

Youth Accuses Policeman Father Of Brutality

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A charge of police brutality from a 17-year-old boy whose father whipped him with a leather belt at the police station will not be investigated because it's "a father-son situation," says the police chief.

Police said Danny Dalton, 17, was arrested Thursday and charged with possession of less than 5 grams of marijuana. The youth said he was taken to police headquarters where his father, Capt. Ed Dalton, lashed him about 15 times while five other officers watched.

Afterward, the teen-ager wrote a letter to Police Chief Murray Cochran accusing his father of police brutality, not parental discipline.

Dalton, a veteran of the Delray Beach force for about 16 years, was off duty when his son was arrested.

The youth wrote that his father "grabbed me by the shirt and swung me around.... He was beating me with the folded leather belt.... He beat me to the ground as I tried to protect my body" until another officer intervened.

"I gave him a good one," Dalton said Monday. "There's got to be a deterrent somewhere. If you're not going to straighten out your kids, who is? I could say the hell with it and let him go down the tube — but I'm not going to."

Dalton indicated his son has been in trouble before, but refused to elaborate.

"He's been nothing but trouble," Dalton said. "The courts have done nothing but slap him on the hand. No wonder we have so much crime. The juvenile courts never do anything, the school teachers never do anything — and the parents never do anything."

Cochran said the boy's accusation would not be taken up by officials because "it's a father-son situation and the department usually does not intercede."

Cochran, who said Dalton was divorced from Danny's mother about two years ago and has since remarried, added, "I'm just sorry it happened in the police department. I think the young man probably needed a thrashing.... I would rather he had done it at home, and I would have applauded it."

Cochran said the youth was not in custody Monday, but declined to discuss the marijuana charge.

Downturn By Mart Continues

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed downward again today, resuming its recent slide amid evidence of further upward pressure on interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had begun a rally in the second half of Monday's session to finish with a 5.80 gain, fell 10.39 to 801.46 by noon today.

Brokers said Monday's upswing quickly ran out of momentum amid rising interest rates and continued forced sales of stock which had been bought on credit.

Analysts reported this morning that the Federal Reserve seemed to be aiming to push short term interest rates higher in its continuing effort to restrain inflation by slowing the growth of the money supply.

The stock market's slide since mid-October has been blamed primarily on fears that the government will be unable to stop the erosion of the dollar and control inflation without throwing the nation into a recession.

But what remains to be seen is whether investors' fears of heightened inflation and a business slowdown are justified, or whether this is one of those emotional periods of overreaction for which the stock market is so famous.

Like most forecasters, the market has a spotty record of predicting the future. The last time stocks sank badly, — in 1973 and 1974 — they accurately foretold the nation's worst recession since World War II. But there also were plunges in the 1960s that were false alarms.

Economic warning signs abound. Prices have been rising at an annual rate of 9.6 percent. The Federal Reserve Board, trying to slow the economy to stem the rising tide of inflation, has caused interest rates to reach the highest rate in years.

Analysts also say that in recent days the severity of the market's decline has been increased by margin calls — forced selling by investors who had bought stock using margin, or loans from brokers.

Stock is the collateral on these loans, and when the price of that stock falls below minimum limits, they must either put up more assets or sell to pay their brokers back.

When this market decline began, margin debt was at a record level. The last monthly report from the NYSE showed $12.4 billion in loans outstanding among 990,000 investor accounts.

"Pressures continue to build for the financial markets, with potentially ominous implications for the economy next year," Allen Sinai of Data Resources Inc., a Lexington, Mass. economics research and consulting firm, said in a recent article.

Progress Reported In Mideast Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Middle East peace talks, on a roller coaster for more than a week, were on the rise again today.

With progress reported from both Egypt and Israel, three-way, top-level negotiations were held for the first time in 10 days.

The goal is to complete the text of a peace treaty, a task now complicated by differences over linking the document to the future status of the Palestinians.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said today in Jerusalem that a peace treaty with Egypt would be signed soon. He said he hoped the formal ceremony could be held Dec. 9.

Ashraf Ghorbal, the Egyptian ambassador, predicted Monday night that the treaty would be signed "very soon," perhaps Dec. 10 in Oslo, Norway, when Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Begin receive the Nobel peace prize.

"That is one of the ideas floating around," Ghorbal said at a news conference in Detroit.

Minimizing recent difficulties, he said "we still have a bit of road to cover but I think we have passed the point of no return in the peace negotiations."

The three-way negotiating session at Blair House, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House, marked an upswing from a clash between Israel and the United States over expansion of Jewish settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

The session was preceded by a U.S.-Egyptian meeting at the State Department.

The resumption of trilateral talks does not mean differences over the "linkage" issue have melted away.

Israel wants the barest mention in its peace treaty with Egypt of future negotiations over the West Bank of the Jordan River. But Egypt, concerned about seeming to cut a separate deal with the Jewish state, wants the document to express a strong link to the Palestinian problem.

Assessing prospects for a peace treaty, Israel's Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan told reporters Monday: "I still think it is visible and obtainable and that we can reach an agreement within a short time."

Dayan and others in the Israeli delegation met twice Monday with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and U.S. aides.

"We made good progress during the talks," Dayan said.

Strike Halts Oil Exports From Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A strike by more than 37,000 refinery workers today shut off Iran's petroleum exports of 5 million barrels a day and Prime Minister Jaafar Sharif-Emani said the nation faces "dangerous problems" because of the walkout.

Meanwhile, thousands of protesters staged anti-government demonstrations in at least two Iranian cities, but no injuries were reported.

Iran is a major supplier of oil to the United States. In Washington, energy officials said it was too early to determine what impact the strike will have on the United States.

Sharif-Emani told the lower house of the Iranian parliament the nation will lose $60 million every day the strike lasts. Tanks and armored vehicles patrolled the capital and several hundred soldiers surrounded the Majlis, or parliament, as he spoke.

An off-and-on strike by workers at Abadan in southern Iran slowed oil exports last week, but when those workers and others in automated terminals at Khard Island, Bandar-Shahpour and Bandar-Mahshar walked off today, all spigots were closed, authorities said.

Oil sales pump $22 billion annually into Iran's coffers and are the nation's economic mainstay.

A Radio Iran broadcast said the oil workers want wage increases and the lifting of martial law, plus trial for former SAVAK (Iranian secret police) Chief Nematullah Nasiri. He resigned recently as ambassador to Pakistan to return to Iran to answer charges of corruption and misuse of power.

Iranian Oil Co. Chairman Husnang Ansary reportedly agreed last week to meet wage demands, but deferred political demands to the government. On Monday, workers at a state-run natural gas plant struck, halting the flow of natural gas to the Soviet Union.

More than half the nation's public work force of one million is now on strike, seeking higher pay and more political freedom. The thrust from the public employees has hurt the government, already reeling from anti-government rioting by Moslems seeking an end to the shah's Westernized reforms.

Today's demonstrations were reported in the capital and the religious city of Qum 96 miles south of Tehran. Officials said 35,000 persons participated in the demonstration on the campus of Tehran University, but that the crowd dispersed when it rained. About 30,000 demonstrators reportedly took part in the demonstration in Qum.

Monday, bloody clashes between gun-wielding tribesmen on horseback and anti-government demonstrators left as many as 65 persons dead and more wounded in two western Iranian cities. Tehran newspapers reported today.

A government statement confirmed there were deaths, but put the toll near 35.

The newspaper reports said colorfully-garbed warriors of the Kurdish Javan-rood region thundered into the town of Paveh, disrupted an anti-government rally and shot and killed as many as 30 to 40 persons. The town is 375 miles west of the capital.

The independent Rastakhiz reported a similar attack in Sar-Pol-Zahab, 37 miles northwest of Paveh, and said 25 were killed and 150 wounded.

Thousands of demonstrators marched in Tehran Monday and today shouting anti-shah slogans and demanding a new government headed by exiled Shiite Moslem leader Ayatulla Khomeini, who lives in Paris.

Halloween Warnings Stressed

By NANCY ALLEN

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Tonight's the night when little witches, goblins and ghosts will be making their annual trick-or-treat rounds of Lubbock neighborhoods.

To assure a good, safe time for all, city officials this morning made several suggestions to the spooks and their parents.

"Children should be able to see and be seen in their costumes," said Wanda Evans of the city's public information office. She warned against wearing dark clothing, and suggested that reflective tape or anything else that catches light be applied to costumes.

Mrs. Evans also cautioned trick-or-treaters to obey traffic laws by walking on sidewalks, where they are provided, and crossing streets only at the corners.

Bill Morgan, information officer for the Lubbock Police Department, suggested parents take advantage of the many school carnivals being held tonight, instead of sending their costumed children into the streets. "It's more fun than trick-or-treating, and a lot less dangerous," he said.

Morgan added that while in years past there have been few Halloween-related problems reported, he would still caution parents to send their children out only in groups of five or so, and to make sure they are accompanied by a responsible teen-ager or an adult.

He also cautioned trick-or-treaters to stick to neighborhoods where they are

A weakening Canadian cold front that turned out to be only cool brought clouds and a slight chance of rain to the South Plains during the night.

The front dropped temperatures only about five degrees from the previous night, and weathermen this morning were still giving the Lubbock vicinity a 20 percent chance of rain today.

However, one forecaster here said chances for rain were extremely slim and that rain probably would be dropped from the forecast later today.

If any showers occur, they probably won't be heavy enough to deter trick or treaters even slightly from their Halloween rounds.

Temperatures are expected to be in the low 60s today and Wednesday, instead of

Area Woman Arraigned

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A grandmotherly looking Lorenzo woman stood before a Lubbock justice of the peace this morning and was told she was charged with two counts of murder in connection with the Oct. 2 slayings of an elderly man and his wife, also of Lorenzo.

Paula Bruce, 57, appeared relaxed as Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy read out the charges shortly after 9 a.m. LeCroy denied bond on both counts of capital murder.

The slender, gray-haired woman, the second of two suspects arrested in connection with the shooting deaths of Valton Vernoid Gandy, 73, and his wife, Cora, 68, was arrested at 7:10 p.m. Monday at the Lubbock Department of Public Safety headquarters.

Crosby County Sheriff Fred Owen said Mrs. Bruce came to the DPS office Monday morning of her own will and underwent extensive questioning before being arrested.

The Gandys, who had lived in the Lorenzo area 25 years, were found shot to death about 6 p.m. Oct. 2 in front of their two-bedroom house, just off FM 378 about half a mile north of Lorenzo.

Authorities had speculated the couple was shot after surprising burglars when they came home from a shopping trip in Lubbock.

John Thomas Carter, 34, of 1608 Ave. R in Lubbock was arrested Oct. 21 in connection with the murders. Carter, a former Lorenzo resident, this morning remained in the Crosby County Jail charged with two counts of capital murder, and one count each of burglary and robbery. Bond also was denied on the murder charges filed against Carter.

"You have been charged with two counts of capital murder," LeCroy said as the woman leaned on the judge's bench. When LeCroy asked the suspect whether she had any questions, Mrs. Bruce said, "No, sir."

Crosby County Attorney Bill Marley said Mrs. Bruce, who has lived in Lorenzo much of her life, would remain in the Lubbock County Jail for an indefinite time. All charges against Carter and Mrs. Bruce, however, have been filed in Crosby County, Marley added.

Mrs. Bruce was seen about 9:30 a.m. in her street clothes leaving the county jail with Owen. The sheriff would not say where he was taking his newest suspect. He also declined to say whether there would be any more arrests in connection with the crime that shocked the small community of Lorenzo.

A warrant for Mrs. Bruce's arrest was filed Monday afternoon with Crosby County Justice of the Peace Clyde Davis.

Balance Problems

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a five-hour blood sugar test and it showed at the fourth hour that my sugar was low enough to make me feel faint. It is just the opposite of a diabetic person. Would this cause ringing in my ears all the time and, once in a while, dizziness so that objects move and, when I lie down, the room goes around? This lasts for three or four days at a time. The only thing that helps me is Antivert.
 I am 5-feet-4 and weigh 140 pounds. I am a 47-year-old female. I am supposed to lose weight, but I find it very hard to do. Would you be kind enough to explain this thing about not enough sugar in my blood?

DEAR READER — You have enough different problems that it would be very difficult to say specifically which problem is causing which symptom. Ringing in the ears and dizziness being treated with Antivert suggests that you have a problem in the little balance canals in the ears. If that's true, these symptoms are not caused by low blood sugar.
 You have described true vertigo when you say that the room moves around you. The false sense of motion is true vertigo. It is different from the dizziness people feel when they are faint or at the onset of a fainting episode. To give you more information about this I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-10, Dizziness and Vertigo.

Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

A low blood sugar level can cause a person to feel faint and have other symptoms, but you can have a relatively low blood sugar level and have no symptoms at all. A prudent course would be to eliminate all of the sugars, concentrated starches such as found in white bread and bakery products made with white flour.

If you shift to a diet that eliminates sweets and concentrated starches, this often helps relieve some of the symptoms. In your case, since you want to lose weight, it would also be advisable to cut out obvious sources of fat.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 25-year-old male and my blood pressure is usually 20 points higher in my right arm than in my left. For example, it is usually 122/82 in my left arm and 145/98 in my right arm. Which reading should I use for my real blood pressure?

DEAR READER — There is often a slight difference in the blood pressure in the two arms, but if the readings you have given me are accurate and truly representative of a difference between the arms, you should have a more detailed medical examination.

Such a pressure difference could represent a mild constriction in the arch of the aorta (coarctation of the aorta). The anatomy of the arms is such that this means the full pressure effects from the heart beat would be transmitted to the right arm, but the arteries to the left arm would originate beyond the mild obstruction and would be lower.

Research Group Drops Plans To Honor 'Test-Tube' Doctor

CHICAGO (AP) — A fertility research group scuttled its plans to honor Dr. Patrick Steptoe, the British "test tube baby" doctor, saying "there is great concern" over the circumstances of the baby's birth.

"It's safe to refer to this as a big mess," said Margene Johnson, a spokeswoman for the public relations firm that represents the Barren Foundation.

The action was criticized by Steptoe's colleague, Dr. Robert Edwards, who said the foundation was "absolutely foolish" to cancel the award.

The foundation, set up by doctors in 1960 to finance fertility research and educational programs, had been scheduled to honor Steptoe at a Nov. 15 dinner. The dinner has also been canceled.

Steptoe announced that a baby girl conceived outside her mother's womb was born in England July 25, a birth hailed as the first "test tube" baby. The birth gave new hope to many childless couples.

The Barren Foundation said the award was canceled because Steptoe has failed to detail his procedure in a scientific journal.

Foundation official Dr. Jay Gold of the University of Illinois Medical School said Monday Steptoe has failed to submit details of his work for review by his colleagues worldwide.

"When the committee decided on the award, we thought that Dr. Steptoe would have published his work by now," Gold said. "He tells us now that publication is expected in January or February."

Gold said the British usually don't publish on the basis of one case and that Steptoe "has some other cases in progress and is waiting to publish the series."

Steptoe was not available for comment. But Edwards said a scientific report on the work will be published "in the new year" in a responsible medical journal.

Edwards said the foundation's action was "a very great error and a great mistake. It is ridiculous, the baby was born only three months ago. We will publish when we are ready to publish.

"We are not going to publish at other people's beck and call. In the medical world you publish when you are ready."

Soviets Flying Navymen

MOSCOW (AP) — Ten survivors of a downed U.S. Navy plane were being flown to the far eastern Soviet city of Khabarovsk today where U.S. Embassy officials will meet them.

The U.S. Embassy here said the survivors, rescued by a Soviet trawler, are part of a 15-man crew aboard a P-3 Orion submarine reconnaissance plane that crashed during bad weather in the North Pacific last Thursday. They were scheduled to arrive in Khabarovsk tonight.

The Soviets also were bringing the bodies of three dead crew members pulled from the frigid waters. The three were identified by the Navy as James Dennis Brooner, 23, Creswell, Ore., Richard Martin Garcia, 20, of San Jose, Calif. and Randall Paul Rodriguez, 19, of Denver.

A search for two missing men was abandoned Sunday because of crashing 60-knot winds and 50-foot waves. The two missing and feared dead were identified by the Navy as the pilot, Lt. Cmdr. Jerry Carson Grigsby, 36, of Miami, Okla. and electrician's mate Harold Richard Miller, 32, of Tulsa, Okla.

The trawler brought the survivors ashore Sunday at the Soviet North Pacific port of Petropavlovsk, which is closed to foreigners for security reasons.

There was no word when the airmen would be going home, but "discussions for their early return to the United States are under way," an embassy spokesman said.

Their Navy plane, which reportedly caught fire, ditched in the ocean about 600 miles east of the Soviet Union, about halfway between the Soviet Union and Alaska's Aleutian Islands.

Archbishop Blesses Marriage

LONDON (AP) — Prince Michael of Kent, 14th in line for the British throne, and his Roman Catholic bride have finally had their marriage blessed — four months after a civil ceremony in Vienna.

The blessing came from the Archbishop of Canterbury Donald Coggan at a service Monday attended only by members of the immediate family. Queen Elizabeth II did not attend.

Prince Michael married the former baroness Marie-Christine von Reibnitz in June after the Vatican barred a Roman Catholic Church wedding. Her first marriage, to merchant banker Tom Troubridge, was annulled earlier this year. The couple could not marry in a Catholic church without a papal dispensation, which was not forthcoming. They had stated earlier that their children would be brought up as Anglicans.

They could not marry in a British registry office because no legal provision allows a member of the royal family to do so.

Sakharov, a dissident physicist who won the 1975 Nobel peace prize, said Monday that Sadat and Begin "deserve the prize for the boldness they have shown in their efforts to establish peace, and their agreement has great significance."

However, the Soviet news agency Tass criticized the selection, calling Begin a "terrorist" and Sadat a "man who worships Hitler, a man to whom the word 'honor' means nothing."

Tass said the prize was given to Begin and Sadat to get them to conclude a peace treaty "behind the backs of the Arab peoples and contrary to their will and vital interests."

John Paul II Visits Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II has made another trip outside the Vatican to visit ailing U.S. Cardinal John Wright and two elderly Italian cardinals.

The pope stayed 20 minutes Monday afternoon with Wright, 69, the Boston-born prelate who recently underwent surgery for cataracts and is confined to a wheelchair because of circulatory problems. There has been no word yet whether the pope will reappoint Wright as head of the Congregation for the Clergy.

The pontiff then visited Alberto di Jorio, 94, the oldest member of the College of Cardinals, and Alfredo Ottaviani, 88.

Kucinich Recuperating

CLEVELAND (AP) — Controversial Mayor Dennis Kucinich says the only thing he might change after spending two weeks in a hospital is his 18-hour work day, which may get trimmed to 16 hours.

Kucinich, who was hospitalized for a stomach ulcer Oct. 14, says he plans to recuperate at an undisclosed location, but would return to the city by Thanksgiving. He spoke with reporters as he cast his absentee ballot Monday.

The 32-year-old mayor survived a recall election last August by only 236 votes. Asked if his ulcer would prevent him from continuing his political career, he said, "I'm very resilient. It's up to the people of Cleveland and the Lord."

EDMONDS, Wash. (AP) — Like any other mother at mealtime, Lillian Carter can make you feel guilty if you don't clean your plate.

"I spent two years in India and I want to see every plate cleaned," the president's mother said during a breakfast in her honor Monday. She was in the Seattle area campaigning for Democrats.

The targets of her motherly advice were many of the candidates who didn't touch the scrambled eggs, peaches, ham and hash browns on their plates.

However, they weren't alone. Miss Lillian also skipped breakfast, explaining she had been nibbling on doughnuts and rolls on the flight from Los Angeles.

Liz In Hospital Again

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Actress-campaigner Elizabeth Taylor is hospitalized again with a severe case of laryngitis that aggravated an earlier throat injury caused by choking on a chicken bone.

Miss Taylor, wife of Republican senatorial nominee John Warner, lacerated her esophagus Oct. 12 when a bone lodged in her throat at a political rally in Southwest Virginia.

A physician removed the bone without trouble, but Miss Taylor spent several days in Richmond Memorial Hospital under the care of Dr. Owen Gwathmey. She was re-admitted to the hospital Monday after developing suffering throat spasms that inhibited her breathing, a Warner spokesman said.

Gwathmey said his famous patient would remain hospitalized for rest and treatment for "at least 72 hours, plus."

Some Predictions Come True

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — It was before the days of space flight, home color television and high inflation, but Richard Auerbach's fifth grade class predicted them all.

While he was a teacher at the Eggert Road Elementary School, Auerbach asked his students to write essays on what life would be like 25 years in the future — in 1978.

On Monday, as promised, the principal of the Willow Ridge Elementary School opened his "time capsule" and the predictions.

Here is what Dick Benchley wrote, with his spelling preserved intact, in December 1953, four years before the Soviets launched Sputnik: "We will have a rocket ship to go to the moon or maybe Venice or Mars."

Color TV was in its infancy when Betty Jane Nelson predicted: "I think in 25 years there will be colored television."

Even the class' economists proved to have clear vision, as Kathleen Kayer observed, "I think the world will have very high prices in 1978."

Heroic Minister To Get Honor

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma City Safety Council has announced it will bestow its highest honor, the award of valor, on a minister credited with saving the life of a young woman by pulling her from a burning automobile.

Rev. Bill Saak is credited with saving the life of Robin Pierce, 22 of Oklahoma City.

But the humble reverend says he doesn't deserve the award.

"I think if they would give the award, it would belong to Dr. Teeter," Saak said Monday, referring to Dr. Bonner Teeter, pastor of the Nichols Hills United Methodist Church, who assisted Saak in pulling the woman from the car earlier this month.

"To be given an award for something that I think any man off the street would do leaves me speechless," he said.

Saak had just left All Souls Episcopal Church the night of Oct. 20, when a car plowed into the back of his.

The car flew through the air and burst into flames after striking a tree.

Saak, who underwent open heart surgery 18 months ago, ran to the compact car, ripped a sun-roof off the top and with Dr. Teeter pulled the girl from the flaming, smoke-filled car.

"I feel very humble about it," Saak said. "I'm just thankful we're both here."

The safety council selected him for the award because the minister, who had been advised not to over-exert since surgery, risked his own life to save the woman. The award has only been given seven times in the past 30 years. In a letter to Saak, Ben F. Lewis, head of the council's board of directors, said, "Your efforts to save this young lady, with no thought of the potential danger to yourself, deserves the highest commendation and we are pleased that we will be able to offer something tangible in recognition of your unselfishness."

Bob Eastman, president of the safety council, said the award "is reserved for only those cases where you put your life in jeopardy."

He said the last time the award was given was in 1975 to Leslie Helner of Frederick on a training flight. Helner cut two Air Force pilots whose jet crashed near Frederick on a training flight. Helner cut the two pilots from their safety belts and removed them moments before leaking jet fuel ignited the plane.

Eastman said a presentation date will be announced later.

FAA Encounters Trouble In Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration says it has run into "a can of worms" trying to learn why an Allegheny Airlines pilot had to dodge nine plummeting skydivers and another plane high over the Maryland-Delaware border.

FAA officials have at least two major unanswered questions about the brush with double-disaster:

— Whether the plane involved in the near-collision with Allegheny Flight 564 was the one that dropped the skydivers or whether it, like the Allegheny craft, was just flying through the area where the parachutists jumped.

— Why the skydivers apparently jumped in an established airway — a sort of highway in the sky. Parachuting normally is prohibited in the airways.

"It's a can of worms," said one official. Allegheny pilot James Gianotti, approaching Philadelphia on a normal flight from Washington Sunday, had just been cleared to descend from 9,000 feet to 7,000 feet.

Suddenly "nine free-falling bodies" appeared in front of his small twin-engine M298 propjet, which had 21 passengers.

Gianotti told Allegheny officials he put his craft into a steep, spiraling dive to avoid the skydivers.

He pulled out of the dive at 7,000 feet, his assigned altitude, only to find another plane in front of him. Another evasive dive took him clear of that threat.

No one was injured, and the flight continued to Philadelphia.

Gianotti identified the plane he had to dodge as a Skyvan. Joe Wear of Summit Airlines in Philadelphia told UPI his firm had a Skyvan carrying skydivers Sunday, but Wear said the planned drop zone appeared to be well away from the site of the near-collision near New Castle, Del.

An FAA spokesman said his agency had been notified of planned parachute jumping from a four-seat Cessna — smaller than a Skyvan — Saturday and Sunday some 11 miles southwest of New Castle. He said it was unclear whether the Skyvan replaced the Cessna, or whether both it and the Cessna were in the area.

Allegheny spokesman Dave Shipley and the FAA both said the Allegheny plane was being directed by ground controllers under instrument flight rules.

An FAA spokesman said skydivers can jump in controlled airspace so long as they notify ground controllers in advance.

The FAA distributed a "notice to airmen" from New York to North Carolina and from the East Coast to West Virginia Friday night warning of possible weekend parachute jumping near New Castle from sunrise to sunset Saturday and Sunday.

The notice reported the jumpers might be leaping out of their plane as much as 12,500 feet in the air and would be using a Cessna 172 in contact with Philadelphia approach control on a radio frequency of 128.6 megahertz.

Gianotti told his passengers and Allegheny officials he got no warning of the jumpers from either the FAA or other aircraft. He said he heard no indication over his radios, which were tuned to control frequencies for the area, that the drop plane was in contact with anybody.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Yup, It's Up, Alrighty...

DESPITE THE fact the administration likes to say the economy is competitive, many sectors are, in fact, not competitive today.

"We have reached the point where the fear of unemployment is not an adequate restraint on wage increases, and the fear of lost sales is not an adequate restraint on prices," admitted Barry Bosworth, chief White House inflation advisor, in a discussion with the American Enterprise Institute.

Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, believes "an institutional change has occurred."

In the wage area, Bosworth sees little hope for an end to current inflationary trends without closing the gap between wages paid to unorganized workers and wages paid to members of the large unions.

THE LATTER, he says, "have insulated themselves against the cost of inflation, and they have insulated themselves against the cost of unemployment. Inequalities of income are the primary motivating force for inflation."

He would not go so far as to say that labor unions have outlived their usefulness, but the fundamental problems to which they were a response have largely disappeared. Even if we had no unions, the social attitude of the 19th Century would not return. Times have changed. The extreme exploitation of highly organized labor by a dominant employer has passed. Industries cooperate with inflationary union wage demands in order to avoid even more costly disruption to business.

"Because of the way many of our industries are organized," Bosworth says, "we are well aware that the only effective restraint on their price and wage behavior is imports."

BOSWORTH TOLD AEI he hopes consumers eventually will recognize the dilemma that inflation poses for the economy and thereafter refuse to acquiesce in the self-fueled inflationary spiral.

"There must be some rate of inflation where we will look over the brink, get scared about where we are headed, and pull back," he argues.

"I just hope it doesn't have to go as far as it did in Great Britain, where the rate rose to 30 percent."

The impact of government regulations notwithstanding, Bosworth claims that even if the government reduced its inflationary pressures to zero, "I believe inflation would still continue."

Bosworth obviously isn't much of an anti-inflation authority but he's undoubtedly an expert at missing the point.

Scum Of The Earth

John D. Lofton:

Bucks Give Rise To Dough Vote

WASHINGTON—In one of his fables, Ambrose Bierce, the American journalist and short-story writer, tells of two politicians who were exchanging ideas regarding the rewards of public service:

"The reward that I most desire," said the First Politician, "is the gratitude of my fellow citizens."

"That would be very gratifying, no doubt," said the Second Politician, "but alas! in order to obtain it one has to retire from politics."

"For an instant they gazed upon each other with inexpressible tenderness; then the First Politician murmured, 'God's will be done! Since we cannot hope for reward, let us be content with what we have.'"

"And lifting their right hands for a moment from the public treasury they swore to be content."

NOW, I RARELY have anything to say in defense of our elected officials. But there are times when some kind words are in order.

Common Cause, the so-called "citizen's lobby," has just issued a sinister-sounding report titled "How Money Talks in Congress," which points out, among other things, that:

— Twenty-four of the 31 members of the House Merchant Marine Committee members who voted for a cargo preference bill (eventually defeated on the House floor) received a total of $82,263 in campaign contributions from maritime unions in their 1976 races;

— To the members of the House Commerce Committee, where a bill to contain rising hospital costs was defeated by one vote, the American Medical Association made contributions totaling $101,259 since 1975; and — THIRTY-EIGHT OF the 46 House Agriculture Committee members got $381,651 from dairy groups over the past three years. Twelve of 18 senators on the Senate Agriculture Committee got $100,000 in their last campaigns.

Says Common Cause:

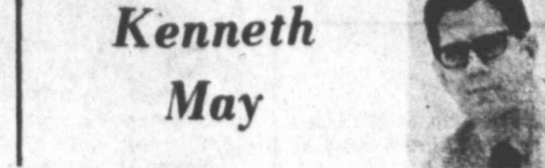

"While substantial campaign contributions may not actually 'buy' votes, they do ensure easy access to public officials and create an unhealthy atmosphere of familiarity."

But regardless of this weasel-worded conclusion, the implication of the Common Cause study is clear: if you're a member of Congress who has accepted "special interest" money, you have sold your vote to this interest.

SEVERAL MEMBERS of Congress vehemently reject such a suggestion. And I do, too. Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., calls the Common Cause study a "cheap, tinhorn shot" and "an attack on my integrity."

Rep. Bob Bauman, R-Md., labels the report "way off base," noting that Common Cause officials are "destroying their own effectiveness" by "insinuating that a member of Congress has compromised a vote" for a campaign contribution.

Rep. Marjorie Holt, R-Md., says: "They've got a fellow I know says the town in which he lives is so small, every time he plugs in his electric razor, the street lights go dim.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Misguided Muscle

CONSERVATIVES who battle the property tax are playing into the hands of Big Government liberals.

That's the essence of an article in the Tax Foundation's Tax Review. The author is Donald G. Hagman, a UCLA professor of law specializing in the law of planning, state and local tax; local government and the environment.

California's Proposition 13, he writes, is precisely the worst way to reduce the cost of government.

"Lowering local property taxes, especially to homeowners, is the worst of alternative mediums for the conservative message," Hagman believes.

He gives a variety of reasons for that assessment in addition to the obvious one that it undermines local government and increases reliance on state and federal governments.

"This is because the property tax is heavily relied upon by local governments but is not used at all by the federal government and scarcely at all by the states.

PROPERTY TAXES are a convenient whipping boy for those who are concerned about the rising cost of government but, precisely because they are so visible and so painful, anybody who wants to keep the lid on government spending should want to keep the tax which irritates the most, Hagman says.

Beyond that, he adds, waste "from" government is more costly than is waste "in" government.

Paul Scott:

God's Kingdom Not Like Man's

ROME—One of the first major tests for Pope John Paul II could come in the way he handles the temporarily postponed Puebla Hemisphere conference of Catholic Bishops of Latin America.

The sudden death of his predecessor on the eve of the Puebla (Mexico) conference caused the Latin American Episcopal Conference, in charge of organizing the meeting, to cancel the complex arrangement.

Most of the church leaders set to attend were called to Rome to select a new Pope.

The unresolved issue facing the Puebla conference, when it is convened, is whether the Catholic bishops of Latin America will oppose or encourage the so-called "Liberation Theology," being pushed by the church's left-wing element.

"LIBERATION THEOLOGY" comes from Latin America and has been hotly debated there with critics claiming it places too little emphasis on the gospel of salvation.

Pope John Paul I took the position that the full gospel message is broader than working for social justice and peace. In an address Sept. 20, the late Pope put it this way:

"Church magisterium (teaching authority) can never insist enough on finding solutions to the great problems of freedom, justice, peace and development. Catholics can never do enough to resolve these issues."

"But it is wrong to affirm that political, social and economic liberation coincide with salvation in Christ."

THE LATE POPE'S talk was considered a warning about what is generally described as "Liberation Theology." It came only three weeks before the Puebla meeting scheduled Oct. 12-28.

Pope John Paul I criticized those who say that "the kingdom of God is the same as the Kingdom of man, or where Lenin is there is Jerusalem."

Christians who hope for a better tomorrow, said the late pope, must also include the idea of eternity. Hope, he said, is obligatory for Christians. "But that doesn't mean it is ugly or harsh."

The big question now is whether Pope John Paul II will back the firm stand against "Liberation Theology" taken by his predecessor.

In his dealings with the Communist regime in Poland, Pope John Paul II took the stand that genuine political change in that country could only be achieved by evolution and not revolution.

Persons close to the new Pope say he is expected to follow that position with governments where human rights are violated and the poor are oppressed.

This would rule out the use of violence to bring about change as now being advocated and practiced by many of those advocating the "Liberation Theology" as a means of tipping over anti-Communist governments in Latin America.

Significantly, the new Pope was one of the Church leaders in Poland who called on the Communist government there to end censorship of Federal and state regulations will increase if local government is weakened, he argues, and these regulations show up in the prices of goods and services.

The property tax, he also says, costs less to administer than does the income tax if you consider all the money that's spent hiring tax consultants and tax attorneys.

WHAT ABOUT THE belief, widely held by fiscal conservatives, that a sales tax is more to be preferred than is the property tax?

Hagman disagrees with that. Those who favor the sales tax argue that it causes people who don't own property to at least pay a share of the tax load.

The Tax Review article argues otherwise: "A sales tax discourages consumption and therefore the production of the consumables. Conservatives dislike taxes which discourage productivity."

So, the bottom line is that "when conservatives apply their principles right, they will give priority to limits on regulation and on federal and state spending, not to limits on local spending or local property taxes," Hagman concludes.

I think he's smart because I've been saying the same thing.

A lawyer for women's rights argues that it would be no easier to force sororities to admit men (or fraternities to admit women) if the Equal Rights Amendment were adopted than it would be now.

Question: If the ERA doesn't change anything, why are its proponents so eager to get it passed?

When Tim Hatch was installed as president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, he was identified as president and owner of the Overhead Roofing Co. of Lubbock. It's Overhead Door Co., of course. He must have been tempted, though, to call it the Overhead Hatch Co.

NOTE TO MAYOR Dirk West: In heralding your Selective Traffic Enforcement Program as a safety campaign, it is implied that "selective" has a meaning.

The question arises: Does "selective" mean selecting those places with high accident rates or selecting those places where a high incidence of tickets can be written?

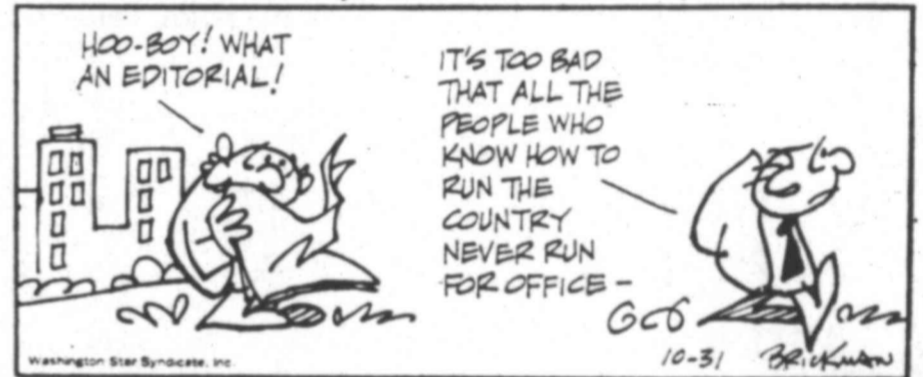

Last time I looked, if memory serves, the prevailing speed on one-way Avenues K and L between 19th and 24th Streets was between 35 and 40 mph although the posted speed limit is 30 mph.

It was a low-accident stretch but lends itself readily to use as a radar trap. A local citizen sent me a photostatic copy of a speeding ticket he got in that area and he wonders if the idea is to catch dangerous drivers or to catch those who drive along at the prevailing speed and fine them? Just askin'.

Sylvia Porter:

Dollar Demoralization Threatening Disaster

(First in a series)

THE CHAOTIC deterioration in the value of the U.S. dollar through most of 1978 has created an almost insoluble dilemma for this nation and is threatening disaster for the Western world.

The Carter White House's own inexperience, inadequacy (if not outright ineptitude) have been prime factors which have brought our country to this near-crisis—and no matter how much can be attributed to Carter's prolonged learning-on-the-job phase, his administration cannot escape the blame.

In the process, these four facts have emerged with blinding clarity:

(1) The fundamental force behind the demoralization in the U.S. dollar—the most revered, desired currency in the world a mere few decades ago—is our relentless, and recently accelerating rate of inflation.

THIS IS THE evil above all other economic evils. No paper currency can long survive a steep inflation's vicious impact upon its nation's economy, moral standards, confidence, leadership.

None ever has. Ours cannot either.

(2) Inflation has placed us in the horrible dilemma of damned if we do, damned if we don't. And although we could have—with appropriate policies and timing—escaped the dilemma, we didn't.

On the one side, if U.S. economic policy is designed to curb inflation substantially, and to fight the equally dangerous psychology of inflation (which, so often, is self-fulfilling in that expectation of inflation spur inflation), then the danger becomes very real of a business downturn in 1979—with all that implies about rising joblessness, business bankruptcies, etc.

AND THE BUSINESS recession danger has intensified as the Federal Reserve System, determined to do all it can on its own to control the price-wage spiral, has tightened the screws on credit to the point where double-digit interest rates have returned for loans to the nation's prime borrowers for home mortgages, for borrowers across the board.

On the other side, if U.S. economic policy is geared to maintaining production, profits, sales and employment at what are deemed tolerable "political" levels, then the almost certain result is persistent inflation, culminating in what could be the worst depression since the catastrophic 1930s.

(3) Despite the contempt for U.S. economic policy fumbling which other national leaders (Germany, Switzerland, Japan, in particular) have shown to such an embarrassing degree, there is no other money powerful enough at this time to replace the U.S. dollar as the reserve currency of the world.

THERE IS NO other currency capable of supporting the expansion of global trade so imperative if world prosperity is to be sustained.

Rizzo Fighting Two-Term Limit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Rizzo's name is not on the ballot but he is campaigning hard to make sure it will be next year.

The controversial and embattled mayor wants voters to change the city charter by wiping out the present two-term limit. This would allow mayors to be elected for as long as the people want them.

Rizzo, nearing the end of his second term, has concentrated his campaign in the city's white neighborhoods and at one point bluntly urged supporters to "vote white" to counter his heavy black opposition. He later changed his pitch to "vote Rizzo" as a way to push the charter change question on next Tuesday's ballot.

The 58-year-old mayor, a Democrat who made his name here as a tough police commissioner, tells voters Philadelphia would be in trouble if he had to leave City Hall.

"I am the difference. I know what to do and how to do it," he declares on daily visits to working-class neighborhoods. "I've been trained to make decisions and how to lead. I don't do everything right. Even God didn't do everything right — he selected a guy who betrayed him."

A locally commissioned Gallup Poll shows charter change losing by a 3-1 margin, which the former police commissioner charges is "a deliberate attempt ... to sway the election."

The mayor, in his daily swipes at what he calls the prejudiced press, urges people to switch from the television channel that paid for the Gallup poll to the city's two other commercial stations.

In denouncing Gallup's poll, he said, "When the election is over he'll go out of business, no one would hire him again."

Rizzo supporters claim their own polls show the charter change passing.

One poll, allegedly taken by a California organization, shows "yes" on the charter has a slight edge. But the pollster they quoted said the figures Rizzo relied on were non-existent and never came from his firm.

And Rizzo said Monday that a poll taken by his workers showed the referendum passing by 48 percent to 28 percent, with 24 percent undecided.

That poll, while featuring a large sampling — 78,000 persons interviewed between September and Oct. 26 — reportedly did not feature the scientific weighting designed to give an accurate cross section of public opinion.

"I will not be able to appear on next year's ballot if charter reform loses, and we all know the alternatives spell disaster for Philadelphia," Rizzo said in a letter mailed to voters in predominantly white neighborhoods. "I need your support more than ever (in) the most important campaign in my life."

His personal appearances also skirt those areas in Pennsylvania's biggest city where blacks, who comprise nearly 40 percent of the population, are concentrated — and Rizzo shrugs this off by contending he goes where his strength is.

The emotional issue of changing the 27-year-old charter overshadows everything else on the ballot, including the fight for a new governor of Pennsylvania, to replace Democrat Milton Shapp who also isn't eligible to seek a third term under state law.

It resulted in a record 204,849 new registered voters, making more than one million eligible.

The city's Republican Party, out of power since 1950, has taken no official position on the charter but last week it adopted a resolution censuring Rizzo for "bringing the city to its knees — economically, politically and psychologically."

Both major party gubernatorial candidates oppose the charter change. Republican Richard Thornburgh denounced "racially divisive and inflammatory statements," and Democrat Peter Flaherty said he was against "anyone using racial tactics which would polarize or divide blacks against whites."

Rizzo's reply is: "I'm no racist. The black man has done better under me than all of the liberal mayors before me. I'm more liberal than most of the fakers when it comes to human rights."

Lately Rizzo has been campaigning with another embattled politician, Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., who has been indicted on charges of receiving compensation for helping a Philadelphia hospital get federal funds.

"The news media is trying to make it appear that I'm supporting someone who broke the law," Rizzo says. "Well, Josh Eilberg is no criminal unless he is proven guilty by a jury of his peers."

He also criticizes the federal government for indicting Eilberg just before the election. "They have no stake in the community and they are trying to dictate what's best," he says.

The mayor says the present city charter denies voters the right to choose, arguing that "almost every other major city in this country trusts the people to pick their mayor without any such limit."

Rizzo's opponents contend such a restriction doesn't hurt the president of the United States and insist eight years is time and power enough for anyone.

Everywhere he goes Rizzo boasts how his administration has made Philadelphia succeed where other cities in America are failing. And also how he got the job because he was a tough cop.

In 1968, after the assassination of Martin Luther King, many cities had riots and violence, but not Philadelphia, Rizzo points out.

"Why?" he asks. "Because I was around. If that makes me a bully, so be it."

Judge Overrules Hart Request

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — If Gene Leroy Hart takes the witness stand during his murder trial next month, he may be quizzed about his criminal past under the terms of a judge's ruling.

District Judge William Whistler has overruled a request by Hart's attorneys that would have forbidden questions about the defendant's prior criminal record.

Hart, who is accused of killing three Girl Scouts at a northeast Oklahoma summer camp in 1977, once received more than 125 years in prison sentences after several first-degree burglary convictions.

Whistler's ruling Monday came during a formal arraignment for Hart Monday in Pryor.

Hart entered innocent pleas and was ordered held without bond in the Mayes County jail until his trial.

The judge also said Monday he still plans to start jury selection in the case on Nov. 27.

Judge Whistler took two additional defense motions under advisement. One asks that defense attorney be provided a transcript of each days proceedings during the trial and the other asks that prosecutors provide a detailed inventory of what was found during a search of the Cherokee County cabin where Hart was arrested in April after a 10-month search.

The judge denied a motion that would have sequestered about 900 potential jurors as soon as jury selection begins. He said he will sequester the final selection of jurors once testimony begins, however.

RAISED TO SURFACE — The Coast Guard cutter Cuyahoga, which collided with an Argentine coal freighter and sank in Chesapeake Bay with 11 of 29 crew members still aboard last week, was raised to the surface Monday by two navy cranes. The hole in the Cuyahoga's side was the damage caused by the collision with the freighter. (AP Laserphoto)

Cuyahoga Hull Papers, Pressmen To Resume Talks

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The cutter Cuyahoga has a gaping hole in its starboard side, just below the superstructure, where an Argentine coal freighter plowed into it, sending the ship and 11 of 29 crewmen to the bottom of Chesapeake Bay, the Coast Guard says.
 The Cuyahoga, raised from 57 feet of water Monday in an operation that took place in 15-knot winds and waves of 3 to 4 feet, was being towed to the Coast Guard station here to be examined for clues about the collision with the Santa Cruz II on the night of Oct. 30.
 Members of a board of inquiry investigating the crash inspected the wreckage before it was placed on barges and sent from St. Inigo, Md., near the site of the collision to the Portsmouth Support Center for further scrutiny.
 A published account appeared Monday, alleging the cutter's commanding officer, Lt. Comdr. J. M. Robinson, had mistaken the Santa Cruz II for a "small fishing vessel" until minutes before the collision.
 The Baltimore Evening Sun reported that even after he realized it was a large ship, Commissioned Warrant Officer Donald Robinson believed the two vessels were on parallel courses.
 It was not until the very last moment, after the cutter's second-in-command told him, that Robinson understood the ships were on a collision course, according to the Evening Sun, which said it had been shown a copy of the report.
 The document has been kept secret since the beginning of the board of inquiry's hearing Oct. 28.

Church-State Relations Major Topic

AUSTIN (AP) — A $31 million budget and new guidelines on church-state relations will occupy some 6,000 messengers to the 33rd annual session of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, which starts tonight.
 Major business of the convention will begin Wednesday and will include the report of a special study committee on church-state relations.
 The committee will recommend that the convention oppose government restrictions "that adversely affect the ability of the (Baptist) institutions to fulfill their distinctive purposes as Christian institutions."
 The messengers, both laity and ministers, will vote on a budget for 1979 that includes $10.9 million for home and foreign missions and Christian education and $20 million for Texas Baptist missions and church growth, colleges and universities, hospitals, children's homes and other activities.
 One possible flare-up that could occur in Thursday's debate on resolutions could deal with oral sex between husband and wife.
 Houston's Union Baptist Association has adopted a resolution asking the convention to withdraw Charlie Shedd from the program of the planned statewide Family Life Conference in Dallas on March 29-31.
 The association adopted the resolution primarily as the strength of a statement by the Rev. Glynn Little of Langwood Baptist Church that Shedd said oral sex between marriage partners was permissible.
 Little said he heard Shedd make that statement on some marriage enrichment tapes to which he listened some three years ago.
 Shedd, former pastor of Memorial Drive Presbyterian Church in Houston, now lives in Georgia and is a nationally known religious writer.

Minority Populations Growing In Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Minorities are quickly becoming the majority in the Houston Independent School District, according to official enrollment figures.
 The HISD head count released Monday also showed enrollment down by about 5,000 to 201,360 district-wide, with minorities comprising 49.3 percent of the total.
 Whites and "others" accounted for 30.3 percent, down from 32.2 last year, and school officials said they see no sign of a halt in the decline. The number of black students also dropped by 25 students, but the percentage increased from 44 percent to 45 percent.
 School officials predicted the fast increasing Hispanic enrollment would, in a few years, overtake the white percentage. This year, it was the fastest growing ethnic group in HISD at 24.2 percent.

Home is the Sailor
 MELI, Malaysia (AP) — Three Indonesians who got lost while fishing finally reached land after three weeks at sea. Reports said their 27-foot boat was swept ashore near Meli, that the three received hospital treatment and were released Monday.

Americans Advised To Learn All Costs Of Cruises

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans trying to escape frigid weather at home with cruises to warmer climates may get left out in the cold if they don't know what to look for.

Winter is the height of the cruise season. William Armstrong, a spokesman for Cruise Lines International Association, said more than 1 million persons sailed aboard cruise ships last year. "I think we're going to exceed a million again this year, but by how much I don't know," he said.

The most popular cruises are the short ones — seven to 14 days. Armstrong said the typical passenger can expect to spend from $85 to $125 a day this year, not counting tips. That's about $5 a day more than in 1977. In addition to tips — generally about $2 per day per person for the dining room team and an equal amount for the cabin staff — you may have to pay port taxes at some of the stops on your cruise. Ask in advance to avoid costly surprises.

The unpleasant side of life at sea made headlines earlier this year when a "Cruise to Nowhere" aboard the S.S. America operated by Venture Cruise Lines Ltd. brought complaints of inadequate accommodations and unsanitary conditions. The ship was forced to return to New York to unload angry passengers and, after a second unsuccessful cruise, the vessel was bought by the Greek shipping line that had sold it to Venture only four months earlier.

How can you avoid a disaster? Be wary of bargains that seem too good to be true. "People just looked at the price tag," said Armstrong, discussing the America's "Cruise to Nowhere." If the price for a given cruise is far below fees for similar sailings aboard other ships, "be a little suspect and do a little probing," advised Armstrong.

The U.S. Public Health Service reported in July that 40 of 74 ships checked in its most recent inspection had failed to pass. Why?

Armstrong said standards are almost impossibly strict. Keeping cooked and uncooked food in the same refrigerator, for example, can lead to failure, he said. "There is no hotel in the world that is subjected to the kind of inspection the cruise ships are subjected to," Armstrong said. "If there is any doubt in passengers' minds, they have every right to inspect the facilities before they use them."

Virtually all cruise ships today offer one-class service. No matter what price you pay, you will have the run of the entire ship and all its facilities. All passengers select their meals from the same menu.

Price, therefore, depends primarily on the location and size of your cabin. The higher the deck, the higher the price since the top deck has the best view and ventilation. You may be just as happy with accommodations on the second or third deck, however, since you are less likely to feel the motion of the ship there. An outside cabin with portholes will cost more than an inside one. A cabin located in the middle of the ship, where there is less motion than in the bow or stern, also will be more expensive.

The cruise lines association, whose members account for about 90 percent of the market, suggests that would-be sailors start with a travel agent. It is important, however, to get an agent who has sailed on or, at the very least, visited the ship you're considering.

Ask to see the deck plan and check dimensions of the cabins. Subtract the area occupied by the bed or beds — figure 6-foot by 3-foot for a single bed — to get some idea of how much space you actually will have. Check cabin location in relation to public areas and recreation facilities.

Other items to ask about include: air conditioning, closet size, number of hangers, bathroom facilities, cabin service and entertainment. How many tables are there in the dining room? What does a sample menu look like? Remember: You will be eating most of your meals aboard ship; you can't look for another restaurant if you don't like the food.

Christmas and New Year's cruises are the most expensive. You can save up to 50 percent by selecting a sailing during the off-peak season, but you may have less of a choice.

Don't put too much faith in the minimum price listed in advertisements. Usually very few cabins are available at that rate and you probably will wind up paying more.

Car Ferries Unpopular In Kentucky

SOUTH SHORE, Ky. (AP) — Until last summer, to get from South Shore to Portsmouth, Ohio, you spent a few minutes on the bridge over the Ohio River. Now you spend a few hours waiting in line.

The U.S. Grant Bridge was closed in August so structural defects could be repaired. It's supposed to reopen in December 1979. In the meantime, it's been replaced with three ferries, one for pedestrians and two for cars. The bridge used to take 12,000 cars a day, officials say. The ferries take 50 an hour.

"The best thing you can say about this whole situation is that it's a big joke on the working man and the taxpayer," said Jeff Lyons, 36, who lives in South Shore and works in a plant in Portsmouth.

The auto ferries are funded by the federal government, the passenger ferry by Ohio.

"When the river freezes, I suppose a lot of us are going to get fired," said Maynard Fitch, 45, as he kicked at the gravel while waiting his turn for the auto ferry. "If the snow is too deep to drive around and the barges and tugs are frozen in the river, we just won't make it. Nothing moved on this river last January."

"We left home at 11 this morning to get to work at 3 o'clock," Fitch said. "It used to take 10 minutes each way and now we have to give it three hours minimum."

Portsmouth is a town of 28,000. South Shore a hamlet of 676, and the Kentuckians do most of the traveling. They say it is normal for 100 or more vehicles to be in line at peak periods for the auto ferries.

The alternative — and the only way to cross when there's fog on the Ohio — is to drive 25 miles upriver to the bridge at Russell, Ky., which crosses to Ironton, Ohio.

But that two-lane bridge serves a U.S. highway and two state roads from the Kentucky side and four highways funneling in from the Ohio side. Residents say the traffic there is worse than at the ferry.

"The worst thing is when someone needs to come over in an emergency," said Andrew Sexton, 65, of Garrison, Ky., as he waited for the pedestrian ferry to take him home from the Ohio side after an eye exam.

In the first weeks after the bridge closed, Kentucky provided a National Guard helicopter for emergencies, but Gov. Julian Carroll discontinued it because of the $1,000 per day cost.

South Shore residents were told at a meeting Saturday night that a two-ambulance system with paramedics is planned to provide access to emergency medical facilities.

Ambulances with crews of six medical technicians each would be stationed at South Shore and at nearby Russell.

Donna McMurray, a widow, was crossing to Kentucky to take her four children to a doctor. Three were ill with flu, she said. Her oldest daughter, Kelly, 13, wore a neck brace from a motorcycle accident.

"When I pay ferry and taxi rides both ways for all of us it costs me $7.50 to $10.00 for a trip," she said.

WITCH OF SALEM — Laurie Cabot, 45, is the official witch of Salem, Mass. She gained the title in April of 1977 from Gov. Michael Dukakis. Mrs. Cabot teaches a non-credit course, "Witchcraft as a Science," at Salem State College and has appeared on network talk shows. Mrs. Cabot is listed in Salem's Chamber of Commerce directory under witches. (AP Laserphoto)

Witch Of Salem Gives Forecast

SALISBURY, Mass. (AP) — Tonight, when goblins rustle the leaves around the jack-o'-lanterns, Laurie Cabot, Salem's official witch, will be exploring her black arts.

Salem, the city north of Boston which celebrates its heritage of the Salem witch trials with everything from "Witch City Auto Body" to "Witch City Travel," lists Mrs. Cabot in its chamber of commerce directory. Under witches.

"We get a lot of calls looking for her, particularly around now," said a chamber telephone operator.

Mrs. Cabot was proclaimed "Official Witch of Salem" by Gov. Michael Dukakis in 1977. She teaches a course, "Witchcraft as a Science," at Salem State College.

Two summers ago, the California native was called in to help the Boston Red Sox when the then-defending American League champs were suffering through a 10-game losing streak.

Mrs. Cabot appeared on the field to shake spells onto the bats. The team won its next game.

Mrs. Cabot, 45, is the mother of two teen-age daughters and works with dyslexic children at the Salem Research Center. But tonight she specializes as a witch.

Halloween, she says, is a witch's New Year, a time for a sorcerer's predictions.

"I think things are definitely looking up starting in January," she says. "A lot of restrictions are going to be taken off people emotionally... I think it's going to be a good year."

How can Mrs. Cabot be psychic? What does she know that others don't? The answer is simple, to her:

The flow of energy fields bump against her "psychic shield"; it's an extrasensory perception that Mrs. Cabot claims is under serious study in the world of science. She calls it witchcraft.

Mrs. Cabot says the main trouble with being a witch is the bad rap placed on the profession by history.

"A witch originally meant a wise person, a seeker of knowledge," she says. "It wasn't until the Middle Ages that this was twisted around. We're trying to do something about that."

This Halloween, Mrs. Cabot will be presenting her Fifth Annual Witches Ball in Salem, complete with a blues-rock band.

What does a witch wear to a costume ball?

"I think I may come as a space witch," she says. "I would really like to take a long trip into space someday."

Long Prison Sentences Given To Soviet Spies

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The federal judge who meted out 50-year prison sentences to two Soviet spies who worked at the United Nations says he hopes the punishment will be a warning to U.N. officials to screen employees more carefully in the future.

The Soviet Union, said U.S. District Court Judge Frederick Lacey, "was fully and completely" behind the conspiracy to acquire U.S. defense secrets.

But Lacey, in sentencing Valdik Enger, 39, and Rudolf Chernyayev, 43, bowed to diplomatic considerations Monday in allowing the pair to remain free pending appeal. He ordered the two men confined to a small area surrounding the Soviet residential complex in the Bronx.

The judge said he hoped the convictions would serve as a warning to the United Nations to "screen the background of each and every person assigned to the United Nations in the future."

Lacey stressed that he wanted to "warn the nation against the danger to the community these people pose at large."

The charges against the two Soviets, who worked for the United Nations when they were arrested in May, said they conspired with a Soviet diplomat to pass U.S. secrets to their homeland. The diplomat, Vladimir Zayakia, was immune from prosecution, and has since left the United States.

In sentencing the two men, Lacey agreed with U.S. Attorney Robert Del Tufo, who sought lengthy prison terms because "these defendants are part of a larger espionage network which is in existence and operates in this country." The pair could have been sentenced to life in prison.

Enger and Chernyayev were also sentenced to two 10-year terms to be served concurrently for related espionage convictions. Pending appeal, they were ordered to surrender their drivers' licenses. Lacey said they would be required to obtain court permission to leave the Soviet complex in the Bronx except in medical emergencies.

Lacey said it was apparent through trial testimony that the Soviet Union had been behind the spying.

"Certainly it is clear that at a very high level an assignment was made," the judge said. "Someone assigned them (the defendants) to this — clearly a Soviet officer or official."

Testimony during the trial showed a U.S. naval officer, posing as a traitor, lured the defendants into the plot by offering to funnel Navy information to the Soviet Union.

AIRLINE LOSSES

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon's national Middle East Airlines lost $17 million this year, airline officials said. The company did not explain why it lost money, but sources said it was because of the fighting this year between Lebanese Christian militiamen and Syrian troops sent to this country two years ago to end Lebanon's civil war.

DJ Holds Vigil In Spooky House

By KENNETH R. CLARK
 United Press International Writer

For Dave Rodgers, Halloween was a night of reading "The Invisible Man" among the restless ghosts of the haunted slave house in Equality, Ill.

For the First Family, it was Carol Channing and some politicized White House lyrics from "Hello Dolly."

For children in Mexico, it was graveyards and grinning candy skulls on the Day of the Dead, and for the governor of Nevada, it was 700 pounds of popcorn and four hours of assorted small spooks on the front steps of the executive mansion.

It was trick or treat for Harry Houdini in Marshall, Mich. — the trick being to induce the late magician's ghost to come to the party. The treat: a plate of lox and bagels, Houdini's favorite snack, served up by a seance organizer who said, "If something happens I'll probably drop dead of a heart attack."

But the spookiest Halloween venture of them all belonged to Rodgers.

The 26-year-old Harrisburg, Ill., disc jockey vowed to spend Monday night alone in the Old Slave House, against bets the ghosts that dwell there would drive him screaming into the streets by 1 a.m.

The old mansion, built in 1834, serves as a museum now, but it once housed slaves forced to labor in the salt works of its builder, John Hart Crenshaw. The current owner, George Sisk, says at least 150 challengers of Rodgers' stripe have learned the hard way that their ghosts haunt on. No one, he said, ever has braved the sound of whimpering and sight of spectral forms for a full night. Rodgers was not exactly cocky as he began his solo Halloween night vigil.

"I was up there with members of the television crew the other night doing some testing and it's really spooky ... even with lights," he said. "The wind comes whistling through holes and cracks ... It's really eerie."

"He'll be gone by 1 o'clock," said Sisk — but by 1 a.m. today, Rodgers, armed with a "lucky ring," camera, tape recorder and a copy of "The Invisible Man" for light reading, still maintained his vigil.

Robert Lund, a writer who owns the American Museum of Magic in Marshall, Mich., also was looking for a ghost on Halloween — but one he'd have no trouble recognizing.

Ever since Houdini's death on Halloween 52 years ago, magicians have tried vainly to summon up his spirit. This year, Lund will try to lure him home with lox and bagels.

"I don't expect him to actually eat the lox and bagels," said Lund, "but maybe he'll jiggle the plate. Who knows?" And he added, "If something happens I'll probably drop dead of a heart attack."

While Americans north of the border are chasing ghosts on Halloween, the people of Mexico are celebrating theirs, with the Day of the Dead.

For the past week, candy shops and bakeries throughout the land have been turning out a ghastly array of skulls and skeletons made of sugar. The skulls bear the name of the deceased when families make their annual pilgrimage to cere-teries for all night, candlelight vigils, but the living get goodies too.

The "treat" for a Mexican child is a sugar skull bearing his own name, along with big round sugared loaves of bread called "pan de muerto" — bread of the dead.

As ever, for American youngsters, the sweets are treats taken under cover of

Motion Sickness Device Readied

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A dime-sized metal foil placed behind the ear has been developed to alleviate motion sickness, a drug firm has announced.

The device will be available in 18 months by prescription only, Alejandro Zaffaroni, president of Alza Corp., said Thursday.

The British government already has approved its sale as an over-the-counter remedy.

The main advantage of the paste-on button, from which a thin film of the drug scopalmine is absorbed directly through the skin, "is that the body gets a very low, steady dose, which very much eliminates side effects," said physiologist Dr. Jane Shaw, who helped develop the system.

Zaffaroni said the device is designed mainly to combat seasickness but may eventually prove valuable in suppressing nausea from a variety of sources, including powerful drugs used to fight cancer.

mask and costume from neighbors threatened with "tricks" if they don't deliver, and kids in Carson City, Nev., hit the jackpot Monday, a day early.

Nevada celebrates Halloween on Oct. 30, to avoid conflict with the state's birthday celebration on the 31st. Accordingly, Gov. Mike O'Callaghan braved temperatures in the 30s for four hours at the executive mansion, handing out 700 pounds of popcorn to an estimated 3,000 early trick-or-treaters.

He found a few tricks too. One youngster, appropriately dressed as a bum, came back three times. Finally challenged by the governor, the youngster calmly explained, "this is for my brother's brother."

Festivities came a day early at the White House too, where guests stooped to enter through the gaping mouth of a 16-foot plywood jack-o'-lantern to hear Carol Channing sing songs and Carmine Rava, a writer for "Captain Kangaroo," tell ghost stories.

Miss Channing had some special lyrics for President Carter — sung to the tune of her never-ending "Hello Dolly."

"You're our guy, with Rosalynn by your side," she sang. "It's great to have you here where you belong."

Schools Want Additional Time For Appeal Reply

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

School lawyers said Monday they will ask the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for more time to respond to the federal government's request that Lubbock be ordered to implement a systemwide school integration plan.

Charles Cobb, longtime attorney for the Lubbock Independent School District, said the usual 30-day deadline for submitting a rebuttal to the U.S. Justice Department brief is too short.

For one thing, Cobb has yet to receive a copy of the brief — even though the New Orleans-based appellate court has started the clock ticking on the timetable for the district's reply.

Cobb also noted that the Justice Department brief is reported to be exceptionally long (73 pages), and that the department itself had been granted an extra month to prepare the document.

Cobb said he plans to ask the circuit court "as soon as possible" for a 30-day extension. That should give the district enough time to draft a reply brief and have it printed for the appellate judges, he said.

Justice Department attorneys put their brief in the mail Friday. Clerks at the 5th Circuit said Monday they are aware the document is on its way.

Although the brief will not be officially docketed until today or Wednesday, Friday's postmark will be sufficient to meet the Friday deadline for filing the brief, clerks said.

The Justice Department's main contention reportedly is that U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward did not go far enough in ordering desegregation of the city's public schools.

In a Jan. 27 ruling, Woodward noted that 22 schools at that time were "racially identifiable," with minority enrollments exceeding 70 percent.

Those schools were the elementaries of Harwell, Southeast, Iles, Wheatley, Posey, Martin, Bozeman, Parkway, Hunt, Sanders, Guadalupe, Mahon, Wolffarth, Tubbs, McWhorter and Jackson; the junior highs of Alderson, Matthews, Struggs and Thompson; and the senior high schools of Dunbar and Estacado.

But Woodward said only nine of the schools — Guadalupe, Iles, Martin, Posey, Sanders, Wheatley, Mahon, Struggs and Dunbar — "have their present racial status as a result of past discriminatory acts with segregative intent by (school officials) and their predecessors."

The other 13 schools, the judge said, "have become so racially identifiable from factors other than any unconstitutional acts (by the school district). This has been conclusively proved by the statistics showing that at one period of time or another, each of these 13 schools was operated and maintained as a fully integrated school."

"Later the enrollment in these 13 schools gradually increased in the percentage of minority enrollment, but this change resulted solely from the shifting of population in the district..."

The district's proposed integration plan, which requires busing of students, is aimed primarily at desegregating only the 22 schools found to be "violations."

But the Justice Department contends this is not enough. "The court's (lower court's) action in desegregating the core area of Lubbock, while the rest of the district has been left unsegregated and the fruits of that discrimination have been retained and expanded."

"Surrounding this area are equally segregated schools which will be left intact."

The Justice Department said Woodward failed to place the burden of proof on the school board in showing that segregation in these schools did not result from discriminatory practices.

The department claims the school district manipulated boundary lines and used other devices to keep the schools segregated by race.

The department's latest asks the circuit court to impose a "regionwide remedy" for integrating the school district. Such a plan, school board president Charles Waters says, would require "many times the amount of busing we have now."

Superintendent Ed Irons said he is dismayed by the Justice Department's appeal. He said he believes the district will win its case — if not at the 5th Circuit, then at the Supreme Court.

Woodward, Irons said, "tailored his order to exactly what the Supreme Court has been saying in recent desegregation cases."

Woodward detailed why only nine schools were found to be remnants of unlawful segregation, and then "he made the remedy fit the violations," Irons said.

IRS Seeks Volunteers For Tax Assistance

The Lubbock Internal Revenue Service has begun a recruiting program for tax assistance helpers and is looking for volunteer organizations willing to help.

VITA, a nationwide volunteer income tax assistance program, yearly calls on all volunteer organizations to provide the manpower necessary to help especially low-income, minority taxpayers fill out their 1040 or 1040A tax forms, according to David Flores of the Lubbock IRS collections department.

"We are looking for groups who can tell us how many people they can provide to fill out the forms," Flores said. "We in turn will provide everything else: the training, back-up assistance if necessary and all the blank forms and instructions."

"If the groups don't have a place to set up the program I can find one for them," Flores said. "I can also have somebody (from the IRS office) on the spot to answer questions or to stand by the phone."

The assistance program aims for persons eligible, for example, for $400 to $500 tax credits, but unaware of their eligibility, Flores said. Also, the IRS wants to reach other taxpayers, such as married couples with a child who are entitled to a return if they file jointly but who are unaware that this is possible.

The organizations which participate in the tax program may set up schedules which are most convenient for them, according to Flores.

"We just want to get everyone involved," he said. "We want to handle the simple forms which take five or 10 minutes to do."

Interested organizations may sign up for the program or obtain more information by calling Flores at 762-7424.

PUMPKINS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS — From the looks of things, Saturday Night Live star John Belushi has made quite an impression on students at Texas Tech University, reflected by their immortalizations of the comedian at Tech's fourth annual Great Pumpkin Contest. Apparently all is not lost for traditionalists, though, as there were a number of smiling jack-o-lanterns carved by the landscape architecture, art and architecture students who participated in the contest. Winners were judged Monday, and remained on display in the Ag Pavilion until 3 p.m. today. (Staff Photo by Gary Davis)

Winners Tabbed In Pumpkin Face Contest

By SHAUNA HILL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A hatchet was lodged firmly between its eyes. Blood stains marred the beauty of its orange complexion and its mouth was twisted into a grotesque grin.

It was a horrible face and its macabre ugliness won its creator first place Monday in the horror division of the fourth annual Great Pumpkin Contest at Texas Tech University.

Landscape architecture, art, and architecture students created about 200 grinning, leering pumpkin faces and entered them in the horror, traditional, celebrity caricature, or theme categories of the contest.

Gathered to judge the annual competition in the old Aggie Pavilion were Jim Blagg, assistant city manager; Trudy Stevens, Tech police officer; George Bush, Republican congressional candidate; and Laura Bush, wife of the candidate.

Pumpkins were judged on effectiveness, originality and use of additional material.

The bloodstained pumpkin with the hatchet was carved by Bill Vaughn, who received a $15 first prize in the horror category for his efforts.

A pumpkin depicting the face of death with a scene of skeletons in its eyes won second place in the horror category.

Third place in the horror competition went to Kurt Zieske's gray "Jaws" pumpkin, which was in the process of devouring a mangled hand and a Lone Star beer can.

The winners of the $15 first prize in the celebrity caricature category were Steve Cannon, Lisa Jones and Tait Moring, who entered a stark, intricately-carved pumpkin representation of King Tut. The carving featured no supplemental material but used the color contrast of pumpkin skin and pumpkin pulp to attain its effect.

The celebrity caricature competition is always popular and this year we saw a lot less of Jimmy Carter and "Stars Wars" and a lot more Kiss and "Animal House," said Neal Rassman, contest coordinator and assistant professor of landscape architecture.

A caricature of Leon Spinks carved by Bill Wotterman, Billy Martin, and Eddie Urquid won second place in the celebrity competition and a Mae West pumpkin complete with long cigarette holder done by Monty Sooter won third place.

Pumpkins which did not fit in any other category were placed in the theme category.

A "Peter, Peter Pumpkin Eater" pumpkin with latticed windows and a little boy eating pumpkin on the inside won the $15 first place award in theme competition. The creation was carved by Lesh Coder and Elaine Bohler.

A "samurai vampire" pumpkin done by Tony Bruckman and Adalberto Warren and a "Homecoming '78" pumpkin carved by David Yelovich and featuring Raider Reed, won second and third places in theme competition.

Steven M. Higgins, Terry Rucker, and S. Carl Friedsan captured first, second, and third places in the traditional category. Large cut-outs and lopsided grins were hallmarks of the traditional Halloween carvings.

A "Zit Monster" pumpkin with lemon peel eyes and a number of protruding bumps, a "Wild and Crazy Guy" pumpkin with Steve Martin's round black glasses and a John Belushi caricature with a Michelob can crunched on its forehead and a hamburger jammed in its mouth were included in the entries.

Rassman said the pumpkins will be on display in the Aggie Pavilion until Wednesday.

Museum Contributors Honored

Three longstanding contributors to the South Plains cultural community were honored Monday by the West Texas Museum Association.

Dr. Alex B. Lacy Jr., director of the National Endowment for the Humanities, was speaker for the annual meeting at which "long overdue" Action Awards went to Retha R. Martin, F. William Holder and the late Loyd M. Lanotte.

Former Texas Tech president Grover E. Murray paid tribute to Lanotte, who died in June, in his presentation speech to the 165 association members and guests attending.

Murray termed "this marvelous museum Area Farmers Support Hance

A group of 27 South Plains agriculture and commodity leaders Monday night endorsed State Sen. Kent Hance in his bid for the 19th congressional district seat.

The area agriculturists represented about 10 counties, and included cotton, grain, corn, cattle, lamb, sugar and beet producers.

Group spokesman Ray Joe Riley said the group endorsed Hance because of his "background in agriculture, the fact that he was raised on a farm in this district, that he participated in 4-H clubs and FFA activities, his knowledge of overall farm matters, his dedication and service to West Texas, and because of his experience in service in state government (he) has shown that he represents and understands agriculture."

"We believe, therefore, that Kent Hance is the only candidate qualified to represent the 19th district in Congress."

seum building in which we meet tonight" a memorial to Lanotte's efforts and dedication to civic endeavors.

Lanotte, who began his own business ventures as a delivery boy in Post and worked his way up to chairman of the board of his own transportation company, was lauded for his fund-raising efforts to build a museum "which would have regional, national and international appeal."

In selecting a person to head the half-million dollar drive to build the new museum, Murray added, the committee found "a special person, one to whom challenges were a part of life and, most importantly, one with the vision to look above the mediocre and to dream the big dream."

A delivery job with Dalby Motor Freight Lines that helped put him through Texas Tech launched Lanotte on a transportation career which climaxed as president with T.I.M.E.-DC Inc. and chairman of the board of his own Brazos Inc. He was a nationally recognized leader in the trucking industry and a leader on the Lubbock civic scene.

Martin was hailed for his many years of generosity with "talent, time and philanthropy" in many realms, helping to establish many cultural, church, civic and collegiate endeavors. Holder presented the award.

A few of Martin's interests have included the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra, Texas Tech University Foundation Board and President's Council, Methodist Hospital, First Presbyterian Church, Lubbock Boys Clubs, in addition to the museum association.

He has been chairman of the board of Narmid, Inc. since 1946, building it to a chain of 22 stores and 3,500 employees

Dunlap's is the Lubbock segment of the chain.

Noting that "Retha has been one of the most generous contributors to the art collection of this museum," Holder pointed to a display case filled with carved ivory as only one of the Martin donations.

Holder received his own award from Mrs. Russell Bean who praised him as an individual "who has given of himself, in more ways, for more jobs" than others.

"He is always ready to help and does so with charm and flair," Mrs. Bean said. His cultural and civic contributions, she added, are "many and impressive," and include many offices in the museum association as well as work with the Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council, Texas Assembly of Arts Council, Civic Center Art Committee, Lubbock Garden and Arts Center and Lubbock Art Association.

Also at the meeting, Mrs. Bean was elected secretary of the museum association, along with Coffee Conner as vice president and Fred Timberlake as treasurer. Executive committee members and trustees also were named at the meeting.

NEW ADVENTURES — A great conversation piece for any casual setting, the new Wonder Woman Clock is cordless and runs a year on one battery. The companion Bat Man clock with bold blue frame adds a fun touch to decorating.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter to you, a person wrote, "I am a Catholic and a Mason," stating further that Pope Paul VI issued a ruling in 1974 which gave Catholics permission to join the Masonic Order. The letter was signed, A CATHOLIC WHO IS ALSO MASON. Your comment was simply, "Thank you. Now I know."

Abby, that Catholic is no longer a Catholic in good standing in the church if he joined the Masonic order. Pope Paul never issued such an order. And now you REALLY do know!

D.T. (A CATHOLIC),
LAS CRUCES, N.M.

Dear Catholic: Would you take the word of the Most Reverend Fulton J. Sheen, titular archbishop of Newport? Read on:

DEAR ABBY: It was a joy to hear from you and I shall try to answer the question submitted: "Can a Catholic become a Mason and maintain his standing in the Catholic Church?"

Can a Catholic be a Mason? That depends. According to a letter sent to the presidents of the various National Conferences of Catholic Bishops by Cardinal Seper, Prefect of the Vatican's Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith dated July 18, 1974, membership by lay people in Masonic groups is acceptable, provided the groups are not actively hostile to the Church.

Cleric, religious and members of Secular Institutes are still forbidden in every case to join any Masonic associations. Although Canon 2335 of the current Code of Canon Law of the Church continues to remain in the books, it is to be interpreted in the light of the above mentioned letter.

With warmest personal regards — God Love You!

Sincerely,
Fulton J. Sheen

DEAR ABBY: I know a guy who is so conceited it's pitiful. He carries a small mirror in his pocket along with his comb, and every few minutes checks his hair and runs a comb through it.

I think it's okay for a guy to be satisfied with his looks, but don't you think he's overdoing it?

TURNED OFF

Dear Turned: A guy (or a gal) who constantly pulls out a mirror is dissatisfied with his (or her) looks. That's insecurity — not conceit.

Proper management of entries is one of the keys to successful declarer play. South failed to appreciate that on this hand and squandered one of dummy's entries prematurely, which cost him his slam.

Observe South's choice of opening bid. His hand is too strong for four hearts, which is a preemptive measure. With an ace and a king outside the trump suit, one heart is the correct opening bid. When South showed a strong trick-taking hand, North invited slam by raising, in the process denying a side-suit control outside of clubs. South was delighted to accept in view of his second-round spade control and total control of diamonds.

Since the king of spades was virtually marked in the South hand, West wisely refrained from leading the ace. Instead, he tried to set up a trick in diamonds. Declarer won the ace, drew trumps in two rounds, cashed the ace and king of clubs, sluffing a spade on the second high club, and ruffed a club.

When the queen of clubs failed to come down in three rounds, declarer realized he was in trouble. He got back to dummy with a trump and led a spade to his king, but West had the ace — no surprise — and declarer lost two spade tricks.

Declarer was in too great a hurry to draw trumps. Dummy's hearts were needed as entries to set up and cash the club suit.

After winning the ace of diamonds, declarer should immediately lead a club to the king and ruff a club high. Next, he cashes the king and ace of hearts, drawing the outstanding trumps and leaving himself in dummy to ruff another club to set up the suit.

Now declarer can get back to dummy with the nine of hearts, cash the ace of clubs to fell the queen, and discard all his spades on dummy's good clubs. Instead of going down one, declarer ends up making an overtrick.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorepad, send $1.60 to "Goren Four Deal," P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J., 07649. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.

BARBECUED NECTARINE CHICKEN

1/3 cup brewed soy sauce
1/4 cup sauterne (or use orange or apple juice)
1/4 cup brown sugar (packed)
2 tbsp. lemon juice
1 clove garlic, pressed
1/8 tsp. powdered ginger
4 frying chicken halves (about 1 lb. each)

6 fresh nectarines
2 tbsp. catsup
2 tsp. oil

Combine soy sauce, sauterne (or juice), sugar, lemon juice, garlic and ginger. Mix well. Place chicken halves in a 9x13-inch baking pan. Pour marinade over and turn once to coat all sides. Refrigerate two hours or longer, turning occasionally.

Shortly before cooking, coarsely dice two nectarines into blender jar and blend smooth to measure 1 cup. (Or puree nectarines using sieve or food mill.) Drain marinade from chicken and add it to the blended nectarine, catsup and oil.

Place chicken on grill over glowing charcoal. (Or place on broiler rack in oven at least 8 inches from source of heat.) Grill slowly, turning often, 50 to 60 minutes, until chicken is done. During last 20 minutes of cooking, baste chicken frequently with the nectarine marinade.

Place remaining nectarines, cut in halves, on grill the last 10 minutes of cooking, basting with the marinade. Makes 4 servings.

Toothpicks No Longer Fashion Accessory For Affluent American Gentlemen

By WALDON R. PORTERFIELD
Women's News Service

The toothpick, fluctuating in and out of fashion for centuries, is in a decline today in the United States.

There are fewer toothpick dispensers at restaurant cash registers, where the wooden slivers may come paper-wrapped and flavored, and they continue to disappear from family tables.

Gone for a long time are toothpicks of gold or ivory, which once dangled from the watch chains — the latter have vanished, also — of affluent and fashionable American gentlemen.

Picking your teeth in public wasn't always considered gauche by etiquette arbiters, as it is today.

Archeologists have dug up toothpicks at ancient Ur, proving they were used by the Babylonians as early as 3,500 B.C.

The people of old Japan, China and India cleaned their teeth with a quill or a sharpened twig and sometimes with instruments made of bronze gold or silver.

The toothpick disappeared with the fall of Rome but was revived centuries later when Scotland's King James IV marked his ascent to the throne in 1488 by buying two gold toothpicks on a chain. Sixty-three years later, his son, James V, bought a silver case "to keep pyke teeth in."

Giovanni della Casa, an early Florentine author, mentioned the toothpick in his book on deportment, "Il Calateo," circa 1558. Della Casa pointed out that it was not polite to scratch oneself or spit at table. If spitting was absolutely essential, he declared, it must be done in a "seemly" way, possible in the manner of the ancient Persians who had trained themselves never to blow noses or spit.

It was forbidden to pick teeth with your fingers; nor was it proper to leave the table with a toothpick in the mouth, "like a bird which is nest building," or, even worse, to leave a toothpick "behind the ear like a barber."

Della Casa had harsh words for the users of fancy toothpicks: "They also are undoubtedly mistaken in their notions of politeness, who carry their toothpick cases hanging down from their necks: for, besides it is an odd sight for a gentleman to produce anything of that kind from his bosom like some strolling pedlar, he who acts thus is but too well-furnished with every instrument of luxury, and too anxious about everything that relates to the belly: and I can see no reason why the same persons might not as well display a silver spoon hanging about their necks."

As late as 1894, toothpicks were not common in Italy. One observer noted: "There may occasionally be met with small wooden picks, but quills never. The explanation is that one of the popes was poisoned by means of a medicated toothpick purposely handed to him after dinner."

At only 16 George Washington wrote a book called "Rule of Civility," which noted: "Cleanse not your teeth with the Table Cloth Napkin Fork or Knife but if others do let it be done with a Pick Tooth."

In the America of the 1880s a young girl described in her diary a Sunday outing in Rochester, N.Y., when she and others "enjoyed the hearty 75 cent lunch" at the Glenn House, after which they "explored their teeth after the spareribs and sauerkraut, fluffy rolls, hot chocolate and pie with the new wooden toothpicks which stood on a holder."

"This technological advance in gracious living had become idly available since Silas Noble and James B. Cooley of Granville, Mass. has patented the first machine for making wooden toothpicks a few years before," writes Gerald Carson in his "The Polite Americans."

Charles Forster, of Oxford County, Me., invented a toothpick machine in 1887, which resulted in that country becoming "the toothpick center of the world." Forster first saw "toothpickers" while traveling in South America after the Civil War. He noticed that the Indians used wood slivers to remove food particles from between their teeth.

Forster brought some toothpicks home to Maine. After developing a machine to produce toothpicks, he had to make them socially acceptable. Thus, he hired Harvard students to use them in fashionable Boston restaurants after they had eaten a meal paid for by Forster. "Once these proper Bostonians saw the young men using toothpicks," Forster said years later, "They started using them, too."

Earlier, Mrs. Frances Trollope, the English author, in her "Domestic Manners of the Americans" in 1832, was appalled by the man at table with her on a Mississippi riverboat:

"The frightful manner of feeding with their knives, till the whole blade seemed to enter the mouth, and the still more frightful manner of cleaning the teeth afterward with a pocket knife."

Eliye Howell Glover, in the 7th edition of her "Dame Curtesy's Book of Etiquette" in 1921, had harsh words for the toothpick: "It is the rule in most families to have a fresh napkin at dinner, which is the most ceremonious meal of the day and partaken of with the most leisure. In the same category it here be chronicled that toothpicks are never passed at the table and never used in public."

"One might just as well take out false teeth and cleanse them, or manicure one's fingers, yet these questions are asked so often that an emphatic denial seems necessary here."

In 1919 author Paul Hutchinson wrote of train travel: "American dining cars are the best in the world. Also the most expensive, but the travel-weary tourist, back from the ends of the earth, is glad to pay what tribute is demanded for a sight of 'George' bearing his gleaming salver of savory food down the swaying aisle. Not the least distinctive thing about the American diner is the little envelope that 'George' brings in with finger bowl, and the quill toothpick that nestles so sanitariously within."

Many goose quill toothpicks came from China, where boys were seated at long benches with knives and a short piece of wire in their right hands. With a twist the left hand held the quill in position for a cut, and the wire was used to clean the interior. From the cutting room the quills were soaked in a soda solution, dried and dispatched to the United States.

One such toothpick factory turned out more than 2,500,000 a month. The champion youthful cutter sliced 7,200 in a day.

In a book of teeth written a few years ago by Dr. Sydney Garfield, the toothpick was extolled: "I like toothpicks, always carry one in my pocket; leaving restaurants I often take three or four. When needed to reach that maddening spot, they seem worth a thousand dollars. Men of distinction used to use soft gold personal toothpicks with a flair of style, including elevation of the small finger."

"One time traveling through Mexico at a small souvenir shop in San Luis Potosi, I saw a man's leather wallet containing a long, narrow, sewed pocket. I asked the pocket's purpose. 'That, Senor,' I was told, 'is for the toothpick.' Soft wooden toothpicks poked deep between teeth are also good tooth gum massagers."

"Once, toothpicking deep, before an important Sunday social appointment, a long piece broke...hurting between my upper left second and third molars. Even I, skilled dentist, couldn't get the darn thing out of me. After desperate telephoning and a trip to a professional friend, I survived. Still a picker, perhaps I live too dangerously."

A notorious Brazilian bandit used a unique toothpick: it was a fang from a huge poisonous spider, set in gold.

'Sex Symbol' Reveals All

PARIS (WNS) — Does the name Christine Norden mean anything to you? A Hollywood sex bomb in the '40s and the first Miss Topless, she has been married four times and has just written all about her busy past in her sizzling autobiography, "Sex Symbol."

Its pages are scattered with candid revelations about Richard Burton, Rod Steiger, Jerry Lewis and others. Only one man is worried about the book — her first husband, bandleader Norman Cole. After a bitter divorce, Cole brought up their American son Michael, now 33, leading him to believe that his mom was dead.

Says Christine, "I was only 19 when I married Norman. I gave him a bad time and I admit that in the book. He hasn't spoken to me for 30 years."

"He disapproved of Michael seeing me which is a very sad situation. After all these years it would be nice if we could shake hands and be friends. It would make life much easier for our son."

Copywriter Leaves Job To Enter Catering Field

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer Not long ago I attended a luncheon made memorable by some pecan tarts. I congratulated my hostess on her cooking and she sheepishly told me the tarts had not come from a caterer named Jane Wilson. Later I ran into Miss Wilson at a restaurant luncheon and over a dish of fettuccini she gave me a glimpse of the fascinating world of catering. It is rewarding, but no bed of roses.

Miss Wilson got her start as a food copywriter and researcher for Time Inc., where she made a name for herself through her talent for turning an office party into a banquet on short notice.

Friends also spread word about the delectable dishes Jane Wilson could whip up, and in 1967, this personable Californian quit journalism and took a course in specialty cooking. Before you could say Coquille St. Jacques, she was providing appetizers for small parties. Soon she was catering banquets for hundreds of guests, and that's where problems arose.

"Just the other day," she said, "I prepared a banquet for a thousand built around a chicken salad. That night I awoke with a nagging feeling that the chicken had not seemed too fresh. So at 5 a.m. I rounded up my staff and we got a whole new batch of chicken and made the dish all over again."

The needs of Miss Wilson's clients vary widely from a simple picnic box featuring fresh grapes, cheese and deviled eggs to Lucullan spreads including steak tartare on toast, herbed pate and mousse of trout. One favorite is caviar broche, which an admirer said looked like a fanciful lacquered box.

"Food should be the focal point of a party and should capture the spirit of the occasion," said Miss Wilson, eyeing a luncheon roll with some distaste. "But making food look appetizing need not cost a fortune."

One of her own reasonable specialties is crudites, that delightful mixture of raw vegetable bits the French are so fond of. Served with a tangy dip, this puts you in the mood for any meal, from luncheon snack to sit-down banquet.

Here's a recipe for a popular Wilson special; Shrimp Curry Salad.
1 lb. large shrimp, peeled
2 red Delicious apples

- 1/2 lb. celery
- 4 oz. white raisins
- 2 oz. pecans
- Add shrimp to cold water, bring to boil over medium heat and cook about 5 minutes till tender but firm. Core, but do not peel apples, cut into one quarter-inch slices lengthwise. Wash celery, and dice. Place these ingredients, plus raisins and pecans, in glass bowl. Make curry dressing.
- 1 1/3 cups salad oil
- 6 tsp. white vinegar
- 2 tsp. curry powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- Put in blender 5 seconds and pour over salad. Toss, refrigerate till ready to serve. Serves 4. Good with chilled dry white wine.

Policeman Wins Ribbon For Needlepoint Entry

SONORA, Calif. (AP) — Ned Day has something in common with Roosevelt Grier — when he picks up his needlepoint nobody laughs.

"Being the lieutenant of investigation, I don't get too much ribbing from the guys at work," says the Tuolumne County sheriff's officer. But he hasn't had any converts, either.

That doesn't bother the 37-year-old Day, who is still excited about his second-place ribbon for a needlepoint entry in the Mother Lode Fair here earlier this year.

His wife, Clare, talked him into entering a pillow with an outdoor scene featuring two mallard ducks taking flight from the water.

The former Los Angeles police officer said he took up needlepoint shortly before moving to this Central California mountain community four years ago to take his mind off work.

"I needed something to relax and unwind with after I got home. Needlepoint fills the bill perfectly because it is detailed work that requires your full attention to turn in a good job," Day says.

"I had several other hobbies at the time and most of those weren't relaxing, like archery and shooting, things I couldn't do inside the house," he says.

Day says he got the idea for needle-point from Grier, the former Los Angeles Rams defensive tackle.

"I saw Rosey Grier on TV talking about needlepoint, and it looked like something I would enjoy," Day says.

So he bought supplies to make a belt for his wife and learned mostly by trial and error until he bought a book to learn different stitches.

Since then he has made "just about anything that strikes my fancy," and many of his friends have received his creations as gifts.

The lieutenant wasn't the only Day who won at the fair this year. His two daughters won two ribbons and three honorable mentions with drawings and ceramics in the children's crafts division.

The prize-winning pillow was completed in 150 hours in "bits and pieces of time — in between murders, robberies and burglaries," but Day laughs when asked if his work influences his subject matter for his creations.

Although Day spends considerable time on stakeouts with his men, he says needlepointing is out of the question while working because of the intense concentration needed for both the job and the hobby.

"Besides, most of our stakeout work is at night and there just isn't enough light to needlepoint by."

Cattlemen Leader Raps Suggested Protein Cut

DENVER (UPI) — Americans are not receiving unbiased and scientific information on diet and health questions, the president of the National Cattlemen's Association says.

Richard A. McDougal Monday said he was disturbed that government officials were recommending a sharp reduction in the consumption of animal protein products without having a sound basis for such action.

A number of diet-health questions remain controversial in the scientific community, McDougal told officials attending a day-long Nutrition Information Meeting sponsored by the NCA.

"If these matters of diet and health have not been resolved satisfactorily in the scientific community, our government and others simply are not justified in recommending radical changes in the average American diet," McDougal said.

McDougal said cattlemen could not be certain that research would come out the way they would like, "but we support the idea of getting diet and health matters out of the political arena and back into the scientific arena."

"Obviously, we want beef to remain in strong demand, but we will take our chances in the unbiased scientific arena rather than continuing to submit to actions and claims based largely on unproven theory."

"We must insist that government lawmakers and administrators not formulate and implement policies based on a one-sided view of the diet-health issue," McDougal said.

Agencies Told To Help With Land Efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has issued orders to assist local agencies in programs to save land for production of food and fiber.

Bergland said Monday he expects all agencies "to step up their assistance" to local people to save farmland from the encroachment of other uses.

Also speaking before the group was Dr. George V. Mann, a Vanderbilt University scientist who criticized fellow scientists for trying to convince the American public that animal fat is a cause of cancer in humans.

Mann, a member of the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine, said the much-publicized link between coronary heart disease and saturated fat and cholesterol was based on an untested hypothesis and personal propaganda.

"I can find no instance of a human cancer shown to be caused by food," said Mann, author of numerous articles on diet-health relationships in medical journals.

"It is all conjecture. But these seeking people use the sensation-seeking media to confuse the public and torpedo an industry," he said.

Mann said several examples of unsubstantiated "health hypotheses" that have become fact by default in the minds of the consuming public include:

- Dietary saturated fat and cholesterol cause coronary heart disease;
- Animal products in the diet cause cancer;
- Sucrose in the diet causes diabetes;
- Nitrates in the food cause human cancer, and;
- Salt in the diet causes high blood pressure.

The scientist said each of the propositions had been used and abused in unscientific ways. Contrary to the picture painted by many food critics, the U.S. population never has been better nourished, he said.

"It is no coincidence that we now have the lowest mortality rates, both adult and infant, we have ever had," he said. "Our health circumstances can be improved, but surely not by destroying the system that brought us to this high ground."

Lawyers To Appeal PBB Case Ruling

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Lawyers representing farmers who lost entire herds of cattle to PBB contamination say they will press their fight "to the extent of the resources available."

At a hastily called news conference in their offices, attorneys Paul Greer and Gary Schenk said Monday Falmouth dairy farmers Roy and Marilyn Tacoma would appeal a weekend ruling that found Michigan Chemical Co. and Michigan Farm Bureau Services Inc. were not negligent in their handling of PBB.

Wexford County Circuit Judge William Peterson ruled the Tacomas had not proven in their $250,000 lawsuit that low-level contamination from the toxic fire retardant polybrominated biphenyls was dangerous or that PBB had destroyed their dairy business.

"To the extent of the resources available, we intend to continue our attempts to recover for PBB contamination losses," Schenk said. "We have been to these farms and have seen the damage."

Greer, who also owned a PBB-ravaged farm, said he would represent PBB damage suits for the rest of his career.

"This is just one man's opinion," Greer said. "I would be willing to sell some of my land to continue to finance the fight."

The pledge came as a $4 million suit opened in Kent County Circuit Court. That suit, filed by 40 Newaygo County residents, charges the Farm Bureau and farmer Myron Kokk with creating a nuisance by keeping quarantined animals on Kokk's Diamond K Ranch near Fremont.

The Tacoma case was the first PBB claim ever to come to trial. The proceeding lasted 14 months during which 63 witnesses testified, filling 25,000 pages of transcript.

"There is not any question that it (the decision) came as a surprise to us," Schenk said. "We expect it to proceed through appellate channels."

In his decision, Peterson ruled five years of wholesale slaughter of cattle, the resulting financial losses for farmers and fears of public health hazards from PBB were mostly a waste of time and money.

He said there was no proof low levels of PBB were harmful, thus rejecting the Tacomas' case and ordering the couple to pay what could amount to thousands of dollars in court costs.

Schenk said if, as Peterson said, there was "no shred of credible evidence" low-level PBB contamination was harmful, the judge should have dismissed the case early and not allowed it to drag on.

"One has to recognize that the court system was never designed to handle these kinds of disasters. We have a basic

Oklahoma Valley Rocked By Blasts

PRESTON, Okla. (UPI) — Flames from a leaking natural gas pipeline set off a series of explosions late Monday in a rural farming valley, killing two women and heavily damaging three homes.

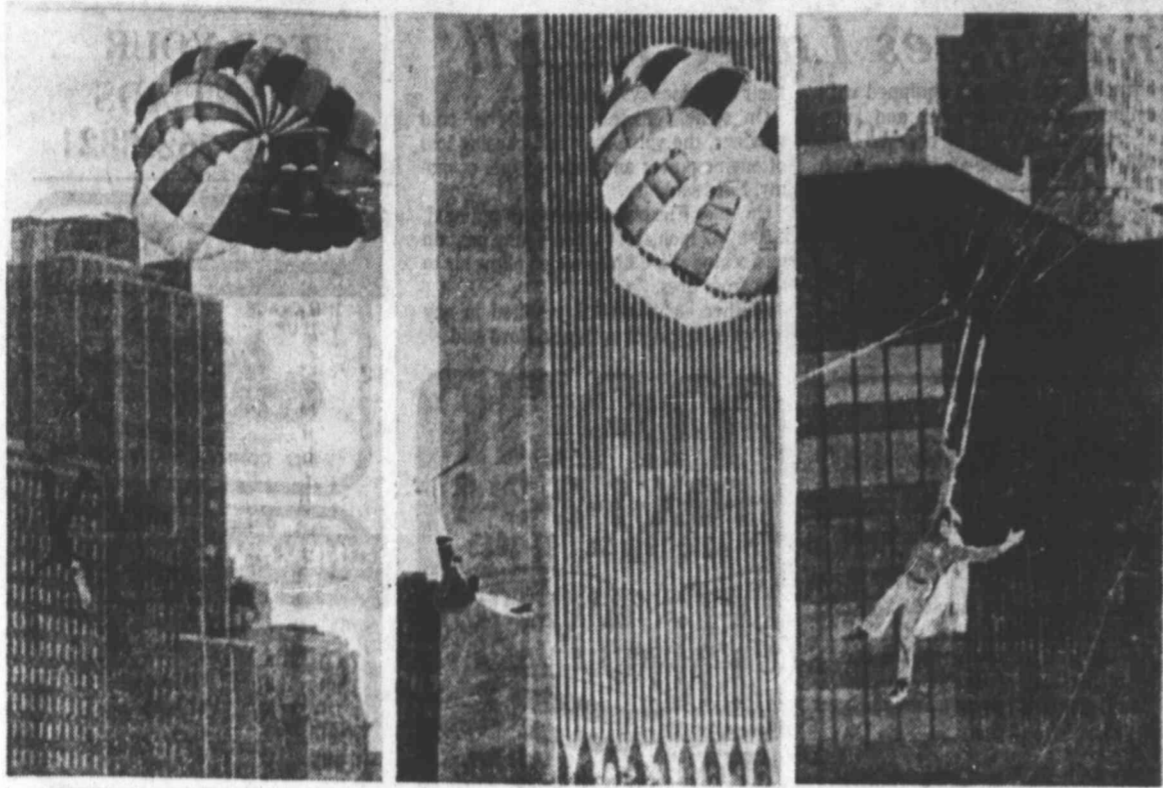

Officials today speculated the gas may have accumulated along a river bottom and ignited when the two victims — Florence Iva Morse, 63, and her daughter, Jean Ann Morse, 31, both of nearby Okmulgee — drove their pickup truck into the area to feed their horses.

The deaths came exactly a week after five persons died in a similar explosion in a Houston suburb. Officials are still investigating that disaster.

Ian Smith Signs Decree Extending Martial Law

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian officials put vast tracts of land under martial law Tuesday, bringing military rule to nearly half this mountainous country in response to the ever-widening guerrilla war.

The military also announced that 11 black civilians died Monday in a gun battle between Rhodesian troops and nationalist guerrillas, who reportedly fired on black workers on a white-owned farm.

A special government decree signed by Prime Minister Ian Smith of the ruling four-member biracial transition government extended martial law to more than 30 black reservations and private land owned by black farmers. The land comprises practically the entire southern province of Matabeleland.

Martial law, which gives the military unchallenged power over civilians, was first proclaimed over less than one-fifth of the country about five weeks ago. But military rule has been gradually extended ever since. Most of the border areas of Rhodesia, which is almost entirely ringed by black-ruled states that harbor nationalist guerrillas trying to topple the Salisbury government, are now under martial law. Under the regulations, military courts can impose death sentences on guerrillas and persons who help or recruit insurgents. The courts can sit in secret and there is no appeal to the regular civil courts headed by appeal and high court judges.

Military and para-military personnel, including police and officials of the internal affairs ministry that runs black affairs, also can detain people indefinitely without trial under the military rule.

Earlier, the military announced 11 black civilians were killed and 13 seriously wounded Monday night in a gun battle when government troops and nationalist guerrillas clashed on a white-owned farm about 40 miles northeast of here. Two guerrillas were slain in the clash, according to a military communique. There was no mention of security force casualties.

The official Rhodesian account said the guerrillas broke into a farm compound in the Bindura district and demanded food from the laborers.

The laborers provided food, but the guerrillas complained it was insufficient and "opened fire on the locals with small arms," the government statement said.

A security force unit, lying in ambush nearby, fired back into the compound "believing it had come under attack," the communique said.

In Salisbury, black university students continued protests against the transition government's announced plan to draft black high school and university graduates next year.

Currently, only youths from the minority white, mixed-race and Asian groups have to serve in the military while blacks, who comprise about 80 percent of the army, are volunteers.

Three students submitted a protest petition at Smith's office, which they said was signed by 800 students of the multiracial University of Rhodesia.

About 80 students demonstrated peacefully outside government buildings, three blocks from Smith's offices, carrying signs that read, "We didn't start it — carry on yourselves."

The students dispersed when ordered away by police.

Warnke Still Hopeful Of Treaty Completion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul C. Warnke, in his final day as chief U.S. arms negotiator, says a nuclear weapons limitation treaty with the Soviets remains unfinished because "neither side wants to make the last concessions."

Completing the accord "is going to take some time," Warnke said Monday. But he told reporters he hasn't lost hope of completing it by the end of the year.

"The discussions are now in the most delicate stage," he said. "We are so close it's inconceivable to me the two sides can't complete it in the near future."

Tanzania Says Amin Invaded Territory

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — Tanzania charged today that Ugandan President Idi Amin has invaded its territory and a battle raged on the border with an intercepted Ugandan force.

The U.S. Embassy in Dar Es Salaam said 16 Americans were known to be in the area of the heaviest fighting.

Diplomats said large numbers of ground troops were apparently involved in fierce border battles.

A war communique broadcast by official Dar Es Salaam radio said Amin had ordered his forces to attack Tanzania Monday in "an act of provocation which cannot be tolerated."

The communique gave no details of the fighting except that the invasion was in the West Lake region, the area west of Lake Victoria where Tanzania and Uganda have a 100-mile frontier.

But a high ranking Tanzanian military source said the Tanzanians intercepted a large force of Ugandan soldiers on the frontier late Monday.

The source said "heavy fighting" was raging in the area by midday but he gave no further details of the clashes.

In its war communique, Tanzania said: "It is the responsibility of the government to defend the life and property of Tanzanians, and the territorial integrity of our country. All necessary measures have been taken to meet this aggression."

The U.S. Embassy in Tanzania said there were 16 Americans in the West Lake region — 11 missionaries and a team of five archaeologists from Brown University of Rhode Island. It said it had no immediate plans to evacuate them.

Mary Tyler Moore's Show Being Altered

By JAY SHARBUTT
 LOS ANGELES (AP)—When Mary Tyler Moore's new variety series began last month, one New York scribe assailed it as too cutesy. His review bore a prophetic headline: "Mary Fall Down, Go Boom."
 Such happened in her ratings. Her debut did okay, but then...well, wags said the series had Nielsen's 002. Not only did it have no ratings, two guys were going around knocking it.
 CBS yanked it after two more airings. Word was that repairs and revisions were afoot, that the lady who hit it big for seven years in her Emmy-winning newsroom comedy would return momentarily.
 Well, that moment will be in January. She'll return in "The Mary Tyler Moore Comedy Hour," but it won't duplicate the original.
 "It's a new form that I have chosen — for lack of a better name — to call a 'sit-var,' situation comedy with a variety overtone," says Perry Lafferty, the new producer of MTM's second effort.
 Lafferty, a former CBS programs chief, says it'll have variety elements — skits, song and dance — but as part of a plot line.
 Each show, he said, will be a story "a-

Ford Motor Announces Large Recall

DETROIT (AP)—Two recalls involving more than 200,000 cars have been announced by Ford Motor Co.
 The larger recall is to check emission control systems on 188,700 1978-model Ford Fairmonts and Mercury Zephyrs, the automaker said Monday.
 In the smaller recall, Ford wants to check wheels on 18,000 1978 Fiestas.
 The Fairmont-Zephyr recall is the fourth for some owners of the cars.
 Fairmonts and Zephyrs equipped with six-cylinder, 3.3-liter engines and automatic transmissions will be checked for a possibly defective pulse-air reed valve on their emissions systems.
 On some vehicles, especially in cold weather, the valve may fail, causing loss of engine power and reduced fuel economy, Ford said.
 On the Fiestas, Ford said optional, 4.50-by-12-inch steel wheels may contain mislocated valve holes which allow air to leak from tires.
 Neither condition has resulted in any reports of accident or injury, Ford said.

Bouvier Daughters' Hearts Belonged To Daddy

Written from Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis by Stephen Birmingham. Copyright by Stephen Birmingham. All rights reserved by arrangement with Grosset as Dunlap, Inc. Distributed by United Features Syndicate, Inc.

BY STEPHEN BIRMINGHAM
With their separation and divorce, Janet and Mummy began a pattern of familiar but divorced parental tug-of-war for the affection of the children.

Third In A Series

in the park, trips to the zoo, lunch at expensive restaurants, skating at Kefeler Plaza, trips to the theater and the movies. With Daddy, it was an endless round of interesting and pleasant things to do.

Janet, the complaint, "But Daddy is so busy," became familiar. Well, she couldn't do it here, she reminded them sternly. Soon "here" seemed to Jackie and Lee like a very boring and restricted place. Also, Janet bitterly resented the gifts Jack bought the girls.

Jackie was the opposite. She was not particularly gregarious and enjoyed her own company. She was happy to spend hours alone in her room, reading and listening to music. She read so much that, during her adolescence, her mother worried that she might be going to have a "bluestocking" on her hands. Jackie sketched with pencils and painted with watercolor pictures of faces, mostly her own as reflected from her mirror or those of her sister, mother and father. She pasted them carefully in scrapbooks. She wrote bits of poetry. She wrote a sad little story about a girl who lost her horse.

At large Bouvier weekend gatherings, there was always some doubts as to whether Jack and the girls would make it. "We'll try," their father would say.

By Jack and Janet, the girls in some ways had a better time of it than when their parents had been together.

Jackie Bouvier, an experienced ladies' man, had a particular interest in women's clothes. He liked fashions that were New York chic, but with an added individualistic, theatrical touch a bright scarf, say, or an unusual piece of jewelry. When, on weekends, he trooped his daughters through Saks Fifth Avenue, Bonwit-Teller, Bergdorf Goodman and the old De Pinna, he lectured them on what was currently in fashion, what he considered in good taste and what was not. Pointing to a mannequin in a Fifth Avenue window, he might say, "Hideous dress. It might work if it were belted." Or, "Now there's a beautiful outfit if it were worn by the right woman."

He often disapproved of the way Janet dressed the girls. "Now let's go out and get you something pretty to wear," he would say. Naturally, the girls tried to dress to please their father. In their growing-up years, Lee, with her heart-shaped face and delicate, perfect features, was considered the prettier of the two sisters. Jackie was the brainy one, quieter, more introspective, a little shy. Even in her early teens, Jackie carried a bit of baby fat, and she had inherited her mother's almost too-sharp chin. She had naturally curly, almost kinky hair, which was difficult to do much with other than pull tightly with a ribbon. But her eyes, dark, widely spaced and large like her father's, were extraordinary, her best feature. Still, her father stressed, a woman's looks were less important than how she dressed. If she dressed well, even a plain woman would stand out in a crowd. Jack Bouvier also imparted to his daughters definite theories about what made a woman attractive to a man. In addition to dressing well, he said, it was important that a woman create an aura of reserve or inaccessibility. In dealing with the opposite sex, it was important that a woman maintain a certain aloofness, that she not seem to open or be available. The more inaccessible a woman seemed, the more unobtainable, said Jack, the more madly a man yearned to know her better, to see her more often.

The mating dance that Jack Bouvier described involved a woman offering a man a little something, then withdrawing it, then attractive boy at the party, the one most wanted to dance with, would be most fascinated if you merely smiled faintly when he approached and moved away.

Tease a little, Jack advised. Be mysterious. Never be aggressive. Never let an man know quite what you are thinking. Remember La Gioconda and her strange, disturbing, eternally provocative smile. Stand out in a crowd, Jack urged. It was important that a woman know how to enter a room: smiling, chin up, eyes straight ahead, not darting this way and that to see who else might be there, moving slowly but purposefully to the center of the stage.

And be selective about the invitations you accept, he said. Be "too busy" to go to certain parties, even if you're really not. That way, when you do accept an invitation, the person giving the party will consider himself particularly honored.

Then, in the middle of the party, Jack and the girls would make their smiling entrance. Everyone would say: "Isn't it wonderful that Jack and the girls were able to come?"

Jackie Bouvier, always a better student than her sister, learned her father's lessons well. Even as a young teenager, there was something baffling and confusing about her that made one wonder what, exactly, made her tick. She seemed to have not one personality but two distinctive and conflicting ones.

When one was alone in a room with her, she seemed not only distant but painfully shy, uncomfortable and hesitant. She lowered her eyes as she spoke in that little-girl whispery voice. She seemed as unsure of herself as her mother must have been when she first entered the charmed circle of the Bouviers. One felt touched by her, sorry for her, this girl from a broken home who seemed to want to unburden herself of some troublesome secret and yet who, for intensely private reasons of her own, could not quite bring herself to do so.

And yet, when she entered a party, exquisitely dressed in something her father had chosen, all the shyness vanished. She was smiling, poised, serenely confident. She moved among crowds of people, kissing relatives, shaking hands, like a princess from an exotic land. She had more than charm. She glowed.

Was this the same withdrawn, seemingly worried girl? Apparently it was. Which was the real Jackie, people wondered. Or were both the facades simply roles she was playing, roles she had been drilled in by her father. Beneath the facades, perhaps, was buried a secret, third Jackie, protected and private, that no one in the world would ever get to see or really know.

There was no question who sister Lee was. She was the typical happy second child. Pretty, vivacious and full of mischief, Lee was always up to something. Her sudden whims came and went like summer showers. Every day, it seemed, she had some new enthusiasm, some new passion.

Jackie was the opposite. She was not particularly gregarious and enjoyed her own company. She was happy to spend hours alone in her room, reading and listening to music. She read so much that, during her adolescence, her mother worried that she might be going to have a "bluestocking" on her hands. Jackie sketched with pencils and painted with watercolor pictures of faces, mostly her own as reflected from her mirror or those of her sister, mother and father. She pasted them carefully in scrapbooks. She wrote bits of poetry. She wrote a sad little story about a girl who lost her horse.

But she also had, her family noticed, an extraordinary power over people, a strange ability to get people to do what she wanted, to go with her where she wanted to go, to play the games she wanted to play. "Guess the names of the song I'm thinking of," she said to a group of friends one morning in East Hampton. All day long, the friends sat around her, guessing and guessing, trying to come up with the name of the song — for Jackie.

Tongues wagged when, after her divorce, Janet Bouvier began to be seen around town on the arm of Washington stockbroker Hugh D. "Hughdie" Auchincloss. You had to hand it to Janet, people said, she was doing it again. Here, furthermore, was not only a man who had unquestionable position in society, but who was impressively wealthy. Hughdie was master of a huge estate, called Merrywood, in McLean, Va., and another enormous place, Hammersmith Farm, in Newport, R.I. He also maintained a New York apartment.

In appearance, Hughdie Auchincloss was the antithesis of Jack Bouvier. Hughdie was tall, powerfully built, ruddy-cheeked, a commanding figure next to Janet's slightness. Like other members of his family, he had a poor track record at the altar. Hughdie had been married and divorced twice. His first wife was Maria Chrapovitsky, the daughter of a Russian naval officer. His second was Nina Gore Vidal, daughter of T.B. Gore, the blind senator from Oklahoma, and mother of writer Gore Vidal. Hughdie had a son by his first wife and a son and daughter by his second.

Janet and Hughdie became engaged in 1942, barely four years after her divorce, and were married in June of that year. Jack Bouvier took this news badly. Though Janet's remarriage relieved him of the burden of alimony, it did little to relieve him of his feelings of inconsequence and failure. Janet's new husband was not only much richer and more successful than he, he was also nearly 10 years younger.

It was impossible not to like Hughdie Auchincloss. He was easygoing, cheerful and hardly ever lost his temper, unlike the mercurial Jack. And there was so much that he could offer Janet's daughters that Jack could not. Rolls Royces, servants, stables of horses and two big country estates, one for summer and one for winter.

Hughdie Auchincloss loved Janet's pretty daughters and they quickly loved "Uncle Hugh," as they decided to call him. With Hughdie and Janet dividing their time between Virginia and Newport, there was less chance for Jack, in New York, to spend those gay weekends with Jackie and Lee. And Jack was bitter. He became convinced that Janet and Hughdie had entered into a conspiracy to take his daughters away from him permanently. Jackie, for example, was now 13 and was beginning to be invited to sub-debutante parties in New York. Jack was delighted. That meant that she could stay with him in the four-room apartment he now maintained. But often as not, schoolwork meant that she had to turn down the invitations and remain in Washington.

When that happened, Jack was devastated, convinced that the Auchincloss influence was behind it. When Janet sent Jackie to a dentist in Washington and forwarded the bill to Jack, he stormily announced that he would pay no bills for Washington dentists. If she needed dentistry, she could come to New York and stay with him.

Jackie, having learned about fashion from her father, and now developed her own taste in clothes. And she was exercising it, though now, of course, the Au-chinclosses were paying for most of what she wore. Jack hated what she wore and told her so. Again and again, she threatened to do the only thing he could think of to get her to pay more attention to him: cut off her allowance.

Jack must have realized, of course, that cutting off his daughter's allowance could only make her more dependent on the Auchinclosses. And so he never cut it off, though he threatened hundreds of times to do so. It seemed the only thing he had left to give her.

Poor, luckless savior for the hearts of his daughters. Jack had begun drinking heavily and could not accept that the girls were growing up — and growing away, inevitably, from their father. Pony rides in the park no longer allured them.

They had grown weary of the bitter tug-of-war between Mummy and Daddy. They were now striking out for something else.

Deregulation Not Simple

PASCO, Wash. (AP) — Airline deregulation is not as simple as it appears and just may not work, a former Civil Aeronautics Board chairman says.

"I class it as an experiment that I hope will work, but I have some grave doubts as to the future, based on what I know of the economic frailty of the airline industry," Robert Timm, CAB chief from 1973 to 1975 — years of Republican domination of the White House — said Monday.

The recently approved deregulation bill calls for elimination of CAB jurisdiction over airline routes, rates and mergers, moves supported by President Carter.

Deregulation "is not nearly as simple as a thing as its proponents thought it would be," Timm said. "I never thought the airline industry suffered a great deal from over-regulation."

Timm said the airline industry lacks the financial strength needed to survive a recession. "It's a very cyclical industry," he said. "I'm afraid that a recession of any degree would force the airlines to the point that they can't make a profit and progress."

Federal Assistance Needs Re-Examined

CINCINNATI (AP) — There will be 60 million Americans over 65 by the year 2030 and an additional 8 million to 9 million needing some public assistance, necessitating changes in care for the elderly, according to Robert Benedict, U.S. Commissioner on Aging.

Benedict told the national convention of the American Association of Homes for the Aging Monday there should be a re-examination of the roles of the federal government and state. He said increased authority to care for the elderly should be given to the individual communities.

Dollar Slows Record Dive

LONDON (AP) — The dollar hit new lows on some world money markets today but it also made small gains against some currencies, indicating possible recovery. The price of gold leveled off, also a strengthening sign for the dollar.

Dollar-holders continued to unload, but markets appeared calmer in early trading than they were Monday when the dollar took one of the worst beatings in its history.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 176.075 yen, its fifth postwar low in seven trading days. It hit 175.50 yen at one point. One trader said the Japanese central bank stepped in to buy dollars and stop the slide.

A Japanese currency dealer predicted the dollar's slide may be near an end. "The dollar may be bottoming out for a while, as a German bank has begun to buy dollars heavily," he said.

Gold stabilized, but Metal Bulletin magazine said most dealers expect it to keep rising.

Gold prices usually rise in times of economic uncertainty, and there is a lack of confidence on foreign money markets in President Carter's plan to curb inflation through voluntary guidelines.

In London, gold opened today at $244.25, down a dollar from Monday's close. In Zurich, Switzerland, gold opened at $244.87, unchanged from Monday's close, and had dropped a dollar by noon.

Monday the price jumped nearly $11 in London and more than $8 in Zurich.

Gold, which sold at $169.50 at the start of the year, has gone up in value 45 percent since then.

It took $2.094 to buy a British pound in early trading today, a half cent less than at Monday's close.

The dollar also staged a brief rally in Frankfurt, but fell again. A German dealer said: "There's no conscious change in the market."

The dollar opened at 1.7235 West German marks, marginally down from Monday's closer of 1.7265. By mid-morning, it was down to 1.7220 marks, an all-time low. A dollar bought four marks for much of the post-World War II period.

In Zurich, Switzerland, the Swiss franc opened at 1.4722 francs, but climbed to 1.4885 by noon.

The French franc in Paris was quoted at 3.9825 to the dollar, down from Monday's close of 3.9925.

The dollar bought a record low 1.8645 guilders, down from Monday's 1.8720, and 786.25 lire in Italy, down from 788.15 on Monday.

Huge dollar sales triggered more sales, and the price plunged as buyers for the once-mighty currency were hard to find.

Some foreign exchange dealers say that reduced American oil imports, a tighter money supply in the United States and reduced government spending might help prop up the dollar.

Others suggested the U.S. Federal Reserve may have to take out billions of dollars in credits from the International Monetary Fund to buy up the unwanted dollars and bolster the rate.

Part of the IMF's function is to supervise the international exchange rate system with an eye toward maintaining stability.

For Americans abroad, the dollar's decline means more expensive food, lodging and travel as dollars buy less of the local currency. But it makes the United States a cheaper place for foreigners to visit and lowers the costs of some American goods sold abroad.

Imported goods sold in the United States become more expensive. This worries some foreign nations such as Japan, which export heavily, and is one reason why the Japanese central bank has often intervened to prop up the price of the dollar.

In West Germany, about 170 Berlin-based Pan Am flight officers are demanding a higher allowance to make up for the drop of the dollar against the mark.

They receive allowances to offset the living cost in West Germany, which is higher for them than it is in the United States. But the allowances have not been readjusted since last year, when the dollar was worth more than two marks. Now it is worth about 1.72 marks, and the flight officers say a new adjustment is needed.

But management and the pilots deny reports that a slowdown is underway to enforce the demands.

Pan Am flights in West Germany were running at least 15 minutes late Monday as pilots' representatives pushed for a new adjustment. Pan Am's Internal German Service flies a heavy schedule of flights within West Germany.

Selection Of Jury Lagging

HOUSTON (AP) — Another five prospective jurors were excused today in the Cullen Davis murder solicitation trial, giving rise to speculation that another 50 persons will be brought in for questioning.

Dismissal of the five reduced the first panel to 34 persons. When 32 persons are left, the prosecution and defense each will strike 10 persons, leaving 12 for a jury.

Six persons were excused Monday because they had formed opinions in the case and five were dismissed for a variety of reasons, usually health or financial hardship.

The potential jurors Monday filled out questionnaires listing the names of 88 potential witnesses, including the defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, and his girlfriend, Karen Master.

The witness list included Judge Joe Eidson of Fort Worth, the presiding jurist in the four-year-old Davis divorce proceedings and a principal in the case. A wide range of law enforcement officers were also named.

The prosecution alleges Davis, a 45-year-old Fort Worth industrialist, paid one-time karate instructor David McCrory to hire a hit man to kill Eidson. Instead, McCrory contacted the FBI and is now the prosecution's key witness.

If convicted of solicitation of capital murder, Davis faces five to 99 years in prison. Davis contends he was framed by Priscilla and others. He was acquitted last year at Amarillo in the 1976 slaying of his young stepdaughter, Priscilla's daughter by a previous marriage.

State District Judge Wallace Moore has denied defense requests to permit individual questioning of jurors, but the selection process still is expected to take several days.

The judge had previously said he would not sequester the jury. Moore told prospective jurors Monday he would not sequester them if they cooperate to the utmost with the court.

At one point, defense attorney Richard Haynes mentioned to the prospective jurors that the trial might last four or five weeks. Moore immediately said, "The trial will not go that long."

Wage Plan Explained

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration today spelled out in detail the wages, fringe benefits and prices that will be limited under its anti-inflation program.

The 7 percent annual limit on pay increases is not confined to straight-time salary and wages, the Council on Wage and Price Stability said.

The pay limit also applies to employers' costs for a variety of fringe benefits and payments. They include paid leave, vacations, holidays, personal leave and retirement programs.

The limit also applies to life insurance, accident insurance, health benefit programs, sick leave, savings and thrift plans and other forms of compensation, such as job perquisites.

The wage limit includes payments for shift differentials, skill adjustments, cost of living adjustments, value received from stock options and other deferred compensation.

"It does not include overtime pay as long as the conditions of that pay are not changed," it said.

Under the program President Carter announced Oct. 24, workers' pay increases would be limited to 7 percent a year, unless they earned less than $4 an hour.

Prices would be held to 0.5 percentage points below the increases in the previous year. However, a business can raise prices by more if it can show its costs increased markedly.

The program is described as voluntary, but the administration says it will withhold federal contracts and use other sanctions against companies and unions that fail to comply.

The council said companies can justify raising prices beyond the 0.5 percent average price guideline if they can show that their certain their costs had gone up.

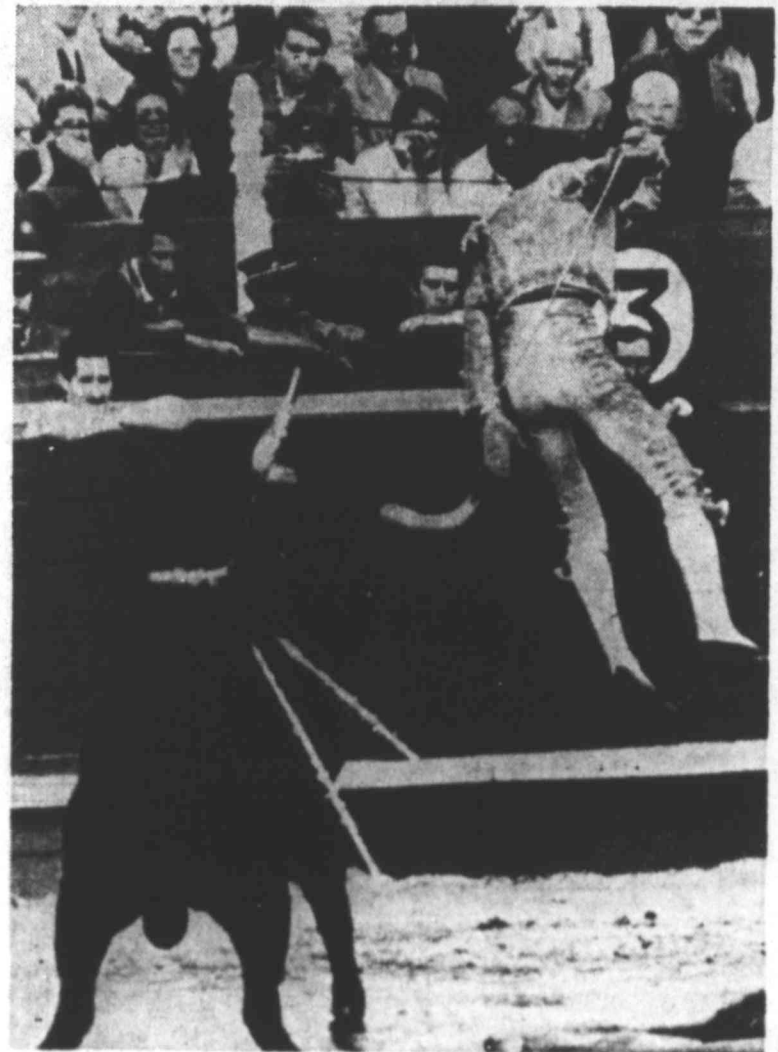

These costs include prices of agricultural and industrial raw materials, crude petroleum and natural gas, interest rates and prices of commodities linked closely to exchange markets.

The council said businesses have little or no control over these costs.

City Fire Marshal A.C. Black cautioned against the use of candles by trick-or-treaters, especially if the youngsters are carrying paper bags. Costumes should not be made of light paper or any other flammable material, and both candles and electric lights in jack-o-lanterns should be watched so that the flame or cord does not threaten wall hangings, curtains or drapes, he said.

Arabia Defends Egypt At Talks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Oil titan and American friend Saudi Arabia sought today to protect Egypt against isolation in the Arab world at an Arab League meeting in Baghdad called to devise a strategy to counter President Carter's Camp David peace moves.

But Egypt, which was not invited to the parley, blasted the session as "a grudge" conference.

The Arab League foreign ministers' talks, which began Monday in Baghdad, Iraq, aimed at preparing a summit meeting starting Thursday on how to unite against the Israeli-Egyptian peace effort.

The U.S. initiative has presented the Arab world with the dilemma of how to keep Egypt — the League's most populous and powerful state — in the Arab world despite its negotiations with Israel.

Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization called for the expulsion of Cairo from the 22-nation Arab League, while Saudi Arabia argued against isolating Egypt.

"Egypt should be expelled ... in that its president is already cooperating with Israel," Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam said.

But Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud Al Faisal said the summit must "not isolate Egypt," which is largely bankrolled by Saudi money. Riyadh has let it be known the aid will keep flowing despite Saudi's intent to sign a treaty with Israel — the first pact ever between an Arab state and Israel.

Saud urged the delegates Monday night to "concentrate on positive matters and get out of the cycle of reactions," the Iraqi news agency said.

Saudi Arabia, Saud was quoted, did not consider the Camp David accords "an acceptable framework for peace, at the same time there is no gain in placing the blame on one country or another."

Saud's lead was followed by North Yemen, Qatar, Oman and Sudan, the only Arab country which has openly supported the Egyptian peace initiative and the Camp David accords. They stressed the meeting was not called to "condemn" anyone.

Yusef Al Alwi of the Sultanate of Oman stressed the need to keep talking to Egypt especially "if we consider she is on the wrong path and following the wrong program."

Iraq, which has just patched up an eight-year quarrel with Syria, said unity is vital.

"If this minimum ground is not found, not only Iraq but every Arab state will have to work ... according to its own views and standards," Iraqi Foreign Minister Saadoun Hammadi warned in opening the meeting.

But Egypt, honored this weekend with the Nobel Peace Prize awarded to President Anwar Sadat, stayed away from the summit and state-controlled newspapers treated the conference with disdain.

"Egypt's destiny will not be determined by the Arab ministers meeting in Baghdad, Al Gomhouria newspaper said. Al Akhbar said:

"The Baghdad conference should turn itself from a conference of grudge (against Egypt) to a conference of truth."

Egypt has fought four wars against Israel and ended other Arab states for talking and not warring and using the Palestinians to keep up the rhetoric while not having earned the right to do so.

Hundreds of thousands of Palestinians were displaced from their homes in the first Middle East War of 1948 and live in refugee camps, and 1.1 million live on the West Bank and Gaza Strip, occupied by Israel since 1967.

Carter May Be Forced To Support Currency

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless the dollar does a surprising about-face on world money markets, and does it quickly, it seems likely the Carter administration will be compelled to take new measures to try to support the battered greenback.

But there is considerable skepticism among monetary experts here that there is anything more the administration reasonably can do that would help the U.S. currency, which again fell to record lows Monday on world money markets.

Carter promised foreign dollar-holders an energy bill. He got that. He promised an anti-inflation program. He's announced that. But neither caused more than a wiggle in the steady downward trend of the dollar.

If dollar traders took either measure into account at all, they apparently discounted them as inadequate. Markets are volatile, however, and while a reversal of the trend one day soon is not regarded here as impossible, no one seems willing to bet on it.

The latest plunge in the dollar was set off by the report last Friday that consumer prices increased 0.8 percent increase in September alone, pointing to a possible worsening inflation rate, which appears to be the chief worry of foreign dollar-holders at the present time.

Lloyd Atkinson, chief staff economist for the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, said foreign dollar-holders apparently now want the administration to bring on a recession to try to slow inflation, although they don't come right out and say so.

"They clearly are calling for much tighter fiscal and monetary policies than the Carter administration or the Federal Reserve Board are willing to pursue," he said in an interview Monday.

Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said Monday in New York that if progress isn't made against inflation within six months to a year, a worse recession than the 1975 economic collapse could result. "And that, in turn, was the worst recession of the post-war period," he said.

The slide in the dollar in the past week has shown foreign dollar-holders do not believe Carter's new anti-inflation program can be successful in significantly slowing the inflation that undermines the purchasing power of the dollar and therefore makes it less attractive to hold.

It also could be further indication that foreigners are skeptical that Carter's energy program will achieve its goal of encouraging fuel conservation so as to cut purchases of foreign oil and help reduce the U.S. trade deficit that is now pushing more dollars into foreign hands.

So now there's pressure to look at new choices or adjust old ones. The administration is considering some of them and some are just ideas being attributed to anonymous foreign dollar-holders:

—Buy back billions of dollars on world money markets in an attempt to counter momentum toward selling off dollars — a choice clearly under consideration but one that some officials say could backfire.

—Tighten the money supply by raising interest rates and using other maneuvers just enough to cause what economists refer to as a "pause" in the economy without causing it to slide into a recession — a touchy strategy already partly in force.

—Tighten the economy really tight. All but close it down. Bring on that recession with its staggered national economy and high unemployment, anything to halt inflation. This is what Atkinson says some foreign dollar-holders want, but there is no indication such a drastic step is even being considered by the White House.

Foreign exchange dealers in London are quoted as saying only weighty intervention by the United States to buy up dollars in world money markets can stem the slide now. They said it should borrow from the International Monetary Fund for that purpose.

The United States can unconditionally borrow up to $4.4 billion from the IMF, and the U.S. Federal Reserve Board has agreements with central banks of other major nations under which it could borrow up to $22 billion in foreign currencies for dollar-support operations.

However, the administration and the board have been reluctant to intervene in a major way for fear it might invite additional attacks on the dollar. In addition, of course, such loans have to be paid back.

And Henry Wallich, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, said recently that such heavy intervention to support the dollar might backfire: "If the market believes that the (exchange) rate will go one way, and the central bank tries not to let it, the market will overrule the central bank because it has so much more money."

ITT Plea Fails In High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court says the government may make public its charges against International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. concerning alleged foreign bribes made by ITT.

The court turned down an ITT request that had attempted to keep secret the Securities and Exchange Commission charges against it.

U.S. District Judge George Hart Jr. in Washington indicated he will release details of the SEC allegations after receiving official word of the Supreme Court's action, probably in 30 days.

Those charges reportedly deal with some $9 million in alleged foreign payoffs made by the huge conglomerate from 1970 to 1975.

In seeking the high court's emergency help after being denied such aid in two lower federal courts, lawyers for ITT said the SEC charges involve "alleged questionable payments made ... during the period 1970 to 1975 ... to foreign commercial or government buyers or their intermediaries for the purpose of facilitating sales abroad."

ITT lawyers said disclosure of such allegations could "threaten substantial commercial injury to the corporation's business."

In a statement issued today in New York, ITT expressed regret at the court's decision and said it would "vigorously contest SEC claims that ITT is continuing to violate security laws in any respect." The company said disclosure of detailed charges serves no valid corporate or public purpose and ignores ITT management's actions, taken in March 1976, to prohibit questionable payments.

As a result of an investigation begun in 1976, the SEC has concluded that ITT's failure to report the alleged payments to its stockholders, investors and to the commission violated federal securities laws.

Government lawyers told the justices there was no reason why the allegations could not be made public.

That position, though, offers a contrast to another government case involving ITT's overseas operations.

In it, the Justice Department is asking a federal appeals court to rule that sensitive government documents do not have to be disclosed during the criminal trial of Robert Berrellez, an ITT official and Latin American expert charged with perjury and conspiracy to obstruct a congressional investigation.

The charge is based on Berrellez' 1973 testimony before a unit of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee about efforts by ITT and the CIA to block the 1970 election of Marxist Salvador Allende as president of Chile.

The Berrellez case reportedly is linked to covert CIA activities in Chile and it is details of those activities the government supposedly wants to keep secret.

In an interview with The Associated Press last week, FBI Director William Webster said he wants a scholarly commission to study when the government should sacrifice its secrets to prevent criminal prosecutions and when it should abandon prosecutions to save intelligence secrets.

Webster called the issue an important and sensitive one.

Candidates For JP Comment

The following set of questions was posed by The Avalanche-Journal to candidates for Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2, to aid voters in their choice of candidates in the Nov. 7 general election. Their responses are listed alongside the questions. The names of the candidates are printed in the order in which they will appear on the ballot.

STAFFORD

Arvin Stafford, 41, is a high school graduate and the incumbent Precinct No. 2 Justice of the Peace. He has completed extension courses from Texas A&M University, Lamar University and Southwest Texas State University. He and his wife Mary have five children. They live at 605 S. 15th St. in Slaton. He is a Democrat.

CRAVENS

Claude Cravens, 61, is an attorney who earned a bachelor's degree at Kansas University and his law degree from the University of Texas. He also studied accounting at Texas Tech University. He and his wife, Dorothy Grace, live at 160 N. Eighth St. in Slaton. He is a Republican.

What are your qualifications that you consider pertinent to being a justice of the peace?

My past experience as city judge for three years; over 200 classroom hours in justice of the peace training; and my past eight years as justice of the peace.

Licensed to practice before the United States Supreme Court and the supreme courts of the states of Kansas and Texas.

Thirty years' practice of law. Law trained — school of law, University of Texas. Citizen of the United States. Resident of Precinct No. 2 of Lubbock County, Texas.

The Interpretive Commentary in regard to Section 19 of Article 5, Vernon's Texas Constitution, Volume 2 (Justices of the Peace), remarks that: "The office of justice of the peace represents one of the oldest and most celebrated of English institutions. The office brought English noblemen and gentlemen into contact with the common people of the realm. They became trained in the affairs of government and in the administration of justice."

What would be your general guidelines in setting bail in criminal cases?

I try to weigh the severity of the offense and take into consideration the reputation of the violator and come up with a fair and impartial setting that will assure the appearance of the violator in court on his appointed date. I favor the law and would deny bond to a person who has already been bonded on a felony charge, nor would I allow bond to an individual who has truly proven to be a menace to society.

The requirements of the constitutions and the Code of Criminal Procedure; the recommendation of the criminal district attorney; the reputation and responsibility of the accused; the seriousness of the crime charged and the ability of the accused to make bond.

What are the principal functions of a justice of the peace court?

1) Handle misdemeanor criminal cases punishable by law set at $200 or less; 2) handle civil cases involving $200 or less; 3) handle eviction suits for possession of property or non-payment of rent; 4) hold administrative hearings on habitual violators of the traffic laws of Texas; 5) issue warrants of arrest and search warrants; 6) arraign defendants on misdemeanors and felonies; 7) hold examining trials; 8) hold inquests on deceased persons dying an unnatural death or without a physician's care; 9) perform marriage ceremonies.

1) Handling of civil and criminal matters within its jurisdiction (presently $200 but subject to considerable escalation if Amendment No. 5 passes at the general election); 2) inquests; 3) inquiries; 4) issue commissions for taking depositions; 5) ex-officio notary public; 6) setting bonds in felony cases; 7) keeping the court records; 8) small claims; 9) hot checks; 10) landlord-tenant matters; 11) any other duties required by law.

I support Texas State Bar President Cullen Smith's Citizens Legal Education Committee to promote greater direct access by citizens to the justice of the peace court by education as to when they need and don't need a lawyer — particularly in the fields of consumer and landlord-tenant law. Direct access has been very successful in several states and is an expansion of the idea that got its initial impetus from the Small Claims Act authored by Waggoner Carr.

Do you feel that the party affiliation of candidates is relevant in a justice of the peace race?

I feel that everyone should pick a party and work hard in support of the principles the party advocates. Some people vote in accordance with their party affiliation while others vote for a candidate based on his ability and experience of serving the public in a fair and judicial manner.

I should imagine that there are voters who will vote for a candidate because of his party affiliation; I sincerely hope that they will not only in the justice of the peace race but in every race vote for the candidate they think would in their opinion do the best job.

I believe qualifications should be the basis for the choice.

I believe the will of the people should prevail.

I believe in the two-party system; less is monopoly and tyranny; and more can lead to chaos.

Is there any issue not covered by the above questions on which you would like to comment?

1) There should be more rigid law enforcement against hot check violators; 2) Voting for Amendment No. 5 would bring the justice of the peace office up to date, which would in turn help lighten the burden now in our higher courts.

The qualifications should be raised drastically for new justices because this court and courts of similar distinction are the most important court there is to the average citizen as the average citizen has more contact with it.

The Interpretive Commentary mentioned above says: "Beyond the requirement of citizenship and residence, the statutes are silent on the subject of qualifications. The result is that the justice is usually a layman, with no training in the law, no training in the process of judicial thought."

The courts are jammed and new ones can't be created fast enough to relieve the load as one southern justice of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals some months ago told a Lubbock audience that if changes weren't made the taxpayers could not afford enough courts to handle the case load. The justice said for instance now one-sixth of the cases they were handling were of prisoners trying to get out of the pen.

The justice court should be armed with increased jurisdiction (Amendment 5 on the ballot is a good start) and justices be trained in the law — to absorb some of the load.

Texas Faces Drastic Turnover In Congressional Delegation

AUSTIN (UPI) — Not since 1916 when voters elected five new representatives has the turnover in the Texas congressional delegation been so drastic. On Nov. 7 voters will choose no fewer than eight new congressmen and Republicans are hopeful they can wrestle from Democrats some of the open seats. Republicans currently hold only two of the 24 Texas seats.

Voters will choose replacements for four retiring congressmen — Reps. George Mahon, W.R. Poage, Omar Burleson and Olin Teague — who have spent a combined 152 years in Capitol Hill. With them will go clout, including chairmanships of two House committees and three subcommittees.

Also gone are Rep. Bob Krueger, who left to make a bid for the Senate; Rep. Barbara Jordan, who decided Congress perhaps was stifling her political career; and two incumbents — Reps. John Young and Dale Milford — who were defeated in primary races.

The race to replace Mahon could be the state's most interesting congressional match. Democrat Kent Hance, 35, a state senator from Lubbock, and Republican George Bush, 32, son of George Bush Sr., the former CIA director, were not even born when Mahon first won election 44 years ago. The winner automatically will become the youngest Texas congressman.

National Republican leaders have targeted the 19th District seat as one they can win and have invested heavily in Bush, who expects to spend twice as much money as Hance.

The GOP also is going all out to win the seat held by Poage for the past 41 years. Jack Burgess of Waco, who almost upset Poage in 1976, is challenging Democrat Marvin Leath, a Marlin banker and former Poage aide.

Charles Stenholm, Stamford farmer, is expected to win easily over Bill Fisher, an Abilene attorney and Taylor County GOP chairman, in the race to replace Burleson.

Phil Gramm, a former Texas A&M University economics professor, is challenging Republican Wes Mowery for Teague's seat.

Republican Tom Loeffler of Kerrville is challenging Nelson Wolff, a former state senator, for the sprawling 21st District seat being vacated by Krueger.

Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston, defeated six other Democrats to succeed Mrs. Jordan. Leland has no Republican opposition.

Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Bloomington defeated Young in the Democratic primary and is running against Republican Joy Yates, a Corpus Christi real estate agent.

Dallas attorney Martin Frost, who defeated Milford in the Democratic primary, faces Republican Leo Berman of Arlington.

Rep. Bob Gammage is expected to have a tough fight against Republican Ron Paul of Lake Jackson.

A Raza Unida candidate, Agustin Mata of San Antonio, seriously is contending against Rep. Abraham "Chick" Kazen Jr. Mata, a real estate consultant.

Republican Reps. Jim Collins and Bill Archer both should return to Congress. Collins is unopposed and Archer is expected to defeat Democrat Robert L. Hutchings of Houston.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright faces minimal opposition from Republican Claude Brown. Rep. Henry Gonzalez drew no opposition and will retain his District 20 seat.

New Orleans Merchants Start No-Smoking Policy

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Past the battery of sale posters and specials notices near the department store doors, another sign with the authoritative appearance of a traffic marker informs shoppers about a new merchants' policy.

Against a white background, a cigarette has a broad red slash across it and an equally attention-commanding red circle around it. That part of the sign states explicitly, "No smoking."

Underneath is a polite "Thank you. Retail Merchants Bureau."

That sign is common on store walls in New Orleans since the Retail Merchants Bureau instituted a uniform no-smoking policy in August.

"The thing we've been amazed by was the voluntary compliance," said Vern Ewing, the bureau executive director. "We've gotten not one complaint, and our names are on all the signs."

Ewing said New Orleans is the only area he knows of with an area-wide no-smoking policy implemented by store owners rather than by law. Actually, state law prohibits smoking in sales areas, but the law was never enforced.

"The merchants' motive for opposing smoking in their stores had nothing to do with health or clean air, however, and only a marginal connection with safety. They wanted to reduce the threat of fire, but also to cut down on losses due to cigarette burns on merchandise and carpet."

"Suits now run from $100 to $400 and if a hole is burned, or if the carpet is burned, the costs can add up," Ewing said. "While (each occurrence) is small, cumulatively it adds up. At the price of merchandise today ... some stores might cut losses by $10,000 to $15,000 in a year, or more when you figure the prices of carpeting and unsightly appearance." Most stores either already provided or established customer lounges where smoking is allowed.

Packers, Starr Hot Over Thomas Case

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Duane Thomas, described as sullen, uncooperative and unmanageable when he was a star runningback with the Dallas Cowboys, is in a storm center again — this time apparently as an unwitting partner in a controversy involving the Green Bay Packers.

Thomas recently completed a tryout with the Packers, and the way the National Football League club conducted it is under investigation by NFL headquarters.

Disclosure of the investigation Monday has Packer coach-general manager Bart Starr livid. His team had to forfeit a fourth-round draft choice last May and, if NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle decides they have violated another rule, could lose another pick.

Starr vented his anger Monday afternoon on the four reporters who pursued the story involving Thomas and learned of the investigation.

The former Packer quarterback said rule-breaking is not uncommon as clubs seek a competitive edge. He also said that while the Packers may have erred, they are not cheaters.

"There are bloodthirsty people out there trying to get an edge, working out guys in pads and with their teams," Starr said. "They're cheating. We don't cheat. But we're going to go to the limit within the rules and we're going to bend them within the framework."

Thomas, whose career quickly deteriorated after he led the Cowboys to a Super Bowl crown in 1972, was cut by the Cowboys before the 1976 season.

The runningback, now 31, recently wrote the Packers and asked for a tryout. They complied, and he worked out here from a week ago Monday to Monday of this week. The NFL's so-called "stashing rule" governing such tryouts is at issue in Rozelle's investigation.

Rozelle said clubs found in violation of the rule could stand to forfeit draft choices. The Packers forfeited their fourth-round pick last May because of a somewhat similar technicality involving their conduct of testing camps for potential draftees.

The stashing rule means free agents such as Thomas who try out with a club may work out for one day only, their expenses can't be paid for more than the one day, and they can use club equipment and facilities only on that single day.

Thomas was tested here a week ago Monday. And while he and Starr insist he has had to pay his own way for his stay here since that time and has been working out strictly on his own, Thomas was seen walking into the Packers' Lambeau Field training room Monday morning. Moreover, he said he has been using the club's weight training equipment.

An angry Starr conceded the team may have erred by allowing Thomas use of facilities and equipment beyond his official trial date. He told the four reporters who pursued the story that if they printed it, they no longer would be welcome in the Packer offices or perhaps in the locker room.

"You can print what you want, but I want you to understand if you do and it costs us a draft choice, you will not come through this door again," he said.

The reporters are Mike O'Brien of The Associated Press Milwaukee Bureau, Cliff Christl of the Green Bay Press-Gazette, Dale Hofmann of the Milwaukee Sentinel and Dave Begel of the Milwaukee Journal.

"We receive similar reports from various teams around the league in the course of the season," Rozelle told the AP. "We look into each such report, get all the facts, and if appropriate, take appropriate disciplinary action up to and including taking away draft choices. This, of course is what Pittsburgh and Green Bay suffered last year."

Thomas checked out of his motel room here Monday afternoon, and the Packers said they had not decided whether they wanted to sign him.

"He had one official workout," Starr said. "If we don't sign him, I can't make him leave town and I'm not going to ask him. We can't tell him he can't be here if he wants to put himself up in some motel and wants to continue working out."

"We tried him out one day and had nothing further to do with it," Starr said. "He had one workout, and not with the team. We reported it to the league office as we were supposed to. I'm not about to get my fanny in the wringer with the league office."

Gura, John Join Free-Agent Group

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball passed the first plateau in the re-entry draft mechanism at midnight Monday, the deadline for clubs to sign players who otherwise would be eligible for Friday's draft.

Any player not signed by that deadline now moves into a three-day frozen period during which he cannot sign with his old club.

The next deadline comes at midnight Wednesday, by which time players eligible for the draft — six-year veterans who are unsigned for 1979 — must declare their intention to participate in the free agent grab bag.

Pitcher Larry Gura of the Kansas City Royals, whose 16-4 record and 2.72 earned run average in 1978 made him one of the more appealing names in the list of draft eligibles, rejected a final contract offer from his old club Monday and also moved officially into the free agent market.

He was joined by two veteran players, pitcher Dave Roberts of the Chicago Cubs and infielder Bud Harrelson of the Philadelphia Phillies, who notified the Major League Players Association on Monday that they would file for free agency and wanted their names included in the re-entry draft.

Roberts was 6-8 with a 5.26 earned run average in 35 games with the Cubs last season while Harrelson batted .214 in 71 games for the Phillies.

Three other players were withdrawn from the list of eligibles after signing new contracts. They were catcher Terry Humphrey, who reached terms with the California Angels; catcher Buck Martinez,

OU, Lions Continue 1-2 In Grid Ratings

Avianche-Journal News Services
 The top seven teams, led by unbeaten Oklahoma and Penn State, have retained their positions in both The Associated Press and United Press International college football polls, and both agree on the nation's top 11 football teams.

That 11th team is Navy, which surged from 18th place in AP after its shocker over Pitt last week.

Arizona State and Missouri were the biggest losers, dropping out of the ratings, while Arkansas slipped from the top ten, to 17th in both polls. Michigan State made the Top Twenty for the first time this season, in the AP list.

Oklahoma, a 56-19 winner over Kansas State, received 52 of 62 first-place votes and 1,228 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of AP sports writers and broadcasters. The Sooners remained

No. 1 for the sixth week in a row.

Penn State was the AP runner-up for the third consecutive week. The Nittany Lions received the other 10 first-place votes and 1,168 points following a 49-21 trouncing of West Virginia. Last week, with 64 voters submitting their ballots, Oklahoma's lead was 1,270-1,208.

Alabama, a 35-0 victor over Virginia Tech, was third with 1,074 points, followed by Nebraska with 995 points following a 22-14 victory over Oklahoma State.

Maryland, one of the nation's four unbeaten-united major teams — Navy is the fourth one — was fifth with 966 points for a 27-0 blanking of Duke. The Terrapins were trailed by Southern California, which downed California 42-17 and received 948 points.

Texas, which turned back Southern Methodist 22-3, received 835 points for seventh place. AP rated Michigan No. 8 Michigan, but the UPI list, as picked by a panel of college coaches, had Houston in eighth, a notch above the Wolverines.

Arkansas' 20-9 loss to Houston enabled UCLA, which beat Arizona 24-14, to move up from 10th to ninth with 761 points in AP, while Houston went from 11th to 10th with 759 points in AP. UCLA is UPI's tenth team.

The Second Ten in AP consists of Navy, Louisiana State, Georgia, Purdue, Notre Dame, Clemson, Arkansas, Michigan State, Pittsburgh and Washington.

Last week, it was Houston, Arizona State, Missouri, LSU, Pitt, Georgia, Purdue, Notre Dame and Clemson, but Arizona State lost to Washington 41-7 while Colorado edged Missouri 28-27. Michigan State joined the Top Twenty by blasting Wisconsin 56-2 and Washington reappeared after a five-week absence.

UPI's second ten has Navy, Georgia, LSU, Purdue, Notre Dame, Clemson, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia Tech and Ohio State.

Everette Captures Demolition Derby

Ronnie Everette, after a season of turning the wrenches on brother Danny's stock car, got behind the wheel Sunday and won one of the season's biggest prizes at Lubbock Speedway.

It wasn't a race car and it wasn't a race, but who can argue with a $500 payday? Driving a 1967 Olds hardtop, Ronnie outlasted a field of about 16 cars and drivers to win the demolition derby that wound up the 1978 season at the south-side track.

The event boiled down to Everette and Harrel Whitehead in a 1970 LTD station wagon, and the pair maneuvered for several minutes before Ronnie feinted and managed to sideline the Ford with a bashed-in radiator.

A small crowd witnessed the show, but it was an artistic success; and, said promoter Jack Halpain, the windup of a "very successful" season.

"We'll be ready to go next spring with top-notch shows," he opined, "with lots of cars in the mini-stock class and a good field of sprints," in addition to the regular stock car mainstays.

A series of novelty races preceded the demolition derby, with the highlight a FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (Special) — Arkansas sophomore Mark Anderson overlooked defending champion Mike Novelli of Rice in the last 100 yards as the Razorbacks breezed to their fifth consecutive Southwest Conference cross-country championship Monday.

Anderson smashed the Razorback Golf Course 10,000-meter record by 16.3 seconds with a time of 30:08.7. Novelli finished in 30:14.

SMU 87 points on the fewest-points-wins formula.

Baylor was fourth with 109 points, followed by Texas A&M 131, Texas Tech 138, Texas 139, Houston 175 and TCU 256.

"We had some kids get sick. Robert Wilson was sick, just couldn't breathe (and finished 47th). Last year, we were 18th."

"Even though we finished sixth, we didn't run well as a team. I was pleased with Greg Lautenslager (who came in 11th). His time (31:13) was the fastest ever for a Tech runner over six miles (slightly more than six miles)."

Wilkinson Never Doubted

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Special Correspondent

They call him the "Grey Fox."

Silver-haired, tall and slim for his 62 years and so low-key he rarely talks above a whisper, Bud Wilkinson looked like raw meat for the wolves when he came out of retirement this year to coach the professional St. Louis Cardinals.

"Sheer suicide," said cynical observers. "Wilkinson may have been a fine college coach but it's a different scene in the pros and, besides, he's been out of touch too long."

The prophets of doom continued their bleak warnings as Wilkinson's teams lost Sunday after Sunday, compiling an 0-8 record in the National Football League.

Did the one-time architect of championship teams at the University of Oklahoma ever despair?

"Never," said the soft-spoken disciplinarian, reflecting Monday on the Cardinals' first victory of the season — a 16-10 upset triumph Sunday over the Eagles in Philadelphia.

"This bunch of fellows never gave up. Neither did I. Everything seemed to go wrong earlier in the season. We had an uncommon rash of injuries. Our offensive line was shattered."

"Against Philadelphia, we had our offensive line functioning for the first time. That made the difference."

Despite forebodings, Wilkinson never doubted that a man with a good football mind and ability to relate to other human beings could succeed in the pros as well as in college ranks.

He hasn't proved his point yet. The road ahead is all uphill. But those familiar with Wilkinson the man as well as Wilkinson the coach have no doubts that he — as John McKay of the expansion Tampa Bay Buccaneers, formerly of Southern California, has done — will soon make the Cardinals competitive.

His boss, Card's owner Bill Bidwell, envisions the Super Bowl.

"The principles of coaching are the same in the NFL as in the NCAA or, for that matter, high school or sandlots," Wilkinson says. "The idea is to stop the opposition, get the football and score. You don't win many games receiving kickoffs."

Wilkinson lettered twice as a guard and once as a quarterback at Minnesota in the mid-1930s, meanwhile absorbing the wisdom of the conservative yet innovative perfectionist, Bernie Bierman.

As Bierman did, he stresses a simple formula: 1. Alertness. 2. Speed. 3. Precision. 4. Thoroughness. "Quick reaction is one of the most important ingredients of winning football," Wilkinson always has insisted.

Wilkinson has radiated success. His Oklahoma teams scored 145 victories against 29 defeats and four ties over a 17-year period, winning three national championships and a record 47 consecutive games.

He retired after the 1963 season, headed President Kennedy's Council on Physical Fitness, ran unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate in 1964 and did a turn at network broadcasting. Restless, he finally succumbed to the summons of his friend, Bill Bidwell.

"It wasn't that I needed a job," he said. "I welcomed the challenge."

Besides finding the professional athlete bigger, stronger and more sophisticated in every way, Wilkinson has been most impressed by the pro player's dedication.

"Their attitude is tremendous," he said. "None could have gotten this far without a good attitude."

The quiet coach, a fatherly figure, has worked to build up the dignity of the oft-neglected interior linemen.

"I don't like to hear people talk about the backfield and receivers being pit positions," he said. "The game requires skill at every post — especially the offensive line."

After the victory over the Eagles Sunday, placekicker Jim Baaken led the Cardinals in hoisting their coach onto their shoulders. "The greatest thrill in my life," Wilkinson said, tears in his eyes. It was like being back on campus.

CHS, Dunbar, Monterey Girls Post VB Wins

Coronado leveled Plainview 15-1, 15-2 behind the strong serving of Tammy Edmonson and the accurate spikes of Lisa Spaug Monday night as District 4-AAAA girls volleyball teams started second half of the league slate.

Miss Edmonson served for 13 points and Miss Spaug hit 93 percent of her spikes as defending district champ Coronado upped its record to 4-1 in District 4-AAAA and 16-13 overall in the match at Plainview.

The Coronado junior varsity won 16-4, 15-8, and is now 13-4.

Monterey also won Monday night, dropping Hereford 15-11, 15-7 in a match in the MHS gym.

Janis Rhead hit 95 percent of her spikes to lead the winners, won 3-2 in district and 10-13 overall. Mindi Holloway got 9 points to lead servers and DeDon Terry was named the outstanding defensive player in the game.

The junior varsity won 15-11 and 16-16. Dunbar, playing a nonconference game in warming up for this weekend's district tournament at Canyon, clipped Levelland 15-3, 15-8, in a match in the DHS gym.

Lisa Smith and Lisa Cavil were the serving leaders for the Panthers. The victory brought Dunbar's record to 6-17 for the year.

Plainview To Keep 4-AAAA Top Spot

By JIM FERGUSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

By this time last season, two district champs had already been decided in the Class AAAA ranks on the South Plains. But, oh, what a difference a year makes.

With only three weeks remaining on the schedule — some teams only have a pair of games left — nary a team has grabbed a sliver of the pie — much less made the thing ala mode.

In District 4-AAAA, Plainview, with the loop's best record (6-1), has a half game lead over Coronado and a full game margin over both Lubbock and Hereford. Since the Bulldogs meet Pampa Friday night in a nonconference matchup, there is no way it can alter its status. But that doesn't mean the Greg Sherwood coach team can't hope for a little help.

Plainview can sit back and watch as Hereford and Lubbock tangle in a contest which means exit for one or the other. Since each has one loss in conference play, another setback — even a tie — would put the dream of a loop title to sleep for this season.

Monterey, the only team that been given eliminated — because of its 0-2 record — can play the part of spoiler Thursday night by knocking off Coronado (1-0). If that does happen, Plainview would have a full game lead over the Mustangs heading into the final two weeks. However, CHS can pull even with the Bulldogs by winning.

Plainview's schedule calls for back-to-back games with Lubbock and Coronado in the final couple of weeks.

Either Palo Duro or Amarillo High can gain sole possession of the lead in 3-AAAA Friday night. The Dons and the Sandies are the only teams with perfect marks in loop action. And since they meet each other in Dick Bivins Stadium in three days, it's only natural to assume one will have a 2-0 record Saturday morning — unless, of course, there is a tie.

But the picture up in 3-AAAA is still a might cloudy, since four of the five teams — only Caprock is out — still have a mathematical chance to cop the crown.

Pampa and Tascosa are currently sitting just a game behind the two leaders, waiting for the right moment to make their moves. For Pampa, which takes on Palo Duro next week, it will have to wait a few days because of the nonconference date with Plainview.

Tascosa, though, can stay in the midst of things by whipping Caprock (0-2) and hoping for an Amarillo win over Palo Duro. The Dons have already beaten the Longhorns this season 33-19.

So in 3-AAAA, it's still anybody's guess. Midland Lee, and Odessa Permian (both 7-0 overall and 4-0 in loop encounters) will meet Friday night in a much-awaited 5-AAAA showdown. Midland is the site of the contest.

The winner of the contest, which pits two of the top AAAA teams in the state, will have a leg up on taking the crown to the bank.

Mustangs Get Second Tennis Championship

Coronado High School added the B Division title to its A Division title during play at the Lubbock Fall In vitation Tennis Tournament Monday.

Leading Coronado in singles competition were Douglas Farrell and Gregg Conaway, who played for the championship. Farrell won, 2-6, 7-6, 6-4.

In doubles, the two teams to defeat Jay Palmer and Doug Wright of Vernon 6-1, 6-4 in the championship.

In girls singles, the same thing happened. Coronado's Missy Johnson and Beverly Smith battled for the singles title, Miss Johnson winning 6-2, 6-0. In doubles, they were eliminated in the semifinals by Suzette Robnett and Shelly McGill of Monterey. Rosalind Hamilton and Denny Flewelin of Dunbar then beat them 7-5, 6-3 for the championship.

The final two championships in the C division will be finished today. Mackenzie Junior High has already won the team title, however.

Coronado won the B title with 36 points, with Dunbar coming in second with 18, followed by Monterey and Vernon, 7 points each, and Estacado.

Pancoast Resigns As Vandy Coach

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fred Pancoast, winless in 16 straight Southeastern Conference football games and off to what would be his worst season in four years as Vanderbilt head coach, resigned Monday, effective at the end of this season.

Meeting with reporters, Pancoast said he wants to relieve any concern for the future which his players and coaching staff may have been harboring.

The 46-year-old former Marine from Florida said he does not want the players or his assistants subjected to any outside pressure because of the Commodores' poor start.

"I only hope I can assist these players for the remainder of the season," he said. Vanderbilt closes its season in Nashville against Tennessee Dec. 2.

"I can truthfully say that the people I've been associated with... have been totally fair with me. They've probably been over-patient because of the records and poor play. It's totally unfair to continue to put people in an awkward position who have been fair with me."

Pancoast, who quarterbacked the University of Tampa from 1949 to 1952 and was an assistant coach at the University of Florida from 1964 to 1969, said he has no immediate plans for the future. Any prospects, he said, will be discussed with his family.

Asked if Saturday's 35-10 loss to the University of Mississippi, in which the Commodores held an early 10-point lead, was the deciding factor, Pancoast said: "It was a big disappointment, but I don't think you can put this kind of decision on one game. It was not a predominant factor."

coached by Steve Sloan, whom he replaced at Vanderbilt in 1975.

Pancoast's contract with Vanderbilt runs through 1980 but, he said, "contracts are a piece of paper. Commitments are more important than contracts."

He stressed that he wanted to work successfully with the team for the remainder of the season and hoped that his resignation would have a minimal effect on high school recruiting. "I have put what will be four years of my life into this and I want to see it succeed," he said.

Vanderbilt has won only one game this year, beating Furman 17-10 on Sept. 23.

In Pancoast's 1975 season at Vanderbilt, after he moved Memphis State into the major football ranks, the Commodores posted a 7-4 record, including Vanderbilt's first victory over Tennessee in 11 years and its first in Knoxville since 1959.

However, the Vandy fortunes went downhill from there and the 1975 season was followed by two consecutive 2-9 seasons.

Pancoast first became a head college coach at Tampa in 1962, joining Florida two years later. His offensive coaching helped the Gators pile up the best offense in the SEC from 1965 through 1969 and he moved to head offensive coach for the University of Georgia in 1970.

Two years later, he was chosen head coach at Memphis State.

Q: What has happened to the fine Maryland quarterback of last season, Mark Manges? Does he have a future in pro football?
—Casey Williams, Charlotte, N.C.

A. Manges apparently was a victim of the George Allen confusion during last summer's training camp. Manges said he was hurt, George said he wasn't and Manges got released. The quarterback recently had a tryout with the New York Jets when Richard Todd went down, but was rejected again. He says he will try Canadian football next season with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, refusing to believe that his pro football career is over.

In fact, a great many college quarterbacks are better equipped to play in the CFL because the style up there utilizes all the same talents.

Q: When Tom Kite took a penalty stroke because his ball moved while he was addressing it, was the ball on the green, in the fairway or in the rough? Did Frank Stranahan always compete as an amateur on the tour? Years ago there were clubs on the market that were autographed by Bobby Jones. How did this affect his amateur standing?
—C.H. Hobbs, Rogers, Ark.

A. Kite's ball was on the green. Stranahan was financially independent, enjoyed his role as a gentleman golfer and finally turned pro in the early 1960s. Bobby Jones clubs were not sold until after he had retired from competitive golf.

Q: Can you tell me how tall Nancy Lopez is? I would also like to know where he is at home in New Mexico and where I can write to her.
—A. A. Tucson, Ariz.

A. Nancy is 5 feet 7 inches. She has a condominium in Florida, a boyfriend in Pennsylvania and a daddy in New Mexico. She doesn't want these addresses known, but you can write to her in care of International Management, 1 Erie Plaza, Suite 1300, Cleveland, Ohio 44114.

Q: Whatever happened to the sensational rookie runningback of 1977, Abel Joe? After he was cut from Dallas, what team did he end up with? Is he playing this year?
—Faye Thomas, Dallas.

A. Joe, out of Cheyney State, failed with Dallas due largely to a bruised knee. He was picked up and then cut by the Philadelphia Eagles. He is now back in Dallas, trying to maintain a relationship with some of his erstwhile teammates.

Q: What can NFL teams do about their cheerleaders who pose nude for girlie magazines? I mean, beforehand. These days when you say girls will be girls, you are saying a lot.
—Harriet Whiting, Shreveport, La.

A. When suddenly there were 23 teams with cheerleader crews, the law of averages was mighty strained. So you had one girl arrested for rolling a drunk who turned out to be a policeman, another indicted for possession of cocaine with intent to distribute and five or six who posed nude for Playboy.

What NFL teams have learned, the hard way, is that there's more to the cheerleader business than meets the eye, including the screening of candidates. A member of the NY Giants family recently was asked when the club, one of five holdouts, was going into the cheerleader business. Next Sunday, he said: "We have 22 nuns lined up."

Q: Did Schoolboy Rowe ever win 16 consecutive games in one season? Over two seasons?
—Sol Meltsner, Miami Beach, Fla.

A. Lynnwood T. Rowe won 16 straight for Detroit in the 1934 season. Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove and Smoky Joe Wood matched that streak, and Ruber Marquard (1912) won 19 in a row. The record over two seasons is Carl Hubbell's 24 in 1936-37.

Schoolboy Rowe became equally famous for his World Series radio interview that year when he asked his listening wife, "How'm I doin', Edna?"

Q: Have any of the NFL teams devised new plays to take advantage of some of the new rules?
—Harry Leitner, Jackson, Miss.

A. The coaches have resurrected several discarded pass routes now that receivers can roam untouched beyond the five-yard zone. But the most innovative new "play" has been devised by the Minnesota Vikings, for use in a desperate situation or the two-minute period.

Three Viking receivers gather in the same area downfield and Fran Tarkenton throws the ball in their midst. Naturally, there is a great crowd of defensive backs on hand, but since the "double touch" is now legal, the Vikings have a 50-50 chance, perhaps better, of coming up with the rebound.

Shallowwater Back Honored

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

All year long you've read about backs gaining 300 yards. You've read about somebody carrying the ball 40 times. You've read about someone scoring five times and you've read about somebody else making 20 tackles.

But this time there is a different kind of hero. Ernest Hemingway defined heroism as "grace under pressure".

Let's set the scene to see if this candidate fits the bill:

Trailing 12-11 with time running out in the fourth period, the Shallowwater quarterback was injured. The Mustangs were playing Ropes and they needed the win to stay alive in the District 5-A race.

Where did they turn? Rodney Jackson, who had already played two positions during the game — split back and tailback.

Jackson doesn't fit the hero mold; he stands only 5-9 and weighs about 155. He's only a junior but coach Rickey White puts him in anyway.

And he comes through.

Jackson carried the ball for 64 of the 79 yards the Mustangs drove and then scored the winning touchdown on a 4-yard run with 1:16 left to play.

All together, he gained 161 yards on 24

Tech Lettermen Hold Homecoming Breakfast

As a part of Saturday's Texas Tech homecoming activities, the Tech Lettermen's Association will have its annual breakfast at Furr's Town & Country Cafeteria.

carries and scored twice. He also caught one pass for another 16 yards. And that is enough to earn him a spot on the Avalanche-Journal weekly Schoolboy Honor Roll.

He shared that honor with Amherst's Ronald Johnson. Johnson carried 20 times for 200 yards even. He also scored the winning touchdown in Amherst's 10-7

YFL Holds 'Super Bowl' Tripleheader

The second annual Lubbock Youth Football League Super Bowl will be held Sunday at Lowrey Field with three games on tap.

First and second place teams in the A and C divisions, along with the champions of the American and National Leagues in the B division, will take part in the annual bowl.

In the A division (10-year-olds), Glad Norman Realtors, which compiled a 7-0 season record, takes on American Legion Post 808, 6-1 for the year, at 1 p.m.

Division B American League champ Furr's Family Center (6-1) faces National League champion Southwestern General Life (6-0-1) at 3 p.m.

Washam Steel, which topped Division C with a 6-0-1 mark, takes on Greer Electric (5-1-1) at 5 p.m.

Tickets for all three games are $1. Net proceeds will be divided between the Lubbock State School Recreational Building Fund and the Lubbock YFL.

ALL EYES ON THE BALL. — Pursuit it's called, and coaches preach it. Here, at least 15 members of the Los Angeles Rams and Atlanta Falcons chase an elusive football during the first half of Monday night's NFL game at Atlanta. The Falcons had blocked a punt, creating the furious rush for the football. The Falcons won this race to the football, as well as the contest 15-7. (AP Laserphoto)

Falcons Can't Kick About Win

ATLANTA (AP) — Tim Mazzetti, an unknown barkeep in a Philadelphia pub three weeks ago, can't believe what happened to him since he turned in his apron for an Atlanta Falcons' uniform.

His teammates, however, believe.

Especially after the 23-year-old placekicker booted five field goals Monday night to power the Falcons to a 15-7 National Football League upset victory over the Los Angeles Rams in the nationally televised affair.

"Mazzetti is just super. He's the difference now," said defensive end Jeff Merrow. "He's really been a great lift for us."

Fired by a crowd of 57,250, the Atlanta defense blocked a punt, intercepted two Pat Haden passes, stopped a fourth-down Los Angeles gamble at midfield, and recovered a fumble, with each big play preceding a Mazzetti field goal.

Mazzetti, signed as a free agent three weeks ago after failing with three other NFL clubs, kicked a game-winning field goal against San Francisco last week with only one second remaining.

"I don't know what I've done to deserve this," said Mazzetti, who tied a club record with his boots of 21, 37, 30, 26 and 37 yards. "It's too much, I can't believe it. It was just my day."

"After I made the first two, I felt like I couldn't miss. Last week, I felt like I wasn't really in control of the situation. I was really nervous."

His kicks lifted the Falcons to a 5-4 record, their third triumph in a row, and sent the Rams to their second consecutive defeat after seven victories. Atlanta is now two games behind Los Angeles in the Western Division.

Mazzetti put the Falcons ahead to stay at 9-7 four seconds into the final quarter after the Rams gambled on fourth down, needing only a foot, and failed.

The Rams got their only score on the first play of the second quarter when Pat Haden hit Ron Jessie on a 10-yard scoring pass.

"You can't help but get up for a Monday night game," said defensive back Roland Lawrence who picked off two of Haden's passes. "There's just too many people watching. And how about Mazzetti? He was just fantastic. He gives us a sense of assurance. We feel confident in him. Tim's a diamond in the rough who's worked out fantastic for us," said Lawrence.

"What can you say," said Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett. "Tim kicked very well, didn't he?"

The victory may have been costly, however.

Quarterback Steve Bartkowski went out with a possible separated left shoulder late in the first half and he will have X-rays taken today.

"I don't think it's cracked," said Bartkowski. "I'll miss two days of practice but I'll be ready to play Sunday."

"Interceptions and fumbles," moaned Los Angeles coach Ray Malavasi. "Even though you stop the other team, it doesn't do you any good if you give the ball away. We moved the ball pretty good the first part but we made critical mistakes and gave them field position."

Haden, however, maintained the Rams still had to be caught despite the loss.

"We're still a very good football team. We can't get down on ourselves. We've got to come back next week. We're still in first place and people have got to catch us," he said.

DeTourillion had it easier in getting to the finals, as he tripped Curtis Mitchell 5-4.

This is the first time for Hillcrest to stage a match-play event. Next summer, the club plans to schedule the tournament earlier in the year.

Mock To Start Against Denver

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York Jets Monday placed linebacker Greg Buttle, a standout performer this season, on the injured reserve list after he suffered a knee injury in a 55-21 rout by New England Sunday. He will be lost for the remainder of the season.

The Jets also lost Buttle's replacement, Larry Keller, with a knee injury Sunday and rookie Mike Mock, an eighth-round draft choice from Texas Tech, will start at left linebacker against Denver Sunday.

Raiders Schedule Cage Scrimmage

Texas Tech basketball coach Gerald Myers has announced that he will stage an intrasquad scrimmage as part of school homecoming activities Friday.

The game will be held in Lubbock High School gym, beginning at 4 p.m. There will be no admission.

The scrimmage has been a regular part of the homecoming program for several years. Myers said he will divide the squad as equally as possible.

Tech began workouts Oct. 15 and will have its first game on Nov. 14, playing the Bulgarian National team in an exhibition.

WE GROW, GROW... AND SO GROW YOUR BOAT SAVINGS!
Inland Discount Marine is expanding by leaps and bounds. We have now acquired Knodel Marine in McQueeney and Modern Marine in Lubbock—and we are negotiating for four or five more locations throughout much of Texas. This means, of course, that lower cost powerboats, sailboats, and yachts have already come to the San Antonio and Lubbock markets and, as additional locations are opened, it will mean still lower costs, as our volume increases. We will continue to be headquartered on our "eight acres of boats" on beautiful Lake Amistad near Dal Rio, Texas.
We have also taken over Thunderbird and Starcraft franchises for much of the state of Texas...two of America's very top line boats. Thunderbird is a more costly, more inclusive boat and considered by many a boat superior to Sea Ray. However, Inland's great purchasing power and low, low markup policies will bring you this fine boat at a lower cost than most dealers will sell you a Sea Ray. Starcraft is a line of boats that competes with Glastron in the "middle market". Again, because of our volume purchasing power, and the fact that we buy direct from the Starcraft factory, we can undersell Glastron by 15-20%. In addition to these two major franchises, Inland Discount Marine will handle the very low-cost Renken line. We also handle Viking Deck Boats, Boston Whaler, and Starfire boats...each one of them tops in their particular category and field. In sail you can buy Ericson, American Mariner, South Coast, Banshee and Taft.
And there's icing on the cake. With payment of a $10 membership in Inland Marine Association, you can receive an additional 5-10% discount off already low-discounted boat prices; an informative boating newsletter at frequent intervals; and a 10% discount on parts, accessories, and services (available at all Inland Discount Marine locations). Only landlubbers can afford not to join Inland Marine Association.

Four Teams Share Top Spot In 4-AA

By RUSS PARSONS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Just three short weeks ago, the Indians were in the pits. They hadn't won a game since the middle of last year, they had been outscored 19-71 and... well, things just looked bad.

Now, Seminole is mixing it up among the leaders of District 5-AA. What's going on down there?

"I don't know," said first-year coach David Bornstein. "We're just trying to stay alive I guess."

They're doing a darned good job of it. So far this season the Indians have beaten both Tahoka and Frenship. Neither had lost a district game until it played them.

But now the giant-killers are romping with the giants. Four teams are tied with 2-1 records atop the district and Seminole has already played (and beaten) two of them.

That's going from the wrong side of the tracks to the mansion on the hill in just three weeks.

What has turned the Indians around? First, says Bornstein, they weren't that bad to begin with.

"Our team played pretty well the first part of the season," he said. "We just didn't have it together. We didn't have confidence that we could win."

That's not hard to understand; Seminole won just two games last season and both of them were early in the year.

But the Indians discovered success — and in a big way — during their first district game against Roosevelt. They won that one 47-7.

"Before we played Roosevelt we had an open date. That gave us a chance to get better at some things," Bornstein said. "We're installing a completely new system out here and it's taking us some time to get it together. We got some things worked out now."

It seemed details were stopping the Indians before. Bornstein said they had been inside their opposition's 20-yard line 12 times in the first three games and came away with just 20 points.

Okay, so things are rolling. Then, against Denver City on the next weekend, they come to a complete stop again.

The Indians were walloped 27-7 in that one, and by a team that hadn't won a Tradition Involved In Oilers' Season?

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers seem to be passing through their National Football League season with the same malady that afflicts the Incredible Hulk.

According to the story line for the Hulk's comic book and television series, the hero is a mild-mannered scientist until something makes him angry. Then, because his body has been saturated with unpredictable gamma rays, he gains super human strength, turns green and screams a lot.

Similarly, the unpredictable Oilers popped the buttons off their shirts and flexed their muscles on national television eight days ago, thrashing the Pittsburgh Steelers 24-7 to wipe out the final unbeaten record in the NFL.

The Oilers still were screaming Monday but they were only green with envy following Sunday's 28-13 loss to Cincinnati, which ended the Bengals' string of eight straight losses this season.

The Oilers played more like they had been tranquilized instead of treated with gamma rays. Oilier coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips agrees the Oilers seem to play only to the level of competition but calls it tradition.

"I think every football team plays that way," Phillips said. "Everybody plays harder when they think they have to. That's part of football tradition. Everybody plays hardest when the challenge is the greatest."

The Oilers apparently had a massive dose of anger when they played Oakland of its feet earlier this year before losing in the final seconds. They were passive bystanders in a season-opening loss to Atlanta and Sunday against the Bengals.

Cincinnati, which had not scored a rushing touchdown all season, took a 21-0 lead, all on rushing touchdowns, before the Oilers ever got on the scoreboard with six minutes left in the game.

Chattanooga Suspends Blacks

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — University of Tennessee-Chattanooga officials said today 20 black UTC football players will sit out the rest of the season under suspension but retain their scholarships and athletic privileges.

One black civil rights leader, however, said he wasn't satisfied with the announcement, and indicated at least one of the players won't settle for it either.

"The players were under duress. Here are boys from poor families who couldn't go to college without a scholarship. What would you do?" George Key, director of the Chattanooga chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said in a telephone interview early today.

At issue was football coach Joe Morrison's suspensions of black players who refused to run laps last Thursday as a penalty for missing practice a day earlier.

Key declined to name the player who he said would refuse to go along with the university. He said black leaders plan to press their efforts to remedy what they see as examples of racial discrimination in the UTC sports program.

The school's announcement came after Chancellor James Drinnon Jr., Morrison and athletic director Harold Wilkes met privately with the players.

"We very much appreciate these young men's efforts and I think them for their support of the university," Drinnon said at a post-midnight news conference. "We are going to help them in resolving any problems they may have at the university."

The meeting culminated a series of conferences Monday at which Drinnon talked with football players, team officials and black leaders from Chattanooga concerning the UTC football team.

Key was among 16 black leaders who met with Drinnon and other officials Monday and unsuccessfully insisted that the chancellor reinstate the players.

As Drinnon described the agreement with the players, they must sit out the remaining three games on the UTC schedule, but could play in a postseason game should UTC be invited. UTC is 6-1-1, with its only loss coming after the suspensions last Saturday to McNeese State.

Key said he understood why most of the players have decided to go along with the school officials. But he said a mass meeting was still on tap for Thursday night to air grievances about the way black players are treated in the UTC sports program.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Sending Messages With Special Code

By SHARI LEWIS

Secrets! That's what kids seem to like best of all. Do you have a secret code, so no one else can read the notes you send to your best friends? Here's a confusing code that's really easy to figure out, but only if you know how: Write the message using every other box. Put the first letter of your note into the first box, leaving the second box blank and then write the second letter of your message in the third box, leave the fourth box blank and so on. When you have written your entire message, go back and just put any old letter into box 2, 4 and all of the other blanks. Can you read my secret message to you? YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: What did one ghost say to the other? ANSWER: Do you believe in people? TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Is it bad luck to have a black cat follow you? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.) (Mail to Shari should be addressed Kids-Only Club, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.)

Widow Faces Possible Trial For Larceny

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A woman who rose from poverty in Memphis to riches in Texas on a non-existent inheritance was to appear in court today on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. Margaret Medders, who with her late husband Ernest lived in luxury near Dallas on a borrowed $3 million in the early 1960s, faced a possible trial on charges of larceny and obtaining about $35,000 under false pretenses. Mrs. Medders and her court-appointed attorney, Edwin Lenow, were to appear before Judge James Beasley of Criminal Court. Mrs. Medders, 58, was indicted by a Shelby County grand jury in 1976, but was not extradited to Tennessee because of charges pending in Texas. She was convicted in May 1977 of not paying a $352 bill in 1976 at the Fairmont Hotel in Dallas and was sentenced to five years in the Texas Department of Corrections facility at Huntsville. She was extradited this summer and has been at the Shelby County Jail East since Aug. 1 under $5,000 bond, awaiting trial. The Tennessee indictment accuses Mrs. Medders of several fraudulent acts, including taking $24,800 from Nelsie Mulkins of Memphis for a third interest in Marest Publishing Co. Inc. The indictment charges that Mrs. Medders, as part-owner, stockholder and officer of the publishing company, represented to Mrs. Mulkins that the company was a "thriving and profitable business" and had sold nearly a million copies of the book, "How To Borrow $3 Million With No Collateral — The Medders Story." The indictment also said Mrs. Mulkins paid $3,000 in 1975 for land near Jellico, Tenn., which Mrs. Medders said contained coal. Later that year, Mrs. Medders sold Dr. Mary B. Davis, a semi-retired Memphis osteopath, the coal rights to the Jellico property for $4,000, the indictment said. Mrs. Medders' late husband, Ernest, was a $65-a-week mechanic when their rags-to-riches story began in 1961, based on speculation he might be heir to the $500 million Spindletop oil fortune. The couple borrowed $3 million — nearly $2 million from the Poor Sisters of St. Francis, an order of nuns in Indiana — against the phony inheritance. For six years they lived among the Texas elite, giving lavish parties at their 330-acre home, Colonial Acres. They dined at Lyndon Johnson's White House and flew home aboard Air Force One. The bubble burst in 1967 when relatives filed suit for a share of the inheritance and discovered the Medders had never collected a penny of the fortune. The couple was declared bankrupt, but under Texas law was allowed to keep a 185-acre ranch and house, plus a Cadillac. The couple could not afford the upkeep on the ranch and it later was sold. Until his death in 1975 at age 75, Medders lived on proceeds from the sale of the ranch.

Chicago's Population Expected To Jump

CHICAGO (AP) — A study by a trio of college professors predicts Chicago's 6-county metropolitan population will jump from 7 million to 8 million in the next 20 years, especially in minority groups, but added that the core city's census during the same period will drop. Professors Kenneth Hanz and Donald Bogue of the University of Chicago and Pierre de Vise of the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle said by the year 2000, blacks will make up 47 percent of the city's population, compared with 23 percent in 1970. They said there also will be a dramatic rise in the Spanish-speaking population. However, Chicago's census, which showed 3.3 million population in 1970, is expected to drop to 2.7 million in 2000, the study said.

Bandit Strikes Fast-Food Place

Police this morning continued to look for a bandit who struck the Poco Taco at 120 N. University Ave. about 9:10 p.m. Monday and made off with about $200. The suspect, wearing a black hat, black vest and jeans, entered the fast food establishment and told attendant Jose Grain, 23, "Give me all the money — I don't want to hurt you," as he revealed a gun under his vest. The robber demanded only bills from the register. He then fled, running north down an alley. The suspect was described as a Mexican-American man about 5-foot-3 inches tall and weighing about 165 pounds. Henry James Jackson of 2714 E. 17th St. told police he was virtually cleaned out when burglars hit his home between 8:30 p.m. and 9:50 p.m. Monday. Jackson estimated his loss at $1,300 in various goods and $400 in cash. Misti McAda of Route 9, Box 435, said she parked her car at 25th Street and Avenue W between 10:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. Monday, and when she returned, the vehicle had been broken into. She reported, among other things, a purse, money and clothes, totaling $600, missing. Police late Monday were following up on a rash of city break-ins and thefts reported earlier that day. The owner of a car wash at 1517 E. 54th St. told officers that thieves made off with an undetermined amount of money from some coin machines and did $1,000 worth of damage to his property sometime late Sunday or early Monday. Fletcher Hicks said that the thieves ripped a coin box and telephone off the wall and damaged several coin-operated machines. Margaret Barajas, owner of the Oasis Drive-In at 2908 Parkway Drive, said $813 worth of goods was stolen from the establishment between 11 p.m. Sunday and 2 p.m. Monday. After prying a lock on a back door, burglars carted off four boxes of hamburger patties, a microwave oven and two portable radios from the drive-in. Thieves made off with an undetermined amount of cash and clothes from a clothing store at 50th Street and Indiana Avenue sometime late Sunday or early Monday. Diana Karvis, owner of the firm, told investigating officers that she had seen two black males and a black female loitering in an alley near the firm about noon Sunday.

Burglars took $450 worth of copper wire from a business at 3508 Ave. J between 8 a.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday. Burl Bourms, owner of the firm, said the thieves removed a 55-gallon barrel filled with scrap copper wire and a roll of copper wire from outside his business. Apparently a former tenant made off with a range and refrigerator from an apartment complex at 2102 34th St., Cordeil Sudduth reported. The apartment manager said the woman had moved over the weekend and apparently took the goods from her old apartment. He said the suspect was Mexican-American, 18 to 25, short and of medium build.

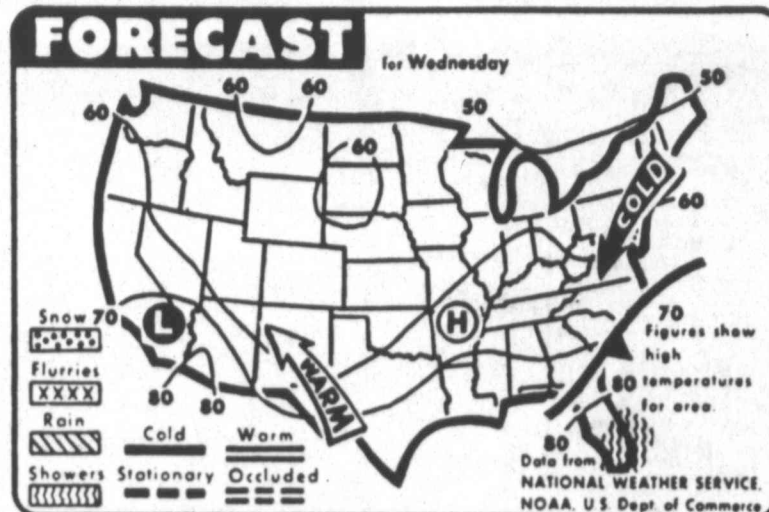

Charles Taylor, principal of Posey Elementary School at 1301 Redbud Ave., Monday reported that four tape recorders, valued at $176, were missing from the school. Gilbert Pinson, owner of a business at 4101 Englewood, said someone removed a portable black and white TV set and a cassette player from a small office building sometime between Saturday morning and Monday afternoon. Ricky Burton of 3424 Frankford Ave. told police that whoever broke into his 1978 Dodge van escaped with $300 worth of goods, including a CB radio and radar detector, sometime late Sunday or early Monday.

In criminal mischief activity, someone apparently drove a vehicle into the front glass doors of the Lubbock Racquet Club at 9000 Memphis Ave. early Monday, causing $1,000 worth of damage to the structure, according to Burns Hamilton, general manager of the club. Robert Blair of 4014 37th St. said that someone tossed a rock through the rear window of his 1977 Datsun 280Z sometime early Monday. He estimated his loss at $160. Shirley Orr of 4801 Brownfield Drive complained that whoever jumped on the hood of her 1976 Ford LTD caused $210 worth of damage to the car. The incident occurred sometime Friday or Saturday, she reported.

Potential Storm Races Toward Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Weathermen today sighted a potential storm racing toward the Philippines, which still is reeling from the worst typhoon to hit the country in eight years. The weather bureau located an active low pressure area in the Pacific Ocean 600 miles southeast of Manila. Weathermen said it could develop into a storm and hit the Pacific. The death toll from typhoon Rita rose today to 200, as 50 more fatalities were reported to the National Disaster Coordinating Center operated by the Philippine Armed Forces. A total of 354 others are missing. Rita cut across the rice-rich central Luzon plain with peak winds of more than 100 miles an hour Thursday and Friday. It mowed down more than 50,000 houses and displaced 291,610 families composed of 1,444,465 persons. Damage to infrastructure and agricultural crops has been placed at $100 million. About 750,000 acres of rice land were reported damaged. President Ferdinand E. Marcos declared five provinces in central Luzon a calamity zone to speed up rehabilitation work. UPI correspondent Edgar Navarro Tuesday flew over the disaster zone and reported that while the floods have receded new rains brought by the approaching depression were drenching wide areas of the main Luzon island. Navarro, who flew aboard an air force Huey helicopter with Brig. Gen. Cirilo Bueno who is in charge of relief operations in the coastal province of Quezon, said the towns of Dingalan, Gabaldon and Sicut were totally devastated. "Houses were flattened and you can see stretches of twisted galvanized iron sheets, wooden boards and destroyed thatched huts," Navarro said. Rows upon rows of tall coconut trees have been uprooted and leaning about 30 degrees to the ground in the three towns 60 miles east of Manila. The leaves have been shredded and coconut buds and blossoms strewn away in the wind, Navarro said. Authorities in Quezon province said more than 8,000 acres of coconut were damaged.

Mahon's Paperwork Arrives At Tech

Three hundred sixty boxes, containing 2,000 papers each and representing only half of the accumulated paperwork of U. S. Rep. George Mahon's 44 years in Congress, arrived by truck Monday at Texas Tech University's Southwest Collection. A second truckload with another 360 boxes is expected to arrive by next week. The veteran West Texas legislator recently had announced he would donate all his papers to the Texas Tech archives. The Library of Congress, the Smithsonian Institute and the LBJ Library at the University of Texas all had vied for his records. "The other institutions wanted the papers, but we think Mr. Mahon felt Tech was the logical place all along," said David Murrah, university archivist and director of the Southwest Collections. The 360 cardboard boxes which arrived Monday represented only half, or about 720,000 papers, of the Mahon collection. University officials estimate the total collection will contain nearly 1.5 million papers. "It will take us at least a year to process the bulk of the material," Murrah said. "We have to describe, count, and find a place for each of the documents before they can be available for research." Legislative files, correspondence with constituents, veterans' files, special project files, information about the Canyon Lakes project, and other data about the federal government's activities in the 19th Congressional District are included in the papers. Murrah said he did not plan to hire additional people to handle the workload, but said the regular employees would be busy for quite some time. "This is really a bonus. It's like getting two years work in a single year and we feel we are equipped to handle it," Murrah said. Plans for the formal dedication of the papers to research are in the planning stages and will probably take place at this time next year. Formal announcement of the papers' arrival at Tech is expected soon from Mahon's congressional office.

Texan Charged With Murder

FORT WORTH (AP) — A 23-year-old Hurst man has been charged with capital murder in the shooting deaths of a Fort Worth businessman and his wife. Raymond Lynn Eaton was held without bond Monday in the Tarrant County jail following his arraignment before Justice of the Peace Bob Ashmore. Homicide Lt. Coy Martin said Sunday that investigators had determined John P. Muller III, 50, and Virginia Muller, 53, were shot to death during a burglary at their fashionable East Fort Worth home. Martin said evidence recovered from an undisclosed location Sunday included a black cowboy hat matching the description of the hat a neighbor said he saw a man wearing Friday morning near the Muller residence and "certain items taken from the Muller home." Eaton was arrested Saturday evening near downtown Fort Worth.

Woman Joins Group Of Contest Finalists

Elizabeth Anne Robinson, 18, has replaced Sarah Jean Watkins as one of the finalists in the 1978 Miss Lubbock Scholarship Pageant, according to pageant chairman Cecil D. Caldwell. Miss Watkins withdrew Monday due to conflicts, Caldwell said. Miss Robinson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Robinson of Dallas, was the next highest point-maker in the preliminary judging held Sunday. Twenty-one competed for the dozen finalists' posts, Caldwell said.
