Forty-six years ago, his parents named him after two cousins, sister Chloie and brother Maurice Huffaker up at Takoha. That's what Chloice Shofner says. His mother says he was named only after Chloie Huffaker. She has since passed on.

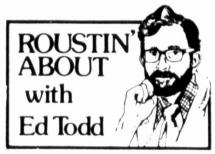

His father's name was Oley Shofner; his mother's, Mollie Reams. They named their youngest son Reams Shofner.

But it was Chloice Shofner, a cotton farmer in the Patricia area, who took a sizeable chunk of the kidding in school and in the military for having such a name. Chloice.

Chloice Shofner's wife, Kathleen O'Neal, bore four children. And their yield, aside from the offspring, was a happy marriage of names: "My name is as Irish as his is German," said the missus, who, like the mister, was bred and born in Dawson

Their yield was four: Nathan, 19, a cadet at the Air Force Acade my at Colorado Springs, Colo., and these three who, for now, are bound to "a little country school" called Klondike: Cheryl, 16; Marna, 9, and Vance, 9. The latter two came after Chloice Shofner decided not to name son No. 1 after himself: "Shoot," he said, "I wouldn't do that to anybody." So, he didn't. He named the boy Nathan. There would be no

It was hard enough to get through school with a name like that. Chloice. Try the Army if you think it's a breeze. Chloice. It's like being a boy named Sue

Now Chloice Shofner had four brothers who took "interesting"

His momma, Mollie Shofner, now 80 and living in Lamesa, has the best reason in the world for naming Clebern Clebern:

"I just liked the name 'Clebern.' I named him Clebern because I wanted to." No reason is needed apparently. Now, Brother No. 2 was named Nuell Shofner. His middle name was Oley — after his father. However, instead of calling Dawson County his home, he lays claim to Anchorage, e, Alaska, where he's into mechandising. All his buddies, though, are cotton farmers. Momma Shofner also has a perfectly plausible "excuse" for naming Nuell Nuell: "My husband," she said, "named him after one of my boyfriends." Oh, (they) ... were real good friends.

Chloice Shofner dirt farms. He taught economics for seven years at Midland College. Only it wasn't economical:

"I hated to quit teaching," said Chloice Shofner. He commmuted to the classroom each school day. "I enjoy teaching more than anything any in the world. I just couldn't make a living at it - supporting a wife and four kids."

So, Chloice decided not too venture to far from home, stuck with his 800-plus acres and family interests, and decided to make a go of it - name and all — at Patricia.

Carter, Begin meet secretly

dent Carter has met unannounced with Israel's Menachem Begin, setting off intensive U.S. deliberations in the search for a way to compromise Israeli and Egyptian differences over the future of the Palestinian Arabs.

The Carter-Begin session, which lasted nearly an hour and a half Tuesday night, was confirmed today by the White House press office more than 12 hours later. Carter and Begin had not met since last Sunday.

After the meeting, Carter left his principal advisers, including Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, working past midnight. It was understood the U.S. delegation is working on the precise language of a statement encompassing Palestinian and other Carter has yet to impose a deadline for winding up the week-old Middle East summit, although it threatens to disrupt his own schedule for speechmaking and politicking.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said on Tuesday he knew of no plans to cancel Carter's planned trips Friday and Saturday to the Carolinas,

On the Palestinian question. Carter's goal is to find language acceptable to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin as well as Jordan's King Hussein

Hussein has a big stake in the issue because many of the Palestinians live on the Jordan River's West Bank - a region Israel seized from Jordan in Powell belatedly acknowledged on Tuesday that Sadat had telephoned Hussein a day earlier. He gave no details but said the Jordanian leader would not join the talks here.

Carter hopes for a Begin Sadat compromise that would draw Jordan into the peace process at some future point Hussein, however, has pledged to boycott Mideast peace talks until Israel agrees to withdraw from the West Bank.

A compromise acceptable to Hussein would bolster Arab support for Sadat, who has risked alienating other Arab states for his willingness to negotiate directly with Israel. Begin last year offered civil selfrule to the 1.1 million Palestinians living on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip in the Sinai desert. Sadat rejected that proposal, which would have left the Palestinians under Is raeli military control

Blast signals mall groundbreaking

By ED TODD R-T Staff Writer

Midland's building boom got an historic blast Tuesday, when ground breaking with dynamite charges signaled construction of the 750,000 square-foot Midland Park Mall in the northwest quadrant of the city

Developer Melvin Simon called it a 'jewel' among the more than 100 shopping centers, including about 45 climate-controlled malls, which he has built nationwide over the past 18

"I think this one is going to be a jewel." Simon said of the regional shopping center moments before the sixth and final dynamite charge of the afternoon was set off before some 350 spectators.

Afterward, Simon characterized Midland as having "quality and class," and said he selected the city over Odessa as a development site in the Permian Basin.

Simon is the 51-year-old chairman of Melvin Simon & Associates, the nation's fourth largest developer of shopping centers. The firm is based in Indianapolis, Ind. Simon also is a film

He was joined by representatives of the three currently known "anchor" department stores - J.C. Penney Co., Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Dillard's which will form the core of the 80-shop mall and by city officials at the groundbreaking ceremony:

The mall, to completed by early 1980, will be located at FM 868 and Midkiff Road.

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. who was in the line-up in setting off the blasts, called the mall groundbreaking "an event for which we've been waiting a long time said the mayor, who with the council, took an hour's recess from a City Council meeting to attend the ceremony under the hot sun and cloud filled skies. "I'm proud to be a part of it," he said. "We're proud to have them (Melvin Simon & Associates) and proud to have the associa-

Emceeing the "blast-off" was Ted Fratrik, Simon's public relations officer, who announced that "four major anchor department stores" would form the nucleus of the mall: Sears. J.C. Penney and Dillard's, which are full-line stores, and a specialty store to be named within 60 days.

"It goes without saying," Fratrik said, "Melvin Simon & Associates is externely proud to be here.

He described the planned mall as the largest and undoubtedly the prettiest" to be built in Midland William Dillard Sr., Dillard's board chairman, compared Midland with Tyler, where Dillard's operates "one of our oldest and most successful stores." He said Dillard's soon will have 42 stores in seven states. Half of them are in Texas He characterized the line and quality of the Dillard's store in Midland Park Mall by saying the Midland Dillard's would be "a direct competitor of Sanger(Harris) or Foley's,' if Midland were closer to the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex.

The Dillard's store will take up about 100,000 square feet of the mall. The J.C. Penney store will cover about 100,271 square feet in the mall. "It's been a long time coming for

J.C. Penney to make a move in Midland," said Kenn Acker, Penney's district manager. He said J.C. Penney has been in Midland 42 years. The University lands sale gets off to flying start

Oil and gas operators from throughout the oil industry got the 68th University Lands Auction sale off to a speedy start this morning in the Midland Hilton, spending money at a rate of $48,400 a minute.

During the first 90 minutes of the sale, the lease buyers were sold $4, 356,000 worth of leases

The sale opened at 10 a m. and was to run to 5 p.m. unless all of the 292 tracts being offered had been sold before that time.

At 11:30 a.m., 94 tracts, representing 36,404 acres, had been sold for an average of $119.65 an acre.

The tax assessor-collector explained the probable increases to Midland school district trustees at their Tuesday meeting.

Demolition crews extinguish last fires at grain elevator

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - After nine months, demolition men are finally close to extinguishing the last fires from a grain elevator explosion that killed 36 persons last December.

"I'm fully convinced that the fire would have burned for two or three years if it had been left alone," says H.D. Vaughan, the man who has been extinguishing the flames.

The fires ignited last Dec. 22, when ental Grain Co. elevator at Westwego exploded in a thunderous blast that hurled debris across the Mississippi River into uptown New Orleans

The Westwego elevator was one of the biggest in the nation, with a capacity of 6 million bushels.

The explosion left 45 of the elevator's 72 silos damaged beyond repair. The place looked like it had been bombed. Inside the 130-foot silos and under the debris, grain fires smoldered

"You can't put it out with water," said Vaughan, whose demolition company leveled the damaged silos and is clearing the debris and extinguishing the fires.

"Continental Grain had a tanker and pumped water in there for three or four months and never could do anything with it. The water just made it flare up," Vaughan said.

The only way you can put it out is to spread it, and that's what we've been doing. You pick it up with a front-end loader and spread it out. Once it spreads out into individual grains, you can put it out."

Several piles of smoldering grain continue to burn with a bluish flame about a foot high

"When water gets on it, it turns into a great big yellowish flame, sometimes 12 to 15 feet high," Vaughan

"There's only one silo with any fire left in it. We probably won't get to it for four or five days.

Shortly after the explosion, Cont nental tried to knock down the damaged silos with dynamite blasts. The blasts brought complaints from neighbors, but had little effect on the steel-reinforced concrete silos. After several weeks, the effort was aban-

Council does slow shuffle on 'lounge'

"I could have danced all the night," or so the song goes — but not for Midlanders.

Residents wishing to "dance all night" have a limited selection, and a move by the Midland City Council Tuesday kept their choices from expanding by one.

Gregory Alan Robinson had applied for a specific use permit to sell alcoholic beverages at a restaurant-lounge at 606 W. Missouri Ave. The city council approved the sale of alcoholic beverages and use of a live band, but stalled on the issue of the 'lounge

The restaurant is designed to serve mainly the downtown lunch bunch with a noon buffet. But after nightfall, the owners had planned on a dance floor to bring additional business.

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. questioned how the owners expected to keep the restaurant from turning into a "joint." Grady Duane Robertson, one of the four owners, replied. "We're going to keep it a nice place. It's not going to be a

Midland has few places where people can go to dance at night, Robertson said. He also noted that young people have few places to go and meet others and the business would be geared toward that set of customers. A parking lot has been leased on one side of the building to provide off-street parking for customers during the daytime.

The owners would have use of additional off-street parking after 6 p.m., he said. Most of the daytime customers, though, would be "walk-ins" from downtown

"Last time I went dancing I didn't see anything wrong with it." Councilman Tom Sloan said Tuesday.

"In fact," he said after a lengthy discussion on dancing, "I'm going to get up and take a walk." and left through a side

Council member Doris Howbert echoed his feeling on the topic saying, "I don't see anything wrong with dancing. I like

The motion on the ordinance ended in a tie vote. A second motion to allow the sale of alcoholic beverages without dancing passed.

But the topic of dancing continued to pop up throughout the council meeting, even in the late hours when the council was discussing the issue of allowing advertising in the water bills.

"What would we advertise?" questioned one council mem-

"Why, dancing in the streets," quipped another.

To which another added. "That's the only place you'll do it here.

Ceremony cited as golden move

R.A. McBride, who's in the booming energy business, didn't just "happen out" to Tuesday's groundbreaking ceremony for the Midland Park

He foresees another boom...so very close to home.

"I'm just an interested neighbor," said McBride, who owns acreage northwest of the planned mall. "It's going to make my land gold-plated." McBride was among the 350 or so specatators who turned out to witness the event in northwest Midland. Among their numbers were merchants, bankers, savings-and-loan executives, architects, builders, accountants, city and county officials, chamber of commerce leaders, educators and newsmen.

Midland County Commission Durward Wright said the coming of the mall is "two years overdue, at least, but we're awfully glad to get it."

Overdue or not, Midland banker Harry Clark said he is pleased the 750,000-square-foot mall is being developed.

"I think it is one of the finest things that has happened to Midland," he said of the regional shopping center.

The mall is being developed by Melvin Simon & Associates, of India napolis, Ind., the nation's fourth largest shopping-center developer.

No cost figures were mention dur ing Tuesday's groundbreaking ceremonies and cocktail party "That's one thing we don't talk

Helpless feeling follows TESCO rate hike hearing

R-T Staff Writer

"It seems to be an exercise in futility," remarked City Council Member Doris Howbert as she leaned her head against the palm of her hand.

After a public hearing, the City Council Tuesday had just accepted a 6.7 percent rate increase recommended for Texas Electric Service Co. by a consulting team. TESCO had requested a 24.4 percent rate hike. The hearing was part of the marathon City Council meeting which started at 10 a.m. and ended shortly before 10 p.m. Tuesday, breaking during the day only for lunch and the new shopping mall groundbreaking.

Few residents showed up at the council chambers to express their views on the TESCO hearing.

The council had joined with other cities in the TESCO area to hire a consulting team, and the study indicated a 6.7 percent rate increase was sufficient, according to Fred Poe, assistant city manager Cities are required by law to set the electric rate, but "that power given to the cities has been usurped," Mrs. Howbert said. While the cities to be affected by the hike may adopt the 6.7 percent increase, TESCO can appeal it to the Public Utilities Commission. "What the PUC says, goes," the council member added. TESCO general manager Winston

District risks losing $1 million

The Midland school district faces the prospect of losing almost $1 million in state funds for the 1979-80 school year unless the Legislature provides some relief, school board members were told Tuesday.

The inclusion of intangible property, such as money in bank accounts, stocks and interest-bearing bonds, in the value assigned to the district by the state Tax Appraisal Practices Board nearly doubled the total value of the district.

The state board placed a value of $3.147 billion on the district while MISD figures show a value of only $1.305 billion. Some $1.44 billion of the difference between the two figures is the value assigned to intangible property by the state. MISD does not include the value of the intangibles in its report at all since it is not feasible to tax the property despite the provision in the constitution to do so, board president Johnny Warren said.

School trustees passed a resolution in favor of passage of the state constitutional amendment for tax relief on the Nov. 7 general election ballot.

The amendment would allow the Legislature to remove the provision for taxing intangible property in the

Without relief from the state, the increased value placed on the district will raise the district's local fund assignment - that money the state requires the district to provide for minimum school programs - from $1.8 million this year to $5.66 million for the 1979-80 school year, an increase of almost $4 million.

Because of a state law limiting the increase in local fund assignments to 25 percent each year, the district would have to raise only an additional $452,000 for its share of the local fund assignment next year.

But, in addition to the extra $452,000 the district would have to provide, it could also lose all the state equalization funds — some $529,000 this year - it would have received with lower district valuations. The state allocates equalization money to districts to pay for its share of minimum school programs based on the wealth of the individual district. Although there is a difference of some $395 million between the values placed on real and tangible property in the district by the state and MISD, Virgil Jones, tax assessor-collector for the district, said the other values are not unrealistic.

Part of the difference will be made up when the district completes the revaluation of property outside the city limits, scheduled to be finished by the end of this year.

A difference of more than $100 million in the values of residential single-family homes and $228 million in the values for real commercial and industrial property will be corrected in the annual valuation reviews the district will begin making next year,

The only area where the two sets of values coincide - oil and gas and other mineral reserves - is an area that is "considerably undervalued," Jones said.

Both the district and the state board accepted the values established by Pritchard and Abbott Evaluation Engineers for the oil and gas property.

"When you look at the percent of increase on our residential property and the percent of increase they have put the oil and gas property, you know there is something wrong," Jones

Jones said he had asked the state board to "take a look" at the oil and gas valuation figures. Jones also told the board there were some items included in the state board's values that are not taxed by the Midland district including personal vehicles, motor homes and airplanes and household goods.

University Lands sale

A total of 108,573 acres of land was put up for sale this morning in the Tall City and the bidding was brisk right off the bat, with Blake Moore of Paris handling the auction process.

The occasion is the 68th public auction of University Lands oil and gas leases. The Midland Hilton is the scene of action.

This is the third successive sale to be held in Midland — home of the University Lands office — and only the third ever to be held outside the state capital. The initial sale was held here in April 1977. It was the third most successful in the history of the auction, pouring $13,326,500 into The University of Texas System's Permanent Fund

Another sale held here last December smashed all previous records, when the leases sold for $17,870,500, exceeding the previous record by more than $1.5

Early indications are that today's sale most likely will be another record-breaker.

Would-be buyers from all over the country are on hand to bid for the choice offerings.

The Board for Lease of University Lands, incidentally, includes Bob Armstrong, commissioner of the General Land Office, and Dan Williams and Dr. Sterling Fly Jr., members of the Board of Regents of The University System.

It is great to have the land sales held in Midland, and it is hoped that the periodic sales will continue to be held here.

Midlanders are delighted at the opportunity of being hosts to the Board for Lease members, other officials and staff members in charge of arranging and staging the sale, and all other bidders and visitors here for this particular event. A great big, cordial, typically West Texas WELCOME is extended to one and all.

No matter, Cuba and a handful of Puerto Rican separatists who have no official standing demand these debates. The committee, top-heavy with Communist and Third World states, complies.

This year, the truth had a particularly effective witness. Puerto Rico's Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo became the first incumbent commonwealth governor to address the committee. Romero, an advocate of American statehood for Puerto Rico, noted the committee had no jurisdiction in this matter. But Romero understands that charges of colonialism are best refuted by those allegedly colonized.

He cited the record. In five general elections and one plebiscite since commonwealth status was achieved in 1952, candidates and political parties advocating independence have

Confession of a klutz: 'It happened this way'

WASHINGTON - I stepped on a tennis ball this summer while running for another ball. I wouldn't mention it except that Time magazine did a piece on people over 40 who still think they are youngsters when it comes to sports. They ran a picture of me in a leg cast (I had a badly sprained ankle) and they called me a "klutz," which means a klunk who doesn't know what he's doing.

Naturally, I was offended, because Howard Cosell has said on many occasions that my performance on a tennis court could only be compared to Nureyev's on a ballet stage.

The problem with having any kind of sports injury when you're over 40 is not what it does to your body or even to your pride. It's the flak you have to take from well-meaning people who keep asking you what happened.

Since I was in the cast for six weeks, I was able to break these people down into categories.

In the first category were those who demanded to know WHY I stepped on the tennis ball. My stock answer for them was: "I always wanted to do it but I never had the nerve. It beats the hell out of ballooning, because when you're flying through the air you have a complete sense of weightlessness.'

The second category of sympathizers I ran into would ask, "Why didn't you move the extra tennis ball off the court before you started playing?"

Because that would have taken the fun out of the game," I would reply.
"The thrill of tennis is to get the ball back without stepping on the one you left on the court.

I said this with so much conviction that most people would reply, "I didn't know that.'

"Of course. Why do you think you play with three tennis balls? You need two to serve with, and one to leave on the court so you can trip over it."

The real agony of being in a cast is that you have to listen to everyone else's cast story. I don't believe I ran into one person who hadn't been in a cast at one time or another. And when you're on crutches, it's very hard to move away when someone starts telling you his or her own tale.

They were all horror stories and ranged from the fact that their bones hadn't been set right and had to be set again to how they were driven up the wall when their injured leg started itching and they had to poke knitting needles down the cast to get relief. "The worst thing," one lady told me, "is that when they take the cast off and you see what your leg looks like, most people faint."

After a while I realized that people were not impressed with how I was injured, so I devised a story which would get their attention.

When asked what happened, I would say, "It's very boring, but if you're really interested - I was on a tennis court, and suddenly this flying saucer landed by the net and a little green man got out wielding a laser pistol. He said, 'Take me to your leader.' I didn't know who to take him to - so he shot me in the leg."

You would think that your own orpathy for someone over 40 who had suffered a sports injury. But when I returned to Washington and went to my doctor to have the cast removed. he took one look at my leg and all he said was, "Did you have a nice sum-

Single case of Legionnaire's disease isolated in Waco; victim recovers

WACO, Texas (AP) - McLennan County health officials have confirmed that a 22-year-old Waco resident suffered from Legionnaire's disease last month, though he had recovered by the time the diagnosis

Officials at the Waco-McLennan County Health Department Tuesday said that a case of the disease, a form of bacterial pneumonia, had been iso-lated about a month ago, but that the man had recovered and no other cases had been discovered.

"There have been sporadic cases of Legionnaire's Disease diganosed in Texas ever since we've known how to diagnose the disease," he said. There is no danger to the public. All cases in Texas have been sporadic and no case here has ever been traced back to another case.

Dr. Slade said the disease has symptoms similar to other forms of bacterial pnuemonia, inluding general weakness, high fever and cough.

They have been able to culture the germs in certain cases," Slade said, adding that the Waco case was at first believed to be pneumonia until lab tests were concluded. By then, the patient had recovered.

Bush, Hance trying to keep 'big names' out of race

The final push has started in the 19th Congressional District campaign and George W. Bush, the Republican contender, outlined the major issues during a "Bush Brunch" today.

At a news conference in Midland, Bush said the campaign in which he is opposing Democrat Kent Hance of Lubbock is drawing national attention, but both candidates are trying to keep the "big names" out of the Bush said he has received contributions from former California governor and presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan and former President Gerald Ford.

While both men volunteered to campaign for the 32-year-old Midland oil man, Bush said, he said he told them "no."

Hance also reportedly rejected the offer of First Lady Rosalynn Carter to aid his campaign when she made a swing through Texas recently to speak for Democratic candidates.

Bush said he believes the race is attracting national attention because George Mahon, 44-year veteran of the 19th seat, is retiring. Mahon, said Bush, has areputation "as a distinguished politician and is well-

The race is wide open and differences between the two candidates are few, Bush said, including age. The main difference is that the Midlander is a Republican and Hance is a Democrat, he added.

Bush said today that that difference also is the reason he feels he will be elected over Hance.

Headquarters for the Bush campaign have been set up in all 17 counties in the district and response to Bush's door-to-door campaign "have been good," he said.

The main issue "first and foremost in the race is inflation," Bush claimed.

"Inflation is a tax. The private sector is denied (operatin) capital. Gov-ernment must work for the people and not against the people.'

He called defense the second most important issue. "I am opposed to unilateral disarmament. Our opposition will not follow suit if we disarm," Bush said.

Oil and gas also is a top issue, but a regional one, said Bush. The Republican nominee said he does not like the energy compromise bill and charged that President Carter was using the argument of the declining dollar to get the bill passed by Congress. Agriculture is another issue, Bush said, suggesting the State Department stop doing the negotiating with foreign countries on agriculture exports.

"This is the bread basket of the United States," he said. "We shouldn't have the State Department selling U.S. products. It curries

While the Republican party appeared split during the primary and runoff, Bush said, the splits are healing with the result being "a strong united party."

Taking a jab at his Democratic opponent, who is a state sena-tor, Bush added, "Washington, D.C. is worlds apart from Austin, Texas. The one who can be effective is the one who can slice through the bureaucracy to help West Texas."

Ethics Committee accuses Eilberg of breaking rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee today accused Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., of violating House rules by receiving compensation from his law firm for the firm's work that affected a federal agency. The committee's announcement came as the group was to open hearings on another congressman accused of violating House rules in the South Korean influence-buying scandal.

That hearing, however, stalled before it could be started as only five members of the 12 member committee appeared for the hearings. It takes seven members for the committee to act.

Committee chairman Rep. John J. Flynt, Jr., D-Ga., said he hoped to get a quorum today and to start proceedings against Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., at that time.

The allegations against Eilberg are the first step in a process of determining whether he actually violated House rules. If the committee later rules that he did, in fact, do so, it can recommend penalties against him ranging from a reprimand to expulsion from the House membership.

The three-count allegation accused Eilberg of violating House rules and U. S. law by receiving funds from the law firm of Eilberg, Corson, Getson and Abramson in 1975. The allegation said part of the work "was for services rendered by that law firm in connection with a particular matter before the Community Services Administration . . .

A second count alleged that he accepted, during a period from March 1975 through 1977, compensation "in excess of $100,000 from the law firms of Eilberg, Corson, Getson and Abramson; Corson, Getson and Abramson; and Corson, Getson and Tuteur, under circumstances which might be construed by reasonable persons as influencing the performance of his government duties." The third count alleged that he accepted compensation, directly or indirectly during a period from August 1976 and throughout the remainder of that year, from the law firm of Corson, Getson and Abramson, for services by the firm rendered in connection with a matter before the Community Services Administration.

Announcement of the "statement of alleged violations"came as the committee was preparing to open hearings that would have placed Roybal in a face to face confrontation with his principal accuser, former South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park.

The committee decided Tuesday night to hold public sessions to air allegations agaitnst Roybal and against one other congressman, Rep. John J. McFall, D-Calif., accused in connection with the alleged South Korean influence buying scandal.

The committee also has charges pending against two other members of Congress but it decided to temporarily defer any action on those cases.

The public sessions will be the first opportunity for the two members to present their defense against the allegations in an open session.

The committee earlier heard Park publicly detail his dealings with 30 present and former congressmen. The testimony of Park, who has been accused of trying to buy influence in Congress on behalf of the South Korean government, was the basis for the charges against the four.

The committee temporarily decided Tuesday not to proceed to public hearings on allegations against Reps. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., and Edward J. Patten, D-N.J. Flynt said the committee felt the two should have a chance to argue against the basis for the charges in a closed session before any public hearing was held.

The House deliberations are separate from a Justice Department investigation in the scandal. That inquiry so far has resulted in criminal charges being filed against Park and two former congressmen, Richard T. Hanna, D-Calif., and Otto Passman, D-La. Hanna pleaded guilty to conspiring with Park to defraud the government while Passman, charged with accepting $213,000 in bribes, has yet to come to trial.

Park, who has agreed to testify truthfully in return for the Justice Department dropping all 36 criminal charges against him, flew to Washington Saturday night from South Korea to testify.

Tense men, women making textbook adoption selections

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas' unique textbook adoption process focuses usually on intellectual and ideological tensions between publishers and citizen critics.

What's often lost sight of is that decisions by the State Textbook Committee and the State Board of Education mean hundreds of thousands sometimes millions — of dollars to the publishers.

Tense men and women, more than the hearing room can hold, fill the seats, line the walls and even crowd the doorways to catch the committee votes. They are prohibited from making contact with the 15 committee made by the board of education in November after a public hearing. This year's adoptions, generally for five years, will cost the state about

Grand jury indicts Ford Co. in deaths of three women exploded when it was hit in the rear by a van driven by Robert Duggar, 21, ELKHART, Ind. — A county grand jury today indicted the Ford Motor Co. on three counts of reckless homicide and one count of criminal recklessness in the deaths of three young women in a fiery Pinto automobile crash last month. There was no immediate reaction from the auto company.

The Elkhart County grand jury of five men and one woman had begun deliberations on Tuesday in the case, which stems from the Aug. 10 accident in which Judy Ulrich, 18, of Osceola, her 16-year-old sister, Lynn, and their cousin, Donna Ulrich, 18, of Roanoke, Ill., burned to death.

The Pinto in which the Ulrich girls died was one of 1.5 million Pinto and Mercury Bobcats made between 1971 and 1976 that Ford recalled in June because of government complaints about the fuel tank. Ford denies the tanks are any more susceptible to explosion than other small cars of those model years, when no federal rear-end collision standards existed.

William Connour, an Indianapolis attorney who helped draft the revised state penal code under which the action was brought, said the consideration of criminal charges against Ford was unprecedented.

The teen-agers' 1973 Pinto sedan of Goshen. County Prosecutor Michael A. Cosentino said the grand jury also is investigating possible charges against Duggar. Testimony by two Ford engineers and four other witnesses, including the Ulrich sisters' parents, ended The engineers were called to testify about the design of the Pinto fuel tank, said by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to be too susceptible to explosion in rearend collisions.

The Association of Trial Lawyers of America said in June there are up to 50 civil suits stemming from Pinto crashes pending in various courts. At least six suits have been settled out of court by Ford, including three of more than $1 million. The biggest jury award was last

Feb. 6 when an Orange County, Calif., jury awarded $127.8 million - $125 million in punitive damages — to a teen-ager badly burned when his 1972 Pinto burst into flames after being hit in the rear by a car going 35 mph. The plaintiffs argued Ford knew from its own tests that the Pinto tank would rupture too easily, but sold the cars anyway to save $10 a car.

Confession may be key issue in trial of man charged in brutal slaying HOUSTON (AP) - year-old client on the Wilkerson's confession

District Judge Lee Duggan was to rule today whether a confession from a man charged with murder in connection with the brutal slaying of three persons will be admitted as evidence in the murder trial of David Roeder.

Duggan accepted as evidence Tuesday Roeder's confession to the robbery, abduction and shooting deaths of Don Fantich, Georgina Rose and Dr. William Fitzpatrick.

Roeder's attorneys, Bob Scott and W. B. House, said they would try to destroy the prosecution's case by challenging the validity of the confession by J.C.

Refusing education creates 'subculture of poverty'

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — "A real subculture of poverty" is being created in Texas, especially in already poor South Texas border areas, because illegal alien children are barred from free public educations, say three attorneys who have attacked the law in court.

"It is creating an underclass of people we will not educate. . .a real subculture of poverty," Edinburg attorney David Hashmall said Tuesday during a hearing before the Texas Advisory Committee to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

'These children will have a harder time getting a job and will stay along the border where they can speak the language. A real danger is aggravating a strip of poverty in South Texas and making it worse," he added.

Hashmall and attorneys Alfredo Saenz and Linda Hanten have all been involved in lawsuits challenging the 1975 state law forbidding school districts from giving free educations to illegal aliens.

The law was aimed at preventing increasing numbers of illegal alien children from becoming a financial burden to Texas school districts, especially those along the Rio

"I think that the state, by passing this law, is doing an extreme injustice to the children of the state," said Saenz. "These children are not going back to Mexico. They have no control over where they are. They're here with their parents. It's keeping them at home without an education.

"It may be even worse than that. By excluding children at that age and admitting other children who are Mexican-American or documented aliens, it creates animosity," he added. "The line is drawn. From then on, there will be nothing but prob-

In a 1974 state court suit, Saenz unsuccessfuly challenged what was then only a policy of the Houston Independent School District. He says hundreds and "maybe thousands" of illegal alien children are being excluded in Houston.

Ms. Hanten, however, won a preliminary federal court injunction last year against the Tyler Independent School District, which charged more than $100 per month tuition for each child from usually indigent illegal alien families.

Hashmall filed his federal suit against three lower Rio Grande Valley school districts on behalf of children who are U.S. citizens living with relatives in Texas, but whose Mexican parents remain in Mexico. Some districts refuse to admit such children because their parents don't live in the services for the El Paso school district, told committee members that the law was unfortunate, but necessary. He said that without the law, thousands of Mexican children would illegally cross the border to attend El Paso schools.

More than 700 children, most of them illegal aliens from Mexico, are turned away each year from El Paso schools, which have an enrollment of 60,000, Hart said. The average cost per student in El Paso is about $1,300 per year, he added.

Hart's statements were echoed by Oscar Hakala, an adminstrative officer for the San Antonio school dis"This is a ruling we have to live with," he said. "It's a painful experi-ence for us to turn away any children who are apparently going to remain here. The local taxpayers would have to pay the entire cost of educating these children. "There must be some way to edu-cate the children, in my personal

N & W strike may spread to 72 other railways

WASHINGTON (AP) - The possibility that a strike against the Norfolk & Western Railway might spread to 72 other railroads loomed today after a federal judge refused to ban such an

Fred J. Kroll, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, said the judge's decision makes it clear his union members have the right to take "appropriate action" against the other lines.

However, union officials said they had no immediate plans to attempt a coast-to-coast strike. Brief rail work stoppages connected with the N&W strike occurred last week in Chicago and Buffalo, N.Y.

The union has been on strike against N&W since July 10 in a dispute over work rules. Charging that the union planned to call for a strike against the other lines, which have been helping N&W, the railroads obtained a temporary restraining order against such a strike expansion on Aug. 27 and asked for a temporary

U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. issued an order Tuesday dissolving the temporary restraining order and denying the temporary injunction. Robinson said he had no jurisdiction in the case.

Robinson transferred the case to Chicago, where the industry's lawsuit against the union, contending that an expanded walkout is illegal, is before the U.S. District Court.

N&W is a member of a strike insurance program set up by 73 railroads and has been receiving $800,000 a day under the mutual aid pact, Robinson

Kroll said the N&W has had little incentive to negotiate constructively for a settlement of the dispute. "At the same time,"he said in a statement, "it has sought to deny to BRAC members at N&W any right to counteraction against those railroads whose financial contributions have materially lengthened the strike."

"Speaking for BRAC and its 4,500 striking members, I can only hope that Judge Robinson's action will spur N&W management to enter into a constructive phase of collective bargaining," he said.

Former ambassador probed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal authorities reportedly are studying whether to prosecute a former U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam for keeping classified documents presumably taken along when Americans were evacuated from Saigon in 1975.

Justice Department of-ficials declined comment on the report in today's editions of The Washing-ton Post, which said any prosecution of Graham Martin could involve a seldom-used statute barring "misuse" of classi-fied documents.

Martin, who is recuperating in a Winston-Salem, N.C., hospital from lung surgery, was quoted as saying he considered the materials to be his personal property and that he intended to turn them over to the Lyndon B. Johnson Library on Austin, Texas.

"I thought the historians might be able to do a better job at telling the story than has been done so far; they should have a shot at it," Martin told the newspaper.

Martin's possession of the documents first came to light in January when North Carolina police found some of them in the trunk of his car after he had reported the vehicle stolen.

The Post quoted an un-named, highly knowl-edgeable official as saying the documents include CIA communications between the Saigon embassy and Washington and cover the entire period of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war from 1963 to 1975.

Former Mrs. Oswald testifies with composure

WASHINGTON (AP) - Marina Oswald Porter today described for Congress how she happened to marry a man she hardly knew, a man who would become known as the assassin of a president. Testifying with composure before the House assassinations committee, Mrs. Porter recalled her whirlwind courtship with Lee Harvey Oswald when she was 19 in her native Rus-

She said she knew little about him except that he was an American and that she liked him

She was asked whether it wasn't a bit hasty to plunge into marriage after only six weeks of dating. "Not when you're the age that I was," she replied.

Recalling their life in Minsk, Oswald's widow said her husband was generally good-natured, losing his temper only about as much as most husbands do, was somewhat dissatisfied with his work at a radio factory, became best friends with a Russian factory worker who was studying English, and rarely discussed politics

They were married in April 1961, only a few months after John F. Kennedy was inaugurated as president. With a short-wave radio, they heard some of Kennedy's speeches in English, she said.

"I would ask Lee what is he saying? What is he saying?" she related. "He told me to hush up and not interrupt. His attitude was you being a woman, what do you know about politics?"

Russian but Oswald spoke both languages

Oswald occasionally made remarks about Kennedy, she recalled. "Whatever he said about President Kennedy, it was only good, always."

Two years later, of course, Oswald would be identified as the assassin who murdered Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. Oswald was slain in the Dallas police station by Jack Ruby. His widow married a Dallas factory foreman, Kenneth Porter, in 1965. They were divorced in 1974 but later resumed living together in Dallas. Soon after her marriage to Oswald, Mrs. Porter said, she was startled at Oswald's suggestion that they move to the United States.

"It wasn't a very easy decision for me to make," she said. "What should I do? Should I follow him? Should I stay at home? I told him wherever he go, I should too."

Speaking in English with a trace of an accent, she describd their move to Fort Worth, where Oswald's brother Robert lived. Oswald had trouble finding work and his attitude soured, she continued.

Mrs. Porter was the only witness today as the committee turned its attention to Oswald and planned afternoon questioning covering the days leading up to the assassination.

Before turning to Oswald, the committee on Tuesday presented the last major scientific report of its investi-

Tom Canning, an engineer with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration who specializes in the flight paths of projectiles, testified that a single bullet probably wounded both Kennedy and John B. Connally, then governor of Texas, who was sitting in a jumpseat in front of Kennedy in the presidential limousine.

Canning's testimony supported the commission's single-bullet theory, disputed by critics who argue that the men were struck by separate bullets fired by two assassins.

Canning computed the trajectories nedy and Connaily, and the one that struck Kennedy in the head. Both trajectories pointed to the sixth-floor window of the Texas School Book Depository where the Warren Commission said Oswald fired the shots.

A photo analyst, Calvin McCamy, testified that 15 of the 16 analysts who studied numerous photos of the assassination scene for the committee agreed that Kennedy and Connally were wounded by the same bullet.

Auto tire serves as base for patio dryer

By AL CARRELL

Town houses and patio homes are very popular these days as a way to better utilize small plots of land. If you have one, you'll probably find that you have to learn to make your patio do double duty. It's the only yard you have in most cases, so you'll want it for both utility and leisure. Here's how one friend puts up the clothesline unit on wash day and then removes it the rest of the week. The secret is in the roll-away base made from an old auto tire. The base is filled with concrete so it's heavy enough to hold the folding clothesline frame with clothes. To make the base, the tire was placed flat on the ground, and a scrap of plywood was cut to fit inside the tire. A short length of pipe was positioned in the center of the base with tape around the bottom. Then the concrete mix was poured

Dear Al:

I very carefully patched up my textured ceiling after a roof leak had ruined it. Then after I repainted, I could see some of the dimples where I had placed nails and where the old texturing and the new met. It only shows up at night, which is the worst time because it's when we'd have company. The difference is the light. I did the patching during the day, and it looked great. The lights at night are from ceiling fixtures and just hit the areas at different angles. My suggestion for your readers is that after doing drywall patching or texturing they check it out with both natural and artificial light and do this after it's completely dry since the texturing compound shrinks as it dries. I'm not going to redo the ceiling until it needs repainting or until my wife puts enough pressure on me. -

A SUPER HINT — Here's a clever paint scraper that a friend has come up with. He sewed a piece of window screen to the surface of an old paint roller. The screen was cut to exactly fit. Fine wire was used for the sewing. With the extension handle on the roller, flaking paint is removed rapidly without having to climb a

Did you ever invent some tricky idea and then find that it had an entirely different use as well? I attached a wire hook onto the frame of my bow saw so I could hang it from the shop wall. Then I discovered that the hook was even handier for pulling branches down - I could grab them without having to climb a ladder. It saves ladder lugging, time and maybe a fall. And it still acts as a hanger. I made my hook from coathanger wire attached by self-tapping screws, but some day soon I'll replace it with a hook fashioned from sturdier metal. How's that idea for a switcheroo?

They say Tom Edison was trying to make some glass bauble for a party his wife had planned when he came up with the light bulb.

SHOP TALK — I guess the clogged up drain is just about the most common household problem. Many clogs can be pushed out of the way with some kind of force. There's a new gadget that lets you use the water pressure from the clogged-up sink's very own water supply. The gadget has a plastic tube with a connector piece on one end and a drain cover ball on the other. The connector is secured around the faucet by a worm-gear hose clamp. When everything's in place, and with the overflow opening blocked, you turn on the water full blast, and hopefully blast out the clog. It's called a Sink Mink. (Hey, if your wife's been bounding you for a mink, maybe this will ! your way out.)

Robert Iadeluca, a 57year-old doctoral candidate in Syracuse University's psychology department, says there's no relationship between age and ability to learn except for "the added wisdom older persons have gained.

Iadeluca, who teaches a course in the psychology of maturity and old age, says someone interested in continuing studies should consider such factors as health, previous education and lifestyle. But, he adds, a relatively intangible factor - motivation - is perhaps the most important of all.

"I have spent almost six years trying to find out what motivation is," he says. "I've done a considerable amount of research on it. I still don't know what it is ... but I do

How Does One Clean A Chimney? VERY CAREFULLY.

Why does one clean a chimney? There are a number of reasons but mainly because they get dirty. When chimneys are dirty, the fire doesn't burn well. Dirty chimneys sometimes emit offensive odors. When dirty the damper cannot close properly, which causes a loss of heat in the winter and air conditioning in the summer. And last but not least, when chimneys are dirty they sometimes catch on fire (which immediately causes an emergency and a

When should a chimney be cleaned? When it is not in use of course-you can't clean one with a fire in it. If you wish to be completely safe, have your chimney cleaned after 2 1/2 to 3 cords of wood is burned in it.

There is no one on the face of this earth for whom I feel more compas-sion than the mothers of children who are on half-day sessions at school.

My neighbor, Iris, went through an entire year of this schedule and we almost lost her. We all went over one day and literally dragged her from the utility room and set her down in the living room.

"Of course you have. It's the room right off your kitchen and utility room. Remember?" She shook her head.

My kids went through it and it was a period that I paranoically refer to as the "Clothing Connection." It was like a game. Every time they moved ahead two spaces, they passed go and went directly to the closet. My fiveyear-old once set a record for chang-ing clothes. Within a 14-hour period, he changed clothes nine times. He had an outfit for eating breakfast, going to school, running through the hose, using the phone, eating lunch answering the door, riding his bike, weighing himself, and one that he wore because there was nothing clean left to wear.

I couldn't walk through a room without encountering a pile of his clothes. It was like picking your way through cow chips.

Wine makes cookery taste extra good

By TOM HOGE AP Newsfeatures Writer

Countries that are noted for their wines usually have a reputation for fine cooking, probably because the grape goes into much of the food.

In America the cuisine was nothing to brag about in the old days. However, by the early 1900s, California vineyards were producing 30 million gallons of wine a year, some of it excellent. At about this time, French dishes began appearing, in even the more modest restaurants, and housewives were trying their hand at wine cookery.

Cooking with wine is like cooking with lemon extract, marjoram or any other seasoning. It should be used sparingly to round out the flavor of a dish but never dominate it.

It has been said that you should consider good enough to serve with meals. This, of course, does not refer to those costly vintages served only on special occasions. It means regular table wines, as opposed to the cheap so-called cooking wines.

When you use wine in a dish that is simmering on the stove the alcohol evaporates quickly. But this does not mean the food is ready to eat. After the alcohol disappears, it leaves be-hind a raw, acrid liquid that must be fully cooked to make the dish edible. In that way, you can often turn a run-of-the-mill dish into a minor mas-

For cooking purposes, it is a good idea to use wine that is not only of good quality, but dry as well. A sweet wine can be cloying in food, unless you are preparing a dessert.

When cooking a sauce or stew or almost any dish with wine, bring it to the boiling point with the pan lid off to let the alcohol evaporate thoroughly and allow the wine residue to cook

When cooking with fortified wines, it's a good idea to flame the dish to let the alcohol evaporate completely. The same goes, of course, for brandy and other liquors.

Here is a recipe for an old favorite.

BOEUF BOURGUIGNON 2 pounds of top round of beef 4 ounces butter 16 ounces red burgundy wine 8 ounces onions chopped Dash each of thyme, bayleaf, salt and pepper 1 tablespoon flour

Cut beef into cubes. Heat 3 ounces butter and brown meat in it. Add onions and let cook till golden brown, then pour in wine. Add spices and cook 4 hours over low heat in covered, thick saucepan. If sauce becomes too thick, add a little hot water. When meat is cooked, bind sauce with 1 ounce butter blended with flour. Serves 6. Good with a red burgundy

DEAR ABBY

Addicts ignore smoking dangers

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I commend you for devoting an entire column to document the dangers of smoking. It was a noble effort, but those who need it won't listen. I know, I have lung cancer. I smoked nearly three packs a day for 25 years. I was told more than once to stop. I cut down a couple of times, but I never really stopped. I just couldn't kick the habit.

The most important message in your column was, "If you don't smoke—don't start!" Those words should be written on every grammar school blackboard in the country.

Hang in there, Abby. I love ya'.—NEWT IN N.J. DEAR NEWT: Thanks. But not all my readers appreciated that column. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I used to enjoy reading your column, but lately you seem to be out to reform the world. Your column with all those statistics on smoking was a big bore. I smoke and enjoy it. Everybody has to die of something, and if I die because of my smoking, it will be MY funeral, not yours. So lay off, will you?

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that is having a bad effect on my marriage. This is the second marriage for both my husband and me. We get along very well, and he is an excellent husband in every way but one.

Once a week he takes his children out to eat, and always invites their mother to go along. He says there is absolutely nothing between them anymore. and I am inclined to believe him, but knowing he is with his ex-wife bothers me.

DEAR WITHHOLD: He knows how you feel. Now cool it. You say you're sure there's nothing between them, so don't nag or whine. You'll only put him on the defensive and force him to defend his right to include the children's mother if he so chooses.

DEAR ABBY: That letter from the ingrate who complained because the party who provided her with free transportation drove a two-door car which she found "uncomfortable," reminded me of a lady I used to drive to church every Sunday'.

Every time we picked her up, my wife and I had to listen to a recital of her aches and pains. She also wanted to know why we couldn't go to a later mass so she wouldn't have to get up so early, and why we

More singles own homes

By DOLORES BARCLAY Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — They have long set the style, beating a course from bar to ski lodge to beach party to bed.

Single life may still be one big blast for some, centered on apartment complexes with swimming pools and no children. But for an increasing number in this generation of single people — both the not now and never marrieds - the stability of home ownership is changing the essence of The trend started in the early 1970s, and real estate people say it is still growing. Social scientists say it could have profound effects on the traditional suburban life centered on children.

But it's not that the single population is moving to suburbia with vast

"I have a greater sense of security. I also have a feeling of a sense of home, which I never had with an apartment," says Paula H. J. Cholmondeley, a 31-year-old budgets manager who bought a house in Stamford, Conn., after living in a New York apartment for five years. "My lifestyle has changed," she said. "I go out less. I spend more time at home and less time roaming around. I feel there's someplace I can now go and totally relax and unwind, which I did not feel I could do as well when I lived in an apartment." Ms. Cholmondeley, like other young singles on today's housing market, decided to buy a house for financial reasons as well as practical considerations. She needed more space and to rent a larger apartment, she said, would not have been a positive return on the money spent as

Dr. Margaret Levi, a 31-year-old political science professor, has owned a house in Seattle, Wash., with her boyfriend for 21/2 years. Their mortgage payment is the same as the rent they paid for a smaller apartment.

'We figured it was cheaper than paying rent for the same space," she said. "Plus, we get equity and it's nice to have a place of your own. You can really create a space you like rather than take what the rental market gives you.'

Single home ownership has made dramatic increases between 1970 and 1976, according to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The number of single male homeowners under age 35 rose 213 percent from 158,000 to 495,000 during that time. Female homeowners, also single and under 35, jumped 141 percent from 80,000 to 193,000.

And the purchases are nationwide. In Atlanta, 8 percent of all homes sold are to singles, says the Chicago based National Association of Realtors. Twenty-five percent of all houses sold in Phoenix are purchased Today's single homeowner is buying everything from factory lofts that need renovating to townhouses, brownstones, one- and two-family houses in the suburbs, farmhouses and barns, condominiums and cooperatives. And the market has yet to peak.

"We now have a whole generation of youthful adults who know inflation. They don't remember when things were cheap, they know only that things will be more expensive so they are buying now," said Dr. George Sternlieb, director of the Center for Urban Policy Research at Rutgers University.

"What we have now is a housing buying panic by everyone" he said. "There is the feeling that if you don't do it now, you never will. More younger people are determined to go into a forced savings. Homeownership for some young people is like a super Christmas Club.

Singles are not just buying small homes to meet their immediate needs. Many are purchasing - or thinking about - three-and four-bedroom homes with an eye to reselling before the mortgage has expired.

"I want to make an investment and have it turn over in five years," says Victoria Chapman, a 34-year-old magazine editor. "Many young people don't even think in terms of paying off a mortgage. They're thinking of turning it over. Later I can buy something larger.

Ms. Chapman, who currently lives in a Manhattan co-op apartment, is looking to buy a country home for weekends and vacations. She plans to sell it and her coop in five years and buy a larger house.

"The house I always assumed would happen when I married and had a familiy might not happen," she said. "If I start buying things now, I'll have a place town place.

The emergence of the single homeowner in family neighborhoods and the suburbs has had an impact not only in the community, but on establishing the single lifestyle as a desirous and acceptable one.

Earnings of women less than men in big cities

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Women working full time earn an average of $5,000 a year less than men in most large metropolitan areas, according to figures released Tuesday by the Labor Department.

"This difference has been quite consistent over a long period of time. Annual data back to the mid-1950s show women's earnings have averaged between 58 and 64 percent of men's," said labor economist Howard Hayghe.

He explained that employed women have traditionally been concentrated in clerical and service jobs, which are generally lower paying than the posts held by men.

"And even when they enter the professional-technical occupation oup, women are concentrated as teachers, nurses and occupations that are relatively poorer paying than traditional male jobs such as lawyers

'The movement of women into male-dominated occupations has tended to be very slow," Hayghe

The department reported that in most parts of the country between 50 and 60 percent of the women over the age of 16 had jobs, while 77 to 87 percent of the men were employed.

The survey, covering 1975, disclosed the lowest proportion of women workers in West Virginia, and the lowest for men in Florida

The study disclosed that the median income for men, nationwide, was $12,-770 while for women it was $7,531. Add a college education and the gap gets even wider, with men earning $17,891 and women $10,861. The narrowest gap between men's and women's earnings was in the East South Central states, where earnings for both sexes were lowest. In these states - Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi median income for men was $10,747 while women's was $6,512 for a difference of $4,230.

And the biggest difference, $6,013, appeared where both sexes made the In the Pacific states, men had a median income of $14,281 and women $8,268. This area includes Washington, Oregon, California, Alaska and living up to an ideal By SAMANTHA DEAN Special to Newsday As the daughter of former President Gerald Ford, and special photographer for "Jaws 2," Susan Ford is a member of that burgeoning clique: media-struck sons and daughters of First Families. Following the historical crossfire between presidents and press, the presidential offspring are, if not closing the credibility gap, at least, as Susan puts it, getting a chance to 'even the score.'

In company with six Kennedy youngsters, members of the Eisenhower family, the Johnson family and the Nixon family, 21-year-old Susan

Ford is following a trend A native of Washington, D.C., she now lives in a recently acquired condominium in Palm Desert, near her parents' home in Palm Springs, Calif. From her base, which is "just the right distance from Los Angeles," she pursues a career as a freelance photographer and intersperses her assignments with guest appearances on television talk shows. She was a regular on the recently canceled series,

"The Jim Nabors Show. After a year and a half of college -Mount Vernon Junior College and the University of Kansas - she has little desire to return to school and get a degree in photo-journalism. Instead, she prefers the practical learn-on-the-job approach of workshops, seminars and assorted assignments. After the first year as a financially independent being, during which she grossed close to $100,000, Susan Ford, mature, self-possessed young woman, knows exactly where she is going and what she wants of life.

She talked openly about the difficulties of bearing a distinguished name and living up to an ideal.

Q: When you first started working for the Associated Press, did you feel a pressure on you to turn out especially good work because of who you were and how you got into the busi-

FORD: Oh, I had to. I had to work twice as hard as everyone else because people were saying, well, they're hiring you for your name and not your product. So, I had to put out a product that was better than any other amateur's. Even now, though I'm not in the public eye, I still feel as though I have to live up to someone else's standards. Q: Do you feel that you were deprived of anything that would constitute a so-called normal life during your years in the White House?

FORD: Not really, I think I had as close to normal an upbringing as possible, though I had to grow up really fast. I would say that most of my friends are five or 10 years older than I am because of my having to mature

Q: And because of living in a glass

FORD: It wasn't that I was in a glass house, it was that I had social obligations — receptions and that sort of thing — which most kids my age don't have to do. But I have always considered myself very poised. My mother never had to sit me down and say, now do this and do that, like don't put your elbows on the table. Those things I always knew.

Q: But you didn't feel you actually missed anything?

FORD: I think I missed a lot of college life because I had to handle both college life and White House responsibilities at the same time, and always with the Secret Service all

Q: Did your father bring home worries and concerns and discuss them around the dinner table?

FORD: No, because when he came home it was family time. Strictly family. I mean, my father would be up at about 5 or 5: 30 a.m. and be in the office by 7 or 7:30 and would come home at 8 o'clock at night. So, he felt that when he would come home it was only fair to drop the world's concerns and be interested in us.

Q: Among the people who hire you, do you detect an attempt on their part to trade on your name? FORD: Well, it's not really a trade-off, it's more like a two-way street. Granted, we have one more advantage over other people, and most pho-tographers who have only been in the business six years don't have the experience I have had - and there I do have to give credit to my father's name - but on the other hand I wouldn't accept a job unless I felt I could do it. My goal is to get the respect of my peers. And everybody uses connections, that's what connections are for. We have a right to be in the media like anyone else, but in certain respects it (a name) hinders as much as it helps.

Q: In what way? FORD: Like people criticized Universal (which distributed "Jaws 2") for hiring me for my name, but I turned out a good product and I'm proud of it. Otherwise, the only person who would have been made to look like a fool is me.

Q: What turned you on to photography, initially? FORD: David Kennerly, when he was working for Time magazine, took some pictures of our family when we were the vice-presidential family, and all he ever used was the basic Instamatic, and I saw the quality in the photographs and also that the family was all smiling and doing the things that made them look good, and I wanted to know how he did it. It was all very simple and very much our family. And it showed the warmth and the honesty in our family. It was not a stiff family portrait — and that's what got me hooked. That was when I was a junior in high school.

Q: Are you proud of anything you shot on location with "Jaws 2"?

FORD: Well, they don't stand out as great photographs to me. I guess they probably look too much like the film. There's a couple that I like, though. But as far as the creative and artistic side of it is concerned there's not much to it. It's already set up for

Pressure on Rhodesia angers militant missionary

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

CASHEL, Rhodesia (AP) - Pistol on his hip, a small arsenal of other weapons at the ready, the Rev. James H. Dearmore, an American Baptist missionary, concedes his preaching is sharply curtailed by black nationalist guerrillas roaming his remote east border parish.

"But we don't have any guerrillas here — just terrorist thugs," says Dearmore, from Fort Worth, Texas. Dearmore, 48, is the only mission-ary in Rhodesia for the Independent Baptist Church. Sponsored by the Rodgers Baptist Church in Garland, Texas, Dearmore and his wife, Georgia-Mae, arrived in 1972.

He closed his previous mission in Zaire after authorities there ordered missionaries to affiliate to the World Council of Churches, which Dearmore regards as "now part and parcel of the world communist conspiracy."

White missionaries have become a prime target for attacks blamed by the Rhodesian military on nationalist guerrillas. Thirty-two missionaries have been killed and dozens of outposts are now shut, but nearly all missionaries who remain are unarmed.

Dearmore has responded to the war by turning his farmstead into a fortress on 26 miles of lonely, winding road from this village. Alarms are attached to his 10-foot-high security fence, sandbagged bun-kers adjoin the house and Dearmore keeps three Great Danes. His armory includes several hunting rifles and shotguns, as well as an automatic rifle, submachine gun and pistol.

"When I'm not wearing my pistol, I'm not wearing my pants," says Dearmore. Of his fellow missionaries who will not carry arms, Dearmore adds: "That's just a bunch of foolishness.

Last month he joined the paramilitary police reserve unit headquartered here. In his mine-protected Chevrolet truck, rifle sticking out of the window, Dearmore now takes extra trips down risky roads for Five farmers, including Dearmore's nearest neighbor, have been killed by guerrillas since December. The white population of this 1,000square-mile area is down to some 20 families. Dearmore says he has had seven "near misses" with land mines, but guerrillas have not yet attacked his home. "I don't know what it would take to get me out of here," says Dearmore.

"I would have to feel my work was finished and it was the Lord's will."

He says he has converted 120 people in the adjoining Muromo reservation, which has a population of 15,000. The missionary says he used to preach there regularly but scarcely ever goes there anymore because of the security sitution. He keeps in touch with a black lay preacher in Muromo, he says.

Dearmore exudes a mixture of religious fervor and political conviction. Of the war waged by nationalist guerrillas first against Rhodesia's white-minority government and now the biracial transition administration, Dearmore says: "Don't make this out as a black-white conflict. It is pure and simple a land grab and a power grab by a few power-hungry blacks sponsored by the communists trying to take over the world." He talks angrily of U.S. and British pressure on the Rhodesian administration and claims Western policy is an "absolute cinch to end in nothing except a black puppet communist Eve

dictatorship here.' "But I"m not sure the United States and Britain will be able to carry out their policies." Dearmore says he has no intention of leaving, adding that he is deter-mined to finish the pastor's house and church started in Muromo. Rough foundations have been laid. His mission, he says, is to convert the local people into the Baptist Church, but a large part of his time now is taken with his farm and the defense of it against attack.

"I am also staying for patriotic reasons," he adds.

UTPB course to examine varied aspects of dying

ODESSA - Death is no longer simply the unmentionable phenomenon which ends one's life. It has become an item of controversy as advances in medicine have made it possible to prolong life with machinery and drugs.

This controversy, laws surrounding death, and the phychology and sociology of dying will be examined in a new course being offered this fall at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin. Late registration continues through Sept. 19.

Dr. Clyde B. Vedder, visiting professor of sociology, said the course in thanatology is a study of man's response to death. He noted the class is of interest to nurses, nursing home administrators, law enforcement officers, insurance representatives. and clergymen as well as to members of the general public interested in the "Death affects everybody. It cuts across all levels of life. The interest in thanatology is fantastic now because people are facing the issue head on," Vedder said.

The sociology course, which meets from 7:05 p.m. to 9:45 p.m. Monday nights, will examine the Texas Natural Death Act which allows persons to instruct their doctors not to use artificial methods to extend the natural process of dying.

Vedder said the class will also study the problems of mercy killing as well as the clinical, biological and sociological definitions of death.

Attitudes toward children, death and bereavement and the sociological history of funerals, burials and cemeteries also will be explored.

Registration in the course is open to any person who has completed 60 semester hours of coursework at any accredited college or university. Students may take the course for

Seaweed important item in daily life

By STEVE WILSON

BOSTON (AP) - Seaweed, the slimy plant that sticks between bathers' toes and tangles fishing lines, makes its way into the human body every day. And chances are you like

"The average person takes in sea-weed products 15 times a day," says Lee Perkins of Marine Colloid Division in Rockland, Maine, which pro-cesses marine algae and sells $20 million of it a year.

"It's in just about everything I can think of," adds Paul Vantangoli, president of the Eastern Sea Moss Co. in Kingston, Mass., which on a good day harvests up to 30 tons of seaweed.

The label on the products may say "carrageen," but that's only a pretty name for seaweed in ice cream, choc-olate milk, ketchup and cheese.

A jelly or thickening agent, carra-geen is used throughout the world to keep toothpaste cool and flowing smoothly. It's also a jell in air fresheners, a thickener in pet foods and a homogenizer in dairy products. In Japan, it's a delicacy.

The harvesting of seaweed is big business in Massachusetts and Maine. At this peak time of the season. Vantangoli sends about 60 workers in small boats onto the waters off

With rakes, they gather the slimy growth at low tide in a process they call "mossing." The wage for their efforts is four cents for every pound

"You don't have to be that big," he says. "Quickness is the thing. We once had a boy who averaged between 1,400 and 1,600 pounds a day. It's like baseball, you always have your stars. That's the way mossing is."

A day's take is hauled by truck to Kingston, where it is dried and baled in a matter of hours. It is then sold to Marine Colloid in Rockland, Maine.

"We take it, extract the sell it around the world," says Perkins. "The most common application is in chocolate milk. It suspends the chocolate in the milk, improving the taste and texture. It's the same for ice

Corking lines for wine tasting

LONDON (AP) — The sommelier, the wine steward, has just poured the first slurp into your glass. He is standing there with an arrogant air, gold chain dangling like the Lord Mayor of London, waiting for an opinion.

What do you say?

The moment of truth has arrived. "In vino veritas," in wine there is truth, said Pliny the Elder. Or was it the Younger? Anyhow, the one with the drinking problem, who certainly would have known what to say the moment the Nubian mute poured that first drop of velvety heaven into his gobilet.

First, lift the glass and pretend to examine the wine's texture in whatever light is available, unless you happen to be dining in one of those cavernously dark bistros where you have to keep inquiring of the advancing shadow, "Is that you, waiter?"

Having eyeballed it a bit, you mushle with a satisfied air, "rich, noble, light, airy, ruby red" or some such nonsense and proceed to saiff the vintage like a homeowner smelling for gas leaks in his basement.

"A great nose," you exclaim. Or "a delicate bouquet, reminiscent of violets, truly feminine." I once heard Alexis Lichine, the great wine importer and wine encyclopedist, say this about his own Chateau Lascombes, although to me it smelled just like wine: a trifle dank, musty, masculine.

Humane Society takes aim at jackrabbit ropers

By MARK VOGLER R-T Staff Writer

ODESSA - The Humane Society of the U.S. plans to monitor a jackrabbit roping contest at the Permian Basin Fair and Exposition later this month to ensure that no animals are subjected to cruel and inhumane treatment.

Frantz Dantzler, director of field services for the organization's Washington, D.C. office, told The Reporter-Telegram that the organization considers the event illegal, but doubts any action can be taken against the fair organizers until after its completion.

Local members of the Humane Society last year were unsuccessful in attempting to put a stop to the rabbit rodeo, which was a revival of the sport last held in 1932. The event is scheduled for the weekend of Sept.

"We would like to put a stop to it. But based on prior experience, it will be difficult to obtain an injunction against this sort of thing. Something has to occur before we can do anything,' Dantzler said.

"It's obvious that by publically opposing this cruel event, we are giving the fair officials exactly what they want - publicity. But I don't see any escape. I think people need to know activities such as this have no part in our country.

"I would hope the promoters of the fair would find some other way to get publicity. Something of this sort has no purpose in this day and age. We're definitely going to have somebody there. And if there is a violation of law, we're going to take action.

Bernard Weller, a Humane Society investigator, termed last year's jackrabbit roping contest at the Ector County Fair "an illegal and ridiculous event which should have been stopped by the county attorney.

"If those cowboys in Odessa try something like that again, they better hold on to their hats because the Humane Society is not going to tolerate that sort of display," he said.

Ector County Judge Gary L. Watkins, who was attorney for the Humane Society of the Permian Basin before he became county judge, said he personally opposes the idea of roping jackrabbits as a sporting event and thinks it detracts from the image of the fair.

"I'm not in a position to do anything about it, but I hope the rabbit roping doesn't take place. I think the event is bad for the growth of the fair and adds nothing," he said.

Watkins had opposed last year's contest.

A woman from the local Humane Society last year let the jackrabbits out of the cage following the first day of the contest. However, a local game warden and county fair officials helped provide more rabbits so the contest could continue the

Colorado animal protectionists succeeded in urging then Ector County Sheriff Reeder Webb to issue an injunction to stop the rabbit roping back in

However, County Judge Henry E. Webb at the time enabled the show to go on when he decreed that "a jackrabbit is not an animal, but a rodent or a pest." He issued a restraining order against the sheriff.

The controvery over jackrabbit roping spurred a media field day last year just as it did back in 1932, when the country's two major news wire services carried light features on the event nationwide.

Radio stations in Chicago, Los Angeles and New York all took an interest in the unusual sport once the Humane Society expressed its outrage.

The West Texas jackrabbit has gained national news attention once again this year - but not for jackrabbit roping.

The U.S. Interior Department is investigating possible federal and state law violations connected with the shipment of jackrabbits from the Midland-Odessa area to at least 40 states where the animal reportedly is used as live bait in training greyhounds for racing contests.

United Negro College Fund's mini-telethon will be broadcast from 7 to 10 p.m. Sept. 23 over KMID-TV.

Volunteers from Midland and Odessa are combining efforts to raise $40,000 to give minority students a chance for higher education.

The special known as "Evening Extraordinaire" will feature Robert Goulet and Ann Murray. Other stars scheduled include George Kirby, Stephanie Mills, Rufus Shomas, Johnnie Taylor, Julie Budd, O.C. Smith, Billy Paul, Delores Mall, Malcolm Roberts and Cynthia Scott.

Midland Lee's Cactus Flower

Just wait until the petals open

The Cactus Flower bloomed right in the middle of the Memorial Stadium gridiron Friday night, and the sight was so pleasing to Midland Lee foot-ball fans that they were doing everything but mid-air flips.

Before the season is over, even mid-air flips may be in vogue for the usually staid onlookers known as Midland football fans.

The Cactus Flower, of course, is 215-pound senior fullback Jeff McCowan, West Texas' pillbox ver-sion of Earl Campbell, the Tyler Rose himself. And when a Cactus Flower ful this side of Austin. McCowan brings spring to fall and, hopefully, a lot of victories to Midland Lee.

Actually, the Cactus Flower had just your average opening night. He picked up 167 yards rushing in 20 carries for an 8.4 yard per carry average. He scored three touchdowns in a 32-8 win over AAA Snyder, one of which came on a 63-yard romp up the Tigers' middle. He could have had two extra points, but bad snaps from center held him to a mere 18 points. Of course, he didn't play every offen-sive down for coach Gil Bartosh's Rebels.

And on his 63-yarder, he had a little help from his friends like key blocks by Brian Briscoe and Michael McCrea. And quarterback Gary But-ler may have had a few words for The Flower on a couple of missed blocking assignments in passing situations.

Still, it was a pretty good night-all things considered-but you still feel like The Flower has more good news while waiting for the season to progress. You still get the feeling that he just hasn't put it all together yet. If he does, tie a yellow ribbon around the old record book and hang up for keep-

McCowan has blocks of TNT for legs, and size enough to run over the biggest gorilla on the field. In the open field, he's not your average wire walker, but more like your average King Kong turned loose on New York City. If Jeff ran during a Los Angeles earthquake, California would surely fall into the sea and be lost forever. And the best part is that McCowan has room for improvement, and Bartosh expects him to.

"Jeff missed a week of practice with a hamstring pull just before the Andrews scrimmage. He missed some things, but he's going to catch up. We expect him to break at least one long one every time out. Against Andrews he broke a couple of big gainers, but he got tired because he string. He's fine now. All he has to do is get after it, and knowing the type of kid he is, he will do what ever we ask of him. He knows where he needs work," Bartosh observed.

I've known The Flower for two years now, but most of my contact with him has been in track. But I do know what kind of person Jeff McCowan is. When Jeff was a sophomore, he earned a regional berth in the shot put but failed to earn a state berth. At that time, he said he would come back and go to state the following year. He was young, and I really don't think too many people took him

As a junior, the track season didn't progress according to his calculations. He really wasn't throwing much better than the year before. His best was a toss of 56-01/2 feet, by no means a toss good enough to even think of earning a state berth in the shot. Still, McCowan said he was going to work hard and get that berth and a trip to Austin.

He didn't even win the district title, but his second place to Permian's Tommy Sager was good enough to earn a regional berth.

Under the tutelage of assistant track coach Earl Miller, also an assistant Lee football coach, McCowan produced a toss of 58-81/2 to win second in the regional meet and earn that state berth. In the space of two weeks, he had improved his best mark by two-feet, eight inches. At state, his form was down pat and he had his personal best of 60-6% for third place, and he beat El Paso Eastwood's Kevin McGinnis, who beat Jeff in the regional meet.

The point of all this is that Jeff McCowan will not sit on the talents he possesses. He dares to believe in his potential, and one can only believe that he will improve. He is that type

Doctor takes shot at Walton

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The doctor for the Portland Trail Blazers says Bill Walton has engaged in a "dirty campaign" to discredit management connected with the National Basketball Association team.

Dr. Bob Cook, interviewed Tuesday night on KYXI radio in Portland, had been quiet until now on the subject of Walton's medical problems with the Trail Blazers.

Walton, who led the Blazers to the 1977 NBA championship, has asked to be traded from the team, partly be-cause he disapproves of what he thinks is excessive administration of pain-killing drugs.

Cook said Walton has engaged in "a very dirty campaign to discredit a lot of people, and myself included, and has dealt in innuendo and half-

Walton complained of the medical practices and of other aspects of BlazKINK radio in Portland last Friday.

Cook said he gave Walton a detailed explanation about the pain killer that was administered before a playoff game April 21, which Walton left with a broken foot that still keeps him on

Cook said of Blazer management, "I've never seen a more concerned group of individuals."

Cook said he was surprised that Walton's dissatisfaction apparently had increased greatly since he and Walton spoke by phone July 17. He said Walton at that time blamed some of his agents for remarks that had been made about team officials.

John Basset, a Portland lawyer who was one of Walton's agents at the time, said he thought Cook had violated a doctor-patient relationship in going on the radio show. He claimed Cook's version of some of the events involving Walton was distorted.

American League leaders find way to keep things interesting

By The Associated Press

The three leaders in the American League East have found yet another way to keep things interesting. But none of them could be satisfied with the new method.

All three of the top contenders lost Tuesday night. The Milwaukee Brewers, who were beaten 6-5 in the bottom of the ninth by Seattle, had to be the most disheartened. The Brewers knew first-place Boston had lost to Baltimore 3-2 and New York, now trailing the Red Sox by one-half game, was beaten 7-4 by Detroit. By winning, Milwaukee would move within 3½ games of first place.

The Brewers carried a 5-4 lead into the ninth, mainly on the strength of Larry Hisle's three-run homer. But Tom Paciorek's two-run single with the bases loaded and one out gave Seattle the triumph.

We had it all wrapped up," said Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger. "We're letting so many get away. We've had lots of chances to pick up ground. We've got to start winning games with leads in the ninth

'Some of these last-place teams like Seattle get tough against you. They play hard."

Of rookie Mark Bomback, who was knocked out in the first inning in his major league debut, Bamberger said,

"I thought he could do the job. He had a good curve. He must have been a little nervous.

Elsewhere in the AL, Kansas City strengthened its hold on first place in the West with an 8-1 romp over Oakland while second-place California fell to Texas 7-5, and Chicago dumped Minnesota 6-1.

Plunkett finds home in Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) - Veteran quarterback Jim Plunkett, who said he didn't believe he was washed up at age 30, has chosen to try to prove his point as a reserve quarterback with the Oakland Raiders.

Plunkett signed three one-year contracts with the Raiders Tuesday and had his first workout with the team. His 1979-80 contracts depend on his ability to make the team, the Raiders said

No salary figures were disclosed. Estimates on Plunkett's salary prior to his being waived Aug. 28 by the San Francisco 49ers ranged upward from $150,000. Plunkett, the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner at Stanford and the National Football League Rookie of the Year with New England in 1971, had offers from at least four other clubs, his attorney said last week. The others were believed to have been Green Bay, the New York Giants, Baltimore

MONTREAL (AP) - The Montreal Alouettes have placed quarterback Joe Barnes and defensive halfback Dickie Harris on the 30-day injury list, a spokesman for the Canadian Football League club said Tuesday.

Barnes, a former football standout at Texas Tech and Big Lake, reinjured his left knee in last Sunday's game against the Argonauts in Toronto, a situation which left Canadian Gerry Dattilio as the lone Montreal quarterback.

Fumble toward end zone would make things easy

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Norris Weese could have saved everybody a lot of grief simply by fumbling the ball toward the end

Denver's quartertback laughed at the suggestion. Weese, under the gun - and half a ton of Minnesota Vikings as well — only a few hours earlier, allowed himself a moment of comic relief.

"Yeah," he joked, "we've practiced that play a lot, where I sort of flip the ball toward Jon Keyworth and he sort of kicks it ahead to Riley Odoms. But we just didn't have enough time to set it up."

Had he pulled off a play equal to the Ken Stabler-to-Pete Banaszak-to-Dave Casper "fumble" that won Sunday's game for Oakland, Monday night's game between the Broncos and Vikings would have ended on a lot less confusing note.

The National Football League has rules governing just the sort of may-hem perpetrated by Weese and Den-ver Coach Red Miller.

To quote the pertinent section of the rules, an automatic referee's time out is called "...from the time an intended passer is downed behind the line until all players involved in a clearly intended pass have had a reasonable time to reassemble."

What happened, basically, was this: Denver, trailing Minnesota 9-6 with 11 seconds to go, was on the Vikings' 6-yard line with no time outs left. Weese sprinted out to his right and was tackled for a 3-yard loss. Referee Don Wedge called time out with three seconds left - and didn't call time in until the Broncos lined up for a field goal. Jim Turner kicked it to tie the game, enraging the Vik-

It all became moot when Minnesota won 12-9 in overtime.

The two key phrases in the rule are "clearly intended pass" and "reason-able time to reassemble."

"The play (rollout) was sent in from the sidelines," Weese said. "I slipped after a step or two and got pressure pretty quickly. I couldn't get behind my blockers as well as I might have. I was running all the way initially. It wasn't a pass play. By the time I realized what was going on and tried to throw it away, I couldn't get rid of it. I was going to throw it away but they brought me down."

The game, it seemed, was over. "I thought it was," Weese acknow-ledged. But it wasn't. And when the Broncos were given time to set up and kick their field goal, Bud Grant, the usually stolid coach of the Vikings, erupted.

"It was a run all the way and the clock still goes," he fumed later. "If he was sacked, it would be different. But we shouldn't have had to wait for the team to gather for a field goal."

Weese admitted he was taken aback by the time Wedge gave the Broncos. "I did think it was a little bit of a long time. Yeah, I was surprised that we could get all lined up and ready before they blew the whistle."

Despite Weese's admission that he never intended to pass, Wedge was right to whistle play dead. "Any time a player is sacked while behind the line of scrimmage attempting to pass, the clock is stopped ..." he began his postgame explanation.

Tommy Bell, a 15-year NFL referee who retired last year and watched the game from his home in Lexington, Ky., backed Wedge's time-out whis-tle. "I think he handled it right," he said. "Any time a passer rolls out and is tackled you've got to say he clearly intended to pass. You can't make a judgment that he wasn't going to throw the call. It's not up to a referee to read minds."

But the rest of Wedge's explanation raised a question. " ... The ball is spotted and the clock doesn't start again until players from both teams are lined up," he said.

There, Bell seems to waver in his support of Wedge. "After I whistled play dead," Bell recalled, "I'd usually stand about three yards behind the line of scrimmage and once the passer passed me on the way to the huddle I'd signal time in."

There was an awful long wait between the time Weese returned to the backfield and the time the clock started, but as Bell put it, "It looked like the defense was hanging around thinking they were goingFto make the clock run out. It was more Minnesota's fault than Denver's."

National League 'gunfight' gives Dodgers the drop

By The Associated Press

Bill Madlock calls the National League West race a "gunfight" — and right now, it would seem the Los Angeles Dodgers have the drop on the San Francisco Giants.

The Dodgers further buried the Giants in second place by beating their top rivals 8-0 Tuesday night behind Burt Hooton's five-hitter and a four-RBI night by Dave Lopes.

"It's like finishing second in a gunfight — you lose," Madlock concluded after the fading Giants dropped six games behind the Dodgers.

The victory left the Dodgers extravagantly optimistic. We have the killer instinct - I can't see us losing if we keep doing what we're doing," said Hooton, who upped his record to 18-8. 'It's the first time I've done anything against them all year," added Lopes. "Hooton's the man - he just wrapped up the Cy Young Award with a shutout in a big game."

Hooton joined three other National Leaguers — Ross Grimsley, Gaylord Perry and Phil Niekro — as 18-game

Elsewhere in the NL, the Cincinnati Reds edged the Houston Astros 4-3; the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1; the San Diego Padres trimmed the Atlanta Braves 3-1 and the Montreal Expos whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1. The Chicago-New York game was postponed by rain.

The Dodgers only managed three hits off loser John Montefusco, 11-7, in 7 2-3 innings and held a 3-0 lead before scoring five times in the ninth inning off reliever Gary Lavelle.

Hooton improved his 1978 record to 4-0 against the Giants and registered his seventh straight victory while equaling his major league career high for victories in a season.

The Dodgers took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning on Steve Garvey's RBI single, then wrapped up the game up with two runs in the eighth on Lopes' double and five more in the ninth in a rally capped by Lopes' two-run homer. Bill Russell doubled home three runs for the Dodgers in the ninth-inning rally.

Reds 4, Astros 3

Champ Summers slammed a home run in the sixth inning and a freak play in the ninth led Cincinnati over Houston.

The ninth-inning play came with one out after Joe Sambito had walked pinch-hitter Ken Henderson, Rick Auerbach attempted a sacrifice, Sambito fielded the ball and attempted to force Henderson at second base. But shortstop Rafael Landestoy missed the throw, allowing Henderson to score the winning run.

Pirates 5, Phillies 1

A pair of two-run homers by Dave Parker and a solo shot by John Milner powered Pittsburgh over Philadelphia, snapping a five-game losing streak and reducing the Phillies' lead in the NL East to four games over the second-place Pirates.

Parker, who started the game leading the league in hitting, third in RBI and fifth in home runs, struck the game-winning blow in the sixth inning, his 25th home run, that scored winning pitcher John Candelaria ahead of him. It gave Pittsburgh a 3-1

"I'll take what I can get," said Parker. "The batting title, the RBI title, the home run title. But what I really want to win is the division

Padres 3, Braves 1 Perry, aided by Dave Winfield's 22nd homer of the season, collected his 18th victory with a five-hitter as San Diego beat Atlanta.

Perry, 18-6, the major league's winningest active pitcher with 264 lifetime victories, pitched his first complete game since June 23. The victory gave the Padres their 74th victory of the season, the best showing in the club's 10-year history.

Expos 5, Cardinals 1 Rudy May fired a three-hitter for his first victory since June5 as Montreal defeated St. Louis. May, 7-9, was making his third appearance and second start since recovering from a severely sprained left ankle.

Gary Carter drove in the first two Montreal runs on a fielder's choice in the second inning and a single in the fourth. The Expos scored three runs in the fifth on an RBI triple by Dave Cash, a run-scoring double by Andre Dawson and a sacrifice fly by Ellis

Well the kid that grew up in a St. Louis ghetto is somebody. He isn't the best drunk that ever was ... he isn't even a drunk. He isn't the best fighter that ever was, either ... but he is the heavyweight champion of the world, the conqueror of Muhammad Ali.

Leon Spinks knows where he came from, what he is and is learning what he can be.

"I'd like to be a world figure but I'd like to be a world figure my way," said Spinks, who, in a way, presently is mainly a figure of curiosity, a kind of fate-made freak who beat a living legend but in the minds of many people can't do it again Friday night

Spinks is a man under pressure, and his reaction to the pressure is a fatalistic one. "I don't do any predicting," he said of his rematch with Ali. "The best man wins. The Man upstairs says you ain't gonna win, you ain't gonna win."

But while the spectre of defeat doesn't seem to frighten him, he is spurred by the knowledge that a victory takes him farther up the road from poverty, a station in life that shaped him but one he never wants to

"I think about the ghetto," Spinks said before a training session. "I think why do I want to go back and play my life as a repeat. You don't want to go back where you came from. If you do, you're a fool."

Spinks, painfully aware of the endless comparisons with Ali — "Ali is one hell of promoter. He's a hell of a man" — said his image has been distorted.

Since winning the title last Feb 5, Spinks has had several run-ins with the police about driving violations and one concerning drugs. The drug charge was dismissed but the incident, like the others, was widely played in the news media.

"A lot of people in the press turn things around and manipulate things against me," he said. Then, as if to emphasize that he is his own man, he added: "They ain't puttin' no food on Landry bristled briefly Tuesday when asked why his safeties were having to make so many tackles. Harris has made 10 tackles and six assists in two games and Waters is eight and six — tops for the team.

at defense attack

Dallas uses its safeties like linebackers. In 1975 and 1976, safeties were Dallas' leading tacklers. Middle linebacker Bob Breunig was the top running back stopper last year.

The Cowboys yielded 24 points to the New York Giants last Sunday after blanking the Baltimore Colts in the first Monday night game.

Landry seemed relatively uncon cerned about the letdown against the Giants because end Harvey Martin missed half the game after being kicked out for fighting and linebacker Thomas Henderson and cornerback Aaron Kyle were injured.

'Our defense didn't play well but there's nothing wrong that can't be fixed," said Landry.

No. 1 draft choice Larry Bethea got a workout in Martin's position, but Landry was not displeased.

"Bethea was active," said Landry. "He is capable and strong, but hasn't

"This team has the potential to be as good as the 1966 team," said Landry. "Of course, Tony Dorsett is in his second year now. It's just hard to say how good our offense will be."

Landry added, "Tony sees everything in our offense so much better. He knows it now when he does something wrong. He had no idea last year.

"I'll miss competing with Allen - it brings out the best in you," said Landry.

Landry said Harvey Martin was ejected from the New York Giant game last Sunday because the All-Pro was reacting to an illegal block by runningback Willie Spencer.

"Tempers were hot and Spencer tackled Harvey and Harvey tried to kick loose ... Harvey was the last one the referee saw," said Landry. "What Spencer did was illegal."

Earlier, Martin was flagged for unneccessary roughness when he tackled quarterback Joe Pisarcik.

'That was a good call,' said Landry. "There was too much enthusiasm on the tackle. You can't use your forearm when you tackle. Harvey hit him in the back and knocked

USC's Trojans make believer of Robinson

LOS ANGELES (AP) and catching three Red Raiders. USC held Southern California's Trojans, heading into their Pacific-10 opener this weekend against Oregon, have made one man a believer despite their somewhat stumbling performance against Texas Tech.

"I know we're going to have to keep improving if we're going to be really good," Southern Cal Coach John Robinson said Tuesday. "But I'll say one thing; I came away from Saturday's game believing in this football team."

The Trojans, ranked eighth nationally in the latest poll, had to rally from a nine-point half-Texas Tech 17-9 Satur- Automotive day in a game in which USC was favored by day in a game in which three touchdowns. Southern Cal dominated the statistics, rolling up 468 yards to Tech's 161. But nine Trojan fumbles five lost - kept the game pleased. "I've said before that the key to power football like we try to play is to keep pounding, keep going after the other team," he said. "Although we hurt ourselves a lot with fumbles, we hammered away and wore them down.

Nevertheless, Robinson was generally

Robinson had particular praise for quarterback Paul McDonald, a junior starting his first game for Southern Cal. A left-hander whose soft passes and accuracy bring to mind Oakland's Ken Stabler, McDonald hit 12 of 18 passes for 193 yards.

"I thought McDonald played very well," Ro-binson said. "He threw the ball very accurately and he audibilized probably more than any quarterback we've had here. He did everything we expected of him and even did some good things like his changing plays — that we didn't."

Charles White, who gained nearly 1,500 yards last year, picked up where he left off in Saturday's game, rushing for 156 yards on 30 carries

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Mychal Thompson, the year's No. 1 draft choice from the collegiate basketball ranks, has signed a five-year contract with the Portland Trail Blazers.

Stock market

NEW YORK (AP) -Casinogambling issues were the standout performers again as the stock market staged a rally today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 4.34 at 910.78.

Gainers held a 5-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The class A shares of Resorts International. traded on the American Stock Exchange, jumped 14 to 166 after a 171/spoint gain Tuesday, when the company said its third-quarter earnings would exceed its total profits through the full first

Among other gambling and hotel issues, Bally Manufacturing climbed 2 to 69½; Ramada Inns gained ½ to 131/6, and Howard Johnson rose 1/2 to 151/6.

The gambling group has posted sharp and widespread gains his year on heavy speculation about the industry's growth prospects in Nevada, Atlantic City, N.J., and possibly other places.

Analysts said there was no special news development to account for the general market's strength. They noted encouragement over the Dow Jones industrial average's ability to hold above 900 despite some selling pressure late Monday and Tuesday

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .20 to 60.58 in the first two hours today, and the Amex market value index jumped 1.28 to 177.97.

Volume on the Big Board reached 18.35 million shares by noontime, up from 14.86 million at the same point Tuesday.

Chaparral request raises questions

Request of Chaparral Aviation to become a third fixed-based operator in Midland almost stopped the City Council from issuing $1 million airport revenue bonds Tuesday in a regular session.

Several questions were raised about Chaparral and the effect it would have upon Aquila, Inc., and Rich Air Co. which have been based at Midland

Regional Airport many years. The council decided to delay a decision on allowing a third operation into the airport for two weeks. The issue involves the question of free enterprise, a corporate problem between two firms, legalities in barring a firm from getting started and funding. Edgar R. Box, a Chaparral owner, said the firm has the money to set up the business at the airport and would not have to ask the city for funds. "But, we would like to be treated the same way as the others out there," Box said. The firm is planning to spend from $250,000 to $1 million to get the business going, he said.

The first problem arises, though, in that Chaparral is the franchise dealer for Beech Aircraft Corp. and Rich-Air Co. also has sold the same line for many Box said he has been instructed by Beech officials to find a place for a fixed-based operation in a 27 county West Texas area. The best location is Midland, he said, but if Midland does not agree, the firm will locate elsewhere in the region — such as Big Spring or Abilene.

Richard Henderson of Rich-Air and Cal White of

Aquila told the council they are opposed to the third

Henderson said he has been a Beech Aircraft sales outlet since 1958, but he has never had a direct factory franchise. He has applied for one but has received no answer yet, he said.

Rich-Air also has been a factory-authorized service center for the line of aircraft until Beech discontinued it this summer, Henderson added.

While Henderson said he feels competition is healthy, another Beech operator at the airport is "The issue of another operator now will result in a stream of proposals from other lines (of airplanes).

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. noted that part of the problem "is a corporate one. They (Beech) are dictating how and where to get service and by whom. The council does not have a whole lot of say, it

White said that it has taken his firm about 15 years to build up to the point where they just now are needing expansion.

Both men asked the city council several months ago to finance about $1 million in expansion for the facilities at Midland Regional Airport.

The council had approved the revenue bonds and were scheduled to authorize the issuance of those bonds. The men said they felt Chaparral would hurt their business and eliminate the need for expan-

They also denied knowing that Chaparral was wanting to establish a base in the Midland area several months ago.

Recommendation to approve Chaparral first came from the Airport Board, which has Rusty Buckingham as chairman.

The council decided to go ahead with the revenue bond isuance since the two existing firms had requested it for expansion and the funds would be used. But, the panel will review the request of Chaparral again in two weeks.

Trustees hear enrollment report

Midland school trustees heard a report on declining school enrollment at their regular meeting Tuesday.

Payton Cook, director of pupil services, told the board pupil enrollments could be expected to decline annually through 1984, following a national trend. Small first-grade classes in 1967 and again in 1971 are moving through the school grades "like a wave," Cook said. Enrollment has declined from a high of 18,165 in 1966 to an estimated peak enrollment of 14,384 this year. "By 1984, enrollment in high school will be 450 to

500 students smaller than it is now," Cook noted. 'But by 1984, it should bottom out." Private school enrollments, Cook said had little impact on the decreasing enrollments. Cook also reported that a breakdown of ethnic enrollment in the schools showed an average annual increase in minority pupils since 1971 of 0.814 per-

Since 1971, the percentage of black students in the district has increased from 12.3 percent to 12.8 percent, although the actual number of black students has decreased from 2,166 to 1,996. Mexican American enrollment has increased from 13.5 percent in 1971 (2,334 students) to 18.52 percent in 1977 (2,888 students). White enrollment has decreased from 74.1 percent in 1971 (12,785 students) to 68.4 percent (10,670 students) in 1977.

In other business, the board approved renewal of its contract with the Human Relations Council for services to the district, including management of the SPARK program to bring community volunteers into the classrooms to speak to students.

The board approved a 10 percent increase in the contract amount this year from $19,100 to $21,010. The board also accepted the low bids for band instruments and two way radios for the district and accepted a gift from the Washington Elementary PTA to paint the school cafeteria.

"All right, let's take it from the top," instructed Joe Layton, a lanky, sweat-suited director of stage ("George M") and television ("Color Me Barbra") musicals.

It was the beginning of the second act. Three backup singers (Damita Jo Freeman, Avery Sommers, Robin Green) were performing the title number in a recording studio, where the entire action takes place. Enter Alexis Smith as a veteran movie star trying to crack the rock world. The girls show her how to dance discostyle; she instructs them in the time

That's the story of "Platinum": movie queen tries to revive career, becomes involved with rock superstar Danger Dan.

During a rehearsal break, Alexis explained how she got involved: "I was in the housewares department at Bloomingdales. James Coco, who was going to direct, came up to me and started describing the show. He gave such a performance that people start-ed staring; it got to be a little embar-rassing. 'Will you do it?' he asked.

"Is it a musical?' I asked. 'Of course!' he said. So I listened to the music (by Will Holt and Gary William Friedman of 'The Me Nobody Knows') and I was hooked."

Gladys Rackmil, Fritz Holt and Barry M. Brown are producing the show, which has a book by Will Holt and Bruce Vilanch. Mrs. Rackmil was present at the rehearsal to explain how the unique project came

"Several film companies are interested in 'Platinum,'" she said.
"Paramount was especially interested because one of the two starring roles is a 30-year-old rock singer, and the company had a new star in John Travolta.

The producers staged a trial run of "Platinum" in Buffalo last October.
Paramount leaders Barry Diller and Michael Eisner flew from New York to see the show but their plane was unable to land because of clouds.

"It was like a scene from a bad movie," said Mrs. Rackmil. "We were holding the curtain for them, and they were circling above the clouds. They were about to give up when the pilot found a hole in the clouds and landed."

The Paramount brass liked "Platinum" enough to invest $300,000, for which it gained first call on the movie rights. Mrs. Rackmil added, "Paramount also told us: 'We want to be active participants. We will provide the full facilities of the studio in preparing the show, with our knowhow in costumes, scenery, advertis-ing, publicity.""

With such backing, the producers had little trouble rounding up the rest of the $1.2 million captalization of "Platinum." Because of a time problem, the set was constructed in the east. The show is scheduled to open tonight in Philadelphia.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON German measles

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: My four-year-old son came down with what we thought was strep throat and a rash. His doctor said he had German measles, but my son has never been in Germany. How could he have gotten them? What is the story about German measles and could I have protected him from getting it?-Mrs. M.D.

DEAR MRS. M.D.: Your son does not have to have been in Germany to contact German measles. Rubella, also called German measles and 3-day measles, is a common, usually mild disease of childhood, although it may also affect adults, and outbreaks are common among unvaccinated teen Rubella occurs most often in the winter and spring and is highly contagious. People catch it by breathing in particles of rubella virus that sick people have expelled. The usual symptoms of rubella are mild discomfort, a slight fever for perhaps the first 24 hours and a rash on on the face and neck tha lasts for a day or two. Young adults who get rubella may experience swollen glands in the back of the neck and some temporary pain and stiffness in the joints (arthritis).

Recovery from rubella is almost always speedy and complete. However-and here's why this otherwise mild disease is so dangerous-a woman who gets rubella early in her pregnancy stands a 20 to 25 percent chance of giving birth to a deformed baby. The possibility that she will have a miscarriage is even greater. Although rubella occurs all over the country each year (12,090 cases in 1976), the last big epidemic was in 1964. As a result of the epidemic, some 20,000 babies were born in this country with severe birth defects, and an estimated 30,000 women had miscarriages. The most common birth defects caused by the rubella virus are blindness, damage to the heart and major arteries, deafness, abnormally small brains and mental retardation. The best way to protect expectant mothers and their offspring from these tragic effects is to immunize children and thereby eliminate the source of infection. The child who can't catch rubella can't spread it, to his mother or to other pregnant women.

At present, more than 14 million children, or 35 percent of all children 12 years of age and under, have not been immunized against rubella. All healthy children who have never had rubella should be vaccinated after their first birthday. The vaccine, which has been in use since 1969, is highly effective, and one injection produces long-lasting, probably lifelong, protection. Rubella vaccine is available by itself or in a combination vaccine that also protects against measles and mumps. A single shot of the combination vaccine, which is given at 15 months of age because it includes measles vaccine, protects the child against all three diseases.

Rubella vaccine should be given to nearly anyone who is not already proteced against the disease, particularly to young girls. But it should not be given to pregnant women or to women who do not intend to take every precaution against becoming pregnant for three months after vaccination.

It is possible that the rubella vaccine might cause the same kinds of problems that rubella disease does. Rubella vaccine can produce several side effects. About one out of every seven children will develop a rash or swelling in the glands within a week or two following the shot. These effects usually last only a day or two. About one out of every 20 children and as many one out of four adults who receive the vaccine will have some pain and stiffness in the joints.

This condition may appear anywhere from two to 10 weeks after the shot. It is usually mild and lasts for only two or three days. Although experts are not sure, it seems that about one out of every one million children who receive rubella vaccine may have a more serious reaction, such as encephalitis (inflammation of the brain).

Parents should be aware of this possibility but not alarmed by it. Serious reactions are extremely rare. Medical authroities agree that the benefits of immunization against rubella far outweight the risks.

(If you hve a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Soomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Dam hearings to resume Sept. 26

AUSTIN - Opponents of the Stacy dam application of the Colorado River Municipal Water District last week continued to attack the project on the grounds that it would have little effect on the lake system above Austin.

The critics testified before the Texas Water Commission that there's not enough water available for the project, and even if there were, the West Texas area served by the district would not need it.

Hearings on CRMWD's application to impound a 554,000 acre foot resevoir on the Colorado River at Stacy, 20 miles southeast of Ballinger, will be resumed 10 a.m. Sept. 26, continued the next two days and into next month.

Jim Wilson, CRMWD attorney, said there is ample water available for all practical purposes to the year 2,030. He drew testimony from Comer Tuck, who heads the agriculture section in the department's planning division, and Dr. Quinten Martin, head of engineering and environmental section, that projections included 410,000 acre feet to satisfy the needs of four major irrigation companies in the lower basin.

Both witnesses said irrigation needs have become historically stable and that increased efficiency in use of water will take care of additional acreage in the next 50 years.

Larry Smith, attorney for the Lower Colorado River Authority, tried unsuccessfully to have the Texas Department of Water Resources studies on water availability thrown out on the grounds that neither Tuck nor Dr. Martin did all the work on sonable assumptions.

The study was simply an opinion, said Smith. "If you put junk into the computer, you get junk out?" he asked. Dr. Martin said the information in various studies and hypothetical cases were based on "rea-

Smith also asked if return flow could satisfy half of the upper basin projected manufacturing demands, would it be possible to fill out any additional water needs with ground water.

As in past testimony, the issue of West Texas using ground water was discussed, although witnesses said that well water is a mining operation and will virtually deplete the source over the long haul.

"Are you aware that irrigators in the lower part of the basin use more water than you estimate in your report?" Smith asked Tuck, who had testified that 3.24 acre feet per acre factor was ample for efficient irrgiation.

Texas Water Commission chairman Joe Carter said "farmers tell us they need five to six feet, but when we meter the water, we find they get by

"Did you take into consideration water rights in your studies?" Smith asked. Dr. Martin said he had, but that the possible magnitude of the rights was not conjectured.

Mondale orchestrating bill-lobbying campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The vice president's office just off the Senate chamber is an ornate place normally given over more to ceremony than hard work.

But with a natural gas compromise hanging in the balance, Vice President Walter F. Mondale has moved in for real to orchestrate the administration's lobbying campaign for the bill President Carter claims is so crucial to the U.S. energy future.

Sources say Mondale doesn't plan to leave until the issue is resolved one way or the other. For one thing, Mondale might be needed to cast a tiebreaking vote. It's that close.

Meanwhile, he is holed up in the office, where he entertains wavering senators, tries to persuade longtime

Cleanup aid revealed

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Scientists said today they have discovered a microorganism that eats phosphates and oil and may be useful in cleaning up some environmental problems.

The organism, a bacterium with the name acinetobacter phosphadevorus, was found in the sewage of a Texas sewage plant, the scientists from the University of Arizona scientists said.

Dr. Irving Yall told the national meeting of the American Chemical Society that the bacterium he and Dr. Charles F. Russ are working with is superior to other similar microorganisms because it digests a much wider range of carbon-containing compounds

The scientists discovered the orga nism in San Antonio after they deduced its existence and went out looking for it, Yall said in an inter-

As the Senate began its third day of debate on the measure today, the vice president's constant presence was a reminder of the heavy lobbying the legislation is undergoing. Both sides agree it's the most intense lobbying since the Senate took up the Panama Canal treaties last An Associated Press survey shows

39 senators supporting or leaning toward supporting the compromise, 41 against or leaning against and 20 undecided. However, an analysis of undecided votes suggests the administration now has a better shot of preailing than do opponents.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker conceded Tuesday that opposition forces probably do not have enough strength to have the bill recommitted to a House-Senate conference committee for retooling in what would be a killing blow. If he is correct, the opponents would have to resort to other tactics - perhaps a

A motion to recommit the bill was expected today, with a vote on the move possibly coming as early as

The compromise would lift federal price controls on newly discovered natural gas in 1985 and allow for a steady increase in the regulated price between now and then

With so much still unresolved, the lobbying proceeds at full pitch.

Near Mondale's command post, Jim Flug of Energy Action, a consumer group opposed to the compromise, buttonholes senators to urge rejec tion. So do lobbyists from a variety of producer, consumer, agriculture and labor groups - all aligned against the measure.

Not far away, Mike Baly of the American Gas Association — one of the few industry groups to support the bill - is trying to persuade senators that the ball game is already over and that the administration has won.

Meanwhile, mayors, governors and Cabinet members are among those calling on senators to praise the com

Senators are busy lobbying each other. "There are groups of senators going around all with little lists in their pockets," said one bemused

The administration campaign "is a tightly coordinated White House effort," said Jim Bishop, a spokesman for Energy Secretary James R.

Schlesinger. He said much thought goes into deciding the best way to approach each senator - whether to send Schlesinger or White House inflation fighter Robert Strauss, for instance, whether an appeal from Mondale is enough or whether the president himself should phone a wavering sena

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, one of the leading opponents of the compromise, had this to say of the White House lobbying campaign: "They carry on their lobbying activities morning, noon and night. I've heard of them calling one senator while he was in a hospital bed and another while he was on a boat up in Alaska. I've heard of other senators being called by almost one after the other: the president, the vice president. Strauss. Schlesinger...'
