Perlmutter family expresses 'obligation'

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Until the end, the family hoped for a miracle, but felt obligated to help 73-year old Abe Perlmutter die with the dignity he desired.

After a court battle, Perlmutter, who suffered from the disease that killed baseball player Lou Gehrig, won the right to unplug the respirator that had kept him alive. It was disconnected Thursday and the former taxi driver died 41 hours later.

"He was a fighter and a winner," said his daughter, Carol Klamman. "A man who lived on his own terms."

"I believe now that a man has the right to choose his own destiny," she said. "But we were hoping, praying that somehow there would be help for him to live on."

Weekend conference on tax reform held

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Tax justice" has become the battle cry for liberal tax activists who feel that across the board tax cutting, as advocated by conservatives, is not really tax reform.

The National Conference on Alternative State and Local Public Policies held a weekend tax conference here during which tax officials expressed their frustration about tax cuts such as California's Proposition 13.

'Tough treatment' of juveniles asked

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says states should get tough with violent juveniles, bringing them to trial in adult courts and sentencing them to "significant punishment."

"The idea of independent juvenile courts has backfired," the Massachusetts Democrat said. "There has been a notorious lack of rehabilitation. The violent juvenile is often let off with a slap on the wrist."

In a speech Sunday to a convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, Kennedy for the first time endorsed moves to try youths accused of violent crimes in adult courts rather than in the more protective atmosphere of juvenile courts.

Kirbo claims case against Anderson

ATLANTA (AP) — Charles Kirbo, a close friend of President Carter, says he has "a good case" against Jack Anderson after conducting an investigation on his own of the syndicated columnist.

Anderson, who recently outlined an alleged scheme to pressure the Carter administration into easing legal pressure against fugitive financier Robert Vesco, called Kirbo's probe "the same kind of tricky business that we got from (former President Richard) Nixon."

Kirbo was among several Carter associates cited by Anderson as targets of the alleged scheme.

Despite snipers, cease-fire seems to be holding

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Sniper fire killed three persons trying to cross a Syrian-held bridge into Christian east Beirut today, it was reported, but the Syrian-Christian cease-fire generally appeared to be holding for a second day.

Lebanese President Elias Sarkis, meanwhile, ended three days of urgent talks in Damascus with Syria's President Hafez Assad and left for Saudi Arabia and meetings with Saudi leaders.

Sarkis, whose Damascus talks produced the cease-fire, is trying to work out a permanent solution to the conflict here between the Christians and the Syrian-dominated peacekeeping force in Beirut, which is trying to assert control over and disarm the Christian militias. A token contingent from Saudi Arabia is part of the Arab League force.

The Voice of Lebanon, Beirut's Christian radio station, said the city had its second quiet night in a row after 10 days of heavy fighting between Syrian troops and Christian militiamen. But it said that early this morning "Syrian snipers" killed three persons and wounded another in the Qarantina Bridge area while they were trying to enter East Beirut.

The only cease fire violation reported Sunday was sniper fire that broke out at the bridge as hundreds of fleeing Christian families were trying to get across it. After that flurry of shots, all main crossroads between Christian and Moslem areas were closed, and the Syrians blocked supply columns bound for the Christian areas.

The Syrian-held bridge is on the supply route to east Beirut from the Christian port of Jounieh, 15 miles to the north. The bridge area was the scene of some of the heaviest of last week's fighting as the Christian militias made repeated attempts to recapture it and open the supply line.

As the Christians in East Beirut assessed the damage to their war-ravaged homes, offices and shops, leftist Lebanese Moslem groups called a general strike in Moslem west Beirut to protest a French proposal that the Syrians withdraw from Christian areas and that Christian and Moslem units of the reconstituted Lebanese army man buffer zones between the Syrians and the Christian militias.

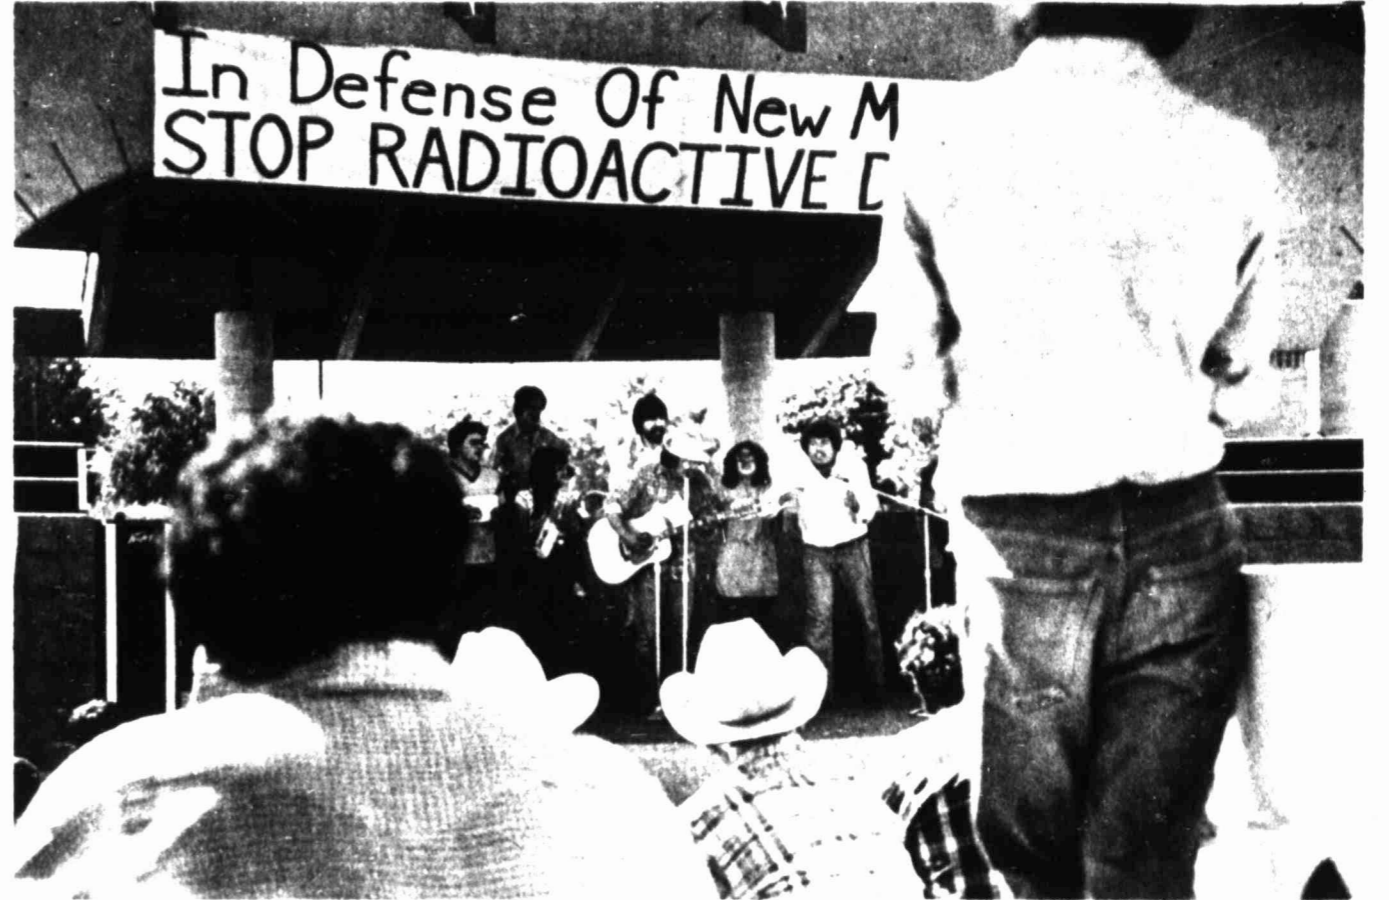

The leftists charge that the Christians control the Lebanese army, which disintegrated during the Lebanese civil war and is now being rebuilt.

Beirut police said Syrian rockets, artillery and machine guns killed 1,300 Lebanese and wounded more than 2,000 in the 10 days of fighting before the truce took hold Saturday night, about 18 hours after the U.N. Security Council appealed for an end to the bloodshed. Syria has not reported its casualties.

Morale was high in the Christian sector Sunday, but the people were not optimistic.

"We've seen enough cease fires break down not to take chances," said Fuad Farah, a travel agent in charge of a basement bunker for 25 families.

The future of the truce appeared to hinge on the talks Assad and Sarkis.

Musicians, theatrical groups and speakers entertain about 300 persons during a Sunday afternoon rally in Carlsbad, N.M. Purpose of the event, according to organizers, was to arouse opposition to a government plan to construct a $230-million nuclear waste disposal site about 30 miles east of the city. (Staff Photo by Jim Parker)

Rally in Carlsbad latest in efforts to halt WIPP

By JIM PARKER

CARLSBAD, N.M. — There's a good chance much of the city never knew it was happening.

The laid-back looking dude and the close-cropped man in the vested pin-stripe were engaged in an animated conversation Sunday, backgrounded by a driving drum beat and guitars.

Multi-colored balloons jerked and ran at their moorings, kids played in the grass, a couple of old men, dressed in jeans and gaberdine shirts, ate watermelon in the shade of their straw hats.

Citizens for Alternatives to Radioactive Dumping had organized the rally to protest development of the $230-million Waste Isolation Pilot Project about 30 miles east of this tourist and potash center of 38,000.

Rally organizers put the number in attendance at 350 — some estimates were as low as 200 — and some of the crowd was from out of town.

"If they want to bury that stuff (nuclear waste), let them do it in someone else's backyard," the young bearded man was saying to the more conservatively dressed man in the three-piece suit.

"We're going to fight them to the limit in Canyon (Texas)," the young editor and publisher of the Canyon News added.

The rally Sunday in Carlsbad's San Jose Park was one of several held recently around the state of New Mexico, where a federal proposal to dispose of nuclear waste by burying it in 3,600-foot-deep vaults in salt beds in the southeastern part of the state threatens to become the biggest—and for some the most unwelcome—issue of the approaching November elections.

Official Carlsbad, from Mayor Walter Gerralls to the Chamber of Commerce, has endorsed what U.S. Department of Energy officials describe as a pilot or experimental project for the disposal of low-level or transuranic nuclear wastes and a certain number of high-level, very hot spent fuel assemblies from commercial reactors around the nation.

The wastes would be transported to the site by highway and rail. Midland and Odessa straddle a major corridor for waste coming from the east.

While DOE officials steadfastly maintain their plan is second only to Fail Safe, an Air Force program intended to minimize the risks of an inadvertent U.S. nuclear bombing attack, at least one other federal agency says that not enough is known about the effects of radiation on salt to justify the experiment.

DOE has promised state veto power to New Mexico, though just how the veto would be exercised has remained unclear.

Several sites in Northern Texas (Canyon) and Louisiana also are under consideration as disposal sites. Both states (Texas and Louisiana) have let it be known in Washington that such plans will be opposed.

Randall County in Texas sought and obtained an injunction which stopped the taking of core samplings by DOE for eight days last year.

The assistant district attorney from that county, Rick Wilcox, said Sunday (Continued on Page 2A)

Western Swing fiddler Alvin Crow, above, and his Pleasant Valley Boys set the mood for singer Rusty Weir, right, and the Tennessee Hat Band Saturday night at Midland's Chaparral Center. ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

The mark of Pierre Cardin may be on the next Cadillac you buy.

And you'll really be uptown if you own the whole line of merchandise carrying the label of the prestigious French fashion designer.

"If you can afford the Cardin $2.5-million (jet) airplane, the Cardin Cadillac, furniture and clothes, you can be thoroughly equipped," proposed Jack Rice III.

Rice was in Midland Friday quietly and inconspicuously showing a prototype of the Cardin Caddy.

It bears 24-karat gold-plated Pierre Cardin signature plates, color scheme, wood-grain accent stripes, spoke wheels, air-cushioned driver's seat to reduce fatigue, other frills, and a membership in the exclusive Pierre Cardin Motor Club.

Otherwise, it's thoroughly a General Motors Cadillac, which Cardin has called "the epitome of quality and good American taste."

The Cardin tag is only $2,695 more than the base price of whichever model Cadillac you might decide to put in your garage and on the road.

Rice made a stopover at the Midland Hilton in his New York-to-Los Angeles trip in introducing the car at selected markets along the East Coast and in the Houston, Dallas and Midland markets in Texas.

Midland seems to be a prime target.

"This is a very strong Cadillac market, considering the size of the town," said Rice. He is national sales manager of the Miami, Fla.-based Standard Motors, Inc., which is putting the Cardin touch to the Cadillacs.

In his layover, Rice had planned to spend some time with R.A. Berg, president of Berg Motor Co., the Cadillac dealership in Midland.

But Berg was out of town on the day of Rice's scheduled visit, and Rice wasn't about to tarry. There were many more sales territories down the road.

"Midland-Odessa is certainly not the center of the universe," Rice said. "It may be the center of the oil world."

Rice was en route to Los Angeles, Calif., where the 56-year-old Cardin is to throw a "bash" Oct. 23 for celebrities at the Hyatt Regency in formally introducing the Cardin Cadillac on the West Coast.

The initial formal showing of the luxury motorcar and a fashion show will be Oct. 19 at the Essex House in New York City, and the next bash will be Oct. 20 at the Dural Country Club in Miami, Fla. Preceding the showing will be "a very exclusive premiere" — for high society — of Cardin Environments in New York.

Cardin, whose name is particularly familiar to clothiers and the fashion conscious, is both extravagant and, paradoxically, frugal.

He maintains a $30-million theater and art complex in Paris on his $50-million annual income.

"He's an extraordinary man — very austere, very disciplined. He drives around France in his little Renault. He tries to be as inconspicuous as he possibly can," Rice said.

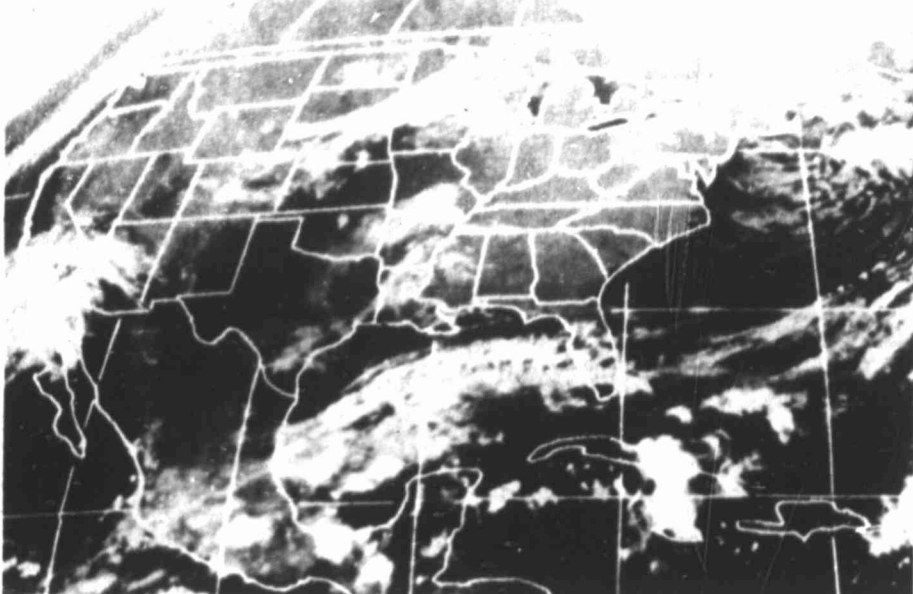

The Cardin line of merchandise and designs includes those for the home,

Calendar unkind to Columbus; It's also Lief Erikson's Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today is Columbus Day, thanks to Congress, but the Oct. 9 date it occurs on is the least felicitous since passage of the Monday Holiday Act.

Erikson's Norwegian countrymen don't like that, much less having to share his holiday with Columbus. Also, 486 years ago today the Genoan had little to celebrate.

rather than commemorate it. The traditional Oct. 12 and the second Monday in October will coincide in 1992, fortuitously marking the 500th anniversary of Columbus' landing in the New World.

Anti-WIPP rally held in Carlsbad

(Continued from Page 1A) the injunction was only the beginning. "We are going to fight them (DOE) to the limit on this," Wilcox said.

In spite of a promised economic boom to the community, Wilson said the long-term effects could be devastating. "What company is going to locate next to a nuclear dump? What family is going to relocate, say from Indianapolis, Ind., leave one hell-hole and come to a place where — should something go wrong — (it) could make hell look good?" Wilson asked the group.

Later, Dr. Charles Hyder, recently named to an international commission to arbitrate a very similar dispute between the Federal German government and its state of Lower Saxony, reminded everyone that when President Carter became governor of Georgia, one of his first actions was to bar any such development in Georgia.

"Now he expects us here in New Mexico and Texas to play nuclear dump for the nation," the astrophysicist and staff scientist for the Southwest Research and Information Center said.

Current DOE plans call for the WIPP site to be operational by 1985 and, providing the proposal gains final Nuclear Regulatory Commission approval and is cleared by some state process, construction could begin by 1979.

Several estimates as to the danger period involving stored radioactive waste set the duration at 250,000 years. Other objections to the development include the permanent impoundment of oil, natural gas and potash reserves in and near the WIPP site.

A series of hearings conducted earlier this year by DOE in New Mexico and Texas, including a day-long session in Midland, appeared to register more negative comment than positive. However, according to most reports, DOE officials presently are maintaining their timetable for development.

Cool nights, warm days in forecast

The West Texas autumn seems genuinely here, with cool nights and warm afternoons expected in the early part of this week, the weatherman said today.

The official forecast calls for the skies to stay partly cloudy through Tuesday with the high today and Tuesday predicted at about 80 degrees.

Tonight's low should be in the low 50s, according to the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

October is keeping its record for dry days thus far, with no rain recorded in the past 24 hours and no chance of rain mentioned in today's forecast. So far this year, however, the weather service rain gauge has recorded a total for the area of 12.31 inches.

An innovative plan

Reform of the nation's tangled and increasingly costly welfare programs was one of President Carter's dearest domestic hopes this year. But he was no more successful in straightening out this particular mess than were his predecessors going back to John F. Kennedy.

Every plan to overhaul the patchwork welfare system during the last decade and a half has been sunk without trace by Congress.

Unfortunately, the welfare constituency has grown so powerful and there are so many tradeoffs between competing factions that even a simple reorganization of public assistance programs has become all but impossible. The administration's latest effort is a case in point: The Carter reform to extend and streamline coverage left the White House with a price tag of $2.8 billion added to the present $44.5 billion cost of conglomerated welfare.

By the time Congress got through tinkering and trading off, this figure had zoomed to more than $20 billion — far too much for passage. With Proposition 13 chilling the political landscape, House Speaker Tip O'Neill declared welfare reform dead for the session.

Meanwhile, the same fate appears to have overtaken a more modest "no-frills" plan of blocking federal grants to states and cities costing an additional $5 billion, which was introduced by Senators Alan Cranston, Russell Long and Daniel Moynihan.

Thus the biggest rogue elephant in Washington continues to run amok.

More than one out of every ten Americans now receive some form of welfare payment. The temporary emergency relief prescribed for the jobless during the depression has become a way of life for second and third generations. The problem is not with the occasionally sensational indictments of welfare chislers, such as the California woman who embezzled a quarter million dollars in welfare payments; the real problem arises out of the laws and regulations which punish work and reward idleness. For example, in some states a person on welfare could lose $1,249 a year by switching from a part-time to a full-time job; the loss could be $3,000 if the person is on Medicaid. Two-parent families in Michigan, for instance, can increase their income by 33 percent if the father leaves and the mother goes on welfare.

So, welfare programs as now established not only discourage work, but encourage dissolution of families as well.

Is there any way out of this morass? What is to be done?

Fortunately, American ingenuity is still at work. Rep. David Stockman, R-Mich., is advancing an innovative plan which is commanding unusual attention. Congressman Stockman would abolish welfare payments for all but the non-working — the aged, blind and disabled — whose eligibility would be based strictly on physical affliction. He assumes the merit of simplified transfer payments for those with inadequate incomes; he would provide this through child allowances to all families in the nation, insuring care for a top-priority concern of most Americans. The net cost of universal child benefits could be less than existing programs, according to Stockman, because it would eliminate the vast welfare bureaucracy. And, moreover, it would restore pride to multitudes long burdened with the welfare stigma.

A second alternative being proposed by Stockman would be a tax credit of perhaps 20 percent of gross wages for low-income workers through a negative withholding tax which would also permit a freeze on the minimum wage in order to expand job opportunities for younger, unskilled workers.

To be sure, the Stockman proposals may have some unforeseen pitfalls. They appear to be somewhat simplistic and there will be much argument about universal child benefits. But at least they offer a fresh start on a very stale problem by erasing welfare distinctions and by blurring the differences between those who need transfer payments and those who don't.

And in this season of tax and spending limits, such an approach might just work — a half-way house for withdrawing from our welfare addiction.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Friends checking out scandal

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Griffin Bell and Charles Kirbo, who have practiced law and politics together in Georgia, are as close as two ill-matched Siamese twins. Now Bell is the sage, salty attorney general and Kirbo is the dry, slow-drawing presidential adviser.

For two less resourceful friends, it might be awkward for one to investigate the other. But they unabashedly have joined forces to investigate Kirbo's role in the Robert Vesco influence scandal.

Kirbo has been prowling the back streets of Albany, Ga., in search of evidence that he can impart to his friend at the Justice Department. Kirbo has cornered witnesses and questioned them cordially about the bizarre, $10 million plot to smooth relations between the international swindler Vesco and the Carter administration.

Kirbo's line of questioning, however, suggests he is more interested in discrediting us than in exposing the Vesco plot. He is offended at us for reporting that he had been in touch with the influence peddlers — a contact that his office records revealed but that he avowedly cannot recall.

The plotters continue to claim, some of them under oath, that they had kept in communication with Kirbo by mail and by telephone. But we discovered that two letters implicating Kirbo in their plot had been "reconstructed" from memory, although the secretary has sworn before a federal judge that she typed and mailed such letters.

The FBI has been investigating the Vesco scandal for several months. But in case the G-men might have missed something, Kirbo has passed on his findings to the attorney general. Our sources report that the two cronies have held frequent, urgent discussions of the Vesco investigation. This is disputed by a Justice Department spokesman. Bell "talks to Kirbo a lot," but the Vesco case has come up "at most three or four times," the spokesman said.

If it is unique for the attorney general to investigate his closest friend and permit the friend to help conduct the investigation, the interrelationships are even more curious. Bell and Kirbo belong to a tight little circle that centers around President Carter. This inner circle, according to Georgia sources, has two other members — Hamilton Jordan and Bert Lance.

"These people are all intensely loyal to each other," the sources agree. As one source put it, "they would do things to help each other that they would not do for selfish reasons."

Now three members of the close circle are caught up in investigations by the FBI, which is controlled by their tried-and-true friend Griffin Bell. Jordan has been involved along with Kirbo in the Vesco investigation. And Lance's financial affairs are under separate scrutiny. All three vigorously deny any wrongdoing.

A Justice Department spokesman also contends that Bell has no role in the investigations. "He doesn't have anything to do with them," said the spokesman. The spokesman explained that the investigations have been conducted by the criminal division without any input from the attorney general.

The handling of the Vesco investigation, nevertheless, has been peculiar.

CHARLEY REESE:

Effort already launched to sell SALT II treaty

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

Charley Reese

ORLANDO, Fla. — It's a safe bet the Carter administration will sign a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) with the Soviet Union in the next few months.

The State Department has already begun a big effort to sell the treaty. I recently attended its traveling sales show in Tampa, Fla., one of five it staged in various states within the last few weeks.

It was billed as a conference on U.S. security and the Soviet challenge but it was a SALT treaty sales pitch, plain and simple. The State Department experts had to remind themselves a couple times the treaty hadn't been negotiated yet despite their elaborate charts explaining it in detail.

All the speeches were legal briefs arguing in favor of the treaty. The State Department argument, repeated by all the speakers, runs like this:

The U.S. and the Soviet Union have "rough equivalence" in strategic nuclear forces. Neither side can achieve superiority. Neither side can win a nuclear war. An unrestricted arms race increases the risk of nuclear war.

The SALT II treaty will maintain nuclear equivalence but at lower levels. It is not based on trust. Treaty compliance can be verified by U.S. intelligence. It will not endanger U.S. security. It will make the Soviets less of a threat. Without the treaty, we will have to spend up to $100 billion to catch up with just presently planned Soviet expansion.

In short, it is a lot of heifer dust. Practically all of the basic premises are disputed by qualified military and civilian experts. For example, these people believe that the Soviet Union is ahead, not on a par with us; that we cannot verify compliance; that the SALT II treaty will freeze us into a position of inferiority; and that the Soviet Union believes a nuclear war is winnable — provided you have superiority and strike first.

Even the State Department's own sales pitch contains contradictions. Example: they claim we are even and the treaty will keep us even but then they also say the treaty will force the Soviets to destroy a number of their systems and that without a treaty we will have to spend up to $100 billion just to match what the Soviets already plan to deploy by 1985.

That sounds like a back-handed admission that we are presently in an inferior position and going down hill. Conversely, it also sounds like the Soviets have indeed achieved nuclear superiority.

Nor can the State Department explain to my satisfaction why the Soviet Union, which had been busting its back on a massive and unprecedented arms buildup, would be willing to accept a cutback to parity as they allege this treaty will force them to do. I am unaware of the Soviet Union ever, in 60 years, doing any favor for the United States.

What the State Department is doing with these dog and pony shows is trying to influence opinion leaders so they will in turn put pressure on their senators when the time comes to ratify the treaty.

If you value your freedom, you'd better get busy and counter this effort because as sure as God made bears, the Soviets hope to stifle our defense efforts with this treaty so they can complete their buildup and zap us in the early or mid 1980s.

The trouble with these arms control types is that they are all college professors and nuclear bombs scare the hell out of them. Unfortunately, the Soviet Union relies on military men, not academics, for its defense planning.

To the Soviets, a nuclear bomb is just a bomb with a little bigger bang. They know that a nuclear war can be fought and won because they base their thinking on facts, not on science fiction end-of-the-world novels.

Since 1945, more than 500 nukies have been exploded — in the atmosphere, on the ground and under the ground. The ozone layer is still intact. People are still breathing. The world has not called it quits.

The SALT II treaty won't reduce the risk of war. It will increase it. It may, in fact, kill us.

INSIDE REPORT:

Where were Teddy Kennedy and his aides on this one?

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy sponsored a human rights amendment last year to cut off all munitions exports to Argentina as of Sept. 30, 1978, but several months later voted for an unpublicized loophole permitting a Massachusetts company to continue selling periscopes for Argentine submarines.

When the Massachusetts company — Kollmorgen, of Northampton — went to Kennedy to ask for the exemption, Kennedy's office told us the senator replied that he felt so strongly about human rights he would have trouble supporting any exemption.

But Kennedy's colleague, Republican Sen. Edward Brooke who is in a tough re-election contest, quietly went to bat for Kollmorgen. He slipped the exemption into a Defense Department supplemental appropriation bill. When that bill reached the floor of the Senate, Kennedy voted yes, and the bill, which allows Kollmorgen to continue selling periscopes destined for the Argentine navy, passed 90 to 0.

Kennedy's aides told us the senator did not know the exemption was in the bill when he voted for it, a disclaimer that raises eyebrows among senators who recognize Kennedy's staff as one of the most alert and best-informed on Capitol Hill.

The munitions cutoff in Kennedy's 1977 bill — aimed specifically and solely at Argentina for its human rights violations — did not take effect until Sept. 30, 1978. Under the exemption that Kennedy staffers insist slipped by him without his knowledge, Kollmorgen will continue making periscopes for Argentina, with no trace of Kennedy having opened a loophole for a Massachusetts company.

FORD IN '80?

Two top Republicans who haven't joined the "Ford won't run" pack are House minority leader John Rhodes and Rep. Guy Vanderjagt of Michigan, chairman of the House Republican Campaign Committee.

In a private chat in the House cloakroom recently, Vanderjagt told Rhodes that it looked to him as though fellow Michigander Ford was truly eager to make another run for the presidency in 1980. Rhodes replied to this effect: Yes, I agree, and if he goes all out he can be nominated.

That is not consistent with conventional party wisdom. Most Republicans, including some close to the former president, feel he is far more likely to back a moderate like George Bush against Ronald Reagan, rather than running himself.

GOOD MONEY AFTER BAD

On the insistence of Sen. Robert Byrd, the Senate majority leader, Sen. Maryon Allen of Alabama got a third $5,000 contribution from the Senate Democratic campaign fund just before the crucial Senate vote on President Carter's hotly-contested gas deregulation bill.

Over the protests of Sen. Alan Cranston, Byrd's Senate Democratic whip, and other members of the Senate campaign committee — including Sen. Howard Metzenbaum — Byrd stuck to his guns. One possible reason: he wanted Mrs. Allen's vote on the gas bill. Cranston was doubtful about the final $5,000 contribution for Mrs. Allen's primary election run-off because her opponent, state Sen. Donald Stewart, looked like (and proved to be) an easy winner. As for Metzenbaum, he was a leader in the losing battle against the gas bill.

One Senate insider told us that proof of a link between the contribution and the gas bill is unobtainable, but he privately expressed certainty that the link was there. Mrs. Allen was uncommitted on the gas bill until just before the vote, then voted for it.

A footnote: Sen. Paul Hatfield of Montana, appointed to the Senate to fill a vacancy just as Mrs. Allen was, also received a $5,000 campaign contribution — just before the vote on the Panama Canal treaties early this year. He voted for the embattled treaties, but lost his primary election to Rep. Max Baucus by a huge margin.

THE DIVIDED DFL

Tensions disrupting Minnesota's once monolithic Democratic-Farmer-Labor party (DFL) were on display when the wife of an aide to Vice President Walter F. Mondale pinned the campaign button of a Republican Senate candidate on her lapel.

Mrs. Michael Berman, wife of Mondale's counsel and close political aide, appeared in public wearing a button boasting liberal Republican David Durenberger, his party's nominee for Hubert Humphrey's old Senate seat. Later, the Bermans dined with Mrs. Durenberger at the Palm, a popular Washington restaurant frequented by Democratic politicians. Mrs. Berman was still wearing the Durenberger button.

True, the Durenbergers and Bermans are longtime friends. But would Mrs. Berman be wearing a Republican button had Rep. Donald Fraser, a DFL liberal stalwart, won the Democratic primary?

Fraser was upset by maverick conservative Democrat Robert Snort, who is viewed as the devil incarnate by the Mondale — that is, the liberal — wing of the DFL. Although Mondale publicly backed Short after the primary, some Mondale aides do not disguise their contempt for Short.

Banks to offer transfer service

By The Associated Press

The maze of services confronting would-be bank depositors becomes even more tortuous next month with the addition of a new type of account allowing customers to move money automatically from savings to checking.

Commercial banks have been authorized to offer the transfer accounts starting Nov. 1, and some institutions are advertising them already.

The idea behind the new accounts is simple: Why not let people leave money in savings deposits, earning interest, until they actually need it?

The execution is less simple: There are complicated strings attached and the service may not be worthwhile for the individual unless a hefty balance is involved.

Individual banks are likely to set different fees and regulations, just as they do for existing types of accounts. The Federal Reserve Board considered imposing a minimum 50-cent fee for every transfer, but decided against the idea. In general, the transfer accounts will work like this:

Open two accounts — one savings, one checking — in a single bank. Decide how big a balance you want to keep in your checking account and let the bank know. When a check that would cause the balance to dip below the minimum reaches the bank, money will be transferred automatically from your savings account to cover the difference.

The key word is "automatically." You do not have to visit or telephone the bank to make the switch. You don't even have to use an electronic debit card.

You should compare costs carefully before opening a transfer account. Will you earn enough money in additional interest to offset charges for the transfer service? Is there some other combination of accounts that would cost less? Could you get the equivalent of an interest-bearing checking account at some facility other than a commercial bank? Do you want to tie up savings in a commercial bank when you could be earning more money elsewhere?

One of the first banks to announce the transfer accounts was Chemical Bank of New York, which started advertising the new service in June. A bank spokesman conceded that the system was confusing and said Chemical wanted to give its customers plenty of time to get used to the idea.

Under the Chemical plan, holders of transfer accounts will be required to maintain a minimum, combined balance of $500 in a checking account and in a "day-of-deposit, day-of-withdrawal," 5 percent savings account. If the combined balance dips below $500, the customer earns no interest. There will be a $3 monthly charge for the service, plus a fee of 25 cents for every day a transfer is made.

Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank, is announcing a similar service. It will charge a $5 monthly fee on accounts with balances of less than $1,000. As the balance increases, the fee will decrease and there will be no charge at all if the customer keeps over $5,000 in the accounts.

Because of the relatively high charges, consumers who do not do several thousand dollars worth of business a month probably would find it more economical to select another type of account.

NOTE: Transfer accounts should not be confused with so-called overdraft accounts, which let you write checks greater than your balance. When you write an overdraft, you are actually borrowing money from the bank and will have to repay it, with interest. With a transfer account, you are using your own money.

Carter's anti-inflation program readied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although there are "some final decisions" to be made, most of the Carter administration's new anti-inflation program has been decided and it probably will be announced after Congress adjourns for the year, according to Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

Mondale said Sunday that the new plan is "a strong, new initiative ... which I think will commend itself to labor as well as business."

There have been reports that the plan will include voluntary wage and price guidelines. In addition, sources, who asked to remain anonymous, have said the administration has been considering sanctions against unions and businesses that exceed the wage and price guidelines. One administration official called the guidelines "trigger points" because they would "trigger investigations and remedial actions" when wage and benefit increases exceed 7 percent a year and annual price hikes go above 5 percent.

The annual inflation rate is now at 9.5 percent compared to 6.8 percent last year, but the administration expects this year's rate to drop to 8 percent overall. Aides to the president see the new program as a compromise between the current voluntary program, which asked labor and business to "decelerate" wage and price increases to levels below the average rises of the previous two years, and mandatory controls.

Some presidential advisors say the current program has not worked because its anti-inflation formula is too "fuzzy," and because it lacks any means of enforcement. But one source said that the use of the guidelines now under consideration offer "specific numbers to hold against business and labor."

Mondale said Carter's program "has been largely decided. The president is making some final decisions and he will make the announcement." He declined, though, to give any details of the plan. But he did say on the ABC-TV interview program "Issues and Answers" that it would be announced "after the conclusion of the congressional session."

"Last year, using lignite coal saved Texas Electric's customers $48 million. It's a step in the right direction."

"Prior to 1972, Texas Electric made all your electricity by burning natural gas and oil. By last year, lignite coal had replaced gas as boiler fuel for about a third of this. In dollars and cents, here's what that meant to you, our customers:

The cost of lignite burned in 1977 was about $20.5 million. Had that same amount of electricity been generated using natural gas at then-current market prices, it would have cost $107.7 million. That's $87.2 million more than the lignite cost!

Even after deducting the annual cost of the new lignite plants, Texas Electric saved its customers $48.4 million last year because of the switch to lignite.

And that's just the beginning. As gas prices continue to rise, Texas Electric plans to become less and less dependent on this increasingly scarce fuel. By 1983, lignite coal and nuclear-fueled plants are scheduled to provide more than half of our customers' electricity.

It gets harder all the time to provide dependable, economical electricity. But this has always been Texas Electric's goal. And it always will be."

Texas Electric engineer Damon Holditch: "We burn 55 pounds of lignite to generate the electricity to run a three-ton air conditioner for a day."

Election strength shifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time, the industrial Northeast will take a back seat to the South and the West in next month's national elections.

The Census Bureau says that the November elections will be the first in which a majority of the nation's eligible voters are from the South and the West. It said on Sunday that 50.5 percent of the 155.5 million potential voters are from the area that stretches from Florida, across the Sun Belt and into the Northwest.

In the 1976 election, 49.6 percent of the eligible voters were from the South and the West.

Well, the Un-Awards were given at the annual 4-H Achievement Banquet the other night to recognize the "unrecognized, the unmentionable, notice the unnoticed, reward the unrewarded and expose the unexposed."

The categories in the "Unny" competition included Paradise Unfound, given for outstanding achievement in the field of getting lost. The nominees were Howard Hughes, "for getting lost on purpose"; Jimmy Hoffa, "for getting lost accidentally and permanently"; Midlander Travis Harney, "who can't find College Station and claims he really doesn't want to"; and Midland County Agricultural Agent Charlie Green, "who doesn't understand Aggie jokes." The winner was Harney.

The next category was "Unbelievable Drivers, awarded for "outstanding achievement in the field of auto-motives." Al Unser was nominated for "winning everything in sight," Evel Knievel, "for trying his darndest to kill himself," Rayford Calhoun for "running red lights from bar ditch to bar ditch," Tracy Glover, "for having a wreck while eating doughnuts with Rainy Calhoun, and Charlie Green, "who is still trying to figure out that Aggie joke." The winner was Calhoun, a local.

Nominees for the Unpleasant Jobs category, "for exemplary performance beyond the call of duty," were Ted Triplett, "who always gets stuck working a gate at horse shows," Walter Zimmerman, "who always has to rake after poles and barrels," Billy Carter, "who has to explain what his brother does for a living," and Green, "who has the unpleasant job of telling Rainy what he thinks of her Aggie jokes." And the winner was Triplett.

The final category, the Untalkables, was given for "outstanding achievement in tongue wagging. The nominees were Jo Knox, "for talking the loudest," Jane Schweitzer, "for talking the longest," Don Collier, "who gets along fine with both of them because he can't hear," and Green, "who doesn't say much, but knows a good Aggie joke when he hears it." There was a tie between Mrs. Knox and Mrs. Schweitzer.

A special award went to Royce Boyce for outstanding achievement in true Aggie tradition. Did you hear about the man who built his own barn, but forgot one thing, the roof? You guessed it...it rained...

Iran's womens rights may be withdrawn

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Feminist leaders are voicing concern that Iranian women, perhaps the most liberated in the traditionally male-dominated Middle East, may be heading for a period of regression because of recent religious and political disorders in the country.

The feminists say they are concerned because Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi made concessions to religious leaders who demanded stricter adherence to Islamic, or Moslem, social principles, which sometimes conflict with the concepts of women's liberation.

Iran is a Moslem nation and among Moslems the Shiite sect predominates.

The unrest resulted in the fall of Prime Minister Jamshid Amouzezar's liberal-minded government and his replacement by Jaafar Sharif-Emami, considered a conservative.

The new government dropped the post of minister of state for women's affairs created in 1975, and headed by Mahnaz Afkhami. She was not reappointed to the Cabinet in any other capacity nor were any other women brought in. Sharif-Emami's government also abolished liquor sales, closed down casinos and banned pornographic-type films.

The U.S.-educated Ms. Afkhami, who also is secretary-general of the influential Woman's Organization of Iran, said: "It is inconceivable to return to the past. This country would come to a standstill if the women stayed at home and away from their jobs."

She said that it is not clear now what will happen to WOI projects.

"We don't yet know how the new government is going to cope with our problems," she added.

The WOI is the leader of women's affairs in the country with a $20 million budget. It runs welfare centers throughout Iran to assist women in day care, legal matters, family planning and gives literacy and vocational training.

Ms. Afkhami said the Cabinet post that she once held had been originally set up to interpret new laws concerning women so as not to conflict with Islamic laws.

She added in an interview with The Associated Press: "If we can express ourselves and continue our social progress as before, there will be no problems for us. Our main purpose is to help women in this country become self-sufficient. We want to teach them to protect themselves. We don't want women pushed around."

"It's too difficult for us to return to the past," Ms. Afkhami insisted, "what with 38 percent of the students in Iranian universities being women and half of the 50,000 students studying abroad in Western countries, females."

Ms. Afkhami said she believed that most of the mullahs (religious leaders) do not want women to go back to such practices such as wearing ankle-length veils. "Only the fanatic orthodox mullahs want this," she said. "The educated, enlightened mullahs are for women's progress."

She added, however, that recent bloody riots in the holy city of Qom, near Tehran, led by anti-shah mullahs had an effect on the WOI movement. "We noticed a drop in attendance at our WOI centers there, presumably due to the chaos."

Discussing plans for the Lancaster Garden Center luncheon to be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday in the center are, left to right, Mrs. J.K. Somerville, Mrs. T.L. Bond and Mrs. A.P. Shirey. The luncheon is open to the public. Speedy service will be available to those with limited lunch hours. Proceeds will be used for maintenance of the

DEAR ABBY

Prevent fires, save lives

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: It's Fire Prevention Week again, and I have had so many requests to repeat my column on fire prevention that it has become a tradition. So here it is, with up-dated figures:

Last year, 10,074 Americans perished and 33,400 civilians, plus 106,100 firemen, were seriously injured in 3,513,000 fires. In Canada, 829 deaths were caused by 69,651 fires.

A large percentage of the dead were children, elderly persons and invalids who had been left alone "for just a few minutes."

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were:

1. Smoking
2. Electrical wiring
3. Heating and cooking equipment
4. Children playing with matches
5. Open flames and sparks
6. Flammable liquids
7. Suspected arson
8. Chimneys and flues
9. Lightning
10. Spontaneous ignition

The total fire loss last year was $6,064,000,000 in the United States and $503,894,438 in Canada.

Now for some tips that could save your life:

Be sure your cigarette is out. Matches, too. Never leave matches and lighters within the reach of children.

Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. Replace a cord if it is frayed.

Never leave small children or invalids alone in the house. Not even for a few minutes.

Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.

Store oily rags and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

Never use flammable liquids for drycleaning indoors.

Never smoke in bed.

Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire. Designate a specific meeting place outside so you will all know who's outside of the house.

Remember: Fire extinguishers put out 97 percent of all fires on which they were used, and most large fires start as small fires. So, invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher. Keep it handy in your kitchen, or be prudent and buy one for your cottage, car, boat and the back bedroom.

Some excellent smoke and fire-detection systems are available to homeowners. Shop around, and buy the one that suits your needs.

NOW, in case of fire:

If you suspect fire, alert the rest of the household. But first feel the top of the door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape through the window.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket, sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to find it. Get out and call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartment building, use the stairway. DON'T take a chance on the elevator. If it fails, you're trapped.

Once out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life. It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so.—ABBY

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER (Tues., Oct. 10)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you will be wise to do nothing drastic or dramatic and try to avoid the limelight. Use considerable patience in waiting for conditions to unfold. Make plans for the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't make any changes of plans with friends now or you could cause a severance of connections. Don't be forceful. Be fair.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid doing anything dramatic or you could get in trouble with a higher-up. Make sure your bills are paid on time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't go off on some kind of spree and lose out where it counts the most. Steer clear of a new contact who is superficial.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't try to renege on an obligation or you could get into real trouble. Express your finest talents.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Cooperate more with others in your line of endeavor and get excellent results. Be careful of your reputation at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Any chances you take today could cost you a good deal, so be most careful. The planetary aspects are not favorable today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure to maintain harmony at home by not arguing with anyone there. Not a good day for starting new projects.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be most careful in motion today and avoid possible accident. Don't get caught in a scheme you would later regret.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study how to have greater abundance in the days ahead, but don't make any definite plans at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Instead of getting disturbed about something you can do little about, seek happier pursuits. Sidestep a troublemaker.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have made a promise you now want to break, but it's best for you to keep it. Take time to improve your appearance.

Memory of October war remains

(The following dispatch was subject to Israeli military censorship.)

By MICHAEL PRECKER

RAMAT MAGSHIMIM, Golan Heights (AP) — Five years after Syrian tanks overran this Jewish settlement on the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights of Syria, the bullet holes are neatly patched, the battle-ravaged apple orchard blooms again and reorganized defenses present a stiffer challenge to any future invaders.

Last week, after Israeli naval vessels shelled Moslem West Beirut in the midst of Syrian attacks on Christian positions in the continuing conflict in Lebanon, there were fears of another war between Israel and Syria. In any such conflict, the Golan Heights and such settlements as Ramat Magshimim would be the front line.

When Israel was attacked on two fronts on Oct. 6, 1973, Egypt's successful assault across the Suez Canal into the Sinai Desert attracted most attention. But while Israeli troops fought a holding action on the southern front hundreds of miles from population centers, an outgunned tank force clung desperately to the Golan Heights to block a Syrian thrust into the heart of Israel.

The attack was repulsed in some of the fiercest fighting of the 30-year Arab-Israeli conflict. But five years later, while Israel prepares to make peace on its southern front with Egypt, the Israeli-Syrian border still simmers with the potential for another explosion.

Syria leads the opposition to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative and refuses to join negotiations. Israel insists on keeping at least part of the Golan Heights from which Syria shelled Israeli villages in Galilee until 1967 and rejects Sadat's contention that the Camp David principle — peace in return for captured Arab territory — could apply to the strategic plateau.

Should war resume, the Israelis are confident they have learned the lessons of the Yom Kippur War of October 1973, when a surprise attack on Judaism's holiest day forced 180 Israeli tanks facing an invading tank force of 1,400.

Israel's civilian settlements in the 400-square-mile sector captured in 1967 were evacuated when fighting erupted in 1973. Now they have become key elements in what the military chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, calls "territorial defense."

Speaking of this settlement two miles from the frontier, Eytan said, "Had Ramat Magshimim been then what it is today, the Syrians would not have even managed to get close to it."

Military censorship forbids a full description of Ramat Magshimim's defenses, but the settlement has fortified bunkers, and its communal bomb shelters are covered with boulders that look impenetrable.

"If a war broke out, the women and children would leave and the men would stay and fight," said Mrs. Disa Moses, adding that the army "taught us new ways to fight."

Although the number of troops in the area is limited by the 1974 cease-fire agreement, the army isn't far away.

"Now and then soldiers will knock on the door and ask to come in and take a shower," Mrs. Ephraim Zohar said. "And every Friday we bake cakes for flames burning on either side of us. We saw all the soldiers going up to fight. It was a terrible feeling. We felt like refugees."

The men left early Sunday morning. Later that day a Syrian column reached Ramat Magshimim, which is on a key road curving around the eastern edge of the Heights down to the Sea of Galilee.

The Syrian advance was stopped after 36 hours. By the war's fifth day Israeli troops had driven the Syrians back to the 1967 line. The ensuing counterattack pushed to within 25 miles of Damascus, the Syrian capital, but the Israelis later withdrew under the cease-fire worked out by then-Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The Golan War's toll was heavy: 772 Israelis and an estimated 3,500 Syrians killed, 250 Israeli and 1,300 Arab tanks knocked out.

The Heights were blackened by the activity of war. Some of Ramat Magshimim's buildings were damaged, "and the tanks ran back and forth over our apple orchard and destroyed it," Mrs. Moses said.

But the Syrian soldiers "didn't touch anything" in the settlement. "They probably thought, 'Why destroy anything? We're coming back to take it over anyway.'"

An AP News Special

the troops."

The settlement of several hundred religious Jews hardly looks like a military camp. The families live separately but work collectively to grow cotton and wheat, raise cattle and operate an auto garage.

The simple concrete homes are surrounded by flowers and greenery. Work proceeds on a new synagogue. The clusters of children playing on the lawns present a pastoral scene a visitor might not expect to find so close to Syria.

The residents nearly found themselves caught in the crossfire on the Yom Kippur Saturday afternoon five years ago.

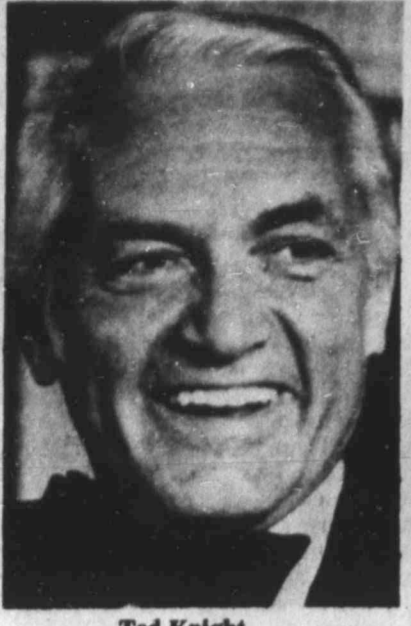

"We were getting on the bus at two o'clock when the shelling started," Mrs. Moses recalled. "Everyone grabbed a kid and went down to a shelter. We just sat and listened to the shelling. Nobody knew it was a full-scale war."

During a lull that night, women and children were taken to a kibbutz in Galilee.

"The men stayed and finished praying, but we went with just what we had on," Mrs. Moses continued. "As we were going down the Heights there were GARDNERVILLE, Nev. (AP) — Country singer Merle Haggard makes music part of the family. This weekend, he married Leona Williams, once his backup singer.

The marriage Saturday at his agent's ranch here was the third for Haggard, 41, and the second for 34-year-old Miss Williams.

Among bridesmaids was Haggard's ex-wife, Bonnie Owens. She was once his backup singer as well.

Haggard was appearing at Harrah's Hotel-Casino at Lake Tahoe.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soprano Leontyne Price got a kiss on the cheek from President Carter. And Carter got an encore performance of the classic "Summertime."

Miss Price sang for some 200 guests in a nationally televised recital in the East Room of the White House Sunday. The recital was broadcast over the Public Broadcasting Service and National Public Radio.

Miss Price chose arias by Handel and Puccini, a group of songs by Richard Strauss, songs by five American composers, and several spirituals: "My Soul's Been Anchored in the Lord," "This Light of Mine" and "Ride On, King Jesus."

TOKYO (AP) — Great Britain's Princess Margaret conferred her country's highest award for foreign women today on Princess Setsuko Chichibu, widow of Emperor Hirohito's younger brother, Prince Chichibu.

The award, the Dame Cross of St. Michael and St. George, was bestowed on the princess in recognition of her efforts to promote friendship between Britain and Japan.

Princess Chichibu has served as honorary president of the Japan-British society for 25 years, and is the second woman to be so honored. The first was the late Queen Salote of Tonga.

Margaret arrived here from Australia after recovering from a respiratory infection. She became ill in the South Pacific nation of Tuvalu which she visited to take part in independence celebrations.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey denies he plans to marry within days of New York's November election. But he admits there's one woman who might consider him a good prospect and "any man would be lucky to have her."

"No way," said Carey Sunday in response to reporters' questions about the report in New York magazine that he would marry Anne Ford Uzielli, his constant companion, Nov. 12.

"Who'd have me? If I don't win, who'd want me? Women are frankly much more sensible," said Carey.

SEEKONK, Mass. (AP) — Ted Knight had a few jokes for his old Army buddies, and his appearance "made" the reunion of the 296th Engineering Battalion.

Knight, the bumbling newscaster on the Mary Tyler Moore Show, served with the 296th in Europe during World War II. He was Ted Konopka in those days.

"He's really made it for the guys," said Herb Winterberg, Knight's former commanding officer. "He's been just great."

Knight held up his muddling-through image Saturday.

"I used to have a show called 'Prize Cook' on WJAR in Providence," he told his buddies. "I couldn't even boil water, but I was the chef and I faked it, just like I've been doing for the past 50 some-odd years."

Crane Chamber seeks nominees

CRANE — Lee Herring of Grand Prairie, widely-known Southwestern humorist, will be the featured speaker at the annual Crane Chamber of Commerce banquet here Nov. 6.

Announcement of recipients of the annual Outstanding Citizen and First Lady awards will be a special highlight of the banquet, which will be held in the Crane school cafeteria.

The chamber of commerce is seeking nominees for the coveted awards. Chamber officials said that to nominate either outstanding citizen or first lady, persons need only send in a resume of the person being nominated.

The resume should be a brief outline of the nominee's life and civic contributions to Crane through work with clubs, church or youth groups or similar activities.

Persons who have received the awards in past years will select the 1978 recipients and the honorees will be publicly announced and presented at the banquet.

Herring, the guest speaker at the gathering, is senior vice president of Grand Prairie State Bank. He is in wide demand as an after-dinner speaker at civic functions throughout the Southwest.

Tickets for the banquet have gone on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office here.

Penitentiary officials confirm wounding of three inmates

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas penitentiary officials, who previously had denied reports of violence, now say three prisoners were wounded by a shotgun blast from a guard during a strike by inmates.

"I had been calling those reports total and absolute lies," prison spokesman Ron Taylor said Sunday. "I'm sorry. I was asked to re-check the information, and I did...and it is true."

Meanwhile, 108 prisoners at the Ellis prison unit, 18 miles from Huntsville, continued the strike Sunday, refusing to eat or leave the prison's exercise yard, where they have been since Thursday. But 300 other Ellis prisoners returned to their cells over the weekend. Prisoners at two other units had ended strikes earlier.

Taylor said the situation at Ellis was under control and no action was planned.

Inmates say the strike is designed to call attention to a suit alleging cruel and inhuman treatment of prisoners in units operated by the Texas Department of Corrections. The suit was filed by prisoners in federal court in Houston.

He said the shooting incident at the Darrington unit, near Angleton, occurred Thursday as 209 Darrington inmates stopped working in a field and began moving en masse toward guards. He said two warning shots were fired — one into the air and the other into the ground.

"One prisoner received a superficial thigh wound, and it definitely was caused by buckshot," Taylor said. "Two other men received superficial wounds, but it can't be determined whether they were caused by buckshot or ricocheting gravel."

All three prisoners were treated at the prison hospital and released, he said.

Another group of prisoners, at the Ramsey unit, south of Houston, also had joined the strike but returned to their cells last week.

Public works controversy may cost Carter votes

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — This time, President Carter decided to play hard ball with Congress. He won, but there may be a price for his successful veto of a public works bill prized by Congress.

Still, the president is likely to score some points with the voters. There are a lot more people worried about the cost of living and government spending than about dams and water diversion projects.

That is the way Carter cast the issue. "I urge you to help me control inflation and to set an example of leadership for the nation by supporting my veto," he said. The House did, by a narrow margin that widened to 53 votes as congressmen saw the way the count was going and, in many cases, switched sides during the roll call.

And if the public works controversy costs Carter some House and Senate allies on other administration legislation in the closing days of the congressional session, the White House knew and accepted the risk.

For the second time, Carter challenged one of the prerogatives congressmen treasure: control of federal water projects back home. First time out, he played it the congressional way and compromised in his opposition to an assortment of projects the administration didn't want financed. He spared some, Congress dropped some, and it never came to a showdown.

Carter has said since that he should have forced the issue with a veto then. This time he did, on a $10.2 billion bill he called inflationary, wasteful and absolutely unacceptable.

In doing so, he is followed a strategy he had held largely in reserve — appealing past Congress to the people. That's why he talked about the veto, to the Cabinet and then to television cameras, instead of simply picking up his pen and rejecting the bill as soon as it reached his desk.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said the delay was designed to give the administration time for a campaign to seek public pressure to uphold his veto. The White House also used the time to mount an intense lobbying campaign. It worked.

O'Neill and all the other leaders of the Democratic Congress were solidly against Carter on this one.

"I don't want to show that I can handle the Congress," Carter said in threatening the veto prior to a futile attempt to come to terms on a compromise bill. "What I want to do is work in harmony with the Congress."

But he followed that news conference comment with these fighting words:

"If we continue the age-old policy of pork-barrel allocations in the public works bill, this is a horrible example to set for the rest of the country. It would make it very difficult for me to control inflation if the Congress and I couldn't set a good example for the rest of the nation."

The dictionary defines pork barrel as "government appropriations for political patronage, as for local improvements to please legislators' constituents."

The political term has been around for more than a century, apparently derived from the barrels used in the old South to dole out salt pork to the field hands.

"That's a code word, a buzz word that's been thrown around promiscuously for years about the public works appropriations bill," said Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd. He said public works projects that can save lives and property are not pork barrel projects.

That's the way it is on public works. The congressman who labors and lobbies to get his pet project built insists that it is not political pork but a vital public undertaking.

O'Neill has warned that the veto could cause congressional rancor and cost Carter votes on measures like the energy bill. Carter already has said that a dispute on public works shouldn't be a factor when Congress deals with other issues.

But his wishes won't make it so. The congressman whose home district project is blocked, or even threatened, by the president may find it politically wise to break with Carter and vote against something the White House wants.

West Virginia mountain area has fiddlers galore

By STRAT DOUTHAT

KENOVA, W. Va. (AP) — When Joe Dobbs and the other members of the Appalachian Fiddlers Association meet here each month, they make their business session as brief as possible.

"We try to hold it to 30 minutes if we can," said Dobbs, a short, stocky man with a big, bushy beard. "Then we play music."

Dobbs, his fiddle in his hand, threw back his head and guffawed.

There's plenty of laughter when members of the AFA get together in the renovated grocery now serving as headquarters of the Wayne County Arts Council. And there's plenty of old-time country music, too.

"That's the whole idea," said Dobbs, an accomplished fiddler who dreamed up the AFA and is the group's secretary. "I kept going to out of state festivals and running into musicians from this area. I thought it would be really nice if we could get together and play here, close to home."

So, last spring, Dobbs and his guitar-playing brother, Dennis, got together with their friend and fellow musician, Willard Mills.

"Mills owns a trucking agency here and he said he knew how to get us chartered," said Dobbs, who runs "The Fret 'n Fiddle," a West Huntington musical instrument repair shop. "We started selling memberships at the Fret 'n Fiddle and when we sold 30 memberships, we had our first meeting and elected officers. And Willard Mills was elected president."

Dobbs said the group now has about 100 members.

"Most of them live around here, in Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia," he said. "But we also have members from as far away as Chicago and Pennsylvania. They don't come to our meetings, of course, but they do receive the news letter."

Dobbs grew up in Louisiana and later honed his fiddle technique in Texas. He said the Huntington area is rich in talented musicians.

"I've lived in the South and I've lived in the West," he said. "But there are some of the world's greatest, old-time acoustical musicians living here in these hills."

Two of the area's better known old-time fiddlers are U.S. Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., and U.S. Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky.

"We've made them both honorary members of the AFA," said Dobbs.

"We're a chartered, non-profit organization and anybody can join that likes old-time music and has $5."

He added: "There are more talented acoustical musicians in this area than any place I've ever been. Heck, we've got enough good pickers around here to put on our own festival."

And that's exactly what the AFA plans to do, Oct. 14 and 15, at Camp Mad Anthony Wayne, a few miles south of Huntington.

"There will be two days of music and dancing," said Dobbs, breaking into a melodious version of "Soldier's Joy." Seconds later, he was surrounded by a dozen musicians, all picking and playing and putting their hearts into the music.

Model missed from museum

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — A model ship, made of silver and gold and valued at $100,000, has been stolen from the Marine Museum here. A museum official called it "a fantastic piece of history."

"I believe there are only six or eight in existence today," said J. Thomas Cottrell Jr., chairman of the museum's board of directors. "It's priceless, there is no way to estimate its real worth. It's just a fantastic piece of history."

Capt. John Reis said the thieves entered the building through a front window. An alarm system apparently failed to go off, he said.

In addition to the model ship, several gold ingots worth about $1,000 were stolen, Reis said.

The ship, which is 21 inches long, 12 inches high and contains 31 ounces of gold and 180 ounces of silver, is one of 13 made by Charles W. Morgan in the mid-1800s.

Narcotics use brings harmful side effects

To George H: Sciatica is most often caused by pressure on the root of the nerve due to a ruptured disc or arthritis. But there are many other possible causes, such as bad posture or sitting on the edge of a chair on one buttock. Too many credit cards may also mean trouble. The Journal of the American Medical Association reports two cases of sciatica caused by inch-thick wallets carried in a hip pocket. Cures were achieved by moving the wallets to the patients' jackets.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm terribly confused about what the word narcotic means. My teenage son and I were having a discussion on this and I would like to know the facts from you.—Mrs. T.R.

Dear Mrs. T.R.: The term narcotic, originally referred to a variety of substances inducing an altered state of consciousness. In current usage, however, it usually means opium, or its derivatives, or synthetic substitutes that produce tolerance and dependence, both psychological and physical.

Narcotics are especially useful in the practice of medicine for the relief of intense pain; they are the most effective analgesics (pain relievers) known. They are also used as cough suppressants and as a remedy, centuries old, for diarrhea. Relief of physical or psychic suffering through the use of narcotics may result in a short-lived state of euphoria. They also tend to induce drowsiness, apathy, lethargy, decreased physical activity, constipation, pinpoint pupils and reduce vision.

Except in cases of acute toxication, there is no slurred speech or loss of motor coordination as in the case of the depressants. A large dose may induce sleep, but there is an increasing possibility of nausea, vomiting and respiratory depression (slow breathing)—the major toxic effect of the opiates.

The initial effects of narcotics are often unpleasant, leading many to conclude that those who persist in their use may have latent personality disturbances that antedate the physical and psychological dependence produced. To the extent that the response is felt to be pleasurable, its intensity may be expected to increase with the amount of the dose administered. Repeated use, however, will result in increasing tolerance; that is, the user must ad-

Hong Kong continues cleanliness campaign

HONG KONG (AP) — Six years after the government launched a massive campaign to make Hong Kong one of the cleanest cities in Asia, this British colony still does not live up to its name which in Chinese means "fragrant harbor."

The colony is not as dingy as some other Asian cities and falls short of being an "eyesore," but litter and rubbish on the streets are still a common sight.

The city is overcrowded and most of its 4.5 million population live in crowded resettlement buildings. There are people who are more used to throwing their rubbish out of the window than into the trash can.

A harassed Mrs. Grace Ho, chairman of the Keep Hong Kong Clean campaign committee, refused to acknowledge defeat but admits that the campaign "still has a long way to go."

Mrs. Ho recently had to give up a proposed "shame campaign," a plan to embarrass convicted litterbugs by listing their names on notices to be put near their homes.

A survey carried out by her committee showed that the public was dead set against such punishment.

Mrs. Ho claims her committee's work was hampered by the lack of police cooperation.

"Police say they have too much to do to go after litterbugs," she says.

Help from enemy brings in contract

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Part scores, undramatic at rubber bridge, are the soul of tournament play. In today's hand, played in the recent North American Championships in Toronto, New York expert Judi Radin had to call on the enemy to help her make a rather pushy part-score contract.

Mrs. Radin's opening bid was a "weak two-bid," used by most tournament experts to promise a decent six-card suit but less than normal opening strength. Not everybody would call South's spades "decent."

East took the jack of hearts and won the second trick with a shift to the queen of clubs.

Declarer took the club continuation, ruffed a heart, took the top trumps, ruffed a club, took the top diamonds and ruffed another heart.

Declarer then led her last trump, putting West in. With only two cards left in all hands, West could take the jack of diamonds but then had to yield the last trick to the ten of diamonds, giving South her contract.

NO ARGUMENT
"If you had doubled three hearts, they'd still be playing the hand next Tuesday," Mrs. Radin observed to her husband, Mike, who held the North cards.

"Yes, dear," Radin agreed. His wife had won a world championship in June, and who can win a family argument against a world champion?

DAILY QUESTION
Playing Standard American methods, you are the dealer with S A 10 5 4 3 2 H 8 D K 10 8 6 C 8 3. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. The hand is not worth an opening bid of any kind in standard bridge.

Windmill is featured at Washington event

By PHIL MCCOMBS
The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Dick Kryder adjusted his straw hat as he stood in his booth at the First Annual National Energy Expo last week and pointed at a windmill sticking up from the end of an ordinary camping trailer. The windmill was hooked to a generator and storage batteries.

"It stores energy for three people for 12 hours," he said in his folksy twang. "It runs a refrigerator, electric range, TV set, electric toilet and also the lighting in the trailer. And the thing is bullet-proof, that's an important thing."

"It's important, said Kryder, because when you put your windmill up in the wilderness a hunter is likely to take a shot at the generator attached to it, which would put you out of business."

Kryder, who is with Unicorn Enterprises in Buffalo, was one of more than 100 entrepreneurs, inventors, consultants and big business firms from all over the country to open energy exhibits at the District of Columbia Armory Thursday.

While the first-day crowd was light during working hours, the exposition will run through the weekend. Exhibitors and spectators Thursday were filled with the special exuberance that the new American energy gold rush seems to have generated.

There were big wood-splitting machines, cars that run on alcohol and the sun's rays, a dozen different kinds of insulation and wood stoves, something called a deaerator that takes gases out of water, a completely energy-efficient house, a game called Energy Quest ("Return to Research Center," said one of the cards), and any number of ways to harness Old Sol.

Thursday's first-day crowd included a Panamanian businessman interested in exporting new windmill technology to South America, a Small Business Administration executive setting up a new energy loan program, a man from George Washington University interested in water-saving shower heads, and an Army captain who said he was "looking for Miss Brick and Block. She's supposed to be the highlight of the show."

"For every exhibitor we have here we probably talked to 10 or 15," said Don Glassie, who organized the expo through a non-profit organization called the National Society for Energy Awareness. Glassie said the energy business is booming, and he hopes his expo will boom in future years, too.

If the expo is a vision of the future, it is also a strong reminder of the past. There were probably a dozen wood stove manufacturers represented.

"I sold 28,000 of these stoves last year," said Eva B. Horton, who imports Jotul wood stoves from Norway. "I'm the only one who has a decent warranty. . . I have 600 stores selling my stove. I had 7,000 applications (from stores). I'm like a college admissions board."

"I'm 45 years old, divorced, and have three children and I'm free. . . I'm the exclusive distributor in the U.S. Madame president! The stove queen!"

Herbert Fischer, who had a booth near the stove queen, said he has an energy consulting business which, among other things, checks people's utility bills for errors. He said he has found 30 percent of them in error, and takes a 50 percent fee when he recovers the difference from the companies. He said his biggest recovery was $1 million for a department store.

Michael Wales was selling Lovo shower heads that he said would knock $120 a year off the average family's water bill.

"I'll give you a buck off. They retail for $10. You can't beat it," he said to Barbara Klein, a consultant, who among other things, sets up conferences and was attending Thursday to get ideas for an impending U.S. Department of Energy conference.

Wales, who had a little spraying shower at his booth, said Thursday's sparse working-hours crowd was a disappointment. "Up in Vermont people go wild (over energy-saving devices). But in an area like this people are too sophisticated to mess with this kind of stuff. They'll pay someone to do it for them."

Dick Merritt, a lobbyist for the state of Nebraska, leaned against a brown Mazda and said, "This car's running on vodka, you know, 15 percent vodka."

Gasahol — as the gasoline and alcohol fuel that Merritt is promoting is called — is sold in 65 gas stations in the Midwest, according to a publicity agent for the exposition.

The idea of gasahol is to decrease U.S. dependence on foreign oil and to sell more corn and wheat, from which the alcohol is made.

Minister issues threat involving OPEC crude

By ROLAND PRINZ

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Officials of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries claimed today industrialized countries are discouraging and obstructing OPEC countries from participating in the making of finished petroleum products.

Kuwaiti Oil Minister Ali Khalifa al-Sabah, chairman of a three-day OPEC seminar on "Downstream Operations in OPEC Member Countries — Prospects and Problems," said that practice continues, OPEC countries may be forced to tie the quantity of crude oil they sell to industrialized countries to the quantity of finished products OPEC countries are allowed to sell in industrialized countries.

The warning was repeated in a speech by OPEC Secretary General Ali Jaidah.

In his address, the Kuwaiti minister said that through market restrictions industrialized countries are discouraging and obstructing OPEC countries from "going downstream," or participating in the making of finished petroleum products.

He cited as impediments imposed by the advanced countries the high cost of licenses for transfer of technical knowhow needed by OPEC countries.

"Access of the finished products to the markets of the industrialized countries is another obstacle to the development of downstream investment industry. Not only are there quantitative quotas, but the tariffs are high enough to wipe out any refining margins and even turn a healthy profit situation into a losing proposition.

"These restrictions and attitudes will not be pacifically accepted by OPEC. It may not be long before the removal of such practices becomes a condition of supply of crude oil."

The minister said it would be better if these problems were resolved through dialogue rather than confrontation.

"... We in OPEC feel that the developed countries have a reciprocal obligation to assist the development process in our countries through adequate and timely transfer of modern technology and by opening up market opportunities for our products," Jaidah said.

"The industrialized world must realize that we cannot continue indefinitely to pay the exorbitant cost of imported equipment and knowhow. It is not fair that we should buy equipment and spare parts from the industrialized countries, as well as importing their skilled labor, only to be deprived of the right to sell those products again in their markets.

"We hope that we shall not be forced to act unilaterally in this sphere. We seek now, as we have done in the past, an accommodation with the developed countries which will permit a smooth and harmonious transition of our role of mere residual suppliers of raw materials to that of full and equal partners in all activities of the international industry."

U.S. product exports may hit $350 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department expert says that exports of U.S. farm products to Saudi Arabia this year may total $350 million, more than double their value of $171 million in 1977.

John B. Parker of the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service said that there have been "spectacular gains in U.S. exports of rice, wheat, apples and many processed food" to Saudi Arabia.

"The opening of new supermarkets, rapid urban growth and large imports to feed contract workers will contribute to the rapid growth in Saudi Arabia's food imports," he said.

"In addition to the expanding needs of seven million native Saudis, more food must be imported for nearly two million immigrant workers."

Parker's analysis was in a weekly issue of "Foreign Agriculture" published by the department.

He told a reporter that "the way things are going, they may buy $500 million to $600 million" worth of U.S. commodities in calendar 1979.

Parker said that, overall, Saudi Arabia is importing about $2 billion worth of foreign food products this year and could increase purchases to around $3 billion in 1979. Last year its agricultural and food imports from all foreign sources totaled about $1.2 billion.

In his report, Parker said that shortages of rice from Thailand and Pakistan "caused a sharp increase in rice purchases from the United States" this year.

But the Saudis are stepping up purchases of many commodities and food items, including animal feed, poultry meat, beef, mutton and dairy products.

European countries, Australia, Argentina, Canada and others have shared in the booming oil-rich market.

Imports of non-alcoholic beverages from all sources probably will exceed $100 million this year, Parker said.

"Drinking water costs more than $1 per liter, and imported canned soft drinks are often in this price range," he said.

Randall Meyer

Meyer, Hackerman meeting co-chairmen

HOUSTON—Norman Hackerman and Randall Meyer have been named co-chairmen of the national meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science to be held Jan. 3-8, 1979, at the Shamrock Hilton Hotel and the Houston Marriott (at the Astrodome) in Houston.

Hackerman is president of Rice University. Meyer is president of Exxon Co., U.S.A., which is headquartered in Houston.

As co-chairmen of the meetings' Advisory Committee, Hackerman and Meyer are responsible for planning the meeting's 140 symposia, which will explore the theme "Science and Technology: Resources for Our Future."

The 145th annual meeting will be the association's first ever held in Houston. But it will be the third time AAAS sessions will have been held in Texas. The 1941 and 1968 meetings took place in Dallas.

Alternative energy strategies, orbiting astronomers (Skylab), genetics and human semen cryobanking, community science and technology, deep sea ecology, human evolution, national food policy and aging are only some of the topics involving energy, space, medicine, technology, ecology and the physical, social, biological and behavioral sciences which will be explored at the sessions.

The meetings will open Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 3, with the keynote address by Hanna Holborn Gray, president of the University of Chicago and continue with several concurrent sessions through Monday morning, Jan. 8.

In addition to the keynote address, several other lectures, free and open to the public, will be major features of the meeting. Speakers will include George W. White, professor of geology, University of Illinois; Owen Garriott, astronaut, Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center; Colin S. Pittendrigh, Big Professor of Human Biology, Stanford University; Michael E. DeBaakey, president, Baylor College of Medicine; Cyril Ponnampemura, professor of chemistry, University of Maryland; Edward E. David Jr., president, Exxon Resources & Engineering Co., Inc., and retiring president, AAAS; Peter F. Drucker, Clark Professor of Social Science, Claremont Graduate School; and Hal Murray, associate professor of biology, University of Southern Colorado. One lecture will feature a light and music show.

The AAAS Science Film Festival, which is also free and open to the public, will feature 45 of the best short science films recently produced. The Science Film Festival will open Thursday, Jan. 4, and run through Sunday, Jan. 7, in the Cabaret Theater of the Shamrock Hilton Hotel.

Science International, an annual exhibit of scientific instruments and publications, will be a part of the AAAS meeting for the fifth year. The exhibition will run Jan. 4 through Jan. 7 in the Hall of Exhibits at the Shamrock Hilton with "poster" sessions, where the author uses visual aids in an informal setting, in an adjoining area.

The AAAS meeting, as in the past, will be accessible to handicapped individuals. Transportation for those in wheelchairs, interpreters for the hearing impaired and a round-the-clock answering service to deal with emergencies will be provided.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science, formed in 1848, is the largest general scientific organization in the country. It currently has some 130,000 individual members who are scientists, engineers and others interested in science and about 300 affiliated scientific and engineering societies and academies of science.

The AAAS annual meeting demonstrates the interdisciplinary nature of the Association, with symposia covering an extremely diverse range of subjects. Several thousand scientists, engineers and those interested in science and technology attend the national meeting, which is held in a different city each year. The last meeting was held in Washington, D.C., February 1978. San Francisco will host the 1980 meeting.

Paid, Audited Delivery Or Haphazard Scattering?

Daily editions of The Midland Reporter-Telegram are delivered, as valid purchases, to the purchasers of this product and these deliveries are officially audited. Obviously the purchasers (our subscribers) want the product, pay for it, depend upon it and upon its regular delivery.

Each day brings its own needs and requirements in our lives. Once it was sufficient to drive the wagon or buggy to town once a week, or less frequently, for "provisions."

1978 IS A DIFFERENT STORY

Consumers needs facts, data and up-to-the-minute reports on dozens of matters EVERY DAY for their information and guidance.

Thursday's newspaper, for example, cannot be expected to provide an entire week's information needs. We don't expect ours to do so, even with its 40 or more pages.

So we deliver a complete, new edition every day to help you cope with each day's concerns and urgencies.

Our planning, energies, facilities and professional efforts are dedicated to providing the reader with the very best and most complete daily information medium in West Texas.

Our advertisers realize advertising is a necessary investment. The retailer invests X amount of dollars in plant, fixtures, inventory, equipment and labor...TO BRING THE GOODS TO THE CUSTOMER.

Then he invests in advertising to bring the customer to the goods.

The advertiser needs to know the medium he uses is WANTED by the consumer he hopes to attract. He needs to know there is no question about its delivery, dependability, readership or acceptance. He needs to know its effectiveness has been thoroughly tested and proven.

BECAUSE ADVERTISING IS NEWS ABOUT THE MARKET PLACE, THE ADVERTISER NEEDS TO KNOW THE MEDIUM HE USES PROVIDES MORE OF THIS NEWS TO MORE READERS THAN ANY OTHER MEDIUM IN THE MARKET!

In a reader opinion survey, respondents ranked advertising in The Reporter-Telegram equally with general news, national news, women's page and Dear Abby as "liked most." Advertising ranked higher than several news categories as "always" or "often" read.

The Advertiser knows his advertising in The Midland Reporter-Telegram can be depended upon to BRING THE CUSTOMER TO THE GOODS.

Cardiac arrest claims Dodgers' Jim Gilliam

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Dodger coach Jim Gilliam, who never regained consciousness after a stroke three weeks ago, died of a cardiac arrest one day after his team won its second consecutive National League pennant.

Gilliam, 49, died late Sunday night at Daniel Freeman Hospital, said spokesman Larry Pilcher. He had been in the hospital since Sept. 15, when he lapsed into a coma following surgery for a cerebral hemorrhage.

"He was a great guy and a wonderful man," said Al Campanis, Dodger vice president and general manager. "He was an excellent instructor and people liked him very much."

GILLIAM'S PLAYING and coaching career with the Dodgers spanned 26 years. He began as a gentlemanly, always-hustling infielder who won legions of fans while playing with the club in Brooklyn and Los Angeles.

Gilliam was senior staff member, first base coach and batting instructor for the Dodgers.

The Dodgers dedicated their National League playoff games to Gilliam and said they would do the same in the World Series against the New York Yankees.

"We dedicated the playoffs to a great man, a great human being and we're dedicating the Fall Classic to him," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda.

After the Dodgers won the pennant Saturday night, Gilliam's wife of 19 years, Edwina, appeared in the team's dressing room to congratulate them. She said little, but the team members understood.

"IT'S JUST A tremendous feeling for us to accomplish this for Jim," said the team's captain, Davey Lopes. "There's nothing we can do without thinking about him. We'll never forget him."

Outfielder Dusty Baker said after the winning playoff game: "I had an almost spiritual feeling for Gilliam. I had problems on and off the field this year, and Gilliam was right there, helping."

A native of Nashville, Tenn., Gilliam began his baseball career as batboy for the Elite Giants of the old Negro Baseball League. He began playing for the team when he was 17 and eventually caught the Dodgers' eye.

KNOWN AS "JUNIOR" in his early career, Gilliam broke into the major leagues with Brooklyn in 1953. He replaced Hall of Famer Jackie Robinson, the first black player in the modern major leagues, at second base.

That season turned out to be a banner year for Gilliam. He hit .278 and won honors as National League Rookie of the Year. He remained in the game as a full-time hitter with a .265 average until 1965.

GILLIAM THEN took on the role of player-coach for two full seasons before moving into a full-time coaching role.

He appeared in 1,210 major league games and seven World Series, playing important roles for the Dodgers in their pennant drives of 1956, 1959 and 1963.

Gilliam had often indicated he would have liked to be appointed the team's manager. But he said after Frank Robinson was fired from that post with the Cleveland Indians that he did not think the baseball world was ready for another black manager.

Gilliam had four children.

Cowboys foil Giant defensive strategy

Dallas Cowboy defensive tackle Randy White (54) and defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones (72) look down on Giant quarterback Joe Pisarcik after White sacked him in the second quarter. It was one of eight quarterback sacks for the Cowboy defense. (AP Laserphoto).

DALLAS—There wasn't anything wrong with the Dallas Cowboys, as it turned out, that the New York Giants couldn't cure, even though they tried to scramble the best laid plans of the Dallas board of strategy by springing a 3-2 defense on the Cowboys.

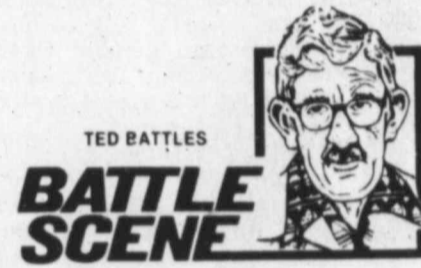

"They haven't been playing a 3-2 defense and it messed us up," Coach Tom Landry revealed after the Cowboys' 24-3 victory at Texas Stadium Sunday. "As a result, we found ourselves forced to use an attack which was based on something we hadn't worked on all week."

If the Cowboys were messed up, they could have fooled a lot of the 63,420 fans in the stands. Quarterback Roger Staubach threw 17 and 30 yard touchdown passes to Tony Hill and a 23-yarder to tight end Billy Joe Dupree while Rafael Septien kicked a 22-yard field goal to finish up the Cowboys' scoring.

What bothered the Cowboys most was the blitzing the Giants did out of the 3-2. They got five sacks, forcing Staubach to do more scrambling than he had all season.

So much so that Roger admitted that even when he hit his targets, it was under duress. He didn't even see one TD completion to Tony Hill and just got a glimpse of another to Billy Joe as the roof collapsed on him.

The 3-2 forced the Cowboys to throw more than the game plan called for. "I usually like to throw 20 or 25 times," Landry disclosed, but Staubach wound up going to the air 32 times and he completed 17 for 246 yards. "When we saw that defense," Landry went on, "We thought we could throw against them, especially since they sometimes had eight stand-up people across the line. That encouraged us to throw."

TED BATTLES
BATTLE SCENE

OFFENSIVE GUARD Tom Rafferty admitted the Giants' new look hurt mostly because "We didn't have all the plays we could have run against them and," he added sheepishly, "our pass protection wasn't too good," which influenced four Staubach scrambles for 25 yards, the longest a 17 yarder.

Tackle Tom Donovan figured the 3-2 hurt the Giants more than it did the Cowboys, "Sure, we had to scrap our game plan and they made us look bad on the blitz, but by the same token we could hurt them. And really, they didn't play the 3-2 that much differently than they did their 4-3. Besides, we've played teams like Denver that used the 3-2, but the Giants had that used the 3-2, according to movies we've seen of them this year, only one or two plays this season.

"It screwed us up," Donovan, the 6-4, 250-pounder from Stanford, continued because "we weren't properly prepared, but we were better prepared to adjust than they were to play it."

OVERALL, IT was the Cowboys defense that glittered for Dallas in the bruise-producing battle. If the rest of the NFL was muttering that the Pack was back, then Dallas fans couldn't be blamed for celebrating the return of the sack. The Cowboys got eight of them for 63 yards in losses against starting quarterback Joe Pisarcik and successor Jerry Golsteyn, who managing only six completions in 20 attempts for 103 yards.

"It was a good defensive game for us. We shutdown their offense and that wasn't easy," Landry said. "This was the second straight week for our defense to play well. Randy White must have had a good game. He was after the quarterback every play, it seemed."

AFTER LOSSES to Los Angeles and Washington, 9-5 last week, the win was Dallas' fourth of the year and pushed the Cowboys past the Giants, 3-3, in the NFC East Division.

Giants' Coach John McVay said the only stats Staubach compiled that he liked "were the sacks and the interceptions. Otherwise, he had a sensational game."

As for his defensive chicanery, McVay confessed, "Yes, we intended to blitz a lot. If you stand there and let them throw, they'll pick your eyes out. Yes, Jeter (tackle Gary Jeter) had a good game. He is an exciting ball player. He got a roughing call there once, but Jeter is anything but a dirty player."

Dallas tackle Harvey Martin commenting on the altercation between the Giants' defensive end George Martin and the Cowboys John Fitzgerald in the first period, bristled, "In comparison I got thrown out of the game up there (in New Jersey) for practically nothing. He threw a punch. All I ask for is a little consistency in the officiating."

"It looked liked he pushed Roger after he had thrown the pass. I didn't want him to do that. I wanted to set the record straight. Then when the ref stepped in and broke us up, I thought that was it because I didn't want to get thrown out of the game. But then he swung at me again, and I thought

Raiders don't rehearse comeback

OAKLAND (AP) — Charles Phillips swears the Oakland Raiders don't purposely wait until the final seconds to beat somebody. It only seems that way.

"It's not like we rehearse it or anything — but it is the same old tune week after week," Phillips admitted Sunday after the Raiders came from behind in the final minute to beat the Houston Oilers 21-17. "It always seems to come down to the final moments."

The Raiders, who have a history of death-defying rallies, had already won two National Football League games this season on the final play. This time, a 3-yard Ken Stabler pass to Dave Casper with 42 seconds left completed the Oakland comeback from a 17-7 deficit.

But it was defensive back Phillips, beaten badly on an second quarter touchdown pass, who made the usual end-of-the game heroics possible with a 96-yard score on a recovered fumble.

Midway through the third period, Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell appeared headed for the clinching touchdown for Houston as he circled left end from the four with the Oilers ahead 17-7.

But defensive end Dave Browning got a hand on the ball which popped over to Phillips, who was on the ground. He got up and ran the length of the field untouched for the turnaround touchdown.

"Nobody feels worse about this than I do," a dejected Campbell said after seeing his 103-yard rushing day wasted by the fumble. "I'm just thinking about Buffalo (the next opponent) now."

The victory was Oakland's 10th in 11 games with the Oilers since 1966 and Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini, who had touchdown passes of 58 and 17 yards Sunday, came up with his own reason for the Raiders' dominance.

"Every time we walk on this field, something weird happens at the end," he explained. "Oakland is good...and lucky."

Oiler Coach Bum Phillips disagreed. "The Raiders are not lucky," he said. "They've won too many games like this to be lucky." Houston's luck in close games this year has been equally divided — winning three games by a total of seven points and losing the same number by a total of 14. The Raiders are 4-2, with a 28-3 victory over Green Bay the only

IOC approves LA bid for 1984 Olympics

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The International Olympic Committee today gave the final go-ahead to Los Angeles to stage the 1984 Summer Games.

A special mail ballot among members approved by a large majority a decision by the IOC executive board in August which had recommended acceptance of Los Angeles' plan to hold and finance the Games.

The vote was 74-3 in favor of the recommendation with eight abstentions. Forty-five votes were needed for approval.

An IOC spokesman declined to name the three members who rejected the recommendation of the executive board, "but we might be able to tell you at a later time," he said. Recommendation to approve the signing of two contracts enabling Los Angeles to stage the Games was given on Aug. 31 by IOC President Lord Killanin — but he said at the time that the decision could only be final if IOC members ratified it by a mail vote before Oct. 7.

The statement announcing the balloting said only 85 of the world body's 89 members were eligible to take part in the vote because the other four had not yet been sworn into the organization.

Texas A&M-Houston duel first of SWC shootouts

By The Associated Press

It's the first of many Big Shootouts to come Saturday night at Houston.

Two legitimate threats to the Southwest Conference football championship, currently owned by the University of Texas, tangle.

The Texas Aggies, boasting the best defense in the country and an offense to match, meet the fast-improving University of Houston Cougars in the Astrodome.

The Aggies mashed Texas Tech 38-9 Saturday while Houston went through a 20-18 nail-biter against the Baylor Bears. Both teams are 1-0 in league play. Texas is the conference leader at 2-0.

Two years ago the Aggies were upset by the Cougars in Houston but got revenge for that loss with a one-sided victory in College Station last December.

And it will more than likely be December before the host team for the Cotton Bowl is decided with the league more balanced than ever.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman figures his players learned something in the cliff-hanging victory over Baylor.

"Football is a game 60 minutes long, deadly serious; young players must learn this," said Yeoman after surviving a last second Baylor field goal attempt.

Everyone has been talking about the Texas A&M defense, but Texas Tech Coach Rex Dockery would like to draw notice to the Aggie offense.

"Their offense is very hard to stop," said Dockery.

Aggie Coach Emory Ballard said "We're a good offensive football team. It doesn't matter what formation we line up in. We've got some excellent athletes and they're going to make yardage no matter how you line 'em up. There is room in our offensive scheme for both the Wishbone and the I."

Arkansas mauled Texas Christian 42-3 Saturday in the only other SWC contest.

On the intersectional front, Ohio State was fortunate to escape with a 35-35 tie against SMU, and No. 1 ranked Oklahoma walked all over Texas 31-10 in the 73rd renewal of their annual grudge game.

The SWC is 12-11-1 against outside competition for the year with a chance to pad the margin this week. SMU is at Baylor in what should be a rousing offensive show and Rice is at TCU in other league games. On the intersectional front, Texas hosts North Texas state and Texas Tech is at New Mexico.

Sophomore quarterback Mike Ford had the second best passing day in SMU history against Ohio State. He completed 36 of 57 passes for 341 yards and one touchdown. It was the most points scored against Ohio State since 1967 or over the last 97 games. Baylor has lost four straight games by a grand total of 14 points.

"I still think we're close to being a great football team," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "But I tell you, man, I'm cratered. I think the team is, too. If they weren't they wouldn't be human."

Oklahoma quarterback Thomas Lott starts off on a ground-gaining run in the third quarter of Saturday's OU-Texas game in Dallas Saturday. The top-ranked Sooners blasted No. 6 Texas 31-10. (AP Laserphoto).

Hogs come alive in SWC opener; Penn State extends win streak

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Maybe a drop from No. 2 to No. 4 in the college football ratings was just what Arkansas needed.

After holding on to the runner-up position for the first month of the season, Arkansas slipped two places last week after struggling past Tulsa on the heels of a hard-fought victory over winless Oklahoma State a week earlier.

But the Razorbacks came alive Saturday night and trounced Texas Christian 42-3 in their Southwest Conference opener as Jerry Eckwood and Micheal Forrest each tallied twice and Ron Calcagni directed four scoring drives.

"I THOUGHT WE looked more like a complete team than what we had," said Coach Lou Holtz. "We blocked and executed pretty well on offense. We still have an awful lot of 15-yard penalties, and you just can't keep going in that vein and hope to be successful against the kind of people we have to play on down the line."

People like those at Texas, whom the Razorbacks face Oct. 21, even though the sixth-ranked Longhorns dropped a 31-10 decision to No. 1-rated Oklahoma over the weekend.

"Other than the turnovers (one fumble, one interception) and 15-yard penalties and lack of throwing as much as I wanted to, I was pleased with the way we played on offense," Holtz said.

OKLAHOMA, ARKANSAS, fifth-ranked Penn State and No. 7 Texas A&M all won impressively. Penn State walloped Kentucky 30-0 while the Texas Aggies clobbered Texas Tech 38-9.

"They (Arkansas) are not as strong as Penn State," said TCU Coach F.A. Dry, a 58-0 loser to the Nittany Lions a week ago. "They're quicker, but not as physically strong. I don't know who would win between them."

Penn State not only extended the nation's longest major college winning streak to 15 games by trouncing Kentucky but also avenged last season's only defeat. Chuck Fusina was the ringleader, throwing two passes to Scott Fitzkee to set up a short plunge by Matt Suhey and then hitting Fitzkee for an 18-yard touchdown as the Lions grabbed a 14-0 first-period lead.

"I don't know whether we were a test for them or not, but if we were, they certainly passed," said Kentucky Coach Fran Curci. "As I said earlier, I think they're one of the two or three great teams in the country. They can do it all."

SAID PENN STATE'S Joe Paterno: "I thought at the start of the season that this could possibly be our best team. We're not there yet, but we're getting a little better each week."

It doesn't seem as though Oklahoma can get much better. The Sooners stormed 77 yards in five plays in their first possession, with Billy Sims scoring from 18 yards out after a 55-yard dash by Kenny King. Sims, who carried 25 times for 131 yards, tallied again on a 1-yard plunge in the second period.

"Sims is everything I ever heard he would be," said Texas linebacker Lance Taylor. "Oklahoma certainly is the No. 1 team in the nation ... they were today."

TEXAS A&M SPOTTED Texas Tech an early 6-0 lead and then roared back to maul the Red Raiders as Curtis Dickey rushed 20 times for 161 yards, his fourth consecutive 100-yard performance. Dickey scored on a 15-yard run while David Brothers tallied twice and Mike Mosley added a 64-yard touchdown dash.

Southern California, runner-up in The Associated Press ratings, had the weekend off while Michigan and Ohio State, the Big Ten's Big Two, almost came unglued on the same weekend. Third-ranked Michigan rallied to defeat Arizona 21-17 after falling behind 17-1 in the first half. No. 14 Ohio State blew a 14-point lead in the final period and settled for a 35-35 standoff with Southern Methodist.

Michigan needed a 1-yard fourth-down plunge by Russell Davis with 5 1/2 minutes remaining to overtake Arizona while SMU's Mike Ford, who completed 36 of 57 passes for 341 yards and a touchdown, scored his second and third TDs of the game in the final period to help the Mustangs deadlock Ohio State.

"We made colossal mistakes and we were lucky to win," said Michigan's Bo Schembacher, "but maybe this will help us in the long run."

Ohio State almost lost but SMU's Eddie Garcia missed a 47-yard last-second field goal attempt.

"WE BLEW IT," said Ohio State's Woody Hayes. "We had a 14-point lead and got a little frivolous. We put some other people in and they had enough offense to get back into the game. We let them out of the box."

Rounding out the Top Ten: —Eighth-ranked Alabama got the go-ahead touchdown on Tony Nathan's third-period plunge, and a 36-yard pass from Jeff Rutledge to Rick Neal in the fourth quarter provided the clincher as the Crimson Tide held off Washington 20-17.

—Ninth-ranked Pitt overwhelmed Boston College 32-15 as Ray Jones scored twice while Rick Troceno tallied one touchdown and passed 29 yards to Gordon Jones for another.

—Tom Roney scored one TD and threw for one in leading No. 10 Nebraska to a 23-0 rout of No. 15 Iowa State. The losers invaded Nebraska territory only four times.

LOUISIANA STATE'S Charles Alexander gained 156 yards on 40 carries and scored once as the 11th-ranked Tigers whipped Florida 34-21.

Steve Atkins' 98-yard kickoff return in the third period and Steve Trimble's end zone fumble recovery on the ensuing kickoff helped No. 12 Maryland beat No. 20 North Carolina State, No. 13 Colorado marched 96 yards for a third-period touchdown that nelled down a 17-7 triumph over Kansas.

UCLA, the No. 16 team, nipped Pac-10 rival Stanford, No. 17, 27-26 on Peter Boermeester's 37-yard field goal with 27 seconds left. Florida State's Jimmy Jordan, who lost his starting job during the week, came off the bench and threw a pair of fourth-quarter scoring passes, including a 58-yard bomb to Sam Platt with 1:29 left, as the Seminoles overtook Cincinnati 26-21.

AUBURN WAS the only member of the Top Twenty to bow to an unranked team. The 19th-ranked Tigers grabbed a 15-14 lead over Miami of Florida with 1:26 remaining on Joe Cribbs' 1-yard run and Charlie Trotman's 2-point conversion pass to Mark Robbins. But the Hurricanes got a 42-yard run from Ottis Anderson, setting up Dan Miller's 24-yard field in the closing seconds as Miami posted a 17-15 triumph.

In other developments: —Miami of Ohio, coached last year by Dick Crum, took a 7-3 decision from North Carolina, coached this year by Dick Crum.

—Southwestern Louisiana's David Guidry, no relation to Ron Guidry, had a good game Saturday night just like the New York Yankees' ace hurler. David came off the bench to throw three touchdown passes and lead the Ragin' Cajuns to a 24-6 victory over Louisiana Tech.

—Temple, which holds the NCAA record of 106 consecutive extra points, blew 2 of them and settled for a 22-22 tie with William & Mary.

—Kansas State snapped a 21-game Big Eight Conference losing streak by defeating Oklahoma State 18-7.

Maddox, McGraw wear goats horns after Phillies' loss to Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If it's possible to wear goats horns and maintain your pride at the same time, Garry Maddox and Tug McGraw should receive baseball Academy Awards.

Maddox, the Philadelphia Phillies' center fielder, dropped a routine line drive in the 10th inning Saturday that set up the run that ousted the Phils from the National League Playoffs for the third consecutive year.

McGraw, who retired the Dodgers in order in the ninth, was the pitcher. He retired the first two batters in the 10th and then Los Angeles mystique took over.

MCGRAW WALKED Ron Cey, pitching carefully to keep the little third baseman from hitting a home run. Dusty Baker lined to Maddox for what should have been the third out, but Maddox dropped the ball for an error.

Cey stopped at second and scored a moment later on Bill Russell's hit to center that scooted off Maddox's glove, preventing a play at the plate on Cey.

The Dodgers won 4-3 for their second straight National League pennant and prepared today for the start of the World Series against the American league champion New York Yankees.

BUT BOTH Maddox and McGraw stood in front of their lockers in a dressing room you could have heard a tear drop and faced dozens of media types. Most players would have sought the refuge of off limits area or taken 45-minute showers.

Not Maddox, nor McGraw. "I missed it," said Maddox in a voice that bordered breaking down. "Nothing distracted me, it was right to me. I suppose all my life I'll be remembered for this."

It was a tough moment for one of the best defensive center fielders in baseball.

"But I'll try not to let it get me down," said Maddox, who won last year's gold glove for his fielding. "I've come back from adversity before."

MADDOX'S MISADVENTURE brought to mind the 1968 World Series, when another great center fielder, Curt Flood, misplayed a line drive in the seventh inning of the seventh game. The ball, hit by Detroit's Jim Northrup, went for a triple and scored two runs. It cost Flood's St. Louis Cardinals a chance for a second straight Series' triumph.

Then, of course, there was McGraw, perhaps baseball's greatest free spirit. He doesn't know what it means to be down, at least not outwardly. McGraw always has a positive thought, even under the worst of circumstances.

ONE JULY FOURTH, he threw a bottom-of-the-ninth two-run homer that lost a game. Afterwards he jest-ed, "I guess I started the fireworks display early."

On Saturday in Dodger Stadium, McGraw had no wise cracks nor did he hang his head.

Asked how he felt when he saw

Maddox drop Baker's line drive, McGraw said: "Unless I change my mind, my thoughts will be for me to know and no one else to find out. But I assure you it was not negative nor personal."

Philly personnel director bemoans lack of enthusiasm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After Garry Maddox had made his fatal error and the Philadelphia Phillies were gone from the National playoffs for the third straight year, a forlorn figure leaned against a wall in the locker room.

It was Paul Owens, personnel director of the Phillies, the man who built this ball club through strong farm system and some trades that defied imagination.

Owens had talked about his team and its future even before the Los Angeles Dodgers won that 4-3, 10th inning victory Saturday to clinch the best-of-five playoff 3-1.

THE SUBSTANCE of his remarks was that he did not plan any sweeping changes, but there would be changes. Owens said he did not blame Manager Danny Ozark for the team's failure to reach its potential. He blamed the players.

Owens said that his club needed a shot of enthusiasm.

"There is nothing wrong with showing emotion," he said, waving his hand toward the Dodgers' dugout and praising Manager Tommy Lasorda for the gung-ho attitude of the Los Angeles team.

"I LIKE TO see guys clapping for each other and themselves. "I don't mean jumping around, but enthusiasm," Owens added. "It's definitely an intangible."

He went on to remark, "I don't say that enthusiasm is missing on our club. Different teams react differently. You can't tell me we were not up for this series. You can't tell me we weren't emotional in that last series in Pittsburgh coming down the stretch."

While the Phillies have decided — they have not announced it — that Ozark will be re-signed, Owens indicated he hoped his quiet, low-key type manager would generate a little more enthusiasm.

"I KNOW THAT for Danny it's out of character," Owens admitted. "He's not the Lasorda type of personality. But some of that (enthusiasm) works off on the players. They understand that some of it is show, but they take out of it what they want."

Owens indicated that this offseason he would be looking for a Pete Rose type, a get-up-and-go guy.

"Who would you want, a guy who looks like he's ready to fall over or a guy with Pete Rose desire?" Owens asked.

"You can still be professional and still have enthusiasm," Owens said. "I don't think this game is so cut and dry, so routine."

Owens also indicated that the Phillies might change their free agent policy for the right player.

Previously, owner Ruly Carpenter has operated on the theory that he would not spend the millions asked by free agents.

"If the right guy comes along, we might change (the free agent out-

Recent flooding improves fishing

By JON CHASE

The recent rains and subsequent run-off on the Pecos River and Rio Grande watershed should have created a new lake situation on Amistad and Falcon.

Both of these impoundments have caught a lot of water and thousands of acres of lake shore have been inundated. The flooding of this lake frontage has created virgin fishing water that is very fertile. Coupled with the cooler weather this should produce some excellent fishing.

ON AMISTAD this new water will be especially beneficial, as this lake has always been an extremely difficult place to find fish. The new water will trigger a mass movement of fish to the shoreline where the bass will be easier to find. As long as the water is up, a lot of fish should be caught by working the shallow brush with spinner baits, plastic worms and topwaters. The shoreline fishing should be productive during all hours of the day as long as the temperature remains fairly mild. If the lake is allowed to remain at a high level I expect the fishing to be much better than usual up until the first real cold front moves in.

The flooding has already had an effect on Falcon Lake fishing as a tremendous amount of new water has covered what used to be the lake front. Falcon is an off colored lake and the water is not yet muddy. If the water becomes extremely dingy the fishing will probably slow down considerably, but right now conditions are ideal. The bass on Falcon are moving into the shallows with spinner baits and topwaters taking a lot of fish in the flooded grass and mesquite.

Dave Kiolbasa and Mark Diles of San Antonio took home a 40 fish limit after fishing last Tuesday and Wednesday on Falcon. The culled down to these 40 and had a stringer that weighed 81 pounds. All the fish were caught in one to three feet of water on floating Rapalas. Their large bass weighed five pounds, 13 ounces, and they had six fish that weighed four pounds or better.

IF YOU HAVE the time I think that Lake Falcon would be a better bet to catch a limit of bass but Amistad should be much better than usual as long as the water remains high.

Our last little cool snap moved a few new birds into the area and I have received quite a few reports of limits on dove taken in the North Zone. The dove hunting in the West Texas area just hasn't had much of a chance this year due to the rain, but maybe the end of the season will be better.

Quite a few hunters took advantage of the special teal season this year and combined some duck hunting with their dove hunting. Red Harris of Odessa called the other day and said that he had been out on three different occasions and killed a limit of teal on some stock tanks out of Monahan. He said that he has yet to kill a limit of dove but that the teal hunting was excellent. I didn't get to do any teal hunting this year and as lousy as the dove hunting has been I would have saved a couple of dove hunts by buying a duck stamp.

Top-ranked Temple, Huntsville protect ratings with victories

By The Associated Press

Turnovers were upsetting in more ways than one this weekend as unheralded Lake Highlands capitalized on two to stun 8th-ranked Highland Park 25-15.

Both Scott Parks' interception and Mike Chitwood's mid-air theft of a fumble set up touchdowns for Lake Highlands, which also added insult to injury when it dumped Highland Park's quarterback in his own end zone for a safety.

David Cunningham tossed a 50-yard scoring pass to Rich Thompson late in the fourth quarter to lift 3rd-ranked Arlington Lamar to a dramatic 15-14 come-from-behind victory over upstart Haltom City Friday night.

Haltom City quarterback Tim Sanders staged a eleventh-hour rally of his own, hitting Troy Kates with a 29-yard scoring strike with less than two minutes to play. But an ineligible receiver and the referees' flag called it back.

Mark McQueen lofted two touchdowns and Carl Robinson dashed for two others as Temple, ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, waltzed to a 35-0 victory over Waco University.

Herkie Walls rambled 63 yards for one score and threw a 40-yard bomb for another as 2nd-ranked Garland rolled to an easy 27-0 win over Corsicana.

San Antonio Churchill, No. 5, raced to 40-7 win over San Antonio Clemens; Corpus Christi Carroll, No. 6, thumped Corpus Christi Ray, 21-7; Odessa Permian, No. 7, trounced Midland, 28-0; and LaPorte nudged Rayburn, 14-11.

Huntsville protected its top-billing in class 3A with three fourth-quarter touchdowns to trim Houston Furr 21-7.

Quarterback Lloyd Archie galloped 40 yards for Huntsville's first score and set up the second with a nifty 44 yard punt return.

Brandon Carroll rambled for 266 yards and two touchdowns as 2nd-ranked Gonzales crushed Port Lavaca, 56-0. The Apaches collected 32 first downs, amassed 540 total yards including 466 on the ground.

Brownwood, No. 4, trimmed Bowie, 25-7; Raymondville, No. 5, strolled to a 20-0 win over Edcouch-Elsa; Bay City stomped Hitchcock, 20-3; Fort Stockton, No. 7, cruised to a 22-0 win over Sweetwater; 9th-ranked Pecos strolled to a 26-6 win over Alpine and Kerrville Tivy nudged South San West 34-29.

Friendswood, No. 8, was the only ranked class 2A team to lose Friday, as it was bounced by Brazosport 35-7.

Top-ranked Mount Vernon had the night off and 2nd-ranked class 2A Newton might as well have, blasting Hemphill 69-6.

Bridgeport, No. 3, bombarded Granbury, 37-3; 4th-ranked Muleshoe edged Abernathy, 26-20; Cameron, No. 5, outdistanced Waco, 32-14; 6th-ranked Port Isabel defeated Sharyland, 33-13; 7th-ranked Sealy clobbered Rice Cons, 44-14; Breckenridge, No. 8, dropped Clyde, 21-0; Childress, No. 9, shelled Garrettsville, 25-8 and Tahoka, N. 10, crushed Cooper, 41-0.

Tony Don Craddock's four four first-half touchdowns led top-ranked Farmersville to a 55-6 rout over Coppell. But 2nd-ranked Grapeland found more than it could handle in Groveton, losing 9-0.

Cowboys win

for sure the ref would throw him out then, but he didn't." Fitzgerald reviewed the incident...

THE ONLY trouble with playing the Giants is that this was the last meeting and the Redskins still have two games left with New York, but Washington seems to bring out the best in the New Yorkers.

If the Cowboys had any reason to envy the Giants, it was Dave Jennings, their kicker from St. Lawrence College in upper New York, who averaged 44 yards on nine kicks, including one aborted fake kick which found him running around and facing extinction. In desperation he punted while on the run...

Tony Dorsett, the Cowboys' leading rusher with 73 yards in 17 carries, suffered a sprained ankle "that hurts like hell. But tomorrow will be the true test. If it doesn't hurt like it does today, then I think it will be OK." Dorsett hurt the ankle on a cutback play when "a guy fell on it."

Morgan nabs three-stroke win

GOTEMBA, Japan (AP) — Dr. Gil Morgan says it was his determination to take birdies on all three par-5 holes that helped him win the $300,000 Pacific Club Masters golf tournament.

His three birdies on those holes Sunday was the margin of victory over fellow American Jerry Pate. Morgan had with a 273 total, 11 under par on the 6,225-yard, par-71, Gotemba course near Mt. Fuji.

Morgan received $65,000 first prize money and a Japanese sports car. Last week, Morgan won the World Series of Golf title, which carried $100,000 prize money. "Fantastic," said Mrs. Morgan in a classic understatement. "I have watched almost all his matches since our marriage, but I never saw him play so well as today."

Pate finished with a 276 total and picked up $32,500, while Bob Gilder finished third with a 278 and won $20,000.

Forty-five professionals and three amateurs from Australia, Canada, the United States, Taiwan and Japan participated in the tournament. Lee Trevino shared fourth place with fellow Americans Don January and Danny Edwards at 279.

Reggie and Stevie Show to open in front of Hollywood backdrop

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With Hollywood providing a natural backdrop, we can now prepare ourselves for the Reggie and Stevie Show.

While baseball's Silver World Series, opening here Tuesday night, offers an All-Star cast, there seems no question who'll be in the cameras' eye — Reggie Jackson and Steve Garvey, alive and in living color.

THEY ARE THE game's titans of the climax. They are the ones who, in the closing reels, ride up on a white horse and rescue the damsel in distress. They wait for the big moment, then deliver.

But everybody who pays $3 at the neighborhood cinemas or stays awake for the Late Show knows there is room for only one hero.

But this time, who will it be — Reggie or Steve?

BOTH MEN enter the Series with impressive credentials. Reggie, the controversial catalyst of the defending champion New York Yankees, comes in with an act hard to follow — that Ruthian feat of three home runs in the final game of the 1977 show-down. Garvey, the disciplined first baseman of the Los Angeles Dodgers, is riding a hot postseason streak that included a record-tying four home runs in the National League playoffs.

Both men thrive on pressure. Both have a faculty for producing in do-or-die situations.

Before being stopped in Saturday's title game against Kansas City, Jackson had hit in seven straight postseason games for a .583 average. Garvey has set National League playoff records for total bases, 22, and extra-base hits.

"I CAN'T EXPLAIN IT, I perform best when the challenge is greatest," says Jackson, who never has batted .90 in a regular season, but has spearheaded two championship teams — the Oakland A's before the Yankees.

"I must feel the tension and the urgency. When I struck out three times Saturday night, I just didn't have it."

Garvey says, "To survive in the postseason pressure, you must be prepared to do something extra, something special. Determination is the key factor."

Jackson adds, "I think the thing that drives a lot of people to extra effort, the big response to the big moment, is fear of failure. That is the way it is with me."

TOTALLY DIFFERENT in style and personality, their careers have moved on a parallel course. Both have been the objects of envy by their teammates, both have been involved in bitter controversies.

Reggie, a muscled 6-footer with a show business flair, is an extrovert — outspoken, brutally frank, independent, easily accessible and a man comfortable in the limelight. By his own admission, he is "the straw that stirs the drink."

The pennant-winning Yankees resented it when he was signed to a $2.9 million contract. He was called owner George Steinbrenner's pet. They said he had only two friends on the entire Yankee team. He feuded with Manager Billy Martin and the Yankees' MVP catcher, Thurman Munson.

Yet he played it cool, hung tough and in the end, with game-winning performances, won respect and status.

GARVEY, SON OF a Florida bus driver, is a low-key, All-American Boy type, whose main flaw seems to be that he has none. He is a Frank Merriwell.

A stocky 190-pounder, Garvey became the Dodgers iron man and chief run-producer. Fans adore him. Champanies flock to him for endorsements.

He and his pretty wife Cyndy chose to live a life away from baseball fanfare. Some of his teammates thought he was uppity, a chill developed between him and pitching star Don Sutton and the two came to blows in the dressing room. Garvey remained the poised gentleman throughout.

"The man I respect and admire most on the Dodgers is Steve Garvey," says Reggie Jackson. "If I had a son, I would want him to be like Steve."

Middleweight champ

to defend title

TOKYO (AP) — World Boxing Association junior middleweight champion Masashi Kudo of Japan will make his first title defense against No. 7 contender Ho Joo of South Korea Dec. 13, Japanese promoter Tsutomu Asakura announced today.

Asakura said the 15-round championship bout will be held in Osaka.

Kudo, 26, won the title from former champion Eddy Gazo of Nicaragua by a split decision Aug. 9 in Akita, northern Japan.

World Series umpire crew set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Veteran Umpire Ed Vargo will be the home plate umpire Tuesday night in the first game of the World Series between the Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Yankees.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Sunday that Vargo, a 19-year veteran, and Haller, an umpire of more than 17 years.

Kibler and Springstead have worked in one previous Series. It is the first for Brinkman and Pulli.

Haller will be at first base for the opener, with Kibler covering second, Springstead third, Pulli on the left field line and Brinkman on the right field line.

This will be the third Series for Vargo, a 19-year veteran, and Haller, an umpire of more than 17 years.

Kibler and Springstead have worked in one previous Series. It is the first for Brinkman and Pulli.

Sailmaker clinches soling title GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Hans Fogh, a Toronto sailmaker, won both races on Long Island Sound off Indian Harbor Yacht Club for the second day in a row Sunday and clinched the Atlantic Coast championship of the Soling Class with one race still to be sailed in the series. — If the final race of the series can be sailed Monday, each skipper will be allowed to discard his lowest finish so that Fogh mathematically finishes with a perfect record. — Peter Galloway of Noroton, Conn., had 28.4 points under the Olympic scoring system, against zero points for Fogh, and Peter Hall of Toronto followed with 29. — Dr. Stuart Walker of Baltimore, Md., followed with 36 and last year's winner, Dave Curtis of Marblehead, Mass., had 39.4. Although he was disqualified from Sunday's first race, after placing fifth, following a protest hearing, Sam Merrick of Annapolis, Md., remained in contention for runner-up with 37 points for his three races. — The soling is a 27½-foot Olympic class, three-man keel boat.

Books stereotype aging

NEW YORK (AP) — Books written for children create the stereotype perception of the elderly as passive, incompetent and sickly, according to Human Nature, a science magazine.

against age discrimination, the portrayal of the elderly in children's books has not changed substantially in more than 20 years. The finding was reported by Phyllis Barnum, a doctoral candidate in educational psychology at the University of Chicago.

Ms. Barnum's conclusions were reached in a study of 100 books written for children from preschool through the first grade.

Artist uses lots of chalk

By RICK WEINBERG

BOSTON (AP) — Bob Gullemin can go through more chalk on one work of art that most school teachers do in their entire blackboard careers.

When last seen in Boston, Gullemin was putting the finishing touches on a giant chalk copy of Renoir's "Shepherd's Boy," drawn on the sidewalk in front of a bank in the downtown Government Center area.

Recently, he finished what he calls the world's largest sidewalk chalk painting in Boston's Copley Square. He used 60 pounds of red, white and blue chalk, flown in from New York City, for the giant bull's eye and let-

Enter a quiet room with plush carpeting, a brick wall, floor-to-ceiling windows, plants growing along one side, and art objects tastefully displayed. The atmosphere encourages unhurried viewing and selection; the place is Classic Collectibles, a new gallery at 1903 McDonald, off Andrews Highway.

Note the metal sculptures, exquisite oil miniatures, the graphics. Somewhat unusual are the etchings on copper, most of which are high fidelity likenesses of wild life, with attractive rustic frames of weathered wood. Teri Sodd drawings on leather done by burning tool, stretched over wood, are there as are some of her fine pastels. Framed batik pictures by Martha Gowan of Clouderoft are interesting, anglicized versions of the oriental print.

Resting on a round oak table are several pieces of scrimshaw wrought by a University of Texas student with dental tools. These articles of jewelry are fashioned of cross sections of elephant tusk, and are sure to become very rare as the supply of that material is diminishing. They are beautiful as well.

his most recent chalk painting for "Awareness Day," which was sponsored by a recent convention in Boston.

The painting took 240 hours to complete. "That's either 10 straight days," he figured, "or 30 eight-hour days."

"I've been doing this thing in Amsterdam, Paris and London," said Gullemin "but there's nothing like doing it here. It's great when you can bind the talents of the artist with another group of people, like we've done here for a social purpose.

"Art to me," he said, "is too much the province of professionalism, being inside libraries. I want it to be more com-
