NEWS IN BRIEF

Production closed

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — The National Semiconductor Corp. closed its production area Friday for the fourth consecutive day as it attempted to locate the source of unidentified toxic fumes that have made some workers ill.

Twenty-nine workers complaining of burning eyes, head aches, nausea, vomiting, sore throats and difficulty breathing have sought help at Danbury Hospital, says Dr. George Teranova, emergency room director.

Motion filed

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A motion filed in federal court accuses predominantly black Alabama State University of ignoring a court order to end discrimination against whites in the hiring of faculty and administrators.

The motion, filed last week and disclosed Thursday, was brought on behalf of Charles R. Craig, a white English professor whose earlier suit against the university resulted last May in a judgment against the university for engaging in hiring discrimination since 1967. Judge Frank M. Johnson broadened Craig's suit into a class action, allowing other whites to sue the university.

New rates told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Small Business Administration said Friday that interest rates on loans made as a result of a disaster on or after Oct. 1, 1978, will be 7 1/2 percent.

The SBA noted that under a law which expired on Sept. 30, disaster loans carried 1 percent, 3 percent and 6 1/2 percent rates for home disaster loans and 3 percent and 6 1/2 percent rates for business and economic injury disaster loans.

License denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission served notice Friday it won't permit the operation of student-run radio stations if university officials fail to supervise them properly.

The FCC announced it had denied renewal of the license of the University of Pennsylvania's noncommercial FM station WXPX in Philadelphia.

Denial means the station must cease operation and may not apply for a new license for at least a year. The FCC said the university was aware of numerous complaints during the 1972-75 license term but did not take effective action until the agency instituted an investigation of the station.

Bradley released

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley, 85, has been released from Walter Reed Army Medical Center after a six-day stay for what was termed a routine checkup.

A spokesman for the hospital said Bradley and his wife returned to their home in El Paso, Texas.

Control of year-long inflationary trend not likely, figures indicate

WASHINGTON (AP) — There was some letup in steadily rising prices during the summer months but prospects for bringing the year-long inflationary spiral under control were bleak, the government said Friday.

The Commerce Department reported that the annual rate of inflation was 7 percent during the summer quarter, an improvement from the 11 percent rate in the spring, while economic growth remained steady.

The economy grew at an annual rate of 3.4 percent, about average for the past year and sufficient to keep unemployment from getting worse.

Most of the slowing in inflation was in food prices, but other indicators show that they might accelerate once more.

"I don't anticipate there will be any fundamental improvement in the inflation rate in the fourth quarter," said department economist Courtenay Slater.

"It would be over-optimistic to expect a further diminishing trend in any magnitude," she added.

The report came as a government-financed study projected a national health care bill of $1 trillion a year by the turn of the century — compared to the current annual bill of about $182.5 billion.

It was issued as President Carter prepared to announce his new anti-inflation program to the nation Tuesday night.

On Thursday, Barry Bosworth, director of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, had conceded that U.S. workers cannot expect any real improvement in their earnings for several years — even if the administration's new program works.

In an address, Bosworth predicted that meat prices, which have already risen substantially, "are going to go through the roof." He said that, if Carter's program does not work, the only alternatives "are the cruel choices of a severe recession or mandatory wage and price controls."

Government officials, nonetheless, say they're encouraged that the nation's output of goods and services is growing at a moderate, steady pace. But some of these officials, speaking privately, say they're worried that inflation may upset everything. They are expressing concern that the Federal Reserve may have to tighten credit so much that it could lead to a recession.

Ikaard labels adversary role of oil 'tragic'

By SUSAN TOTH
R-T Staff Writer

ODESSA — The adversary relationship between the U.S. government and the oil industry is "a national tragedy," according to Frank Ikaard, president of the American Petroleum Institute.

Ikaard made the comment in a press conference Friday before the opening of the Permian Basin Oil Show here.

"The American people invented the oil business," Ikaard said. "You can go anywhere in the world, and the oil people sound like they could be from Odessa."

"The technology we have is legendary. The one place in the world it's not being used in making policy is in the U.S. government."

Ikaard, who was in Odessa to be honored during a ceremony at the opening of the oil show, said the recently passed energy bill was developed entirely without input from the energy producers.

In addition to increasing the adversary relationship between government and the petroleum industry, Ikaard said he feels the new energy bill will cause confusion in the pricing of both oil and natural gas.

The confusion in pricing also may disrupt the capitalization process needed by the oil industry.

"Oil," the petroleum expert said, "is a very capital intensive industry. We have to have an additional $250 billion in the next 10 years just to stay where we are now. Any confusion in the pricing could cause some hesitation in that capitalization."

The new energy bill, Ikaard said, is likely to throw the oil industry further into the "morass of federal regulation."

"The energy business is the most regulated industry in this country," Ikaard said. "But I sense a great public awareness of the whole burdensome effect of government regulation."

The new bill, however, is not "all gloom and doom," he noted. Instead, it should make the American people more aware that there is an energy supply problem and bring into focus the need for changes.

On the topic of divestiture, Ikaard said the issue will be vital in the next session of Congress. Breaking up the major oil companies, Ikaard noted, would "cost the consumers millions" while diversification again would be "refusing to use our technology."

"The greatest resource in energy technology we have is in the oil business, and I think we ought to use it for the public benefit," he said.

Candidates join in 'whistle-stop'

By LINDA HILL
R-T Staff Writer

EAST TEXAS — The emphasis was on party unity Friday as Democratic candidates joined forces to "whistle-stop" through East and Central Texas.

U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, candidate for incumbent John Tower's Senate seat, and Attorney General John Hill, gubernatorial candidate, were the featured attractions of the entourage which, traveling by helicopter, hit eight cities in as many hours.

Five helicopters and a private plane participated in the 600-mile trek.

Bob Armstrong, commissioner of the General Land Office, was along to introduce Krueger.

Armstrong explained to the audiences he was taking sick leave from his duties — "It's the thought of the Republicans winning that makes me sick."

Talk of "the smell of victory" was rampant.

Krueger said he had received poll results Thursday night which indicated he is leading Tower by 42 to 40 percent.

The senatorial candidate said the joint appearances showed Democrats believe in working as a team, and not "just being out there complaining alone."

"It's particularly important in the Senate because we only have two votes there," he said.

Krueger said Texas needs "not just a losing vote, but a positive voice."

But the remark that in each case evoked the most enthusiastic response was, "I knew I was among friends when I came in, because everyone was willing to shake hands with me."

election '78

He was alluding to an incident Tuesday in which Tower refused to shake hands with Krueger.

Hill also emphasized the Democratic "team."

"Democrats work as a team. We don't throw mud or chickens," said Hill at several stops.

Hill said he will join with officials from Oklahoma and Louisiana in filing suit against the federal natural gas pricing bill.

But, he said, he also will press what he believes is Texas' unique advan-

Defense Department honors Mahon in Friday ceremony

WASHINGTON (AP) — With an Army band blaring "The Yellow Rose of Texas" and "The Eyes of Texas," retiring Rep. George Mahon, D-Lubbock, was awarded the Department of Defense's Distinguished Civilian Service Award during a Friday ceremony at nearby Ft. Myer.

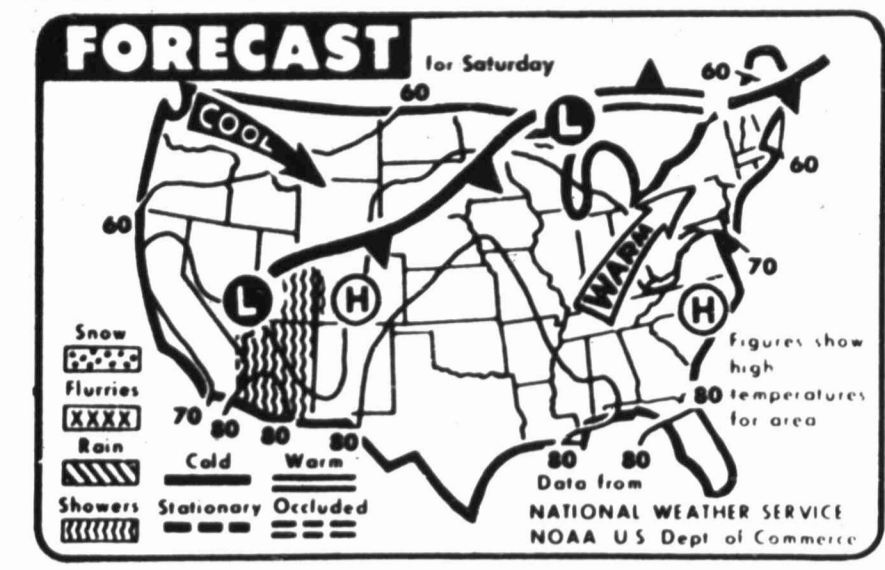

Gen. Benard W. Rogers, the Army Chief of Staff, presented the award to the 78-year-old Texan.

The award was presented "in grateful recognition of his 44 years of dediated service to the United States House of Representatives and his substantial contribution to the accomplishments and readiness of the United States Army as an active member of the House of Representatives."

The citation further noted Mahon's work as chairman of both the House Appropriations Committee and its defense subcommittee. Mahon is the only chairman in the 29-year history of the defense subcommittee.

Vance unlikely to complete SALT treaty during session

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is unlikely to complete a new nuclear weapons limitation treaty during his talks with Soviet leaders Sunday and Monday, but it should become clear whether there can be an agreement in principle, sources said Friday. U.S. officials with Vance in Geneva, where he met with his key arms advisers, said another round may be needed before an accord can be nailed down. One of them rated chances at "no better than 50-50." But Western sources here, who declined to be identified, were not as cautious and said trying to assign percentages to the outcome is not a useful exercise. Soviet sources say conclusion of a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty is only a question of time. They say a meeting between President Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Carter to sign the treaty is a definite prospect before the end of the year. Agreement in principle on SALT II, an elusive goal for six years, would give the Carter administration an other boost to follow the Camp David accords, the Western sources pointed out. While the two sides have narrowed their differences on the treaty a number of key issues remain unsettled. "The issues have subsections under them so that while it is possible to make progress on one item this throws open questions on another that requires another look," the informant said. "But one or two moves by each side could produce the agreement." Paul C. Warnke, the chief American arms negotiator, said earlier this week: "We have solved the most complex problems. It's now a question of how stubborn both sides will be about the fistful of problems left." During the last round of talks earlier this month in Washington, considerable progress was made on the issue of the Soviet backfire bomber. The Russians have insisted it is a medium-range bomber and therefore not subject to limitations under the treaty. But they are said to be willing to limit its deployment and refueling capabilities.

Americans see inflation as top U.S. problem

NEW YORK (AP) — Less than three weeks before the congressional elections, Americans see inflation as the nation's top problem and cuts in federal spending as the best way to cure it, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows. That could mean trouble for the GOP on Nov. 7 when Republican candidates try to break the Democratic hold on Congress and the nation's statehouses. For one thing, the public sees little difference between Democrats and Republicans in the parties' ability to deal with rising prices. And the poll found the GOP has apparently not gotten through to the public with their new campaign theme of big federal tax cuts. Ironically, the GOP has picked up the tax cut theme and downplayed their traditional "cut spending" stance just at a time that the public is looking hardest for those who will cut spending. Republican candidates across the country are pushing the Roth-Kemp tax cut bill, which would slash tax rates by almost a third over the next three years. The AP-NBC News poll taken Monday and Tuesday, like those earlier this year, found inflation the top concern of Americans. Dealing with inflation is first on the list of issues that Congress should face next year, telephone interviews with 1,600 adults found, with 27 percent naming that topic. And second? Cuts in federal spending. Sixteen percent named spending cuts as the top congressional priority. Tax cuts, crime, energy, national health insurance and foreign policy issues ranked further down the list. And people cited inflation and taxes most often when asked if a candidate's stand on the issues would effect their congressional vote on Nov. 7. When asked how to fight inflation, 31 percent said "Cut the federal budget." Wage and price controls were picked by 25 percent. None of the other options were chosen by as many as 10 percent of the public. Ominously perhaps for the GOP's election hopes, the public does not perceive the GOP as any better at dealing with the nation's biggest problem. Respondents were asked whether the Democrats or Republicans can do a better job of putting the brakes on rising prices. Democrats came out slightly ahead of Republicans, picked by 35 percent versus the 31 percent who chose the GOP. Twenty-one percent said neither party and 14 percent were not sure. As with any sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News polls could differ from the results of interviews with all Americans with telephones because of chance variations in the sample. For polls with 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than three percentage points either way simply because of sample errors. That is, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results of interviews with all American adults would vary from these results by more than three percentage points.

Carter asks for review of local property taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter asked Georgia officials Friday to review his local property tax payments for 1975 and 1976 because a news report suggested he underpaid them by as much as $8,000. ABC News reported that the value declared for equipment in Carter's peanut warehouse in Plains, Ga., was lower for property tax purposes than for federal income tax purposes. "The broadcast report raises legitimate questions, and they are questions to which we do not yet have answers," said presidential spokesman Rex Granum. "We are in the process of requesting from both state and county tax offices that they look into the matter, and the president of course will abide by their findings." ABC reported Thursday night that Carter valued a new peanut sheller at $695,000 on his 1975 federal income tax returns, but that the same sheller was valued at only $375,000 that year by Carter's Warehouse Inc. in its property tax declarations with Sumter County, Ga. The network said he valued a peanut loader and elevator at $367,000 when claiming a credit on his 1976 federal income taxes, but at only $50,000 when declaring it for local property taxes that year. Carter's Warehouse Inc. would have paid $8,000 more in local property taxes had the higher figures been declared consistently, the report said, while the president would have paid $36,000 more in federal income taxes using the lower values. Carter's income taxes for those years already have been audited by the Internal Revenue Service, and questions center mainly on whether the values were understated for property tax purposes. Carter voluntarily paid $6,000 in federal income tax in 1976 although he owed no taxes, in large part because of investment tax credits. The report quoted Charles Kirbo, Carter's long-time friend, lawyer and business adviser, as saying Carter's warehouse company was required to declare market value of the equipment for property tax purposes, but the president was allowed to declare its actual cost for the investment tax credits. The network also said, however, that tax experts question such large discrepancies. Granum noted that the property tax forms were filed by Carter's corporation, not by the president himself, and that to the best of his knowledge Carter did not sign the property tax declarations personally. "I would point out to you that in the two years referred to, he was campaigning for the presidency," Granum added. The ABC report was based on reporting by a Washington-based reporter, Peter Peckarsky, who appeared at a White House briefing on Friday to question Granum about the information. Peckarsky, of the Washington Wire news service, said he sold broadcast rights to ABC News and that the rest of his copyright story is for sale to the highest bidder.

Carter extends deadline for ERA ratification by 3 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed a resolution Friday extending the deadline to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment by three years and urged a quick start to win support for the proposed amendment. Immediately after the signing ceremony, Rosalynn Carter and other ERA supporters began that effort by addressing postcards to friends in Florida and Nevada urging their support for the amendment. Both states have ERA questions on the Nov. 7 election ballot. "I urge all the people of the country to join me in correcting a basic defect in the American Constitution," Carter said at the ceremony in the Cabinet Room. He said the amendment "would give simple acknowledgement that women should have equal rights under the laws of our nation." The ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex, must be ratified by 38 states by June 30, 1982, to become part of the Constitution. The original deadline was March 22, 1979, but was extended by the resolution Carter signed. To date, the ERA has been approved by 35 states, but four have since rescinded approval. The validity of that move still is in question, and

Accident claims 2 lives Friday

ROSCOE — Two West Texans were killed and an Odessa man injured early Friday in a three-vehicle accident 1.6 miles east of here, said a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety. Injured in the Nolan County accident was Thomas Michael Carroll, 29, who was reported in serious condition Friday night in Sweetwater's Rolling Plains Hospital, according to the spokesman. Authorities said the automobile driven by Carroll and an automobile driven by an Abilene woman with an Abilene man as a passenger collided on Interstate 20, according to a DPS spokesman. The Abilene woman's vehicle then collided with a truck-tractor rig driven by Bob Flanagan, age unavailible, of Fort Worth, who was not hurt, said officers. Names of the victims are being withheld pending notification of next of kin, the spokesman said.

Speeches, awards, discussions mark anti-crime week drive

Crime Prevention Week begins Sunday, according to a declaration signed Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. The week's activities are sponsored by the Midland Crime Prevention Commission. The first one starts Monday afternoon when the Kiwanis Club meets in the Midland Hilton to hear Darrell Joy of the Texas Crime Prevention Institute in San Marcos. At the same meeting an award will be presented to an outstanding law enforcement officer from the Midland area, said officials. Mrs. Ernest Pierce, chairman of the Texas Hands Up program, will speak at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday in Midland National Bank along with Darrell Joy. The public is invited to the meeting on the fourth floor, said a spokesman. Midland Optimist Club members will meet at 6:30 a.m. Wednesday to hear Sgt. E.M. (Lalo) Camarillo, crime prevention officer for the Midland Police Department, speak. The group will gather in Sambo's Restaurant, 3201 Andrews Highway. Senior Citizens Against Crime will be featured at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Fine Arts Building of Midland College when Boy Scouts of America receive awards for their anti-crime efforts. Joy and Sgt. Camarillo will present an award to a citizen who has done the most in connection with crime prevention. The public is invited. During the week the Junior Women's Club will be actively participating in Operation Identification by marking personal belongings with driver's license numbers. These items can be quickly recovered if stolen, said a spokesman.

Texans said to want tougher line

HUNTSVILLE — "The citizens of Texas want stronger measures to be taken in dealing with criminals," according to Dr. Raymond Teske Jr., a social scientist at Sam Houston State University here. He is director of the Texas Crime Poll conducted by the university's Criminal Justice Center. Teske's comments were prompted by responses to a recent questionnaire mailed to 1,000 Texas residents. Almost 96 percent of the persons who responded to this survey answered, "no" to the question, "If a person is out of jail for a serious (felony) offense and that person is arrested for another serious offense, should he or she be allowed to bond out of jail for the second offense?" People were also asked to evaluate the overall court system. They were asked, "In general, when dealing with convicted criminals, do you feel the courts are: 1) doing a good job, 2) too easy, or 3) too harsh?"

Armed robbery reported

Allan Ringer of the 600 block of Watson Street told Midland Police early Thursday a man wearing a blue shirt, blue jeans and dark sunglasses committed an armed robbery at the 7-Eleven Store, 1912 N. Big Spring St. The man left the store with an undetermined amount of cash and was last seen leaving the business on foot down an alley, police were told.

DEATHS Dora Casarez

Rosary for Dora Lee Casarez, 26, of 3122 W. Kansas Ave. will be recited at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Grimes-Plummer Funeral Home in Kerrville. Mass will be celebrated at 1:30 p.m. Monday at the funeral home followed by burial in the Garden of Memories Cemetery in Kerrville. Mrs. Casarez died Thursday in a Midland hospital following an illness. She was born Aug. 13, 1952, in Kerrville, where she was reared. She moved to Midland in August 1978. She was a member of the Catholic Church. Survivors include her husband, Josue G. Casarez Sr.; two sons, Josue G. Casarez Jr. and Ernest Brian Casarez, both of Midland; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Diaz of Kerrville; two brothers, Daniel Diaz and Otto Diaz, both of Kerrville; and three sisters, Tina Lopez of Fort Worth, Della Garza of Houston and Ema Lee Castro of Comfort.

Fire guts bedroom

A fire of undetermined origin gutted the back bedroom of the Earnest R. Franklin home, 600 South Fort Worth St., late Friday night according to Midland Fire Department officials. Wayne Kemp, who lives across the street, first spotted smoke coming from the residence and notified officials. No one was inside the home at the time the blaze broke out about 10:15 p.m., according to witnesses and officials.

Memphis negotiators wrestling to end city teachers' walkout

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A judge's demand that striking teachers be fired hung over the heads of negotiators attempting to end the city's teachers' walkout as they wrestled Friday with contract language on teacher grievances and evaluation.

64.9 percent of the system's 113,000 students were absent Friday.

As the negotiators went back to work Friday morning, the chief issues on the table were grievance procedures and teacher evaluation.

During a 36-hour session ending early Thursday evening, the negotiators reached tentative agreement on the issue of teacher transfer and assignments — one of the major stumbling blocks in the negotiations that began in April.

DETROIT (AP) — A tiny office in a nondescript Ford Motor Co. warehouse has a new occupant — Lee A. Iacocca, who was fired in July by Henry Ford II from the $977,861-a-year presidency of the nation's second-largest auto company.

Iacocca cleaned out his desk last week at his sumptuous fifth-floor suite at Ford World Headquarters after resigning as president and member of the board of directors.

His new quarters in the west side warehouse have linoleum-tiled floors. His secretary is stationed at a simple desk in a sparsely furnished outer office.

Published reports say that Iacocca, 54, is seeking a $2 million settlement with Ford. A company spokesman denied the reports several weeks ago.

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Ines Elizalde, 41, wife of the newly appointed Ecuadorian consul to Liverpool, was described as a "petty thief" by a magistrate who fined her for shoplifting.

Mrs. Elizalde was fined 40 pounds, about $80, for stealing a leather belt worth 4.50 pounds, $9, from a cash-and-carry store. She had pleaded innocent to the theft of the belt June 6 from a cash-and-carry store.

Her lawyer suggested she had simply tried on the belt and forgotten to remove it. He told the court that she and her husband had spent more than 150 pounds, about $300, in the store that day and had spent similar amounts on previous shopping trips there.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — American chess ace Bobby Fischer has confided that he may soon try for a comeback after six years in retirement.

The 33-year-old chess master was in Yugoslavia this week and he discussed the possibility of a comeback with his longtime friend Svetozar Gligoric, a chess official. Fischer said he is thinking about playing either Gligoric or in a tournament, said Milos Milovanovic, president of the Serbian Chess Federation.

If he gets a crack at the title, many believe Fischer would trounce 27-year-old Russian champ Anatoly Karpov.

WEISER, Idaho (AP) — Cynthia Burgher whizzed through high school in four months, making up for lost time. She graduated from the eighth grade 60 years ago.

Mrs. Burgher, a 70-year old widow, finished elementary school in rural Kentucky, but between farmwork and rearing children she never found time to complete her education.

In June, she enrolled in a general education degree program sponsored by Boise State University's Adult Education Center and this month completed her studies to qualify for a degree.

In April, Mrs. Burgher plans to enroll at Boise State — this time to get a college degree.

Right equipment key to fireplace efficiency

The chill creeping into the air brings visions of a crackling blaze to millions of Americans, but unwary consumers may find the money they spend on building and burning the fire is just going up in smoke.

A fire may be a pleasant way to heat the house, but it is not an efficient one. The heat created by the fire itself goes right up the chimney; less than 10 percent escapes into the room. The fire also draws heated air from the rest of the house. As much as 20 percent of the air in the house can be sucked up the chimney in a single hour.

A tight-fitting damper is essential to prevent heat loss when the fireplace is not in use. Costs range from about $30 to $125 depending on whether you install it yourself.

Glass doors — available for anywhere from $75 to $350 — also save energy. They prevent the escape of air, but allow heat from the fire to radiate into the room. If you are installing a new fireplace, consider including a special device to recirculate the air heated by the fire. With or without the aid of fans, air is drawn from the room into a chamber near the fire. The air is heated by the fire, then blown back into the room or carried, by ducts, to other parts of the house. These devices usually cost several hundred dollars, but they can turn the fireplace into a substantial heat-producer rather than heat-absorber.

Even the best of fireplaces is unlikely to be more than 40 percent efficient in converting the potential heat in the wood into actual heat for your home. A wood-burning stove, in contrast, can achieve an efficiency ratio of up to 70 percent.

It is important to select the wood you put into your fire carefully. Firewood is generally measured in cords. A cord is a pile of four-foot long pieces of wood stacked four feet high and eight feet wide. A face cord is also four feet high and eight feet wide, but the logs are shorter. A two-foot face cord, for example, has logs which are two feet long.

The actual amount of solid wood in a cord varies depending on how the logs have been stacked and how much air space is in between the pieces of wood. Bumpy or crooked logs create large air pockets; you get less wood for your money.

Check the condition of the wood. Freshly cut or green wood can contain up to 30 percent water. It is harder to burn and provides less heat. Recently cut wood will have tight, solid ends with visible sawmarks. Look for wood with cracks in the end pieces, indicating that the logs have been dried.

The best way to make sure wood is properly seasoned is to buy it several months before you need it. Store the wood indoors, in a heated area, if at all possible. Wood that has been stored outdoors, even under cover, may have as much as 12 to 15 percent water. If you are forced to burn green wood, throw a handful of salt on the fire once you've got it going to reduce the build-up of soot.

The government has several publications to help you get the most from your fire. Among them are "Firewood for Your Fireplace," explaining the burning characteristics of different types of wood and giving tips on where to shop, and "Fireplaces and Chimneys," covering construction and maintenance information. Both are available from the Consumer Information Center in Pueblo, Colo., 81009. The firewood booklet costs 60 cents and is No. 047G; the fireplace publication costs $1 and it is No. 046G.

Note: The small bundles of firewood sold in supermarkets usually are more expensive per unit than cords or face cords available at a lumber yard or supply center. Unless you use your fireplace very seldom, you probably are better off buying the larger quantity and storing the extra.

You may be able to get your wood for free by contacting local sawmills or lumber companies with scraps to get rid of. If you live near a national forest, you may be able to get permission to gather wood for personal use. Check with the U.S. Forest Service or the county agent for details.

Day declared

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter proclaimed Nov. 23 as Thanksgiving Day Friday, urging Americans to "share their plenty with the hungry of other lands."

He said Americans should broaden the observance "to include the practice of Thankful Giving."

Eyes of TV on Austin, but don't forget UH-SMU

By TED BATTLES
R-T Sports Editor

DALLAS—The Eyes of TV will be focused on Austin today when Arkansas, ranked third nationally, and Texas, No. 8, square off before 80,000 fans in what is regarded traditionally as the game that as often as not in recent years decides the Southwest Conference football, but a couple of dissenters clash confident that their "private" shootout before 45,000-up in the Cotton Bowl will have considerable impact on the race.

Neither is ranked in the top 10, but so far their credentials are impressive. Houston, No. 11 nationally, comes off a mind-boggling 33-0 upset of previously undefeated Texas A&M while unranked Southern Methodist University, in the midst of a football revival under energetic Rom Meyer at College Station and TCU travels to New Orleans for a 7:30 p.m. tilt against Tulane.

ARKANSAS IS 4-0 coming into today's 60th meeting with the Longhorns, but the victims include Vanderbilt, Oklahoma State, Tulsa and TCU, and not by the margins one might expect from a No. 3 ranked team, but don't let that fool you. It's basically the same team that knocked Oklahoma out of a national championship, 31-6, in last year's Orange Bowl, and if it hadn't been for the 13-6 regular season stain at the hands of Texas might have won the title itself.

Texas is 4-1 with a 31-10 blot on its record by Oklahoma, a defeat a victory here today would do much to salvage.

With Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell now among the pros, Coach Fred Akers is in the throes of a rebuilding job. Last week in a 26-16 win over North Texas he started an all-freshman backfield of quarterback Donnie Little, and running backs Jam Jones, Perryton's Brad Beck and flanker Ronnie Miksch.

While OU shredded Texas' defense two weeks ago, Coach Lou Holtz is fearful of the Longhorns' defenders as his Razorbacks bring an 11-game winning streak to Austin to pit against UT's nine-game home streak.

"Steve McMichael is an excellent tackle and Johnnie Johnson is one of the best safeties in the country. Johnson didn't play against North Texas State, but we know he'll be ready for us."

Texas' defense, shown here ganging up on Oklahoma's Billy Sims (20), will be severely tested again today when the Longhorns face Arkansas in a TV tilt at Austin. Sims, incidentally, fumbled on this play, but was ruled in the end zone. (Staff Photo)

Both Holtz and Akers are 15-3 between them since taking over last year from Frank Broyles and Darrell Royal, respectively. The series is 45-14-0 for Texas and the Hogs haven't won at Austin since 1966 when a 12-7 win completed a three-year domination of UT by UA.

WHILE DEFENSE and kicking is expected to hold sway at Austin, SMU and Houston are expected to put on a fireworks display that is only fitting for the final week of the State Fair.

After an opening game loss to Memphis State, 17-3, the Cougars have come back to reel off wins over Utah, 42-25, Florida State, top ten ranked at the time, 27-21; Baylor, 20-13, and last week A&M.

The Mustangs, riding the productive passing feats of sophomore quarterback Mike Ford and receiving of junior Emanuel Tolbert have scored at least four touchdowns on every foe with the exception of Penn State, their only loss, 26-21. Victories include Florida, 35-25, and Baylor, last week, 28-21, a game in which the Mustangs rallied from a 21-0 halftime deficit. The tie was 35-35 with Ohio State, and when was the last time the Buckeyes surrendered 35 points to anyone?

Ford has twice been named AP Offensive Player of the Week for performances against TCU and Ohio State. He was picked for UPI's national backfield of the week for the same games and was Sports Illustrat-ed's Player of the Week for his Ohio State performance.

Last week the Mesquite slinger completed 32 of 43 against Baylor, good for 355 yards and four touchdowns, three to the amazingly agile Tolbert. Ford's four TD tossed tied a SWC record and the 32 completions was the fifth best in SWC history. He also has the second best mark with 36 against Ohio State.

Meyer, who predicted when he came to SMU from Nevada-Las Vegas that the Mustangs would be national contenders in five years, is noted for his pessimistic outlook. "A team with the ability to throw the ball can come back quickly," he said referring to what could have been anyone of the Ponies' games this year. "We knew we could throw, and we knew we could come back if we started playing good hard football," he added in reference to the Baylor game.

Bill Yeoman, whose Cougars are 1-2 in the series against SMU, says, "The A&M game was our best defensive performance since the 1976 group. If you're not ready every week in this conference, you'll get killed. It's an every week situation. It's just a do or die struggle and that's what we have again this week with SMU. It's so tough to play the Mustangs because they can score at any time from any place on the field because of their great throwing game."

The Cougars, with a ground-oriented offense, are led by quarterback Danny Davis, the catalyst to the Cougars' SWC drive two years ago. Davis has completed 39 of 78 passes for 576 yards, which pales beside Ford's 115 of 184 for 1,455 yards, but the Cougars are averaging 391 yards rushing to 97 per game for SMU.

YEOMAN KNOWS so well what can happen if you blink an eye against the wild Southern Methodist offense.

For example, SMU scored 20 points in 39 seconds to stun the Cougars 37-23 last year.

In other league games, Texas A&M was a 13-point favorite to rebound from its shocking 33-0 loss to Houston when winless Baylor comes to College Station, and Texas Tech was a 15-point nod over the Rice Owls.

Texas Christian closes out the SWC campaign as a 15-point underdog to Tulane in New Orleans. The SWC is 14-11-1 for the year.

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff, whose team has lost the last five games by a total of only 21 points said of the Aggie game: "We are catching them at an extremely bad time. They have to win to stay in the conference race and they catch us with not much motivation toward the title."

For his own situation, Teaff added, "I don't know what the human limit is, but we're testing it."

Linda Ballard leads qualifiers for City Women's golf tourney

Tuesday will mark the start of the 1978 Women's City Golf Championship tournament at Hogan Park, and 57 women played a qualifying round Thursday.

Linda Ballard, Ranchland Hill Country Club champion, shot an 86 for medalist honors. Susan Britton, defending champion did not have to qualify and has the top position in the Championship flight.

Diane Rankin's 89 was the second best score and placed her in third position. Others in the championship flight are Jean Elkin, Earline Wright, Helen Brant, Betty Sappington and Ella Heath.

Marian Spears, Midland Country Club champion, faltered enough on the first, ninth and 17th holes to slip down into the first flight.

In the nine-hole division, Betty Reimers is defending champion. She defended Renee Beique for the lowest qualifying score Thursday.

Despite perfect weather and excellent playing conditions, the scores were higher than usual partly because of the inconsistency of the greens due to recent overseeding for winter turf. Many three putts and a few four putts were recorded.

Tuesday's match play will begin and continue through Thursday for the 72 women entered in the tournament.

The 18-hole division players will tee off each day on the first hole while the two flights of the nine-hole players will tee off on No. 10. Tuesday's pairings are as follows:

- Championship Flight (Sponsored by Midland National Bank): 9:40: Susan Britton vs Earline Wright; 9:45: Diane Rankin vs Betty Sappington; 9:50: Linda Ballard vs Helen Brant; 9:55: Jean Elkin vs Ella Heath.

TEE TIME Hogan Park hosts pro tournament

BY REX WORRELL
Hogan Park Golf Pro

The West Texas Chapter of the PGA will hold the 1978 Assistant Professional Championships at Hogan Park Golf Course Monday. Assistant pros from the area will play 36 holes of golf Monday to decide the winner. Play will begin at 9 a.m. with the second round to start at 1 p.m. We expect about 15 assistants for the event. Tournament chairman Sherwin Cox of Amarillo Tascosa Country Club reports a prize fund of approximately $4,000.

JACK REYNOLDS from Maysville, Okla., stopped by with his brother in law, Leon Lloyd of Midland, for a nine-hole round Sunday. The round turned out to be a memorable one for Jack. He aced the 180-yard No. 6 hole at Hogan. The hole-in-one was also witnessed by Eddie Krupa and Harvey Mead.

Deadline for entry in the fifth annual Midland Mixed Doubles Tennis Tournament is Monday night. The event is scheduled Oct. 27 through 29 and the field is limited to 64 doubles teams. Participants may register by contacting Yvonne Garton, tournament chairman, 683-1529. Entry fee is $15 per team with proceeds benefitting a year round program for deserving people 15 and under in Midland. Singles wishing to participate will be paired before Thursday. The tournament is sponsored by Midland National Bank as part of its community relations program. Non-participating sponsors are also invited to support the program by purchasing $15 sponsor tickets. They are available from the tournament committee, comprised of Mrs. Garton, Celeste Fasken, Helen Bellows, Jean Henderson, Louise Patterson, Pat Innerarity, Linda Powell, Connie Scharbauer and Iona Vasicek.

Vikings, Dolphins, Bengals get nod

By BRUCE LOWITT

NEW YORK (AP) — It is time for this foolishness to stop.

The Green Bay Packers are good, but not THAT good. Nor are the Minnesota Vikings THAT bad.

In other words, the Pack is about to come back — to reality.

On the other hand, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles are THAT good, and St. Louis is THAT bad, so two teams will remain unbeaten and one still will be winless when the National Football League season passes the halfway mark this weekend.

Looking for an Upset Special? Take two. Miami will muffle New England and Cincinnati, getting off the goose-egg, will beat Buffalo.

Last week's 12-2 mark (which included Washington's return to reality) put the season record at 63-35, .643.

Vikings 24, Packers 20
What Minnesota has going for it, besides playing at home, is age, just enough of it to have faced pressure games like this and come out on top. It's a fairly new experience for the young Packers.

By the way, the home-field advantage isn't always mythical. Just ask the Los Angeles Dodgers about their last weekend in New York.

Dolphins 28, Patriots 23
Pitting the AFC's leading ground gainer, Delvin Williams, against New England's rushing defense may produce a standoff. But the Pats' secondary won't stand up that well against Bob Griese.

Bengals 20, Bills 13
Cincinnati realizes that if it doesn't pull off an upset here, it may not win a game until December.

Houston tends to play so-so against bad teams and good against good ones — but the Oilers aren't good enough to play the great ones.

Rams 34, Saints 14
Archie Manning burned Los Angeles with three TD passes in the Superdome a while back. The Rams will roast him at home this time.

Jets 30, Cardinals 24
New York and St. Louis are playing without No. 1 quarterbacks. The only problem is, the Cards don't seem to have a No. 2, either.

Cowboys 33, Eagles 20
Dallas has been in the doldrums too long. Last Sunday's nerve-wracker against St. Louis probably woke the Cowboys up.

Redskins 35, Giants 16
Three straight losses to the Giants and a suddenly-shrinking division lead will have Washington on the warpath.

Cowboys no test for potent Rams

By BOB OATES
The Los Angeles Times

People are beginning to say the Rams didn't have much to beat last month when they ripped the Dallas Cowboys, 27-14.

Since that day the Cowboys have suffered a touchdown shutout in Washington, 9-5, followed by a humiliating experience last Sunday when they were carried into overtime by 0-7 St. Louis.

Their 5-2 record has dropped them into second in their division, the NFC East.

Is this the same team that won the Super Bowl last winter with a group of youngsters who were expected to dominate pro football indefinitely? What's wrong with the Cowboys?

THOSE WHO will talk about them, on or off the record, mention the same six things:

1 — The Cowboys this year were overrated to begin with. They aren't as good as they seemed in the playoffs last winter, when they weren't really challenged by Chicago with Bob Avelini, by Minnesota without Fran Tarkenton or by Denver with Craig Morton.

2 — In particular, their offensive line has been, and is, suspect. The youth and immaturity there keep the Cowboys from establishing a running attack — notably against good defensive teams — Washington, for instance, or Los Angeles.

3 — This has put a lot of extra pressure on the pass offense. Thus in seven games this fall Roger Staubach has thrown more interceptions (11) than he threw all last year (9).

4 — The rebuilt Dallas defense has too much youth to play good football consistently. In Super Bowl XII it looked stronger against Cowboy cast-off Morton than it really is.

5 — The Cowboys this year have only lost to good teams, Los Angeles and Washington. The Los Angeles defeat was mainly psychological. An embarrassed underdog in the Coliseum, the Rams played their most emotional game in several years. As for the Washington defeat, the Cowboys were outcoached on the goal line. Despite their weaknesses up front, they kept hurling their small running backs into Washington's strength.

6 — Their achievement in winning the Super Bowl last year has had two adverse effects this year; everybody is ganging up on the Cowboys, who, like many defending champions, have been playing with a bit less intensity.

SOME DALLAS players think Reason 6 has been decisive. Says Preston Pearson, the delegated halfback receiver: "This team is too passive. People are intimidating us and jawboning at us and we're not responding. Well, nobody is going to intimidate me without me responding in kind. I'm old enough and mature enough to do it without losing my concentration."

Threatening to quit the Cowboys if they don't shape up, Pearson continues: "I'm going to have a talk with my teammates. If they want to continue playing passive football, I don't want to be a part of this team."

Asked about this, coach Tom Landry concurs: "Football is a rough, tough game and you've got to play it that way."

PRESIDENT TEX Schramm says:

"I don't think anybody questions the fact that our opponents are all more intense this year. Young championship players have to learn to live with the fact that people are shooting at them every week."

In such circumstances it is the responsibility of the coaches to give their players some extra help. And so it is that Landry has been second-guessed again this season.

For instance, Dallas could have won the Washington game if Landry's signal calling had been more imaginative on the goal line. The Cowboys incredibly lined up and ran off 14 plays inside the Redskin 20 that night without scoring a touchdown.

Most were sorties into the line — which contrasted with the way Denver won a subsequent Monday nighter (against Chicago) on a good play sent in by the Bronco signal-caller, coach Red Miller.

With first and goal at the Chicago 6, Denver's slow-footed quarterback Morton slipped out on a option-type play and pitched wide for the touchdown.

TO LANDRY, Reason 4 seems like the key to Dallas' slow start this year. Commenting on Dallas' defensive inexperience — as represented by among others, linebackers Bob Breung and Thomas Henderson and defensive tackle Randy White — the head coach says:

"They were all right (against St. Louis). When they've had the experience that enables them to reach a level where they'll play their best football in big games we'll be better."

In other words, it's one thing to star against bad clubs and another to succeed against an NFL power. In Landry's view, his reworked defense can't yet be counted on against Super Bowl contenders.

Reason 3 — a possible Staubach off year — has been cited for Dallas' slowdown by some this season but not by those in position to know the most about it.

Says sports writer Frank Luksa of the Dallas Times Herald: "Roger has simply had to throw too often this year. When you can't run, you have to throw, and in those circumstances a passer's efficiency usually goes down in the NFL. The Cowboys like to throw no more than 20 or 25 times a game. This year Roger has been up in the 40s twice."

Reason 2 — offensive-line trouble — is paramount to most Dallas writers, including free-lance writer Steve Perkins, who says:

"The offensive line is pass-blocking better now but the Cowboys still can't get their running game going with these fellows. I thought (guard) Tom Rafferty was coming, but now they're alternating him with Burton Lawless as the messengers, and Herb Scott is going it alone. Not even Tony Dorsett 'an run without blocking'."

As for Reason 1, that's obvious now. The Cowboys were overrated.

Hey, what's wrong with Cowboys?

When the season started, the big question was, Just how good are the Cowboys? Now that everyone has had time to think about it and the Cowboys approach midseason with a modest, modest at least for a defending Super Bowl champion, 5-2, the more cynical are beginning to ask, "Just how bad are the Cowboys?"

For those hostiles with suspicious natures and those Cowboy fans who are faint of heart, the change in tenor is not without a certain justification.

The record shows that the Cowboys have lost to the only two good teams they've faced and some might even dispute that, arguing that the Redskins haven't proven themselves yet.

What's more, the Cowboys had the wits scared out of them twice by the 0-7 St. Louis Cardinals and can thank a Jim Bakken field goal attempt that hit the upright and bounced back on to the field for escaping without their customary split with the Redbirds.

EVEN THE most staunch Dallas supporter will grudgingly concede this isn't exactly the way things were supposed to go.

ly concede this isn't exactly the way things were supposed to go.

So now the familiar chorus, "What's wrong with the Cowboys?", assuming there is something wrong.

One theory advanced is that the Dallas secondary hasn't adjusted to the new no-bump rule, the one that prohibits inhibiting receivers en route to their appointed destinations. In effect, it allegedly has made the famed Dallas zones and flexes obsolete and Dallas supposedly has not adjusted as well to man-to-man coverage as some of their opponents.

Another theory is that the offensive line isn't doing its job in the style it takes to spring Tony Dorsett and Robert Newhouse on the kind of canters it takes to Keep the heat off quarterback Roger Staubach.

WITH DALLAS only a game back, there really doesn't seem to be any point for panic, except perhaps in the imaginations of those looking for chinks in the Cowboys shiny blue armor.

It's obvious the Cowboys haven't peaked yet, as perhaps the Redskins and Rams have, but then it's a little early. It's a 16-game season and the games that count are still ahead and the important thing is to treat water until they arrive.

In any case, the Cowboys don't have an ally in what may be the most demanding schedule, in terms of taxation of the recuperative powers, in the NFL. Everybody cites the Monday Night Jinx, how hard it is for a team to bounce back from a Monday game to play the following Sunday.

The Cowboys not only have two Monday night dates, but two Thursday dates, losing two days instead of one as in the case of Mondays, facing them. One comes up next week when Dallas follows Sunday's game with Philadelphia by playing the Vikings Thursday. And later, a Sunday game is followed by a Thanksgiving date with the Redskins.

This week's forecast... Dallas 31, Philadelphia 17—Cowboys smart under criticism of near loss at St. Louis.

Arkansas 13, Texas 10—Razorbacks have been playing possum, haven't they? Houston 33, SMU 28—Cougars' defense should keep the score down.

Texas A&M 17, Baylor 14—Another toughie for the Bears. Texas Tech 21, Rice 7—Raiders take command in SWC second division.

Oklahoma 28, Iowa State 14—Jayhawks served as Cyclone alert for Sooners.

Indiana 17, Michigan State 14—Our upset special.

Kansas 14, Oklahoma State 13—Another good spot for a surprise.

UCLA, Cal clash in national TV tilt

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — With six straight losses to UCLA behind them, the California Bears are in little danger of looking ahead to next week and the Southern California Trojans.

"I don't want the team saying, 'My God, we haven't beaten UCLA in six years!' I hope that fact motivates them," said Cal Coach Roger Theder.

UCLA and Cal, who meet Saturday in a nationally televised Pacific-10 game (3 p.m.), are the only unbeaten teams in the conference football standings. Defending champion Washington and preseason favorite Southern Cal are among the five teams with one loss apiece.

SOUTHERN CAL was unbeaten and No. 2 nationally before being upset last weekend by Arizona State. Cal will play the Trojans next Saturday in Los Angeles.

"We've prepared so much for this game that I don't even want to think of USC, and I hope our squad doesn't, either," said Theder.

The Bears, 2-0 in the conference and 5-1 over-all, have their usual look on offense, relying mostly on passing. Sophomore quarterback Rich Campbell is the Pac-10's top-ranked passer.

The recent losses to UCLA have been among the toughest suffered by Cal teams. In 1975, the schools tied for the Pac-8 crown but UCLA went to the Rose Bowl because of its 28-14 conquest of the Bears.

"I don't know why we've beaten Cal the last several years," said Bruins Coach Terry Donahue. "They've played very well against USC during that time, but we've beaten them."

UCLA, now 3-0 in the Pac-10 and 10th ranked nationally with a 5-1 record, usually beats Cal with great performances from running backs such as Theotis Brown and James Owens, who combined for 311 last week in a 45-31 victory over Washington State.

THE BRUINS' defensive unit, featuring All-American linebacker Jerry Robinson, "is as good as any in the country," Theder believes. Cal expected its defense, loaded with veterans, to be among the best in the Pac-10. But it has allowed an average of 342 yards per game.

"I realize what the stats say about Cal, but they also say UCLA shouldn't be 5-1. We've only outgained two or three teams we've played," said Donahue.

He is looking for continued improvement from quarterback Rick Bashore, who was struggling early in the season but hit on eight of 14 passes and ran for three touchdowns last week.

"He's still not anywhere near the form he had at the end of last season," said Donahue. "I hope that last game proves an encouragement to him."

REGIONALS include: Texas-Arkansas; Purdue-Illinois, Georgia Tech-Auburn and Eastern Kentucky-Western Kentucky. They will be followed by a national telecast of the UCLA-California game. Kickoff time for the regional games is 12:50 p.m. EDT.

Arkansas-Texas is the only pairing of two members of The Associated Press Top 20, which underwent a drastic shakeup following last week's rash of upsets.

Elsewhere, top-rated Oklahoma, one-of last week's survivors — but barely — with a 17-16 victory over Kansas, visits Iowa State, while runner-up Penn State entertains Syracuse.

Fourth-ranked Alabama, inching its way back toward the top after dropping from No. 1 to No. 8, visits Tennessee, while fifth-ranked Nebraska is at Colorado. Sixth-ranked Maryland entertains Wake Forest, No. 7 Southern California is at home against Oregon State, No. 9 Michigan visits Wisconsin, and No. 10 UCLA is at California.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Houston is at Southern Methodist, Baylor at No. 12 Texas A&M, No. 13 Missouri at Kansas State, Florida State at No. 15 Pitt, No. 16 Louisiana State at Kentucky, William & Mary at No. 17 Navy, Vanderbilt at No. 18 Georgia, No. 19 Purdue at Illinois, and No. 20 Notre

Faldo retains stroke edge in European golf

WALTON HEATH, England (AP) — Nick Faldo, a lanky, 21-year-old Englishman, kept a stroke ahead of Tom Weiskopf Friday in a head-to-head battle for the lead in the $200,000 European Golf Championship.

Faldo played the Walton Heath course, lined with trees and deep heather, in 3-under-par 70 and had a total of 138 for the first two rounds. He was 8-under par for the tournament.

Weiskopf shot a 69, including three birdies on the long, par-5 holes, and was at 139.

THE TWO men played together, and at times the duel had the flavor of match play. "In this situation you can watch your opponent and try to see he doesn't get too far ahead," Weiskopf said.

Greg Norman of Australia was in third place with 141.

Mac McLendon, another U.S. pro, shot a 2-under-par 71 for the second straight day and was one of eight golfers tied for fourth at 142.

Faldo and Weiskopf went round together in morning sunshine. The weather turned colder later and the last competitors played in rain.

Weiskopf, fresh from a hunting trip in the Yukon, said he had not played golf in five weeks and was surprised by his scores.

HE WAS at his best on the long holes. He had birdies at the 513-yard second, the 489-yard sixth and 507-yard 11th, all of which carry a par 5. He reached the second and 11th greens in two strokes, and at the sixth he blasted out of a bunker to within four feet and sank the putt.

But the last par-5 hole, the 517-yard 14th, the heather came up and grabbed Weiskopf. His drive landed right in it, and his second shot was buried even deeper. He took four to reach the green and made bogey.

Little Red risks ring title against Clemente

PESARO, Italy (AP) — A Californian and a Filipino, totally unknown to Italian boxing fans, will trade punches in this port city Saturday night when Danny "Little Red" Lopez defends the World Boxing Council featherweight title against Pell Clemente.

It will be the third world bout with no Italian contenders staged in this Mediterranean area this year.

"Television networks guarantee purses of the fighters and organizing expenses, thus the flow of fans is always welcomed but not essential," Italian matchmaker Armando Spagnoli said Friday. "This makes possible organization here of bouts involving all-foreign fighters."

NBC will televise the bout live in the United States beginning at 4 p.m. EDT.

Lopez' tremendous punching is being used by the local promoter as the magnet to attract fans to the 5,000-seat hall at the local fairgrounds.

Ecology activists celebrate winning of battle for seals

By RICHARD BLYSTONE

LONDON (AP) — The British government backed down — but insisted it was right. Ecology activists celebrated — but acknowledged their war is far from won. And 2,000 baby seals will live — at least until they are older and less winsome.

That was the status after a week-long dispute over a plan to "cull" — or slaughter — gray seals in the Orkney Islands off the North Coast of Scotland because they allegedly eat too much from dwindling fish stocks.

Because of "widespread public concern" — the prime minister's office alone received 16,800 protest letters — the government announced Monday it was calling off six Norwegian marksmen who had been hired for $40,000 to kill 900 adult seals.

Licensed local hunters, who were to have killed 4,000 seal pups, will be restricted to 2,000 as in the past, said the announcement from the Scottish Office.

"We achieved what we set out to achieve. They're going to review the whole subject of the seal population," said Ken Weiland, 28, a spokesman for the Greenpeace organization.

Greenpeace stationed two dozen volunteers in tents on rocky islands pledged to stand between the seals and the hired guns, who were brought in, said the Scottish Office, "because they are experts in killing the adult seals, which requires a heavier weapon than the pups."

The confrontation never came off, although the Greenpeace trawler Rainbow Warrior shadowed the Norwegian ship Kviitingen. Relations between the vessels warmed after Rainbow Warrior relayed a government message, which couldn't otherwise get through to the hunters.

But a change of heart? No, said Weiland. "Governments don't change their nature overnight. It was pressure — pressure from us and pressure from the people. Still it's going to make the government more aware and make them be absolutely sure of their facts and figures before they embark on a course that's going to outrage a lot of people."

However, Scottish Secretary Bruce Millan repeated he is sure of his facts, and that three different advisory groups concerned with seals and other wildlife endorsed the six-year plan aimed at halving Britain's gray seal population.

From a low of 500 in 1914, the grays in Britain have multiplied to an estimated 60,000 — two-thirds of their species in the world, Millan said, adding: "There is no doubt that they are consuming a considerable quantity of fish, which has been put at a value of some 12 million pounds ($24 million) per annum.

"I am also concerned that the future of the species is not endangered," he declared. He said Greenpeace and other opponents of the cull have brought forward no evidence that the grays' existence would be threatened by the cull.

He called for anyone with facts to submit them for study and publication before next year's seal season.

But he warned that in the end the decision is his, and that sparing seals now might just mean more to cull in the future.

Greenpeace, also known for daring mid-ocean harassment of whaling fleets, had objected to the lack of published evidence from the Scottish office. Weiland said supporters did "an immense amount of research in a very short time," combing libraries and talking with wildlife experts, and then decided to intervene.

"When the news broke we had all the volunteers we could use," said Weiland. "British, Dutch, French, Canadian — seven nationalities in all."

Orkney Islanders disagreed about the hunt. Some fishermen approved of it, but others — including fishermen — formed Selkie, using the local dialect name for seal, and deployed more protesters than the outsiders did.

"This whole thing is an emotional subject that has been blown up out of all proportion," said Roddie McColl, assistant secretary of the Scottish Fishermen's Federation.

"Baby seals with wide eyes may be very endearing, but there's nothing endearing about a grunting, full-grown seal."

Hill's donations report called violation of law

By The Associated Press

The finance director for Republican Bill Clements' gubernatorial campaign accused Attorney General John Hill on Friday of violating state laws controlling reports of candidate donations and expenditures.

Hill's campaign treasurer, Lowell Lebermann, quickly dismissed the accusations by James B. Francis Jr. as "spurious."

Francis, armed with a stack of documents over half an inch thick, called a news conference in Austin to say Hill was breaking the campaign reporting laws on purpose.

"We are studying our legal options for handling this matter," Francis said. Options include filing a formal complaint with the secretary of state, which could result in prosecution, and suing Hill for damages.

Francis listed these alleged violations:

—Omission from Hill's May 1 report of $100,000 in transfers between various campaign organizations that took place in April. Francis said the money was reported in October, but "there is a political advantage to having accepted $100,000 in political campaign funds in the last days of a tough primary and not having it a matter of public record."

—Filing Hill's October report one day past the deadline of Oct. 10.

—Listing several contributions without giving the donors' addresses.

—Reporting donations to a "John Hill Campaign Fund" not registered with the secretary of state.

—A $5,000 discrepancy between money transferred from the John Hill for Governor Campaign Committee and those reported received by Hill's personal campaign fund.

While mistakes can happen, Francis said, "what we have here is a concerted effort by the attorney general and his campaign aides to not comply with the law."

"These spurious allegations are just another example of the desperation tactics being used by the Clements campaign," Lebermann said in a one-sentence rebuttal.

Hill, meanwhile, issued a statement praising the Texas Public Utility Commission for its decision to hold hearings next week on affiliate transactions of Texas Utilities Co.

"It is essential that consumers be asked to pay only those rates which are reasonable and that they be assured any costs resulting from transactions between utility company affiliates have been closely examined," he said.

In the U.S. Senate race, Republican John Tower gave an Abilene news conference an explanation why he refused to shake hands with challenger Bob Krueger at a Houston Press Club affair.

The incident earlier this week coincided with Tower's attack on a Krueger campaigner's use of a newspaper column depicting an unnamed senator as a womanizer.

Tower said Krueger had "engaged in scurrilous campaign activities" and is a "man who has no loyalties and no convictions."

"I was brought up to believe that a handshake was, and is, a symbol of friendship and respect. I was not brought up to believe that a handshake is a meaningless and hypocritical act done for public display," Tower said.

"My opponent has slurred my wife and my daughters. He has masked himself in idealism, but behind that runs a campaign that is not inhibited by principle or truth. I think under the circumstances that I should not have dignified him by shaking his hand after what he has been engaged in," Tower said.

Jim Baker, the GOP candidate for attorney general, campaigned in Corpus Christi, where he said the Democratic candidate, Mark White, repe-tedly has ducked invitations to appear with Baker at public functions.

"As always, I will look forward to debating him at any time, but I'm not holding my breath with high expectations. If I had his record of big spending while in office to defend, I guess I'd hunker down and opt for a no-show policy too," Baker said.

Krueger and Hill campaigned together in a helicopter swing through parts of East and Central Texas.

Krueger played a party unity theme.

"We Democrats are proud of our party and proud of our ticket. This doesn't seem to be the case with the Republicans. You don't see any signs saying 'John Tower — Republican.' You will see signs saying 'Bob Krueger — Democrat,' and I'm proud of it," Krueger said.

Envoy announces plans for talk on arms supply

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — A top American envoy flew into Somalia Friday and announced that he will hold talks with the government on the possibility of American arms being supplied to this East African nation to preserve its security.

William Harrop, deputy assistant Secretary of State for Africa, said so far "no final decision" has been taken.

The Somalis appealed to the United States for arms last year after its Soviet allies switched their allegiance in the region to neighboring Ethiopia-Somalia's traditional enemy.

Harrop together with Rear Admiral Samuel Packer, commander of American naval forces in the Middle East, will also attend celebrations here Saturday marking the ninth anniversary of the military coup which overthrew civilian rule in Somalia.

It is the first time that America has sent an official delegation to the celebrations and their presence, said Harrop, reflects "substantial improvements" in relations between the two states over the past year.

Nearly one year ago Somalia expelled all Soviet military advisors from the country and started searching for Western help in replacing Soviet-supplied military equipment.

Since then Somalia's military needs have become even more acute because of its defeat in the Ogaden war last March when an Ethiopian counterattack spearheaded by Cuban troops and Soviet military advisers expelled Somali forces from the Ethiopian region.

Fears that Somalia could again attempt to invade the Ogaden and also pursue territorial claims against other neighboring states using Western supplied weapons has been a sticking point in negotiations with the Americans.

Initially the United States indicated it would be willing to supply $15 million for "defensive weapons" to the Somalis but backtracked after direct Somali involvement in the Ogaden became clear.

Dayan not optimistic

JERUSALEM (AP) — Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said Friday Israeli and Egyptian negotiators at the Washington peace conference were at an impasse over "fundamental principles" and the Israeli delegation would return home shortly for consultations.

Speaking in an Israel television interview from Washington, Dayan declined to use the term "crisis" to describe the negotiations, but said at least three times that without concessions by both sides "there will be no agreement."

Dayan said his delegation would return Monday, but the television reported that the departure was moved up to Saturday in a decision following the interview. Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman were likely to report to Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet on Sunday.

Budget board favors closing of agency

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Governor's Coordinating Office for the Visually Handicapped, a $400,000-a-year state agency criticized for not doing its job, should go out of business, the Legislative Budget Board said Friday.

The powerful board, chaired by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, was tight-fisted in budgets recommended for several other agencies, proposing either small increases or none at all.

It also suggested legislation forcing the Texas Commission for the Blind to place the income from its snack bars and concession stands into the state treasury. The money then could not be spent without legislative appropriation.

"Those stands outside the Capitol that are not training stands are pure profit enterprises. The commission for the blind does not audit them, and they are granted on a non-competitive basis," said Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Bloomington.

Board staff evaluators reported that the Governor's Coordinating Office for the Visually Handicapped had "made little progress towards fulfilling" its mandate from the Legislature.

Specifically, they said, the office has not done these jobs assigned to it by law: operation of a central registry of blind and visually handicapped persons; supervision of a comprehensive diagnostic center for blind youngsters with other handicaps; and establishment of a centralized depository of Braille, large print and recorded materials for the blind.

The staff report said the office's employees "indicate that performance of these duties, as contemplated in the legislation, is not economically feasible."

The report also said the office contracted with outside consultants for $24,537 worth of studies, some of which could have been made by the office's own employees.

"It's rather a sham on state government to have to suggest to an agency that they comply with a statute," said House Speaker Bill Clayton.

The board recommended these state agency appropriations for fiscal 1980 and 1981, with current budgets shown in parentheses:

State Health Department, $134.7 million in 1980 and $143.8 million in 1981 ($121.7 million).

Texas Health Facilities Commission, $789,232 and $817,241 ($679,093).

Commission on Alcoholism, $4.4 million and $4.5 million ($4.7 million).

Public Utility Commission, $2.9 million and $3 million ($3.2 million).

Alcoholic Beverage Commission, $11.5 million and $12.5 million ($10.9 million).

State Insurance Board, $12.2 million and $12.7 million ($11.9 million).

Board of Pardons and Paroles, $9 million and $10.1 million ($8.4 million).

Amarillo Slim, four other men arrested on gambling charges

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Thomas Austin Preston Jr., known as "Amarillo Slim," and Bryan "Sailor" Roberts, both "world champion" poker players, were indicted with three other West Texas men on federal gambling conspiracy charges Thursday.

The 13-count grand jury indictment outlines a gambling operation run out of an El Paso apartment that took in $458,990 in wagers in October of 1977. Preston is charged with personally accepting $14,970 in wagers on which he owes $292 in taxes, according to the indictment.

Also charged in the indictment were James Salome Jr., 41, an El Paso real estate broker; his brother, Norman Salome, 39, vice-president of an El Paso bootmaking company; and Joseph Hoggan, a 36-year-old El Paso man. Preston, the Salomes and Hoggan also were charged with violating federal wagering tax statutes, according to the indictment.

Preston, an Amarillo resident who lists his occupation as professional gambler, was arrested Thursday afternoon in El Paso by FBI agents. Roberts and the Salome brothers turned themselves in to the U.S. marshal after the indictments were returned. All four were freed on $25,000 bond.

Hoggan was out of town, one official said.

An Amarillo district judge Wednesday dismissed three-year-old gambling charges against Preston and another Amarillo man on the recommendation of the district attorney. Judge Temple Driver of Wichita Falls had earlier granted a defense motion to suppress evidence on the grounds it was obtained with a faulty search warrant.

The federal gambling investigation was instigated after El Paso sheriff's deputies found "bookmaking paraphernalia" in an apartment while looking for a stolen television set, the indictment said.

Preston won $60,000 at the World Series of Poker in Las Vegas in 1973. Roberts was named world champion in 1975.

The judge earlier had twice urged Walsh to end his cross-examination, saying at one point, "We've got 150 more (plaintiff) witnesses to go, and the state has more than 200."

Attorneys have estimated the trial will take as long as three months to complete.

Babcock, who testified he had evaluated numerous prison system medical programs, was hired by the federal government to inspect the one at TDC.

The Justice Department has intervened in the case on the side of the prisoners suing the TDC on grounds that poor prison facilities and inadequate medical care constitutes cruel and unusual punishment and violates their civil rights.

Federal judge ends testimony in suit against Texas prisons

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge, saying it was the first time he had done so in 10 years on the bench, cut off the lengthy cross-examination of a witness in the trial of a civil rights lawsuit against the Texas Department of Corrections.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice told Assistant Attorney General Harry Walsh Thursday to end his questioning of Dr. Kenneth Babcock.

Babcock is former executive director of the Joint Commission on Hospital Accreditation, a national group that decides on the adequacy of the nation's hospitals.

In earlier testimony, he had described TDC medical facilities as "shocking" and "inadequate."

The judge earlier had twice urged Walsh to end his cross-examination, saying at one point, "We've got 150 more (plaintiff) witnesses to go, and the state has more than 200."

BRIDGE Obedient opening lead often costly

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When you're teaching opening leads to a beginner, you always start with his partner's suit. "If your partner has bid, lead his suit. He may have bid the suit for the sole purpose of telling you what to lead." This sound advice is exactly what every beginner should be told, but it doesn't apply to more experienced players.

Opening lead — ♠ 8

West obediently led the eight of clubs. His partner had bid clubs, and West as a law-abiding citizen.

Declarer took the ace of clubs, cashed the ace of spades and ruffed a spade in dummy. He returned to his hand with the king of hearts to ruff another spade and then cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart.

Now South proceeded to ruff spades in the dummy and hearts in his hand. Neither defender could do anything effective to stop South. East eventually got the ace of trumps and a club, but these tricks were not enough to defeat the contract.

INDICATION

North's refusal to stay in notrump indicated that dummy would show up with a singleton. West should have led a trump to reduce dummy's ruffing power.

East would take the ace of trumps and return a trump. South would struggle on for a few minutes but would eventually go down at least one trick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S Q 7 6; H Q J 9 5 2; D 5 3 2; C 8 7. Why do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. Despite your excellent trump support this is a woefully weak hand, and you can afford only a weak response.

Southwest wins Amarillo, Beaumont flight permits

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Beaumont-Port Arthur and Amarillo will be added to Southwest Airlines' flight schedules within six months, following action Thursday by the Texas Aeronautics Commission.

The commission gave the intrastate carrier permission to add the cities to its nine-city service area. Flights must begin from the added cities within six months.

The Amarillo routes were opposed by Braniff International, which also serves that city. The Beaumont-Port Arthur routes were uncontested.

The airline plans non-stop flights between Amarillo-Dallas and Beaumont-Dallas. Direct flights would be offered between Amarillo-Austin and Amarillo-Houston. Connection service will be available between Amarillo and San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Harlingen and Beaumont.

Beaumont passengers also could travel to Amarillo, Lubbock, Midland-Odessa and El Paso.

Herbert Kelleher, Southwest general counsel, praised the commission for allowing the airline to compete in the Texas market.

Southwest expects to carry 451,000 additional passengers in the first year on operation on the Beaumont and Amarillo routes. Kelleher said the airline anticipates $8.5 million in additional revenue and $2.4 million in profits.

Six new jets will be in use by December 1979 to accommodate the additional flights, he added.

China now modernizing its extensive railroad system

By TERRY A. ANDERSON

TOKYO (AP) — The key to China's industrialization effort is its rail network, and Peking is mounting a crash effort to modernize the system, with Japanese help, according to Japan National Railway officials.

"The Chinese are in a big hurry," said Norio Tejima, director of JNR's International Department, in an interview. Tejima has visited China twice in the past year to talk with Chinese railroad officials.

"Increasing transportation is very basic (to the industrialization plan)," he said. "They have given it the highest priority."

Nearly 70 percent of China's freight traffic goes by rail, Tejima explained. Since China will pay for the industrialization, especially foreign plants and technology, with coal, oil and other raw materials, Peking must have some way to get those materials to the coast.

"For instance, they want to increase coal production by 400 percent," Tejima said. "To move that much coal, they will need much greater transport capacity."

"Chinese highways are very primitive. Chinese trucks are small — nearly all four or five tons. There's not enough canal or river transport. So they are concentrating on the railroads," the JNR official said.

Peking is turning to Japan, owner of one of the world's most advanced train systems, for help in its ambitious plan.

Some officials and businessmen here hope that Japanese companies can land big contracts involving construction or supply of machinery or materials. But Tejima said Japanese help would be limited to supplying technology and training.

"There's very little chance of Japan taking part in direct construction," he said. "The Chinese plan to do that by themselves."

He said Chinese railway technology was already quite good, especially in bridge and roadway construction. The Chinese have been building 625 miles of railway per year since 1949, and now have an estimated 31,250 miles — 50 percent of it double-tracked. The United States has about 220,000 miles of rail lines, and Japan 13,125 miles.

Tejima said the Chinese railroads carried 1.5 billion tons of freight traffic a year now, plus about 950 million passengers.

"All the provincial capitals and some autonomous regions are linked by rail, and lines to Tibet and remaining rural areas are being constructed," Tejima said.

"The Chinese are placing the most emphasis now on electrification of their lines near Peking, and speeding up traffic," Tejima said.

"Their target is to increase the number of trains as much as possible and to introduce as much automation as they can."

He said Peking apparently wanted to boost speed by about 40 or 50 percent, from the present average of 35 miles per hour for freight trains and 45 miles per hour for passenger trains to as much as 70 mph for freight and 70 mph for passengers.

In addition, the Chinese will try to electrify their lines, automate marshaling yards, and computerize route and traffic control.

"They want to do all this soon," Tejima said.

"They're trying to move too fast," he added.

"First, for large-scale modernization, you must train staff — difficult to do in a hurry. Also, for electrification of lines, you need power. There's not enough now and most Chinese homes only have one or two lights. While China has a lot of undeveloped water power, it takes time to build the infrastructure such as power plants and transmission lines."

Senior citizens oppose tax plan

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — The executive board of the Texas Senior Citizens Association has voted 12 to 2 to oppose the so-called tax-relief amendment on the Nov. 7 ballot.

The vote is significant because the proposed amendment provides benefits for the elderly.

"I learned a long time ago that when you're not sure or you don't understand a bill, vote against it," said Doug Porter of the Bexar County Senior Citizens Association. "Once it is approved, it is hard to change. You never hurt yourself by voting no. It can be brought back next time."

The "family farm" amendment was changed to include "corporate farmer" in the provision to tax agricultural land on the basis of productivity.

It would allow the Legislature to redefine "homestead."

The Legislature would have the authority to make the increased homestead exemptions for the elderly dependent upon income.

Geologist communicates toll free by air waves

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

Banks Campbell, Midland geologist, likes to keep in touch with the world.

In fact, Campbell turns to the ham radio setup inside his small office downtown, when time permits, and actually communicates with friends around the world!

It's all done through the miracle of radio airwaves.

"Actually I got into ham radio because of the high tariff I was paying Ma Bell!" joked the whiskered scientist.

Campbell is one of 87 members of the Midland American Radio Club who communicate by the airwaves for fun and who remain ready to help authorities in case of emergencies.

"Amateur radio is a lot of fun," said Campbell. "It's a hobby I've had for two years now."

He stressed that ham radio operators perform many public services by providing communications in emergencies and by allowing relatives to keep in touch in times of tragedy.

In such capacities, he said ham radio operators are part of the nation's civil defense system by belonging to the Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service.

"We would all function as a communications outlet for whatever is necessary," said Campbell.

He's one of thousands of amateur radio operators licensed to communicate by voice and Morse Code around the world.

"There is no limit to how far I can communicate. It just depends upon conditions such as time of day, radio bands and frequencies."

Campbell said becoming a ham radio operator involves plenty of hard work to get a license from the federal government.

In fact, getting an operator's license is just the beginning.

Enthusiasts can advance from novice status to technician, general, advanced and extra, he said.

He admits ham radio gear can be fairly expensive, but swears it sure beats paying long distance phone bills.

Actually, Campbell said, for a spell he communicated with his son, Pete, when he lived Dallas. Now Pete lives in Midland, too.

"It pays off," he said.

He said the local ham radio club is mainly to keep ham radio enthusiasts in touch with each other.

His own station call letters are WBSZIG. The same series is Campbell's own station and operator's license number, too.

Each year, Campbell and thousands of ham radio operators worldwide conduct a field day in which participants test their ability to "operate under adverse conditions in case of emergencies."

Campbell sports a portable two-meter rig radio which he often carries with him around town.

He also has a highly sophisticated combination receiver and transformer ham radio setup which he uses at the office.

A Midlander since 1955, Campbell said ham radio "is a lot of fun and a self-training process."

He has communicated with people as far away as Australia and as near-by as Abilene.

"Australia is about as close as you can get to speaking with people on the opposite side of the world."

There's no mystery to being a ham radio operator, he said. "You just point your antennae and the result is caused by the 'great circle route!'"

Although he keeps a log of his conversations, Campbell said he really had no idea of how many people he's actually talked to since starting his ham radio hobby.

Originally from Crowell, Texas, Campbell graduated from Texas A&M University in 1942 with a geology degree before entering the U.S. Air Force for a few years during World War II.

He flew in B-17s in Italy, returning home with the Air Medal, Distinguished Flying Cross and combat ribbons.

He then went to work for the state of Tennessee for ten years in their Division of Geology.

He's been in Midland during the boom days of the 1950s, the less affluent days of the mid-1960s and the boom days of the mid-1970s.

"I've been here ever since the boom years, but I can remember back in the mid-1960s when the oil industry was pretty sick."

"Oil companies were moving out of Midland and people were getting laid off. I worked at any number of jobs because I figured sooner or later the oil companies had to come back to Midland because the oil is here," he said.

He has worked approximately 11 years for Permian Basin Sample Lab here. "It's extremely interesting work."

When Campbell grows weary of eyeing rocks and making graphs of their contents, he turns to his ham radio.

"Anyone who likes to ratchetjaw (talk) ought to get into ham radio!"

Ham radio operator Banks Campbell works as a geologist for a Midland sampling firm.

But will they leave?

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The Toledo Troopers, the perennial power of the National Women's Football League, are opening their locker room to male reporters after their playoff game with the Columbus Pacesetters on Saturday night.

"It's the first time we've opened our locker room to the men," said Ken Dippman, a spokesman for the Troopers, who have lost just one game in eight years in the NWFL.

He said reporters would be granted several minutes immediately after the game to interview the Toledo players. Then the locker room will be cleared of the newsmen to permit the players to shower.

"Maybe some of the girls will have to physically throw the men out," said Dippman.

UTPB ready for fifth anniversary celebration

ODESSA — The University of Texas of the Permian Basin is gearing up for a week of activities for its fifth anniversary celebration.

A week of festivities is on tap Oct. 30 through Nov. 4 beginning with workshops for high school and junior college students on Monday and ending with a festive Novemberfest complete with outdoor music, arts and crafts and fun-filled events on Saturday, university officials said.

UTPB President V.R. Cardozier said events of the fifth anniversary celebration are planned as a way of saying thank you to area citizens who have been involved in the development of the university during its first five years.

Cardozier noted enrollment at UTPB is up again this fall. Enrollment has increased by almost 50 percent in the past five years and more than 1,600 degrees have been awarded.

"We think, on the balance, the past five years have been good ones, and we'd like to encourage people from throughout the Permian Basin to help us celebrate," he said.

The week-long extravaganza will begin Monday, Oct. 30, with an educational experience designed with the high school and junior college students in mind.

Workshops representing various academic disciplines are being planned, according to Dr. Russell Johnson, associate professor of pedagogical studies and workshop coordinator.

Traditional Halloween treats are on tap for Tuesday, Halloween Day.

Woody Kupper, director of student life and athletics, said the major events of the day will be a pumpkin carving for "carving artists" and a horror movie for the Frankenstein and Dracula set.

Long-haired music and red-hot chill will form the winning combination Wednesday as UTPB's top chill makers join forces with a local string quartet. An open invitation is being extended to area service organizations for lunch and entertainment as the mid-week activity builds up to the finale Saturday.

Thursday's activity will feature the university's fourth annual mass communications seminar. The annual event will bring in high school and junior college students from throughout the Permian Basin for newspaper, yearbook and electronic media workshops. Friday will be a day of rest in preparation for the Saturday climax of the week's events — a day-long Novemberfest with "the works."

Novemberfest will offer continuous musical entertainment with area school bands, dancers, bluegrass bands and old-time fiddlers, in addition to other musical groups in the Permian Basin.

Booths will be arranged on the mesa area extending around the entire second floor of the UTPB main building.

Displays of plants and flowers, crafts, art work and other hobbies are expected to be included in the fair.

"We're encouraging both on- and off-campus groups to participate in the fair," Kupper said. Interested persons or organizations should contact the Office of News and Information at 367-2336 for additional information.

Several athletic events also are being planned throughout the day. The final event of the celebration will bring alumni back to their alma mater for a homecoming dance Saturday night.

Argentines turn to church

By RICHARD BOUDREAU

LUJAN, Argentina (AP) — Young Argentines, disillusioned by the country's fratricidal politics, are turning to religion with mass expressions of faith and enthusiasm once shown for their world champion soccer team and the late political messiah Juan Peron.

The political strife has "opened our eyes and made us look beyond politics to something more transcendental, something that won't fail," says Sergio Ruben, a young organizer of a tions to religious orders are up from 27 in 1972 to more than 200 now.

As in the rest of Latin America, fewer than 10 percent of Argentine Catholics — who number 24 million of the country's 26 million people — go to mass. But priests say attendance is rising slowly.

Cardinal Juan Carlos Aramburu, the archbishop of Buenos Aires, told the pilgrim horde at an outdoor mass here that although the church "suffers the attacks, problems and torments of the world, it has inside a divine force and life."

Indeed, the Argentine church in recent years has suffered some of its bloodiest worldly torment.

Church sources say at least 13 priests and seminarians have been killed, another eight are imprisoned, six priests and nuns have disappeared, and countless dozens have fled Argentina since the March 1976 military coup, led by generals who themselves avow religion and enjoy the support of right-wing Catholics.

However, the persecution has failed to rally Argentina's bishops into the strong opposition force posed by their counterparts in neighboring military-ruled Chile.

Many who marched to Lujan said they were tired of listening to ambiguous preaching about the situation. "This pilgrimage has nothing to do with politics. It's a pure expression of faith," said Roberto Vlagas, who lives across the street from a church but never goes.

Amy Allen, left, and Todd Cunningham, both fourth-grade students at St. Roch's School in Indianapolis, Ind., show how they wrote letters of congratulations to newly-elected Pope John Paul II. Many of the letters asked the Pope to visit and one even urged him to call collect. (AP Laserphoto) massive march to a Lujan shrine. A quieter resurgence of religion also is filling churches in this Roman Catholic country in the face of difficulties, replenishing seminaries and religious orders, and, according to many priests, drawing more people to counseling on marriage, first communion and other sacraments.

But the more visible upsurge of "popular religion" has been led by young Catholics who rarely attend mass, but who are flocking to pilgrimages to patron shrines, prompting the church to accept the affairs as acts of faith rather than mere secular festivals of superstition.

The biggest such procession ever held in Argentina came a fortnight ago when 800,000 young Catholics walked the 43 miles from Buenos Aires in a day and a night to thank Our Lady of Lujan, the national patron saint, for favors granted — a marriage saved, a job gained, a child's failing eyesight restored.

The turnout for this fourth annual youth march, larger than the others combined, was a sign of the times as Argentines, coping with three-digit inflation, lingering terrorism and strict military rule, seek inner strength or outward release.

More people, about four million a year, now visit the Gothic basilica here than the casinos and beaches of Mar del Plata, Argentina's favorite resort.

Students also are leaving the universities, once recruiting grounds for pro-Peronists guerrillas, to become priests. The number of seminary students, after dropping from 631 in 1960 to 343 in 1973, shot to 1,400 last year, according to church figures. Voca-

30 years later, Ronald Eyre still going through his 'religious phase'

NEW YORK (AP) — British playwright Ronald Eyre recalls as a teenager "a phase of asking endless questions; about God, belief, what I was here for, how things started, what goodness is, what evil is, what happens when you die."

That period, Eyre says today, was brushed aside by kindly relatives as "his religious phase."

"Well, it's 30 years later and I'm still going through my religious phase, if that's the right word for it," Eyre declares. "I still want to know who I am, what I'm here for, what's real, what isn't real, what I should worship, and I want somebody, some teacher, some teaching to tell me."

What better leader than Ronald Eyre for "The Long Search," a 13-part examination of the world's religions now being broadcast on Public Broadcasting Service stations.

The series, which began in September with installments on the Protestant spirit in this country and Buddhism in India, continues this weekend with an examination of orthodox Christianity.

"The Long Search" took the articulate and witty Eyre, a self-described "lapsed Methodist," on a 150,000-mile journey that included visits to 14 countries.

"The usual way of doing a program like this is to invite somebody we call an expert to discuss these weighty subjects," Eyre says. "The trouble is, it's difficult to find anybody who can be regarded as an authority on even one of the religions, much less them all.

"This assignment required somebody like me who was prepared to be experimented on."

"The Long Search," in succeeding weeks, examines religion in Indonesia, Judaism, Hinduism, Islam, Catholicism, Buddhism in Japan, African religions, Taoism in China, and alternative lifestyles in California.

"Based on your travels," Eyre was asked by a friend on his return to London, "what religion that you studied impressed you most?"

"Come now, you know I'm not going to answer that," was the reply. "One of the main points I try to make in the series is that there are no pat answers to such questions. There are just more questions."

The 13th chapter, called "Loose Ends," is a series of "between you and me" questions posed by Eyre.

Southern Baptists to consider church-state guides, budget

AUSTIN — Church-state guidelines and a $31 million missions budget will be considered by the state's Southern Baptists at the 93rd annual session of the Baptist General Convention of Texas in Austin Oct. 31 through Nov. 2.

About 6,000 laypeople and ministers are expected to attend sessions of the annual conference at Austin Municipal Auditorium and Civic Center. The convention sermon will be delivered by Jimmy R. Allen, pastor of San Antonio's First Baptist Church who is current president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

The convention theme is "With All Boldness," and relates to the Southern Baptist plan to present the gospel to every person in the world by the year 2000.

A Church-State Study Committee will recommend updated guidelines on church-state relations for Texas Baptist institutions. One recommendation will be that the Baptist General Convention of Texas declare opposition to government restrictions "that adversely affect the ability of the institutions to fulfill their distinctive purposes as Christian institutions."

Messengers (delegates) from many of the 4,300 Southern Baptist churches and missions in the state will vote on a proposed $31 million cooperative program budget for 1979. The budget includes $10.9 million for home and foreign missions and Christian education, and $20 million for Texas Baptist missions and church growth, colleges and universities, hospitals, children's homes and other special ministries.

Convention speakers at the Austin conclave will include James H. Landes, Texas Baptist executive director; Milton E. Cunningham, Baptist General Convention of Texas president and pastor of Westbury Baptist Church at Houston, and Grady C. Cothen, president of the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board at Nashville.

Singl-Aires schedule weekend outing

The Singl-Aires, an ecumenical organization of single young adults at First United Methodist Church, is planning a weekend outing to McKittrick Canyon in Guadalupe Mountains National Park.

The trip is planned for Oct. 27-28 and all young adults in the Midland area who enjoy hiking are invited to make the trip.

The group will depart Midland Friday afternoon, spending the night in Carlsbad, N.M. The group will spend all day Oct. 28 at McKittrick Canyon before returning home that night.

Persons interested in signing up for the trip may obtain full information by telephoning the First United Methodist Church office, 682-3701, or D.A. Harral at 697-5904.

Dr. Harold W. Morris

Nazarene leader schedules visit to Midland church

First Church of the Nazarene, 1208 W. Wall Ave., will be host to Dr. Harold W. Morris of New Mexico during special services scheduled next week.

Dr. Morris, superintendent of the New Mexico District of the Nazarene Church, will be in the pulpit for services beginning Tuesday and continuing through Oct. 29. The special events will begin at 7:30 p.m. each weekday, with concluding services on Oct. 29 scheduled for 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Dr. Morris is former pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene of El Paso, a post he held for 23 years. He is widely known as an evangelist and camp meeting speaker.

The public has an invitation from the Rev. Harold Quarles, pastor of Midland's First Nazarene Church, to attend the nightly services next week and hear the guest speaker. Special music will be presented at each service, Quarles said.

Methodist Home VP to visit Odessa

ODESSA — The Rev. Bill Matthews, vice president of the Methodist Mission Home at San Antonio, will be an Odessa visitor this weekend.

Matthews will be in Odessa for the opening of MAPLE House, a West Texas outreach of the Methodist Mission Home. He will speak at Odessa's Asbury United Methodist Church at a dinner at 6:30 p.m. today, and will be in the pulpit for the church's 8:45 and 11 a.m. worship services on Sunday. The church is at 4001 E. University Blvd.

Matthews, a graduate of Texas Christian University, Perkins School of Theology of Southern Methodist University, and The University of Texas, has served as today's and Sunday's pastor of churches in Texas and New Mexico and has been a Methodist missionary to the Philippines and the Fiji Islands. The public is invited to hear him speak at today's and Sunday's events.

Kermit Johnson

Johnson to serve as evangelist at Trinity Baptist

Kermit Johnson of Stephenville will be guest evangelist at special services next week at Trinity Baptist Church, 3308 W. Cuthbert Ave.

The revival emphasis will begin Monday and continue through Sunday, Oct. 29, said Ron Bates, host pastor.

Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. daily, Bates said. The revival marks the 39th anniversary of Trinity Baptist Church and the first anniversary of Bates as minister of the congregation.

Johnson, the guest preacher, is minister of the Washington Street Baptist Church at Stephenville. He is in wide demand as an evangelist for revivals and special meetings throughout this region, and the public is invited to hear him in the services at Trinity Baptist Church next week.

A Midland minister has been awarded the doctor of ministry degree at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

He is the Rev. Thomas E. Nelson, pastor of St. Paul United Methodist Church of Midland.

Nelson, now in his fifth year as pastor of the Midland church, holds a B.A. degree from McMurry College at Abilene and received his bachelor of divinity degree from Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University. He holds a master's degree from Scarritt College.

Nelson, an ordained minister of the United Methodist Church, has served as pastor of Methodist churches in Colorado City, Amarillo, Memphis and Olton. He and Mrs. Nelson are the parents of three sons and have two grandchildren. Mrs. Nelson is a teacher in Midland's San Jacinto Junior High School.

The doctor of ministry program at Vanderbilt is designed to help pastors attain excellence in the ministerial field and to develop further skills, knowledge and attitudes which are essential to the ministry. The program undertaken by Nelson included 30 semester hours of advanced study in the area of pastoral care and counseling.

Nelson's doctor of ministry degree was earned through Vanderbilt University's School of Divinity.
