Judge race examined

Administering justice is not the only job of a county judge but the two men running for the office have a slightly different view of the duties. The incumbent was appointed only a few months ago while his opponent is a municipal judge. Staff Writer Linda Hill takes a look at the race in Sunday's Reporter-Telegram.

Ship explosion kills 59 people

Texas' top contest finds

Hill, Clements happy

By KENNETH L. WHITING

SINGAPORE (AP) - An engine room explosion that sent metal fragments flying like shrapnel through the bowels of a Greek oil tanker killed 59 persons, including two sisters, Singapore police said today

A third sister and 18 other persons were hospitalized with severe burns, and 71 others suffered less serious injuries, they said.

The blast occurred Thursday afternoon aboard the 35,676-ton Spyros, tied up for repairs and cleaning at the Jurong Shipyard. There was no official word on the cause of the explosion, but there was speculation it either was touched off by sparks from welding torches in the ship's boiler room or a leak in a gas cylinder. The tanker had no cargo aboard at the time of the blast.

Hospital sources said many of the victims were burned beyond recognition. Police said the dead included a least six of the ship's 33-member crew and two of the three sisters working as cleaners aboard the vesse! The crew included 27 Greeks, two Chileans, two Indonesians, an Englishman and a Filipino.

Paul Abraham, an employee of an electricity substation that supplied power to the ship, said he switched off electrictity to the Spyros immediately

Whalen hires Odessa company

By MARK VOGLER R-T Staff Writer

ANDREWS — Whalen Corp. has hired an Odessa chemical company to study a massive clean-up of water pollution caused by alleged discharges of petroleum-containing waste into Whalen Lake.

The Dallas-based firm, a subsidiary of Triton Oil and Gas of Dallas, recently retained the consulting services of Ace Industrial to appear be fore a Texas Railroad Commission hearing Oct. 26 and recommend possible solutions to environmental problems caused by the apparent presence of contaminating materials in the playa lake, located 15 miles west

Whalen Corp., which reportedly has been threatened by a major law suit over waste disposal practices allegedly threatening ground water contamination and the deaths of migratory birds, is seeking renewal of a permit to continue its disposal operations here.

The company has said at least 20,000 barrels of oil per month would be lost if the Railroad Commission were to deny the permit.

James R. Washburn, owner of Ace Industrial of Odessa, said in an interview at the lake site Thursday he has already discussed with the company's officials the possible application of chemicals which might prevent bird kills and restore the lake to its natural state.

The lake has had a problem for years and years. And the Whalen Corp. people have indicated they do not want to put any more waste into the lake and that they would like to stop the pollution problem,

We have discussed with the company the use of certain chemicals that we have at our disposal which could take care of the pollution situation and whatever problems there are regarding migratory birds.

Whalen Lake is one of several playa lakes in West Texas being checked by the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife and the U.S. Department

Both agencies have raised the question of whether Whalen Corp. and other companies in West Texas are discharging excessive amounts of oil and grease" into the lakes. The agencies have expressed particular concern over the possibility of a die-off of numerous migratory birds, including waterfowl, which use the lakes as resting places during late fall

Washburn said he forsees his company's possible clean-up efforts at Whalen Lake as being a pilot project for other lakes, noting that similar situations exist throughout the region

tions at Whalen Lake, said they were inspecting the lake area Thursday in preparation for a special meeting scheduled today with a U.S. Interior Department official and a West Texas representative of the National Audubon Society

Arnold Darrow, president of Whalen Corp., also was expected to attend the private session at the lake.

The landing strip should be filled with the usual fare of "hangar talk." But contrary to the stereotype, fliers, however dedicated and filled with air pockets, do have any other interests. Among those, of course, is that 8-to-5 routine that supports their flying habit. Too, there's far more to flying than airplanes. So, if you want to talk philosophy and literature, such as that reflected in Antoine de Saint-Exupery or Richard Bach, you just might be in luck.

If not, you missed the landing

Anyway, Vroman figures between

35 and 40 aircraft, mostly single-engine jobs, will be stirring up the dust here Sunday afternoon.

Fliers and flying fans from Midland and close-by may be driving or biking in for the picnic, which will begin at 1:30 p.m. and end before dusk.

Key witness, Davis attorney clash

HOUSTON (AP) — The key prosecution witness and the chief defense attorney verbally clashed several times during pretrial testimony in the Cullen Davis case Thursday.

And State District Court Judge Wallace Moore warned, "put in the record these two men don't like each other and I will have no more of

and Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, the defense attorney, warred all day with first one and then the other tossing a verbal spear. Haynes asked McCrory where he had gone on a day late in August, and the witness answered, "I stopped at a store and bought a six-pack of beer, your favorite brand Mr. Haynes."

The attorney leaped to his feet and said to the judge, "How does he know my favorite brand, if I have one? I resent that answer.'

Earlier Havnes told McCrory that if he failed to understand a question "say so and I will rephrase."

Then when Haynes said he didn't understand an answer from the witness, McCrory said, "Mr. Haynes if you fail to understand an answer, say so and I will rephrase it."

Testifying under tight security with U.S. Marshal T.R. Coney of Houston always nearby, McCrory said his life had been threatened, he was afraid of being killed and had asked for federal protection.

The chain-smoking McCrory said he was now under the federal witness protection act, which gives him security and $950 a month in government money to pay for rent and food until his part in the Davis trial is over.

Davis is accused of soliciting the murder of Fort Worth Judge Joe Eidson, who had presided during most of the lengthy divorce proceedings between the defendant and his estranges wife, Priscilla

Eidson later removed himself from

McCrory testified Cullen Davis wanted Eidson killed and "I suggested to federal officers we get a picture of judge and some identification to take to Cullen Davis so he would believe the judge had been killed." A picture was made of Eidson posed as if dead in the trunk of a car. McCrory said, "Eidson is who Cullen wanted killed, and he wanted about 15 persons killed."

Haynes asked McCrory, who once worked for a firm owned by the Davis financial empire, if he had ever told anyone he had been offered money to turn against his former boss.

McCrory answered, in a loud and angry voice, "No sir, I didn't tell anyone such a thing and if you (Haynes) got someone to say that, it

McCrory also said Cullen Davis once told him he wanted his brother, Bill Davis, killed.

"He told me to find someone to kidnap his brother and take him to another state where he did some

Midland pipeline pilot dies in unexplained N.M. crash

HOBBS, N.M. — A Midland man died in an airplane crash 30 miles southwest of here late Thursday morning, said a spokesman for the victim's employer.

Earl Steinman, 34, of Rt. 2 died as a result of injuries he received when the the plane he was piloting crashed in the vicinity of Texas-New Mexico Pipeline Company's Lynch Station, the spokesman said.

The plane Steinman was flying is owned by the Gleason Romans Pipeline Patrol Co. of Tulsa, Okla., which also has offices in Midland. Steinman, an employee of the patrol company, was on a scheduled flight at the time, said Gleason Romans. Romans said there was no fire or explosion. Cause of the crash had not been determined early today, officials added New Mexico authorities said Steinman reportedly was making a slow turn over the pump station, and the craft may have gone into a "stall."

Pilots flying the pipeline, Roman said, routinely circle such stations for recognition purposes.

Showers are expected in the forecast period until Saturday morning from the Ohio and Tennesee valleys to the Great Lakes and western half of the Northeast. Sunny skies are forecast from the Missisippi to the Pacific. Cool weather is forecast for the northern Plains, warm weather for the Southwest and mild weather elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto Map)

U.S. told to stay out of talks

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) -Black guerrilla chief Robert Mugabe has told America to butt out of Rhodesian peace efforts, and Prime Minister Ian Smith says he opposes U.S. 'preconditions' for talks.

Their positions, announced half a world apart Thursday, dampened U.S. and British efforts to get the communist-backed guerrillas to the negotiating table with Rhodesia's transition government.

"It is within our rights to demand that states who have no legal right or interest in the Rhodesian constitutional situation ought not to have any presence at any future constitutional conferences dealing with the matter. We now name the United States as one state which must never attend," Mugabe said in a statement from the Mozambique capital of Maputo.

Mugabe was incensed that the State Department had granted Smith a visa to visit the United States and said by doing so that Washington "exceeded its jurisdiction as mediator.

He also accused Washington of 'supplying arms, money and technology to Rhodesia" and mercenaries as well, but he offered no evidence. An estimated 400 Americans are reported fighting in Rhodesia as members of the army but without U.S. government approval.

Mugabe and fellow guerrilla chief Joshua Nkomo head the Patriotic Front, which has been fighting a sixyear bush war against Smith's government. Both rejected the internal settlement Smith reached earlier this year with three black moderates promising elections leading to black majority rule early next year.

The United States and Britain have been seeking a Rhodesian settlement for more than a year in an effort head off a possible expansion of Soviet and Cuban involvement in southern Africa

Washington and most other U.N. members have complied with sanctions imposed against Rhodesia since 1965 when Smith severed colonial ties with Britain and declared independence to head off moves toward black majority rule

Smith, in Washington at the invitation of a group of congressmen, said Thursday he was willing to attend a conference with the guerrillas, but tangled with the State Department over what he claimed were U.S. preconditions for the talks.

Flood predicts his vindication

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Daniel J. Flood, a flamboyant fixture in Congress for more than three decades, stands accused of trading his substantial power for tens of thousands of dollars in bribes from numerous individuals and organizations seeking federal aid.

The Pennsylvania Democrat, indicted by a federal grand jury here Thursday on bribery and conspiracy charges, maintains he is innocent and says he will be vindicated in court and by his loyal constituents at the polls in November.

Flood, who will be 75 next month, said in a statement, "I deny all these allegations, totally and unequivocally: I am confident that I will be proven innocent in a court of law

"Neither absurd charges nor their attendant innuendoes will prevent my constituents from expressing once more their belief and trust in my integrity.

Flood, a former actor, is a highly colorful congressman known for showmanship both in his manner of speech and appearance, particularly for his waxed handlebar mustache. He has represented the coal-mining district of Pennsylvania around Wilkes-Barre since 1945.

Flood was indicted Sept. 5 by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles on charges he lied to a trial jury and another grand jury when he denied receiving payoffs.

If convicted on all charges, he faces maximum prison sentences of 15 years on each bribery count, 5 years for conspiracy and 5 years on each of three perjury counts. The 10-count indictment returned

Thursday charged that Flood conspired with former aide Stephen B. Elko to take $65,000 in bribes from various sources and 100 shares of stock in a Pennsylvania bank. In addition, Flood was accused of receiving $16,500 for himself from various sources and seeking an additional $100,000 from the developer of a townhouse project in Pennsylvania. The indictment said that in return,

Flood used his influence with federal agencies to get contracts, grants and other favors for those who paid him. Elko, who is cooperating with the government, is serving a three-year

The statement said Hill's "10year campaign to be governor is composed almost exclusively of a string of promises to vested interest groups. His most recent campaign financial statement alone shows that more than 70 vested interest groups, including out-of-state union contributors, have their hooks in him - to the tune of almost $200,000 - and there's no telling what some of these expect in exchange.

Jim Baker, Republican candidate for attorney general, told a capitol news conference that one of his first duties as attorney general, if elected, would be an investigation of auto repair "rip-offs" in Texas. He said 25 percent of complaints to the attorney general's consumer protection division now concern auto repairs.

Baker also promised to inaugurate a strong consumer education program and to push for a stronger Texas Open Records Act. He said there should a penalty for state agencies that try to keep public information secret after the attorney general says it is open to press and public.

shape it was in before the dumping began," he said.

Ace Industrial primarily would be using a chemical known as M.P. 900, said Washburn, which he said was approved for use as a general cleaning agent by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in January 1974. The product, when mixed with water, will convert the hydrocarbons or oil to a water-soluble solution and take it back to the ground, back to its original state," Washburn said. M.P. 900 could also be used in cleaning oil-soaked birds, he said. Ace Industrial plans to set up a bird-cleaning station with a professionally trained veterinarian in the event migratory birds are adversely affected at the lake this year, according to Washburn. The Railroad Commission, which has primary jurisdiction over possible discharges of petroleum substances into playa lakes, has set "acceptable" limits of oil and grease discharges into the lake at 20 to 25 parts per million. Phil Russell, director of the Railroad Commission's field operations, told The Reporter-Telegram earlier this week that his agency had received no evidence of birds dying at the lake. "I don't think there are but five of those playa lakes (in West Texas) and they're not using but three of them. None of them in our opinion are causing any pollution. Somebody got a bird dirty and that's the only reason it (Whalen Lake) came to light," Russell said. A study by a Railroad Commission geologist in 1974, however, indicated there are from one to 100 such playa lakes containing some amounts of natural salt water in each of 20 West Texas counties.

Washburn said Thursday at Whalen Lake that if oil companies are willing to spend several million dollars, legal action can be averted and all the contaminated playa lakes can be cleaned up.

And if the chemical agent is successful in West Texas, there might be hope of using it in cleaning up environmental damage caused by oil spills at sea, he added.

Texas PUC probe 'is welcome'

FORT WORTH — Texas Electric Service Co. has taken a position of welcoming a planned investigation by the Public Utility Commission to clarify issues involved in transactions with its affiliates, TESCO President Bill Marquardt said Thursday.

The PUC Thursday announced a "far reaching investigation" of all transactions between TESCO. its sister companies, Dallas Power & Light and Texas Power & Light, and other affiliated companies. The probe is scheduled to begin in about 60 days and will include scrutiny of certain TESCO uranium

The PUC also said that that TESCO appears to have over charged customers in certain areas.

"Texas Electric," Marquardt said, "will cooperate fully with the PUC staff and the commission. "These transactions are all made for the benefit of our customers. This hearing will give us a chance to clarify these matters. We welcome this opportuni-

PUC Chairman George Cowden called for the investigation to fully develop a record of facts concerning several transactions which have been called into question.

Marquardt said the company is gratified that the commission made no prejudgement concerning any of the transactions.

"We feel the PUC commissioners have taken a responsible position. They have come to no premature conclusions. They have decided to take a careful, judicious look at all these issues that have been

The primary issue raised involved a transaction between TESCO and TP&L in which TP&L agreed to sell at cost a quantity of lignite coal to TESCO. In exchange, TESCO agreed to sell at cost a quantity of low-cost natural gas to TP&L.

Marquardt said the company made a good deal for its customers two years ago when it entered into the fuel agreement with TP&L and still considers it to be

'We are responsible for doing the best we can to make sure that our customers have a reliable, long-term supply of electricity at the lowest possible price. This was our sole objective in agreeing to the transaction with TP&L," he said.

Marquardt pointed out that the Public Utility Regulatory Act (PURA) asks that all such transactions be judged on whether they are in the best interests of the public. "As anyone who looks at the facts of this matter has to agree, the transaction clearly is in the best interests of customers of both companies. Therefore, it's clear to us that the agreement was in compliance with the PURA," he said. If Texas Electric had not made the agreement to obtain additional low-cost lignite, its customers would have to pay substantially higher prices for electricity in the 1980s and beyond, Marquardt

He compared the agreement with the 20-year contract the company signed for natural gas in "To obtain that long-term contract, we had to pay a slightly higher price than the going rate at the "So for a few years in the early 1960s, our customers paid a slightly higher price for electricity than they would have if we'd just continued to buy gas in spot purchases on the open market."

But the price of open market gas has ju 1.000 percent since 1960, Marquardt said. "Because of that long-term gas contract, our customers saved about $125 million this year

The decision to acquire additionallignite from TP&L was made for the same reason and will have the same result, he said. "We acquired a long-term supply of stable, reliable energy. For three years, from 1978 to 1980, a customer using an average of 750 kwh a month will pay an average of about $13 extra. But the important thing is this: for the 30 years after that, thesecustomers will save about $11 a year. That's a $40 investment to obtain a $338 savings," he said. The call for the probe was part of the PUC's rate order Thursday in which it granted Texas Electric a rate increase of $40.4 million.

TESCO had requested a $110 million rate in-

Bush for Congress

The time nears for voters of the 19th Congressional District to choose a successor for the veteran George Mahon, the only representative the district has had since it was created some 44 years ago, and who is retiring at the end of this year.

The shoes of this most influential member of Congress will not be the easiest in the world to fill. And this makes this particular congressional race of utmost significance. It is one of the most important, if not the most important, political race of the year for voters in this section of West Texas.

After weighing the issues and the backgrounds of both the Republican and Democrat nominees, The Reporter-Telegram is of the opinion that Republican George Bush is the best qualified to represent all of the people and the diverse interests of the 19th Congressional District.

The Democratic party nominee is Kent Hance of Lubbock, a state senator for the last four years.

Prior to the primary elections earlier this year, The Reporter-Telegram endorsed Bush for the GOP nomination and recommended Hance for the Democrat nomination.

It now comes down to the point where the voters will make the tinal decision as to who will succeed George Mahon. We have made our choice: George Bush. We recommend him to the voters who will make their choice known

Bush is a young, energetic businessman of the highest caliber, and if ever the Congress of the United States needed businessman membership and leadership, it is now. Bush is down to earth, thoroughly practical and conservative in the practice of business. He can and will put his talents and abilities to work in the Congress in the best interests of all concerned.

Bush also has first-hand knowledge of the oil and gas business, gained through his work as an independent oil producer and landman. He will fight for what he considers to be right and in the best interests of the industry and all those whom it serves.

He also has done his homework and understands and relates to the problems and needs of farmers and ranchers who make up such a large constituency in this

In other words, he is ready, willing and pledged to serve all of his constituents in Congress. He will stand up for all working men and women, protecting the value of their earnings and savings.

Bush has lived in both West Texas and Washington, D.C. He has witnessed the continuing encroachment of the federal government into the daily lives of all Americans and is very much aware of the urgent need to eliminate inflationary policies and increased federal spending. His basic political philosophy is right in line with the thinking of most West Texans.

He also recognizes the need for a strong national defense and a U.S. foreign policy negotiated from strength, not weakness.

It often is said that a man may be judged by what the fellow citizens of his hometown think of him. And judged by the tremendous vote he received in Midland County in the primary election, George Bush most certainly rates exceptionally high.

During a good part of this year, Bush has campaigned in all counties of this expansive West Texas district, meeting and getting acquainted with as many of its citizens as possible. It is quite likely that many other residents of the 19th District, after meeting and visiting with George, feel the same way about him as do his fellow Midlanders.

Bush has the qualifications and the earnest desire to represent this West Texas district. And at 31 years of age, he has the maturity to serve, yet the time to accrue the seniority necessary to become a congressional leader.

Weighing all the facts and considering the particular qualifications, backgrounds and philosophies of the two candidates, The Reporter-Telegram again endorses George Bush and urges his election to the United States Congress on Nov. 7.

Hogwash. That bunch of high-living schemers has no integrity. Here is President James Earle Carter vetoing water projects in the U.S. as inflationary and at the same time lobbying in favor of financing water projects in Vietnam! You figure out the logic in that.

But that's not all. Let me give you a short lesson in international trade. For years, we have bought raw materials from other countries and they have used the dollars we paid them to buy finished goods manufactured in these countries, but that is their problem. It's been a very good deal for our country. Alas, the World Bank, to which we have contributed $5.6 billion correct this situation.

INSIDE REPORT:

Senate fills vacuum created by State Department

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Contortions in the State Department to delay a visa for Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and executive council members Ndabaningi Sithole symbolized the bankruptcy of Carter administration Rhodesian policy, a failure that has created a vacuum now being filled by the Senate.

Implicit bankruptcy was declared by the Senate more than three months ago when a resolution to remove economic sanctions from Rhodesia barely failed, 42 to 48. That was followed Sept. 14 by a letter to Smith inviting him and Sithole to Washington signed by 27 senators. Moderates such as Republican Sens. John Heinz and Bob Packwood and Democratic Sens. Jennings Randolph and Ernest Holiings were among the signers.

But even such clear warnings from senators determined to arrest the move toward all-out racial war failed to awaken African policymakers in the State Department. Trapped in a policy that in effect gives veto power over the U.S. to feuding black states bordering Rhodesia and to feuding guerrilla forces armed and trained by Soviet-Cuban officers, State's African specialist shied from making any gesture to the outlawed Smith.

So when Smith's request for a visa arrived the State Department blocked it. At work was the same detachment from reality that has dogged the administration's Rhodesian policy ever since former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's basic plan for ending white domination of black Rhodesia was adopted by Smith last March.

Novak

The pretext for the department's preliminary decision Sept. 30 denying the visa was the United Nations resolution imposing sanctions against the one-time British colony. As a government official in an outlawed nation, Smith's passport has no international standing, but the U.S. can waive that U.N. ban anytime it wants.

For example, both Sithole and Bishop Abel Muzorewa, another member of Rhodesia's executive council, got U.S. visas for previous visits here despite UN sanctions. The State Department was singling out Smith for special treatment.

But the true hypocrisy of the department's preliminary decision to bar Smith on spurious legalistic grounds is exposed by the fact that Zambia, one of the "frontline" black states bordering Rhodesia, itself waived the UN ban and admitted Smith just two months ago.

Smith was invited by Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda for secret negotiations with Joshua Nkomo. The purpose: to find common ground between the two so that Nkomo, a principal leader of guerilla forces now attacking Rhodesia, could be brought into the Rhodesian government. UN sanctions counted for nothing against Zambia's desperate need for a solution to racial war in southern Africa and economic disaster for Zambia and other front-line states.

The political rationale behind the invitation for Smith to come here and talk to senators and other American leaders was grounded on precisely the same hopes that motivated Kaunda: press Smith to find some formula to entice Nkomo into a "share of power" in the Rhodesian government.

The leading Senate player in this game is conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, who is now working through private channels to soften both Smith and Nkomo in the hope of continuing the August contacts started in Zambia - a meeting that lasted several hours and achieved limited objec-

But State Department specialists shrank from exposing the shrewd and wily Smith to the U.S. public or risking the political anger of Third World activists in the UN and blacks in the U.S. Despite Helms' pleading, Smith's request for a visa languished.

Helms then served notice that he would enter formal objections, under the rule of senatorial courtesy, to the State Department's entire list of foreign service promotions, and hold up three ambassadorial confirmations. There were other well-founded threats.

Helms, however, is small potatoes in Jimmy Carter's State Department. What broke the visa barricade was not Helms or his Senate colleagues but a compelling editorial in the Washington Post on Oct. 4. By no stretch could the Post be charged with harboring bias toward Smith. Accusing the State Department of playing a "shabby game," the Post asked: "Must the United States be 'purer' that Zambia?" Within hours of that Oct. 4 editorial, the State Department granted the visa, making a mockery of its sanctimonious pretexts for delay.

ACADEMIC LESSON - We recently reported that the school superintendents from the 50 states were paid $800 apiece in "consulting fees" to attend an annual conference with federal officials. This summer's eight-day bash was held at South Padre Island, Texas, where the academic seminars were rounded out with plenty of tennis, golf and deepsea fishing.

After our story appeared, Education Commissioner Ernest Boyer announced that his agency will no longer parcel out $40,000 a year in consulting fees to the school chiefs. But he said the conferences are worthwhile and that the government will still pay about $80,000 in travel and living expenses for each trip. A scheduled conference in Hawaii,

New woes for Ford Company

By The Associated Press Ford Motor Co., already under fire from critics who allege that its Pinto cars explode when hit in the rear, has new troubles involving its Mustang II and Lincoln Continental.

In Los Angeles, a Superior Court jury on Thursday awarded $11.5 million to a suburban Sherman Oaks man who says the brakes of a 1966 Lincoln Continental failed, leading to a crash in which he suffered brain damage.

And in Portland, Ore., a defense lawyer in a manslaughter case is arguing that a Mustang II, not the defendant, caused the fiery death of a woman in a two-car collision.

Farida Khattar, an East Beirut Maronite Christian stands before her rocket damaged apartment in Beirut, Thursday. The damage was done by shelling during fighting between Christian militia and Syrian troops.

Five wounded; Cease-fire wobbles

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Explosions and sniper fire wounded five persons during the night as Lebanese army units moved into buffer zones to prop up the wobbly Syrian-Christian truce.

The violence flared along the "green line" dividing Moslem West Beirut and Christian East Beirut. The troops took up station in two Christian suburbs.

The cease-fire, implemented Saturday by Syrian President Hafez Assad and his Lebanese counterpart Elias Sarkis, capped 10 days of fighting that killed some 1,300 Lebanese.

Sarkis is trying to end the Syrian-Christian conflict and reconcile the largely have-not Moslem majority and the entrenched Christian minority who make up the bulk of Lebanon's population.
Some 30,000 Syrian soldiers spearheaded the Arab

League peace force sent into Lebanon to save the Christians from defeat at the hands of the Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas in the 1975-76 civil war. The Christians turned on the Syrians in February when they tried to disarm them without disarming the Moslems. Syrian anger also focused on the

Reports in the Lebanese press said Sarkis would seek a three-month cease-fire pledge to give him time to work out a comprehensive peace plan this

Sarkis implemented the first step in that plan Thursday, when he ordered the Lebanese army troops to man the buffer zones between Syrian and Christian lines in the two Beirut suburbs.

The Lebanese army, made up predominantly of Christian officers and Moslem enlisted men, collapsed during the civil war and is only now being

The division of power between Moslems and Christians is the key to Lebanon's four years of sporadic fighting. The Moslems took on the Christians in 1975 in a bid to get a bigger share of power.

Craddick supports tax safeguards

AUSTIN - Proposed Constitutional Amendment Number Two has been endorsed by State Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland.

In a statement released in Austin Thursday, Craddick said, "I urge all Texans to give favorable consideration to Proposed Amendment Number Two on the November ballot.' The amendment provides a new tool for attracting industry to Texas with several safeguards to maintain healthy tax income to our taxing agencies, said Craddick,

The proposal provides that no city or county issuing the revenue bonds can tax its citizens for repayment. In fact, that statement must be printed on the bonds, Craddick said.

This amendment will ensure that Texans will enjoy a healthy economy and can compete with the 46 states that now allow industrial revenue bonds, Craddick said. He said he probably will be endorsing other proposed amendments as the November election nears.

Complaints heard about bilingual education plan

By AMY KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN-Disgruntled school administrators brought the spectre of Texas schoolchildren learning "alien" cultures and "divided loyalties" from bilingual education programs to the State Board of Education Thursday, arguing changes in the state bilingual education plan are worse than unworkable.

The State Board of Education heard administrators from around the state at a hearing on changes adopted in June in bilingual education laws.

And despite praise from many Mexican-American educators and a spokesman for the Dallas Independent School District, others claimed the changes would lead to problems from economic hardships to a lack of loyalty for Texas and the United

Goldthwalte school board member Douglas Dennis claimed the purpose of Texas schools is "to teach Texas and American heritage," not an "alien heritage." Taxpayers, he added, "have every right to expect...loyal, proud, productive alien citizens" as a product of their public

The new policy requires all districts to provide special programs for children with limited Englishspeaking ability from kindergarten through 12th grade. Earlier policy required those programs for kindergarten through third grade if there were 20 or more children of limited English-speaking ability at

All districts must use the Commissioner of Education's standards to identify children entering or leaving the biligual programs. Complete bilingual programs must be available for all limited English-speaking students in grades kindergarten through five, and English language development courses must be provided for at least one class period daily for all limited English-speaking children in grades six through 12.

Other administrators said the plan would be costly to implement where there are only a handful of non-English-speaking students. And Jack Hall, superintendent of San Benito ISD-with 90 percent Mexican-American students-said the rules could lead to segregating students from mainstream activities. He also accused the Board of Education of trying to "sell" the public education system a program designed with little chance for practical implication.

"Give us an alternative," he urged. "We know more about bilingual education than a lot of college

Mexican-American educators, however, said the program was a step in the right direction, sometimes charging the changes did not go far enough in stressing bilingual education or recognizing limited Englishspeaking students as "linguistically gifted" because of their ability to communicate in a language other than English.

And, one speaker pointed out, Europeans don't worry about dividing their children's loyalty to their native land by teaching them many other languages-and Americans shouldn't worry about exposing their children to foreign languages and cultures.

Water loss figures inaccurate

BEND

AUSTIN-Estimates of water losses between the proposed Stacy Reservoir site and Lake Buchanan may not be accurate, consultant for the Colorado River Municipal Water District testified Thursday in the continuing hearing on the Stacy project before the Texas Water Commission.

Robert Gooch, with the engineering firm of Freese and Nichols Inc., acknowledged that so-called channel loss estimates for the Colorado River from the proposed reservoir to Lake Buchanan apparently did not take into consideration riparian diversions, if any, in the San Saba River and Pecan Bayou watersheds.

"You didn't check to see if there were any diversions, did you?" Lower Colorado River Authority attorney Larry Smith asked.

Gooch said riparian diversions were not investigated and said that if there were any significant riparian water uses in those two watersheds, the estimated channel loss results would be changed.

Smith observed that the CRMWD engineers had figured in riparian diversions in calculations to determine channel losses in the lower river

The LCRA attorney also noted that in the CRMWD's calculation of downstream water availability, apparently no consideration was given to a Department of Water Resources report's estimate of about 68,000 acrefeet of water loss annually due to water releases by the LCRA to downstream irrigators which cannot be used due to unanticipated rainfall in the coastal irrigation areas.

Cross-examination of Gooch by Stacy opponents will continue Tues-day at 9:30 a.m. here.

Victim's parents tried to warn stubborn daughter about the world

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Mary Vincent's parents say they warned their young daughter of the dangers that lurked outside her comfortable home, but that she left anyway "to see the world."

Now she is recovering from a rape and ax mutilation and they wonder if they're to blame.

"She just wanted to be an adult before her time," Herbert Vincent said softly Thursday. "We did what we could. But you can't chain a person down."

Mary was found Sept. 30, nude and bleeding, on a country road near here after walking almost two miles from where the attack occurred. Her forearms had been hacked off below the elbows. Larry Singleton, a 51-year-old merchant seaman from Sparks, Nev., was arraigned Thursday on four-felony counts in the case.

One of seven children, Mary, 15, ran away from her Las Vegas home last April, her parents said. It was not the first time, but this time she stayed away longer, and the ending was trag-

"We don't know if we're the ones who failed, or if it was something at school, or something with society," Vincent, a 38-year-old slot machine mechanic, said in an interview. "Perhaps we failed some ways, and if I knew how I would be glad to tell other people."

But if children want to leave home, he said, "you can't stop them. It's best if they go to another relative. Hitchhiking, that's the worst thing."

Lucy Vincent, 37, a casino worker, called her daughter "a sweet, good girl" who, "like all teen-agers, sometimes had tantrums." Before Mary left home the last time, the two bickered about whether or not she should be allowed to wear makeup, Mrs Vincent said.

Mary didn't tell her parents she was leaving, but called later. "She said she was confused in a lot of ways, and wanted to find her own way," her father recalled.

"We tried everything to explain to Mary, to prove to Mary, that so many things could happen out in the world," said Vincent.

Mary is learning to use a prosthesis that has been fitted to the stump of her left arm. Her spirits are generall; high, but she has brief, intense bouts with depression and anger, nurses say.

The Vincents said their daughter has vowed to become adept with artificial arms. "She's said that she won't be handicapped, that she'l be able to do anything she wants to do," including pursuing a career as a dancer, her mother said.

Two group members surrender in bizarre rattlesnake assault

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Synanon Foundation members, including the son of bandleader Stan Kenton, were booked today for investigation of assault with intent to commit murder in a rattlesnake attack on an attorney who won a $300,000 judgment against the group, police said.

Lance Kenton, 20, and Joseph Musico, 28, surrendered to Los Angeles Police detectives in Badger, Calif., about 150 miles from here, at a camp owned by Synanon, a drug rehabilitation organization.

Under California law, police can book someone for investigation but formal charges can be brought only at an arraignment before a judge.

Police Cmdr. William Booth said a car reportedly seen during the bizarre incident, a green Plymouth, was at the camp.

Lawyer Paul Morantz, 33, remained in stable but serious condition at County-USC Medical Center where he was taken after being bitten by a 4½-foot rattlesnake that had been dropped into his mailbox.

Liz out of danger after choking

BIG STONE GAP, Va. (AP) — A doctor pushed a two-inch piece of chicken down actress Elizabeth Taylor's esophagus and into her stomach at a hospital where she was taken after she began choking during a campaign appearance for her husband.

Dr. H.D. Patel of Big Stone Gap performed the five-minute procedure Thursday night at Lonesome Pine Hospital. He said Miss Taylor suffered no complications but would spend the night in the hospital.

"There was no danger," Patel said.

"A small piece of tissue was stuck in her swallowing tube ... We used a flexible tube with a light on it ... and dislodged the tissue down to her stomach. She is fine."

Morantz was attacked by the snake Tuesday when he returned home and reached into the mailbox. The reptile's rattles had been removed, apparently to keep it from warning its victim, police said.

"It was like having my hand in a vice and it kept tightening," Morantz said. Fire Department paramedics came to his aid while firemen beheaded the snake.

Morantz, who has crusaded against various cults and alternative lifestyle groups and has been involved in a number of child custody battles with Synanon, recently won a $300,000 judgment for a couple who said the wife had been kidnapped and physically abused by Synanon last year.

Police would not comment on the possible connection between the attack and Morantz's legal victories.

House cuts Carter meat import power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted today to curb President Carter's power to let more hamburger into the country when meat prices are high, revamping meat-import laws that have been in effect for 14 years.

The action came on a 289-66 vote as the House worked past midnight.

Carter is reluctant to publicly threaten to veto the bill because he's had all the political rows with the cattle industry he can stand, House Democratic leadership sources say, even though consumer pressure to increase hamburger supplies is likely.

Differences with an even-more-restrictive Senatepassed version have to be resolved and approved by both chambers in the next two days if a bill is to make it to the White House this year.

Last week, the House rejected one amendment under which Carter would have retained his present flexibility in regulating imports and another amendment that would have cut the average level of 1.3 billion imported pounds by about one-third.

The House did accept by voice vote today provisions giving Carter discretion over imports if a natural disaster caused a shortage of meat.

High prices are expected to be the rule for three to five years, until cattle herds are rebuilt to early-1970s levels.

Hamburger prices in the first half of this year rose 19 percent, and prices paid to producers for the 19 percent, and prices paid to producers for the lower-grade cows that ground meat comes from rose 54 percent.

However, even in good times, cattle ranchers vigorously complain that the 7 percent of the meat supply that comes from abroad is putting them out of business.

Under the House bill's formulas, imports would be increased from recent levels only when ranchers are rebuilding herds, supplies of homegrown meat are declining and retail prices are rising.

Carter, consumer groups and livestock producers all accept that. But the bill also would stop Carter from overruling the formula and expanding imports to respond to any inflationary situation it doesn't

Cattle prices would have to rise 10 percent faster than retail beef prices each month during the winter and spring before he could act — a situation that has occurred once in 10 years. Even then, imports could only be expanded by 10 percent.

Carter health plan has rough going

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key health leaders in the House say President Carter's program to curb rising hospital costs may yet pass Congress, but "it won't be easy."

In a last ditch effort to save Carter's plan to put a ceiling on hospital revenues, the Senate tacked the measure Thursday onto a minor tariff bill that had earlier passed the House.

The chief author of the new proposal Sen Gaylord

The chief author of the new proposal, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said it would encourage the hospital industry to continue its voluntary effort to control costs. But if that failed, he said, mandatory federal controls would be triggered.

Hospitals with 4,000 or fewer admissions a year would be exempt.

Nelson's proposal would permit hospitals to increase their costs annually at a rate 1½ times greater than the overall rate of inflation. This extra margin of inflation, he said, would take into account the hospitals' special needs for expensive equipment and other items to provide quality care.

Earlier in the year, the House Commerce Committee rejected an administration-backed bill to impose mandatory federal controls on hospitals. The House Ways and Means Committee also refused to approve the proposal earlier this year.

Hair color for kids new rage

By RONALD J. SCHLEYER Associated Press Writer

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) - The ads in suburban newspapers in the Detroit area, "Start sooner...look better longer," have lured dozens of bubble-gummers to the salon of Shila Caplan Morganroth in the posh suburb of Bloomfield Hills.

The vivacious hairdresser, whose own auburn-tinged tresses are a product of her art, is vociferous in her defense of hair coloring for children.

"Not all children have gorgeous hair. Some are mousy," said Shila, who uses just that name professionally, in a recent interview Nine-year-old Jennifer Sperandeo of Farmington doesn't consider herself mousy. Her mother, Nina, brought her to Shila for a haircut and permanent. When she walked out, her hair was a couple of shades lighter than her natural sandy blonde. "It was kind of mom and Shila's idea," she said, adding she likes the results even if her friends hardly notice the change. Her mother paid the $35 coloring charge.

Shila admitted she had already been drummed out of one salon because the regular clients disapproved of kids' invading their traditionally adult haven. The objections go beyond that single salon.

Jean Bushey teaches hair coloring at Shila's alma mater, Detroit's Virginia Farrell beauty school, one of Michigan's largest.

"Hair coloring and permanent waving damage the elasticity of the hair," Mrs. Bushey said, expressing surprise that anyone would use dye without good reason, such as covering gray. "We do not advise it on kids," Once begun, the dyeing must usually be continued, she added.

Condos home to singles

By GUS STEVENS Copley News Service

Five years ago, when Estell Antell set out to buy her own condominium, she was a freak, a loner, a single woman trespassing in a man's world.

Today Antell is just one of the girls, one of thousands of women who have purchased and financed their own condominiums. They are living alone and happily in their cozy homes,

Real estate people estimate that today anywhere from 15 percent to 40 percent of buyers in the condominium market are single women - "single" meaning women without men in their homes, whether they were never married or are divorced.

Why are so many women rushing into the condo market? Professionals in real estate and finance have tried to come up with some answers.

For one thing, there simply are more women living by themselves in this liberated age. Women are more willing to leave their husbands or the parental nest if they are unhappy. Thanks to legal protection and increased ability to live on their own, more women are able to qualify for home loans. Often they will double up to swing a mortgage loan. There are more women in the professions, more career women living alone and earning higher salaries, which means they have the money and the opportunity to buy real estate on their own. Condos are affordable, and they're zooming higher in investment value. Finally, many single women enjoy the condo lifestyle. Antell, 52, considered herself a pioneer when she set out in 1973 to buy a condo. "I went out to find my own lender because I thought they were charging too much interest," Antell said. "I guess I could have gotten a loan through the condo's lender, but I went shopping for cheaper money." Even though Antell had a good job as a management consultant, earning $20,000 a year in 1973, she was, she says, bounced from bank to bank looking for a mortgage loan. Since then better things have been happening to Antell, who now is going into the retail arts and crafts business, and to other single women. One of these is the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, enacted three years

The federal act, along with the efforts of women like Antell, has opened the credit doors to women until they are almost as wide open for them as for men.

This new freedom has resulted in a booming rush by women to snap up condos.

One who joined the rush, buying her first piece of property on her own, is Adrienne Lipman. She was hurled out of the once-secure ivy cottage of marriage into the briar patch of Lipman says she was terrifed. She'd been married since age 18 to a dominant husband who had made all the family's financial decisions. With trepidation, she collected their three children and moved 500 miles away from home, to San Diego, Calif. There, lenders advised her to get a job. She did, in real estate. She qualified for a loan and bought a

"I love it," Lipman, 39, said. "My monthly cost is $470 for mortgage, assessment and insurance. My 2year-old condo is worth $90,000 today.

Can you believe it?" Not long ago, Lipman joined financial forces with a female friend, buying another condo jointly to help her friend get the place to live that she wanted.

Why do women prefer condos and town houses?

Affordable cost, convenience, security, lifestyle.

"A condo is cheaper than a house," said Barbara Martin, who bought a condo in April. "If you want to throw your money away, rent.

"I have roots owning something, a primary base of operations. I have the security of being in a good neighborhood among people who are friendly and who care. They know when I'm gone and they keep their eyes open. Martin, 33, a free-lance photographer, was asked whether she is pleased with her lifestyle.

'Now, living in my condo, I'm as happy as a pig in the sun," she said. Antell also cited condo security as an advantage for women alone.

'I also like the easy upkeep," she said. "I can just lock the door and go away. No lawns to water, no housekeeping worries."

Lipman agrees, adding the bargain features of condo buying.

"The prices are down where people like me can afford to buy when we never could afford a decent house,"

Real estate agent Chuck Carroll said, "Not long ago, women buying were rare. Now it's common. among both young and old.

"We're running into quite a bit of communal buying, two people going together so they can qualify for the estimated that "perhaps 30 to 40 percent of the people in the real estate marketplace are women, both as buyers and sellers."

Saul Klein is assistant manager of a real estate firm that specializes in selling and buying condominiums for

"We handle 15 to 20 units a month," Klein said, "and perhaps 20 to 30 percent are bought by single women. doubling up, however. They seem reluctant to take on female partners, but men don't mind pairing up with other men."

Attic area just waiting for your ideas and work

The attic in most homes is just a place to stash away old junk. If you've outgrown the house, it may also be a way to steal some living space without having to expand the foundation. It's an already enclosed and waterproof area just waiting for your ideas and work. There may be only enough room for a small study or sewing room, or it might offer area for an entire suite. Be sure the house is structurally equipped for your addition and that what you're planning complies with the local building code. Then get it under way. Often an attic will have only a certain part in the center that will be tall enough for head room. If it's enough for your add-on room, you can still steal storage space back in the unfinished low places. Install drawers in the walls that will extend back behind the new wall. The drawers at the top may have to be very short to avoid hitting very simple solution to the space problem, but lots of people forget that this creates a heating problem. The closed drawers, even with clothes inside, won't insulate against cold air in the attic. The solution is to build a rough backing that follows the slope of the roof, yet leaves enough room for proper insulation between so the wrapping of insulation around the living quarters is complete.

Dear Super Al:

I learned the hard way that when you finish out an attic for a new room, you should still leave access to the rest of the attic. A couple of years after my work of art, we suffered a roof leak. The only way I could get into the area where the trouble was to pinpoint the problem was to cut a hole in my finished and insulated wall. It hurt. I now have a hinged access door, but could have saved lots of work and heartache by thinking ahead of time. Pass it on. -E.B.

Dear Al:

The only way we could provide a stairway to the loft study we built in the attic was to put a ladder going up. That was fine until an accident prevented my being able to climb. Now my sons have a totally private study room that I have no access to, and I'm sure it is a pig pen. I now wish we had used a disappearing stairway that I could handle. Other divorced mothers might keep this in mind. -Mrs. C.P.

A SUPER HINT - Most attics are insulated, with the insulating material down on the attic floor. When you get ready to finish a portion of your attic, you certainly want to insulate all around the new living space. If at all possible, remove the insulation under the new living space. This will allow heat from the rest of the house below to rise up through the ceiling and help to heat your new nest. Otherwise, all of the heat for the new room will have to be created or delivered up there.

Dear Al:

Rather than put ducts from the furnace into my new attic office, I let Mother Nature do the work. On each side of the room, I cut through to the ceiling in rooms below. Then I installed a vent on both the floor and ceiling. The hot air that would normally be at the top of the ceilings rises on through the vents and into my attic room. It keeps the room warm, and I couldn't have easily attached ducts since the original ducts run under the house in the crawl space.—T.R.

SHOP TALK - There are lots of reasons to add on to your present house instead of selling out and buying a bigger place. Two new books that will give you lots of ideas are just out from Sunset Books. "Remodeling Your Home" and "The Add-a-Room Book" will get your creative juices going and give you some good pointers on doing the best possible job

Couple wed in double ring service

Marla Kay Trauber and Michael Dale Thomas repeated double ring wedding vows at 4 p.m. Saturday in Primitive Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Trauber of Route 1 are parents of the bride. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Evelyn Thomas of Mulberry, Tenn. and the late J. T. Thomas.

The Rev. John Conley performed the ceremony.

Bobbie Wilson was maid of honor for the bride. Her other attendants included Darla Pardue and Cynthia Logan of Lynchburg, Tenn., the bride's sister. Thomas Phelps of Fayetteville, Tenn. was best man. Attendants for the bridegroom included Chris Presley, Joby Fussell, Mark Logan of Lynchburg and David Presley. Angela Trauber, the bride's sister, was the flower girl and Charles Parr Trauber, the bride's brother, was ring bearer.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a semi-empire waisted gown of sheer organza with shaped hemline train and a contour bead-trimmed band collar. The satin skirt with overlays of sheer organza was trimmed with lace. She carried a cascade of pastel colored roses and baby's breath.

Bake chicken in modeling clay

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I've heard that a chicken can be encased in bought clay and baked. Do you know how this is done? - HANDCRAFTER.

DEAR HANDCRAFTER: Chicken baked in an odorless, moist modeling clay was served, a dozen or so years ago, by a New York restaurant now no longer in existence. And around that time one of the fashion magazines gave the restaurant's recipe for baking a large fish encased in the clay. I believe a recipe for chicken baked in this commercial modeling clay is extant, but I've never come on it. If any reader has the recipe I'd be grateful for a copy.

About a year ago I gave a recipe for baking a small chicken, seasoned inside with rosemary, in homemade clay-dough. This time around we call for a large chicken seasoned with dill or tarragon and a bigger batch of the

Talk given to study club on cowboys

Dod Hedgpeth, author of "The Texas Breed," a cowboy anthology, and former curator of the Nita Haley Stewart Memorial Library, spoke to The Heritage Study Club in the home of Carmen Martin, president.

Hedgpeth explained that the deep fascination of the cowboy still exists, although the cattle drive era during which the cowboy came into existence lasted only 20 years. "More children than ever are playing cowboy," stated Hedgpeth. "The man on horseback has always inspired a feeling of awe." Sociological reasons for the existence of the cowboy included pride, independence and self-reliance of the people who chose this form of live. Hedgpeth also portrayed the life of the cowboy in song, while accompanying himself on the guitar.

Cosmetics: Billion dollar health trap?

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - Cosmetics are among the most widely used consumer items, but are one of the least controlled, according to a recent report by the General Accounting

At least 125 cosmetic ingredients are suspected of causing cancer, 25 are thought to cause birth effects, and 20 damage the nervous system from causing headaches to convulsions. Yet, little is done to even warn consumers, the study said

Americans spend $9 billion annually on cosmetics - which range from bubblebaths to hair dyes, makeup, deodorants, toothpastes and baby powders.

The GAO found the authority of the Food and Drug Administration is limited when it comes to cosmetics. The Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act requires that a cosmetic be free of substances that make it "injurious" and that it be produced under sanitary conditions, but FDA cannot require that manufacturers:

- Register their products. File data on the ingredients in their products. - File reports of cosmetic-related injuries. - Or test their products for safety.

When the FDA has tried to strengthen some of its cosmetic regulations, it has failed, the report found. In 1972 and 1973 the agency asked cosmetic manufacturers to file information on their plants and product ingredients and register injuries reported from product use.

Yet, as of December, 1977, only 40 percent of manufacturers had registered their plants; less than 20 percent had filed ingredient listings; and fewer than four percent had released injury reports, the study indicated.

There are many ironies in existing cosmetic laws.

An FDA regulation requires that cosmetics which have not been adequately tested for safety include a warning label.

However, the FDA is not authorized to require that manufacturers test their products for safety or even make their test results available to

Still, the GAO found there is more the FDA can do under its existing authority to regulate this industry which grows by 15 percent a year.

The agency now can inspect cosmetic plants and collect and test cosmetic samples; establish manufaturing standards; require manufacturers to prove the safety of color additives in cosmetics; restrict the use of hazardous cosmetic ingredients and require precautioary cosmetic labeling.

'However, the agency has not effectively used this authority," the report states.

For instance, only half of the cosmetic manufacturers were in-spected between 1969 and 1975. Since that time, an additional 1,000 manufacturers have been identified by the agency and never been checked.

The agency has established no

Male stylist, designer believes clothing attitude can speak out

By GUS STEVENS Copley News Service

Clothes make the man, they say. Some say that a man's wardrobe even can speak for him. Stylist and designer Luciano Franzoni believes that if there is such a thing as body language, wherein body attitudes deliver messages, then clothing attitudes can speak just as clearly. "Clothing transmits vibrations that can be decided," said Franzoni, designer for a venerable Midwest clothing manufacturer. "What we wear and - more importantly - how we wear it is undoubtedly a form of visual language." Franzoni is assuming, of course, that the man flashing personal messages through his choice of wing tips, socks and Tshirts is his own man, that his wardrobe wasn't selected by a pushy salesman or a domineering mistress. 'Through clothing we reveal a whole series of elements that might be turned to our advantage," said the Chicago-based Hart Schaffner and Marx designer. "These elements provide the image that others expect

"Diplomats, politicians, actors, salesman and others are often quite good at playing this mimetic game." Franzoni said even Christ used His clothing to help Him stand out in a crowd of colors.

"In the 2,000 years since, the popes have used a similar garb and the very same color to communicate, without saying a word, that they were and are the heads of the Roman Catholic Church."

Franzoni noted that "since prehistoric times men have found it much easier to identify through special ornaments" people of certain statuses:

The chief of the tribe, the doctor, warrior, peasant, priest, adolescent, elderly, virgin, married woman.

"That's how uniforms were born so that we would know, without asking or being told, who's the cop, the nurse, the pilot, the admiral, the corporal or the bus driver.

Other clothing language indicators from Franzoni: Anti-status - "During the horror years of Naziism, Jews were obliged to wear a yellow Star of David on their coats, an infamous way of making clothes denounce a status.' Sloppiness vs. fastidiousness - "If we are sloppy, we don't have to make an announcement. The condition speaks for us. Contrariwise, a fastidious guy is much too neat (see how perfectly folded his breast pocket handkerchief is?)."

Reverse snobbism - "There are some men who practice the type of snobbism which consists in not ever being in fashion. A person who is wearing a leisure suit in 1978 could well be a victim of circumstances. On the other hand, he may be trying to tell you he detests both you and your European double-breasted blazer.'

Dissidence - "Nowadays you don't have to slip into your sister's dress to be defined as a dissident. Narrow stovepipe jeans, high boots, an Eisenhower jacket, a bandana in one of your back pockets may trigger the accusation. Again, it's how you wear things. The very same elements are, in fact, part of most cowboys' daily attire, and nobody raises his eyebrow at their view.

Franzoni digs into his statement about how a man wears his clothes, emphasizing its importance.

"An all-buttoned-up gentleman in his dark gray, vested, pinstripe suit tells you that he is a symbol of authority. Another gentleman, wearing the very same outfit but with no tie and an open-neck shirt, is obviously making another statement. Most probably he's a free-spirited swinging, progressive, youthful person. Or simply a guy who listens too much to certain designers' pronouncements."

Military apparel - "Civilians don't normally disclose as much about themselves as people in the military do. By looking at a uniform we can tell, for example, if somebody is a Navy officer, his rank, how many quinquennia he has served, which war and campaigns he fought in, if he has been rewarded (how and how many times) for his gallantry, if he can fly an aircraft, if he has been wounded and how many times, if his specialty is electronics and so forth."

Cable-chewing guard invented

MURRAY HILL, N.J. (AP) - Bell Telephone has decided to fight back against cable-chewing rodents and birds that inflict hundreds of thousands of dollars damage every year.

Scientists for the telephone company have developed a new guard that shields aerial cable from the woodpeckers and rodents.

The triangular guard, designed to slip over telephone cable, prevents animals from getting the best bite on the cable and thus reduces damage.

Bell officials claim the new guard has withstood wind-tunnel velocities of 75 mph and is resistant to accidental ignition from brush fires, lightning hits and power-line crosses.

How can you put cash in Santa's pocket before Christmas without going to work forever?

The answer's easy: Apply now for a temporary job at TI.

Right now, Texas Instruments is accepting applications for rapidly approaching temporary openings for electronic assemblers. Openings will be on both day and night shifts, helping produce Texas Instruments consumer products such as electronic calculators

This is an outstanding opportunity for students, housewives or others who would like to work until mid-December without giving up their other priorities.

TI is accepting applications Monday-Friday. 8AM-5PM, and Saturday, 8AM-noon. Apply at the Employment Center, Texas Instruments. Midland-Odessa Air Terminal.

for lunch today

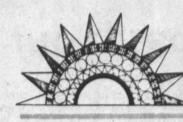

If you're like most people you enjoy sitting down to lunch with a close friend. Especially during the week. Its fun and it gives you a lift.

But, in Midland, you sometimes find yourself looking for a restaurant with delicious food and a warm atmosphere, you should know about

Eden is Midland's new restaurant. The ingredients that make Eden so good are the fresh and natural menu mixed with a warm and friendly atmosphere. Plus, Eden offers you homemade dessert daily.

Next time you take a friend to lunch, pick Eden. It's convenient, inexpensive, and it's really good.

We honor

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices ware mixed today as a prime rate increase spread quickly through the banking industry.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had slipped 4.68 on Thursday, edged up .18 to 896.92 by noontime today.

But declines held a 3-2 edge on advances in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchangelisted issues.

Numerous banks across the country joined today in a quarter-point increase in the prime lending rate to 10 percent, which had been initiated on Thursday by Chase Manhattan of New York. Chase's decision to raise the basic charge on blue chip loans to the two-digit level for the first time since the 1974-75 recession seemed to take the steam out of a rally in stock prices that had begun Wednesday, when the Dow climbed nearly 10 points

Brokers noted a general atmosphere of pessimism about the interest rate outlook, because the Federal Reserve's recent program of allowing money rates to rise gradually has yet to accomplish its stated objective of restraining the growth of the money supply

Lockheed was down 1 at 29% after a 1%-point drop Thursday, when the company estimated relatively flat 1978 earnings and said it didn't expect any big increase next year.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .10 to 58.96. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .35 at 171.80.

Volume on the Big Doard slowed to 9.04 million shares as of noontime, against 14.04 million at the same point Thursday.

Ingredients there for credit crunch By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) - Four of the five ingredients that usually cook up a credit crunch are now present in the economy, according to a recognized authority on the subject. But he still believes such a squeeze will be avoided. Crunches are serious business because, simply stated, American industry and individuals live on credit. It finances not just the U.S. Government and big corporations, but households and even vaca-Making it hard to get - because of a tight Federal Reserve money policy and strong demand for what little is available—is analogous to an orge choking the hero blue in the face and leaving him limp and Since credit crunches precede recessions - an economy gasping for cash can't generate much vigor - the avoidance of one already breathing on our necks is a cause for cheering, like on the kids' TV Alan Sinai doesn't suggest cheering, because we have rapid inflation, nearly full employment, tight money and financial instability, four of the precrunch ingredients. The only one missing is a boom

But the "Crunch Barometer" he maintains for Data Resources Inc., the Lexington, Mass., economic think tank, does show that we're likely to avert the worst, if only by a whisker.

His major worry is about an external shock. "In most crunch episodes there has been at least one external shock that has accelerated the pace of the economy toward a credit crunch," he warns. A statement of that sort is a confession that a computer projection is only as good as the assumptions made. You've heard the local weather forecaster talk about such things. Conceivably, he believes, a shock could come from continued dollar weakness, partly as a consequence of sustained inflation, that would provoke an even tighter Federal Reserve money policy But that's not the forecast. Instead, Data Resources, founded by Otto Eckstein, former member from "Pre-Crunch Period pressures" is just weeks The current situation of money tightening, Sinai says, will ease late this year and early in 1979.

Dollar still going down

LONDON (AP) - The dollar drifted downward on most European money markets today. Gold also fell back from record highs.

Morning dollar rates, compared with Thursday: Frankfurt - 1.8689 West German marks, down

Paris - 4.26625 French francs, unchanged. Zurich - 1.53675 Swiss francs, down from 1.54. Amsterdam - 2.0315 Dutch guilders, down from Milan — 814.50 Italian lire, down from 815.55. In London the dollar did slightly better against the pound in end-of-week trading. One pound cost $1.9879 compared to $1.98885 late Thursday.

The dollar recovered slightly in quiet trading in Tokyo to close the day at 186.70 yen, more than one yen higher than Thursday's closing price of 185.55

In Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion market, gold was trading at $225.375 an ounce late in the morning, $2 below the all-time high for the metal of $227.375 hit during morning trading Thursday. But Friday morning's price was 25 cents above

Thursday's closing priceTin Zurich of $225.125. London's five major bullion dealers "fixed" the price of gold for the morning trading at $225.05 an ounce, more than $2 below Thursday morning's fixing price of $227.20, but up 70 cents from Thurs-

FORT DAVIS - Cyclist Robert "Mercks" Jennings of Midland wasn't about to steer you wrong.

"You see things on a bike you don't see from a car," said the red-bearded biker, as he pedaled on the beginning leg of the 75-mile hill-and-dell scenic loop through the Davis Mountains.

He shifted his 10-speed bike into high gear, steadily pumped with his toned muscles, and pulled away. He wasn't the first to finish in the fest, but he was in the running.

On this Saturday morn, the mountains and plains were green from the fall rains. The mesquite, the gray and live oak trees, the pine and cedar, the cottonwood and the madrona all flushed the landscape with color. Autumn was holding winter in abeyance.

The clouds on this comfortably cool day were covered mountain tops. And every now and then, a fine, wind-blown mist would fall. Seven hours later, after a snack and a drink via the "sag-wagon" at the Rock Pile across from Saw Tooth Mountain midway in the ride, Jennings and other seasoned cyclists would have arrived, solely on their pedals, at the beginning: Prude Ranch. They were in the minority.

The majority on this Davis Mountains Cycle Fest and Mountain Climb were neophyte cyclists. Most of the lot of a dozen cyclists pedaled 25, 35, 40, 45 and 50 miles along the loop that boasts the highest road in the Lone Star State. The Fort Davis cyclists (and non-cyclists) welcomed them. had traveled from Dallas, Midland and Lubbock to participate in this fun 'day' concocted by John Robert Prude and his son, Chipper. Neither is much of a cyclist. Horses and pickup trucks are their ways of getting around. A rancher on a bike? Nope. The weekend cycle fest was just a way for the Prude Ranch folks to turn the city lights on this mountainous haven and on the "dude" ranch itself. It's got stables and plenty of horses, bunk houses, a chow house full of good grub, and the Prude Opry House on the 3,500-acre spread.

'We're very happy," John Robert Prude said the next day, on a warm and clear Sunday, just before the two-mile "race" up the 17-degree grade to Mount Locke was to begin.

By then, the cyclists were refreshed from the loop ride. 'We're people oriented," Prude said. "Actually ..., those cattle don't give you much companionship." His companions for these two days were

"This is not a race," Prude said at the line-up. He had an electronic timer in hand. "This is a strictly a challenge."

And how right he was. He was as right about the rigors of that upward climb as Jennings was right about seeing "things" - nature's unfoldings - from the bicycle.

The Saturday ride around the loop was pleasuresome; credit that to the countryside. It was tiring; credit that to the up-hill, steady pedaling in the low gears. The level rides in high gear were more to the liking. But the downhill flying rides, particularly past Mount Locke and southeasterly on Texas Highway 118 down toward home (Prude Ranch) and Fort Davis, Altogether, the ride, coupled with the hitching by most, was a

"This is kind of a self-paced, do-it-at-your-own-speed kind of thing," Lubbock cyclist John Gallogly, 30, said.

His words, at onset of the loop ride, were true. "And most of us are going at our own speed."

The cyclists were staggered in the loop ride. Some were miles apart. 'Believe it or not, this is my first attempt around the loop," said Gallogly, a law student at Texas Tech University.

It was the first for many around the loop, which takes in the curvy Ushape of Texas Highway 116, runs westward out of Fort Davis, curves northeasterly until it bleeds into Texas 118, which, on the southbound leg, leads you to McDonald Observatory, Davis Mountains State Park, Fort Davis National Historic Site and so to the quaint, old-fashioned village of Fort Davis.

Gallogly wasn't the only first-timer on the loop. Midland bicycle mechanic Lynn Patty, 29, was to get initiated. His wife Cornelia and daughter, Kyra, 9, took the motor route.

"That's the only reason I came ... was to ride the mountains down," Patty quipped. For the most part, he did just that. "Boy! That sure was a gas coming down!" he was to say later, after he came clipping down a steep mountain road called "Dead Man's Curve" on the way to home

It was a first, too, for David Ham, 28, general manager of a Peyton's Bikes in Midland, and his wife, Kathy, 28. They covered part of the Pedaling over more than half the loop for the first time was Jan Williams-Todd, 28, wire editor for The Odessa American, and spouse, Ed. Cycling along, too, was Anita Burgess, 25, a Texas Tech law student from Hale Center.

Wendell Moore, 30, personnel administrator for the city of Dallas, was into the full loop for the first time.

"I regularly ride. I don't race or anything," said Moore. "I just Tom Hutchinson, 27, who owns a bicycle shop in Lubbock, tours and races, as does his 24-year-old wife, DiAnn.

"I like it. It's a lot of fun," said Hutchinson, who holds the state's bike sprint championship. The Hutchinsons "made" the loop.

So, too, did Tim Redus, 22, a Texas Tech student and bike mechanic who owns the statewide one kilometer time trial. Howard Beck, 18, a freshman at Tech, completed the loop. He's a regular biker and a racer. The most "seasoned" rider on the bike fest was 66-year-old Harold Schaafsma, who cranked out about 25 miles on his three-speed bicycle. "It really gets to you unless you do much riding," said Schaafsma, who has logged thousands of miles over the years. Schaafsma, who in 1947 was the first district ranger at Big Bend National Park, retired from the National Park Service as superintendent of a national park. He settled down at Fort Davis about six years ago and works 25 acres of vegetables, pecans, fruit trees and tries "to outwit the weather."

Pedaling along in good time and making the full 25 miles were Fort Davis youngsters James Hicks, 11, and Radell "Rattles" Whitehead,

"It hurts," Radell said, as she was sitting firmly on the saddle and pedaling just outside of Fort Davis. Miles passed.

Rancher Don McIvor stopped his pickup just a moment to kid Radell and to cheer her onward. "He calls me 'aspirin," she said, "because I give him a headache." More pedaling.

'Oh," she said, in a rest period at Point of Rocks, "I'm about to give out." But she didn't and kept on biking.

Following the strung-out cyclists in a car bearing the sign "SLOW -Bike Riders Ahead!" were Ham and Patty. About midway into the loop, they gave that chore to Prude Ranch hand Joel Blanco, 19, who was driving a pickup truck and dipping snuff. "You ain't gonna catch me going 75 miles on a bicycle," he said, and no one did. Instead, he ended up hauling tired cyclists in the club cab and their

A couple of Fort Davis cyclists, Rick Crowden, 16, and Tex Bloys, 15, were tiring but decined an offer to hitch a ride with Blanco. "I want to go ahead and finish," said Crowder. "It's a matter of pride." Well, neither quite made it, but they gave it a hearty try.

James Hicks, like Radell Whitehead, didn't seem to mind getting a free ride the rest of the way to Prude Ranch.

"We can tell everybody we did the loop - half on the bikes and half in the truck.'

Jennings, 31, who made the loop in good style, recalled his initial ride around the 75-mile loop sometime ago. "The first time I rode it, I called it 'The Ride of a Thousand Deaths." He's a graduate student at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

The next day, after food and rest, the cyclists pedaled, drove or caught a ride up to the base of the 6,791-foot high Mount Locke, upon which rests McDonnell Observatory.

The objective was to ride two miles, on grades of up to 17 percent, to the crest of the mountain.

"This is not a race. This is strictly a challenge," said John Robert Prude, who clocked the riders' time up the severe incline. He seemed impressed by the fixation on cycling.

"If I could find a woman who loves me as much as these cyclists love their bikes, I'd be fixed up," Prude said.
The cyclists lined up their bikes, but not all chose to attempt the feat. In the line-up and on the loop were the likes of Atala, Gitane, Huffy, Legnano, Mirella, Motobecane, Raleigh, Roberts and Schwinn brands and a

"You're right," cyclist Moore had said earlier, "...you do need to be warmed up (for the climb), but I'm worn down" from the loop ride. DiAnn Hutchinson, like Moore, would make the ride. "It goes up," she said of her bicycle, "but it would prefer to go down, just like its owner." Soon, the riding climb was on. Tom Hutchinson came in first in a 7:04.5 time. Howard Beck was second with 7:30.4. Tim Redus, third, 7:43.0. Robert Jennings, fourth, 7:45.0. Wendell Moore, fifth, 12:24.0. DiAnn Hutchinson, sixth, 15: 10.0. John Gallegly, seventh, 18: 08.0. Lynn Patty, 18: 12.0. Ed Todd, eight, 26: 41.0, by "riding, panting, resting, walking, "Congratulations to all of you for making it a success," Prude said.

The trip, with all it brief agonies and lasting good times, was worth the "You're probable using muscles which haven't been used before,"

Jennings had commented to a fellow on the ride up the mountain. Yes. And you saw sights from the bike you'd never notice from a motor-

Dallas cyclist Wendell Moore just before the two-mile ride up the 17-degree grade to Mount Locke. (Staff Photo)

Tunisia shifting westward

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) - Tunisia's government medics and nurses, according to their examination is trying to forge a westward-tuned economy that encourages private enterprise, foreign investment and mass tourism - an effort that differs radically from its socialistic neighbors Algeria and Libya.

But in the process of doing all of this, North Africa's smallest country has fueled demands from among its six million people for the consumer society products they see and hear about daily on Italian and French TV and radio commercials beamed across the Mediterranean.

Ripples of labor unrest originally triggered by escalating living costs earlier this year brought the government its first organized threat in 22 years of independence from France.

Premier Hedi Nouira, a former Central Bank president who in effect runs the government for an ailing president-for-life, Habib Bourguiba, explains the rising expectations of Tunisians as "the ransom for progress."

"Europe is just the other side of the sidewalk on the Mediterranean street," he said in a recent interview with The Associated Press. "It is normal that Tunisians are impatient.'

To meet its development goals, Tunisia has followed a strikingly different path from its larger neighbors Algeria and Libya. It has opened its borders to tourism, greeting over a million foreigners yearly along its fine sandy beaches. It has welcomed foreign and private investment and moved away from an abortive "collectivization" experiment in the late 1960s. Since independence, the United States has poured in nearly a billion dollars in grants and aid.

A computer runs higher education, channeling high school graduates to careers as doctors, dentists, grades. Once assigned a career, high school graduates must stick to it or go into business for themselves. To brake a 4.5 percent birth rate at independence in 1956, Tunisia has introduced birth control pills and female contraceptive devices and liberalized abortion.

Such innovations have been possible in a country that spends little money on its 20,000-member armed forces and has a president for life who is known in his country as "the supreme combatant" for independence from France.

But Bourguiba has been hampered by a form of arteriosclerosis, and has not delivered a public speech since he returned in August from a month's stay in the American Hospital in Paris and convalescence in Versailles.

Cholera epidemic strikes 20,000 in Africa

Agence France-Presse

BRUSSELS - At least 20,000 people are believed to have been stricken with cholera in a vast area of Central Africa encompassing parts of Rwan-da, Zaire and Burundi, experts at the Belgian Ministry of Cooperation and Development said here Thursday.

The epidemic broke out in February, the experts here said. By Sept. 21

Burundi had officially reported 4,768 cases, of whom 160 had died.

In Zaire there had been 400 deaths. and thousands of people were stricken down in August in the single area of Uvira north of Lake Tanganyika. That same month 1,012 cases were reported in the area around Bukavu, and 71 of these had died from the disease.

At Goma, in the north of the Kivu area of Zaire, more than 1,100 cases were reported by the end of August, and about 100 people were said to have died in medical centers.

Rwanda, the least-hit of the three countries involved, had reported some 300 cases by the end of Septem-

The Belgian ministry pointed out that the figures only referred to cholera cases being treated in medical centers and took no account of probably hundreds more in areas far from the region's urban centers.

Reports from Nairobi said that many of the Zairese cholera victims were being ferried across Lake Tanganvika in dug-out canoes to Bujumbura where the area's most modern hospitals are located. Many other people had been left abandoned on the lake beaches near the Burundi capital apparently in the hope that they would be found by the local authorities and given treatment, the Nairobi

"One should not over-dramatize the situation," one Belgian expert said, "but one must realize that there is a risk of the contamination spreading to other areas of Zaire because of the heavy movement of people from one area of the country to another."

Home-sellers benefit from bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Most Americans who sell a home are likely to benefit if tax-cut legislation under consideration by Congress is passed.

House and Senate bills reducing the top tax rate on profits from the sale of a principal home would help anyone who sold after July 26, 1978, or plans to sell in the coming year.

The House proposal would reduce the maximum capital gains tax rate from 49 percent to 35 percent, while the Senate version would reduce the rate to 25 percent. The House bill would provide a big benefit to all taxpayers selling homes, regardless of age, while the Senate tax relief would go only to those 55 or older.

For example: Assume that a home originally costing $50,000 now is sold for $160,000, leaving a $110,000 profit. Under the House version, the capital gains tax would be $1,250.

Under the Senate bill, a seller 55 or older would incur a $3,094 tax and a younger person a $13,750

Capital gains - whether from the sale of a home or such property as stocks, bonds or even coin collections - already qualify for a lower tax rate than other forms of income. And current law provides an additional tax break for persons 65 or over who sell their homes:

The "rollover" provision which exempts capital gains from taxation if reinvested in a home within 18 months would remain available under both the pending House or Senate bills. It is those who do not buy another home who would be affected by the legisla-

The House bill says simply that once in a lifetime, any person, regardless of age, may take a tax-free profit of up to $100,000 when he or she sells the principal home and doesn't buy another. The only qualification is that the home must have been the owner's principal residence for two out of the last

Disease tests negative

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Tests on seven Oklahomans who exhibited symptoms similar to those of Legionnaires Disease have shown that the men did not have the disease, a state health official said Thursday.

Dr. Joe Malonee, state epidemeologist, said he would like to have 19 other Oklahomans who also exhibited symptoms like those of the disease test-

All 26 men attended a Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Dallas at the end of August where several persons came down with Legionnaires Dis-three years. The Senate measure is more complex, applying only to those who are 55 or older. It, too, could be used only once in a lifetime.

The Senate measure would automatically exempt from the tax any profit on a home sold for $100,000 or

But if the price exceeded $100,000, the seller then would use a complicated formula to compute the tax-exempt portion. Here are examples of how the two proposals would work. Both examples assume that a House was purchased for $50,000 (including fix-up costs) and sold for $160,000 (a $110,000 profit, or capital gain) and that the seller is otherwise in a 25-percent tax

The seller, regardless of age, would pay no tax on the first $100,000 of profit. The other $10,000 profit would be subject to capital gains taxes.

The House bill would continue to tax half of the capital gain ($5,000 in this case) at the same rate applying to the taxpayer's wages and other income. Thus, for this taxpayer in the 25-percent bracket, the tax would be $1,250. The other $5,000 would not be subject to taxes.

SENATE

If the seller is 55 or older, the proportion of the profit that is exempt from taxes is computed by dividing $100,000 by the $160,000 sales price and multiplying the result by the $110,000 gain.

Thus, since $100,000 is 621/2 percent of $160,000, 621/2 percent of the $110,000 gain, or $68,750, is tax-free. That, subtracted from the $110,000 gain, leaves $41,250 subject to taxation.

Unlike the House, the Senate voted to subject only 30 percent of this capital gain to the regular income tax. That means $12,375 would be subject to the taxpayer's 25-percent tax rate - meaning a tax of

Lee Express faces dangerous grade

By TERRY WILLIAMSON R-T Sports Writer

The Robert E. Lee Rebel Express. that mythical train that is supposed to be chugging toward a District 5-4A football title, seems to have hit an uphill grade as it rolls into Memorial Stadium's homecoming bash today at 8 p.m. for a date with the San Angelo

Many think that this 5-4A outing will be merely a whistle stop for the undefeated Express, but Coach Gil Bartosh hopes he can keep his train from being run off the track. And there are some good reasons for his caution

THE REBELS will be missing three defensive starters when play unfolds tonight, and that could be a trouble area since the Bobcats are known for their wide open offensive attack that can score points faster than a pocket calculator. Cornerback Steve Pitts, safety John White and linebacker Michael McCrea will be out of the startbut ankle sprains will have them a less than full speed. McCrea, who has been one of the key Rebel defenders is out at least until next week. Mark Thompson is also out of action.

"It really hurts us for McCrea to be out because we are forced to use Jeff McCowan both ways," Bartosh noted. "We are hurting with three defensive starters out, but I think we are in worse shape on the specialty teams. I hope San Angelo doesn't break a punt or kickoff return on us.

The Lee offense may have to carry a bigger role tonight than ever before and that puts added pressure on McCowan, who has already rushed for 644 yards in the first four games this season. Gary Butler will also have to see double duty as he spells Pitts on defense in addition to his leadership role as quarterback on the offensive unit. Tailback Ricky Johnson will also play safety in place of White. Lee's offensive unit could be a tired one before this one is over.

BARTOSH ALSO worries about San mental attitude of his team.

"San Angelo's loss last week (a 38-14 setback to Abilene Cooper) is a bit misleading. I didn't see that much difference in the two clubs. Cooper got some easy touchdowns," Bartosh said. "San Angelo traditionally plays are going to get somebody before this thing is over. I don't think there is three touchdowns difference in this league from the top to bottom, and if San Angelo is not at the bottom, you have to expect a close game. "Our kids haven't had good workouts this week either. I don't think our mental attitude is right. We may be a little flat after that big game with Odessa High last week.'

STILL, LEE will head into the game as the solid favorite on the basis of a perfect 4-0 record compared to San Angelo's 1-3 mark, and San Angelo Coach Smitty Hill doesn't see any reason for that to change.

"Lee is a very impressive and aggressive football team. You just put McCowan with any of the 5-4A teams and they are going to be pretty good. McCowan and Herb Pearce have been around a long time and they do a lot of things well. We will just have to go against Lee with what we have and hope that is enough," Hill said.

The way the round robin is set up in our district, Odessa High, Lee, Cooper and San Angelo play each other first and you can get banged up pretty good with that week after week. One or two of the teams usually comes out of the fight a little discouraged. On the other side, Permian, Midland High, Abilene and Big Spring square off, and the one that comes out of that in good shape is usually in a position to make a run at the title. This has worked to Permian's advantage over the long haul," Hill noted.

SAN ANGELO is a young team with seven juniors on the offensive team and six on the defensive team. But they are capable of scoring with Hill's multiple attack. "I need another month to prepare for all the things they can do," is the way Bartsoh puts

San Angelo will probably go to the airways more than any other team Lee has faced this season. Quarterback Tod Fields has thrown 70 times this year already with 28 completions. The percentage is not too good, but he has connected for 634 yards. And halfback Glen Payne has rushed for 246 yards this season and is the key running threat. Jack Fannon and Doug Larson are both good receivers. San Angelo's offensive line has been suspect this year, and how well they

BIG SPRING --- Midland High may just be ready to roll tonight.

Coach Dennie Hays has put in some new wrinkles in hoping to get his Wing-T offense moving once again when his Midland High Bulldogs take on the winless Big Spring Steers here at 8 p.m. today in a District 5-4A football confrontation.

MIDLAND'S DEFENSE, led by linebacker Rick Ankerholz, did a great enough job last week in losing to Odessa Permian, 28-0, but it was the offense that lacked the punch it needed to dent the Panthers armour.

Tonight, Hays hopes that things change in squaring off with the Steers which dropped a 38-15 tilt to the speedy Abilene High Eagles last week

Midland faces one of the bigger teams in 5-4A in the Steers who have dropped games to Andrews, Hobbs, N.M., Snyder and Abilene. "They (Big Spring) have some good size. Probably one of the biggest teams in the district, "said Hays. Center Steve Tipton (212) and tackle Robbie Wrinkle (221), help anchor down the Steer pffensive line along with guard John Hardeman (205). The Steers have two big backs in fullback Ricky Cluck (190) and quarterback Rick Myers

On defense, Matt Harris (210), Jack Odom (217) and Steve Painter (236), give the Bovines good heft there too. Hays will starter Sam Driskell (175) at a linebacker slot in place of will move Jeff Spangler (187) to middle guard in the place of Todd Liberty who will move over to a defensive tackle position. Liberty is a 193-pound senior. Also playing tackle will be either Blake Feldt (215) or John Beane (200) on the defensive unit.

MIDLAND'S RUNNING attack is built around Jeff Robnett (160) and Billy Applin (172), a pair of juniors while Michael Feldt (170) sophomore and Tommy Somers (180) junior, most likely will split the signal-calling

Joining Robnett and Applin in the backfield will be Craig Heineman (170) at the wingback slot while up front it will be Cottrell or Vinson along with either Brook Reeves (220) or Tommy Norwood (190) at the other tackle position. The guards will be Spangler and Driskell and the center

Link Grimes and Jerry Hollums will be at the ends on defense with Beane and Liberty at tackle. In the secondary, it will be Paul Davis and Earl Michie at the cornerbacks; nmy Zachry and either Pat Hickey or Heineman at the safeties.

MIDLAND HAS lost to El Paso Eastwood, Lubbock Monterey and Permian while beating Amarillo Tascosa, 7-6, in its season opener. Last week, Robnett rushed for 63 yards in 17 carries against a very tough Permian defense.

Tonight could be the night that the Purple Pack has been waiting for to get back on the winning track.

Last year, Midland took a 20-14 victory, but two years ago, the Purple Pack came here and scored the first seven times it had the football.

'We really do need a victory tonight and I feel like the youngsters will play well. We've had two tough losses in games we should have won in non-district play," said Hays. Hays was referring to the 21-14 and 17-14 losses to El Paso Eastwood and Lubbock Monterey.

Hays feels that if his Pack could have moved the ball better, that it would have given Permian a much closer game last week.

Down 2-0, Yankees think they can rise to occasion

By FRED ROTHENBERG

NEW YORK (AP) - Young Bob Welch turned Mr. October into a pumpkin, tricking Reggie Jackson and treating the Los Angeles Dodgers to a cozy two-game lead as the 75th World Series jets here for Game 3 Friday night.

The Dodgers' pulsating 4-3 triumph Wednesday night gave them a 2-0 edge, and only five teams in history have come back from that kind of hole to win the best-of-seven Series.

To a man, the Yankees think they can rise to the occasion. They hand the third-game ball to left-hander Ron Guidry, the best pitcher in baseball this year, and they know they have overcome worse adversity before.

"I know where we're at," said Guidry, 25-3 in the regular season, plus a victory over Kansas City in the American League playoffs. "We've been against it before. We had to come back from 14 games out and then beat Boston and win a playoff (against Kansas City.)

"WE'VE BEEN down all year and fought back," said third baseman Graig Nettles, the main culprit in the Yanks' slew of missed opportunities in the heart-breaking second-game loss. "This is nothing new for us."

Right-hander Don Sutton, 2-0 in previous World Series decisions and 15-11 this season, admits he doesn't have Guidry's dominating power, but "on most game days I give a pretty good accounting of myself." For the defending champion Yanks to regain the winning touch, they need a typical Guidry effort and some hitting from somebody besides Jackson. With starters Chris Chambliss, Mickey Riverw and Willie Randolph sidelined with injuries in Game 2, the burden falls heavier on Nettles. The Yankee third baseman came through in the field, with two spectacular plays, but fell short at the plate, striking out feebly three times and leaving four New York runners on base, three of whom were in scoring position.

"Those two dives (on his fielding gems) on the cement infield really took it out of me," said the Yanks' leading home run hitter in the regular season who is 1-for-8 in the Series. "I've never had dives like that wear me out so much.

"I lost all my energy. I felt like I got hit by a truck. This freeway here isn't even listed on the map."

JACKSON KNOCKED in all three Yankee runs, and had a chance for more October heroics with two out and two on in the ninth.

Rookie Welch had just retired his first batter, Thurman Munson, when Jackson, the home run hero of last year's Series, strode to the plate. Welch fired nine fastballs, finally fanning the slugger on a 3-2 pitch.

In one sequence, the poised rookie pitcher shook off catcher Steve Yeager in an effort to make Jackson think the fastball wasn't coming.
"I told him to shake me off," said

Yeager. "I touched my mask and shook my head. We did it to confuse Jackson."

Dodger power was the difference in the first two games, with Davey Lopes providing a pair of homers in the first-game victory and Ron Cey smacking a three-run blast in Game 2. Five of the Dodger regulars have three hits or more, while starting pitchers Tommy John and Burt Hooton have pitched creditably and relievers Terry Forster and Bob Welch have nailed down the two wins.

MEANWHILE, REGGIE Jackson has hit the only Yankee homer and has been carrying the offensive load, knocking in half of New York's runs. The other major threats — Thurman Munson, Graig Nettles and Chris Chambliss - each have one hit. Of the six Yankee pitchers used thus far, only relief ace Rich Gossage has been especially effective.

Yankee Manager Bob Lemon says he hopes to have Chambliss and center fielder Mickey Rivers, both sidelined with injuries in Game 2, back in action tonight. The travel day should help the Yanks, who were hobbling and tired after the long haul of rallying from 14 games back, defeating Boston in a dramatic one-game playoff and downing Kansas City in a tense pennant series.

"We've been down all year," said Nettles. "Coming back is nothing new for us.'

Playing in Yankee Stadium should be an additional edge for the Yankees because of the unique dimensions of the ballpark and the enthusiasm of "Being the type of pitcher I am with breaking balls and pitching up, I have to be concerned about not hanging inhospitality, throwing bottles from any pitches inside," said Sutton.

New York Yankees manager Bob Lemon, left, talks with pitcher Ron Guidry in locker room. Guidry will face the Dodgers in Yankee Stadium tonight. (AP Laserphoto).

"You don't have to hit the ball well down the lines. You have an airport in center field and I hope a lot of balls land there."

LAST YEAR, the New York fans gave the Dodgers a dose of eastern the stands and at least one hard rubber ball, which beaned outfielder Reggie Smith. 'The New York fans are enthusiastic and try to make it tough onLyou." said Cey. "People are trying to dis-turb you and get nasty. We have to face up to them."

OU-UT crowds frustrating; Dallas sets TV mark

Last time the Sooners were shutout was 136 games ago by, guess who?

Texas-Oklahoma game crowds are very frustrating for the fan outside the stadium. It's impossible to tell what's going on inside. No matter what happens, there's a big roar...

ABC claims its Dallas-Washington Monday night telecast drew the highest viewer rating ever in the nine-year history of Monday Night Football.

All-Pro safety Cliff Harris showed up for the recent Highland Park-Plano game, remarking, "This is where it really starts, high school. It's great. Pro football has just become too complicated." Still, there's nothing complicated about the way the Cowboys' safety plays. It's simply...Whoosh...Crash..

OKLAHOMA University fan or not, the Souners rate high marks for their post-game accessibility to the press. No waiting around 30 minutes outside the dressing room door only to find once inside many of the players dressed and gone. The post OU-Texas game promptness was a little surprising, since Coach Barry Switzer has had his troubles with the press in the past couple of years, but veteran Amarillo writer Putt Powell claims, "It's always like that. They are a first-class outfit all the way."

Now we know what the OU-Texas traffic jam is like. We arrived at DFW at 9:30 a.m. and drove directly to the Cotton Bowl, arriving 11:50 a.m. Traffic was so slow, we had comple-tely abandoned hope of arriving for kickoff and were wondering if we could make it in time for post-game interviews....

Still, even with a late arrival, we were able to park across the street from the Fair Grounds within an easy walk of the stadium. Arriving at Texas Sta-dium 3½ hours before game time the next day, we walked in from the Cowboys' Public Park-ing lot in Richardson and made the kickoff in plenty of time, but when we left well after dark, arrival at the Public Parking lot found the entrance had been thoughtfully chained...Let's see, now, wasn't parking one of the reasons the Cowboys abandoned the Cotton Bowl for their new

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) - If the Yankees' Ed Figueroa gets the chance to pitch Saturday's crucial gamaagainst the Dodgers in the World Series - and he says he will be disappointed if he doesn't - every ball will be thrown in anger.

"Especially I want to show Billy Martin," the tall, mon tachioed Puerto Rican said. "Billy - he treated me like dirt, a second-class citizen.

"He has told people I am gutless and cannot pitch under pressure. He never said anything good about me. How can he say that? I win 55 games in three years. I give Billy everything I gov. I make him look

The 6-foot curveballer, 30 years old today, said he was not concerned that others had questioned his ability to produce in clutch games because of his 0-4 record in postseason competition.

"I don't have to prove anything to the world," he nsisted. "Sure, I do not win some playoff games but I pitch good in the 1976 World Series and last year I don't pitch because I have tendinitis.

"JUST BECAUSE I do not win four postseason games does not mean I choke up. It's just the way things happen. When I get another chance, I will prove it.'

There was speculation that Manager Bob Lemon, who succeeded Martin July 25 when Billy was given a 11/2-year leave of absence, might pass over Figueroa when the pitcher's turn comes Saturday.

"Ridiculous," snapped Lemon, when the question was put to him, "you don't dump a 20-game winner just like that." It is this sort of confidence which has given

Figueroa a new lease on life and has soured him on any future allegience to Martin, scheduled to return as Yankee manager in 1980. Los Angeles in mid-week was awash with rumors, none substantiated, that Martin, nightclubbing with friends in New York, had badmouthed Figueroa for his poor performance in the opening game when Los Angeles shelled him for five hits and three runs, including two homers, in the Dodgers' 11-5 rout.

"I don't question it," Figueroa said. "I was very discouraged until Bob Lemon came along."

"If that was mediocre, then pro basketball is in trouble," said Bullet Coach Dick Motta, who pulled off one of the league's more startling upsets by guiding his club to the title. "To my way of thinking, what we did has to give hope to every club in the league. We obviously are no dynasty, but we showed what you have to do to win."

Besides entering the year with that type of inspiration league teams also will be dealing with a few rule changes. Vitale showed his leanings quickly by drafting two of his former University of Detroit players, neither of whom is expected to help the club. A healthy Bob Lanier would make his task easier - as a deeper bench.

EVERY LEAGUE needs its stabilizing force and the NBA has its rock in the Cleveland Cavaliers. Coach Bill Fitch refuses to pay outlandish salaries, keep high draft choices or get into the free-agent market. He gets his club into the playoffs every season but how long is that going to be sufficient? The cast is much the same as last season: Elmore Smith a center, Jim Chones at big forward, Campy Russell at small forward, and a bunch of guards, including Foots Walker, Austin Carr and Walt Frazier, who missed the end of last season with a bad

The new league rules will hurt the Atlanta Hawks more than any other club. Coach Hubie Washington proved last season that Brown relied on hand-checking and zones to make up for talent deficients as he guided his club to a .500 season and an unexpected playoff berth. At least he has more talent this season. players melding at the proper time Rookie Butch Lee and Jack Givens, veteran can win a title over opponents with Geoff Petrie and free-agent Dan Rounfield give

> THE NEW Jersey Nets finally have shed themselves of owner Roy Boe. Now if they could do something about their roster. Good news in the development of guard Ed Jordan, who is backing up new playmaker Eric Money, brought in from Detroit for Kevin Porter. John William son is still trying to learn what a pass is at the other guard and forward Bernard King is an outstanding offensive machine. He needs help from Wilson Washington at big forward, but so far Washington hasn't progressed. Nor has the franchise's chances.

> > WESTERN CONFERENCE MIDWEST DIVISION

Once upon a time there was a basket-ball team in Denver that prided itself on teamwork and defense. But that club never-could win an NBA title. After a lot of unhappy endings, the Nuggets will now try their luck with individuals: Charley Scott, George McGinnis, David Thompson and Dan Issel. They still have the most talent in the division but it's difficult to understand what direction Coach Larry Brown is taking his

Thompson remains, along with Erving, the NBA's single most exciting player. He may have trouble getting the ball from either McGinnis or Scott. And Brown is low on competent reserves, especially in the front court. And this is the team that traded away Marvin Webster

LARRY COSTELLO won an NBA title with a big center (Abdul-Jabbar) when he was with Milwaukee. The Chicago Bulls hope he can work the same results with Gilmore, recently enriched with a $4 million contract. The Bulls need more consistency from forward Mickey Johnson, a comeback from gimpy Scott May, a strong showing from rookie playmaker Reggie Theus and some depth. That's a long shopping list for a new coach.

The Milwaukee Bucks weren't supposed to do much last year, then almost got to the conference finals. A slimmed-down Kent Benson could rovide the play at center to make them into a ona fide contender this season.

Guard Brian Winters and forward Marques Johnson are a prolific one-two punch, Junior Bridgeman provides scoring off the bench and even Benson seems to be trying harder. Last year, he wouldn't play in a summer league; this He says he wants to make amends for his poor showing, which saw him losing his starting job to John Gianelli. If Gianelli starts again, Bens could see himself in another uniform by season.

Bobby Leonard is ruining a shuttle service.

Fuery time the rent with the Indiana Pacers. Every time the rent comes due, another player leaves. This year's edition is built around center James Edwards, and guards Rick Sobers and Johnny Davis, obtained from Portland. But all three may be with someone else before the season ends. Free agent Alex English will help at forward.

Much-traveled Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons is now with the Kansas City Kings. He's headed a lot of clubs with little talent, so this latest stop won't seem different for him. His team has promising back court in Otis Birdsong and rookie Phil Ford, and forward Scott Wedman is winner. But neither Tom Burleson nor Sam Lacey have been effective at center. NBA teams don't win many games depending only on strong

PACIFIC DIVISION: The Los Angeles All-Stars, otherwise known as the Lakers, proved last year that a bunch of individual stars don't necessarily make a good team. Coach Jerry West is hoping for better results after tinkering with his toy for a year. But how far he succeeds will depend almost entirely on one player: Abdul-Jabbar.

The big man from UCLA played without inspiration last season and the Lakers were early playoff flops. A better year from him and the rest of the cast - Adrian Dantley, Jamaal Wilkes, newcomer Ron Boone and Lo Hudson could combine to make a run at the division

Seattle shocked the NBA world by making it to the finals last June. Without Marvin Webster, any great success they have this season will be equally as shocking. Tom LaGarde and Jack Sikma will play center along with ex-Knick Lonnie Shelton, but none of them will make Fred Brown, Dennis Johnson and Gus Williams look as good as Webster did. But don't underestimate the coaching of Len Wilkens, who did a marvelous job blending his talent last season. If LaGarde can overcome a bad knee and if Shelton can gain better hold of his emotions, this will be a dangerous team. But the city may never forgive owner Sam Schulman for letting Webster escape to the Big Apple.

EVEN WITHOUT Walton, Portland still has an overload of medical problems. Forward Maurice Lucas has fractured a spur near a finger on his right hand and will be out at least three weeks. Bob Gross (ankle) and Lloyd Neal (knee) are still hobbled while guard David Twardzik has a kidney injury. Rookie Mychal Thompson and veteran Tom Owens replace Walton at center. Rookie Ron Brewer and veteran T.R. Dunn add strength to a back court that is missing Davis, now with Indiana. Coach Jack Ramsay will try to make up for Walton's loss with depth. He'll run players in and out of games while hoping to have Walton back sometime before the end of the season. He also says Owens has improved to the point where he is almost as good as Walton. Ramsay doesn't deny believing in Santa Claus,

THE PHOENIX Suns ran out of gas last season after an electrifying start. They did nothing in the off-season to add more depth, which means they can expect a similar conclusion this season. Beyond Walter Davis, Paul Westphal, Don Buse and Alvan Adams — who is still trying to live up to his rookie season - the Suns are woefully weak. They are especially hurting at big forward, where Gar Heard is not

Elvin Hayes. Or even Marvin Barnes.

The rest of the league is delighted over the Buffâlo franchise now being located in San Diego. It's an improvement in climate, if not team ability. Coach Gene Shue must meld a squad from the likes of Kermit Washington, Sidney Wicks, Swen Nater and Randy Smith, plus a lot of guys named Jee Keyin Kunnert. plus a lot of guys named Joe. Kevin Kunnert, rookie Freeman Williams and ex-Bullet Phil Walker could form what there is of the Clipper

PERHAPS THE most unsettled club in the league is Golden State, which lost Rick Barry to Houston and then got John Lucas in return as compensation. Lucas will make guard Phil compensation. Lucas will make guard Phil Smith better with his passes but he can't rebound or score up front, which remain the Warriors' major problems. Clifford Ray and Robert Parish continue to split center duties and Sonny Parker is the new small forward. After that, Coach Al Attles is praying for the development of young forwards like Purvis Short and Wesley Cox. Keep the faith, Al.

Figueroa accused Martin of having favorites on the squad, treating some players with cold disdain. "Take Ken Holtzman," he said. "He was a great confidence until Lemon came along." Figueroa said all he asked was to be treated with common courtesy.

'I get that from Lemon," he added. "After I got shelled by the Dodgers, he talked to me about it. I was getting my fastball too high. I deserved to be chewed out. I can take that. Silence and disrespect I can't take.'

Quarterback injuries spark rules debate

MIAMI (AP) - Bob Griese, coming off the third major injury of his casuggested remedies to the National Football League's quarterback injury epidemic.

'You could make it like the sandlot, and not be allowed to touch the quarterback. He wouldn't be allowed to run, to make that fair.

"But that's not what the people want to see. They want to see the defensive linemen get the quarterback. They want to see the sacks," Griese said.

Griese is recovering from damaged left knee ligaments. Baltimore's Bert Jones, Cincinnati's Ken Anderson, Oakland's Ken Stabler and Tampa's Doug Williams are among the quarterbacks sidelined with injuries this

THE SIGHT of such valuable talent being helped off the field has sparked a debate on whether rules changes should be made to protect quarter-

But Dolphins Coach Don Shula and Bucs Coach John McKay agree there's no way the rules can be changed without drastically altering football. "That's something you continually wrack your brain about, how to prevent those injuries," said Shula, who serves on the NFL Competition Com-

"There's no way you can take each and every one and make the determination as to what caused the injury. Griese's injury (in an exhibition game against Tampa Bay) wasn't on the type of play that can be prevent-

Linebacker Cecil Johnson was blocked into Griese from behind as Griese was in his pass follow-

"WHEN BERT got hurt, when (Ken) Stabler got hurt, when I got hurt, it was when players were blocked and just wandered into the pocket," Griese said.

"Sure, if it was something malicious or intention, then you do some thing. But that hasn't been the case in most of the injuries," he said.

McKay has seen Mike Boryla miss all but one game the last two years, Gary Huff miss most of last season and Williams miss nearly two full games this year because of injuries.

"Certainly it is a major problem. You can see by the records what happens to teams with injured quarterbacks," McKay said.

McKay said bigger and faster linemen and artifical surfaces are two partial culprits.

"You certainly couldn't make a rule that you can't touch him, and I don't know of anything else," he

Shula said, "You could make it two-hand tap, or have the quarterback wear a flag. Then the defensive player gets to the quarterback and while he's going for the flag, the quarterback stiff-arms him and goes for a touchdown."

WHILE PUNTERS cannot be hit while punting, he said a similar rule for quarterbacks would hurt de-

"The difference between the passer and the punter is that the punter is getting ready to give you the ball, but the passer is back there with the idea of throwing one down your throat." He also doesn't think removing the intentional ground penalty, to keep quarterbacks from holding onto the ball too long, would be a good move.

"That would really make a farce out of the game. If the secondary is doing a good job of covering the receivers and there's a good pass rush, couldn't you hear the fans' reaction if the quarterback just flips the ball

"You hate to see anything that will take any of the integrity out of the game," said Shula. He did say he is an advocate of quicker whistles by the

They scored just about every way

Midland High's Bullpups stormed to an easy 35-14 victory over Big Spring Thursday night in a junior varsity football game in Memorial Stadium.

The Bullpups exploded for 23 second half points to chalk up their second win in five outings.

Midland scored first in the opening period when Dino Grimes raced around his left end and scampered 23 yards for a touchdown with 8:36 left and the Pups added another TD in the same period with a 36-yard pass from quarterback Doug McLean to wingback Russell Hays, setting up the

After a 12-yard loss, McLean hit Bruce Fisher with a 14-yard pass to make it 12-0. The try for the extra point failed, giving MHS a 12-0 lead with 5:05 left in the opening stanza.

LA city council approves contract for 1984 Olympics

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The city of Los Angeles has cleared its last hurdle on what turned out to be a very slow track and will be the host city for a "Spartan" Summer Olympics in

After a lengthy struggle of wills between the city and the International Olympic Committee as well as disagreements among city officials, an unprecedented Olympic contract was approved Thursday on an 8-4 vote by the City Council. The IOC agreed to the terms in a poll of its members earlier this month

Mayor Tom Bradley called the contract "historic" and said he would invite IOC President Lord Killanin to come to Los Angeles for the final signing.

By historic, Bradley was referring to the IOC's reluctant agreement to give up its demand that the host city assume financial responsibility for the Games, as has been the tradition

After the IOC tentatively approved the Games for Los Angeles last spring, Bradley nearly pulled the city out of the Olympic bidding in July when the IOC would not give in to the city's request to transfer financial risk from the host city to a private local organizing committee.

Negotiations finally led to IOC acceptance of an arrangement involving two contracts. The first is between the city and the IOC. In the second contract, the U.S. Olympic Committee and a local organizing committee staging the Games assume the risks. Officials of the USOC were elated

Los Angeles' firm stand to be protected from financial loss is the second time the city has made its mark on the Olympic framework. When the 1932 Olympics were held in Los Angeles - the last time the Summer Games were held in the United States - the city put up the first Olympic Village for housing and feeding all the athletes. That led to host cities erecting special villages in succeeding

Other centerpieces of the city's approach to staging the 1984 Games at low cost include using existing stadiums, without any new, expensive facilities. The outcry over public spending that led to the passage of Proposition 13 prompted the city's insistence on a Spartan approach to the Games.

In 1972, Munich went through a $1.9 billion spending program to stage the Games, writing off most of the cost as civic improvements. Montreal built up a reported $1 billion deficit in staging the 1976 Games.

Herrera will remember role as clutch kicker

SEATTLE (AP) - Years from now, when Efren Herrera looks back on his days as a placekicker in the National Football League, he will relish most reliving his role as the guy everybody could count on in the clutch.

Efren Herrera, the team player who happened to be a placekicker. Not Efren Herrera, the placekicker who happened to be on the team.

"The hardest thing for a kicker is to be able to identify himself as a team member," says Herrera, the Seattle Seahawks' kicker-in-chief, "because the other players are involved with the game in so many different

Last Sunday against Minnesota in the Kingdome, Herrera, who had two conversion attempts blocked earlier in the game, kicked a 19-yard field goal with three seconds left that lifted the Seahawks to a dramatic 29-28 victory over the Vikings.

Afterwards, Herrera skipped his postgame shower, threw on his clothes and made a beeline for the parking lot before reporters could catch up to him. The two blocked kicks had left him bitterly disappointed. Later, he explained his hasty departure.

"I guess I was upset because they (Vikings) got penetration on the extra points," he said. "It was just one of those things." Herrera's actions last Sunday are proof of the stock he places in himself.

'I play the game to win," he said. Just because you don't notice him until he trots onto the field to kick the football doesn't mean Herrera isn't involved.

"I try to get involved in everything, what the linebackers are doing, what kind of zones the defense is playing, the fakes we're running, everything.

"You can be left out if you aren't careful what you do out there. You've got to understand most of the players play their best for 60 minutes.

"As a kicker, if you go out for a few seconds for a job that looks so simple, you'd better be thinking of yourself as the best kicker there is and you'd better come through.

"I really don't want to be remembered as the best of the No. 1 kickers," Herrera said. "I want to be looked on as a reliable kicker and a team player, being reponsible for my actions, not as a star kicker.' In just three seasons in the NFL, Herrera already has achieved more than many kickers will in a career.

Before being traded to Seattle during the 1978 preseason after a salary fuss with Dallas management, Herrera helped kick the Cowboys all the way to the Super Bowl championship last January. He was voted the National Conference's All-Pro placekicker last season.

In his Seattle debut Sept. 3 against San Diego in the Kingdome, Herrera missed two makeable field goals and a conversion kick in a game the Seahawks lost 24-20. "It's just one of those things," said

Efren (he pronounces it a-fren, "like a friend of mine, but take off the 'd' at the end and put the accent on the second syllable").

"It was sad for me, for the fans and everybody that I didn't do the job. It's a game that I'm sure will stick in my

That Herrera is booting footballs and not a soccer ball for a living isn't as simple as saying, "It pays more

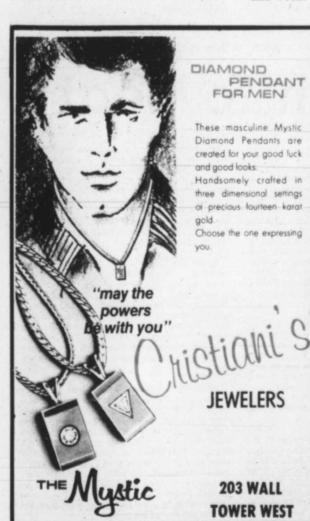

One of eight boys in a family of 11 children born and raised in Guadalajara, Mexico, Herrera first kicked a soccer ball his father rolled in his direction at age 3.

"They say kids born in Guadalajara are born with soccer balls in their feet," Herrera said. "My father was a coach and a very good soccer player. He gave me a lot more attraction to "The main reason was not money,

Herrera said of his decision to head for Dallas to play for the Cowboys after starring in both soccer and football at UCLA. He also was drafted by the Los Angeles Aztecs of the North American Soccer League.

"I had a chance to make an examle of myself, a Mexican-American. Hardly anybody from where I grew up played football. I took that challenge so there would he somebody up there the Mexican-Americans would identify with." "

Jackson hates pressure moments

NEW YORK (AP) - Many of baseball's most dramatic moments in recent years have been provided in one version or another of "Reggie at the Bat." It's a role Jackson hates.

"I don't want to be up there with the game on the line; it's just too tough," the New York Yankees' slugger

"I feel like I can handle it as well as anyone, feel like I'm the one who should be up there with everything at stake," Jackson added. "But when I'm in that situation, that means we're behind

"THERE'S A world of difference in batting when you've got a comfortable lead and batting when you know you've got to get a hit. If you come up in the ninth with a good lead, you know you can be loose and just let it all go. That's when you hit best. "I really don't like to be in the spotlight all the time.' Jackson's latest do-or-die trip to the plate came with two out and the tying and winning runs on base Wednesday night in Los Angeles. Rookie reliever Bob Welch struck Jackson out and the Dodgers won 4-3.

Jackson, who homered three times in the final game as the Yankees downed Los Angeles in the 1977 World Series, indicated he might have been trying too hard against Welch.

"HE THREW hard at me," Jackson said. "But everybody throws hard at me. I overswung on the first strike, but he came right at me; he beat me fair and square.

Flantlanders plan trip

The Flatlanders Ski Club has scheduled a four-day Thanksgiving weekend trip to Copper Mountain, Colo. The group of 32 will leave Midland Nov. 22 on a Wednesday afternoon flight to Denver. From there, a charter bus will take the skiers 70 miles west to the ski resort.

Relatively high elevations at Copper Mountain make the probability of snow good for Thanksgiving. The group will spend four nights in 2-bedroom/2-bath condos located at the base of the ski mountain. The group will return to Midland Nov. 26.

A few spaces on the trip are open. Interested persons may obtain more information and a signup form from the Ski Club bulletin board at Ski Skeller in Oakridge Square, Mid-

It was a situation - top of the ninth, two on and one out, a one-run lead that might have quailed the most seasoned of veterans.

Maybe he didn't realize there were 60 million people looking on. Maybe he thought all those red lights around the park were lit cigars.

Maybe he didn't realize that was "Mr. October" standing there with a 34-ounce bat that had already hit a homer, double, and two singles in the AND MR. Joe College threw it right past Mr. October. The pitches appeared to be right in Reggie's "wheelhouse," his power plant, the center of home plate. The count was 3 and 2, which is supposed to be choke country for a rookie. Most of the league's pitchers agree the center of home plate belongs to Reggie. They don't have too much luck with him on the outside corners. Apparently, Eastern Michigan didn't have a course on how to pitch to the middle of the Yankee order. And the college boy hadn't been around long enough to know you were supposed to get Mr. October to chase a bad pitch — and so what if you walked him? — in a situation like this.

The schoolboy threw away the book. If he was going down to defeat he was going with flags flying and the big guns firing. He disdained nibbling the plate or throwing an off-speed hook or change. He thought he saw the same hole in the bats when he used to pitch his school to conference championships and rack up 205 strikeouts and a 1.60 ERA in college.

IT WAS a night for the baby face. If the game was won in the pitcher's box by a beardless boy from Michigan, it was won in the batter's box by another innocent-looking guy who looks as if he should be a ride at Disneyland, Ron Cey is 5-feet-10 inches tall but only about 9 inches of that is legs. When he walks around Sea World, people throw fish at him. He looks as if he arrives at the ball park by kiddy car, and if you came upon him unexpectedly at home, he would be riding his hobby horse.

His hat kind of perches on his head and his knees run into his ankles but the pitchers see nothing funny about him when he comes up there with men on.

He has these big blue eyes that always seem to be staring at something no one else sees and in the sixth inning Wednesday night, Ronnie thought he saw something he couldn't believe - a fast ball away from Catfish Hunter.

RON CEY abruptly ceased resembling a penguin who talks and looked more like a sawed-off Joe DiMaggio. He hit the ball in the identical part of the bleachers he always hits home runs. There was nothing bird-like about the homer that came with 2 on and 2 out and the Dodgers trailing by

Three years ago, Ron Cey might have been caught off guard by the canny Catfish's rare fastball, but Ron Cey is a veteran hitter despite the fact he looks like someone you'd give a lollipop to and take to the lost and found if you found him wandering around Disneyland without his par-

But the home run would have been for naught if Bob Welch had 2 mph less velocity on his fast ball or if he had suddenly said to himself "What am I doing here?! That's Reggie Jackson up there and I'm barely out of the college leagues. I should be facing USC at the most, not the New York Yankees. They'll kill me!"

He didn't - and they didn't. It worked out just the way it does in your dreams. You just go out there and bust that fastball in - and 55,982 fans scream your name and it goes down in baseball lore as the night Mr. Schoolboy struck out Mr. October with 2 on in the ninth and the good guys won for the home nine and it turned out the way it always does for me in my sleep. Except that if Bob Welch wakes up and pinches himself, he won't feel a thing. Because his dream is not something he ate, it happened.

Lasorda confesses, he needed players' help

NEW YORK (AP) - Tom Lasorda is a firm believer in the managerial maxim popularized by Casey Stengel that "I couldn't have done it without

"I don't do anything; what the hell do I do?" Lasorda said Thursday night as he put the Los An Dodgers through a light workout in preparation for tonight's third World Series game.

"If I put a guy out there and he doesn't execute, it doesn't mean anything," Lasorda said. "He's the one who hits the ball and he's the one who catches it. If I put on a hit-and-run play, it's in the two players' hands. If I bring in a relief pitcher and he gets a guy out, he's the one who does it.

"IN ANY sport, if managers and coaches are naive enough to think they win ballgames, they're in trouble. The players could win without me, but how could I win without the players? It's simple arithmetic - the soldiers win the wars but the generals get the medals. That's the way it

Nevertheless, Lasorda has guided the Dodgers to the World Series in each of his first two seasons as a major league pilot and was named Associated Press Manager of the Year in 1977. This year's winner has not been announced yet.

Bobby Orr is back. Sam Pollock and Roy Boe and the Cleveland Barons are gone. Fred Shero has moved. And the rest of the National Hockey League started chasing the Montreal Canadiens again Wednesday night.

When league president John Ziegler was asked for a prediction on the new season, he declined. "I've been so busy acting as a lawyer and judge, mediator and financier that I haven't had time to look ahead," he said.

It was a busy off-season for Ziegler. He suspended the Rangers' Don Murdoch for at least a half season for drug. possession. He mediated the consolidation of the Barons with the Minnesota North Stars. And he presided over thefinancial reorganization of the Islanders which resulted in Boe's ouster as the team's majority part-

Nobody seems to be ounting the Rangers in, though the addition of Sweden's Ulf Nilsson and Anders Hedberg, and Shero's presence behind the bench, should make it an interesting season. The Rangers' biggest problem, though, has not been rectified' their defense is too porous.

A capsule look at the prospects of the other NHL teams, in alphabetical

Atlanta Flames: Coach Fred Creighton likes to recall the old days when he was in the Eastern League. Sometimes the Flames remind their coach of minor leagues. They didn't have a single player among the league's top 25 scorers last season. Their defensemen are large but lack mobility. Newcomers include Jean Pronovost, Gene Carr and first-round draft pick Brad

Boston Bruins: "We could finish first or fourth," said coach Don Cherry, who has directed the Bruins to three straight first-place fin-ishes. Bet on them to finish on top again. They had 11 20-goal scorers last season. The Bruins' only weakness might be on the backline. Brad Park remains their only solid defenseman. Bob Miller, who grew up in the Boston area, is being groomed as Gregg Sheppard's successor at cen-ter. Cherry is high on rookie left win Al Secord. "He's a bull terrier," the coach said. The Br

Buffalo Sabres: Goalie Gerry Desjardins, an original Islander who enjoyed a rebirth with the Sabres, and Jim Lorentz have retired (though he was selected by Detroit in Monday's waiver draft). Fred Stanfield is in the minors. The most promising newcomer is left wing Tony McKeg-ney. McKegney who is black, joined the Sabres after Birmingham of the WHA decided not to sign him, claiming adverse fan reaction. Don Edwards has developed into an excellent goalie. He won 38 games last year, one more than Montreal's Ken Dryden. Coach Marcel Pronovost claims Montreal "can and will be beaten." Not by Buffalo.

Chicago Black Hawks: They showed a 20-point improvement under new coach Bob Pulford last season. Look for continued improvement. They still have Stan Mikita and Tony Esposito and they hope to have Orr for the entire season. Orr is taking it slow, not rushing the puck as he used to because he is trying to protect his surgically scarred knees. Jim Harrison, Phil Russell, Keith Magnuson and Mike Veisor are also trying to bounce back from ailments.

Colorado Rockies: The surprise team of the 1977-78 season. Finished second behind Chicago in the weak Smythe Division. Must find a way to win away from home. Were winless in 32 straight road games last season and won but two. Joe Watson, acquired from the Flyers, should help their young defensemen. Their top draft pick, left wing Don Gillies, needed knee surgery after a training camp mishap and will Detroit Red Wings: Twice blessed during the off-season. Got the goaltending help they needed by acquiring free agent Rogie Vachon from Los Angeles. They then were allowed to retain Dale McCourt when compensation ruling was overturned in federal court. The Wings still lack a solid attack,, though McCourt, Andre St. Laurent and Paul Woods are diggers. Their first draft choice was a big one — 6-5, 225-pound Willie Huber, who should help the defense.

Los Angeles Kings: New Faces of 1978. The most prominent are Rick Hampton, Dave Gardner, Brian Glennie, Steve Jensen and goaltender Ron Grahame, obtained from Boston for the Kings' first round draft choice next year. Grahame was needed to replace Vachon. Even the coach is new, 34-year-old Bob Berry replacing Ron Stewart. Marcel Dionne, Butch Goring, Syl Apps and Gardner provide the Kings with center strength. Weak at left wing and defense.

Minnesota North Stars: The consolidation with Harry Howell with quantity but not too much quality. Strong at center: Tim Young, Dennis Maruk, Glen Sharpley and Bobby Smith. Smith was the first player chosen in last June's amateur draft. He scored 69 goals for Ottawa. Gary Sargent, the free agent lured from Los Angles, will help the defense. Gilles Meloche gives the North Stars their first major-league

Philadelphia Flyers: General manager Keith Allen says, "We're remolding, not rebuilding." He had three first-round draft choices — center Ken Linseman, defenseman Behn Wilson and right wing Dan Lucas. Wilson scored a goal on a solo effort in a preseason game against the Rangers that lifted the Spectrum fans out of their seats. "I've never seen a rookie with such poise," Allen said. "He's like Denis Potvin when he came up." New coach Bob McCammon hopes goalies Bernie Parent and Wayne Stephenson won't suddenly grow feeble together. Both are 33, the old men of the team.

Pittsburgh Penguins: Another team searching for goalie help. Dunc Wilson was cut, leaving frail Denis Herron to carry on in goal. The Penguins were the most active wheelers-dealers during the off-season. Acquired three centers -Orest Kindrachuk, George Ferguson and Gregg Sheppard. The host Jayhawks, who have met four nationally ranked opponents in five games and have come away with a 1-4 mark, are down to their third team quarterback. And so thoroughly have injuries wiped out the defensive line that Franklin King is playing both ways.

About 45,000 are expected for the 1:30 p.m. CDT kickoff.

Harry Sydney started his first game at quarterback last week in Kansas' 17-7 loss at Colorado but the offense, for the first time all year, showed life.

The man in the bar has broken the first commandment for Hawaiian sports fans, "Thou shalt not blab the score," and it's all part of this island state's isolation from the mainland.

On Sundays, it's NFL football live via satellie and that means getting up at 6:30 a.m. for the pregame show and no later than 7 for the start of the first game of the usual double-header.

For Monday night NFL games and occasional satellite-delay regular season baseball games shown here, there's an unusual subculture.

The devoted fan drives home with his car radio turned off, watches the evening news with practiced caution and then enjoys the game - deliberately ignorant of the final score and the fact that it was in the record books hours earlier.

IT'S A game in itself to keep from hearing the final score.

Will Carter role count in midterm elections?

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) - Whether he's up or down, President Carter's standing with the voters is not likely to have a major impact on the congressional elections next month.

An analysis

Nor are the Republicans exerting much influence with their campaign for a big income tax cut, according to a political scientist and polling con-

Thomas E. Mann argues that national trends do little to shape the outcome of midterm elections. Since there is nothing politicians like better than a handy way to find the prevailing winds, that makes Mann something of a spoilsport.

"In deciding how to cast their ballots, voters are primarily influenced not by the president, the national parties or the state of the economy, but by the local candidates," Mann

His theory notwithstanding, there pret the Nov. 7 returns as a barometer of attitudes toward the Democratic White House and the Republican opposition. By the traditional yardsticks, the odds are that the Democrats will fare reasonably well in those assess-

The party that holds the White House has lost House seats in every midterm election but one in the last 100 years. The average 20th Century gain for the opposition party has been 34 seats in the House and four in the

However, the swing has been much smaller in the elections immediately following a change in White House control. The opposition gain in those elections has been only a half-dozen House seats, a figure Republican National Chairman Bill Brock likes to cite in discussing GOP prospects this

The lower the expectation of Republican gains, the better the chance that they can be met.

When the votes are counted, the 1978 elections probably will produce a Republican pickup of no more than 10 or 12 seats in the House, with little if any change in the Senate lineup of party strength.

Since the Democrats hold lopsided majorities in both branches of Congress, a standoff would be to their advantage.

There's no other system for national scorekeeping in off-year elections, but Mann suggests that party loyalties and lineups don't really have that much to do with the outcome.

"The forces for change in co sional elections, which had always had a strong local component, now originate even more at the district than at the national level," he said in a book published by the American Enterprise Institute. " ... Where a party's presidential and congressional candidates once shared the same fate, they now go separate ways.

Atoms in color...

CHICAGO (AP)-Scientists Thursday unveiled the newest tool they can use to investigate life in its smallest form - color movies of the atom magnified more than one million times.

Physicists Albert V. Crewe and Michael S. Isaacson of the University of Chicago say the films could be a major help in medicine, chemistry, micro-electronics and metallurgy.

"We won't know how significant it is until people start using it," Crewe said. "But it is very important to help us study the atom - very important. It's the first time we've seen atoms moving on the valleys, shallow wells and elevated mesas. Crewe and Isaacson said they have seen entirely unexpected behavior by atoms on this terrain. Individual atoms bounce back and forth in the wells until they escape; atoms tend to line up in chains along the rims of depressions; some atoms, such as uranium, travel in pairs; and often whole clusters of atoms

What do these mean? "That's what we're trying to find out," said Isaacson. Crewe, the 51-year-old Englishman who invented the scanning transmission electron microscope, obtained the first black-and-white still photographs of atoms in 1970. He and Isaacson, 36, made the first black-and-white motion picture of atoms in 1976.

BILL CLEMENTS WILL CUT TAXES AND GOVERNMENT SPENDING

Texas was built by men with the vision to look ahead and the grit to get things done. Bill Clements is the man to keep this tradition alive for the future of Texas.

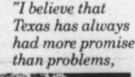

Bill Clements will bring a strong, fresh and tough approach to our government in Austin. He is a businessman, not a politician.

Bill Clements started with nothing and built a successful, worldwide company with hard work and the skill to manage men and money. And now Bill Clements wants to preserve the future of our state and he wants the working people of Texas to have the same opportunities he had.

With his proposed "Taxpayers' Bill of Rights," Bill Clements is committed to protecting Texans from excessive taxation and runaway government spending. He is pledged to cutting taxes and returning that money directly to the taxpayers.

As former Chairman of the Southern Methodist University Board of Governors, Bill Clements knows how to make education in Texas the best in the Nation. He's for discipline in the classroom and "back to basics" quality education.

As the son and grandson of farmers, Bill Clements knows the frustrations that an indifferent government can cause people who make their living off the land. He will use the strength of the State Government to fight burdensome Federal restrictions.

Crewmen rescued

MILFORD HAVEN, Wales (AP) - Nineteen crewmen were rescued from a stricken Greek tanker today after it spewed about a tenth of its 245,000 barrels of oil toward picturesque coastline and a major wildlife sanctuary. Thirteen other crewmen remained aboard the holed and badly listing tanker for the time being. The captain of the Piraeus-registered Christos Bitas had radioed for help, and a rescue vessel from Rosslare, Ireland was the first on the

The coast guard said two other rescue boats were heading for the tanker. No casualties were reported after the ship ran around off Skomer Island, 10 miles from this oil terminal port, Thursday.

The government said the tanker ruptured three tanks when it hit the reefs. It floated free under its own power and was ordered to head 25 miles out to sea in a bid to prevent some of Britain's most picturesque coastline being fouled by the leaking oil.

The coast guard estimated the tanker spilled some 21,000 barrels of oil before the captain radioed that his crew had stopped the leakage by transferring oil from the fractured tanks to empty ones.

Shetlands nix strippers

LERWICK, Shetland Islands, Scotland (AP) - The hardy ladies of these remote islands north of Scotland are on the warpath against plans to fly in strippers to keep lonely oil workers

The women, many of whom shun lipstick and other makeup, say they'll stop at nothing to prevent the arousal of "God-given instincts" by the bigcity strippers from Edinburgh and They've started a petition in Lerwick, the islands' main town and say they've already collected more than 500 signatures. Jane Cook, a leader of the newly formed Shetland Women's Group,

said: "With the ever-increasing number of crimes committed against women, the introduction of a regular striptease act can only degrade and threaten women even further." The strippers are being hired to entertain thousands of workers building a huge oil terminal at Sullom Voe, 30 miles north of Lerwick. The men, most of them separated from their families on the mainland, live in construction camps far from town. The women see their campaign, which they claim is backed by many islanders and clergymen, as a rearguard action against the turmoil caused by the oil boom that hit these islands five years ago when some of the richest fields in the North Sea were discovered offshore. The boom shattered the Shetlands' traditional way of life, little changed for centuries, bringing unheard-of affluence.

Before the boom, the 20,000 islanders eked out a perilous living knitting sweaters, fishing a cruel sea and scraping a bare living from the peat-covered hills of their archipela-

President again has to look for plan support

WASHINGTON (A) - President Carter and House backers of his energy plan are trying to rally support after a parliamentary victory by foes threatened to leave the natural gas pricing section alone and vulnerable as adjournment nears.

The House Rules Committee voted unexpectedly Thursday to reject a plan to have a single vote on the five-part energy package. Backers had hoped for a one-vote finale, feeling support for other sections would carry along the gas-pricing part, which Carter has called the centerpiece of the bill.

But the committee also rejected a plan to have each of the five parts brought up separately, a plan opponents wanted because they feel there is strong enough opposition to kill the gas section on its own.

That left the package in a kind of legislative limbo that House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and committee members were still trying to sort out one day before the scheduled Saturday adjournment.

The gas-pricing section, part of the Carter energy program first sent to Capitol Hill almost 18 months ago, would lift federal controls on natural gas prices by 1985, while allowing substantial increases over the current federally regulated price in the

The bill, a compromise worked out by House and Senate negotiators, is opposed by an unusual coalition of conservative Republicans, House members from gas-producing states and Democrats who say it would raise consumer prices unfairly. Both sides say a vote on that section alone would be extremely close.

Until Thursday, the energy proposals appeared headed for approval by the House. Instead, opponents managed to defeat the single-vote idea on an 8-8 Rules Committee vote, the same vote that greeted the proposal to split the package into five parts. The importance of the vote was underscored by heavy administration lobbying, including a last-minute telephone call from Vice President Walter F. Mondale to Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y. She voted against the administration. Energy Secretary James R. Schle-

1,980 feet from east lines of section 37. block 42, TT-1-N, G&MMB&A survey.

In the Senate, where the natural gas bill has already won approval, the tax portion of the energy package also suffered a setback Thursday when Sen. James Abourezk successfully forced postponement of a vote until Saturday, the last day of the congressional session.

The South Dakota Democrat said he was attempting to frustrate plans to attach the tax bill to the rest of the energy plan awaiting final action in

The bill provides tax credits of up to $300 for home insulation, up to $2,200 for solar heating equipment in homes and a 10 percent investment tax credit for businesses which purchase energy-saving equipment.

Another provision would put a tax of $200 to $550 on 1980 model cars getting less than 15 miles per gallon.

Abourezk waged a one-man filibuster against quick consideration of the tax bill, and in response Senate leaders arranged for a vote cutting off debate on Saturday.

Spokesman for oilmen says no new tax need

HOUSTON (AP) - The top spokesman for Texas oilmen said today there is little need for additional state

H.B. "Hank" Harkins, an Alice independent operator, said, however, the industry must be prepared to fight state government excesses.

"Common sense would tell us there is little need for extracting additional taxes from anybody," Harkins said. "But, there remains a group in Austin still dedicated to tax-tax, spend-spend." Harkins, president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, spoke at the trade group's 59th annual meeting. The group represents about 90 percent of Texas oil producers and

Program helps retarded citizens

By SUSAN TOTH R-T Staff Writer

The world of the mentally retarded person often is limited by a lack of personal and social contact.

A new program being set up in Midland may expand that world to help normalize the lives of retarded citizens in the city.

The citizen's advocacy program is designed to match a community volunteer with a retarded person to provide help with life skills such as balancing a checkbook, maintaining a savings account, fixing a car and other everyday activities.

Perhaps more importantly, the advocates will serve as a social contact, a friend to be called on for emotional support for a retarded citizen whose life often is limited by little outside stimulation, said Doug Merz, a VISTA volunteer who is developing the program here with the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens.

The advocates also will help stand up for the protege's legal rights if the need arises.

"The major thrust of the program will be normalization of the protege's life," Merz said.

Normalization will emphasize three major areas, he added.

Increasing the mentally retarded person's control over his environment will include giving the protege options on his manner of dress or eating habits, as well as giving him the opportunity to take risks.

Increasing the complexity of the mentally retarded protege's behavior is another area of normalization to be stressed with the program.

Some of the people to be served have been in institutions, Merz said, where everything was regimented. The citizen advocate can help the protege realize other options in his

The third area of normalization, maximizing the human quality of the mentally retarded person's life, is one where the citizen advocate can be most helpful, Merz said.

Going to a movie or shopping with the retarded person, seeing a ball game or a museum display or just sitting and talking are all things the volunteer advocate can do to expand the human quality of the protege's life, Merz said.

In addition to the group of citizen advocates who are matched one-onone with the retarded persons, an advisory committee to serve as a pool of knowledge and information for the advocates and the retarded person is being formed, Merz said.

"If, for instance, the advocate had to stand up for a legal right, he might not know just how to go about doing it. The advisory committee would be available to guide him or her through the problem," he noted.

Merz said the advisory committee also will oversee the program and serve as a liaison between the program and the community.

The only requirements for advocates is that they intend to stay in the community and be able to make a committment for a full year, Merz

"Maturity is the main thing we are looking for in an advocate," Merz said.

There even will be a place for the volunteer who will be in the area less than a year or who feels he is not able to make a committment to be a fulltime advocate. A pool of temporary advocates to fill specific short-term needs for retarded persons also will be part of the program.

There is no age limit for advocates. Some members of the Teens Aid the Retarded group may be involved as advocates, he said, although generally he is looking for people in their 20s or older.

"We are looking for someone who would be willing to yell loudly if he found rights being violated," Merz said. "He would be volunteering to the person he is matched with, not to an agency or group."

One of the purposes of the program is to cut through red tape, so the training for the advocates will be kept "short but thorough," Merz said.

Anyone interested in volunteering as an advocate would be given written material on the program then interviewed to get an idea of the type of match he would be best suited for.

A two- to three-hour training course would be required before the match was made, Merz said, then an initial meeting would be arranged for the volunteer and the protege.

Once the relationship had been established, the pair would set their own activities and times. Most volunteers would spend an average of two to three hours per week with the protege, he said.

The advocate program will fill a real need in the lives of the retarded person, Merz said.

The traditional forms of advocates have been parents and the social agencies such as the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, he

The advocacy program offers more personal friendship than parents are able to give and more individual attention than most agencies can pro-

Merz said he is trying to make as many matches as possible this month, since November is Citizens' Advocate Month. More information about the program may be obtained by contacting the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens at 1109-A Carrizo Street or by calling Merz at 682-9771.

FBI locates missing baby girl

DALLAS (AP) - A 3-year-old girl kidnapped from her parents in 1977 was located Thursday in a Denver foster home, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said.

Shanita Michelle Perkins was taken April 29, 1977, while she was being babysat. Her whereabouts had not been known until Thursday.

A 17-year-old girl, charged with kidnapping, was arrested Tuesday night near Tacoma, Wash., by a state trooper. Her car had been stopped on a routine traffic violation. A check with the FBI national crime center revealed an outstanding warrant for

She was identified by U.S. magistrate court officials in Tacoma as Elizabeth Blanchard. She was arraigned Wednesday and bond was set at $100,000. A removal hearing was set for Oct. 20.

An FBI spokesman said the agency learned the baby had been placed in a foster home in Denver last November and was relocated to a second foster home in July of this year.

"The Denver County Social Services Department has been made aware of the situation and necessary legal steps are under way to return the girl to her parents in Dallas," an agent said.

Clare Ritter, shown in a 1977 picture, is a 71-year-old widow who spent three years pedaling a bicycle and chasing down aluminum cans to sell for 13 cents per pound to a recycling plant in St. Petersburg, Fla. Using the money she made from selling the cans, Mrs. Ritter flew recently to Istanbul to board the liner Odessa for a 32-day, $2,885 cruise to Egypt, Greece and North Africa. (AP

What's the solution to smoking problem

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Couldn't more be done to persuade children not to take up smoking? I get so depressed when I see kids 12 and 13 puffing away. Would it help to have young people tell them what the score is, as they don't seem to listen to

DEAR W.D.: This in fact, is a very effective approach. For instance, researchers at the University of Minnesota report good results with "smoking is ugly and uncool" campaign carried out by seventh graders smoke leaders. Normally, about 8 out of 100 seventh graders smoke at the beginning of the school year, and the number almost doubles by the year's end. With the campaign, which covered 1,600 seventh graders, this rise was held to only 5 percent. Let's hope for more programs like this in our schools. The Minnesota project was developed by C. Anderson Johnson, a social psychologist, and Dr. Russell V. Luepker, a car-

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Do you know where I can get an easy and nutritious no-knead bread recipe?--

DEAR MRS. D.R.: Here it is: Combine 2 tbsp. of dry yeast, one cup of warm water, and 2 tbsp. of brown sugar. Let this mixture stand for about five minutes. Add 1/2 cup of honey or molasses, 1/3 cup of cooking oil, 1 tbsp. of salt, and three cups of warm water (about 110 degrees). Stir in eight to nine cups of flour. Add one cup of instant dry milk to the first two cups of flour. Then add this to the li-

Divide equally between three tall juice cans-well greased (46 oz. cans). Put the filled cans in the oven, turn oven on approximately 350 degrees for about one minutes. Turn the oven off and let the bread set for 15 minuts to rise. Turn the oven on again and bake 50-60 minutes. Let the bread stand for 10 minutes in the cans before turning out to cool.

This recipe was sent in by one of our readers, Mrs. Robinson of Renton, Wa., who then freezes the bread until she uses it. She said it's quite easy. good, and nutritious. Thank you, Mrs.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: What's the relationship between opium and morphine?--Ms. O.M.

DEAR MS. O.M.: The principal constituent of opium, ranging in concentration from 4 to 21 percent, morphine is one of the most effective drugs known for the relief of pain. It is marketed in the form of white crystals, hypodermic tablets and injectable preparations. Its legal use is restricted primarily to hospitals.

Morphine is odorless, tastes bitter and darkens with age. It is administered subcutaneously, intramuscularly or intravenously, the latter method being the one most frequently resorted to by addicts. Tolerance and dependence develop rapidly in the user. Most of the morphine extracted from opium by the pharmaceutical industry is converted to codeine and semi-synthetic nar-

The average East would return a diamond to dummy's weakest suit or a heart to dummy's ace since this would give declarer only what he was GWGFGEG sure to win. Either return would let declarer set the ace and ten of clubs. DAILY QUESTION Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S 73 H 86 5 D K 9 75 S A J 10 5. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 2 NT, inviting partner to bid a game. If partner has a bare 16 points, he will pass; and he should have a very reasonable play for his eight tricks. If he has more than minimum values for his opening bid, he will go on to game; and he should have a reasonable play for nine tricks. The outcome cannot be predicted with precision since much depends on how well your partner plays, where the missing cards are located, and how well the opponents play the defense.
