Negotiations Resume

Carter Persuades Sadat To Keep Trying

WASHINGTON (AP) — The trouble-plagued Mideast peace talks seemed headed back on course Saturday as President Carter said he had persuaded Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to keep his negotiators here.

Without any announcement, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance resumed informal and separate sessions with the Israeli and Egyptian delegations in an effort to conclude a peace treaty between the two countries.

They were understood to be reviewing proposed revisions in the treaty. The meetings lasted approximately one hour each. No sessions were scheduled for Sunday. The principal issue in dispute was how firmly to link the treaty to future negotiations on the status of the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Egypt is determined to show the Arab world it is protecting the interests of the 1.1 million Palestinians living there. Consequently, Egypt wants the connection to be clear and strong.

Israel, taking the position that a treaty with Egypt is separate from the Palestinian issue, wants the loosest possible link expressed.

The Egyptian negotiators, it was learned, had tentatively scheduled flights back to Cairo over the weekend amid reports that they had been ordered home by Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil.

However, President Carter, at a campaign stop in Buffalo, N.Y., announced he had succeeded in getting Sadat to change his mind about recalling the negotiators.

Carter, departing from a prepared address, said: "I contacted President Sadat last night and said 'leave your negotiators in Washington.'

"He sent me word this morning, 'I'll do what my friend, Jimmy Carter, asked me. They're going to stay and negotiate.'

Campaigning later Saturday in Hartford, Conn., however, Carter told a small group of reporters that he had not spoken to Sadat directly by telephone. "We sent him a message," the president said to a small group of reporters who accompanied him to a fund-raising affair.

Carter said Sadat sent a return message, saying "as long as I wanted Egyptian negotiators here, he would leave them in Washington."

Sadat, in an interview with reporters for American television networks, confirmed in Cairo Saturday that despite the "very serious" obstacles in the peace negotiations, he has decided to keep the Egyptian delegation in Washington.

Sadat also confirmed that it was at Carter's request that he reconsidered a decision to recall the negotiators. The Egyptian president said his American counterpart had been "very worried" at reports of the recall plans.

As Air Force One traveled from Buffalo to Hartford, deputy press secretary Rex Granum told reporters that Carter's announcement about Sadat had come as a surprise even to him.

Meanwhile, a source close to the peace talks told reporters at the State Department that the Egyptian delegation had not been informed of any decision by Sadat to recall his negotiators.

The source, insisting on anonymity, said the Egyptians informed Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance during a meeting late Friday that no decision had yet been taken on whether they would go home.

According to this account, Carter, seeing television reports that Prime Minister Khalil had ordered the delegation back to Cairo, telephoned Vance during the secretary's meeting with the Egyptians.

While it seemed clear that, in any event, the negotiators would have returned within a few days, their recall even for "consultations" would have cast a shadow over the negotiations.

Besides differences over treaty provisions, a decision by the Israeli Cabinet to "thicken" Jewish settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in Gaza has complicated efforts to conclude the historic agreement between Israel and Egypt — the framework of which was laid at the Camp David summit.

Hill expressed strong support for the tax relief constitutional amendment on the Nov. 7 ballot, for which he claimed partial credit, but said he believes it should go further.

Clements, however, said he did not think Hill had anything to do with it.

"Briscoe did it. Hill is for freezing taxes — I'm for reducing taxes."

Hill countered that he advocates cutting property taxes on the local level, with a freeze only on the state level.

Gubernatorial Hopefuls Praise Briscoe Ideas

DALLAS (UPI) — Gubernatorial candidates Bill Clements and John Hill found a surprisingly bipartisan point to agree on during a televised debate Saturday — the good works of Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Democratic nominee Hill, the current attorney general, said his philosophy is much the same as Briscoe's and that he plans to continue those ideas, but using a different approach.

Republican Clements agreed, saying Briscoe had been "good for the state," and both candidates said they would work to get more recognition for Texas in Washington.

Hill expressed strong support for the tax relief constitutional amendment on the Nov. 7 ballot, for which he claimed partial credit, but said he believes it should go further.

Clements, however, said he did not think Hill had anything to do with it.

"Briscoe did it. Hill is for freezing taxes — I'm for reducing taxes."

Hill countered that he advocates cutting property taxes on the local level, with a freeze only on the state level.

Clements suggested abolishing the state ad valorem tax and reducing the sales tax by 1 cent.

Hill defended the ad valorem tax, which he said amounts to only 20 cents per month per taxpayer and is used for some 17 universities in Texas for important educational purposes. He also said he would veto any proposed state income tax.

On energy, Clements said he would plan to tax resources leaving the state.

Asked if that was not in conflict with a recent decision that such a tax is illegal, Clements noted New Mexico, Oklahoma and Montana have the tax.

"I do not think they have declared the tax unconstitutional," he said.

Work Program Aids, But Often Abused

THE FEDERAL government annually pours more than $2 million into local CETA programs. Critics call it a godsend for the unemployed.

The truth probably falls between the two extremes. For every tale of mismanagement critics tell, CETA-connected agencies can cite happy-ending success stories.

For example, there is the Title VI Comprehensive Employment Training Act participant who eventually became a CETA counselor.

Or the woman with a master's degree in special education who landed a permanent job after having a temporary one subsidized by CETA funds. And there is the wayward teenager, a potential high school dropout, who participated in CETA's youth programs and eventually attended law school.

Add in the numerous less spectacular stories of formerly unemployed or unemployable who secured jobs because of training or work experience they received in the programs.

Johnita Franklin, director of SER, a

CETA subcontractor, perhaps best summed up the controversy over the federal job training program by pragmatically saying:

"I know it (the program) is abused, but I know it's needed. It's got a small percentage that abuse it, but you can't make them all (participants) pay. I don't know what people would do if they didn't have the program."

The unemployed, underemployed and unemployable managed as best they could until 1973, when Congress approved legislation creating CETA.

CETA programs are administered differently throughout the nation. The South Plains Association of Governments serves as the prime sponsor for programs in the City of Lubbock and Lubbock, Garza and Hale counties.

Although it retains administrative control of CETA, SPAG subcontracts with other agencies such as SER and Lubbock slipshod practices which have received little public attention is causing some speculation about other possible pockets of mismanagement.

The LOIC audit case alone prompted Lubbock County Judge Rod Shaw to speculate. "If they violate the contract in ways the audit can catch, and this is the tip of the iceberg, what the iceberg look like?"

Shaw, who said he publicly questioned the audit discrepancies because of a SPAG staff inclination to "sweep it under the carpet," added he wondered whether the board ever would have learned of it, explaining the SPAG staff became aware of the audit's discrepancies in August but did not notify the governing body.

In the past, he added, the board never has known of or reviewed LOIC audits.

He said he learned of the present one accidentally from a Texas Employment Commission employee.

The audit, covering six months beginning in April, when LOIC took over its own payroll system for student allowances, notes:

"Numerous discrepancies exist in excused and unexcused student absences at training facilities. 'Someone without authority or certification responsibility,' meaning counselors, repeatedly changed records to excuse students and in some cases to show they attended school when they were absent, the audit said.

•Of the 22 CETA students audited at a facility's welding and auto mechanic class, "only seven were actually in class, five were absent, seven were on interviews and three had been terminated," the audit report said.

•Records at LOIC itself "were in poor shape." An "exceptional amount of ex-

At Thanksgiving, it is fitting that we act on the true meaning of the holiday and share our gift of food," said Dr. Paul McCleary of Church World Service, the relief arm of the National Council of Churches.

McCleary said "hunger is a non-partisan, ecumenical problem which must be addressed on the broadest possible scale."

"Together, by pooling our resources and expertise, we can develop new and more effective channels for increasing the world's food resources and improving the quality of life," he said.

The Thanksgiving Hunger Fund will use radio and television public service announcements in an effort to get Americans to donate $10, the cost of a Thanksgiving meal, to help alleviate hunger.

The funds will go into long-term programs aimed at increasing food production and eradicating the root causes of world hunger, organizers of the project said.

Church Relief Units Join Hunger Effort

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The relief agencies of America's three major religions have joined in an unprecedented effort to combat a world hunger crisis said to kill more than one-third of all children in developing countries.

The three agencies — the Protestant-Orthodox Church World Service, Catholic Relief Services and the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee — have launched a "Thanksgiving Hunger Fund" to help feed the world's poor.

It was the first time the three faiths have joined together in a unified, fund-raising effort.

"We consider it our immediate duty to make the right to eat possible for all members of the family of man," said Bishop Edwin Broderick of Catholic Relief Services.

Broderick said "few Americans are aware of the magnitude of world hunger" — a crisis that he said is expected to kill some 15 million people of starvation or hunger-related diseases in 1978.

The coalition said one-third of all children in developing countries die from malnutrition before age 5 and more than a million suffer brain damage each year from lack of food.

"At Thanksgiving, it is fitting that we act on the true meaning of the holiday and share our gift of food," said Dr. Paul McCleary of Church World Service, the relief arm of the National Council of Churches.

Cracker Jack Toys Need Okay Of 'Prize Lady'

By JULES LOH

AP Special Correspondent
CHICAGO (AP) — Remember the little tin cricket you used to get in the Cracker Jack box? Pinch it and it went "click click." Somebody always had one in school, or in church.

Well, it wouldn't make it as a Cracker Jack prize today. Neither would the locomotive or the sheriff's badge.

"The government, you know," Sue Reedquist sighed. "The Food and Drug Administration is pretty strict about sharp edges and parts that might break off."

If you've ever wondered who picks the prizes for the Cracker Jack box it is she, Sue Reedquist, the unsung heroine of those who open 400 million Cracker Jack boxes a year. She, too, is pretty strict about what tiny treasure goes inside.

She is a pleasant woman, a former art teacher in elementary school. She knows kids. After seven years of selecting about 1,000 prizes a year, she also knows toys. At the Cracker Jack company, they call her the prize lady.

"The toys have to be simple," she said, sorting through a pile of possibilities offered by manufacturers for her inspection.

"They have to appeal to kids from 3 to 12, mainly from 5 to 12, and they must know what it is, know what to do with it, right away."

"We don't promise anything elaborate.

Davis Jury Selection To Begin

HOUSTON (UPI) — Barring another delay, jury selection will begin Monday for the capital murder solicitation trial of Fort Worth millionaire T. Cullen Davis, his second criminal prosecution in little more than a year.

Defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes estimated it will take about a week to choose the 12 men and women, plus alternates, who will consider charges Davis tried to have his divorce judge killed.

The trial, moved from Davis' hometown because of publicity, was expected to take at least a month.

The proceedings may be interrupted briefly by a scheduled hearing before the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin Nov. 7 when the defense will seek Davis' release on bond. State District Judge Wallace "Pete" Moore has refused to free Davis on bond pending trial.

Davis, 45, is charged with trying to hire the murder of Fort Worth Judge Joe Eldon, who since has withdrawn from Davis' stormy and still incomplete divorce case against his wife, Priscilla.

Prosecutors expect to present tape recordings of Davis' conversations, including one in which he allegedly said to an FBI informant, "Good," when shown phony pictures indicating Eldon had been killed.

the ball game seems to get a different prize. Each one goes into the box by hand.

"Look what happens when she doesn't put one in," Sue Reedquist said. The prize inserter, looking pained, held one back.

When the faulted box passed the first electric eye the machine did not simply reject it but dashed it into a waste bin, peanut popcorn and all, as a kid 3 to 12 might do if his box held no prize.

"Cracker Jack has been using prizes since 1912," Sue Reedquist said. "No telling how many different ones we've had. We've hired a librarian to catalogue them."

"In our vault we have about 10,000 from the early years. People all over the country collect them. Some are quite valuable. I know of one that sold for $300. A Cracker Jack prize, can you imagine?"

"The toys change with the times, but we have our standbys: the magnifying glass, the game where you roll the balls in the holes, joke and riddle books."

"A lot of care goes into this. It's important to us that they always remain a pleasant little surprise," she said.

Just how important is evident by a tubular device on Sue Reedquist's desk. She had it made special by a machinist. It is the simulated esophagus of a 3-year-old.

If a toy fits in the tube it does not go in

INTRODUCING

PATS

Plains Automatic Transfer Service

to give you:

- ★ No-service-charge checking
- ★ Special overdraft protection
- ★ Easy access to your savings account
- ★ Maximum interest on savings
- ★ Your own checking account reserve
- ★ More flexibility with your money

WHAT is PATS?

PATS is the Plains Automatic Transfer Service which links savings accounts and checking accounts to give you greater convenience. Effective November 1, 1978, Plains National Bank can automatically transfer funds from your savings to your checking account, if you choose to use either of the PATS plans.

WHY is PATS important to you?

PATS gives you greater financial flexibility and helps you use your money more efficiently. Here are just a few of the many advantages this great new service offers you:

★ No-service-charge checking

PATS maintains a minimum daily balance in your checking account through automatic transfer from savings. You won't pay a service charge on your checking account if you maintain a sufficient balance in your savings account.

★ Special overdraft protection

PATS assures you overdraft protection through automatic transfer from savings to checking. So long as you have the funds at or above the minimum savings balance, you won't have a check returned for insufficient funds.

★ Maximum interest on your savings

PATS allows you to put more of your money in your Plains National savings account, where it will draw interest until it's needed in your checking account.

★ Easy access to your savings account

PATS gives you access to your savings account through automatic transfer to checking. Want to make a spur-of-the-moment purchase? Need extra money for an emergency? As long as you have the minimum balance in your savings account, you can write the check, and funds to cover it will be transferred automatically to your checking account.

HOW does PATS work?

With your authorization, the Plains will link your savings and checking accounts, allowing automatic transfer of funds, when needed, to protect your checking account, save checking account service charges and avoid overdrafts. You can choose from two different PATS plans: PATS I, to provide you with no-service-charge checking and overdraft protection; or PATS II, for overdraft protection only.

Then, depending on which plan you use, a minimum amount will be automatically transferred from savings to checking, when needed, to maintain a minimum checking account balance or to cover overdrafts.

WHO can take advantage of PATS?

Anyone with both a checking and a savings account at the Plains can sign up for PATS. To take advantage of this new service, however, a depositor must maintain a minimum balance of $300 in savings.

WHERE can you find out more about PATS?

To get more information about PATS, come in and talk to one of our PATS specialists in New Accounts. They'll be glad to answer any questions you may have about the service, explain the qualifications needed to take advantage of it, and show you how it can save you money and give you added protection and convenience. Detailed brochures, application forms, and authorization contracts may also be obtained at New Accounts.

Past Life Recalled By Collage

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Alan Sonfist was growing up in New York City's South Bronx, he spent a lot of his time in one of the city's last virgin forests, a grove of hemlocks.

Now he is an artist reflecting his reaction to nature, using natural materials and photographs. He uses paper, canvas, charcoal, seeds, twigs, leaves and photographs to create images that he calls his autobiography.

He is the subject of an exhibition just put on display at the Smithsonian Institution's National Collection of Fine Arts. In addition to his visual essays on trees and forests, Sonfist with the aid of a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, is reforesting a small plot of land on the East Side of New York, recreating what existed in precolonial days — grasses, wildflowers, shrubs and trees.

Some will question whether this is high art, but it is indisputable that his work is a personal statement.

He shows seed pods, twigs and tree flowers in bottles. He does bark rubbings of tree trunks, using a resin pencil to which he had added lampblack.

One work is a piece of handsomely grained plywood mounted in a frame which, the 32-year-old Sonfist says, contains hidden objects from his childhood: collected twigs and messages he wrote to himself. They are not visible in the exhibition.

There is a handsome large canvas which Sonfist placed on the ground one autumn and allowed coloring leaves to fall on it, later covering the collage with wax to preserve it. Other collages are made with autumn leaves in colors of burnt orange and browns.

Others use color photographs.

Peter Bermingham, a former curator at the gallery who arranged the show, describes some of these in the catalogue.

"Each collage depicts a forest scene in two color photographs that differ in details, season, perspective, and or time of photography," he says.

"Beneath the photographs, as though part of the ground covering from which the forest arises and into which elements will be absorbed, are a few fragments selected from the site shown in the photographs.

"These may include the feather of a forest bird, or a rime-shaped twig, a leaf folded like a cyralsis, or a crumbling sliver of glacial rock.

"As ephemeral or long-enduring survivors in time, they are symbolic witnesses to the changes, incidents and transmutations that constituted the history of the forest which, through his relationship with it, is part of Sonfist's own history."

Threat Of Drugs Cancels Christmas Food For Prison

CANON CITY, Colo. (UPI) — Maximum security inmates at the Colorado State Penitentiary will pass the holiday season without cookies, cakes and other edible goodies because the gifts often are laced with drugs, officials said.

Prison officials routinely inspect all articles sent to prisoners, and the holiday season increases the load as well as the number of gifts that contain contraband material, said program manager Carlos Baca.

Last winter up to eight parcels a day were found to contain narcotics, and Baca said officials decided to ban all gifts this year rather than continue the time-consuming inspection program.

He said the most ingenious scheme discovered was a sender who soaked a package of crackers, split each wafer open, filed the space with drugs and reassembled the crackers for mailing.

Prisoners yearning for holiday treats can fill their sweet tooth requirements at the canteen, Baca said. He said similar restrictions apply to publications, as inmates can only receive magazines and books mailed directly from the booksore or publishers.

NHTSA Chief Asks Continued Free Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration urged the major oil companies Friday to continue providing free compressed air for tires at service stations.

Administrator Joan Claybrook said in a letter to the companies that an apparent trend toward charging customers for the air cannot be very profitable and could cost lives.

"Certainly the small cost of this service, or the additional income that one may obtain by charging for pressurized air, cannot be sufficient to offset the potential degradation in safety or tire life that could result from charging for air to inflate tires," she said.

Pharmacy Owner, Remedies Under Investigation

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A Mexican man who practices a form of healing he says "makes you sicker to get you well" has closed his store here in the face of questions from state agencies.

Since June, Dr. Ismael Garza has been advertising that the assorted remedies sold at his Dr. Hahnemann's homeopathic pharmacy can successfully treat such problems as asthma, obesity, hemorrhoids, wanting to cry and other assorted maladies.

Dr. Hahnemann was the man who founded the practice of homeopathy in 1796. The formal definition says it is the "medical practice holding that disease is cured by remedies which produce on a healthy person effects similar to the symptoms of the complaint of the person."

"Through the years doctors have been against it because it is an unknown," Garza told the Brownsville Herald a few days before he hung a "temporarily closed for inventory" sign on his store.

Garza said he consults with patients before suggesting a treatment. The treatments come in $5-per-bottle pills his wife dispenses at the downtown store.

One woman who complained of a head cold and sore throat was sold three types of pills. The labels identified the pills as mercurius benoid, nat mur and spongia.

A state board of pharmacy official said nat mur is apparently salt and the mercurius benoid was "some kind of mercury — but 'benoid'?" We never heard of it."

And spongia is apparently "roasted sponge," according to Fred Brinkley, director of the State Pharmacy Board.

"We are aware of the situation down there and so is the state medical board — that's all I can tell you now," Brinkley said.

Garza's store — billed as a pharmacy — apparently violates state law in that Garza is not a licensed pharmacist.

He also is not a doctor, according to the list of physicians maintained by the State Board of Medical Examiners in Austin.

Certificates on the wall of the store identify Garza as a doctor and he is listed in the phone book as "Garza, Ismael M.D."

"We've never heard of him," a medical examiners board spokesman said. "He has no Texas license, no temporary license and no permit to operate (as a physician) in the state."

Garza pleads ignorance.

"I do not believe I am doing anything illegal but the laws here may be different from what I think," he said through an interpreter.

Garza said he is a 1964 graduate of a Mexico City School of Homeopathy. The director of a Matamoros, Mexico, health center said the school is a recognized school of homeopathic medicine. But Dr.

Jorge Burguete Rovira said graduates of the school cannot perform surgery or prescribe drugs without a special permit.

Garza denied telling the phone company he is a medical doctor.

"I told them I am a doctor but I did not tell them to put M.D. after my name," he said.

Garza has a chain of seven homeopathic pharmacies in Mexico. Since opening the "pharmacy" here he has attracted a loyal local following.

Teresa Maza said her young son has suffered from chronic bronchitis that medical doctors seemed unable to control.

The child began feeling better after

Garza put him on a homeopathic regimen.

But Friday, one day after Garza was quoted as saying "whatever happens, I will not close down," the door was locked on the store.

John Sartore, chief investigator for the board of medical examiners, said Garza is apparently violating state law by taking "indirect payment" for medical services.

Bullock Responds To Media Probe

AUSTIN (UPI) — Comptroller Bob Bullock — breaking his self-imposed ban on commenting about allegations of wrongdoing in his office — Saturday angrily denounced a newspaper report suggesting impropriety in the state's lease of an Austin bank building.

"That story is false and libelous," Bullock told UPI.

Bullock said he, rather than Deputy Comptroller Ralph Wayne, was responsible for his agency's leasing of the former headquarters of American National Bank and initiated the financial arrangement in a good deal for the state.

"When this building came up, I thought it was just what the doctor ordered to fill my space requirement," Bullock said. "Ralph Wayne didn't make that decision to rent that building. The head of the creek did it. I did it. I'm the one that did it and I'm the one that's responsible."

Bullock said he refused to comment earlier on the article in the Austin American-Statesman because he was weary of talking with a parade of reporters about everything from a Travis County Grand Jury investigation of alleged misuse of state workers and equipment to his own health and personal pronouncements.

"I discussed everything from my eyes to my rectum," Bullock said.

He said he even told his physician to talk candidly with reporters about his treatment for mental depression and anxiety. "I've got hemorrhoids bad and we went through that.... There's just one thing I haven't had my say on and that's this tank thing."

"I probably have ended up with the finest building of any state department — one ideally suited to the needs of the department now and in the future," he said.

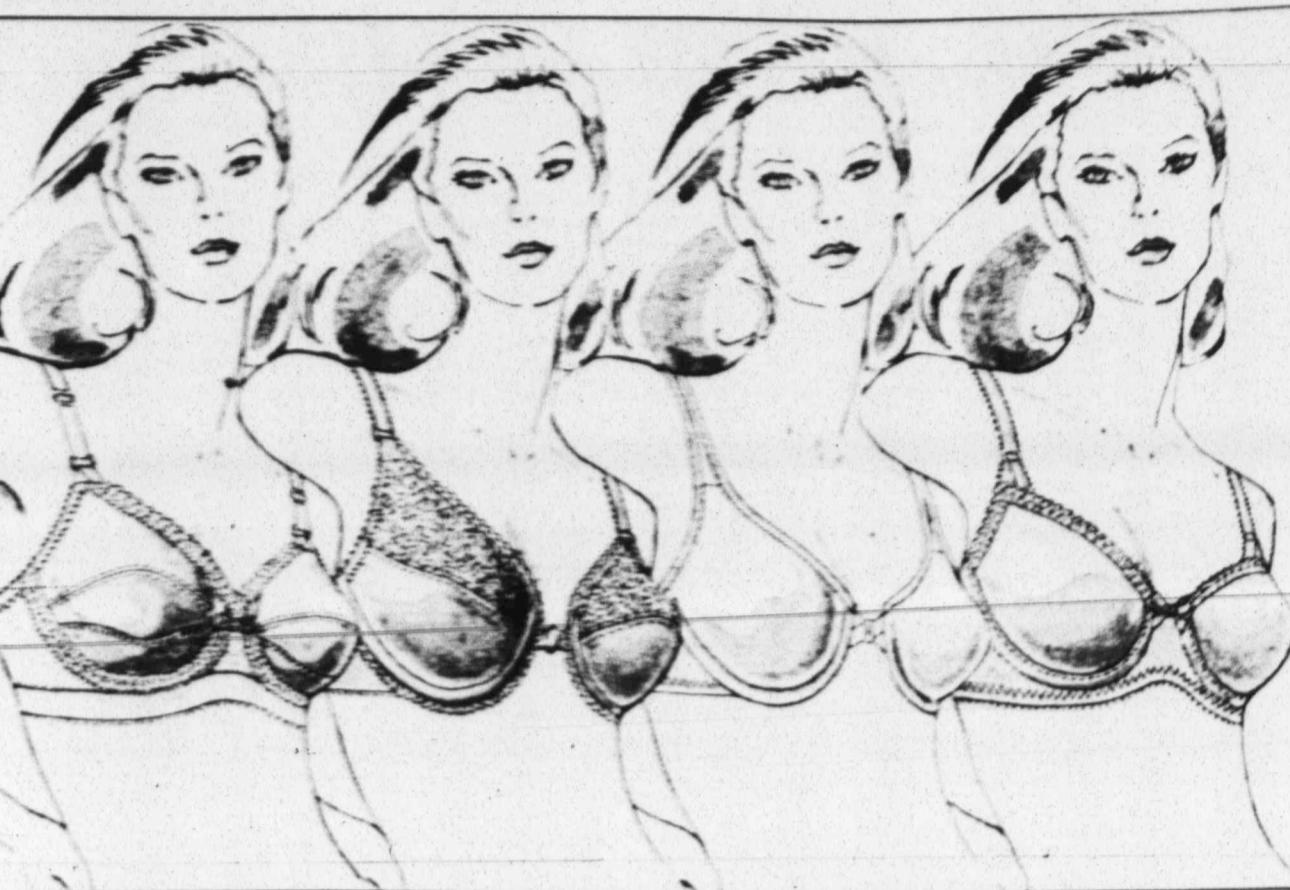

The article indicated the comptroller's office took three inexpensive leases last year to move into more expensive property owned by a bank with which Wayne has business dealings.

The state said Wayne's personal business has absolutely nothing to do with the comptroller's office leasing American National's former downtown headquarters.

Bullock said he thinks the article believed Wayne and the bank and may result in a lawsuit.

The possibility of me ever winning a gubernatorial — me — is almost nil. Once you're elected you're just automatically a public official and that's open season 12 months a year, 365 days. Even a deer's got a better deal than we've got. You can only go after them part of November and December. But that's not current with Ralph. They've got to prove he was a state official. He's only a state employee.

He said he even told his physician to

Russian Experts Say Carter's Policy Vacillates

MOSCOW (UPI) — To one of the Soviet Union's top "Americanologists", Jimmy Carter's true policy toward Russia probably won't emerge until after the Nov. 7 elections.

"I don't regard President Carter as a weak president," said Georgi Arbatov, director of the Institute on U.S.A. and Canada Studies in a recent interview. "But he has not proved himself to be a strong president, either."

Arbatov, an alternate member of the Communist Party Central Committee, is said to compete with Anatoly Dobrynin, Soviet ambassador to Washington, in assessing U.S. political developments for the Kremlin.

A frequent visitor to the United States, Arbatov said he and his colleagues find Carter's Soviet policy marked by vacillations with no firm direction. This, he conceded, probably was not unusual for a new president.

"My colleagues and I recently made a study of American presidents and how long it took for their policy toward the Soviet Union to emerge," he said.

He said it usually took about two years "through the midterm elections of the first term, for the administration's policy to become clearly defined."

Soviet leaders are worried, he said, that the ambiguity of Carter's policy has permitted conservative U.S. politicians to grow in influence.

The critical test will be whether Carter can persuade the Senate to ratify the new, but still incomplete, U.S.-Soviet pact to limit strategic arms.

If the Senate approves a SALT treaty, Arbatov said, the atmosphere of mutual relations will improve substantially and progress can be expected in other areas.

Should it be rejected, mutual ties will suffer badly.

"If SALT fails," Arbatov said, "it shouldn't, in principle, prevent progress in other areas. But it would be unhealthy and I don't know how long the readiness on our side to work for improvement of relations would last."

Arbatov denied the Soviet Union wants to build up a presidential challenger for 1980, namely Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., because Carter has been difficult to deal with.

Kennedy recently visited Moscow and conferred with President Leonid Brezhnev. On returning home, Kennedy said Soviet authorities would permit a number of citizens to emigrate.

"We don't want to try to build up any one figure or another," Arbatov said. "We are too mature for that kind of interference in internal affairs."

He said Soviet leaders believe relations between the superpowers ultimately will improve.

"Detente has shown a very strong force for survival because it has become clear that it is more and more fruitless to return to the Cold War years," Arbatov said. "There is no alternative."

Austrian Chancellor Fights With Protester

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Chancellor Bruno Kreisky became embroiled Saturday in a shouting and shoving match over Austria's controversial plans to open its first thermal nuclear power station.

Kreisky has threatened to resign if Austrians vote to scrap the $530 million facility in the Nov. 5 referendum scheduled to decide the hotly disputed issue.

The nuclear plant in Zwentendorf, 18 miles northwest of Vienna, was completed last year but anti-nuclear protests and the government's failure to solve the nuclear waste disposal problem have delayed its opening.

The red-haired Kreisky, who has led the Socialist party since 1966, met a group of government supporters Saturday to discuss his campaign to sell the benefits of nuclear power to the Austrian people.

As Kreisky took the floor, geology professor Alexander Tollman rushed the podium shouting anti-nuclear slogans.

The normally staid politicians jumped to their feet shouting and tried to drag the geologist away from the podium. A shouting bout ensued.

"You aren't on the speakers list," Kreisky screamed at Tollman. "Get out of here! Get out of here!"

As Kreisky supporters tackled the professor and threw him out of the hall, the chancellor shouted, "Scientists like you have little to offer if they use such provocations to make their points."

The incident underscored the growing emotional tension created by the nuclear issue in this normally placid nation.

For the past month, students, housewives, merchants, scientists and workers have gathered in the traditional "discussion cavern" in the underground passage beneath the State Opera House to argue the issue with wagging fingers and flaring tempers.

Opponents say the facility has been built in an area known to be susceptible to earthquakes. They warn that radiation from the plant could cause cancer and charge that the government has no way of protecting surrounding communities against leakage or accidents.

The government scoffs at the earthquake threat and points out that no tremor has been felt in the area for 500 years.

Kreisky insists the facility is necessary to cut down the high cost of Austria's im-

Death Toll 34 From Typhoon In Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Typhoon Rita and the floods it touched off killed at least 34 persons over two days, and the death toll probably will rise as more reports come in from outlying provinces, Philippine relief officials said Saturday.

The typhoon, the strongest to hit the islands in eight years, smashed into the archipelago with winds up to 130 mph Thursday night.

Government officials reported that the rice crop in the province of Nueva Ecija, 40 miles north of Manila, was a "total loss." The area, known as the Philippines' "rice bowl," bore the brunt of the storm's winds and heavy rains, Agriculture Ministry officials said.

News photographers who flew over the province in army helicopters reported widespread damage to homes and buildings, including the army's Fort Magsaysay.

Reports on displaced persons varied. The Red Cross said that almost 250,000 had lost their homes. The Ministry of Social Services and Development, which said 54 persons were still missing, reported that 450,000 had been displaced.

A spokeswoman said the Red Cross had received a report that a dam in Bulacan, 24 miles north of here, overflowed and drowned 30 residents of a nearby village. The report had not been confirmed, the spokeswoman said.

The Red Cross said 14,474 houses were either partly or totally damaged by rampaging flood waters or by the typhoon's powerful winds, which pummeled Manila with gusts of up to 93 mph.

Meanwhile, a spokesman at the U.S. naval base in Subic Bay, 50 miles northeast of Manila, said helicopters from the ammunition ship U.S.S. Flint and planes from the carrier Constellation rescued 87 Filipino fishermen whose boat sank in the South China Sea after hitting a reef Friday.

The spokesman said the fishing boat, the 120-ton San Jose II, had sent out an emergency call before going down and the fishermen were spotted clinging to small boats 400 miles southeast of Manila.

RAILS TO THE FALLS

'North' Hard To Predict In New Mexico Election

By FRED McCAFFREY
A-J Correspondent

SANTA FE, N.M. — If Joe Skeen comes out of Bernalillo County leading Bruce King in the governor's race by 10,000 to 12,000 votes, can King make up the difference in the North? ("North" is a euphemism; politicians use to avoid saying "Spanish-dominated counties.")

If King takes Santa Fe county by only 3,000 votes and Rio Arriba by less than a thousand, as some observers are wary predicting he will, he probably can't pull it off.

Maybe he can't do it even if he sweeps the North. As Joe Alarid, Tony Anaya's campaign manager, said recently, "In the 1970s, you can no longer make up a defeat in Bernalillo county in the North." Case in point: Joseph Montoya vs. Jack Schmitt; Schmitt was the winner.

That was once just a generalized feeling the political cognoscenti had, but now hard facts are beginning to develop which demonstrate its truth.

One of the most convincing proofs is an analysis made by Tom Warson of Western Survey Research, a Santa Fe firm which has done statewide statistical research.

Warson, who has a Ph.D. in this sort of work, studied the names of all 33,239 registered voters in Santa Fe County. (The total has since risen to 36,207.) He segregated those with Spanish surnames and those with Anglo surnames, and compared their numbers.

Then he took the sign-in sheets used at the polls in recent elections, to see which potential voters cast ballots.

This is what he found: Though the county's population was almost 65 percent Spanish-surnamed when the last census was taken, more than half the registered voters are Anglos. What's more, the Anglos vote: in 1976, for the first time in history, they cast 52.4 percent of the votes.

Admittedly, his comparison is based only on last names and whether they sound Anglo or Hispanic, not a totally scientific process. A lady named Mrs. Humphrey Chichester-Lynch could be of pure Spanish extraction, and vice versa. But Warson knows the county and should have been able to make adjustments either way. The probability is that his figures are nearly right.

If so, they are also highly significant. If Santa Fe County goes to the gringos, can the rest of the North be behind?

Anyone with open eyes and an awareness of land prices can tell that Santa Fe County is growing by leaps and bounds. Much of that growth seems to be coming in the person of "outsiders," who tip the scales toward the Anglo side.

But another conclusion might be inferred from Warson's study: that the long-time interest in political battles thought to be traditional with Spanish-surnamed individuals may be waning.

If that is true in Santa Fe, where the only industry in town is politics, what is happening in Rio Arriba, San Miguel, Taos and Mora counties? No one can say it's equally true there, but then nobody can say it won't be true in time. And if the make-up of the North changes, the make-up of New Mexico politics will change forever.

Already this year's election will be different from the past because, if Warson's figures are right or nearly right, a key county has shifted perceptibly.

There's a lesson there, but it's one which candidates hesitate to take, to their sorrow. No election, in any year, ever recapitulates the last one.

Popular Hobby Creates Many 'Rockhounds'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "pet rock" craze has faded away but for millions of people rocks remain a hobby that provides hours of enjoyment.

Collections of rocks usually differ markedly depending on where the collector is able to search for specimens.

On the great interior plains and lowlands of the United States, the sedimentary rocks are exposed in wide variety.

Igneous and metamorphic rocks are widespread in the mountains and piedmont areas of New England, the Appalachians, parts of the West and scattered hill areas.

Igneous rocks make up almost all the land of Hawaii. And along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts and locally elsewhere loose and unconsolidated rocks are widespread.

The best collecting sites are found in quarries, road cuts or natural cliffs or outcrops, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. Open fields and level country are poor places to find rock exposures.

Mall Hosts Krueger Bandwagon

Supporters of U.S. Senate hopeful Bob Krueger gave area voters a literal example of "bandwagon" campaigning Saturday, issuing statements on farm support and campaign ethics from a van parked in the mainstream of South Plains Mall traffic.

Several state representatives and area farmers, as part of a state-wide Krueger caravan, met to indicate support for the Democratic candidate and downplay his opponent, incumbent John Tower.

Campaign workers had announced previously that Texas Speaker of the House Bill Clayton would be on hand to voice his endorsement of Krueger. Clayton was said to have been unable to attend because of a last-minute emergency.

State representative from Corpus Christi, Hugo Berlanga, compared his valley farming region to the South Plains, saying area farmers share many of the same problems.

"Krueger will conceivably lead the Democratic ticket with the farm and ranch constituency," Berlanga said.

Berlanga accused Tower of having a poor voting record, an issue brought up frequently by the Krueger camp. He called Krueger "a friend of the farmer" and claimed Tower consistently votes against farm issues.

Doug James, area farmer and member of a Krueger agriculture advisory committee, echoed disappointment in Republican Tower's record.

"The farmers I know are a little disappointed in John Tower," James said. "In many instances John Tower has turned his back on the farmer but he voted to bail out New York City."

"Subsequently, we're looking for someone else," James said.

Assistant campaign manager Lukin Gilliland defended the ethics of the Krueger campaign, saying Tower has set the tone for the "mud-slinging". He discussed the recent release of a newspaper column making moral accusations against an unnamed senator, which the Krueger camp claims is Tower.

"If you want to talk about innuendo this is just a drop in the bucket," Gilliland said. "You can't judge our whole campaign by one release."

Gilliland said Tower made the column an issue by cancelling a scheduled debate and refusing to shake Krueger's hand in a recently publicized incident.

"OK," Gilliland said. "Maybe the staff shouldn't have sent it (the column) out. But it's not that big a deal."

Scholarship Pageant Hopefuls Compete Today

A total of 23 young women will vie for 12 finalist positions in the preliminary competition to the Miss Lubbock Scholarship Pageant at 1:30 p.m. today, in Hodges Community Center.

On Dec. 2, in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium, the finalists will compete for the crown of Miss Lubbock, a $750 scholarship, a $1,000 wardrobe and an expense-paid trip to the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant in Fort Worth next summer, where Miss Lubbock will compete for the state crown.

A panel of five judges — Janis DeBusk, a former Miss New Mexico; Liz Lawson Hodel, former Miss Lubbock; Robert Thomas, executive vice president of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development; Brenda Brecknell, director of Robert Spence School of Modeling; and Nolan Swain, personnel director of Southwestern Public Service — will select finalists after talent presentations and interviews.

Hill's Unfinished Business Awaits Successor

By BILL KIDD
A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Less than two weeks from now, Texans should know whom they've picked to govern them for the next two-four-and-six-year periods.

But while election day may put an end to some of the activity and the seemingly incessant radio and television "spots" and newspaper advertisements, it only will mark the beginning of a new phase of activity for many of the candidates.

In some respects, it may even be easier to be a loser. Or at least it may be simpler.

Whatever happens, Attorney General John Hill is likely to have more than he can say grace over between the end of his campaign and January, especially if he succeeds in his effort to move into the Governor's Mansion.

Thus far Hill has run his campaign for governor against Republican Bill Clements by talking like a man who's sure of victory and by running like a man who wants to take no chances.

But come January, Hill won't be attorney general any more, and there will be many a loose end to be packaged up before then.

That process of preparing Hill's successor to deal with the lawsuits, investigations and administrative matters he'll inherit already has begun, with the staff of the Attorney General's Office putting together information for Democrat Mark White or Republican Jim Baker and the replacement staff, and both camps have contacted the office.

Hill will be leaving two major cases, although he has indicated he'll assist his replacement as much as is wanted on both, the Howard Hughes will case, where Texas is contending for estate taxes from the late billionaire's fortune, and the just-initiated lawsuit against the intra-state natural gas pricing provisions in the new Federal Energy Bill. In addition to those matters, there are various other lawsuits and an on-going argument about authority over placing nuclear waste disposal sites in Texas.

Then there are some civil rights matters, a dispute with U.S. Steel, the argument over whether the attorney general can sue a state agency (specifically the Lower Colorado River Authority in the South Texas Nuclear Project dispute and the former Water Quality Board over the Edward Aquifer protection order), Rep. Wayne Peveto's lawsuit against the use of ad valorem taxes for college buildings, a suit (Brown v. Texas) before the U.S. Supreme Court on whether drivers can be stopped and asked to show their licenses to police and a lawsuit against the prison system.

Not to mention such matters as the Justice Department's contention of alleged discrimination in the hiring practices of State agencies.

"It will be a full case load," a spokesman in Hill's office agrees, noting some (but hardly all) of the matters may be settled by the year's end.

Most of the work of transition won't get underway until after the election.

The same is true of the governor's office which appears to be moving somewhat more slowly than the attorney general's shop in preparing for the change.

Hill, immediately after his primary victory, began preparations for taking over, including hiring Harry Ledbetter (who was unengaged at the time, having failed in his bid for State Treasurer) to monitor the budget hearings in preparation to submitting proposals by the new governor to the new Legislature.

Bill Clements grumbled at Hill's presumption, while Hill and Ledbetter grumbled at some state agencies' budget requests.

But the preparations in the executive branch won't be the only activities which will be getting underway after election day.

On the Monday following elections, legislators can begin prefilling bills for the session which will start in January.

Probably it won't take too long for measures to start coming in since the Legislative Council, which is in charge of drafting most measures, already has requests for 856 bills. And that, if last session is any clue, is only a fifth of the legislation which can be expected.

Fathers Meet Again In Maternity Ward

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — John Lackey and Barry Kemp first met 18 months ago when they were both sweating it out in the maternity waiting room at Baptist Hospital. Each of them became fathers for the first time on April 13, 1977, after their wives gave birth to boys.

Lackey, 21, and Kemp, 25, ran into each other again Wednesday, again at the Baptist maternity waiting room.

This time the two men left the hospital with girls. Shirley Kemp gave birth to 8-pound, 2-ounce Bonnie Rachael Kemp and Sylvia Lackey give birth to 6-pound, 12-ounce Jacqueline Lavaughn Lackey.

What are the chances of Lackey and Kemp meeting for a third time at the hospital? Well, both say they want more children.

Wallace Still Effective Interviewer In 'Old Age'

NEW YORK (AP) — Some say Mike Wallace has mellowed a bit, and maybe that's so. But the man who made the penetrating interview his television trademark still asks the questions you want answered.

"I'm leaving in the morning for Paris to interview Baryshnikov," the veteran CBS News correspondent said the other day, "and though I've never met the man, I know a good deal about him. I've talked with his friends, people in ballet, Russian dissidents."

"By the time I sit down with him, I'll have a pretty fair cassette-full of facts in my head, to provoke him — not in the pejorative sense, I mean get his heart started — on a number of subjects."

The interview eventually will be the core of one of maybe 25 reports Wallace will prepare and deliver this season on CBS' "60 Minutes," network TV's first and most successful newsmagazine.

Mike Wallace and "60 Minutes" have flourished in one another's company — the program is 10 years old and thriving, and Wallace has been a correspondent and co-editor from the start.

Prior to '60 Minutes,' there was no broadcast on a week-to-week basis that did investigative journalism," Wallace related in that thoughtful, resonant manner of his. "And we found kind of a hunger in the audience for that."

Wallace, now 60, built a reputation as a tough questioner who would seldom pull a punch, though several of his most memorable stories in recent years have been of a tamer sort — his interview last season with pianist Vladimir Horowitz, for example.

"Sure, I'm a little different," he told an interviewer five years ago. "You get older and wiser. You don't push so hard. It's not necessarily a mellowing process. It's trying to understand you're after light more than heat."

Regardless of the story, Wallace still approaches each interview with enthusiasm — the pointed question, incredulous smile and biting, "Aw, come on!" are familiar and frequently used tools. He prides himself on the program's emphasis on the complete and balanced story. "Lord knows," he declared, "the audience respects our fairness."

Wallace's own story is a fascinating slice of broadcast history.

He began in the 1940s as a radio news writer and broadcaster for the Chicago Sun's station, spent World War II in the Navy, and returned to Chicago for a job with radio station WMAQ.

He did commercials and even some radio drama, and attracted attention as host of "The $100,000 Big Surprise," a radio quiz program, and as a panelist on the game show, "Who Pays?" During the mid-1950s, he developed a knack for the candid question as host of "Night Beat," broadcast locally in New York City. The show was picked up and aired nationally by ABC as "Mike Wallace Interviews."

Wallace joined CBS News in 1963, and in 1968, with Harry Reasoner, was picked to co-anchor "60 Minutes."

Don Hewitt, the show's producer from the beginning, was sure there was an audience for a program like "60 Minutes." Wallace recalled, and set out to convince seasons in poor time slots, before CBS switched the show to Sunday evenings and the ratings began to soar. "We had a good number of years to be bad, and to be good, and we developed a style and had time to develop Morley, Dan and Mike," Wallace said — the reference to correspondents Morley Safer and Dan Rather. Reasoner returned to the program this fall after eight years at ABC.

The future? Wallace said he will not anchor CBS News' Eastern desk for the elections this year, an assignment he's handled along with floor work during the political conventions regularly since 1964. And Reasoner's presence will help cut the "60 Minutes" workload.

"I spend the weekend in Paris, I'll go to London for a day or so, it's a lot of work, a lot of travel, a lot of jet lag," he said. "But I enjoy it so much."

Criminal Court Upholds Ruling

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals has upheld the revocation of probation of Donald Thurman Prince Jr., convicted of burglary in Moore County and given a 10-year probation sentence.

The court said there was evidence to show that Prince had violated the terms of his probation by leaving the county without the permission of the judge by whom he was given probation.

The appeals court noted the judge at the probation hearing was the judge at Prince's burglary trial and commented that "the trial court may take judicial notice of whether it has given its permission to a probationer to leave the coun-

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2 — Month of birth. Find the corresponding numbers for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

FDA Studying Non-Prescription Drug Ingredients

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Oh, my aching head!

The proliferation of painkillers is enough to give even the healthiest consumer a few twinges, but the government is trying to take some of the confusion out of shopping for them.

The Food and Drug Administration has set up 17 panels of experts to review over-the-counter or non-prescription drugs and decide which ingredients are safe and effective, what side effects are possible and how products should be labeled.

One of the recent studies focused on internal analgesics or painkillers, including aspirin. (According to the FDA, aspirin is the most widely used non-prescription drug on the market; Americans take some 19 billion aspirin every year.)

The panel's recommendations are still pending and it is likely to be some time before the FDA issues any final rules. Here, meanwhile, are some preliminary findings:

The group issued two general warnings: Be careful about self-treatment diseases like rheumatism and arthritis and don't take aspirin if you have an upset stomach — even if you have a headache as well.

The panel looked at 15 ingredients to determine their safety and their ability to reduce pain, fever and inflammation. The painkillers fell into two categories: salicylates like aspirin and non-salicylates like quinine, codeine and the commonly used acetaminophen.

The panel ruled that six of the ingredients it studied are safe and effective as painkillers and fever reducers. They are: aspirin, calcium carbaspirin, choline salicylate, magnesium salicylate, sodium salicylate and acetaminophen.

The FDA group said, however, that manufacturers of products containing these ingredients should be permitted to claim only that they are "for the temporary relief of occasional minor aches, pains and headaches." Too many claims, the panel said, would be confusing.

One ingredient — iodopyrine — was found to be neither safe nor effective as a fever reducer or painkiller. Four ingredients — acetanilid, codeine, phenacetin and quinine — were judged effective, but were ruled not safe for non-prescription use.

The panel said there was not enough evidence to determine the safety and effectiveness of the remaining four ingredients — aluminum aspirin, antipyrine, saicylamide and salasalate. It recommended that the FDA permit the continued use of these ingredients in non-prescription pain and fever medicines for up to three years if manufacturers conduct tests to establish safety and effectiveness.

Both salicylates and non-salicylates can produce side effects. The salicylates, for example, can cause stomach distress, increased bleeding and even ulcers, and the FDA panel said products containing salicylates should carry warnings of the potential dangers.

The panel also said labels should warn people who are taking prescription drugs for anticoagulation (thinning the blood), diabetes, gout or arthritis not to use salicylates except under a doctor's supervision.

The FDA unit said that even highly buffered aspirins dissolved in water can cause bleeding and stomach distress.

Highly buffered solutions can reduce the side effects of aspirin, but will not eliminate them. "In fact," the panel said, according to an FDA publication, "such products may increase the risk of bleeding because they deliver more pure aspirin to the system than regular aspirin tablets."

(Note: An overdose of salicylates can cause a ringing sensation in the ears. If your ears start ringing, stop taking the drug.)

late which the panel found safe and effective — carries its own dangers. An overdose can cause serious liver damage.

The FDA panel said no painkiller should be taken by adults for longer than 10 days or by children for longer than five days. It recommended establishment of a standard tablet size of 325 milligrams (5 grains) for aspirin, acetaminophen and sodium salicylate, the most commonly used pain and fever reducers. Tablets containing different dosage units should be clearly labeled to show whether they are stronger or weaker than the standard, the FDA group said.

Europeans Seeking U.S. Automobiles

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The jitters that American automakers felt over the past few years at the rise of foreign car sales in the U.S. market has found its way to West Germany. American-built autos, once ridiculed as "gas guzzlers," suddenly have become fashionable here.

The giants from Detroit have gotten cheaper. Now it's in' to drive an American, says the Abendzeitung newspaper of Munich said.

"The dollar is sinking. Yank (auto) stocks are rising," Frankfurter Abendpost newspaper said of the mini-boom in sales.

American car prices have plummeted in West Germany as the U.S. dollar declined 25 percent in value against the Deutsche mark over the last two years, making "European-sized" compact sedans and sport coupes a bargain for affluent Germans.

The Chevrolet Camaro is the hottest-selling U.S. model on the German market — at a price of 18,000 marks, or $10,000, relatively modest compared to Mercedes or Porsche sports cars.

"It's a lot of auto for the money," Cologne's Stadt-Anzeiger newspaper said of the American fastback, praising its elegant styling and V-8 engine for no-speed-limit driving on the autobahns.

Dealers say Germans also are attracted by the smaller size, lighter weight and improved handling of U.S. models in the last two years.

General Motors, which has 80 dealers selling U.S. models in West Germany, says Chevrolet Malibu, Oldsmobile Cutlass, Buick Century and Cadillac Seville are also selling well.

And four-wheel drive imports, such as the Blazer, are popular in the alpine regions of Southern Germany.

"I can offer American cars that are almost 15,000 marks ($8,000) cheaper than their comparable European models," said Peter Baumgarten, a General Motors dealer in Munich.

At the same time, imported cars are losing some of their allure in the United States because foreign automakers, particularly the Japanese, are raising prices to make up for the dollar's decline.

Although U.S. exports still account for less than 1 percent of auto sales in West Germany, General Motors and Ford spokesmen said the growth has been rapid.

"We expect to sell between 7,000 to 8,000 cars in West Germany alone this year, a 60 percent increase over 1977 sales," said Paul Stefens, GM's spokesman for Europe.

"Germany has now surpassed the Benelux and Switzerland as our main European market," he said. General Motors expects to sell another 7,000 cars elsewhere in Europe this year, he said.

The German magazine "Auto, Motor und Sport" declared General Motors its "winner of the month" in August for selling 1,100 cars in West Germany, a 287 percent increase over August 1977.

Ford's sales are modest in comparison. Anton Mandla, spokesman at the company's subsidiary headquarters in Cologne, said Ford sold 435 U.S.-made cars in the first eight months of this year, an 87.5 increase over the same period last year.

He said sales are expected to spurt because of the 1979 Mustang.

"We introduced it this month, and dealers reported a lot of buyer interest," he said.

The Mercedes look-alike sells for a base price of 17,000 marks ($9,500), and the cheapest Mercedes sedan runs almost 20,000 marks.

Ford and General Motors German subsidiaries are among the pacemakers of the European auto industry, and neither company wants to sell U.S. imports at the

Cases Going Before Supreme Court May Affect Scope Of Miranda Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, headed by Chief Justice Warren Burger, has a new opportunity this term to expand or limit the scope of the 1966 Miranda decision outlining the rights of accused persons in police custody.

The court is expected to decide soon whether it will hear arguments and rule on two cases involving teen-age murder suspects.

The Miranda ruling sought to prevent police from intimidating suspects who were held incommunicado for long periods into waiving their privilege against self-incrimination.

In that 5-4 decision, Chief Justice Earl Warren said police must inform a suspect before questioning that he has a constitutional right to remain silent, to have a lawyer present and that anything he says could be used against him. If the accused says he wants a lawyer, all questioning must stop. Otherwise, any confession will be considered involuntary and cannot be used at trial.

The Burger court has been reluctant to extend Miranda and has moved somewhat in the other direction. For instance, it has ruled that a statement given without Miranda warnings may be used at trial to impeach testimony by a defendant who lies on the witness stand.

California is appealing a 1977 decision by that state's top court that a 16-year-old's murder confession could not be used because police questioned him after he asked for his probation officer.

When the teen-ager, known only as Michael C., was picked up as a suspect in the 1976 murder of Robert Yeager in Los Angeles County, police asked if he wanted to waive his right to have a lawyer present.

"Can I have my probation officer here?" he replied.

The interrogating officer said he would not call the probation officer that night, but the suspect did have a right to an attorney.

Michael was suspicious about what kind of lawyer police might get him and

South Plains Area Temperatures Seen In Warming Trend

South Plains residents are in store for more fair and mild autumn weather with warmer temperatures today, according to the National Weather Service.

A high pressure ridge over western Texas is expected to dominate the weather pattern through Monday with a continuation of cool nights and warm afternoons.

Temperatures should climb to the mid 70s today and return to the mid 40s tonight. Winds are predicted to be southwesterly at 10 to 15 mph.

The extended forecast for West Texas Tuesday through Thursday calls for scattered showers with otherwise partly cloudy skies through Thursday. No important temperature changes are expected.

Skies were mostly fair across the remainder of the state.

The afternoon temperatures were generally in the 60s and 70s. Lubbock's high of 69 degrees was recorded between 5 and 6 p.m. confessed to the crime without one present.

The California Supreme Court said the youth's request to contact his probation officer was "a call for help," indicating he wanted to assert his privilege against self-incrimination in the same way as if he had asked for a lawyer.

Fearing that the police would take advantage of his ignorance, Michael wanted and needed the advice of someone whom he knew and trusted," it said, reversing the youth's conviction.

In another case, Ben Chaney, the younger brother of slain civil rights worker James Chaney, is appealing his conviction on three murder charges.

Lawyer William Kunstler says the 17-year-old's rights were violated when following his 1970 arrest in South Carolina, police continued to question him after he asked to telephone his mother in New York.

He said police should have stopped questioning the teenager, who was hundreds of miles from home and mentally unstable, at that point. State and federal courts rejected his appeals.

Chaney was charged in three Florida killings committed by an older traveling companion. He said he made a statement to law enforcement officers in part because he remembered how his brother was slain with two other northern civil rights workers by a Mississippi sheriff and deputies in 1964.

He said police should have stopped questioning the teenager, who was hundreds of miles from home and mentally unstable, at that point. State and

Conflict Of Interest Seen In GSA Building Practices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — General Services Administration officials have uncovered a history of "cozy" practices in which architects got federal building design contracts while serving on GSA advisory panels entrusted with selecting the best applicants.

The practices, now forbidden, were described by one GSA official as "a very cozy relationship in which panel members brazenly put themselves into conflicts of interest."

GSA investigators, while looking into massive fraud within the giant agency, said they found cases in which lists of applicants for design contracts costing $1 million or more were submitted without ranking the contenders as to ability or merit, often leaving the final selection solely up to the GSA administrator.

Other practices included substantially restricting the number of architectural applicants by limiting selection of firms to an arbitrary mileage radius around the building site, a practice which GSA building officials say is "highly unusual."

In one case, involving the bidding of a federal youth facility in San Diego in 1972, applicants were restricted to a 20-mile radius of the city.

According to GSA records obtained by UPI, the practices occurred between 1969 and 1972, but GSA officials say the practices were prevalent long before and continued at least until the entire contract selection process was reformed in July 1974.

Under the new rules, architectural firms represented on advisory panels cannot do business with the government.

In one case, a four-member advisory panel made up of representatives of architectural firms met in 1969 to choose an architect for a $27 million federal office building and parking facility in San Diego. The design contract was worth nearly $1.1 million, but the selection process was limited only to firms within a 60-mile radius of San Diego.

According to the minutes of the meeting, one of the panel members, Frank L.

Hope, was "excused from the meeting since his firm was one of those under consideration."

After Hope stepped out of the room, the remaining members chose his firm, Frank L. Hope and Associates, as "the most qualified for the selection," declining to recommend any other firms in their preference list.

Earnings Reports Show Profits For Companies

NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate earnings reports, now coming in for the third quarter, indicate another profitable year for American businesses, analysts say.

Strong consumer spending has spurred sales of many companies. Then too, inflation came on like a block-buster in the early part of the year, prompting some companies to raise prices. While that also raised costs, a subsequent slowing of inflation in the summer months helped profit margins of some companies.

Among the standout industries, in the flood of earnings announcements for the latest quarter, are airlines, banks, oil companies and steel companies, which a year earlier showed a sharp falloff in profits.

Bethlehem Steel, for instance, which reported a $477 million loss because of huge writeoffs at aging facilities in the third quarter of last year, posted a $64.7 million profit in the latest quarter. U.S.

Steel, the industry giant, isn't expected to issue its quarterly statement until next week. But, among others, National Steel's earnings tripled; Inland reported a 105 percent increase, and Republic, a 21 percent gain. Still, some industry executives were cautioning that the dramatic bounceback from depressed earnings last year didn't mean the industry's problems were solved.

Rising interest rates and strong consumer buying demand was partly credited for strong performance among banks. Among bank holding companies reporting so far, BankAmerica posted a 33 percent gain; Citicorp, 36 percent; Chase Manhattan Corp., 61 percent.

cent, and National turned around with a $2.6 million profit from a $213,000 loss a year earlier.

The airline industry benefited from increased sales with lower fares. Among early reports, Pan American posted a 54 percent profits gain, Braniff, an 80 percent gain; Trans World Airlines, 18 percent to $540 million in the quarter. It blamed that largely on the declining value of the dollar and the accounting rule which requires it to translate foreign currency fluctuations in its quarterly reports. Excluding that, Exxon said its operating earnings would show a 9.5 percent gain.

Among other industry giants, General Motors reported a 31 percent gain to $528 million, while Ford said its profits were up 13 percent from a year earlier.

While economists warn that it is too early to be confident of the overall trend of earnings in the July-September quarter, there is agreement that results will be substantially higher than the 1977 third quarter.

Corporate profits, after taxes, were running at an annual rate of $104.8 billion in the third quarter of last year. For all of 1977, the Commerce Department said corporate profits came to $102.1 billion.

Bob Lewis, an economist at Citibank, says preliminary indications from its survey of earnings reports suggest the third quarter may show a 19 percent increase in profits from last year. If so, that would exceed the 17 percent profits rise in the first half of the year.

"Judging from the reports coming in, it is much better than was expected. It is going to be another very good quarter," Lewis says.

While he has not computed a full year profits projection, he estimates that overall earnings should be up about 15 percent from last year's level, not counting for inflation of perhaps 8 percent. That's a little better than the 11 percent gain between 1976 and 1977.

Not all are so optimistic. Economists at Merrill Lynch Economics Inc., who unlike Citibank expect a recession next year, think corporate profits already peaked in the April-June quarter and may come in slightly lower when the figures for the third quarter are complete.

Allan McKinnon, senior vice president at the economic research and forecasting firm, says he expects profits in the third quarter to come in around $118.5 billion, down somewhat from the $120.5 billion in the second quarter, but still about 13 percent above last year. For the full year, he sees a 12 percent gain.

McKinnon cites lower productivity levels in the third quarter as one reason but adds that, as inflation eased, companies in the third quarter didn't raise prices as much as they had in the previous quarter.

In the middle ground is Chase Econometrics, a forecasting unit of Chase Manhattan Bank, with a projection of a 16 percent profits rise in the third quarter from last year and a full year gain of close to 15 percent. But director Michael Evans says levels of profits should begin to decline in the second quarter of 1979 amid a general economic slowdown.

In other business developments this past week:

— President Carter's anti-inflation program with voluntary guidelines to hold price increases to 7.5 percent and wages to 7 percent drew cautious praise from many business and labor leaders. But the endorsements were not without some qualifications. Some union leaders said there should be more flexibility in the wage guidelines, and some businessmen said the government would have to do prove it by lowering spending for the plan to have a change.

Prices rose more rapidly in September than they had in three months, the government reported. The Consumer Price Index rose 0.8 percent after increases of 0.6 percent in August and 0.5 percent in July. While the inflation rate is not as severe as it was in the early months of the year, on an annual basis it inched up to 9.6 percent for the first nine months from its previous 9.5 percent rate.

The prime rate charged by big commercial banks was kicked up a quarter of a percentage point again. It now stands at 10 1/4 percent, the highest in four years. The latest increase is the 10th since Jan. 1, when the rate was 7 1/4 percent.

The prime lending rate, the interest banks charge on loans to their best corporate customers, has no direct effect on consumer loan rates, but can have a psychological influence and is generally watched as an indicator of general interest rate trends.

The stock market continued to tumble amid concern over inflation, rising interest rates and the dollar's plunge to record lows against several major world currencies. The Dow Jones average posted a net loss of 31.96 points to 839.66 following a record weekly fall of 59.08 points the previous week.

Investment Portfolios Take Rough Pounding On Market

NEW YORK (AP) — All its landmark buildings are still standing, and no physical injuries have been reported, but Wall Street nevertheless might have a case for government certification as an official disaster area.

The storm of selling that has swept through the stock market in the past two weeks has caused an estimated $100 billion-plus in damage to the portfolios of investors.

And to judge by all the talk of virulent inflation, rising interest rates, the falling dollar and a possible recession, little relief was in sight as of the market's close this past week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 31.96 for the week and 91.04 since Oct. 16, wound up Friday at 806.05, its lowest closing level in more than three months.

That amounts to a drop of more than 10 percent for the average in just 10 trading days. And other indicators that reflect the showing of the smaller "secondary" issues have posted even sharper losses.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index was off 2.24 at 52.52 in the past week for a two-week loss of 6.41 points.

And the American Stock Exchange market value index, down 11.08 at 141.31 for the week, has fallen 29.48 points since mid-month.

Big Board volume averaged 33.6 million shares a day in the week, against 34.18 million the week before.

Wilshire Associates of Santa Monica, Cal., calculated the value of the loss in the Oct. 16-20 week at $73.29 billion, and analysts said the past week's drop probably pushed the total loss to well over $100 billion.

Investors' gloomy view of the economic outlook seemed to be summarized by Henry Kaufman, partner in the investment banking firm of Salomon Brothers, who began a speech to a bankers' convention in Honolulu:

"When I look at where we are now and try to assess where we are heading, the conclusions to me are most disquieting."

"Unfortunately, double-digit inflation is no longer a projection. It is with us now and is likely to be part of our economy for the foreseeable future."

Kaufman argued that a "further sharp rise in interest rates is unavoidable" because both of the principal policy options open to the Federal Reserve were likely to exert upward pressure on borrowing costs.

Monetary policy is virtually in a "no-win" position far as its effect on interest rates is concerned," he said. "The continuation of a liberal monetary expansion or its opposite, the restriction of credit availability, will each drive interest rates higher."

In the tricky task of forecasting interest rates, there are analysts with less gloomy views. But as the market continued to slide in the past few days, most observers acknowledged that fears on the order of those expressed by Kaufman had taken hold of the market.

In the process, this summer's speculative enthusiasm for many stocks — the gambling and airline issues, to name two prominent areas — seemed to have suddenly collapsed.

Trans World Airlines shares, to cite one example, more than doubled earlier in

The Market Meter Market Continues Losing Streak

By J. L. HUTCHESON
Schneider, Bernet & Hickman Inc.

Prices tumbled again this week over a wide area as investor nervousness continued to pervade Wall Street. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped to its lowest level in more than three months in brisk trading. There was a brief attempt at a rally on Wednesday and Thursday but the efforts were turned back rather quickly.

Analysts are saying that this week's breadth decline has been one of the worst in market history. The advance-decline statistics, which deteriorated to their worst five-day period last week, continue to reflect the gloom which is making it difficult for the market to rebound despite its deeply oversold condition.

Analysts point to the lack of investor confidence in the Carter administration's ability to combat inflation, the continuing rise in interest rates and the sinking dollar as the main factors behind the decline. There is also considerable worry among investors that the worst may not be over in the sharp decline in the secondary stocks. The secondary issues, which had been the strongest sector of the market, now is leading the decline. Many stocks have given up between 25 and 50 percent in price in a two-week period after taking four or five months to reach their highs prior to the decline.

Despite the market's broad decline, the bearishness pervading Wall Street hasn't gripped all financial advisers. A number of bulls believe that the stock market is making an important bottom, similar to the one made in 1974, and they maintain that they don't believe that a bear-market trend has begun in the second-tier stocks and a strong year-end rally will come to pass.

Traders point to the concern among investors over the unabated rise in interest rates and the action of the Federal Reserve Board in having set a target rate of 9 1/2 percent on federal funds as two reasons this decline has been so broad and severe.

Most economists feel that there is now a 55 percent chance of a moderate recession in early 1979 that could become more severe if the excessive monetary growth at this point in time is not brought under control. Any downturn could be magnified if the money supply is allowed to grow at the same rate as it has over the past year. (In this same article there is a graph which shows the inflation rate plotted against the growth in the money supply).

The Dow Jones industrial average lost 31.97 this week, closing at 806.04. Transportations closed at 212.26, off 11.59. Utilities were off 3.39, finishing at 3.39. Trading was brisk this week, with volume totaling 168,518,000 shares. A total of 626 issues hit new 12-month lows with 16 issues scoring new highs. The American Stock Exchange closed at 141.31, off 11.08. The NASDAQ Composite Index was off 8.57 points, finishing at 115.25.

MONEY SUPPLY GROWTH VS. INFLATION

Below is a correlation between the growth in the money supply, year by year, and the rate of inflation in the United States.

YEAR	Money Supply Growth	Inflation Rate
1972	+ 6.9%	+ 6.4%
1973	+ 6.5	+ 7.0%
1974	+ 8.9%	+ 10.0%
1975	+ 4.6%	+ 8.1%
1976	+ 4.2%	+ 6.0%
1977	+ 7.9%	+ 7.0%
1978	+ 9.4% (Thus Far)	+ 9.0% (Thus Far)

It is interesting to note that the years of the highest rate of inflation took place in the same years that the money supply grew the fastest. Conversely, the slowest rate of inflation was in 1976, when the money supply was kept under control and allowed to grow only a small amount.

JACQUELINE BOUVIER KENNEDY ONASSIS / WITH JACK BOUVIER, JANET LEE BOUVIER, PRINCESS DIANA, QUEEN ELIZABETH, PRINCE PHILIP, OGDON, JACKIE, ROBERT KENNEDY, JOHN-JOHN, CAROLINE, ONASSIS.

MAXWELL SILVERSTEIN 9/14/78

Jackie: Born To Wealth, But Not To Nobility

while speculated in real estate successfully, became a vice president of the Chase National Bank and, eventually, president and chairman of the board of the New York Central Savings Bank, amassing a multimillion-dollar fortune in the process.

Grandfather Lee, too, maintained an estate, Avery Place, in East Hampton on Lily Pond Lane. Money had overread all around Jack and Janet Bouvier at their wedding, a year before their daughter's birth, at East Hampton's St. Philomena's Roman Catholic Church.

And they were such a beautiful couple, characters in an American fairy-tale dream come true, as everyone pointed out. Columnists wrote of Jack Bouvier's "dark, Latin looks," his slim Roman nose, his wide forehead, flashing dark eyes, sensuous mouth, trim figure. His handsomeness was of a movie star's quality. He knew it, and was appropriately vain. (In later years he would enjoy being mistaken for Clark Gable and having fans accost him on the street for autographs.)

Bouvier wore his hair in the Rudolph Valentino style — slicked down with pomade and parted in the middle — and added to the Latin look with a pencil-thin moustache.

A bright silk handkerchief blossomed from his breast pocket, and just the right amount of linen shot out from his jacket sleeves. He was, in short, a dandy.

Jack Bouvier had waited until fairly late (he was 37) to marry and his bachelor years had gained a wide reputation as a heart-breaker and a Casanova. So when Jack Bouvier and Janet Norton Lee announced their engagement in 1928, New York society reacted with some surprise and a certain skepticism. For Janet Lee, 15 years younger than Jack, it was quite a catch.

To begin with, Janet was not as beautiful as Jack Bouvier was handsome. Nor did she have the kind of showgirl prettiness that Jack had seemed to favor in his other women.

Though she was petite and animated — "coquetteish," some called her — her nose was a shade too long and her chin a shade too pointed. Her eyes were her best feature, and she had an interesting, one-sided smile and perfect teeth. When their first daughter was born, it was happily noted — at least on the Bouvier side of the family — that little Jackie looked like Jack, after whom she had been named.

Meanwhile, beneath the glitter of the marriage and the luxury of the surroundings in which the young Bouviers moved, there were some troubling undertones.

There was, for instance, the "problem" of Janet's social background and credentials.

The Bouviers were in society and the Lees were not. The difference in social class manifested itself unpleasantly even on Jack's and Janet's wedding day, when, at the reception, Jack got into a violent argument with his new father-in-law.

It was the first of many arguments. The subject was the Lees' social aspirations and the Bouviers' sense of social superiority.

There is no question that Janet Lee Bouvier was then — and would remain Janet Lee Bouvier Auchincloss — a woman extremely conscious of social status. In later years, she would take to referring to her family as "the Lees of Maryland," as though they were somehow connected with the redoubtable Lees of Virginia.

The fact is that there are no Lees of Maryland. James T. Lee's father (Janet's grandfather) had been a New York doctor with a modest practice. He and his wife Mary had both been children of humble Irish immigrants who had made their way to these shores, possibly by way of Maryland, to escape the Great Potato Famine in the 1850s.

Janet, in fact, was rather embarrassed by her grandmother Lee and disliked being seen with her in public, since Grandmother Lee still spoke with a brogue. The sense of unease over differences in lineage and social caste were quite apparent on both sides of the aisle at the wedding. These differences would continue to be felt, and painfully, throughout the marriage.

And things were not quite as rosy as they might have seemed within the family-proud house of Bouvier.

Jacqueline Bouvier was less than three months old when her father's younger brother, William Sergeant Bouvier, known as Bud, died in an alcoholic coma. For years, in order to protect the illusion of a happy, tight-knit family, Jackie was told nothing of her Uncle Bud's harrowing story, even though she and Bud's son, Michel, grew up to be extremely close. She thought of him almost as an older brother. Whenever she happened upon Bud's yellowing photograph in one of the many family scrapbooks and asked who he was, she was told: "An uncle, Major Bouvier, who died."

Throughout this period, the Bouvier family was also being supported — supported and suffused with a sense of hubris — by an even more alluring piece of fiction.

Jack Bouvier's father, John Vernou Bouvier Jr., was a top-flight lawyer who was commissioned major judge advocate for the Army after America's entry into World War I. After this, he too enjoyed being known as "Major Bouvier."

But whatever his skills as a trial lawyer and judge, the major's greatest interest and most devoted efforts involved establishing the Bouviers in New York society. Previous American generations of the family had been concerned mostly with making money, but the major's concern was that the money become polished with the luster of style and class.

He began to accomplish this by joining every prestigious club that New York and its environs offered: the Union Club, the Racquet Club, the Sons of the Revolution, the Maidstone, the Piping Rock, the Society of the Cincinnati. In Florida, he joined the Jupiter Island Club at Hobe Sound. For good measure, he became a member of the Havana Country Club in Cuba.

In his pince-nez and with his twirled walrus moustache, the major both looked and acted the archetype clubman. Like his son, Jack, he was a meticulous dresser, favoring English tweeds and spats. He was also careful to see to it that, as his social position and image improved, so did his addresses.

It was an era when wealthy Americans, longing for an aristocracy of their own, often searched backward in their family trees for some trace of nobility. Genealogical "experts" were happy, for a fee, to unearth ancient thrones, honors and titles for their clients.

Curiously, John V. Bouvier Jr., a lawyer who was professionally so concerned with the truth in his clients' cases, personally created ancestors that he must have known were bogus.

His slender volume, "Our Forebears," was first published in 1925 when its author was 60. His research, he concluded, proved beyond doubt that the Bouviers were descended from ancient French nobility.

He described the Bouvier family as "an ancient house of Fontaine, near Grenoble." He said one Bouvier was "a counsellor in parliament in 1553," another "a celebrated lawyer in parliament about 1620" who "was ennobled in 1609." He described the noble Bouvier crest and coat of arms, failing to note that the Bouviers he was talking about came from the province of Dauphine, whereas his ancestors actually originated in Savoy.

"Our Forebears" is riddled with other examples of illogic, inaccuracy and simple fabrication, all designed to "prove" that the Bouviers were descended from French princes and courtiers. In fact, Major Bouvier's great-great-grandfather had kept a small hardware shop that specialized in kitchen utensils. Other French relatives had been drapers, tailors, glovers, farmers and in at least one case a domestic servant to a "counsellor in parliament."

Major Bouvier even falsified the history of his own grandfather, Michel Bouvier, the first Bouvier to come to America and the founder of the American branch of the family. He pointed out that Michel Bouvier had prospered as a manufacturer of veneers, as an importer of marble and mahogany and as a real estate operator, without mentioning that Michel had started out as a poor, uneducated cabinetmaker in Philadelphia.

Major Bouvier also spoke with pride of Michel Bouvier's close friendship with Joseph Bonaparte. The fact was that Bonaparte had bought a couple of chests of drawers from Bouvier's little shop. And Major Bouvier went into even more fulsome detail on the family history of the Vernous, saying: "The family of Vernou is one of the most illustrious and ancient of the provinces of Poitou... it has been in existence since 1086... confirmed in its nobility of ancient extraction by two royal decrees... secretary to Charles V, King of France, William de Vernou..."

On and on "Our Forebears" went, listing Vernous who were counts, barons, marquises — all of it either totally false or without foundation.

Still, people believe what they want to believe. When Major Bouvier's family genealogy book came out — he had it published himself, of course — the Bouviers were overwhelmed with excitement and pride. The book proved, after all, what they longed to believe: that Bouviers had been at the top of the heap since the beginning of time adding new "data." He sent copies of the book to historical societies and to the Library of Congress. As each new edition went to press, new titled Bouviers and Vernous were added. It occurred to no one in the family to question the Major's work. "Our Forebears" was accepted as gospel truth.

It was within this myth of genetic superiority that little Jacqueline Bouvier was born. It was with it that she grew up.

No one, certainly not she, ever supposed that Grandpa Bouvier could have made it all up, that "Our Forebears" was, at best, a work of massive self-deception.

She grew up surrounded by assurances that the blood of princes coursed in her veins. There on the night stand was Grandpa's book to prove it.

Her belief in Grandpa's book followed her into the White House. There, with the spotlight of a nation turned upon her, it was inevitable that "Our Forebears" would come under the scrutiny of historians and scholars.

The first to question the book was Francis J. Dallett, former director of the Philadelphia Athenaeum. Dallett, out of courtesy to the first lady, merely commented in an article in Antiques magazine that the book was "so full of errors that it should be checked against other sources."

It was not long before other scholars were checking other sources. They came to the irrefutable conclusion that Grandpa Bouvier's book was nothing more than a work of the imagination.

To a family that had set its sights by "Our Forebears" for nearly 40 years, it came as something of a blow.

Mishandling Of Job Training Program Comes Under Study

cused absences is being given by LOIC," the auditor said.

For example, one student who worked 490 hours at LOIC accumulated 54 hours of excused absences and 15 hours of unexcused absences. Records for another student who had 630 total hours show 95 excused absence hours and 36.5 unexcused absence hours.

According to LOIC's $555,000 contract with SPAG, students are allowed only eight hours a month of excused absences, and both counselors and the training facility are supposed to be notified by a student before 8:30 a.m. the day he will not be in class.

Dianna Henderson, LOIC executive director, explained to SPAG executive committee members that her staff illegally changed the time sheets and absences reports because "we didn't know any better."

"We were not trying to hide and make any changes or do anything wrong in this particular instance," she added during the two-hour session with committee members.

The LOIC staff failed to communicate with training facilities about excused absences. Miss Henderson admitted, however, she said, her counselors always have excused documented absences. The staff later notified SPAG's payroll specialist about the changes, and he adjusted the timesheets accordingly, she said.

The specialist's position since has been eliminated by SPAG, Miss Henderson added.

Mrs. Forbes, CETA administrator, defended LOIC by explaining the subcontractor never was directed to change procedures.

"Judge (Shaw), they've continued to operate this year as in the past," she said.

"Are you saying they've never followed the contract?" Shaw asked.

"In a lot of ways, that's correct," Mrs. Forbes admitted.

Miss Henderson told the committee her staff reclaimed about $200 in student overpayments, but that about $75 is unrecoverable. Also, she added, her staff worked with the Adult Learning Center and other training facilities to rectify record discrepancies in student absences.

SPAG committee members eventually voted to renew LOIC's contract another year, despite Shaw's opinion that "it seems we have a problem if we have a program we can't monitor."

One member, Alan Henry Heck, the motion's author, voted to award LOIC the contract — provided Congress appropriates CETA money another year — with the stipulation that a "broad-based" board meet monthly to oversee the daily activities of the organization.

The audit problems prompted the SPAG staff to prohibit excused student absences for any reason in the new contracts, Mrs. Forbes said, adding her staff monitoring and evaluation team will conduct spot checks of payments.

Hale County Judge Henry Heck, who voiced doubt about the program's effectiveness and expressed lingering doubt the contract violations were done in ignorance, warned Miss Henderson, "You told me the policy (contract) will be filled and I'll buy that. But I don't want to have to sit here one more time and listen to this type of discussion again."

"Yes, sir," she responded quietly.

The U.S. Department of Labor, responsible for overseeing the Lubbock CETA program, is aware of the audit problems but plans no investigation, Laura Berry, federal representative for Lubbock, told The Avalanche-Journal.

The problem should be handled on the local level, she explained, adding she will remain informed of future developments.

SPAG board members, verbally championing the taxpayer revolt against governmental wastefulness, focused a bright media spotlight on the LOIC problems.

However, last summer, when gross mismanagement in SER surfaced, the board made little mention of it publicly.

Then-staffers for SER were drawing their salaries but not earning them, Shaw said, adding that the agency was amending its budget without formal SPAG approval.

Records show that in July the organization budgeted $42,000 for administration. A month later, the budget showed $47,852 for the same item.

The monthly reports, which ostensibly were reviewed by the SPAG board, also showed that in the on-the-job training component SER had spent about 46 percent of its $194,000 total budget on administration and "services for clients" (counselors' salaries).

She also is insisting that monthly placement goals be met, records be carefully kept and contract stipulations followed. Mrs. Forbes also said her staff has streamlined operations and organized the flow of paperwork for the first time in the history of the local program.

Abuses Mar Program's Helpful Aspects

Opportunities Industrialization Center for actual program implementation.

SER, LOIC and the Intake Center are funded by Title I grants. The center assesses program applicants before referring them to the necessary program.

SER subsidizes on-the-job training for its participants, paying an average salary of $3.25 an hour for a 40-hour work week, Mrs. Franklin said.

LOIC participants either attend vocational school to learn skills, hold work-experience positions or do both. While in school, students receive a $76 weekly allowance and while at work are subsidized by LOIC money.

Program participants usually are placed in jobs that interest them. "In past years, the job was developed and the individual fitted to it," Mrs. Franklin said. "That's contrary to what CETA is all about. Now we take the individual and develop the job around him, looking at previous job skills, etcetera."

She added, "Hopefully, that way they will stay" on the job.

Counselors also work with clients, helping smooth financial, transportation and home problems. "It takes very little for these people to up and take off. If there is good communication with the counselor, they will talk to and solve the problems," Mrs. Franklin explained.

Money in the Title II component is aimed at providing persons in high unemployment areas with work-experience jobs in non-profit organizations.

Youths between the ages of 14 and 21 are participants in the Title III program. They are employed and given job training during the summer and have part-time employment and training during school months. The program is aimed at potential high school dropouts.

Clients in Title VI are placed in public service jobs for up to a year, with their salaries paid by CETA. Carolyn Washington of the Title VI office said counselors also encourage their clients to seek permanent jobs during their program participation.

Military veterans, welfare recipients and families whose income is 70 percent or less of the lower living standard income receive special consideration in the program, she said.

The Title VI program originally was intended as temporary help for laid-off workers who could not find jobs in a tight market and who

'Crime Against Elderly' Conference Set

Lubbock District Attorney-elect John T. Montford will head the list of 17 panel members who will participate in the local Crime Against the Elderly conference.

The conference will be from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Nov. 9 at the C.L. Kay Christian Development Center on the Lubbock Christian College campus.

The conference is open to interested older persons, senior citizens groups, centers and programs at no charge.

Dr. James A. Kitchens, associate professor of sociology at North Texas State University, will speak on "The Criminal Victimization of the Aged," to be followed by a speech on "Prevention of Crime Against the Elderly."

The first symposium will deal with "What is Being Done Now?" and "What More Ought To Be Done?"

The afternoon session will include speeches on the "Vulnerability of the Elderly" and "Response To The Victim." The second symposium which will follow will take up the topics "What Services Are Now Available?" and "What Ought Older Persons To Do When Victimized?"

Other panel members will include Mal Cleland, director of the Better Business Bureau; Robert Prock of the Small Business Administration; Dudley Strain, retired pastor of the First Christian Church, now with Lubbock National

SHADES OF YESTERYEAR — Street lights such as this, which lighted Lubbock neighborhoods early in this century, soon will grace the Overton South Neighborhood. Here, a recently installed light at 18th Street and Avenue X attracts, from left, George Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Foster of 2315 18th St.; Sam Tonroy, Andy Tonroy and Lindsey Tonroy, children of Mr. and Mrs. Don Tonroy, 1804 Ave. X. Eighty-one such lights are being installed by Lubbock Power and Light at intersections and in the middle of blocks in Overton South at a cost of $93,000 to be paid from Community Development funds. The lights actually are an improvement over their predecessors, because the harsh white incandescent bulbs will be replaced with sodium vapor lighting which emits a softer glow. ## Bear Trip

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Spartan Walter Aikens scored two touchdowns and ran for 110 yards as the Baylor Bears made mistakes and defeated TCU 28-21.

The Horned Frogs had 20 carries and 100 yards and three interceptions as they lost for the first time before succumbing to the Bears' two-yard play.

Abercrombie, who had been held last week in his first game, ran for 23 yards and scored a touchdown in Baylor's first touch-and-go.

Smith hit Bo Jackson for a 50-yard pass and Frank Phillips for a 20-yard pass.

Fullback Jimmie Jackson scored the first touchdown early in the second quarter.

Steve Bayless scored the third quarter's only touchdown.

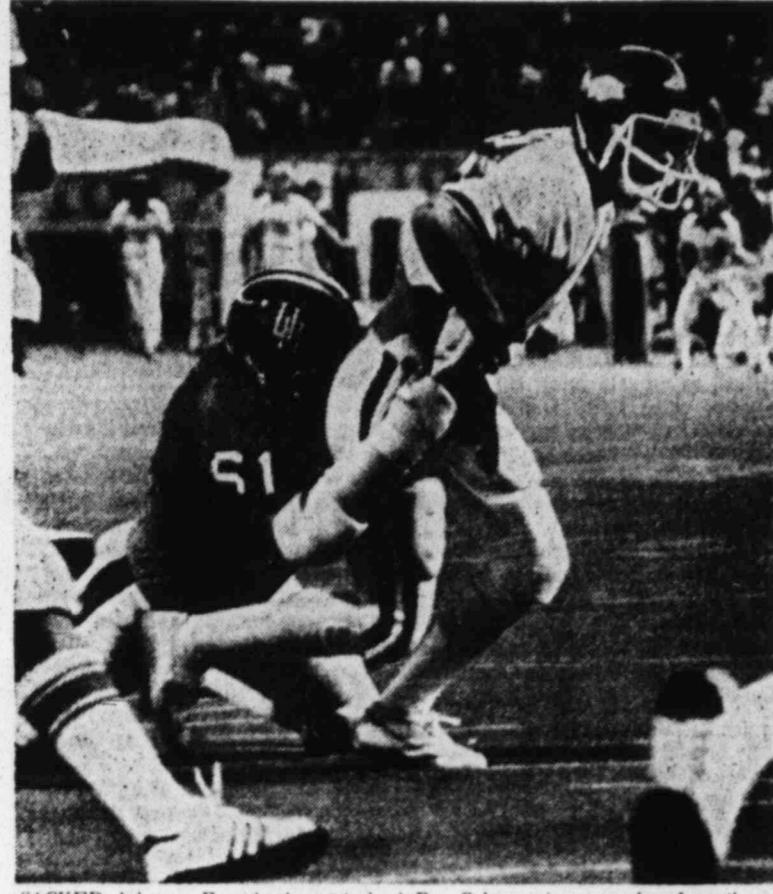

Baylor led 7-6 at the half.

Baylor led 7-6 at the half.

Porter later drove the ball 50 yards, however, from 30 to 80 yards, but two fumbles and an interception by TCU's ball at the 10-yard line.

The first field goal was kicked by Smith and Smith had the ball at the 10-yard line.

The win was Baylor's 11th consecutive victory.

Texas Shuts Down Ford, Ponies

AUSTIN (AP) — Olympian Johnny "Lam" Jones blazed a school record 100 yards for a touchdown on a kickoff return and seventh-ranked Texas' clawing defense shackled Mike Ford & Co. Saturday, carrying the Longhorns to a 22-3 Southwest Conference victory over Southern Methodist.

Linebacker Bruce Scholtz was the Longhorns' top defensive hero, making a key stop in a second-period Longhorn goal-line stand at their one and recovering a fumble that blunted another Mustang sortie.

Texas, now 6-1 overall and 4-0 in the SWC, sacked Ford, the nation's No. 1 total offensive leader, seven times with a fierce pass rush.

A smothering secondary led by Johnnie Johnson kept Emanuel Tolbert, the nation's No. 2 receiver, from catching a pass.

Jones' kickoff return came after freshman Eddie Garcia had tied the score 3-3 with a 27-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Jones dashed down the sideline, faked out a tackler, and sprinted past another to score before a delighted 65,289 fans in Memorial Stadium. The elapsed time was 12 seconds.

The old school record of 95 yards was held by Raymond Clayton.

Texas put the game out of reach in the fourth quarter when freshman quarterback Donnie Little led the Longhorns to two touchdowns. He flipped a 15-yard pass to sophomore tight end Les Studard and Kermit Goode scored on a one-yard line.

It was the most frustrating day this year for Ford, who had to run for his life on every snap. A hard tackle knocked him out of the game briefly in the third quarter before he came back.

SMU is now 3-3 overall and 2-2 in SWC games.

Ford completed only 10 of 31 passes for 122 yards. He had averaged completing 22 passes a game for 302 yards.

Ford also had to run five times for only 15 yards from the hard-pursuing Horn defense.

Jones returned a punt 32 yards to set up Texas on the SMU 37-yard line early in the game. The Longhorns charged down to the Mustang 16, where the drive stalled and Russell Erxleben kicked a 37-yard field goal.

SMU's biggest threat came early in the second quarter. Ford completed an 11-yard pass to Anthony Smith to the Texas one.

On three consecutive downs, Ford was stopped for no gain. On fourth down, halfback Derrick Shelton swept wide, but Scholtz made the tackle at the Texas one to preserve the tremendous goaline stand.

SMU's D.K. Perry intercepted a Randy McEachern pass on the SMU 33-yard line and Texas led only 3-0 at halftime.

Putt Choate made SMU's fourth interception of the day on the Texas 20 to set up Garcia's 27-yard field goal.

Then Jones made his brilliant return to take the life out of the spirited Mustangs, who were 11-point underdogs.

Texas suffered six turnovers for the game as its mistakes helped keep SMU in the contest.

Todd's FGs, Sorley Keys to Huskers' Win

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Billy Todd kicked three field goals and quarterback Tom Sorley ran for one touchdown and passed for another Saturday to lead fourth-ranked Nebraska to a 22-14 Big Eight conference football victory over stubborn Oklahoma State.

It marked the 16th time in 17 years that the Cornhuskers defeated the Cowboys, but Oklahoma State was in the game from start to finish. The Cowboys stayed within striking distance until Scott Burk overthrew a wide-open Mel Campbell with 1:11 left in the game.

The Cowboys scored first on Ed Smith's 13-yard run. That drive began at the Oklahoma State 20 after the Cowboys recovered a Mel I. Hipp's fumble.

Another Hipp fumble forced the Huskers to settle for a 23-yard Todd field goal early in the second quarter. Minutes earlier, Nebraska's Frank Lockett had returned a kick 83 yards for an apparent score but his effort was nullified when he stepped out of bounds.

A blocked punt set up Nebraska on the 48 and Sorley scored from the 1 minutes later. The drive survived an Andra Franklin fumble that was recovered by Husker guard Barney Cotton.

Rick Berns took a 20-yard scoring pass from Sorley and Todd booted his second field goal to give Nebraska a 19-7 lead at intermission.

Oklahoma State bounced back, taking the second half kickoff and moved 80 yards in 17 plays with fullback Terry Suellentrop going the final yard to bring the Cowboys within five, 19-14.

Todd boosted the Husker lead with his third field goal, a 42-yarder late in the third quarter for the final scoring of the game.

The win lifted Nebraska to a 7-1 mark overall and a 4-0 conference record. The Cowboys fell to 6-2 overall and 2-2 in the loop.

Despite the 19-point second quarter Nebraska was never able to break the game open as the Cowboy defense held NU scoreless in the first and fourth periods, and surrendered only a field goal in the third.

Statistics showed the game to be just as close as it appeared from the stands. The Cowboys rolled up 17 first downs to the Huskers' 15, and out distanced Nebraska in total offense 323 yards to 316.

The latter was no small feat, since NU has lead the nation in total offense with an average of 503.1. The 213 Cowboy rushing yards were the most surrendered by NU's defense since an opening season loss to Alabama.

"They came at us and played well," said Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne. "It was the first team since Alabama when I questioned who controlled the line of scrimmage. At times they had the upper hand."

The two squads were virtually equal in most phases of the game including fumbles, with the Cowboys losing two of three and the Huskers two of four.

Ford Sparks Buffs' 28-27 TV Rally

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Sophomore Eddie Ford burst for two touchdowns in the final 20 minutes, the second a 16-yard jaunt following a punt return by Mike Davis, to rally underdog Colorado to a 28-27 triumph over 13th-ranked Missouri in a regionally televised Big Eight football contest Saturday.

Ford's scoring gallops, the first on a 7-yard run with 5:39 left in the third period, rallied Colorado from a 27-7 deficit early in the second half.

Buff's quarterback Bill Solomon completed 9 of 14 passes during a stirring comeback and also pranced 12 yards into the end zone for Colorado's third touchdown.

Davis' 22-yard punt return set up the Buffs' decisive score. Solomon whipped a 16-yard pass to split end Kazell Pugh and Ford rambled around end two plays later to score with 5:22 left in the game.

Colorado kicker Pete Dadiotis kicked the winning point, a margin made possible in the opening minutes of the final half when Missouri misfired on an attempted conversion following its third touchdown.

In the final two minutes, the Tigers' final chance for victory vanished as placekicker Jeff Brockhaus fell short on a field goal try from the Buffaloes' 33.

The outcome of the rugged battle left Colorado with a 6-2 record and a 2-2 mark in Big Eight play. Missouri, 5-3, also stands 2-2.

Prior to the Buffaloes' comeback, Missouri shackled its opponents in the first two quarters and took a 14-7 lead at half-time on Gerry Ellis' 1-yard run.

James Wilder of the Tigers scored a touchdown on a 60-yard pass play in the opening minutes of the third quarter, and Ellis banged 2 yards into the end zone to establish the 27-7 Missouri command.

But Solomon, who had completed only three of eight aerials in the opening 30 minutes, soon afterward opened up with three bullseyes consuming 66 yards on a scoring march which was capped by Ford's first touchdown.

Then, tight end Greg Howard of the Buffaloes tucked in four Solomon passes for 71 yards and Solomon ran the final 12 yards for the touchdown, pulling Colorado to 27-21.

Cumby, Sims Lead OU Over Pesky Wildcats

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Despite an unimpressive third quarter and play that Oklahoma head coach Barry Switzer labeled "not as sharp as usual," his No. 1-ranked Sooners romped to a 56-19 Big Eight Conference Big Eight Conference football victory over the Kansas State Wildcats Saturday.

"We had three pretty good quarters," Switzer said. "Thomas Lott (first-string quarterback) executed well while he was in there, but he got hurt again."

"Also, their formations gave us a lot of trouble. We kept having to make adjustments, which made it hard to key. We defended the passing game well, but I didn't think they would score that many points."

Halfback Billy Sims skittered for 202 yards and two touchdowns and reserve quarterback J.C. Watts added two more as the Sooners rolled to their eighth win. Lott scored one touchdown, passed for another and defensive linebacker George Cumby got six points with an interception.

It was in the third quarter that the Wildcats put together consecutive touchdowns while holding the Sooners scoreless. And many of the Oklahoma players echoed Switzer's disappointment with their overall play.

"I didn't feel we played that well as a team," Cumby said. "They ran the ball good and I personally missed some tackles I should have made."

But the defensive play of Cumby and guard Phil Tabor had its good points as Tabor picked up 11 tackles, six unassisted, and Cumby made seven stops, four unassisted.

"They are a great football team," Wildcat Coach Jim Dickey said. "Defensively, we were really bad. We've got young people playing in spots we probably shouldn't have in this league, but they're playing their hearts out."

At first it appeared that Sims would team with Lott to put the game away easily. But that third quarter put a scare into many a Sooner fan.

It's Wild 'N' Wacky In NFL Standings This Year

By United Press International

The longest season is also becoming the craziest season in the National Football League.

With NFL clubs entering the second half of the extended 16-game schedule this week, consider the following:

—The Green Bay Packers, doormats in the NFC Central Division in recent years, open the second half leading the division.

—The New York Jets, who have made the 3-11 season their trademark in recent years, can tie for the AFC Eastern Division lead with a victory today.

—The Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys don't even lead their division at the halfway mark, dropping to second in the NFC East following a 21-10 loss to Minnesota Thursday night.

—The New York Giants, who haven't made the playoffs since 1963, and the Seattle Seahawks, relative babies in the NFL in just their third season, conceivably could move into first place today.

The Packers are 6-2 and hold a 11-2-game lead over Minnesota, which climbed over the .500 mark with an upset victory in Dallas Thursday night. The Packers have a rugged schedule in the second half of the season, starting today with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The Bucs tied a club record for points last week in a 33-19 triumph over Chicago and are 4-4 after winning only two games in their first two years of existence. But the Packers sparked by the running of Terrell Middleton and the passing combination of David Whitehurst to rookie James Lofton, trail only Dallas, which has played one more game, in scoring in the NFC.

Middleton, second in the NFC in rushing, is apprehensive about facing Tampa Bay. The Patriots' major weapon has "They've got a great defense," he explained. "Their linemen are their best people. Wally Chambers ... Dave Pear ... Lee Roy Selmon ... those guys are tough. I don't want any of them crunching down on me."

"I'm going to be running pretty hard. I'm getting myself up for the game."

The Jets have won three in a row to move to 5-3 despite losing starting quarterback Richard Todd with a broken collarbone on Sept. 24. Sub Matt Robinson has won three of four starts since then, blending the running talents of Kevin Long and Scott Dierking with the pass catching of Wesley Walker and Derrick Gaffney.

But New England, which got off to a rocky start, has won six straight and took over undisputed possession of first place last Sunday with a 33-24 victory over Miami. The Patriots' major weapon has been Steve Grogan, a strong-armed passer who many consider to be the best running quarterback in the NFL.

"He's like a third running back," said Jets Coach Walt Michaels. "He knows how to run, how to fall. They have a lot of plays designed for him to run and he makes them work. Any time they're in a tough situation and not moving the ball, you can expect to see him start popping out of there."

The Jets are the youngest team in the NFL but Robinson doesn't think playing in the club's biggest game in 10 years will rattle them.

"I feel like we can play with them," said the second-year man from Georgia. "We just can't make mistakes. You can't screw up and expect to win against a team like New England."

"We're thinking playoffs. We've won three in a row and we hope this winning feeling can snowball. I don't think we'll be tight. We have nothing to lose and it's a great opportunity and I don't think we're going to throw it away by being tight."

A Giants victory over New Orleans and a Washington loss to San Francisco would put the clubs in a three-way tie for first in the NFC East along with the Cowboys at 6-3.

A Seattle victory over Denver and a San Diego upset of Oakland could put all three of those clubs at 5-4 and in a tie for the AFC West lead. The Seahawks now trail Denver and Oakland by a game.

In other games today, Baltimore is at Miami, Buffalo at Cleveland, Houston at Cincinnati, Kansas City at Pittsburgh, Detroit at Philadelphia, 1 p.m., New York at New Orleans, 2 p.m., Tampa Bay at Green Bay, 2 p.m., Baltimore at Miami, 4 p.m., Detroit at Chicago, 7 p.m., San Francisco at Washington, 1 p.m., New York at Atlanta, 9 p.m.

Houston moved back into the AFC Central race by upsetting previously unbeaten Pittsburgh Monday night but must be wary of a letdown against 0-8 Cincinnati. Pittsburgh still leads by two games.

PROFESSOR OF CLASSICS

How do you tell the master's garment from the student's? By the concern with tailoring details. By the perfect way the collar sits and the lapels fall. By the balance and feel of the whole suit. And by the unerring way fine fabrics are chosen for each model. Like the muted pure wool plaid for this soft-tailored 2-button suit. The price? An anti-inflationary $225. Which should please even a professor of economics.

Coronado Dominates Tennis Tournament

Coronado found the W-r-i-g-h-t combination in both the "A" boys singles and doubles divisions during the Lubbock Fall Classic Tennis Tournament Saturday.

Greg Wright defeated won the singles championship and then teamed with Philip Catuogno for the doubles crown.

Wright defeated Frank Guengerich of Amarillo Tascosa 6-2, 6-3 for the singles title Wright and Catuogno then beat Guengerich and David Wright in consecutive sets 6-3, 6-4 for the doubles crown.

Greg Wright's performance helped Coronado dominated a six-team field. Coronado scored 34 points to beat runner up Amarillo Tascosa by 13 points.

The girls singles championship went to Kathy Lawson of Eastwood. Miss Lawson defeated Sue Sutherland of Amarillo Tascosa 6-0, 6-3 for the championship.

However, Coronado found the ingredients to dominated the girls doubles action.

Susan Mangum and Beth Nickels breezed through doubles play winning each bracket in consecutive sets. In the finals, Miss Mangum and Miss Nickels finished off Sue Sutherland and Cheryl Hall of Amarillo Tascosa 6-2, 6-0 in the final.

Competition in other brackets is slated to continue today.

Surprising Navy Upsets No. 15 Pitt

ANAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The Navy brass may think the annual battle with Army is the game that really counts, but it's a view the undefeated Midshipmen don't seem to share.

"This was the big one," co-captain Phil McConkey said after Navy's 21-11 victory over 15th-ranked Pittsburgh Saturday.

"Sure, it's the alumni the Army game is more important, but this is bigger than any Army game I've ever played in," the senior offensive end said.

"This gave us the chance to show we're a big league team, and we did it," he said.

The importance of the victory in showing that Navy is as good as its 7-0 record indicates was a common theme sounded in the jubilant dressing room after the game.

"We had to beat Pitt," defensive guard A.B. Miller said, "or they would have said, 'Yes, they can beat the mediocre teams, but they can't beat the good ones.' Now they can't say that."

Another common theme in the post-game comments was praise for Navy's defense, top-ranked in the nation, which gave up 275 yards passing but held the Panthers to a minus 28 yards on the ground.

"I'm speechless. I can't say enough for our defense," Navy coach George Welsh said.

Asked if he was thankful for the defense, quarterback Bob Leszczynski replied, "Oh God, am I thankful, they are the greatest."

"When we haven't been able to get it going, our defense has stopped them."

"It's given us confidence," he said. "We know we'll get more chances and more chances to score."

Miller said the key to the Navy defense is: "We've just got 11 guys who believe in hustling. We don't have any superstars. We just have 11 guys."

Pitt threatened several times in the opening period, gaining good field position at the Navy 46, its own 48, the Navy 47 and midfield. But each time the Midships' defense held firm and the Panthers missed two field goal attempts, a 41-yarder by Schubert and a 39-yarder by Dave Trout.

Panthers had to settle for Schubert's field goal after James Covert recovered a fumble by Leszczynski at the Navy 15.

Texas A&M Alumni Reward Bellard

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Newly resigned Texas A&M head football coach Emory Bellard may have thought he had few friends among the Aggie alumni, but they have voted him a lifetime honorary membership.

The A&M Association of Former Students, saying it spoke for 80,000 Aggies, passed a resolution at its fall meeting Saturday saying it was "saddened and deeply regrets" Bellard's resignation.

The resolution said Bellard "has rendered conspicuous service to Texas A&M by virtue of his outstanding achievement as head football coach and athletic director and... by his leadership and conduct of his duties serves as an example to us all..."

When Bellard stepped down Tuesday, saying he was going to be fired at the end of the season because of alumni pressure following two consecutive conference losses, he said, "I just want to be a good Aggie."

Tar Heels Slip By Gamecocks 24-22

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Freshman North Carolina quarterback Chuck Sharpe threw three touchdown passes in the first half, two of them to senior tight end Bob Loomis, as the Tar Heels built an early lead and held on through a furious South Carolina comeback to defeat the Gamecocks 24-22 in a nonconference football game Saturday.

Sharpe connected with a wide-open

Loomis on an eight-yard pass early in the second quarter to cap an 84-yard drive and then threw the tight end another scoring pass from the one with less than a minute to play in the period.

The youngster from Burlington, N.C., threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to halfback Doug Paschal in the middle of the opening period, ending a 63-yard march.

South Carolina, trailing 24-6 in the fourth quarter, brought in Skip Ramsey at quarterback and he promptly threw two long touchdown passes to pull the Gamecocks within sight of a victory.

Ramsey hit flanker Tim Gillespie on a 52-yard pass play and threw 49 yards to split end Horace Smith for another score.

Ramsey also threw two-point conversion passes to tight end Willie Scott and flanker Zion McKinney in the closing drive.

But South Carolina's last drive failed with an unsuccessful field goal attempt from the 49 with about a minute left in the game.

Irish Win Fifth Straight At Expense of Miami

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Vagas Ferguson booted for two touchdowns and Charles Male booted field goals of 47 and 37 yards Saturday to lead Notre Dame to a 20-0 college football victory over Miami, Fla.

The triumph was the fifth straight for the Irish since they opened the season with two losses, while Miami suffered its fourth loss against three victories.

Ferguson's 4-yard touchdown run after Notre Dame recovered a Hurricane fumble in the second quarter was the only score in a defense-dominated first half.

Clemson Rips Wolfpack

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lester Brown ran for 117 yards and two touchdowns and Rx Varn returned a pass interception 94 yards for another score Saturday to spark 20th ranked Clemson to a 33-10 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over North Carolina State.

The Tigers' rugged defense kept the N.C. State attack bottled up most of the afternoon as scouts from the Gator, Liberty, Peach, Tangerine and Hall of Fame bowls watched the regionally televised game.

Lester Brown, a 175-pound junior tallied on runs of one yard in the second period and 11 yards in the third quarter. With Clemson leading 23-3 in the final period, Varn picked off a pass by Wolfpack quarterback Scott Smith at the Clemson six and raced 94 yards down the right sideline to score.

The victory raised Clemson's record to 6-1 overall and 3-0 in the ACC — leaving the Tigers a half game behind Maryland, which is 4-0 in the conference. The Wolfpack is 5-2 overall and 2-2 in the ACC.

Clemson dominated the first half, allowing the Wolfpack only one first down in the opening period.

The Tigers scored on their first possession marching from their 47 to the N.C. State 10 before bogging down. Obed Ariri hit a 27-yard field goal to make the score 3-0 less than five minutes into the game.

Clemson threatened two more times in the first quarter but N.C. State's Ronnie Lee intercepted a pass by quarterback Steve Fuller at the Wolfpack 34 and Ray Harris blocked a 45-yard field goal attempt by Ariri.

The Tigers then put together a 65-yard drive for the game's first touchdown. Fuller completed passes of 10 yards to Dwight Clark and 15 yards to Jerry Butler before Lester Brown broke a 24-yard

North Texas Edges Louisiana Tech

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A fourth-quarter safety and a last-minute fumble recovery made the difference Saturday as North Texas State edged Louisiana Tech 16-14 in college football.

North Texas State, now 6-2, went ahead 14-0 on two second-quarter scores — a 44-yard pass from Jordan Case to Charlie Murray and a 7-yard run by Bernard Jackson — but Tech, 4-3, nearly pulled out a victory in the second half.

Reserve quarterback Eric Barkley passed 45 yards to Adam Short for a third-quarter touchdown and 50 yards for a fourth-quarter score to George Pee.

But in between those touchdowns, starting quarterback Keith Thibodeaux was called for intentional grounding, resulting in a safety that gave North Texas a 16-7 lead at the time and the eventual winning margin.

After closing the gap to 16-14, Tech took over on its 20 with 2:08 left and Barkley passed 19 yards to Bryan Lewiston, scrambled 14 yards, and hit Pre on a 41-yard pass to the Eagle 8 with 38 seconds left.

Then tried two running plays, and on the second one North Texas middle guard Nelson Barnes jarred the ball loose from Lewiston.

Male booted his 47-yard field goal early in the third quarter and Ferguson's second touchdown, a 3-yard jaunt, gave the Irish a 17-0 lead late in the third period and capped a 62-yard march in 11 plays.

Male added his 37-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter and the Irish controlled the game with their tough defense and the running of Ferguson and Jerome Heavens.

The Irish had a chance to pad their lead late in the first half when they moved from their own 16-yard line to the Miami 13 on a drive highlighted by Joe Montan's 42-yard pass to Kris Haines. But蒙塔纳在下一球上被截断，而里弗斯在2球后被抄截。蒙塔纳在下一球上被截断，而里弗斯在2球后被抄截。

Heavens and Ferguson took turns carrying and seven plays later Ferguson scored. That was all the 19th-ranked Irish needed as the defense prevented Miami from ever mounting a serious threat.

The Hurricanes totaled just 123 yards on offense, netting 108 rushing and 18 passing, while Notre Dame had a total offense of 390 yards.

Ferguson gained 84 yards in 18 carries and Heavens collected 80 yards in 30 rushes, while Montana completed 12 of 20 passes for 175 yards.

Fullback Otis Anderson, a 202-pound senior, made up most of Miami's offense as he gained 73 yards in 16 carries.

Notre Dame committed only one turnover, the interception by Valerio which prevented the Irish from scoring again in the first half. Miami was guilty of four turnovers, one interception and three fumbles.

The Wolfpack gambled on a fourth-and-five play at the Clemson 44 late in the half. But a pass by punter John Isley failed to pick up enough yardage and gave Clemson the ball at its own 42. Fuller passed 24 yards to Butler at the five and spotted him open in the end zone from two yards away to give Clemson a 16-3 lead at the intermission.

The Tigers drove 64 yards for another score in the third period with Lester Brown going the final 11 yards around left end. N.C. State got its only touchdown with five seconds remaining when reserve halfback Wayne McLean dived one yard to cap a 73-yard march.

WE GROW, GROW... AND SO GROW YOUR BOAT SAVINGS!

Inland Discount Marine is expanding by leaps and bounds. We have now acquired Knodel Marine in McQueeny and Modern Marine in Lubbock—and we are negotiating for four or five more locations throughout much of Texas. This means, of course, that lower cost powerboats, sailboats, and yachts have already come to the San Antonio and Lubbock markets and, as additional locations are opened, it will mean still lower costs, as our volume increases. We will continue to be headquartered on our "eight acres of boats" on beautiful Lake Amistad near Del Rio, Texas.

We have also taken over Thunderbird and Starcraft franchises for much of the state of Texas...two of America's very top line boats. Thunderbird is a more costly, more inclusive boat and considered by many a boat superior to Sea Ray. However, Inland's great purchasing power and low, low markup policies will bring you this fine boat at a lower cost than most dealers will sell you a Sea Ray. Starcraft is a line of boats that competes with Glastron in the "middle market". Again, because of our volume purchasing power, and the fact that we buy direct from the Starcraft factory, we can undersell Glastron by 15-20%. In addition to these two major franchises, Inland Discount Marine will handle the very low-cost Renken line. We also handle Viking Deck Boats, Boston Whaler, and Starfire boats...each one of them tops in their particular category and field. In sail you can buy Ericson, American Mariner, South Coast, Banshee and Taft.

And there's icing on the cake. With payment of a $10 membership in Inland Marine Association, you can receive an additional 5-10% discount off already low-discounted boat prices; an informative boating newsletter at frequent intervals; and a 10% discount on parts, accessories, and services (available at all Inland Discount Marine locations). Only landlubbers can afford not to join Inland Marine Association.

Pugh Keys Crimson Tide 'Bama Rolls Over VPI

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Jeff Rutledge passed for 160 yards and two touchdowns and Keith Pugh caught five passes for 148 yards to lead No. 3 Alabama over out-classed Virginia Tech 35-0 in college football Saturday.

Rutledge hit Pugh on a 45-yard scoring toss to make it 14-0 in the second period and threw one into Bruce Bolton's hands from 27 yards out in the final period to make it 28-0.

Rutledge hit on seven of nine passes and Steadman Shealy was good on four of five for 73 yards.

Four of Pugh's catches were spectacular receptions that overcame tight coverage by VPI defenders.

The victory gave Alabama a 7-1 record going into its Southeastern Conference game against Mississippi State at Birmingham on Saturday.

VPI, now 3-5, is at home to Kentucky.

VPI threatened seriously three times. One ended in an unsuccessful field goal attempt in the first quarter. In the third period, David Lamie hit Ellis Savage with a 42-yard pass and then Lamie ran 26 yards to the Alabama four. But after a series of penalties and bad plays Alabama took over at the 13.

However, one play later, Chris Albritton recovered a fumble at the Alabama 11. But Allen Crumbley stopped that threat with an interception.

VPI moved to the eight against Alabama's substitutes in the last minute, but could not score.

Alabama now holds a 9-0 margin over VPI in their series and has won 45 in a row at Tuscaloosa and is 60-1 here under Coach Bear Bryant.

The victory made Bryant's lifetime record 280-77-16.

Alabama moved 66 yards for its first touchdown, mainly on runs by Tony Nathan and Major Ogilvie, to score on a 5-yard end-around by Rick Neal.

After Pugh's spectacular catch on the next touchdown, he made other catches of 32, 22, 30, and 19 yards. The 30-yarder put Alabama on the goal in the third period and Ogilvie took it the last few inches.

Shealy was shaken up late in the game and sophomore Don Jacobs, taking his place, ran 33 yards to score on the first time he handled the ball.

Pugh caught five passes for 148 yards and four of the receptions were close to unbelievable.

"You catch one pass and it gives you a little confidence," the split-end said.

"You get fired up and you want to catch some more."

VPI safety Gary Smith said: "Pugh has as good hands as I have ever seen and his receptions hurt us."

Coch Bear Bryant of Alabama said: "We could all see Pugh making those great catches."

Coach Bill Dooley of VPI said: "Pugh just made some unbelievable catches. That young man really has a pair of hands."

Bryant said he was delighted with the victory, but that his third ranked Crimson Tide still has to improve. "We've just got to go out there Monday and try to regroup for the stretch run of the Southeastern Conference championship."

Michigan Wolverines Put Gophers In Hole

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Quarterback Rick Leach passed for three touchdowns and ran for two more Saturday in a record-shattering performance to lead eighth-ranked Michigan to a 42-10 Big Ten football victory over Minnesota.

The triumph in the Little Brown Jug battle avenged Michigan's 16-0 upset last year at Minneapolis that knocked the Wolverines from the No. 1 spot in the national rankings.

Leach, a 4-year starter from Flint, completed 9 of 13 passes for 143 yards and rushed for 62 more. He raised his career TD passing total to a Big Ten record 39. The old mark of 37 was held by former Purdue quarterback Mike Phipps.

Two of Leach's scoring tosses were to junior wingback Ralph Clayton, a 26-yarder in the first quarter and a 1-yarder in the Wolverine's 21-point third period.

Leach also hit tight end Doug Marsh with a 3-yard touchdown pass in the third quarter after Mike Harden intercepted a Mark Carlson pass. Less than a minute later, after Gerald Diggs recovered Keith Edwards' fumble on the ensuing kickoff, Leach ran over from the 2.

Leach's other touchdown was an 8-yard run in the second period.

The Wolverines lifted their conference record to 3-1 and overall mark to 6-1.

Tennis Group Sets Annual Meeting

The Lubbock Tennis Association's annual meeting will be held Nov. 9 at 7 p.m. in the First Federal Savings and Loan community room located on 50th St.

David Hester, executive director, stated the dinner will be free to all members. Everyone in the Lubbock area is invited to attend. The annual dues of the tennis association are $5 per person.

The featured speaker at the meeting will be Mrs. Donna Stockton Roup, women's tennis coach at Texas Tech.

There will also be discussion of the plans for the major zone tournament next summer, formation of Lubbock Umpires Association, youth development programs and the formation of a Texas Tech Racquet Club.

Awards will be presented to outstanding workers the past year and the annual election of officers will be held.

while the Gophers fell to 2-2 and 3-4. Freshman Butch Woolfolk started his first collegiate game as a replacement for injured tailback Harlan Huckleby and rushed for 120 yards in 22 carries, including a 49-yard touchdown jaunt with 1:17 remaining.

Minnesota's first points came on a 20-yard field goal by Paul Rogind. He also converted after fullback Kent Kitzmann's 2-yard touchdown run in the final period. The four points gives Rogind 140 for his career to set a Gophers' record. The old mark of 136 was set by Jim Carter from 1968 through 1970.

Rogind's field goal came after Keith Brown recovered Russell Davis' fumble at the Minnesota 49. On the first Gopher play, Detroit's Marion Barber burst 45 yards to the 9 to set up the field goal.

Michigan's first touchdown drive covered 50 yards in seven plays, including a 14-yard pass from Leach to tight end Gene Johnson. It was the 201st completion in Leach's career to set a Wolverines' record. The old mark was set by Don Moorhead, 1968-70.

The Homecoming crowd of 105,308 was the third largest in Michigan Stadium history only behind the Ohio State games of 1977 and 1975.

Terps Dunk Duke 27-0

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Maryland's Steve Atkins ran for three touchdowns and Ed Loncar added a pair of field goals as the fifth-ranked Terrapins easily defeated Duke, 27-0, in an Atlantic Coast Conference game Saturday.

Atkins, a senior tailback, scored on runs of one, one, and three yards as the Terps jumped ahead 20-0 in the first half and held off the Blue Devils in the second. Loncar's kicks were from 26 and 47 yards out.

The win extended Maryland's undefeated string to eight and left them 4-0 in the ACC. Duke fell to 3-4 overall and 1-2 in the league.

Maryland took advantage of good field positions and frequent Duke blunders, as the Blue Devils gave up three fumbles and two pass interceptions. Each of the Maryland scores came on short drives, the longest covering only 31 yards.

Atkins scored his third touchdown with 5:01 remaining in the third quarter, five plays after Terp linebacker Neal Olkewicz recovered a fumble by Greg Rhett at the Duke 31.

Maryland was also hurt by 10 penalties that cost 50 yards.

Duke, playing without injured quarterback Mike Dunn, got inside the Maryland 15 twice, but was unable to score. The Blue Devils got as far as the Terp nine late in the fourth quarter before quarterback Stanley Driskell was dropped for a 15 yard loss and Duke gave up the ball.

Duke, behind 17-0 in the first quarter, could not get a running attack started and turned to the air with reserve quarterback Stanley Driskell, playing for the injured Mike Dunn, throwing 39 passes and completing 22.

The fact we could not generate any running thrusts hampered our offense considerably," said Duke coach Mike McGee. "Maryland's defensive guard played well. When you get down close, Maryland is one of the great teams in the country."

"Mike Dunn could have played in running situations, but we got behind quickly and knew we would have to pass a great deal," McGee said. "Both he and Greg Rhett should be nearly 100 percent by next week against Tennessee."

Demolition Derby Concludes Speedway Activity Today

If auto racing at Lubbock Speedway failed to produce enough crashes to satisfy its patrons this season, the track's drivers today will seek to remedy that oversight.

Regular drivers of all kinds of race cars are listed as contestants in the demolition derby that will wind up the track's 1978 activities at 2 p.m.

Track operator Jack Halpaine said that 26 cars — primarily gas guzzlers of late 1960s and early '70s vintage — have been pre-entered, and that he anticipated a field of "around 30" when the green flag falls on the first heat.

The field will be split into four to six heats, with finalists in each heat going into a grand finale after a brief time-out for such repairs as are feasible.

Race drivers entered include sprint driver Don Zahn, James Colson, an ex-sprint pilot; and stock car wheelers Jimmy Pence, Wayne Wright, Scott McGee, Charles Pope, Tommy Norwell, Doug Sinclair and Harrel and Maurice Whitehead.

A challenge race between the Volkswagen division drivers and mini-stock pilots — the latter all driving Mazdas — will precede the multiple smashup event.

"We have to run it first," Halpaine explained: "there'll be so much junk on the track from the demolition cars that those race cars would all have flat tires before they could take the green."

Lubbock Speedway is three miles south of the Traffic Circle on U.S. 87 and is reached via the FM 1585 exit.

Sun Devils Trounced By Washington 41-7

SEATTLE (AP) — Fullback Toussaint Tyler scored a pair of touchdowns and Washington's swarming defense chased off Arizona State's explosive offense Saturday as the Huskies buried the 12th-ranked Sun Devils 41-7 in a Pacific-10 Conference football game.

Tyler, a 6-foot-3, 214-pound sophomore who won a starting assignment two weeks ago, scored on a 4-yard run late in the second period for a 14-0 Washington lead in the regionally televised contest. Defensive tackle Chris Linnin's 45-yard return to the ASU 9 with an interception of a Mark Malone pass set up the score.

Tyler's 1-yard run capped a 5-2 overall and 1-2 in Pac-10 competition seven-play drive on the Huskies' first possession of the second half for a 27-7 lead.

The Washington defense, led by fiery middle linebacker Michael Jackson, recovered four of the Sun Devils' six fumbles and intercepted Malone, the ASU quarterback, three times.

UCLA Breezes By Wildcats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bruising fullback Theotis Brown rushed for 115 yards, 99 of them in a decisive first half, to lead 10th-ranked UCLA to an easy 24-14 victory over Arizona Friday night.

The triumph enabled UCLA to remain unbeaten in Pacific-10 conference play. The Bruins are 5-0 in league action and 7-1 overall. Arizona dropped to 1-2 in the Pac-10 and 3-4 on the season.

UCLA scored all of its points in the first half. Arizona's only touchdowns came in the final period.

Brown, who carried 21 times in the game, sparked the Bruins' 76-yard, 10-play march with the opening kickoff. He gained 42 yards on the drive, culminated by James Owens' 3-yard scoring run.

Freeman McNeil made it 14-0 early in the second quarter with a 44-yard scoring dash which climaxed a 91-yard, 11-play march. McNeil gained 104 yards on 15 carries.

The Bruins' third touchdown was set up by Arizona quarterback Jim Krohn's fumble of a snap from center late in the second quarter. UCLA's Jerry Robinson recovered at the Wildcats' 8-yard line and quarterback Rick Bashore ran in from there two plays later.

Peter Boermeester completed the Bruins' scoring with a 46-yard field goal on the final play of the first half.

Arizona finally got on the scoreboard with 7:23 to play on an 8-yard run by Krohn to cap a 55-yard, nine-play drive. Krohn rifled a 21-yard scoring pass to Ron Beyer with 3:09 remaining to complete the scoring.

Krohn finished with 15 completions in 20 passing attempts for 182 yards.

MHS' Conaway Claims Race

BROWNFIELD (Special) — Curtis Conaway of Monterey captured first place in the Brownfield Invitational cross-country meet here Saturday, posting a time of 10:48 over the two-mile course.

Second place went to Willie McCool of Coronado, with a time of 10:52.

In girl's varsity action, Elizabeth Holguin of Brownfield edged Ramona Irlebeck of Abilene by four seconds in capturing first place.

Brownfield boys and Tascosa girls claimed the team championships.

Compare Your Present Job With THIS Opportunity

As a Mutual of Omaha representative with Mutual of Omaha, you are your own boss. You aren't dependent on somebody else for the degree of success you achieve.

You represent a leading company that is offering people in your community the financial security they need against sickness and accidents. People know and respect the Company you represent.

Your efforts are backed by a broad national advertising program on TV, in magazines and newspapers.

If you're looking for management opportunities, Mutual of Omaha certainly offers them. Our continued rapid expansion is creating an ever-increasing need for sales representatives with management potential to fill key positions. We fill those positions from our own ranks.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Sealed bids for construction work for instructional and Research Addition to Electrical Engineering Building at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, Texas, will be received on November 21, 1978 at 4:00 p.m. CST.

All bids will be received by Mr. John G. Taylor, Contracting and Purchasing Officer, Texas Tech University in his office, Room 342, Draw Hall, at the Petroleum Plant Building Auditorium, Texas Tech University. The bids will be publicly opened and read aloud in the Auditorium of the Petroleum Plant Building. Any bids received after closing time will be returned unopened.

The work will be awarded under one contract.

A Cashier's Check or Certified check, payable without recourse to Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas, or an acceptable Surety Project Bond in an amount not less than five percent (5%) of the largest possible total bid, including consideration of alternates, must accompany each bid. A bidder agrees that if awarded the contract, the bidder will promptly enter into a contract to execute bonds in forms provided as outlined in the specifications and information to bidders. A Performance Bond and Payment Bond in an amount of one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price will be required.

No bidder may withdraw his bid within 30 days after the actual date of the opening thereof.

Plans, Specifications and related documents may be obtained at the Office of New Construction, Texas Tech University after the 1st of November in the east basement of the Administration Building or at the offices of Howard Schmidt & Associates, 4200 Boston Avenue, Lubbock, Texas.

The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any or all formalities.

Little Richard Turns To Religious Efforts

DALLAS (AP) — It happens to him all the time now. Folks are introduced to Little Richard, they start to shake hands and miss a beat.

"Who?" they ask of the tall man in a rust-colored suit. "Naw."

"Hi," he says, shifting his Bible and extending his hand. "God bless you."

It throws them. Where, they ask, is the glistening, nappy pompadour, the eyeline, the silver cape that became the trademark of the 1950s piano-pounding rock 'n' roll screamer?

Gone for three years now, he assures his audience, for even now Little Richard commands an audience. Gone since he discovered Christ and went on the road to "spread His beautiful word."

"Oh, brother," you are saying now. "Another born-again-has-been-star," you are thinking.

And he won't try to prove otherwise. But he's given up trying to prove anything more, he says.

"God has done good for me," he says. "I meet preachers every day and I don't know what they think of me and I don't care. I just put my hand and say 'God bless you brother.'"

People are skeptical, even here in Dallas, which is referred to by detractors and promoters alike as the "buckle on the Bible belt," where Richard is preaching to a "prophecy panorama" this weekend.

They remember Richard's "conversion" more than 20 years ago when after a harrowing flight over Australia, he "made a deal with God." The story became more notorious when he tossed a fistful of rings off a ferry to prove his sincerity to a band member.

"I took my eyes off Jesus," he explains of the earlier, temporary conversion. "I was really young then. It wasn't the message, it was me. God has really done something for me. This is the truth."

The story of Richard's mid-life turnaround (he's 45) is not unlike others you've heard. With no big hits since the late 1950s, he spent the 1960s and early 1970s on the road pumping out his old hits, "Tootie Fruitee," "Long Tall Sally," "Lucille," "Jenny Jenny" and "Good Golly Miss Molly."

"I was using dope, marijuana, angel dust, cocaine and heroin with pills and drinking," he said. "All I wanted to do was have orgies, get high and sing all my old hits."

Then within the span of a year, three friends and one of his younger brothers died suddenly. "It was a sign that He is no respecter of persons," Richard said, and he turned to God.

He chuckles the garish, feminine wardrobe, the eye makeup, the jewelry, even his famous pompadour, which he says

Casino Employees Return To School

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — It is back to school, at least briefly, for more than 900 dealers, pit bosses and cashiers at Resorts International Hotel Casino.

The casino workers finish special tests today to make sure they are familiar with strict state and company internal accounting controls in the East's only casino. The test, involving around 20 questions, is being given during breaks and lunch hours.

Resorts International officials deny the test was initiated to insure there are no more slips in internal controls like the ones which recently cost the firm $40,000 in state fines. The fines were levied because of credit and accounting violations in the first week of operation.

wasn't even his to begin with.

"I didn't grow it, I just went to the store and bought it," he hooted, his pencil-thin moustache disappearing behind the split of his mouth.

He lapses into the old jargon occasionally, relating how he "plays, er preaches" all across the country, but he won't sing rock 'n' roll. And you won't find him slinging his leg over the piano as he shucks and jives across the stage, either.

"I sing, but I just haven't played the piano. I've got to learn how to play gospel," he said, his voice a musical mixture of crescendos and staccatos.

"Rock 'n' roll doesn't glorify God. You can't drink out of God's cup and the devil's cup at the same time," he said, pulling another in a series of religious analogies out of his hip pocket. "I was one of the pioneers of that music, one of the builders. I know what the blocks are made of because I built them."

Religion has always played a part in Richard's life. Born Richard Penniman, the 3rd of 12 children, he was reared in the Deep South of Macon, Ga. At age seven, he was singing on the streets for small coins. At 14 he was the lead singer in his church choir. He won a talent contest in 1951, quickly signed a record contract, cut two records and just as quickly, dropped from sight.

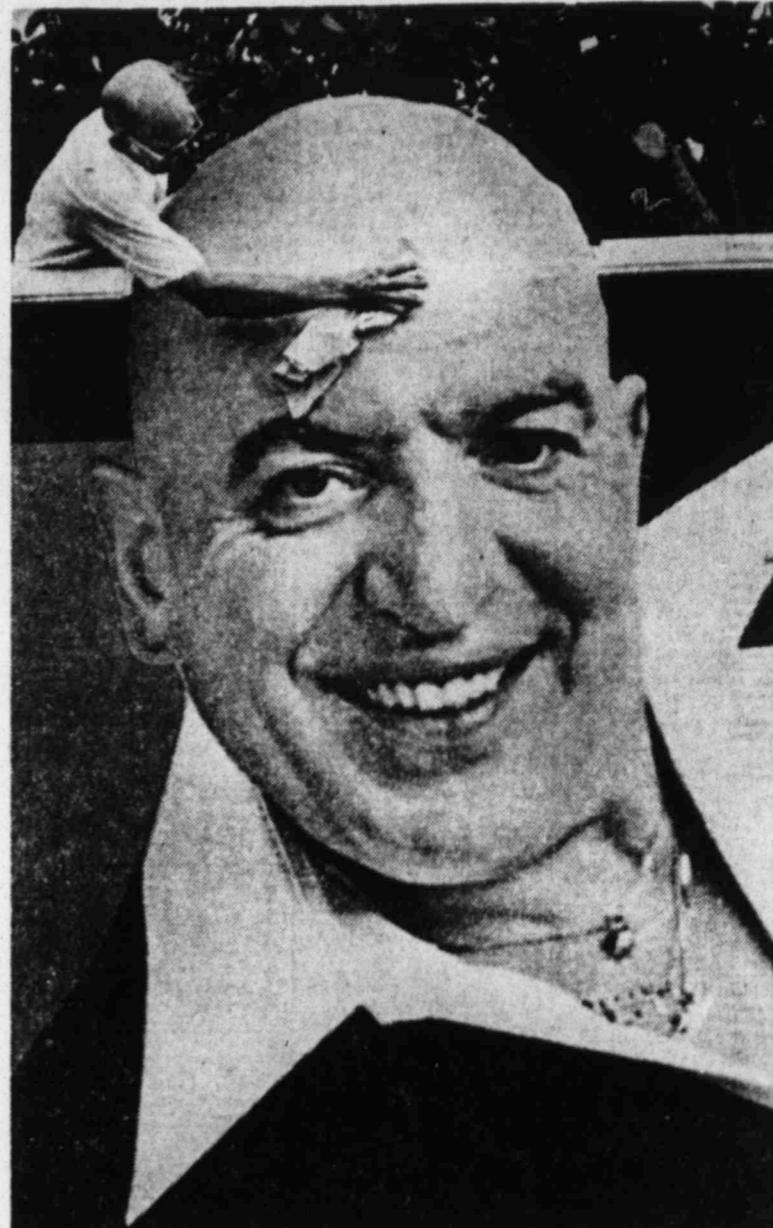

While washing dishes in a Macon bus station, he sent a demonstration tape, "Tootie Fruitee," to another promoter, and his flashy career took off.

He lives a more subdued life in Riverside, Calif., with his mother now, working for a Bible company out of Nashville, Tenn. He claims record companies owe him "millions" in royalties, but he's not making any efforts to collect.

"The Lord convinced me time is short and the time I was spending with that people could be won into the kingdom and to forget it. So I forgot it."

"People aren't skeptical of me because I'm not charging money for God. I go for Jesus."

"Obey God rather than man. That's Acts 5:29," he intoned, thumbing through the pages. "Let's make sure that text is right. I can't be quoting the wrong text."

Government To Offer Off-Shore Tracts

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The government is to offer 89 seabottom tracts Tuesday for offshore oil and gas drilling in the Gulf of Mexico, the first lease sale under new federal royalty provisions.

But six of the tracts are about 25 miles south of the most expensive exploratory drilling in the history of offshore drilling, and the oil industry is less than enthusiastic about the forthcoming sale.

"Normally, in the days before a hot sale I get so many telephone calls from oil people I can hardly get away from my desk. There has been nothing like that this time," said Harold Sieverding, assistant manager of the Bureau of Land Management's office in New Orleans.

The 89 tracts are widely scattered off the coasts of Mississippi, Alabama and Florida, sites that have come to be called "Mafia" by the oil industry.

Twenty-two of the tracts in the offshore lease sale are the first to be held under sliding scale royalty provisions set by the

New Mexico Cowboys Dominate Collegiate Rodeo Competition

Four nights of hard-fought rodeo competition ended Saturday with New Mexico cowboys dominating the competition. A total of 3,118 were on hand to see the last night of the 33rd Annual Texas Tech Intercollegiate Rodeo.

Buddy Reynolds from West Texas College placed first in the bareback bronc competition. First, second, and third place winners were Lane Foltyn, West Texas College; Jeff Montayo, New Mexico State University; and Frank Gardner, Eastern New Mexico University.

Calf roping winners included Terry Leatherwood, Eastern New Mexico University; Mack Altizer, Howard College; Eddie Mardis, West Texas State University; and David Workman, Tarleton State University.

Becky Meek of Howard College won the girls' breakaway roping competition and was also chosen best-all-around cowgirl on the basis of her point totals.

Other breakaway winners were Sharlene Harris from Sul Ross; Kay Sewell from Eastern New Mexico University; and Lee Ann Funderburg from Tarleton State University.

Saddle bronc competition was intense, but Jess Knight of Howard College at Big Spring came in first.

E.C. Holt of Sul Ross, Jeff Knight of Howard College, and Bill Sutton of Sul Ross were other winners in the saddle bronc category.

Texas Tech cowgirl Candy Middleton won first place in the girls' goat tying event. Katie Leonard of West Texas State University; Becky Meek of Howard College, and Regina Benyshek of West Texas State University were other winners.

Bull rider Lane Foltyn of West Texas College won first in the traditionally tough competition. Ricky Phillips of Texas State University, Gary Nordeling of Texas State University, and Terry Thornton of New Mexico Junior College were other winners.

Bronc wrestling competition was won by David McMullan of Sul Ross. Gary Nordeling of Tarleton State University came in second with Wes Smith and Garland Dahl placing third and fourth.

Eastern New Mexico University team ropers placed first, second, and third almost totally dominate that category of competition.

Saddle bronc competition was intense, but Jess Knight of Howard College at Big Spring came in first.

The Howard College team of Wes Smith and Ken Smith came in fourth.

Girls barrel racing competition was won by Tammy Matthews of West Texas College. Nona Casselman of New Mexico State University, Fawn Abel of Eastern New Mexico University, and Mary Lou Bradley of Howard College placed second, third, and fourth in the event.

The council contend a loan to Vienna would be a better investment than a loan to New York City, because Vienna would pay it back.

However, Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., gently discouraged the town from making the federal request.

"No West Virginia community should have to grovel the way New York City did when it was asking for its $1.5 billion loan," Byrd told the council.

So Thursday night, the council decided to ask New York City for the money instead. Council members said they were confident New York City would okay the loan.

"It's probably the best investment New York City's made in a long time," chuckled councilman Richard Cotterman.

VIENNA, W.Va. (UPI) — Vienna City Council has dropped its plan to request a $200,000 loan from the federal government and will ask New York City for the money instead.

The Wood County town of 11,500 earlier this year decided to ask the federal government for the money to make recreational improvements at Jackson Park.

Big Spring Cited For Rapid Aid

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — Eight cities have been cited by President Carter and the Defense Department for their economic recovery from the loss of military installations shut down since the Vietnam War.

The awards were presented here Friday at a meeting of the National Association of Installation Developers.

Big Spring, which lost Webb Air Force Base 15 months ago, was cited for the most rapid economic recovery.

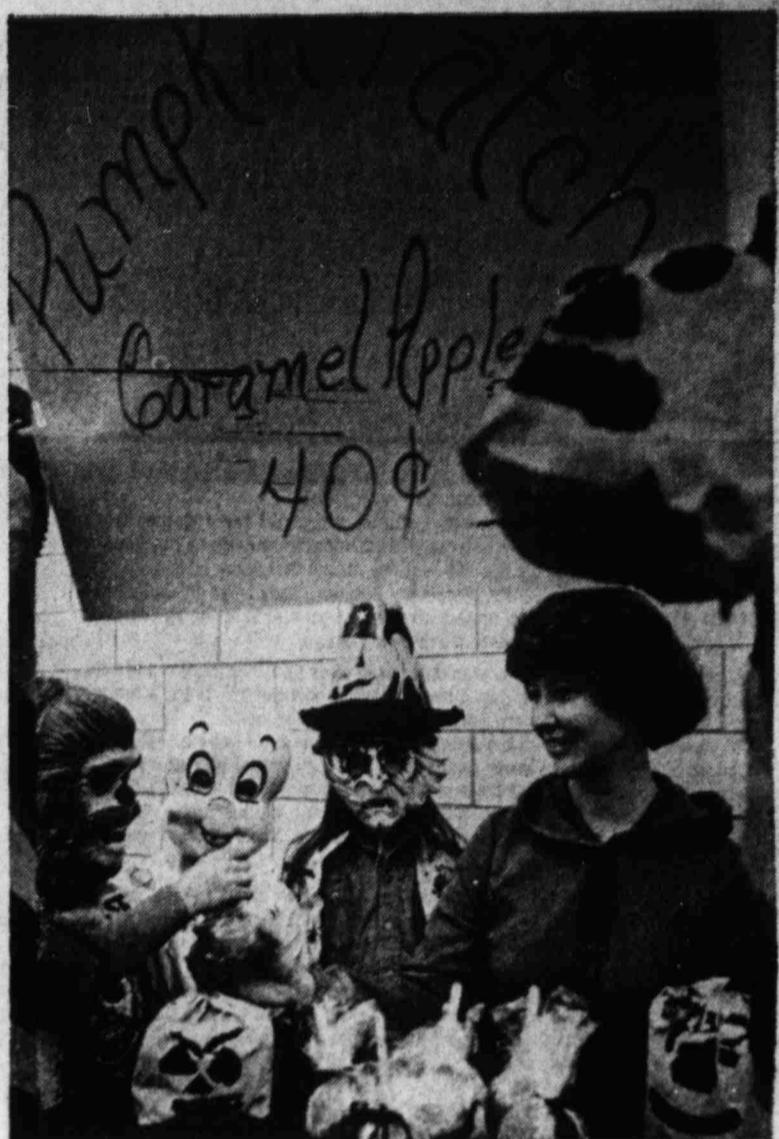

Michael Westgate of Boston was cited for his role in developing the Boston Maritime Park to replace the loss of the oldest installation to be cut by the Pentagon — the Boston shipyard established by George Washington.

Rush Sets Halloween Carnival

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

If your little ghosts and ghouls are looking for a safe way to celebrate Halloween, take them over to Rush Elementary School, 4702 15th Street, where they will find lots of ways to have a wonderful time.

Better still, take the whole family, get out of fixing supper, and have a shared evening of fun.

Rush is one of several elementary schools sponsoring Halloween carnivals, usually put on by the PTA and representing hours of work on the part of willing volunteers.

At Rush the carnival will be from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.; tickets for the booths, at four for $1.00, will be available at the door. Children who want to are encouraged to wear their Halloween costumes, which will surely add to the fun.

Food will be available in several forms, including candy apples and other familiar Halloween goodies to eat on the spot, homemade baked goods to take along home, or, if you are looking for a more substantial snack, hot dogs, chips, and drinks, so that you won't have to feed the kids at home before you come.

Highlights of the carnival will be a hayrack ride and spook house. There will also be the traditional games and booths with prizes, geared for all ages of children so that even the littlest ones can take home a souvenir.

In My Corner

By FRANCES LOWE

The little town in which I grew up was so very small and backwater that we didn't know about trick-or-treating.

We would dress up in whatever costumes we could put together from clothes stored in the attic or borrowed from older members of the family, rarely purchased except for the ten-cent eye masks that some of us could afford. Our aunts' prom dresses were very popular, and, later on, uniforms; my favorite picture of my youngest brother shows him saluting the camera smartly, an army officer's cap down around his ears.

A really successful costume would be used over and over again, and one particular one that I remember, a burlap Indian costume made for a school play, won prizes at Halloween parties off and on for 30 years.

We would then go and visit our neighbors and relatives — come to think of it, most of the neighbors were relatives — and they would play at trying to guess who we were. Some of them would give us a glass of cider and a donut. My grandmother, who was always the last person we visited, made fantastic caramel-popcorn balls, guaranteed to break a tooth. We never expected to be fed, but it was nice if we were.

One Halloween, our big-city cousins from Allentown came to visit us and were horrified to discover that we knew nothing of trick-or-treating, not even the jingle: "Trick or treat, trick or treat, give me something good to eat."

By then, we were getting too old. My brothers were into careening around the countryside in their friends' old cars, yelling out the windows and scaring the little kids in their costumes. Sometimes they got into more serious stuff, like letting out the neighbor's cow or painting challenges to our traditional rivals on the town bridge.

We little kids had to content ourselves with ringing the Baptist church bell, while the Baptist kids came over and rang our church bell, thus making all of us feel daring. But the most fun was being allowed to be out wandering around after dark, sort of the last hurrah of the summer, and we mostly scared only each other.

The smell and feel of Pennsylvania those last days of October before the first snow, were more like fall in Lubbock than any place else I have lived. That harvest moon and the sight of jack-o'-lanterns on porches are enough to make me think it would be nice to go out with a noisemaker, homemade out of a wooden thread spool, and scare the folks down the street by buzzing their windows.

Pumpkins then were 10 cents if anything, and the colored corn that we hung on the door for decoration was free, and apple cider, which is still better in that part of the world than anywhere else, was cheap even if you didn't provide the apples and the container.

The best kind was made from fallen-down apples, the rotten spots and the worms adding a dimension to the finished product which is impossible to find today. We could take our own apples to the cider press and watch the mule turn the press, and have enough cider to last us well into the winter. It improved with the passage of time until, late in the winter, it had a real tang to it.

I have been grateful that my kids grew up in a comfortable, familiar neighborhood, and could still go out, in their homemade costumes, to ring the neighbors' doorbells and be confident of finding a friendly face. Most kids love to dress up; the Angel used to squeeze into her pink bunny costume long after she had outgrown it, and go hopping down to our next door neighbor, Mrs. Spoon, who was sure to give her a treat any time of year.

Nowadays, Halloween has been captured, bottled and marketed, another victim of the age. I suspect that most of the scary stories are untrue, but it is just as well that kids don't go from door to door any more. We all move too frequently, and no longer know who lives around the corner or even down the block.

School Halloween carnivals are safe and fun for the kids and good exercise for the grownups who have to work like crazy to get it all together, and thus get acquainted with each other and build community spirit and are kept off the streets.

Halloween itself is a curious mixture of pagan and religious, as so many of our customs are, a means by which the early missionaries harnessed the evil spirits and demons that so terrified the primitive peoples they were trying to convert. All societies have had some sort of dread and/or reverence for those who have gone before, and to go from fear of them to praying for them is a means of transferring the power from them to us.

We remember, this time of year, the souls of the faithful departed, and wish for them that light perpetual should shine upon them, a nice image. The old witch, who is part of the scenario, wishes us not to be so faithful, and tries to nullify our prayers. We laugh at her, and thus laugh at our own fears of the darkness.

Long ago, Anglo-Saxon children went from door to door exchanging prayers for the dead of the household for "soul cakes" provided by the lady of the house, and out of this this grew trick-or-treating. One housewife tried a variation of the traditional soul-cakes, a form of shortbread, by poking a hole in the middle of one and frying it, and thus created donuts, if the legend is true.

Today we lump all our ghosts, skeletons, witches and everything that goes bump in the night into this one time of the year, and our children play out for us and for themselves the primitive fears that assail us and rejoice with us, as we get through another Halloween, that we have laid to rest the spirits that disturb our sleep.

Church Women Community Day Observance Set

World Community Day will be celebrated by Church Women United of Lubbock at 9:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 10 at Shepherd King Lutheran Church, 2122 18th Street.

The theme of the day of celebration, in which women from various churches and denominations in the Lubbock area will participate, is "Touchstones for Discipleship."

The evening group of church women will hold its celebration at 7:30 p.m. Friday evening, Nov. 10 at La Trinidad United Methodist Church, 504 46th Street.

Mrs. Bertha Broyles is president of the morning group of church women; Mrs. Louise Sparks directs the evening group.

The focus of the day of celebration, one of three observed by the interdenominational women's group, will be the issue of human rights at home and abroad.

"Every year since 1941, Church Women United has celebrated World Community Day with a service emphasizing responsible corporate action for justice and peace," Mrs. Sparks said. "Two national human rights consultations, one in New York and one in Northern California, were sponsored last spring by Church Women United in an effort to plan for such corporate action."

In conjunction with its worship service, the church women may buy gift certificates on behalf of their member churches. These are the means by which the organization contributes to intercontinental mission and other national programs; the gifts are devoted mostly to disaster relief and rehabilitation.

Barbara Jordan In Quest Of New Challenge

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (Special) — U.S. Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., says she quickly got over her awe of the presidency but that there were other adjustments to make.

"I got invited to the White House more often during the Carter administration," she told a crowd at Eckerd College. "But President Carter doesn't serve hard liquor. When you were born in bourbon and branchwater country, you have a little difficulty adjusting to those fine wines."

On a serious note, she said at an earlier news conference she decided not to run again this year because she felt she'd accomplished everything she wanted to during her six years in Congress.

"I felt no challenge serving in the Congress after this my third term," she said, "and I felt it would be good for my constituency if I changed directions and did something else."

She plans to teach intergovernmental relations and political values and ethics at the University of Texas.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of six children, 6 through 18. We have told all our children that if they are interested in furthering their education, we will give them each $1,000 a year toward their education.

Our eldest son is a freshman in college. He works part-time and summers to help pay for his education, and he also takes advantage of our $1,000. (I have to brag a bit — he made a grade point of 4.0 his first semester.)

Our problem is our second child, a daughter. She will graduate from high school next June. Despite years of counseling, lots of love and our best efforts, she is a rebel. She's been in all kinds of trouble from shoplifting to drugs and alcohol. She says as soon as she turns 18, she's splitting and wants no part of college.

My husband thinks that when she leaves we should give her the $4,000 we would have given her for a college education so that in years to come she can't say, "You never gave me the same chance you gave the others."

I strongly disagree. We have already spent a lot of money on her that we didn't spend on the others. Besides, I think giving her the money would do her more harm than good.

We would appreciate the opinion of an outsider.

MOTHER

Dear Mother: I agree with you. To give your rebellious daughter money before she's able to handle it might do her more harm than good. Your children are being offered $1,000 a year toward a college education — not to spend as they wish.

***

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old boy with an 8-year-old brother named David who is a rat fink.

David wore my Boy Scout hat and took my brand new bugle outside and blew it last Saturday while I was at the dentist's.

When I found out about it I gave him a little shave and he fell against the fence and got a little tiny cut on his head, and maybe two drops of blood came out.

He ran in the house screaming, and my mother grounded me for a whole week.

She didn't say one word to David about wearing my hat and blowing my bugle. Was this fair? How can I make my mother realize that every time something happens it is not always my fault because I am older and should know better? (HER words.) Thank you.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED

ALL MY CHILDREN: Tara gave Phil the cold shoulder. He turned to warm-bodied Claudette, who admitted her own romantic turmoil over Linc. Dan learned from Mark that Brooke's suspicion about Devon being pregnant is on target. Erica lied to Tom about feeding Phoebe insinuations about Mona and Charles after Erica was miffed that Mona's tending Nick Kelly ran out of pills and Eddie suggested she lie to a doctor because his street supplier won't come through. Joe didn't tell Ruth that he knows about Chuck and Tara.

ANOTHER WORLD: Sylvie Kaslow announced she's Iris' mother but Iris mourned that she'd lost a better motherly prospect in Cornelia. Susan told Dan she's giving him his freedom to be happy with Alice but she didn't think Alice would accept Susan's sacrifice. Blaine slyly convinced Jamie it was his idea to elope without Rachel's knowledge. Dan gave Olive the brushoff when she returned. Vince advanced to the kissing stage with Mimi. Leueen returned. Iris warned Dennis about the scandal of living in Elena's guest house.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Nick was poised to dump a deadly bale of hay onto Lisa and Valerie. Lisa was warning Val that Tina admitted she and Nick were an item. Tina rushed in, pushed the girls aside and was injured by the falling bales which preceded Nick's fall to his death. Dee cautioned Jeff when he admitted he's hooked on Annie. Melinda planned for Annie to find Melinda's slip in Beau's closet after Beau and Annie had agreed to a reconciliation. Steve treated Dan for dizzy spells. Ginny received a suspended sentence. Steve informed Jeff he's marrying Barbara. Rose died and Jane thought she was off the blackmail hook from John.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Dora kicked Joanne out after learning Joanne is engaged and is suing for Janice's custody. Nickie feared Maggie is going off the deep end and Donna told Pete she's pregnant and Neil later informed her that Peter had skipped town. It was revealed that Stephanie is actually Brooke after Steph went to Brooke and Adele's graves and swore that Bob will pay for what he did to them. Doug learned that Steve padded Julie's bills and pocketed the money. Before Amanda left with Greg for Chicago Neil said he would love her forever. Bob didn't want to hear Mary's power play accusations against Linda.

THE DOCTORS: Matt felt guilty about being forced to leave town while the hospital board decided Mike's fate. Kim showed an interest in Luke, and Missy was suspicious. Doreen agreed to take Steve's tests, but he ignored her seduction attempt. Colin informed Nola they could have a loveless affair. Mike hit the bottle and rebuffed Sara's offers of solace.

EDGE OF NIGHT: Elliott Dorn, the Children of the Earth leader, arrived and identified the dead girl as Joanne Jensen whose mother refused to believe Joanne committed suicide. Elliott began smooth talking Deborah. Margo split from Wade's porno activities and Logan was urged by community groups to rid the neighborhood of Wade's new theater. During April's trial Carol had an alibi when it was proved she had cause to murder Denise.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Bobbi panned when she realized that Scotty is easing out of their affair in favor of Laura. Tracy called Grace Dobson about plotting the end of Alan and Monica's marriage. Diana's bandages were removed and she regained her eyesight. Heather had another fainting spell. Laura was harassed at school by boys who called her an easy mark. She returned to her lying conniving ways with Lesley while Rick went off to a New York business meeting. Lee told a disappointed Gail that he must resolve his own problems and be alone for awhile.

GUIDING LIGHT: Ed questioned Rita about the absence of his gift bracelet, which Roger swiped during the rape and refused to return. Amanda fantasized about Ben's penchant for painting nudes. Lucille goaded Amanda about Ben's attraction to Amanda because he finally agreed to paint her portrait. Alan informed Dean and Roger that they're in contention for a vice presidency. Roger heard Alan's tape that confirmed Dean involving Alan in fraud. Mike sensed that Elizabeth turned more to Justin while her withdrawal symptoms abated. Brandy was jealous of the twosome. Diane stayed with Alan and expressed her slavish loyalty. Katie's jealousy of Mark and Patty Sue increased. Sara told Mike she's suspicious of Dean's actions.

LOVE OF LIFE: Mary's banker wouldn't release her money for Andy's business venture immediately. Andy also failed to milk Meg. Ray told Carrie he was splitting from Arlene, but he returned to find Carrie had a heart attack and had her hospitalized. Betsy told Mia she never intended to give Ben custody of Suzanne. Eddie planned to return to France.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Gwendolyn and Daphne arranged for returning Becky to find a bathrobed Daphne in Richard's apartment, but Richard had resisted temptation. Adam courted an uninterested Pat in his hospital room where she found him after he skipped her TV show.

Jack treated Adam, who insisted his illness remain a secret. Tina sidetracked Greg's interest in her after he was suspicious of Marco setting up another photo session for her. Tony told Vicki he intends to marry Samantha. Lynn and Peter argued about his working with Jenny.

RYAN'S HOPE: Frank admitted to Rae that he caused a drunken scene at Jill and Seneca's wedding. Faith tumbled when the banister mysteriously collapsed. Tom came to her rescue and ordered Terri to stop haunting him. Dee discovered that Roger's old gambling habit surfaced on their honeymoon. Siobhan taught Jack yoga and kept him company while Mary toiled.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW: Ted brought Tourneur Instruments Company into Henderson, but mistakenly took Tourneur heir, Travis Sentell, for a lackey while John made a strong impression. David was jealous that Kathy dined with Travis. Gary gave Laine the royal treatment when she fell ill. Sharon's husband Buck caused a public scene by accusing her of numbering David among her secret men. Sunny convinced old beau Marc to direct Jo's TV campaign spots.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Snapper and Chris played husband and wife, but he remained uncommitted. Jill trapped Stu in Vegas and suggested marriage. Derek resolved to remain faithful to Kay, whom he convinced to handle a new boutique. Kay paid Suzanne hush-and-get-out money. Scott smacked Paul when Paul called Nikki a tramp. Les and Lucas left for Switzerland. Lance volunteered to be their baby's godfather.

Bathroom Rejuvenation Easier With New Plans

By "Mr. Do-It-Yourself"
Steve Ellingson

One problem most of us face is how to take that tired, small bathroom (research shows that 85 percent of all bathrooms measure 5 feet by 8 feet) and make it more interesting. Actually, no room in the home has changed more dramatically in recent years. New designs of tubs and lavatories, developments in wall coverings and a rage for personal expression have made the bathroom a decorator's delight. The beautiful thing about this Bathroom Ideas booklet is that there's something here for everyone...whether it's just a wallpapering job or complete gutting coming up. We've looked all over before offering this to our readers, to make sure that this was the best information available on the subject.

This 112-page colorful book takes you through dozens of enchanting, actual bathrooms from select homes across the nation. Methods of expanding space and discussions of the best types of tile, wood and wallcoverings are among the many topics covered. It even leads you into the more esoteric forms of bathing delights, like Japanese baths, hot tubs, whirlpools and the ever-popular sauna.

To obtain the 112-page Bathroom Ideas, No. 1022, send $5.50 (includes postage) by check or money order to Steve Ellingson, c/o the Avalanche-Journal Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

Genetic Counseling Service Provides Information, Alternatives

By JANICE JARVIS
Family News Staff

Genetic counseling cannot cure an infant born without arms, or return sight to a child blind since birth, but for many families it can provide information to prevent the tragedy of birth defects.

The Genetic Counseling Program was funded by the Texas State Legislature in 1975. Its laboratory, where tests are analyzed, is located in Denton, but genetic counseling clinics are located throughout the state, and the Lubbock Regional Genetic Screening and Counseling Service opened Sept. 1.

Although the fear that genetic counseling will discourage people from having children is occasionally voiced, that reality is not its purpose, according to Adrienne Hamilton, clinic coordinator.

"We provide people with information to make choices, and we help them make arrangements after those choices have been made," she explained.

Mrs. Hamilton consults with clients, provides crisis intervention and gathers necessary data and family history. Most of her clients either have or suspect a history of genetic abnormalities.

For example, a couple planning a family might seek counseling because they are concerned about the high incidence of diabetes in the family background, or the parents of a mentally retarded child want information concerning the chances of a second child's having the same problem, she said.

A teenager or a woman in her 40s, who fall into high-risk categories because of age, or a woman with a history of miscarriages might seek genetic counseling services.

Once Mrs. Hamilton has compiled all the available information about the client, the family history is sent to Denton, where a geneticist studies it.

Once a month, the genetics team (a doctor, a nurse and a social worker) stops in Lubbock to examine patients and provide counseling when necessary.

Dr. Mary Kukolich spends three days in Lubbock each visit, examining as many as 15 patients, newborn babies as well as adults. For many families, this is the first time their genetic history has been studied.

An examination of all family members is crucial, because several family members can carry a genetic abnormality which might be obvious in one person and unnoticeable in another. For example, one person might have several fingers missing, though another has only a short finger, noted Dr. Kukolich. A generation later, when a child is born with a severe malformation, the family might not understand why, she added.

Some conditions, such as Hodgkin's Disease, might not show symptoms until the victim is an adult, but if an adult shows symptoms of the disease, other family members can be tested to determine if they also carry the disease, according to Dr. Kukolich.

In the case of a woman with a history of repeated miscarriages, an examination of a fetus can often indicate if the miscarriages originated in genetic abnormality, according to Dr. Kukolich. A woman can have a history of miscarriages without ever having known she was pregnant, she explained.

Some tests used in genetic services can predict the risk involved if a couple decides to have children, but perhaps even more useful are tests which can diagnose a defect while an infant is still in the uterus.

One of the most useful techniques is amniocentesis, a process in which a needle is inserted into the woman's abdomen and fluid surrounding the fetus is removed and tested, explained Dr. Kukolich. The test can detect all known chromosomal abnormalities and more than 70 metabolic disorders.

With this information, a doctor can plan in advance necessary treatment for mother and child, or, in some instances, a couple can decide to terminate the pregnancy based on the risk involved.

A counseling program completes the genetic services, helping families cope with the social-psychological problems often faced by a family with a history of genetic abnormalities.

According to social worker Robin McIlvaine, counseling can not only help the family facing a difficult decision but can also aid them in getting help for a child born with an abnormality.

Most of the people who come in for genetic counseling share common problems.

"If they have a child with a birth defect, they're worried about his future," explained Miss McIlvaine. Often parents feel guilty and blame themselves for a genetic abnormality.

"We try to put everything into perspective," she explained. "Some people need to know that there is a grief process involved in making such important and difficult decisions."

It is also the social worker's job to help people understand how they consider the risk involved.

"One couple might see a five percent risk as too great, while another might see it as a 95 percent chance to have a normal child," explained Miss McIlvaine.

The severity of the birth defect can also play a role in making a decision, according to Miss McIlvaine: cleft palate, for example, can be treated by surgery, although Tay-Sachs disease is usually fatal. Some conditions can be controlled with medication or diet, although others have long term complications.

Although genetic services can help many people faced with a difficult situation, the final decision always rests in the hands of the family. As part of a prenatal plan, genetic services can define odds and provide clients with counseling to cope with those odds.

'Bag Technology' Wreaks Havoc On 'High Tea'

By CINDY ADAMS

LONDON (WNS) — The British tradition of high tea, once as secure as The Bank of England, is now just as shaky. In a rented (they call it "hire car") Jaguar, I drove from Sussex in the South with its preserved wooden stocks of the 1600's through the scenic neighborhood of Mary, Queen of Scots. The fact is high tea is going the way of the garter belt.

The gray stone ramparts of Ruthin Castle in Wales are vintage 11th century. A statue in town signifies here's where King Arthur lopped off a rival's head.

Parts of Ruthin Castle cling to traditions dating back to Artie's day: crackling fireplaces, suits of armor in corners of corridors, horses and birds and sheep on the miles of open fields plus waitresses in medieval dress.

They even do a medieval banquet with a piece of bread and salt to ensure thy safety whilst thou art within the walls of the Castle, goblets of mead, chickens and chops served on pewter, giant breads where one rips off one's portion. The only utensils are "a dagger" (a steak knife, actually) for spearing your veggies. Soup is slurped from the bowl, salad without dressing is eaten with fingers.

But ask for tea and what comes is a tea bag.

A tea bag, mind you! And in a proper British castle.

Protest Singer Still Faithful To Movement

(WNS) — What makes Joan Baez stay faithful to the protest movement? Alone, from her era, she carries the banner for the weak and oppressed, but hasn't she had enough?

"I still feel as strongly as I ever did," she said before a concert in Paris recently. "But I think it's true that the songs aren't there anymore."

"There was a great intensity of feeling among us in the '60s, but if I haven't been making myself heard as loudly I don't think it's because the world is in any better shape now than it was then."

PEAR LIMA CASSEROLE

1 lb. dry lima beans
1 qt. water
1 can (16 oz.) Bartlett pear halves
1/2 cup minced onion
2 tbsps. vinegar
1/4 cup molasses
1/4 cup brown sugar
1 tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. powdered ginger
2 tbsps. salt
1 tbsp. butter
Combine beans and water in large saucepan. Bring to boil and boil 2 minutes. Let stand 1 hour. Bring to boil again and simmer 30 minutes. Drain. Drain and dice pears. Combine beans, diced pears and onions. Sprinkle with vinegar and toss lightly to mix. Combine molasses, brown sugar, dry mustard, ginger and salt. Place 1/3 of bean mixture in casserole and cover with 1/3 of molasses and brown sugar mixture. Repeat for 2 more layers. Dot top with butter. Bake, covered, at 325 degrees for 2 hours. Makes eight servings. Good with ham or roast pork.

X-Rays 'Inform' King Tut

SEATTLE (AP) — King Tut's dentist says dental X-rays of the ancient Egyptian boy king are helping modern scientists decide who his parents weren't.

Weren't?

"Most Egyptologists cannot agree on the dates and successions of the New Kingdom kings and queens," Dr. James Harris said recently. "But, working backward from our data, we can say with some certainty, at least, who probably wasn't related to someone else."

Harris, a University of Michigan orthodontics expert, is part of a research team which X-rayed Tut and thousands of other Egyptian mummies, trying to find family similarities.

Mouth and facial X-rays, plus other data fed into computers show similarities in skeletal structures which help the scientists trace family lines.

Amenhotep IV, for example, also known as Akhenaton, had a "rather bizarre" facial structure which indicates he probably couldn't have been Tut's father, Harris says.

There is no similarity between Tut and Amenhotep III, either, but Tutmosis IV, or at least his X-rays, "look a great deal like Tut."

Harris assigns the blame for some of the familial confusion to 21st-dynasty priests, who collected numerous mummies after they had been sacked and pilfered by grave robbers, and rewapped and re-labeled them.

"Maybe some are mislabeled," he said.

Harris' research also tells us something of the pharaohs' diet.

Most pharaohs, and even commoners, ate abrasive diets that wore their teeth down flat, and probably suffered little or no decay.

"But some were ground down to the pulp canals, which means they probably had toothaches," he said.

Physician's, Patient's Concern Warranted When Drugs Combined

By DALE RAYMAN
Family News Staff

Although "a spoonful of sugar helps the medicine go down," it's quite possible that a glass of milk with the medicine can hurt more than it helps.

At least, that might be the case if the medicine in question is tetracycline, a frequently-prescribed "broad-spectrum" (getting too many bacteria) antibiotic.

According to Dr. David E. Potter, an associate professor of pharmacology at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine, the calcium in milk, or in an antacid, can combine with the tetracycline and change the rate at which the drug is absorbed into the system. If this happens, the effect of the drug can be slowed, or reduced.

The potential reaction does not mean that a person taking tetracycline must give up milk, said Dr. James H. Pirch, also an associate professor of pharmacology at TTUSM.

"Timing can make a big difference," he said, "and the interval between the time the medication is taken and the glass of milk is drunk is important." If the medicine has already dissolved and been absorbed into the system, there is no problem.

(He added that formulas containing iron react in a similar manner to calcium-containing products.)

This possible interaction between drugs or food or between a drug and another drug should be a source of care to individuals, both said, but not particularly a source of worry.

Potter said the possibility of an interaction between drugs increases if an individual has a chronic disease which requires continuous medication, but that even a person taking medication for just a short time should be alert to the situation.

"People are not only taking drugs (prescribed by a physician) but they tend to self-medicate themselves with 'over-the-counter' drugs which they don't really consider drugs but as 'innocuous' items," Potter said. "Those 'over-the-counter' drugs include things like aspirin and cold medications."

Pirch agreed, and said that so many pa-

Writing in the September, 1972, issue of California Medicine, Jack N. Turner, a registered pharmacist at the Palo Alto Medical Clinic, summarized some of the potential drug interactions. Problems are not necessarily inherent in a drug itself, but reactions might occur when a drug is taken in combination with another. This partial table has been excerpted from the article:

tients see so many doctors — "a lot see more than one" — that the doctor they see for one condition may have no idea of what (medication) they're receiving from another.

"Patients should indicate any drugs they are taking to their doctors," he said.

Potter suggested that a person take all containers, with the prescription labels intact, along with any 'over-the-counter' drug he is taking, to his physician so that the doctor can spot any potential problem combinations, as well as have a complete picture of medications being taken.

He noted that a problem might arise, even though there had been no previous indication that one was possible.

"A patient might not be aware he had a borderline case of hypertension (high blood pressure), or he might be aware but not taking his medication," Potter said. "Then when taking some other medication, like an 'over-the-counter' cold tablet, he might find the condition manifested."

In addition to persons with borderline cases of the condition, be it hypertension or diabetes, Potter said older individuals should also be alert to the problems of combining medications.

"As a person gets older, there tends to be a decreased ability to metabolize and excrete drugs," he said. "The drugs 'hang around' in the system longer and produce increased effects." Furthermore, the longer a drug is in the system, the greater the likelihood of its coming into contact with another drug, he said.

In addition to slower absorption of a drug and its subsequent efficiency, Potter said some medications can actually block other medications from getting to the areas of the body where they are needed.

"Needless to say, directions (on the medications) should be followed (to the letter)."

Both agreed that although a pharmacist can offer some information about a prescription, he usually uses the information the physician has written on the prescription form and that the physician should be the final source of information about a medication.

Medicines are essential to continued good health, Pirch said, and although physicians are being taught more about drug reactions, a patient can actually help his doctor help him by keeping the doctor fully informed and following his instructions.

POST COUPLE CELEBRATES GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY — Mr. and Mrs. Sam Byrd will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception from 2 to 4 p.m. today in the Community Room of the First National Bank in Post. Byrd and the former Anna Lucille Stanley were married Oct. 28, 1928, in Clairmont, and farmed in Spur before moving to Post in 1953. Hosts for the reception will be the children of the couple: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Swan and Linda Byrd of Tulsa, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. D.L. Byrd of Slaton; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thomas of Jefferson, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Ammons and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lowe of Post; Mr. and Mrs. George Byrd of Big Spring; Mr. and Mrs. Cisco Hernandez of Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Byrd of Port Orchard, Wash.; and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Byrd of Crosbyton. The couple also has 32 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Mirrors Add To Decorating Plan

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (Special) — Flank a picture with mirrors. Or, flank a mirror with pictures. Picture an entire wall with a framed mirror mix or a mix of prints and mirrors. Decorate with mirrors — these are the newest art form on the American home scene.

There are small mirrors and big mirrors, thin mirrors and fat mirrors, rectangles, ovals and squares — modules of mirrors. There are restrained and ornate styles, country and city styles, casual and formal styles.

There are pictures, too, framed to coordinate with these mirrors offered in two collections highlighting this important introduction. One group features an oak and rush-wrapped frame in handsome honeycomb finish, a good mixer with contemporary, Eastern and country interiors. Another group features a heavily carved frame in metalgold or woodtone capturing the opulence of Court Splendor and periods past — a perfect accent for today's formal interiors.

Frames are sized to suit a variety of applications. The three sizes in the oak-rush group: 30x36, 15x17 and 14x23. Sizes of frames in the traditional group are 36x30, 18x22 and 10x19 inches.

Mirrors are plate glass and pictures are glass covered. Pictorial subjects include landscape and woodland scenes, florals and still-lifes as well as animal prints.

KEEP IT CLEAN

Wading pools can be disinfected readily with household liquid bleach. Use 1/2 cup per 100 gallons of fresh water. Mix required amount of bleach with 2 gallons of water and scatter over pool surface; mix thoroughly with water. Add 1 tablespoon bleach each day between emptying and refilling the pool. Small pools should be emptied daily.

HERBED CHEESE LOGS

1 can (11 1/2 oz.) condensed bean with bacon soup

4 cups (1 lb.) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese

1/2 cup finely chopped onion

2 tbsps. Worcestershire

1 tsp. basil leaves, crushed

1 med. clove garlic, minced

1/2 tsp. hot pepper sauce

Chopped walnuts and parsley

In large bowl of electric mixer, combine all ingredients except walnuts and parsley. Beat at low speed until smooth. Chill overnight; divide mixture in half. On waxed paper, shape each half into a log (8x1 1/2 inches); roll one log in walnuts; the other in parsley. Chill. Serve as a spread for breads or crackers. Makes 2 logs.

Beef Pies — A Substantial 'Treat'

Beef-Cheese Treats Fortify 'Collectors'

CHICAGO (Special) — Before your young ghosts, witches, princesses and hobos go out for a night of ringing doorbells and collecting goodies, treat them to a few tricks of your own — "Halloween Beef Pies."

This intriguing entree features biscuit cups filled with a spicy ground beef mixture topped with Halloween pumpkin faces. Refrigerated biscuits make preparing the cups simply a matter of shaping and baking. The ground beef is especially flavorful as it cooks in a tomato sauce that's seasoned with chili powder, cumin and garlic powder. Shredded carrot and chopped olives add flavor, color and texture interest to the filling.

While the ground beef mixture is simmering, the cups are made by rolling out refrigerated biscuits, molding over the bottom of muffin tins and baking in a hot oven. Just before serving, the ground beef filling is spooned into the biscuit shells and the cheese tops are added.

Carving the cheese faces can be a fun project for children old enough to handle a sharp knife. They can try to create a different face for each, making them as funny, scary or happy as they like. Nothing is wasted as the cheese "scraps" are added to the ground beef filling.

Once the family samples these tasty pies, they won't want to limit them to Halloween service. By using your imagination with the cheese cutouts, the pies can be decorated for year around enjoyment. Make trees or bells for Christmas, hearts for Valentine's Day, shamrocks for St. Pat's Day, stars for the Fourth of July, or simply smile faces for any day of the year.

Do You Have THE DESIRE TO LEARN?

If so, you may wish to consider Lubbock Christian College's Secretarial Courses Division of the Continuing Education program.

The only prerequisite to our program is THE DESIRE TO LEARN!

Since the courses are self-paced, the student can progress as fast or slow as he/she wishes. In an effort to eliminate the student's anxiety, we begin with the basic course in all our programs.

There are six branches of the Secretarial Courses Division:

- Clerk typist/receptionist
- General Secretary
- Executive Secretary
- Legal Secretary
- Medical Secretary
- Medical Transcriptionist

Students may enroll in a course of study at any time. Classes meet from 8 a.m.-1 p.m. (morning) or 6-10 p.m. (evening). Three hundred clock hours are required to complete the clerk typist/receptionist program; 600 hours for the general secretary and medical transcriptionist programs and 900 clock hours for the executive secretary, legal secretary and medical secretary programs.

Tuition is $200 per month per program — $128 for evening classes — or $50 per month per individual course, plus a $25 registration fee ($5 for individual courses). However, financial aid is available to those who qualify.

For additional information, contact JoNell Brown at 792-3221, ext. 261.

Light Dessert 'Paved' With Blueberries

BALDWIN, N.Y. (Special) — Only the French would dare do it. Call a cake after a paving stone? Is that a fact?

Most young brides and even smart singles would shudder if their cakes were referred to in such hard manner. Grandmothers would get sensitive and working mothers would consider going back to the kitchen to try again.

To the French, however, a pave is a light lovely sponge cake dessert. Just because it's made in the square shape of a paving stone doesn't mean it's hard, heavy or heavey. The shape is the common ground, not the structure.

BLUEBERRY PAVE

1 pkg. yellow cake mix
½ cup cornstarch
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
6 cups dry-pack frozen wild blueberries
½ cup amaretto liqueur
2 cups (1 pt.) heavy cream
¼ cup confectioner's sugar
1 tsp. vanilla

Prepare yellow cake mix according to package directions. Pour batter into two greased and floured 9-inch square baking pans. Bake as directed on package. Unmold layers and cool on racks. In a large saucepan, mix cornstarch and sugar. Stir in water and blueberries. Stir over low heat until mixture thickens and bubbles. Remove from heat and stir in liqueur. Cool. Whip cream with sugar and vanilla. With a sharp knife, cut each layer into two thin layers. Spread blueberry filling between layers reserving 1 cup of the filling for the top. Spread cream over the sides of cake. Place remaining cream into a pastry bag with a star tip. Decorate edge of top with rosettes of cream. Spoon reserved filling onto top of cake, into hollows made with cream. Chill until ready to serve. Frozen cultivated dry-pack blueberries can be substituted for wild blueberries.

CHEDDAR CHEESE SOUP

1 cup chopped onions
1/4 cup chopped shallots or leeks
1/4 cup grated carrots
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 tbsps. flour
1/2 tsp. dry mustard
1/4 tsp. cayenne pepper
1/4 tsp. salt
1 tsp. paprika
1 qt. chicken consomme
1 chicken bouillon cube
1 cup milk
1 1/2 cups small pieces yellow cheddar cheese
1 tbsp. cream Sherry
1 tbsp. finely chopped parsley

In a soup pot saute the onions, shallots and carrots in butter or margarine until soft. Add a little of the flour at a time, stirring until well mixed. Season with the mustard, pepper and salt and stir. Mix in the paprika and gradually add the chicken consomme and the bouillon cube, stirring all the time to blend the entire mixture. Bring to a boil, lower heat and simmer for no more than 10 minutes. Slowly add the milk and continue to stir, do not boil. Add the cheese and with a wire whisk stir well. Stir in the sherry and cook until the cheese is melted and the mixture is thick. Serve with a garnish of chopped parsley.

Ancient Shipbuilder's Art Still Flourishes (In Miniature) In U.S.

By THOMAS FERRARO

HAMPTON, Va. (UPI) — Flipping on a bare light bulb dangling above his work bench, August Crabtree points to the wooden deck of his 11th century Dutch state yacht.

"The planks are nibbed to prevent rotting," said Crabtree, 73, stroking his white beard. "That's the way they had to be built."

That's the way Crabtree still builds old-style vessels. However, his ships are miniatures — hand carved on a scale of a quarter inch to a foot.

An internationally respected master craftsman, Crabtree is considered by many as the best in the world at carving model ships to historical detail. His major work is a collection of 16 ships tracing the progress of water transportation from the earliest times to the decline of the sailing vessel.

Called "The Crabtree Collection of Miniature Ships," the collection includes replicas of two of Christopher Columbus' ships, the Santa Maria and the Pinta, and the Britannia, a 19th century passenger liner.

They represent a 28-year effort by Crabtree, who completed the project in the early 1950s. After taking it on tour, he sold the collection for an undisclosed price in 1956 to the Mariners' Museum in nearby Newport News, Va.

The collection has awed thousands of admirers, from young boys to Navy admirals, and is one of the museum's top attractions.

"People have told me I'm lucky to have accomplished so much," Crabtree said, his wrinkled face tightening. "Lucky, hell! It took a lot of sacrifice and hard work. While others were vacationing, I was working."

Although his eyesight is no longer as keen as it once was, his huge hands remain steady. In the basement of his modest York county home, Crabtree carves daily with the skill of an accomplished surgeon.

In addition to ships, Crabtree also carves the heads of presidents, movie stars and other celebrities.

His completed collection of busts of presidents measure one-sixteenth of an inch. Because of complaints they were too small to see with the naked eye, he is carving a new set twice that size — a quarter inch.

"Today, I'm working on the ears," he said. "They're tough."

Crabtree patterns his shipbuilding style after the pioneers. He researches the vessels, sketches blue prints and builds in stages, laying the keel first, then attaching the stem and stern. Each plank is individually nailed.

Then he recruits his own captain and crew by hand, carving each figure. His wife Winifred paints the finished product and sews the sails.

When Crabtree sold his masterpiece to the Mariners' Museum, he wanted to be able to see it regularly — so he and his wife moved to Virginia from their Florida home.

Among Crabtree's admirers is William Francis Gibbs, the architect who designed the passenger liner United States.

"Certainly, there is nothing that I have seen here or abroad that takes their place in historical accuracy or quality," Gibbs wrote the museum.

I won't say I'm the world's best, but people have told me they have never seen work like mine before anywhere," said Crabtree.

Crabtree was born and reared in Portland, Ore., near the banks of the Willamette River. His boyhood pastimes included carp fishing, watching the ships go by, listening to old seafarers' stories and boxing.

"But I knew I'd never be a champion boxer, so I quit," he said.

He went back to an avocation in which he had talent and interest, wood carving. At age 21, Crabtree decided to carve a collection of historical ships, a task he figured would take a few years.

"I was naive," he said. "Researching the ships and carving them takes time. Lots of time."

Two years later, he knew he had plenty of work ahead. Only two of the ships had been completed.

To supplement his income, Crabtree worked several jobs, including building real ships during World Wars I and II. Between the wars, his talent landed him a job in Hollywood, carving ships and wooden characters used in several movies, including "Captain Caution," "Captains Courageous," "Reap the Wild Wind" and "That Hamilton Woman."

"The money was good, but I never saw any of the motion pictures myself," he said. "Motion pictures was always my idea of a bad time. I always preferred vaudeville. That was much more individual and imaginative."

At the end of World War II, Crabtree began devoting more time to building model ships.

Upon completing his masterpiece collection, he opened a museum in Florida. But he soon found it was more trouble than it was worth, so he sold the collection to the Mariners's Museum.

"I can't say how much I got," he said. "But I can tell you it is worth a lot more today."

Last year, Crabtree had an exhibit at Busch Gardens, one of Virginia's largest recreational areas and amusement parks. Some of his carvings were used in a promotional advertisement.

"It took the television crew nearly all day to complete it," he said. "They worked slowly and carefully and were perfectionists. They were professionals."

William Wilkinson, director of the Mariners' Museum, says Crabtree is No. 1 when it comes to creating ship models.

"His work, in terms of historical accuracy and aesthetic quality in ship building, is at the tops," Wilkinson said. "There is no other person whose work compares. I don't know if there ever will be."

For all of his talent, Crabtree says he's not sure if he really enjoys carving. He compares the work to the grind of an athlete in training.

Anniversaries

HUGHES

Mr. and Mrs. F.E. 'Chip' Hughes will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary with a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. today in Trinity Baptist Church. Hosts for the event will be the children of the couple Mr. and Mrs. Randy Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hughes, and Judy, Tanya and Monty Hughes.

Hughes and the former Bettye Hickam were married Nov. 1, 1953, in Wichita Falls, and moved to Lubbock in 1958.

TO THOSE WHO WAIT

NOTTINGHAM, England (WNS) — Rita Walmsley had never done a crossword puzzle in her life when she and her husband got in line to buy a house from the Nottingham Council. Hubby Mick Walmsley had a crossword puzzle book in his pocket, and he taught Rita how to do them while they waited. "When one book was finished, I would buy another," Walmsley recalled. Thirteen days and 13 nights later Rita and Mick got into the council chambers and bought their house on Denwood Crescent. With house key in hand, Rita said, "Now I'm an expert at crossword puzzles — perhaps the next champion of Nottingham."

Our students can do more for you today than ever! Perms are the "in" fashion news again for fall and winter, but not the bizarre, frizzy, or crimped unnatural look of last season. Now perms are to be the natural curled or waved look which gives beautiful body to the hair. Perms are for the purpose of support to the style rather than for the style itself. The perm is most successful when it cannot be detected, and our students are up-to-date with today's fashion look.

The students are taught to analyze your hair before the perm to determine if reconstructors are needed in case your hair condition is abused. We have personalized perms with additives to protect the condition of your hair during the perm, and conditioners can be used before, during, and/or after the perm.

The students and instructors will visit with you about the size of curl desired. You might choose a curly curl, a large wave, or a combination of smooth for the new metro bangs and curly for a short back. The style can actually be built in with the different sized rods. End perms are great to help the ends turn and bounce for naturally beautiful flowing long hair.

You can have the best — all the super extra conditioners, additives for the perm solution, a perm that is blocked and rolled to fit your hair using the proper size rods for your hair texture and condition — all for less money because we are a school.

Our students have regular classes in perms, conditioners, coloring, styling, and cutting throughout their entire training program. For this reason, the students are unusually capable of performing really excellent services, and at a quite reasonable price to you.

Our Senior and Advanced Senior students take appointments Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday afternoons beginning at 1:00 and all day on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. We invite you to call 792-6311 for an appointment.

If you simply do not have the time for students to give your perm, color, or new hair style, our instructors have a few appointments available when they are not teaching. Definite appointments must be arranged by our receptionist.

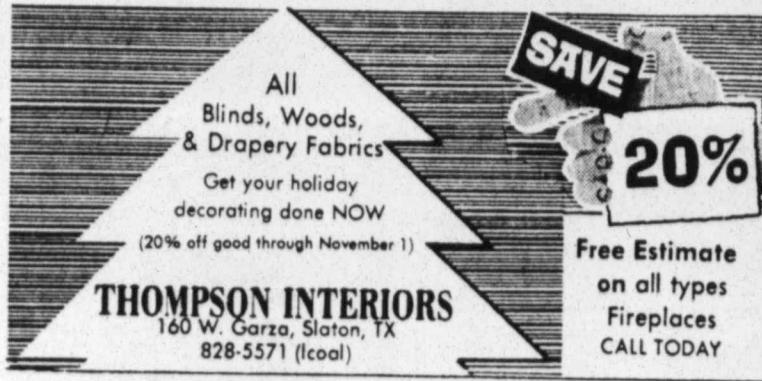

Our teachers and students are especially concerned that you get the best perm you ever had. Come see us soon!

CANCER ANSWER LINE

A biology teacher writes: "Can you explain recombinant DNA research and the controls governing it?"

ANSWERLINE: DNA molecules contain the genetic code that orders the life of each cell, and today many scientists are engaged in "recombinant DNA" research which involves a special kind of biological engineering. Certain enzymes can be used in the laboratory to separate out and "recombine" DNA and proteins in the cells of living things. Insights from this kind of research may help scientists manufacture valuable medical substances such as human insulin in the lab or treat plants to improve agricultural yield without the use of chemical fertilizers. Many scientists have been concerned however that recombination DNA research might lead to the creation of new life forms hostile to human beings. Although there has been no known example of this happening, the National Institutes of Health have issued protective guidelines to ensure that such research be done under strict safety standards. Both NIH and the American Cancer Society will support recombinant DNA research only under these guidelines.

A restaurant manager asks: "Can relaxation techniques help me in my struggle to give up cigarettes?"

ANSWERLINE: Relaxation may help you, but a study done at the University of Minnesota indicates that if you combine a soothing atmosphere with anti-smoking messages, your chances of success might be better. At Minnesota, one group of smokers was exposed to calming music, seashore sounds, relaxation messages plus motivational anti-smoking messages each night for a week. A second group of smokers was treated to the same regime minus the educational material. By the end of the first week, 72 percent of the smokers in the first group had quit or cut down on smoking while the same was true for only 28 percent of the smokers in the second group. If you want to add to your relaxation technique, ask your local American Cancer Society Unit for "If You Want To Give Up Cigarettes," a helpful booklet available free of charge.

A florist writes: "My elderly aunt had a major cancer operation and we are now taking care of her at home. Is there any way short of buying one that I could get a wheelchair so that she could spend some time in my shop, which is a cheerful place?"

ANSWERLINE: Ask your local American Cancer Society Unit to take a look in its "loan" closet, which is a community resource for sickroom equipment for cancer patients being cared for at home. There is never a charge for the use of the equipment.

Do you have further questions? Call your local unit of the American Cancer Society or call M.D. Anderson Hospital & Tumor Institute's Cancer Information Service, 1-800-392-2040 toll-free in Texas.

Calling All Homemakers

By SYD MOORE, A.S.I.D.

Too many people overlook all the many decorating advantages that can be yours when you select the right coffee or cocktail table.

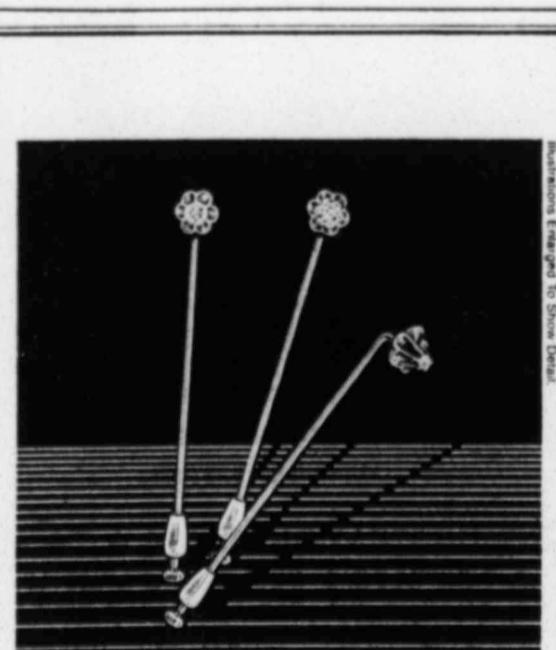

Not only can that table compliment the sofa which it fronts, but it can also be a beautiful and functional addition to a room in its own right.

From a practical standpoint, if you have the right coffee table, people can not only use it from the sofa, but others can pull up chairs around it when appropriate, making use of the table and creating a nice conversation grouping and even a place to serve from.

You might want to consider a coffee table that can hold at least several cups or drinks plus accessories.

Actually, a new coffee table could fast become one of your favorite pieces of furniture if you select it for the use you'd like it to give you, as well as the looks you'd like it to have.

Incidentally, it's usually a good idea to have the coffee table lower than the seat of your sofa. It's easier to use and doesn't interfere with the beauty of the sofa.

Storm Windows Await Installation

By HERB ALEXANDER

One chore which, more than any other, heralds the advance of cold weather is the job of putting up storm windows. Though it may head the list of things to do, switching from screens to storms often is delayed as long as possible.

Since it can be a big job, make sure that it is worth the effort. Be certain that your storm windows will do the job for which they are intended.

At the same time you will be prolonging the life of the storm sash.

Every window should be a perfect fit. None should be put up that needs painting. Since you will probably wash the windows before you put them up, you have an opportunity to give each one careful inspection.

Obviously, cracked or broken glass should be replaced. Cracked or broken putty should be replaced well.

Scrape out the old and prime the surface with linseed oil before applying new putty.

Frames become loose with age. Sometimes open corner joints can be closed by tapping with a wooden block and hammer. Joints can be reinforced with angle irons, metal straps or other braces that will bridge the adjoining pieces of wood. Use wood screws to fasten these. Corrugated fasteners or other wood fasteners also may be used to reinforce a weak corner.

They may need retouching. Remember that they should be painted not only on the surface, but on the edges as well. Failure to seal all surfaces will cause the wood to absorb moisture and swell.

On inner edges you will have to paint sparingly. Thick coats will make installation difficult.

Windows should fit snugly but not so snugly that you have to force them in. If a window sticks, note where it is rubbing and sand or plane the edge. Remember to seal the edges when you finish.

If the windows fit too loosely, they're no good at all since air is entering around them. In this case install felt or sponge weather stripping or other insulation material on the inside edges so that it seals the opening.

Aluminum storm windows need little maintenance but should be checked just the same. Clean them with steel wool to remove oxidation. If the window is of the type that slides out of the way and is self-storing remember to lubricate and clean the guide tracks occasionally.

With aluminum windows, a rubber molding generally cushions and holds the glass in the frame. If you find that it is out of the groove, work it back in to keep glass tight.

Real To Reel

By William D. Kerns

"The Rocky Horror Picture Show" has played the midnight movie circuit for literally years in such markets as Dallas, Austin, New York and Los Angeles, primarily because it is an audience participation film of outrageous proportions. Viewers enthusiastically throw rice as the wedding party exits the church, put newspapers over their heads during the rainstorm sequence, hold up lighters and flashlights to help guide the characters Brad and Janet to the castle, cheer the offbeat Heros, help out with dialogue and even stand up and dance The Time Warp.

And South Plains Cinema manager Robert Hurley says all that is fine in Lubbock, too — but he's putting a stop to the dangerous activity which has plagued recent screenings of the picture.

"Last Saturday (Oct. 21) was the worst it's been," he said. "There were people throwing cans and bottles. A guy on the front row was hit by some sort of thrown object; we don't know what it was, but it sliced right through his jacket and shirt and had his shoulder bleeding. People are also throwing water on the people in front of them. They're buying tubs of buttered popcorn, emptying the popcorn on the floor and then filling the tubs up with water. Some people are even bringing in thermoses."

A few viewers have also brought both cigarette lighters and cans of hairspray, forming makeshift miniature flamethrowers. And Hurley says, "With people holding so much newspaper, it'd be too easy to have a fire. And a fire in this type of crowd could be disastrous."

Really, folks, this sort of juvenile extremes is not even prevalent at the bizarre screenings in the Big Apple. I recently went to see "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" at the Fiesta Theater in New York City, and it was indeed strange enough to write home about. I even had to ask a guy wearing a girdle and black women's underwear whether the seat next to him was taken, at which point he looked me over like Frank N' Furter gazing at Rocky and murmured, "Not really." But though the crowd was vocal, it was structured. The fans yelled in unison. The better actors mimed the entire movie in front of the screen.

But all were intent on enjoying the film, not causing mischief.

Hurley hopes to see the Lubbock audiences return to this type of organized insanity. The picture has played to overflow crowds and, since beginning to show it in two auditoriums each night to meet ticket demands, each night has drawn close to 1,400 paying customers. But he insists, "What's going on now is dangerous, and I WILL get it under control. Even if I have to put an usher at the end of each aisle. I've already talked to the mall's security police, and they'll be here to help me out."

Asked if he expected business to be hurt by his enforcement of these rules, he said, "It may hurt us with the high school crowd. But the people who want to see the movie and have a good time will still come. Those that want to just play will probably stay home. And we'll all be better off for it. I don't want their money."

"I don't want to make people unhappy, and we're not going to stop the rice throwing or newspapers or dancing or hollering or anything like that. But we have an investment to protect. We don't want it to cost us everything we put into the film just to put the theater back together. I've already got a water spot on one screen, caused by people throwing stuff at the screen. And there's not really any way to get it off."

That screen, by the way, cost in the neighborhood of $1,200 — and any movie buff can tell you that spotting a screen can hamper enjoyment of future films shown in that theater.

rumors that the South Plains Cinema will shy away from further showings of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" are unfounded. The theater signed a 10-week contract with 20th Century Fox Films, and has six weeks of Friday and Saturday midnight shows remaining. Hurley even hinted the run may be extended, saying, "As long as we have crowds, we'll continue to show the film. But we're going to stop all the foolishness which could hurt other people."

One final note: I asked Hurley how his janitorial crew has responded to all the additional rice and newspaper mixed in with the floor's usual assortment of popcorn and Coke cups. He answered, "Well, they're not too wild about it. But then, they'd be real happy if people didn't even put anything in the garbage cans here, but instead just took it all home with them. They're complaining about the extra mess, but I just tell them it's part of the business."

West Texas native Jay Boy Adams has two albums to his credit on the prestigious Atlantic label — his self-titled debut and a followup called "Fork In The Road" — and a member of his management team called me last week just to offer an update on the singer's rising career. It seems he's been playing concert dates in small halls (2,000 to 3,000 capacity) with Joe Cocker since Oct. 2, an odd combination since Adams' rock and roll has blossomed from country roots.

But now Adams is looking forward to Nov. 3.

Why? Because on that date Jay Boy Adams, that kid who used to pick a little guitar after helping his dad round up cows on the ranch, will be featured at Carnegie Hall in New York City. I only wish I could be there to hear it. Jay Boy Adams playing "The Legend Of Jack Diamond" in Carnegie Hall. That's something.

And from there, Adams will go on to play the Paradise Theater in Boston.

At this point, Adams' records have sold well only on a regional basis, being most successful in the Texas-Oklahoma area. He's sold between 30,000 and 35,000 copies of "Fork In The Road," and his management claims "probably three fourths of those records have been sold in Texas."

Which is one reason for touring with Cocker. "We wanted to get Jay on the road and get national exposure," said the caller, "and Cocker was looking for an opening act with good sound and an ability to really kick the s—out of an audience musically. That's Jay Boy."

It's been reported that Adams is tighter on stage these days, something which no doubt stems from experience, and response in new areas has been favorable. His label is making the all out effort, making sure time buys are made and the record stores in town's Jay plays all have his albums in stock.

Following the Carnegie Hall date, Adams may start touring with The Outlaws, a talented progressive country band out of Florida. And when I asked when in the dicens Adams was going to return and play for his friends back here on the home front, I was told, "Man, we're trying. We know we've got to get back and play for the people who have supported us."

"Right now, we're hoping to get back and play some Texas dates in December."

"Well I was fooling around, tooling down Interstate 40, listening to my favorite country show..."

Those are the lyrics which open Tommy Overstreet's new country single called "Fadin' In, Fadin' Out" — but they may not be the lyrics you hear when the song is played on your favorite local C&W radio station. In many cases, the words "my favorite country show" have been changed to radio call letters. Thus, Overstreet has hit the Lubbock airwaves singing about "listening to K-Triple-L" and "listening to KEND."

I called publicist Martha Haggard with ABC Records in Nashville to get the lowdown on this venture, and was told that about 300 radio stations in the United States are using the Overstreet single as both a hit song and a plug for their stations. Miss Haggard said, "Reel to reel tapes were mailed to all these stations. It's an indication of how crucial a role radio plays in selling a song."

The idea is credited to Ron Chancey, Overstreet's manager. Asked if this was the first time such remixing in a commercial song had been performed, Miss Haggard said,

Latest Elton John Changes Reflect Maturing Performer

By DOUG PULLEN
A-J Rock Correspondent

Remember Elton John?
He's the little, bald guy whose face appeared on myriad magazine covers only a few years ago.
He's the outrageous pop star who sold millions of records in a fashion reminiscent of the Beatles.
He's the guy whose name, when mentioned, made many rock enthusiasts sick.

Look To 'Lost & Found' For Carridine's Album

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Keith Carridine has organized his new record, "Lost and Found," so that a listener can, fitting his mood of the moment, listen to either the "lost" or the "found" side.

He knows that usually a ballad is followed by something up tempo and a sad song is followed by cheer, but Carridine says, "There are times when I prefer to hear just heartbeat songs rather than up tempo rock 'n' roll and I figured I'd give people a chance to do that."

Despite his song "I'm Easy" having won an Academy Award, Carridine probably is better known as a movie actor than as a singer-song writer. He says, "I feel a little bit guilty sometimes that I may be dabbling at something — music — that other people are into much more deeply."

"But I suppose it's not for me to question that, as long as what I do is genuine."

He and a band are touring American cities during March and the first half of April, promoting the album, his second, on Asylum Records. Eight of the songs on the album are his compositions. The single from it, "Mr. Blue," was written by Dewey Blackwell and was a hit by the Fleetwoods in 1959.

Carridine also is known as being a member of a famous family. His father is actor John Carridine. In the second generation are eight young men: "Five go by the name of Carridine. We're step and half and full brothers." David is an actor and Robert acts in the new film, "Coming Home." Another brother, Bruce, also acts occasionally.

Carridine says that his father tried to keep them from being stage or movie brats and seldom took them to movie sets. "But I suppose I picked up a certain amount of theatricality from being around him. I had to learn to abandon all of that; it was a child's version of what he'd seen his father do rather than a heartfelt performance as an individual. When I saw what my face was doing the first time on screen I realized how little it had to do with what acting was all about."

Carridine, who now is 28, entered show business in "Hair." He says, "I went opening night when it came to Los Angeles. I was flabbergasted. All I could think of was being involved with it somehow."

They started holding auditions and David and a friend of his went and took me with them as a piano player. The writers, James Rado and Jerome Ragni, asked if I sang. I went back and did one of my own tunes, the first one I ever wrote, 'When Will I Find Her?,' a typical postpubescent longing-type song. And I got hired."

Matisse Subject Of Art Seminar At Tech Museum

Henri Matisse, one of the most influential of 20th Century French artists, will be the subject of an art seminar at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Texas Tech Museum. Rabbi Alexander Kline is the lecturer for this series of art seminars, sponsored by the Women's Council of the West Texas Museum Association.

The first artistic revolution of the century, Fauvism, centered around the dominating personality of Matisse. Although short-lived, the movement achieved distinction with its formal distortion, flat patterning and robust colors. While the movement was followed by the more influential Cubism, Matisse carried out the true goal of Fauvism in the significant edge he gave to color.

He was noted for choosing vibrant colors with subtlety. His color combinations were bold. He sacrificed all that was not strictly necessary to the picture, outlining those masses which needed emphasis and rejecting the accidental. He simplified and imposed order, but all was meticulously worked out with technique, knowledge and careful calculation.

Among his masterpieces are "The Blue Nude" of 1907 and "The Pink Nude" of 1934; "Piano Lesson," 1916; "Decorative Figure On An Ornamental Background."

Archaeological Meet Features Dr. Wolf Rudolph

Dr. Wolf W. Rudolph, associate professor of classical archaeology and curator of the art museum at Indiana University, will speak to members and guests of the Lubbock Society of the Archaeological Institute of America at 3 p.m. today in room 102 of the Texas Tech University art building.

Rudolph will present an illustrated lecture about excavations at Halieis, a provincial city in Greece from 700 to 300 B.C. He will show the layout of the city with houses, streets and walls for defense. He will present results of excavations of the now submerged Sanctuary of Apollo and the Necropolis.

He will also discuss problems in small cities away from major urban centers.

Rudolph has participated in excavations at Halieis and Tiryns.

And I must admit that for years I was one of those among the nauseous ranks. Elton John had so saturated the market that a new album, even one like his latest, "A Single Man" (MCA), would automatically sell two million copies and further alienate the members of the rock community.

It got to the point that Elton John was blamed for many of rock's ills. But he faded from view three years ago after the release of his most introspective album, "Blue Moves."

The two-record set showed a new side of Elton John, one of self doubt and insecurity. Needless to say, Elton John has been sorely misinterpreted. He's had his fling. It's over.

Elton John is no longer the pompous performer of the past. He paid dearly for his success, as was evident after listening to "Blue Moves."

The three-year interim between "Blue Moves" and "A Single Man" has been wrought with change and reflection. And Elton John has come out of it a mature performer.

He has made several alterations in his approach since "Blue Moves." His band contains only a few remainders of its original self. He has a new lyricist in Gary Osborne, who replaces Bernie Taupin (now writing on his own). He has a new image. And, most important, he has plenty of new music.

"A Single Man" is a contrast in styles. Glimpses of the past shine through the music, but do not dominate it. "A Single Man" establishes John's newfound independence and establishes it firmly. What separates "A Single Man" from other Elton John albums is that it is individual in nature, as implied in the title.

Even the cover serves to confirm this. John is pictured in classic dress, with a long, black overcoat, top hat, cane and black leather boots which extend above the ankles. He stands silently, defiantly on a long country road which leads to an English castle.

John combines with new lyricist Gary Osborne to affirm the individual character of the music. The 11 songs which comprise the album revolve around this central theme. The personae are happy, sad, reflective but, most of all, sincere.

Gone are the days of frivolity that marked John's butchering of versions of songs like "Lucy In The Sky With Diamonds." Gone are the over-orchestrations and obstructive production of Gus Dudgeon.

New producer Clive Franks, like Osborne, is more involved in the actual delivery of the music. Franks not only gives the music a more realistic sound (as compared to Dudgeon), but he plays bass on several of the songs as well.

Among the strongest material on "A Single Man" is the instrumental which concludes the album. "Reverie/Song For Guy" represents the best moments of John's past. It is a song of joy and sadness, written about a messenger under John's employ who was killed in a motorcycle accident.

"Reverie" opens briefly and segues into the lush, melancholic instrumental. "Song For Guy" is typical of John's updated edge. The music is easily listenable and John's synthesizer applications smack of Eno in his more commercial fits.

But that's not the only song which showcases the new Elton John. "Shine On Through" opens the album on the same sort of downer with which "Song For Guy" closes it.

"Big Dipper" is a comical game of interplay between the wording (chock full of double entendres) and the music. "It Ain't Gonna Be Easy" is a song about love which could easily be interpreted, like most of the songs on "A Single Man," to reflect John's feelings about his career.

Another solid piece is "Madness." John raises his voice to a frenzied pitch while the instrumentation perks. The feeling of entrapment can't be avoided when one reads the lyrics along with the song.

The nuances of "A Single Man" are too numerous to go into here. But they help establish Elton John under a changed and more acceptable light. No longer is he the charlatan capable of making a mint off of his every whim. No longer has his adroit keyboard skill been obscured by his ostentatiousness.

Elton John is a new man, a more serious man, a man on his own.

Chumley Art On Display

Kristofferson

To Star In Film

NEW YORK (Special) — Michael Cimino's "The Johnson County War," an epic drama starring Kris Kristofferson, will start principal photography January 29, 1979.

Written and directed by Cimino, the story takes place in America just before the turn of the century when many states were torn by savage warfare, sanctioned by the government, and waged by armies of paid mercenaries against the newly arriving hordes of emigrants.

Kristofferson will portray the Harvard educated scion of a wealthy Boston family who finally turns against his own class, the principal survivor in a tragic love story told against the background of a heart-breaking, terrifying and engaging war when survival is the only victory.

Cimino starts production of this new project just as he is completing over two years' work on "The Deer Hunter," his major effort on Vietnam starring Robert De Niro.

Movie 'Agatha' Features Old Swan Hotel

YORK, England (UPI) — The Old Swan Hotel in Harrogate, which dates back to 1700, is enjoying a burst of fame.

It's featured in a new film called "Agatha," about the famous mystery writer Agatha Christie. The Old Swan was the spot where she suddenly surfaced after a mysterious 11-day disappearance in 1920.

The library of the hotel has been turned into a new restaurant called the Agatha Christie Library Restaurant.

Carol Burnett 'Comfortable' In Altman Film

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

NEW YORK — When Carol Burnett announced publicly her intention to dissolve her popular television variety series of 11 years and concentrate instead on different projects, namely feature films, many thought she'd slipped on a wet floor while playing a charwoman and hit her head on a bucket.

It was, after all, a decision based more on desire than logic. Or so it seemed. Miss Burnett had filmed three movies in the previous baker's dozen years, and had been dreadful in every single one of them — so dreadful, in fact, that when a cross-country airline screened the 1974 film "The Front Page," the embarrassed actress borrowed the intercom from the stewardess and apologized to the passengers for her performance.

But she's not apologizing for her performance in Robert Altman's latest film, "A Wedding." Nor has she any reason to. Playing the part of Tulip Brenner, mother of the bride in a film she labels "a black comedy soap opera," Miss Burnett's comic charms are a notable asset. Her scenes with romantic buffoon Pat McCormick provide the bulk of the laughs in the picture and, if any one member of Altman's ensemble has an off chance for an Oscar nomination in a supporting category, it is Carol Burnett.

So naturally, when the lovely San Antonio native showed up for an interview in a Manhattan hotel meeting room, the initial questioning concerned this remarkable improvement in screen poise.

"It was just a matter of becoming comfortable," she answered. "I knew when we were making this movie that I felt very comfortable. But I'm not a person to analyze. It's easy to go to a little crackers if you do that. This over-analytical stuff isn't for me. But after a while on the set, I felt just about as comfortable as I did when we were doing our own show. In other words, I felt like I was home. I've never studied that kind of thing. You just know when something like that feels comfortable and when it doesn't."

Keep in mind that this is a surprising feeling, considering Miss Burnett's lack of prior success on the wide screen and the fact she was working with avant garde director Bob Altman — who rarely shoots from a script more than three days old.

Altman is the master of cinema improvisation, encouraging his actors to write their own dialogue (and even their own songs in "Nashville"). Asked how she decided to work with such a demanding director, Miss Burnett said, "I met with Bob and he said he wanted me to play the bride's mother and then told me the basic story."

"I still didn't know who Tulip would be, or what her secret would be or what would happen to her. Just the general premise. But it was raining when we talked, and I love rain and thought it to be a good omen at the time. I also remembered a lot of previous conversations with performers such as Lily Tomlin and Elliott Gould who told me that, if you ever want to get comfortable in film, the best way is to work with Bob Altman. Even if he just puts you in the back row carrying a spear."

She continued, "So it was a big decision for me. There was no script. My part didn't even have a name yet. For all I knew, my character was going to stand in the pew and die of an accidental drowning in the first scene."

Altman himself does have a script, she said, but few others get to read it. Instead, she explained, "You (the actress) get a little book with everybody's name in it, the name of the characters they play and a description of what they're supposed to be like. And that's it. . . . There were about four other writers working with Bob, and they'd give you pages a day or two before you did those scenes. And then Bob says if something isn't comfortable, just rewrite it."

"Bob encourages the cast's input. Now he told me he did want me to have red hair because he wanted all the Brenner family, with the exception of the father, to have red hair. But that's all he said. I asked if I could have an accent and he said 'fine.' I even got to work out the design of the wig I wore. The first time the whole group met with Bob, he told us, 'If anybody has any ideas, please come to me with them. Even if you think you're bothering me. I love actors, and I want your input.'"

The fact the group was so large — an ensemble cast of 48 — also pleased the actress. "I liked that a whole lot, not being the focal point," she said. "There was not that much responsibility on my shoulders, which was another reason I was so comfortable. And I loved being on the set. It was like summer camp. Everybody got to bring their kids with them and, if I wasn't going to be in the next couple shots, I could just sit out and look at the lake and be with my children."

Carol Burnett is sold entirely on Robert Altman and will also appear in his next movie, which will be centered around a Florida health food convention. But her goals range far higher. Asked if she wants to concentrate solely on the movies now, she said, "I want to do everything. As much as I can. I adore television. And I dislike people who do television and then, after they leave, stick their noses up at it. I think that's a big mistake. I truly believe in the English way of doing things: do a play, a nightclub act, a movie, television or even join the circus if you feel like it."

"I always felt that way. And that's why there are so many beautifully rounded English performers. Nobody thinks anything of crossing over, while here in America you find people choosing sides. I think it started when the movies came in, and all the people working in theater looked down their noses at this new upstart. Now that 'movies' have become 'cinema and film,' the people look down at television as the illegitimate child of the media."

But not Carol.

Indeed, she appeared on TV recently in "The Grass Is Always Greener Over The Septic Tank" (I always visualized Carol Burnett while reading Erma Bombeck anyway) — and will alter her image drastically with the powerful drama "Friendly Fire" in early 1979. She describes the film as "a three-hour movie of the week for ABC, based on the true story of an Iowa farm family who lost their son in the Vietnamese War and probably became the first really well known Midwestern protesters. Ned Beatty plays the father, I play the mother and Sam Waterston plays the author of the book."

"I loved the script. I loved playing a woman who wasn't about to take someone else's word for something. She wanted to get at the truth. Her son was accidentally killed by his own forces. And she investigates. She went through a lot of red tape and frustration, and she's still going through it."

Miss Burnett is also working on a film called "The Tenth Month," directed by Joan Tewkesbury, a co-writer of Altman's "Nashville." The actress plays "a woman in her 40s, a career woman, who finds herself pregnant. And she's not married. Because of a combination of moral standards and the fact she has always wanted a child, she decides to have the baby — but she hides out to have it."

My gosh, Carol! Talk about a shift in image. From 11 years of wonderful variety sketches on CBS to such controversial issues as Vietnam coverups and unmarried pregnant women is quite a jump. A statement to which Miss Burnett replies, "Well, for 11 years, I couldn't do anything but comedy. There was no time. Which is one reason we stopped doing the show."

"But I'm not picking on controversy. I'm just going where I think there's a good role. I don't want to be preachy. I think that if you can get a message across about being fair, or raise the level of consciousness without being preachy, that's terrific. But I don't want to ever use television or the movies as a soapbox."

And what about her years with CBS and "The Carol Burnett Show?" With all her current-projects, has she had time to miss the variety series? Would she ever consider hosting another?

A smile crosses Miss Burnett's face as she replies, "Well, I never say 'never.' And though I don't miss the show, I do miss the family; I miss working with Harvey (Korman) and Tim (Conway). But actually, I just find what I'm doing now to be too interesting to consider going back." And then, as if making a final statement, she further stressed her reason for giving up the TV series by showing me a charm she wears around her neck. A gift from good friend Beverly Sills, the charm is engraved with the words: "I did that already."

Indeed, Carol Burnett conquered the TV ratings. She "did that already." So now it's off to new challenges, new roles and, it would appear from her performance in "A Wedding," new success stories.

Good Wax Now On The Stacks

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International

There is something for almost anybody in 1978 rock 'n' roll. To wit:

Linda Ronstadt — "Living In The USA" (GE-1551) — This album has come in for some heavy criticism from some quarters, largely because it holds so firmly to the well-established Ronstadt formula. But that formula — good songs, well arranged and produced, using only the cream of the West Coast session players, with Ronstadt's steady interpretive singing added as frosting on a well-wrought cake — has never sounded better than it does here.

The songs, which range from Chuck Berry's great "Back In The USA" to Elvis Costello's masterpiece, "Alison," are better selected than ever before. Peter Asher's arrangements and production seem to get just a little better with each Ronstadt!

What's more, Ronstadt seems to handle the material with as much aplomb as she seems to have on roller skates — and as the album cover demonstrates, she looks great on skates.

Linda Ronstadt will never be the greatest lady in rock 'n' roll, simply because she's forced to interpret others' material instead of doing her own. But she's carved out an indelible niche — and she's likely to be with us for a long time. As long as she keeps making records as good as this one, that'll be just fine.

Daryl Hall and John Oates — "Along The Red Ledge" (RCA AFL-2804) — If you've ever had the pleasure of seeing Hall and Oates in person, you know how little resemblance there has been between their stage show and their records. The Hall and Oates show is a rock 'n' roll tour de force — while their albums have been strictly oh-so-slick blue-eyed Philly soul.

Until this one.

"Along The Red Ledge" finally does on vinyl what Daryl Hall and John Oates have been doing right along on stage: presenting a deft mix of laid-back rhythm and blues and stops-out hard rock, all of it mixed together in an exceptionally clean fashion.

DEVO — "Q: Are We Not Men? A: We Are DEVO!" (Warner Bros. BSK-3239) — If you happened to see a recent edition of NBC's "Saturday Night Live," you are among the first to have experienced DEVO, a band that might be generally described as a truly bizarre quintet from Ohio.

Their music is grating, their appearance truly weird. They claim they are playing the music of the future — strangely syncopated and rife with odd vocal and instrumental twists, turns and backflips.

This album has a lot of junk and a little interesting music — notably a strange cover of the Rolling Stones' "Satisfaction," a tune called "Jocko Homo" that includes the title question-and-answer and a couple of other tracks from which various curious musical and lyrical phrases can be extracted, if you have patience and some experience with strange sounds.

DEVO are currently the most extreme representatives of the New Wave and as such they've drawn a certain cult following.

'Sleeping Beauty' Ballet Slated

The Houston Ballet will perform a full length version of "The Sleeping Beauty" at 8:15 p.m. Nov. 2 and 3 in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium. Tickets are on sale at Hemphill-Wells and the Texas Tech University Center ticket booth.

The event is sponsored by Tech Cultural Events, with the assistance of a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

This version of "The Sleeping Beauty" is well known and was originally produced by Ben Stevenson for London Festival Ballet and became their mainstay for years. Stevenson spent considerable time researching the original choreography by Marius Petipa in an attempt to reproduce in every possible detail the original choreography. Working in conjunction with Stevenson is Peter Farmer, one of the world's leading designers who was working under the specific brief that the sets and costumes had to be suitable for national and international touring, often requiring air freight whilst maintaining the traditional grandeur associated with the major classics.

Set in a prologue and three acts, the story relates the birth of Princess Aurora, over whom her evil godmother Carabosse casts a spell. The infant princess' protector, the Lilac Fairy, is powerless to protect her. The spell predicts that Aurora will grow to be a beautiful princess, but will prick her finger on a spindle and die. Due to the intervention of the Lilac Fairy, however, Princess Aurora will be protected from death. Instead, she will fall asleep for 100 years.

Act One focuses on the celebration of Aurora's sixteenth birthday — during which she dances the legendary "Rose Adagio" — and ends with a fateful gift of a spindle on which the young princess pricks her finger and falls to the ground, condemned to sleep for the next century.

Act II opens on the hunting party of Prince Florimund, which ends with the prince wandering into the forest to be alone. At this, the Lilac Fairy makes a vision of the Princess Aurora appear to him and he dances with her, falling in love.

In Act III, the Lilac Fairy has led Prince Florimund to the princess' sleeping palace where, with a kiss, he awakens her. As she slowly rises, the spell is broken, and in Scene Two we see the lavish wedding celebration of Aurora and Florimund. The royal wedding guests are joined by great fairy tale characters and the famous Bluebird, who dances a divertissement that has become famous wherever classical ballet is danced. Finally, at the climax of the festivities, Princess Aurora and Prince Florimund dance together in the wedding pas de deux, then draw the ballet to a conclusion with a spirited mazurka danced by all the guests.

The ballet's music is by Tchaikovsky and will be played by the Houston Ballet Orchestra.

ART TALK

Great Painters: Cezanne

By LA WANDA MURFEE

Think of Cezanne and immediately the painter recalls bright color, still life paintings in red and oranges, complimented with blues, greens and assorted whites. Or his many portraits in more restrained color, or yet still, landscapes of France, predominately clay red and green.

Paul Cezanne knew early in life he wanted to be a painter, but his banker father refused to recognize such a frivolous yearning. After a miserable tenure in the bank, Cezanne was allowed to travel to Paris with a limited allowance from his father. Being a young man with definite ideas, he learned he could never become absorbed in group work and promotion. All his life he remained on the periphery of art circles, being rejected in the socially acceptable exhibits in Paris.

After his middle years Cezanne became known as the hermit of Aix-en-Provence, his childhood home, enjoying the lonely life while developing his particular style of design and painting.

With the landscape spread out before him, Cezanne became a master at cropping out the non-essentials to record to scene within the limits of his canvas. In comparing photographs of specific places with the finished painting, one realizes how simplified the landscapes became.

And the same with color. The earth around Aix-en-Provence is red clay. Rocks and limestone cliffs are many shades of yellow. Buildings, streets, walls, and even reflections take on a red hue. Drawing those shapes, Cezanne loaded his brushes with color, and in quick sweeps could make a whole side of a foliated tree. He changed only the pressure of his hand to vary the strokes. Like many painters since his time, he continued to simplify content and technique.

His watercolors became the most spontaneous of all this paintings. We can just see Cezanne totting his paints and easel to a site, and after setting up, see him study the view, with pencil and paper, he quickly, loosely, makes flowing strokes over the paper, capturing the location of a few trees, exaggerating the size of the rocks, and removing all sources of light, to let flood over the entire composition. He must have produced reams of these quick studies.

In his studio he produced equally as much as out-of-doors. From studying his painting we realize he painted the same subjects over many times. His passion was color, light and shapes. From still life items on the studio shelf, flooded with north light, Cezanne worked for days on a painting. Being a prolific painter, he kept many paintings going at one time. It was not important to finish, or to cover a whole canvas with color to call a painting completed. Sometimes the raw canvas became a part of the composition, to be enjoyed as much as quit spot the spontaneous brush strokes.

Cezanne pioneered in rendering studied shapes, in experimenting in moving the subjects around on the canvas to make a better design, and creating a changing rhythm through the picture, thus gaining for himself the designation of the founder of post impressionists and cubist movements.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Sunday, Oct. 29, the 302nd day of 1978 with 63 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.

American statesman Thomas Bayard was born Oct. 29, 1828.

On this day in history:

In 1618, Sir Walter Raleigh was executed in London, charged with participating in a treasonous plot to oust King James I from the British throne.

In 1901, Leon Czolgosz was electrocuted for the assassination of American President William McKinley.

In 1929, pandemonium reigned on the New York Stock Exchange as collapsing prices set the stage for the Great Depression of the 1930s.

In 1974, former President Richard Nixon went into shock after surgery to combat a potentially lethal blood clot and was pronounced in critical condition.

A thought for the day: American novelist Willa Cather said, "I like free because they seem more resigned to the way they have to live than other things do."

AMERICANS SLEEPING LESS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans are sleeping one and a half hours less than they did in past years, say home living specialists of RCA whose studies determine off-work living patterns. The national sleeping average is seven and a half hours.

CASH ON THE LINE — Johnny Cash and family will take the stage at the Lubbock Civic Center exhibition hall at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, with tickets in three price ranges currently on sale at Hemphill-Wells and the Civic Center box office. Cash will be joined in concert by his singer-wife, June Carter Cash, June's three sisters and a country group called The Tennessee Three. Critics from around the nation have called The Johnny Cash Show good country entertainment for the family audience. The concert is being billed as a followup to Texas Tech University's homecoming football game against Baylor earlier in the day. Call the Civic Center for further information. All seats are reserved.

Plane Restorers Ready To Test Craft

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — William Moore and Paul Cooper are bursting with "plane pride" in their 41-year-old antique aircraft.

They have spent 33 months and $15,000 rebuilding a 1937 Waco five-passenger plane, which they found deteriorating in a barn at Battle Creek, Mich. They bought it for $500.

Moore expects to test-fly the plane after receiving approval from the Federal Aviation Agency, flying from a field in southeastern Delaware County.

They have redone about 90 percent of the plane, putting new grade A cotton cloth on the wings and fuselage, covered with 28 coats of hand-rubbed aircraft dope, a plastic sealer.

Moore's one-car garage was their workshop, with major plane parts assembled at the field.

It's the eighth plane restored by Moore, 40, of Reynoldsburg, a machine operator at Western Electric Co., Inc. He said that during the 15 years he has been restoring planes, he has always sold them at a profit.

Cooper, 45, his partner in the project, also lives in Reynoldsburg and is a tractor-trailer driver. Moore is a certified flight instructor and Cooper a student pilot.

Urrego Has Difficult

Role As Bricklayer

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Actor Waldo Urrego plays the difficult role of the bricklayer in "Retaining Wall," a drama by Brazilian playwright Carlos Queiroz being presented at Bogota's TBP Theatre.

Urrego is the only actor onstage throughout the play in his role as a Brazilian workman who builds a wall while talking about the problems of his daily life. The workman simultaneously listens to a transistor radio broadcasting the Brazil-Holland soccer match in the 1974 World Cup in Munich. The play is based on a real incident in which a workman committed suicide when Brazil lost the match.

'Annie Get Your Gun' Sets Final Performances

The musical hit "Annie Get Your Gun" will have its final performances at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday in Moody Auditorium at Lubbock Christian College. Tickets are still available at Lubbock Christian College.

June Bearden is directing and producing, and Dr. B. Wayne Hinds is serving as music director and orchestra conductor. This is the same duo which worked on the school's first musical, "Pinafore," in 1958 and many projects since. Recent years have seen the two collaborate to produce "Music Man," "Brigadoon" and "Shenandoah."

Other staff members include choreographer Suzanne Aker, principals' voice coach Garland Jarvis, technical director and designer Rick Houston, and associate producer Reagan Fletcher.

Rosie Alford's oil painting "Puddle Clouds" now in New York

Painting By Lubbockite On Exhibit In New York

The 65th annual exhibition of the Allied Artists of America — now on view in New York City at The National Academy Galleries, 1083 5th Avenue — includes an oil painting by Lubbockite Rosie Sandifer Alford called "Puddle Clouds." The exhibition will continue through Nov. 12.

She studied commercial art at Southwestern State College in Oklahoma; studio art at Texas Tech University; portrait art at Ramon Froman Portrait School in Clodcroft, N.M.; and landscape art with Frank Mason in Stowe, Vermont. She has participated in shows at the Texas Tech Museum, the Texas Fine Arts Association, the National Arts Club and the Salmagundi Club in New York City.

Her work can also currently be seen at the Gallery Of The Southwest in Taos, Kachina Galleries in Santa Fe, and McAdoo Gallery in Scottsdale, Arizona.

Miss Alford is currently preparing paintings for a show at Houston's Meredith Long Galleries.

Scenes From Play On 'Lunch' Menu

Scenes from Lubbock Theatre Centre's upcoming production of "The Odd Couple" will be acted out at this week's Lunch Bunch meeting. David Yirak and J.C. Brown will perform as Oscar and Felix, respectively, under Pam Brown's direction.

Lunch Bunch meets from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. each Tuesday in the Mahon Community Room of the Lubbock City-County Library.

Nude Musical Reopens

MADRID (UPI) — After a government-ordered shutdown of 25 days for alleged public scandal, the Spanish production of the nude musical "Let My People Come" has reopened.

Director Jaime Azpilicueta said that no major changes were made.

Lunch Bunch meets from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. each Tuesday in the Mahon Community Room of the Lubbock City-County Library.

Fort Worth's Kimbell Museum Slates Exhibit Of Major India Art

FORT WORTH (Special) — A major exhibition of sculpture from India, "The Ideal Image: The Gupta Sculptural Tradition and Its Influence," will be shown at the Kimbell Art Museum Jan. 13 through Feb. 25, 1979. Almost 100 sculptures of bronze and stone from 29 collections in Asia, Europe and the United States will be included in the exhibition, the first major showing of Gupta art ever held outside India.

Dating from about A.D. 300 to 600, the Gupta Dynasty was a period of unsurpassed brilliance in Indian culture. Its sculpture was a culmination and refinement of all that had gone before, both native Indian and Graeco-Roman. New standards of beauty transformed Buddhist, Hindu and Jain deities into "ideal images." These are images of paradox — at once spiritual and sensual, powerful yet tender.

The Gupta period was truly a golden age in India when the arts and sciences flourished as never before, and northern Indian became one of the most important cultural forces in Asia. Gupta philosophy sought to create a perfect style of life, one which emphasized balance and harmony, and the finest sculpture of the period reflects this ideal. Certain Gupta works of art are recognized as among the supreme achievements of Asian art, and they represent the last great moment of Buddhist art in India.

Dr. Pratapaditya Pal, curator of Indian and Islamic art at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, selected the sculptures in the exhibition and wrote the fully-illustrated catalogue which will soon be available from the Kimbell bookstore.

Dr. Pal has included examples of the major regional styles in Gupta art that developed in India. Certain differences in drapery and facial details, materials and pose can be identified, but the basic sense of proportion and concentration on perfection of the human form remain constant. The relationship of one part of the body to another was actually part of a carefully conceived mathematical formula followed by the best of the Gupta sculptors.

A number of works in the exhibition show the ways in which certain important elements of Gupta sculpture became incorporated into art of other neighbor-boring Asian cultures. There are examples from Thailand and Cambodia from the fifth to the ninth century, including the Kimbell's own bronze "Standing Maitreya Buddha," which was included when the show opened at Asia House in New York earlier this month. Elements of the Gupta style can also be recognized in sculptures from T'ang Dynasty China, in the early bronzes of Nepal, Tibet and Kashmir, and in stone sculptures from Java and Vietnam.

The exhibition was organized by The Asia Society, New York, with a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. From Fort Worth, "The Ideal Image" will have its final showing at the Art Institute of Chicago, March 24 through May 6.

A lecture, audio-visual presentation and numerous films on India and its culture will be shown during the run of the show at the Kimbell, with scheduling to be announced later.

Advance reservations for group tours of the exhibition may be made by writing to the museum at Box 9440, Fort Worth, TX 76107.

Methodist Church To Hold Auditions For 'Brigadoon'

The First United Methodist Church will hold auditions for its musical production of "Brigadoon" Saturday in the church choir room. Though the musical is church produced, the auditions are open to the community. Interested persons should contact Gordon McMillan at the church and set up an individual audition time.

Singers, dancers and actors will all be cast Saturday.

The story involves a legendary Scottish village and a love affair between a lass of Brigadoon and an American hunter. The show's songs include "Almost Like Being In Love," "The Heather On The Hill," "There But For You Go I" and "Come To Me, Bend To Me."

LTC PROMISING LAUGHS WITH 'ODD COUPLE' — The Lubbock Theatre Centre's production of Neil Simon's "The Odd Couple," no doubt one of the noted playwright's most popular comedies, is fast approaching. Tickets are now on sale for the production, due to be staged Nov. 10-11 and 17-18 at the LTC playhouse under the direction of

Lubbock Theatre Centre's Presentation Of 'Odd Couple' Slated

The forces of order and disorder will meet in head-on, hilarious conflict on the Lubbock Theatre Centre stage when Neil Simon's "The Odd Couple" is presented at 8:15 p.m. Nov. 10-11 and 17-18. Reservations are now being accepted.

To be sure, these forces are always meeting in conflict — after all, is there any family in which one member isn't exasperated with another over failure to recap the tube of toothpaste? But the battle of neatness vs. sloppiness has probably never been so comically portrayed as in "The Odd Couple," which drew audiences for over two years in New York through its appeal to the housekeepers and anti-housekeepers in us all.

David Yirak and Jay C. Brown star in this comedy devoted to the antics of two-wifless husbands who decide to share an apartment after their marriages have blown up — and who discover that the traits which made their wives discard them also render them incompatible to each other as roommates.

Yirak portrays a divorced newspaper sportswriter named Oscar who lives alone in untidy grandeur in an eight-room apartment from which his wife fled with their children to escape the climate of clutter he enjoys. He admits that when his wife would ask when he wanted dinner, he'd say he didn't know — and then wake her up at 3 a.m. and demand, "Now!"

Brown is seen as an old chum named Felix who is so distraught at his failed marriage that he seems on the verge of collapse. At least until Oscar suggests that he share his over-roomy apartment thus helping him meet his alimony payments and alleviating the loneliness of his own solo life.

Once linked in this domestic arrangement, however, the two men discover what they'd never known about each other as casual friends, namely that they are temperamentally unsuited for living under the same roof. Where Oscar, a born slob, is compulsively messy and enjoys living in disarray, Felix is compulsively neat, an obsessive cleaner and a meticulous housekeeper and cook.

Apparently Felix's wife did not discard him for demanding his dinner at 3 a.m. but because, with his delusion that he is a great chef, he insisted on re-cooking the dinners she had prepared.

As Felix settles into Oscar's home, he institutes changes that begin to get under the skin of Oscar and his poker-playing pals, who resent having to put coasters under their beer glasses.

The climax comes when the two ill-matched roommates have a date with two giggling sisters, both divorcees, who live in the same apartment house. Oscar, looking forward to an evening of fun and "games," is driven to distraction when his date dissolves into mournful tears because Felix can't help recounting his sorrows. Felix's compulsive neatness has driven Oscar to such unforgivable reactions as deliberately dropping ashes on a newly-vacuumed rug and trampling about on the sofa with dirty sneakers.

The cast also includes Les Adams, Ron Chancy, William Nowell and William Kenton as the poker playing buddies, and Jane Ann Cummings and Heather Hollingsworth as the neighborly sisters.

Two good men are running for Congress from this district.

So...
Why should we vote for George Bush?

Four Important reasons

1 GEORGE BUSH WON'T HAVE TO COMPROMISE HIS PRINCIPLES.

Most of us in this district are conservative. George Bush is a conservative, and he'll be free to represent this philosophy in Washington. His opponent, however, would have to "go along to get along" with the party's leadership, which doesn't always agree with our position.

2 THE ELECTION OF GEORGE BUSH WOULD BE A CLEAR SIGNAL TO WASHINGTON OF HOW WE FEEL.

If we want to send a message to Washington that we don't agree with the domestic policies of the current administration, George Bush is the man to carry it. The election of a Democrat, on the other hand, would be seen as an endorsement of present policies—policies which have caused wasteful spending, big government, and overregulation of our lives.

3 GEORGE BUSH IS A BUSINESSMAN.

He is a hard-working, tax-paying private citizen. He understands our problems because they are his problems, too. He'll take a businesslike approach to government and will work to make it more efficient.

4 GEORGE BUSH HAS GREAT POTENTIAL FOR LEADERSHIP.

Knowledgeable, articulate and well-versed on national issues, George Bush would be listened to in Congress. He would be highly effective in speaking up for and working on behalf of the people and the economy of West Texas.

ON NOVEMBER 7, VOTE FOR WEST TEXAS.
VOTE FOR GEORGE BUSH FOR CONGRESS.

POWERFUL FILM NOW IN LUBBOCK — First screened to acclaim at the 1978 Cannes Film Festival, the powerful true story of Billy Hayes, now titled "Midnight Express," is currently playing in Lubbock at the South Plains Cinema. The picture deals with Hayes foolishly attempting to smuggle hashish out of Turkey and consequently being thrown into a Turkish prison.

Production Plans Set For New Comedy 'Southern Comfort'

NEW YORK (Special) — "Southern Comfort," a comedy to be directed by Arthur Hiller, will be filmed for release by United Artists.

Exhibit Of Austin Artists' Work Set

SNYDER (Special) — Works by two Austin artists, Jane Tamako Raffeld and Theresa Taylor, will be exhibited Nov. 2-20 in the Scurry County Museum at West Texas College.

Miss Raffeld will be showing batiks, while Miss Taylor will display porcelain figures.

A reception honoring the artists will take place from 7-9 p.m. Nov. 2 in the museum, with the public invited.

Information regarding guided tours of the museum may be obtained by calling the museum office.

SINGAPORE'S AQUARIUM
SINGAPORE (UPI) — Most visitors to Singapore cannot miss the 25-year-old Van Kleef Aquarium right in the center of the city. Resting at the foot of a hill park a short distance from most tourist hotels, the aquarium features hundreds of fish and reptiles from all over the world, including sharks, and crocodiles.

The conflict comes in his will to survive — and escape. In the above scene, Hayes (played superbly by Brad Davis) is visited in jail by his girlfriend, played with sensitivity by Irene Miracle. The picture deals with Hayes foolishly attempting to smuggle hashish out of Turkey and consequently being thrown into a Turkish prison.

Violin Recital Set At Tech Tuesday

Ruth Ann Truncate will be featured in graduate violin recital at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Texas Tech University Recital Hall. There is no admission charge.

The program will include selections by Mozart, Brahms, Norman Dello Joio, Gershwin & Heifetz, and William Kroll. Pianist Lora Deahl will accompany.

Baker and Musgrove report that the spin of the play remains the same, but the setting has been changed from Ohio to Georgia and the period of the story is now contemporary.

This represents the fruition of long term plans to bring the property to the screen, negotiations between UA and Musgrove having been initiated some time ago.

Geologists say the Boston Mountains in northwest Arkansas represent one of the oldest mountain ranges in the world.

ART ON DISPLAY — The Baker Gallery will open an exhibition of works by Walt Gonske, Marion Quimby and Doris Steider today with a reception from 1 to 4:30 p.m. today. The artists will be present at this time only to answer questions and greet the public, but the exhibition will hang through Nov. 25. Featured works include the watercolor by Miss Quimby, left, called "Silent Waiting" and the oil painting by Gonske, right, titled "Morning Light." Call the Baker Gallery for further details.

Reception Today Opens Three Man Art Show

A reception from 1:00 to 4:30 p.m. today will open a major three man show at the Baker Gallery, 1301 13th St. The exhibit will feature the latest works of artists Walt Gonske, Marion Quimby and Doris Steider, all of whom will be present in the today only to greet the public.

Three totally different painting mediums will be presented in the works of the artists: oil by Walt Gonske, watercolor by Marion Quimby and egg tempera by Doris Steider.

After graduating from the Newark School of Fine Art and studying at the Art Students League, Walt Gonske worked as a free lance illustrator in New York. His earlier work appeared in many publications, including "Esquire," "Life," "McCalls," "New Yorker Magazine" and the "New York Times." Later, Gonske decided to move to New Mexico and undertake watercolor landscapes. He has received First Prize and Honorable Mention from the Southwestern Watercolor Society, Stacey Grant, and Bronze Medal in Drawing at the Cowboy Hall of Fame. Recently Gonske had his work published in the book "40 Watercolorists and How They Work."

While working in oil, Gonske has recently developed a strong impressionistic style, bold strokes and vivid colors.

Marion Quimby began as an artist at the age of 6, by drawing on the flyleafes of her mother's books. This was soon discouraged, although her family wholeheartedly approved of her artist's trend. Upon graduation from the Modern School of Applied Art in Boston, she entered the field of commercial art.

In 1966, Marion Quimby entered the first Portland, Maine, Art Festival, where she won one of the Purchase Awards, and sold 13 of the 17 paintings she exhibited. The following year, the Governor of New Hampshire commissioned her to paint the state bird. The painting hung at the Capitol Building in Concord during Governor King's administration, then became part of his private collection.

Finally after 28 years in commercial art, Marion Quimby turned to a full time fine arts career. Since then, she has been the recipient of numerous awards. Drawing her subject matter from her native home state of New Hampshire and the Rockies and the fascinating Southwest, Marion Quimby is considered an artist of rare skill and sensitivity.

Doris Steider is widely known for her paintings in egg tempera. A visionary realist, Doris Steider draws inspiration from the subject material of the Southwest — deserts, mountains and ghost towns — as well as windmills and other images evocative of a more recent past. Although her work is predominantly Southwestern in spirit, she also captures her memories of exotic travels around the world. Her work has been represented in more than 200 major juried shows, earning 120 awards, including four in international competition.

An accomplished sculptress as well as a superlative painter, Doris Steider is currently developing a series of Southwestern bronze.

Paintings by Doris Steider are included in major corporate collections and private collections throughout the United States and in the permanent public collections of leading banks and museums in Texas and in New Mexico.

The exhibition will continue through Nov. 25th.

Real To Reel

Con Hunley single called 'Weekend Friend' had lyrics changed to include the call letters of WLPO in Atlanta."

She also quoted Chancey as saying, "It also helps if the record is a strong song on its own."

No confusion has yet cropped up over the matter, according to ABC officials. That is, while listeners may get a kick out of hearing the localized versions of "Fadin' In, Fadin' Out," no one has fussed about his inability to buy a copy of that same recording. Another indication that the Tommy Overstreet single may have been strong enough to sell just as many copies even without such unique and imaginative ventures.

There's always a certain proportion of fans at local rock concerts who choose to either crowd the stage or simply walk about drinking and eyeing members of the opposite gender. But there are even more who would like a place to sit after paying top dollar for tickets, a seat offering a vantage point from which one can enjoy the show and avoid the hustlers and dancers and walking drinkers. That fact was never more evident than at last Sunday's concert by the Atlanta Rhythm Section in the Civic Center exhibition hall.

The Civic Center staff neglected to pull out any of the lower seats, thus forcing many to stand or sit in poor visibility seats to the sides of the balcony. Complaints were aired in my direction both at the show and also over the telephone the next day at the office. So I contacted Civic Center director Dottie Townsend for the answers.

She said, "The reason we didn't put the seats out is that we were short-handed, the crowd was small (only 2,400 showed up) and the building superintendent didn't want to contract the extra labor to get it done." When the patrons started pulling out the seats themselves, the lights were turned on and they were stopped by police officers and building personnel.

Miss Townsend explained, "The reason for that was that we were concerned about the kids' safety. To pull the chairs out properly, you have to get a jack out of the basement."

Due to the complaints, however, she promised, "At all future concerts, we will at least pull out the center seats."

Something else the Civic Center might check on is abuses of drinking privileges. Though the sale of beer at concerts no doubt generates quite a bit of revenue, it becomes increasingly obvious that even the junior high school kids can get a brew if they want it. Whether or not they even go to the extremes of having an older "friend" buy the beer for them is not known, but why can IDs not be checked when the kids are drinking on the floor?

I only ask this because (1) those who cannot handle alcohol can become a bother in any situation and (2) enjoyment of the Atlanta Rhythm Section concert was hampered by the stench stemming from numerous instances of young people drinking to the point of nausea. It was a bad situation.

Richard Dreyfuss wears a cast on his right arm throughout his current picture "The Big Fix" for the simple and logical reason that his arm was actually broken. He injured himself playing racquetball, and the film either had to be postponed for years or rewritten to explain the cast. Screenwriter Roger Simon has turned the cast into a "how did he break it really" joke that works for a lot of laughs.

Theater owners, take note: I've found the perfect Halloween fare. It's a movie called "I Dismember Mama." If you don't like that one, how about "Dracula's Dog?" That one has the tagline of "now you know why there were no mailmen in Transylvania."

Why can't the lush Winchester Theater get big budget movies? It's now booked a return of "Blazing Saddles" Nov. 17-30.

Library Features

Horror Film

Classic horror films will be featured from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday at the Lubbock City-County Library in conjunction with Halloween activities.

The film lineup includes "The Fall Of The House Of Usher," with a screenplay based on an Edgar Allan Poe story; "The Devil's Hand," a nostalgic look at the type of horror films popular during the early 1950s; and excerpts from the original 1934 production of "Frankenstein Meets The Wolfman."

Admission is free for everyone aged 12 or over. The pictures will be shown in the library's Community Room.

Houston Opera Going On Air

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Grand Opera's 1978-79 season of six opera productions will be broadcast nationally on classical music radio stations, produced by KLEF and the syndicated services of Chicago's WFMT.

The six productions are Bellini's "Norma," Janacek's "Jenůfa," Massenet's "Werther," Verdi's "La Traviata," Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier" and Offenbach's "The Grand Duchess of Gerolstein."

Tenneco Inc. provided more than $200,000 in funds for the productions.

All Boys' Piano Recital Slated At Garden Center

The William A. Murphy Piano Studio will present an annual All Boys Recital at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Garden & Arts Center, 4215 University.

There is no admission charge.

The performers are students of Kathy Bevers, Patti Kennington, Mark Taverner and William Murphy.

BURBANK, Calif. (S) Bros. has revealed details of its production schedule in recent history, with more earmarked to finance over the next year. Filmed all over the world, to England and Japan.

Announcement of the future of current and future made by Robert Shapiro, president in charge of Warner Bros. Communications Company.

Cutting the varied na coming program of Shapiro noted that "optimism for the future of the industry is at an all-time high. No limit to the number of things we want to do, as long as they're appealing. Ours is a film to be even full of.

Currently before the ley Kubrick's "The Shining," Jack Nicholson and Shelley Duvall in London. Based on a novel by Stephen King whose 2001: A Space Clockwork Orange" among the screen's greatest hits.

Clint Eastwood, led by Warner Bros. on such films as "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "The Enforcer," starring in "Evil Under the Sun," with Sonny Bono and Geoffrey Leesley on location in California, with James Coburn, Robert Daley and others.

Shapiro also announced films being readied before the end of the year.

"Time After Time" screenplay (his "Sequel" was Oscar-nominated) will make his producer Herb Jaffrey in San Francisco in a "Main Event" with and for producer Jerry Schatzberg.

Several First Artists' films will be directed by that Company's management with Warner Bros. and director will be First Artists and Warner Bros.

Warner Bros. Unveils $125 Million Film Slate

BURBANK, Calif. (Special) — Warner Bros. has revealed details of the biggest production schedule in the company's recent history, with more than $125,000,000 earmarked to finance more than 20 films over the next year. Filming will range literally all over the world — from Hollywood, to England and Africa.

Announcement of the ambitious schedule of current and future production was made by Robert Shapiro, executive vice president in charge of worldwide production for Warner Bros., a Warner Communications Company.

Citing the varied nature of the vast upcoming program of film production, Shapiro noted that "Warner Bros." optimism for the future of the motion picture industry is at an all-time high. We have set no limit to the number of films we want to do, as long as we find the project appealing. Ours is a full program, but we want it to be even fuller.

Currently before the cameras are Stanley Kubrick's "The Shining," starring Jack Nicholson and Shelley Duvall, filming in London. Based on the successful novel by Stephen King, it is from the man whose 2001: A Space Odyssey" and "A Clockwork Orange" are considered among the screen's greatest classics.

Clint Eastwood, long associated with Warner Bros. on such hits as "Dirty Harry" and "The Enforcer," is now filming a starring role in "Every Which Way But Loose," with Sondra Locke, Ruth Gordon and Geoffrey MacRae co-starring. It is on location in California, Colorado and New Mexico, with James Fargo directing for Eastwood's Malpaso Productions with Robert Daley producing.

Shapiro also announced a number of films being readied for start of shooting before the end of the year.

"Time After Time," a Nicholas Meyer screenplay (his "Seven Per Cent Solution" was Oscar-nominated), on which Meyer will make his directorial debut for producer Herb Jaffe, will begin filming in San Francisco in August.

"Main Event" will star Barbara Streisand for producer Jon Peters. It is one of several First Artists Productions due under that Company's distribution arrangement with Warner Bros. A major co-star and director will be announced shortly by First Artists and Warner Bros.

Also from First Artists will be Steve McQueen starring in "I, Tom Horn."

Gene Wilder will star in "No Knife," scheduled for filming on western locations this fall. Mace Neufeld will produce the comedy-western, based on the Michael Elias and Frank Shaw screenplay.

Peter Falk and Alan Arkin will star in "The In-Laws," with Arthur Hiller (of "Silver Streak" and "Love Story" successes) directing and co-producing with William Sackheim. The screenplay is an original by Andrew Bergman, who co-wrote "Blazing Saddles" for Warner Bros. Production was due to begin this month.

Producer Stephen Friedman will start "Bombay Crossing" from an original screenplay by Robert Boris in England shortly after the start of the new year.

Academy Award-winning screenwriter for "Chinatown" Robert Towne will make his directorial debut on "Greystoke," an extremely ambitious film undertaking about the Tarzan legend. It will film in Africa; with Howard W. Koch, Jr. and Stan Kanter co-producing.

Among the giant films set by Warner Bros. is "The Thorn Birds," based on Colleen McCullough's epic love story which is completing its 54 week on the Best Seller lists, and which has been compared to "Gone With the Wind." Ivan Moffat has prepared the first draft screenplay for producer Edward Lewis, and production is scheduled for early 1979 in Australia. A major director and a major male star will be announced shortly.

Three other Irwin Allen pictures are being prepared at Warner Bros. Shapiro is looking towards an August start on "Beyond the Poseidon Adventure." In development with Allen are also "Circus," and "The Day the World Ended."

Ray Stark, with whom Warner Bros. shared one of this year's biggest boxoffice films, "The Goodbye Girl" which won for Richard Dreyfuss the Best Actor Oscar, will produce several films for Warner Bros. The first will be the sequel to "The Goodbye Girl" with all principals returning, including screenwriter Neil Simon, director Herbert Ross, and stars Dreyfuss, Marsha Mason and Quinn Cummings.

Another of the screen's great directors, Sydney Lumet, will make his next film for Warner Bros. It will be "Just Tell Me What You Want," from Jay Presson Allen's script based on her novel. Lumet will also direct the film version of one of Broadway's biggest current smash hits, "Deathtrap," which Warner Bros. purchased a little more than two months ago.

More films are yet planned, including "Act of Vengeance," with William Friedkin directing the Abby Mann screenplay.

Director Sydney Pollack will also begin a project for Warner Bros., "Daniel Martin," with John Fowles bestseller.

Tony Bill, actor and producer ("The Sting") will be making his directorial debut for Warner Bros. on "Nothing in Common."

In addition to first-time directors who have made a great mark in other areas of the film world, Warner Bros. is setting projects with young men and women who will be making their first commercial films anywhere. Marty Brest, a Fellow at the American Film Institute, is scripting and will direct "Old Folks," and Amy Heckerling, also from the AFI program, is writing an original love story, which she will direct.

Recently Shapiro announced a two-film deal with Claudia Weill, a young but experienced filmmaker, notably of PBS shows and the Oscar-nominated documentary "The Other Half of the Sky: A China Memoir" which she made with Shirley MacLaine. Miss Weill's "Girlfriends," a recent hit at the Cannes Film Festival, at Los Angeles' Filmex and the Rotterdam Film Festival, was simultaneously acquired by Warner Bros. for distribution this fall.

Shapiro said much of the work in pulling the production schedule together came through the recent staff appointments of vice president Diane Sokolow in New York, vice president-production Mark Rosenberg in California and story editor Willie Hunt, as well as from the other production vice presidents, Larry Marks, Tina Nides and Antea Sybert.

Shapiro also announced the impressive slate of films already produced and awaiting release this year. John Milles' "Big Wednesday," currently in release, stars Jan-Michael Vincent, William Katt and Gary Busey.

"Capricorn One" opened in early June, with Elliott Gould, James Brolin, Brenda Vaccaro, Telly Savalas and Karen Black headlining the major cast. Peter Hyams wrote and directed for producer Paul Lazarus III.

In July, Irwin Allen's "The Swarm" blanketed the nation. It was the largest release in Warner Bros. history, opening on July 14 in 1,400 theatres. It stars Michael Caine, Henry Fonda, Katharine Ross, Richard Widmark, Olivia de Havilland and Richard Chamberlain, among others.

In late July, Warner Bros. began national distribution of "Hooper" reuniting the star-director team of Burt Reynolds and Hal Needham who last year rocked the movie industry with the gigantic success, "Smokey and the Bandit." Co-starring with Reynolds in "Hooper" for producer Lawrence Gordon are Jan-Michael Vincent, Sally Field and Brian Keith.

October and Thanksgiving releases include "Bloodbrothers," from director Robert Mulligan ("Summer of '42") and starring Paul Sorvino, Tony Lo Bianco and the newcomer headed for superstardom, Richard Gere; "Somebody Is Killing The Great Chefs of Europe," starring George Segal, Jacqueline Bisset and Robert Morley, for director Ted Kotcheff ("Fun With Dick and Jane") from Lorimar Productions and the Aldrich Company; Steve McQueen in his breakout role in Henrik Ibsen's "An Enemy Of The People" from First Artists Productions, with Bibi Andersson and Charles Durning co-starring.

Christmas will include two of the year's biggest hits, Clint Eastwood in the now-filming "Every Which Way But Loose," and the Alexander Salkind Production of "Superman," the major epic film of the year. Starring Marlon Brando, Gene Hackman, Margot Kidder, Glenn Ford, Ned Beatty, Maria Schell, Terrence Stamp, it will introduce an electrifying new personality to the screen: Christopher Reeve as Superman.

Warner Bros. has also acquired for distribution the fabulous new "old musical" film, Stanley Donen's brilliant work, "Movie, Movie." A release date will be announced for the Sir Lew Grade film, a Martin Stanger Production, directed by Stanley Donen and written by Larry Gelbart and Sheldon Keller. Starring are George C. Scott, Trish Van Devere, Barbara Harris, Red Buttons, Barry Bostwick, Anne Reinking, Art Carney as the doctor and Eli Wallach, with special musical sequences staged by Michael Kidd.

Tech's Role Cited In Major Research, Development

The migration of business and population into the "Sunbelt" is a contemporary phenomenon, bringing expansion, wealth and development to many areas and cities in the Southwest, Lubbock included.

In a speech delivered recently to new faculty members, Dr. Carl H. Stem, dean of the College of Business Administration at Texas Tech University, alluded to the specific challenges and circumstances which go hand in hand with an increasing pace of social and economic activities.

Lubbock is in the particular situation of being selected as a major research and development base by Texas Instruments Inc., multinational electronics corporation.

A recent article in "Business Week" magazine about the company indicated that Lubbock may well become the consumer electronics capital of the world, looking at Texas Instruments' expansion.

Stem believes that among the many attractive features the city offers, Texas Tech is an important factor. He pointed out that the College of Business Administration has a special responsibility in providing and developing human resources necessary to maintain progress.

"The quality of our society—the level of our standard of living and the degree of our competitiveness in the business area relative to other nations—will be no better than the quality of the human resources on which our society draws," he said. "The quality of the human resources available to our society in the future will depend largely on how effective we and our colleagues in universities throughout the United States are in developing the intellectual abilities, the analytical skills, and the decision-making ability of the young people in our institutions today."

Stem reminded his audience that in executing this task, university educators must always be sensitive to the fact that "they are impacting on the students at a very impressionable stage of their lives." He called for an optimal synthesis of pedagogic and professional skills in the teaching at institutions of higher learning and referred to efforts his college is constantly making to achieve this goal.

Stem sees the College of Business Administration as a professional school which should develop a significant interface between itself and the world of business and public sector administration.

In reference to the activities at Texas Tech he said, "We are working to develop intern programs with businesses; and, although these will involve only a small number of students, they enable us to provide exceptional real world experiences for some of our outstanding students."

An internship agreement with Texas Instruments has been providing practical experience and training for about 30 students this year.

While this program has been successful, the college is exploring similar possibilities with other companies in Lubbock and elsewhere in the state.

One of Stem's major concerns is the balance between quality and quantity in business programs. Many universities, including Texas Tech, are faced by a strong shift toward business-oriented degree plans of students, but have only limited facilities to handle the swollen demand.

He explained that Texas Tech, unlike some sister institutions "who have fallen victim of a shift of student population apparently beyond their control," has made administrative provisions to master the new situation.

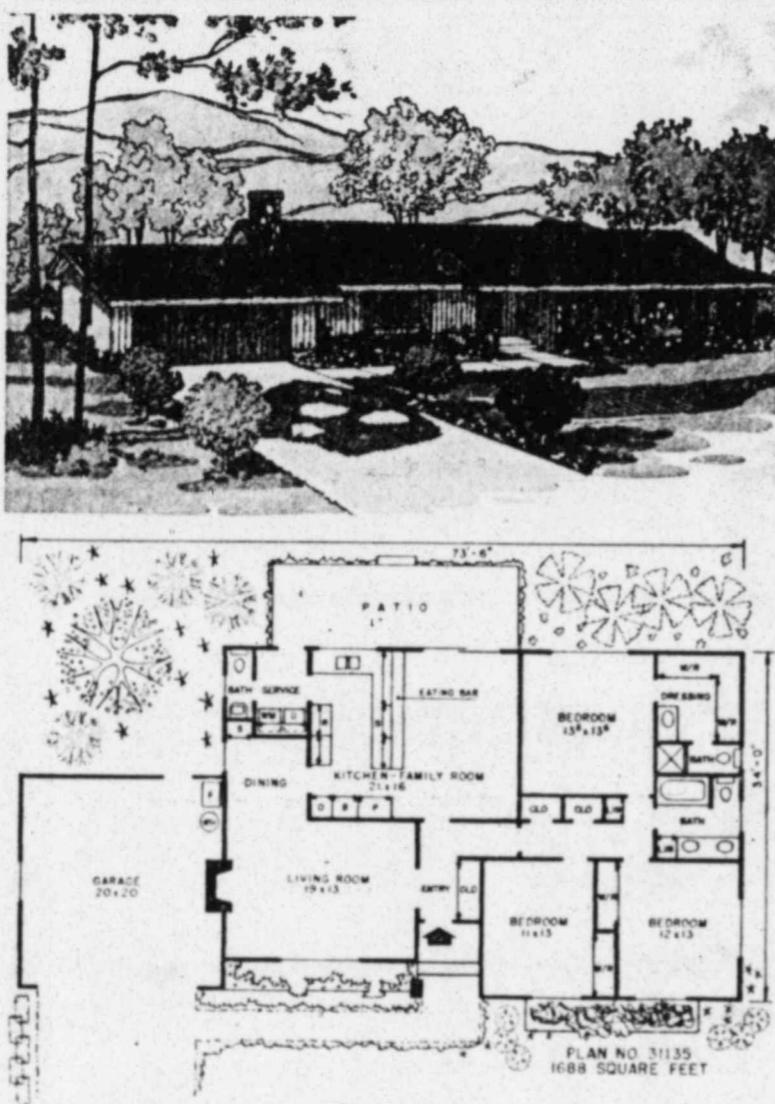

These provisions, mainly selective admissions and efficiency of faculty, have helped to build a reputation for the college, according to Stem. "The strong demand from business and public sector institutions for the graduates of our business program creates an optimism among our student body which makes a fine contribution to the general 'up beat' atmosphere in the college."

Plan Meets High Standards, Within Reasonable Budget

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Today's home buyers are moving up to better designed homes which offer more living space including many of the latest building ideas. If you have given up hope of locating such a home that meets your high standards and still can be constructed within a reasonable budget, then carefully study this design.

The low, sleek lines of the attractive exterior are accented by vertical wood siding, stone veneer and planters. The wide eave overhang will shield the windows from both sun and rain. A low stone wall, with an ornamental iron railing, extends from the garage to the stone column supporting the roofed entry. The space between this wall and the front wall of the living room provide a perfect location for your favorite plants.

From the entry, a door leads to the large kitchen-family room. An eating bar plus additional cabinets separate the two areas. To facilitate indoor-outdoor living, sliding doors open from the family room and master bedroom to the patio. There is a generous amount of storage space in the kitchen to which is added the floor-to-ceiling storage closet in the dining ell and the wall storage cabinet above the laundry facilities in the service.

All bedrooms are of sufficient size to accommodate twin beds. Shoulder high windows have been specified in some rooms to provide more wall space for furniture arrangement. The master bedroom suite includes a private dressing room and bath. A family bath, with twin pullman and linen, is next to the master bedroom bath while a half bath is located off the service.

Complete working drawings for plan 31135 can be purchased for only $18.50 for the first set and $9 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until February 28, 1979. Please allow at least three weeks for delivery. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is available for $3. Also available are six home plan books illustrating in excess of 950 plans—a $9.75 value—for only $7.75 plus $1 for postage and handling. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, P.O. Box 404, Northridge, California 91328.

Service Awards Highlights

Of Featherlite Corp. Fete

A dinner honoring recipients of Featherlite Corp. Service Awards was held recently to recognize employees with two or more years of service with the company.

Recognition was also given to those employees with 10 or more years of service.

Among those specially honored from the Lubbock area were the following: Sisto Alvarez, two years; Norris Percival, five years; Leon Christensen, 15 years; and Lawrence Dial, 20 years.

Featherlite Corp. is a division of Justin Industries Inc., headquartered in Fort Worth. During 1979, Justin will observe its 100th anniversary as a business enterprise.

Among the company officials who attended the dinner were Jerry L. Brownlee, president of Justin Industries; John S. Justin Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of Justin Industries; and Byron Bradfute, vice president of Featherlite Corp.

Anguilla Gearing Up For Tourism Trade

THE VALLEY, Anguilla (UPI) — Anguilla, a Caribbean island of only 35 square miles and about 6,000 persons, has entered the international competition for the tourism business with the appointment of a full-time director of tourism.

She is Mrs. Stephanie Sawyer, formerly tourism director of the Seychelles Islands in the Indian Ocean.

Anguilla, which broke away from St. Kitts-Nevis more than 10 years ago and is being ruled as a separate British colony, wants to go for "quality, rather than quantity" she said, and has banned the construction of high-rise hotels.

Under the program, Joe Fry Electric will handle sales, service and all other distribution functions connected with the sub-metering equipment.

Primary market for the equipment will be apartment projects with master meters.

GRIGSBY'S Rag Doll, located in the Memphis Place Mall, will hold its grand opening on Thursday.

Manager of the Lubbock store is Carolyn Allison, formerly manager of Grigsby's Rag Doll in Wichita Falls. Miss Allison, a native of Muleshoe, is a graduate of Texas Tech University with a degree in fashion merchandising.

Mr. and Mrs. Cuin Grigsby Jr. of Abilene, owners of the seven-unit chain, opened their first store, Grigsby's Shoe Store, in Abilene in 1958. The first Rag Doll was opened in 1966. In 1967, the Rag Doll was enlarged to take in more than 5,000 square feet of space. The Odessa store was opened in August, 1972, followed by another in Midland in July, 1973, San Angelo in July, 1974, Big Spring in 1975, and Wichita Falls in 1977.

The stores feature clothes, shoes and accessories.

Nancy Teeters Back At 'Fed'

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nancy Teeters is going back to work at the Federal Reserve Board — even though she is not pregnant.

During her first stint at the board — for 11 years as a staff economist — her three children were born and, it seems to her now, looking back, that she was pregnant all the time.

"My old colleagues may not recognize me," she says.

The children are teen-agers now and this time she is going back as a governor — the first woman ever appointed to the nine-member board of governors in the agency's history.

She will fill the seat vacated by Arthur Burns when he resigned as chairman.

Truly hidebound is the Federal Reserve. When her first child was born, Mrs. Teeters dutifully resigned, as women did in those days.

But the board thought so much of her work that for the first time it created a part-time position, allowing her to work four hours a day.

The Federal Reserve controls the supply of money, trying to steer the economy between drying up and burning up. It also regulates the banking system.

Mrs. Teeters must win Senate confirmation, but that is expected to be a breeze. Congress is familiar with her work. She has served as chief economist of the Congressional Budget Office for four years.

She is 48 and has been a practicing economist in Washington for 21 years.

She was rafting down the Colorado River in the Grand Canyon on a Smithsonian group tour with her husband, Robert, assistant chief of policy for the Corps of Engineers, and their youngest child, John, 14, when President Carter announced the nomination.

The whole Teeters family is outdoorsy. They've camped out in remote places all over the country and swim, ice skate and bicycle at every opportunity. Last winter, they took up cross-country skiing. They also practice workplace democracy when the kids are home. One member of the family cooks, one sets the table, one washes the dishes and one takes out the garbage. Next day, all rotate jobs.

Mrs. Teeters is one of four women who hold important economics positions in Washington. Alice Rivlin is director of the Congressional Budget Office. Juanita Kreps is secretary of commerce and Courtney Slater is the Commerce Department's chief economist.

But even in economics, she says, women have felt the sting of discrimination. There are 1,800 professional women economists and a study a few years ago matched 600 of them against 600 men.

They were all alike in every category — education, experience, responsibilities — except one, salary. On average, women earned $5,000 a year less than their male counterparts.

Mrs. Teeters says the treatment of women is a drag on economic growth. The country would be richer if women were used to their full capacities, she says.

Economist Sam Cohen, her former boss at the old Bureau of the Budget, says he expects her to bring that kind of social consideration to her new job.

"I think she'll bring the board's attention to the ways its pronouncements affect human beings," he says.

Cohen is high on her skills.

By NORMAN M. DAVIS

In "The Age of Fable" Thomas Bulfinch wrote that the Roman god Mercury was Jupiter's messenger and "wore a winged cap and winged shoes."

When a new dime appeared in 1916 — showing a portrait wearing a winged cap — the name "Mercury dime" was automatic.

However, the 1916-45 shows someone else entirely.

Adolph A. Weinman drew a left-facing portrait of Miss Liberty. She appeared on every dime until the FDR type.

Liberty wears a liberty cap, which sometimes is called a Phrygian cap. This headdress dates back to ancient Greece. It was given to freed slaves to identify them as full citizens. It often is used as a symbol of freedom in coin art.

Weinman added something to the liberty cap: he made it a winged cap, to symbolize freedom of thought.

Above and to the right of the date is a monogram formed of the designer's initials.

This sometimes is mistaken for a mint mark.

Weinman's reverse design helped make the WHL dime a beautiful coin.

The main feature is a fasces, a vertical bundle of rods tied with bands, with an axe blade at the top. Twining gracefully around this is a bunch of olive. "E Pluribus Unum" is at lower right in small letters.

THE U.S. AND YOU

William Steif

IN THE 1950s San Francisco columnist Arthur Caylor devoted a couple of columns a year to advocating free mass transit.

Now the idea is beginning to reach reality, with help from Uncle Sam.

In Denver, folks are riding the bus downtown free, thanks to $3.4 million from the U.S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration. Starting in January, the same will be true in Trenton, N.J., which has $625,000 from UMTA. A smaller city, Amherst, Mass., started it a couple of years ago with UMTA money.

Many other transit systems offer some fare-free service, and usually UMTA picks up part of the cost. Example: bus travel is free in the business districts of Birmingham, Ala., Dayton, Ohio, Fort Worth, Texas, Norfolk, Va., Manchester, N.H. and Rochester, N.Y.

Portland, Ore., Commerce, Calif., East Chicago, Ind., and Independence, Mo., run entirely free bus systems.

Art Caylor, dead nearly 15 years, would be gratified.

Transit systems in the post-World War II United States were supposed to pay their own way. With the exception of a few large cities they were privately operated. They had to make a profit.

CAYLOR DIDN'T SEE IT that way. He thought mass transit — subway, bus or streetcar — was a public service like police or fire departments. He thought it was the job of local, state and federal governments to support that service with taxpayers' money.

Paul A. Dierks, a University of Texas professor, outlines some of the facts in the current "Transit Journal," a quarterly published by the American Public Transit Association.

"Up to the past decade," he says, "the urban mass transit industry had been a profitable, private enterprise operation. Fare-box revenues were sufficient to cover not only the cost of operations but also capital improvement funds and return on the owners' investment."

All that has changed because of wage increases and inflation, rapidly rising operating costs, decreased ridership and revenues, cuts in service.

Result: many — indeed, most — transit systems have been bought by local or regional governments. New transit agencies consolidated existing systems of metropolitan areas into single, coordinated regional systems that usually were given taxing power to supplement fare revenues.

City, state and federal officials now see mass transit as a public utility.

Deficits continue to increase. APTA says the combined loss of the nation's transit systems was $411 million in 1971; by 1975 it was $1.7 billion and rising.

The free-fare experiments are the tip of the iceberg. UMTA has nearly $3.2 billion a year to subsidize bus systems and the big capital needed for rail transit. It already has committed $800 million for Atlanta's subway, Baltimore's subway, $575 million for Miami's elevated rapid transit. Smaller amounts are spread among hundreds of bus systems for capital investment, operating subsidies or both.

THE URBAN INSTITUTE last year surveyed 43 public bus systems that are fare-free or run with cut-rate fares. All are using the low or no-fare device to increase mobility of area residents, cut air pollution, reduce business district crowding, stimulate retail trade and increase ridership by reducing auto use. All are running bigger and bigger deficits.

Typical is the bus system that public officials put together in Akron, Barber-ton and Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, after the private system folded in 1969. Its figures:

— In 1970 the system had 1.5 million riders, $1,059,609 in fare-box revenues and operating expenses just over $1.2 million.

— By 1975 riders had increased to nearly 3.5 million, fare-box revenues had dropped to $946,955 and operating expenses were more than $2.5 million.

That's fairly standard, nationwide. Fare-box revenues now account for only a third of expenses.

Do-It-Yourself 'Kits' Available

By MIKE WENDLAND

Old-time operators will tell you that one of the biggest differences between what is heard on the bands these days and what used to be the rule is the absence of the term "home brew."

It used to be, not too very long ago, that if you wanted to operate, you either built it yourself or were out of luck.

Not so today, when everything from transmitters to antennas comes fully assembled and commercially made for quite reasonable prices. I'd guess that the majority of hams — and all CBers — have never made a piece of radio gear themselves. It's simply easier to buy than build. And CBers are prohibited from building their own transmitting rigs.

But that's not to say that it can't be done. Indeed, one major company is thriving on the do-it-yourself market.

Hams are long familiar with the Heath Company of Benton Harbor, Mich. In the old days, almost every other station on the air was of Heath Equipment. Today, after a hiatus of several years, the hams are rediscovering the satisfaction of building their own gear.

And CBers, while limited by their license from getting involved in major projects that, when completed, are capable of putting a signal on the band, can also join in.

The firm, unknown to most CBers, offers a virtual treasure house of electronic goodies, all in kit form and all at substantial savings over the price of fully-assembled gear.

Looking around my ham/CB shack, I see the Heath name quite prominent among my gear. There's a Heath power meter I built, a Heath electronic keyer and, in my most ambitious project today, a Heath amplifier.

When I got the gear, it came in a box that gave me pause. The sight of dozens of loose resistors, capacitors and other little do-dads made me wonder just why I ever thought I would be able to "home brew" a piece of gear.

My worry was in vain. For the Heath kits come with detailed, easy-to-read instructions. Best yet, they have a staff of technicians on duty who field telephone calls from confused customers. There's a guy there named Ed Mosier who I've called a half-dozen times over the years. Ed's job is to tell inexperienced kit-builders where they went wrong. In my case, he's never been stumped yet.

For CBers, building a kit is a fun way to learn electronics theory. Power meters, phone patches, receivers and even such things as stereos and computers are all offered in kit form by the company and legal for CBers to build.

The amplifier I built cost under $400. It took me seven nights to assemble it. If I were to buy a comparable unit already assembled, I would have had to pay more than twice that. And the satisfaction I get each time I turn it on and watch the meters light up wouldn't ever have come with the fully-assembled unit.

The company prints a catalogue that is free for the asking. Write the Heath Company, Benton Harbor, Mich., 49022.

The Voice of Business

WASHINGTON—Come January 1, 1979, the minimum wage rate is scheduled to rise from $2.65 an hour to $2.90.

Within recent months, this planned increase has been called inflationary by the Secretary of the Treasury, the Director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and Arthur Okun, a noted liberal economist based at the Brookings Institute. They also warn of adverse effects on already high levels of youth unemployment.

Conservative economists have been saying the same thing for a long, long time.

And yet, Congress is very likely to let the increase take place.

It's easy to sympathize with the plight of the congressmen. If they tamper with the minimum wage, they face a double whammy.

First, they will hear from a chorus of misguided do-gooders, who appear to believe that it is better for a teenager to be involuntarily unemployed at $2.90 than voluntarily employed at some thing less.

And second, they will hear—much more forcefully—from the lobbying legions of organized labor, who have their own selfish reasons for hiding behind an altruistic facade.

A short discourse on those reasons might be eye-opening for some readers. The following explanation was provided at the request of Senator Orrin Hatch, by Temple University economist Walter E. Williams:

First, we have to recognize, as economists do, that for many activities low skilled labor is a substitute for high skilled labor. For example, a person may be able to build a fence in a day using either one high skilled worker or three low skilled workers. The production technique chosen will depend on the alternative costs. Suppose the wage rate for a high skilled worker was $39.00 per day and that of low skilled worker was $13.00 per day. The firm would be indifferent between the techniques because it would cost $39.00 to produce the fence using either one high skilled worker or three low skilled workers. The high skilled worker could not improve his competitive position unless he could raise his productivity. However, he could, in the political arena, do what he cannot do in the free market.

High skilled workers could advocate a minimum wage law of, say, $20.00 per day. The justification, in order to win political support, would be moral such as those we have heard from labor organizations, e.g., "a living wage," "the prevention of worker exploitation," "prevention of poverty," and so forth. Once a minimum wage of $20.00 per day is legislated, the high skilled worker could now go on to the employer and demand up to $60.00 per day and retain his job. He could not have done this with success before the minimum wage; the employer would have just hired the three low skilled workers. In effect the minimum wage law is a collusion supported by government against low skilled workers.

"Interests that support the minimum wage law find that a necessary part of their strategy is to also support income maintenance programs. In other words, if the people who lost job opportunities were starving as a result and rioting, the union restrictive activity would be more visible and hence less politically acceptable. Therefore, those that restrict job markets also have inducement to support income maintenance and make-work projects such as AFDC, Food Stamps, Youth Corps, Summer Jobs, etc. These programs are 'crumbs' thrown out to keep people quiet and thereby creating a permanently dependent class in the society. This activity is subsidized by Americans at large who not only have to pay higher taxes to support all of these programs but also pay higher product prices as a result of the labor market restrictions."

"One of the tragedies of all this is that the union support for welfare programs gives the appearance to minorities and others that unions are on their side. This way they win the political support of those who they have disenfranchised."

Now you understand what's really behind the minimum wage fight. Shocking, isn't it?

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

All We Have To Save Is U.S.

SHORT OF WAR, seldom in recent times have the American people faced the frustrations and national problems which now confront the nation.

Ironically, those problems, be they of a nagging nature such as a faucet that won't be fixed, a critical variety such as the soaring cost of living or the energy challenge which gnaws at the Free World's future, all come in a period of relative plenty.

In brief, it is indeed a case of "the best of times and the worst of times."

THERE IS NO dearth of people and reasons at which one may point fingers and place blame for the present state of affairs.

And there is no paucity of solutions, from some which might work to those which are blatantly political and appeal only to the emotions.

It is difficult enough to face economic and other such challenges in an ordinary period. But, when such events must be considered in the light of a national political campaign, the picture becomes blurred indeed.

However, for whatever it is worth, the average citizen may be getting a better grasp on "what ails us" than those who seek to represent, if not serve, him.

THAT LAST observation is based on two developments of recent weeks.

As the nation's inflation rate continues unabated, and everyone from the President on down offers ways and means of doing something about it, the Average American finally may be zeroing in on the real problem.

In recent nationwide surveys, a large majority of those contacted gave unbridled federal spending as the main cause of inflation. It is the first such time this has happened.

What this means in voter attitudes, in party alignments and the politicians' reactions remains to be seen, of course. But, one of the basic and root causes of this nation's economic problems finally is hitting home.

FOR MORE THAN four decades now, the theme of a successful politician, meaning one who got elected, for the most part has been: "Promise them anything, and let them pay for it."

It has been a siren song that the electorate has bought, hook, line and growing national debt.

As a result, in four short decades, the American people have all but turned every facet of their lives over to an Uncle Sam

ART BUCHWALD:

We Can't Make It But Tanks, Anyway

WASHINGTON—My wife and I were watching the Evening News when Walter announced that President Carter had given the go-ahead to the Defense Department to start making the components for a neutron bomb.

Walter said that while the components would be manufactured, they would not be assembled at the present time.

My wife, whose only weakness is she doesn't keep up on sophisticated nuclear weaponry, turned to me and said:

"What's a neutron weapon?"

"It is designed to kill people without destroying property. We call it an enhanced radiation weapon," I told her.

"WHO'S WE?"

"Those of us in the military-industrial complex."

Are you in the military-industrial complex?" she wanted to know.

"No, but some of my best friends are. It's one helluva piece of hardware. With the right warhead you can zap a battalion of Soviet tanks 80 miles away," I said.

"Why do we need it?" she wanted to know.

"That's the most stupid question I ever heard. We need every type of nuclear weapon we can get. We've got hydrogen bombs and atomic warheads, and Nike and Polaris missiles."

"But they're too powerful to use in the field. The neutron weapon fills the gap and lowers the kill threshold to just the right level to fight a civilized war."

"DO THE RUSSIANS have it?" she asked.

"They certainly do not. All they have are monster weapons that can destroy entire cities. They're in a lot of trouble."

"I guess I should know this," she said, "but if the Soviets don't have a neutron weapon and we do, how do we prevent them from using their monster weapons after we use our small ones on them?"

Timely Quotes...

"Dad, what is the middle class?" Bobby asked. The father explained: "The middle class consists of people who are not poor enough to accept charity and not rich enough to donate anything."

Television is a marvelous educational tool for today's kids. No generation ever grew up knowing more about underarm deodorants.

There's a new kind of wine called Post Office Red. You mail five pounds of grapes in a container and mark it "FRAGILE."

"Because if they use their monster ones they know we'll use ours, and then we'll destroy each other," I said patiently.

"But if we use the neutron weapon against their armies in the field, won't we be destroying them? They're certainly not going to stand by and see all their men and tanks destroyed without retaliating with everything they've got."

"They don't have the know-how to make a neutron bomb or they would have before now."

"That's what you said about the atomic bomb after World War II."

"Can you keep a secret?" I asked her.

"You know I can."

"CARTER REALLY doesn't care if we have a neutron bomb or not. But he wants a SALT treaty very badly. Even if the Soviets agree to one, he'll have a hard time getting the Senate to approve it."

"So by announcing he was going ahead with the neutron bomb, he'll win over the senators who are against SALT."

"Then," she said, "Carter's not going ahead with the neutron weapon to impress the Soviets, but to placate the U.S. Senate."

"Now you're catching on," I said.

"I think I'll watch The Gong Show."

"How can you watch The Gong Show at a time like this?" I asked.

"Because it makes a lot more sense than building a neutron bomb."

'The Issues Remaining Are Substantive'

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Wife Is An Asset

NOT TO BE too morbid about it, fellas, it's time you faced up to the fact that the biggest bar-gain in your household budget is the "little woman."

Alive, she works cheap. Let something happen and it could cost you almost $20,000 a year to replace her around the house.

And that's not counting carfare. Or overtime.

This happy thought isn't, as you might be tempted to suspect, inspired by the lady lib movement. What brings it up is the recent $375,000 a jury awarded a man whose wife died in an airplane crash. They found it "just compensation for services lost."

That's not counting the emotional loss to the husband and his small children; it's strictly a dollars-and-cents estimate of what he will have to pay somebody to take over her job until the kids grow up. (Or until he finds a new bride to do it for free.)

FIGURING OUT WHAT a housewife is actually worth—in terms of so much per hour, per task—isn't new. It's been a hot topic over kitchen kafuffles ever since Eve had to dump the trash (well, one apple core, anyway).

But lately, with labor costs going through the roof, it's beginning to dawn on some husbands that Mama is a valuable capital asset. So valuable, in fact, that they're beginning to do something about it.

Life insurance policies on housewives and mothers are selling a lot faster than they used to.

A statistician-type sat down a while back and added up the going rate for all those jobs a typical wife and mother does: 14 hours a day, seven days a week, and for which she gets $600.00 an hour. It comes to at least $355 a week, and that's the rock-bottom minimum.

IF A BEREAVED householder had to replace her suddenly, here's how his weekly payroll might break down:

A housekeeper would cost him $4 an hour, or $70 a week; a nursemaid for the kids, $2.65 an hour, or $118; and a cook, $4 an hour, or $55 a week.

Those are the biggies. But that's only the beginning.

On an irregular-hour basis, his weekly outlay for a dishwasher would be $24, laundress $22, food shopper $18 and chauffeur $75 (all those car pools, you know).

Servantless duties add up to around $10. gardener $12, handyman $7, dietician $12, practical nurse $15 and vet another $15. Not to mention the hours spent on child psychology (or refereeing, if you prefer) which, if figured at $50 an hour, could break a widower in a week.

THAT'S IF HE hires out all this household help piecemeal, which is the hard way to do it. Hanging on the phone to the employment agency would take up most of his day.

Full-time household help, when you can get it, comes higher. A lot higher. And you have to throw in a private room and color TV. Also, the household bills go up, since live-in housekeepers don't have the dedication for hunting down bargains as wives do.

The hard fact is the death of a wife and mother can shatter not only the emotional well-being of a family, it can also threaten its financial underpinnings.

Especially if the children are in school and Mom had a part-time job to help out with extras like vacations, music lessons and braces for the kids' teeth.

That money goes when she does, and there's the additional culture shock of a reduced standard of living.

LATER, WHEN THE grieving widower feels the need of female companionship, he makes another discovery. That's when he finds out that not all women consider a trip to McDonald's a satisfactory way to spend a glamorous evening.

Mom may have settled for that (anything to get out of the kitchen), but a proper date calls for more formal dining and dancing, and maybe even a show or dancing, which ups the tab considerably.

What it boils down to is a couple of choices: Old Dad can either shell out in advance for a hefty policy on the mother of his children or he can, starting right now, be extra nice to his in-laws, just in case.

Grandmothers work cheap, too.

...Pass It On

SOMETIMES BACK, the U.S. Army tested 850 new recruits at Fort Knox, Ky. Of these, 299 had never heard of Louisville, the state's capital, only 21 miles north of Fort Knox.

Another 85 said they'd never seen a dentist. And 21 said they'd never tasted cow's milk. But only one of those 650 had never heard of Coca-Cola.

One species of oyster along the Pacific Coast lays as many as 10 billion eggs a year. What if they all hatched? And what if those little oysters grew up? Tell you, within five generations they'd equal the mass of eight earths.

Here's to Boston's George F. Grant—clink!—who on Dec. 12, 1899, took out Patent No. 638,920 on his miraculous invention, the golf tee.

DEBT Benefits Developmentally Slow Children

WHY IS OUR 18-month-old not walking? Why does our baby not seem to recognize our voices? Why does our 2-year-old neither notice nor play with his toys? These and other questions often terrify parents if they begin noticing developmental problems in their child.

Who can the parents turn to? Where can they seek assistance for themselves and their child?

Luckily, Lubbock offers a variety of programs through which parents can find the guidance, support and information they seek.

Developmental Education Birth Through Two (DEBT) is one such program.

DEBT, which was established in 1974 and originally funded by the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped, is now locally funded by the Lubbock Independent School System.

What is DEBT? According to Mrs. Galey, coordinator of the program, DEBT, was developed from locally expressed needs of handicapped children.

DEBT is a special education program aimed toward cultivating and nurturing 'special' babies from the beginning. It is also a home training program designed to add to parental skills in teaching children within the home.

The program, which is designed to serve children from newborns to those whose third birthday falls after Sept. 1 of the school year, strives to provide early identification and intervention of all children suspected of a developmental problem," said Mrs. Galey.

"A lot of children born with special problems can be helped with teaching at an early age," she continued. Such disabilities include speech or language defects, physical disabilities, hearing impairments, mental retardation, visual impairment, emotional disturbances, developmental delay and other conditions that may be viewed as high risk to the child.

"MOST OF OUR cases are referred to us from a doctor, minister or community service; however, parents must give consent for program participation," said Mrs. Galey.

"We send an intake interviewer to the home where we evaluate the development of the child. This evaluation includes an informal observation in the home, the collection of case history data and an assessment of developmental levels," said Mrs. Galey. The developmental assessment is gauged on what is normally expected from a child at a particular stage of growth. A medical assessment is also obtained from the child's physician or the DEBT pediatric consultant.

If the child needs the DEBT services, the parents are informed of what the program offers. "We try to help the family get a complete picture of the child and determine where to begin work," said Mrs. Galey.

DEBT focuses on augmenting parental skills. "The teacher trains the parent but the parents are the key teachers," Mrs. Galey emphasized.

The assigned teacher makes a weekly visit to the home and works with the parents and child. For example, if the child has a spastic condition, the teacher shows the parents the importance of positioning. Physical management can help reduce the problem which makes the baby unhappy, uncomfortable and unable to learn. This also enables the mother to work with and enjoy the baby instead of feeling frustrated and rejected.

"No matter what the problem, in spite of all we do, we are concerned about how the parents and child feel about each other," said Mrs. Galey.

THE TEACHERS KEEP a record of weekly objectives including activities and materials designed to accomplish the desired goals.

"Most of our teachers are special education or child development teachers. We try to match the teacher, child and parents," she said.

The teachers also receive additional training as special consultants and outstanding professionals are brought in for seminars. "A concentrated effort is made to keep our staff's knowledge up to date with the latest educational techniques and approaches. We always keep wondering if there's something more we can do," explained Mrs. Galey.

"It takes a special sparkle to be an infant teacher," said Mrs. Galey. "They must know how to work with parents and provide special training for the child."

Parents can become as involved in the DEBT program as they choose. In addition to the home training sessions, the DEBT program offers developmental management workshops.

These sessions, held from 4-9 p.m. Monday, are open to parents of children who need special training in physical management. This includes pre-speech and feeding skills and how to hold and change their baby. The training is done by a licensed physical therapist who is also trained in neuro-developmental techniques.

Other activities include a sewing workshop for mothers and a child's play group.

The child's play group, which is held Tuesdays and Fridays at the First Presbyterian Church, is provided for children who need group interaction. The groups, which are overseen by Junior League volunteers, parents, Texas Tech University students and DEBT staff members, provide an atmosphere of learning through play.

TUESDAYS ARE DESIGNED as Mother's Day Out. "Some of these mothers have never been away from their child," said Mrs. Galey. "This gives them the opportunity to go shopping or have coffee with a friend."

Fridays are play group days with parental participation. These groups help parents find appropriate ways to play and relate to the child. These sessions also give the parents an opportunity to talk about the problems of dealing with a handicapped child or even personal matters.

Another aspect of the DEBT program is a segment called DEBT Diaper Dudes. This is a water and gym program held at the YMCA each Thursday.

Teachers assist the parents as they work and play with their child.

According to Mrs. Galey, it is the goal of this program for parents and their children to capitalize on their enjoyment of each other — to laugh, play together and share together.

Each exercise is broken into korras or learning centers to augment self-expression and self-teaching.

For example, the block korral is used to sharpen skills in eye-hand coordination, balance, visual perception and arm coordination.

The mirror korral works on control of facial muscles and imitation of sounds and words.

In the water-hold korral, the mothers get into the pool with their child and work with them on body movements, attention span, relaxation and increasing language and vocabulary skills.

Each part of this program is designed to increase the growth and development of the child. Even when dressing before going to and from the pool, the touch of a towel provides the child's body with tactile experiences.

WELL CHILDREN ALSO participate," said Mrs. Galey. "It is deeply embedded in DEBT philosophy that special children need every opportunity to be part of the mainstream of life. Well, healthy, normally developing children are often among our babies' best teachers or models. Therefore, in addition to individualized programs for each child enrolled in the project, there are group activities which encourage the participation of siblings, relatives and friends."

The DEBT project also provides a coordination of services. "The teachers will go with the parents to various community services if they need help," said Mrs. Galey. "There, they can help the parents fill out the proper forms and receive the necessary services." If need be, the program also provides transportation to all planned DEBT activities or medical facilities.

An educational toy and book lending library is also incorporated into the DEBT services.

Periodic follow-up contact for all DEBT children in the Early Childhood program is yet another service which the program offers. The Early Childhood program is offered through Bean, Ballinger, Stubbs and Guadalupe Elementary Schools and is a continuation of special instruction.

"We keep changing the program, looking for new ways and methods," said Mrs. Galey.

In an effort to reach as many handicapped children as possible, DEBT also provides an outreach program for children outside Lubbock.

According to Diane Garner, DEBT Outreach Training Staff (DOTS) coordinator, the outreach program sets up replication sites in various communities.

DOTS STAFF MEMBERS train volunteers in such communities as Post, Lamesa, Crosbyton, Floydada, Perterburg and Lockney.

These hometown-based teachers, who receive the same special training as DEBT teachers, enable the program to reach children outside the Lubbock area.

"DOTS was created in order to keep any handicapped child from waiting for much needed early training," said Miss Garner.

In reference to her own program, Mrs. Galey feels "much praise should be given to the Lubbock Public School District for having such fine educational services for handicapped children."

Mrs. Galey is also the president of the Teaching Texas Tots (TTT). According to Mrs. Galey the goal of this organization is to increase awareness of the importance of infant intervention programs for the handicapped, to provide an overview of the current state of infant programs, (for example, models, research results, legislation, trends) and to develop future directions for programs for handicapped infants.

The Tri-T Consortium is composed of infant projects that cooperate to demonstrate the effectiveness of such programs which are changing the lives of the parents and children involved.

Other local programs include Family Link I and II which will be discussed in the Monday Family News Section.

TRAINING SESSIONS — DEBT and DOTS teachers receive the latest teaching techniques and approaches to teaching developmentally slow children. Attending an outreach and staff development training session are from left, Glenda Bertram,

Church Observing Two Memorable Events Today

THE HAZEL FAMILY: Giving Gospel Concert Today

Gospel Music Concert Set

The Hazel Family of Lubbock is presenting a concert of gospel music at 7 p.m. today in Oakwood Baptist Church, 60th Street and Avenue U.

The Lubbock family began singing together in 1971. Since that time, they have averaged 30 to 50 programs a year. The group consists of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hazel, their four children, Donna, Wayland, Barry, Carolyn, and Wayland's fiancee, Elaine Hines of Midland.

Most of their concerts have been centered around the West Texas and New Mexico area, but they have made tours on the West Coast, to Colorado, and the Memphis-Nashville, Tenn., area. The group has recorded three albums and the most recent, recorded this summer, is entitled "Love Beyond Compare."

Women's Ministries Department Of First Assembly Of God Sponsoring Bazaar

The Women's Ministries Department of First Assembly of God is sponsoring a bazaar Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily at the First Assembly Annex, 34th Street and Avenue S.

The Women's Ministries Program supports home and foreign missionaries, providing them with food, clothing, literature, household items, appliances and numerous other necessities.

The bazaar will feature everything from homemade foods and home canned foods to Christmas decorations and handmade gift items. Booths will include the Country Kitchen, Kiddie Korner, Golden Thimble, etc.

Activities also are planned for Saturday

Positive Thinking

By Norman Vincent Peale

A BASEBALL MANAGER once told me about a young pitcher he bought some years ago. He paid $100,000 for the presumed prodigy, and that was back when $100,000 was worth a lot more than it is today. The newspapers were filled with the story and carried pictures of the boy's pitching arm captioned, "The $100,000 arm."

Well, this youngster read the newspapers and became more impressed than anyone else with his $100,000 arm. He began to avoid going out for practice and when he did he would toss the ball lightly. They couldn't make him pitch hard. "No, sir," he would say, "I'm going to throw this arm away. I'm going to save it. It's a $100,000 arm."

A year later he was quietly dropped. No one knows where he is now — or his $100,000 arm either. He saved his arm and in saving it he lost it and with it a promising career.

Fortunately for the game, there are other men in baseball still pitching, still giving fully of a great arm. These men have kept what they had by giving it away. Give it and you'll develop it.

EACH PERSON HAS been given certain gifts, certain abilities, by God the Creator. Use those gifts to the maximum; give yourself fully and you will more than compensate for whatever deficiencies you may have. To achieve outstandingly, you have to give. Those who hold out, lose out. And the best thing you have to give is yourself. Give of yourself and you'll find yourself.

I was traveling in an airplane one time and found myself comparing the two stewardesses. One, the first I noticed, was one of the prettiest girls I have ever seen. The other was plainer and she suffered by contrast. But we had not been flying very long before a greater difference became apparent.

The super-pretty girl was polite and efficient, but in a cold and formal sort of way. Her smile seemed automatic. The plainer girl radiated good will and a happy spirit. She was charming. She made each passenger feel she was rolling out the red carpet especially for him, and everyone felt she genuinely meant it. She made a point of sitting down and talking with as many people as she had time. And, when she sat down next to me, she asked in an interested way what I was doing. I looked up from the papers on my lap and told her I was answering letters from unhappy and disappointed people who had written to me. She shook her head and said, "What's the matter with those people? The answer is so simple?" I asked.

"What do you mean, it's simple?" I asked.

"THE ANSWER YOU can give them is just as simple as this," she said. "Just tell them to forget themselves and to start giving." And then she told me something about herself and about her problem of being plain and not pretty. "But I just decided to forget myself and give all that I had to the job of helping people. And I'm having a lot of fun doing it." She went on to tell of the satisfaction and fun she had achieved by giving more of herself than her job demanded.

We talked for a while and, when I left that plane, the stewardess I remembered was not the one with the extraordinarily pretty face, but the less favored one who decided to give what she did have and, lo and behold! she became a most attractive personality.

"Forget yourself and start giving." There are few better formulas for success and happiness. And, when you give yourself, which is your greatest gift, you will surely get the results in life.

Westminster Presbyterian Church, 3321 33rd St., is observing two events today in special services, the pay-off of the church building and the commemoration of the church's 30th birthday.

A supper is being served in the church fellowship hall and basement at 6 p.m. today, followed by a program in the church sanctuary.

A prayer of thanksgiving is being offered by Paul Young, General Presbyter of the Palo Duro Union Presbytery, during the special program. Bill Carpenter, Moderator of the Palo Duro Union Presbytery, is issuing a challenge to the congregation during the program, and Bill Chapman of University Ministries at Texas Tech University is giving the benediction for the program.

Keynote speaker for the program this evening is Dr. Robert Young, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of El Paso.

Westminster Presbyterian Church was formally organized by the Presbytery of El Paso on Feb. 16, 1948, with 84 members on the charter roll. Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Hester donated land for the church at the corner of 33rd Street and then Tyler Avenue, now called Indiana Avenue.

In the summer of 1948, the church was served by a student pastor, Merrill Proudfit and the congregation met for worship in the Plaza Theater, located in the 2600-block of 26th Street in the Green Acres Shopping Center.

Rev. David L. Zacharias, the first ordained pastor, served from September, 1948, to September, 1961. He turned the first shovel of dirt in the groundbreaking for Westminster's original structure on Nov. 22, 1948. A goal of $25,000 was set—and reached—during the first Every Member Canvass that month.

A member of the church, E.Y. Gibbs, was contractor for the stucco building which served as the sanctuary until the church fellowship hall was built.

The first service in the new building was held May 29, 1949. Originally a nursery was held in the church manse, located on the church lot. By April, 1950, membership had grown to 301 members and a two-room portable building was moved onto the church lot to serve as a nursery.

In October, 1950, George Dupre offered to pay for materials for additional portable buildings if the church would do the work. The church office was housed in a little white building of its own.

Indebtedness on the stucco structure was paid in full in January, 1951. In October, 1951, plans were approved at a congregational meeting for the permanent structure, now completed and paid for. Groundbreaking for the first unit, comprising the fellowship hall, kitchen, parlor and three upstairs classrooms, was held June 15, 1952. On February 8, 1953, fellowship hall was used for its first service.

Following a capital funds campaign in 1955, the educational unit was begun with completion in May, 1958. Dedication of the sanctuary April 9, 1967, marked the completion of physical facilities at Westminster Presbyterian Church and the property is now valued at $1,500,000.

The new sanctuary was the site of an historical occasion for Presbyterianism in the Southwest. The church became part of a Union Presbytery January, 1967, and a member of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., and the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

Pastors who have served the church, in addition to Rev. Zacharias, are Rev. E.L. Strickland, assistant, March 1, 1959, to Jan. 1, 1961; Rev. William S. Smith, February, 1962, to August, 1969; Rev. Grantland M. Groves, associate, January, 1963, to December, 1968; Rev. David C. Duncan, associate, January, 1971, to September, 1975; Rev. John Roper, associate, August, 1976, to August, 1978; and current pastor, Rev. Sam B. Laine, who was in the pulpit for the first time Feb. 15, 1970.

The membership of Westminster Presbyterian Church currently stands at more than 900 members.

Convocation Being Held At Tech

The second annual Reformation Convocation, sponsored by the Lutheran Campus Ministry at Texas Tech University in cooperation with the Lutheran churches in Lubbock and the Texas Tech Department of Music, is being held at 4 p.m. today in the Texas Tech Recital Hall on the Texas Tech campus.

Participants in the convocation include Dr. Judson Maynard, professor and chairman of the organ division, department of music, Texas Tech; the choirs of the Lutheran churches in Lubbock and the children's choirs of the Lutheran churches in Lubbock, Mrs. Arthur A. Preisinger, director; Texas Tech University Choir, Gene Kenney, director; and the trombone ensemble of Texas Tech, directed by Jon Bohis.

The event begins with pre-program music by the 20-piece trombone ensemble of Texas Tech.

The program is concentrating on hymns that relate to the Christian Church Year. Hymns that relate to Advent, Christmas, Epiphany, Lent, Easter, Pentecost and Trinity are being sung by the choirs and the audience during the program.

Four special chorales are being sung during the program.

The Texas Tech University Choir is singing, as the climax of the convocation, H.S. Bach's Easter cantata, "Christ Lay in Death's Dark Prison."

Marriage Communication Lab Scheduled At Retreat

A Marriage Communication Lab is scheduled Friday-Nov. 5 at Mulberry Canyon Retreat Center, under the direction of Gene and Imogene Sorley.

The area-wide lab is modeled after another held last fall by the Sorleys at Ceta Canyon.

Describing the lab, Sorley said, "We'll have 18 hours of session time—working with communication, conflict resolution, male/female roles, values, sex, self-esteem, awareness, goal setting, etc., and approximately half of the total time will be in dialogue groups where couples can practice what they have learned by actually dialoguing with their spouse and working on issues or problems they have in their relationship.

"The Marriage Communication Lab is to make working marriages better. It is more enrichment than problem solving (though problems will be solved). It is working on the present with an eye to preventing problems in the future. It is making your marriage a grace-full relationship," he concluded. The Mulberry Canyon Retreat Center is located near Sweetwater.

Registration deadline is Monday and further information may be obtained by calling Sorley at 792-4795.

Church-state guidelines and a $31 million missions budget are to be considered during the 93rd annual session of the Baptist General Convention of Texas Tuesday-Thursday in Austin.

Approximately 6,000 laymen and ministers are expected to attend the meetings at the Austin Municipal Auditorium and Convention Center. The convention sermon will be presented by Rev. Jimmy R. Allen, president of the Southern Baptist Convention and pastor of the First Baptist Church of San Antonio.

The convention theme, "With All Boldness," relates to the Southern Baptist plan to present the gospel to every person in the world by the year 2000.

A Church-State Study Committee is recommending updated guidelines on church-state relations for Texas Baptist institutions. One recommendation is that the Texas Baptist convention declare opposition to government restrictions "that adversely affect the ability of the institutions to fulfill their distinctive purposes as Christian institutions."

Messengers from many of the 4,300 Texas Baptist churches and missions are voting on a proposed $31 million Cooperative Program budget for 1979. The budget includes $10.9 million for home and foreign missions and Christian education; and $20 million for Texas Baptist missions and church growth, colleges and universities, hospitals, children's homes and other ministries.

Convention speakers in Austin include

Mini Gospel Meet Slated By Church

Sunset Church of Christ has scheduled a mini gospel meeting today through Wednesday with James W. Watkins Jr. as evangelist.

Watkins is minister of the East Ridge, Tenn., Church of Christ, where he has been 12 years. He began his fulltime ministry in the 1940's at Verly, Ga. From there he went to Chattanooga, Tenn., and Nashville, Tenn., in his ministry.

He also is a charter member of the "Know Your Bible" telecast, originating in Chattanooga, now in its 21st year of broadcasting.

Some 17 million future citizens were processed through Ellis Island from 1892 to 1954. One million came through in 1912, the peak year:

Tax Laws Need To Be Changed To Offset Adverse Effects Of Inflation In U.S.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth in a series of 15 articles exploring "Taxation: Myths and Realities." In this article, Martin Feldstein, director of the National Bureau of Economic Research, discusses the inequities that result from inflation and suggests how they can be eliminated. This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.)

By MARTIN FELDSTEIN

OUR INCOME TAX laws were written for an economy with little or no inflation. Yet from 1972 to 1977 consumer prices rose by 46 percent, and this year they will probably rise at least 6 percent.

Unless the tax laws are revised, the rates of inflation that are likely in the future will continue to cause capricious and undesirable changes in effective tax rates. Now is the time to adjust the tax laws to offset the adverse effects of inflation.

Inflation severely distorts the effects of the income tax. Almost everybody's tax burden is raised automatically by inflation. But some increases are much greater than others, depending on the size and source of income and the number and nature of deductions and exemptions.

For example, cost-of-living increases in wages push many taxpayers into higher brackets. Those with a large number of dependents, however, are harder hit than others because the value of their standard exemptions declines with the value of the dollar.

Inflation has its biggest effect on the way that income from savings is taxed. As explained below, under existing laws inflation can raise the tax on income from savings to an effective tax rate that exceeds 100 percent!

To understand what reforms are needed, we must first understand how inflation affects individual taxes under current law.

IN AN ECONOMY with no inflation, the general level of consumer prices remains constant. Because of the gradual introduction of new technology, wages and salaries would rise gradually.

Inflation means that the overall level of consumer prices increases from year to year. Such inflationary price increases are generally matched by increases in wages and salaries. Roughly speaking, if prices rise by 6 percent a year, wages will rise by 6 percent plus the increase that would have occurred without inflation.

In the 20 years before the current recession began in 1974, earnings or "nominal" money wages rose at an average rate of 4.2 percent a year. But, during the same period, consumer prices rose at 2.6 percent a year.

Thus, after subtracting inflation, "real" wages — what wages were worth in terms of their purchasing power — rose at only 1.6 percent a year.

Inflation causes a problem for our progressive tax system — in which the rate of taxation increases with the amount of income — because increases in nominal wages artificially push taxpayers into higher tax brackets. Taxpayers therefore can find that their real tax liabilities — the amount of taxes owed after adjusting for inflation — are increased even though their real incomes are unchanged.

For example, under current tax rules a family earning $10,000 would pay approximately $790 in income taxes. If consumer prices rose by 46 percent — the actual increase that occurred between 1972 and 1977 — that same family would have to earn $14,600 to maintain the same real income before taxes. If their taxes rose at the same rate as prices and their nominal income — 46 percent — they would pay approximately $1,153 in taxes, and their real income, or purchasing power would remain unchanged.

HOWEVER, THE INCREASE in their nominal wages would push them into a higher tax bracket. As a result, they would owe almost $1,700 in taxes — a tax increase of about 116 percent.

Thus, although their real income before taxes would be the same after the price increase, their real taxes would have risen by 48 percent.

This same problem is continuing now. Because of the artificial effect of inflation with our progressive tax structure, the current 6 percent inflation means taxes will take away half of the real wage gain of a typical worker.

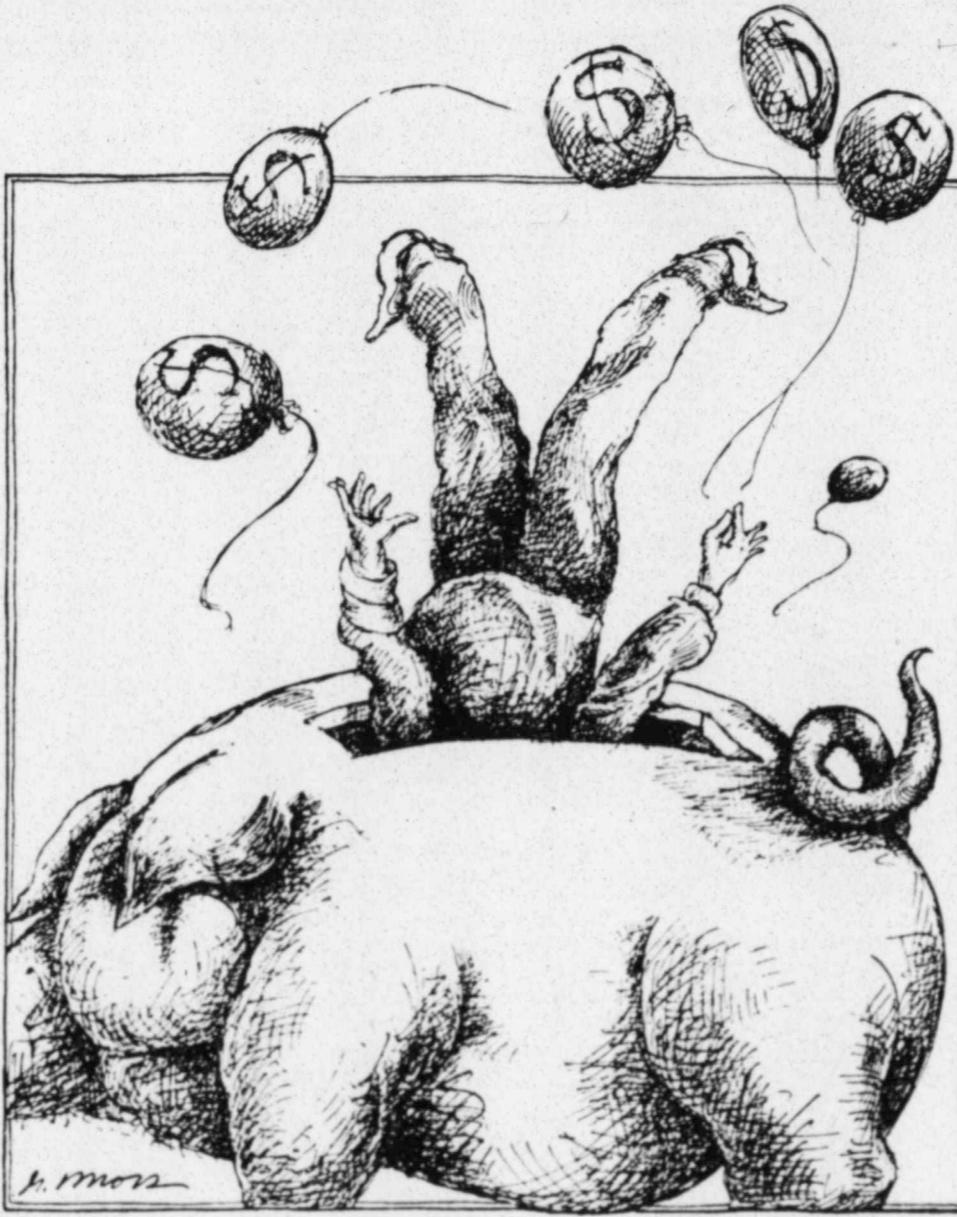

If an employee gets the 1.6 percent real wage gain typical of the postwar period plus the 6 percent general inflation rate, his money wage will rise this year by 7.6 percent, thus putting him in a higher tax bracket. If his current income is $13,000, this raises taxes by 13 percent. The taxpayer's increase in real spendable income is less than 1 percent, even though his pretax real income rose by 1.6 percent.

By thus taking away a large share of wage increases, tax rules increase the pressure for even greater inflationary wage increases.

This "bracket rate" problem can be easily and completely remedied by changing the tax law so that all of the relevant dollar amounts — including the standard deduction, personal exemptions and bracket limits — change automatically with the price level.

Canada has already gone most of the way to achieve this reform. The United States should move rapidly to do the same.

THE PROBLEM CAUSED by inflation with our current tax rules is even worse for income from savings.

It is useful to look back to a time when prices were relatively stable. In the early 1960s, consumer prices rose at about 1 percent a year. At that time, banks typically paid an interest rate of about 3 percent. An individual with $2,000 in the bank would receive $60 in interest. If he were in the 25 percent tax bracket, he would pay $15 of tax on this interest. At the end of the year, his $2,000 would thus be worth $1,985.

Of course, the 1 percent increase in price level meant he needed $2,020 at the end of the year to buy the same goods and services that cost $2,000 at the beginning of the year. His real after tax gain for the year was therefore $25 — little more than 1 percent of his $2,000.

Historically, inflation has caused interest rates to rise. Today savings banks pay interest rates of up to 7 percent, especially for longer-term deposits. But with prices rising at 6 percent a year, the interest payment provides little real return to the saver.

A 7 percent interest rate yields $140 on a deposit of $2,000. But $2,120 is required to buy the same goods and services at the end of the year. The "real" interest income is therefore only $20. Our current law, however, takes the full "nominal" interest income of $140.

If the depositor is in the 25 percent tax bracket, the tax bill is $35. A tax of $35 on real interest of $20 is an effective tax rate of 175 percent! After taxes, the individual is left with $2,105 — less than the $2,120 he needs to maintain the purchasing power of his original $2,000 deposit.

Our current tax system, by taxing the real income earned on savings at more than 100 percent, is both grossly unfair and a strong penalty to saving. This problem affects anyone who buys bonds or stocks as well as those who save in banks.

A RECENT STUDY at the National Bureau of Economic Research showed that individuals who sold corporate stocks in 1973 had combined "real" losses of nearly $1 billion. Because our current tax law ignores the effect of inflation, however, they were required to pay taxes on nearly $5 billion of nominal gains.

Koltanowski On Chess

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Two major honors fell to George Koltanowski, International Master and World Blindfold Champion, on the occasion of his retiring as President of the U.S. Chess Federation.

At a Diamond Birthday Party for Koltanowski, held in San Francisco last month, his successor as head of the Federation, Gary Sperling, announced that next year and thereafter, a George Koltanowski Medal would be awarded annually to "to person who has done the most for chess in the preceding year."

Any hopes that Koltanowski might have had to staying home and concentrating on writing chess books and on tutoring his syndicated chess column, were quickly dissipated by the second announcement. The beloved "Kolt", constantly on the move throughout the world on behalf of chess, has been named President of the International Chess Federation's Zone 5. As such, he will represent the United States at the International Federation's (FIDE) policy-making meetings, the first of which is being held at the end of this month (October) in Buenos Aires.

A point worth noting is the futility of White's Kingside attack. Instead of having an open file for at least one Rook he has constructed his own roadblock with doubled pawns. An attacker should remember his ultimate goal, not incidental targets.

IMPORTANT TAX NOTICE 1978

1978 Tax Statements for the City of Lubbock and Lubbock Independent School District have all been mailed to owners as shown by our current records. Because of the fact that thousands of parcels change ownership each year many new owners may not receive their tax statements, and they may become delinquent unless the new owners notify us of the change — and their correct mailing address.

If the property is improved, the Loan Company will likely pay the tax and has asked for the tax statement. If the owner is making monthly payments, a statement has been sent to the Loan Company. However, if this is not the case and the owner is to pay the tax or if it is a vacant lot and no statement has been received by the owner, he should call the City & School Tax Department giving the Lot and Block number, name of the addition and a statement will be mailed promptly.

Automobile Tax Notices were sent to the mail address that appeared on the 1978 Registration Receipt. Taxes are due and payable on the automobile or other vehicle that you owned on January 1, 1978.

This request is being made so that the tax can be paid on time to avoid penalty which accrues monthly after January 31, 1979.

Texas Statewide Health Coordinating Council -PUBLIC HEARING-

In compliance with the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-641), a Public Hearing on the Statewide Health Coordinating Council's Proposed State Health Plan for Texas will be held on Thursday, December 21, 1978, at 7:00 p.m. at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, 1501 Sixth Street, Room #102, Lubbock, Texas. If inclement weather prohibits the meeting from being held on this date, an alternate meeting date and location will be set and publicized at a later date.

The Proposed Plan presents statewide health concerns and proposes means by which to begin solving statewide health problems. Beginning November 1, a copy of the Proposed State Health Plan for Texas will be available for public review Monday through Friday, 8 AM-5 PM at Public Health Region 2, 3411 Knoxville Street, Lubbock; South Plains Health Systems Agency, 1217 Avenue K, Lubbock; George & Helen Mahon Library, 1306 Ninth Street, Lubbock.

Oral and written comments pertaining to the Proposed State Health Plan are invited and encouraged from members of the public. Written comments may be submitted at the hearing or mailed to Louis E. Gibson, M.D., Chairman, Statewide Health Coordinating Council, 1100 West 49th Street, Austin, Texas 78756.

Innovation Turns Range Into Successful Farm

By KATHLEEN HARRIS

Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

TULIA—Through the gate and down a long, well-maintained road past petunias, pumpkins and marigolds sits a comfortable country home.

"When we moved here 22 years ago, this was nothing but a pasture," Dee Inglis, Swisher County farmer said. "The previous owner simply did not know how to farm it."

The sloping section Inglis farms east of Tulia now produces milo and cotton with the help of bench levelling, two tailwater recycling pits connected to underground pipelines, a knowledge of the market and ingenuity.

"I love to grow sunflowers and wheat," Inglis admitted, "but the market was not good for those two commodities this year. When you see the world supply is greater than the demand, there is no point to produce it."

Inglis established benches on the acreage 14 years ago. "I was inspired to put the benches in because of the sloping land. I had been broadcasting wheat on it because I thought that would hold the soil."

"Necessity is the mother of invention," Dee's wife, Clara noted. "If Dee needs something, he just goes out in the barn and makes it."

Because about one-third of the section has bench levelling, Inglis built an implement to work the benches. The attachment, which Inglis uses about twice a year to clear weeds, consists of a weighted disc set at the degree of angling on the benches.

"I used to think I could simply kill out all the Johnson grass and other weeds on my place," Inglis laughed, "but I'm still fighting it and probably always will."

For two years, Inglis worked on constructing a sprayer that would spray all the way to the ground. The sprayer he designed consists of three nozzles to the row, with each individual row having its own control operated by hand. The rig has "fenders" to keep the spray off the adjoining rows.

"It is slower and more complicated to run the individual row sprayer than a recirculating sprayer, but it is much more effective," Inglis said. "The individual row sprayer can be adjusted to the proper height and covers six rows at a time."

Inglis said the problem with the machine is the requirement for labor to run it and the system works on pressure. "I'm working on an electric solenoid version of the sprayer because the pressure causes the hoses to expand and the pressure must die before the spray finally stops. Sometimes the herbicide is only needed for four feet, but the sprayer continues for 10 feet."

The individual row sprayer has two seats, and each side is equipped with a hand gun sprayer for pointing directly to a problem area.

For spraying both herbicides and insecticides, Inglis developed a "chemical cultivator" for use when the crop is larger. This sprayer was built from an old flame cultivator, by removing the flame burners and replacing them with spray nozzles.

"First we bed the land, then rig our rolling cultivator with 20 inch sweeps about 12 inches in front of the tool bar to knock the beds flat. The spray boom is located directly under the rolling cultivator toolbar behind the sweeps applying the herbicides."

This is followed by the rolling cultivator and middle clean out sweeps, building back the incorporated bed. This system allows us to plant so that our growing crop roots do not develop in ground filled with chemicals, therefore giving us higher yields," he said.

Most of the innovations Inglis has developed have been built with scrap metal or out-of-date equipment. But his latest design, though not a new idea, is a row dammer being built by Rollacone in Tulia.

"Versions of the row dammer came out about 40 years ago," Inglis said. "And the Halfway Experiment Station has developed a plow-out system that enables the operator to plow out the dam and re-establish it behind the cultivator to eliminate bumping up and down over the structures."

According to Inglis, that dammer is too complicated to adjust and change from one plow to another. "So, I developed an electric solenoid type that requires no adjustment once it is set to the individual plow, and can be easily moved from one plow to another. The distance between the dams can be adjusted from the tractor, too."

"Running out of irrigation water is one of the biggest problems today. Irrigation is the most reassuring asset," Inglis stressed. "We could come a lot nearer to making a crop if we could just hold the rain where it falls."

"Pre-plant watering has been very beneficial on my acreage. It saves a trip over the land and doesn't destroy subsoil moisture like chiseling does," he said.

Inglis said he is not farming for the highest production but for the most returns. In addition to the milo and cotton, the Inglis family raises chickens, goats and a garden.

An example of Inglis's expertise in planning is in the garden where six rows of corn were planted. "There are two rows of field corn and the other rows are different varieties of sweet corn so that it comes off at different times over a three-month period."

Surrounding the other vegetables are marigolds and other flowers that supposedly repel insects.

"We have enough chickens to produce eggs for our family," Mrs. Inglis said. The couple has three married daughters and a son who is a high school senior and lives at home. "And the goats provide enough milk for drinking and cooking."

The goats are not allowed to graze weeds and are fed only alfalfa and grain to prevent the bitter taste often characteristic of goat milk. "We use sterilized buckets for milking and I chill the milk and skim the cream off the top before we drink it," she said.

Mrs. Inglis also grinds some of the wheat they produce to make bread flour.

"This winter we will be busy making all the repairs and getting ready for next year's crop. Farmers are having to learn how to get by with less," Inglis said.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A NATIONALLY KNOWN LIVESTOCK economist says price weakness in live cattle "probably will persist for a much longer time than generally assumed."

Dr. Willard F. "Doe" Williams, agricultural economist at Texas Tech and president of TARA, Inc., a private agricultural economics consulting firm, points out the October cattle-on-feed report was "decidedly bearish."

"Whenever the industry has large numbers of heavier weight cattle on feed," he says, "it loses its flexibility to absorb shocks from the standpoint of demand or other changes that may come into play."

"We can see no way the industry can possibly market by Dec. 1. the number of cattle that were reported in the heavier weights," Williams says.

IN DECEMBER, CATTLE FEEDERS probably will tend to hold back marketings to defer taxes, he adds. "They will be holding back and selling into the new year," he says.

"Our projections into January-February already were showing fairly high marketings," the agricultural economist adds. In addition, there will be what seems to be an almost assured carryover from the fall. "So marketings," he says, "should be above those we now have scheduled for November."

The industry began building into the heavier weights during the summer, Williams points out. Since this month's cattle-on-feed report, which was as of Oct. 1, "marketing has fallen far short of the numbers needed to have been sold during these past weeks," he adds.

"Markets should have been up 22 percent and they have been up less than 10 percent," Williams says. "This means a carryover into November."

ALL OF THIS POINTS TO THE PROBABILITY of "a pretty good sell-off in late January and into February," Williams says.

"Normally, we don't market our way out of a surplus," Williams says. "People think we do but we don't. We seldom have in the past. 'What we have to do to move out of a surplus situation is either reduce the placements or under current circumstances it's possible that — with the huge demand for hamburger — enough lighter weights will be pulled off for the hamburger market that this will slow the accumulation into the heavier weights."

"So I'm saying it will be February before we begin to solve the problem. We expect then that prices will be up for at least February, March and April, when we expect a good upturn. Meantime, we will have some kind of rally in December in response to withholdings and the Christmas market. Other than that, it looks a little rough..."

THE LONGER TERM OUTLOOK STILL is "extremely bullish," Williams says. In fact, it usually drops and stays down for eight years after a peak such as in 1975, only three years ago.

"The hamburger shortage is going to get increasingly severe," Williams says. He adds that grass-fed steer-heifer slaughter will follow about the same pattern. It trended lower last year and will be down even lower in 1979, he says. This will help, he says, emphasizing that "we are not going into a severe bust such as in 1973."

The economist foresees cash prices on choice steers dropping to around $50 per hundredweight, which he says is $1 to $2 below break-even costs right now. Prices, he says, "probably will come off toward that level in November and may come off as low as $48 in February."

When the July 1 cattle-on-feed report showed the trend toward heavier weights, Williams says, the die was cast.

"We've known since then that we had trouble coming up for fall," he says. He says the market may make temporary rallies from time to time but adds that he believes it's generally on a downturn.

Yield Of Meat Still Falling

WASHINGTON (AP) — American production of red meat continues to fall, the Agriculture Department says, giving figures that probably will mean continued higher retail prices.

Red meat production in September was 3.14 billion pounds, down 6 percent from the same month a year earlier, the department said. And production of 28.3 billion pounds for the first nine months of the year represents a dip of 3 percent from the same period of 1977.

Smaller meat supplies generally mean higher prices for consumers.

Beef production the first nine months of this year was down 4 percent.

Officials Fear Drastic Changes May Await Pipeline Companies

TULSA, Okla. (Special) Cases before the U.S. Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and issues arising in Congress have pipeline company officials worried that their business soon may undergo some drastic changes.

Sentiment is increasing in government to treat crude and product pipelines more like utilities for ratemaking, according to the Oil & Gas Journal. And the Justice Department has supported moves to prevent integrated oil companies from laying any more pipelines, leaving the chore to independent firms.

If rules like those were enacted, crude and products pipeline owners would have to do business under a whole new set of economic rules. Some industry representatives indicate that few, if any, companies would be willing to start any new pipeline projects under the proposed changes.

Important cases pending in FERC are the trans-Alaska pipeline rate case, a remanded court challenge to an Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) ruling that upheld a tariff hike by Williams Pipe Line Co., and a rulemaking proceeding on pipeline ratemaking methods called Ex Parte No. 308, Valuation of Common Carriers.

A major issue before FERC is the fair value rate base that traditionally has been applied to crude and products lines. FERC inherited pipeline tariff approval responsibility from the ICC when the Department of Energy was formed last year.

In the past, the ICC conducted periodic valuations of pipelines, taking into account original cost, replacement cost new, and replacement cost less depreciation. When pipeline owners filed tariffs, ICC computed rates of return on valuations it had determined to decide whether the tariffs were reasonable.

That method of regulating rates is called fair value ratemaking. In the 1940s, court and ICC decisions determined that rates of return on valuation should be no more than eight percent for crude pipelines and 10 percent for products pipelines.

Also in the 1940s, several major oil companies that operated pipelines entered a consent decree in a federal case, agreeing that dividends paid pipelines to shipper-owners should not exceed seven percent of valuation.

The proposed change to those ratemaking methods would base tariffs on original cost of pipeline assets and land, less depreciation. That method of regulating tariffs already is applied to utilities, including gas pipelines.

The company has approximately 300 acres of leases in the immediate area of the well. Adobe owns 50 percent interest in the well and its partnerships own the remaining 50 percent.

Adobe also reports the successful completion of a significant step-out to its wildcat gas discovery (No. 1 R. L. Reagan) in northwest Robertson County of East Texas. The step-out well is No. 1 Ziegelschmid, which is producing from the Cotton Valley Lime formation through perforations from 12,748 to 12,777 feet.

The three-year record represents a total of more than 1.5 million manhours of safety on the job, the company said.

Currently, the Conoco department has 294 employees.

In addition to gas processing plants in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming, the department operates underground storage facilities in Oklahoma and Louisiana and a major gathering and distribution system in southwestern Louisiana.

Conoco's Hamlin gas processing plant has not had a lost-time accident since Feb. 20, 1962, a record of more than 16 years of safety on the job. B. J. Howerton is plant manager.

by rate reform. He urged FERC to "abandon outmoded and cumbersome fair value rate base concepts in favor of depreciated original cost rate regulation modeled after the natural gas pipeline industry."

Shenefield also said he favors prospective divestiture of pipelines owned by oil companies. That would prevent oil companies that operate in several facets of the oil business from building any more crude or products pipelines.

Retrospective divestiture—which would force oil companies to rid themselves of existing pipelines—probably would create too much disruption of the pipeline industry, Shenefield said.

The pipeline industry strongly opposes any form of divestiture or change from fair value ratemaking. Industry representatives contend they need higher rates of return on valuation than those set during the 1940s.

Pennsylvania Strike Completed By Adobe

MIDLAND (Special) Adobe has announced the completion of a discovery at its No. 1 Kavouras well in Indiana County, Pennsylvania.

Total depth of the well is 1,835 feet. It potentialized for 9,836,000 cubic feet of gas per day. Delivery to pipeline is averaging in excess of 2,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

The company has approximately 300 acres of leases in the immediate area of the well. Adobe owns 50 percent interest in the well and its partnerships own the remaining 50 percent.

The three-year record represents a total of more than 1.5 million manhours of safety on the job, the company said.

Currently, the Conoco department has 294 employees.

In addition to gas processing plants in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming, the department operates underground storage facilities in Oklahoma and Louisiana and a major gathering and distribution system in southwestern Louisiana.

Conoco's Hamlin gas processing plant has not had a lost-time accident since Feb. 20, 1962, a record of more than 16 years of safety on the job. B. J. Howerton is plant manager.

RUGGED LOCATION—During an exploration project in northern Utah, Aminoil USA found it necessary to use helicopters to carry men and equipment from one site to another because of the steep, rugged terrain. Oil companies are becoming increasingly dependent upon such expensive equipment as the search for oil and natural gas takes them more often into wilderness areas.

Exploratory Operations Moving Into Areas Once Inaccessible

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (Special) Through the years, companies in search of oil and natural gas have generally taken on the path of least resistance. Exploration activities were concentrated in easy to reach areas where preliminary indications showed a good chance of finding significantly large commercial deposits of hydrocarbons.

As time passed such areas were thoroughly explored and the search gradually moved into less hospitable areas. Today oil companies have reached a stage in exploration where there are few good prospects in readily accessible areas which haven't already been drilled.

Or, as a frequently heard oil industry cliché puts it, "All the easy oil has been found."

This situation presents oil companies with two unattractive courses of action concentrating on rugged and remote onshore locations or investing more of their exploration budget in offshore exploration with its enormous attendant expense.

In smaller oil companies like Aminoil USA, a subsidiary of R. J. Reynolds Industries Inc., the emphasis is being placed on less costly onshore exploration. In offshore ventures, Aminoil participates selectively, usually as a partner in a group.

"We're getting into areas," says Marshal Scherba, Aminoil's senior geophysicist, "where the risk is high and the expenditures are high. With the rapidly increasing interest in exploring these difficult areas, you could say that the industry is entering a new phase where finding oil and gas is going to be more difficult and more costly than ever before."

One basic tool Aminoil's geophysicists use in studying an area's geology, Scherba explains, is the seismic section. This is a cross section of the underground terrain developed by exploding charges at regular intervals along a "shot" line and recording the reflected sound waves at the surface of the earth.

"We are using geophones (devices that measure earth movement) that are so sensitive," he explains, "that they will respond if you blow on them."

The recording equipment being used can register 100,000 recordings a second when an explosion is triggered, making it possible to map underground formations.

WELL COMPLETIONS during the first three quarters of this year were approximately 12 percent ahead of the nine-month total for 1977, according to Petroleum Information.

Drillers completed 34,981 wells through September, compared to 31,248 in the same period last year. A third of the wells were not commercially productive.

Gas wells increased 24.5 percent to 9,017 units from last year's level, and oil producers were up 4.7 percent to 14,220 wells.

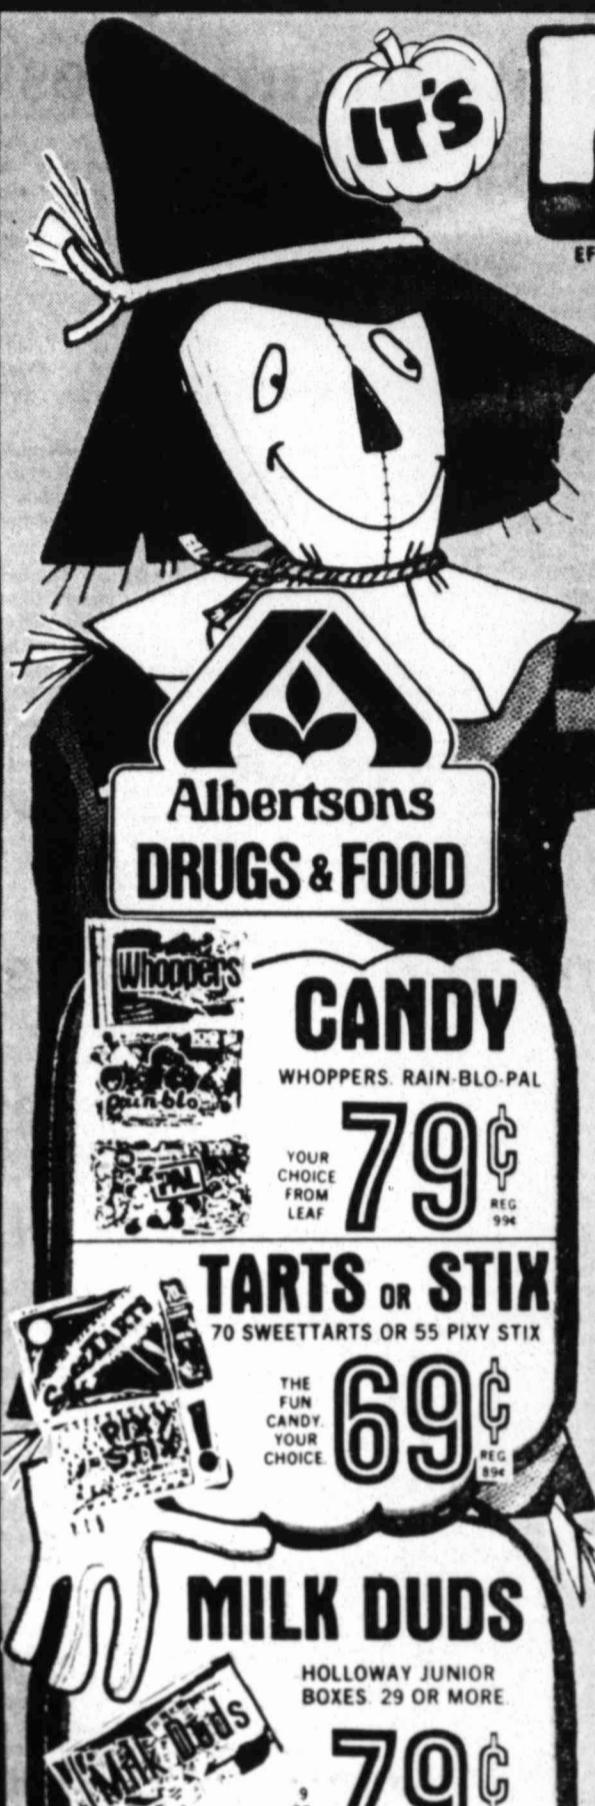

Exploratory wells totaled 5,091 for the first nine months, a gain of 12.9 percent from the 4,509 tests completed in that period of 1977.

The new field wildcats included 439 oil discoveries and 457 new gas fields. Success ratio for the wildcat wells was 17.1 percent, down from the 18.7 percent level of 1977.

Texas continues to be the leading state in drilling activity, with 12,120 completions during the first three quarters. Others include: Oklahoma, 4,099; Kansas, 3,054; Louisiana, 2,680; and California, 1,842.

A SKYLIT WORKING AREA — A skylit working area combined with open moveable steel walls provide an exciting design concept in this new Whirlpool kitchen. An ultra kitchen with an absolute absence of doors and the classic fourth wall permits the cook to be in constant contact with family and friends. The Whirlpool open kitchen was developed by Ving and Charlotte Smith for a major women's magazine to promote the idea that formality is "out" and freedom is "in."

Family Kitchen Can Be Ideal Place To Install Fireplace

With growing interest in creative cooking, and entire families taking part in pot-watching, what better place than the kitchen to add one of America's favorite furnishings — a fireplace.

If you thought fireplaces belong only in the family room, think again. The ease and economy of installing a factory-built fireplace has inspired homeowners to include them in other rooms of the house. More and more, fireplaces are showing up in kitchens — particularly when the room is a center for family activities.

Unlike conventional masonry fireplaces, built-in style, factory-constructed units come ready-to-install. There's no need to knock out walls, do extensive remodeling or build a special foundation. That's because these built-in units feature "zero-clearance," which means they can be safely placed right on or against existing walls and floors. Face a factory-built fireplace with any non-combustible material to match the room decor, and the results can look as authentic as a traditional hearth or as "now" as a contemporary kitchen.

Contemporary is the look of so many freestanding fireplaces available today. Their brightly colored porcelain or enamel finishes — or even basic black — can accent a modern mood. Freestanding fireplaces are even easier to install than built-in units — just remember to include a fireproof base and follow the manufacturer's specifications and building code requirements for proper clearance from nearby walls.

Because factory-built fireplaces come in a wide range of sizes and shapes, finding room for one in a good-sized kitchen needn't be a problem. If space is tight, choose a compact, built-in model; a slim, freestanding, conical style; or a fireplace of either type, designed for corner installation.

The chance to cook with wood or charcoal year-round makes the kitchen an ideal spot for a fireplace. Barbecuing doesn't have to be a seasonal ritual — special grills for fireplaces make it possible to cook and serve wood or charcoal-broiled entrees indoors during cold weather. And, with only seconds from grill to table, food won't lose its sizzle.

Is yours a country kitchen? Then an old-fashioned, wood-burning stove might provide just the right, authentic touch. No longer hard-to-find relics, wood stoves are widely sold today in a variety of styles, many of which can be used for cooking as well as heating. Since the energy crisis began, stove sales have soared as homeowners sought these oldtime appliances for their practicality as well as their nostalgic charm.

New Design Refreshing

Women no longer want the kitchen that's behind closed doors, or a kitchen that's behind a wall, either — if they can afford otherwise.

These conclusions led designers Ving and Charlotte Smith to create an ultra kitchen featuring a classic fourth wall, absolute absence of doors and the added plus of Whirlpool major appliances.

"There's a trend away from formal dining areas," says Charlotte Smith of Ving Smith Interiors, New Rochelle, N.Y. "The casual lifestyle is definitely in. People want freedom, openness, candid conversations. They want to be in contact with families or dinner guests while they're cooking. We designed a Whirlpool kitchen that is wide open to the dining area."

The kitchen is a combination of many free-flowing spaces and good practical ideas.

First, the room has its own environment so anyone in the skylit work area can chat with those lounging by the fireplace. The window wall features hanging and potted ornamental and herbal plants. The combined kitchen — from cooking to lounging area — captures a certain green-house feeling.

Selected cabinets have been brought down to counter height. Vivid red walls are of stamped steel, like that used in old-time fireproof ceilings. All walls have a center core of sound-proofing material. The cabinet doors open on piano hinges to allow for spacious storage areas.

A unique pull-out counter is strategically placed near the Whirlpool Micro Shelf range with a microwave oven places atop. It provides needed counter space one minute and elbow room the next.

The cabinet sides flanking the window are covered with mirror-like Mylar, stretched to reflect the sun's rays or the growing greenery.

The middle island provides more storage space. Vast cupboards stash items of every size, including bulky serving trays.

A second sink and wood cutting block prove their worth constantly.

All the counter and table tops resemble marble but are actually tough DuPont Corian. The flooring, copy ancient stones, is really sturdy Armstrong Solarian. The stools that face the island's bar are upholstered with durable Uniroyal Naugahyde.

There is a place for everything — even non-typical kitchen items. One wall is open shelving that allows accessibility for needed tools like nails, glue, twine, screwdrivers, etc. Two shelves are reserved for the kitchen desk accessories.

"The design was taken from the very popular office landscaping concept," adds Smith. "You look at the main living area as one big room. Movable wall panels make it happen. The entire room can be separate rooms during the day and the walls can be taken down, 'stashed' away, and furniture rearranged for the night's big party."

KESSLER HEADBOARDS

New, Modern Home

"If you were excited about the unique Jones Ornamental Decor store that was established in early 1977 at 1406 Ave. Q, then you will be even more enthused about the firm's present home with its roominess, easy access, off-street parking and other advantages. More than 5,000 square feet of showroom space is provided, and the big store is chock full of tremendous and selective merchandise offering. It now is believed to be the very largest store of its type anywhere in the Southwest."

"Name brands in home furnishings are attractively and profusely stocked, together with a wide variety of decorating ideas...beautiful hand-made ceramics and floral arrangements designed especially for Jones Ornamental Decor, elegant ornate accent pieces of brass and copper, hanging scale planters, door knockers, coal buckets, teakettles, brass towel rings, and more. For new elegance in home or office decor, let Jones enter the picture!"

"The firm is home-owned and operated, essentially as a family operation. Wilburn Jones and wife, Sonja, are owners, with Mrs. Jones active in the management, assisted by children Jana, Mark and Randy, and other staffmembers."

"Wilburn Jones owns Greer Iron Works, and custom construction of barbecue units, fireplace screens and log holders, fences, gates, etc., are among the specifications, as is wrought iron and cast aluminum furniture."

"A pretty good combination, wouldn't you say... Jones Ornamental Decor and Greer Iron Works!"

Indoor or Outdoor

"Most people likely think of wrought iron as outdoor furniture or decorations, but that is far from being true. We have placed our furniture in some of the most elegant homes and offices in Lubbock and surrounding areas."

"We carry only quality merchandise and name brands, including Woodard, O.W. Lee, Winston, Blacksmith Shop, Homecrest and Kessler."

"Come by real soon at the big and beautiful Indiana Gardens store (on south side of 34th) and take advantage of our everyday specials and the introduction of new lines and items, many exclusive to Jones Ornamental Decor."

"And remember, if you are having trouble finding that special piece of furniture, see us. If we don't have it, we'll order it for you. After all, we at Jones Ornamental Decor are in business for you and because of you. Again, thank you for your business; it has been a beautiful year and a half."

GETTING THE MOST FROM YOUR KITCHEN — A kitchen that's more than a kitchen makes life easier for active households. Empty window space is transformed into a living center, easily, with a multi-level countertop table built onto the wall. Tuck-away folding stools, covered with a cushioned look-alike, are both practical and fashionable. Window lambrequin is easy-care "Ranchero" by Naugahyde. Kitchen designed by Jill Wood.

Sink's Appearance, Mechanics Can Add Spice To Kitchen

When you're working in the kitchen, where do you spend most of your time?

In front of the kitchen sink — as much as 70 percent of kitchen time, according to Kohler Co., a leading manufacturer of kitchen sinks.

For that reason, how the sink "looks" and how it "works" are matters for special consideration.

Take "looks", for instance. Color in the kitchen should begin with the sink. It's the obvious focal point of the room, the spot to which family and friend alike tend to gravitate.

A sink in color makes the kitchen work-center look brighter and cheerier. It eliminates the old-fashioned, institutional look some sinks give to kitchens.

A sink in color can quickly update an older room, complement other appliances, or accent a decorating scheme.

A sink should not only look good, it should also be well-designed and able to handle daily use and abuse.

Most manufacturers make sinks in a variety of colors, styles and sizes. Kohler, for instance, offers kitchen sinks in 15 colors, eight styles, and sizes that range from a large, 43-inch model with three generous compartments, to a compact, 25-inch model with disposal basin tucked neatly away in one corner.

To help the home handyman, there are sinks with raised compartments that allow easier installation of disposal units without changing drainpipes.

Another aid to easier, neater installations is the self-rimming feature many sinks offer.

For long-lasting beauty and deep-down color gloss, insist on an enameled cast iron sink.

Enamelled cast iron offers unmatched durability, great impact resistance, and thick coats of acid-resisting enamel. And, it reduces the noise and vibration of garbage disposal units.

Today, sinks are moving out of the kitchen and into family rooms and recreation rooms. You'll even find them out on the patio. It makes good sense to put a sink where the action is.

Special party/patio bar sinks are available in both enameled cast iron and colorful acrylic construction. They're small enough to fit almost anywhere, yet large enough to add color and convenience to leisure living.

Kitchens Can Be Transformed

The scene is familiar. Junior is eating a sandwich on the run. Sister is trying to do her homework on the same kitchen table. And, you're trying to cook supper. It does get exasperating!

A kitchen that's more than a kitchen is a necessity for today's living. With everyone in the family off to something else, the hustle and bustle in some kitchens is enough to discourage even the most persistent chefs. All this activity, combined with a shrinking amount of kitchen space, makes many kitchens end up as victims of the clutterbug.

Through clever planning and imagination, any ordinary kitchen can be transformed into a family living center. First, give careful consideration to lifestyles. Do you often grab a sandwich on the run, or do you like to have a place to keep the shopping list and household notes, do light book-keeping or dash letters off to friends? With shrinking room sizes, it's not easy to find a spot to attend to all these needs.

The solution to your needs may be right on your walls. Simple, multi-level, modular units like a wooden Parsons table built right onto the wall can exploit empty space under a window, while also adding an entirely new dimension to the room. This look works particularly well with long, narrow kitchens, where seating space is traditionally a problem.

To avoid a cluttered counter look, break the counter into several levels. The lower section can serve as a miniature desk and phone table, while the upper level becomes an eating bar. Careful organization keeps each compartment together, yet separate. The smooth, geometric silhouette is as pleasing to the eye as it is to work with.

The secret to planning a kitchen that works is to go for efficiency plus. Simple, folding counter-stools with soft, cushy seats, can be tucked away until needed.

Top Designer Turns To Homes

The biggest news in home furnishings these days has got to be the entry of big-name fashion designers into the field. They've brought a fresh eye and a special sense of color and pattern — and sparked our own senses with a whole new range of decorating materials.

First it was sheets, then furniture. And now, the newest area of all is wallcoverings. In fact, one of the most famous names in fashion led the parade when Diane Von Furstenberg joined forces with the makers of Wall-Tex wall-coverings to produce a whole book of wallcovering designs.

If you think a high-fashion name means hoity-toity design that's just too chic for words — then you don't know Diane. The patterns she's designed for Wall-Tex are so down-to-earth and easy to live with, they're almost like old friends. For example, there are old-fashioned, romantic florals — lilies of the valley, tulips, chintz looks — that will remind you of that country house you've always dreamed of, or remembered. With these patterns, you can create your own country look wherever you are — and since many have companion fabrics, you can get an all-over look, almost instantly!

In this collection of 25 designs in a total of 87 color-ways, you'll also find a whole range of easy naturals — motifs taken from rope, batik, bamboo, or shutters, plus some wonderful designs composed simply of rippling lines and dots. Their looks can be fresh, contemporary, melodic. What's more, Diane designed some so small in scale that they work almost as textures on the wall!

Says Diane, "A good wallcovering is like good make-up — it lets you make the most of what you have."

So she planned colors that would make people look good and feel good — and bring out the best in their furnishings. There are flattering new colors like peach, pink, pastel blue — and colors that are beautifully neutral. You'll see delicate grays, soft pebble colors, beiges and browns — a whole wardrobe of patterns that will go with anything — including each other. In fact, you can mix and match as easily as you would with separates.

To see these beautiful new wallcoverings — all, by the way, of long-lasting, fabric backed vinyl — all you have to do is walk into the nearest wallcovering store, and ask for the "Diane Von Furstenberg for Wall-Tex" book. Look, compare, try out different combinations of patterns and colors, then close your eyes and picture your room — with walls dressed in their new fall wardrobe!

DECORATING, COUNTRY STYLE — Country decor is never out of date — and it's also one of the freshest ideas around. Mellow, warm and easy to live with, it's easy to put together, too. Use simple materials like wood, straw, wicker, pottery — and tie them all together with a wallcovering that creates a garden mood — like Diane Von Furstenberg's "Herb Garden" from a brand new collection of Wall-Tex wallcoverings.

Dishwasher Use Curbed To Save Energy

First they said they didn't but then they did! A survey of dishwashing habits among 512 homemakers and home economists shows that dishwasher usage fell from an average of 7 times a week prior to the energy crisis and soaring fuel costs, to a current average of 5.5 times a week. Yet, 52.9% of the respondents answered "no" to the initial question "Has emphasis on energy conservation and rising fuel costs prompted you to use your dishwasher less than in the past?" Whatever the motivation, dishwasher use is definitely down. The statistics culled from the 31-part questionnaire show that 56.2 percent of the respondents now use their dishwasher less than once a day, while before the energy crunch, only 40.2 percent used their dishwasher less than once a day. The drop in dishwasher use is quite significant in light of the recent statement in Good Housekeeping

On Preserving Plants

With the change of season, the green thumb's concern turns increasingly to those house plants that enhance the home environment so much.

Now's the time to be alert for signs of problems in your greenery. The right steps, taken promptly, can save a favorite plant.

For instance, if you note that your plant's lower leaves are turning yellow or that its stems are becoming soft and dark in color, the plant may be getting too much water. Check to make sure that the drainage hole is not clogged; if the soil has become compacted, repot the plant. Water only when necessary; if in doubt, ask your local nursery expert's advice.

If your plant's stems stretch toward the light and are growing very long, it may be receiving too little light. Pale-colored, small leaves on new stems are also a symptom of this same problem. The remedy is to move the plant to a brighter exposure, or closer to a window. If you are using artificial light, you may have to increase the wattage or the number of bulbs used.

Browning leaf edges, with leaves ultimately dying, indicate that a plant is not receiving enough humidity. Mist the plant regularly, and place its pot on a bed of moist pebbles in a tray.

If your plant seems to grow rapidly, but later wilts and develops a white crust of built-up salts, you're giving it too much fertilizer. Water the plant thoroughly to dissolve built-up salts, rewatering less than half an hour to wash out the salts through pot's drainage hole.

On the other hand, plants that fade to a pale green, with lower leaves turning yellow, may be getting too little fertilizer. Small, new leaves or no growth at all are other indications of this condition.

Parquet Floors Make Comeback

There's new excitement for home remodelers and builders with the new plank and parquet flooring developed to be compatible with today's construction methods.

The new patterns recently introduced by the Bruce Hardwood Floor Company include modernized no-peg Villa Plank and their popular Villa Nova Plank. In keeping with the trend toward the natural furnishings, Villa Nova is in new harmagazine that a household reduction of only one dishwasher load per week would save the United States 9,000 barrels of oil a day — enough to heat 140,000 homes for a winter.

The survey was conducted anonymously by a plastic housewares manufacturer, the Lustro-Ware Division of Borden Chemical. Questionnaires were distributed nationwide to a random sampling of households.

In addition to examining the energy issue, the survey probed household dishwashing habits in general. The majority of women (74.2 percent) use plastic dish-drainer racks, regardless of whether or not they own automatic dishwashers (slightly more than half the households surveyed — 52.9 percent — own dishwashers). It would seem that the popularity of this particular dishwashing accessory has not diminished in the 25 years since the first plastic dish-drainer racks were introduced by Lustro-Ware as a practical dishwashing innovation for American households.

Perhaps the most interesting survey statistic revealed that, despite the common belief that dishwashing is drudgery, 43.2 percent of the survey respondents considered hand-dishwashing relaxing, as well as a good time to chat with a helper in a mutual activity that makes communication easier.

As temperatures start to cool, Americans are looking for ways to save energy and reduce costs. One way is to insulate windows and doors with weatherstripping. Another is to use energy-efficient light bulbs. Consumers are also turning to energy-saving products like programmable thermostats and energy-efficient water heaters.

Starting a small business selling insulation, weatherstripping, and energy-efficient products can be a profitable venture.

A gasoline-powered generator can provide power during power outages.

The Homelite portable generator is a reliable source of power for emergency situations.

According to the manufacturer, the unit is easy to assemble and operate.

It delivers reliable power in cold weather.

The increasing cost of heating oil is causing many homeowners to switch to propane.

Ventilation is important for indoor air quality.

Proper insulation and sealing gaps in the exterior walls of a home can help reduce energy bills.

Using energy-efficient light bulbs can save money on electricity bills.

Using programmable thermostats can help save energy and money.

Using energy-efficient water heaters can save money on utility bills.

Checklist Of Appliances Can Reduce Fuel Costs

As temperatures dip lower, indicating winter's fast approach, energy bills climb as Americans head indoors where warmer conditions prevail. Topping the list of energy-eaters, heating bills consume a large portion of the total home-energy cost with major appliances running close behind.

Starting a seasonal home-maintenance program this fall can keep the house in tip-top shape for year-round family comfort and offer a solution for high energy bills that can result from drafty windows, leaky faucets, or worn weather stripping. Consumers can also help "put the freeze" on rising utility costs by checking household major appliances to insure that refrigerators, washers and dryers, dishwashers, ranges and water heaters are all operating at peak-efficiency levels. Look for energy-saving features on appliances, too. For example, the cold-water rinse found on the newest washers conserves energy because there's less hot water to heat.

To help kilowatt-conscious consumers save during the high-energy-consumption season, the makers of Speed Queen home laundry appliances offer these household tips to "check and conserve."

Outside the House:

— Inspect weather stripping and caulking around windows and doors for loosening or cracking. Weather stripping should fit firmly for maximum protection against wind and elements.

— Clean insulation wherever possible, especially in unfinished spaces such as basement or attics. Make sure it is thick enough and in good condition, and check for dampness.

— Clean and repair storm windows. Prior to installation, take down screens and remove summer's awnings to allow as much light as possible into the home to help ease heating bills.

— Drain outside faucets to prevent water pipes from freezing. Check caulking where the faucet pipe meets the frame of the house.

On the Inside:

— Vacuum ducts and grill areas on forced-air heating systems. Change filters and check pilot light on gas-fired systems.

— Insulate hot-water pipes to prevent heat loss, and lower water heater temperature to 140 degrees.

— Clean chimney flue and fireplace and be sure the damper is tightly closed.

— To maximize efficiency, don't open the oven door when baking — there's a 20 percent heat loss when peeking. Avoid lining the oven with aluminum foil — stagger and scatter pans so that they're not in line with each other — both cut oven efficiency and reduce heat circulation.

— Use flat-bottomed cookware that's matched to the appropriate-size burner, and use lids. Remember, water boils faster in a covered pot, amounting to as much as a 20 percent savings. Periodically check your gas range for a blue flame, indicating it's operating at peak efficiency. If the flame is yellow, call a repairman.

— Wash full laundry loads and choose the correct water-level setting to avoid using more water than needed. The new line of Speed Queen washers all feature low total-water-consumption to help save energy pennies per washload.

— Dry clothes in consecutive loads which dryer is still warm. Clean lint filters after each use and check outside vents twice a year.

— Check the refrigerator door seal for tightness to insure warm air does not leak in or cold air escape. Place a dollar bill between seal and cabinet and if it is easily removed, call a service repairman. Clean refrigerator coils once a month, as dust reduces efficiency.

— Clean the dishwasher filter screen over the drain once a week. Don't overload the dishwasher and if possible, shut off the drying cycle and let dishes air-dry.

Remember to take advantage of energy-saving opportunities like adapting to a winter schedule that uses electricity and hot water during off-peak hours to help wage the battle to conserve energy.

Generators Provide Protection

A gasoline-powered home standby generator can produce enough energy during power failure to run a home's heating system, refrigerator, freezer and a limited number of lights and electrical appliances.

The Homelite Division of Textron, Inc. recently introduced the new rugged, self-contained system at the National Home Builders Show in Dallas. Costing approximately $2,000 installed, it consists of a 5,000 watt generator, gasoline-powered engine, starter motor and refillable gasoline tank with enough fuel for eight hours operation, all in a lockable weatherproof enclosure. Once hooked into the home's electrical system by a licensed electrician, it can be operated easily and quickly by anyone in the family.

According to Homelite, one of the nation's leading manufacturers of generators, the unit is designed to handle emergency needs during brownouts, blackouts and other energy shortages.

It delivers enough power to keep a family warm and the pipes free from freezing in winter, to keep food cold so it won't spoil in summer and keep well water running.

"The increasing incidence of power outages and shortages in most areas of the country makes the need for home standby power a real fact of life," said Vice-President of Marketing, Frank W. Maddux in introducing the new product for the Charlotte, N.C., firm.

Mr. Maddux added, "Over the years, the demand for standby power has moved from life support institutions to commercial and industrial type establishments. Today, modern living means electric living, and auxiliary power for the home has become a great deal more than just a convenience."

A family that depends on an electric pump for water and an electric blower motor on the furnace finds that a standby electric system becomes a necessity.

When the electric goes out, that homeowner has only to unlock and lift the hinged lightweight cover, push the ignition and start buttons, throw the circuit breaker and transfer switches to set auxiliary power in motion. Unlike the existing portable generators, this model is pre-wired into the home's electrical system, is self-contained, weatherized and permanently installed outside the house where it is enclosed for quieter operation.

The Homelite unit, which weighs 210 pounds and measures 27 inches high, 35 inches long and 36 inches wide, can be bolted to a concrete pad outside the house with theft-proof concealed lug bolts. It delivers 5,000 watts continuous HZ 120-240 volts alternating current and 41.6 20.8 amperes continuous current unity power factor.

The standby generator features a four-cycle 10-horsepower engine, electric start and automatic oil level monitoring system, removable five-gallon tank with quick-disconnect fuel line for easy refilling, fuel pump, emergency rope start features and an all-weather enclosure with ultra-violet filter to make it impervious to sunlight. It is available through home improvement centers, electrical supply houses and farm equipment dealers. For more information on Homelite's Model HSB-50 Standby Generator, write to: Homelite, Marketing Department HSB; Box 7047; 14401 Carowinds Blvd., Charlotte, N.C. 28217.

Sun Provides Free Energy

Solar energy, a little help from the sun, gives you the opportunity to capture the great amount of free energy that falls on your home every day. Solar energy can provide up to 80 percent of your hot water needs and up to 75 percent of your home heating requirements and 85 percent of your pool heating needs. Trained personnel can size and install solar heating systems for your home or business. Complete system are surprisingly low and simple and can be installed on new construction as well as existing homes.

A typical solar hot water system can provide for a family of four, 120 gallons of hot water per day. Heating water with the free energy from the sun is one of the best ways to save fossil fuels and to help reduce your energy bills. Solar heat for home space heating is an efficient and simple means of providing your family with home heating while the system is paying for itself. Solar pool heating can extend by several months the swimming season for outdoor pools, and for both indoor and outdoor pools, significant heating cost reductions can be realized by using the free energy from the sun.

If you are thinking about a new home or pool, think about solar systems. A solar system can best be added to new construction with the least cost.

FIRST HOUSE — The first house in the world to receive an integrated solar heating and air conditioning system is located in Evansville, Ind., where Arkla Industries solar demonstration home receives approximately 75 percent of its heating and cooling requirements from the sun. The home, which from the street appears to be a conventional house, has been fitted with a prototype three-tonne Arkla Solaire totally integrated solar system and 48 flat plate collectors covering more than 800 square feet on the rear roof. The sample house was built to demonstrate the practicality of pre-engineered solar systems which require no special equipment and can be installed by a traditional heating-ventilation contractor.

Extenders End Paneling Woes

Ever tried to relocate the light switches and outlets when you are paneling a room? Then you know how frustrating it is to mark the panel and hope that you did it accurately. Or, worse yet, mark the panel and make the cut only to discover you are off a fraction and you have an ugly mess. Or, when you have finally accomplished the cutting and fitting, you discover that because of furring strips, there's a gap between paneling and the light switches.

A new product recently introduced by a Miami firm offers both the remodeling contractor and the eager do-it-yourself home renovator a solution to the problem.

The plug-in outlet extender is called LX-10-DR and it includes a light switch and plate extender that makes the finishing portion of paneling a room easier and less frustrating.

With new plug-in outlet extenders it is now much easier to use furring strips, since there is practically no such thing as a flat, even wall.

With the furring strips applied to the wall before paneling, easily installed energy saving insulation material can be incorporated into the wall space.

The new LX-10-DR extenders totally eliminate the tedious job and hazards of electrical shock while relocating the power outlets and light switches.

The easy-to-install extenders require no wiring. The extenders were developed and are being marketed by Arnold Damsky, Brooklyn-born, Miami resident and president of his own marketing firm call M.A.M.A.

The new products include a spacer for the plug-in outlet extender which adapts to various thicknesses of furring strips

Earphones Reduce Complaints

Here's a familiar problem in many households: whenever someone wants to relax with his favorite music turned up loud, another wants peace and quiet for reading, sleeping or conversation. The result often is a shouting match ("Turn that thing down!") that no one enjoys.

One solution is to soundproof your house or apartment. A more economical and practical means to peaceful coexistence is a pair of stereo headphones, according to Audio-Technica U.S., Inc., a leading source of hi-fi audio equipment.

Most stereophones cost from $30 to $150, with the costlier models generally yielding a fuller and more realistic sound.

There are two basic types of stereophones, explains Jon R. Kelly, Audio-Technica president. Large "circumaural" headphones surround the ears and provide almost total sonic isolation. The newer, lightweight, "supra-aural" stereophones rest gently against the ears and let in some outside sounds. These provide private listening without large, bulky earcups.

Also, if your plans for home improvement include upgrading your stereo, a pair of top-quality stereophones can yield sound quality equal to many good loudspeakers, but usually at far less cost. And, experts say that technical advances over the past few years have given stereophones enough high fidelity to satisfy even the most demanding "audiophiles."

Key Organizer Attractive

Walls are sometimes difficult to decorate. An unusual, decorative accent can solve this problem in a jiffy. A wooden key organizer can add just the right touch of color and design to any room. And, you can make it yourself in just a couple of hours.

Use a piece of clear pine about  $\frac{1}{2}$ " to  $\frac{3}{4}$ " thick and cut it into an interesting shape — this one was cut in the shape of a lock. Sand the rough edges and front with "Press 'N Sand" self-adhesive sandpaper in medium grit, using a hand block or finishing sander.

The new sandpaper also adheres to dowels for sanding hard-to-reach areas if your project has curves or inside corners, like the "key-hole" in the lock project.

Finish with fine grit sandpaper for a smooth look.

and paneling. Economical and easy to work with, the extenders are available at most home centers and hardware stores.

EASY TO INSTALL — The new panel switch extenders make it simple to mark the paneling, extend the light switches, insure smooth, professional finish when paneling walls. The new outlet extenders fill the gap between the furring strips and the new paneling. Now the handy home do-it-yourselfer comes off looking like a professional.

Conventional-Appearing House Has Solar Power

From the street it appears to be just a conventional home, but it really is a solar demonstration house that receives approximately 75 percent of its heating and cooling from the sun.

Located in Evansville, Ind., the house has been fitted with a prototype three-tonne Arkla Solaire totally integrated solar system. It has 48 flat plate collectors covering more than 800 square feet on the rear roof.

The solar equipment for the conventional-looking house is stored in a two-and-one-half car garage.

Arkla Industries plans to collect operational data on the house for at least a year.

Two and a half stories high, the house has four bedrooms three and a half baths, a full basement with recreational and storage area.

The entire solar package for the house was pre-engineered and mounted on a common skid to permit a traditional heating-ventilating contractor to install the unit without special equipment.

The high-performance flat plate collectors on the roof absorb the sun's energy to heat water in the collector circuit. The hot water storage tank stores the solar-heated water for use during periods of no sunshine.

During the cooling season, solar heated water flows from the collector panels to the system and hot water storage tanks.

This hot water, in turn, energizes the unit's absorption chiller. The now chilled water then flows to the fan-coil. Air blowing over the cold water coil cools the home.

Heat removed from home during the cooling cycle is dissipated outdoors through the evaporative cooling tower.

When the system is operating during the heating season, it operates as it does during the cooling cycle.

But to heat, the solar-heated water from the collectors is sent directly to the fan-coil to heat the air in the home.

Also as part of the Arkla system, hot water for domestic use is heated by flowing solar-heated water through a jacket which surrounds the domestic hot water preheat tank.

Fabric Can Conceal Wall Imperfections

Have you ever thought about covering your walls with fabric to conceal imperfections, but lacked the budget for a professional job, and felt too intimidated to try the process yourself?

With fabrics and the "quick staple" method, you can cover imperfect walls. By using the same fabric print from floor to ceiling and wall to wall, you can also enlarge a small area.

"Cho Chu San," a flower and grille print on 100 percent Belgian linen, works ideally for complete coverage, and is used in the draperies, wall-covering and window shade in the room shown here. In utilizing the staple method, there is no wrestling with large, unwieldy widths of fabric nor any additional sewing of seams to contend with before installation.

A good starting point is the left corner of the room. Measure wall areas and estimate how many lengths of the desired fabric you will need, depending on whether width is 48", 54" or 60". Cut the fabric in lengths to coincide with the height of your wall. Most walls are about eight to nine feet high. Be sure to allow four inches extra to include a two-inch finish-fold at top and bottom. The only necessary tools are a hand-staple gun or automatic stapler; one inch wide cardboard or wood strips; hammer and small nails; scissors; fabric knife; folding knife; folding ruler; standing ladder to allow convenient stapling at ceiling; plumb batten with chalk line or level; and pliers.

Beyond the beauty of linen-covered walls, some other advantages include: no special preparation of the walls; no removal of old wallpaper; excellent acoustical properties; insulation; and the advantage of undamaged removal of fabric.

"The earth around the home does indeed act as insulation," said V.V. Vercoe, Residential Research Specialist, the Dow Chemical Company, "but only when the earth is in the path of the heat flow. The problem with conventional basement heat loss flows directly up the basement walls and escapes into the air above grade, completely bypassing the surrounding earth."

"Without insulation, the heat loss through one square foot of exposed basement wall is greater than the loss of the eight square feet of the foam-and-batt-insulated frame wall directly above it," Vercoe said.

"Placing Styrofoam brand insulation around the upper half of the basement walls interrupts this major heat escape route and greatly reduces the most critical part of the basement heat flow," Vercoe said.

"The high volume of earth that surrounds the lower half of the basement walls similarly insulates that area. Although earth lacks insulation quality, it certainly excels in the insulation quantity.

"Consequently, adding a one-inch thick layer of Styrofoam insulation to the top half of the basement wall reduces the heat loss from the entire wall by nearly 50 percent," Vercoe added.

"Styrofoam insulation is very effective on exterior crawl space walls and concrete slab on grade."

It is because of these factors that installation of Styrofoam brand insulating sheathing to a depth of four feet on the exterior foundation walls can save up to 10 percent of a home's total heat loss. The insulation, provided at little additional cost during construction, holds in previously-wasted heat from hot air ducts, water heaters, clothes dryers, etc.

"Thus the builder can insulate the top half of the basement wall at little cost, and the earth insulates the bottom half naturally, at no cost," Mr. Vercoe concluded.

Effectiveness of this type of below-grade application of insulation has been proven by years of Dow experience in placing insulation beneath Alaskan roads and airport runways, where the foam is used to prevent frost heaving of the ground. The Styrofoam insulation has demonstrated that it can withstand the natural rigors of this severe ground action and still retain its excellent insulating qualities.

Insulating Attic Helps Heating

Record numbers of homeowners are overcoming the high cost of home heating by insulating their attics. However, when undertaking this simple home improvement, do-it-yourselfers should recall that most accidents happen in the home. To insure a safe, efficient and trouble-free job, insulation experts at the Certain Teed Home Institute offer these suggestions:

1. Provide good lighting. Attics are full of little hazards which could be dangerous in dim lighting. These include protruding nails, uneven flooring and low ceilings. Adequate lighting can preclude a false step or misplaced hand.

2. Wear gloves. Most retrofitting is done in older homes where the joists and trusses are often badly splintered. However, the risk of splinters exists in newer homes as well. A heavy pair of gloves protects against minor hand injury.

3. Make a walkway. Many attics are partially or entirely unfloored. Since the ceiling will not support the weight of even a slightly built person, the homeowner should span several joists with heavy plywood sheets or boards. This provides a stable work platform which can easily be shifted from location to location.

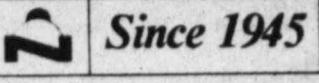

4. Be fire-conscious. Treat electrical wiring with care. Never pull or twist wires to make room for insulation. When lighting fixtures, exhaust fan motors and other heat-producing objects are encountered, simply cut the insulation to fit around them. In the case of loose-fill insulation, separate the fill from the fixtures by means of barriers.

5. Use proper tools. A sharp knife with sheath and straight edge permit safe, accurate cutting without waste.

Track Lighting Best For Showing Items

To insure a successful showing of shelves of personal treasures, a bold abstract painting or the rich color of walls, select track lighting.

To provide good track lighting without a complicated installation procedure, Thomas Industries has introduced a new power cube that promises to simplify the use of track lighting and its installation.

The power cube, a mere 1-7/16 inch square and 1/4 inch deep, is said to take the place of up to eight components needed with other track systems.

The new Thomas system is called Premier, and the small cube will power up the lamp heads on any number of configurations such as: (a) a straight run of track, (b) a joiner (it joins two lengths of track going in the same direction), (c) an L-shaped configuration, (d) a T-shape, (e) an X-shape and (f) a square.

The new system is made up of track, with the wood tones of the room. Two lamp heads at the left wash the wall with light and point up an attractive louvered door. Three lamp heads to the right highlight the pewter sculpture, a small family portrait, paperweights, wood carving of a wild duck and the books and flowers.

Accessories Can Create Mood For Bathrooms

Ever look at the pages of decorating magazines and wish you could afford the sumptuous bathrooms depicted? While most of us can't turn our baths into laps of luxury, we can do a great deal to make them more attractive or interesting.

Bathroom accessories are a marvelous, inexpensive way to create a mood for your bath. Want the romantic, yesteryear look? Wicker hamper, baskets and shelves will create a properly nostalgic atmosphere, and can be sprayed to match your bath decor.

If you'd like your bath to be a topic for conversation, there are many interesting accessories to "jazz" it up. The latest shower curtains, for instance, feature everything from crossword puzzles to graffiti designs.

Art posters, keyed to harmonize with your towels or shower curtains, can go on walls, or the back of bathroom doors for dramatic effect. (Be sure and seal posters on both sides with clear acetate, obtainable at any art supply store.)

A modern effect can be achieved in the bathroom by using chrome, glass and molded plastic accessories. An etagere of chrome is ideal for storing towels and other items, for example.

You can create a traditional effect with synthetic velvet or brocade shower curtains and window curtains, complemented with period-piece accessories that are readily available for the bath.

Don't overlook the possibilities offered by vinyl wall-coverings. There are many patterns to choose from in this category, some with matching fabric.

A more rustic way to treat bathroom walls is to "panel" them with diagonal strips of wood (you can find these at any do-it-yourself store) ... or, go "all-out" with elegant-looking, honest-to-goodness paneling.

customizing, or you can strive for a more unique look by sewing several small rugs together.

Get the maximum decorating value out of your towels by displaying them on storage shelves instead of hiding them away in the linen closet. Install shelves over wasted space above the commode; if you're short on space, you might consider breaking through the wall between studs and installing shelves or towel bars.

A little imagination and the right accessories can go a long way toward livening up that nondescript bathroom, without bankrupting the family budget.

INSULATE NOW!!

15% REBATE

CONGRESS has passed a bill which allows the homeowner a 15% rebate (up to $300.00) on insulating the home. This is more of an incentive to add insulation to your home.

Energy costs are continuing to rise at an alarming rate. Besides our rising utility costs, Americans cannot afford to waste what energy we have. One of the best ways to help conserve this energy and to help protect the environment is to have properly insulated homes. Insulation is the only investment you can make in your home that pays for itself over and over in cash savings to you as long as you live in that home.

Poorly insulated homes often are drafty, with cold walls and floors to make them uncomfortable. Insulation helps eliminate cold surfaces so that temperatures will be more consistent in the home, providing greater comfort for your family. More consistent temperatures also mean that heating and air conditioning equipment can operate more efficiently.

We don't use any type of cellulose insulating.

During West Texas summers, a large amount of heat penetrates the roof and walls of your home. This heat build-up causes your air conditioning system to work harder, thus raising your utility bills.

Adequate insulation in your home can prevent much of this heat from penetrating your roof and walls, thus lowering your fuel costs.

Winters in West Texas have a tendency to be cold, windy and miserable. The misery is even more acute when it's cold and drafty inside your home. Your heating unit may be working overtime to keep your home warm because of inadequate insulation. Proper insulation in your roof and walls can help your heating unit work more efficiently, thus using less energy and reducing your utility costs.
