Somewhere, out yonder in the vastness of this niche of earth, is a "lost world of wild beauty."

The words are intriguing...lost world and wild beauty.

It's as if you're being beckoned to an Indian summer of resplendent beauty and ecstasy.

But, beware, for the wilderness can be foreboding to the uninitiated, and the beauty can be deceiving to the naive.

But in the context of the Texas Mountain Trail, which takes in mountainous Southwestern-most Texas, there's a friendliness to the wilderness and nothing to fear in its beauty — as long as you don't violate any of nature's laws.

This wilderness and beauty has been portrayed as a haven — a hiatus from the drudgery of the working life — by the folks down at Alpine, Fort Davis and Marfa who are promoting tourism.

The words they put together may sound high-flown, and the images they evoke may be more ambiguously aesthetic than filled with clarity. But they do yield a certain serenity.

$2 million Lockheed bait is questioned

BIG SPRING — The validity of an ordinance passed in February by the Big Spring City Council authorizing the issuance of $2.2 million in certificate of obligation to help lure Lockheed Aircraft here remained a question mark today.

City officials averted a bond election through a state law enacted last year which enables government bodies to declare a state of emergency and go ahead and issue the certificates without public approval.

Citizens, though, can still ensure a bond election if five percent of the voters sign a petition, according to the law.

City Manager Harry Nagel said Tuesday a recent petition drive calling for a bond election will not affect the city's plans to build a 90,000 square foot airplane hangar and accomplish other modifications at Big Spring Air Industrial Park in order to interest Lockheed in locating in the city.

However, former City Commissioner Jack Watkins, organizer of the petition, Tuesday said he is convinced the petition is a valid one since, he said, the petition was filed before the state Comptroller's Office issued the certificates.

"I called up the bond division of the Comptroller's Office Friday and was told that no bonds had yet been issued. The way the law reads, only after the Comptroller's office of public accounts issues the bonds is it uncontested," Watkins told The Reporter-Telegram.

Jim Riggs of the state attorney general's office said today he knows of no certificate of obligation filed with either the state attorney general's office or the comptroller.

Nagel said the petition is an invalid one because he claims that many who signed have since requested their names be stricken. He claimed Tuesday that some of the signers were given misinformation about the con-

Carter, allies square off

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of President Carter's most powerful allies in Congress will be voting against him in the confrontation over the $10.2 billion public works bill the president has labeled "inflationary...wasteful...absolutely unacceptable."

Carter told reporters Tuesday he will veto the bill later this week.

He decided on the action knowing the Democratic leadership of the House and Senate will support efforts to enact the measure over his veto and also aware that the fight may cost him votes on his energy package.

A two-thirds majority in the House and Senate is required to override a veto. The measure passed by far more than two-thirds in both chambers, but that is rarely a true test of the vote on a motion to override, especially when the veto is by a president of the same party which controls Congress.

Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Ala., floor manager of the bill in the House, which will vote first, said the override vote will occur the same day Carter sends his veto message to Congress.

"It's very close," said Bevill. "It could go either way, but we believe we're going to override."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., assistant Senate majority leader, said if the House overrides Carter's veto, he is certain the Senate will follow suit.

"I'm confident that a strong majority of Democrats and a strong majority of Republicans will vote to override," said Cranston.

Normally a strong administration supporter, Cranston plans to vote to override.

Other key defectors from the administration camp are Majority

Newspaper claims KGB killed ex-CIA official

BALTIMORE (AP) — The CIA fears former agent John Paisley may have been murdered by Soviet Secret police because of his connection with the agency's satellite surveillance system, the Wilmington News Journal reported today. A CIA spokesman termed the report "ridiculous."

Maryland State Police Cpl. Jerry Eisemann, meanwhile, said Paisley's death "appears to be a suicide by all indications," but added that murder was still a possibility in the case.

Paisley's body was recovered from the mouth of the Patuxent River Sunday. He had 40 pounds of diving weights strapped around his waist and a bullet hole in his head.

"There were no signs of a struggle," said Eisemann. "The weight belt was fastened in front of his body as it would have been normally."

"But we don't know. We don't have a weapon," he added. "We're not striking out either one (suicide or murder.) It's an unusual occurrence."

Eisemann also said state police have had no contact with the CIA apart from asking for help in identifying Paisley's body.

In a copyright story, the News Journal quoted unnamed high-level CIA sources as saying that Paisley was still serving as a consultant with the CIA at the time of his death.

The chief spokesman for the CIA denied that the agency had any fears Paisley had been murdered by Soviet agents.

"That is ridiculous," said CIA spokesman Herbert E. Hetu. "Why would they murder him because he knew about the satellite surveillance program. I know as much about satellite surveillance as he did and I have no fear."

Hetu said Paisley was "an analyst. He wasn't a spy," and confirmed that Paisley was still serving as a consultant with the CIA at the time of his death.

He also denied that the CIA was taking any active role in the investigation beyond cooperating with Maryland State Police.

"We are an overseas intelligence collecting organization. We don't do domestic investigations. That is prohibited by executive order," Hetu added.

The News Journal, however, reported that the CIA is taking an active role in the investigation.

Meanwhile, Maryland State Police continued their investigation of Paisley's death.

Paisley retired from the CIA in 1974 after serving as deputy director of the CIA's Office of Strategic Research. He had worked as a consultant to the accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand for the past six months.

CIA spokesman Dale Peterson in Washington earlier characterized Paisley's work as "analytical, not covert." Peterson said the Office of Strategic Research analyzes foreign military programs, especially those

Stella Taylor

Hates to lose, may try again

By JOHN PLATERO

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Defeated twice in her attempt to swim across a mighty river in the ocean, Stella Taylor says she may try once more to outwit the Gulf Stream — by reversing directions.

"I hate to lose," the gutsy 46-year-old British-born marathon swimmer murmured through parched lips Tuesday after abandoning her Bahamas-to-Florida swim 28 miles short of victory.

She swam a remarkable 51 hours and covered, by one ship captain's estimate, at least 160 miles before reluctantly quitting at 1:40 p.m. EDT — two days and three hours after leaving Orange Cay, Bahamas.

Sharks, swelling, venomous jellyfish, scorching sun and bone-wearying fatigue had hindered Miss Taylor but not stopped her. In the end, her swim succumbed for a second time to the Gulf Stream, an ocean current greater than a thousand Mississippi Rivers.

In this swim and her attempt in August, she could never break out of the current and into safe waters near shore, although her first swim brought her to within 12 miles of Florida.

"She bounced against it like a rubber barrier," crewman Joe Edwards said of the strong northward flow.

But as she ate scrambled eggs Tuesday night and wondered what went wrong, Miss Taylor was already dreaming of another try, this time heading the other way.

"I think I'm going to do the Keys to the Bahamas," she told The Associated Press by telephone from a friend's home where she was resting after turning down a doctor's advice to go to a hospital. She said she couldn't afford a hospital stay, since she spends most of time training and has no job.

Miss Taylor was still stroking Tuesday when trainer Bob Dunkle paddled alongside her on a surfboard to persuade her the effort was hopeless. "I could have gone some more," she said later.

But when she arrived at a Fort Lauderdale pier after being ferried in, she appeared drained from the ordeal. She could scarcely speak. Her face was painfully sunburned. The 51-hour salt water soaking left her lips and hands puffed.

She estimated she had suffered 200 jellyfish stings.

Ralph Mazzoli, captain of the press boat Idle Day that accompanied the expedition, estimated Miss Taylor's zig-zag odyssey covered at least 160 miles. But he said the true figure may never be known since calculating swimming distance at sea is difficult.

Nearly a dozen sharks were sighted while she plowed through the sea. None attacked, but she was forced out of the water periodically while worried aides frightened the sharks away.

Miss Taylor, a Bristol, England, native, who once studied in a Buffalo, N.Y., convent but never took her final vows as a nun, has conquered the English Channel twice.

While her talk of another try was not specific, her chief coordinator, Doug O'Donnell, said nothing would surprise him.

"She's not a quitter," said O'Donnell. "She's liable to do anything once she's well."

United Way fund drive reaches 28 percent mark

United Way of Midland campaign volunteers today reported that a total of $262,733, or about 28 percent, has been pledged toward the 1979 campaign goal of $928,686.

The figures were announced at the campaign's first weekly report meeting this morning.

In addition, Midland police and firemen officially opened their campaign to solicit contributions from about 300 intermediate-sized Midland businesses.

The two departments will be in touch with an equal number of city businesses, trying to outdo each other in friendly competition, United Way officials said.

Assistant Fire Marshal Jerry Pe-tree and Police Inspector Joe Miles will lead the departments in this unusual competition, according to Salvation Army Capt. Bob Vincent, coordinator of the effort.

Also at the report meeting today, The First National Bank and Frank See Chevrolet representatives received awards for 100 percent employee participation in the United Way campaign.

See employees also were commended for a 282 percent increase over last year.

The two firms — First National and See Chevrolet — were among 13 businesses and organizations which participated in a pilot campaign designed to train solicitors and to set a pace for the general campaign, campaign chairman Tom Brown said today.

The next campaign report meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. Oct. 11 in the Texas Electric Service Co. Reddy Room.

Fear, grief expressed by workers from refinery

By BARRY HANSON

COMMERCE CITY, Colo. (AP) — The weeping Vietnam War veteran said he wouldn't return to work at the Continental Oil Co. refinery where thundering explosions killed three persons and injured 12 others.

"You're looking at one person who's not coming back to work here," said the man, who asked not to be identified because company officials had told workers not to talk about Tuesday's blast.

The worker said it wasn't worry about unsafe conditions that made him decide not to return. "I lost some friends in that fire. It's fear and grief and a combination of a lot of things," he explained.

Some of the dozen injured persons suffered serious burns. Others were injured less seriously by flying glass and other debris.

The blast sent bright orange fire balls and thick, black smoke soaring hundreds of feet into the air. Chunks of twisted metal — some as large as a car door — rained down near homes up to two miles away.

Explosions could be heard 30 miles up and down the Rocky Mountain foothills. Fire raged through portions of the plant for more than three hours Tuesday morning.

Production was halted at the 48-year-old plant, located in this industrial city which abuts Denver. Company officials said it may be weeks before the full extent of the damage is known.

Plant manager Robert Alexander said the cost of replacing damaged equipment could range from $5 million to $10 million if nothing is salvageable.

Alexander said indications were that the blast was started when hydrocarbon vapor, a flammable mixture of propane and butane, leaked into the air. "That vapor was ignited.

We don't know how," he said.

He said the blast was believed to have been centered in a $2.5 million catalytic polymerization unit that had been in operation only two weeks.

The victims were identified as Stephen French, 24, and Ronald DeHerrera, 22, both of Adams County, and David Hobbs, 32, of Northglenn. The Adams County Communications Center initially reported four dead Tuesday morning, but later revised the figure.

Although the plant employs 125 persons, only 14 men were working the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift.

The unit retrieves waste gases — such as propane and butane — from the refining process and combines them to make gasoline and other liquid petroleum products, Alexander said.

John Gehbauer, a Conoco public relations official, said the refinery supplied about 25 percent of the Denver area's petroleum products. But he said shortages were not expected and "there won't be any gas stations closing tomorrow."

The stunned worker said smoke and flames from the blast resembled pictures he had seen of the mushroom cloud at Hiroshima.

A friend walked with him just outside the explosion area, where twisted pipes still smoked and fire hoses spewed water onto smoldering debris. The friend carried the glove of a dead worker.

"It looked like Vietnam in the mid-60s, the Tet Offensive," the Army veteran said. "Everything was mel- low, and then all hell broke loose."

"I started running down to see if I could be of any help," said the other worker, who also asked not to be identified. "I saw a man running out. He was all burned, and his clothes were ripped off his body. I helped carry him to the guard shack."

The victim was identified as Fred Nelson, 31, of Denver, who was hospitalized for first-degree burns and was reported in serious condition.

The employee who helped Nelson said the blaze was so intense it was impossible for other crew members on duty to extinguish it.

"You staff for the normal and the staffing is adequate, but the magnitude of this was just more than we could handle," the veteran said.

Ethics panel to hear arguments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee, which has recommended censure for one representative and a reprimand for another in connection with alleged South Korean influence buying, was moving today to complete its probe of two more members.

The committee said it would hear final arguments, similar to a summation of the prosecution and defense positions, in the cases of Rep. John J. McFall, D-Calif., and Rep. Edward J. Patten, D-N.J.

A decision on what punishment, if any, to recommend could come at the close of the arguments. But if any are recommended it will be the full House that decides what punishments should be imposed.

McFall was accused of failing to report a $3,000 campaign contribution in 1974 from South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park and of converting the money to his own use. McFall was then the House Democratic Whip.

He also was accused of earlier receiving $1,000 and a silver tea set valued at $500 from Park, a key figure in the affair, "under circumstances which might be construed by reasonable persons as influencing the performance of his government duties."

McFall acknowledged receiving the funds and the gift but argued the $3,000 was not a campaign contribution because he never treated it as such. He instead put the money into his office account, he said.

He also said that reasonable persons would not find the gifts from Park influenced the performance of his duties. And McFall added that two letters he wrote to South Korean President Park Chung Hee and two more letters to Park were intended to help rice growers in the congressman's district sell their surplus rice to South Korea.

Patten was accused of claiming as his own two $500 contributions Park made to the Middlesex County, N.J., Democratic Organization. The New Jersey Democrat testified he sent two $500 checks in his own name to the organization because he did not want to send the cash Park gave him through the mail.

But Patten denied he intended to claim the contributions as his own and he said he assumed his administrative assistant would take care of the paperwork and inform the organization that Park was the donor.

McFall and Patten are the last of the four current congressmen accused of misconduct by the committee, whose probe is separate from a Justice Department investigation.

The committee last week recommended that Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., become the first House member to be censured in more than a half century. It also recommended that Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., be reprimanded.

The panel found that Roybal failed to report a $1,000 campaign contribution he received from Park, that he converted the money to his own use and that he lied to the committee by originally denying that he received the money from Park.

Two men killed in elevator blast

SAVAGE, Minn. (AP) — Two men were killed and one was missing after an explosion and fire ripped through the Port Bunge grain terminal, authorities said.

Two others at the elevator were hospitalized in serious condition following the Tuesday afternoon blast, which blew out a wall in the elevator shaft and hurled debris up to 200 feet.

Heavy excavating equipment was brought in to search the rubble for what authorities feared would be a third body.

Authorities withheld identification of the dead men pending lab tests by the Hennepin County medical examiner's office.

Savage Police Chief Dick O'Keefe said the two bodies "were burned beyond recognition."

The injured were identified as Don Kahout, a maintenance man, and Michael Alexander, 30, Minneapolis, a state grain sampler. They were taken to a Shakopee hospital for treatment of first and second degree burns.

The explosion sprayed the area with corn and chunks of concrete and debris. Within seconds fire broke out in the head house at the top of the elevator, about 160 feet from ground.

"I had just crawled out of the silos about two minutes before the explosion," said grain worker Norm Jensvold. "I saw the dust flying out behind me and I heard the rushing — like a heavy wind — and I knew what was going to happen. I ran as hard as I could towards the river."

The 9 million bushel elevator owned by the Bunge Corp. is on the Minnesota River 30 miles south of Minneapolis. There was no grain in it at the time of the blast.

Men held in seizure may be released

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Two men being held in connection with the seizure of 5½ tons of marijuana may be freed because of lack of evidence against them, the Oakland County Prosecutor's office says.

The marijuana, packed into 392 five-gallon pickle buckets and lashed into 28 sealed cardboard containers, was confiscated Monday night at the Pontiac airport by state police acting on a tip received by U.S. Customs officials.

The troopers watched from a distance as two men unloaded the 28 boxes from a four-engine B68A aircraft and loaded it into a tractor-trailer rig.

State police said the seizure is one of the largest ever in Michigan. They placed its street value at from $750,000 to $4 million, depending upon its quality and the quantities in which it was sold.

Arrested as they drove from the scene were Robert Kobusch, 29, of Chicago and Duilio Fanti, 37, of Carbondale, Colo., police said.

But the prosecutor's office said Tuesday that police have been unable to determine if the two men were part of an elaborate smuggling ring or unwitting victims.

A third man, believed to have piloted the plane here sometime Monday afternoon, has disappeared, police said.

The bill of lading produced by the two arrested men indicated the load consisted of fertilizer, according to police.

Federal Drug Enforcement Administration officials, who are helping investigate the case, said the two men could be charged under any one of several federal anti-smuggling or drug laws, if further investigation shows they knew their cargo was marijuana.

Investigators said Tuesday that they had discovered the truck was leased from a Chicago firm, Willett National Leasee, and the airplane was leased from another Illinois company, Hughes Associates of Hillside.

Soviets send more supplies, prolong record space flight

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched another unmanned supply ship, Progress 4, today to prolong the record-breaking flight of two Russian cosmonauts aboard the Salyut 6 space station.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported that all systems aboard the automatic transport ship were operating normally.

Progress 4 is carrying fuel and assorted cargo for cosmonauts Vladimir Kovalenok and Alexander Ivanchenko who hold the space endurance record as they begin their 15th week aboard the orbiting space laboratory.

It was the third Progress ship launched to carry supplies to the Kovalenok-Ivanchenko mission. Progress 2 was launched on July 7 and Progress 3 on Aug. 8 to ferry mail, food and other items.

The launchings of the Progress ships have enabled the Soviet space program to make full use of the Salyut 6 space lab and to extend the many experiments which the cosmonauts are performing on board.

Western experts here say the main reason the Russians are so interested in prolonged space flight is to see "how far their men and machinery can go" in a weightless, stress-laden environment.

Most of the experiments underway focus on the physical effects of prolonged weightlessness for the cosmonauts as well as for plantlife, metals, lower animal-life and other matter.

Kovalenok and Ivanchenko broke the Soviet-held record of 96 days, 10 hours set by comrades Georgy Grechko and Yuri Romanenko aboard Salyut 6 on Feb. 11, and there are no signs at present that the Russians intend to end the mission very soon.

The Soviets have shattered the previous U.S.-held space endurance record of 84 days set by Skylab 4 astronauts four years ago, and the United States has not launched a manned space flight since 1975.

But plans are underway to get the American "space shuttle" going by 1980, and Western experts here say the Soviets are anxious to "set some records" now before the shuttle begins operating.

Kovalenok and Ivanchenko continue their program of scientific experiments and routine maintenance chores aboard the space lab, focusing on earth and ocean photography and metallurgical tests.

According to Western experts, the metal experiments are particularly important because new alloys and compounds can be created in the weightless environment of space that would be impossible to do on the ground because of the effects of gravity.

DEATHS

Dale Collins

Dale O. Collins, 69, of 1601 Winfield St. died Monday of an apparent heart attack. He had been in a minor traffic accident.

Services were to be at 2 p.m. today in First Baptist Church Chapel with Dr. Daniel Vestal, pastor, officiating. Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Collins was born July 26, 1909, in Gustine, where he was reared. He attended business college in Dallas. He moved to Midland from New Iberia, La., in 1945. He worked for Continental Supply Co. both in Midland and McCarney.

Collins established his own business, DTS Tire Co., in 1964. He was a member of First Baptist Church in McCarney.

Survivors include a son, William D. "Bill" Collins of Corpus Christi; a daughter, Mrs. Walter (Sylvia) Lange of Midland; a sister, Mrs. Cleo Harvey of Gustine; a brother, Jerry Collins of Franklin, and four grandchildren.

Pallbearers were to be Billy Ray Stuteville of Justine; Clarence Holliday and Ron Totivent, both of Odessa, and Dr. S.B. Shannon, Lloyd Arnsmeier and Bill Farnum, all of Midland.

Honorary pallbearers were to be E. Yates Brown of Midland and Jerry Edwards of Arlington.

John H. Fenton

GRANBURY — Services for John H. Fenton of Granbury, and formerly of Midland, were to be at 3 p.m. today in Martin's Funeral Home here with the Rev. Don Scott, pastor of the Acton United Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial was to be in Acton Cemetery. He died Monday in a Granbury hospital.

Fenton was general manager of U.S. Pipe and Foundry.

Survivors include his wife, Virginia; three daughters, Susan Smith and Mary Virginia Fenton, both of Houston, and Kathleen Keesee of Fort Worth; a sister, Mary E. Fenton of Dallas, a grandson, three nephews and a niece.

'Pop' Trantham

Services for L.A. "Pop" Trantham, 89, of 409 Weatherford St. were to be at 4 p.m. today in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home with Don Mitchell of Fort Worth and Jax Streets Church of Christ officiating. Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Trantham died Saturday in a Midland nursing home.

He was born March 7, 1889, in Martin, Tenn., where he was reared. He moved in 1910 to Commerce, where he farmed. He was married to Mattie Buys in 1925 in Bosque County.

Trantham moved to Midland in 1948 and worked as a custodian for several years for the Midland Independent School District. He retired in 1964. He also worked for Asbury United Methodist Church. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife; five sons, Audie Trantham of California, Basil Trantham of North Kansas City, Mo., J.B. Trantham of Iowa Park, Wendell Trantham of Bogart, Ga., and L.A. "Alonzo" Trantham of Midland; five daughters, Gladys Rhea and Zora Henson of Midland, Opal Shelton of Goldthwaite, Edythe Younger of McFall, Mo., and Fronzo Ballard of Villegreen, Colo.; a brother, Robert Trantham of Tyler; a sister, Mrs. Bennie Harden of San Diego, Calif.; 28 grandchildren, 41 great-grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were to be Printus Burkhart, E.W. Blankenship, Charlie Dodson, Hal Hall, James Quinn and Harmon Bielby.

Honorary pallbearers were to be Henry Wright, Bruce Alsbrook, Carl Langley, Marvin Langley and Roy Langley.

Jan Abel

ODESSA — Services for Jan Abel, 23, of Talahina, Okla., daughter of Donna Hollon of Midland, will be at 10 a.m. Thursday in Beacon Baptist Church here. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Garden under direction of Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

She died Sunday. Mrs. Abel was born June 21, 1955, in Kermit. She was married to Glenn Abel Sept. 21, 1974, in Odessa. She had lived in Odessa from 1961 to 1977. She was a Baptist.

Other survivors include her husband; a son, Glenn Victor Abel of Talahina; her father, Leonard Carman of Athens, Greece; three sisters, Dimple Ann Tatum of Odessa, Raynita Carman and Shannon Carman, both of Greece, and her paternal grandmother, Maudie Carman of Surprise, Ariz.

Honorary pallbearers were to be Henry Wright, Bruce Alsbrook, Carl Langley, Marvin Langley and Roy Langley.

Dan 'Red' Scott

Services for Dan "Red" Scott, 63, of 1007 Tarleton St. will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home with the Rev. J.R. Farmer, pastor of the First Assembly of God in Midland, officiating. Dr. Claude Craven, pastor of the First Assembly of God in Big Spring, will assist. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Scott died Tuesday in a Big Spring hospital following a lengthy illness. He was born Sept. 17, 1915, in Hubbard. He moved to Big Spring in the early 1930s and moved to Midland in 1959.

Scott was married to Roxie Mae Day on June 3, 1941, in Sterling City. She died Feb. 17, 1977. He was married to Jo Stevens McCullough on Jan. 31, 1978, in Big Spring.

Scott was a self-employed automobile appraiser. He was a member of the First Assembly of God Church in Big Spring.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Larry Scott of San Angelo; a daughter, Sue Keller of Pearsall; a stepdaughter, Gwyn Horbath of Tulsa, Okla.; a sister, Laverne Blessing of Spokane, Wash., and 10 grandchildren.

Charles Garner

BIG SPRING — Services for Charles Garner, 83, are pending at Larry Sheppard Funeral Home.

He died Monday in a Big Spring hospital. He was born in Tennessee.

Three Midland city Fire Department trucks and an ambulance block traffic between Marienfeld Street and Texas Avenue this morning after a fire was reported on the 11th floor of the Vaughn Building, located at Texas Avenue and North Big Spring Street. The fire actually was on the fifth floor of the building and was extinguished by firemen. Sparks from a workman's welding torch caused the blaze, according to a Fire Department spokesman. The spokesman said no estimate of damage was available as of noon today. (Staff photo by Brian Hendershot)

Bobby Gamble

Carter issues visas to Rhodesians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration decided today to issue visas to Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and his three black colleagues on Rhodesia's ruling Executive Council, informed sources said.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said a formal announcement would be made in late afternoon.

The decision follows a two week tug-of-war within the administration over whether to grant U.S. visas to the leaders of a regime which the United Nations regards as illegal.

According to the informants, Smith and the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole probably will fly to New York on Saturday and then come to Washington early next week. The other two black members of the Rhodesian leadership will come at a later date.

Cooler temperatures likely

The weatherman is predicting cooler temperatures for the Midland area tonight and Thursday. The record high for Oct. 3 was 95 degrees set in 1931. The record low for today was 41 degrees set in 1932. The record low temperature for today is 41 degrees set in 1932. Cool temperatures were reported throughout the Permian Basin early today, according to residents. Andrews was partly cloudy with 56 degrees. Lamesa was clear and cool. Rankin was foggy and cool. Big Lake was clear and cool, as was Odessa, according to residents.

Charge labeled 'ridiculous'

(Continued from Page 1A) of the Soviet Union. Cpl. John Murphy of the Maryland State Police was quoted by the News Journal as saying that numerous CIA documents were aboard Paisley's 31-foot sloop when it was found the day after the 55-year-old Washington resident disappeared. "The Coast Guard turned the documents over to us and we turned them over to Mrs. Paisley," said Murphy. Murphy said that Paisley was still involved in CIA activities. struction project. But Watkins, a Big Spring property owner, later Tuesday insisted there are enough names among the 567 signatories to force the city to hold a bond election.

"I think the city is putting out the misinformation about this. I don't think the public knows the full story on this," he said. "I'm not against Lockheed coming in here. The bond issue is a matter of principle as far as I'm concerned. I feel that the citizens are entitled to vote. And I resent the fact that three persons are going to tell us that we have to like it or lump on $2.2 million."

Watkins was referring to an ordinance signed Feb. 6 authorizing the publication of notice to bidders and notice of intention to issue certificates of obligation for $2.2 million under a declared emergency situation.

The former city official said he was disturbed that Mayor Wade Choate and one of the four city councilmen was absent from that meeting.

A $1 million federal grant and approximately $400,000 in city money will be used to construct the hangar, according to Nagel.

However, Watkins maintained the ordinance passed by the city in effect allows officials to spend up to $2.2 million of city funds if necessary.

"It seems to me that the citizens ought to have a say so when there's that kind of money involved," he said.

A copy of Watkins' petition was filed Friday with City Secretary Tom Ferguson, State Attorney General John Hill and State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Watkins said questions as to whether his petition or the city's ordinance is valid will ultimately have to be answered by Hill or Bullock.

Meanwhile, Nagel and other city officials advocate moving swiftly on construction of the hangar, saying that not to do so will endanger the city's chances of Lockheed locating there.

The purpose of constructing the hangar is in case Lockheed is awarded a multi-million contract to modify the U.S. Navy version of the supersonic McDonnell Aircraft Corp. F-4 Phantom II attack fighter.

However, according to most everyone involved, it is unknown whether Lockheed will definitely get the contract since the company has to bid against several major aircraft companies and a decision will not be reached until mid-December.

Nagel said Tuesday the city has other prospects who are interested in the facility should Lockheed not get the contract.

brilliant Chihuahuan desert. Or the mysterious little-known canyons. Or rugged mountains towering above forested basins.

"Natural phenomena abound on every hand" in a land for year-round camping adventures.

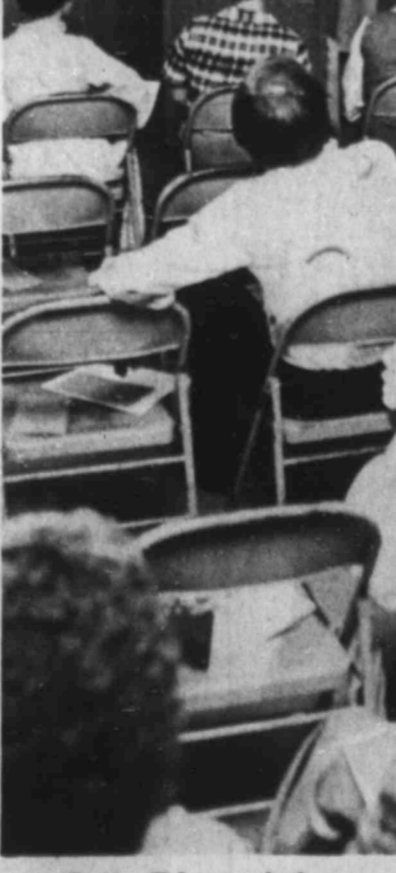

"The geology...is so varied and complex even the experts are not in agreement."

And the delicate spiel wanders into the adventure this Big Bend area offers bird watchers and botanists who adore or who are intrigued by wildflowers.

Unquestionably, this mountain trail is fascinating: In its bounds are the Big Bend National Park, Fort Davis National Historic Site, the Davis Mountains State Park and the mountainous ranchland all about.

It's "Mile-Hi(gh) Country, the Alps of Texas, the Texas Highlands, the famous Texas Mountain Trail."

It's worth many a fling for the adventurer.

Cardinals celebrate funeral Mass for 'smiling pontiff' John Paul

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Under dark skies and showers, red-robed cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church bid farewell today to Pope John Paul I, the "smiling pontiff" who reigned only 34 days.

In the sadness and joy of ancient liturgy, the cardinals celebrated the funeral Mass on the broad marble steps of St. Peter's Basilica, just as they celebrated the requiem for Paul VI on Aug. 12, and with John Paul, concelebrated his inaugural Mass on Sept. 3.

Shortly after the start of the service, rain fell and thousands of umbrellas blossomed in the crowd jammed into the vast square.

Veto opposed

Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., who said he would work to muster the votes to override, and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.

O'Neill raised the possibility that the water projects fight could cost Carter votes on the natural gas bill scheduled for House action.

Bevil and Rep. John T. Myers of Indiana, Republican floor manager for the bill, agreed with the speaker.

The funeral marked the beginning of nine days of official mourning. On the 10th day, cardinals will be sequestered in secrecy in the Sistine Chapel to elect John Paul's successor.

The Mass was televised to millions on a worldwide hookup.

The body of Pope John Paul, who died of a heart attack Thursday at the age of 65, lay in a plain cypress coffin, his head facing the world's largest basilica and feet toward the crowd in the square.

Nearly 5,000 heavily armed policemen and soldiers were deployed to protect the official delegations.

The funeral Mass preceded the burial in the grotto of the basilica, an elaborate underground network of chapels and the resting place for 146 other popes, including what are believed to be the remains of St. Peter, the first pope.

Despite heavy rains since Saturday, about 750,000 mourners had trekked through St. Peter's Square to view Pope John Paul's body as it lay in state in the basilica.

Cardinal Carlo Confalonieri, 85, dean of the College of Cardinals, presided over the Mass.

"Father eternal shepherd," he said, "hear the prayers of your people for your servant Pope John Paul I, who governed your church with love."

"Amen," the crowd responded. A seminary read from the Book of Apocalypses of St. John the Apostle before the homily by Cardinal Confalonieri.

"With faith and confidence," Confalonieri prayed after the homily, "we entrust your servant Pope John Paul to your mercy. He was, for the family of mankind, an instrument of your peace and your love. May he harvest the fruit of his work in the unending joy of your saints."

In a communion prayer, Confalonieri asked God to "Grant to your servant, John Paul, our pope, the joy of entering into full possession of that truth in which he constantly strengthened your people during his life."

Then Cardinal Pericle Felici walked to the coffin, surrounded by all the concelebrants, and asked for prayers.

"Dear beloved, this is the moment when we welcome to God's tender mercy the soul of his servant, John Paul I, our pope."

After the litany of the saints, Cardinal Ugo Poletti, the pope's vicar for Rome, prayed: "May he be welcomed into eternal glory by your son whose vicar on earth he was."

In what is called the final commendation, Confalonieri shook incense over the body while the Sistine Chapel choir chanted, "I believe that my redeemer lives and that I will rise again from the earth at the last day."

"Lord God," Confalonieri said in a final prayer, "you reward without fail those who work for the Gospel, give then to your servant, John Paul I our pope, the grace of witnessing throughout eternity that mystery of peace and love which he, as successor of Peter and pastor of the whole church, faithfully bestowed on your family during his lifetime."

Then, before the body was carried to the grotto, all sang: "May the angels lead you into paradise..."

Forum, scheduled Thursday, to bring candidates together

More than four months after the Republican runoff was held in the 19th District, George Bush of Midland will be face-to-face with his Democratic opponent, Kent Hance of Lubbock, at a forum in Midland on Thursday.

Atlantic Richfield and Sun Oil Co. are sponsoring the forum to begin at 5:30 p.m. in the Coors Building on West Highway 80.

The two men are vying for the Congressional seat being vacated by George Mahon, a Democrat who is retiring from the post he has held 44 years.

Hance, a state senator, won the Democratic nomination in the May primary.

Bush, a Midland independent oil and gas producer, received the Republican nomination in a June runoff against Jim Reese of Odessa.

Barbecue and refreshments will be served at 6 p.m. and the candidates will begin speaking about 6:45 p.m. After giving opening statements, the forum will be opened for a question and answer session.

The program is being sponsored for Arco employees who are members of the Civic Action Program and those at Sun who are in the Responsible Citizen Program, according to Neal McCaskill with the Arco program.

He said the program was started to involve employees in the political system and "to get them to vote."

While this will be the third year for Arco to sponsor a forum, it will be a first for Sun, according to a spokesman for that company.

Individual landowners said victims of eminent domain

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An individual landowner is no match for corporate or governmental legal experts in eminent domain proceedings, a legislative subcommittee concluded Tuesday.

The House Subcommittee on the Power of Eminent Domain reported that more than 170 types of entities — such as pipeline companies, railroads, river authorities and hospitals — have the power of eminent domain.

"Eminent domain" is the inherent power to condemn and take possession of property ostensibly for the general welfare of the public," the subcommittee said.

Summarizing complaints it had heard at public hearings, the subcommittee said:

"... the underlying problem with the power of eminent domain appears to be the structural bias in favor of the condemning authorities, public and private, to the detriment of the landowners. The parties involved in a condemnation are not of equal power and influence.

"An individual is certainly no match for the mass of legal experts and corporate attorneys that a governmental agency or a multinational or national corporation can assemble in a condemnation hearing. This has led to the landowners' feelings of frustration, if not outright contempt, for condemnors of every kind through the years."

The report proposed a better balance between the parties in condemnation proceedings.

The subcommittee also said it "feels strongly that the Legislature in the future should look very closely at any legislation granting the use of eminent domain. We as legislators have been lax in the past and have delegated this awesome power almost as a matter of course, and almost always without close scrutiny."

PTA offers grants

The Texas PTA will provide summer study grants for Texas career teachers who wish to continue their education next summer.

The grants will make eight in-service scholarships available in the summer of 1979 — four valued at $800 each for nine hours of summer coursework and four at $600 each for six hours of coursework.

The scholarships may be used by recipients in any college or university in the continental U.S. in a field which will improve their teaching proficiency.

To be eligible for the scholarships, applicants must be career teachers and have three years teaching experience in Texas immediately prior to application.

They also must be teaching currently in a school with a local PTA unit in membership with the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, and must be members in good standing of a local PTA themselves.

Applications for the Texas PTA 1979 Summer In-Service Scholarships for Teachers are available by writing to Scholarship Grants Committee, Texas PTA, 408 W. Eleventh Street, Austin, Texas 78701.

Requests must be received before Dec. 1, 1978. Deadline for returning completed applications is Jan. 1, 1979.

'Man of the people'

Funeral services for Pope John Paul I were held today as Roman Catholics the world over, as well as all of Christendom, mourned the passing of the world spiritual leader.

A heart seizure last Thursday night felled the Pope who had served in that capacity only 34 days.

His election by the church's cardinals as the 263rd Pope of the 700 million member church had come as somewhat of a surprise to Catholics and others. His sudden death only 34 days later came as a severe shock to people around the globe.

Prior to the pontiff's death, close observers had said that Pope John Paul I left the impression that he was going to be a "man of the people." He had been termed by others as being "very, very open and frank."

He was friendly, smiling and "down to earth," so to speak. He was known for his ecclesiastical conservatism and his life-long concern for the poor.

The Most Rev. Thomas Tschoepe, bishop of the Diocese of Dallas, who presently is in Rome, has been quoted as saying that Pope John Paul I stressed "the virtues of the family, home life and the teaching of religion."

The departed pontiff was a forceful advocate of "Love God and love your neighbor."

Few people outside Italy had ever heard of the man prior to his election, but within a matter of days after he assumed office people around the world were praising and quoting Pope John Paul I.

He undoubtedly would have become one of the most popular, most highly respected and most widely accepted popes ever with Roman Catholics and others. He had that special appeal which people appreciate.

One wonders what high goals would have been achieved and what changes would have been wrought under his leadership.

But such was not to be and now, once again within a very brief period, the church has set into motion the ancient process of choosing its 264th pontiff.

The prayers of Christendom rest upon and with those delegated authorities of the church whose responsibility it is to choose a new leader.

Memory failed us

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. calls attention to the fact that the increase in garbage collection charges did not come without prior warning and explanation, as was intimated in an editorial, "Increased Charges," appearing in last Sunday's Reporter-Telegram.

The mayor is correct. Our memory failed us in this instance.

The city council, at its last regular session, adopted an ordinance, on first reading, increasing the monthly garbage collection charge for residential customers from $2.75 to $4. Apartment rates will go up $1 per month per unit. Commercial rates are due a 15 percent hike.

The Reporter-Telegram editorial had commented that the why of the increased fees should be explained for the people who foot the bill.

Mayor Angelo pointed out that this had been done, as related in a news story appearing in the July 6, 1978, edition of The Reporter-Telegram concerning a news conference at which the city's budget for the coming year had been explained by Angelo and City Manager James Brown.

Angelo said at that time that although the new budget reflected an 11 percent increase, the tax rate would not be hiked, but that various fees and charges for city services "will be raised to cover the increased budget."

He referred specifically to the hike in the garbage collection fees, stating this was the first increase for residential customers since 1970. He added that commercial rates had been raised two years ago and that an additional 15 percent increase is planned this year. It also was stated that the residential increase will give the city an additional $475,000 in funds.

That's the way it was, and we stand corrected. But it is still a sizeable increase, regardless.

Dope raids cause big ruckus in D. C. suburb schools

WASHINGTON — The cops in next-door Montgomery County have been raiding public junior and senior high schools for two weeks now, have arrested 102 youngsters for drug violations and caused a first-rate ruckus among school administrators, students and parents.

While students, and some parents, argue that students have been smoking pot for years, so what's new, the "straights" are also speaking out. "A lot of students and teachers feel that the (arrested) students got and deserve what they ask for," said Ann Fein, a teacher at Whitman. "They knew what was happening (arrests) at other schools, so they were not innocent babes in the woods. They were trying to make a point."

Naturally, the establishment, while not wanting to be depicted as pro-dope, has reservations about the raids. The County Executive, James Gleason, allows that the sweeps have a message value but shouldn't continue too long because they would disturb a free classroom climate where students' "minds are geared toward education." The trouble is that some students' minds are too clouded to be geared.

The Board of Education points out its policy, in effect since 1973, requires staffers to report any youngster suspected of being involved with drugs to the principal, then the parents and police. But when such a staffer approaches a kid smoking a joint, that kid usually takes off. Still, some 470 students were apprehended by school officials in Montgomery County last year. Not much came of these catches, however.

The cops are far more effective. Youngish officers who look like campus hangers-on or are disguised as workers, make good undercover agents. One school board official lamented that the cops also use binoculars. So cops are able to make quick arrests which stick. One senses that school officialdom resents all this. The Bethesda-Chevy Chase principal wasn't happy that the cops didn't tip him about the raid. Dr. Kenneth K. Muir, the school board

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND Key to Vesco mystery revealed

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — The key to the Robert Vesco mystery, despite an intensive effort to remove it elsewhere, still lies in the White House.

Some intriguing questions have been raised by the reluctant explanations that the Securities and Exchange Commission has now forced out of the White House.

By a White House spokesman's account, presidential aide Richard Harden was informed on Feb. 8, 1977, that the international swindler Robert Vesco had offered "a large sum of money" to gain entree to the White House.

Harden waited a week and then reported the bribe offer to President Carter, according to the spokesman. Yet it made such a small impression on the president that he doesn't remember the incident.

Even more incredible, neither Carter nor Harden notified the Justice Department of this possible conspiracy to defraud the government and to obstruct justice.

Instead, the president scribbled a note to Attorney General Griffin Bell asking him to see the middle man, Spencer Lee IV, who had told Harden about the Vesco offer. The note, written on Feb. 15, 1977, urged Bell: "Please see Spencer Lee of Albany when he requests an appointment." It was initialed "J.C."

According to the White House version, Harden had persuaded Lee to drop out of the plot to fix Vesco's federal problems. Thus Lee gave up a cool million dollars, which he claims he could have collected by putting Vesco in touch with White House honcho Hamilton Jordan.

But Lee never bothered to return $10,000 that he had already accepted for intervening in Vesco's behalf. Authenticated telephone records also show that after Lee's Feb. 8, 1977, repentance he continued to remain in contact not only with Vesco but with the other influence peddlers.

The White House, meanwhile, not only neglected to advise the proper authorities of the Vesco plot but bestowed upon Lee a presidential appointment to the Judicial Nominating Committee. Thus the man who had confessed a flirtation with an international swindler was commissioned by the White House three months later to help select federal judges.

We had hesitated until now to mention another witness to the crucial events of Feb. 8, 1977. He is R. L. Herring who instigated the $10 million plot to help Vesco buy exoneration. Herring is a bitter, tense young man with a record as a shady operator.

We regarded his word as worthless, therefore, unless it could be corroborated. But the last place we expected to get corroboration, even in part, was from the White House itself.

We interviewed Herring in his jail cell, where he was awaiting trial on

ART BUCHWALD 'Jarvis flu' hits some office-seekers this year

WASHINGTON — Every politician running for office this year seems to have the "Jarvis Flu." The name of the game in this November's election is: how much each candidate can promise to cut the voters' taxes.

In New Jersey, Bill Bradley, running for the Senate, is calling for a $25 billion tax cut; and in Minnesota, Robert Short, the Senate hopeful, is promising a $100 billion cut. No one knows where the political tax cut rhetoric will end.

At Finchley for Senate headquarters, I found the candidate sitting behind his desk in his shirt sleeves, looking more like a pork-belly commodity dealer than a man seeking to represent the people of his state.

There was a large blackboard on a raised platform at the end of the room where a volunteer was erasing numbers and writing new ones. Forty people were manning telephones in the other room.

"What's going on?" I asked Finchley.

"We're dealing in tax-cut futures," he said. "We're monitoring what all the candidates around the country are promising the voters in cuts, and then we intend to top them."

One of the people on the phone yelled out, "Bob Short has upped his tax cut promise by $5 billion."

The man at the blackboard erased $100 billion and wrote in "$105 billion." Finchley yelled out, "We'll go $110 billion."

The blackboard-keeper wrote in the figure for Finchley.

"Gluckstern from Ohio has gone to $130 billion."

Finchley shouted, "Make our cut $150 billion."

"You people are spending money like water," I said.

"No, we're not. Those billions are all cuts. We're saving the voter money. Every billion dollars we promise the taxpayer we're going to cut is money in his pocket."

Another volunteer on the phone shouted, "Thyroid in California has just vowed if he is elected he'll cut taxes by $180 billion."

Finchley shouted, "Put us down for $190 billion."

The man at the blackboard was erasing and writing as fast as he could.

"You got a lot of guts, Finchley," I said with admiration. "There aren't many people in this country who would promise the voters a $190 billion tax cut."

"Stick around," he said, studying the board. "You haven't seen anything yet. This whole election has to do with taxes. The guy who promises to cut them the most has to win."

A volunteer on a phone screamed, "An Arizona congressman has told a Rotary Club he will cut $200 billion out of the federal budget."

"I'll raise him 25," Finchley called out.

"You sure are cool. I've never seen a politician promise to give the taxpayers a $225 billion rebate."

"You have to be cool in this business," he said as he swallowed a tranquilizer. "When you're dealing in tax-cut futures you can't think of it as money. You have to think of it as votes. I'm prepared to match and raise any tax-relief promise made by any politician in this country."

"It seems to me you're trying to corner the tax-cut market. Isn't that illegal?"

"Not under Proposition 14. There is no limit on how much you can promise to cut taxes. Don't forget we're dealing in futures. No candidate has to deliver on his promises until after November."

A phone handler yelled out, "A Texas Democrat has just promised the Dallas Garden Club to cut taxes by $240 billion."

Everyone in the room was quiet as Finchley lit a cigarette and said calmly, "Put me down for 250."

We all stood on our chairs and cheered. It was the biggest tax-cut promise made by a candidate in American political history.

Harris draw 10 to life for Hearst kidnapping

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — William and Emily Harris, still convinced that Patricia Hearst was "Tania," a convert to their terrorist philosophy, went to separate prisons today under sentences of 10 years to life for Miss Hearst's 1974 kidnapping.

Attorneys said they would probably be free in five to seven years.

The Harris' lawyers said Tuesday's sentencing — 4½ years after Miss Hearst's abduction — marked the "end of an era."

Alameda County District Attorney Lowell Jensen said it also marked the end of the Symbionese Liberation Army, a tiny underground cell of revolutionaries who captured world attention by kidnapping the granddaughter of newspaper magnate William Randolph Hearst.

"The SLA is through," said Jensen. "All the people we knew about are accounted for."

At Tuesday's court appearance, Mrs. Harris held her arm around her husband's shoulder before they parted.

"We are feeling very strong today," a smiling Harris told supporters in the packed courtroom before returning to nearby San Quentin Prison. His wife was taken to the California Institution for Women at Frontera in southern California.

Earlier, the couple had written to the Alameda County probation department reaffirming their belief that Miss Hearst was a willing convert and was not tortured, brainwashed or mistreated, as she has said.

They said the daughter of San Francisco Examiner president Randolph Hearst "decided to stay with us" after the Feb. 4, 1974 abduction, despite encouragement by her captors to rejoin her family.

"She related positively to the objectives of her own kidnapping," Mrs. Harris wrote.

"Neither of us has ever intentionally harmed another person," Mrs. Harris said of herself and her husband.

The Harris' sentences, imposed by Superior Court Judge Stanley Golde in a rapid, routine recitation, were part of a surprise plea bargain announced Aug. 31.

The 10-year-to-life terms imposed under California's old indeterminate sentencing law are formalities. Under a new determinate sentencing law, instituted last year, the California Community Release Board will convert the terms to 10 years eight months each.

Defense lawyers and prosecutors said that with credit for good behavior and time served, the Harris could win release as early as 1983.

Their lawyers, Susan Jordan and Leonard Weinglass, said the couple received a fair deal. Deputy District Attorney Alex Selvin, responding to criticism of the plea bargain, said justice was served.

Selvin said the state saved $500,000 in anticipated trial costs, Miss Hearst was saved the ordeal of testifying and the Harris will be behind bars for the same amount of time served by the average convicted kidnapper.

Savings groups seek new branches

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Two applications for branch offices in Midland will be taken up by the Savings and Loan Department at a hearing Jan. 11.

First Texas Savings Association, San Angelo, had applied early last month for a branch office in the vicinity of the intersection of Midkiff Road and FM 868, while an application received by the department late Friday requested an office at the southeast corner of Midkiff and FM 868 for Citizens Savings and Loan Association of Midland.

Citizens protested the application of First Texas at the department's monthly docket call Monday, resulting in the hearing being set.

The hearing will begin at 9:30 a.m. in department offices, 1004 Lavaca, Austin.

Sentencing of Harris marks end of SLA era

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The sentencing of William and Emily Harris for the kidnapping of Patricia Hearst marked the end of an era — one that was worlds away from their days as students at Indiana University.

The Harris, who a month ago said they were proud to have kidnapped Miss Hearst, were each sentenced Tuesday to 10 years to life in prison for the crime. Lawyers said they would probably be free in five to seven years.

The couple, founding members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, pleaded guilty to the Feb. 4, 1974, abduction of Miss Hearst, who is serving a federal prison term for a bank robbery in which she participated while she was with the SLA.

William Taylor Harris, 33, came from an upper middle-class background. His father, Fred, who died in 1965, was a commercial building equipment salesman.

Harris attended Indiana University, where he pledged Sigma Alpha Epsilon, one of the university's largest fraternities. In 1965, following his sophomore year, he joined the Marine Corps and saw action in Vietnam.

After completing military duty, he returned to Indiana and received a bachelor's degree in education in 1970 and a master's degree in 1973.

Acquaintances recalled that the Harris who returned to Bloomington fervently opposed the war and was a self-proclaimed hippie who wanted to give everything away.

Harris' mother once described her son as "very concerned, but not violent, not criminal." She said her son had changed when he returned from Southeast Asia.

Emily Schwartz grew up in the middle-class Chicago suburb of Clarendon Hills. A graduate of Hinsdale High School, she was active in the Varsity Club and the Girl Reserves, which collected money for poor. Her father is a consulting engineer.

Now 31, she met Harris at Indiana and married him in November 1971.

At Indiana, Mrs. Harris joined Chi Omega sorority and graduated with a major in English. She taught English and French for one year at Binford Junior High School on Bloomington's east side.

The Harris concentrated on food and clothing drives for the poor in Bloomington before moving to Oakland, Calif., where they became more active in social movements.

London police finally catch 'invisible man'

LONDON (AP) — In the discreet world of the super rich, nobody looked twice at Richard Jeakings as he popped in and out of London's opulent art galleries and smart shops carrying an Old Master, a rare print, perhaps an antique Chinese porcelain vase or two under his arm.

No one bothered to say boo to him as he strolled out of the store with a silk Kashmir carpet which 10 minutes earlier had been nailed to the floor of Harrod's rug department.

But the 33-year-old part-time art teacher and painter came to an ignominious end when he was spotted taking $13 worth of liquid dishwashing soap and floor polish without paying for it.

He failed to make his getaway on a bicycle, one of four he used.

Jeakings was sentenced to three years in prison, ordered to pay $3,000 toward the cost of prosecution, and $1,000 toward his legal aid after pleading guilty Tuesday to 23 offenses of theft in central London from May 31, 1975 to last Jan. 24 when his spree came to an end.

"I walked into some of those places and out again with the most incredible things and the assistants never saw me," Jeakings told Britain's domestic news agency, the Press Association. "At times — and I know this sounds strange — I felt invisible. The invisible man."

Some 1,100 stolen items worth $180,000 were recovered from his London apartment by police. An "exhibition" was held at Marylebone Police station and experts from London's top art galleries and stores were invited to view the merchandise and identify their property.

Among the stolen items were:

—A William Blake watercolor valued at $34,000 stolen from an Old Bond Street gallery.

—Original etchings by Albrecht Durer, James Whistler, Graham Sutherland and David Hockney.

—Prints by Henry Moore, Whistler and Augustus John.

—Three porcelain Minton plaques, a Minton flask and a Minton vase, total value $12,600.

Jeakings told detectives he carried away the stolen items on his bicycle, chiding them by adding, "And when did you last stop a man on a bike to see if he was carrying any stolen goods?"

Police asked him how he managed to steal so many things and get away with it for so long.

"I just walk in and take them," he replied. "It is really easy. Once I was after a piece and I was waiting for the guard to go away. But he wouldn't go away so I just picked it up and walked off with it in front of him."

"If you have got the nerve you can get away with anything," he boasted. "I like nice things around me. Why not have the best when it doesn't cost anything anyway?"

Jeakings' love of the good life extended to his wardrobe — silk shirts and 40 cashmere sweaters — and to his television and recording equipment, which was top of the line.

Tragedy of abused wives prompted innocent verdict

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Defense attorney Bob Evans says Jean Dennis was found innocent of the murder of her husband because people are becoming more aware of the tragedy of abused wives.

Mrs. Dennis, 27, told a Simpson County Circuit Court jury Tuesday she killed her husband because she feared a beating after the couple quarreled over his advances to another woman.

"He wheeled around and gave me a mean look and started toward me," she told the jury. Mrs. Dennis said she fired the .22-caliber revolver she was holding.

Charged with the murder of Jimmy Wayne Dennis, she pleaded self defense in the May 7 incident. Jurors deliberated two hours before returning the innocent verdict.

"I am confident that the acquittal was won because of the recent interest shown in the abused wife syndrome," said Evans, appointed to defend Mrs. Dennis. "I feel that the public is becoming more and more aware of the abused and silent wife, who hesitates to take any legal action because of social pressures."

Evans told the jury the incident that led to Dennis' death began in similar fashion to others which occurred during the couple's marriage.

"Her husband had established a pattern that when he had been drinking, he would beat her," Evans said later in an interview from his home in Mendenhall. "If she questioned him about his work habits or his drinking, he would beat her. He would slap her around, kick her, or whatever."

"This was no different from the other times," Evans said. "Not only did she expect what was going to happen but she predicted it."

In her testimony, Mrs. Dennis said her husband repeatedly made advances to another woman during a trip the woman and her husband made with the Dennises to New Orleans.

New session brings new race cases to high court

By RICHARD CARELLI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allan Bakke has become a medical student in California but the Supreme Court, which began its new term Monday, still confronts the volatile racial issue that made Bakke a household name.

Although no case accepted for review during the next nine months overshadows the rest as Bakke's did last year, many will yield decisions touching the lives of millions of Americans.

And waiting in the wings is a case that may become known as "son of Bakke."

The justices last June ordered a state medical school to admit Bakke, a white man who had twice applied unsuccessfully. The court ruled that the school's "affirmative action" program aimed at increasing the number of minority students had discriminated against him.

But the court decided Bakke's "reverse discrimination" claim on narrow legal grounds. It said state-run schools still may consider an applicant's race in making admissions choices, if race is not the sole factor.

A larger legal and social question remained unanswered: how far can private employers go in giving special preferences to minorities?

The high court already has been asked to resolve the issue in the job-bias lawsuit of Louisiana worker Brian F. Weber.

A white employee at the Gramercy, La., plant of Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Co., Weber sued the company in 1974 after being refused participation in a craft training program.

The program accepted minority and white employees on an equal, one-for-one basis. Had trainees been selected solely on a seniority basis, no blacks would have been included.

Weber's lawsuit — successful in lower courts — charged that the selection of black workers with less seniority than he made him the victim of illegal racial bias.

Government lawyers, citing a major threat to federal efforts to improve employment opportunities for minorities, have asked the justices to set aside Weber's victory.

In another case with great potential national impact on the minority civil rights movement, the court will judge the validity of a court order that forced Los Angeles County's fire department to accelerate its hiring of blacks and Mexican-Americans.

The fire department now is making sure that at least 20 percent of its new employees are blacks and 20 percent are Mexican-Americans.

But the county says it shouldn't have to comply with lower courts' orders to do so because it never intentionally discriminated against minority applicants.

Its appeal offers an important test as to whether the same stringent requirement for proving constitutional bias — proof of intent — is needed in cases involving alleged violations of federal anti-bias laws.

Should the justice extend the intentional bias requirement, it could make it much more difficult to file successful civil rights suits.

The court also will decide whether non-contributory pension plans covering millions of active and retired workers are subject to federal securities laws.

A lower court said they are, providing enhanced protection to workers.

But in its appeal, the Teamsters Pension Trust Fund told the justices that the ruling "creates immediate and serious difficulties for the financial stability and administration of the entire private pension system."

That system had a reported aggregate asset value at the end of 1975 of $145.6 billion.

The test case grew from a lawsuit against the Teamsters by former Illinois trucker John Daniel, who worked as a union driver from 1950 to 1973 when he retired at age 63 because of cataracts.

Daniel had been told that he would receive a monthly pension of $400 if he retired after 20 years of service and above age 60. But after his retirement, Daniel was told that an involuntary four-month layoff in 1961 prevented him from having 20 years of continuous employment.

He was entitled to no pension at all, Daniel was told.

The federal government sides with the Teamsters in urging the Supreme Court to overturn Daniel's legal victory in the lower courts.

Here are some of the other issues the justices have agreed to decide this term:

SEXUAL EQUALITY — Whether state laws providing alimony payments only for women foster unconstitutional sex discrimination.

The test case, watched closely by women's rights groups, challenges Alabama's alimony laws. Eleven other states provide no possibility for men to collect alimony. Those states are Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nevada, New York, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee and Wyoming.

ABORTION — Whether a state may require all doctors to carefully determine before performing a requested abortion whether the fetus is capable of surviving outside the woman's body and, if so, try to abort the fetus alive.

Pennsylvania had such a law but it was struck down by a federal court in Philadelphia. The Supreme Court would have to alter significantly its controversial 1973 ruling legalizing abortions if it was to reinstate the state law.

CRIMINAL LAW — Whether judges ever may base a convicted criminal's probation on his or her ability to pay a fine.

A Georgia woman says her state Supreme Court was wrong when allowing such practices. Imprisoned rather than placed on probation because she could not afford a $165 fine, the woman says that such actions represent unconstitutional discrimination against poor persons.

Whether poor persons charged with minor crimes are entitled to court-appointed lawyers any time a jail term is a possibility.

At issue in a test case from Illinois are two interpretations of a 1973 Supreme Court ruling. One view of the decision is that any criminal defendant facing misdemeanor charges for which jail is a possible punishment has a right to a court-appointed lawyer if he or she cannot afford legal help.

The second view is that the court's ruling applies only to those criminal defendants who actually do get jail sentences and not those who are merely fined.

Whether motorists stopped on drunken driving charges may be threatened with license suspensions if they refuse to take breath analysis tests, and their licenses then suspended without hearings.

A Massachusetts law that allowed just that was struck down by a federal court in Boston, casting doubt on the validity of similar laws in Alabama.

Alaska, Iowa, Mississippi, Montana, Rhode Island, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, Delaware and Maine.

All 50 states have laws allowing police to threaten license suspension for those motorists refusing breath tests, but most provide pre-suspension hearings.

Whether criminal suspects' statements ruled inadmissible as trial evidence under the so-called Miranda doctrine may be used to justify a search warrant.

Under the Supreme Court's 1966 Miranda ruling, police must warn criminal suspects of their rights to remain silent and be helped by a lawyer.

New food stamp rules take effect in January

New food stamp regulations will require grocers who participate in the program to have more than half their sales in staple foods after the rules go into effect Jan. 1, said Carol Foreman, assistant agriculture secretary.

Foreman announced these new rules for wholesale and retail grocers in the food stamp program: — Sale of hot foods for immediate consumption in exchange for food stamps is prohibited.

— Grocers must give cash instead of credit slips as change for amounts less than $1 in food stamp transactions.

— Merchants found guilty of selling nonfood items in exchange for foodstamps or exchanging food stamps for cash may be charged money penalties up to $5,000 per violation when the customary disqualification period causes hardships for local food stamp customers.

Chimney sweep finds source of odor — a decomposed body

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Hollywood Hills resident troubled by the "foul odor" coming from his fireplace hired a chimney sweep — and discovered a dead man rotting in the chimney.

"We're speculating the guy was high on angel dust (the drug PCP) or something and climbed into the chimney and just got stuck," said Los Angeles police Sgt. Greg Smith. It was not known how long the body had been there.

Big Spring gets $1.4 million Lockheed hangar

BIG SPRING — The General Services Administration by Friday is to deed to the city of Big Spring acreage on which a $1.4-million hangar is to be constructed for possible use by Lockheed Aircraft Corp. in a multi-million-dollar aircraft modification project, City Manager Harry Nagel said Tuesday.

"They (GSA) probably will convey that to us by Friday," Nagel said of the deed. "We can't spend any money on it (the hangar project) until we have the deed."

The 180-by-500-foot hangar is to be constructed on a 2 1/2-acre site at Big Spring Air Industrial Park.

Until a year ago, the park was the 2,200-acre Webb Air Force Base, a primary jet-pilot training facility, and was turned over by the Department of the Air Force to the city of Big Spring after Webb AFB was shut down in a Pentagon economy move.

Since then, the GSA, which is disposing of the property, has held the deed.

And, said Nagel, the city is prohibited from doing any building there until it has deed to the land.

For almost a year, Big Spring officials have been negotiating with Lockheed to persuade the aircraft company to do modification work on the McDonnell F-4 Phantom II supersonic attack fighter should Lockheed be awarded the Air Force or Navy contract for the work.

Earlier this year, Lockheed lost out in the bidding to McDonnell Douglas Aircraft Corp. for the contract on the Air Force version of the fighter, which was the U.S. "workhorse" in the Vietnam War.

By mid-December, the Navy is to let its contract on modification of the airplane. And Lockheed and several other major air service companies, including McDonnell Douglas, are in the running.

Bidding is to open Oct. 16, Nagel surmised. And if Big Spring doesn't have the go-ahead on construction of the hangar by then, the city may lose getting Lockheed here should that aircraft company be awarded the contract, Nagel said.

To hasten the turning over of the deed to Big Spring, U.S. Sen. John Tower sent a mailgram to GSA Administrator Joel "Jay" Solomon. Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate had asked Tower to write Solomon. Harry Spannaus, manager of Air Industrial Park and former commander of Webb AFB, said a GSA official told him Tuesday the city would have deed to the property by Friday.

"They're working on it," he said. Spannaus said the deed may cover a 2 1/2-acre tract on which the hangar is to be built. Deed to the remaining acreage is to follow, he said.

Should Lockheed not get the Navy contract, the hangar may be an inducement to other aircraft service companies to move in for modification work, Spannaus said.

"With our facilities here, we have great expectations we will be able to interest another military contractor," Spannaus said.

"There are many contracts (for aircraft modification work) around, and we should get the big one."

Nagel said construction on the hangar should begin within two weeks. Funding for the project includes a $1 million federal grant and approximately $400,000 in city money.

"The GSA has really helped us out in the past few weeks," Nagel said.

As 'cozy' as ever

By ROBERT LOCKE

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The building seems to be filled with little people all dressed up in black tuxedos and waddling about like they were at a formal cocktail party.

But the party's held on four tons of crushed ice and some of the guests keep diving — tuxedo and all — into the icy swimming pool. The hors d'oeuvres are raw fish, swallowed whole.

The temperature is below freezing, which is just about right if you're trying to convince some 250 penguins that they're still in the vicinity of the South Pole.

The deception seems to work. Scott Drieschman, assistant curator at the Sea World aquarium here, said the penguins living in the 38-by-52-foot refrigerated room are breeding successfully and seem quite happy after as long as two years in their new home.

Part of the trick, Drieschman said, is to manipulate the room's electric lights to simulate the long darkness of the Antarctic winter and the sunshine of summer.

He said some biologists had worried the birds might become neurotic with nothing to do all day but play and sleep on the artificial ice, swim in the two artificial ponds and stand around on stubby legs.

But Drieschman said two collecting trips to the Antarctic convinced him that "all they do down there is eat, play around, sit around and sleep. There's not really a whole lot to do in Antarctica."

Penguins have been grounded for millions of years, ever since the wings of their ancestors evolved into short, powerful flippers used mostly for swimming in a kind of modified breast stroke. Their outer feathers fold into a hard, watertight shell that protects a layer of soft down.

Thoroughly adapted to life in one of the world's harshest environments — Antarctica — penguins "must have very specific requirements met just to keep them alive," Drieschman said.

He's trying, with his miniature Antarctica, to build the country's first self-sustaining colony of penguins — "sort of like a penguin bank where researchers can come and study the birds."

The colony also is planned as a commercial attraction at Sea World, a popular aquatic zoo.

Drieschman likes to haul out architects' plans for a $2 million facility, complete with artificial snowstorms, that should allow penguins, scientists and tourists to co-exist.

He said construction may begin late next year and "there would be nothing like it anywhere in the world."

The penguin colony, which is not open to the public, was collected by the Hubbs-Sea World Research Institute, Sea World's nonprofit research arm.

Drieschman said the idea of a permanent colony began with the National Science Foundation, which has contributed about $8,900 toward expenses he estimates at $250,000.

The first crop of 14 adelle penguin chicks, conceived in the refrigerator, hatched last December and January.

Lebanese radio reports continuation of fighting

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Syria's war on the Lebanese Christians raged without letup today, and Beirut's Christian Voice of Lebanon claimed more than 500 persons were killed or wounded in the 24 hours ending at dawn.

The right-wing radio station reported three shells hit the presidential palace at Baabda, on the southeast outskirts of Beirut, while President Elias Sarkis was conferring with his cabinet.

Three presidential guards were wounded and the modern concrete and glass building was slightly damaged, the radio reported.

"Beirut is like a military island surrounded by smoke, flames and destruction, isolated from the whole world, where there is no water, electricity transportation, medicine or food supplies," the radio said.

The Lebanese police reported Tuesday that 250 Lebanese had been killed and more than 500 wounded by Syrian artillery, rocket and machine-gun attacks on East Beirut and adjacent Christian areas since the latest round of undeclared warfare began last Wednesday. Today all telephone and telex communications to Lebanon were cut, and radio broadcasts were the only source of information on the situation.

"Shelling is continuing while political moves are proceeding to end this situation," said the Lebanese government radio.

The Christian radio claimed Syrian forces were repulsed at three points when they tried to storm the Christian sector, leaving "tens of killed and wounded and tens of damaged armored vehicles behind."

It said Christian militiamen forced Syrian troops to fall back in house-to-house fighting on either side of the strategic Quarantina Bridge, one of two linking the Christian sector of the capital with the Christian hinterland along the coast to the north.

The Christian station said Beirut was enveloped in a pall of black smoke from a burning oil storage tank hit during shelling Tuesday.

It also reported that an unidentified naval vessel began shelling the coastal Christian area north of the capital just before dawn but withdrew when Christian guns returned the fire. It said Syrian shelling extended as far north as Junieh, the Christian port 13 miles north of the capital.

The government radio said President Sarkis called a Cabinet meeting during the day "to discuss the newly deteriorated situation and to solve the crisis that is threatening all citizens both in their homes and in their shelters." The government is doing all it can "to serve the urgent needs of the population that is suffering from the hell of the fighting," the radio added.

Later in the morning the government radio broadcast an urgent appeal to all telephone workers to report back to their posts in Moslem West Beirut, which is largely unaffected by the fighting.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim offered his good offices to help arrange a cease-fire, and the U.N. was reported considering the evacuation of 301 U.N. dependents from Beirut. President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France, which controlled Lebanon between the world wars, also was taking an active interest in the crisis. He talked Tuesday by telephone with Sarkis and also discussed the situation with Crown Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia, who stopped in Paris en route to New York. Syria sent its army into Lebanon more than two years ago to prevent the defeat of the Christians in the Lebanese civil war by leftist Lebanese Moslems and Palestinians guerrillas because Syrian President Hafez Assad did not want a radical regime on his doorstep.

Brother Billy: He lives with image

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Carter's much-publicized beer drinking almost broke up his marriage until he sought help briefly from Alcoholics Anonymous, his sister writes in a just-published book titled "Brother Billy."

Billy's wife Sybil "rarely criticized her man, but they had come close to divorce when oceans of beer began to separate them" at a time when Billy was adrift in the early 1960s, Ruth Carter Stapleton says.

President Carter's only brother, after whom Billy Beer is named, attended AA meetings for three months.

The group "helped Billy get away from the hopeless feeling he had carried around for five years. And he lightened up on his drinking," Mrs. Stapleton reports. The 169-page book portrays the 41-year-old Carter as a complex man with a terrible temper and a big heart, who never quite got over his father's death, is insane jealous of his wife, and regrets the "redneck" image he cultivated for himself.

Billy, the youngest Carter child, was adrift after the death of his father, James Earl Carter. Brother Jimmy returned from the Navy to run the family peanut business, dashing Billy's aspirations to follow in his father's footsteps.

"He was now experiencing a sense of total failure, and he tried to drown his agony in beer," Mrs. Stapleton says.

Ten years later, in 1963, Billy accepted Jimmy's request to manage the business so that Jimmy could enter politics. That was the beginning of Billy's personal fulfillment as well as of the friendship between Jimmy and his brother.

Billy's marriage was threatened again recently when he began a hectic travel schedule of personal appearances at $5,000 each, Mrs. Stapleton says.

"The tension in their marriage got very difficult toward the end of 1977, and at one point my husband spent a fair amount of time talking to Sybil."

Mrs. Stapleton says Billy believes he "created a monster" by portraying himself as a beer-drinking, bigoted redneck when Jimmy Carter became famous and reporters descended upon their tiny hometown of Plains, Ga.

loyal to his friends — if difficult to understand at times, according to his sister.

The death of his father from cancer "was hardest of all on Billy," who turned to Sybil for friendship, mothering and counseling.

They were married when Sybil was 15 and Billy was 17. After the ceremony, the newlyweds went to the cemetery and placed Sybil's wedding bouquet on Carter's grave.

Species now endangered by agency's 'Catch-22'

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's baffling. It's confusing. It's preposterous. It is, as you might suspect, something that could happen only in the United States government.

But the closing of the Office of Endangered Species has created a "Catch-22" situation that defies logic.

The government is seeking compliance with the Endangered Species Act. But the act is impossible to obey because it requires the active participation of the Office of Endangered Species, a governmental agency no longer in business.

"We have to obey the law — and can't," says Keith Schreiner, head of the now-defunct Office of Endangered Species.

The office went out of business over the week-end because Congress failed to pass legislation to fund its activities for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The congressional delay stems in part from anger over the law itself, which blocked completion of the Tellico Dam in Tennessee because the project threatened the survival of a three-inch fish known as the snail darter.

Not until Congress restores funds for the office — if it does — will the agency reopen for business.

The Endangered Species Act, still on the books, is designed to protect assorted wild plants, animals, fish, insects, reptiles and mollusks that are threatened with extinction.

Among other things it requires that all federal agencies consult with the Office of Endangered Species before undertaking any project that might threaten the survival of an imperiled species.

The idea is designed to find workable alternatives to protect the threatened species.

Teen found in cage

ATOKA, Okla. (AP) — Authorities say they are not certain why a teenager was abducted and locked for 36 hours in a steel cage with three bobcats.

Jerry Lewis Atkinson, 17, was found Tuesday by an Oklahoma Highway Patrol trooper in a cage behind a rural welding shop. He had been abducted from his parents' home Sunday night.

The patrol said he was unharmed, except for a bite on his toe.

Atoka County Sheriff Cecil Frazier said the owner of the shop, John Williams, 31, was taken into custody and charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and kidnapping.

Trooper Harold Roland said he received a tip from a truck driver that the boy was locked in the cage.

The consultation procedures are required for a wide variety of projects funded partially or wholly with federal money, including such projects as airport expansion, highway construction, dam building, harbor and river dredging and construction on wildlife refuges.

By BARTON REPPERT

MOSCOW (AP) — A few months ago, little Jessica Katz's Jewish parents feared their seriously ill baby might not survive until she was even a year old.

U.S. Jewish organizations, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and other members of the U.S. Congress called on Soviet authorities to let Boris and Natalya Katz emigrate with their child, or at least let Jessica be sent to the United States for medical care.

The Soviet government refused, and on Tuesday friends of the Katzes gathered in their one-room Moscow apartment to celebrate the first birthday of the baby girl who Jewish activists call "the youngest refusednik."

The 30-year-old father said Jessica is "looking better." But he said recent tests show she still has not fully overcome the rare intestinal condition from which she was suffering. Known as malabsorption syndrome, it interferes with digestion.

For four months, Jessica was able to live only on artificially predigested food provided by the Children's Hospital in Boston, Mass. Now she can eat regular canned baby cereals, also sent from the United States, together with the special formula.

Last May, when she was seven months old, Jessica weighed 13 pounds, only 4½ pounds more than when she was born. During the past five months, her weight has risen to 20 pounds, more than the pound-per-month gain which Dr. Benjamin Spock says is normal for infants over six months old.

Although Jessica's condition has improved, her parents persist in their effort to send the baby to the United States and to leave the Soviet Union themselves.

On June 9, they took her along when they joined in a demonstration in front of the headquarters of the KGB, the Soviet secret police. She was with them again on July 12 in the group of dissidents and Jewish activists outside the trial of Anatoly Shcharansky.

Katz said Jessica was there because she is "one of the symbols of the Jewish movement."

Kennedy visited Moscow in September and said President Leonid I. Brezhnev promised him that the Katzes and 17 other Soviet families would be permitted to emigrate. But Katz says so far he has heard "no news" about an exit visa.

He said he sent a letter a few days ago to OIVR, the Soviet passport agency, asking that their emigration application be reviewed. He said he hopes to receive a reply by the end of the month.

Katz's mother, Khaka Landman, lives in Cambridge, Mass.; his brother Victor is a mathematics professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and another brother, Michael, is an undergraduate student at Harvard.

Katz and his 31-year-old wife first applied to emigrate more than three years ago. Officials said the application was refused because Mrs. Katz had access to state secrets when she was a computer programmer at the Soviet Institute of Experimental Meteorology.

After Jessica developed her medical problem, the Katzes contended that Soviet doctors could not treat the condition as well as American specialists could. About 80 U.S. congressmen signed letters appealing to the Soviet government to let the child go to the United States. The case also came to the attention of Dr. Frank Press, President Carter's chief science adviser.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, charged that efforts were being made to smear Soviet medical science.

Baby Jessica looking better, has birthday

U.S. to reopen Turkish bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Turkey has agreed to allow reopening of U.S. bases within its borders, clearing the way for resumption of close-in electronic spying on the Soviet Union, Pentagon sources say.

Permission to reopen four U.S. bases came Tuesday, one week after President Carter formally lifted a 3½-year embargo against shipping military arms to the Turks.

Turkey used U.S.-supplied weapons against Greek Cypriots in its 1974 invasion of Cyprus, prompting Congress to order the embargo in 1975. That action was taken despite Pentagon warnings that the Turks would close down bases, seriously hampering efforts at electronic monitoring of Soviet nuclear missiles, troops and other military activity.

Turkey, which borders the Soviet Union, did close down most operations at the four bases and many activities at smaller ones, although Turkish and American technicians have kept up maintenance since then.

The Pentagon sources, who asked not to be named, listed the four bases that now can be reopened as U.S. electronic surveillance facilities at Sinop on the coast of the Black Sea, at Diyarbakir in eastern Turkey near the Soviet border, at Belbasi near Ankara and at Kargaburun on the Sea of Marmara.

A fifth base at Karamursel, also on the Sea of Marmara, is being turned over to the Turkish government. It was not disclosed how long it might take to resume full operations at the four bases or when further activity might be permitted at other bases.

Some intelligence-gathering operations formerly based at the five locations have been picked up elsewhere in the past three years, and the sources would not comment on how important reopening the bases might be.

But U.S. officials trying to head off the embargo three years ago said the bases were of immense importance to national security. Pentagon officials told Congress recently the actual loss of intelligence information had been severe.

Under heavy pressure from Carter, Congress gave final approval last month to a bill to lift the arms embargo as soon as the president formally certified he believed Turkey was making "good-faith" efforts toward a peaceful solution to the Cyprus problem.

Carter immediately made his declaration that Turkey was ready to work on settling differences with the Greek Cypriot majority on Cyprus. Turkish troops that invaded the Mediterranean island four years ago have helped the Turkish minority control about 40 percent of the island.

Carter and military officials have argued that the arms embargo had not moved Turkey to settle the Cyprus matter but had weakened Turkey's ability to meet NATO commitments as well as hurt U.S. intelligence-gathering efforts.

Tower, Bentsen vote alike on three issues

WASHINGTON—Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 21 through Sept. 27.

HOUSE

AMATEUR SPORTS Failed, 244 for and 158 against, to obtain the two-thirds majority required to pass a bill putting amateur sports under control of the U.S. Olympic Committee. The bill (S 2727), already passed by the Senate, sought to end the conflict between the groups that now control non-professional sports in the U.S.—the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association. The President's Commission on Olympic Sports last year recommended such a reorganization in hopes of reversing America's declining performance in international competition such as the Olympic games.

Two provisions of the bill drew heated debate. One was the shortest parliamentary procedure—"suspension of the rules"—under which the bill was brought to the floor; it permitted no amendments and required a two-thirds rather than a simple majority for passage. The other was proposed $30 million, one-time-only appropriation for the U.S. Olympic Committee, a private body that functions under a federal charter.

Members voting "yea" favored the $30 million outlay to reorganize control of amateur sports in the U.S.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-2, Bill Archer, R-7, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, James Wright, D-12, John Young, D-14, Barbara Jordan, D-18, and Henry Gonzalez, D-20, voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Jim Mattox, D-5, W.R. Poage, D-11, Jack Hightower, D-13, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Omar Bureleson, D-17, George Mahon, D-19, Bob Gammage, D-22, Abraham Kazen, D-23, and Dale Milford, D-24, voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague, D-4, and Robert Krueger, D-21, did not vote.

ETHICS CODE Rejected, 138 for and 266 against, an amendment to limit to five years the life of the new government-wide ethics code. The code requires partial disclosure of personal finances by high officials of all three branches of government. The amendment was proposed to HR 1, later passed and sent to the conference with the Senate. The code also sets up an office of ethics to administer the code in the executive branch, and limits the income congressmen can take in from actively working second jobs.

Members voting "yea" favored a five-year trial period to see how the far-reaching new ethics code works in practice.

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Poage, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Bureleson and Gonzalez voted "yea."

Wilson, Archer, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Young, Jordan, Mahon, Gammage and Kazen voted "nay."

PUBLIC COUNSEL Failed, 188 for and 296 against, to pass a bill to fund the Office of Rail Public Counsel in fiscal 1979, which began Oct. 1. The bill (HR 12162) authorized $2.2 million. Its rejection casts doubt on the future of the office, whose job is to represent the "public interest" in railroad matters before the Interstate Commerce Commission. For example, the counsel speaks for users and communities hurt by proposed cutbacks in railroad service. It is independent of the ICC.

Rep. Joe Skubitz, R-Kans., a supporter, said: "It is clearly the law of the land that there shall be an Office of Rail Public Counsel. Unless and until we repeal that law, I believe that we have an obligation to fund that office at a reasonable level."

Rep. Jim Collins, R-Tex., an opponent, said: "This is a duplication. We already have the Department of Transportation down there. We have the Department of Justice to provide counsel. We have everybody we need in government lawyers. In fact, many people think that we have too many lawyers in Washington."

Most members voting "nay" opposed funding the Office of Rail Public Counsel.

Pickle, Jordan and Gonzalez voted "yea."

NATURAL GAS Passed, 57 for and 42 against, the natural gas bill that is a major part of the Administration's proposed national energy policy. The bill (HR 5289), which now goes to the House, would remove federal price controls on natural gas prices in 1985. Until then, gas sold in the intrastate and interstate markets would be federally controlled, thus eliminating the dual-pricing system that has kept supplies out of the interstate market and caused gas shortages in non-producing states. Natural gas customers nationwide immediately would pay much higher rates under the bill.

Major Leader Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., a supporter, said: "This bill represents a legislative milestone and not a legislative gravestone."

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., an opponent, called it "a lousy, stinking natural gas bill."

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D, and John Tower, R, voted "nay."

ABORTION Rejected, 30 for and 55 against, an anti-abortion amendment. The amendment sought to eliminate language that would permit Medicaid abortions when the abortion is deemed "medically necessary" by the woman and her doctor. In place of that provision, the amendment sought to substitute tougher, House-approved language permitting abortions only when the life of the mother would be threatened if the fetus were carried to full term.

The amendment was proposed to HR 12929, a Department of HEW appropriations bill later passed and sent to conference with the House. Since the House is much more conservative on the abortion issue, Congress now faces a stalemate similar to last year's lengthy stand-off between the House and Senate.

Senators voting "yea" favored the House's tougher anti-abortion language.

Bentsen and Tower voted "nay."

Czech hijacker gets four years

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A West German court sentenced a 25-year-old Czechoslovak student to four years in prison today for hijacking a Soviet-built airliner to Frankfurt earlier this year.

The court found Ladislav Molnar guilty of having interfered with air traffic and of "deprivation of liberty in a less serious manner" when he forced the pilot of a Czechoslovak Tu-134 to change course to West Germany on February 6.

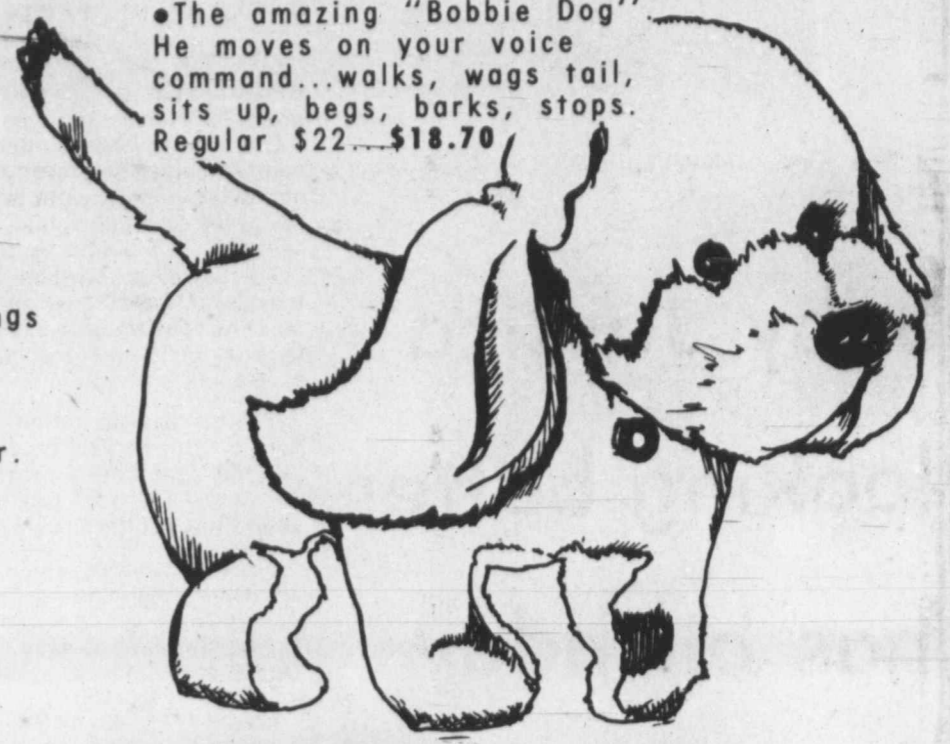

To emphasize his threats, Molnar brandished a dummy bomb after take-off on a scheduled flight from East Berlin to Prague. When the airliner touched down at Frankfurt's Rhein-Main airport, Molnar surrendered to West German police and asked for political asylum.

In keeping with similar cases, West German officials will decide on Molnar's asylum request after he has served his prison term.

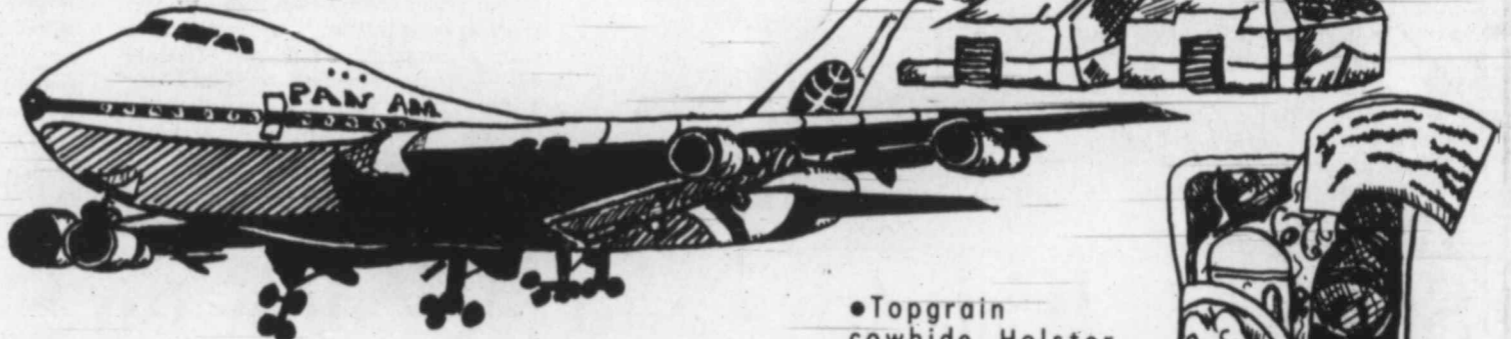

An East German couple and their child, passengers aboard the hijacked plane, asked to be let off the plane and to remain in the West.

There are still openings available for a tour of England planned by the Museum of the Southwest slated to depart Midland at 3:54 p.m. Friday, Nov. 3. Participants will arrive in London via non-stop flight from Dallas at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Tourists will be transferred by luxury coach to Stratford, stopping at Oxford en route. While in Stratford, sightseeing will take place in Wyne Valley, border of Wales, historic market town of Monmouth and the remains of the castle where Henry V was born. A tour of Shakespeare's Stratford, including Anne Hathaway's cottage, Shakespeare's birthplace, etc., will be taken and an evening will be spent at Stratford Memorial Theatre.

From there, participants will tour Bath and York, where the Minster Cathedral, Folk Museum and the Shambles will be seen. Then, a drive north along the foothills of the Pennines to Hexham before crossing Scotland to Edinburgh. Sightseeing tour there of the castle and the Palace of Holyrood House will be a highlight.

Then on to London to see Buckingham Palace, Whitehall, Houses of Parliament, Westminster Abbey, Tate Gallery, Windsor House, and to take in a London show and to visit the British Museum.

Those taking part in the tour will have time for personal sightseeing and/or shopping in each of the cities. All transfers and sightseeing by private motorcoach.

Price of the tour is $1,515, based on double occupancy of rooms in first class hotels.

Additional information can be obtained from Lella Seal, coordinator of museum services, at 683-2882.

...A SOCK HOP is scheduled for the Ninth Grade Junior Cotillion. It will be held from 7:15-9:30 p.m. Thursday in the Lee High Youth Center, according to Corinne Thompson, spokesman for the event. The dance is a '50s Sock Hop and the dress is casual instead of the usual coat and tie.

...ONE THOUSAND CARS are expected to be shined up by members of the Lee High School Band when they stage a car wash at the Village Gulf at 2110 W. Wall Ave, said Van Ragsdale, LHS band director. About 50 band members and some parents will be on hand to vacuum, clean all windows, dashboard, etc. "About an $8 job for $2," said Ragsdale. The car wash will be all day Saturday and is sponsored by the Lee Band Booster Club.

...MARY DUNN of Midland reports she recently returned from Korea and brought with her a 10-month-old daughter, Shil, she and her husband adopted through the Holt Adoption Agency in Eugene, Ore. Eighteen parents from over the United States took part in the tour of the orphanage in Seoul.

Mrs. Dunn spent two weeks in Seoul, where she was exposed to the music and culture of Korea, and she visited Panmunjon, site of the signing of the Korean War peace treaty.

The Duns have another son, Jodie, 9, they adopted two years ago from another orphanage in Seoul. The couple also has six natural children. They are Julie, Pam, Mike, Elicia, Susie and Dani.

Mrs. Dunn is active in the Midland Council for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Children.

...IT HAS BEEN ANNOUNCED there will be a coffee at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Midland Racquet Club honoring Linda Gale White, wife of Mark White, who is running for Texas Attorney General on the Democratic ticket. Mrs. White is on tour of several Texas towns, including Abilene, Andrews, Colorado City, Big Spring, Seminole and others, campaigning for her husband. It has been requested that interested persons telephone Mrs. Harrell Feldt, hostess for the coffee, at 682-8986, for additional information.

...ST. ANN'S Altar Society is having, beginning at 7 p.m. Sunday, a movie entitled "Our Lady of Fatima," in the St. Ann's Church. The movie will be open to the public. For more information, call Mathilda Downs at 682-3224.

...MIDLAND WINNERS in Grand National Pairs competition held recently for area duplicate bridge winners were Mrs. J. T. Dickerson and Mrs. Toni LaVigne, who won first overall. Other Tall City winners were R. E. Myers, G. A. Buehler, Mrs. L. S. Mitchell, Mrs. W. W. Roye, Mrs. W. B. Smith, Mrs. Charles Dellenback, Mrs. R. A. Myers and Mrs. G. A. Buehler. These winners will join the area winners for district play-off to be held in Austin, where they will meet other unit play-off winners from all over Texas. They will be aiming for master point awards and expense paid trips to the national finals.

Americans learn to manage their bills

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans are piling up record debts in an effort to stretch shrinking paychecks to cover rising costs, but there are signs that families have learned to manage their bills better and fewer people are going broke.

As of the end of July, outstanding consumer installment debt — not counting mortgages — totaled just over $237 billion. That's more than $1,000 for every man, woman and child in the country.

Total debt, including mortgages, had topped $1 trillion by the end of last year, and outstanding personal debt represented an all-time high of 79 percent of personal, after-tax income.

"We prepare people for the world of work, but we are not equipping them to make good financial decisions," said Robert E. Gibson, president of the National Foundation for Consumer Credit, a non-profit agency with 219 counseling centers across the country.

The increase in borrowing has some people worried, but individuals apparently are keeping their financial heads above water.

H. Kent Presson of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts said the number of people filing for relief under federal bankruptcy laws has declined steadily in recent years after reaching an all-time high in 1975 when the recession was at its worst.

Presson said that from fiscal 1975 to fiscal 1978, the number of individuals filing bankruptcy petitions dropped from 224,354 to 172,423, a decrease of 23 percent. The overall number of bankruptcy petitions, from individuals and businesses, declined 20 percent in the three-year period. In 1975, individuals accounted for just over 88 percent of all those filing bankruptcy petitions; in 1978, they accounted for 85 percent of the filers.

Why the decrease? "Your judgment is as good as mine," Presson said. "Credit granters have much tighter control over their credit cards. Also, the debtors manage better."

One way people may be managing to pay their bills is by saving less. In 1967, Americans saved an average of 7.5 percent of their after-tax income. In 1977, they saved only 5.1 percent.

The trend contrasts with the situation in other major industrial nations where savings are increasing. In West Germany, for example, the amount of after-tax income saved went from 11.3 to 14 percent in the

The way people may be managing to pay their bills is by saving less. In 1967, Americans saved an average of 7.5 percent of their after-tax income. In 1977, they saved only 5.1 percent.

Another reason for the lower bankruptcy rate may be that while inflation in wage — the Carter administration is predicting an 8 percent increase in consumer prices this year compared to a 7 percent boost in 1975 — unemployment is much lower — averaging about 6 percent, compared to 9 percent in 1975.

Economists have mixed opinions about the rise in outstanding debt. Andrew F. Brimmer, a former member of the Federal Reserve Board, was quoted recently as saying: "The expansion of the credit has been a major source of the expansion of the economy."

Board Chairman G. William Miller, on the other hand, has said the level of debt is a cause for concern because it could mean individuals will trim spending in the future, touching off "more widespread financial difficulties."

Gibson said the biggest danger for the individual is "using credit as a supplement to income," buying something you can't really afford without knowing where the money will come from to pay for it.

You also are in trouble if you find yourself dipping into savings to cover routine bills, if you charge everyday purchases like groceries, if you are always behind on credit-card charges and always pay only the minimum amount and if your family argues often about money.

As a rule, monthly installment payments should not amount to more than 20 percent of monthly take-home pay. Average installment indebtedness, Gibson said, equals about 16 percent of take-home pay.

The foundation counseling centers offer debt management programs to help individuals pay off bills without running into legal troubles. The centers work out agreements with creditors who often allow borrowers extra time for payments.

In recent years, however, creditors have become less willing to wait for their money, Gibson said. They do not want to lose the interest they could earn by lending the money elsewhere. "We're seeing more and more families who are beyond our help and need legal assistance," Gibson said. "They're really coming to us too late."

The federal government, meanwhile, announced Monday it has started an investigation to determine whether bill collectors are complying with a new law, which took effect March 20, prohibiting threats, harassing telephone calls and other abusive tactics. The Federal Trade Commission said it had received more than 1,000 complaints about bill collectors since the law took effect.

There was no average 1977 taxpayer to earn $13,263

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If there were such a thing as an average American taxpayer, he or she or they would have earned $13,263 last year and paid 13.7 percent of it in federal income taxes. That meant working the first seven weeks of the year just to come up with the $1,814 due Uncle Sam.

Those who earned less had to work a shorter time to pay their federal taxes and those who earned more had to work longer, sometimes a lot longer.

For example a person with an income of $50,000 or more a year probably owed at least 31.1 percent of it in federal taxes and was still working for the government when May 1 rolled around.

But there is no "average" taxpayer — just millions and millions of ordinary people lumped into categories by Internal Revenue Service computers.

The IRS said Monday that on 85.2 million 1977 returns processed so far, taxpayers reported $1.13 trillion in adjusted gross income. Of that, $154.6 billion went for federal income taxes.

The income and tax of the "average" taxpayer — which could be a couple filing a joint return — is found by dividing the total income and total taxes paid by the total number of returns processed.

But since the report includes so many individuals with so many different factors affecting their lives and tax returns, the mythical average taxpayer does not fit precisely into some of these further breakdowns provided by the IRS report:

—Those 42 million taxpayers making under $10,000, by far the largest group, accounted for less than two-tenths percent of the total adjusted gross income reported and paid 5.9 percent of the taxes, or $9.2 billion. Paying 4.7 percent of their income in federal income taxes, they had to work about 2½ weeks to get the money.

—The 14.1 million taxpayers reporting from $10,000-$15,000 income accounted for 15.4 percent of total income and paid 10.6 percent of the taxes, or $16.5 billion. In a 9.4 percent bracket, it took them about five weeks to work out their taxes.

—The second largest group of returns, 27.7 million, was from taxpayers reporting $15,000 to $50,000 income. That broad and varied group loosely referred to as the middle-income level accounted for 57.5 percent of the income and paid 60.2 percent of the taxes, or $93.2 billion. In a 14.3 percent bracket, they had to work 7½ weeks or more to earn their federal taxes.

—Those 1.3 billion reporting income of $50,000 and over accounted for 15.4 percent of the income and paid 23 percent of the taxes, or $35.7 billion. In a 31.1 percent bracket, they had to work about 16 weeks to pay their taxes.

In 1976, the average taxpayer made up about 13.5 percent of his income for income taxes, only slightly below the 1977 level of 13.7 percent.

Many people moved into higher tax brackets because of inflation in 1977, the IRS said. However, married couples got a tax cut while single taxpayers paid more taxes, the agency said.

The $1.13 trillion in adjusted gross income includes wages, salaries, dividends, interest and other income. It leaves out sick pay, deductions for retirement accounts and business expenses.

About 33.8 million taxpayers made use of the short-form 1040A, an increase of 17.5 percent. Use of the long-form 1040 declined 6.1 percent to 51.4 million, the IRS said.

Commission defends its actions

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the Consumer Product Safety Commission has been criticized in the past for not monitoring the safety of cellulose home insulation, it is defending itself from claims that now it is doing too much.

In a speech prepared for delivery today in Dallas, Susan King, commission chairwoman, mentioned the criticism that began coming from portions of the home insulation industry at nearly the same time she became head of the agency in August.

"Some of you may think that the commission is zeroing in unfairly on the cellulose industry. That's a concern we've heard at previous meetings," she said at the last of 13 regional meetings the CPSC has held since August to tell consumers and industry leaders about its plans to regulate home insulation.

However, she added, "CPSC does not want to put the cellulose industry out of business. The nation needs insulation to meet the Carter administration's energy conservation goals, and we want to keep the production lines open producing safe insulation."

Cellulose insulation, one of the most common types used for homes, consists basically of ground-up paper treated with flame retardant chemicals. Some types, though, have been found to be fire hazards or corrosive.

"We plan to inspect, with the assistance of state agencies, all known cellulose insulation manufacturers during the next six months," Ms. King said in the speech that was released in Washington.

There are about 500 manufacturers in the United States.

Before the CPSC's current get-tough policy on home insulation, it was criticized by congressional panels and consumer groups for inaction.

For example, Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., saying the agency had not acted several years after its Denver office pointed to possible dangers in home insulation, introduced a bill to require CPSC regulation to protect consumers.

Under the bill, signed into law July 11 by President Carter, the commission was required to issue an interim safety standard by Sept. 7. But, in the first commission action after Ms. King became chairwoman, the agency issued the standard two months ahead of time.

Under the action, all cellulose home insulation produced after Sept. 7 must meet the standards for flame resistance and corrosiveness and a label must say that the standards have been met.

Eventually, the commission plans to develop a permanent standard.

Dress club's dolls for someone's holiday joy

Got the Christmas spirit? Here's an excellent suggestion on how to do your Christmas shopping early and get a custom dressed doll. Or you can help the Salvation Army with their annual Christmas baskets.

The Doll Club of the Permian Basin is planning its second annual "Dress-A-Doll Contest" and the dressed dolls will be displayed by merchants in the Dellwood Plaza Mall, who are furnishing the prize money.

The contest is divided into four categories and a prize of $20 will be awarded the winners in each group. A grand prize of $75 will be given, also. The categories are baby fashion, historical, storybook and international.

The dolls must be dressed and returned to Geneva Caruthers at 4407 Gulf Ave. by Oct. 16 to be included in the Oct. 21 judging. The bidding on the dolls, which will be furnished by the doll club, will be held from Oct. 23-27. The dolls will stay on display from Oct. 16-27 and will be returned to the owners at 2 p.m. that day. Members of the doll club will be on hand to accept the bids.

The public can participate, but the dolls don't have to be purchased. Participants just check them out, dress them and return them for judging and, hopefully, they will win some of the prize money.

A substantial portion of the proceeds from the sale will be turned over to the Salvation Army, according to Mrs. Caruthers. The remaining amount will be used by the club to put on educational programs, such as slide presentations, speakers, shows and exhibits.

The doll or dolls can be secured from Mrs. Caruthers by telephoning 697-1543 or by dropping by her address listed above.

Residents of surrounding towns also are welcome to enter the contest, said Mrs. Caruthers.

The Doll Club of the Permian Basin meets the first Thursday of each month at Lancaster Garden Center under the leadership of Wilma Dawkins. Judy Collins served as first president of the group, which boasts a membership of 46 women working to preserve dolls for the sake of posterity.

Minnesota's DFL party shaken

By ROBERT SHOGAN
The Los Angeles Times

ST. LOUIS PARK, Minn. — Evie Silverman left a debate among candidates for Minnesota's two U.S. Senate seats here last week shaking her head ruefully.

"This is going to be a rough year," said Ms. Silverman, special projects director for the Jewish Community Center in this comfortable Minneapolis suburb and a lifelong Democrat. "Hubert Humphrey must be turning over in his grave."

At least Humphrey has been spared the pain of witnessing the convulsions that have shaken to its roots the Democratic-Farmer-Labor party that he helped to found more than three decades ago.

Under DFL dominance Minnesota has been one of the nation's last bastions of New Deal-style liberalism. But now this stronghold is rumbling, as Minnesotans, like many other Americans, seem to be spurning the brave dreams and soaring costs of big government.

The state's politicians, who used to compete to find new ways for government to serve the public, are now scrambling over each other to find new ways to slash spending and taxes. And the DFL, which has held both Senate seats for 20 years, is in danger this November of losing them both, along with the governorship, which it has controlled since 1970.

Nothing better dramatizes the turmoil in Minnesota politics than the spectacle of Robert Short, the blustery, free-wheeling multi-millionaire who is the DFL candidate for Humphrey's old Senate seat, striving to steal the Republicans' tax-cut thunder by vowing to lop $100 billion off the federal budget.

Short won the DFL nomination by edging out the party's officially endorsed choice, liberal Rep. Don Fraser, in a bitterly fought primary Sept. 12. His campaign theme was summed up by a series of three slogans featured on billboards around the state:

"Big Government, Enough is Enough. Taxes, Taxes, Taxes, Enough is Enough. Inflation, Inflation, Enough is Too Much."

"Ninety percent of the people today believe government spends too much and wastes too much," Short declared in an interview. "People didn't care when that spending didn't hurt them. But today the bite of taxes and the pinch of inflation is so severe that it threatens to make the poverty level all-encompassing."

Even a good many DFLers who resent Short's harsh criticism of Fraser during the primary concede he might have a point. "A lot of people are beginning to say, 'We don't know if we can afford big government anymore,'" acknowledged Bill Kuretsky, a Minneapolis businessman and DFL regular.

Perhaps just as important, if less tangible than the economic anxiety, is the growing feeling that whatever the cost, government and politicians don't deliver the promised goods.

As he campaigns around the state, shaking hands in office buildings and coffee shops, David Durenberger, Short's Republican opponent, has found this skepticism to be a major aspect of Minnesota's 1978 mood.

"People look at me and say, 'How the hell are you going to make any difference?'" Durenberger said.

Lorraine Waller, a Minneapolis office worker, said she looks more skeptically at politicians' promises now than when she voted for Humphrey two years ago. "I'm that much older and that much smarter." And, she added, "I pay more taxes now."

Suspicion of politicians and resentment of taxes is spreading everywhere in the country these days. But the widespread disenchantment among Minnesota voters is all the more striking because of the state's well-earned reputation as a laboratory for liberalism.

"There's something special about Minnesota and this party," Vice President Walter F. Mondale, the most prominent legate of the Humphrey tradition, proudly told the DFL state convention last June. "This party of ours has been the source of more progressive ideas and more challenges to conscience than any other political party in the U.S."

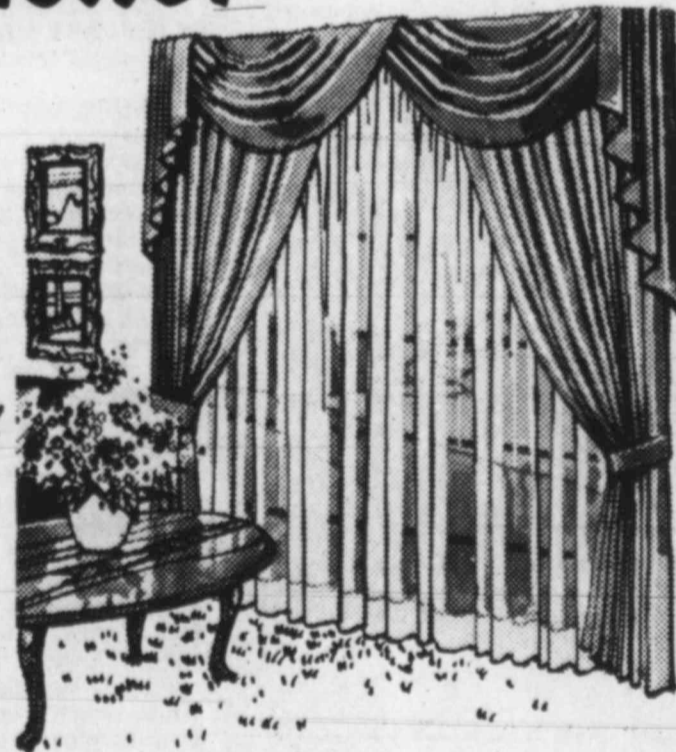

The groundwork for this record was laid in 1944 when the DFL was created, merging the populist energies of the state's previously independent Farmer-Labor party with the organizational skills and national resources of the Democrats.

U.S. insulation study needs aid

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you have had insulation installed in the walls of your home in the last two years, Uncle Sam wants you.

The government is conducting a study of the use and performance of such insulation, including cellulose loose fill, urea-formaldehyde foams and mineral fiber loose fill.

Officials at the National Bureau of Standards report that there is not enough information available about these wall insulations once they are installed.

Although unseen, wall insulation must continue to retain its insulating properties as well as remain compatible with the structural and other materials with which it is in contact.

So the government wants volunteers to allow their homes to be studied.

In the study, small portions of the wall will be removed from either the outside or inside of the home.

Officials said the walls of the test homes will be repaired and restored to the homeowner's satisfaction. And participants will be given a clock thermostat, a device that automatically controls the temperature of the home on an adjustable schedule.

The deadline to join the study is Dec. 1 and interested persons should contact John Weidt Associates Inc., Jonathan Lake Village Center, Post Office Box 401, Chaska, Minn., 55318.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton W. Williams

Clayton W. Williams' mark special event

FORT STOCKTON—Mr. and Mrs. Clayton W. Williams were honored with a celebration attended by almost 1,200 persons in the Pecos County Exhibition Building in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Hosts were the couple's children and grandchildren: their son, Clayton W. Williams Jr. and wife, Modesta, and children, Clayton Wade, Jeff and Chicora Modesta of Midland; Clayton Jr.'s daughters, Kevlie and Allyson of Austin; daughter, Janet Lee, and husband, Robert Pollard, and children, Scott, Clay, Graham and Adam, of Midland.

A "French Basque Outdoor Festival" was the setting for the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams were married Sept. 10, 1928, in the Methodist parsonage in San Angelo. She was born in Pahasuka Indian Territory Dec. 17, 1905, on the Osage Indian Reservation, which later became the state of Oklahoma.

The daughter of the late Oscar H. Graham and Evie Lee Martin Graham, she was named Chicora after a little Indian girl who helped save her grandfather's life during the Civil War, but is known as "Chic" to her friends.

Mrs. Williams was reared in Sterling City and finished high school there in 1923. She taught a one-teacher school two years at Willow Valley and substituted here at the Butz School. She attended Trinity University and was graduated from Sul Ross State University with a Bachelor of Arts degree in education.

She is a charter member of the Women's Society of Christian Service and served as president of the organization, now known as United Methodist Women. She is a member of the Ruth Circle of United Methodist Women and is past president and present secretary-treasurer of Tunas Creek Chapter of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas. In 1962, she was named First Lady of Fort Stockton. She has served as president of the Fort Stockton Literary Club and is a member of the Pecos County Historical Society.

Williams enjoys writing and history. His books include "Never Again," 1969, and "Animal Tales of the West," 1974. He is the son of the late Judge O. W. Williams and Sally Wheat Williams, both of whom were born in Kentucky. Living are his sister, Kathryn Walker, and his brother, J. C. Williams.

Williams was born in Fort Stockton in the Old Fort Addition in one of the Officers' Row homes, April 15, 1895. After finishing school in Fort Stockton, he enrolled at Texas A&M University and was graduated in 1915 with a bachelor of science degree in petroleum engineering and a commission as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army. During World War I, he was an instructor in coast artillery and was overseas for 19 months, until the Armistice of Nov. 11, 1918.

After the war, Williams worked in Eastland until word came of the "Miracle Well" discovery, and he returned to Fort Stockton. In the years prior to his marriage, he was engaged in surveying, was manager of a movie theater and gained experience as a road engineer for the New Mexico Highway Department. He lived in Reagan County, where he became head engineer for Texon Oil and Land Co., but moved back to Fort Stockton after his marriage.

He was Fort Stockton's Outstanding Citizen of 1975. He is associated with the State Historical Society and currently serves as vice president of the West Texas Historical Society. He is immediate past president of the Pecos County Historical Society, an honorary member of the Board of Stewards of the Methodist Church, member of the Lions Club and has received a 50-year pin in the Masonic Lodge. He was named Fellow in the Permanent Hall of Honor of The University of Texas-Permian Basin in 1976, and has the honor of having his name on the plaque of the Battleship Texas in Houston.

DEAR ABBY Closeness not way of life

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman who was never very close to my parents after my marriage. I was comfortable with the way things were, and so were they.

My mother died recently, and I would feel very hypocritical were I to suddenly smother my father with a lot of attention. I sat with him and the rest of the family every day and evening for the duration of the official mourning period (one week), and now that it's over I have resumed my life as before. My father is not helpless. He has always been very independent and knows my phone number if he wants me.

My problem is my sister. She is making me feel very guilty because she is constantly with Dad. I don't feel that I have to compete with my sister by putting in equal time with Dad.

Please help me with some answers.—FEELING GUILTY
DEAR FEELING: Guilt is a judgment we make against ourselves. No one can MAKE you feel guilty. If you feel guilty, you probably earned it.

It's just as well that you don't feel compelled to spend time with your grieving father in order to compete with your sister because he'd surely sense your insecurity, and your presence would offer him little comfort.

DEAR ABBY: I married a divorced Catholic in Mexico back in 1959. He said his church would not let him marry again, and this was the only way he could make our marriage legal.

In Mexico we found an office where a man was selling marriage applications for $25. We bought one and filled it out and signed it. The man who sold it to us also signed it, and that was that.

We split up after one year. What I want to know is this: Is that marriage still legal? Was it ever filed anywhere in the United States? Or are we married only in Mexico?

I haven't seen this man in 18 years and now want to marry a guy in a legitimate way. If I marry him without mentioning the Mexican marriage, am I committing bigamy?

I can't find any information about this in the library, and my wedding date is drawing near. Sign me. — "WAS DUMB AT 23"

DEAR WAS DUMB: Some Mexican marriages (and divorces) are valid and some are not. Play it safe and consult a lawyer. He (or she) will tell you—rapidamente!

Department offers tips on use of thawed foods

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

What should you do with food if it thaws? That's a question I get more often than practically any other. If the freezer goes on the blink, and you're left with 20 pounds of thawed rolled rump roast, 12 bags of thawed vegetables and six loaves of thawed bread, there may seem to be no other solution than to have a dinner party for all your friends, neighbors and relations. If raw foods such as meat thaw, you can cook them, then freeze the prepared dishes. That 20 pounds of rump roast can be turned into do-it-yourself TV dinners, pot roast or other prepared meals. There are other solutions, however. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has some tips for using thawed food. First, some foods may not be completely thawed. "You may safely refreeze foods that have been thawed if they still contain ice crystals, or if they're still cold—out 40 degrees Fahrenheit—and have been held at this temperature no longer than one or two days after thawing," a USDA booklet on frozen food states. "Foods warmed to 40 degrees

Fahrenheit or higher are not likely to be fit for refreezing," it adds. There are two areas of concern with refreezing frozen food. The first is spoilage; the second quality. It's important to remember that freezing does not sterilize food, it simply prevents further bacterial growth as long as the food is kept frozen. "Partial thawing and refreezing does reduce the quality of foods, particularly fruits, vegetables and prepared foods," the USDA says. "Red meats are affected less than many other foods." You can refreeze thawed fruit, but it may have an off-flavor. Fruit may start to ferment as it thaws. "You can refreeze thawed fruits if they still taste and smell good," the USDA says. Or, be extra safe and make jams, jellies and preserves from them. Meat and poultry become unsafe to eat when they start to spoil. Examine each package of thawed food for off odors or colors. If you have any doubt, toss it out. Your family's health is more important than money. "Tests show you can refreeze beef, veal and lamb that show no sign of spoilage," the USDA says.

Garnishes side benefit of good meal

Copley News Service

"Beautiful," we say, as the elaborately decorated sandwich or salad plate is put in front of us.

"Delicious," we say, as we taste the food.

"Thank you," we say, as the waiter takes away what might be the most nutritious food we have been served: Garnishes.

It's an economic and nutritional disaster, this carting away of tons of fine fruits and vegetables to be dumped into the garbage cans of thousands upon thousands of restaurants.

We contribute to inflation when we discard the radish rose, carrot curl, celery stick, watercress sprig, and parsley and lettuce cups. The cost of garnish is figured into the cost of food, and we are throwing away food we have paid for.

It's nutritionally wrong because those raw vegetables are rich in vitamins and minerals. We reject the crisp and flavorful foods and then gulp a vitamin pill.

There's another reason why such waste is wrong. Half the population of the world will go to bed hungry tonight. Why do we waste food in a world where malnutrition and starvation still exist?

"It's something that's bothered us for many, many years," said Robert M. Riley, general manager of the Southern California Restaurant Association, which has 8,000 members.

"We use tons of lettuce that are never consumed, but garnishes are merchandising. We have to make food attractive. It's part of the cost of putting an item on the table."

Robert Seura, vice president of the California Dining and Beverage Association, who also has a chain of Grand American Faire restaurants, estimates that at least half of the time half of the garnishes go back to the kitchen.

"One of our restaurants features an omelet garnished with a display of orange slices, melon, strawberries, parsley and red lettuce. It's very colorful, very beautiful, but quite often goes back uneaten," said Seura.

"But we'll continue to make the plates of all our foods as attractive as possible. The finest food in the world won't be eaten if it is not beautifully presented."

Doris Danforth, office manager of a restaurant association, asks waiters not to put on her plate the foods she knows she will not eat.

She feels she has a moral responsibility not to waste food; she remembers with horror many stories about famine around the world.

"When I was a little girl, we were told to remember the starving Armenians," she said. "Then there was famine in China and South Africa, millions and millions dead of starvation."

"The president of this association, Harry Florentine, told me about a sign he saw in a health food restaurant. It read, 'What you leave on your plate could save someone from starvation.'"

HOLLYWOOD — The year of the fashion change has covered all facets and all ages. The little ones are appearing in several new looks, ranging from jogging pants to Annie Hall type dressing.

This may not be the most practical year for the small fry attire, but it is certainly the most talked about from every aspect — color, line, fabric and theme.

While one hears of the romantic look, the layered look, the frontier look, in fashion news for Mr. and Mrs. America, their young sons and daughters also are picking up the tempo of mood clothes.

After a decade of tomboys, little girls and boys are exchanging blue jeans for every-occasion-wear for what the designers freely term "the romantic look for children."

Heavily weighted from the influence of the ever-popular TV show, "Little House on the Prairie," the girls' dresses are high-necked, ruffled and layered.

The boys are sporting the tuxedo look complete with string ties to the cowboy suits and boots. Both girls and boys are wearing vests, flannel shirts, darker colors, such as blues, maroons and brown, and ruffled, frilly white shirts.

New fabrics are catching on purely for their beauty such as velours, string knits for stretchees and all kinds of corduroy and velveteens.

A lot of children's wear has moved out of pastels and into the earth tones. Little Jane and John are graduating from babyhood at a faster pace if the small fry fashion designers are any indication. Even shades of grey have surfaced for little girls, both in dramatic dress-up jumpers and lace-trimmed dresses.

The return of calicos and pattern interaction blouses and dresses give the nostalgic feeling of the old frontier.

On the sports scene, turtlenecks, layered under shirts or cardigan sweaters, are framing young faces from ages 2 to 16.

Another important feature of the youth look is leg cover-up. While the boys are wearing boots and long pants, the girls have replaced slacks with boots, leggings and high socks. Either white or black knee-high to waist-high stockings, worn with black patent leather strap shoes, are a "must" under the plaid skirts and dresses. Kangaroo pockets also mark today's little miss.

For the older children there's a tie-in with the entertainment world. Disney characters and the motion picture cars and stars of "Grease," have found their way to screen printed T-shirts. Along with that impact the jeans by Sedgfield, who got the "Grease" licensing, are big with the 10 and over set.

Lots of soft wear, such as quilted or suede-type jackets, are on the winter scene.

Accessories also emphasize the new look. In addition to leggings and touches of lace, pouch bags, worn over the shoulder or at the hip, are good for boys as well as girls. Hats are small with fedoras taking the lead.

If Aunt Emma is looking for a holiday gift, sateen jogging shorts have become the rave with girls of all ages. And one item she can't go wrong buying for boys or girls of all ages is the across-the-line sports warm-up suit. Warm-ups are appearing for "kids" 2 to 20 in the young set fabrics — the only difference being, they are color-toned for age groups.

October's stitch is couching

By ERICA WILSON

October's selection in our stitch-of-the-month club is couching. It is one of the simplest of stitches to master, yet can be one of the most sophisticated forms of embroidery. It is a good first stitch for a child, yet the most suitable for working with gold and other fragile metal threads. And gold work, as you may know, is probably the most difficult form of embroidery — the sign that you've really arrived!

A close cousin of back stitch, couching is simply a means of sewing thread to the surface of your material, using a single back stitch at right angles to the direction of the main thread. But within this basic framework you can create so many variations with the couched thread or the stitches themselves that you'd barely recognize them as the same stitch.

You can allow the couched thread to wander free over your background linen to form an open effect, or use it to fill an area of any shape, or as an outline or even in a circle. You can do raised work with felt or string, or choose couched threads in contrasting colors, or do gold work with a similar color thread to create the effect of gold fabric stitched onto your linen.

It's not surprising that the most appropriate stitch for gold work would have a regal history itself. In the 13th century, the English couched gold thread on ecclesiastic vestments, the theory being that God's house deserved the very best that man could produce. These church vestments, called Opus Anglicanum, or English Work, were stitched in Couche Rentre (Pulled Couching), a means of covering a background linen completely and couching the gold thread in such a way that it appeared to be going through the fabric itself. The result was similar to bargello, but worked in solid gold.

A more recent example of the versatility of couching appeared at a special exhibit of Russian clothing at the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art last year. One of the most magnificent exhibits was Queen Sofia's wedding dress, made in the latter part of the 18th century. The gown was of silk fabric brocaded with silver thread in a variety of stitches, and with the tiniest of pleats sewn down (a technique called rushing) for a ruffled effect. Through the years, the dress had naturally begun to disintegrate. So, to restore it, the Russians took it all apart, laid it into an embroidery frame and couched near invisible parallel lines of fine silk thread onto the fabric, thereby strengthening it for posterity.

If you've never worked in couching, it's best to start with the basics — the more pliable and well-behaved wools — before you venture into gold work, and with the simplest form, which is random couching. Either one or two threads may be used in your needle, and any number of threads may be couched down, but for all forms of couching, a frame is essential.

Simply lay down a bundle of threads, and with your threaded needle, come up through your fabric, over your threads and down in almost the same hole. Repeat, keeping your stitches at right angles and at regular intervals as you sew down the thread in a meandering line. When the line is completed, thread the couched thread through a large-eyed needle, plunge it through the material exactly in the hole made by your last stitch and cut it off short (about 1/4 inch) on the reverse side.

The same principle holds true for couching to fill a shape, but you simply work a straight line and, at the end of the space, reverse the direction of your thread. And for couching in a circle, draw a guide on your fabric (lightly in pencil) of regularly spaced lines radiating out from the center. Work your couched threads round and round in widening rings, placing a couching stitch on each pencil line.

Once you've mastered the technique, you can begin to get fancy with your stitches. When working in rows, you could "brick" your stitches by spacing them alternately to make a regular pattern, or arrange them in a "mille fleur" design — little groups of four stitches that resemble tiny flowers. And how about puffy couching, formed by lifting the couched threads with your needle after you take each stitch — great for flowers or a prancing horse's tail!

All the basic couching stitches may be worked in gold, as long as you follow a few basic pointers: Always use silk or mercerized cotton thread for couching down the gold, and always strengthen the thread by waxing it with beeswax (available at most sewing stores) two or three times. Have a huge dagger of a needle (No. 18 chenille sharp or No. 18 needlepoint) on hand to open a hole in your background material and "plunge" your threads to protect them as they are pulled through to the back. Always couch a pair of threads, since a single thread would require too many stitches and more than two would bunch. If you really want to test your ability as a needleworker, you might try Italian Shading, the most advanced form of couching gold work (and the only one that doesn't require waxed thread). One method is to vary both the colors and density of your couching stitches to shade an area of your design.

Newtimers Bridge Club names winners

Naomi Boswell was first place winner when Newtimers Bridge Club met in Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Other winners were Rose Mary White, second, and Vi McGuire, third.

Mary Renton was welcomed as a new member.

Persons interested in the club may contact Naomi Boswell, 684-6717.

TEJAS GARDEN CLUB
The Tejas Garden Club had a guest coffee in the home of Mrs. Joe Feagan.

The programs for the year were presented and yearbooks distributed.

Members were urged to attend the Lancaster Garden Center-Museum of the Southwest luncheon Oct. 10.

THE HERITAGE STUDY CLUB

The Heritage Study Club had a "Who's New" coffee in the home of Eileen White, No. 7 Saddle Club North. Gay Patterson and Mary Tift were co-hostesses.

The honorees were Sharon Seay and June Koch.

Guests were Win Stovall, Barbara Hartwell, Hazel Somerville, Iris Todd, Dorothy Cunningham, Barbara Frigon, Dottie Twelings, Virginia Jones, Nancy Sloan, Ruthie Owens and Donnie Welner.

Decorations included a mother of pearl bouquet centerpiece on a white embroidered tablecloth with silver appointments.

It was announced the next meeting will be a guest day event at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Nita Stewart Haley Memorial Library. Don Hedspeth, writer and founding director of the library, will be the speaker. He is former assistant director of the Buffalo Historical Center and Whitney Gallery of Western Art.

MIDLAND PALETTE CLUB

Mrs. Carl Earhart was elected president of the Midland Palette Club Art Center, Inc., 604 N. Colorado St., during a meeting of the board of directors, held following the annual October membership meeting of the organization.

Other officers named were Mrs. J. T. Klingler, vice president; Mrs. Jim Wilson, secretary, and Mrs. Ben Golladay, treasurer.

Directors elected during the membership meeting were Mrs. R. E. Garrett, Maria Spencer, Mrs. E. L. Steward and Mrs. Earhart. Holdover directors are Mrs. Klingler, Pauline McWilliams, Mrs. J. M. Nussle and Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Golladay gave the annual treasurer's report, and Mrs. S. A. LaGreca gave a report on the Tuesday Painters. Mrs. Klingler reported on the Thursday Watercolor Painting Group.

Appreciation was extended to Mrs. Ralph Barron, retiring president, for her work in the center.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROL RUGHTER

(Thurs., Oct. 5)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Get into every single private or confidential arrangement that needs to be made in order for you to have your affairs on a sound and secure structure for some time to come. Be on the lookout for a good organizer who can help you to be successful.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): If you enlarge your vision you can soon add a good deal to your bank account. Talk over your plans with loved ones and come to a fine understanding. Working as a team brings excellent results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): This is a good time to reach a fine understanding with partners and the future will then look much brighter. Situations arise that make it easier to get on the path of real progress.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Give more attention to the small details of your work and get better results now. Have a meeting of minds with your most important fellow worker also and speed up production. Avoid unnecessary talk with others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Get into those arrangements that will insure having a good time later. Raise your level of creativity and become more successful.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You have many tasks to perform at home, so get and early start on them for best results. Don't lose your temper with close ties.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Get the information you need so that you have more success in the future. Add efficient persons to your staff so that you can expand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Get into the activities that give you a sense of greater well-being. Don't hesitate to make important repairs to your property.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Get your best talent working so that you can command a large income in the future. Later join a group affair and make new friends as well as enjoy old ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Make the arrangements now for gaining your finest ambitions. Don't show your feelings as yet for the one you love. Bide your time and then later you get the right result.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Do a particular favor for close ties and gain their gratitude, affection. If you entertain friends, this also will bring you goodwill.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Be conscientious in the way you handle a community matter. Find a better way of getting your talents to work better. Evening should be spent quietly, happily.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You are inspired how best to gain your ambitions and should carry through with new ideas. Make new contacts, especially among young persons with fresh ideas. Be careful of reputation.

Tres Rios Presbyterian sets Thursday meeting

ODESSA — Dr. Robert Smith of the First Presbyterian Church, Midland, will be the afternoon speaker at a District II meeting of the Tres Rios Presbyterian Thursday in Odessa's St. Paul Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Smith, a former commissioner to the General Assembly, the highest ruling body of the Presbyterian Church of the U.S., will discuss issues facing the Assembly when it convenes this spring.

Another Midlander, Mrs. Douglas Brown of Trinity Presbyterian Church, will moderate a workshop on the responsibilities of Women of the Church circle chairmen.

Approximately 60 women are expected to attend the 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. annual district meeting, which represents the cities of Pecos, Fort Stockton, Sanderson, Odessa and Kermit. Four districts are included in the Tres Rios Presbyterian, the women's arm of the Tres Rios Presbytery, which extends west to El Paso, east to San Saba, south to Sanderson and north to Seagraves.

Other speakers will be Charlotte Slack, wife of State Rep. Dick Slack of Pecos; Dr. James D. Caldwell of the host church and the Rev. James Elder of the First Presbyterian Church of Fort Stockton.

'Fit' fanatics: Life's a treadmill

By LEIGH FENLY
Copley News Service

First there is Donna Gookin, 41, who once out-distanced a squadron of Camp Pendleton, Calif., recruits, leaving them slightly miffed and short of breath in her tracks.

And Laura Dodge, training for her fourth marathon, who periodically gets escorted home by the police, who evidently find logging a curious preoccupation for an 11-year-old.

There are Patti Hurl and Jennifer Fiske, who admit to fat obsession. They sweat out hours over stationary bicycles and on the track. If the scale refuses to budge, they go out and do it all over again.

There's teen-ager Tony Olsen, living out the dream of becoming a professional cyclist pedaling 300 miles a week. "My friends all go to the beach, but I sunburn."

And lastly, there is Noel Johnson, 79. Since he began running 10 years ago, he has conquered four times the roughest run in the world, Pike's Peak. Every Thanksgiving he runs a relay from Hollywood to Las Vegas. He boxes, he lifts weights, he loves to square dance.

"Dying is a bunch of hokey. Just because Joe Blow dies at 70 or 80 doesn't mean I'm going to. You won't find me with your old folks' diseases."

Southern California is the consummate breeding ground for exercise fanaticism. Its balmy weather, the hedonistic leanings of its people and their obsession with being lithe and fit all make for the individual who finds triumph in pain, sweat, shin splints and sore Achilles tendons.

The motivation clearly is not in the final prize. San Francisco tennis pro Bruce Maxwell raced 134 miles across the sunbaked Death Valley twice "just because."

He trained for months (doing push-ups in a sauna) and at the end was reduced by the 184-degree scorch to a limp, dehydrated rag with blistered feet that resembled chopped sirlin. The high from that feat drove him back to do it again six years later.

His partner in such fanaticism (who decided the Death Valley run would be a challenge only if done under the broiling August sun) was Britton Ken Crutchlow, a flamboyant adventurer and cycling record holder.

Crutchlow has a history for such lunacy. Once he raced an American around the world, from London to London, via Sydney and San Francisco. The ground rules were simple: each was to begin with 10 lire and could not fly, steal or borrow.

After 97 days of hitchhiking, stowing away, running and swimming, Crutchlow won and collected the bet: a pitcher of beer.

Fanatics like Crutchlow, Maxwell, Gookin and the others have been mainlining a curious potion of pain and pleasure for so long that they're hooked. Call it the thrill of exhaustion, or the conquest of limitations, or just the headiness of knowing how far a body can be pushed. Or, if you will, call it jock karma.

Separating the fanatics from the amateurs is a matter of definition. But because sports activity has been increasing in all areas — there are now 15 million noncompetitive tennis players in the country, 15 million cyclists, 34 million swimmers — the parameters of active fanaticism have changed significantly. In the '50s, for instance, men who jogged were considered slightly eccentric; women who walked were strange.

"When I was growing up we had Sophia Loren, not Cheryl Tiegs," explains Hurl. And Gookin, the only woman in the country to finish four 50-mile runs, quips, "I used to think pingpong was a long-distance event." Gookin was one of the first women to begin serious, competitive running 15 years ago. Her motivation was clear: "I resented the fact that my husband wanted to run every day after work instead of coming home."

"I resented going to track meets and applauding when my own back end was growing bigger and bigger. It got where I wanted to bop him on the head every time he came in the door."

"Now there is something different for me. I have my own identity, separate from my husband's. I realize now that I have strengths and weaknesses, not just weaknesses."

Halfway through Gookin's first 50-mile run she considered giving up. "I felt terrible and I asked myself why I wanted to finish. I knew it would give me the confidence I needed. So I selected 10 of my friends and gave them each 2.5 miles, and in my mind they went along with me. I did it. I finished and for the next few days I was exuberant."

For Gookin, and thousands of others who would rather turn in their car keys than their running shoes, swim goggles or racing bikes, the question inevitably becomes, "How much is enough?"

It seems the U.S., and especially Southern California, have gone (huff, huff) fitness mad, with more and more persons each year joining in the (huff) exercise game. Everybody's doing it, but each "fanatic's" reasons are his own.

Mini-course will prepare students for SAT tests

Midland students planning to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test will have the opportunity to prepare themselves for the test with a four-session mini-course this month.

The mini-course consists of a pre-test, three two-hour review sessions and a simulated SAT test.

Three two-hour sessions are designed to review learned skills, survey test-taking techniques, provide approaches to material analysis and suggest goal-setting procedures.

Course sessions will meet Mondays from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. or from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. beginning Oct. 9 in Room 110 of the Fine Arts Building at Midland College.

The course is designed to give the student confidence in dealing with the SAT examination by making him more familiar with that type of test. It also should improve the student's ability to analyze and answer questions that involve reasoning, judgement, comparison and evaluation.

Cost for the course is $40, including a non-refundable $10 registration fee which must be paid by Oct. 6. The $30 balance may be paid at the first session.

The SAT is a test used by some colleges and universities as a partial basis for selection of college candidates.

ENDS SAT.

Flooding threatens disaster in Vietnam

Agence France-Press

HANOI — The flooding that has affected most of Vietnam for nearly one month is now threatening the country with disaster, according to official figures released here Tuesday.

The flooding put 2,309,450 acres of paddy land under water, destroying 70 percent of crops, and affected 4.1 million people, two-thirds of whom were deemed in urgent need of help.

An official said everything possible was being done at the national level to cope, but "we are relying chiefly on our own efforts. As the flood damage is too heavy, we call for emergency relief from all countries and international organizations."

The number of people killed by the flooding has not yet been established. Between 10 and 20 percent of work animals are estimated to have been lost.

Many countries already have informed Vietnam that they are preparing to give aid.

The Philippines has sent 1,500 tons of rice, West Germany has bought $50,000 worth of medicine and the United Nations Food and Agriculture Association has released $50,000 for Vietnam.

Telegrams have come from other countries and organizations saying a decision on aid would be reached soon.

Meanwhile, a 10th typhoon was approaching the northern coasts of Vietnam Tuesday. Rain had been falling on Hanoi for nearly 12 hours without letup.

Informer faces murder charge

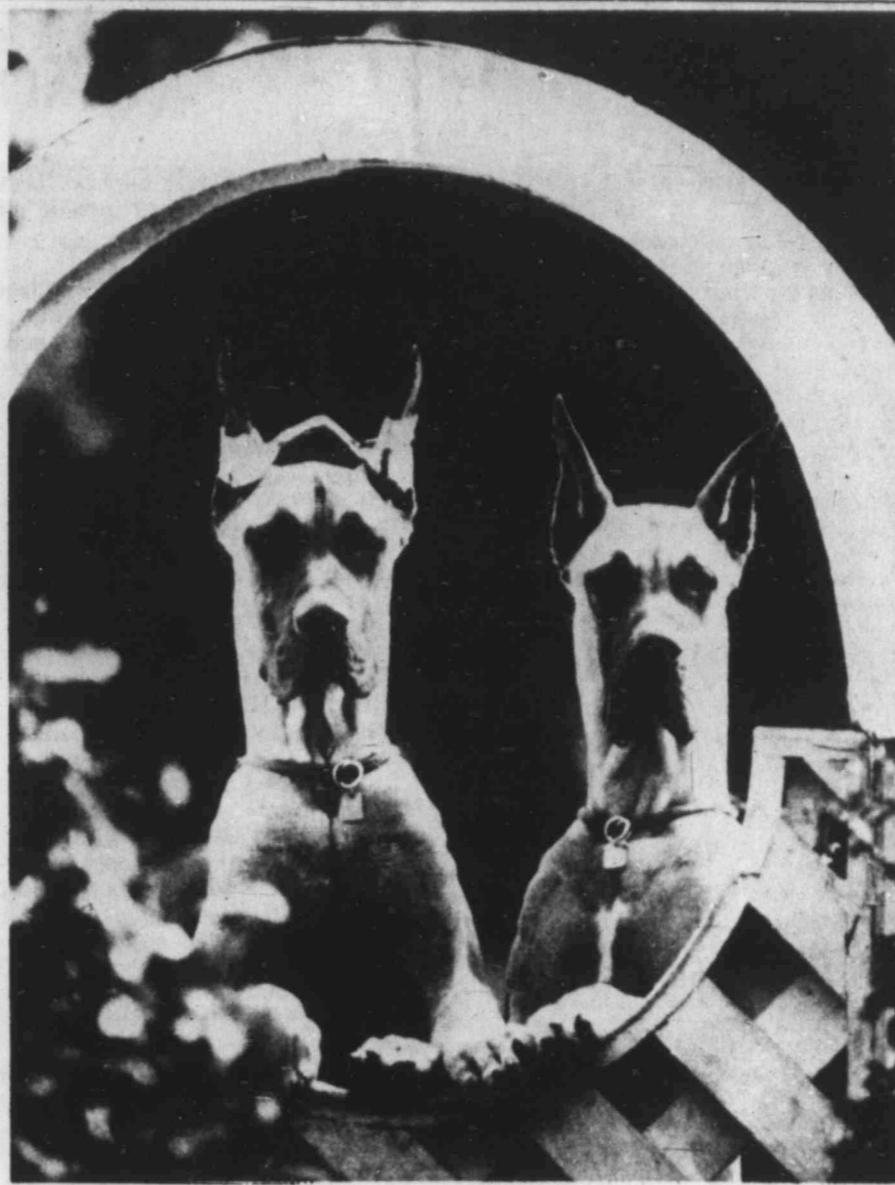

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gary Thomas Rowe, Jr., a former FBI informer, has been indicted on a first-degree murder charge in the 1965 slaying of a civil rights worker, authorities said Tuesday.

The indictment returned by a grand jury at nearby Hayneville two weeks ago was made public when District Attorney Jesse O. Bryant filed extradition papers with Attorney General Bill Baxley's office.

Rowe, who lives in Savannah, Ga., said recently he expected to be indicted.

The indictment charges that Rowe "unlawfully and with malice aforethought killed Viola Gregg Liuzzo by shooting her with a pistol."

The extradition papers must be processed by the attorney general's office and sent to Gov. George C. Wallace before they become final. They will be sent then to Georgia authorities.

Traffic volume mounting

WASHINGTON (AP) — If there seem to be just too many cars on the roads today, it's undoubtedly because the nation's miles of roadway are not keeping pace with increased traffic, says the Road Information Program.

The information service reports there are 1.8 million miles of paved roads in the United States, an increase of 16 percent since 1968. But cars, trucks and buses have increased 43 percent during the same 10 years, from 101 million to 144 million, it adds.

Verdict pends on caffeine

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: I hadn't realized until recently that caffeine is added to cola and various other soft drinks. Isn't this bad for children?—Henrietta K.

DEAR HENRIETTA: Excessive consumption of caffeine in any form isn't a good idea, especially for children, as it is a stimulant that affects the central nervous system.

As to whether caffeine-containing soft drinks are harmful at present levels of use, there are no studies showing that this is the case—according to a scientific committee reviewing various food additives.

However, the committee could not agree on whether or not caffeine should be considered as a potential health hazard. Some members thought it would be prudent to assume that there is some risk for some people, especially children. Others thought that the lack of adverse reports from tests in which people consumed high levels of caffeine indicated that the substance was not one to be concerned about.

The group urged further studies—and particularly more information about the 10 percent of the population that drink the most cola beverages.

My feeling is that the moderate use of such drinks by children is okay unless they have some special problem. But I would stress the word "moderate." Guzzling cola and other soft drinks doesn't promote good health. And all that sugar is certainly bad for the teeth.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: My doctor has recommended that I have an operation—a major one. I trust his judgment, but I'd just like to make absolutely sure that this is the right thing to do. How do I go about getting some other advice? Just go to another doctor on my own?—D.

DEAR D.: Don't hesitate to speak to your own doctor about this. I'm sure he will be glad to give you the names of several other physicians for what's called a second opinion. Or if you have some specific doctor or medical center in mind—mention that to him.

No good doctor's feeling are hurt by this kind of request. After all, you're the person having the operation, and your mind should be completely at ease about the wisdom of this course. And experts often have different views on what should be done in any given case.

If the second doctor gives advice different from that of your regular physician, you'll probably feel you want a third view to settle the matter—and you should go ahead and get it.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Is measles a serious disease?—Mrs. Y.D.

DEAR MRS. Y.D.: It is the most serious of the common childhood disease, causing much discomfort as well as temporary or permanent disability.

win the next two tricks with the ace and king. Life would be very simple if you could always depend on such "book" rules to work.

South won the first trick in dummy with the queen of hearts. This cost him his slam.

He drew trumps, cashed the ace of clubs and gave up a club. Back came the jack of diamonds, covered by the queen, king and ace.

ADDITIONAL ENTRY

South should win the first heart in his hand. He draws trumps, cashes the ace of clubs and gives up a club.

East returns a diamond to the ace, and South ruffs a club. South leads a heart to dummy's queen (saved there for just this purpose) and ruffs another club.

Now South cashes the ace of hearts to discard the low diamond from dummy. And it is then easy to win the last two tricks in dummy with the last trump and the last club.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S 10 6 2, H J 10 9 7, D K 8 6 4, C 6 2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. Don't respond to an opening bid of one in a suit when you have only 4 points in high cards and flat distribution.

Armed Forces news

Several area servicemen have been in the news lately. They include the following:

Navy Boatswain's Mate Third Class Eliseo R. Hilario, son of Eliseo Hilario Sr., of Big Spring. Hilario has been promoted to his present rank in the U.S. Navy while serving aboard the Fort Snelling, Little Creek, Va. He joined the Navy in June, 1978.

Pvt. Jimmy L. Spurlock, son of Mrs. Minnie D. Spurlock of Madisonville was recently assigned as a material supply specialist with the 2nd Armored Division at Fort Hood. He entered the U.S. Army in February of this year. The private is a 1977 graduate of Madisonville High School. His father, Lugene Spurlock, lives in Midland.

Pvt. Hector Fernandez Jr., son of Mrs. Elena G. Fernandez of Big Spring, is participating with other American and allied troops in REFORGER '78, NATO's largest yearly exercise, held in Germany. More than 11,000 soldiers were flown to Germany and some 37,000 tons of equipment and supplies have been shipped from the U.S. for the massive exercise. REFORGER, meaning Return of Forces to Germany, results from a 1967 agreement between the U.S., the United Kingdom and the Federal Republic of Germany. The U.S. agreed to return state-side-based forces to Germany each year for exercises to demonstrate allied solidarity.

The entire exercise emphasizes the orderly disposition of forces and stressed deployment procedures and techniques. Fernandez, a scout with the 3rd Armored Division in Budingen, Germany, entered the Army in April of this year. He received his high school diploma through the General Educational Development program.

Specialist 4 Steven G. Boone, whose wife, Vickie, lives on Route B, Lamesa, recently was assigned as a combat engineer with the 317th Engineer Battalion in Eschschorn, Germany. He entered the U.S. Army in July, 1972. Boone attended Central Texas College in Killeen and Northern Virginia Community College in Alexandria, Va.

Marine Pvt. Eddie D. Audas, son of R.Q. and Ella Audas of 3408 Travis Ave. has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, California. During the nine-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle. He joined the Marine Corps in May 1978.

Staff Sgt. Rembert W. Prah, son of Mrs. F.L. Kidwell of East Golf Course Road, has graduated from the 21st U.S. Air Force Noncommissioned Officer Leadership School at Rhein-Main Air Base, Germany. The sergeant, who was trained in military management and supervision, is an aircraft avionics systems technician at Zweibrucken Air Base, Germany. Sgt. Prah is a 1965 graduate of Midland High School.

Lt. Col. William P. Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.J. Stewart of Pueblo, Colo., is taking part in "Cold Fire '78," a North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) exercise being conducted in central Europe. Col. Stewart is commander of the 107th Tactical Air Support Squadron at Sembach Air Base, Germany. This exercise is designed to test the flexibility of NATO's air defenses, while supporting other NATO land exercises now underway in Europe. A 1954 graduate of Pueblo Catholic High School, the colonel received his B.S. degree in 1958 from Regis College in Denver, Colo. He was commissioned in 1960 through the aviation cadet program. His wife, Virginia, is the daughter of J.T. Johnson of Big Spring.

Captain Darren Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Thomas Jr. of Corpus Christi, has earned the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal. Capt. Thomas received the medal at George AFB, Calif., where he is now undergoing pilot training. He received his B.S. degree in 1973 from Memphis (Tenn.) State University and was commissioned through the Reserve Officers Training Corps program. His wife, Judy, is the daughter of W.H. King of Big Spring.

Sgt. Jorge H. Prado, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Prado of Big Spring has arrived for duty at Lakenheath Air Station, England. Sgt. Prado, a medical administration specialist with a unit of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe, previously served at Lackland AFB. He is a 1971 graduate of Stanton High School. His wife, Teresa, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Gatton of San Antonio.

First Lt. Richard S. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin S. Johnston of Big Spring, recently participated in "Red Flag," a continuing Tactical Air Command training exercise conducted at Nellis AFB, Nev. Lt. Johnston is a B-52 Stratofortress instructor-navigator at Ellsworth AFB, S.D., with the 177th Bombardment Squadron. An Air Force-wide exercise, "Red

"Flag," provides pilots and crews with realistic training under simulated combat conditions.

Lt. Johnston, a 1966 graduate of Big Spring High School, received his B.B.A. degree in 1974 from Texas Tech University. He was commissioned upon completion of Officer Training School at Lackland AFB.

Captain Daniel E. Wilkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elvin B. Wilkinson of Crane, has received a regular commission in the U.S. Air Force. He previously held a reserve commission as an Officer Training School graduate, and was named for regular status on the basis of educational background and outstanding duty performance as an Air Force officer.

He is assigned at Vandenburg AFB, Calif., as a missile operations officer with a unit of the Strategic Air Command.

He is a 1966 graduate of Crane High School, and he received his B.S. degree in 1971 at Southwest Texas State University, San Marcos and his M.S. degree in 1975 at Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg, Mo.

Navy Fireman Robert W. Bowers, son of Wesley C. and Dorothy B. Bowers of Rankin, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif.

He studied military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Former Army private seeks $10 million in LSD damage suit

By KENNETH BREDEMEIER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A former private first class the Army has admitted dosing with LSD 17 years ago without his knowledge has sued the federal government and 31 past and present officials for $10 million in damages.

The serviceman, James R. Thornwell, now 41 and jobless, charged in a suit filed this week in U.S. District Court here that the Army's administration of the potent hallucinogenic drug to him in Orleans, France, in June, 1961, has left him "a social and emotional cripple, chronically and painfully isolated and withdrawn from the normal experiences of life in human society."

Thornwell, who now lives in Oakland, Calif., also alleged in his suit that he was "continuously subjected to a battery of brutal and unlawful interrogation techniques" before he was given the drug. The Army last year said that at the time it was conducting an investigation into allegations that Thornwell had stolen classified documents.

The former soldier charged that the interrogation techniques included "severe forms of physical and sensory deprivation as well as beating and verbal abuse."

The suit said he was confined alone in a "small chamber, his isolation broken only by periods of interrogation." At the same time, the suit alleged that reading materials were taken away from him, food and drink were withheld from him for "extended periods," he was not permitted to sleep and he was forced to urinate and defecate in his isolation chamber. He was questioned, the suit charged, for periods of up to 70 hours at a time as his face "was slapped and splashed with water to keep him awake."

In addition, Thornwell said he "was humiliated and degraded by a steady stream of verbal abuse, including racial slurs and accusations of sexual impropriety." Thornwell is black.

The drugging of Thornwell was part of an Army program known as "Third Chance," which was designed to test the efficacy of LSD in interrogations. The Army released documents to Thornwell's attorney last year indicating that 16 foreign nationals and Thornwell, the only American, received LSD in the tests.

Thornwell said in his suit that he once was "a stable, healthy, highly motivated and productive individual" who had graduated first in his high school class. But he said that since being given the LSD he has "suffered and continues to suffer from serious mental illness and psychiatric disorders and severe physical pain."

The officials sued include a variety of past and former Pentagon, Army, health and intelligence officials.

Americana, Victoriana have much in common

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

TABLE ROCK LAKE, Mo. (AP) — Not many people would suspect that on the face of it — actually on the other end of it — London and the Ozarks have much in common culturally. Or at least something.

But then not many realize that both the British and the Missouri Mountain folk have rediscovered simultaneously and apparently independently the architectural glories of the public convenience, known in the Mother Country as the Loo and in the Ozarks, as elsewhere in whatever is left of vanishing rural America, as the outhouse.

In England a continuing best seller these days is a slender volume called "The Good Loo Guide," subtitled "Where to Go in London," compiled by journalists Jonathan Routh and Bridget Segrave to "relieve tourists of their worries" in walking tours about the great cosmopolitan capital.

And everywhere throughout the Ozark vacationlands another slender volume has found a wide audience among nostalgia-minded culture connoisseurs: "Pretty Privies of the Ozarks" by newspaperman Mahlon N. White of the Clinton, Missouri, Democrat.

Both appraisals of the sanitary scene on opposite sides of the Atlantic come at a time when conservationists and government health officials are questioning the value of building more sewage and septic systems and seeking alternative disposal programs, among them a return to the old-time outhouse. Congress this year, for instance, boosted the usual 75 percent reimbursement for sewer construction to 85 percent for sewer alternatives.

The British Good Loo Guide, which rates London's public toilet facilities on a four-star system based on "cleanliness, efficiency of fittings, state of repair, friendliness of staff," provides some fascinating insights into the history and architecture of public plumbing.

The Royal Exchange Loos, for instance, to which the editors award two stars ("a very splendid establishment in marble, mosaic and mahogany"), are built "on the site of the first underground public convenience in the world, devised in 1855 by a Mr. Jennings, who charged the public one penny to use it, which was in fact the origin of the phrase 'going to spend a penny.'"

The toilets at the Law Courts in the Strand, the authors note, were considered such a benefit to the common weal that they "were opened by Queen Victoria in 1883." Royalty later smiled on Sir Thomas Crapper, generally credited with being the inventor of the flush toilet, by issuing a royal warrant to his sanitary-ware firm, still doing business in the Kings Road under the sign of "by appointment to the Late King George V."

The British Boswells of the bathroom have these further pearls to share with their readers:

— Many London public toilets still make a small charge, usually tuppence, to use the mirror.

— The conveniences at the Old Bailey have "a public address system for calling out jurors, lawyers and witnesses."

— The Marble Arch Gents room has "standing room for 47, very nearly a national record."

— The Houses of Parliament restrooms "off the Members Waiting Hall are available to the public whether the House is sitting or not."

— The paper in the Tate Gallery Loo "bears the slogan: 'government property,' and there is also some interesting graffiti: 'Keep the Pope off the Moon,' 'Reality is unreal.'"

The editors, by the way, give their highest award, 4 stars, to the "super-loo" at Victoria Station, platform one, since the accommodations include change rooms, baths, showers and "attendants who press your suit while you wait."

Violin bow prices rocket with inflation

By ROBERT BARR

NEW YORK (AP) — Stradivarius violins long ago soared beyond nearly everyone's purse, but there is still time to jump into the booming bull market in violin bows.

Bows take less space and an expert says that — purely as an investment — they make sweeter music than a violin.

"A Strad won't beat inflation — it will only tread water," said Joseph C.F. Luffkin, who heads the musical instruments division of Sotheby-Parke Bernet here.

"If you want to buy the best bow, it would cost you $15,000, but a violin will cost more than $100,000," he said.

"The people who are paying $2,000 to $3,000 for bows are not necessarily playing concerts," he said.

One can pay a good deal more. A gold-mounted bow by Francois Tourte, which fetched about $400 in 1960, might command up to $15,000 today, Luffkin said. At the lower end of the market, an English bow by W.E. Hill and son that sold for $700 last year resold for about $1,000 this year.

Tourte, an illiterate craftsman who lived from 1747 to 1835, is considered the Stradivarius of bowmakers. Luffkin estimates that perhaps as many as 200 of his bows are extant, but, "I've only seen two or three."

Tourte's bows are so esteemed that one owner is seriously trying to trade his, straight across, for a Stradivarius, but has had no takers, Luffkin said.

Beyond the financial attractions, Luffkin said, collectors like bows because they take little care and, compared to violin collecting, "it is marginally easier to come by the expertise needed to be a good collector."

As objects of beauty, violin bows are decidedly an acquired taste. Once one has admired the hair (the part which is moved across the violin strings), the frog (the thing near the end of the bow which holds the hair), the screw (at the same end, which adjusts the tension), the head (the far end) and the stick (the stick), you have more or less exhausted its obvious charms, unless perhaps there is an inlay in the frog. About as interesting, one would think, as pursuing a sheaf of airport bonds.

Although Tourte bows are highly prized by musicians, prices bear little relation to musical merit, Luffkin said. Prices also depend on the fame of the maker, decoration and whether the bow came from a famous collection.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nancy Marchand was still glowing about her Emmy for playing publisher Margaret Pynchon in CBS' "Lou Grant."

"I was out of my skull that night of the awards," she remarked after returning to work on the series.

"What made it even more glorious was that Sada Thompson won an Emmy (for 'Family') just before I did. Sada and I started out together as snotty-nosed kids of 17 in drama school many years ago. My daughter baby-sat for her children, and our families shared a house at Stratford (Conn.) one summer."

Backstage at the Emmys I hugged Sada so hard I think I tore her dress."

It was an exciting evening for Mrs. Marchand, who claims that her previous wins were a citation from off-Broadway critics, a blackboard in a raffle, and some bridge games. Her victory as supporting actress in a series brought plaudits from her fellow performers, who recognize her as one of the most gifted and steadiest actresses in television and theater.

Mrs. Marchand plays the strong, yet feminine, publisher of the Los Angeles Tribune, of which Lou Grant (Edward Asner) is city editor. Hers is a well-shaded role, resulting from good writing as well as her own research.

In the press room at the Emmy awards, a few of us reporters debated whether Margaret Pynchon was patterned after Dorothy Schiff, former publisher of the New York Post, or Katharine Graham, publisher of the Washington Post.

"The character is a potpourri, a stew," commented Mrs. Marchand. "I don't think it's fair to play a single character in an extended series."

"When I reported for the series, Allan Burns (the show's co-creator) handed me about 10 pounds of research. I read it all. One of the articles that I found most useful was about Dorothy Schiff when she retired."

"But I have drawn from others, including Helen Copely (San Diego Union and Tribune) and Dorothy Chandler (Los Angeles Times)."

"It is an interesting character to play. She must keep cool, use her head and make quick decisions, surrounded by a lot of tough men."

"Does she make mistakes? Of course. It wouldn't be interesting to play a character who did everything right."

Mrs. Marchand herself has been a career woman all of her adult life, as well as wife of actor Pal Sparer and mother of David, now 26, Kathryn, 22, and Rachel Sparer, 17. "I think it's better for kids not to have to look at their mother all the time," she opined.

Born in Buffalo, N.Y., she graduated from Carnegie Tech and went directly to New York, where she studied with actors who were using the G.I. Bill at the American Theater Wing.

"I used to come out here and do live television, things like 'Playhouse 90," she recalled. "When the series took over TV, my husband and I became involved in eastern repertory theaters. That lasted about 10 or 12 years."

Meanwhile she was a prolific contributor to the soap operas, appearing in "Love of Life," "The Edge of Night," "Search for Tomorrow" and more. She appeared in a few films such as "Bachelor Party" and "The Hospital" and was a regular on the short-lived TV series "Beacon Hill."

When she received the call for "Lou Grant" from Mary Tyler Moore productions, she assumed it would be a live, three-camera show, like the company's situation comedies. Only when she arrived did she discover the series was on film, in which she was less experienced.

But she was reassured to be working again with Asner; they appeared together in the Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Conn.

Another matter she didn't expect: The travel. "I figured out that I made 21 round-trip flights between here and New York last year. I think United Airlines should hire me for a commercial."

Schools to join in HRC program

The Human Relations Council is cooperating with the Midland Independent School District in coordinating volunteers for a special classroom enrichment program this fall.

The SPARK Project (Special Programs for Additional Resources and Knowledge) will pair Midland teachers with community volunteers willing to share their special knowledge or talents.

The program, to be used in the elementary, junior high and freshman schools, will involve Midlanders who come from all parts of the community and who have special areas of interests, talents and expertise in a variety of careers, hobbies and travels.

The many and varied talents and experiences of individuals in the community can be among the most valuable resources of teaching, council officials said.

While many teachers now utilize volunteers, there exists a wealth of people in Midland who could offer their talents to add this extra dimension to the classroom lesson, they added.

"How much more interesting a lesson on Japanese history could be, for instance, with a speaker who has traveled or lived in Japan and has exhibits of the land, the people, the art and the culture. Likewise, a lesson on career development could include a policeman, a plumber, a secretary or a banker as a special resource person," noted a council spokesman.

Resource topics could include almost anything the teacher may cover in a lesson, council officials said.

The Human Relations Council will be collecting names and topics of discussion from the volunteers. They also will be collecting specific requests from teachers for speakers.

A directory of available topics will be distributed to each teacher. As teachers plan a lesson utilizing a particular topic, they can call the HRC to request a speaker, and the council will refer them to a particular volunteer.

Council officials said they expect each volunteer to be called no more than three times each semester.

"We urge the community and our teachers to participate in this program. Such a resource list can benefit everyone involved — but especially our school children. "We hope the schools will make use of these special volunteers, and we hope too that the community will continue to respond to the needs of our public schools as it has in the past," council officials added.

"In our collection department we don't pinch pennies, we dial for dollars."

Rogers here is using a better system for turning overdue accounts into bank accounts. Right, Rogers?

"Right, Mr. Anderson. I'm using a planned program of Long Distance to contact out-of-town customers whose payments are late. Long Distance lets me learn why we haven't received payment, and work out a mutually agreeable payment plan. My customers like it because it lets them deal with a human being instead of a computer. And I like it because it brings faster results."

Thanks, Rogers. Of course, any successful program like this takes careful planning and training. Rogers learned the system from Southwestern Bell. He called their toll-free number, 1-800-821-2121, and told Southwestern Bell he was having problems collecting overdue accounts. They asked him a few questions, and then sent him a Phone Power training brochure which fit the bill.

Once again, their system was our solution, and our cash flow has never been better.

Southwestern Bell

Long Distance. It's the way to get things done today.

WHY BUY A CONDOMINIUM?
Condominiums afford quality living in prime locations. They allow the owner all the financial and tax advantages of owning a home without the headaches. Condominiums are designed for a more flexible lifestyle. Most important, you have greater control over your housing costs when compared to renting.

WHY BUY A "CHANDELLE" CONDOMINIUM?
"CHANDELLE's" location at 2100 West Wadley is within minutes of downtown, theatres, recreational areas, shopping, restaurants, schools, churches, the college, and Airpark. At "CHANDELLE" you get an equity investment, the same tax breaks as a home owner, and greater control of your housing costs. "CHANDELLE" is the only real alternative people have to get away from the maintenance problems - of home owning, and doing it with style.

Come out to 2100 West Wadley or call 684-7884 to find out why "CHANDELLE" is a nice place to call home. Models are open from 12:00 noon until 6:00 p.m. seven days a week.

Bonds uncertain of future with Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — Outfielder Bobby Bonds, traded to the Cleveland Indians by the Texas Rangers, says he does not know if he will report to the Indians.

"As of now I'm unemployed," he said, but pointed out that all major leaguers who are not in the playoffs are unemployed. "I'm going to scout around and see if there are any high school jobs open. Maybe I can help out in a college."

Bonds, who hit 31 home runs and stole 43 bases for the Rangers last season, refused to say if his remarks mean he may be out of organized baseball next year.

Bonds, 32, and relief pitcher Len Barker, 23, were traded to Cleveland for relief pitcher Jim Kern and utility infielder Lavelle Blanks.

THE INDIANS ALSO picked up relief pitcher Bobby Cuellar and outfielder Dave Rivera in payment for Johnny Grubb, who was dealt to the Rangers during the season.

If Bonds does not play, he will forfeit the four years remaining on a lucrative five-year pact.

"They can cram the money," Bonds said. "Money doesn't make it. I'm sick of talking about money. It doesn't pacify a person ... I don't play ball for money. I play because I like it."

Lamb becomes lion as Yanks beat KC for 1-0 series edge

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The sacrificial lamb that had the Kansas City Royals licking their chops turned into a snarling lion Tuesday night.

When the slaughter was over, the New York Yankees had won 7-1 Tuesday night in the opening game of the American League playoffs.

Pressed into service because ace left-hander Ron Guidry was needed the day before in Boston, rookie Jim Beattie, the Yankees' No. 4 starter, responded with a gutty two-hit performance for 5-13 innings.

Young Ken Clay pitched hitless relief the rest of the way while the Yankees pounded four Kansas City hurlers for 16, capped by a towering three-run home run by the remarkable Reggie Jackson, who has reached base 11 straight times in post-season competition.

"I REALLY DIDN'T FEEL any pressure tonight," said Beattie, who was 6-9 in the regular season and facing Kansas City's top pitcher, 21-game winner Dennis Leonard.

"I wasn't tricky or anything, I just tried to get ahead. I just wanted to pitch seven innings and give our bullpen a chance to rest."

Beattie was never challenged until the sixth, when George Brett doubled and walks to Amos Otis and Pete LaCock loaded the bases.

Yankee Manager Bob Lemon then summoned Clay to protect his team's 4-0 lead and he retired Hal McRae on a sacrifice fly and Al Cowens on a ground ball.

The Yankees, who once trailed Boston in the Eastern Division by 14 games and may be en route to one of baseball's all-time comebacks, not only defeated the Royals in the first of this best-of-five series. They embarrassed the hosts who figured that with Guidry available for only one game they would win at least one and possibly both contests scheduled for Kansas City.

THE ROYALS WERE shaky from the first inning — dropping balls, making poor throws and swinging at bad pitches.

The clincher came in the eighth. Mickey Rivers and Lou Piniella singled off Steve Mingori, who relieved Leonard in the fifth, and Royals Manager Whitey Herzog called upon Al "The Mad Hungarian" Hrabosky to deal with Jackson, who already had singled and doubled. Hrabosky, obtained from the St. Louis Cardinals this year to provide the Royals with the left-handed bullpen heat they had needed so desperately while losing the '76 and '77 playoffs to the Yankees, threw two pitches.

Jackson, the hero of last year's World Series, launched a huge home run over the right field fence.

"Some guys hit .300 all year," said Jackson, assuming a modest pose. "I'm one of those fellows that do it for a couple of months. I wasn't psyched by Al. That's his thing and this time I won. Next time out he could be the one that comes out on top."

"WE HUNG ONE to Reggie," said Herzog. "And you don't get away with (Continued on page 2D)

Phils talking tall; Dodgers stay reserved

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies were talking tall going into tonight's National League playoff opener, while the Los Angeles Dodgers were relatively reserved.

"I just feel we're ready for an offensive explosion," said Mike Schmidt, among several Phils who haven't been their dynamite selves at bat this season. "But I don't think it matters what we do offensively because I think our pitching is going to stop them."

"We'll win it in three," Phillie Manager Danny Ozark said casually in the dugout as he awaited the best-of-five set that starts with two games here and finishes in Los Angeles. "I think our pitching is as good as Los Angeles'. Our defense is better."

"We're about 20 points below the team batting average we had last year. But I really expect the guys in so-called prolonged slumps to be a hell of a lot better hitters than they were all year."

The Dodgers worked out later Thursday, and this is how they reacted to the Phillies' confidence.

"They're supposed to feel confident. They're giving their honest opinions about how they feel," said second baseman Dave Lopes. "All I know is that we'll find out in the next five days who is the best."

Manager Tom Lasorda, asked about Ozark's prediction of a sweep, gave the same answer again and again.

"That's what he said last year," said Lasorda, whose team ousted the Phils in four games in the 1977 playoffs.

"He is going to say what he believes," Lasorda added. "But opinions are like noses, everybody has one. We came here to win, and we feel like that's what we are going to do. But I'm not going to predict how many games it will take. I'm not that smart."

In Christenson's 14 losses, the Phils scored a total of 21 runs.

"I won't talk about that except to say that it's made me a better pitcher," he said. "I feel I've pitched my best baseball this past year."

Lasorda feels Hooton has been his best pitcher this season. "He's done so much to get us here. In my opinion, he's the Cy Young Award winner," said Lasorda.

Kansas City in must-win position

New York Yankee Reggie Jackson gets back to second safely after overrunning the base in the seventh inning of Tuesday's American League Championship opener. (AP Laserphoto).

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Ron Guidry has yet to throw a pitch, but the New York Yankees southpaw is already playing a key role in the American League playoffs.

The Kansas City Royals were apparently so overcome by the thought of eluding Guidry in the opening playoff battle that they forgot all about a couple of guys named Jim Beattie and Ken Clay and as a result, the Royals trail the Yankees 1-0 in the best-of-five series and openly admit they are in a must-win situation.

"Well, let's put it this way: If we don't, we'll be hurtin'," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog as the Royals prepared to send Larry Gura, 16-4, against New York's Ed Figueroa, 20-9, in the second playoff game this afternoon at Royals Stadium.

"Just as sure as you've got to breathe," added Amos Otis, the Royals center fielder, "we've got to win it."

THE YANKEES GUARANTEED themselves of at least a split of the two playoff matches in Kansas City by backing a two-hitter by Beattie and Clay with 16 hits of their own in a 7-1 triumph over the Royals Tuesday night.

The flamethrowing Guidry, whose 25-3 season included a 2-0 mark against Kansas City, was expected to open the AL championship series for the Yankees until they were forced to use him against Boston Monday in a one-game playoff for the AL East championship.

That left Beattie, a right-handed rookie who was twice knocked out of the box by Kansas City en route to a 6-9 campaign.

But while the Royals were congratulating themselves on their good fortune, Beattie was pitching around a flurry of walks to hold them scoreless for five innings. Kansas City pushed across a run in the sixth, but Clay shut the door the rest of the way.

LEADING THE NEW YORK ATTACK was that annual autumnal hero, Reggie Jackson, who swatted a single, double and homer, scored twice and drove in three runs.

"Big game for us," Jackson emphasized. "We won the first game and we've still got Guidry."

The Royals, who had perhaps been anticipating a Yankee letdown after New York's wrenching 5-4 division playoff win over Boston the day before, were instead themselves strangely flat as the Yankees peppered starter Dennis Leonard and three Kansas City relievers.

"We were supposed to beat him pretty good," said Royals catcher Darrell Porter of Beattie. "But everybody was swinging at bad pitches... Really. That was one of the worst games this club has played all year."

The Yankees, whose third straight postseason appearance follows a stretch drive in which they overcame a 14-game Boston lead, said that even another duel with Kansas City was a relief after Monday's squeaker with the Red Sox.

"YESTERDAY WAS the peak," said Graig Nettles, the Yankee third baseman. "No matter if we win or lose, everything will be easier now."

But few of the Yankees were thinking about losing after Tuesday night's contest. There were even thoughts that they were yet another New York team of destiny.

"Maybe it's in the cards for us. Maybe it was all planned upstairs before the season began," said Nettles.

Playoff game brings scalpers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The first game of the American League Championship Series brought out the all-too-expected ticket scalpers — and the undercover officers to arrest them.

Authorities say a Mission Hills, Kan., lawyer went to Royals Stadium with two $4 tickets for the Yankees-Royals game, but jumped at the chance when a scalper offered him two $8 tickets for $40. He offered a $100 bill for the purchase and received $60 in change.

Then he turned to what he believed to be another baseball fan and offered to sell the original tickets for about $15 each, police said. However, the fan was actually an undercover police officer patrolling the crowd for scalpers and the lawyer was arrested.

At police headquarters, bond was set at $25 and the lawyer tried to use the $60 change to post bond. It was then police discovered that $30 of the money was counterfeit. Police confiscated the phoney money, and the lawyer posted bond with the remaining $30.

Police say he left the station and returned to the ballpark with his two $8 tickets.

Police say a Prairie Village, Kan., man also was charged with ticket scalping after undercover officers responding to a newspaper want ad purchased two tickets from him for $80. Police said 78 tickets were recovered at the house.

hanging 'em to Reggie very often. That's the flattest I've ever seen my ball club play, especially in a playoff. If we don't win tomorrow, we're hurting."

Lemon, who was fired as manager of the Royals six years ago for being too old, admitted Beattie would have watched from the bullpen Tuesday night if Guidry had not been used in the 5-4 showdown victory over the Red Sox.

"I think he would have pitched at some point in the series, but Guidry would have started tonight," said the man who rescued the sagging Yankees when Billy Martin was fired during a July trip to Kansas City.

"Beattie would likely have opened it up for us in New York Friday."

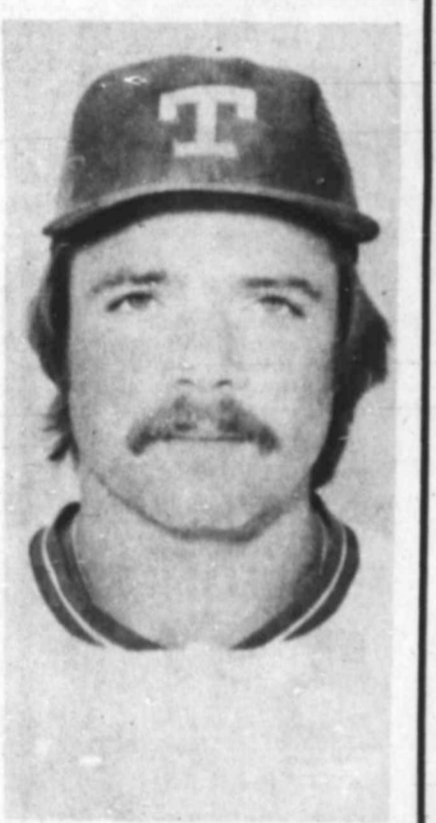

Ed Figueroa, who won 20 games with his sinking fastball this year, was scheduled to face Royals left-hander Larry Gura, 16-4, in the second game this afternoon.

"As sure as you've got to breathe," said Kansas City outfielder Amos Otis, "we've got to win it."

Bobby Bonds

Len Barker

Bonds may not report

"I'VE NEVER LIED to him," said Paul. "You never make a commitment to a ballplayer. It's stupid. I never told him I wouldn't trade him, but maybe he thought I did... I thought our relations were good, but maybe they are not."

Paul said he and Brad Corbett, Rangers owner, negotiated Monday for the players.

"We finally closed the deal at midnight," said Paul. "We shook hands on it in the men's room."

Other Indians officials were overjoyed at the trades.

"I'm really tickled about this," said Indians General Manager Phil Seghi, who is in Kansas to watch the American League playoffs. "We have satisfied part of our search for power and speed."

"THIS IS ONLY the beginning. We plan more moves and we're going after pitching. I do believe that Barker can take Kern's place on the staff."

Indians Manager Jeff Torborg, reached at his home in Mountainside, N.J., said the Indians "needed a hammer in the lineup and we got one in Bobby Bonds."

He also said Barker can throw "a strawberry through the side of a submarine," referring to Barker's more than 90 mph fastball.

Torborg said he hates to see Kern, "a friend and a fine ballplayer," leave the Indians.

"But you don't get talent unless you give up talent," he said. "Anytime you get a hammer and three rookies in a deal like this it is equivalent to an early Christmas present."

Soviet cage star dies

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexander Belov, who scored the controversial last-second basket in the Soviet Union's gold-medal victory over the United States in the 1972 Olympic Games, has died after a prolonged illness, the Soviet news agency Tass said Tuesday. He was 26.

The nature of Belov's illness was not disclosed, but Soviet sources said Belov died of cancer.

He also was a member of the Soviet world championship team in 1974 and the winning European team of 1969 and 1971. He played for the Leningrad team "Spartak," many times winner of European Cup tournaments.

At the Munich Olympics in 1972, the U.S. team apparently had a 50-49 victory—but twice the Russians were permitted to replay the final three seconds. On the second replay, Belov, the Russian center, took a length-of-the-court pass between two Americans and scored to give the Soviet team a 51-50 victory.

"He was a born basketball player," wrote the sports newspaper Sovietski Sport. "Basketball was his only enjoyment, his fame, his life."

Generosity not Reb trademark

The Midland Lee Rebels have been so stingy this year that Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" has become a story of generosity. Scrooge can now be thought of as the miser of charity.

Dickens' classic character of contempt is a loveable person compared to Gil Bartosh's confederate renegades, who pose as a football team. Talk about stingy. Atlanta would never have been burned if this group had been on the defensive perimeter.

THE LEE defenders are playing like they were reliving Chancellorsville all over again. The Deep South never had it so good. Wherever they can find a trench, they make a stand, and no army of foot soldiers or pesky air force can shake their roots. They would probably throw a fist at their grandmother if she intruded on a friendly game of marbles.

They would laugh at Scrooge and tear the head off a hungry bear. Davy Crockett could learn a thing or two from the Lee defense.

It is with this demeanor that they head into the District 5-4A warfare at Memorial Stadium Friday night against the Wild Bunch from Odessa High. If it is a defensive siege that the Odessa folks want, then it is a siege that they probably will get. The Rebels have dug trenches from goal post to goal post expecting Gettysburg to reverse.

THE REBS have given up only four touchdowns in their first three games this year. Two of them came on drives of eight and 18 yards by the opposition. Another came on a blocked punt. And the other one came on a long pass while the first teamers were taking a rest. You could say the Lee defense has not allowed a touchdown this year.

Lee has given up only 128 yards per game to the opposition this season. Against Plainview, the Panhandle's pride and joy, Lee allowed only 112 yards in total offense to the Bulldogs. Shucks, Plainview had that many yards in the first quarter of their previous two outings.

PLAINVIEW FULLBACK Royce Coleman was averaging over 180 yards per game himself until he faced the head busting Rebels. He came away with 59 yards. The Bulldogs were producing yardage at a clip of over 400 yards per game, but they had never had to walk over trenches piled with blood thirsty renegades before.

Defensive end Dwight Washington can smell out a football in a pig pen, and deliver a blow that is more offensive than defensive. His bookend on the other side, Clay Calhoun, hates the sweep with a passion and shows his anger when teams try to employ such tactics.

Tackles Rodney Taylor and Herb Pearce beef up any army trench, and invasions are strictly forbidden in this area. Linebackers Mike McCreary, Doug Crawford and Brian Briscoe would tackle a spooked water buffalo and make him like it.

CORNERBACKS Steve Waldron and Steve Pitts think football is a chance to play like Zorro, and they cut Z-like patches out of would be runners.

Saeties John White and Jody Sesson are cut from an Old West pattern in the likeness of Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid. They think everything belongs to them, and with that robbers' attitude, they can turn any defense into an offensive charge.

Many think that Lee will go as far as their defense cares to carry them. Championship hopes will rest on this group. In three games, Lee has proved themselves to be a contender for the 5-4A title. But this is a league where seven of eight teams feel they could pull off a title. Lee's trenches will have to be deep this year.

BUT THE Lee defense has so little regard for offensive machines that they look at the challenge as a closed door. They don't open the door for anyone.

Lee is best at closing doors. And that could be rough on a lot of 5-4A faces in 1978.

Twins owner Griffith was 'just being funny'

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "I honestly did not intend to hurt anyone. I was just trying to be funny."

Calvin Griffith was serious this time as he issued a public apology Tuesday night for disparaging remarks he made at a Lions Club meeting in Waseca, Minn., last week.

In a statement released at the opening game of the American League championship series here, Griffith said his remarks were not meant to reflect adversely on baseball or its players.

"I had had a couple of drinks and, in answering questions from the group, I was trying to be funny," Griffith said. "I was appearing at what was to have been an informal gathering and my remarks were geared to the spirit of that occasion."

"The reported stories, however, in isolating partial quotes out of context, so distorted my meaning that the stories in no way reflect the sense of the thoughts I was conveying."

Among his controversial remarks, the 66-year-old Griffith was quoted as saying that he moved his baseball franchise to the Twin Cities from Washington, D.C., because "you only have 15,000 blacks here."

"They'll fill up a rassling ring and put up such a chant it will scare you to death," Griffith said of blacks. "We came here because you've got good, hard-working white people here."

Also in his speech, Griffith called

Twins star Rod Carew "a damn fool" for signing a contract for $170,000 and said the performance of catcher Butch Wynegar suffered because he got married.

Griffith said other owners, upset at what he called "irresponsible reporting," had suggested legal action.

"I would like to feel," he said, "that I am a big enough person to accept any criticism I deserve and put this matter to rest with public and private apologies."

"I would therefore like to apologize to anyone I have offended. I realize some of the things I said, taken out of context, are extremely upsetting."

Griffith said he would speak personally to Carew and write letters of apology to each of the Twins players, the Minnesota Stadium Commission and the Twin City chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

One of many upset over Griffith's remarks was Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who said he was looking into the matter.

"We are proud of black players we have had in our game and of their vital contributions to baseball's growth and success," the commissioner said.

Kuhn made the statement in a reply sent to Gleason Glover, executive director of the Minneapolis Urban League, who urged an investigation of Griffith's speech.

NFL owners open meetings

CHICAGO (AP) — National Football League owners open two days of meetings Wednesday to discuss a series of problems, including those concerning various cheerleading groups.

Disruptions by various groups of lightly and tightly clad cheerleaders reached such a point that the San Diego Chargers' contingent was disbanded when it was learned one of its members had posed nude for a forthcoming issue of Playboy Magazine.

There also has been controversy over the exposed navels of the Washington Redskins' cheerleaders and the cut of the skintight uniforms of the Los Angeles Rams' Embraceable Ewes.

Aside from that, the matter of owners owning franchises in other sports will be dealt with.

Most owners frown on cross-ownership in major sports. In the event of such a ban, the two most effected would be Jack Ket Cooke of the Redskins and Lamar Hunt of the Kansas City Chiefs.

Cooke also owns two Los Angeles teams: the Kings of the National Hockey League and the Lakers of the National Basketball Association. Hunt also owns the Dallas Tornado of the North American Soccer League and has a big interest in the NBA's Chicago Bulls.

Other matters on the agenda include next year's college draft format and exhibition schedule, the instant television replay experiment tried out during certain 1978 exhibition games, the possible ban on tear-away jerseys, the increasing difficulty of transporting teams to and from games because of a decrease in charter flights and the possible introduction of a procedure to appeal officials' decisions.

Landry says Cowboys have no spark

DALLAS (AP)—The Dallas Cowboys need spark, miles and miles of spark.

"I just don't see any momentum at all," said Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry after an emotional 9-5 National Football League loss to the Washington Redskins Monday night. "We don't have the spark you got to have."

Landry, who only had two hours sleep before he viewed films of the loss, said Tuesday the major factor in his World Champions' disappointing 3-2 record is mental attitude.

"The whole game is mental," said Landry. "It's how you think and dedicate yourself to the job at hand. Everybody respects the Cowboys and that means they play harder and attack our weaknesses more. We are getting the best out of the opposition."

"That's not unusual. It happens to every successful athletic team. But we must recognize now we are not in a good position. We have a big mountain to climb and right now we are down in the valley."

Landry likened Dallas' position to that of world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali.

"Everybody keeps telling you how good you are all the time and you start believing it," said Landry. "We were getting complacent. Even Ali got complacent and had to work to get his (boxing) title back."

"We now have a race without question in our (the National Conference Eastern) division," said Landry. "In our division now with Philadelphia and the New York Giants coming on every game you play is a tossup."

Landry said, "Washington is definitely in the driver's seat. Every game is a challenge for us."

Landry said Dallas could no longer afford to live off last year.

"Every team, every person tends to get by on the least you can, to achieve with minimum effort," he said. "Sometimes that's not enough."

Landry said the Cowboys were "playing good but not winning the big games. That's where you separate the winners from the losers."

Landry said it would be very difficult for the Cowboys to come off the emotional game with Washington and be ready for a visit from the New York Giants Sunday.

"It's a great challenge for us because the Giants can beat anybody," said Landry. "If our character is there it will start to show up."

Landry added "We're in for a long battle and if we don't get with it it's going to be a long winter."

Bosox once again in bridesmaid role

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Red Sox once again are baseball's most notable bridesmaids, with nothing to show for two seasons of American League pennant contention except 196 victories.

The latest campaign, which ended with Monday's AL East tiebreaker loss to the New York Yankees, capped yet another season of frustration for a team that is familiar with failure in September.

Perhaps no team in baseball has less to show for a long year of dramatic ups and downs than the Red Sox, whose 1978 season represented one of the great tumbles in the history of the sport.

Veteran slugger Carl Yastrzemski was left teary-eyed by the near miss, vowing to hang on until the Red Sox snare the brass ring.

"Someday," said the 39-year-old Yastrzemski, "we'll get the cigar ... I'm going to play on a world champion."

But it will be another year, another long season spanning spring training to early fall, before the Red Sox captain gets his chance, if then.

Boston began the year with a supposedly awesome lineup and a pitching staff bolstered by expensive free agents and newcomers obtained in trades or promoted from the minors.

The team moved into first place in May and opened a 10-game lead in early July. On July 19, Boston had a comfortable lead over the Baltimore Orioles and the surprising Milwaukee Brewers. The Yankees were 14 games back, torn by internal strife.

The figuring was that the Red Sox could breeze even if they played .500 baseball, instead of .700.

Boston played .500, but the Yankees played .700. New York humiliated the Red Sox in four straight games at Fenway Park in September, beat them in Yankee Stadium and won the sudden-death showdown after a late Red Sox charge forced the tiebreaker.

Injuries to Yastrzemski, catcher Carlton Fisk, shortstop Rick Burson, second baseman Jerry Remy, reliever Bill Campbell and right fielder Dwight Evans were blamed.

The Boston bench, which looked so impressive in the spring, turned out to be weak in the clutch.

So did several Boston regulars who were healthy. Right-hander Mike Torrez, a $2.6 million free agent and Yankee hero in the 1977 playoffs and World Series, was 1-6 down the stretch, and he lost the playoff game.

Jim Rice had a season for the record books, leading the major leagues in virtually every hitting category except average: 46 home runs, 139 RBI, 213 hits, 15 triples, 121 runs, a .315 batting mark. He appeared in all 163 games.

Reliever Bob Stanley, 15-2, and starter Dennis Eckersley, 20-8, exceeded expectations and Fisk, playing a remarkable 157 games, was a backbone of the club.

But it all was washed away on a cool, early October afternoon when New York's Rich Gossage retired Rice and Yastrzemski with the winning run on base in the bottom of the ninth inning.

They started fast and finished with a charge, but in between the Red Sox somehow found a way to lose. Some would use the word choke.

The Red Sox cleaned house after a near-miss in 1977.

By last summer, 22 players who had been part of the previous season had been cut, sold, traded or just plain purged.

The revolving door started swinging last November when the team was sold to a group headed by Haywood Sullivan and Edward "Buddy" LeRoux.

Veteran General Manager Dick O'Connell, who built the team into a contender and a financial success, was fired.

Player deals were made and fans flooded ticket windows. Boston drew a record 2.3 million customers in 1978 to major league baseball's smallest park.

Marion's Rudison sets rushing mark

By The Associated Press

When Houston Marion's Rudy Rudison piled up 308 yards rushing on 20 carries at halftime last week against previously unbeaten Houston Memorial Hall, Coach Harry Treymbig started looking for a record book.

"We thought the record was around 520 but nobody was sure," Treymbig said, referring to the all-time Texas schoolboy single game rushing record. "After the ball game we went out and bought one just to see what we had done."

What Rudison, with the help of his Marion teammates, had done was break the 25-year-old single-game rushing record of 520 yards set in 1953 by Sugar Land's Kenneth Hall against Houston Lutheran.

Rudison, a 5-8, 165-lb. senior, gained 291 more yards in the second half and finished with 599 yards on 32 carries, including seven touchdown runs for a 85-21 victory.

Rudison earns mention this week in The Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll along with Houston St. Plus quarterback Gary Kubiak, who surpassed the all-time career passing record of former San Antonio Lee and Rice University star Tommy Kramer.

Kramer, during three seasons at Lee, passed for 5,485 yards. Kubiak, in his fourth year at St. Plus, surpassed that total by completing 11 of 32 for 148 yards in a 43-12 victory over DeQuincy, La., last week. He now has passed for 5,523 yards during his schoolboy career.

"We talked about it at halftime and decided to go for the record," Treymbig said. "We normally don't try to run up a score but we kind of lost perspective of the score. The record became the challenge."

"I told the kids after the game it was an individual record but not an individual effort. I told them they had all done something they could be proud of."

Treymbig was faced with a dilemma in going for the record. It was a matter of not running up the score or giving Rudison a shot at the record.

"If you get a reputation for running up the score and stay in this profession long enough it will come back on you," Treymbig said. "But if I hadn't let Rudy go for it, I couldn't have looked him in the eye Monday morning."

Hall's record also was in danger from Splendora's Donald Moore, who rushed 321 yards on only 12 carries, scoring five touchdowns and in a 60-8 rout of Kountze. Moore, however, sat out the second half.

Senior running back Wayne McLaughlin of Sonora rushed 199 yards on 10 carries and scored touchdowns on runs of six, eight, 52 and 85 yards in a 33-0 rout of Reagan County.

Quarterback Glenn Opel led San Antonio Randolph for one touchdown and passed for another in the final two minutes for a 22-14 victory over Karnes City. A week ago, Opel took Randolph 97 yards in the final minutes for a 14-14 tie with South San Antonio West.

Sooners work on kicking

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—The No. 1 ranked Oklahoma Sooners put special emphasis on the punting and kicking games Tuesday afternoon in preparation for their annual clash with Texas on Saturday.

"The kicking game will be very important in the determining the outcome of the game," Heach Coach Barry Switzer said.

Switzer was pleased with the overall performance of the Sooners during Tuesday's work-out. "We had a good practice. Both the offense and the defense looked good," Switzer said.

MHS volleyball team notches win

ABILENE—The Midland High volleyball team started off strong and then had to ward off a strong Abilene High charge in the second set but ended up with a 15-13 district win Tuesday night. The win, on the heels of second place finish in the Key City tournament here over the weekend and a Thursday victory over defending district champion Big Spring, pushes MHS to 2-1 in district competition.

In the Key City tournament Midland downed Lubbock Coronado, Graham and Amarillo Palo Duro before losing to San Angelo in the finals.
 Diann Shiplet and Cheryl Strack of Midland High were named to the all-tournament team.
 The Midland junior varsity also won, 15-13, 5-3.
 Next action for the Midland High volleyball team is Thursday when they get a chance for revenge against San Angelo on the road.

Eagles play game of punter roulette

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Call them Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside. At the moment, Rick Engles is in and Mitch Hoopes is out, but the way the Philadelphia Eagles' revolving door has been whirling, things could change at any moment.

It is a tale of two punters—and it is not to be believed.

It started in training camp where Hoopes, who had kicked around with Dallas, San Diego and Detroit, showed up as a free agent. Engles, who had played for Seattle and Pittsburgh, was traded to the Eagles for a midding draft choice.

ON AUG. 15: Hoopes is released.
ON AUG. 22: Engles is released and Hoopes is brought back.
ON AUG. 28: Hoopes is released again and Engles is brought back.
ON SEPT. 25: Engles is released again and Hoopes is brought back again.
AND ON SEPT. 30: Hoopes is released yet another time and Engles is brought back once more.

"Dick Vermeil called me last Friday night," Engles said of the Eagles' head coach. "I was home in Tulsa. When I got cut I drove 26 straight hours from Philly to get home. Made it Wednesday about 2 p.m. Now here it is, Friday at 5, and the coach is telling me, 'We're thinking of bringing you back in. We've got no confidence in Hoopes. Stay by the phone,' he tells me.

"He calls me again on Saturday, 11 in the morning. At 11:40 I'm on a plane. Right in the airport in Chicago I meet Hugh Ortman (the team's ticket manager, dispatched with a contract) and sign. It was about 1:30. They had to have a contract signed by 4. And on Sunday I'm punting in Baltimore.

"WHEN I REJOINED the team some of the veterans said they thought my mind would be blown, the way everything was happening. And a couple of 'em said I should've held the team up, held out for maybe 10 thousand bucks more. They would've had to give it to me or find someone else in a hurry. But that's not me."

That doesn't mean Engles isn't embittered.

"I think if you sign a contract and are good enough to make it through training camp and, say, the first regular game, your salary should be guaranteed for the season," he says.

"Then the team says, 'We've got money invested in this kid and we're going with him.' Punters aren't like quarterbacks or even linemen. We don't have playbooks to learn. We can come right in and start kicking, so we tend to get shipped in and out more. One bad game and you're gone.

"The players' contract is a unilateral contract. We're bound to it. The teams aren't. I believe we should have a guaranteed contract. They do it with coaches. They should do it with us, too. At least I think I deserve something after what I've gone through the last few months."

HOOPES, NATURALLY, has more to be bitter about.

"How can you have confidence in yourself when nobody else does? Think about it; the Eagles call me,

Teofilo Stevenson gets Cuba's permission to meet Ali in series of three-round bouts

CHICAGO (AP)—Two-time Olympic heavyweight boxing champion Teofilo Stevenson has received permission from the Cuban government to fight Muhammad Ali in a five-city series in the United States, promoters announced at a news conference Tuesday.

"It depends on Ali and the TV networks for it to come off," said Bob Arum, chairman of the board of Top Rank Inc., a promotion firm which has handled many of Ali's previous fights.

Arum's announcement was made in the office of All's manager, Herbert Muhammad. It coincided with presentation by Top Rank and Arum's law firm of $15,000 each to the Herbert Muhammad Foundation, which will provide housing and scholarships for the underprivileged.

Stevenson to retain his amateur championship. His plan is to involve Madison Square Garden, the Los Angeles Forum and three other locations. Possibly, Chicago will be one of them.

According to Arum, Stevenson would not be paid for the matches, but the Cuban Boxing Federation would receive a sum of money for his participation.

"THE CUBANS ARE sincere and committed," he said. "The whole thing came about through a gentleman named Ben Thompson, a promoter in Los Angeles. He succeeded where I failed and Madison Square Garden failed. He persuaded the amateur boxing authorities and the government of Cuba that it would be a good thing for Stevenson and Ali to fight. He contacted me in mid-September and I'm in the process of making the matches a reality. Thompson is involved in the promotion.

But, Arum cautioned "everything is very preliminary. I still have to reach a financial agreement with Herbert Muhammad and Muhammad Ali. Once a deal is made with them, you never have to worry. They have always more than lived up to both the letter and spirit of their agreements with me," Arum said.

"THE BOUTS probably would be scheduled over a period of two or three weeks in 1979, and Ali would be prohibited from fighting any other matches in the interim," Arum said.

All recently won the World Boxing Council heavyweight boxing championship for an unprecedented third time by taking a 15-round decision from Leon Spinks.

"I've had offers from some other people," Herbert Muhammad said. "I've got a $10 million offer from government of Iran and another $1 1/2 million offer, but I don't wish to reveal the name of the proposed boxers."

All, who won an Olympic gold medal in 1960, has been working in Mississippi on a movie called "Freedom Road." The movie is scheduled to be completed Dec. 10.

"I SPOKE TO Muhammad about it on the phone, but that's all," Herbert Muhammad said. "He told me, 'This will be really a biggie.'"

Arum said that all five bouts would be three-round matches and that Top Rank would coordinate the entire program.

"They wouldn't technically be exhibitions and they wouldn't technically be championship fights," Arum said. "The format is a device to enable Stevenson to retain his amateur championship. His plan is to involve Madison Square Garden, the Los Angeles Forum and three other locations. Possibly, Chicago will be one of them.

According to Arum, Stevenson would not be paid for the matches, but the Cuban Boxing Federation would receive a sum of money for his participation.

New speedy trial law faces high court test today

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — When police officer B.T. Barrington stopped a pickup on a freeway frontage road, there was no way he could have known the afternoon incident would result in the first test of the controversial new "speedy trial" law.

Barrington reported the pickup was running off the road near Interstate 35 and then crossing back over the lane marker. He said the driver, Linzy Wade, stumbled as he walked to the police car for a driver's license check and had a moderate-to-heavy odor of alcohol on his breath.

Wade was charged with second-offense driving while intoxicated. Wade pleaded innocent but was convicted on July 7 and assessed a three-year probated sentence.

Wade's lawyer, Dain Whitworth, said the state waited 30 days too long to try Wade. He said the new "speedy trial" law requires the state to go to trial against accused felons within 120 days of their arrest or the filing of a complaint.

Wade appealed to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which scheduled a hearing today. The 1977 Legislature enacted the law, but the effective date was set at July 1, 1978.

The issue before the appeals court is whether the law applies to felony offenses committed before July 1.

"If the Legislature had not intended the act to apply to criminal actions pending upon the effective date of the act, there would have been no reason to delay the effective date for more than a year from its enactment," said a defense brief.

Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle maintains the 120-day countdown began on July 1. He has urged the appeals court to affirm the conviction.

"An examination of the act reveals no expression of intent to make the act retrospective," says the state's brief. The delay, the state added, was to give the judicial system time to reduce the backlog of cases and to adopt procedures to comply with the law.

The Texas District and County Attorneys Association also filed a brief, asking the court to declare the law unconstitutional.

Fifteen district attorneys met with Gov. Dolph Briscoe in 1977 in a vain attempt to persuade him to veto the bill.

The association's brief says the law is an "unwarranted intrusion of the Legislature upon the judicial branch of our state government."

"To allow the Legislature to define what acts are crimes, and then to dictate to the courts the times within which the cause of action must be determined amounts to an unconstitutional infringement on the administration of the judicial system," the association says.

FTC maps drive to put more truth in advertising

By JANE SEE WHITE

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal official is studying ways to deal with advertising's "non-verbal" message — the unspoken promise of youth or beauty or happy marriage — and the prospect has the business up in arms.

Tracy Westen, deputy director of the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection, maintains the agency must expand its efforts to assure truthful advertising beyond simply monitoring an ad's written or spoken message.

The reason, Westen declared in a recent speech, is that "vast sums of money are lavished" on sophisticated advertising techniques aimed at seducing buyers with picture, music and mood.

Historically, the FTC has met its mandate to assure truth in advertising by making advertisers withdraw false claims. That's not sufficient now, he said, because often no claims are made at all.

Westen said more and more advertisers are relying instead on "the non-verbal, non-cognitive, pictorial" message to attract consumers.

For instance, cigarette ads often feature "couples splashing in the surf, cowboys riding the range, and young, attractive, healthy "air-brushed" models who have spent ... the better part of the decade gazing deeply into our collective eyes," Westen said.

Dee Pridden, an aide to Westen, said the official is not yet planning to challenge any particular advertisement's non-verbal message. "The point is that we at the FTC have to develop methods to take into account the total message in advertising," she said.

Westen said one approach may be to ask panels of consumers or experts to review advertisements.

As a whole, the advertising industry is less than pleased with Westen's regulatory thinking. Listen, for instance, to Jane Trahey of Trahey Advertising in Chicago:

"You would have to do away with all perfume advertisements and all cosmetic advertisements," she declared. "You're selling a woman a bottle of promise. It's a suggestion that this might be the right product for her."

"I think the FTC is way out of line. That's a form of censorship that I would resent."

Along with other critics, she suggests that Westen is underestimating the intelligence of the consumer.

The American Association of Advertising Agencies represents 450 firms that produce 75 percent of the ads used in this country. Its president, William Hesse, disagrees with Westen.

"I think this is harassment," he said. "The notion of perception is a very complex one and there has been little research on the subject. To discuss perception in the absence of research is to dash into the wilderness without your pants on."

Hesse said the AAAA is sponsoring research on how people perceive not just advertising, but also editorial content, political speeches and other messages, verbal and not.

Hesse said the research, under way at Harvard, Stanford and Purdue universities, is not expected to be completed for more than a year.

Research aside, advertising specialists don't argue with Westen's assertion that a picture's impact on viewers might influence whether they buy a product.

"People remember what they see, not what they hear. That's the way TV works. It may be news to the FTC, but this is not news in the business," said the managing director of one New York agency.

Senate publication lists presidential vetoes since 1789

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President Carter is looking for some light and timely bedtime reading, he might consider curling up with "Presidential Vetoes, 1789-1976."

Published by the U.S. Senate, this fat volume is a fund of information on a subject very much on the president's mind.

He'd learn that the first veto was cast by George Washington on April 5, 1792.

The first president objected to a bill, passed by the 2nd Congress, which provided that in the next Congress the House of Representatives would have 120 members. The legislation then set out how many representatives each of the 15 states would have.

In his veto message, Washington pointed out that the Constitution said representation in the House should be based on population.

"And there is no one proportion or divisor which, applied to the respective numbers of the states, will yield the number and allotment of representatives proposed by the bill," wrote Washington.

President Carter will be heartened to learn that the House upheld Washington's veto. A week later, the House passed another apportionment bill which provided that in the next Congress state representation in the House would be based on one member for every 33,000 persons.

However, the Democratic president might be distressed to discover that President Thomas Jefferson, a Democratic Party hero, never vetoed a bill during eight years in office.

Jefferson's predecessor, John Adams, served four years and also never vetoed a bill.

Compare those veto-free 12 years to the eight years in which Richard M. Nixon vetoed 43 bills and Gerald R. Ford rejected 66.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, president for 12 years, holds the all-time record for vetoes with 635, a mark unlikely to be broken now that the Constitution limits presidents to two terms.

Grover Cleveland vetoed 414 bills in two years and only two were overridden.

Here are some of the more memorable vetoes:

Rutherford B. Hayes vetoed a bill authorizing "the coinage of the standard silver dollar and to restore its legal tender character." But both the House and Senate voted to override on Feb. 28, 1878.

One of the few times Congress was able to override a Cleveland veto came on a bill authorizing construction of "a public building in Dayton, Ohio."

Woodrow Wilson was overridden when he vetoed a bill repealing the Daylight Saving Law.

Franklin D. Roosevelt vetoed bills proclaiming Oct. 11 as General Pulaszki's Memorial Day, authorizing the use of War Department equipment for the August 1938 convention of the American Legion in New York City, shortening the hours for firemen in the District of Columbia and safeguarding homing pigeons.

The all-time loser in veto fights with Congress was President Andrew Johnson.
