President nears formula for continuing sessions

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) - President Carter seems within reach of a comprehensive formula for continuing Israeli-Egyptian negotiations after the Middle East summit, now nearing a climax.

Although spokesman Jody Powell cautioned against "strong optimism or pessimism," diplomatic sources said the mood at the summit was upbeat as Carter worked to win the agreement of Israel's Menachem Begin and Egypt's Anwar Sadat to a peace-seeking blueprint.

If an accord can be achieved, it would meet at least the minimum requirements for a successful conference, even if it did not ensure an ultimate Mideast settlement.

In his drive to nail down a summitending agreement, tentatively called a "framework of negotiations," Carter canceled one appearance and postponed two speechmaking and pol-

The White House press office said the president had Mrs. Carter preside at the affair "because of the demands of the negotiations at Camp David." In addition, Carter postponed for one week trips to the Carolinas, Pennsylvania and Ohio that had been set for Friday and Saturday

An announcement said the postponement was prompted by "uncertainty about the conclusion of the summit.

Powell did confirm that work had begun on drafting a summit-ending statement

By LEW WHEATON

ESTELI, Nicaragua (AP) - An army of leftist guerrillas and local volunteers, united in their desire to get rid of President Anastasio Somoza, holds this town of 40,000 in northwest Nicaragua and keeps the national guard garrison under siege.

"Let them come. We are ready here," said a young man when told that Somoza had sent reinforcements for the garrison

"This is a battle of the people," said one man in his 40s carrying an old hunting rifle. "We are farmers, workers, industrialists. I myself am an industrialist with a small furniture

Outside a four-block area around the national guard's command post, the streets were blocked by the rebels' chest high barricades of earth-filled flour sacks and paving stones at nearly every corner.

Fifty-three successful bidders paid bonuses totaling $9,712,000 Wednesday at the 68th University Lands Auc tion sale which was held in the Midland Hilton Ballroom

More than 200 bidders were on hand for the auction, which fell far short of the record bonus total of $17,870,500, set in Midland last December

James B. Zimmerman, geologist in charge of the University Lands office here, said prior to the sale that he thought the bonus total could approach the record. Following the sale. he said: "I guess we were spoiled by the first two sales here. Actually, am pleased with the total, although I did expect more.

Only three University Lands auctions have ever been held outside the state capital, and all three were in Midland — in April 1977, December 1977 and on Wednesday

Mrs. McKenna, now a housewife, has applied to become director of nursing services for the proposed Southeast Texas Hospice, Inc

Home Health-Home Care, Inc., for whom she worked in 1973-76, opposes the application.

If the application is approved by the Texas Health Facilities Commission, groups in other cities also are expected to seek permits. The commission rejected the application in June but granted a rehearing, which lasted two days and ended Wednesday.

Mrs. McKenna said that as late as 1972 Home Health-Home Care had no psychiatrist, bereavement program, counseling or volunteers to work with dying patients.

Asked if the agency showed more concern for the terminally ill in the next few years, she replied: "I was showing more concern for the terminally ill."

She said a major difference in the proposed hospice and other home health care agencies is that the hospice "would devote all its energy to the care of the terminally ill patient in the last three to six months of

Joan Lyons, who has applied to be director of volunteers for the hospice, said 42 persons already have volunteered even though the hospice is not vet in operation.

Existing home health care agencies, she said, "are not doing what we propose to do.

The agencies, however, contend that the proposed hospice would merely duplicate their efforts.

HLA typing has been known for about 20 years. But until now, it has mainly been used before organ transplants to make sure that the risk of rejection by the body is as small as possible.

The human body re produces HLA antigems, which fight the introduction of foreign sub stances such as a transplanted kidney. These antigens are controlled by a group of genes whose specific makeup varies from person to person

With HLA typing, researchers are able to perform chemical tests on white blood cells that will reveal the kind of antigens in the suspected father's body. By identifying the antigens, they are able to determine the kind of genes he has.

Vitamin E shots may offer protection from fatal respiratory complication

BOSTON (AP) — Vitamin E shots may be able to protect babies from a dangerous complication of respiratory distress syndrome, the biggest killer of premature infants, a Yale Medical School study says.

The lungs of premature babies often are not fully developed, and the infants must be kept alive on respirators. But the rich oxygen pumped into their bodies can damage the lining of their lungs. This complication, called bronchopulmonary dysplasia, can itself be fatal.

The Yale research, published today in the New England Journal of Medicine, found that injections of vitamin E can trap a damaging form of oxygen before it harms the lungs.

So what does it all mean? Government experts said 22 of the nation's 50 largest cities lost population between 1960 and 1970.

Some officials say smaller families and single people are putting increased pressure on the urban housing supply.

These officials believe the nation's population continues to gravitate toward smaller towns as citizens search for affordable housing.

In fact, some officials have said the populations in such outlying areas have grown faster than the population of some urban centers.

Reno, Nev., the least crowded urban area in the nation, boasts 145,-000 people in the 6,366 square miles of Washoe County. On the other extreme, the 577,000 people of the Jersey City, N.J., area live on just 47 square miles of Hudson degrees setback in 1949. Winds are expected to blow from

A big celebration

Midland's Mexican-American achieved. population will celebrate this weekend as they observe Mexico's Independence Day -Sept. 16.

The big four-day celebration again is being sponsored by the Midland Eastside Lions Club for the sixth consecutive year. The Lions have done a great job in this particular project and merit communitywide acclaim.

A banquet scheduled tonight in the El Rancho Grande Club will launch the festivities.

A carnival, featuring the latest rides and other entertainment events, will open Friday. Special booths of all kinds will be in operation Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

A colorful parade through the downtown section will be a Saturday highlight. It will start moving from Midland High School at 3 p.m.

Another Saturday highlight will be the Queen's Coronation in the Activities Building of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

Talent shows, sports events and additional entertainment will be the Sunday attractions.

Saturday, the actual Independence Day, is celebrated throughout the Southwest United States and Mexico.

It was on this particular day, 168 years ago, that Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla, a little-known parish priest, proclaimed his now famous El Grito de Delores, exhorting his predominately Indian followers to place their faith in Our Lady of Guadalupe and to fight to their death for independence. Although independence did not come until 1824, the fight continued until independence from Spain was rewarding one

It is fitting that Mexican-Americans should celebrate on this occasion, in the United States and elsewhere. They historically have taken pride in the contributions which their ethnic group has taken to the total culture of the U.S. It is noted that from the very beginning, Mexican-Americans were instrumental in introducing early technology which helped develop the vast mineral resources of the Southwest. And then we note the sharing of their knowledge in farming - dry land and irrigation - and in introducing new agricultural products. They also labored long and hard in earlyday railroad building in a then remote, wilderness area.

Then came the wars in which the U.S. was engaged and Mexican-Americans served gallantly in defense of their country, attesting to their deep sense of loyalty, committment and patriotism.

It is pointed out by those who know that Mexican-Americans represent the only ethnic group in the United States that has refused assimilation, and that as a group, they prefer acculturation. This, of course, allows the Mexican-American to enjoy the best of two worlds, while retaining their language, culture and traditions.

This, then, accounts for the positive attitude with which they come together on this particular occasion for celebration, contemplation and rededication. "It brings forth great pride in being Chicano," a spokesman for the group said.

Here's hoping their celebration here will be an enjoyable,

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Are they caught in spiderweb?

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - Not only White House aide Hamilton Jordan but Atlanta attorney Charles Kirbo may be caught in the spiderweb of international swindler Robert Vesco. The bait: stolen stock worth $12 million on paper and $10 million in Jordan and Kirbo are President Carter's two closest advisers, known in Washington circles as Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside. They have been linked by letters, telephone messages and sworn testimony to a Georgia group that offered to fix Vesco's legal problems in Washington for $10

Both men vigorously deny any knowledge of a Vesco fix. Nor is there any hard evidence that they ever lifted a finger to help Vesco. There is proof only that the Georgia group claimed to have influence with Jordan The letters and telephone messages strongly indicate, however, that the presidential advisers were conspiring with their fellow Georgians. But Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside deny receiving the letters and memos, which a secretary has sworn she mailed to We have established that the Justice Department dropped its efforts to bring Vesco back to the United States to stand trial on charges of looting a mutual fund of $224 million. Shortly thereafter, Vesco began some complex financial maneuvers that transferred the $12 million stock through a series of international corporations to the Georgians. They paid a paltry $42,500 for the stock at a judicial sale in Panama.

This leaves two possibilities: (1) surface, seeking undiscovered either the Georgians conned the mineral deposits and the causes of world's No. 1 con man; or (2) a political fix was in the works for the incredible Mr. Vesco.

In an earlier column, we traced letters and telephone messages to the White House doorstep of Hamilton Jordan. These documents. were carefully authenticated by Gerolyn Hobbs, the housewife-secretary who handled them. We also verified other telephone messages that appeared in the same file.

The file contained several messages from Jordan's crony. Spencer Lee IV, to R. L. Herring, a bankrupt businessman with a history of shady dealings. For example, Lee left a message on Jan. 18, 1977: "Need all paperwork on PRL." Vesco had promised the Georgians stock in his $120 million company, which was known in the financial world as PRL.

On the same day, there was a was in Washington attending Jimmy Carter's inaugural festivities. In a Jan. 20, 1977 message, Lee left word for Herring: "He talked to Hamilton and everything is fine."

file that mentioned Kirbo directly. Jerry Dorminey, a member of the Georgia group, left a message for Herring that: "Meeting has been set up with Kirbo.' At first, Kirbo denied that he had ever met with the Vesco group. But both Herring and Lee acknowledged under questioning that they had called upon Kirbo in his office. Herring gave a detailed account of the meeting, under oath, including a description of the pictures on the walls and Kirbo's chitchat about fishing in Lake Seminole.

Herring reported that Lee delivered the PRL papers, giving a detailed message for Lee: "If goes by office, please tell him to call Hamilton Jordan in Wash." Two days later, Lee WASHINGTON - One wonders where President Jimmy Carter was when political finesse and savvy were ladled out to practitioners of his artful trade. He must have been out to lunch. Else, why would he risk more political trouble by naming Sarah Weddington, the Clarence Darrow of the pro-abortion movement, to replace the passionate, but failed, Midge Costanza, as liaison for women's issues?

Ms. Weddington is a fetching woman, a low-key and talented operator, but she is also a militant leader of the nation's pro-abortion forces. As a lawyer, she represented "Jane Roe," the pregnant Texas woman in the successful suit which knocked down state abortion laws.

That celebrated victory before the U.S. Supreme Court (a poorly reasoned decision by Justice Blackmun at that) boosted her into the presidency of the National Abortion Rights Action League (NARAL), a sort of latter-day Watch and Ward Society maintaining vigilance over a woman's right to have an abortion.

Anything which sniffs out to be contrary to the notion of unconditional right to abortion is pounced upon by NARAL with the fervor of a giant football lineman leaping on a downed quarterback behind the goal line.

NARAL, through its publications, delights in spotting the enemy - the equally alert and assertive pro-life forces - in all his early moves. NARAL frets over statistics, and publishes them dolefully to prove how HEW-funded abortions have declined since Congress passed restrictive legislation last year. Ms. Weddington is an ardent advocate of abortion on demand. She traveled the republic extensively, preaching this gospel after the Supreme Court's 1971 decision. And she loved to testify before her pal, Sen. Birch Bayh, whenever the Senate Judiciary Committee had the abortion question on the agenda.

When it comes to abortion, she goes all the way. She sees pregnancy as an obstacle to the economic well-being of some families (warning that it costs $40,000 to raise a child from birth). How sad, she once observed, that a career woman must sacrifice if she becomes pregnant. She testified, "When pregnancy begins (unless a woman has freedom to choose to have an abortion), a woman is faced with a governmental mandate compelling her to serve as an incubator for months and then as an ostensibly willing mother for up to 20 years."

This efficient lady believes that a pregnant child, of whatever age (12?), has a right to ask for and receive an abortion without her parents' knowledge or consent. She also believes that a wife has the same right without her husband's knowledge or consent. She has testified that there are instances where a late trimester abortion should be available (as though it were shelf goods), thus leaving the door open for a woman to have an abortion in her eighth or even ninth month

And like many militants in the proabortion movement, she sees the Catholic Church as the villain. When the Edelin case, a manslaughter trial of a doctor who performed an abortion on a 17-year-old girl in late pregnancy, came up in her friendly dialogue with Sen. Bayh, Ms. Weddington stressed that "almost every member of the jury was Roman Catholic or had a family member who was." Tsk. tsk.

Now it would seem that President Carter, who has seen Bert Lance, Dr. Peter Bourne, and Midge leave in successive waves of negative publicity, could have selected a woman a little less offensive to that sizable section of the citizenry which doesn't believe abortion is an unconditional

Jimmy could have found himself a woman who isn't so inviting a target as Ms. Weddington. There must be one female in the republic who could suit Mr. Carter's new views - whatever they are - without causing a ruckus.

By installing the heroine of the abortion crusade in this job, the President is rubbing the noses of Catholics and other pro-life folks in the dirt. A spokesperson (what a dreadful

A Hertz spokesman said the company was unaware previously that the car had been stolen.

The murder of the Lorenz family near Purcell has been linked with the July 16 killing of six employees of a Sirloin Stockade resaturant in southwest Oklahoma City.

Ballistics tests have shown that a gun used in the Lorenz killings was also used in the steakhouse killings. In addition, authorities said tests confirmed that Lorenz's gun was stolen by his killers and was also used in the steakhouse murders.

The guns were found abandoned last month in Oklahoma City. In another development, police said

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Rain-swollen creeks were still out of their banks in many spots today as National Guardsmen patrolled to prevent looting after floods swept through central Arkansas, killing at least 10 people and causing millions of dollars worth of damages.

More rain threatened to add to the area's woes. Authorities said several people were still missing, but rescue units postponed their search until dawn. "It's too dangerous out there at night," a State Police spokesman said.

Heavy thunderstorms hit the area at daybreak Wednesday and six inches of rain fell in five hours, sending creeks rushing out of their banks and swirling through homes and businesses. HEW had first claim to 'money scandal' title

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investiga-tors of the General Services Administration who think they may have "the biggest money scandal in the history of the federal government" on their hands seem to have forgotten HEW's claim to that dubious distinction.

The GSA, the government's housekeeping agency, may be losing $66 million a year through fraud, its officials said recently. That's 1.3 percent of the $5 billion it spends annually. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare loses $5.5 billion to $6.5 billion annually through fraud, waste and abuse in its programs, HEW officials acknowledged this

The leakage of funds, amounting to about 5 percent of all the money HEW spends, includes about $1 billion in outright fraud and abuse.

The bulk of the losses is due to mismanagement or excess spending for health care and other costs that are sometimes outside HEW's direct control, the department maintains.

HEW Inspector General Thomas D. Morris, who wrote the controversial report last April that provided a rough inventory of HEW's losses, said Wednesday that GSA investigators could be right if they are talking about "the largest in-house money scandal where government employees have been involved."

Morris said he believes fraud by HEW's 145,000 employees is "minuscule." The department's big losses come in the billions of dollars it pays to people and organizations outside the government for health care, education, welfare, Social Security and other services, he said. Morris' report to Congress on HEW can get by with $1 billion less next year because of internal efforts to curb losses. He set a goal of reducing the waste by $2.2 billion in 1981.

Morris, 65, a former Defense Department and General Accounting Office manager, said his report "served a useful purpose." It led to a blizzard of Califano directives putting the heat on his department managers to take steps to reduce waste. 'That kind of organized, aggressive, topside-directed effort is what makes for better management in government," said Morris. "Without that, the bureaucrats just won't normally and easily respond. We're all human beings.' Morris directed a cost-cutting program in the early 1960s for then-Defense Secretary Robert McNamara at the Pentagon, where Califano got his start in government. Morris considers HEW a much tougher nut to crack.

Morris said HEW's use of computers to ferret out welfare cheaters on the government payroll and trip up doctors and pharmacists who overbill the Medicaid program for the poor is going slower than expected, but turning up some reults. A majority of the 32,000 government workers receiving welfare turned out to be low-paid and entitled to benefits. he said. But 15,000 to 20,000 are still being checked, he said, and among the first 4,800 persons whose records were scrutinized, 1,132 were ineligible and 916 were overpaid.

"We figure on average every ineligible case is worth $2,000 a year in AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) plus food stamps plus Medicaid," he said.

He said HEW has whittled down a target list of doctors and pharmacists suspected of defrauding Medicaid from 2,500 to 590. These are under "active" investigation and 16 indictments have resulted, he said. One man was acquitted, six convicted and the other cases are pending.

Carter pleased with action on reform measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is described as "delighted" by overwhelming House passage of a civil service reorganization bill viewed as the cornerstone of his plan to shake up the federal bureaucracy. The measure which cleared the House Wednesday by a 385-10 vote is similar to a bill passed earlier by the Senate.

Supporters are predicting a conference committee will quickly work out the differences between the two versions and have a finished product to Carter for signature into law before Congress recesses next month.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., the bill's chief sponsor, said he hoped a conference committee could begin meeting next week.

Civil Service Commission chairman Alan Campbell said the president was "delighted" when he telephoned him at Camp David with news of the

"If you look at the total bill, the only significant loss (for the president) is in the veterans preference area,' Campbell told reporters. Carter had hoped to revamp portions of Civil Service rules giving lifetime hiring preference to veterans.

The bill would establish a Senior Executive Service for high-level managers who could trade job security for a merit pay system that would give them a chance at higher earnings keyed to superior performance.

It also would create a new system whereby 72,500 mid-level supervisors would earn pay raises based on performance rather than longevity.

Other sections would write into law the merit principle to guide personnel decisions and create a special system to protect the salaries and obs of federal employees who blow the whistle on waste or corruption.

Nutrition program gets divided vote

Only one issue received a divided vote when the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission board of directors met Wednesday.

A grant application from West Texas Opportunities to fund a com-munity food and nutrition program passed the board by a 10 to 5 vote.

The group is applying for $12,753 in federal funds for the program to operin Dawson, Martin, Upton as Glasscock counties. Plans call for a program coordinator to be hired.

Goal of the program is to give 4,848 low income people access to federal and non-federal food and nutrtition

The board gave favorable comment to the grant application from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation for construction of a north frontage road along Interstate 10 in Pecos County and to a grant application from Pecos to develop Saragosa Park.

The city of Goldsmith received favorable comment on its application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for $234,000 in Community Development Block Grant funds.

If approved by HUD, the money will be used to improve the city's gas distribution system which reportedly leaks. The current system is a "threat to the public health and safety of the community," according to a report.

Also receiving favorable comment on their applications for CDBG funds were the city of Ft. Stockton and the city of Big Spring.

West Texas Opportunities' grant is for funding its administration and general services while another grant s to fund a Head Start program in Lamesa, Stanton and McCamey. Title VI Plan and Title III Plan.

Family doctor in great demand

The family doctor, at one time considered to be the level in the medical profession for those who couldn't make it as specialists, is in more demand now than the specialist, according to a member of The University of Texas Board of Regents.

Sterling H. Fly, the doctor on the three-member board, told members of the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday that Texas is "quite short" of general practicioners. The state overall has a doctor shortage, he said. "Family practice is the most sought out specialty in the medi-cal profession. It has gone from the least to the most," Fly said during a dinner address.

"The problem is not that students are not anxious to go into family practice these days, but just that it takes a lot of resources and people to Fly said the state's seven medical schools need to graduate 1,000 to 1,200 doctors each year in order for Texas "to catch up" in the area of health care. He added that the institutions have the potential for turning out as many as 1,400 doctors each year and also indicated that "we're making some headway.

"We don't need any more medical schools. What we do need is more doctors; more general practioners,' he said.

"But it's very expensive. The University of Texas medical branch at Galveston with 2,000 students has a budget slightly less than The University of Texas at Austin with some-thing like 40,000 students.

"Twenty-five percent of the doctors who have graduated should go into family practice. We're quite short of that now. We need to be training 300 general practioners each year."

Fly said in an interview later that Texas should experience an influx of new doctors within the next three to "The doctor distribution problem is more serious than the actual number of doctors. It's worse in the rural and poverty areas. But at the current rate of our medical school growth, the seven medical schools in the state will be more than adequate to take care of the need in the future," he said.

"An important thing we have to keep in mind is the funding situation. We have enough medical schools. The medical schools we have, have got to be properly financed in order to reap their full potential.
"The funding right now is at a level adequate enough to keep the schools going. But as the additional students are brought it, funding has got to be increased. It cost the state between $75,000 and $100,000 to graduate a doctor, according to Fly. The Ulvade doctor, who is also a member of The University of Texas Land Lease board, told the Lions that two million acres of West Texas land in The University of Texas Land System has through the years generated more than $1 billion.

The interest from the special funds is used to finance new university construction projects and educational programs, he noted.

He said he was pleased that The University of Texas of the Permian Basin has introduced a petroleum engineering masters program into this year's curiculum in conjunction with The University of Texas at Austin.

Commenting on the investigation by the American Association of University Professors of several faculty complaints at UTPB, Fly disputed reports that the university's federal or state funds may be in jeopardy.

"The board of regents does take this very seriously since we're dealing with personnel problems. We need to discuss the matter fully in executive session before we decide whether there's a need for any action," the regent said.

"I am not aware of any threat of withdrawal of funds. We've read

Midland man jailed for pot

An 18-year-old Midland man was in custody in City Jail early today following his arrest by police at 12:50 a.m. for alleged possession of mari-juana, according to authorities.

Police said the man was arrested in the 100 block of Spraberry Drive after the vehicle he was in was stopped for a alleged traffic violation.

Two men got out of the vehicle, police said. A bulging bag of a substance police believe to be marijuana was seen protruding from the pocket of the 18-year-old, according to reports.

When the bag dropped to the street, the man picked it up and tried to swallow it, according to authorities.

Loren Guess of the 1300 block of West Wall Avenue told police at 11:09 p.m. Wednesday that two windows of a pickup truck in the vicinity were broken earlier. Damage was estimat-

'Coursing' should be outlawed, Hance insists

By MARK VOGLER R-T Staff Writer

"Coursing," the practice of using jackrabbits as live bait in greyhound training exercises, ought to be outlawed in Texas, according to congressional candidate Kent Hance.

Hance, a Democrat and the state senator from Lubbock who is opposing Republican George W. Bush of Midland for the 19th Congressional District seat, said Tuesday that he personally opposes the activity for "disease and inhumane reasons.

"I don't think it should be taking place in Texas. I sponsored a bill this year by Rep.

Chris Miller (D-Fort Worth) that would have prohibited 'coursing,' but it died before it ever reached the floor because it never got on the calendar, Hance said in a telephone interview Tuesday afternoon.

"I believe the bill would have passed had it gotten out of committee. I'm sure that somebody will try to enter a bill next year and I expect that it will pass. I don't think there's any need for 'coursing' in dog racing. Mechanical rabbits can be used."

Hance said that his stand on "coursing" is not part of his platform in his run for Con-

Commenting on several federal investigations into the sale of West Texas jackrabbits to greyhound trainers in as many as 40 states across the country, the state senator said he thought the issue ought to be resolved within each of the states rather than develop into a federal case.

The transportation of jackrabbits from the Midland-Odessa area has already sparked independent investigations by the U.S. Department of the Interior, the U.S. Agriculture Depart-ment, the FBI, the IRS, the Colorado Racing Commission and the Texas Attorney General's office into various phases of the unusual animal industry.

Hance said he was unaware of any of the investigations and indicated he was "a bit surprised that it's this big a deal."

Sharon Burrer, a legislative assistant for Rep. Miller, said Tuesday that Hance was eager to push the bill through the Legislature this year, but claimed the bill was killed by a committee chairman "for political reasons not germane to the rabbit issue.'

She said she believes the citizens of Texas are opposed to the practice because of some of its far-reaching implications.

"Since some of the 'coursing' takes place in public view, it's bound to have a bad influence on the children who watch it. A certain amount of gambling goes on at these events. And there are rumors of Mafia con-nection because of the money in-volved," Ms. Burrer said.

"It's an emotional issue that has a lot of people upset. There are quite a few 'coursing' tracks located throughout the state. We have received feedback from people all over the state who are opposed to it.

"We didn't realize the emo-tional need for banning this activity until we got into the testimony. We've run with the ball two years in a row. The bill would have passed. But it was getting the bill to the floor that

Rep. Miller initially was contacted by the Tarrant County Chapter of the Humane Society of the U.S. before bringing the 'coursing' issue to the attention of state legislators." Humane Society members later provided Ms. Miller's of-fice with phototographs, dia-grams and written reports of coursing events in Texas. Some of the photographs show rabbits being torn apart by

"It (coursing) seems a little bit grisly. It's not something I would want to take my kids to on a Sunday afternoon. It's rather disgusting that this is allowed to go on," said Ms. Burrer.

Midland celebrate Mexican holiday

Mexican Independence Day, 16 de Septiembre, will be celebrated in Midland in a four-day fiesta made up of a carnival, parade, dances, a banquet, mass, queen's coronation, music and talent shows and the selling of Mexican handicrafts and foods.

Activities begin tonight and run through Sunday.

It's a big thing, I'll guarantee you," said Ruben Vargas, who is general chairman of the Independence Day celebration sponsored by the Eastside

The carnival, dances, talent acts and most other activities will be held at the Midland County Exhibit Building off East U.S. Highway 80.

'Las Fiestas' officially gets under way in a mass to be celebrated at 7 p.m. today in Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church, Vargas said.

An hour later, members of the Mexican-American community are inviting the public to join them in a banquet at El Rancho Grande at 409 E. Scharbauer Drive. Vargas said approximately 300 persons are expected at the banquet. Tickets are $2.50

"We even wrote (President) Jimmy Carter, and he declined," Vargas said. "He wrote a letter back, saying he couldn't make it.'

The carnival on the grounds of the Midland County Exhibit Building is from 5 p.m. to midnight Friday through Sunday.

Vargas said different talent acts will perform on the Exhibit Building grounds Friday, Saturday and Sun-

Dances Friday and Saturday nights in the Exhibit Building will begin at 9 p.m. and will feature the Panchito Soltero band from Wink and Los Regionales band from Dallas.

The parade begins at 3 p.m. Saturday at San Angelo Street and West Illinois Avenue, moves downtown, turns on to Loraine Street, Wall Avenue and Main Street before it goes eastward onto Illinois Avenue again, and then heads northward on to Terrell Street for the final trek to Northgate Shopping Center.

The parade will include at leasteight floats, the queen candidates, the Edison Freshman School marching band and decorated cars, motorcycles, horses and bicycles.

The Las Fiestas queen will be will crowned at 10 p.m. Saturday at the Exhibit Building. The teen-age candiish rulers. And then 11 years later,

GENERAL NEWS/ENTERTAINMENT

Forms are being sent home this week to parents who wish to be school volunteers.

According to Betty Edgar, volunteer chairman for the school district who will direct a program to place volunteers in elementary schools by Oct. 16, all volunteers, including classroom, Head Start, Partners in Reading, library, office and even homeroom mothers and Halloween carnival chairmen, will be recruited under one program.

Only one hour a month is all that is needed of a school volunteer, said Mrs. Edgar.

The forms are being sent to parents this year because there was some confusion last year on who to contact for what program. One volunteer chairman at each school will process applications and then help principals match volunteers with jobs.

It was stressed that volunteers need not be parents.

Included in the program is a speakers bureau sponsored by the Human Relations Council called Special Programs of Additional Resources and Knowledge (SPARK). This program urges participants to share knowledge of a particular subject such asa hobby, career or travel experiences by given talks or demonstrations. The SPARK program also is available to junior high and freshman school classrooms

Anyone wishing to be a school volunteer should go by a school office or contact the volunteer chairman at the

Some wives have threatened divorce if the Navy goes ahead with plans to put women sailors on board the destroyer tender Suel Gompers. But the vast majority of wives have come around to accept the idea of Navy women on ships "with grace and dignity," says Sharon Lawrence, ombudsman for dependents of the Gompers crew. Gompers is one of five ships initially pegged for women to serve on board within six months after the current defense authorization bill is signed into law by President Carter. The Navy exp to put about 5,300 women on board 49 non-combatant vessels - research. repair, tender and other support ships - over the next five years, a spokeswoman said. While describing the idea of women going to sea as "great," the wife of the Gompers' skipper said, "It's going to create more problems for my husband (Capt. Robert J. O'Malia)." Mary O'Malia, who also disclosed that an officer's wife had threatened divorce. said privacy for women as well as men on board the ship may be one of the principal problems.

The skipper's wife and nine others have discussed the forthcoming arrival of women on Navy ships. With the exception of Mrs. O'Malia, the wives are ombudsmen for the various ships in the force.

They assist other Navy wives in dealing with problems within the Navy and act as a liaison between the ships' skippers and the families of the While admitting that many of the wives are opposed to having women serving with their husbands on board ship, the ombudsmen agree the Navy will benefit from the plan.

So far as the wives who threaten divorce or see the arrival of women on board ship as a threat to their marriages, the ombudsmen generally agreed that those marriages are already shaky or there may be a lack of trust among those wives. They also agree that after the novelty of women on board Navy ships wears off, the assignment of Navy women will become routine.

As far as any "hanky-panky," one of the wives said there would be no more than what goes on in civilian

A Navy spokeswoman in Washington said only 183 enlisted women had volunteered for the 375 shipboard billets to be made available initially.

Conversely, 164 women officers already have volunteered for the 55 billets offered them. Frost said she is among those volunteers.

Change can be disruptive to relationship

By DR. LAURA SCHLESSINGER Copley News Service

Julie is angry at Ed's lack of interest as well as non-support of her activities. "He never asks me how school or my job is going. He never wants to read my assignments, help me or congratulate me when I get good grades. Instead, he always seems to be complaining about something totally unrelated. The other day one of my teachers was deeply impressed by my analysis of a play we had to read for class, and when I came home and told Ed about it all he did was get irritated about the amount of time I was spending on homework." "I don't mind her getting involved in school and her part-time job. I think that's great. I just feel she's changing, that's all, and I don't know that I like all the changes." With all the how-to and self-help books and campaigns many more people are out trying new things, getting involved, and expanding their own personal horizons. These are beautiful times of freedom for self-exploration and expression.

Often, however, people find that those close to them, perhaps even the very people who suggested that they "get involved" and "go out and do something," become unhappy or get even hostile when they do begin changing. Change can be disruptive to relationships, especially when one partner is apparently doing it alone. What difficulty is Ed having with Julie's growth and success? Ed is feeling threatened by what Julie's changes might mean for him and their relationship. He is afraid that he might lose her. "When she finishes her schooling, gets all involved with her job and other people, she may not even want me anymore," Ed laments. Ed sees any growing independence by Julie as a growing away from him. Ed does not appear to be secure in their relationship apart from depending upon her financial and social dependence upon him. Sadly, Ed sees himself in a rather traditional role of man as provider and total caretaker. Since Julie is obviously able to provide these things for herself, Ed has lost sight of his value to her, her motivations for loving him other than his stereotyped cultural responsibilities. Ed may also be threatened by her change because he is reminded of his own fears of changing, so that all her actions and accomplishments make him feel less and less in com-

It takes effort, determination, perseverance and courage to strive toward making more of yourself and we often resent those characteristics in others when we can't muster them up in ourselves. It is true that people often get overly immersed in their own experiences and feelings. Julie may be demanding too often and too much. She may be needy of a lot of support because of her self-doubts and anxieties about failure. Too many of us get content to the point of lethargy in our own lives as well as in our relationships. We fear every minor change as a threat to our security and rarely welcome it as a positive and exciting experience. We cannot avoid change without stagnating and dying. To deny growth and change in ourselves and our intimates is to deny life and is to love selfishly. Ed came to realize that his complaints and irritations had to do with his anticipation that Julie would no longer want or need him. In his anxiety he behaved in a manner which would surely fulfill his sad prophecy. Change is difficult for both parties. Ed and Julie are attempting to be more open and revealing about their feelings and their reactions to each other's feelings and actions. This loving communication and understanding are the basis of security in a relationship.

League of Women Voters opens new study of juvenile correction

To open the League of Women Voters' September study of juvenile correction in Texas, the Midland league met at the Culver Youth Home to tour the facility and view first hand an example of a local correction alternative.

As part of a statewide study, the Midland league discussed whether to support a system for communitybased correction facilities and programs to replace the traditional correction institutions and whether to support flexibility in budget allocations of the Texas Youth Council(or new state juvenile agency).

Lorraine Miles, juvenile probation officer, who conducted the tour and took part in the discussion afterwards, explained that the Culver Youth Home was a county facility financed with county funds. In Midland, this facility is an alternative to jail for juveniles from 10 to 17 who have need for temporary detentional

The Ector County regional facility also is available to area youths for up to a year of detention. At the Ector County facility, family counseling is an integral part of the program. Mrs. Miles indicated that this form of counseling is one of the most important means of rehabilitation. When facilities are located far from home, this regular counseling is not a viable alternative. This facility is free of charge to Midland and area residents because of its federal funding.

Other area juvenile facilities include High Sky Girls Ranch and West Texas Boys Ranch, located in San Whether to support a single state agency which would supervise juve-nile intake, probation and corrections as recommended by the National Task Force on Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention will be discussed at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

DEAR ABBY

She needs counseling on sex

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife of 29 years hates love-making. She often says she finds the whole idea "revolting." In fact, she doesn't even want to be kissed.

The odd thing is that when she is with any of her three brothers, it's kissy, kissy, kissy, all the time. Good morning kisses, good night kisses, and hello and goodbye kisses. (And she kisses them in between times,

Although I have never strayed from the straight and narrow, I know that women find me attractive. I mention this because you usually take the wife's side in any marital squabble.

DEAR MYSTIFIED; Your wife probably fears that your kisses are just the preliminary to the "revolting" main event—an unlikely event with her brothers.

She needs counseling on the role of sex in a "successful" (sic) marriage. DEAR ABBY: Apparently you never dated someone who bestowed "ishy kisses," like the girl who wrote you about a poor kisser she dated.

You said, "Kiss him the way you'd like to be kissed. Then hang onto your

Condos make strong revival; effect varies

Copley News Service

Condominiums are "in" again. They're enjoying a new and strong revival. That applies to newly constructed condos as well as rental apartments converted to condo units.

The substantial rise in temperature in the condominium market is caus-ing some "wide effects"—some positive, some negative. On the positive side, the values of existing condo units are appreciating more rapidly than ever before. Condo values are now rising just as fast as values of single-family homes. Faster, in some locations.

That's in sharp contrast to the situation just two or three years ago when condo values were appreciating at less that half the rate of single-family homes.

One key reason for the healthier condo market is the changing attitude of builders and developers. They are less apt to plunge into a market with a large number of new condo units without carefully and methodically doing their homework first.

Result: There are less condos being built in areas where they aren't really needed, as was often the case a few

On the negative side, more condo buyers produces more condo complainers. And there are now so many consumer complaints registered about condo buying and owning, it's generating pressure on legislators to enact protective laws.

The most significant proposed legislation is the Condominium Protection Act, drafted by the Depart-ment of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The primary purpose of the proposed legislation is to "restore consumer confidence in the condominium way of life," according to its sponsors. Many condo developers question that stated objective.

The act would, generally, place a wide range of limits and restrictions on the builder of newly constructed condos and developers of conversion

Those conversions-from rental apartments to condo units- account for the greatest growth factor for con-

Of the 200,000 condo units produced last year, 50,000 were conversions from rental units. And the number of conversions is increasing substantially this year.

The hottest markets for conversions are Chicago and Houston, each of which produced 13,000 to 15,000 conversions last year. Other particularly active markets are Los Angeles, San Diego and Washington, D.C.

During the last 15 years, condominiums have yo-yoed up and down in the real estate marketplace. Now they definitely are on an upswing. The market has seasoned and matured in a few short years and is certainly here

One leader in the field, Eugene Matanky, estimates that by 1985 at least 50 percent of all real estate transactions will deal with condominiums.

As for advice to prospective buyers: You no longer need to fear that values of well-located condos will not appreciate. But read and understand every provision in the sales con-tract and "condominium agreement" before you sign.

A. Yes, They've been around for about a decade and are slowly gaining in popularity in some regions of the Owning an office condo offers many of the same advantages as owning an offece building; equity accumulation, fixed payments, tax advantages and freedom to arrange and adapt the office to meet special needs.

Q. Will tight money cause a "bust" in the housing market later this year? A. There's no indication of any significant slow-down in the superactive home selling market despite a decreasing supply of mortgage funds. "The single family home market should continue to perform well for the balance of the year" said a recent report from the Research Department of the National Association of

It also could be caused by a crack in a waste or vent pipe, or a loosened joint in the waste line. Pour a pail of water down the shower drain and any other drains that may be nearby. If this does not eliminate the odor, I strongly recommend your having a competent plumber make an inspection for possible breaks.

SAN ANTONIO—When they do anything in Texas hey do it big. With the beginning of school this fall, many school districts throughout the state will begin offering breakfast to their students.

Fall signals free

preakfast programs

. The School Breakfast Program is required in Texas schools as a result of House Bill 136. The bill, which passed last summer, will require all schools with food service facilities and 10 percent or more students eligible for free or reduced priced meals to serve breakfast. This 10 percent implementation figure is one of the lowest in the nation.

"You can't teach a hungry child," says Charles A. Cole, Director, School Lunch and Child Nutrition Program at Austin. The former elementary school brincipal is in charge of implementing the program statewide. He has long recognized the many benefits rom having a breakfast program.

"The Complete Summary of the Iowa Breakfast Studies" reported that the hungry or undernourished child has problems with school lessons. The child tends to have a short attention span, be apathetic and lethargic.

Researchers have determined that the young have greater need for nutrients than adults. The undernourished child who appears uninterested in the classroom may actually be conserving energy to stay alive.

Because of the lack of nourishment, the child misses the math, grammar, and reading lessons covered during the early hours of the day. After lunch there isn't enough time to make up for the material covered earlier.

To prepare school districts for the new program, Cole and his staff began urging administrators to start a trial breakfast program during the 1977-78 school year. Experimenting in a few schools would help food service personnel make adjustments in their routine before the program was required in the fall. As part of their continuing education efforts, Cole and his staff offered numerous workshops and seminars covering all aspects of school breakfasts. The trial breakfast programs pleasantly surprised many school districts. "The major concern of school administrators was the transportation and scheduling of students to give them time to eat the meals," Cole said. "But, with an adjustment of 10 to 15 minutes, everyone had plenty of time to eat." Another area was the interest of the students. Many districts found that the number of students paying for the meal was equal to the number of students receiving the meal free, or at a reduced rate.

During May, 1978, approximately 241,000 Texas students ate breakfast at school, a sizable increase over the previous year, when approximately 166,000 participated. The state office expects the participation figures to triple during coming months as schools begin their programs.

School Breakfast is based on a Type A Meal Pattern which includes foods from the four food groups (milk, meat, vegetables-fruits, and breads-cereals). The nutritional requirements are:

1/2 pint milk (whole, low fat, skim, or buttermilk) to be served as a beverage, or on cereal;

1/2 cup serving of fruit or full-strength fruit juice or vegetable juice; and

1 slice of whole grain or enriched bread (or the equivalent serving of cornbread, biscuits, rolls, or muffins made of whole grain, enriched or fortified flour), or 34 cup serving of a whole grain or enriched or fortified cereal; or an equivalent quantity of any combination of these foods.

To improve the nutritional value of the breakfast, a protein food is served as often as practical. These foods may be:

1 ounce of meat, fish poultry or cheese; 1 egg:

2 thsps. peanut butter; or a combination of any of these foods. Some Texas School Breakfast menus are: -Orange juice, pancake with butter and syrup, sausage and milk -Grape juice, oatmeal with butter, toast, milk

-Sliced peaches, boiled egg, toast, milk -Apple juice, English muffin, sandwich omelet, tomato garnish, milk -Pear cubes, toasted cheese muffin, or milk Pineapple tidbits, peanut butter on Texas toast, Schools who participate in the School Breakfast Program will be re-imbursed up to 12 cents for every full priced breakfast, 34.75 cents for a reduced price, and 42.25 cents for each free meal.

Food prices pause, then soar

By DONALD C. BAUDER Copley News Service

There will be some relief from double-digit foodprice inflation in the next few months. But after a respite, food prices will escalate anew.

One major reason will be governmental programs which prop up food prices. Such support programs will start biting into consumers' food bills later this "Government tells us it's doing something about inflation, and then at the same time it's responsible for policies which are in effect boosting food prices. It's schizophrenic," said Jeffrey Nichols of Wall Street's Argus Research Corp. In any case, economists advise us to eat heartily percent; for the second quarter, it zoomed 15.6

"It will slow down, but not drop, during the second half, say to a 5 or 6 percent annual rate, so that food inflation will average 10 percent this year; then, it will be rising at 7 percent next year," said Ray Daniel, agricultural economist for Chase Econometrics of Philadelphia.

"The biggest factor is beef prices. They rose 21 percent (at an annual rate) in the first quarter and 35 in the second quarter this year. They'll drop in the second half of this year, but they will be rising by 10 to 15 percent next year. The reason is the very, very short supply of cattle. Cattlemen still are liquidating their herds," said Daniel.

In other areas, consumer prices would be more favorable if it were not for the politicians. "In grains, there were low prices in 1977, and then the govern-Last year, the food component of the consumer ment stepped in with eight different programs such price index (CPI) rose by 6.3 percent. South led the king of clubs. East took the ace and returned the ten of spades. When this held, East shifted to diamonds. South put in the jack, and West won with the queen.

West cashed the queen of spades and led the ace of hearts. When East played the discouraging deuce, West switched to clubs DEFENSE TAKES REST

East took the queen of clubs and two spades, allowing West to discard the ten and queen of hearts. East then led the eight of diamonds, and West took the rest of the tricks. South wrote 1700 points on the opponents' side of the scorepad and remarked defensively: "I had 17 points.

"I didn't know you could count," was North's bitter reply.

If some new authority had persuaded South to shut up, his opponents would have stopped at two spades, and South would have saved about 1500 points.

new opinion of its own. The case arose from a June 22, 1973, auto accident in which Cathy Sloan, a passenger in a ca'r owned by Howe Mayse, was injured. The accident was caused by the uninsured driver of the other car.

Uninsured motorist coverage was omitted from Mayse's policy on the 1970 Oldsmobile in which Miss Sloan was riding. But he had rejected the coverage orally, not in writing.

State law makes uninsured coverage automatically a part of all personal auto policies unless rejected by the policyholder. The State Insurance Board's "Rule 10" says rejection must be in writing.

Registration for MCT classes in art, dramatics under way

Registration for Theatre School at Midland Community Theatre is un-der way with the first class to begin Monday, according to a spokesman. The classes will continue once a week until January when the spring session will begin.

The school is for youths ages 3-18. A wide range of instruction and production opportunities are available for all types of children, whether they be shy, superactive, quiet, a clown, performer or a loner.

The preschool classes explore the wonders of the creative process within the framework of the activity most natural to the children - play. Imagination and group involvement are enhanced through activities in creative dramatics, art and music. Classes will meet from 1 to 3 p.m. Mondays, or 10 to 11 a.m. Tuesdays.

Classes for those in grades one through three will emphasize the informal dramatization of stories. These are designed to create a controlled emotional outlet, provide each child with an avenue of self-expression, encourage and guide the child's imagination through playmaking. Classes will meet 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesdays or Wednesdays.

Students in grades four through six will continue to explore individual resources as students are caught up in building their own theater performances which evolve out of the immediacy and importance of their own feelings and expressions. Classes will

Puppets to have show at MCT

A puppet show to give the audience a laugh at the beginning of mankind will be shown in Theatre Midland's Abell-Hanger Courtyard on Saturday and Sunday and again Sept. 23 and

The show will start at 4 p.m. following the performance of "Aladdin." It lasts about 30 minutes and is free.

The puppeteer is Kelly Draper of Big Spring. He has been interested in puppets the past seven years and is a member of the Puppeteers of America. He designed and made the pup-pets for the Midland Community Theatre production of "Carnival."

Draper performs puppet shows for children's parties, organizations, schools and nursing homes. He also has done religious and educational shows in Big Spring.

Pair calling attention to new film: 'A Dream of Passion'

Both have been exiles, she from her native Greece, he from his adopted Hollywood. They have remained indomitable, uncompromising in art as well as politics.

Melina Mercouri and Jules Dassin have been visiting the United States to call attention to their new film, "A Dream of Passion," which Avco-Embassy is releasing next month. Both admit the film needs selling, since it is not exactly surefire entertainment.

"A Dream of Passion" reflects the artistic integrity of the marrried pair, whose collabora-tion has produced "Never on Sunday," "Phaedra" and "Topkapi." The new film is an unrelenting study of two women: a Greek actress (Mercouri) returned from exile for a produc-tion of "Medea"; an American army wife (Ellen Burstyn) who killed her three children as revenge on her unfaithful husband. Dassin's inspiration for the story began 25 years ago when he wit-nessed the sentencing of a Milan woman who had murdered her lover's three children. In "A Dream of Passion," he interweaves the real infanticide with an onstage version of "Medea,"

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - some of it in English, some in Greek.

The film often focuses on the antagonism between the actress and the play's director. Is this taken from life?

"There are superficial parallels," the directorwriter smiled.

"Absolutely not," the actress corrected. "I love working with The film's most controversial scene comes when the actress accepts the challenge of a BBC camera crew to speak the truth on tape in the manner of Marion Brando's soliloquy in "Last Tango in Paris." It is a harrrowing piece of selfrevelation.

'But I had no intention

"I was lost," she admitted. "It was like being under an anesthetic, like moving in a dream. I heard a voice and I saw Julie mouthing words behind the camera. I knew I couldn't do the scene twice. I'm sure Brando didn't."

Melina Mercouri and Jules Dassin have been visiting the United States to call attention to their new film, "A Dream of Passion," which Avco-Embassy is releasing next month. Both admit the film needs selling, since it is not exactly surefire entertainment. "A Dream of Passion" reflects the artistic integrity of the marrried pair, whose collaboration has produced "Never on Sunday," "Phaedra" and "Topkapi." The new film is an unrelenting study of two women: a Greek actress (Mercouri) returned from exile for a production of "Medea"; an American army wife (Ellen Burstyn) who killed her three children as revenge on her un-faithful husband. Dassin's inspiration for the story began 25 years ago when he wit-nessed the sentencing of a Milan woman who had murdered her lover's three children. In "A Dream of Passion," he interweaves the real infanticide with an onstage version of "Medea,"

'Search' is TV's longest running daytime serial

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "Search for Tomorrow" was 7,000 this week, and there's not a little pressure on Bill and Joyce Corrington to keep the thing going.

The Corringtons were approached initially to prepare a story projection and scripts for 'Another World.' Neither one had ever seen a soap opera on television.

"We had no idea how something like this was written," says Corrington, a lawyer and former college professor, as well as a prolific writer. "Seeing the way it was done was like a huge door opening. We never dreamed it was so organized."

They were hired, however, as headwriters for "Search for Tomorrow," and took full charge of preparing projections, story breakdowns and scripts Aug. 14.

Vanderbilt collects TV news

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When employees switch on the evening news each night on the second-floor of Vander-bilt University's library, they feel they've done unborn historians and scholars a favor.

The Vanderbilt Televsion News Archive, a not-for-profit service, has collected more than 6,000 hours of TV news shows in its 10 years. The collection is believed to be the oldest and largest in the country, and its tapes of newscasts from 1968-74 may be the only ones.

"Television was becoming the main medium of mass communication of our time, and no one was keeping any of the tapes," James P. Pilkington, administrator of the archive, said in an interview.

"It would be easier to research the 1860s than the 1960s because the main medium of communication in the 1860s is available while that for the 1960s is gone," he said.

It was an insurance company's district manager, Paul C. Simpson, who decided 10 years ago that the nightly newscasts were worth preserving.

"I used to watch a lot of news programs, and felt they were having such a tremendous impact on the country. More and more people were depending on it for their news," Simpson, now retired but a consultant to the archive, said.

tant to the archive, said.
A self-styled news buff, Simpson discovered in early 1968 that the networks routinely erased their videotapes after about two weeks and used them again.

He put up $4,000 of his own money to get the project going with coverage of the 1968 Republican National Convention. The decision to begin with that meeting was fortunate because it gave scholars a chronicle of television coverage of Richard Nixon's presidency from his nomination to his farewell resignation speech to White House staffers in 1974.

CBS filed a suit in 1973 saying the project violated copyright law. But the suit was dropped and the problem resolved with passage of a new copyright law in 1976 which exempted the archive collection. The networks now save their tapes, dropping copies off at the National Archives.

The collection, which includes nightly news shows and specials such as presidential news conferences and the Watergate hearings, is available to anyone who wishes to view.

Borrowing a copy of a tape isn't cheap, however. It costs $2 an hour to view tapes at the archive and $15 per tape hour for duplicate tapes. Those borrowing a tape sign a statement promising not to copy or rebroadcast it.

The archive makes available tapes compiled by subject matter for $30 per tape hour.

Simpson said the collection will assume greater importance as years pass.

"I just didn't see how future historians can study what happened in this country without studying how it was reported on television," he said.

Rebel Express making second stop in El Paso

By BOB DILLON

EL PASO -- It's stop No. 2 Friday night for Coach Gil Bartosh and his commented Bartosh. The Panthers average 220 pounds per man in the line on defense and 218 on the offensive unit, according to the scouting reports."They (Austin) run out on an unbalanced Wishbone offense and will be hard to defense. We probably won't see anything like it the rest of the season, "added Bartosh. Edwin Cardwell, a 6-foot-3, 265-

Center Ron Cotton is no small one either, tipping the scales at 230 pounds for the Border City outfit which lost to El Paso Eastwood, 20-12 last week, thanks to two bad snaps on punts that handed the Troopers two gift touchdowns.

WHILE MCCOWAN, Gary Butler and Doug Crawford, graded out highly on offense for the Rebels last week, Bartosh and his staff were pleased with the play of Paul Speight, John White and Michael McCrea on de-

'We made a lot of mistakes, but I feel like it was a pretty good showing for an opener, "quipped the new Lee headmaster.

Lee has played two close ball games the last two seasons with the Panthers, winning 14-7 here in 1976 and 12-7 last year in Midland so Bartosh expects a tough game Friday night. "We seem to get lots of penalties here in El Paso and last week was the first time any team of mine had more than 100 yards in penalties in an opener.

Bartosh has to be pleased with the overall team showing last week, but did express come concern about the kicking game which wasn't too spectacular against the Tigers.

Brigade tries Pups tonight in JV action

The Robert E. Lee Stonewall Brigade tangles with the Mid-land High Bullpups at 7 p.m. today in Memorial Stadium in home openers for both Tall City junior varsity football teams.

Coaches Ernie Johnson and Tim Whalen sent their Brigade against the Snyder JV last Saturday morning in Snyder and took it on the chin, 24-6 while the Bullpups opened in Pecos, losing by a score of 9-3, so both will be seeking their first wins of the season tonight.
Coaches John Howell and J.C.

Gotcher hope that the Bullpups bounce back after being shut down with only a field goal in the Pecos game.

Last season, the two Tall City rivals played three times, with the Bullpups coming out on top all three times. This year, however, they will play today and in the season finale which is Nov.

In other JV action tonight,

OHS plays Odessa Ector in W.T.

Tornadoes to battle Andrews in another tough headliner

By STEVE O'BRIEN R-T Sports Writer

They say when it rains it pours and coach Julian Bush and the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes must thinking along that line as they prepare for the renewal of their long-standing rivalry with Andrews Friday. It will be the home opener for the Tors and it will no doubt be a relief to get back in Lamesa after last week's disaster in Pecos. Pecos rained on Lamesa to the tune of 46-0 and it looks like the storm warnings could be out again this week.

Andrews comes into town hot off a convincing 27-7 blitz of Big Spring in their opener and that has to be a boost to the Mustangs who must still be considered a bit of a question mark.

New York Yankees right where they ought to be

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took the New York Yankees 144 games, but the World Champions are back where they say they expected to be all along — first place.

The Yankees took over the top spot in the American League East for the first time this season Wednesday night with a 7-3 victory over Detroit. Boston, which had led the division since May 23 and once held a 14-game lead on New York, dropped one-half game back when it lost to Cleveland

"It was just a matter of time before we took over first place," said rookie pitcher Jim Beattie, who allowed just three hits in 6 1-3 innings before yielding to relief ace Rich Gossage.

"I knew we'd be in first place," added Mickey Rivers who, along with Lou Piniella, tripled in a four-run fourth inning that keyed the Yankee win. "I just didn't know if we'd keep

It has been the Red Sox who have been falling of late, however. While New York has won 35 of 49 games since July 25, when Manager Bob Lemon took over, including a four-game sweep of the Red Sox in Boston last weekend, Don Zimmer's Sox have dropped 11 of their last 14.

HOUSTON (AP) - University of Houston football Coach Bill Yeoman says Danny Davis will probably be nervous in the season opener against Memphis State Saturday but adds

"I'm going to start him anyway." Davis will be backed up by Delrick Brown, who filled in last year while Davis was recovering from a shoulder

Crane notched one up in the win column last week with a 14-7 decision over Denver City. Marfa also came away unscathed in their opener, drop-ping Van Horn 18-13.

zier's corner, is well aware of the Ali mystique.

'Anytime Ali throws one punch, he still might get credit for three," Benton said Wednesday.

But the mystique won't help Ali if Spinks is in good condition, said Benton. "The key is condition. I've only been here two weeks. I can't tell you how hard he's been training before." But the former middleweight contender said he has seen indications that Spinks was reaching peak condition, such as snapping at aides.

Benton thinks Ali is in shape, but 'he's in 36-year-old shape" and if Spinks is physically ready "it wouldn't surprise me if he stopped

Vermeil hoping for first win against Saints

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A guy with a hole in his beard may be Dick Vermeil's ace in the hole as the struggling Philadelphia Eagles seek their first win of the season against the New Orleans Saints Sunday.

John Sciarra is a rookie free safety regarded by some as one of the best National Football League prospects in that position in many years. But he's also capable of playing offense, having quarterbacked Vermeil's 1975 UCLA team to a Rose Bowl victory over Ohio State.

"I'd like the defenses to worry about Sciarra coming in at quarterback," Vermeil said Wednesday as his 0-2 squad prepared for its first trip to the New Orleans Superdome.

'Fred Bruney (Eagles backfield coach) thinks Sciarra is the best young safety prospect he's ever coached," Vermeil said. "He might be playing there now regularly if he hadn't been hurt for four weeks (in training camp).

Last week Sciarra replaced Eagle quarterback Ron Jaworski for one down against Washington, and the option play failed because of a missed

"It wasn't something we'd really worked on," Vermeil said in the postmortem of the 35-30 loss to the Redskins. "Just a play we spent 15 minutes on. With one more week's work on it John could have made the pitch. It's a big play. All it takes is coaching, time and work.

"I think the option can be effective in the National Football League. There's room for things that are different. It makes the defenses look for other things.

"I'd like to do some things other teams in the league don't do. But you can't be creative until you're sound.

And that means, for Vermeil, getting the offense and defense clicking

Sciarra, in his safety post, was burned by inexperience in the Washington defeat, getting sucked out of position in a play that went for a touchdown that proved to be the game

Pruitt hurt, on crutches

BEREA, Ohio (AP) - Rookie Larry Collins has yet to carry the ball from scrimmage in a National Football League game, but he'll be starting in place of Greg Pruitt if the Cleveland Browns' star running back can't play Sunday in Atlanta.

Pruitt, who has gained 226 yards in 44 carries so far this year, has been hobbling around the Browns' Baldwin-Wallace College training facilities on crutches this week. But he's still hoping that icepacks and continued treatment will reduce swelling in his severely bruised left calf to allow him to play against the Falcons.

"I've never missed a game yet," the 5-foot-10, 190-pound veteran said. Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano said he talked it over with offensive backfield coach Jim Garrett and decided Collins would get the call if Pruitt is unavailable.

Redskin fullback John Riggins took a handoff from quarterback Joe Theismann and started to sweep left

"You're taught to read, run or pass," said Sciarra. "We were in a rotating zone, and when the ball was handed off to the fullback I went out of my rotation. At that moment he (Riggins) pitched the ball back.'

Theismann took the ball and threw 37 yards for a touchdown to Danny Buggs who had raced past Sciarra.

"I'm not going to make any excuses," said Sciarra who was converted to the defense in 1976 when he played in the Canadian Football League and was Rookie of the Year with the Columbia Lions.

"It fooled the heck out of me." About that hole in his beard? That came about after he was blocked savagedly from the blind side in the Redskin game, getting a cut under the chin.(The trainer cut away the beard to stitch up the wound.

Ponies favored to defeat Tors

By STEVE O'BRIEN R-T Sports Writer

Before the start of football season a lot of people who happened to take a look at Lamesa's opening schedule couldn't help but raise their eyebrows a bit. With a varsity squad of around 28, only four returning lettermen and a new head coach a schedule that opened up with Pecos and Andrews appeared murderous.

Head Coach Julian Bush was well aware his young troops had to face a couple of powerhouses in the early going, but he and his Golden Tornadoes were more than willing to face the challenge. "A lot of people kid us about opening up with Pecos and Andrews," Bush said before the season's start, "but I believe it's going to help us to start out playing people that are

Well, with only the first week out of the way, it's been apparent the schedule was just as tough (or tougher) than everyone thought it would be. In their first time out last week the Tors watched Pecos roll up 404 total yards en route to 46-0 win. Lamesa's offense was also ground to a halt in Pecos, managing only 110 yards of total of-

It wasn't exactly a pleasant experience for Bush or the Golden Tors. 'When you get beat 46-0, there's not a whole lot you can say," Bush said.

Andrews is the opponent Friday and if that isn't enough on it's face value, Lamesa has some other things to worry about. Bush expects to go into the game with a varsity squad of "around 21 guys." And, star linebacker Armando Morales will likely miss action with a hip pointer. If you know much about football tell right off that 21 guys isn't even enough for a scrimmage. And, with that situation, there's just not much room for injuries, especially injuries to stars. That makes things tough. "Sure, it makes it real tough," Bush said. "But we're a young team and we

and a little bit about math, you can just need to learn how to play and have some patience.' So what will Lamesa have to do against Andrews? "Not make blunders and play tougher," was Bush's simple response. 'We're trying to get a program established and get the kids to be competitive," Bush said. "Once we learn those things we'll have a good football team.'

No doubt they will.

victims, common decency. In the Oakland-San Diego game, the winning touchdown was scored when quarterback Kenny Stabler, in the process of being mugged, simply rolled the ball toward the Chargers goal and tight end Dave Casper did the rest, applying a series of gentle dropkicks until the ball was in the end zone, where he fell on it for the game-saving touchdown. IF MEMORY serves, that was a ploy the colleges outlawed back in the 1930's when Larry Kelley, the All-America end for Yale, drop kicked a fumble half the length of the field and then recovered it in the end zone for a touchdown that ended a winning

Then Monday night, Denver quar-terback Norris Weese rolled right with the football with 11 seconds showing on the clock and the Broncos trailing the Minnesota Vikings, 9-6. Weese was lost in a maze of purple jersies, still trying to make up his mind whether to run or pass. Although Denver had no timeouts left, the clock was stopped in accord with a vague rule. This, although there was no indication that the Vikings were unnecessarily delaying proceedings. Three seconds were left, hardly enough time for a team to lineup and kick a field goal, if the clock had been started promptly once the ball was placed ready for play.

The action of the officials was so frantic, it was almost as though they were desperate to get in one more play for personal reasons, whatever they might have been.

DENVER KICKED the field goal and forced the overtime and, although the Vikings eventually won, it is little wonder that the usually stoic Vikings coach Bud Grant was so angry that he had to be restrained by some of players.

We suppose the resulting howl will result in renewed demands for the use of instant-replay to "assist" the officials, however, replays hardly would have solved either situation.

It's one thing to call a bang-bang play and stick by your decision, right or wrong, although the official may be villified for it when after two days of careful scrutiny of the reruns the second-guessers finally agree that he might have been wrong. Pay for women still below men

WASHINGTON (AP) — The talk of women moving into higher paying "men's jobs" for the most part has been just that - only talk - according to the latest figures from the Labor Department.

Women working full-time earned an average of $5,000 a year less than men in most big cities in 1975, according to a survey released Tuesday. And labor economist Howard Hayghe called the difference in men's and women's wages "quite consistent over a long period of time.

"Annual data back to the mid-1950s show women's earnings have averaged between 58 percent and 64 percent of men's," Hayghe said.

He said employed women have stayed mostly in clerical and service jobs, which are generally lower paying than the posts held by men. "Even when they enter the professional-technical occupation group, women are concentrated as teachers, nurses and occupations that are relatively poorer paying than traditional male jobs such as lawyers and doctors,' he added. "The movement of women into male-dominated occupations has tended to be very slow."

The study says the national median income was $12,770 for men and $7,531 for women. For those with college educations, the gap was even wider with men earning $17,891 and women $10,861.

Median income means half earn more and half

The Labor figures show that between 50 percent and 60 percent of women over 16 had jobs in most parts of the country, while 77 percent to 87 percent of men were employed.

The narrowest gap between men's and women's earnings was in the East-South Central states, where earnings for both sexes were lowest.

In those states - Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi — median income was $10,747 for men and $6,517 for women.

The biggest difference, $6,013, was in the Pacific states, where both sexes made the most money — a median of $14,281 for men and $8,268 for women. That area consists of Washington, Oregon, California, Alaska and Hawaii.

Local taxing units feeling economy push

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

From New England town meetings to Midwest budget hearings, local officials are feeling the sting of Proposition 13, as protesters take aim at what they consider unnecessary spending and unfair tax

A survey by The Associated Press and its member newspapers found that the casualties and potential casualties of anti-spending sentiment range from high school football to shopping centers. Tax assess-ments are under appeal; tax assessors are under

Most of the efforts are far smaller in scope than the well-organized drive that led Californians to approve Proposition 13, providing a 57 percent cut in property taxes. The California vote touched off similar statewide drives in about a dozen areas. It also helped crystalize public discontent over pocketbook issues.

In Kingston, Mass., a small community south of Boston, tax bills soared last year because of a property revaluation. This year, 1,350 people turned out for the July 15 town meeting and rejected every increase in spending that was proposed.

In Council Bluffs, Iowa, 300 persons appeared at a June 19 hearing on the Pottawattamie County budget, protesting a proposed 60 percent boost in property taxes. The state appeals board subsequent-ly cut the increase to 20 percent and two taxpayer groups have been formed to monitor spending and push for change.

THERE ARE NUMEROUS other examples of officials backing down from planned spending or tax boosts because of public opposition or the threat of it. Among them:

—A group called Concerned Citizens successfully lobbied the county commission in Williamson County, Tenn., to reject a school budget that would have required a tax increase.

-The West Hartford, Conn., town council rescinded a proposed budget increase after two retired businessmen gathered more than 3,000 signatures demanding a public referendum on the issue.

-Cumberland County, N.J., freeholders cited Proposition 13 as the reason for their decision to abandon plans to acquire a golf course for the county recreation department.

—Hundreds of Gorham, Maine, residents turned up at town meetings, chanting "Cut the budget, cut the budget." In a July 25 referendum, voters re-scinded a $3.9 million budget which had been ap-proved by the town council and school committee. based on a tax rate of $16.90 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. Now, officials are working on a new budget, based on a tax rate of $15 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

TAX INCREASES are being rejected by the voters, even when a rise in one levy would be offset

Nineteen Kansas cities and counties proposed sales tax increases to the voters in Aug. 1 elections. "In most of these instances, it was a clear choice, with a commitment on the part of the city for substantial property tax reductions," said Ernie Mosher, executive director of the League of Kansas Municipalities. Despite the commitment, 14 of the osals were turned

In Houghton County, Mich., the defeat of a pro-posed property tax increase led to the layoff of 80 county highway workers. Nearby, in the towns of Manistique and Stephenson, high school football was eliminated after voters rejected two separate tax

A high school remodeling project in Columbus, Neb., was the victim of voter rejection of a proposed

$1.3 million bond issue. The fate of a propsed income tax in Jackson, Ohio, is still in doubt. On July 17, the city council voted to impose a 1 percent tax, starting Oct. 1. Less than a month later, faced with petitions calling for a referendum on the issue, the council repealed the tax. Now, however, it has decided to risk the referendum Nov. 7

A NOV. 7 VOTE also is expected in Wausau, Wis., where a campaign is under way to forbid the city council from spending any tax money to acquire land for a proposed downtown shopping mall.

The tightfisted mood of the public is evident even when taxes are not immediately involved. In Porter County, Ind., for example, strong opposition has developed to the formation of a county park system. Protesters claim the system would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to develop and maintain.

Not all the efforts have been successful. In Anchor-

Not all the efforts have been successful. In Anchorage, Alaska, a group called the Libertarian Party submitted a petition to amend the city charter to require voter approval of any new or increased taxes
A judge ruled, however, that the proposal could not appear on the ballot because it would unconstitutionally limit the municipality's ability to levy taxes to guarantee bond debts.

Another unsuccessful drive was in Richmond, Va., where the Independent Taxpayers' Association failed in its efforts to force a referendum on a plan by the city council to sell bonds to finance a shopping mall complex.

Tax collectors and assessors have come under new

THE BENTON COUNTY, Wash., Board of Equal-THE BENTON COUNTY, Wash., Board of Equalization, for example, has received 385 appeals of its 1978 appraisals; there were only about 120 last year. In Sherman and Palestine, Texas, suits by taxpayers have temporarily blocked the certification of 1978 tax rolls which reflect increased valuations.

Several hundred residents of Carrollwood, Fla., near Tampa, have vowed to sue the county property appraiser over his practice of reassessing only part of the county each year.

Winnebago County, Ill., taxpayers filed suit against the board of review, challenging the way property taxes were computed. A circuit court judge agreed with the plaintiffs and ordered refunds totalling $77,000. "You can fight city hall," said Janice Thorpe of the Winnebago County Taxpayers Federation.

In York County, S.C., the tax assessor himself is a protester. Ike Oates says a 1976 law designed to make assessments fairer for farmers will result in sharp boosts in residential tax bills and he says he will resign rather than collect the boost. "Tax assessors are getting blamed for a lot of stuff we have absolutely no control over," he said. "I'm not going to sit here and take the heat."

By PAT LEISNER

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Two former top officials of Florida Power Corp. were arrested today on charges of conspiring to manipulate the price of fuel oil sold to the utility during the nation's 1973-74 oil crisis.

Angel Perez, 70, former president of the St. Petersburg-based utility, and Richard Raymond, 63, who recently retired as executive vice president, were among seven persons indicted today by a federal grand jury in the aftermath of the Arab oil embargo.

The FBI said it was one of the nation's first criminal indictments in connection with the Arab oil crisis. The other five individuals, from Houston, Texas, are oilmen or oil industry consultants. Perez, charged with one count of conspiracy in the 12-count indictment, surrendered himself to his attorney. Raymond, charged on all 12 counts, was arrested by FBI agents.

The indictment accuses them of conspiracy, mail fraud and fraud by wire, in an alleged daisy chain system to manipulate the price of fuel oil to reap excessive profits. It was alleged that the overcharges, reportedly totalling as much as $8.5 million, were paid for by Florida Power customers in the form of monthly fuel adjustment charges on their bills. Also indicted were James B. Clark, president of Larcon Petroleum Corp. of Houston; Ronald Pruitt, 36, a Houston attorney and part-owner of Larcon Petroleum Inc.; John L. Burns, 50, a former executive with Charter International Oil Corp. of Houston; Walter L. Ballard, a former officer of Signal Oil and Gas Co. of Houston; and Raymond F. Granlund, 73, a Houston-based oil broker.

The five from Houston also were charged on all 12 counts. Perez, if convicted, faces a maximum of five years in federal prison. The others, if convicted on all 12 counts, face a maximum of 60 years each in federal prison.

Philip McNiff, FBI agent in charge at Tampa, said the arrests represented the culmination of an eight-month federal investigation. "This case is indicative of the FBI's commitment to the investigation of highly complex white collar crime-type cases,"

Stock market oses

NEW YORK (AP) Uneasiness over inflation and the struggling dollar helped send stock prices into a broad decline today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 4.76 at 894.84.

Losers outpaced gainers by better than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The dollar took a sharp drop gainst leading foreign currencies Wednesday, and lost a bit more ground in early activity today.

G. William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told a seminar in Washington on Wednesday that the dollar's slump had added a full point to the U.gs. inflation rate over the last 12 months. Analysts said traders also were worried that the Federal Reserve's weekly eport on credit conditions at the close today would show a substantial rise in the money

Monetary economists consider rapid growth in the money supply a primary factor behind the nation's high inflation rate. Most gambling stocks continued to move against the market trend, adding to their dramatic gains of recent days. The class A stock of Resorts International, the operator of the first casino in Atlantic City, N.J., climbed 8 to 175 after a surge of better than 32 points in the last two Caesars World, which held ground-breaking ceremonies Wednesday for a casino in Atlantic City, gained 2 to 61% on the NYSE.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .23 to 59.83, and the Amex market value index eased .01 to 176.86.

Volume on the Big Board came to 15.71 million shares at noontime, down from 18.35 million at the same point Wednesday.

Escapees may head for Texas

MARIANNA, Ark. (AP) — Authorities established roadblocks on all highways leading to Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma today in hopes of capturing two Tennessee prison escapees who have two hostages.

Arkansas State Police Capt. Buddy Thompson said the two men were believed to be headed west after eluding law enforcement officers in northeast Ar-

Two other escapees were captured at a road block outside the community of Hoxie in northeast Arkansas this morning. They were identified as George Bonds, 24, and Floyd Ray Brewer, 28. Still at large were Larry Chism, 33, and Ronald Lyons, 30. Authorities for a time believed Chism might be headed for North Little Rock Memorial Hospital for treatment of wounds he received while escaping from prison. Chism reportedly had part of his left thumb shot off and was wounded in the side. Bonds and Brewer were captured following a high-speed chase along U. S. 67 in Lawrence Coun-

State police said a state trooper spotted the men and began following them, and the two men attempted to flee. When the men reached the roadblock, they rammed a car belonging to a sheriff's deputy and were captured without incident moments later.
Two pistols and a shotgun were recovered from the escapees' car, state police said. State police said Bonds suffered head injuries in the collision and was taken to University Medical Center in Little Rock for treatment. Officers said Bonds and Brewer told them the other two escapees had an elderly Lonoke County couple taken hostage earlier in the day. The couple had been identified as Mr. and Mrs. John B. King of Woodlawn, a Central Arkansas

The inmates had flown from Dickson, Tenn., where they gained their freedom Wednesday afternoon while on a field trip at a bowling alley. They burst out of the building's bathroom firing two shotguns, disarmed prison guards after a brief ex-change of fire and grabbed four .38-caliber pistols. An officer, another prisoner and one of the escapees were slightly wounded. They then grabbed the first of three hostages, two of whom they let go. The hostage they still held was Richard Rutledge a Lee County farmer, who heard the airplane land near his home and drove out in his pickup to offer help. Sheriff Robert May said, "From what we can gather they got in and forced him to take them some-

Authorities sealed area roads, called in the FBI and started a manhunt.

Tax group may ask balanced budget or new constitution

By W. DALE NELSON

WASHINGTON (AP) - An organization that wants a balanced federal budget says it might present Congress next year with the first demand for a national convention to rewrite the Constitution backed by two-thirds of the states.

If it were held, such a convention would be the first since the Constitution was drafted in 1787, and some consitutional scholars fear it could turn into a noholds-barred affair encompassing various efforts to alter the document that is the basis of U.S. govern-own, and it thinks Congress will indeed initiate a balanced budget amendment.

The Taxpayers Union wants an amendment requiring the government to balance its budget within four years of ratification — and to keep it balanced except in times of national emergency.

Amendments to the Constitution can be originated either by two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress or by a convention called by Congress after receiving

Dallas fireman real commuter

KIOWA, Okla. (AP) - City workers dream of owning a farm or ranch. The farmer sees the advantage of a job in the city.

Roy Chapman, fireman-rancher, is combining both even though it means driving from his ranch in this southeastern Oklahoma farm country to Dallas, where he is a fireman.

The 46-year-old Chapman drives the 155-mile route to put in every third day for 24 hours on duty at Station No. 16 in Dallas, then back to the farm. He has been commuting for six years after deciding to move with his two sons from Grand Prairie, Texas, to the Oklahoma ranch, which he had been tending to only on weekends.

Chapman had decided he wanted to free himself and sons of the hectic city life and at the same time give his sons an opportunity to practice their rodeo skills by moving to the country.

The hardest part, he concedes, is going back to "It's not too bad coming back when I'm thinking

Chapman, a 19-year veteran of the fire department, finds the job challenging. "No two fires or calls are alike," he said.

They also work with their father in the soybean fields and raise calves.

To go into effect, amendments must be ratified by three-fourths of state legislatures or state conventions. Congress decides which.

For all but one amendment, Congress has chosen legislative ratification. Repeal of prohibition was ratified by conventions.

Congress has received more than 300 applications for constitutional conventions, ranging from the first demand for a Bill of Rights in 1789 to recent proposals for world government and school prayer amendments - but none has had the backing of enough

The Taxpayers Union says chances are its request will be different. It now has approval of 22 of the 34 legislatures required. And, says the group's director, Charles S. Crawford, "It is quite possible that It says its real aim is to force Congress to act on its next year we will be able to get the necessary 12 states."

We could. We could," adds Democratic State Sen. Jim Clark of Ellicott City, Md., who heads the Taxpayers Union lobbying effort. At any rate, he says, "we're going to get pretty close to it."

But, Clark says, "I don't think Congress is going to let it go to a convention. I think they will go ahead and give us an amendment. They can control an

There is some precedent for his view. In 1912, when 30 states asked for conventions to get direct election of senators, Congress proposed such an amendment. However, Congress did not act after 32 states asked for a convention on apportionment of state legislatures after the 1964 Supreme Court one-person, one-vote ruling.

Sharks attract people to San Diego's Sea World

By ROBERT LOCKE

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The very thought of the sinister dorsal fin rising from the water — the stuff of legends and, more recently, movies is enough to send the bravest swimmer splashing pell-mell for shore. But at a safe distance, swimmers and nonswimmers alike are fascinated by the shark. Witness the $2 million shark exhibit opened this summer at Sea World aquarium here and the 18 percent rise in aquarium attendance for which the sharks are mostly cre-

Sharks are dangerous, of course.

That's part of their fascination. But they are also among the world's ol-dest creatures. They are actually picky eaters. Some swim in fresh

"They're magnificent, beautiful animals - not something that should be killed on sight. They've kind of gotten a bum rap," said Raymond Keyes, curator for Sea World and an authority on sharks.

Keyes concedes sharks are imminently suited for killing. But he believes an irrational, almost primitive fear — the revulsion usually reserved for snakes - keeps most people from appreciating the shark's near-perfect adaptation for its role in the natural order of the sea.

"Sharks are the lions and tigers of the ocean — the top carnivores," he said. "They prey on most things and very few things prey on them."

Almost any shark can be dangerous to swimmers in certain situations, Keyes said, "but you have to remember that there's nothing personal about it. It's not like they're seeking people out to attack them.

'Usually the shark is defending his territory. Or he makes a mistake and thinks the man is something else flopping around in the water. He thinks the man looks like something to

A few species — such as the great white, villian of the movie "Jaws"are agressive by nature. But, said Keyes, "in many instances, when a shark sees something he doesn't un-derstand or something that frightens him, the shark will flee." Sharks have a major role in preserving ecological balance. In their search for food, sharks impose the law of natural selection, removing the sick and the weak of other species so only the fittest survive. Keyes said that with about 30 sharks of nearly a dozen species in the tank here, workers have to make sure that the sharks don't follow all their natural habits - such as imposing their own pecking order.

"There is usually a top animal and we see this in our enclosure as well," he said. "But in here you have a condition with very confused territories. When there's agression between animals in the wild, one will usually flee to another area."

But in the tank, there is nowhere else to go "so we're very careful not to stir things up."

That especially applies at feeding time, when each shark is fed individually with long-handled tongs. Keyes said the animals receive frozen fish and squid that are fortified with vitamin supplements.

"Contrary to what we are led to believe," Keyes said, "the shark is a very, very delicate animal. They're very selective in what they will eat."

Keyes said the shark tank at the profit-making Sea World — billed as the largest collection of captive sharks — is intended to educate the public about the shark and to serve as a research center.

"To do scientific research on any animal," he said, "you have to be able to keep that animal in your la-boratory. This is our laboratory and it's a rather sophisticated one.'

Karpov challenger Moscow non-person

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet newspaper readers know that the darling of Soviet chess, world champion Anatoly Karpov, is facing a challenge to his title in the Philippines. But his opponent, Soviet defector Vicktor Korchnoi appears as a shadowy and unsavory character, a man without a

The Soviet press can barely bring itself to talk about Korchnoi. He is a Leningrad native like Karpov, but the press never mentions that Korchnoi was a Soviet citizen until his defection two years ago.

Defectors immediately become non-persons here, and Korchnoi's semi-final victory in the world championships over another Leningrad native, Boris Spassky, was an embarrassment to the Russians and received little press attention. A victory over Karpov would be even more difficult to swallow.

Tass has used Korchnoi's full name only twice - when it recorded his two wins over Karpov - and the stories accompanying the moves are brief and unadorned.

Since the score, however, now stands 4-2 in Karpov's favor and he needs only two more wins to take the $350,000 winner's purse, the Russians are beginning to relax and allow themselves some public anger over Korchnoi's off-the-board antics. The loser in the match, which began July 18, gets $200,000.

According to reports in the Soviet press, the challenger's behavior has been termed "impermissibly rude ... deplorable ... offensive ... tactless and arrogant ... unseemly and simply

Camp David reeks with diplomacy

By FRANK CORMIER

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) - That President Carter could keep the leaders of Israel and Egypt sequestered here for more than a week is a tribute to Carter's diligence at peacemaking and to the collective genius of those who planned and built Camp David.

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Can you imagine what might have happened had Egypt's Anwar Sadat been housed farther away from Carter's luxurious lodge than Israel's Menachem Begin, or vice versa? Happily, that was not a problem.

During the 40 years that this presidential country club was built and improved, comfortable lodges were added and, from time to time, refurbished. In the process, two VIP dwellings were erected equidistant from the president's Aspen Lodge.

So Prime Minister Begin's headquarters at Birch Lodge and President Sadat's at Dogwood Lodge were both almost exactly 200 feet from Carter's front door.

And, ideal for a summit at which Carter acted as mediator between two historic adversaries, the triangular housing arrangement put a little more distance - about 300 feet between the front doors of Egypt's president and Israel's prime minis-

As Begin and Sadat arrived last week, an incident occurred which dramatized how little Egypt and Israel know about each other despite their common frontier.

A U.S. Secret Service agent found on the grounds here a notebook with Hebrew writing on the cover. He passed it along to an Israeli Embassy official who had come up from Wash-

The Israeli inspected the contents of the notebook and announced, "The writing inside is in Arabic."

Reporters who had flown to the United States with Begin crowded around to try to decipher whatever secrets they might glean from its "Arabic" contents.

One of them spoiled the fun.
"That's not Arabic — it's Japanese," he declared.

Sure enough, a Japanese corre-spondent in Begin's party stepped forward to claim the notebook.

When Sadat was driven away from Camp David for an unannounced automobile tour of the Maryland countryside, word of his departure quickly leaked out and touched off a press

One reporter accosted every passer-by he encountered in rural villages and asked, "Have you seen Anwar Sadat?"

Predictably, a common response was, "Anwar Who?"

Carter and his press secretary, Jody Powell, imposed such a tight secrecy lid on summit proceedings that reporters had to exercise considerable ingenuity in their unending quest for things to write about.

An Israeli correspondent, despairing of "leaks" to competitors that he couldn't match, sent his newspaper a lengthy account of his "briefing" from a tree outside the press center, which he identified as Jimmy Red

Who killed Peter Campbell solid secret

Who is the real assassin on ABC's "Soap" who has gone free while Jessica Tate languishes in jail after her unjust conviction for the murder of the womanizing tennis pro?

At the conclusion of Jessica's trial last March 28, which marked the end of the first season of "Soap," we learned she was really innocent and that the killer was one of five people.

After nine months of suspense —
Peter was shot, strangled, stabbed, bludgeoned and drowned on the Dec. 6 episode — the answer will be revealed during the one-hour season premiere of "Soap" Thursday night at 10

Not within memory has a television audience been kept hanging for such a long time.

Here are the suspects:

—Jessica's husband, Chester, enraged over her affair with Peter.
—Her daughter, Corinne, living with Peter. She may have learned he had two-timed her with her mother.
—Her brother-in-law, Bert Camp-

The identity of the killer has been kept a tightly guarded secret. Hundreds of relatives and friends have tried to pry it out of the cast and crew, but no one is talking.

"It was very tempting to reveal it.
We were besieged," said Paul Junger
Witt, who is executive producer with Tony Thomas. "My own son worked on me for three straight days. I went to the doctor and the receptionist told me, 'If you don't want to wait, tell me who killed Peter.""

Until the taping of the opening show, only a few people knew the killer's identity. In fact, it wasn't decided until a few weeks before the end of the season who the killer would be. At the time of Peter's murder no one — not even creator and writer Susan Harris — knew who it would Only those who absolutely had to know were told. The script was kept in a safe.

Because the show is taped before a studio audience — who could tell their friends — red herring scenes were written and taped to throw the audience off. In fact, up until premiere time they were still taping phony scenes that will never be aired, to keep the spectators confused.

Witt said that should the secret leak out they were prepared to switch the identity of the killer and use the red herring scenes.

Originally, Witt, who also produced the hit TV movie "Brian's Song," said they had planned to just end the season with Jessica's conviction without revealing that she was innocent.

"We thought people would know she wasn't capable of murder," he said. "But we were forced by our studio audience to say so and name the five suspects. They hooted and stomped and I thought they were going to come over the railing after us."

Writer in 'Hurricane,' but thinking of 'Dick Tracy'

By JERRY BUCK

BORA BORA (AP) - Screenwriter Lorenzo Semple Jr. was on this South Pacific island to make last-minute changes needed in the script of "Hurricane," but, strangely enough, he also had "Dick Tracy" on his mind.

"It's unusual for a writer to be on location," said Semple, "but the physical problems of making a movie like 'Hurricane' are so difficult. They've had a lot of trouble and have had to make changes. So it's very useful to have a writer here. You have to adapt the script to something that works.'

But when he's not revising the remake of the 1937 "Hurricane," or serving as its executive producer, Semple has another script in his typewriter.

"I'm supposed to be working on the movie 'Dick Tracy,' if I haven't been fired for my slowness," he said. "We hope to shoot it in Chicago this fall. The producer came down to see what I'd done so far, and it was nothing."

The "Dick Tracy" film will be based on the comic strip detective created by Chester Gould, and is to include such characters as Gravel Gertie, B.O. Plenty, Junior, and such infamous villains as Flattop, Mr. and Mrs. Prune, the Mole, Jerome Short,

B.B. Eyes and Mr. Big.
Part of the problem of working on the movie, Semple explained, is that a strange lassitude overtakes you on this French Polynesian island 165 miles northwest of Tahiti. He said, "It's like a great tranquilizer surrounded by a coral reef. Which it is as far as bringing brain power to bear on anything. You just find yourself putting everything off."

Even so, he has the movie pretty much in mind, if not on paper.

"It will be set in the late '30s or early '40s," he said. "Dick Tracy will stand for the old established values. It won't be campy at all. The villains will not be as freakish. It will be closer to 'Chinatown,' let's say, than 'Batman.' We'll treat Dick Tracy as a serious, first-rate, underpaid detec-

"We hope to have a real story between him and Tess. I mean a genuine, emotional story. It'll have a lot of action in it and a vast amount of violence, which I personally don't like that much. I mean, people will get shot. I was reading that big volume of 'Dick Tracy' and a lot of mayhem was done to him."

The comic strip's wristwatch radio will also figure in the story - but without the little sign that still points it out 20 years after its introduction. 'Junior will be fiddling with this device he's making," he said. "He will be a sort of young Tom Swift. And it will be used for the very first time at the climax of the movie. At a critical moment.

"He'll be working on it but we'll never know exactly what it is. At the last minute Junior stuffs it into Tracy's pocket and Tracy pulls it out at the last minute, hopefully for a Semple was brought to "Hurricane" by producer Dino De Laurentiis after the movie had gone through several stages. Earlier, he had written "Three Days of the Condor" and "King Kong" for De Laurentiis.

Earlier, the movie had been set in the Carribean and had supertankers crashed up on islands run by ecology freaks. But, Semple said De Lauren-tiis believed the day of the straight disaster film was over and wanted to put some psychological interest into

Soon after getting the assignment Semple was browsing in his library at his home in Aspen and chanced upon something about American Samoa. He said, "It was about Samoa being run by the American Navy in the 1920s and I thought: Here's the background to make the story viable."

He said the only connection he sees to the 1937 movie is "there's a love story and a hurricane." But here the love story has been changed from between two Polynesians to between an American girl - the daughter of the island's navy governor — and a Polynesian chieftain

'Really, this is a triangle," he said. "I don't mean to scare people, it's not a story of incest, but it's a triangle between a father, daughter and another man. The daughter's trying to break away from her father, who's in love with her.

"She psychologically chooses a native as the instrument that can overcome her father. The person he can't cope with. He can handle the young

Potato growers squaring off against General Foods' stuffin'

BOISE, Idaho (AP) - Tired of seeing TV husbands choose stuffing over mashed potatoes, America's spud growers are squaring off against Generai Foods to tell the world that potatoes "beat the stuffin' out of stuff-

The National Potato Promotion Board, a Denver-based association, decided recently to launch a campaign to counter the food packaging giant's widely shown commercial for its Stovetop Stuffing mix.

The ad presents a husband and wife who are given the choice of mashed potatoes or stuffing. She predicts he'll pick potatoes, but the husband chooses stuffing.

"At first, we took the attitude that they were mentioning potatoes so why should we worry," said Bob Mercer, promotion board executive director.

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A presidential plane carrying government officials and reporters crashed into a row of houses as it tried to land in a thunderstorm today and authorities said at least 32 persons were killed in the plane and on the ground.

Neither President Ferdinand E. Marcos nor his wife. Imelda, was aboard the air force plane, government spokesmen said. They said those aboard were members of Marcos' security staff and journalists returning from the northern Philippines after accompanying the president there on a visit this Marcos, visiting the area on the occasion of his 61st birthday, is expected to return south by car Friday, a presidential spokesman said.

Rescue workers said the twin-turboprop plane apparently hit a coconut tree before it plowed through the houses and crashed into a large pond and broke into pieces. An explosion also was report-

Opficials and rescue workers said variously there were between 21 and 32 persons aboard. Air Force Brig. Gen. Ernesto Bueno said 17 bodies were taken from the wreckage. Fifteen more bodies, many mangled and dismembered, were found inside the dozen wrecked houses, said Luis Marquez, 66, an official of the community government. He said more than 30 persons were carried to hospitals, many seriously injured.

Lt. Cmdr. Marciano Samarita, assistant public relations officer for the Defense Ministry, refused to identify any of the dead aboard the plane. But he said one of the survivors was Brig. Gen. Francisco Romualdez, special assistant to Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and a half-brother of Mrs.

Air force officers said it was possible more bodies would be found beneath the wreckage.

Three hours after the crash, rescuers in a rubber dinghy were still at the crumpled wreckage, search-Hundreds of persons milled around the crash site.

Bits of bodies were scattered about, especially in the low-income housing area where the plane first struck. An open briefcase, some torn mattresses and articles of clothing littered the area. Witnesses said they heard an explosion, then rushed into the rain and saw the plane in the water. The crash occurred at the height of a violent thunderstorm, with lightning, torrential rain and

The Fokker F-27 came to rest about 400 yards from Imelda Avenue, named after Marcos' wife, the governor of metropolitan Manila. She accompanied the president on his trip.

Ambulances could not reach the crash site because of recent flooding.

Eilberg accused of interest conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., whose telephone call to President Carter last November touched off a flap over the firing of federal prosecutor David Marston, is facing conflictof-interest allegations leveled by the House ethics committee.

The committee alleged Wednesday that Eilberg accepted favors and benefits of more than $100,000 from his law firm and two related firms "under circumstances which might be construed by reasonable persons as influencing the performance of his overnment duties.

Eilberg, while refusing to discuss specifics of the case, issued a statement denying any wrongdoing and expressed confidence that a full investigation will exonerate him.

The committee's "statement of alleged violations" provided few details about the charges. But sources close to the inquiry said they relate to work done by Eilberg's law firm for Hahnemann Hospital in Philadelphia while it was seeking federal funds.

Eilberg has been under investigation by a federal grand jury in Philadelphia in connection with the hospital's awarding of a lucrative contract to his law firm in 1975.

At that time, Hahnemann Hospital was obtaining $14.5 million in federal funds through the Community Services Administration to be used in building a new wing costing $65 million. Eilberg's law firm reportedly received $500,000 from the hospital for its services, five times as much as Hahnemann paid its previous law firm over a two-year period. Eilberg gained national attention when it was reported that he called Carter to seek removal of Marston, the Republican federal prosecutor in Philadelphia who was investigating the alleged involve-ment of Eilberg and Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., in the Hahnemann affair.

Carter and Attorney General Griffin Bell fired Marston early this year, but insisted they were unaware at the time that his investigation included Eilberg and Flood.

Flood, who has been indicted on charges of lying to a grand jury in an unrelated case, helped steer financing for the Hahnemann Hospital project through Congress.

Flood, like Eilberg, has repeatedly denied any wrongdoing in the case.

The committee's allegations are the first step in a process of determining whether Eilberg violated House rules. The congressman will have 21 days to respond to the charges.

Automaker indicted in death of youths

DETROIT (AP) - Ford Motor Co.'s indictment on criminal charges of "recklessly causing the death" of three teen-agers in connection with the crash of a Pinto automobile was greeted with silence by the auto giant's main competitors.

But lawyers said Wednesday's unprecedented homicide indictment by an Indiana grand jury set the stage for an intriguing court battle on a legally ill-defined point: Is an automaker guilty of killing a motorist when it had nothing to do with the accident?

Ford called the indictments "unwarranted," denied it had broken Indiana law and promised "appro-priate action" after it studied the indictment. The automaker would not elaborate.

Its chief competitors, General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp., refused to discuss even the general issue of criminal charges being brought because of an alleged auto safety defect.

The charge was handed down by a grand jury in Elkhart. Ind. in connection with a flow creek.

Elkhart, Ind., in connection with a flery crash of a Ford Pinto that killed three teen-agers. The jury said Ford knew the Pinto fuel tank was unsafe but did nothing about it.

The jury said the tanks were "recklessly designed and manufactured in such a manner as would likely cause (the Pinto) to flame and burn upon rear-end impact, and that the Ford Motor Co. had a legal duty to warn the general public." The indictment charged Ford with three counts of reckless homicide and one count of criminal reck-
