

Pain, danger ignored; Stella strokes shoreward

By JOHN PLATERO

ABOARD THE IDLE DAY (AP) — Stella Taylor, stung by poisonous jellyfish and menaced by roving sharks, stroked doggedly toward Florida today in her second attempt to become the first person to swim from the Bahamas.

The 46-year-old veteran stunt swimmer was reported somewhere southeast of Miami early today and aides expressed hope she could reach land sometime this morning.

But conflicting reports made it difficult to judge how far she was from land. On Monday, a navigational error allowed her to swim off course and cost her about a half day's effort, crew members said.

Miss Taylor's crew said she was making progress toward the North Miami Beach area. She began her 100-mile-plus journey Sunday at 10:40 a.m. EDT from a tiny island south of Bimini.

Miss Taylor's lower body was rendered useless Monday night as fatigue and cramps took their toll. Her powerful arms kept her at a steady pace, sometimes helped by Gulf Stream currents.

It was her second try at the unprecedented Bahamas-to-Florida swim. She got within 12 miles of shore in August, only to have shifting currents push her hopelessly off course.

Miss Taylor, a chipper native of Britain who spent 4½ years in a Buffalo, N.Y., convent, is not using a shark cage. Aides paddled alongside on surfboards, but floodlights used to keep her in sight at night also attracted sharks.

A pack of six sharks appeared at about 8 p.m. Monday. Five of the sharks were chased away by her crew, but one persisted, swimming in and out of the illuminated area.

Miss Taylor finally left the water for several minutes until the shark left. Her crew used explosive "bang sticks" to scare it away.

While out of the water, she developed a severe leg cramp.

Shortly before the sharks appeared, a Portuguese man-of-war wrapped its stinging tentacles around her, leaving her shrieking and writhing in pain. She left the water briefly for medication.

Exposure to salt water caused swelling of her mouth, tongue and face. Aide Joe Edwards said some skin was peeled off by exposure. She was shivering during the night and asked for warm ginger ale to drink.

Edwards said her usual 2 mph pace at times was pushed to over 5 mph by the Gulf Stream current. Before she swam into the current Monday, she had lost many miles because her crew was using outmoded navigational equipment and couldn't keep a steady course toward land.

Although Miss Taylor had said before the swim she did not want to be told of her position, Edwards told her Monday there were "current problems."

She replied calmly. "I thought so."

Plant blasts leave 4 dead

DENVER (AP) — A series of thundering explosions ripped through a Continental Oil Co. refinery today, killing at least four persons and injuring at least 11 others, police said.

Billowing fireballs rose over the white storage tanks of the refinery and bulk storage plant just northeast of Denver in Commerce City.

Several of the injured were hospitalized in serious or critical condition, and a Continental spokesman said damage could run to between $5 million and $10 million.

Robert Alexander, Continental's manager at the refinery and storage plant, said the initial explosion — heard throughout the Denver metropolitan area — was touched off by leaking flammable fumes. He said the source of the ignition was not known.

The Denver bomb squad was sent into the refinery area after the Adams County Sheriff's Department received a call from a man who said he was a Conoco employee and had placed a bomb near a storage tank.

However, police said no bomb was found.

Alexander said 13 men were working in the refinery when the blast occurred, at least nine of them in the area of the explosion. Some of the workers said they had noted leakage of fumes in the area before the blast, Alexander said.

An hour and a half after the first blast, the flames had subsided in the plant area. Firemen atop aerial ladders sent flat streams of water cascading on the main blaze, but brilliant orange flames continued to burst occasionally over the refinery structures.

The area resembled a war scene with hissing flames, chunks of twisted metal the size of car doors littering the ground and buildings with their sides and roofs blown out.

Interstate Highway 270, one-quarter mile north of the refinery, was closed to traffic as pieces of charred metal rained down on the roadway. Colorado Highway 85, east of the plant, also was closed. Residents reported broken windows and fragments of metal up to two miles from the scene.

Time becoming critical for parks plan formulation

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
R-T Staff Writer

Three months from now may be too late to set aside land for new parks in the fast-developing northwest section of Midland if action is not taken soon to set up a parks land acquisition policy.

Planning and Zoning Commission Chairman Robert Truitt Jr. Monday warned members of his commission and of the Parks and Recreation Commission of "the immediate need" to develop such a policy.

The two commissions met Monday in a special session to consider the parks problem and decided to let the city's legal department study an ordinance already on the books before recommending the City Council enforce it.

Dick Sikes, vice chairman of the Parks and Recreation Commission, explained the ordinance has not been enforced for the past several years.

If enforced by the City Council, the ordinance would require developers to set aside a piece of land in each development for a park, said Sikes.

The city then would have 12 months to purchase that piece of land at a price to be agreed upon between the city and developer, he said.

If the city does not purchase the land within the time limit, the developer can use the land in any way he chooses, according to Sikes.

Sikes said for the ordinance to be effective the City Council must adopt the plan and then set aside funds for land purchases.

Sikes said there is a master plan for parks in Midland.

"There was an attempt in the past to get a portion (of the plan) funded by a bond issue (in 1977), but it failed," he said.

"We're left with a plan that is basically unfunded. We're still trying to adhere to the philosophy of the plan without a budget."

The city Parks and Recreation Department has been allotted $25,000 for this fiscal year to purchase park land.

But "we can't carry out the concept

Drive won't effect aircraft project

BIG SPRING — A petition calling for a vote on this city's building of a $1.1 million, 90,000-square-foot hangar and offices for prospective aircraft modifications will not affect construction, Big Spring City Manager Harry Nagel said today.

He said a protest petition drive led by Jack Watkins of Big Spring has netted between 400 and 500 signatures. However, many of those who signed have since requested that their names be stricken from the petition, Nagel said today. He claimed some of the signers were given misinformation, such as unreasonable cost, about the construction.

Watkins, who owns rental property here, could not be reached this morning for comment. He had been summoned for petit jury duty.

The hangar is to be constructed at Big Spring Air Industrial Park in case Lockheed Aircraft Co. is awarded a multi-million dollar contract to modify the U.S. Navy version of the super-sonic McDonnell Aircraft Corp. F-4 Phantom II attack fighter.

The plane was the "workhorse" of U.S. air power in the Vietnam War, according to officials.

Lockheed is one of several major aircraft companies bidding for the contract, which is to be awarded in mid-December.

However, construction on the hangar is to begin soon or "we'll have to force the Lockheed contract," Nagel said today.

The hangar is to be built with a $1 million federal grant and approximately $400,000 in city money, said Nagel.

"We have to start on it now, so they (Lockheed) can get to use the building" by March of 1979, Nagel said.

Big Spring and Lockheed officials last December entered an agreement whereby Lockheed would modify the F-4 here should it get the Air Force or Navy modification contract.

Later, Lockheed lost to McDonnell Douglas in bidding for structural and electronic work on the Air Force version of the aircraft.

Should Lockheed not get the Navy contract, Nagel said, the city has "other prospects who are interested in the facility" on the former Webb Air Force Base, which was shut down last year in a Pentagon economy move.

"The future now, since they're not building new aircraft, is in aircraft modification," Nagel said.

Nagel said the Lockheed payroll here would amount to about $10 million annually over a 4½-year period. Lockheed rental on the hangar and other facilities at Air Industrial Park would virtually pay for the cost of the Chris Letchford is a jolly good Englishman who is putting a back up system into his career.

He has a notion that "something" might happen, which would knock him out of one line of work. And, behold, he would have another working routine by which to make a living.

He's studying "quantity surveying," which, when translated from British English to American English, means project management in the construction industry, at the University of Reading near London.

"This may sound strange," said the 20-year-old chap, who was over here for a summer holiday and banking job, "but I'm not going into quantity surveying. I'm going into flying."

Letchford, who at age 15 five years ago earned his wings as a glider pilot, plans to undergo pilot training with British Airways after he gets the bachelor's degree in 1980.

Unlike stateside civilian flight training, it'll not cost him a pence. Otherwise, so he said, he would stay in the spacious U.S. and fly.

"You have to pay for your flying over here, except for the military," said Letchford, "so I think I'll stick to

Webb County playing role in vote

By The Associated Press

A battle is on for the important South Texas vote between gubernatorial candidates Democrat John Hill and Republican Bill Clements as they argue over Hill's role in a 1975-76 Webb County grand jury probe into alleged corruption.

At a news conference Monday in Austin, Hill said published reports that he declined to investigate the Webb County allegations because he had "lots of friends in Laredo" were "totally false."

Hill called out Texas Ranger Ramiro Martinez, Laredo District Attorney Charles R. Borchers and Ray Bravence, a member of Hill's organized crime task force, to reinforce his stand. All had played an active part in the grand jury probe which indicted and gave a probated sentence to one person.

Meanwhile, Clements released a statement which said, "It is a sad day for the citizens of Webb County and all of Texas when we learn that our interests come second to the political ambitions of any politician."

John Hill apparently has violated the public trust and his own oath of office. His reported inaction in regard to the Webb County cover-up brings into serious question his integrity and his entire career in public office."

Clements charged Hill has "only selectively enforced the law and has used his office where it benefits him politically."

Hill told the Austin news conference the Webb County investigation was one of 20 investigations made by his department in all areas of the state.

"Under my leadership, the attorney general's office has participated in more local grand jury investigations of public corruption than any of my predecessors," he said. "More than 120 indictments have resulted."

In the state attorney general's race, Republican Jim Baker said Monday in Dallas that he was looking forward to a scheduled television debate with Democrat Mark White. Later in the day, Baker took part in a fund-raising event with tennis star Ilie Nastase.

White was in Amarillo Monday and Monday night.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said Monday in a statement that former Congressman O.C. Fisher, a Democrat, had endorsed his re-election campaign at a fund-raising dinner in Austin Sunday night. Tower's office said he grossed $104,000 from the dinner, which was aimed at Democrats and independents.

Rep. Bob Krueger, the Democratic challenger to Tower, was on a Central Texas helicopter tour Monday with a noon stop in Marlin and ending up in Waco.

Mud slide zone watched

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Geologists and disaster workers in this exclusive seaside community kept cautious watch today over a still-shaky neighborhood devastated by mysterious landslides that shoved, shattered and ripped apart at least two dozen hillside homes.

About seven acres of the residential area of Bluebird Canyon with its homes valued between $150,000 and $300,000 were ravaged by the slow-moving landslides that began shortly before 6 a.m. Monday.

Red Cross workers reported only a handful of injuries, most of them cuts and scratches, as residents clad in nightclothes fled down the hill in the foggy darkness. One woman suffered a broken shoulder.

out the day and geologists warned that some movement might continue for several days. But they had no immediate explanation for the huge slide. There were no earthquakes, no rains.

"We've got about 24 homes that we're considering completely destroyed," said Laguna Beach Police Lt. Al Olson. "It looks like damage at this point is in excess of $3 million."

Olson said a half-dozen other homes were hanging precariously over crumbling cliffs and "they could go at any time." About 200 people were evacuated from endangered homes.

further landslides. It was not known when the residents could return. Several hundred yards of roadway were destroyed, telephone and power lines dangled and sparked from uprooted poles that tilted at crazy angles and water, sewage and gas lines were ripped apart leaving the fetid smell of natural gas hanging over the neighborhood. There was no fire.

Two residential blocks dropped more than 30 feet below their normal level and the sliding earth tore out a half-mile-long chasm about 40 feet deep and at least as wide.

Several homes appeared almost undamaged, with cars still in the driveway and carefully tended trees and shrubs intact. But the homes were 30 or 40 feet lower and 25 feet downhill from where they once stood.

Bar association honors veteran Midland attorney, civic leader

Hamilton E. McRae, veteran Midland attorney and civic leader, was honored Monday noon by the Midland County Bar Association at its meeting in the Midland Hilton.

The honors were bestowed as a result of McRae having reached, on June 14, 1978, "the coveted milestone of 50 years as a practicing attorney in Texas, 43 of which have been spent in Midland."

were remarks made by Reagan Legg, Tom Sealy, Boyd Laughlin and Judge Perry Pickett. L. Lloyd MacDonald, association president, presided.

The resolution honoring McRae expressed "our total esteem for him as a lawyer, citizen and friend and our appreciation for the many contributions he has made to our profession, to his city, to his fellow men, and to us as his friends and fellow lawyers."

The resolution further lauded McRae for his dedicated leadership practiced and demonstrated "as president of the School Board; trustee and board member of the Midland YMCA; director of the Museum of the Southwest and of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame; trustee of the Midland College Foundation; legal and charitable and civic organizations; president of the Midland Country Club; as an elder in the First Presbyterian Church; as trustee of Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary and the Texas Presbyterian Foundation, and in many other capacities."

The association members also presented a memorial resolution honoring the memory of Attorney William L. Kerr of Midland, whose death occurred on July 19 of this year.

The resolution said that William L. Kerr was "one of the most able, eminent and distinguished lawyers of this state ... recognized throughout the nation as an effective and able advocate of the first order, as a learned scholar, and as a leader in the legal profession."

Preliminary plat, zone change denied by panel

Too much "density" and the alley and street system were the reasons cited by the Planning and Zoning Commission Monday when the group turned down a zone change request and a preliminary plat.

The zone change request came from Paul Noel for the southeast corner of Neely Avenue and Tarlton Street. But that land is tied in with the area planned for development by William Hays of Hays Construction, the commission decided.

Keith Burger, one of the developers' owners, said he would not dedicate a 30-foot right-of-way to the city. The total land would amount to the size of a city block "and that's a lot of money. We are not in the city limits and the right-of-way has not been purchased north of us," he said.

Burger said he would be willing to sell the land to the city at a later date, but he will not give it to the city. The commission also recommended for approval by the City Council of a zone change in the southeast corner of Andrews Highway and West Kansas Avenue, of a specific use permit for beer and wine at a delicatessen in the Imperial Shopping Center and of a zone change for offices at the corner of Texas Avenue and E Street.

the record high temperature for Oct. 2 is 97 degrees set in 1951. The record low temperature for today is 42 degrees set in 1961.

Cool temperatures were reported throughout the Permian Basin early today. Big Lake reported ground fog with some wind blowing.

Mild weather to continue in Basin through Wednesday

The cool and mild weather that has visited the Permian Basin since last weekend should continue through Wednesday, according to the weatherman.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport forecasts cool weather with decreasing cloudiness tonight and fair skies on Wednesday. Tonight's low is expected to be in the lower 50s.

Some showers were scattered along the coast and fog draped southern portions of Texas this morning. The rest of the state was under clear to partly cloudy skies.

The forecast called for scattered showers and thundershowers in eastern and southern sections of Texas today. Highs should range from the 70s in the northwest to almost 90 in the south.

Midland's need for policy on parks termed 'immediate' of the plan with our budget," Sikes claimed Monday. Sikes recommended the parks plan be incorporated with the city master plan to give the city planning department a direction to take when looking at developers' plats.

George Veloz, Planning and Zoning Commission member, asked how the school district manages to come up with land when it needs it.

Monday's high temperature recorded at the airport was 82 degrees. The record high for Oct. 2 is 97 degrees set in 1951.

The overnight low was 57 degrees. The record low temperature for today is 42 degrees set in 1961.

Playa lakes investigated

AUSTIN — Two chemists of the state Department of Parks and Wildlife are investigating complaints of ground water contamination and possible threats to migratory birds caused by brine water and oil discharges into playa lakes in West Texas.

Jim Roberts of the department's Austin office said Monday that the investigation stemmed from a recent inspection of Whalen Lake in Andrews County and complaints reported by area residents.

Roberts and Ismael Nava of the Department's San Angelo office were conducting tests at the lake Thursday and they said they observed a substance in the water which appeared to be oil.

Roberts said he would have results of the test later this week.

IN AND ABOUT

Midland

By JIM SERVATIUS
R-T Managing Editor

...We spent the bigger part of last week in Portland, Oregon, attending the 1978 edition of the annual Associated Press Managing Editors convention.

And in the event you're among those who imagine newspaper people only go to conventions in exotic places so they can get away from their work, fool around and party it up night after night, let us clue you in. We've never seen a group of harder workers. With four days filled with interesting seminars, speeches and workshops, many going on simultaneously, it sometimes became quite a chore just to get from one to another, scattered as they were on three floors of the sprawling Portland Hilton Hotel.

While most of the sessions concerned subjects primarily of interest to news executives — Where Are We Going Technically, Better Organization for the Newsroom, Reaching Tomorrow's Readers Today, etc. — subjects of general interest were covered by most of the luncheon speakers.

Those ranged from Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, to Peter MacDonald, chairman of the Navajo Tribal Council, to Howard Jarvis, author of California's Proposition 13, that widely-heralded product of the American "tax revolt" which is expected to result in lower taxes in California along with a lessening of public, social and welfare services, none of which has really happened yet, according to opponents on the panel...

...ONE OPPONENT who wasn't a member of the cast became one when, just as the Californian began to speak, he hurled a cream pie in Jarvis' face. We understand some Midlanders saw the incident here on television.

To the best of our knowledge it was no disgruntled editor (we ordinarily take pen, not pie, in hand on such occasions) but a young man, obviously out of his element and perhaps out of other things as well, who hurled the pastry. Also to our knowledge he was not apprehended, proof that most editors probably are more adept at editing than at catching fleeing pie throwers.

The shoe was on the other foot when it came to two other speakers. They let us have it. Both Hooks (for the NAACP) and MacDonald (speaking on behalf of our Indian brothers) said newspapers had done much to assist minority groups but not nearly enough. They were challenging addresses which we did not take lightly.

We did take Edward Asner lightly. Ed, as most television fans know, was Lou Grant in the long-running Mary Tyler Moore Show and is now starring in his own show, "Lou Grant," this time playing a newspaper's city editor.

That, of course, was why he was there and he came through, telling us how much he admired the newspaper business and how he once had actually studied journalism. However, although Ed said his show has several advisors to help make it as realistic as possible, he failed to tell us how a big metropolitan newspaper can operate with the services of only two reporters, a photographer plus a copy editor. A lot of newspaper owners would probably like to find out the secret of that one.

But all in all Asner was as amiable in person as he usually is on the tube and, like the other speakers, he gave us a challenge to take home. Actually, it was a challenge to newspaper readers. They should be more concerned, he said, about press freedom since with the erosion of rights of the press it is the people who are the real losers.

He was right, of course, and all the editorials that could be mustered probably wouldn't be as effective as an aroused public willing to take a stand whenever they see their newspapers coming under more and more government control. When that happens it means, plainly and simply, that THEY are too.

...PORTLAND, supposedly, is a city of rain, fog and mist — in other words, miserable weather personified. And we know that much of the time that is true. We're not as sure about the story that at one time Portland had more suicides per capita than any other metropolitan area, due, it was said, to the psychological effect weeks upon weeks of depressing, dreary weather can have on the human mind.

In a lighter vein, it's been said that Oregonians don't tan — they rust. And that it really doesn't rain all of the time — some days are just real cloudy. But we found the weather ideal, a switch from the eight days of drizzle and rain we left behind in Midland when we boarded the plane last Monday.

But that, too, seems behind us. We returned to a Tall City bristling with Indian Summer days and hinting of the fall weather to come.

It was good to get back.

Fighting in Beirut reportedly tapering off

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fighting between Syrian troops and Christian militiamen tapered off today, and police said 250 Lebanese had been killed and 502 wounded in Beirut since Wednesday.

The Syrians did not report their losses. Observers believed Christian claims of killing or wounding 400 Syrians were exaggerated.

A Christian radio station said the Christian sector of Beirut and the suburb of Hadath were without electricity and drinking water because the supply plants were wrecked by Syrian bombardment.

Sporadic exchanges of rockets and shellfire kept families in basement shelters in the Christian sector during the night. Traffic between the Christian and Moslem sectors remained paralyzed.

President Elias Sarkis, appearing worn and depressed in a TV broadcast from the presidential palace Monday, said the fighting in Christian East Beirut had pushed Lebanon to "the verge of collapse."

"The situation that emerged from a provocation on one side and the mass violent retaliation on the other has inflicted many innocent casualties, which saddens us beyond description," he said.

"The latest events have left almost no family without a casualty and have ruined nearly every house. There is no hospital left in East Beirut that can extend adequate medical care to the wounded."

Sarkis promised to come up with a new government to replace Premier Selim el Hoss' caretaker cabinet and a new security plan within 10 days to stem the fighting.

Government sources said Sarkis needed the time to talk with Syrian President Hafez Assad, who returns to Damascus at the end of the week from East Germany and the Soviet Union.

Former President Camille Chamoun, one of the country's most influential Christian political leaders, rejected Sarkis' new security plan in advance and demanded that the Syrians leave Lebanon.

But Chamoun's principal ally, Phalange Party head Pierre Gemayel, supported Sarkis and demanded the president be given a chance to implement his plan.

Assad's troops form the bulk of the Arab peacekeeping army that ended Lebanon's civil war between the entrenched Christian minority and an alliance of largely have-not Moslems and Palestinians 23 months ago. The Christians have refused to submit their areas to Syrian control, and the Syrians are also angered by the alliance the Christians have forged with the Israelis against the Palestinians in southern Lebanon.

After a weekend cease-fire that lasted 22 hours, the Syrians subjected East Beirut to the heaviest bombardment since the civil war as cover for a commando attack to rescue 50 Syrian soldiers trapped in a drugstore for two days.

The bombardment ended at daybreak Monday, after the soldiers were rescued, but fighting continued at two bridges which the Syrians held on the northern side of the Christian quarter. The militiamen were trying to get control of the bridges to open up a supply route from the Christian areas to the north.

Police sources said 39 persons were killed Monday, 189 were wounded, 16 buildings were demolished and apartments set afire.

Homecoming duchesses for 1978-79 are Alison Alvarado, Suzanne Brower, Peggy Jones, Becky Murray and Leah Owens. Congratulations, girls, and GOOD LUCK!!!

A note from the cheerleaders: This Friday morning we will have our first district pep rally as we salute our Mighty Rebel Express as it prepares to roll over those soon-to-be Bewildered Bronchos from Odessa High. We'll be firing up at 8 o'clock sharp, so come on out and show all that Rebel Spirit!!!

Mums will be on sale this week and until next Wednesday the 11th. To avoid the rush, order early for your sweetie. You can order your mum in front of the cafeteria and in the Youth Center during both lunches.

ATTENTION all Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors—Be sure to show how much pride you have in your class and in your school by putting out the best floats ever in the Homecoming Parade for Robert E. Lee!!!

REBELETTES: Be sure to bring your $2 for your football players' yard signs next Sunday. This will be your first and last chance to get them, so come! Be at the pep rally at 7:45 a.m. Friday.

IMPORTANT: Be sure to work hard for those points because the 10 girls with the most points out of each squad will get to ride on the Rebelette float in the Homecoming Parade. So if you want to be a special part of Homecoming, earn those points!

Our varsity volleyballers went to Denver City to compete against 14 other teams for the championship! At 8 a.m. Friday they took on those Mangy Mustangs from Andrews. They mutilated them and went on to play Fort Stockton at 11. They creamed them in just two games and were ready to play in the semi-finals against Denver City. They took on Denver City at 3 p.m. Saturday and fought for an hour but were narrowly defeated. Our girls then played at 7 that night for third place against the Lobos from Monahans, but they were beaten after a hard match! They ended up getting 4th out of 14 teams. Way to go, Girls!! They will be playing again Tuesday against Permian in Odessa. MASH MOJO!!!

B.C. comments: An event becomes something special—only when it is shared with others—and you (the special people of Lee High School) made my birthday a SPECIAL EVENT. Thank you and thanks for helping me eat the 6 cakes and a pie—Gosh-Gee Whiz—I sure didn't need to eat all that!!!

REMEMBER—The Victory Dance this Friday night (10:30-12:30) right after the kick has been taken out of the Bronchos. You are in for a PLEASANT SURPRISE—CAUSE WE HAVE A MYSTERY D.J. to spin the Dixie Disco records for you. Admission is 50 cents with your Y.C. card or $2.50 without a card. Till next week.

Border action seen in Morocco

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Morocco says it repulsed a border attack by Algerian troops and tanks and hints it may make reprisals raids against bases of the Polisario guerrillas in Algeria.

The government said the Algerians attacked a supply convoy near the Moroccan desert outpost of Hassi Tlemci on Friday, returned with reinforcements Saturday and were repulsed after a battle Sunday.

Dead and wounded were reported on both sides, but the numbers were not given.

King Hassan II said in a message to Algerian President Houari Boumediene he might be forced to take decisions "which no conscientious leader takes lightly or with an easy heart." This was believed to imply reprisal strikes against Polisario bases in the Algerian oasis of Tindouf, which Morocco claims.

The Polisarios are Algerian-backed guerrillas fighting for the independence of the former Spanish Sahara, which Morocco and Mauritania partitioned in 1975. They have killed hundreds of Moroccan troops, including 12 in an attack Aug. 27 that the Moroccans first claimed was made by Algerian soldiers.

There was speculation the Polisarios also made the weekend attack. But it was the first time in three years of fighting in the Sahara that tanks were reported involved.

Cooling with cash can save money

By BERT P. STUDER
Copley News Service

Everybody knows that investing a little money in insulation can save a lot of money in fuel bills—but coating your windows with gold or silver? Isn't that a bit much?

Not if you figure the cost over the life of the building, say researchers at California's Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory.

Their studies of the energy efficiency of windows plated with gold, silver and other metallic compounds indicate that such windows, now used in some office buildings, can either reflect or absorb as much as 90 percent of the heat and glare in summer as well as prevent the loss of substantial amounts of heat in winter.

In recent studies using computer models and instruments that measure the performance of thin coatings on glass, they also report that nearly transparent sheets of gold-coated glass, previously used to de-ice aircraft windshields and ski goggles, can also provide winter insulation.

"The energy savings from such coated windows would vary, however, on their location and the amount of heat or air conditioning used," pointed out Steven Selkowitz of the laboratory's windows and lighting program. "But over the lifetime of the "Many architects are unwilling to do this, however, because of the high initial costs of coated glass plating."

Reflective glass costs $4 to $6 per square foot, compared to $2 to $3 a foot for clear glass. Reflective coatings can also, Selkowitz said, be applied to plastic films which then can be glued to glass, resulting in some cost savings.

The economics of conservation, however, are not the whole problem faced by the architect, Selkowitz said. Aside from the cost, he said, the architect must keep in mind comfort and appearance.

"In a new building," he said, "this is one of the most difficult decisions to make. The coating is permanent and many times permanent coatings are not the best solution."

Among possible compromises suggested by Selkowitz and his colleagues in the study would be reflective plastic sheets that could be rolled up and down to prevent heat loss from the window during the winter or at night.

"The roll-up shades," he said, "are not different from the permanent coatings in reflective ability and, because they trap a small layer of air between window and shade, their insulating ability is even greater."

Such reflective films, the study showed, can bounce off nearly half of the sunlight, compared to only about eight percent by clear glass. The film also can prevent heat loss.

"Managed well," Selkowitz said, "windows can save large amounts of energy."

building, it should invariably pay off.

"The question is whether the builder wants to invest in a more expensive energy-conserving glass," Selkowitz added. "Doing so would mean expensive air conditioners and heaters could be reduced in size and their annual operating costs could be lowered."

DEAR ABBY

Washington State decides when teenagers can wed

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the 15-year-old girl who is begging her mother to let her get married.

In some states, the decision to allow teenagers to marry does not lie with the parents.

For example, in the state of Washington, no child under the age of 17 may marry WITH OR WITHOUT parental consent without a court permission. Kids between 17 and 18 require parental permission. After 18, they require only a witness.

In one case, a 15-year-old girl was pregnant by a 17-year-old boy. Both his family and hers tried to get the judge to let them get married. At first he refused because he talked to the kids and didn't think they were sufficiently "sincere." Only after they attended several months of counseling did the judge feel they were ready for marriage, after which he gave his consent.

Another case: A 16-year-old girl asked for permission to get married because she was pregnant. The judge refused, saying that wasn't a good enough reason. The girl had her baby, waited until her 18th birthday, and then got married.

Many parents feel it is their right to give or withhold permission, to marry, but the state of Washington says differently.—B. IN SNOHOMISH, WASH.

DEAR B.: At first I thought someone was giving me a "Snoho" job, but a call to a Washington lawyer confirmed your facts. Thanks for the information.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for people who would like to leave their worldly goods to favorite relatives and special friends.

DO NOT write: "I want Sister Diane to have the gold brooch I got from my Aunt Sophie." DO WRITE: "I want my sister Diane to have my 14 kt. gold brooch in the shape of an owl with diamond eyes." (If you have more than one gold brooch, no one may remember which one your Aunt Sophie gave you for your 16th birthday 55 years ago.)

Or, better still, if you don't have one of those instant cameras, borrow one and take a picture of every valuable item you own—and write the name of the person you want to have it on the back of the picture.

That way there will be no misunderstanding.—MRS. M. IN L. A.
DEAR MRS. M.: Good idea, but very few people are prepared to accept the fact that they can't take it with them—or indeed, that they are

Love at first sight?

By DR. LAURA SCHLESSINGER
Copley News Service

Patti and Brad say it was love at first sight — but they aren't quite sure about what has gone wrong between them since.

"The very first time I saw Brad I got this incredible emotional rush. I couldn't think of anything else except how I could get to meet him. I immediately began fantasizing about what it would be like if we got married," Patti reminisced.

"I thought she was beautiful, bubbly and very exciting. She appeared to be everything I had ever dreamed about having in a woman," Brad said.

Disappointments occur when expectations are not matched by reality; the larger the discrepancy between the two, the larger the disappointment. The overly idealized romantic notions of "falling" in love have resulted in many relationships rushing to a bitter, unhappy end as each feels cheated and betrayed by the other not turning out to be what they "seemed."

We all long to find someone who will be the ultimate in companionship: an intensely faithful friend, confidant, partner, lover, protector, nurturer.

It is, of course, questionable that any one person could fulfill all of these roles, but even more unreasonable to believe that these abilities could appear spontaneously.

Love at first sight is the easy answer. You meet — and you both instantly know all there is to understand about the other, complete empathy. Unfortunately, this is a dream which cannot come true.

What is love at first sight? There are a number of components, such as sexual attraction, the need to have someone, the romantic thrill of the situation and the apparent recognition of your "ideal" partner.

How do we learn what is our ideal partner? All too often what we describe is a composite of the perfect person, what our parents told us we should look for, what our friends find acceptable, what the media tell us we should want and have and perhaps some mistaken notions of who we are and what we need.

For example, Laurie became extremely irritated with Lester when he didn't react in the same volatile manner she had in response to some unfair family matter. Yet, one of the reasons they got along so well together was because he was definitely more easygoing, calm and patient than she so that he was equipped to cope with her moods and massive battles were avoided.

But when Laurie was asked what kind of man would be perfect for her she responded by saying, "Someone who immediately rises to a situation, takes control, doesn't allow anyone to push him around, who will fight for his rights." What Laurie was missing was that there are many ways to accomplish these things, some of which are more clever than being overtly aggressive, and also that such an outright, forceful man would be a constant source of tension and combat, considering her own aggressive nature.

Love is not something we "fall" into, it is something we "grow" into. And this growth process must begin long before we pair up with someone else. It begins with our gaining knowledge about ourselves, being honest, accepting about our nature and needs, and becoming secure enough about ourselves to risk sharing this all with someone else.

"Growing" in love with someone is very beautiful. It means exchanging unrealistic, idealized images of another for a realistic, appreciative acceptance of his or her qualities and building a safe emotional environment for the free expression of both your real selves.

We can probably never get completely away from all of the learned cues which attract us to each other initially, and that is a fun part of the excitement of life. But what we can do is be more practical and honest in our value systems and more tolerant in our assessments of others.

Dental X-rays help in study of mummies

SEATTLE (AP) — King Tut's dentist says dental X-rays of the ancient Egyptian boy-king are helping modern scientists decide who his parents weren't.

Weren't? "Most Egyptologists cannot agree on the dates and successions of the New Kingdom kings and queens," Dr. James Harris said recently. "But, working backward from our data, we can say with some certainty, at least, who probably wasn't related to someone else."

Harris, a University of Michigan orthodontics expert, is part of a research team which X-rayed Tut and thousands of other Egyptian mummies, trying to find family similarities.

Mouth and facial X-rays, plus other data fed into computers show similarities in skeletal structures which help the scientists trace family lines.

Amenhotep IV, for example, also known as Akhenaton, had a "rather bizarre" facial structure which indicates he probably couldn't have been Tut's father, Harris says.

There is no similarity between Tut and Amenhotep III, either, but Tutmosis IV, or at least his X-rays, "look a great deal like Tut."

Harris assigns the blame for some of the familial confusion to 21st-dynasty priests, who collected numerous mummies after they had been sacked and pilfered by grave robbers, and rewrapped and re-labeled them.

"Maybe some are mislabeled," he said. Harris' research also tells us something of the pharaohs' diet.

Life insurance companies pay $70 million daily

WASHINGTON (AP)—More than $70 million daily is paid to American families by life insurance companies, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

Less than half of this money goes to families as a result of death. The larger part is paid to living policy holders in the form of annuity and endowment payments, surrender values, policy dividends and disability benefits, according to the council.

Plans for mass burial of crash victims made

The Los Angeles Times

SAN DIEGO — Coroner's officials Monday quietly made plans for a mass burial as it became more and more evident that many of the 144 victims of San Diego's air disaster may never be positively identified.

Those faced with the grim task of identifying the pieces of human bodies from the nation's worst air crash say that so far 84 persons have been positively identified.

Acting San Diego Coroner David Stark said he met Monday with funeral coordinator Sam Douglass, who is working with Pacific Southwest Airlines, to discuss arrangements for a mass funeral.

Stark said it will take place in the city or town where a majority of the unidentified victims lived.

"We have discussed the mass burial," Stark said, "but it is a little too early to talk about details."

Since the fiery collision of the PSA 727 and a single-engine Cessna last Monday, volunteer dentists, FBI agents, coroners' deputies and others have worked to identify the victims.

National Transportation Safety Board investigators estimated the speed of the PSA jet at 310 miles an hour when it crashed into a neighborhood in northeast San Diego.

In another development Monday, federal aviation officials released tapes of control-tower talk with the PSA pilot moments before last week's midair collision here. They said that there is nothing on them to indicate that the safety system failed.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman W. Bruce Chambers said: "The system, we think, is safe and the American public should fly it with confidence."

But it was the first time the press and public were allowed to hear the actual words of the FAA tower crews at Miramar Approach Control and Lindbergh Field and that of the PSA pilot who radioed in a calm voice at 9:01 and 55 seconds:

"Tower, we're going down, this is PSA."

And the equally calm voice of the Lindbergh Field controller:

"Okay, we'll call the equipment for you."

The transmission tapes carried four separate advisories to the PSA plane that there was other traffic in the area: —At 8:59 a.m. and 28 seconds, Miramar Approach Control told the PSA pilot before he made his final approach to Lindbergh Field that he had traffic at "12 o'clock" — or straight ahead.

PSA's response was "roger." —Ten seconds later, Miramar notified PSA that there was "additional traffic at 12 o'clock three miles just north of the field northeastbound, a Cessna 172."

PSA answered, "Okay." —At 14 seconds past 9 a.m., Miramar repeated its advisory that PSA had traffic at 12 o'clock three miles out.

To that, the PSA pilot responded, "Traffic in sight."

It was that response that convinced Miramar Approach Center personnel that no real emergency existed even though a sophisticated new alarm system sounded 17 seconds before the impact.

Having been assured that the PSA pilot saw the other airplane, the Miramar personnel passed PSA 182 to the Lindbergh Field tower for monitoring during final approach and landing.

—At 37 seconds past 9 a.m. — 14 seconds after assuming responsibility from Miramar, the Lindbergh Field tower advised PSA that the Cessna was only a mile from it.

"Okay," replied the PSA pilot. "We had him there a minute ago."

And, a few seconds later: "Think he's passing off to our right."

But by this time, with PSA in the hands of Lindbergh Field, the tapes gave no indication that Miramar was aware of the PSA pilot's apparent loss of view of the Cessna. The tapes showed that the single-engine Cessna also was given an advisory by Miramar at 31 seconds past 9 a.m. as it headed from the Lindbergh Field area. The advisory was that the PSA plane was two miles behind him; "has you in sight," the Cessna was told.

"One One Golf Roger," said the Cessna pilot, giving his call letters and the acknowledgement.

That was about a minute before the collision.

Other replies from the Cessna, which carried instructor Martin Kazy, 30, and instrument approach student David Lee Boswell, 36, were garbled and impossible to understand. Dramatically, at 9:01 and 47 seconds, about the time of the collision, Miramar again advised the Cessna that there was a PSA in his vicinity, coming into Lindbergh Field. There was no answer.

Miramar tried again but there was silence, broken only by the pre-recorded voice of a woman ticking off the time each 10 seconds.

As the dreadful realization came, there were other voices on the tapes — some of them those of other pilots:

"I just witnessed an airliner crashed, ah, just off of Lindbergh," said a Grumman pilot who sounded just a little more excited than the calm tower personnel.

"Boy, what blew up out there?" asked the pilot of Western's Flight 476 coming into Lindbergh.

"Seven-twenty-seven (Boeing 727) went in," responded the tower.

"What happened?"

"Seven twenty seven went in."

"Oh, God. Whose?"

"PSA."

Philadelphia. Ellberg figured in an investigation Marston was directing. A U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee later concluded that neither Carter nor Bell committed wrongdoing in their handling of the Marston case.

Marston accused Carter of breaking a campaign pledge to depoliticize Justice Department appointments. The public outcry grew, and he soon decided to run for governor.

Marston's political foray, however, ended in defeat as he placed third in the Republican gubernatorial primary.

Today, at age 36, Marston keeps busy with his law practice and family — wife Linda, two boys and a girl.

David Marston's life finally quieted

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After frenzied months jousting with the White House and running unsuccessfully for Pennsylvania governor, David Marston's life has quieted down as he writes, lectures, and practices law.

Republican Marston's name became well-known in January when Attorney General Griffin Bell fired him as U.S. attorney for eastern Pennsylvania while Marston was investigating activities of two Democratic U.S. congressmen, Joshua Ellberg and Daniel Ford.

President Carter later confirmed that Ellberg had requested that Marston's firing be expedited. Carter and Bell said they decided to fire Marston without knowing bribery laws that should be published in November, and he will lecture at the University of Pennsylvania on "Political Corruption in Philadelphia."

And after that? "I don't know. I really don't," he says. "I said all along I think the U.S. attorney's job is the best public job in the country for a lawyer. I enjoyed that job. I enjoy this job."

Futuristic, sci-fi life isn't so far off, survey shows

By JOAN J. CIRILLO

Those are just a few of the changes anticipated in the latest McGraw-Hill survey of 200 industrial firms and government and private researchers in 12 major areas such as medicine, transportation and manufacturing. The survey is conducted every three years.

The big news this year is that the futuristic, sci-fi life isn't so far off. If you've ever quibbled with the basic equipment you were born with, it won't be long before you'll be able to do something about it, medical experts say. They predict drugs that can permanently raise your IQ will be in widespread use in 15 years.

Around that time, they say scientific breakthroughs will enable you to shed unwanted pounds effortlessly and even control the sex of your unborn child.

Then, too, they predict that by the turn of the century, life expectancy will reach 100 years, that there will be a cure for cancer and a drug which, taken over a long period of time, prevents it.

The medical experts also foresee artificial eyesight for the blind, artificial growth of new limbs and even an artificial form of primitive life.

But you needn't wait that long for other startling advances. In the 1980s, they say, ultrasonics will enable the control of pain and detect brain tumors; electronic impulses will heal bone fractures, and there will even be a substitute for blood.

The clothes of the future won't be the same either. Seven years from now, textile experts say, one-piece molded garments will be the rage and fabrics will respond to temperature changes. By the turn of the century, they predict, you'll be able to select a dress or suit that will change color.

Not that you'll have to worry about the elements. In the 1980s, say scientists, plastic domes will protect cities on land and in the sea from pollution and the weather; scientists will be predicting earthquakes, and, maybe most remarkable of all, weathermen will present accurate 30-day weather forecasts.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Studies show danger of amphetamines

Dear Dr. Solomon: Can large doses of amphetamines cause any permanent brain damage? We were talking about drugs the other day with some friends—not using them, mind you—and there was quite a lot of feeling that warnings against them had been overdone, at least in some cases. A couple of people said amphetamines couldn't do any really permanent damage, but nobody seemed to have the answer to this.—George R.

Dear George: There have been some very convincing studies showing that amphetamines do in fact cause permanent damage if used heavily. I'm thinking especially of some reports from Dr. Calvin Rumbaugh, who used to be at the Los Angeles County-University of Southern California Medical Center and who is now at Harvard.

He has found that the cumulative effect of amphetamines causes narrowing and blockage of all blood vessels in the brain and some permanent damage. Dr. Rumbaugh noted this in patients brought in, often after an accident, who had a history of drug-taking. Animal studies have confirmed this. "Windows" set in the skull of laboratory rats have enabled researchers to see blood vessels close down following large doses of amphetamines.

What Dr. Rumbaugh is talking about is of course amphetamine abuse—not the use of carefully controlled amounts of amphetamine under a doctor's supervision for a specific medical purpose.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is hay fever something a child will outgrow? Our little boy seems to be pretty sensitive, and we have been wondering if we should just let nature take its course or do something about it.—Grace L.

Dear Grace: Allergies tend to get worse with repeated episodes, so you should not count on a child outgrowing them. If the hay fever is moderate, antihistamines—taken by mouth—may be sufficient. But if it is severe, the best course may be desensitization. This is a series of injections that build up tolerance of the substance causing the allergy. However, it takes time to do the desensitization and it should be done well ahead of the pollen season.

As you doubtless know, hay fever is caused by a wide variety of pollens from trees, grasses and weeds as well as by spores from certain fungi. The specific culprit must be identified for desensitization to be possible. This can be done through tests, but it helps if you note carefully just when the hay fever starts.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Who should receive measles vaccine?—Mrs. H.M.

Dear Mrs. H.M.: Healthy children beyond the age of 15 months who have never had measles.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Controls

forecast

ST. LOUIS (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany predicts economic controls focusing on wages soon will be issued by the Carter administration.

Meany told the 33rd General Convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners that a "controls psychology" was building in Washington.

"We'll be hearing controls from the White House in a few days," Meany said Monday. "These controls are coming, and the president says they're going to be fair. I don't know what he means by fair."

Meany said President Carter was focusing on wages in administration efforts to stifle inflation, while ignoring other economic factors.

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard is investigating the second death of a Bulgarian defector in three weeks. The first one died after he claimed he had been stabbed with a poison-tipped umbrella, and the second died in a fall down his stairs.

The defectors all had made anti-communist broadcasts to their homeland. The two who died in London, Georgio Markov and Vladimir Simeonov, were close friends and worked for the British Broadcasting Corporation's Bulgarian-language service.

Corruption in prisons 'inherent,' officials say

ATLANTA (AP) — Federal officials conceded that nothing can be done to halt alleged staff corruption at the troubled Atlanta federal penitentiary unless culprits are caught in the act.

"The potential for corruption of staff and the desire for weapons and narcotics by some inmates is, unfortunately, an inherent part of our corrections system," said warden Jack Hanberry Monday before a U.S. Senate subcommittee investigating the penitentiary.

The Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, during sessions Monday and Friday, heard:

—Three inmates testify that two prison employees supplied them with contraband drugs to sell within penitentiary walls.

—Another inmate claimed prisoners could obtain weapons anytime they wanted.

—One prisoner say he believes 95 percent of all marijuana in the penitentiary is provided by prison staff.

The Atlanta penitentiary has been the site of 10 inmate slayings in the last two years and is slated to be closed in 1985, officials said.

Hanberry said Monday no prison staffer could be convicted of helping prisoners deal in drugs based solely on inmates' testimony.

"Are you saying you can't do anything about corrupt personnel unless you catch them in the act?" asked subcommittee vice chairman Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga.

"Yes," replied Gary McCune, Bureau of Prisons regional director, who testified alongside Hanberry.

Nunn said he will turn over investigation results to U.S. attorneys for possible criminal prosecution of prison employees. He also called for a full-scale audit of the Atlanta institution.

On Monday, Joe Louis Denson, 36, serving a life sentence for murdering an inmate at the Leavenworth, Kan., federal penitentiary, claimed he witnessed the 1977 stabbing death of Atlanta prisoner Vincent Papa.

He also testified that weapons are omnipresent at the penitentiary. Prisoners rarely carry weapons, he said, preferring to stash them for handy use. A former prison guard, Michael McCurley, echoed Denson's description of the ease in obtaining weapons.

Hanberry said metal detectors have been installed to deter weapons possession by inmates. But moments later, he displayed an array of weapons, ranging from ballpoint pens to sharpened spareribs, that cannot be detected.

Brisk business for Pope souvenir vendors

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Souvenir vendors are doing a brisk business in postcards, portraits, key chains and other mementos of the late Pope John Paul I.

Despite the rain, pilgrims and tourists milled around three stands set up Sunday in front of the newsstand near the Bernini Colonnade enclosing St. Peter's Square. Most of the buyers were women.

"Most of these things were made for the pope's inauguration ceremony," said Giovanni Fortieri, 24, one of the seven vendors at the stands. "Fortunately, there was time (between his death Thursday night and the public viewing of the body that began Sunday) to make extra prints of postcards and photographs."

The colored postcards of Pope John Paul were the favorite item. There were four sizes, costing from 3 to 60 cents, and showed a total of nine poses of the pontiff, all of them smiling. Most buyers took three or four different cards.

Also for sale were stamped envelopes with a black and white profile photograph of the pope at 60 cents, color portraits in frames of gilt or carved wood at 60 cents to $4.90, and gilt keys and thermometers with the pope's portrait.

Poster-size color photos sold for $1.80, medallions and coins for 60 cents to $1.20. Also available were copies of the Saturday edition of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano announcing the pope's death of a heart attack.

'Roscoes' point to design trends

By The Associated Press

For sheer creativity, the movie Oscar can take a back seat to the Roscoe Award of the interior design world.

For John Elmo, this fall's annual product design awards program brought a double triumph. He became the first designer to win two Roscoes in the same year. In fact, he also won a third award by popular acclaim.

Elmo, president of South Bay Design Corp., was among more than 100 nominees in 27 categories competing for top honors.

He accepted his two Roscoes and a special certificate at the Eighth annual awards event presented recently by the Resources Council in New York City.

The council is a non-profit, national trade organization which encompasses the entire interior furnishings industry.

Elmo's winners came in two categories. In wall coverings, the jury picked his Belgian Tringon Linen featuring a vertical linen thread bonded to a designed wallpaper of wavy horizontal lines.

It comes in beige linen on beige ground and off-white linen on beige ground. This entry also won a special certificate in a separate judging.

Elmo's fabric winner entitled "Pindespil Burn-Out Casement," presents a pattern of parallel lines in contrasting patches resembling an aerial photo of plowed fields. It is in upholstery and drapery fabric and wall covering and carpeting.

The Roscoe award symbol presented to each winner is a crystal prism, designed by Tiffany & Co.

For homemakers across the nation these awards raise the curtain on many innovations that will be seen in designer showrooms and department stores.

Highlights include: "Il Colonnato," by Mario Bellini, which won the Roscoe for contemporary residential furniture.

It is a marble table supported by cylindrical legs described as translating the grace and grandeur of Roman columns into a modern design idiom. Tops and columns are in Roman Travertine, Persian Travertine or black marble. Also in glass and a selection of shapes.

"Strips," low-slung modular seating and sleeping units, designed by Cini Boeri and Laura Grizzotti, was the winner in the category of contemporary presidential furniture seating.

"Strips" is a group of what you might loosely call sofa units which can be combined into any configuration a room requires. They are covered with quilted fabrics that zip off for easy care.

"Indigo Crystal," resist-dyed canvas floorcloth created by Maya Romanoff, took top honors for contemporary rug design. Its name is suggested by a diamond-in-the-rough appearance of a crystalline pattern of indigo and amber on the main fabric piece and indigo-plaid on the border.

The award for residential decorative accessories went to Suzanne Geismar for "Byzantium Screen." A sectional screen, both decorative and utilitarian, it is made of hand-carved wood, finished in black lacquer and gold leaf with the exotic air of ancient Byzantium.

According to Robert Clark, the President of Resources Council, Inc., and Eastern Director of Sales for Arthur H. Lee and Jofa, this year brought out the greatest number of entries since the program started eight years ago. Consequently, changes were made.

The jury of awards selected five nominees in each category and voted by secret ballot for the Roscoe winners. Then the nominated products were shipped to Chicago, Dallas, and San Francisco and back to New York for the popular vote by designers and architects in these cities.

One other entry, besides John Elmo's, won both the Roscoe and the popular vote. It was "Hands & Pebbles," by Monique Gerber in the category of decorative accessories-contrast.

The 1978 jury of 11 judges included top specialists in interior design and several editors and writers who report on the field.

John McCormack recalls busier, stronger years as house speaker

BOSTON (AP) — His ramrod posture is a bit fragile now. His voice is slightly weakened by age. But as John W. McCormack recollects his years as speaker of the House of Representatives, an energy gushes into his conversation.

Those years are reflected in the photos that line his office wall — reminders of the power and intimacy that accompanied his roles as congressman, House majority leader and then speaker.

And in his unassuming way, the 86-year-old McCormack doesn't let visitors forget about his ties. He points to a photograph which shows him peering over Franklin D. Roosevelt's shoulder as the president signs the declaration of war against Japan in 1941.

"I sponsored that resolution," says McCormack proudly.

catches him in a pugnacious campaign stance, his fist raised as then-Democratic presidential nominee Harry Truman stands by his side.

It is nearly eight years and two presidents since McCormack surrendered the Speaker's post that he assumed upon the death of Texas' Sam Rayburn in the early 1960s.

The federal government still provides him with two assistants and an office suite here. He continues to receive calls and visits from people needing help to secure a government job or to clear up a relatives' immigration problems.

"If I can still do a favor for someone, I'm glad to do it," says McCormack, who still answers to "Mr. Speaker."

"But, I'm not able to do as many favors now as I could do when I was in Congress."

Beyond these "good neighborly" acts, McCormack says he's retired from the warfare of politics — with one exception. This year, he endorsed Suffolk County District Attorney Garrett Byrne for re-election. Byrne not only is a good friend, but a contemporary at age 80.

A widower, McCormack is driven daily from his Boston apartment to the downtown Post Office Square building where he works. About five times a month, he accepts speaking engagements. His favorite topic is U.S.-Soviet relations.

"I do not trust the communists," the former 22-term congressman says, pulling on a cigar and flicking the ashes into a spittoon filled with murky water. "I see no objection to my country negotiating with communist nations if we negotiate from strength."

Employers get tax liability for tips

A recent change in the Social Security law that may have escaped the attention of some people provides additional Social Security tax liability for employers whose employees receive part of their earnings in the form of cash tips.

Under the old law employers did not have to pay Social Security taxes on tips, only on the actual wages paid the employee. Since 1966, the employee has been required to pay social security tax on cash tips amounting to $20 or more in a month from one employer, according to a Social Security Administration spokesman.

The new law provides that an employer must pay Social Security tax on amounts deemed to be earnings for purposes of meeting the requirements of the minimum wage law.

In many jobs where low wages are paid in expectation of substantial tips, the Internal Revenue Code allows such tips to be considered earnings for up to 50 percent of the minimum wage. Now these deemed amounts will also be considered earnings for Social Security purposes.

Cash tips that total $20 or more in a month from one employer should be reported. The tips are reported to the employer in writing by the 10th of the month for the previous month. Employers may require reports more often.

A penalty may be imposed for non-reporting of tips, as it is for the non-reporting of other earnings. The penalty is equal to one-half the Social Security contribution on the tips not reported, the spokesman said. The penalty may be waived if the employee can show the failure to report was for some reasonable cause and not through neglect.

The greater penalty for failure to report tips may come later, however, when a person begins to receive social security benefits.

Since the amount of the check is based on annual earnings over one's working career, a person may increase his or her benefits significantly by reporting tips as earnings for social security purposes.

For those who fail to report, the gap between their social security benefits and their pre-retirement income is often much greater than it should be since the benefits do not reflect all of their pre-retirement earnings, the spokesman said.

More information can be obtained by contacting the Odessa Social Security Office located at 516 First National Bank Building. The phone number is 332-9423.

Texans may not have to pay on food stamps

EL PASO — Texans participating in the food stamp program may no longer have to spend any of their money for the coupons.

The Texas Board of Human Resources recently voted in an Amarillo meeting to end the cash outlay requirement for the program.

Jerome Chapman, commissioner of the Texas Department of Human Resources, said he hopes the non-cash provision can become effective Dec. 1, or soon thereafter. It must be authorized from the U.S. Department of Agriculture which controls the food stamp program.

Eliminating the purchase requirement is one provision of the Food Stamp Act of 1977. Other provisions will be implemented next year, Chapman said.

New York's Graig Nettles embraces relief pitcher Rich Gossage after the Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox, 5-4, to win the American League East title in a playoff game Monday in Boston's Fenway Park. Among the players are Willie Randolph and Thurman Munson. (AP Laserphoto)

Yankees make comeback official with 5-4 victory

BOSTON (AP) — Reggie Jackson, still in full uniform with No. 44 on his back, walked into the Boston Red Sox clubhouse, carrying a bat in one hand and a can of beer in the other. Jackson, the New York Yankees' millionaire slugger, was a gracious winner Monday. After 162 games in which they built a 99-63 record identical to Boston's, the Yankees hung on for a 5-4 victory over the Red Sox in a one-game playoff, just the second tiebreaker in American League history.

The Yankees get a chance now to defend their 1977 World Series championship.

The New York victory was one hour old, and most of the Yankees were getting ready for a flight to Kansas City and a best-of-five playoff with the Royals for the pennant.

In the Boston clubhouse, the Red Sox quietly accepted defeat, satisfied with a stretch drive that fell short despite eight consecutive victories and 12 of 14 before the playoff.

The Red Sox were wishing each other a happy winter. Then, in walked Jackson, who had hit his 27th homer leading off the eighth inning, a shot into the center-field bleachers which proved decisive.

"You guys could have done just what we did," Jackson told the Red Sox. "I didn't think my homer would end up being the winning run. I didn't want it to be the winner, not with us ahead 5-2."

"But your guys came back, and how. You got two runs in the eighth inning and took us down to the final out with runners on first and third in the ninth. That's too much pressure, man. Kansas City? Let me relax after this one."

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner was one of the first visitors to the Boston clubhouse, going immediately to Red Sox Manager Don Zimmer.

"It's too bad that the two best teams in baseball had to play," Steinbrenner said while Zimmer choked back tears.

Earlier, Steinbrenner said in the Yankee clubhouse it was "a shame the teams with the winningest records in baseball had to be in the same division."

Then, noting the Yankees' comeback from those rough days during the ouster of Manager Billy Martin and the hiring of Bob Lemon in late July, Steinbrenner said:

"We got well. We were a banged up, sick team. Don't take anything away from Billy Martin. I'm just sorry we had to meet the Red Sox at this stage."

Lemon, the first AL manager to take over in midseason and go on to a championship, basked in glory. Fired by the Chicago White Sox, he quickly won a job with the Yankees when Martin resigned after some critical remarks about Steinbrenner. Lemon took command on July 25, seeking only to regain respectability for the Yankees, who trailed the Red Sox by a whopping 14 games on July 19.

"This is unbelievable, just unbelievable," Lemon said. "The Red Sox went into a tailspin and we kept winning. Then we beat them here four straight in early September. Then we beat them two in a row in New York and we were 3 1/2 ahead. But they came back and forced us into a play-off. What more can anyone ask? It's just unbelievable."

Despite the loss, the Red Sox were able to hold their heads high. Their record of 3-14 from Aug. 30 until the victory in New York Sept. 15 will not be forgotten.

The Red Sox did what they had to do down the stretch, catching the Yankees and forcing a tiebreaker with eight victories in a row.

Zimmer was depressed.

"I've gambled all my life and have been in a lot of photo finishes, but this is the biggest I've ever lost," Zimmer said just one year after losing to the Yankees on the next to last game of the regular season.

While the Yankees got ready to fly to Kansas City, the Red Sox were busy unloading bags from a truck ready to go to the airport for the trip to Kansas City.

Mike Torrez, who pitched the Yankees to the World Series championship last fall while playing out his option, looked like a $2.6 million loser. Torrez blanked his old teammates on two hits for six innings. Then he surrendered a three-run homer to light-hitting Bucky Dent in a four-run seventh and it was all over.

Jackson put all his muscles into a pitch by Bob Stanley in the eighth for the homer and the Red Sox were unable to catch up. Ron Guidry, a runaway winner of the AL Cy Young Award, boosted his record to 25-3 with relief help from Rich Gossage, who came on in the seventh.

Herzog faces playoffs without job security

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Whitey Herzog leads the Kansas City Royals into the American League playoffs tonight for the third straight year, but he doesn't know if he'll have a job next season.

"I haven't heard anything," the popular Royals skipper said in response to an inquiry at the conclusion of the regular season Sunday.

Asked if he were disappointed that no assurance had come down from General Manager Joe Burke or owner Ewing Kauffman, Herzog said, "Well, when we had all the injuries in August and the club wasn't going too good I thought I might hear from somebody."

"That's usually when a club does something so everyone will know where they stand," he said. "After we clinched it, I thought someone might say, 'Don't worry, we want you back.' But nobody has said anything."

Herzog has been working on one-year contracts since 1975 when he replaced the fired Jack McKeon, who replaced the fired Bob Lemon.

who replaced the fired Charlie Metro.

In 3 1/2 seasons his teams have won 325 games and lost 227, twice pushing the Yankees to the last inning of the last game of the playoffs.

In the past two years, Kansas City's principal rivals in the AL West, California and Texas, have enriched themselves with such free agent stars as Don Baylor, Joe Rudi, Lyman Bostock, Bobby Grich, Richie Zisk, Doyle Alexander, Campy Campaneris and Doc Medich.

The Yankees, Herzog's playoff opponent again this October, have stocked their pond with Reggie Jackson, Don Gullet, Catfish Hunter and Rich Gossage.

The Royals gave Herzog Jerry Terrell, an aging utility infielder who batted .203 and broke his ankle.

The night the Royals clinched this year, Kauffman shook Herzog's hand, laughed and said, "I'm cutting you $10,000 because you didn't win it earlier with this team and the money I've spent." Then he left to pop champagne with the players. The man who built a multi-million dollar pharmaceutical empire with a reputation for motivating people offered no thanks for a job well done.

The Royals, never favored to win their division, have won it three straight years. In 1977 only George Brett was chosen for the All-Star squad, yet Herzog's team won 102 games, more than anybody else.

"You must have had a hell of a manager," he once said with a grin.

The team drew an amazing 2.2 million paying customers into picturesque Royals Stadium this year, 170 percent of the metropolitan population.

Redskins stop Cowboys in battle of field goals

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was, according to Washington defensive captain Diron Talbert, a matter of shutting down the National Football League's No. 1 offense, and especially the NFC's leading rusher, Tony Dorsett.

"We stopped them rushing, we stopped their passing," said Talbert after the Redskins' 9-5 victory over the Dallas Cowboys Monday night.

Talbert remembered, when reminded, that the Cowboys were the top scoring team in the NFL. "But basically, we pursued Dorsett and we tackled him. We stopped his long runs."

The Washington defense stopped the Cowboys when it was necessary, including six plays from the 7-yard line and four from the 2 in the third quarter and also late in the fourth quarter on a controversial play.

"It was kind of sloppy," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "We have no excuses. We just didn't put it in there."

The Redskins won their fifth straight game against no losses this season before a sellout crowd, including President Carter, taking a two-game lead in the NFC East on Mark Moseley's field goals of 52, 42 and 27 yards. Dallas, the defending Super Bowl champion, is now 3-2.

goals against Dallas here and it cost us a game," said Moseley. "As Texans, neither me nor my dad ever heard the end of it."

"I'm just now coming around," said Moseley, a native of Livingston, Texas. "I had a slow training camp and the leg is finally beginning to feel strong."

The Cowboys' only offensive score came on a 19-yard field goal by Rafael Septien after the Washington goalline stand in the third quarter. The got a safety when Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann voluntarily ran into the end zone on the final play of the game.

The Cowboys complained about an official's call on third-and-eight at the Washington 13 late in the fourth period.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach threw what the Cowboys thought was a completed pass to Drew Pearson near the goal line, but the official ruled it out of bounds.

"I thought I caught the ball," said Pearson. "I caught the ball on the shoulder pad and got hit by (Redskin cornerback Joe) Lavender. He hit me and then I was sent out of bounds. I thought I saw an official say it was good and then another official overruled him. That's the way it goes."

Landry said: "I thought he fumbled out of bounds and it should have been a completed pass. But who knows whether we would have scored anyway."

Homer Rice gets Bengal call

CINCINNATI (AP) — Homer Rice, a newcomer to pro football but not to its wide-open style, is head coach of the Cincinnati Bengals today, five months after joining the National Football League club.

The 51-year-old Rice was a surprise choice Monday as a replacement for Bill "Tiger" Johnson, who resigned under pressure less than 24 hours after the winless Bengals suffered their fifth straight defeat.

Rice, who 10 years ago turned down an offer to become head coach at the University of Oklahoma when Jim McKenzie died, was selected over two former NFL head coaches Mike McCormack and Charley Winner.

He is under contract to coach the remainder of the season.

Johnson, under fire as the Bengals staggered to their worst start ever, departed after a Monday morning meeting with general manager Paul Brown.

"We mutually agreed that something had to be done," said Brown, in a prepared release.

Rice said one of his first priorities is to "bring the troops back together."

The Bengals, who suffered a humiliating 28-12 loss Sunday to previously winless San Francisco, have lost six straight games over two seasons — one shy of the club's longest losing streak.

contract after succeeding Brown, an NFL and college coaching legend. Johnson, a former All-Pro center with the 49ers, had served as Brown's top assistant for nine years. He finished with an 18-15 record in the NFL.

Brown said Johnson "is a fine, proud man and he put the welfare of the club first and agreed that a change could help our situation."

Johnson, after inheriting an 11-3 team that Brown took the playoffs in his final season (1975), saw the club slip to 10-4 in 1976 and 8-6 last year after being touted as a Super Bowl challenger. His failure to take the team to the playoffs triggered mounting fan criticism.

Johnson was unavailable for comment, reportedly on a fishing trip in Canada.

Rice joined the Bengals in April as quarterback coach, leaving Rice University where he was head coach and athletic director. The Bengals signed him after another NFL club had approached him. Rice confirmed Monday. He said he was very surprised when Brown offered him the job.

Rice is regarded as an outstanding offensive mind and known for developing outstanding college quarterbacks such as Kentucky's Rick Norton, Cincinnati's Greg Cook and Tommy Kramer of Rice.

Rice said the Bengals' fortunes have been due to "a lot of injuries and a lot of bad luck. I have great respect for Bill.

But things just kept snowballing. It wasn't anyone's fault."

He said the Bengals' troubles began Aug. 26 when quarterback Ken Anderson broke his hand in the second half of their final exhibition game

Royals face Yanks today

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Royals and New York Yankees, who've traveled this road before, meet in the opening game of the American League championship series tonight, marking this year the third in a row that these teams have battled in the pennant playoff.

Dennis Leonard, a 21-game winner during the regular season, will start for Kansas City against Jim Beattie, who began the season in the minors for New York.

This series will have to go some to match the drama of New York's American League East playoff victory Monday, when the Yankees eliminated Boston 5-4, as reliever Rich Gossage retired Red Sox slugger Jim Rice and Carl Yastrzemski for the final two outs, leaving the tying and winning runs on base.

But the Royals and Yankees have gone through some dramatic finishes of their own.

In 1976, New York won the AL flag in the bottom of the ninth inning of the fifth game on a home run by Chris Chambliss. Last year, the Yankees rallied for three runs in the ninth inning of the fifth game to pull out the pennant again.

In the 1976 playoff, a three-run, eighth-inning homer by George Brett pulled the Royals even and set the stage for Chambliss' flag-winner. In 1977, the Royals carried a 3-2 lead to the final inning of the last game and Manager Whitey Herzog brought in Leonard, the ace of his staff, in an effort to nail down the victory, only to have the Yankee rally blow his strategy to bits.

But Brett and Leonard carry no scars from those past playoff disasters against New York.

"If we play up to our capabilities, we can beat anybody," said Brett. "Now we've got to go out and show we can beat the Yankees."

Leonard said he thought the club's maturity would pay off.

"Two years ago, I would have been pacing up and down and running around the house," he said. "But this is our third time around, and I'm two years older now."

The rookie pressure will be on Beattie, who pitched effectively down the stretch for New York, but would not have had the opening-game assignment except for the East Division playoff.

New York Manager Bob Lemon's plan was to start his ace, 25-game winner Ron Guidry, in the opener. But the Yankees were forced to use Guidry in the playoff against Boston and now he is penciled in for the third game against the Royals Friday in New York.

The second-game pitching matchups figure to be 20-game winner Ed Figueroa for New York and left-hander Larry Gura, who won 16 for the Royals. Herzog will use another southpaw, Payl Splitteroff, in the third game against Guidry. Catfish Hunter, K.O'd early Sunday, is the Yankees' probable fourth-game starter against Leonard Saturday with Figueroa and Gura returning for Sunday night's game.

Sports in brief

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK—Right-handed pitcher Dennis Eckersley of the Boston Red Sox and Ed Figueroa of the New York Yankees shared American League Player of the Week honors.

Eckersley pitched two complete games and gave up only 12 hits in his two wins, while Figueroa also went 2-0 with an ERA of 1.57.

Both pitchers became 20-game winners for the first time in their careers.

WASHINGTON—Commissioner Bowie Kuhn won the support of the Supreme Court in his long battle with Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley.

The nation's highest court decided not to hear a challenge to lower court decisions supporting Kuhn's "Final Offer" 1976 sale of three players—pitchers Balle Platters and Vida Blue and outfielder Joe Mauer.

Facing the loss of the players to free agency following the conclusion of the 1978 season, Finley said "Finley, Had to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million apiece while sending Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million.

Kuhn blocked the sale as being not in the best interest of baseball.

Kuhn asked to investigate racist remarks by Griffith

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has been asked to investigate allegedly racist remarks made by Minnesota Twins owner Calvin Griffith in Waseca, Minn., last week.

The 66-year-old Griffith triggered a storm of protest with his off-the-cuff comments on blacks, sex and salaries at a meeting of the Waseca Lion's club.

The Minneapolis and St. Paul Urban League chapters Monday asked Kuhn to investigate the remarks. The chapters suggested that "maybe next season the Minnesota Twins play in an appropriate place where Calvin Griffith will be appreciated, which could be called the Johannesburg Twins. We would suggest that he and South Africa were made for each other."

In his talk at Waseca, Griffith reportedly said that Twins slugger Rod Carew was a "damn fool" for signing a contract for $170,000, that catcher Butch Wynegar's performance suffered because he got married and that he moved the Twins from Washington, D.C. to Minnesota in 1971 when he found "you only have 15,000 blacks here."

Philadelphia should be very relaxed

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies should be a relaxed team from top to bottom when they open the National League's best-of-five playoff series Wednesday night against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark, who just completed the last year of a two-year contract, has been told he'll be back next year, and maybe longer, according to a Phillies' source, who asked not to be identified.

The Phillies' brass has decided that three consecutive East Division titles entitle Ozark to another contract.

Apparently the only holdup is deciding on the salary and length of the new contract.

The team itself should be loose since it is the underdog in the series with the West champion Dodgers, and plays the first two games at home.

The Phillies, who lost in the playoffs in three straight to Cincinnati in 1976 and fell to the Dodgers last year in four after winning the opener at Dodger Stadium, are oozing a quiet confidence.

The confidence is engendered by what Ozark and his team feel is their best pitching rotation for any of the three playoffs they've been in.

The Phillies won the East the previous two years mostly on power. Their pitching, with the exception of Steve Carlton the first year, and Carlton and Larry Christenson last fall, was just fair.

This season, the power failed. Sluggers Mike Schmidt, Greg Luzinski and consistent hitters such as Garry Maddox and Bake McBride had comparative off seasons and the Phillies scored 139 less runs.

The pitching staff carried the load. Ozark can now call on a rotation of Carlton, Christenson, Dick Ruthven and Randy Lerch and expect a solid outing.

The Phillies were 71-12 in games in which they scored four runs or more. The pitching staff posted an total ERA of 3.34.

"What we've got to do," said Schmidt, "is sit back, relax and be ourselves as hitters, because now we have great starting pitching. We know that our 10 pitchers are as good as any in baseball."

But the Dodgers aren't exactly slouches when it comes to pitching. Their starting staff of Burt Hooton, Tommy John, Don Sutton and Doug Rau, plus the others, compiled an ERA of 3.12.

The Dodgers' bullpen saved 38 games to 29 by the Phillies' relievers. Terry Forster had 22 for Los Angeles and Ron Reed 17 for Philadelphia.

So unless the hitters suddenly discover the repair for the power short-age, the series appears to be a pitchers' matchup. The Dodgers got 46

Crane stuns state ranked Tahoka in airways

By STEVE O'BRIEN
R-T Sports Writer

Bud Wilkinson used to have this coaching philosophy about passing the football. It went something like this — "When you put the ball in the air, three things can happen and two of 'em are bad." Well, Crane quarterback Rocky Rives figured those one-out-of-three odds wasn't that bad Friday night, and as a result, the Golden Cranes notched their third win of the season while pulling off the biggest upset in area football thus far this season.

It was Rives' 45-yard scoring strike to Andrew Hannon midway through the final quarter that pulled Crane into a 6-6 tie with Tahoka and when the 6-2 signal caller booted the extra point, the Golden Cranes had completed a 7-6 shocker over the team ranked as high as second in one Class AA poll.

While Crane was basking in the glory of its noteworthy scalping, the McCamey Badgers were revelling over the discovery of a new-found offensive weapon and Andrews, Lamesa, Reagan County, Stanton and Rankin all started looking at next week.

RAUL ARANA, a halfback-turned-quarterback, threw four touchdown passes as McCamey rolled over Eldorado, 24-0. Andrews, Lamesa and Reagan County found little to cheer about as all three were saddled with losses. Stanton and Rankin actually started looking at next week last week as both were open this time around.

After making it all the way to the quarterfinals last year, Tahoka has been and still is considered a top threat to take last year's performance a step further this year. They entered Friday's game 2-0 and riding the crest of fabulous running attack led by Clifford Bailey, who rushed for 2,404 yards a year ago.

Well, the Cranes did little to stop that powerful ground game — Tahoka finished with 225 yards on the ground while allowing only 47. Bailey finished with 160 yards on 25 carries (his "worst" outing of the season).

How then, one might ask, did the Bulldogs manage to lose? Rives' 172 yards passing was an important factor. But an even more important factor, the story of the game as it were, was right there in one little line in the game statistics. Fumbles Lost — Tahoka, 6.

BAILEY COUGHED IT UP three times, once on the Crane 15. So, it was just a matter of Crane letting Tahoka and Bailey run all over the field, recovering the ultimate fumble when Tahoka got close to scoring, and waiting for Rives to finally uncork the winner.

Tahoka might have won the game in spite of Rives' heroics if not for yet another costly error, this one a touchdown-nullifying penalty in the last seconds of the struggle. With only :40 on the clock, Bulldog Jerry Hatchett hauled in a Rives punt at the 20 and made tracks for the goal line, sending the hometown folks into a frenzy with what appeared to be a game-winning 80-yard return. But, much to their disappointment, officials spotted a clip on the play.

The win gives Crane a 3-1 mark, keeping them in step with District 7-AA foes Sonora (3-0-1) and Kermit (3-1).

Raul Arana was scheduled to be one of McCamey's starting halfbacks at the season's onset. But Badger coaches decided the 170-pound junior could be more valuable as the team's quarterback. Prior to last week's game with Stanton, Coach Ronnie Page admitted Arana still had not learned all the intricacies of the Badger offense.

SO, THE BADGERS suffered offensively that night and wound up losing, 8-0. That experience and another week's work payed off big dividends Friday as McCamey unleashed an aerial circus with Arana in the role of ringmaster in the Badgers' 24-0 win over Eldorado.

Arana bombed Eldorado out of the stadium with touchdown passes of 30, 41, 47 and 41 yards. Two of the long-distance hookups were with wide receiver Gary Stacy, the man Arana replaced at quarterback.

Lamesa's 37-15 homecoming loss to Hobbs, N.M., surely won't go down as the most memorable game in Golden Tornado football history but it is significant to the extent that the Tors may have finally solved their offensive woes.

If Lamesa had an offense, it did a pretty good job of disguising itself for the first two weeks of the season. In their first two outings the Tors could not muster a single point in losses to Pecos and Andrews. It took a 90-yard punt return to give them a win in their third game.

But Friday night was a different story. With Armando Morales doing a remarkable job at tight end and with some strategic shuffling of quarterbacks, the Tors managed to score a pair of touchdowns and a field goal against a Hobbs team that had been ranked ninth among New Mexico's Class AAAA schools. And, Lamesa was on the Hobbs 10 when the game ended.

MORALES HAD a big hand in the offensive upsurge. Coming from his new-found home, he caught four passes including scoring sorties of 15 and 24 yards. His blocking also helped spring Lamesa runners on the corners.

The other contributing force is a game of substitution played effectively by Lamesa Coach Julian Bush. Sophomore Joey Froman has replaced junior Mark Price as the starting quarterback with Price taking over one of the running back slots. Though moving the ball noticeably more effectively with that combination, Price takes the quarterbacking reins in the crucial situations and has proven he can perform admirably in the clutch.

Andrews saw their unbeaten streak come to a crashing halt when Snyder's Alan Pollard scooped up a blocked punt and carried it 15 yards into the endzone for the only score in a 6-0 Snyder win.

Andrews, which has lived by defense through three games, found that just wasn't enough on this night. The defense did their part, never permitting the Tigers inside the Mustang 20. But the Pony offense just never delivered.

THE MUSTANGS had several chances to win the game, but penalties, turnovers and an inspired Snyder defense kept them out of the endzone.

The loss drops Andrews to 3-1 while Snyder picked up their third straight win after locking the opener to Midland Lee. Reagan County lost to Sonora, 33-0.

for their second straight defeat. Unbeaten Sonora was paced by running back Wayne McLaughlin who tallied 204 yards rushing and scored four touchdowns.

McLaughlin piled up those yards on only 10 carries. Two of the scores were cross country efforts of 85 and 52 yards. After opening with a pair of wins, Reagan County saw their season mark leveled at 2-2. Sonora is 3-0-1.

Big three prep teams hold firm

By The Associated Press

Temple, Garland and Arlington Lamar, the big three in Class AAAA of The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, held firm positions this week but Houston Stratford moved from sixth to fourth following in impressive showing last week.

Defending AAAA state champion Plano helped Stratford's ascent when it lost to Highland Park 16-7 and dropped into 10th place this week.

Stratford, which rolled up 41 first downs in beating Lamar Consolidate 40-6, then leap-frogged San Antonio Churchill into the No. 4 position.

Huntsville in AAA, Mount Vernon in AA and Farmersville in A also maintained their No. 1 billings.

Churchill slipped to fifth this week followed by Corpus Christi Carroll, Odessa Permian, Highland Park, LaPorte and Plano to round out the top 10. No other AAAA teams challenged for the rankings.

Huntsville, after a 40-0 shutout of Aldine Eisenhower, polled 16 of 18 possible first place votes and held a 175-146 point margin over runnerup Gonzales. Beaumont Herbert and Brownwood, with one first place vote each, remained third and fourth.

Gainesville with 13 points, McKinney with 11 and New Braunfels with eight were among other AAA teams receiving consideration from the panel of Texas sports writers and sports-casters.

Tahoka was the lone casualty in Class AA, losing to Crane 7-6 and falling into 10th place this week. Mount Vernon held off a run at its No. 1 position by No. 2 Newton, which trailed in points only 165-161 and in first place votes 9-5.

There were two losers and a tie victim in Class A. No. 3 Wellington lost to AA ranked Childress 43-12 and fell to eighth this week. Garrison dropped from the poll after a 14-7 loss to Troup and was replaced by Iraan. Haskell remained as the No. 6 team following a 13-13 tie with Stamford.

Seagraves narrowly missed the A top 10 with 23 points compared to 25 for No. 10 Charlotte. Franklin and China Spring each received 10 points.

Rose, Reds begin battle

CINCINNATI (AP) — Round One has begun in the latest — and possibly the last — contract battle between Pete Rose and the Cincinnati Reds.

Dick Wagner, president of the National League club, met with Rose and his attorney Monday and offered the All-Star third baseman what he termed "the largest salary in Cincinnati Reds history."

Rose, coming off his greatest season, rejected the package, with his attorney contending that at least one Cincinnati player has a better contract. "They are going to have to go higher if they are going to sign Pete Rose," said Reuven Katz, Rose's lawyer.

Both sides said, however, they believed negotiations could settle differences. Another meeting was set for Oct. 10.

Wagner, in a prepared statement, said the contract would cover the 1979 and 1980 seasons and was "one of the best in all baseball."

Katz noted Rose has until 15 days after the World Series to declare himself a free agent.

Oklahoma retains national ranking

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Oklahoma held onto first place in The Associated Press college football poll today, while Southern California moved into the second spot and Arkansas dropped from second to fourth.

Michigan also climbed ahead of Arkansas into third place, while Penn State and Texas stayed in the fifth and sixth positions and Texas A&M replaced Alabama in seventh.

Oklahoma, 4-0 following a 45-23 victory over Missouri, received 38 of 63 first-place votes and 1,226 of a possible 1,260 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Southern Cal, third last week, moved up to second with a 30-9 triumph over Michigan State. The Trojans received 14 first-place votes and 1,166 points.

Michigan rose from fourth to third with six first-place votes and 1,093 points following a 52-0 rout of Duke.

Arkansas, which had to come from behind in the second half to defeat Tulsa 21-13, slipped from second to fourth with three first-place votes and 1,062 points. The Razorbacks had been runnersup in every previous poll this season.

The other two first-place ballots went to Penn State, which clobbered Texas Christian 58-0 and received 1,049 points. Texas received 917 points for a 24-7 triumph over Texas Tech.

Texas A&M went from eighth to seventh with 853 points following a 58-0 rout of Memphis State. The Aggies traded places with Alabama, which needed a second-half rally to beat Vanderbilt 51-28.

Pittsburgh remained in ninth place by defeating North Carolina 20-16.

Florida State, the only member of last week's Top Ten to lose Saturday, fell from 10th to 18th by dropping a 27-21 decision to Houston. The Seminoles were replaced in the 10th position by Nebraska, which jumped from 12th following a 69-17 mauling of Indiana.

The Second Ten consists of Louisiana State, Maryland, Colorado, Ohio State, Iowa State, UCLA, Stanford, Florida State, Auburn and North Carolina State.

Last week, it was LSU, Nebraska, Ohio State, Missouri, Maryland, Colorado, Iowa State, UCLA, Georgia and Stanford.

Auburn and North Carolina State appeared in the Top Twenty for the first time this season. Auburn whipped Tennessee 29-10 while N.C. State trounced Wake Forest 34-10. They replaced Missouri, which lost to Oklahoma, and Georgia, which was beaten by South Carolina 27-10.

complete games from their starters and the Phillies 38.

The leading Dodgers' hitters are Steve Garvey, .316, with 21 home runs and 113 RBI, and Reggie Smith, .295, with 29 homers and 95 RBI. The Phillies counter with Greg Luzinski, whose average tailed from the .300 circle to .265, but he hit 35 home runs and drove home 101, and Mike Schmidt, a .251 hitter with 21 homers and 78 RBI. Rich Hebner hit .283 with 17 homers and 71 RBI.

The Phillies are counting on momentum to work in their favor. They had to beat Pittsburgh on the next-to-the-last day of the season before edging the Pirates for the East title. They feel they have the intensity, having played the final month with their backs continually against the wall.

The Dodgers clinched the West early and have been marking time waiting for the playoffs. They haven't marked it too well, losing nine of their last 13 games.

Congress considers first censure vote in 50 years

By JAY PERKINS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The last time the House censured one of its members, it did so only because it could not find enough votes to expel him.

Now, more than 50 years later, it finds itself on the verge of a vote of censure for only the second time in the 20th century.

The House ethics committee recommended last Wednesday that the full House censure Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., for his part in the South Korean influence buying scandal. The vote probably will be this week.

The committee found that there was sufficient evidence that Roybal failed to report a $1,000 campaign contribution from South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park, that he diverted the funds to his own use and that he lied in originally saying he received nothing from Park.

The committee also recommended that Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., be reprimanded for his part in the affair. It found that he lied to the committee when he originally denied that he received about $1,000 from Park after Wilson married a South Korean woman.

Charges against two other members still are pending before the committee. Recommendations on those two are expected this week.

A reprimand is the weakest punishment the House can impose upon a member and consists basically of the House voting that the member violated its rules. A censure is more serious — expulsion from membership is the ultimate punishment — but censure also carries little weight on its own.

The basic difference between the two is that a member to be censured normally is led to the front of the chamber and forced to stand while the charges against him are read. A member does not have to be present during the reading of a reprimand.

However, by recent precedent, both charges can result in further punishment by House members. Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., was reprimanded for financial misconduct in 1976 — the last House member to be so chastised. But the House Democratic Caucus later moved on its own to strip him of his seniority, an action that removed him as chairman of a powerful subcommittee.

In another publicized attempt to discipline a member, the House voted in 1967 to exclude the late Democratic Rep. Adam Clayton Powell of New York for misuse of public funds. Powell was reinstated in 1969 and the Supreme Court ruled the exclusion had been unconstitutional.

There have been only 17 members of Congress and one delegate censured by the House and 13 of those occurred during the 11-year period from 1864 to 1875.

The last occurred in 1921 when Rep. Thomas L. Blanton, D-Tex., was censured for inserting "obscene language" into the Congressional Record. That censure occurred after a motion to expel him failed.

Many offenses with which the members were charged would barely raise eyebrows today. New York Rep. Fernando Wood, for example, was censured in 1868 for calling a bill "a monstrosity, a measure the most infamous of the many infamous acts of this infamous Congress."

And Rep. John Young Brown of Kentucky was censured in 1875 for — in a burst of oratorical hyperbole — describing an opponent as "one outlawed in his own home from respectable society ... who is such a prodigy of vice and meanness that to describe him would sicken imagination and exhaust invective."

Seven censures involved the use of unparliamentary language, two involved assault and conspiracy to assault another member, two involved utterance of treasonable language, two involved the use of obscene language, and five involved corrupt acts.

The censure of Blanton, who was seen as a troublesome gadfly by the Republican leadership and an enemy by organized labor, came five days after he inserted a letter containing "obscene language" — actually he abbreviated the obscene words — in the Congressional Record.

The letter involved a dispute between a Government Printing Office employee who did not agree with union rules and one who did.

The debate on Blanton contained some classic tidbits. Rep. Walter M. Chandler, R-N.Y., asked: "Was the gentleman not well aware that many thousands of the women could read them and would read them?"

And George S. Graham, R-Pa., defended Blanton by saying he was so intensely anti-labor that it was "his zeal that makes him a bigot."

Blanton defended himself by saying he inserted the letter only to point up "the awful conditions existing in the printing office." He added that if he had the money, he would have reprinted the letter himself and mailed it to every man in the nation.

He said, however, that he would accept Congress' vote: "I am a man who never squawks when my adversaries' cold steel pierces my vitals. I shall take my medicine when you act today."

The decision to censure Blanton was a compromise. An earlier attempt to expel him failed for lack of a two-thirds majority. The censure motion, passed on a vote of 293 to 0, had little effect on Blanton's career. He served from 1917 to 1929 before failing in a bid for the Senate and he came back in 1930 for six more years as House member.

If you're interested in what the letter actually contained, don't bother looking. The House expunged it from the Record and no copies exist in House files.

Midlander picked for post

A Midland man has been named to the support staff of the XV World Scout Jamboree to be held next summer near Neishaboor, Iran.

Serving with the U.S. contingent at the event, which is expected to draw up to 20,000 scouts and adult leaders from more than 100 countries, will be Bernold M. Hanson. He will serve as chairman of the BSA South Central regional participation.

Under the theme "Jamboree for Cultural Development," participants will spend a week to 10 days at Omar Khayyam Scout Camp, a high desert site at the foothills of Iran's northeast mountain range. The delegation from the Boy Scouts of America, expected to number about 2,000, will tour and visit with scout families in Europe before flying on to Iran.

The jamboree program will include a wide range of sports activities, cultural events, community development projects, exhibitions, handicrafts and scoutcraft demonstrations, opportunity to visit two nearby communities and a variety of special campfire programs.

Lives, land lost in Thailand flood

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — At least 30 persons have been drowned in floods in northern and northeast Thailand in the past two days, the Interior Ministry reported today.

A spokesman said the floods had driven about 100,000 persons in the Khon Kaen area of northeast Thailand from their homes.

Deputies mistake handcuffs for gun, shoot soldier

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — Sheriff Jim Boutwell says he plans to refer the shooting death of a Fort Hood soldier by deputies from a neighboring county to the district attorney for presentation to a grand jury.

But Boutwell said in his opinion the shooting death early Sunday of Spec. 4 David Samuel Fullington, 21, of Algonquin, Ill., was clearly justified.

He said deputies who fired at him mistook the glint of a metallic object near his hand for a gun. The glint came from handcuffs placed on Fullington when he was arrested earlier for drunken driving.

Boutwell said Fullington, who stole a state police car and went on a wild joyride before he was killed at a roadblock just inside the Williamson County line, was endangering lives.

He said the soldier must have been "on a spree" when he drove a stolen Department of Public Safety squad car across fences and over pastures, ramming one deputy's squad car and running several officers off the road. "He crossed the center stripe, charging cars head-on, both police and civilian. I really don't know what else they could have done," said Boutwell. "They did everything they could to stop him. We're just lucky that some innocent people weren't killed."

Fullington was stopped for speeding and drunken driving on Texas 26 near Burnet about 2 a.m. in a car with three other soldiers. The DPS officer cuffed Fullington's hands behind his back, put him inside his squad car and went to search the other soldiers.

Boutwell said Fullington apparently sat on his hands and wiggled them under his legs so that his hands were in front, allowing him to drive off in the DPS car.

There appeared to be conflicting reports on the shooting when officers were questioned about it Sunday. Burnet County Sheriff Roy Hilliard said his deputies opened fire as Fullington crashed through the roadblock, while a DPS spokesman said officers fired on him only after he raised a hand and they saw what they believed to be a gun.

"As near as we can determine, both events happened," Boutwell said.

"The officers did open fire on him in an attempt to stop the car" after it crashed through the roadblock, but apparently Fullington was not hit.

"There were numerous bullet holes in the stolen police vehicle, and deputies shot out a tire or two," Boutwell said. The car made it through the roadblock, but swerved off the road and ran into a fence.

"When officers approached, he put the car in reverse, and attempted to back away," Boutwell said. "He was ordered to halt. At that time he raised his hands to the top of the steering wheel. The officers saw a glint, which they assumed to be a weapon. As it turned out it was his handcuffs. Nevertheless they fired at that time, and Fullington was killed by a single bullet to the head."

Youth declared dead second time in week

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — For the second time in a week, 19-year-old Roger T. Ragland of Dripping Springs has been declared dead—the victim of an automobile crash.

A spokesman at Austin's Brackenridge Hospital said Ragland, who showed signs of life 12 hours after being declared dead following the accident last week, died at 6:35 p.m. Monday.

Ragland suffered massive head injuries in the accident last Wednesday and doctors at the hospital told his family Ragland was dead. He was put on a respirator after his family agreed to let doctors remove a kidney for a transplant.

Ragland's family, meanwhile, called a funeral home and the funeral home gave Ragland's death notice to newspapers.

But as doctors prepared last Thursday to remove Ragland's kidney, they noticed movement in his legs. An electro-encephalogram was performed to measure Ragland's brain activity. A neurosurgeon called Ragland's family and informed them of the life signs. Following brain surgery, Ragland clung to life on an artificial life support machine. He remained in critical condition until his death Monday.

"The error that was made—the real tragedy—was that the family was told he was dead. It is a semantic thing. At that time, there was no question his injury was so severe that there was no hope for his recovery," said Dr. George Beathard late Monday.

Beathard, chairman of Brackenridge Hospital's organ donor committee, said the original determination of Ragland's death was made without the application of "brain death techniques."

Texas has no legal standard for declaring a person dead. Brain death, however, is a medically accepted definition.

Dr. James Lindley had said Ragland had shown no brain activity when he was brought to the hospital.

The shock over the latest death announcement Monday squelched the possibility of another kidney transplant, a member of the family said.

Death Row overcrowded; Executions predicted

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas' Death Row is getting so crowded with prisoners condemned to die that correction officials say they may have to open up a new wing of Death Row.

"They're coming in hard and quick" said Department of Corrections spokesman Ron Taylor. "At some point we're going to have to open up a third cell block to house all these people."

But at the same time Taylor predicted Monday that Texas will begin carrying out executions next year for the first time in 14 years.

Taylor said there are now 100 persons in state custody who have been sentenced to die, "plus probably another dozen in county jails who have been sentenced but have not yet been transferred to us."

Taylor said some have been on Death Row for four years, and appeals are beginning to run out. Texas has not executed a prisoner since July 30, 1964, when convicted murderer Joseph Johnson of Houston was electrocuted. The electric chair has been replaced by a method of execution yet to be used — lethal injection.

"It looks like there's a good possibility for an execution in 1979," Taylor said. "My guess is it will be late spring or early summer."

Texas houses its condemned prisoners in single-person cells in the Ellis Unit, about 18 miles north of here. If the trend continues, Ellis' Death Row stands to grow even more crowded before the executions start. Texas juries sentenced 17 persons to death in 1974, but sent 24 convicted killers to death row last year.

Houston juries alone have handed down 12 death sentences so far this year, including four in one week.

A jury in nearby Wharton last month sent the only condemned woman in Texas to Death Row. Mary Lou Anderson of Lake Charles, La., was sentenced to die by an injected overdose of sodium pentothal for hiring a killer to murder her parents so she could collect their life insurance.

Several women have been sentenced to death, but the only woman ever put to death was Chipita Rodriguez. She was hanged from a mesquite tree near Sinton in South Texas in 1863 for murdering a horse trader and stealing his gold.

Texas lawmakers wrote a new capital punishment law in 1973 to replace one declared unconstitutional the previous year. But prisoners have avoided death by continually appealing their cases. Now, legal experts in Austin say time is running out, especially for two condemned inmates, James Paul Burns and Jerry Lane Jurek.

Burns, who was convicted of abducting, torturing and murdering an Odessa man in 1973, he is "pretty close to the end" of his legal battle, an assistant attorney general said.

Jurek, who has been on death row even longer than Burns, was convicted of abducting and strangling Wendy Adams, 10, of Cuero, in August 1973.

More, more, more!

One would think that governors of states would know better and make better corporate decisions on certain occasions. But once again they have failed the test.

Boston was the site of the National Governors Conference this year, and there were those who thought the assembled governors perhaps would see an analogy between a famous tea party of 1773 and the Proposition 13 uprising of angry taxpayers in 1978. But such was not to be. They appeared just as wedded as ever to the easy politics of more, more, more.

The governors wound up calling for more federal aid to the states, and in the next breath demanded that the federal budget be balanced.

The grass-roots tax revolt and the increasing awareness that federal deficits are perpetuating inflation are two dominant facts of life for American politicians today. If the governors would put two and two together, they would realize that the federal government will never get out of the red if it starts bailing out state and local governments facing new limitations on their own taxing power.

California's Jerry Brown

showed up in Boston just long enough to warn that Proposition 13 is the wave of the future, but even after that the governors wouldn't even entertain the dreadful thought that some costly but politically popular programs should be dropped.

Their resolutions did not call on Washington to stop mandating programs for the states to carry out, which would be a credible response both to the tax revolt and the need for a balanced federal budget. Instead, they demanded that Washington send them more money.

But Boston's association with a tax rebellion in colonial times doesn't even impress one of the city's favorite sons, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. He told the governors the present tax revolt isn't as serious as the need for the national health insurance plan he proposes, and he is convinced there are enough loose tax dollars around to cover the $100 billion it would add to the federal budget.

That could be the way things look from Massachusetts these days, but it is hoped the condition isn't contagious. It is likely that some of their constituents upon brought back down to earth by some of their constituents upon their return home.

Kennedy's big goof

Again mentioning Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, and for what's it worth in terms of his future aspirations, he has flunked the standard test in Quiet Diplomacy.

The basic rule is just what the term implies — keep it quiet until the results are in the bag.

But Sen. Kennedy came home from Moscow and immediately called a news conference to announce that, thanks to his personal persuasion in a huddle with Leonid Brezhnev, the Soviet Union was going to grant exit visas to 18 Jewish families heretofore denied permission to emigrate.

Now, as most folks know, nothing annoys the Russians more than any suggestion that pressure from the outside can affect their internal affairs, especially their policy on Jewish emigration. Their bristling response to the Jackson-Vanik amendment, which attempted to use United States trade benefits as a lure to a relaxed policy on emigration, made that clear enough — to everyone except Mr. Kennedy.

Predictably, Pravda responded to the Kennedy news conference with a blast that did not conceal its target.

American politicians are mistaken, said the Communist party's official organ, if they think they can intrude into internal Soviet affairs by posing as "champions of human rights," on visits to Moscow.

Yes, Sen. Kennedy certainly is left with egg on his face, but the real victims of his goof may be those 18 "refusednik" families. Some of them have been waiting for years for a Kremlin decision on their fate.

It would not be surprising if they now have to wait even longer — if they get out at all. They have Sen. Kennedy to thank for the new problem now facing them.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

High flying at U.S. expense

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — The resounding public outcry over sky-high taxes, most dramatically voiced by California voters in their recent approval of Proposition 13, has failed to penetrate into some corners of the federal bureaucracy.

For many paper shufflers, a government job is a free ticket to the good life, a passport to see the world on federal travel vouchers — flying to sunny climes, staying at luxury hotels and dining in gourmet restaurants at the taxpayers' expense.

Like all Americans, these bureaucrats have an inalienable right to the pursuit of happiness. The difference is that they have come to feel they're entitled to pursue happiness at public expense. Each conference, symposium, speaking engagement, field trip, inspection or consultation becomes a welcome excuse to escape from the dull routine of the office and head for the airport.

The school superintendents from all 50 states, for example, recently jetted off to South Padre Island, a resort off the coast of Texas, for an eight-day frolic with federal officials, one of two such junkets the educators take each year.

Not only were they reimbursed for travel and living expenses, but each superintendent was paid $800 in "consulting fees." The Office of Education assured us that the conference — with its $126,000 price tag — was a no-nonsense academic gathering. The superintendents were paid their consulting fees for researching the topics that they discussed with federal officials and each other.

Some of the memos handed out to the visiting school administrators give quite a different impression, however. "Golfers wishing tee time or rides for this afternoon should come to the information desk," one memo instructed the educators. "Fishing and boating are two sports you can enjoy right here on the island," gushed another memo, adding: "Thirty fish — that was the catch of the boat carrying Dr. Robert Brunelle and Dr. Chad Chase on Saturday (sic) and Sunday's excursions into the deep water."

Other memos described the delights of a Mexican fiesta, a barbecue, a trip to the zoo, a tea party and the Texas International Fishing Tournament. One memo kept the supposedly hardworking conferees abreast of the tennis scores, noting that the men's singles crown remained safely in the (school) chiefs' corner.

Despite the solemn claim that the conference was strictly business, 32 officials brought their wives along. An additional 45 children — one aged 24 — traveled to South Padre to take advantage of the Gulf Coast's sun and surf.

Excessive junketing by education bigwigs has stirred some misgivings in the upper echelon of the Health, Education and Welfare Department. Undersecretary Hale Champion warned in a confidential memo to Education Commissioner Ernest Boyer: The Office of Education is of prime concern ... because of recent meetings either held or scheduled in Las Vegas and Williamsburg. Would you please ask your people to keep an eye on it? Las Vegas, I might add needlessly, is tougher to explain than Williamsburg.

HEW is not the only junket-prone agency in the federal wonderland. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, charged with exploring the frontiers of outer space, seems almost equally concerned with propelling key members of Congress on sub-orbital flights around the globe.

These so-called "familiarization" trips are first-class all the way. Ne cramped spaceship quarters or powdered orange drink for the legislators and their aides. In 1974, for instance, then-Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, chairman of a space subcommittee, took giant steps for mankind that took him to Dallas, San Diego, Los Angeles, Honolulu and Australia. The taxpayers' tab for Moss and his colleagues that year was more than $12,000.

HEMISPHERE REPORT: American dollar worries most Latin Americans

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

The dollar seems to interest Latin America more than the United States. Most Americans, apparently convinced that as has been said, there are only two men in the world who really understand international monetary affairs and they don't agree, have never tackled the subject.

Not much of an attempt has been made to popularize the study of money in the United States. One effort, though, was the book, "The Currency Carousel," by Dr. Thomas G. Evans, from which comes the story about the disagreement of the world's only two monetary experts.

In Latin America, however, newspapers and magazines delve into the matter from all angles. The quite often, as happened recently in Mexico City, the problems of the dollar, and what to do about them, make frontpage headlines.

"Latin America Attacks the Dollar as Monetary Standard," the capital city's major daily, Excelsior, proclaimed in big black letters.

William Giandoni

Excelsior was a little more restrained in its story, on the meeting that the heads of most Latin American government central banks had held in the Pacific coast resort city of Acapulco.

The paper reported that the government bankers "coincided" in agreeing that "because of the instability of the world monetary system and the alarming fall of the dollar on international markets," a search for something better than a dollar standard is fully justified.

That is neither new nor startling. The quest has been going on for years, even before the link between the dollar and gold was broken in August 1971 and the dollar was devalued. "Paper-gold," more formally known as Special Drawing Rights, is one ongoing experiment being made by the International Monetary Fund, but it has not solved the problem.

The Acapulco bankers' meeting did serve as a reminder that even though most of the world's exchange rates have been "floating" for years now, the majority of the Latin American countries have chosen to try to maintain a fixed relationship between their monetary unit and the dollar.

It is not necessarily that they are pro-United States or pro-capitalist, but rather that for good business reasons they prefer that their peso or colón or sucre or balboa, or whatever their money may be called, have a fixed dollar value.

As far as Latin America is concerned, the dollar is the yardstick by which values are measured. That is the way it has been for decades and, whether they really like it or not, that is the way it will be as far ahead as they can see in the future.

Of course, Latin America, and the rest of the world for that matter, had much more confidence in the dollar when it was convertible into gold.

It was not that they wanted or even needed gold. After all gold is only good for hoarding or for speculation, but not for productive investment, as Mexico's National Foreign Trade Bank pointed out in its monthly magazine in an article on "The Crumbling of the International Monetary System."

Nevertheless, when the U.S. government decreed the inconvertibility of the dollar into gold and later devalued the dollar, the "world monetary system" entered into a complete crisis, the Mexican government bank said.

Mexicans, as well as most other Latin Americans, could have predicted that. They have had much, much more experience with devaluation than the United States.

Any one of the Latin nations could have told the United States that devaluation just does not get at the root causes of a country's problems.

In any case, by now it is clear that most of the other American republics would like to see a stable monetary system re-established with fixed dollar rates of exchange.

The first requirement for that, though, would be a sound dollar. That is why so many Latin Americans are concerned about the lack of concern the United States shows in the fluctuations of the dollar and their impact on the developing nations of the world.

INSIDE REPORT:

Carter visit raised campaign funds, but little more

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

ASHEVILLE, N.C. — A jubilant Jimmy Carter swept into the Smokies of western North Carolina five days after concluding the Camp David summit to confront the difficulty of translating that personal triumph into help for embattled Democratic candidates.

On his Sept. 22 visit to Asheville, the president was radiantly self-confident and his speeches reminiscent of their 1976 pre-convention form. But it is doubtful that Mr. Carter significantly helped the candidates he came to support. The feeling in North Carolina, before and after his visit, was that the president could generate extra campaign funds here — and little more.

Presidents usually have found it difficult to affect midterm elections, and Mr. Carter has a special problem. Despite his renewed popularity after Camp David, embracing the president's liberal domestic program is risky business for Democratic candidates in an anti-tax, anti-government atmosphere.

North Carolina is especially important because of Sen. Jesse Helms, a rigidly conservative Republican targeted for defeat by the Democratic party's national hierarchy. National chairman John White has taken special interest in this Senate race, bracketing Helms with Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and John Tower of Texas as "radical right" senators to be defeated.

One problem with White's strategy is that North Carolinians simply do not regard Helms as a "radical" six years after he leaped from right-wing television commentator into the U.S. Senate. "Jesse is generally thought of as a fine, Christian gentleman even by people who don't agree with him," one prominent Democrat confided to us.

Another, bigger problem is his opponent: state insurance commissioner John Ingram, a plutocrat-baiting, Bible-quoting populist who upset Luther Hodges Jr. in the Democratic primary. The Democratic establishment's contempt for Ingram is typified by this private assessment by one Democratic politician close to Gov. Jim Hunt: "To be blunt, Ingram is irresponsible and demagogic."

Ingram's money-starved campaign sounds more like the early 1930s and the late 1970s, with the candidate declaring "this fight against the special interests." He says nothing about inflation, refuses to take a position on tax limitation or the Kemp-Roth tax reduction bill and concentrates on blasting Helms as "the $5 million man" because of his bountiful campaign war chest. To establishment Democrats, that will not unseat Jesse Helms.

The purpose of the president's visit was to put a few coins in Ingram's empty treasury. President Carter and Gov. Hunt nudged their rich friends, appalled by Ingram, into buying $550-a-couple tickets to a steak dinner at the distinctly non-populist Biltmore Estate in Asheville. Added to the program was an airport rally for freshman Rep. Lamar Gudger, facing a tight re-election battle.

Next came the customary bickering between the White House and local politicians. The president's men demanded that the Gudger rally be held at the airport instead of downtown Asheville, where a much bigger crowd would have gathered. They also insisted the president's speech include a proposal to make North Carolina a "rural laboratory," which Democrats here correctly forecast would be lost in the hoopla.

Such trivia was eclipsed by the Camp David summit. Ingram became markedly more enthusiastic about the president, proclaiming: "This week we have seen the handiwork of (a) great president of the United States who is leading us out of moral depression." Hunt, a long-time Carter booster, believes Ingram should now tie his campaign to the president.

But Helms' blanket opposition to Carter legislation is so popular that Democrats have stopped calling him "Sen. No." Rep. Gudger's Republican opponent, Buncombe County board chairman Curtis Ratcliff, in a speech the day of the president's visit attacked Gudger's 70 percent pro-Carter voting record.

Hunt's proposed solution: identify with the budget-balancing, government-limiting Carter. The president made that course easier in Asheville by reaffirming his pledge "to get government's nose out of the people's business." But like Ingram, he side-stepped the public's preoccupations by not mentioning inflation or tax reduction.

After forgetting to acknowledge Ingram at the airport rally, the president was lavish for him at the Biltmore Estate fund-raiser. "He (Ingram) may not be as sophisticated as some of you," Mr. Carter told the well-heeled, cocktail-sipping audience, "but neither am I." He then proceeded to draw some strained comparisons between Jimmy Carter and John Ingram.

But the president did not give Ingram's supporters what they wanted most: a frontal attack on Helms. Mr. Carter did not mention him. The general perception that Ingram trails for the Senate and Gudger could lose for Congress was left unchanged by the presidential visit. Even after Camp David, midterm coattails are hard to find.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Work life agency ignored, killed

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) - In the name of efficiency, many areas of the federal bureaucracy might be laid to rest...

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had risen 11.17 points in the past three sessions, was up another .69 at 872.05 a noontime today.

Analysts said there was nothing special in the news to explain the advance.

The rally by the dollar in foreign exchange that seemed to give stock prices a boost on Monday faded today, and many analysts were still talking about the prospect of continued upward pressure on interest rates.

Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller said in a speech to a conference on productivity in New York today, however, that he expected interest rates to peak before year-end.

Lucky Stores led the active list, off 1/2% at 16 1/4. A 234,000share block traded at that price.

Food Fare, which filed Monday for protection under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy law, fell 1/2% to 2 1/4% in active trading.

NYSE's composite index rose .06 to 58.04. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 1.1 to 169.65.

Volume on the Big Board came to 9.26 million shares at noontime, against 8.32 million at the same point Monday.

As the final report states, "The concept of productivity is deceptively simple: It refers to productive efficiency." It measures output - goods and services - against input - labor, capital, materials.

Overly simplified, it means that if we can bake a bigger pie for the price of a smaller one, everyone can enjoy a larger slice without cutting into his neighbor's portion.

George Kuper, the Center's executive director, isn't totally pessimistic. We can, he said, vigorously pursue a program that gives top priority to the problem.

Residential customers of Texas Electric Service Co. will not have to pay state sales tax on electricity beginning next month because of tax reform measures passed last summer by the Texas Legislature, C.W. Barclay, TESCO manager, said today.

The Legislature also gave cities an option of retaining or repealing the 1 percent city sales tax on residential gas and electric bills.

Midland City Council voted to retain that tax. TESCO will eliminate city sales tax on residential electric bills in those towns that repealed the tax, said Barclay.

Residential customers in towns where the city sales tax on electricity has not been repealed will still see it on their bills next month, Barclay said.

The exemption from state and city sales tax on gas and electric bills applies to all "residential use" customers, meaning any use in a family home, a multi-family apartment complex or any building occupied as a residence, Barclay said.

Activities at Hillcrest Manor will be outlined for members of the Housing Authority of Midland when they meet at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The panel will convene in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

The executive director will report on conditions found during the annual inspection of all apartments at Hillcrest Manor, and the panel should review conditions at the residence resulting from the recent rains.

Ruth Wenck is to give a report on the status of home rehabilitation through private contributions obtained by the Midland Commission for Local Community Development.

THE BRONCO BUSTER

The BRONCO BUSTER was Remington's first and most famous sculpture. This bronze is not a scaled-down replica, but a casting derived from an original 22 1/2" high bronze from the Earl E. Heikka Museum Collection.

Shipments of farm gas should have protection says agriculture body

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interstate shipments of natural gas for agricultural use "should be well protected" against interruptions by new legislation headed for final action in Congress this month, says the Agriculture Department.

The Senate approved a conference report on new natural gas legislation last week and the House is scheduled to vote on it Oct. 12.

A background paper issued Monday by USDA says that the Natural Gas Policy Act has two major provisions of concern to farmers and agribusinesses — Section 206(b) relating to "incremental pricing" and Section 401 about gas for "essential agricultural use" and natural gas curtailment policies.

The USDA background paper said that: "The measure defines agricultural use as gas used for 'agricultural production, natural fiber production, natural fiber processing, food processing, food quality maintenance, irrigation pumping, crop drying, or as a process fuel or feedstock in the production of fertilizer, agricultural chemicals, animal feed or food.'"

Under the provision, the secretary of agriculture will certify to the secretary of energy and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission the amount of natural gas needed for agricultural uses for "full food and fiber production."

Within 120 days of enactment of the measure, the secretary of energy "shall prescribe and make effective a rule on non-curtailment policy for interstate pipelines concerning the non-curtailment of natural gas for essential agricultural uses." The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission will implement the rule.

Further, the report said, the commission "in consultation with the secretary of agriculture" will determine if alternative fuels are "economically practicable and reasonably available" to meet the certified needs of agricultural producers.

"If both criteria are met, the uses will not qualify for a curtailment priority," the USDA said.

However, the commission, in determining "economically practicable" fuels "shall not include a requirement to switch to high cost alternatives" to natural gas, it said.

"For example, this should rule out forcing farmers to convert natural gas-powered irrigation pumps to any other energy source in the near future because alternative fuels are sharply higher priced," the report said.

As a further backstop, the "secretary of agriculture may intervene" in curtailment proceedings by the commission when it implements this section of the measure, it said.

On pricing, the legislation directs the commission within 12 months to "implement incremental pricing pass-through to industrial boiler facilities served by interstate pipelines."

The bill "focuses the incremental cost of acquiring new supplies of natural gas to be billed to large industrial boiler facilities served by an interstate pipeline" until they reach the energy equivalent price of alternative fuels — generally, No. 2 fuel oil.

As outlined in the USDA report, the commission will place the incremental pricing pass-through for industrial boiler facilities served by the interstate gas pipelines within 12 months of the legislation's enactment.

Within 18 months of enactment, incremental pricing "is to be applied to other industrial facilities" served by interstate natural gas pipelines.

But the legislation also provides "interim exemption" from incremental pricing for any agricultural facility that uses natural gas, the report said.

"While not specifically identified, we would expect the secretary of agriculture would be consulted on determining agricultural uses to be exempt," the USDA report said.

Based on 1975 figures, agricultural uses accounted for only 6.4 percent of the natural gas consumed in the United States that year.

Director James Bouldin of the Oil and Gas Division said the amendment would exempt some 2,000 gas reservoirs with low capacity, which are tapped by one or two wells, from special field rules.

The commission said the amendment, with others, is expected to simplify regulation and reduce paperwork for producers, as well as the commission.

"This decreases the total recovery from the lease before the investor just 'quits' to avoid losing money," he said.

Dougherty based his remarks on a study he and John Lohnz of the U.S. Geological Survey made of royalty bidding.

He said royalty, to an investor in oil and gas production, is an added cost of operation which, like all costs, increases the limited economic production rate.

Gas well potentials

Exxon Corp. has announced potential test for its No. 2-1 Leede Gas Unit, new well in the Soda Lake (Fusselman) area of Ward County, 10 miles southeast of Mentone.

The well finalized for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 12,082,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 19,107 to 19,187.

The project was drilled to 19,495 feet and five-inch casing was cemented at 19,493 feet. The plugged back depth is 19,370 feet.

The well is 966 feet from northwest and southwest lines of section 7, block 1, W&NW survey.

REAGAN TESTS

Rial Oil Co. of Midland spotted two projects in the Farmer (San Andres) pool area of Reagan County, 10 miles southwest of Big Lake.

No. 1-23-A University is 1,650 feet from north and 2,310 feet from west lines of section 23, block 48, University Lands survey.

No. 1-23-B University is 2,310 feet from north and east lines of section 23, block 48, University Lands survey.

Each of the projects will be drilled to 2,800 feet.

Four wildcat projects announced in Basin

Four wildcat projects have been announced in Permian Basin counties, one in Reeves, two in Eddy, N.M., and one in Chaves, N.M.

Great Western Drilling Co. will drill No. 1 Downes as a 13,000-foot wildcat in Reeves County, two and one-quarter miles southeast of the depleted Block 72 (Pennsylvanian) field and six miles northwest of Toyah.

The project is 1,320 feet from south and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 3, block 70, psi survey.

Sale of oil technology challenged by senator

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., today challenged a Defense Department review that led to approval of sales of advanced oil-drilling technology to the Soviet Union.

Jackson commented as the investigations subcommittee he heads opened an inquiry into the $144 million sale by Dresser Industries of Dallas.

He said there is evidence the Pentagon said in his prepared opening statement.

He said there is evidence the Defense Department was wrong in concluding that key elements of the oil drilling technology can be procured outside the United States.

He cited a Defense Department study by J. Fred Bucy, president of Texas Instruments, which concluded the technology is available elsewhere only in limited quantity and inferior quality.

The Bucy report concluded that the tungsten carbide element of the manufacturing technology could easily be adapted to the production of armor-piercing projectiles. It said the computer-controlled electron beam welder is easily diverted to military use and is not available outside the United States without restrictions.

Charles W. Duncan, deputy secretary of defense, concluded in a memo approved an export license for Dresser after receiving an expert opinion that the company's proposal to build a Russian plant to produce deep-well rock drilling bits could be of practical military benefit to the Soviet Union.

"The information developed to date raises serious questions concerning the adequacy of the national security assessment which preceded the initial license approvals made by the government in general and the Defense Department in particular," Jackson said in his prepared opening statement.

dated Aug. 26 that a reassessment of all factors showed "small risk" to military security from the transfer of any of the components of the drill bit manufacturing system.

However, Duncan did recommend that the Dresser Industries export license application be suspended pending a study of the potential of the technology to increase Soviet oil reserves.

President Carter has determined the transaction should continue.

The inquiry coincides with a growing concern in Congress and in the Carter administration over the worsening U.S. balance of trade position.

The administration said last week it intends to grant export license requests in most cases almost automatically. It said exceptions would be made in the case of nuclear technology or when national security clearly would be threatened.

By LOUISE COOK

Clip and cash. That's the motto for millions of Americans who are clipping, collecting and cashing in coupons in an effort to cut grocery bills. The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that four out of five families — 80 percent — use coupons today. In 1970, a survey by the Nielsen Clearing House division of the A.C. Nielsen Corp. showed 65 percent of all households using coupons.

Manufacturers alone are expected to issue almost 70 billion coupons this year, according to the USDA, up from 62 billion in 1977 and 46 billion in 1976. Those figures do not include the millions of coupons issued by retailers, usually in newspaper advertisements. The more than 2 billion coupons redeemed last year had a face value of $500 million, the Agriculture Department says.
