No fence-straddlers due in this hot race

DALLAS (AP) - While politicians mapped strategies in taking positions on the "Tortilla Curtain," a proposed fence along parts of the United States-Mexico border, Texas' wacky chiliheads made sport of the whole thing.

So, on Nov. 4, the world's first "Mexican fence-climbing contest" will be held as part of the events preceding the world championship chili cookoff at the West Texas town of Terlin-

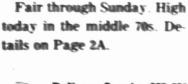

The fence climbing will be featured in the final phase of the Great Comanche Run, a 100mile trek through the Big Bend, said Thomas J. Tierney, the run's grand marshal. "An eight-foot section of fence will be erected at the finish line," Tierney said. "Entrants will then have the option of climbing over the fence, crawling or digging under the fence or cutting the fence with wirecutters.

Each contestant will be given a sombrero to simulate a Mexican National, he said. Then, tongue-in-cheek, he said the event will "aid the federal government in a massive consumer test of the viability of erecting a fence between Mexico and the United States.

"Basically, most chili eaters are independent and opposed to the idea of erecting a fence between the United States and Mexico. It might adversely af-fect our supply of chili peppers and, more importantaly, it's downright unfriendly.

Carter seeks freeze on non-defense spending

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter told his top budget and economic advisers Friday he wants to freeze growth of non-defense spending next year, officials said.

Such a decision, which would involve the administration's budget projections for fiscal 1980, could mean shrinkage of social programs and benefit payments. The current fiscal year will end Sept. 30, 1979.

Administration officials, who asked got to be named, said Carter exempted the Pentagon from his proposed spending freeze because he is committed to increasing U.S. spending on North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces by 3 percent a year, after allowing for inflation.

"What it amounts to is virtually a freeze on real growth in federal spending, other than high-priority defense programs," said a White House official who also requested anonymi-

The administration officials said Carter was adamant during the 90-mioute meeting about controlling infla tion. The president was said to have vowed to again resort to using his veto power if necessary to keep Congress from adding to spending proposals which the administration is due to submit in January

"He said he's got to get the word out to has agency heads and his personal advisers," one official said.

Another quoted Carter as saying 'he didn't want to see any memos coming in saying, 'This proposal will only add a fraction of a percent to the inflation rate."

Republicans condemn Carter plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fistful of Republican Party regulars used national television Friday night to condemn Carter administration economic programs, with party Chairman Bill Brock calling the president's policies little more than a "quick fix."

In introducing the taped broadcast, Brock said, "Inflation isn't a partisan problem." But he joined former President Gerald R. Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan in labeling the current Congress and Carter as big-spending Democrats. Brock contended the $18.7 billion tax bill President Carter has promised to sign isn't enough to overcome the nation's economic woes. "While we believe tax cuts can restore economic growth, to stop inflation you must reduce federal spending," Brock said.

Ford and Reagan both blamed the 20-month-old Carter administration for the current 10 percent inflation rate calculated on an annual basis.

TESCO's 8.4 percent boost now in effect in Midland

Midland electricity customers as of Friday are paying 8.4 percent more for power due to the recently approved $37.9 million system-wide increase in revenue for Texas Electric

"This method assures that all customers are being treated fairly under the new rates. Barclay said all residential customers will see an increase in their electric rates and that increases will be larger in summer than in winter.

Under the new rates, a customer using 750 kilowatt-hours in the summer will see his bill increase from about $30 to about $33, while his winter bill will run about $24 for the same

"The American people are getting resentful," Ford said, noting the inflation rate had more than doubled since he left office.

Right-to-work forces seek foothold in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) -After securing their grip on the Sunbelt and the West, right-to-work forces are in Missouri waging their biggest battle. Victory could mean a foothold in the industrial North.

The fight is over a proposal on the Nov. 7 ballot that would guarantee workers would not have to join or pay dues to unions. It is an emotional issue in the nation's eighth largest industrial state, where a quarter of the two million-member labor force is Organized labor, which failed in an effort to persuade the courts to stop the vote, is battling the referendum with a fervor that suggests a life-ordeath struggle.

The forecast calls for warmer afternoons — temperature highs in the middle 70s. The low tonight will be a nippy 40ish, said a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

"Because of Missouri's industrial size, I would look for right-to-work to try another industrial state - probably in the Midwest — if it passes here," said Ken Worley, the regional head of the United Auto Workers. "But they're not going to get that

Passage of the referendum would prohibit employers from making union membership or payment of dues necessary for a job. In most states, labor contracts can have "union shop" or "agency shop" A union shop requires all workers in a particular classification to join a union to hold their job. An agency shop does not require membership but an employee must pay the union a fee equal to regular dues, which unions say is fair because union and non-union workers are covered by the same contract.

The last big ballot fights over rightto-work laws came in 1958, when ballots in seven states, including Ohio and California, contained such proposals. Right-to-work won only in Kansas and since then only two states, by legislative action, have approved such laws. The Indiana legislature repealed one in 1965.

Organized labor mounted efforts in the 1960s to repeal the section of the Taft-Hartley Act that allows state right-to-work laws, but failed to win.

It abandoned a new repeal effort last year when President Carter said he would sign, but not work for, a repeal

Gov. Joseph Teasdale, a Democrat, and nearly all political leaders of this heavily-Democratic state have opposed it. But supporters are relying on small businessmen and others they say are ready to "revolt against the concentration of power in big business, big labor, big government." Labor, trying to build a $2 millionplus campaign treasury, has gotten donations from unions in 35 states.

Ghosts, goblins, ghouls aplenty in Lee Chorale's Haunted House

Lee High School Chorale members disguised as ghosts, goblins and ghouls are having Halloween fun for three nights in "The Haunted House with the Legend. The spooking starts tonight, and the Lee singers are looking for volunteers to scare. "For a spooky evening, visit The Haunted House and test your nerves against the creepy creatures and other eerie things that go 'bump' in the night," said spook promoter Alice Dufee, a parent who is helping out in the chorale's fun-raising project.

The spook house will open at 7 p.m. today and at that same time Monday and Tuesday. The house closes at 10

Suit filed against apartment owner

The U.S. Department of Justice Friday filed a civil suit in Federal District Court in Midland charging an apartment owner with violating the Fair Housing Act of 1968 by allegedly engaging in discriminatory rental policies.

The suit asks for a court order requiring Keith D. Berger, owner of the Alpine Apartments, a 28-unit complex located at 502 W. George St., to correct the effect of the alleged discriminatory practices.

The haunted-house creatures rest on Sunday. Admission to the house at Avenue is 75 cents. The tricks of those who do the spooking may be offset by the friendly night owls who will be serving treats from the concession stands.

Weatherford Street and Mississippi

Within the confines of the haunted house also will be a resident gypsy fortune teller, Mrs. Durfee said in a news release.

The money the chorale members raise in the three-night spook session will go toward financing the chorale's spring trip. Chorale director is Doug Browne.

An FBI spokesman said the robbers, who wore rubber masks and surgical gloves, first apparently accosted the disbursing officer in his quarters 20 miles from the ship. The officer said they forced him to reveal the combination to the ship's safe. One gunman then drove to the USS Dixon while the other guarded the officer's quarters, 20 miles from the ship, the FBI said.

The disbursing officer, Ensign Brian John Bogart, 23, was in stable condition at Naval Hospital. He was injured severely about the head, the Leadership seminar planned

Gardens Assembly of God, 2901 W. Kansas Ave., today will hold a special leadership seminar for Sunday school

The seminar will begin at 9 a.m. and sessions will continue until 4 p.m., said the Rev. Paul Coxe, host pastor. All class sessions will be open to the public, he said.

Featured in the training sessions will be the Rev. J. Don George, pastor of Calvary Temple at Irving; the Rev. Jerry Roberts, pastor of Lubbock's First Assembly of God; the Rev. Tom Lakey, district secretary-treasurer and Sunday school director of the Assemblies of God for West Texas. Also participating in the training sessions will be Pastor Coxe and the Rev. L. B. Keener, a representative of the Assemblies of God Gospel Publishing House at Springfield, Mo., publishers and distributors of Sunday school materials used by units of the Assembly of God denomination.

The seminar will be under the direction of the Rev. Wayne Ziegler, area of the West Texas District of the Assemblies of God. Ziegler also is associate pastor of First Assembly of God at Odessa.

Women's groups of Gardens Assembly of God will serve a luncheon to seminar participants and guests at noon today at the church.

Church plans homecoming events

Special homecoming events are planned Sunday at First Assembly of God, 100 W. Wadley Ave. The Rev. Haskell Rogers of Lubbock, West Texas District superintendent of the Assemblies of God, will be a special guest at the services. Other special guests will include the Rev. Warren Newberry, missionary to Africa and currently a member of the staff of Southwestern Assemblies of God College at Waxahachie, and the Rev. Gary Jones, a missionary who recently returned from Nicaragua. Both missionaries and their families are supported in their work by the First Assembly of God.

According to the Rev. J. W. Farmer, host pastor, District Supt. Rogers will speak at the 9:45 a.m. meeting of the auditorium class. The speaker at the church's 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. worship services will be the Rev. R. I. Stewart of Houston, a former pastor of the Midland church.

A luncheon will be held at the church Sunday noon. All members, former members and friends of the church are invited to attend the special homecoming services.

There was no explanation how the robbery was carried off aboard the ship, which contains sophisticated equipment for the nuclear subs.

Navy investigators were questioning all 1,100 crewmen aboard the ship, the supply ship for a group of nuclear attack vessels.

"It certainly looks at this time like an inside job," said Lt. Doug Rein, public affairs officer at the Ballast Point base, "but we aren't necessarily looking exclusively at military personnel. The ship recently finished an overhaul at the Naval Station, and hundreds of civilians were given special security passes to come on Rein said the cash had been in the safe for payday next Monday.

Baby found unharmed; Police seek kidnapper kidnapper who kept his 19-month-old victim in fresh diapers and fled without the $50,000 ransom he demanded was hunted by police and the FBI

Forty-eight hours after she was plucked from her crib in the affluent Grand Rapids suburb of Hudsonville. Karyn VandeBunte was found bewildered but unharmed in a nearby motel Thursday night.

Authorities said Friday they had no suspects. The kidnapper had threatened to "sell her out of state," authorities said.

Karyn's father had dropped a cardboard box containing the $50,000 on a freeway overpass early Thursday. FBI agents and Grand Rapids police pursued a suspicious car on a back road for 10 miles in rain at 90 mph speeds, but the car eluded the authorities and the money was never picked

When she was found near a motel vending machine, Karyn had a note pinned to her clothing that said "Hi! Help Me!" and included the phone number of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert VandeBunte

"She was just looking around with her big blue eyes, wondering what was going on," said detective Del South of the Ottawa County Sheriff's Department. Police said Karyn, who was tired but unharmed, was wearing fresh diapers when she was found.

Calmly sucking on a pacifier, she was returned to her home where she performed somersaults on the living room carpet before relatives and neighbors who had kept an aroundthe-clock vigil.

VandeBunte and the FBI thanked local news organizations, which had agreed to withhold news of the incident until Karyn's safety was no longer in question.

Authorities said the kidnapping began Tuesday evening when Mr. and Mrs. VandeBunte were out. Karyn, asleep in a crib, was being watched by a 14-year-old babysitter and a visiting girlfriend.

A man identifying himself as a friend of Robert VandeBunte forced his way into the house, ordered the girls into the basement at gunpoint, tied them up with clothesline and took

Mrs. VandeBunte came home an hour later, found the girls, who were unharmed, and called police.

NURSERY

After receiving two ransom calls, VandeBunte drove his car Wednesday night to a restaurant and was directed to a second restaurant. There, another call directed him to an overpass south of Grand Rapids.

FBI agents and local police watched VandeBunte as he dropped off the money. A car drove up but suddenly sped off after the driver apparently spotted the surveillance vehicles.

Agents continued to watch the drop site until late Thursday morning. When nobody showed, the money box

Carter signs into law Humphrey-Hawkins bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Evoking the spirit of Hubert Humphrey, President Carter on Friday signed into law a symbolic version of the Humphrey-Hawkins "full-employment" bill and committed the government to the goals for which the late senator bat-

Carter declared that, with the bill's signing, "this nation is putting its long-term economic goal of full employment with stable prices into

Despite its name, the bill is not the same measure the Minnesota senator co-sponsored, a bill committing government resources to a full-employment economy.

As finally passed, it contains only general, non-binding goals of reducing unemployment to 4 percent of the work force and slashing inflation to 3 percent by 1983.

The president noted that the signing marked a tribute to Humphrey, who died of cancer in January.

"I think everyone agrees he's with us in spirit," said Carter. "He knew how important it is to the social and economic fabric of our society to have everyone employed."

Congress approved the bill on Oct. 15, the last day of its current session. But the final version was substantially watered down from the version originally introduced by Humphrey.

The Senate added the inflation target, which was not part of the original measure. Unemployment currently is running at a 6 percent rate and inflation at about 10 percent a year.

Flanking Carter as he signed the bill before an overflow crowd in the East Room of the White House were Humphrey's widow and successor, Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn., and co-sponsor Rep. Augustus Hawkins, Carter also signed into law a bill extending the government's huge public jobs program for another four years. The Comprehensive Employment and Training Act extension will create jobs for about 660,000 people over the next 12 months at a cost of about $11 billion.

More than 200 people, including representatives of organized labor, urban coalitions and minority groups, gave Carter a standing ovation as he signed the two bills.

"I have a very full heart today, a lot of emotion today," Sen. Humphrey said. "I am very, very proud to have been part of this success."

She said the bill was a major legislative goal of her husband's before his death and now has become a tribute to his memory

"I think this Humphrey-Hawkins bills is the only bill having the distinction of having his name," she said.

Rep. Hawkins said the late senator would have enjoyed the exuberance of this occasion.

Houston regents OK new budget

HOUSTON (AP) - A record budget of $103 million for fiscal 1978-79 has been approved by the executive committee of the University of Houston board of regents.

The proposed budget, which must be approved by the full board, is 5.5 percent more than last year's $98

The expenditures include $85 million for the central campus, with $27.8 million allocated for faculty salaries; $8.7 million for UH Clear Lake City, $6.6 million for UH Downtown; and $1.9 million for UH-Victoria.

'Tortilla Curtain' could be a problem: Griffin Bell FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - The "Tortilla Curtain," a 12-foot-high fence to be built along the Mexican border between Juarez and El Paso could be a problem if it is designed to injure those who climb it, according to U.S. Attorney General Griffin If the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service builds a fence "that would cut your toes off if you climbed it," it wouldn't be acceptable, Bell said Thursday following a speech at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary honoring the seminary's new president, Dr. Russell H. Dilday Jr. 'The problem is not the fence, but the kind of fence," Bell said. He said the American people would not accept a fence "that would be like a trap that would injure people. But he said he understands the original plans for the $1.4 million fence are being modified to delete features that could injure persons climbing the Last month Bell visited Arlington and called te illegal alien situation the No. 1 problem facing the Justice Department. But he played down the role of the "Tortilla Curtain" in solving the problem.

Bell said Texans tend to think of the illegal alien problem as involving only Mexicans, but he said aliens from "many, many countries" live and work in the United States.

He said he had proposed some new laws that would possibly help control the problem of illegal aliens, and had heard of the fence only recently

NO PLACE LIKE HOME

Sunday was a special day, and all activities were centered around the church and the home. Come back to the present a moment. The Church was home to you then! It can be your home now; a place of worship where the heart remembers and rejoices.

Oh, my aching head! 10 crewmen rescued from downed aircraft

Texas farmers fear politics will kill bill

WACO, Texas (AP) - The president of the Texas Farmers Union said many members, already disgruntled with President Carter's policies on beef import quotas, fear a bill that would regulate the quotas according to domestic production will fall victim to inter-party politics.

The Beef Import Stabilization Bill, approved by the Senate and passed at the last minute by the House, amends the 1964 Meat Import Act. Under the bill, import quotas would be increased when dumestic production drops, and reduced again when demestic prices decrease.

So many painkillers, one can get a headache

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Oh, my aching head! The proliferation of painkillers is enough to give even the healthiest consumer a few twinges and the government is trying to take some of the confusion out of shopping.

The Food and Drug Adminstration has set up 17 panels of experts to review over-the-counter or non-prescription drugs and decide which ingredients are safe and effective, what side effects are possible and how products should be labeled.

One of the recent studies focused on internal analgesics or painkillers, including aspirin. (According to the FDA, aspirin is the most widely used non-prescription drug on the market; Americans take some 19 billion aspirin every year.)

The panel's recommendations are still pending and it is likely to be some time before the FDA issues any final rules. Here, meanwhile are some preliminary findings:

The group issued two general warnings: Be careful about self-treatment of diseases like rheumatism and arthritis and don't take aspirin if you have an upset stomach - even if you have a headache as well.

The panel looked at 15 ingredients to determine their safety and their ability to reduce pain, fever and inflammation. The painkillers fell into two categories: salicylates like aspirin and non-salicylates like quinine. codeine and acetaminophen.

The panel ruled that six of the ingredients are safe and effective as painkillers and fever reducers. They choline salicylate, magnesium salicylate, sodium solicylate and acetaminare: aspirin, calcium carbaspirin,

ophen. One ingredient - iodopyrine was found to be neither safe nor effective as a fever reducer or painkiller. Four ingredients - acetanilid, codeine, phenacetin and quinine were judged effective, but were ruled not safe for non-prescription use.

The panel said there was not enough evidence to determine the safety and effectiveness of the remaining four ingredients - aluminum aspirin, antipyrine, salicylamide and salsalate. It recommended that the FDA permit the continued use of these ingredients in non-prescription pain and fever medicines for up to three years if manufacturers conduct tests to establish safety and effective-

Both salicylates and non-salicylates can produce side effects. The salicylates, for example, can cause stomach distress, increased bleeding and even ulcers. An overdose of acetaminophen — the only non-salicylate which the panel found safe and effective - can cause serious liver dam-

The FDA panel said no painkiller should be taken by adults for longer than 10 days or by children for longer than five days. It recommended establishment of a standard tablet size of 325 milligrams (5 grains) for aspirin, acetaminophen and sodium salicylate, the most commonly used pain and fever reducers. Tablets containing different dosage units should be clearly labeled to show whether they are stronger or weaker than the standard, the FDA group said.

Middle East gold rush strikes Arab markets

By OTTO DOELLING

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) - "How much is that one?"

The colorfully garbed wife of an African diplomat pointed to a heavy gold armband in a shop in Jidda's Badou Souk, the public market

The merchant brought it out and placed it on his scales, as though it were a piece of goat cheese, weighing its content and paying no attention to the quality of workmanship.

It would cost 1,600 riyals, about $507, the merchant said. The woman left, saying she would look around for a better bargain. But not everyone makes that decision. In fact, a gold rush is on in the Middle East on top of the oil boom, and it runs through teeming Arab and Persian markets - a hedge against the sinking value of the U.S. dollar, inflation and political uncertainty.

Buying gold is an old tradition in this part of the world, but with oil dollars flowing into all kinds of pockets now, it isn't just sheiks who are buying. Middle-class natives and foreigners working in the area are also in the market. Much of the gold is being snapped up in the form of bracelets and heavy

The Chase Manhattan Bank's biweekly newsletter, Mideast Markets, said recently that the region - particularly the oil-rich states on the Persian Gulf - "has become one of the world's hottest markets for gold."

"At least 300 tons - or about onefifth of the world market supply found their way to the region last year," the newsletter said.

'Gold buying is nothing new to the said an American economist in Jidda, one of the key markets. "It's been going on for thousands of years. The Bedouins didn't have banks, you know. Now, with much more money around, a lot more gold is being bought.

Little of the buying seems to be done by governments. But in recent months, with the continued decline on the U.S. dollar, brokers in the Gulf area have noted a change in attitude toward yellow gold on the part of

Arab producers of black gold. "Before they used to regard gold almost as a non-monetary asset, but now they are realizing that it is a real asset to hold," said a foreign adviser to the government of the United Arab

While the buyers of bracelets and necklaces come with thick wallets, the more well-heeled Saudi merchants have been going across to the island emirate of Bahrain with suitcases stuffed with riyals, according to a gold merchant in Manama, the emirate's capital.

The merchant said some individual sales have run to as much as 220 pounds of gold worth more than $700,-

"Everywhere, gold buying is a hedge against a lack of confidence," said a Western diplomat in Riyadh, the Saudi capital. "In Iran, there is apprehension about the country's political stability. Elsewhere the concern is inflation and the falling dol-

Last year, purchasers in Iran led the way, buying 72 metric tons of gold, a marked increase from the 6.5 tons recorded in 1973 before the fivefold hike in the price of crude oil.

Saudi Arabia, with a population about a sixth of Iran's 34 million, ranked second with purchases of 45 tons in 1977. Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain and Jordan also have become active markets.

In Jidda's sprawling public market, jewelry shops and stalls are drawing Filipino maintenance workers, Pakistani clerks, South Korean construction workers, day laborers from Yemen and Egypt, American oil men and the colorfully garbed wives of African diplomats - all buying gold jewelry off the scales.

The price is relatively cheap, averaging about 23 Saudi riyals or $6.98 a gram. This works out to $217.70 an ounce, compared with a recent price of $228 in London, a major gold-

Parole denied for 'Tex' Watson, former Charles Manson follower

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) -Charles "Tex" Watson, a former Texas honor student who became a lieutenant for Charles Manson in the brutal Tate-LaBianca murders 10 years ago, was denied parole Friday after a four-hour hearing in the California Men's Colony

Watson, 32, did not have a parole date set and must return in a year for a second parole hearing. He showed no emotion when the decision was read by one of the three Release Board officials.

The board said Watson was unsuitable for parole because he "poses an unreasonable risk to society." They pointed out that the manner in which the crimes were committed were "brutal, excessive and bizaarre and without provocation...and without comprehension."

The officials also noted his "bizarre conduct" after the killings in the home of grocer Leno LaBianca and his wife, a day after the Tate murders, when he took a shower and ate the LaBiancas' food after the kill-

But at one point, during the hearing, he burst into tears.

"I was an animal," he told the board, "I knew I had parents, but I didn't care about them. I didn't care about anybody. I didn't care about myself." He then burst into tears and a brief recess was called.

The handsome, and now gauntlooking, Watson sat with his hands clenched as Deputy District Attorney Steven Kay recited the names of the victims of the 1969 killings.

Kay, along with Watson's defense attorney, Edward Olpin, were allowed to argue, but most of the hearing was devoted to Watson's own story of how he became a killer for Manson.

He said he committed the crimes after being indoctrinated into Manson's cult through hallucinogenic

Watson, described by his defense as "a withered human being" and by his prosecutor as a "cold-blooded killer" was sentenced to die Nov. 11, 1971 for the seven Tate-LaBianca murders.

The then-25-year-old murderer accepted the death sentence from the six-man, six-woman Los Angeles county Superior Court jury. It deliberated only 41/2 days before returning the verdict.

Tried separately because he fought extradition from Texas, Watson was the fifth and last defendant charged and convicted in the murders in Aug.

Eight years later, Sadat, who Friday received the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize jointly with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, is known not only at home, but throughout the world. He is the man who shattered Arab precedent by making a peace trip to Israel in 1977.

It was that trip which set in motion the chain of events which led to the peace settlements reached at Camp David in September. It was that trip which made the smiling, pipe-smoking, Sadat a familiar figure to Ameri-

Sadat's rule has been marked by other milestones as well, however. —He led the Arabs to what he called a "glorious ... victory" over Israel in the 1973 Middle East war. -He expelled Russian advisers and started turning Egypt's orientation from the Soviet Union to the United States. He moved his country's economy from the socialism of Nasser to an ever-widening, open-door policy in search of Western money and prod-

-Following a 1975 disengagement agreement between Egypt and Israel, Sadat reopened the Suez Canal to international shipping.

Sadat, who is the third president of Egypt, was born on Christmas Day in 1918 in the Nile Delta village of Mit Abu Al-Kom.

The family eventually moved to Cairo and Sadat, whose father was a civilian clerk in the army, entered the military academy, graduating in 1938. Nasser was among his class-

Sadat was finally released from jail in 1948, drove a truck for a while and worked as a journalist. His commission in the army was restored and Sadat joined Nasser and others in planning the revolution that occurred in July of 1952.

Under Nasser, Sadat held a number of jobs. He was president of the National Assembly and, in that role, traveled to the Soviet Union and debated Arab socialism with Nikita Khrushchev, then the Russian leader. He also visited United States.

In 1964, Sadat became one of four vice presidents of Egypt. Within five years - five years which included Egypt's defeat in the 1967 war -Sadat was the only one of the four still

When Nasser died of a heart attack and Sadat took over, he was viewed as a stand-in until a real leader emerged. Within three years, however, Sadat had consolidated his power, crushing at least one internal plot against him and expelling the Rus-

He polished his image at home and abroad. His pictures replaced those of Nasser throughout Egypt. Sadat leaned to British-tailored suits and smoking jackets. Some said he was influenced by his half-English, second wife, Gehan, by whom he had four children - three girls and a boy. (Under Islamic law, Sadat still is legally married to his first wife, by whom he had three daughters.)

After the 1973 war, when Sadat sent his troops storming across the Suez Canal in an operation that caught the Israelis by surprise, Egyptians hailed their president as a hero.

After the cease-fire, Sadat turned a cold shoulder to his Soviet allies and gambled that U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would be able to wring concessions from Israel. The gamble paid off with the 1975 disengagement agreement.

In August, 1976, Sadat won his parliament's unanimous nomination for another six-year term in the presidency. His country remained plagued with a desperately poor economy. In a nation of 38 million people, one-fourth of whom are concentrated in the teeming capital city of Cairo, the per capita income is only sever in hundred dollars a year - less than one-tenth of what it is in the United States.

A government attempt to roll back subsidies on basic commodities culminated in food riots in January, 1977. More than 800 persons were killed or wounded. The subsidies were restored, although the government continued to try to find ways to eliminate

In November, 1977, Sadat stunned the world when he declared he would go to the ends of the earth - "even to the Israeli Knesset (parliament)" to discuss peace if it would save the life of even one Egyptian soldier. Less than two weeks later, he was in Isra-

Menachem Begin surprised critics

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - His enemies called him a terrorist. His opponents said his policies would lead to war. But Menachem Begin confounded his critics and surprised the world by taking a giant step toward peace and inviting the president of Egypt to visit Israel.

Begin, who Friday received the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize jointly with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, became prime minister of Israel in May 1977. The U.S. government feared that his election would shatter efforts to arrange a Middle East peace settlement. Four months later, Sadat was in Jerusalem. A month after that, Begin went to Egypt.

Soon afterward, the relationship between the two men started to cool. Both sides held firm to their negotiating positions. The same people who had criticized Begin for his hard-line position before November 1977 were attacking again.

In September, Begin and Sadat got together again, this time at Camp David, the American presidential retreat in the Maryland mountains. Thirteen days of intense, secret negotiations produced a draft peace agreement.

Begin looks more like a benign shopkeeper than a man who once commanded a guerrilla campaign against the British. He lives a frugal life with his wife and children in a cramped Tel Aviv apartment that once was his hiding place from British pursuers.

Begin was born Aug. 16, 1913, in Brest-Litovsk, Poland. He attended religious and secular schools. "We were persecuted by anti-Semites," he recalled. "We had to defend ourselves and we did." At age 16, Begin joined Petar, the youth affiliate of the Zionist-Revisionist Movement headed by Ze'ev Vladimir Jabotinsky, a Russian Jew who called for a Jewish state in Palestine on both sides of the Jordan

On the eve of World War II, Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union divided Poland between them. Begin found himself in Soviet-occupied Vilna and was arrested for his political activities. The Russians shipped him to Siberia, where he remained until 1941 when he was released under terms of the Stalin-Sikorsky agreement that freed Polish nationals.

Begin, whose parents and sister were killed by the Nazis; joined the Polish army in exile and, in 1942, traveled to Palestine. After leaving the Polish military, he organized an underground army, the Irgun Zvi Leumi, to fight the British and the Jewish establishment which represented the more moderate backers of

In 1946, on Begin's orders, Irgun saboteurs blew up a wing of Jerusa-lem's King David Hotel, then the British headquarters, killing 95 Brit-ons, Arabs and Jews. A year later, the Irgun raided the Acre Prison to free 41 Jewish guerrillas.

Begin was called a terrorist because of the Irgun's bombings and assassinations and a raid on an Arab village that left 254 dead.

Moderates like David Ben-Gurion advocated cooperating, whenever possible, with the British occupiers of Palestine; Begin argued for force.

"We never set out to harm innocents," Begin said. "What is extreme about fighting to build a state for a nation that is being annihilated all over Hitler's Europe?"

He lived as a fugitive until, in 1948, Israel was founded in a portion of Palestine parceled out by the United Nations under a partition plan to create separate Arab and Jewish na-

In 1949, Begin founded the Herut (Freedom) Party, but it won only 14 seats in the 120-member parliament, losing to David Ben-Gurion's socialists who formed the first Labor Party

In later years, Herut's following grew and Begin emerged as the chief spokesman of the opposition Likud (Unity) bloc. The Labor government invited Begin into an emergency cabinet session to prepare for the 1967 Middle East war, but the alliance was a shaky one. Begin was constantly at odds with moderates over his demands for annexation of the West Bank of the Jordan River, one of the areas which the Israelis took in the 1967 war. He left the Cabinet in 1970 and resumed his role as opposition

Through the years, the Labor Party ran into trouble. Israel was plagued with financial problems brought on by the 1973 Middle East War. In 1977, the Labor Party was defeated and Begin became prime minister.

Housing expansion 'no reason' to close talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said Friday a dispute with the United States over expanding Jewish settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River should not stand in the way of completing a peace treaty with Egypt. After calling on Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Dayan told reporters 'there is no reason why we cannot go Odessa rain runoff and effluent take their toll on the east shoulder of Midland County Road 1270...via Monahans Draw.

Rain adds to Monahans Draw 'hassles'

Every time a heavy rainfall hits Odessa, Midland County Commissioner Win Brown said, he becomes a little more concerned about how his constituents in Precinct Four may be affected.

When it rains hard in Odessa, it pours down Monahans Draw, and the rain water mixes with sewage effluent discharged by Odessa's sewage treatment plant before running over into Midland County.

The water becomes a health hazard as well as a nuisance,

And sometimes, like the situation which occured several days ago, County Roads 170 and 1270 get flooded over and are washed out in parts.

"We need to get the water that goes through the Odessa sewage plant out of the draw, period," said Brown, who complained the situation has worsened during his eight years on the commissioners court.

Repairs to the two roads along with mosquito problems and allegations of ground water contamination are some of the hassles created by the Odessa city discharges into the draw, he contended

Last week's rain will take its toll on county taxes: County Road 170 West will have to be resurfaced and raised higher to offset other flooding problems while County Road 1270 South will also require some patch-up

"We have had to repair these two roads in the past, but it's becoming a little more frequent now," said Brown.

"Odessa blames it on the heavy rain. But it's because of the sewage discharges into the draw. Several times I've been surprised to see the water come over the roads when there wasn't that much rain."

The two roads were almost impassable in parts. He said one constituent tried to pull his wife's car through with a tractor, just barely making it.

The commissioner predicted the problem will increase even more when Odessa constructs its new sewage treatment plant on Midland County soil. The effluent discharged into the lake will be increased by as much as five million gallons a day over the current nine million gallons going down the draw

Brown has been an outspoken critic of permits granted by the former Texas Water Quality Control Board for Odessa to discharge into the draw.

"They're (his constituents) provoked, to say the least," said

"But they understand Odessa needs adequate sewage disposal...they don't understand why it has to be dumped into the draw."

Bob Derrington, director of utilities for the City of Odessa, disagreed with Brown. There's no problem with Odessa sewage disposal, and the effluent dis-charges don't add to the flooding problem every time it rains in Odessa, he insisted.

"Because of all the rain we had this week, the ground is saturated with rain and the water level moves up higher in the draw," he said. He also noted that a farmer who lives downstream from the the treatment plant ordinarily takes much of the water that goes in the draw for irrigation. However, the farmer doesn't have any need to irrigate when there's heavy rain, therefore much more water flows down the draw.

"There's no raw sewage being discharged into the draw. It's all treated effluent that doesn't pose any health problem," Derrington said.

Brown in return disputed Derrington on the pollution point.

"That's a bunch of bull; just utterly ridiculous. We actually do have contamination of well water up and down that draw," he said.

"There was well water along the draw that people could drink years ago. But they can't drink

Mosquito infestation in the draw area is another problem precipitated by Odessa's sewage discharge, according to Brown, who said the county had to spray the area about four times this year at an approximate cost of $2,000 per outing.

But the commissioner said he has no malice toward Odessa officials. He blames the flooding, mosquito and pollution problems on the state.

"Stupid...that's what I think of the state water resources people," declared Brown.

"If the effluent is dumped into the drain, they feel that it will not contaminate the ground water. Yet, they won't allow the water to set in pits to evaporate and percolate. They informed me in no uncertain terms that we can't do that because it might contaminate the ground water. That's crazy talk.

Sometimes, there's beauty to be found even in something as bothersome as floodwater.

Is that detergent foam? Midland County officials know all too well that it's fast-flowing treated sewage, a continuing "gift" from Ector County.

In desperation, Joel went undeground in a Los Angeles piano bar as "Billy Martin" (his middle name) until the record company was forced to renegotiate. His first Columbia album, 'Piano Man," was released near the end of 1973, and fueled by the title cut based on his six months at the Execu tive Room, began to etch him a reputation as a stinging portraitist. Everyone is fair game - the selfprofessed angry young man, the star (a recurring theme), the masochist, the materialist. His piano defines each charcter; when he lambasts the "Big Shot," the pounding chords have the weight of a paralyzing hangover. In "Stiletto," a woman's cruelty is neatly summed up by a "West Side Story" snapping of fingers that cuts deeper than the organ's wine.

On this tour, Joel plays for two and a half, sometimes three hours, goes out drinking with the band after the show, beds down late and gets up whenever he has to catch a plane. He is a loyal Yankees fan, and stayed over an extra day in Boston to see a playoff game (he and his band in their Yankees caps, amidst a turbulent sea of Boston fans, were caught and interviewed by ABC television, but nobody on the TV crew recognized his

His willingness to tackle any subject has landed him in hot water from time to time. "Only the Good Die Young," about a young man's attempt to convince his Catholic girlfriend to disregard the strictures of her upbringing, raised a storm of protest from Catholic organizations and was banned on a number of radio stations around the country.

Come out, Virginia, don't make me Catholic girls start much too late.

is anti-Catholic.
"The point is not Catholicism, the point is lust," he says, obviously tired of the subject but retaining a sense of humor. "When you're young and sexually crazed, you'll tell anybody anything. "If I had used Jewish phrases instead of Catholic, talked about yamulkes and other Semitic references. there would have been even more of an uproar . . . but I would have written it anyway.

There was some controversy about two earlier songs, "Captain Jack," which referred to drug use, and "The Entertainer." He shrugs these off,

"Captain Jack' was a 'look-outthe-window' song. I wanted to smack people in the face and say, 'Whatever you have to do to escape your own life by chemical means . . . is useless.' I didn't want it to be an anti-drug song, because drugs can be fun." He says this matter-of-factly, although he often makes jokes about "space

Elizabeth has turned out to be a powerful business force, untangling the skein of Joel's affairs. After an eight-year struggle, Joel has regained the rights to his entire catalogue; one of the concessions they had to make was to allow his first company, Family Productions, to put their wolf logo on all his albums. It's a cheap end to the litigation, he admits, but it burns like the "mark of Cain."

Joel's new album, "52nd Street" which is due to be released this week, will probably be one of his most successful, following on the heels of "The Stranger.", It is an eclectic album, filled with salutes and echoes and shorter on Joel's blade-glare realism. It is called "52nd Street" in henor of the line of jazz clubs that once lent that stretch the nickname "Swing Street"; there are more jazz riffs throughout the album and guest appearances by Freddie Hubbard and Mike Manieri

What he calls his Righteous Brothers song, "Until the Night," is a perfect evocation of that era of blue-eyed soul. There is a touch of Elton John in "Honesty," a soupcon of Steely Dan in "Zanzibar." There are Motown stomps, Spanish marcas, Satchmo raps. It is all the more surprising since he has previously avoided "anthologizing" in his albums.

As is happened, South had the five of diamonds-a valuable card precisely because is was so low. South won the club return, drew trumps, got the other high club out of the way and then led the five of diamonds to dummy's six. Now he could run the clubs, discarding his three low spades.

Greek women's army idea failing

By PAUL ANASTASIADES

ATHENS, Greece (AP) - A drive to establish a Greek women's army has had little success, largely because women themselves have mobilized against the campaign and show little enthusiasm for putting on the khaki uniform.

Only 800 women volunteers have turned up so far in the 10 months since the recruitment drive began. The Greek Women's Federation claims the poor showing is overwhelmingly due to its own campaign urging "no girls for military service."

The defense ministry recently extended indefinite ly the deadline for Greek women who want to join the military. The original deadline was Nov. 30.

A ministry spokesman denied reports that the 12,000, but he declined to specify the ceiling target. The attempt to increase Greece's military numbers comes in the wake of war tension with Turkey, which has a standing army over twice that of Greece's 200,000 men.

Thekta Veroyianni, secretary-general of the Women's Federation, the country's all-embracing feminist movement, said the indefinite extension of the enrollment date was clear proof that the recruitment drive was faltering.

'The military drive is clearly failing," she said.

'All the women's organizations are against military service in a society where women are socially, professionally and economically discriminated against. We refuse to assume equal duties as men when we don't have the same rights.'

The law inaugurating volunteer service for women subject to nationwide compulsory draft in case of a national emergency - was passed by Parliament military had originally aimed for a women's corps of in December 1977. It was backed by the governing Conservative majority and opposed by the Socialists and Communists. Original defense ministry announcements said the women would be trained in the use of arms, but would be used primarily to release men for front-line combat. It said they would be deployed particularly in transport and communications, interpreting, intelligence, interrogation of prisoners and chemical

As a further lure to the women, the law promises them priority in getting civil service jobs after completion of their 14-month volunteer service. Civil service positions are highly coveted in Greece and difficult to get. All Greek men are subject to compulsory military service of between two and three years, but have no privileges later.

Sixteen women's organizations across the country issued a joint statement unanimously opposing the law when it was passed, and have continued their rejectionist campaign ever since.

American-educated parliamentary deputy Virginia Tsouderou, a prominent women's rights campaigner, said opposition stems largely from the fact "there is deep resentment against the secondary position women hold in Greece, as well as a general revulsion against militarism and the long service.'

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) - Benedict Arnold was the victim of a bum rap by "rewrite historians," according to a Scotch Plains Revolutionary War buff who wants to clear the same of America's most famous traitor.

"We need a convenient Satan to kick around." said Vincent A. Lindner, 53, who laid a wreath recently at the site of Arnold's court martial in 1780. Lindner concedes that Arnold did give the fortification plans for West Point to the British Major John Andre in return for money but Lindner contends that Arnold acted out of "loyalty to the American cause."

'The country was ravaged and Arnold was afraid the French would seize the colonies," the former news director for WNTA-Channel 13 said. "The only thing left to do was make terms with the British. Arnold thought that giving the plans to the British would end the war."

Although Lindner's long-range goal is for greater understanding and compassion for Arnold, considered to be one of George Washington's most able generals before he defected, his immediate concern is to procure a new trial for Arnold on his court martial conviction.

"If this case were brought today, it wouldn't stand up for a minute," said Lindner, who lives in a two-story house built in 1770 and loaded with memorabilia from the Revolutionary War period.

Arnold was convicted of using "public wagons for private use" and being disrespectful to the Supreme Executive Council of the Commonwealth of Pennsyl- Benedict Arnold," said Lindner.

vania for his actions while military governor of that "There was no substance to the charges," said Lindner, who has made the defense of Arnold his abiding interest for the past 13 years. "Congress investigated the situation and found in Arnold's favor, but Joseph Reed, the president of the Council, wouldn't accept that ruling and Congress was very timid about stepping on the toes of states rights."

Lindner contends that Reed was "guilt-ridden and remorseful" after Arnold was publicly reprimanded. Reed wrote a letter to Washington asking him to forget the sentence.

"If I can get a federal judge to hear this case, there is no doubt in my mind that it would be reversed," Lindner said, adding he has been unsuccessful so far in getting the Army or President Carter to take another look at the court martial.

Lindner, who narrates industrial films when he isn't lecturing or working on his book about Arnold. believes Arnold was the greatest general of the Revolutionary War.

"He commanded the respect of the troops and had incredible bravery," Lindner said. "Some historians say he was supposed to be impetuous and greedy, but he took care of the widows of soldiers in his command and had great compassion.' The bearded history buff said he would like to produce a one-man play about Arnold, but funding for research is difficult to obtain. "It's a little tough applying for a grant to defend

Parents get test scores

Parents of students in the seventh through 10th grades in the public schools have received the results of the California Achievement Tests their children took earlier this fall, according to Bryant Saxon, director of program development and research for the school district.

"If parents will keep the test records and compare them with results of the same test that will be given in the spring, it will give them a good idea of their student's progress during the year," Saxon said.

The standardized tests are designed to show how local students are doing in comparison to students all over the nation. It was published by McGraw

The computer score sheets show how the student compares with the national average and with his own ability based on his age, grade level, sex, and present academic aptitude, said Saxon. Ability in reading, vocabulary, comprehension, spelling, language mechanics, language expression, math computation, math concepts and math application are all shown on the printouts which were sent to parents last week, noted

Pack sacks Bobcats in 23-14 thriller

By BOB DILLON R-T Sports Writer

The Midland Bulldogs are coming

Coach Dennie Hays' crew, behind the superb running of junior tailback Billy Applin, celebrated Homecoming Friday night with a 23-14 victory over the San Angelo Central Bobcats in Memorial Stadium

The young Pack took advantage of seven Bobcat turnovers to take the victory which evens their District 5-4A football record at 2-2 to share third place in the race with Abilene

Molly Putts was crowned Homecoming Queen in impressive ceremonies at halftime.

Applin rushed for 143 yards on 32 carries, outdueling another talented junior --- Central's Glen Payne, who gained 140 yards in 20 carries.

Sophomore quarterback Michael Feldt also turned in a strong performance for the Bulldogs along with kicking specialists John Schwartz and Earl Michie. Schwartz booted two extra points and a 29-yard field goal while Michie came up with a beautiful 51-yard punt.
MIDLAND TOOK the game's opening kickoff and moved from its own 14 out to the 47 before Michie was forced to punt, but the Bobcats were halted cold by some great defensive play by the Bulldogs' Pat Hickey and Blake

atest Lover,

The Bulldogs got the first break of the game late in the first period when safety Jimmy Zachry pounced on the first of six Bobcat fumbles at the Midland 24, blunting a drive by the

The first period ended up 0-0 and the Pack missed a golden opportunity midway in the quarter, but failed to score. Applin broke on a great 47-yard scamper to the Central 35 and with the ball at the Bobcat 31, Feldt misfired on a pass to Hickey who was wide open on about the three-yard line. He just overthrew the attempt and on the play, tackle and kicking specialist Ray Knapp suffered an injury with the 215-pound junior being taken to the hospital.

AFTER CENTRAL held on its 20, the Bobcats cranked up to drive 80 yards in eight plays to score. Payne ripped off a run of 52 yards and Fields connected on a 17-yard pass to end Jack Fannon to key the drive. Payne capped the drive with an eight-yard run. With Knapp out of the game, Payne tried to boot the extra point, but squibbed it, making it 6-0 with 3: 32left in the first half. Jerry Hollums put the Bulldogs in business with a fumble recovery at the Bobcat 35 just before the half, but a very unusual play in the end zone on a passing play, turned Midland away

Feldt fired a pass towards Craig Heineman in the end zone, but Heineman was flagged for offensive pass interference. When there is pass inzone, the ball goes over to the other team on a touchback and that is what happend on this particular play.

ON ONSIDE kick by Midland to start the second half paid off with Link Grimes pouncing on the loose pigskin at the Central 35 and in seven plays, the Bulldogs were back in the game. Applin carried six straight plays and Feldt scored from the three for the TD. Schwartz made it 7-6 with 9:19 left in the third period, much to the delight of the crowd.

The Bobcats coughed up the ball three plays later, this time, with Hollums recovering at the Central 19. In six plays, Applin banged over from the three, but Schwartz misfired on the PAT, making it 13-6 with 6:07 left in the period.

San Angelo stormed back to score and make things interesting, going 56 yards in only seven plays with a 17-yard pass from Fields to Doug Larson keying the drive. Fields hit Fannon with a 20-yard TD strike, to make it 13-12 and then Larson lached on to a pass from Fields for the two-pointer and a 14-13 Central lead with 3:43 left in the period.

JOHN BEANE gave Midland another break late in the third period when the 200-pound senior recovered a fumble at the Bobcat 19. Midland settled for Schwartz' 29-yard field goal and a 16-14 lead with exactly 12 minutes left to play as the three-pointer came on the first play of the final

The Bobcats moved the ball from their owm 37 to the Midland 27 where Fields fumbled with sophomore Lance Langford recovering for the Pack and this time, Midland drove some 63 yards in 13 plays to score and ice the contest. A 22-yard pass from Feldt to Grimes along with runs of 10 and eight yards by Randy Moore along with a 12-yard scamper by Feldt kept the drive alive. A pass interference on the Bobcats at the Central 10 gave the Pack new life and they scored on a one-yard run by Applin, making it 22-14 with 2:58 left in the game. Schwartz spilt the uprights for the final 23-14 count.

SATURDAY, OCT. 28, 1978

HOLLUMS PUT the final nail in the Bobcats' coffin late in the game by picking off a Fields pass, thus handing the Concho City team their fourth 5-4A loss without a win and dropped their season mark to 1-6.

Midland, meanwhile, is now 3-4 on the year and faces the Odessa High Bronchos next week in W.T. Barrett

Lee celebrates Halloween, 33-0

By TERRY WILLIAMSON R-T Sports Writer

BIG SPRING - The Midland Lee Rebels made their Halloween raid as expected here Friday night, leaving the winless Big Spring Steers a little umpkin-eved after a 33-0 dunking in the Rebel witches' brew.

It turned out about as expected with Lee dominating the Steers, and got all the preliminaries out of the way for the state's ninth ranked Rebels. Now comes marble thumping time against equally undefeated Odessa Permian Friday in Memorial Stadium. Status symbol this week is a ticket to that

Lee ran to their seventh straight victory of the season, or maybe threw would be a better word. Lee started a little slow against Big Spring until the Gary Butler to Elmer Montgomery Variety Hour got untracked. It doesn't sound like a ratings winner, but it should be on in prime time.

Big Spring had a few things going early in the contest. They came out fired up for a homecoming showing and had "99-0" taped on their helmets. That was the margin one West Texas writer picked Lee to win by. The Steers wanted to do well, but none of the gimmicks were going to work in this one.

Big Spring moved to the Lee 23 early in the first period, but Montgomery, who plays defense too, intercepted a Billy Johnson pass and returned it 88 yards for Lee's first TD of the night. It was just a prelude of things to come from the senior speed

Later in the period, Montgomery latched on to a 52-yard pass from Butler to the Big Spring three-yard line before Randy Hurrington kept him out of the end zone with a come from behind tackle. It did, however, set up a Jeff McCowan one-yard plunge on the second play of the second quarter for a 13-0 lead as Lee's Steve Pitts was stopped trying to run in a fake extra point kick. Bill McPherson did kick three of four extra point tries during the night.

Things just fell apart for the Steers after that as Lee put 20 points in lights during the second period. The second period TD was an eight-yard run by Ricky Johnson, who led all rushers with 143 yards on 24 carries. His TD was set up again by Butler, who completed passes of 12 yards to Stewart Laufer and 33 to (Guess Who) Montgomery.

Linebacker Doug Crawford then intercepted another Johnson aerial to set in motion a 66-yard TD drive by the Rebs. Butler again did the damage with two key passes. He hit Montgomery, who else, with a 13 yarder and then polished off the drive with a 21-yard strike to John White for six more and a 27-0 halftime lead.

That was really enough, but Lee did come back with a savage rush from Johnson and McCowan in the second half. Lee marched 80 yards to start the third period for the final score of the night. Johnson and McCowan split the 80 yards for the score, but McCowan got his 16th TD of the season with a six-yard run at the end of the drive. McCowan, however, managed only 112 yards rushing and still needs 32 yards to break the coveted

1,000-yard barrier this season. Outside of the first period threat, Big Spring did not challenge at scoring against the usually tough Lee defense. But Eddie Puga did gain 101 yards in a fine effort.

Lee rolled out 24 first downs and 408 total yards, but two interceptions and three lost fumbles were enough to keep the score at 33-0. Big Spring managed only 148 total yards against Lee and a fumble and four interceptions, two by Montgomery of course, hurt the Steer's cause.

Butler had his best night in the air by completing six of 12 passes for 144 yards and a touchdown. He did have one interception, but his aerials got Lee untracked in the first half when the running game was off. Montgomery didn't hurt him any with his dazzling catches.

Now with that out of the way, has anyone got a ticket?

Finley okays sale of Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) - Charles Finley has agreed to sell the Oakland A's to a Bay Area group which will keep the troubled American League baseball franchise in Oakland, the head of the group said Friday.

Ed Bercovich, an Oakland furniture dealer, would not say how much his group would pay for the team but the Oakland Tribune quoted reliable sources as saying the price is $12

"We've sat down and worked out a mutually agreeable deal," Bercovich said. "Mr. Finley has been very, very nice to deal with and super from the very first day.

"He told us what he wanted, he told us how he wanted it. We told him,

"I'm willing and ready to sell," Finley told the Tribune from his Chicago office. "I'm convinced they have

Bellard gone, but he left a winning record at A&M

Shortly after Emory Bellard's sud-Shortly after Emory Bellard's sud-den resignation a Texas Aggie, who has been around long enough to see a lot of football coaching changes at College Station and evinces a famil-iarity with the behind-the-scenes manuevering which precedes them, called to say, "I think you should know that there are thousands of us Aggies out here who don't go along with what happened vesterday. with what happened yesterday.

"But apparently nobody knows we're here." He continued, "It's the usual group in Houston. We don't have the money they have, or the influence."

Whatever prompted Bellard's deci-sion to quit in mid-seaso, it's obvious he was feeling vocal pressure from somewhere, no matter how small the core. If there was a majority out there appreciative of Emory, he never got the message.

THE STRANGE aspect of the whole thing is that Bellard was under any pressure at all, but apparently there was a move afoot to replace Bellard at the season's end. He just beat them

It's true that the smashing success that always seemed within taking distance habitually eluded the Aggies, but Bellard did restore competitive respectability to A&M football.

He directed more winning seasons at A&M than anyone since Homer Norton (134-1947). And in Norton's first six years, he amassed just 33 victories to Emory's 44 for the same period and 11 of Norton's victories came in that sixth year, when Nor-ton's Aggies won the 1939 national

AFTER 3-8 and 5-6 seasons to start, Bellard put together a string of 8-3, 10-2, 10-2 and 8-4 years, taking the Aggies to bowls the last three.

He shared one conference title, placed second once and third twice. In the last four years, the Aggies have been regular residents of football's

An idea of what Bellard did for A&M football can be gleaned by a review of what it was like before he arrived. Between 1958 and 1974, thee had been just one season over, 500, Gene Stallings SWC champions of 1967. And even that almost never materialized.

That was a truly memorable year, one in which A&M lost its first four games and seemed beaten in the fifth against Texas Tech at Lubbock, a game A&M pulled out on the last

That was the springboard for six straight season-finishing wins, later capped by the Cotton Bowl victory over Bear Bryant and Alabama, the game in which a proud and gracious Bear hoisted former pupil Stallings to his shoulders after the game.

DESPITE ALL of his success in high school and college, Bellard has been haunted by the big one that got away. It's frustrating, but not exactly a fatal flaw. After all, Bud Grant has come away empty-handed from more Super Bowls than anyone in history and he is generally accepted as several cuts above "competent."

However, for Bellard there has always been an Arkansas, USC, Michigan or Houston to keep life from being truly beautiful. As a high school coach in San Angelo, there was always a Gene Mayfield at Borger or at Odessa Permian to spoil things, except for the year of the Angry Orange in the mid 1960s.

It was a year, however, that led to an assistant's job under Darrell Royal at Texas where he gained national attention by devising the Wishbone that brought the Longhorns one national title and very nearly another.

At A&M, the Aggies always seemed just a game or two away. After reeling off 10-straight victories in 1975, including a 20-10 conquest of Texas which everybody thought clinched the national title. Then, lo and behold, the Aggies spoiled it all with a 31-6 lacing, followed by the 20-0 bowl loss to a poor USC team, at least, poor (four defeats) by USC standards.

IN 1976, early losses to Houston and Texas Tech ruined the Aggies SWC title hopes, but the Aggies still had a good-year and left the exes with a mouth-watering 34-17 whipping of a volatile Florida team in the Sun

Last year, a 41-3 humiliation by Michigan on national TV deflated the Aggies, but they still finished 8-3 to earn another bowl bid before the illfated 47-28 Bluebonnett venture against Southern Cal. Bellard may have had his failings, but he wasn't without his successes.

DESPITE the turmoil, the Aggies should be able to beat Rice, 28-0. In other games: Texas 21, SMU 10-Longhorns will monopolize possession. Arkansas 21, Houston 20-The Razorbacks paid the price of a too-easy non-conference schedule against Texas and now that they have a game under their belts...perhaps.

Baylor 33, TCU 14-Bears live on the Frog.

Oklahoma 35, Kansas State 0-And that's being kind. Penn State 14, West Virginia 0-Lions remain unbeaten.

Missouri 27, Colorado 20-After schedule Tigers have played, surely they won't stumble here.

Iraan strikes late to subdue Devils, 27-15

Iraan's Braves pushed over a touchdown with 8:08 left in the game to stave off Rankin's Red Devils, 27-15, here Friday night.

Rankin crept within scaring distance with 10:27 left when they culminated a 16-play 72-yard drive with quarterback Brant Myers passing 12 yards to end Terry Turner for the score. Richard Barrett, who led the Rankin rushers with 89 yards on 33 carries, then ran the two-pointer that left Rankin behind 21-15. Quarterback Johnnie Rosales punched over from the one on a nineplay drive that covered 43 yards. The big play was an 18-yard pass from Rosales to end Mark Lang. Rosales also went in from the five in the third period for a 21-7 lead.

Martin Russell gave Iraan its first score on an 11-yard run after Joe Sconiers returned a punt 46 yards to set it up and Sammy Castanada wrapped up a 76 yard drive with a six-yard TD run after a 30-yard run by

McCamey 41. The Short-

Late rally earns win for Crane

By STEVE O'BRIEN R-T Sports Writer

CRANE - Andrew Hannon has this knack for being around the ball and his Crane teammates can thank their lucky stars for that. Hannon made a pair of outstanding plays, one from his split receiver spot and the other from his defensive end position, in the final minute to help the Golden Cranes stage a late rally to nip Alpine, 20-19.

Trailing 19-13 and facing a fourth and 12 from the Alpine 22, Hannon snagged a Rocky Rives pass for 19 yards to keep the Golden Cranes alive and set up Dewayne Draper's two yard touchdown dive to tie the score with only: 51 left in the contest. Rives booted the extra point and Crane had its sixth win of the season. But, Crane fans weren't entirely at ease with that lead, even with just seconds left in the game. The reason for their concern was Alpine quarterback Kyle Mackey. Mackey had been a thorn in Crane's side all evening, completing pass after pass and running the option skillfully. With Mackey at the controls, Alpine wouldn't need much time.

:31 showing on the clock, Hannon came charging in from his left in spot, stripped the ball from Mackey at the Alpine 27 and then recovered the ball to ice away the Crane win. The game was every bit as close as

caller dropped back to pass with just the final score indicated. Each squad piled up 18 first downs and the two squads alternated touchdowns. Alpine jumped out in front in the first quarter as they staged a 93 yard drive in 10 plays on their first possession. The score came on a 25 yard pass from Mackey to Danny Saenz. Saenz ran a simple drag pattern, gathered in Mackey's toss at the Crane 10, slipped a tackle and scooted into the end zone. Eddie Natera connected on the point after, the only conversion the Fighting Bucks would make all night, giving Alpine a 7-0 lead. The big plays in the drive were a trio of Mackey-to-Saenz aerials. The first one covered 32 yards on a third and five play from the Alpine 12. The two also hooked up for gains of 16 and 12 yards in the drive.

CRANE'S SAM STRODER picked off a Mackey pass at the Alpine 45 and moved it down to the 40 later in the period to set up Crane's initial score. Crane caught the Bucks napping on the first play from that point, and Rives connected with Hannon for a 40-yard scoring bomb with only :22 left in the quarter. Rives' extra point was blocked, leaving Crane still a point behind at 7-6.

Alpine wasted no time returning the favor on their next possession. On second and 11 from the Alpine 33, Mackey pitched to tight end Charles Ward on a reverse and Ward lofted an aerial downfield into the waiting arms of a wide-open Saenz for 61 yards to the Crane 6.

An illegal proceedure call on Crane moved the ball down to the three and Junior Carrillo covered that distance to put Alpine up 13-6. Natera's point after attempt was wide.

NOT TO BE outdone, Crane took the ball after the ensuing kickoff and promptly drove 72 yards in 11 plays with Rives finding Gilbert Sena alone in the end zone from nine yards out to pull back to within a point. This time Rives' kick was true and the score was knotted at 13.

The big plays in that drive were passes of 10 and nine yards to Sena and a draw play to fullback Carl Gibbs for 15 yards on a third and 10 from the Alpine 24.

Crane had a chance to put a lot of pressure on A lpine just minutes later when Sena nabbed a Mackey pass from his defensive end spot at the Alpine 40, moving all the way down to the 12 before being stopped. But, the treat was over just as quickly as it began. On the next play, Saenz returned the favor by stealing Rives' pass at the six.

ALMOST UNBELIEVABLY, Alpine took the ball 94 yards in just a little over a minute to dent the scoreboard one more time before the half. The Bucks moved that distance, once again on the strong arm of Mackey. He teamed up with Carrillo for 21 yards and Ward for 37 yards before hitting his favorite target, Saenz, from 29 yards out for the go-ahead score. Natera, who plays guard in addition to his placement duties for Alpine, was injured the play prior to the touchdown. Luty Gonzalez' attempt for the all-important extra point was no good.

In spite of the almost uncanny success they'd had throwing the ball in the first half, Alpine nearly abandoned the passing attack in the second half. Mackey, who completed seven of 10 passes for 172 yards in the first half, tried only five the remainder of the game, completing only two for 14 yards. Saenz, who hauled in six of Mackey's seven first half completions for 143 yards and two touchdowns, was forgotten in the second

Fans booing puzzles Cowboys' Tony Dorsett

DALLAS (AP) - For the first time in his football career, boos rained down on young Tony Dorsett Thursday night.

Dorsett, the Dallas Cowboys' star running back who missed practice and was demoted to second string by Coach Tom Landry a week ago, seemed puzzled by the Texas Stadium fans' hostile reaction during a 21-10 National Football League loss to the Minnesota Vikings.

Juggling Cowboys complete circus atmosphere

If not for the sea of astroturf rising out of the center, the scene at Texas Stadium could easily have veen mistaken for a circus. There were bright lights, beautiful girls and hundreds of balloons. There was even Roger Owens, the reknowned peanut tosser from Los Angeles, who was pushing his wares for charity.

It was Monday Night Football on Thursday night (if that makes sense) and the mere presence of Howard, Dandy and the Giff added to the carnival-like atmosphere.

And, like any good circus, there were clowns - lots of 'em. Over 40 in fact, lineup up shoulder-to-shoulder on the sidelines, all decked out in silver and blue.

WELL, MAYBE clowns isn't the proper description for the Dallas Cowboys. Perhaps they would be more aptly dubbed jugglers. After all, six minutes and two Cowboy juggles into this game and the Minnesota Vikings had already decided the out-

One is inclined to describe those first few minutes of Dallas' 10-21 loss to the Vikes as a comedy of errors. Only nobody was laughing.

Two critical fumbles, one by kick returner Larry Brinson, another by Tony Dorsett, led to Minnesota touchdowns in the early going and Dallas never recovered.

"I THINK the tone of the game was set in the first quarter when we lost the fumbles," said safety Cliff Harris. "The Vikings were able to set the tone by scoring off the mistakes.

"This is a game I want to forget." Minnesota middle linebacker Jeff Siemon concurred with Harris. "When they came out, fumbled and we scored, it gave us a tremendous psychological advantage. It's such negative factor when that happens.

It's tough for any team to make the mistakes they made and expect to

IT WOULD BE easy enough to lay the blame for Dallas' demise on the early miscues. But, there is more to it than that. At least a part of the blame has to go to Fran Tarkenton. Baffling Cowboy defenders with short outs to his wide receivers and dump passes to the running backs, he completed 18 of 32 passes for 139 yards and two touch-

But, even Tarkenton can't take all the credit. The Cowboys themselves were partially responsible. As more than one observer would growl after the game, "they stunk."

JUST NINE SHORT weeks ago there were fantasies of an unbeaten season for the defending World Champions. In the wake of their third defeat, sights have been set a little lower. The talk now is that the Cowboys could lose two more games and still make the playoffs. But, with a second half schedule which includes Washington, New England, Miami and both surprising New York teams, even that is easier said than done. Maybe there is no cause for alarm. Perhaps the Cowboys will hit their peak and stride into the playoffs (I still wouldn't bet against it). They are, after all, basically the same team that lost only twice enroute to the Super Bowl title last year.

BUT, AFTER the Vikings had dismantled the Pokes, the questic that's been tailing them all year cropped up again for the umpteenth time - "What's missing?"

"I don't know what's missing. Intensity? Concentration?" Preston Pearson said later. "I can't think of the right cliche."

True, it may be an overworked question, but you can't escape the fact the Cowboys mustered only 10 points and 239 total yards, with a mere 92 coming from their vaunted rushing

PERHAPS TOO MUCH is expected of Tony Dorsett. He obviously added a totally new dimension to the Cowboys offense last year with over 1,000 yards as a rookie. With Dorsett, the Cowboys had a game-breaking outside runner. He was on the same course in the early going this year, but opposing defenses have wisened up. Dallas opponents now regularly storm the corners, anticipating the pitch to Dorsett, and stringing the wide plays out for losses.

But, the Cowboys are doing nothing to compensate for that. It almost seems the Cowboys are so intent on utilizing that dimension that they've overlooked their other offensive weapons when Dorsett has failed.

"I think it's important to have quick-hitting plays with Robert Newhouse and me," Dorsett said, "If we would do more of it we could keep the defenders honest. Right now they're watching me and as soon as I take a step outside they all go that way."

Quite possibly Thursday's failure could be attributed to the shortened week. The Cowboys had only three days to get ready. "No," Randy White sighed, "Minnesota only had three days, too, and they had to travel. No. that's no excuse.'

Chicago renews pact with Cubs

The Chicago Cubs, whose two-year lease expired after the 1978 season, have agreed to return to the Tall City for three more years, it was announced by Midland Cubs General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr.

"Both our working agreement with the Chicago Cubs and our lease agreement with the City of Midland expired this year," Rigney said, "After discussions win both city officials and the front office in Chicago, we are very pleased to announce that Midland Sports, Inc., has agreed to new, three-year contracts with City of Midland and the Chicago Cubs which will insure professional baseball in the Permian Basin through 1981."

The contract with the city call for Midland Sports, Inc., to pay a per game fee to the city for the use of Cubs Stadium. In addition, Midland Sports, Inc., will pay to the city a graduated percentage of any corporate profits after taxes.

"We feel that if the ball club does well, then the city should benefit as well," Rigney said. "We have one of the finest facilities in the country, one that all of Midland can be proud, and we are confident that we can continue to do well here."

THE NEW working agreement with Chicago calls for them to furnish a competitive club in the Texas League for the next three years. The Player Development contract, as it is called, provides that the Chicago organization will furnish the baseball expertise and personnel while Midland Sports, Inc., will operate the fran-

"We began formal negotiations with J.C. Davis, director of player development, towards the end of the 1978 season," Rigney said. "We were hoping to have everything finalized by Labor Day, but things were a little slow in developing due to circumstances outside our control.

Rigney said the Cubs organization has assured Midland it will make every effort to insure a competitive club for Midland.

The Cubs moved their AA franchise to Midland from San Antonio in 1972. Midland Sports, Inc., purchased the franchise from Chicago in early 1977. Midland Sports, Inc., is owned by local businessmen Max Christensen and Bernard Lankford.

Midland will open its 1979 season.

Gallagher rolls 700 series

Brent Gallagher rolled the first 700 of the season en route to a four-game set of 912 in the Air Park Scratch League. Gallagher, a 19-year-old Midland College freshman who has been bowling seriously for two years, pummeled the pins consistently, rolling gems of 212, 241, 234 and 225.

Diane Trolinder led the women among scores reported during the week with a brilliant 249 game, bowling 100 pins over her average while bowling in the Tuesday Twosome League.

Darrell Hopkins once again set the pace of youth bowlers by stroking games of 213-210 and 213 on the way to a 636 series.

Other noteworth accomplishments included: Jim Newton 245, Leroy Miller 234-616; Patsy Swindell 233; Barbie Sharp 232-533; Diane Eudy 219-566; Bonnie Saunders 217-563; Robert Phillips 235; and Gary Nokes 238.

Point spreads become more important than win

Los Angeles Times Syndicate

In a recent game at Giants Stadium in Rutherford, N.J., Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, with a 10-point lead, simply fell down with the ball at the line of scrimmage to eat up the clock in the time remaining.

The Giants' fans rose and gave him a tumultuous ovation.

Treason? Self-hate? Mockery? Not at all. Roger Staubach was unwittingly protecting the spread. The game was incidental. It wa not whether you won or lost, but by how many points. The gamblers who played the parlay cards liked the game just as it was. They were beating the "spread." If Staubach packed it in, he was just protecting their investment. The hell with the Giants.

PRO FOOTBALL is rapidly turning into just another wheel. The "line" no longer refers to the front four or the anonymous seven. It refers to the magic number by which one team is differentiated from another as a betting proposition. In horse racing, they burden one betting proposition with pounds to bring it in line with the competition. In football, they burden it with points. The Dallas Cowboys start out some games minus 17. When they win only 34-14, they make a lot of investors who took the short interest

This less-expensive spread is the invention of the bookies. The more money bet, the more take the betting commissioners get. No one would seriously want to book, say, Dallas vs. the St. Louis Cardinals as an even-up proposition. The book would be dutched, in a way. There's no way they could lay a line of odds that would make St. Louis an attractive proposition. But, give St. Louis 21 points on the game at home, and a lot of scholars will tap the rent money and price fur coats for the little lady. "Take the home team and the points," is Commandment No. 2 of he

NO ONE knows how much is bet on pro football in a week. Too much. Sport is being buried in the process. Newspapers pander to the taste of the card players out there. But they probably have to. There's too many of them to ignore. A football card player's idea of a great story is not a human interest tale of how the halfback saved an entire orphanage from drowning. He'd rather know how the quarterback's ankle is, or if the swelling has gone down in the tight end's hands, or if the wide receiver has stopped drinking. He wants information, not entertainment. It's just a complicated stock market to him.

The mania is worst in the East but it's all over the country. A rash of books, instructionals like how to play golf, have hit the market. The latest is by Gerry Strine of the Washington Post (in collaboration with Neil Isaacs), titled "Covering The Spread, Or, How To Beat Pro Football.

The head linesman of this other, deadlier sporting game is not a guy in a. striped shirt but a Vegas oddsmaker, a guy named Bob Martin, who hangs out the line. And, here, a misconception needs to be cleared up, one a lot of us used to share. Whenever you see a line posted, say for instance, the one making the Colts favored by 17 to 19 over the Jets in Superbowl III, and you are tempted to ask "What's so smart about Vegas gamblers?" you have to remember they are not putting their opinion of the game on the line, but their opinion of what the public's opinion will be. Their task is to equalize the betting. When they can do that, they don't care who wins. Their cut, the so-called "vigorish," comes out of the middle.

IT'S A serious problem. The promoters, that is to say the league and the owners, have to worry about their sport becoming like a leaky-roof track on the border. Sports writers may have to include columns like "horses (or teams) in trouble, last out" or "Recent works by the quarterback." They may even have to determine which teams are trying on a given day. What do you think a bookie would have paid for the infor-mation that Tony Dorsett would be in Tom Landry's doghouse and not play against Philadelphia Sunday? Phila-delphia beat the spread. They'd get a ticker-tape parade down Broad Street if the short interests had anything to

The spread may revolutionize spectating. "Hold that line!" may no longer mean Keep the other team from scoring. It may mean just the opposite. Not everyone is a fan of the home team. But everyone is a fan of his pocketbook.

Can a service academy team find true happiness in college football's Top Twenty? Tune in Saturday when 18th-ranked Navy puts its shipshape 6-0 record on the line against No. 15

And waiting in the on-deck circle for the Midshipmen is none other than defending national champion Notre

"I think we're a pretty good team," says Coach George Welsh, "but in Pittsburgh we face one of the big-league teams in the country."

Pitt-Navy — it will homecoming at Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium in Annapolis — is one of two games this weekend pairing members of The Associated Press Top Twenty. The other is a key Southwest Conference clash Saturday night between ninth-ranked Arkansas and No. 11 Houston in the Astrodome.

MEANWHILE, top-rated Oklahoma entertains Kansas State, runnerup Penn State visits West Virginia, third-ranked Alabama hosts Virginia Tech, No. 4 Nebraska is at home against Oklahoma State and No. 5 Maryland is at Duke.

Oklahoma, Penn State, Maryland, Navy and unranked Holy Cross which visits Brown - are the only remaining unbeaten-untied major Rounding out the Top Ten, California is at sixth-ranked Southern Cal, Southern Methodist at No. 7 Texas and Minnesota at No. 8 Michigan while 10th-ranked UCLA played Arizona Friday night.

In the Second Ten, No. 12 Arizona State is at Washington, Colorado at No. 13 Missouri, No. 16 Georgia at Kentucky in a night game, No. 17 Purdue at Iowa, Miami, Fla. at No. 19 Notre Dame and No. 20 Clemson at North Carolina State. Louisiana State, ranked No. 14, is idle.

NAVY'S 6-0 record is no fluke, although Welsh readily admits that the absence from the schedule of the likes of Penn State and Michigan has helped. The Middies are No. 1 nationally in total defense (143.3 yards per game) and scoring defense (4.0 points per game) and second in rushing defense (71.2) and pass defense

About the only things they have to work on is defense against 2-point conversions. The Middies have posted three shutouts while yielding one touchdown and a 2-point conversion in each of their other three games. "The secondary is the biggest surprise," says Welsh, "because three of the four people are new. But everybody's playing pretty good on defense - that's obvious. Offensively, I'm surprised by the way we're moving the ball on the ground. I thought we'd be able to throw pretty well, but we're outrushing our opponents 4-1. I guess I'm getting conservative in my old

ACCORDING TO Pitt's Jackie Sherrill, his 5-1 Panthers also have something to prove.

"This could be a very opportunistic week for us," he says. "If we can put some things together, we'll have a chance to get into the picture of a lot of things. I'm happy that we're winning and I'm happy that we're doing it with so many young people, but we're going to have to put one big game together both offensively and defensively this week "

It won't be easy, though. "Navy," says Sherrill, "is a welldisciplined team that is consistent both offensively and defensively. Their offensive line is huge - the biggest we've faced this year - and they execute extremely well. I can tell you this - they don't make many

KANSAS STATE has a different kind of problem against Oklahoma, which ranks No. 1 in rushing offense (413.0 yards per game) and second in total offense (490.3) and scoring (40.0 points per game).

Coach Jimmy Dickey has seen that act, having served on the Oklahoma staff from 1970-72.

"Oklahoma? They are No. 1 in the nation and have their game in high gear," says Dickey. "What else can you say? We will try to make a simple game plan, minimize mistakes, go down there and play.'

The Penn State-West Virginia series has been one of the most onesided in history. Penn State holds a 35-7-2 edge - edge? - and has won the last 19 meetings. Besides, West Virginia has dropped its last six outings after an opening-game 14-12 triumph over Richmond.

But, warns - warns? - Coach Joe

"West Virginia has had some tough luck, but they can be tough - particularly down there. Over the years, we have had a lot of luck against them and gotten some breaks. One of these days, they are going to get some breaks and have some luck against us. They can make their season by beating us and Pitt. We had better be ready to play poised, solid football."

THE ALABAMA-VPI game will be family - brother Vince coaches at Georgia - are no strangers.

"It's not often you have an opportunity to play against one of the top football teams in the country," says Bill Dooley, a prohibitive underdog. "It represents a real challenge for our PHOENIX (AP) - The familiar front row of Danny Ongais and Tom Sneva will head the field for Saturday's 150-mile race at Phoenix International Raceway, the season finale for Indianapolis cars.

Ongais, who has dueled with Sneva all season for fastest qualifying honors, averaged 146.045 miles per hour on the best of two qualifying laps Friday and edged Sneva, at 145.533, mph, by .09 of a second.

Ongais' effort was .44 of a second off the track record, set last yeaar by

Houses for Sale

Chandelle is a Nice Place to Call Home...

Houses for Sale 80

WHY BUY A CONDOMINIUM?

Condominiums afford quality living in prime locations. They allow the owner all the financial and tax advantages of owning a home without the headaches.

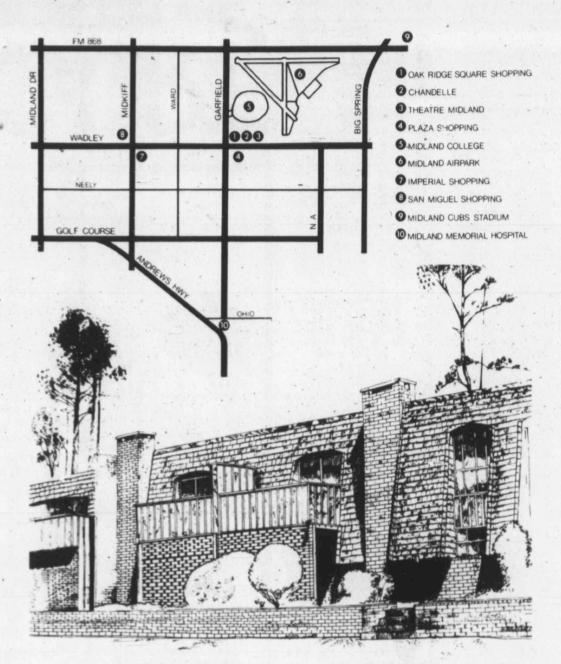

Condominiums are designed for a more flexible lifestyle. Most important, you have greater control over your housing costs when compared to renting.

WHY BUY A "CHANDELLE" CONDOMINIUM?

"CHANDELLE's" location at 2100 West Wadley is within minutes of downtown, theatres, recreational areas, shopping, restaurants, schools, churches, the college, and Airpark. At "CHANDELLE" you get an equity investment, the same tax breaks as a home owner, and greater control of your housing costs.

"CHANDELLE" is the only real alternative people have to get away from the maintenance problems of home owning, and doing it with style.

Come out to 2100 West Wadley or call 684-7884 to find out why "CHANDELLE" is a nice place to call home. Models are open from 12:00 noon until 6:00 p.m. seven days a week.
