

Shots Jar Truce In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Sniper fire killed three persons trying to cross a Syrian-held bridge into the Christian sector of eastern Beirut today, the Christian-controlled Voice of Lebanon radio reported, but the cease-fire here generally appeared to be holding for a second day.

(A later Voice of Lebanon broadcast monitored in Cyprus said Syrian gunners had violated the Syrian-Christian cease-fire by shelling the coastal highway just north of East Beirut. That broadcast said seven persons had been killed and 17 wounded by Syrian snipers Sunday and today. The report could not be immediately confirmed elsewhere.)

Lebanese President Elias Sarkis, meanwhile, ended three days of urgent talks in Damascus with Syria's President Hafez Assad and left for Saudi Arabia and meetings with Saudi leaders.

Sarkis, whose Damascus talks produced the cease-fire, is trying to work out a permanent solution to the conflict here between the Christians and the Syrian-dominated peacekeeping force in Beirut, which is trying to assert control over and disarm the Christian militias. A token contingent from Saudi Arabia is part of the Arab League force.

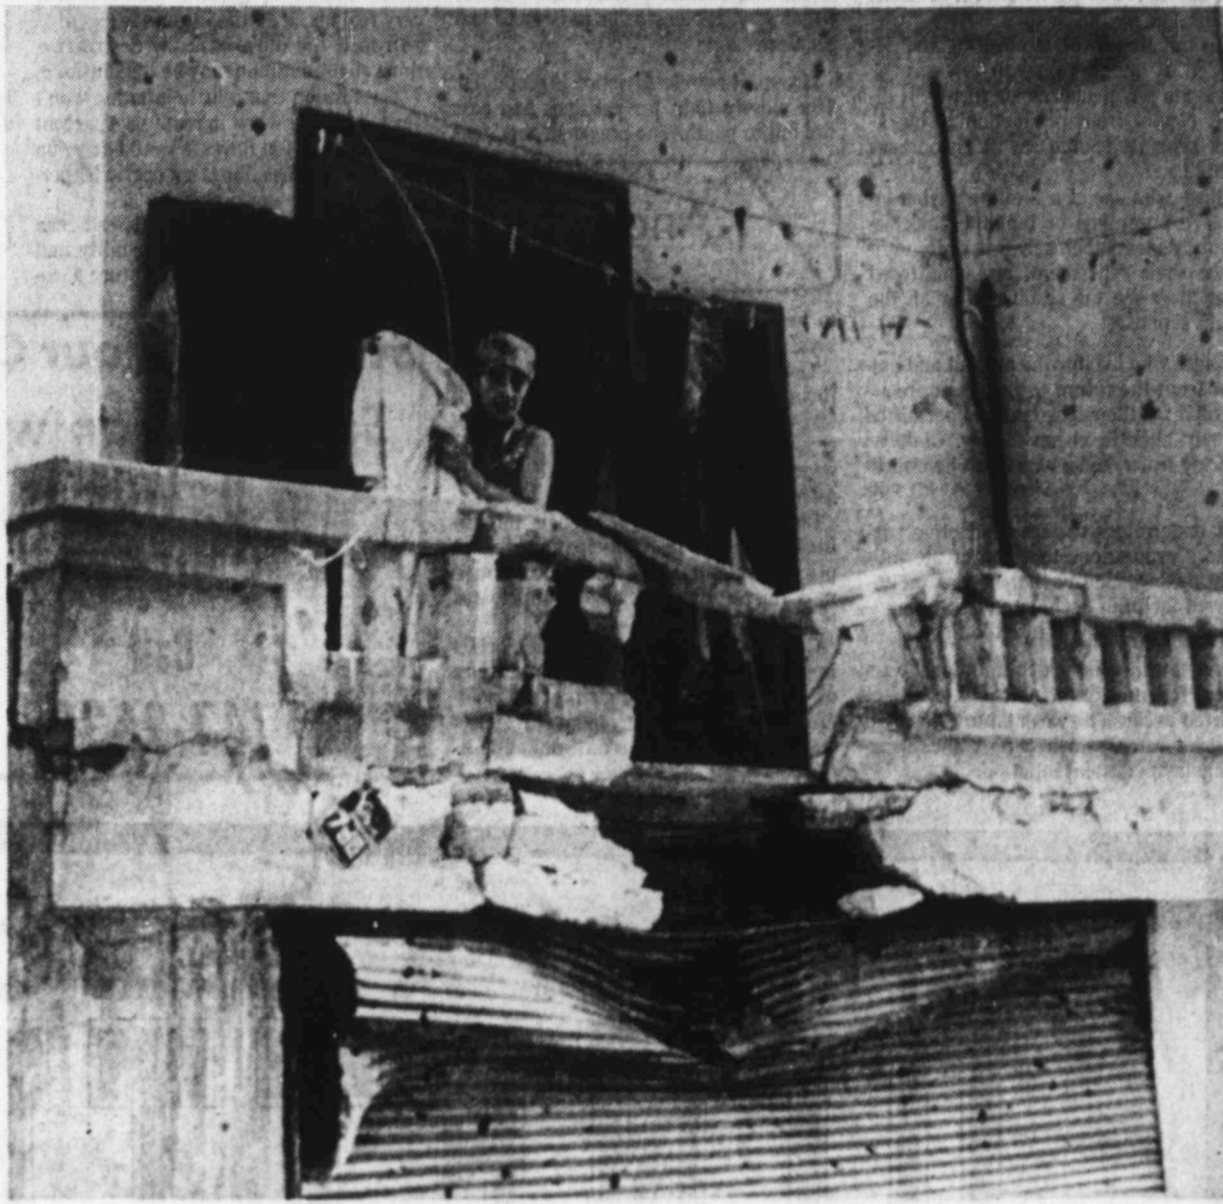

The Voice of Lebanon, Beirut's Christian radio station, said the city had its second quiet night in a row after 10 days of heavy fighting between Syrian troops and Christian militiamen. But it said that early this morning "Syrian snipers" killed three persons and wounded another in the Qarantina Bridge area while they were trying to enter East Beirut.

The only cease-fire violation reported Sunday was sniper fire that broke out at the bridge as hundreds of fleeing Christian families were trying to get across it. After that flurry of shots, all main crossroads between Christian and Moslem areas were closed, and the Syrians blocked supply columns bound for the Christian areas.

The Syrian-held bridge is on the supply route to East Beirut from the Christian port of Jounieh, 15 miles to the north. The bridge area was the scene of some of the heaviest of last week's fighting as the Christian militias made repeated attempts to recapture it and open the supply line.

(The Israeli news media, quoting military sources in Israel, reported that the Syrians called in two brigades of Palestinian guerrillas to reinforce the Syrian lines ringing the Christian neighborhoods of Beirut. The report could not be confirmed elsewhere.)

Senators Endanger Huge Tax Cut Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tax relief for Americans was held hostage today as senators, fearful their favorite bills were about to die in the closing days of the 95th Congress, tried to tie their legislation to the tax cut bill.

Congressional leaders expressed doubt that a parliamentary maneuver later in the day would succeed in its aim of barring non-tax amendments from the tax bill. But if the effort fails, said Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, Congress might have to abandon plans to adjourn for the year on Saturday.

Because of the political appeal of a big tax cut less than a month before the November elections, it would be premature to predict that Congress will quit without passing the tax bill.

In the midst of debate on non-tax matters, senators agreed to vote in mid-afternoon on an amendment by Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., that would give elderly persons a tax credit of up to $75 to help pay their rising fuel costs.

Before the tax bill can be passed, senators must find a way to trim the measure, which now totals nearly $30 billion, to fit the budget ceiling set by Congress. And some of the most controversial items, such as taxes on capital gains, have yet to be considered.

Once the bill is passed by the Senate, it will go to a conference committee with the House which will reconcile differences between the $30 billion Senate measure and the $16.3 billion tax cut voted by the House.

With adjournment of Congress near, senators are looking for safe bills to which to attach such measures as the Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill, legislation to control rising hospital costs and a measure that would require periodic review — and possibly repeal — of most federal programs and such "tax expenditures" as interest deductions and child care credits.

Sponsors reason that if their favorite projects can be added to the politically popular tax bill, they have a good chance of getting them into law.

"We can't permit this tax bill to be held hostage for every idea that somebody hopes can get a majority vote in the Senate," said Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and floor manager of the tax measure.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, sponsor of the "sunset" measure that would require periodic review of federal programs and tax breaks, said he has "tried the nice-guy route" of not tying his bill to something else.

OPEC Hurls New Threat Of Cutbacks

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Officials of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries today threatened to cut back oil supplies to industrialized nations unless they help OPEC countries develop refining capacity and share world markets in petrochemical products.

Kuwaiti Oil Minister Ali Khalifa al-Sabah, chairman of a three-day OPEC seminar on "Downstream Operations in OPEC Member Countries — Prospects and Problems," said industrialized countries were discouraging and obstructing OPEC countries from participating in the making of finished petroleum products.

If that practice continues, he said, OPEC countries may be forced to tie the quantity of crude oil they sell to industrialized countries to the quantity of finished petroleum products OPEC countries are allowed to sell in industrialized countries.

The warning was repeated in a speech by OPEC Secretary-General Ali Jaidah. None of the OPEC officials specified the finished products they had in mind, but apparently they are interested in a whole range of crude oil derivatives, including gasoline, lubricants and industrial petrochemical products.

In his address, the Kuwaiti minister said that through market restrictions industrialized countries are keeping OPEC countries from "going downstream," or participating in the making of finished petroleum products.

He cited as impediments imposed by the advanced countries the high cost of licenses for transfer of technical know-how needed by OPEC countries.

"Access of the finished products to the markets of the industrialized countries is another obstacle to the development of downstream investment industry. Not only are there quantitative quotas, but the tariffs are high enough to wipe out any refining margins and even turn a healthy profit situation into a losing proposition."

"These restrictions and attitudes will not be pacifically accepted by OPEC. It may not be long before the removal of such practices becomes a condition to the supply of crude oil."

The minister said it would be better if these problems were resolved through dialogue rather than confrontation.

Guido Brunner, energy commissioner for the European Common Market, said in a speech to the seminar that OPEC should not push its refinery capacity with an eye to higher exports to Common Market countries.

Brunner said it would be difficult for the Common Market to absorb significantly greater amounts of imports of refined oil products. He said that because of the slackness and lack of profitability on world markets, oil-producing countries "may well not wish to commit heavy investments in export-oriented refinery projects until the market recovers and economic prospects for such investment become brighter..."

Officials of the U.S. Department of Energy had no comment.

But John Lichtblau, executive director of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, an industry group, warned that an OPEC move into refining contains "the seeds of an economic conflict."

Lichtblau made the remarks in an article in the September issue of OPEC Review, an OPEC journal which publishes opinions both favorable and unfavorable to the cartel.

"Irrespective of relative locational advantages or disadvantages, exporting oil products is a very different business from exporting crude oil," said Lichtblau.

Office Held In Protest

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Twenty members of a Dutch group calling itself the Red Resistance Front occupied the Amsterdam office of Amnesty International today to protest the alleged mistreatment of three West German terrorists held in Dutch jails.

They demanded that the London-based human rights organization publicly condemn what they called the "isolation" of Knut Folkerts, Christoph Wackernagel and Gerd Schneider.

Amnesty International employees were allowed to leave the offices, but the unarmed demonstrators refused to allow anybody back. Police said there were no immediate plans to end the occupation.

Folkerts was captured in September last year after killing a policeman in the city of Utrecht.

Angry Justice Of Peace May Reduce Workload

By BOB CAMPBELL

Avalanche-Journal Staff
Reacting angrily to the failure of county commissioners to give his office another secretary, Justice of the Peace Charles Smith today indicated he might cut back his workload as a result.

Smith had told the court he needed a full-time secretary to replace the CETA or federally financed one he lost recently, and Commissioner Alton Brazzell said he would not approve a fifth secretary because the county could not afford it.

"All right, I've got a question, and I'll put it to you, Mr. Brazzell," Smith said, leaning forward with his arms on the table.

"If it's a money-making proposition, then what's the gripe?"

Brazzell said he had voted against giving Tax Assessor-Collector Russell Hardin six more temporary staff members for the tax season — the action was taken over his objection — and would vote against any other such measures.

Smith contended that JP secretaries more than pay the cost of their salaries in extra business handled and extra business generated.

Brazzell noted that a salaried JP for Precinct No. 5, the Wolforth area, will take office Jan. 1 and might relieve some of the workload.

"All right, gentlemen," Smith said after no action was taken on his request.

He called a 2 p. m. news conference for today and indicated he might announce a work reduction.

"We're a month behind now," he told newsmen. "We've got stuff piled up on the floor."

County Judge Rodrick Shaw indicated during the discussion that he would favor giving Smith another secretary because the additional work she could handle would generate more revenue for the county.

Smith said his office was producing $1. See COUNTY HASSLE Page 14

A-J Police Reporter Now Crime Statistic

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

I've been robbed!
What a way for a police reporter to learn more about his beat. Technically, it was burglary rather than robbery. But "I've been burglarized" doesn't seem to sound as bad as I feel.

It was about 1:30 a. m. today when I returned home and discovered about everything of value missing. Until last night, I had lost very little sleep over the numerous burglary reports I read daily at the police department and sheriff's office.

Last night was different. The two major items gone are a color television set and a stereo system. The stereo was a gift marking my graduation from the University of Texas — the school whose football team I saw crushed in Dallas by a powerful University of Oklahoma squad.

The trip really wasn't worth the consequences. Never a day goes by when newspaper readers can't find a story about some guy being victimized by a burglar. Missing from the stories is the shock experienced by the victim.

The immediate reaction is the sickening feeling that a leech on society has been in your place. They've walked through your home committing a deed which decent people would not dream of doing.

If I had walked in during the crime, how far would they have gone to keep from getting caught?

What have I ever done to them? What would I do to them if I found out who it was?

These questions, along with countless others, actually drown out the worry of what was lost.

If not for a neighbor who noticed a screen off a window and who went in to see if anything was missing, I would have been the first to confront the aftermath of a break-in.

Instead, police had been contacted, a report filed and the place locked up again.

The friend left a note where the television set used to be. Part of it read: "I don't know why this had to happen to you."

HIGHLY MOBILE SOCIETY — Philosophers have always lamented that nothing is permanent or certain in this world, except death and taxes. They'd probably be even more upset with today's highly mobile society where, it appears, even houses unexpectedly get up and walk off. At least this one on 34th Street was more considerate than most, leaving a note about its future location for those who might be concerned. (Staff Photo by Dennis Copeland)

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Monday, Oct. 9, the 282nd day of 1978 with 83 to follow.

This is Columbus Day by federal proclamation (although it traditionally falls on Oct. 12).

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

American evangelist Aimee McPherson was born Oct. 9, 1890.

On this day in history:

In 1701, Yale College — now Yale University — was founded.

In 1910, forest fires in northern Minnesota destroyed six towns with a loss of 400 lives and damage estimated at $100 million.

In 1934, King Alexander of Yugoslavia was assassinated by a Croatian terrorist during a state visit to France.

In 1975, Andrei Sakharov, father of the Soviet hydrogen bomb, became the first Russian citizen to win the Nobel Peace Prize.

A thought for the day: American novelist Willa Cather said, "No one can build his security upon the nobleness of another person."

Dry Skin Causes Elderly Itching

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The most common skin complaint among the elderly is itching, with or without a rash, according to an article in RN Magazine.

The article, written by Thelma Wells, assistant professor of nursing at the University of Rochester School of Nursing, says the itching can be touched off by a variety of causes, including drug reactions, disease, parasitic infestation or emotional strain.

The most frequent cause, however, is dry skin, it said.

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone dwells upon the financial consequences of inflation but rarely do we think of it in terms of morality.

But inflation involves cheating and deception. It inverts values. It rewards the profligate and penalizes the thrifty. It diverts capital from production to quick-buck schemes. Some say it encourages gambling.

Those who spend a lifetime paying insurance premiums or building bank accounts, denying themselves in order to finance their retirement, are embittered when they see the results. After all the bright promises.

Those who live for the present and borrow from the future to finance it are rewarded for their foresight and permitted to pay back in cheap money. Children quickly learn the lesson: Don't be a sucker.

It undermines various productive pursuits. Corporations that can create jobs only by investing capital in new or improved facilities decline to do so because inflation makes the future too risky.

New businesses, which traditionally account for most of the new jobs, can't get started because they can't afford the high interest rates, which almost always accompany persistent inflation.

Many companies, including the best, sometimes react to rising prices by cutting quality and quantity. Inferior ingredients and smaller portions are offered; either way, the customer pays more and gets less.

Group, if not class friction is promoted. The elderly fight for pensions and pass the bill to youth. The president threatens and gets less.

Analysis

to veto a tax cut provision because, he says, it benefits the wealthy.

The rich can live with inflation, although it cuts into their assets. But the loss to the rich is often measured in luxuries, rather than in the necessities of the poor, such as a meal. A moral issue? It seems so.

Labor-management friction is intensified by inflation. Anticipating higher prices, workers raise demands. And business raises prices because it anticipates higher wages or controls.

Controls, the demand for which arises in proportion to the duration and severity of inflation, present other moral considerations: black markets, phony price lists and disrespect for governmental authority.

Inflation results in higher taxes, because people are pushed into higher income brackets. The illusion of greater income, therefore, becomes subject to a very real tax. Yes, the illusion is taxed!

In fact, the most basically destructive thing about inflation may be the illusion.

The illusion that a little inflation won't hurt anything, when in reality a 4 percent inflation rate for 10 years would drive up the cost of most things by nearly 50 percent.

The illusions that you can spend now and worry later, that responsibility and thrift do not count, that the future automatically takes care of itself, that people are owed a living...

...that the government should spend as much as is needed to overcome whatever problem might be of immediate importance, no matter what the cost...that the government can simply print money to pay for it.

Eventually, as has been shown in other nations, prolonged inflation promotes cynicism, and sometimes it undermines not only the currency but the nation's institutions, including its government.

Essentially and eventually, it's a moral issue.

Spiraling Interest Rates Likely To Continue Upward Trend

By CHET CURRIER
NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street analysts report little success lately in their search for a peak in interest rates.

There was a time several weeks ago when many observers thought a break in the upward spiral of borrowing costs might be at hand.

But then the dollar ran into new problems, growth of the money supply accelerated again, and before long the Federal Reserve was taking further steps to encourage open-market money rates to rise.

Now most analysts seem to agree that those rates are likely to climb further in the near future, raising the prospect of a 10 percent prime lending rate.

At the end of last week the basic rate banks charge on blue-chip loans stood at 9 3/4 percent, its highest level in more than 3 1/2 years.

Short-term rates have risen nearly 4 full percentage points since the end of 1976, the economic consulting firm of A. Gary Shilling Co. noted.

"These increases have in part been the consequence of ongoing economic expansion accompanied by growing credit demands, but they have been magnified by both the upsurge in inflation and Federal Reserve attempts to impose monetary restraint," the firm said.

"We are convinced that these factors — strong demand for funds, inflation, the Federal Reserve — will propel interest rates, particularly short-term rates, higher over the next six months and perhaps beyond."

For the longer term, the firm sees cause for some optimism in what it says may be "the beginnings of a credible anti-inflation program" in Washington, stressing more conservative federal budgets.

"Should a meaningful set of anti-inflation measures become a reality, interest rates could peak by the middle of next year even with sustained economic growth."

A less sanguine projection — no peak in rates until early 1980 — comes from economists at New York's Citibank, who point out that the Fed "hasn't been very effective" in slowing monetary growth.

Forecasting interest rates, like predicting the stock market, is a notoriously chancy proposition. Scrambling the picture even more for investors lately has been the fact that the reaction of stock prices to rising interest rates has become increasingly erratic.

Higher interest rates, it used to be thought, almost always mean a decline in stock prices because they put a damper on the economy and draw money out of stocks into interest-bearing investments.

"For longer than anyone really expected, the market seemed to bithely discount the rise in interest rates," the brokerage firm of Smith Barney, Harris Upham Co. noted.

"Initially, the higher rates were perceived as a positive development, designed to bolster the sagging U.S. dollar and to tackle speeding inflation. More expensive credit could be tolerated temporarily if it meant a healthier investment environment later.

"But market participants are getting edgy. Interest rates keep getting higher, the dollar seems no stronger, and inflation no less stubborn."

Smith Barney analysts, which acknowledging that "excessive money supply growth is giving credit policymakers a tough time," nevertheless maintain that a top in short-term interest rates is in prospect by yearend.

Television Imports Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imports of televisions, radios and stereos increased 16 percent in the first half of the year, but most of the new imports were not from Japan, the leading supplier, the Commerce Department says.

Japan signed an agreement last year with the United States to limit sales of its color televisions to the United States.

Since then, Taiwan, Korea and Canada have filled the gap, the report showed.

Imports of all electronic audio and video products in the January-June period amounted to $2.1 billion, a 16.6 percent increase over the $1.8 billion in the first six months of last year, the department said recently.

"Imports from Japan, the leading foreign supplier, increased a nominal $11.6 million to a $1.2 billion total with a consequent decline in Japan's share of the U.S. import market from 65.2 percent to 58 percent," the department said.

Imports of complete color televisions from Japan dropped 36.5 percent to 695,000 sets.

"The sharp downturn ... is directly attributable to the color television orderly marketing agreement concluded with Japan, effective July 1, 1977," the department said.

Taiwan doubled its sales to the United States to 280,000 sets compared to the first half of last year. Korea sold 117,000 sets and Canada 103,000. Both had negligible sales last year.

However, Taiwanese and U.S. officials currently are negotiating to restrict Taiwan's sales in this country.

The report also showed that imports of citizens band radios plunged from 5.1 million radios in the first six months of 1977 to 1.7 million this year.

The Carter administration has placed tariffs on the radios but the dropoff also was attributed to reduced demand.

Imports of video tape players, almost entirely from Japan, soared from 46,000 in the first half of last year to 226,000 in the same period this year.

Japanese Firm To Construct Florida Plant

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — An unidentified Japanese automaker will build a full-scale manufacturing plant in Florida, state officials said recently.

Jim Cooney, Florida director of economic development, said the plant — the first car plant in Florida and the first Japanese auto plant in the United States — will be built at Jacksonville.

Cooney refused to divulge the name of the company, saying the firm was expected to make its formal announcement at the Oct. 21-22 meeting in Disney World of the Southeast United States-Japan Association.

The major Japanese automakers are Toyota, Nissan (which makes Datsuns), Honda, Mitsubishi (which makes the Dodge Colt), Mazda and Subaru.

Nissan and Toyota, the two largest Japanese car exporters, have expressed interest in the past about possibly building a U.S. plant. Nissan sent a delegation to the United States in the spring to explore manufacturing possibilities in this country.

Cooney also refused to say when the plant might be built, or how many workers would be employed there.

Volkswagen is now the only foreign automaker with a plant in the United States. It builds Rabbit models at a facility in western Pennsylvania.

Japanese automakers have been hurt this year as the rising value of the Japanese yen has forced them to raise U.S. prices. Establishment of a United States plant could partially offset that damage.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL: The City's Traffic War

LUBBOCK MAYOR Dirk West's announcement of a traffic crackdown in the City should be of interest to every motorist in town. At least the mayor implied as much.
For those who obey the law, there should be the feeling that perhaps the streets will be a little safer.
For those who violate it—particularly habitual offenders and drunk drivers—the warning has gone out.

though quiet, law-abiding and sensible otherwise, for some reason turn into demons behind the wheel of their cars.
Lubbock has chalked up 21 months of some of the worst carnage on City streets of any city its size in the United States.
A total of 81 persons have died in 70 traffic mishaps in that period.

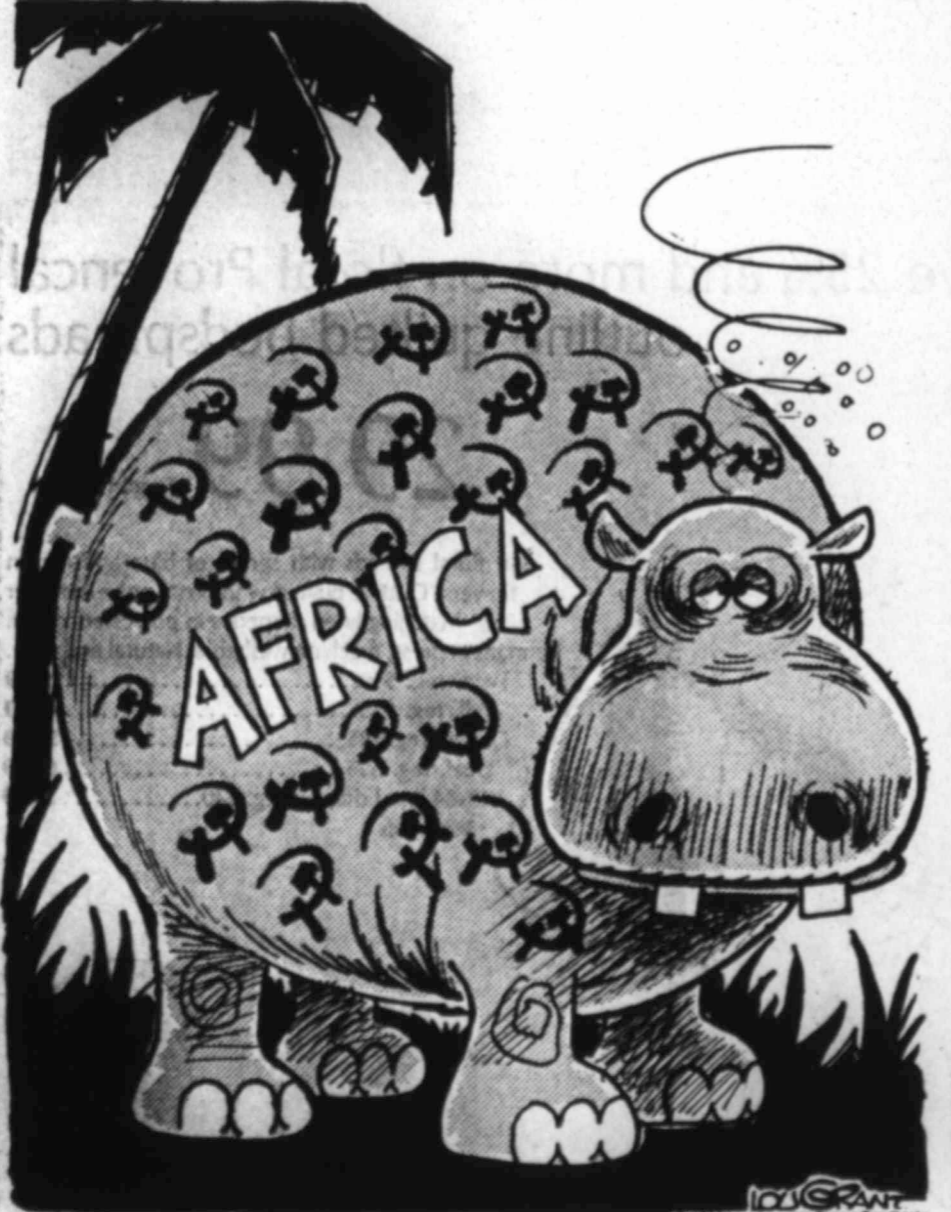

MAYOR WEST summed it up in these words:
"No gimmicks. No appeals. No clever ideas. The program we're launching today is simple—either obey the law, drive right—or you pay the price."
The price, for the repeat offenders and drunk drivers, will be much stiffer fines, the maximum in many instances.
That word also has gone out to those who mete out the punishment.
Will the new stepped up program—carrying the name STEP—Selective Traffic Enforcement Program—work? That will depend upon those most affected by it.

DURING THE past year, the City's traffic toll was the worst in the nation on a per capita basis—51 dead.
The Mayor observed that the City might set some sort of record in giving out traffic tickets in its new stepped up program.
At the risk of sounding a word of caution and without taking back any of the support we offer the Mayor, we suggest that the tickets be given to the more drastic offenders to start with.
Some cities, including Lubbock, in the past, have equated a rash of tickets given for going 35 and 40 in 30-mph zones, or 50 in a 45 mph zone as traffic enforcement.
The goal should be to zero in on the speeders—those going 60, 70 and 80 mph on city streets, those who drive dangerously and recklessly, those who run red lights, those who drink and drive. Those should be the first priorities.
If this is done, then the numbers will mean something, both in traffic tickets and lives saved.

IT IS NO secret that Lubbock has more than its share of "don't give a damn" drivers.
It also has those who often and flagrantly use the city's streets as drag strips.
And it has its share of persons who, although quiet, law-abiding and sensible otherwise, for some reason turn into demons behind the wheel of their cars.

Epidemic

Paul Scott:

Peace Paid For By The Gallon

WASHINGTON—U.S. motorists are going to foot the bill for the "framework for peace in the Middle East" worked out at Camp David.
The secret part of the historic agreement was the political-financial crowbar that broke the Camp David deadlock, permitting President Anwar El Sadat of Egypt to sign the accord with Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel.
This still undisclosed "arrangement," worked out by President Carter and King Khalid of Saudi Arabia in an exchange of confidential cables during the closing days of the Summit, provides for the end of the current freeze on world oil prices and acceptance by the Carter administration of a 10 percent increase in oil prices beginning early in 1979.
That's the huge price that President Carter paid to get Saudi Arabia's backing—and thus that of President Sadat—for the unexpected Middle East breakthrough.

pressures, and the Carter administration's slowness to react against growing Russian-Cuban military moves.
To take advantage of tense relations with Moscow experienced both by Syria and Iraq since this spring, the number two man in the House of Saud after King Khalid, Crown Prince Fahd, jetted through the Middle East this summer calling for a new Arab summit.
THE CROWN PRINCE went as far as Bonn and Paris to convince both Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and President Valery Giscard d'Estaing to join in a new military and economic alliance capable of halting the Russian expansion.
In these private talks, the Saudi leader frankly told these heads of government that with the U.S. failing to make any meaningful moves to stop the Soviets that his government would have to take action and that this would cost billions.
Government insiders report that President Carter agreed to the oil price hike after King Khalid sent word that failure of the Camp David summit would push the Saudis—and ultimately the Arab world—into radical realignment.
The added oil revenues will permit the Saudis to woo pro-Soviet Arab governments such as Iraq and Syria with financial assistance and other Arab countries with agreement to allow greater oil price increases than the 5 percent anticipated for January and with a fresh understanding on a proportioning of supplies to the international market.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kenneth May

Two For Congress

PHILOSOPHERS tell us that no man is an island but there sure are a lot of us who seem to be totally at sea.

the better man or woman rather than on the party.

A history of Presidential vetoes has been published by the Senate. No, Virginia, publication wasn't delayed until now because of a Presidential veto.

This does not mean that a party label is meaningless: only that it is of secondary importance to the man.

Double-digit inflation is when the figures on your grocery bill and on your middle both bulge.

Generally speaking, though, the Democrats now stand for bigger budgets, more governmental restraints on the people and business, centralized control over the economy and a redistribution of wealth by taxing the middle class and helping the poor.

IN ITS FIRST two endorsements for the Nov. 7 general election, The Avalanche-Journal is supporting Sen. John Tower for re-election and state Sen. Kent Hance for promotion to Congress.

Republicans, as a rule of thumb, are more concerned about balancing the budget, maintaining a strong national defense, letting the free market work with a minimum of governmental meddling and helping people by encouraging business to expand and create jobs for them rather than let them become dependent on government social programs.

Our two-party system is superior to any other yet devised, as witness the repeated governmental crises in countries where a plethora of political parties requires coalitions and behind-the-scenes deals to effect a working legislative majority.

In essence, the Democrats want more government, the Republicans less.

THE TWO-PARTY system in the United States serves as an effective vehicle for weeding out the splinter candidates and the also-rans in the primaries, allowing the voters in the fall to study more carefully the qualifications of the two leading contenders.

THIS BROAD generalization, however, does not accurately reflect the philosophies of men and women Texas has sent to Washington.

Thus, when it comes down to the final choice, the independent voter—regardless of which party primary he voted in—can concentrate on picking

Year after year, a majority of Texas congressmen—although carrying the Democratic label—are rated conservative to moderate by organiza-

Holmes Alexander:

Signs Of Life...As In Lazarus

WASHINGTON—Primary elections in five states and the District of Columbia in mid-September signalled this floundering nation, "Keep bailing water. Help is on the way."
Signs of a sinking ship of state have been on the horizon now for several years beginning maybe in 1972, when President Lyndon Johnson heard it the rude way, "Get out!" and did not seek re-election when it became clear he was the first U.S. President to lose a war.

One sensible happening was the Republican nomination of ex-Sen. Edward Gurney for a Florida seat in the U.S. House. A few years ago, Gurney was under a seven-count indictment for political corruption, but the jury did not convict.

of West Virginia and John Connally of Texas went through the same ordeal—indictment and acquittal.
Moore is running this year for the Senate, and Connally is a contender for the GOP Presidential nomination.
It will speak well for America if these risen-from-the-dead politicians make a good showing, win or lose.

Or maybe it began in 1976, when the country chose Jimmy Carter from among a large field of selling platters who turned up to run in the world's greatest stake race.
In choosing Jimmy, first over such sack Democrats as Fred Harris and Mo Udall, then over Gerald Ford, and the American electorate saw foamers breaking across the decks and rats scurrying for the portholes.

THE SWEEPING NEW tax law, which started out as a tax reduction bill, has good news for taxpayers in just about every income bracket (with a few items of bad news sprinkled in for some of the nation's more sophisticated tax shelter investors).

(1) You supported your mother with $3,400—but received absolutely no tax benefit. You got no dependency deduction and no medical deduction, for you didn't provide more than half your mother's support.

It's a clear signal that Congress has heard and is heeding the tax-revolt warnings being sounded by Americans at all income levels, in every area of the U.S., of every age.

(2) THE INTERNAL Revenue Service came out on top. Your mother's personal exemption was of no value to her, for she had no taxable income from which to deduct it.

EVEN MORE, it's an unmistakable clue that Congress is responding positively to the anti-tax feeling at the grass roots of our nation.

(3) Now it's the end of 1978 and you raise your annual support figure to more than $3,600. All other facts remain the same. But your mother has more to live on and you, the son, come out the winner.

THE GREAT bulk of these tax breaks go into effect in 1979—but that doesn't mean you should, or can, wait until next year to start taking advantage of the changes!

(4) You get the dependency deduction and the medical expense deduction because you provide more than half your mother's support, by paying $200 extra, you pick up deductions that will net you—in the 36 percent tax bracket—a tax saving of $630.

YOU MUST begin now—right now—to set up your financial affairs so you don't lose one penny in tax dollars while waiting for 1979's lower rates.

Tomorrow: How to get an extra deduction.

START WITH THIS key item for millions of taxpaying Americans—the dependency deduction.

TAX ACTION NOW: If you're supporting a relative, Eli Warach, division editor-in-chief of Prentice-Hall, urges you to figure out right away how much you will provide in support in '78—and how much your relative will get from other sources.

The 10 percent oil price boost also will help slow down the recent drop in oil revenues flowing to the Oil Producing Export Countries.

You may find that adding just a few dollars to your share between now and year-end—less than 85 days from now—will put you over the half-support mark and lock in your extra deductions.

Although it has received little attention in the U.S., the overall current account surplus among OPEC nations has nose-dived at a frantic pace from $34 billion in 1977 to about $19 billion this year, because of fast rising imports, the drop in the value of the dollar priced oil, and a slide in black gold exports.

Don't delay—and risk losing big-time tax savings!

This already has prompted belt-tightening operations from such major oil exporters as Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, and the United Arab Emirate, not to mention Iran and Algeria.

That's what this series is all about: ways you can lower your tax bills—individual, business, investment—in 1978 and in 1979.

THAT MEANS fewer and fewer petrodollars, notes, bonds and bank deposits in the world's major financial centers and more pressure to push up oil prices even above the proposed 10 percent at the next OPEC meeting scheduled for Abu Dhabi on Dec. 17.

YOU CAN GET a dependency deduction for your mother if (1) she has a gross income of less than $750 (up to $1,000 in '79), and (2) you provide more than half her support.

That is the same three months deadline for the signing of the peace treaties between Israel and Egypt as provided for in the "framework for peace," negotiated at the Camp David Summit.

In addition, you can deduct your mother's medical expenses on your return if you pay them and provide more than half her support.

Since U.S. motorists and users of oil will be paying for years for this uneasy peace in the Middle East, their government ought to at least be candid enough to let them know about it.

To suggest how a few extra dollars in support can make a big difference to you, say that last year your mother got Social Security benefits of $3,600 and had no other income. You, her son, provided $3,400 for her support, including paying $1,000 in medical bills.

Not only will your dependency deduction be bigger than ever before in history, but your dependents also will be able to earn more than ever before and still qualify as your dependents.

Now, here's what you still can do in 1978 to pick up vital dependency deductions and cut your tax to a legal minimum.

Say you send a check to your mother every month to help pay her bills. You could add more to her checks in the remaining months of 1978, and actually come out ahead when you take taxes into account.

Carey Denies Wedding Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey denies he plans to marry within days of New York's November election. But he admits there's one woman who might consider him a good prospect and "any man would be lucky to have her."

CAREY

"No way," said Carey Sunday in response to reporters' questions about the report in New York magazine that he would marry Anne Ford Uzielli, his constant companion, Nov. 12.

"Who'd have me? If I don't win, who'd want me? Women are frankly much more sensible," said Carey.

Ted Knight Wows Old Friends

SEEKONK, Mass. (AP) — Ted Knight had a few jokes for his old Army buddies, and his appearance "made" the reunion of the 296th Engineering Battalion.

KNIGHT

Knight, the bumbling newscaster on the Mary Tyler Moore Show, served with the 296th in Europe during World War II. He was Ted Konopka in those days.

"He's really made it for the guys," said Herb Winterberg, Knight's former commanding officer. "He's been just great."

Knight held up his muddling-through image Saturday.

"I used to have a show called 'Prize Cook' on WJAR in Providence," he told his buddies. "I couldn't even boil water. But I was the chef and I faked it, just like I've been doing for the past 50 some-odd years."

Merle Haggard Marries Singer

GARDNERVILLE, Nev. (AP) — Country singer Merle Haggard makes music part of the family. This weekend, he married Leona Williams, once his backup singer.

The marriage Saturday at his agent's ranch here was the third for Haggard, 41, and the second for 34-year-old Miss Williams.

Among bridesmaids was Haggard's ex-wife, Bonnie Owens. She was once his backup singer as well.

Haggard was appearing at Harrah's Hotel-Casino at Lake Tahoe.

Artist Defends Project

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Christo, the New York artist whose latest project, "Wrapped Walk Ways," involved covering sidewalks in a Kansas City park with yellow nylon, thought people were confused about how the effort was financed.

So he called a news conference this weekend to clarify matters.

"The project was financed entirely by me. I'm Christo the artist. I did not use one cent of grants or endowments. If I make $100,000, I could buy a house or take a vacation, but instead I choose to be here in Kansas City making this project."

The Bulgarian-born artist, whose temporary works have included a miles-long fence of white fabric in California and a giant curtain hung between two Colorado mountain peaks, said the cost of the project, about $130,000, was not important anyway. Its effect on people was what he cared about, he said.

"Twenty blind people came walking in the park," he said. "This is not what I had thought of when I started. But they came to touch and live the project."

Japanese Princess Honored

TOKYO (AP) — Great Britain's Princess Margaret conferred her country's highest award for foreign women today on Princess Setusuko Chichibu, widow of Emperor Hirohito's younger brother, Prince Chichibu.

The award, the Dame Cross of St. Michael and St. George, was bestowed on the princess in recognition of her efforts to promote friendship between Britain and Japan.

Princess Chichibu has served as honorary president of the Japan-British society for 25 years, and is the second woman to be so honored. The first was the late Queen Salote of Tonga.

Margaret arrived here from Australia after recovering from a respiratory infection. She became ill in the South Pacific nation of Tuvalu which she visited to take part in independence celebrations.

Soprano Holds White House Recital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soprano Leontyne Price got a kiss on the cheek from President Carter. And Carter got an encore performance of the classic "Summertime."

Miss Price sang for some 200 guests in a nationally televised recital in the East Room of the White House Sunday. The recital was broadcast over the Public Broadcasting Service and National Public Radio.

Miss Price chose arias by Handel and Puccini, a group of songs by Richard Strauss, songs by five American composers, and several spirituals: "My Soul's Been Anchored in the Lord," "This Light of Mine" and "Ride On, King Jesus."

Benching The Judges

BURIEN, Wash. (AP) — It looked as though Burien might literally have "standing judges."

The King County Design Commission decided judges at the new county district court building should be seated with dignity, at $600 a chair.

But the county purchasing department said district court judges couldn't have $600 chairs — superior court judges only got $300 seats.

It was a standoff for some time.

Finally, Judges Richard Thompson and Gary Utigard were consulted. They said they didn't want either of the chairs.

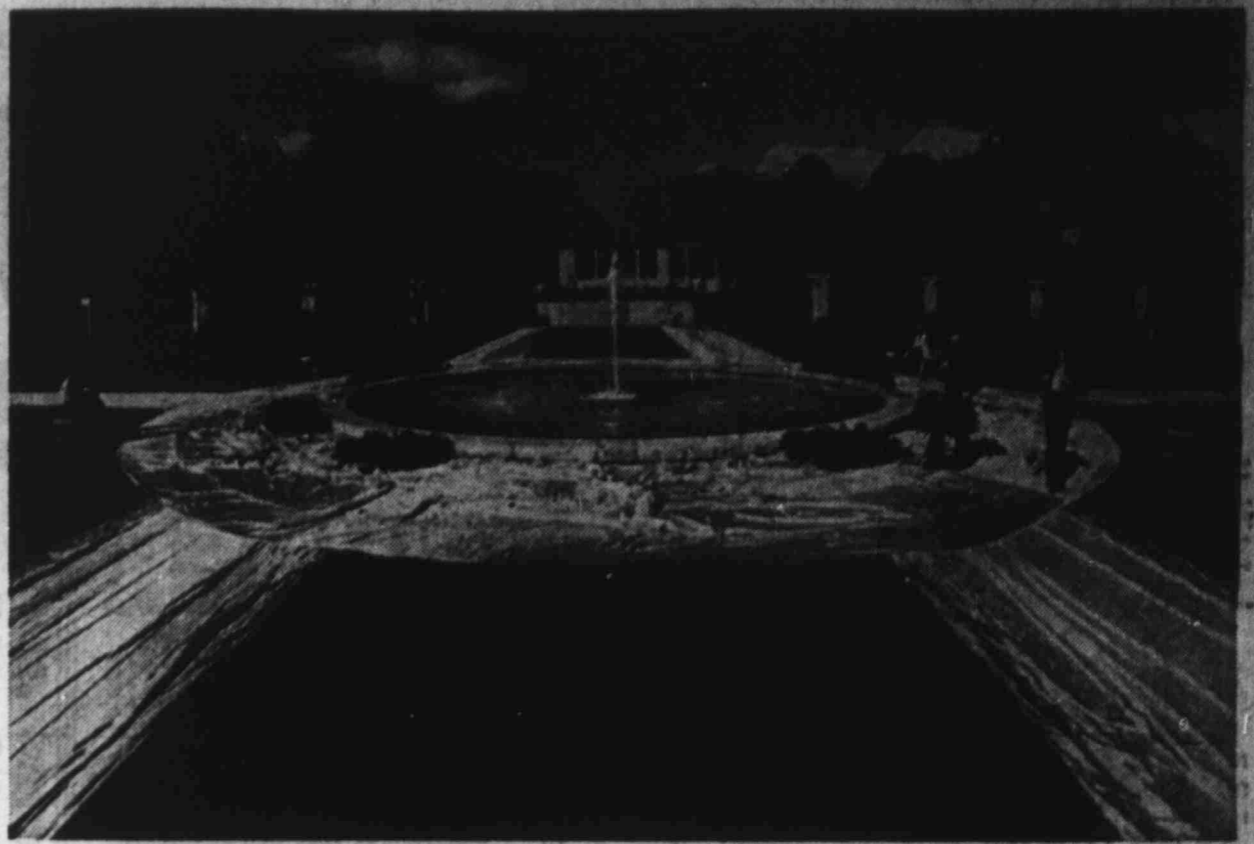

"We love our old chairs," the judges said. And the judges, as judges will, prevailed.

Rancher-Legislator Unwilling To Give Up The Farm Fight

By TENA ANDERSEN
SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — For the past nine months, Wayne Peterson has watched farm strike activity across the nation drop, but the 49-year-old rancher is not ready to give up the fight.

"We can't seem to put it together," he said. "We've had a terrible breakdown in communication out in the country, I'm sure we have. It's because we're not knowledgeable about how to do these things."

Peterson abandoned his seat in the South Dakota Legislature to promote strike issues in Washington. He's now returning home to run for re-election, but is not sure he can concentrate on state lawmaking.

"If 15,000 tractors are coming to Washington, I'm not too sure I can stand out in South Dakota and tell people I'll be in the legislature if I win," Peterson said.

The Washington "tractoreade," tentatively set for mid-February, appears to be the biggest project on the farm strike horizon.

"We don't want to go all the way to Washington with them tractors. That isn't our nature," Peterson said, quoting an average cost of $2,000 per tractor for the trip.

But he promised the "tractoreade" will take place if federal officials and Congress don't respond to demands for higher farm prices.

Peterson says there will be greater activity in the American Agriculture Movement this winter as harvest winds down.

"It's a little hard for me to judge, but from what I hear there's gonna be 50 strikers for every one involved last year," he said.

"That's what they say — that we're wintertime strikers. And I guess that's true."

Until Dec. 3, 1977, Peterson says he was too shy to open his mouth before more than a handful of people.

On that day, he was pressed into speaking before an AAM organizational meeting when the scheduled speaker couldn't make it.

"I'd been mulling it over in my mind when I was out riding my tractor. I was worried about the farm situation and I wanted to go to Washington and talk to the Council of Economic Advisers," he said.

He left South Dakota Jan. 17 for a three-day trip to Washington and has been back to his ranch only three times since.

NOW Promising To Boycott States Not Ratifying ERA

By LEE BYRD
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Organization for Women is vowing to press its economic boycott of states that have not embraced the Equal Rights Amendment, despite legal challenges and the new time won in which to obtain their ratification.

Though clearly in a festive mood over the Senate vote extending until June 30, 1982, the deadline for ERA's acceptance by at least 38 states, some 2,000 delegates at NOW's annual conference renewed their declaration of a "state of emergency" on the issue.

The action means that NOW's limited

Tax-Cut Author Gets Ovations

DENVER (UPI) — Tax-cut proponent Howard Jarvis proved he was California's most popular export this season and won applause from a weekend of physicians' meeting by repeating his litany against taxes, bureaucrats and welfare.

Jarvis, author of California's Proposition 13, addressed the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons Inc. He won standing ovations and lengthy applause for his speech, given without benefit of a prepared text.

"Although taxes and death are inevitable, being taxed to death is not inevitable and we don't have to let them do it," he said, adding measures like Proposition 13 pose a worse disaster than Pearl Harbor to politicians.

Jarvis said "faceless bureaucrats" in Washington were pushing the country toward socialism and had judges on their side.

"The welfare system operates under a phony system called social justice when their real aim is to redistribute the wealth of this country," he said.

boycott of the 15 states yet to ratify will continue, said President Eleanor Smeal. Scores of organizations, including the Democratic National Committee, dozens of labor unions and even some local governments, have observed the NOW boycott by refusing to attend or hold conventions in the target states.

Two states, Missouri and Nevada, are suing NOW over the boycott, with the Missouri case set for trial in U.S. District Court at Kansas City on Oct. 30. Miss Smeal acknowledged that the suits threaten the group's financial resources, "but we're not about to quit."

She said the 15 states have lost millions of dollars in convention and travel business so far, because the boycott "has the support and prayers of the vast majority of Americans who want to see equal rights for women written into the Constitution."

The other boycotted states are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Illinois, Oklahoma, Utah and Arizona. Four of the 35 states that have ratified the ERA have attempted to reverse their decision — Kentucky, Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska — but the legality of such actions remains in question and those states are not on the boycott list.

The Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide if such rescissions are legal. Kentucky's action was vetoed by its acting governor.

NOW's state of emergency declaration says the ERA "continues to be the primary focus of our activity and our resources," and that the ratification drive remain "a national campaign, active in all states" rather than just those that have not yet approved.

The conference did address several other policy questions on Sunday, with more scheduled for consideration today after an appearance by Coretta Scott King.

It approved a resolution calling for stringent new laws to bar the sterilization of women without their consent and first informing them of alternatives. It asked also for government research on "alternative methods of birth control, with emphasis on male contraception."

The conference approved a bill of rights for homemakers, which calls for marriage to be legally recognized as "a truly equal partnership" giving both husband and wife the same rights over property and money. The economic value of homemaking has long been overlooked by the courts in property and divorce disputes, NOW said, and should be given the same weight as a spouse's income contributions in any future settlements.

New Automatic Fund Transactions Complicated

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The maze of services confronting would-be bank depositors becomes even more tortuous next month with the addition of a new type of account allowing customers to move money automatically from savings to checking.

Commercial banks have been authorized to offer the transfer accounts starting Nov. 1, and some institutions are advertising them already.

The idea behind the new accounts is simple: Why not let people leave money in savings deposits, earning interest, until they actually need it?

The execution is less simple: There are complicated strings attached and the service may not be worthwhile for the in-

Agencies Hold Contest To Aid Study

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — A Gulf Coast shrimp will receive $500 for a single shrimp if a colored tag bearing a special number is attached to the crustacean.

State and federal agencies are sponsoring a year-long shrimping contest designed to supply information on the movements of the small brown seafood delicacies.

Some of the brown shrimp caught by Gulf shrimpers will bear orange, blue or black ribbons. The National Marine Fisheries Service is attaching the tags to 100,000 brown shrimp for release along the coasts of Texas, Louisiana and Mexico during a six-month period.

The first shrimp bearing the special tags were released in May.

Some of the shrimp will be worth $500, while others are worth $200, $100 and $50 when the special tags are handed to county extension marine agents located in major shrimping areas along the Gulf coast.

Recovery periods for returning the ribbons began at the end of September and end April 30, 1979.

"No information can be gained unless numbers of the tagged shrimp are returned," said Mike Tarrack, chief of shrimp research for the Galveston National Marine Fisheries Service laboratory.

"As an incentive for shrimpers to return tagged specimens, prizes are being awarded for the lucky numbered shrimp."

Tom Moore, chief of coastal fisheries for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, said, "It is anticipated that more than 10 percent of the tagged shrimp will be recovered. Each person returning a tagged shrimp will receive information on when and where the shrimp was released in return for providing information on when and where the shrimp was caught."

The project is a cooperative effort between the National Marine Fisheries Service, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and the Marine Advisory Program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Funding is being provided by the Texas A&M Research Foundation.

Foreign Doctor Law May Hurt U.S. Hospitals

BOSTON (AP) — A new federal law that restricts the number of foreign doctors who can practice in the United States will make it difficult for some hospitals to find enough resident physicians to fill their staffs, a study says.

"A number of states, specialty programs and types of hospitals could lose the source of 20 percent or more of their staffs over the next several years," the report said.

The study, conducted by the American Medical Association, predicted that the total number of visas granted to foreign doctors will drop 64 percent by the end of 1980.

The law, called the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act, requires that foreign doctors pass a test given by the National Board of Medical Examiners to practice in the United States. Canadians are exempt from the law.

Only one-quarter of those taking the first test, given a year ago, received passing grades.

The AMA study was published in a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The study showed that 8,779 foreign doctors went to work in the United States in 1975, but it predicted that this number will be cut to 3,126 when the law becomes fully operational on Dec. 31, 1980.

More than 40 percent of the residency positions filled by foreign medical graduates now are in three states — Illinois, New York and New Jersey. In the New York City area, foreign doctors make up a majority of residency staffs at 53 percent of the hospitals.

The study concluded that the new law will fulfill its goal, because it "will reduce the previous American dependence on a substantial inflow of physicians from abroad."

dividual unless a hefty balance is involved.

Individual banks are likely to set different fees and regulations, just as they do for existing types of accounts. The Federal Reserve Board considered imposing a minimum 50-cent fee for every transfer, but decided against the idea. In general, the transfer accounts will work like this:

Open two accounts — one savings, one checking — in a single bank. Decide how big a balance you want to keep in your checking account and let the bank know. When a check that would cause the balance to dip below the minimum reaches the bank, money will be transferred automatically from your savings account to cover the difference.

The key word is "automatically." You do not have to visit or telephone the bank to make the switch. You don't even have to use an electronic debit card.

You should compare costs carefully before opening a transfer account. Will you earn enough money in additional interest to offset charges for the transfer service? Is there some other combination of accounts that would cost less? Could you get the equivalent of an interest-bearing checking account at some facility other than a commercial bank? Do you want to tie up savings in a commercial bank when you could be earning more money elsewhere?

One of the first banks to announce the transfer accounts was Chemical Bank of New York, which started advertising the new service in June. A bank spokesman conceded that the system was confusing and said Chemical wanted to give its customers plenty of time to get used to the idea.

Under the Chemical plan, holders of transfer accounts will be required to maintain a minimum, combined balance of $500 in a checking account and in a "day-of-deposit, day-of-withdrawal," 5 percent savings account. If the combined balance dips below $500, the customer earns no interest. There will be a $3 monthly charge for the service, plus a fee of 25 cents for every day a transfer is made.

Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank, is announcing a similar service. It will charge a $5 monthly fee on accounts with balances of less than $1,000. As the balance increases, the fee will decrease and there will be no charge at all if the customer keeps over $5,000 in the accounts.

Because of the relatively high charges, consumers who do not do several thousand dollars worth of business a month probably would find it more economical to select another type of account.

NOTE: Transfer accounts should not be confused with so-called overdraft accounts, which let you write checks greater than your balance. When you write an overdraft, you are actually borrowing money from the bank and will have to repay it, with interest. With a transfer account, you are using your own money.

Other types of interest-bearing checking accounts already are available to consumers, although they go under different names.

In New England, depositors are allowed to write so-called negotiable orders of withdrawal against interest-earning savings accounts. The NOW accounts were introduced in Massachusetts in 1972, but legislation allowing banks to offer the service throughout the country has failed to pass Congress.

Members of credit unions — non-profit cooperatives — also can, in effect, earn interest on checking accounts through the use of "share drafts." The first share draft program was set up in 1974 and about 1,000 credit unions chartered under federal and state law now offer the service.

TYPHOID OUTBREAK
LISBON, Portugal (AP) — At least 50 persons were hospitalized last week after typhoid fever swept the tiny central Portuguese town of Rio Maior, the Lisbon newspaper O Dia reported. The paper said more than 100 suspected cases of the contagious fever were under observation in Rio Maior, 50 miles north of here. No deaths have been reported in the outbreak, attributed by doctors to a polluted water supply.

Baker's Democratic Foe Uses Familiar Strategy

By DUREN CHEEK
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker should recognize his Democratic opponent's campaign strategy this year. It is a page out of the book his former GOP colleague used eight years ago against a Democrat. Baker, 52, is running for a third Senate term on the ballot and a possible 1980 presidential bid in the minds of many GOP and neutral sideliners. Baker maintains he has a comfortable lead over Democratic challenger Jane Eskind despite widespread dissatisfaction in his home state over his support of the Panama Canal treaties.

Mrs. Eskind, 45, a stockbroker's wife, says her own polls show she has cut sharply into Baker's support.

Mrs. Eskind has borrowed from the strategy of former Tennessee Republican Sen. Bill Brock to picture Baker as a man so driven by national political ambitions that he has lost touch with Tennesseans. That's the angle Brock used to help him unseat veteran Democrat Albert Gore eight years ago.

Baker maintains his rise to national political leadership has been good for the home folks, giving him additional clout to fight in Washington for such things as the Clinch River Breeder Reactor and other projects dear to the hearts of Tennesseans.

Coupled with the Senate race is a free-wheeling contest for governor between Democrat Jake Butcher, 42, head of a Knoxville-based banking empire, and Republican Lamar Alexander, 38, a lawyer and sometimes television commentator who worked for the Nixon White House as a congressional liaison in the pre-Watergate era.

Baker says Mrs. Eskind supports President Carter's defense cuts, favors gun control and made the major speech at the Democratic national convention in opposition to prayer in public schools.

"Jane Eskind is flying under false colors. She is as liberal as any politician in the state and she's trying to pass herself off as a Tennessee conservative," Baker says.

The Senate race has been mild compared to one of the most spirited contests for governor in years.

Banking, liquor, churches and a proposed pardon for a convicted murderer have come together as Alexander and Butcher batter each other for seat of retiring Democratic Gov. Ray Blanton.

Blanton has remained an issue even though he chose not to run for re-election. Alexander charges the Blanton administration is guilty of sins ranging from rampant interference with government operations by patronage committees to ticket fixing by state troopers.

Alexander is involved in a drive to obtain a million signatures on petitions urging Blanton not to pardon Roger Humphreys, son of one of Blanton's former patronage chiefs. Humphreys was found to be working as a state photographer last year while he was supposed to be serving time for killing his ex-wife and her boyfriend.

Blanton answered criticism with a pledge to pardon Humphreys before leaving office, prompting the petition drive.

Butcher has dismissed it as another of Alexander's campaign "gimmicks," but says that he, too, is opposed to the pardon.

Alexander has sought to picture Butcher as a financial wheeler-dealer who established a "sham" trust to oversee his millions who was paid more in sales commissions for credit life insurance than is paid in salary to the president of Chase Manhattan Bank.

But Butcher went on the offensive and Alexander found some of his own business practices questioned.

In response to questions raised by Butcher, Alexander disclosed that a non-profit charter of incorporation originally issued to an Episcopal Church in Knoxville was used to obtain a "private club" license to sell liquor by the drink for a Gatlinburg restaurant in which he owns an interest.

Alexander acknowledged that he may have alienated some voters in this Bible

Belt state but maintained that the arrangement was "perfectly legal" and said he had no problems with the moral or ethical aspects of it.

Critics maintain, however, that the arrangement is simply a dodge which allows 16 clubs and restaurants in the Great Smoky Mountains resort city to sell mixed drinks to tourists even though Gatlinburg residents have refused to legalize such sales citywide.

Tennessee, a one-time Democratic stronghold that has become politically unpredictable in recent years, will also select a successor to the late Rep. Clifford Allen, D-Tenn.

Expert Claims Planning, Not Raises, Needed

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Most people don't need a 10 percent salary increase, they need a course in financial planning, says a professional money manager at Rutgers University.

"National surveys have shown that many people feel they could do better if they had just 10 percent more income," said Denise Matejic. "I feel that much of the difference they see between what they have and what they need could be made up by financial management and planning."

She recommends three steps: —Analysis of the family structure and attitudes toward money.

—Budget and spending plan, which includes fixed as well as flexible expenses.

—Family financial inventory of "all you own minus all you owe" which she recommends be taken yearly to see if long-term patterns are emerging.

"I believe in long-term saving," Mrs. Matejic said. "People don't have to be miser, but they should have a financial plan and update it. But, as a general rule, I have found that people tend to let the financial aspects of their lives get out of hand, which wouldn't happen if they would only think and plan."

The latest program sponsored by the University Cooperative Extension program, supported with federal funds, is "Helping Families Adjust to Economic Change," which Mrs. Matejic directs.

In a van equipped with educational materials, she gives on-the-spot advice in shopping center parking lots, downtown areas and transportation centers to those who need advice. The program addresses budgeting, credit, insurance, savings and investment and basic financial planning.

Mrs. Matejic, who holds degrees from the University of Vienna and New York Institute of Finance, has noted a new economic problem resulting from social change.

Working women deferring marriage or reentering the job market after children are grown are sharing the financial power and decision making in the family, often with little preparation. "Some of these women have never written a check," Mrs. Matejic said.

Help for the so-called "displaced homemaker" is conducted through seminars, workshops, closed circuit television and tape recordings.

Creator Of Sesame Street Gets Award

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joan Ganz Cooney, creator of the "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" television programs, has been cited as "one of this nation's greatest teachers."

The award was made in behalf of Vice President Walter Mondale by Patricia Graham, director of the National Institute of Education, at the International Literacy Day in Washington recently.

Minister Claims Diggs Nailed By Overzealous Prosecutors

DETROIT (AP) — Many of his constituents, including the Baptist minister from his church, say Rep. Charles Diggs Jr. got a bum rap when a jury convicted him in a payroll kickback scheme.

The Rev. Charles Adams of the Hartford Avenue Baptist Church, where Diggs is a trustee, said Sunday the congressman was railroaded by overzealous government prosecutors.

Diggs, the nation's senior black congressman, was convicted Saturday by a Washington jury on 29 counts of defrauding the government of $66,000 in the kickback scheme. Specifically, he was convicted on 11 counts of mail fraud and 18 counts of filing falsified congressional payroll forms. No date has been set for sentencing.

"He will be a trustee of this church as long as he wants to be, and as long as the congregation wants him to be. And they do," said Adams.

Diggs is a politician who fights for his constituents, Adams told the congregation. "Has there ever been one of us out fighting for our rights that they haven't been out to get?" Adams asked.

The minister called the deliberations "very short" to convict a person on 29 counts. He said many jurors made up their minds about the verdict before they began deliberating.

After the verdict, Diggs said "the U.S.

Attorney's Office was out to get me."

The congressman said he agreed with David Povich, his chief defense lawyer, who said he was picked out for relatively common payroll practices in Washington.

Adams, asked if he saw any similarities between Diggs and the late New York Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, said both Diggs and Powell "are black, both had senior status in the House of Representatives and both had a power base among black population." But he said there were differences in their lifestyles.

Adams said positive witnesses, including former President Gerald Ford, a Michigan native, offered to testify on Diggs' behalf, but were not allowed to do so.

WED ON WORLD'S HIGHEST 'ROOF' — Garbed in sootless white, chimney sweep David Stoll slips a gold band onto the finger of his bride, Dee Miller, as the two were married Sunday atop the Sears Tower Sky Deck in Chicago. Chimney Sweeps Married Atop Tower

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP) — Soot and smoke didn't mar the wedding of chimney sweeps David Stoll and Dee Miller.

They were married at high noon Sunday on the sky deck of the world's tallest building, the Sears Tower.

Their traditional black top hats and tails and red muffers were replaced by white top hats and tails. Red roses took the place of the red scarf.

A dozen chimney sweep friends from around the country and Canada wore the traditional black attire as honor guard, joining their long, wire brushes as an archway for the smiling newlyweds to pass through.

The Rev. John T. Shaffer, former pastor of the United Church of Christ in Jacksonville, Ill., and long-time minister of the Miller family, officiated.

In keeping with the gimmicky theme, the nuptials came on the last day of National Chimney Sweep Week and the first day of National Fire Prevention Week. The day also commemorated the 107th anniversary of the great Chicago fire.

Stoll, a 49-year-old sweep who once was a marketing consultant in New York City, was felled by a heart attack about a year ago.

He said the couple's wedding night was planned for a hotel suite whose windows overlook the Water Tower, a landmark structure that survived the fire.

The skydeck was crowded with the usual weekend visitors looking at the panorama of the Chicago area on a crystal-clear day from windows 103 stories above ground.

"We touched as many as we could when we left because a touch, or a kiss, from a chimney sweep brings good luck," said the 40-year-old bride, an industrial designer for Sears, Roebuck and Co. It was her first marriage and Stoll's second. He lost his wife and daughter four years ago.

Stoll said he began to read all he could about chimney sweeps while he was recuperating from a heart attack. Dee, who was a friend, visited him and got interested in the profession, too, Stoll said.

"We attended a chimney sweep school run by Ken Hinkley in Williamsburg (Mass.) when I took her back to visit my folks at Lake Mahopac (N.Y.)," Stoll explained.

They opened a chimney sweep business in the Roselle area, and amidst the soot love blossomed.

"We were at a friend's house, in our traditional chimney sweep outfits, to dedicate a new fireplace," recalled Stoll. "I lit the fire, and I turned to Dee and said: 'You have lit a fire in my heart. Will you marry me?'"

"And she said, 'Yes.' And now we are the happiest couple in the world and the only man and wife master chimney sweeps we know of."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Tomorrow you may be tempted to cater to whims of overindulgence. If you do, there is an indication you may suffer financially as well as physically.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could succumb to a desire tomorrow to make an important change just for the sake of change. Don't let restlessness lead you to un-sound reasoning.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Refrain from embellishing your achievement too grandly tomorrow. Your credibility will suffer by telling tall tales.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) For one who seldom counts his chickens before they're hatched, you may be banking too heavily tomorrow on something not yet a reality.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone who is aware that you can be manipulated tomorrow through flattery may lay it on rather thick in order to achieve his ends.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Disappointment is likely tomorrow if you expect others to do more for you than you would for them if roles were reversed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Large groups could get on your nerves tomorrow, so by all means don't subject yourself to them. You'll be happier where things are less hectic.

As the trial began its second week, defense attorneys tried unsuccessfully to use Ford as a character witness. The defense said his schedule did not permit a personal appearance, but that he was willing to videotape his testimony. Judge Oliver Gasch ruled the defense did not provide enough notice under court rules for attorneys to get Ford's statement at his California home.

Michigan Secretary of State Richard Austin said he thought "that whether or not he had a fair trial will be determined in the appeal, and I'm not in the position to second-guess any courts or juries."

Austin donated $100 to a legal defense fund for Diggs, who has represented Detroit's 13th District since 1954 and will seek another term in the Nov. 7 election.

"It's too bad, it seems everybody does it in Washington," one constituent said of Diggs' conviction. "He just got caught."

"I don't think it's fair for them to single him out, because he's not by himself in that particular picture," one woman said.

Unresolved Motions Delay Berster Trial

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Several defense motions remain to be resolved before testimony can begin in the trial of Kristina Berster on charges of violating U.S. immigration laws.

Miss Berster's attorneys seek the suppression of evidence taken from their client at the time of her arrest. And they have sought a dismissal of the charges on the ground that the West German native is a political refugee. Miss Berster, 28, was arrested July 16 near the Canadian border. Her lawyers say she could face jail if returned to West Germany.

Lubbockites Victimized By Weekend Burglaries

Lubbockites continued to be struck hard during the weekend by burglars who ransacked residences and made off with valuable property.

Shirley A. Cleveland of 2625 E. Auburn St. said she came home about 8 p.m. Sunday and found her residence burglarized and $1,200 in television and stereo equipment stolen.

She said she had been gone only about an hour.

A television set and hanging mirrors, valued at $900, were taken by burglars who entered Steve Person's apartment at 3702-A 54th St. between 5:30 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. Sunday.

Dan G. Tarpley of 4601 27th St. said his house was burglarized Sunday and $755 in radios, a TV set, bedspread and electric razor taken.

Ten dollars in pennies and a $500 stereo were reportedly stolen by burglars Saturday when they broke into Marjorie Adams' residence at 1810 E. 26th St.

Jose Juan Lozano of 4521 Brownfield Highway said his car was parked in the 2100-block of N. University Ave. Saturday afternoon when it was burglarized. He reported his loss as about $700 in tapes, car speakers and a CB radio.

Travis Glen Wilson of 2203 46th St. reported his house ransacked Saturday night and stereo and jewelry stolen. The missing property was estimated at $755.

A young man who bought a loaf of bread and a soft drink from the Preston Milk Store at 1101 34th St. shortly after midnight Sunday, ended up robbing the store of $30 and then fleeing, leaving the bread and drink behind.

Store attendant Trudy Jester told officers that a man entered the store through the west door, made the purchase, and then pointed a "big, black" revolver at her.

She said the bandit told her, "Okay give me the money, and hurry up, or I might shoot you." The clerk handed him the cash from the register.

The man also demanded that Miss Jester open the store safe, but she told him that she didn't have a key.

The bandit, described as Mexican-American, 18-25, of medium height and thin build, with "neatly trimmed" black hair and a beard, fled the store west on foot.

Officers late Sunday also were investigating numerous weekend property thefts and break-ins.

While Jack Douglas of 2020 16th St. was out of town, burglars removed a portable color TV set and stereo system, valued at $1,000, from his home sometime Friday afternoon.

Someone pried open the front door of a residence at 921 E. Purdue St. Saturday afternoon and made off with two guns, a stereo and portable black and white TV. Benny Burk said the property was worth $480.

After breaking a kitchen window, thieves carted off $755 worth of goods from Travis Wilson's home at 2203 46th St. between 7 and 9 p.m. Saturday. Wilson said the stolen property included a black and white portable TV set, a stereo turntable and jewelry.

In another Saturday night break-in, Marjorie Adams of 1810 E. 26th St. reported the loss of her $500 stereo and a jar of pennies. Burglars gained entry through a bedroom window.

Mary Todd of 2706 E. Colgate St. said that sometime Saturday afternoon someone took her $400 stereo system. She reported that the burglars entered her home by kicking off a front door jam.

James Brink of 2123 17th St. told officers that late Saturday or early Sunday someone took his $250 10-speed bicycle from his backyard.

In yet another theft, a heavy gold urn was taken from Arthur Thorp's front porch at 8604 Vicksburg Ave. sometime Saturday night or early Sunday. Thorp estimated the loss at $150.

In vehicle burglaries, two persons reported that their cars were broken into while parked at Texas Instruments at North Loop 289 and University Avenue.

Sandra Frazier said that between 7 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Sunday someone made off with $427 worth of property from her 1977 Cutlass Supreme. The stolen items included 15 eight-track tapes and various jewelry.

Thieves carried off $697 worth of goods from Juan Lozano's 1968 GTO sometime Saturday evening. Lozano said he lost a CB radio, 48 eight-track tapes and a set of speakers to the burglars.

Smith Says Rhodesia Needs U.S. Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith met with the senators serving as official hosts for his U.S. visit today and renewed his appeal for American support for his plan to establish black majority rule in Rhodesia.

Without that, he told a news conference, peace was still possible — "but it will be more difficult, and a lot more Rhodesians are going to be killed."

Smith and another member of the transition government's ruling council, Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, had breakfast on Capitol Hill with the nearly 30 senators who had invited them to make this visit despite official objections by the Carter administration.

Later they joined Sen. S. I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., for their third full-dress news conference since arriving here early Saturday.

At that forum, Smith again described U.S.-British support for the Marxist-oriented Patriotic Front guerrillas fighting his government as "quite incomprehensible."

"I cannot explain it, and I haven't been able to find anyone else who can, either," he said.

The opportunity for that was certain to arise later in the day in a meeting at the State Department with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, the highest-ranking official who has consented to receive the Rhodesian visitors.

Smith said they had no new proposals to offer Vance, but hoped the secretary would "indicate to us that the U.S. government would give us a fair hearing" and shift its policy away from support for the guerrillas.

He said he had "no knowledge" of a reported shift in U.S.-British policy toward an "all-parties conference" that would include the rebels.

In his first comment on the subject since arriving here, Smith said he saw no major political significance in the announcement by Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda last Friday that he would reopen Zambia's border with Rhodesia to rail traffic.

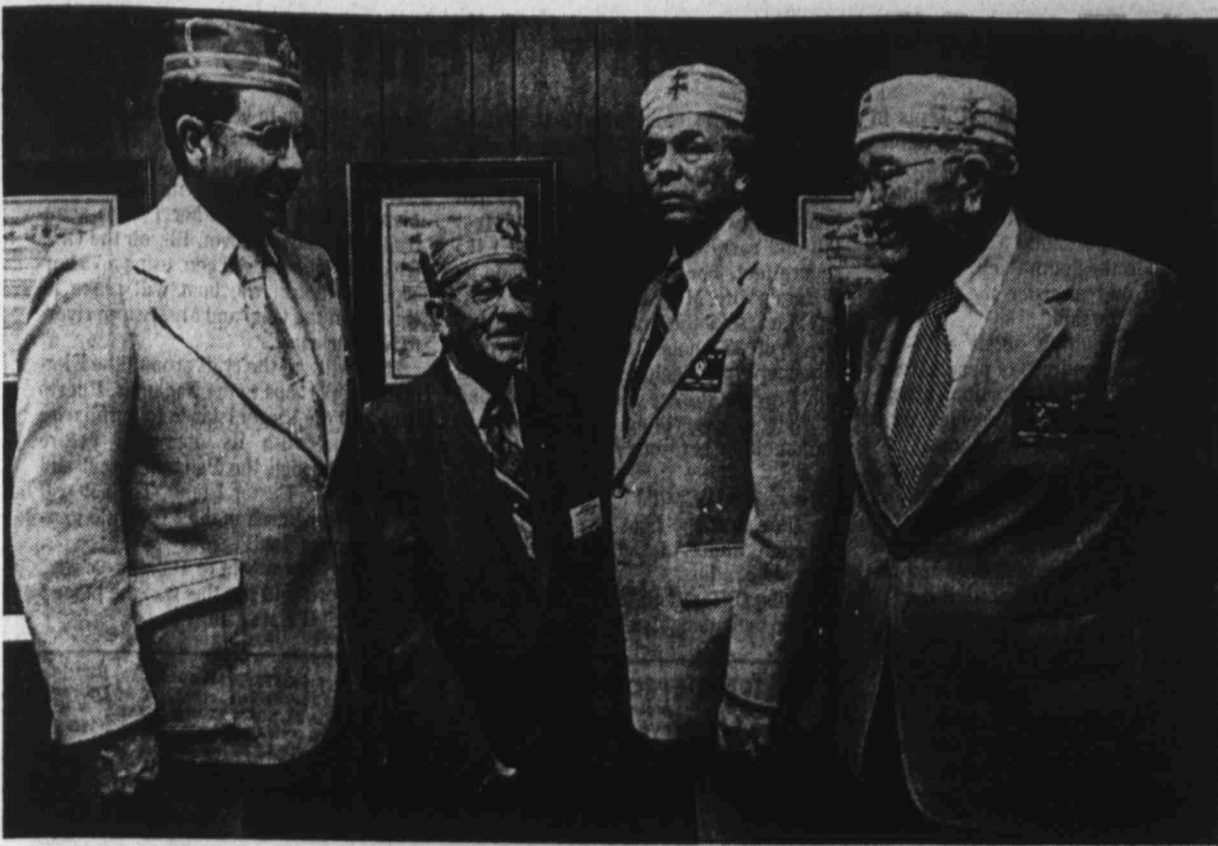

Smith said he believed the decision "was based purely on the practical situation in Zambia," which he described as being "in a desperate state, nearly bankrupt and with serious transport problems."

"If he'd done that years ago, his country would be in a lot better shape," Smith said.

Reports from Lusaka said the move was seen as necessary to permit shipment of badly needed fertilizer supplies from Mozambique to Zambia, and the return delivery of copper that Zambia needs to export.

Smith defended his government's closing of a major black newspaper, the Zimbabwe Times, because, he said, it openly supported the guerrilla forces led by Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe.

"I remind you that we are in a state of war, fighting for our existence ... in a time of peace, your question would be valid," he told the questioner.

Woman Shoots Granddaughters, Self

YUKON, Okla. (UPI) — A Sunday morning drive ended with a 6-year-old girl shot to death and her 52-year-old grandmother and 4-year-old sister in critical condition with gunshot wounds, police said.

Police said Lena Smith, the grandmother, shot her two granddaughters, then turned the revolver on herself before stopping at a gas station for help.

Yukon police detectives said Mrs. Smith had written a letter to relatives, outlining her burial wishes.

Mrs. Smith and 4-year-old Rhonda Smith were reported in critical condition today at an Oklahoma City hospital. Rhonda suffered a severe chest wound from a .38-caliber revolver, police said.

Police said Dawn Smith, Rhonda's 6-year-old sister, was dead on arrival at the hospital.

Police said Mrs. Smith apparently drove around Yukon, shot the two girls and herself, but was able to drive to a service station and call an ambulance.

Police theorized the shooting occurred near a service station at U.S. 66 and Oklahoma 92 where Mrs. Smith asked for help.

Tressie Bailey, the service station manager, said her daughter tried to help the two children and Mrs. Smith, but the grandmother locked the car doors and would not allow outsiders to administer first aid.

Mrs. Bailey said Mrs. Smith told her and her daughter to call an ambulance before she shut the door.

Police said the note outlining burial details did not indicate a motive in the shootings.

Police found two revolvers under one child's body and a large amount of cash in the car.

Police today were trying to locate the girls' parents, who were believed to be in Texas.

Man Builds Catamaran To Set Sail For Missionary Venture

GALATIA, Ill. (UPI) — Not too long ago, Frankie O'Hara had no idea where Rangiroa was. Now, he's built the Heather T, a 53-foot-long catamaran, and plans to go there as an "apostle" of Jesus Christ. O'Hara, 50, a structural engineer, plans to set sail soon with six members of his family for the tiny island 214 miles north-east of Tahiti in the South Pacific to carry the gospel to the natives. O'Hara, of Mattoon, Ill., says he became "a believer in the Lord Jesus in 1960." He says Christ first spoke to him in the gospel ministry. Three years later, O'Hara says, Christ spoke to him again.

"He said I was to build a shallow draft boat and go to the South Pacific to an isolated island and minister the gospel to these people," he said.

daughter's first child who died. But he said it "would cost you in the six figures" to buy such a boat.

Battle Planned Over Wilderness

By JAMES PHILLIPS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Protectionists and developers are preparing to wage a frenetic, behind-the-scenes battle in Congress this week over legislation designed to preserve millions of acres of Alaska's wilderness as national parks and conservation areas.

Mining, timber, oil and natural gas interests generally oppose the House-passed bill, arguing it would hinder economic development in the state. They have strong reservations about the generally less-restrictive Senate bill, but say it is better than the House bill.

The objectives would be difficult to achieve in the best of times, but Congress is scheduled to adjourn Saturday, placing the coalition under intense deadline pressure.

"Finally we decided the catamaran was going to be the boat we would build," O'Hara said. "In August 1975, I started constructing the first hull. By the spring of 1976, we turned the hull over and began to put the deck on it."

The six-ton catamaran has a 23-foot beam. Its two masts will be 40 and 32 feet tall and carry dacron sails totaling 1,185 square feet. The sails are being made by O'Hara's wife, Mary Ellen.

Near the end of this month, O'Hara plans to take the Heather T on a semi-trailer to Shawneetown, Ill., on the Ohio River for launching. Then, using a 75-horsepower motor, the boat will make its way down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans.

While both sides say they hope Congress can resolve the impasse, neither is declaring any willingness to compromise. At issue are two bills. The Senate bill, which has not yet been approved by the full chamber, would set aside 82.6 million acres for national parks, preserves, wildlife refuges, wild river corridors and national forests. The House-passed version, would protect 105 million acres.

Whether either side can achieve its objectives remains in doubt. Alaska's Democratic senator, Mike Gravel, has threatened a filibuster to stop the environmentalists. The state's Republican senator, Ted Stevens, has shown more willingness to compromise, but called the Senate Energy Committee bill "totally unbelievable."

Moreover, the Energy Committee chairman, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., has said a compromise must be reached on the bill's final form before he will bring it to the Senate floor for a vote. To do otherwise, he said, would be an exercise in futility.

Each piece of wood has been soaked in glue to seal it and make the craft waterproof. O'Hara said he used 200 gallons of epoxy in the process.

He will use celestial navigation most of the time, but the boat also has a radio direction finder, a radio-telephone and shortwave radio.

They will sail the craft around the Florida area, perhaps to the Bahamas, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands to familiarize themselves with its operation before heading through the Panama Canal and southwest to Easter Island. Then it will be on to Rangiroa in the 3,000-mile journey by way of Tahiti.

But it is more than acreage totals that divide the two camps. Environmentalists object to provisions in the Senate bill which would:

The task facing the coalition is twofold: to amend the Senate bill to more nearly conform with the House-passed version, and then to secure passage of the amendment.

He did not estimate what it cost him to build the Heather T, named for his —Permit mining in House-proposed national park areas.

—Place House-proposed wildlife refuges under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management, an agency which the coalition says "is not qualified to manage them."

—Designate only 35 million acres as wilderness, compared to the House's call for 66 million acres. The wilderness designation would block new mining, lumbering or oil drilling.

"We're not willing to take half," said Dee Frankfourth of the Alaska Coalition, a consortium of conservation organizations.

Cruise Missile Tests Encourage U.S. Planners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Flight tests of the earth-hugging U.S. cruise missile have made military planners more optimistic than they once were about the weapon's chances against potential Soviet defenses.

"It is not going to fly into the nose of a surface-to-air missile site and have a high probability of survival," said a senior defense official, "but on a one-for-one basis it can defeat the systems, provided it is cautious and stays a few miles away."

The official said the missile can penetrate any air defense system the Soviet Union is likely to mount against it through the mid-1980s.

Pentagon experts have tested the 18-foot missiles, being developed as a major strategic weapon for the next decade, against both air-based and ground-based anti-aircraft radar systems — including some actual Soviet equipment.

In actual practice, the United States would depend on a mass attack by at least 3,000 cruise missiles against defense sites located in advance to give the missiles a greater chance of success.

The first few hundred cruise missiles are expected to be operational aboard B-52 bombers in 1982.

Earlier estimates gave the Soviets a chance of reducing the penetrating ability of cruise missiles if they mounted a crash program to get as many as 10,000 of a new anti-aircraft missile, the SA-10, into the field by 1985. They are believed to be ready to deploy the first SA10's.

But the official said he is confident new types of Soviet air defenses will be needed against the missiles, which are actually pilotless jet planes that use a computer "map" to fly 100 feet or less above the ground, carrying nuclear warheads to targets with high accuracy.

He said it is only guesswork to say when the Soviets could develop new systems and get them operational, but the date is "certainly beyond the mid-80s."

The latest model U.S. Hawk is being used in the tests because no Soviet equipment new enough to approach the SA-10's capability is available. But Pentagon experts believe the Hawk matches the new Soviet missile.

Although one of the "survivability" tests was opened to reporters and television cameras last June, details have been kept secret. Pentagon sources disclosed, however, that U.S. AWACS radar planes were able to spot cruise missiles as much as 100 miles away.

The AWACS, a flying radar station, was used in connection with F-14 and F-15 jet interceptors to judge how vulnerable cruise missiles might be to a "look-down, shoot-down" airborne weapons system.

U.S. intelligence sources said the Soviet Union is working on such a system, which would require 50 to 100 radar planes and thousands of interceptors. But they said the Soviet system is not expected to be operational until at least the late 1980s.

Weizman Criticizes Syrian Use Of PLO

A-J News Services
TEL AVIV, Israel — Defense Minister Ezer Weizman today criticized Syria's stationing of two brigades of the Palestinian Liberation Army in Beirut.

Weizman, commenting on the Lebanese situation before his departure for Washington and peace treaty talks with Egypt, noted the Beirut government had originally asked for the intervention of Syrian troops to protect them from the Palestinians.

"And now Palestinians are coming in between the fighting Lebanese. So the whole thing is rather concocted," Weizman said. "To put it mildly, we do not like the fact that two Palestinian brigades walked into Lebanon."

Weizman was referring to an Israeli radio report that two Syrian-commanded Palestinian divisions have been brought in from Syria and have joined the fighting in Beirut's Ashrafiya quarter.

The broadcast said bringing in such forces violates a 1976 Arab agreement, part of the civil war settlement, in which the divisions were supposed to have been kept out of Lebanon.

Weizman said there are still lots of details to clear up with Egypt before the signing of a peace treaty.

"Both sides are very experienced in wars, but it's the first time both delegations are dealing with a peace treaty," he said. "I do feel that there's still quite a lot of details on the essence of the good neighbor hood which is after all what we are striving for: how we are going to live with our neighbors south of the border."

Weizman said the first few weeks of the talks will determine where they are headed. "Most likely both the foreign minister and I will have to come back to report to the government," he said.

"I am not that optimistic that it will go that fast. But I do hope that by the end of the calendar year we will have a peace treaty," he said.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is scheduled to open the negotiations in Washington Thursday, and a State Department spokeswoman said senior U.S. officials "will be involved at all times."

The Washington Star, quoting unnamed administration officials, said President Carter was expected to open the talks personally at a White House meeting with the three delegations. The negotiations then will shift to Blair House, the presidential guest house across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House, the Star said.

Egypt's chief delegate, Defense Minister Kamal Hassan Ali, said in Cairo he was taking a draft treaty to Washington and expected the negotiations to last two to three weeks.

President Anwar Sadat met for an hour today with Ali and other members of the Egyptian delegation to the talks and discussed a timetable to be proposed by Cairo for the two-phased Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula.

The Washington talks will focus on the withdrawal timetable and the demarcation zones in the Sinai in which Israeli, Egyptian and U.N. troops will be stationed at each stage of the pull-out.

Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, meeting with President Carter at Camp David last month, drafted a peace-treaty framework to end hostilities between the two countries, establish diplomatic relations and give Israel security guarantees in exchange for withdrawal from the occupied Sinai. They also drew up a framework for a peace agreement between Israel and all its Arab foes, but the other Arab governments have rejected both agreements.

Begin and Sadat agreed to reach a peace settlement in three months, by Dec. 17, but vowed to beat that deadline. Their target may be Nov. 19, the first anniversary of Sadat's historic visit to Jerusalem that began the peace drive.

Weizman said he expected the Washington talks to last about two weeks.

Snipers Mar Truce In Eastern Beirut

The damage to their war-ravaged homes, offices and shops, leftist Lebanese Moslem groups called a general strike in Moslem West Beirut to protest a French proposal that the Syrians withdraw from Christian areas and that Christian and Moslem units of the reconstituted Lebanese army man buffer zones between the Syrians and the Christian militias.

The leftists charge that the Christians control the Lebanese army, which disintegrated during the Lebanese civil war and is now being rebuilt.

Beirut police said Syrian rockets, artillery and machine guns killed 1,300 Lebanese and wounded more than 2,000 in the 10 days of fighting before the truce took hold Saturday night, about 18 hours after the U.N. Security Council appealed for an end to the bloodshed. Syria has not reported its casualties.

Morale was high in the Christian sector Sunday, but the people were not optimistic.

"We've seen enough cease-fires break down not to take chances," said Fuad Farah, a travel agent in charge of a basement bunker for 25 families.

The future of the truce appeared to hinge on the talks between Assad and Sarkis.

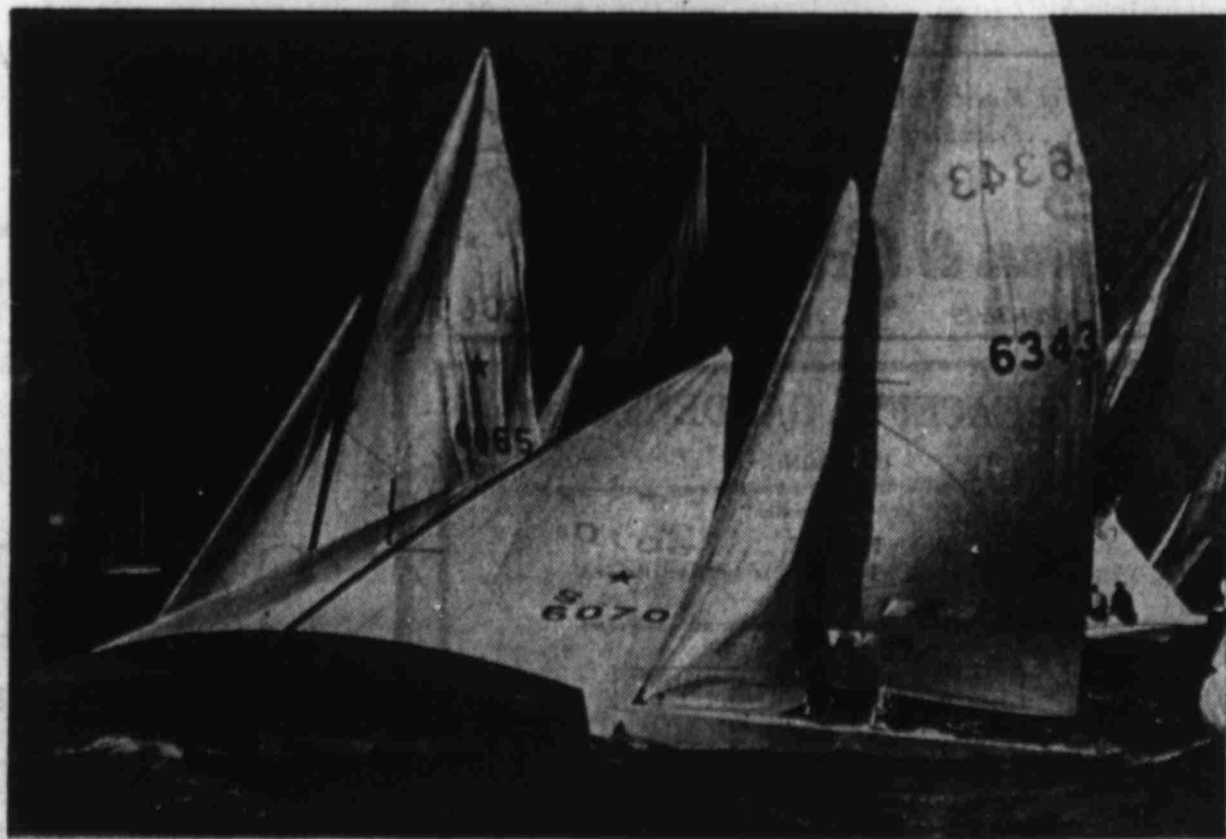

After his Saudi Arabia visit, Sarkis is to travel to Sudan and the United Arab Emirates, nations that also have troops in the Arab League force here. Then he is scheduled to return to Damascus and resume discussions with Assad before coming back to Beirut.

Sarkis is seeking a formula to end eight months of periodic Syrian-Christian combat resulting from Syria's determination to disarm Lebanon's private Christian armies and divide power between the historically dominant Christian community and the Moslems, who now are half or more of the population.

Syria poured 30,000 troops into Lebanon in 1976 to prevent a Christian defeat in the civil war between the Christians and the Lebanese Moslems and their allies, the Palestinian guerrillas. The Syrians now form the bulk of the Arab League peacekeeping force that is supposed to enforce the civil war cease-fire, but the Christians have refused to submit their area to Syrian control because the Syrians did not disarm the Moslems or the Palestinians. Syria is also angered by the alliance between the Christians in southern Lebanon and Israel.

Christian leaders charge that Syria is planning to annex Lebanon and demand that the Syrian troops be replaced with an international peacekeeping force, possibly made up of French or American troops. The Lebanese Moslems and the Palestinians have stayed out of the Syrian-Christian fighting but they want the Syrians to remain.

Foes Of Project Conduct Rally

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — Opponents of the proposed nuclear waste isolation Pilot Plant that would be built near Carlsbad pledged to continue spreading the word about what they believe are the plant's dangers.

Several groups who have come out against WIPP sponsored a rally in Carlsbad Sunday to protest the building the Police Kill Protesters In Clashes

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Police clashed with demonstrators in half a dozen Iranian cities, shooting and killing at least six persons and wounding many more, Tehran newspapers reported today.

Fighting from Sunday to early today was reported around the nation, torn by a massive civil workers strike that has spread to most government agencies.

To meet the strikers' demand of higher pay, Prime Minister Jaafar Sharif-Emami has ordered revision of Iran's $40 billion budget to cut an unspecified amount of military spending and $20 billion earmarked for construction of 12 nuclear power plants.

Ten days ago, telecommunication employees and state-owned bank employees struck and quickly won 100 percent monthly pay increases. Their walkout was quickly followed by workers in other agencies.

There were these developments today: —More than 30,000 steel workers in Isfahan joined in the walkout, demanding better pay, housing and improved medical service.

—The shah of Iran officially opened the academic year Sunday, but thousands of schools remained closed because of a strike by teachers and students. Some 60 universities and colleges were all but closed.

plant at a site about 36 miles east of Carlsbad to dump nuclear waste.

Persons favoring WIPP have said the 3,600-foot mine that would be dug in the salt beds initially would be used as a test storage site for low level radioactive waste, with experiments also planned for small amounts of high radioactive waste.

WIPP opponents gave speeches and passed out literature warning of the possible dangers of such a facility during Sunday's rally that attracted about 250 persons.

Roxanne Kartchner, a rally organizer and member of Citizens for Alternatives to Radioactive Dumping, said the demonstration was set up so "the peoples' voices can be heard" in opposing nuclear waste disposal in New Mexico.

She said she became involved in opposing WIPP "because we were told it was none of our business from several city people and therefore we made it our business."

The Carlsbad woman expressed concerns about what she termed "not enough scientific advancement. We have a lot of problems with transportation and the site itself. I don't think the public's hearing all the information we need to hear either."

She said the different organizations that sponsored the rally planned to work together to spread the word to as many people as possible about the dangers of dumping nuclear waste in New Mexico.

While the demonstrators were warning about possible accidents and side effects, city officials said they liked the idea of WIPP being built near Carlsbad as long as proper precautions are observed.

Carlsbad Mayor Walter Gerrellis said this weekend, "Certainly the expenditure of nearly a half-billion dollars in our community is going to be of economic benefit. It'll create jobs for our young people, which we certainly need."

He said, however, city officials would be the first to oppose the project if it was deemed environmentally dangerous at any stage of research being conducted in connection with the possible construction of the plant.

If the site near Carlsbad is approved by federal and state agencies, construction could begin as early as 1979 and would mean over 1,000 new jobs for the Carlsbad area, said officials.

After completion of construction, a work force of about 400 persons would be needed at the site, said William Cooper, field representative for the Department of Energy in Carlsbad.

Vietnam Expected To Step Up Battle

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Cambodia claimed Sunday that Vietnam is planning to escalate the border conflict between the two Communist neighbors once the current monsoon season ends later this year.

A Cambodian government radio broadcast, monitored here, said Vietnam was preparing an invasion to rekindle the fighting that has been stepped down because of the heavy seasonal rains.

Some Western analysts here have reported a build-up of Vietnamese troops along the Cambodian border and there has been speculation the Vietnamese, angered by Cambodian border raids, would launch a major offensive once the rains end.

Cleveland Teachers Hold Out

By The Associated Press
Teachers in four school districts with some 78,000 pupils are returning to work, but Cleveland's 100,000-student system remained shut as a strike entered its 33rd day.

A walkout by teachers in another large system loomed as the 5,500 members of the Memphis (Tenn.) Education Association were expected to take a strike authorization vote today.

Following resolution of contract disputes, teachers were scheduled to return to work today in Tucson, Ariz.; Burnsville, Minn.; Whitehall, Ohio; and in the David Douglas school district of Portland, Ore.

Classes were to resume today at the 8,000-student University of Bridgeport, in Connecticut, where 270 full-time faculty members went on strike Sept. 22. The teachers agreed over the weekend to accept non-binding arbitration of unresolved issues.

Strikes continued today in several small school districts in Ohio and New Jersey, including the 22,400-pupil Camden system.

In Cleveland, officials of six striking unions representing 10,000 teachers and other employees pledged to try to reach a negotiated settlement.

A spokesman for the School Employees' Unity Committee said negotiations Sunday failed to produce an agreement and that Common Pleas Judge Harry A. Hanna directed that the talks resume today.

The strike, which began Sept. 7, has prevented classes from being held this fall. The unions, whose members have not had any raises for two years, have asked for 20 percent pay increases. Teachers average $14,873 a year.

In Memphis, a union official said his "people are ready to strike" the 113,000-pupil system.

The union's executive committee voted unanimously Sunday to accept its negotiators' recommendation that the school board's latest contract offer be rejected.

Memphis school Superintendent John Freeman said he expects a strike and added that he hopes to keep schools open by using non-striking teachers, administrators and volunteers.

County Hassle

500 per month with one secretary when he took office in 1969 and is generating $20,000 per month now with four.

Commissioner Jim Lancaster said after the meeting, which ended at noon, that he looked on the request as being for a needed service and would have favored it if other concerns that he has expressed about the 1979 Lubbock County budget had been resolved.

Lancaster, Precinct No. 1 commissioner from Idalou, objected strenuously when the budget was adopted two weeks ago to the apportionment of about $250,000 as a road and bridge fund allocation for each of the four precincts. He contends that his precinct has more road and bridge work to do and should have a larger allocation.

This morning, he moved to deny the City-County Library its monthly $23,500 budget allocation from the county because a 1979 library budget meeting his satisfaction had not been submitted.

Lancaster said he wanted a line item budget for the library system, adding, "Right now we have nothing comparable to what we have on the county level." His motion died for lack of a second.

Light Clouds Surround South Plains Region

A-J News Services
The Panhandle was clear but the South Plains lay enshrouded in clouds at dawn today from a southerly flow of moist Gulf of Mexico air.
Weathermen were predicting, however, that no rain will result.
"The cloud cover we have now is not terribly thick," a Lubbock weatherman said. "We expect it to burn off by mid-morning."

Partly cloudy skies are expected for this afternoon through Tuesday.
Temperatures should be near 80 today, in the low 50s tonight and in the high 70s Tuesday.
Winds will be southwesterly at 10 to 15 mph today and northerly at 10 to 15 mph tonight.

A weak cool front coming down from where it has been stalled for several days over New Mexico and Colorado will cause the wind shift, a weatherman said, but will not be strong enough to affect temperatures more than "a couple of degrees."
Scattered showers dumped rain along the Gulf Coast and in the southeastern part of the state before midnight; all precipitation in Texas had stopped by early this morning, however.
Rain totaled .01 inch at Brownsville, .02 at San Antonio and .93 at Junction.
Early morning skies were clear in the Panhandle and far western Texas and solid with low clouds over the South Plains. The remainder of the state generally was partly cloudy.
Wednesday through Friday, West Texas will be partly cloudy with no possibility of significant rain, the extended forecast predicts.
It will turn cooler Friday in the northern part of the region, the forecast said.
Canadian air spread partly cloudy skies and near freezing temperatures to the northeastern corner of the nation early today.

Fire In Sauna Allows Glimpse

NEW YORK (AP) — A fire in a sauna at a mid-Manhattan apartment gave firefighters of Engine Co. 8 and Ladder Co. 2 a glimpse of a Saudi Arabian millionaire's world of palatial splendor.
"It's hard to imagine — two floors, a swimming pool, all that marble, lots of gold. I've ever seen anything like it," Lt. Henry Wojcik said after he helped extinguish the fire Sunday at Adnan Khashoggi's $2 million apartment in the Olympic Tower, a posh Fifth Avenue building put up by the late Aristotle Onassis.
The New York Post reported that Khashoggi owned other houses in London, Paris and Saudi Arabia, along with yachts and fleets of planes. The international jet-setting mogul, described as a "wheeler dealer," was not at the apartment Sunday. None of the six-person staff there was injured and only slight damage was reported.
Chief Curt Langrebe ordered his men to be careful on leaving Khashoggi's apartment, which is ringed by ferns under an opulent, mirrored ceiling and has a clear view of the New York skyline, and not track up the plush rugs or marble with their muddy boots.
The blaze began about noon and was put out in about 90 minutes.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.
Luke 2:33-42, The Living Bible

33 Joseph and Mary just stood there, marveling at what was being said about Jesus.
34, 35 Simeon blessed them but then said to Mary, "A sword shall pierce your soul, for this child shall be rejected by many in Israel, and this to their undoing. But He will be the greatest joy of many others.
And the deepest thoughts of many hearts shall be revealed."
36, 37 Anna, a prophetess, was also there in the Temple that day. She was the daughter of Phanuel, of the Jewish tribe of Asher, and was very old, for she had been a widow for 84 years following seven years of marriage. She never left the Temple but stayed there night and day, worshipping God by praying, and often going without food.
38 She came along just as Simeon was talking with Mary and Joseph; and she also began thanking God and publicly proclaiming the Messiah's arrival to everyone in Jerusalem who had been awaiting the coming of the Savior.
39 When Jesus' parents had fulfilled all the requirements of the Law of God, they returned home to Nazareth in Galilee.
40 There the child became a strong, robust lad, and was known for wisdom beyond His years; and God poured out His blessings on Him.
41, 42 When Jesus was 12 years old, He accompanied His parents to Jerusalem for the annual Passover Festival, which they attended each year.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB Ventriloquist Offers Card Trick

By SHARI LEWIS
As a ventriloquist, people think I can make anything talk. Here's a trick that will make you into a ventriloquist as well as a magician, because the cards will talk to you.
Before you start, sneak a peak at the top card of your deck. Then shuffle, keeping that card on the top. Put the pack on your left hand and hold your right hand out, palm up. Tell your friend to cut the pack in half, placing the other half on your right hand. (You now have the top half of the deck on your right hand, the bottom half on your left.)

Tell your friend to take any card. If you pal takes the top card in your right hand — you can name it! (Why not? After all, it is the same card that was on top of the deck, and you memorized that one!)
If your pal takes any other card in the entire deck (from either pile), tell your friend to touch that card to the top of the pile in your right hand, and then to put the card to your ear. It is absolutely amazing, but the card your friend chose is going to tell you the name of the top card in that pile.
And when your friend turns over that top card and sees that you've guessed it correctly, just say "thank you" to the card that helped you do the trick!

400-Pound Ball Disappears

DALLAS (AP) — A ball is missing here. A 400-pound, cast-iron wrecking ball, that is.
Utility company officials are a little mystified as to how the ball disappeared.
After using the ball to tear down several power company structures, they said, foreman Jimmy Don Billman loaded it onto a flatbed truck with a crane. When he arrived at the company's headquarters the ball was gone.
Billman retraced the route and found a large crater in the middle of a street but no ball.

"We could conclude only that someone made off with it," said Jack Clifton, the company's office manager.

Power Project Makes Town's Future Uncertain

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — There are notorious examples in Wyoming of how growth can be as devastating as economic stagnation.

Places like Rock Springs and Gillette create the sort of raw image that caused Atlantic Monthly to report in April: "Wyoming, prospering at its own expense, has made headlines all through the 1970s as a social disaster area."

But the case of Wheatland, Wyo., is a curious reversal of the grim but familiar pattern in which development of the region's energy resources turns small communities into urban chaos.

In Wheatland, about an hour's drive north of Cheyenne, residents have worked for more than four years with industry and government to make sure their town, near the construction site of a huge power plant, did not become another raw prototype of the modern energy boomtown.

But even in Wheatland's case, the planners were unable to defeat uncertainty in a turbulent decade, the most turbulent in Wyoming's 88-year history. In spite of the work aimed at proving that chaos could be eliminated from economic growth, Wheatland's future prospects are suddenly as uncertain as a 19th century mining camp facing the end of a boom.

This week in Lincoln, Neb., U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom ruled those who planned the source of Wheatland's economic boom — a 1,500 megawatt power plant and reservoir — had failed to take federal environmental statutes and a habitat for an endangered bird fully into account.

Like the $120 million Tellico Dam in Tennessee, which fell in June to an endangered fish called the snail darter, Wheatland's Grayrocks Dam and Reservoir, fell, in part, because it would affect a habitat of another endangered species — the whooping crane.

The dam, on the Laramie River in southeast Wyoming, was intended to store water to cool the coal-fired power plant, and Nebraska had an interest in the project because it was on a tributary of the North Platte, which flows through the eastern part of that state. The whole project, being built by a consortium of rural utilities calling itself the Missouri Basin Power Project, was scheduled for completion in 1982 at a cost of $1.6 billion.

Judge Urbom ruled Missouri Basin planners had failed to say how the project would affect a rainbow trout fishery on a Nebraska lake, a "whooping crane critical habitat," and the "central flyway in Nebraska."

In addition, his order said Missouri Basin's environmental statement failed to show how the dam would affect water development projects in Wyoming, Colorado and Nebraska, and ruled the company failed "in its obligation under the Endangered Species Act to consult with the secretary of the interior."

Urbom ordered Missouri Basin to cease construction of the dam, and he cut off loan guarantees for the entire project from the Rural Electrification Administration. It was a stunning victory for the state of Nebraska, the Nebraska Wildlife Federation and the National Audubon Society, the groups which brought the suit.

Jill Holloway, chairman of the Platte County, Wyo., Impact Alleviation Task Force, said a shutdown of the plant would be "disastrous" for the Wheatland area. Her group has been a key organization in the regional planning effort.

"If we cannot be assured of development in Wyoming because of what some other state is going to do then what state can develop with any certainty?" she asked. "If Nebraska says we can't have the dam and power plant, then what state is able to plan any orderly development for fear of what will happen?"

The Wheatland experience is also important because it was the first major project to be developed under a landmark state law establishing specific rules for big developers to follow when coming into Wyoming.

"They (Missouri Basin) have bent over backwards to make this a good community to live in," Mrs. Holloway said. "All the horrible things that were going to happen to us did not occur, and the benefits that accrued have been so much more beneficial than if we remained unmolested, so to speak."

Not everyone in Wheatland, a rural community of about 2,500 before the development, has been enthusiastic about the project, though. Elderly persons on fixed incomes have endured hardships because of the rising prices, and longtime residents dislike all the strangers on the town streets.

Although Missouri Basin spokesmen say they would continue work on the power plant as long as possible, manager have begun laying off the 180 workers on the dam project.

Planners now are contemplating the what will happen to their community if the projects entire work force of more than 2,000 suddenly becomes jobless.

"It's just kind of astounding," Mrs. Holloway said. "But I have no doubt that the same planning mechanism that has prepared for the economic impact can plan for orderly — what do you call it — deimpact?"

SEA LION UNHAPPY

VICTORIA, British Columbia (AP) — Poor Benjamin, a sea lion at Seeland, might feel better in about 10 months when his mate, Tora, is expected to produce a little pup to take his mind off his recent tragedy.

Benjamin has been off his food and remorseful since he accidentally munched his late son, Brutus, who liked to sleep on his dad's back at night.

Teen-Ager Rescued From Line

DALLAS (AP) — Firemen gave the teen-ager credit for keeping his composure while dangling 60 feet above the ground from a high voltage power line.

But when the rescue was complete, Danny Matthews "finally let himself go. He cried like a baby," said District Fire Chief Hal Collins. "The boy was like so much putty. I've never seen anything like what that kid went through today."

Matthews, 17, was hospitalized in fair condition Sunday with burns on his legs, feet and hands.

He became entangled in the electric power lines carrying 138,000 volts as he was being towed aloft in a red and white parasail behind a pickup truck.

"When we got there his parachute was wrapped around the top power line and he was straddling the second line," said Collins, who supervised the rescue. "We were as lucky as the devil."

Power on the lines was cut off and firemen spent half an hour rescuing Matthews, a resident of the Dallas suburb of Irving.

Two firemen climbed the nearest tower, stabilized the chute, and then told the young daredevil to slip off the wire so that he was hanging by the ropes of his parachute-like kite about 60 feet off the ground.

The youth and a companion, Paul Thompson, had been attempting to tow the parasail behind Thompson's pickup as he cruised along the top of a levee along the Trinity River. The high voltage towers run along the same levee.

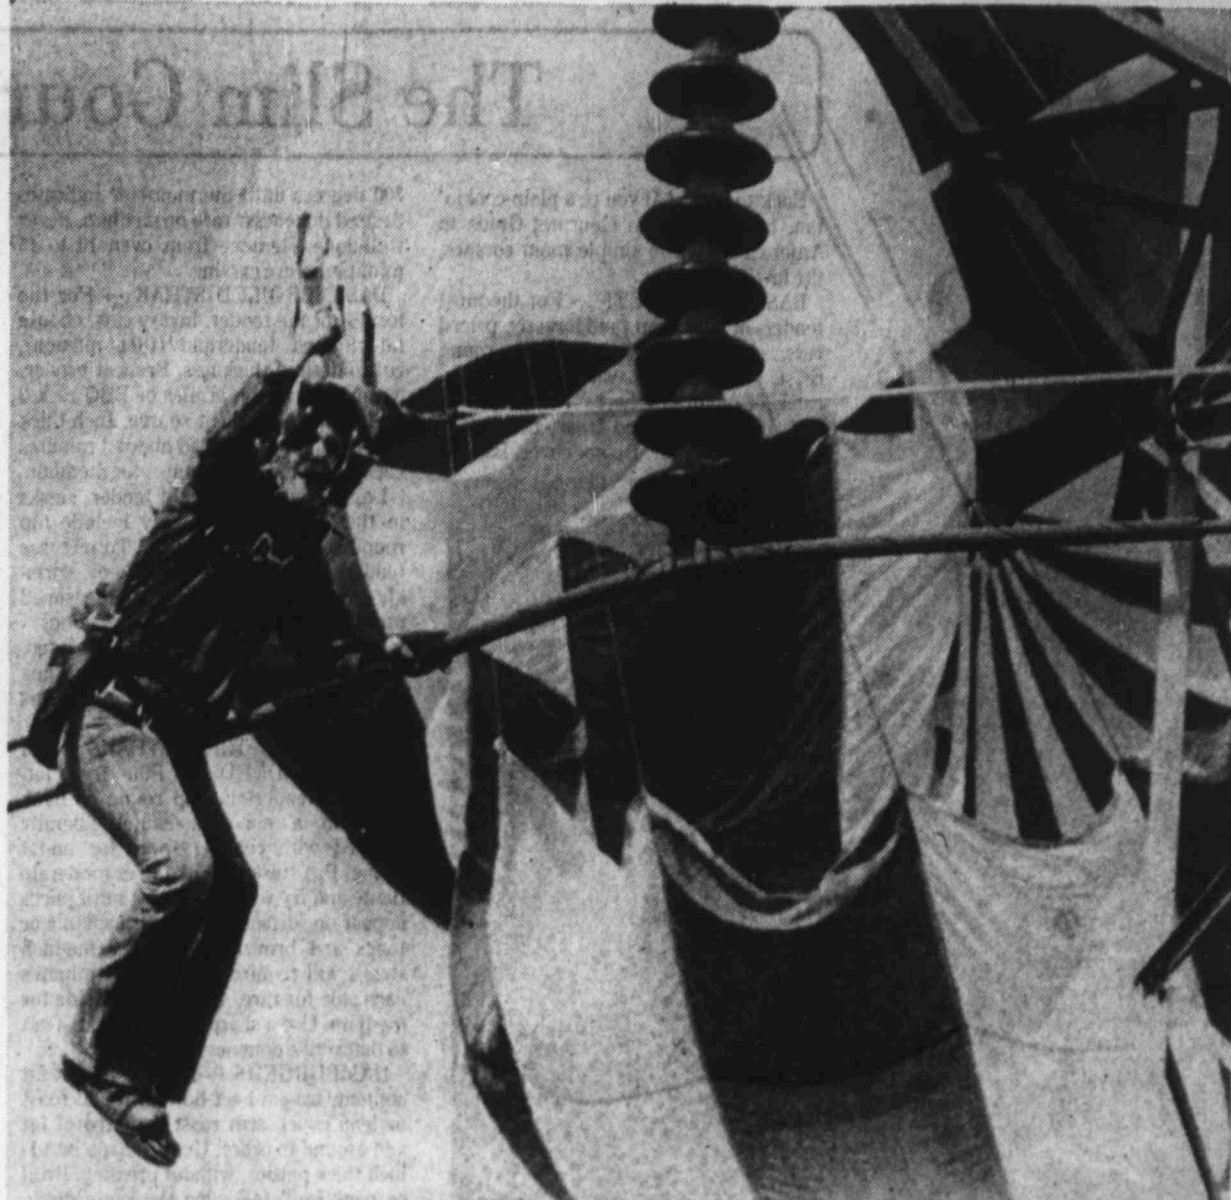

Matthews ran along behind the truck until he was airborne, but almost immediately a gust of wind blew him into the power lines.

Firemen rescued him by tying a nylon rope around him, cutting him loose from the parasail ropes and then lowering him to the ground.

"I have to give him credit for retaining his composure throughout," Collins said. "He managed to help us with the rescue, and it wasn't until his feet hit the ground that he finally let himself go. He said that was his first and last time to parasail."

Collins said the electrical burns the youth suffered were probably caused by static electricity around the power lines, and not in the lines themselves. "Those lines are surrounded by static electricity up to about five feet around," he said.

Thompson said it was the first time the two had attempted the stunt — "It's also the last," he said.

RIDING 138,000 VOLTS — Danny Matthews shows a terrified expression as he sits atop a high power line carrying 138,000 volts and yells for help. Matthews, trapped on this 60-foot perch for about an hour, was rescued by Dallas Fire Department units and then taken to a nearby hospital in fair condition with burns to his hands and feet. Texas Museum Planning UFO Display CRESSON (AP) — Has anybody got a spare flying saucer lying around? If so, Jim Peel wants to know about it.

Peel, curator of the Pate Museum of Transportation at Cresson, near Fort

David Powell Goes On Hunger Strike

HUNTSVILLE (UPI) — The Texas Department of Corrections intends to keep David Lee Powell alive until he can be executed.

Powell, however, wants to die in his own way.

The 27-year-old former University of Texas honors student who was convicted of murdering an Austin police officer has refused food for a week and is determined to die of malnutrition. But corrections spokesman Ron Taylor said the state was prepared to force feed him to keep him alive.

Worth, says the museum plans to establish the nation's first comprehensive display on unidentified flying objects. But, he says, not many people want to talk about encounters with UFOs.

"The main obstacle has been finding factual information," Peel said. "We've had calls from several people telling us experiences they've had with UFOs, but they're not backed up with scientific data."

The museum's founder, oil tycoon A.M. Pate of Fort Worth, says the government hasn't been any help either.

"The Air force is extremely reluctant even to discuss the subject," Pate said. "Even the Smithsonian hasn't been able to help us. They have a 20-foot mockup of a UFO in storage, but it's too big to transport across the country and there's no way to disassemble it."

The museum has been successful, however, in getting UFO authority Dr. J. Allen Hynek as a major contributor, says museum special coordinator Tommy Blann. Blann says Hynek will provide the museum with motion pictures of "actual unknowns" and a copy of UFOCAT, the largest organized catalogue of UFO reports in the world.

The museum plans to include in its presentation an introduction to the UFO phenomenon, UFO reports dating from 1897 to the present, natural phenomena commonly misidentified as UFOs and a discussion of different types of organizations which study UFOs.

Peel said the museum display is not designed to prove UFOs exist, although he personally "firmly believes" in them.

He had never given much thought to UFOs until he began putting together the museum display, Peel said.

"I'd been pretty skeptical," he said. "But the more I get into it, I believe there are other beings on other planets. There's so much that has not been proven false by the government."

Peel said the museum still needs photo-

State Prison Report True

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Texas penitentiary officials who previously denied reports of violence now say they were mistaken and three prisoners were wounded by a shotgun blast from a guard last week during a strike action.

"I had been calling those reports total and absolute lies," prison spokesman Ron Taylor said Sunday. "I'm sorry. I was asked to re-check the information, and I did... and it is true."

Meanwhile, 108 prisoners carried on with the strike Sunday at the Ellis Unit, refusing to eat or leave the exercise yard where they have been since Thursday. But 300 of their number gave it up during the weekend and returned to their cells, as have prisoners who protested at two other units.

The strike is in sympathy with a suit filed in federal court by prisoners protesting living conditions within the Texas Department of Corrections.

Taylor said no lying was involved when he denied the shooting incident at the Darrington Unit, near Angleton, saying a communications breakdown caused the mixup.

Taylor said the incident happened Thursday as 209 Darrington inmates stopped working in a field and began moving en masse toward guards. He said two warning shots were fired — one into the air and the other into the ground.

"One prisoner received a superficial thigh wound, and it definitely was caused by buckshot," Taylor said. "Two other men received superficial wounds, but it can't be determined whether they were caused by buckshot or ricocheting gravel."

The man wounded by the shotgun blast was James Richardson, serving two years for forgery from Harris County, Taylor said. The other two wounded men were Thomas Shelby, serving 99 years for aggravated robbery from Guadalupe County, and Charles Shaw, serving 20 years for aggravated robbery from Washington County.

All three prisoners were treated in the prison hospital and released. One was wounded in the chest, one in the leg and one in the arm.

Another group of prisoners at the Ramsey Unit south of Houston had also joined the strike movement, but returned to their cells last week.

The Darrington incident is the only physical confrontation prison authorities have had with inmates since the striking began last week, Taylor said.

Inmates are sympathizing with a suit being heard in Houston. The class action suit alleges cruel and inhuman treatment of prisoners.

Strikers have demanded to talk with newsmen, saying they seeking publicity for the lawsuit.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A ♠ATZ ♠Q853 ♠AQ72
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—In support of clubs your hand is worth 19 points, so your side is in the slam zone. The way you advise partner of this, while setting the trump suit en route, is to jump raise to four clubs.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠5 ♠AQ82 ♠KJ874 ♠A83
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 NT Pass 3 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You really have no choice. You must rebid three no trump to alert partner to the fact that you have hearts well stopped and that most of your strength is concentrated in the red suits. If you make a clever bid of three hearts, partner may suspect that you need some help in that suit to play game in no trump, and if he does not have it, the hand will almost surely be played in the wrong contract.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A6 ♠AK9 ♠AKJ872 ♠K7
What is your opening bid?

A.—This is a difficult hand. It is not quite strong enough to open two diamonds, but an opening bid of one diamond will leave you awkwardly placed to describe your mountain later in the auction, and runs the risk that the hand might get passed out right there. Despite the fact that you have a six-card suit, your hand is balanced with a stopper in every suit. Our choice is two no trump!

South you hold:
♠QJ7642 ♠AKJ83 ♠J7

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 NT 2 ♠
3 ♠ 4 ♠ 5 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—This is close. Although you have reasonable prospects of defeating five diamonds, it's not a certainty, and you might just as easily make five spades, especially since partner could be very short in diamonds. With such splendid distribution, you can't be badly hurt in five spades, so we would take out insurance by not letting the opponents play the hand. Bid five spades.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK754 ♠93 ♠AQ107 ♠96
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Two spades. You do not have the strength to introduce your second suit. A bid of three diamonds here would be a high reverse, showing the equivalent of about 19 points. Since you can't support partner, your only recourse is to rebid your five-card suit.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A1083 ♠AQ107 ♠Q1096 ♠7
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Dbble. Pass 1 ♠ 2 ♠

What do you bid now?
A.—In terms of high cards, you are near minimum for your takeout double, and partner could only respond at the one-level. Nevertheless, you have the classic distribution, excellent heart support and good intermediates. Compete with two hearts. Otherwise, partner might sell out to two clubs when you have a part-score in your direction.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKJ10 ♠AQJ872 ♠7 ♠A4
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Pass Pass 2 ♠
3 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. There is no need for more precipitate action. You have already told partner that you have a powerful hand by cue-bidding at your first turn, so give him the option of bailing out if he is totally broke. In addition, you might uncover a superior spade contract.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K10 ♠KQJ72 ♠QK9 ♠A83
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—Your hand is too strong for a jump raise to three hearts, but does not quite measure up to a jump shift response. We would temporize by responding two clubs, then jump in hearts at our next turn. If partner cannot move over this strong auction, it's unlikely that you have a slam.

Back to basics! If you're a plain-cookin' fan, here's our Slim Gourmet Guide to America's favorite simple main courses, the low-calorie way:

BASIC ROAST BEEF — For the most tender of the lean, moderately priced cuts, choose a fat-trimmed top round roast. Season as you wish: salt, pepper, garlic or onion salt, herbs. Place roast on rack in open pan and insert meat thermometer in center. Do not cover. Bake at 300 degrees until thermometer indicates desired doneness: rare or medium, never well-done. Remove from oven 10 to 15 minutes before carving.

BASIC BROILED STEAK — For the leanest of the tender, luxury cuts, choose fat-trimmed tenderloin (filet mignon), cut to desired thickness. Preheat broiler. Arrange steaks on broiler or BBQ rack 3 to 4 inches from heat source. Inch-thick steaks should be broiled about 3 minutes each side for rare, 4 minutes for medium. Less expensive, but still tender, steaks in the low-calorie category include top round steak and flank steak. To increase tenderness without adding flavor, sprinkle steak on both sides with unseasoned meat tenderizer; follow label directions. Puncture meat with a fork to allow tenderizer to penetrate, then broil according to preceding directions. (Tenderizer is salty, so don't add any salt.)

BASIC PAN-FRIED STEAKS WITH NO FAT ADDED — Pan-fry fat-trimmed tenderloin, top round or flank steak in a non-stick skillet liberally sprayed with cooking spray for no-fat frying. Put steak in skillet over moderate flame and fry without turning until juices appear on surface. Turn with a spatula or tongs and brown other side. One-inch steaks will require about 3 to 4 minutes each side for rare, 4 minutes per side for medium. Use a sharp knife to make a cut to determine doneness.

HAMBURGERS — For the lowest fat content, have a beef bottom round roast or lean chuck arm roast trimmed of fat and ground to order. Gently shape into 1-inch thick patties, without pressing. Broil or pan-fry, following the same directions for steak. (Never add meat tenderizer to ground meat because it changes the texture to an unpleasant mushiness.)

BASIC ROAST CHICKEN — Choose a young fryer-broiler. Remove "innards." Rinse chicken inside and out with cold water; pat dry. Season inside and out, if desired. Arrange chicken breast-side up on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Bake uncovered, without basting, in a preheated 350-degree oven about 1 hour for a 2 and one-quarter-pound chicken, or until the leg joint separates easily. (For most certain results, use a meat thermometer.)

Cut-up chickens. Trim fringe fat. Arrange chicken pieces skin-side up on a rack in a shallow pan. Sprinkle with seasonings, if desired. Bake uncovered in a preheated 350-degree oven, without turning, for 50 to 60 minutes.

BASIC OVEN-FRIED CHICKEN — Choose disjointed frying chicken or your favorite parts. Rinse in cool water. Put plain or seasoned bread crumbs in a heavy brown paper bag (about 1 table-spoon crumbs per serving.) Add the chicken pieces a few at a time. Close bag and shake, to coat chicken lightly with crumbs. Arrange the pieces, skin-side up in a single layer on a shallow non-stick cookie tin well-sprayed with cooking spray. Bake uncovered in a preheated 350-degree oven 50 to 60 minutes, turning once.

BASIC FISH FILLETS — Defrost fish if frozen; rinse with cold water. Spray a shallow non-stick pan with cooking spray. Arrange fillets in a single layer. Dot lightly with 1 teaspoon softened diet margarine per serving. (Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon lemon juice or wine per serving, if desired.) Sprinkle with paprika (for color), if desired. Bake in preheated, hot, 450-degree oven about 10 minutes, or until fish is white and opaque and breaks easily.

Jogging.
It has almost been raised to the elevation of a sacrament. That's all people talk about anymore.

"Who told you about jogging? Was it your mother or your father or did you learn about it in the gutter?"

"Where were you and what were you going when you heard that Jerome Drayton won the Boston Marathon?"

"Sure, I could go jogging with you this weekend — but will you respect me in the morning?"

Running around the streets wheezing has replaced handball, which replaced tennis, which replaced biking, which replaced golf, which replaced swimming, which replaced skiing as the national physical pastime. All of those are still in favor, but at one time or another they led the field in popularity.

It is safe to assume that jogging will pass and relinquish its trend status to a new sport. And what will replace it? Will there be life after jogging?

Of course, and frankly I wouldn't be at all surprised if "napping" replaced jogging as the No. 1 national sport. The momentum for any pastime is usually the same. It starts with a hero (astronaut, sports figure or movie star) who appears on a talk show and is asked, "How do you stay so thin?" and he or she replied, "I nap at least 30 minutes a day."

Small groups start at first. Then, a few stories appear where the AMA, to protect themselves, advises participants to get a complete physical before starting to "nap."

Books beginto come out — "The Complete Book of Napping," "The Complete Napper" and "The Napper's Handbook" (a Complete Guide for Men and Women Who Sack Out).

Napper's regulation shoes will come out with cushioned inner-soles and fashions will reflect the sport with wrinkle-free slacks and polyeser shirts that breathe when your body temperature goes down.

As the momentum builds, everything will point to the Napper's Marathon...The Napper's Olympics where noddors from all over the country will compete to see who can sleep the longest. There will be film clips of nappers "packing warm milk," taking deep breathing exercises, and talking of the "dreaded eye-opener" when you're pushing your body into sleep far beyond its limits. I can see Curt Gowdy spot-fighting a man yawning and observing, "He's the man to beat."

I give "nappers" a couple of years at the top and then we'll be on to another sport — maybe stumbling.

Whatever it is, my body is packed with carbohydrates for it.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR READERS: It's Fire Prevention Week again, and I have had so many requests to repeat my column on fire prevention that it has become a tradition. So here it is, with up-dated figures:

Last year, 10,074 Americans perished and 33,400 civilians, plus 106,100 firemen, were seriously injured in 3,513,000 fires. In Canada, 829 deaths were caused by 69,651 fires.

A large percentage of the dead were children, elderly persons and invalids who had been left alone "for just a few minutes."

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were:

1. Smoking
2. Electrical wiring
3. Heating and cooking equipment
4. Children playing with matches
5. Open flames and sparks
6. Flammable liquids
7. Suspected arson
8. Chimneys and flues
9. Lightning
10. Spontaneous ignition

The total fire loss last year was $6,064,000,000 in the U.S. and $503,894,438 in Canada.

Now for some tips that could save your life:

Be sure your cigarette is out. Matches, too. Never leave matches and lighters within the reach of children.

Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. Replace a cord if it is frayed.

Never leave small children or invalids alone in the house. Not even for a few minutes.

Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.

Store oily rags and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

Never use flammable liquids for dry-cleaning indoors.

Never smoke in bed.

Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire. Designate a specific meeting place outside so you will all know who's outside of the house.

Remember: Fire extinguishers put out 97 percent of all fires on which they were used, and most large fires start as small fires. So, invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher. Keep it handy in your kitchen, or be prudent and buy one for your cottage, car, boat and the back bedroom.

Some excellent smoke and fire-detection systems are available to homeowners.

ers. Shop around, and buy the one that suits your needs.

NOW, in case of fire:

If you suspect fire, alert the rest of the household. But first feel the top of the door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape through the window.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket, sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to find it. Get out and call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartment building, use the stairway. Don't take a chance on the elevator. If it fails, you're trapped.

Once out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life.

It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so.

New Law Protects Consumers From Unfair Bill Collectors

By BETTY YARMON
NEW YORK (WNS) — It's hard to look kindly at someone whose only reason for being is to collect bills. But the bill collector, long one of the most shunned members of any society, nonetheless plays a valuable role in our lives.

If it were not for the professional bill collector's ability to collect past-due bills, retail prices probably would be higher than they already are. That's because so many of us live on credit, and generally pay only when we are billed for such credit purchases. This, in turn, permits suppliers and sellers, who also operate on credit, to pay their bills, and thus to continue to provide for the needs of our society.

When customers fail to pay their bills, however, the system is disrupted. If those who grant credit did not use professional bill collectors to collect unpaid bills, they would have to raise their prices to offset their losses. Consumers who do pay their bills then would be forced to pay even higher prices to make up for those who do not.

These thoughts are prompted by the new Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, which went into effect recently "to protect consumers from a host of unfair, harassing and deceptive debt collection practices without imposing unnecessary restrictions on ethical debt collectors."

Under the new law, a number of highly questionable tactics have been outlawed: Debt collectors may not make threats of violence, use obscene language, make harassing phone calls or call debtors at times known to be inconvenient, impersonate government officials or attorneys, misrepresent a consumer's legal rights, collect more than is legally due, misuse postdated checks, or hold debtors up to public ridicule.

Collectors also are prohibited from discussing your debt with a third party such as a neighbor, friend, or employer unless the collector has your permission or the consent of a court.

The collector can discuss your debt only with you, your spouse, your attorney or a credit bureau, and he may discuss it with his attorney or with the attorney of the credit grantor.

The new law does not cover all bill collectors, only those so-called "third party" collectors — that is, those who collect debts for others. Thus it does not cover those who collect for their own clients.

The new law covers only debts made primarily for family or personal purposes, such as retail purchases, medical expenses, and the like. The collection of commercial debts for business purposes is not covered.

What should you do if you feel you are the victim of illegal collection tactics? Best advice is to contact the manager or owner of the collection agency involved, since the collector's excessive-ness may not be known to his employer.

If the manager or owner is unresponsive to your complaint, consider notifying the original credit grantor, your attorney, or an office of the Federal Trade Commission.

It should be obvious that in no way does the new law provide consumers with a means to avoid paying legal debts. Congress recognizes that accurate credit information includes information on debts for collection, and collection agencies still can impart the status of their accounts to credit bureaus.

"Century Cookbook" Provides Traditional 'Madeleine' Recipes

By LESLIE LAND
Women's News Service
Okay folks, for 64,000 pages, what food is this, that I hold in my head? It's buttery and not too sweet, delicious in the afternoon with tea or wine. It's named after a woman, shaped after a seashell and appropriate for anyone who cherishes French literature in general and Marcel Proust in particular.

The mystery food is a madeleine, in my opinion the all-time definitive tea cake. To some it's a cookie; to others, a biscuit; some, I suppose, might even unwittingly refer to it as a cupcake. I like the term tea cake, because it gets right to the heart of the matter. Such special treats are less sweet than cookies and never gooey, easily picked up and dunked and nibbled at their edges in a reflective and peaceful fashion, neither squishy nor over-cremily, dry yet tender: pure refinement in pastry form.

Almond or anise slices, lady fingers and the twice-cooked sweetbreads of Scandinavia share with madeleines a lightness that's especially dandy when the summer air is heavy and thick. A madeleine with a glass of cool, but not icy, white wine evokes the same gentle breezes that stir white dotted-swiss cotton and big floppy hats.

According to Elizabeth David there is something called a madeleine in England that's more like a trifle than a tea cake. "The Century Cookbook," an American product published around the turn of the same, gives two recipes for madeleines, both of them very elaborate schemes involving jellies and fillings and fondant icings, in the best petit-four tradition. There is a picture of the appropriate mold — the scallop-shell shape that has been traditional since Tallierand's time and may extend as far back as the 1730's, but they just call the resultant pastry a shell-shaped "genoise" and leave it at that.

MADELEINES: Genoise, or any spongecake batter, will produce passable madeleines, but the best contain more butter than these egg articles usually embrace. The most important butter of all is the butter in the molds; there must be lots and lots. This insures a tender texture and even color in the finished product, as well as insuring that the product will part gracefully from the pan.

The method for making the batter is the classic "cooked spongecake" arrangement. The batter is cooked — very gently — before the cake is baked. Actually, it's scarcely more than warmed, but that's enough to stabilize considerably the air bubbles in the beaten eggs: a good thing; these air bubbles are the leavening agent.

Melt a cup of butter, clarify it by skimming the foam and pouring the clear butter away from the dregs. Let it cool but not solidify.

Put 3 large, room-temperature eggs in to a pot of barely simmering water and remove from heat at once. As soon as the water is cooled enough to reach into, reach in and extract the eggs. Combine them in a warmed heavy bowl with 1 cup minus 2 tablespoons superfine sugar and beat furiously several minutes, even with an electric mixer, until the mixture is very pale, thick enough to sort of glop off of the beaters.

Clarify another generous one-half cup butter and distribute it among 18 madeleine molds. Use a pastry brush to paint in a layer of butter, put the mold somewhere cool until the layer hardens, then repeat. This insures a thick, even coat, avoiding that classic malady — starving sides and too much butter on the bottom.

By now the egg-sugar mixture is ready. It should be completely cool to the touch. A scant cup of sifted cake flour and the previously clarified butter should be ready as well.

Gently stir (don't fold) the flour into the batter, adding it in four or five installments. Be tender in your gestures. Mix the butter with flavoring if you want one, then fold-stir it in as fast as is consonant with delicacy.

Divide the batter among the prepared molds, filling each not more than a fat half-full, and put them in a preheated 425-degree oven. At once turn the heat to 325 degrees and bake the madeleines for 12 to 15 minutes, until they're a rich golden brown. Turn them out onto cooling racks and cool away from drafts. They may be dusted with confectioner's sugar after they're completely cold, if you like. This lengthens their storage life considerably, so it's worth doing if you're planning to consign them to the mails (or hoard them for your old age). If you dust them with confectioner's sugar you can eat them without taking off your white gloves, which is impolite, but an interesting sensation all the same. The drawback is dusty tea.

FLAVORING THE MADELEINES: A teaspoon of orange or lemon rind, finely grated, is most common. No one seems to know which is the "authentic" madeleine flavor. Larousse gives a recipe for the famous Commercy madeleines, the closest to authentic, and they use lemon. A teaspoon of vanilla or almond extract can be used instead of or as well as the citrus, and so can from 1 to 3 teaspoons of brandy or rum.

VIENNESE MADELEINE SANDWICHES: I call these Viennese — they probably have some other official name — because to me the combination of apricot, chocolate and rum is always Viennese.

Make a batch of madeleines, flavor the butter with 2 teaspoons rum and add one-half teaspoon almond extract. Spread the flat sides of half of the madeleines with apricot filling (below). Sprinkle the flat sides of the remainder generously with rum. Put the sandwiches together, pressing firmly, lay them out on a waxed-paper-lined cookie sheet and chill them thoroughly.

When they are well-cemented, dip the lower third of the now-rounded shells in chocolate coating. (see below). This will seal them tight and make them taste like they've been dipped in chocolate. The chocolate-coated bottom may, while it's still soft be profitably dipped in finely chopped blanched pistachio nuts. Balance the sandwiches upside-down on a wire cake cooling rack until the chocolate hardens. The chocolate will be smooth, seamless and professional-looking, and the upside-down drips decidedly decorative.

APRICOT FILLING: Steam 1 cup dried apricots until they are very soft. Let them cool, then chop them and puree them in a blender, processor or food mill with one-quarter cup of orange liqueur and just enough orange juice to keep them from being paste; 1 tablespoon to one-quarter cup of juice, depending on the apricots.

Russians Hope Orbita Will Cure Levi Fever

By NIKKI FINKE

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities hope that Orbita may be the cure for the persistent Levi Fever afflicting Russian teenagers.

No, Orbita is no miracle drug. And Levi Fever? Well, perhaps it can be defined by two bizarre examples:

Five Communist Youth League members recently chased a youth through the streets of Tbilisi in Soviet Georgia demanding he give up his western-made denim. He refused, and the gang stabbed him and fled with the pants. Also in Georgia, two girls were left wounded and paraplegic by two 15-year-old girls carrying knives and razor blades.

Though extreme, these two stories show the importance western-made jeans have in the lives of fashion-conscious young people here.

It has Soviet authorities so worried that they've developed the new fabric for blue jeans called Orbita, which they claim is equal in quality to western denim, known for its toughness and endurance.

Zinaida Nesova of Moscow's Central Department Store pronounced this judgment on the development, in a newspaper interview: "Jeans that look like jeans. We could sell millions, even more."

At present, however, the material is being kept as secret as blue prints for a new bomber. Repeated attempts by an American reporter to see the fabric have been met by a firm "nyet" by the Ministry of Light Industry and the director of the jeans-producing factory. Soviet officials say the pants will be widely available by early 1979, however, and they even plan to export them to Eastern Europe.

That may not be a big market, though. Polish-made jeans, for example, are prized here for their quality. And Hungary recently inaugurated a blue jeans factory in collaboration with the Levi Strauss Co. which is supplying raw materials including Greek cotton.

And, more importantly, the Hungarian-made jeans will bear a Levi label on the back — a prized fashion signature here.

The young people's newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda recently carried a story of a youth who wanted to impress women with jeans he had concocted with a rare Lee jeans pattern, an equally rare U.S. fabric and a tailor's help.

"But ... this beautiful woman in a jeans suit saw me and immediately suspected that something was wrong," the youth recounted. The lady demanded, "Where is your label?"

It was then that he realized that "in her circle, a label is considered the visiting card of a real gentleman, taking the place even for knowing the latest books or cultural events."

Russian-made blue jeans are generally scorned by Soviet young people, who will gladly pay five or even 10 times their price of 23 or 25 rubles — about $6 dollars — for denims smuggled from the West.

And this with good reason: Soviet jeans are sloppily sewn and of cotton so thin and lifeless that they hang on a teenager's body instead of hug it like U.S. denims. Even Soviet newspapers acknowledge the "shameful" quality of Soviet jeans.

One Soviet journalist said this of the Russian jeans' quality: "If you sat on a nail, you would tear the seat rather than your jeans."

At the open-air markets in Moscow, teenagers follow westerners pleading for "real jeans," and there is money to be made by wheeler-dealers in the underground jeans trade.

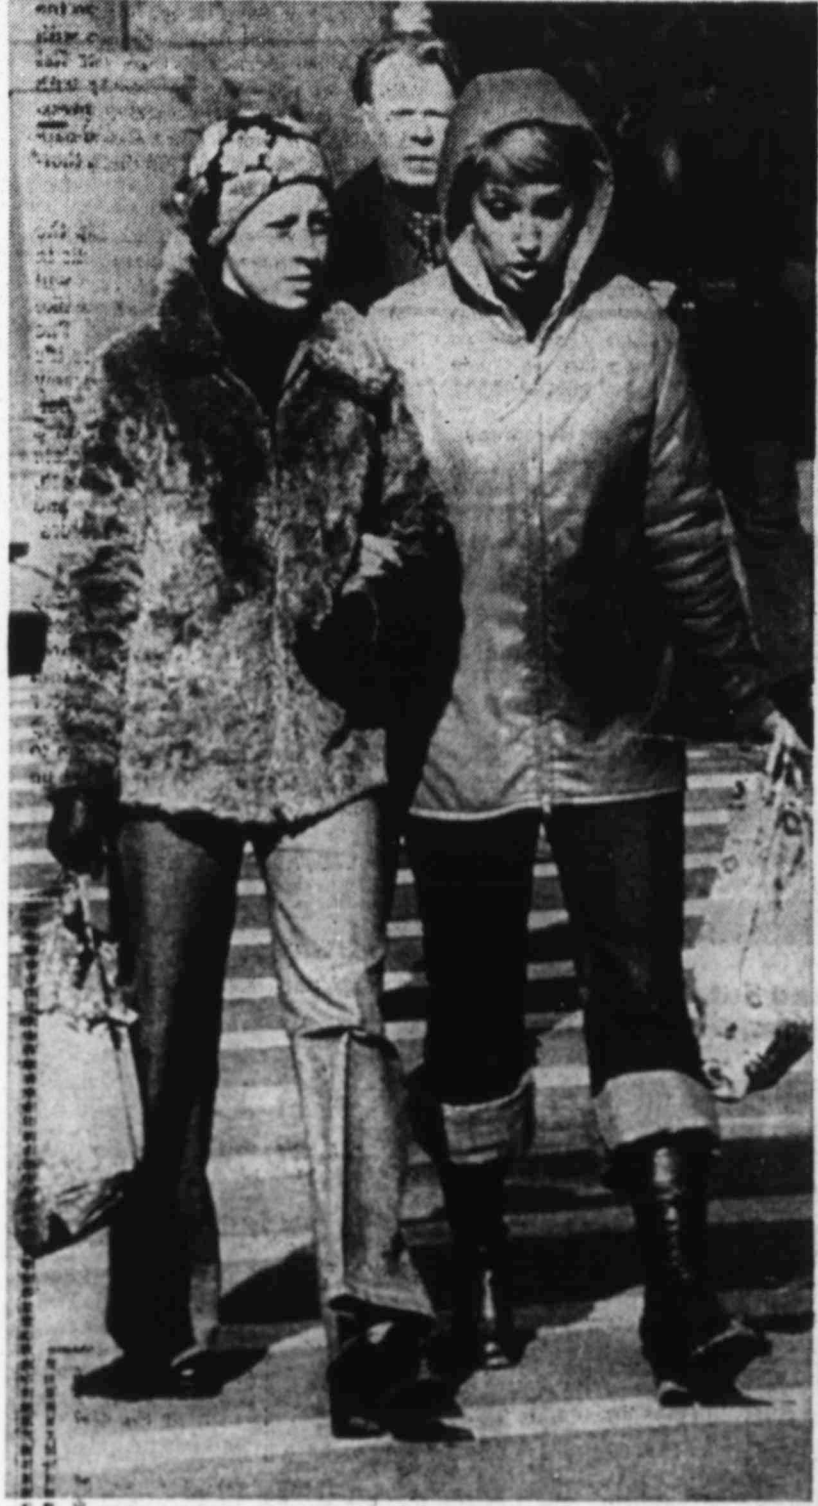

Orbita results from this western domination of the jeans market, and the one Orbita-producing factory already has received 900,000 feet of the material and has 30 workers making more than 600 pairs of jeans a day. Its machinery can make a button-hole or fix a rivet "not worse than they do it abroad," according to Soviet newspapers.

But, obviously, one factory cannot begin to meet the heavy Soviet demand for well-made jeans — just as demands for Soviet factories to make more consumer goods are not being met.

Recent figures in a Soviet journal show that light industry — which makes jeans and other consumer goods — gets only 12 percent of capital investment and basic production funds though it employs as much as 25 percent of the industrial work force.

All this might make used jeans sound like the answer, but things don't work out that way. Indeed, noting that worn jeans are especially in demand, one Soviet writer said:

"If you wash a floor with your new jeans, they will inevitably become priceless."

Woman Sticks To Assassination Plot Story

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Kathi Wagner is leaving her job at the motel where she claims to have uncovered a possible presidential assassination plot.

The Secret Service says Mrs. Wagner was responsible for a hoax threat on President Carter's life, but Ms. Wagner is sticking by her story.

She says her interrogation by the Secret Service following the Aug. 28 incident "was uncalled for because they assumed I was lying and guilty until proven innocent."

Dennis Crandall, a Secret Service agent in Salt Lake City who took part in the investigation, said that "after what we consider a very thorough investigation, we concluded that the story was a fabrication."

No arrests or charges were made, but Crandall said, "We are keeping appraised of what she is up to." He said Mrs. Wagner "can appear very charming and lucid at times."

Mrs. Wagner, a 23-year-old divorced mother of two and a former mental patient, says an unidentified man in a tailored suit and flashy tie knocked her unconscious in a hotel room she had entered to clean. Ramada Inn employees said the room contained a mirror on which were the soap-scrubbed words, "The president will die Thursday."

Next to the mirror was a picture of Carter with an "X" etched over it and mattresses in the room had been burned. Mrs. Wagner said the man told her, "You shouldn't have come in here," before hitting her on the head with a handgun, knocking her unconscious.

She was hospitalized briefly for shock and smoke inhalation.

Carter and his family were vacationing at the time in Wyoming's Grand Teton National Park, but made a brief stop in Idaho Falls two days after the incident.

Described by authorities as "not very cooperative" during questioning, Mrs. Wagner said she took a polygraph test administered by the Idaho Falls Police Department and was told she failed it.

Crandall said he could not comment on the test or even confirm it was given. "They were really giving me a bad time," Mrs. Wagner said of the Secret Service. "They stated to me that I had passed out and subconsciously done these things that the man did." She said she had experienced five blackouts during the previous year, but each lasted "just seconds" and "I wouldn't do anything during them."

She said she was told by authorities at a closed magistrate court hearing Sept. 6 that if she would voluntarily spend five days at the state mental hospital — "to get over all I'd been through" — they would drop plans for a committal hearing.

She agreed. While at the hospital, she said a psychiatrist "told me that I was not mentally ill."

It was her second stay at State Hospital South in Blackfoot. She said she entered the hospital last February suffering from depression brought on by her failing marriage. For the past five months she has lived with foster parents in Idaho Falls — an arrangement set up by her Mormon Church bishop in Regburg. Mrs. Wagner, who likes to draw cartoon characters and write poetry, said today was to be her last day of work at the motel. Using state vocational rehabilitation money, she plans to enter business school for training in bookkeeping.

"The only thing about the whole thing that bothers me a lot is the fact it was brought up during my divorce hearing and I get funny looks from people who think they've heard my name but aren't sure," she said.

When they find out who she is, she said people tell her, "I thought you were locked up."

Mrs. Wagner, whose five-year marriage recently ended in divorce, said custody of their two children is pending in court. She wants to find a better job so she can support her children, who are with their father, she said.

Often called a glowworm, the Lamprophorus has legs, says the National Geographic World magazine. A type of firefly, the Lamprophorus gets its nickname from its built-in "tail light."

THE SLEEVE-IN 2 MINUTES

The sleeve can be set-in to absolute perfection, without a single straight pin in 2 minutes. You will see the method demonstrated.

EUROPEAN QUILTING

A favorite European designer uses quilting on the jacket collar, lapel and often pockets and belts. See a technique which is unique, simple and very impressive. You will also receive printed directions and see a jacket using the method.

BOUND BUTTONHOLE POCKET

The bound buttonhole pocket is being used on vests, pants, jackets and the latest designer fashions. It will double the value of a garment you sew and it is so simple to make. When you use this technique, everyone will admire your talent.

Many College Students Qualify For Grants

By HOWARD K. OTTENSTEIN

Newspaper Enterprise Association

Grants, of course, are even better than loans for financing a college education, since they don't have to be repaid. Grants are also a bit more difficult to obtain. But they are not as hard to get as many students and their parents think.

Kingpin of the government's grant program is the Basic Education Opportunity Grant (BEOG). Often, these grants are combined with other forms of assistance — such as loans, workstudy and private scholarships — to meet the total cost of a student's college education. Currently, BEOG disbursements range from $200 to $1,600 a year.

Students should not assume they are ineligible for grants just because their family income is more than $20,000 a year.

The government looks at a long list of factors in determining who will receive grants and how much money they will obtain. Among these factors are family size, income, tuition costs of the applicant and other family members, tax bills, and unusual family expenses. Total assets are examined as well as income. Your daughter could well receive a grant, while he son of a co-worker earning a comparable salary could be turned down.

Students may stand a better chance of receiving BEOGs if they can prove they are self-supporting. But they cannot have been claimed as dependents on their parents' income tax for the preceding year, and they cannot receive more than $600 a year in support from their parents.

For further information on the BEOG program, contact financial aid counselors, regional Education Office units or the Division of Basic and State Student Services, Office of Education, Washington D.C. 20202. Better yet, call the BEOG hotline, (800) 638-6700. (In Maryland, call 800-492-6602.)

Students in extreme financial need may also be entitled to Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants. These grants, which run as high as $1,500 a year or $34,000 total, must be matched by the student's college. For details, contact college financial aid offices or the Office of Education's Division of Student Financial Aid in Washington.

Part-time jobs, usually on campus or at federal installations, are made available to students through the College Work-Study Program. During fiscal 1978, nearly 900,000 students helped meet their tuition bills through work-study.

Students can work up to 40 hours a week, with the government paying as much as 80 percent of their salaries. Most of the jobs start at or slightly above the minimum wage.

Additional information on work-study can be obtained by writing the Division of Student Financial Aid.

Dow Jones Purchases Magazine

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

The booming world of magazines is still buzzing over the $10 million chip Dow Jones & Co. Inc. has thrown down on the table to enter the consumer magazine field by acquiring Book Digest, a four-year-old monthly that managed to weather some serious financial strains and reach one million in circulation earlier this year.

Dow Jones, which publishes the Wall Street Journal, Barron's National Business and Financial Weekly and owns a chain of small-city newspaper and a book company, among other holdings, is a new entry in the hotly competitive — and highly lucrative — field of consumer magazines, where American and foreign interests are spending big dollars to acquire, rejuvenate and start up major publications.

The surprise cash purchase of Book Digest has led to speculation that Dow Jones, which earned $39 million after taxes last year and added $20 million more in the first half of this year, was dipping its toes into the consumer magazine whirlpool in preparation for an even bigger plunge, later on.

But Warren H. Phillips, the former Wall Street Journal reporter who now is president and chief executive of the parent company, told us that no magazine acquisition spree was in the works. "I'd never say forever, but this is not the beginning of a big consumer magazine drive," he said. "We looked at Book Digest as a special case, since it is not all that different as it appears on the surface from our other publications. It deals with the world of ideas — such newsy, timely things as politics, social trends and other current subjects."

"It's not a magazine of fluff," he said, and then quickly rejected the suggestion that he was alluding to People and Us, two more-frivolous magazines published, respectively, by Time Inc. and The New York Times Co.

"It's just that we're more comfortable in dealing with serious, current ideas," Phillips explained.

"We're in magazines already," he added, citing Barron's which Dow Jones considers a magazine despite its tabloid newspaper format, and the company's 49 percent interest in the Hong Kong-based Far Eastern Economic Review.

The Book Digest move also touched off speculation over how that magazine's flamboyant and often — controversial chief, John J. Veronis, would fit in with the rather conservative Dow Jones crowd. Veronis first made headlines as a top executive at Curtis Publications during the fight to save the Saturday Evening Post. Then he and his partner, Nicholas Charney, scored a spectacular success with the founding of Psychology Today magazine, which they eventually sold, along with affiliated operations, to Boise Cascade Corp. for $20 million during the height of the conglomerate craze in the late 1960s.

They followed that success with an equally spectacular failure when they took over Saturday Review, split it into four separate magazines and watched it go down the drain, before it was recaptured by its previous owner, Norman Cousin. The price tag on that debacle has been put at more than $15 million.

But Veronis and his brother Peter, who had directed advertising sales at the previous publications, together with Charney and editor Martin L. Gross, bounced back to found Book Digest. Originally designed for predominantly newstand sales, it turned out to be just the opposite (less than 5 percent of its circulation now comes from single-copy sales). In early 1975, with a total monthly circulation of about 400,000 and more capital needed, Veronis held serious acquisition discussions with McGraw-Hill Inc. But after lengthy talks, that consumer publishing company decided against the move.

Book Digest then obtained the financing it needed from a European investment group and Warner Communications

Corp. With the use of heavy subscription promotion, its circulation spurted, reaching a million copies last March and leading Phillips to point out that Book Digest was one of only four magazines started since 1970 to have passed the million mark (the others are People, Smithsonian and Hustler). It also showed a sharp increase in ad revenues.

Before the Warner deal, Veronis owned about 25 percent of the magazine; Charney, 18 percent; former CBS president Frank Stanton (who continues as a director), 12 percent, and magazine consultant James Toback (who likes to take a piece of the magazines he helps start), 10 percent. After the financing, those holdings were substantially diluted.

The Veronis brother and Gross will remain at the helm of the magazine following the Dow Jones deal, Charney having dropped out previously. Dow Jones, however, quickly moved in its own financial officer.

"At $10 million, I'd say Dow Jones paid a premium to get Book Digest," an acquisition expert in the publishing field told us. "But these days if you want to make a significant entry into the consumer magazine business, you have to pay a premium, particularly with all that foreign money flooding in."

Health Care Firm Buys Company

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Johnson & Johnson and Technicare Corp. of Solon, Ohio, have announced jointly an agreement in principle for the acquisition of Technicare for stock valued at $87 million.

Under the agreement, still to be approved by Technicare stockholders and both boards of directors, 0.175 shares of Johnson & Johnson common stock will be exchanged for each share of the Ohio company's stock.

A company spokesman said Johnson & Johnson has 58.9 million shares outstanding compared to Technicare's 5.9 million.

Johnson & Johnson, which primarily manufactures health care products, had sales in 1977 of $2.9 billion and net earnings of $247.3 million, or $4.23 per share. For the first six months of 1978, sales totaled $1.7 billion and earnings were $157.7 million or $2.66 per share.

Technicare manufactures and sells medical diagnostic imaging equipment including computed tomographic scanners, nuclear medicine equipment and ultrasound imaging devices for the diagnosis of disease.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1978, Technicare had sales of $154 million and profits of $2.2 million or 36 cents per share from continuing operations.

Johnson & Johnson also announced it has entered into a separate agreement with EMI Ltd. of London, which will become effective upon Johnson & Johnson's acquisition of Technicare.

This agreement will give Johnson and Johnson a worldwide license under EMI's patents in the X-ray scanning field, the subject of litigation between EMI and Technicare. Johnson & Johnson also will have rights to future inventions by EMI in this field.

"It is our conviction that diagnostic imaging will play an increasingly important role in the health care delivery system in the 1980s and beyond, particularly as it proves its value on a cost effective basis," said James E. Burke, chairman of the board of Johnson & Johnson. "This acquisition and licensing arrangement will permit Johnson & Johnson to contribute in a meaningful way to this significant area of patient care."

Library Given Kennedy Bible

BOSTON (UPI) — The family Bible used by John F. Kennedy at his presidential inauguration has been donated to the Kennedy Memorial Library by a cousin of the late president's mother.

The Bible, which is valued at $15,000, contains a handwritten record of births, deaths and marriages in the Fitzgerald family, George Gloss, the Cambridge book expert who set the value of the Bible, said Sunday.

The record dates to 1857, and many of the notes were entered by Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy, who listed her own marriage to Joseph P. Kennedy and the births of their nine children, including the president, Gloss said.

He described the Bible as a Douay version published in 1850 and later re-backed and restored. The book is in excellent condition, he said.

The Bible was donated to the library by Thomas A. Fitzgerald Jr., a nephew of Mrs. Kennedy's father, the late John F. "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald. It previously had been on loan to the library, which is housed in a temporary facility in suburban Waltham.

The Bible will not be available for public viewing until the library opens in its permanent facility adjacent to the Boston campus of the University of Massachusetts, Gloss said.

DR. LAMB

Varicose Veins

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if you would advise anyone with varicose veins to enter a profession that requires being on her feet most of the time — even if she wears support hose and arched shoes?

DEAR READER — That depends. If you mean standing still, the pressure builds up in the veins of the legs while you are standing and does aggravate varicose vein problems.

But if a person is moving around, walking and using the leg muscles, the movement of the leg muscles tends to pump blood out of the veins toward the heart actually draining them. Walking, as such, is actually helpful and is not a significant factor in causing varicose veins or making them worse.

To illustrate the point, a barber has to stand still in one spot most of the day and that's very hard on the veins in his legs. The same is true of anyone who has a similar occupation. A postman who must walk to deliver the mail, on the other hand, will be constantly milking the blood out of his veins, and that won't be a factor in causing varicose veins.

How severe the varicose veins are is also important. When the varicose veins involve large, dilated veins deep inside the leg muscle, as well as those on the outside of the leg, the problem is more complicated. So, you need to know exactly what kind of profession you are talking about and how bad the veins are.

In general, I don't like the idea of telling someone that they can't be on their feet. That implies not being active. Lack of activity leads to other health problems. Since I am sure you would appreciate more detailed information about varicose veins and what can be done about them, I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-8, Varicose Veins.

Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I read an article in the paper which mentions that humidifiers may be a cause of respiratory problems. The articles quoted the Journal of the American Medical Association and advised that, while these devices put moisture back into the air, they also can harbor organisms that may cause pulmonary problems.

The article said that homeowners who had portable humidifiers should clean them at least once a week with a detergent and refill them with fresh water containing a growth deterrent chemical. They suggested copper sulfate.

The article also said that if the humidifier was part of the furnace that the screens ought to be cleaned frequently and a growth deterrent applied. Is this true and do you have any comments about it? My wife has bronchial asthma and we need to make an effort to be sure that she doesn't have any additional lung problems.

DEAR READER — Yes, the comments you have made are all accurate. I am afraid people just take the air they breathe for granted. It can either be too dry, full of chemicals or even full of organisms. Any device that circulates air and is able to accumulate water is a potential place for the growth of fungi and various organisms.

All air-circulating devices, whether they are air-conditioners (central or window), humidifiers or any other device that's in the system of circulating the air you breathe should be kept clean at all times. All filters should be cleaned regularly. You should never allow standing water to accumulate in any part of the device as a breeding ground for organisms.

Chemicals Endanger Civilization

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Civilization faces a greater danger from the myriad of chemicals in the environment than from radiation hazards, says Alfred Knudson, president of the American Society of Human Genetics.

Knudson, a researcher at the Philadelphia Cancer Research Center, said recently the world has moved from an "age of infection to an age of chemicals" because life-threatening infectious diseases have declined but dangers from chemicals increased.

He said he worries about all chemicals — not only herbicides and pesticides but also chemicals we eat, and those that surround us at work and home.

One of the frustrations for researchers, he said, is that while specific chemicals may not be toxic, a combination of five or six may become so or even become mutagenic or gene-changing.

Knudson said such mutation of genes could cause increased infertility and make future generations more susceptible to disease.

This is supported by evidence that an individual's tolerance to infectious diseases, and perhaps even cancer, depends upon his genetic make-up, he added.

At the society's meeting, Catharine Damme, an assistant professor of medical law at the University of Texas, warned we may have to decide whether to restrict chemicals or people who work with chemicals.

"If the combined economic and social costs (such as lost jobs) of substance control become unacceptable, might the decision be made not to restrict the substance but the person exposed to the substance?" she asked.

It would mean screening workers in a manufacturing plant or people in a surrounding community to see if they are susceptible, genetically or otherwise, to health hazards from the substances.

Since genetic characteristics often are linked to race or sex or ethnic backgrounds, some groups of people might be banned from some jobs or from living in certain areas.

Miss Damme said such actions would raise a large number of legal questions.

It Was Chilly In The Tree

COHOCTON, N.Y. (UPI) — It was snowing and raining and the temperature dipped to 35 degrees and Kate Kunz was sitting in a giant maple tree.

Miss Kunz was in the tree for 48 hours this weekend, aiming for first prize in the 11th annual "Tree Sitting Marathon" in this Finger Lakes village.

She won.

Miss Kunz, 22, of Cohocton, was not the only contestant to sit for the entire length of the contest, from 6 p.m. Friday until 6 p.m. Sunday. Of the 27 who started, she and Shirley Tribble, 21, of Cohocton "went straight through to the bitter end," a contest official said.

He said Miss Kunz was named the winner because she had no ground time, while Miss Tribble lost nine minutes of sitting time while on the ground for breaks.

The one-of-a-kind contest is part of the village's Fall Foliage Festival.

The man and woman who spent the longest time in the trees with the fewest supplies won $100 each. This year, 14 men and 13 women of ages 13 to 30 climbed into the giant trees.

After the first 12 hours of the contest only 10 hardy souls remained. "It rained Friday night — they were cold and wet," said Lee Dorsey, a contest spokeswoman.

She said the temperature Sunday was "about 35 degrees," and "it did snow and rain."

Lake Tahoe Area Hurt By Growth By-Products

By GAYLE FISHER
SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (AP) — Picture a crystal-clear Alpine lake nestled among snow-capped mountains and lined with thick stands of Ponderosa pine, white fir and incense cedar. That dreamlike scene described mile-high, 22-mile-long Lake Tahoe in years gone by. Today, the dream has become something of a nightmare. The trees and peaks still are there, but their territory has been invaded by motels, fast food outlets and, in Nevada, casinos.

California and Nevada are jockeying for control of growth around the lake they share. The most recent attempt at compromise is a federal-state plan which would ban new casinos and impose other restrictions at the lake. The agreement, which must be approved by the legislatures of both states and by Congress, would give Nevada and California delegations to the existing bi-state Tahoe Regional Planning Agency veto power over development on either side of the state line, but would permit existing casinos at Tahoe to expand without California's approval.

Jim Bruner, head of the League to Save Lake Tahoe, says the suggested TRPA agreement appears promising, but he, like Gualco, would prefer to see the lake designated a national scenic area.

"The future looks better," Bruner says. "The important thing is to hold the line against further urbanizing. We want to take what's left and preserve it for future generations."

The bi-state agency and the separate Nevada Tahoe and California Tahoe regional planning agencies currently share responsibility for development in the area — an arrangement which so far has proved cumbersome.

California maintains that what happens on the Nevada side of the border affects the California side, and contends it should have a voice in what's going on in Nevada.

Lacking this, California has gone to court to protest expansion on the Nevada side, fighting construction of new casinos and of the controversial loop road designed to handle traffic around the congested casino area on the Nevada side. The road has been completed in Nevada, but California has refused to allow it to cross the line.

Eugene Gualco, the California Assembly's strongest advocate of environmental protection in the Tahoe Basin, points his finger at Nevada for the growth problems.

"If they're going to have the casinos, then they should take care of some of the social problems that go along with it, such as housing and schools. There are quite a few Nevada casino employees living on the California side," he says.

Gualco says he favors the proposed TRPA agreement, but would prefer to see the area eventually designated a national scenic park.

On the other side of the dispute, Commissioner Ken Kjer of Nevada's Douglas County, a member of the TRPA governing board, says he thinks growth is being controlled.

"Douglas County commissioners have taken a resolution that forbids any new casinos," Kjer says. But he says he believes expansion which already has been approved should be allowed to take place. "The way I see it, that wouldn't be allowed under the new agreement."

He says the proposed TRPA agreement is one-sided in giving veto power to California. "I'll take my chance with the feds before I'll chance the State of California," Kjer says.

Researchers Claim Treatment Advance
NEW YORK (AP) — Maintenance crises of major proportions are threatening many of America's older cities, according to Construction Contracting magazine.

The McGraw-Hill publication said some cities were in such an advanced state of decay they already posed a threat to the communities. "Some would even say to the life and limb of their citizens."

It added that cities in need of repair included New York, New Orleans, Detroit, San Francisco and Pittsburgh.

MOUSE MUSEUM
NEW YORK (AP) — The Whitney Museum of American Art is showing "The Mouse Museum-The Ray Gun Wing: Two Collections-Two Buildings," through Nov. 26. The double exhibit relates to the process of classification, organization and other activities involved with the establishment and maintenance of a collection. It may be viewed as a parody of conventional museum procedures.

HOP, SKIP AND A BLOCK — Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett (33) dances through a hole in the line provided by an unidentified teammate who was upended when he threw the block. Dallas Finds Old Winning Recipe

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are brewing that potent Super Bowl-winning concoction of a heavy dose of Doomsday Defense and a deadly dash of Roger Staubach's passing.

Coach Tom Landry just hopes his team didn't find the old recipe too late. Staubach threw three touchdown passes and the Randy White-led defense sacked two New York Giants quarterbacks eight times in a 24-3 National Football League rout Sunday that was worse than the score indicated.

The Dallas defense hasn't allowed a touchdown in its last 11 quarters. "We shut down their offense, and that wasn't easy," Landry said. "We were a super football team last year in the playoffs, but we haven't reached that level yet. We just need a re-education on that type of winning."

The eager-to-learn Cowboys gave the Giants several lessons. Starting quarterback Joe Pisarcik was knocked groggy in the second quarter and was still woozy after the game.

Running back Willie Spencer suffered a painful hip pointer. Staubach rifled touchdown passes of 17 and 30 yards to Tony Hill and a 23-yard scoring shot to tight end Billy Joe Dupree.

"Staubach had a sensational game," Giant Coach John McVay said. "He is just great and makes the whole thing happen."

McVay said he tried to ambush the Dallas offense with a three-man front. "We went with a 3-4 front as an element of surprise," McVay said. "We knew Dallas had a short week to prepare and would not be expecting it."

"Pisarcik got hit in the head and we lost some halfbacks, but mostly what was wrong with our offense was the Dallas defense."

The Cowboys, now 4-2, remain two games behind unbeaten Washington in the National Conference's Eastern Division, while the Giants dropped to 3-3.

"We put in a couple of new wrinkles, like a bootleg off the spread. All our offense is getting better," Staubach said.

Dallas didn't escape without injury. Doug Dennison suffered a knee injury and Tony Dorsett sprained an ankle.

New York's only points came on a 37-yard field goal by Joe Danelo. The deepest the Giants penetrated was to the Dallas 20.

"Everybody keeps coming at us like it was the Super Bowl for them, but we have to be ready for this," safety Cliff Harris said. "We weren't playing like we did last year."

Landry obviously was adhering to the old coaching creed of playing them just one game at a time.

Asked how he thinks the Cowboys will do next week, Landry replied: "Who do we play next? — Is it St. Louis or Philadelphia?"

Last-Minute Oakland TD Pass Upends Stubborn Oilers 21-17

OAKLAND (AP) — Charles Phillips swears the Oakland Raiders don't purposely wait until the final seconds to beat somebody. It only seems like that way.

"It's not like we rehearse it or anything — but it is the same old tune week after week," Phillips admitted Sunday after the Raiders came from behind in the final minute to beat the Houston Oilers 21-17. "It always seems to come down to the final moments."

The Raiders, who have a history of death-defying rallies, had already won two National Football League games this season on the final play. This time, a 3-yard Ken Stabler pass to Dave Casper with 42 seconds left completed the Oakland comeback from a 17-7 deficit.

But it was defensive back Phillips, beaten badly on an second quarter touchdown pass, who made the usual end-of-the game heroics possible with a 96-yard score on a recovered fumble.

Midway through the third period, Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell appeared headed for the clinching touchdown for Houston as he circled left end from the four with the Oilers ahead 17-7.

But defensive end Dave Browning got a hand on the ball which popped over to Phillips, who was on the ground. He got up and ran the length of the field untouched for the turnaround touchdown.

"Nobody feels worse about this than I do," a dejected Campbell said after seeing his 103-yard rushing day wasted by the fumble. "I'm just thinking about Buffalo (the next opponent) now."

The victory was Oakland's 10th in 11 games with the Oilers since 1966 and Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini, who had touchdown passes of 56 and 17 yards Sunday, came up with his own reason for the Raiders' dominance.

"Every time we walk on this field, something weird happens at the end," he

Earl Scudday The Road Back

A VICTORY OVER THE New York Giants does not ordinarily cause the citizens of Dallas to dance in the streets or pop champagne corks. They are accustomed to their Cowboys beating the guys from Gotham, or Jersey Meadows, or wherever.

But there was genuine jubilation in the Metroplex late Sunday afternoon after the 'Pokes posted a rather decisive win over the New Yorkers. The home town lads really needed that, after the disappointing loss to the Redskins last Monday night, and it just may have been the first step back up the road to glory.

There also was a collective sigh of relief that quarterback Roger Staubach, the main man in the Cowboy attack, survived assault and battery by the Giants. The New Yorkers acted as if straight-arrow Roger had insulted their mothers or sisters, and gave the Dodger a thorough pounding. Officials threw the flag on two late hits by the Giants, who apparently felt 30 yards in penalties was a cheap price for the pleasure of knocking Roger on his head.

Mentally, the 'Pokes should have been ripe for an upset. After losing to Washington, they had only three days to prepare for the Giants. But Coach Tom Landry got his troops together and the scoreboard showed the results.

DALLAS' MOUNTING CASUALTY list poses a grave concern for club officials and fans. There's plenty of time for the Cowboys to make one of their patented stretch drives and win all the marbles. But they must have their key players in uniform to do the job — especially Staubach, the thin corps of wide receivers and the rapidly dwindling list of available running backs.

Staubach remains reasonably healthy despite a severe pounding each week. Wide receivers Drew Pearson and Tony Hill are playing with bumps and bruises, with Butch Johnson as the only relief man at both positions. Tight end already is in bad shape, with Jay Saldi out for the season and 28-year-old Jackie Smith trying to fill the gap.

Now second-team running back Doug Dennison is disabled, leaving backup duties to rookie Alois Blackwell.

But the Dallas defense really resembles a battlefield. Linebacker Thomas Henderson has been ailing since the opening game, along with All-Pro safety Cliff Harris. Cornerback Bennie Barnes has been playing with an injured foot and his replacement, Mark Washington, has joined the hospital list.

The Cowboys absolutely cannot afford to lose any more people in the secondary, that's for sure.

IF DALLAS CAN keep its big guns in action, history encourages speculation that the 'Pokes will make a run for the title in the last half of the season.

Remember 1970? The Cowboys were 5-4 in November, after losing to the Cardinals 38-0 on a Monday night, then won five straight games to get into the playoffs.

Just a year later, Dallas was 4-3 at midseason and it looked bad for the Lone

Los Angeles Coach Jim Gilliam Dies

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Dodger coach Jim Gilliam, who never regained consciousness after a stroke three weeks ago, has died of a cardiac arrest one day after his team won its second consecutive National League pennant.

Gilliam, 49, died late Sunday night at Daniel Freeman Hospital, said spokesman Larry Pilcher. He had been in the hospital since Sept. 15, when he lapsed into a coma following surgery for a cerebral hemorrhage.

"He was a great guy and a wonderful man," said Al Campanis, Dodger vice president and general manager. "He was an excellent instructor and people liked him very much."

Gilliam's playing and coaching career with the Dodgers spanned 26 years. He began as a gentlemanly, always-hustling infielder who won legions of fans while playing with the club in Brooklyn and Los Angeles.

Gilliam was senior staff member, first base coach and batting instructor for the Dodgers.

The Dodgers dedicated their National League playoff games to Gilliam and said they would do the same in the World Series against the New York Yankees.

"We dedicated the playoffs to a great man, a great human being and we're dedicating the Fall Classic to him," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda.

Outfielder Dusty Baker said after the winning playoff game: "I had an almost spiritual feeling for Gilliam. I had problems on and off the field this year, and Gilliam was right there, helping."

A native of Nashville, Tenn., Gilliam began his baseball career as batboy for the Elite Giants of the old Negro Baseball League. He began playing for the team when he was 17 and eventually caught the Dodgers' eye.

Known as "Junior" in his early career, Gilliam broke into the major leagues with Brooklyn in 1953. He replaced Hall of Famer Jackie Robinson, the first black player in the modern major leagues, at second base.

That season turned out to be a banner year for Gilliam. He hit .278 and won honors as National League Rookie of the Year. He remained in the game as a full-time hitter with a .265 average until 1965.

Steelers Crush Falcons To Run Record To 6-0

By JOHN NELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Steelers are off to the best start of their 46 years in the National Football League, and they're loving every yard of it.

With Terry Bradshaw completing all but five of the 18 passes he attempted for 231 yards and Franco Harris running for 104 yards, the Steelers walloped Atlanta 31-7 Sunday.

Pittsburgh is now 6-0 — one of three NFL teams with a perfect record — and leads the American Conference Central Division by two full games over Cleveland.

"The only thing we get excited about is the last one," Steelers defensive tackle Joe Greene said after the game. "I mean, really jumping up and down and saying, 'Wow, wee!'"

Greene's nonchalance, however, did not typify the Steelers. In fact, Coach Chuck Noll called Bradshaw to the sidelines in the third quarter and told him to quit smiling and waving to his wife, figure skater JoJo Starbuck, who was sitting in the stands.

"He (Noll) was smiling when he called Terry," said wide receiver Lynn Swan. "After all, he has often said, 'Let's make Sunday fun-day.'"

One of Bradshaw's passes was for a touchdown, an 11-yarder to John Stallworth in the fourth quarter, and the Pittsburgh quarterback ran 6 yards for a second-quarter score. Rocky Bleier also scored twice.

Like Pittsburgh, Los Angeles easily held onto its flawless record, downing San Francisco 27-10. The other 6-0 team, Washington, had to scramble past Detroit 21-19 on a Joe Theismann touchdown pass with less than two minutes to go.

Elsewhere in the NFL, Oakland rallied to beat Houston 21-17, Dallas clobbered the New York Giants 24-3, Green Bay outdueled Chicago 24-14, Cleveland defeated New Orleans 24-16, San Diego shut out Denver 23-0, New England whipped Philadelphia 24-14, Baltimore beat St. Louis 30-17, Tampa Bay routed Kansas City 30-13, Seattle edged Minnesota 29-28 and the New York Jets crushed Buffalo 45-14. Monday night's game pits winless Cincinnati against Miami.

Rams 27, 49ers 10

Rhodes scholar Pat Haden made the 49ers smart with a pair of touchdown passes, a 3-yarder to John Cappelletti and an 11-yarder to Willie Miller, and Cullen Bryant ran 10 yards for a touchdown as LA took a whopping four-game lead over Atlanta in the AFC West.

San Francisco's O.J. Simpson ran for 83 yards on 20 carries and caught four passes worth 30 yards, but the Rams' defense kept him out of the end zone.

Redskins 21, Lions 19

Theismann's winning pass, a 25-yarder to John McDaniel, came with 1:24 left as Washington retained its two-game lead over Dallas in the National Conference West.

The Redskins led 14-12 on a 21-yard TD pass from Theismann to Jean Fugett early in the fourth quarter, but Detroit forced Theismann to try again when Rick Kane ran 6 yards for a score with 5:52 left.

Packers 24, Bears 14

The Green Bay-Chicago game was for the NFC Central lead, and the Packers won it with a "shades of the 1960s" defensive performance. Safety Steve Luke returned an intercepted pass 63 yards for a touchdown and recovered a fumble that set up a field goal. Defensive tackle Carl Barzilauskas intercepted a pass that set up another TD.

Quarterback David Whitehurst capped the Packers' scoring with a 58-yard pass to rookie James Lofton.

Browns 24, Saints 16

Cleo Miller rushed for 93 yards and scored a touchdown, and Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Ozzie Newsome in the Browns' victory.

Calvin Hill, picked up by Cleveland to replace the injured Greg Pruitt, ran 58 yards and was instrumental in a drive that led to Miller's touchdown.

Chargers 23, Broncos 9

Dan Fouts completed 22 of 34 passes, including a 14-yard TD to Hank Bryan, and San Diego's defense recorded the shutout by stopping Denver's only scoring threats. One Bronco drive stalled on downs in the final minute on the Chargers 7-yard line.

Patriots 24, Eagles 14

New England quarterback Steve Grogan threw 58 yards to Stanley Morgan for a touchdown and linebacker Steve McMichael recovered three Philadelphia fumbles. Running backs Sam Cunningham and Don Calhoun scored for the Patriots on short runs.

Colts 30, Cards 17

Lyle Blackwood intercepted a pass and ran 79 yards for a touchdown and blocked punts by Randy Burke and Lloyd Mumford set up other scores as Baltimore sent first-year NFL Coach Tom Wilkerson's Cardinals down to their eighth straight loss. Colts quarterback Jim Troupe passed for one TD and ran for another.

Bucs 30, Chiefs 13

Rookie Doug Williams threw for 200 yards and engineered three touchdowns in a comeback victory. Seattle quarterback Jim Zorn ran for touchdowns of 12 and 22 yards and passed for another.

Jets 45, Bills 14

Kevin Long ran for three touchdowns, and Bruce Harper returned a punt 85 yards for a TD to help the New York Jets to the highest scoring game this year in the NFL.

Hollywood Prepares For Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Ready when you are, C.B. That's right, Hollywood is one day away from the gala opening of the sequel to last year's box office smash, the "Los Angeles Dodgers Meet Murderers' Row."

In baseball lingo, that's the second straight go-round between the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers and the American League kingpins, the New York Yankees, in the 75th anniversary World Series, opening in Los Angeles Tuesday.

For a sequel to sell, audiences can't be given the same script, so this year's East-West confrontation has a twist worthy of Alfred Hitchcock.

It seems the Dodgers, those advocates of hug-ins on the field, aren't wearing the white hats anymore. And the fussin', feudin' Yanks are no longer sneering under black hats.

After a much-publicized clubhouse fist fight between the Dodgers' Steve Garvey and Don Sutton and the Yanks' disposition turning sweet with a twist of Manager Bob Lemon, the old hero-villain labels just don't apply anymore.

"The last few months all you read was that everything was lovey-dovey with us, while the Dodgers have been bickering," said Graig Nettles, one of the home run heroes in New York's 2-1, pennant-clinching victory over the hard-luck Kansas City Royals Saturday night. "I hope they haven't found the key to our success."

The Yankees beat the Dodgers in a six-game World Series last year in spite of themselves, overcoming bitter player disputes and antagonisms involving owner George Steinbrenner and then Yankee skipper Billy Martin.

Ironically, the Dodgers ripped a page out of the Yanks' book this year, spurring past West Division rivals Cincinnati and San Francisco right after the Garvey-Sutton brawl. Sutton said Garvey's all-American image was fraudulent, calling slugger Reggie Smith the real leader of the team. Garvey had a terrific season, then smacked four homers to lead the Dodgers over Philadelphia for their second straight NL pennant.

Meanwhile, the Yanks had stumbled a whopping 14 games behind Boston several days before the easy-going Lemon replaced the volatile Martin. In Lemon's tenure, the Yankees posted a mark of 49-20 in the regular season and then merrily turned aside Kansas City for the third straight year.

"Lemon straightened things out and got us moving," said Roy White, who became a regular under Lemon.

New York at Los Angeles, 7:30 p.m., if necessary

Even Thurman Munson, the Yankee captain, has noticed the difference. "Bashall's a lot of fun again," said Munson, whose feud with Reggie Jackson, the Most Valuable Player in last year's World Series, had been brewing again before Lemon managed to sweep it under his magic carpet.

So with practically the same cast of characters as last year — with only Dodger black and blue replacing Dodger blue and Yankee pinstripes covering up their 1977 prison stripes — it's time to raise the curtain on another World Series.

LA Olympics Get Approval

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The International Olympic Committee today gave the final go-ahead to Los Angeles to stage the 1984 Summer Games.

A special mail ballot among members approved by a large majority a decision by the IOC executive board in August which had recommended acceptance of Los Angeles' plan to hold and finance the Games.

The vote was 74-3 in favor of the recommendation with eight abstentions. Forty-five votes were needed for approval.

An IOC spokesman declined to name the three members who rejected the recommendation of the executive board, "but we might be able to tell you at a later time," he said. Recommendation to approve the signing of two contracts enabling Los Angeles to stage the Games was given on Aug. 31 by IOC President Lord Killanin — but he said at the time that the decision could only be final if IOC members ratified it by a mail vote before Oct. 7.

The statement announcing the balloting said only 85 of the world body's 89 members were eligible to take part in the vote because the other four had not yet been sworn into the organization.

The spokesman said the result of the ballot had already been sent to U.S. Olympic Committee headquarters in New York.

Oilers Fall

explained. "Oakland is good...and lucky."

Oiler Coach Bum Phillips disagreed. "The Raiders are not lucky," he said. "They've won too many games like this to be lucky."

Houston's luck in close games this year has been equally divided — winning three games by a total of seven points and losing the same number by a total of 14. The Raiders are 4-2, with a 28-3 victory over Green Bay the only laughter.

Snyder Football Boss Credits Tackle For Team's Success

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Who says offensive tackles don't get any respect. Certainly not, Snyder Coach Mike Jenkins.

The Snyder Tigers currently are on top of district 3-AAA with a 4-1 record. But the Tigers haven't dominated any of their contests. Snyder has only outscored the opposition 55-49.

Thus, Jenkins credits left tackle Baron Land for Snyder's non-district success.

"We run to Baron's side about 75 percent of the time," said Jenkins. "He's been able to open the holes when we have needed them the most."

Besides Land, Jenkins believes the Tigers' defense is a primary reason for Snyder's four victories.

"I know you must hear this every week, but we have been getting a good team effort," said Jenkins.

Since an opening 32-8 loss to Midland Lee, the Tigers have only relinquished a total of 17 points in their last four games.

What's wrong with Snyder's offense?

"We've suffered some key injuries," said Jenkins. We've also moved so players to different positions. But despite all this, I really think it's just a matter of execution." Snyder runs out of the veer offense.

One injury in particular that has slowed Snyder's offensive attack is a leg injury suffered by quarterback Clay Johnson. Johnson has missed the first five games of the season.

"We're kind of excited," said Jenkins. "Because Clay will be back this week for Pecos."

When asked if Snyder's execution problem has resulted in a large number of penalties and fumbles, Jenkins laughed. "We have had more than our share."

Against Pecos this week, Jenkins admits that Snyder is going to have to control the football to win the game.

"Gosh, Pecos has scored so many more points than their opponents that it's frightening," said Jenkins.

Frightening is an accurate word to describe Pecos' offensive success.

Pecos has put 149 points on the board. The Eagle defense has only allowed 13 points.

If Snyder's offense isn't able to jell, Jenkins is has a proven defense to rely on.

The Tiger coach cited end Mike Hicks, linebackers Mark Davis and Wes Partain, along with back Sid Sullenger.

Beadle Nabs Drag Title

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Rob Bruins admitted last month that he was awed by his matchup with veteran Don "Big Daddy" Garlits in the finals of the National Hot Rod Association's Nationals at Indianapolis Raceway Park. Perhaps he learned from the experience.

Bruins, 26, of Bremerton, Wash., finished second to Garlits at Indianapolis, but defeated the 46-year-old veteran in the semifinals and went on to capture Top Fuel Eliminator honors Sunday in the Winston World Finals of drag racing at Ontario Motor Speedway.

It was the second major victory for Bruins, who won the NHRA's Fall Nationals event at Seattle, Wash., two weeks ago.

Bruins covered the quarter-mile course at Ontario in 5.981 seconds at a speed of 247.58 miles-per-hour in the final round Sunday. His challenger in the finals, Gary Beck of El Toro, Calif., was left sitting at the starting line with fuel injection problems.

Winners in the three other professional racing categories Sunday were Raymond Beadle of Dallas, Bob Glidden of Whitehall, Ind., and Kenny Cook of Louisville, Ky.

Beadle, formerly of Lubbock, drove his Blue Max Plymouth Arrow to victory in the Funny Car category to earn about $13,000. He defeated 1978 National champion Bob McEwen of Fountain Valley, Calif., in the finals.

Glidden won the Pro Stock division, defeating Larry Lombardo of Malvern, Pa., in the finals. The win was worth $12,000.

Cook captured Pro Comp honors by defeating Ben Griffin of Dallas in the final round.

World titles in all four sportsman categories recognized by the NHRA were also decided Sunday. Bobby Cross of Mesquite won the Competition Eliminator championship, Jeff Leininger of Bellaire captured the Modified Eliminator competition, Bobby Warren of Clinton, S.C. was the Super Stock Eliminator winner.

"These guys have really solidified our defense," said Jenkins. "And as the time has gone by, our defense has continued to improve, which has helped our confidence."

Though Snyder has played better than anybody in 3-AAA, Jenkins isn't getting a big head.

"Lake View was the preseason choice to win the title," said Jenkins. "I think they're still the team to beat. Lake View has played a tougher non-district schedule than us."

But now that Snyder's injuries have healed, Jenkins admits the Tigers aren't ready yet to concede the district championship.

"Of course, our 4-1 record is erased when the district gets underway," said Jenkins. "But I have to admit that I'm a little surprised we've done this well so far."

Tech Boss Eyes Lineup Changes

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

Rex Dockery whistled, then held up four fingers.

"Look, we've played four tough football teams already."

If it is possible to play a football season in chapters, then Dockery closed that opening chapter Saturday afternoon.

"There were some times that I wondered if we could win any of those four," said Dockery, as he looked back on the opening games of his head-coaching career.

The Raiders had returned from Saturday afternoon's 38-9 losing experience in College Station, and as he sat in his office in Jones Stadium Sunday, Dockery reviewed that murderous run of Southern California, Arizona, Texas and the Aggies.

Tech whipped Arizona 41-26 for the only win in the four contests.

"I've said it all along, I know, but we're a young team, and I'm convinced that we're going to get better. But, (after the Aggie loss) we have to get back up. We really need to win this one."

"It's not going to be easy (to beat New Mexico this week in Albuquerque). They'll be playing at home, they're coming off a big win; they came from behind.

So, they'll be pumped up."

New Mexico, down 15-0 at Wyoming, rebounded to win 19-15, in a Western Athletic Conference game.

Before that game, the Raiders will hit the practice field, and Dockery noted that some lineup changes could be made, as a result of performances against the Aggies. However, Dockery declined to say what positions would be affected.

Tech came out of the physical contest with two questionable injuries. Linebacker Jeff Copeland limped off the field early with an ankle injury, and backup defensive end Olan Tisdale has an "ankle-arch problem which continues to bother him."

Dockery said he would know more today on the status of the two players.

"We did some things well (against the Aggies)," Dockery noted, "and, of course, Blade Adams and Maury Buford continued to help us with their kicking. Maury had a couple of really big kicks for us."

Buford boomed nine punts for a 42.1-yard average and led one measuring 75 yards, the seventh longest in Tech history. Buford was second in the nation in punting prior to this week and increased his average by more than a yard.

And Adams took three field goals, producing all of Tech's points for the second game this season (the other was against USC). Adams has booted eight field goals without a miss this season.

"We have our best pass protection, as good as against Texas," Dockery added. "In the first half, our defense was good. We had a couple of breakdowns (once when Aggie quarterback Mike Mosley zipped 64 yards for a touchdown)."

"They controlled us the last half; the information really hurt us. You have to change philosophies from the wishbone to the I, and they did a good job with them against us."

"I felt good the way we came back in the last quarter and made some yardage against them."

Dockery remarked that the Raiders dropped some passes but "Ron Reeves (at quarterback) played better than against Texas. He forced a couple of pickoffs, but he was facing some good defensive players."

Dockery said Kim Taliaferro had his best game since being moved to center, and offensive guard Larry Martin had another good game.

"Larry Flowers (strong safety) and Jeff McKinney (defensive end) played well. And I thought Jeff Watts (free safety) played well for his first game to start."

But, said Dockery, "I don't think we had the mental edge we had against Texas. We didn't play with the intensity of that game."

"We have to regroup."

The second chapter begins this week.

Texas A&M-Houston Encounter Heads SWC Football Slate

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's the first of many Big Shootouts to come Saturday night at Houston.

Two legitimate threats to the Southwest Conference football championship, currently owned by the University of Texas, loom.

The Texas Aggies, boasting the best defense in the country and an offense to match, meet the fast-improving University of Houston Cougars in the AstroDome.

The Aggies mashed Texas Tech 38-9 Saturday while Houston went through a 20-18 nail-biter against the Baylor Bears. Both teams are 1-0 in league play. Texas is the conference leader at 2-0.

Two years ago the Aggies were upset by the Cougars in Houston but got revenge for that loss with a one-sided victory in College Station last December.

And it will more than likely be December before the host team for the Cotton Bowl is decided with the league more balanced than ever.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman figures his players learned something in the cliff-hanging victory over Baylor.

"Football is a game 60 minutes long, deadly serious; young players must learn this," said Yeoman after surviving a last second Baylor field goal attempt.

Everyone has been talking about the Texas A&M defense, but Texas Tech Coach Rex Dockery would like to draw notice to the Aggie offense.

"Their offense is very hard to stop."

said Dockery.

Aggie Coach Emory Bellard said "We're a good offensive football team. It doesn't matter what formation we line up in. We've got some excellent athletes and they're going to make yardage no matter how you line 'em up. There is room in our offensive scheme for both the Wishbone and the I."

Arkansas mauled Texas Christian 42-3 Saturday in the only other SWC contest.

On the intersectional front, Ohio State was fortunate to escape with a 25-35 tie against SMU, and No. 1 ranked Oklahoma walked all over Texas 31-10 in the 73rd renewal of their annual grudge game.

The SWC is 12-11-1 against outside competition for the year with a chance to pad the margin this week.

SMU is at Baylor in what should be a rousing offensive show and Rice is at TCU in other league games.

On the intersectional front, Texas hosts North Texas State and Texas Tech is at New Mexico.

Sophomore quarterback Mike Ford had the second best passing day in SMU history against Ohio State. He completed 36 of 57 passes for 341 yards and one touchdown. It was the most points scored against Ohio State since 1967 or over the last 97 games.

Baylor has lost four straight games by a grand total of 14 points.

"I still think we're close to being a great football team," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "But I tell you, man, I'm cratered. I think the team is, too. If they weren't they wouldn't be human."

Schoolboy Leaders Nab Wins

By The Associated Press
Lake Highlands stole a victory from 8th-ranked Highland Park this weekend pirating one Scot pass and heisting a fumble in mid-air to set up touchdowns in a 25-15 upset.

Lake Highlands also added insult to injury by sacking the Highland Park quarterback in his own end zone.

Arlington Lamar, No. 3 in the Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, staged a frantic fourth-quarter rally keyed by David Cunningham's 50-yard touchdown pass to Rich Thompson to slip past upstart Haltom City 15-14.

Lamar heroic's appeared to go for naught when Tim Sanders lofted a 29-yard scoring strike to Troy Kates with less than two minutes to play. But Haltom City was flagged for an illegal receiver downfield and the Lamar victory was preserved.

Top-ranked Temple waltzed to a 35-0 win over Waco University as Mark McQueen tossed for two touchdowns and Carl Robinson dashed for two others.

Herkie Walls streaked 63 yards for one score and threw a 40-yard bomb for another as 2nd-ranked Garland rolled to an easy 27-0 win over Corsicana.

San Antonio Churchill, No. 5, raced to 40-7 win over San Antonio Clemens; Corpus Christi Carroll, No. 6, thumped Corpus Christi Ray, 21-7; Odessa Permian, No. 7, trounced Midland, 28-0; and LaPorte nudged Rayburn, 14-11.

Three fourth-quarter touchdowns protected Huntsville's top-billing in class AAA as the Hornets trimmed Houston Fort 21-7.

Quarterback Lloyd Archie galloped 40 yards for Huntsville's first score and set up the second with a nifty 44 yard punt return.

Brandon Carroll rambled for 266 yards and two touchdowns as 2nd-ranked Gonzales crushed Fort Lavaca, 56-0. The Apaches collected 32 first downs, amassed 540 total yards including 466 on the ground.

Brownwood, No. 4, downed Bowie, 25-7; Raymondville, No. 5, stroled to a 20-0 win over Edcouch-Elba; Bay City stomped Hitchcock, 30-3; Fort Stockton, No. 7, cruised to a 22-0 win over Sweetwater; 9th-ranked Pecos rolled to a 26-6 win over Alpine and Kerrville Tivy nudged South San West 34-20.

Friendswood, No. 8, was the only ranked class AAA team to lose Friday, as it was bounced by Brazosport 35-7.

Top-ranked Mount Vernon had the night off and 2nd-ranked class AA Newton might as well have, blasting Hemphill 69-6.

Bridgeport, No. 3, bombed Granbury, 37-3; 4th-ranked Muleshoe edged Abernathy, 26-20; Cameron, No. 5, outdistanced Waco, 32-14; 6th-ranked Fort Isabel defeated Sharyland, 33-13; 7th-ranked Sealy clobbered Rice Consolidated, 44-14; Breckenridge, No. 8, dropped Clyde, 21-0; Childress, No. 9, shelled Clarendon, 35-8 and Tahoka, No. 10, crushed Cooper, 41-0.

Tony Don Craddock's four first-half touchdowns led top-ranked Farmersville to a 35-6 rout over Coppell. But 2nd-ranked Grapeland found more than it could handle in Groveton, losing 9-0.

Delton, No. 4, popped Bangs, 43-8; unheralded Knox City upset 6th-ranked Haskell, 6-3; Wellington, No. 8, beat Electra, 24-14; and 10th-ranked Charlotte rolled to a 26-6 win over Natalia.

LCC In Action

WICHITA FALLS (Special) — The Lubbock Christian College women's volleyball team will meet Midwestern University here today starting at 4 p.m. Following the contest, LCC will take on McMurry.

The Chaps finished sixth recently at the Oklahoma State University tournament in Stillwater. One of their wins at the event was over Midwestern.

Star lads. But the Cowboys suddenly put it all together and won seven straight en route to their first Super Bowl triumph.

Only in 1974, when Dallas lost four of its first five games, have the 'Pokes been unable to overcome early-season adversity and make a run for the moon and glory.

But all these stirring finishes were possible because the Cowboys' key performers were physically able to perform during those crucial stretch drives. They couldn't have done it without the Staubachs and the Lee Roy Jordans and the Drew Pearsons. No wonder Landry wins when he sees Roger go down as many times as he did Sunday!

THERE STILL is a rough road ahead for the 'Pokes. The NFC East is tougher than trigonometry this year, with the Redskins on the warpath and the Eagles flying high. Despite their loss to a very good New England team last weekend, Dallas is through those pesky Giants for this year, thankfally, and should say farewell to the Cardinals next Sunday.

But that new scheduling system plays some dirty tricks on Dallas, which still must face the Green Bay Packers, Minnesota Vikings, Miami Dolphins and the Patriots, among others. Talk about difficult!

Landry said weeks ago that he thought a 12-4 record would win the division and clinch a playoff berth. To post that kind of mark, the Cowboys would have to win eight of their last 10 games. That is not very likely.

Would you believe 11-5? And would it get the Cowboys into the playoffs? That is the million-dollar question.

Stock Mart Extends Price Rally

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market extended last week's rally today, posting a moderate gain in slow trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 14.20 last week, rose another 4.42 to 884.44 by noon today.

Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

A quiet session was expected with many investors, including New York banks and a number of other investing institutions, closed for Columbus Day.

Analysts found no special developments in the economic news to stimulate buying.

What did seem to be helping the market was the relatively strong showing of stock prices last week, in the face of such adverse news as the government's report Thursday that wholesale prices of finished goods climbed at a 10.8 percent annual rate in September.

Litton Industries led the active list, up 1 at 28 1/2. The company said it had reached agreement in principle to provide a $1.5 billion nationwide "command control and communications" system for Saudi Arabia.

The NYSE's composite index gained .24 to 58.58. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed .58 to 170.81.

Volume on the Big Board totaled just 7.76 million shares at noon-time, down from 11.42 million at the same point Friday.

Columnist Criticizes Kirbo Investigation

ATLANTA (AP) - Charles Kirbo, a close friend of President Carter, says he has a "good case" against Jack Anderson after conducting an investigation on his own of the syndicated columnist.

Anderson, who recently outlined an alleged scheme to pressure the Carter administration into easing the legal push against fugitive financier Robert Vesco, called Kirbo's probe "the same kind of tricky business that we got from (former President Richard) Nixon."

Kirbo was among several Carter associates cited by Anderson as targets of the alleged scheme.

In a column today, Anderson wrote, "Kirbo's line of questioning... suggests he is more interested in discrediting us than in exposing the Vesco plot. He is offended at us for reporting that he had been in touch with the influence peddler - a contact that his office records revealed but that he avowedly cannot recall."

Anderson had said the Carter administration halted any serious effort to extradite Vesco after the scheme was put in motion, but he stopped short of saying Vesco's alleged pressure plan was responsible for the change in policy.

Vesco fled the United States after being accused of stealing millions of dollars from an international investment company.

Anderson's column on Sept. 28 said he had discovered that some of the documents used in writing his Vesco column had been "reconstructed" by his sources.

"The documents had implicated Kirbo and Carter aide, Hamilton Jordan, in the Vesco affair, and Anderson said his own suspicions and investigation had led to the discovery that the documents were not authentic."

On Sunday, Kirbo said he had "positive proof" that Anderson actually learned of the reconstruction from a woman who contacted one of Anderson's investigators. Kirbo said the woman told the investigator that the documents were fakes before the Sept. 28 column appeared.

Anderson said the woman did contact his organization before that date but said he had launched his investigation of the documents before that contact was made.

"He's just trying to dig out from the damn thing now," Kirbo said.

Camp Fire Kids, Adults Play, Work Together

For the children, Camp Fire is a source of both enjoyment and growth. "Our motto is to give service," explained Mrs. Robertson. "We're a youth organization which encourages our members to give service and to develop their many potentials, such as working with people in the community and learning new skills. We want them to develop some sense of who they are and where they want to go and what they want to do."

Mrs. Rhonda Haralson, newly appointed field director of day camps, said Camp Fire achieves its goal of teaching its youth members skills and developing their potentials on an almost personal level. "We emphasize individuals," said Mrs. Haralson. "We put emphasis on a small group where a child can have more emphasis on his individual development and growth rate rather than on growth of the organization. We are concerned less with numbers and more with quality."

And for those who think Camp Fire only offers this training to girls, they should look at Mrs. Preston's boys. They were some of the first male members of Camp Fire in Lubbock. Mrs. Preston said they became interested when they accompanied her and her daughter to day camp one year. Many of the other counselors brought their sons and two years ago the Camp Fire Council opened its membership. "The boys must be really enjoying it to be the first in a traditionally girls' organization. It has to be something for the boys to want to continue," said their mother.

The outgoing field director of day camps, Sharon Robertson, said she agreed with Mrs. Preston that "leaders have a wonderful time," because for many of them, "they get to do things they may have missed when they were young."

Mrs. Preston explained that one reason, in addition to the fun, friends met and skills learned, which made her enjoy belonging and working in Camp Fire, is the organization itself. She said leaders get assistance from directors. The organization offers training to leaders and holds monthly meetings as idea sessions for them. "I feel I'm part of the total organization and I have the people to back me up and help me out. They make themselves available," Mrs. Preston said.

Korchnoi Closes Gap With Win

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) - Challenger Viktor Korchnoi scored a surprise victory Sunday in the 29th game of the world chess championship match and narrowed champion Anatoly Karpov's lead to one game.

Korchnoi, once trailing 5-2, has cut that to 5-4. The first man to win six games wins the championship.

The 47-year-old defector from the Soviet Union forced the 27-year-old Soviet champion to concede defeat after Korchnoi's 79th move, advancing his rook pawn to sixth rank in an attempt to promote it to a queen. It was apparent that Karpov could not prevent it from queening, and after deliberating for five minutes he signed the score sheet and left the stage.

"I'm a little bit tired. I still have slight flu," said Korchnoi as jubilant supporters and members of his entourage congratulated him.

"It was a sensational victory. Korchnoi played like a world champion; he completely outplayed Karpov in the end game," said international master Harry Golombek of England.

The 30th game is scheduled Tuesday.

Better Hearing Aid Center Still Serving From Lubbock, Clovis

Jack B. Price, certified hearing aid audiologist, is on the job at both the Lubbock facility at No. 30 Redbud Square, and at the Clovis Hearing Aid Center, 117 E. 7th St. in Clovis, N.M. Price is in the Lubbock office on Tuesday, Wednesdays and Fridays, and to further serve the western Panhandle and South Plains and eastern New Mexico, he is at Clovis on Mondays and Thursdays.

Price, a longtime Lubbock resident, in the recent past was associated with the late James O. Davidson at the Better Hearing Aid Center. Thoroughly experienced and with a genuine desire to assist the hard-of-hearing as a multi-line dealer, he has pledged to continue the services that the public has learned to expect at the Better Hearing Aid Center.

"So, come on in; take your pick of the center and service most readily available to you. Jack B. Price renders the same great service at each location."

"We are indeed appreciative of the friends of years past, and we trust that with our new association we can serve you to the fullest in months and years to come," is the word from Price.

Located about midway between 4th Street and 19th Street on Slide Road, the Lubbock firm specializes in all-in-the-ear models. Service and repairs on any make of hearing aid is expertly rendered.

Assistance "after the sale" is most notable there as an added reason for depending on the Better Hearing Aid Center and its qualified staff.

And remember... at the Better Hearing Aid Center there is a liberal hearing aid trial rental plan.

ON THE JOB — Jack B. Price, certified hearing aid audiologist, is serving at Better Hearing Aid Center, together with longtime staffmember Agnes Vanderveer, secretary. They invite inquiries about the firm's services in sales and repairs at its two big area centers, in Lubbock and in Clovis (N.M.)

Workshops, Classes, Products Galore Await At Village Craft

Christmas workshops, painting and craft classes and a galaxy of newly-arrived holiday items vie for one's immediate interest and attention (fun and profit, too) at Village Craft Corner in South Plains Mall.

A really great selection of instructors is involved.

Mary Moudy
Two-day Christmas Tole Painting Workshops are set under direction of the well-known and respected Mary Moudy of Happy (Tex.)

Dates for these are Oct. 19-20 and Nov. 2-3, from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m., and 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. each day. The first workshop will involve an "angel" and the second will be a "Santa."

Register Now
Pre-registration is necessary, and one should make arrangements for these and other Village Craft Corner classes and/or workshops at earliest possible time to be sure of a place in these groups that are of necessity limited in number.

Mary Moudy is most adept in acrylic, watercolor and tole. She has lived in the Panhandle of Texas since 1950 and has studied under Fredric Taubes, Bob Bayle, Ruth Biffle, Georgia Feazle, Jan Burnett, Claudia Neelley, Jerri Warren, Dr. Robert Hobbs, Claude Salley, Michael McCulloch, David Rindlisbacher, Dr. Emilio Caballero and others.

She has had one-person exhibits and has exhibited in a number of museums, institutions etc. and has been awarded "best of show" in numerous exhibits.

Mary Moudy's paintings reflect her love and understanding of color, and Village Craft Corner feels most fortunate in bringing her here for the two workshops.

Barbara Bilberry
Barbara Bilberry, one of the most popular and well-qualified artists in the area, will begin Beginning Oil (canvas) classes at Village Craft Corner Oct. 16, with sessions from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.

She has studied with Ruth Barnett, Jeanie Lewis, Sherry Nelson, Mary Stewart, Jane Hodgkins, Walter Foster and a host of others, becoming most adept in seascapes, sketching, etc.

Mac Carow
Then, on Oct. 17, classes will start in Portraits (oils or pastels) with sessions from 10:30 until 1:30, and with Mac Carow as instructor.

Mac, always heartily received here, also will begin a portrait class, in oils or pastels, on Oct. 18 for evening hours, 6 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Mac Carow's paintings have won best-in-show, division awards and numerous purchase prizes in local, regional and national art competition.

Georgia Bartlett
All-day workshops, a continuing and popular program at Village Craft, include canvas Oil Painting workshops by Georgia Bartlett on the first and third Saturdays each month, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Georgia, a master of floral landscapes, poppies, etc., is one of the really qualified instructors in her field, and is heartily recommended.

Lorene Raines
Then, Lorene Raines of Childress will conduct a three day Oil Painting workshop (Nov. 30, Dec. 1-2) in roses and florals, with hours 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Lorene has studied with Ruth Womack of Houston, the late Ronald Howerton of Dalhart, John Birdsong of Amarillo and Hollis Harvard of Oklahoma City, and has conducted workshops throughout the area.

Late works by each of these artists scheduled at Village Craft Corner are now on display there.

One is urged to view these examples, get full details regarding the workshops and classes and begin those Christmas projects now!

New Items
New merchandise is very much in evidence at the so-complete Village Craft Corner in South Plains Mall.

Note the new wooden ornaments, the Kristy Kits (glass ornament painting kits); the Make-It and Bake-It kits; the Edna Looney kits and the jewel ornament kits.

What opportunities for fun and achievement await at Village Craft Corner! Don't be left out!

Johnston's No-Roach Clean, Easy To Apply

Some people never have the neighbors in... and it is understandable!

Who wants to take a chance on the neighbor spotting a cockroach flitting across a counter, or down a drain? So it is that thousands of housewives, all over America, never join a Kaffee Klatch, because they know they can never take their turns having the girls in.

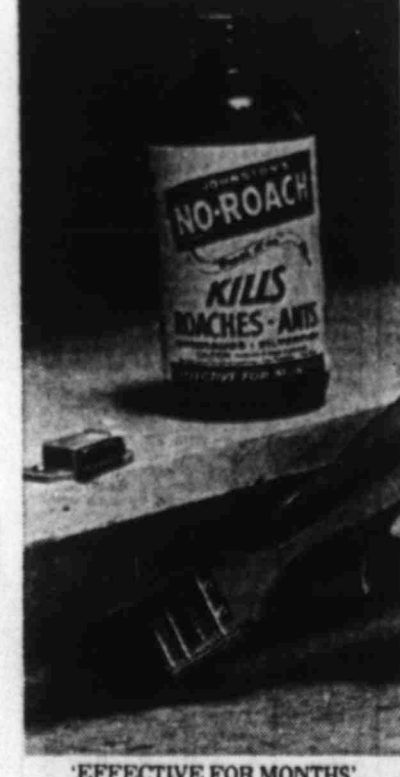

Or can they?

Of course they can. All they have to do is discover Johnston's No-Roach... the sure-fire answer to cockroach problems. Not to mention ants... and silverfish... and spiders... and so forth. No-Roach, the household insecticide, keeps the promise of its name.

"The seeming magic about No-Roach is the ease with which it is used. You just brush it on anywhere that roaches or other crawling pests may assemble: across doorways, windowsills and baseboards; in cupboards and along the edges of kitchen cabinets. No-Roach dries to an invisible shield that is colorless and odorless. All the time you are serving coffee to the neighbors, No-Roach is killing cockroach eggs back in the nest... 'cause every roach (or insect of any kind) that crosses No-Roach, picks it up on its feet and takes it home."

Do the neighborly thing. Serve the ladies on the block a cup of coffee in a roach-free kitchen... thanks to Johnston's No-Roach, available at Furr's, Safeway, Piggly Wiggly, United, Bylow, Brook's and all grocery stores, distributed by Affiliated and Winn Dixie, Ft. Worth.

Business & Industrial Review

STAFF, STOCK AND PRICE TO BE APPRECIATED — Nancy English, staffmember at Tuftwick Carpet, emphasizes the values made available there as the firm marks end of its fiscal year.

Tuftwick Carpet Ending Fiscal Year With Storewide Specials

It is the end of the fiscal year at Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., Slide Road at Brownfield Highway in Lubbock. This means that exceptional opportunities for selection at drastically marked-down prices are afforded. Without exception, every carpet purchase at Tuftwick during this particular time means savings even beyond the traditional Tuftwick pricing structure. "It quite possibly could be the greatest carpet purchase opportunity in the firm's 23 years in business," the management reports. "We are trading dollars to reduce our inventory. "Save $3, $4 and even $5 a square yard on first-quality carpet from the nation's leading mills. "Bring your measurements during this event and we'll be happy to figure greatest savings for you; we'll again prove that we're the carpet store where your dollar buys more!" There are full rolls and short rolls, and remnants, too, at fantastic savings. New patterns and materials are arriving almost daily at Tuftwick, and one always is assured of the latest and the best in an appreciated price range there. "Be ready for the holidays; add new beauty, comfort and warmth to your home. Tuftwick can help, without exorbitant cost. Let us prove it to your benefit for seasons to come."

To further assist one in the sale purchases, remember these facts about Tuftwick Carpet, Inc. at Brownfield Highway and Slide Road in Lubbock, phone 795-5251: Hours are 8 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, with evenings by appointment. Saturday hours are 9 a.m. until... Easy terms are available, with no money down and with up to 36 months in which to pay. "It all is proof that Tuftwick goes all out to pass fantastic buys on to you, our valued customer, making everything as convenient for you as possible. A shopping trip to Tuftwick is worth the trip from anywhere in the area, and the current sale makes this double so. Extraordinary savings, even for Tuft-wick, are presently enabled. Don't delay, shop now at Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., at Slide Road and Brownfield Highway to your profit, selection and complete satisfaction. "If you have not been through the showrooms of the big Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., within the last few weeks, you are in for a real treat at your next visit." First, there is a thrilling selection of patterns and materials. Secondly, the prices and values simply cannot be beat. Third reason for a trip to Tuftwick Carpet at Brownfield Highway and Slide Road could well be the most attractive display yet. Everything in the showroom has been conveniently displayed for easy viewing, comparison and selection. It is an attractive, inviting place in which to shop. Getting ready for season trips (football games, Thanksgiving at grandmother's, even for Christmas travel and gifting) need not be difficult... especially insofar as the auto is involved, thanks to the services and products at McWhorter's.

Lubbock Greeter Service Seen Distinct Benefit Within City

Lubbock business firms and newcomer residents alike are most fortunate in having readily available the unique services of the home-owned and home-operated Lubbock Greeter Service. Welcoming newcomers to Lubbock in a most effective, practical and "remembered" way, the Lubbock Greeter Service is not a franchised operation but is "distinctively different" and for the past 4 1/2 years has been owned by Peggy Moody. Long a Lubbock resident, Peggy Moody, nee Peggy Rutherford, attended Wheelock-Parsons, Evans Junior High, then graduated from Monterey High School and in 1969 graduated from W.T.S.C. in Canyon. She knows Lubbock and area folks, situations and preferences. At the helm of Lubbock Greeter Service, she is performing quite a service as one will discover even upon brief review of the comprehensive programs available. Peggy points out some of the "economic facts of the business," citing that Lubbock Greeter Service "charges 60 per cent less than some national competitors and sees 75 per cent more people," assuring that the merchant gets more for his money and that the newcomer is properly welcomed and assisted. A staff of five is devoted to the service concept of the program and is on the job to assure personal contact in every operation. (The Greeter Service guarantees seeing at least 70 newcomer families per month — folks from out-of-town, not just moving across the city.) Lubbock Greeter Service is proud to have an excellent "track record," charging the merchant only for extent of services, retaining no percentage, affording newcomers advantages of brochures representing over 100 merchants and organizations with these brochures containing coupon discounts, etc., effecting savings of some $250. Lubbock Greeter Service helps in a most memorable way in introduction of merchant and newcomer, making it real fun and informative to be such a newcomer!

Multiple Benefits "Basically an advertising agency" is the description of the Lubbock Greeter Service given by Peggy Moody who explains that subsidiaries include the (1) Baby Buggy, with attention to the 100-150 new babies in city families per month; the (2) Key to the City which is preferred merchants shopping guide for newcomers with a map designating areas and businesses; the (3) Greeter Service in which guaranteed visits are made in homes of at least 70 new families; and (4) the Newcomers publication in which profile information of new families is made available to the merchant. What a tremendous package, in whole or in part! Get full details now, Mr. Merchant, if you have not been fully informed or aware of this home-owned Lubbock Greeter Service, a one-of-its-kind operation.

Deadline Near (Advertising deadline for the map, with this advertising sold only once a year, is Oct. 23, so early inquiry is invited for inclusion on this vital facet of the Lubbock Greeter Service program.) A 5,000 minimum of these maps is guaranteed for distribution to newcomers, with an added 3,500 distributed at various points within the city. Lubbock Greeter Service is a member of the Better Business Bureau and the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. It stands tall in informing, educating and selling the newcomer on one's business or service. "May we serve effectively for you, too? Call 797-2461 without delay for full information, letting us go to work for you immediately."

Tick Tock Clock Shop Marks Anniversary With Sale Event

"When you have considered all the facts, the Tick Tock Clock Shop in Monterey Center is the only choice!"
 "Dedicated to the belief that everyone should own a fine clock, we maintain a qualified clock specialty store where you get more than the time of day!"
 What a selection is offered... what a list of really significant services are afforded the area at Tick Tock Clock Shop.
Anniversary Specials
 Specials have been arranged at the Tick Tock Clock Shop during October to mark the third anniversary of this big and exclusive shop in Lubbock. During this month, one can save from $20 to $40 on wall and mantle clocks, and up to $200 on grandfather clocks.
 What an opportunity for selecting and laying away for Christmas. Tick Tock Clock Shop emphasizes that layaway purchases can be made at this time for Christmas, with no interest or carrying charges.
 Also, there is free delivery and set-up for grandfather clocks.
 Tick Tock has experienced a really impressive growth in its three years in business, and the October Anniversary Specials are a very practical method of saying "thanks", wouldn't you agree?
 Possibly you have not realized the scope of services at this popular shop.

"Did you realize that invisible identification is placed on all repaired pieces and purchases at no extra charge? This can be quite a protection factor for you as owner of a fine timepiece."
Meaningful Warranty
 And a three-year limited warranty is another factor that should make the Tick Tock Clock Shop especially considered. In reality this warranty is three years plus a four-month grace period. As example, a customer receives a three-year notice but does not wish to have his clock serviced at this time (clock still running). Three months later the clock ceases to function correctly, and the customer brings it in and it is serviced for a fee, then we give the customer a new three-year warranty, which in reality means a lifetime warranty that can go on and on.
Factory-Authorized Service
 Tick Tock is the only factory authorized service center in Lubbock for Howard Miller, Ridgeway, Pearl and Colonial clocks.
 There are hundreds of clocks from which to select at Tick Tock, from the most economical to the unusual and to the very finest such as a $4,250 clock handmade in Spain, a limited edition with only 80 having been made.
 (See the novelty Tyme Cascades ball bearing clock... it is different!")

 And see the weight-driven, cable-wind Vienna regulator, or the school type clocks, some with long drop.
 And an authentic copy of the Postal Regulator.
 Then there is the French Marbier reproduction prayer clock that not only strikes on the hour but also a few minutes afterward to signal "end of prayer period", hence its name.
 There are some antique clocks stocked, including an 1890 German wall clock.
 And the hand-carved Gazo clock line, with every unit handcarved and hand etched.
 Prices of all are most likely much less than one would expect in clocks that are "quality throughout". Tick Tock would stock no other kind. All are of wood cases, with no simulated wood cabinets, no plastic cabinets.
 Full Westminster chimes are stocked.
 "We service what we sell, with in-store service provided" is further advantage at this better clock shop where particular people congregate.
 Locally owned and operated by Al and Shirlene Juno, the Tick Tock Clock Shop is a family operation.
 "We want to be your clock specialists."

Johnie Johnson Exxon Gains Friends With Service, Experience, Location

It hardly seems possible . . . but Johnie Johnson's Exxon at 34th Street and Knoxville Avenue is marking its first anniversary.

Johnie Johnson is most appreciative of the patronage during the year, and judging from this rapidly increasing trade, a lot of Lubbock folks are glad to rely upon Johnie in his own business.

(Johnie Johnson has over two decades experience including a 17-year stint as front end specialist and more recently as service manager of a downtown Lubbock firm, and just about a year ago he acquired ownership of the big facility on 34th Street.

"If you haven't become acquainted with this modern firm and its staff at 34th and Knoxville, then now would be an excellent time. Perhaps winterizing of the family car is the need, so bring it on in!"

Features of Johnie Johnson Exxon, phone 795-5942, include:

Expert wheel alignment, with brake and front end work a specialty, and with quality Bear spin balancing and wheel alignment equipment utilized;

Shocks, mufflers, tail pipes;

Tires and batteries, together with other accessories.

Even tune-ups! (A mechanic is on duty six days a week).

A state inspection station, Johnie Johnson Exxon is open long hours, seven days a week.

Huge access and parking aprons make "pulling in to Johnie's" most convenient, and not only is this convenience to be appreciated, but the entire facility is attractive, clean and thoroughly geared to efficiency in customer service.

Whether it is for gasoline, front end work or a tune up, whatever the service or product needed from Johnie's, one can be assured that this veteran in the field sincerely appreciates the trade and confidence.

"Johnie has been around a long time and likely already has served you. He welcomes old friends and new ones alike to come in, visit, and form the habit of depending upon him . . . at the 34th Street and Knoxville corner."

Gill Construction Serves From New Southwest Lubbock Address

Gill Construction Co., the Lubbock firm that can make your home like new, has a new home itself!

Now, Gill Construction is at 4901 Brownfield Highway in southwest Lubbock, moving to these convenient quarters from its former 1926 34th St. location.

Even the phone number is new; 797-6559.

Specials Posted

And in celebration of its move, Gill Construction is posing "Re-location Specials, with up to 30 per cent off."

"What can Gill do for you?"

Ike Gill and his capable staff can show you how you never need paint your home again (and with the rising costs on every hand, doesn't this appeal?)

Gill, with 13 years in related business in Lubbock and the South Plains, is glad to give full details, explaining without obligation the advantages of USS (United States Steel) soffit and fascia systems and USS siding with a 30-year prorated limited warranty.

Think of this . . . in your own situation:

"When your home's overhangs start to deteriorate, the entire residence begins to get that 'run down' look. Right?"

Soffit and fascia (the roof overhang on a home) has the important function of providing home ventilation necessary so excess moisture from inside can escape and to help maintain the proper balance of temperature.

A wood overhang usually is the first area of a home to deteriorate and look bad. It requires frequent, expensive maintenance. It is dangerous and awkward to work on. If a wood overhang doesn't receive frequent attention, it quickly begins to look unattractive and it detracts from the otherwise well-cared-for look of a home.

Ike Gill and his capable crew can install USS soffit and fascia and siding, all or either, anywhere in the area, fast and immediately.

Advantages Listed

Consider the USS materials and their advantages, including:

(1) Available in a number of attractive colors; (2) never needs painting; (3) goes up easily over old wood, asbestos, stucco or masonry walls; (4) superior insulation against heat, cold and outside noises; (5) does not support combustion (6) will not peel, blister, flake or warp; and (7) fast installation with professional results . . . from Gill Construction Co.

No down payment is required; financing is available. The program is acceptable to FHA Title I, Gill reports.

"So, homeowners, take notice; it is true, with no gimmicks, that you never need paint hour home again, thanks to Gill Construction Co., now at 4901 Brownfield Hwy., phone 797-6559, and thanks to the quality USS products."

FOR FUNCTIONAL BEAUTY — United States Steel siding, soffit and fascia systems are the specialty of Gill Construction Co., now at its new 4901 Brownfield Highway location in Lubbock.

AMONG THE NEW, INVITING UNITS FROM PHARR

Pharr Trailer Sales & Service
Affording Multiple Advantages

Special attention is directed to current situations at Pharr Trailer Sales & Service, 1702 Clovis Road in Lubbock:

(1) Marked-down prices on 1978 units are now in effect, enabling a really economical entry into the RV (recreational vehicle) field of enjoyment, just in time for fall and winter treks to beautiful foliage and warmer climates!

(2) Pharr Trailer Sales & Service is convenient to you wherever you live in West Texas. Long respected in Lubbock, Pharr also has a big facility at Odessa, some may not have realized.

Located at 1820 E. 8th Street at Odessa, the modern firm there, under management of Jerry Pharr, is starting its second year and it stocks the same lines and offers all the services of the Lubbock unit.

Exceptional growth and public response to the Odessa facility has been the story there in the year marked by achievement and a host of friendships. We thank you!

(3) New Coachmen models have arrived at Pharr's, and a very good selection is on the lot where one may inspect the 5th wheel units, travel trailers, mini homes, Class A motor homes and vans. They all are something special!

(4) It also is time to think of winterizing one's present RV unit, and Pharr is glad to do a turn-key job or supply needed materials.

'Take Your Pick'
 More about the specials:
 Select from two '78 fifth wheels that are quite good buys, together with three '78 mini homes. There are two '78 Silverstreaks (with Silverstreak's famed lifetime warranty) at marked down prices (a 28-ft. and a 30-ft. unit).

See the two new '79 Apollo goodies, too, one a 26-ft. and the other a 30-ft. model. These are of a quality that is unmistakable, for those who recognize and want something out of the ordinary. The interior finishes are luxurious, yet so-practical.

Come and see the newly-arrived units, by all means. The '79 Coachmen is everything you asked for, and more! The right combination of quality, luxury and innovation makes it a Coachmen.

All in all, Pharr Trailer Sales likes to prove that travel and relaxation can take on a new enjoyment, new convenience and new thrill with the right RV unit, accessories, equipment and service from Pharr, phone 765-6088, at the Amarillo Highway-Clovis Highway "Y" on Avenue Q in Lubbock, and at 1820 E. 8th in Odessa.

Parts, Accessories
 Harold Pharr calls special attention to the selection of parts and accessories stocked within the attractive show-rooms.

When planning a trip, or even when just completing one, a person could do well to check for needed accessories "while it is fresh on his or her mind", with Pharr most likely having the very item desired.

And the brand names need no apology or introduction... such as EZ Lift hitches, Coleman air conditioning, etc. A lot of little things are stocked, too, that can make a mighty big difference in comforts while on an outdoor vacation.

Pharr knows recreational units, and can help immeasurably in correct selection that will give pleasure for years to come. Ask the man who owns a Pharr unit.

Maxey Improvement Center Tells Needs For Season, Special On Tile

Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University Ave., phone 765-7736, is a true friend to anyone making home improvements.

Finally and foremost, remember this: "Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University, wants you to have the very best at a price you can afford."

PLUMBING

Maxey Home Improvement Center not only holds the line of prices throughout its stock, but it arranges specials wherever possible to further assist.

For example:

Tile Special
 All GAF self-adhesive floor tile is now marked at just 29 cents per square foot.

Or take advantage of other special prices on water heaters, bathtubs, marble top vanities, faucets, inside louvered shutters, light fixtures, paint, and more.

At this time of year, attention is especially directed to season needs such as storm doors, automatic garage door openers, smoke alarms, etc.

And some may not have realized Maxey stocks a good assortment of hand tools, both in sets and individual pieces, for auto repair.

Smoke Detectors
 More about the smoke alarms:
 "When you decide to purchase smoke detectors to protect your family, you want all the reliability you can get. That is why Maxey recommends and stocks the Honeywell line.

Honeywell's dual chamber ionization detector can sense fire before visible smoke or flames erupt. A piercing, 85 decibel alarm warns you and your family, giving them precious extra seconds to escape.

Unlike detectors that require involved maintenance such as bulb replacement and filter cleaning, the Honeywell unit requires minimum maintenance. Installation is easy, and the units can either be ceiling or wall mounted.

Maxey seems to have it all! Check the large selection of Amerock cabinet hardware. And Skil and Black & Decker power tools, plus a tremendous selection of plumbing and electrical supplies, and just about anything in the building line.

FOR GENIE, AND MORE — Benito Romo of Maxey Home Improvement Center is shown with a special Genie automatic garage door opener displaying inviting a very appropriate entry into winter when the safety and convenience of this automation can be of special benefit. Other values also are listed here for the homeowner or handyman.
