Idi Amin threatens anti-America action

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin said today that very soon he is going to make "a very drastic and serious decision on America or anyone connected with America" because of the U.S. ban on trade with Uganda over human rights violations.

There was no immediate indication what moves are planned by Amin, whose remarks were carried by Uganda Radio. But in February 1977, Amin barred all Americans from leaving Uganda for several days following President Carter's criticism of "horrible murders" in the country.

Vance delivers Carter's best wishes

CLEVELAND (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said he didn't discuss the Camp David accord between Egypt and Israel with convalescing Saudi Arabia's King Khaled, but did talk about the cease fire in Lebanon with the Saudi defense minister, Prince Sultan.

Vance, who spent about two hours here Wednesday before flying back to Washington, said he brought only "the president's best wishes" to the ailing monarch.

VA agrees to act on Agent Orange

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration says it will provide medical treatment for any Vietnam War veteran who says he's suffering ill effects from the herbicide Agent Orange.

VA officials said Wednesday the government has begun a broad research program to learn whether veterans might suffer long term health effects from the herbicide, used to defoliate Vietnamese jungle areas that sheltered enemy troops.

U.S. OKs Russian grain deal increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, anxious to sell off huge supplies of wheat and corn, has given the Soviet Union approval to increase its American grain purchases.

However, the Soviets gave no immediate indication Wednesday whether they planned any grain buys above the minimum they are required to make under a purchase agreement now in its third year.

Austrian newsman expelled by Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Erhard Hutter, the only Austrian correspondent in the Soviet Union, left for Vienna today after Soviet authorities withdrew his visa in a move that amounted to expulsion, an Austrian diplomat said.

The 41-year-old newsman, who reported for Austrian radio and television in Moscow for almost seven years, will join his Russian wife, who went to Vienna last week.

Janeway predicts fiscal disaster

By ED TODD
R-T Staff Writer

The nation is in an economic, inflationary "mess."

The world is on the verge of a depression that would make the Great Depression of 1929 look like a "prosperous lawn party."

U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and former Texas Gov. John Connally likely will be the presidential candidates battling for the White House in 1980. President Jimmy Carter is out.

"And anyone can make a difference" in the state of the nation by writing his congressman in Washington, D.C., but this must be done by "lots" of people.

Such were the comments and forecasts of controversial New York political economist Eliot Janeway. He was in Midland Wednesday to talk economics and politics with city businessmen.

Janeway, 65, deems himself a "policy engineer."

He has been a financial adviser to presidents, senators, congressmen and industrial leaders for more than 40 years. Janeway said he has advised "all of them (presidents) from Hoover on, and that includes Khrushchev."

"This country cannot have any troubles bothering it that are not self-inflicted," said Janeway, who warned of the economic takeover of the United States by the more economically aggressive foreign powers.

Janeway, addressing a full house in the Midland Hilton ballroom, said "the world is waiting for some signal that we have snapped out of our fit of amnesia.

Janeway described the dollar as "a hydrant at an international convention of dogs."

"Our problem is not a problem of policy. Our problem is one of stance."

said Janeway, who calls himself an "internationalist."

"I'm happy for America to keep giving, but I want America to start getting what it gives."

Janeway blamed runaway inflation on the unchecked rate of interest and a discouraged speculation on the stock market. He said the U.S. must exercise more clout among world powers.

He said this country needs to "keep the others off balance in time to save the world from a depression. You

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

The jack rabbit is not a rabbit but a hare.

The hare is not a rabbit. The rabbit is not a hare.

And the hare is not always a jack rabbit.

That may seem like something Monty Python might drum up out of the London fog on an uneventful day.

Perhaps it's like saying a mule is neither a mare nor a jackass, although the "beast of burden" sprang from the mating of the two.

More of the same. Mate a stallion with a jenny, and the offspring will be a hinny. But the hybrid hinny is not a mule; it's a whinny hinny and, unlike the braying mule, the hinny is not the "workhorse" the mule is.

All of the foregoing may seem to be verbal hopscotch. But life sometimes drifts toward the absurd, and that's all right.

Back to the bunnies. Rabbits hop about, make game for junior trying out his new shotgun, munch and nibble at their wild plate of vegetables, grain, leaves, twigs, bark and weeds without always finishing it, and turn out to be fair game for preying coyotes, eagles, hawks, dogs, jackals, snakes and man.

The hare thumps and bounds in quicker leaps than the kangaroo, skeddaddles like a scared cat and has been put into American literature in Lewis Carroll's "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland."

Texas offered WIPP approval

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Energy Secretary James Schlesinger has offered assurances that an underground nuclear waste disposal facility will not be constructed in the state without the "concurrence" of Texas.

Schlesinger, however, today said the Department of Energy would not support "specific legislation to ensure state veto authority," nor does the agency believe state prohibition of radioactive waste transportation "is justified or desirable."

The promise was contained in a letter from Schlesinger to Attorney General John Hill, released simultaneously in Dallas and Austin today.

The letter from the DOE secretary was in response to an Aug. 29 message from Hill asking Schlesinger for "formal assurances that DOE will afford Texas a right of veto over any decisions to dispose of nuclear waste in Texas or to transport them through the state."

While the letter from Schlesinger said the state will be given concurrent authority over construction of a nuclear waste disposal facility, officials here are regarding DOE's response with caution.

Schlesinger's reply can be considered only a promise of "limited veto power," at best, state authorities said in reaction to the letter.

In Schlesinger's letter, the secretary said DOE knows of no "specific proposal" for waste disposal in Texas.

"I want to assure you it is the department's view that any proposal to locate a nuclear waste geologic disposal facility within the state of Texas will occur only following extensive consultation with the state and that any such facility would be constructed only with the concurrence of the state," Schlesinger wrote.

But he added that "we do not believe that specific legislation to ensure state veto authority is necessary. We feel that such legislation would be too rigid to permit the flexibility required to deal with the specific concerns of the states in this very important area."

Schlesinger noted that federal-state relations in regard to the locating of nuclear waste repositories are a matter under consideration by the so-called Interagency Review Group on Nuclear Waste Management.

The IRG, Schlesinger said, will include recommendations on the issue of state authority over federal nuclear waste disposal sites in the group's report to President Carter late this year.

The secretary also stressed that the Department of Transportation is considering whether additional rules pertaining to routes for the highway transportation of radioactive waste materials are "advisable."

"We do not believe that prohibition by individual states of the transportation of radioactive waste material is justified or desirable," Schlesinger wrote.

"Unilateral local action in the field of transportation safety always carries with it the possibility... (that the

Carter readies tax cut fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is making a last-minute plea to Congress to hold down the size of next year's tax cut, as Republicans launch a final attempt to assure additional cuts in 1980 and beyond.

Carter arranged a meeting today with Sen. Russell B. Long and Rep. Al Ullman to spell out how their Senate-House conference committee could tailor the tax bill more to his liking.

Meanwhile, Republicans were asking the House to instruct its members on a conference committee to endorse a Senate provision that would reduce taxes in 1980 through 1983 by an extra $164.5 billion if the growth of government spending is limited.

When the House was debating next year's budget on Aug. 16, a similar proposal failed by only five votes.

Now, with the congressional elections less than four weeks away, outnumbered Republicans are hoping to gain enough strength from Democrats to ensure that the Senate measure — with its combination of tax cuts, spending cuts and promise of a balanced budget — will be retained by the conference committee.

Carter, viewing an economy struggling against inflation and unemployment, is said to oppose any action that would lock in tax cuts beyond 1979.

Carter also says he thinks the Senate's proposed $29.3 billion tax cut for 1979 is too big. All of the tax cuts contained in the bill for 1979 would come into play on individual income tax returns filed in early 1980.

Carter says both the Senate measure and the $16.3 billion version

By NIKKI FINKE

MOSCOW (AP) — Some Russians still place small bunches of flowers on his grave, but time has not been kind to Nikita S. Khrushchev, deposed by colleagues in the Communist Party 14 years ago this weekend.

Visitors to the grave in a corner of Novodevichy Cemetery are quick to move on, almost embarrassed to be seen at the gravesite of the former premier and party chief, whose memory has been tarnished and left bereft of all official tribute.

"The only thing I can say is that he left no one indifferent," Khrushchev's computer-engineer son, Sergei, said at his father's simple funeral in 1971. "There are people who love him, and people who hate him, but no one can pass him by without turning to look."

Khrushchev's widow, Nina Patrova, now 78, lives on a small pension in a villa outside of Moscow. Their daughter, Rada, is still deputy editor-in-chief of the magazine Science and Life, the job she held when the other leaders of the party met secretly in Moscow on Oct. 14, 1964, to purge her father while he was vacationing on the Black Sea.

Khrushchev had been first secretary of the party since 1953 and premier since 1958. Leonid I. Brezhnev succeeded him as party chief and now has been in power three years longer than his predecessor lasted. The purged leader died in peaceful obscurity seven years ago at the age of 77.

Khrushchev's de-Stalinization program three years after the death of Josef Stalin in 1953 deserves remembrance from the historians, Soviet intellectuals say.

He dismantled Stalin's regime of terror, which took an estimated 80 million lives through executions, concentration camps and famine resulting from botched agricultural planning. At a party congress in 1956 he denounced the old dictator and his despotism, and de-Stalinization spread to the rest of the Soviet Bloc.

"For that alone, the country should forgive him," one intellectual said.

But many Russians are slow to remember Khrushchev's achievements and quick to recall his failures.

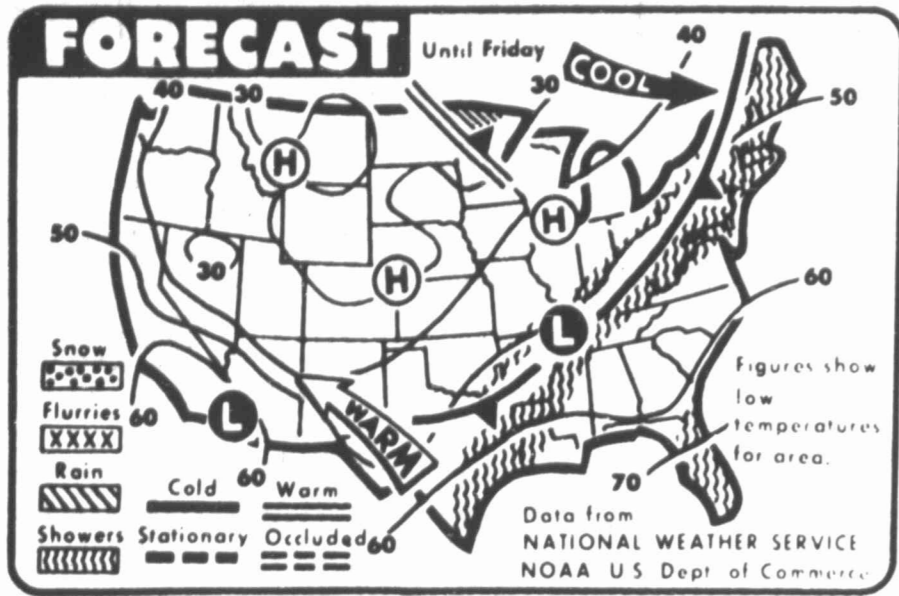

"Khrushchev?" replied one woman when asked her feelings toward him. "That was the guy who wanted to plant corn everywhere, and then everything went to hell."

Most persons interviewed recalled him with a certain air of contempt, a man full of "hare-brained schemes" that never worked out.

Agriculture was his main domestic concern, and his campaigns to force farmers into unprofitable corn growing were bitterly resented. When he moved in, Brezhnev put the emphasis back on wheat and other traditional grain crops.

Fair skies and Indian Summer temperatures prevailed over most of Texas today, but cooler weather was on the way.

Quiet, clear and very pleasant conditions prevailed over the state during the night. Very cool pockets of air settled over the high valleys of Southwest Texas, but warm temperatures were the rule elsewhere.

Low clouds developed over several south central locations early this morning and there were patches of fog scattered in South Texas.

Fair and warm weather was forecast to continue across most of the state today, with afternoon high temperatures reaching into the 80s and 90s.

Carter, Congress argue tax cuts passed by the House are much too generous to the high-income investors who would benefit most from a big cut in capital gains taxes.

Republicans, who pressed hardest for a bigger tax cut and more for investors, have a different idea.

Their favorite tax-cut plan, the Kemp-Roth proposal for a one-third cut in individual tax rates over a three-year period, was rejected by the House and Senate.

Now they are claiming as their own the Senate amendment, sponsored by a bipartisan coalition headed by Democrat Sam Nunn of Georgia, which would allow multi-year tax cuts if, and only if, Congress can sharply reduce the growth of federal spending.

"The Senate has adopted the essential elements of Republican tax policy," Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said at a news conference Wednesday.

Opponents of the Nunn proposal say it would tie the hands of Congress and make it more difficult to stimulate the economy in times of recession and slow it down when inflation threatens.

When coupled with the Senate-passed tax cuts for 1979, the Nunn amendment would provide individual reductions averaging about 25 percent over the next five years.

The Nunn amendment is only one of many problems facing the Senate and House conferees as they try to piece together a tax cut that will be acceptable to all sides and allow Congress to adjourn for the year on Saturday.

The Senate bill would provide larger 1979 tax reductions for individuals, investors and businesses than would the House version.

Senators also voted special new tax relief for the elderly and the working poor, and delayed for two years the onset of a 1976 law increasing taxes on inherited property — an item of considerable controversy.

Also attached to the Senate bill, but missing from the House version, are a handful of welfare provisions and several items of tax relief that would affect relatively few persons.

These beneficiaries range from Michigan cattlemen whose herds were contaminated with the chemical PBB to a dozen big brokers who would benefit from a change in the tax rules affecting industrial development bonds.

Big Spring youth, 10, hospitalized

BIG SPRING — A 10-year-old Big Spring boy was under observation in Malone-Hogan Hospital here early today with head lacerations he received in a traffic accident Wednesday.

Marty Deanda received the injuries late Wednesday afternoon when the bicycle he was riding and a car collided at the intersection of 9th and Bell streets here, said a Big Spring Police Department spokesman.

Officers said Lupe Fierro, 27, also of Big Spring, was driving the car. Fierro was unhurt, officers said.

learn to play the game like professionals, and you are not in trouble."

He suggested the U.S. capitalize on uranium, which fuels nuclear power plants and is many times more valuable than gold. Radioactive minerals should be used for bartering to regain world stature and heal the ailing dollar, he said.

"Everybody except us knows we need nuclear power," he said.

Janeway described the dollar as "a hydrant at an international convention of dogs."

He said the Eurodollar is about "800 billion strawberries" strong and that "the Russians are cloning Eurodollars."

"The Communists know more about capitalism than capitalists. They know how to practice Communism in a capitalistic way better than we know how to count marbles."

In the world power struggle, governments are the negotiators.

"Your government is your bargaining agent in dealing with other governments," he said.

Janeway said it is a pipedream that U.S. deficit spending will diminish.

"The deficit is here, as our Lord said about the poor... (They're always with you). Don't waste any time letting anyone tell you government spending is coming down," Janeway said.

"Government spending, as a practical matter, cannot come down."

"The government has as much right to go broke as Republic Steel does. If corporations can go broke, governments can," Janeway said.

"Only ostriches will talk about reducing the level of government spending."

To help strengthen the dollar, Janeway suggested that President Carter call a world "financial summit" in January.

"All I know is that you're able to do it if you're not scared."

But Janeway said he has little faith in Carter's ability to govern or to check inflation. Since Carter has been in office, his attitude has been to "let Congress bring more bills (for him) to veto," Janeway said.

Carter, he said, is on the "FF kick"

(fight and fold), although his wife Rosalynn is the stronger of the two and pushes him to govern.

"The measure of Carter's incompetence is that he had trouble beating Ford."

He said then President Gerald Ford in 1976 might have won the election, but he "was too dumb to contest" the New York write-in vote. "Ford couldn't cut the mustard," Janeway said.

Edward Kennedy probably will pick up the Democratic Party's nomination for president. "Kennedy... is a horse that wants to run," and he wants the nomination... "wants it bad. He always wanted it between elections."

"There's no way he (Kennedy) can have it if Carter does well," but Janeway said he doesn't expect that.

He described Kennedy as the "toughest" and the "shrewdest" of the other Kennedy brothers — the late President John Kennedy and the late presidential aspirant Robert Kennedy.

"He (Edward Kennedy) is a professional politician. He knows how to manipulate the media, and this is a media society."

On the Republican side, Democrat-turned-Republican John Connally is "the only professional (politician) of the (GOP) lot" and is Janeway's pick of eight possible GOP presidential candidates, including George H.W. Bush, Howard Baker, Robert J. Dole and former President Ford.

"The most formidable candidate, if he can remember what he's doing, is Connally," Janeway noted. He said GOP conservative Ronald Reagan has labeled Connally as "a man without a country" and that labeling may be to Connally's advantage.

Regardless of who wins presidential, congressional and senatorial races, "there are no good men," said Janeway. "There are only necessary evils, and the president is the worst."

"There's nothing I can do (to turn around the government). There's nothing you can do," Janeway said, "unless a lot of people do it."

He was referring to exerting pressure on the power structure by way of letters and telephone calls.

He alluded to the power of the press and broadcast media.

"In a media society, the media have sources. And the (primary) source is the government," Janeway said.

"As Sam Rayburn (late speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives) would have said, '...the government is the attention grabber of society.'"

Janeway's visit with Midland's men and women in financial circles was sponsored by the HBF Corp., Faudree Ranches and Shearson Hayden Stone, Inc., brokers. HBF President Larry Bell emceed the session.

At the onset of his talk, Janeway turned to Harriett P. Faudree, owner of Faudree Ranches and a follower of his writings in books and newsletters.

"We need more money like yours — working money — that knows the difference between seeds and blossoms and treasury bills," Janeway said.

eral Assembly in New York in 1960 by pounding on the table with his shoe.

"It was the most embarrassing thing he could have done," said one Muscovite. "He was, in many ways, a crude man, and we Russians don't appreciate crudeness in our leaders."

Yet it was that very earthy quality that Soviet intellectuals point to when they say he was more sympathetic than the present leaders. He was certainly visible, appearing often in public and talking the ear off anyone who came close enough to listen.

Khrushchev also had a lasting effect on Soviet foreign policy. He marked out the current anti-China course that Brezhnev has carried out. And he initiated the policy of detente by touring the United States and meeting with President Eisenhower to seek peaceful coexistence, even though the idea didn't gather steam until the late 1960s.

like ears, blends in with the desert countryside, gets hunted by greyhounds and was "prized" by Plains Indians for food and fur.

But to the white man, or so claims the plaque, the jack rabbit was a reminder of the desert, of the "hard life." The hare was a source of meat "for thousands" during the drought and Depression.

Too, the leaping jack rabbit was and is the subject of "tall tales." Some, perhaps recalling Texas tales of jack rabbits getting as big as horses, actually tried to rope the critter in a rodeo in Odessa in 1932.

Maybe the roped critters were for the pot, for on the back of the historical marker honoring the critter is a jack rabbit recipe:

"First, catch your rabbit. Dress rabbit, salt and soak in brine, then boil until tender. Add pepper to taste, fill pot with dumplings. Cook till dough is done."

Though the recipe did say you should catch a rabbit before you skin and cook it, it didn't say what to do with the critter, exactly, after it's done cooked.

Fewer persons registered for November balloting

When the polls open Nov. 7, a total of 34,929 Midlanders will be eligible to cast ballots.

That may sound like a lot, but in October 1977 there were 39,854.

Midland County Voter Registration Deputy Janeice Bulita said today more than 1,000 of the almost 35,000 registered signed up last week, just in time to beat the deadline for being eligible to vote in November.

McCrary denies money offer talk

HOUSTON (AP) — David McCrary, in a loud and angry voice, denied today he had ever told anyone he had been offered a sum of money to turn against his former boss, Cullen Davis, Fort Worth millionaire facing charges in an alleged kill-for-hire plot.

McCrary, appearing at a pretrial hearing in the Davis case in which he is the prosecution's chief witness, told chief defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, "No, sir, I didn't tell anyone such a thing and if you got someone to say that it is a lie."

McCrary also said Davis had once told him he wanted his brother, Bill Davis, killed.

"He told me to find someone to kidnap his brother and take him to another state where he did some scuba diving and make it look like he drowned," McCrary said.

Testifying under strict security provided by deputy U.S. marshals, McCrary said he had taken federal witness protection and was receiving $950 a month for rent and food until the Davis trial is over.

He declined to answer any questions that might lead to discovery of his new residence.

Marshals said McCrary wanted no courtroom sketches or pictures taken.

State District Judge Wallace Moore is conducting the pretrial hearing on a change of venue from Fort Worth.

Defense attorneys have spent three days going through about 90 motions and indicated that, through McCrary, they might obtain the release of more evidence prepared by prosecutors.

Statewide 'news blackout' in effect on prison strike

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A statewide news blackout shrouds the Texas prison system today, leaving outsiders wondering about the status of a week-long hunger and work strike that has involved hundreds of inmates and triggered at least one shooting incident since last Thursday.

The no-news edict was issued Wednesday by Texas Department of Corrections Director W.J. Estelle as news agencies attempted to update their accounts.

Tuesday night the episode rang a tense note as prison officials put all but eight striking prisoners in their cells, some forcibly.

Prison spokesman Ron Taylor said officials had decided the protest had reached a "limit" after it reportedly spread to include half a dozen units of the prison system Tuesday.

Taylor said there had been no incidents of violence, but conceded that "some reasonable force" was used to return prisoners to their cells at the Coffield Unit near Palestine.

Late Tuesday night, Taylor said the strike was over "for today."

However, when reporters attempted to learn if the protest had resumed Wednesday morning, they were told Estelle had clamped a blackout on all information releases from the system.

Taylor read a prepared statement he said was "authorized" by Estelle, who for the most part has declined comment on the continuing strike.

Reading from the statement, Taylor said inmate actions have been "substantially diminished" over the past several days.

"While there remain problems and potential for problems, the situation appears to be easing and significantly improved. Throughout this time, the department has attempted to show its concern for the public right to know by actively responding to press inquiries," the statement said.

"However, it is the department's feeling that our primary responsibility to insure institutional order and the safety of inmates and staff has not been aided by our willingness to respond in detail to the various inquiries that have been made.

"Therefore the department will make no further statements regarding attempts by inmates to disrupt the programs and activities of the institutions until such time that those actions have been curtailed."

The striking prisoners say they are seeking publicity for a class action inmate suit being heard in Houston. That suit generally charges the TDC with inhumane treatment of prisoners.

Judge Moore told The Associated Press that he is no fortune teller and had no idea how many witnesses would be called to the stand but, "In my opinion now, I don't think the case can start Monday."

Moore had set Oct. 16 as the tentative date for the beginning of the trial.

"There is really no way of knowing now," the judge said, "but it doesn't look like a trial starting Monday."

The defense Wednesday continued to crack the credibility of tape recordings allegedly linking Davis to a plot to kill Fort Worth Judge Joe Eidsen. The judge had presided during the long and bitter divorce proceedings of Davis and his estranged wife Priscilla. Eidsen recently removed himself as the trial judge.

Moore already has ruled that the tapes may be admitted into evidence when the trial begins.

Chief defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes has insisted "there has been an ongoing effort to make some sort of case against Cullen Davis ever since he returned from Amarillo."

Davis, a 45-year-old industrialist, was acquitted in Amarillo late last year of capital murder in the slaying of his 12-year-old step-daughter.

Tolly Wilson said the defense was nothing more "than Haynes talk and was ridiculous."

Papal mourning period ends today

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The official mourning period for Pope John Paul I ends today as preparations for the election of his successor neared completion.

"Mourning time is over Thursday. The diocese of Rome, in communion with the whole Catholic Church, turns joyfully to waiting for its new bishop and pastor," Cardinal Ugo Poletti, the papal vicar for Rome, said.

Poletti ordered daily prayers for the cardinal electors and for the man who is to become the 264th pope "so that God, overcoming human weakness, may give him confidence and strength."

The Vatican Radio reported that workmen had virtually completed preparations for the lock-up area where the cardinals will retreat in seclusion Saturday evening. Voting begins Sunday.

A total of 112 bedrooms were prepared, ranging from spacious frescoed sections of the Vatican museums to narrow and barren rooms in the attic of the Apostolic Palace.

There are 112 cardinals eligible to vote in the conclave, but Boleslaw Filipiak of Poland announced that he was still confined to the hospital and could not attend. Illness also kept him away from the conclave that elected John Paul on Aug. 26.

Another ailing absentee from the August conclave, Cardinal John J. Wright of the United States, is present for this one.

After hearing a report at their daily meeting Wednesday, the cardinals issued a statement saying that "services had been noticeably improved in order to make the stay of the cardinals in the conclave less uncomfortable." No specifics were given.

The cardinals rejected a request from the press corps to inform the press room by telephone when the new pope is elected rather than leaving the journalists dependent on the often-confusing smoke signals from the stove in which the ballots are burned.

Bombs explode on train in outskirts of Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A series of bombs ripped through a Dublin-to-Belfast passenger train this morning on the outskirts of Belfast, killing one person and seriously injuring three others, police said.

The train, carrying about 132 passengers including Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, was approaching Botanic Station about two miles from the center of Belfast when the first of three bombs went off, damaging four of the seven passenger coaches, police said.

Lord Killanin, 64, who lives in Dublin, was on his way to Belfast to attend a bank directors' meeting. He was not injured.

"There was panic when the first bomb went off," said George Brown, a passenger. "People attempted to jump out and the train careened 300 yards past the station."

A game of 'I Spy'

Seventeen years after American spy satellites began photographing Soviet military installations, President Carter, in his speech at Cape Canaveral, became the first president to acknowledge the fact formally. This ostentatious admission that has long been an open secret begs an explanation.

Mr. Carter could not simply have been seeking to put the Russians on their best behavior. The satellite spy business is a two-way street and the Soviet satellite program surely gives the Russians a good idea of our capabilities.

Nor could the president's revelation have had much impact in the Senate, where knowledge of the importance of satellite reconnaissance is long established.

The most reasonable explanation, therefore, is that President Carter sought to allay public doubts about the wisdom of a new strategic arms limitation agreement by suggesting that satellite photography would keep the Russians honest.

To be sure, satellite reconnaissance is essential to the SALT verification process. Without it, strategic arms limitation agreements with the Russians would be impossible.

But as Mr. Carter undoubtedly knows, spy satellites have inherent limitations. Their photographs cannot reveal a missile's range or how many separate nuclear warheads are packed into its nose. They cannot directly determine the accuracy of a missile. They can probably be fooled by sophisticated camouflage and they certainly cannot peek inside Soviet laboratories and missile factories to determine that weapons prohibited by a SALT treaty are not in fact under development.

It's apparent then that the next SALT agreement must rest as much on shared Soviet-American objectives of mutual security as on unilateral verification techniques.

What worries many Americans is a growing fear that mutual security may be a goal honored only in Washington. Six years after ratification of the first SALT agreements, the Soviets seem no less determined to forge ahead with military programs that would give them strategic superiority. They also seem to believe that a nuclear war might some day be waged — and won — by the Soviet Union.

By contrast, the United States has long since renounced in word and deed any effort to obtain superiority in arms over the Soviets. And Washington's nuclear strategy remains rooted in deterrence with little thought to survivability if deterrence fails.

The point is this: as vital as will be the debate over this country's ability to verify Soviet compliance with terms of a new SALT treaty, its prospects for ratification will likely depend as well on a more general assessment of the Soviet Union's ultimate political and military goals.

Many Americans already suspect, not without reason, that a country determined to cheat on treaty limits might do so despite satellite photography.

In persuading the American people that a SALT II treaty is in their best interests, President Carter will have to do more than publicly acknowledge that American satellites take photographs of Russian missiles.

Stuffing, indeed

The potato growers of the nation are beginning to fight back. They're angry over those television commercials of husbands choosing stuffing over mashed potatoes.

You know the one. The wife appears before the TV camera and predicts her husband will pick mashed potatoes over stuffing and then he comes on the tube and votes for stuffing.

Fed up to the ears with the scene, The National Potato Promotion Board has decided to launch a counterattack.

Currently the potato board is running an advertisement that states potatoes have a third the daily vitamin C requirement for adults and that stuffing has none.

The whole thing sounds like stuff and nonsense.

Black juries can be as sophisticated as any other

WASHINGTON — During the most acrimonious sessions of the Watergate trials, some defenders of the Nixon gang complained that the accused whites couldn't get a fair hearing from the predominantly black juries because of Nixon's unpopularity with citizens of that hue.

In a word, black jurors could not be trusted to make dispassionate judgments if there was any racial aspect in the case. A fair number of people in this town have made the same cynical observation over the years, and some courtroom lawyers have indulged in racial grandstanding.

But now both the complaint and the observation have lost considerable water. It was a predominantly black jury, hearing testimony for black witnesses, which found the Republic's senior black Congressman, Charles C. Diggs Jr., guilty of 29 counts of mail fraud and criminally diverting salary money of his congressional employees to pay his own bills.

Diggs' lawyers and outside-the-courtroom defenders certainly tried to go the racial route. Outside the courtroom, various black "leaders" were heard to say, what a shame for all blacks if Diggs, founder of the Black Caucus and Chairman of the House District Committee and the Subcommittee on Africa, goes down the tube. Inside, Diggs' lawyers produced black luminaries (Andrew Young, Coretta Scott King, Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, D.C. Delegate Walter Fauntroy and the Rev. Jesse Jackson) to testify to the high integrity and honesty of the accused.

But the 11 black jurors (there was one white) wouldn't buy it. "He was playing on people's sympathy, bringing in black leaders," Lavenia M. Williams, a black juror told the Washington Star's Gloria Berger. "During the trial there was always an emphasis on his being black. They didn't have to make it so obvious. It irritated me."

The jury foreman, a black, said this of Andy Young & Co.: "Even though they were famous black Americans, they simply were character witnesses and knew nothing of the issues in the case... If Diggs had done wrong, they would be the last to know... I made my decision based on the weight of evidence. I didn't consider whether I was harming a black leader."

The single question in the case was, as the prosecutor argued, did Diggs devise a scheme to defraud the United States? He evidently did. Three black congressional employees of Diggs testified that he inflated their salaries so that they could pay his personal bills and some congressional expenses.

Another witness, black, testified she was put on Diggs' payroll with the understanding that she would spend about 80 percent of her time trying to collect bills owed Diggs' funeral home. Then there was George Johnson, also black, a Detroit accountant, who testified that Diggs repaid money he owed Johnson by putting him on a congressional payroll, and not requiring him to work for it.

The explanation for all this payroll hanky-panky was that Diggs was ho-

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Mafia aides use pension funds

BY JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — To the Machiavellian bosses of the underworld, the valued currency is not money, but power; the price of failure is not bankruptcy, but death.

However, the supposedly legitimate businessmen who front for the Mob are cut from a different piece of cloth. It's the bait of easy money and high living that lures them into the fringes of the Mafia. That is as far as they go; they never reach the inner circle of ultimate gangland power.

Nevertheless, the respectable front men pose as serious a threat to society as the hoodlums they represent. They loot public corporations, endanger the actuarial soundness of the union pension funds they borrow from, and evade millions of dollars in taxes.

A team of federal investigators in Las Vegas is now trying to prove that Allen Glick, a real estate and casino tycoon, is just such a front man for Anthony "Tony the Ant" Spilotro, the most feared gangster in Glitter City. Overnight, Glick created a casino and hotel empire on the strength of loans from the Teamsters Union Central States Pension Fund in Chicago.

Glick's activities as head of the Argent Corporation, which operates the Stardust and Fremont hotels-casinos, have come under scrutiny by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The SEC charged in a complaint that Glick, using fictitious names, forced Argent to grant him $317,500 in inside loans, which he used to pay off personal debts, to remodel his home and to maintain his luxurious life-style.

But a federal judge refused to grant the SEC lawyers an injunction to curtail these transactions. He ruled that Glick posed only a potential, not an actual, threat to Argent's financial health.

Although Argent defaulted on a pension fund loan and lost $10,652,000 between 1974 and 1976, the corporation is now doing well. SEC sources told us the casino-hotels are profitable enough now to withstand Glick's alleged shenanigans.

Glick clearly owes his phenomenal success to the Teamsters' pension fund. He once, for example, received a $62.7 million loan from the Central States Pension Fund within nine days of his application — without even submitting a personal financial statement.

The Justice Department has spent vast amounts of money and manpower investigating Glick. At one point, according to secret intelligence reports, they thought he had hit pay dirt: Tamara Rand, an aide to Glick and a reputed courier for the Mob, had a falling-out with her boss and was threatening to tell federal agents everything she knew. But she was executed, gangland-style, before she could talk. The G-men are still investigating her murder.

ART BUCHWALD
Jingle bells, jingle bells and Christmas tree bills

WASHINGTON — You've probably heard of a Christmas tree bill but you are not sure exactly what it is. This is how it works.

Traditionally, Congress celebrates Christmas two months before the rest of the country, by passing out presents to its constituents in the closing weeks of its fall session. This is a time when everyone is anxious to get home, and no one is paying too much attention to what someone wants to add on to a bill. The wiser senators and congressmen always wait until the last minute before they add their own decorations, hoping no one will challenge them in debate.

Let us say Cong. Goodfeeling proposes a bill to make Columbus an honorary citizen of this country because he discovered America.

Cong. Glucose rises to his feet and says, "I am in full agreement with this bill which honors one of the greatest men in history, and I wish to show our appreciation for everything Columbus has done, we vote $6 billion for the building of a new nuclear aircraft carrier," to be called the "Santa Maria."

Cong. Hogtiddle says, "I will accept the amendment, but it seems to me that we could do this explorer greater honor if we lowered the present capital gains tax to 25 percent, so business will have an incentive to invest in this great continent that Columbus opened up to Western civilization."

Art Buchwald

"Are you proposing this in the form of amendment?"

"I am."

"Mr. Speaker," a congressman from Texas says, "when we speak of Columbus, we must not forget some other great explorers. I am talking of the men who drill for oil and gas and who are risking their lives and fortunes to find new sources of energy. I would like to add an amendment to the Columbus bill, taking all restrictions off the price of crude oil and gas, so that our modern-day explorers can make this country the great industrial empire Columbus dreamed it would someday be."

"Are there any other amendments?"

"Mr. Speaker, as you know I come from the state of Ohio. Our capital is named after this great man. The Ohio State football team plays all its home games there. I would like to offer my own amendment in keeping with the spirit of this excellent bill. My amendment calls for immediate tariffs on imported steel, as well as automobiles and soybeans. We cannot compete in the marketplace when Europe and Japan are constantly underpricing our product. If Columbus were alive he would be the first to criticize this unfair competition."

"Are there any seconds?"

"I second the motion, Mr. Speaker, and wish to add an amendment of my own. The EPA has just ruled that the Spangle-Hanger Co., which is in my district, must either clean up the pollution in the Spangle River or close down. My amendment asks that the Spangle Hanger Co. be given an extension of 20 years to comply with this order."

"What has this got to do with Columbus?"

"All those in favor says 'Aye.'"

"Aye."

"All those against?"

(Silence)

"The 'Ayes' have it. Making Columbus a citizen is one bill that even the President wouldn't dare veto."

MCAA gets favorable comment on grant to fund weatherization

Midland Community Action Agency received a favorable comment Wednesday on a grant application to fund an Emergency Energy Conservation Program during the board meeting of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

Albert Jones, coordinator, said the money would fund the second year of the weatherization program which also covers Midland, Loving, Ward, Winkler and Reeves counties.

Federal funding would be $49,003 with a local match of $11,136. The project is for 12 months.

The various counties were included in the one application, Jones said, because it would be easier to get the one approved instead of several small ones.

Materials are purchased in the county where they will be used, and manpower also comes from that county, he said. Last year they encountered problems in finding enough manpower in some of the counties to complete the program.

Midland County Judge Blake Hansen had given the project a favorable comment while Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. gave it a "not unfavorable" comment.

The MidTran Enabling Study received a favorable comment from the board. John Van Veem explained it is not a grant application, but a comprehensive plan to be adopted as part of the commission's mass transportation plan.

The board's approval was needed before sending the plan to the Urban Mass Transit Administration for funding.

A grant application to update the Airport Master Plan for Midland Regional Airport received favorable comment. Van Veem said the application is for $48,016 in federal funds with $12,004 coming from the applicant. This will give $60,020 for the study.

The last study done in 1974 already is out of date, according to Van Veem. The projected boardings for 1994 already have been surpassed this year, he added.

Pecos County Community Action Agency received approval on its application for funding of an Emergency Energy Conservation Program in weatherization.

The board also gave favorable comment on a grant application for two high speed teletype machines for the city of Crane Police Department and Pecos County Sheriff's Department and an application to continue funding the Ector County Youth Center's Regional Juvenile Rehabilitation Program.

Richard Kleinhans with the criminal justice division of PBRPC told the board additional funds were available for needed projects. The board gave favorable comments for projects in the law enforcement and courts areas.

Ex-cons have job mart

BOSTON (AP) — On this day, the fashionable and rich had to share the Copley Plaza's opulence with job-hunting prison inmates and ex-convicts in T-shirts and denims.

The Boston hotel was host Wednesday to the fifth annual Job Mart for Ex-Offenders, and at least 72 present and former convicts were hired on the spot, while scores more lined up interviews they hoped would land them future jobs.

"They know they're not getting angels," said Ed Gallagher, head of the state Department of Correction's manpower office.

Mismanagement charges leveled at hiring group

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Charges of general administrative and fiscal mismanagement have been leveled at a Texas agency that finds jobs for American Indians, according to a Department of Labor spokesman.

Pete Homer of the DOL's Indian Affairs Division told the Lufkin News in a telephone interview Tuesday that the "verbal complaint" was made against Indian Employment Training Services Inc. of Houston.

Homer said he did not mention the complaint in an earlier interview with the newspaper because it was not written.

Ward Phelan, executive director of IETS, told The News his agency has until Thursday to answer the complaint allegedly made by a leader of a Houston-Gulf Coast area Indian group.

However, Edmund Post Oak of the Intertribal Council in Houston said he hasn't complained about IETS to anyone in Washington.

"No one's asked me about IETS' service. I can't tell them anything about the IETS' services — we haven't gotten any," Post Oak said.

He said his board of directors has shown no interest in affiliating with IETS, though Phelan said the agency works closely with the Intertribal Council.

U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, said he was disappointed with action taken by DOL officials to correct a disparity in the hiring of Alabama-Coushatta Indians by Comprehensive Employment Training Act programs.

Wilson said in view of national CETA scandals, he was disappointed the DOL hasn't shown more interest in the East Texas situation.

He said he is not pointing the finger at any specific wrongdoing, "but the disparity of hiring between the Alabama-Coushatta and Tiguas was basis enough for DOL to be very curious as to what problems are."

Homer said the DOL did not find the wide disparity in the number of CETA workers claimed by the Alabama-Coushatta, and said part of the problem stemmed from improper paperwork and lack of eligible applicants.

Wilson countered, "The Alabama-Coushatta Indians should not be short-changed because they haven't developed the bureaucratic expertise others have."

The IETS and the Alabama-Coushattas met in Dallas two weeks ago to resolve basic differences, but former employees and other sources have mentioned high administrative costs as a side issue.

According to the June financial report, the agency had overspent its travel allowance with three months remaining in the fiscal year.

Phelan said the over-spending resulted when two additional persons were allotted money from the fund.

Three-martini tax deduction ban runs into hopeless odds

By DAVID ESPO

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter did battle this year against the three-martini lunch. He never had a chance. The Senate approved a bill Tuesday calling for about $29.3 billion in income tax cuts for individuals and corporations, but making only minor changes in the tax deductions businessmen are allowed to take for entertainment. Businessmen can take associates or customers to lunch, dinner or the theater and claim a tax deduction for their company, claiming the event was a necessary and ordinary part of conducting business.

"I don't care how many martinis anyone has with his lunch," Carter declared at a news conference in Cranston, R.I., on Feb. 17, "but I am concerned about who picks up the check. I don't think a relatively small minority has some sort of divine right to have expensive meals, free theater tickets, country club dues and sporting events tickets paid for by higher taxes on everybody else," the president said then. His tax proposals, sent to Congress in January, would have permitted a businessman to deduct only half the cost of a meal. They would have disallowed tax deductions for all entertainment ac-ivities and facilities, items such as country club dues, cruises, visits to hunting lodges and tickets to baseball and football games. And instead of permitting a deduction for the entire cost of business-related air fare, it would have limited the break to the cost of regular air fare. The House Ways and Means Committee dismissed the proposals, along with other Carter administration-proposed "reforms," before sending the tax cut bill to the House floor, where the issue never came up. In the Senate, the Finance Committee voted to deny tax deductions in the future for entertainment facilities such as yachts, hunting lodges, fishing camps and swimming pools. But it left untouched other provisions the administration objected to, including the meal deduction. When the measure reached the floor of the Senate, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., tried first to attach a provision that would eventually have ended a deduction for half of a business meal. That proposal was tabled, and thus killed, 49-9. Then, Kennedy tried a three-part proposal to deny deductions for sporting events and entertainment, limit the deduction for business meals to $25 per person per meal and restrict deductions for travel to coach fare. The vote was 70-22 against him.

Beirut's Armenians war's innocent victims

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The plight of Beirut's Armenian community, sandwiched between Syrian and Christian guns in Lebanon's latest bloodletting, proves once again the validity of the maxim that innocent civilians are war's greatest victims.

Beirut's tightly-knit Armenian community, members of an autonomous Christian church, remained neutral in the fighting between Syrian troops and Maronite Christian militiamen. But Armenian neighborhoods in predominantly Maronite East Beirut were among the hardest hit.

About 90 killed and more than 500 wounded were reported in the Armenian community in the 10 days of Syrian-Christian conflict before the cease-fire Saturday. Some of the Armenians openly blamed the Christian militiamen, as well as the Syrians.

Because one Armenian enclave, in the Bourj Hamoud district, is built on marshland, its residents did not have the basement shelters that afforded some protection in other parts of East Beirut.

"We had to organize quickly and find interior shelters on the ground floor," said a spokesman for the Armenian Tashnag Party, which runs the district. "We put most of our top-floor residents in schools, which are more strongly constructed here than other buildings."

The northeastern suburb of Dora also was hard hit. "Fires were so bad that some people were incinerated in their cars as they were trying to escape," said John Sarkissian, a local grocer.

Tashnag Party officials, anxious not to make relations with the militias any worse, played down assertions of damage by militia guns. But other Armenians were less tactful.

One old woman, sweeping broken glass from the doorstep of her apartment, blamed "the Kataeb," the Arabic name for the Christian Phalange Party militia.

Suspicious between the two Christian communities stem from the Armenians' refusal to join the Maronites in the 1975-76 civil war against the leftist Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies.

The Armenians defend their neutrality, saying they lost too many sons in the previous civil war in 1958. Armenians are particularly sensitive to survival since the Ottoman Turks massacred an estimated 1.5 million Armenians between 1894 and 1915.

Maronite extremists freely admit their anger. They say the Armenians enjoyed the fruits of the Maronite domination of Lebanon for nearly 60 years and they should have fought to preserve them.

"While we were spilling blood, they were making money," said one spokesman for former President Camille Chamoun's National Liberal Party.

The Armenians deny they profited from the civil war. They say they suffered more than 500 fatalities and provided medical care, rescue services and shelter for both Christians and Moslems.

Reservoir will not upset water needs

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Construction of Stacy Reservoir by Colorado River Municipal Water District would not interfere with the ability of downstream users to meet existing or expected water needs, engineer Bob Gooch told the Texas Water Commission Wednesday.

Hearing by the TWC on the proposed reservoir resumed after a recess beginning Friday, with newly-appointed Chairman Felix McDonald, Edinburg, joining Commissioners Dorsey Hardean and Joe Carroll.

Gooch testified regarding a report by Freese and Nichols, Inc., engineers for CRMWD, which concludes that "there will be surplus water to meet new future demands in the lower (Colorado River) basin, with Stacy Reservoir in operation."

The report also contends that the yield of the existing Lower Colorado River Authority lakes "plus available runoff below Austin" will exceed currently established municipal, industrial and irrigation uses "and all projected municipal and manufacturing demands in Travis County through the year 2030 with the Stacy project in operation."

Both the LCRA and City of Austin are opposing the application.

Gooch told the hearing he had revised the "dependable yield" expected from Stacy from 119,000 acre-feet annually to 113,000 acre-feet annually, because of a reduction in the drainage area calculated as contributing inflows to the reservoir.

Gooch said CRMWD should plan on using less than the 113,000 acre-feet calculated as the dependable yield, saying it was his opinion that reservoirs in West Texas should be left with enough water to supply one year's use "at the end of the critical drought or record."

The testimony also covered the operating acre-feet of that total agreement between Texas Utilities and CRMWD on the reservoir, with Gooch noting the two parties had agreed that Texas Utilities should take the 25,000 acre-feet annually for cooling purposes at its planned coal-fired generating plant, with no more than 60,000 additional acre-feet to be used for other purposes.

CRMWD attorneys Frank Booth and James Wilson introduced their analysis of the water rights held in the lower segment of the Colorado River basin, showing that a total of 22,500 acre-feet of water annually could be required by holders of riparian and appropriate rights.

Wilson added, however, that more than 22,500 acre-feet of that total likely should not be considered in a demand prediction in light of a recent

Supreme Court decision calling in the question of Mexican and Spanish riparian rights.

Those figures, Wilson said, are based on irrigation use of two acre-feet of water per acre, with data introduced in another exhibit indicating all by 1,500 acre-feet of the projected water in use in the area between the Stacy site and Lake Buchanan would be for irrigation.

Projecting on the inflows received by the Colorado over the March 1960 to March 1967 period, Gooch said, "there would be some months when those claims could not be satisfied" at low flow periods without releases from Stacy—if the maximum 25,000 acre-foot figure is used.

Gooch took exception to earlier testimony by the Department of Water Resources scientist Dr. Quentin Martin who concluded that if Stacy were built, the water shortages text "for gaging the impact would cause in the past of an upstream lower river basin would reservoir on the rest of exceed the shortages it the river basin."

Gooch was scheduled to continue his rebuttal of Martin's conclusion this morning.

Man killed as crane falls 30 stories into Dallas street

DALLAS (AP) — A Lewisville, Texas, man was killed when a 10-ton construction crane toppled from a 30-story building into a busy downtown Dallas intersection Wednesday, missing the afternoon traffic rush by only an hour.

The 75-foot crane was lifting concrete to the top of One Dallas Centre, a high-rise building under construction, when it toppled and plunged to the ground, killing Kenneth Carl Branch, 37, its operator.

Witnesses said the massive apparatus tumbled end-over-end through the air before becoming entangled in a web of electrical wires. Firemen were unable to begin rescue efforts until Dallas Power & Light officials cut power to the lines.

Dallas Fire Department spokeswoman Janie Bryant said the falling crane caused some damage to the building, and flying debris knocked out windows in the Republic National Bank Building across the street.

The crumpled rigging fell within the construction site, but stretched across St. Paul Street, a busy thoroughfare during peak traffic periods. Ms. Bryant said a taxicab and a private automobile were in the block as the crane crashed to the ground, but both "miraculously" avoided being crushed.

Dallas attorney Joseph Morris watched from his office on the 24th floor of the Republic National Bank Building.

"The crane swayed, then I noticed it's not supposed to do that ... in a surreal fashion it fell in almost slow motion ... and then it registered in my mind that there actually was a crane falling off that building," Morris said.

Rhodesia to end race barriers?

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

"It doesn't help me, doesn't affect me at all — I don't have enough money," said Mwanza. "But I suppose it's a good thing. I don't mind."
Like Mwanza, most of Rhodesia's 6.7 million blacks look at Rhodesia's plan to replace skin color with wealth as the basis for entry to the 260,000-white minority's cherished institutions — schools, hospitals, suburbs — and see no differences for themselves.

The country's new biracial government — formed by Prime Minister Ian Smith as a move toward a black-majority rule — announced plans Tuesday to end the last race barriers. The transitional government is opposed by black nationalist guerrillas who have been fighting for years to drive out Smith's regime.

The government's black officials sounded euphoric, white ones a shade defensive, in explaining that race discrimination was out. But most blacks feel financial, education and language barriers are still in.

Though there has never been job discrimination by law, these barriers mean few blacks will soon reach the white way of life.

Mwanza, a $2,052-a-year office messenger is comparatively well-off, earning more than double the average black wage.

Like thousands of working class blacks in cities, he keeps a foot in two camps. He rents a $19.50-a-month room in a tiny house in a black township near the capital. Twice a month he commutes to the Goromonzi Tribal Reservation, 25 miles east, where his wife and four children live on a lot allotted by the local headman.

The nationalist guerrilla war, which has closed the classrooms to some 250,000 children, a fifth of expected enrollment, has not yet reached Goromonzi.

So Mwanza's older children, ages 12 to 6, attend a school run by a local black state-aided council. Mwanza, in his mid-30s pays $85.80 a year in school fees.

It would cost him $72, plus extras, to get just the eldest daughter. Forgiveness, into one of the current white schools — to be known as "high fee-paying schools" under the new system. And officials say there are plans to make the high fees higher.

Blacks, too, have more children to educate. The black population, has one of the world's highest growth rates. Urban families average five children, while among the 4 million who live in the crowded tribal trust lands, eight children is normal.

The average white couple has fewer than three children, and whites are emigrating at the rate of about 1,000 a month.

The government's plan could take several months to become law and would be irrelevant should the communist-supported guerrillas take over. What it offers Mwanza is a vision, not a reality.

For those further down the economic scale, the peasant farmers who scratch a living from the earth, the prospect of sharing a classroom or hospital with whites, or buying the house next door, is as remote as acquiring a penthouse apartment in Manhattan.

Does Mwanza want his children in school with whites? Only his oldest, he says, not the others. "They don't speak enough English yet. Also we need some children near home to help on the land."

Rhodesian whites reacted with relief that only a "reasonable" number of "reasonable" blacks would be allowed in — and with skepticism that the new law is just a piece of paper that a black government could tear up.

"Absolutely super news," said typist Pat Brogan, 36, "so long as everybody respects it and people realize there are still class differences."

Housewife Shirley Coyne feared a change in schools. "Discrimination should have been done away with long ago," she said, "but a little discretion should be used in education so older children aren't lumped together with younger ones, who'll be held back."

The plan has most appeal to the reasonably well-off black minority who can afford the $6,200 deposit for a $25,000 house in a middle-class white suburb — and keep up the $160-a-month mortgage payments.

Despite falling real estate values, it still costs some $50,000 to buy into a plush suburb. Box-like homes in black townships cost around $1,100 to buy and $30 a month to rent.

Stanley Hatendi, 38, a black economist who earns more than the average white salary of $9,240 yearly has children at costly private multiracial schools, and may head for a white suburb.

"The transitional government's decision is a good move. Africans have urged it for years," said Hatendi. "Some critics might think there are ulterior motives, but it achieves the desired goal ... It doesn't matter how it's done, as long as it's done."

It would probably cost vegetable seller Felistas Moyo, 25, a year's earnings for surgery at a white hospital, where higher ward charges are only a fraction of the final bill for drugs and private doctors.

Moyo is pleased with the end of race barriers nonetheless. "At last whites have agreed to live with Africans side by side," he said. "I couldn't believe it when I heard the news over the radio."

This apparent acceptance of two systems in a single country, two ways of life, one akin to Middle America, another to the poverty of Africa, is not shared by hard-line nationalists.

Methodist minister Max Chigwida, who recently quit one of the black parties in the transition government, said: "Those who look at the change in terms of structures are not very impressed."

That is the heart of the matter. In 90 years here, whites built and kept to themselves the best schools, hospitals and homes. While their dominance was reinforced by law, it was maintained too by differences in wealth and class that it would take years to overcome.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Movie queen Bette Davis says "one of the most exciting things that has happened to me in 50 years" was being kissed by President Carter and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

In an interview, Miss Davis called her meeting with Sadat and Carter "one of those lucky, lucky accidents ..."

Miss Davis was in Washington taping a segment for Dinah Shore's television show, a portion of which involved an interview with Rosalynn Carter. While combing her hair in a White House room near the Oval Office, she learned that Sadat was nearby.

ATLANTA (AP) — Daredevil Evel Knievel is in an Atlanta hospital for minor surgery to drain an abscess from his right heel, a hospital spokesman said.

"We don't expect complications," said spokesman Ron Wolf of Northside Hospital. He said Knievel was expected to be hospitalized for two or three days.

Knievel entered the hospital after the heel infection flared up during a visit to Atlanta, Wolf said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lillian Carter says — with a big laugh — that Mayor Edward Koch "is the biggest liar I have ever seen."

President Carter's mother, in New York to campaign for a congressional candidate, was asked about a report by Koch that she won all the money in a 12-hour poker game on the flight back from the funeral of Pope John Paul I.

First, she said, it was only a six-hour flight, adding, "How could I play for 12 hours? He exaggerated about all the winnings. When I checked up, I found I had lost a quarter."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Tammy Wynette has 30 days to answer a Circuit Court petition in which former husband and singing partner George Jones blames alcoholism for falling $36,000 behind in child support payments.

Jones' lawyer, Jack Norman Jr., said Wednesday that Jones already had turned over $15,000 to the court clerk in partial payment but will need more time to gather the balance. "And as you can see in the petition, he says he is owed nearly that much by her in offsetting taxes," Norman said.

WASHINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance returned to his native Harrison County to dedicate a new school and campaign for a senator, but the senator didn't show up.

Democratic Sen. Jennings Randolph was to accompany Vance to the dedication of the new Lincoln High School, but was forced to cancel because of a debate on highway legislation in Washington on Wednesday.

Vance spoke of the need for teaching children leadership and said it is the community's responsibility to prepare the next generation to accept leadership duties on local and national levels.

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — A five-piece band blared "California, Here I Come" and supporters of tax reductions rang bells as Proposition 13 co-author Howard Jarvis arrived for a fund-raiser for United Taxpayers of New Jersey.

As he entered the Town and Country Restaurant, Jarvis said, "They need a whole new list of public officials in New Jersey." Supporters responded, "Go get 'em, Howard."

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania House Minority Leader H. Jack Seltzer criticized officials for asking Dr. Peter Bourne, former White House drug adviser, to speak at a drug and alcohol abuse conference.

Seltzer said the Governor's Council on Drug and Alcohol Abuse was "setting a poor example" by inviting Bourne to speak at the conference, scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday in Hershey.

CHICAGO (AP) — A 26-year-old man angry because the Chicago Bears refused to let him try out for the football team faces charges of threatening the life of Bears running back Walter Payton.

Police said Ronald Schons of Arlington Heights, Ill., was arrested Sunday after they traced the license number of a car that circled Payton's home in the northwest suburb.

KATOWICE, Poland (AP) — Poland's largest church was packed as the Rev. Billy Graham held his second evangelistic service in a Roman Catholic church.

Roman Catholic Bishop Herbert Bednorz welcomed the worshippers to the ecumenical service Wednesday in the Cathedral of Christ the King in Katowice, a coal-mining and steel-making city.

"Many of us are interested in the work, in the person of Billy Graham," said Bednorz. "We like very much his constant pointing out of what joins all Christians, namely the person of Jesus Christ and his Gospel."

Graham is on a 10-day evangelistic tour of this predominantly Roman Catholic country.

Reporter to make jail return

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — New York Times reporter Myron Farber, adamant in his refusal to surrender files in the murder trial of a New Jersey doctor, returns to jail today.

Superior Court Judge Theodore Trautwein had delayed Farber's imprisonment in the Bergen County Jail, where he has already served 27 days, until today to allow the reporter to observe Yom Kippur, the most important Jewish holiday, on Wednesday.

Trautwein ordered Farber re-imprisoned Tuesday after the reporter again refused to surrender his files "in accordance with my rights under the U.S. Constitution and the New York and New Jersey shield laws."

As Farber was scheduled to report to jail, attorneys for Dr. Mario Jascavlevich prepared to argue the surgeon should be acquitted of murdering three hospital patients in the 1960s because of the reporter's refusal to disclose his confidential sources in the case.

Jascavlevich's attorney, Raymond Brown, says Farber's notes are vital to his defense.

Texas Bancshares' earning performance fine

By MARK VOGLER
R-T Staff Writer

Texas American Bancshares' earnings of $3.06 per share through the first nine months of 1978 represent the Fort Worth-based holding company's "finest performance ever," according to Lewis H. Bond, chairman of the board.

Bond spoke to shareholders Wednesday at a luncheon at the Midland Country Club co-sponsored by Commercial Bank & Trust Co. of Midland, a wholly owned subsidiary of Texas American Bancshares.

Although fourth quarter earnings may not increase as dramatically as the 23.9 percent gain registered during the first three quarters of 1978, Bond said "an excellent year seems assured."

The board chairman said a dramatic increase in loan demand, which began late in 1977 and has continued through the current year, has been a major factor in the holding company's record earnings. The increases in loan demand have been across the board, with oil and gas loan volumes particularly strong, he added.

"With loans up so sharply, we have had to compete vigorously for deposits and other lendable funds to meet the demand. Fortunately, our deposit growth has also been exceptional, up 13.9 percent over the prior year to $1.61 billion," he said.

Bond noted that since the Texas American Bancshares embarked on a program of systematic dividend increases in January of 1976, the quarterly cash dividend has been raised six times from 68 cents per share annually to the current annual rate of $1.00 per share.

"Including the effect of a 5 percent stock dividend paid to shareholders in March 1978, this is an increase of 54 percent in dividend payout in this town and one-half year period, he said.

"It is also important to note that these increased dividends have not been at the expense of capital formation, since we have maintained our payout as a percent of earnings at a relatively conservative range of 23-25 percent. This would certainly seem to insure the stability of our dividend, as well as allowing us the flexibility for further increases."

Bond said Texas American Bancshares will continue to give close attention to opportunities for further expansion, particularly into new areas where it is not now represented.

The holding company, which is the seventh largest in the state with three percent of the state's deposits, now has three acquisitions pending — Bank of Fort Worth and Riverside State Bank in Fort Worth and Citizen National Bank of Denison — and plans to "stay active" in this field, the TAB chairman said.

In addition to the Fort Worth National Bank and Commercial Bank & Trust Co., other TAB member banks are Southern National Bank, Galleria Bank and Gulf Southern National Bank, all in Houston; Texas American Bank, Dallas; American National Bank, Amarillo, and Levelland State Bank.

Deputies capture hospital escapee Wednesday north of Coahoma

BIG SPRING — Howard County sheriff's deputies Wednesday captured a Taylor County prisoner who allegedly escaped from Big Spring State Hospital Tuesday, officers said today.

Officers said the captured man was armed with a shotgun.

David Franklin Howze, 24, of Clyde was captured by deputies north of Coahoma about 12:30 p.m. Wednesday, authorities said.

He reportedly had one hostage, taken near Coahoma.

Sheriff A.N. Standard, who was in the area, said he and another deputy were three miles east of FM 820 when they met two pickup trucks.

"As soon as we approached the vehicles, we knew there was something terribly wrong," he said.

Lester Duffer, in the first truck, told officers, "The man you want is in the truck behind me. He has Joe Kerby hostage with a shotgun. Let's go."

Standard said he let the other two vehicles head west toward FM 820 and instructed deputies to set up a roadblock. Sheriff's units converged on the two pickups a half-mile east of FM 820, the sheriff said.

"We persuaded him (Howze) to drop his weapon," Standard said.

Howze had escaped from Taylor County deputy A.B. Bomar Tuesday afternoon at Big Spring State Hospital, officials said.

He reportedly had forced Bomar to give him the keys to his leg irons and to the deputy's car by holding a sharp pencil to the throat of Rosemary Spohn, a social worker at the hospital.

He then forced the woman to accompany him to the car before releasing her and taking off, deputies said.

Howze was in custody on an alleged robbery offense, said officers.

Officers said the man initially took two hostages, but both persons, whose names were not available today, later were released.

Howze was brought from Abilene to Big Spring State Hospital to determine if he is competent to stand trial, according to authorities.

Killer satellite theory rejected

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in California deny a published report here that space agency officials believe a "killer satellite" may have knocked out power in an ocean research satellite as it flew over the Soviet Union.

In today's edition, the newspaper TODAY said the "killer satellite" theory was one of several discussed by scientists trying to learn why they lost radio contact Monday with the Seasat-A satellite.

The newspaper quoted Walter McCandless, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's manager for the Seasat program, as saying "we've had a thought or two about" the possibility of an aggressor satellite rendering the U.S. craft useless.

But in Pasadena, Calif., Gene Giberson, the Seasat project manager, said a killer satellite never came up in discussions on the project. He said it's most likely that a short circuit caused the power loss.

"Those of us directly involved trying to understand what happened have focused on data we have viewed," Giberson said.

Reception slated at country club

ODESSA — A reception at Odessa Country Club this evening will announce and introduce a major land development project northeast of Odessa.

The project is being developed by the M-X Corp., and exclusively handled by Consolidated Property Consultants of Odessa.

The 4,000-acre planned community will provide facilities for more than 30,000 people, according to developers.

Tonight's reception and press preview will mark the opening of Phase I of North Playa, located just east of Loop 338, three miles north of Yukon Road.

The subdivision has a total 202 lots, 46 of which will go on the market immediately.

North Playa is designed to be an exclusive area, with building requirements controlled by an architectural committee.

Road construction is now under way, with homes construction to begin in November. The new community is situated on the original M-X Ranch established by Bud and Sallie Ratliff, Odessa pioneers who settled here in 1902. The M-X Corp. was founded by their daughters and heirs.

Eighty-five per cent of the area is planned for residential development, with no home facing a major thoroughfare. Projections for the completed community include a new country club, park, golf course, schools, churches, a medical center, a shopping nucleus for malls and high-rise office buildings.

Also in the development area is the proposed Bud Ratliff Memorial Sports Center, donated to the Ector County Independent School District by the Ratliff family.

Infertility becomes new target

WASHINGTON (AP) — Family planning clinics that concentrate on helping women avoid unwanted pregnancies should also aid couples having trouble conceiving a child, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's new family planning chief feels.

A bill now before Congress to extend the government's $200 million family planning program would make infertility a target for the first time, notes Dr. Irvin W. Cushner.

Cushner took office last month as HEW's deputy assistant secretary for population affairs. The former medical professor brings to the post a concept of "reproductive health" that sees three types of people in need of family planning services:

—Those who want a child and need health advice during pregnancy.

—Those who do not want a child.

—The estimated 1 million or more American couples who want a child, but have fertility problems.

Cushner, 54, was chairman of the board of directors of the Alan Guttmacher Institute — the research and policy arm of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America — when HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. tapped him for the post.

Cushner helped draft a Maryland law legalizing abortion a decade ago. Califano is personally opposed to abortion.

Cushner said in an interview that he does not feel the differences in their views precludes holding his present job of developing and coordinating HEW's family planning policy, programs and research.

Plays, peanut butter on kids' theatre menu

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The Peanut Butter Theater is no ordinary dinner theater.

The patrons usually sit on the floor and there's no dinner — only lunch.

And don't try to get steak or roast beef. The establishment serves only peanut butter sandwiches.

The PBT — as it's known by its creators, the American Repertory Theater of Cincinnati — is for children.

From ages 3 to 12, they come on weekends and holidays for productions of such plays as "The Emperor's New Clothes" and "Tales of the Brothers Grimm."

After paying the $2.50 admission charge, they get a lunch bag with a peanut butter sandwich and cookies. The only choice in the meal is whether they want white or chocolate milk.

About 90 percent of the audience sits on the floor to watch the play, and parents and grandparents are invited to attend when the curtain goes up.

"We wanted to do something very wholesome and something with a twist and this kind of evolved," said Fred Coleman, executive producer of the company.

The group will often alternate performances at a location here with another in Middletown, Ohio. About 200 persons usually attend a performance, Coleman said. Those who do attend the plays get more than sticky fingers for their efforts.

They often get literally caught up in the play and the children can be as much of a show as the production.

In "Rumpelstiltskin," one of four Grimm tales presented, a furious Rumpelstiltskin asks several youngsters, "Did you tell the queen my name?"

"No," each answers. "Well, then, who did?" he asks.

"She did!" shout the children, pointing accusing fingers at the queen's messenger.

Peanut Butter Theater actors and actresses are part of the repertory theater's 10-member company of performers. All are full-time professional actors.

The repertory company also conducts a touring program which takes drama and musical productions to schools, day-care centers and senior citizens' groups, and it also produces Shakespeare festivals during the year.

DEAR ABBY

Don't choose one you can't bring home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm a mature 15-year-old girl who struck up a friendship with a 29-year-old guy I'll call Lee. He works at a gasoline station near my girl friend's house. I found him interesting to talk to. Then he started confiding his troubles to me. The poor guy has really had a messed-up life. He had to get married when he was 18, then his wife left him for another guy. He says he doesn't love her anymore, but he misses his son. I feel so sorry for him.

He says I've done him so much good just letting him cry on my shoulder. He kissed me once and held me real tight, and it felt so good I nearly fainted. He even said he thought he could love me, then he started calling me at home. If my mother knew his background she'd have a fit. (I told her it was some guy from school.) I hate lying to Mom. I'm all mixed up and know I shouldn't see Lee anymore, but I hate to hurt his feelings. Please tell me what to do.—MIXED UP IN LONGVIEW, WASH.

Groups picnic

The Midland County Medical Society and Auxiliary had a picnic at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Oliver Gooch, 1600 Golf Course Road.

Hostesses were Mrs. Gooch, Mrs. William McGavran, Mrs. Arnold Meckley, Mrs. William Hibbits, Mrs. Jake Shapira and Mrs. John Foster.

DEAR MIXED UP: is being married soon. Stay away from Lee. A 29-year-old man who would kiss a 15-year-old girl and suggest that he could love her is bad news. And never have anything to do with a fellow you can't bring home and introduce to your parents. DEAR ABBY: My son

My son and his fiancée they want HER, I'll stay feel that since his father home. What is your has married this little opinion?—BITTER IN homewrecker, she should BALTIMORE attend the wedding. DEAR BITTER: If it's I am considering common knowledge, and asking them to make a not just opinion, that choice. If they want ME father's wife is a wife can stay home. If doesn't belong at your son's wedding. But don't punish the young couple by forcing them to choose between your presence and hers. Go, and be a lady. If father's wife insists on attending, it is she who may have difficulty holding her head high.

AT WIT'S END

They have to endure 'first home' stories

By ERMA BOMBECK

You have to feel sorry for the young kids buying new homes these days. It's not the fact that the national average of a new home is close to $70,000, or that the interest rates are the highest in history. I have compassion for them because they have to endure the pain of listening to the "What-I-paid-for-my-first-house" stories from the old-timers.

During the past year we have related the story of our first house at least a dozen times a month. Every time we tell it, the lot gets larger, there's another bathroom and the price falls off $500.

Last night, after a couple squealed ecstatically about their final loan approval on a $55,000 home, my husband mechanically launched into his "first home" story by rote.

"$5,000 dollars! I don't believe it. Why, can you believe our first home was on an acre lot, had four large pillars on a veranda porch with a rolling lawn, five bedrooms, four bath, a sumptuous living room, glass-paneled wall, large entranceway, all-electric kitchen, family room, fireplace, two-car garage, landscaping, plastered walls and copper plumbing throughout and it only cost $12,900. I'll bet that sounds ridiculous to you, doesn't it. Did I leave anything out," he asked me.

"Only the slave quarters and the polo field," I said irritably.

"Yep," he continued, "sold that little baby 15 years later at a $20,000 profit."

By the time he was finished, the new home owners were so depressed they could barely speak.

On the way home I exploded, "Is your brain in escrow. You made those kids feel rotten! Besides, I thought you were describing 'Tara' out of Gone With the Wind. That house only had three bedrooms and two baths, and remember the day we lost the entranceway and you were standing on it.

"The garage only held one car, the landscaping was a packet of seeds and a holy picture of St. Francis of Assisi, and the lot was so small I could stand in the back yard and hear a phone ring eight houses down. Besides, we paid $21,000 for it."

The only consolation I have for young people buying homes today is that in 15 or 20 years, the house will get bigger and the price will get smaller and your margin of profit will be limited only by your imagination.

Carol Hall reported the chapter would be responsible for the wall decorations at the Harvest Ball to be held Oct. 21 at the VFW. There will be a cocktail party at the home of Brenda Nance preceding the ball.

Marilyn Siruta reported the city-wide council meeting would be on Nov. 6 at Trinity Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Siruta also reported the group would be taking salads to the Mental Health-Mental Retardation luncheon Thursday.

The best of two worlds

New Orleans, La., called city of exceptional cuisine

By JEANNETTE BRANIN
Copley News Service

Never have I had as much travel advice as when it became known I would spend 10 days in New Orleans. What my friends told me was what to eat, where to eat and when to eat. You must have breakfast at Brennan's ... The greatest restaurant is Antoine's ... but make your reservation fast ... The best food in New Orleans isn't really there, it's in Gretna, across the river, at a place called Le Ruth's ... The best food in New Orleans is outside of town in Fat City, a restaurant called Little Cajun Cuisine ... If you want fresh oysters, try Casamento's ... try Felix's ... try Desire, in the French Quarter. I did have time to discover this: It doesn't matter where you order shrimp or oysters. They're always fresh, always delicious.

There was time, also, to make a critical survey of regional cookbooks of which there are many, for the "New Orleans cuisine" is part French, part Spanish, part African, part Cajun. Put them all together and it's called Creole Cooking. (A Creole is anyone born in the colonies of European ancestry, French or Spanish, or both.)

Creole cooking is deliciously, almost deliriously, spicy. My introduction to the fiery spices came the first night in the city when I was served Shrimp Remoulade at Tujague's.

Every restaurant has its own version of Remoulade Sauce, used to mask cold boiled shrimp on a bed of shredded lettuce which is called, sensibly, Shrimp Remoulade. Tujague's Restaurant in the French Quarter, established 120 years ago in the same brick building it occupies today, has the simplest version — a blending of hot Creole mustard, fresh horseradish and olive oil. The sauce is spread lavishly; after shrimp and lettuce are gone, sauce remains, but there is no spoon to scoop it up. A lesson I learned in Greece was useful there. A crust of bread (in this case French Cap bread) serves splendidly as a sauce-scooper.

The recipe for Remoulade Sauce from Brennan's is a bit more elaborate:

REMOULADE SAUCE
three-fourths cup minced parsley three-fourths cup minced shallots (green onions) three-fourths cup minced celery three-fourths cup minced dill pickle
1 tsp. minced garlic
One and three-fourths cup Creole (hot) mustard
3 tbsps. horseradish one-fourth cup vinegar
one-half cup salad oil
Mix all ingredients together and chill. This sauce will keep, refrigerated, for many weeks. The longer it stands, the better it tastes. For Shrimp Remoulade, marinate 6 large boiled shrimp in one-half cup sauce for each serving. Serve on a bed of shredded lettuce. Makes about 5 cups.

Nearly every New Orleans restaurant also has its own recipe for Oysters Rockefeller, most of them listing spinach as an ingredient. They were first created at Antoine's, and do not contain spinach at that establishment. Every order that goes out of Antoine's kitchen bears the number of its serving, now well into the millions. It was named for America's wealthiest citizen at that time because the sauce, containing 18 ingredients, was so rich.

Antoine's will not divulge its recipe. But Commander's Palace, established in 1880 in the heart of the Garden District, shares this:

OYSTERS ROCKEFELLER
8 ounces finely chopped bacon
6 cloves garlic, chopped
1 stick butter
1 bunch shallots (green onions), finely chopped
6 cups finely chopped canned or cooked spinach with juice
1 bunch parsley, chopped fine
1 tsp. celery salt
one-fourth tsp. cayenne pepper
1 cup oyster liquid
4 ounces absinthe (substitute Pernod)
Salt to taste
Bread crumbs
6 dozen oysters with shells
Brown bacon, add garlic and cook until nearly brown. Add butter and shallots and after cooking for a few minutes, add spinach and all other ingredients except bread crumbs and oysters. Thicken the mixture with bread crumbs. Simmer 10 minutes. Have 12 pie pans half-filled with rock salt. Have oysters on the half shell at room temperature. Arrange 6 in each pie pan. Top each oyster with the sauce and put under a broiler 6 inches from the flame until heated through and browned on top.
Up the River Road from New Orleans is Houmas House on the Mississippi, a Greek Revival mansion built in 1840 on land which once belonged to Gen. Wade Hampton of South Carolina. (Remember "Gone with the Wind?" Scarlett named her son for him.)

One hundred years later, in 1940, Dr. George B. Crozat of New Orleans purchased the plantation, restored its early magnificence and furnished it, graciously and authentically, in the style of the period prior to 1840. It was the setting for the motion picture, "Hush Hush, Sweet Charlotte," starring Bette Davis.

It is open to the public for tours, and luncheon is served in the enlarged carriage house. It features fried chicken and corn bread.

PLANTATION FRIED CHICKEN

1 fryer, 3-pounds, disjointed one-fourth cup butter
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste one-fourth tsp. dried oregano one-fourth cup water one-half cup sherry
two-thirds cup sour cream

Brown the chicken parts in hot, bubbly butter. When they are browned on all sides, sprinkle with salt, pepper and oregano. Combine the water and sherry and pour over the chicken, then cover the frying pan and cook gently for about 30 minutes, or until the chicken is fork-tender. Remove the chicken to a hot platter and keep warm. Stir up the juices in the pan, then remove from fire and slowly add the sour cream, stirring thoroughly. Return the chicken to the pan and reheat. Serve with hot biscuits or corn bread.

DEEP SOUTH CORN BREAD

three-fourths cup sifted all-purpose flour
Two and one-half tps. double acting baking powder 1 to 2 tps. dark brown sugar one-fourth tsp. salt
One and three-fourths cup yellow stone-ground cornmeal (no substitute)
1 egg
3 tbsps. melted butter
1 cup milk

Preheat a heavy, well-greased skillet (cast-iron will give the best results) in a 425-degree oven. Heat the skillet until a drop of water sizzles in it. Then combine all ingredients rapidly; do not overbeat, and pour into the hot pan. Bake 20 to 25 minutes until it has a rich brown crust. Serve piping hot.

Midland Symphony Guild president, Mrs. W. Jesse Heath, left, and Odessa Symphony Guild president, Mrs. William W. Gray, meet to consider fashions for Saturday evening's concert featuring Burt Bacharach and the Houston Symphony Orchestra. The concert, which will be presented in Midland College's Chaparral Center at 7:30 p.m., will benefit the Midland-Odessa Symphony Chorus. After the concert, Bacharach will attend a reception for patron ticket holders at Midland Country Club.

Corn bread choice a north-south difference

Copley News Service

Most people have a pretty fixed idea as to what good corn bread should be and think anything other than that just isn't the real thing. South of the Mason-Dixon Line, it's usually made with white cornmeal and buttermilk, with no sugar and little or no flour and the batter is poured into a hot pan and baked until it is crusty and browned.

About the only thing Southern and Yankee corn bread have in common is lots of butter served with them.

Up North, most corn bread is made with yellow cornmeal and flour, milk and a bit of sugar to sweeten things up a bit. Sometimes it's baked in a skillet or a square pan, sometimes in muffin tins or corn stick pans.

YANKEE CORN BREAD
One and one-fourth cups sifted flour
Three-fourths cup yellow cornmeal
2 tbsps. sugar
Four and one-half tps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1 egg
Two-thirds cup milk
One-third cup shortening, melted

Sift flour, cornmeal, sugar, baking powder and salt. Beat egg, stir in milk and melted shortening. Add to dry ingredients, stirring with fork until flour is just moistened.

Fill well-greased muffin tins or corn stick pans three-fourths full or pour batter into well-greased eight-inch-square pan. Bake in 425-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes for muffins or corn sticks, and 25 to 30 minutes for square pan or until brown. Makes nine muffins or 11 corn sticks.

SOUTHERN CORN BREAD
One-fourth cup shortening
2 cups white cornmeal
2 tbsps. flour
2 tps. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
2 cups buttermilk
1 egg
Melt shortening in nine-inch skillet or nine-inch-square baking pan in oven, brushing sides of pan with melted shortening.

Sift together dry ingredients. Combine egg and buttermilk and stir into dry ingredients along with melted shortening. Pour batter into hot pan.

Bake in 450-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes or until browned. Cut in squares or wedges; serve hot with butter.

Cracklin' bread: Slice one-half pound fresh pork fat very thin, then cut into small pieces. Fry small amount at a time in a skillet over medium heat until browned and crisp.

Drain off fat as it accumulates. Spread crisp pieces of fat on paper towels and sprinkle lightly with salt. Prepare Southern corn bread as directed, adding crisp fat to dry ingredients.

Doctor develops treatment to make human organ transplants safer

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Thomas Starzl says a treatment he has developed could make human organ transplants much safer by reducing the need for dangerously large doses of rejection-fighting drugs.

The treatment calls for draining white blood cells and antibodies that fight foreign elements in the body, including transplanted organs, says Starzl, chief of surgery at the University of Colorado Medical Center in Denver.

The treatment could advance Starzl's belief that surgery is becoming more an art of replacement than repair.

In the past, transplant patients frequently have been bombarded with drugs to fight off rejection. Such drugs often cause dangerous side effects when given in large doses, and many persons have not been given organ transplants because the side effects would kill them.

"The large reservoir of untransplantable renal (kidney) patients which have come to plague every major (transplant) center would become accessible to treatment," said Starzl, the first surgeon to successfully transplant a liver.

Starzl, who has performed about two-thirds of the world's liver transplants, said the treatment — called thoracic duct drainage — can "greatly enhance" liver, pancreas, heart and lung transplants.

He said the treatment does not eliminate the need for the rejection-fighting drugs, but allows doctors to reduce substantially the amounts given.

While the white blood cells are being drained, the patient receives injections of other antibodies to protect the body against infection.

Starzl, who presented a paper on the treatment to a world association of transplant specialists last month in Rome, said he first tried the treatment when he "faced seemingly insurmountable ... problems with one of our liver recipients." The drugs had made the patient vulnerable to an uncontrollable infection.

Starzl placed the patient on the new treatment for 71 days, beginning two months after his transplant, and the patient fully recovered.

Starzl said he has now used the treatment on a total of nine liver transplant patients. He said 20 kidney transplant patients also received the treatment and more of the kidneys remained functional than would have been expected under the old method.

Bonfire to kick off Lee's homecoming

A bonfire will kick off Lee High School homecoming activities tonight on the east parking lot of the school. The 7:30 p.m. event is the first in a series of festivities set for the weekend.

A parade will wind its way around downtown at 3 p.m. Friday in preparation for the football game scheduled Friday night.

Featuring floats from various school clubs, the parade will start at Illinois and Carrizo streets and proceed into downtown Midland. Parade theme this year is "Rebel Football — Yesterday and Today."

Homecoming highlight will be the 8 p.m. football game Friday night against the San Angelo Bobcats.

Halftime of the contest will see the crowning of the Lee High School homecoming queen.

Queen candidates include Suzanne Brower, Alison Alvarado, Leah Owens, Becky Murray and Peggy Jones.

Saturday's festivities will include a reception for ex-students beginning at 2 p.m. in the cafeteria of the high school.

Some 40 people attended last year's reunion and event organizers are hoping for a larger turnout this year, school officials said.

Homecoming festivities will end Saturday night with a disco dance at the Lee Youth Center. Tickets will be $4 per couple although any ex-student will be admitted free.

Dying visit too late for Texas Death Row inmate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas prison system broke a long-time rule against Death Row inmates leaving the Huntsville unit, but Felix Ochoa was too late to see his dying father.

The son, convicted killer of a Yorktown policeman, asked permission to visit his father, Gilbert Ochoa, who was reported dying of cancer in a Yorktown hospital.

After first refusing the request of the family, through a query to the Austin American-Statesman, W.J. Estelle, director of the Texas Department of Corrections, agreed last Friday to send Felix Ochoa to Yorktown, accompanied by two guards, to visit his father.

The son arrived at the Yorktown Memorial Hospital about 11:30 a.m. Saturday. He was told his father had died at 1 a.m. Saturday.

Olga Garcia, one of Gilbert Ochoa's 10 children, said Felix was allowed to go to the funeral home and speak briefly with his mother and to a few of his brothers and sisters.

Guru sects of America have spread to Europe

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The Rev. Moon, Hare Krishna, Scientology, Children of God. The guru sects that earlier beguiled young Americans have spread to Western Europe, and government leaders are alarmed.

These fringe religions are active in Britain, West Germany, France, Holland, Denmark and Italy, an Associated Press survey shows.

Authorities have been disturbed by news reports from some of these countries linking several sects to allegations about "brain-wash" conversions, sexual abuse, fraud, visa violations and suicides.

Ten Hare Krishna monks were heavily fined in Frankfurt, West Germany, last April for begging $1.2 million under false pretenses — claiming the money was destined for starving children in India, while it actually went to the sect's castle commune.

The Bonn government became so worried about crime reports involving the cults that it launched a campaign this summer to warn young Germans. It estimated 150,000 persons, most in the 14 to 28 age group, have joined a dozen various sects.

"The common aim of these sects in West Germany is the pursuit of power and money. ... The leaders scarcely believe the ideals they proclaim," said the Ministry of Youth, Family and Health, which is leading the drive against the fringe religions.

Named in the warnings are the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church; the Society of Transcendental Meditation; Hare Krishna monks; the Divine Light Mission of Maharaj Ji; Mose David Berg's Children of God; and L. Ron Hubbard's Church of Scientology.

"All these groups share fixation on an authoritarian, patriarchal leader, total obedience, strictly regimented community life and uncompromising rejection of the 'old society,'" the ministry said.

German parents' groups are working with traditional churches to rescue their youngsters. "You get the impression the followers are bewitched, dazed and intoxicated," said one mother of a sect member.

The sects have been able to flourish in Western Europe — and the United States — under guarantees of freedom of religion. "Unless there is some evidence of criminal activity there is very little the government can do," said a British spokesman, summing up government policy.

Only Scientology is barred in Britain. In 1968, the Home Office found the sect "socially harmful," and foreign Scientologists were effectively barred from living in Britain.

A member of Parliament appealed for a clampdown on the Moonies and other sects in 1975, but Shirley Summerskill, under-secretary of state at the Home Office, replied:

"We may as individuals take the view that the doctrines advanced by Mr. Moon are lunatic. We may be particularly suspicious of the motives of people who, while claiming to benefit humanity, have substantially enriched themselves. But these are matters of opinion, and surely it is one of the principles of a free society that people may propagate ideas which the majority of us ... do not believe."

Moon is now resisting efforts to remove him from Britain, where some 3,000 Moonies are believed to be living on farms and in communes.

Transcendental Meditation followers of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi are said to number 80,000 in Britain, growing at 10,000 a year. This sect's country estate is an Elizabethan mansion in Kent.

The Hare Krishna movement has its mansion, bought for it by former Beate George Harrison, in Hertfordshire, and the Divine Light Mission claims more than 6,000 followers in Britain.

The French Interior Ministry said the sects are "watched with a magnifying glass" and prosecuted when laws are broken. Hubbard, the American founder of Scientology, is appealing a conviction on fraud charges in France. Hubbard claims 1 million French followers, but membership in other groups is said to be small.

The newspaper Le Monde published an interview last month with a 16-year-old girl who admitted prostituting herself to lure men into the Children of God. The girl said of her acts: "I think of other things. And when it's finished I tell them about our faith."

The Interior Ministry said it has taken no action against the sect over prostitution because "we can't really distinguish whether it is a personal wish or an activity sanctioned by their church."

The fiery suicide of a 24-year-old Australian woman Oct. 2 in Switzerland, apparently to protest social injustice, was the latest sensational news report involving the fringe sects. The girl's father said she had joined the small Indian sect Ananda Marga, and he denounced its leaders for allegedly encouraging such acts.

Police said a West German couple from the same cult burned themselves to death last Feb. 8 in a similar protest.

The Dutch government said it is not overly worried, since members of fringe sects probably number only in the hundreds in Amsterdam and Rotterdam. However, Moonies are said to be a problem in Amsterdam, where they stand on street corners and try to recruit students.

Denmark is unofficially estimated to have at least 10,000 young cult members, ranging from Hare Krishna to Satanists.

'Spooks' come alive in expose

By LINDA DEUTSCH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It is the staff of James Bond novels — secret agents hugging each other's boudoirs, plotting with foreign governments, scheming better ways to kill.

But wait a minute. The new crop of undercover spies who leap at us from pages of a new book sound strangely familiar.

Robert Malheu. E. Howard Hunt. James McCord. Johnny Roselli. Sam

Giancana. Robert Vesco.

Author Jim Hougan says these men and many more are private spies — or "spooks" — whose undercover escapades sometimes change the course of history.

Hougan's non-fiction spy expose, "Spooks: The Haunting of America — The Private Use of Secret Agents," talks of a netherworld of real-life intrigue more frightening than fiction.

Its message is that James Bond lives among us. But he is no hero. He works for the bad guys more often than the good. His tools are bugs, scramblers, wiretaps, codes, silent guns, exploding cigarette packs and bugged TV sets that watch you.

The private spooks, says Hougan, are former government spies, agents of the FBI, CIA or National Security Agency who use their clandestine tricks to make a fortune in private practice.

"Occasionally," writes Hougan, "their work benefits the public, although only incidentally. More often, the public is their target. And even when no laws are broken, justice is often undone."

Hougan lists dozens of "Mission: Impossible" schemes involving secret agents, episodes which he labels, "America's Secret History." Among them:

—A bungled effort by the CIA and undercover spooks to assassinate Fidel Castro.

—The use of spooks by McDonald's hamburger chain to guard against the takeover of franchises by organized crime.

—The pervasive role of spooks in Watergate.

Hougan, a Washington-based editor for Harpers magazine, says he stumbled on the proliferation of secret agents in America during an assignment to write about a company called Intertel.

"John Dean had mentioned Intertel at the Watergate hearings," Hougan recalls. "I asked what it was and one of the senators said, 'It's a typewriter identification company.'"

"Later, I found out it was a very sophisticated private intelligence agency. It wasn't a bunch of gumshoes. ... These guys were free-lance spies!"

Hougan, a lifelong fan of spy novels

Andersonville now leaning on history

ANDERSONVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Residents of this south Georgia town have spent the last 100 years trying to live down the history of the infamous Civil War prison in which nearly 13,000 Union soldiers died. Now they're banking on that history to revitalize the town.

"We've tried to go back and make our town look like it did during the Civil War when the prison was here," said Mayor Lewis Easterlin. "The prisoners were unloaded here and carried over to the prison. We have about three stores and 10 houses still standing from Civil War days."

Easterlin, in his 22nd year as mayor, said the project began seven or eight years ago "when we realized we were going to dry up."

"We didn't want to become a ghost town, and until we formed the guild it was headed that way," he said of the community of 298.

The renovation is nearly complete, and Easterlin credits the guild, a group of 120 persons from Andersonville and other parts of Georgia, with helping raise the $250,000 needed for the project.

A new bandstand was finished just in time for the Andersonville Historic Fair earlier this month. The road that connects Andersonville with the Civil War cemetery is being resurfaced and the town is capitalizing on tourist trade brought by President Carter's hometown of Plains, 21 miles away.

"The old road from Andersonville to the cemetery was just a path when I was a boy — just a pig trail," said Easterlin. "You had to ford the branch, and around Sweetwater Spring it was marshy and overgrown with weeds and vines."

Easterlin said the Civilian Conservation Corps, formed during the Depression, restored the cemetery, where more than 12,000 graves bear witness to conditions at the prison. As many as 30,000 Union soldiers at a time were crowded into a log stockade that enclosed 16 1/2 acres.

The prison was immortalized in MacKinlay Kantor's 1956 Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, "Andersonville," and spent many years in the shadow of that past. "That's completely gone now," Easterlin said. "I don't think we suffer from that now."

But he said he faced some opposition when he suggested the renovation project.

Four freed on parole

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Gov. Dolph Briscoe has approved the release on parole of four persons convicted in local counties on the latest recommendations of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Included in the latest releases are:

—Steven R. Airington, convicted in Ector County in February 1977 and sentenced to 10 years for burglary with intent to commit theft, paroled to Dallas County;

—Louie Hill Jr., convicted in Midland County in April 1974 and sentenced to 20 years for rape, paroled to Midland County;

—Edgar L. Hurst Jr., convicted in Ector County in August 1977 and sentenced to seven years for theft over $200, paroled to Ector County.

—Joel C. Milford, convicted in Ward County in April 1978 and sentenced to two years for theft over $200, paroled to Dallas County.

The governor also approved the board's recommendation to revoke the parole of Billy R. Blaylock, convicted in Ector County of burglary with intent to commit theft and burglary of a habitation with intent to commit theft.

Blaylock began serving a five-year sentence in January 1976 and parole was granted in July 1977.

Itching common

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The most common skin complaint among the elderly is itching, with or without a rash, according to an article in RN Magazine.

The article, written by Thelma Wells, assistant professor of nursing at the University of Rochester School of Nursing, says the itching can be touched off by a variety of causes, including drug reactions, disease, parasitic infestation or emotional strain.

The most frequent cause, however, is dry skin, it said.

Crime sometimes actually pays off

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A devious bridge player will sometimes conceal his true strength during the bidding in the hope of deceiving the enemy. Crime seldom pays, for as in today's hand the devious one may get past everybody but his partner.

have reached the makable slam in clubs. Instead, he found himself in a silly spade contract.

Since the hand was played during the recent North American Tournament in Toronto, everybody who held the South cards would score 460 for making 11 tricks at notrump; and a plus of 420 for making four spades would be worthless.

Byrnes won the first trick in his hand and disconsolately led a trump. West could well afford to wait but he foolishly took the ace of trumps in his haste to get a ruff.

TOP SCORE

West then led a club, trying to get to his partner's hand. South won and led a trump to the king, dropping East's other honor. Declarer then drew West's last two trumps and claimed the rest of the tricks for 480 points and a top score.

West's hasty play, which changed his score from a top to a bottom, gives us two morals. First, some players can stand anything but prosperity. Second, it grieves us to report, crime sometimes does pay.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes. You hold: S 10 9 7 6 H 5 D A Q 8 C A K Q J 8. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three clubs. This forcing bid warns partner that you are thinking of a slam even if he has only a minimum opening bid.

Bob Hope admits to drumbeater role

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A drumbeater is defined by the dictionary as "one who actively publicizes or campaigns for something." Bob Hope is such a citizen and readily, cheerfully admits it. He never hesitates to actively publicize or campaign for something, even a two-hour special with a three-hour title: "Bob Hope's All-Star Comedy Salute to the 75th Anniversary of the World Series."

"I take advantage of everything," he says. He isn't kidding. He estimates by the time NBC airs that show this Sunday, he'll have done more than 40 print and broadcast interviews, all to drum up patrons for a program in which he starts his 29th year at NBC-TV.

The TV chats include "Today" today, "Tonight" tonight, and earlier, the Dinah Shore and Mike Douglas shows, he says. Oh, yes, also many plugs on NBC's World Series telecasts this week. More than a few top TV stars feel three or four interviews are sufficient to inform the public they have a show coming to TV.

Not Hope. When he has a special afoot, he and a squad of press agents get busier — as Fred Allen once described busier — than a flute player's upper lip during the William Tell Overture.

He starts talking things up to most anyone with a pencil or microphone as early as a month before the show airs. He also plugs it in personal appearances he makes around America between shows.

Oddly, he says he didn't drumbeat much in his early vaudeville days.

"I wasn't too publicity-minded back then," the 75-year-old comic claims. "I was too concerned with getting over with my act."

Nor, he says, did he do much tub-thumping for the radio series he had years ago on NBC: "We were on every week and actually built it up on the merits of the show."

But TV is different, particularly now, he says, because his specials face tougher competition and thus need considerable drumbeating.

"We never used to have any trouble finding a soft spot on TV," Hope said, meaning his shows were scheduled opposite programs that weren't doing well in the ratings.

"You look around today, it's hard to find a spot they don't have an attraction that's getting a 42 rating you have to back. So you have to go out and really interest the people into turning them (competing shows) off and turning you on."

Quartet performs opening concerts most effectively

The three musical works performed by the Thouvenel Quartet in its season-opening concert early this week all occupy honorable places in chamber music literature. Together, the three served effectively and well to illustrate what chamber music is all about in the first place.

A review

The Thouvenel ensemble, Midland's own string-quartet-in-residence, offered Haydn's Quartet No. 4, Op. 76; Alban Berg's Quartet, Op. 3; and Schubert's Quintet in C major, Op. 163. For the latter work, the four instrumentalists were joined by cellist David Vanderkooil of Nashville as guest artist.

Each of these works was given a fine reading by the instrumentalists, a fact that was not lost on the appreciative audience in the splendid new recital hall in the Midland College fine arts building.

The opening work, Haydn's Quartet No. 4 (the "Sunrise"), proved once again that this composer's chamber music is unique, in a class by itself and second to none, structurally and musically. Similarly, Shubert's great Quintet in C major is a beautiful manifestation of the composer's characteristic feeling for fine workmanship, just as his "Death and the Maiden" chamber work displays superb musical workmanship.

"Papa" Haydn's quartet is graceful but nonetheless substantial. Of the four movements, I particularly liked the Minuetto segment and the concluding Allegro ma non troppo.

Schubert's magnificent quintet, long regarded as one of the landmark compositions of 19th Century romanticism, is intensely, powerfully melodic. The four Thouvenel instrumentalists, joined by guest cellist Vanderkooil, provided a really first-rate interpretation of this awesomely beautiful work.

Not the least of the charms of the Thouvenel program was the performance of Berg's Quartet, Op. 3. This splendidly atonal work, dating from 1910, is derivative in places, paying a kind of lip service to late 19th Century musical geniuses. It has, nonetheless, the charm of innovation, the strength of new melodic structures, the vigor of the 20th Century.

The Berg provided fine balance to the more traditional chamber music forms of Haydn and Schubert.

The Thouvenel Quartet consists of Eugene Purdue and Michael Rosenbloom, violins; Sally Christolm, viola, and Jeff Levenson, cello. The ensemble will present four additional subscription concerts at Midland College during the 1978-79 season.

A reluctant visitor who clutches her misery and gloom as tightly as she clutches her handbag is Jeanette, one of the three women in the life of Barney Cashman, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." Television and screen actor Al Lewis has the part of Barney in The Mansion dinner theater's current production of the Neil Simon comedy and California actress Dee Rutledge portrays Jeanette. "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" has performances at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday each week through Oct. 29. Table reservations are available through the theater office, 563-1133 or 367-8658.

Delay on CB license funds likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sorry, CBers, but it looks as though you won't get your CB license fee refund before next year at the earliest.

The Federal Communications Commission announced several days ago it was beginning a study of how to refund an estimated $55 million in fees to broadcasters and others who paid more than $20 for licenses.

But it postponed any study of how to refund CB license fees ranging from $4 to $20 until later this year, with the actual refunds unlikely until next year.

At the same time, the court said the FCC must refund all fees collected between 1970 and 1976. An estimated $163 million, much of it collected from CBers, are at stake. The commission decided to consider refunding the larger fees first.

Two noteworthy exhibitions to close Sunday at museum

Two noteworthy exhibitions at Midland's Museum of the Southwest are due to close soon.

A display titled "Indian Baskets of Western North America," presenting fine examples of basketry from numerous Southwestern and West Coast tribes, will close Sunday afternoon. The show, on loan from the Smithsonian Institution's traveling exhibition service, includes baskets from such Southwestern tribes as the Hopi, Navajo, Apache, Pima, Chemehuevi and Papago Indians, and such West Coast and Pacific Northwest tribes as the Klukkat, Hupa, Mission, Nez Perce, Makah and Eskimo Indians.

Scheduled to close late next week is a display of artifacts recovered from Spanish ships which sank off the South Texas coast in the 16th Century. The display, titled "Treasure, People, Ships and Dreams," has been assembled under auspices of the Texas Antiquities Committee and is being circulated to selected Texas museums. The Midland Museum of the Southwest is the first museum in this region to have the exhibition, which presents such items as cannon, coins, navigational aids, eating utensils, tools and religious objects.

The Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., is open to the public free of charge between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. each weekday, and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

'Great Chefs' delicious

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

"WHO IS KILLING THE GREAT CHEFS OF EUROPE?" serves a menu of belly-laughs and murder amid the haute cuisine. Except for a couple of lapses of taste, the results are delicious. The dialogue is bright, the pace fast, and the view of Europe's finest restaurants is eye-filling. George Segal is a fast-food magnate trying to conquer the continent. Jacqueline Bisset is his ex-wife, a premiere pastry chef. They combine as effectively as the screwball comedy teams of the 1930s. Robert Morley as a gourmand par excellence chews up the scenery and everything else in sight; he is superb, the solid foundation for the film's fun, as well as its menace. A high-calorie treat. Rated PG.

"THE BIG FIX" casts Richard Dreyfuss as a former campus revolutionary reduced to industrial spying as a private investigator. He soon gets into heavier stuff: dirty work inside a political campaign, murder of his college sweetheart, attacks by Mafia hitmen, etc. The action is slow to start, then winds through a bewildering number of alleyways. Dreyfuss prevents chaos by his sure-handed (though one is in a plaster cast) portrayal of Moses Wine. He is the archetypal private eye: cynical, slovenly, opportunistic but ultimately moral. Director Jeremy Paul Kagan gives as vivid a view of modern Los Angeles as did the makers of the 1940s Philip Marlowe whodunits. Rated PG, with moderate swearing and violence.

Latin American art display at museum

Dallasite Billie Grawunder this weekend will bring a collection of Latin American folk art to the Shop of the Southwest at the Museum of the Southwest.

The show and sale, open to the public at no charge, will be presented between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday, and from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at 1705 W. Missouri Ave.

Ms. Grawunder, who now owns a shop devoted to Latin American folk art in Dallas' Quadrangle shopping complex, holds a B.A. degree in Spanish history from Texas Christian University and a master's degree from the University of Oklahoma. She has done additional graduate work at the University of the Americas in Mexico City and she has taught Spanish in the Fort Worth public schools. She also has lived and taught in Mexico and has worked with the Pan American Student Good Neighbor Commission.

Ms. Grawunder, who makes a buying trip to Latin America every four to six weeks, opened her shop because she felt there was a need in Dallas to expose the public to more than tourist art. Her basic purpose with her shop has been to show the public the true, worthwhile arts of Mexico and Central America — arts that reflect the high quality of items produced in those regions.

"Most countries, such as Guatemala, play to the hands of the tourist, although they have truly fine arts," she said. For her upcoming exhibition at the Museum of the Southwest, she has said she plans to present a few samplings of "old Guatemala" and Peru, along with colonial antiques from Colombia and fine representations of the cultures of all those nations.

A special feature of her show and sale here will be the continuous showing of films depicting the work of Central American artists and artisans.

The movie will deal with the relationship between a man and two women. Alan J. Pakula will direct from a script by James L. Brooks.

Mother and daughter share a light-hearted moment in "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds," a special production at Midland Community Theatre. The Paul Zindel drama, winner of a Pulitzer Prize, resumes its performance schedule at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Theater II of Theatre

Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave. The drama will play weekends through late October and seating may be reserved through the box office, 682-4111. Trudie Thomason, right, has the role of the mother, Beatrice, and Lori Skelton, left, portrays daughter Ruth. (Staff Photo)

Reiner ready for comeback try

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last summer, Rob Reiner wrote, produced and starred in a family-comedy show, "Free Country," his first work for ABC since exiting Archie Bunker's famous tribe at CBS.

Alas, his series about separation and separate careers in later years. Reiner plays the boy and his wife, Penny "Laverne and Shirley" Marshall, the girl. He wrote "Friends" with his scribbling partner, Phil Mishkin. As might be expected, he's proud of the film.

As might not be expected, he still likes to very simple," he said. Nowadays, "you have to have an instant success or they yank you off the air. I can understand that."

"Because networks are mostly interested in ratings, which mean higher advertising dollars for them. However, there's one little grey area they don't really get into."

"And that is: A show that has substance to it, quality to it, if it's different than other shows, it needs time for the audience to acclimate itself to what you're doing."

"History has shown that any program that departs from the norm takes a while for the audience to understand."

He cited "All in the Family" — which he left after its eighth season but will visit at least once this season — as a prime example.

When it began in January 1971, he said, "it was a (ratings) disaster. We did 13 shows and nobody saw them. But we repeated them in the summer. Eventually, the audience began picking up on it."

He said he tried to get such audience-building time for "Free Country" from ABC, but had no luck, although they did live up to an agreement with him to do five episodes and air them this summer.

What he'd sought, he said, was for ABC to change its plans, order 13 shows, start the series in January and repeat it in the summer in the "Family" manner to see if TV history would be repeated.

"It might still have been a failure," Reiner conceded. "But at least I would have had the chance to say, 'Yes, we had 26 weeks and the audience didn't like us.'"

Authentic Texas music at Amon Carter Museum

FORT WORTH — Authentic Texas music from throughout the state will be heard at the Amon Carter Museum this month and next.

The museum this Sunday begins its Texas Traditional Music series, featuring musicians performing the six principal types of ethnic music in the state — Anglo, Black, Chicano, Cajun, Czech and German. The series is funded in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

The series, to be offered for the next six Sundays, beginning at 2:30 p.m., will be presented in the Carter Museum theater. Tickets for each performance will be $3.50 and must be purchased in the museum bookstore on the day preceding each program. Seating is limited and no tickets will be sold at the doors on performance days.

Musicians in the series were selected by graduate students in the Department of Ethnomusicology at The University of Texas at Austin. The students under the supervision of Dave Stanley have been traveling throughout the state in recent months, looking for performers whose music reflects the tradition and heritage of a particular ethnic group.

The students have researched thoroughly both the kinds of music and the performers, and the results of their surveys will form the program notes to be distributed to the audience at each of the museum concerts. The notes will give background information on the musicians and also will trace the development of each type of music, tying it to its eastern or European heritage.

Most of the musicians to be performing in the series are not fulltime professional, even though most of them have been playing for many years. They are engaged in a variety of livelihoods but each shares a commitment to preserving his musical heritage. Many of the performers have been playing since childhood and first learned their musical craft from parents or grandparents. The music they play today is both a personal expression and the reflection of a long cultural tradition.

The opening "act" in the music series will be Don Santiago and Flaco Jimenez from San Antonio who will perform norteno music from the South Texas barrios. The second program on Oct. 22 will feature Felix Pehl's old-time "oompah" band from Fredericksburg. Blues pianist Alex Moore from Dallas will be the third featured performer in the series on Oct. 29. Other programs are planned for the first half of November.

The music series has been coordinated by William Howze, director of special programs at the Amon Carter Museum.

Jerome Hines to present concert

LUBBOCK — Acclaimed Metropolitan Opera bass Jerome Hines will present a special concert in Lubbock's First United Methodist Church Sunday evening.

Hines' program will include operatic arias, religious works and musical comedy selections. Admission to the 7:30 p.m. recital will be free, but complimentary reserved seat tickets should be picked up in advance at the church office. Remaining seating will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Hines, who made his debut performance with the San Francisco Opera in 1941, has been on the Metropolitan Opera artist roster since 1946. He has been heard in the world's leading opera houses, including Milan's La Scala, London's Covent Garden, Munich's Bavarian State Opera House and Buenos Aires' Teatro Colon, and he has sung leading roles in such musicals as "South Pacific" and "Man of La Mancha."

Hines published his autobiography, "This Is My Story, This Is My Song," in 1968, and he also is the author of a volume of Christian plays, "Tim Who-soever." He has a third book due for publication late this year.

Railroad Commission spokesman surprised at pollution reports

R-T Staff Writer

A Texas Railroad Commission official said Tuesday he was "surprised" by reports of the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife that excessive amounts of oil and grease may be being discharged into Whalen Lake in Andrews County and called the environmental concerns about the situation "exaggerated."

Phil Russell, director of field operations for the Railroad Commission also disputed claims by the Parks and Wildlife Department and the U.S. Department of Interior that possible oil contamination of Whalen Lake and other West Texas playa lakes could be responsible for any migratory bird deaths or for ground water contamination.

Meanwhile, the Midland office of the Railroad Commission announced the commission is awaiting results of tests local chemists had conducted at the lake last week.

Russell said his office would probably be aware of the findings later today.

The Railroad Commission tests overlap chemical analyses conducted by the Parks and Wildlife Department during separate visits to the lake, located 15 miles west of Andrews, on Sept. 28 and Oct. 4.

Jim Roberts, supervisor of the Parks and Wildlife Department's pollution surveillance program, said the tests revealed "excessive amounts of oil and grease at the discharge points," noting readings of 176.2 parts per million and 52.2 parts per million respectively on the two days.

"The normally acceptable levels of oil and grease are 20 to 25 parts per million. I expect the commission will take a very dim view of the 176.2 reading, which is high by anyone's standards," Roberts said Tuesday.

Whalen Corp., a Dallas-based subsidiary of Triton Oil and Gas Corp., also of Dallas, has been authorized by the Railroad Commission to discharge 200,000 barrels of brine per month into Whalen Lake, a 320-acre playa lake which serves as a refuge for migratory waterfowl during late fall and winter.

The Parks and Wildlife Department tests are to be presented as evidence for an Oct. 26 hearing in Austin when the Railroad Commission will review disposal methods by the Whalen Corp. at the lake.

A 1974 renewal discharge permit issued by the Railroad Commission indicated that no waste oil should be discharged into the lake.

If oil and grease is discharged into the lake over a five-month period at the rate of 176.2 parts per million, there would be 35 barrels of oil being dumped into the lake, according to Parks and Wildlife Department calculations.

There would be 10 barrels of oil discharged into the lake each month if the agency's 52.2 parts per million reading were applied.

Environmentalists have claimed that a dime-sized area covered by oil will prove fatal to waterfowl.

The Interior Department and the Parks and Wildlife Department have reported several hundred bird kills at Whalen Lake and other playa lakes now under investigation by both agencies.

However, Russell said the Railroad Commission has been unable to substantiate any bird kills related to disposal practices at the lakes.

"I think it was blown out of proportion," he said in a telephone interview from his Austin office Tuesday afternoon.

"Before this came up at a federal grand jury in Midland last year, we never realized the fact that wildlife are being bothered by the operation. We've been operating the same way for years and never knew that a little oil and grease in the water evidently had some kind of effect on the birds."

Russell said he has been disturbed recently by telephone calls from reporters about the upcoming hearing in which the Railroad Commission will ultimately decide whether the Whalen Corp. can continue any discharges into Whalen Lake.

"I've been on the telephone all day with reporters from UPI (United Press International)," he said.

Although he remarked that Parks and Wildlife Department test results showed excessive discharges, the official said the Railroad Commission had its own tests to consider along with other evidence to be presented at the hearing.

Russell said he believed "that a federal grand jury representing the people for all over West Texas" had put the question of bird kills to rest by not returning any indictments.

The grand jury had referred the matter to the Railroad Commission, taking a position that the lake situation came under the state agency's jurisdiction.

The commission, following an April hearing last year, granted Whalen Corp. a permit to continue disposal into Whalen Lake with the stipulation the company would have to make certain improvements in its disposal methods, and that the permit would be reviewed in late 1978. The commission will review that permit at the hearing later this month.

Clarence Stumpf, assistant director of field operations for the Railroad Commission, said there was a possibility of birds being adversely affected by oil discharges in the lake, but contended that the chance was very minimal. He said environmentalists and ecologists are mistaking iron sulphide deposits at the lake for oil.

"But we don't say that it isn't serious. That's why we had the hearing last year and have one scheduled for this year," he said.

"The tests (Parks and Wildlife Department) are higher than we'd like to see. But it appears that they are fluctuating quite a bit," Stumpf said.

"We are getting into a range where you can see a little bit of oil in some areas of the lake."

Stumpf said the most recent chemical tests conducted by the Railroad Commission show a reading of about 50 parts per million at the discharge point.

Ismael Nava, a San-Angelo-based chemist who accompanied Roberts on the Parks and Wildlife Department tests, said the fluctuation in readings is due to the fact that there was "no activity" on one inspection day and "heavy action" on the other day.

The official said the permit granted to Whalen Corp. last year did not reflect the studies conducted by Parks and Wildlife Department even though the director of the agency requested to the railroad commission that the findings be made part of the application.

"I hope our studies are presented at the hearing this year. We are just trying to do whatever we can to alleviate the problems out there. We want to benefit the migratory birds," he said.

Defenders of Wildlife, a nationwide animal protectionist group which has its headquarters in Washington, D.C., reportedly is planning a major law suit later this year against all parties involved in the alleged pollution of several West Texas playa lakes.

The organization is contending that several playa lakes and unlined open "skimming" pits scattered throughout West Texas are resulting in massive bird kills and contamination of ground water.

Stumpf said the commission knows of discharges going into just three playa lakes and added only Whalen Lake posed a problem.

"I disagree with them (Parks and Wildlife Department) that there haven't been any improvements out there. The Whalen Corp. has made vast improvements. The people have done a hell of a lot out there."

Oil and grease allegedly are discharged with brine water into open pits located near playa lakes throughout West Texas. The U.S. Interior Department has said it regards the pits and playa lakes as "death traps" for migratory birds. (Staff Photo by Mark Vogler)

Welch turns Mr. October into pumpkin

Los Angeles Dodgers seize two-game margin

NEW YORK (AP) — Young Bob Welch turned Mr. October into a pumpkin, tricking Reggie Jackson and treating the Los Angeles Dodgers to a cozy two-game lead as the 75th World Series jets here for Game 3 Friday night.

The Dodgers' pulsating 4-3 triumph Wednesday night gave them a 2-0 edge, and only five teams in history have come back from that kind of hole to win the best-of-seven Series.

"I know where we're at," said Guidry, 25-3 in the regular season, plus a victory over Kansas City in the American League playoffs. "We've been against it before. We had to come back from 14 games out and then beat Boston and win a playoff (against Kansas City.)"

"We've been down all year and fought back," said third baseman Graig Nettles, the main culprit in the Yanks' slew of missed opportunities in the heart-breaking second-game loss. "This is nothing new for us."

RIGHT-HANDER Don Sutton, 2-0 in previous World Series decisions and 15-11 this season, admits he doesn't have Guidry's dominating power, but "on most game days I give a pretty good accounting of myself."

For the defending champion Yanks to regain the winning touch, they need a typical Guidry effort and some hitting from somebody besides Jackson. With starters Chris Chambliss, Mickey River and Willie Randolph sidelined with injuries in Game 2, the burden falls heavier on Nettles.

The Yankee third baseman came through in the field, with two spectacular plays, but fell short at the plate, striking out feebly three times and leaving four New York runners on base, three of whom were in scoring position.

"Those two dives (on his fielding gems) on the cement infield really took it out of me," said the Yanks' leading home run hitter in the regular season who is 1-for-8 in the Series. "I've never had dives like that wear me out so much."

"I LOST all my energy. I felt like I got hit by a truck. This freeway here isn't even listed on the map."

Jackson knocked in all three Yankee runs, and had a chance for more October heroics with two out and two on in the ninth.

Rookie Welch had just retired his first batter, Thurman Munson, when Jackson, the home run hero of last year's Series, strode to the plate. Welch fired nine fastballs, finally fanning the slugger on a 3-2 pitch.

In one sequence, the poised rookie pitcher shook off catcher Steve Yeager in an effort to make Jackson think the fastball wasn't coming.

"I told him to shake me off," said Yeager. "I touched my mask and shook my head. We did it to confuse Jackson."

AFTER STRIKING out, Jackson tossed his bat in anger and stormed off the field, bumping into Manager Bob Lemon in the dugout. Lemon turned around and pushed him back.

In the clubhouse, a subdued Jackson evaded the question of the pushing match with Lemon.

Asked about it, he said: "I can't tell you. I don't know. That's the way it goes."

He was, however, gracious about losing the one-on-one game with Welch.

"I didn't do the job," he said. "The man beat me fair and square. I'm not frustrated. I'm not angry. I'm not disappointed. I'm proud. I'm not gonna be down."

"I'm still a good player. He won. Give the man credit."

Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda gives Welch lots of credit.

"One of the big reasons for us winning the pennant was bringing up Bobby from the minors," said the ebullient skipper. "We were 6½ games out when we called him up."

FLUSHED WITH the thrill of victory, Lasorda ran from the dugout to the clubhouse and shouted, "What an exhibition."

It certainly was an exhibition of poise by the 21-year-old flamethrower. "Certain pitchers have that attribute and others get tight," said Lasorda.

Facing Munson and Jackson with the tying and winning runs on base was quite a Series baptism, but Welch was not fazed.

"I just wanted to go after them and make them hit my pitch," said Welch. "That's why I went after them with my fast ball."

"I'm happy Tommy gave me the ball. I'm happy he stuck with me. I love him."

RON CEY'S three-run homer off Catfish Hunter in the sixth was the key blow for the Dodgers, who now have hit at least one homer in their last seven Series games, two short of the record.

Hunter had just retired the tough Steve Garvey when Cey slammed his two-out homer over the left field fence. "I was just looking for something I could hit hard," Cey said.

So now the Yanks go back home in a hole, but some longtime Yankee watchers were buoyed by the return of turmoil to the "Bronx Zoo."

Besides the Jackson-Lemon incident, Rivers got into a shoving match with traveling secretary Bill Kane over Rivers' desire to bring a friend on the team bus, and one report, incredibly, has Lemon only being voted a half-share by the players at a recent team meeting.

"I didn't attend the meeting," said Yankee outfielder Lou Piniella. "But I understand they voted Lem a half share. That's fair, isn't it?"

Cey wins it

Rivers involved in disturbance

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Center fielder Mickey Rivers of the New York Yankees was involved in a disturbance on the team bus Wednesday night en route to Dodger Stadium for the second game of the World Series against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Rivers apparently attempted to get a friend on the bus and became involved in a shouting match with team traveling secretary Bill Kane.

The angry Rivers got off the bus and took a taxi to the stadium with his friend.

Rivers did not play in the 4-3 loss to the Dodgers that sent the Yankees home to New York trailing 0-2 in the best-of-seven series.

Yankee Manager Bob Lemon was asked about the Rivers-Kane confrontation.

"It was a misinterpretation of the rules on who rode the team bus. There was no fight," as some reported, Lemon said.

"There was no real trouble ... and I would also like to say something about the questions I've been getting about curfew problems. Nobody ever misses our curfews because we don't have any."

Dodgers fear New York crowds

NEW YORK (AP) — A year ago in Yankee Stadium, fans pelted the Los Angeles Dodgers with balls, beer cans and assorted debris so it's natural several of the National Leaguers aren't enthusiastic about the return trip.

"The people are trying to distract you," said third baseman Ron Cey, who drove in all the runs as Los Angeles won World Series Game 2 by a 4-3 count.

"They get nasty, but we have to face up to them. It's unfortunate fans have to be that way. We didn't like the treatment we got in New York. We think opponents are treated fair in Los Angeles and we didn't get that in New York."

Not only are the fans tough on Yankee opponents but the big park hurts the power hitters.

"I lost two home runs there last year and got one," Cey said. "You can't expect to hit to left-center and right-center and have them go out of the park."

THE THIRD game of the 75th annual World Series comes Friday night following a travel day. Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda said his club planned a workout on arrival in New York today.

First baseman Steve Garvey, the Dodgers' leading hitter during the regular season, said the New York fans don't bother him and added, "We have to take it positively."

Don Sutton, the starting Dodger pitcher Friday night, said that pitching in Yankee Stadium is not something new, "but something I've always wanted to do. As a youngster I always envisioned myself as a New York Yankee."

Still, he's spent his baseball career as a Los Angeles Dodger.

Lasorda downplayed the "hate Yankee Stadium" angle when he said, "Sometimes when a couple of fans throw things, it has a tendency to make a lot of look bad. Our guys look forward to playing there."

But Reggie Smith doesn't look forward to being hit on the head with a ball thrown from the stands as he was a year ago. It remains to be seen if he wears a batting helmet while playing in the outfield.

One Dodger who looks forward to playing in Yankee Stadium is relief pitcher Terry Forster, who has appeared in both of the Dodgers two victories.

"During my six years in the American League, I think the adrenalin pumped a little more when I pitched in Yankee Stadium. Pitching in the World Series might make me pump up a little extra. This is a great pitcher's park."

"The fans don't bother me. Once I start warming up, a bomb might go off and I wouldn't hear it. But it does bother me when they throw things because that might end everything for you."

BOB WELCH, the 21-year-old pitching rookie, wasn't worried about his first outing in New York. Pitching to two batters ending the game may have cost him a starting assignment in Game 4 on Saturday, but the dramatic relief appearance was worth it.

Welch, a 6-foot-3 right-hander, was called in with one out and runners on first and second in the ninth. He got Thurman Munson on a fly out and then encountered clutch hitting star Reggie Jackson.

The duel lasted four minutes until Jackson swung and missed a third strike.

"Tommy just gave me the ball and told me to throw strikes," said the youngster who pitched when the Dodgers clinched the National League West and turned in a winning relief performance in the opening game of the playoffs. "Against Jackson, I had to throw the fastball," he said. "I had to make him hit my best pitch."

Jackson swung from his heels on the first pitch and missed. Then came an inside pitch that put Reggie down. Then Jackson, who hit three home runs in last year's World Series finale against these same Dodgers, fouled off three pitches. Another ball, another foul and finally a swinging strike three.

"Yeah, I was excited," the pitcher said. "On my first pitch to Jackson, he had a chance to hit it but missed."

CEY, WHO singled in the first run and homered for the next three, said he wasn't worried when the rookie pitcher was called in.

"He's done an outstanding job for us since he came up. We went right at Jackson with nothing but fast balls and he got the job done."

Lasorda was asked about a possible start for Welch and answered, "Before this, we had plans of starting him in the fourth game. But in the World Series, you just can't plan ahead."

But the manager didn't rule out a possible start for the youngster as the World Series progresses.

Lemon is not convincing

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees' Manager Bob Lemon said what had to be said for a team down 0-2 in the World Series.

"We came from behind before. We have character. We'll bring it to the Dodgers before it's over," said Lemon.

But the florid-faced Lemon didn't sound too convincing.

The Dodgers are almost possessed with the need to win this 75th annual Series as a memorial for their late coach, Jim Gilliam.

LOS ANGELES won 4-3 Wednesday night, with little third baseman Ron Cey driving in all the runs with a single and a three-run homer.

Reggie Jackson, the Yankees' designated hitter and one of the game's premier sluggers, quietly seethed after the game.

Jackson struck out on 3-2 pitch in the ninth inning with the tying and potential winning run on base.

"We're not going to quit," Jackson said. "We're not going to give up yet. Champions don't quit."

But Jackson, a logical thinker, admitted that the job ahead was close to monumental.

"The Dodgers are going to be tough to crack," Jackson said as a mob of inquisitors huddled nearby.

SOMEONE ASKED Lemon if he compared his team's position to what he confronted when replacing the resigned Billy Martin in July.

The Yankees were 10½ games behind when Lemon took over.

"In July I had two months to do something," said the Yankees' manager. "Now I have only three or four days. I'm limited."

Lemon expressed the hope that two injured regulars, center fielder Mickey Rivers and first baseman Chris Chambliss, would be ready for Friday night's third game of the best of seven Series.

NEITHER PLAYED in the second game. Rivers has a bad leg, and Chambliss is nursing an injured hand. Regular second baseman Willie Randolph already is lost with an injured leg.

Lemon said he expected Rivers to play in the third game, but wasn't as sure of Chambliss.

The second game hung in the balance in the hectic top of the ninth, with Paul Blair on first and Bucky Dent at second, two out and Jackson at the plate.

Jackson faced reliever Bob Welch, who was pitching in Albuquerque in July. The count went to 3-2, and the crowd of 55,892 waited for the payoff pitch.

Welch threw a fastball up and in and Jackson struck out.

JACKSON WAS furious after swinging and missing. He stalked away from the plate, jerking his bat, finally tossing the wood into the New York dugout, where players still were filing into the runway to the locker room.

Jackson bumped against Lemon as he stomped into the dugout.

The Yankees' outfielder was an angry man.

He was asked if that wasn't uncharacteristic, since only the night before he made a point to say how unemotional he was when playing baseball.

"It was unlike me," he said, refusing to elaborate on whether there was something else disturbing him.

"I battled him as long and as hard as I could," said Jackson of his confrontation with young Welch. Jackson fouled off four pitches in the sequence

Red Devils hope to run season record to 5-0

By STEVE O'BRIEN
R-T Sports Writer

With only a couple of exceptions, area prep football players will be marching into battle against enemies other than district opponents for the final time Friday night. For the last time, this year anyway, they will take the field with nothing more at stake than pride and perhaps a state ranking here or there.

The Rankin Red Devils hope to complete a 5-0 sweep of their non-conference opponents when they entertain Menard. Rankin stands 4-0 on the season, their latest outing a 36-7 breeze past winless Ozona, a team which lost to Menard only one week before.

WITH AN open date last week, Menard's victory over Ozona was also their last outing. But that's just about where any similarities in the Rankin and Menard wins end. While Rankin was never really in trouble in their bout with Ozona, the Yellowjackets had to fight for their lives to pull out a 23-21 victory over the common opponent.

It's hard to lose games when you don't get scored on and that's why the Red Devils are 4-0. Ozona's first quarter touchdown last week are the only points scored on the Rankin defense this year. They've been impossible to run against and passing has been even more difficult. Opponents have averaged only 50 yards on the ground and 47 in the air.

AMONG RANKIN'S District 6-A counterparts, those impressive stats are topped only by Iraan, the state's No. 7 ranked Class A team, who have given up only 95 yards per game and have given up only three points.

But, Iraan is a little farther down the road for the Red Devils. They've still got some unfinished business outside the conference.

Though district warfare is still a week away for Rankin, very little else is on the minds of the Stanton Buffaloes. The Buffs take to the road for their second league game of the season, a contest that could prove significant in the District 5-A final standings.

LAST WEEK'S 21-8 victory over Ropesville gave Stanton a good jump in the race and also gave them their second straight win after a pair of opening losses. Their opponent, Shallowater, was a first time loser in district play, dropping a 20-8 decision to defending league champ Seagraves.

It was the first loss of the season for Shallowater.

Andrews, also in the final round of non-district action, takes its 4-1 mark to Kermit to test the once-beaten and once-tied Yellow Jackets.

Andrews is another one of those area schools that have given up ground so grudgingly. The Ponies have allowed opponents only 130 yards per game and only 60 of those rushing.

TAILBACK VAN PEARCY continues to spark the Andrews offensive game. The big sophomore has rushed for 427 yards and has scored five times.

Running backs Todd Ethridge and Alfred McGilbra give Kermit a solid 1-2 punch in the backfield. Ethridge has picked up 332 yards at a six yard per carry clip while McGilbra has tallied 329 yards.

McCamey entertains Eunice, N.M., in their final non-league game Friday. The Badgers stand 3-2 on the year after last week's 6-0 win over former district foe Van Horn.

Lamesa is also at home, playing host to Lubbock Estacado. District action also begins next week for the Golden Tornadoes. Reagan County and Crane both have open dates this week.

FRIDAY'S SCHEDULE

Dewayne Turner sighs with relief

Dewayne Turner probably couldn't help cracking a smile and breathing a deep sigh of relief when he got the word from the team physician. After all, the good doctor had just informed the Rankin coach that the Red Devil offense was alive and healthy and likely to remain that way for at least another week.

Well, the doctor wasn't actually examining all 11 offensive players, but the one he was checking over on the sidelines in Ozona last week was the spark behind the force, the determining factor in Rankin's offensive success.

THAT FELLOW on the sidelines under the doctor's supervision was running back Richard Barrett and his fourth quarter knee injury caused many anxious moments for Rankin coaches and fans alike.

That anxiety quickly diminished when the word came from the bench. The knee was only deeply bruised, no ligament or cartilage damage. The prognosis — Barrett would be ready to play next week.

Anyway you put it, that's good news for Rankin fans, and if Barrett is at full steam for Friday's contest with Menard, it ought to be quite a show.

THE SENIOR CO-CAPTAIN has been the heart and soul of the Rankin offense and one of the biggest reasons the Red Devils are 4-0 heading into their final non-district contest of the season. In those four outings, Barrett has rushed for 563 yards on 103 carries and scored 10 times.

Those figures are amazing enough, but are absolutely uncanny when viewed in the context of Rankin's overall offense. His 563 yards represent almost 2/3 of the team rushing total and over half of the total offense. His 10 touchdowns give him 60 of Rankin's 109 total points.

In a word, Barrett is the Rankin offense. So, to stop Rankin, you very naturally have to stop Barrett.

"WE FEEL like people are gonna have to stop our fullback," Turner said. "He doesn't have any speed — he'll break out in the open and get caught from behind — but we'll give him the ball 20 or 25 times a game and let him go."

"We just line up in our Wing T and run most of the time and pass when we have to."

Well, with Barrett busting for six yards here and eight yards there, they have not had to pass often, only about 10 times per game. Passing with a healthy Richard Barrett in the backfield is like folding with a straight flush.

HE'S THEIR money man and with him the Red Devils have been laughing all the way to the bank. In his first outing of the season against Eldorado, Barrett had 179 yards and two touchdowns. Against Sanderson he rolled for 112 yards and scored four times. He burned Imperial for 125 yards and a pair of scores in the third outing.

Last week, Barrett accumulated 147 yards on 29 carries and scored twice before leaving the game midway through the final period with the knee bruise.

Of course, the one-sidedness of Rankin's offense and Barrett's glossy totals make him a marked man any time the Red Devils take the field. Opponents will be well aware that stopping Barrett is the key to beating Rankin.

But then, knowing that and doing anything about it are two different matters.

LAST WEEK: Last time around we were correct on 16 predictions while missing four others. That mark brings the season total to 97-40 for a .708 percentage.

RANKIN 32, MENARD 12: Richard Barrett is healthy — nothing more need be said.

ANDREWS 13, KERMIT 6: If the Mustang defenders play up to past performances and the offense can manage a couple of scores, Andrews should get its fifth win.

ESTACADO 18, LAMESA 8: Lamesa's looking for their second win of the season. After this one, they'll still be looking.

STANTON 20, SHALLOWATER 14: The Buffaloes still have their eyes on a district title and they should be in sound shape after their second league win.

MCCAMEY 14, EUNICE, N.M. 6: Once again, the Badgers should get a scrappy defensive performance and just enough offense to pull off their fourth win.

POTPOURRI: Odessa Permian 34, Abilene High 12; Odessa High 24, Abilene Cooper 21; Midland High 20, Big Spring 0; Midland Lee 28, San Angelo Central 20; Fort Stockton 30, Anthony Gadsden 6; Monahans 17, Sweetwater 6; San Angelo Lakeview 24, Ector 14; Pecos 26, Snyder 14; Brownfield 14, Hereford 6; Iraan 47, Ozona 6; Sonora 20, Wall 6; Plains 18, Anton 7; Forsan 6, Ropesville 0; Seagraves 20, O'Donnell 12; Clint 28, Fabens 17; Marfa 22, Alpine 8; Junction 20, Llano 13.

Rankin squares off against Menard

Rebels, Bulldogs to produce coup

Just when it looks like this corner is almost an expert on picking Class AAAA football games, a week like last week comes along to ruin a good percentage. Well folks, last week was one of those weeks even though all District 5-4A games were correct.

Highland Park started off by losing by 10 points to Lake Highlands and then the teams up on the Panhandle and South Plains really let me down, but that isn't too surprising because most of them are awfully weak this year. All that is but Plainview.

Plainview's Bulldogs have an excellent chance of going as far as the quarterfinals since they would face the Amarillo and El Paso district champions in the first two rounds.

Anyway, last week the record was 32 correct and 12 incorrect to make it 160 right and 42 wrong on the year for a percentage of .769 to drop below 80 per cent for the first time since the opening weekend.

And now, looking to games this week and there are some dandy ones on tap.

MIDLAND LEE entertains the San Angelo Central Bobcats in Memorial Stadium and Coach Gil Barósh is a little worried about some nagging injuries, most of them ankle sprains that the Rebel Express outfit picked up in that thrilling 21-20 win over Odessa High last week. The Bobcats are down this year compared to the past, but Glen Payne can still be a game-breaker for Central. Going with

Archie makes move to QB

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

Huntsville quarterback Lloyd Archie has been adjusting to position changes since the end of last season but so far opponents can't adjust to Archie—no matter what position he plays.

The Hornets, ranked No. 1 in Class AAA of The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, trailed Houston Furr 7-0 until the final six minutes last week.

Then it was Archie's turn.

Grogan may miss game

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Quarterback Steve Grogan of the New England Patriots is walking around with his passing arm in a sling and his status uncertain for Sunday's National Football League game with the Bengals in Cincinnati.

"There is only a 50-50 chance he'll be able to play," New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks said Wednesday after Grogan sat out practice. "He is questionable at this time because of an infection in his passing hand."

"He's taking antibiotics, which normally need 48 hours to show significant change. He started the medication Tuesday when there was a lot of swelling in his hand."

Archie engineered a two-play 66-yard drive with a 26-yard pass to Larry Mock and on the next play ran 40 yards for a touchdown. Archie missed the extra point kick and Huntsville still trailed 7-6.

Moments later Archie returned a punt 42 yards and passed 23 yards to Charlie Williams for the winning touchdown and completed a two-point conversion pass to Mark Adams.

Tailback Kenny Jones added a security touchdown with 2:11 left in the game and Archie kicked the extra point to complete the 21-point surge and earn mention this week in The Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll. Archie, an all-state receiver last season, had been ticketed for a move to wingback or tailback in Huntsville's power-I offense. But when the starting quarterback suddenly moved to Houston, Coach Joe Clements didn't hesitate to fill the gap with Archie.

"He had never worked down at quarterback until Aug. 14," Clements said. "I'd talked to him all summer about moving to either tailback or wingback. He's had to make a super adjustment in a hurry but he's managed it."

"I can't think of anyone I'd rather have back there than Archie. In two seasons as a receiver, Archie caught 70 passes for 1,366 yards and 18 touchdowns. His top effort came last year against Aldine Carver when he caught seven passes for 245 yards and three touchdowns.

So far this season, Archie has rushed 55 times for 388 yards and four touchdowns and completed 21 of 47 passes for 328 yards and five touchdowns.

Archie also was an all-state basketball selection last season leading the Hornets to the state Class AAA championship, and qualified for the regional track meet in the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Joining Archie on this week's Honor Roll is San Antonio Burbank quarterback John Zertuche, who rushed 120 yards on 17 carries including one touchdown run, and completed seven of 16 passes for 119 yards and two more touchdowns in a key 28-14 District 31-4A victory over San Antonio Highlands.

In other outstanding schoolboy performances:

—Aldine's Richard Hrozek scored touchdowns the first two times he carried the ball on runs of 16 and 84 yards and finished with 259 yards rushing on 19 carries and three touchdowns in a 38-21 victory over Baytown Lee.

—Asherton's Alvaro Zamora rushed 134 yards on 12 carries, scored three touchdowns and contributed 11 tackles on defense in a 26-6 victory over D'Hanis. It was Asherton's first victory over D'Hanis in 25 years.

—Van Hughes rushed 286 yards and scored four touchdowns in Axtell's 44-0 shutout of Itasca. Hughes had 210 yards at halftime.

—Senior halfback Anthony Hutchinson of Converse Judson rushed 18 times for 295 yards and scored on runs of 72, 73, 68 and 31 yards in a 48-0 victory over South San Antonio.

—Ray Scott and Wade Hunt of Amarillo Tascosa got twin 200-plus-yard performances in a 52-19 victory over El Paso Ysleta. Scott rushed 228 yards on 23 carries and scored four touchdowns and Hunt picked up 223 yards on 23 carries and scored once.

—Royce Coleman of Plainview rushed 188 yards on 28 carries and scored three touchdowns, returned two kickoffs 46 yards and caught one pass for 15 yards in a 35-26 victory over Clovis, N.M.

Hockey surprises abound as season gets underway

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Surprise, surprise: the Montreal Canadiens are unbeaten. But so are the St. Louis Blues, Vancouver Canucks and Washington Capitals ... now THAT'S a surprise.

The Canadiens, defending National Hockey League champions for three years now, waited just 4:34 to take a 1-0 lead over the "new" Minnesota North Stars. They never looked back, cruising to a 5-2 triumph in the season's opening game.

More startling events took place in three other rinks, where: —Detroit goalie Rogie Vachon, the high-priced free agent, stopped only nine of 14 St. Louis shots as the Blues recorded a 5-4 victory over the Red Wings.

—Vancouver reaped immediate results from its purchase of Swedish-born hockey talent, getting two goals from Thomas Gradin and one from Roland Eriksson in an 8-2 romp over the Colorado Rockies.

—Danny Belisle, given the coaching job just two days earlier, guided the Washington Capitals to a 4-2 triumph over the Los Angeles Kings.

Also of interest was the return to active regular-season duty of all-time great defenseman Bobby Orr, who helped the Chicago Black Hawks manage a 4-1 tie with the Atlanta Flames.

In the other NHL opener Wednesday night, the Toronto Maple Leafs edged the Penguins 3-2, snapping a string of seven opening-night successes for Pittsburgh.

The other five teams open tonight, with the Philadelphia Flyers meeting the New York Rangers, the New York Islanders at Buffalo against the Sabres and the Boston Bruins hosting Pittsburgh.

Last year's North Stars started the season with a 7-3 loss to Montreal and went on to record a miserable 18 victories. This season's version, merged over the summer with the now-defunct Cleveland Barons, displayed more players but many of the same tendencies that marked last year's dismal showing.

But Montreal's Larry Robinson, who scored a goal and set up two others, saw hope for the North Stars.

"I think they have a well-balanced club now," said the lanky defenseman. "I think it's only a matter of time before they'll be able to beat almost any club on any given night."

Blues 5, Red Wings 4
St. Louis was outshot 42-14 but won on third-period goals by Curt Bennett and Garry Unger. Dale McCourt, who went to court to stay with Detroit after being awarded to Los Angeles as compensation for Vachon, took 11 shots on Blues goalie Phil Myre but scored only once.

Vachon, meanwhile, was somewhat embarrassed. "I wanted a good start. I needed a good start, but I didn't get it," said Vachon after losing to a team that scored just 195 goals last year.

Canucks 8, Rockies 2
Vancouver also has a new look, having discarded its green, blue and white uniforms for a garish combination of red, yellow and black stripes.

Further, they sport an impressive rookie line of Gradin, Curt Fraser and third-round draft choice Stan Smyl.

The trio accounted for three goals and two assists in their eight-goal outburst against Colorado goalies Doug Favell and Bill Oleschuk. The Rockies outshot Vancouver 36-32, but that was their only edge. The Canucks led 7-0 before Ron Delorme and Joe Contini connected for Colorado.

Capitals 4, Kings 2
Belisle said he was "thrilled to death that we were able to get the win in our first game" after second-period goals by Bob Girard, Pete Scamurra and Gerry Meehan carried the Capitals past the Kings.

"I don't even know the players yet, but this eases the tension," said Belisle, who took over Monday when Tom McVie was fired.

The Washington victory ruined two Los Angeles debuts: Coach Bob Berry is 0-1 — as is goalie Ron Graham, acquired from Boston Monday.

Black Hawks 4, Flames 4
Orr, appearing in his first regular-season game since January 27, 1977 in Vancouver, said his ruined left knee — which forced him off skates for 1½ years — "doesn't bother me at all."

"I played in all the exhibition games and I feel I'm getting my stamina back," he said, "but I'm not skating as fast as I can. I'm certainly not in shape yet."

Chicago wasted a 4-2 lead, letting the Flames come back on third-period goals by Bob MacMillan and Guy Chouinard.

Maple Leafs 3, Penguins 2
Darryl Sittler scored twice to carry Toronto past Pittsburgh and snap the Penguins' opening-game winning streak at seven. Walt McKechnie scored the winner at 14:50 of the second period.

Ruidoso Jockey Club closes out track sale

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Ruidoso Sunland, a wholly owned subsidiary of the Ruidoso Jockey Club, is new owner and operator of Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park horse race tracks, the Ruidoso Jockey Club said Wednesday.

Jockey Club official Jess Burner announced that the purchase of the two southern New Mexico race tracks from Fortuna Properties "has been closed."

Burner said in a news release that Ruidoso Sunland has hired Woody Erwin, former general manager at the Downs at Santa Fe.

"Mr. Erwin has been working closely with Al Rosa, president and general manager of Fortuna, for the past two weeks to facilitate an orderly takeover," he said.

Ruidoso Sunland "will take over the operation at Sunland Park immediately and will carry on the racing program that has been approved by the New Mexico Racing Commission," he said.

The Racing Commission has granted Ruidoso Sunland a temporary license to operate at Sunland Park. "Ruidoso Sunland will make every effort to improve the quality of racing in New Mexico through the increase in the pari-mutuel handle. This, in turn will increase the purses to the horsemen," Burner said.

State Racing Commission Chairman George Maloof said late Wednesday, he was "very much elated" at the sale being closed.

"I think the new owners will bring in a new era of horse racing in New Mexico," he said. "I have great confidence in the person they have chosen as manager, and that is Woody Erwin. I think he's an outstanding person and will take racing in New Mexico to new heights," Maloof said.

The federal Securities and Exchange Commission recently approved the financing plan the Ruidoso Jockey Club proposed for purchasing the two race tracks for about $15 million.

The club said it would raise $6 million from its members, $5 million of which would be used as a down payment. The rest would be used for operating expenses.

The remaining $9 million of the purchase price going to Fortuna Corp. would be paid over a period of years, with interest.

Fortuna Corp., controlled by the Alessio family of San Diego, was pressured into selling the tracks by the Racing Commission and other opponents.

The center of the controversy was the federal felony conviction of Dominic Alessio on charges of giving a gratuity to a federal official. The incident occurred while Alessio's father was serving a federal prison sentence.

The New Mexico attorney general's office contended Fortuna should not be allowed to operate the tracks because Alessio, one of the principals, had a felony conviction.

The Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Commission also took a strong stand against continued ownership of the tracks by Fortuna.

Baseball world mourns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Gilliam, longtime Los Angeles baseball player and coach, was buried Wednesday in an emotional funeral attended by more than 2,000 people, including players from the Dodgers' World Series opponents, the New York Yankees.

The services, coming between World Series games, were attended by many of Gilliam's teammates on championship Dodger teams in Brooklyn and Los Angeles in the 1950s and '60s.

Also among the more than 2,000 people attending at Trinity Baptist Church were the present Dodger players, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, other baseball executives and players from several other teams, plus many of the fans who grew to know Gilliam as a totally dedicated and versatile team player.

Gilliam, 49, died Sunday less than four weeks after suffering a stroke and cerebral hemorrhage. The Dodgers are wearing black patches with the number 19 on their uniforms during the World Series to honor him. "We wanted to do something special for Jim," said former teammate Don Newcombe, "and I suggested to Mr. O'Malley (Peter O'Malley, Dodger team president) that we put No. 19 in the casket with him."

"He and Edwina, Jim's wife, agreed," Newcombe said. The Dodgers retired the number but said it could be used again if Gilliam's son Darryl, now 14, were to play for the Dodgers.

"I miss him already, I miss him working with the ballplayers," Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda said. Then turning to Gilliam's widow, Lasorda added: "Edwina, you can hold your head with pride. You had a man who was truly great. The Lord has taken Jim Gilliam but he'll never take away his spirit."

One of the pallbearers, Dodger Capt. Davey Lopes, was able to say only a few words, calling Gilliam a "father, friend and locker room inspiration."

Walter Alston, longtime Dodger manager, recalled Gilliam when the young player came from the Negro National League to play for the Dodger farm team in Montreal.

"He didn't hit with power, he had no arm, and he couldn't run. But he did the little things that win ball games. He never griped or complained. He was one of the most unselfish ball-players I know."

"He should have been a manager," the Rev. Jesse Jackson said in his eulogy. "He had discipline, daring and determination. But he was never to manage because of the color of his skin. No wonder he had an aneurysm. He had to smile to keep from crying."

Reggie Jackson, representing the Yankees, also joined in the eulogy.

"When I learned of Jim's death Sunday I asked God through Jesus Christ to explain why he took Jim," Jackson said. "You (God) decided that now was the best time to take him, with the World Series and everyone watching and listening, so all God's children could take a look at Jim and see what his life meant to us all."

Michigan State gets nod

By WILL GRIMSLEY

With one eye on the World Series and the other on the pom pom girls, forgive us if we have Joe Montana completing a pass to Davey Lopes or Rick Leach leaping over Thurman Munson at home plate for a touchdown.

It should be a runaway day for such powerhouses as Oklahoma, Alabama, Texas and Nebraska; a stern test for Southern Cal and Notre Dame plus a shocker for mighty Michigan, our upset special.

Season score: 149-59, .711 (a good Las Vegas number).

Oklahoma 50, Kansas 6: Even with Tommy Lott ailing, the Sooners look good enough to play in the NFL.

Southern Cal 21, Arizona State 18: The Sun Devils' iron defense holds the Trojans for a while.

Michigan State 27, Michigan 20: A longtime enmity. The Spartans anxious to break the Michigan-Ohio State axis.

Alabama 38, Florida 7: Gator steaks instead of bear meat served at this Dixie picnic.

Texas 34, North Texas 5L 6: "Hook 'em, Horns!" raises Texas quickly from its wounded pride.

Maryland 22, Syracuse 14: Coach

Jerry Claiborne is showing results with his so-called Multiple-Eye. Notre Dame 27, Pitt 21: The Irish struggle to get above .500.

Washington 19, Stanford 14: The Cardinals are tough on their home field but lose by a Flick, named Tom.

Clemson 38, Virginia 6: Charley Pell's Tigers emerging again as the class of the Atlantic Coast.

Seaver proves capable

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

With one basic observation, Tom Seaver overshadowed all the banality, all the verbosity and all the gimmickry of NBC's World Series coverage and proved he is as capable behind a microphone as he is on a pitching mound.

Why, a lot of people were wondering, had Tom Lasorda, manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, opted for left-hander Tommy John as his pitcher in Tuesday's opener against the New York Yankees? Why had he bypassed the ace of his staff, Burt Hooton, who started Wednesday's second game?

Seaver, a student and philosopher of baseball as well as the ace of the Cincinnati Reds, had the answer.

To set the scene, Seaver had literally groaned when a borderline low pitch to the Yanks' Reggie Jackson was called a ball. "Now that's a pitcher's strike," Seaver said. Then — Boom! — Jackson crashed his mammoth home run. Moments later, though, Seaver picked up the thread of his low-pitch thought.

"The primary reason that you see Tommy John opening the World Series instead of Burt Hooton is the National League umpire behind the plate, Ed Vargo," Seaver explained. "Tommy obviously is a low-ball pitcher and if he (Lasorda) had waited and had an American League umpire tomorrow (Wednesday) night, he wouldn't get many low pitches. I think that was the determining factor."

It had nothing to do with sentimentality or lefty vs. righty theory or past playoff performance or southpaws vs. the Yanks, etc. It was just another strategic case of getting the edge.

Seaver, who also hosts a syndicated sports television program, is a natural as a commentator, bringing with him not only a casual manner and breezy sense of humor but the background knowledge of a scientist of the sport — which he is.

Analyzing the composition and consistency of the dirt in front of home plates around the major leagues, for example, is not typical of your average pitcher or your average sportscaster (which, in each case, Seaver isn't).

Compared to Tom Terrific, Joe Garagiola and Tony Kubek are mere sidekicks while Curt Gowdy, recognized by many as one of the nation's best sports announcers, has been relegated this time to a behind-the-plate seat and minimum participation in the game. NBC wants him around, perhaps because it seems he's always been around ("his historical perspective" one insider said), but the network apparently doesn't want him around too much.

Garagiola, also a talk-show host, game-show host and hawk of a variety of products when he's not emceed in baseball, has a penchant for telling anecdotes ... and retelling them until they're committed to memory by the listener.

Further, NBC (and, for that matter, ABC in the league playoffs) seems to be swept up in a contest of which network can show the most replays from the most angles, sometimes on the most routine plays.

NBC proudly proclaims its "four-point isolation coverage," employing a whopping 11 cameras around the stadium. "With the cameras deployed both high and low at all key coverage positions, we're confident of capturing the revealing, conclusive look at the big play at any base," Harry Coyle, for many years NBC's baseball director, says in a pre-Series press release.

Fine. Jackson following the flight of his homer, or Mickey Rivers' near-catch of Rick Monday's sinking liner are worth a second (and maybe third) look.

But repeatedly replaying typical anybody-can-do-it hits from infield and outfield viewpoints and continuously showing Davey Lopes' error on a nonchalant toss to second base make one wonder if baseball coverage hasn't somehow gotten caught up in the instant replay mania triggered by this year's controversial officiating in pro football.

Big three test Aussies

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Andy North, John Mahaffey and Gary Player, who among them have collected the three big U.S. titles this year, tee off today at the start of a four-day campaign to wrest the world match-play championship — richest head-to-head title in the world — from Australia, where it has rested for the past two years.

The $260,000 tournament, staged each year on the Wentworth Club's 6,969-yard, par-73 "Burma Road" course, is worth $60,000 to the winner, who'll have to earn it the hard way.

There are 16 starters — six from the United States, three from Britain, two each from Australia and South Africa, and one each from Spain, Japan and New Zealand. They were to battle it out over 36 holes in the first round today. The winner will have played a daunting 144 holes in four days before he picks up his check Sunday.

Joint favorites to take the title, won last year by Australia's Graham Marsh and the year before that by his countryman David Graham, are the 22-year-old Spanish whiz kid Severiano Ballesteros and Tom Watson, twice a British Open winner but never a winner here. They both rate 9-2 in the prematch betting, with Player of South Africa, the Masters titleholder, third favorite.

Player, king of the Wentworth course with a staggering five match-play wins since the tournament first started 14 years ago, is rated at 7-1 by the bookies.

Watson gets his top betting spot as the most consistent money winner this year — nearly $380,000 in prize money without having won a major tournament in 1978. He's only played twice before in the match-play tournament, and lost fairly heavily to Ballesteros last year on this course, 5 and 4 in the second round.

U.S. Open champion Andy North and fellow Americans Andy Bean and Lee Elder have never before played this tourney.

Vasicek wins zone tourney

Midlander Vicki Vasicek defeated Kathryn Whitely of Abilene 6-2, 6-3, in the finals of the West Zone qualifying tournament here Sunday, thereby earning the right to represent the zone as the top 18-and-under player in the Texas Tennis Association's Girls Inter-Zone Championships Nov. 11-12 in Dallas.

Miss Vasicek, Midland High's two-time regional champion, blasted Kami Cross of Abilene, 6-0, 6-1, in her semifinal match while Miss Whitely was downing Kendall Martin of Odessa, 6-3, 6-1.

Both Miss Vasicek and Miss Whitely will represent the West Zone in the Inter-Zone championships.

Kelly McAfee of Odessa earned the right to participate in the Dallas tournament by capturing the 14-and-under singles championship with a 6-1, 6-1, decision over Jamie Leverett of Odessa. Miss Leverett also qualified as the runner-up.

Jones prepares for pro return

BALTIMORE (AP) — Quarterback Bert Jones of the Baltimore Colts can hardly contain his enthusiasm as he prepares for his first action in the National Football League season.

"I'm as excited as hell," Jones said.

Cincinnati retains some funny humor

CINCINNATI (AP) — Winless in six starts and offensively awful, things could be worse for Cincinnati's "Bad News" Bengals. Take it from veteran lineman Rufus Mayes, who has been with the Bengals through the good, bad and ugly.

"At least the fans aren't throwing things — yet," said the veteran offensive guard.

"I'm wearing my helmet Sunday," chimed in injured linebacker Bo Harris, who hasn't suited up all season.

The Bengals, strictly bad news while tying a club record with seven straight losses, have lost everything but their sense of humor.

"It's a comedy," said all-pro wide receiver Isaac Curtis.

A national television audience watched them hit rock bottom in Monday night's 21-0 loss to the Miami Dolphins.

General Manager Paul Brown had hoped a coaching change — in the wake of Bill Johnson's resignation last week — would put some fight back into the Bengals. Instead, under new coach Homer Rice, Cincinnati suffered its first shutout since 1970.

"Everything bad that could happen, has happened," said Curtis. "We've had it all: bad breaks and bad bounces. I'm still waiting for something good to happen."

It could be a long wait.

The Bengals, who were 11-3 in 1975 and 10-4 in 1976, appear headed for their worst season since the franchise was founded in 1968. An 0-and-16 disaster is not out of the question.

After hosting powerful New England Sunday, the Bengals play at Buffalo, then finish with a bruising schedule: Houston twice, San Diego, Oakland, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Los Angeles and Cleveland.

One victory won't turn the season around, but "it would be like adrenalin when you're having a heart attack," said Harris, who will miss most of the season with a knee injury. He is among six 1977 starters, including three all-pro players, who are either out of commission or no longer with the team.

"The thing we need more than anything else is to win. That's the only tonic," said defensive line coach Chuck Studley.

Studley acknowledged that the switch to the 3-4 defense has not been without difficulty.

"Our problem is people and execution — not defensive spacing," he said.

Cincinnati ranks last in the American Football Conference in offense, last in rushing and ranks 27th in scoring, trailing the also-winless St. Louis 66-65.

Quarterback Ken Anderson, who missed the first four weeks with a hand injury, is struggling to regain the form that made him the NFL's top passer in 1975 and 1976.

Landry's father dies

MISSION, Texas (AP) — Ray Landry, father of Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry was dead on arrival Tuesday night at McAllen General Hospital. The lifetime resident and former fire chief of this Lower Rio Grande Valley town apparently suffered a heart attack. He was 78.

Landry, who had been in declining health since suffering a stroke several years ago, was with his brother, Arthur, at the time of his death. The brother was visiting him from Oklahoma.

Coach Landry said the funeral will be in Mission. The coach's mother, Ruth, died in 1975.

"I want to play, and I hope I perform well enough to help the team."

So far, it's been a frustrating year for Jones and the Colts, who have struggled to a 2-4 record since the quarterback suffered a shoulder separation in Baltimore's final preseason game.

"I was pretty concerned for awhile," Jones said. "I began to wonder how long it would take to get well. When I first started to throw, I developed some soreness in the back of my arm not related to the injury."

But Baltimore trainers theorized the soreness came from stretching muscles that had been constricted by a heavy weightlifting program during Jones' rehabilitation.

Jones has thrown without pain this week, and is expected to start in Sunday's home game against the New York Jets.

"Bert should provide another lift for our club," said Coach Ted Marchibroda, "at a time when we're getting almost everybody back healthy."

Linebacker Stan White, the defensive signalcaller, returned to action last week as the Colts beat the winless St. Louis Cardinals 30-17 in a sloppily played game.

Cornerback Norm Thompson also started last week for the first time in a month, and defensive tackle Joe Ehrmann resumed practicing this week after spending weeks in a bedside vigil with his critically ill younger brother.

But it's return of Jones, known as "The Franchise" in Baltimore, that comes at a pivotal time for the Colts if they are to get back into contention in the AFC East.

"Bert should provide a big lift," said offensive line coach Whitey Dovel. "But Bill Troup did a great job in his place — as great as any No. 2 quarterback in the league under the circumstances."

Asked to describe his frustrations as he watched from the sidelines, Jones said: "On a scale of one to 10, make it a 10."

"I was out a few years ago with the same injury, but it wasn't as extensive," he said, "and I didn't mind it as much because we weren't necessarily expected to win."

"But now we should be competitive. I'm not sure my being in there would have helped or not, but we were losing and that made it tougher not playing."

Jones said he wasn't worried about reinjuring his shoulder when he encounters his first contact of the season on Sunday.

"If it goes again, it goes," he said. "If it doesn't, I'll just keep on plugging."

Jim Stanley denies rumor

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Rumors that Oklahoma State University football coach Jim Stanley will be quitting his post before the end of his sixth year have been vehemently denied by the Cowboy leader.

"No chance," Stanley angrily said Tuesday. "I don't teach quitting. That's not part of my mind."

The Cowboys, who are winless in five games this season are in the midst of a nine-game losing streak over two seasons.

Yet, overall, Stanley still supports a fairly impressive record of 32-28-2. His teams have won two bowl games in recent seasons and in 1976 the Cowboys shared the Big Eight title.

However, a Tulsa newspaper printed Tuesday that several of Stanley's former supporters met with the coach Sunday, urging him to quit now.

In the Wednesday edition of The Daily Oklahoman, sports columnist Bob Hurt quoted a well-informed source as saying a showdown on Stanley will be held before the end of the season and will involve the school president, athletic director and board of regents.

The problem is intensified by investigations by both the Big Eight Conference and the NCAA into an alleged school slush fund. Original allegations were made by Tulsa booster Jim Treat.

The Big Eight has completed its probe and has sent or will shortly send its report to OSU. Hurt reported.

Williams meets blocking hope

MIAMI (AP) — Jim Braxton and Delvin Williams shook hands and introduced themselves Wednesday, then began working in what the Miami Dolphins hope will become the most effective team since O.J. Simpson and Braxton.

Braxton, 29, was obtained Tuesday in a deal that sent Benny Malone to Washington. Braxton asked to be traded from the Buffalo Bills after he didn't play in Sunday's game with the New York Jets.

"I asked to be traded Monday. They were going to put me on the bench. I'm glad I got out of Buffalo, out of that situation," said the 6-foot-1, 242-pound fullback.

Williams, an off-season acquisition from San Francisco, trails only Tony Dorsett of Dallas among National Football League runners. Williams has 571 yards, Dorsett 584 yards.

Williams was understandably pleased with the acquisition. Simpson credited Braxton's blocking with helping him set his array of rushing records at Buffalo.

"It's going to be an asset to the team. It'll be like having a third guard. With his size, ability and knowledge of the game, I'm sure he'll help. I don't know what all the plans are, but when you bring a guy like that in, it's a good move," Williams said.

Cleveland to enforce ban

CLEVELAND (AP) — The man in charge of security for Cleveland Browns games at Municipal Stadium says the ban on whiskey bottles and beer cans will be enforced Sunday when the Pittsburgh Steelers come to town, but "nobody will be touched and there will be no frisking."

Henry Doberstyn, Cleveland traffic commissioner, who doubles as head of security for the Browns' games, said: "I'm against any search-type thing where we lay our hands on anyone. We'll have police outside each gate to keep anyone from bringing in bottles or cans."

"If we see people carrying bags, we'll ask them what's inside. If they say they have a bottle or can, they won't be let into the game unless they get rid of them."

Doberstyn, the Browns and the Stadium Corp. are all trying to reduce the chances of a bottle- and can-throwing incident such as the one two weeks ago after a controversial call by the officials during Cleveland's 16-13 loss to Houston.

"I don't expect any problems," Doberstyn said. "I think we have the support of everyone. Everybody who is interested in football reads the sports pages and knows cans and bottles won't be allowed. And the Pittsburgh fans who will be coming in have already been notified of the ban in their sports pages."

Calvin to start against Steelers

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Browns Coach Sam Rutigliano says he doesn't expect the Pittsburgh Steelers to try any new wrinkles when the bitter National Football League rivals collide Sunday.

"Just like I said before the first game, I think that (fullback) Franco Harris is the beginning for Pittsburgh," Rutigliano said. "That doesn't change. You have to stop Franco Harris."

"I think Pittsburgh starts every game with the idea of controlling things with Franco. Then they look to their wide receivers, Lynn Swann and John Stallworth, and then to other things."

"We stopped them pretty well the last time," he added. "They completed some passes, but they didn't get any touchdowns (until the overtime period)."

"But, it's like the Yankees' Rich Gossage in baseball. They'll come in and just keep throwing the high hard one at us. They'll go with their best pitch."

As for the Browns, it now appears star running back Greg Pruitt — disabled the past four weeks by a severe leg bruise — will get at least some action against the Steelers, although Calvin Hill is scheduled to start.

"We didn't have Greg in the first game, but they didn't have (linebacker) Jack Ham in the first game, either. He can make a big difference in terms of the running game because he's a big play guy and the best outside linebacker in pro football."

"Last time, we isolated a back on that linebacker, but this time it will be Ham. On the other hand, the back we isolate on him this time might be Pruitt. That's a big difference, too."

"We're just going to prepare the same way we did for the first game, but there's no question that playing the Steelers in Cleveland is better than playing in Pittsburgh."

The Browns didn't score any touchdowns in the first meeting of the AFC Central Division rivals, dropping the game 15-9 in sudden death. But Rutigliano said the offense should be more effective this time.

"There are things we'd like to do against them that we weren't ready to do yet in the first game. Like Ozzie Newsome, our rookie tight end, has gotten better each game. Last time, he had a lot of single coverage and we didn't really utilize him that much. We might be looking for him more this time around."

Pruitt, defensive back Oliver Davis and offensive guard Henry Sheppard — all out for at least two weeks with various injuries — were in pads and took part in the fullscale workout Wednesday.

Rutigliano said he expects Pruitt to play about half of Sunday's game. He also said Davis, recovering from a dislocated elbow, and Sheppard, recuperating from a sore knee, are penciled in as starters.

The return of Davis, in particular, comes at an opportune time since the other regular starter at cornerback, Ron Bolton, has a broken bone in his right forearm and is out for at least four weeks. Veteran Clarence Scott will take his place.

Celtics get more height

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, hoping to bounce back from a woeful 1977-78 season in which they missed the National Basketball Association playoffs, got help Wednesday for center Dave Cowens.

The Celtics acquired veteran Dennis Awrey from the Phoenix Suns for a second-round draft choice in 1979 and an undisclosed amount of cash.

In acquiring the 6-foot-10 Awrey, an eight-year NBA veteran, John Y. Brown, the Celtics' new owner, fulfilled a pledge to get a quality backup for Cowens. He made the pledge after he traded Kevin Kunnert to San Diego.

"Now we've obtained a player of equal caliber, a veteran in many ways who should be better fit for our system," Boston General Manager Red Auerbach said.

"Awrey is a true center," Celtics Coach Tom Sanders said. "He's big and strong, a physical player, an excellent passer. And he's smart. He'll help us right away."

Awrey has played with Philadelphia, Chicago and Phoenix since coming out of Santa Clara. His best year was 1974-75 when he averaged 9.9 points and 8.6 rebounds a game.

He is expected to report to the Celtics in time for the club's 1978-79 opener against Cleveland Friday night at Boston Garden.

His acquisition boosted the Celtics' roster to 12 players, one over the NBA limit.

The Jones boys may all play in halfback slot

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Jones boys — "Ham," "Lam" and "Jam" — may all play halfback when Texas tries to resume its victory march against North Texas State on Saturday.

Texas Coach Fred Akers said Wednesday the twelfth-ranked Longhorns "are not ready to throw in the towel" after losing to No. 1 Oklahoma, 31-10, but two freshmen may start in the backfield to add zip to the offense.

IT WAS Texas' first loss after three victories. Akers told the Longhorns that Oklahoma "is really a powerful outfit."

"We didn't play as well as we could, but we played as hard as anyone could expect," he said. "I know we can be better than we were."

Akers indicated freshman blue-chip halfback A.J. "Jam" Jones may start Saturday in place of Johnny "Ham" Jones, the team's leading rusher with 270 yards.

Another freshman, quarterback Donnie Little, played nearly three quarters against Oklahoma, and Akers was asked why he had substituted Little for senior Randy McEachern.

"We weren't moving the football," Akers said, "and we wanted to get outside (on the OU defense). The best man to get outside is Donnie Little."

The Longhorns finished with only 191 yards total offense against Oklahoma.

Akers was then asked who would be in the starting backfield Saturday — an apparent reference to an injury to halfback Leroy King and whether Little or McEachern would start.

Akers said the backfield would include Kermit Goode — replacing

King — and either "Jam" or "Ham" has good speed.

LITTLE, a blue-chip recruit from Dickinson, is bigger and faster than McEachern, who had off-season knee surgery. Akers said Little is "quick and strong."

Also, he said, "there is always the possibility" of Johnny "Lam" Jones, the Olympic sprinter who has been at wide receiver, may run some plays at halfback. He said, however, "Lam" was not being moved to halfback as a position change.

"Lam" scored Texas' only touchdown against OU, sprinting 25 yards on a reverse.

He also came close to breaking a kickoff. "We wonder when he's going to," said Akers. "We feel certain it's going to happen."

At 6-foot-1 and 195 pounds, he is four inches taller and 15 pounds heavier than "Ham" and

Spears pulled off upset

Marion Spears pulled a stunning upset in the semifinals of the Midland Country Club Women's Golf Championship by defeating defending champion Susan Britton, 1-up, Wednesday. Spears shot an 80 to 81 for Britton.

In the other semifinal, Frank Locker defeated Helen Brant, 5-4, to move into today's finals against Spears.

In the championship consolation, Betty Sappington downed Virginia Beach, 3-2, and Sylvia Laufer defeated Charlotte Rosebery, 5-4.

The first and second flights are medal play. Alice Bullard led the first flight with 69-74-143 followed by Marge Pope 71-74-145; and Jean Welch 77-75-152.

In the second flight, Estelline Nelson, 75-78-153, and Virginia Stall, 79-74-153, tied for first followed by Muriel Inman 79-75-154 and Maxine Buskirk 78-76-154.

New Orleans line loses halo

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — And then there was one — center John Hill, the sole survivor of what started this National Football League season as the best offensive line in the 12-year history of the New Orleans Saints.

Hill and guard Emmanuel Zanders were the only holdovers from the 1977 line. John Watson recovered from a knee injury and beat out the starter at one tackle. Rookie J.T. Taylor, a second-round draft choice, beat out the other.

But the biggest addition was through an off-season trade. The Saints got all-pro guard Conrad Dobler from the St. Louis Cardinals, and he brought a new attitude to the offensive line, as well as strengthening it with his obvious physical talent.

Two weeks into the season, the Saints were leading the National Conference in offense.

Then came a series of injuries. Dobler and Zanders both went down with knee injuries against Philadelphia and underwent surgery — out for the season. Watson went down with a knee injury against Los Angeles, and he is also out for the season.

Taylor took a blow from the side against Cleveland and probably will miss at least one week with an ankle sprain.

The injuries have caused a lot of shuffling. For instance, backup lineman Robert Woods played three positions in two weeks — left guard and both tackles.

"Every time we make a change, it affects everybody's technique," said Hill. "Every time there's a new player in there, everything changes."

"For instance, one of the things guards and centers do a lot is called the 'slip.' The guard fires out at his man, then slips on past, and I take him.

"Now Dobler really gives him a shot, so I adjust to that. The next guy in there may not hit him as hard, or he may just brush past, and that means I'll have to adjust to that. It changes the timing and coordination."

Hill said that while he makes no effort to be an on-field coach, some of the younger replacements seek him out for advice and counsel.

"We always talk," Hill said. "Even with Dobler and Zanders in there, we were talking. The whole offensive line gets together when we're not on the field, and we go over what the defense is doing and what we can do against it."

"I don't feel like anybody is putting an extra burden on me, but I feel like we all have to take on an extra burden."

Part of the extra burden was an extended workout for the offensive line — some after-practice work on timing and coordination.

"That's one big difference right there," said Hill. "With the other guys in there, we wouldn't have had to do that."

John master of low slow ball

It was a great part for Lee Majors. As far as the National League was concerned, Tommy John went in the laboratory — and Frankenstein came out. To a man they are convinced the doctors sewed in a "ground ball to the left side" and "ground ball back to the pitcher" knobs in the arm, that Tommy just sets it and just sort of coughs the ball to the plate.

There are lots of little triumphs in your life. Your first step, your first word, your first kiss, paycheck, auto. One of the great moments in Tommy John's life came, not in the World Series Tuesday night, but the night in the winter of 1974 when he came home bursting through the front door to shout to wife, Sally, the momentous news he could move — his pinky finger.

What had come out of the operation to that time was a hand so atrophied, it looked as if it belonged to Captain Hook. You could unload crates on the dock with it. "The Claw," Tommy used to call it.

But Tommy figured if he could crook one little finger today, tomorrow the National League would be in deep trouble.

No one else believed it. Until T.J. came back and began to throw those low sinkers on the corners again. "Okay," said Pete Rose. "That new arm is fine with me — but the first time I hear it talk or lights go on when Tommy throws, I protest the game."

Tommy John, the man with a withered arm in 1974, is the first Series hero of 1978, the year when the X-rays said he would be safely ensconced in a new profession. In his book, "The Tommy John Story" (Fleming H. Revell Co., publisher) which Tommy credits the surgeons but credits the oldest healer in the business — "Really believed."

He had to, in order to go out and throw a tennis ball endlessly for hours against a garage wall with a hand on which only one finger worked. He was throwing balls with a hand that couldn't lift a teacup.

But even when he threw against the garage wall, the ball came back to him on the ground. That's when Tommy knew he was ready for the New York Yankees. When it didn't get any higher — just like Hubbell's screwball.

The game's only chance now is to get T.J. banned as illegal. After all, he's the only guy in the game throwing with his left hand — and his right hand at the same time.

The doctors tried to break it to him gently. When Tommy wondered whether he would ever pitch again, one medic admitted he was perplexed. "Can you throw a curve with a hook?" he wondered. Another doctor was kinder. "Maybe you could make a living as a pro golfer," he suggested.

What that meant was, Tommy couldn't make a living at anything where he had to pick something up with his left hand. The idea of his ever sneaking a fast ball with Reggie Jackson or ever getting Pete Rose to hit into a doubleplay was about as good as his chances of becoming a neurosurgeon.

All Tommy needed was a new arm. And there weren't any for sale. So, the doctors went back to the drawing board. They would make Tom a new left arm by cannibalizing his right arm.

Midland College golfers eye second tourney leg

ODESSA — Midland College will be looking to add to its lead here Friday during the second leg of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference men's golf championship.

The Chaparrals got off to a fast start, thanks to their victory during the first leg in Midland last week while hosting the first of six conference tourneys. The Chaps also gained a little breathing room, picking up six points while Western Texas College and Odessa College tied for second and garnered just 4 1/2 points each.

Coach Delnor Poss named a six-man squad to compete in Odessa. Representing the Chaps will be Shayne Berry, sophomore letterman from Midland; Alan Coe, freshman from McCamey; Kelly Eng, sophomore letterman from Midland; Jim Sanchez, freshman from San Antonio; Mark Roberts, sophomore squadman from Rankin; and Tim O'Connor, sophomore letterman from Sioux City, Iowa.

Friday's 18-hole event will be played at the Odessa Country Club. Following the Odessa event, the Chaps will play next week at the New Mexico State University Invitational. That will be followed by the final fall conference tourney Nov. 3 in Roswell, N.M., hosted by New Mexico Military Institute. The remaining three conference tournaments will be played in the spring.

DeBerg's chance comes from trade

By TED GREEN
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Steve DeBerg remembers the day late in August when Pete McCulley, the San Francisco 49ers' new head coach, asked the young quarterback to come to his office. McCulley's news was that he had waived Jim Plunkett and promoted DeBerg, a virtual unknown, to start at the team's most important position.

"I fell out," DeBerg said. "I mean, I couldn't believe it. It was something I'd always wanted but didn't expect so soon. It caught me off guard. My head was spinning."

DeBerg's head is on straight now. And the quarterback few people outside the Bay Area have heard of will try to make it against a tough schedule.

SO WHO in deWorld is Steve DeBerg? Well, besides being an Anaheim, Calif., native who looks like a life-guard with thick blond hair, matching moustache and liquid blue eyes, DeBerg was Dallas' 10th-round draft choice in 1977 after his senior year at San Jose St. There, he turned the school record book upside down in his one and only season as a starter.

The Cowboys' coaching staff reportedly was split on whether to keep DeBerg or Nevada Las Vegas' Glen Carano, their second-round pick that year. They finally kept Carano, though the feeling persists in Dallas that it would have been DeBerg had the Cowboys, who already had Roger Staubach and Danny White, needed someone to play right away. DeBerg was their last cut of the exhibition season.

DeBerg then caught on with the 49ers, one of half a dozen clubs that expressed interest. He was active for five games last season but did not play.

Last spring, DeBerg and Plunkett worked out under the eye of McCulley, who had tutored Bert Jones as an assistant coach at Baltimore. At those mini-camps and later during summer, McCulley liked DeBerg's athletic ability and arm.

PLUNKETT SAID after he was cut that he had been another victim of general manager Joe Thomas' housecleaning, and that seemed partly true. But DeBerg, the 49ers say, showed more skill — and certainly more long-range potential — than Plunkett, who never quite panned out as a pro after an All-American career at Stanford. Plunkett, 31, is now in Oakland, playing behind Ken Stabler.

Five weeks after the controversial move, some reviews are in. Consensus is that while DeBerg's age (24) and inexperience work against him now, and while his baptism would have been far easier on a team that didn't have seven first-year starters on offense, DeBerg has the size (6-2, 205), smarts, guts and arm to make it in pro football. Maybe even big.

His chief booster may not be unbiased but McCulley says: "I could be wrong, and you can call me on it later, but I honestly believe that Steve will be the NFL's next Bert Jones. The reason I say that, more than anything, is his arm. He can throw it 80 yards. He has as much arm as anyone I've been around, including Bert."

DEBERG HAS taken his share of punishment. His mobility is a big reason he's been sacked only four times in six games. He retreats and releases quickly.

So far, his statistics haven't made anyone forget Sammy Baugh — or John Brodie. DeBerg had completed only 67 of his first 146 passes (45.9 percent) for 785 yards and six touchdowns; he's thrown 13 interceptions, most among NFL quarterbacks.

DeBerg talked about growing pains. His and the 49ers', whose offensive starters average 24 years of age.

Peru's regime faces growing internal woes

By KERNAN TURNER

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Military men threw out a civilian government in October 1968 and launched a leftist revolution which they said would bring authentic democracy to Peru.

Now the military leadership — different from the one that seized power 10 years ago — says it is anxious to return to the barracks.

Hardly a week goes by without a strike or street demonstration by workers demanding higher wages.

The country is heavily in debt to foreign banks, inflation is expected to hit 70 percent this year, half the working force is unemployed or underemployed and prices are spiraling upward.

Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez, chief of the present military junta, has promised a return to civilian government no later than 1980. He allowed elections last June for 100 representatives to a Constituent Assembly which is writing a new constitution to be followed by presidential elections.

Morales Bermudez said in a recent speech that the regime's departure is not a retreat, but a "culmination of a movement that ... had as its supreme goal the forging of an authentic democracy in Peru."

His regime has shied away from many of the socialist characteristics of the revolution begun on Oct. 3, 1968, when Gen. Juan Velasco Alvarado toppled President Fernando Belaunde Terry.

Velasco, who was pushed aside by Morales Bermudez as president in 1975, described his regime as revolutionary, nationalistic, Christian, humanist and socialist.

It was committed to land distribution to the peasants, worker participation in the anti-U.S. rhetoric of the Velasco days, a new press law, state intervention in the economy and ownership of key sectors and a Third World foreign policy.

Opposed by the press and major political parties from the start, Velasco expropriated the major newspapers and television stations and sent critics into exile.

But his policies led to financial turmoil. Expropriations of U.S. mining, communications and petroleum companies scared away foreign and private investors.

The country's gross national product — the sum of its goods and services — was a minus 1.3 percent in 1977 and is expected to slump even more this year. Inflation will top 70 percent, experts say.

Heavy borrowing to support social and state-owned industrial programs has created an external debt of $8.27 billion. The repayment schedule, now being renegotiated, would absorb more than half the country's export earnings.

Morales Bermudez has replaced most of Velasco's chief advisers, returned the fishing industry to private hands, limited the power of workers within their companies and will return the newspapers to corporate ownership.

A series of negotiations with the International Monetary Fund has resulted in austerity measures intended to bolster the economy and gain confidence of foreign bankers.

But the measures have been hard on the everyday life of Peruvians.

The public displayed its anger at devaluation of the national currency, the sol, and government-decreed price rises with a bloody national strike in July, 1977.

New austerity measures last May resulted in street rioting and a state of emergency which suspended individual rights until shortly before the elections for the Constituent Assembly.

A series of strikes in the country's mines, banks, schools and public ministries have accompanied the Assembly's beginning work on the constitution.

Prices this year have gone up 47.4 percent in the first six months. Real wages and salaries have dropped by 28.4 percent in Lima, where half the work force is underemployed.

The sol has dropped in value since the revolution from an exchange rate of 39.70 to $1 to nearly 180 to $1 today.

Prices have doubled in the past year for such items as bread, from one to 2.2 soles; milk, from 16.5 soles to 32 soles a quart; eggs, from 48 soles to 132 a dozen, and gasoline, from 50 soles to 125 soles a gallon. At the same time the minimum salary in Lima has risen by only 7 percent, from 5,600 soles to 6,900 soles ($32 to $39) a month.

The country's attention is focused on the Constituent Assembly, whose president is Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, 83-year-old founder and lifelong leader of the APRA Party, which he describes as "leftwing democratic."

It's an awkward moment in Peruvian history, since Haya de la Torre and the military have the same goal in mind: returning the country to democracy.

Haya de la Torre and the armed forces have been bitter enemies since 1930s when an APRA-led revolution was crushed by the military.

Haya de la Torre has been elected president several times only to be prevented by the military from taking office.

The Assembly is expected to complete the constitution next May or June. Morales Bermudez has promised to call elections as soon as the constitution is ready.

The government has insisted that the social changes initiated by the military be included in the constitution.

Haya de la Torre has declared the assembly is an "independent power, free and sovereign," but has conceded coordination with the government is "urgent and indispensable."

Canal said possible cholera wave source

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A little-used canal in marshlands of southwestern Louisiana has become the focus of state health officials' search for the source of 11 cases of cholera.

"Now we start backtracking to see if we can come up with the contamination," said Dr. William Cherry, the state's top health officer. "Something is causing it, and it may be in the canal."

It was the first time the bacteria had been found in the environment, and Cherry ordered a 10-mile stretch of the Old Intracoastal Waterway from the mouth of White Lake to just west of the Gulf of Mexico closed to private and commercial shrimping and crabbing.

The bacteria was found in water samples sent to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., for testing.

A spokesman for the state said seafood and other possible sources in and along the canal will be tested.

"We now have a solid piece of evidence from which we can begin tracking the source," said Cherry, secretary of the state Department of Health and Human Resources.

Sports time's time to rhyme

By VALERIE VAN PELT, CICILY SHULL and JANE FORSYTH

Well Bulldogs for a change this time
Read the chatter that we've written in rhyme
Toss your pennies; throw your quarters 'Cause congratulations are in order.
In San Angelo the track team ran the race,
And they came in second place
Gene Tuttle placed third, and sixth was Bob Glenn Ross, Stelo, Yates, Rodriguez, Hopper: All contributed to the win!
Next Saturday MC is the place to be Come watch the track team run to victory!
Next in sports are spikes and sets;
Come watch our girls hit the ball over the net!
Abilene Cooper tonight will fall
When MHS hits them with the volleyball.
This week the Pack takes on the Steers
So go to Big Spring and really CHEER!
To start off the spirit
Go to the Pep Rally Friday. Let's hear it!

Enough of sports, let's get to the queens
These two couples are in the scene.
For the Junior Council the queen's Nancy Spaug
Escorting her will be Gerard Alcola;
Julie Guyton and Daniel Tighe
Have caught the 100 Club's eye.
Reminding you before it's too late,
Guys better get your Homecoming date.

Besides the fun that weekend brings
The upcoming week holds many things at 7:30 on Monday night
Come and learn about your college plight
It's all about college in our "cafe"
Come hear what our counselors have to say.

Sophomores! Comb your hair for a good look Pictures on Tuesday taken for the year book
Junior pictures; Wednesday is the time
Hope this line is going to rhyme.
The next day back to Homecoming again
To see which girl as Queen will win.
This rhyming chatter is really insane
What can be expected from

P. S.
Against the Bronchos the Rebel Express
Turned out a great success
We wish you the same
At your Homecoming game!

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Secrecy shrouds Carter's fishing

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's secrecy-cloaked fishing expeditions may be taking him as far afield as southern Pennsylvania.

The White House, mindful of Carter's passion for privacy during weekend respites at Camp David, Md., won't say where he goes from there in search of fish.

But circumstantial evidence points to forays in both Maryland and nearby Pennsylvania.

Until last Friday, reporters were unaware the president was leaving Camp David unannounced to go fishing. On that occasion, however, a newsman saw Carter leave his Catoctin Mountain hideaway in a motorcade that included a Maryland state police cruiser.

Police from local jurisdictions normally participate in presidential motorcades in their area.

The next morning, after the White House press office had acknowledged that Carter had gone fishing for 2 1/2 hours, reporters who went to Camp David to witness the president's helicopter departure for a festival at Elkins, W. Va., saw signs that seemed to point to a second fishing expedition.

At the camp gate were two unmarked Secret Service vehicles — the same ones used in Friday's motorcade — plus a Pennsylvania state police car.

Reporters leaped to a suspicion that Carter had gone fishing again, perhaps to Pennsylvania.

This suspicion was reinforced minutes later when a government station wagon arrived at the gate. Its cargo area was loaded with fishing gear.

White House press secretary Jody Powell subsequently said Carter might indeed have gone fishing two days in a row. But where?

"The president never reveals his favorite fishing spots," said Powell.

White House reporters are unhappy whenever any president drives on public highways without at least a small press contingent in tow. They well recall that former president Gerald R. Ford's limousine was hit broadside, with him in it, by another car on a Hartford, Conn., street that supposedly was sealed off for his exclusive use.

The treacherously-curved narrow road leading down from Camp David has seen many accidents. Indeed, the presence of a Navy ambulance at the tail end of Carter's Friday motorcade down the mountain would suggest that reporters are not alone in being cognizant of the potential for a mishap involving the president.

Angler Carter now is reported to be doing a good bit of fly fishing — something he did not do back home in Georgia, despite his devotion to the sport.

An informant said the president became proficient with a fly rod during three days of rafting down Idaho's Salmon River in August.

Speaking of motorcades, Rosalynn Carter's highway travels during a current busy round of pre-election campaigning have not been as uneventful as her husband's.

One of her recent motorcades was halted when the lead car got a flat tire. And on three occasions in two days, she came to a stop for trains at grade crossings.

Barring a collision like the one in Hartford, presidential motorcades never have unscheduled stops unless Carter wants to get out and mingle with curbside crowds.

Trains stop for the president, not vice versa.

Six Basin counties gain wildcat testers

Six Permian Basin areas have drawn wildcat projects. MGF Oil Corp. of Midland spotted its No. 1 Santa Fe Railway as a 5,100-foot wildcat in Lea County, N. M., nine miles southeast of Crossroads.

RUNNELS PROJECTS

W. W. West of Midland staked a Runnels County wildcat and announced plans to free-enter another project and test it as a wildcat.

The new project is No. 4 H. F. Bredemeyer, 2.5 miles northwest of Winters.

It is 2,140 feet from north and 1,850 feet from east lines of section 73, block 63, HT&B survey.

The site is one mile east of the Fennell (Breckenridge, Cisco reef, Goen, King sand) field. It is scheduled to 4,700 feet for tests of the King sand.

W. W. West will re-enter a west offset to the Morris gas discovery of the P.W.C. multipay field and deepen to 4,000 feet for wildcat tests.

The project is No. 2 J. L. Hoffman, one mile northeast of Benoit and 910 feet from north and 1,660 feet from east lines of section 161, ETRR survey. It was abandoned in 1966 at total depth of 2,411 feet.

MCCULLOCH WILDCATS

A trio of wildcats have been announced for McCulloch County.

Cook's Producing Co. of Goldswaithe will drill two 1,600-foot wildcats five miles west of Fife.

No. 1 R. L. Jones if 406.8 feet from south and 342.3 feet from west lines of section 91, H&TC survey, abstract 650. Elevation is 1,445 feet.

Cook's No. 2 Jones is 1/2 mile east of No. 1 and 355.6 feet from south and 2,689.7 feet from west lines of section 91, H&TC survey, abstract 650. Elevation is 1,445 feet.

The projects are one and one-quarter miles southeast of the Walker-Grant (Strawn gas) field and separated from it by a 1,576-foot dry hole.

Esperanza Energy Corp. will drill No. 1 Nowlin as a 1,350-foot wildcat in McCulloch County, 14 miles north of Brady.

Injunction refused

HOUSTON (AP) — District Judge Arthur Leshar has refused to grant a temporary injunction against Superior Oil Co., accused by Mobil Oil Corp. of pirating Mobil employees along with trade secrets.

Leshar ordered Superior, however, to turn over materials that originated at Mobil but now are in the hands of former Mobil employees working for Superior.

The judge said Wednesday that notes gathered by B.A. Thomas, head of Superior's Neptune Oil Co. in Israel, and L.F. Burson, an explorationist for Superior, would be kept in sealed containers pending any further action in the suit.

Thomas and Burson testified they had taken notes on oil and gas land sales from Mobil to Superior.

Leshar had been asked to enjoin Superior from luring Mobil employees to their company in order to obtain confidential Mobil industry information.

Mobil said in a prepared statement that while the court did order the return of documents taken by two former employees "we are surprised the court did not restrain Superior from continuing its past actions until such time as the complaint can be heard by the trial court."

Mobil said the ruling "does not change plans to proceed to the trial court on the merits of the case."

Thomas McDade, a Mobil lawyer, said testimony showed two men had worked for both companies on a scheduled sale of offshore leases near Puerto Rico.

McDade said Mobil doesn't want former Mobil employees now working for Superior working on the same projects at Superior that they worked on at Mobil.

Philip John, a Superior attorney, said Leshar's ruling was a victory and "vindication of the charges made against these people and the company."

John argued the employees left Mobil because they were offered better job opportunities.

"It's not a raid when people come to us and say, 'I read your ad and I want a job,'" John said.

OPEC firm on request

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Oil cartel officials wound up a three-day seminar Wednesday in a demand for help from industrial countries to develop their own petroleum refining industries. But the exporters set no deadline for carrying out a threat to cut back oil supplies if they don't get cooperation.

The call for a joint approach and a dialogue between crude oil suppliers and consumers was made by Kuwaiti Oil Minister Ali Khalifa al-Sabah at the end of the seminar on "downstream operations," or the manufacture of finished petroleum products, organized by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Members of OPEC are unhappy that such operations and marketing are dominated by industrialized nations. OPEC claims that efforts by member countries to diversify into refining and petrochemical industries are being discouraged, and even obstructed, by the developed nations.

Sabah, who presided at the seminar attended by OPEC officials, oil industry executives and other experts from 35 nations, said if this attitude continues, OPEC may be forced to tie the quantity of crude oil supplied to industrialized countries directly to the quantity of finished products OPEC is able to sell in those countries.

Sabah did not specify any particular country and did not mention any specific cases of obstruction. He said producing countries do not want "to remain residual suppliers of raw materials."

"They look at the problem of downstream operations from the standpoint of technology acquisition and a greater measure of knowhow, employment, long term economic balance, especially external payment balances. In other words, the producers investing in downstream operations are considered to be instrumental in speeding up the process of structural diversification of their economies and enhanced capital accumulation of their nations."

Sabah said that as far as penetration of markets by OPEC members was concerned, "they cannot dissociate the market penetration for their products from their considerable weight as the major supplier of crude oil. This means that ultimately the oil producers may be confronted with linking the exports of products to their exports of crude oil."

"We have been seeking cooperation for a long time," he said, "not even lip service was paid. Now there is an opportunity. If we waste it, and if development plans are frustrated, not us, the decision-makers, but conditions in our countries would dictate that we take a more aggressive approach. This is the nature of the game."

House leaders trying to merge bill facets

By TOM RAUM WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders are trying to merge a tax on fuel-wasting cars and tax credits for home insulation with other parts of President Carter's energy program on the theory that the larger the package, the better its chance of passage.

The House Rules Committee scheduled a meeting today to consider putting the fragmented energy plan back in one piece.

Consolidation would set up a final House vote Friday on the remnants of the program Carter submitted in April 1977 as "the moral equivalent of war."

However, opponents of the controversial section calling for natural gas deregulation by 1985 are vowing an all-out fight, saying they want separate votes on each of the five compromise bills submitted by conference committees.

There also was a question on whether the final part of the plan — calling for higher taxes on gas-wasting autos and lower taxes for homeowners who upgrade the insulation of their homes — can make it to the House in time to be included in the package.

The energy-tax legislation emerged from a House-Senate conference committee on Wednesday. Senate action on it was expected sometime today.

Leaders first planned to bring it before the full Senate on Wednesday, but senators representing auto-making states threatened a filibuster unless changes were made.

That sent negotiators back to the conference room to modify the proposal to make it more palatable to the auto industry and its allies in Congress.

The proposed compromise tax on big, uneconomical cars would start on 1980 models instead of 1978 models as once proposed by Carter.

It would add at least $200 to the sticker price of 1980 cars getting less than 15 miles per gallon. The tax would escalate in yearly steps to a maximum tax in 1986 of $3,850 on cars getting less than 12.5 mpg.

Borden gets wildcat site

A wildcat operation has been staked in Borden County by Cotton Petroleum Corp. of Midland.

It is No. 1 Good and will be drilled seven miles northeast of Vealmore and 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 4, block 32, T-3-N, T&P survey.

It is one location south of production in the Good (middle Clear Fork) field.

GULF WELL

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-QK State has been completed in the Caprito (middle Delaware) field of Ward County.

Operator reported a daily pumping potential of 12 barrels of oil and 89 barrels of water, through perforations from 5,001 to 5,011 feet after 9,000 gallons of acid.

Gravity of the oil is 37.6 degrees and the gas-oil ratio is 1,417-1.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 22, block 17, University Lands survey.

LYNN PROJECT

Grand Banks Energy Co. of Midland No. 1 W. G. Lumsden will be drilled as a 10,500-foot project in Lynn County, one location south of the two-well Tahoka (Pennsylvanian) field.

Location is 467 feet from north and 2,173 feet from east lines of section 143, block 12, EL&RR survey and 14 miles northwest of Tahoka.

CROCKETT WELL

Shell Oil Co. No. 2-B Forristal has been completed as the sixth Wolfcamp well in the Tippett, West multipay field of Crockett County.

One mile east of other production, it finalized for a daily potential of 2 9 barrels of 37.6-gravity oil, plus 183 barrels of water, through a one-inch opening and perforations from 5,465 to 5,927 feet. Gas-liquid ratio is 13,440-1.

Location is 5,812 feet from north-east and 440 feet from northwest lines of section 31, block 31, H&TC survey.

A free-entry project, it originally was drilled to 6,310 feet. It was a lower Leonard oil producer.

The location is 10 miles southeast of McCamey.

Crude spill reported

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Fire officials kept some families from their homes throughout the night while workers cleaned up about 40,000 gallons of spilled gasoline on the city's sparsely-populated east side.

Chief M.L. Coleman estimated about 200 liters was evaporated, but only the residents living nearest a million-gallon tank at a Texaco refinery were not allowed to return home. The spill from one tank into a ditch containing the large tank was reported about 8 p.m. Monday.

The last-minute modifications sought by automakers resulted in conferees agreeing to make the mileage thresholds about 1 mpg more lenient than under their original proposal, which covered for model years 1983-1986.

The tax is the only one of four taxes Carter included in his April 1977 energy program to survive. The crude oil tax, which Carter once called the centerpiece of his energy program, as well as proposed taxes on gasoline and industrial uses of oil and natural gas, were killed.

The energy-tax compromise reached Wednesday also contains tax credits of up to $300 for home insulation and storm doors and windows and up to $2,200 for solar energy.

House leaders contend that these politically popular credits would "sweeten" the energy program, enhancing chances for passage.

Senate critics of the energy plan have hinted they may use delaying tactics to try to keep the energy-tax bill from passing the Senate in time to be combined in the House with other parts of the plan.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects of passage for the Alaska lands bill, President Carter's top environmental priority, are picking up, although success is far from assured.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., Senate manager of the bill, is predicting a compromise version can be put together in time for passage before Congress' scheduled adjournment Saturday.

And Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said Wednesday he could be convinced by fellow Alaskans to drop plans to kill the legislation through parliamentary maneuvers.

Gravel said, "I can let a bill pass this year or I can stop anything from passing. It is only fair in the light of this situation to involve as many Alaskans as possible in my decision."

Gravel's Alaska colleague, Republican Sen. Ted Stevens, is working with Jackson and key House members to arrive at a compromise that could be passed in the Senate, sent quickly to the House and on to President Carter.

"We're close," Jackson told a reporter.

But without Gravel's cooperation it would be impossible to bring any compromise to the floor. Gravel feels that a bill more favorable to Alaskans can be passed next year.

Nevertheless, Gravel said he will step aside and let Stevens and the other work for a compromise, if that is the will of Alaskans.

Both the bill approved by the Senate Energy Committee and the version passed by the House would set aside at least 100 million acres of federal land in Alaska as national parks and other conservation areas.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Allergic reaction to hearing aid possible

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been getting some kind of rash in my ear recently, and I've been wondering if it could be a reaction to a new hearing aid I have. It fits right into the ear—it doesn't have all that outside apparatus—and works fine as far as hearing goes. Could that be irritating my skin in some way—D.K.

Dear D.K.: There have been reports of allergic reactions to the in-ear hearing aids made of a plastic called methyl methacrylate that has been "cold-cured." In at least some cases the problem has been apparently solved by replacing the aid with a heat-cured one. The substitution was done by the manufacturing company. My advice would be for you to check with your doctor or the dealer through whom you got the aid, and have them take the matter up with the manufacturer.

Dear Dr. Solomon: In a recent column Dr. Donald Shifrin wrote about the sad fact that most deaths of children between 1 and 6 are motor vehicle related, yet nothing seems to have been done to immunize them from this threat. He might like to know that the American Automobile

Senate agrees to compromise on public works

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee agreed Wednesday on a compromise substitute for the public works bill President Carter vetoed, dropping some of the projects to which he objected most strongly.

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston Jr., D-La., handling the legislation, said, "The president will approve this plan. He will not veto it."

The compromise deletes six projects that were in the vetoed bill: Bayou Bodcau, La.; Yatesville Lake, Ky.; Lukfata Lake, Okla.; Narrows Unit, Colo.; Savery-Pot Hook in Colorado and Wyoming; and Fruitland Mesa, Colo.

Assn. has instituted a program beamed at these preschoolers to reduce the disproportionately high number of pedestrian accidents involving this 1 to 6 age group. They comprise only nine percent of our country's population, yet account for 23 percent of pedestrian deaths and injuries.

Eleven-hundred preschool children are killed each year in pedestrian accidents, 200 to 300 in their own driveways, usually by a family member. Crossing streets for them is usually the result of spontaneous, emotional action or curiosity. Their vision is not fully developed and they typically have poor lateral vision. They cannot see over cars because their eye levels range from only 35 to 40 inches above the ground. Also, they do not localize sound as well as adults.

The AAA's Preschool Children in Traffic program is the first of its kind in the nation. A series of five booklets available through member auto clubs begins with a guide for parents. The other four are designed for use by children together with parents, or other adults. The simple language, large type and colorful illustrations provide a basis for discussion of traffic before practicing safe street crossing. Ironically most of the accidents involving small children happen on low volume residential streets.—John Lienhop, Kansas City

Dear Dr. Solomon: Who should get oral polio vaccine?—Mrs. F.S.

Dear Mrs. F.S.: All unimmunized well persons between the ages of 6 weeks and 18 years of age except:

- (1) Those with cancer or leukemia or lymphoma; (2) those with diseases that lower the body's resistance to infection; (3) those taking drugs, such as cortisone, that lower the body's resistance to infection, and (4) those with household contacts who have one of the above problems.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

No one comes to Agnew's courthouse anymore

BALTIMORE (AP) — The federal courthouse where Spiro Agnew bowed from public life is used by the city now, and the day is long past when the curious would come to see the historic spot.

Five years ago—on Oct. 10, 1973—Agnew pleaded no contest here to a federal tax evasion charge before becoming the first vice president of the United States to resign in disgrace.

Agnew lives most of the year in Palm Springs, Calif., now, maintaining telephone contact with his Pathlite Inc. consulting firm in Crofton, Md., and keeping up a summer home in Ocean City, Md.

And there's barely a mention of his name in this cavernous granite structure on Calvert Street, used in 1973 as a federal court.

"No one comes in to look, or even asks about it any more," said a courthouse guard, who asked that his name not be used. "They did for a while after it happened, but not anymore."

Agnew was out of the country when the anniversary passed, unavailable for comment. A Pathlite spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said the former vice president to Richard Nixon was halfway around the world on a business trip.

Maryland was where Agnew first made his name, serving as Baltimore County executive and governor of the state.

And those early years were probed in the government's investigation—a probe that went far beyond the single count of evading $13,551.47 in federal income tax for 1967.

A 40-page document filed with the court said Agnew had accepted thousands of dollars during his public life from architects and engineers in exchange for contracts.

The payments, which began while he was executive of the sprawling county in the mid-1960s, continued during his governorship and into his term as vice president, the document said.

Lester Matz, an engineer and a key government witness, said he gave an envelope full of payoff cash to Agnew in his office at the Old Executive Office Building, across the street from the White House, the document said.

The document said Matz gave an envelope full of payoff cash to then-Vice President Agnew, and quoted Matz as saying he worried that middlemen in the payoff scheme would say he was holding back too much money.

To this, the document said, Agnew replied: "Tell them you gave at the office."

In return for Agnew's no-contest plea, the government recommended against a jail term and promised a prohibition on further criminal charges.

Agnew was fined the maximum—$10,000—and placed on three years' unsupervised probation.

Since then, Agnew has maintained his innocence, saying the payments were political contributions and had never influenced his official acts.
