

Dollar Hits New Lows; Gold Soars

LONDON (AP) — The once-mighty dollar plummeted to new lows Monday in one of its worst days amid concern for U.S. economic difficulties. Gold prices soared to new highs. Foreign exchange dealers would not predict how far the U.S. currency would plunge and some said only massive intervention in the form of an International Monetary Fund loan could rescue the falling dollar.

Gold bullion prices in Europe rose by as much as $11 an ounce, closing at $245.25 an ounce in London. Dollar selling led to more selling, and at each transaction, the price slipped lower. Few wanted to buy dollars.

Dollar Loses Worth The U.S. currency lost 2 percent of its worth against the West German mark and French franc, and 1 to 2 percent against most other major currencies. Trading was nervous and restrained toward the close, but as one Frankfurt dealer put it: "I haven't heard of anyone talking about a recovery in the wind."

The dollar's rapid slide over the past week apparently was due to skeptical reaction to President Carter's voluntary anti-inflation plan. Foreigners believe inflation is the central problem weakening the American economy.

Confidence Wanes Lack of confidence in U.S. economic leadership has led foreigners to convert their dollars into marks, francs, yen, precious metals or other safe havens. For American travelers or residents abroad, the dollar's decline means higher costs for food, accommodation and travel. But it makes the United States a comparably "cheap" vacation spot for Europeans and lowers the cost of some U.S. goods on world markets.

World Rates Listed Here are Monday's late dollar rates on major financial markets, compared with Friday's late rates: Frankfurt — 1.7265 West German marks, an all-time low, down 2 percent from Friday's 1.7615, and a loss of 4 percent in the dollar's value in the past week. For much of the post-war period, one dollar bought four Deutschmarks.

Wet, Cool Weather May Be Developing CLOUDY skies are expected to bring a 20 percent chance for rain and cooler temperatures to the Lubbock vicinity today, as northerly winds blowing 10 to 15 mph carry in a Pacific cold front.

The high today is expected to reach only into the 50s, after Monday's temperatures soared to 70 by 4 p.m. Tonight's low should be near 40. A slow warming trend should return warmer temperatures to the West Texas region by Thursday and is expected to continue for the area through Saturday with highs in the 60s and 70s and lows near 40.

Schools Seek Time For Appeal Reply By JEFF SOUTH Avalanche-Journal Staff SCHOOL lawyers said Monday they will ask the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for more time to respond to the federal government's request that Lubbock be ordered to implement a systemwide school integration plan.

Charles Cobb, longtime attorney for the Lubbock Independent School District, said the usual 30-day deadline for submitting a rebuttal to the U.S. Justice Department brief is too short. For one thing, Cobb has yet to receive a copy of the brief — even though the New Orleans-based appellate court has started the clock ticking on the timetable for the district's reply.

Horror, Humor Captured In Pumpkin Face Contest

By SHAUNA HILL Avalanche-Journal Staff A HATCHET was lodged firmly between its eyes. Blood stains marred the beauty of its orange complexion and its mouth was twisted into a grotesque grin. It was a horrible face and its macabre ugliness won its creator first place Monday in the horror division of the 4th annual Great Pumpkin Contest at Texas Tech University.

Landscape architecture, art, and architecture students created about 200 grinning, leering pumpkin faces and entered them in the horror, traditional, celebrity caricature, or theme categories of the contest. Gathered to judge the annual competition in the old Aggie Pavilion were Jim Zlagg, assistant city manager; Trudy Stevens, Tech police officer; George Bush, Republican congressional candidate, and Laura Bush, wife of the candidate.

Pumpkins were judged on effectiveness, originality and use of additional material. The bloodstained pumpkin with the hatchet was carved by Bill Vaughn, who received a $15 first prize in the horror category for his efforts. A pumpkin depicting the face of death with a scene of skeletons in its eyes won second place in the horror category.

Third place in the horror competition went to Kurt Zielske's gray "Jaws" pumpkin, which was in the process of devouring a mangled hand and a Lone Star beer can. The winners of the $15 first prize in the celebrity caricature category were Steve Cannon, Lisa Jones and Tait Moring, who entered a stark, intricately-carved pumpkin representation of King Tut. The carving featured no supplemental material but used the color contrast of pumpkin skin and pumpkin pulp to attain its effect.

The celebrity caricature competition is always popular and this year we saw a lot less of Jimmy Carter and "Stars Wars" and a lot more Kiss and "Animal House," said Neal Rassman, contest coordinator and assistant professor of landscape architecture. A caricature of Leon Spinks carved by Bill Wotterman, Billy Martin, and Eddie Urquid won second place in the celebrity competition and a Mae West pumpkin complete with long cigarette holder done by Monty Sooter won third place. Pumpkins which did not fit in any other category were placed in the theme category. "A Peter, Peter Pumpkin Eater" pumpkin with latticed windows and a little boy eating pumpkin on the inside won the $15 first prize award in theme competition. The creation was carved by Lesh Coder and Elaine Bohler. A "samurai vampire" pumpkin done by Tony Bruckman and Adalberto War-

Peace Treaty Headway Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan claimed "considerable progress" Monday toward a peace treaty with Egypt. "As far as we are concerned, I see no reason, no obstacle for not reaching an agreement," Dayan said after a 90-minute session with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance on a treaty text.

With the negotiations apparently back on course, Vance scheduled a separate meeting with the Egyptian delegation headed by Defense Minister Kamal Hassan Ali. And American and Israeli legal experts met to discuss treaty language. After the meeting between Vance and the Egyptians, acting Egyptian Foreign Minister Boutros Ghali said there would be a three-way meeting Tuesday morning of the U.S., Egyptian and Israeli delegations — the first at the top level in 10 days.

Very Constructive Session Ghali called the session with Vance "very constructive and positive." He offered no specifics, declined to take any questions from reporters and joined the rest of the Egyptian delegation in making a hasty exit from the State Department. In talking with reporters, Dayan defended Israel's decision to "thicken" Jewish settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River — a move that has drawn sharp public criticism from the Carter administration.

"We don't think the settlements are illegal," Dayan said. "We don't think the settlements are an obstacle to peace. And I myself think that whenever we see Jews settling on the ground without driving away a single Arab, bringing prosperity to the area, becoming farmers, producing agricultural products, I think it is a great blessing." Dayan said the settlements issue was discussed with the Egyptians at a two-hour face-to-face meeting on Sunday. But he said the issue was not discussed with Vance and other U.S. officials.

Breakthroughs Seen Regarding the treaty, Dayan said: "On the really tough issues, I think we are about to solve them." But he tempered this optimistic forecast by saying he did not know whether there would be an agreement soon. Dayan seemed to suggest it was up to the Egyptians. "After listening to them very carefully, and trying to understand their position, I still think it (a treaty) is visible and attainable and that we can reach an agreement in a short time," he said.

The spokesman for the negotiations, George Sherman, was hesitant about projecting progress. He said he would not disagree with Dayan's assessment, but added: "The negotiations continue because there are differences between the two sides. I suppose one would have to define progress in terms of narrowing of differences. But differences remain. I don't think anyone would deny that."

Treaty Text Discussed Dayan said the talk Sunday ranged over the treaty text, for which both sides have proposed amendments, and the future of the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza. "We told them what we have in mind," Dayan said.

Bandit Escapes With $200 Haul

A ROBBER carrying a long barreled-gun robbed the Poco Taco at 120 N. University Ave., of about $200 Monday night. The bandit, wearing a black hat, black vest and jeans, entered the fast food establishment about 9:10 p.m. and told attendant Josie Grain, 23, "Give me all the money — I don't want to hurt you," as he revealed a gun from under his vest.

The robber demanded only bills from the register and urged the attendant several times to hurry. He then fled the store running north down an alley, reports indicated. Police late Monday were looking for a Mexican-American male described as about 5-feet 3-inches tall and weighing about 165 pounds.

"We really tried to understand one another so there won't be any misunderstanding about it. There might be disagreement, but there should be a clear idea about one another's concept about it." The principal issue in dispute is how clearly to link a treaty between Egypt and Israel with negotiations on the status of the West Bank and Gaza and their 1.1 million Palestinian Arab residents. Egypt wants a firm connection, thereby showing the Arab world that it has not forsaken the Palestinians while concluding peace with Israel. Israel wants the weakest link possible, taking the position that the two sets of negotiations and the issues involved are different. At Sunday's unannounced meeting, Ali and acting Egyptian Foreign Minister Ghali called on Dayan and Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman in the Israelis' hotel headquarters.

Russians Draw Prison Terms

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Two Russians convicted of trying to steal U.S. defense secrets were sentenced to 50 years in prison Monday. The judge said he had no doubt the Soviet Union was "fully and completely behind what occurred here." The defendants were allowed to remain free without bail in the custody of the Soviet ambassador pending appeals, but U.S. District Judge Frederick B. Lacey restricted their movements to "secure the nation against the danger to the community these people pose at large."

They could have been sentenced to life in jail. Surrender Drivers' Licenses At the urging of the federal government, Lacey signed an order limiting the Soviets to a section of The Bronx, in New York City, where the Soviet residential complex is located. He also required them to surrender their drivers' licenses. U.S. Attorney Robert J. Del Tufo said U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell had decided it was in the interest of foreign policy to allow the Russians to remain out of jail.

Lacey said that the defendants, Valdik A. Enger, 39, and Rudolf P. Chernyayev, 43, obviously were acting on orders from "a very high level" official when they engaged in the activities for which they were arrested May 20. "That the Soviet Union is fully and completely behind what occurred here is beyond doubt," the judge said. Lacey said the New Jersey scheme was part of a larger network and said the stiff 50-year terms could serve as a deterrent to others.

Spy Increase Claimed FBI Director William H. Webster said in Chicago last week that the number of Soviet bloc personnel working in the United States had doubled in the last 12 years to about 2,000. The FBI in Washington said it believed the number of Soviet spies increased proportionately to the number of Soviet employees. Lacey said he wanted to prevent the Soviet Union from doing "what one of their leaders once said he would do — bury us," referring to remarks once made by former Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The judge rejected arguments by defense attorneys that the FBI may have been morally wrong to use a double agent to investigate the possibility of a Russian spy network operating in the United States. Lacey sentenced the defendants to 50 years for conspiring to transmit defense secrets to the Soviet Union. They were also sentenced to 10 years to be served concurrently on two other counts — conspiracy to obtain defense secrets and actually obtaining the secrets.

The defendants declined to speak on their own behalf, telling the judge they concurred with the arguments of their attorneys that the United States should not use "vindictiveness and hostility in its sentencing." Defense attorney Martin Popper said that releasing the pair would help the "larger good" in the interest of diplomatic relations. He noted that American businessman Francis Crawford, convicted on currency violations, had been allowed to leave the Soviet Union. He urged Lacey to "set an example ... to the benefit of the United States and all of us."

The two Russians were suspended from their U.N. jobs upon their arrest. After their conviction on Oct. 13, United Nations officials said steps would be taken to terminate their employment.

Lacey had said earlier that the pair "would do everything they could to destroy" the United States. Lacey, a former U.S. Attorney, said after the jury's verdict that Enger and Chernyayev had "demonstrated they hold no love for this country and would do everything they could to destroy it." He had allowed them to remain free pending sentence, however, when Del Tufo joined in a defense motion for their release in the custody of Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin. Del Tufo said he was acting "solely in the interest of foreign policy." The defendants were accused of conspiring with Soviet diplomat Vladimir Zinyakin, who was an indicted co-con-

Woman Held In Murder Of Couple

PAULA BRUCE, a 57-year-old Lorenzo woman, has been arrested and charged with one count of capital murder in connection with the Oct. 2 shooting deaths in Lorenzo of Valton Vernold Gandy, 73, and his wife Cora, 68. Crosby County Sheriff Fred Owen said the woman was arrested at 7:10 p.m. Monday at the Lubbock Department of Public Safety office where Owen had been questioning her since early that morning.

Mrs. Bruce is the second person to be arrested in connection with the slaying of the elderly couple. John Thomas Carter, 34, of 1608 Ave. R., was arrested Oct. 21 after he was spotted coming out of a 53rd Street Lubbock residence. The arrest followed an eight-hour stakeout by Owen and Crosby County and Lubbock County Sheriff's deputies. A warrant for Mrs. Bruce's arrest charging her with one count of capital murder was filed Monday afternoon with Crosby County Justice of the Peace Clyde Davis, according to Crosby County District Attorney Bill Marley.

partment itself had been granted an extra month to prepare the document. Cobb said he plans to ask the circuit court "as soon as possible" for a 30-day extension. That should give the district enough time to draft a reply brief and have it printed for the appellate judges, he said. Justice Department attorneys put their brief in the mail Friday. Clerks at the 5th Circuit said Monday they are aware the document is on its way.

Although the brief will not be officially docketed until today or Wednesday, Friday's postmark will be sufficient to meet the Friday deadline for filing the brief, clerks said. The Justice Department's main contention reportedly is that U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward did not go far enough in ordering desegregation of the city's public schools. In a Jan. 27 ruling, Woodward noted that 22 schools time were "racially identifiable," with minority enrollments exceeding 70 percent. Those schools were the elementaries of Harwell, Southeast, Iles, Wheatley, Posey, Martin, Bozeman, Parkway, Hunt, Sanders, Guadalupe, Mahon, Wolfarth, Tubbs, McWhorter and Jackson; the junior highs of Alderson, Matthews, Struggs and Thompson; and the senior high schools of Dunbar and Estacado. But Woodward said only nine of the schools — Guadalupe, Iles, Martin, Posey, Sanders, Wheatley, Mahon, Struggs and Dunbar — "have their present racial status as a result of past discriminatory acts with segregative intent by (school officials) and their predecessors."

The other 13 schools, the judge said, "have become so racially identifiable from factors other than any unconstitutional acts (by the school district). This has been conclusively proved by the statistics showing that at one period of time or another, each of these 13 schools was operated and maintained as a fully integrated school. "Later the enrollment in these 13 schools gradually increased in the percentage of minority enrollment, but this change resulted solely from the shifting of population in the district."

The department claims the school district manipulated boundary lines and used other devices to keep the school segregated by race. The department's brief asks the 5th Circuit to impose a "systemwide remedy" for integrating the school district. See SCHOOLS Page 18

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good friend shows you how to economize, so listen carefully to suggestions given you. Don't get emotional about a friend's worries for they become your own. Lend a helping hand where most needed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A public matter could cause you worry but alertness is wise and later all is okay again. Don't criticize higher-up or you get into trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A new situation arises that will be to your benefit, so be prepared for it. You have an opportunity to take a trip and this will bring good results.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will successfully combine the best of the current for a fine career, so be sure to give a good combined course of education for good theoretical purposes, and add psychology to the curriculum. ## Local IRS Recruiting Tax Volunteers

The Lubbock Internal Revenue Service has begun a recruiting program for tax assistance helpers and is looking for volunteer organizations willing to help.

VITA, a nationwide volunteer income tax assistance program, yearly calls on all volunteer organizations to provide the manpower necessary to help especially low-income, minority taxpayers fill out their 1040 or 1040A tax forms, according to David Flores of the Lubbock IRS collections department.

"We are looking for groups who can tell us how many people they can provide to fill out the forms," Flores said. "We in turn will provide everything else: the training, back-up assistance if necessary and all the blank forms and instructions."

"If the groups don't have a place to set up the program I can find one for them,"

Flores said. "I can also have somebody (from the IRS office) on the spot to answer questions or to stand by the phone."

The assistance program aims for persons eligible, for example, for $400 to $500 tax credits, but unaware of their eligibility, Flores said. Also, the IRS wants to reach other taxpayers, such as married couples with a child who are entitled to a return if they file jointly but who are unaware that this is possible.

The organizations which participate in the tax program may set up schedules which are most convenient for them, according to Flores.

"We just want to get everyone involved," he said. "We want to handle the simple forms which take five or 10 minutes to do."

The program is not for persons who own their own businesses. "One reason for the program is to detour this activity (the less complicated forms) away from the (IRS) front desk for the more complicated returns," Flores said.

Interested organizations may sign up for the program or obtain more information by calling Flores at 762-7424.

Pageant Finalist Replaced

Elizabeth Anne Robinson, 18, has replaced Sarah Jean Watkins as one of the finalists in the 1978 Miss Lubbock Scholarship Pageant, according to pageant chairman Cecil D. Caldwell.

Miss Watkins withdrew Monday due to conflicts, Caldwell said.

Miss Robinson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Robinson of Dallas, was the next highest point-maker in the preliminary judging held Sunday.

Twenty-one competed for the dozen finalists' posts, Caldwell said.

Beware Of Little Boogeymen!

GHOSTS, GOBLINS, witches and even a few princesses and a frog or two soon will lurk the streets of Lubbock with the familiar saying: "Trick-or-treat!"

Many children have spent the entire month of October designing their costumes and dreaming of candy. Responsible parents can help these excited little loved ones have a safe and happy Halloween by following a few simple safety tips.

Since ghosts rarely come to haunt during the daylight hours, motorists should be alert for them at night.

Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman Richard Grimmer this week urged all motorists to be observant of the young goblins out in Halloween costumes.

"Even the most cautious children, when excited," he said, "will cross the street without watching for traffic, jaywalk or dart between parked cars. Remember, even the best children get a little bit of the devil in them on Halloween."

A GOOD, SAFE Halloween costume should be light, bright, flame retardant and fit just right. Grimmer suggests that parents apply reflective tape to the front and back of the costume allowing them to be seen by motorists.

While dad's old trousers and sis's formal are among the favorite choices, to prevent tripping, they shouldn't reach the ankle.

Beards and wigs should be made of flame retardant fabric. "And check those props!"

urges Grimmer. "Do not allow your child to carry any sharp, pointed or heavy objects or candles and torches.

He suggests carrying flashlights or blinking lights. Besides, they are great for adding to the image of the goblin.

Let the personality of the goblin show through his facial expressions. Make-up is much safer and more attractive than a mask. Masks hide more than identity. They may also hide oncoming traffic hazards.

CHILDREN WHO normally wear glasses should be restricted from wearing masks. Dress up frames with colored tape, the DPS advises, or use other designs which will not obstruct the wearer's vision.

By planning the route of your trick-or-treater, you will be able to pinpoint possible traffic hazards ahead of time.

But no matter what time of the day or night, always make sure an adult accompanies the younger tricksters.

Finally, instruct your child never to eat any of his bounty until he gets home. Treats may turn out to be tricks.

Perhaps the safest idea is to plan a party or carnival in your home, church or community center for your children and their friends.

Halloween safety may require a little work on the part of the parents.

But the labor of love pays big dividends by assuring a safe and happy Halloween for the littlest angels (and devils, too!).

AN EDITORIAL:

The Bargain Of A Lifetime

FOR THE one in five among us who have hidden medical problems which may respond negatively to the accepted treatment for any of a host of common ailments, an otherwise acceptable cure literally can be worse than the disease—it can be lethal.

These are the people who are the present or potential beneficiaries of a 25-year-old success story called Medic Alert.

This is the program under which diabetics, epileptics, hemophiliacs, persons suffering from drug allergies and other medical problems carry ID alerting anyone treating them of their special conditions.

It is worth mentioning today as an example of a great public service that grew from a good idea.

MEDIC ALERT began with a slender silver bracelet engraved: "Allergic to Horse Serum." It was devised by a California physician for his daughter for whom anti-tetanus treatment had almost meant death.

The vehicle for the anti-toxin at the time (1953) was horse serum, to which the girl was violently allergic.

That first bracelet led to establishment of Medic Alert Foundation International.

In the subsequent two decades, growth of the program has been explosive.

It now numbers more than 1 million members internationally. In the U.S. alone, 7,000-plus new members join each month.

With membership, they receive a bracelet or necklace bearing the red Medic Alert symbol and engraved with an ID number, special medical information and the Medic Alert hot-line number.

Additionally, members carry wallet cards updated annually to reflect any changes in their conditions. Medic Alert's central file stores all information necessary to proper treatment.

It is available immediately to anyone treating a member via a collect call to a 24-hour emergency information service.

THE SERVICE assists thousands each year, often in life-and-death situations.

According to staff records, 2,000-plus members gave Medic Alert credit for saving their lives during a recent 12-month period.

Medic Alert functions today as a nonprofit, charitable organization maintained solely by continuing enrollment of new members plus grants and contributions.

For members, the lifetime fee is $10, with an additional charge of $3 when there is a need to update a personal file. In cases of financial need, there is no charge at all.

Beyond public service, Medic Alert has to be one of today's greatest bargains.

Networks Update B.S. To Win Ratings Game

WASHINGTON—The saying that one can't play God doesn't hold true for television networks. They are playing God every week, at least it seems like that when you read about the fight for television ratings.

In the B.S. (Before Silverman) days, the networks used to move shows around if they weren't working. But as the competition got tougher and the stakes higher, they began to move around nights.

Now that we're into mid-season, all the networks are starting to move their nights around to see if they can come up with better Nielsen numbers.

THIS IS WHAT is going on. There is a large boardroom. At one end are charts of all the shows on each network schedule and the nights they appear on the air. They're hung on hooks so they can be moved around.

Zellerbach, the network's Vice-President-in-Charge-of-Darkness, says, "All right, let's face it. Monday didn't work. Let's move Monday night to Thursday."

Trembling, the program director, says, "Wait, Thursday is starting to look strong. If we put Monday night in there we could lose our momentum."

Pitdown, the Vice President for Sales, says, "Where would YOU put Monday night?"

"FRIDAY," TREMBLING says. "I wanted to put Monday night on Friday from the start, but you guys fought me and said Monday night should be slotted on Monday."

"That was at the beginning of the season," Zellerbach says. "We had to give it a try on the night we had it originally scheduled for."

Ringading, the network's affiliate man, says, "Suppose the stations go along with you putting Monday night on Friday. Where do you intend to put Friday?"

"On Monday?" Trembling says.

"It won't work," Zellerbach says. "We're not doing any better on Friday than we are on Monday. If we're going to move Monday further down the week we have to move up something stronger in its place."

"WHAT'S WRONG with Wednesday?" Pitdown wants to know.

"Not Wednesday!" Trembling shouts. "Wednesday is our strongest night. If we put it on Monday we could lose not only Wednesday but Tuesday as well."

Ringading says, "I'm not so sure. If we could start off the week with Wednesday, we could pick up points for Tuesday as well as Monday, if it was slotted in Wednesday's place."

Zellerbach says, "We can give it a try. If it doesn't work, we can always put Wednesday back beginning the first of the year."

"Does anyone want to talk about Saturday?"

"DO WE HAVE to?" Pitdown says.

"Well, we can't leave it where it is," Trembling says. "I think Saturday should be on Thursday."

Zellerbach says, "Do you think our Thursday night audience can wait until Saturday to see it?"

"Yes," says Trembling, "because if we move Saturday to Thursday the other two networks will be forced to counter-program us with their Saturday shows."

"Once they panic, we'll move Thursday back to its original place and sweep the evening."

"Okay. That should take care of the week."

TREMBLING SAYS, "You forgot Sunday night."

"I must be getting groggy. What are we going to do about Sunday?" Zellerbach says.

Pitdown replies, "Why can't we leave Sunday where it is?"

Ringading replies, "Because we'll confuse the audiences. We can't move the entire week around and leave Sunday alone."

Trembling says, "He's right. Maybe we could sneak Sunday in on Tuesday, except for the football games."

Pitdown says, "Why can't we move the football games, too?"

Zellerbach says, "Who do you think we are—God?"

Mulshoe Reader Says Area Needs A Trained Man Now

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
I was raised in a Democrat home. When President Eisenhower ran for office I changed my voting habit. Because of my admiration for him, I started voting for the man, not the party.

Kent Hance has a very good record in the Texas Legislature. He can be sure he would be a good representative if elected.

George Bush is just as good but we will not know until we try him, and we don't have that much time. We need a representative now.

George Bush's father is a member of the Trilateral Commission which was inaugurated in July of 1973 as a policy-oriented organization based on analysis of major issues facing North America, Western Europe and Japan.

The Trilateral Commission has more influence on our government than all the voters in the United States because a lot of our elected officials are former members, such as Jimmy Carter, Walter Mondale, Andrew Young, etc.

There are too many to name them all here. How can we know if George Bush will vote like we want him to or like his father wants him to?

M.G. Killough, Rt. 5, Mulshoe

Labor 'Reform' Bill Seen As Threat To All Workers

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
The reasoning of some Congressmen as shown by their votes on Legislation of vital issues is a constant source of wonderment and puzzling to say the least. Take U.S. Rep. Krueger (who is running for the office of U.S. Senator) on two bills which are directly adverse to each other.

First, The Right to Work Law which he approves, and second, The National Labor Relations Bill (S. 1483), sold to the American public as Labor Law "Reform," which he also approves.

The first, Right to Work, is good for Texas and for the country. Under Right to Work, Texas led the whole nation over a 10-year period, 1966 to 1976, in manufacturing jobs gained by a total of 234,360 for a whopping 37 percent gain.

This accounted for more than 100 new employees every working day with more than an increase of $14 billion in wages in 1974 alone. During this same period, New York State which has forced unionism showed a job loss of 454,000.

But, Rep. Krueger would negate all of these benefits when he votes for the Labor "Reform" Bill.

Labor bosses currently control only 20 percent of the working force through unions. When this bill passes, if it does, and is fully implemented, it will result in repeal of Right to Work and Common Situs which has been the main goal of Big Labor for many years.

It will give unprecedented powers over every facet of American life to a mere handful of Labor bosses.

All 100 million workers in the private sector, public service, educational, professional and even the military could face compulsory union dues and fees for any kind of partisan political activity that these bosses desire.

There will be no way—no way—for nonunion and union workers to defend themselves.

The record discloses that as Labor gets bigger and bigger and more and more powerful it moves at the same time and at the same speed toward the goal of "nothingness and insignificance of the individual."

Modern history shows that "democracy" is no inherent and absolute defense against the pernicious increase of Labor strength.

It is not how it gets its power but the amount of power it gets that determines the fate of each and every individual John and Jane Doe who will be subject to Labor's (with the blessing of President Carter and Congress) jurisdiction.

Nov. 7 will be the moment of truth for those who seek public office and for those of us who put them there. Forget Party labels and vote American. In Texas, vote for the candidate who is for Texas, Texans, and let us control our own destiny and future. Rep. Krueger cannot have his cake and eat it too.

Ted Babain, 3512 38th St.

Lawyers Vs. Businessmen Issue In Race, He Claims

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
I am not now and have never been associated with any political party. There have always been both good and bad apples in both parties.

Over the years I have come to realize that the first and most important thing to consider in an election is the candidate's profession. If it is businessman versus lawyer, I'll take the businessman every time.

A lawyer is a person that makes the biggest part of his income off other people's misfortune. By and large, he knows very little about competition in business, cost accounting, personnel management, supply and demand, and in general, this free enterprise system of ours.

He just knows that he gets a premium price for untagging this balled-up mess we call our legal system that his predecessors originally created. When he becomes financially independent in his own law practice, he will often times seek public office.

Usually he will win because of his smooth cool way of conducting himself refined by years of courtroom experience. He will usually win repeatedly and become a political parasite within our system.

Lawyers far outnumber all other professions combined on Capitol Hill. By promising anything for a vote, our national wealth is disappearing at the rate of $30 billion a year.

You may say that this is a big generalization but please ask yourself one question. Would a businessman waste money like that? After building and nurturing a business, would he have a tendency to throw it all away?

As voters, we have two match-ups in the November election. Hance against Bush for Congress and Hill against Clements for Governor.

Bush is a businessman. Hance is a lawyer. Clements is a businessman, Hill is a lawyer.

Let's let them do what they can do best—be lawyers.

Jim Beck, 3814 28th St.

Reader Says Area Should Be Proud Of Hance Stance

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
Was pleased you came out for Kent Hance. I think when all the truth comes out, America will be proud of a Christian man, not because he is a Democrat, but because of what he stands for.

When he goes to Washington we will not have another "new world order" man to cause thousands of deaths, money and food flowing into Communist countries.

I know Hance will not fall for David Rockefeller like Mr. Carter. In 1973, David invited Carter to become a member of the Trilateral Commission. By the time dessert was served, Jimmy was ready.

Was anyone surprised by George Bush's noted supporters?

City Man Deplores Charge Of 'Outsider' In Contest

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
When are politicians like Kent Hance going to learn that the voting public is more interested in the policies affecting their lives today than the mud-slinging campaign he is conducting?

George Bush may not have lived in this area all his life but he is a resident here and now and he cares about this area now. I have not lived in this area all my life either. According to Mr. Hance, does this mean that I am not qualified to vote in this election?

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Grab The Flit Gun

NOW THAT WE know how much the candidates are throwing around in this year's elections, it's plain to see we have been underestimating the boys. Clearly, there's no such thing as a "cheap" politician.

"Greedy," maybe, and "opportunistic." Even "crooked." But "cheap"? No way.

By the time all the bills are in—and that will be long after the votes are tallied—the campaign costs for the 1978 Congressional and gubernatorial races are expected to top $200 million.

Now that's nine-digit territory, folks. Double what the last midterm elections cost in 1974.

A big chunk of that comes out of our own pockets voluntarily, through individual contributions.

AN EVEN BIGGER total comes from the political action committees (PACs) of which there are 1,700. And don't think for a minute we don't pay for that, too, in higher labor costs and puffed-up prices.

The PACs, which have almost tripled in the last three years, concentrate on sprinkling their dollar-dust mostly among the hopefuls who want to be Congressmen. And those of the conservative bent are the richest.

The top three alone—Citizens for the Republic, the National Conservative PAC, and the Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress—are sitting on a campaign chest of almost $6 million.

Organized labor has already spent $13.5 million; corporate contributions are up to $10.5 million; and there's more where that came from.

That's as of June 30, when, by law, they had to come clean with a public account of their political spending.

IT DOESN'T, OF course, include the real campaign push over the summer, or the last-minute blitzes scheduled for the next 7 days.

What with the speeches and the TV spots and the supermarket drops, our eyes, ears and shaking hands are in for a rough time.

New Yorkers, for instance, are caught in the middle of the battle of the millionaires—for the state legislature, no less. The challenger is mounting a $150,000 TV and radio blitz to bring his total campaign costs to $300,000.

The Republican incumbent, who's spending only $100,000, refuses to blitz back, although he can afford to. He says it's obscene to throw that kind of money around.

Millionaire No. 1 says "You can't go elephant hunting with a Flit gun."

NATIONALLY, THE BIG bucks are going for the big seats in the Senate. North Carolina incumbent Jesse Helms has already raised more than $5 million.

In Tennessee, the Senate races are eating up almost $6 million. Even Maine, where voters disdain conspicuous consumption, is experiencing its first $1-million campaign.

There's a blockbuster $3-million Senate race in Texas, where John Tower is fighting to extend his 17-year run as the state's only Republican senator on a $4.5 million campaign budget.

Bob Krueger, the Democratic challenger who wants to move up from the House, spent $1.7 million on a close primary race and plans to equal that in the general election.

KEYS TO THE governor's mansion are gold-plated, too.

The scramble between Jerry Brown and Evelle Younger in California is costing $7 million, and in Florida, millionaire Jack Eckerd is spending around $1.5 million of his own money to unseat Reubin Askew.

In New York, the race between incumbent Hugh Carey and Perry Duryea will eat up $8 million.

And in Texas, the battle between Dallas millionaire Bill Clements and Democrat John Hill is budgeted at around $11 million.

The big question, with all this big spending, is what do we get for these almost frightening sums of money?

WHAT WE'LL wind up with, if you can believe all the political hot air coming at us from the television tubes and the front pages, is a carbon copy of the 95th Congress, which did not exactly cover itself with a whole lot of glory.

Especially in those last few hours of grotesque governing when, in a mad dash to get home and campaign, it passed 100 separate pieces of legislation, listened to a saxophone solo from one member, and whiled away a roll call with a rousing rendition of that old barroom favorite, "Danny Boy."

Makes you want to grab for the Flit gun, doesn't it?

HARDLY ANYTHING except a direct hit will wreck a soldier more quickly than lack of sleep. He has to get that rest. Haiti owes its independence to that fact.

In 1802, the guerrilla fighters in that rebellious colony were far outnumbered by Napoleon's troops. So those fighters didn't even try to deal with the French army in open battle.

Instead, they took turns to feint attacks night after night. The guerrillas got plenty of sleep. But the French soldiers didn't. By 1804 Haiti was a sovereign state.

Museum Association Honors Local Contributors

Three longstanding contributors to the South Plains cultural community were honored Monday by the West Texas Museum Association.

Dr. Alex B. Lacy Jr., director of the National Endowment for the Humanities, was speaker for the annual meeting at which "long overdue" Action Awards went to Retha R. Martin, F. William Holder and the late Loyd M. Lanotte.

"This marvelous museum building in which we meet tonight," former Texas Tech president Grover E. Murray noted in his presentation speech to the 185 association members and guests in attendance, stands as a memorial to the efforts and dedication to civic endeavors of Lanotte, who died in June.

Lanotte, who began his own business ventures as a delivery boy in Post and worked his way up to chairman of the board of his own transportation company, was lauded for his fund-raising efforts to build a museum "which would have regional, national and international appeal."

In selecting a person to head the half-million dollar drive to build the new museum, Murray added, the committee found "a special person...one to whom challenges were a part of life and, most importantly, one with the vision to look above the mediocre and to dream the big dream."

A delivery job with Dalby Motor Freight Lines that helped put him through Texas Tech launched Lanotte on a transportation career which climaxed as president with T.I.M.E.-DC Inc. and chairman of the board of his own Brazos Inc. He was a nationally recognized leader in the trucking industry and a leader on the Lubbock civic scene.

Martin was hailed for his many years of generosity with "talent, time and philanthropy" in many realms, helping to establish many cultural, church, civic and collegiate endeavors. Holder presented the award.

A few of Martin's interests have included the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra, Texas Tech University Foundation Board and President's Council, Methodist Hospital, First Presbyterian Church, Lubbock Boys Clubs, in addition to the museum association. He has been chairman of the board of Narmid, Inc. since 1946, building it to a chain of 22 stores and 3,500 employees. Dunlap's is the Lubbock segment of the chain.

Noting that "Retha has been one of the most generous contributors to the art collection of this museum," Holder pointed to a display case filled with carved ivory as only one of the Martin donations.

Holder received his own award from Mrs. Russell Bean who praised him as an individual "who has given of himself, in more ways, for more jobs" than others.

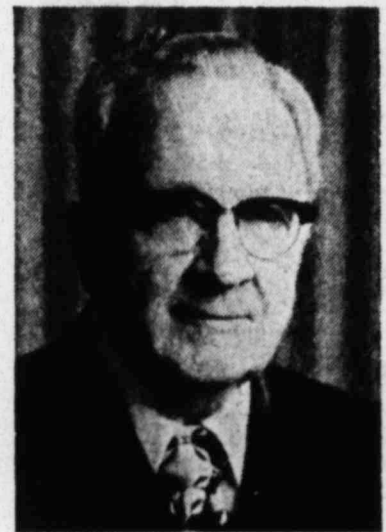

"He is always ready to help and does so with charm and flair," Mrs. Bean said. His cultural and civic contributions, she added, are "many and impressive," and include many offices in the museum association as well as work with the Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council, Texas Assembly of Arts Council, Civic Center Art Committee, Lubbock Garden and Arts Center and Lubbock Art Association.

Also at the meeting, Mrs. Bean was elected secretary of the museum association, along with Coffee Conner as vice president and Fred Timberlake as treasurer. Executive committee members and trustees also were named at the meeting.

Clues Sought In Murders Of Family

FOLSOM, N.J. (AP) — A man, his wife and their 3-year-old son were found dead with their throats slashed in their rural home Monday, authorities said.

Gary J. Deal, 26, his wife, Joan, 24, and their son, Jason, were found in their modern, split-level home near the center of this rural borough of about 1,800 people in southern New Jersey, state police said.

"I can't imagine anyone who would want to waste a 3-year-old kid," Sgt. Frank Schoener said.

He said all three had their throats slashed. Deal and his wife were shot in the head, police said.

"It was not a murder-suicide, that's for sure," Schoener said.

Autopsies were scheduled for Tuesday at Kessler Memorial Hospital in nearby Hammonton.

Schoener said it was possible that the family had been dead for several days. They were last seen at about 6 p.m. Thursday, authorities said.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are one person for sure who isn't in the hip pocket of the tobacco lobby. Do you have the guts to print this?

Although we now know that cancer is not ONE disease — it is at least 100 — some important strides have been made to conquer this most feared of all killers, thanks to the drugs that have resulted from government-supported research.

An organization called GASP has launched a campaign. Will you get behind it in your column? You would be saving lives. It's called: HIRE A NON-SMOKER. And here's why it makes sense. — I Want To Live

Dear Friend: Yes, I'll get behind it. Here it is:

NON-SMOKERS HAVE LESS ABSENTEEISM THAN SMOKERS. The U.S. Public Health Service Studies show that smokers are absent from work because of illness 30 percent more often than non-smokers.

NON-SMOKERS HAVE FEWER ILLNESSES. Smokers are particularly susceptible to invading viruses and bacteria. They catch the common cold 1.54 times more often than non-smokers.

NON-SMOKERS HAVE FEWER CHRONIC DISEASES LEADING TO EARLY DISABILITY. Smoker's diseases such as lung cancer, emphysema and coronary heart diseases often turn workers into permanent invalids, necessitating early retirement and costly disability payments.

NON-SMOKERS HAVE FEWER WORK ACCIDENTS. Smoking is often a distraction and can lead to accidents. (Example: Many car accidents occur because the driver was searching for, lighting or disposing of a cigarette and his attention was diverted.)

NON-SMOKERS TEND TO BE MORE PRODUCTIVE. They don't take time out for "smoking breaks," trips to the cigarette machine, nor do they fumble with matches, lighters and ashtrays.

NON-SMOKERS MAKE A BETTER IMPRESSION WITH THE GENERAL PUBLIC. Receptionists, salespeople and executives present a better image if they don't smoke. They smell better, look better and don't risk offending nonsmokers who don't like smoke.

NON-SMOKERS DO NOT OFFEND FELLOW WORKERS. No need to elaborate on this! Any non-smoker who has had to work with smokers will tell you what it's like.

NON-SMOKERS ARE LESS SUBJECT TO MANY OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH HAZARDS. When there already exists an industrial condition such as airborne contaminants, non-smokers do not further endanger their health with tobacco smoke.

NON-SMOKERS CAN WORK AROUND SENSITIVE MACHINERY. Smokers may foul instruments, making them inaccurate or, at best, necessitate frequent cleaning.

At a time when there is intense competition for jobs, being a non-smoker can be a distinct advantage. Non-smokers should specify on their applications and resumes, "I DO NOT SMOKE" — whether the question is asked or not.

NON-SMOKERS ARE LESS DESTRUCTIVE OF COMPANY PROPERTY. Fire damage caused by careless smokers represents huge financial losses. A conservative estimate by the National Fire Protective Association is that one-quarter of all fires resulting in property losses are caused by smoking materials. In fires where lives are lost, more than one half are smoking-related. Destruction, such as cigarette burns in rugs, on desks, trash-can fires and damaged merchandise adds up to plenty.

South was quite happy when he looked at dummy. It looked as if he could lose two trump tricks and still wrap up game and rubber.

His happiness was short lived. He played dummy's queen of spades and East produced the king. Now South could only afford one trump loser.

The normal play of this trump suit is to lead to an honor; if it holds, you return to dummy and lead a second time. This succeeds if the ace of trumps is to your right, but will fail miserably if the ace is to your left. After East, who had passed his partner's spade bid, produced the king, the heart ace was surely held by West.

This still left South with a chance to make his contract. He won the spade return, led a trump and stuck in his eight. It wasn't much of a chance, but it succeeded. East held both the jack and 10 of trumps and after this deep sea finesse they weren't going to do him any good at all.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I would like to pass along the following hint for owners of small dogs.
We had a basket with the usual commercial mattress which was not washable.
After replacing two mattresses, this idea came to me!
I took an old flannel nightgown, cut it the size of the basket, sewed it up on three sides, leaving one end open to be stuffed with old nylons (hose, panties, slips, etc.). After this was done, I sewed up the end that I had left open.
Then I cut up an old nylon robe and made a pillow case for the mattress.
Now I can toss the whole works into the washer and presto! A nice, clean dog bed that our little pooch can enjoy for a little while longer (and will surely get dirty in just a short time). — Mrs. Robert Franta er the pan with a piece of foil. Hours or days later the paint is still soft and fresh. — A Reader

DEAR HELOISE:
When I was arranging dried flowers in a pottery bowl the other day, I used a wad of damp newspaper in the bottom of the bowl and stuck the stems through it. Then I tucked more damp paper around the stems and in corners of the bowl.
Bits of dried leaves and flowers covered the paper at the top of the bowl, so it didn't show.
The arrangement was held firmly in place as the paper dried.
Looked so pretty, and very fallish! — Emma Losee

DEAR HELOISE:
When I bake, I use a one-third cup measure more often than any other one.
I was tired of looking down into the measuring cup to try to find that one-third cup line.
What to do?
I took one-third cup of water and poured it into a small plastic bottle, drew a line and cut the top off at the line. (After pouring the water out, of course.)
This is the neatest measurer and since it's different from my other measuring cup, I can spot it easily.
Sure saves time and aggravation. — Annie Clendenning

HOT IDEAS
In the British Isles, lighting bonfires on Halloween is a time-honored practice, once believed to drive away evil spirits. Girls sometimes put chestnuts in the fire with their lovers' names on them. Those that burn evenly indicate a true and faithful lover, while those that crack or burst supposedly identify a faithless flirt.

DEAR HELOISE:
I have two grandchildren, a boy and a girl, and both are 2 years old.
One afternoon while baby-sitting with them, I needed something to entertain them.
I got a pair of old nylon stockings and I had the babies stuff small plastic toys (that they had become tired of playing with) into the stockings.
When the stockings were 3/4 full, I tied a knot in the top and the children pulled the stockings behind them for a choo-choo train.
They couldn't hurt themselves, each other, or the furniture, and the same tired little toys took on different dimensions. — Nana Labit

Tune In Tomorrow

NEW YORK — She was one of the most uniquely appealing characters to ever come down the soap opera pike, even though her future mother-in-law once described her as "a refugee from Dogpatch." After this week, she'll be a refugee from "One Life to Live's" town of Llanview, because the writers have given her the boot.

Becky Lee Hunt arrived in Llanview a year ago, a young, skinny, awkward girl from the backwoods hill country. Despite her handmade frocks and hillbilly twang, Becky attracted the attention of wealthy young newspaperman Richard Abbott, who proceeded to play Pygmalion. Becky never quite became a sophisticated socialite that Richard's mother Gwendolyn imagined, but Becky did metamorphose into a country-and-western singer. It was also disclosed that Becky Lee Hunt was actually Becky Lee Jackson, the runaway wife of sadistic Luke, who had murdered his own son after the lover boy raped his stepmother. Luke had led Becky to believe she had actually done the deed in, but, thanks to Richard's investigations, the truth came out and Luke was sent up the river after Richard foiled Luke's kidnapping of Becky. During those scenes, incidentally, Becky became more than a country-spun comedic foil. She, or rather actress Jill Voigt, displayed a dynamic range of terrorized emotions that had viewers sitting on the edge of the TV-viewing seats.

Now that the couple's various ordeals have abated and their paths are cleared to walk down the wedding aisle, they will be sent on a honeymoon — never to return again. At least not in the form and figures of performers Luke Reilly (Richard) and Jill Voigt (Becky). Reilly's exit has been long expected since he insisted months ago that he wouldn't renew his contract with the show. But Voigt's axing came as a surprise, most especially to the actress herself.

"I was told," explains the actress, "that when the writers bring back the characters from their honeymoon in a few months not only a new actress would be playing Richard but also a new actress would be cast as Becky. They explained that my interpretation of the role doesn't fit what they intend to do with the future storyline, and I believe they want someone who adds more glamour and has bigger breasts. I can accept the reasons for the change, but it's difficult to understand why they waited ten days before my last show to inform me of the decision. It's inconsiderate, considering everything I invested emotionally into the character, whom I truly loved. I never had an inkling there was a negative reaction to what I did on screen. In fact, everyone concerned with the show encouraged me. I don't mind telling you that it's a shock and I feel depressed about the whole experience."

Voigt was born in Neptune, N.J., but raised in nearby Spring Lake. She left home at 14 to attend St. Anne's boarding school in Charlottesville, Va., then received a degree from the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem. After graduation she came to New York, appeared in off-Broadway shows, spent two years studying and acting in London, followed by four years doing bit parts in Hollywood films and TV series.

But it was "One Life" that provided Voigt with her first major career assignment. Although she had never studied singing previously, she became a country-and-western song "freak" while preparing for her on-screen tuning. Voigt carried over her newly-acquired skills by performing in Manhattan bluegrass nightclubs.

Both her music and her warm, tender and infectious presence will be sorely missed by "One Life" fans.

SHORT TAKES:
ONE OF THE last obstacles Richard and Becky had to hurdle on "One Life" was temptress Daphne Fielding, a former girlfriend of Richard's who was summoned by Gwendolyn to lure Richard away from Becky. Although the attempt failed, actress Darlene Parks sparkled in the limited-run role of Daphne, and you'll remember that Darlene portrayed Megan Cushing on "For Richer, For Poorer" until that show was cancelled a few weeks ago.

ON "ANOTHER WORLD," Eric Conger has returned to the role of Buzz Winslow, the Wyoming ranchhand whom Rachel hopes will upset scheming Blaine's intentions to trap Rachel's son Jamie into marriage. Veteran stage actress Leora Dana joins the show as Sylvie Kosloff, Iris' real mother.

EILEEN FINLEY joined "The Edge of Night" as Joanie Collier, the troubled young lady who is haunted by her association with a religious cult group called The Children of the Earth. Lee Godart is another "Edge" newcomer as Elliott Dorn, the fanatical leader and minister of the cult. And don't be surprised if this storyline contains shades of Charlie Manson and his followers.

Tune in tomorrow but beware of getting tangled in the web.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What does the medical term Still's disease mean, and what are its symptoms? Will it lead to crippling conditions later? Is there a cure for it? — M.L.B.

When rheumatoid arthritis occurs in infants or children it is called Still's disease (after the physician who first described it). It is similar to the adult version. Rash, fever, iritis (inflammation of the iris of the eye), enlarged spleen and lymph node disorders often accompany it. Sometimes they appear before the arthritis. In some, an enlarged liver is present (Felty's syndrome). The telltale rheumatoid factor, a particular type of protein found in adult arthritis, is usually absent in the childhood version.

Treatment is about the same as with adult arthritis, except that some of the helpful drugs cannot be used — hydroxychloroquine and indomethacin, for example. Aspirin can be used in carefully-rising doses. Frequent eye examinations should be made. Exercises that can be tolerated are helpful.

The future depends in any individual case on which parts of the total picture are present. The outlook is much better than in the arthritis that appears at adulthood. Complete recovery occurs in from 75 to 80 percent of the cases.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been taking Colbenemid for more than 10 years for my gout. I have only had a few tests for uric acid. I am now having such a feeling of heat and itching in my arms, face and back. I can tolerate it during the day, but my nights are miserable. Could my medicine be causing it? Can I get blood tests done without going through my doctor? He is a fine man, but the few times I have had to go see him he always writes down good. Can you tell me anything about this medicine? — L.B.

Colbenemid is the manufacturer's name for a pill that contains two drugs — probenecid and colchicine. The combination is effective in controlling gout. The first (probenecid) helps the kidneys rid the body of uric acid, which causes the gout deposits. The other helps relieve the pain.

There are many possible reactions to the medicine, and itching can be one. If you have had no gout symptoms over the years, I would say the medicine is doing the job for you. You should report the itching to your doctor. He may adjust the dosage.

You can have blood tests on your own, but I doubt they would tell you much, except that the uric acid level is or is not acceptable. That is why the doctor is there — to interpret the results. You may be interested in my booklet, Gout, The Modern Way to Control It. For a copy, send 50 cents to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Two other points about your medicine. Aspirin should not be used with it, because it interferes with its action. Also be sure you are getting adequate fluids.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain what causes a person's ears to crackle when on high ground, also when in a high apartment? Is it harmful? — T.P.

Thinning of the atmosphere creates a difference in pressure from inside to the ear, causing the noises. The same thing that happens when taking off or landing in an airplane. The ears usually adjust well to the conditions you mention — high ground or high-level apartments.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that pot smoking can make a man's breasts enlarge like a woman's? — B.R.

This phenomenon has been noted, but I cannot tell you how frequently it occurs. Enlargement of male breasts is called gynecomastia. Other drugs, such as digitals and reserpine, may also cause it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About six months ago I had my spleen removed because of an injury. Since then I have caught cold frequently and have not been able to get rid of them for weeks. Are the two events connected — the spleen removal and the colds? — J.G.

Could be. Your resistance to infection can be reduced after spleen removal.

man to Health Sciences Center Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Jos Gonzales Pesina told sheriff's deputies he got into a fight about 1 a.m. and was being escorted out of the nightclub when a club employee stabbed him.

Reports show Pesina's 19-year-old brother also was injured during the altercation, but not seriously. Deputies were told the suspect was a middle-aged, heavy-set Mexican-American with graying black hair and wearing glasses.

In another reported assault, Richard L. Shiers, 48, of Lubbock told police he and his wife were playing golf about 3:30 p.m. Sunday at a local country club when he was shot in the ear and chest. Shiers' injuries were not serious, reports indicate.

Shiers said he heard shots and then felt pellets striking him. The victim said he saw two boys and a young man with shotguns in a pickup truck parked near the course.

The suspects, all believed to be white, reportedly drove off when Shiers walked over to talk to them.

Police about 7:15 p.m. Sunday met with a 20-year-old woman who said she was assaulted after surprising burglars inside her house.

Jan Carol Flowers said she entered her residence and was turning on lights when she noticed her back door open. She said she saw a black woman running for her front door and a short white man coming at her with a "short black stick."

Reports show the man struck Miss Flowers in the forehead, knocking her out for several minutes. The woman said that, after regaining consciousness, she lay on the floor until she was sure the burglars had left and then got up to call police.

Nothing apparently was taken from the house, according to police, but items wrapped in two bedspreads and a pillow case found in a back room are thought to have been the burglars' intended loot.

A 23-year-old Lubbock woman told police her husband beat her up about 7:45 p.m. Sunday. She said she was hit in the jaw and her face was slammed to the cement floor three times.

A burglary about 12:45 a.m. Monday resulted in the arrest of a 20-year-old Lubbock man.

Police answering an alarm at Brown's Pool Hall, 2020 Idalou Road, entered the business and found the suspect sitting in a chair in a back room. The man was taken to the county jail.

Sheriff's deputies Monday were investigating the theft of parts from a Model T Ford pickup truck which Glen William of Route 9, Box 151, said he was rebuilding. The antique was parked near William's house in a cow shed when the parts, valued at $890, apparently were stolen sometime during the past week, William said Sunday.

Soybeans Uphold Reputation As Miracle Crop For Farmer

By RODERICK TURNBILL
Kansas City Board of Trade

KANSAS CITY—Soybeans, some years ago usually referred to as the miracle crop in America, still can be included in that category.

Utilization in the marketing year just ended has been estimated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture at 1,660 million bushels. A new record. And the USDA thinks utilization will be even larger in the new marketing year which is just getting started.

The figures for the 1977-78 marketing year still are subject to minor adjustments before they go into the record books as final.

Looking back through the records on annual disposition figures on soybeans in the United States is like looking down stairs. Every year, with just a few exceptions, is a step down. Prior to 1969, total disappearance or utilization—that is the total of domestic crushings, beans used for seed and exports—was always below 1 billion bushels. There was a big jump to 1,230 million bushels in 1969. Except for a year or two when utilization faltered, the annual increases continued until the new record set in the year just ended at the 1,660 million bushels. That, incidentally, is double the utilization for 1966.

American soybean growers were apprehensive a few years ago when Brazil emerged as a major competitor. Actually, what has happened is that the world has taken all the soybeans the United States and Brazil both have produced.

Admittedly, this last marketing year, U.S. soybean producers benefitted from a shortfall in the Brazilian harvest caused by a drought.

For some reason, some people believe that Brazil has outpaced the U.S. in soybeans. Comments are heard occasionally in talks about farming and in letters to editors in farm publications that Brazil now has the No. 1 position in soybean output. That isn't the case at all.

Brazil had its biggest crop of soybeans, 12.2 million tons, about 450 million bushels, in 1977. In that year, the Brazilian crop was only one-third that in the United States. This year, Brazil's crop, harvested in early spring, amounted to less than 10 million tons, while U.S. production is estimated at a new record at 48.2 million tons, more than four times the Brazilian harvest.

Brazil has had a meteoric rise in soybean production, from only 152,000 tons in 1959 to the 12.2 million in 1977.

And the big South American country hopes to continue expanding in soybeans, but there are difficulties. Brazil had only 1.3 million hectares, about 3,250,000 acres, in soybeans as late as 1970. In 1977, this had been increased to 7.5 million hectares or about 18,750,000 acres.

Transportation, as well as land, will affect future expansion in soybeans in Brazil. It doesn't have a good road system to handle heavy truck traffic. New development of land for soybeans apparently will have to take place in areas farther from the coast than the present "soybean belt." This will mean it will cost the farmers more to get their soybeans to market.

A visitor to the Kansas City Board of Trade from Brazil this last summer predicted his country might get soybean production up to 20 million tons under present circumstances, but after that the forecast troubles, unless, of course, the price gets so high investments are warranted in forcing the developments expansion will require.

Brazil, with government credit and government inducement, has increased its soybean processing facilities even beyond its current production capabilities. Domestically, Brazil itself is consuming more and more of the soybean oil produced, but meat utilization has not kept pace. Consequently, Brazil has exported more of its meal percentage. According to USDA authorities, Brazil hopes to increase its poultry production and that would require greater utilization of the soybean meal.

Argentina also has been boosting soybean production dramatically, but when Argentina puts more land in soybeans, it must take the same land from other crops, principally corn.

Paraguay is another South American country strong in soybean production. The crop was 375,000 tons in 1977, but was estimated only 275,000 tons this year. Paraguay also has a transportation problem when it comes to exporting more soybeans.

There are other crops besides soybeans which produce oil and high protein in meals. World production this year of high protein meals the USDA estimates, will be about 77 million metric tons (soybean meal equivalent).

Out of the total, the U.S. will account for about half. Soybean meal itself accounts for about 53 percent of the world's total production of high protein meals.

World production of oils and fats is estimated at 52 million metric tons. Soybean oil accounts for about one-fifth of the world's total. The U.S. output of oils and fats makes up about one-fourth of the world's total. Obviously, the United States still dominates in both protein meal and oils and fats, and most of this comes from soybeans.

The soybean crop in the United States this year is estimated at over 1.7 billion bushels, the wheat crop at just under 1.7 billion bushels. Wheat farmers reduced their acreage in 1978 under the government set-aside program and the same program is available for the 1979 crop. There were no restrictions on soybean plantings in 1978 nor is it likely there will be any in 1979.

It is possible, under favorable price and weather conditions, that the U.S. soybean crop in 1979, for the first time, could exceed the total on wheat. In that case, wheat would become third in line in total production as corn always is first.

Producers Praise Range Improvement

DENVER (UPI)—A new law that will pump $360 million into improving 170 million acres of federally owned rangeland in 11 Western states has won praise from the several cattlemen's associations.

President Carter signed the bill into law Thursday. The measure was drafted after a study found 80 percent of the rangeland was in fair to bad condition following a 40-year break in maintenance programs.

Roger Berglund, a spokesman for the National Cattlemen's Association said the legislation will increase the productivity of federal rangelands and institute a fairer system for assessing grazing fees.

The legislation ends six years of controversy between stockmen and environmentalists. The environmentalists claimed the poor conditions were due to overgrazing and ranchers should pay higher fees for use of the land.

David Rice, executive vice president of the Colorado Cattlemen's Association said the law was a compromise and the fee system would peg charges to market levels and costs instead of fees charged by private land owners.

"The new formulas will help individual cattlemen stay in business in profitable years and they'll pay more when times are better for them and less when times are less good," said Rice.

The maintenance funds included in the legislation will be used for improving the land and watersheds as well as setting up recreational programs and protecting wildlife.

Fraud Charge Follows Expensive Lifestyle

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Margaret Medders, who with her late husband enjoyed six years of Camelot on $3 million in borrowed money, faces a possible trial Tuesday on charges of larceny and obtaining money under false pretenses.

Mrs. Medders' late husband, Ernest, was a $65-a-week mechanic when their rags to riches story began in 1961, sparked by speculation that he might be heir to the $500-million Spindletop oil fortune.

The Medders were able to borrow $3 million—nearly $2 million from an order of nuns in Indiana—against the phony inheritance and for six years they lived among the Texas elite, throwing lavish parties for hundreds at their 330-acre home, Colonial Acres.

Tuesday, Mrs. Medders and her court-appointed attorney, Edwin Lenow, report to Criminal Court Judge James Beasley. Mrs. Medders will announce at that time whether she will enter a guilty plea or request a trial, the district attorney general's office said Monday.

Mrs. Medders, 58, was indicted by a Shelby County grand jury in September 1976, but was not immediately extradited to Tennessee because of charges pending against her in Texas. She was convicted May 4, 1977, on a charge she did not pay a $352 lodging bill at the Dallas Fairmont Hotel in early 1976. She was later sentenced to five years in the Texas Department of Corrections facility at Huntsville.

She was extradited from Texas this summer and has been at the Shelby County Jail East since Aug. 1, unable to post $5,000 bond.

The Tennessee indictment accuses Mrs. Medders of several fraudulent acts, including taking $24,800 from a Memphis woman, Nelsie Mulkins, for a third interest in Marest Publishing Co. Inc.

The indictment charges that between Dec. 1, 1973, and April 1, 1975, Mrs. Medders, as part-owner, stockholder and officer of the publishing company, represented to Mrs. Mulkins that the company was a "thriving and profitable business" and had sold nearly a million copies of the book, "How To Borrow $3 Million With No Collateral — The Medders Story."

The indictment also said Mrs. Mulkins paid $3,000 in March of 1975 for a tract of land near Jellico, Tenn., which Mrs. Medders said contained coal. Later that year, Mrs. Medders sold Dr. Mary B. Davis, a semiretired Memphis osteopath, the coal rights to the Jellico property for $4,000, the indictment said.

When the living was high in the '60s, the Medders couple dined once at Lyndon Johnson's White House and flew home aboard Air Force One.

The bubble burst in 1967 when relatives came forth to demand a cut of the inheritance and it was discovered Ernest and Margaret Medders had never collected a penny of the inheritance.

The Medders were declared bankrupt, but under Texas law were allowed to keep a 185-acre ranch and house, plus a Cadillac. The couple could not afford the upkeep on the ranch and it later was sold. Before Medders' 1975 death at the age of 75, the couple lived on the proceeds of the ranch sale.

From the number of ants that show up at picnics, some people believe there must have been more than two on the Ark. — Good Reading.

'Strangely Dressed' Americans Impress Chinese Journalists

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese journalists who toured the United States found Americans to be friendly, strangely dressed, hard-working and scientifically skilled, but questioned why so many turn to drugs or religion.

Other things that made an impression: joggers, dirt in New York City, tipping, orderly traffic and "annoying" television commercials.

"We should study their science but refuse their philosophy," Wang Jo-shui concluded in a series of articles in the Communist Party newspaper People's Daily based on a three-week tour he and fellow journalist Feng Hsi-liang made of America.

But Wang also said that while the bourgeois lifestyle is "eat, drink and be merry" and Americans call themselves a consumer society, there is no consumption without production.

Schools Seek Appeal Case Reply Time

Superintendent Ed Irons said he is not dismayed by the Justice Department appeal. He said he believes the district can win its case — if not at the 5th Circuit, then at the Supreme Court.

Woodward, Irons said, "tailored his order to exactly what the Supreme Court has been saying" in recent desegregation cases.

Woodward detailed why only nine schools were found to be remnants of unlawful segregation, and then "he made the remedy fit the violations," Irons said.

Throat Spasms Plague Actress

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor, who was hospitalized after choking on a chicken bone Oct. 12, visited her doctor Monday after experiencing throat spasms.

Miss Taylor had some trouble breathing after suffering the spasms Sunday night, according to a spokesman for the actress' husband, senatorial candidate John Warner.

More Whites Flee Troubled Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — More whites fled embattled Rhodesia last month than any month since Prime Minister Ian Smith broke relations with Britain in 1965 and declared the colony independent, government statistics showed Monday.

A total of 1,490 persons from the 260,000 white population left Rhodesia in September. There are 6.7 million blacks in the country.

Only 286 new white settlers entered during the past month, a monthly statistical report said.

In August, 1,245 whites left and 1,024 fled in September 1977.

Smith's unilateral declaration of independence led to United Nations-ordered economic sanctions against Rhodesia. It also led to the outbreak of the guerrilla conflict that has torn the nation for six years.

The white exodus has increased steadily as black nationalist guerrilla leaders pushed their war against Smith's government, which in the past seven months has been biracial.

"Without the diligent labor of a great many workers and scientists, you can't imagine America's production rising to today's levels or how America could send a man to the moon," he wrote.

In the offices and factories he visited, Wang said, "there was not one idle person, or any idle chatting." For Americans, he wrote, "play is play and work is work. They are divided very clearly."

Everywhere they went, he said, they encountered good will and friendly smiles — "People were very willing to approach us and talk."

"In the view of many Americans," Wang said, "China is a mysterious country. On the other hand, in the view of many Chinese, America is a strange country."

Besides the contrast in culture and social systems, he wrote, there are superficial differences as clothing — American clothing that Chinese find strange and Chinese clothing that Americans find too boring.

Turning to America's narcotics problem, Wang said he was told it "is very complicated. Some young people have many contradictions in their minds, and if they don't take drugs they drink."

"They lack ideals, they feel life has no significance, they are dissatisfied, but they basically don't know what they need. Some youths think they can find the answers in religion."

"Few of us Chinese believe in religion and thus we easily overlook the function religion has in other countries."

He added, "In America, with such advanced science and technology, the great influence maintained by religion, can only be explained in terms of the needs of the ruling class and the people still being unable to grasp their own fate."

Some American youths, however, are content to find a good job and live a comfortable material life, not bothering with politics or religion, he wrote.

Wang's other observations: —Despite the great number of cars on American streets, traffic is fairly orderly, and horn-honking is frowned upon and infrequent. The sound of honking horns is constant in Chinese cities.

—Tipping is required even in some restaurants but service in America "is thorough, as long as you can afford it."

—American streets "are all very clean, with the exception of New York," where city services are hampered by the financial crisis.

—Americans are reluctant to live in city centers because of pollution, congestion and crime.

—In 1973, the first full year of the conflict, Rhodesia recorded a net gain of 1,928 whites. This was down sharply from the record net influx of 9,407 whites two years before.

But since 1973, the pattern has dramatically reversed.

Tribesmen Raid Town In Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Several hundred Javanrood tribesmen raided the town of Paveh in western Iran Monday and killed 30 to 40 anti-government demonstrators, according to press reports reaching Tehran.

A government official, however, said 11 persons died in fighting in Paveh.

The fighting between opponents and supporters of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi reportedly occurred about 350 miles west of Tehran near the Iraqi border.

According to early reports, the tribesmen — in tribal costumes and riding horses — attacked the town at mid-day as several thousand persons were staging a rally in the town square against the shah.

More than 1,000 persons have been killed in anti-government protests this year. Many of the demonstrations have been led by leaders of the Moslem Shiite sect, angry about the shah's Western-type reforms that give more freedom to women and redistribute church lands among peasants. Most Iranians, including the shah, are Shiite Moslems.

The protesters also want the shah to abolish SAVAK, his secret police force. The government said 34 SAVAK officers were discharged Sunday, but it did not elaborate.

About 100,000 government foes staged a march today in the religious city of Mashad northeast of Iran, despite government declarations prohibiting such gatherings, the Kayhan newspaper said. The demonstrators, reportedly led by Shiite Moslem leaders, demanded the establishment of an Islamic government.

Soldiers watched the demonstrators in Mashad but reportedly made no attempt to disperse the crowd.

In Tehran, thousands marched onto the Tehran University campus for an anti-shah demonstration. They demanded a new government headed by exiled leader Ayatulla Khomeini, who lives in Paris, and dispersed when it rained.

Forty-six religious leaders issued a statement denying they had called for a mass anti-government demonstration on Tuesday. They said a statement issued in their name had been fabricated.

Press reports said 50,000 persons demonstrated peacefully in Gorgan. In Zanjan, anti-government protesters reportedly set a number of fires.

In other developments: —Jaafar Behbehani, a former political leader, said today "the public will gradually resort to arms to fliht the regime" if it ignores public opinion.

Speaking at a news conference to announce his return to politics, Behbehani said he was in contact with all religious leaders in Iran and is willing to help find a solution to the current political crisis.

—The government said the flow of natural gas through a pipeline to the Soviet Union was interrupted when hundreds of workers at a major refinery walked out demanding higher wages and the release of political prisoners.

The line supplies the neighboring Soviets with about 30 billion cubic feet of gas annually, officials said. Saturday's walk-out, combined with a strike by about 400,000 teachers, means about half the country's public employees are on strike for higher pay and more political freedom.

Thousands of other government employees have ended their strikes on government assurances that their demands would be met.

On Sunday, thousands of anti-government protesters clashed with police in 37 cities around Iran and authorities said at least eight were killed when police fired into crowds.

Tanks and heavy vehicles rolled to Tehran University Sunday where more than 10,000 persons gathered to demand resignation of the government of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

The government said the demonstrations were spawned by communist dissidents receiving instructions from abroad.

Russian Dissidents Stage Hunger Strike

MOSCOW (AP) — Scores of jailed Soviet dissidents, including Yuri Orlov and Alexander Ginzburg, staged a one-day hunger strike Monday to mark the fourth anniversary of "Prisoner of Conscience" day, dissident sources reported.

They also said convicted human rights activist Anatoly Shcharansky had been transferred to a remote, strict labor camp near the Volga River city of Chistopol in the autonomous Tatar Republic.

"Don't worry about me. Nothing has changed in my condition," Shcharansky was quoted as writing in a letter his family said was received Monday.

The news about the three imprisoned dissident leaders was released at a news conference for Western correspondents by the Moscow "Helsinki" human rights group at the apartment of Nobel Laureate Andrei D. Sakharov and his activist wife, Yelena Bonner.

Fourth News Conference The hunger strike marked the fourth anniversary of the first such news conference in which the plight of "prisoners of conscience" was discussed.

The one-day hunger strike was organized by the prisoners, dissidents here said, to protest "the cruel measures, the barbaric treatment" at the labor camps where they are being held.

Many dissidents who participated in the 1974 news conference and subsequent ones have been convicted and sentenced on such charges as "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda," "slandering the Soviet state," or provisions of the country's treason laws.

The Moscow Helsinki group, organized to monitor Soviet compliance with the human rights provisions of the 1975 Helsinki accords on European security and cooperation, called for the repeal of those charges under the Russian criminal code. The group said the charges "are incompatible with the provisions of the covenant of human rights signed by the Soviet Union."

Excessive Prison Terms The hunger strike marked the fourth anniversary of the first such news conference in which the plight of "prisoners of conscience" was discussed.

The hunger strike marked the fourth anniversary of the first such news conference in which the plight of "prisoners of conscience" was discussed.

In one camp in the republic of Mordovia, 13 persons are serving the illegal terms, the dissidents said.

"As a move of humanity, all these people should be given amnesty," the dissidents said in a statement.

Alleged mistreatment of political prisoners cited by the group includes lack of adequate medical care, confiscation of mail and other property, persecution of families, forced labor, special diets, and the use of torture through hunger and cold.

"In most cases, this conduct is applied not only to prisoners of conscience but to all prisoners in the camps," the statement said.

Ginzburg's Status Reported During the news conference, Irina Ginzburg gave reporters a status report on her husband and Orlov. The two men were convicted of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" last summer.

Ginzburg, sentenced to eight years at hard labor on July 13, is allowed to write his wife one letter a month, Mrs. Ginzburg said. She said he wrote in a letter she received a few days ago that he was working in a glass processing shop "and the glass dust is heavy in the air." His job, Ginzburg wrote, is to help clean the shop.

"He writes that he is not allowed to write about anything substantial, but he sent two messages to his little sons," Mrs. Ginzburg said. "He is very worried about our financial condition and wants to support the family financially."

She said he received wages of 43 rubles (about $70) for his work in October.

In an unusual move, the Soviet court that sentenced Ginzburg ordered his family to pay his 1,500 ruble (about $2,270) in legal fees. Usually the defendant is liable for the costs.

Steven M. Higgins, Terry Rucker, and S. Carl Friedsan captured first, second, and third places in the traditional category. Large cut-outs and lopsided grins were hallmarks of the traditional Halloween carvings.

A "Zit Monster" pumpkin with lemon peel eyes and a number of protruding bumps, a "Wild and Crazy Guy" pumpkin with Steve Martin's round black glasses and a John Belushi caricature with a Michelob can crunched on its forehead and a hamburger jammed in its mouth were included in the entries.

Rassman said the pumpkins will be on display in the Aggie Pavilion until Wednesday.

Dollar Takes Plunge; Gold Rises Sharply

(Continued From Page One) $169.50 an ounce at the start of the year was gloating on the sidelines amid the dollar's troubles Monday, because gold has risen 45 percent in value since then.

Gold hit record high prices in both London and Zurich. Bullion closed in London Monday at $245.25 a Troy ounce, a record leap of $11 from Friday's closing $234.25 and a gain of nearly 5 percent in one day.

In Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion market, gold jumped nearly 4 percent in value to $242.875, from Friday's $234.625.

Meanwhile, foreign exchange dealers across Europe speculated on the measures the Carter administration might take to curb the dollar's dive. Tighter limits on oil imports, the U.S. money supply and government spending were long-range suggestions.

Hance Endorsed By Farm Group

A group of 27 South Plains agriculture and commodity leaders Monday night endorsed State Sen. Kent Hance in his bid for the 19th congressional district seat.

The area agriculturists represented about 10 counties, and included cotton, grain, corn, cattle, lamb, sugar and beet producers.

Group spokesman Ray Joe Riley said the group endorsed Hance because of his "background in agriculture, the fact that he was raised on a farm in this district, that he participated in 4-H clubs and FFA activities, his knowledge of overall farm matters, his dedication and service to West Texas, and because of his experience in service in state government (he) has shown that he represents and understands agriculture."

"We believe, therefore, that Kent Hance is the only candidate qualified to represent the 19th district in Congress."

SOVIET SPIES SENTENCED—Valdik Enger, left, and Rudolph Chernyayev, two Russians convicted of espionage, leave the courthouse in Newark, N.J., Monday. They were each sentenced to 50 years in jail but were allowed to remain free in the custody of the Soviet ambassador at the Soviet residential complex in New York pending their appeal. Thirty years' practice of law. Law trained — school of law, University of Texas. Citizen of the United States. Resident of Precinct No. 2 of Lubbock County, Texas.

The Interpretive Commentary in regard to Section 19 of Article 5, Vernon's Texas Constitution, Volume 2 (Justices of the Peace), remarks that: "The office of justice of the peace represents one of the oldest and most celebrated of English institutions. The office brought English noblemen and gentlemen into contact with the common people of the realm. They became trained in the affairs of government and in the administration of justice."

What would be your general guidelines in setting bail in criminal cases?

I try to weigh the severity of the offense and take into consideration the reputation of the violator and come up with a fair and impartial setting that will assure the appearance of the violator in court on his appointed date. I favor the law and would deny bond to a person who has already been bonded on a felony charge, nor would I allow bond to an individual who has truly proven to be a menace to society.

The requirements of the constitutions and the Code of Criminal Procedure; the recommendation of the criminal district attorney; the reputation and responsibility of the accused; the seriousness of the crime charged and the ability of the accused to make bond.

What are the principal functions of a justice of the peace court?

1) Handle misdemeanor criminal cases punishable by law set at $200 or less; 2) handle civil cases involving $200 or less; 3) handle eviction suits for possession of property or non-payment of rent; 4) hold administrative hearings on habitual violators of the traffic laws of Texas; 5) issue warrants of arrest and search warrants; 6) arraign defendants on misdemeanors and felonies; 7) hold examining trials; 8) hold inquests on deceased persons dying an unnatural death or without a physician's care; 9) perform marriage ceremonies.

1) Handling of civil and criminal matters within its jurisdiction (presently $200 but subject to considerable escalation if Amendment No. 5 passes at the general election); 2) inquests; 3) inquiries; 4) issue commissions for taking depositions; 5) ex-officio notary public; 6) setting bonds in felony cases; 7) keeping the court records; 8) small claims; 9) hot checks; 10) landlord-tenant matters; 11) any other duties required by law.

I support Texas State Bar President Cullen Smith's Citizens Legal Education Committee to promote greater direct access by citizens to the justice of the peace court by education as to when they need and don't need a lawyer — particularly in the fields of consumer and landlord-tenant law. Direct access has been very successful in several states and is an expansion of the idea that got its initial impetus from the Small Claims Act authored by Waggoner Carr.

Do you feel that the party affiliation of candidates is relevant in a justice of the peace race?

I feel that everyone should pick a party and work hard in support of the principles the party advocates. Some people vote in accordance with their party affiliation while others vote for a candidate based on his ability and experience of serving the public in a fair and judicial manner.

I should imagine that there are voters who will vote for a candidate because of his party affiliation; I sincerely hope that they will not only in the justice of the peace race but in every race vote for the candidate they think would in their opinion do the best job.

I believe qualifications should be the basis for the choice.

I believe the will of the people should prevail.

I believe in the two-party system; less is monopoly and tyranny; and more can lead to chaos.

Is there any issue not covered by the above questions on which you would like to comment?

1) There should be more rigid law enforcement against hot check violators; 2) Voting for Amendment No. 5 would bring the justice of the peace office up to date, which would in turn help lighten the burden now in our higher courts.

The qualifications should be raised drastically for new justices because this court and courts of similar distinction are the most important court there is to the average citizen as the average citizen has more contact with it.

The Interpretive Commentary mentioned above says: "Beyond the requirement of citizenship and residence, the statutes are silent on the subject of qualifications. The result is that the justice is usually a layman, with no training in the law, no training in the process of judicial thought."

The courts are jammed and new ones can't be created fast enough to relieve the load as one southern justice of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals some months ago told a Lubbock audience that if changes weren't made the taxpayers could not afford enough courts to handle the case load. The justice said for instance now one-sixth of the cases they were handling were of prisoners trying to get out of the pen.

The justice court should be armed with increased jurisdiction (Amendment 5 on the ballot is a good start) and justices be trained in the law — to absorb some of the load.

Defendant Silent; Judge Enters Pleas

PRYOR, Okla. (UPI) — The man charged with three counts of first-degree murder in the sex slayings of three Girl Scout campers stood quietly Monday as a district court judge entered three innocent pleas in his behalf.

Gene Leroy Hart will be tried beginning Nov. 27 in connection with the deaths of Lori Farmer, 8, and Doris Denise Milner, 10, both of Tulsa, and Michelle Guse, 9, of Broken Arrow.

Garvin Isaacs, Hart's attorney, said the defendant "stood mute" in refusing to enter a plea in Mayes County District Court. Judge William Whistler then entered three innocent pleas on behalf of the convicted rapist.

The judge upheld a defense motion that will result in Hart being tried on all three murder counts at once. Prosecutors earlier had said they wanted to separate the cases for trial purposes, but Assistant District Attorney Royce Hobbs did not object to the defense motion during Hart's arraignment.

Hart, wearing a blue sweater and dark pants, stood quietly as Hobbs read the three murder charges against the defendant. Isaacs tried to waive the formal reading of the charges, but Hobbs objected. He said the state had to read all the counts in a capital case.

District Attorney Sid Wise, who did not attend the arraignment, has previously said he will seek the death penalty for Hart.

Several motions were brought up during the 45-minute arraignment. Whistler ruled some of them moot and scheduled a hearing on the others for 1:30 p.m. Nov. 20. Isaacs said he planned to file several more "procedural" motions before that hearing.

Whistler has called a jury panel of 900 people for the trial and he said the jurors will be sequestered after they are sworn. The judge previously said he expects jury selection to take a week.

Few spectators attended the arraignment and security was relaxed. Hart was escorted to the courthouse by Sheriff Pete Weaver, who suffered a heart attack earlier this summer.

Fired-Up Falcons Romp Rams

ATLANTA (AP) — Tim Mazzetti, a Philadelphia bartender just three weeks ago, kicked five field goals following five big plays by a swarming defense and gave the Atlanta Falcons a 15-7 National Football League upset victory over the Los Angeles Rams Monday night.

Fired by a crowd of 57,000, the Atlanta defense blocked a punt, intercepted two passes, stopped a fourth-down Los Angeles gamble at midfield, and recovered a fumble before each of Mazzetti's field goals.

Mazzetti, signed as a free agent three weeks ago, kicked a game-winning field goal with one second left against San Francisco last week. He kicked his club record-tying five three-pointers Monday night from 21, 37, 30, 26 and 37 yards to hand the Rams their second consecutive defeat after they opened the season with seven victories.

Atlanta, 5-4, thus moved within two games of Los Angeles in the National Conference West race.

Mazzetti put the Falcons ahead to stay at 9-7 four seconds into the final quarter after the Rams gambled and failed at midfield.

Needing only one foot for a first down, Cullen Bryant hit the middle — where he was nailed for a 1-yard loss by linebacker Robert Pennywell.

The Falcons got a break on their first play when Alfred Jackson fumbled after a pass reception. Atlanta's Jim Mitchell recovered and advanced the ball 10 yards to the Los Angeles 33. The Falcons eventually reached the 13 before settling for Mazzetti's field goal.

Los Angeles got its touchdown on the first play of the second quarter on Pat Haden's 10-yard pass to Ron Jesse.

It came after Bill Simpson intercepted a Steve Bartkowski pass and returned it 24 yards to the Falcon 24, where another 12 yards was tacked on when Atlanta's Warren Bryant was charged with roughness on the tackle.

The Rams threatened only two other times, on their first possessions of each half.

Haden's 12-yard pass to Willie Miller, a roughing the passer penalty and a 17-yard run by Lawrence McCutcheon carried to the Atlanta 5 in the opening quarter. But Terry Nelson fumbled at the 2 on a hit by Rick Byas and Frank Reed recovered for the Falcons at their 12.

Then, at the start of the third quarter, Los Angeles moved to the Atlanta 32, where Frank Corral missed a 49-yard field goal try.

Corral also missed a 43-yarder in the final minute.

The Falcons played the final 33 minutes without starting quarterback Steve Bartkowski, who separated his left shoulder on a keeper to the Los Angeles 40 late in the first half.

June Jones, making his first appearance since the third game of the season, worked the second half and engineered one lengthy drive before Mazzetti's fourth field goal.

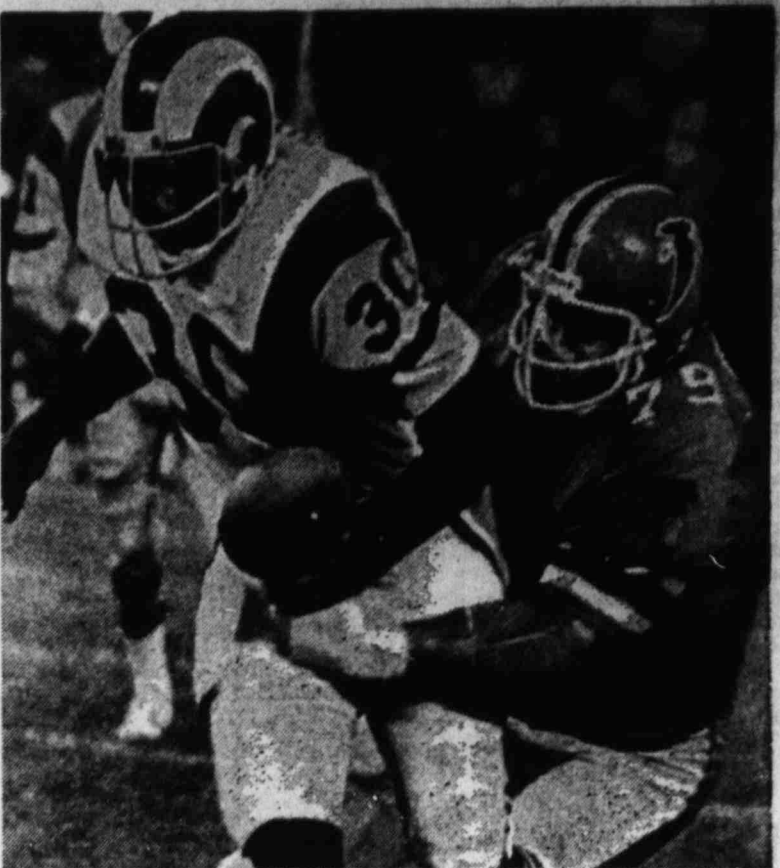

Mazzetti, who had tryouts with three other NFL clubs, got the Atlanta job after kicker Fred Steinfort failed to produce. Mazzetti, an American, was raised in Brazil and attended the University of Pennsylvania.

His first field goal, midway through the second quarter followed a blocked punt by Edgar Fields that gave Atlanta possession on the Los Angeles 23. He chipped the halftime margin to 7-6 just 27 seconds before intermission after Byas intercepted Haden and returned 5 yards to the 28.

Atlanta's only drive to a field goal came after Roland Lawrence's second interception of the night at the Falcon 28. The key play was a 34-yard pass from Jones to Jackson to the Los Angeles 12.

Mazzetti then kicked the field goal with 5:39 remaining in the game.

Mazzetti put it out of reach with his second 37-yarder with 2:09 left after Mike Esposito recovered a fumble at the Los Angeles 25.

AFTER THE ACTION — Los Angeles Rams runningback Lawrence McCutcheon (30), a former Plainview High standout, fumbles, but the fumble came after the play had expired. Defending is Atlanta's Jeff Yeates. (AP Laserphoto)

Don Henry Mirrored Opponents

EVEN THE LIGHTS were an indication the Raiders were working late at the office.

Rex Dockery knows the afternoon next Saturday will be long, so he spent part of Monday night preparing for it. For the first time this fall, the Raiders have worked under the lights, but it was the change from CDT to CST — and lab day on the campus — which had as much to do with late work as the Baylor folks.

But, even as Dockery was bucking his chin strap in preparation for the invasion of Bears, Baylor coach Grant Teaff was bracing for the Raiders. It seems as if each has great respect for the other.

At least the two coaches voiced those opinions Monday.

On a telephonic hookup, Rex talked to Grant and vice versa. But, each was in the process of talking to newsmen in the other's home city when the two spoke.

Even out of hearing range of the Baylor mentor, Dockery was talking in very complimentary terms about Baylor.

This was the team which proceeded to drop five tough decisions before pulling that shocker on the Aggies and outlasting TCU last Saturday.

DOCKERY WASTED LITTLE time Monday in praising the Bears.

"Baylor could easily be 7-0, or maybe 5-2," Dockery commented. "They led in most of those games going into the fourth quarter. Then it was a great loss to them to lose their runningback, Greg Hawthorne. He hurt us last year, and you hate to see anybody get hurt."

"But, they've got the (Walter) Abercrombie kid who is an excellent football player. We know because we tried to recruit him out of high school last year."

"But, Baylor is good size physically. Their offensive is as big as any we've seen this year — outside of Southern California."

Dockery then said that linebacker Mike Singletary is the key to the defensive unit and "as good as any linebacker we've seen."

"They have a good punter (Luke Prestridge) who is averaging about 40 yards a kick."

Tech Women Host WTSU In Tennis

The Texas Tech women's tennis team will host West Texas State today at 3 p.m. in a dual match on the women's courts at Tech.

The Red Raiders are coming off competition at the Abilene Halloween Tennis Tournament. Debbie Donley and Karen Schuhard both were eliminated in the quarter-finals.

LITTLEFIELD NEEDS GAMES

LITTLEFIELD (Special) — Littlefield Junior High School is looking for competitors for a pair of basketball tournaments. One, for seventh grade boys and girls, will be held Jan. 11-13 and the other, for eighth graders, will be held Jan. 18-20. For more information call Bobby Pylant at 385-3451.

B SPORTS

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Tuesday, October 31, 1978

WHERE DOCKERY COULD sit back a bit last week and enjoy — at least listen to — the other conference games, Teaff had to sweat out that 28-21 win over TCU.

And during the week of rest, Dockery saw his injury list dwindle a bit. Johnny Quinney will be back at safety, Dockery reported. Quinney sustained broken wrist but will be able to play, and, according to Dockery, linebacker Jeff Copeland should return, and Andy Thomas is "95 percent well" at defensive end.

The final decision is still out on cornerback Mike Patterson (knee) but another cornerback, Ted Watts, is still sidelined with a broken jaw. The return of Patterson will allow Randy Page to return to his offensive wide receiver spot, but Dockery said he would leave Don Earl on defense.

BUT AS STRONG on Baylor as was Dockery, Teaff matched him in praising the Raiders. His first point was to compliment Dockery and his staff "for the excellent job of moving players around and getting them in the right areas. That has to be a credit to the coaches."

"They moved (James) Hadnot (to fullback) and (Mark) Johnson (to tailback). They were good moves. And Johnson is a fine runningback."

"Tech has always had a physical, excellent defense. They give you a lot of looks, and they stretch you out offensively. This takes a lot of practice to prepare for."

"They have good receivers, they have power up the middle, and they have a good quarterback."

TEAFF THEN TURNED to his own team, speaking of Abercrombie as having "good speed, an excellent attitude. He is capable of someday being as good a runningback as Baylor has ever had."

"He needs to improve his blocking. Right now, he is not a complete football player, but he has a good start."

Teaff admitted the Bears have had some injuries, especially at defensive end, an area where the Raiders have been jolted (Thomas and Olan Tisdale).

Even in injuries, the two teams — and coaches — appeared mirrored.

Coronado leveled Plainview 15-1, 15-2 behind the strong serving of Tammy Edmonson and the accurate spikes of Lisa Spough Monday night as District 4-AAAA girls volleyball teams started second half of the league slate.

Miss Edmonson served for 13 points and Miss Spough hit 93 percent of her spikes as defending district champ Coronado upped its record to 4-1 in District 4-AAAA and 16-13 overall in the match at Plainview.

The Coronado junior varsity won 16-4, 15-8, and is now 12-4.

Monterey also won Monday night, dropping Hereford 15-11, 15-7 in a match in the MHS gym.

Janis Rhead hit 95 percent of her spikes to lead the winners, now 3-2 in district and 10-13 overall. Mindi Holloway got 9 points to lead servers and ReDon Terry was named the outstanding defensive player in the game.

Porkers Win SWC Crown

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (Special) — Arkansas sophomore Mark Andersen overtook defending champion Mike Novelli of Rice in the last 100 yards as the Razorbacks breezed to their fifth consecutive Southwest Conference cross-country championship Monday.

Andersen smashed the Razorback Golf Course 10,000-meter record by 16.3 seconds with a time of 30:08.7. Novelli finished in 30:14.

Mark Muggleton, Anthony Conroy and Pat Vaughn finished third, sixth and seventh, respectively, for the Razorbacks who accumulated 29 points. Rice was second with 62 points.

SMU 87 points on the fewest-points-wins formula.

Baylor was fourth with 109 points, followed by Texas A&M 131, Texas Tech 138, Texas 139, Houston 175 and TCU 256.

"I was hoping we would finish at least sixth," commented Tech coach Corky Oglesby after the meet, "and we did. But, we could have done better."

"We had some kids get sick. Robert Wilson was sick, just couldn't breathe (and finished 47th). Last year, he was 18th."

"Even though we finished sixth, we didn't run well as a team. I was pleased with Greg Lautenslager (who came in 11th). His time (31:13) was the fastest ever for a Tech runner over six miles (slightly more than six miles)."

The top finishers:
1. Mark Andersen, UA, 30:08.7; 2. Mike Novelli, RU, 30:14; 3. Mark Muggleton, UA, 30:27; 4. Manfred Kohrs, AAM, 30:29; 5. Marty Frosolico, RU, 30:37; 6. Anthony Conroy, UA, 30:44; 7. ## Everette Captures Demolition Derby

Ronnie Everette, after a season of turning the wrenches on brother Danny's stock car, got behind the wheel Sunday and won one of the season's biggest purses at Lubbock Speedway.

It wasn't a race car and it wasn't a race, but who can argue with a $500 payday?

Driving a 1967 Olds hardtop, Ronnie outlasted a field of about 16 cars and drivers to win the demolition derby that wound up the 1978 season at the south-side track.

The event boiled down to Everette and Harrel Whitehead in a 1970 LTD station wagon, and the pair maneuvered for several minutes before Ronnie feinted and managed to sideline the Ford with a bashed-in radiator.

A small crowd witnessed the show, but it was an artistic success; and, said promoter Jack Halpain, the windup of a "very successful" season.

"We'll be ready to go next spring with top-notch shows," he opined, "with lots of cars in the mini-stock class and a good field of sprints," in addition to the regular stock car mainstays.

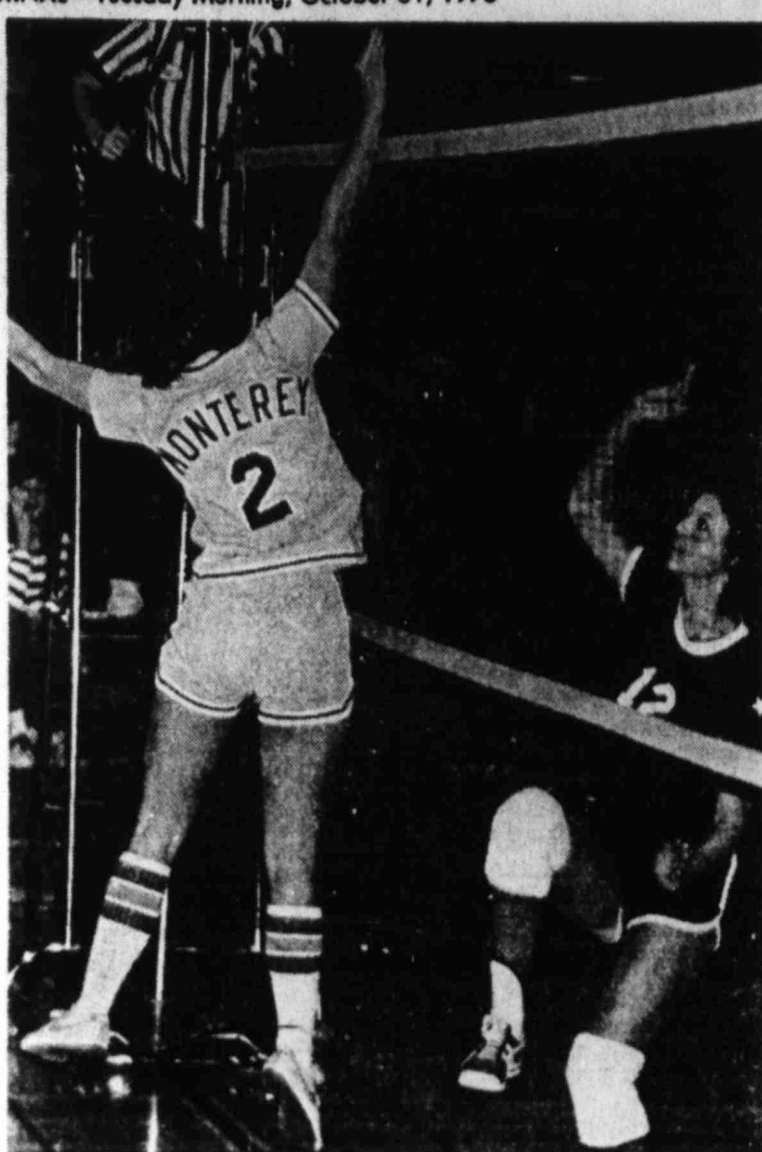

A series of novelty races preceded the demolition derby, with the highlight a race in which drivers backed around the track. That one was won by Carl Davis Jr., who went faster backward than some people were going forward elsewhere in the program.

Mini-stocks loom as a big item for next year's season. The small cars, according to Darrel "Butch" Butcher, who fields a Mazda, can be assembled inexpensively and put on a good show.

"I bought mine for $150 in a wrecking yard and have only about $350 in the car now," he pointed out. Butcher speculated that a mini-stock could be built for not more than $750 at the outset and operated at far less expense than the larger cars.

"There are lots of Pintos, Vegas and other small cars around, and next season there will be Datsuns and Toyotas running as well as the VWs and Mazdas already being raced. "I look for it to be one of the best parts of next year's show," he said.

Seminole Jumps Into Thick Of 5-AA Championship Race

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Just three short weeks ago, the Indians were in the pits. They hadn't won a game since the middle of last year, they had been outscored 19-71 and... well, things just looked bad.

Now, Seminole is mixing it up among the leaders of District 5-AA. What's going on down there?

"I don't know," said first-year coach David Bornstein. "We're just trying to stay alive I guess."

They're doing a darned good job of it. So far this season the Indians have beaten both Tahoka and Frenship. Neither had lost a district game until it played them.

But now the giant-killers are romping with the giants. Four teams are tied with 2-1 records atop the district and Seminole has already played (and beaten) two of them.

That's going from the wrong side of the tracks to the mansion on the hill in just three weeks.

What has turned the Indians around? First, says Bornstein, they weren't that bad to begin with.

"Our team played pretty well the first part of the season," he said. "We just didn't have it together. We didn't have confidence that we could win."

That's not hard to understand; Seminole won just two games last season and both of them were early in the year.

But the Indians discovered success — and in a big way — during their first district game against Roosevelt. They won that one 47-7.

"Before we played Roosevelt we had an open date. That gave us a chance to get better at some things," Bornstein said. "We're installing a completely new system out here and it's taking us some time to get it together. We got some things worked out now."

It seemed details were stopping the Indians before. Bornstein said they had been inside their opposition's 20-yard line 12 times in the first three games and came away with just 20 points.

Okay, so things are rolling. Then, against Denver City on the next weekend, they come to a complete stop again.

The Indians were walloped 27-7 in that one, and by a team that hadn't won a prior game. "We went over to Denver City and they were ready for us," Bornstein said. "They just whipped us. It's been like sudden death for us since that Denver City game. But I guess we're all like that now."

With three games remaining, the Indians have to play Post, Slaton and Cooper. Post and Cooper have only won three games between them, but Slaton is 5-2 and hot.

Counting against the Tigers, though, is the schedule. Slaton has yet to play Roosevelt, Seminole and Tahoka.

Frenship still must play Tahoka, Denver City and Post, and Tahoka must play Frenship, Post and Slaton.

If that sounds like a horse race, be assured it isn't the first in the district's history. Last year, Tahoka and Slaton finished in a tie and Tahoka advanced to the state playoffs. Two more teams were tied one game back in that race.

"We've still got some real tough games left," Bornstein said. "Our district is still up for grabs. Four teams still have a real good chance to do it. We don't have time to dwell on success at a time like this."

In other Class AA races, Muleshoe has a chance to put away its nearest competitor for the District 3-AA title this weekend. The Mules are 2-1 after beating Littlefield. Now they play 1-1 Olton at home.

Pretty much the same thing holds true in 4-AA too. Idalou (which beat Floydada last weekend) plays Abernathy this week. A win would put the Wildcats at 2-0 with Abernathy 1-2 and the Whirlwinds already safely beaten.

For the record, of the five teams in that

Jackson, Johnson Shine

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

All year long you've read about backs gaining 300 yards. You've read about somebody carrying the ball 40 times. You've read about someone scoring five times and you've read about somebody else making 20 tackles.

But this time there is a different kind of hero. Ernest Hemingway defined heroism as "grace under pressure."

Let's set the scene to see if this candidate fits the bill:

Trailing 12-11 with time running out in the fourth period, the Shallowater quarterback was injured. The Mustangs were playing Ropes and they needed the win to stay alive in the District 5-A race.

Where did they turn? Rodney Jackson, who had already played two positions during the game — split back and tailback.

Jackson doesn't fit the hero mold; he stands only 5-9 and weighs about 155. He's only a junior but coach Ricky White puts him in anyway.

And he comes through. Jackson carried the ball for 64 of the 79 yards the Mustangs drove and then scored the winning touchdown on a 4-yard run with 1:16 left to play.

All together, he gained 161 yards on 24 carries and scored twice. He also caught one pass for another 16 yards. And that is enough to earn him a spot on the Avalanche-Journal weekly Schoolboy Honor Roll.

He shared that honor with Amherst's Ronald Johnson. Johnson carried 20 times for 200 yards even. He also scored the winning touchdown in Amherst's 10-7 victory over Lubbock in a 63-yard run.

Half of a pair of junior cousins that handle the running chores for Amherst. Ronald has gained 795 yards in five games. His kin, Wayne, has 780 yards in seven games.

The win was crucial for the Bulldogs as it gave them a spotless 3-0 record in district play. They have a one-game lead over their nearest competitor now, with two games left.

Johnson and Jackson were in fine company. Slaton's Ricky Davis put together another outstanding game, getting 164 yards on 13 carries and scoring three (once on an 82-yarder).

Plainview's Ervin Davis carried the ball only four times but gained 116 yards. He caught another couple of passes for 77 yards and — most remarkably — he scored two-thirds of the times he touched the ball (four TDs in all).

Ropes' Mark Moore, a 6-2, 190-pound junior tight end, caught four passes for 112 yards and a touchdown and was in on 17 tackles.

Jayton's Robert Segura got 168 yards on 30 carries, scoring once as the Jaybirds tipped Loraine 20-14.

Kress' Eddie Johnson gained 161 yards on 22 carries and scored three times as the Kangaroos jumped by Hart 43-0.

Roosevelt's Roger Lindsey had 154 yards rushing and scored three times on runs of 32, 21 and 20 yards as the Eagles won their first District 5-AA game of the season, 33-16 over Post.

Football Brings Out Worst In Some Folks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Woody Hayes, Ohio State's 65-year-old football coach, erupted over a question about his possible retirement during his weekly press luncheon Monday, cursing a sportscaster.

A cable television audience survey, part of the filming of the nationally televised Phil Donahue show in Columbus last week, showed 56 percent of the viewers thought Hayes should retire. Marty Reid, a sportscaster for WCMH-TV in Columbus, asked Hayes for his reaction to the survey.

"You know those 56 percent probably weren't even living when I started winning here. I'm not too interested. It's more what I want to do," Hayes began. "I'm not going to worry about that. Sure, people are fickle. I don't much care. There's nobody around in this league or any other league that has won as many games as I have (235 career victories).

"I'm not going to let their opinion decide the thing. If you're one of that 56 percent, I don't give a damned about you either. Good day," said Hayes, ending his interview with the electronic media.

The Ohio State coach stalked toward Reid, raised a hand to belt level and said, "You can go straight to hell."

Reid told Hayes he was sorry the coach felt that way.

Shot back Hayes: "Yeah, I wish you were bigger and stronger. You're young enough."

Reid again apologized.

"Yeah, yeah, yeah," countered the Ohio State coach, "Talk. That's all you can do well. Oh, yeah, you're sorry."

Even moments earlier, Hayes did not explode over questions about the Ohio State athletic council voting against the Buckeyes going to any post-season games other than the Rose, Sugar, Cotton and Orange Bowls this time.

At West Virginia...

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — West Virginia University coach Frank Cignetti, angered by the officiating in the Mountaineers' 49-21 loss to Penn State, charged Monday that a number of "flagrant" violations were not called against the second-ranked Nittany Lions.

The loss was West Virginia's seventh in eight games this season and 20th consecutive loss to Penn State. The Nittany Lions are 8-0.

"There were three clips on punts not called," said Cignetti, whose team led 14-0 in the first quarter, only to see Penn State score the next 42 points. "There were some very flagrant things that weren't called. Things I'm aware of down there on the field."

Cignetti was noticeably angered after the game by the officiating, which was han-died by a crew of Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference officials.

He said the key play in the game came in the first quarter, with West Virginia leading 14-0, when quarterback Dutch Hoffman apparently completed a third down pass pass to Steve Lewis near the Mountaineers' bench. Lewis caught the ball in the air, but was then knocked out of bounds by a Penn State defender. The official closest to the play ruled that Lewis was out of bounds when he made the catch.

What About ASU? ..

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State University officials expressed surprise Monday at charges of dirty football from Southern California runningback Charles White.

The Heisman Trophy candidate was held to 59 yards in 18 carries as A-State upset the Trojans, 20-7 on Oct. 14. White's comments were carried in the Los Angeles Herald Examiner 13 days later.

"Those are a bunch of radical guys," White was quoted as saying. "One guy scratched my throat so badly I thought it was going to tear open. They were just a dirty bunch of guys. They'd twist your leg, grab your throat, and they had some guys that constantly hollered at you."

Frank Kush, Arizona State coach the past two decades, said, "In all the years I've been here, we've never been accused of playing dirty. We have been called physical at times, but that's what the game is all about."

A-State's 41-7 loss at Washington on Saturday was a more physical game than the victory over USC, Kush said. "Washington was as physical a team as I've ever seen," he said, "but I didn't see anything dirty."

This Coach Quit. . .

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — The offensive coordinator of the Colorado State University football team, who was restrained by his own players when he charged at a referee on Saturday, resigned Monday after being suspended for the last four games of the season.

Charley Arme's departure was the result of an incident at the end of Colorado State's 13-3 loss to Wyoming here Saturday. With only four seconds remaining, Arme went onto the field when CSU quarterback Keith Lee went down after a play.

Referee Gene Wurtz said, "The player is out of the game," according to CSU head football coach Sarkis Arslanian.

It is an NCAA rule that a player must leave the field for at least one play if he is injured and down on the field. Arme, however, apparently thought the referee was throwing Lee out of the game.

Arme went charging at Wurtz, only to be pulled away by his own players. After the game Arme tried to force his way into the official's locker room but was turned away by uniformed police.

CSU athletic director Thurman McGraw said on Monday he had suspended Arme for the four games left on this year's schedule. As a result of suspension, Arme submitted his resignation and McGraw said he accepted it effective immediately.

The CSU-Wyoming game, a bitter Western Athletic Conference rivalry, began Saturday with a brawl during the toss of the coin. Arslanian had his team warm up away from the stadium, sent them onto the field through the grandstand and allowed the entire squad to go to midfield for the toss.

Even Pro Officials. . .

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The temper of Joe Thomas, general manager of the San Francisco 49ers, may have reached the boiling point over the weekend when he tangled with a football writer in a Washington, D.C., disco.

Thomas was ejected from the disco, it was reported, and the manager of the place was quoted as saying, "I threw him out because he was making a scene."

Thomas declined to comment Monday on the incident, which was reported in several Bay Area newspapers. But on Sunday, when the 49ers' National Football League record fell to 1-8 with a 38-20 loss to the Washington Redskins, Thomas said, "I didn't lose my cool."

On Saturday night, Thomas confronted Frank Blackman, football writer for the San Francisco Examiner, on a dance floor and called Blackman "a damn fool" because of a critical story Blackman had written, Blackman reported in Monday's Examiner. As Thomas was pulled away from Blackman, he shouted, "I'll get you! I'll get you!" according to both Blackman and another writer, John Porter of the Oakland Tribune.

AAAA Teams Find Titles Still Available

By JIM FERGUSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

By this time last season, two district champagnes had already been decided in the Class AAAA ranks on the South Plains. But, oh, what a difference a year makes.

With only three weeks remaining on the schedule — some teams only have a pair of games left — nary a team has grabbed a sliver of the pie — much less made the thing all mode.

In District 4-AAAA, Plainview, with the loop's best record (6-1), has a half game lead over Coronado and a full game margin over both Lubbock and Hereford.

Since the Bulldogs meet Pampa Friday night in a nonconference matchup, there is no way it can alter its status. But that doesn't mean the Greg Sherwood coach team can't hope for a little help.

Plainview can sit back and watch as Hereford and Lubbock tangle in a contest which means exit for one of the other. Since each has one loss in conference play, another setback — even a tie — would put the dream of a loop title to sleep for this season.

Monterey, the only team that been given eliminated — because of its 0-2 record — can play the part of spoiler Thursday night by knocking off Coronado (1-0). If that does happen, Plainview would have a full game lead over the Mustangs heading into the final two weeks. However, CHS can pull even with the Bulldogs by winning.

Plainview's schedule calls for back-to-back games with Lubbock and Coronado in the final couple of weeks.

Either Palo Duro or Amarillo High can gain sole possession of the lead in 3-AAAA Friday night. The Dons and the Sandies are the only teams with perfect marks in loop action. And since they meet each other in Dick Bivins Stadium in three days, it's only natural to assume one will have a 2-0 record Saturday morning — unless, of course, there is a tie.

But the picture up in 3-AAAA is still a might cloudy, since four of the five teams — only Caprock is out — still have a mathematical chance to cop the crown.

Pampa and Tascosa are currently sitting just a game behind the two leaders, waiting for the right moment to make their moves. For Pampa, which takes on Palo Duro next week, it will have to wait a few days because of the nonconference date with Plainview.

Tascosa, though, can stay in the midst of things by whipping Caprock (0-2) and hoping for an Amarillo win over Palo Duro. The Dons have already beaten the Longhorns this season 33-19.

So in 3-AAAA, it's still anybody's guess. Midland Lee and Odessa Permian (both 7-0 overall and 4-0 in loop encounters) will meet Friday night in a much-awaited 3-AAAA showdown. Midland is the site of the contest.

The winner of the contest, which pits two of the top AAAA teams in the state, will have a leg up on taking the crown to the bank.

However, Abilene High, a 2-4 loser to Permian already, still looms in the background with only that single setback on its record. A date with Lee is still inked on Abilene's dancecard, too.

But it's the matchup Friday night that, in reality, should decide the district champion. Both have scored 124 points in district play, but Permian has given up 16 points in its four loop wins while Lee as surrendered 45.

For now, that's the rundown. But as everyone knows, anything can still happen — and chances are it will.

Jarrett Wins Match-Play Championship

Mark Jarrett had to go 20 holes to defeat Art Chavez, then posted a 1-up victory over Bill DeTourmilion Jr. 1-up for the championship of the Hillcrest Country Club men's match-play championship.

Jarrett and Chavez had finished the regulation 18 holes all even in their semi-finals match, then halved 19 before Jarrett pulled out the championship.

DeTourmilion had it easier in getting to the finals, as he tripped Curtis Mitchell 5-4.

This is the first time for Hillcrest to stage a match-play event. Next summer, the club plans to schedule the tournament earlier in the year.

Redskins Pick Kilmer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The great Washington Redskins' quarterback controversy was ended Monday, for the time being at least, when ageless Bill Kilmer was given the nod over Joe Theismann.

Cheer Jack Pardee told reporters there was no doubt in his mind who the Redskins' quarterback would be next Monday against the Baltimore Colts. "We don't make changes unless we have to," Pardee said. "After announcing who the quarterback would be, I don't see any need for a change after last week."

"I think we can improve on what we did last week, but I think we did a lot of things better," Pardee said.

Kilmer, the 39-year-old, 16-year veteran, got his first start of the season Sunday and led the Redskins to a 38-20 victory over the San Francisco 49ers and back into undisputed first place in the NFC East.

The 29-year-old Theismann, who quart-erbacked the Redskins to six consecutive victories before losing twice for a mid-season mark of 6-2, was benched Sunday by Pardee.

The Skins' coach said he made the move "to try and get things turned around — get a spark going on our offense, to get a little better running game going, block a little harder, runners running a little harder."

Since Kilmer's arrival in 1971, there has been a running debate over who would be the quarterback.

First it was Kilmer and Washington's all-time favorite Sonny Jurgensen and then, after No. 9's forced retirement, Kilmer and Theismann.

Each of the quarterbacks has his own legion of fans who are vociferous in RFK Stadium.

Theismann said he heard the cheers for him while he was on the bench.

YFL Holds 'Super Bowl' Tripleheader

The second annual Lubbock Youth Football League Super Bowl will be held Sunday at Lowrey Field with three games on tap.

In the A division (10-year-olds), Glad Norman Realtors, which compiled a 7-0 season record, takes on American Legion Post 808, 6-1 for the year, at 1 p.m.

Division B American League champ Furr's Family Center (6-1) faces National League champion Southwestern General Life (6-0-1) at 3 p.m.

Washam Steel, which topped Division C with a 6-0-1 mark, takes on Greer Electric (5-1-1) at 5 p.m.

Tickets for all three games are $1. Net proceeds will be divided between the Lubbock State School Recreational Building Fund and the Lubbock YFL.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The unfolding saga of Jacqueline Onassis has continued murder, betrayal, suspense, powerful men who have used and misused our beautiful heroine," writes Stephen Birmingham in his new biography, "Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis." Yet, in the end, she manages to triumph over them all. This excerpt from Birmingham's late of America's most watched woman follows Jackie into adolescence.

By STEPHEN BIRMINGHAM
With their separation and divorce, Jack and Janet Bouvier began a pattern all too familiar between divorced parents: an endless tug-of-war for the affection of the children.

In this angry competition, each parent trying to outdo the other, Jack was the easy victor. That did not ease Janet's bitterness toward her former husband.

Third In A Series

To begin with, Jack had the girls on weekends, and weekends were for fun and games. Jack saw to it that every weekend was a gala. There were pony rides in the park, trips to the zoo, lunches at expensive restaurants, skating at Rockefeller Plaza, trips to the theater and the movies. With Daddy, it was endless round of interesting and pleasant things to do.

The girls were given the run of his tiny digs at the Westbury Hotel. Though he could ill afford it, Jack lavished his daughters with expensive gifts and clothes.

His aim, of course, was obvious. When they returned to Mummy's house on Sunday nights, it was a letdown. There were no weeknights, after all, were for schoolwork, piano lessons and other dreary chores. When his daughters complained that they hated going home to Mummy's, Daddy couldn't have liked it more.

To Janet, the complaint, "But Daddy lets us do it," became familiar. Well, they couldn't do it here, she reminded them sternly. Soon "here" seemed to Jackie and Lee like a very boring and restricted place. Also, Janet bitterly resented the gifts Jack bought the girls. She simply couldn't compete with him nor, for that matter, could she compete with her father, who also liked to shower his granddaughters with costly presents. Janet, after all, now had to live on a fixed income of $12,600 a year. The sum was comfortable enough compared to what other households were living on in the Depression, and she was far from the poorhouse. Still, she had to feed and clothe herself and her children. Though her large, luxurious apartment was rented, there were expenses involved in its maintenance. For the first time in her life, Janet Bouvier had to live on a budget. So life at 740 Park Avenue was Spartan, frugal and disciplined, whereas life with Father was gay, madcap, devil-may-care. The children quickly learned to turn their parents' competition for their hearts to their own advantage. They recognized that both parents wanted their daughters' love badly; in fact, each wanted it exclusively. And so the extent of each parent's affection was regularly tested, resulting in little concessions.

"You don't love me as much as Daddy does," would usually extract something from Mummy, and vice versa. Though constantly being pulled back and forth by Jack and Janet, the girls in some ways had a better time of it than when their parents had been together.

Jack Bouvier, an experienced ladies' man, had a particular interest in women's clothes. He liked fashions that were New York chic, but with an added individualistic, theatrical touch a bright scarf, say, or an unusual piece of jewelry. When, on weekends, he trooped his daughters through Saks Fifth Avenue, Bonwit-Teller, Bergdorf Goodman and the Old De Pinna, he lectured them on what was currently in fashion, what he considered in good taste and what was not. Pointing to a mannequin in a Fifth Avenue window, he might say, "Hideous dress. It might work if it were belted." Or, "Now there's a beautiful outfit if it were worn by the right woman."

He often disapproved of the way Janet dressed the girls. "Now let's go out and get you something pretty to wear," he would say. Naturally, the girls tried to dress to please their father. In their growing-up years, Lee, with her heart-shaped face and delicate, perfect features, was considered the prettier of the two sisters. Jackie was the brainy one, quieter, more introspective, a little shy. Even in her early teens, Jackie carried a bit of baby fat, and she had inherited her mother's almost too-sharp chin. She had naturally curly, almost kinky hair, which was difficult to do much with other than pull tightly with a ribbon. But her eyes, dark, widely spaced and large like her father's, were extraordinary, her best feature. Still, her father stressed, a woman's looks were less important than how she dressed. If she dressed well, even a plain woman would stand out in a crowd. Jack Bouvier also imparted to his daughters definite theories about what made a woman attractive to a man. In addition to dressing well, he said, it was important that a woman create an aura of reserve or inaccessibility. In dealing with the opposite sex, it was important that a woman maintain a certain aloofness, that she not seem to open or available. The more inaccessible a woman seemed, the more unobtainable, said Jack, the more madly a man yearned to know her better, to see her more often.

The mating dance that Jack Bouvier described involved a woman offering a man a little something, then withdrawing it, then attractive boy at the party, the one you most wanted to dance with, would be more fascinated if you merely smiled faintly when he approached and moved away.

Tease a little, Jack advised. By mysterious. Never be aggressive. Never let an man know quite what you are thinking. Remember La Gioconda and her strange, disturbing, eternally provocative smile. Stand out in a crowd, Jack urged. It was important that a woman know how to enter a room: smiling, chin up, eyes straight ahead, not darting this way and that to see who else might be there, moving slowly but purposefully to the center of the stage.

And be selective about the invitations you accept, he said. Be "too busy" to go to certain parties, even if you're really not. That way, when you do accept an invitation, the person giving the party will consider himself particularly honored.

At large Bouvier weekend gatherings, there was always some doubt as to whether Jack and the girls would make it. "We'll try," their father would say. Then, in the middle of the party, Jack and the girls would make their smiling entrance. Everyone would say, "Isn't it wonderful that Jack and the girls were able to come."

Jackie Bouvier, always a better student than her sister, learned her father's lessons well. Even as a young teenager, there was something baffling and confusing about her that made one wonder what, exactly, made her tick. She seemed to have not one personality but two distinctive and conflicting ones.

When she was alone in a room with her, she seemed not only distant but painfully shy, uncomfortable and hesitant. She lowered her eyes as she spoke in that little-girl whispery voice. She seemed as unsure of herself as her mother must have been when she first entered the charmed circle of the Bouviers. One felt touched by her, sorry for her, this girl from a broken home who seemed to want to unburden herself of some troublesome secret and yet who, for intensely private reasons of her own, could not quite bring herself to do so.

And yet, when she entered a party, exquisitely dressed in something her father had chosen, all the shyness vanished. She was smiling, poised, serenely confident. She moved among crowds of people, kissing relatives, shaking hands, like a princess from an exotic land. She had more than charm. She glowed.

Was this the same withdrawn, seemingly worried girl? Apparently it was. Which was the real Jackie, people wondered. Or were both the facades simply roles she was playing, roles she had been drilled in by her father. Beneath the facades, perhaps, was buried a secret, third Jackie, protected and private, that no one in the world would ever get to see or really know.

There was no question who sister Lee was. She was the typical happy second child. Pretty, vivacious and full of mischief, Lee was always up to something. Her sudden whims came and went like summer showers. Every day, it seemed, she had some new enthusiasm, some new passion.

Jackie was the opposite. She was not particularly gregarious and enjoyed her own company. She was happy to spend hours alone in her room, reading and listening to music. She read so much that, during her adolescence, her mother worried that they might be going to have a "bluestocking" on their hands. Jackie sketched with pencils and painted with watercolor pictures of faces, mostly her own as reflected from her mirror or those of her sister, mother and father. She pasted them carefully in scrapbooks. She wrote bits of poetry. She wrote a sad little story about a girl who lost her horse.

But she also had, her family noticed, an extraordinary power over people, a strange ability to get people to do what she wanted, to go with her where she wanted to go, to play the games she wanted to play. "Guess the names of the song I'm thinking of," she said to a group of friends one morning in East Hampton. All day long, the friends sat around her, guessing and guessing, trying to come up with the name of the song ed for Jackie.

Tongues wagged when, after her divorce, Janet Bouvier began to be seen around town on the arm of Washington stockbroker Hugh D. "Hughdie" Auchincloss. You had to hand it to Janet, people said; she was doing it again. Here, furthermore, was not only a man who had unquestionable position in society, but who was impressively wealthy. Hughdie was master of a huge estate, called Merrywood, in McLean, Va., and another enormous place, Hammersmith Farm, in Newport, R.I. He also maintained a New York apartment.

In appearance, Hughdie Auchincloss was the antithesis of Jack Bouvier. Hughdie was tall, powerfully built, ruddy-cheeked, a commanding figure next to Janet's slightness. Like other members of his family, he had a poor track record at the altar. Hughdie had been married and divorced twice. His first wife was Maria Chrapovitsky, the daughter of a Russian naval officer. His second was Nina Gore Vidal, daughter of T.B. Gore, the blind senator from Oklahoma, and mother of writer Gore Vidal. Hughdie had a son by his first wife and a son and daughter by his second.

Janet and Hughdie became engaged in 1942, barely four years after her divorce, and were married in June of that year. Jack Bouvier took this news badly. Though Janet's remarriage relieved him of the burden of alimony, it did little to relieve him of his feelings of ineffectuality and failure. Janet's new husband was not only much richer and more successful than he, he was also nearly 10 years younger.

It was impossible not to like Hughdie Auchincloss. He was easygoing, cheerful and hardly ever lost his temper, unlike the mercurial Jack. And there was so much that he could offer Janet's daughters, that Jack could not, Rolls Royces, servants, stables of horses and two big country estates, one for summer and one for winter.

Hughdie Auchincloss loved Janet's pretty daughters and they quickly loved "Uncle Hugh," as they decided to call him. With Hughdie and Janet dividing their time between Virginia and Newport, there was less chance for Jack, in New York, to spend those gay weekends with Jackie and Lee. And Jack was bitter. He became convinced that Janet and Hughdie had entered into a conspiracy to take his daughters away from him permanently. Jackie, for example, was now 13 and was beginning to be invited to sub-debutante parties in New York. Jack was delighted. That meant that she could stay with him in the four-room apartment he now maintained. But often as not, schoolwork meant that she had to turn down the invitations and remain in Washington.

When that happened, Jack was devastated, convinced that the Auchincloss influence was behind it. When Janet sent Jackie to a dentist in Washington and forwarded the bill to Jack, he stormily announced that he would pay no bills for Washington dentists. If she needed dentistry, she could come to New York and stay with him.

Jackie, having learned about fashion from her father, and now developed her own taste in clothes. And she was exercising it, though now, of course, the Auchinclosses were paying for most of what she wore. Jack hated what she wore and told her so. Again and again, he threatened to do the only thing he could think of to get her to pay more attention to him: cut off her allowance.

Jack must have realized, of course, that cutting off his daughter's allowance could only make her more dependent on the Auchinclosses. And so he never cut it off, though he threatened hundreds of times to do so. It seemed the only thing he had left to give her.

Poor, luckless suitors for the hearts of his daughters, Jack had begun drinking heavily and could not accept that the girls were growing up — and growing away, inevitably, from their father. Pony rides in the park no longer allured them.

They had grown weary of the bitter tug-of-war between Mummy and Daddy. They were now striking out for something else.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I recently received $4,000 from an annuity which came due. I want to use this money for my son's college expenses, beginning two years from now. I asked a broker for advice on something better than a savings account, where the money is at present.

A. There are no such directories for either discount brokers or "full service" brokerage firms, which provide research and various other services — and which charge higher commissions.

You have to judge each brokerage house personally — based on how well or how badly it does the job your commissions pay for. For a discount brokerage firm, your only real measurement is "execution" — at what prices it buys or sells stocks for you. That should also be a major measurement of any full service brokerage firm.

If you're worried about a discount broker or any other brokerage house going bankrupt and causing you to lose the securities or cash you have left with it, just make sure that any brokerage firm with which you do business is a member of the Securities Investor Protection Corp. SIPC covers each account up to $100,000, no more than $40,000 of which may be for cash.

Q. I have some Series H U.S. Savings Bonds which are pretty old. I bought them in 1960. Do I have to change them for newer bonds? Or should I cash them?

A. As long as you are content with the interest checks you receive every six months from those H bonds, you can just hang on to them. Because of "extended maturities," H bonds issued in 1960 will continue to pay interest until at least 1990.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

WE GROW... AND SO GROW YOUR BOAT SAVINGS!

Inland Discount Marine is expanding by leaps and bounds. We have now acquired Knodel Marine in McQueeney and Modern Marine in Lubbock—and we are negotiating for four or five more locations throughout much of Texas. This means, of course, that lower cost powerboats, sailboats, and yachts have already come to the San Antonio and Lubbock markets and, as additional locations are opened, it will mean still lower costs, as our volume increases. We will continue to be headquartered on our "eight acres of boats" on beautiful Lake Amistad near Del Rio, Texas.

We have also taken over Thunderbird and Starcraft franchises for much of the state of Texas...two of America's very top line boats. Thunderbird is a more costly, more inclusive boat and considered by many a boat superior to Sea Ray. However, Inland's great purchasing power and low, low markup policies will bring you this fine boat at a lower cost than most dealers will sell you a Sea Ray. Starcraft is a line of boats that competes with Glastron in the "middle market". Again, because of our volume purchasing power, and the fact that we buy direct from the Starcraft factory, we can undersell Glastron by 15-20%. In addition to these two major franchises, Inland Discount Marine will handle the very low-cost Renken line. We also handle Viking Deck Boats, Boston Whaler, and Starfire boats...each one of them tops in their particular category and field. In sail you can buy Ericson, American Mariner, South Coast, Bantsee and Taft.

And there's icing on the cake. With payment of a $10 membership in Inland Marine Association, you can receive an additional 5-10% discount off already low-discounted boat prices; an informative boating newsletter at frequent intervals; and a 10% discount on parts, accessories, and services (available at all Inland Discount Marine locations). Only landlubbers can afford not to join Inland Marine Association.

Wall Streeters Reel As Market Plunges

NEW YORK (AP) — They're calling it the October Massacre on Wall Street — a devastating market decline that cut the paper value of stocks by well over $100 billion in just a little more than two weeks.

By Monday analysts had begun comparing it to the other great market debacles of this century — the 1962 showdown between President Kennedy and the steel industry over prices; the fall of France in the early days of World War II, and even the crash of 1929, which led to a drop of some 80 percent in stock prices and the Great Depression.

The recent selloff hasn't reached crash proportions. But from mid-October through Monday noon the Dow Jones industrial average fell more than 11 percent, from 897 to below 800.

Monday afternoon the average of 30 big-name stocks staged its first meaningful rally over that span, recovering from an early 17-point deficit to close with a 3.80-point gain at 811.85.

But the broad tally of all New York Stock Exchange issues still showed three stocks declining for every one that went up Monday.

Behind the slide, most analysts agree, have been widespread fears among investors of worsening inflation, and speculation that another bad recession might be on the way.

As Allen Sinai of Data Resources Inc., a Lexington, Mass. economics research and consulting firm, wrote recently: "Pressures continue to build for the financial markets, with potentially ominous implications for the economy next year."

What remains to be seen, however, is whether those fears are justified, or whether this is one of those emotional periods of overreaction for which the stock market is so famous.

The market is widely followed as a kind of crystal ball, foretelling future economic trends. The government takes it seriously enough to use stock prices as one of the 12 components of its index of leading economic indicators.

But like most other forecasters, the market has a mixed record. The last time stocks took a bad beating — in 1973 and 1974 — they accurately foreshadowed the nation's worst post-war recession. But they also experienced some sharp drops in the 1960s that turned out to be false alarms.

While some Wall Streeters maintain that the worst is probably over for the market, and that smart investors now should be buying, not selling, nearly all agree that there are plenty of problems in the present economic picture to trouble investors.

The Federal Reserve, attempting to restrain inflation by slowing monetary growth, has pushed interest rates lately to record or near-record levels. Yet some critics complain that the Fed hasn't acted strongly enough, and that the money supply is still growing too fast.

The consumer price index rose at a 9.6 percent annual rate last month, and international money traders are keeping relentless selling pressure on the dollar in foreign exchange.

Of course those same worries were just as prominent a few months ago, when the stock market was staging a sharp summer rally.

"Violent markets both ways are to be expected in a situation like this," said long-time market analyst Lucien O. Hooper of Thomson McKinnon Securities Inc. "And lately we have seen violence both ways."

In recent days, analysts say the severity of the market's decline has been increased by margin calls — forced selling by investors who had bought stock using margin, or loans from brokers.

The collateral on these loans is stock, and when the price of that stock falls below minimum limits, they must either put up more assets or sell to pay their brokers back.

When this market decline began, margin debt was at a record level. The last monthly report from the NYSE showed $12.4 billion in loans outstanding among 990,000 investor accounts.

Margin calls also played a prominent role in the Great Crash 49 years ago. The Federal Reserve regulates margin buying by setting borrowing limits — currently 50 percent of the price of a stock.

"Back in the boom market of 1929, there were no rules at all," Paul Samuelson wrote in his textbook "Economics." "One could borrow 70, 80, or even 90 percent of the value of any stock he bought. Little wonder that, once the crash came, brokers began to ask their clients to put up more margin to cover the declining value of their stocks."

"Since many clients were already operating on a shoestring, they could not pony up the extra margin. Result: The broker had to sell their stocks, so just when stocks were already weak, the forced selling by low-margin holders added to the avalanche."

Tech Gets Mahon's Papers

Three hundred and sixty boxes, containing 2,000 papers each and representing only half of the accumulated paperwork of U.S. Rep. George Mahon's 44 years in Congress, arrived by truck Monday at Texas Tech University's Southwest Collection.

A second truckload with another 360 boxes is expected to arrive by next week.

The veteran West Texas legislator recently had announced he would donate all his papers to the Texas Tech archives. The Library of Congress, the Smithsonian and the LBJ Library at the University of Texas all had vied for his records.

"The other institutions wanted the papers, but we think Mr. Mahon felt Tech was the logical place all along," said David Murrah, university archivist and director of the Southwest Collections.

The 360 cardboard boxes which arrived Monday represented only half, or about 720,000 papers, of the Mahon collection. University officials estimate the total collection will contain nearly 1.5 million papers.

"It will take us at least a year to process the bulk of the material," Murrah said. "We have to describe, count, and find a place for each of the documents before they can be available for research."

Legislative files, correspondence with constituents, veterans' files, special project files, information about the Canyon Lakes project, and other data about the federal government's activities in the 19th Congressional District are included in the papers.

Murrah said he did not plan to hire additional people to handle the workload, but said the regular employees would be busy for quite some time.

"This is really a bonus. It's like getting two years work in a single year and we feel we are equipped to handle it," Murrah said.

Plans for the formal dedication of the papers to research are in the planning stages and will probably take place at this time next year.

Formal announcement of the papers' arrival at Tech is expected soon from Mahon's congressional office.

Touchy Issue Surfaces At Psychiatric Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — The touchy issue of psychiatric treatment of Soviet political dissidents has surfaced again in U.S.-Soviet discussions here on joint medical and health research, scientific sources said Monday.

The issue arose after a Honolulu conference of the World Psychiatric Association in September 1977 considered such allegations and adopted a resolution condemning "the systematic abuse of psychiatry for political purposes in the U.S.S.R." The Soviets deny the accusations.

Critics say Soviet authorities for years have been declaring some political dissidents to be mentally unstable and placing them in psychiatric institutions, in some cases administering drugs to make them more subdued.

During a review meeting last year on a six-year-old accord on research cooperation, a Soviet official hinted that Moscow might refuse to continue the joint program unless the Americans agreed to issue a statement condemning Western attacks on Soviet psychiatry.

U.S. officials flatly rejected including such a statement in the official protocol of that meeting and the two sides agreed on a blandly worded statement that appeared to smooth over the dispute.

Sources say the issue was raised again at this year's discussions and after some initial disagreement was sidestepped a second time.

The research accord covers work in cancer, heart diseases, environmental health, arthritis, influenza and respiratory diseases. Currently, 53 separate research projects are going on under the accord. During the past year, Soviet specialists made 108 visits to the United States, while 134 U.S. scientists visited the Soviet Union.

At last week's Moscow talks, "the mood was a lot lighter, but there was some underlying tension," one source said.

The sources, who declined to be named, said the issue came up in a meeting between Soviet Health Minister Boris V. Petrovsky and Dr. Julius B. Richmond, an assistant secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Aware of Soviet sensitivity, Richmond and other U.S. officials sought to refrain from mentioning the psychiatry issue, sources said.

But midway through the meeting, Petrovsky brought up the topic and defended Soviet psychiatric practices as being

Zoo Acquires 'Halloween' Vampire Bats

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The scene was Pennsylvania, not Transylvania. But there were the vampires, rustling their wings in overhead perches in a moss-filled, damp stone cave. Then they swooped low, sampling the blood spread across the cavern floor.

The creepy rodents, feared in mythology and repellent in the flesh, are the new stars at the Philadelphia Zoo, which opened a vampire bat exhibit Sunday, just in time for Halloween.

"Contrary to popular belief, vampire bats do not suck the blood of their victims," Jeanne L. Segal, the zoo's public information director, told spectators in the mammal house for the opening.

"But they do drink it," she added, later explaining that they "lap at the blood with their pink tongues."

"It's not that we've manufactured evil, Gothic tales about them. They do have some negative aspects," she said.

For example, she said, while it is untrue that the bats fly onto the necks of intended victims, "they usually land nearby and then walk or leap onto some part of the victim's body," she said.

"They then make a small cut with their sharp incisor teeth, not always at the jugular, and often without disturbing their prey, lap the blood with their pink tongues," she said.

"Most authorities on vampires agree that their saliva contains some sort of anti-coagulant that keeps the wound open while they feed."

The five new occupants of the wing will receive a daily diet of vitamins mixed with about an ounce each of blood acquired at a local slaughterhouse, Miss Segal said.

The vitamin-blood bowls are placed on the cavern floor so the bats can approach them as they would a victim.

Vampire bats are grayish-brown creatures no more than 4 inches long but with wingspans of about 13 inches. They are known to carry rabies and usually feed on birds and mammals such as resting cattle.

Their fearsomeness was popularized by Bram Stoker in his 1897 horror-thriller "Dracula," set in the Romanian region of Transylvania. The zoo's new inhabitants are of a type native to Mexico and further south into the Tropics.

Rental Agencies To Pay Fines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday let stand an Illinois ruling that a city can hold car rental companies responsible for parking violations by their customers.

It turned down appeals by Avis, Hertz and Chrysler Leasing Corp., which sought to avoid paying hundreds of thousands of dollars in parking fines levied against them by the city of Chicago.

The companies say the issue is of great importance to them, since a number of cities across the country have similar laws. However, the Supreme Court's refusal to review their appeal in this case sets no national legal precedent, merely settling the law in Illinois.

The case began when Chicago brought suit against the three rental companies in 1967, seeking to recover nearly $200,000 in fines from them as owners of vehicles that were illegally parked in 1966.

The city parking ordinance says the person in whose name a vehicle is registered shall be presumed responsible for any parking violations.

The city asked courts to rule that this means the companies cannot defend themselves when ordered to pay fines by saying they were not in possession of the vehicles when the violations occurred.

The companies said such an interpretation would violate their constitutional right to due process of law.

But last January, the Illinois Supreme Court agreed with city officials. It said the "unambiguous language" of the ordinance "imposes both strict and vicarious liability on the owner whenever his vehicle is illegally parked, irrespective of whether the owner was the person who parked the vehicle."

The state court noted that courts in Ohio, Missouri and Iowa reached similar conclusions in interpreting Columbus, Kansas City and Iowa City ordinances.

"The imposition of vicarious liability on an owner who voluntarily relinquishes control of his vehicle to another is constitutionally permissible," it concluded.

Hertz said state courts in California, Washington state, Arkansas and Oregon have ruled the opposite way on the question.

24-Hour Guard Put On Vicious

NEW YORK (AP) — Punk rocker Sid Vicious, accused of murdering his girlfriend, was ordered placed under 24-hour guard Monday because of press reports he might try again to commit suicide.

Vicious, once a guitarist for the now-defunct Sex Pistols band, was treated at Bellevue Hospital after slashing his wrist with a lightbulb. He has since been transferred to a psychiatric ward, where a guard is to be posted by order of Manhattan Criminal Court Judge Leon Becker.

Vicious, 21, was arrested Oct. 19 and accused of the knife slaying of Nancy Spungen, 20, who was found in the suite she shared with Vicious at the Chelsea Hotel.

Dallas Sheriff Has Reporter Arrested

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas Morning News reporter was released from jail Monday afternoon after he was arrested at Dallas County Sheriff Carl Thomas' office and charged with criminal trespassing.

Bruce Selcraig was released about two hours after he was asked to leave the area outside Thomas' office but refused, according to Tom Simmons, Dallas Morning News executive editor.

Simmons said the sheriff instituted a closed door policy Monday, which Selcraig covered as a "news event" along with several other reporters at the time of his arrest. The editor said only Selcraig was asked to leave. When he refused, he was arrested, Simmons said.

Van Dunn, a spokesman for the sheriff's department, said Selcraig was arrested on criminal trespassing charges, arraigned and released on $200 bond. However, Simmons said the reporter was held on a writ of habeas corpus and "not a penny changed hands."

Simmons said, "Our lawyers say there is no merit whatever in what the sheriff did. It does not appear criminal trespassing covers federal buildings and especially for someone acting in a lawful and legal manner and who has an implied invitation to be there."

Selcraig wrote a copyrighted story that appeared in Saturday's Dallas Morning News in which two unnamed Dallas police officers said Thomas caused a disturbance in a local hot bar Oct. 6 — the night before the University of Texas-University of Oklahoma football game.

Thomas called a news conference Saturday after the newspaper ran the article and denied the charges.
