.S. arms negotiator Paul Warnke's comment that "a fistful of issues remain," and Gromyko's statement that "everybody's going around in circles" suggest a hair-splitting technical stage has been reached in negotiations that Warnke said were 95 percent complete.

The way in which the remaining issues are resolved will have a serious impact on the global balance of power, relations with NATO allies anxious to obtain new American weapon technology and military strategy in Europe in the 1980s. As U.S. officials point out, these complicated issues — the cruise missile, the backfire bomber, development of new missile systems, how the agreement will be implemented — are all connected.

Soviet sources say Gromyko's remark about the two sides "going round in circles" did not mean they were covering the same ground unsuccessfully, but instead that each time they resolved an issue or part of an issue they had to refer back to others.

The painstaking negotiating effort is necessary because Western experts do not feel Brezhnev, whose health is uncertain, could stand up to the rigors of a summit where he had to negotiate substance with Carter.

U.S. officials were impressed with the 71-year-old Soviet leader's performance during the Vance talks, describing him as in better shape and engaging in the give and take better than at any time in the past 21 months of the current U.S. administration. Other sources with a longer perspective said the gradual deterioration of his abilities was obvious. This concern explains the emphasis both sides have placed on prompt conclusion of an agreement.

The Soviet leader is said to be anxious to sign a SALT agreement to put a stamp on his place in history as the architect of detente and to commit his immediate successors to this policy.

The Carter administration, aware that Brezhnev's medical history is one of ups and downs, would like to nail down an agreement soon.

Iran Said Seeking Arms Pact Release

TEHRAN (AP) — Iran wants to make drastic cuts in arms purchases from the United States, including cancellation of a $1.2 billion aerial spying system that has annoyed neighboring Russia, Tehran newspapers reported Tuesday.

The newspapers said U.S. and Iranian negotiators met behind closed doors Tuesday to discuss the cutbacks, which reportedly would save the country $7 billion over the next five years.

Iran ordered the "Advance Warning Airborne Control System" a year ago, and it was to have been used on the Iranian-Soviet border to report Russian military movement, the newspapers said.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said Iran has given American negotiators no indication it wants to back out of previously arranged arms purchases, including the warning system sale. The spokesman said Iranian officials have indicated they want to cancel one program worth $15 million.

The State Department spokesman, who did not want to be identified, said the talks in Tehran concern arms sales that have been negotiated but not formally concluded. He also said the Iranians have suggested they use oil to pay for some of the arms the country wants to buy from U.S. companies.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A huge leftover reserve of corn, the largest in six years, is in storage just as farmers are in the midst of harvesting another record crop this fall.

The Agriculture Department said corn inventories on Oct. 1 totaled more than 1.06 billion bushels. That was about 57 million bushels more than experts earlier estimated the Oct. 1 corn "carryover" to be.

commentary, praised the reported decision to eliminate the spy system, saying the money could be put to better use. The radio noted that 2,200 schools or 100 modern hospitals could be built for the price of the spy system.

Observers here said the action also will ease the tense political situation in Iran, which has been rocked by anti-government riots all year.

The government of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi imposed martial law last month during violent protests by conservative Moslems opposed to his reform programs, including his upgrading of women's rights and a redistribution of church lands.

There also have been demonstrations by Iranians accusing the shah of autocratic rule and demanding that his secret police be disbanded. An estimated 1,000 persons have been killed this year in the anti-government disturbances. At least 11 persons reportedly were killed or injured Tuesday in one of at least four anti-government demonstrations across the country.

Iranian and American officials here declined comment on the secret talks, but Tehran newspapers said Deputy War Minister Hassan Toufanian was meeting with U.S. Deputy Defense Secretary Charles Duncan.

The newspapers said Duncan was accompanied by Pentagon arm sales director Lt. Gen. Ernest Graves. The papers said Duncan arrived here secretly Monday night.

According to the newspapers, Iran also plans to cancel proposed purchases of 70 F14 fighter-bombers, 140 F16 fighters, 31 Phantom jets and 1,000 air-to-ground missiles.

They said Iran also is canceling orders for six submarines and four nuclear power plants from West Germany that would have cost more than $6 billion. West Germany's Minister of Economy Otto Lambdorff reportedly was on his way to Tehran to discuss the decision.

Iranian sources also reported that plans to buy 1,000 Chieftain tanks from Britain probably will be scrapped. The British Embassy issued a prompt denial.

AN EDITORIAL:

Maybe It's A Timely 'Nyet'

IF NOTHING else, the more or less stalled Salt II talks have told the United States at least one of the things which the Russians apparently fear the most is the U.S. arsenal.

If one is to believe reports from the just concluded, and inconclusive, talks in Moscow between Sec. of State Cyrus Vance and top Soviet leaders, including Leonid Brezhnev, the Russians are still playing a hard-nosed military game.

While pressing ahead on numerous fronts in building the world's mightiest war machine, Moscow seeks to limit U.S. efforts, especially as they apply to advanced technology which could be a deterrent to Red aims.

WHILE MORE or less in agreement on the number of basic bombers and missiles, the two nations continue to hit snags over what might be termed "new weapons."

In an effort to placate the Russians, and perhaps from ill-timed advice, the U.S. already has cancelled out the B1 bomber, cut back on the Cruise Missile range, delayed full-scale development and deployment of the Neutron Warhead and put the reins on Naval forces.

Some of the projects, the B1 bomber, were too expensive perhaps for the purposes planned.

And, with a full-scale Cruise Missile, the job of keeping the Russians in check possibly could have been handled anyway.

But, the Carter administration's readiness to more or less unilaterally "disarm" the U.S. by putting "holds" on some of the latest technological advances, including some even the Soviets have not perfected, has caused widespread concern in both responsible civilian and military circles.

UNFORTUNATELY, UNDER Mr. Carter's military "gag," neither Congress nor U.S. citizens are given an opportunity to hear serious dissenting views on Presidential actions in this field.

Because of this, regardless of what sort of Salt II agreement may emerge, it will face close inspection and heavy opposition in the Senate, where any such treaty would have to be approved.

The latest round of talks, the first two days of this week in Moscow, apparently are stalemated and the chances for the package to be brought up before the end of the year now seem remote.

SOURCES IN Moscow indicated that two reasons were behind the failure to achieve an agreement this week.

One has to do with the report that the President has ordered production of components of the neutron bomb.

The other has to do with headline statements made by U.S. Amb. to Moscow Malcolm Toon.

Whatever, while recognizing the crucial need to halt the nuclear arms race, if the delay also gives those who oppose another U.S. "giveaway" a chance to say their piece and alert Americans to the growing danger of unilateral disarmament, then it will have been a boon.

Light In Yon Wonder Breaks

QUIETER AND more energy efficient airplanes. A cure for cancer. All-plastic trains. Widespread use of electric cars. Moving sidewalks. A cost-effective solar energy system. Mining by lasers and ultrasonics. These and other wonders could be part of our not-so-distant future.

They are among the likely developments in technology and science cited in the latest Survey of Technological Breakthroughs and Widespread Applications, a periodic survey by McGraw-Hill's economics department of more than 200 individual firms, government and private researchers.

According to the highly educated estimates of the surveyed organizations, all of the predicted developments stand a good chance of being realized in from less than 10 years to shortly after the turn of the century at the latest.

SOME REPRESENT refinements and more effective application of existing technology, such as moving sidewalks for local transportation, electric autos and improved airplanes. But others promise to be landmark breakthroughs.

A cancer cure, for example, is predicted by 1990. Somewhat later, a drug is expected to be available that when taken over a period of time will prevent development of the disease.

DRUGS IN THE future should be changing lives in other ways—constructively. They are expected to be used in permanently raising intelligence levels, in controlling the aging process and in improving memory and learning abilities.

Developments in plastics are expected to be particularly dramatic, affecting not only vehicle construction but showing up as new nutritional items in the American diet.

If even a respectable portion of the predictions come to pass, life by the 21st century would be not only greatly changed but vastly improved.

There's even the possibility of doing something about the weather. Reports may be possible for 30 days in advance, and they will be reliable.

Now THAT would be a breakthrough.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Saudi Monarch Warns Vance On Jerusalem

SAUDI ARABIAN KING Khalid bin Abdul Aziz secretly has warned Secretary Vance that Israel's long delay in leaving Jerusalem now exhausts the Islamic world's patience.

Again, the king cited the U.S. General Assembly Resolution of November 1947, April 1948, December 1949 and the UN Trusteeship Council's April 1950 unanimously adopted Geneva statutes demanding an internationalized Jerusalem.

UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim and Mideast mediator Gunnar V. Jarring found likewise. And, the Camp David agreements notwithstanding, the king insists peace in the Middle East is impossible unless and until Israel returns the Holy City.

Apparently, Israel claims Jerusalem should belong to the Jews as Mecca and Medina, Islam's two most holy spots, belong to the Moslems and Rome to Christians. The king insisted to Secretary Vance that only in Jerusalem have Islam, Christianity and Judaism met. Jerusalem is sacred to all.

PROFOUNDLY RELIGIOUS King Khalid, 65, is the Moslem world's spiritual leader. He is a son of the late King Faisal (Assassinated March 1975) and grandson of desert warrior Abdul Aziz ibn Saud. The king rules a kingdom three times the size of Texas and a third the size of the United States, all this without a constitution or parliament.

Overwhelmingly, the world's largest oil source, the king rules from Maazir Palace in Riyadh. It has an immense main hall and, at night, is lit by multicolored neon tubes surrounding the windows.

The royal family's love for Egypt is traditional. Each monarch always maintains close relations.

THE KING, like his father, and despite pan-Arabism and Arab nationalism, believes Islam's religious bond should be the Arab world's political action framework.

He cited to Secretary Vance that 38 Moslem nations representing 530 million people met in Lahore, Pakistan, demanding that Israel return Old Jerusalem.

He is not persuaded by Israel's contention that for some 20 years Jews were prevented from visiting Jerusalem, insisting an Israel-Jordan state of war was responsible. The king considers Israel's explanation irrelevant.

Again, he hit on the Republic of Israel's solemn promise on proclaiming itself. President Harry S. Truman officially recognized Israel, literally overnight.

TRUMAN'S "MEMOIRS" explain: "How many Arab votes are there in the United States?" But Israel, seeking to overcome world alarm about Jerusalem, solemnly swore that Tel Aviv would be Israel's "forever" capital. Israel promised "it would never encroach on Jerusalem."

Then, when Israel could seize Jerusalem in the 1967 war, she abandoned Tel Aviv and, Israel's believers being had, seized Jerusalem.

Jerusalem, first mentioned in Genesis, was ancient Ura Salem, to Moslems Al-Wuds, in Hebrew Yershalayim and to Christians Bayt al-Muqaddas. Moslem veneration concentrates at sacred al-Aqsa Mosque and Jews at the Wailing Wall and elsewhere.

JERUSALEM IS A city for Solomon, David, Cyrus, Jesus, Hadrian, Muhammad and others, its undulating career mankind's story. And Hebrew University archaeologist Yigal Shiloah has completed his diggings south of Old Jerusalem's walls and below the mountain where Solomon built his temple.

First excavated 130 years ago while searching for King David's tomb (who was Solomon's predecessor and captured Jerusalem in 996 B.C.), Shiloah discovered red public buildings, a flute carved from a cow's leg, a Rhodes-imported and stamped handle of a wine jug, 2,000-year Hebrew inscriptions, other artifacts, etc.

These indicated Jerusalem had been inhabited since about 3000 B.C., the excavations penetrating Israel's stone-age period and delving beyond Babylon's conquest and the exile of Jews to about the 8th century.

King Khalid, in demanding Jerusalem, had all this in mind.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

It's Rough Assailing

WEST BRANCH, Iowa—Here at Herbert Hoover's birthplace, the performance by Iowa's Republican leaders Oct. 18 helped explain why Dick Clark probably will be this state's first Democratic senator ever re-elected—and why the mid-term election nationally is shaping up as another exercise in Republican futility.

The tax revolt was supposed to generate Republican revival. But during a long evening of after-dinner speechmaking at the Greenview golf club here, the Republican worthies astonishingly said nothing about cutting taxes.

Instead, the party's candidates—including Sen. Clark's foe, former Lt. Gov. Roger Jepsen—assailed big government and big spending in language Republicans have been using since Hoover lost to Roosevelt 46 years ago.

If Republicans are not going to talk about tax reduction, Dick Clark certainly isn't. Relieved of such pressure, he shields the doctrinaire liberalism he practices back in Washington with anesthetically dull good-government preachments.

He leads Jepsen by 11 percentage points according to the Iowa poll though the final outcome may be much closer. Republican Gov. Robert Ray approaches another landslide re-election as a personal triumph unrelated to party or ideology. Overall, Republicanism steadily declines on the Iowa prairies.

That sorely disappoints national Republican strategists, who had salivated over another crack at Clark. An unknown congressional staffer whose election in 1972 even surprised himself, Clark is the most liberal senator ever elected from Iowa.

HIS 1977 LIBERAL voting record, as measured by the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), was a perfect 18 out of 18.

The National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC) and organized labor immediately designated Clark an endangered species, bestowing abundant funds and advice.

Clark, who makes up for in patience and self-discipline what he lacks in inspirational fervor, has faithfully followed the advice.

Accordingly, like other campaigning liberals, he calls for a balanced budget some distant day, and claims he no longer is confident of government's ability to solve problems.

Copying George McGovern's South Dakota formula, he downgrades liberal ideology and upgrades farm handouts, declaring: "Most of my accomplishments have been in the agricultural area." But there is nothing said about revising that perfect ADA voting record.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, JEPSEN, who sounds mostly like an old-fashioned Taft conservative, has been branded a member of the "radical right." He has backed away from earlier stress on Clark's condoning (as Senate African affairs subcommittee chairman) of Communist-backed guerrillas in Africa.

So, a gunshy Jepsen has dropped plans to spotlight Clark's inexorable opposition to defense spending.

More telling is Jepsen's failure to sound an obsessive tax reduction theme, which his own precinct polls show top all interests of Iowans. A Jepsen television commercial boosts the Kemp-Roth tax reduction bill, and he circulates petitions for it.

But on the day ending with the West Branch dinner, Jepsen said almost nothing about reducing taxes and lots about reducing government spending.

CONSEQUENTLY, HE faces the problems Republicans have been unable to solve for 46 years but that Kemp-Roth was supposed to avoid. Interviewed by a weekly newspaper editor in Corydon, Jepsen was asked how the rural retired elderly could manage if welfare funds were cut.

Instead of giving Rep. Jack Kemp's answer that tax cuts will generate enough revenue to maintain those programs, Jepsen skirted the question with a non-answer.

Iowa Democratic politicians thank their lucky stars that Jepsen has not gone after the Catholic vote by plugging hard for tuition tax credits, opposed by Clark.

Instead, Jepsen scatters his shots by still harping on Clark's Panama Canal vote, attacking the Des Moines Register for favoritism and blundering into opposition to Federal help for a failing meatpacking plant in Waterloo.

WHY DON'T Republicans focus on the tax revolt? One party operative told us the Democrats had stolen the issue with the recent congressional tax cut, which actually does not even keep up with inflation and social security.

A better explanation: innate Republican aversion to putting money in people's pockets instead of tightening their belts.

"Maybe Dick Clark will goof up before the election," one Jepsen county chairman told us. Other Republicans pray that anti-abortion votes will be unexpectedly heavy against Clark. A more realistic hope for Jepsen is a small voter turnout combined with superior Republican organization.

It is all hauntingly familiar to what Republicans have counted on for infrequent victories in the half-century after Herbert Hoover's defeat: Eisenhower-like non-party figures such as Gov. Ray; Democratic blunders on exotic issues, such as abortion; and mainly, not too many people voting.

Instead of coaxing voters to the polls by promising new economic hope through low taxes, the Iowa Republicans pray they stay home.

JAY HARRIS:

Clean Up The Act

WHAT THE Texas political campaign lacked in fireworks in its early stages, it is more than making up for in the waning days.

What effect, if any, this may have on the voter turnout two weeks hence remains to be seen.

As vote time nears, charges and counter-charges fly thick and heavy. The emphasis is on everything from a candidate's alleged political stance to his backers' motives, from his social and sexual status to what he can do for you that others can't. As we have noted, the effect is to cloud the real issues.

Just for the record, we are not newcomers to the state's political scene. We have been witness to some of the most sensational, and sordid, shenanigans politics and their paid minions could dream up. It doesn't make it any more palatable.

MAYBE IT'S the tenor of the times that has caused us to take such a critical view of what's going on today.

Maybe it's a gut feeling that time is running short on our search for a way out of the governmental morass into which we have wandered.

But, whatever, we don't like it and we think we have a lot of company. We are a full-fledged member in good standing in the belief that man basically is good. We think this is the greatest nation with the greatest form of self-government ever devised.

We think this nation indeed was founded "under God" and only with His blessing and inspired leadership, as well as a goodly helping of statesmanship, has survived. And, naive or not, we think a lot of people are tired of the same old political claptrap, the same old tired pledges, the same innuendoes of "reward" for support.

WHICH BRINGS us back to some of the unfunny things happening in the state, including two top contests attracting national attention.

We can find fault with several aspects of this Fall's campaign, but the race for Governor and Senate have enough for instances to keep one occupied with "who's on first" until voting time.

GOP nominee Bill Clements isn't exactly your shrinking violet when it comes to saying what he thinks. He is a tough-minded, take-charge guy who earned his way from day laborer and oil field roughneck to the top in his profession.

He makes no bones of the fact he thinks government should be run like a business. He blames the Democratic party for much of the nation's excesses. On the other side of the coin, his foes criticize him for being too wealthy and too abrasive.

His opponent, Demo nominee and State Atty. Gen. John Hill cut his teeth on Texas politics. His up-set is tough, outspoken and a gut fighter. His up-set of Gov. Dolph Briscoe left deep scars. And Hill is not exactly on welfare, having been a most successful attorney before entering politics.

WE HAVE NO quarrel with a good, hard-hitting campaign, one that draws candidates out on specifics. But generalities, innuendoes and "cheap shots" turn us off.

A radio ad which the Hill forces have been peddling comes in that category for our money. Here is a portion of it as it was played for us by a local radio station:

"When the Nixon campaign needed a Texas chairman in 1972, Bill Clements got the nod. When Nixon won, he rewarded his campaign director with a job in the Washington bureaucracy."

"Now, Bill Clements is back, and he brought with him every trick he picked up in Washington. The same political dirty tricks he learned from Watergate are being put to work in his campaign for governor..."

The ad then takes note of a campaign paper in Clements' behalf and says: "It's the worst example of underhanded campaign tactics we have ever seen in a Texas governor's race. In sharp contrast, John Hill is running a constructive campaign, and that's what we expect from our candidates..."

IN THE FIRST place, Clements served as second in command in the Defense Department and is generally credited with doing a good job.

Secondly, he wasn't in any way touched by Watergate. The pitch is to emotion, not reason, to bias and prejudice, not past performance or present policies. Hill and Clements finally are going to meet head-on in at least three regional type television debates in Dallas, Houston and Amarillo. It should be interesting.

In the meantime, over in the Senate bash between incumbent Sen. John Tower and Demo challenger Rep. Bob Krueger, the best description of what's going on is sleazy. Both camps have thrown everything at each other, including the dirty graffiti on the public toilet walls.

CLOSER HOME, there are those who have taken issue with us over our argument that too much emphasis has been placed on the wrong things in some area as well as statewide races.

"That's the sort of stuff that appeals to those people who think with their emotions, who think below the belt," we were told. "It's an issue."

Perhaps, but to us it doesn't tell us much about what a candidate thinks about some of the most pressing domestic issues and foreign policy matters ever to face this nation.

We have had supporters for certain candidates suggest that if Lubbock or this area does not back them, then "Tech and Lubbock could be in trouble..." If so, so is the candidate. If Tech and Lubbock deserve certain things, including a nursing school, then they deserve it regardless of who sits in the statehouse.

In brief, there's a sickness in this great nation, and nowhere is it more apparent than in politics. It's time we cleaned up the act. If the candidates don't, sooner or later, the voters will.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

IN 1649, IT WAS, when Oliver Cromwell advanced on the town of Waterford in Ireland. He could go either of two ways, through the village of Crooke on one side of the harbor or by way of Hook Head on the other side. He would take Waterford, he said, "by Hook or by Crooke." And that's how the line got started.

That U.S. President who walked a pet raccoon on a leash was Calvin Coolidge.

Those who ought to know contend that horses don't get dental cavities.

Explosion Near Houston, Fires On Both Coasts Wreak Havoc

By The Associated Press

Five people died in a natural gas pipeline explosion near Houston, firefighters battled wind-fanned blazes that ravaged 40,000 acres of suburban Los Angeles countryside, and flames engulfed part of Atlantic City's famed Boardwalk on Tuesday.

The coast-to-coast disasters injured more than 65 people and caused millions of dollars of damage, officials at the three scenes reported.

In Brookside Village, Texas, a trailer park pipeline exploded in flames early Tuesday morning, killing five people who were overcome by the scorching heat as they tried to flee through an open field, authorities said. Several people still were missing and at least 43 others were injured by the blast that was felt 35 miles away. The fireball was seen by airplane pilots 200 miles away.

Seven of the 23 homes at the Royal Mobile Home Park, near Houston, were destroyed, officials said.

"Some people may have been completely incinerated from the heat and we may not find them at all," said Fire Chief Bill Wilcox from nearby Friendswood.

The fire burned itself out in about three hours after United Texas Transmission Gas Co. officials closed off valves feeding the pipeline. United officials have not offered a cause of the explosion and the National Transportation Safety Board in Washington said it would investigate.

More than 140 hillside and canyon homes around Los Angeles had been destroyed by Tuesday by about a dozen separate fires fed by twisting, powerful gusts. Thousands, including many celebrities, were forced to evacuate their threatened homes.

By late Tuesday, firefighters were being aided by muggy air and calming winds and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. had declared the fire area a state disaster, making residents immediately eligible for state aid.

At least a dozen people were injured, including one critically, officials reported, and a car crash on a smoky highway near Malibu claimed two lives.

The most damaging California fires were west of Los Angeles in Mandeville Canyon, where 10,000 acres had burned by mid-Tuesday, and the canyons above Malibu, where 25,000 acres were charred, officials said.

Homes of many celebrities were threatened by the fires, including those of Ali McGraw, Steve McQueen and Nick Nolte.

In Atlantic City, a blaze beginning late Monday stubbornly worked its way through 10 Boardwalk stores and an elegant apartment house — causing an estimated $2.5 million damage — before firemen brought it under control after seven hours.

Twelve firemen and a policewoman suffered minor injuries in the blaze that struck a row of stores between Kentucky and Illinois avenues about six blocks from the Resorts International Hotel Casino, officials reported.

"We're very sure it was an accidental fire," said Chief Anthony Ingento. About 120 firefighters battled the blaze from rooftops and narrow alleys.

Good Samaritan Assaulted, Robbed

A Lubbock man who reportedly tried to do another man a favor early Tuesday paid a heavy price for it.

Dell Hoover of Rt. 2, Box 254, said he was giving a young Mexican-American man a lift home from a club about 1:55 a.m. when his passenger pulled a knife and demanded his money.

Hoover said he stopped his pickup truck in the 2800-block of Baylor Street and a struggle ensued during which Hoover reportedly was cut on the hand. The 41-year-old salesman said he was able to get out of his car and run for help, but not before the bandit managed to get $20 out of Hoover's pants pocket.

When officers and Hoover returned to the pickup, they also discovered Hoover's suit coat missing, reports show.

In burglaries reported Tuesday, Pat Patterson of Slaton told police that someone broke into a trailer parked in the yard of Merchant's Freight Line, 4201 Quirt Ave., and stole seven stereo receivers, valued at a total of $1,180.

Ronnie Buck, manager of Long John Silver's restaurant at 2344 19th St., said that when he arrived at the business about 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, he found the front door unlocked and apparently pried. After further checking, Buck said, he discovered that the restaurant's safe, containing $320, had been removed from a concrete encasement in the back of the firm and that $10 more was missing from the cash register.

T. N. Ross of 1710-B E. 15th St. told officers that someone slipped his wallet from beneath his pillow while he was sleeping early Tuesday, removed $35 cash, and then placed the wallet back under the pillow.

Buck A. Payne said that a $90 gun was missing from under the bed at his 2706 Ave. P home. He said the weapon was taken late Friday.

Leon Reese, foreman for West Texas Builders, said that a tractor and two trailers parked at E. 17th Street and Holly Monday night sustained $835 damage. He said the tires of the tractor had been slashed and that two tires on one of the trailers also had been cut. The other trailer, Reese said, had several of its wooden slats broken.

Felicitas Cruz Vega, 46, of 1309 Adrian St. said she was beaten up about 4:25 p.m. Monday by a neighbor she had asked to move a car from in front of her house.

Mrs. Vega told police that the woman repeatedly parked her car in Mrs. Vega's driveway. She said that when she called to complain, the suspect came to her house, ordered her outside and assaulted her.

Reports show Mrs. Vega was struck in the face, back and chest, and suffered a bite wound on her leg. She was taken to Methodist Hospital where she was treated and released.

The Sunday afternoon arrest of two men, ages 22 and 21, has resulted in the recovery of 24 stolen hubcaps totaling $1,200 to $1,500, according to police Det. Earl Rankin.

The suspects were arrested about 4:20 p.m. They were spotted by officers in the 6600-block of S. University Avenue in a car where several of the hubcaps were found, reports show.

The men also were being questioned about the theft of purses at a Slide Road nursing home earlier Sunday. One of the two purses reported stolen from the nursing home contained jewelry and other contents totaling $900, the owner told police.

Police today were looking for a former employee of the 7-Eleven Store at Ninth Street and University Avenue who allegedly stole an undetermined amount of cash from the store about 7 p.m. Sunday.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. In late 1977 I purchased 200 shares of stock from a friend, at five cents a share. The person I bought it from paid a total of $1,572.64 for this stock in 1973. There was no market for the stock and he wanted to take a tax loss during 1977.

I have the stock certificates, endorsed by the seller and with his signature guaranteed by a bank. I would like to have certificates reissued in my name. How can this be done? Also, where can I obtain information on this company?

A. You can have new stock certificates issued in your name by sending the certificates you now hold to the stock's transfer agent, along with instructions.

That will work out fine, if the company is still in business and has a transfer agent. As a safety valve, I suggest you write to the transfer agent — whose name is printed on the face of the certificate — first. You might find out that the company has stopped paying transfer agent fees and no longer has a transfer agent.

Because the company evidently was a going concern in 1973, the transfer agent should be able to give you some information. If, and it could be a big "IF" the company is still in business, you'll start getting annual reports and whatever other information the company sends to stockholders.

But, if you come up dry, write to the secretary of state in the capital of the state in which the company was incorporated. Ask if the company's charter is still effective and what information — if any — is available.

Q. I sold the 30 shares of stock I received as a 30 percent stock dividend. Would this be counted as a gift and not have to be reported on my income tax return?

A. Sorry, but the answer is no. You had either a capital gain or a capital loss when you sold that stock. Without knowing more details, I don't know which it was. But you are supposed to report it when you file your income tax return.

Because your 30 percent stock dividend gave you 30 shares, it's obvious that you originally owned 100 shares. Whatever you paid for the 100 shares was your original "cost basis." The stock dividend didn't change your total cost basis but it did alter your cost basis on each share.

Your new cost basis per share on the 130 shares was the total price you paid for 100 shares, divided by 130. If the amount you received on the sale of those 30 shares was more than 30 times your new cost basis per share, you had a capital gain. If it was less, you had a capital loss.

Either way, it's supposed to be reported on "Schedule D" of your federal income tax return.

Q. My wife has about 200 shares of a mutual fund purchased years ago. This is considered a "growth" mutual fund and doesn't pay high dividends. Would it pay for her to transfer to an "income" mutual fund managed by the same organization? The only charge for the transfer would be $5. We intend to retire in about five years.

A. The switch would be a logical one, at or near retirement time. I can't outguess the market by estimating whether it would be best to make the change now, one year, two years or five years from now.

In your shoes, I'd make the switch immediately after retirement. From that point on, almost everything you own should be in high income-producing investments.

Penn Central Bankruptcy Comes To End

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The new Penn Central became a reality Tuesday, formally ending America's biggest business bankruptcy.

With the resignation of three court-appointed trustees, the election of new directors and officers and a slight change of name — all required legal technicalities — Penn Central was on its own again.

Now it's called The Penn Central Corporation, minus the giant railroad that was the cause of its financial troubles when it was the Penn Central Transportation Co.

That 16-state railroad system is now operated by government-created companies called Conrail and Amtrak, and the value of that disputed property is one of the chief assets of the new Penn Central.

Richard Dicker, 61, a former vice president of Equitable Life Assurance Society, was elected Penn Central's new chairman and chief executive. He'll control through five subsidiaries an oil pipeline, an oil refinery, amusement parks, resort hotels, and thousands of acres of valuable real estate.

Six others were named to the Penn Central Corp.'s board of directors. They include Frank E. Loy, who was named president and chief operating officer.

The last hurdle to the reorganization of the $4 billion firm, carefully supervised for 8 1/2 years in federal district court, was wiped out Monday when the U.S. Supreme Court declined to hear an appeal by minority stockholders who claimed their stake in the new company wasn't enough.

All trading in the 23 million shares of old Penn Central common, last selling for $1.62 each, ended on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday. They will be swapped for the new common — which may be listed by the end of the month — at the rate of one new for 25 old.

"We're starting up with something in the neighborhood of $1.75 billion in new securities," Dicker said. "That's the bulk of our debt."

Dicker said Penn Central presently plans to keep its headquarters in Philadelphia, but held out the prospect of shifting to New York or elsewhere within a year or two.

The firm's origins date back to the founding of the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1842. It got its present name when it merged with the New York Central in 1968, two years before it went broke.

Area Cooperative Gets Hearing Date

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The Public Utility Commission has set a hearing for Dec. 5 on the application of Cap Rock Electric Cooperative Inc. to amend its certificate of authority for operations in Borden, Glascock, Howard and Upton counties.

The hearing was set following a pre-hearing conference at the PUC Tuesday.

Texas Electric Service Co. has protested the proposed changes.

A PUC spokesman, however, said Tuesday it appeared likely an agreement would be reached between the two prior to the hearing.

Kansas Grocery Firm Prospers

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — In 1957 Ray Dillon shrugged off a bid to buy his small supermarket chain, then began building his family business into a billion-dollar, 12-state food-store enterprise.

Dillon's firm that year had 42 supermarkets in Kansas doing $51.7 million in sales and earning $668,313. After rejecting the offer to buy them out, he and other officials of the company decided that they, too, should be looking for businesses to buy.

By careful acquisitions of prosperous firms in booming population areas of the West and Southwest, they built their operation into a corporation that earned $28.4 million on sales of nearly $1.5 billion in fiscal 1978.

Eastern Reports Top Earnings

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines reported Tuesday that its earnings soared to $20 million in the third quarter of 1978, assuring the firm of its most profitable year ever.

Frank Borman, Eastern chairman and president, also said the third-quarter profit was the highest for the period in the carrier's 50-year history. He attributed the rosy earnings picture to increased passenger volume and the popularity of discount fares.

Eastern said its third-quarter earnings rose to $20 million, or 93 cents per share, from $1.6 million, or eight cents per share, for the same period of 1977.

Revenue increased to $604.6 million for the quarter just ended from $579.9 million for the comparable period last year.

In a year and a half, the 503 grocery and convenience stores of Dillon Companies Inc. will hurdle the $2 billion mark in sales, predicts Ray Dillon Jr., who succeeded his father as president in 1963.

The elder Dillon, at 81 still chairman but semiretired, and other board members were tempted by the 1957 offer to become part of a larger, more diversified firm.

The future of the Kansas economy was not promising at the time, they believed, and the prospect of diversifying stockholders' investments was attractive. Although the board spurned the offer by the major supermarket company, which Ray Dillon Jr. refused to identify, it sparked some thinking in the executive chambers.

"When we decided not to sell out, we decided we'd better provide some diversification on our own," the 54-year-old Dillon said. "That was when we decided to branch out."

"This has been the whole thing that we have tried to do, to try to spread out so the fortunes of the company are not dependent on any one region of the country."

Their first major acquisition was a plum. The Dillons worked out a deal to acquire the King Soopers supermarket chain, which operated eight stores in the Denver area at the time.

Today, King Soopers has 42 stores in metropolitan Denver that account for nearly half of Dillon's corporate-wide sales. Its success shows, Dillon said, that the firm's 12 other divisions "have something to work toward."

Later acquisitions included City Markets in western Colorado, Fry's Food Stores in California and Arizona, Gerbes Super Markets in central Missouri. The empire also includes and several convenience-store operations — Quik Stop in California, Kwik Shop in Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska, and Time Saver in metropolitan New Orleans.

"We weren't looking for bargain companies, we weren't looking for something that could be bought cheaply," Dillon said. "We were looking for successful companies, we were looking for companies that had good management and companies with management that would stay."

Other Dillon divisions operate Calhoun's department stores in Kansas, an ice cream company, a real estate firm and an investment corporation Dillon's plans to sell at a profit of $2 million.

Braniff Pickets Continue Campaign

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International flight attendants threw up the picket lines at airports and ticket counters in Dallas, San Antonio and Houston again Tuesday in a continuing dispute over wages.

The attendants, who claim they draw the lowest pay of any major airline, also are picketing in seven other U.S. cities in a move designed to pressure the airline into a settlement.

"We are close enough to a contract that the company could settle this very easily," said Marge Cooper, chief union officer for the flight attendants, "but Braniff continues to offer pay scales far below the average."

Braniff spokesman Jere Cox in Dallas confirmed negotiators are close to agreement. He said the wages are the only outstanding issue in the bargaining, but he declined to be specific about differences between union demands and company offers.

"We have been prepared to settle the contract for the last 18 months. We are still prepared to settle at any time," said Cox.

He said the union chose to renegotiate the contract word for word. But he said a great deal of progress has been made and the issue can be resolved.

Contract talks are in recess, but Cox predicted they will resume soon.

Federal Judge Defended For Torres Ruling

DALLAS (AP) — A defense lawyers group says a federal judge acted within his authority when he suspended the sentences for three former Houston policemen convicted of drowning a Mexican-American prisoner and depriving him of his civil rights.

The Justice Department has asked the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to order Judge Ross Sterling to reinstate the 10-year sentences given Terry Wayne Denson, Stephen Orlando and Joseph Jannish.

Dallas lawyer Tom Mills, acting on behalf of the National Association of Defense Lawyers, filed a friend-of-the-court brief with the appeals court supporting Ross's authority to suspend the sentences for the men convicted of violating the civil rights of Joe Campos Torres.

Torres had been in police custody when he was beaten and shoved into Buffalo Bayou where he drowned.

Torres' death set ignited a firestorm of protest in the Texas Mexican-American community that was rekindled when Ross handed down what critics consider lenient sentences.

Mills and Dan McDonald Jr., counsel for the lawyers association, argue a judge's discretionary power to impose probation should not be limited.

In the brief filed Monday, Mills argues that limitation of that discretionary power "is contrary to the interests of promotion of the proper administration of criminal justice, the protection of individual rights and the improvement of criminal law and procedure."

A TAXPAYER'S BILL OF RIGHTS IS PAST DUE

Bill Clements believes we still have a chance to preserve our future by establishing constitutional protection against excessive taxation and runaway government spending.

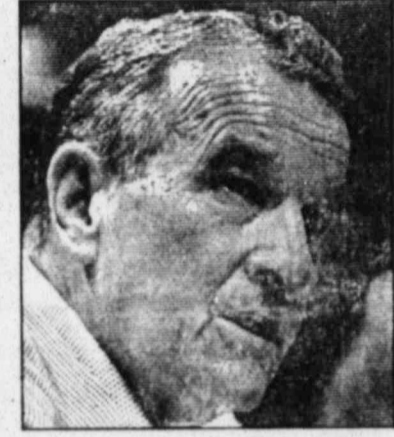

Bill Clements believes the people of Texas should have the power necessary to ratify or reject tax policies made by legislators.

To establish this power (of the people), Bill Clements will introduce an amendment to the Texas Constitution that would give the people of Texas this right.

Bill Clements' "Taxpayers' Bill of Rights" would:

- Give Texans the right of initiative and referendum, a phrase that means we, the people, have a right to vote on the taxes to be levied on us.
 - Place a ban on corporate or personal income tax in Texas.
 - Require a two-thirds record vote of both houses of the legislature to pass a tax bill.
 - Allow local taxpayers to call an election to ratify or reject a tax increase created by a local governmental unit.
- Bill Clements believes in Texas and the people of Texas.
- Bill Clements thinks that elected officials must work for the people and represent them properly.
- As governor of Texas, Bill Clements will work for and with the people of Texas.

It's about time someone recalled that our form of government was conceived to be a servant of the people and provide the means to insure that principle endures.

BILL CLEMENTS, A GREAT GOVERNOR FOR TEXAS.

Brain Virus Drug Hailed As Major Breakthrough

WASHINGTON (AP) — In what scientists say is a major breakthrough against viral diseases, the Food and Drug Administration approved on Tuesday a new drug to treat a deadly infectious brain ailment.

"Approval of this drug is particularly noteworthy because it holds out the hope that some day we will be able to successfully treat other viral diseases," said

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy. The drug, Vidarabine, was developed by Parke, Davis & Co. of Detroit, which plans to market it under the trade name Vira-A.

In studies sponsored by the National Institutes of Health, the drug slashed the death rate caused by Herpes encephalitis from 70 percent to 28 percent and substantially reduced the brain damage of ten suffered by survivors of the rare disease.

In addition to the drug's life-saving potential in the treatment of one disease, there is great significance in the development, finally, of a drug that can fight viruses.

Since the development of penicillin and other antibiotics, physicians have been able to subdue a wide range of bacterial infections, including the common strep throat, some forms of pneumonia, various localized infections and a host of infectious diseases.

But in diseases caused by a virus, whether it be the common cold, influenza, polio or other life-threatening disorders such as Herpes encephalitis, science can treat only the symptoms while the illness runs its course and the body itself fights back.

The development of vaccines has made it possible to prevent many common viral diseases.

Dr. Robert Buchanan of Parke, Davis, who gave the first dose of Vidarabine to a patient in 1971, said the newly approved drug "is not a penicillin" because it won't have such widespread applications against so many diseases. But he added that test results will be published soon showing Vidarabine is effective against the member of the Herpes family of viruses that causes Herpes zoster, commonly called shingles.

And doctors are studying the effect of the drug on a potentially deadly Herpes infection that strikes newborn infants.

Scientists also are experimenting with its possible use against the Herpes virus that causes cold sores and recurrent genital lesions.

Buchanan noted that his company began marketing a salve containing the drug last year to treat Herpes keratitis, a potentially serious eye infection.

The form approved by the FDA Tuesday is an injectible drug and in cases of Herpes encephalitis is administered intravenously to patients in hospitals.

Since first reports of Vidarabine's effectiveness against encephalitis were published more than a year ago, Parke, Davis has made it available in about 100 known cases of the disease in the United States. Some clinicians have expressed disappointment with the results.

Asked about such reports, Buchanan said he was aware of them, but investigation generally has revealed that treatment with the drug had not begun soon enough. He stressed that early, positive diagnosis and prompt administration of Vidarabine are critical in the battle to save encephalitis victims.

Vidarabine, which is also called adenine arabinoside or ara-A, also has been approved for use in the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia and West Germany.

Woman Reunited With Family

LAKE CITY, Fla. (AP) — Almost 45 years after she was separated from her five children and placed in a mental institution, Virginia Gunnoe was reunited with her family. She spent Tuesday trying to learn the names of the 11 great-grandchildren she had never known.

"It's so great to have her here, and she appears to be feeling right at home," said Mary Louise Hunter, one of Mrs. Gunnoe's five children. "I think it's going to take her a while to get everybody's names all straightened out, though."

There had been a lot of changes in Mrs. Gunnoe's family since she was institutionalized in 1933. Her children have grown, she had six grandchildren and the 11 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Gunnoe, 69, was released Monday from the Forest Haven hospital in Laurel, Md., and flown to Gainesville, near Mrs. Hunter's home. The mystery surrounding her confinement still exists.

Officials said that in 1933, while Mrs. Gunnoe was working as a domestic in Quantico, Va., she was labeled moderately retarded by doctors after her husband abandoned her. She was sent to Forest Haven, an institution operated by the District of Columbia. Family members said they suspect she might have suffered only minor brain damage after a bout of typhoid fever.

"What she was doing there all those years is a mystery none of us have been able to find the answer to," said Mrs. Hunter. "For years it was a deep, dark secret among the family, and now nobody seems to know."

Robert Plotkin, senior attorney for the Mental Health Law Project in Washington, said poor people with a poor command of English sometimes were labeled as retarded and institutionalized, especially during the Depression.

Although Plotkin said he was not familiar with Mrs. Gunnoe's case, he said, "there are many cases similar to what she went through. We see them all the time."

In 1933, Mrs. Gunnoe's children were sent to live with relatives. It wasn't until 1963, when Mrs. Hunter was 32 years old, that she learned from a relative that her mother was still alive and in the hospital.

Mrs. Hunter said she visited her mother at the hospital and found her in good health. She said she tried then to arrange for her mother's release, but she was rebuffed by the staff.

Hospital officials said this week that the woman's original records had been lost.

About three weeks ago, the family was notified that the hospital was closing and that Mrs. Gunnoe was deemed qualified for a release program. "It just came out of the blue," Mrs. Hunter said. "We couldn't believe it."

Poll Says U.S. Image Of Japan Favorable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans have a "dramatically positive image" of the Japanese people and regard Japan as a reliable friend near the top of a list of nations important to U.S. global interests, according to a new poll.

Almost two-thirds of those responding to the poll of Americans said U.S. forces in Japan should be kept at their present level or increased, while half favored a commitment to Japan's defense with military force if Japan is attacked.

The poll was conducted by Potomac Associates, a private research organization, and was financed by a grant from the Sumitomo Fund for Policy Research Studies. It was written by George R. Packard of the Woodrow Wilson Center for Scholars and William Watts, president of Potomac Associates.

The survey makes it apparent that the negative American stereotypes of the Japanese which were prevalent at the end of World War II have now given way to a markedly positive image.

By overwhelming majorities, the respondents found the Japanese people to be hard-working, competitive, disciplined, intelligent, polite and clean. Most Americans also look on the Japanese as kind, conservative, peaceful, religious, creative and producers of good products.

The one negative trait which received a majority choice was sly (57 percent) as opposed to open (37 percent). This preference was offset somewhat by the finding that the Japanese were straightforward (50 percent) instead of deceitful (37 percent).

Asked to choose from among 14 countries in terms of which were the most important to U.S. security interests, the respondents ranked Canada first, at 88 percent. Tied for second place, at 86 percent, were Japan and the Soviet Union.

Japan's massive trade surplus with the United States, which was close to $10 billion last year, was the major concern among respondents regarding Japan.

On Japanese rearmament, 46 percent favored the idea while 37 percent were opposed. Fifty percent responding said they would be willing to come to Japan's defense in the event of a military attack — the highest percentage in six years of polling. For Western Europe, the figure was 62 percent.

Women Officers' Sea Duty Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women officers will report for duty aboard Navy ships for the first time next week, opening a new chapter in U.S. naval history. The Navy announced Tuesday that the first of 55 women officers picked for sea duty will report to their ships Nov. 1. The first of 375 enlisted women will become full-fledged crew members of non-combat ships in December, the Navy said.

The way was cleared when Congress enacted legislation ending a long-standing ban on assignment of women to ships other than hospital vessels and transports, none of which is now in service. The new Navy policy also is in line with a decision by U.S. District Judge John Sirica earlier this year. Sirica ruled against a 30-year-old law banning women from sea duty, except in limited cases.

A total of 21 ships in the Atlantic and Pacific fleets have been chosen to receive the first women officers and enlisted sailors over a period of time. It was not said specifically which of the 21 would receive crewwomen at the outset. However, a list distributed by the Navy indicated that the first four will be the Vulcan, a repair ship, and the Spear, a submarine tender, both stationed at Norfolk, Va.; the destroyer tender Samuel Gompers at San Diego, Calif., and the missile test ship Norton Sound at Port Hueneme, Calif.

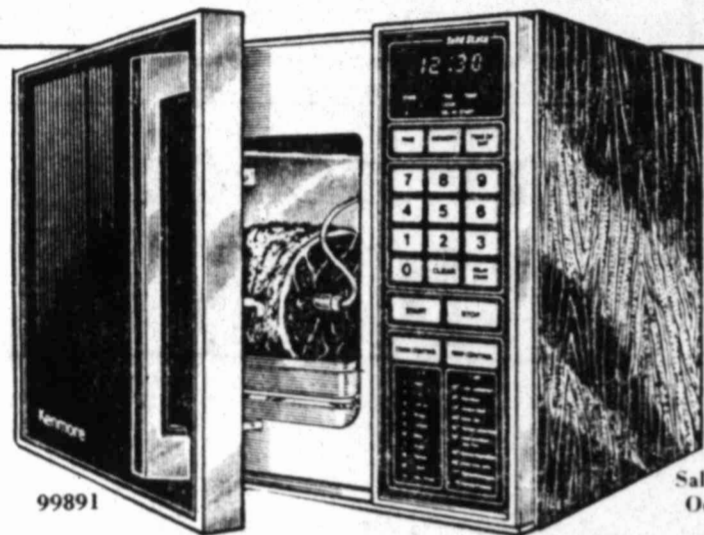

The other vessels on the list of 21 include various kinds of tenders, repair ships and surveying vessels. The law permits women to be assigned on combat vessels only on a temporary basis and only if the ships are not headed for actual battle. Navy officials have said they plan eventually to station women aboard 49 non-combat ships with a target of 210 officers and 5,120 enlisted women serving among the permanent crew by 1984. They said the program likely will be expanded if it works.

Seniors Boost State Tax Relief Measure

AUSTIN (AP) — All Texans would benefit from the "Tax Relief Amendment" on the Nov. 7 ballot, a committee of senior citizens organizations said Tuesday.

"We want it clearly understood that, even though we have an obvious interest in the benefits accruing to older citizens, we are convinced the Tax Relief Amendment is of benefit to all citizens in a fiscally responsible manner," said Ernest Cabe at a capitol news conference.

The amendment would give homeowners a $5,000 exemption from school taxes and would authorize the Legislature to give the elderly and disabled up to an additional $10,000 exemption.

Cabe, a retired Austin school administrator, said the steering committee's member organizations represent between 600,000 and a million Texans. The Texas Farm Bureau also is a member.

"We're without financial resources," Cabe said. "Our work is through organizations, by talking with groups, people, the telephone and talking to neighbors."

The Texas Senior Citizens Association board voted against the amendment Oct. 18, but their former lobbyist said the board vote was controlled by organized labor.

Lyle Hammer, 71, resigned from the association after the vote and said Tuesday the group's membership would have voted for the amendment.

"I feel very strongly they would vote for the amendment," he said. "This is something we've been working for, for years."

He said that former state Sen. Roy Harrington of Port Arthur, chaired the board vote and that Harrington "is wedded to the labor movement."

"They (Texas AFL-CIO) have opposed this and I think this is one of the largest mistakes big labor in Texas has done," Hammer said. "The senior citizens Texas will be against them from now on."

Cabe said younger persons would benefit from the $5,000 exemption.

"They probably have parents and grandparents who have homesteads," he said. "There's the question of dependency, if humanitarian or paternal feelings aren't involved."

Additional amendment provisions would:

- Remove intangible property — bank accounts, pensions, stocks — from the property tax base.
- Exempt family automobiles and personal property not used for income from taxes.

Gun Control Law Upheld For Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — The District of Columbia Court of Appeals, denying an appeal by the National Rifle Association, Tuesday upheld the capital's gun control law, among the toughest in the nation.

The appeals court said the D.C. City Council was clearly acting within its legislative authority when it approved the gun control regulations in May 1976. The court said there was no evidence the law unfairly abridged the constitutional rights of NRA members and other plaintiffs.

"This is a victory for all the residents of the district," said Charles Orasin, a spokesman for the National Council To Control Handguns. "It shows the gun lobby can be beaten."

Under the district's gun control law, only persons who had a properly registered handgun in 1976 can legally possess a handgun now. All handgun sales were halted when the ordinance was passed.

The ordinance also requires that handguns be disassembled and locked when kept in a person's home. Residents can still purchase rifles and shotguns but are required along with handgun owners to register their weapons annually.

If a person is found in possession of an unregistered firearm, he faces a maximum penalty of a $300 fine and a 10-day jail term.

In fighting the ordinance, the NRA argued that because of the District of Columbia's absence of self-government, the city did not have the legislative authority to approve the gun control ordinance.

City attorneys contended the ordinance represented a change in police regulations, not the criminal code, and thus the council was acting within its power.

The appeals court agreed, upholding a finding by a lower court judge in February 1977 that the Home Rule Act "does not reserve to Congress legislative authority over the local police and regulatory functions of the District of Columbia."

Israeli Stand Due Today On Treaty

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli Cabinet adjourned after a seven-hour session Tuesday without making a decision on the draft of a peace treaty with Egypt. President Carter has urged the Israelis to accept the document but some ministers expressed reservations about it. Speaking to reporters after the lengthy session, Prime Minister Menachem Begin said, "I hope the Cabinet will end its discussion tomorrow, and that it will also take the decisions."

Parliament's most powerful body, the Foreign Affairs and Security Committee, after the Cabinet adjourned. Former Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, a member of the committee, said the draft left open "certain questions which require concrete answers." "Everybody is analyzing," said Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin. "I hope there will be a conclusion tomorrow."

whether this means real peace or just a tactical step which is not real peace."

Official sources confirmed reports that Carter cabled Begin to urge Israel to accept the draft, saying the negotiators had produced a good agreement.

But after 11 hours of discussion Monday and Tuesday, the Cabinet had neither accepted the draft nor issued new instructions to its negotiators.

Saudi Arabia expressed a "better understanding" of the peace accords after a 24-hour visit to Saudi Arabia by President Anwar Sadat's special envoy, a senior Egyptian presidential aide said in Cairo.

Voluntary Guidelines Invoked On Inflation

my of roughly 5.75 percent a year. But they expect it to cut the inflation rate to only about 6 percent to 6.5 percent, because there will be exceptions for firms with "unavoidable" cost increases. Such an exception would be made, for example, for a firm that has an existing wage contract committing it to granting pay raises above the 7 percent guideline.

sional group, every individual in this country has no excuse not to adhere to these standards. If we meet these standards, the real buying power of your paycheck will rise.

Larger Economic Areas

Although the president declared no exceptions, Carter's chief economic adviser, Charles Schultz, said, "We're not interested in Mom and Pop stores. We're zeroing in on larger parts of the economy where there is a concentration of economic power."

Although the price guidelines will be mainly voluntary, there are some incentives for compliance.

Firms seeking federal contracts of $5 million or more will be required to sign a statement that they are in compliance with both wage and price standards.

According to a "fact sheet" issued by the White House, increases above the guidelines would "trigger actions by the government."

Relax Import Curbs

These actions could include relaxing restrictions on imports or adjusting federally regulated rate or wage levels.

Initial reaction from members of Congress was generally supportive. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said after being briefed by Carter, "I think as a first step it will get considerable Republican support because it's doing something."

Rep. Robert Giarmo, D-Conn., said "I believe it's a very real first step to get things under control."

Giarmo said the program would include "incentives of all kinds, and also punishments" for those who don't comply with the wage-price standards.

However, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and House Republican leader John Rhodes of Arizona signed a telegram sent to the presidents of the commercial networks demanding equal time to respond to the president's anti-inflation speech.

"Blatantly Political"

The telegram, also signed by GOP Chairman Bill Brock, denounced the program as "blatantly political." It said the American people "should have the opportunity to weigh the view of the opposition party."

The president has said many times that he opposes mandatory wage and price controls unless there is a national emergency, and in any case Congress has not given Carter the authority to impose them.

Then-President Richard M. Nixon, using authority that a Democratic-controlled Congress forced on him over his own objections, imposed mandatory wage and price controls in 1971 when inflation was running at about 6 percent a year. The rate dropped to 3.4 percent in 1971 and 1972, but shot up to 8.8 percent in 1973 after controls were lifted, and 12.2 percent the following year.

periods than whites. School officials counter that the plan involves reassignment of many more whites than minorities.

No Immediate Effect

School board president Charles Waters says the systemwide integration approach advocated by the Justice Department would require "many times the amount of busing we have now."

An appeal by the department would not have any immediate effect. The existing plan would remain in force until the 5th Circuit makes its ruling and gives Woodward instructions for a new plan.

Counter-Appeal Seen

School officials say that if the Justice Department wins at the 5th Circuit level they may appeal the case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

If the department does not appeal to the 5th Circuit, the Citizens' Alliance for Successful Schools has vowed it will carry the appeal for systemwide integration.

Woodward, though, has denied that Lubbock group permission to enter the litigation. And school attorneys believe the alliance may have missed its opportunity to appeal.

Independents Balk At New Gas Controls

HOUSTON (AP) — The nation's independent oil operators refused Tuesday to embrace the new natural gas price controls legislation. Instead, they voted to renew their drive for congressional decontrol action at the earliest possible opportunity.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America convention approved a committee report saying the Natural Gas Policy Act now awaiting President Carter's signature extends federal regulation to intrastate markets, thus placing, for the first time in history, all domestic gas production under some form of price controls.

"It is our belief this regulation will further hamper the domestic natural gas industry in its efforts to provide consumers with new supplies of natural gas," the report said.

"The industry cannot sit back and wait for hoped decontrol in the mid to late 1980s. Efforts should be made to renew our drive for congressional decontrol at the earliest possible opportunity."

Airline Rules To Be Lifted

ing and mergers that apply to other non-regulated industries.

By Jan. 1, 1984, the CAB must send Congress its recommendations on whether its life should be extended to handle international aviation matters, small community air service programs or agreements among airlines.

If Congress doesn't act within a year, those functions will be transferred to other federal departments and the CAB would be dissolved by Jan. 1, 1985.

Under the bill, cities now listed on airlines' certificates would be guaranteed "essential" air service for 10 years with the government picking up the tab for a carrier's losses if it wanted to stop serving the city and no replacement can be found.

The president's signature also means that more than 20 airline representatives can soon halt their vigil on the sidewalk outside the CAB.

Iranian Students Protest

tion or any other reaction from the marchers.

The demonstrators convened about 11 a.m. in front of the Texas Tech University Center, marched down 15th Street to University Avenue, north up University to Broadway and back to the student center.

Shouting slogans against the Shah, the protesters were circling a tree and carrying banners and placards at noon. The demonstration broke up about 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Tech had issued a permit allowing them to demonstrate from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Iranians, who held a demonstration here last summer against the prince's flight training at Reese Air Force Base, wore the masks permitted them last week by federal District Judge Patrick Higginbotham of Dallas.

Tech officials had said they could demonstrate without the masks, which they claim are necessary to keep their identities from Iranian secret police in the United States, and the Iranians, represented by West Texas Legal Services, contested the Tech ruling in federal court.

They won a ruling from Higginbotham this summer to allow them to demonstrate in a Lubbock residential area.

The march Tuesday was delayed from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. because organizers said, more Iranians were expected later in the morning.

They had said about 50 would march.

An estimated 500 from Lubbock and around the country marched past the 4904 21st St. home of the prince last July 21.

They got a mixed response from Tech students Tuesday.

One asked an Avalanche-Journal photographer not to take photographs of the protesters' faces, but others leaned out of a dormitory window at University and Broadway and shouted repeatedly, "Arabs, go home!"

Some students accepted pamphlets condemning the Shah, and others expressed indifference and refused.

the bandit's first order and the suspect again told him to hang up the phone, adding, "Face the wall and keep your hands up."

He said the robber then turned the 28-year-old manager's chair toward the wall, instructed Thompson to sit down and then tied his wrists behind the chair with a red rag that had been shredded and tied together into a makeshift rope.

Thompson said that before exiting with the safe's receipts, the shorter robber took the manager's car keys from his jacket and the pair ripped the telephone lines from the walls.

The duo sped from the scene in Thompson's 1975 Mercury, which was found about 4 p.m. abandoned in an alley in the 5700-block of Avenue S. Several keys that had been on Thompson's key ring were missing and only the vehicle's ignition key was left.

Thompson said he freed himself about five minutes after the pair left and ran to a neighboring business to call police.

"Don't Be Brave"

The two women said the taller robber had told them, "Don't be brave and come out too soon," and Thompson said a similar threat was made by the shorter man, who told him, "Don't be a brave manager."

"I thought it was a joke," Thompson said of his reaction when first confronted by the robbers. "Then he pointed the gun at me and told me to hang up the phone."

"If they had come only a few minutes later," the manager said, "they would have gotten maybe $40. We were just counting the money to take it to the bank."

Ironically, a private security guard, unaware of the robbery, came to the insurance company while police were still investigating the scene to pick up the cash the men had stolen.

"To be banned is the government's punishment of people who cannot successfully be prosecuted," Woods said.

He said his car was bugged, his mail censored and he was placed under constant surveillance.

"But the government did me a great favor by banning me," Woods added. "I was forbidden to travel outside a five-mile radius of my district and since then I've travelled 85,000 miles."

"I was forbidden to speak to more than one person and through the electronic media and my speaking tours. I've talked to more than 300 million people."

"And I was forbidden to write, and since then I've never written so much. Forgive me for gloating but that writing has been for Steve Biko," Woods added.

Biko, a close friend of Woods and a leader of the Black Consciousness movement in South Africa, was jailed by the government and later died from injuries received while in prison.

In "Biko," a recently published book by Woods, he urges economic pressure on South Africa, a violation, he said, of South Africa's terrorism act and punishable by hanging.

"You're very lucky to be living in a free country," Woods told his audience. "But be ever watchful of inroads on that freedom. They'll either be made from the extreme left or the extreme right, and they usually will be made in the public interest or in the interest of national security."

"Freedom is not washed away, it's whittled away," he added.

Jury Acquits Doctor; Newsman Released

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — Dr. Mario Jascalevich was found innocent Tuesday of killing three hospital patients in the mid-1960s, while New York Times reporter Myron Farber was freed after spending 40 days in jail for refusing to give up his notes on the case.

The jury that acquitted Jascalevich deliberated for only about two hours over two days after a 34-week trial. He had been accused of giving the patients fatal doses of curare, a muscle relaxant.

"Thank God justice was done," said a beaming Jascalevich. His wife added, "An innocent man was saved."

Jascalevich's defense maintained that the surgeon was framed by other doctors and a conspiracy of the prosecutor, Farber and the New York City medical examiner Jascalevich never testified.

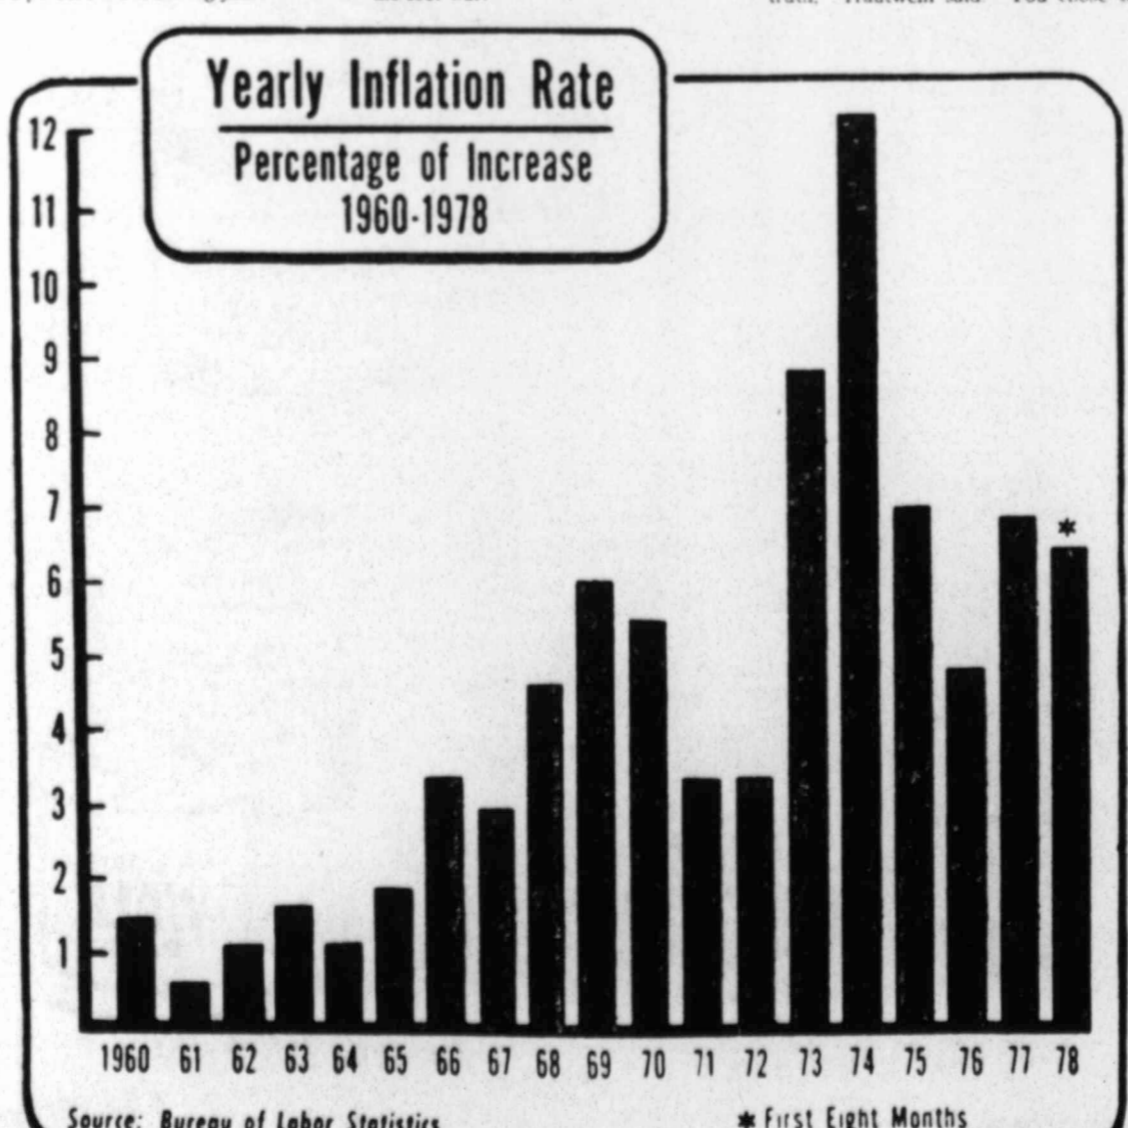

In 1976, Farber wrote about the deaths in which Jascalevich was later charged, referring not to Jascalevich but to a "Dr. X."

The jailing of Farber and leveling of $285,000 in fines against The Times focused nationwide attention on the conflict between the rights to a free press and a fair trial. The case may still be taken up by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I assume you are still adamant in your refusal to obey the order of the trial court to turn over materials and notes ... on the grounds that to do so would violate your First Amendment rights and the New Jersey Shield Law privilege," Superior Court Judge Theodore W. Trautwein said before he released Farber on Tuesday.

"Yes," the newsman replied.

"You and only you, Mr. Farber ... know whether you withheld something from the trial court and the jury which would have been of aid in the search for truth," Trautwein said. "You chose to

Endorsement Given Hill By Jaworski

By The Associated Press
A nationally known lawyer and a national taxpayers group made endorsements Tuesday in Texas political races.

Former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski of Houston announced his support of Attorney General John Hill for governor.

Jaworski said at a Houston news conference with Hill:
"I have watched Attorney General Hill develop from a fledgling lawyer to a mature seasoned government leader over a span of 30 years, and everything I have observed leads me to predict he will make one of the best governors in the history of our state."

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said he had received the endorsement of Taxpayer Action, the political action committee affiliated with the National Taxpayers Union.

"This endorsement merely symbolizes the active support being given by concerned taxpayers who appreciate efforts to give them some meaningful tax relief. As such, I accept it gladly," Tower said in a telephone call from Borger to his Austin campaign headquarters.
Garry Mauro, campaign director for Senate candidate Bob Krueger, said a complaint by Tower campaigners to the Fair Campaign Practices Committee was "aimed only at obtaining publicity for a losing campaign."

The letter from Tower's campaign director, Ken Towery, protested the "pattern of conduct" of the Krueger campaign against Tower.

Mauro also said Towery and his campaign staff had "attempted to orchestrate for public exploitation" allegations by La Raza Unida candidate Luiz Diaz DeLeon that Mark Compos of the Krueger campaign had offered DeLeon nearly $2 million in inducements to get him out of the race.

OSHA Scrapping 'Nitpicking' Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Occupational Safety and Health Administration, making good on a promise made to businessmen late last year, scrapped 928 "nitpicking" safety standards Tuesday because they're more of a nuisance than a help in protecting workers.

The action means that the government's workplace safety agency no longer will dictate to millions of employers how they must select toilet seats, mount fire extinguishers and handle portable ladders. "Getting rid of nitpicking and irrelevant provisions enables all of us to concentrate on reducing or eliminating the more serious and significant workplace safety and health hazards," said Eula Bingham, head of OSHA.

The move also may help the agency shed its image as a nuisance to business because of its seeming concern with minor regulations at the expense of serious health and safety concerns.

Tuesday's action completes a process begun last December, when OSHA proposed eliminating 1,100 out of an estimated 5,000 standards. After months of public hearings and reviews, the agency whittled down its final list to 928 entries.

OSHA officials estimate the eliminated rules account for roughly 10 percent of the volumes now containing federal safety and health regulations.

The standards do not die formally until Nov. 24, but Mrs. Bingham said enforcement of the provisions would end immediately.

The standard elimination marks a major concession to the business community, which has been highly critical of OSHA since the agency was formed seven years ago.

Of all federal regulatory agencies, OSHA has been berated most by business for nitpicking and harassment.

Businesses complained particularly about OSHA inspectors vigorously enforcing trivial rules by issuing citations against employers accused of being in violation. A minor violation could involve fines of up to $1,000 on each count.

OSHA also has been a frequent target of congressional criticism and legislation to limit its regulatory powers over some 62 million workers and 5 million employers.

Mrs. Bingham said the agency was responding to "the desires of President Carter and Congress that OSHA eliminate the so-called 'nuisance' standards and reduce and simplify existing government regulations."

She said the agency also is continuing to review all of its rules as part of a larger plan for a total revision to shorten and modernize the standards and make them more effective.

Agency officials said they could not give a precise figure on how many OSHA regulations exist. But they said if the volumes were stacked on top of each other, they would form a pile several feet high.

Tuesday's announcement dovetailed with the unveiling of Carter's new anti-inflation program Tuesday night. One plank in the program was expected to be the elimination of unnecessary federal regulations that add to inflation because they are costly to implement.

OSHA officials said Tuesday that the defunct rules would produce savings for employers, but had no estimate of how much money could be saved.

The agency said the eliminated provisions include 607 general industry standards and 321 special standards covering barrelmaking, bakery equipment and laundry machinery and operations. Many of the eliminated standards were adopted 30 or 40 years ago and long ago became meaningless because of new technology.

For instance, many bakery standards refer to coal-fired ovens while most bakeries now use oil or gas ovens.

In addition to eliminating rules, Mrs. Bingham said her agency has completed work on consolidating into a single volume all rules covering the construction industry. Previously, rules for that industry were scattered throughout several volumes.

Among the eliminated regulations are:

—Requirements that toilet seats be of a

U-shape design and of a height of "not less than 12 inches nor more than 16 inches above the floor."

—Pages of rules and descriptions covering the design, use and understanding of portable wooden ladders. Among the observations contained in this section is one that says, "Black streaks in Western Hemlock shall not be considered as an irregularity."

—Rules detailing at what height fire extinguishers must be mounted.

—Rules dictating color codes for warning signs, describing insulating gloves and the use of ice with drinking water.

The agency said the rules eliminated were either unnecessary details, already covered by other standards, obsolete or covered by other federal agencies.

Couple Skips Dinner With Son To 'Fool Around' On Car Trip

MOUNT IDA, Ark. (AP) — Some parents get a bit nervous when the children are late for dinner, but Ernest Marotte Jr. sparked a five-state search for his missing parents when they didn't show up at a restaurant.

It seems Ernest and Teresa Marotte, both 84, "were just fooling around," touring southwest Arkansas and making friends.

"We found this place and found a helluva wonderful bunch of people," the elder Marotte said Tuesday. "You might have thought that we were relatives."

Marotte and his wife were the target of a search that began Saturday after they contacted their son for directions to a restaurant.

The younger Marotte later called the restaurant and learned that his parents never arrived. He became concerned and contacted authorities.

Meanwhile, the elderly Marottes were driving to Nashville, Ark., which is about 60 miles southwest of Hot Springs. They spent Saturday night there and drove to Mount Ida on Sunday.

"We were just fooling around and having a good time. We just made them think a little bit," said the elder Marotte. He said that he and his wife weren't worried.

They ran out of money in Mount Ida on Monday, Marotte said.

"I tried to sell a friend my spare tire to get money for food and lodging, but the sheriff (Carl L. Rae) put us up, gave us money for something to eat and took me down to the telegraph office," he said. Marotte said that he wired his bank in Chicago for money.

Marotte, a former life insurance company official, retired in Chicago years ago and moved to Miami with his wife. The couple moved to Hot Springs Village six weeks ago.

Marotte said that he and his wife left their medicine at home when they embarked on their sojourn and would check into a hospital for a couple of days. Marotte takes medicine for a heart condition.

"I wasn't concerned, and my dear wife wasn't concerned," he said Tuesday.

"Everything's working out," the son said after learning that his parents were all right.

Atlanta To Restore Famed Cyclorama

CYCLORAMA BATTLE SITE — A section of the huge cylindrical painting of the Civil War siege of Atlanta is the center of controversy on how to reverse the effects of its half century of neglect. Atlanta Parks Commissioner Ted Mastroianni said a $7.3-million project to repair the building and the painting, located in Atlanta, may begin in about six weeks. The Cyclorama's restoration is needed for cracks, tears, mold and watermarks in the painting. (AP Laserphoto)

ATLANTA (AP) — At the Cyclorama, a huge cylindrical painting of the battle that began the Civil War siege of Atlanta, the fight still rages, both inside and out. To the echo of gunfire, shouts and bugle calls, and a stirring narration by actor Victor Jory, soldiers tumble dying onto Georgia clay. Meanwhile, city officials say a decade of skirmishing over how to reverse the effects of a half-century of neglect is nearly over. A financial package to cover the $7.3 million cost of repairing the painting and the building around it could be tied together within six weeks, Atlanta Parks Commissioner Ted Mastroianni said in an interview. With luck, work could begin by the end of this year. Critics have questioned the city's commitment to saving the nine-ton canvas, which has developed cracks, tears, mold and watermarks in recent years. Georgia Secretary of State Ben Fortson, a Civil War buff, last month renewed a suggestion that the display be moved to Stone Mountain Memorial Park, a state-run recreation area 20 miles east of Atlanta. "They're going to let it rot," Fortson said. "That's what they want to do. I hate to say it, but there are too many people who want to see it fall to pieces." Mastroianni said Mayor Maynard Jackson's administration showed its commitment to the Cyclorama by proposing a $1.5 million bond issue in 1975 — turned down by voters — and by spending $40,000 in 1976 to fix the leaky roof that was causing the worst damage. "I think it's a very emotional issue," Mastroianni said. "There is no racial issue. Some people may think it is. But it's not." Atlanta's population is now about half black and half white. Jackson, elected in 1974, is the city's first black mayor. A team of artists produced the canvas in Milwaukee in 18 months, beginning in 1885. For five years, it was in a traveling show. It was given to the city of Atlanta in 1898, first housed permanently in a wooden building in 1921, and moved in the mid-1930s to its present home, built under the Work Projects Administration. The WPA also paid for the addition of a third dimension. Plaster of Paris figures and authentic rails set on real clay extend the action in from the painting toward the viewer. Visitors to the Cyclorama — more than 200,000 in 1977 — stand on a raised platform inside the painting as lights feature the portion of the scene being described in Jory's narration. The attraction will stay open — and the city will continue to charge $2 for admission — during the 2 1/2 years that conservator Gustav Berger of New York City expects to work on restoring the painting, Mastroianni said. "He would have to put a backing on the canvas. He would have to wash the painting off, not with a scrub brush, but inch-by-inch," Mastroianni said. Then, where paint has flaked off, the color must be copied exactly and new paint applied within the original lines. Mastroianni said Berger told the city the painting would suffer permanent damage if moved, and must be treated where it hangs as a new building is constructed around it. A state appropriation of $1.5 million is the basis of the financial package. Another $800,000 is available in the city parks budget. The city hopes to issue $1 million in general obligation bonds and $2.5 million in revenue bonds based on the Cyclorama's income. And an anonymous donor has promised to support Berger's work, which could cost about $2 million.

Guilty Plea By Westinghouse Rejected By Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A guilty plea by the Westinghouse Electric Corp. in connection with a bribe to a foreign official was rejected Tuesday by a federal judge who was angered at the government's refusal to reveal publicly the names of those involved in the case.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker refused to accept a negotiated plea that called for the company to plead guilty to 30 counts of filing false statements with the government and pay $300,000 in fines.

The agreement provided that names of Westinghouse employees involved, the foreign official who received the money and the country where the payoff occurred would be withheld, and that no criminal charges would be brought against any individuals.

"I will not accept it," Parker told government and Westinghouse lawyers. "Gentlemen, I will leave you to other alternatives."

The Justice Department said lawyers were examining their options — to drop the case, move for a trial or disclose the information about the foreign country and official involved.

The case involves a $322,000 payoff made between 1974 and 1977 in connection with unspecified contracts worth more than $30 million.

The proposed settlement was presented to Parker on Monday, but he withheld a decision until he could examine a sealed document explaining the government's reasons for concealing the identities of the principals.

Assistant Attorney General D. Jeffrey Hirschberg said it was "in the interest of the United States" to withhold the information.

Terrence Adamson, chief spokesman for the Justice Department, said the decision was based on foreign policy considerations in which other U.S. agencies participated.

B METRO
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Wednesday, Oct. 25, 1978

Adamson said such decisions are made on a case-by-case basis and that the decision not to disclose the information in this case was made at the Justice Department's initiative.

Robert Pugliese, general counsel for Westinghouse, said the next move was up to the Justice Department. "We have to wait for events," he said.

Earlier this spring, two other corporations involved in foreign payoffs pleaded guilty to charges of wire fraud and currency transaction violations and paid substantial fines. In both those cases — involving Control Data Corp. of Minneapolis and Williams Cos. of Tulsa, Okla. — the government also withheld the identities of the foreign countries and the foreign officials that received the payoffs.

During Tuesday's brief proceedings in court, Parker asked attorneys on both sides why the names of the Westinghouse employees should be withheld.

Vincent Fuller, a lawyer for Westinghouse, said the district manager for Westinghouse who gave the money had voluntarily come forward to report it to company officials. The individual has been transferred to other duties but is still with Westinghouse.

A second employee involved in the bribe, a foreign national, has been fired, the company said.

Hirschberg said other officials at Westinghouse knew of the bribes but that the information did not reach "the executive suite" at the company.

Hirschberg said the payoffs involving Westinghouse were "isolated" and were the only ones the government knew about that involved financing by the United States.

Lubbock Transit Projects Approved

AUSTIN — Two public transportation projects in Lubbock were approved for funding Monday by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission.

One project involves the purchase of 39, 45-passenger — diesel-powered "advanced design" buses at an estimated cost of $1,479,000.

The state will contribute $192,270 of that cost, with $1,183,200 being from federal grant monies and $103,530 from local funds.

Also approved for state funding was the city's proposed purchase of two wheel chair lift-equipped vans, one maintenance and four support vehicles; a "management information system;" fareboxes, two-way radio communications, maintenance and office tools and equipment; six bus stop shelters, 50 benches, 100 information signs and two downtown information booths; appraisal, land purchase, architectural and engineering services, and facility renovation and improvements.

State funding of the second project totals $241,521, federal, $1,486,28, and local, $130,050 — a total estimated cost of $1,857,857.

The two projects still are subject to approval by the U.S. Department of Transportation.

I subscribe to a lot of fiction, but none that I enjoy more than a publication called "W".

"W" chronicles the beautiful people who eat food I can't pronounce, have houses in places I can't find on the map, and who are so rich they were born tan.

Once a year they devote an issue to what is "in" and what is "out." This is just gonna make your day.

"Out" this year are jogging and rafting. "In" are helicopter skiing in the Bugaboos, sculling, and riding to the hounds.

Private planes and corporate jets are "out" and the Concorde and balloons are definitely "in."

Washington is "out" and so are the Carters. But then so are beef, dinners for more than 10, Sandy (the dog in the Broadway musical "Annie"), ultra-suede and Princess Grace. (Lord, a week without news of Princess Grace could throw me into withdrawal.)

Robert Redford is "in" and so are the First National Bank of Boston, homemade soups, Walter Cronkite, cowboy belts, Bora Bora and tap dancing for exercising.

My husband was reading over the lists when he said, "Listen to this. Guess what's 'in' for men? Skinny neckties, white shirts, trouser cuffs, white boxer shorts and black cotton socks."

"Make your point."

"The point is they're putting a stamp of approval on my entire closet."

"That's tricky when you consider nothing new has been added or subtracted from your closet for the last 20 years. Do they say anything about white dusters and goggles to drive you car in?"

"Don't be testy. If your wardrobe is an 'outie,' I'll have to carry you through the season on my impeccable taste. Besides, if I've told you once, I've told you a dozen times, hang onto your clothes long enough and they come back into style. Listen to this, you know that macho at the school who turns up his jacket collars and pushes up his sleeves? Well, he's OUT! And so is the weirdo with epaulettes on all his tight shirts! By the way, you don't suppose all this is a put-on, do you?"

I grabbed the paper out of his hands. "Bite your tongue! I mean when a publication prints that raw fish is 'out' and pasta is 'in,' you wanta argue with them?"

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is a senior in college. During his last year of high school he was advised by a doctor to have polyps removed from his nose. Another doctor advised us to use antihistamines because it was an allergy problem. We did this for years but nothing changed.

Do you think we should take the first doctor's advice and have the surgery to remove the polyps? My son has always talked as though someone were pinching his nose, and he doesn't breathe well. In today's business world it is important for a young man to put his best foot forward to get a good job. We would appreciate your thoughts on this. Another thing, he still has his tonsils, and no one has told us they should be removed. He has never had a cold. — Mrs. G.P.

Nasal polyps are grape-like clusters that appear on the mucous membranes of the nose. Another term for them is "mucous polyps." That indicates the chief cause, failure of the nasal mucous to drain properly. An allergy which creates a chronic swelling of membranes can, by obstructing the air passages, lead polyp growth. This was the second doctor's thinking when he suggested the conservative approach. Antihistamines may help shrink the membranes and assist breathing.

Since this has not helped, and since your son does have considerable trouble with his voice and breathing, it is probable time to have the polyps removed. They will not go away, and may grow worse. The surgery is not extensive, and can sometimes be done in the doctor's office. Polyps are seldom malignant, but this cannot be ruled out without a biopsy. It should ease your mind about that. I doubt that his tonsils are a source of this problem.

Nasal polyps are miserable affairs and can literally handicap a young man. Many who have them removed in later life wish they had done so earlier and saved themselves the troubles in earlier life.

A further word: the possibility of a deviated septum (a bend in the partition between the two nostrils) should be investigated. This can occur from a slight childhood injury or have been present at birth. This frequently contributes to nasal polyps because of the obstruction it causes. The polyp surgery may have to be repeated. Polyps tend to grow back unless the allergy or whatever causes them is treated successfully.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A year ago I had my tubes tied. Now I want to exercise to flatten my abdomen. I lie on the floor and raise my legs. Will this exercise or any, for that matter, yank the ligation loose? — Anon.

Scar tissue is tougher than original tissue so there is no danger of "pulling anything loose." The exercise should be great for your tummy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 71, and my legs swell with water. The doctor gave me water pills. Everything else is OK. Should I cut down on my water intake while on the water pills? What about my diet? — C.B.

In normal circumstances there is no need to reduce water intake when using the diuretics (water pills). The effect of the pills is to increase kidney activity, and that is sufficient to remove normal liquid intake. The only diet restriction would involve sodium (salt).

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's booklet, explaining what sinus trouble really is and that can be done about it. For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

You can make each moment a moment to remember.

DEAR HELOISE:

A few years ago I had the misfortune of having my luggage lost. Because of this loss, I learned what to do whenever I take a trip.

As you start to pack your suitcases, prepare a duplicate list of everything in each bag along with your name, address and phone number. After each item note the value and, if possible, the approximate date of purchase. Keep the original on your person and a copy in the suitcase.

The reason for this: Once you make a claim, the company in question will send you a form to list each article lost, date purchased and value. Having this list will save you hours of work.

Let's hope that you never have your luggage stolen or lost and have to go through this. But if you do, then you are prepared! — Kitty Kitt

DEAR HELOISE:

This may or may not be an original idea, but it's one I've found to be very useful to people who like to build miniature furniture, dollhouses, etc. Instead of throwing away old nail polish bottles, clean them out good with nail polish remover, then soap and water and — presto! — you have a small bottle, complete with brush, to put those little packets of varnish and paint in.

It's a lot less messy and you can keep them indefinitely without worrying about them drying up before you've had a chance to finish the project. — Jane E. Markwood

DEAR HELOISE:

This hint will be helpful only in winter when the furnace is on, and the humidity is low.

I think all of you have experienced an electric shock when turning on an electric light, or when touching something metal.

I have found that when you rub your hands or fingers on the wall or on something made of wood, there will be no electric shock. — Grace Brandt

You are right, Grace! Same thing if you slide across the seat in your car and then touch the door handle — wow!

In this case, just touch the panel on the door and then the handle. Works wonders! — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

If someone leaves the door open and flies get in the house, just place a glass of vinegar on the table and they will go away.

Why, I don't know. — Mr. M.R.

It sure does work! I tried it last night. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

After spending several uncomfortable minutes trying to button my maternity blouse (that buttons down the back), I decided there just has to be an easier way!

Sure enough there is! I buttoned the blouse, and then sewed the blouse together down the back, leaving the two top buttons open. Do this and it will easily slip over your head.

You would think the blouse was made that way and, oh, what a relief it is not to have to be a contortionist to get my blouse buttoned.

Hope this will be of help to some other "Mother-to-be." — Love, Helen Starr

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I've had it from these women who write to complain that their husbands haven't finished the painting, won't do this and won't do that. Do they know that in the over-50 bracket, the ratio of male to female is one to nine? (That's one man to every nine women.)

I worked with dozens of widows — both grass and sod — until I could have belted those whining, bawling dames. They mourn the loss of their husbands with one breath and in the next ask, "Can you introduce me to some nice man?"

They, too, sat on their butts and drank coffee (or booze) while their men worked all day. The minute the guy stepped his foot in the house he was hit with a list of "unfinished chores."

Wake up, girls. The day of "Equal Rights" has dawned. This means equality for him as well as for you. When you accepted the status of wife you took on certain responsibilities. He is not supposed to take care of YOU. You are supposed to take care of EACH OTHER.

Recently a pretty young friend of mine yelled, "HE is going to wash just as many dishes as I do, change just as many diapers!" (Something she picked up at a luncheon with a bunch of "libbers," no doubt.)

I asked, "Are you prepared to clean the garage, wax the car, shovel the snow and paint the house — inside and out?" NO ANSWER!! — Experienced In Des Moines

Dear Iowa: You'll probably be considered a traitor to your sex for writing such a letter and I'll be called worse for publishing it, but there's a lot of truth in what you say and I'm ready to take my lumps. Are you?

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my husband and I were dinner guests of his boss and Mrs. Boss.

As we left a very elegant restaurant, Mr. Boss decided to put on his coat rather than carry it. He was wearing a heavy tweed jacket and seemed to be having difficulty getting his arm through the sleeve of the coat. The sensible thing to do, I thought, was help. So I did.

My husband gave me a dirty look. My face must have turned purple. When we got home he really let me have it. According to him, a woman must never help a man with his coat "unless she's a servant." Right or wrong? — Dressed Down

Dear D.D.: Manners are nothing more than consideration for others. The man needed help and you offered it. In my opinion your manners are just fine.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South opened one club because he considered his hand, which contained all four aces, too good to open one notrump. The tendency of most players when holding all four aces is to add another point to their hand.

The remainder of the auction was a slam-bang affair that ended in a slam with poor possibilities. However, declarer's chances improved when the opening lead of the 10 of diamonds was successively covered by the jack, king and ace.

Declarer quickly drew two rounds of trump. He could see no losers in hearts or trump. But there was a potential loser in both diamonds and spades.

Could he use the spade suit to eliminate the diamond loser?

The answer was that if spades were to break 3-3 his fourth spade would give him a parking place for dummy's four of diamonds.

Suppose they were going to break 4-2. Then he would still be able to develop that discard provided that West held the king.

The simple play when you hold queen-jack opposite the ace is to lead the queen or jack for a finesse, but that play can do no good here. Whether or not the finesse works South is sure to lose a spade. So the winning play is to draw trumps and lead a spade from his own hand toward dummy.

If East holds the king and the suit breaks 3-3 he will still get that diamond discard. If East holds the king and the suit breaks 4-2 he is in trouble irrespective of who holds the four spades, but West does hold the king.

South leads a spade toward dummy. West ducks. South comes back to his hand with a third trump and leads another spade toward dummy. West has to rise with the king—otherwise, he would lose it and South brings the slam home.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's an idea I've been using for the past two years.

Rather than buy trick-or-treat bags, which take two hands to open at each door (and the kids usually drag them along the ground and the bottom falls out!), save plastic gallon bleach bottles.

Cut the top half off, leaving the handle and bottom half intact. Decorate orange and black.

It's very simple and no expense to the parents. — Mother of four

Listening, consumer advocates? — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

For something different, and so pretty, the next time you bake a plain white cake, mix some candy confetti into the batter before you bake it.

The cake comes out all polka-dotted, and the kids love it. — 18 and still learning

DEAR HELOISE:

I do quite a bit of sewing and have discovered a simple and easy way to wash lace, or any kind of edging, for pre-shrinking.

Just fold the lace a little shorter than the length of a knee-high nylon stocking, inserting the lace into the nylon. Put this nylon into a second nylon stocking (open end down inside), and throw into the washing machine.

This will go through the wash and dry cycle coming out neat and straight.

If not quite dry, remove the lace and place it on a flat surface to complete the drying.

The trim seldom needs pressing if washed in this manner. — Lesta Hice

China Pledges Latin American Support To Mexican President

PEKING (AP) — Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, noting that China's relations with Latin America have improved in recent years, promised his country's support for Latin American nations fighting "to protect their sovereignty and defend their national independence."

Hua, speaking at a state banquet Tuesday for Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo in the Great Hall of the People, criticized the superpowers who he said disrupt world tranquility with their expansionist efforts.

"The tomorrow that the superpowers want would be a world dominated and controlled by them," Hua said. "But the historical law of development does not depend on their will."

"We are firmly convinced that the people of the world will frustrate this golden dream of hegemony by increasing their vigilance, tightening their unity, by mutual aid and that they will persevere in the fight."

Lopez Portillo, on his fourth foreign trip since taking office Dec. 1, 1976, responded to Hua's speech by repeating Mexico's call for a new world economic order and said the path to world peace can be built only with peaceful tools.

"To keep the system of world poverty is to feed tensions and social explosiveness which benefit no one on the long run," Lopez Portillo said. "The industrialized nations cannot continue claiming raw materials for their exclusive benefit, nor unilaterally assigning themselves exclusive markets, when the political and economic conscience of the people is awakened."

He said it is urgent that a solution be found to world hunger to "establish as a universal social guarantee the right of all human beings to food." Mexico, he said, has proposed establishment of coordinated national and international food reserves to protect countries which must import food.

"The help of China in this project would naturally be considerable," the president said.

The Mexican president said rich nations must remember that they once were in the same position as the poor nations are now.

"With imagination, political will and common sense we can find those channels which support us in our demand for equality with those who now have the advantage," he said.

To further economic cooperation, developed countries must not limit their ties to other developed countries or to developing nations, he said.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

Just had to sit down and write in my assorted fiendish wishes regarding some manufacturers — here goes!

I wish that:

— makers of clothes sewed with that prickly nylon thread would have to wear them forever.

— makers of those plush all nylon, non-absorbent bathmats would have to walk barefoot on the wet, cold surface of same all day.

— makers of knit clothes and fabrics that aren't pre-shrunk would evermore have to wear theirs two sizes too small (after second guessing on how big to buy the garment, or how much material to purchase since they would be forced to do their own pre-shrinking).

— makers of automobiles with those "unsturdy" plastic grilles would have to spend all their spare time in the repair shop.

Thanks for listening — A faithful reader

DEAR HELOISE:

I have tried all the sprays, powdered bleaches, and nothing seems to remove the spots from my polyester blouses and dresses.

So I did the next best thing — I embroidered flowers and cross-stitched abstract designs over the spots.

The embroidery gave the garments an expensive custom-made look.

My entire family enjoys your column very much and look forward to it every day. Keep up the good work! — Joan Buehring

Thank you for the vote of confidence! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

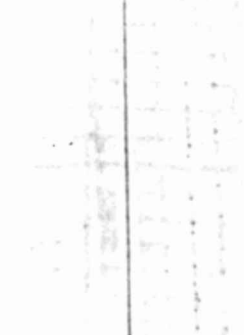

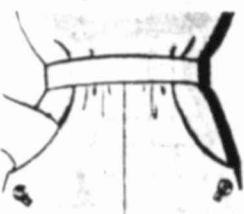

Tried something new and tasty quite by accident the other day.

I put a top crust on a pumpkin pie and was it ever good (being as I like crust so well anyhow). — L.F.

Lubbock County Youths Receive Awards

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

Two Lubbock youths were awarded the 1978 Gold Star Boy and Girl awards for Lubbock County Monday at the annual 4-H awards banquet at Koko Place. About 250 4-H youths, parents and adult leaders attended the ceremonies.

David Stuart, 17, and Lynda Maunder, 18, were selected for the county's top award for their overall achievements and participation during the year.

As a 10-year member, Stuart has held offices in his local club and county and district councils. He has attended workshops in leadership, method demonstration and officer training.

His primary project has been sheep, although he has also had projects in swine, beef, field crops, dog care and shooting sports. The Kimerley High School student is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Stuart.

Food and nutrition has been the major project for Miss Maunder, who has competed at district and state levels. The Texas freestriker has held all local club offices and has been an active county council delegate for several years. Miss Maunder, a nine-year member in the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Maunder.

Annette Parham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Parham, and Wes Burress, son of Mrs. Ronald Burress, both of Lubbock, were presented "Dunforti, I dare you" awards.

The Outstanding Junior Boy award was presented to Chris Caddell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Caddell and the Outstanding Junior Girl honor went to Diane Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hill. Both youths are students at Friendship High School.

GOP Hears More Convention Pitches

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kansas City asked the Republican Party for "Many Happy Returns" and Minneapolis-St. Paul and Dallas both said their facilities are unsurpassed in the nation as they bid Tuesday for the 1980 GOP national convention.

Closing out two days of hearings by the GOP's convention site selection committee, Dallas City Councilman Steve Bartlett said Dallas has "one of the newest and most flexible convention centers in the nation."

Dallas officials told the committee the main hall can seat 20,000 on the convention floor in a center boasting 1.5 million square feet of meeting and exhibition space.

Jack Andrus, vice president of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, said there are 25,000 hotel rooms within a 25-minute drive of the convention center.

And reflecting an appeal made earlier by New Orleans, Dallas County GOP Chairman William McKenzie said it's time the party held a convention in the old South, which had become the party's major ground of new growth before President Carter's 1976 sweep of Dixie.

Earlier Tuesday, formal presentations were made by Kansas City, scene of the 1976 GOP convention, and Minneapolis-

St. Paul, New Orleans, Detroit and Miami Beach gave their pitches Monday.

Mayor Charles Wheeler of Kansas City, where the Republicans met to nominate Gerald R. Ford for president three years ago, said his city's facilities are even better now.

"We have more hotel rooms, better transportation and improved meeting facilities," Wheeler told a special committee named to recommend the convention location.

Wheeler, a Democrat, said he was still "100 percent supportive of this effort to bring the Republican National Convention to Kansas City again."

Kansas City officials produced figures which they said came from an independent, professional survey showing that meals and lodging would be cheaper in their city than in any of the other contenders.

The survey estimated an average cost of $40.10 per day for three meals and a hotel room in Kansas City, ranging up to a top of $50.90 in New Orleans.

A Kansas City convention would be held in the Kemper Arena, which provides almost 17,000 seats, and Kansas City representatives said they could assure more than 19,000 hotel rooms.

The bid for St. Paul's Civic Center Complex is backed jointly by St. Paul, Minneapolis and Bloomington, which said they could promise the best climate in the country for an August convention with average temperatures in the mid 70s.

"The summertime climate of Minnesota cannot be matched by any other of these United States," said Vern Neppi, state Republican chairman, who made the presentation.

The St. Paul Civic Center auditorium seats 19,000 people, and officials said they could provide some 20,000 rooms within the three-city area.

After this week's hearings, the committee headed by national GOP Chairman Bill Brock will visit each of the competing cities and make recommendation to the Republican National Committee.

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 116 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am a woman 62 years of age. My health is bad and I find it very hard to stand in long lines for long periods of time. I have gone to my Social Security office three times and every time there has been a rather long line. I have had to postpone my visits until later dates when the lines are shorter, but they never seem to be. What is the problem at Social Security? Don't they have enough employees? I know they are trying to do their jobs but I am anxious to get my account settled. — D.W.

In 1975 the time required to fill out Social Security forms cost the public approximately 18 million hours. The Carter administration, in its effort to trim the frills off government paperwork has reduced this time by an astounding 40 percent. Now it takes the retirees of America around 10 million hours to complete their Social Security forms. These reductions have been achieved by gathering information less frequently, consolidating similar forms, developing short forms and reducing the amount of information being collected. Senior citizens should remember that when retirement time comes if they are physically unable to go to their Social Security office to apply for benefits, Social Security will send field representatives out to the homes so that they may apply for benefits as soon as possible. If you are unable to go to your Social Security office and apply, call them and explain. We're sure they will be happy to send a representative to your home as soon as possible.

HEARTLINE: I am going into the hospital in a few weeks. I've had Medicare for several years, but have not been in the hospital since I got it. I have filled out claim forms for doctor's office calls and cannot imagine how to fill it out for something as complicated as hospital billing. How do I go about it? — S.J.

When you receive covered services from a participating hospital, skilled nursing facility or home health agency, you do not need to make any claim for your hospital insurance benefits. These participating facilities have agreed to charge you only for services which are not covered by Medicare. These institutions or agencies make the claim and receive the Medicare payments from intermediaries, which are organizations selected by the Health Care Financing Administration to handle hospital insurance claims. You will always receive a notice when a hospital insurance payment has been made in your behalf.

HEARTLINE: Is it necessary for me to have any quarters of work under Social Security in order to be eligible for wife's benefits under my husband's Social Security account? — T.P.

No. There are no work requirements for wife's benefits. Heartline has written a very easy-to-understand book about the many facets of Social Security. To order, send $2 to Heartline's Guide to Social Security, P.O. Box 11934, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: We recently read that we could receive a VA report by mail. Can you refresh our memory as to how to get this and how much of a charge there may be. — D.B.

The VA publishes an annual report — a 355-page publication on the nation's nearly 30 million veterans and how the agency serves them. This report can be obtained by sending $5.50 to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

HEARTLINE: What are the legalities concerning handwritten wills? Are they considered valid?

A Holographic or handwritten will's validity depends on the state in which you live. Most states do recognize these wills as long as there are at least two, sometimes three, witnesses. The will must also be dated and signed. There must also be initials of the writer of the will on each page.

Foreign Aid Official Raps Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior U.S. foreign aid official took the unusual step Tuesday of criticizing the Carter administration for what he said was its inability to devise a comprehensive assistance policy for middle income countries.

Abelardo Valdez, the Agency of International Development's assistant administrator for Latin America and the Caribbean, assailed the growing tendency to direct U.S. assistance only to the poorest developing countries of the world.

"In my personal view, such a situation is reason for great concern because it is causing the United States to lose its means of relating to the major development problems of a very important part of the Third World and almost all of our nearest neighbors," Valdez said.

His remarks came in a speech prepared for delivery to the Center of International Affairs at Harvard University.

Valdez noted that many middle income countries are in Latin America, where assistance levels have been dramatically reduced while the administration tries to formulate new approaches for dealing with such countries.

He said that AID financing in Latin America has fallen from $530 million in 1967 to $170 million in 1977.

Moreover, Valdez said, Latin American repayments on old U.S. loans exceeded by $70 million new U.S. loans to the hemisphere last year.

"If current trends are not reversed, the U.S. bilateral aid program will be draining resources out of Latin America and the Caribbean throughout the coming decade," he said.

Thus, Valdez added, the unresolved debate on the role of foreign assistance in middle income countries "is currently being resolved on a de facto basis in favor of those who would drastically reduce such assistance."

He said this situation is "especially undesirable" because, without adequate support, many hemispheric countries which are experimenting with progressive policies "could easily slip back into older style political and economic forms."

City, County To Get Refund On Mixed Drink Tax Take

The City of Lubbock will receive $54,938 and Lubbock County will be refunded $56,496 in mixed drink taxes this quarter.

The city's taxable mixed drink revenue for July, August and September totaled $366,255 and the county's totaled $376,644.

Texas counties and cities get 15 percent of the tax collected within their boundaries, with the remainder going into the state general fund. The tax, which is collected by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission, represents 10 percent of all gross receipts from the sale of mixed drinks.

Whitney, in Hill County, received the smallest rebate this quarter, $7.54, while Houston netted the largest check, $646,178.

Gross receipts taxes on mixed drinks this quarter earned the state $16.7 million, which equals the amount collected during the second quarter, according to the state comptroller's office.

Checks totaling $4.8 million have been mailed to 345 cities and 205 counties as their share of the tax, the office said.

Other South Plains cities that will receive rebates are Andrews, $739; Dimmitt, $171; Nazareth, $72; Hereford, $784; Odessa, $23,171; Plainview, $3,690; Memphis, $201; Levelland, $645; Littlefield, $728; Slaton, $130; Snyder, $1,530, and Brownfield, $1,515.

Parks Board Relocates Softball Complex

A 12-diamond softball complex should be constructed in the Yellowhouse Canyon Park, the city Parks and Recreation Board decided Tuesday.

The three quadrangles, each containing four softball diamonds, would be located on 75 acres of city-owned land in the park. The construction is expected to

Fire Damages City Junior High School

An electrical spark apparently touched off a fire causing more than $1,000 damage to Matthews Junior High School Tuesday.

Fire officials said a screwdriver left in the breaker switch of the school's heating and air conditioning system apparently started the fire.

Damage was limited to the rooftop and air conditioning system.

cost $220,000 which will come from federal revenue sharing monies.

The southernmost quadrangle would be constructed first and Parks and Recreation Director John Alford said he would like to dedicate the first facility by July 28, 1979, when a state softball tournament is to be held in Lubbock.

The softball complex originally was to be located in a linear park in Southwest Lubbock. However, the land became too expensive for the city to purchase.

The board also accepted under the plays lakes ordinance a park site north of Loop 289 and east of Albany Avenue. Alford said the lake contains the "only lake between Quaker Avenue, Frankford Avenue and Fourth Street."

The board voted to recommend that the city staff look into the possibility of acquiring an adjacent tract of land which is a candidate for commercial zoning.

A triangular tract located at 13th Street and Toledo Avenue should be accepted and maintained by the city, board members decided Tuesday.

Don Harris, who lives near the triangle, asked the board two months ago to adopt the land. However, board members requested a study of all such triangles in the city so a city policy on the segments can be formulated.

Tuesday the board got that study which recommends that "developers or land owners adjacent to the triangles be responsible for the maintenance."

That recommendation was adopted, as was a motion to consider all similar triangles on a case-by-case basis for acceptance by the city.

Currently the city owns and maintains six such triangles, while six others are privately owned. Alford predicted two of those tracts may be given to the city for maintenance.

In other action Tuesday, board members rejected a request to allow control-line model airplanes to be flown in K.N. Clapp Park. Currently, the planes only can be flown on a designated site near Reese Air Force Base.

Odessa Civic Leader Honored

ODESSA (Special) — More than 500 Odessans honored longtime civic leader A.R. "Happy" Dyer as the city's outstanding citizen during Tuesday night's 53rd annual chamber of commerce banquet at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

Bill Elms, last year's recipient, praised Dyer for "his quiet support of Odessa and its citizens."

Dyer, chairman of the board of Odessa Savings and Loan Association, was active in Odessa's drive to secure the Regional Academic Health Center of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine for the city.

He was a founding board member of Odessa College and has been a trustee of the Ector County Independent School District, the Medical Center hospital and the YMCA.

Dyer also has served as a deacon and elder at the First Baptist Church and has been a supporter of the Odessa Boys Club, United Way and the Civic Concert Association.

In other banquet activities, the chamber awarded its first annual "Business Excellence Award" to the Eckel Manufacturing Co. Emory Eckel, chief executive of the company, accepted a gold-on-white banner commending his firm for "excellence in business expansion and community involvement."

Short Confused On Property Tax, Robbins Says

Democratic state senate candidate E.L. Short in effect voted to abolish the state property tax in 1974, a tax he has criticized opponent Joe Robbins for wanting to eliminate, Robbins said Tuesday.

During the 1974 constitutional convention, state Reps. Evans and Peveto proposed a constitutional provision to prohibit the 10-cent state property tax which funds construction, at 17 state colleges and universities, Robbins said.

The motion to abolish the tax was defeated on a motion to table, Robbins said, "with my opponent voting against the motion — in effect, thereby voting for abolishing the state property tax — the exact same issue he is now criticizing me for supporting."

Short opposed the abolition of the dediated tax during a Monday afternoon forum, saying it would make Texas Tech University a "second-rate university."

However, Robbins argued Tuesday the tax is "unquestionably unconstitutional since the administration of the state tax is inequitable."

A suit challenging the constitutionality of the tax is pending before an Austin district court, "waiting for the next session of the legislature to act."

"The suggestion that the legislature not abolish the fund and set up a new method of financing construction at our universities is irresponsible and would result in the court abolishing the fund which would leave the 17 state universities — including Texas Tech — without construction funds," Robbins said.

In addition to favoring the abolition of the property tax and dedicating a new source of revenue to the "university construction tax fund," Robbins said, he wants to expand the use of the fund to include repairs and rehabilitation of present college facilities.

"If my opponent is so vitally interested in the financing of our institutions of higher learning, I again challenge him to explain his vote to prevent Tech and other state universities from participating in the Permanent University Fund (which funds the University of Texas at Austin and Texas A&M) — to explain his votes that have placed Texas in the position of being fifth among the 50 states in per-capita indebtedness (despite our pay-as-you-go constitution) by pledging tuition money to pay off revenue bonds instead of defraying educational costs," Robbins concluded.

Berrellez Court Action Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The perjury prosecution of corporation executive Robert Berrellez came to an abrupt halt Tuesday as a federal judge gave the government six days to decide what it wants most, a trial or the protection of CIA secrets.

U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. dismissed the jury of four men and eight women and gave federal prosecutors until next Monday to decide whether to go forward with the case.

Berrellez, a 58-year old public affairs officer and expert on Latin America for the International Telephone & Telegraph Co. is accused of lying to a Senate panel about attempts by ITT and the CIA to stop Marxist Salvador Allende from becoming president of Chile in 1970.

The government is charging that the corporation and the spy agency conspired to give false testimony about their activities in Chile.

The Berrellez case is one of a series in which the government has been faced with the delicate choice of going ahead with a prosecution while running the risk of disclosing secrets of intelligence gathering and covert activities.

On Monday, for example, the Justice Department won permission to remove three overt acts from the conspiracy count of its charges against Berrellez.

One involved a meeting between an unindicted conspirator in the case and Hernan Cubillos, a former Chilean newspaper executive who is now Chile's foreign minister.

Earlier the government excised a number of the counts in a perjury charge against another ITT executive, also on grounds that presenting public testimony about them would expose national security secrets.

Last year a public perjury trial of former CIA Director Richard Helms was avoided when he was permitted to plead no contest to a reduced charge of failing to tell the whole truth to a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee investigating the conduct of U.S. multinational corporations.

Again the case revolved around testimony about the CIA, ITT and the Chilean elections. Helms was subsequently fined $2,000. A two-year prison term was suspended.

In another separate but related development on Tuesday, U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker refused for the second time to accept a Justice Department plea bargaining agreement with the Westinghouse Electric Corp. to settle an overseas bribery charge without identifying the country or official allegedly bribed.

Judge Parker acted after reviewing secret information on the case. Westinghouse had agreed to plead guilty and pay a $300,000 fine on 30 counts of making false statements to U.S. agencies that financed construction projects in the unidentified country.

Chilean Judge To Consider Extradition

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Former secret police chief Gen. Juan Manuel Contreras, whom the United States wants to extradite and put on trial for murder, was questioned Tuesday by the president of the Chilean Supreme Court.

Contreras, 49, was to be questioned by Chief Justice Israel Borquez. The judge is to determine the validity of U.S. evidence submitted to him that Contreras ordered the 1976 bombing-murder in Washington of exiled socialist Orlando Letelier and an American co-worker, Ronni Moffit.

Contreras is the last of three Chileans indicted by a Washington grand jury to be questioned by Borquez. Col. Pedro Espinoza and Capt. Armando Fernandez Larros were questioned last week.

If Borquez rules the evidence sent here by the U.S. Justice Department is sufficient to justify the trial of the three army men, the entire court will then decide whether to extradite them or try them here.

Contreras served as head of the Chilean security unit known as the DINA. The U.S. indictment says Contreras gave the order to Espinoza for assassination of Letelier, a former diplomat and Cabinet minister in the government of the late Salvador Allende.

Espinoza allegedly passed the order to agents Fernandez and Michael Townley, an expatriate American who allegedly worked for the DINA. Townley was expelled from Chile in March at the request of the United States, and then cooperated with the Justice Department in a plea bargaining arrangement. He admitted making a remote control bomb and placing it under Letelier's car, with the help of a group of Cuban exiles.

The United States earlier lost its legal effort to have the hearings declared open and for its Chilean lawyer, Alfredo Eteberry, to have the right to cross-examine the accused men. The U.S. evidence to Borquez reportedly contains information that could be damaging to the government of Gen. Augusto Pinochet.

Although the U.S. Justice Department said the trial will begin in Washington in January, Borquez is not expected to complete his determination on the evidence before February.

It could be several months after that before the court rules on extradition, court sources said.

Vance Returns From Talks

LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance made a brief stop in London Tuesday and then headed home after two days of nuclear arms talks with Soviet leaders, discussions American officials said failed to resolve all the obstacles to a new strategic arms limitation treaty.

Despite the failure to complete work on a SALT pact, Vance said the talks had been "useful and constructive," and, "I will be reporting to the president as soon as I return."

"The agreement which we are seeking must and will be fair and equitable, protect the vital interests of both countries and make an enduring contribution to the stability of the world."

During a one-hour refueling stop in London, Vance met with British Foreign Secretary David Owen. The two were understood to have discussed the latest developments in Rhodesia and prospects for a conference of all parties involved in the Rhodesian conflict.

A senior American official on Vance's flight from Moscow said Soviet and U.S. negotiators touched on the subject of President Carter's decision to go ahead with production of a nuclear artillery shell and missile warheads that can be converted to a neutron weapon.

The neutron weapon is a small warhead that produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than one-tenth as much explosive power, heat and fallout. This means the warhead can kill people while causing little damage to buildings.

The Soviets have been critical of Carter's decision to keep open the option of full production of the neutron weapons.

A leading commentator for the Soviet news agency Tass said that during the latest round of SALT talks the two sides "were brought closer in some questions."

"The sides discussed a relatively small number of outstanding specific matters so as to find mutually acceptable solutions," the commentary said. "On the basis of the data we have, it can be said that the positions were brought closer in some questions, though, as is known, certain differences remain in the approach to some matters."

The commentary did not spell out what the specific differences were.

The senior American official said it was still possible that a SALT agreement could be signed by the end of the year.

The main unresolved issues facing the negotiators when the talks began were:

- *The kind of limitations to be imposed on the American cruise missile.
- *Details of restricting the types and sizes of new U.S. and Soviet missiles during the life of the treaty, which would expire in 1985.
- *The timing of retiring about 250 Soviet bombers and missiles to reach the tentative ceiling of 2,250.
- *Details of the way the Soviets will agree to limit deployment and refueling of their backfire bomber.

Court Clears Vail Gondola Damages Suits

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Supreme Court has cleared the way for Vail Associates Inc. to seek damages from two European companies in connection with a 1976 gondola crash that killed four persons and injured eight others at the Vail ski resort.

Eleven lawsuits seeking several million dollars in damages have been filed since the accident, eight of them in federal court in Denver. Vail Associates had asked for permission to force the two firms to contribute to claims that already have been settled.

The firms named in the ruling are Bell Maschinenfabrik, A.G., a Swiss corporation that designed, manufactured and sold the gondola system to Vail, and St. Egdyder Stahl and Drathwerke, the Austrian company that manufactured and sold the gondola's track cable.

The ruling stems from a March 28, 1976, accident in which the track cable on Vail's Lionshead Gondola frayed, causing one of the six-passenger cars to slide backwards, striking the car immediately behind it.

Both cars plummeted to the ground, one of them landing upside down.

Since then, Vail Associates removed the other gondola at the ski resort and has repaired and renovated the Lionshead system, adding a number of new emergency devices.

Monday's ruling stemmed from a request by Chief Judge Fred Winner of U.S. District Court in Denver, who had asked the state Supreme Court to decide whether Vail could bring the European firms into the litigations.

Vail Associates had applied for that permission under the Uniform Contribution Among Tortfeasors Act, which became effective July 1, 1977. The original statute had provided the law would apply to "events" that occurred on or after that date.

But the Colorado Supreme Court Monday interpreted the word "event" to mean, in this case, the settlement of the suits, not the accident itself or the filing of those suits. Since the settlements had taken place after July 1, 1977, the court ruled, the act was applicable.

POOL HEARING SET

AUSTIN (Special) — The Texas Health Facilities Commission has set an application by Big Spring State Hospital for construction of a swimming pool at the hospital's campus for the use of patients for its Nov. 2 voting session. The request is one of a number of matters set for consideration at the meeting.

Search For Police Chief Halted

YAZOO CITY, Miss. (AP) — Police Chief David Overton, reported missing last week, apparently decided "it wasn't worth staying" in Yazoo City and headed to Texas, authorities said Tuesday.

"At this point we are discontinuing the search and until he calls us and notifies us, we'll just consider him as a missing person," said Mayor Charles Fulgham.

Overton, 42, disappeared after walking out of Fulgham's office in this central Mississippi town of 12,200 last Wednesday. He said he was going to a federal court hearing in Vicksburg, about 35 miles to the southwest, but he didn't show up.

On Sunday, his patrol car was found 200 miles away in Shreveport, La., near a bus station. It contained his uniform hat and coat, police records, an unopened bottle of whisky and the keys to the car, but no clues to his whereabouts, officers say.

Deputy Chief Doyle Jones, who has worked with Overton since 1971, said information from Fort Worth, Texas, showed "Chief Overton had called an old Navy buddy Thursday night and was invited for dinner on Friday. He called on Friday and said he would not be able to make it, saying something about taking care of some business."

Jones said there was nothing more his office could do.

"Hopefully, he'll call us and let us know something — the reason for his actions if nothing else," Jones said.

Jones said that after being told her husband had contacted a friend, Faye Overton "said she was glad to know that he's alive and that was all that really mattered."

Friends describe Overton as a quiet man who was devoted to his wife and two children, a 14-year-old daughter and a 9-year-old son.

Fulgham said he believed Overton "just decided it wasn't worth staying and that he was going to get out. I kind of feel like if the burden was too heavy, he should have resigned, not run away."

Family Traveling By Bicycle Aided Here

By CARRIE LINE CURTIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The journey of a thousand of miles begins with but a single step...

And so began the journey of Mrs. Lucille Allen, her three children and a dog from Hood River, Ore., back to their home town of Fulton, Mo.

Mrs. Allen said her husband abandoned the family in June in Oregon and that the next month her car was stolen.

So the family, including sons Homer, 15, and Scott, 14, daughter, Tina, 8, and Sunshine, part Daschund and part Doberman Pinscher, began their homeward trek by bicycle.

Mrs. Allen said the only problems the family has had since departing Oregon in September has been some worn out bearings and bent rims, with an occasional flat tire thrown in. She added that the bikes are still on their original tires.

The family has traveled as many as 40 miles in a day. Sunshine rides in a basket on the front of Mrs. Allen's bicycle.

The family interrupts the journey occasionally while Mrs. Allen earns money and the children attend school. It stopped recently in Hobbs, then went on to Brownfield, where a young man allowed them to stay in a workroom out of the cold weather that arrived with them Sunday.

Monday the young man brought the family by car to Lubbock, where it is staying at the Salvation Army dormitory.

Mrs. Allen said she has not been scared during the bicycle trek. "God, the Man upstairs, is watching over me," she says.

She added, "We've met some really nice people along the way. People have given us some rides, others have given us some money so we won't be picked up for vagrancy. Other people have stopped along the highway to see if we're all right or if we need help. Most people have waved or honked at us as they drive by."

The former Missouri resident said the family has avoided the Interstate highway system, preferring to avoid heavy traffic.

And now, it appears, they'll avoid traffic altogether.

Capt. Phil Murphy, commanding officer of the Lubbock Salvation Army, has made arrangements for the family to go back to Missouri by bus from Lubbock.

Mrs. Allen said she had worked at a state mental institution in Fulton and at shoe factories in that area. She feels sure she can obtain employment once she gets back there.

The Lubbock Salvation Army is one of 34 agencies funded by the United Way.

EPA Gets 'Fleeced' By Sen. Proxmire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire gave his monthly "Golden Fleece Award" to the Environmental Protection Agency Tuesday for financing a study showing that cow-manure runoff on farms can pollute nearby streams and ponds.

EPA spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the study was designed to find a way to prevent runoff, not prove its already obvious results.

The spokesman said the agency is looking for a way to permit farmers to store manure safely and economically over the winter, then spread it over fields in the spring when it would be absorbed with no runoff.

The study cited by Proxmire, D-Wis., was a $67,214, two-year effort by the University of Vermont. The EPA provided $38,174 and the university the remaining $29,040.

HOMEWARD BOUND — The 2,300 miles between Hood River, Ore., and Lubbock, has not deterred Mrs. Lucille Allen and her family from returning to their hometown of Fulton, Mo. The family, consisting of 15-year-old Homer, left; Mrs. Allen, family pet Sunshine, 14-year-old Scott, and 8-year-old Lisa, are returning to Missouri after the head of the family abandoned them in June and the family car was stolen in July. The family began the bicycle trek in September. While in Lubbock they have been aided by the Lubbock Salvation Army, which has made arrangements for the family to travel by bus. TOWERS FALLING DOWN — Neighborhood children play in front of the artistic Watts Towers in southeastern Los Angeles. The sculptures, built in 1931 by Simon Rodia, an Italian immigrant, resemble petrified Christmas trees, with ornaments of broken bottles, dishes, tiles and seashells frozen in concrete and chickenwire branches. Over the years the elements have taken their toll and the towers are slowly breaking apart. (AP Laserphoto)

Disputes Halt Repair Efforts On Creaky L.A. Landmark Towers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Like crochety Venuses — old, gray and losing their looks — the Watts Towers of southeastern Los Angeles are fighting to stand up. The internationally-famed towers have crumbled as officials argue about saving them. At least one engineer says the storm-struck, 100-foot structures are in danger of collapse.

Women working to save the aging beauties say they have been excluded from meetings to discuss repairs. Architect Harriet Watson of the privately funded Committee for Simon Rodia's Towers says she was told by repair contractor Ralph Vaughn there would be "no girls on this job."

Work was delayed for weeks in a dispute over repair methods, and now City Controller Ira Reiner says he will not sign any more checks to pay the contractor. The city used $15,000 in federal money to pay Vaughn, when money from a $207,000 state grant should have been used, Reiner says.

The 1931 sculptures resemble petrified Christmas trees whose ornaments of broken bottles, dishes, tiles and seashells are frozen in concrete and chickenwire branches. They were built over 33 years by Rodia, an Italian immigrant, as backyard monuments to America, his deceased wife and things he described as "good good."

"You have to be good good or bad bad to be remembered," said Rodia, a tile-setter who died in 1965 at the age of 86.

Rodia built without welds, rivets or bolts to strengthen the towers' steel joints, using bailing wire to reinforce the frame. But the frame's concrete casing has cracked with rain and the rumblings of earthquakes and nearby trains.

The state-owned sculpture has been closed to the public since March, when concrete chunks began falling like meteors.

"Hundreds of feet of cracks have appeared all over the towers," says Jean Morgan, a Rodia committee spokeswoman. "Deterioration prior to last winter's great rains was already pronounced, but the rains have brought the towers into a condition of imminent peril."

Although the state provided $207,000 last spring to preserve the towers, repairs have been delayed by arguments between officials and committee members.

Vaughn says he would coat the sculpture with a clear silicone substance to seal the cement against water. Moisture seeping through the cement casing has caused the sculpture's metal framework to rust and expand, resulting in cracks of up to 100 feet, he says.

But committee members, notably Norman Goldstone, claim the silicone coating will give the towers a shiny "plastic" appearance.

"It's a shame to spend $200,000 for artificial looking towers that are no longer art," Goldstone says, adding that a huge umbrella should be constructed instead.

Mrs. Morgan and other committee members say the city had neglected the towers since taking over the sculpture in 1976. She adds that the city paid "not one penny" to care for the landmark structures, which the committee had purchased and saved from demolition in 1959.

Rodia had deeded his property to neighbors before leaving Los Angeles to live in the Northern California community of Martinez.

Manipulation Of Nursing Homes Exposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fast-growing, highly profitable chains of nursing homes are engaged in real estate speculation at the expense of elderly Americans and taxpayers, Federal Trade Commissioner Elizabeth Hanford Dole said Tuesday.

Mrs. Dole disclosed findings of a two-year-long FTC investigation of the nursing home industry in a speech in South Bend, Ind. The text was released by the FTC in Washington.

"Most of us do not think of nursing homes in terms of 'chains' like hotel chains — but that's where the action is these days," Mrs. Dole said. She said the largest of these operates 121 facilities and had sales in 1976 of more than $97 million.

"Our investigation has uncovered information which indicates millions of dollars may change hands in a web of ownership and control of the homes — with the government paying for the real estate costs, such as lease and mortgage expenses, amortization and depreciation of property, interest rates and excise taxes.

"A technique called 'rolling of homes' permits a facility to be sold, leased, and leased back again and again, each time at higher prices," she said.

"By pushing properties back and forth between chains, companies can inflate their values and reap tremendous profits," Mrs. Dole said.

Publication of the report of the staff investigation is expected soon. The five-member commission then probably will consider issuing regulations of nursing homes. The regulations could govern various financial dealings of nursing homes with patients and may prohibit contract disclaimers on safety and theft.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare also is considering regulations on the quality of care and disclosure of ownership information.

There was no comment from the National Council of Health Care Services, an organization of 20 of the biggest profit-making nursing home chains, operating an estimated 500 to 600 homes with 100,000 beds.

Mrs. Dole cited the example of a California nursing home that she did not name. "The home was sold in 1970 to a partnership which included the former director and officer of the builder; leased in 1971 back to the builder; subleased in 1971 back to a partnership which again included the former director and officer; sold in 1975 for $240,000 to another director of the builder and his wife, the sister of the president of the builder; and sold back to the original builder in 1976 for $360,000.

"It is dismaying simply to relate this story, but the idea of such large-scale phony profits all taken out of the pockets of residents and taxpayers is very sobering indeed," she said.

There are about 1.2 million people residing in the 24,000 nursing homes in America. The average resident is an 82-year-old impoverished widow with two or more clinic diseases, Mrs. Dole said.

Although she said many nursing homes provide good service, she said many others subject patients to a series of economic abuses.

In the fine print of admission contracts the home may be absolved from responsibility for the safety of the patient or his possessions. "Their advertising typically promises a safe and secure environment, but the promise is canceled by the contract," she said.

Governor Announces Four Appointments

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe announced Tuesday that he has appointed A. Sam Waldrop of Abilene to the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission for a term expiring Feb. 15, 1983.

Briscoe also announced these appointments:

— Judge J.W. Summers of Busk as chief justice of the 12th Court of Civil Appeals, effective Nov. 1. He will replace Judge Otis Dunagan of Tyler, who resigned.

— James Goode of Christoval to the Commission on Jail Standards. He will replace David Youngblood of San Antonio, who resigned.

ROUNDUP

Moon Rocks To Go On Display

ODESSA (Special) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Johnson Space Center have loaned six samples of moon rocks and soil collected from four Apollo missions to Odessa College.

Public viewing sessions for the exhibit, entitled "Pieces of the Moon," will be held at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 3, 4, 10 and 11 in lecture room 110 of Wilkerson Hall. Coordinator of the exhibit is Keith Johnson, director of the OC planetarium and instructor of astronomy.

Activities at each session will include the viewing of samples through microscope, a NASA audio-visual production and opportunities to view the moon through a telescope.

Admission is free and seating will be limited to 75 persons each night. The exhibit also will be touring area high schools and junior high schools following the showings at the college.

About 100 lunar samples are sealed in clear plastic disks to avoid contamination and erosion and are being made available to schools, planetariums and museums by NASA.

Farmers Union Names Officers

A-J Correspondent

PADUCAH — Members of the Farmers Union of Cottle and King Counties elected Donald Smith to his second term as president at a recent regular meeting.

James Long, of King County, was elected vice president. Doris Davis, who had tried to resign from her post as secretary-treasurer which she has held 17 years, also was re-elected for another term.

Clovis Businesswoman Honored

A-J Correspondent

CLOVIS, N.M. — Lilyan Bell Anthony was named "Woman of the Year" by the Clovis Business and Professional Women's Club at their October meeting during National Business Women's Week.

Mrs. Anthony retired in May 1975 after serving as District Clerk for 12 years. Mrs. Anthony moved to Clovis in 1929. She has been a member of the Clovis Business and Professional Women's Club since 1946, was treasurer one year and has served on various committees over the years.

Chamber To Sponsor Breakfast

DIMMITT (Special) — The Dimmitt Chamber of Commerce will host a "Fun Breakfast" at 6:30 a.m. today in the fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church.

The 23 new members who joined after a recent membership drive will be introduced and welcomed.

Special recognition will go to Irene Keating, Castro County Extension Agent, who will be leaving Dimmitt to accept the duties as the Potter County Extension Agent.

Other special recognitions will go to the high school art class that painted the new "Welcome to Dimmitt" signs, and to the Young Homemakers Club for helping the Chamber build several "Holiday Scenes" to be placed on the courthouse lawn during Christmas season.

Estacado Homecoming Slated

Estacado High School's 11th annual homecoming festivities, following the theme "We Can Come Together If You Can Get Yourself Together" will be Thursday and Friday.

The seniors exes breakfasts will be held at Furr's Cafeteria in Town and Country Shopping Center on Thursday, at 6:30 a.m., featuring the Matador singers and former Estacado and Texas Tech football player, Larry Isaac, as speaker.

Phone Switchover At Kress Completed

A.J. Correspondent

KRESS—The changeover to one-party service in the Kress exchange has been completed, according to Mid-Plains Rural Telephone Cooperative Inc., headquartered in Tulsa.

The change was done cable by cable and circuit by circuit. Changes to the new cables were done in small groups to minimize the length of time telephones were out of service while the cable pairs were changed.

The cutover was speeded somewhat when Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s old "cord board" switchboard in Lubbock was discontinued Sept. 30.

Federal Gas Bill's Cost To Texas Cited

HOUSTON (AP) — Railroad Commissioner Jon Newton said Tuesday the new federal gas bill will cost the commission at least $1 million a year to administer and said the commission plans to ask the Legislature for emergency funds when it convenes in January.

The new federal law apparently will go into effect Dec. 1. Newton told the annual meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America. He said if the commission does not get the extra funds "to carry out our duties, you won't have any better luck" with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Great Pumpkin Missing

LAKE ODESSA, Mich. (AP) — The Great Pumpkin of Lake Odessa is missing, and police are looking for a thief who might be baking several dozen pumpkin pies.

Burdette W. Livingston grew the monster fruit in his garden, harvested it 10 days ago and placed it on his front porch for Halloween. The pumpkin — 84 inches around and 200 pounds — was stolen Monday.

Livingston said he figured it would have taken two men to lift it, "and there's not much to get hold of on a pumpkin."

Pigeons Attack Democrat

SEATTLE (AP) — King County Councilwoman Ruby Chow, a Democrat, is sure that a flock of Republican pigeons is out to get her.

Mrs. Chow wrote a letter last week to the county administrative officer, Donald Phelps, complaining that her car had suddenly become the target of numerous pigeons.

The county assessor, she said, was warning he would assess the car for "excess ornamentation" while a fellow council member and attorney was advising her to retain "evidence in the event of legal proceedings."

She concluded that Republican County Executive John Spellman may have dispatched "a commando squadron of pigeons" aimed at her elaborate hairdo.

Phelps allowed that the pigeons might be Republicans but reminded Mrs. Chow that pigeons in her district are primarily Democrats.

"They can frequently be seen roosting outside meeting places where Democrats gather," Phelps said.

Meets Emperor Hirohiti

TOKYO (AP) — Ruth Stapleton, sister of President Carter, exchanged pleasantries with Emperor Hirohito on Tuesday at an imperial garden party in Tokyo.

Mrs. Stapleton arrived Monday for a six-day visit at the invitation of Japanese friends, including Shunichi Kase, former Japanese ambassador to the United Nations, a foreign ministry official said.

She was one of 1,781 guests at the Imperial Akasaka Garden, where the emperor was host at a party to appreciate beauty in the Japanese autumn.

The Imperial Household Agency said. Among other guests were Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda and the foreign diplomat corps.

Stolen Flag Caper Solved

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Police Chief Richard LaMunyon left his office at quitting time and solved the "Curious Case of the Pilfered Presidential Flag."

The flag was stolen during President Carter's visit to Wichita on Saturday and was discovered in a brown shopping bag outside the chief's waiting room Monday. The $2,500 pennant was slightly crumpled, but otherwise undamaged.

Authorities believe the flag, one of only eight in the country and emblazoned with the presidential seal, was taken from a room at Century II when Secret Service agents left to guard the president.

TOM WILSON HAD been on the Texas A&M campus only a few days. After the breakup of the Jim Carlen staff, Wilson had applied for the Tech job. But, with the hiring of Steve Sloan, Wilson had to make a change; he accepted a position as assistant at A&M.

But, the Aggies that night were playing Tech in basketball, and the crowd burst into the Spirit of Aggieland. With a sheepish grin, Wilson stood, then winked at a friend on the Tech bench.

Here was a young man feeling contradictory emotions. Wilson was a Tech graduate; he had been on the Raider campus since graduation from high school in the spring of 1962. And he had wanted to be head coach at his alma mater. But, he was employed by A&M. That night, Wilson cheered little for either team.

That was almost four years ago. Now, there is a decided maroon outlook for Wilson, and Tuesday, he became head coach of the Aggies. What they do the rest of the season will be on his shoulders, and how he prepares and guides them definitely will decide whether Aggie officials drop that "interim" in front of the head-coach title.

The next five games, then, will have a great bearing on Tom Wilson's coaching career.

SINCE HIS first days at Tech, Wilson has been associated with success. The little quarterback out of Corsicana stepped in as a junior and led the Raiders to two straight bowl games.

He was playing in the same backfield with two-time all-America Donny Anderson, but it was Wilson at the trigger who guided the Raiders first to the Sun Bowl and then to the gate of the Cotton Bowl the following season.

After an opening conference loss to Texas in 1965, the Raiders went on a heart-stopping spree of last-second comebacks and went into the final game of the year against Arkansas with a chance to tie for the title and gain the Cotton. But, instead, the Raiders went to the Gator Bowl.

Wilson never left the campus, stepping from the dressing room into a graduate assistant's chair and thence to an assistant's office.

If Wilson ever goes blind, probably it will be from watching films. He was considered one of the most dedicated players — then coaches — in preparing for a game. It paid off, too, in his climb up the coaching ladder.

He was backfield coach under Carlen, then moved to offensive coordinator at A&M after missing the Tech job when Sloan arrived. Last winter, he went down to the final two for the Tech job when Sloan went to Ole Miss and Rex Dockery was hired here.

But, Tuesday, his name was called.

THE RESIGNATION OF Emory Bellard was unexpected only in its timing.

The sudden downfall of the Aggies, after such an awesome and undefeated start, had to be a burden on Emory's shoulders. And, Aggies have, over the years, been quite anxious for success.

Bellard took them to bowls, but only once to a share of the championship (1975) and never to the Cotton Bowl. That speedy start this year evidently got the Aggies' hopes high for a trip to Dallas. Then, the upsets — decisive upsets — at the hands of Houston and Baylor had to start the wolves howling.

Thoughts were that, if the Aggies stumbled once more rest of the year, it would be difficult for Bellard to stay on. But, to leave in the middle of the season came as a surprise.

NOW, THE TEAM is Wilson's. He can do with it as he pleases, and he has a chance to prove himself, to the team, to the school, and to the alumni who put up the money for the program.

Emory was a wishbone advocate, and the formation came in for criticism from many of the Aggies. Wilson is known to favor the I-formation, as used by J T King at Tech when Wilson was playing and coaching. Now, it is expected that Wilson will junk the wishbone, except possibly for goal-line situations, and go with what he knows best.

It is to his advantage that the Aggies play Rice this week; Wilson will have time to prepare for the rest of the rugged schedule. The one guy to make the team go, Curtis Dickey, is injured, but the Aggies' material should be good enough to get by Rice. Then, Wilson will have additional time to install his "I" and get Dickey well also.

The season will not be easy rest of the way. After Rice come SMU in Dallas, Arkansas at Little Rock, TCU in College Station and Texas at Austin.

Wilson will get the chance to show what he can do, much as Gerald Myers at Tech eight years ago when Bob Bass quit as basketball coach in midseason.

After Myers showed his value in his first few games as head man, the school quickly named him head coach, and a championship and two post-season appearances have followed.

How fast the A&M administration moves in naming a head coach — Wilson, hopefully — will play a major part in how much the program is affected by the resignation of Bellard. The longer the administration delays, the lesser the chances of a successful recruiting year there.

There is no doubt about where Wilson stands now. At one time, he wanted the Tech job and wanted it badly. After three years at College Station and after the near-hit at Tech last winter, he's solid maroon now.

The opportunity to prove his worth as a head coach now belongs to him. His — and the Aggies' — immediate future will be interesting to watch.

Bellard Resigns Aggie Post

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M Head Football Coach and Athletic Director Emory Bellard, who reached the saturation point with the alumni grumbling about his program, resigned Tuesday with the best record in the Southwest Conference the past seven years.

Bellard, the father of the Wishbone-T and one of the strongest recruiters of schoolboy football talent in the country, gave no reason for his shocking resignation.

He had his resignation statement read to the team then went into immediate seclusion in his office. Offensive coordinator Tom Wilson was named the interim head coach and associate athletic director Marvin Tate was promoted interim athletic director.

Even Bellard's wife, Mary Kay, didn't know Bellard was resigning.

"The first I heard about it was today ... I guess he just reached a saturation point with all the unhappy alumni" said Mrs. Bellard.

Aggie Trainer Billy Pickard said "The players are in shock. They loved Emory and played for him as hard as they could. Injuries to key personnel kept them from performing at their best. The coaching staff and the head coach gave all they could give. It just didn't work out. The football gods just didn't look down on it."

"The kids love Tom, too. He's a wonderful man and a great fellow. He's not a bit happy now. Of course, every assistant coach aspires to be a head coach. It's an unfortunate set of circumstances."

School officials said Bellard would not have a press conference or discuss the resignation under any circumstances.

Wilson said, "Everyone is saddened ... things happen in life that we don't understand sometimes ... the team's reaction was anger at first and then deep sadness ... players had great respect for Coach Bellard as a man and as a coach. The big thing about the team is a lot of injuries, but that has to be the least of our concerns right now. The mental attitude is the thing we have to combat. We have a great bunch of men and they'll come back and fight."

Ironically, Wilson was a finalist for the Texas Tech job last year. He was beaten out at the last minute by Rex Dockery.

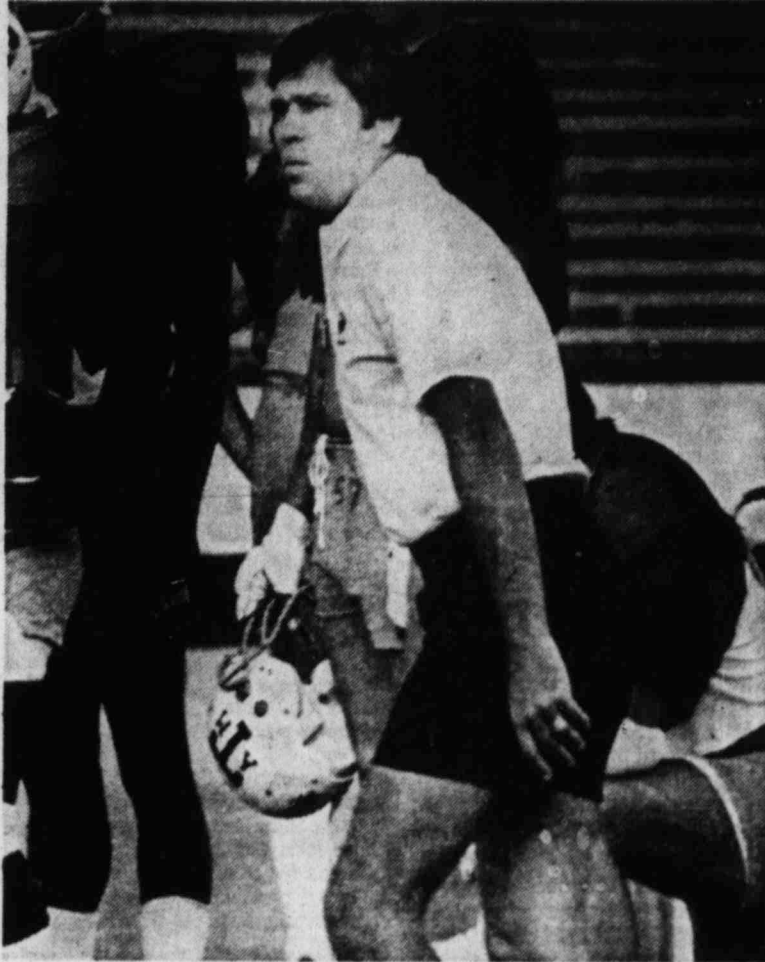

Aggie quarterback Mike Mosley, who operated the Aggies' wishbone and I-formation offense, said he was shocked by the decision.

"It's a hard way for him to have to leave after all he's done for the program. Someone as popular as him should have gotten better treatment."

Mosley said he definitely would remain with the Aggies, adding, "I love Coach Wilson. If they had considered anyone else, I would have had second thoughts about remaining."

Mosley said he expected a few new wrinkles to be added by Wilson, a master of the I-formation when he played in the

Padres' Gaylord Perry Wins Cy Young Award

San Diego Pitching Star Becomes First To Win Award In Both Leagues

GAYLORD PERRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Gaylord Perry, the 40-year-old right-hander for the San Diego Padres, became the first pitcher to win the Cy Young Award in both leagues when he easily captured the National League honor Tuesday.

The Baseball Writers Association of America announced the result, which came from the voting of two of its members in each of the NL cities. And it was a landslide for Perry, the oldest winner ever of the coveted pitching award.

Perry, the only pitcher named on all 24 ballots, received 10 first-place votes and a pair of runner-up ballots. The five-three-point system gave him 116 points, far outdistancing Burt Hooton of Los Angeles, who had 38 points, Vida Blue of San Francisco, with 17 points, and J.R. Richard of Houston, with 13 points.

Blue and Richard each picked up a first-place vote and were followed in the balloting by relief pitcher Kent Tekulve of Pittsburgh (12 points), Phil Niekro of Atlanta (10), Ross Grimsley of Montreal (7), reliever Rollie Fingers of San Diego (1), Tommy John of Los Angeles (1) and rookie Don Robinson of Pittsburgh (1).

Perry, 21-6, topped the 20-victory mark for the fifth time in his magnificent career that stretches back to his major league debut with the San Francisco Giants in 1962. He has also won 19 games twice and 18 games once.

Perry, whose NL record is 155-115 and American League mark 112-91, led the Padres to their best season ever, a fourth-place finish in the NL West with a record of 84-78. Perry also has pitched for Cleveland and Texas in the AL. His other Cy Young Award came in 1972, when he was 24-16 for Cleveland.

The 1972 award came in his first year with the Indians after he was traded by the Giants. The Cy Young trophy he picked up Tuesday also came the first following a trade.

The Texas Rangers, who acquired the 6-foot-4, 215-pound pitcher from Cleveland during the 1975 season, apparently felt his best years were behind him.

San Francisco Boss Altobelli Selected NL Manager Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Energetic Joe Altobelli, who led the San Francisco Giants to their most successful season since they won a divisional title seven years ago, is The Associated Press National League Manager of the Year for 1978.

Altobelli was the runaway choice for the prestigious award in only his second year of big-league managing, outpolling Pittsburgh's Chuck Tanner 199 votes to 70.

Tom Lasorda of the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers and Danny Ozark of the Eastern Division-winning Philadelphia Phillies finished a distant third and fourth respectively in the voting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

JOE ALTABELLI

Lasorda, the NL Manager of the Year last season, collected 56 votes while Ozark got 14.

Herman Franks of the Chicago Cubs finished fifth with 10 votes. San Diego's Roger Craig was sixth with 7 and Atlanta's Bobby Cox collected 2 votes for seventh place.

San Francisco was a fourth-place team in 1977. But with Vida Blue bolstering the pitching staff, the Giants were a hot item in the National League West and the talk of baseball this year. In fact, they led the division for most of the season before fading in the final weeks.

The Giants were division champions under Charlie Fox in 1971 before losing in the league playoffs to the Pittsburgh Pirates, eventual World Series winners.

In his second season, the 46-year-old Altobelli continued to show the same "rookie enthusiasm" that marked his first year in the big leagues. Before joining the Giants in 1977, he had managed for 11 seasons in the minors.

Altobelli has been given rousing endorsements by fellow National League managers, including Cincinnati's Sparky Anderson, who has called him, "The best young manager in the game." When Altobelli was first brought up to the Giants, Anderson was quoted as saying that he wished he had gotten a job in another division, citing his ability to communicate with young players as his best attribute.

A native of Rochester, N.Y., where he managed for six of his minor league seasons, Altobelli spent most of his career on the Triple-A level, making token appearances in the major leagues as a first baseman with the Cleveland Indians and Minnesota Twins.

Tanner guided Pittsburgh back into the thick of the NL East race late in the season after his Pirates had been all but counted out and lost out to the Phillies on the last weekend of the season.

In guiding the Dodgers to the NL pennant, Lasorda — for the second year in a row — ousted Ozark's Phillies in the playoffs to reach the World Series.

OU-Nebraska Game Considered for TV

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Although no official announcement is expected before next Monday, there is a good change the Oklahoma-Nebraska football game will be televised Nov. 11, an ABC-TV spokesman said Monday.

Donn Bernstein, with ABC-TV, says "chances are extremely good" the game will be televised nationally.

The Oklahoma Sooners are ranked No. 1 and Nebraska is ranked fourth in this week's Associated Press poll.

If so, the kickoff will probably be at 11:50 a.m. Oklahoma head coach Barry Switzer said no one has asked him about moving the game to Thanksgiving weekend.

"I sure don't want to do it. Absolutely not. It's a bad time to move a game. Our schedule is fine, just the way it is," Switzer said.

A reporter indicated that ABC still had Friday, Nov. 24 open, but Bernstein said Penn State-Pittsburgh will be shown that day.

"There's no way we'll ask Nebraska and Oklahoma to move the game if we take that one.

"We still have some administrative things to take care of, and we have to get approval and so forth, but we're obviously considering Oklahoma and Nebraska. We were waiting to take the Nebraska-Colorado winner against Oklahoma," Bernstein said.

He says he does not know how an upset of Nebraska or Oklahoma next weekend would affect a matchup between the two on television.

Landry Returns Tony To Lineup

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, convinced that star running back Tony Dorsett was contrite about sleeping through a practice session, reinstated the young millionaire to the starting lineup Tuesday for Thursday night's National Football League game against the Minnesota Vikings.

Landry said, "The matter is resolved. Based on the result of talks I had with him this morning I believe strongly he had no intention of hurting the team."

Dorsett missed last Saturday's practice when his alarm clock failed to go off and did not call Landry to explain his absence. Landry demoted Dorsett to the second-string and the NFL Rookie Offensive Player of the Year in 1977 saw only spot duty behind Preston Pearson in a 14-7 victory over Philadelphia.

"Maybe it was my fault for not spelling out to our younger players the importance of this type of action (calling in if you miss a meeting)," said Landry. "This closes the matter."

Landry said he disciplined Dorsett "not because he missed a workout. We do have that happen to players from time to time. The important thing is that he did not call in and relieve the minds of the team...he didn't reach us...that was the reason he lost his starting opportunity."

Asked if Dorsett apologized, Landry said, "I won't talk about that. I'm satisfied."

Was Tony happy he was starting? "Sure, he was happy," said Landry. "Tony is a very unique player. He's handled all the publicity just about as well as he can at his age. He means well. I believe in him."

What about Dorsett's flip attitude?

"Well, it's not all that unique for a young player in pro ball who was on a Super Bowl team in his first year," said Landry. "Everything has just worked out so well for him. He hasn't faced the adversity that you face in this business. He'll learn to mature when he finds out just how tough this game can be. Nothing is easy for us this year. We are struggling out there."

What about his leadership ability?

"Well, he is just like any other second-year player who is coming off a great year who is trying to adjust to what the game is all about," said Landry. "If I thought what he had done was intentional he wouldn't have played at all last Sunday."

Dorsett called it a "humiliating experience" because his family was in the stands. The Dorsett affair occupied most of Landry's weekly press conference. Finally he smiled: "Doesn't anyone want to know anything about Minnesota?"

Ford, a Shriner, holds a Khiva Shrine fez presented him while he recently, Ford, while at the University of Michigan, played in the East-West Shrine game, a charity affair similar to the game here. The annual game will be played Thursday night in Jones Stadium, matching the Tech and West Texas State junior varsities. (Staff Photo)

Woody Said Jovial After Buckeye Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Maybe it was because Ohio State finally won a game last Saturday or maybe it was the anticipation of great things to come for his Buckeyes, but Woody Hayes was in a jovial mood.

Speaking to the Chicago Football Writers Tuesday in a telephone hookup and at the risk of "Encouraging Northwestern to beat us," Hayes resorted to history in making a point.

"Young people never want to hear history but history time and time again shows us the odds can be wrong," said Hayes.

"Before the Battle of Britain the odds were 20-to-1 Britain wouldn't survive," said Hayes. "And when the polls were taken in this country only two per cent of the people thought we should go to war. Ninety eight per cent didn't think we should go but we had to and we did. It's like the other night I was watching the pro football game on television. Here was one team that was undefeated and had a great quarterback but the other team kept trying and finally won. It was a great game and made me feel good. Sure I watch pro football, I'm just a big hero worshipper."

Hayes feels his Buckeyes have turned the corner and are ready to resume their drive for the Big Ten title following the 31-7 victory over Iowa.

"No fumbles and no interceptions," said Hayes. "We corrected our mistakes. It's like the census taker who went up to the house and asked how many people? The voice said 'Just me and pappy and 13 kids.' Anymore? 'No, we found out what caused them.'"

"We found out what caused our mistakes, too," said Hayes. "We had a new center giving the ball to a freshman quarterback who was handing off to a fullback making his first start or to the fourth string tailback."

"These are not excuses, they are actualities," said Hayes. "But we're getting our people back again. Like in baseball they say you have to be strong up the middle and we're getting strong up the middle again. We're getting it back together again."

Hayes sees a possible four-way race in the Big Ten but warned, "Don't count Michigan and Ohio State out of it."

Kansas City Coaches Happy With Morgado

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Arnold Morgado, a third-team fullback who spearheaded Kansas City's 17-3 upset over Cleveland Sunday, will start this week against the Pittsburgh Steelers, Chiefs Coach Marv Levy announced Tuesday.

Morgado, the only player in the National Football League of Japanese ancestry, was moved to fullback from running back two weeks ago because of an injury to regular Mark Bailey.

Coaches started him against the Browns primarily for his blocking ability. But he responded with 74 yards on 18 carries and scored touchdowns on runs of eight and two yards.

"He explodes out of the stance with good velocity and he's quick to find a hole," Levy said. "And he may be in the best physical condition of anybody on our squad. He's a 100 percent guy who gets lots of respect from his teammates."

Levy said he doubts Pittsburgh's loss to Houston Monday night will affect the way they play against Kansas City. The Chiefs are only 2-6 after beating Cleveland and snapping a six-game losing skid.

"When you start looking for things like that to help you, you're in trouble," said the first-year Chiefs coach. "And when you start looking for things like that to hurt you, you're already defeated."

Levy said watching the Steelers play on television Monday night did not tell him anything he didn't already know... that the Steelers are a powerful, powerful team.

"Their defense is very complex," he said. "They do a lot of things with their defense, and show you more variety of fronts than anybody else. Their secondary is excellent. Everybody talks about their linebackers, but I was most impressed with their secondary."

Levy said wide receivers Lynn Swann and John Stallworth are two of the best in the business.

"It's very unusual for speed guys to have great hands. And it's unusual for guys with great hands and speed to have great concentration. But those two have both and it's unique."

Can the lowly Chiefs beat the mighty Steelers?

"Sure," Levy said. "We've got to do several things, though. We've got to get some big plays out of the kicking game... have a couple of long runbacks, block a kick or something like that. And on offense, we've got to avoid long-yardage situations."

Injury Real, Says Thomas' Attorney

WASHINGTON (AP) — An attorney for Washington Redskins running back Mike Thomas insists that his client has a legitimate foot injury and is not a malingerer.

John Dickens, a Dallas-based attorney who represents Thomas in his contract negotiations with the team, told the Washington Post he has heard and read reports that members of the Redskins organization believe Thomas could have played the past two weeks despite his sore right foot.

"There's talk all the time about Mike, I just read something in one of the Dallas papers about it," said Dickens. "Bobby Beathard (the Redskins general manager) had mouths Mike all the time. It's not right."

"I don't believe it's a malingering kind of situation because Mike is hurting his bargaining position by not playing. I think if he gets back in there and plays he'll be all right. But I wish he was in there right now running, because it could hurt him."

Thomas is in the option year of his contract and could become a free agent at the end of the season if he does not agree to a new contract with the Redskins.

Dickens said he has had no contact with Beathard for the last eight weeks. "I told them what we wanted, they made a very low offer and we haven't talked since. I'd like to hear from them. I don't know what they're thinking."

"I'd like for Mike to be in Washington next year, but I don't know. They may meet the offer he gets as a free agent."

"Other teams have expressed interest in Mike, and not all of them are in the NFL, either. But the guy is an NFL player, and that's where I'd like him to be."

The Redskins won their first six games of the season with Thomas in the lineup. He has missed the team's last two games, in which the Redskins have lost to the Philadelphia Eagles and New York Giants.

Georgia Tech Gets Consecutive TV Tilts

ATLANTA (AP) — For the second straight Saturday, Georgia Tech's football team will appear in a regionally televised game on ABC-TV.

The network announced Monday that the Florida-Georgia Tech game Saturday afternoon at Tech's Grant Field will be one of six regional games to be telecast.

Last Saturday, the Yellow Jackets, winners of five straight, upset Auburn 24-10 in a TV game at Auburn.

Although Tech has played on television twice the same year a number of times, this will be the first time it has been on TV successive weeks.

"Two in a row is unusual," said Tech athletic director Doug Weaver, "but the coaches and players have earned it."

The game matching Florida, 2-3, and Tech, 5-2, will be seen in Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and parts of Kentucky. A crowd of 40,000 is expected.

Turnabout's Fair Play, Says Oiler Pastorini

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Houston Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini was the one getting kicked around in Three Rivers Stadium a year ago, but Monday night it was Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw's turn.

"We've been kind of dogs for years. People laughed at us," Pastorini said after directing Houston's 24-17 win over Pittsburgh, previously undefeated in the National Football League's American Conference.

"It's nice to be back on top," he said. The victory left the 5-3 Oilers two games behind the 7-1 Steelers in the AFC Central Division.

Houston's three touchdowns came on runs by first-round draft pick Earl Campbell, but it was Pastorini's successes on third down that kept life in those drives of 80, 70, and 78 yards, as well as a 41-yard drive for a field goal by Toni Fritsch.

While completing 13 of 19 passes for 180 yards, Pastorini gained first downs seven times during the drives by completing passes of 13 yards or more.

The eight-year veteran was able to that without throwing an interception or being sacked once during the game, and that's alright with him.

"I'm really not the most mobile quarterback in the league," he said. "It's obvious, I'm not a runner like Terry."

His visit here Monday wasn't much like the last time Houston played at Pittsburgh.

In a 27-10 loss last October, Pastorini was sacked and intercepted five times.

That memory was blocked from his mind after winning. Asked how many times he'd been sacked a year ago, he said, "I wouldn't have any idea."

"All I know is points," he added, smiling.

Bradshaw took the worst of it this time. Forced from the pocket, roughed and apparently speared by a helmet, he escaped broken bones, but not broken plays.

With 34 seconds left in the game and Houston ahead 24-17, Pittsburgh had a third and 10 at the Houston 14 and no time outs.

Bradshaw gambled on a draw play to Franco Harris, but Houston's defense stopped it, holding Harris to three yards and killing precious time by keeping the clock moving.

"That was my play," Bradshaw said. "They blitzed and that's a good play on the blitz, but it didn't work."

On another play at the start of the fourth quarter Pittsburgh, down 17-10, had a fourth and one at the Oiler 22-yard line.

Bradshaw gambled on a sideline pass to running back Franco Harris, but couldn't make it work.

"I rushed the throw," Bradshaw said. "A good pass would have been a touchdown. I threw in behind him."

He was philosophical afterwards.

"We needed a good, tough game."

Despite the loss, Bradshaw remained atop all NFL passers with a 98.4 rating and his 15 touchdown passes are still the most in the American Conference.

"We've been a gambling team all year. It's a long season and we'll gamble again."

The Steelers had been the last remaining unbeaten pro football team following the Los Angeles Rams' demise Sunday at the hands of the New Orleans Saints. The 24 point surrendered to the Oilers was the most they had allowed in a single game this season. The teams will meet again in Houston in December. The Oilers face Cincinnati this Sunday as they seek to remain close to the Steelers in the Central Division chase or a wild card berth.

Malavasi Baffled By Holding Calls

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Winners of seven of their first eight National Football League games this season, the Los Angeles Rams feel that they and their fans have been victimized by the officials.

Both owner Carroll Rosenbloom and coach Ray Malavasi think something should be done.

The Rams lost to New Orleans 10-3 last Sunday for their only defeat since Malavasi took over after the second preseason game.

"Most of the players felt a little mad because they didn't win and we played well enough to win," said Malavasi when asked at his news conference if the defeat might have taken some pressure from his team.

He personally thought the Rams were robbed of a first-quarter touchdown when fullback John Cappelletti dived over the line on fourth down from the New Orleans one.

"It looked like we were over, obviously over," said Malavasi and added that films confirmed his verdict. "The official should spot the forward progress of the ball. He takes the spot and holds the spot. We didn't get a good spot on the ball."

Malavasi also said films indicated that many of the penalty calls against the Rams were questionable.

Owner Carroll Rosenbloom, no stranger to fines from the National Football League for his forthright statements, said:

"After reviewing films of Sunday's game, we admit the Rams have played better games, but they played well enough to win."

"The adding of an extra official and some rules changes seem to have resulted in an unprecedented epidemic of penalties. Even though the Rams gained more than 700 yards in our past two home games, we feel we must apologize to our fan because the excitement of the best spectator sport ever was severely dimmed by over-zealous and inconsistent officiating."

On Monday, a national television audience will be watching the Rams facing the Falcons at Atlanta and the Los Angeles contingent indicated the fans should also be watching the officiating.

Rosenbloom was stung by the booing of Coliseum fans who objected to the penalties in the New Orleans game just as they had objected to calls two weeks before when Los Angeles beat San Francisco 27-10.

"We have sent all pertinent newspaper clippings on the subject to the league office because we feel they accurately reflect fan reaction," Rosenbloom said. "We are alarmed and we will complain to the NFL Commissioner and his offices must take steps to correct the problem."

Against San Francisco, the Rams were penalized 15 times for 136 yards and against New Orleans it was 13 for 138. The Saints were assessed only 36 yards on four calls against them.

Malavasi called for full-time officials instead of only the weekend duty of men who work during the week in other jobs. He said he doesn't criticize every crew, but "every once in a while you feel a crew does a poor job."

After saying his piece, the coach remarked he was turning all his efforts toward the game against the Falcons, who are 4-4 and lost to Los Angeles 10-0 on the Rams' home field early in the season.

"As long as the offensive lineman keeps his arms in front of his body, it is legal," Malavasi maintained. He said that even if the defensive end goes down, this does not make it an automatic holding penalty.

"I don't think they need six and seven officials," the coach said. "All they're doing is increasing the length of the game and screwing it up."

He also repeated his previous view that officials should be full-time employees, go to school and do extensive study of game films. The NFL crews have other jobs during the weekdays.

This year the officiating seems worse than it has been for some reason. The extra official is calling penalties at other places than where he should be."

The seventh official purportedly was added to the crews to enforce the new rule against bumping and jamming receivers five yards beyond the line of scrimmage.

Malavasi said of the upcoming game with the Falcons, "If you've got a good team, you should overcome."

The Rams' coach said the return of Steve Barikowski has strengthened Atlanta, a team now 4-4 in the NFC West and one which the Rams beat 10-0 earlier in the season.

Armstrong Blames Himself For Losses

CHICAGO (AP) — Coach Neill Armstrong, who is willing to take his share of the blame for the Chicago Bears' sudden reversal which has them on a five-game losing streak after three initial victories, promises the team will turn it around.

"I feel badly about the whole affair," said Armstrong Tuesday. "When you're losing, everyone shares the responsibility. If you're not your own critic, you're not sharing your responsibility."

The Bears in general and quarterback Bob Avellini in particular are being criticized by some segments of the media but Armstrong shrugs it off.

"I think people have a right to their opinions," said Armstrong. "He's been criticized before. Other quarterbacks have been criticized before but the quarterback is not our problem. We're throwing the ball more and better than in the past."

"I don't want to make excuses but our defense suffered a serious blow with injuries to our cornerbacks (Alan Ellis and Virgil Livers) and our running game is not as good this year as it was last year," said Armstrong.

"We have been and still are reassessing our running game," he continued. "We are not getting four-yard consistency from our running game and when you don't get four-yard consistency you are not running efficient plays."

"We have to find a way to get Walter Payton free. It's not his fault that our running game is not as good as last year. Maybe it's because of our offensive line but you also have to give the defenses credit. The defenses are set up to stop him and we know it."

"The standards set for him (Payton) are high by himself and everybody else," said Armstrong. "He can't do it all by himself. We know he has to have people to help him."

Armstrong said he doesn't believe that athletes do not react to criticism nor does he think the situation with the Bears is hopeless.

"Naturally football players react to criticism," said Armstrong. "And the media speaks for the fans. Without the media and the fans, where would the game be?"

"Our record (3-5) is the same as it was last year and in the eyes of some people there is no hope," said Armstrong. "But I assure you this team still has hope."

Temple, Gonzales Remain Atop Prep Polls

By The Associated Press
Temple in Class AAAA, Gonzales in AAA, Newton in AA and Farmersville in A held their top ranks this week in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll but five other rated upset victims disappeared from the list and Corpus Christi Carroll lost out to the rule book.

Padena Dobbie, which earlier this year beat toughie Port Neches-Groves, scored another upset with a 30-29 victory over No. 8 LaPorte, knocking LaPorte out of the top 10 in AAAA with a 4-2 record.

Corpus Christi Carroll, unbeaten and ranked No. 7 last week, beat Robstown 47-14 but dropped out of the top 10 after being forced to forfeit its first five games because it had an ineligible player on the squad.

LaPorte and Carroll were replaced in the Nos. 9 and 10 positions by Highland Park, 5-1, and Midland Lee, 6-0. Highland Park is making its second appearance of the season among the AAAA elite.

Donna opened No. 9 Raymondville 21-17 in a Rio Grande Valley battle of AAA powers and Raymondville was replaced New Braunfels, 7-0. Gainesville, which whipped McKinney 22-10, moved up from 10th to eighth.

Third-ranked Bridgeport and No. 9 Tahoka were losers among the AA ranks. Bowie's 27-3 victory knocked Bridgeport out of the top 10 and Tahoka disappeared after its second loss of the season.

West, 6-0-1, returns to the AA list as the No. 9 team and Idalou, 7-0, moved into the No. 10 spot. East Bernard, No. 10 last week, benefitted from the losses by moving up to No. 8.

Celina, which blanked No. 2 Pilot Point 21-0 in a Class A game last week, knocked Pilot Point out of the ratings and established itself as the No. 10 team this week.

Celina is 5-1, suffering only an opening game loss to Prosper.

DeLeon, which shut out Cross Plains 41-0, moved into Pilot Point's vacated runnerup spot in A and Lexington advanced to third from fourth place.

Despite its five forfeits, Carroll almost remained in the AAAA rankings with 18 points. Carthage made a run for the AAA rankings with 14 points.

Quitman with 17 points and Hondo with 12 were narrow misses in AA and Seagraves polled 15 points and Holliday had 21 and Pilot Point had 10 to remain near the top 10 in Class A.

Syracuse May Lose Hurley For Season

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Syracuse University coach Frank Maloney says he still does not know if his top quarterback, Bill Hurley, is ready to play football.

But the hurting Syracuse football team (1-6) has a week off to prepare for its Nov. 4 game with No. 15 Pitt.

Hurley started the season amidst a publicity campaign boosting the senior quarterback as a Heisman Trophy candidate. But he was helped off the field with three cracked ribs on the eighth play of the season opening game.

Syracuse has lost all six games Hurley has missed. The one game Hurley played in he ran for 143 yards and two touchdowns as Syracuse beat West Virginia.

If Hurley appears in one more game this year he would lose his opportunity to play next season.

Maloney says he will meet with Hurley later this week to discuss the quarterback's status, then it will be up to the doctors.

"Whenever I've talked to him since the West Virginia game, he's said it hurts too much to play. So all we can do is wait," Maloney said.

Hurley holds several Syracuse passing records and is the school's all-time total offensive leader.

Two USC Players Get Suspension

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two University of Southern California football players arrested last weekend for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon have been temporarily suspended from the squad, Coach John Robinson said Tuesday.

Defensive back Willie Crawford and linebacker Charles Moses were arrested Saturday night after they allegedly assaulted a couple and their 3-year-old son following a minor traffic accident, according to police reports.

"We're going to wait until the facts are sorted out, then make a decision," Robinson said. "I want to reserve comment until the District Attorney's office decides what they will be formally charged with."

A car driven by Crawford reportedly was involved in a collision with another in which Manuel Nunez of Los Angeles, his wife Miriam and their son Mauricio were traveling.

Both players started in last Saturday's 38-7 Southern Cal victory over Oregon State, but neither will play this weekend against Cal, Robinson said.

Crawford and Moses, both seniors, have been released on bail.

Ron Guidry Leads New York All-Star Parade

Randolph, Nettles Join Pitching Ace On Select Squad

NEW YORK (AP) — Just as he did during the season, Ron Guidry led the way for the World Champion New York Yankees in the voting for The Associated Press 1978 American League All-Star team.

The gifted left-hander who paced the Yankees in one of the most remarkable comebacks in baseball history was given his due Tuesday as a unanimous choice on The AP's annual blue-ribbon team.

Guidry posted a 25-3 record, the best mark in history for a 20-game winner, as well as a league-leading 1.74 ERA and nine shutouts as the Yankees overcame a mountainous 14-game deficit in the East to capture the divisional flag and finally, the AL pennant. Guidry also notched a crucial victory in the World Series as the Yankees beat the Los Angeles Dodgers in six games.

The left-hander was one of three Yankees on this year's All-Star team. Second baseman Willie Randolph and third baseman Graig Nettles were also selected by a nationwide panel of broadcasters and sports writers.

Boston, the team the Yankees had to catch in the wild East Division finish, and surprising Milwaukee had two players each on the team — outfielder Jim Rice and catcher Carlton Fisk representing the Red Sox and shortstop Robin Yount and outfielder Larry Hise the Brewers.

The remainder of the team consists of Minnesota first baseman Rod Carew, Texas outfielder Al Oliver, designated hitter Rusty Staub of Detroit and Baltimore's Jim Palmer as the team's right-handed pitcher.

The National League All-Stars, announced earlier, are first baseman Steve Garvey and second baseman Dave Lopes of Los Angeles, third baseman Pete Rose and outfielder George Foster of Cincinnati, outfielder Jack Clark and left-handed pitcher Vida Blue of San Francisco, shortstop Larry Bowa of Philadelphia, outfielder Dave Parker of Pittsburgh; catcher Ted Simmons of St. Louis and right-handed pitcher Gaylord Perry of San Diego.

Randolph fashioned a .279 batting average and had 36 stolen bases for the Yankees while Nettles hit 27 homers and knocked in 83 runs. Rice hit 315 and was the league leader in homers with 46 and RBI with 139. He was the first player in the AL to have 400 total bases in a season since Joe DiMaggio did it in 1936.

Hise clouted 34 homers and drove in 115 runs while Oliver had a .324 batting mark and 89 RBI. Carew led the league for the second straight season, with a .333 average.

Yount had his best season for the Brewers with a .293 batting average and 71 RBI. Fisk was a .284 hitter with 29 homers and 88 RBI. Staub won the DH position with a 24-homer, 121-RBI year. Palmer had a 21-12 record and 2.46 ERA.

Garvey helped lead the Dodgers to their second straight NL flag with a .316 batting average. 21 homers and 113 RBI. Lopes, a .278 hitter, showed good power for a second baseman with 17 home runs. He also stole 45 bases.

Rose's record-breaking, 44-game hitting streak was the talk of baseball this season. The Reds' hustling switch-hitter finished the season with 198 hits and a .302 batting average.

Bowa, long considered by many to be the best-fielding shortstop in the NL, also was among the best-hitting this season with a .294 mark. Parker was the NL's unofficial leading hitter with a .334 average and was second to Foster in RBI with 117. Foster led the league for the second year in RBI (120) and home runs (40). Clark hit .306 and knocked in 98 runs.

Simmons led the Cardinals with a .287 average, including 40 doubles in his hit total, and hit 22 homers and drove in 80 runs.

Blue had an 18-10 record for the Giants this season, posting a sparkling 2.79 earned run average and 171 strikeouts.

Rose Demands Too Much Says Wagner

CINCINNATI (AP) — Reds President Dick Wagner said Tuesday he likes Pete Rose, too, and wants to sign him but his last contract offer is now "off the table."

Wagner appeared on the same regional television talk show Rose was on Oct. 19 in which he praised the Reds boss despite their bargaining differences.

"Although we have had our differences, everyone should take a lesson on how to run a ball club from Dick Wagner," Rose said in the earlier appearance.

"I have said some things he didn't like and he has said some things I didn't like, but as for knowing how to do the job, there is none better than Dick Wagner."

"I thank Pete for those kind words," said Wagner. "I like Pete. He's a likeable person."

But that is apparently not going to alter the impasse that Rose said led him to place himself on the re-entry draft list. The draft will enable Rose to sign with any of 13 clubs in addition to the Reds.

"Primarily, the trouble is the new reserve system and we will have to live with it. I feel that there are turbulent times ahead (for baseball) and we are going to have to face the music," said Wagner.

Wagner traced his negotiations with Rose and Rose's adviser, attorney Reuben Katz. He said the Reds had upped their offer in response to Rose's counter-offer but Rose had rejected it.

Rose had claimed one or two other Reds players were getting more in a total package than the Reds were offering. Wagner had said the offer was the largest base salary ever offered a Reds player and was "one of the largest packages."

However Wagner, on the "Bob Braun Show," indicated second baseman Joe Morgan had a larger contract than Rose because he had two Most Valuable Player awards coming off two pennant-winning seasons.

Rose was MVP in 1977 and has since broken the 3,000 hit barrier and the set the consecutive game hit record in the National League.

"We want to sign Pete and we will have an opportunity to negotiate with him in the re-entry draft. We will negotiate with Pete," Wagner said.

Wagner also said the Reds might participate for the first time in the draft this year adding they were interested in former Pittsburgh relief pitcher Rich Gossage last season but decided it was too much money.

Wagner said the list of players on this year's list was "punier" than in previous years.

Wagner also contended that "baseball is not big business. Most clubs gross only about $8 million a year."

"I'm tired of talking about dollars," said Wagner. "I want to get back to the business of running a ball club."

Death Knell Ringing For WTT?

NEW YORK (AP) — Last Friday, Sol Berg tearfully told members of his New York Apples staff that he was suspending operations for the World Team Tennis club. Can the demise of the league be very far away?

Berg, who bought the team in 1974 when it was known as the Sets, had been losing nearly $1 million a year. But the final straw came in a league meeting in Boston two weeks ago when Berg discovered that not a single star player had been signed for the 1979 season.

Last year, the league could boast such attractions as Chris Evert, Martina Navratilova, Billie Jean King, Ilie Nastase and Vitas Gerulaitis.

Reportedly, Boston and New Orleans have also disbanded, leaving just seven survivors in the 5-year-old league, which has yet to catch the fancy of the sports public — even in this tennis-crazed era.

"Ironically, the Apples had already sold more season tickets than last year," said a WTT source, requesting anonymity. "But Sol felt that the rest of the league had not kept pace. "Sol was very upset. He loves the Apples and has enjoyed the exposure. He said he was going to make good on his debts and take care of his staff."

The source said the staff had been given severance pay and several of them had applied for unemployment compensation. All that remains of the Apples' office is a phone receptionist, who told a caller Tuesday: "Everyone has gone for the day."

Berg, meanwhile, has been unavailable for comment and his staff has been silent at the request of the owner, who told them the league was going to make the announcement of the demise of WTT's flagship team.

In St. Louis, WTT Commissioner Butch Buchholz said, "Boston and New York have not dropped out. We have received no notification in this office."

There was some speculation that the Boston-New York departure was designed to induce the rest of the league to intensely efforts to sign name players. But the WTT source dismissed that possibility.

"Sol wouldn't fire his front-office staff to light a fire under anybody else," the source said. "He didn't believe the suspension would encourage any signings."

The owner of the Boston Lobsters released a statement Monday calling the reports of his team's death "unfounded...until all questions are resolved on the league level and future word is forthcoming on male and female player commitments for 1979."

However, he added that the situation could be "altered...in 24 hours or the near future."

Buchholz said there would be a league meeting this week, after which he would make a statement.

Despite Buchholz' denials, Wall Street would call these signs bad omens for the league, with a definite trend spotted: Tennis, a booming sport for singles and doubles, has been a bust for teams.

Tarkenton Resents Fans' Jeers, Boos

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton says he has played "better than I ever have in my life" during the past five weeks, but that doesn't mean he's forgotten the boos and jeers directed his way at the beginning of the National Football League season.

"I resent the hell out of it," the 38-year Tarkenton said of the fans' demands five weeks ago that he retire after Minnesota lost to Tampa Bay.

"In other towns, to be a veteran player is to be revered," he added. "Look at Washington and the feeling they had for Sonny Jurgensen. Or Green Bay during Bart Starr's last years as a player. He didn't have it any more, but the fans didn't get on his back."

"When you're an old guy in this town, it seems like they're trying to exterminate you. Washington is an older club than we are and they respect the old guys on that team."

Tarkenton suffered seven interceptions during the first two weeks of the season and was ranked 12th in National Conference passing. In the last six weeks, however, he has thrown for a 64.9 completion percentage, 1,223 yards, 10 touchdowns and only five interceptions and is fifth in the NFC.

"Let's face it, the first two weeks this year I got some terrible bounces," he said. "I just feel now that I'm playing better than I ever have in my life. If I have ever played better than I have the last five weeks I'd like to know when it was."

Smyer Forced To Cancel Remaining Contests

Numerous Injuries Lead To Forfeiture Decision By Coach

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
"I count my blessings and not my faults
And I dance like the dickens to the West Texas Waltz"

If Johnny Tubb knows anything more than a two-step, you'll probably find him bobbing and swaying up and down the main street of Smyer.
Tubb is the football coach, a dubious distinction at this point in the season.

He had to forfeit the rest of his games because of a lack of players.
Part of the numbers problem, he feels, stems from his hard-nosed attitude about discipline. No missed practices, no late entries with Tubb.

And he's sure he made the right decisions.
"As I was telling the kids," he said, "our program here has been kind of half-hearted, come out when you want to, miss practice for any number of thousands of simple excuses. It's just been kind of half-hearted the last couple of years."

"But this group of kids has shown what it takes to play the game. They played with total dedication the whole season. Anyone who comes out for football at Smyer knows exactly what's expected of him. And that's through the effort of this team."
Tubb started the season with less than 20 players and that number steadily dwindled. Injuries and other factors of attrition gradually drained the team down to 12 players and, as Tubb says, no linemen.

But despite being outnumbered worse than Custer at his Last Stand, the team put it together for one final hurrah.
Two weeks ago, Smyer beat Whiteface 34-0. In addition to being Smyer's first win, it was also the first time the team had scored this season.

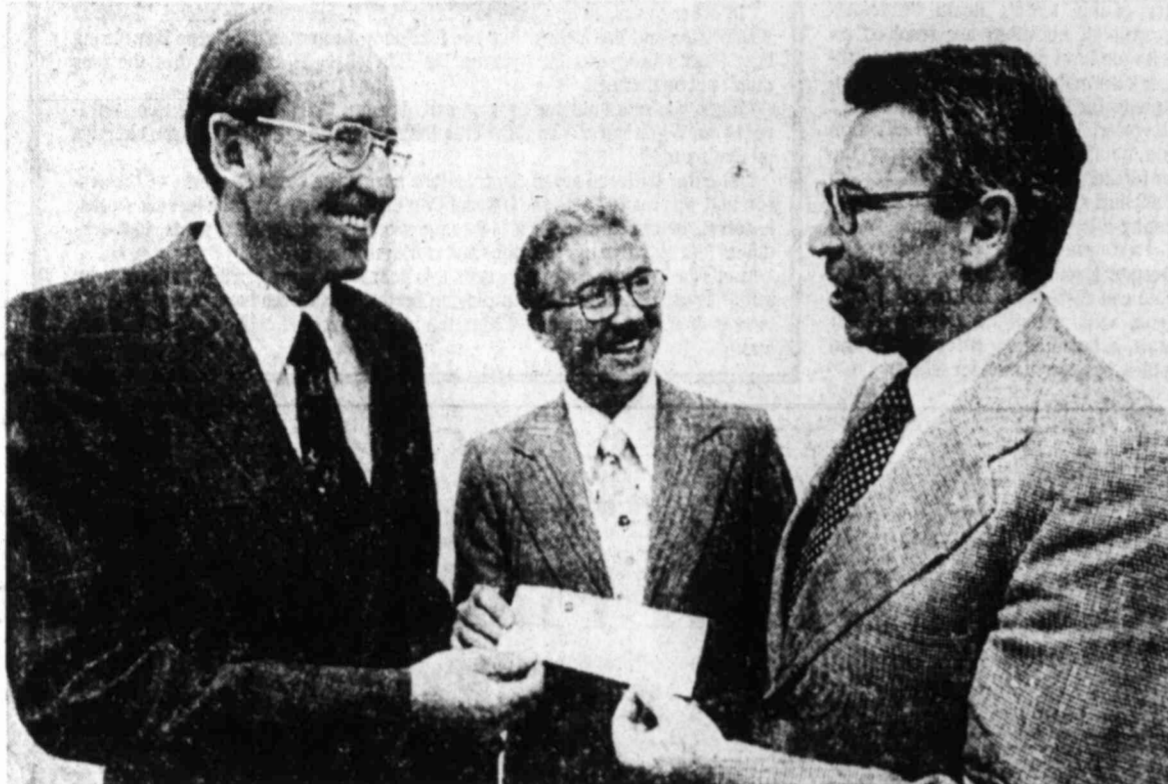

"Just as I was telling them," Tubb said, "it's just a shame that this particular crew had to be the ones to set the example for the future."
"You know what I'm saying? They took it on the chin for the rest of the seasons coming up."

And what did Tubb learn from this?
"Patience," he answered quickly. "I guess they've always said patience is a great virtue to have. More than anything I've learned to be patient because I saw what was in front of us and I just became very patient with the kids. I knew they would fall in and do the job. And they did, I guarantee you.

"I'm going to have to really evaluate the things that I did accomplish now and the things that I didn't. I'm going to have to weigh it pretty heavily. I'm going to have to see if maybe my program isn't designed for the bulk of the kids here."

"But I certainly feel that it was necessary at this stage of Smyer football to do the things that we did. I certainly felt like it was necessary to instill a program out here."

Browns Coach Rutigliano Says Team Should Forget KC Loss

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Browns General Manager Peter Hadzazy agrees with Coach Sam Rutigliano that the Browns should worry about the upcoming game with Buffalo, not last week's 17-3 loss to Kansas City.

"The best thing is to forget it, although it'll be awfully tough to forget it if we get the same results the following week," Hadzazy said in an interview.

"This is not a time to panic because you have a game like that every year or two, a total team effort as far as nothing going right," he said.

Rutigliano said Monday that "the most important thing now is the next game. We can't dwell on yesterday."

Hadzazy said he is anxious to see what will happen at Sunday's game against the Buffalo Bills and whether the Browns bounce back from the loss.

"I think we'll bounce back, but if we don't then it might tell us something about the character of some of our veteran players — that they've packed it in," he added.

He denied that the team would undergo a "shakeup," although he said more losses could mean it is time to start playing younger men.

He said he will oppose any tendency by players to blame others.

"I absolutely don't want any of the players pointing at others, blaming them because that wouldn't show much character," he said. "The guys who start pointing fingers at others, I guarantee will be gone."

Kelvin White Named A-J Player Of Week

By BOB BAJACKSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
All year, Estacado Coach Louis Kelley has been describing Kelvin White as a tailback who keeps making sophomore mistakes.

So, what does Kelley have to say when White scampers for 176 yards on 30 carries and one touchdown against the Dumas Demons?

"He's improving," said Kelley. "Yep, He's improving."

In fact, White has improved so much that this week he has been named the Avalanche-Journal's player of the week.

"Kelvin's biggest improvement is the lack of turnovers," said Kelley. "Against Lamesa two weeks ago, he was prone to fumbling. This week he worked on holding onto the ball, and it paid off."

In 30 carries, White only coughed up the football once against the Demons.

"That was after he was already down," said Kelley. "Fumbling once in 30 times is not bad. We didn't get on his case during practice. We just tried to talk about the problem with him."

Included in White's total was a 73-yard scoring burst. White darted through left tackle and then cut back towards the right and down the sidelines for the touchdown.

"That was the smartest run he's made this season," said Kelley. "Kelvin used his blockers to perfection and cut back at the right time or he wouldn't have been able to score."

Other offensive backs being cited, included Monterey's Ricky Pinkerton, 154 yards on 20 carries and two touchdowns, Lubbock Christian's Gary Paul Miller, 104 yards rushing; Christ the King's Jimmy Durham 134 yards on 16 carries including one touchdown and a two-point conversion; Coronado's Alan Harp, five completions in seven attempts, which included one touchdown pass.

Monterey's Chuck Perry receives the offensive lineman award. Perry caught eight passes for 86 yards and two touchdowns last week against Plainview.

Monterey's Andy Barron garners the defensive back honor.

Also proving to be thorns in opposing offenses' sides were Lubbock High's Chris Bigham, 12 tackles; Dunbar's Eddie Walker, seven tackles; Christ the King's Justin Mehta, 21 tackles; Estacado's Preston Davis, four tackles; and Lubbock Christian's Todd Lewis Lewis was cited for his swarming play all over the field.

Dunbar's Geoffrey Crawford, who graded out 83 percent and was involved in 13 tackles, is the winner of the defensive lineman award.

However, the competition for the honor was close as Monterey's Dale Pinkerton made 12 tackles, while three players were in on 10 tackles.

Coronado's Rodney Slaggs and Estacado's Steve Wright and Todd Parsons each got the ball carrier 10 times. Wright and Parsons also recovered a fumble. Also, being cited were Lubbock High's David Carrillo, nine tackles; and Lubbock Christian's Scott Hawley. Hawley was responsible for forcing plays back to the inside.

Lions Begin Dealing With Added Momentum

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
New Deal, picked to be one of the very top teams in Class A in this area, disappointed a lot of people.

The Lions lost two of their first three games and a lot of people kind of shrugged and tried pretending they hadn't picked them.

But new New Deal is coming back with a vengeance. After losing to Class AA teams Idalou and Roosevelt while only barely beating Plains, the Lions have won four straight and three of them in district.

Sundown was the first victim, falling 34-0. Then Lorenzo 14-6. Ralls went down 39-9 and last Friday (in the For Real Bowl) New Deal whipped once-beaten Hale Center 14-6.

Now the Lions are the only undefeated club in District 5-A.

"We've gotten a little lucky," said coach B.J. Smith, now in his eleventh year as Lion boss. With that kind of experience, he should know better than to say things like that.

"Nah, we've played pretty good football. And we played a good ballclub. I'm pretty pleased right now."

Now New Deal has to take on Petersburg. "Ol' Idalou kicked us pretty good, 27-0," Smith said. "They just barely beat Petersburg 13-12. You know they've got some kids with some talent. If they can put it together they'll be real tough."

"They've beat us two years in a row now," Smith continued. "Our seniors haven't beaten them and they'd kind of like to."

Smith said the Lions had been having problems playing consistent football. At times they're real good but then at times they go flat.

"When we got up 14-0 (against Hale Center) we kinda started waiting on the ball. We played kind of conservative, we weren't as aggressive. We've gotta be on the ball against Petersburg or we'll be in trouble."

"We've got to play four quarters of football instead of just a couple like we have been doing."

Being undefeated doesn't count for much this early in the year. Ralls, Lorenzo, Crosbyton and Hale Center are right behind the Lions with one-loss seasons.

"We lose a game, boy howdy. It could be tough on us. One loss could really hurt us."

Elsewhere in Class A, Vega stomped Kress 40-6 Friday night. It looks like the Horns are definitely in the driver's seat in District 3-A, even though they have only one district win.

Vega's 4-2 on the year, but the nearest competitor is Farwell, 3-3 overall. No other team in the conference is over 500. Down in District 5-A, Seagraves just keeps rolling along. Friday night they beat Anton 47-0. That's the most points the Eagles have scored all season, but when your defense has only allowed 10 points, you don't need to score a lot.

ALthough the Eagles have beaten Shallowater and O'Donnell, the only teams that were supposed to challenge for the conference, somehow they don't seem to be running away like they should be. Plains and Stanton are right behind with only a tie keeping them from being perfect.

Ron Guidry Gets Seven Courts Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Southpaw sensation Ron Guidry of the World Champion New York Yankees was named winner of the Seven Crowns of Sports baseball award for 1978 Tuesday.

Guidry compiled an "efficiency rating" of 82.59 in the computer-based competition, easily outdistancing Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox at 77.46. Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates finished third at 74.95.

The Louisiana-born Guidry, in only his second full season with the Yankees, was the major league leader in wins (25), earned run average (1.74), winning percentage (.893), and shutouts (9). His 248 strikeouts, third-best in the majors, broke the Yankee record of 240 set by Jack Chesbro in 1904.

In succeeding 1977 winner Rod Carew of Minnesota, Guidry became the first pitcher to capture the award in its 4-year history. He received $10,000 award and a pewter trophy.

The award is sponsored by the Seagram Distillers Co.

Tech Goes Through Light Workouts

It was not so much the weather as the calendar which dictated a short workout for Texas Tech footballers Tuesday.

After last Saturday's 42-28 win over Rice, head coach Rex Dockery gave his Raiders two days off. And Tuesday, the troops went through a series of wind sprints and weight work before heading for the showers.

The reason is that Tech doesn't play this week, having an open date before hosting Baylor Nov. 4 in homecoming.

With the extra time to prepare, Dockery wants to allow as much time as possible for his injured troops to heal and regain life in their legs before returning to heavy workouts.

The regular work will resume today, however.

The time off extended only to the players; Dockery and his coaches have been out of town on recruiting trips.

Wilson Obtains Aggie Reins

same backfield at Texas Tech with Donnie Anderson.

Mosley said Wilson added a few motion plays in his first workout as head coach Tuesday.

Despite an overall record of 48-27, Bellard failed to please the highly vocal Aggie Alumni who wanted a Cotton Bowl caliber club.

The grumbling became louder after the Aggies lost to the Houston Cougars, 33-0, and the Baylor Bears, 24-6, the last two weeks. In both games, the Aggies failed to score a touchdown.

Just two weeks ago the Aggies were the No. 6 ranked team in the nation.

Rumors swept the Aggie campus after Bellard failed to show for his noon press conference. Sports information director Spec Gammon also couldn't be found.

In his announcement, Bellard said, "Under existing circumstances, I feel that it is best that I resign my position as director of athletics and head football coach at Texas A&M University."

"Texas A&M is a great university and will always have a special place in my heart. To all the great people who have supported our program, I say thank you for your loyalty and friendship."

The Aggies were 4-2 for the year after opening with resounding victories over Kansas, Boston College, Memphis State and Texas Tech.

Bellard, who left as an assistant to then University of Texas Coach Darrell Royal in 1971, took the Aggies to three bowl games.

The Aggies won a share of the SWC title in 1975 but still didn't qualify for the Cotton Bowl. A&M crushed Florida 37-14 in the Sun Bowl with perhaps his best team.

His first team posted a 3-8 record. Since then his teams have been 5-6, 8-3, 10-2, 10-2, and 8-4.

Prior to entering collegiate coaching as an assistant at Texas in 1967, Bellard was one of the state's most successful high school coaches, compiling a record of 139 wins, 34 losses and three ties at three different schools over a 15-year span.

Dr. Miller said Associate Athletic Director Marvin Tate would become the interim athletic director. Miller said he tried to talk Bellard out of the decision.

Miller said Bellard "is one of the outstanding men I have met in my lifetime. He has been more than a head football coach. His integrity and dedication is reflected in the outstanding overall athletic programs at Texas A&M."

"In addition, Coach Bellard effectively meshed the athletic program with academic environment, and stressed to all of our athletes that they were at Texas A&M first and foremost to obtain a university education."

Dr. Charles H. Samson Jr., chairman of the athletic council, said he "sincerely regretted Coach Bellard's decision to resign. No coach could be more committed to achieving excellence in intercollegiate athletics than Emory Bellard. He has worked in complete cooperation with our Athletic Council toward this end."

"I know I speak for all members of our council in commending him for the substantial contributions that he has made to Texas A&M."

Only last Friday night, a close friend of Bellard's, who asked to remain anonymous, said "Emory has a stomach full. I wouldn't be surprised if he told them to shove it in the job."

"It was just one of those circumstances," Wilson told the Avalanche-Journal Tuesday night.

"The first thing we knew about it was when Bellard called us in at 3 o'clock and told us of his decision to resign. Then the president called me over, and offered me the job."

"Naturally, we were all saddened by the circumstances, and I've always wanted to be a head coach. But, it's hard to accept under these circumstances."

But, I certainly look forward to it, and I think I've prepared myself for it."

Wilson said that, under the circumstances that "as it went on, we had a good workout. The players were saddened, all so. But, we approached it with the idea that it's a new season, and we can't look back."

TOM WILSON

Wilson said that nothing was said in his meeting with the president of the university beyond the interim situation. He said that a further decision would be a week, "two weeks, maybe the rest of the year. We didn't talk contract, they just said they wanted me and I wanted the opportunity."

Almost by the time the job was his, Wilson was looking into the future. He said that he would continue to handle the offensive coordinator's chores, and Melvin Robertson, the defensive coordinator, would continue in his capacity.

"I will handle the responsibility of motivation on both sides."

Wilson is an advocate of the I-formation, and he said Tuesday, "You have to go with what you believe in (indicating a shift in that direction and away from the wishbone formation devised by Bellard).

"Right now, we know what we have to do. First, we have to think about the mental attitude of our players, and, second, to play as well as we can with the injured people. Hopefully, we can get some of the injured players (at least four offensive starters) back."

By DUANE HOWELL

BOTH CONSUMERS AND CATTLEMEN will suffer if President Carter does not sign into law the recently passed amendments to the Meat Import Act, says the first vice president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

Bob Bliss of Tulsa has urged Carter to sign the legislation. Bliss says failure to do so would "thwart the will of Congress and stifle the cattle industry's rebuilding of the basic herd after four years of liquidation as a result of adverse economics."

"Cattlemen have been supporters of efforts to curb inflation," Bliss says. "We are urging the President to sign this bill, which actually is anti-inflationary."

Bliss pointed to Library of Congress studies which show the import legislation would provide stability benefiting both the public and the cattle industry. The amendments would help to assure more dependable supplies of quality beef at reasonable prices for U. S. consumers.

THE NEW LEGISLATION INCLUDES a counter-cyclical import quota formula under which imports will increase when domestic beef output declines cyclically and will decrease when U. S. beef production becomes excessive. It also defines more precisely the circumstances under which the President may increase meat imports beyond quota levels.

"We are already dependent on other countries for our oil supplies," Bliss noted. "The last thing we want to do is become dependent on foreign meat as well. Failure to make this new bill law eventually can have that effect."

The bill (HR 11545) was passed by substantial majorities in both houses of Congress. Cattlemen are concerned that critics are making last-ditch efforts to head off the legislation by putting pressure on the President to exercise his veto.

The critics claim the legislation will reduce imports and raise prices to consumers. But cattlemen, backed by independent studies, say the exact opposite is true.

"OVER THE 10-YEAR CATTLE CYCLE, total imports would not be reduced," Bliss said. "In fact, during the next few years, when domestic beef output will be decreasing cyclically, imports will increase — helping to moderate prices to consumers."

"Later, as part of the cycle in an agricultural business like ours, U. S. beef production likely will become burdensome again. At that time, imports will be decreased. The supply and price stability which will result from HR 11545 will benefit consumers as well as cattlemen."

Bliss said criticism of the bill by foreign nations was to be expected. "What these foreign critics fail to mention is that we already import more beef, by far, than any other nation," he said. "In fact, our imports account for 30 percent of all beef involved in world trade. Under our import law, we guarantee beef exporting nations a substantial share of our market, year after year."

"On the other hand, most other countries — including beef exporting countries which are now criticizing us — put up trade barriers which shut out competitive beef. Because of those barriers, we in the United States export only 0.2 percent of our beef production. Obviously, beef trade is not now a two-way street."

Desert Flora In Ag Spotlight

The landscape of the southwestern United States may see some distinct changes during the next 15 years as scientists identify an increasing number of desert shrubs which could be used to produce oils, rubber and industrial chemicals.

These shrubs grow wild in the arid and semi-arid regions of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California, but they may be cultivated on an organized basis for their commercial value.

Three such crops, jojoba, guayule, and proboscidea or devil's claw were discussed at the recent International Arid Lands Conference on Plant Resources at Texas Tech University.

Jojoba ("ho-ho-ba") is a desert shrub which grows naturally in parts of the Sonora Desert, near Phoenix and Tucson, and in parts of California.

The shrub produces unique oils and resins that can be used for manufacturing lubricants, floor waxes, furniture polish, and paper wax.

Dr. D.M. Yermonos, University of California, Riverside, a pioneer in research on jojoba, told conference delegates that "the commercial value of jojoba has already been proven, but there is need for greater acceptability from the farmers to produce it regularly."

"The average wax content of the jojoba seed ranges from 50 to 58 percent and an ordinary processing unit can extract the wax from the seed."

Jojoba grows under severe desert conditions and can withstand salinity, drought and high temperatures. Once planted, the shrub spreads itself and its roots prevent soil erosion. There is minimal need for fertilization.

"The shrub is not adaptable to colder conditions, especially below 5 degrees centigrade, and it cannot be cultivated on heavy soils. Besides, there is a five-year lag between planting and commercial utilization," Yermonos said.

Dr. George P. Hanson, Los Angeles State and County Arboretum, outlined progress made in production of guayule ("Wa-you-ley"), a desert shrub which yields rubber.

"Research of guayule," Hanson said, "has definitely proved that its rubber content could be a potential source to meet future rubber needs of the world."

But the economics of producing rubber from guayule is at this stage prohibitive for any commercial use.

"Rubber technology, harvesting methods, development of extraction processes and resin by-products and the price of rubber all will affect commercialization of guayule," he said.

A Firestone International office, Don Weihe, said that his company will be ready for a "pilot run" of a commercial processing plant by the late 1980s. He predicted that commercial guayule rubber may be on the market by early 1990s.

Gary Nabhan, University of Arizona, reported research progress on devil's claw, a desert plant native to the Southwest and northern Mexico.

Devil's claw is an oilseed crop grown by more than 10 southwestern American Indian groups for basket fiber.

"The domesticated plant bears fruit containing seeds which germinate reliably and rapidly and contain more unsaturated edible oil and more crude protein than any of the wild seeds in the Southwest," Nabhan said.

Additional research is needed on this crop and current investigations are examining the total gene pool available for crop improvement via hybridization.

The week-long international conference was sponsored by several agencies of the U.S. government, Texas Tech University and professional scientific associations.

Exchange's Cattle Futures Close Mixed

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures ended 47 points higher to 32 lower in reduced trade of 23,081 cars Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. January was up the most with October off the most after slipping 52. Nearby December was up 60 early.

Much of the trade was termed evening up ahead of President Carter's anti-inflation measures last night. Support was attracted after early selling failed to force prices through Monday's lows. Outlet pressure stemmed from heavy cattle runs and mostly lower prices along with slow beef demand.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 80 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. There were 500 deliveries.

Feeder cattle futures closed 47 to 150 higher led by October at a limit level advance. Exceptionally, May was off 2. Volume was 2,997 contracts.

The market rebounded after a loss of 57 on heavy cattle supplies and lower prices coupled with light beef demand.

There was also technical support after lows since August and evening up ahead of President Carter's speech.

Cash feeder cattle were steady to off $1 with the best top $76.50 per hundredweight at Fort Worth. There were 318 deliveries. Slaughter was 138,000 head. The major markets are expecting 5,500 head today.

Hog futures finished 2 to 45 higher led by October which gained 75 early. Sales totalled 7,000 cars. February lost 57 in early trade.

Initial selling came on heavy hog runs and lower prices along with setbacks in other meat pits. Traders were reluctant to press the short side after the lowest since September in recent days as they awaited President Carter's speech last evening.

Wholesale hams were up 3/4 to off 1/2 cent at 94 3/4 to 101 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to off $1.25 with the best top $53 per hundredweight. Receipts at the major terminals are expected to be 26,500 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures slipped 20 to 35 led by March at the day's low.

Sales numbered 5,793 cars. The market weakened again on easy tone to cash bellies. Earlier, February was up 80.

Hog selling stemmed from heavy hog runs and lower prices and softness in other meat pits. Technical support was attracted, but follow through was lacking. Traders remained cautious ahead of President Carter's anti-inflation plans.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off 1 1/2 cent at 56 to 60A cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Howards Making Film Work Family Affair

ALL IN THE FAMILY — Ron Howard, right, stars in the TV series "Happy Days," but when he makes a movie it's a family affair. Ron's first television movie is "Cotton Candy," airing Thursday on NBC. Ron, director and executive producer, co-wrote the film with his brother Clint, center. Their father, Rance Howard, left background, is co-producer and has a part in the film. HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ron Howard stars in the TV series "Happy Days," but when he makes a movie it's strictly "All in the Family."

Howard's first movie for television is "Cotton Candy," airing Thursday on NBC. It's about a high school senior who finds success for the first time when he organizes a rock band — "Cotton Candy."

Howard cowrote the film with his brother Clint, directed and is executive producer. Clint Howard also stars in the movie, with Charles Martin Smith. Their father, Rance Howard, is coproducer and plays the high school vice principal, and their mother, Jean, plays a teacher. Ron's wife, Cheryl, is Clint's date at the prom. Ron Howard had a brief appearance, but it was cut out.

The movie is from Major H Productions, a Howard family enterprise. "Cotton Candy," like "Happy Days" and "American Graffiti," in which Howard starred with Smith, is about high school life.

"Clint and I wanted to go for as much honesty as possible," said Howard. "It's not in the tone of 'Happy Days.' If it's imitative of anything it's 'American Graffiti.' 'Happy Days' is a fantasy. Everything is larger than life.

"This is a fairy tale, too, in that everything works out in the end, but we tried to build it out of honest characters."

"Cotton Candy" was conceived by the Howards as a movie, but NBC liked it enough to order six story outlines and two scripts for a possible series.

The movie uses original music, with two of the tunes composed by Smith. Howard said that unlike "The Monkees" he cast the band with actors who also are musicians, and they play their own instruments.

"We wanted to do it a legitimately as possible," he said. "That's why I did so many shots starting out on the instruments and then panning up to the faces. That was to show people we weren't trying to trick them."

Ron Howard, like Michael Landon of "Little House on the Prairie," is developing a variety of filmmaking talents. Landon stars in the NBC series, is executive producer and frequently writes and directs.

Howard got his directing career under way recently when he cowrote the theatrical movie "Grand Theft Auto" with his father and directed and starred in it.

He made his film debut at the age of four in "The Journey." He appeared in numerous TV shows, notably as Opie on "The Andy Griffith Show." He was also in such movies as "The Music Man" and "The Courtship of Eddie's Father."

Howard, 24, starred in the Disney movie "Wild Country" with his brother Clint, 19. Clint Howard starred in the TV series "Gentle Ben," "The Baileys of Balboa," "The Cowboys," and the TV movie "The Red Pony."

Several Questions Unanswered In PBS Special 'The Collection'

NEW YORK (AP) — Take an early play by that master of menace Harold Pinter, add performances by Laurence Lord Olivier and Alan Bates, and you have a recipe for an hour of engrossing television.

That's just what the Public Broadcasting Service is dishing up tonight when it presents "The Collection" as part of its Great Performance series. The program will air in Lubbock at 8 p.m. on Channel 5.

LAURENCE OLIVIER

Engrossing, yet frustrating, because like all Pinter's works, "The Collection" deliberately raises far more questions than it answers.

The plot revolves around a sordid sexual encounter that either did or did not take place during a dress designers' convention in a hotel in Leeds, England, between Stella, who is married to James, and Bill, who lives with Harry.

At first it seems a simple case of jealousy on the part of James, who confronts Bill and gets him to admit that he slept with Stella. But is Bill simply pretending he is guilty to goad James on? Is James suffering from paranoid delusions, as Stella tells Harry? Did Stella make the whole thing up, as Harry tells James? Or did the two merely talk of having an affair?

The mystery grows impenetrable, as each explanation is presented plausibly and then called into question, with none of the four characters reliable enough for the audience to trust.

Pinter uses his gift for dialogue that is mundane yet faintly ominous to create an atmosphere charged with violence, although little of it is allowed to break through onto the stage.

"Got any olives?" James demands wildly and irrelevantly after first forcing his way into Bill's home. "How did you know my name?" a frightened Bill responds.

James: "No olives?"
Bill: "Olives. I'm afraid not."
James: "You mean to say you don't keep olives for your guests?"
Bill: "You're not my guest, you're an intruder. What can I do for you?"
James is played with marvelously understand passion by Bates, known to American audiences as the artist in "An Unmarried Woman" and as the title character in Masterpiece Theatre's "Mayor of Casterbridge."

Olivier, who also served as co-producer, has the smaller role of Harry, and he is perhaps too old for the character described by Pinter as in his 40s. But Olivier's every expression and gesture is a model of the actor's art as he moves from petulant bewilderment at a disruption in his routine to apparent mastery of the situation, excoriating Bill in the play's most scathing speech as "a slum slug... (who) crawls all over the walls of nice houses, leaving slime."

Malcolm McDowell, who starred in "If... and "A Clockwork Orange" plays Bill, and Helen Mirren, little known in this country, is Stella.

"The Collection" was first performed on British television in 1961 and later was presented on stage.

Yanks Help NBC To Second Week In TV Top Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees wrapped up the World Series in six games, but the huge television audience for the deciding contest helped NBC to a second straight first-place finish in the networks' ratings race.

The sixth and final game of the series Tuesday night between the Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers was beamed into an estimated 28.7 million homes, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

NBC may have hoped for a full seven-game series to add to its ratings punch, but an episode of "Little House on the Prairie" Monday night served the network as well. The popular drama was No. 2 in the ratings for the week ending Oct. 22.

That, coupled with the fact that ABC and CBS divided the next eight places equally, was enough to decide the week's competition in favor of NBC.

NBC's rating for the week was 19.8, a shade better than ABC's 19.7. CBS, for the fifth week in a row — the new TV season is but five weeks along — was third, at 17.8.

The networks say that means in an average prime time minute during the week, 19.8 percent of the homes in the country were tuned to NBC.

The rating for the World Series finale was 35.9, a full seven points better than the runnerup. Nielsen says that means 35.9 percent of the homes in the country with TV saw at least part of the baseball game.

Until the World Series, ABC had dominated the ratings competition, and there was little reason to believe last season's winner would not recover its place at the top. Three ABC perennials and one of the network's new shows were in the first 10. No. 3 "Charlie's Angels" and No. 6 "Mork and Mindy" finishing strongest.

Another sign in ABC's favor could be found toward the bottom of the week's ratings. NBC had three shows in the last five. No. 61 "Lifeline," No. 63 "Dick Clark's Live Wednesday" and No. 64 "Project U.F.O." CBS had two, "Paper Chase" 62nd and "American Girls," on the verge of cancellation, 65th.

Here are the week's Top 10 shows:

World Series Game 6, with a rating of 35.9 representing 26.7 million homes, and "Little House on the Prairie," 28.9 or 21.5 million, both NBC; "Charlie's Angels," 27.1 or 20.2 million, ABC; CBS Sunday Movie—"Like Mom, Like Me," 26.1 or 19.4 million; "All in the Family," 25.9 or 19.3 million, CBS; "Mork and Mindy," 25.6 or 19.1 million, ABC; "Alice," 25.1 or 18.7 million, CBS; "Three's Company," 24.9 or 18.6 million, ABC; "60 Minutes," 24.7 or 18.4 million, CBS, and "Laverne and Shirley," 24.3 or 18.1 million, ABC.

The next 10 shows: "Happy Days," ABC; "One Day at a Time," CBS; "Barney Miller," ABC; "Lou Grant," CBS, and "Vegas," ABC; "Eight is Enough," ABC; "Barnaby Jones," CBS; "Operation Petticoat," ABC; "Rescue from Gilligan's Island," NBC, and World Series Pre-Game, NBC, and ABC Sunday Movie—"Final Chapter: Walking Tall," tie.

Mehta Brings Cordiality To N.Y. Music Scene

NEW YORK (AP) — Zubin Mehta has taken over as music director of the New York Philharmonic, and skies over Avery Fisher Hall are blue, maybe even cloudless.

Mehta got nationwide exposure during his second week on the job. Two concerts were televised, each with a prestigious soloist, pianists Rudolf Serkin and Vladimir Horowitz.

Subscription audiences, meantime, appear to like Mehta and are pleased by his choice of music for the season. Pierre Boulez, Mehta's predecessor, was more fond of modern music than is the philharmonic's subscription audience.

During a break in a recent rehearsal, the atmosphere under Mehta was relaxed and cordial. A couple of musicians asks the director questions, which he answers. A difference of opinion with a union representative is handled amicably on both sides.

Seniors Organizing City Domino Club

A group of senior citizens are organizing a domino club which will meet daily at 2 p.m. in room 111 of the Whiteside Building at the Executive Center, located on Avenue K.

Membership is open to all ages. A nominal membership fee will be charged. Interested persons may call 763-7234.

DIRECTING NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC — Conductor Zubin Mehta, with baton in hand, directs the New York Philharmonic in rehearsal last month as pianist Vladimir Horowitz performs in the foreground. Mehta, who recently took over as director of the philharmonic, has been received with great enthusiasm by the New York orchestra and its audience. (AP Laserphoto)

Mehta needs a telephone, and a philharmonic employee points, "Zubin, it's it's on that wall over there," using the conductor's first name instead of the "maestro" some conductors demand.

The job of leading the New York Philharmonic is one of the big ones in the symphony world, but Mehta, 42 and a native of Bombay, was music director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic for the last 16 years. He begins his new work in a happy mood, hardly in awe of the job.

At his first philharmonic concert in mid-September, Mehta's dressing room was full of flowers, and the conductor felt it looked like a funeral parlor. When Isaac Stern and Daniel Barenboim arrived with congratulations, they found Mehta laid flat, among the bouquets, his hands folded and his eyes closed.

During the summer, Mehta led the New York Philharmonic on a 10-day tour of South America in 10 concerts in New York City parks.

"I'm glad we did Mahler's First Symphony on our tour," he said later. "So, on our first 'official' concert, the orchestra and I were not feeling each other out. We knew exactly what each other was going to do and we could be flexible to the hall's requirements."

"What we need to do now is establish a mellow style of playing in Avery Fisher Hall. This hall is very live."

"Our first concert on the tour was in absolutely the best hall in the world, the Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires. We also played a lot of open-air parks, at times under very trying conditions. That made us aware of each other," Mehta said.

The move from Los Angeles took Mehta and his wife, actress Nancy Kovack, from a house with a swimming pool. He was too busy to swim anyway, he said, and his wife has not done much acting in Hollywood in recent years.

The Mehtas, at the time, were in search of a permanent home, still living in a hotel. "My telephone is not working this morning. I get three or four images on the TV set. But I don't want to pack again," the conductor said. "I'm going to stick it out."

"Work is the same here as in Los Angeles. Pleasure is the same. Work is pleasure."

"Concerts are peace," he concluded. "They are without telephone calls, without meetings, without committees. It's the only two and one-half hours when I'm not talking. Concerts are absolutely heaven."

Writer Translates Whimsical "Puff" To Animated Program

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Puff, the Magic Dragon" is a magical song... a tale of whimsy... a tale of childhood.

It was a hit in the 1960s for Peter, Paul and Mary and has since become a popular children's song, known around the world.

"The song has endured," said Peter Yarrow, who wrote the tune and has turned it into an animated television special to be shown at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 30 on CBS.

"Puff was never just a children's song," he said. "It is also a song for adults, saying 'It is the innocence of our childhood, the vulnerability of a belief in things, whether it is idealism or a sense of whimsy. That is what 'Puff' is about."

"We need to believe in each other and in ourselves."

Yarrow and Leonard Lipton wrote the tune in 1959 between college exams. It was one of the first songs Yarrow wrote.

During the 1960s, when the song became a hit for the folksinging trio, the popular misconception was that Puff was about marijuana, an implication Yarrow emphatically denies.

It is, was and always has been about nothing more than a dragon and a boy, he insisted.

Yarrow said he was constantly approached through the years with offers to translate "Puff" to television, "but I wanted to do it myself. I wanted to wait until it could be done with the same sensitivity that is inherent in the song."

One evening at a party in Malibu, Yarrow sang "Puff." When he was done, he saw a large, burly man standing with tears in his eyes. He was animator Fred Wolf, who worked on the show with Charles Swenson.

Then Romeo Muller, who won a Peabody Award for the animated special "The Hobbit" and created "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," presented Yarrow with a two-page script that Yarrow said was "absolutely on target."

Yarrow, of course, did the soundtrack. He said the show, which took one and a half years to create, incorporates the song but does not follow the story line exactly.

"It takes it another step," he said. "Unlike the end of the song, when 'Jackie Paper comes no more' and 'Puff, that mighty dragon, sadly slipped into his cave,' Yarrow said the presumption in the television show is 'that something good might happen.'"

"Other children perhaps will play with Puff in other specials. The process continues. Perhaps adults will have some contact with Puff. The end of this show is very touching. It's a moving happy ending," he said.

Yarrow did not want to give away the ending, but did say the plot involves the dragon and two boys, a real Jackie Draper and an imaginary Jackie Paper, on adventures that bring them new understandings and help Jackie overcome his fears.

Puff's magic smoke allows them to see what is and what might be, the soft-spoken Yarrow said.

"It's not only an adventure story, but it has real content for us as adults," he added.

Sesame Goes Scientific

WASHINGTON (AP) — The folks who brought Big Bird and the Cookie Monster to television are preparing a major new educational TV series aimed at helping 8- to 12-year-olds understand science.

The series, premiering in January 1980, will seek to nourish the curiosity and soothe the fears about science among the nation's 14 million youngsters in grades four to seven, the Children's Television Workshop announced Tuesday.

A special target audience will be girls and minority children, who are both minorities in the realm of working scientists, said Joan Ganz Cooney, president of the workshop and creator of its highly successful "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" series.

Big Bird and the other muppets won't be venturing into labs for this show. It will include animation, music and comedy as well as documentaries in a "magazine" format and will feature "a new set of stars and techniques," said Mrs. Cooney.

The half-hour series is still nameless. One title under consideration, joked executive producer Samuel Y. Gibbon Jr.,

is "The Isaac Newton Comedy Hour."

The $9.6 million budget for the first 65 episodes is coming from the National Science Foundation ($3.5 million), United Technologies Corp. ($2 million), the U.S. Office of Education ($1.7 million and possibly an extra $500,000), an anticipated $750,000 from public television and $1.2 million from the workshop itself.

U.S. Commissioner of Education Ernest L. Boyer told reporters, "Television has become the great new teacher in our culture."

Film Examines Labor Movement In Today's South

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The American labor movement, which has taken its licks in recent films, will get a better break in the forthcoming "Norma Rae."

Labor has been an infrequent theme in films. The most notable example, the 1954 "On The Waterfront," detailed corruption in longshore unions.

The past year brought two films: "F.I.S.T.," in which Sylvester Stallone climbed to the top of a truckers' union by setting in bed with the Mafia; "Blue Collar," about assembly-line workers who used dope on off-hours and burglarized their own corrupt union.

"Norma Rae" is something different. The 20th Century-Fox release stars Sally Field as a mother of two children who is vilified and harassed because she tries to help organize a clothing mill in today's South. Beau Bridges is her husband, and Ron Leibman portrays a New York labor organizer.

The director and driving force behind "Norma Rae" is Martin Ritt, an old hand at causes. In fact, his advocacy helped get him blacklisted in the film industry in the 1950s.

"This is a strong, hard-nosed, affirmative picture," said the director, between editing sessions at Fox studios. "It's not depressing, because the process of growing up is not depressing. Norma Rae grows up as a result of contact with the union organizer, an intellectual Jew who has a kind of Pygmalion relationship with her, strictly platonic."

"On the other hand, it's not 'Rocky' either. It is a realistic view of the way certain companies treat labor in the South. For that reason, they're scared of it here."

SALLY AS NORMA — Actress Sally Field sits in a coffee shop in a scene from her latest movie, "Norma Rae," the story of a young mother who is vilified and harassed because she tries to help organize a clothing mill in today's South. (AP Laserphoto)

He meant at Fox. Because "Norma Rae" was not exactly surefire entertainment. Ritt and his longtime writers, Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank Jr., agreed to take half their regular salaries. Ritt filmed it in Opelika, Ala., under-budget and under-schedule for $4 million — "a fair price for a picture nowadays."

Ritt believes the film "goes against the conservative mood of the country" and hence will be a hard sell. He expects Fox to release it next March or April and allow it to build, as with "An Unmarried Woman" this year.

"I've always made pictures to suit me and that's why I'll never have a superhit," remarked Ritt whose chunky frame is always clad in a one-piece jump suit. "I suppose if 'Hud' had been released at a later time, it might have been a big hit. But audiences then were prepared for Paul Newman as a complete heel.

"All of my pictures have something to offend a certain part of the audience. There was one exception: 'Casey's Shadow,' which was released earlier this year. If ever I had a picture that was aimed at Orange County, that was it. A nice, pleasant, amusing picture. And nobody went to see it. Not that Columbia did badly; I understand they sold the TV rights for $2.5 million.

"I give up. I don't understand the film market today, when a piece of junk like 'Grease' becomes a big hit."

Ritt's other films include "The Long Hot Summer," "The Spy Who Came in from the Cold," "Hombre," "The Great White Hope," "Sounder," "Pete 'n' Tillie" and "The Front."

He said he was first attracted to "Norma Rae" by reading a New York Times article about a woman leader who was hounded by the management of southern mill. "That sounds like a class lady," he observed, and he worked with the Ravetches in creating a script that turned out to be a composite of women organizers.

"I had trouble selling the picture; one studio turned me down before Fox agreed to go ahead with it," said Ritt. "We had problems finding a location in the South because the mills are run like feudal systems. Finally, we found Opelika, which turned out to be very hospitable. No wonder. We left a million dollars in the town.

Late Selling Dips Market

NEW YORK (AP) — A late round of selling pinned the stock market with another loss Tuesday as traders cautiously awaited President Carter's inflation message.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had been up for four days, closed with a 7.11-point loss at a three-month low of 832.55.

The average has now given up 64.54 points since the start of last week.

The daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange showed about five issues declining for every four that gained ground.

The big names in the list posted some of the day's largest losses — a bit of a switch from last week, when the blue chips in the Dow battered though they were, suffered less dramatic declines than many of the secondary issues.

International Business Machines was off 3 1/2 at 275 as the 4 p.m. close. Mobil lost 1 1/2 to 66 1/2. Pont 2 1/4 to 127 1/4, and Eastman Kodak 1 1/4 to 59 1/4.
