Bills subject of showdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is returning from its Labor Day recess to face showdowns on natural gas deregulation and on a $2 billion nuclear-powered aircraft carrier President Carter does not want built.

Both issues pose crucial tests for the president's policies and his ability to deal with Congress.

Senators coming back to town are sure to find themselves heavily lobbied on the gas pricing bill, both from the administration, which supports it, and from opponents. Most of the opposition is coming from consumer groups and some segments of the oil and gas industry.

A large group of undecided senators still appears to be the key to the measure that took more than eight months for House-Senate negotiators to work out — and both camps are out to win over these wavering members.

Senate leaders hope to begin debating the bill on Thursday — although there remains a chance that action will be put over until the following week.

The White House is depicting the legislation — which would remove large quantities of natural gas from federal price controls by 1985 — as critical to the success of Carter's long-stalled energy program and to U.S. prestige abroad.

It is being opposed by an unusual coalition of Senate liberals who see it as too costly to consumers and conservatives who do not think it would deregulate enough gas.

Once the bill is brought up, opponents plan to offer a motion to recommit the legislation to the conference committee that drafted it and to bring up instead a short bill that would give the president certain emergency powers during natural gas shortages.

This motion would have the effect of killing the compromise.

If the motion fails, a filibuster is expected — but Senate leaders say they have enough votes to block it.

The House, meanwhile, has scheduled a vote for Thursday on the president's veto of a $37 billion defense bill containing the authorization to build the nuclear carrier.

Carter claims another nuclear carrier is unnecessary and would be wasteful.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill predicts that the veto will be sustained. But supporters of the carrier are well organized and are expected to put up a heavy fight.

A two-thirds vote in both chambers is required to override a veto.

When it convenes on Wednesday, the Senate is to take up a proposed $489.5 billion federal budget for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 while the House is to consider plans to carry out federal aid to fiscally struggling New York City.

The basic legislation — for $1.8 billion, principally in guarantees to help the city borrow money — already has been enacted.

Long, busy sessions are expected throughout the month as the lawmakers race to try to finish by Oct. 7 so those up for re-election — and this includes the entire House — can go home to campaign.

Seven die, 19 hurt in copter crash

By EARL BOHN

DERRY, Pa. (AP) — Twelve-year-old Mary Beth Allison was laughing as she dropped handfuls of ping pong balls numbered for prizes from a helicopter to a crowd attending a Labor Day church festival.

Moments later the helicopter — its blades turned into giant scythes — plunged into the crowd, injuring 19 people and killing seven, including Mary Beth's mother.

"Everybody was running for those balls," said Denise DeCaro of New Derry, who was mingling in the crowd. "The girl was laughing. Then there was blood everywhere."

Six people were killed instantly when the craft slammed into a concession stand at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in this southwestern Pennsylvania borough. Coroner Leo Bacha said Mary Allison, 46, died later at nearby Latrobe Hospital.

Hospital spokeswoman Andrea Guzik said 11 of the 19 people brought to the facility remained hospitalized today, including three in critical condition.

Eyewitnesses said the church parking lot was covered with blood and severed bodies after the three-seat helicopter, a Hughes 269-C, crashed. "There were people lying all over the place, some with their heads off," said Helen Irwin, who saw the crash from outside the family tavern a half-block away.

"One man, his body was cut in half. It was just a terrible mess."

Latrobe police Sgt. Joseph Muchinski said about 500 people were at the festival on the last day of a three-day annual fund-raiser.

Federal Aviation Administration inspector Dave Kuntz said the blade tips of the helicopter were traveling at 350 to 400 mph.

"The pilot indicated the possibility that the engine might have failed. She did attempt to land," Kuntz said.

The pilot, Pam Nelson, and the two passengers, Miss Allison and her father, Leo, a church janitor, were uninjured, authorities said.

Mrs. Nelson's husband owns Nelson Helicopters, based at Allegheny County Airport in West Mifflin, said Derry policeman Ronald Bolen.

For several hours after the mishap, firemen scooped up body parts and placed them in plastic bags. They were taken to a temporary morgue established in a cafeteria inside St. Joseph's hall, where the Rev. John Will administered last rites.

The other dead were identified as Gertrude Gray, 54, and her daughter, Darlene, 15, of Latrobe; Irene Maloy, 55, Tim Deglau, 32, and Parece Smith, 14, all of Derry; and Lois Joy Weidenhoff, about 50, of Ford City.

Labor force hits high, overall growth seen

The civilian labor force in Midland reached a record high in July as the number of employed persons hit the 45,000 mark, according to a spokesman with the Texas Employment Commission's office in Midland.

But the unemployment rate in Midland went up to 3.3 percent due to the city's "seasonal glut" of available workers.

The TEC spokesman also noted that with students returning to school, unemployment figures for October are expected to drop to 3.6 percent, at which time the working force may decline to a "more normal level" of 44,000.

Unemployment also should drop in October to 1.650, which correlates with the 3.6 percent figure, the spokesman said.

TEC's data became available Monday.

In July 1977, only 40,870 persons were employed here. The July figure this year also was up from June, which posted only 44,700 employed persons.

The wage and salary employment "continued to reflect an overall growth in July with seasonal fluctuations in some areas," according to the TEC spokesman.

Manufacturing posted gains in July as a result of more new orders, said the spokesman. Nonmanufacturing

It was a day for all occasions and tastes

ODESSA — Fiddlers fiddled, politicians pontificated and lauded unions, and grown-ups listened, looked, ate, drank cool beer and ice tea and did some foot stomping.

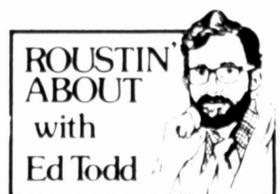

And youngsters played as kids do and overlooked most of the Labor Day goings-on in the park.

The occasion was the 22nd annual barbecue beer feed and soap box sermonizing by the Odessa Central Labor Union, AFL-CIO, and its Permian Basin affiliates.

Outside the playing kids, there was little stirring among the 500 or so union people, their families and guests. The only real "stirring" in the park was that of words.

Unions were praised.

"Labor is destined, in my opinion, to be a national hero," said an intense candidate, Sam Houston Clinton, who is plugging away for a seat on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

The outing was dominated by laborites and Democrats.

"Labor has always stood in the forefront of important social needs and changes," said Clinton, who congratulated the union loyalists for surviving amid adversity.

After his spiel, Clinton drew himself a draft of beer, sat on a weathered bench, chomped on a stogie and paid attention to speakers to follow.

Union President D. L. "Daily" Willis of Midland was emceeing the

Andrews man held in slaying

ANDREWS — An Andrews man was in jail here early today in connection with the shooting death of his wife Monday night, according to local authorities.

John Brooks, 35, was in Andrews County Jail in lieu of $50,000 bond after he was charged with murder by Peace Justice Jay Williams Monday night.

Crash survivors accuse terrorists of massacre

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo said today that his men shot down the airliner that crashed in northwest Rhodesia two nights ago but he denied survivors' reports that they murdered 10 of the 18 survivors.

Nkomo gave no details but told reporters in Lusaka, Zambia, his headquarters, that the Air Rhodesia plane was shot down shortly after it left Kariba, on the Zambian border, "because these planes flying to Kariba with civilians also carry troops and military supplies."

There had been speculation that the four-engine Viscount was hit by a ground-to-air missile after one of the survivors, Anthony Hill, 39, told reporters: "There was a tremendous explosion. Then flames started shooting past the window on the starboard wing."

Investigators were examining the wreckage at the crash site 35 miles southeast of Kariba, and a military communique said "a starboard engine appeared to have exploded, and the starboard external side of the plane was heavily scorched."

Guerrillas of Nkomo's Zimbabwe African People's Union operate in the area from bases in Zambia. In June 1977, they fired a missile at a private plane near the border, missed it and hit a hotel, causing heavy damage.

The airliner, with 56 people aboard, crashed Sunday night shortly after taking off for Salisbury from Kariba, a lake resort on the Zambian border. The 32 passengers included 42 white Rhodesians and South Africans, two white Scots and eight Asian Rhodesians who had been holidaying at the lake.

Hill told reporters at a hospital in Kariba the plane broke in two. The front portion burst into flames, and the survivors, all in the last five rows of seats, wormed their way out of the tail section.

Many were injured, but five were able to go for help.

Hans Hansen, 35, said about an hour after the crash nine guerrillas emerged from the bush.

"When they first approached us," Hansen reported, "they said they

Stopped for traffic, he admits 17 murders

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pennsylvania detectives arrived today to question a man who says he killed 17 persons in three states during the past two years. Ohio officers also wanted to talk to him, and police in Tennessee were searching for two bodies.

Stopped Monday in Nashville for driving with a broken taillight, Kenneth G. Taylor, 37, from the Youngstown, Ohio, area, blurted out a confession to the murder of a Nashville man, police said.

"Right now we have a man who says he did these kinds of things and we checked with various parts of the country and they say they've had these sorts of things happen," Detective Lieutenant Sherman Nickens of the Nashville police said today. "We can't prove it or disprove it at this point. We've got to have someone in here who knows about these cases."

Detective Sgt. Henry Rogers said that when two patrolmen stepped up to issue a routine traffic summons to Taylor, he told them: "I'm glad you stopped me. I just committed a murder."

Taylor was charged with murder, armed robbery and auto theft in connection with the slaying of David Willie, whose body was found in a downtown alley after officers followed Taylor's directions. The car Taylor drove was registered to Willie.

Officers said Taylor, who is unemployed, told them he had planned to go on a slaying spree in Nashville, then take his own life.

"We don't know if he's fantasizing all these murders or just what," Detective Bill Robeck said. "He's a very intelligent person. He's a little erratic in his conversation at times. But he's very aware of what he is saying. He said he had enough ammo to kill several more people in the Nashville area and he was going to kill himself."

Robeck said Taylor provided times and places for the purported murders but not specific dates or names.

He stated that he had been involved with a homicide in Bordman, Ohio, involving a husband and wife. This was earlier in the year," Robeck

Step up...if you get around to it

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Procrastinators across America are being urged to step out front today — if they get around to it, of course.

"Be Late For Something Day" is an annual affair sponsored by the Philadelphia-based Procrastinators Club.

"Procrastination, for some reason, is still something that is considered negative by a lot of people. I don't understand why," says Les Waas, club president since 1956 — "We haven't gotten around to our 1957 election yet."

"That's part of the reason for the day, to get people to realize that this is positive," Waas said in an interview. "They might decide they like the feel of it."

He said the club itself — "We have a half million members but only 3,300 have signed up so far" — isn't certain how to mark the day, maybe with a banquet.

"It's too early to say, it's not even here yet," he said. "There have been times when our banquets weren't planned until the same day. That way, the only day we worry about details is on the last day."

Not that Procrastinators Club

hoopla is small-time. Indeed, a New York representative took to the floor of Congress a few years ago to remind his colleagues:

"This is National Procrastinators Week. But I will put off my remarks on the subject until a later time."

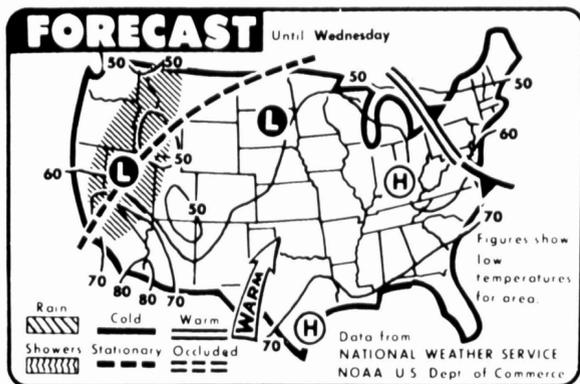

Waas said the idea of "Be-Late-For-Something-Day" is to highlight the insignificance of so many daily concerns. He likens it to when "you sweep your desk clean of all the papers and junk you have piled there and you realize you haven't really lost anything."

Some people say procrastinators are irresponsible types. Not at all, Waas insists.

"Some things just have to be done now. So procrastination allows you to do it now, because you have time to do it now," he said. "The art of procrastination is such that if you take a step back and look at the things to do, you see there are priorities."

"But at least on this one day," he said, "why not put off something until tomorrow for a change, as a creative release from the stresses and strains resulting from a consistent need to be on time?"

WEATHER SUMMARY

THE FORECAST through Wednesday includes rain for the Rocky Mountain states extending westward into California, according to the National Weather Service. (AP Laserphoto Map)

TODAY'S satellite cloud picture shows heavy cloud cover over the far western states. With the exceptions of clouds over central Texas, across Florida, and along the extreme northern tier of states from the upper Lakes to portions of New England, the majority of the country is clear. (AP Wirephoto)

Carter pledges to do 'the best we can' today

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Carter prepared a quiet welcome today for his partners in a Mideast summit conference, pressing for compromise but admitting the dangers in disagreement and making no predictions.

"We will do the best we can," Carter pledged, although he noted the differences between his guests — Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt — are deep.

Sadat was arriving first, being formally greeted at an air base near Washington by Vice President Walter Mondale and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance before proceeding by helicopter to this presidential hide-away.

Begin was not due at Camp David until late this afternoon, after getting a similar welcome by Mondale and Vance at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

Before leaving the White House Monday for Camp David, Carter said the summit comes at a time "when the political consequences of failure might be very severe and when the prospects for complete success are very remote."

Sadat sounded the same theme, saying before leaving for the summit, "Failure at Camp David means an endless conflict."

Carter prayed at a Baptist Sunday school session Sunday: "Let every heart involved be cleansed of selfishness and personal pride. Let us all turn to thee, God our father, for true guidance, wisdom, forgiveness of others in the search for common ground."

Issues long debated — and sometimes fought over — include Israeli occupation of land seized during the 1967 Mideast war and the fate of 1.1 million Palestinians living on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Having promised Sadat and Begin a secluded setting for private talks without a fixed time limit, the U.S. president said before boarding a helicopter for the 30-minute flight here: "Compromises will be mandatory. Without them no progress can be expected. Flexibility will be the essence of our hopes."

Carter studied summit briefing books at Camp David in advance of the arrival of his guests, and he played a round of tennis Monday afternoon. He brought along a trout rod but has yet to use it.

Mrs. Carter, who was campaigning for Democratic candidates in Texas on Monday, was expected to join her husband here by Tuesday evening. Mrs. Begin is expected Thursday, but Mrs. Sadat is remaining in Egypt.

Bill Haehnel uses a tin-can "telephone" to demonstrate the principle of mechanically-generated soundwaves. Haehnel, Southwestern Bell's science demonstrator, will be in Midland Wednesday to speak to the Westside Optimist Club.

event, and brought forth speakers.

"One was Dallas 'school marm' June Karp, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers, who said that textbooks ought to "tell the truth" and the full story about organized labor.

Traditional textbooks, if they say anything at all about labor unions, imply that "The labor union are bad, they kill people, and that was the end of it (the labor story)," she said.

"I am a school marm," she said, "and I don't want you people out there to turn me off just because I am a school teacher."

They must not have done that, for they seemed attentive and applauded.

Ms. Karp all but swore that teachers' union can be a great and noble thing.

"Teachers are supposed to be professionals, and they're not supposed to strike..." she said with more than a little tongue in cheek.

Teachers in Odessa and Andrews, and presumably elsewhere in the Permian Basin, ought to look to Midland for a lesson in teacher organizing, she said.

"The Midland Federation of Teachers are a gutsy bunch of teachers," she said.

She lauded the work of commoners.

"We're working for a living, and we're proud of it," she said.

Up in line was State Rep. Ben Reyes, who downgraded Republican U.S. Sen. John Tower and upheld his Democratic challenger, U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger.

And Bob Salas of Golden, Colo., admonished beer drinkers not to imbibe of Coors beers. He said the Coors brewery is an affront to "human rights and dignity."

"It's not an issue of wages but of human rights," said the leaflet-passing Salas, who said he doesn't like the idea of Coors requiring lie-detector tests of employees and doesn't approve of its "police state"-like security system.

But all the issues and haranguing soon faded into background, seemingly forgotten and folks lined up for barbecue and beer. And the fiddlers fiddled.

Complaint filed against FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman who was one of the FBI's first female agents has filed a complaint accusing the bureau of sexual discrimination, government officials said Tuesday.

The complaint was filed more than a year ago by Christine Hansen, who quit the FBI after being transferred from Washington to Phoenix, Ariz., last year.

by Andrews Police officers in the fatal shotgun shooting of Elizabeth W. "Sally" Brooks, 32, also of Andrews.

Police officers said the woman had been staying in Midland. Authorities said the couple was married, but was separated at the time of the shooting.

Brooks was arrested by Patrolman Don Culp shortly after 8:15 p.m. at the intersection of Northeast Avenue K and Northeast Fifth Street here, said Lt. Doug Gaines.

The victim suffered a 20-gauge shotgun blast to the head shortly after 8 p.m. She was pronounced dead at the scene, said officers. Both Andrews County and Andrews city law enforcement officers were called to the location.

Police said the shooting took place in the intersection during an argument between a man and a woman.

Witnesses told police the man involved knocked the woman down and then shot her, according to authorities.

Bell innovations subject of Optimist Club meeting

An idea of Alexander Graham Bell's is being furthered by the Bell System to develop more sophisticated equipment today.

Bill Haehnel, Southwestern Bell's science demonstrator for three years, will be showing new Bell innovations to the Westside Optimist Club when it meets at noon Wednesday in the Granada Club.

His new show is entitled, "Through the Looking Glass — Lightly." Haehnel expects to take it more than 300 miles and present it to more than 300 groups in Texas.

"More than 2,500 changes have been made in the basic telephone over the past 25 years," Haehnel said.

"In fact, virtually every component has been changed in the past six years to increase efficiency and fidelity as soundwaves are converted to electrical waves and reconverted into the sound of a voice."

The Bell System handles 500 million calls a day, he said. It should be doubled in 10 years to a billion calls. This is why new technology is being developed to handle those calls without investing huge additional sums of money in new equipment, the demonstrator said.

Using a century-old device invented by Alexander Graham Bell, Haehnel will demonstrate the practicality of converting soundwaves into electrical waves and transmitting them over lightwaves.

The device is called a "photophone," but never saw the light of day. "Mr. Bell based his photophone on sunlight — using a nonmetallic element called selenium — and he actually transmitted soundwaves through the refracted light across a room. That was in 1880," Haehnel said.

He explained the selenium device and modern-day solar cells developed by Bell Labs have almost infinite telecommunications capabilities.

Guerrillas down plane

Were going to give us water and help. Then when they gathered us together, they said, 'You have taken our land! We are going to kill you!' and they started shooting."

He said the guerrillas killed seven women, two children and a man and bayoneted one of the women after they shot her.

The bullets missed Hansen, his wife, Diana, and Hill. They escaped into the undergrowth and hid through the night. Rescue teams found them and the five who had gone for aid, a total of eight survivors from the crash and the massacre.

The government said the guerrillas looted the wreckage and the bodies. Its troops and planes launched a "seek-and-destroy" operation for the killers.

Fall seemingly arrives early

Fall appears to have arrived a little early for the Permian Basin with high temperatures expected to continue in the 80s, but no one seems to be complaining about the relief from August's scorching days.

The weatherman said the high Wednesday should be in the middle 80s with the low tonight to drop to the middle 60s. High Monday was 81 degrees with the overnight low this morning 64 degrees, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

A chance for showers persists tonight, with the weather service listing the probability for rain at 20 percent.

The weather service recorded .05 inch of rain Monday, bringing the year's total over the eight inch mark to 8.06. The area has received 77 inch this month to date.

Area towns reported cool temperatures and clear to overcast skies today.

Work force up, growth reflected also rose with advances in mining, transportation and finance.

Wholesale and retail trade and the service areas declined as a result of the "summer doldrums," the spokesman said. Construction also dipped slightly in July, according to TEC records.

The spokesman reported skilled and experienced workers continue to be in short supply in the Midland area. The Midland TEC office helped to fill 828 jobs of 1,003 job openings for a "jobs filled" rate of 82.6 percent.

The TEC official said hard-to-fill openings exist for bookkeepers, lathe operators, most construction trades, nurses, clerk-typists, secretaries, stenographers, truck drivers, mechanics and restaurant personnel.

Ford to speak at luncheon

BIG SPRING — Former President Gerald Ford will speak at a luncheon in Big Spring Sept. 13.

Ford is scheduled to arrive at 11:45 a.m. and be greeted by local dignitaries and the Big Spring High School band. After a motorcade to the Dora Roberts Community Center, the former president is scheduled to visit with the host committee before speaking to a $3 a plate luncheon at the center.

Tickets to the luncheon are available at KBST Radio Station in Big Spring. Attendance will be limited to 300.

Ford is campaigning for Republican candidates. During his Big Spring visit, he will speak on behalf of Bill Fisher, Republican nominee for the 17th Congressional District seat being vacated by retiring U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson. Fisher is opposed by Democrat Charles Stenholm.

Hillcrest Manor topic of meeting

Items concerning Hillcrest Manor should be considered when the Housing Authority of Midland meets at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the council chambers at City Hall.

The board should review the status of corrective actions being taken by the builder on items listed in the architect's letter and consider approving the list of repair and other charges to be made when appropriate to the residents at Hillcrest Manor.

Also on the agenda is a request to consider an exception to the "no pets" rule at Hillcrest Manor.

Another council member is expected to give a report on the status of the home rehabilitation program being carried out through the Midland Commission for Local Community Development.

Fire damage delays Ozona school opening by one week

OZONA — While most school students in West Texas have started to school, students in this town are getting a delay of one week.

Not until Monday will the 280 students in the Crockett County Consolidated Common School District pick up textbooks for the first time.

A fire in August "totally destroyed" one of the school buildings and is the reason behind the delay, said Supt. Foy Moody.

"The building is a total loss as far as we are concerned."

Cause of the fire was listed officially by the state fire marshal as "undetermined," Moody said.

The burned building was going to house the kindergarten, first and second grades, he said.

When school opens next week, the second graders will be going to the Methodist Church while the kindergartners and first graders will go to the Baptist Church.

While the churches will alleviate the housing problem for a while, Moody said, the school has purchased four portable classroom buildings to be moved onto the primary campus in about six weeks. Moody said the buildings are coming from the Greenwood School District.

The burned building had been in the process of renovation and all records and most of the school furniture were out of the building at the time of the fire, Moody said.

All textbooks were destroyed by fire or water damage, and about $15,000 in audio visual equipment was lost, said Moody.

Man admits to 17 murders

Two officers from Ohio's Beaver Township near North Lima planned to question Taylor today in connection with the slaying last year of David Hamilton, 28, police said. Hamilton's wife, Linda, 28, has been missing since her husband was killed.

New Brighton, Pa., Police Chief Phillip Rini said he and B.W. Cashdollar, head of a Beaver County task force helping investigate a rash of murders in southwestern Pennsylvania, would also interview Taylor today.

Rini said Cashdollar wanted to investigate whether Taylor was involved in more than a dozen unsolved murders committed in Beaver and Allegheny counties in the past year.

In each of four cases in Beaver County from September 1977 to January 1978, husbands were killed by shotgun blasts and their wives were beaten to death or are missing.

First lady campaigns for troubled Democrats

HOUSTON (AP)— Rosalynn Carter, in an effort to boost the hopes of Democratic congressional candidates in a state that frowns on her husband's energy policies, made a Labor Day tour of Texas' three largest cities Monday.

She stumped in U.S. House districts where Democrats are in trouble and called on voters to support Rep. Bob Krueger, who is attempting to unseat Republican Sen. John Tower in the November general election.

The first lady began her campaign in San Antonio, then moved to the Dallas area, where Republicans generally run strong, and then to Houston, a traditional GOP stronghold and the heart of the state's major oil and gas industry.

Following the same thought from place to place across Texas, Mrs. Carter said, "We need to return Democrats to Congress. We need the type of congressman who knows your need and will let us know what you need."

"We need leadership in Washington to meet the controversial issues ahead. And, Jimmy needs your prayers," she said.

About 3,000 persons greeted her at a Democratic Funfest at a Houston beer garden, where a country and western band strummed some Texas foot-stomping music, such as "Whiskey River" and "Hell yes, I'm Cheating."

Later she shook hands with most of the 250 persons at a reception on the campus of Rice University and then appeared at a rally of an estimated 1,000 campaign workers of Rep. Bob Gammage, D-Texas, on a parking lot in front of the Gammage headquarters.

Here, as in Dallas earlier, Mrs. Carter was met by several sign-waving, anti-abortion demonstrators. Some chanted, "Praise the pope."

Other posters protested the appointment of Sarah Weddington of Texas as the presidential advisor on women's affairs. Ms. Weddington argued before the U.S. Supreme Court for a woman's right to abortion.

Earlier, in the Dallas suburb of Garland, Mrs. Carter rode and walked in a two-mile long Labor Day parade in hot, sticky weather. More than 100,000 spectators lined the town's streets. The first lady was accompanied by Krueger and Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Texas, a first term congressman who also is facing a tough re-election battle.

In San Antonio, the first lady was confronted by about 100 jeering demonstrators protesting the firings in July of striking city garbage men. More than 80 garbage collectors remain off the job.

While in San Antonio she said, "Jimmy Carter is a fighter. He doesn't give up and he doesn't give in when the interests of our people are at stake." In Houston she said President Carter had cut the unemployment rate and trimmed the national budget deficit.

Mrs. Carter's visit in San Antonio was also on behalf of congressional candidate Nelson Wolff.

Earlier, former Texas Gov. John Connally had held a barbecue for Tom Loeffler, the Republican candidate.

And, in Houston, one week after Mrs. Carter's visit, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan will appear in behalf of Gammage's GOP opponent—Dr. Ron Paul.

Overpaid workers burden to defense

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Pentagon overpays workers by $900 million a year, says a Brookings Institution study. It warns the waste must be cut for America to keep military pace with the Soviet Union "without unnecessarily increasing the financial burden of defense."

"If reform is not undertaken, the nation will continue to spend more than is necessary for defense," said the report, written by a three-man team headed by Martin Binkin, a Brookings senior fellow.

The Pentagon had no immediate comment on the report.

The study criticized the "steady enrichment" of the Pentagon's white-collar civilian employees and what it called overpayment of blue-collar defense workers.

It also contended that about 377,000 jobs now filled by military personnel could be handled by civilians, including private contractor personnel, to save additional money "without jeopardizing national security."

The Brookings Institution is an independent, non-partisan research organization whose studies have been influential in shaping government policies.

About 55 percent of the Carter administration's proposed $126 billion defense budget for next year is designated for personnel costs, mostly pay and upkeep.

The study said the present manpower mix of about 2 million military and 1.1 million civilian employees of the Defense Department is not cost-effective and, if present trends continue, "is likely to become less so."

White-collar civil service employees include clerical workers and professional specialists.

The report also said "quirks in the formula now used to calculate pay increases for federal blue-collar workers have caused the pay of many ... to exceed the levels required to maintain comparability" with similar workers in private industry.

Blue-collar defense jobs range from custodial chores to aircraft mechanics.

The report said the military services keep more bases in operation than they need, "owing to political pressures," but it added that "preoccupation with base closure issues has diverted attention from potentially larger, and politically more feasible, savings that might result from operating bases more efficiently."

Klansmen march unharmed by civil rights demonstration

TUPELO, Miss. (AP)— A civil rights leader who admonished marchers to allow Ku Klux Klansmen to pass through their ranks unharmed says protests of alleged discrimination will continue in this racially tense town.

Alfred "Skip" Robinson, president of the United League of Mississippi, told some 500 members and supporters to allow marching Klansmen to pass without incident Monday. Klansmen filed silently past the civil rights marchers' traditional meeting ground prior to rallies — the black Springhill Baptist Church.

The Klansmen were met with jeers and taunts, but the confrontation ended without other incidents. The group of some 75 Klansmen, about half of whom were robed but not masked, altered its route through the downtown section to travel the street in front of the church.

"We will continue to demonstrate our grievances until we reach the concerns of black and white people throughout America," Robinson told supporters later, after the league rallied on the steps of the Lee County Courthouse. "We will march not only in Tupelo, not only in Mississippi, but all over the world."

The league has led a series of marches during the past six months and sponsored an economic boycott of white-owned businesses to press demands for an end to alleged police brutality and more minority hiring in the city.

In response, Klansmen have mounted an intermittent campaign of their own which leaders say is intended to demonstrate sympathy for white Tupelo residents.

"Ku Klux Klan, slum of the land," taunted members of the crowd gathered at the church, as Klansmen silently wove their way among them. Several hundred of the league supporters blocked the street as the Klansmen passed.

Bill Wilkinson, Imperial Wizard of a Denham Springs, La., Klavern, was dressed in a light gray suit as he strode between two robed Klansmen at the head of the procession.

After the Klansmen disappeared, the league began its march through the downtown section to the courthouse.

The problem remains

A year ago the House of Representatives passed a foreign aid bill providing that no U.S. funds be channeled through International lending agencies to Vietnam, Cuba and five other countries at the low end of the scale in granting fundamental human rights to their people.

After a long struggle with Congress, President Carter got the provision removed, even though he has made the championing of human rights a keynote of his foreign policy.

He promised instead that the United States would campaign and vote against loans to such countries as a member of the World Bank and other agencies dispensing multilateral foreign aid.

Now the President faces the same problem. The House just sent the Senate a $7.1 billion foreign aid appropriation for the coming year with the same kind of strings attached. The administration is arguing again that this undermines the entire scheme of pooling funds from the richer countries to aid in the economic development of the poorer ones.

The administration perhaps is right in this instance, but it may find Congress harder to convince this year. Just recently the World Bank approved a $60 million interest-free loan to Vietnam. The U.S. representative on its board, fulfilling Mr. Carter's promise, cast a dissenting vote, but that didn't help. In all, agencies in which the United States participates have approved $114 million in loans to Communist Vietnam in the last three years, mainly for irrigation projects to help the country attain self-sufficiency in rice production.

No doubt it is galling to many Americans to see their tax dollars go to Vietnam even after our government, quite rightly, has rejected the idea that we owe Hanoi any "reparations" or direct reconstruction aid. But the issue now before the Senate is not the U.S. policy toward Vietnam but our policy toward those international institutions whose existence this nation fostered in an effort to get more nations into the act of supplying the developing world with economic aid.

Uncle Sam was once the sugar daddy of foreign aid, but no longer. Today, it is said that for every dollar we put into the international banks, other countries put in three. Japan recently committed itself to doubling its contributions. Increasing amounts are coming from the oil-exporting countries. Moreover, the U.S. Treasury reports that for every dollar we have contributed in the last five years, $2.50 has been spent in this country for procurement of goods and services for projects financed by the banks.

The increasing commitment of the industrialized nations to foreign aid is based on the same principles which have made it part of U.S. foreign policy for 30 years — a combination of humanitarian concern and plain self-interest. The poorer countries often are suppliers of raw materials we need, and the more their economies can be developed, the more they will provide markets for our exports.

International banks are multiplying the amount of aid available to the developing world and coordinating its delivery, but there is a price to be paid.

The United States can try to influence the decisions of such agencies, but it cannot control them.

The House cut $1.3 billion from President Carter's original proposal for foreign aid, and the reductions can be justified by the squeeze on our deficit-ridden federal budget.

What cannot be justified is the attempt to attach political conditions to money going into international banks whose charters prevent any nation from dictating how its funds are to be used.

And therein lies the problem. What the Senate will do with it remains to be seen.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Nicaragua's wealthiest family

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Three years ago, we nominated Nicaragua's embattled Anastasio Somoza as "the world's greediest ruler." We concluded from the available evidence that he was the most grasping of the world's great grabbers.

We described the Somoza family's extensive fortune in "farms, factories, banks, newspapers, radio-TV stations, ships, planes and you-name-it." Their real estate portfolio, we revealed, includes "coffee, cacao, tobacco, banana, sugar cane and pineapple plantations; corn, bean, rice, sorghum, sesame; fruit and vegetable farms; and vast grazing land for cattle."

Our information came from Nicaragua documents, which we cross-checked against U.S. studies. We had access, we wrote, to secret economic profiles of Somoza, which had been compiled by the U.S. government.

Our articles created an international furor, which still hasn't died down. Somoza's emboldened critics still cite our columns as they demonstrate against him in Managua.

We worked closely with the brave journalist Pedro Chamorro, who was gunned down on Jan. 10 for daring to criticize Somoza. Chamorro's assassination precipitated the first serious challenge to the family dictatorship since the U.S. Marines installed his father in power in 1937.

Somoza was furious over our economic expose. He sent word to us through intermediaries that we were picking on his family and thus were "going" too far. "His minions in this country began to raise a howl over the articles."

Leading the protest was his farcical ambassador and brother-in-law, Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa, who dispatched a five-page denunciation to our editors. Our charges were largely a "litany of distortions," he said.

He was most upset that the U.S. government was keeping economic profiles on Somoza. This "curious statement," he wrote, "could be an issue of potential concern to other foreign missions in Washington and elsewhere."

The State Department felt compelled to issue an equivocation. "Neither the Department of State nor any other agency of the United States government," a spokesman assured the Nicaraguan ambassador, "provided official documents or any classified information" to us.

We are now free to quote from the classified documents that we could only cite three years ago. A Sept. 1973 airgram from the U.S. embassy in Managua, for example, described the Somoza family as "the wealthiest in the country and perhaps Central America."

Estimates of their wealth, states the confidential document, "range from thirty million to several hundred million dollars." The report continues:

"Family investments in Nicaragua ... include major holdings in agriculture, manufacturing, fishing, food processing, transportation, communications, retailing, banking, insurance and real estate. Most recently, General Anastasio Somoza ... has formed a joint-venture construction company with U.S. investor, D.K. Ludwig."

A 1967 document, stamped "Confidential," suggested that "President Somoza's great influence has been used in a heavy-handed way to advance his own business interest in the mining field."

But perhaps most interesting is a 17-page confidential airgram from the U.S. embassy dated Aug. 10, 1963. Although the document is laden with qualifiers and its information is now 15 years old, it is extraordinarily revealing.

"The Somozas own, control or have a voice in a wide variety of economic assets within Nicaragua," the document reveals "the value of which the embassy estimates to be approximately $38,810,929." They also have an undetermined quantity of assets abroad, estimated to be worth between $15 (million) and $20 million. All these figures," the embassy added, "are deliberately conservative."

THE CARTER STYLE:

Weak drinks, store-bought sandwiches on river trip

By GRACE-MARIE ARNETT Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Congressional aides snickered a bit, but admitted the White House should get at least an "E" for effort.

White House lobbyists, in their own inimitable way, decided to organize a little soiree in hopes of loosening up relations between Congress and the Administration.

But, as with most White House endeavors these days, a bit of style was missing in the affair. President Carter's chief lobbyist, Frank Moore, invited six Democratic congressmen to get away from the heat, telephones and roll-call bells by joining him for drinks and supper on a little trip down the Potomac River.

In the old days, that little invitation would have meant an elegant five-course meal with fine wines served by white-gloved stewards aboard the presidential yacht Sequoia.

But the folks from Georgia weren't comfortable with that kind of elegance, and Mr. Carter sold the Sequoia soon after he was inaugurated in one of his first public relations moves to bolster his image as a no-nonsense, no-frills chief executive.

(The Sequoia is now privately owned, based in North Carolina, and tours various U.S. ports as a tourist attraction.) A few members of Congress admonished Mr. Carter for the sale, arguing the Sequoia had been one of the most effective lobbying devices the White House had.

"Pour a few drinks and serve a nice dinner on a pleasant little trip down the river and you'd wind up with a few more votes for the president's legislation," one former White House aide said.

Frank Moore is discovering there might actually be some truth to that. But since his boss has sold the Sequoia down the river, he decided to try to borrow a boat and called up the Navy to see what was available.

They came up with the admiral's barge. "It's a rather tacky wee thing," one observer noted, but better than nothing.

Then Moore put in a few calls, inviting congressmen to join him. Dante Fascell (Fla.), Leon Panetta (Calif.), Butler Derrick (S.C.), Charles Rose (N.C.), Robert Carr (Mich.) and Albert Gore (Tenn.) accepted and met Moore at the dock after the session.

The fare? Weak drinks and cellophane-wrapped sandwiches. "It certainly wasn't like the Sequoia," said 12-term veteran Fascell.

Panetta and Rose never had attended a Sequoia soiree so they couldn't compare. But because the White House has trampled so many of the social niceties formerly enjoyed among the political set here, it seems almost anything — even cellophane-wrapped sandwiches — was better than nothing.

And Moore didn't discuss business, either, although Panetta noted that all of the members present were involved with the civil service reform legislation which is given a high priority by President Carter.

Moore also seems to be catching on to the way to a congressman's heart — or vote — by remembering the little things, like birthdays.

As it happens, the barge trip fell on Rep. Rose's 39th and was properly celebrated with cake and candles.

"I thought they had invited all of us out to celebrate my birthday since my wife and kids were away," Rose said.

It will suit Frank Moore just fine if Rose continues to think just that. But as for his efforts to bring back the Sequoia by chartering a barge, Rep. Gore believes the folks from Georgia have a lot to learn.

"I didn't think much of their cellophane sandwiches," he said. It's hard to tell whether the problem here is with style or substance.

The Department of Energy is having trouble persuading states to volunteer as dumping grounds for nuclear wastes. You'd think they'd fight for the honor to be the first state to glow in the dark.

Some incentive is needed. How about a Marcus Hook, N.J., smell-alike contest?

One state not too thrilled about being selected as a waste burial site is New Mexico. The Chamber of Commerce there should jump at the chance for a little publicity — "Welcome to New Mexico—a balloon in every garage and an atomic bomb in every basement."

We'll always have those nervous nellys to stand in the way of progress. Thank goodness Madame Curie went out and discovered radiation instead of staying home barefoot and pregnant.

INSIDE REPORT:

President Carter's veto motives arouse suspicions

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — There is substantial evidence that in his daring veto of the defense bill, President Carter was guided chiefly by a desire to reestablish his presidential virility rather than by fervent opposition to a costly, fifth nuclear aircraft carrier.

"The president was looking for a peg to hang his veto on," one usually pro-Carter Democrat on the House Armed Services Committee told us. "The carrier was his best bet."

By asserting presidential mastery and muscling Congress to sustain his veto, Mr. Carter is following public relations adviser Gerald Rafter's get-tough formula. But in getting tough, he has risked losing major defense items obtained as trade-offs for the carrier in the intricate congressional log-rolling process.

None of the president's military advisers, uniformed or civilian, recommended the veto. There was mirthless laughter in the Pentagon when Mr. Carter told his press conference that he had "not had a single adviser who told me that we ought to go ahead with the nuclear aircraft carrier."

By law, the president's "principal naval adviser" is the chief of naval operations. Both the present chief, Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, and Adm. James L. Holloway III, replaced by Hayward July 1, have been strong proponents of the nuclear carrier.

Apart from the president himself, the moving force behind the veto was White House political adviser

Hamilton Jordan, along with Rafter — not Secretary of Defense Harold Brown.

That came out in Brown's private talks with congressional military specialists, sounding out sentiment before the veto. The defense secretary made clear he had not proposed such drastic action, but that Mr. Carter seemed determined on it.

Talking to one friendly congressman, Brown showed this was politics, not defense. He speculated whether the best way to defend the veto would be opposition to the nuclear carrier or opposition to cuts in research and development and in readiness funds. As it turned out, Mr. Carter used both arguments, emphasizing the carrier.

Politics showed itself when one congressman warned Rafter the veto might make the president look anti-defense. Rafter's answer revealed how clearly the political tactics had been developed: don't worry; the president can deal with that in the veto message. Deal with it he did by calling Congress anti-defense.

Ignored by Rafter and Jordan was the effect of the veto on the delicate log-rolling needed to produce a defense bill. Although the veto probably will be sustained, writing a new defense bill will be no easy task.

A case in point is liberal Democratic Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, an Armed Services Committee member highly skeptical of big nuclear carriers. Hart agreed in a trade-off with conservative Republican Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina to support the nuclear carriers in return for Helms' backing of a new generation of small carriers favored by Hart.

One day after the veto, Hart wrote all senators urging an override of the veto with this argument: "The Congress produced a carefully drafted, logical and progressive conceptual approach to the question of the future of the carrier. The veto destroys this achievement and puts us back on the treadmill of the carrier question — with no solution in sight."

Routine trade-offs, spun into a seamless web, are at the heart of the congressional defense-budget process. That explains why vetoing a major defense bill is so rare that it has not been tried in this century. In his dramatic effort to show himself a commander-in-chief who truly commands, the president ignored this record for the gamble of large political gain.

For now, however, the president is less concerned with putting the defense bill back together than with mobilizing public opinion behind his argument that he, not Congress, is the staunch fighter for national defense. That was the message Aug. 23 when 200 prominent businessmen were summoned to the White House for enlistment in the anti-carrier crusade led by Vice President Walter Mondale.

Results were mixed. One executive was puzzled that the White House expected him to accept Mondale's word on faith against that of Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, veteran chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. "They're crazy if they think I'm going to tell Sen. Stennis he's wrong," the executive told us.

No such national campaign was started against the carrier until after the defense bill was sent to the Oval Office. That only reinforces suspicions about the president's veto motives.

Root for the 'Express' against Snyder High

By CINDY CANFIELD, JULIE OSCHNER & ROBIN BENNETT

Hi Rebs. Hope you had a really great Labor Day Weekend! Again this week we are only going to have four school days! Isn't that great? Our Mighty Maroon Platoon mangled, mangled and mutilated those Andrews Mustangs last Friday in Andrews! If you missed the scrimmage you missed a great preview of what our Rebel men will be showing us this Fall. Our great Rebel team will be giving us a hometown performance this coming Friday against those timid Tigers from Snyder. The game will kickoff at 8 p.m. so everyone come out and support our Rebel Express!

We would like for all parents to come to the Booster Club meetings on Tuesday nights in the cafeteria. We need ALL parents to actively support all Sports! That's at 7:30 in our LHS cafeteria.

Attention: Rebelettes! All football lockers need to be done by Thursday morning. You can get your football player's locker combination Tuesday in Rooms 401 or 475 before school or between classes. If you don't have a football player or volleyball player and want one, go by either of these rooms and get one! There will be squad meetings Wednesday morning at 7:30. We will have our first Pep Rally Friday morning at 8 so everyone come out and show that Rebel Spirit! Everybody be at the football game Friday night by 7:30.

Our fabulous Rebel Volleyballers will have their first game against Kermit Thursday there. They will also be playing Monahans in the Rebel Gym Saturday: Varsity - 8 p.m. J.V. - 7.

We welcome our foreign exchange students to Midland - and especially to Reband! They are Wolfgang Bergter from Bremen, Germany, and Anija Lotzkat from Frankfurt, Germany. We want everyone to make them feel at home. We are glad to have you!

Comments from B.C.: Congratulations to the new officers of the "100 Club": Dayna Dixon, president; Lisa Igon, vice president, and Debra Foster, Karen Moseley, Pat Lutke and Debbie McCarty, secretaries.

To all Sophomores: You can still join the "100 Club" even though you missed the initial meeting. Friday Night - The Dixie Disco will be in action again, right after the football action. From 10:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. there will be a Victory Dance (thanks again to the Grapevine) in the Youth Center. Admission is 50 cents with your Y.C. Card or $2 without a card. You might as well buy your card this week CAUSE you're gonna need one Monday, Sept. 11 to get into the Y.C.

REMEMBER: Set-up AND CLEAN-UP for Y.C. dances is the SOLE RESPONSIBILITY of the Junior Council. Help is asked of the "100 Club" only, but they do help for points.

To those who fancy themselves as "good disc jockeys," you will have an opportunity to exhibit your ability. If you are interested in being a D.J. for one of our dances (or part of the time), let me know and you will have your chance.

Til Next Time C.C. J.O. R.B.

P.S. Any Rebelettes wanting to sell more popcorn should talk to one of the officers.

P.P.S. Good luck to the Bulldogs in their upcoming game with Amarillo Tascosa. Go Bulldogs! Beat the Rebels (Tascosa Rebels, that is!)

FAST DRAW competitor Bill Crites of Oklahoma City, left, grimaces as he and an unidentified cowboy, obscured by gunsmoke, blaze away during the preliminaries of the South Texas Fast Draw Championships held over the Labor Day weekend in Houston.

Death and fear spoil Labor Day for many

By The Associated Press

Death and fear were unwelcome visitors at Labor Day festivities in two states, as the nation marked the traditional end of summer with a long weekend of parades, picnics and hours at the beach.

Seven people died and 19 others were injured in Derry, Pa., when a helicopter plunged into a concession stand at a church festival after swooping low to drop pingpong balls bearing prize numbers.

The whirling helicopter blades left a scene of blood and severed bodies in the parking lot of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

All three occupants of the helicopter survived: pilot Pam Nelson; church janitor Leo Allison; and Allison's daughter, Mary Beth, 12.

But on the ground, Mary Allison, the janitor's wife and Mary Beth's mother, was in the helicopter's path. She died later at a hospital.

In Maine, crowded beaches along the southern shore were cleared of sun-worshippers after the Coast Guard and state police issued an alert for a 60-foot tidal wave. The crowds returned after the wave failed to materialize, but the report caused what a state police dispatcher called "mass panic in the streets."

The Coast Guard issued the alert after the wave was reported by occupants of a private boat about 14 miles offshore.

Reported highway deaths equaled the National Safety Council estimate of 470-to-570 for the four-day weekend, reaching 494 Monday night.

Labor Day weather was generally seasonal across the nation, with scattered showers reported in the West. Hurricane Ella, packing winds of 140 mph, sped northward and was expected to strike Newfoundland today.

Murder trial of two diamond cutters delayed for two days

NEW YORK (AP) — The start of the murder trial of two diamond cutters in the bizarre slaying of diamond broker Pinchos Jaroslawicz was postponed today at the request of the district attorney's office.

Justice Aloysius Melia granted the request when informed that there had been a death in the family of Peter Stevens, the assistant district attorney who is handling the case.

The trial's start was rescheduled for Thursday.

Jaroslawicz's body had been found stuffed in an air-conditioning carton a year ago. The search for his killers spread as far as Sar Juan, Puerto Rico. The murder shook Manhattan's tight-knit diamond district, a place where gems worth millions of dollars often are exchanged with just a handshake.

Jaroslawicz, 25, a reed-thin diamond broker, disappeared last Sept. 20 with up to $1 million in gems he held on consignment. The jewels have not been found.

About to stand trial for his murder are Pinhas "Pini" Balabin, 30, and bearded Shlomo Tal, 32, diamond cutters and business associates of Jaroslawicz. The broker's body was found concealed in Tal's West 47th Street workroom nine days after his disappearance.

The secretiveness of the midtown diamond center dominated by Orthodox Jews was emphasized by Balabin's lawyer, Abraham Brodsky, who said: "Nobody wants to tell us anything, even if we find them. Nobody knows anything. It's impossible."

Agreeing was Peter Stevens, an assistant district attorney, who said: "People on the street are extremely afraid. They don't want to get involved. They don't want to speak to anybody, including my office."

American businessman stands trial on speculation charges

MOSCOW (AP) — American businessman Francis J. Crawford went on trial today on Soviet charges of currency speculation. Sources close to the case said the Soviet government was eager to get the trial over with quickly and swap Crawford for two Soviet U.N. employees accused of spying in the United States.

American oil magnate Armand Hammer, after a recent meeting with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, said he believed Crawford would get a light sentence and then be allowed to leave the country. Other sources said this was a "good analysis" of the situation.

Crawford, the Moscow representative of International Harvester, was arrested June 12, apparently in retaliation for the arrest of the two alleged Soviet spies.

Governor Dolph Briscoe has proclaimed Sept. 12 Library Town Hall Meeting Day in Texas. In his proclamation, he calls upon all Texans to participate in their local town hall meetings and reminds them that public, school, academic and special libraries are convenient sources of reliable information.

Midland will answer the Governor's call with a town hall meeting Sept. 12. This meeting will give all interested citizens an opportunity to tell librarians and government officials about their information needs and how libraries might meet these needs.

The Midland meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in Midland College's LBJ Forum Room in the Learning Resource Center.

Gerald W. Hickman, coordinator of the local meeting, says, "As citizens of a free society, a society which depends on the maintenance of its freedoms for being informed, can we neglect giving a small portion of time from our busy schedules to consider the future of information services in our community, state and nation?"

Reports from the local meetings around the state will be considered by the 200 delegates to the Texas Conference on Library and Information Services planned for Nov. 16-18 in Austin.

A White House conference will be held Oct. 28-Nov. 2, 1979.

For more information, contact local public, school or academic library, or write the Texas Conference on Library and Information Services, Box 12927-Capitol Station, Austin, 78711.

CPA WIVES report a notice of their membership coffee published in the Sunday edition of The Reporter-Telegram was in error. The event will be held from 10 a.m. to noon Wednesday, not Thursday, in the home of Mrs. Don Kidwell 2305 Metz Place. All prospective members are invited to attend.

FOR THE SECOND TIME, Park Center YMCA will offer a course in Nurses Aide. It will begin Sept. 26 and will be held every Tuesday and Thursday for eight weeks from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at Park Center.

Cost of the program is $30, which includes books and a certificate of accomplishment at the end of the course, limited to the first 25 to register.

Additional information can be obtained from Carolyn Kendrick at 682-0533.

TOM ANSON, a second-year student at the University of Texas School of Law at Austin, has been named to the Law Review. This is the highest honor awarded a law student at the conclusion of his first year.

Tom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Anson of Midland.

REGISTRATION for the first series of fall classes at the Midland Central YMCA will take place today through Friday.

Classes will begin Sept. 11, continuing through the first week of October.

Among classes for which registration will be under way next week are instructional classes in swimming and gymnastics for youths. Parents may register their children at the Y office, 800 N. Big Spring St., or by telephoning the office at 682-2551 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

Adult programming will continue throughout the fall months with activities planned to develop physical fitness and sports skills. The Central YMCA facility includes swimming pool, gymnasium, weight room, handball and racquetball courts, an outdoor running track, paddle tennis court and women's and men's health clubs. The Y also offers special meeting rooms and activity areas.

SHOPPERS' LUNCHEON, sponsored by the Midland Woman's Club, will begin serving its first meal of the new club year, Friday in its Hogan Park clubhouse.

The men of Midland are especially encouraged to come and bring their office force to eat the always enjoyable meals.

It is stressed the entire community is welcome to participate in the luncheons, held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. every Friday.

Women bankers bring success

NEW YORK (AP)—Since the four Westchester offices of Barclays Bank of New York have been staffed entirely by women, business in those offices has doubled, reports John Whicker, president of the bank.

"Since our staff has been all female," says Sandra Ross, manager of the bank's office in Yorktown Heights, "turnover of personnel has been reduced dramatically, absenteeism has been curtailed and morale in terms of upward mobility opportunities has been greatly reinforced."

DEAR ABBY

Guess who gets stuck?

By ABIGAIL VANBUREN

DEAR ABBY: It's obvious that you were never a waitress or you never would have given MIFFED IN MASS' the answer you did. (MIFFED asked for separate checks and was told it wasn't the policy of the restaurant. And you said, "Complain to the management, and if that doesn't help, next time take your business elsewhere.")

Abby, you have no idea how much time it takes to write up eight different checks and to collect from eight different people!

Also, when the chef gets eight separate orders, he thinks they're all singles and it creates confusion in the kitchen.

Please be fair and tell both sides of the story.—BETTY IN K.C.

DEAR BETTY: OK, color me "fair." I received a good number of complaints about my answer. Here's another:

DEAR ABBY: Please don't start crusading for separate checks! I'm a waiter, and I can tell you that when a group of people come in together during the rush hour and demand separate checks, it's easy for one or two to walk out without paying. It happens often, and guess who gets stuck?—TONY IN JERSEY

DEAR TONY: What you say makes sense. I surrender, dear.

DEAR ABBY: My sister brought her 5-year-old daughter to spend a few weeks with us this summer. We have a 7-year-old son who is an only child.

The youngsters spent a lot of time together and were very compatible. One afternoon they were exceptionally quiet, so I went to check on them. I was horrified to find them in the bedroom playing "doctor."

I won't go into detail here, but the little girl was the "patient" and my son was the "doctor," and he was "examining" her, if you know what I mean.

How would you have handled this situation? My sister and I don't agree.—FULLERTON, CALIF.

DEAR FULLERTON: I would have kept my cool and not made a big deal out of it. All kids are naturally curious about the bodies of the opposite sex, and "playing doctor" is one way to satisfy that curiosity. It's not serious—as long as they don't "operate."

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the 17-year-old who doesn't clean his room: You were right—up to a point! Yes, close his door, but DON'T "go in and rake it once a week." It's HIS room, HIS mess and HIS responsibility.

If Mom always cleans up his messes, he'll grow up to be one more male who is convinced that if he doesn't clean up after himself, there will always be a woman to do it for him. First it's Mom, then it's his wife.

If he becomes messy enough to disgust himself, HE will clean it up. How do I know? My two older daughters are now married and their homes are immaculate and neat. My youngest daughter, 17, is still at home and still a slob—just as her two older sisters used to be.—BEEN THERE IN ROCHESTER, N.Y.

Three 'displaced homemakers' convert torment into triumphs

By GREG JOSEPH Copley News Service

At 48, Dorothy Wallace was too busy as a housewife and mother of three to worry much about the future. After all, she told herself, there always would be time to think about that later.

But the future refused to wait.

Her husband Ken's bothersome headaches turned out to be more serious than anyone had imagined.

He died some 18 months ago, the victim of a malignant brain tumor.

Today, all his life insurance benefits have been spent. The couple made no other investments to fall back on.

Dorothy Wallace, a widow who turns 50 next month, had to look for work just so she and her three children could survive.

The popular new term for women like Wallace is "displaced homemaker," but it's nothing more than a euphemism for persons who are someplace they never thought they would be at a time they least expected.

The best name for them is survivors, really, these women who suddenly have to compete in the open job market after being divorced or widowed. Nobody knows how many of them there are, but with more adult women working in the home than anywhere else (53 percent, federal data shows), it is a good bet the list of unsuspecting "survivors" will grow.

In some ways, Wallace is one of the lucky ones. Before she married at 31, she worked as a bookkeeper and an airline ticket agent. Later, during the marriage, she took part-time jobs and even had a day-care center at her home for a while.

She just wound up a 16-week course at a business college and plans to take temporary jobs until she is able to start her own bookkeeping business. Her future, which seemed so sure four years ago, is anything but certain now.

"I'm scared to death, I really am," she admitted. "I know I can do well if I'm given the chance. But it's the idea of trying to convince others of my capabilities that bothers me."

"I'm not young anymore, and I worry that bosses would rather hire young, pretty girls than someone like me."

If there is any consolation for women like Wallace, it must be that they are not alone (of the 5.5 million women who head households, 43 percent are widows, 46 percent are divorced or separated) and that some of the others have made it, often with dramatic results.

A case in point is Bev Varga, now dean of the Third College at the University of California at San Diego, who began as "the mother of four kids who felt like a failure as a housewife."

When her youngest child started school, she went back to college. At that time, her marriage, which she said was already floundering, came to an end.

She endured. In five years, she had her bachelor's and master's degrees and graduated at the top of her class. But she couldn't find a job at first—so she started on her doctorate.

Within weeks, however, a student activities coordinator job opened up at UCSD. In five years, she made it to dean of the Third College.

Varga, now in her 40s, said she "went through hell" on the way up, but wouldn't have missed the climb for anything. "You just can't expect a prince on a white horse to pick you up and take care of you the rest of your life," she confided.

Nobody knows that better than Pam Slick. She got an early start at surviving—she was 17 and pregnant when she married, 20 when divorced and working as a waitress by 21.

But here this all-too-familiar story takes an uncommon twist. Slick wouldn't give up. She worked her way through college, earned a bachelor's degree in urban and rural studies and has just earned her law degree from the University of San Diego. Now 27, she plans to become a criminal defense attorney.

She said she couldn't have made it through school without the help of her friends, an informal group of women, married and divorced, who gathered to share common problems.

"That really kept me alive in school," she concluded. "I needed that companionship, somebody with an understanding of my situation. It meant everything to me."

Today, many widowed or divorced women are very much on their own. Among other things, a great number of them don't qualify for either federal income security programs or state aid.

They have no choice but to plunge head-first into the open job pool.

But some federal assistance may be on the way.

If Congress approves a current proposal called the Displaced Homemakers Act, many of these women will be considered economically disadvantaged people who can partake of employment and training aid under the Comprehensive Education and Training Act (CETA).

Until that time, they will have to survive in a society that demands they work for their families as unpaid labor at home, but at the same time refuses to admit them as part of the legitimate work force in the outside world.

docents on the various categories of the oil industry which they will be docenting throughout the year. Ed Rowland, assistant director of the oil museum, will be co-ordinating this training session.

Anyone interested in volunteering time to docent tours through the museum may contact Rowland at the museum.

Docented tours can be set up any day of the week, except Monday, when the museum is closed. Private and public schools are urged to call and set up a scheduled tour, if they are interested.

Violent upbringing makes adult withdrawn

By DR. LAURA SCHLESSINGER
Copley News Service

Mark is going through his second divorce. Both wives left him because he was distant and did not express feelings and thoughts to them. "This has just got to stop. I thought that when I got married the second time things would be different and I would be able to get more involved with her. But I couldn't. It's not good having this happen again. I don't want to end up totally alone, but I see that I will be if I don't find a way to change myself. It's more than not expressing feelings, I think that I don't even feel feelings!" Mark is in his mid-30s.

attractive, exceptionally intelligent and maximizes his superior financial acumen. He makes his fortune in one enterprise, then moves on to another. On one hand he feels proud of being able to accomplish such a wide variety of enterprises, on the other hand he worries that this might mean something unstable about himself. As a child, Mark was exposed to a family which was rather violent. Yelling, screaming, hitting, punishment were part of the daily family routine. Mark, a sensitive child, was often hurt both physically and emotionally. Initially, Mark "joined them." He was disruptive and rebellious in school and at home. He was known as the bully. In his early teens he began to gain a tremendous amount of weight. This behavior was all his response to the hurt and frustration as well as fear he felt in his hostile home environment. In his late teens, his displays of anger and pain ceased. Mark became withdrawn on an emotional level — and extremely active on an intellectual level, where he is most comfortable. He describes himself as "above and apart from all that is going on with people. When I am with my family even today I never feel like a participant but more like an observer. Somewhere along the line this is the way I began to feel with all my relationships, including my wives. I somehow never feel anything. The other person is very much an 'other' in my mind. I have trouble with the idea of being connected to anyone." Although Mark "thinks" he doesn't have "feelings," he is definitely a feeling, sensitive man. He has built up a wall of "not feeling" in order to protect himself from that which he fears the most — hurt. He withdrew emotionally from his family to avoid all their hurts. Why then would he also withdraw from good feelings? Mark's history is one of violence, perpetrated by his family and himself when he was a teen. Mark is afraid not only of being hurt but of what he would become if he would let his feelings go! He is afraid that he might lose control and be like his parents. To keep any of this from becoming reality, he has turned himself entirely into intellect and prides himself generously on his accomplishments.

Not only does Mark need to learn how to be in touch with his feelings and more trusting of others, he needs to realize that emotions are not all or-nothing. He need not be either totally withdrawn or totally out of control. In other words, he can express feelings without being a horrible person; there are degrees of expression, and having feelings out in the open is not necessarily bad or damaging. There will be times when Mark will express something which might disappoint, irritate or hurt another. Then mutual compassion, understanding and reciprocity are essential. Many of us are for one reason or another afraid of our feelings, of expressing them, of what they mean. The penalty for emotional withdrawal is isolation and loneliness. Learning how to deal on a feeling level requires unlearning all the defensive mechanisms which have served a definite function; therefore change may be difficult and may require the assistance and skill of a therapist. It is not unusual for people to fear that they will be just like their parents, even when they despise what their parents were and are. After all, to some extent we all share a sense of "one-ness" with our parents, a connectedness. It is from our parents that we get our first sense of who we are (and if that is OK or not) and how we should be. And sometimes we fear that we have learned all too well something which is very bad. But what was learned can be unlearned and a new pattern re-learned.

He writes music, about music

By HARRY SUMRALL
Special to The Washington Post

The meeting was purely by chance. Driving along 17th Street one day in February, a friend walking on the sidewalk. A honk. A yell. "Harry, this must be fate. I've been trying to get in touch with you for weeks. We need a composer, and there's money." December and January had been slow — work was scarce and inspiration seemed to be taking a winter holiday. The fall had been spent working on the score for a film for the World Future Society, an experience that had culminated in 20-hour work days and hamburgers-at-the-synthesizer.

A vacation seemed in order — to Florida to visit a musician friend, or to Texas and my parents. Neither trip worked however, so I sat in my apartment, relaxing, imagining new projects — and going crazy.

So the sidewalk meeting sparked my interest. The project involved scoring a dance program for Wendy Woodson, to be presented at the Washington Project for the Arts in March. The amount of music required was excessive, 45 minutes, and I had to find my own musicians.

Meetings followed — first with Wendy to "conceptualize" the program and devise a musical "map" and then with the musicians, flutist Allen Perper and percussionist Gary Wayne who, with me on electronic guitar, comprise the Harry Sumrall Quickie Pit Orchestra.

This "orchestra" had worked on previous projects, notably the incidental music that I had composed for two plays by W. B. Yeats at Georgetown University in the fall. The musicians were accustomed to minimal scores and extended improvisation. Because of the time limitations for rehearsals, a finished score was out of the question and I concentrated on musical "landmarks" that, strategically placed, would guide the improvisation of the ensemble.

The soft mid-afternoon light cascading from the windows of WPA's loft theater enveloped the dancers, dressed in their wrinkled rehearsal gowns, in a Dega-esque glow. Assistants quietly moved lights and microphones. The lighting was wrong. The dancers were still rehearsing. Stops. Starts. Takes. Retakes. The musicians grew restless. I was reported to storm out of the room, yelling "I must have control." Tempers cooled. Work began again. New theme lines were found. Cues were changed. The dancers became exhausted. Bodies ached. The musicians' hands cramped. Six hours later, the tape was ready.

The response to the score was favorable, and this project led to a score for "Macbeth," again at Georgetown University. The requirements of this work were similar to the dance program: high art to be accomplished by low budgets, low equipment, low rehearsal time and low compensation. The "orchestra," on this occasion, included Joanne Munisteri on second flute.

Joanne was an old acquaintance. She was a founding member of Harry's All-Girl Orchestra, an experimental chamber ensemble that we had worked with in spring 1977. She had just become the general manager of Georgetown Classical Theatre, which was preparing for its summer season, and she approached me with the idea of becoming the musical director.

I had just moved into a basement apartment in Washington and was dealing with the usual problems — the stove didn't work, the heat was off, no hot water, and the electrical system blew every fuse in the house — the perfect environment for working on the first play, Bertolt Brecht's "The Good Woman of Setzuan."

Amid boxes of records and scattered furniture, director Chuck Duncombe and I held our first meeting to discuss the play. We had worked together earlier, staging works by Apollinaire and Cocteau, and we both distrusted the seriousness with which Brecht is often presented and admired his caustic wit. The setting of "Good Woman" was to be updated to Saigon of the mid '60s, and Duncombe wanted the score to reflect this new setting.

Stravinsky once told a young composer that he took each commission and its limitations and made it his own. And this score seemed an excellent opportunity to write music that would differ from the abstraction and dissonance of my other recent work.

I proposed a rock score. First, because rock music had inundated Saigon with the American troops, and also because I hadn't gotten to write rock songs for years.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Wed., Sept. 6)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very good time to show your affection and devotion to those you are fond of but not by being extravagant but rather by letting them know that you are looking for a satisfactory relationship with them. Study and ferret out answers you need.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Showing your devotion for the one you love is fine, but it is not right to spend too much money. Pay as many bills as you can.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) An associate may want to change a part of your agreement and it might be wise to do so. Make long-range plans with one you are fond of.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use your own good judgment in going after pleasures that please most. Improve your business affairs with the aid of a partner.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You know what fellow workers expect of you so be cooperative and get your work done. Forget a slight ailment you may have; it's only temporary.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A change of attitude is needed if you are to understand the situation at home better. Put those ideas to work that will add to present income.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to be diplomatic in going after a personal goal that means much to you. Use charm. Buy a gift for one with whom you have argued and pave the way for a reconciliation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Working on a good plan for bettering your position in life is wise now. Take a financial expert into your confidence. Don't take risks that could bring a money crisis to your door.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Concentrate on aims that mean the most to you and gain them with relative ease. Use charm instead of force with others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ideal time to confer with a bigwig and get needed support to improve your position in life. Give more attention to loved ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go to an older person for the aid you want for a personal aim and then you attain it. Avoid an associate who does not agree with your views now. Be careful of strangers today, tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan well before you tackle outside duties and then you get fine results. Later be charming socially. Take no risks with reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Look to a clever and serious friend for the assistance you need with a new project. Forget amusements for now and concentrate on the important. Make big headway and then rest.

How Does One Clean A Chimney?
VERY CAREFULLY.
Why does one clean a chimney? There are a number of reasons but mainly because they get dirty. When chimneys are dirty, the fire doesn't burn well. Dirty chimneys sometimes emit offensive odors. When dirty the damper cannot close properly, which causes a loss of heat in the winter and air conditioning in the summer. And last but not least, when chimneys are dirty they sometimes catch on fire (which immediately causes an emergency and a disaster).
When should a chimney be cleaned? When it is not in use of course you can't clean one with a fire in it. If you wish to be completely safe, have your chimney cleaned after 2 1/2 to 3 cords of wood is burned in it.

NOW THERE ARE FOUR "R"s IN SCHOOL GIRL FIGURES.

We all know about READING, RITING and RITHMETIC. Now, Pat Walker's added a fourth "R", REDUCING.

First, we want you to READ what Mrs. Charles Henley has RITTEN, then we want you to do your RITHMETIC by adding up the facts: namely that Pat Walker's method works, giving you positive results without strenuous exercise, pills, shots or starvation diets. No HICKORY STICKS either, just sensible eating habits, following the guidance of your Pat Walker counselors and enjoying the passive exercise provided by our unit, which relaxes and reduces fatty tissue in all the right places.

Mrs. Charles Henley's True Story:
"I drove 240 miles a week to lose 39 pounds and every mile was worth it!"

"Diet pills, home exercise machines, bike riding—I'd tried everything I'd ever heard about to lose weight, but I still looked like I was about to have twins.
"Not that I was expecting, it's just that I'd always had a problem with weight around my middle and nothing seemed to help.
"I heard about Pat Walker's from a friend, and even though it meant driving 80 miles round trip to the salon closest to my country home in Walker, I decided to do it. Two or three times a week I made the trip to have a treatment on Pat Walker's passive exercise unit, and to talk with my counselors about my progress. They really motivated you to keep up the good work. I was so encouraged by their enthusiasm that I truly looked forward to my salon visits.
"Sometimes I planned to have my hair done before my appointment at Pat Walker's. I knew it wouldn't get messed up. I didn't even have to change out of my regular clothes. You simply relax in a nice, private treatment room, and enjoy it.
"When I started going to Pat Walker's I weighed 150 pounds, and wore a size 15. Today, I weigh 111 pounds and wear a size 5. My waist measurement has gone from 32 1/2 to 25"—not bad for a 42-year old! No one could ever convince me that all the driving hasn't been worth it.
"My husband and my son are so pleased, and that's very important to me. Although I love being a country housewife and doing my own gardening and canning, I do want to look good—for myself and my family.
"Now I have set a new goal for myself: 105 pounds. Do you have a goal? If you think you'll never make it, do what I did... call Pat Walker's for a sample treatment and free figure analysis." —Mrs. Charles Henley

Indians driving hard bargains on reserves

By MARK POTTS
NEW YORK (AP) — The Indians who own half the U.S. uranium reserves and billions of dollars in other energy resources are becoming vastly better businessmen than their forbears — the Manhattans who lost their island home for just $24 in trinkets.

Though a source of pride to the Indians, their new financial approach is seen differently by businesses that deal with them.

"They're afraid they're going to get beaten, so they drive the hardest bargain they can," said John LaGrange of Bear Creek Mining Co. in Spokane, Wash.

"But," LaGrange added, "in many cases they drive such a hard bargain they drive themselves out of the market."

Ed Gabriel, executive director of the Council of Energy Resource Tribes, said of the Indians' bargaining stance: "In all cases that I know of, they're going competitive in the bidding and they're going very rough on the negotiations. I'm very proud of them."

The energy council, formed in 1975 by 25 tribes representing almost one-third of the nation's Indians, provides a voice in Washington and gives technical help in managing Indian energy resources.

Those resources are considerable. Indian tribes occupy only 4 percent of the nation's land but own half the uranium reserves, 16 percent of the coal areas and 4 percent of the natural gas and oil fields, plus acres of forests and mineral deposits.

"They're energy-rich," says Gabriel. "You're talking about 250,000 people owning billions and billions of tons of coal, billions of tons of uranium, and 4 percent of the oil and gas."

Gabriel puts the worth of Indian land "definitely in the billions" and says it could greatly improve the Indians' living standards.

Indians represented by the tribal energy council now earn about $1,400 per capita annually, and Peter McDonald, the Navajo, who is chairman of the energy council, says getting the most for their resources is a necessity for the Indians.

"Unless we manage our resources properly now, we will not have them in 20 or 30 years," he said. "I think it will mean our survival and a future for our children."

The Indians blame the government for some past business problems. Gabriel says, for example: "The government, acting as a trustee through the Bureau of Indian Affairs, has done a pretty sloppy job."

BIA officials admit that bad judgment or poor advice soured many leases and say they now scrutinize leases more carefully — while turning over more of the responsibility to the Indians.

"The tribes have become much more sophisticated, much more aware of the land, much more familiar with how the white man's laws work," said BIA spokesman William L. Engles.

The Indians do not view all past agreements unfavorably — many timberland leases with paper firms have worked out well, for example.

In cases where the Indians see past wrongs, they are using the law to try to right them. They are trying to renegotiate more favorable deals on many BIA-signed contracts and have had a measure of success.

McDonald recently led a successful fight for renegotiation of his Arizona tribe's coal lease with El Paso Natural Gas and Consolidation Coal. The lease, signed in the mid-1960s, gave the Navajos a royalty of 15 cents a ton, included few environmental safeguards and did not mention who would reclaim land destroyed by strip-mining.

The tribe wanted more "because the lease that existed was unconscionable," McDonald said. The new arrangement ties the royalty to the consumer price of coal, which has risen considerably since the first lease, and makes environmental and reclamation allowances.

It means a total of $250 million over the next 25 years, which McDonald would like to go into education and long-term economic development. And the tribe is seeking renegotiation of other contracts involving coal and uranium.

Re-entry scheduled

Miller Exploration Co. of Midland announced plans to re-enter the discovery well of the Bizco (Mississippian) field of Martin County and plug back to 8,600 feet for completion attempt in the Spraberry sand.

The project, No. 1 Earl Heald, originally was drilled to 12,220 feet. It is 600 feet from south and west lines of section 6, block 36, T-3-N, T&P survey and one mile south of Three Leagues.

The project, if completed, will be assigned to the Breedlove (Spraberry) field. It is four miles southeast of the nearest Spraberry well in that pool.

It also is one and one-fourth miles west of the depleted Sulphur Draw (Spraberry) field.

ECTOR WELL
Sabine Production Co. No. 1-V Texas has been completed as a small pumper in the Jordan (Pennsylvanian) pool of Ector County, six miles south of Pennwell.

A re-entry project, it finalized on the pump for four barrels of 40-gravity oil and 100 barrels of water per day. The gas-oil ratio is too small to measure.

Completion was through perforations from 8,009 to 8,022 feet.

Samedan plugged the project in 1965 at 9,100 feet. It was deepened to 10,247 feet and plugged back to 8,221 feet. The 5.5-inch casing is set at 8,200 feet.

Location is 2,310 feet from south and west lines of section 10, block 35, University Lands survey.

CULBERSON WELL
R. C. Slack of Midland No. 4 Billie Prewitt is a new producer in the Etherway (Delaware) field of Culberson County, 20 miles northwest of Orta.

The well, 1,250 feet southwest of other production, was completed for a daily pumping potential of 12 barrels of oil and 12 barrels of water, from open hole at 2,382, where 5-7/8-inch casing is set, and total depth of 2,395 feet. The pay was fractured with 135 barrels of fluid. Gas-oil ratio is 80-1.

Wellsite is 2,144 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 36, block 59, T-1, T&P survey.

Allowable shows drop

AUSTIN—Average calendar day allowable of Texas oil production as of Sept. 1 totaled 3,592,032 barrels, the Railroad Commission's Oil & Gas Division reports.

This legal rate of flow from 181,284 wells on allowable schedules compares with 3,604,410 barrels daily Aug. 15 when 182,007 wells were listed.

Texas oil allowable in September is pegged statewide to a 100 percent market demand factor. Estimated actual production in September is approximately 4,528,277 barrels daily and compares with actual production of 2,978,030 barrels daily in the same month last year.

The commission lists 9,045 oil fields in the state.

Frank Ferguson

Ferguson appointed

ODESSA—Frank Ferguson has been appointed field sales manager for Challenger Rig & Mfg., Inc., reports Verne M. Spangenberg, president of the company.

Before joining Challenger, Ferguson represented other companies throughout Mid-America selling portable drilling rigs and equipment.

He is a native of Blaine, Ky., and worked for Western Electric and Ashland Oil Co.

GPA slates meeting date

The Permian Basin Chapter of the Gas Processors Association will hold its quarterly meeting Thursday in Midland Country Club.

Congressman Bob Krueger will speak on "Energy Legislation." Reservations for the dinner meeting can be made by telephoning 915-682-0567. The social hour begins at 6:30 p.m. and the buffet dinner begins at 7:30 p.m.

The dinner is $10 per person. A golf tournament will be held at Hogan Park Thursday afternoon, beginning at 12:30. Tee times can be obtained by contacting the pro shop.

Retirement announced

R.C. Eaves, Odessa, who has completed 29 years and six months of service with Texaco, Inc. has elected to take early retirement from the Midland Division, Producing Department-Central U.S. of Texaco, Inc. at Nootree, it was announced by J.C. Josefy, Midland District superintendent.

Eaves is a native of Coldsprings, Okla., and attended high school in Electra. He joined Texaco at the Electra Gasoline Plant in 1949 as a roustabout.

Subsequently, he served as gasoline plant oiler of the Electra Plant; roustabout-painter and meter repairman, loading rackman and roustabout at the Fuller Gasoline Plant in Snyder; roustabout, mechanic repairman, waterflood plant operator, and pumper at the Cogdell Unit in Snyder. In the capacity of pumper, Eaves has worked since 1960 in the North Cowden, Mabec, Concho, Warfield, and Andector Areas, all located in the Midland-Odessa vicinity.

Gas strike reported

FORT WORTH—American Quasar Petroleum Co. has announced an apparent new reservoir discovery in the Cretaceous sand at its Pineview Field in Summit County, Utah.

The Pineview 4-3 well tested successfully in a 70 foot sand from 2,940 to 3,284 feet. It flowed gas to the surface after 12 minutes at the rate of two million cubic feet per day and oil to the surface after 16 minutes at the rate of 20 barrels per hour. Initial flowing pressure was 965 PSI with final flowing pressure at 1,070 PSI. Initial and final shut-in pressures were 1,360 PSI.

The company is currently drilling ahead to further test this zone after projected depth of 10,000 feet has been reached.

Oil search pact made

HONG KONG — Canada and Vietnam are to explore for oil on Vietnam's continental shelf, the Vietnam news agency reported Monday.

A contract on oil survey and exploration was signed on Saturday in Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon, between the state-run Vietnam oil company and four Canadian oil companies.

Signatories were director general of the Vietnam Oil Company Nguyen Van Bien, president of Bon Valley exploration J.R. Harris, president of Sceptre Oil Limited, A.A. MacKenzie, president of Westburne Petroleum and Minerals Ltd. P.D. Williams and vice-president of Siebens Oil and Gas Ltd. A.G. Gould.

Present at the ceremony were Vietnamese minister in charge of oil and natural gas Dinh Duc Thien and representatives of the ministry of foreign trade.

Rotary Drilling Committee subcommittee meetings are scheduled as follows: Sept. 20: Drill Pipe, 8 a.m.; Drilling Manual, 9 a.m., and Deviated Hole, 9 a.m.

Oil helping to build 800-year-old town into major Saudi Arabia city

By JIM LANDERS
The Washington Post

YANBU, Saudi Arabia — A thick, salty blanket of haze and 130-degree temperatures make the desert surrounding this 800-year-old town on the Red Sea one of the more forbidding places on the globe.

In the days when Egypt's Moslem pilgrims were traveling to Medina and Mecca by boat, the merchants of Yanbu lived in oriental mansions of coral bricks with hand-carved Indonesian shutters and doors. Now the pilgrims fly to Jeddah, 220 miles south of here, and bulldozers are knocking down the coral houses.

Local entrepreneurs watched the world pass them by after the Suez Canal was closed by war. Land values dropped to 70 cents per square meter. Today, those same Yanbu businessmen are hustling downtown plots for $700 per square meter.

Saudi Arabia is building an industrial city in Yanbu. A patch of coastal land only a scorpion could love, some 15 miles long and 4 1/2 miles wide, is being transformed.

Three seaports are to be built here. One will deliver 1.6 million barrels of crude oil daily to a fleet of the world's largest ships for transport to Europe through either the Suez Canal or the Sued Pipeline in Egypt. Another will load freighters with refined petroleum products, propane, fertilizers, sulfuric acid and the myriad products of a giant petrochemical complex. A third will become a terminal for imports of food and other commodities for a metropolitan area of nearly 250,000 people. (The old town's population now is 21,000.)

Yet Yanbu is only the lesser — for the moment — of two new energy cities in Saudi Arabia. Eight hundred miles to the east, on the Persian Gulf, the Saudis are creating the city of Jubail. Because Jubail's desert landscape shields the world's largest known reserves of oil, the city will, for the rest of this century, have more factories, more exports and more people than Yanbu.

But Yanbu will play a vital role in Saudi Arabia's plans for defense and economic security, because it will free the kingdom from dependence on the Persian Gulf for all its oil exports. There are no known oil fields here. The 500,000 tons of steel pipe now stacked outside of town will, in a few weeks, begin to form two 750-mile arteries across the Arabian Peninsula — one for crude oil, one for natural gas — that will give Saudi Arabia its first Red Sea outlet for petroleum exports.

But the geology maps of the Arabian Shields, the 5,000-foot-high mountain range that separates Yanbu from the Moslem holy city of Medina, are dotted with ore symbols: iron, gold, lead, sulfur, copper, chromium, mica. The Saudis are hoping Yanbu will become the heart of a mining area and carry the country's export economy into the 21st century.

Other countries look at the Saudi oil reserves of 150 billion barrels as an enviable almost endless supply of energy and wealth. Saudi Arabia plans for the day some 80 years from now when oil begins to run out. Few nations are as serious about their planning.

"Jubail and Yanbu will probably turn out to be the best two cities in the kingdom," said Hisham Nazer, Saudi Arabia's minister of planning, "because they are planned from scratch. We have taken into consideration every known and conceivable idea in city planning. I don't just mean that they will be major economic centers. Our estimate is that the quality of life — houses, telecommunications, schools — will be the best in the kingdom."

Mr. Nazer, 46, who has degrees in international relations and political science from UCLA, has tolled over the concepts and plans for Jubail and Yanbu since Saudi Arabia announced a policy of petrochemical industrialization in 1973. In the heat and haze of Yanbu, Nazer saw a future city that would free his country of total dependence on an exhaustible source of wealth.

Saudi Arabia's 1975-1980 five-year plan carried an original price tag of $142 billion. The 1980-1985 five-year plan, much of it built around Jubail and Yanbu, will probably cost as much.

The infrastructure work at Jubail and Yanbu — roads, ports, pipelines and so on — will probably run to more than $40 billion. And the industrial plants themselves will involve enormous sums.

The key to the success of both cities is a $14 billion natural gas collection system under construction in the Eastern Province. The system will gather 3.29 billion cubic feet of gas per day to provide energy for Jubail and Yanbu. Today the gas is burned as waste — "flared" — from the kingdom's oil fields. The flared gas, according to Mr. Nazer, is worth $1.4 billion a year.

Construction of the natural gas pipeline linking Yanbu with the Eastern Province is scheduled to start later this year.

Meanwhile, huge trucks will start rumbling across the Arabian Peninsula in the next few weeks carrying 80-foot lengths of the crude oil pipeline. The pipe, made in Japan, France and Italy, is being welded and baked with epoxy each night in what one construction official has called "the world's largest welding shop." The pipe must be heated to 400 degrees to take the epoxy that will protect it once buried beneath the desert, and the welders can tolerate the heat only at night.

Moored in the Red Sea is an odd vessel named the Yanbu. Built and manned by Japanese, it is a floating water desalination factory, capable of producing 500,000 gallons of drinking water daily.

About 1,000 construction workers live at the Yanbu industrial site, with more arriving all the time. Six hundred South Koreans are building a housing complex for construction workers that will have a 1984 population of 28,000.

Well finds in Val Verde

Resources Investment Corp. No. 1-20 Mills is a new well in the Will O (Ellenburger gas) field of Val Verde County, 8.5 miles northeast of Pandale.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 2.7 million cubic feet of gas per day.

Completion was through perforations from 15,241 to 15,712 feet. The pay was acidized with 46,976 gallons.

Total depth is 15,762 feet. Location is 2,060 feet from north and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 20, block Q-4, TCRR survey.

The well is one and one-quarter miles southeast of other Ellenburger production.

Lewis denies making profit

LAS VEGAS (AP) — In a rambling and emotional television speech, a bitter Jerry Lewis denied he personally made money from his Labor Day Muscular Dystrophy telethon.

"Twenty-seven letters question not only does Jerry get paid for doing this telethon — this hurts," Lewis said in the final two hours Monday of the 2 1/2-hour telethon.

Senate, mansion up for grabs

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Two U.S. Senate seats and the governor's mansion are up for grabs in Alabama, and Republicans feel this might be their year to make real gains in a state locked up by Democrats.

In North Dakota, voters will choose state and local candidates as well as candidates for the state's sole congressional seat. Republican incumbent Rep. Mark Andrews and state Public Service Commissioner Bruce Hagen, a Democrat, are running unopposed.

Today's Alabama gubernatorial primary is the first in 20 years without the name of Wallace on the Democratic ticket. Gov. George Wallace, who is retiring, lost his first bid for governor in 1958, but he came back four years later to win. Barred by law from seeking re-election, Wallace chose in 1966 to run his first wife, Lurleen, and she was elected.

When Mrs. Wallace died of cancer after 16 months in office, the lieutenant governor, Albert Brewer, ran the state for the next 32 months, the only period in the past 16 years when Wallace or a member of his family has not been governor.

Wallace's absence has produced a plethora of candidates seeking to take over the helm as Alabama politics moves into a new generation.

Ten Democrats and three Republicans are running for their parties' nominations for governor today. The Republican primary marks the first time ever that the voters have had a chance to select their nominee.

Republicans and Democrats also will nominate candidates today for two U.S. Senate seats. Sen. John Sparkman is retiring, and seven Democrats and one Republican want the job.

The other Senate vacancy is the result of the death in June of Sen. James Allen. Wallace appointed Allen's widow, Maryon Allen, to her husband's Senate seat until the general election this fall. Mrs. Allen and four other Democrats are running along with two Republicans for the remaining two years on Allen's term.

Wallace announced earlier this year he would be a candidate for Sparkman's seat, but later withdrew. When Allen died, Wallace said he was considering running for that seat, but he later decided against that race, too.

The Republicans are also fielding candidates for lieutenant governor, three lesser state offices and four of the seven congressional seats. But their biggest push is in races for the Legislature, where the party currently has only two seats. Republicans are running for nine of the 35 seats in the state Senate and 34 of the 105 seats in the state House.

Brewer, defeated by Wallace in 1970, is considered a frontrunner in the Democratic primary for governor. His opponents are Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley, Attorney General Bill Baxley, state Sen. Sid McDonald, Opelika industrialist Fob James, clergymen Horace Howell and F.C. "Pete" Koster, retired architect Robert Muncaster, Ralph "Shorty" Price, who has run for office 12 times but has never won, and attorney Fred Standefer.

Republican contenders are former Judge Guy Hunt, professor Bert Hayes and cattleman Julian Elgin.

She's ready for new life — but where?

MIAMI (AP) — Suzanne Bohannon left a Florida mental hospital five months ago, ready for a new life after 23 years in the wrong place.

But being free is not easy for a crippled 39-year-old who grew to maturity in a mental institution. The Rehabilitation Center at Jackson Memorial Hospital provided a temporary home, but now center officials say it is time for Miss Bohannon to go.

But officials and Miss Bohannon are not sure what is next.

"We have places for people who are very independent, and for people who are very dependent," says Isilia Rosado, the center social worker who is trying to find a home for Miss Bohannon. "But we don't have many places for people who are someplace in between."

Born with a spinal tumor that left her legs withered, Suzanne Bohannon was not wanted by her parents, and she wound up in a mental hospital.

She tried to tell attendants she was not crazy. "A few times I got laughed at," she says. "Other times I got extra Thorazine ... I was drugged most of the time."

Books provided a sanctuary. "I read, read, read," she says. "I think reading saved my sanity, partially. That and my faith in God." Books are stacked about her hospital bed now. A statue of the Madonna sits nearby.

Freely in early April after getting word to Sally Zinman of Loxahatchee, Fla., organizer of a fledgling Mental Patient Rights Association, Miss Bohannon found new life at the county-run Jackson Center.

She dropped Suzanne, and came to be called by her middle name — Gloria. She took field trips with other patients, sipped cold beer, saw harbor lights from a cruise ship and squealed through "Jaws II."

And there was daily physical therapy, which she says she loves, but some hospital workers say she often skips. "She was using the hospital as a hotel," said one official who declined to be named.

And three weeks ago a hospital committee told her she no longer qualified for Medicare benefits.

Russian delegation head dies in pope's audience

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The head of the Russian Orthodox delegation to the inauguration of Pope John Paul I, Metropolitan Nikodim of Leningrad and Novgorod, died of a heart attack today during an audience with the pope, the Vatican announced.

He was 49 and had been suffering from a heart condition since an attack in 1971.

Vatican officials said the metropolitan collapsed as he was sitting in the pope's private library during an audience for the five Orthodox Church delegations to the papal ceremony Sunday.

Bardie Tyrone Jr. of the 200 block of East Shandon Avenue told Midland police at 2:18 p.m. Sunday that three shotguns valued at a total of $435 were taken from his residence between 8 a.m. Wednesday and noon Friday.

James Raymond Randolph of the 2600 block of Winfield Road told police at 12:16 p.m. Sunday that a motorcycle valued at $2,500 was removed from the rear of his residence. He said the apparent theft occurred earlier and described the missing cycle as a 1975 BMW.

John Cappadonna of the 1600 block of North I Street told police at 9:35 p.m. Sunday that a red Schwinn "mini-scrambler" bicycle with training wheels was removed earlier from that address.

Ken Garrison of Odessa told Midland police officers a set of four golf "woods" valued at $300 were stolen while he was at Hogan Park Driving Range in the 4000 block of North Lamesa Road Saturday morning.

T.C. Thompson of the 2400 block of Shell Avenue told police at 8:17 p.m. Monday that $98 in cash and a tennis racket valued at $70 were taken earlier from his home.

Rob Roberts of the 4700 block of West Illinois Avenue told police at 12:02 p.m. Monday that a cycle theft occurred at the Colonial Food Store located on Thomason Drive. Missing, he said, was a 1972 350cc motorcycle. Value of the vehicle was not listed.

Emigie Flores of the 3300 block of Perry Street told police at 10:47 a.m. Monday that a window, 12 by 18 feet, was broken earlier at that location. Value of the window was estimated to be $75.

Staubach, Dorsett put on opening night show

IRVING — Dallas played so well that it's almost frightening while Tony Dorsett and Roger Staubach were unbelievable.

The two Cowboy greats all but destroyed the Baltimore Colts, 38-0, before more than 65,000 fans in Texas Stadium Monday night and before millions more on national television.

Dorsett, last year's Rookie of the Year in the NFL, wound up with an amazing total offense of 254 yards, rushing for 147 in 15 carries and additional 107 yards on three pass receptions while Staubach connected on 16 of 22 passes for 280 yards and four touchdowns.

Roger completed his last 11 passes in a row to tie his former record and he teamed up with Dorsett in helping rack up a total offense of 583 yards which is the second highest output in Cowboy history. The highest came in 1966 when Dallas had 662 yards against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Dorsett was on the end of a 91-yard TD strike from Roger which is the second longest in Dallas history with the longest being a 95-yarder from Don Meredith to Bob Hayes and that came on Oct. 13, 1966.

BOB DILLON

DALLAS COACH Tom Landry was highly pleased over his team's smashing victory. "We played well, both offensively and defensively. It was a hard game at first, but once we broke it open, it was difficult for Baltimore to come back with Bert Jones out," said Landry. He went on to say that he was also pleased with the offensive line.

"Our offensive line moved off the ball well throughout the game and that made a big difference in the second half. Tony Hill had the first big play for us on the tipped ball and that seemed to get us started."

"Then when Dorsett broke free, we were really moving the ball well.

Anytime Tony catches the ball, it can be an explosive situation. He is very dangerous when he does catch the ball," added Landry.

The Dallas headmaster also went on to say that Baltimore will regroup. "The Colts are still a solid football team and they will regroup with or without Jones. You just don't lose a player like him and regroup over night."

If Landry had anything negative to say, it had to be over the kickoff coverage by the Cowboys. "It's nothing to talk about. In fact, it wasn't good at all," commented Landry.

WHILE DORSETT and Staubach finished most of the offensive fireworks, Doug Dennison didn't exactly sit back and watch. "Doug did an excellent backup job to Dorsett. He has a different style and enables us to change our style of attack all at once. He is the type player that gives you 110 per cent every time out," said Landry.

Rafael Septien, the new kicker the Cowboys picked up from the Los Angeles Rams, started slowly, but his overall performance brought a smile to Landry's face. "He has all the ingredients of a great kicker. As soon as he perfects his swing, he will be hitting them from 50 to 55 yards out, because he has such a strong leg," quipped Landry.

Dallas fans didn't get to see any punts off the toe of Danny White since the Cowboys were not forced to punt a single time during the rout.

The Cowboys completely dominated the game after the Colts blew chances to score after a Butch Johnson fumble on the opening kickoff and a Staubach interception.

The performance makes you wonder what Dallas will do for an encore next week when they play the Giants in New York. The Cowboys will be on the road for two weeks with games in New York and with the Rams in Los Angeles before returning to Texas Stadium, Sept. 24 against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Howard Cosell made a statement on TV that he thought the Cowboys would go undefeated. With 15 regular season games left, one victory does not a season make, Howard, but it's still one heck of a way to start off the 1978 season.

Boosters to meet

The Midland High Booster Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the MHS Youth Center. Films of the Brown-field scrimmage last Friday and a report on this week's opening game at Amarillo Tascosa will highlight the agenda.

Dallas devastates Colts' Sack Pack

DALLAS (AP) — It was the second most explosive offensive show in the 18-year history of the Dallas Cowboys, but quarterback Roger Staubach was more peeved than pleased.

Staubach destroyed Baltimore's "Sack Pack" with four touchdown passes as Dallas opened defense of its world championship with a 38-0 nationally televised rout of the Baltimore Colts Monday night.

Dallas didn't even punt as it charged up and down the field for a 583-yard offense for Coach Tom Landry's 14th consecutive season-opening victory.

"I was good in some spots and had in others ... I wasn't particularly pleased," said Staubach, who surrendered two interceptions early in the game.

STAUBACH'S TOUCHDOWN passes covered 91 yards to Tony Dorsett, 8 yards to Billy Joe Dupree, 38 yards to Drew Pearson and 36 inches to Jay Saldi.

Completing his last 11 passes, Staubach finished with 16 completions in 22 attempts for 280 yards.

Dorsett, the flashy tailback who was NFL offensive rookie of the year in 1977, did something no other Cowboy has ever accomplished. He rushed for 147 yards and caught passes for 107 steps. No Cowboy had ever rushed and received for 100 yards or more in each category in one game. Dorsett also wasn't overly pleased.

"I feel receiving is one of my weakest points and I need a chance to get accustomed to it," he said.

Dorsett left three Colt tacklers in his wake for the second Cowboy touchdown after he caught a batted pass that was intended for a wide receiver. He was so alone on his touchdown jaunt that he slapped hands with Drew Pearson and Tony Hill before he scored.

BALTIMORE PLAYED without injured No. 1 quarterback Bert Jones and halfback Lydell Mitchell, who was traded to San Diego in a dispute with management.

"Once we broke it open, it was hard for Baltimore to come back," said Tom Landry. "Baltimore is a very solid football team and they will regroup as the season moves on, with or without Jones."

Jones and second-string quarterback Bill Troup both suffered shoulder injuries last week.

Reserve Mike Kirkland, starting his first National Football League game, was sacked five times by the Cowboy "Doomsday Defense." It was Baltimore's worst loss since 1973, when the Colts fell 44-0 to Miami.

Dallas' most prolific offensive day was 652 yards against Philadelphia in 1966 when Don Meredith was the Cowboy quarterback.

He added, "The other teams in our division (Miami and New England) lost games they should have won, so I don't think we are any farther behind than when we started the week. We were just beaten by a better team."

Colt fullback Roosevelt Leaks said, "A lot of teams are going to lose to Dallas."

Meanwhile, Landry was already thinking about having to play the New York Giants on the road in Dallas second game Sunday.

"It's tough to travel after a Monday night game," said Landry. "In New York, we always have a tough time. They always play us well. They play us tooth and nail."

Vilas falls victim to Walts in U.S. Open

NEW YORK — Defending champion Guillermo Vilas was upset by unseeded Butch Walts 6-4, 7-6, 4-6, 6-7, 6-2 in a 4-hour, 11-minute match at the $552,480 U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

In other matches, top-seeded woman Martina Navratilova reached the quarter-finals with a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Ann Kiyomura. Fourth men's seed Vitas Gerulaitis dropped the first set but rallied to defeat Bob Lutz 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, and No. 15 John McEnroe outlasted Colin Dowdeswell of Rhodesia 7-6, 6-3, 6-3.

In other women's matches, third-seeded Virginia Wade was upset by Lele Forood, an unsung 21-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 6-3, 2-6, 6-3; and defending champion Chris Evert, the No. 2 seed, had to struggle before getting past 17-year-old Caroline Stoll 6-1, 7-5.

Cale Yarborough cops 4th Southern

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Cale Yarborough held off a challenge by Darrell Waltrip to win his fourth Southern 500 stock car race.

Yarborough, in an Oldsmobile, won $30,000 in the 29th running of the "granddaddy" of NASCAR's superspeedway races.

Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., averaged 116.828 mph and finished three seconds ahead of Waltrip, who had started his Chevrolet in the second front row position beside David Pearson.

Kite's birdie run pays off in win

ENDICOTT, N.Y. — Tom Kite ran off four straight birdies on the En-Joie Golf Club course to halt a challenge from Mark Hayes and win the $225,000 B.C. Open by 5 strokes.

Kite never trailed in the four-day tournament and finished Monday's championship round with a 3-under-par 68 and a 17-under-par score of 267 for the 72-hole tournament.

Bradley notches 4-stroke triumph

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Pat Bradley took command early in the final round to score a 4-stroke victory in the Ladies Professional Golf Association's Rail Charity Golf Classic.

Bradley shot a 33 on the front nine and went on to her third tour victory of the year with a final round 2-under-par 70 for a 72-hole total of 276.

Brown clinches NHRA world title

INDIANAPOLIS — Hollywood stuntman Kelly Brown clinched the National Hot Rod Association world points championship for Top Fuel dragsters with a second-round victory in the $443,000 U.S. Nationals.

Brown dropped out of the U.S. competition in the quarter-finals, losing to Jeb Allen.

Geiselman's six-under bests Ferguson at MCC

Randy Geiselman fired a six-under par Monday to defeat Ted Ferguson and win the Midland Country Club's golf championship for 1978. Geiselman won the match in easy fashion, 4-3.

Horace Robb won the 18-hole medal play with a 68 while Jim Sale won the 36-hole medal play with a 138.

Other flight winners were Mike Shapira, first flight; Larry Stapp, second flight; Ralph Way, third flight; Gus Locker, fourth flight; Ike Lovelady, fifth flight; and Flake

Moon Lark strikes gold

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — It was one of those days when Sam Howard needed to be two places at once.

His wife was in Coppell, Texas, where she was expecting to give birth at any time to their third child. And his horse was at Ruidoso Downs running in what is billed as the "World's Richest Horse Race."

"I've got a lot on my mind today," Howard said Monday after watching his colt, Moon Lark, win $437,500 in the All-American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs.

"I started not to come," he said. "My wife may be having a baby right now. But she's been patient with me through this whole deal and she told me to come."

Sam, along with his uncles, James and Paul Howard, who each own one-third shares in the colt, had spent just about all the money they could scrape up or borrow over the past two years on Moon Lark. All three saw their colt reward them Monday with a three-quarter length victory in the final leg of the Triple Crown for 2-year-old quarter horses.

"We all have to work so we don't make a lot of money," said the 25-year-old truck driver for a Dallas, Texas, area freight line. "We haven't been going hungry, but I've been investing everything on the side I could. My wife has gone along with it because she believed in the colt too. She's a great woman."

Moon Lark claimed the winner's share of the gross purse of $1.28 million by blazing past Osage Juana down the final 200 yards of the 440-yard scramble. The winning time was 21.84 seconds.

The nationally televised race had been expected to be a battle between Moon Lark, the second-favorite at 9-5, and Vespero, the favorite at 8-5. The two speedsters had hooked up an exciting battle in the second jewel in the Triple Crown, with Vespero edging Moon Lark in the Rainbow Futurity to hand the Howards' colt his only defeat.

The payoffs on Moon Lark were $5.60, $3.20 and $3.40. Osage Juana paid $6.40 and $4.80, while Holme

Maid returned $9.80.

Osage Juana earned $177,500 for owner Thomas Ballenger of Thousand Oaks, Calif. Holme Maid picked up $82,500 for Frank Merrill of Purcell, Okla., and Charles Weik of San Antonio, Texas.

Moon Lark's first jump from the gate was strong, but he hit in soft dirt and couldn't get good footing. Vespero moved ahead slightly, but about 150 yards out Moon Lark was in full stride.

He passed Vespero and it became a two-horse struggle between Moon Lark and Osage Juana. The classy little filly held a slight lead until midway through the race when Moon Lark began a thundering charge down the stretch.

"Once we were past Vespero, I knew we were going to win," said Jackie Martin, who was aboard Moon Lark.

Vespero dropped back and never mounted a serious run at the leaders, finishing fourth. Osage Juana held off Holme Maid to take second by a nose.

Hold-up also works with two winners

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Continuing a week-long series on the hold-up play, we come to the case in which you have two sure tricks in the enemy's suit. You may find it advisable to refuse the first trick.

North dealer Both sides vulnerable

Bridge hand diagram showing North, South, East, and West cards.

Opening lead - ♠ 6

If you win the first spade trick, East will win the first club and return his remaining spade. West will overtake in order to make sure of continuing the spades. West will win the second club trick and run the spades, defeating the contract.

If you refuse the first spade trick and East continues the spades, you lead a club. If East wins the first club, he is out of spades thanks to your holdup at the first trick. You have time to develop the clubs. If West wins the first club he can establish his spades, but he will never regain the lead to win tricks with them.

After East has won the first spade he may switch to hearts instead of leading his other spade. If so, you must refuse the first heart trick.

The idea is to take your first trick in the dangerous suit when one of the opponents plays his last card in the suit. If that opponent later wins a trick, he will be unable to continue with the dangerous suit.

POSSIBLE SWITCH

As dealer you hold: S K,8,3; H K,5,2; D A,K,9; C 10,9,4,3. What do you say?

ANSWER: Most experts would bid one club; some would pass. My own tendency is to bid with such excellent high-card structure. I would favor a pass if the 13 high-card points were made up of queens and jacks rather than of higher cards.

Phase on canals finished

By LINDA MATHEWS The Los Angeles Times

HONG KONG — China has completed preliminary work on one of the most ambitious construction projects in history — an immense series of canals to divert the waters of the Yangtze River into the drought-plagued plains of North China.

Hsinhua, official news agency, reported that the 700-mile route of the proposed waterway was surveyed last month. It said the project is designed to "solve north China water shortages that have baffled minds for centuries" and have left the country vulnerable to devastating famines.

The waterway would not make China completely immune from drought, but foreign agriculture experts believe that it would move Peking substantially closer to one of its major goals, agricultural self-sufficiency. Without a reliable water source, the northern plains are struck periodically by droughts so severe that China must in some years spend half of its foreign exchange earnings on imported grain.

To compensate for last year's mediocre harvest in the northern plains, the country's prime wheat belt, China recently contracted for 2.5 million tons of American wheat, at a cost of $280 million. In years with even poorer harvests, the bill for imported grain has topped $1 billion.

Hsinhua gave no indication of the canal's cost, but analysts here believe the government's outlay ultimately will surpass $10 billion. China's economic planners apparently have decided to push ahead with the project, despite the expense, because north China literally has run out of water.

"Surface water and underground water have been utilized to the greatest possible extent but are still inadequate to meet the needs of industrial and agricultural development," the Kwangming Daily, a Peking journal, disclosed last month in a report on the water-diversion project. "Water...shortages in north China have become more and more serious in recent years," sometimes requiring household rationing and closure of factories.

To allay such shortages, the Ministry of Water Conservancy and Power essentially has proposed the creation of a man-made river that would channel about 5 percent of the Yangtze's flow through three arid provinces and eventually into Tientsin, an industrial center of 7 million people.

For much of its length, the new waterway would follow the route of the ancient Grand Canal. The canal, begun more than 2,500 years ago, was completed by the Mongol Emperor Kublai Khan in the 13th century to link the lower Yangtze basin to the capital he established on the north China plain, the city now known as Peking.

Although its construction was once considered almost as great a feat as the Great Wall of China, the Grand Canal long ago became obsolete as a means of transportation. Short stretches remain open but can accommodate only small craft. Other parts of the canal have been so damaged by the bombing of World War II and successive floods that they are impassable.

The late Mao Tse-tung often talked of rerouting the Yangtze and joining the Grand Canal to the Book tells of presidential quirks

WASHINGTON (AP)

— James Garfield could write Greek with one hand and Latin with the other at the same time. Howard Taft fell asleep at conferences. Ulysses S. Grant smoked 20 cigars a day, and Calvin Coolidge walked a pet raccoon on a leash.

It takes all kinds to make presidents, one deduces from a new book of little-known facts about the 37 first families who occupied the White House before and after President Harding saved a dog's life by executive clemency.

Brought into the country illegally, the dog had been sentenced to death by a Pennsylvania judge. After Harding wrote a personal plea, the governor of the state pardoned the pooch.

Andrew Jackson kept a stable of thoroughbred racehorses on the grounds, and Taft's Holstein, Pauline Wayne, is the title animal of "The Last Cow on the White House Lawn and Other Little-Known Facts about the Presidency," by Barbara Seuling.

Some presidential contrasts: — Abraham Lincoln lost eight straight elections before becoming president, while in a span of 3 1/2 years Grover Cleveland was mayor of Buffalo, N.Y., governor of the state, and president.

— The Dwight Eisenhower were ardent TV fans and watched while dining on TV dinners; the John Kennedys hated it and had all sets removed from the White House living quarters.

— John Adams was a notoriously shabby dresser, but Chester

Arthur had a valet and a rumored 80 pairs of trousers and 25 coats.

— James Polk worked 12 to 14 hours a day in the White House; Coolidge from 9 to 12:30, then to lunch and quitting time in midafternoon.

— Franklin Roosevelt thought the number 13 unlucky and wouldn't sit at a table with 13 guests; Wilson deemed it lucky and once had a ship slow down to arrive in France for a peace conference on the 13th.

The presidents had varied tastes in foods: George Washington liked peanut soup; James Buchanan, sauerkraut-and-mashed potatoes; Cleveland, corned beef and cabbage; Theodore Roosevelt, sweet potatoes; Franklin D. Roosevelt, scrambled eggs; Eisenhower, prune whip.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Steroid benefits not worth risks

By Dr. Neil Solomon, M.D. Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Dear Dr. Solomon: I was told the other day that quite a few athletes are still using steroids to build up muscular strength. Is there any real evidence that this does any good—and how about risks...—V.L.

Dear V.L.: From what I have seen on this, the benefits—if any—of these hormone drugs for athletic performance are far outweighed by their risks.

These danger can include damage to the liver and sometimes cancer as well as shrinkage of the testis and a decrease in sperm production. And there are many unpleasant to hazardous side effects for women, such as masculinization, voice changes, acne, hirsutism, disruption of the menstrual cycle, and perhaps impaired fertility in the long run.

According to a survey done by the American College of Sports Medicine, evidence that medically approved doses of steroids do anything at all to improve athletic performance is mixed. However, one leading authority in this field, Dr. Allan J. Ryan, Editor-in-Chief of the Physician and Sports-medicine, feels that this evidence is mostly negative.

In the absence of a protein or androgen deficiency, Dr. Ryan says, there is no benefit in giving the drug. Athletes who use the steroids, he adds, are wasting their money and cruelly deluding themselves—and also endangering their health.

Dear Dr. Solomon: There seem to be a awful lot of doctors these days who are urging us to get out and exercise. But how about the doctors themselves. Isn't their favorite sport golf—which rates about zero for getting into shape. Fred M.

Dear Fred: Maybe doctors used to play a lot of golf, but that isn't the case any longer. At least according to a poll on doctors' health habits done by the American Medical Association—it found that only one doctor out of 10 was a golfer these days. The most popular exercise among doctors was jogging—at hours like 6 a.m. or 10 p.m. Tennis and swimming came next.

However, doctors aren't exercising as much as they should. Two out of five admit they don't do it on a regular basis.

There were several other interesting points that turned up in this survey. The percentage of doctors who smoke is now down to 18.2, whereas 10 years ago it was 30. Also, only one doctor out of four admits to being more than 10 pounds overweight.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is revaccination routinely necessary for measles. Ms. S.O.

Dear Ms. S.O.: No. Live measles vaccination confers long-lasting immunity if given to children when they are 15 months of age or older.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Cuban films important

By MARGOT KERNAN The Washington Post

A delegation of American film critics who visited Cuba in June discovered a third-world revolutionary society in which movies have surprisingly high priority.

In fact, the first cultural act of the revolutionary government in 1959 was to establish the Cuban Institute of the Cinematographic Arts and Industries (ICAIC), headed by Alfredo Guevara. Before the revolution, there was only a token industry, mostly devoted to pornography, and virtually every film came from capitalist countries.

Twenty years later, Cuba produces about 130 films a year — features, documentaries, news-reels and cartoons — the work of 10 feature film directors and about 20 documentary directors. In addition, ICAIC is responsible for over 100 cine-mobile units, which use trucks, and sometimes even boats and mules, to bring movies to the people in remote areas.

In the early days of the Soviet Union, Lenin also stressed the importance of film, especially news-reels, when he told Commissar of Education Anatoli Lunacharsky that "for us, cinema is the most important of all the arts." And like the first revolutionary works of Sergei Eisenstein and Dziga Vertov, Cuban movies are rich in technical finesse, inventive, concrete, and nothing like the Hollywood product they do, in fact, often admire.

In Farber case, higher court to consider privilege

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Supreme Court will take up the question of journalistic privilege when it hears arguments on the refusal of reporter Myron Farber and The New York Times to obey a court order to surrender files on murder defendant Dr. Mario Jascalevich.

The hearing scheduled for today could see the court decide the controversial issue itself, or it could send the case back to Superior Court Judge William Arnold, the presiding judge in Jascalevich's murder trial, who issued the original order for the files.

Last week, the high court suspended the $5,000-a-day contempt fine against The Times and ordered Farber released from jail.

The Times and Farber were found guilty of contempt July 24 after they refused to surrender the files, arguing they were denied a hearing on claims their constitutional and statutory rights had been violated by a subpoena for their files on Jascalevich.

Bergen County authorities reopened their investigation of Jascalevich, on trial on charges he murdered three hospital patients with curare, when Farber wrote a series of stories based on his investigative reporting.

Jascalevich's attorneys have charged Farber collaborated with authorities to bring about Jascalevich's indictment.

Arnold, presiding at the trial, ruled — and higher courts agreed — he could not decide legal issues raised by The Times until he privately reviewed Farber's notes.

It was not until Farber had served 27 days in jail and the Times paid $110,000 in fines that a hearing on their constitutional and statutory claims was granted.

Parties to operate again — sometime

ROME (AP) — Argentina's president defended his military regime today and said political parties will be allowed to operate again "in due time."

President Jorge Rafael Videla, visiting Europe for the first time to attend the inauguration of Pope John Paul I, appeared unruffled by hostile demonstrations against him Sunday, although they were the only sour note during the papal ceremony.

"We understand that a democracy without political parties cannot be considered as such," the 53-year-old general said in an interview with The Associated Press. "Consequently, the political parties whose activities are at present suspended will again be able to function in due time. Not immediately, but when the country is duly reorganized and these parties can stop being vote-gathering enterprises and become true opinion-forming bodies."
