Foes Of ERA Rebuffed In Senate Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — An extension of time for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment moved a step closer to passage today as the Senate rejected a proposal to permit states that have ratified the ERA to use the additional time to reverse their positions.

The vote to reject the revision amendment, sponsored by Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, was 54 to 44.

A final vote on the extension is scheduled for Friday. It would allow state legislatures an additional 39 months, past the present deadline of next March 22, to decide whether to ratify the ERA.

Senators on both sides of the issue predicted the extension will pass.

Garn argued that it was unfair to give ERA backers more time to lobby for ratification without giving opponents equal time.

Regardless of the outcome of the vote on his amendment, Garn said, "it is quite clear to me that they have the votes to pass the extension."

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., leading the battle for the extension, argued that the right of states to withdraw their approval of constitutional amendments has not been recognized in the past.

Bayh also warned that adding the controversial amendment to the extension would probably doom it, because it would require reconciling differences in House and Senate versions by a time-consuming joint conference committee with less than two weeks before Congress is supposed to adjourn on Oct. 14.

Bayh predicted after defeat of the Garn amendment that the extension would be approved by a healthy margin.

Before the vote on the amendment, the Senate rejected a substitute offered by Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., which would have declared the Senate neutral as to whether states that have ratified could reverse their action.

Garn said Stevenson's proposal "would defeat the purpose of my amendment."

Bayh said it would jeopardize the extension because it would not be acceptable to sponsors in the House, where the extension was approved Aug. 15.

President Carter lobbied against the Garn amendment Tuesday, warning that it could kill the extension.

At the White House, presidential assistant Sarah Weddington, who said she spoke for Carter, told reporters that any amendments by the Senate would make it very difficult to pass an extension this year.

New Jury Setup To Cut Cost

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

District judges and county officials have inaugurated a new central jury pool selection system designed to save county funds and reduce unwarranted inconvenience for those summoned to jury service.

Under the new method — implemented this week — two prospective jury panels are being summoned weekly, instead of only one group.

The first group convenes Monday morning, while the second group of prospective jurors from now on will not be called until Wednesday.

District Judge Robert C. Wright said it was believed that the more streamlined system would save time for prospective jurors and also reduce county compensation expenses. He indicated that reduced parking space near the county courthouse because of construction of the new jail was also a factor.

Formerly, summonses were sent to about 550 citizens per jury week, requiring the prospective jurors to assemble at the courthouse Monday morning. Normally, after exemptions were granted, approximately 150 to 200 panelists might show up to be examined.

Often, under the old system, a citizen might report on Monday and then be told to report back later in the week if he were not selected to hear a case. The result would be that the juror's time was wasted.

The county also would pay the $5 jury compensation fee to the prospective panelists.

Under the new setup, a comparable week would see 400 citizens summoned for Monday duty and 150 for Wednesday.

"We had only 80 people to show up Monday (after exemptions)," Jess Foster, bailiff in charge of the central jury room, said. "We usually have 150 or 160 show up — I would guess that saved the county at least around $300."

Wright said the new system would be used for the remainder of the year and indicated that, if it proved effective, it would be utilized on a permanent basis.

"We will see how it works and how it affects the courts, then make any necessary adjustments," Wright said.

Pope Given Final Tribute

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Under dark skies and showers, red-robed cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church bid farewell today to Pope John Paul I, the "smiling pontiff" who reigned only 34 days.

In the sadness and joy of ancient liturgy, the cardinals celebrated the funeral Mass on the broad marble steps of St. Peter's Basilica, just as they celebrated the requiem for Paul VI on Aug. 12, and with John Paul, concelebrated his inaugural Mass on Sept. 3.

Shortly after the start of the service, rain fell and thousands of umbrellas blossomed in the crowd jammed into the vast square.

The funeral marked the beginning of nine days of official mourning. On the 10th day, cardinals will be sequestered in secrecy in the Sistine Chapel to elect John Paul's successor.

The Mass was televised to millions on a worldwide hookup.

The body of Pope John Paul, who died of a heart attack Thursday at the age of 65, lay in a plain cypress coffin, his head facing the world's largest basilica and feet toward the crowd in the square.

Nearly 5,000 heavily armed policemen and soldiers were deployed to protect the official delegations.

The funeral Mass preceded the burial in the grotto of the basilica, an elaborate underground network of chapels and the resting place for 146 other popes, including what are believed to be the remains of St. Peter, the first pope.

Despite heavy rains since Saturday, about 750,000 mourners had trekked through St. Peter's Square to view Pope John Paul's body as it lay in state in the basilica.

Cardinal Carlo Confalonieri, 85, dean of the College of Cardinals, presided over the Mass.

"Father, eternal shepherd," he said, "hear the prayers of your people for your servant Pope John Paul I, who governed your church with love."

"Amen," the crowd responded.

A seminary read from the Book of Apocalypses of St. John the Apostle before the homily by Cardinal Confalonieri.

"With faith and confidence," Confalonieri prayed after the homily, "we entrust your servant Pope John Paul to your mercy. He was, for the family of mankind, an instrument of your peace and your love. May he harvest the fruit of his work in the unending joy of your saints."

In a communion prayer, Confalonieri asked God to "Grant to your servant, John Paul, our pope, the joy of entering into full possession of that truth in which he constantly strengthened your people during his life."

Then Cardinal Pericle Felici walked to the coffin, surrounded by all the concelebrants, and asked for prayers.

"Dearly beloved, this is the moment when we commend to God's tender mercy the soul of his servant, John Paul I, our pope."

After the litany of the saints, Cardinal Ugo Poletti, the pope's vicar for Rome, prayed: "May he be welcomed into eternal glory by your son whose vicar on earth he was."

In what is called the final commendation, Confalonieri shook incense over the body while the Sistine Chapel choir chanted, "I believe that my redeemer lives and that I will rise again from the earth at the last day."

"Lord God," Confalonieri said in a final prayer, "you reward without fail those who work for the Gospel, give them See SOLEMN RITES Page 16

Indictments Expected Today In Alleged Bribery Scheme

DALLAS (UPI) — Indictments were expected to be returned today by a federal grand jury in connection with an alleged $1 million bribery scheme perpetrated against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The Dallas Morning News said it has been told by sources that among those expected to be indicted on federal racketeering charges is a former Southwestern Bell vice president.

Federal prosecutors have already indicted a former executive of a small Collin County bank Monday for failing to report to the Internal Revenue Service the transfer of more than $48,000 to the former Bell official from Dallas businessman Joel McQuade, who was also investigated in the case.

Sheril Ned Brown, executive vice president of Citizen's State Bank of Princeton (Texas) in 1976 when the alleged transaction took place, has pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge. Indictments were expected today against another former bank official, sources told the News.

"I think you're seeing the first trickle of what's going to be a flood," one source said.

Sources said the bank served as the "laundering" point for some of the ill-gotten proceeds allegedly paid to the former Bell official and others in exchange for obtaining contracts Southwestern Bell awarded to several companies.

The indictment against Brown said the executive vice president was required by federal law to file a transaction report for any currency transaction of more than $10,000. If convicted, Brown could face a year in prison or $1,000 fine — or both.

The former Bell executive is reported to have been involved in a transaction involving money he received as a commission on a contract for computer equipment leased by Southwestern Bell from Systems Financing, Inc., a Dallas firm. That company allegedly is owned by McQuade, Dallas attorney Warren Zimmerman and Zimmerman's wife, Linda.

The 10-month investigation into the alleged kickback scheme was first revealed in July, shortly after federal authorities laid claim to $200,000 that the former Bell executive and others were saying belonged to them.

The $200,000, which now is being held in the registry of the federal judge, is "the fruit of the crime" prosecutable under federal racketeering laws, according to records on file in the U.S. district clerk's office in Dallas.

Syrians Press Savage Attack On Christians

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Syria's war on the Lebanese Christians raged without letup today, and Beirut's Christian Voice of Lebanon claimed more than 500 persons were killed or wounded in the 24 hours ending at dawn.

The right-wing radio station reported three shells hit the presidential palace at Baabda, on the southeast outskirts of Beirut, while President Elias Sarkis was

Three presidential guards were wounded and the modern concrete and glass building was slightly damaged, the radio reported.

"Beirut is like a military island surrounded by smoke, flames and destruction, isolated from the whole world, where there is no water, electricity, transportation, medicine or food supplies," the radio said.

The Lebanese police reported Tuesday that 250 Lebanese had been killed and more than 500 wounded by Syrian artillery, rocket and machine-gun attacks on East Beirut and adjacent Christian areas since the latest round of undeclared warfare began last Wednesday. Today all telephone and telex communications to Lebanon were cut, and radio broadcasts were the only source of information on the situation.

"Shelling is continuing while political moves are proceeding to end this situation," said the Lebanese government radio.

The Christian radio claimed Syrian forces were repulsed at three points when they tried to storm the Christian sector, leaving "tens of killed and wounded and tens of damaged armored vehicles behind."

It said Christian militiamen forced Syrian troops to fall back in house-to-house fighting on either side of the strategic Quarantina Bridge, one of two linking the Christian sector of the capital with the Christian hinterland along the coast to the north.

The Christian station said Beirut was enveloped in a pall of black smoke from a burning oil storage tank hit during shelling Tuesday.

It also reported that an unidentified na-

Fords Will Vote In California

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Former President Ford will cast his ballot in the November general election in California instead of his native Michigan.

Ford and his wife, Betty, now live in Palm Springs, Calif., and his residency question was raised by local attorney Albert Dilley in a May 22 letter to Ford. Dilley claimed Ford had no legal right to vote in Kent County.

Ford told the Grand Rapids Press that although he disagreed with Dilley's interpretation of Michigan election laws, "we do not wish to have protracted litigation" on the question.

"Betty and I have decided to register to vote in California and will do so in the next several days," Ford wrote Dilley on Monday.

Ford said, however, his action did not mean he was cutting his ties with the Grand Rapids area.

"Betty and I still own a home in East Grand Rapids and we consider East Grand Rapids and Grand Rapids our real home," he said.

Colson Hopes Past Helps Movie

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Charles Colson says he hopes his controversial past career as President Nixon's hatchet man will be a drawing card for a movie on his religious conversion.

Colson was here Tuesday night for the local premiere of the $3 million movie, "Born Again," based on his autobiographical book by the same name.

Proceeds from the $50 a seat screening were to go to the Prison Fellowship, an organization to foster spiritual work among prisoners which Colson founded after his prison conversion.

Talking to reporters before the premiere, Colson said a religious movie such as "Born Again" was a gamble at secular box offices but that his past career should be a drawing card.

U.N. Panel Honors Seven Men

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Special Committee Against Apartheid has approved gold medals for seven men — three living and four dead — for fighting South African apartheid, or race segregation.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim will present the medals at a special meeting of the General Assembly today.

On hand for their medals will be Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley, former Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme and the Rev. John Collins, canon of St. Paul's Cathedral in London and president of the International Defense and Aid Fund for Southern Africa.

Surviving relatives will receive medals awarded posthumously to Kwame Nkrumah, ousted president of Ghana; Jawaharlal Nehru, longtime prime minister of India; Gen. Murtala Mohamed, former head of state of Nigeria, and Paul Robeson, a black American singer, actor and political activist.

Solon No Longer Smokes Pot

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — Rep. Edward Pattison, a Democrat who admitted smoking marijuana, is fighting the issue in his bid for re-election.

The 46-year-old Pattison was the only member of Congress among some 100 polled by Playboy magazine who would allow the use of his name in an article called "High on the Hill" in the publication's November issue. Some 25 other representatives and one senator also admitted trying pot.

His opponent, Republican Assemblyman Gerald Solomon, said Pattison "used an illegal drug after he was elected to a federal office and, as such, he was breaking the law he was sworn to uphold."

Pattison said he first tried marijuana in 1970 and no longer uses it. "I don't have it around, and I don't smoke it anymore, and I have no intention of doing so," he said.

Drumming Up Business

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a case of double time — or perhaps timpani for two.

Roland Kohloff was billed principal timpanist Tuesday night in the New York Philharmonic's concert, conducted by Zubin Mehta at Avery Fisher Hall.

He also was billed principal timpanist at Carnegie Hall. There the Philadelphia Orchestra, conducted by Eugene Ormandy, opened its New York season. The orchestra's usual kettledrum player was out sick, so Kohloff got the call.

Kohloff, a native New Yorker, practiced all day with both groups. In the morning, the Philharmonic. In the afternoon, the Philadelphia.

He made plans to taxi the 12 blocks to Carnegie just after his group's opening piece at 7:30 p.m.

Was he worried? No, said Kohloff. He had enough time between the two concerts and, anyway, the orchestra was supplying the drums.

Mysterious Donor Helping Schools

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A mysterious benefactor, working through a Richmond lawyer, says he will give $10,000 to New York City's public schools — the same amount the man gave Cleveland last week.

Attorney Thomas D.H. Barnett said he will present a check on behalf of the anonymous donor to Dr. Frank Macchiarola, chancellor of the New York City Board of Education. Barnett said the gifts are being made in the name of the "Richardson family." He says that's as far as he can go in identifying the benefactor, who is said to have a special concern for the problems of urban schools.

Charge Names FBI Informer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former FBI informer Gary Thomas Rowe Jr., given a new identity after testifying in the trials of three Ku Klux Klansmen charged with the nightrider murder of a civil rights worker 13 years ago, has himself been charged with the killing.

A first-degree murder indictment charges Rowe in the 1965 slaying of Viola Gregg Liuzzo. She was killed by a bullet fired from a passing car as she drove from Selma to Montgomery on the night after the historic voting rights march led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The indictment, returned two weeks ago by a Lowndes County grand jury, charges that Rowe "unlawfully and with malice aforethought" killed Mrs. Liuzzo "by shooting her with a pistol."

Mrs. Liuzzo had come to Alabama from her Detroit, Mich., home to help in the Selma march.

The indictment was made public Tuesday as District Attorney Jesse Bryan filed extradition papers with the attorney general's office.

Rowe, who has been living in Savannah, Ga., under the identity provided him by the FBI, will fight extradition, said his attorney, J. Paul Lowery of Montgomery, who predicted that Rowe will never come back to Alabama.

At four trials in Alabama in the mid-1960s, Rowe testified he was in the car with three Klansmen when the fatal bullet was fired.

The Klansmen — Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., Eugene Thomas and William Orville Eaton, all of whom lived in or near Birmingham — were charged by the state with Mrs. Liuzzo's murder, but none was convicted.

Thomas was tried twice, with one trial ending in a hung jury and the other in acquittal. Wilkins also was acquitted of murder, and Eaton died before coming to trial.

All three Klansmen, however, were convicted in federal court for conspiracy to violate Mrs. Liuzzo's civil rights and sentenced to 10 years in jail.

Eaton died while his conviction was on appeal, but Wilkins and Thomas both served their sentences.

Ex-Quarterback Kemp Fights For Tax Cuts

By WALTER R. MEARS
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Start Jack Kemp talking about taxes and the athlete shows through the politician. He's up, he's down, the words and numbers tumbling out non-stop.

He sheds his jacket, gestures his point, then slumps back in his seat so quickly he bangs his head on the wall. He shakes it off and keeps talking.

After all, Kemp learned how to play hurt during 13 years as a professional football quarterback.

These days, he's playing the tax issue for all it's worth. By Republican reckoning, that's a lot, although there is as yet no evidence to show that GOP efforts to ride the taxpayer revolt are going to pay off at the polls.

Kemp, 43, seeking his fifth term in the House from the Buffalo, N.Y., area, is one of the authors of the tax cut bill the national Republican Party has chosen as its major theme in the off-year election campaign.

With Sen. William V. Roth of Delaware, Kemp is co-sponsoring a three-year, 33 percent cut in federal tax rates. To describe Kemp as intense on the subject is to understate the case.

By comparison, his Senate partner on the GOP tax bill is relatively reserved. In a joint interview, Sen. Roth sometimes has trouble getting a word in, save when Rep. Kemp pauses for breath.

Never mind that the bill doesn't stand a realistic chance in a heavily Democratic Congress. Republican strategists are so convinced that the issue will work to their advantage that they've just staged a cross-country campaign swing with some of the party's biggest names arguing the case for the Kemp-Roth bill.

Kemp and Roth got there first with a phased tax cut plan they say would break not only with Democratic economic prescriptions but with the traditional formulas of their own party. The Republican

"All Bill and I are saying and I think all this theory tries to point out is that high tax rates can be a barrier to production... It isn't a Shangri-la and it isn't a free lunch and it isn't something for nothing."

Nor, Kemp insists, would it be an invitation to runaway inflation. He points to the tax reductions proposed by John F. Kennedy in 1963, and to the spurt in economic activity that followed their adoption a year later. Never mind that the inflation rate then was below 2 percent or that the problem in those days was economic recession.

This is all hypothetical anyhow. The Kemp-Roth tax cut has gained some votes from Democrats in the congressional climate created by Proposition 13, but not enough to pass. President Carter has said he would veto it if it did. For that matter, under his rule of balancing tax cuts with spending cuts, Gerald R. Ford probably would have had to veto it, too.

There aren't many advantages to being out of power, but one is that you can talk up an issue without the political risks that would go with implementing it.

What is not hypothetical is the effect on Kemp as a politician. He's hot. Republican congressional candidates trying to capitalize on the tax issue are seeking his help.

He's been making radio and television commercials for GOP candidates, talking up the tax cut.

Analysis

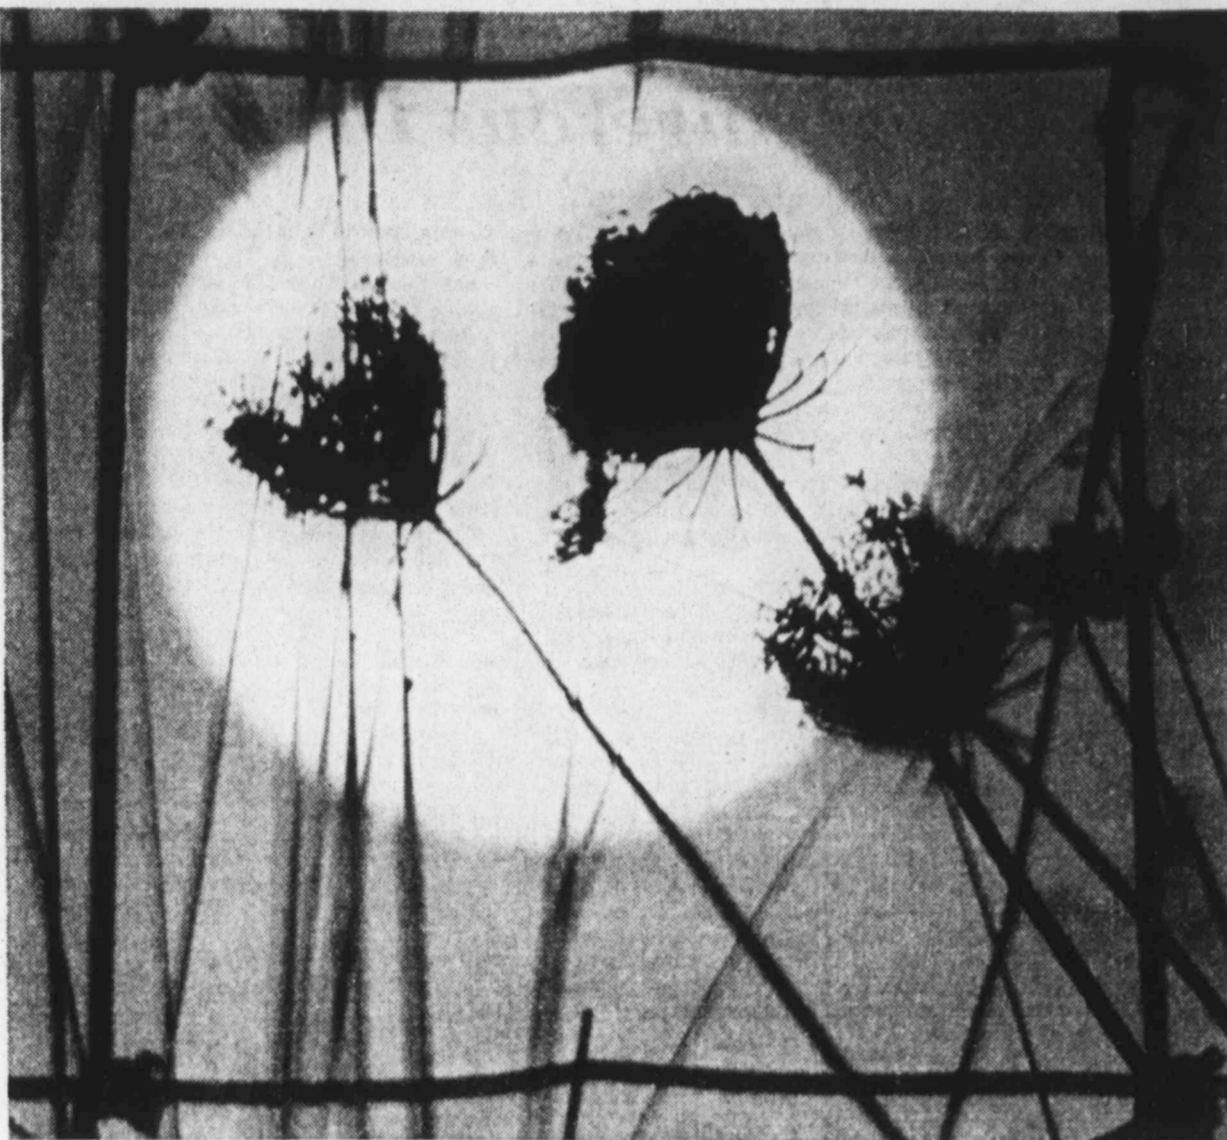

way has been to insist on cuts in spending as the price of tax cuts.

Kemp and Roth say they are for restraint, holding down the growth of federal spending, but not as a prerequisite for their big tax-reduction bill.

Their bill would cut taxes dramatically by changing the brackets in a manner they claim would encourage economic activity and, in the end, stimulate enough production to generate at least as much revenue as the government gets from current rates.

It sounds utopian, but they insist it will work, although, when pressed, they acknowledge there is no way of forecasting with certainty what would happen.

"It's not a free lunch," said Kemp, disputing the label White House economists have applied to the Republican theory.

Dangerous Drivers

"ONE STUDY indicates that 25 percent of all serious crimes may be committed by only 7 percent of the criminals." Sen. Lloyd Bentsen reports.

"Crooks better be glad they're not businessmen. If they were, the Gov't would have them all behind bars for violating the monopoly laws."

Today's Ragweed Award: To whoever has hidden the guy who's supposed to paint the lane stripes down newly paved Slide Road. The Office Operative tells me it's been weeks already since the paving was completed and still no stripes...

Visible striping on all the streets would be a positive contribution to the current traffic safety campaign.

ENDANGERING Species of Lubbock Drivers: —The school bus driver who habitually has a part of her bus across the center line.

—The man-in-a-hurry who approaches a stop sign so fast that motorists on the through-street can't tell whether he plans to stop.

—The older gentleman who always leaves his car's rear end in the straight-ahead lane while waiting to make a turn out of the continuous-left-turn lane.

—The woman who thinks the center lane of a three-lane one-way street is for making turns out of. In either direction.

—The panel truck driver who feels compelled to edge into the intersection in the inside lane so it's impossible for you to see whether it's safe to make a right turn from the outside lane.

—The jerks, male and female, who always stop for a traffic signal with their cars blocking the pedestrian crosswalk.

—The same jerks, who refuse to give the pedestrian the crosswalk right-of-way and will run over him if he tries to exercise his rights.

You got a pet peeve about drivers?

"Frustration." Trying to figure out how you say "no" to buying the product while sending back your sweepstakes entry to see if you've "already won."

Sudden Thought: Wouldn't it be wonderful if Congress would pass a law making it a criminal offense for Congress to meet for five years, except to abolish agencies?

"Congressman." A creature who lives in style on a $57,500 salary and a million-dollar expense account and who gets elected by promising to do more "for us poor folks."

IN UPHOLDING the right of a city or state to ban billboards, the U.S. Supreme Court may have effectively short-circuited any further legal challenges to Lubbock's sign and billboard regulations.

That doesn't mean that owners of billboards won't continue political agitation to repeal the ordinance that will limit the size and placement of the boards here.

But it does mean that the City Council and the people of Lubbock—who voted overwhelmingly in support of such regulations—have the right to protect themselves from an over-abundance of over-sized and misplaced placards.

In cases arising out of New York, the Supreme Court even refused to overturn lower court decisions that a ban on billboards could be exercised for purely aesthetic reasons. Lubbock's regulations were based on safety considerations.

The New York decisions also upheld a three-year and a six-year abatement period for the removal of existing billboards.

AN EVEN LONGER abatement period in Lubbock was challenged but the state Court of Civil Appeals at Amarillo recently upheld the validity of the ordinance.

Commercial rights of free speech are not abridged by regulations governing the size and placement of such messages, the courts also ruled in the New York case.

Although Lubbock's abatement period runs until 1982, it already is becoming evident that thinning out the city's signboard jungle will improve the environment while actually helping small businessmen to get their store identification signs seen more easily by more people.

An ordinance that helps just about everybody can't be bad.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL: Alumni Also Honor Tech

WHEN THE Texas Tech University Ex-Students Assn. honored four graduates with "Distinguished Alumnus" citations this past weekend, it was a case of a double honor.

Actually, those receiving the awards have in effect brought honor upon their alma mater by their deeds.

The four persons involved in the latest salute included Alvin R. Allison, a Levelland attorney, Dr. John J. Hinchey, a San Antonio Physician, Robert Charles Jordan, the executive vice president, finance chairman, treasurer and director of New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., and Berl M. Springer, president and chief operation officer of Southwestern Public Service Co.

ALL OF THIS not only says something about Texas Tech and its preparation of "the total person" for life, but it says that the process has been going on since the earliest years of the college's existence.

The positions these men have carved for themselves represent not only years of personal endeavor and sacrifice, but certainly reflect a degree of the training and inspiration they received while students at Texas Tech.

TEXAS TECH, in comparison with many universities, is still a comparatively young institution of higher learning.

But, it has done well, thank you, in the short time it has been in the business of preparing people for the job of helping build a better nation through the American system of free enterprise.

It is noteworthy that on various occasions all have given time, talent and/or money in returning some of themselves to the university.

They have done so by helping start a law school, organizing athletic support, contributing to the building of Texas Tech's Medical Complex, improving the school's Engineering and Business Administration programs.

In brief, Messrs. Allison, Hinchey, Jordan and Springer have proven that America's educational and free enterprise system does work.

THE ACTIVITIES of these men, and the dates of their graduation, which range back into the 1930s, have been printed elsewhere in the paper.

But, it should be noted that, as has been the case with numerous other Texas Tech graduates who have been so honored that their professional careers cover a broad spectrum.

It is also noteworthy that these men have "made their marks" in widely separated parts of the country.

In brief, they have proven themselves in the crucible of professional and public service in competition with some of the best in the nation, from other institutions of higher learning.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Justice And Law Aren't Same

WASHINGTON—A stupid little incident the other day in Norfolk, Va., prompts a few observations on an old theme. My thought is that when it comes to the judiciary, prestige and salary scales are upside down.

We aren't getting the greatest judges where they are needed most—down at the bottom rung of the ladder.

It appears that Norfolk is afflicted with a thin-skinned fellow in the city's traffic court, Vernon D. Hitchings, Jr., by name. Judge Hitchings has been around for almost 25 years.

A couple of weeks ago a retired bookkeeper, Mrs. Frances Savage, 58, appeared in Judge Hitchings' court. Her husband had been charged with a minor traffic offense; he had brought two witnesses in his own defense.

The judge gave them no chance to present their case. After hearing from a police officer, he abruptly dismissed the charges and called the next case.

MRS. SAVAGE was burned up at this cavalier treatment. She took pen in hand and wrote a zinger of a letter to the Norfolk papers.

She said Judge Hitchings was "too busy" to listen to evidence; the innocent had no voice or chance to state their case; his court was like a three-ring circus, and he had "sided with a pretty young thing" in the accident at hand.

The letter appeared on a Sunday morning. On Monday Mrs. Savage received a big fat summons for contempt of court, an offense that carries a $50 fine and/or 10 days in jail.

The judge was quoted as saying that while judges are subject to criticism, "they do not have to endure misrepresentations of fact or character misrepresentations."

When word of the judge's action spread around Norfolk, the newspapers raised such Cain that Judge Hitchings dismissed his own citation. End of story.

THAT WAS THE end of that story, but there probably is not a major city in the country that has not heard similar stories a thousand times before. All too often, our court system manages to place the worst judges at the very point where the best judges should be sitting.

As a young reporter in Richmond, I used to cover police and traffic courts. The city's principal police court had three terrible judges in a row.

The first of them became a legend for his abuse of Negro defendants. The second, a spider-legged, sour-mouthed fellow, was no better. The third retired under a cloud and subsequently was censured by the state's Judicial Commission.

But I also covered a great "bottom rung" judge, Harold F. Snead.

He knew law, and he understood justice; these are not the same thing. When he later became

King Wiretap 'Highly Desirable'

(First in a series)

WASHINGTON—The long suppressed FBI files revealing the names of the Communist advisers of the late Dr. Martin Luther King are now in the public domain.

Released under the Freedom of Information Act, the historic documents show that the slain civil rights leader was placed under electronic surveillance from July, 1963, until shortly before he was assassinated in 1968 because of his close relationship with New York attorney Stanley Levison and others with subversive backgrounds and Communist links.

The controversial surveillance on Dr. King was authorized by Robert Kennedy, then attorney general in his brother John's administration, because of the national security implications involved in the civil rights leader's links to those plotting to destroy our system of government.

THE FBI RECORDS disclose that electronic surveillances were placed at Dr. King's home, the headquarters of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which was headed by King, and at 10 various hotels in cities across the country where he stayed.

According to Paul A. Fisher—the investigative reporter and longtime friend who forced the release of the FBI documents—William C. Sullivan, a former FBI official killed last year under strange circumstances in a hunting accident, played a major role in the surveillance of King.

Here is Fisher's account: "After approval by Kennedy and Nicholas Katzenbach (who succeeded Robert Kennedy as attorney general), most of these surveillances were authorized by FBI field agents by William C. Sullivan.

"THE FBI memorandum authorizing field agents to eavesdrop on Dr. King and his associates repeatedly state that the 'coverage is desired in view of King's association with Communists."

Typical of such memoranda is one from Inspector Sizoo to Sullivan concerning a "tap on rooms 2541 through 2543 at the Hotel Park Sheraton in New York City, where Dr. King and his aides Bernard Lee and Andrew Young (present ambassador to the United Nations) were staying Mr. Sizoo declared:

"In view of King's continued contact with Clarence Jones, who is King's conduit for contact with Communist Stanley Levison, and in view of other activities of King, it is considered highly desirable to have a microphone surveillance on the civil rights leader."

"A memorandum of Oct. 19, 1965 notes that coverage of such meetings 'has developed information concerning King's involvement in the Vietnam situation.' A hand-written memorandum, dated Jan. 10, 1966 from Atty. Gen. Katzenbach to Hoover states:

"Obviously these are particularly delicate surveillances, and we should be very cautious in terms of the non-FBI people, who may from time to time necessarily be involved in some aspects of installation.

"This statement apparently refers to the use of employees of the telephone company to install the taps."

It's Never Too Early To Look For New Job

(Second of Two Columns) EVEN IF YOU'RE generally satisfied with your position now, it may be that, in an unexpectedly short time, you'll be looking for a new job.

Even if you're a high-level executive and you feel secure in your present post, an unanticipated merger or successful take-over bid of which you are utterly unaware may shock you into sudden realization that you are fundamentally insecure.

Then, knowing how to use an employment agency to get top results for you could be of invaluable help. Today's column is for you, the worker, seeking a job through an agency.

(1) KEEP YOUR RESUME on file with the agencies that serve your field. This is highly advisable, because then if you need the agency's assistance, you'll find you have the first opportunity to consider openings that are exactly right for you.

Of course, you must be concerned about how confidentially the agency will treat your resume and warns Eugene Taylor, president of National Personnel Associates (a network of employment agencies that exchanged more than 1,600,000 resumes among its 200 offices in 130 cities last year), "conveys this concern to the agency."

"Mistakes do happen. An employer could learn that one of his employees is looking for work through an error by the agency.

"But confidentiality is violated far more commonly when workers run into their counterparts at meetings and speak thoughtlessly. Personnel people make very few mistakes along these lines. An agency can't violate a candidate's confidence and survive."

(2) USE AN AGENCY particularly if you want to relocate to another city. Agencies exchange information and they can save you travel costs and vacation time.

(3) Use an agency to coach you on interviewing techniques. The agency may have an insight into an employer's personality and history of treating employees. And if you, the applicant, get several offers the agency can help you make a decision.

(4) Do not, though, make what Dr. Arthur A. Witkin, chief psychologist for Personnel Sciences Center of New York, calls the "worst mistake"—namely, going to agencies to look for a "job."

You should have "a career plan," says Witkin (whose firm has helped employers select more than 50,000 employees for hiring or advancement). "The agency's counselor is not a vocational counselor. The counselor will help match the applicant's skills with the employer's needs but before the applicant goes to an agency he should have decided on career objectives, preferably with professional help from a counseling psychologist.

(5) WHILE YOU'RE holding a job and well protected, learn which agencies serve your field. Don't wait until you are looking. As Tami Scriber of Campaign Communications Institute of America puts it:

"Keep your resume updated in the agency files and keep in touch. That way you'll know what's going on, when there's a lot of movement among your peers, what the salaries are."

(6) Know your agency and develop a relationship with the counselor in whom you have confidence. Check out the agency before giving any confidential information.

You can do that among your peers. Never meet an employment agency representative any place other than in the agency's office. This is not only plain common sense for your own safety but also gives you the chance to see how the agency operates and how reliable its staff is.

(7) Work with only one or two quality agencies and develop a rapport, a feeling the agency is doing everything it can for you and treating you as an individual.

As Orville W. Dale of United Artists, says: "If you put yourself in the hands of a good agency, you can accomplish more than by hitting the pavement. If you lack confidence in the agency's feeling for you, go elsewhere."

(8) IF YOU'RE a high-level executive suddenly on the job market, you may find it tough to reach a search firm because these firms generally are not geared to help those who approach them and they do not store up potential candidates for searches they don't have.

They don't even respond to letters. Employment agencies are far more approachable and although, of course, they don't provide the degree of services a search firm does, you may find they can help you more than you realized.

Boy Makes Quick Recovery

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Eight-year-old Thad Small has stopped having nightmares now, and his leg is just about healed; only a few claw marks and a long surgical scar remain.

Four months ago, he was mauled by a bull alligator.

"He has a terrific scar, but he goes to basketball practice every night. He's doing great," says Mrs. Mae Doris Small, Thad's mother.

The youngster was attacked as he and some friends played in the shallows of a pond near his home in the small Calcasieu Parish community of Hackberry.

Suddenly, Thad screamed and fell, the water around him churning and boiling as the nine-foot-long alligator tried to drag him away from shore.

"He was rolling in the water with big fins and water bubbling all around him," one of the youngster's playmates says.

Thad's right leg was mangled, but he somehow got free of the reptile's jaws.

He spent 34 days in the hospital, and it took nine operations to repair his leg and fight a stubborn infection that developed in the jagged wounds. Doctors predicted it would be many months before Thad would regain use of the leg.

The alligator not only bit the boy's leg but also twisted and pulled it, ripping the muscles and tendons.

But the second grader's mother says the recovery has been much better than expected.

"He doing really well. I thought it was going to take longer than this but he just got back into the groove of everything," she said in a telephone interview from her Hackberry home.

Thad was reluctant to be interviewed but he says he isn't afraid to go back to the pond and no longer has bad dreams about the attack.

"He had a few at the hospital and then a few when we got back home, but they seem to all be over with," Mrs. Little said.

A few hours after the attack, Thad's uncle went back to the pond, found the alligator and killed it.

State wildlife agents say it was an old bull who apparently had been injured in a fight with a younger male and had come to the pond to recuperate. They say such attacks are rare.

Church Council Defends Giving Aid To Guerrillas

GENEVA (UPI) — The World Council of Churches says it is fighting a just war when it gives money to extremist black guerrillas in southern Africa.

Many critics and church activists are doubtful. The Council, in serious financial difficulty since the sharp plunge of the dollar, is running the risk of losing support from its largest members.

Last month the organization, with 293 members representing 4 million Christians, announced a $85,000 contribution to the hardline Marxist Patriotic Front in Rhodesia, in a move that stirred outrage in some quarters. The allocation came a few weeks after the slaying by black guerrillas of civilians and missionaries in Rhodesia.

The Salvation Army suspended its WCC membership in protest at the grant and letters from angry members, clergymen and individuals flooded into WCC headquarters.

WCC spokesman Robin Guerny said, "Many of them were adverse, but there were also complimentary ones."

Dismissing mounting criticism, the council made an even larger grant — $125,000 — this week to SWAPO, the South West African People's Organization in Namibia.

Financial support to black guerrillas began in 1970 under the controversial "Special program to combat racism." A "special fund" was created to help minority groups throughout the world in their struggle for independence.

The council has disbursed over $3 million over the past eight years. More than half went to black guerrillas in southern Africa because, Guerny explained, "they are the most oppressed."

Grants to liberation movements are drawn from the special fund only, not the regular budget. And donations from WCC members go to the special fund only if they have been earmarked for it, Guerny said.

But church activists say that the use of the WCC trademark on such aid is tarnishing the image of the organization as a whole. The council will lose credibility as a Christian organization devoted to peace unless it stops supporting people suspected of being involved in massacres of innocents, one activist commented.

The radical Patriotic Front has so far received $230,000 from the special fund following requests for help on projects such as clandestine political training and education.

SWAPO has benefitted from $498,500 since 1970, Guerny said.

Bishop Abel Muzorewa, a more moderate black Rhodesian leader who accepted Prime Minister Ian Smith's compromise solution for a peaceful transition to black majority rule, has received a total of $83,500 from the fund.

"Muzorewa's group is probably financed by the Smith government now and therefore no longer needs WCC money," Guerny said.

The council drew strong criticism when it said "the grants are made without control of the manner in which they are spent."

"We don't try to have any control over the money," Guerny said. "We don't believe it will be used to buy guns. We have known the Patriotic Front for many years and we believe they are responsible people."

The council argues that most other international organizations are in the same position and never know where their money really goes.

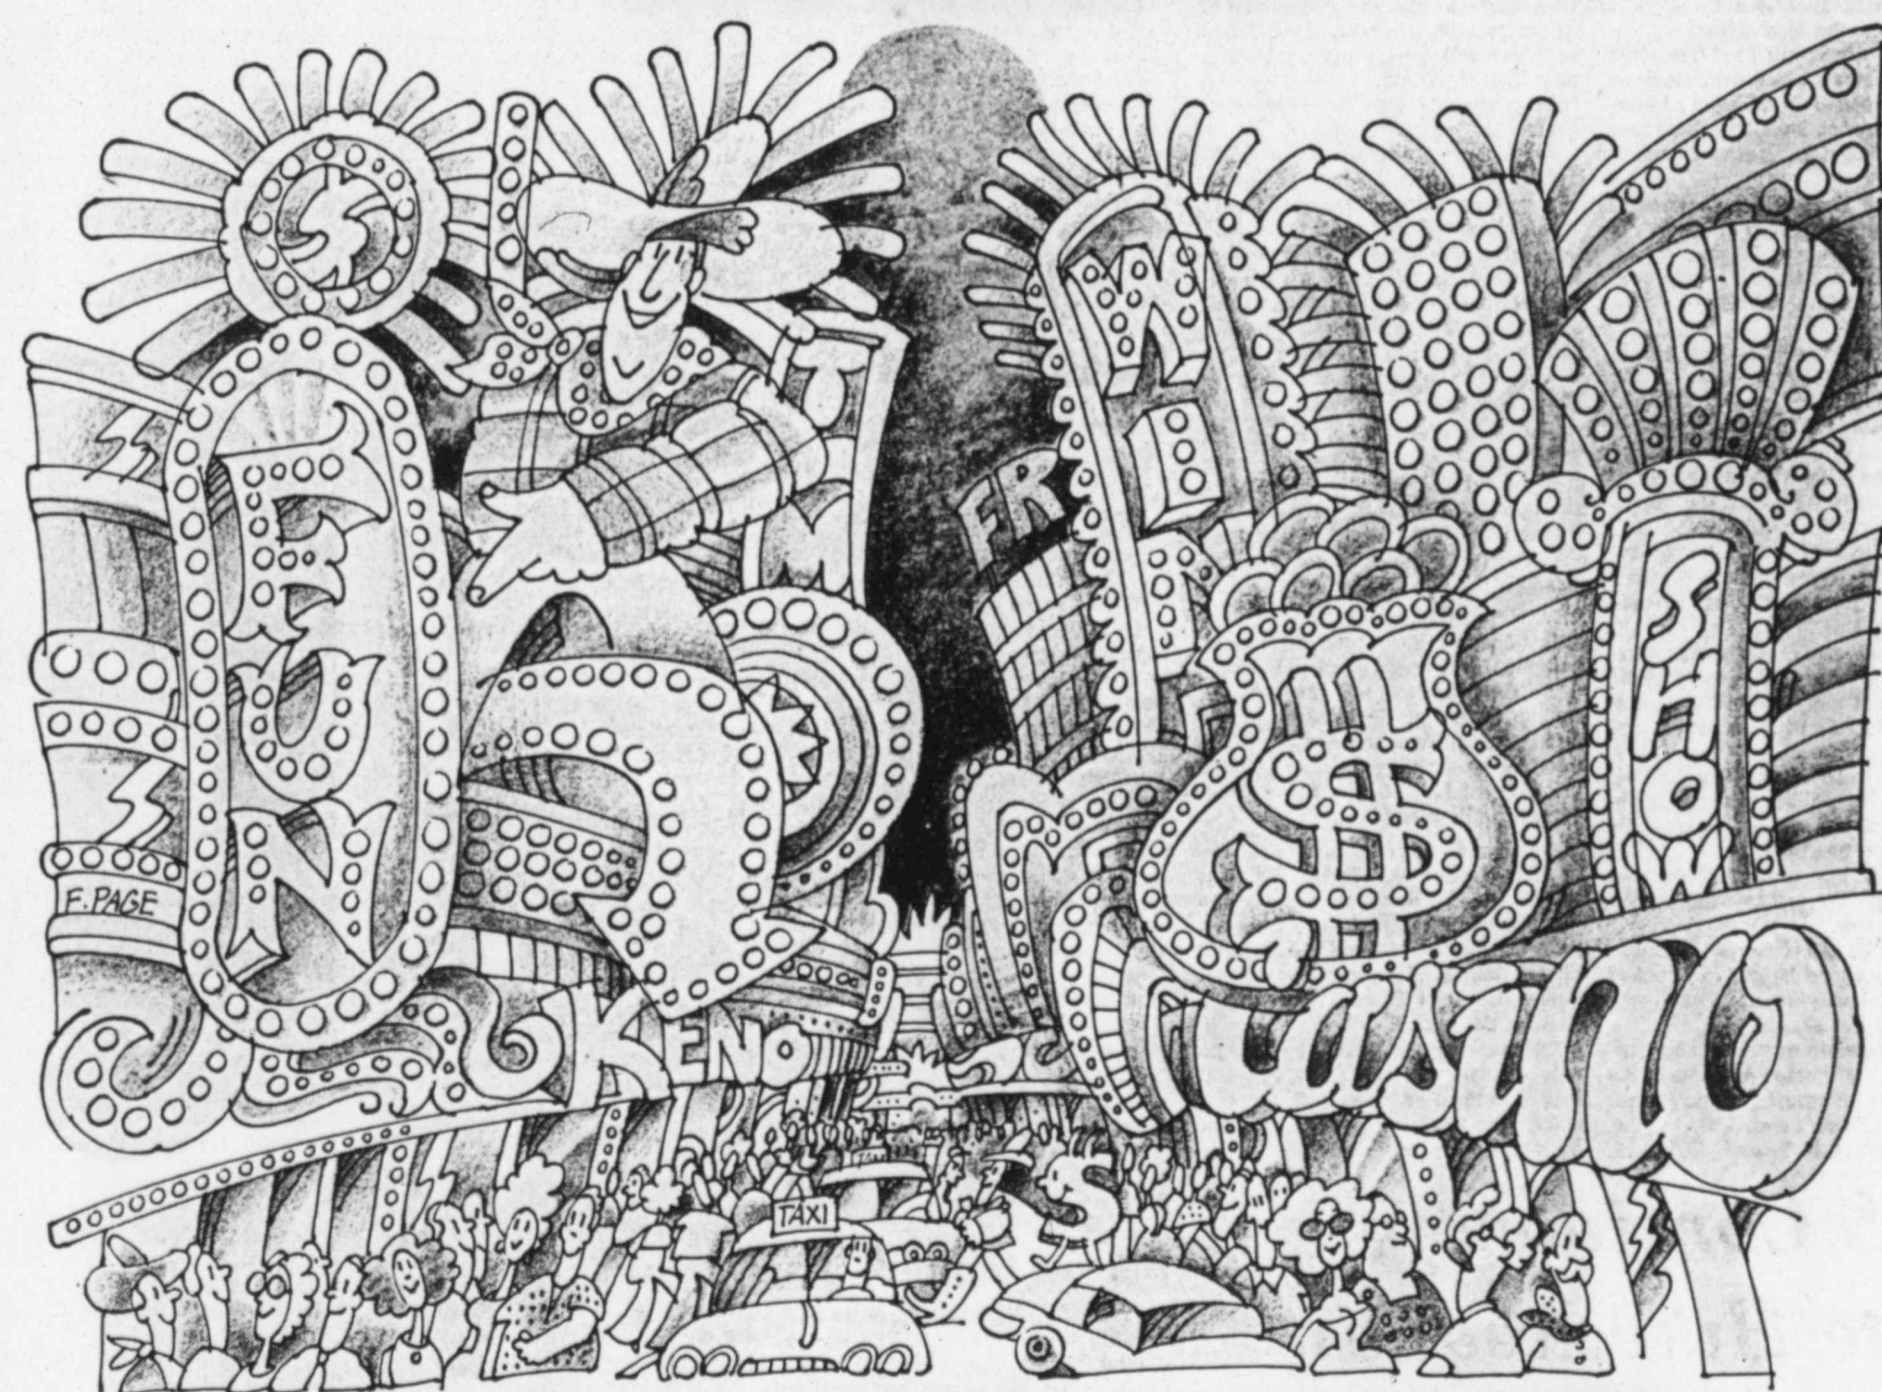

This, it appears from critics, is leading some Christians to believe that WCC money may have possibly provided some of the weapons used to kill missionaries, international Red Cross workers and others involved in humanitarian work.

Allocations are made by the WCC Executive Committee composed of 25 members representing the Third World and developed nations including the United States, Britain, Canada, Australia and France.

Guerny said there was "disagreement" within the committee over the grant to the Patriotic Front, but "only because of the timing, not in principle."

Yale President Cites Decline

AUSTIN (AP) — Some official communications today are so poorly written that they could not guide "a vulture to month-old carrion," said Yale University President A. Bartlett Giamatti.

"The decline of science in the U.S. has been exaggerated, but the decline of the humanities has not," Giamatti said in an appearance Monday at the annual conference of the Association of Graduate Schools in the Association of American Universities.

He deplored falling enrollments in foreign languages and said the cliché that one does not really learn his own language until he has studied others is a cliché because it is true.

"In the last decade, incoherence has often been institutionalized," Giamatti said.

Giamatti said humanities had been hit hardest among the academic disciplines by inflation, the decline in enrollment, the uncertain job market and other ills that beset universities. He urged humanities' faculties to assert themselves by forming "cluster" associations of colleagues and devising new approaches to their subjects before the "productivity sharks" attack.

"It is in an era of vocationalism that the value of liberal education should be affirmed most clearly," he said.

Aguero Blasts County Taxes

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

County commissioner candidate Bidal Aguero today said Lubbock County property taxes are too high for low- and middle-income taxpayers and promised he would work to re-evaluate and equalize taxes if elected over incumbent Commissioner Alton Brazzell.

"It is only through the re-evaluation and equalization of property taxes that the burden of taxes on the low- and middle-income person will be reduced," Aguero said in a 10 a.m. news conference at Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church meeting hall.

"Rich landowners cannot continue to be favored at the expense of the majority of taxpayers in Lubbock County," Aguero, 28, of 2902 Grinnell St., a Raza Unida candidate, also issued a prepared statement on county roads, subdivision developments, fire protection, services, police protection, budget surpluses and county health.

"With the opening of our new county hospital, there is no need for anyone to be refused health service," he said. "Many services need to be immediately improved, including the qualification requirements for indigents and the prevention programs in our county. The mortality rate of our children must not continue to be a shameful statistic for a city such as Lubbock."

Aguero, head of Amigo Publications and Enterprises at 1638 Main St. and a 1974 master of science in special education graduate of the University of Wisconsin at Whitewater, said he has been campaigning door-to-door in Precinct No. 4 and thinks he can win the Nov. 7 election.

He said 40 percent of the precinct electorate is Mexican-American and that a group called the Voter Registration Conference has registered 2,000 voters there in recent weeks.

Mariano Garcia is board chairman of the group, which hired Jesse Reyes as coordinator.

Aguero is editor of El Editor, a weekly bilingual newspaper, and El Portavoz, a quarterly bilingual magazine.

He is a native of Lubbock and a graduate of Lubbock High School.

Brazzell has been a county commissioner for 17 years.

Aguero said he and his supporters have spent about $1,000 in his campaign so far and have cut corners to the extent of hand-making bumper stickers.

Asked if he has been concerned that non-minority voters might consider him "a radical Chicano," he said, "A lot of people have asked me, 'Are you going to represent only the Chicanos?' That's totally untrue. I'm going to represent all the people in the precinct."

He said, however, that he would put "more emphasis" on representing low- and middle-income constituents than Brazzell has given.

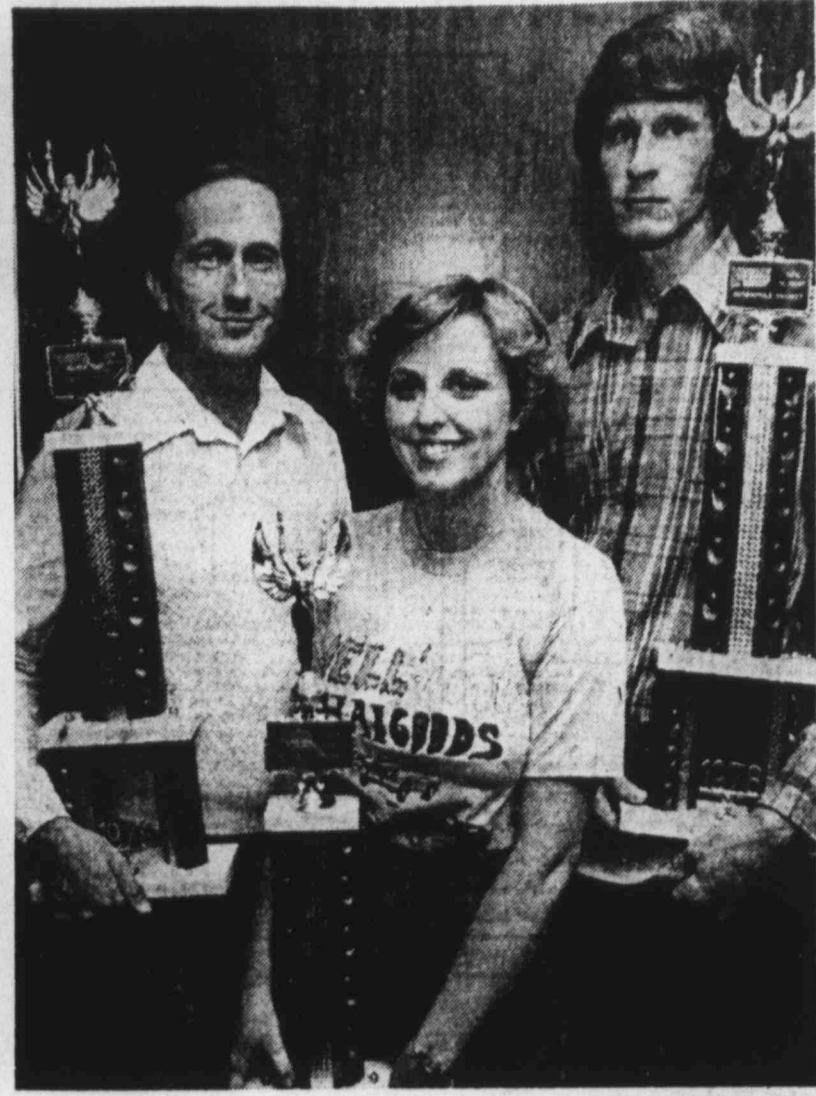

"Our county residents have lost valuable and experienced persons because of the low wages paid to law enforcement officers," he said. "We must raise salaries of county employees to equal those paid by other governmental units. The continued overturn of employees has only proven more costly to taxpayers because of retraining."

Aguero is a 1972 graduate of Texas Tech University in music education, and he has long been active in minority and civil rights causes.

He was Lubbock chairman of the Mexican-American Youth Organization in 1969, a Lubbock director of the American Civil Liberties Union from 1970 to 1972; regional chairman of La Raza Unida in 1971-72; founder and first president of the Lubbock Chicano Chamber of Commerce in 1975; and an executive committee member of the Arnett-Benson Neighborhood Council in 1977.

Progress Reported In Murder Probe

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Crosby County Sheriff Fred Owen said "a lot" of progress was made Tuesday in the investigation of the killing of a Lorenzo couple Monday, but added there have been no arrests in the case as of late this morning.

Owen was in Lubbock today continuing his search for a suspect in the killings of Valton Vernoid Gandy, 73, and his 68-year-old wife, Cora Hughes Gandy, who lived about a half mile north of Lorenzo on FM 378.

The grim discovery of the couple sprawled in their driveway was made about 6 p.m. Monday by Mrs. Gandy's sister, Mrs. Mary Hall.

"We got a lot of evidence we have submitted to the (Department of Public Safety) lab...we're waiting on the results now," Owen said this morning.

The sheriff would not elaborate on what kind of evidence authorities have, but he said it was discovered at the Gandys' home Tuesday.

He said he expected some results from the lab tests this afternoon. Other material picked up at the scene of the double slaying was to be sent to Austin for further study.

Owen was in Lubbock today meeting with Texas Ranger Joe Hunt, who is helping the sheriff and his deputies attempt to solve the case.

Asked about any suspects, Hunt said this morning, "We are not close to any arrests right now."

Owen said he had some questioning to do in Lubbock, and he was expected to meet with Lubbock County Chief Deputy Albert Smith.

An early possible suspect in the murders, which shocked residents of the small town of Lorenzo, has come up with a "good alibi," Owen said.

Ralls Justice of the Peace W.E. Easter, who ruled homicide in the case, said today autopsy reports indicate the Gandys were shot with the same gun, thought to be a .38-caliber pistol. "I'm sure they (the bullets) were all from the same gun," Easter said.

Mrs. Gandy was struck in the head with a hard object, possibly the butt of the gun, and shot twice, according to Easter. Her husband was shot three times and a sixth bullet was found in the ground between where the two bodies were found.

Authorities had earlier speculated that the Gandys were killed by burglars at their house when they returned after a shopping trip. Owen did not comment on that possibility today.

Services for the couple will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Quaker Avenue Church of Christ in Lubbock with Ellmore Johnson, minister, officiating, assisted by Dr. Thomas Lankford, an elder, and Jack McCormick, a retired minister from Littlefield.

Burial will follow in the City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Carter-Adams Funeral Home in Ralls.

The Gandys were married Dec. 25, 1934, in Crosbyton. Gandy was a retired farmer and native of Lone Oak. He is survived by two brothers, G.G. of Lubbock and F.D. of Lodi, Calif.; and a sister, Mary Lynn Bowden of Odessa.

Mrs. Gandy's survivors include a brother, H.T. Hughes of Lubbock; and eight sisters, Dora Fredenburg, Eva Gaydon and Mary Hall, all of Lubbock, Nelma Kelly of Houston, Naomi Fredenburg of Liberty, Rachael Alburts of San Angelo, Evelyn Hawk of Pasadena and Bessie Hurd of California.

The couple also is survived by their 23-year-old nephew, David Snow, who had lived with them since he was 3 years old. Snow, who works in Lubbock, was not home at the time of the shooting.

SPS Considering Rate Hike Request

Southwestern Public Service Company has decided not to appeal last week's Public Utility Commission decision to permit the electric company to increase its rates by $15.9 million rather than the requested $21.9 million.

However, Lubbock district manager Roy Holmes said the $6 million reduction in the rate increase may necessitate another rate hike request.

"In order to continue to build coal-fired plants and to meet our customers' needs and comply with Texas Docket 600, I am sure it will be necessary to request another adjustment in our rates in the near future," he said.

Docket 600 mandates that the electric company curtail its use of gas as a boiler fuel by 10 percent by 1981 and by 25 percent by 1985.

Holmes said the utility decided to accept the rate increase offered by the PUC because "we feel that to pursue the matter further would be an unnecessary added expense to the cities, our customers and the company."

The 10 percent rate increase will affect 209,000 Southwestern Public Service customers in the South Plains and Panhandle with the exception of those in Lubbock, Crosbyton and Floydada.

Holmes said it is not yet known how the $15.9 million increase will affect the average residential customer.

When the utility filed for the rate increase last May, it cited the need for revenue for two new $100 million power plants, inflation and needed higher depreciation rates.

Holmes denied speculation that the utility would apply for higher rates in Lubbock, Crosbyton and Floydada whenever the current rate request was settled.

He was Lubbock chairman of the Mexican-American Youth Organization in 1969, a Lubbock director of the American Civil Liberties Union from 1970 to 1972; regional chairman of La Raza Unida in 1971-72; founder and first president of the Lubbock Chicano Chamber of Commerce in 1975; and an executive committee member of the Arnett-Benson Neighborhood Council in 1977.

Former Official Gets Help From Indians

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — Jim Gillihan carries two spider spirits in a medicine pouch around his neck.

Gillihan, formerly the state's director of cultural preservation, says Sioux Indians gave him the pouch and assigned the spirits to look after him.

"It's perfectly logical," he says. "Spiders are everywhere. When something goes wrong with me, they'll tell their brothers. And their brothers will tell their cousins."

"And soon the Almighty will know, because if there are spiders everywhere, there's certainly one where the Almighty is," he says.

Gillihan, who now lives in Mt. Carmel, Ill., has been interested in Indian religion since the days he taught comparative world religions at Bradley University.

When he came to South Dakota in 1970, he began attending religious ceremonies with an old Yankton Dakota Indian named Joe Rock Boy, who helped him understand the significance of the various rites.

"Godfrey Chipps from Wambaugh taught me about stones," he says. "One day he gave me a stone and sang it a song and it jumped in my hand. I didn't believe it could happen, but I saw it happen."

"That made me re-evaluate everything I knew," he says. "Now I realize that everything has life."

Gillihan was given his first serious religious pipe in 1972 and smoked it with Frank Fools Crow, the 90-year-old spiritual leader of the Sioux. He still prays with it.

"I carry it in the proper way and care for it," he says. "I keep it clean, respect it, and don't say bad things around it. The pipe is the direct link between man and the Almighty, so it must be kept clean."

Then in 1975, doctors found that Gillihan had cancer and recommended a major operation to remove his lymph system.

the number of sutures it took to sew me up — 405 stitches."

Doctors found no cancer that day, Gillihan says. After a later operation to remove a cancerous right lung, Gillihan is gaining weight and strength. And the Indians are praying for him.

"He has been our great friend in Pierre," Matthew Noble Red Man said at a recent Sun Dance ceremony. "He has asked that we bless his pipe with which he prays to the Great Spirit."

"He may be a white man," Noble Red Man added, "but at heart he is an Indian."

AN INDIAN AT HEART — Jim Gillihan, formerly South Dakota's director of cultural preservation, prayed recently with the sacred pipe given him by Frank Fools Crow, the 90-year-old spiritual leader of the Sioux. About his neck, Gillihan has a medicine pouch containing two spider spirits, which he says the Sioux assigned to look after him. At a recent Sun Dance ceremony, his Sioux friends observed that Gillihan may be a white man, "but at heart he is an Indian." (AP Laserphoto)

Producers Defend Cost Of Materials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of building materials have increased in response to economic need, not because producers seek to gouge the public, the Carter administration's wage and price agency was told Tuesday.

Producers of both gypsum and cement defended recent price increases as necessary to provide them with adequate profits, although a contractors' representative complained that prices hikes for gypsum wallboard, in particular, appeared excessive.

The administration's Council on Wage and Price Stability opened two days of public hearings into price increases of building materials, which it said have been a major cause of housing.

Representatives of the lumber industry are scheduled to appear later. Jack A. Meyer, the council's assistant director, said lumber product prices "have been a chronic source of inflation over the past decade," with annual increases averaging 12 percent.

Prices of gypsum have increased 24.3 percent in the last 12 months, he said, and cement prices rose at an annual rate of 24.4 percent in the first eight months of the year. Asphalt and millwork prices also are being scrutinized.

Meyer expressed disappointment that some companies that were asked to give the council information provided incomplete information or did not respond at all.

He said the council was "particularly handicapped by the refusal of the two leading gypsum producers — U.S. Gypsum Co. and National Gypsum Co. — to testify at the hearing or to provide us with cost and profit data."

He said both companies are defendants in cases involving allegations of price fixing, and quoted them as saying their positions would be compromised if they provided the council with the information it sought.

The council lacks authority to do anything about price increases, other than to study and comment on them, although it can subpoena information.

Meyer said in his opening statement that "gypsum products are among the most inflationary items in the economy" and have substantially outpaced cost increases in the industry, which is highly concentrated among a few firms. Gypsum is used in wallboard and other products used in home and building construction.

But James P. Rowe, president of Domtar Gypsum America Inc. said gypsum producers have lost substantial amounts in their operations until very recently and said there had been significant temporary shutdowns of gypsum operations in California, Arizona and Nevada.

Price increases now provide a profit, he said, but "it's still not clear that anticipated returns over the economic life of the assets will justify new substantial capital infusions into our gypsum business."

John F. Burns, vice president of Kaiser Cement Gypsum Corp. of Oakland, Calif., said in prepared remarks that Kaiser withdrew from the gypsum wallboard business recently "after absorbing huge losses." It sold its gypsum facilities to Domtar.

With respect to cement, he said the return on investment in the cement industry generally has been below the average of all manufacturing industries and was 28th among 41 industries last year, at a time of cement shortages.

In 1480, the first inquisitors were appointed to serve in the Spanish Inquisition.

"So we had a sweat lodge ceremony and the medicine men told me to go ahead with it because I would feel good when they found no cancer," Gillihan says. "He said he would send some spirits to the hospital to guide the doctors, and that there would be a sign. And he told me to tie 405 tobacco ties before the operation."

"The doctors later told me my heart stopped while I was on the table, but that it started again for some strange reason," he says. "And they said they'd counted

Dunlop Doubts Wage Agreement

By IKE FLORES
LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Former Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop says he believes it unlikely that labor, management and government can agree on wage and price controls in the foreseeable future, barring a "genuine emergency."

Dunlop told a session of the International Chamber of Commerce this week that he advocated a series of joint and voluntary steps to change "the underlying structures and factors affecting wage and price decisions. Governments have reached and exceeded the limits of what can be accomplished in areas of economic policy by direction."

Government needs less "command and control and regulation and more consensus-building and persuasion."

Dunlop, labor secretary in the Ford administration, appeared to be anticipating Carter administration programs to attempt to control inflation by reining in escalating wages and prices.

He urged both labor and management to revise what he said were outdated policies which led to both wage and price problems.

Unless there is broad-ranging cooperation among labor, management and government, "little, if anything, can be accomplished except in appearances," Dunlop said.

Dunlop, now a Harvard University professor, blamed the nation's economic stagnancy since 1973 partially on what he said was the uncertainty in government energy, environmental and regulatory policies.

Another reason is the resulting tendency of private industry to invest in machinery and equipment rather than in long-term plant and developmental programs, Dunlop said.

John Gardner, former secretary of health, education and welfare and founder of the citizens' lobby Common Cause, told another panel that when the private sector ignores problems and lets them turn into crises, government moves in.

"Circumstances are right for some collaborative thinking by those elements in the nongovernmental sector, profit and nonprofit, which worry about the steady erosion of private sector vitality," Gardner said. "Yet little of such thinking has actually gone on."

Every segment of American life is suffering from a kind of paranoia, feeling mistreated and ill-used, Gardner said. "People who think of themselves as victims are in no mood to act as the shapers of a constructive future," he said.

The tradition that citizens voluntarily join together to tackle community problems "is in danger of being driven to the wall by government policies, and if that happens we will be in a different kind of world," Gardner warned.

President Carter opened the proceedings Sunday night, and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will deliver the closing address on Friday.

Industrialist Gives College Big Gift

ALLEDALE, Mich. (AP) — Russel Kirkhoff, a 82-year-old retired industrialist who never got beyond the seventh grade, has given Grand Valley State College $1 million.

College President Arend Lubbers said the donation is the largest in the 15-year history of the Michigan school. Lubbers said the liberal arts professional studies building, and the corresponding academic program, will be renamed after Kirkhoff.

Candidate Switches Opponents

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Republican Jim Martin has withdrawn from one U.S. Senate race to enter another, apparently believing Donald Stewart to be more vulnerable than Howell Heflin.

Both Heflin and Stewart are Democrats.

The switch in campaign strategy leaves Heflin, a Democrat and former chief justice of the state Supreme Court, facing no major party opposition in the Nov. 7 general election for the seat held by retiring Sen. John Sparkman. Heflin is opposed only by Prohibition Party candidate Jerome B. Couch of Camp Hill.

Martin, 60, a Gadsden oil distributor, now faces Stewart, a state senator, in a race for the remaining two years of the term of the late Sen. Jim Allen.

Stewart's GOP opponent had been George Nichols, a Tuscaloosa lawyer. However, Nichols withdrew from the race and asked Martin to take over.

State GOP Chairman Bill Harris said that with only five weeks left before the general election, Nichols lacked the organization to defeat Stewart.

"It is vitally important not only to the party but to the country that we have a strong candidate in that race," said Harris, adding that he personally asked Martin to switch races.

In announcing the switch, Martin said his political differences with Stewart, whom he called a liberal, were greater than those with Heflin.

Harris said the party currently had no one in mind to run against Heflin.

Stewart, a youthful grassroots candidate with labor support, soundly defeated Sen. Maryon Allen in a runoff Sept. 26 to run for the rest of her husband's term. Mrs. Allen, whose husband died June 1, was appointed to fill the seat until the general election.

Reacting to Martin's switch, Stewart, an Anniston lawyer, said: "The people of Alabama have spoken and will speak again on Nov. 7. They want new leadership. They want new faces. They want Donald Stewart in the U.S. Senate."

Stewart and Martin have opposition from Prohibition Party candidate A.J. Killingsworth, Peace Party candidate Joseph Robino Jr., and Libertarian Party hopeful Michael R. A. Erdey.

Martin, a conservative who was elected to Congress in 1964 for one term, made an unsuccessful race for the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate in 1972.

Jogger Meets Grid Mentor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Patty Wilson made it to Columbus Tuesday to help raise money for research into epilepsy and meet Woody Hayes.

Miss Wilson, 16, of Buena Park, Calif., started running Aug. 5 in Minneapolis. She intends to make it to Washington, D.C. by mid-November. Ohio is the halfway point in her 2,000-mile jog.

She is an epileptic and takes medication daily to control her handicap.

On hand to meet her at the steps of the state capitol (the 860-mile point) were Columbus Mayor Thomas Moody and Ohio State University football coach Woody Hayes.

Moody gave Miss Wilson a proclamation designating Tuesday as "Patty Wilson Day" in Ohio. Hayes gave her an OSU hat "to keep the sun out of your eyes" and promised her tickets to the Rose Bowl in January, should his team win the Big Ten Conference this season.

"It's hard, but with the people out helping us, it makes it easier," said Miss Wilson, who runs between 25 and 35 miles a day.

She expects to be in Cleveland by the weekend, then onto Boston, New York, Philadelphia and finally to Washington to meet the president during national epilepsy month.

Along her journey, local epilepsy organizations are conducting fund-raising drives with a national goal of $2 million — $1 for each of the persons in the United States who are afflicted with the neuro-muscular disorder.

Circus Performers Have Superstitions

DENVER (UPI) — Friday the 13th, traditional bad luck day of the year, means little to what could be the most superstitious group of people in show business. Performers of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, appearing in Denver from Oct. 5-15, will be in the three rings on the 13th, but it's a low priority worry compared to their other superstitions. C.P. Fox, official historian of the largest circus in the world, offered the following observations on the superstitions of those in the circus world: Don't whistle in the dressing room and don't drop peanut shells in it. Don't put your hat on the bed and avoid moving a wardrobe trunk once it's set down. Always step into the ring with the right foot first, never wish a performer "good luck" before an act and spit in a hat if you see a cross-eyed person. When there is no audience in the arena, circus performers don't sit on the curb of a ring with their backs to the empty seats. Beware if someone is knitting in the first few rows during a performance. If a circus person accidentally puts on some part of a costume backward, it brings trouble to put it back on correctly. Accidents come in threes, so await the next of a series if a mishap occurs. Yellow has been an ill-fated color since a famous flying trapeze act clad in yellow tights had a fatal accident. The playing of "The Stars and Stripes Forever" is a sign of impending disaster, and the band never plays "Home Sweet Home" under any circumstances until the final night of the season. Fox said no one in the circus quite knows how the superstitions came into existence, but they've been around ever since the oldest painted circus wagons went from one town to another.

Iraq Again Sending Oil To Turkey

By United Press International
KUWAIT (UPI) — Iraq has resumed pumping oil to Turkey through a jointly operated pipeline after a break of eight months, following a settlement of debts owed to Iraq by Turkey, according to oil industry sources. The sources say the two Middle East neighbors agreed in August that Iraq would accept Turkish commodity exports in payment of a $300 million debt owed by Turkey. The sources said Iraq also paid Turkey some $1.5 million in overdue royalties for oil destined for third countries.

Help From Friends

BEIRUT (UPI) — Perhaps there is no more bitter dispute, among the many bitter disputes in Lebanon, than that between the Christian militias and the Palestinians. But curiously enough, government sources say, whenever Christian militia chief Bashir Gemayel needs to go to the airport in Moslem West Beirut, he has a Palestinian bodyguard, courtesy of Hani al Hassan, a top aide of Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat. The reason? Gemayel and Hassan are friends. According to the sources, they used to meet regularly, even during the 1975-76 civil war, for dinner, drinks and cards.

Will Jamming Stop?

CAIRO (UPI) — The government is expected to stop jamming the Arabic service of Israel radio soon. This will be done either shortly before or soon after the conclusion of an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, expected in two or three months. It is common practice in Beirut or Amman to tune in openly to Israeli news bulletins broadcast in Arabic. But not in Cairo, where heavy jamming makes the Israeli program barely audible. The jamming was stopped only once in the past — when President Anwar Sadat was visiting Jerusalem last November.

Plans for Peace

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel started making plans for peace with Egypt even before the vote on the Camp David peace accords went to parliament. The defense ministry will have two cabinet-rank committees to control the redeployment of Israeli troops who withdraw from the Sinai and to ensure a smooth transition from military to civilian rule in the occupied West Bank of Jordan and the Gaza Strip. The first committee will deal with construction of a new military infrastructure in southern Israel and will act as a watchdog to prevent profiteering.

Exports to Egypt

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli economic planners envision exports to Egypt worth at least $80 million in the first year of peace. Egyptian sales to Israel would amount to at least $20 million unless Israel purchased oil from Cairo to bring trade into balance. Israel, whose economic output is only 10 percent less than that of Egypt's despite a vast difference in population between the two countries, could sell insecticides and chemicals to Egypt. It would import agricultural produce.

Doves For Sadat

CAIRO (UPI) — By custom, many wedding cakes in Egypt have two sugar doves kissing or looking at each other on the top tier to symbolize marital bliss. The wedding cake for President Anwar Sadat's only son, Gamal, and his bride Dina, who married Sept. 24, was no exception. But there was a departure from custom. Instead of keeping the two doves for themselves as a souvenir, the newlyweds presented them to a beaming Sadat as a peace symbol.

Cholera Outbreak Linked To Crabs

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Four more southwest Louisiana residents have cholera and federal disease control officials have traced the source to crabs which the people had eaten, Louisiana's chief health officer said. Prior to the new cases, five cases had been confirmed. All nine are recovering or have recovered, Dr. William Cherry said at a news conference Monday. Louisiana's $138 million-a-year seafood industry has suffered a drop in crab sales since the cholera source was identified.

Common Chemical Seen As Possible Cancer Cure

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Hospital biologists plan extensive tests on a chemical commonly found in research laboratories to determine if it can turn deadly human cancer cells into normal, unharmed ones.

The chemical is dimethyl formamide, or DMF. It's a polar solvent used frequently by organic chemists.

Dr. Daniel Dexter, a researcher at Roger Williams General Hospital and assistant professor of medicine at Brown University, said DMF apparently has a "somewhat dramatic" effect on human cancer cells.

Cells treated with DMF and injected into mice did not grow into tumors, while untreated cells almost invariably did cause tumors, Dexter said.

In addition, he said, "very preliminary" tests with six mice indicated that human tumors died when treated with DMF.

Dexter said he plans to test DMF on 50 to 100 cancer-afflicted mice. If the results are encouraging, there will be experiments with rabbits, dogs and monkeys, followed by human trials within three to five years.

Dexter also confirmed the hospital was launching a new program designed to improve the effectiveness of existing anti-cancer drugs. It will involve a limited number of human patients.

Surgeons will remove a piece of a patient's tumor and try to cultivate it in a laboratory dish. The tumor, which can contain up to five kinds of cancer cells, will then be analyzed for its contents.

Drugs will then be custom-blended to attack the different kinds of cancer cells the tumor has, Dexter said.

There is a hitch. Cultivation techniques are only in their infancy, Dexter said, and "require a lot of technical help and a certain amount of money." He said they would not be widely available for at least "a couple of years."

Dr. Paul C. Calabresi, physician in chief and a cancer specialist at Roger Williams General Hospital, said Dexter's results with DMF were "very interesting." But he cautioned further testing was essential.

He said the first part of Dexter's experiments in which DMF-treated and non-treated cancer cells were injected into mice is "significant" and ready for publication.

He said tests on the six mice which already had cancer were "provocative," but, "I certainly would not hang my hat on that."

Dexter, 38, who worked under Nobel Prize winning Dr. Francois Jacob of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, said his research was based on a theory cancer cells can be cured and need not be killed.

He said he viewed cancer cells as "stuck" and unable to mature so they multiply rapidly instead. Human cancer cells treated in the test tube with DMF seemed to mature and turn harmless, he said.

Dexter said he had no idea why human cancer cells died in mice injected with DMF.

"We're excited about it," Calabresi said. "This is a new approach to try to get the cells to mature and is very interesting. I think cancer needs a different kind of approach."

Journalists Flock To Detroit Bar

DETROIT (UPI) — When activists elsewhere were rallying behind the likes of Angela Davis, "Free Leo" was the bumper sticker battle cry in Detroit.

Then, as now, Leo Derderian, a 59-year-old ex-World War II Marine corporal, former bookmaker, onetime auto worker and labor activist, was the hard-drinking, free-wheeling proprietor of the only true newspaper bar in the shot-and-beer city of Detroit.

Derderian's tavern, The Anchor, has been described as sleazy, dingy and even crummy. But it always has catered to a clientele that consists of Michigan's most prominent citizens and journalism's zaniest characters.

Its colorful history is the subject of a just-published, spily written, 170-page paperback — "The Anchor, Leo & Friends" — authored by former Detroit News staffer Berl Falbaum and released by JDW Publications of Eugene, Ore.

It chronicles the important role played by The Anchor during the city's bloody 1967 riot as the only establishment in town where you could get a drink — 24 hours a day and at cut rates — and its surprise selection four years later as the focal point of a nationwide FBI gambling bust.

It was the only place in town where reporters could run tabs, the clock ran conveniently slow at the legal closing time and newspaper printers could rub elbows with mayors, major-league umpires and judges. Everybody was, and is, treated alike.

Leo, by then retired from bookmaking, was among 150 people arrested in May 1971 in connection with an alleged $40,000-a-day gambling operation.

All the cases were thrown out of court because of improperly authorized electronic eavesdropping by the FBI, which spent months filming goings-on at The Anchor with a hidden television camera.

The notoriety that came from the raid only added to the allure of The Anchor, now thriving from its third downtown location in some 15 years — the ground floor of an abandoned hotel — despite the onslaught of a new generation of supposedly more serious-minded journalists.

"The old characters, there's not too many left," said Leo's son, Vaughn, a 31-year-old college graduate who tends to the night business. "But newspapermen still like to drink a lot."

China To Keep Sending Pins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — China may continue sending its wooden clothespins to the United States with permission coming straight from the White House.

In an action announced by special trade representative Robert Strauss, President Carter rejected Monday a recommendation by the International Trade Commission to impose import quotas for five years on the pins produced by the People's Republic of China.

Such sanctions would not be "in the national economic interest," and the case should be decided during a separate ITC investigations of clothespin imports from all countries, not just China, he said.

The commission ruled July 20 that imports of Chinese goods were injuring U.S. firms, the first time the U.S. government found a Communist country to be in violation of its trade laws.

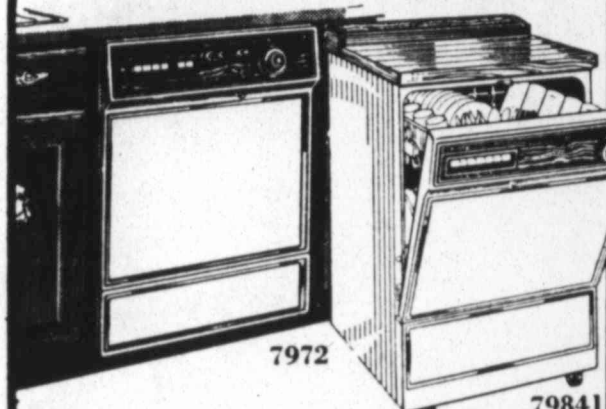

The nations' four major clothespin manufacturers — three in Maine and one in Vermont — had complained that their domestic sales had dipped by 200,000 pins between 1973 and 1977, largely because lower-priced Chinese imports were flooding the American market, they said.

Ag Official Issues Warning About Farm Exports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Agriculture Department officials and politicians usually talk about farm exports, they euphorically discuss records and potential markets. From Secretary Bob Bergland on down, they point with pride to the expected record this year of $28.6 billion in U.S. farm exports.

—It's almost the only bright spot in the U.S. trade picture. Dawson Ahalt, chairman of the department's World Food and Agricultural Outlook and Situation Board, has paused to take a critical look at trends in farm exports. He has issued some warnings for the long run.

The United States is not the only nation that wants to help pay for its oil imports with food exports. Other nations are striving for increased exports.

Among the most prominent of new U.S. competition includes Brazilian soybeans, Malaysian palm oil, Thai corn and Pakistani cotton.

Ahalt issued his warnings in a paper presented recently at a Tennessee Valley Authority Fertilizer Conference in St. Louis. He reiterated them in an article in a recent issue of "Foreign Agriculture" magazine.

He pointed out that foreign grain stocks this year dropped about 15 percent, reflecting export sales by other countries, while U.S. stocks rose by 20 percent.

He said the major grain competitors of Canada, Australia, Argentina and South Africa sell their wheat through national marketing boards, compared to the private exporting system of the United States.

The marketing boards set upper limits on prices paid to farmers, but they "give their countries an advantage in times of large supplies via selling practices that sometimes undercut U.S. exporters in world markets," he said.

The result is the United States is a residual supplier of some farm products.

Government programs in other nations have done much to improve their competitive posture in agriculture.

For example, Brazil has switched from being an exporter of just coffee and sugar to being a multi-crop exporter. The Japanese helped spur Brazilian soybean production to assure a steady supply after the United States a few years ago imposed a soybean export embargo.

Brazil "has been eating away at U.S. shares of foreign markets," Ahalt said.

It also exports corn and cotton and is trying to grow enough wheat to feed its own people.

Other competition in the oilseed market comes from palm oil of Indonesia and Malaysia and sunflowerseed oil and soybeans from Argentina.

The United States has an edge on most competitors in its yields because of favorable climate, hybrid seeds, fertilizers and pesticides.

Ahalt predicts that, barring technological breakthroughs, Canada, Australia and South Africa will not greatly increase their grain output.

But grain yields could increase substantially in Argentina and Brazil, which have untapped land resources, and Thailand. Argentina achieves high yields merely with its weather and without technological breakthroughs used in the United States.

"Besides its potential for considerable yield increases, Brazil probably has the world's highest potential for expanding farm area," Ahalt said.

He said U.S. prospects in the long term rest on such factors as farm policies, international trade and commodity agreements, market development programs, monetary fluctuations and U.S. efforts to gather world market information.

In the area of market development, he notes, the United States spends less than its competitors. Israel spent 15 times more and Australia 11 times more than the United States when the percentage of export earnings spent on promotion is compared.

New Oil Findings Spur Chinese Foreign Trade

By ROBERT CRABBE
TOKYO UPI — Mike Mansfield, the former U.S. Senate majority leader who now is American ambassador in Tokyo, recently was lecturing newsmen on why the United States should stay in Asia.
 "You've got everything out here," Mansfield said. "And you've got the world's next big oil field off the East Asian coast."
 A large share of that oil field — if it really exists — lies off the coast of China, and it is about to be tapped.
 Wheeling and dealing like Texas tycoons, the new team of Communist leaders in Peking has just struck a bargain to swap enormous quantities of Chinese coal and oil for Japanese industrial equipment over the next 13 years.
 Toshio Komoto, Japanese minister of international trade and industry, who made the deal in principle with the Chinese during a visit to Peking Sept. 11-15, was an excited man when he came home.

 "We are in a stage where we have to act quickly," he told newsmen on his arrival in Tokyo. He urged the Japanese government to help its businessmen get in on the ground floor of what appears to be an enormous expansion of China's foreign trade. He also said the United States and Europe would be active competitors.
 The deal is so big the Japanese still have not had time to figure out what it really will be worth. Last February, the two countries agreed on a transaction in which China would sell Japan $10 billion worth of oil between 1978-85, in return for $10 billion in Japanese factory equipment.
 On Komoto's trip to Peking this time, Chinese leaders told him they want to extend the agreement to 1990, and raise the two-way flow of goods as high as $80 billion.

It is a remarkable switch in China's previous cautious trading policy. As long as Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-Tung lived, the rule was to sell as little of China's natural resources abroad as possible. There was also an absolute ban on borrowing foreign money to develop them, or allowing foreigners to play any role in it.
 The new team headed by Premier Hua Kuo-Feng, winner of the power struggle after Mao's death in late 1976, sees things differently. Hua and influential Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-Ping are acutely conscious of China's industrial backwardness, and its weakness in the face of 1.5 million Soviet troops posted along China's northern border.

 They have embarked on an ambitious program to make China a modern industrial country by the end of the century. Their current 10-year (1976-85) economic plan calls for $300 billion to be invested in industrial buildup and development of energy resources.
 "We have inexhaustible sources of energy materials," Komoto quoted Hua as saying. "China may have to worry about this after a few hundred years, but not now."

 The Chinese certainly have some oil, but both U.S. oilmen and the Central Intelligence Agency's analysts in the past have been skeptical about how much.
 China began developing an oil industry in the early 1960s, at a time when both the United States and the Soviet Union were subjecting her to economic blockade. American experts believe that production last year was around 637 million barrels, putting China in the same league with producers like Libya and Nigeria.

Toxic Bean Could Stop Cancer Cells

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — A University of Kansas biochemist says although the castor bean is poisonous to eat, it might be valuable as a cancer treatment. Castor beans, which contain ricin, an enzyme extremely toxic to all animal cells, may be used to attack only tumor cells, professor L.L. Houston said. Ricin inhibits the growth of tumor cells "much more efficiently than it inhibits growth of normal cells," Houston says. Although ricin is very toxic, the oil of the bean is not and has long been used as a laxative, Houston says. He explained that ricin is a protein and because proteins are not soluble in oil, the toxin is not present in the highly refined oil used as a medication. Houston is studying methods of altering the ricin molecule so it will act only on rapidly growing cancer cells without damaging normal cells. Ricin is not currently used as a cancer treatment because it kills a large number of normal cells along with cancerous cells. Ricin acts on the cells by blocking protein synthesis on the ribosome, the cell's protein manufacturing center, Houston says. Without a supply of protein, the cell dies. Houston says researchers are "at the point where we can design a ricin molecule to make it more selective for tumor cells." Houston's research concerns coupling a ricin molecule with a tumor. "It is known that tumor cells have some cellular components (antigens) which vary among tumor types and generally are not found in normal cells," Houston says. "We plan to make antibodies to these tumor-specific antigens and join ricin molecules to them. Antibodies localize at tumor sites so we hope that the ricin will enter the tumor cells, thereby killing them."

Mystery Shrouds Death Of Former CIA Official

BALTIMORE (AP) — The CIA fears former agent John Paisley may have been murdered by Soviet secret police because of his connection with the agency's satellite surveillance system, the Wilmington News Journal reported today. A CIA spokesman termed the report "ridiculous."

In a copyright story, the News Journal quoted unnamed high-level CIA sources as saying that Paisley was still serving as a consultant with the CIA at the time of his death.

Paisley's body was recovered from the mouth of the Patuxent River Sunday. He had 40 pounds of diving weights strapped around his waist and a bullet hole in his head.

The chief spokesman for the CIA denied that the agency had any fears Paisley had been murdered by Soviet agents.

"That is ridiculous," said CIA spokesman Herbert E. Hetu. "Why would they murder him because he knew about the satellite surveillance program. I know as much about satellite surveillance as he did and I have no fear."

Hetu said Paisley was "an analyst. He wasn't a spy," and confirmed that Paisley was still serving as a consultant with the CIA at the time of his death.

He also denied that the CIA was taking any active role in the investigation beyond cooperating with Maryland State Police.

"We are an overseas intelligence collecting organization. We don't do domestic investigations. That is prohibited by executive order," Hetu added.

The News Journal, however, reported that the CIA is taking an active role in the investigation.

Meanwhile, Maryland State Police continued their investigation of Paisley's death.

Paisley retired from the CIA in 1974 after serving as deputy director of the CIA's Office of Strategic Research. He had worked as a consultant to the accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand for the past six months.

CIA spokesman Dale Peterson in Washington earlier characterized Paisley's work as "analytical, not covert." Peterson said the Office of Strategic Research analyzes foreign military programs, especially those of the Soviet Union.

Cpl. John Murphy of the Maryland State Police was quoted by the News Journal as saying that numerous CIA documents were aboard Paisley's 31-foot sloop when it was found the day after the 55-year-old Washington resident disappeared.

"The Coast Guard turned the documents over to us and we turned them over to Mrs. Paisley," said Murphy.

Murphy said that Paisley was still involved in CIA activities. "They wouldn't tell us much, but they told us he still worked for them."

Ruling Helps Schools With Church Ties

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A judge ruled today that Kentucky does not have the right to regulate private church-related schools.

Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs held that the state's interest in setting minimum standards for the schools does not outweigh the schools' First Amendment right to free exercise and expression of religion.

"Quite the contrary, the overwhelming weight of substantial, probative evidence conclusively shows the state's efforts to be but poorly conceived, ill-defined and quite direct interference with plaintiffs' religious liberty," Meigs said.

The ruling came in a suit filed by the Kentucky Association of Christian Schools and several Christian schools that had challenged the state's right to impose minimum standards in order for them to operate.

There was no immediate indication whether the state would appeal.

The state had refused to approve 20 Christian schools in May 1977 for failing to meet minimum standards in such areas as textbooks, teacher certification and basic curriculum. The state maintained that minimum standards were necessary to ensure educational standards.

The schools involved in today's ruling are run by church groups throughout the state. A number of other private schools were set up in the Louisville area following the start of court-ordered busing for integration in 1975, but most of those schools have received state accreditation.

When the schools reopened in September 1977, despite the state's disapproval, the state Board for Elementary and Secondary Education directed local officials to seek truancy action against parents sending their children to the schools.

Meigs had issued a temporary injunction stopping the action until the case was decided. Today's order made the injunction permanent.

"By its intrusion upon plaintiffs' protected right to free expression of religious belief in their schools the state has crossed the First Amendment line which forbids action either advancing or inhibiting religion," Meigs said. "Any such entanglement in religious matters, absent a compelling state interest, is forbidden to the state by the constitutions of the United States and Kentucky."

Meigs said that the evidence submitted during two days of testimony in June and in written briefs "fails to demonstrate more than a scintilla of colorable state interest" in the operation of the Christian schools.

In North Carolina, church schools also refused to submit to state regulation by failing to file required annual reports with the state department of Public Instruction on curricula, teacher certification and enrollment.

The state sued 11 of about 60 protesting schools, most affiliated with fundamentalist Protestant denominations, to force compliance.

A Wake County Superior Court judge ruled last month that the state has the right to regulate private schools, although he noted certain exceptions. Both sides are appealing the ruling, and the schools continue to refuse to file the reports.

Teachers Approve Contract

By The Associated Press

Faced with a threatened fine, 850 teachers in Fall River, Mass., voted today to accept a contract offer and end their 3½-week strike. But school strikes elsewhere, mainly over salaries, kept thousands of students from elementary school to college out of class.

A Fall River district spokesman said the teachers returned to their classrooms to await the return of 14,000 students. The new contract raised salaries 4 percent this year, and 5 percent each for the next two years. A judge had threatened to fine the union $20,000 a day while the walkout persisted.

In Dayton, Ohio, meanwhile, 29 teachers were sentenced Tuesday to weekend jail terms for ignoring a judge's order banning picketing during an 18-day strike that ended Sunday. The Dayton Education Association had ignored the order to return to work and was fined $10,000. All 29 educators pleaded guilty.

At the Boston campus of the University of Massachusetts, about 50 faculty members, some wearing placards hung around their necks, appeared this morning at the gate and a classroom building, starting a two-day illegal walkout protesting the stalemate of contract talks.

School administrators said they could not determine immediately how many classes were affected. Some students joined the picket line.

Colleagues at the larger Amherst campus planned later in the day to occupy the office of the western Massachusetts institution's top administrative officer.

The major issue at both campuses is the teachers' assertion that the university has failed to negotiate in good faith for what would be the first collective bargaining agreements covering faculty.

A walkout by Washington, D.C., teachers that was to start today was averted when the parties reached agreement on a new contract.

RESCUED FROM CAGE — A police photographer at Atoka, Okla., snapped this picture of Jerry Lewis Atkinson, 17, as officers were trying to remove him from a cage containing three bobcats. The youth, who had been abducted from his parents' home Sunday night, was found Tuesday in a cage behind a rural welding shop. He was unharmed except for a bite on his toe. The owner of the shop, John Williams, 31, was charged with kidnapping. (AP Laserphoto)

Special Council To Aid Teacher Corps Project

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Aided by a $1.2 million federal grant, Texas Tech University will spend the next five years helping to address educational needs in the Lubbock High School area.

But first, the university and its partners in the Teacher Corps program must determine what those needs are. For that task, a special community council will be elected this month.

Teacher Corps is a federally funded program that seeks to enhance the education in certain schools through such services as extra faculty training and placement of teacher interns, explained Claire Nussbaum, community coordinator for the local program.

The Lubbock Independent School District and the Texas Tech college of education submitted a Teacher Corps proposal that was approved by the federal government a few months ago. The program will focus on the needs of Jackson Elementary, 201 Vernon Ave.; Thompson Junior High, 2002 14th St.; and Lubbock High, 2004 19th St.

One reason for the selection of those three schools, Miss Nussbaum said, is that Jackson "feeds into" Thompson, which in turn feeds into Lubbock High.

Teacher Corps will be governed by a three-member policy board. This board will be composed of Superintendent Ed Irons of the public school system; Dr. Robert Anderson, dean of the college of education; and the chairman of the program's community council.

The community council, which will serve in an advisory capacity on the project, will be made up of three parents from Jackson, two parents from Thompson, two parents from Lubbock High and two at-large members.

The at-large members must be adults who live in the Lubbock High attendance zone but presently do not have children in any of the three schools involved.

The nine-member community council will choose a chairman, who then becomes a member of the policy-making board.

Election of the community council will be held at Jackson on Oct. 19, from 3 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.; at Thompson on Oct. 18, from 3 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.; and at Lubbock High on Oct. 24, from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Anyone who is 18 or older and lives in the Lubbock High zone or has children at any of the three schools is eligible to vote in the election.

The same qualifications apply to persons who want to run for a seat on the community council.

Such persons may obtain candidacy forms from school principals or from Miss Nussbaum. Her telephone number is 742-2308.

The completed forms should be returned to the principals or Miss Nussbaum by 5 p.m. Thursday. Miss Nussbaum said, however, she may extend the deadline one day if prospective candidates notify her by phone.

She said the first year of the five-year program will be spent conducting "needs assessments" — that is, determining what the priorities for the project should be. The school district, university and community council each will make studies, and common goals will be selected, Miss Nussbaum said.

The educational needs will be identified by March, she said. Teacher Corps then will design programs to meet those needs, Miss Nussbaum added.

If, for example, reading instruction is designated a priority, the school system and university will assist teachers "in developing instructional skills for the language arts," Miss Nussbaum said.

University-sponsored training sessions will be held for the teachers at the public-school campuses, she said. And teachers will be able to earn college credit by participating in the courses.

"Teachers will be working toward their master's degrees at the school," Miss Nussbaum said. Also, teacher interns will be placed at the three schools, and university professors will lend their expertise, to help address the designated needs, she said.

thermometers here into the upper 40s early Thursday morning.

Cool temperatures will continue to prevail over the area through Thursday, with an afternoon high of about 70. Today's high was expected to be near 80, a considerable jump from Tuesday's maximum of an even 70.

Southwesterly winds of 15 to 20 mph today are due to shift to the north at 15 to 20 mph tonight with the arrival of the front and remain northeasterly at about the same velocity through Thursday.

The extended forecast for Friday through Sunday calls for clear to partly cloudy skies, cool weather Friday with a moderating trend by Sunday. Highs in the 60s are predicted for the area Friday, rising into the 70s on Sunday.

Elsewhere in Texas, skies were mostly cloudy in southern sections and clear to partly cloudy over most of the northern portion of the state.

Dense fog reduced visibility to less than a city block early today at Austin. Some fog also was reported along the middle Texas coast, with Palacios reporting visibility reduced to about three miles.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 50s in northern and western sections to the 70s in South Texas. Some readings dipped into the 40s in the mountains of Southwest Texas and in northern sections of the Panhandle.

Early morning extremes ranged from 46 at Dimmitt to 76 at Brownsville. Lubbock's low this morning was 54 degrees, after a Tuesday afternoon high of 70.

The extended outlook for Oct. 9 through Oct. 13 calls for below normal temperatures and above normal precipitation for West Texas.

Elsewhere in the nation, rain continued from the eastern half of the Ohio Valley through Tennessee and northern Alabama and into Wisconsin and Minnesota, while scattered thundershowers were reported across the Gulf Coast region.

val vessel began shelling the coastal Christian area north of the capital just before dawn but withdrew when Christian guns returned the fire. It said Syrian shelling extended as far north as Junieh, the Christian port 13 miles north of the capital.

The government radio said President Sarkis called a Cabinet meeting during the day "to discuss the newly deteriorated situation and to solve the crisis that is threatening all citizens both in their homes and in their shelters."

The government is doing all it can "to serve the urgent needs of the population that is suffering from the hell of the fighting," the radio added.

Later in the morning, the government radio broadcast an urgent appeal to all telephone workers to report back to their posts in Moslem West Beirut, which is largely unaffected by the fighting.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim offered his good offices to help arrange a cease-fire, and the U.N. was reported considering the evacuation of 301 U.N. dependents from Beirut.

Solemn Rites Staged For Pope John Paul to your servant, John Paul I our pope, the grace of witnessing throughout eternity that mystery of peace and love which he, as successor of Peter and pastor of the whole church, faithfully bestowed on your family during his lifetime."

Then, before the body was carried to the grotto, all sang: "May the angels lead you into paradise..."

The basilica reopened at 7 a.m. today, and for the sixth day a steady stream of mourners filed past the catafalque containing the pope's body.

The public viewing continued until shortly before the funeral. Then the body was placed into the traditional triple coffin, cypress, then lead, then oak on the outside.

President Carter, who sent his wife, Rosalynn, to Pope Paul's funeral, sent his mother, Miss Lillian, to head the U.S. delegation for John Paul's. It also included Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., Gov. Ella Grasso of Connecticut, Mayor Edward Koch of New York and Rep. Michael Blouin, D-Iowa.

All nine American cardinals eligible to participate in the conclave to choose a new pope were in Rome. They were Terence Cooke of New York, Timothy Manning of Los Angeles, Humberto Medeiros of Boston, William Baum of Washington, John Krol of Philadelphia, John Dearden of Detroit, John Cody of Chicago, John Carberry of St. Louis, and John Wright of Boston.

Wright, who is a member of the curia stationed in Rome, was the last to arrive, coming from Boston, and was taken from the plane in a wheelchair. He underwent eye surgery recently and did not attend the funeral of Pope Paul and the election of John Paul.

The Vatican has not made public John Paul's will. But the pope's secretary, the Rev. Diego Lorenzi, told the Italian news agency ANSA:

"Certainly it exists. However, I don't know how long it is or what it says. But I remember the pope referred to it over lunch some 15 days before he died. He said his brother Edoardo had spoken to him enthusiastically about the testament of Paul VI. 'My testament,' John Paul I said, 'will, however, be of a different type and less extended.'"

The Vatican released Paul VI's 13-page will the day before his funeral. In it he demanded a simple funeral and burial and asked pardon for his failings.

Lorenzi said John Paul was sitting up in bed when he was found dead at dawn Friday. He said the pope was clutching, with both hands, four or five sheets of paper in his own handwriting, probably notes for the sermon he planned to make as usual at noon from the window of his apartment the following Sunday.

Dr. Antonio da Ros, John Paul's personal physician when he was patriarch of Venice, said he met him at the Vatican a few days before his death and that his health was fairly good.

"But the stress of his new post was great," the doctor said. "He perhaps was not prepared, accustomed to that responsibility. I told him he could not continue at that pace and he replied he could not do anything about it."

Police Tuesday arrested a witness to an assault after he gave his name as "Jack Benny," and then changed his mind and told officers he was really "Ronald McDonald" — the hamburger clown.

The arrest came while officers were investigating a report that Clarence Johnson of Lubbock was struck in the face with a cue stick during an altercation at a pool hall at 17th Street and Avenue A about 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The man arrested said he observed the assault, but, according to reports, refused to cooperate with officers. The man was taken to Lubbock County Jail on suspicion of public intoxication and refusing to identify himself.

In another reported assault, Linda Nerzog of Lubbock said she was beaten up by a man about 11:30 p.m. Tuesday in front of a club in the 3800-block of 50th Street.

The 29-year-old bookkeeper said she was first hit by the man while she was trying to call her son inside the club. When she tried to leave, according to reports, the man followed her into the parking lot and hit her about the head and face.

The investigating officer said the woman was suffering from a cut lip and appeared to have been choked. The victim was advised to seek medical attention.

Robert Earl Wright, attendant at the Exxon service station at 1656 Broadway, said a young black man broke into the station's locked cash register shortly after 11 p.m. Tuesday and stole $120.

Wright said he had been waiting on a customer when the register was entered. Subsequent investigation revealed that a key to the register hidden in another part of the building had been stolen.

Police arrested a 38-year-old Lubbock man about 7:15 p.m. Tuesday after he was caught allegedly stealing $240 in clothes from the C.R. Anthony department store at 50th Street and Canton Avenue.

Assistant store manager Robert Earl Gage said he observed the man leaving the store with the merchandise. He said he apprehended the suspect in front of the business and held him until police arrived.

Kay Don Habbinga of 7807 Vernon Ave. told police she had tenants who moved from her apartment at 2019 10th St. Saturday morning and took $750 in furniture and household appliances with them.

She said she went to the rear apartment Tuesday and discovered the loss of a bedroom suite, dining room table and chairs, a refrigerator and air conditioner. She said extensive damage also was done to the structure and yard.

More than $1,000 in property, including a television, luggage, silverware and typewriter, was reported stolen when Dorothy H. Phillips' residence at 1312 66th St. was burglarized between Saturday afternoon and 9:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Randy Lee Higginbotham of 223 Anderson St. said his pickup truck was parked in front of a club in the 900-block of the Slaton Highway between noon and 5 p.m. Tuesday when the truck was broken into and $765 in tools and a BB gun was stolen.

Police Tuesday were searching for a blond, muscular white man who reportedly exposed himself to a woman early Tuesday at a 50th Street shopping center.

The 32-year-old victim said she was in her place of business about 8:30 a.m. when the man, between 25-30 years old and tall, walked up to the front door of the firm and exposed himself.

She said the man then walked north through the shopping center lot. The woman told police she had seen the man in the area before.

In other activity Tuesday, Inez Herrera said two Social Security checks, totaling $615, were taken from the bedroom of her 3418 Erskine St. home about noon.

Richard McKenzie told officers that whoever pried the padlock from the front door of his 2401 14th St. residence Tuesday morning took a $400 television set and $30 cash.

Gene E. Blackburn complained that someone broke into his pickup truck while it was parked in the driveway of his 2709 55th St. home and stole $434 worth of property, including a CB radio, tape deck and tools.

Joe L. Claire of 2306 17th St., No. 3, rear, told police that a $150 stereo system and a $60 jacket were taken from his home between 2:30 a.m. and 4 a.m. Tuesday. Officers said the intruders apparently removed a screen from a bedroom window and then worked the locks open.

Lela Henson of Littlefield said she was visiting her son's Lubbock home Monday afternoon when someone took her wallet, containing $50 cash, from the residence. Mrs. Henson said she was working in the backyard of the 5417 Ave. B house between noon and 2 p.m. Monday when someone entered the unlocked residence and took her wallet.

Mrs. Louis Kaether said the two Japanese boxwood trees and two redwood planters were taken from the driveway of her 2704 65th St. home late Monday or early Tuesday. She valued the stolen items at $100.

Boy, 9, Attending High School

MIAMI (AP) — "Where do we go from here?" asks Florence Baccus, whose 9-year-old son, Stephen, is taking honors classes along with high school seniors and is considering entering college next year.

When Stephen was 8, he earned straight A's in 11th grade algebra at Carol City Senior High School. He's doing the same thing this year in his honors English and Spanish classes.

"I don't know what to do with him," Mrs. Baccus said. "... what happens when he's learned all he can in senior high school? He's still so young..."

When Stephen's intelligence was tested at age 5, he scored 155 on the Wechsler Intelligence scale; 140 or above is considered the genius level. Stephen was in the fourth grade when his parents considered hiring a tutor for him. But after talking with his teachers and the Carol City principal, they decided to let him tackle two high school classes.

"The results have been overwhelming," said Mrs. Baccus, who is a guidance counselor at the high school and recently completed her doctoral dissertation on the subject of gifted children. Her husband is a lawyer.

Stephen's experience indicates that he not only can keep up with the older students intellectually, but that, despite his relatively small stature, he gets along with them socially as well.

"The new kids are surprised to see me, but the kids in my classes act like I'm just a regular kid," he says.

Intellectual pursuits are not Stephen's only interest. His parents enrolled him in a local acting school and by age 7 he was making television commercials. "I think Stephen inherited his intelligence from his father..." says Mrs. Baccus.

GED, Supplementary Courses Offered By Lubbock Schools

The Lubbock Public Schools are offering programs of basic education and high school equivalency (GED) for adults 17 years of age or older who do not have a high school education.

Reading, writing, arithmetic, English, the speaking of English and other subjects are taught. This program is designed to improve a person's ability to secure employment, qualify for a job promotion, achieve a certificate of high school equivalency (GED) and to become a more efficient consumer and active citizen.

Supplementary areas of instruction include consumer education, occupational opportunities and requirements, health education, citizenship, government, home and family life, science, history and literature.

The free classes begin this week and continue through April 1979. Adults may enroll and begin classes at any time during the school year. Classes meet twice weekly from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Adults may attend classes on either Mondays and Wednesday or Tuesdays and Thursdays.

High school and college graduates who need instruction in English speaking and adults who live outside the Lubbock district also may enroll.

Ground Oysters Used In Chicken Feed To Harden Egg Shells

BALTIMORE (AP) — When John Hunt and Martin R. Rowell look at oysters, they see more than a delicacy. They see profits for their company which recycles oyster shells.

The two are with a Baltimore company which grinds tons of oyster shells into small flakes each year and sells the mixture for use in chicken feed.

A 100,000-ton mound of shells nearly two stories high awaits grinding at the Oyster Shell Products Co., located in Baltimore's Fells Point area.

While most of the company's product ends up in chickens' stomachs, very little makes its way to Maryland's Eastern Shore, the heart of the state's poultry industry.

The ground-up shell is high in calcium. When fed to laying hens, the mixture cuts down on egg shell breakage by making the shells tougher.

Because of this, the product is attractive to egg producers, not to the chicken breeders on the Eastern Shore, who raise the poultry for meat.

Hunt said much of the firm's products goes to Pennsylvania. He added that the company ships to all of Canada east of Ontario, throughout New England, west to Michigan and south to the Carolinas.

Oyster shells dredged from the Chesapeake Bay are also recycled for use in another way.

Rowell said the firm has been selling them to rubber manufacturers for use as an extender in industrial rubber and roofing material.

The shells are ground into a talcum-like powder, Rowell said, adding that the fine mix has a unique ability to maintain an elasticity and flexibility in the finished product.

The company officials agreed that the market for that use of oyster shells is small.

The company gets a full-year supply of shells at the end of the summer. The raw material is dredged from the bay by C.J. Langenfelder and Son Co.

Hill Criticizes Newspaper

AUSTIN (UPI) — Attorney General John Hill, the Democratic Party's candidate for governor, has accused The Dallas Morning News of disregarding portions of his role in investigation of $900,000 in missing funds in South Texas.

In a statement distributed by his campaign office Tuesday, Hill maintained the newspaper used its news columns — as well as its editorial page — to support Clements. News Executive Editor Tom Simmons, however, denied the newspaper's reporting was biased.

In its Sunday edition, the newspaper published reporter Howard Swindle's copyrighted story in which a Webb County official said Hill declined to investigate the alleged scandal for political reasons. The News also endorsed Clements on its editorial page in that edition.

Hill Tuesday said Swindle admitted he had ignored a grand jury report which expressed appreciation to Hill's investigator for his assistance in the investigation. He said the reporter also admitted knowing that Hill had sent an aide to investigate the matter.

"If there was any doubt that the Dallas News article was never intended to be anything more than a Bill Clements propaganda piece, that admission removed it," Hill said.

"The News columns are not being used to support anybody," Simmons said. "They are being used to report the governor's race and other races without bias to either side."

"Our sole aim is to be objective in every story we print and the Swindle story was worked up independently without any information from anybody from the Clements organization. This was solely an enterprise reporting job on the part of the Dallas News."

Hill said the newspaper has every right to support Clements on its editorial page, but added, "I believe the reading public should be put on notice that, for the next five weeks, the Dallas News will not report the governor's race as the Clements campaign dictates."

The original article quoted Joe M. Guerra, former head of the Webb County road and bridge department, as saying

Hill has declined to aid in investigation of missing funds and equipment from the agency because he had to many political friends in the county.

Hill said he had supplied Webb County an investigator from his office who was with the local grand jury when Guerra told a similar story of corruption to the local officials.

"The same reporter who wrote a story falsely stating that I 'refused' to investigate allegations of corruption in Laredo admitted at a news conference Monday that he knew, when he wrote the story, that I had sent an investigator to assist the grand jury in Laredo. Yet that fact was not mentioned in the newspaper's article."

Hill said when he attempted to "set the record straight" in two news conferences Monday, "the Dallas News chose to ignore the statement of a Texas Ranger who said I told him to 'let the chips fall where they may' in the Laredo investigation."

"Instead of relying on a Texas Ranger, the Dallas News continued to rely on the sources they admittedly share with the Clements campaign. These facts, plus the reporter's own admission, verified by the Clements campaign, that the story was based on information shared with the Dallas News is using its news columns as well as its editorial page to support Bill Clements."

David Dean, former treasurer of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's unsuccessful re-election campaign and currently on the Clements staff, said he and another Clements staff member went to Laredo Sept. 22 to take affidavits from Guerra and County Commissioner Cruz Cabello.

Both Dean and Simmons said, however, no one connected with the Clements campaign had contacted the News about the affidavits.

Cabello said Swindle mentioned the affidavit during an interview.

About 55 residents stressed housing code enforcement — and the lack of it — as their primary concern at a Community Development meeting Tuesday night.

The Sector 3 residents from the UNIT, Dupree and Overton neighborhoods told city representatives they want CD money spent in their area on code enforcement. Their other top priorities, in descending order, are alley upkeep, sidewalk repair, housing rehabilitation and a new senior citizen center.

Discussion during the three-hour meeting repeatedly centered on problems involving apartments being built in the single-family residential neighborhoods. Residents decried what they termed lack of code enforcement, pointing to houses being converted to apartments without necessary permits and houses deteriorating past the point of repair.

Several senior citizens present at the meeting in Roscoe Wilson Elementary School also re-emphasized the need for a building in which they can meet.

Only a handful of persons participated in other sector meetings Tuesday.

Area Men Convicted

MULESHOE (Special) — The biggest drug trial in Bailey County history ended Tuesday with the conviction of two men charged with conspiring to manufacture and sell methamphetamines or "speed."

Wilford Fritz Gallegos of Muleshoe was assessed 20 years in prison with no probation and Jerry Rang Clayton of Clovis, N.M., 8 years with no probation by District Judge Pat Boone.

They were among 12 persons brought to trial here Sept. 17, when more than 300 prospective jurors were called to appear at Bailey County Civic Center and Coliseum.

Four pleaded guilty, charges were dropped against one, and five of the seven eventually brought to trial were acquitted.

The six-man, six-woman jury acquitted Dee Carter and Gary Foster Levi, both of Clovis, and Boone Friday issued a directed verdict of not guilty for James Cunningham of Muleshoe, Craig Chaney of Houston and Ron Shirey of Clovis because, he said, the state failed to prove its case against the three.

District Attorney Jack Young, assisted by assistant State Attorney General Gerald Carruth, argued that Gallegos and Clayton were "masterminds" behind a conspiracy to manufacture, deliver, dispense and distribute the drug and that a laboratory was set up in an isolated farmhouse near the New Mexico border for that purpose.

The case was the second to be tried under Texas' new organized crime law, which provides for sentences of 5 to 99 years or life in prison upon conviction for such a conspiracy.

Fire protection for the Yellowhouse Canyon area, renovation for homes in the Manhattan Heights area and the completion of the Canyon Lakes Project adjacent to Quirt Avenue were named for priority funding by the five persons attending the Sector 2 meeting at the Struggs campus of Dunbar-Struggs High School.

The half a dozen persons attending the Sector 5 meeting at Stubbs listed housing rehabilitation, an elevated pedestrian crossing across 31st Street at Coronado High School, sidewalk repair, code enforcement and having a community center-park as their priorities.

Sector 2 encompasses a large portion of East Lubbock and Sector 5 is bounded by Indiana Avenue, 34th Street, Slide Road and Spur 327.

Willie Stewart, a resident of the Yellowhouse Canyon area, said he was at the meeting.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward on Tuesday denied a motion to allow a local pro-systemwide integration group to become a plaintiff in the Lubbock school desegregation case.

The Citizens' Alliance for Successful Schools (CASS) wants to intervene in the case because the organization fears that the original plaintiff, the U.S. Justice Department, may not push hard enough for an appeal of Woodward's desegregation rulings.

By becoming a party in the eight-year-old litigation, CASS would be able to appeal the present desegregation plan if the Justice Department does not. The department still has the case under review for a possible appeal.

peal the desegregation case.

Like some Justice Department attorneys, CASS believes the present desegregation plan — approved by Woodward in May — is unfair to minorities.

The alliance also disagrees with Woodward's January ruling that only nine schools here were remnants of unlawful segregation and need be integrated. Because of the limited scope of the plan, several schools — those not cited by Woodward — still are predominantly minority.

CASS is pushing for systemwide integration, involving all schools. Such an approach, according to school board president Charles Waters, would require "many times the amount of busing we have now."

The existing plan, a combination of mandatory and voluntary measures, necessitates busing about 2,000 elementary students and several hundred secondary students a day.

On Monday, the 5th Circuit Court gave the Justice Department another month to decide whether to appeal the case. The department was granted until Oct. 27 to file a brief contesting Woodward's rulings. Otherwise the department will be barred from appealing.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK
There's one thing I've always said about fishermen. They may not always catch fish, but they at least know why. It's too late in the day. It's too early in the day. The water level is down. They're spawning. The rain stirred 'em up. The atom bomb screwed up the lakes. You need waders. They aren't biting on worms (avocados, sauteed shrimp or peach melba). It's too hot. It's too near an Army base. They're too small to take the bait. They're too large to bite. They haven't bitten since the Democrats took office.

Without a doubt, fishermen are the most imaginative sportsmen who ever sat on a bank and tried to outsmart a fish that has 1/1000 their size, 1/1500 their weight and 1/50,000 their brain.

Probably the best reason I've heard to date was when my husband straggled home a few weeks ago from a day at the lake. The only fish he caught were on his hands.

"What happened?" I asked. "The lake is polluted with Kimberlys," he said.

"What are Kimberlys?" "Kimberlys are three-year-old children who run around the lake screaming, 'I got one! I got one!' They trip over the worms and the entire can falls in the water — enough to feed every fish through a nuclear attack.

"Kimberlys throw rocks into the water when they get bored. Not little pebbles, but rocks that are five times their size and you wonder how they can lift them. Sometimes they fall in the lake and you lose your pole assisting in the rescue.

"The payoff is when Kimberlys throw in sticks and the dog swims over your line to retrieve them."

"That's terrible," I said. "Why didn't you just move on to another spot?"

"I couldn't. Kimberly caught her limit and I hung around trying to see what kind of bait she was using."

Revealing bids by both defenders in the auction allowed South the opportunity of displaying his virtuosity to bring home his contract of five spades.

Despite North's takeout bid of two clubs, which was the Landy Convention, showing interest in the major suits, East was not about to suppress his seven-card heart suit, and South's hand was eminently suited for a competitive bid of four spades. However, West's decision to double four spades is open to question — he had no sound reason to presume that he could defeat that contract. Had he simply passed the decision round to his partner, East would have known that the opponents had a tremendous spade fit. East pushed on to five hearts in spite of the double, but when North bid five spades, the consequences of West's action became apparent. East was afraid to bid again lest his partner held substantial values in spades which would have been wasted. Observe that six hearts goes down only if South elects to lead a club — not an easy lead to find even if North helps out with a Lightner Double.

West led the queen of hearts, ruffed by declarer. South was sure that trumps were going to break 3-0 and since he needed to ruff three hearts in his hand he could not afford to draw trumps. In addition, he had to establish the diamond suit before he ran out of trumps. Therefore, he ran the slight risk of a diamond ruff by leading that suit at trick two. West played low, and the queen lost to the ace.

East shifted to a club, ruffed in dummy. Declarer ruffed a heart and led the jack of diamonds. West took the king and forced dummy again with a club. Declarer then made the key play — he led dummy's last low heart and ruffed with the ace!

West discarded a diamond, but the contract was home. Declarer led the jack of spades, and ran it when West played low. When that held, declarer finessed again, drew the last trump and two high diamonds brought in the tenth and eleventh tricks.

East-West had only one consolation. At least neither of them doubled five spades!

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Sister Regina Appointed To Committee

Sister Regina Foppe, O.L.V.M., director of the social action service of the Diocese of Amarillo in Lubbock, has been appointed to the Texas Food Stamp Implementation Advisory Committee, the Texas Department of Human Resources announced.

Sister Regina will represent this area to the department in regard to the food stamp program and work to bring information regarding the program to eligible area residents.

According to the Texas Department of Human Resources, only about 15 percent of eligible families in this area are participants in the food stamp program. The Food Stamp Act of 1977, soon to be implemented, eliminates the purchase price of the stamps, making it possible for eligible persons to apply and receive only the bonus stamps.

Part of Sister Regina's task will be to try to reach families of this area who are eligible for but not participating in the program with information about the changes.

BRIDGE WINNERS

SOUTH PLAINS

The South Plains Duplicate Bridge Club met at 1 p.m. Friday in the First Federal Savings and Loan Association building.

First place winners were Mrs. Bob Cope and Jeff Olson; second, Mrs. Evelyn Ely and Mrs. Frank Gumm; and third, Jerry Burtleson and Mrs. Jess Gurley.

The club will meet again at 1 p.m. Friday.

TIMELESS ENCHANTMENT — Back to the black of timeless enchantment and understated elegance. The sophisticated glamour begins with a flattering evening suit with shawl collar, reversible jacket with deep kimono sleeve, V-top and soft slimmer skirt with side slit. DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman who was never very close to my parents after my marriage. I was comfortable with the way things were, and so were they.

My mother died recently, and I would feel very hypocritical were I to suddenly smother my father with a lot of attention. I sat with him and the rest of my family every day and evening for the duration of the official mourning period (one week), and now that it's over I have resumed my life as before. My father is not helpless. He has always been very independent and he knows my phone number if he wants me.

My problem is my sister. She is making me feel very guilty because she is constantly with Dad. I don't feel that I have to compete with my sister by putting in equal time with Dad.

Please help me with some answers.
FEELING GUILTY

Dear Guilty: Guilt is a judgment we feel against ourselves. No one can MAKE you feel guilty. If you feel guilty, you probably earned it.

It's just as well that you don't feel compelled to spend time with your grieving father in order to compete with your sister because he'd surely sense your insecurity, and your presence would offer him little comfort.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from an Oklahoma reader who suggested sprinkling mothballs on the lawn to keep dogs away.

The writer must not have had small children, because that is a very dangerous practice. My small son ate half a mothball at my mother-in-law's home and we had to rush him to the hospital to have his stomach pumped!

Although mothballs have a very unpleasant odor, they LOOK like candy, and most children will eat anything that looks like it might taste good.

Abby, please tell your readers that children can die if they ingest mothballs. There must be a better way to keep dogs off one's lawn.

ALICE IN SAN BRUNO

Dear Alice: Thank you and all the others who wrote to urge me to retract that suggestion.

DEAR ABBY: I married a divorced Catholic in Mexico back in 1959. He said his church would not let him marry again, and this was the only way he could make our marriage legal.

In Mexico we found an office where a man was selling marriage applications for $25. We bought one and filled it out and signed it. The man who sold it to us also signed it, and that was that.

We split up after one year. What I want to know is this: Is that marriage still legal? Was it ever filed anywhere in the United States? Or are we married only in Mexico?

I haven't seen this man in 18 years and now want to marry a guy in a legitimate way. If I marry him without mentioning the Mexican marriage am I committing bigamy?

I can't find any information about this

"WAS DUMB AT 23"

Dear Was Dumb: Some Mexican marriages (and divorces) are valid and some are not. Play it safe and consult a lawyer. He (or she) will tell you — rapidamente!

CONFIDENTIAL TO M.L. IN KETTERING, OHIO: If you want your children to keep their feet on the ground, put some responsibility on their shoulders.

SPORTIF — This one-button cropped wool jacket gives a new shape to the suit look. Wear it with a soft full skirt in matching colors of taupe or tan and a smart "shortie" vest. It's suitable for any fall occasion.

The Slim Gourmet

If you like carrot cake — but not its calories — have we got a treat for you! Our Slim Gourmet carrot cake is much less fattening than the usual kind, because it has no fat or fatty ingredients, and barely a tablespoon of sugar and flour per slice. What's more, our carrot cake shortcuts more than calories. This easy-do treat is made with canned carrots instead of shredded...much less work.

Of course, this isn't the dense, heavy (and heavily-caloried) carrot cake of conventional recipes. Our version is basically a spongecake made with lots of airy egg whites. In addition to being free, air is non-fattening!

CARROT CHIFFON CAKE

8-oz. can sliced carrots, drained
4 eggs, separated
1 tsp. orange liqueur
½ cup sugar, divided
1 tsp. grated orange peel pinch of salt
½ cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
optional: ¼ tsp. pumpkin pie spice
Put drained carrots in blender container with the 4 egg yolks, orange liqueur, ¼ cup sugar and grated peel. Blend smooth.

Combine egg whites and salt in an electric mixer bowl and beat until stiff. Gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar.

Fold carrot mixture into beaten egg whites gently but thoroughly.

Sift flour and baking powder together. Sprinkle over carrot-egg white mixture in several additions, and very gently cut and fold in each addition (along with spice, if used).

Spoon into an ungreased 8-or 9-inch tube pan. Bake about 1¼ hours at 325 degrees, or until an inserted cake tester comes out clean. Invert to cool; cool completely before removing from pan.

BURGLAR ALARM

KEWASKUM, Wis. (UPI) — A home-ware manufacturer has entered the home security field with a battery-powered electronic burglar alarm designed to be hung from a doorknob. The manufacturer says the alarm sounds when a hand or an object is placed on the outside door knob or connecting lock. The alarm stops when the hand is released. A collapsible hanger with a built-in on-off switch holds it on the knob.

Makes 10 servings, under 100 calories each.

Here's another airy treat that's a decalorized version of the cake that is traditionally served during Jewish New Year season:

HONEY SPONGE CAKE

4 eggs, separated
pinch of salt
½ cup sugar, divided
8 ozs. honey
1 cup cold coffee
2½ cups flour, sifted
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. ground clove
Beat egg whites and salt until stiff. Beat in ¼ cup sugar thoroughly. Beat in honey and coffee.

Combine flour, baking powder and clove. Beat into coffee-honey mixture. Gently, but thoroughly, fold coffee-honey mixture into beaten whites.

Pour into ungreased 10-inch tube pan. Bake at 325 degrees 1 hour, 15 minutes, or until cake tests done. Invert to cool. Remove from pan when completely cool. Serves 16. 155 calories each.

Calling all cake-lovers! Here's how to decalorize your favorite recipes and choose wisely from packaged mixes.

Rome's Via Veneto Still Worth Seeing

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

ROME, Italy — As they were telling each other in the days of Keats, Shelley and Browning, and for all I know, Julius Caesar and the Borgias, too, the Via Veneto isn't what it used to be. If it ever was.

Rome's bawdy boulevard of strolling film stars, exiled royalty, grounded jet setters and occasional pinched bottoms has fallen on crass commercial times. The Japanese have taken over, or the Germans, or the Arabs or the beastly Americans, depending on who is doing the decrying.

The action has moved elsewhere, they tell you: to the Piazza della Minerva, the big cobblestone square by Hadrian's Pantheon where traffic has been banned and everyone seems to talk Swedish while looking at maps spread out on knapsacks; to the Piazza del Popolo — you know, the one with the twin churches and that frightfully expensive restaurant where Truman Capote always goes, provided Gore Vidal doesn't go there first; to the Circus Maximus, which hasn't seen such crowds since the Roman Lions played all those undefeated seasons against Charlton Heston's Christians and where liaisons however helter-skelter are now apt to be less than hetero.

Rumors are always flying about the Via Veneto, especially of its imminent downfall. Don't heed them. It's still the place to see and be seen in Rome. Sipping a Cappuccino at an outdoor cafe there in the morning or an aperitivo after dark, one still has a front row seat at a passing parade of unrivaled camp, kink and kitch.

True, the swarthy Latin lover in the hand-stitched Gucci pointed toed shoes with the four inch built-up heel might turn out to be a son of the desert from Bahrain, and the New Wave film director type with the African beads and fringed shirt open to the navel might own a delicatessen in Scarsdale, but why complain?

So what if the only writers you see are all writing postcards, and the only movie makers are all grinding away at 8 mm cameras and shouting directions like, "Walk past that horse buggy again, Gloria, and smile, will you. At 90 bucks a day without breakfast all we can afford to do here is smile."

For the price of a cup of coffee — not exactly a steal at $1.60 — you can sit there all day and all night in one of those wicker chairs watching the world of posture and pretense go by in a splendid setting of luxury hotels, tourist glove shops with signs in Japanese and the centuries old walls of the Borgia gardens, sun-gilded by day and floodlit at evening.

In the morning you may catch an ambassador — ours or someone else's — or a genuine CIA man emerging from the American embassy down the hill to pour over the Italian newspapers over an outdoor coffee. You can watch the tour buses filling up outside the Exelcior and Savor hotels and see the shopgirls, Rome's truly fashionable dressers, on their way back to work. One morning I caught a famous black model, the bald headed one who always peers sulkily from the covers of those fashion magazines, having a prune yogurt at Doney's with a chihuahua on her lap and a civet cat tied to the leg of her chair on a jeweled leash.

There was a rush of photographers when Henry Kissinger came out of the Exelcior and waved to Marvin Kalb. Or was it Dan Rather? I'm not sure because the lady from Moline, Ill., at the adjoining table was sure it was Zbigniew Brzezinski waving to John Chancellor.

There is always the secret thrill of being mistaken for a celebrity yourself. One of the natives apparently mistook me for Franco Zeffirelli, the famous director. He sidled up and whispered, "Hey, Frank, you want to buy a genuine Cartier watch for cheap?"

Evenings, especially, all sorts of wares are offered for sale to front row spectators along the Via Veneto. In the course of three hours spent over mineral water and slice of lemon (price $1.45), I was offered:

- a fresh rose.
- color slides of the Coliseum.
- a plastic replica of Michelangelo's David.
- medals blessed by the new Pope.
- a ticket in the national lottery.
- a young girl in a zippered panther suit.
- a not-so-young boy in green satin slacks and two gallos of shaving lotion.
- genuine hand-stitched cowboy boots lately hijacked from a truck in Milan.
- "Senta, senta." I called the water in the bored, Italian, worldly wise way of the Dolce Vita, and moved on to Harry's Bar, where all the men look like George Raft in an old Warner Bros. spy thriller and all the girls seem to favor silver-haired Romeos in loud plaid suits. Gunter Sachs had just gone in with his new wife.

Or was it Emerson Fittipaldi? I never did find out because the guy in the rock star rhinestone sunglasses and John Travolta satin overalls at the bar turned out to be a vacationing tree surgeon from my hometown of Ridgefield, Conn. His wife, if it really was his wife, was looking properly bored in a see-through Indian tunic and leather hot pants.

Eastern Market Chain Asks For Protection

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Food Fair Inc., which grew from a tiny Manhattan meat market to the nation's 16th largest retailer with a chain of East Coast supermarkets and discount stores, has asked for protection under the federal bankruptcy laws.

Food Fair President Jack Friedland said the action Monday in U.S. District Court in New York will allow the Philadelphia-based company to continue operations while it arranges to pay creditors. The chain consists of 440 Pantry Pride, Penn Fruit, Hills and Food Fair supermarkets and 79 J.M. Fields discount stores from New Hampshire to Florida.

Friedland said the company filed under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy law "as a result of the failure of suppliers to extend normal credit terms, even though the company had substantially reduced its outstanding obligations to trade creditors after receiving additional short-term financing in early August.

"The company needs adequate breathing space in which to implement important plans already underway to reinventorize the company," Friedland said. "We are not bankrupt. We have a substantial net worth, but we are facing a temporary liquidity problem which we are confident we can overcome."

The company's supermarkets and discount stores will remain open "with normal operations and all employees are being paid in full," he said.

 Today is Wednesday, Oct. 4, the 277th day of 1978 with 88 to follow.
 The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.
 The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.
 The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Mercury.
 Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.
 Rutherford Hayes, the 19th president of the United States, was born Oct. 4, 1822. This is actor Charleton Heston's 54th birthday.
 On this day in history:
 In 1890, Mormons in Utah renounced polygamy, the practice of having more than one wife at a time.
 In 1927, Al Jolson starred in the "The Jazz Singer," the first full-length talking movie.
 In 1957, Russia launched the first man-made space satellite, called "Sputnik."
 In 1976, Earl Butz resigned as agriculture secretary with an apology for having made what he called the "gross indiscretion" of uttering an anti-Negro racial remark.

Millionaire Throws Party For Friends

LARIUM, Mich. (AP) — Lucille Kangas likes her 1975 Volkswagen so much that she rejected the gift of a luxury car from a millionaire, who had a new Cadillac as the top door prize at a party for childhood friends.
 "It's a great car, but a little too rich for my blood," Mrs. Kangas said Monday after returning from Detroit, where flamboyant Minneapolis millionaire Percy Ross threw a weekend bash for 1,500 boyhood friends from Michigan's Upper Peninsula.
 She said it wasn't a very practical car to drive to and from her job as a teacher's aide in nearby Calumet.
 "I talked it over with Mr. Ross and he told me I could take $18,000 in cash instead, so that's what I'll do," she said.
 The party, which cost about $50,000, was Ross' way of saying "thanks" to all the people who helped his family when he was growing up in Michigan, he said. After making most of his money in the plastic recycling business, Ross now runs an investment company and is worth an estimated $20 million.
 "It was the most beautiful party you could imagine, and I almost passed it up," Mrs. Kangas said.
 She said she had doubts about making the long trip to Dearborn — nearly 600 miles — but that her children — Ken, 21, Chrissie, 17, and Kari, 15 — persuaded her to go.

 "Now, thanks to the $18,000 for the car, I'll be able to give my children an education, thanks to Mr. Ross," she said.
 Three years in the planning, Ross' party at the posh Fairlane Manor in suburban Dearborn included champagne, scantily clad showgirls, big band music and sumptuous food.
 Ross, in what is becoming a familiar gesture, scattered hundreds of silver dollars among partygoers and gave $100 tips to workers at the party and a nearby airport.

Medical Technology Lacking Adequate Evaluation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many medical techniques and procedures widely used in the United States have not been adequately evaluated for safety and effectiveness, according to a new report by Congress' Office of Technology Assessment.

Each year, the report said, hundreds and perhaps thousands of new technologies enter the health care system, and yet it has been estimated that only 10 to 20 percent are subjected to formal evaluation.

Federal law requires that new drugs and most devices be evaluated for safety and efficacy before they can be used, but there is no similar requirement for medical procedures such as operations or new diagnostic techniques.

Many of these new procedures and tools have contributed to substantial improvement in the health of Americans over the years, the OTA said in reporting the results of a study requested by the Senate Committee on Human Resources. "However, concerns have arisen about the possible negative aspects of the pervasive use of technology in medical care," the report said. "Evidence indicates that many technologies are not adequately assessed before they enjoy widespread use."

OTA director Russell W. Peterson said that finding is a matter of considerable concern. He said improvements are critically needed in the way safety and effectiveness information is gathered and analyzed.

"Practicing physicians and other health care decision makers urgently need better information," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the health subcommittee. "We cannot expect the public to be informed consumers until health care professionals themselves are given adequate information."

To illustrate the problem, the report listed 17 cases of medical technologies, some widely used, lacking adequate evaluation in one aspect or another. Some examples:

—Mammography. The use of X-rays to detect breast cancer began wide use in the United States in the 1960s. Questions about its safety were raised only two or three years ago and controversy continues.

—Electronic Fetal Monitoring. A recent development in which an unborn child is monitored during labor for signs of distress that could lead to mental retardation or even death. The fetus can either be monitored by the placement of sensors on the women's abdomen to check the fetal heart rate or uterine contractions, or the fetus can be monitored directly with an electrode attached to the

Potassium Loss

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — This is in response to an article that was written in our paper about the normal intake of vitamin C. The article said that the recommended daily allowance was 45 milligrams.

My husband has started taking vitamin C to replace the potassium he loses due to a diuretic and Inderal for blood pressure and a tremor. My question is if the normal dosage is 45 mgs., why does it say you can take from one to four per day and each one is 250 mgs. Why are they in such large doses if you don't need it?

My husband works outdoors in the summer and he perspires a lot. He also takes vitamin E to help his skin. I had a hysterectomy three years ago and my face, arms and hands are wrinkled terribly now and look dehydrated. Do you think vitamin E will help either of our skin problems?

DEAR READER — I hardly know where to start. Vitamin C has nothing to do with potassium. Potassium is a basic chemical element and, when it is combined with chloride it forms potassium chloride salt. It combines with other chemicals to form other kinds of potassium salts.

We usually think of these as being opposed to sodium chloride salt, which is normal table salt. Vitamin C is vitamin and most animals can form vitamin C out of carbohydrates. Unfortunately, man cannot. No matter how much vitamin C your husband takes, if he is losing potassium for some reason, it can't replace the potassium loss.

It follows that the bottle of vitamin C tablets that you have, which are 350 mg. tablets, are simply large vitamin tablets. Unless your husband has some unusual condition which is causing a vitamin C deficiency, this excess intake of vitamin C is not particularly beneficial.

I would like to caution people who are taking large doses of vitamin C and want to stop it, though, to withdraw gradually. There is some evidence of a rebound effect if you stop vitamin C suddenly to the point that you could actually be mildly deficient in vitamin C.

If your husband needs to replace potassium loss, I suggest the way to do this would be to eat fruits and drink fruit juices. Fruits and fruit juices contain lots of vitamin C. That may be why you thought vitamin C contained potassium. It just happens that fruits and fruit juices are both rich in vitamin C and potassium, but that doesn't mean that vitamin C replaces potassium.

There are very few things that Vitamin E has been proved to do for man. I don't think a small amount is particularly going to harm you, but I am not optimistic that it will help you.

For your wrinkled skins, I would suggest avoiding sun exposure and using a moisturizer. You can get some effect from oils, including baby oil, but one of the best moisturizers really is petrolatum, (which you may know as Vaseline). That's because it can form a thicker, more enduring film over the skin and helps to trap moisture in the skin better. As moisture is trapped in the skin, it will appear less dehydrated and wrinkled.

To give you more information about skin problems I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, You Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Teen Inmate Sickened By Prison

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP) — At 17, freckle-faced, red-haired Craig Alan Davenport is the youngest inmate at the Colorado State Penitentiary and he says young people shouldn't be sent here "because it just ruins them."

Shortly after Davenport, a Boulder native who is serving a sentence for murder, arrived at the prison, an inmate was stabbed and killed and another man was hit in the head with a hammer. Last month, a 20-year-old minimum security prisoner was raped by a 52-year-old inmate.

"It's sick what goes on here," said Davenport. "We're put in an atmosphere — it's not like it's (homosexuality) forced on you, but a lot of it goes on."

Davenport, in an interview with the Boulder Daily Camera, said he is innocent of the Nov. 12, 1976, shooting deaths of two 19-year-old University of Northern Colorado women whose bodies were found in a mountain creek. He was 15 at the time.

After a three-week trial, he was convicted of two counts of second-degree murder in the deaths of Leslie Ann Elmer and Laura Almon. He has served 13 months of the 30-to-35-year sentence. No parole eligibility date has been established. An appeal is pending in the Colorado Court of Appeals.

The women were spending a weekend at the Almon family cabin in the mountains west of Boulder when they were killed. Davenport was staying with his family in a cabin 100 yards from the Almon cabin.

When first imprisoned, Davenport says he was scared — "real scared. You naturally think of rape. You think of the knifings." But he added that he knew he "could handle it."

Despite the violence around him, Davenport's prison life has become a routine.

He rises each day at 6 a.m., eats breakfast, then listens to his stereo through headphones before starting eight hours of classes. He and about 15 other inmates are working to complete a high school equivalency course.

But during the long, unstructured weekends, Davenport must find other ways to occupy his time. He said he listens to his stereo and reads, mostly adventure stories and long novels.

"You learn to live with the boredom, and it doesn't do you any good to get depressed," Davenport said. "About the only thing I think about is getting out — legally."

Study Shows Signs Of U.S. Economic Slowdown

By PHILIP GREER
and MYRON KANDEL

The continuing battle over construction of new electric power plants — whether they're fueled by nuclear energy, coal or oil — may be overshadowing a more important problem: the longer-range cost of doing nothing at all.

A new study by Data Resources, Inc., an economic forecasting organization, says that if enough new power sources don't reach at least the blueprint stage within the next few years, the U.S. economy could be in for a sharp slowdown, with a heavy loss of jobs and a strong inflationary push.

The study was commissioned by General Electric Co., which has a strong interest in new power plants because it builds many of them. GE has been a strong supporter of nuclear generators that have been expected to be a major source of profits. It's sure to draw fire from anti-nuclear groups, such as the Clamshell Alliance that's fighting the Seabrook project in New Hampshire and similar organizations around the country, because of its basic assumptions. But for a look at the glum side, the report deserves attention.

The study is based on the possibility that there will be a total moratorium on new nuclear plant construction after 1980 — in effect, there's a halt on now — and that coal production will grow at only half the rate that DRI has projected, 5.6 percent a year. The first assumption isn't at all impossible in the face of persistent questions about the safety of nuclear plants. The second is arguable, even with the strong environmental opposition to expanded strip coal mining and the air pollution that coal causes.

If the growth of both coal and nuclear power generators is held back, the forecast sees a long slide into a bleak economic future. It says, for example, that the country's gross national product in the U.S. — would be growing at a rate of only 2.8 percent a year by 1985, below the 3.6 percent growth rate DRI has been predicting and the 4 percent level that many economists say is needed for new job openings to keep pace with needs. With the GNP now pushing on to $1.5 trillion, those percentage points mean a lot of dollars. Any slippage in GNP growth would translate quickly into lower business investment in new plants and equipment and into a slower growth in job opportunities. If the country starts to run short of power, DRI says, unemployment would be about 6.3 percent in 1985, instead of the "normal" 4.9 percent. That translates into about 2.1 million fewer people working.

Capital investment by business, it says, would grow only 2.8 percent a year from 1980 to 1985, instead of 4.1 percent.

The study also goes into other parts of the economy and the effect of a shortfall of electric power. Consumer spending, instead of growing 3.6 percent a year, would go up only 2.9 percent. The difference would be felt mostly in durable goods such as automobiles and appliances. Auto companies would lose 2.4 million sales by 1985.

Housing also would suffer from the shortage of power and more than 400,000 fewer units would be built because of the general economic slowdown.

On the other side of the coin, the study says that, in order to increase the country's power output, more crude oil would have to be imported, which means a poorer showing for the U.S. international trade accounts. DRI says oil imports would go up 750,000 barrels a day by 1985 and that would keep the balance of trade in the red by $24 billion in 1985, instead of showing a surplus estimated now at $2 billion. If that's true, the dollar would come under even heavier pressure than it is now.

DRI's analysis, which was presented to a group of the country's governors last week, doesn't make any judgments about where the country's power growth should come from. Dr. Thomas A. Vanderslice of GE, whose power systems division ordered the study, said that in order to meet energy requirements by 1985, the U.S. will need about 300,000 additional megawatts of electric power. Half of that, he said, will come from equipment already on order for plants that are operating now or are being built.

The rest, he said, will require 78 new plant sites — most of them in the South and Midwest (the Midwest also would be the hardest hit by an energy-short economic slowdown, according to the DRI forecast) and plans for the plants have to be finished within the next few years in order to get them built by 1990.

Otherwise, Vanderslice maintains, power reserves will slide to 13.1 percent by 1985, below the "safe" reserve level of around 20 percent and well under the 24.5 percent reserve level he says the country would have if the coal and nuclear plants were built.

Yugoslavia, U.S. Push Trade Hike

BELGRADE (UPI) — The United States and Communist Yugoslavia are pushing to improve trade levels and economic cooperation.

In a way it's an investment in the future on both sides. Or even call it insurance.

Yugoslavia, whose number one individual trading partner is the Soviet Union, is looking for new markets so as not to become overly reliant on the East bloc for its economic needs, in case economic dependence could be used as a pressure point in the future, diplomats say.

The United States, always ready for new markets, also is interested in reaching third markets, say in the third world, through joint ventures with the Yugoslavs.

Trade between the two countries has shown a nearly threefold increase since 1970 to a two-way total around $700 million last year, with $1 billion in trade expected this year.

Moreover, the trade is more or less balanced, in sharp contrast with Yugoslavia's massive $2.4 billion deficit with the Common Market countries in 1977.

The United States ranks number four — behind the Soviet Union, West Germany and Italy — among Belgrade's individual trading partners. But, as one U.S. source said, "it's a long way from one to four."

At last year's meeting between President Carter and Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito in Washington, it was agreed to set up economic working groups on both sides to focus on specific trade problems.

Heading the U.S. side is Undersecretary for Commerce Frank Weil, who journeyed to Yugoslavia in September to open a modern new American business center in the heart of downtown Belgrade and to underscore the importance placed on U.S. participation in this year's annual Zagreb trade fair.

For their part, the Yugoslavs sent a high-ranking trade delegation to the United States the last week of September, led by Ilij Vukic, president of the Yugoslav Chamber of Commerce, and including business leaders and company directors from about 40 of Yugoslavia's top firms and banks.

The group was meeting with representatives of top U.S. firms in areas including agriculture, chemistry, metals and metal products and retail trade. Vucic said they would "offer goods to their American partners, together with them examine new projects for industrial cooperation and joint ventures, and discuss new undertakings in third markets."

An extensive Yugoslav traveling exhibition will tour the eastern United States in October and November to try to drum up business for their export goods — including canned food, wines, textiles, clothes, leather and shoes and mechanical tools and parts.

In the U.S. there is a lot of ignorance about Yugoslavia, with its decentralized Communist rule and system of "self management," although the country does not fall within the Department of Commerce's Bureau of East-West Trade but is treated as a Western European country.

On the Yugoslav side, American sources said, there is almost a fear of getting too deeply involved in the huge and extremely competitive American market. They are concerned, for example, whether Yugoslav companies could compete as to quantity and price as well as quality.

Lockheed Aircraft Gets Green Light

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has been given a go-ahead from the Carter administration to negotiate the sale of four L-100 transport planes to Syria, administration sources say.

Company and State Department sources said permission was granted after Syria gave assurances it would not use the planes for military purposes. U.S. officials said the decision was not related to any attempt by the administration to persuade Syria to accept the Camp David summit agreements.

Bash To Celebrate Hot Lollipop

SAN MARCOS (UPI) — The Hill Country gang, which needs only the slightest reason to throw a big beer bust, has discovered still another one.

The Cheatham Street Warehouse and Luckenbach Monthly Moon have called an all-day bash for next Sunday to celebrate the first anniversary of the invention of the jalapeno lollipop.

Sam Lewis, a San Angelo clown and novelty shop owner and founder of the Cross-eyed Mule Chili Cooking team, invented the lollipops spiced with ground jalapenos and introduced them at the World Championship Chili Cookoff at Terlingua on Oct. 8, 1977.

Since then, Lewis reports he has sold more than 1 million of the spicy suckers.

"Sam has done a great thing for Texas and America," said songwriter-singer Kent Finlay, owner of the warehouse whose musical career's highlight was his rendition of "If You Know Beans About Chili, You Know That Chili Has No Beans."

"He has not only found a new market for a native agricultural product, but the jalapeno lollipop promises to solve our balance of payments problem," Finlay said in praising Lewis's invention.

In keeping with the jalapeno theme, the lead-off of the celebration at the festivities will be crowning of Miss Sweet and Hot, the Jalapeno Lollipop Queen.

Two Southwest Texas State University students already have entered the queen contest — sophomore Renny Spangenberg from Wimberly and criminal justice student Rita Cargill, who was the youngest judge in Texas when she was a justice of the peace in Granbury.

Lewis, Finlay and Jack Harmon, a San Antonio publicist who now calls himself "former press secretary of Luckenbach" since he ran afoul of that three-person city's owner, Kathy Morgan, also will judge what is billed as "The World's First Dry T-Shirt Contest."

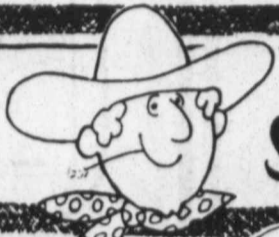

Harmon explained that, unlike wet T-shirt contests where beer is poured over the front of a bra-less contestant's T-shirt, entrants in this contest will receive no liquid aid.

He said each contestant can choose one of three T-shirts, inscribed with the insignia of the Cheatham Street Warehouse, the Cross-eyed Mule Chili Cooking Team or the Luckenbach Monthly Moon.

Susie Harmon, editor of the Monthly Moon, said she also would sponsor an "after the gong amateur contest" and already had signed up Nancy Wilsford, who performs as Fifi LaForte and will write poetry using a fountain pen held in her toes.

Diana Finlay, who will attempt to stuff 99 jalapeno lollipops in her mouth at one time, and other acts of that caliber also are scheduled.

Jobs Cause Housing Shortage

By TOM GARDNER

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The "NO" lights are lit in the motel vacancy signs along two miles of Virginia Street south of town, as they have been all summer. It's not so much that tourists are filling the rooms, rather people lured here by the promise of casino jobs who found a housing shortage when they arrived.

The summer brought the Biggest Little City in the World five new casinos, a 2.5 percent unemployment rate and growing pains.

On May 3, the MGM-Grand opened its 1,015 rooms and the world's largest casino. Less than a month later, July 1, four more casinos opened downtown — the Sahara Reno, Mapes Money Tree, Circus Circus and the Comstock.

And while the new casinos raided the older ones for employees, the 5,000-plus jobs created brought thousands of families in search of work. Work they found. Housing they didn't.

While a dealer can make $100 in salary and takes on a good night, hotels and motels pay maids $28 per 8-hour shift and busboys earn $3.75 an hour, the wages melt away in housing costs.

Two bedrooms rent for $300 to $400, plus a hefty security deposit, mobile home spaces can cost up to $200 a month and many lenders are encouraging or requiring 20 percent down on housing loans.

Until they found some kind of housing, some newcomers were sleeping in parks or living in cars or tents along the Truckee River, which flows through town.

There are indications the housing crunch is easing in the twin cities of Reno and Sparks. The two cities' joint sewage treatment plant has the capacity to serve an additional 6,000 homes, says Sparks Mayor Jim Lillard. And Reno's Mayor Bruno Menicucci says there is an abundant water supply as long as residents are conservative.

Reno City Manager Henry Etchemendy says the city issued permits for 5,098 living units between September 1976 and April of this year, with another 5,065 on the list for sewer allocation. These could be built in about two years, he says.

The growth has put a strain on more than the sewage system. Schools are overcrowded and voters in the county will be asked to approve a $36 million school construction levy in November.

Twenty-six new police officers have been added to cope with a 32 percent increase in crime since last year, authorities say.

Despite the five new casinos competing for the gambler's dollar, most of the new and established fun spots claim business is good.

"Business has been outstanding this past summer," MGM Grand spokesman Dean Graves says. "The performance has been living up to expectations and the market is going to grow. It's almost impossible to get a room here on short notice."

Business was reported better this year than last at Harrah's, the Sparks Nugget and Harold's Club, though club officials won't say how much better.

But the picture is not entirely bright. The new Sahara-Reno closed its big showroom this month, claiming construction changes were needed, and some layoffs on the gaming floor followed.

"I've been here 25 years," said a bartender at the Money Tree. "If they think business is bad now, wait until November when the snow is three feet deep over that (Donner) pass and the airport is closed."

Mine Reopening Slated By Firm

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Soaring prices and shrinking supplies of molybdenum has led to a $135 million proposal by Climax Molybdenum Corp. to re-open its mine near Alice Arm.

The plan was announced Monday by C. Allen Born, president of the Amax Inc. subsidiary. Located 45 miles northeast of Stewart in northwest British Columbia, the mine was closed in 1972 because it was not making a profit.

"Moly is now bringing U.S. $4.85 a pound, compared with about U.S. $4 a year ago," Born said. "There's a 5 to 7 percent growth rate in demand for moly, and now there's a shortage due to the cutback in production of copper concentrates as producers have reacted to the world-wide slump in copper prices."

Molybdenum, a by-product of copper concentrate production, is an alloying metal used in making steel. It improves the strength and durability of steel and makes it easier to machine and weld.

About 500 construction jobs will be created over a 30-month period when the project gets under way next spring, said Born.

GOP Clamors For Senate Seat

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Now that Hubert H. Humphrey is gone, Minnesota Republicans are making a strong bid to capture a Senate seat — possibly two — for the first time in a quarter of a century.

Polls show Republicans running strong races against Humphrey's Democratic Farmer-Labor party for the seats held by Humphrey and Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

"We can win both Senate seats," said Vera Neppi, state chairman of the GOP, which changed its name to Independent Republican party after Watergate. Polls also indicate Republican Rep. Albert Quie is giving DFL Gov. Rudy Perpich a close race for the governorship, and Republicans hope to make some gains in the DFL-dominated state House of Representatives.

Republicans gained from a bitter DFL party split over the nomination for Humphrey's seat in the Sept. 12 primary election. The DFL state convention endorsed liberal Rep. Donald Fraser, but conservative businessman Robert Short won the primary.

Humphrey, who died of cancer last January, fathered the DFL and won election to the Senate in 1948. The DFL took over both Senate seats when Eugene McCarthy beat the GOP's Edward Thye in 1958 and the party has held both seats ever since.

Muriel Humphrey, who was named to succeed her husband, is helping in the campaign as is Mondale, who has scheduled an appearance at the AFL-CIO state convention in Duluth. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., always popular in Minnesota, will speak at a rally Oct. 15 for Sen. Wendell Anderson, the former governor who moved up to take Mondale's seat.

Neppi is joined by some seasoned observers in predicting a sweep of the three top offices by Republicans. However, another observer said, "the DFL is running scared but don't count them out."

DFL Chairman Rick Scott insisted the party will get back together and score another smashing victory.

"We have a good chance to hang on to both Senate seats and pick up two congressional seats, one in the 1st District and one in the 7th," he said. "We have had a tough fight, but the wounds are healing. The feeling is definitely upbeat among the rank and file."

In the race for the four years remaining in Humphrey's term, Republican Dave Durenberger, a Minneapolis attorney making his first bid for office, is given a good chance to beat Short because of the DFL split.

Durenberger had to be talked into running for the Senate — he wanted to run for governor. He had a problem with name identification, but his campaign picked up steam and money as the DFL split developed.

Running on a strong conservative theme of less government spending and lower taxes, Short won the primary by 3,451 votes over Fraser. He spent nearly $700,000 of his own money, mostly on television advertising.

Many DFL leaders were reluctant to back Short, saying he did not embrace party principles and often sounded more like a Republican than a Democrat.

Short, a hotel and trucking line magnate, said he was a friend and supporter of Humphrey, but he didn't always accept all of the senator's ideas and programs. He has promised to lead a fight for a 20 percent cut in spending for a $100 billion saving to be used for a tax rebate and to reduce the national debt.

Short and Durenberger agree on many points, but in their first debate Durenberger accused Short of supporting the DFL leaders over the years who voted for higher spending and higher taxes — conditions which have caused continuing inflation.

In the other Senate race, Anderson has developed problems because of his "self-appointment" — he resigned the governorship with the understanding that Perpich would appoint him to the Senate. Polls show him trailing by as much as 20 points.

His opponent is another millionaire, Rudy Boschwitz, owner of Plywood Minnesota, who has conducted an extensive campaign in personal travels and media advertising.

Scott said Anderson was making a comeback and would overtake Boschwitz by election day. He claimed the challenger "peaked too early" and "voters don't want another representative of big business in the Senate."

Freedom House Plans Volume On Rights

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Freedom House charts the world, it colors its map on the basis of civil liberties, and the latest projection indicates liberty is the heritage only of a fraction of the world's people.

Freedom House is a New York-based non-governmental, nonprofit group devoted to strengthening freedom throughout the world, and this month it is publishing the first of what it says will be an annual volume assessing political and civil rights as they exist, and assessing possibilities for the future.

The volume, titled "Freedom in the World," lists only 44 nations in the 1978 edition which it considers truly free. Non-free nations total 163 and "partly free" countries total 46.

"Alongside political and civil freedoms (some) critics would place provision of sufficient food, medical services, employment, housing and education," the editors say in explaining their criteria for determining the difference between freedom and tyranny.

"But it is a materialist mistake to suppose that the peoples of the world always place material goods above political and civil freedoms, or that it is easy to distinguish between what a paternalistic observer thinks a people should have and what what they really want."

The editors admit the relation between economic systems and freedom is "complicated," but in general they suggest that freedom can exist in all save the strictly socialist.

"Capitalist states can be free or unfree," the editors say. "Socialist states can only be unfree."

A nation-by-nation breakdown is contained in 325 pages.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The spirits of someone you're fond of will be badly in need of a boost tomorrow. You'll know exactly what to say to cheer him up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Open your heart and purse tomorrow where the needy are concerned. Being generous will make you feel as good about your deeds as those who receive them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Others may think you're a bit of a dreamer tomorrow, but actually you will be very realistic where your visions are concerned. You'll devise ways to bring them to fruition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Challenges won't intimidate you tomorrow — they will stimulate you toward achievement. How you will pull things off will win the secret admiration of your peers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Friends will be receptive to your suggestions tomorrow. You will share your knowledge and experience rather than trying to foist your opinions upon them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) When the going gets tough tomorrow, that's when you'll get going. You have an enormous reservoir of fortitude and luck to fall back upon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In decision-making tomorrow, do what your instincts dictate. You will be quick to perceive facts and will have the ability to use them imaginatively.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If something needs to be systematized, do it tomorrow. Your organizational abilities will be especially keen. Put them to use to bring order out of confusion.

GEMINI (May 21-June 22) Your feelings for your friends will be very intense tomorrow. If one finds himself in a tight spot, you'll have much to say in his defense.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The type of tasks that will be the most appealing to you tomorrow are those that require a creative touch and full use of your imagination.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your powers of persuasion will be extremely effective tomorrow. When you speak, everyone will take notice of what you have to say.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Maintain a slight aura of mystery about yourself tomorrow in business matters. It could put you in a stronger bargaining position. Play your trump cards last.

OSHA Set To Revise Safety Code

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said Tuesday the Occupational Safety and Health Administration will go ahead soon with plans to abolish more than 900 industry safety standards.

In testimony to a Senate subcommittee, Marshall said the controversial agency will revise all of its industrial safety standards over the next 18 months, starting with regulations covering fire protection, electrical safety and standards covering so-called walking-working structures such as railings and guard rails.

Marshall, defending OSHA's record in the 20 months of the Carter administration, supported a proposed cotton dust standard designed to protect textile workers from brown lung disease, and said the agency plans to issue a health standard covering lead shortly.

The labor secretary, accompanied by OSHA Administrator Eula Bingham, was the leadoff witness at three days of hearings by the Senate Human Resources labor subcommittee into operations of the safety agency.

OSHA, established in 1970, has been criticized for its alleged insensitivity to the problems of business.

The complaints resulted earlier this year in a Senate decision to strip the agency of its jurisdiction to enforce health and safety standards in low-risk small businesses, a provision that was dropped by a House-Senate conference committee.

The Senate also has approved a provision to delay implementation of the controversial cotton dust standard. That matter has yet to be resolved by a second House-Senate conference committee.

Officials said Dr. Bingham is likely to sign a final order in the next two weeks abolishing 933 safety standards that Marshall said "have little or no effect upon worker protection."

OSHA announced tentative plans last December to do away with 1,000 such regulations, but delayed its final order to receive public comment.

Regarding the cotton dust standard, Marshall said the proposed regulation would save more than 5,000 workers a year from brown lung disease.

The government estimates it will cost the industry $625 million to comply with the standard.

But a spokesman for the cotton industry told the subcommittee the government "grossly understated" the true cost. Lon Mann, president of the National Cotton Council, said the real cost to the industry could be as much as $2.6 billion.

Mann said the cost could add 17 cents to 24 cents a pound to the cost of producing cotton fabrics.

"The American cotton industry is paying the price for OSHA's reckless, irresponsible handling of the record which was compiled during the lengthy hearings on the standards," he said.

CPSC Defends Keeping Watch On Insulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the Consumer Product Safety Commission has been criticized in the past for not monitoring the safety of cellulose home insulation, it is defending itself from claims that now it is doing too much.

In a speech Tuesday in Dallas, Susan King, commission chairwoman, mentioned the criticism that began coming from portions of the home insulation industry at nearly the same time she became head of the agency in August.

"Some of you may think that the commission is zeroing in unfairly on the cellulose industry. That's a concern we've heard at previous meetings," she said at the last of 13 regional meetings the CPSC has held since August to tell consumers and industry leaders about its plans to regulate home insulation.

However, she added, "CPSC does not want to put the cellulose industry out of business. The nation needs insulation to meet the Carter administration's energy conservation goals, and we want to keep the production lines open producing safe insulation."

Cellulose insulation, one of the most common types used for homes, consists basically of ground-up paper treated with flame retardant chemicals. Some types, though, have been found to be fire hazards or corrosive.

"We plan to inspect, with the assistance of state agencies, all known cellulose insulation manufacturers during the next six months," Mrs. King said in the speech that was released in Washington.

There are about 500 manufacturers in the United States.

Before the CPSC's current get-tough policy on home insulation, it was criticized by congressional panels and consumer groups for inaction.

For example, Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., saying the agency had not acted several years after its Denver office pointed to possible dangers in home insulation, introduced a bill to require CPSC regulation to protect consumers.

Under the bill, signed into law July 11 by President Carter, the commission was required to issue an interim safety standard by Sept. 7. But, in the first commission action after Mrs. King became chairwoman, the agency issued the standard two months ahead of time.

Under the action, all cellulose home insulation produced after Sept. 7 must meet the standards for flame resistance and corrosiveness and a label must say that the standards have been met.

Eventually, the commission plans to develop a permanent standard.

Currency Problems Keep Soviets Home

SEATTLE (AP) — If it were not for the problem of changing rubles into dollars, more Russian tourists would visit the United States, say members of a Soviet delegation touring this country.

Uri Andreev, executive director of the Leningrad Branch of the U.S.S.R.-U.S.A. Friendship Society, said that the ruble is not accepted here and the few visitors coming here must obtain special permission to buy dollars from the Soviet government. The exchange rate is higher than is accepted from the American side, he said.

FDA Proposes Ground Rules For Identifying Drug Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has proposed new ground rules for identifying on drug labels the firm that manufactured the drug.

The proposed rule would affect companies that subcontract manufacturing work to other firms and send their own representatives to oversee the process.

The new rule would require that under these so-called "man-in-the-plant" arrangements, a firm could list itself as the manufacturer only if its representative supervised the process and performed the key operations in making the drug.

If not, both firms would have to be listed if the company wanted to identify the manufacturer.

However, drug makers are not required by law to identify the manufacturer on the label. They can say instead what firm packed or distributed the drug.

The new, tighter requirements would come into play only if the manufacturer was named on the label. The rule would prohibit a company from using phrases like "manufactured for" or "manufactured to the specifications of" on the label.

Subcontracting is a common practice in the drug industry and has figured in an ongoing dispute between the industry and the government about the costs of generic versus brand-name drugs.

The FDA says that drugs made in the same plant frequently sell for widely varying prices, depending on whose name is on the label. The industry contends the major brand-name manufacturers have larger marketing and distribution expenses that may drive up their drugs' prices.

The Carter administration's proposed drug law revision bill would require that the actual manufacturer be identified in all instances.

The FDA published the proposed rule in the Federal Register today and is seeking public comment for 60 days before issuing a final regulation.

 lowhouse Canyon, told city officials that he was especially concerned about fire protection for the area pointing out that "only a few fire hydrants work out here (and) just today a fire gutted a home out here."

The Yellowhouse Canyon area also needs housing rehabilitation, street lights, police protection and water and sewer improvements, Stewart said.

The Yellowhouse Canyon area was annexed by the city on Sept. 28.

D.C. Fair, director of the Lubbock Housing Authority, said that CD money could best be used for the renovation of some homes in Manhattan Heights and that money was also needed to bring the Greenfair and Hub Homes projects up to standard.

George Scott, another participant in the Sector 2 meeting, said he would like to see CD money used to complete the Canyon Lakes project adjacent to Quirt Avenue.

In other discussion, Adolphus Cleveland, community services coordinator with LHA, wondered if CD money could be used by non-profit groups to take sub-standard housing and develop it for emergency shelters.

There was little discussion about the list of fund suggestions at the Sector 5-Stubbs Elementary meeting.

But city planning director Jim Bertram pointed out that the problem with the group's recommended elevated pedestrian crossing is that "unless you build fences along the right of way and enforce them like cattle, the kids will not use them."

Part of the Sector 5 area already has been designated a Community Develop-

Inmates Tell Court Of Poor Treatment

HOUSTON (AP) — State prison inmates have testified that their complaints and legal activities led to solitary confinement and poor medical care.

David Ruiz, 35, a plaintiff in the suit against the Texas Department of Corrections, testified Tuesday he was required to remove a cast from his foot and hobble about in pain in order to work.

Ruiz, serving a 25-year prison sentence for robbery, said he had slashed his wrists and other parts of his body at least 15 times during his 10 years behind bars.

He said he once was placed in solitary for self mutilation and while in the cell ripped out the stitches holding the wound together.

Another inmate, O.D. Johnson, said he had headaches from by an old eye operation, and was given drugs that left him "numb" and "like a zombie."

"I couldn't write or nothing," he said.

Eight inmates have filed class action suits against the prison system, seeking major changes in the penal system.

They say the system violates their civil rights through cruel and unusual punishment. The attorney general's office has said a ruling in favor of the inmates could force the state to spend between $50 million and $1.5 billion to bring the system into compliance.

Lawrence Pope, a convicted bank robber, said he had been sent to solitary and "lost the good time I had accumulated" because of his legal activities for himself and other prisoners.

Pope, serving a 50-year sentence, said he had filed at least a dozen lawsuits in state and federal courts since 1970 and had prepared at least 50 grievances against prison authorities during the first nine months of this year.

Ruiz told U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice he was sprayed with a can of Mace while he was in his prison cell because he resisted giving a letter to prison authorities.

He testified he had been sent to solitary numerous times, often because he had legal documents in his possession and once because he allowed another inmate to use his typewriter.

be back in the witness chair today. O.D. Johnson, center, and David Ruiz, right, are two of the inmates who filed the law suits. Texas inmates are protesting the cruel punishment received at the prison. (AP Laserphoto)

Smugglers Eye Texas Coast

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — International drug traffickers finding rough sailing along the eastern seaboard are seeking safe harbors for their illegal cargo along the Texas coast, U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration Director Peter Bensinger said here Tuesday.

Texas Attorney General John Hill, at a joint news conference with Bensinger, advocated the formation of a task force to stem the rising tide of contraband narcotics flowing into Texas.

More than 70 state law enforcement officials and their federal counterparts attending a three-day anti-smuggling conference here will outline plans to scuttle illegal drug traffic into Texas.

Drug smugglers are encountering stiff resistance on the east coast, particularly in Florida, said Bensinger.

"We are now seeing some of the traffic shift to the Texas Gulf Coast."

And he predicted the highly organized and well-financed traffickers would succeed in Texas unless authorities develop an "element of unity and an information exchange that is desperately needed."

"We are going to put aside the myth that law enforcement agencies cannot work together," Hill said, referring to a lack of cooperation that plagued law enforcement efforts in the past. "At the close of this conference we will develop a task force for Texas to control air and marine traffic in our state," Hill announced.

Bensinger said recent east coast seizures include 2 million pounds of marijuana, 1,000 pounds of cocaine, 62 mother ships, and 462 defendants.

STEWARDESS DIES
 RANGOON, Burma (AP) — A 22-year-old stewardess died of injuries received when a Burma Airways plane made a forced landing Tuesday on the Irrawaddy River bank near Mandalay, 400 miles north of Rangoon. Another passenger was injured, officials said. The plane, a Fokker Friendship medium-range airliner carrying 44 persons, made the landing because of engine trouble shortly after takeoff from Mandalay.

EXPLOSION SCENE — This is the scene at the Continental Oil Co. refinery in Commerce City, Colo., after an early morning explosion and fire killed three persons and injured several others. Firemen in the background pour water on refinery tanks and cracking towers while a destroyed truck is in the foreground. (AP Laserphoto)

Fear, Grief Strike Workers

COMMERCE CITY, Colo. (AP) — The weeping Vietnam War veteran said he wouldn't return to work at the Continental Oil Co. refinery where thundering explosions killed three persons and injured 12 others.

"You're looking at one person who's not coming back to work here," said the man, who asked not to be identified because company officials had told workers not to talk about Tuesday's blast.

The worker said it wasn't worry about unsafe conditions that made him decide not to return. "I lost some friends in that fire. It's fear and grief and a combination of a lot of things," he explained.

Some of the dozen injured persons suffered serious burns. Others were injured less seriously by flying glass and other debris.

The blast sent bright orange fireballs and thick, black smoke soaring hundreds of feet into the air. Chunks of twisted metal — some as large as a car door — rained down near homes up to 2 miles away.

Explosions could be heard 30 miles up and down the Rocky Mountain foothills. Fire raged through portions of the plant for more than three hours Tuesday morning.

Production was halted at the 48-year-old plant, located in this industrial city which abuts Denver. Company officials said it may be weeks before the full extent of the damage is known.

Plant manager Robert Alexander said the cost of replacing damaged equipment could range from $5 million to $10 million if nothing is salvageable.

Alexander said indications were that the blast was started when hydrocarbon vapor, a flammable mixture of propane and butane, leaked into the air. "That vapor was ignited. We don't know how," he said.

He said the blast was believed to have been centered in a $2.5 million catalytic polymerization unit that had been in operation only two weeks.

Earlier this year, the National Petroleum Refiners Association had commended the plant for its safety record — 365 consecutive days of operation without a disabling injury.

The victims were identified as Stephen French, 24, and Ronald DeHerrera, 22, both of Adams County, and David Hobbs, 32, of Northglenn. The Adams County Communications Center initially reported four dead Tuesday morning, but later revised the figure.

Although the plant employs 125 persons, only 14 men were working the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift.

The unit retrieves waste gases — such as propane and butane — from the refining process and combines them to make gasoline and other liquid petroleum products, Alexander said.

John Gebauer, a Conoco public relations official, said the refinery supplied about 25 percent of the Denver area's petroleum products. But he said shortages were not expected and "there won't be any gas stations closing tomorrow."

The stunned worker said smoke and flames from the blast resembled pictures he had seen of the mushroom cloud at Hiroshima.

Swimmer Considers Changing Course

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Defeated twice in her attempt to swim across a mighty river in the ocean, Stella Taylor says she may try once more to outwit the Gulf Stream — by reversing directions.

"I hate to lose," the gutsy 46-year-old British-born marathon swimmer murmured through parched lips Tuesday after abandoning her Bahamas-to-Florida swim 28 miles short of victory.

She swam a remarkable 51 hours and covered, by one ship captain's estimate, at least 160 miles before reluctantly quitting at 12:40 p.m. CDT — two days and three hours after leaving Orange Cay, Bahamas.

Stars Praise Edgar Bergen At Funeral

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — About 300 mourners heard Edgar Bergen praised as a gentle man, whose puckish, pixielike humor was a source of inspiration to many of today's top comedians.

Some of the biggest names in the entertainment industry attended a memorial service Tuesday for Bergen, who died of a heart attack in his sleep Saturday at age 75.

Bergen, who became one of the country's best-loved comedians as the voice of mischievous Charlie McCarthy, died in Las Vegas, Nev., where he was scheduled to give a series of farewell performances prior to his retirement next March.

"He was probably the most unpretentious man I ever met," said comedian Johnny Carson, predicting that Bergen and Charlie McCarthy "will be here forever."

Both Carson and Jim Henson, who was accompanied by his creation, Kermit the Frog, credited Bergen as an inspiration to their careers.

Carson said that as a boy in Nebraska, he had idolized Bergen and sent away for a ventriloquist's kit.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Los Angeles Rams football team, also offered eulogies at the service Tuesday.

Bergen's wife, Frances, his actress daughter, Candice, and his son, Kris, occupied the front row of the flower-filled All Saints Episcopal Church, where funeral services have been held in the past for such Hollywood luminaries as Humphrey Bogart, Dick Powell and Howard Hawks.

Sharks, swelling, venomous jellyfish, scorching sun and bone-wearying fatigue had hindered Miss Taylor but not stopped her. In the end, her swim succumbed for a second time to the Gulf Stream, an ocean current greater than a thousand Mississippi Rivers.

In this swim and her attempt in August, she could never break out of the current and into safe waters near shore, although her first swim brought her to within 12 miles of Florida.

"She bounced against it like a rubber barrier," crewman Joe Edwards said of the strong northward flow.

But as she ate scrambled eggs Tuesday night and wondered what went wrong, Miss Taylor already was dreaming of another try, this time heading the other way.

"I think I'm going to do the Keys to the Bahamas," she told The Associated Press by telephone from a friend's home where she was resting after turning down a doctor's advice to go to a hospital. She said she couldn't afford a hospital stay, since she spends most of time training and has no job.

Miss Taylor was still stroking Tuesday when trainer Bob Dunkle paddled alongside her on a surfboard to persuade her the effort was hopeless. "I could have gone some more," she said later.

But when she arrived at a Fort Lauderdale pier after being ferried in, she appeared drained from the ordeal. She could scarcely speak. Her face was painfully sunburned. The 51-hour salt water soaking left her lips and hands puffed.

She estimated she had suffered 200 jellyfish stings.

Ralph Mazzoli, captain of the press boat Idle Day that accompanied the expedition, estimated Miss Taylor's zig-zag odyssey covered at least 160 miles. But he said the true figure may never be known since calculating swimming distance at sea is difficult.

Nearly a dozen sharks were sighted while she plowed through the sea. None attacked, but she was forced out of the water periodically while worried aides frightened the sharks away.

Miss Taylor, a Bristol, England, native, who once studied in a Buffalo, N.Y., convent but never took her final vows as a nun, has conquered the English Channel twice.

While her talk of another try was not specific, her chief coordinator, Doug O'Donnell, said nothing would surprise him.

"She's not a quitter," said O'Donnell. "She's liable to do anything once she's well."

Solid Gains Made Against Cancer In Children

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

"Come on, now," said a man expressing the view of many people. "There hasn't been any real progress against cancer. The figures show it — no change in the death rate in the last five or 10 years."

He is both right, and quite wrong.

He's right, in that the national statistics show the death rate from ALL cancers combined is holding about the same. A main reason is the unchecked rise in lung cancers, and increases in cancer of the colon.

But wrong, because there have been solid to even spectacular gains against a dozen types of cancers, mainly those that strike children. Super-cautious specialists now confidently use the word "cure."

Now, 50 to 75 percent of children are being cured of acute lymphocytic leukemia, compared with 20 percent 10 years ago. Now, 75 percent of victims of Hodgkin's disease, affecting mostly young adults, are surviving against practically zero 10 years ago. Bone cancers are being cured in 70 to 80 percent of patients, versus 20 percent in 1972. Amputation of affected limbs is rare now.

Dr. Emil Frei, III, director of the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, ticks off other figures:

A cure rate of 40 to 50 percent, and promise of reaching 75 percent, in histiocytic lymphoma; an apparent cure rate of 50 to 80 percent in disseminated testicular cancer; 70 percent cure rate of Burkitt's lymphoma in localized stages; 80 percent cure rate of Wilm's tumor, a kidney cancer of children; complete remission in 70 to 80 percent of adult patients with myelogenous leukemia.

These wins are saving thousands of lives a year, say leading clinicians, but the figures become lost in the total overall statistics from the much more common types of cancer, such as lung, breast, colon, stomach and pancreas, against which there has been far less progress, although some new treatments look promising.

More Americans are living longer, into ages when cancer strikes more frequently. Further, lung cancer is increasing so rapidly that "it will not be long before 50 percent of cancer deaths in this country will be due to lung cancer," says Dr. C. Gordon Zubrod, director of the Florida Comprehensive Cancer Center in Miami.

"Progress against cancer" are hollow words to victims (and their relatives) of the major cancer killers. For them, cancer is still a personal, evil and relentless thing.

Despite gains against a dozen forms of cancer, "there's not all that much discernible change in life expectancy when we lump them all together," remarks Dr. Lewis Thomas, president of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City.

That makes some people skeptical, inducing a feeling that the attack against cancer is at a standstill, he adds.

Some critics see few achievements since the "War on Cancer" was mandated by Congress in 1971, with some $4.710.620.000 expended through the National Cancer Institute since then. The budget sought this year will be nearly $1 billion. They criticize what they term "fads" in cancer research, such as the search for a virus cause of cancer and, more recently, what they call insufficient stress on environmental and dietary influences in cancer.

Supporters of expanded programs point to gains against specific cancers, the training of more specialists to treat cancers, establishment of major comprehensive cancer centers combining many skills and techniques to treat each patient, and the speedier spread of new knowledge and treatments into surrounding communities.

One shibboleth almost defeats real understanding of cancer progress and problems. It goes: "If they can put a man on the moon, why can't they cure cancer?"

The error is that this overlooks the fact that the basic principles, starting with Isaac Newton, were known long before the moon-shot program began, and from there on in it was mostly solid and brilliant engineering to bring it about. Similarly, the principles for making an atom bomb were known before wartime emergency led to its development.

In cancer, the basic principles as to why healthy cells turn into wild cancer growth are simply not yet understood. It is somewhat like trying to get from San Francisco to Chicago, when you don't know where Chicago is.

"The public was given too much in the way of promises in the early days of the 'war on cancer,'" says Dr. Thomas. "It began to believe that if you just put more money in, you would get answers. There wasn't enough cautionary reminder of how long it would take. Those involved in research didn't think it would be easy or quick, but the public did, expecting answers at some finite date."

Even in cancers for which cures are being obtained, the basic causes of the disease still are not known. But drugs and combinations of drugs are having effects that are "amazing and spectacular," as Dr. Thomas expresses it. "A few years ago, most of these cancers were untreatable."

For some cancers, mainly the childhood ones, "we now can say, 'you can live,'" says Dr. Frank J. Rauscher, senior vice president for scientific research of the American Cancer Society.

First In A Series

"It is clear now that metastatic disease (cancers that spread) of a dozen different kinds can be cured," adds Dr. Zubrod of the Miami center. "The majority of children now have a normal life expectancy, and some have grown up to have families of their own."

The best results are being achieved, at major research centers and institutions, pioneering ideas and techniques that may take 10 years or more to prove they possess real benefits.

A prime reason for successes against cancers mentioned above is that they all or mostly all are fast-growing types. Hence they are more vulnerable to drugs that can hit them when cells are dividing, making new DNA or genetic material to reproduce themselves.

Basic research in numerous laboratories showed there are different stages in cell division. This in turn led to drugs which, given in combinations, are able to kill cancer cells progressively, eventually wiping all of them out.

The multiple punch does it. But slow-growing cancers, such as those of the lung, breast, pancreas and colon, are not so vulnerable to this kind of attack.

For them, the answer may have to be drugs that take advantage of some specific, and still unknown, difference between the cancer cell and healthy cell, so the drug becomes a bullet aimed at the cancer cell.

Efforts to find such subtle differences have long been underway. But no one yet knows where "Chicago" is.

Readers Seek List Of Dirty Words

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The Portland Press Herald offered to mail its readers a list of those "seven dirty words" the U.S. Supreme Court objected to, and readers from as far away as West Germany responded.

The Press Herald did not publish the words when it carried stories about the court's restriction of broadcasts of a record by comedian George Carlin. But it said the curious could get a list by sending a self-addressed envelope to the newspaper. The offer was carried by The Associated Press and about 60 requests came in from out of state.

Among the inquiries: —From Nashville, Tenn.: "My curiosity is killing me. I have been on this planet for 55 years and spent four years of this in the U.S. Army, but for the life of me I cannot recall seven dirty words...I was of the opinion that I knew them all."

Yankees Look For Second Win

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The sacrificial lamb who had the Kansas City Royals liking their chops turned on them and led them to the slaughter of a 7-1 New York Yankee victory Tuesday night in the opening game of the American League playoffs.

Pressed into service because ace left-hander Ron Guidry was needed the day before in Boston, rookie Jim Beattie, the Yankees' No. 4 starter, responded with the finest performance of his life. He and young reliever Ken Clay handcuffed the Western Division champions on just two hits while the Yankees pounded four Kansas City hurlers for 16, capped by a towering three-run home run by the remarkable Reggie Jackson, who has reached base in post-season competition eleven straight times.

"I really didn't feel any pressure tonight," said Beattie, who was 6-9 in the regular season and facing Kansas City's top pitcher, 21-game winner Dennis Leonard.

"I wasn't tricky or anything, I just tried to get ahead. I just wanted to pitch seven innings and give our bullpen a chance to rest."

Beattie was never challenged until the sixth, when George Brett doubled and walks to Amos Otis and Pete LaCock loaded the bases.

Yankee manager Bob Lemon then summoned Clay to protect his team's 4-0 lead and he retired Hal McRae on a sacrifice fly and Al Cowens on a ground ball.

The Yankees, who once trailed Boston in the Eastern Division by 14 games and may be en route to one of baseball's all-time comebacks, not only defeated the Royals in the first of this best-of-five series. They embarrassed the hosts who figured that with Guidry available for only one game they would win at least one and possibly both contests scheduled for Kansas City.

The Royals were shaky from the first inning, dropping balls, making poor throws and swinging at bad pitches.

The clincher came in the eighth. Mickey Rivers and Lou Piniella singled off Steve Mingori, who relieved Leonard in the fifth, and Royals manager Whitey Herzog called upon Al "The Mad Hungarian" Hrabosky to deal with Jackson, who already had singled and doubled. The bearded Hrabosky, obtained from the St. Louis Cardinals this year to provide the Royals with the left-handed bullpen heat they had needed so desperately while losing the '76 and '77 playoffs to the Yankees, threw two pitches.

Jackson, the hero of last year's World Series, launched a huge home run over the right field fence.

"Some guys hit .300 all year," said Jackson, assuming a modest pose. "I'm one of those fellows that do it for a couple of months. I wasn't psyched by Al. That's his thing and this time I won. Next time out he could be the one that comes out on top."

"We hung one to Reggie," said Herzog. "And you don't get away with hanging 'em to Reggie very often. That's the flattest I've ever seen my ball club play, especially in a playoff. If we don't win tomorrow, we're hurting."

Lemon, who was fired as manager of the Royals six years ago for being too old, admitted Beattie would have watched from the bullpen Tuesday night if Guidry had not been used in the 5-4 showdown victory over the Red Sox.

"I think he would have pitched at some point in the series, but Guidry would have started tonight," said the man who rescued the sagging Yankees when Billy Martin was fired during a July trip to Kansas City.

"Beattie would likely have opened it up for us in New York Friday."

Ed Hauer, who won 20 games with his sinking fastball this year, will face Royals left-hander Larry Gura, 16-4, in the second game this afternoon.

"As sure as you've got to breathe," said Kansas City outfielder Amos Otis, "we've got to win it."

Watts Gets Starting Assignment For Ags

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

The Raiders were about to leave Jones Stadium to the lengthening shadows. The team had broken off into groups for post-practice running, specialty drills or extra practice.

The scout team was running sprints, when Ted Watts walked by.

Graduate assistant Greg Frazier called out Watts' boast: he could beat all the scout team's defensive backs by 5 yards in a 50-yard sprint.

The challenge went to the show-me stage. Frazier handicapped the scout-teams 5 yards, and the race began. Finally, Watts eased up, realizing he couldn't overtake the half a dozen in front.

But, Watts, the transfer from Sun County (Fla.) Junior College had not completed his work for the day; his competitors had. Watts reported for some punt return practice, a chore he will handle Saturday against the Aggies in addition to regular secondary duty.

And Watts will be in the starting lineup, as cornerback Mike Patterson is still on the medical shelf.

Head coach Rex Dockery said that it will not be known for another few days when Patterson will be able to return to work after injuring a knee against Texas.

Dodgers, Phils Open NL Series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies were talking tall going into tonight's National League playoff opener, while the Los Angeles Dodgers were relatively reserved.

"I just feel we're ready for an offensive explosion," said Mike Schmidt, among several Phils who haven't been their dynamite selves at bat this season. "But I don't think it matters what we do offensively because I think our pitching is going to stop them."

"We'll win it in three," Phillie manager Danny Ozark said casually in the dugout as he awaited the best-of-five set that starts with two games here and finishes in Los Angeles. "I think our pitching is as good as Los Angeles'. Our defense is better."

"We're about 20 points below the team batting average we had last year. But I really expect the guys in so-called prolonged slumps to be a hell of a lot better hitters than they were all year."

The Dodgers worked out later Tuesday, and this is how they reacted to the Phils' confidence.

"They're supposed to feel confident. They're giving their honest opinions about how they feel," said second baseman Dave Lopes. "All I know is that we'll find out in the next five days who is the best."

Manager Tom Lasorda, asked about Ozark's prediction of a sweep, gave the same answer again and again.

"That's what he said last year," said Lasorda, whose team ousted the Phils in four games in the 1977 playoffs.

"He is going to say what he believes," Lasorda added. "But opinions are like noses, everybody has one. We came here to win, and we feel like that's what we are going to do. But I'm not going to predict how many games it will take. I'm not that smart."

Phillies, LA Collide

Christenson takes a deceptive 13-14 record into tonight's (7:30 p.m. CDT) matchup with Dodger starter Burt Hooton, 19-10.

In Christenson's 14 losses, the Phillies scored a total of 21 runs.

"I won't talk about that except to say that it's made me a better pitcher," he said. "I feel I've pitched my best baseball this past year."

Lasorda feels Hooton has been his best pitcher this season. "He's done so much to get us here. In my opinion, he's the Cy Young Award winner," said Lasorda.

Hooton figures to face a strong test from the Phillies and a crowd of 64,000 at Veterans Stadium. In the third game of the playoffs here last season, he lasted less than two innings. Angry at the umpire's calls, badgered on each pitch by the roaring crowd, he was yanked after walking four batters in a row.

Philadelphia fans will almost certainly try to intimidate him with noise tonight. "I don't have to get the fans out," said Hooton. "I have to get the Phillies out."

U.S. Golfers

Invade Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Bill Rogers, Gil Morgan, Jerry Pate, Lee Trevino and Gene Littler head a strong 20-man American delegation to one of the world's richest golf tournaments, the $300,000 Pacific Club Masters, starting Thursday.

The Americans will compete against two Australians, two South Koreans, six Taiwanese and 29 Japanese golfers for the $65,000 first prize.

The four-day tournament will be held on the 6,324-yard par 71 Gotemba course near Mt. Fuji, south of Tokyo.

Rogers, who won the Bob Hope Desert Classic this year, is the defending champion.

Raiders Work For Aggie Tilt

Wichita Falls Rider, Tech has shifted Johnny Quinney from free safety, where he has started for three games, to Patterson's cornerback spot. And Watts will work at Quinney's regular position this week.

The change was the only one definite for next Saturday's confrontation with the Aggies in College Station. However, Dockery is pondering a change at tailback. Freshman Phil Weatherall started there the past two games, with sophomore Don Earl opening the season against Southern Cal.

Dockery said he would make his decision Thursday.

In working for the Aggies, Dockery had the offensive unit scrimmaging against the scout team and its 4-3 defense, as employed by both Texas and the Aggies.

That, he said, was not so great a change.

However, the Aggies run from the wishbone and some from the I-formation, so the Raider defense had to work in making the adjustment.

"Those (Aggie) people are go good, both offensively and defensively. Look at the stats, and they'll show you." What the stats show is that A&M is No. 2 in the nation in rushing offense with a 385.7-yard average (bettered only by Oklahoma) and third in total offense with 494.5 yards (OU and Bowling Green are 1-2).

And in the Southwest Conference, the Aggies are first in total defense (117.0 yards per game) rushing defense (57.3 yards) and passing defense (59.7).

And offensively, they are first in the league in the rushing and total offense categories.

Watts and his defensive mates will try to stop Curtis Dickey, the sprinter who has averaged 144.3 yards per game rushing this season, best in the conference. With 36 points, he is first in the league in scoring, too. And Darrell Smith is second in the league in punt returns, averaging 10.4 steps per catch.

The Raiders will continue their work today, before beginning to taper off. They will leave here Friday afternoon for Saturday's 1:30 p.m. contest.

Royals Face 'Must-Win' Situation

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Ron Guidry has yet to throw a pitch, but the New York Yankees southpaw is already playing a key role in the American League playoffs.

The Kansas City Royals were apparently so overcome by the thought of eluding Guidry in the opening playoff battle that they forgot all about a couple of guys named Jim Beattie and Ken Clay.

As a result, the Royals trail the Yankees 1-0, in the best-of-five series and openly admit they are in a must-win situation.

"Well, let's put it this way: If we don't, we'll be hurtin'," said Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog as the Royals prepared to send Larry Gura, 16-4, against New York's Ed Furgerson, 20-9, in the second playoff game this afternoon at Royals Stadium.

"Just as sure as you've got to breathe," added Amos Otis, the Royals center fielder. "We've got to win it."

The Yankees guaranteed themselves of at least splitting the two playoff matches in Kansas City by backing a two-hitter by Beattie and Clay with 16 hits of their own in a 7-1 triumph over the Royals Tuesday night.

The flamethrowing Guidry, whose 24-3 season included a 2-0 mark against Kansas City, was expected to open the playoffs for the Yankees until they were forced to use him against Boston Monday in a one-game playoff for the AL East championship.

That left Beattie, a right-handed rookie who was twice knocked out of the box by Kansas City en route to a 6-9 campaign.

But while the Royals were congratulating themselves on their good fortune, Beattie was pitching around a flurry of walks to hold them scoreless for five innings. Kansas City pushed across a run in the sixth, but Clay shut the door the rest of the way.

Leading the New York attack was that annual autumnal hero, Reggie Jackson, who swatted a single, double and homer, scored twice and drove in three runs.

"Big game for us," Jackson emphasized. "We won the first game and we've still got Guidry."

The Royals, who had perhaps been anticipating a Yankee letdown after New York's wrenching 5-4 division playoff win over Boston the day before, were instead themselves stung by the Yankees' peppered starter Dennis Leonard and three Kansas City relievers.

"We were supposed to beat him pretty good," said Royals catcher Darrell Porter of Beattie. "But everybody was swinging at bad pitches. . . Really. That was one of the worst games this club has played all year."

The Yankees, whose third straight postseason appearance follows a stretch drive in which they overcame a 14-game Boston lead, said that even another duel with Kansas City was a relief after Monday's squeaker with the Red Sox.

Bosox Watch As Series Opens; Yaz Looks For Championship

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox once again are baseball's most notable bridesmaids, with nothing to show for two seasons of American League pennant contention except 196 victories.

The latest campaign, which ended with Monday's AL East tie-breaker loss to the New York Yankees, capped yet another season of frustration for a team that is familiar with failure in September.

Perhaps no team in baseball has less to show for a long season of dramatic ups and downs than the Red Sox, whose 1978 season represented one of the great tumbles in the history of the sport.

Veteran slugger Carl Yastrzemski was left teary-eyed by the near miss, vowing to hang on until the Red Sox snare the brass ring.

"Someday," said the 39-year-old Yastrzemski, "we'll get the cigar. . . I'm going to play on a world champion."

But it will be another year, another long season spanning spring training to early fall, before the Red Sox captain gets his chance, if then.

Boston began the year with a supposedly awesome lineup and a pitching staff bolstered by expensive free agents and newcomers obtained in trades or promoted from the minors.

The team moved into first place in May and opened a 10-game lead in early July. On July 19, Boston had a comfortable lead over the Baltimore Orioles and the surprising Milwaukee Brewers. The Yankees were 14 games back, torn by internal strife.

The figuring was that the Red Sox could breeze even if they played .500 baseball, instead of .700.

Boston played .500, but the Yankees played .700. New York humiliated the Red Sox at Fenway Park in September, beat them in Yankee Stadium and won the sudden-death showdown after a late Red Sox charge forced the tie-breaker.

Injuries — to Yastrzemski, catcher Carlton Fisk, shortstop Rick Burleson, second baseman Jerry Remy and right fielder Dwight Evans — were blamed.

Bill Campbell, the ace 1977 reliever, was hindered all season with arm and shoulder woes and the Boston bench, which looked so impressive in the spring, turned out to be weak in the clutch.

So did several Boston regulars who were healthy. Righthander Mike Torrez, a $2.6 million free agent and Yankee hero in the 1977 playoffs and World Series, was 1-6 down the stretch, and he lost the playoff game.

Big Jim Rice had a season for the record books, leading the major leagues in virtually every hitting category except average: 46 home runs, 139 RBI, 213 hits, 15 triples, 121 runs, a .315 batting mark. He appeared in all 163 games.

Reliever Bob Stanley, 15-2, and starter Dennis Eckersley, 20-8, exceeded expectations and Fisk, playing a remarkable 157 games, was a backbone of the club.

But it all was washed away on a cool, early October afternoon when New York's Rich Gossage retired Rice and Yastrzemski with the winning run on base in the bottom of the ninth inning.

They started fast and finished with a charge, but in between the Red Sox somehow found a way to lose. Some would use the word choke.

Griffith Apologizes For Racial Remarks

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "I honestly did not intend to hurt anyone. I was just trying to be funny."

Calvin Griffith was serious this time as he issued a public apology Tuesday night for disparaging remarks he made at a Lions Club meeting in Waseca, Minn., last week.

In a statement released at the opening game of the American League championship series here, Griffith said his remarks were not meant to reflect adversely on baseball or its players.

"I had had a couple of drinks and, in answering questions from the group, I was trying to be funny," Griffith said. "I was appearing at what was to have been an informal gathering and my remarks were geared to the spirit of that occasion."

"The reported stories, however, in isolating partial quotes out of context, so distorted my meaning that the stories in no way reflect the sense of the thoughts I was conveying."

Among his controversial remarks, the 66-year-old Griffith was quoted as saying that he moved his baseball franchise to the Twin Cities from Washington, D.C., because "you only have 15,000 blacks here."

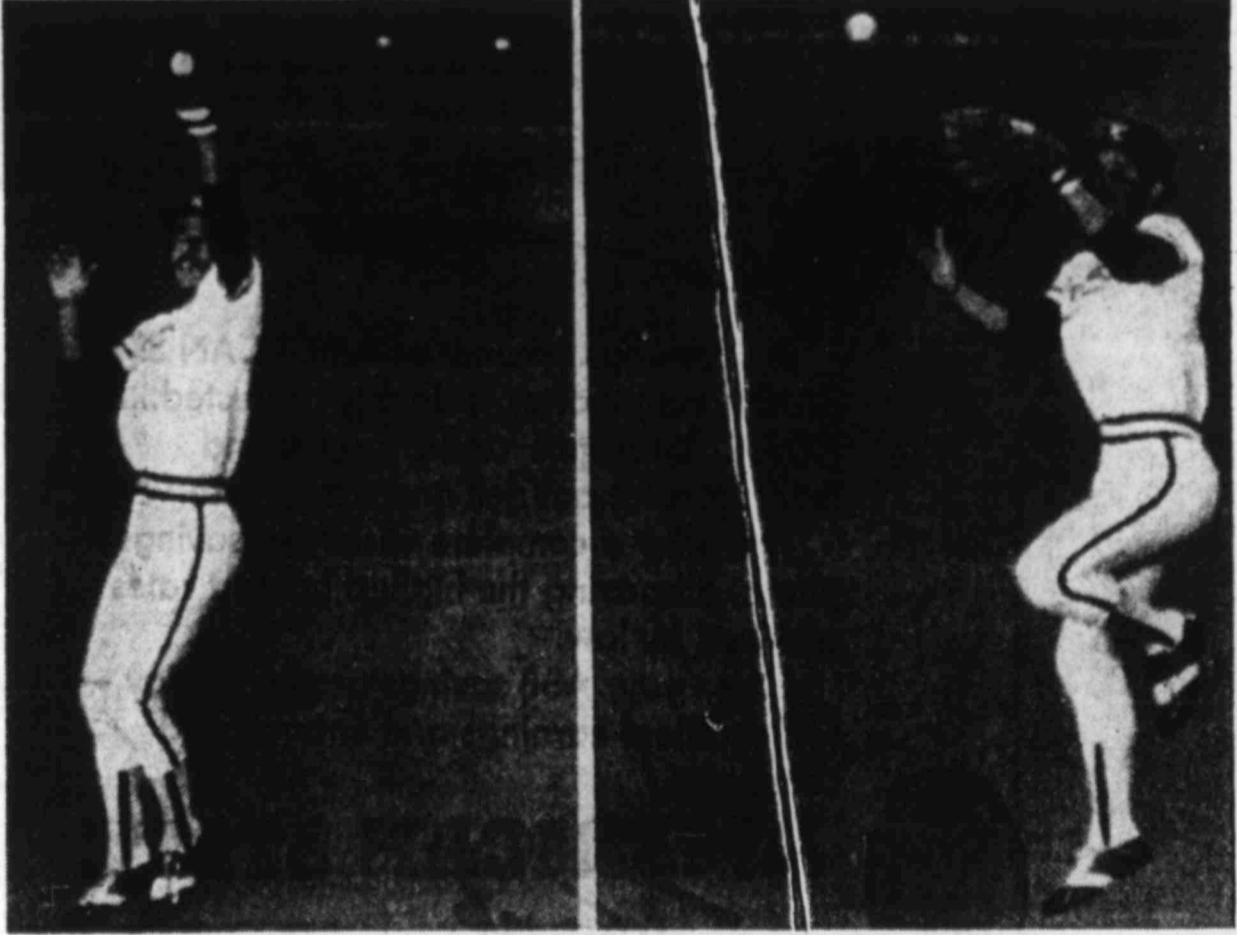

"They'll fill up a rassling ring and put up such a chant it will scare you to death," Griffith said of blacks. "We came here because you've got good, hard-working white people here."

Also in his speech, Griffith called Twins star Rod Carew "a damn fool" for signing a contract for $170,000 and said the performance of catcher Butch Wynegar suffered because he got married.

Griffith said other owners, upset at what he called "irresponsible reporting," had suggested legal action.

"I would like to feel," he said, "that I am a big enough person to accept any criticism I deserve and put this matter to rest with public and private apologies."

"I would therefore like to apologize to anyone I have offended. I realize some of the things I said, taken out of context, are extremely upsetting."

CAN'T HANDLE IT — Kansas City outfielder Amos Otis loses New York Yankee Reggie Jackson's single in the first inning of Tuesday night's playoff game at Kansas City. Jackson went on to second as Otis lost the catch and was charged with an error. (AP Laserphoto)

And STEVE PERKINS

Q. I am told by people friendly with LA Ram players that the Cowboys' Ed "Too Tall" Jones insulted quarterback Pat Haden before their game at Los Angeles last week. Can you tell me what happened? Was it on the field or the night before the game?

—Ellie Davies, Long Beach, Calif.

A. The 5-10 Haden was angered by a suggestion from a CBS producer that he pose for a pregame shot standing next to the 6-9 Jones. It does no good to get angry at Ed Jones. Besides, that day the Rams defense was angry enough for both teams.

Q. Please comment about the boxer who fought in the early teens under the ring name of "Gunboat Smith." What was his real name? Did he ever fight Sam Langford? If so, what was the outcome?

—Minor Cole, Tucson, Ariz.

A. Edward J. Smyth was called Gunboat Smith because he once won the heavyweight championship of the U.S. Navy's Pacific Fleet. In 1914, during Jack Johnson's exile, he was proclaimed "White Heavyweight Champion," then lost that dubious title to George Carpentier the same year.

He fought Langford twice, winning a 12-round decision, then getting kayoed in the third in a rematch. He was 6-2 and 185. After getting knocked out by Harry Greb, Luis Firpo and Harry Wills in 1921, he retired at age 36.

Q. Could you please tell me what disease Lowndes Shingler, football player with Clemson, had that caused him to kill himself in the hospital? I have written letter after letter without an answer.

—Eugene V. Cox, Houston.

A. Quarterback Shingler led Clemson to three winning seasons and the Bluebonnet Bowl from 1958 through 1960. He had a trial with the Dallas Cowboys in 1961 and was one of the last players cut. He then entered the Army, and friends believe "something happened to him" while going through survival training at Carlsbad, N. M.

"Lowndes had always succeeded at everything he had ever tried," a Clemson source explained to us. "He was an achiever." While undergoing treatment for emotional distress as an outpatient at Walter Reed Hospital, Shingler went home and shot himself to death.

Q. My father talks about an old-time fighter named Johnny Dundee. Can you tell me if he is related to Angelo Dundee?

—Walter Melton, Houston.

A. Dundee's real name was Joseph Carrara, born in Shaikai, Italy, 1893. He fought from 1910 through 1932, after resigning the featherweight title in 1924 when he could no longer make the weight. He is no relation to Angelo and Chris Dundee of Miami.

Stevenson-Ali Fight Talked

CHICAGO (AP) — Cuban Teofilo Stevenson, twice the Olympic heavyweight boxing champion, has received permission from his government to fight world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali in a five-city series in the United States.

"It depends on Ali and the TV networks for it to come off," said Bob Arum, chairman of the board of Top Rank Inc., a promotion firm which has handled many of Ali's previous fights.

Arum's announcement was made Tuesday in the office of Ali's manager, Herbert Muhammad. It coincided with presentation by Top Rank and Arum's law firm of $15,000 each to the Herbert Muhammad Foundation, which will provide housing and scholarships for the underprivileged.

"I spoke to Muhammad about it on the telephone, but that's all," Herbert Muhammad said. "He told me, 'This will be really a biggie.'"

Arum said all five bouts would be three-round matches and that Top Rank would "coordinate" the entire program.

"They wouldn't technically be exhibitions and they wouldn't technically be championship fights," Arum said. "The format is a device to enable Stevenson to retain his amateur championship. Our plan is to involve Madison Square Garden, the Los Angeles Forum and three other locations. Possibly, Chicago will be one of them."

According to Arum, Stevenson would not be paid for the matches, but the Cuban Boxing Federation would receive a sum of money for his participation.

"The Cubans are sincere and committed," he said. "The whole thing came about through a gentleman named Ben Thompson, a promoter in Los Angeles. He succeeded where I failed and Madison Square Garden failed. He persuaded the amateur boxing authorities and the government of Cuba that it would be a good thing for Stevenson and Ali to fight."

"He contacted me in mid-September and I'm in the process of making the matches a reality. Thompson is involved in the promotion.

But, Arum cautioned "everything is very, very preliminary. I still have to reach a financial agreement with Herbert Muhammad and Muhammad Ali. Once a deal is made with them, you never have to worry. They have always more than lived up to both the letter and spirit of their agreements with me," Arum said.

"The bouts probably would be scheduled over a period of two or three weeks in 1979, and Ali would be prohibited from fighting any other matches in the interim," Arum said.

Ali recently won the World Boxing Council heavyweight boxing championship for an unprecedented third time by taking a 15-round decision from Leon Spinks.

"I've had offers from some other people," Herbert Muhammad said. "I've got a $10 million offer from government of Iran and another $3½ million offer, but I don't wish to reveal the name of the proposed boxers."

Ali, who won an Olympic gold medal in 1960, is currently in Mississippi working on a movie called "Freedom Road." The movie is not scheduled to be completed until Dec. 10.

Cuban Soria Picks 'Teo' Over Spinks

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Spinks is the best fighter Sixto Soria ever fought, and yes, of course, the Cuban was surprised when Spinks beat Muhammad Ali for the heavyweight championship of the world.

The admissions were made quickly, through an interpreter and with a jab-swift nod of the head by the man who lost to Spinks in 1976 Olympic light heavyweight final and who now reigns as world amateur light heavyweight champion.

But Soria's face remained a mask of concentration, the look of a fighter searching for an opening.

Then, suddenly a smirk showed in Soria's facial armor. There was a trace of a smile.

Someone asked if he would be surprised if Spinks would beat Teofilo Stevenson, Cuba's double world and Olympic champion.

"Spinks would not be able to beat Stevenson," was the answer.

Soria is a member of an 11-man Cuban team that will meet a U.S. boxing squad Friday night at Madison Square Garden. And he is, as his credentials prove, an outstanding fighter, as are the other members of the Cuban team. But Stevenson is the maestro. There is no disagreement from Soria and his teammates.

Soria caused a stir by marching as an unknown into the Olympic final at Montreal on a string of knockouts. There was a rumor that he was on the team because another fighter was being disciplined.

Not so, said Soria, who might bow to Stevenson's stature, but who has difficulty playing second fiddle to anyone.

"I was the best," he said of his Olympic selection. "That's why I was chosen."

And while the 24-year-old Soria is confident of his ability — as is any good fighter — he also is capable of accepting defeat in a winning manner. This also is a trait of top fighters.

"I didn't underestimate him," Soria said of Spinks, who knocked him down twice and stopped him in the third round of the Olympic final. "It was just something that happens in boxing."

Soviet Cager Belov, 26, Dies

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexander Belov, who scored the controversial last-second basket in the Soviet Union's gold-medal victory over the United States in the 1972 Olympic Games, has died after a prolonged illness, the Soviet news agency Tass said Tuesday. He was 26.

The nature of Belov's illness was not disclosed, but Soviet sources said Belov died of cancer.

He also was a member of the Soviet world championship team in 1974 and the winning European team of 1969 and 1971. He played for the Leningrad team "Spartak," many times winner of European Cup tournaments.

At the Munich Olympics in 1972, the U.S. team apparently had a 50-49 victory — but twice the Russians were permitted to replay the final three seconds. On the second replay, Belov, the Russian center, took a length-of-the-court pass between two Americans and scored to give the Soviet team a 51-50 victory.

A native of Leningrad, Belov studied at the shipbuilding institute and was a member of the Young Komsomol League. The 6-foot-5 center began playing basketball at age 18.

"He was a born basketball player," wrote the sports newspaper Sovetsky Sport. "Basketball was his only enjoyment, his fame, his life."

He leaves a widow, Shura Ovchinnikova, also a basketball player.

Coronado Flattens Levelland In VB

The Coronado volleyball squad upped its record to 6-2 on the year with a two-game sweep of Levelland in Lubbock Tuesday night.

Coronado took the match behind the serving of Dawn Cromer and Cassie Brandon by the scores of 15-10 and 15-2.

Amarillo Tascosa will host Coronado on Thursday night beginning at 4 p.m.

Landry Looks For 'Spark' After Defeat

DALLAS (AP)—The Dallas Cowboys need spark, miles and miles of spark.

"I just don't see any momentum at all," said Dallas Cowboy coach Tom Landry after an emotional 9-5 National Football League loss to the Washington Redskins Monday night. "We don't have the spark you got to have."

Landry, who only had two hours sleep before he viewed films of the loss, said Tuesday the major factor in his World Champions' disappointing 3-2 record is mental attitude.

Tech Women Netters Win

Donna Stockton Roup initiated her collegiate coaching career with a victory as her Texas Tech Women's tennis team defeated Midland College 7-2 in a duel match Tuesday.

Tech won its first three singles matches as Karen Schuchard, Debbie Donley and Peggy O'Neil recorded wins. Sandra Carrillo, a freshman who had just moved in to the No. 4 singles position, lost her match. However, No. 5 Lesa Booker won in straight sets.

An injury to the sixth Midland player resulted in forfeit wins for Tech in both singles and doubles matches.

In the doubles matches that were played, Miss Schuchard and Miss Donley were impressive, winning 6-2, 6-1. Miss O'Neil and Miss Carrillo, the second doubles team, did not fare so well losing in three sets.

Mrs. Roup was elated with her team's performance.

"A couple of our girls really showed something coming back after being down in games," said Mrs. Roup. "It was also good to see all the people come out to watch. It made our girls feel really good."

The results:
Singles—Karen Schuchard, Tech, def. Savers, M.C. 6-2, 6-1; Debbie Donley, Tech, def. Bovell, M.C. 6-2, 6-1; Peggy O'Neil, Tech, def. Miller, M.C. 7-5, 6-4; Smith, M.C., def. Sandra Carrillo, 6-3, 6-4; Lesa Booker, Tech, def. Spencer, 6-2, 6-1.
Doubles—Schuchard-Donley, Tech, def. Savers-Spencer, 6-2, 6-1; Miller-Bovell, M.C., def. O'Neil-Carrillo, 6-3, 1-6, 6-2.

STARR WAIVED
RICHLAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association announced Tuesday that 6-foot-7 forward Keith Starr, who had been invited to training camp, was placed on waivers. Starr, a 1976 graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, was the fourth-round draft choice of the Chicago Bulls in 1976, but later was cut by the Bulls.

"The whole game is mental," said Landry. "It's how you think and dedicate yourself to the job at hand. Everybody respects the Cowboys and that means they play harder and attack our weaknesses more. We are getting the best out of the opposition."

"That's not unusual. It happens to every successful athletic team. But we must recognize now we are not in a good position. We have a big mountain to climb and right now we are down in the valley."

Landry likened Dallas' position to that of world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali.

"Everybody keeps telling you how good you are all the time and you start believing it," said Landry. "We were getting complacent. Even Ali got complacent and had to work to get his (boxing) title back."

"We now have a race without question in our (the National Conference Eastern) division," said Landry. "In our division now — with Philadelphia and the New York Giants coming on — every game you play is a tossup."

Landry said, "Washington is definitely in the driver's seat. Every game is a challenge for us."

Landry said Dallas could no longer afford to live off last year.

"Every team, every person tends to get by on the least you can, to achieve with minimum effort," he said. "Sometimes that's not enough."

Landry said the Cowboys were "playing good but not winning the big games. That's where you separate the winners from the losers."

Landry said it would be very difficult for the Cowboys to come off the emotional game with Washington and be ready for a visit from the New York Giants Sunday.

"It's a great challenge for us because the Giants can beat anybody," said Landry. "If our character is there it will start to show up."

Landry added "We're in for a long battle and if we don't get with it it's going to be a long winter."

O'Donnell Pleased To Be 3-0

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Being 3-0 in District 5-A right now is kind of like being one of eight kids in the family. No matter what you do, you can't get much attention.

The problem is that there are three teams that haven't lost a game yet in that conference. And O'Donnell is just one of them. The Eagles opened up with a win over Wilson and then continued with Klondike and Borden County. But three wins over Class B schools don't count for much in your conference.

Odus Summers, however, will take them where he can get them. "That first game with Wilson was important for us," the O'Donnell head coach said. "They've proved themselves to be a pretty good ballclub. That was a close game and in years past we would have folded.

"This time we hung tough. When the smoke cleared, the scoreboard said 6 for us and 0 for them." If Summers sounds sort of like a Class A Grantland Rice, his 30-17-1 career record (now 33-17-1) makes it easy to forgive and forget. He obviously knows what he's talking about.

"The biggest difference between this year and years past is that we had confidence that we could win it. I just hope we can continue that. "We've got another tough one next Friday."

It's hard to conceive of anyone saying that Anton is "another tough one." The Bulldogs are having a tough season this year. So far they are 0-3 and have scored only 14 points. On the other side of the ledger, opponents have run up 124 points. It doesn't seem likely that it would take O'Donnell two weeks if it's open this weekend to get ready for Anton, but after listening to Summers, it's not so unbelievable.

"Last year we had a team that was 40 points better than Anton's. When the smoke settled the scoreboard said 18 for them and 10 for us. "I'll tell you the truth. I'm scared to death of them. If anybody's going to come together and win a game, they'll do it against us." Maybe that kind of attitude comes from coaching in 5-A too long.

"I've felt for about the last four years now that 5-A is the toughest district in the state. Look at the playoff record. Seagraves has advanced to the semis a couple of times and the finals once. "And a couple of those years the second-place team could have gone as far as Seagraves did."

Last year O'Donnell wasn't anywhere close to that second-place spot. The Eagles finished 5-4 overall but only 1-3 in the district.

Rangers' Bond Hints At Balk After Trade

CLEVELAND (AP) — Outfielder Bobby Bonds, traded to the Cleveland Indians by the Texas Rangers, says he does not know if he will report to the Indians. "As of now I'm unemployed" he said but pointed out that all major leaguers who are not in the playoffs are unemployed. "I'm going to scout around and see if there are any high school jobs open. Maybe I can help out in a college."
 Bonds, who hit 31 home runs and stole 43 bases for the Rangers last season, refused to say if his remarks mean he may be out of organized baseball next year.
 Bonds, 32, and relief pitcher Len Barker, 23, were traded to Cleveland for relief pitcher Jim Kern and utility infielder Larvell Blanks.
 The Indians also picked up relief pitcher Bobby Cuellar and outfielder Dave Rivera in payment for Johnny Grubb, who was dealt to the Rangers during the season.
 If Bonds does not play, he will forfeit the four years remaining on a lucrative five-year pact.
 "They can cram the money," Bonds said. "Money doesn't make it. I'm sick of talking about money. It doesn't pacify a person. I don't play ball for money. I play because I like it."
 The Cleveland Plain Dealer quoted sources as saying Bonds has had a grudge against Indians president Gabe Paul since Paul traded Bonds from the New York Yankees several years ago.
 "I've never lied to him," said Paul. "You never make a commitment to a ballplayer. It's stupid. I never told him I wouldn't trade him, but maybe he thought I did. . . I thought our relations were good, but maybe they are not."
 Paul said he and Brad Corbett, Rangers owner, negotiated Monday for the players.
 "We finally closed the deal at midnight," said Paul. "We shook hands on it in the men's room."
 Other Indians officials were overjoyed at the trades.
 "I'm really tickled about this," said Indians general manager Phil Seghi, who is in Kansas to watch the American League playoffs. "We have satisfied part of our search for power and speed."
 "This is only the beginning. We plan more moves and we're going after pitching. I do believe that Barker can take Kern's place on the staff."
 Indians manager Jeff Torborg, reached at his home in Mountainside, N.J., said the Indians "needed a hammer in the lineup and we got one in Bobby Bonds."

Engles, Hoopes: Tale Of Two Pro Punters

By The Associated Press

Call them Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside. At the moment, Rick Engles is in and Mitch Hoopes is out — but the way the Philadelphia Eagles' revolving door has been whirling, things could change at any moment.

It is a tale of two punters — and it is not to be believed.

It started in training camp where Hoopes, who had kicked around with Dallas, San Diego and Detroit, showed up as a free agent. Engles, who had played for Seattle and Pittsburgh, was traded to the Eagles for a middling draft choice.

On Aug. 15: Hoopes is released.

On Aug. 22: Engles is released and Hoopes is brought back.

On Aug. 28: Hoopes is released again and Engles is brought back.

On Sept. 25: Engles is released again and Hoopes is brought back again.

And on Sept. 30: Hoopes is released yet another time and Engles is brought back once more.

"Dick Vermeil called me last Friday night," Engles said of the Eagles' head coach. "I was home in Tulsa. When I got out I drove 26 straight hours from Philly to get home. Made it Wednesday about 2 p.m. Now here it is, Friday at 5, and the coach is telling me, 'We're thinking of bringing you back in. We've got no confidence in Hoopes. Stay by the phone,' he tells me."

"He calls me again on Saturday, 11 in the morning. At 11:40 I'm on a plane. Right in the airport in Chicago I meet Hugh Ortman (the team's ticket manager, dispatched with a contract) and sign. It was about 1:30. They had to have a contract signed by 4. And on Sunday I'm putting in Baltimore."

"When I rejoined the team some of the veterans said they thought my mind would be blown, the way everything was happening. And a couple of 'em said I should've held the team up, held out for maybe ten thousand bucks more. They would've had to give it to me or find someone else in a hurry. But that's not me."

That doesn't mean Engles isn't embittered.

"I think if you sign a contract and are good enough to make it through training camp and, say, the first regular game, your salary should be guaranteed for the season," he says. "Then the team says, 'We've got money invested in this kid and we're going with him.' Punters aren't like quarterbacks or even linemen. We don't have playbooks to learn. We can come right in and start kicking, so we tend to get shipped in and out more. One bad game and you're gone.

"The players' contract is a unilateral contract. We're bound to it. The teams aren't. I believe we should have a guaranteed contract. They do it with coaches. They should do it with us, too. At least I think I deserve something after what I've gone through the last few months."

Hoopes, naturally, has more to be bitter about. "They don't screw other people like they do us," he said.

"How can you have confidence in yourself when nobody else does? Think about it: the Eagles call me, say, 'Come on back.' I tell 'em, 'Hey, I've got a good job.'" (He made something like $12 an hour drilling core samples of the earth in Oregon.)

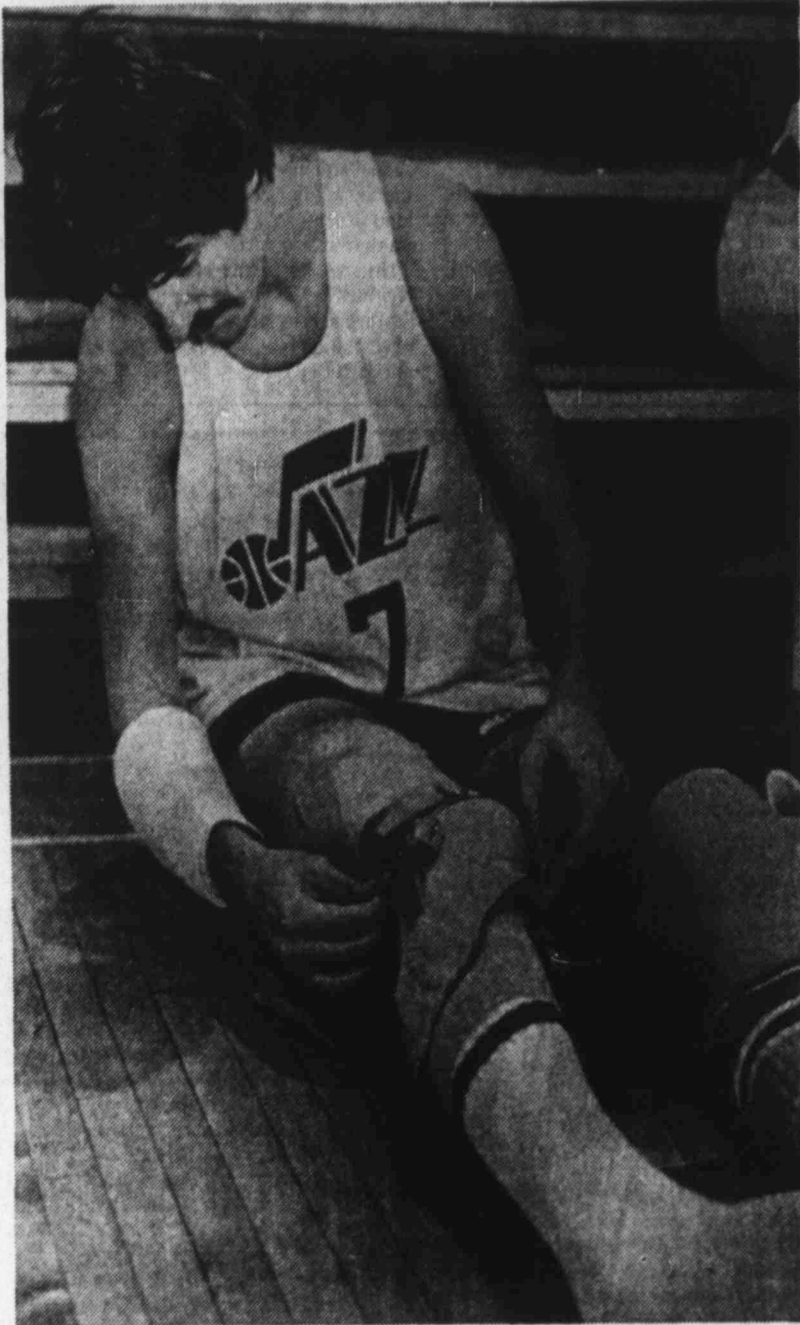

"They tell me they can't guarantee me anything but they sure give me a big vote of confidence. On Saturday I'm just warming up, trying to get my rhythm down. I didn't know then that Saturday was all that crucial."

"Then everyone's getting on the bus (for the trip to Baltimore). Vermeil tells me, 'I'm afraid you'll lose the game for us.' I was shocked. I mean, if they're watching you kick and saying you're not going good, I could accept that. But slapping me on the back, telling me everything's fine. . . My old boss tells me, 'Mitch, we've already filled your position.' I've lost a good job for the third time."

Murray, the Eagles' GM, notes: "I can appreciate the emotional trauma Rick and Mitch are going through. It's a very tough part of this business, cutting a player. It's lousy. It's the worst part of pro football."

"I'm very sensitive to messing with a guy's mind. I don't want to hurt anybody. But you look at the number of chances they had and you see the other side of the coin is hope."

To which Hoopes responds: "You get so many shots, people think something's the matter with you. Vermeil himself said of me, 'He kicks great on the field but he's been cut before.'"

Pro Cagers Wish For Shorter Year

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The World Series is still a week away and the pro football season is just now gathering momentum, but there were four National Basketball Association teams playing at Memorial Coliseum Tuesday night.

That's right — basketball.

The NBA season is the longest in professional sports, longer than baseball. The players gather for fall training camp in September, then a champion isn't decided until June. In the intervening nine months, a team could play 100 games.

And, just about everyone connected with the sport agrees, that is too many.

"It's definitely too long," said Los Angeles coach Jerry West. "If you could just cut six games in a season, you'd see a better brand of basketball. And it would be a very attractive schedule."

Portland's Maurice Lucas, the Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, and even Trail Blazers general manager Harry Glickman agree with West, but they also agree nothing probably will be done to shorten the season.

"We've been dealing with this for years," said Lucas, who is vice president of the NBA Players Association. "But you know, money talks."

As Jabbar pointed out, the NBA owners, because they would lose money at the gate, would want the players to take a cut in salary proportional to a cut in the length of the playing season.

"We're getting paid handsomely," said Jabbar, whose salary is among the highest in the league. "The average salary is better than in any other professional sport."

So the players would be reluctant to take a pay cut in order to shorten the season, he said.

"I for one would not be opposed to having a real good study made of it," Glickman said between games at Tuesday night's exhibition doubleheader. "The financial thing, the medical aspect, all of it. But they're going to have to show me a better reason than some sports writer saying the season's too long."

But Glickman agrees it is bizarre to have so many sports going on at once.

"You could look in the paper this morning and see a baseball score, a football score, a basketball score and a hockey score. That's ridiculous," he said.

West and Jabbar were certain the fans were seeing a poorer quality of play because of the long 82-game season, which often is elongated by eight exhibition games and a dozen or more playoff games.

"You play an 82-game season to eliminate just a few teams. That's not too swift," Jabbar said.

A shorter season, the Lakers' premier center said, "would improve the quality of the game and cut the travel in half."

The travel costs would save some of the owners' money lost at the gate, he said.

And West said the long season makes players more susceptible to injuries.

"I don't think there's any question that when a player is tired and really not into a game mentally — just going through the motions — he's much more susceptible to getting hurt," West said.

Portland coach Jack Ramsay said the season has been 82 games for 11 years and probably will always be so.

"It's not going to get any longer," he said, referring to an agreement between the league and the players association not to add any more games.

"More important than that," Ramsay said, "I'd like to get back to having 12 players on a team. That way you could spread the playing time around more."

Injuries, Flu Slow Longhorns

AUSTIN (UPI) — University of Texas coach Fred Akers said Tuesday the sixth-ranked Longhorns were working out as best they could in preparation for Saturday's game against No. 1 Oklahoma, even though many players had been sidelined with injuries.

"The uncertainty of the injuries is what bothers me," Akers said. "I'd rather see them working out. It wouldn't be so bad if we weren't playing a team that does things differently than other teams we have played."

Listed as missing the workout were kicker Russell Erxleben and flanker Lam Jones, both out with the flu; safety Johnnie Johnson and defensive tackle Steve McMichael, out with hamstring injuries; defensive tackle Bill Acker and defensive end Ron Bones, sprains; and cornerback Ricky Churchman with a hip injury.

Razorbacks

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Slow progress in the Razorbacks' kicking game and increasing consistency in the defense have left coach Lou Holtz worried mostly about the team's offensive performance in its conference opener this weekend.

"Right now I don't know if we could score if the other team missed the bus," Holtz said. "It seems the more we work on passing, the worse we get. We aren't throwing the ball worth a darn."

The No. 5 ranked Razorbacks will meet TCU in Little Rock Saturday night. The kicking game was emphasized in Tuesday's workout, and Holtz liked what he saw.

"I think we are improving some areas," he said. "Our kicking game is gaining some consistency working the same people."

Bears

WACO (UPI) — Baylor coach Grant Teaff said Tuesday walk-on kicker Bill Manes would replace Robert Bledsoe as the Bears' kicker Saturday against the 17th ranked Houston Cougars.

Bledsoe has missed four field goals in as many attempts in the Bears' first three losses. Bledsoe will remain the kicker on extra point attempts.

"I have based my decision on Bill's performance the last two days in practice," Teaff said. "If he doesn't get the job done this week, I will try to find someone else."

LARGE ENTRY

Indiana Quarterback Just Happy To Be Walking

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Scott Arnett, in his third season as starting quarterback at Indiana University, considers himself fortunate he can even walk.

Arnett, who will lead the Hoosiers against Wisconsin's Badgers on Saturday, was born with a condition called spondylitis, an abnormality in the way the bones in the spinal column fuse together. He played Pee Wee football through the eighth grade, but the resulting pinched nerves in his legs practically crippled him by the end of his freshman year in high school.

So the summer before his sophomore year, he underwent surgery and was in a brace for six months.

"I was in quarantine," the 6-foot-3, 197-pound senior from Columbus, Ohio, recalled. "I couldn't leave the house for three months. I missed school until January of my sophomore year and had to have a tutor come over and help me almost every day."

Arnett missed his entire sophomore year of football at Walnut Ridge High School, and his weight dropped from 175 pounds to 145.

"After the operation, I had severe pain," he said. "I had second thoughts of having the operation. They put a metal plate, that looked like a half-moon and locked in by a couple of nuts and bolts, in my spine. I think if it wasn't for my parents and close friends, I wouldn't have made it."

"My friends came over to see me every day. That's when you know who your friends are. The guys on the football team would come over and play cards with me. It was the worst time of my life. I know Greg McIntosh (Indiana's defensive end who had similar surgery last year) felt the same way."

Arnett said his father, Ralph Arnett, bought him weights to start rehabilitating his muscles.

"After the three months of quarantine was over, Dad and I would walk around the block together. He was always there when I needed him. He made an exercise schedule for me, and every night when he came home from work he would make sure I had done those things. I did sit-ups and leg lifts and a lot of stretching exercises."

Arnett, who later quarterbacked his

Olympic Architects Blamed

MONTREAL (AP) — Montreal mayor Jean Drapeau says there was a state of confusion about the hiring of Roger Taillibert and unexpected changes in the Paris architect's plans that led to delays in starting Olympic construction.

The Taillibert plans were not complete until almost a year after the city had vaunted the proposed Olympic facilities at a 1972 news conference, Drapeau told a Quebec inquiry into the cost of the 1976 Games.

He was scheduled to appear again today for a fourth day of testimony. Discussion was expected to bear on the lack of progress made between May 1970, when the Games were awarded to Montreal, and May 1973, when the first consulting firms were hired to draw up engineering plans.

Commission lawyer Jacques Dagenais has been engaged in a running verbal match with Drapeau on the delay in production of plans.

This has been singled out as a major factor in the dramatic cost increase — to the final $1.27 billion figure from the original 1969 estimate of only $120 million.

Near the end of Tuesday's hearing, Dagenais produced a document indicating that work could not have begun before 1973 because Taillibert changed his designs for the main facilities in the year after they were shown at the news conference in April 1972.

"Is it true engineers were not hired because there were no plans?" Dagenais asked.

Drapeau, who said he had never seen the document before, replied, "Yes." This apparently contradicted his repeated assertion last week that the reason was a lack of funds resulting from the federal government's failure to pass legislation establishing Olympic self-financing programs until 1973.

But, the mayor also reiterated earlier statements that, even when the designs were made public in 1972, no final decision had been taken to hire the architect.

In a letter from Taillibert to the city in November 1971, the architect speaks of the city as his client, but Drapeau said what he meant was that the city would be his client eventually.

He said the city paid no money to Taillibert before 1973 but it did pay the architect's travelling expenses and hotel bills starting in 1971 when he began working on the plans.

Taillibert's hiring was not approved by the city's executive committee until April 1973, but no contract was ever signed. The lack of a formal contract later led to difficulties in negotiations to determine the architect's final fee.

Asked why the city did not give Taillibert $250,000, which would have allowed the city to ask him to produce plans earlier, Drapeau replied: "We could not push Taillibert; we could not give him instructions because there was no agreement with him. To the extent that we would have pushed Taillibert, we would have committed much more money to him."

Taillibert, who has indicated he will not testify before the inquiry, was paid a total of $6.8 million for his Olympic design work. He had asked for $14 million for his services and expenses.

The inquiry, headed by Quebec Superior Court Justice Albert Malouf, was beginning its fifth week of hearings that are to continue until next June.

high school team to two city league championships and set a school long jump record in track, said he never had any problem with his spine after that "except during workouts this past winter."

"But in a couple of weeks it was gone. I don't even think about it any more. Greg was always asking me questions in practice how I felt in certain situations when I was recovering. I tried to explain how I felt and help him as much as I could."

Arnett said one reason he came to Indiana was to "get out of Ohio and play for a team with a pro-type offense."

"We ran the wishbone at Walnut Ridge. That's what all the high school teams run in Ohio. Our coach taught us the Woody Hayes system of football."

"I had a lot of schools recruit me," he said. "They would say, 'Come to our school and we will give you a new car and money in your pocket.' I didn't need that kind of stuff. My parents didn't bring me up that way."

He said he finally chose Indiana over Kentucky, Arkansas State and Oklahoma State because of the Hoosiers' style of play, the closeness to home and because of coach Lee Corso.

"He was honest with me," Arnett said. "He didn't promise me I would start my freshman year, but he did say he would give me a fair shake. He told me the truth and that was what I was looking for."

In his sophomore year, Arnett completed 42 of 93 passes for 398 yards and three touchdowns. Last year, he improved to 73 completions in 151 attempts for 796 yards and five touchdowns.

"I know I'm not the best quarterback in the country," he admitted. "I can't throw the ball like (Purdue's) Mark Herrmann, but I can throw all right, and I know I can run the ball all right."

"Coach Corso looks to me as the leader of the offense. He expects me to fire the rest of the team up and rally them when we are down. Corso said a leader has to be like an orchestra conductor."

China Interested In U.S. Satellite

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States and China have started preliminary talks involving the sale and launching of a communications satellite, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

A team of Chinese telecommunications experts is expected to arrive in the United States later this week to shop for ground stations and associated equipment that could lead to a domestic Chinese space communications network, the Times said.

The newspaper said the White House, after an internal study, indicated within the past few weeks it would be willing to give a license for the sale to China of the oldest kind of communications satellite, the Westar-1, and to launch it either by expendable booster or in NASA's space shuttle about 1982 or later.

Leaders Of SLA Sent To Separate Prisons

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — William and Emily Harris, still convinced that Patricia Hearst was "Tania," a convert to their terrorist philosophy, went to separate prisons today under sentences of 10 years to life for Miss Hearst's 1974 kidnapping.

Attorneys said they would probably be free in five to seven years. The Harris' lawyers said Tuesday's sentencing — 4½ years after Miss Hearst's abduction — marked the "end of an era."

Alameda County District Attorney Lowell Jensen said it also marked the end of the Symbionese Liberation Army, a tiny underground cell of revolutionaries who captured world attention by kidnapping the granddaughter of newspaper magnate William Randolph Hearst.

"The SLA is through," said Jensen. "All the people we knew about are accounted for."

At Tuesday's court appearance, Mrs. Harris held her arm around her husband's shoulder before they parted.

"We are feeling very strong today," a smiling Harris told supporters in the packed courtroom before returning to nearby San Quentin Prison. His wife was taken to the California Institution for Women at Frontera in southern California.

Earlier, the couple had written to the Alameda County probation department reaffirming their belief that Miss Hearst was a willing convert and was not tortured, brainwashed or mistreated, as she has said.

They said the daughter of San Francisco Examiner president Randolph Hearst "decided to stay with us" after the Feb. 4, 1974, abduction, despite encouragement by her captors to rejoin her family. "She related positively to the objectives of her own kidnapping," Mrs. Harris wrote.

NY Post Prepares To Publish Paper

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Post reached a tentative agreement with its last striking union today, signaling what could be the end of an 8-week-old shutdown at the afternoon daily.

Harry Fisdell, executive director of the Newspaper Guild, said the union would recommend that the reporters and editors it represents at the Post accept the proposed contract at a meeting today. He said the Guild accepted an offer made personally by publisher Rupert Murdoch. Murdoch said he hoped to have the Post on newsstands Thursday.

The Guild strike kept the Post from appearing on newsstands today. Agreement had been reached earlier with the striking pressmen, paperhandler and machinist unions. The paper also settled with its stereotypers early today to head off a strike.

The settlements raised hopes that the city's three major dailies may soon all be publishing for the first time since Aug. 9. Efforts to settle the continuing strikes at the New York Times and the Daily News, both morning papers, resumed today. All three papers were shut down when the pressmen struck Aug. 9 over work rules.

The pressmen and the paperhandlers approved contracts that basically promise to match whatever terms are eventually negotiated with the Times and the News. The machinists tentatively agreed to a new contract and planned to submit it to its 14-member Post union.

The pressmen's accord at the Post, approved by a 445-51 vote Tuesday, followed a wage pattern set in tentative agreements reached with the drivers' union at all three papers. It will raise weekly wages by $68 over a three-year period dating back to last March 31.

"The idea is to get some of the people back to work," pressmen's union President William J. Kennedy said of the Post accord.

The Times and the News pressed ahead with their demands for reductions in pressroom staffing and a curb on "featherbedding," which they say puts them at a competitive disadvantage with suburban newspapers.

But the Post's decision to break with the other papers put the two morning papers under added pressure to reach an early agreement.

Kennedy said any other contract terms that might be worked out with the two morning papers and then rejected by the Post would be subject to negotiations, followed if necessary by binding arbitration.

Neither of us has ever intentionally harmed another person," Mrs. Harris said of herself and her husband.

The Harris' sentences, imposed by Superior Court Judge Stanley Golde in a rapid, routine recitation, were part of a surprise plea bargain announced Aug. 31.

The 10-year-to-life terms imposed under California's old indeterminate sentencing law are formalities. Under a new determinate sentencing law, instituted last year, the California Community Release Board will convert the terms to 10 years eight months each.

Defense lawyers and prosecutors said that with credit for good behavior and time served, the Harris' could win release as early as 1983.

Their lawyers, Susan Jordan and Leonard Weinglass, said the couple received a fair deal. Deputy District Attorney Alex Selvin, responding to criticism of the plea bargain, said justice was served.

Selvin said the state saved $500,000 in anticipated trial costs, Miss Hearst was saved the ordeal of testifying and the Harris' will be behind bars for the same amount of time served by the average convicted kidnapper.

Miss Hearst, now 24, is serving a federal prison sentence on an armed bank robbery conviction. A San Francisco jury rejected her contention that the Harris' and other SLA members forced her to rob a bank. She will be eligible for parole in July 1979.

Although the Harris' say they are still committed to social change, Weinglass said they have abandoned violence as a method.

"The Harris' are looking forward to living again in the Bay Area when they get out and leading good, productive lives," he said "They intend to stay out of trouble."

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — A former Indiana University student was jailed four days on a charge of failing to return 48 books to the campus library.

Edwina C. Williams, 28, Bloomington, amassed $3,000 in fines from the IU library from 1973 to 1977, with 48 books listed as missing and overdue fines imposed on about 300 others. Deputy Prosecutor Bob Beck said the missing books were found in her apartment.

She was released this week when Monroe Criminal Court Judge James Dixon freed her on her own recognition at Beck's request.

IU police arrested her on a theft charge and held her at Monroe County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bond. She appeared before Dixon, who appointed a public defender to represent her and set arraignment for this Friday.

Carol Snyder, assistant director for public services, said the library can require students and faculty to pay fines on overdue or lost books, but "the only way to recover lost or stolen materials from nonstudents is to file charges."

Consumer Guides Available

By HOWARD K. OTTENSTEIN
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Federal consumer activities begin with the Consumer Information Center (CIC), a government mail-order house from which you can obtain more than 200 free or low-cost publications.

Topics of CIC pamphlets fall into such categories as automobiles, child care, health, food and nutrition, gardening, housing, energy conservation and employment.

Among the face publications currently offered by the center are "Teaching Your Child to Read," "Consumer Guide for Older People," "Merchandising Your Job Talents," "Fixing Up Your Home," "Your Money's Worth in Foods," "Successful Jogging," "Removing Stains from Fabric" and "Keeping Records — What to Discard."

Also from the Consumer Information Center, you can subscribe to the Consumer News. This bi-weekly newsletter provides the latest information on federal consumer programs and publications. The current cost of subscribing to Consumer News is $6 a year.

The CIC produces quarterly catalogs — in Spanish as well as English — listing all its booklets by category. You can obtain a copy free from your nearby Federal Information Center or by sending a postcard to Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Included in each catalog is a publication order blank. You can buy as many copies of booklets at one time as you wish but each order is limited to 20 of the free titles.

Do you want to order copies of a Consumer Information Center publication for your club, office or class? The center offers a 25 percent discount on orders of 100 copies or more of a single publication shipped to one address.

Even more consumer publications are offered for sale by the Government Printing Office (GPO), the federal agency responsible for publishing most government documents.

Among the diverse titles you may obtain from the GPO for a small fee are "Building Hobby Greenhouses," "The Price of Death," "Consumer Guide to Banking," "A Summary of Selected Legislation Relating to the Handicapped" and "Your Guide to Firearms Regulation."

In fact, the GPO has even compiled its own bestseller list. The most popular of its publications is "Infant Care," which has sold more than 17.3 million copies. Other favorites include: "Prenatal Care," "Your Child From 6 to 12," "Rescue Breathing," "Your Social Security," "Postage Stamps of the United States," "Federal Benefits Available to Veterans" and "Adult Physical Fitness."

The most popular of the GPO's new titles are listed in its "Selected U.S. Government Publications," which is issued 10 times a year. This mini-catalog of approximately 150 different books and pamphlets can be obtained free from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Just ask to be put on the mailing list to receive copies regularly.

One word of caution: The federal government is continually producing new publications and retiring old ones. By the time you get around to ordering one of the books or booklets described, you may find that it is out of print or that its price has increased. But if the topic is a popular one, a replacement is probably in the works.

Official Claims Charles Diggs Rejected Annual Payoff Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An African leader offered Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr. an annual payoff if the congressman would promote the country's interests in Congress, a high-ranking State Department official says.

An indignant Diggs refused the attempted bribe from the unnamed leader and reported it to the department, said David D. Newsom, the first defense witness at Diggs' corruption trial in U.S. District Court.

The defense was calling additional witnesses today in an effort to prove Diggs innocent of charges he ran a kickback operation in his office.

The testimony Tuesday of Newsom, third-ranking officer in the State Department, was a defense attempt to show the Michigan Democrat's financial integrity.

Diggs' former office manager testified last week her boss was suffering financially when he inflated her salary so she could use the extra money to pay his mortgage, personal loans and other bills.

Under questioning by defense attorney David Povich, Newsom said, "I recall when he received a letter from an African chief of state offering a stipend in order to further the interests of this country in Congress."

"He gave me the letter and indicated his indignation that he would be approached in this fashion."

Newsom said he believed the offer was for five figures annually, but couldn't recall the exact amount. He would not name the leader of the country and said the department could not find its files on the incident that occurred in 1972 or 1973.

Diggs, the ranking black member of Congress in years of service — 23 — is chairman of the House International Affairs subcommittee on Africa.

The government's 29-count indictment says Diggs inflated the salaries of three staff members so they could kick back some of the money to pay his personal, business and congressional office expenses.

The government also charges that Diggs placed his personal accountant and an employee of his former funeral home on the government payroll, although their salaries were not for government work.

Diggs has pleaded innocent to the charges of mail fraud and making false payroll statements to the House finance office. If convicted, he could face up to five years in prison on each count and fines totaling $191,000.

As the trial began its second week, defense attorneys tried unsuccessfully to use former President Ford as a character witness. The defense said Ford's schedule did not permit a personal appearance, but he was willing to videotape his testimony.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch ruled the defense did not provide enough notice under court rules for attorneys to get Ford's statement last Monday at his Palm Springs, Calif., home.

ABA Will Oppose Nomination Of Federal Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's legal establishment is asking Congress to rebuff an effort to name as a federal judge an Iowa lawyer who actively aided President Carter's 1976 campaign.

The American Bar Association, an influential trade group, announced Tuesday that it will tell the Senate Judiciary Committee today that Donald E. O'Brien of Sioux City, Iowa, is "not qualified" for a judge's job.

While noting that O'Brien "is astute and most capable in connection with the operation of the political process," a draft of the ABA statement to the Senate committee charges that he lacks the legal scholarship and "professional behavior" required for the federal bench.

In addition, the ABA appeared ready to ask the committee to hold up consideration of another administration nominee for a judge's post: Karin Clauss, the Labor Department's highest-ranking lawyer.

Miss Clauss' nomination did not appear Tuesday to be in serious trouble, but O'Brien's case could present an embarrassment to the administration because of President Carter's highly publicized devotion to the "merit selection" of federal judges.

The administration decided last week to back O'Brien, a member of the Democratic National Committee who chaired Carter's campaign efforts in Michigan two years ago.

Attorney General Griffin Bell designated O'Brien after the Justice Department received the names of five potential nominees by an impartial advisory commission in Iowa.

A veteran Democratic activist, O'Brien previously served as a campaign strategist in the presidential races of Robert Kennedy, Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern.

The ABA's opposition to O'Brien is based on two investigations, the second undertaken after the Justice Department discounted the initial probe's result — a unanimous "not qualified" recommendation by the association's standing committee on federal judiciary.

In part, the opposition is sparked by alleged conduct in 1955 when O'Brien served as a Woodbury County, Iowa, prosecutor in a murder case. According to the ABA, O'Brien did not disclose during a murder trial that a criminal suspect's "confession" introduced as evidence had been obtained while the suspect was under the influence of drugs and in a mental hospital.

The Justice Department's enthusiasm for O'Brien's becoming a federal trial judge in Iowa has not waned, however.

A spokesman for Bell said Tuesday, "To our knowledge, everything the ABA has pointed out we have knowledge of and have considered."

O'Brien's nomination has been supported by the Iowa Bar Association.

Meanwhile, the Carter administration last spring withdrew its nomination of Miss Clauss to become a federal trial judge in Washington after the ABA cited her lack of trial experience.

Miss Clauss, the Labor Department's solicitor, since has been on something of a crash course in courtroom advocacy, and her nomination recently was resubmitted to Congress.

Now, the ABA indicates that it wants more time to consider Miss Clauss' qualifications in light of a footnote contained in a federal appeals court decision announced last month.

In it, the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals charged government lawyers involved in the case with "contumacious" or insubordinate conduct after a government brief originally due March 26 was not submitted until Aug. 16.

Although, Miss Clauss' name appears atop the list of government lawyers arguing the case, Labor Department sources said Tuesday her contact with the particular controversy was nominal.

Convicted Assassin Plans To Marry

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray, the convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is "a lovable man, and not an antisocial maniac," says the woman who expects to become his bride within two weeks.

She also says she does not believe Ray is a murderer.

"When we first met, I guess I mainly felt sympathetic about his situation," Anna Sandhu, a 32-year-old television court-room artist, told the Knoxville Journal. "But those feelings have changed now, to love and concern. I want people to know that. He's a lovable man, and not an antisocial maniac."

Ray's brother, Jerry, and his lawyer, Mark Lane, confirmed Tuesday that the wedding will take place within the next two weeks inside Brushy Mountain State Penitentiary, where Ray is serving a 99-year sentence for the 1968 slaying of the civil rights leader.

"He called me today and he didn't have an exact date but that it would be within the next week or two weeks," Jerry Ray said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Atlanta. "They planned on doing it in secret until it got out."

Brushy Mountain Warden Stonney

Lane, no relation to Mark Lane, said Ray had not yet requested permission for the marriage. The warden would not let reporters talk with Ray on Tuesday.

"I'm a prison warden," he said. "I don't play Cupid for these people."

Prison Chaplain Paul Jones said he gave Ray the forms for a marriage application but did not remember when. Jones said it is not unusual for prisoners to ask for the applications and never return them.

Mrs. Sandhu was quoted in The Journal's copyright story as saying she is marrying Ray because she loves him. She said she was divorced about five years ago after a three-year marriage. Ray, 50, has never been married.

Mrs. Sandhu said she met Ray during a television taping last fall. In recent months she has visited Ray twice a week, prison officials said. She said she believes Ray's story that he did not kill King.

"They're all just picking on him because he's weaker — trying to frame him into a crime he didn't commit," she said.

Lane, who represented Ray when he testified before the House assassinations committee in August and at his trial last October for escaping from the eastern Tennessee prison in June 1977, said he learned of the wedding plans Tuesday.

"I talked to him about 9 a.m. this morning and this is the happiest he's seemed since I've known him," Lane said by telephone from San Francisco. "I said, 'Congratulations,' to him; he laughed and said, 'Thank you very much.'"

Cabinet Panel To Coordinate Productivity

NEW YORK (AP) — A presidential study group is close to recommending the formation of a cabinet-level council that would coordinate efforts to boost the nation's industrial productivity, says Robert Strauss, the Carter administration's chief inflation-fighter.

The council would probably be headed by the director of the Office of Management and Budget and consist of cabinet members and officials of other federal departments concerned with productivity, according to government sources who asked not to be identified.

Strauss said Tuesday that the committee would "provide a high-level, central focus" for productivity programs in government agencies and coordinate such programs with the private sector.

A decline in the growth of the nation's productivity rate is seen by many economists as a major source of the country's economic problems. Productivity, the measure of the amount of goods produced by a given amount of labor, is increasing at a rate of about 1 percent a year after many years of nearly 3 percent annual growth.

"Productivity is a terrible problem for this nation, and the time has come that we must face up to it," Strauss said. "Unless we all come into this thing and put something in the pot, we're going to go down the drain together. This is no time for greed; this is no time for a loser's mentality."

Strauss spoke at a conference on productivity sponsored by Business Week magazine and the American Productivity Center, a non-profit business group.

Another speaker, Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller, said, "Increased productivity is the best prospect to break the cycle of wages chasing prices and prices chasing wages."

Most of the speakers at the conference echoed Miller's call for "massive reform" of federal regulatory practices, a greater emphasis on job training to cope with the expanding number of young people in the work force and a build-up of the nation's stock of capital.

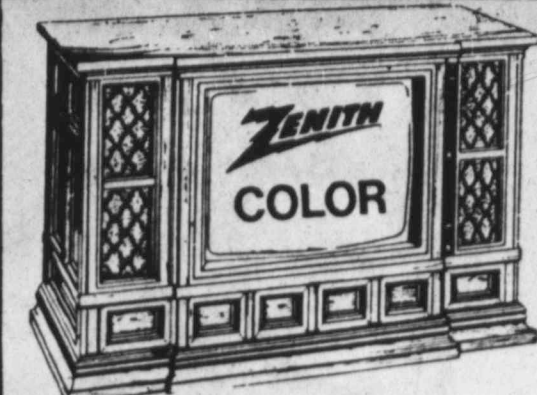

Venezuela Needs More Policemen

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela has thousands of openings on its police force but few applicants, authorities say.

The government has doubled the average police salary to $400 a month, but $433 is the average wage for industrial workers.

Caracas, a city of 3 million, needs 800 men to bring its force up to full strength of 5,300.

Senatorial Harmony May Be Threatened

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For nearly two years now, Robert Byrd and Howard Baker have worked in tandem as the leaders of their party in the Senate. From all appearances, Democrat Byrd and Republican Baker forged an effective, amicable partnership despite their political differences.

That type of relationship is not unusual between Senate party leaders. Without it, the Senate would move even slower than it does and could come to a complete halt.

Now, as Congress moves toward adjournment, the previously existing harmony could be threatened.

Last week, without consulting Baker as he normally does, Byrd set the stage for a test vote on legislation which would extend the time for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Baker, the urbane mountaineer from East Tennessee, is rarely given to visible anger.

But there was no question that Baker was more than a bit upset. In effect, he told Byrd that — under the circumstances — he should not expect much help from Republicans in expediting action.

Although the language retained the mandatory civility of the Senate, Baker said, "If, in fact, the business of the Senate in the last three weeks of the session is to be conducted on this basis, then it will be a very difficult and stormy time."

Later — as the discussion continued — Baker sounded a note even more ominous.

Baker said he hoped an "amicable" resolution could be found and conceded that Byrd, as majority leader, had acted within the rules.

"But," Baker added, "what has happened here, I believe and fear, may have brought about a fundamental change in the relationship of the two sides of the aisle unless it can be repaired."

"... this is a poor moment in the history of the Senate and of this session," he added.

But Byrd said, "There has been no fundamental change on this side of the aisle. There has not been any change at all on this side of the aisle so far as my relations with him and the minority are concerned."

"I am sorry if the minority leader sees it differently," he added. "I hope he will reexamine that statement and come to a little different conclusion."

Byrd can be extremely persuasive and it may well be that he will take the advice of Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who suggested the Democratic leader go to Baker and say, "Howard, let us sit down and think about this thing."

But if Baker — who has to protect the interests of Senate Republicans — cannot be persuaded and stops cooperating with Byrd because of what happened, bills are going to get stalled and Congress might be forced into a lame duck session.

The chances, however, are that Byrd and Baker will get it together and achieve what Goldwater envisioned.

Shoplifter Pleads Guilty To Charges In London

LONDON (AP) — In the discreet world of the super rich, nobody looked twice at Richard Jeakings as he popped in and out of London's opulent art galleries and smart shops carrying an Old Master, a rare print, perhaps an antique Chinese porcelain vase or two under his arm.

No one bothered to say boo to him as he strolled out of the store with a silk Kashmir carpet which 10 minutes earlier had been nailed to the floor of Harrod's rug department.

But the 33-year-old part-time art teacher and painter came to an ignominious end when he was spotted taking $13 worth of liquid dishwashing soap and floor polish without paying for it.

He failed to make his getaway on a bicycle, one of four he used.

Jeakings was sentenced to three years in prison, ordered to pay $3,000 toward the cost of prosecution, and $1,000 toward his legal aid after pleading guilty Tuesday to 23 offenses of theft in central London from May 31, 1975 to last Jan. 24 when his spree came to an end.

"I walked into some of those places and out again with the most incredible things and the assistants never saw me," Jeakings told Britain's domestic news agency, the Press Association. "At times — and I know this sounds strange — I felt invisible. The invisible man."

Some 1,100 stolen items worth $180,000 were recovered from his London apartment by police. An "exhibition" was held at Marylebone Police station and experts from London's top art galleries and stores were invited to view the merchandise and identify their property.

Among the stolen items were:

- A William Blake watercolor valued at $34,000 stolen from an Old Bond Street gallery.
- Original etchings by Albrecht Durer, James Whistler, Graham Sutherland and David Hockney.
- A Picasso print worth $14,000.
- Prints by Henry Moore, Whistler and Augustus John.
- Three porcelain Minton plaques, a Minton flask and a Minton vase, total value $12,500.

Jeakings told detectives he carried away the stolen items on his bicycle, chiding them by adding, "And when did you last stop a man on a bike to see if he was carrying any stolen goods?"

Police asked him how he managed to steal so many things and get away with it for so long.

"I just walk in and take them," he replied. "It is really easy. Once I was after a piece and I was waiting for the guard to go away. But he wouldn't go away so I just picked it up and walked off with it in front of him."

"If you have got the nerve you can get away with anything," he boasted. "I like nice things around me. Why not have the best when it doesn't cost anything anyway?"

Jeakings' love of the good life extended to his wardrobe — silk shirts and 40 cashmere sweaters — and to his television and recording equipment, which were top of the line.

Construction Rate Continues To Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Construction activity continued unabated throughout the nation during August, unchanged from July and about 10 percent higher than a year ago, a private industry survey shows.

The monthly survey by F. W. Dodge released Tuesday showed that new contracts for both residential and non-residential sectors in August came to $15.6 billion after a seasonal adjustment.

F. W. Dodge is a division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co. which specializes in building contract information. The Dodge index of construction activity for August was 289 compared with 286 in July and 249 in June. The index is based on a 1967 base of 100.

The survey for August showed new contracts for non-residential and commercial building valued at $3.94 billion, up 7 percent from a year earlier and residential construction valued at $6.91 billion, up 12 percent from a year earlier.

You and the Law

Presented by the State Bar of Texas

Q: I ordered Christmas cards and have not received them. I have asked the lady who sold them to refund my money, but she has not kept her promises to do so. How can I get my money back?

A: Any claim involving a dispute of $150 or less in money can be taken before a small claims court. You may contact your local justice of the peace for information on how to file such a suit. If a suit is properly filed, the court will issue a citation to be served on the defendant. A trial can be held before the justice of the peace of a jury if one is requested. A lawyer is not required to present your case in small claims court.

Q: I have been divorced for three years and have custody of our three-year-old daughter. What can I do to see that she is not given to my ex-husband in case of my death? Also, how hard would it be to have my new husband adopt my daughter?

A: At the death of a parent who has custody of a child from a divorced marriage, the other parent has a paramount right to the custody of the child. This right can be denied only by presentation of evidence showing it is not in the best interest of the child to be placed in the custody of the surviving parent. This right of the surviving parent cannot be taken away by a provision in a will. If your second husband wishes to adopt your daughter, a court must first terminate the parental rights of the child's father.

Q: I recently learned I may inherit some land and I'm wondering what would be involved in selling it. Would I have to pay inheritance tax and income tax if I sold land I inherited?

A: Federal and state death tax laws provide various exemptions and rates for persons who may be liable for taxes. If the estate is taxable, tax law provides that payment of the tax is secured by a lien on all property in the estate, including land. The sale of inherited property also is included in income tax laws, and the question of whether the sale resulted in tax liability would depend on the total income tax status of the person filing out the tax return.

Send your question to "You and the Law," State Bar of Texas, P.O. Box 12487, Austin, 78711. Answers may appear in columns in hypothetical terms; personal answers not possible.

Commission May Limit RV Parking

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche Journal Staff
The Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday will consider placing restrictions on where recreational vehicles can be parked.

After receiving a number of complaints about recreational vehicles like campers being parked in yards, the commission asked the city staff to survey city residents to determine whether there was enough interest in an ordinance restricting the vehicles in some manner.

The city mailed out 51,000 survey cards in water bills asking if citizens have a neighbor who parks a recreational or commercial vehicle beside his house, in the front yard or in front of his house.

Residents also were asked if they think an ordinance is needed to regulate where such vehicles may park and, if so, where they should be parked.

Commissioners also will discuss relaxing the zone restrictions on convenience store gas sales and self-service gas stations.

The commission forwarded a recommendation to the city council which would have permitted convenience store gas sales in a local retail (C-2) zone.

However, council members sent the recommendation back to the commission on Aug. 24 with a request that all self-service gas sales be treated equally in the zoning ordinance.

Zone change requests to be considered by the commission include:
-The request of Bill Fry for a change from single family (R-1) to two family (R-2) on property south of 79th Street and east of Avenue F.

-The request of J.D. Badley for a change from R-1 to R-2 south of 87th Street and west of Avenue X.

-The request of Durwood Bolton representing Wayne Pierce for a change from family apartment (A-1) to local retail (C-2) to permit the construction of a doughnut shop west of Slide Road and north of 38th Street.

-The request of A.E. Quest Jr. for A.E. Quest & Sons, Inc., for a change from R-2 to commercial (C-4) north of East 35th Street and west of Cedar Avenue.

-The request of Phillip W. Johnson for William Cromer for a change from R-1 to C-4 north of 2nd Street and West of Santa Fe Drive to permit the construction of a fast food restaurant.

-The request of Billy Meeks for Tara Land Company to change from R-1 to R-2, A-1 to high density apartment (A-2) and general retail (C-3).

-The request of Jerry B. Nichols to change from C-3 to C-4 south of Clovis Road and west of Avenue U to permit a use car lot.

-The request of Lloyd Croslin Jr. for Truett W. Flache and Sue Flache Paris to change from R-1 to A-1 north of 66th Street and west of Slide Road to allow construction of an apartment project.

D-FW Officials Present Offer

DALLAS (UPI) — American Airlines is being offered a $125 million proposal Dallas and Fort Worth officials hope it can't refuse.

The Dallas-Fort Worth Airport Board and Fort Worth City Council Tuesday both approved a plan where the D-FW Airport would issue the revenue bonds to buy 325 acres of land adjacent to the airport and build American's new headquarters. American would then lease the facility from the airport at a price sufficient to retire the bonds.

The Dallas City Council was expected today to give its consent to the offer.

The airline and not the taxpayers would be footing the bill, said Ernest Dean, executive director of the airport.

"When you get all the dollars shuffled back and forth, we're not out anything, he cities aren't out anything. American is paying the bill," he said.

The cities have asked in a letter sent to its chairman, Albert Casey, that American make a decision on the proposal by Dec. 1.

American currently has its headquarters in New York, but has been looking for many months at the possibility of moving to the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

At one time, American, according to Casey, was also considering Chicago as a possible relocation site, but a Chicago business publication has quoted the airline official as saying Chicago had been ruled out.

The headquarters would be constructed on land located in the southwest corner of the intersection of State Highways 183 and 360. It includes buildings already leased by Fort Worth to American for its pilot and stewardess training schools.

Cities Receive Housing Grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government granted some $264 million to 67 cities Tuesday to aid severely depressed public housing projects as part of President Carter's urban policy.

Patricia Harris, secretary of housing and urban development, said the funds will help "to restore rundown public housing projects and revitalize neighborhoods, particularly in large urban areas."

"In the past the solution to distressed housing projects was to demolish them," Mrs. Harris said at a news conference. "This is not the approach of this administration. Quite often, these projects can be turned around to provide an atmosphere in which the disadvantaged can live with pride and integrity."

Nearly $259 million of the money will go to 33 public housing authorities to upgrade projects that fall far below what HUD considers acceptable conditions.

Such work will include structural changes, conversions to lower density, overall upgrading of buildings and grounds, improvements to project security, improved management and "innovative approaches to give tenants a sense of 'belonging,'" Mrs. Harris said.

An additional $5 million will be used by 34 other public housing authorities to help install or modernize a budgeting system to help HUD collect data to be used in establishing management performance standards for all public housing authorities.

Recipients of the grants included: Los Angeles County, $11.6 million to upgrade Carmelitos Housing Project in Long Beach, $350,000 for management improvements.

San Francisco County, $9 million to revitalize Hunter's Point housing complex, $350,000 for management improvements.

SPEAKS TO CROWD — Actress Bette Davis used a bullhorn to speak to a crowd at New York's Columbus Circle recently. Miss Davis was on hand as Paramount Pictures handed out 500,000 movie ad flyers to some 500 people who distributed them throughout the city to promote movies. The flyer contained a list of Paramount Pictures playing in New York, including "Death on the Nile" starring Miss Davis. (AP Laserphoto)

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER: Glad You Asked That!

Richard Lamparski (creator of the "Whatever Became Of..." books) answers a few questions:

Q: Who was the original "Trixie" in Jackie Gleason's "Honeymooners"?
A: She was Joyce Randolph, born Joyce Siroia in Detroit, Oct. 21, 1925. Of Finnish descent, Joyce spent a year on the road in "Abbie's Irish Rose."

Q: What was the first MGM feature that had any dialogue? And who was the star?
A: William Haines in 1928. The film was titled "Alias Jimmy Valentine."

Q: We know Polly Bergen was once married to (and divorced from) showbiz tycoon Freddie Fields. But who was she married to before that?
A: Sometimes-Western actor Jerome Courtland. Since he divorced Polly in 1955, Courtland married again, squired five sons — and is also a producer at the Walt Disney Studios.

Q: Where was "Farina" of "Our Gang" discovered? And what was his real name?
A: Allen Clayton Hoskins was discovered by director Robert McGowan in the Watts area of Los Angeles. Farina (who doesn't like cereals) lives today with his wife and six children in Hayward, Calif.

Q: Where did one-time movie star Ruth Terry get her name?
A: From two superstars of her era, Babe Ruth of the Yankees and Bill Terry of the New York Giants.

Q: Did Joan Crawford ever make any silent movies?
A: Two. Both opposite Tim McCoy in 1927.

Q: What does gifted writer William Saroyan think about his fame? — Jonathan Little, Lancaster, Pa.

A: "I'm great," he says. "And I'm proud to be great. Its quite a responsibility. I might have been a car thief!" An untutored, highly personal writer, Saroyan is also a prodigiously prolific one (more than 500 short stories between 1934 and 1940). His output includes stories, plays, novels and much nostalgic autobiography.

The flamboyant Armenian was born Aug. 31, 1908 in Fresno. He began life in an orphanage. The first of his nostalgic autobiographical excursions ("The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze") was written in 1934. He's since unleashed a flood of sentimental Saroyanisms about life, love and the pursuit of joy. "I think the great happiness you have is knowing you don't necessarily require happiness," he once observed.

Despite his prolific pen, Saroyan once shrugged: "Don't expect to write with intelligence. Just write... Any way will do."

Q: Are Barbara Walters and Jane Pauley sisters? — E. Myers, Waskom, Tex.
A: No. Though they are definite sound-alikes, they are definitely not sisters.

Q: Do men have more ulcer attacks than women? — J.T.W. Milwaukee.
A: Used to. But the women are catching up. Thirty years ago, the male-female ulcer rate was 20 to 1. Now it's 2 to 1. Some of the causes are cigarettes, alcohol, caffeine and aspirin.

Iowa Becomes Pork Capital Of America

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Poet-author-historian Carl Sandberg once described Chicago as "hog butcher to the world." But these days, Iowa produces most of the nation's bacon.

"Order a pork chop or buy a ham almost anywhere in the United States and there's a good chance the meat came from a hog slaughtered and processed in Iowa," State Extension Economist Marv Skadberg says.

With the dispersal of livestock marketing centers and new modes of transportation, including over-the-road trucks, Chicago's status as a livestock center declined and the "hog butcher" description was absorbed by Iowa, Skadberg said.

"Almost one-fourth of the nation's pork is slaughtered in the state," he said. Skadberg said chances are even better the ham was processed by a firm with facilities in Iowa. Only one of the nation's 14 largest hog slaughtering and processing firms does not have a plant in the state.

"About 18.6 million head of swine were slaughtered and processed in Iowa in 1977, more hogs than in the next four leading states combined," he said.

Most of the butchering is done at 25 federally inspected facilities scattered throughout the state. Twenty of the plants handle an average of more than 900,000 head a year, compared to a national average of only 60,000 for federally inspected plants. Only five of the 25 plants in Iowa slaughter fewer than 100,000 heads annually.

Iowa's abundance of slaughtering firms gives pork producers a wide variety of marketing options, Skadberg said. In 1977, Iowa farmers got about $1.8 billion in cash receipts from hogs and the slaughtering firms generate another $260 million to $280 million for Iowa's economy.

Almost 95 percent of the pork slaughtered and processed in Iowa is consumed elsewhere. More than 3 billion pounds of pork carcasses and processed pork products leave the state annually.

"You might," he said, "call Iowa the nation's hog butcher. And it might stay that way since the pork slaughtering and processing industry in the state is keeping up to date."

Public Radio Joins Celebration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized folk festivals in this country are observing a golden anniversary in 1978, and National Public Radio stations are celebrating with a program being aired this week and next.

The program traces the history of such festivals with recordings — some dating back to the Depression — many of them from the Library of Congress and public radio's own series "Folk Festival U.S.A.," which has been aired since 1974.

Featured musicians include Pete Seeger, Bob Dylan, the Kingston Trio, Bonnie Raitt, Mother Maybelle Carter, Arlo Guthrie, Leadbelly, Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs.

Four men specializing in folk offer commentaries. They are Ralph Rinzler, director of the Smithsonian Institution's Festival of American Folklife, which opens Wednesday; Joe Wilson, director of the National Council for Traditional Folk Arts; Alan Jabour, director of the

The program is an aural history of folk festivals, whose origins can be traced to settlement house gatherings at the turn of the century.

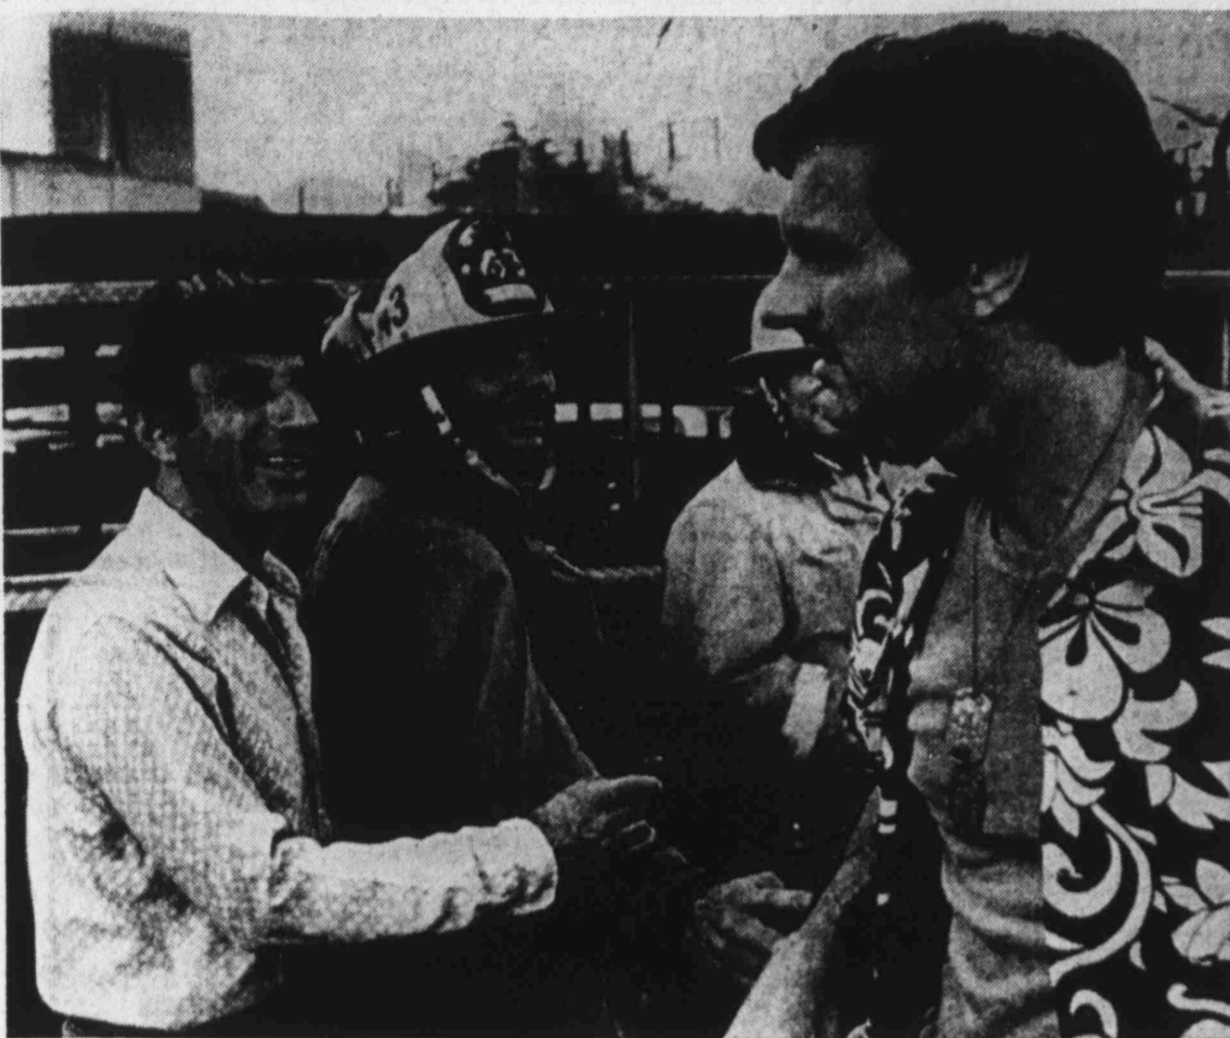

It was in 1928 that a North Carolina lawyer and amateur musician named Bascom Lamar Lunsford staged a festival for local singers, balladeers and cloggers. Six years later, a St. Louis recreation worker named Sarah Gertrude Knott used the same format for an ethnic gathering which was to become the first National Folk Festival.

Since then, the number of festivals has increased to more than 2,500 annually. Now they may be giant cultural samplers or small neighborhood events. The times have brought changes in the music, which now includes bluegrass, country, ragtime, blues and western swing.

By 1958 topical singers such as Bob Dylan began appearing on festival stages, and in 1967 hundreds of musicians and artists gathered at the Smithsonian's annual festival on the Mall here.

The 90-minute public radio program was taped and sent to the system's more than 200 stations, for airing between Oct. 1 and Oct. 14.

Censors At CBS Leave Strong Language In Airing Of Movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you dig powerful satire, catch CBS' airing of "Network" tonight. It's the Oscar-winning 1976 movie that not only savages network TV, but does so with mighty strong language.

Ironically, when the film came out, it was CBS' then-chief censor — Van Gordon Sauter — who first urged CBS to buy it, even though some bet the sun would rise in the West before any network would touch it.

"In terms of realism, the film is ludicrous," says Sauter, a former CBS newsman who now runs CBS-owned KNXT-TV here. "But the issues it raises are important for television viewers."

The film, by Paddy Chayefsky, a veteran of TV's Golden Age in the 1950s, is a black-humor broadside at networks and big business.

One big issue it raises: What occurs when a network's entertainment types invade the traditionally independent arena of network news.

The invasion starts after an alcoholic anchorman (played by the late Peter Finch) is told he's being fired because of low ratings.

The veteran newsman goes nuts. On his nightly show, he reveals his impending departure. And says he'll blow his brains out next week on his nationally televised program. Pandemonium erupts.

Soon, the network's glib, amoral entertainment chief (Faye Dunaway) senses a ratings gold mine in all this. She's given control of Finch's low-rated, but responsible, network news show.

She makes it a high-rated, garish variety-news hour starring the added anchorman, now billed as "The Mad Prophet." A TV mogul who confuses news with entertainment, she looks for TV thrills.

She even starts negotiations with the show-biz agents of a terrorist group (one radical is essayed by Walter Cronkite's daughter, Kathy) to air films the gang makes of its fund-raising bank holdups.

Wild, but the main reason it seemed no network would buy "Network" was its strong language, particularly the added anchor's repeated use of the word "bull—" in his first on-air outburst.

To air the word, some felt, not only would make TV history, but cause more uproar than in 1939, when "Gone With the Wind" had Rhett Butler advising: "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn."

But the vulgarity has popped up before on TV, in an NBC telecast of James Whitmore's one-man show about Harry S. Truman, according to Don O'Brien, now the top program standards man at CBS.

It pops up thrice in CBS' version of "Network," compared to 13 times in the original, he said, with the word twice uttered by Finch in his first outburst scene and once by Dunaway at a meeting.

In each instance, he emphasized, it wasn't left in gratuitously, but because it is an integral part of the motivation of the characters in the movie.

Does he expect a storm of protest about using the wicked word?

"I don't," he said. "I have to tell you, it (the film) was a tough edit, but it edited well and the movie is a good movie, a strong satire about this industry."

As far as he knows, no CBS affiliate has refused to air "Network," screened for them in advance with an explanation of why the word "bull—" remained in the edited-for-TV version of the film.

"Even the most conservative of them have come back and said they thought it was very well done and they will air it," he said.
