Sears, Roebuck and Co., J.C. Penney and Dillard's will be the three main anchor stores for Midland Park Mall which was to have "blasted off" on construction during groundbreaking ceremonies today. The mall will be located at FM 868 and North Midkiff Road.

New mall groundbreaking today

Construction was to have lifted off with a bang today during a groundbreaking ceremony for Midland Park Mall at FM 868 and North Midkiff Road, and three of the four major stores were to be announced.

Instead of the normal shovels for the groundbreaking, representatives from the developing firm, Melvin Simon and Associates, Inc., and anchor department stores were to have set off blasting charges for the beginning of the 750,000 square foot regional shopping center.

Anchoring three sides of the mall will be Sears, Roebuck and Co., J.C. Penney and Dillard's, according to a spokesman.

The single largest tenant in the climate-controlled mall will be Sears, which will have a 112,684 square foot department store. The two-level store will have about 700 parking spaces and a 14-stall automotive center.

Completion is scheduled for Spring 1980. The new facility will replace the existing one located at Cuthbert and Midkiff Roads, according to Z.D. Hill with Sears. Hill added the new location would be more convenient for their customers.

Next in size will be J.C. Penney with a 100,271 square foot full line unit.

This store will be almost three times the size of its present facility at 212 N. Main St. The first Penney store opened in Midland July 30, 1936, according to a spokesman.

Dillard's will be housed in a 100,000 square foot structure. Construction should not begin until the spring of 1980 with completion planned for the spring of 1981, a spokesman noted.

That store will have a "unique floor plan with a single traffic aisle that will permit shoppers to view all departments in the store with ease and accessibility," according to the Dillard's spokesman.

A color scheme of natural woods and warm tones are planned along with subdued, natural lighting and a mirror application to create a chandelier effect. The Midland store will be the company's 51st in seven states.

A fourth major store is expected to be announced in 45 to 60 days.

About 325,000 square feet will be left for specialty retailers and service merchants.

Developer Fred Simon said the mall will feature storerooms opening onto pedestrian arcades, and shopper avenues with planter areas, seating arrangements and water fountains.

The fully lighted and landscaped parking area will have space for about 4,000 cars.

Local leasing of the mall will be handled by Len Weinman, Heuer, Johns, Neel, Rivers and Webb of Monroe, La., has prepared the basic architectural design of the mall.

Construction will be handled by Kelley Nelson Construction Co. of Little Rock, Ark.

Guard fighting house to house

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — National guardsmen were reported advancing house to house under heavy sniper fire in Masaya during the night, trying to root out leftist guerrillas fighting to overthrow the family dictatorship of President Anastasio Somoza.

Troops in this capital city, meanwhile, reported discovering what they described as "enormous" caches of rebel weapons as they pressed their search for guerrillas in Managua.

In Masaya, helicopter gunships strafed the Sandinista guerrillas from overhead and Somoza's soldiers dashed from doorway to doorway, trying to evade the rifle fire of guerrilla snipers. There was no letup in the din of machine-gun and rifle fire and bomb explosions.

Refugees reported the city of 40,000, a rebel stronghold 18 miles northwest of Managua, was without electricity and running water.

A military source said the rebel weapons caches here included automatic rifles, rockets, home-made noise bombs and Molotov cocktails. The weapons were found in several rebel hideouts, the source said.

Fighting also was reported in the cities of Leon and Esteli, and sporadic shooting and explosions could still be heard in Managua as the capital's central market and gas stations closed for the first time in the 18-day-old general strike against Somoza.

Reports from medical sources and visitors to hospitals indicated at least 100 dead in the Managua area, but many of them apparently were brought in from other areas.

Convoys of national guard trucks and jeeps armed with machine guns passed into Masaya Monday evening. A barricade of rocks and debris formed a checkpoint for the national guard, Nicaragua's army, which barred all civilian traffic and kept the city hidden from view behind a hill.

The soldiers rounded up reporters in Masaya on Monday afternoon and took them out of the city, sealed it off to outsiders including the Red Cross, then launched an attack. Four of the journalists were fired on by an army helicopter but none was hit.

The fighting in Masaya erupted late Saturday night as part of a coordinated attack on smaller army and police posts in most of the Central American nation's cities. The Sandinista guerrillas drove the guardsmen and police from the posts, then waited in hiding to ambush the reinforcements who

Midland park shortage could double next year without action

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second article in a two-part series on the development of more park lands for Midland.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
R-T Staff Writer

The city of Midland is lacking two neighborhood parks and next year will be lacking four if action is not started soon to obtain more recreational playgrounds.

Midland has been growing faster than the parks system, according to Parks and Recreation Director Wayne Kohout.

Kohout said he hopes enforcement of a 1969 city ordinance, discovered only recently, requiring developers to set aside land for neighborhood parks will help the situation.

Currently, the city boasts 29 neighborhood parks (some still undeveloped), one community playground (partly undeveloped) and a regional park.

A majority of the neighborhood parks are located in the southern part of the town and were instituted many years ago when the major growth was there, Kohout said.

But as Midland moved farther north, noted Kohout, parks apparently became less of a priority until today developers are not allotting land for neighborhood parks.

Of major concern are two areas in which development started in the past year. One is bounded by Holiday Hill Road, Midland Drive, FM 868 and Wadley Avenue, while the other is bounded by Wadley Avenue, Holiday Hill Road, Andrews Highway and Midland Drive.

The city Parks and Recreation Department has been allotted $25,000 to purchase park land this year, and Kohout said he hopes that will be enough to purchase land in those two areas.

Two other areas to consider next year are bounded by FM 868, Wadley Avenue, Midland Drive and Midkiff Road, said Kohout.

"We probably should have already had the land for two and thinking about two more," Kohout said.

Neighborhood parks, he explained, should be at a ratio of one to every square mile and ought to be bounded by major streets.

The city is on the brink of not meeting this ratio, he maintained.

A city should have a community playground park in each of four sections

Cap Rock Cooperative yearly feed 'outdoes itself'; may be biggest STANTON — James Eiland knows exactly where his paycheck is coming from — the people. And he's aiming to please.

Eiland, manager of Cap Rock Electric Cooperative, Inc., was telling the co-op's membership in a picnic outing here last weekend that the co-op is doing its level best to boost service.

"Our intentions are good," he said over the public address system.

"Sometimes our communications break down. We're not perfect, but we're trying. We know where our money's coming from."

People who are paying the bills like to hear that kind of lingo — especially if they know it's weighted with truth and is not feigned.

Eiland, like Co-op President Bob Cox, was one of the warm-up speakers at the 39th annual meeting — flavored with barbecue suppers for 2,100-plus folks — of the co-op at Stanton High School's Fighting Buffalos football stadium. The co-op, which buys its power at a discount from Texas Electric Service Co., has more than 3,500 members in 13 counties and gets the electricity to them via 3,672 miles of transmission lines. Many of the members are in rural areas.

The big wig at the fete was Jim Morriss, manager of Texas Electric Cooperative, Austin, and a spokesman for rural electrification.

Dutifully, he lauded Cap Rock, one of 80 electric co-ops in the state, and said the workings of the co-ops is just about ideal. The people rule.

"This is the finest example of participation between the governed (the management) and the government (the people) that this nation has seen," Morriss said. "The idea was right, and it has worked well."

He mentioned the increasing power rates, but reminded the membership that the co-op's nine member directors, who also pay bills, are not going to over charge.

"I don't know of anybody who will raise their electric bill just for the fun of it."

The Cap Rock feed, as usual, brought in the folks and just about out did itself this year.

"I believe this is about the biggest one yet," said Ulen North, the co-op's distribution engineer. John Hackney of Johnny's Barbecue in Midland and his crew helped the Saturday night crowd get rid of the hungry with 2,000 pounds of barbecued beef, ham and hot links in addition to the other fillings: potatoes, staw-salad, beans and plenty of iced tea.

Among the hundreds in line for the feed was Stanton's own Alton Turner, a retired grocer who got bored in retirement and re-entered the business.

He's been right here in Martin County most of his days, though he admits that once or twice he rolled like that stone that gathered no moss.

All in all, Turner says it's best not to move around so much.

"The grass will get greener if you stay put."

If you don't like the weather in West Texas, just wait a minute. If you can't wait, try moving down the road a few miles.

Midlanders saw the truth in that adage Sunday. The "official rain gauge" at the National Weather Service office at Regional Airport remained dry while drivers near downtown were confronted with a bright rainbow and suddenly flooded streets from an "unofficial" downpour.

The situation is not unusual, according to Jim Lunney, meteorologist in charge at the office.

The rain gauge at the air terminal is "supposed to be representative of our local forecast area. Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't, but over a 20 year period it works out."

Observers throughout the 17-county area the Midland office monitors call in with reports of an inch or more of rain, but "if we tried to keep records of every shower in 17 counties, that would be an awful lot of reports," Lunney said.

"We believe people when they call to say it rained, but if we can't measure it, we don't report it for our climatological records."

The climatological records of what has happened in past, together with sophisticated sensing and recording devices and elaborate communications systems help produce a forecast that is updated at least three times a day, Lunney said.

In addition to the sophisticated technology, "someone still goes outside every hour to check sky conditions and the like," Lunney noted.

The bearded meteorologist says the Weather Service generally has an accuracy rating of about 85 percent, a number that has not changed since Lunney joined the agency some 32 years ago.

In spite of more sophisticated measuring tools, radar and better communications, Lunney notes "there are just so many variables that can kick a forecast into a bucket."

The changeable West Texas weather, however, is no harder to predict than conditions anywhere else, the veteran forecaster says.

"That's a lot of propaganda that some weathermen put out. If anything, it should be easier here on the plains.

"The truth is, it's hard anywhere."

Forecasting is simpler some times of the year than others, however. "This time of year, it's easy. Just predict scattered thundershowers in the afternoon.

"It's easy to say 'hot today,' 'hot yesterday,' 'hot tomorrow.' It's the one in between that changes that's hard, and that's the one that matters."

While predicting changes in the weather is always difficult, Lunney says there are areas where the 85 percent accuracy rating can be increased.

"If you want to up your percentage in El Paso, just don't predict rain till you see it."

For Lunney, the percentage probability of rain in the forecast does not carry the same meaning as it does for many of those who read it.

"I'm told the public wants a percent of probability, so we put one out, but it doesn't mean that much."

"A 20 percent chance of rain is the lowest we mention. That means we don't really think it's going to rain. The percentage has to be 40 percent

Even though the weather has been on a warming trend lately, it has not quite reached the temperature shown on the sign at Citizen's Savings on the corner of Texas Avenue and Loraine Street Monday. Tom McConnell, left, and Mike Sherman, both of Elk, Okla., may be trying to decide if the sign is right or if their imaginations are at fault. Later reports on the sign's malfunction indicated that it topped out at 191 degrees. (Staff photo by Mike Kardos)

Forecasts' accuracy explained

(Continued from Page 1A) or better before we think it's going to rain." Although the accuracy percentage has not increased in the more than 30 years Lunney has worked at the weather service, he feels the agency is doing a better job of letting people know what to expect than ever before.

"Now we have teletypes, a weather hotline, telephones and a more sophisticated communication system that will be installed next year." The addition of inexpensive weather radios with severe weather warning tones is another innovation Lunney feels helps the service do its job.

Nicaraguan guard leading new advance

(Continued from Page 1A) were sent to man the posts. Reports from Esteli, 90 miles north of Managua, were sketchy. Telephone communications were cut Sunday night, but a refugee said Monday that fighting was still very heavy and that he had seen five truckloads of guerrillas approaching from the north.

Security precautions in Managua were extremely tight. The Hotel Intercontinental, normally flood-lit at night and a prominent feature on the Managua skyline, was blacked out and soldiers patrolled the roof. Guests were warned not to let any light filter through the heavy curtains in their rooms.

Enforcement of ordinance may aid Midland's shortage of parks

(Continued from Page 1A) of the city, and from one to two regional parks for each city, according to the department head. Neighborhood parks ideally consist of six to eight acres and could include a small ballfield, said Kohout.

He added it is easier to locate a park next to a school and share it — along with the cost of operating it — with the school system, as in the case of Ulmer, Washington and Dunagan parks.

In the past it has been easy to purchase land from schools, Kohout said, "because they have a lot of foresight for land acquisition." The closest thing to a community playground for Midland is Ulmer Park, he said, and that has not been developed fully.

Hogan Park is considered the city's regional park, said Kohout. By the time Midland hits the 100,000 population mark, there will be a definite need for another one, he claimed. Regional parks ordinarily include golf courses, large picnic areas, swimming pools and lighted ballfields, Kohout explained.

The parks department has started looking at House Park located between Manchester Street and Ric Drive, he said. That area has been developing this past year and may need the park area to be developed as well, according to Kohout.

Commissioners won't block facility until land acquired

(Continued from Page 1A) wait and see what develops in Odessa before considering the merits of an injunction. "If Odessa plans to use all that effluent for irrigation and other purposes, there might not be any need to file an injunction. We are interested in whatever they're going to do. If we do consider an injunction, that's a matter which will first be discussed in executive session," said Wright.

After a large rain, water from the city spills over into these lakes, making some of them unusable for several days until the water dries up, Hennessy added. He commented that the city can not depend upon dedications of this type to continue the park system.

The south part of the city has a near surplus of neighborhood parks, according to Kohout. He said the department may try to determine if those persons who at one time donated land for a park in areas now deemed "over parked" might agree to sell the land and purchase land in an area now more suitable or vital as concerns new parks.

The Planning and Zoning Commission and Parks and Recreation Commission will hold a joint meeting at 3 p.m. Oct. 2 to discuss park planning.

Concert to open long-awaited center

A long-time dream for Midland will come true Friday night when the first event is held in the newly completed Chaparral Center on the Midland College campus. The popular Captain and Tennille Show is slated as the first event for the long-awaited community multi-purpose center.

Although all of the floor seats have long been sold, a number of other tickets still are on sale for the event. Tickets are priced at $7.50 per person and are available in Midland at both Music Haul locations, No. 11 Meta Drive in the Village and San Miguel Square, or at Endless Horizons in Odessa.

Concession stands and restrooms are located near the building's four entrances. The large open floor area is covered with a resilient-poured flooring, gold in color. It is marked for both basketball and tennis. For the opening show and similar types of events, the floor will be covered with 42-inch squares of thin plastic that fit together like giant jigsaw puzzle pieces.

ditional spectator comfort. The Captain and Tennille will perform on a 40-by-60-foot portable stage that raises them six feet above floor level. The portable stage, four spot lights, and the stage lighting are all part of the Chaparral Center equipment. Although it won't be in use Friday night, visitors will notice the large four-sided electronic scoreboard near the ceiling.

Under a permit granted by the Texas Water Quality Board on the last day of its existence as a separate agency and fortified by a subsequent decision on the part of the Texas Railroad Commission following a hearing, the city of Odessa will be allowed to dump up to 5.22 million gallons a day of treated sewage effluent from the new plant into Monahans Draw in Midland County.

Asbestos leads list of 'killers'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exposure to cancer-causing chemicals at American work sites may cause at least 20 percent of all cancer deaths — or nearly 80,000 people each year — with asbestos apparently the No. 1 chemical killer, government scientists say. The new estimates are sharply higher than past figures which placed the cancer toll from occupational exposure at only 1 percent to 5 percent.

sites, estimating it could run as high as 38 percent. The scientists based their findings not on new medical research, but on new statistical analyses of the number of workers exposed to cancer-causing chemicals on the job and their risk of incurring cancer. Califano told an AFL-CIO conference on occupational safety and health about the new estimate and released a five-page draft summary of the study. HEW scientists are putting the study into final form to submit to the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration by Friday.

Some have said the standards are not needed because the incidence of occupational cancer was low. Dr. David P. Rall, director of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, said scientists who made the low estimates "just haven't looked carefully enough at the problem." The study singles out asbestos, the fire-resistant chemical used in a host of fields from construction to auto brake linings, as the worst offender. HEW began a campaign in April to alert the estimated 8 million to 11 million Americans who have been exposed to asbestos since World War II about its long-term effects.

Six persons die in fire in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Six persons, two of them children, died this morning in an apartment fire just north of downtown. A fire department spokesman said five bodies were found in an upstairs bathroom of a two-story apartment complex. The sixth victim, a woman, died at a local hospital where she had been taken in critical condition. Four of the victims were believed to be members of the same family — husband, wife and two young children. The other body found in the bathroom was of an adult male. The fire department received its first call shortly after 7 a.m. Lt. Tom Oney said the first units arriving at 3400 Cole saw flames leaping from the upstairs windows, and by 7:16 a.m. four alarms had been sounded. The blaze was brought under control by 7:40 a.m., Oney said.

Sunshine without scorching temperatures in forecast

The weather seems to be cooperating in the last days of the summer season. Those sun worshippers lingering in the last rays before the onset of autumn won't have to cope with the scorching temperatures which sometimes accompany early September in West Texas. The weatherman said the high Wednesday should be only in the upper 80s with the low tonight to drop to the middle 60s. High Monday was 89 degrees with the overnight low 69 degrees, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

There was no rain reported at the airport Monday, and no mention of the possibility in the forecast. Area towns reported cool temperatures and clear skies today.

Constitution of U.S.A.

It was 191 years ago this coming Sunday, Sept. 17, 1787, that the Constitution of the United States was adopted.

The great document remains, as William Gladstone once termed it "the most remarkable work in modern times produced by the human intellect."

It is fitting, indeed, that the United States should observe each Sept. 17 as "Constitution Day," ushering in, as it does annually, the nationwide observance of "Constitution Week."

The national observance is sponsored by Daughters of the American Revolution as a major project.

As a means of generating renewed interest and enthusiasm in advance of the local observance, the two Midland chapters of the D.A.R. — Lt. William Brewer and Col. Theunis Dey — are staging their annual Constitution Week dinner Wednesday night in the Midland Woman's Club.

Dr. Guy D. Newman, president emeritus of Howard Payne University at Brownwood, a true patriot and a leading exponent of America's constitutional government and its free enterprise system, will be the principal speaker. Dr. Newman, founder of the Howard Payne University Douglas MacArthur Academy of Freedom, has received numerous awards for his endeavors in this regard. He is an ideal choice for the Wednesday night speaking assignment here.

Now, back to the subject at hand, the Constitution of the United States of America, the document is the oldest constitution still in active use in the world today. It is the basic document of the United States Government, a government which protects the individual liberties of its citizens.

This is what makes the document so very important to each and every citizen of this great land — it protects the individual liberties of its citizens.

And yet, all too many Americans are not at all familiar with the document which cites their rights as citizens.

This is a major objective of the D.A.R. in sponsoring the Constitution Week observance — to interest citizens of all walks and in all regions to read and study the Constitution.

And there is no better time to read the document than during Constitution Week.

Most Americans perhaps know the Preamble to the Constitution of the United States:

"We the people of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States of America."

Yes, we know the Preamble by heart, in most cases, but how about the Constitution itself? How long has it been since you read it carefully? Remember, the price of liberty is eternal vigilance.

The sponsors of the week-long observance point out that the ideals upon which the Constitution is based are reinforced each day by the success of the system to which it gave birth. The system, however, cannot function without an enlightened public.

And don't forget, please, that there are those today who would alter or destroy this precious document which protects your freedom and mine. But how in the world can we defend effectively our system of freedom if we are not familiar with the Constitution which guarantees it?

There is no doubt the Constitution has provided the American people with a more enduring and practical government and a greater degree of prosperity than any other people have ever had, and we should not take this fact lightly.

The Constitution most certainly merits the all-out confidence and support of every citizen of this great and free land.

Drug smuggling enriches Mafia

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Millions of Americans look upon cocaine and marijuana as recreational drugs no worse than the liquor their contemporaries consume.

But the purchase of illegal drugs, whatever their health hazard, subsidizes organized crime. The pocket money that buys a marijuana but or a cocaine snort also pays for bribery and murder.

For the Mafia has turned drug smuggling into a major industry. The crime lords ship illicit drugs into the United States by the tons. They hire professional pilots to fly cocaine and pot into remote airfields. Cargo ships, known as "mother ships," carry tons of marijuana into American waters. Then barges and boats haul the loot into Florida coves and other secret ports.

In the past few months, federal authorities have seized 41 ships hauling illegal cargo. "It's a billion-dollar business," Drug Enforcement chief Peter Bensingher told our associate Jack Mitchell.

Even more ominous is the increasing flow of deadly heroin into this country. For years, the Mafia traffickers imported cheap, brown heroin, known in the streets as "Mexican mud." But the Mexican authorities began an intensive spraying campaign that wiped out most Mexican poppy fields and drastically reduced the supply of Mexican heroin.

Intelligence reports claim the criminal godfathers have now turned their traditional home, the island of Sicily, into a distribution center for white heroin. The stuff is brought to Sicily from Southeast Asia and the Middle East.

Heroin from Asia's "Golden Triangle" is four times purer than Mexican mud. Just a few kilograms smuggled into the United States provides millions for the mob to launder through its network of bank accounts.

One center for the new drug-smuggling operation appears to be New York's John F. Kennedy airport. In the last six months, agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration have seized nearly 13 kilograms of white heroin that turned out to be 60 to 100 percent pure. The heroin, worth at least $20 million on the black market, was traced back to Sicily.

Despite the seizures, Customs Commissioner Robert Chasen admitted that "we are woefully outnumbered and outgunned by the smugglers ... We cannot adequately guard our borders." He told us that ocean ships cannot be intercepted by his agency outside the three-mile limit. Red tape is making it difficult even to prosecute the American operators who run the ships.

INSURANCE FLAP: Some of the nation's insurance firms are pushing deceptive life insurance policies that are too complex for the average person to understand. They are getting away with it because the insurance industry has been exempt from federal regulation for nearly three decades.

This leaves state commissioners as the public's last line of defense. But congressional investigators have found that many state officials are

ASIAN HOLOCAUST: Slaughter in Cambodia: 'Auschwitz of Asia'

By JAMES CARY Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The indifference that has masked widespread charges the Communist regime in Cambodia has slaughtered up to 2.5 million of its own people is being slowly lifted around the world.

Part of the change comes from Geneva, Switzerland, where a Human Rights Subcommittee has opened the United Nations' first investigation of this reported modern-day holocaust.

The issue also got a lift in Washington recently when Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., angrily proposed at a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee hearing that an international force be formed to halt the killing.

Still more information is now surfacing in the form of a massive State Department report that brings together under one cover the most complete documentation yet made available on the Cambodian allegations.

The report was transmitted to the full U. N. Human Rights Commission on July 6.

It contains eye-witness accounts taken from Cambodian refugees by American Embassy personnel at camps in Thailand.

It also presents extracts from embassy reports to Washington, statements by President Carter and other officials on Cambodia, transcripts of congressional hearings on the Cambodian charges and portions of two books — "Cambodia, Year Zero," by Francois Ponchaud, and "Murder of a Gentle Land," by John Barron and Anthony Paul.

At no point does the report present a U.S. government estimate of how many persons have been killed in Cambodia, although it contains various estimates made by others.

Robert Oakley, deputy assistant secretary of state, at the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee hearing likewise refused to make an estimate. But he did say "the U.S. government is confident that ... perhaps hundreds of thousands of people have been killed since the Communist takeover," in 1975.

Others have not been so cautious. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, on June 12 charged that up to 10 to 30 percent of the seven million Cambodian people had been murdered. He called this worse than Stalinism. McGovern said this "murderous gang ... may have killed in three years as many as one-third of the people."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., has estimated the toll at one million.

And Leo Cherne, chairman of the International Rescue Committee, suggested to a House International Relations subcommittee on June 8 that the words of Cambodian leaders themselves indicate up to three million persons may have died.

"We know that No. 2 man Khieu San Pan gave an interview ... on a visit to Ceylon in which he said today's population of Cambodia is five million. It was over eight million in 1973," Cherne said.

The Cambodian tragedy has been known for some time, but its exact proportions have been obscured by the isolation of the present Cambodian government. It has diplomatic relations with only nine nations and keeps their diplomats cooped up almost in a form of house arrest.

The government has also delegated a great deal of authority to cadres running the thousands of Cambodian villages, where most of the former city-dwelling Cambodians have been moved by forced marches.

Still a basic outline of what has taken place has been pieced together from many sources, presenting a picture of starvation, beatings and brutality.

The IRC, America's main non-sectarian agency for helping persons forced to flee their own countries, has provided one of the most complete assessments. Says Cherne:

"Cambodia is the Auschwitz (notorious Nazi death camp) of Asia and what has happened and is happening there most nearly resembles the massive slaughter of the innocents in Nazi Germany ..."

"The events started immediately after the Communist takeover) with the expulsion of three million people from every city and town in Cambodia ... I know of no such episode in all of recorded history. The sick, the old, the pregnant, patients in the midst of incomplete surgery ... were required to leave without food, water or other provisions. ... During this forced march of about 65 miles into the jungle ... as many as 500,000 could not complete that journey ..."

After that he said, Cambodia acknowledged various groups were marked for elimination — teachers, Buddhist monks, virtually all military personnel from the previous republican regime, anyone who had worked for the former government.

Other studies conducted by Canada and Norway have reported similar findings, and so too have the stories of the refugees themselves.

INSIDE REPORT:

'New Right' opposes GOP's Senate candidate in Maine

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

AUGUSTA, Me. — In a paradox of ominous import for the Republican party, Rep. William Cohen's bid for the Senate seat now held by liberal Democratic Sen. William Hathaway is threatened by a "constitutional conservative" candidate running as an independent and backed by the national "New Right" political apparatus.

The objective: to transfer enough votes from Cohen to 30-year-old Hayes Gahagan, the Bible-quoting independent, to guarantee the election of Hathaway, a liberal Democrat, over an impure Republican. That would wreck the Republican party's most glittering prospect for defeating an incumbent Democratic senator.

The paradox lies in the fact that moderate-liberal Cohen is supported by the Republican conservative establishment, including Ronald Reagan, Rep. Jack Kemp and Utah's Sen. Orrin Hatch.

Praising Cohen's "excellent record" as a three-term congressman, Kemp on Aug. 14 wrote Maine businessmen urging "strong support" for Cohen. Reagan personally endorsed Cohen here Feb. 9.

Reagan went further. He telephoned Cyril Joly, a conservative who ran Reagan's 1976 presidential campaign here and resigned as Republican national committeeman to work for Gahagan, in a vain effort to dissuade Joly from breaking with his party and Bill Cohen. Joly and State Rep. Walter Hichens are the only regular Republicans backing

Evans Novak

Gahagan.

At 38, Cohen is one of the bright, young stars in the beleaguered Republican party. But he is far from toeing the line of ideological purity demanded by the New Right, which wants to bar him from the Senate in the effort to mold the party to orthodoxy. "Case is gone and Javits is going," one New Right leader told us privately, referring to long-time liberal Republican Sens. Clifford Case and Jacob K. Javits. Case was defeated by conservative Jeff Bell in the New Jersey senatorial primary; Javits is 74 years old and may not run again.

Thus, when Gahagan formally announced his candidacy July 4, flanked by a replica of the Liberty Bell, the New Right offered immediate political goodies:

Campaign indoctrination courses by the National Conservative Political Action Committee for both Gahagan and his campaign manager; $1,000 contribution from NCPAC plus political "services"; $1,000 from the Committee for the Survival of a Free

Congress; $500 from the Coors employees' political action committee; campaign school for two Gahagan youth volunteers, courtesy Young Americans for Freedom.

Cohen now holds a margin easily comfortable enough to elect him — in a two-man race. But Gahagan may peel off 5 to 10 percent of Cohen's vote — possibly enough to elect Hathaway.

This would have been laughable four years ago. That was before James B. Longley, running as a conservative independent, stumped this state by getting elected governor. Longley, who is not running for reelection, is neutral in the Senate contest, but his precedent-setting 1974 victory, coupled with his extraordinarily high popularity today, has set an enticing example. Maine's notoriously unstructured voters are disillusioned with politics-as-usual; Gahagan's simplistic pledge for drastic reduction of federal spending and interference in state affairs and against what he calls "the flim-flam" of traditional politics could have some impact on independent-minded Down-Easters.

Cohen has formidable assets. "Billy is a smart politician," a top Hathaway operative told us, "but more important, he is a captivating courtier. Women look into his blue eyes and he sweeps them away."

He has "swept away" maverick Democratic Mayor Lillian Caron of Lewiston, Maine's Democratic stronghold, who is campaigning for him there and in the heavily Franco-American hamlets of the St. John River valley. William Rogers, former national commander of the American Legion, heads his veterans' committee — a pointed rebuttal to New Right charges that Cohen is soft on defense.

Indeed, the New Right case against Cohen is spotty. He opposed the Panama Canal treaties (but not early enough to suit the New Right); the defense-oriented American Security Council rates him 78 percent (compared to Hathaway's 20 percent) on "key" national security issues; he is an original sponsor of the Kemp-Roth tax reduction bill; he has serious doubts about the new SALT treaty.

The New Right's nightmare is not Cohen's record but the spectre of a formidable moderate Republican in the Senate who is convinced that there must be room for diversity in the Republican party — a conviction that elected Republican officeholders overwhelmingly share.

We reported that AT&T cuts off telephone service to subscribers who don't pay their bills but that "service is not interrupted" for delinquent congressmen. "The taxpayers are stuck with the bills," we added.

Left out was a line explaining that the General Services Administration pays for the telephone service on Capitol Hill. That's why the taxpayers get stuck with the bills.

But without the omitted line, the story left the impression that AT&T cuts off the service for ordinary deadbeats but does not interrupt service for congressional deadbeats. The service is not cut, we emphasize, because the taxpayers pay the bills. We apologize to AT&T for the omission.

Firefighters confront brush fire near Denver

DENVER (AP) — Weary, face-blackened firefighters confronted unpredictable winds as a forest and brush fire burned out of control today in the foothills southwest of Denver.

Forest fire teams from California joined more than 250 firefighters, including state forest workers, men from volunteer fire companies, and Lowry Air Force Base personnel in battling the blaze that has destroyed 1,800 acres of timber and rangeland.

"Nobody seems to have any idea how it started," said Dale Shaw, a Fort Collins-based official of the Colorado State Forest Service.

As a potential danger area on the south perimeter of the 28-square-mile fire area was contained, new hot spots broke out in thick stands of pine to the northeast.

"The flames were exploding in the trees," said a helicopter pilot, and the Large space satellite to plunge to earth

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the largest space satellites ever launched will plunge back into the atmosphere within a few days and even though some parts might hit the earth, the space agency says it poses little danger to humans.

Pegasus 1 was fired into orbit in 1965 and once there unfolded two wing-like arms to a span of 96 feet, giving it the appearance of a huge, gleaming space bird. Thin aluminum patches on the wings were rigged electronically to measure meteoroid penetrations.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Monday Pegasus 1 is expected to make a fiery plunge into the atmosphere Sunday, but the dive could come a day earlier or later.

The North American Air Defense Command in Colorado Springs, Colo., made the estimation based on tracking data which shows atmospheric friction causing the spacecraft to slow and be pulled toward earth by gravi-

Celebrated cathouse bites dust

DALLAS (AP) — A year after it was transported to Dallas and two months after all its contents were sold at auction, a bored quartet of workers is reducing Texas' most famous bordello to a faceless pile of junk.

The La Grange Chicken Ranch—called a cancer by a television crusader, a lousy restaurant by Dallas diners and worthy of Broadway musical by theatrical producers—has finally gone the way of all flesh.

"I never heard anything about it before," the foreman of the wrecking crew said this week. "I just heard a little whiff of it when we started working. They told me it used to be the biggest warehouse there ever was in Texas. To me it's just another job."

The Chicken Ranch, which dates back as far as 1844, was Texas' most celebrated cathouse until Gov. Dolph Briscoe finally closed it down five years ago.

Some enterprising businessmen transported the Chicken Ranch to Dallas last year and turned it into a restaurant. It promptly flopped.

After its contents were auctioned off, various schemes were proposed to keep the corpse intact, including a plan by one La Grange businessman to bring it home and open it as a museum.

Dallas investor Stanley Kline, who owns the property where the building was set up as a restaurant, failed to see much commercial potential in a modest frame building that once served as a cathouse. He finally decided to knock the place down.

"It's completely gone, completely gone. It's just trash. It no longer exists," said Kline, who makes no pretense of interest in the building's historic past. "I don't want to sound rude, but it's just a nuisance to me. It's of no interest to me whatsoever."

Miss Edna Milton, curator of the original establishment before it fell victim to the righteous wrath of the state, isn't too sentimental about the building either.

"Probably the quickest way to get rid of it would have been to call the fire department and have them burn it," she said. "It was like trying to keep a corpse alive when they brought it here, and they should have buried it in La Grange."

"It's like when a person you care about dies, you can't mourn about it forever. When an old building dies, it dies," she added.

The only remnant of the building's past is a replica of the rules of the house plastered to a wall, replete with such dicta as, "All boarders and pimps are to stay off the back road."

But mostly, it's just some junky old building well on its way to becoming certified junk.

Convicted murderer killed during escape

BEACON, N.Y. (AP) — Robert Garrow, who confessed to four killings, was shot and killed by authorities Monday after wounding a prison guard about a mile from the prison where he was being held, officials said.

Acting state Corrections Commissioner Richard Hongisto said Garrow was shot by authorities after he ignored a command to surrender and shot a guard in the leg.

When Garrow was spotted lying on the ground near an interstate highway, Hongisto said, "He was told 'Stay where you are.'"

"He opened fire, the officers returned fire and killed Garrow on the spot," Hongisto said.

It was not known how Garrow got the pistol he had with him. Although he had managed to get past the fence around the medium security Fishkill Correctional Facility, he apparently spent three days within a 9-foot-high fence around the 700-acre prison grounds.

In Albany, Ruby Ryles, a spokesman for the Correctional Services Department, said the wounded guard, Dominic Arena, 25, of Katonah, N.Y., was in good condition at a hospital in Poughkeepsie. Arena was a corrections officer at the nearby Green Haven prison.

State prison authorities said Garrow, who was partially paralyzed five years ago, had been sent to a building housing elderly and disabled prisoners at Fishkill because he was confined to a wheelchair.

The chair was found in his empty cell Saturday morning. It was not clear how he escaped or whether he was standing, walking or running when he was killed.

Ms. Ryles said earlier Monday there was "absolutely no evidence" that Garrow was faking paralysis that prison doctors said affected his left leg and arm.

"He was confined to a wheelchair or a bed all the time," Ms. Ryles said.

In 1973, Garrow was a suspect in the killing of Philip Dombrowski, 18, of Schenectady, N.Y., whose body was found with a knife in the chest and tied to a tree in the Adirondacks.

For 11 days, Garrow stayed in the woods, eluding authorities, before he was captured. He was shot and partially paralyzed.

A year later, Garrow was convicted of killing Dombrowski, and was sentenced to 25 years to life in prison.

But while he was being tried, Garrow confessed to killing two other campers — Daniel Porter, 22, of Concord, Mass., and Susan Petz, 21, of Skokie, Ill. — the strangling of Alicia Hauck, 16, and seven rapes.

New improprieties surfacing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Services Administration, already the object of several federal investigations, has been paying millions of dollars to a New Jersey firm for chairs and file cabinets that do not meet specifications, it was reported today.

The Washington Post, quoting unnamed sources, said that GSA investigators had found the contract violations in an examination of Art Metal Inc., the agency's main supplier of office furniture.

GSA technicians who examined and tested the office furniture supplied by Art Metal found that it bore little resemblance to what GSA had specified when it sought bids from manufacturers, the sources were quoted as saying.

Although GSA knew from pre-production tests that the office chairs did not meet specifications, the agency chose to ignore those findings earlier this year and award Art Metal a $5.5 million contract to make the chairs, The Post said.

In the process, GSA turned down bids from three other firms whose chairs met specifications, sources told the newspaper.

Philip J. Kurens, president of Art Metal, was quoted as saying he couldn't comment on the

Odessa doctor loses court reinstatement bid

An Odessa doctor lost another battle Monday in his bid to have operating privileges reinstated at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa.

Dr. Inayat I. Lalani, who was suspended by the hospital's executive committee May 18 after being charged with lack of sound surgical judgment and operating without assistance, was denied an injunction against the hospital's action Monday by U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. after a three-hour hearing at the Federal Court Building in Midland.

Lalani's attorney, Dan Sullivan, argued that the doctor was denied procedural due process as provided by the 14th amendment to the Constitution at the ad hoc committee which last month upheld the executive committee's decision.

However, Wood Monday denied the injunction, citing a case he heard several years ago in which he said the courts should not interfere with the review or selection process of a hospital staff.

Sullivan said his client plans to appeal Wood's decision to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Sullivan contended that Lalani was denied the right to face his accusers during the ad hoc committee review process.

Lawyers for Medical Center Hospital contended Lalani had been allowed to present his case before the ad hoc committee.

Birth has Osmond on buying binge

PROVO, Utah (AP) — When Wayne Osmond, of the singing Osmond family, learned of the birth of his son, he went on a shopping spree for baseball and football gear.

Steven Wayne weighed six pounds, 11 ounces and was 19 inches long when he was born Wednesday to Wayne and Kathy Osmond at the University of Utah Medical Center in Salt Lake City, said family spokesman Ron Clark.

Kathy, a former Miss Utah, married Wayne in 1975. The couple have a daughter, Amy, who will be 2 in November.

"Wayne was so pleased and excited about his new son he went out on a shopping spree and came home with a load of baseball and football gear," Clark said.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul I, declaring "all men are hungry and thirsty for peace," says he is praying for the success of the Mideast peace talks at Camp David and is impressed that the men involved seek help in public prayer.

Speaking in Italian Sunday to a crowd of 80,000 from the window of his apartment overlooking St. Peter's Square, the pontiff said the desire for peace was especially fervent among the poor, "because they suffer the most as a result of troubles and wars."

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat attended Moslem prayer services Friday at the Maryland mountain retreat, where he, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and President Carter are discussing a Middle East settlement.

Begin observed the Jewish Sabbath on Saturday and President Carter participated in Protestant services Sunday.

Mother feels relief

MIAMI (AP) — Vicki Holtz says "no one could have helped" her 18-year-old son, who died after getting high on drugs in what had become virtually a daily habit. "I feel relieved. That is my main feeling," she says.

"I sort of feel like his life with us ended quite a while ago. I think he ceased to exist in my feelings," Mrs. Holtz said as she watched her son buried.

As Steve Holtz' friends and relatives tell it, the night of Aug. 25 started much as nearly every night had for the past three years. He snorted cocaine with friends then staggered home.

Steve spoke little, and then incoherently. He went into the bathroom and his brother and their friends gathered around to watch him pour a small cellophane bag of "angel dust" on a mirror. He inhaled the white dust through a rolled $10 bill.

When Mrs. Holtz arrived home, she found Steve passed out on the living room couch. She was angry and exasperated. "I won't put up with this stuff anymore. This is the end," she snapped.

She told her sons Michael, 14, and Eric, 12, to carry Steve out to the back yard to sleep it off. Three hours later he was dead.

Mrs. Holtz said that for the past three years Steve had been high nearly daily and used a variety of drugs, including angel dust, cocaine, Quaaludes, hallucinogenic mushrooms, speed and marijuana. When unable to raise drug money by stealing, he fashioned makeshift drugs from household items, his brothers said.

Friends said Steve's drug habit worsened after an auto accident in 1974 that killed his father, James Holtz, 41, a professor of finance at Florida International University. Mrs. Holtz also was in the accident, spent four months in the hospital and suffered brain damage that left her with a limp, slurred speech and a partial memory loss.

The program, "Find Out for Yourself," was led by Thelma Echois and was followed with a group discussion and social period.

Tom Jones returning the favor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women have done so much for his career that he wanted to do something for them, singer Tom Jones says.

So Jones, prompted by Midge Costanza, agreed to perform a benefit concert for the Equal Rights Amendment ratification fund of the National Organization for Women.

The concert, which will also feature singer Tina Turner, was scheduled for Monday night.

And if unliberated housewives throw roses, hotel room keys, and sometimes their panties at the singing Welshman, what will feminists throw?

"Pies, maybe," said Jones. "But just as long as it's nothing too heavy."

Ms. Costanza, at the time a presidential assistant, met Jones when he visited the White House in June, decided the ERA needed some supporters with sex appeal, and persuaded him to perform for NOW.

Taking a break during rehearsals Sunday night, Jones said he was curious about how activists of the women's movement would respond to his very macho performance, especially since he was still trying to live down his comments about career women from years ago.

"I never said that all women belong in the home. I just said that I want my wife to stay at home," explained Jones. "I would not want to be married to a career woman because that would take up too much of her time away from me."

"But if some women want to work, that's fine. A liberated woman is someone who is doing exactly what she wants to do," he said.

Do you take 'no' personally?

By DR. LAURA SCHLESSINGER
Copley News Service

People respond to being told "no" in several ways. Some fight, argue, persevere, threaten, plead — anything to coerce the other to change "no" into "yes." Others collapse into an emotionally soggy heap of self-pity, self-hate or brewing anger. Still others will urge for clarification and explanation. Surely all of us feel some sort of inner twinge when we're told "no."

As children we have all heard the word "no" with some regularity. As adults, "No, you can't go because you've been bad." As arbitrary: "No, you can't because I said so." As judgmental: "No, you can't because you're not old enough (or mature or responsible)." As protective: "No, because you would get hurt." As moralistic: "No, because it's wrong." As instructive: "No, because there are things you have to learn in life."

No matter how benevolent or malevolent the intentions of the no-givers, their power to say and enforce the word emphasizes our feelings of helplessness and dependency.

For many, these feelings breed resentment, frustration and anger, which may be turned inward because of the individual's fear of antagonizing or losing the parent.

If, in making the transition to adulthood, these issues are not resolved, the individual may react to being told "no" by re-living, or rather re-feeling, these early frustrations and insecurities.

Albert has pretty much always gotten what he set out to achieve either in business or with women. To accomplish his goals he will resort to deceit or manipulation without blinking an eyelash. "Nothing whets my appetite more than hearing no. I find hearing that word both erotic and challenging. And I always win."

Whenever Judy is told no, she crumbles. It takes her weeks, sometimes months, to recuperate from the shock. "When someone says no, I feel mortally wounded. I even get a shortness of breath. I don't even try working for things at my job or asking for something from my friends anymore because I just can't deal with it. I'm becoming a hermit."

Glen calmly requests a detailed explanation of the motives for saying no and the real significance of the response. "I just like to understand. If I can understand all the reasons then I feel better about being told no. Without explanations I just go crazy."

What do these three have in common? They all take the word "no" personally. They have not learned to differentiate themselves from others and other's wishes and needs. The word "no" is interpreted as a rejection of their person, their worth.

For Albert, overcoming a "no" gives him a sense of importance. He needs constant confirmation that he is special. He cannot tolerate a "no" because he feels he will be nullified; he has a constant, insatiable need for approval and gratification of his wishes.

Judy takes the word "no" as a rebuke or rejection and behaves like an admonished child by sitting in the corner and holding her breath. She won't give or interact because she might be told "no."

Glen must rationalize the situation in great detail before he can exist comfortably with hearing "no." His lingering self-doubts must be dealt with repetitively. He lives in a state of constant self-rehabilitation.

No one really likes to be told "no," of course. But the degree to which someone feels devastated by this word is dependent upon their own sense of personal security.

A secure person is able to identify the no-sayer as a separate person, involved with his own needs, wants and feelings, and who is acting on the basis of these and not us.

But when "no" rekindles memories of powerlessness, frustration and anger often experienced as children without much control over our lives, then the present becomes a distortion and our ability to relate to others is compromised.

If you are taking "no" personally, then you are not relating to the immediate situation, but to some feelings within yourself of meaninglessness, powerlessness, worthlessness and fright.

DEAR ABBY

Doctor's 'estimate' means free examination

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm new in town. My feet were giving me a lot of trouble, so I looked in the yellow pages for a foot doctor. I knew some corns had to be removed, and one toe felt as if I had an ingrown toenail.

I selected a podiatrist who was located on the bus line and whose name I could pronounce. I phoned him and made an appointment.

When I got there, I showed him my feet and told him I didn't want him to DO anything until he gave me an estimate on how much he would charge to do what had to be done.

He got a disgusted look on his face and said, "Lady, I treat patients—I don't give estimates." Then he practically threw me out of his office.

Was I out of line to ask him for an estimate? If he charged more than I could afford to pay, I would have tried another doctor. Isn't that better than letting him do the work and then making him wait for his money?—OUT OF LINE, OR NOT?

DEAR OUT: When you booked the appointment, you should have asked how much the doctor charged for an office visit. No one should expect a free examination, which is what an "estimate" entails. All a professional person has to sell is his (or her) knowledge and time.

DEAR ABBY: I plan to announce my engagement soon, and my problem is this: My fiancée's mother wants us to have a big wedding, and I don't want a big wedding.

My fiancée's family is quite wealthy, and his mother says they will pay for everything. Abby, I don't want to accept this kind of a gift from my future in-laws. Besides, aren't the bride's parents supposed to put on the wedding? Mine can afford only a simple little family affair, which is all I really want.

My fiancée's mother already has a "tentative guest list" of 300. She says she "owes" so many people, and she has friends who will not invite HER to their children's weddings if she doesn't invite THEM to hers. (She's already picked out the bridesmaids' dresses. How about that?)

Another thing. She told me she wanted me to have a baby right away because all her friends have grandchildren and she is way behind. Abby, I intend to teach school while my husband finishes law school, and we don't plan to have a baby "right away."

What should I do? My fiancée is in the middle. He doesn't want to hurt his mother, but he doesn't want me to be unhappy either.—NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: I think you are right in refusing to allow your future mother-in-law to use your wedding to repay her social obligations. Tell her as respectfully as you can that YOUR parents will put on the wedding. And make it clear that you will have a family when YOU decide you want one.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were divorced several months ago. The divorce was on very friendly terms, and we see each other occasionally at social gatherings, etc. It is very awkward to introduce her as my "ex-wife."

Is there a less embarrassing way?—STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: Yes. Introduce her by name only, and skip her marital history—unless somebody asks.

Birth certificate booklet available

WASHINGTON, D.C. You're all packed and ready to go on that three-week camping trip across the U.S. And this time you may even drive across the border to Mexico. But wait. Do you have a copy of your birth certificate?

There are numerous occasions that call for a birth certificate: Getting a driver's license for the first time; going out of the country; registering for public school; and so on. But don't worry. To learn how to order yours, you can send for the booklet, "Where to Write for Birth and Death Records," for your copy, send 50¢ to the Consumer Information Center.

Dept. 069F, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Although the booklet is published by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the federal government doesn't keep any files of birth or death records. You'll be writing to the vital statistics office of the state, city or area of birth or death.

The booklet includes a state-by-state listing that tells how far back the records go. Arizona, for example, started birth registration in 1909. If you were born before that, you might check their "delayed birth registration" file.

How much does a birth or death certificate cost? Prices vary from $1-$3.

Oaks searches Texas for 1 million new voters

Secretary of State Steve Oaks is traveling around Texas with a goal in mind and that is to register 1 million new voters by Oct. 8.

Oaks was in Midland today to explain past problems with voter registration, and a new process which involves no trip to the county courthouse and no postage stamp.

Texas has 6.2 million registered voters, which is an increase of 1 million over last year, he said.

The increase is partially the result of his efforts to register a million new voters for this past May's party primaries, according to Oaks today.

But Texas still has about 3 million residents of voting age who are not registered, said Oaks.

"If we can get 7.2 million registered, Texas will have the highest percentage of registered voters in the nation," Oaks said.

The secretary of state's office is responsible for voter registration, he explained.

In reaction to that responsibility, Oaks said, he began a month-long tour last week, starting in East Texas, to encourage voter registration. He said he is meeting with political party leaders, the League of Women Voters and other civic organizations.

Midland County now has 16,000 persons eligible to vote who have not registered, according to Oaks. That figure represents about 34 percent of the county's eligible population.

Deadline for registering to vote in the November general election is Oct. 8, he said.

With the state's 3 million unregistered voters and one in three registered voters not making use of their power, Oaks said, "I can not believe these people are letting the others choose their leaders."

Until this year, residents had to make a trip to the county courthouse and file with the registrar. That hassle now has been eliminated, he said. Bilingual voter registration cards (white ones) are being placed at such public places as libraries, supermarkets, convenience stores and banks. The cards may be filled out and dropped into a mailbox. Postage already has been paid, the state official noted.

The registrar will check the information against extant records to avoid voter fraud, he said.

Another new item for the November election is that the voter must have a yellow voter registration certificate, Oaks said.

For the May 6 primary, voters could use either a blue or yellow form, but the blue has expired, he said. Those who have not received the yellow form in the mail should telephone the registrar's office at the Midland County Courthouse, 682-9481.

To be eligible to vote, a person must be at least 18 years of age or 18 at the time of the election, and a resident of that city for 30 days by the date of the election. In short, someone who is only 17 years and 10 months old and has just moved to Midland today may register.

Oaks said many people still have the misconception they must pay a poll tax, but that that tax was abolished several years ago. However, any person giving false information to secure voter registration for himself or any other person is guilty of a third degree felony, noted Oaks.

Once the registrar receives the application, Oaks said, the applicant will be mailed a voter registration certificate.

If the certificate is lost or misplaced, the voter may notify the registrar for a duplicate.

Oaks added that any person having questions about voter registration may telephone the his office by dialing a toll free number, 1-800-252-9333.

Bilingual assistance also will be available at that number, he said.

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Reports to the Texas Industrial Commission from the petrochemical trade fair now under way in Mexico City indicate Texas firms are finding considerable interest from buyers there.

Six Texas petrochemical machinery firms are taking part in the exhibit, under TIC sponsorship: Peerless Manufacturing Co., Dallas; Smith Industries, Houston; Groth Equipment Co., Houston; Muesco, Houston; Consolidated Engineering, Houston; and Houston Instruments of Austin.

Mexico's recent oil and gas discoveries, and government policies to promote development of the nation's petrochemical industries, are credited with prompting the interest.

Havey says any company interested in it taking part should contact the TIC, which has reserved booths for those two exhibitions.

Nixon may postpone world tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon may have decided to put off the around-the-world trip that has evoked antagonistic editorials and a cool reception from at least one head of government.

As he arrived in New York Monday to sign a contract for another book, Nixon told a reporter, "I don't have plans to go abroad soon because of the work I have to do when I return to San Clemente."

He said that he would "for a while be pretty busy, working hard to meet my book deadline" in June.

It indicated that Nixon's aides, who were against the 3 to 4 week journey, may have dissuaded him from making it at this time. The proposed itinerary included South Asia, Eastern Europe and Africa and talks with leaders in the various countries.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Thailand's foreign ministry said today that Nixon has called off a visit there originally scheduled for late this month.

The spokesman said Nixon's staff notified the ministry Monday of the cancellation but did not specify a reason.

Nixon had earlier told the Thai foreign ministry that he would make a brief visit as part of his worldwide tour, the spokesman said.

Nixon had a double purpose in coming to New York: to sign a contract today with Warner Books and to attend a private memorial Wednesday for Elmer Bobst, once a major Nixon financial backer. Bobst died Aug. 2 at the age of 93.

He planned to have breakfast today with Henry Kissinger, his former secretary of state and national security adviser. He had other reunions scheduled later in the week with two other former cabinet members, William Simon and William Rogers.

Vikings get kick out of Danmeier

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — It took the steady foot of a placekicker nobody wanted for four years to give the Minnesota Vikings an overtime victory over Super Bowl finalist Denver Monday night.

Bud Grant, in an uncharacteristic display of emotion, rushed onto the field to argue with referee Don Wedge and had to be restrained by Page.

Rick Danmeier, signed as a free agent by the Vikings and placed on the injured reserve list last season, booted a 44-yard field goal with 2:56 left in sudden death to give Minnesota the 12-9 triumph in the nationally televised National Football League game.

Grant replaced regular quarterback Fran Tarkenton with Tommy Kramer after Minnesota won the toss and elected to receive. Tarkenton said he had injured the thumb in his throwing hand early in the game and was having trouble gripping the ball.

"It was just a matter of kicking the ball straight and getting it up in the air," said Danmeier, who had tryouts with Atlanta in 1974, Minnesota in 1975, Chicago in 1976 and the Vikings again in 1977.

Kramer took the Vikings 56 yards in 10 plays, sparked by a 14-yard pass to Robert Miller and a 15-yard personal foul penalty on Denver's Don Latimer to get Minnesota into position for the winning kick.

"As soon as I hit it and got it over the line I felt it was going to be good," he said. "I kicked it right down the middle. It was a little low, but I wasn't really worried."

"We had opportunities to win in regulation time," noted Bronco Coach Red Miller. "But we didn't get things going our way until late, maybe too late."

Danmeier, trying to erase memories of recently retired kicker Fred Cox, also kicked field goals of 24, 46 and 21 yards to give Minnesota a 9-0 lead after three quarters.

Denver Broncho running back Otis Armstrong goes over Minnesota linebacker Jeff Siemon (50) for a short gain in the second quarter of Monday night's game.

The Vikings felt they had the game won in regulation time, but a controversial 25-yard field goal by Jim Turner as time expired sent the game into overtime.

Earlier Denver scored on a 1-yard run by Jon Keyworth, but Alan Page blocked the extra point try.

Trailing 9-6, substitute quarterback Norris Weese engineered a 37-yard drive to the Viking 5 with 11 seconds to play and the Broncos out of time outs.

By The Associated Press When Warren Powers paid Washington State $55,000 to break his contract so he could succeed Al Onofrio as the head coach at Missouri, his friends were startled.

Weese rolled to his right and was dropped for a 3-yard loss, but the officials stopped the clock with three seconds left, which gave Denver time to line up and get the kick away.

After all, Missouri's schedule shows the Tigers start off against Notre Dame, Alabama, Mississippi and Oklahoma.

MTC tourney starts Friday

It will be tennis action at it's best when the Midland Tennis Club's annual Invitational Tournament unfolds Friday morning as the culmination of "Midland Tennis Week."

Mayor Ernest Angelo, Jr., proclaimed this week as "Midland Tennis Week" in a luncheon Monday honoring organizers of the tournament and members of the Midland College men's and women's tennis teams.

In his proclamation, Angelo cited the fact that "tennis is a sport of increasing prominence" in Midland and recognized that "the top-ranking collegiate amateur, and teaching professional tennis players of the Southwest" will be in town for the MTC Invitational.

Both the women's and men's fields for the local tournament are loaded. Teams from Trinity and Pan American are among the entrants in the men's division.

There is the possibility, however, that some members of the Trinity team will bypass this tournament. If that is the case, the field would be

Trainer John Veitch said the 3-year-old Alydar, the only horse ever to finish second in all three Triple Crown events, suffered the injury during a workout Monday.

Alydar was scheduled to run in the $300,000 Marlboro Cup Saturday at Belmont Park, where he would have faced 1977 Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew and Affirmed.

Oaks searches Texas for 1 million new voters

Secretary of State Steve Oaks is traveling around Texas with a goal in mind and that is to register 1 million new voters by Oct. 8.

Oaks was in Midland today to explain past problems with voter registration, and a new process which involves no trip to the county court-house and no postage stamp.

Texas has 6.2 million registered voters, which is an increase of 1 million over last year, he said.

The increase is partially the result of his efforts to register a million new voters for this past May's party primaries, according to Oaks today.

But Texas still has about 3 million residents of voting age who are not registered, said Oaks.

"If we can get 7.2 million registered, Texas will have the highest percentage of registered voters in the nation," Oaks said.

The secretary of state's office is responsible for voter registration, he explained.

In reaction to that responsibility, Oaks said, he began a month-long tour last week, starting in East Texas, to encourage voter registration. He said he is meeting with political party leaders, the League of Women Voters and other civic organizations.

Midland County now has 16,000 persons eligible to vote who have not registered, according to Oaks. That figure represents about 34 percent of the county's eligible population.

Deadline for registering to vote in the November general election is Oct. 8, he said.

With the state's 3 million unregistered voters and one in three registered voters not making use of their power, Oaks said, "I can not believe these people are letting the others choose their leaders."

Until this year, residents had to make a trip to the county courthouse and file with the registrar. That hassle now has been eliminated, he said. Bilingual voter registration cards (white ones) are being placed at such public places as libraries, supermarkets, convenience stores and banks.

The cards may be filled out and dropped into a mailbox. Postage already has been paid, the state official noted.

The registrar will check the information against extant records to avoid voter fraud, he said.

Another new item for the November election is that the voter must have a yellow voter registration certificate, Oaks said.

For the May 6 primary, voters could use either a blue or yellow form, but the blue has expired, he said. Those who have not received the yellow form in the mail should telephone the registrar's office at the Midland County Courthouse, 682-9481.

To be eligible to vote, a person must be at least 18 years of age or 18 at the time of the election, and a resident of that city for 30 days by the date of the election. In short, someone who is only 17 years and 10 months old and has just moved to Midland today may register.

Oaks said many people still have the misconception they must pay a poll tax, but that that tax was abolished several years ago.

However, any person giving false information to secure voter registration for himself or any other person is guilty of a third degree felony, noted Oaks.

Once the registrar receives the application, Oaks said, the applicant will be mailed a voter registration certificate.

If the certificate is lost or misplaced, the voter may notify the registrar for a duplicate.

Oaks added that any person having questions about voter registration may telephone his office by dialing a toll free number, 1-800-252-9333.

Bilingual assistance also will be available at that number, he said.

Texas firms find buyers in Mexico

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Reports to the Texas Industrial Commission from the petrochemical trade fair now under way in Mexico City indicate Texas firms are finding considerable interest from buyers there.

Six Texas petrochemical machinery firms are taking part in the exhibit, under TIC sponsorship: Peerless Manufacturing Co., Dallas; Smith Industries, Houston; Groth Equipment Co., Houston; Muesco, Houston; Consolidated Engineering, Houston; and Houston Instruments of Austin.

Mexico's recent oil and gas discoveries, and government policies to promote development of the nation's petrochemical industries, are credited with prompting the interest.

Havey says any company interested in taking part should contact the TIC, which has reserved booths for those two exhibitions.

Nixon may postpone world tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon may have decided to put off the around-the-world trip that has evoked antagonistic editorials and a cool reception from at least one head of government.

As he arrived in New York Monday to sign a contract for another book, Nixon told a reporter, "I don't have plans to go abroad soon because of the work I have to do when I return to San Clemente."

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Thailand's foreign ministry said today that Nixon has called off a visit there originally scheduled for late this month.

The spokesman said Nixon's staff notified the ministry Monday of the cancellation but did not specify a reason.

Nixon had earlier told the Thai foreign ministry that he would make a brief visit as part of his worldwide tour, the spokesman said.

Nixon had a double purpose in coming to New York: to sign a contract today with Warner Books and to attend a private memorial Wednesday for Elmer Bobst, once a major Nixon financial backer. Bobst died Aug. 2 at the age of 93.

He planned to have breakfast today with Henry Kissinger, his former secretary of state and national security adviser. He had other reunions scheduled later in the week with two other former cabinet members, William Simon and William Rogers.

The new book, looking toward the U.S. role in the world the rest of the century, is intended to be a far less ambitious work than the 1,120-page memoirs Nixon completed in the spring after working on it for 3½ years. Warner Books paid Nixon $2 million for "RN: The Memoirs of Richard Nixon," now in the third hard cover printing.

Nixon wrote one earlier book, "Six Crises."

In preparing for a possible world tour, Nixon's aides sifted long-standing invitations and sounded out chiefs of state to see if the welcome mat was still out. Australia was the only one to publicly say "no" but it was known there were others.

Baseball's divisional leaders blow chances

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Have you ever seen a first-place team chasing a second-place team? It's an unusual sight but it happened twice last weekend, creating a couple of American League races that could have been over if the series involved had turned the other way.

Playing in what they like to refer to as the friendly confines of Fenway Park, the Boston Red Sox gave an expert rendition of a hypnotized team against the New York Yankees to create a race in the American League East instead of terminating it.

Boston had a healthy four-game lead going into the series and most of the Yankees were thinking of a split to keep them in the chase and looking ahead to this week's three-game set in New York. But instead of the split, the Yanks came away with a sweep against a Red Sox club that looked at best, disorganized, and at worst, in full retreat.

AFTER the first three Yankee victories, all lopsided affairs, one observer noted that New York was "one game out and pulling away." The Yankees looked like a runaway locomotive and the Red Sox couldn't seem to get out of their way.

"We came into Fenway looking for a split and we came out with a half-split," said Yankees Manager Bob Lemon, who has his club performing at a 34-13 pace since taking over from the once and future manager, Billy Martin.

After the Yankees had won the first two games of the series 15-3 and 13-2, cutting Boston's lead from four games to two, Red Sox Manager Don Zimmer called a meeting, advising his team that it shouldn't play like a club that was six games behind.

Responding, the Red Sox dropped the final two games of the series 7-0 and 7-4. "We played like one 35 games behind, instead," Zimmer noted.

THE NUMBERS in the series were revealing. The Yankees, for example, had 42 runs on 67 hits in the four games. The Red Sox scored nine runs, and had 21 hits. Custer at Little Big Horn and Napoleon at Waterloo put up better fights.

Meanwhile, in the American League West, Kansas City carried a 2½-game lead over California into a four-game West Coast showdown and looked to be sitting pretty after beating the Angels 9-7 in the opener, making the edge 3½ games.

But California staged an instant recovery with a doubleheader sweep 3-2 and 4-2 Saturday night, then romped 13-3 Sunday, cutting the deficit to one-half game.

"There is such a thing in baseball as momentum, and we have it, just like the Yankees," said Angels pitcher Nolan Ryan, who struck out 12 Royals Sunday.

"THE ANGELS did what they had to do and we didn't," said Royals Manager Whitey Herzog.

First baseman Pete LaCock had a more succinct description of the turn of events.

"We got our Royal tails kicked," he observed.

Pittsburgh, entitled to tread a little water after chopping all but the last half-game off Philadelphia's 11½-game edge in the National League East, nearly drowned in New York. The Pirates lost three straight to the Mets and dropped four behind the Phillies.

Bud Grant, in an uncharacteristic display of emotion, rushed onto the field to argue with referee Don Wedge and had to be restrained by Page.

"With three seconds to go how can you put a ball in play and get the kicking team on the field?" Grant asked. "There is no explanation to my way of thinking. He (the referee) was just about incoherent when I got out there. He was asking for help from other officials."

Grant replaced regular quarterback Fran Tarkenton with Tommy Kramer after Minnesota won the toss and elected to receive. Tarkenton said he had injured the thumb in his throwing hand early in the game and was having trouble gripping the ball.

Kramer took the Vikings 56 yards in 10 plays, sparked by a 14-yard pass to Robert Miller and a 15-yard personal foul penalty on Denver's Don Latimer to get Minnesota into position for the winning kick.

MTC tourney starts Friday

It will be tennis action at its best when the Midland Tennis Club's annual Invitational Tournament unfolds Friday morning as the culmination of "Midland Tennis Week."

Mayor Ernest Angelo, Jr., proclaimed this week as "Midland Tennis Week" in a luncheon Monday honoring organizers of the tournament and members of the Midland College men's and women's tennis teams.

In his proclamation, Angelo cited the fact that "tennis is a sport of increasing prominence" in Midland and recognized that "the top-ranking collegiate, amateur, and teaching professional tennis players of the Southwest" will be in town for the MTC Invitational.

Both the women's and men's fields for the local tournament are loaded. Teams from Trinity and Pan American are among the entrants in the men's division. Trinity finished last season as the nation's fifth ranked tennis team, while Pan American reached the No. 10 spot.

There is the possibility, however, that some members of the Trinity team will bypass this tournament. If that is the case, the field would be

Alydar out with injury

NEW YORK (AP) — Alydar, the only horse to beat Triple Crown champion Affirmed, will be out of action for approximately three months after suffering a hairline fracture in his foot.

Trainer John Veitch said the 3-year-old Alydar, the only horse ever to finish second in all three Triple Crown events, suffered the injury during a workout Monday.

"It's a hairline fracture of the outside wing of the coffin bone in his left front foot," Veitch said. "Fortunately, there's a good prognosis for his return to action. But he'll be out a couple of months — say three."

"We weren't aware of it until this afternoon. He wasn't standing properly, not putting weight on the foot, so we had it checked out. He'll be stalled down for awhile until there's some healing. It'll necessitate some time off before we can do anything with him again."

Alydar was scheduled to run in the $300,000 Marlboro Cup Saturday at Belmont Park, where he would have faced 1977 Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew and Affirmed.

Alydar is the second leading money winner in the nation this year with earnings of $565,071. The Calumet Farm colt has won seven of 10 starts this year, his only losses coming to Affirmed in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont.

MHS volleyball team ready for opener

The Midland High volleyball team opens its season Thursday night and no one is more happy about that than Bulldog coach Jo Ann Martin.

After an impressive string of eight scrimmage wins, Martin is anxious to see here squad in regular season action. "The girls have really worked hard over the past couple of weeks," Martin said. "We have lots of talent if we can just keep it coming and put it together and keep it that way."

The Purple Pack travels to Monahan Thursday for an 8 p.m. contest with the Lobos. The sophomore and junior varsity games will be played at 6 p.m. and 7 p.m., respectively.

The list of Midland High's victims in scrimmage action includes Odessa Permian, Snyder, Lamesa, Ft. Stockton, Wink, Imperial, Colorado City and Pecos.

Midland High returns four lettermen to this year's team: Carol Teague, Cheryl Strack, Diann Shiplert and Julie Minton. Valerie Van Pelt, Nancy Thompson, Shawna Fletcher and Julie Wiger round out the varsity lineup.

MHS, Lee booster meetings scheduled

With both local high schools winning their initial contests of the 1978 football season, supporters of each team should have a good time reviewing the game films at meetings tonight of both the Midland High and Robert E. Lee Booster Clubs.

Herb Pearce, president of the Midland Lee Booster Club, has scheduled a 7:30 p.m. meeting today in the Lee High cafeteria. They will review highlights of the Rebs' 32-8 win over Snyder.

Films of Midland High's 7-6 thriller over Amarillo Tascosa will be the subject of attention at the Bulldog Booster Club meeting tonight at the Youth Center. That meeting is also scheduled for 7:30.

Peterson's death arouses outburst

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The death of Swedish racing hero Ronnie Peterson after a crash in the Italian Grand Prix at Monza Sunday has aroused a wave of indignation in Sweden.

The crash, which also sent Italian Vittorio Brambila to a hospital with severe head injuries, has caused an outburst against the sport in Sweden, including calls to ban it altogether in that country.

One politician went as far as to say that the Scandinavian Raceway, which has housed five Formula 1 Grand Prix races, should be plowed up.

Sports Minister Rolf Ramgard, in a televised broadcast Monday night, said he felt the government should consider banning formula racing in Sweden.

"Ronnie Peterson has been a fine example for youths involved in motor sports and I am not an adversary to this sport. But with his tragic death the question arises again if Formula 1 races should be allowed and if society should take responsibility for tragedies and human sufferings that follow in its path," Ramgard said.

"Personally I feel we should ban this sport and if so, it has to be done through legislation," he said.

Sweden a few years back banned professional boxing, describing it as a sport "in which the athletes deliberately try to hurt each other."

Ramgard would not compare the boxing ban with a possible ban against Formula 1 races, saying "in boxing the athletes deliberately try to hurt each other. You can't say that about Formula 1 drivers, although the risks are great."

"But if we'll carry on with this sport in Sweden, security aspects must be improved. The heated moment of the start could be avoided, with the cars starting separately," he added.

Social Democratic politician Ivar Johansson said outright that the Scandinavian race track, owned by the local government and leased to the Anderstorp racing club, should be plowed up.

"This race track only costs the local government a lot of money. We should plow it up and use for industrial plants," he said.

But the chairman of the racing club, Sven "Smokey" Asberg, is already planning for next year's Grand Prix.

Asberg blamed the starter for the fatal crash, saying he gave the field the go-ahead before all cars had come to a complete halt.

District 6-A squads enjoy success

By STEVE O'BRIEN
R-T Sports Writer

District 6-A football teams found that livin' was easy in their first week of action in the 1978 football season. Of course, some found it easier than others.

All five teams in that district copied wins in their first outings Friday as they wholoped their opponents by a combined score of 116-25. McCamey had the toughest night out, needing a 73-yard touchdown run by halfback Lenny Luna to scrape Menard 14-10. Iran had by far the easiest time of it, humiliating Sanderson, 50-0.

The Rankin Red Devils whupped Eldorado, 20-0, for the second straight among the league teams. Clint was a 14-2 winner over Ft. Davis while Marfa tipped Van Horn 18-13.

Perhaps the biggest upset in area football action over the weekend was Reagan County's 20-7 win over Class 2A Ozona. After a 1-8-1 season a year ago, the Owls opened the new season with a new head coach in a new stadium. And, much to Ozona's dismay, they fielded a seemingly new team — one that refused to lose. Quarterback Mickey Owens scored a couple of late touchdowns to get the win for Reagan county.

THE OWLS must feel a bit like the Lone Ranger however, as every one of Reagan County's District 9-A counterparts bit the dust on opening night. Besides Eldorado and Menard's losses to Rankin and McCamey, respectively, Mason and Wall also tasted defeat. Mason lost 26-14 to Llano and Wall dropped to 0-1 decision to Coahoma.

A pair of area schools will have to do some regrouping this week after being bombed in their initial contests. Despite trailing by only a touchdown going into the fourth quarter, Stanton was whacked by Class 2A's number five ranked team, Tahoka, 34-7. Lamesa, however, was never really in their game with Pecos, losing that one 46-0.

Rebel girls lose to Lobos

MONAHANNS—The Midland Lee girls volleyball team put up a tough battle here Monday night before losing to the Class AAA Monahans Lobos, 15-9, 11-15 and 15-10. In the first game, the Rebels were down 8-1 before rallying within two points of the Lobos.

The second game was also a seesaw battle with the front line of Julie Ochsner and Kerry Shaw playing well, according to Coach Linde Weikel. Power spikes by Miss Ochsner and Shelley Hall along with Susan Craig sparked Lee as it took the second game, 15-11.

Lety Rivas did a great job of setting for Lee while Shelli Speck, a junior, turned in a good job on defense.

The Rebel girls play Lamesa there tonight before going back to Monahans for a tournament on Thursday and Friday, according to Miss Weikel.

In junior varsity action, Janice Balch's Lee JV dropped a 15-11, 15-9 match to the hosts. They also play today in Lamesa at 6 p.m. ■

Stanton was without the services of workhorse tailback Todd Smith in the Tahoka contest and his loss severely curtailed the Buffalo offensive attack. Stanton coach David Thompson expects Smith, who has a twisted ankle, to be back in action soon and that's got to help.

Pecos may field one of the tougher squads in this part of the state this year and Lamesa found that out the hard way. Unfortunately for the Golden Tors, who are woefully short of depth, things don't get any easier this week with a home date with area rival Andrews on slate.

National title could be decided in Liberty Bowl or Gator Bowl

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Would you believe a game for college football's national championship in the Gator Bowl... or the Liberty Bowl... or even the new Garden State Bowl? Or anywhere other than one of the so-called Big Four bowls?

Don't laugh. It could happen. Here's how:

Alabama currently is the No. 1 team in the nation. If the Crimson Tide wins all 11 games, it will be assured of at least a tie for the Southeastern Conference championship and undoubtedly will be No. 1 at the end of the regular season. And, of course, the SEC champ goes to the Sugar Bowl.

But here's the catch. 'Bama doesn't meet SEC foes Kentucky, Georgia or Mississippi. Kentucky is considered a serious SEC challenger, so let's say, for the sake of argument, that the Wildcats win their six conference games.

That would make both teams 6-0 in the SEC, but even if they lose their five non-league contests, Kentucky would represent the SEC in the Sugar Bowl since Alabama went last year.

Now suppose an independent team like Notre Dame or Penn State or Pitt or Florida State was ranked No. 2. Because the Rose, Cotton, Orange and Sugar Bowls all have conference tie-ups, the 1-2 teams couldn't play in any of those bowls.

And that, of course, would leave the Gator Bowl... or the Liberty Bowl... etc.

Russ Calabrese, a Missouri defensive back, may have infuriated Notre Dame so much by his remarks last week that it could have cost the Irish another national championship, as well as Saturday's game.

"I hate Notre Dame," Calabrese said all week. Every time his name was announced in Notre Dame Stadium, he was booed. But Calabrese had the last laugh when Missouri upset the Irish 3-0. In fact, he was involved in one of the game's key plays.

Midway through the third quarter, Notre Dame's Kris Haines caught a 34-yard pass to the Missouri 4-yard line. After being thrown out of bounds, Haines walked up to Calabrese and slapped him in the helmet. The officials socked Notre Dame with a 15-yard penalty and the Irish never scored.

"He hit me pretty hard," said Calabrese. "I just told him he was an idiot for doing that."

Calabrese also had the last word.

"They (Notre Dame) get so much publicity every year," he said, "but they never play any ranked teams, except maybe one or two a year. We showed 'em what the Big Eight is all about. But I don't really hate Irish people. My girl friend is Irish."

This really happened.

Woody Hayes' office at Ohio State University received a call Monday from a sports writer who asked, "Is Coach Hayes in?"

"No," replied the secretary who answered, "he's at practice."

"When do you expect him?"

"Oh," she said, "I won't see him until the end of the season."

Wyoming's mascot, a horse named

Andrews on slate.

ANDREWS WAS a 27-7 winner over Class 4A Big Spring in their debut, joining District 2-AAA rivals Pecos, Ft. Stockton and Monahans in the win column. Ft. Stockton demolished Canutillo, 47-0 while Monahans was doing it the hard way in a 7-3 squeaker over Seminole.

Brownfield, Snyder and Sweetwater all joined Lamesa in the loser's ranks of District 3-AAA. Brownfield lost a heartbreaker, 7-2, to Levelland while Sweetwater drew Nothing but blanks in a 22-0 loss to Breckenridge. Snyder lost to Midland Lee, 32-8. San Angelo Lake View, the preseason favorite to win that district, performed as expected, beating Del Rio.

Crane and Kermit picked up wins to pace things in the four team District 7-2A. The Golden Cranes scored a pair of second half touchdowns to give Denver City the slip, 14-7, while Kermit downed Alpine, 26-6. Sonora managed a 6-6 tie with Coleman while Ozona was, of course, the victim of Reagan County's uprising.

"Cowboy Joe," circles the entire field each time the Cowpokes score. South Dakota visits Wyoming this weekend and Coach Beanie Cooper, recalling a 48-7 rout two years ago, cracked, "If we play like that we'll run the horse ragged."

Brigham Young's only two losses last season came on the road against Oregon State and Arizona State. The Cougars got semi-revenge Saturday, beating Oregon State in Corvallis 10-7. This week, they hope to complete the job when they visit Arizona State.

Bear Bryant has been insisting his Alabama team hasn't shown him enough to convince him they're really the No. 1 club in the nation. But he may change his thinking before long.

"We're not a real good football team now," he said shortly before the Crimson Tide beat Nebraska 20-3. "The only way we're gonna be one is to improve a little every week. If we get some injured people back we can be a genuine tough football team in a few weeks. If we improve in every practice and every game, by November we can be a real football team."

Besides the TV revenue, the main reason Bryant agreed to switch the Nebraska game from Nov. 25 to Sept. 2 was that it gives Alabama a week ago before the annual regular-season finale against Auburn.

"I didn't see how playing Nebraska the week before Auburn would be very good for us," he said. "Nebraska is just our neighbor but we live with Auburn."

Syracuse finally plans to demolish decrepit old Archbold Stadium at the end of the season. The Orangemen have had trouble persuading opponents.

Diepraam had another split set match in the semis, but this time around he wasn't so fortunate, bowing out Jimmy Parker of Houston, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Parker is a former men's singles winner of the Midland Tennis Club's annual Invitational tournament.

Parker lost his final match with top-seeded Marty Riessen, 6-4, 6-3.

Stranger score brings victory

OAKLAND (AP)—The strangest touchdown play so far this National Football League season, a fortuitous forward fumble by the Oakland Raiders, "is in our playbook," according to guard Gene Upshaw.

"It's called 'Win'—at any cost," he added after Sunday's wild, 21-20 victory over the Chargers in San Diego.

"If there's a way to win, the Raiders will find it," added linebacker Ted Hendricks. "We didn't even give the Chargers a chance to argue, because we sprinted off the field right after it was over."

Raiders quarterback Ken Stabler, on the last play of the game, got rid of the ball as a tackler hit him near the Chargers' 25-yard line, and he admitted, "I was trying to fumble the ball. It's the referee's call, whether it's a pass or fumble, any way he wants to call it. All I know is that we won the game."

Running back Pete Banaszak, who said later, "I lead the league in assists," slapped at the loose ball which tight end Dave Casper eventually pounced on in the end zone.

Midlander makes waves in U.S. Open Tennis

Open.

After opening with a 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, win over Paul Cranis of New York, Diepraam met Bob "Nails" Carmichael, the tourney's number two seed, in the second round. Diepraam faced elimination in that bout after losing the first set 6-4 and down 0-3 in the second set, but the Tall City native rallied remarkably to win the second set 7-6. He then nailed down the match with a 6-4 win in the third set.

LA's Smith rips umpire

ATLANTA (AP)—Outfielder Reggie Smith of the Los Angeles Dodgers criticized umpire Eric Gregg Sunday after being ejected from a game against the Atlanta Braves and said he hoped the National League would fire him.

"I think there are a heck of a lot better umpires than him in the league," Smith said. "I honestly and truly hope they fire him because he's bad."

Smith was ejected in the fourth inning of the Dodgers' 11-5 victory over the Braves when Gregg called a strike on a 2-0 pitch. He had argued with the umpire for another called strike in the first inning.

"I just told him to bear down," Smith said. "He started yelling at me to get back to my position. He loses control of his emotions. You can't tell me he exercises good judgment then."

Smith said he had complaints only about two pitches Gregg called strikes, but added that other players also complained about some of the calls.

"Until he learns how to control his mouth, he'll have problems," said Smith.

Five captains lead Longhorns

AUSTIN (AP)—The defending Southwest Conference champion Texas Longhorns will be led by five captains for the first time ever when they open the season against the Rice Owls in Houston Saturday night.

The leaders elected by the team are quarterback Randy McEachern, running back Johnny Ham Jones of Hamlin, offensive guard Jim Yarbrough of Galveston, defensive end Dwight Jefferson of San Antonio and cornerback Glenn Blackwood of San Antonio.

robbed of some outstanding players. But, if that is the case, the field remains an attractive one with several individuals with outstanding track records vying for titles.

Pan American is led by John Picken, a sophomore from Vancouver. Picken earned All-America honors last year as a freshman and also has All-Canadian honors to his credit.

The MTC Invitational will also be the first competitive event of the year for Coach Brian Gilley's Midland College squads after the men's squad tied for the National Junior College Athletic Association title last spring while the women finished second.

Heading up the Chaparral men's team is sophomore Jose Rivera of El Paso, who won the number three singles in the NJCAA tournament. Mike Burch, another of the Chap hopefuls, doesn't have a lot of titles to his credit but is a scrapper.

Six-foot-five Steve Wyatt, Oscar Ontiveras, Kevin Jackson, Des Ward and Scott Dunn round out the MC men's team.

Gerry Sayers leads the way for Midland College in the women's field. She is from Perth, Australia, and is the only letter winner returning from last year's team.

Karen Young, Mary Jane Spencer, Debbie Smith and Leslie Miller of Odessa will also represent Midland College in the three-day tourney.

That too, will be duly noted at contract time. In the other AL games, Kansas City clubbed Oakland 7-2, Texas blanked California 1-0, Milwaukee trimmed Seattle 5-3, Minnesota nipped Chicago 3-1, and Cleveland beat Toronto 6-4 before losing 7-1.

Weaver had expressed concern that Boston's anguish over losing would cause trouble for his Orioles. "I said before the game they'd probably take their frustrations out on us," he explained.

It didn't take long for the prophecy to come true. Carl Yazstrzemski and Butch Hobson cracked solo home runs and Rice hit his first, then a squeeze bunt by Dwight Evans gave Boston a 4-1 lead.

Luis Tiant promptly lost it in the eighth and was relieved by Bob Stanley, who won his 14th game in 16 decisions when Rice connected.

The crowd of 28,575 set a club season attendance record of 2,074,549 at the tiny park that seats 33,502.

Royals 7, A's 2 Darrell Porter hit two home runs and Amos Otis hit one to back the four-hit pitching of Marty Pattin and expand the Royals' lead to 1 1/2 games over second-place California in the AL West Division.

"It was a big one for us," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog, "especially after the butt-kicking we got yesterday." His reference was to the 13-3 defeat administered by the Angels. "That was nothing but a good, old-fashioned butt-kicking."

Pattin, meanwhile, retired the first 18 batters before giving up a single to Mike Edwards. "I had a no-hitter going for 8 1/3 innings against Oakland in 1972," said Pattin. "Reggie Jackson broke that one up. But they aren't the same team now."

Rangers 1, Angels 0 Ferguson Jenkins held California to three hits and fanned five to take over ninth place on the all-time strikeout lists in carrying the Rangers past the Angels.

Jenkins raised his total to 2,584 strikeouts, passing Bob Feller's 2,581 and Warren Spahn's 2,583 in reaching the all-time Top Ten.

Mike Hargrove's fifth-inning single knocked in the only run. Brewers 5, Red Sox 3 While the Yankees and Red Sox have battled for first, third-place Milwaukee has stayed within 4 1/2 games of the lead. Larry Sorensen, 17-10, was backed by RBI doubles from Don Money, Sixto Lezcano and Ben Oglivie as the Brewers won for the fifth time in seven games.

Twins 3, White Sox 1 Roy Smalley's two-run, fifth-inning homer powered Minnesota past Chicago. The White Sox protested the game, claiming the Twins' Willie Norwood wasn't fully in uniform because his name wasn't on the back of his jersey.

Cleveland 6-1, Blue Jays 4-7 Willie Horton drove in two runs and scored three to pace Toronto in the nightcap after Gary Alexander's two-run homer in the fifth had helped Cleveland triumph in the opener.

The Indians' Andre Thornton hit his 30th homer in the seventh inning of the first game, becoming the first Cleveland player to reach that milestone since Rocky Colavito did it in 1966.

Giants, Pittsburgh pennant hopes may become shattered dreams

By The Associated Press

The pennant hopes of the Pittsburgh Pirates and San Francisco Giants may be turning into so many shattered dreams thanks to untimely losing streaks and the winning ways of the teams they are chasing.

The Pirates, the hottest team in baseball last week, lost their fifth straight game Monday, a 10-3 pasting by the first-place Philadelphia Phillies. That dropped Pittsburgh five games behind the National League East leaders.

The Giants also fell five games back in the NL West by losing to Los Angeles 7-2. The Dodgers have beaten the Giants three times in eight days and San Francisco has lost five of its last six.

Elsewhere in the NL, Montreal's Ross Grimsley had a perfect game for 7-13 innings in the Expos' 3-1 victory over St. Louis; the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Mets 9-4; Cincinnati edged Houston 9-8 and Atlanta bested San Diego 7-2.

Pirates' Manager Chuck Tanner isn't ready to give up the chase, not with 18 games left, including five more with Philadelphia. "We can't throw in the towel," said Tanner, whose Pirates won 21 of 23 games to climb back into the East race.

"I've kind of regressed," said the left-hander of his sore pitching shoulder. "I don't know what happened. Maybe I slept peculiar, with my arm over my head. I've been keeping the shoulder as quiet as possible."

The Phillies' bats were hardly quiet, including Carlton's. He singled in two runs in a six-run fifth against Pittsburgh rookie Don Robinson, 12-6. Bake McBride closed the assault with a two-run homer.

Before the game, Pittsburgh star outfielder Dave Parker received a telephone death threat and security was tightened at the stadium.

Giants Manager Joe Altobelli was grim after Davey Lopes drove in three runs and Ron Cey belted two homers to beat San Francisco ace Vida Blue, 16-8.

"We have no options left," he said. "We have to win the next one with them, then have a strong home-stand."

Doug Rau, 14-8, was the winner with relief from Terry Forster, who got his 19th save.

"The Giants are running out of time," noted Rau. "I haven't figured it out mathematically, but it looks like we'd just have to play .500 ball to win. The way our guys are going, they're going to do a lot better than that."

Cey said, "I'm not making any predictions, but we've put pressure on them to get back in the race. Obviously if they'd been able to win two, they would have been two out and right back in it."

Expos 3, Cardinals 1 Grimsley retired the first 22 batters before George Hendrick lined a double to break up the perfect game.

With the victory, Grimsley, 18-9, who signed with the Expos as a free agent last winter, tied Phil Niekro for the league lead in victories and equaled the Montreal club mark set by Carl Morton in 1970.

"I didn't really expect to get it," said Grimsley. "The type of pitcher I am, I'm not going to get that close too often. I'm not going to strike out a lot of guys so I depend on the guys behind me. All year, they've been playing well and that's how you get a chance at 20 wins."

Cubs 9, Mets 4 Bobby Murcer had three hits, including a three-run homer, while extending his consecutive hit streak to eight at-bats, two short of the NL record. Dennis Lamp went the route with a 10-hitter.

Reds 9, Astros 8 Cincinnati scored six times in the seventh, with George Foster's grand slam homer the big blow, to take a 7-6 lead. Houston jumped ahead 8-7 in the top of the ninth on consecutive home runs by Bruce Bochy and pinch-hitter Jesus Alou. Then Ken Griffey pinch-hit a two-run single in the bottom of the ninth to vault the Reds to victory.

Braves 7, Padres 2 Gary Matthews slammed five hits, including a homer and a double, and Larry McWilliams won his eighth game in nine decisions since joining the Braves in mid-July.

Football celebrities honor Bear Bryant

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Football celebrities including Joe Namath, Frank Broyles, Darrell Royal and Lee Roy Jordan paid tribute Monday night to Alabama Coach Bear Bryant on his 65th birthday.

Namath, once kicked off the Alabama team by Bryant before going on to star with the New York Jets, typified the plaudits at the surprise party.

"I'm thankful that Coach Bryant is the type guy he is and that I've had a chance to share my life with him," Namath, now a television actor, told the Birmingham Touchdown Club.

Sixty-three ex-Alabama players were special guests at the party, and Howard Cosell broke into the Monday night pro football game to wish him well on national television.

Broyles, former coach and now athletic director at Arkansas, said: "It was always my secret ambition to coach for Coach Bryant but I have always been in awe of him and was afraid to ask."

He recalled that when he was an assistant at Missouri and Bryant was coach at Texas A&M, Bryant told him as the teams were warming up before a game: "Frank, you ain't got a damn athlete out here." Broyles added: "He was right. It was 28-0 before I could turn around."

Bryant's No. 1 ranked Alabama team plays at Missouri Saturday.

I'm pleased that a person of our generation will be the winningest coach of all time," Broyles said. "I will be there cheering for him when the time comes."

Cowboys' Dupree likes new NFL no-bump rule

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboy tight end Billy Joe Dupree, who has caught two touchdowns in two games, says the new National Football League no-bump rule is freeing receivers just like it meant to do.

"It puts me man-to-man on linebackers and I like it," said Dupree. Dupree said the tight ends were able to get open once they got past the single bump in the first five yards.

"Of course, we've been throwing to the backs for a long time, but maybe now we'll get some action for the tight ends," said Dupree. He said defenders have started to double cover second-year receiver Tony Hill, who beat out Butch Johnson and the now-traded Golden Richards for the starting wide receiver post opposite Steve Watson. Dupree praised the Giants' saying "They are vastly improved. They are a young team and they are difficult to move."

The Cowboys outlasted the Spunky Giants 34-24 Sunday for the World Champions' second consecutive victory but the defense faltered in the second half after end Harvey Martin was ejected for kicking, linebacker Thomas Henderson sprained an ankle, and cornerback Aaron Kyle was hurt.

"We missed Harvey," said Dupree. "They (The Giants) did a good job of running right at (rookie) Larry Bethea. They knocked him out of there a couple of times before he decided to get onry and hold his own."

Dupree praised the Giants' saying "They are vastly improved. They are a young team and they are difficult to move."

Remember when football games were exciting?

The Los Angeles Times

Well, we don't have to worry about the Rams going to Anaheim. They'll get to Buena Park and have to punt. This is a team that can't make 3 yards, never mind 40 miles.

Their games have all the thrills of a card game with your grandmother. It was as boring as home movies.

The Falcons didn't have the football long enough to know what color it was. Their defense was on the field so much they kept their helmets on when leaving it.

THE RAMS had the ball 84 plays to the Falcons' 47, but when I tell you the Rams had the field-goal kicking team on the field at the 1-yard-line, you know all you need to know about the Ram offense. They were odds-on not to get back to the line of scrimmage. It was an upset when anyone caught one of their passes — friend or foe.

It's also pretty revealing when you know that the Ram quarterback won the game — with a tackle. The Ram defense is lousy with talent. They have 50 people who can tackle but hardly anybody who can run, throw or catch. Their offense looks like a chow line on Iwo Jima, or the unemployment office on Saturday morning. Their specialty is the 2-yard-loss. Actually, the game plan is a retreat.

They make soccer look like a scoring spree. At the half, the game was 3-0 — the Rams managed to convert third-and-goal-to-go from the 3 to a field goal — when the longtime All-Pro defensive end from Green Bay, Willie Davis, came down the press box to blurt his dismay. "This game has been good to a lot of us," he mourned. "What are they doing with it?"

What they are doing with it is turning it into something that can be played just as well in the dark. Or under water.

DEFENSE MIGHT be thrilling to Amos Alonzo Stagg or the German General Staff. But nobody goes to football games to watch tackles.

Years ago the great Knute Rockne took the field to play a team that had the legend, Jim Thorpe, on it. On the first play, Thorpe swept around end to be met by Rockne who crashed into him for a 2-yard loss. On the next play, Thorpe handed the ball off to a teammate and he met Rockne with a bone-crushing block that put Rock halfway into the seats. "Rock," whispered Thorpe. "These people paid good money to see old Jim run."

Whatever happened to the 80-yard run? The 90-yard pass? Whatever happened to the game Waterfield and Fears, Van Brocklin and Hirsch played?

What became of the game that took the nation's interest away from Army-Navy or Notre Dame-Army? When did the pro game become a contest of 3-yard losses?

Shouldn't Pete Rozelle be as concerned as Willie Davis? Shouldn't ABC? Who's going to watch scoreless ties on Monday Night Football? Who wants 1-yard field goals? When did torn ligaments sell tickets? Does a zone defense send thrills up and down your spine? Is a quarterback sack your idea of a $12-a-seat thrill? Or would you rather watch paint dry?

Who needs an afternoon of no gains? Who wants punts? Or field goals?

When the star of the game is an outside linebacker, that's like going to the movies and rooting for the guy who holds the horses.

WATCHING Los Angeles beat Atlanta is like watching ice melt or eggs hatch. Anyone who would drive 40 miles to watch that would drive 80 miles to watch cars park.

What can be done? Well, for a start, they can outlaw the zone defense, the wet blanket of pro football. Eliminate the stall.

They might forbid the tackling of a quarterback AFTER he has released the football. Maybe they should widen the field. If the race keeps growing, they won't be able to squeeze four guys between the hash marks, never mind have room to run through them.

Take the game out of the trenches and the caves and put it back in the open. If pro football were that subterranean to begin with, people would still be going to Yale-Dartmouth and no one would have heard of Howard Cosell, Phyllis George, Super Sunday, red dogs, blitzes or tight ends, free safeties or even Anaheim. The fans want to see old Jim run or old Sammy pass. That's what made the game in the first place, not the three-yard pass or the two-yard loss. If people want to see a traffic jam, they don't have to pay $12 or buy a season ticket for it. Open up the game or close up the gates.

Pardee says Pats' plan useless

WASHINGTON (AP) — Did the Washington Redskins know in advance the offensive game plan of the New England Patriots two weeks ago? The answer, depending on who is supplying it, is Yes, No and Maybe.

The Redskins opened the 1978 season Sept. 3 with a stunning 16-14 upset of the favored Patriots, the winning touchdown coming when linebacker Brad Dusek scooped up a fumble and scampered into the end zone.

Now comes word, via CBS commentator Paul Hornung, that the Redskins had access to the Patriots' offensive plays before the game.

Before Washington's game against Philadelphia Sunday, Hornung commented on the air that the Redskins had "worked out the day before and found New England's game plan in the locker room."

"They made a few adjustments offensively and defensively," said Hornung. "If you've got your opponent's game plan a day ahead of time, you're in business."

Off the air, Hornung said: "I was told it was something called a 'short list.' Each team has a list of plays for their players — things they might run in short-yardage situations, that kind of thing. It can help a defense, and sometimes it can't."

At first Washington Coach Jack Pardee called the report "absurd" and said he would not comment on it. However, after Washington newspapers reported Monday that team sources confirmed that a mimeographed sheet with New England's offensive plays had been found, he gave his version of what transpired.

"What actually happened is that we found a scratch piece of paper an hour before the kickoff and it was all but useless to us," he said. "We don't know any of their terminology or anything else. It gave no situations, no first and 10, second and short. It had no situations."

"It was just a scratch of paper full of numbers, and us not knowing their code," he said.

He said that kind of information "usually hurts you more than it helps you. Now if you break their code, signal code, and know what plays are coming into the field, that'll help you."

Pardee said the Redskins were successful against the Patriots because they had studied films of three games this year and some from last season and "they ran the same plays and did the same things they had been doing in those."

Nevertheless, Patriots owner Billy Sullivan says he wants to know more about what took place.

"I want to have more than just Paul Hornung's word on television," he was quoted as saying. "I know Jack Pardee and he's a nice guy. I couldn't believe he'd do something like that, but I'm going to investigate. If it's true, it's cheating and they (the Redskins) should be fined."

Armstrong, Williams and Fly decided to give the Tall City another shot at auctioning off university leases. That sale, held in December last year, established the bonus record.

Filibuster may be needed to stop compromise bill

By TOM RAUM WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker conceded today that he and other opponents of the natural-gas bill appear to lack the votes to beat the Carter administration in an upcoming show-down vote. That would probably mean a filibuster, he said.

Baker said that, while foes of the deregulation-by-1985 compromise may be unable to sidetrack the bill, neither can the administration muster the needed votes to stop a filibuster.

Baker, a latecomer to the opposition camp, said he is now actively working to defeat the gas bill and will join that filibuster if necessary to stop the legislation.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, who supports the compromise, said things are looking up for the administration on the bill itself. But asked if he could muster the votes to stop a threatened filibuster, Byrd would only say: "We're working."

The two Senate leaders talked with reporters shortly before the Senate began its second day of debate on the compromise on which President Carter has staked the success of his energy program.

The first key vote is expected on Thursday, on an opposition motion to recommit the compromise to the House-Senate conference committee that took 10 months to draft it.

Byrd said "recommitting it will kill it, from a practical standpoint." "I guess there aren't enough votes to recommit the conference report," Baker said. "But there aren't enough votes to invoke cloture, either."

Cloture is a Senate procedure for halting filibusters. It takes 60 votes to achieve.

However, Baker said that since so many senators remain undecided — some 23 according to an Associated Press survey — many things could happen between now and that Thursday vote.

With Vice President Walter F. Mondale leading a behind-the-scenes effort to round up votes for the compromise, administration forces were grabbing far more previously uncommitted senators than were opponents.

However, leaders of the unusual coalition of liberals and conservatives fighting the bill have expressed confidence they would prevail, and said enough senators remained uncommitted to make it a wide-open battle.

The AP's survey showed Monday that the White House for the first time had a slight upper hand in the Senate after trailing opponents for some time. The count showed the administration with 30 firm votes for the bill and nine leaning in favor, compared with 29 senators against the measure and nine leaning against it. That left 23 still listing themselves as undecided.

The legislation would lift federal price controls from newly discovered gas in 1985 and permit a steady increase in the regulated price between now and then. It also would extend limited price controls to the intrastate market — gas produced and consumed in the same state — which is now free from controls.

Supporters say the measure would help provide producers with the financial incentive to find new supplies of gas, thus reducing oil imports and helping stabilize the U.S. dollar.

Liberal critics say the bill will raise prices to consumers out of proportion to the extra gas that would be produced. Conservative critics say it does not bring deregulation fast enough and involves too much government paperwork.

For now, action on the bill that President Carter says is critical to the nation's prestige abroad is taking place in Senate offices, hallways and conference rooms.

Offices of several undecided senators reported the heaviest lobbying was coming from the White House — phone calls from Carter and visits by Mondale, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and White House anti-inflation counselor Robert Strauss.

On Monday a number of formerly uncommitted Eastern senators lined up behind Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, in favor of the plan. And the measure got another important boost from two previously undecided Republicans: Robert Griffin of Michigan and James Pearson of Kansas.

Pearson's support was viewed as especially important because of his past alignment with oil and gas producers who are fighting the compromise.

Mondale spent more than an hour Monday trying to pick up the vote of Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa. But a Clark aide said the senator was not ready to announce his decision. Mondale tried without success to get Sen. Marjorie Humphrey, D-Minn., an early opponent of the bill, to join the administration team.

Double your chances whenever possible

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You needn't be a great mathematician to know that a double chance is better than a single chance.

South dealer Both sides vulnerable

NORTH ♠ J 7 4 3 ♥ A Q J 10 6 ♦ K ♣ 8 3

WEST ♠ 6 ♥ 8 3 2 ♦ 10 6 3 2 ♣ K J 10 9 7 EAST ♠ K Q 10 5 2 ♥ 4 ♦ A Q 7 4 ♣ 5 4 2

SOUTH ♠ A 9 ♥ K 9 7 5 ♦ J 9 8 5 ♣ A Q 6

South West North East 1♥ Pass 4♥ All Pass

Opening lead — ♠ 6

South captured the ten of spades and returned the nine. West ruffed and led a diamond. East returned a low spade, and no dummy's spades were not a threat.

South ruffed with the nine of hearts, and West signaled with the jack of clubs. How should South proceed?

Declarer can set up dummy by ruffing two more spades, but this plan works only if East has the eight of heart—a single chance.

PLAYS DIAMONDS

Instead, South led the eight of diamonds and discarded a club from dummy when West played low. Since East had to play the queen of diamonds, South could draw trumps, ruff a spade and discard dummy's last spade on the jack of diamonds.

If the eight of diamonds had lost to the ten, South could win the return and lead the jack of diamonds. Dummy would ruff if West played the queen but would discard a spade if West played a low diamond.

Playing East for the eight of hearts would give South only an even chance. Playing West for either the ten or the queen of diamonds made the odds 3 to 1 in South's favor.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer you hold: S-A9; H-K975; D-J985; C-AQ6. What do you say?

ANSWER: Most American experts would bid one diamond, since they are usually reluctant to open in a weak four-card major suit. In the recent Olympic bridge championships, a member of the Swiss bridge team opened with one heart. It's a matter of style.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Infants need DPT vaccine

Dear Reader: this is a continuation of yesterday's question and answer.

Dear Dr Solomon: I'm a new mother. Our doctor said that our daughter should be inoculated against D.T.P.

Exactly what are they, and do you recommend it.—Mrs. P.K.

Tetanus, commonly called lockjaw, occurs in children and adults with roughly equal frequency. In 1975, the latest year for which complete data are available, there were 102 cases in the U.S., 45 of which were fatal.

Tetanus is caused by a bacterium that is present just about everywhere, but mostly in soil, dust, manure and in the digestive tracts of man and many animals. Tetanus is not transmitted from one person to another. Rather, the germs enter the body through a wound—sometimes one as small as a pinprick, but, more often, through deep puncture wounds and lacerations, such as those made by nails and knives.

Such wounds are difficult to clean adequately, and if the tetanus bacteria were present on the nail or knife, they may remain deep in the wound, where they thrive and produce poison that attacks the body's nervous system. The person who has not been immunized against tetanus

Computerized manhunt well into second year

By DAVID MINTHORN

BONN, West Germany (AP)—The computerized, multimillion-dollar manhunt for West Germany's terrorist killers is well into its second year with 14 of the most-wanted fugitives still at large.

Terrorist suspect Willy Peter Stoll, wanted in the 1977 killings of three prominent Germans, was slain by Dueseldorf police last week in the first big strike in West Germany this year against the fanatical Red Army Faction.

But the taking of the 28-year-old Stoll brought chilling proof that some of the three dozen terrorists thought to have fled abroad last year have defiantly returned to resume their war on West German society.

"What worries us is that the terrorists have returned even though it was thought to be too hot for them here in the last six months," said a West German security official, who asked not to be named.

"They have lots of money, probably several million marks, from bank robberies and probably directly from countries like Libya..." he said. "You should see the quality of the phony identity papers Stoll had. That stuff costs money."

Stoll was shot last Wednesday by plainclothes police who challenged him at a Chinese restaurant in Dueseldorf after a woman patron recognized him from a wanted poster.

Ordered to put up his hands, Stoll instead grabbed for his pistol loaded with dum-dum bullets, a soft-nosed bullet that expands when it hits. A policeman shot faster, hitting him four times, and Stoll died of internal bleeding, authorities said.

An extensive police search of the Dueseldorf area failed to locate other Red Army suspects, but police did find an apartment believed used by Stoll just before he was killed.

Stoll was the sixth prime suspect nabbed in recent months for the 1977 terrorist killings of chief federal prosecutor Siegfried Buback, banker Jurgen Ponto and industrialist Hans Martin Schleyer.

Four suspects were captured by Yugoslav police in May and are still jailed there while the Bonn and Belgrade governments try to work out a prisoner swap — the Germans for Croatian extremist opponents of Marshal Tito living in West Germany.

Brigitte Mohnhaupt, 28, Rolf Clemens Wagner, 33, Peter Boock, 26, and Sieglinde Gutrun Hoffmann, 33, were captured in Zagreb after the Germans circulated their descriptions around the world.

Another suspect, 25-year-old Stefan Wisniewski, was arrested in France last May and has been extradited to West Germany for trial.

Ten women wanted in the killings remain at large: Susanne Albrecht, 27, Friederike Krabbe, 28, Elisabeth von Dycq, 27, Silke Maier-Witt, 28, Juliane Plambeck, 26, Inge Viett, 34, Angelika Spelzel, 26, Sigrid Sternebeck, 29, Monika Helbing, 24, and Adelheid Schulz, 23.

The four men on the most-wanted list are: Rolf Heissler, 30, Joerg Lang, 28, Baptist-Ralf Friederich, 31, and Christian Klar, 26.

Klar and Miss Schulz, who are lovers, were spotted with Stoll in August while making charter helicopter flights in southwestern Germany, apparently in search of new terrorist targets.

Police were tipped by the helicopter pilot about three suspicious passengers. Agents watched and photographed them but did not recognize their true identities until after they had disappeared.

Police said Stoll, Klar and Miss Schulz escaped detection by altering their appearances from the hippie look of wanted posters to shorter hair, makeup and clean-cut clothing favored by young German business people.

The Federal Criminal Office in Wiesbaden stocked a sophisticated computer with personal data on the terrorists and other criminals, placing 1,300 terminals in police stations, airports, border control points and other public offices to enable instantaneous checks of suspects picked up with false identity papers or disguises.

The government has refused to reveal the exact cost and extent of the anti-terrorist campaign, but millions of dollars and thousands of police are involved. The national budget set aside some $650 million for internal security this year, some $100 million more than in 1977.

The computerized identification methods and a new spirit of cooperation among governments of the East and West has benefitted the German campaign against the Red Army Faction.

Soon after the four suspects were picked up in Yugoslavia, four other Germans on a second wanted list of Red Army suspects were captured in Bulgaria. Holland also captured three suspects in the 1977 wave of violence and is preparing to extradite Knut Folkerts, 28, Christoph Wackernagel, 28, and Gerd Schneider, 29.

Guenter Sonnenberg, 23, was grabbed by West German police last year after a gunfight. He, Folkerts and Klar are believed to be the masterminds behind the assassination of prosecutor Buback in Karlsruhe, along with his driver and a police companion.

This Friday morning there will be a pep rally in the gym at 8 sharp. Ya'll drag yourselves out of bed and FIRE UP!!! FIRE UP! UP! UP!!!!

The parents still shield the children from publicity, but they don't try to hide them. All requests for interviews still go through the family attorneys.

The family house — a mansion with 17 rooms and five baths — is more secluded than ever after 15 years. It was built soon after the quint was born through services and materials donated by townspeople.

An older sister, Charlotte, 7 when the quint was born, has married and moved from home. The oldest brother and another sister will marry later this year. Two older children, the quint and Cindy, born a year after the quint and now in the same grade, remain at home.

Mary Ann Fischer often said she wanted to raise the quint not as five special children, but as part of a family of 11 children.

The Fischers and their attorneys studied carefully the case of the 1934 Dionne quintuplets, whose exploitation by their father — they were on display at a world's fair — led to lawsuits and sibling rivalry.

First surviving quintuplets turn 15, lead ordinary lives

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — They are five teen-agers who wear braces on their teeth, play basketball, take piano lessons throw slumber parties — ordinary kids growing up in an ordinary town.

It was planned that way, their ordinariness. For these children are probably America's most famous set of siblings, the Fischer quintuplets. They entered high school two weeks ago and will turn 15 on Thursday.

The five became national sweethearts on the morning of Saturday, Sept. 14, 1963, as America's first surviving quint. It was a celebrated event.

Through the extraordinary efforts of their parents — especially their mother — they have, by all accounts, emerged unscathed by the hoopla that surrounded their early years.

The four girls, Maggie, Anne, Cathy and Margie, play on the freshman basketball team and wear their hair long. Friends say they are "like anyone else. Kindsa quiet. All nice."

Jim, the fifth quint, worked on a neighbor's farm this summer. Certainly to their schoolmates, and to most people in town, they have lost their celebrity identities as "The Quints."

Americans export exotic sex rejuvenation herb

WASHINGTON (AP) — Compared with the billions of dollars worth of grain American farmers sell to foreigners each year, ginseng is small but a lot more exotic.

Ginseng is a herb reputed to have sex rejuvenation properties and other medicinal values. It is a lot more precious than grain to those who sell it and, pound for pound, may be the most valuable of all U.S. agricultural exports.

The Agriculture Department said today that ginseng exports in 1977 were valued at a record of $26.5 million, up 48 percent from $17.9 million in 1976.

About 386,164 pounds were sold last year, mostly to Hong Kong and other Asian markets. In 1976, some 329,000 pounds were exported.

That was an average price of about $70 a pound, up from about $54 a pound in 1976, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said in a report.

Few illegal aliens file for welfare

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Many illegal aliens in Texas are filing income tax returns and very few are applying for welfare and other governmental social services, according to a new study funded by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

"The study shows they (illegal aliens) are making more in terms of a contribution to the tax structure and the economy than they are detracting," John Dulles, deputy regional director of the commission, said Monday.

Based on interviews with 600 illegal aliens in El Paso and in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, it is the most comprehensive study ever done on illegal aliens, said Richard Avena, the commission's regional director.

The researchers interviewed not only illegal aliens awaiting deportation, but also unapprehended aliens living and working in the areas. Almost all of those interviewed were from Mexico.

"The impressive fact is that in a survey of 600 respondents, governmental assistance was so seldom sought," said the study. "As with the first jobs they obtain, they look to friends and relatives for help rather than to governmental agencies."

Seventy-eight percent of those interviewed said they spent all of their earnings in the United States. Almost 30 percent of the respondents had Social Security deducted from their pay, slightly over 27 percent had income tax deducted and almost 20 percent filed income tax returns.

Only four individuals among the 600 asked for welfare payments and fewer than 10 asked for food stamps or Social Security assistance. None of those interviewed received Social Security benefits.

While nearly 40 percent of the respondents had been unemployed in the United States, less than 10 percent of those filed for unemployment assistance.

Twenty-four of the 300 interviewed in El Paso asked for help through the Texas Employment Commission, compared to only three of the 300 Lower Rio Grande Valley respondents.

The study, which took more than six months and cost $50,000, concluded that illegal aliens almost always hold low-skilled, low-status jobs generally requiring only a sixth-grade Mexican education, no American education and no knowledge of English. The jobs usually pay less than the minimum wage and offer no fringe benefits.

Most of the undocumented aliens, the researchers said, value their jobs more for the financial security than for potential for advancement.

"The issue of economic impact stems from the concern regarding the perceived threat to United States citizenship when undocumented persons 'flood the marketplace.' Our findings show little basis for this fear," the study stated.

Assad blasts Sadat peace initiative

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Syrian President Hafez Assad has blasted Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's Mideast peace initiative and the Camp David summit, saying there can be no peace until "the rights of the Palestinians" are restored and occupied Arab lands returned.

While Assad did not mention the summit or Sadat directly at a state banquet Monday night, he deplored "the individual action" which led to "weakening of Arab solidarity" — a clear reference to Sadat's peace overtures and trip to Israel last November.

Assad, who arrived in West Germany on Monday for a five-day visit, is a leading spokesman for the Arab bloc which rejects Sadat's peace efforts. The West Germans are hoping to persuade Assad to moderate his opposition.

"Syria plays a key role in this conflict," West German President Walter Scheel said in his dinner remarks. "For without the cooperation of your country, a peaceful solution of the Arab-Israeli conflict is unthinkable."

Assad condemned all peace moves that take place outside the United Nations and without Palestinian representation. President Carter, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Sadat are meeting at the Maryland mountain retreat to attempt to revive the peace moves begun by Sadat last year.

Without direct reference to the Camp David effort, Assad said, "They are taking place outside the framework of the United Nations, in spite of resolutions approved therein — including the calling of a Geneva peace conference — with the exclusion of the legal representative of the Palestinian people, and without regard to the fact that the conflict in the Middle East is an Arab-Israeli conflict and not a conflict between individual Arab countries and Israel."

Legionnaires disease in New York subsiding

NEW YORK (AP) — Health officials say an outbreak of Legionnaires disease in the city's garment district has started to wane and that for the first time in a week, they had no new confirmed or suspected cases to report.

"Statistics indicate that the disease is subsiding," Paul Caswell, a city Department of Health official, said Monday.

He said the city completed the draining and disinfecting of water tanks and washing down streets and subway stations in the affected area with disinfectant.

Caswell said stores, offices and manufacturing shops in the area were being asked to continue a shutdown of all air-conditioning systems for the time being.

The number of confirmed cases in New York remained at six, including two dead, said Dr. John Marr, director of the city's Bureau of Preventable Diseases. He added it would take two or three weeks before tests of tissue and body fluids are completed on the 97 other suspected cases.

Howard County inmates file suit against jail

BIG SPRING — Eleven Howard County Jail inmates, alleging the jail does not meet federal and state standards, have filed suit for improved conditions against the Howard County Commissioners' Courts.

The petition, filed late last week in 118th District Court, charges the commissioners with sand-bagging jail repairs in favor of lights for the county fair barn, bicycle trails, parks and flowers. However, the county does not have any bicycle trails or parks to maintain, according to authorities.

Grievances listed in the petition include the need for a physician to make jail rounds at least once a week, a wall buzzer to permit prisoners in alert jailkeepers in emergencies, additional jail attendants, new air-conditioning system, new showers stalls and toilets and a recreational facility.

Signing the original petition were Hollis Moore, Charles Guthrie, Daniel Valesquez, Drice Pickel, Anthony Lee, Terry McIntire, A.L. Vega Jr., Salvador Garcia, Tommie Steven Brown, James Isaac and James Dexter Barstey Jr.
