Minimal Relief Seen Via Tax Amendment

Avalanche-Journal Staff

UNLESS YOU are elderly or disabled or own farmland within Lubbock cityschool boundaries, don't expect much tax relief from the so-called Tax Relief Amendment

At best, tax authorities say, the typical homeowner here will realize an annual saving of only $41.40 if the proposed state constitutional amendment passes Tues-

And at worst, according to the officials, the amendment actually might end up costing you money

"I am afraid a lot of people are going to be disillusioned and disappointed. They are thinking in terms of a big tax cut, but it won't necessarily come about," John Brooks, city-school tax assessor-collector,

Indeed, some amendment critics told a recent Lubbock symposium there will be no tax break at all. They said taxes of the average homeowner will have to be raised to make up for exemptions going to special groups of property owners.

The fact is, nobody knows for sure what the amendment will do - and this, Brooks said, is a problem.

'So much of the amendment is dependent on enabling legislation that has yet to SEATTLE (AP) - A severe rainstorm driven by high winds moved across the state of Washington on Saturday, downing trees, knocking out electrical power and causing widespread flooding. At least five persons were killed and one was reported missing.

Another unknown factor is the effect of the amendment on non-school governments, which are not due for any reimit may be required by the amendment to give $555,000 worth of new tax breaks to banks, disabled persons and farmers. Their tax burden consequently would be shifted to the remaining taxpayers - notbly homedwners and businesses. The Tax Relief Amendment includes several specific constitutional changes which could have a direct and immediate effect upon Lubbock taxes. First, the amendment would allow the

But one difference between Lynn and some of those who win music awards would be that he had a great deal of success before the hit record came out. Lynn, 38, has been a full-time musician since he graduated from Fort Sumner High School; and, working dances from Brownwood to Monte Vista, Colo., he has not only survived, a feat equivalent to success for many musicians, but has

He is quick to emphasize, though, that none of it happened easily or fast. Before they moved from Clovis to Lubbock four years ago, Tiny and Eva burned out the engine on a new van during a trip to Hereford. It cost $300 to fix. The bus motor had to be replaced early this year at a cost of $6,000.

Sadat Scorns Arab Peace Parley Foes

Egyptian Rejects $5 Billion Offer
GHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Leaders of 20 pressing for sanctions against Sadat on his neutral stance. There is no

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) - Leaders of 20 Arab nations sent a delegation to Cairo Saturday in a last-ditch bid to talk Anwar Sadat out of making a separate peace with Israel, but the Egyptian president responded with a swift and angry rebuff.

The four-man delegation carried with it an implicit offer of massive Arab financial aid if Egypt abandons its go-it-alone peace drive. But Sadat declared to the Egyptian Parliament, "All the millions in the world will not buy the will of Egypt!" The reconciliation mission dispatched by the Arab summit meeting here was headed by Lebanese Prime Minister Salm el-Hoss.

Speaks To Parliament

Sadat went before the Parliament in Cairo a short time after word reached the Egyptian capital that the Hoss group was headed there. "Before coming to this rostrum," he told the legislators, "we were informed by foreign news agencies that those meeting in Baghdad had sent a delegation which was already on its way. They did not ask permission. They shall not meet with me or any Egyptian official." Sadat told a news conference later, however, that he would be willing to meet with Arab heads of state. "If they choose to come to Egypt, they are welcome and I am ready to sit with them and discuss everything.

Message From Iraq The official Iraqi news agency said Hoss' delegation carried a message from President Ahmed Hassan al-Bakr of Iraq, chairman of the Arab League summit, saying that if Sadat agreed to return to the Arab fold, "the summit conference promises to guarantee the steadfastness of Egypt and its people."

That was a clear reference to an Iraqi proposal at the conference that the Arab countries give Egypt up to $5 billion to draw Sadat away from his growing dependence on the West for bolstering his sagging economy.

The delegation was instructed to deliver the message, report on the results of the summit so far and receive the Egyptian leader's reply before returning to Baghdad. But they were met by only a junior official at Cairo airport, were driven to a Cairo hotel and returned to Baghdad later Saturday. Iraq Opposes Talks

With Hoss were Syrian Information Minister Ahmed Iskandar, Iraqi Baath Party official Tariq Aziz and Foreign Minister Ahmed al-Suedy of the United Arab Emirates. Hoss and Suedy represent governments with relatively moderate positions on Egypt's peace moves. But Syrian and Iraq are leading hard-line states in the opposition to the U.S.-sponsored Egyptian-Israeli negotiations.

Egypt was the only member of the 21nation Arab League not represented at the summit, which was called by Iraq specifically to reach a united Arab stand against the bilateral peace. But it appeared the participants in the Baghdad meeting probably would not reach a concensus on how to react to the impending "Stand Against Egypt" Palestine Liberation Organization spokesman Yasser Abed Rabbou told reporters after Sadat's snub of the delegation that "any illusions some people had about Sadat were short-lived. This means we should return to the summit and take a resolute stand against the Egyptian regime. We must decide on military and political confrontation from a united The hard-line states and the PLO want to isolate Sadat politically and economically but the conservative governments, led by Saudi Arabia, have resisted. "They (the conservatives) argue that isolating Sadat will merely push him closer to Israel," said one summit delegate

Although a record crowd did not line the streets for the Homecoming Parade, which caught a few rain sprinkles before the game, a record crowd of 48,895 people was set for the annual battle with Baylor.

Miss Wright, who is majoring in adver-tising and public relations and is a cheerleader, began her reign in pre-game ceremonies as other finalists watched.

They included Carla Archer of Alpha Chi Omega, Pamela Curry of Delta Gamma, Karen Sue Hash of Phi Phi Mu and Ann Heggam of Sigma Chi.

Recognition also was given to three outstanding Texas Tech faculty members in the ceremonies. The Century Club, which reserves its membership for alumni who donate $100 or more annually to the Texas Tech Ex-Students Association Loyalty Fund, gave distinguised merit awards to JT King, former athletic director and coach; Nelson Longley, director of University Center for 23 years; and Margret Stuart, professor of chemistry and pre-med adviser.

These recipients also were recognized Friday at the Century Club dinner where Art Linkletter was featured speaker.

The association also gave a distinguised service award to the Texas Tech High Riders, a women's organization equivalent to the Saddle Tramps.

In its regular annual meeting, the association presented four university employes the "Top Techsan Staff Awards"

They were Betty J. Bingham, accounting clerk in payroll responsible for benefit programs; Jean Finley, business manager for student publications; Dan Tarpley, manager of the news bureau, office of University News and Publications: and Gracie Wossum, band and music sec-

Candidate Attacks Performance Of President

By RHONA SCHWARTZ Avalanche-Journal Staff

Congressional candidate Bill Fisher Saturday attacked several pieces of President Carter's legislation, calling Carter "a man lying to the people."

Fisher, a Republican seeking the 17th Congressional District seat being vacated by Omar Burleson, said during a news pricing bill would not deregulate prices, but instead would allow Congress to tell states how to operate their natural gas Fisher, an accountant and attorney from Abilene, also criticized Carter for "not consulting with anyone in the energy department when the bill was written, especially the Texas Railroad Commission" which, Fisher said, is a prime authority on the subject. Concerning beef import legislation which Carter is now considering, Fisher said he supports the bill, which would prevent the president from arbitrarily importing more beef. The legislation is part of the House Republican Task Force on the Agriculture Emergency, Title V, which was released in March 1978.

Fisher said he favors the legislation because beef then would be imported only when necessary, which, according to Fisher, would be when domestic production was down, thereby giving "more balance of price of beef." He also said he supports farmers in their drive to let Con-

Their aim in the move, which exerts strong upward pressure on interest rates generally, was to attract international investors into dollar-denominated securities - and at the same time convince skeptical currency traders that the country was willing to take some strong medicine in order to deal with inflation.

After Wednesday's runaway advance, the Dow pulled back nearly 11 points Thursday as investors began to take a more wary approach.

And by Friday interest rates began to show clear evidence of the impact of the government's moves. On Friday morning. New York's Citibank raised its prime lending rate a half percentage point, to 10 3/4 percent. Several other banks, which had just finished pushing their basic rates on bluechip loans to 101/2 percent, quickly joined Citibank at the 10 3/4 level.

Jensen noted that the stock market overcame a formidable obstacle in Wednesday's rally - continued forced selling resulting from margin maintenance calls on stock that had been bought using loans from brokers.

Declines in such stocks reduce their collateral value against the loans, and when that value goes below minimum limits, the broker issues a margin call to the investor involved to put up additional

The Market Meter Support For Dollar Boosts Stock Market

Schneider, Bernet & Hickman, Inc.

After one of its biggest collapses in history earlier this week, the stock market exploded with surging volume across a broad front in response to the Carter administration's efforts to bolster the sagging dollar. Wednesday, the Dow Jones industrial average skyrocketed 35.34 points to 827.79, exceeding its previous single-session record of 32.93 points on Aug. 16, 1971. In the 12 sessions prior to Wednesday's move the index sustained a net drop of 104.64 points.

The market's rebound came after the Federal Reserve Board announced an increase to 912 percent from 812 percent in the discount rate it charges on loans to member banks, establishment of a supplementary reserve requirement equal to 2 percent on large certificates of deposit and increases in the Fed's swap arrangements with the central banks of Germany, Japan and

Analysts maintain the measures indicate the administration is finally getting serious about defending the dollar and also means business about beating inflation even if it requires the economy to go into a recessionary phase. Among investors there seems to be a complete change in psychology

Most analysts are looking for a strong initial rebound from the extreme oversold condition to be followed by further testing or consolidation later in November before a sustainable new advance develops. They point out that the last two weeks was the most over-sold period in stock market history. Analysts believe that the stock market is telling the government that the Fed's recent action will slow the growth of business activity but it is prepared to meet that, rather than face double-digit inflation in 1979.

The stock market received more good news this week as unemployment fell and the nation's basic money supply, M1, fell $5.4 billion during the Oct. 25 week while a broader measure, known as M2. fell $3.6 billion from the previous week. This news sparked speculation that short-term interest rates may be nearing a peak. There is also belief that this huge decline in both M1 and M2 indicates that the money supply could be coming under control after an extended period of credit tightening by the Federal Reserve.

Most banks moved to raise their prime rate, the minimum lending rate for corporate borrowers, to 10% percent from 10% percent Friday.

The dollar gained against all major foreign currencies this week as news of the raising of the discount rate spread through the European exchanges. The dollar gained against the German mark, Swiss franc, and Japanese yen as speculators caught holding these currencies scrambled to move into the dollar.

Experts believe more of the same is in order after the dollar's long decline.

bust constitution, my eye. You should have seen how much oxygen was necessary to revive him.

Among economists in this country there is little disagreement that the economy was sick and in danger of getting sicker. There was increased concern about inflation, the dollar was in a steep fall and the stock market's Dow Jones industrial average tumbled more than 100 points in the previous two weeks. Strong medicine seemed needed.

But even the Carter administration officials, who hope the plan will bolster the dollar and slow inflation, acknowledge that there is a gamble involved. As Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal put it: "The risks of high interest rates following on the heel of this action causing (an economic) slowdown are there."

Many economists feel that the program, which almost immediately set off a round of interest-rate increases in the banking world, raises the risk of recession sometime next year by choking off business spending and slowing housing construction and consumer buying. But they disagree on how great the risk is and how severe any recession could be.

The counterbalance is that doing nothing - and allowing the dollar and the stock market to fall further - also could trigger a recession.

Interest rates are a key part of the program. It included a rare 1 percent jump in the Federal Reserve's lending rate to banks, a special increase in certain reserve requirements for banks and a $30 billion increase in the amount of currency available for the U.S. government to use in defending the dollar on foreign exchange markets.

The squeeze on money and higher interest rates is likely to be the most bitter medicine for the U.S. economy, but in some views it was the best option availa-

"Higher interest rates provoke a smile overseas but a frown in the domestic economy," says Walter Heller, University of Minnesota economics professor and former adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. The reason for two-faced interest rates partly is found in the simple fact that those who are collecting them view them far differently than those who are paying them.

In those terms, higher interest rates in the United States mean funds in other countries may move to dollar-denominated investments in this country as better

Higher interest rates also could help restore confidence in the dollar because they usually slow down the growth in the nation's money supply, which tends to dampen inflation.

One reason for its 18-month decline was the virulence of U.S. inflation, now nearly 10 percent. That reduced the value of the dollar compared to currencies of countries with lower rates. In other business and economic devel-

President Predicting Demo Victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Satisfied he has fulfilled his leadership role in the election campaign, President Carter is predicting "a Democratic victory" if oniv the voters will turn out.

Carter campaigned in some 20 states since Labor Day. In the process, he appears to have cemented his own control of the party.

Democratic Party Chairman John White accompanied the president on nearly every campaign trip. Administration officials and Carter family members made 1,100 campaign appearances of their own.

Carter political coordinator Tim Kraft said the White House scheduled campaign efforts on the basis of two criteria: the closeness of the election and the degree of support the administration had received from the congressman seeking re-election help.

Despite the White House exertions, Kraft said there is "an across-the-board concern about the turnout on election

That was a dominant theme of Carter's from Wall Street to the West Coast on his just-concluded six-state campaign swing: Democrats must get out the vote: low turnouts are likely to help the

Described as "a bit tired," Carter wound up his last two days of campaigning Saturday morning and headed for Camp David where he planned to relax with his family until Tuesday when he returns to the White House

At his last stop in Duluth, Minn., Carter told a Democratic gathering he would rather "be with my family at Camp David" but added, "I came here tonight because I cared ... It's important to care. We didn't get where we are by giving

My friends, we are going to have a great Democratic victory Nov. 7."

During his appearances Carter would devote a good portion of his speeches to naming the Democratic candidates and dispensing praise that ranged from effusive to lukewarm.

He was especially lavish in his praise of California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., a potential presidential rival who looks like a safe bet for re-election and did not really need Carter's help.

Clements Predicts Victory Over Hill In Top State Race

During a final pre-election stop in Lubbock. Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements predicted Saturday his ultimate win over Democrat John Hill at the polls Tuesday.

Clements made the statement at a news conference attended by his wife and several supporters in addition to local news media.

Even Mr. Hill's manager conceeds he is in deep trouble in West Texas, Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth," Clements said. Clements attributed his eventual win to the support he says he has accrued among independents throughout the state. "Independent is just another word for 'ticket-splitter," Clements commented, "and in Texas it's the ticket-splitters who decide the race. Clements came out in favor of the socalled "tax amendment" which will appear on Tuesday's ballot, saying it wil reduce state taxes by approximately $5 million dollars per year." As governor he will make sure the "full intent of the amendment is passed by the legislature."

Air Force Essay Contest Announced

Texas high school seniors will have the opportunity to compete for $2,000 in scholarships to be awarded the winners of a statewide essay contest by the Texas Air Force Association.

Haynes Baumgardner, president of the Lubbock Chapter, said the Texas AFA-Earle North Parker Scholarships are awarded annually to three Texas high school seniors.

The scholarships this year have been increased to $1,000, $750 and $250.

This year's essay topic is "The U. S. Air Force - A National Resource." All entries must be submitted by Nov. 30.

inflation and the declining dollar. But even if the programs work, they probably will also slow the economy, which is why a sharp economic slowdown is finding its way into many economic forecasts.

However, White House spokesman Jody Powell pointed to the drop in unemployment from 6 percent to 5.8 percent in October as "further evidence that the economy can withstand the new anti-inflation moves without a recession.'

Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, told a congressional committee late in the week that "the administration does not propose to deal with inflation by creating a recession and sharply rising unemployment

A contrasting viewpoint is offered by George Perry, a prominent economist at the Brookings Institution here, where Schultze was employed until he joined the Carter administration.

Perry says he believes a recession is virtually assured for 1979 because of the higher interest rates that will result from Carter's actions.

"The high interest rates will cut into an economy that is already slowing and that will be enough to tip us into a recession," he said in an interview.

According to Perry's argument, higher interest rates will drive borrowing costs so high that businesses, homebuyers and other consumers will be forced to cut back on their purchases.

An increase in unemployment would be the next development in such a scenario as factories and businesses reduce their operations because of declining demand for their products. Business profits also decline, and new business investment

Part of the government's dollar-support package, announced by Carter Wednesday, was an almost unprecedented full percentage point increase in the government's bank lending rate to 9.5 percent, assuring other higher interest rates throughout the economy.

Higher interest rates are supposed to dampen inflation precisely because they do slow the economy. They reduce de mand for goods, which takes pressure off prices. The threat of more unemployment in a weakening economy can cause workers to moderate their wage demands, which also eases price pressures.

Perry said a recession in 1979 was a strong possibility even before the latest actions. But he said the risk has now been raised "from a close call to about a two-thirds to one-third probability.'

However, he said if a recession does occur, it probably will be much more mild than the 1974-1975 economic slow-down, Perry said unemployment might rise to 7 percent, from the current 5.8 percent rate, but that would be a big improvement over the 9 percent rate in the last

A recession is considered to occur when the economy, as measured by the gross national product, declines for at least two quarters, or six consecutive

Administration economists say they believe the economy has enough strength to take some further tightening without being pushed over the precipice into re-

Lyle E. Gramley, a member of the Council of Economic Advisers, acknowledged in an interview that the outlook for 1979 is uncertain.

"There are very disparate views developing about what 1979 holds," he said.

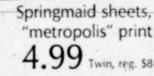

"It is very difficult to be solidly convinced where the economy is going next-year in view of the turmoil that we've. seen in international exchange markets, in the stock market ...

But Gramley said he thinks the econo-1 my will grow at about 3 percent rate next year, enough to keep unemployment from worsening much beyond the 6 per-cent level. Until last week, the administration had been projecting growth of 3 percent to 3.5 percent.

Castro County Attorney's Race Proves Lively

By ESTHER LONGORIA Avalanche-Journal Staff

The race for county attorney for Castro County has been one of the hottest contests across a 32-county region, where only 11 counties will have locally contested races in Tuesday's general election.

Keith Lemons, 28, recent Baylor University Law School graduate, is waging a spirited write-in campaign against Democratic nominee Jimmy Davis, 33, who was appointed Castro County Attorney last November.

After a seven-month legal battle between Davis and Lemons, the Castro County Democratic Executive Committee in September appointed Davis as their nominee in the general election.

During the battle, Lemons argued Davis had failed to satisfy a six-month residency requirement and successfully sued to have Davis' name stricken from the May primary ballot, leaving Lemons name as the only one on the ballot.

However, Davis successfully countersued to have Lemons declared ineligible for the nomination because he was not yet a licensed attorney. Both suits were appealed to the Texas Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court dismissed Lemons' appeal Oct. 2 "for want of jurisdiction" and overruled his motion for a writ of mandamus. The action meant Lemons' name would not appear on the general election ballot and left him Lemons to pursue a write-in campaign.

Meanwhile, Lemons has since been licensed to practice law, and Davis achieved the residency requirement in April making both men eligible for the Barbara Harris currently serves as justice of the peace. County Judge Leslie Pratt appointed Mrs. Harris after Richard Nelson, whose name is on the ballot, was suspended by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct in July.

The suspension came after a Dawson County grand jury indicted Nelson for misapplication of public funds and bur-Nelson's trial has been set for Nov.

Dawson County voters also will be watching the race for county commissioner Pct. 2, which pits the Democratic nominee Kenneth Pearson, a farmer, against write-in candidate A.B. Furlow, who has held the spot for 25 years. Pearson defeated Furlow in the May primary by a 319-318 vote.

The race for Gaines County Judge has captured the interest of voters there. Democratic nominee Max Townsend, a former industrial arts teacher in the Seagraves school system, is facing opposition from write-in candidate Bob Clark, Seminole mayor. Voter interest has been high in the race because of a Seminole man's suit requesting that Townsend's name be removed from the ballot, that he not be allowed to run as a write-in candidate and that he not be allowed to take office.

In the suit, George C. Shirling Jr. contended Townsend failed to submit his list of contributions and expenditures as required by guidelines of the Texas Election Code.

Judge George Hansard of the 106th Judicial District denied Shirling's request Oct. 30.

Townsend explained that the county clerk had not received new forms for filing the financial statement and that he was given an old form and old instructions. He said because of this he was not aware of new instructions as to filing

In the central portion of the South Plains, a three-way contest has emerged for sheriff of Crosby County.

Democratic nominee Fred Owen, 33, was appointed Crosby County sheriff after Fletcher Stark's resignation in April. His opposition includes Independent L.T. Legendary Figures Sweep Into Lubbock

Avalanche-Journal Staff Perched precariously atop a slanted roof, attired in top hat and tails, the figure clutches a long wire brush, a symbol of his centuries-old trade, as he bends over the red brick chimney.

He seems an anachronism - incongruous in the 1970s of wide open, clear West Texas. But he's not really so out of place, for the chimney sweep has been around since colonial times in this country; it just took some time for him to make it down this way.

But the legendary figure, which usually brings to mind the crowded factory slums of England, has now come to Lubbock. Several residents have ventured into the fireplace cleaning business in recent months as an investment and in recognition of a necessity in fire prevention

My mom came up with the idea of a chimney sweep business," said Beth Froust, the "B" half of B & R Chimney Sweep. "When she was a little girl, they had an old-fashioned stove in their home and one of her duties was to clean it. She saw the necessity of getting a fireplace cleaned because of the

According to Rodney Martin, Beth's partner, and Al Manny, known as Al the Chimney Sweep, creosote that builds up in chimneys is a potential cause of fire. "All wood is composed of 20-25 percent water," Manny said. "As the wood burns, the water becomes a steam that rises in the chimney. As it burns, it converts to creosote - an oily substance that solidifies on the flue walls and creates a fire hazard."

There are about 40,000 chimney fires a year at a total cost of about $23 million;" Martin said. "Chimney fires are the eighth largest reason for home

Both businesses were also started as an investment, both in time and money. "I was looking for an idea — something to do that required little capital investment and mostly time," Manny said. "It seemed like a good idea. The literature I read indicated there was a need. And it was a need that fit closely with my insurance." Manny works for a local insurance agency and runs his sweep business on the side.

I wanted something to invest in while I was working," Miss Froust said. Then during the summer I made it a full-time job. I wanted to make something of it." She now has a job in addition to the sweep business, but Martin has made B & R a full-time occupation.

All the sweeps found information on the business and the names of equipment companies in magazine articles. Manny started his operation in September, and B & R opened its doors in May.

The sweeps from both businesses were pleased with the results of their efforts. "I was very skeptical at first," Miss Froust said. "I thought nobody in West Texas has heard of chimney cleaning and they won't want to do it. We had a hard time getting it going.'

"We started in May and people just don't think about their fireplaces in the summer," Martin said. They both said that business has picked up, though, with the change in seasons. "It's catching on," Martin said.

"We're very pleased with our business," Manny said. "We're getting referrals and my wife is following up on the letters we send out to advertise the speechless. "As far back as Shakespeare's time, the English public despised the soot-begrimed chimney men," wrote George Lewis Phillips, author of "American Chimney Sweeps." "They were shunned for their filthy appearance and stench. For centuries, the sweep in England was the pariah of society."

The respectability of sweeps has improved considerably, as has their appearance. Martin and Manny wear the traditional top hat (and tails in Manny's case) associated with their predecessors, but only for show. It's coveralls when they get down to business.

That top hat is a good luck symbol, according to Miss Froust. "The English had steep roofs and sweeps wore the top hat for good luck to keep from falling off the roofs," she said.

Manny's costume apparently has been too much for some customers to ignore. "I go to the door in hat and tails," said Manny, "and we've had several comments like, 'Nobody died here.' They were in jest but we still get them." The two Lubbock sweeps will clean a fireplace for a fee of $40-$45. That charge covers about 11/2 hours of work by Martin, who works alone. Manny said he can get a job done with his helper in 35-40 minutes Both businesses work out of a van or truck that carries their equipment. The tools of the modern trade include an industrial vacuum, flexible rod, tool box and a selection of brushes. Manny said his equipment cost about $1,500.

The sweepers remove more than just soot and creosote from their clients' "We find all sorts of good things - birdnests, basketballs and footballs," Miss Froust said. Manny added tennis balls and unburned paper cups

Both members of B & R are optimistic about the future of their operations. "We feel that next year the word will get around," Miss Froust said. "We'd like to expand and eventually get a building."

"I think we're seeing a rebirth of the chimney sweep," Manny said. "They have existed in New England states, but in a lesser degree than there is now. Of course, fireplaces are a source of heat there. They have to have them cleaned. Here we burn fires for the enjoyment.

"We're in the business," he said, "but I don't know that I'd want to do it on a full-time basis. I'm not a TV watcher, though, and it gives me something to

Suffering from deadly hypoplastic anemia, the 7-year-old Guadalupe Elementary School student must have $150 of medicine every month that her family cannot afford and that Medicaid has taken off its approved funding list of medicines.

The Lubbock Osteopathic Hospital Guild leads contributions so far with a gift of $400.

About two dozen individuals have given another $400, and Dr. Donald Craig, foundation president, said Friday that another 30 contributions are coming in from Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Dr. Craig said the total probably will go to at least $1,000.

The March of Dimes has promised to buy two months of medicine and the children's foundation one month next year, so the nine-month need of $1,125 has nearly been met.

Dr. Suit Cheng Fang, her hematologist at Health Sciences Center Hospital, said, however, that more money is needed because Alma may have to take the medicine, Desferal, "for the rest of her life."

Desferal is used to remove the iron deposits that collect in her body from the repeated blood transfusions necessary to combat hypoplastic anemia.

Dr. Fang said the drug was removed from the Medicaid list because there was not a large enough need for it nationally. Contributions must be made to West

Four Businesses Fall Victim To Burglars For Large Sums

Clifford Turner, co-owner of Continental Hair Fashions, 2846 34th St., told police that when he arrived at his firm about 7:30 a.m. Saturday he found the back door had been pried and a 20-inch hole knocked in the west wall of the business.

The passageway from the beauty parlor led into Bill Price's Western Shop, where the intruders pried the door of that business' safe from its hinges and got away with about $4,000 worth of goods, according to owner Bill Price.

Price said the safe was located in a storage area in the back of the store and that the burglars made off with two .38caliber pistols, $2,000 worth of silver for saddles, two coin collections together valued at $1,075, $200 cash, turquoise jewelry, spurs and clothing.

The double break-in occurred sometime between 7:15 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Saturday, according to reports.

A safe also was the target of intruders at Mama's Pizza, 1309 University Ave., early Saturday.

Restaurant manager Darby Patrick Kurtin told officers someone took that firm's safe from a locked second floor office. He said the safe, worth $150, contained $2,107 in cash and $283 in checks

Reed said the pair knocked him to the ground, took his wallet and money clip and then one of the men placed what felt like a gun to the victim's back and told him to get up and run.

The broadcast said Amin sent a message to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and other international organizations saying, "This intimidation of Uganda by a superpower is not only a threat to peace in this region of Africa but also to the continent as a whole."

Amin reportedly said America wants to take advantage of the Ugandan-Tanzanian conflict to "create another Vietnam in Uganda Radio said Tanzanian troops on the southern side of the 50-yard-wide Kagera River, which is the deepest point of the Ugandan advance, staged a 15-hour "heavy attack" against Ugandan positions on the northern bank beginning at 5 p.m. local time Friday.

Details of the attack were sketchy, but the broadcast quoted Amin as saying the Ugandan troops "joked and laughed" at he Tanzanians.

An informed government source in the Ugandan capital of Kampala told a Nairobi reporter by telephone that the Tanzanian attack consisted of small-arms and mortar fire.

"They lobbed mortars all the time," said the source, who requested anonymity. "Our boys just laid back and took life

It was not clear whether the Tanzanian barrage was the start of a major counteroffensive promised by Tanzania or merely retaliation for the Ugandans' demolition Friday of the Taka Bridge over the Kagera, which would have been the main access route for any land attack against the Ugandan force.

The Ugandans are occupying 700 square miles of Tanzanian territory between the river and the Ugandan border, about 700 miles northwest of the Tanzanian capital of Dar Es Salaam.

Amin says he is annexing the land to Uganda. Ugandan government sources and anti-Arnin Ugandan exiles alike say the objective of the cross-border invasion was to prevent the use of this part of northwest Tanzania as a launching pad

There have been no casualty reports from either side since the invasion launched last Monday. It was reported in mid-week that 2,000 to 3,000 Ugandan soldiers were fighting an undetermined Kyaka, at the southern end of the Taka

Bridge. A lengthy statement issued by the official Tanzanian news agency Saturday described Amin, a one-time Ugandan army boxing champion, as a "lunatic ex-boxa "megalomaniac ruler" and the devilish son of a Nubian witch doctor."

It concluded: "The world - originally led to suspect Tanzania's military capa bility on the basis of its low-profile ap proach toward Amin's early provocations — now has a chance to witness its will and determination to protect its people and country against intrusion." Amin has suggested that the conflict be mediated by the United Nations and the Organization of African Unity. But Nyerere has ruled out negotiations and pledged to drive "this snake from our

From all the "goat-ropin's to county fairs and windmill fixin's" they played, Tiny has more than a few entertaining stories about his work.

He organized his first band at age 15 in Fort Sumner and played his first dance for the Jaycees there in a building near the Billy the Kid Museum.

"We had five rhythm guitars and one steel player," he said. "There were some windows out of the building, and wind and snow was blowing through. There was an old pot-bellied stove in the

"When I had a chance to play two nights for $40, I shucked that gas station," he said

One of his more unpleasant jobs was playing a convenience store opening in Portales in 1965. It was in the dog days of summer, and there was no good place to play except on the front of the roof. They pulled their equipment up on ropes from the purple-velvet lined hearse they traveled in - with a "Home Sweet Home" sign in the back window - and played for several hours with towels around their heads under their hats to break the heat.

We played a while back in a mortuarhe said, for a lodge meeting there. y," he said, for a louge lifeting.
"Where we played is where they set the casket, and they danced where the peoroom if they wanted to sit down and come in where we were to dance. "Wilburn Roach said, 'I've played a lot of things, but I never played a funeral

"Everybody thinks this business is all roses, but we've played outside when it was raining, when the wind was blowing and it was so cold our hands were freezing. We've changed an inside tire on the bus when it was cold and changed tires on the trailer in sandstorms."

But in spite of the hardships, there has never been anything else he wanted to

Born in Portales and reared there unfil he was in his teens, music was his only interest until the family moved to Fort Sumner and the football coach noticed the hall darken and looked around at the 285-pound youngster moving lightheartedly toward him

Naturally, the coach did not see a musician; he saw a lineman.

At about 6 feet tall and broad as a church door. Tiny was then and is now more big than fat. He had never played football, though, and at first declined the entreaty to come out for the team. He knew nothing about the game, he said, but the coach said that was all right; they would tell him what to do on each play.

"I was the biggest kid that had ever played football there," he said. "They had to order all my equipment from a professional line, even the helmet. I had a big head even then.

"I played offense and defense both. I never studied plays. They'd say, 'Okay, Tiny, we're going to come through there, so move that guy - left or right. I'd say, 'Okay,' and sometimes I would, and sometimes I wouldn't.

"I never did learn them Xs and Os." Once out of high school and away from football, he moved without hesitation to make a living as a musician.

His parents had bought him a guitar when he was 7; he had a radio show in Portales at 9 and 10; and he was on television first at 12 in Roswell. He was working with a band in Clayton, N.M., at age 19 when another musician asked him how many songs he knew. He had never thought of it before. so he went back to the motel and wrote down 900. He has no idea of how many he knows now, he says. An Amarillo radio station manager and songwriter, Johnny Hathcock, told Tiny and Eva recently that he was writing a chapter about them in a book he is doing about country music because they have been highly successful without the benefit of hit records.

Tax Relief Called Slight Proposed Amendment Benefit Doubted

accounts, stocks, bonds, life insurance policies, retirement benefits and similar paper assets - be taxed. In practice, lowever, local governments are powerless to locate and assess most intangible

The amendment would remove the constitutional mandate, thus making the law consistent with practice. But cityschool officials fear there may be a catch to this provision.

Lubbock and other local governments now are able to tax at least one kind of intangible property - bank stock, because such information is readily accessible. This year, taxes on bank stocks amount to about $580,000 for the Lubbock Independent School District and $470,000 for the City of Lubbock.

If intangibles are exempted altogether, Brooks and other officials say, other taxpayers may have to pay more to replace lost bank-stock revenues. Theoretically, to even things up, the school district would have to raise its tax rate nearly five cents and the city almost four cents.

Legislators reply that they won't let that happen. Goliad Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, amendment author, notes that the amendment still allows the legislature to tax intangibles by statute. When laws are written to carry out the amendment, the existing statutes taxing intangibles, such as bank stock and railroad rolling stock, will continue in effect," he promis-

The next section of the amendment exempts household goods - which aren't taxed anyway - and allows the legislature to exempt up to two automobiles per

Taking the levy off motor vehicles probably will result in a heavier levy on other kinds of property. "We'd be shifting the burden from personal to real property. The main advantage is that real roperty is easier to collect on," school poard president Charles Waters said at a recent board meeting.

The school district's auto tax levy this year totals $1.28 million, the city's $1.04 million. A two-car exemption is estimated to cost the school district $830,000 and the city $670,000. To make up for the loss, the district could have to raise its tax rate six cents and the city five cents.

Another provision of the Tax Relief Amendment concerns taxation of agricultural land

The provision would instruct the legislature to tax farmland according to its productivity value - and not necessarily according to its market value. The market value of some farmland in or near cities is much higher than productivity value because the land would make good residential development.

Present law already gives individuals whose primary occupation and source of income is farming such special treatment. Jim Kilchenstein, Brooks's chief deputy, said 45 to 50 landowners here have applied and qualified.

On today's market, their land might be worth $8,000 an acre (combined cityschool taxes: $120), $5,000 an acre (citychool taxes: $75) or $3,000 an acre ($45), Kilchenstein said.

But by qualifying for special treatment, the city's farmers can ried on city-school tax rolls at a productivity value of, say, $350 an acre - resulting in a city-school tax of $5.25.

The proposed constitutional amendment would authorize the legislature to allow landowners and possibly corporations whose primary occupation and income are not farming to have their land taxed on the basis of agricultural productivity. Kilchenstein said broadening the eligibility "would definitely cost the city and school district some tax revenues. The loss has been estimated at $100,000 for the city and $150,000 for the school district. Tax officials say the real loss could be much greater, depending on how the enabling legislation is written. The amendment specifies that the state will reimburse school districts for "all or part" of the loss resulting from the use of productivity values. Any loss not picked up by the state - including all of the city's loss - would fall back on other taxpayers, tax officials said.

The next part of the amendment outlines a series of new residential homestead exemptions for school tax purpos-

Every homeowner would be able to subtract the first $5,000 from the market value of his place of residence before the school tax formula is applied. Also, the legislature could grant more relief to the elderly and disabled by giving them an additional homestead exemption of up to $10,000 of market value on their school emptions without having to raise their tax rates, the legislature again promises in the amendment to reimburse districts for "all or part" of the revenue loss.

The Lubbock Property Owners Association board of directors says the use of market-value exemptions is curious. In the past, exemptions always have been based on assessed values - the percentage of market value that a city or school district decides is subject to tax.

In Lubbock, assessed value is 60 percent of market value. A $5,000 marketvalue exemption translates into a $3,000 assessed-value exemption; a $10,000 market-value exemption converts to a $6,000 assessed-value exemption. Assuming the Lubbock school tax rate stays at $1.38 per $100 assessed value, the Tax Relief Amendment would give each homeowner a tax break of $41.40. An elderly or disabled homeowner would get a break of up to $82.80 more.

The property owners associastion says the saving for the typical homeowner really isn't very much. The use of market-value exemptions "gives politicians big dollars to talk about but little relief for taxpayers," the association said in a study of the amendment.

About 30,000 to 35,000 homes in Lubbock would be expected to qualify for the $5,000 market-value exemption. Giving each of those homes a $41.40 tax cut would cost up to $1.45 million.

Brooks notes that the legislature has set aside $450 million to cover the cost of the exemptions and the school districts' loss of revenue due to treatment of farmland. "But what if this money isn't enough? Or if the legislature is unable to continue reimbursing districts in future years?" Brooks asks. Presumably, he said, school districts would have to pay for the exemptions by raising their tax rates, thus "accomplishing little if any tax relief." The property owners association said that overall the Tax Relief Amendment is conflicting, meaningless and ambiguous... the legislature did not give the voters much choice and only a token of tax relief ... This is a Band-Aid, a case of political window dressing."

The property owners association gave the amendment a half-hearted endorsement because passage of the measure might impress our legislature that the citizens of Texas desire some affirmative

New Congress, Issues Face Voters Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) - America's voters choose a new Congress on Tuesday, with Democrats likely to emerge almost as dominant as in the old.

The Republicans, chronically in need of a comeback, claim their chances have been enhanced by economic woes besetting the consumer at home and the dollar in foreign money markets.

But President Carter insists he has remedies that will work on both fronts. and urged the voters to "stick with me" as he made a final Democratic campaign

Along with a new House of Representatives and 34 senators, the voters will elect governors in 36 states and fill thousands of other state and local offices. Wide Range Of Issues

They'll ballot on issues ranging from taxes to false teeth.

And about half of them doubt that the outcome of the mid-term elections will have any real impact on their lives.

That kind of skepticism may account for the prospect of a low voter turnout, perhaps short of the 39.6 percent of voting age Americans who went to the polls four years ago in the last off-year elections. Only 36 percent bothered to cast ballots for congressional candidates that

A total of 155.5 million citizens could vote if they chose, an increase of 5.5 million since the 1976 presidential election.

Places At Stake At stake in the Tuesday balloting -All 435 seats in the House. When the now held by Democrats, 17 by Republicans. In the last Congress. Democrats controlled the Senate 61 to 39.

One senator, Democrat J. Bennett Johnston, already has won re-election by virtue of a Louisiana primary system that matches all candidates and gives office to any who gain a majority.

-Thirty-six governors. Those contests are in 26 states which now have Democratic governors, nine where Republicans govern, and in Maine, to succeed retiring independent James B. Longley. 37 Demo Governors

Overall, there are now 37 Democratic governors and only 12 Republicans. -Legislatures in 45 states. There, too. the Republicans are hurting. In 36 states, Democrats control both branches of the legislature, while Republicans have full control in only five. The Republican National Committee has waged a million-dollar campaign effort to gain legislative seats, hoping to shake the Democrats' advantage before legislatures set about redrawing congressional district boundaries after the 1980

-A variety of proposals to cut or limit taxes and spending, on the ballot in 16 states. That's another installment of the tax rebellion evidenced by California's Proposition 13 property tax cuts.

Prominent Issues

There are other issues on state ballots, too - among them a "right-to-work" ban on the union shop in Missouri, a ban on smoking in most public places in California, casino gambling in Florida, and a measure that would permit people in Oregon to buy dentures without getting them through a dentist.

Despite the historic pattern of opposition party congressional gains in off-year elections, the Republicans are not likely to reap much in this year's balloting

Most of the guessing puts their House gain at about 10 seats, perhaps fewer.

In Senate competition, the Democrats may gain a seat or two, given the difficult contests faced by Republicans like Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, who announced his retirement and then changed his mind, and Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, who admitted misstatements about his personal finances in a divorce case. Republicans are counting on gaining currently Democratic seats with Rep. Larry Pressler in South Dakota, and Rep. William S. Cohen, who is challenging Sen. William Hathaway in Maine.

The Democrats are confident they can capture Republican seats in New Jersey, with former pro basketball player Bill Bradley, in Nebraska with Gov. J. J. Exon and in Oklahoma with Gov. David

Those look like the safest bets. There are no sure things outside Alabama, where Democrat Howell Heflin, a former state chief justice, has only to defeat a Prohibitionist Party candidate to win cratic control in the new Congress, it will be newer than most, simply because 71 members are not running for re-election. So there will be at least 58 new members

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Troops trying to keep student protesters from marching to the home of a Moslem holy man opened fire with automatic weapons and tear gas Saturday near Tehran University. The students claimed at least 40 persons were killed but the government denied there were any deaths.

Other unconfirmed reports said at least 10 youths were shot dead and 30 wound-Information Minister Mohammed Reza Ameli-Tehrani said the reports of deaths were "not true." He did, however, confirm that many persons had been injured.

Government sources said the troops opened fire into the crowd of students when they did not obey orders to disperse as they attempted to march to the home of Avatullah Taleghani. The youths responded by throwing bricks and setting fire to cars, the sources said. Moslem ayatullahs have been among the key leaders of the current anti-government campaign

Witnesses later reported the violence spread to the city's main avenue, where the youths shattered ground-floor windows of the American-owned Intercontinental Hotel, and set fire to a bus and a fire truck.

Official Iran Radio reported anti-government demonstrations in 17 other towns and cities throughout the country resulting in four deaths and an undisclosed number of injuries. The broadcast said the demonstrators, led by religious leaders and opposition politicians, demanded the end of martial law in Tehran and 11 others Iranian cities and a number of political concessions. In the central Iranian city of Isfahan, tens of thousands of demonstrators marched peacefully through the streets showering battle-ready troops with flowers. Isfahan is the site of a giant Iranian air force base. About 11,000 Americans live and work in the city. The anti-government violence was the latest in months of protests by orthodox Moslems against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's westernization of this traditional Islamic society and by political dissidents demanding democratic reforms. The National Iranian Oil Co., mea-while, was trying to restore some normalcy to the strike-bound oil industry by dispatching retired personnel and key executives to oil production sites.

An NIOC spokesman said about 40 tankers were lying at anchor at Kharg Island terminal in the Persian Gulf waiting to take on crude oil. The normal daily production of 5.4 million barrels has fallen to about 2 million barrels. The strike by oil workers demanding higher pay, an end to martial law and release of political prisoners is costing the country nearly $60 million a day.

Striking employes of government-run Iran Air have ignored repeated warnings to get the airline's fleet operative again. That strike is costing millions of dollars a day in lost revenue. Iran Air ground crews at Tehran airport continue to service foreign airlines, however,

The pressure on the shah increased as politicians and religious leaders kept up an unrelenting war of words aimed at toppling him from his throne and keeping the crowds in the streets.

Avatullah Khomaini, head of Iran's predominant Shiite Moslem sect, said from his exile base in a Paris suburb that he would withdraw his support from any politician who negotiates with the shah. A leading opposition politician, Karim Sanjaby, announced in Paris, meanwhile, that he will not be meeting with the shah soon, as Iranian government officials had reported last week. It had been expected that Sanjaby, who conferred with Khomaini last week, would open negotiations with the monarch

District 75-B state Rep. Froy Salinas, 38, is being challenged by David Hester, 49, an office supply businessman.

Salinas, apparently confident about his re-election chances, has been in South Texas campaigning for gubernatorial candidate John Hill. Hester recently charged Salinas received state funds for trips from Austin to Lubbock which did not cost Salinas anything. However, Salinas, a one-term representative, presented proof he refunded the state money when he discovered he had mistakenly received it. With the retirement of District Clerks J.R. Dever, voters must choose between Democrat Verna Boyd and Republican Dixie Ryan to replace him. Mrs. Boyd. 46, has been chief deputy district clerk the past 15 years. Mrs.

Rvan, 48, is a businesswoman and parttime teacher. Twenty-year Pct. 4 County Commissioner Alton Brazell, a Democrat, faces a re-election challenge from Raza Unida candidate Bidal Aguero, 29. Aguero is editor and publisher of El Editor, a weekly bilingual newspaper, and El Portavoz, a quarterly bilingual magazine. Republican Claude Cravens, 61, a Slaton attorney, is challenging incumbent Pct. 2 Justice of the Peace Arvin Stafford, 41, a Democrat. Republican gubernatorial candidate

Bill Clements visited Lubbock briefly on a swing through West Texas that also took him to Midland and Fort Stockton. While here he predicted that "a large number of Democrats are going to vote for me" and observed that "many Texans are ticket splitters."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: "The unfolding sage of acqueline Onassis has contained murder, betrayal, uspense, powerful men who have used and missed our beautiful heroine," writes Stephen Birningham in his new biography, "Jacqueline Bouler Kennedy Onassis." Yet, in the end, she manthrough the assassination of her husband.

PART 8: From First Lady To Widow

By STEPHEN BIRMINGHAM After Jackie's wildly enthusiastic reception by the French, Jack Kennedy realized, more clearly than ever before, what an enormous political asset his wife had become. She provided something that the Kennedy family had never had before - elegance and style. None of the other Kennedy women had it, but Jackie did and the public loved it. As they say in the theater, it "played." Politically, Jackie was a highly exploitable property. As for Jackie herself, she had begun to realize how valuable she had become to her husband, how much he needed her to fill what was essentially a decorative role. The marriage had become, by now, little more than a matter of mutual convenience - a union of two mercurial strong-willed, stubborn people who, like so many children of the rich, were rather used to getting their own way and were not happy when they didn't. Any romantic love that might have once existed between the two had long evaporated. Though close friends were aware of the hard little looks that sometimes passed between them, all that was left was a need to put the best public face on things. So a sensible business deal was struck during those first White House months Jackie would supply the elegance, the charm, the class that Kennedy wanted.

He, in turn, would let her do pretty much whatever else she chose. She was also learning how to play on her public. At first, it had been almost instinctive, tentative Now, with growing aplomb that would become magnificent mastery, she was learning to manage her celebrity. Celebrity must be managed, of course, because it is such a fragile commodity that it can easily be destroyed. Most movie stars, particularly women, never learn the trick. Movie stars protest that they cannot go out on the street with being recognized, followed, intruded upon, begged for autographs and snapshots. It's dreadful, the stars complain, to live in a fishbowl of fame. Even more dreadful, on the other hand, are the moments when they are not recognized, not pestered. It is a dilemma that stars face throughout their careers: thirsting for fame, publicity and recognition, then resenting what the fame, publicity and recognition bring with them, the widespread feeling that, stars are public property. But most movie stars have not had Jackie's background and training: her father's lessons in how a woman should keep herself inaccessible, fascinating, ntriguing, exasperating; her mother's knowledge of society's rule that you speak and behave in a manner that suits the occasion, regardless of what you actually think and feel. So Jackie was realizing she could treat her public - already numbering in the millions and growing - exactly as she could treat an admiring escort at a Princeton promapolitely, pleasantly, aloofly. You laughed at the escort's little jokes, you tried to make him feel important. But when the escort's hand squeezed your waist too tightly, you gently pushed the hand away. The squeezing paw of the public could be treated in precisely this fashion. She would give of herself just so much, no more. The result was that the public thought it knew a great deal about her from so many newspaper and magazine stories. At the same time, it was uneasithere was more, somewhere, to know, There would always be more to know about her, and the public would remain frustrated and, of course, intrigued.

In early 1963, she was pregnant again, and the public eagerly watched her pregnancy. And when Patrick Bouvier Kennedy was born Aug. 9 and died two and a half days later of a respiratory infection, the public's heart went out to her. As a result, there was nothing but sympathy for her when, barely 10 days later, she flew to Athens and boarded the yacht Christina, which belonged to Aristotle Onassis, her sister's friend, for a cruise of the Aegean islands.

The Radziwills had been in Athens when the news of the baby's death arloved to surround himself with celebrimight ease Jackie's grief. Lee had telephoned her sister to relay the invitation, and Jackie had accepted. Also invited on the cruise were the Radziwills. Franklin Roosevelt Jr. and his then-wife, Suz-

No eyebrows were raised by the fact that the first lady was traveling without her nusband, nor by the fact that she was the only unescorted woman on the yacht and Onassis the only unescorted man. Nor was anything made of the fact that the Greek shipowner was then heavily in debt to the United States Maritime Administration, and that the cruise for the president's wife might smack, to some, of bribery. At that point, Jackie had become, to her public just what her father had said she had been to him - "all things holy. This was not the first time Jackie had been aboard the Christina. She and her husband had been invited aboard for cocktails one afternoon in Monte Carlo, when Jack Kennedy was still a junior senator from Massachusetts. The purpose had been to meet Sir Winston Churchill, who was then Onassis' pet guest. At the time, Jackie had confided to friends that she found the Christina a bit vulgar, a rich man's garish toy. The master bedroom - dominated by an 18th-century Venetian mirror and a dressing table set out with gold-plated combs, brushes, cosmetics jars and bottles - Ted to a mirror-lined dressing room and the owner's bathroom. Onassis considered his bathroom his piece de resistance. It was an exact replica, in Sienna marble, of the bath in King Minos' lost Palace of Knossos in Crete, with inlaid mosaic flying fish across the walls " Downstairs was the grand salon, which could be converted into a motion-picture theater. On the poop deck was the enormous smoking room with a grand piano and a big open fireplace made out of carved lapis lazuli which. Onassis liked to say, cost $4 a square inch. Then there was the bar, with its walls covered with antique parchment maps, with tiny models of famous ships in glass cases, with barstools covered in white whaleskin - "made from the testicles of a whale." Onassis liked to joke and supported by giant whales' teeth. Below were the nine double guest cabins, each with baths, showers, wash basins with fish-mouth faucets, lavatories and bidets of different-colored marble. each done in a different style and named after a different Greek island - Chios,

Crete, Ithaca, Lesbos and so on. Jackie Kennedy was given Ithaca, which Lady Churchill had preferred and which had also been inhabited by Greta Garbo and Maria Callas. In each guest cabin were instructions on how to telephone the maids' cabin (two trained ladies' maids and a number of valets were on permanent call), the pantry galley for food, the bar for a drink and the laun-

There was also a ship's hospital, complete with surgical and x-ray equipment. The Christina required a crew of 50 more than I need to run a 40,000-ton tanker," Onassis said in mock dismay.

For all his wealth, Onassis was something of a tightwad. A fellow yachtsman had persuaded him of the importance of making petty economies, advising, "Look into the garbage cans in the crew's kitchen." Grotesque as it seems, Onassis had done just that. He made a surprise visit to the crew's kitchen and, yanking the lids from the garbage pails, plunged his hands deep inside. Coming up with handfuls of uneaten spaghetti he cried angrily, "Why has this food been thrown away?"

From then on, the strictest buying economies were undertaken. When Jackie boarded the yacht, the crew was being served no vegetables except beans, no meat but frozen chicken. In the crew's quarters. Onassis had become known as skilapsaro" - the shark.

Of course, none of this fazed Onassis. But the whole style of the Christina its jukebox opulence; its humdrum menus, the boisterous, roughneck style of its burly host, the raucous quality of his entertainments - seemed remarkably at variance with the dainty style in which Jackie had redecorated the White House, her lovely candlelight parties, her concerts, recitals and quartets. Their styles seemed to blend like olive oil and Chanel Number Five. Yet, Jackie enjoyed her cruise on the Christina, the leisurely visits to the ancient Greek islands, where she shopped for gifts for friends and her children. Dining one night in a mountaintop restaurant overlooking the sea, she said she had never had a more pleasant, more relaxed time. When the cruise was over, she seemed almost sad to leave. But there were offily aware that it knew very little - that cial duties to perform in Washington, and she had to face them.

There was, among other things, a trip to Texas coming up. For it, her husband had told her to assemble a wardrobe "that will show rich Texas broads what it's like to be well dressed." She was going home to do just that.

When it was all over, she seemed to fall apart. When she spoke of the assassination in Dallas and the events that followed, her account was so disjointed as to be incoherent. Her speech slurred. her eyes darted. She seemed frightened of everyone and anything that moved.

The realization of what she had undergone seemed to strike all at once when she moved out of the White House and into the Georgetown house that Averell rived. During a dinner with Onassis, who Harriman had made available to her. She suddenly looked, her relatives and ties, Onassis had suggested that a cruise friends thought, terrible - disheveled, haggard, with dark circles under her eyes. She seemed to have lost all interest in her clothes and her appearance. In

One thought, too, of Jackie's father and uncle, both killed by drink. Would that become her fate, as well? Of course, it wouldn't but in those winter weeks, the family was deeply worried. One of her Bouvier uncles by marriage died, and, when Jackie paid a condolence call on her aunt, all she could talk about was death.

Death consumed her, followed her wherever she went, would not leave her alone. Was she perhaps an angel or agent of death? Her father had died, three of her five pregnancies had ended in death and now her husband was dead. Everywhere she went were reminders of death

Special Tariffs May Be Placed On Nails

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Treasury Department said Friday that special tariffs may be imposed on some steel wire nails imported from Canada because the nails are being sold in the United States at prices below the cost of production.

The tariffs will be imposed if domes companies can convince the International Trade Commission they are being injured by the imports. The finding affects Sivaco Wire and Nail Co. and Titan Steel and Wirê Co., two Canadian producers.

Two other companies - Steel Co. of Canada and Tree Island Steel Co. - are not subject to the finding because their prices were only slightly below production costs and they have promised to discontinue the practice, the department

Why had she failed to vote in the 1964 presidential election? Why had she failed to attend the dedication of the Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Garden at the White House? Did she consider having lunch with Marlon Brando more important than these weighty national events? For privacy, she moved in the autumn of 1964 from Washington to New York and into a 15-room cooperative apart-ment overlooking Central Park, the Metropolitan Museum and the reservoir. New York has a reputation for being blase, used to seeing celebrities on the streets. It is a city where a celebrity, though noticed, is usually not pestered, a place where a certain amount of anonymity can be achieved.

In Jackie's case, however, that would be only partly true. She had no soone moved into her apartment than scores of the curious lined the park benches oppose ite the building, waiting for a glimpse their heroine emerging. Photograp pursued her wherever she went. The more she tried to keep her private life a secret, the more curious about the public seemed to be. The more is barricaded herself behind elabor screens of privacy, the greater seemed to be her allure, her mystery, and the more heated and sophisticated became the at tempts to invade the privacy. It began to seem that, if she really wanted privacy, she was using the wrong tactic. But there were some who suspected that private was not really what she wanted either. What she also needed, it began to seem in the months following the president's death, was someone to lean on, to take care of her, to guide and comfort her. Once when Jackie was small, Janet Bouvier had received a telephone call from a New York policeman, who said, 'I have a little girl here. I can't make out her name, but she knows her telephone number. Is she yours?" It was Jackie She and her nurse had become separated in Central Park. CELEBRA tion after Baylor in

Hadnot, Raiders Thump Bears 27-9

Executive Sports Editor

Obviously, Hadnot had it. But, for that matter, so did the young Texas Tech offensive line, and the Tech defense. And, Saturday afternoon, there was little Baylor could do about any of these factors. Even someone up above must have wanted Tech and its returning exes to have a pleasant homecoming; every time the Raiders gained possession of the football, the clouds parted to provide a sunny And by the time the Raiders had built a comfortable lead, the clouds had nothing else to do but watch as Tech pulled a 27-9 surprise on the Bears. Thus, the troops of coach Rex Dockery pulled past the break-even point (at 4-3) for the first time this year. And they will be on a three-game winning streak when they take on TCU in Fort Worth next Sat-

Tech whipped the Bears in just about every phase Saturday. It completely dominated the middle of the offensive line, an area Dockery had labeled as critical to freshman tailback Walter Abercombie with only 35 yards, and they grabbed everything loose in the air or on the Astro-

And when the homesters got possession of the football, the day belonged to James Hadnot.

The rapidly improving fullback who had rushed for more than 400 yards in the last two games, followed his Raider blockers to a whopping 212-yard total. That would have set a new school, singlegame rushing record if he hadn't gained 268 two games back against New Mexico. Hadnot's total was the key to Tech clicking for 359 yards on the ground and 506 total offense.

Fact that the 240-pound tight endturned-fullback didn't score took little away from his performance before a homecoming throng of 48,895, largest crowd to ever see Tech and Baylor tangle. His efforts, on 36 smashes at the line, enabled Tech to maintain possession of the football most of the afternoon.

Hadnot made much of his yardage straight up the middle, following center Kim Taliaferro and guards Joe Walstad and Larry Martin.

And with the defense providing early scoring opportunities, Tech held the lead all afternoon.

Tech intercepted three passes and recovered three fumbles. Three of the turnovers came inside their 10, too. Freshman cornerback Alan Swann was the biggest thief, claiming three of the turno-

Tech did not lose a fumble and had only one interception, but the Raiders had trouble with the flags, drawing 131 yards in penalties.

Those were little things we were doing wrong," commented a relieved Dockery after the game. "We want to cut: down on the motion and other penalties, but we want our players to be aggressive."

On every scoring drive until it hit a 17-9 lead just before the half, Tech suffered at

In the third quarter, Tech squandered two scoring oppurtunities while nursing that 8-point gap (Bill Adams missing a field-goal try and Baylor intercepting in the end zone), but Tech defenders held each time the Bears took over. Then, going into the final four minutes of the quarter, Tech gained possession at its 29. This time the offense clicked.

Ron Reeves kept on an option for 12 before reserve tailback Mark Olbert went up the middle for 5. Reeves then dropped back and had time to count the youngsters in the north end zone while waiting for his receivers to break open. Finally, he hit freshman Randy Page down the middle for 25 yards to the Baylor 29.

Reeves and Hadnot moved it to the 9, before Reeves pulled out going left on the option. He cut back and dived across the goal, and when Adams kicked good, Tech had a 24-9 lead.

For that decisive quarter, Tech's defense had held Baylor to only 13 yards to-

Baylor had the wind the fourth stanza, and coach Grant Teaff came with quarterback Greg Wood (over starter Steve Smith). But, still, Tech kept the Bears out of the end zone, and Adams tacked on another 3-pointer, from 30 yards away for the final count.

A fumble recovery in the end zone by tackle Jim Verden and an interception by Swann chilled the Bears' hopes of coming back and winning their third in a row after five straight losses.

Tech had set the defensive tone of the game on the first Baylor offensive play, as Swann reached up to grab a Smith pass at the 50.

Tech then went the scoring distance in seven plays. The TD was a blackboardtype play, as Reeves found tight end Mark Harrelson 10 yards behind the Bear secondary for a 32-yard bomb. Harrelson caught it at the 10 and strolled on in with only 5:05 elapsed in the game.

Baylor drove to the 3, but cornerback Willie Stephens recovered an Abercrombie fumble at the 5. But, on its next possession, Baylor struck for 3 on a Bill Maness field goal of 47 yards.

Had Nicer Days, Bemoans Teaff

By BOB BAJACKSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff Although he has never taken a snap from center in a college football game, Abner, the Baylor mascot, executed frustration better than the Bears' offense could execute their plays in the second half.

As the final minute was winding down on the Jones Stadium clock and Baylor trailing 27-9. Abner charged the orange end zone marker and pursued his opponent until he dislodged it from its location.

Oh, if only Baylor's offense could of had some of Abner's second effort in the final two quarters.

Baylor coach Grant Teaff pointed to three factors that determined Texas Tech's 27-9 Southwest Conference victory.

"There was James Hadnot, our turnovers and the poise of quarterback Ron Reeves," a melancholy Teaff said. "And you can't-expect to beat a good football team like Texas Tech when you leave 14 points down on the goal line." According to Teaff, the only way the Bears were effectively able to stop Hadnot was vers," said Teaff. "We felt we could move the football on them. But as it turned out, Teaff had made an error in judgment. In fact, besides a 47-yard field goal by Bill Maness, the only other Bear heroics came in the second quarter.

With 4:13 remaining, the Bears drove 80 yards in just six plays. On first down, quarterback Steve Smith dropped back and after avoiding some slight pressure, unleased a pass down the left sidelines to end Mike Fisher. Fisher hauled the pass in at the 10 and then strolled the remaining distance for the touchdown.

"It was just a deep turn-in route," said a quiet Fisher. "The defender just squatted about 15 yards down field and left me alone. But Fisher had to wait on the football, which he recalled as a nerve-racking experi-

Nittany Lions Smother Terps Hopes Of Unbeaten String Ended

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) - Quarterback Chuck Fusina scored a touchdown and threw for another, and Matt Bahr kicked a pair of field goals, but it was second-ranked Penn State's defense that smothered fifth-ranked Maryland Saturday in the battle of Eastern college football powers.

"We were playing scared," said 260pound Bruce Clark, a defensive tackle for the Penn State Nittany Lions. It was Clark, his running mate, Matt Millen; and ends Larry Kubin and Joe Lally, who teamed to stifle Maryland with a min's 32 yards on the ground in a 27-3 victory in the nationally televised game.

The victory extended through 17 games the longest major college winning streak in the nation. It also was the 16th straight victory over Maryland for Penn State and the 22nd in the 23-game series.

The State defense intercepted five passes and sacked two Maryland quarterbacks 10 times. The previously unbeaten Terrapins gained 185 yards passing in their futile effort to beat Penn State for the first time since 1961.

Bahr, the nation's leading field goal kicker, boosted his season total to 17 of 22, and his career Penn State scoring record to 173 points. His nine points Saturday carried him past his brother. Chris, who held the old scoring mark for a Penn State kicker of 168.

Penn State took a 3-0 lead less than five minutes into the game in this first confrontation of Top 10 Eastern teams since Syracuse heat Penn State 20-18 in 1959. Syracuse went on to win the national championship

Bahr's 33-yard field goal after a State drive fell one yard short of a first down at the Maryland 16 sent the Lions ahead and they never trailed in posting their ninth win of the season. Maryland lost its first after eight triumphs, and ended their 12game winning streak

Fusina scored from the one early in the second quarter to cap a seven-play, 55yard drive that sent State ahead 10-0.

Ed Loncar's 39-yard field goal reduced the lead to 10-3, but Bahr countered with a 44-yarder that made it 13-3 at halftime.

In the third period, after a pass interception, Fusina threw to flanker Tom Donovan, who caught the ball at the Maryland 41 and raced to the end zone to complete a 63-yard scoring play that made it 20-3.

Penn State scored again with 9:44 left in the game on a nine-play, 61-yard drive, capped by Booker Moore's four-yard sweep. Bahr converted to boost his perfect season conversion record to 28.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Running backs Ted Brown and Billy Ray Vickers each scored a touchdown Saturday to spark North Carolina State to a 22-13 victory over bumbling South Carolina.

South Carolina scored in the first period on a one-yard dive by quarterback Skip Ramsey after a Wolfpack fumble and a one-yard run by tailback Johnnie. Wright with about three minutes left in sion, picking up two first downs to the Maryland 25. The key plays were an 11yard completion from Fusina to Matt Suhey and a 10-yard run by Moore.

But Maryland, which boasted the seventh best defense in the nation against the run, held and with a fourth down and one at the Terps' 16, Bahr kicked his 33 varder for a 3-0 lead with 4:46 gone in the Maryland was unable to move against the rugged Penn State defenders and fell behind 10-0 early in the second quarter. Penn State started on its 45 late in the opening period with Fusina passing 14 yards to Mike Guman for a first down at the Maryland 41.

On the first play of the second quarter, a pass interference penalty gave the Lions a first down at the one, and Fusina carried over on a quarterback sneak. Bahr kicked the point and it was 10-0 with 14:50 left in the half

Maryland finally got a drive going after returning the ensuing kickoff to its 22, A 33-yard pass from quarterback Tim O Hare to split end Dean Richards picked up a first at the Penn State 42. The Terps advanced to the 18, but three plays netted two yards and Loncar came on to kick his field goal that made it 10-3 with 11:21 on the clock

Scott Fitzkee's punt, covered by linebacker Craig Coder at the Maryland four. set up another Bahr field goal. Maryland was forced to punt, giving Penn State possession at the Terps' 37. A spectacular one-hand catch by flanker Bob Bassett of a Fusina pass gained a first down at the 12. But a holding penalty stalled the State drive, and Bahr booted a 44-yard field goal with 4:32 left is the half that made it

Pitt Survives Syracuse Scare

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) - Mark Schubert kicked a 28-yard field goal with 3:09 remaining in the game Saturday to give 19th-ranked Pittsburgh an 18-17 victory over Syracuse in college football.

Pitt quarterback Rick Trocano started hitting on key passes late in the game as the Panthers scored 11 points in the final period to avoid an upset by the 1-7 Or-

Syracuse led 17-7 going into the fourth quarter, but Trocano scored on a 5-yard run and Fred Jacobs ran the ball over for the two-point conversion that set up Schubert's game-winning field goal. The victory raised Pitt's record to 6-2 and preserved the Panthers' hopes for a postseason season bowl bid.

Syracuse dominated much of the game scoring on a 37-yard field goal by David Jacobs on its first drive. Freshman running back Joe Morris carried the football 29 times for 149 yards to lead the Syracuse attack. Sophmore Ken Mandeville gave Syracuse a 10-7 lead at halftime with his first one-yard touchdown run and added another one-yeard scoring plunge in the third period.

Trocano, completed only three passes and threw two interceptions in the first half, but started hitting Gordon Jones and Steve Gaustad to get Pitt moving late in the third quarter. Trocano competed four passes to the two receivers for 75 yards in the Panthers final two scoring

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) - Halfback Billy Sims exploded 59 yards for a thirdquarter touchdown and fullback Kenny King added a 74-yard run for a final-period score, powering top-ranked Oklahoma past stubborn Colorado 28-7 Saturday in Big Eight football.

A record Folsom Field crowd of 53,553 saw Sims rush for 221 yards - the most ever against a Colorado team - as the Sooners raised their overall record to 9-0 and their conference mark to 5-0. Colorado slipped to 6-3 overall and 2-3 in the Big

The Sooners, guilty of numerous turnovers and limited to 78 total yards in the first half, broke a 7-7 tie when Sims took a pitchout to the right side and accelerated into the clear for the go-ahead score with 6:12 left in the third quarter.

Later in the quarter, after the first of two interceptions by Sooner safety Mike Babb, Oklahoma quarterback Thomas Lott fired a 20-yard TD pass to tight end nebacker Daryl Hunt on a third down play, and Solomon was sacked by Babb on fourth down.

King put the game out of reach by bolting up the middle and outracing the Colorado defenders early in the final stanza.

With Solomon completing four of his first five pass attempts, Colorado showed a balanced offense in the early stages.

Solomon then threw 12 straight passes without a completion as the Buff offense began sputtering.

Meanwhile, the Sooners got the game's first score after Freddie Nixon's 43-yard punt return to the Colorado 27-yard line late in the opening period. Eight plays later, Lott sneaked over from 1 yard out for the score

The first of three quick Oklahoma turnovers occurred with 6:30 left in the half. Lott fumbled after being hit by Colorado defensive end Stuart Walker and the Buffs had possession at the Sooner 23. Mayberry squirmed into the end zone five plays later.

On the next play from scrimmage, defensive back Ronnie Cullins intercepted a Lott pass and returned 24 yards to the Oklahoma 13. But the Buffs couldn't cash in as Mayberry was stopped by linebacker George Cumby and end Greg Sell-

Oklahoma coughed up the ball once more on an errant pitch from Lott, but again the Buffaloes failed to convert when Solomon was intercepted

The Sooner offense, rated No. 1 in the country, finally began asserting itself in the third period. Sims carried five times for 40 yards as the Sooners drove to the Colorado goal line, where Sims fumbled the ball throught the end zone for a touchback.

On their next possession, the Sooners struck quickly. David Overstreet ran 6 vards and Sims then dashed 59 to trigger

King added 157 yards on 16 carries as Oklahoma finished with 382 yards rushing and 402 total yards. Colorado had 239 total vards.

'Sims is the best back I've seen," said an awed Mallory, "He has great acceleration and power. And they have that King, who scares you to death. Then Lott, you try and concentrate on him. They're just a talented ball club. In all honesty, this is as good a club as Barry Switzer has had.

Sims said the Sooners "were messing up real bad" in the first half.

DID WE GET IT? - Oklahoma tight end Victor Hicks, a former Estacado athlete, looks up at the referee as OU quarterback Thomas Lott stretches out and touches the end zone with the football for what seemed to be a touchdown. But the ref ruled Lott's progress had been stopped earlier. The Sooner quarterback picked up the score on the next play however. (AP Laserphoto)

'Huskers Humiliate Kansas With Record

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) - Tom Sor- its second touchdown midway into the ley threw three scoring passes, thirdteam running back Craig Johnson uncorked touchdown runs of 64 and 60 yards, and No. 4-ranked Nebraska humiliated Kansas Saturday, 63-21, while setting a school record for total offense.

Nebraska's bombs-away offense gouged the outmanned Jayhawks for 516 vards rushing and 283 passing, scoring at will as the Huskers rolled up 799 yards in total offense. This broke Nebraska's single-game record of 655 set against Hawaii in 1976 and is the worst pounding Kansas ever absorbed.

The Huskers led only 7-0 at the end of the first quarter, but roared away in a 35point blitz in the second period.

Now 8-1 overall and 5-0 in the Big Eight, Nebraska's precision offensewas unstoppable in the second period, breezing on touchdown drives of 51 yards in eight plays, 64 yards in one, 53 in four, 72 in four and 76 in four.

Sorley, senior quarterback, scored Nebraska's second touchdown on a 1-yard rur early in the second quarter. Then Johnson zipped 64 yards for a touchdown, tight end Junior Miller caught a 44-yard touchdown pass, Tim Smith snared a 17-yard touchdown pass and Miller caught another 44 yard aerial.

who had 192 yards in only 1 carries, also teamed with second-string quarterback Tim Hager on a 78-yard touchdown pass in the third period

Kansas, suffering its sixth straight loss, fell to 1-8 and 0-5, and did not penetrate Nebraska territory until its sixth possession with about 10 minutes remaining in the lopsided second quarter. The Jayhawks did not score until quarterback Harry Sydney's 2-yard run with 1:30 remaining made it 35-7.

The game, played beneath warm, balmy skies, opened with a near-capacity crowd of 52,100, but with about five minutes left the Nebraska contingent, estimated at 12,000, were about all that was left. Only Missouri, in 1969 with 69 points, has scored more against Kansas. Kansas, with the aid of two interferthird period, with Sydney going over from the 3, then running for the twopoint conversion.

Johnson, who's had little chance to play with stars I.M. Hipp and Rick Berns in the Husker lineup, answered Sydney's touchdown with a 60-yard touchdown run, wiggling free of two defenders, shaking loose a third and then outrunning evervone else. Johnson's 78-vard touchdown pass reception gave him 270 yards total offense.

Jeff Quinn, Nebraska's third-team quarterback, capped the Nebraska scoring with a 5-yard touchdown run in the fourth period.

Kansas drove 99 yards late in the game for its final touchdown after recovering a Husker fumble. The tally came on a 4yard scoring pass from Kevin Clinton to

Irish Scramble Navy Defense, Take 27-7 Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — It was approaching 2 p.m. on the shores of Lake Erie when the clock struck midnight for Navy's Cinderella Midshipmen.

On the second play from scrimmage, they coughed up the first of three lost fumbles. With little more than two minutes gone. 15th-ranked Notre Dame had a 7-0 lead and 21/2 hours later, the Fighting Irish came away 27-7 winners over the previously unbeaten, 11th-ranked Mid-

Notre Dame's Vagas Ferguson was the chief villain against the Middies.

He shattered his school's single-game rushing record by galloping for 219 yards. including an 80-yard touchdown jaunt with five minutes left in the second period, and gave the 192-pound junior speedster from Richmond, Ind., 177 yards on just nine first-half carries.

"I think they were just better than us. said Navy Coach George Welsh. "They kicked the heck out of us physically. They were that much better today. They controlled the line of scrimmage and they were stronger.

Ferguson broke the Notre Dame record of 200 yards set last year by Jerome Heavens against Army when he barreled through the left side for 13 yards on the final play of the third period. It was the 14th of his 18 carries for the afternoon.

Tve said both Ferguson and Heavens were great runners." said Welsh. "That's the first team we've played this year with backs like that. I don't feel deflated at all. We're still 7-1 and we have a chance to redeem ourselves the next three weeks.

Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine, who said Friday night that Navy could turn out to be "the Cinderella team of the century," was satisfied with his team's total of 530 yards in offense

We executed extremely hard, he said. "We hit hard, we got turnovers and went in and got scores. You've got to give real credit to our players and coaches that week after week they have to rise to unusual heights

In winning its first seven games for the first time since 1960. Navy never had trailed. But the Midshipmen lost two tumbles in the first 312 minutes Saturday and fell behind 10-0 on a 20-yard touchdown pass from Joe Montana to Kris Haines, and Chuck Male's 38-vard field

Navy, which led the nation in total defense and scoring defense, had allowed only 35 points all season, never more than 11 in a game

But a 3-yard touchdown burst by Heavens at 3:49 of the second period boosted the lead to 17-0, and it was clear sailing after that

On Notre Dame's seventh rushing play, a 29-yard dash by Ferguson with less than five minutes elapsed; the Irish ground total reached 60 yards against a team that had yielded only 57 per game. Heavens contributed 100 on 21 carries.

Despite Notre Dame's obvious superiority. Navy helped sink itself by fumbling the football away three times in the first half. And the margin could easily have been higher, but Heavens fumbled into the Navy end zone, and Tommy Thompson intercepted a Montana pass at the 6vard line.

It was the sixth consecutive victory for college football's defending national champions, following a pair of setbacks. They also posted their 15th straight triumph in the nation's oldest continuous intersectional rivalry and lead 42-9-1 in the series, which has been played every year since 1927.

Notre Dame's final points came on a 42-yard field goal by Male at 5:04 of the fourth quarter. The Irish defense failed in its bid for a second straight shutout when Bob Powers. Navy's second-stringquarterback, threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to Phil McConkey wth 12 seconds to play, capping a 98-yard drive.

Navy, shooting for an 8-0 record for the first time since 1926, had visions of an upset - Notre Dame was favored by a touchdown - when Steve Callahan scampered 36 yards to the Irish 44 on the game's first play

But starting quarterback Bob Leszczynski was sacked by John Hankerd on the next play and Notre Dame; s Jeff Weston recovered the ensuing fumble at the Middies' 46. Six plays later, Montana hit

Male booted his first field goal three minutes later, six plays after Jay Case recovered a fumble by Navy's Larry Klawinski at the Middies' 44. Case also recovered a fumble by Dwayne Dennis just inside the midfield stripe. But Notre Dame blew that opportunity when heavens fumbled into the end zone

Ferguson closed in on the rushing record when he broke away on his 80-yard touchdown dash two plays afer Navy's Bob Tata missed a 35-yard field goal attempt. Ferguson broke a tackle at the line of scrimmage and then got a key block from tight end Kevin Hart at the Navy 20.

Alabama's victory came despite a sparkling 429-yard passing performance by Bulldog quarterback Dave Marler, who hit on 28 of 46, and operated almost exclusively from the shotgun formation after State fell behind.

Georgia Continues Winning Pattern

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) - "I'm glad to get it over with," said Willie McClendon, the Georgia tailback who cracked the school's single-season rushing record Sat-

"I was getting tired of talking about it," added McClendon, who ran for 149 vards on 30 carries in Georgia's 41-3 victory over Virginia Military Institute. It left McClendon with 1,115 yards in eight games this season, breaking the school record of 1,103 set in 1941 by former Heisman Trophy winner Frank Sink-

The yardage also enabled McClendon to become only the fourth runner in Georgia history with 2,000 yards, going to 2.031 with three regular season games remaining in his career.

"It was awfully tough becamse VMI came to play," McClendon said. "It's a team record. At the beginning of the season, no one thought we had the ability to break a record like that."

Cowboys Put Knot On Missou 35-24

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) - Veteran quarterback Scott Burk mystified the Missouri defense with his running and passing as he led his Oklahoma State Cowboys to a surprisingly easy 35-20 Big Eight football win over the Tigers Satur-

Burk was a one man band during the first half, shocking the Tigers by rushing for 60 yards and a touchdown and passing for another 87 yards.

However, despite the fact the Cowboys carried a 17-7 lead into the dressing room at the half, it took a zany series of fumble recoveries for them to regain the momentum and cinch the win.

The unusual exchange came in the third quarter with the Pokes leading only 20-14 Cowboy defenders knocked Missouri return specialist Bill Whitaker loose from a fourth-down punt and linebacker Dan Hammond came up with the ball on the Missouri three.

On the following play, Oklahoma State running back Ed Smith let loose of the football, fumbling it into the end zone. But luck was with the Cowboys as split end Mel Campbell managed to pin down the bouncing ball for a touchdown.

Missouri picked up its points on a 19yard pass from Phil Bradley to Gerry Ellis, a three-yard Bradley run and his 10vard pass to Lamont Downer.

back Danny Davis scored two touchdowns in the first four minutes and 31 seconds of the game as the 10th-ranked Cougars coasted to a 63-6 victory over Texas Christian University Saturday night to set up a Southwest Conference showdown with seventh-ranked Texas.

Houston's victory earned the Cougars the SWC lead with a 5-0 record, but they'll put that mark on the line Saturday in Austin against the Longhorns, 4-0 in SWC play. Texas, idle this week, and UH have identical 7-1 season records.

The Horned Frogs, winless in five SWC games, lost control early in the game when Phillip Epps fumbled the opening kickoff and Houston's David Barrett recovered at the TCU eight-yard line.

Davis ran five yards for the touchdown after only 46 seconds of the game. Moments later. Houston moved 58 yards in six plays with Davis diving one yard for the score, and the rout was on. All 59 players suited out for the Cougars played in the game.

The Cougars scored on five of their seven first-half possessions, and did not punt

Houston ballooned its lead to 35-0 at halftime on second-quarter touchdown runs of four yards by Donnie Love and 34 yards by John Newhouse and a 50-yard pass from quarterback Delrick Brown to Willis Adams.

Newhouse continued to lead the UH reserves in the third quarter with a 15-yard touchdown run and Barrett scored from three yards out on his third career rushing attempt. TCU quarterback Steve Stamp hit Epps with a 56-yard touchdown pass to avert a shutout with 2:01 to go in the third quarter.

Houston defensive end Leonard Mitchell highlighted the fourth quarter with a 34-yard interception return for a touch-

Alborn was miffed at the Arkansas fans. In the fourth period, the fans staged a raucous demonstration as Rice prepared to score its only touchdown. Rice quarterback Randy Hertel three times had to walk away from the center because his team could not hear his signals. The officials did not call a penalty.

"I'm upset with the officials. They wouldn't come over and explain the situation." Alborn said.

Alborn said that he plans to call Southwest Conference officials on Monday to 'see where we stand."

Calcagni added his team has always been "great."

The clock showed 2:37 left, but on a drive which Teaff called the most decisive of the game, Tech marched 70 yards in seven plays. Reeves hit Godfrey Turner just over the fingertips of cornerback Thomas Earl Young on the right side of the end zone for the score. The play covered 27 yards and followed by two plays a 48-yard pass which Turner caught down the middle and over the same Young and rover Ken Griffin. And with that 17-9 lead, the Ralders turned it over to the defense in the third.

Tech has now won three in a row after getting off to a 1-3 start in Dockery's initial season as head coach.

Iowa, 1-7 for the season and 1-4 in the Big Ten, has lost seven straight games. The campus newspaper, in an editorial earlier this week, called for coach Bob Commings' resignation.

We just couldn't negate their talent and quickness," said Commings. "I really thought our pass coverage was adequate, but they had all day to throw the ball.

Southern Cal Edges Stanford Behind Defense

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) - Tailback Charles White rushed for 196 yards and the go-ahead touchdown, but the sixthranked Southern California Trojans needed several big defensive plays Saturday to register a 13-7 Pacific-10 football victory

Defensive back Ronnie Lott got Southern Cal out of early trouble with an end zone pass interception, taking the ball away from tight end Marty Smith late in the first period. Stanford tailback Darrin Nelson threw the pass, with the Cardinals leading 7-0 on Steve Dils' 13-yard touchdown pass to Ked Margerum.

A 33-yard run by White set up a 34-yard field goal by Frank Jordan in the second quarter, and White dove one yard for Southern Cal's only touchdown 37 seconds before halftime.

The Trojans increased their lead to 13-7 in the third quarter when Jordan booted a 38-yard field goal, but he missed an attempt in the final quarter and Stanford threatened to score on a drive engineered by quarterback Steve Dils.

On a third-and-2 at the Southern Cal 27vard line. Dils lost nine vards when Cardinals lost the ball when a fourth down completion went for only nine

The Trojans made their Pac-10 record 4-1 and stand 7-1 overall. White's 196 yards increased his three-year total to 3,-542 and he moved past O.J. Simpson to rank third on USC's alltime rushing list. Stanford is 2-3 in the conference an 5-4 overall.

The Cardinals' losses have been by a total of 16 points to four nationally ranked teams, including No. 1 Oklahoma which won here 35-29 in the season opener.

Dils, the nation's leading passer, broke the conference record for completions in one season with his 209th late in the third quarter. He completed 23 of 38 attempts for 236 yards in the game and was intercepted just once.

He was 6-for-8 for 75 yards on Stanford's 75-yard opening drive which led to his 19th touchdown pass of the year.

On Southern Cal's first possession, the Trojans drove to the Stanford 17 but a field goal try failed. Late in the first quarter, the Cards drove to the USC 10. where Nelson passed on first down and Lott made the important interception.

Southern Cal marched 93 yards for its touchdown, with a 42-yard completion sacked by linebacker Riki Gray, and the from Paul McDonald to Calvin Sweeney, moving the ball to Stanford's 6 with 1:01 left in the quarter.

Stanford's rushing attack, without regular fullback Phil Francis, who has an ankle injury, netted only 37 yards and Dils gave the ball to running backs just 15 times in the game played before the Pac-10's biggest crowd of the season, 84,084.

The sixth-ranked Trojans face Washington, UCLA and Notre Dame in before closing the season at Hawaii. Southern Cal is 8-1 but still trails UCLA in the race for the Rose Bowl.

"We can't think about UCLA now, because we still have to play Washington,' Lott said. "We were thinking ahead against Arizona State and we got beat."

Lott was a major reason Southern Cal didn't get beaten by Stanford. His interception of a tipped ball in a crowd around the goal line late in the first quarter kept Stanford from going ahead 14-0 and broke the Cardinals' momentum.

"I think that turned it around for us," USC quarterback Paul McDonald said.

Southern Cal came back to score a field goal midway through the second quarter and then tallied what proved to be the winning points just before halftime on a 93-yard drive with Charles White going over from a yard out.

That was all Southern Cal needed because its defense shut down Steve Dils the nation's leading passer coming into "Our defensive players did an outstanding job," said USC Coach John Robinson. "We were just trying to keep them uncertain as to what we were doing on defense. I say hurrah for our defense.

Boilermakers Notch 7th Win Of Season

Quarterback Mark Herrmann hurled three touchdown passes Saturday as Big Ten football leader Purdue, scoring three times within 312 minutes in the first half, went on to defeat winless Northwestern

Herrmann, who saw action in only one offensive series after the second quarter, added a 25-yard touchdown pass to Russell Pope in the third period before Boilermaker Coach Jim Young gave most of the first unit the rest of the day off.

The 14th-ranked Boilermakers, 5-0 in the Big Ten and 7-1 overall, scored first on Pope's eight vard run with 55 seconds k/ck) A=64.232 left in the opening quarter. The touchdown climaxed a 62-vard, eight-play drive that was highlighted by a 22-yard pass from Herrmann to Bart Burrell.

Purdue's Willie Harris intercepted a Kevin Strasser pass on Northwestern's first play after the kickoff, and he returned it 18 yards to the Wildcat 18. Two plays later. Herrmann connected with Raymond Smith on a 19-yard scoring play a: the quarter ended.

On the next possession, Purdue took a Northwestern punt and moved 52 yards in five plays to score on Herrmann's 23yard toss to Mike Harris.

A Homecoming crowd of 64,232, enjoying a summer-like temperature of 79 degrees, saw kicker Scott Sovereen make the halftime score 24-0 with a 19-vard

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - Running back Sherman Johnson ground out 199 yards and a touchdown for Tulsa as the Hurricane survived a second half track meet to defeat West Texas State 44-23 in a Missouri Valley football contest here Satur-

Ricky Wright's 37-yard field goal on West Texas State's first possession gave the Buffaloes a lead that stood up until 7.41 of the second quarter.

Frustrated on the ground. Tulsa went to the air for its first score, an 81-yard for 189 yards and two touchdowns and strike from quarterback Dave Rader to ran for another as Clemson drummed wide receiver Rickey Watts.

Tulsa never relinquished its lead and slashed through the Buff's defenses for five more touchdowns on the ground. West Texas State stayed within a touchdown until late in the fourth quarter when the Hurricane added two point conversions to two of its last three scores.

Upset-Minded Saints Clash With Steelers

By The Associated Press

It was All Saints Day, the day after Halloween, Nov. 1, 1966, when New Orleans became a National Football League franchise. And since then it's been mostly tricks and very few treats for the Saints.

In none of the dozen years they have been chasing punts and passes around the NFL, have the Saints ever won more than five games. They reached that plateau again last week, marking the earliest they've ever made it. Now they reach for No. 6 Sunday against the Pittsburgh

The Saints-Steelers clash is one of four interconference matchups around the NFL in its 10th weekend of action. The others match Dallas at Miami, and Seattle at Chicago on Sunday with Washington at Baltimore Monday night.

In other Sunday games, Cincinnati plays at San Diego, Cleveland is at Houston, New England visits Buffalo, the New York Jets are at Denver, Oakland visits Kansas City. Detroit plays at Minnesota. Green Bay goes to Philadelphia, the New

And while New Orleans is flourishing with a new defense. Green Bay is doing well with an old one. Packer Coach Bart Starr considered shifting to the increasingly popular 3-4 defensive front during the pre-season. He decided instead to stay with the traditional four-man front with ends Ezra Johnson and Mike Butler and tackles, Carl Barzilauskas and Dave Roller. That decision has paid off and the Packers are tied for second in the NFL with 30 quarterback sacks so far.

Their improved defenses have played major roles in the transformation of both the Saints and Packers from NFL have-nots to contenders. New Orleans, off to its best start ever with a 5-4 record, goes into Sunday's game at Pittsburgh only two games back of LA in the NFC West. Green Bay, 7-2, hasn't had this good a beginning since 1966 and will be protecting

ARE YOU BEING PAID TOO MUCH?

Krueger thinks so.

Robert Krueger says he would cut military salaries, which are too high, as a priority to reduce federal spending. "Longview (Texas) News" Editorial, October 24, 1978.

Small wonder.

Krueger hasn't served in the Armed Forces and has no experience with military-related committees of the Congress. Nor does he have a family he has had to support on military pay. Senator Tower, on the other hand, understands the needs and concerns of military personnel. A veteran of World War II, he maintains enlisted status as a reservist.

Senator Tower's response to the same question was that budgetary reductions in grants-in-aid would be his target.

Adequate pay, incentives—essential to national defense.

Senator Tower is a ranking member of the Armed Services Committee. For 13 years he's shaped all major legislation concerning military personnel and He's worked for and voted for all measures of benefit to military personnel including payraises. He knows that adequate pay and incentives are essential to keeping qualified people in military service.

national defense.

A close election is expected on Tuesday. If you're involved in the military or concerned about our national defense, Senator Tower needs your help. Vote to re-elect a true friend of the military—

O. C. FISHER AGREES WITH SENATOR TOWER.

Krueger succeeded former Democratic Congressman O. C. Fisher, who endorsed Krieger when he ran for his first term four years ago. Fisher, who served many years on the Armed Service Committee, has now examined the voting record of both men and has strongly endorsed Senator Tower in this re-election.

"I found his (Tower's) record to be far superior to that of his opponent," Fisher said, on Ocober 1.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "It was a dead-even game - the difference, of course, being Theotis Brown," understated a thankful UCLA Coach Terry Donahue after his ninth-ranked Bruins nipped Oregon 23-21 Saturday. "I am absolutely thankful to the Lord that we were able to win this game.

For a long time, it appeared that might not happen, but Brown dashed 74 yards for a touchdown early in the fourth quarter to give UCLA its first lead of the day and then raced 68 yards for another score in the closing moments to clinch the Bruins' hard-fought Pacific-10 Conference victory.

Brown, a 6-foot-2, 220-pound senior,

Oregon played an outstanding game both offensively and defensively," said Donahue. "I'm not surprised at the rushing yardage Oregon made. We thought they could run on us as they have on other good teams.

What does concern me is the fact that we have not improved as much as I would like in the last two weeks.

Oregon Coach Rich Brooks, not surprisingly, pointed to Brown's pair of long touchdown runs as the difference in the some today," said Brooks. "UCLA came out in front in the final score. But I guarantee you, nobody's going to consider the Oregon Ducks patsies anymore. Brown's first touchdown run, with 13:41 to play, gave the Bruins a 10-6 advantage, their first lead of the day. It came two plays after Oregon's Pat English missed a 29-yard field goal attempt.

"People want thrills, well, they got

Peter Boermeester gave the Bruins some breathing room they ultimately needed by kicking a 35-yard field goal with 8:32 to go and a 44-yarder with 6:50

Oregon's Reggie Young capped a 63yard drive by plunging two yards with 2:07 remaining, making it 16-14. But shortly later, Brown scored on his second long gallop to clinch the victory.

The Ducks completed the scoring with 33 seconds remaining on a 1-yard run by quarterback Tim Durando.

The come-from-behind victory enabled UCLA to remain the Pac-10's only unbeaten team. The Bruins are 6-0 in conference play and 8-1 overall. Hard-luck Oregon, which has lost five games this year after holding fourthquarter leads, dropped to 1-4 in league action and 1-8 on the season possession of the game, driving 63 yards on 14 rushing plays. Fullback Jeff Wood, who gained a career-high 75 yards on 15 carries before suffering a knee injury early in the third quarter, scored on a 1-yard

UCLA made it 6-3 with 4:17 left in the first half on a 27-yard field goal by Boermeester shortly after the Bruins' Dave Gomer recovered a fumbled punt at the Oregon 34.

Brown became the second-leading rusher in UCLA history, surpassing Kermit Johnson. With 2,722 career yards, Brown trails only the 3,181 yards gained by Wendell Tyler.

Saturday's game marked the fourth straight contest in which Brown has rushed for more than 100 yards. He now has picked up 1,091 yards in 168 carries this season.

Vince Williams, who saw most of his action at fullback for Oregon after Wood was injured, led the Ducks in rushing with 83 yards on 17 carries. Durando completed 12 of 23 passes for 179 yards.

The Bruins blew a pair of scoring opportunities in the first half as freshman linebacker Mike Berkich of Oregon intercepted two tipped passes thrown by UCLA quarterback Rick Bashore.

YFL 'Super Bowl' Set

The Youth Football League's Super Bowl will be held today at Lowrey Field starting at 1 p.m. with three games on tap.

The A Division contest gets underway at 1 p.m., Glad Norman Realtors (7-6) taking on American Legion Post 808 (6-1) for the tilt. American League champ Furr's Family Center (6-1) faces National League winner Southwestern Gernal Life in the Division B playoff game at 3 p.m.

Washam Steel, which topped Division C with a 6-0-1 record, takes on secondplace finisher Greer Electric (5-1-1) at 5 p.m.

Admission for all three games is $1. Net proceeds will be divided between the Lubbock State School Recreational Building Fund and the Lubbock YFL

Pope Makes Effort To Gain Approval Of Italians

Paul II, the first "foreign" pontiff in 41/2 centuries, is doing his best to become a Polish "paesano" to the Italian people.

Right from the start, when the multilingual Pole joked to cheering throngs in St. Peter's Square that he would speak to them in "our" Italian language, John Paul II has had a clear and simple message for Italians: "I am one of you."

His fluent and only slightly accented Italian is probably his biggest asset in winning friends here. But he is also taking other steps to soften the shock for Italians of not having a countryman as pope for the first time since the unpopular Dutchman, Adrian VI, reigned in 1522-1523.

The former Cardinal Karol Woitvla of Krakow has told Italians he intends to place his ministry as supreme pastor of the world's 700 million Roman Catholics under the patronage of the two national saints of Italy - St. Francis and St. Cath-

On Sunday, Italian television viewers can watch the pope pray at the tombs of the two saints, in Assisi and Rome.

In a move clearly aimed at stressing continuity and identifying himself with his Italian predecessors, John Paul II reinstated the heads of major church departments, ruling out any immediate shakeup in the Italian-dominated Vatican administration, the Curia.

He also pledged, in his first papal foreign policy pronouncement, to continue the Vatican's quiet diplomacy toward

Trash Potential Not Realized

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The government says it's high time we recognize the full potential of our trash. The Environmental Protection Agency said Thursday it will make $15 million available to state and local governments to help them turn garbage into energy and recycle valuable trash.

"Technologies are now available to recover this energy and materials," said Deputy EPA Administrator Barbara Blum, "It's time we recognized the full potential of our waste - putting as much of it as possible back int the market-

The agency said several cities are successfully recovering energy and raw materials from their waste.

communist-ruled nations - an effort begun by Pope John XXIII and pursued by Paul VI.º

Vatican observers say John Paul II's actions reflect a desire to gain a solid personal foothold in Italy — the church's "home base" — before he begins to tackle controversial church issues on a glob-

"It's a shrewd move," says a veteran Vatican expert who prefers to remain unidentified. "We talk about the universality of the church, and the phrase has a nice ring to it, but for the Italians it's their church and it's their 'papa.' In other words, after the initial excitement, they will need some help - and I don't know exactly what - to let the idea of a foreign pope sink in, and I think the pope has been on the right track."

The Italians have received the pope, outwardly at least, with enthusiasm and respect. Bursts of "Viva il papa!" ("Long live the pope!") have greeted him wherever he has appeared, and many say he has personal qualities that could make him one of the most popular popes in memory.

By contrast, Roman mobs stoned the cardinals as they emerged from the conclave that elected Adrian VI 456 years ago. The Dutchman came in as a reformer expected to temper extravagance and worldliness in the upper reaches of the church. When he died just 20 months later, history books report, the Romans rejoiced.

Others interpret John Paul II's cautious approach in the Vatican as a means of giving him time to study the Vatican machinery before making any changes. "It's the mark of a prudent man who is determined to give sound, astute leadership to the church, which faces difficult challenges to faith," says Jeff T. Malcolm, an Australian theologian studying in Rome. "And you cannot win hearts and minds of the Italians and the backing of the Curia by sudden, sweeping decisions.

The new pope is no stranger to Italy. His education in Italian ways began three decades ago when he came here as a seminarian and studied at the Angelicum, the Dominican college. Since then he has returned to Rome often to study, to lecture, to attend bishops' meetings and other church councils.

Added Malcolm: "I think he understands the Italian psychology and knows how to play by the Vatican rules without compromising what he believes in."

Parole Board Move Called Poor Idea

AUSTIN (AP) — Moving the Pardons and Paroles Board from Austin to Huntsville would cost $18 million and would delay issuance of all paroles for at least two years, a Senate committee was told

Board member Clyde Whiteside also told the legislator-layman committee appointed by the Senate that the board opposed turning parole operations over to the Adult Probation Commission or to the Texas Department of Corrections.

The committee took the testimony under consideration and will make its recommendations to the 1979 Legislature, after additional hearings.

"We think we are doing a good job now. We are proud of our progress and integrity," Whiteside said.

He said he realized the board was caught between those who want stern and full service of prison terms "and those who want to use us as the back door of the prison ... I believe there is a concerted effort to destroy the parole system in Texas."

ployees of the board and the parole service from throughout the state. At times there was heated argument

The hearing room was crowded by em-between committee members and Whiteside and others. 'All we are trying to do is find something to improve the operations of this board," said Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edin-

'Then let it have time to work," Whiteside replied in a loud voice. Whiteside, and others, spent most of their time discussing 21 issues that Dr. George Beto, Huntsville, a member of the committee and former state prison diretor, said should be considered about pardon and parole operations.

'The movement of the board to Huntsville has been pushed for eight to 10 years by Dr. Beto," Whiteside said. "I am thor-oughly convinced it should not be moved."

At previous committee sessions there have been suggestions that the board move to Huntsville to put the agency closer to those who must be contacted in granting paroles. Some have said it takes up to six weeks to release an inmate after a parole is approved, partly because of the paperwork involved between Austin and Huntsville.

Whiteside said locating the board in Huntsville would put the board an average of only 36.2 miles closer to about half of the prison population. He estimated it would cost $18,367,9563 in "parole delay and personnel turnover" costs and in erecting a new building in Huntsville.

'It is the concensus of veteran staff personnel that ... delays of possibly up to a year could be anticipated in the parole process; that is an inmate who merits parole could not be paroled until a year after he becomes eligible," said the board's statment about the move. "It is estimated that all paroles would be delayed for six months for a two-year period."

Whitesides also said it was doubtful the Huntsville economy could support the move. It was estimated only 10 to 15 percent of the present headquarters staff would agree to move to Huntsville.

of alleged misuse of federal manpower funds in Hidalgo County will continue despite a frustrated state judge's dismissal of charges against eight defendants.

Judge Joe Cisneros, whose sometimes volatile court of inquiry led to the charges in February, said Friday he had not been told by local grand jurors that they had not found sufficient evidence to return any indictments at an Oct. 26 session. But the judge said his perusal of grand jury minutes showed all eight defendants had been no-billed.

But sources within the investigation said only three defendants had been nobilled and the other charges have not yet been looked into. John Blanton, a special prosecutor from the state attorney general's office, said the grand jury will re-convene as planned on Nov. 21.

Interim District Attorney Preston Henrichson also said the investigation is not

Court Martial Ousts Dissatisfied Doctor

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Army doc- less convicted Davis on four charges of tor who protested misleading recruitment ads by refusing to work was ordered dismissed from the service Saturday by a military judge who also told recruiters to "clean up their act."

Capt. Leon T. Davis. who remained composed as the guilty verdict was announced at his court-martial here, also was fined $2,000. But his civilian attorney. Stephen Keeffe, said this was the lightest sentence

Davis could expect under a guilty verdict that could have meant eight years at hard labor.

The military trial judge. Lt. Col. John W. Hanft, admitted from the bench that the recruitment ads were misleading. And he said doctors who joined the service had legitimate complaints against unkept promises.

into evidence at a bond hearing.

'Good." replies the man the state purports to be Davis. It is the FBI recordings and a videotaped encounter between McCrory, and Davis that forms the basis for the case against the troubled heir to a great Texas tape-recorded conversation introduced

The defense contends Davis was framed by his estranged wife, Priscilla, and others.

The defense may tear apart McCrory's credibility but they're going to have a hell of a time explaining away those tapes." said one prosecutor.

McCrory, 40, a one-time friend and employee of Davis, testified previously that Judge Joe Eidson was one of perhaps 15 persons Davis wanted killed. The alleged "hit list" included three witnesses who testified against Davis last year in Amarillo where he was acquitted in the shooting death of his young stepdaughter.

Davis, who plans to practice medicine in rural Omak, Wash., refused to work at Walter Reed Army Medical Center here on grounds the Army had broken its contract with him.

Davis said that when he joined the service in 1973, he was assured he would work with up-to-date medical equipment, be paid the same as his peers in the service, receive 30 days of vacation a year and be promoted to the rank of major in three years.

Instead, Davis claimed, he worked with outmoded equipment at Walter Reed, considered by many a model Army hospital in which the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower often received treatment.

Davis said he that because of a technicality in the military rules, he earned $9,-000 a year less than other military doctors with the same experience. He did not elaborate on the technicality. And after he joined. Davis said, the promotion time for moving up from captain to major was extended from three to six years.

Army physician friends of Dr. Davis testified that morale is low in the Army Medical Corps because of the Army's misleading recruitment advertisements. These physicians won a measure of sympathy from Hanft, who commented from the bench.

These are merely advertisements. They are not contracts. This is not to say that Dr. Davis and other doctors do not have legitimate grievances. They do. I suggest that Army recruiters clean up their act a little bit.

Davis was formally accused of desertion, scheming to miss a flight that would have taken him to a new assignment in Korea, willfully disobeying an order to report to his superior at Walter Reed, and being absent without official leave

Hanft reduced each of the first three ccusations to lesser charges.

Davis' dismissal and fine must be approved by Maj. Gen. Kenneth E. Dohleman, commander of the general military district of Washington.

Former Bank Official Sought In $10.2 Million Fraud Case

LOS ANGELES - The FBI searched for a former bank consultant Saturday as the alleged mastermind of a complex scheme that netted $10.2 million in stolen transfer funds. But investigators said whoever took the money has probably fled the country with most of it.

Frustrated Comedian In Running For Pennsylvania Legislature

AP Special Correspondent HUNTINGDON VALLEY, Pa. (AP) - What is so rare these breathless days before the election as a politician with a sense of humor? "It's a time for candidates to be pretty tense, I suppose, said Les Waas, candidate. "But humor has its place in politics. Humor has its place everywhere. If there were more laughter at the statehouse, it would be a better statehouse." Les Waas is not advertising himself for the Pennsylvania Legislature as the humor candidate, it's just that, well, he can't help it. He happens to be a funny person.

At a fundraiser the other night in Hatboro, for instance, he had a roomful of well-wishers in stitches with remarks such as this

"You've read in the papers about the brazen waste and greed in Harrisburg - the fancy cars, the big dinners, all at the taxpayer's expense. I pledge to you that when I am elected I will take immediate steps to ... get my share.

He told of a conversation with a veteran legislator: "I had a question for him. I said, 'Sir, I want to tax your

The dinner, at $15 a plate, fetched $1,000 or so for the Waas campaign.

"The speech didn't hurt me a bit," Waas said. "Everybody realized it was a spoof. We promised a fundraiser that would be entertaining, and it was." Which is novel in itself.

If Les Waas refuses to take himself seriously, he is nonetheless serious about his campaign, which is his first for pub-

I'm running for two reasons," he said. First, I've written any number of letters to officeholders and usually have gotten back a form letter. They weren't listening, or I felt they weren't. I felt I accomplished nothing.

When I wrote to the White House to protest the firing of the U.S. attorney, David Marston, I didn't even get an answer. That irritated me. My campaign slogan is, 'Let's put one of US in the legislature.

The second reason was that the Democats in my district asked me to run. I've been a registered Republican all my life. That's confidence. "I have a number of proposals, very serious ones, dealing with state government. But even in my serious speeches I try to inject a bit of humor. It makes my serious remarks stand out all the more." By profession, Waas is an advertising man; by nature, a

If you've long harbored the suspicion that the dusty old 'eyesore' in Grandma's attic is actually a Victorian treasure, Saturday is the day for which you've been waiting:

Barbara Diesroth, James Lally, Helen Lally, Sara Coffin and Gerry Bland, representing the famous Sotheby Parke Bernet art auction house of New York, will be at The Museum of Texas Tech University from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. to provide current market values with verbal appraisals on those waiting-to-be-discovered family

A by-invitation gala for patrons of The Museum, preceding the public appraisal, will be sponsored by the

BARBARA DIESROTH

West Texas Museum Association from 6:30 until 9 p.m. Friday, with special entertainment and buffet dinner.

Heirloom Discovery Day, sponsored by the association. will offer the South Plains public an unusual opportunity. Appraisals will be on a first come, first served basis there will be no reservations. The charge will be $5 per item, with a limit of 10 items, and all proceeds from the event will help the association's support of The Mu-

Each of the appraisers is an expert in his field

Gerry Bland's expertise is in the area of furniture, decorations and oriental rugs; he began his training in the London office of SPB and is an assistant vice president

Among the team of experts who will rep-

Discovery Day will be Barbara Diesroth, James Lally and Gerry Bland.

Joined by Helen Lally and Sara Coffin, they will offer verbal appraisals of current market value for family treasures lying around dusty attics or in places of honor,

Helen Lally concentrates on prints and drawings; since 1972 she has assisted in SPB's modern and impressionistic painting department and modern drawing department. She is now consultant to SPB's appraisal department for prints and draw-

Barbara Diesroth's department includes 'art nouveau, 'art deco,' 19th Centure Animalier and other bronzers, 19th Century porcelain and other works of art; she is assistant vice president of SPB in New York and head of the 19th and 20th Century decorative arts department.

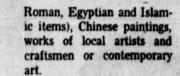

Paperweights, miniatures, chess sets, silver and vertu are all in Sara Coffin's expertise; she received special training at the Victoria and Albert Museum Study Center in England and worked in their furniture department. She also worked at the Metropolitan Museum of Art before joining SPB. James Lally concentrates on many forms of Chinese artwork; he is a director of SPB and head of their Chinese works of art department.

SPB experts suggest individuals bring a color picture of a furniture item and a removable part, such as a drawer or table leaf, to the clinic for appraisal. All other items to be appraised should be brought to the clinic.

Although the experts have extensive knowledge in a particular field, the types of objects to be appraised are limited: the experts cannot appraise books, manuscripts, autograph letters, photographs, modern jewelry (including precious stones), ethnographic art, stamps, coins, antiquities (ancient Greek,

Of course, SPB hopes to discover objects for sale, but individuals may seek appraisal to satisfy their own curiosity. Sentimental value often exceeds appraised value.

It should be pointed out, however, that previous Discovery Day finds have included a $92,000 T'ang Dynasty pottery figure of a horse, a Medici porcelain which later sold for a record $180,000 and a Japanese sword later sold for $70,000.

Volunteers will be at The Museum to assist owners with their objects, but the owners themselves are solely responsible for the care and security of any objects brought for appraisal. No liability for loss or damage will be assumed by Sotheby Park Bernet or the West Texas Museum Association.

Ann Knight is chairman of the event.

Committee heads include Jacqueline Golightly and Kathy Moossy, operations; Darlene Anderson, printing and design; Jan Cummings, hostess; and Bernice Spears, Discovery Days committees are Reuby Tom Maeker and Betty Brown, food; Martha Daniels, finance; Louise Arnold, classification; Pa Bean, courtesy; and Martha Jones, public relations.

From furniture to paperweights, from Grandma's old teapot to that treasured porcelain wash set, Heirloom Discovery Day is the best opportunity to discover what heirlooms 'lurk' in your family's treasure chest.

HAMPING - NO ...

In My Corner

By FRANCES LOWE

The Princess has brought home her first progress report from school, and she is already flunking two subjects: manila folders and suiting up.

Words cannot describe the pressure that junior high school exerts on the family. It is a far cry from the days when a new pair of shoes and a pencil box were all that were required of a student.

We read the mimeographed lists of requirements her teachers send home for our signatures with apprehension. Nothing surprises us.

When you have spent hours bending coat hangers into branding irons; when you have built an early Texas mission out of soaked newspapers; when you have constructed the state flag out of tissue paper and wire, you lose your capacity to e surprised.

Each teacher has his own "must" list, but all have one thing in common: if you don't get it in by tomorrow, the student will get a zero. The Princess is pursued by zeroes, has nightmares about zeroes, threatens us with zeroes.

A minor item provokes a major crisis - manila folders. By the time the Princess gets the word home to us, the folder is already two days past due. Desperately we search through closets, drawers, desks, but all our folders are old, bent, dirty, the wrong size or color.

The Princess is in tears. She has already asked for an extension from the teacher: her mother works, her father is out of the country, her bike has a flat tire the last a sheer ploy, since the Princess wouldn't be caught dead pedalling to the store. He gave her until Monday, but if she doesn't have the folder by then she will get zeroes for the entire week

We spend Saturday frantically canvassing the stationery stores, whose owners, surprised by the sudden run on manila folders, are joyfully calling the home office for new supplies.

Our all-night supermarket is crowded, evenings, with exhausted parents and disconsolate children wailing, "But Mrs. Jones says I will get a zero if I don't have a red pencil by tomorrow!

Alas, we are too late: although the tag says "No. 2 Red Pencils," the rack is empty, Mrs. Jones' entire class having bullied more understanding parents into rushing to the store before dinner up."

The teacher's letter explains that a certain percentage of the grade will be given on the basis of whether the student is properly "suited up." Accordingly, we order the regulation blue-and-white striped shirt and solid blue shorts. (The mind boggles at the thought of how many of these are sold in Lubbock. Drive by any school in the city in the afternoon. the sea of blue and white must make the manufacturers rub their hands in glee.)

We have the store embroider the Princess' name on them. (Last year we did it ourselves, but the stitching came out. The pressures of sex-integrated gym classes are bad enough without having one's clothes unravel.

We also collect the gym shoes, marked with her name, the white socklets with white pom-pons, as per instructions, the bobby pins and rubber bands, the box in which to store personal items, a lock for the basket in which these are kept.

Still, the Princess comes home from school wailing.

"The lock we got won't do; we have to have combination locks! Why?

Teacher says we will lose the keys. As I survey, sadly, the three combination locks we already possess, I wonder why the teacher assumes we won't lose the combinations

Predictably, the store is out of locks. We settle for a bike lock, which is broken within the week. The Princess is philosophical in spite of our investment in time and money

A small army could have been outfitted for a major campaign with the money we have spent on school supplies. Last year's spirals will not do this year. Last year's three-ring binders are out of style. Last year's liquid paper has dried up in the bottle.

Whatever the problem, it must be solved before tomorrow, the witching hour when zeroes appear on records. If she comes home with low grades, I know who will be blamed. "I told you we couldn't use college ruled paper!

In odd moments. I reflect on the motivation of junior high school teachers. Except for a vague nervousness, an unwillingness to meet your eyes, a tendency to drum their fingers, them seem nice enough. Who but a saint could be enclosed, day after day, with 1200 people between 12 and 15? They can be forgiven if, late at night, they sometimes succumb to the urge to retaliate: "Let's see, what shall I ask them to bring tomorrow - a dozen white horses?

Gym teachers, functioning as they do in a cloud of sweaty gym shoes, spray deoderant and strong perfume, must be especially vulnerable to this kind of think-

But can any of them possibly imagine the consternation that is thrown into a family by a 10 p.m. request for "six plastic report covers in different colors"?

With the knowledge that whatever we do will be wrong, the Princess' father and I set off, mornings, for our separate destinations exchanging last-minute assignments: "You get the music stand and I'll get the poster paper.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am 29, college-educated, single by choice and considered a very attractive woman. My problem? I am a victim of discrimination.

Until I became a blond a year ago, I never realized how much blonds were discriminated against. Especially goodlooking blonds. If a woman happens to be blond and good-looking, she is immediately labeled as dumb. And if she's blond, good-looking and has a great figure, she is automatically written off as stupid.

Abby, I am the same person I was when I had brown hair, but people (women as well as men) react totally differently to me since I became a blond

I am tired of fighting the "dumb blond" image, and have considered going back to my natural color, but I like my hair this color. Please print this with some suggestions on how to cope with unfair stereotypes.

NO DUMB BLOND Dear Blond: Intelligent people do not use labels or stereotypes. Neither do they discriminate against people because of the color of their hair, eves or skin. Consider yourself lucky to be able to elimi-

ANSWER LINE CANCER

A reader shares this experience: "Ten years ago in my third pregnancy I developed a very rare form of cancer called choriocarcinoma. I was successfully treated and I am very much alive. I think that your readers would be encouraged to learn about what's being accomplished. ANSWERline: Choriocarcinoma is a rare form of cancer which develops after pregnancy and used to kill women. But in 1955, two scientists, Drs. Min Chiu Li and Roy Hertz, treated a young woman with advanced choriocarcinoma with a drug that made the cancer disappear. Today, 27 years after their original discovery some of the first patients that they treated are still alive and well. Now, using a combination of drugs, physicians are able to cure between 95 and 100 percent of women in whom the disease is detected in an early stage and achieve remission (disappearance) of the disease in 75 percent of women with advanced choriocarcinoma. This achievement is important not only for the women with this particular form of cancer, it is another medical milestone in the use of drugs to treat can-ANSWERline: By the end of 1978, it is estimated that approximately 347,000 American men will develop cancer as will 343,000 American women. There is a far more startling difference, however, when you consider who is more likely to die of cancer. Cancer is most curable when detected in an early stage and treated promptly, and women are more likely than men to have regular physical checkups and pay attention to cancer's warning signals. Also, there is an enormous lung cancer death toll of American men because of cigarette smoking which is far beyond that for women although in the future greater numbers of women may die of lung cancer because of their increasing cigarette habit.

Aymara Indians Benefit From New School

CHAHUIRA PAMPA, Bolivia (WNS) - More than 80 Aymara Indian boys and girls are learning to read and write in a new school in the Andes Mountains, thanks to the students at East Sandy Elementary in Salt Lake City, Utah.

The new school, 12,500 feet above sea level near Lake Titicaca, was built with the help of $1,000 donated by the East Sandy students under the Utah-Bolivia Partners program. Its official name is East Sandy School of Chahuira Pampa.

The school, a one-story adobe-brick building with a corrugated metal roof, sparkles in the sun on the Bolivian altiplano, a barren, windswept plateau ringed by the Andes. It is 80 feet long, 22 feet wide and its outside walls are painted royal blue.

To earn money for the school, the Utah children mowed lawns, washed dishes, sold newspapers and held a carnival. The Chahuira Pampa school is the 19th altiplano school completed or nearly completed with the help of Utah children.

In 1969, the Utah-Bolivia Partners began a three-way cooperative effort to build schools in the altiplano. The Utah children raise money, the Aymara Indians donate land and labor, and the Bolivilowing out a large, fresh apple. It is prebaked for ten minutes, then stuffed with curried turkey with stiffly beaten egg white folded into it, as for souffle. Then it goes back into the oven to finish baking and the filling puffs up, like a chef's hat on the apple. Like all souffles, if it's a 2-quart saucepan and cook the onion ready to go to the table before you are. it will shrink. So timing it with the rest of the menu is a good idea. Serve it with bland rice, a green vegetable such as well. Return to heat and cook until well broccoli or spinach and assorted relishes instead of salad.

CURRIED TURKEY BAKED IN APPLE

6 large red baking apples

or maragine (1/2 stick)

I cup chopped celery

112 cups chopped onion

tbsp., or more, curry powder

1/4 cup butter

2 egg whites, beaten stiff

Cut a 1/2-inch slice from the top of a large baking apple. Using a biscuit cutter or a sharp knife, cut out the center of the apple - leaving 1/2-inch thickness around the edges (use a spoon to hollow out the apple). Do not cut through the bottom. Place the apples in a buttered baking dish, add 12 cup water and bake at 350 degree F. for 10 minutes.

While apples are baking, melt butter in and celery about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in curry powder, salt, flour, and egg yolks. Add the stock, mix thickened, stirring constantly. Add turkey or chicken and set aside.

Beat the 2 egg whites until stiff and fold carefully into the curry mixture.

Fill apples with the curried turkey and return to the oven until the apples are baked and the filling puffed up. If any of the curried turkey mixture remains, thin it down with a little stock, and serve separately as a sauce. Serves six.

Rational Self-Counseling' Teaches People To Help Themselves

By JANICE JARVIS Family News Staff

In this technical society, machines have taken much of the work out of doing everything from peeling a potato to building a skyscraper. Yet no machine can do the most difficult job facing most people coping with emotions.

People tend to think that emotions come from outside of themselves, according to Dr. Paul Knipping. Ph.D., professor of Health Education at Texas Tech University.

People often blame every emotion on something else the boss made them mad, or their spouse hurt their feelings, noted Knipping, who teaches a class in rational self-counseling through the Division of Continuing Education.

One reason people don't take advantage of the ability to control their emotions is that they are taught from childhood that emotions control people rather than that people control their emotions.

The only help we get about how to cope is from our parents, and unfortunately parents have not developed the skill of rational self-counseling either," noted Knipping.

Through rational self-counseling training, a person can learn to control himself without the need of psychiatric counseling, according to Knipping. Since 80 percent of the adult population demonstrates psychiatric symptoms at one, time or another, the majority of adults could utilize the technique, noted Knipping.

Since rational counseling is a skill, anyone can, with practice, learn to control his emotions, Dr. Knipping said. The technique is based on the realization that emotions are extensions of the way people think. Once those thinking patterns are changed a person has a strong foundation on which to build rational thinking

Changing the way a person thinks begins with changing the mental dialogue a person carries on with himself. The first step toward rational self counseling is to learn to perceive situations rather than responding automatically. Most people don't perceive a situation but skip to the 'gut reaction' and the beliefs that often stir emotions, according to Knipping. 'Objectivity is lost, emotions take over,' he added.

Tech Professor To Address Women's Group

The National Organization for Women will feature Catherine Allen, assistant professor of sociology and social work at Texas Tech University, as guest speaker during the group's November meeting.

Allen will present a program on incest. Her presentation will distinguish incest from other types of child sexual assault, discuss the dynamics of child incest and later adult coping patterns. She will also discuss the impact on the nuclear family and society's response in the form of criminal disposition, services and treat-

Allen has consulted with the District of Columbia Rape Crisis Center on an incest prevention and treatment program for the public schools and has worked for the National Center for the Prevention and Control of Rape. She has previously practiced clinical social work with victims of incest and their families.

The meeting, which will be at 7:30 p.m.
Tuesday at the Wesley Foundation at

POPCORN STORAGE

What's the best way to store popcorn? It depends on the humidity. Always keep popcorn in an air-tight container. In fall and winter months popcorn should be stored in the refrigerator to preserve the 14 percent moisture content necessary for proper popping. During the spring and summer months, popcorn keeps well in the kitchen cupboard.

Before a person can replace the 'gut reaction' with a realistic way of perceiving situations, he must realize that emotional disorder is the result of and not the cause of irrational thinking, said Knipping.

For example, everyone may perceive a situation in the same manner, but their reactions, based on emotions, varies with individuals.

Three people can look at a snake. One person may panic and faint, another may pick up his camera and start taking pictures, while a third may shoot the snake and eat it for dinner. The snake behaved absolutely the same for all three persons but, based on beliefs and emotions, each person acted differently, according to Knipping.

If the snake bites one of the people death could result. According to rational self counseling, wishing an incident had not occurred is useless. When an action occurs a reaction will result. But no one has to like the reality, in this case death due to a snakebite, added Knippins.

The philosphy of rational self counseling, which is based on the theories of B.F. Skinner, is easy to understand, but putting theory into practice can be challenging. The best way to turn rational thoughts into action is to write everything down, according to Knipping.

The technique emphasizes training the person to examine his thoughts whenever a stressful situation develops. After he masters the technique, the pen and pad are no longer necessary.

According to the theories of rational self counseling, there are five questions a person must ask himself when confronted by a stressful situation. By writing the answers down he can rationally self counsel himself.

First, the person must separate the facts from the feelings. The person should examine the situation from a factual viewpoint.

If, for example, a person sees two people talking he may suspect they are talking about him. But the reality of the situation is that two people are talking, nothing more, according to Knipping.

Next, the person must determine if any action he might take would be life preserving. Most likely, walking up to the people and accusing them of talking about him would only complicate the sit-

MARTINIZING.

THREE 83rd & Indiana
LOCATIONS 49th & Knoxville
29th & Slide 1929

The next step is to determine whether any action would be goal producing. "If walking over to the person and hitting him doesn't make the person feel good, it isn't goal producing, " said Knipping.

Next the person must analyze how others, especially those in an authoritative position, would react to the act. If a policeman arrests the person for disturbing the peace, the result would not be considered desirable (unless for some reason the person wants to be arrested) explained Knipping.

Finally, the person should question whether any action would produce significant environmental conflict. If any action would not result in a positive action it would be considered irrational behav-

A negative response to any of the five questions should be enough to tell the person he is not being rational. Once a person can objectively analyze a situation, he can translate those thoughts into action

With practice rational thinking can become a habit and self-defeating attitudes can be overcome, according to Knipping.

New Survey Shows Husband's Approval Of 'Workwife' Influenced By Salary

UPI Family Editor

A new survey on the home front indicates a husband's approval of his wife's working is closely related to the amount of money she brings in.

"Happiness over his wife's working crossed all lines of occupations and all inome levels," says Suzanne McCall conducted the study.

Mrs. McCall is an associate professor of marketing and management at East Texas State University in Commerce, Texas. She coined the term "workwife" in an earlier study, as the opposite of housewife, a married woman who does not hold an outside job.

Mrs. McCall found that the more income the workwife contributes, the happier her husband is about her outside job He also thinks she is happier in the work

"If she contributes 40 percent or more to the family income, regardless of the amount, he is extremely happy she's working," she said in a telephone interview. "We used to think he worried about the family if the wife worked." It now appears he may worry if she doesn't. A summary of Mrs. McCall's findings was released recently at a news conference and seminar in New York City cosponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken and Ladies Home Journal magazine. It was part of the fast-food company's public service program to study the changing roles of women in America. Workwives' incomes in many cases are liberating their husbands, she said.

"The men felt a lot freer to buy more things," she said. Some said they no longer felt obligated to stick with jobs they hated. They felt freer to look for new

Workwives and their husbands don't always agree on why the women take out-

A new Nielsen study released at the conference quoted 40 percent of the working mothers questioned as saying ilies needed the money. But 58 percent of the husbands in Mrs. McCall's study answered the same question-with, "likes it" or "happier," while only 29 percent named need.

Mrs. McCall says this could be explained by a cultural hangup that justifies family necessity 'We also think the word 'need' needs redefining," she said. It used to mean actual necessities - food, clothing, shelter. Now a person who speaks of need may be talking about the need for a better lifestyle or to keep up with inflation, she "For years, sociologists and textbooks have said a woman gets her social class from her husband," Mrs. McCall said.

"We found an astoundingly high number of workwives get their social class from their workplace. It's a new source of consumer behavior patterning."

She said her survey suggests that many workwives with white collar jobs have ice clerk, he may be a plumber. That workwife may be getting shopping and lifestyle ideas more from her colleagues than her husband, the study indicated. ... Twenty-seven percent of the men in Mrs. McCall's survey said they shared housework, 22 percent, child care, and 40 ng: 37 percent said they had rearranged their work schedules Again, the dominant influences were the wives' income and both spouses' educa-

Trivia Quiz

Here we go again, on the Trivia merrygo-round. Reach for the brass ring by answering these nostalgic teasers. You need five right to pass, eight right rates an

1. Can you come up with the name of the 1932 movie in which Gary Cooper and Cary Grant are both after Tallulah Bankhead? (She's married to Charles Laughton at the time.)

2. It began as an evening radio show, opposite the powerful "Amos 'n Andy." Then CBS moved it to a daytime slot. For more than a decade. Americans laughed at the antics of two sisters, whose stage names were joined to make the name of the show. Do you remember? (And if you do, try for extra credit by telling which was the older sister.)

3. When the values go up, up, up what happens to prices? And why?

4. Dr. Kildare you know. And Ben Casey. But who, in the world of television, was Dr. Rossi? (And, for a bonus point, who played the part?)

5. And then there was the doc on Gunsmoke." Name that character. 6. And how about Doc Holliday? You may know he was featured on the old TV western series that began in 1955, all about Wyatt Earp. But you probably don't know the full name of that series. Do you? (No, it wasn't plain "Wyatt

7. Incidentally, did Wyatt carry a. a Buntline special?

CRYSTAL BALL - Keith D. Purvis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Purvis of Odessa, will be an escort at the annual debutante "Crystal Ball" Dec. 28. If you haven't had your skin analyzed and treated for your particular needs, you have missed a treat. We offer this service professionally or with students who are being trained in skin care. Special training in skin care and make-ups is necessary to achieve the correction of features for each individual's personal needs.

We have just completed a special week of make-up emphasis with one of Mark Traynor's cosmetic experts. Mark Traynor from New York is the make-up artist who recently designed a new look for Betty Ford, and he has a line of cosmetics which we think are really exciting

There are many new color combinations being used in make-ups. Fashion in makeup changes seasonally just as it does with hair and clothes. The Mark Traynor line of cosmetics has so many unusual tones of eve shadows and blushes, all designed to compliment the new shades in clothes fashions.

The look for today is the combining and blending together of several different shades of eve shadows and blushes It's really fun to experiment with the new pearlized powders, and one product. Devil's Dust, comes in 14 unbelieveable colors, all which simply radiate the skin and make make-ups different and special for

The perfect time for a new make-up is when you change your hair style, particularly when you change the color of your hair. At the time of a hair color change, it is absolutely necessary to change your make-up colors. Without this coordination of color, you new hair color cannot be becoming to you. Hair color change also affects the colors in clothes fashions which will be most complimentary to you. How exciting it will be to get out of the "rut" of wearing the same colors all the time. A hair color change can give you an entirely new attitude as well as a new personal image.

Such an important venture should be by plan and not by accident. Come in and let our trained personnel design a wellplanned program especially for you. Call 792-6311

With You

Sherlock Holmes and Hercule Poirot eware! There are some unseasoned leuths on the prowl these days who ould make the old pros join the police

The gumshoe of Susan Isaacs' Compromising Positions" is a bored uburban housewife who gets herself emroiled in a murder investigation - and n affair with the weary, attractive detecwe in charge.

News of the stabbing of a local periointist shocks Judith Singer. Rumors of Don Juan reputation and a neighbor's earful confession of an illicit (also cosumed and photographed) liaison with J. Bruce Fleckstein, DDS, launch our herone's inquiries.

The list of suspects grows longer as Juith discovers that apparently half of the ommunity visited the dentist after office

The police, seeking a guilty, spurned patient, plague local housewives. Judith, onvinced of her peers' innocence, purues a different course and ends up threatened by the killer - and by her

Bob Singer resents his wife's inatteniveness as much as he fears for her safe-To teach her a lesson, he spitefully tays late at the office and so is convenently out of the way when Judith meets ner detective. Ironically, it is the peevishhusband who ignites the affair when he recruits the detective to bully his wife ino abandoning her amateur investigation. Isaacs' description of their clumsy, nervous union is tender and amusing. More exciting though is their joint solution of the crime. "The Random Factor," the shared effort of Linda LaRosa and Barry Tanenbaum, features a more traditional cast but also some unorthodox touches. The New York City Police Department, baffled by a slew of insoluble, seemingly unrelated murders, turns to noted criminologist Noah Aikman. His appearance only intensifies the killers' deadly game. Each murder is more dramatic than its predecessor, though mercifully not too grisly

cides of no apparent motive for company, is on the verge of falling over the edge of boredom. In the nick of time, the authors spring their astonishing link, grab the reader's attention and hold it to the final harrowing capture.

For those not captivated by the commando tactics and bravado of the killers, a bit of romance is artfully inserted. Aikman falls for a lovely child psychologist who is treating a young boy in shock from witnessing one of the murders.

Itching for clues locked in the child's brain, Aikman violates doctor's orders.

He disturbs the child and his romance. Fortunately, both are patched by the book's end.

Similarly smitten are the criminologist's daughter (coincidentally, the assistant D.A.) and the deputy chief of police. He is a charming widower whose favorite on the force falls victim to the killers.

Frank King's "Down and Dirty" stars John Mekkler, formerly a detective, third-class, New York City Police Department, a '70s-style Phillip Marlow,

The story opens with Mekkler being thrown off the force when his new superior, Lieutenant Dunne, finds out that the veteran of 22 years is a homosexual. He's also an amphetamine and bourbon guzzler who reads Keats - in other words, not your typical cop.

The ex-cop turns to an old friend, a university professor, for a sympathetic ear. Instead of finding sympathy, he finds Prof. Reiver swinging from a chandelier. Immediately rejecting the possibility of suicide, Mekklar tries in vain to find his friend's murderer.

Finally, the recurrence of the name Jacob Frank leads Mekkler to the library where he discovers that Frank was an 18th-century pseudo-messiah who preached that only sin could redeem the world. The apocalypse could be triggered only by violating every existing moral code. The rather routine investigation turns into an eerie search for the leader of a contemporary cult of Frankists, who, it turns out, were responsible for Reiv er's murder among many others.

At several points, the pursuit seems near an end. Each time King interjects a bizarre twist to propel the investigation further — for instance the brutal, but immensely satisfying, murder of Lieutenant

Poetess Revives Mountain Language

MOSCOW (AP) - She writes in a language only a few thousand people know, with an alphabet that didn't exist half a century ago, and when she recites her poetry an ancient mountain language comes

Fazu Aliyeva is the leading poetess of the Avar language of Dagestan, and although only 350,000 people can understand the words she writes, she is widely printed in Russian translation.

In her opinion it is the Soviet Unionthat has assured the survival of her language and given it a written literature. and has also made it possible for her as a woman to be a writer.

The Avar language is one of 30 squeezed into the small Dagestani region on the mountainous shores of the Caspian Sea in southern Russia. Dagestan was incorporated into the U.S.S.R. in 1921. Like a number of other languages that had no written tradition, it is being preserved with a new alphabet created in the

Basketball League Announced By YMCA

YMCA church basketball is here again to provide youth and adults with an opportunity to improve physical fitness, learn related skills and experience competition by participating in a basketball

The YMCA-Church Athletic Association is accepting entries for basketball league play. Each team must have a sponsoring church with a minumum of seven players on the roster

League divisions are beginner peewee, rookie, junior-senior and adult. The schedule will consist of regular season play plus a tournament at the end of the season to determine the city champions.

Deadline for team entries is Nov. 16 For further information contact the YMCA at 762-0588.

They have almost completely lost the ability to speak their native tongue, but it lives on in songs performed by a small choral group.

When Mrs. Aliyeva recites her poems, the Avar language rocks and skips like a mountain horsenian, with an accompaniment of syncopated snaps and clicks at the back of her teeth.

Her poetry grows out of the oral tradition of Dagestan, passed down by itiner-ant storytellers.

Mrs. Aliyeva is a member of the Soviet Writers' Union, chairman of the Dagestan branch of the Soviet Peace Committee and editor of the magazine, Dagestan Woman.

'Gabby" is not the first children's book

By CONNIE CHAPMAN Family News Staff

"Children need to find out that everyone grows at his own rate, just as nature intended him to grow," says Wallene Dockery. Lubbock author of children's books. Mrs. Dockery says that that theme. is really the central message of her new-'est book "Gabby's Christmas Wish."

Children's literature is into a streak of realism, she says she learned in a meeting of the South Plains Writers' Club. so finding a publisher for a book which stimulates children's imagination and fantasy is very difficult. She terms this turn of events "part of a cycle" and describes it as unfortunate "Whatever happened to good animal stories?" she asks.

Children and the way they grow are very important to Wallene Dockery. She and her husband. Rex Dockery, who just happens to be the head football coach at Texas Tech, are the parents of two boys: Trey, age 13, and Dee, age 3. Trey is in the eighth grade at Evans Junior High-School, and, yes, he does play football. Two lovable canines, Kikie, a chow, and Ginger, a dachshund, complete the Dockery household

Young Dee is just becoming aware of his mother's accomplishments. "That's Mama," he says proudly pointing to the author's name on the copy of "Gabby" the visitors are browsing through

How do you find time to write, the vivacious blond author was asked "Fortunately, three-year-olds take naps! was the quick answer. She says she spent a lot of time during the day before naptime just thinking about what it was she wanted to write next. She laughingly expresses her apprehension: "I don't know what I'll do when Dee stops taking naps, but I'm thinking about it.

Writing fiction is like building a house, Wallene says. She emphasizes the importance of planning and plotting a story line carefully if an author is to "build" a satisfying story. She feels she has been very fortunate in working with W. L. Thompson, president of Shoal Creek Publishers in Austin. After receiving several rejections of her story from other publishers, she heard Thompson speak to the South Plains Writers' Club about children's books and he was interested in 'Gabby's Christmas Wish." He agreed to have his staff work with her on a rewrite of the story preparatory to their publishing the work. By June, final arrangements had been made and the book was rushed through for the Christmas book

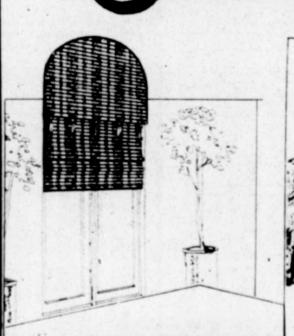

Maurine Zook, the artist who did the whimsical illustrations for the new book was chosen by the publisher. The picTHOUGHTS ON WORK

Squash: Perfect Replacement For Pumpkin

NEW YORK, N.Y. (Special) - Do you realize that the winter squash you serve as a vegetable is really a fruit? And that it's real name is "isquoutersquash"?

Whatever you call it, this golden vegetable or fruit lends itself to some very imaginative uses. These recipe suggestions, formerly using canned pumpkin, have been tested to use squash instead. Tasters liked these recipes as well as or better than the pumpkin versions. And the good news is that frozen mashed squash costs about half as much as canned/ pumpkin. Another "plus" is the nutritional value of squash is even a little better than pumpkin. Both are excellent sources of vitamin A, while squash contains more iron and vitamin C

There are six community centers sponsored by the City of Lubbock Parks and Recreation Department. These centers are Hodges, Mae Simmons, Rodgers, Maxey, Copper Rawlings and George Woods. Each has its own unique programs, influenced by members of the community

According to Kay Stiner, supervisor of the city community centers, four basic purposes are served by the centers. These purposes include classes, open recreation, center sponsored programs, and special events organized by the centers

All of the community centers sponsor pre-school and elementary classes and open recreation. Among the elementary classes offered are piano, creative clay, cheerleading and gymnastics. The preschool classes are similar to nursery school instruction.

Open recreation is fundamental to the community centers as an outlet for Lubbock youth. Such games as pool, him pool, ping pong, foosball, and games are available for use in the social

Adult classes vary according to the wants and needs of the people utilizing the individual centers. Among classes presently offered by the various community centers are slimnastics, square dancing, arts and crafts, disco dancing, cake decorating, bridge, quilting, ceramics, chess, women's fitness and yoga. In addition, some more specialized classes are offered such as a pilot grounds school, a C.P.R. course and defensive All elementary classes are free of charge, and adult classes require only the purchase of materials to be used. The city hires instructors and sets up classes according to public interest and request. The center directors are always open to new ideas, said Mrs. Stiner. A class will be offered if there is an interest or need and if there are at least 15 people to be enrolled in a class. In fact, feedback from the public is important to the development of programs.

Enrollment in classes is on a firstcome-first-served basis. The classes in progress are closed, but registration for winter classes begins in early January.

Several programs are sponsored by the city through the centers. The Copper Rawlings Community Center, located at 40th St. and Avenue B, operates a health linic on each second and fourth Thursday, co-sponsored by the Lubbock Health Department. Services include immunizaions, checkups, blood pressure checks, and other health services for those who annot get to the regular clinic

The social halls and meeting rooms are available to the public for a small fee if the space is not being utilized for center activities at that time. Rooms are provided free of charge if the meeting is free and open to the public and provides public information.

The community centers serve a unique function in the community. Mrs. Stiner said. The Lubbock city community centers are designed with the concept of performing a "service of recreation, not being in the business of recreation." Therefore, activities are funded by the ci-

Biography Offers Close-Up Of Film Director

Women's News Service NEW YORK - Marilyn Monroe kept him waiting. Katharine Hepburn spat at him. Humphrey Bogart couldn't intimidate him. Marlon Brando played Marc Antony for him. The movie "Cleopatra" depressed him. "All About Eve" and "A Letter to Three Wives" won him Academy Awards.

Kenneth L. Geist offers a close-up of him in "Pictures Will Talk: The Life and Films of Joseph L. Mankiewicz" (Scribner's). Geist, a film critic, lavished six and a half years on the biography, interviewed 150 persons, peeked into private as well as public closets.

Mankiewicz directed Katharine Hepburn in "Suddenly, Last Summer," with Elizabeth Taylor and a shattered Montgomery Clift. "Kate wanted very much to direct herself," the director says, and a struggle for supremacy erupted.

Toward the close of the film, Mankiewicz wanted her "suddenly to look old" by removing the camera's diffusion lenses. which was done

An enraged Hepburn spat at him in front of the company on her last day on the film, writes Geist. She then marched into the producer's office and spat a farewell at Sam Spiegel.

Clift had to be nursed and coddled. "He was a mass of tics and spasms," reports Geist, who watched one day as Mankiewicz fixed his blue-eyed gaze on Clift and began to massage Clift's neck and shoulders. "The result was astonishing. Clift's tremors subsided.

"All About Eve" remains the brightest star in the Mankiewicz writer-director diadem. Marilyn Monroe, then relatively obscure, arrived an hour late for one of her two scenes, prompting Gregory Ratoff to predict: "That girl ees going to be a beeg star!"

Bette Davis and Gary Merrill fell in love while playing lovers in the film, and later married. "Good morning." said Celeste Holm to Davis, early in the production. "Oh, these terrible good manners," rasped Davis.

"I never spoke to her after that," Holm recalls.

Mankiewicz met Bogart head-on in The Barefoot Contessa." Said Bogart. "I understand you like to shoot long scenes. I've never studied lines in my life. You understand what I mean?"

You're going to have to study this time. Bogie." the director said.
"All right," the tough guy said.

Of all the Mankiewicz films. 'Cleopatra" was the most obdurate and exhausting. Toward the end, the director and co-adapter was making his way to lo-

Correct Storage Of Assorted Cheeses Assures Flavor, Freshness

By CONNIE CHAPMAN Family News Staff

Although cheese in its myriad forms is a year-round favorite, it is especially popular in the winter apres ski fondues and as part of holiday party fare.

The United Dairy Industry Association recently released some tips on buying, storing and serving cheese.

The Association also pointed out the high nutritional value of cheese. In its concentrated form, they said, cheese contains all the protein, essential minerals, vitamins and other nutrients found in milk. And, ounce for ounce, it has the same protein value as meat or fish. If it is difficult to get your teenager to drink milk, suggest cheese as a snack, for a one ounce piece of cheddar supplies the same amount of calcium as 2.3 cups of milk. or about one-sixth of a teenage girl's daily requirements.

Proper storage of cheese assures that your favorite will keep well and be appealing when you serve it. Most cheeses. except cottage and cream, will keep in the refrigerator for several weeks if protected from mold and drying out. Leave cheese in the original wrapper or covering for storage, and cover the cut side with waxed paper, plastic wrap or foil It is also suggested that cheese like Limburgers with a distinctive odor should be stored in a tightly covered jar or contain-

You can freeze successfully some varieties of cheese, but not all. The Dairy Association lists brick, cheddar, Muenster, Swiss, provolone, edam, gounda, and camembert as those which can be frozen for as long as 6 months. Cut them in one pound pieces, not more than one inch thick: freezer wrap and store at 0 degrees

perature, again with the exception of cream or cottage cheese. Remove the cheese from the refrigerator about 20 minutes to an hour before serving to bring out the optimum flavor and tex-

For a party, choose an assortment or feature just one special variety. If you are offering something new, label it so your guests know what they are trying.

Cheeses that are fairly mild to the palate go best with beer, the Association recommended. Cheese and wine can be offered to guests any time. In England a cheese tray with "biscuits," (our crackers) is often the last course of the evening meal Families in many Scandinavian countries include cheese regularly on the breakfast menu.

Tips on cooking with cheese emphasize the importance of using low temperatures. Apply just enough heat to melt and blend the cheese with other ingredients. said the Association. Likewise, avoid long. cooking periods for cheese. Both high heat and longer cooking times tend to make cheese tough and stringy. It is also advised that you use a heavy pan when preparing cheese sauces like fondues to prevent scorching.

The guideline for buying the proper amount of cheese is that you will need 4 ounces of cheese for each cup of shredded or crumbled cheese called for by your recipe

Here in Lubbock many supermarkets and grocery stores carry an excellent vanety of cheese. There are also several stores which specialize in imported cheese. Party trays featuring cheese and gift assortment packages are also popular this time of the year.

The winter weather and the upcoming holiday season afford an opportunity to try some of the out-of-the-ordinary kinds of cheese sold locally and originating in

And of course there are the classics- chaddar varieties. Swiss, provolone, mozzarella, edam, gouda, gorgonzolla, and and the versatile creams.

The Dairy Association also suggests some recipes featuring cheese. Here are

Calling All Homemakers

By SYD MOORE, A.S.I.D.

Pictures used to be thought of as something for the living room and bedroom walls only. Now they are widely used in dining rooms, dens, kitchens, bathrooms, family rooms and every other room. Used with good taste, they will improve any room. The right picture or pictures can make dull rooms come alive.

Is there a right and wrong way to arrange pictures? Definitely not. Several years ago there was a contest offered to professional decorators to see which one could make the most attractive picture arrangement on a wall eight feet by nine feet.

More than a hundred decorators entered the contest. The judges found it almost impossible to make a decision. They finally gave prizes for three different arrangements. One prize went to a decorator who used one huge oil painting that almost covered the entire wall. Another prize was given for an arrangement where four pictures, 36 inches square, were place symetrically in each corner of the wall. The third prize went to a decorator who used an assortment of 22 different sized and shaped pictures, brilliantly spaced and grouped all over the wall.

Real To Reel

By William D. Kerns

NEW YORK - The opening night of the 1978 New York Film Festival at Lincoln Center saw so many celebrities in attendance that this column could easily be filled through the tacky act of name-dropping alone. But that would only constitute a regrettable waste of newsprint since it was obvious that only one name really mattered that night: Robert Altman. His new black comedy titled "A Wedding" had been selected to open the festival and, judging by the mid-film applause and the respectful ovations awarded the bearded director when introduced, the love affair between New York City and Bob Altman was well apparent. So it was all the more surprising when Altman requested that the audience merely accept the film's humor without digging for deeper messages.

There was no way to get close enough to Altman for serious conversation at the reception held afterward, not with all the well wishers and Phyllis George's pushy cameramen. But when we met for our interview in a hotel meeting room the next morning, it was necessary to ask why he made such a request

Well, you didn't stand in line and you didn't buy a ticket," he said. "You didn't ask your friends whether you should go see 'A Wedding' or 'Viva Italia' or 'Interiors' or 'Foul Play.' You didn't make a choice. There was a certain amount of fanfare. It to over-analyze his new picture, he replied, "No, I don't think people will. I think critics will. I think the majority of people will laugh at it. Some will be disturbed, some will take it as cruel or cynical, some will forget about it and some people will think back about it. All those things. I think, though, a lot of criticisms I've read on the film to date have been over-analytical."

Altman describes a cult as "not enough people to make a minority or a profit." Even so, he is most often described as a talented, cult director. Like Woody Allen, he generates more appeal on the almighty Coasts than, say, in West Texas. Even though he's filmed a slew of intriguing pictures like "McCabe And Mrs. Miller," "Images," "Thieves Like Us" and "The Long Goodbye." "M-A-S-H" was probably the only one of his films to generate widespread interest and huge profits - but Alt-man's "Nashville" has been included on every list I've ever seen of Best American Films. It is the only film in

Director of new comedy "A Wedding" history to win the Best Film and Best Director prizes from the National Society of Film Critics, the New York Film Critics Circle and the National Board of Review

ROBERT ALTMAN

But this acclaimed director, who jumped right into the field without ever having acted in a film, regards his image (i.e. "cult director") problem as a conflict with the Hollywood concern for profit. "Everybody is out making a 'Jaws' or a 'Star Wars' or shooting for a $100 million gross. I'd like a mass audience, sure. I think of the audience. But I can only make the pictures I make. I couldn't make them any more or less popular than they already are. My films pull a 20 to 30 per cent profit, and that would be pretty good in a normal business. But in the film business it doesn't mean a thing unless you multiply it a hundredfold. 'Nashville' made a very good profit. It should have made everyone happy, but instead everyone was disappointed that it didn't go through the roof. So in film terms at the studio, it's a failure. Paramount doesn't speak of it as a success. Instead, they talk about 'Grease' and 'Saturday Night Fever.

Altman remains happy because he is still able to make the films he wants. And why? "Because," he said, "I make films neatly and quickly and efficiently and cheaply. They (studios) know I'm not going to cost them too much money. And they have to put out a certain amount of product. And I'm a good salesman.

'A Wedding." which is currently playing at the South Plains Cinema in Lubbock marked the first film to have been screened by Altman at the prestigious New York Film Festival. Asked why he decided on such a premiere, the director said, "I did a lot of thinking before bringing the film here. I would not have allowed the fil within the festival, but I did agree to let it open the festival. I think it works for the film. I think it works for the festival. I think the reason for the festival is to draw attention to films that might normally go without. We don't fit in that category. I would not have wanted to take the spotlight away from a smaller film.

"We don't need it. The fact 'A Wedding' is in the festival won't affect our grosser 'Now we did put 'A Wedding' into the San Sebastian Film Festival. And Carol Burnett won the Best Actress award there, which is nice. But they don't know who she is in Europe. Anyway, the only reason we went into that festival is that you get such a big economic tax break. If you enter that festival, you get a big tax break in Spain. And Spain is a big market."

Believe it or not, the idea for the current film was born when a persistent reporter caught Alman in a bad mood on the set of "Three Women." She badgered him, he said, about that he was going to do next — until he finally lost his temper and snapped sarcastically. "Oh, I'm tired of film. I think I'll just go out and shoot a wedding." The more he thought about it, though, the more he liked the idea. And the result is an ensemble piece with 48 characters (twice the number used in 'Nashville"), opening with a private wedding ceremony and then giving us an afternoon of craziness and surprises at the family reception. Told by one viewer the film was confusing at times, he said, "That's the way it's supposed to be. I wanted the audience to be just another guest at this wedding. Since you don't know anybody there, you learn by observing. The idea was that you, the viewer, would come away with only an impression, rather than knowing specifically about all the characters. The characters expose themselves and the more you see them, the more opinions you form about them.

Bailey took his first real job as an entertainer in a local nightspot on the road from LaGrange to Columbus soon after his high school graduation. Four months later the club was shuttered, and Razzy was out of a job.

The closing had nothing to do with Razzy's music - the state highway department closed the road, making it impossible for customers to reach the club easily but it was a crushing blow to the hopeful musician who had joined the Future Farmers of America at a Lafayette, Ala., junior high school solely to be able to play in the string band the FFA spon-

"I never planned to do anything but play music," says Bailey. "In the string band there was more chance to do things like television and Lions Club Shows."

Despite the suspicious motives for Razzy's FFA membership, farming had been largely responsible for sparking his first musical interest. In the years between his sixth and eleventh birthdays, Razzy lived the life of a typical southern farm family in Five Points, Ala. At workday's end, Razzy's father often strummed out original songs to the attentive youngster at his feet on the porch. From black farm workers he gained a love of bottleneck guitar and blues harmonica, but it was the regular Saturday night singings around a blazing fire at which he got his first taste of entertaining. From miles around, fiddle, mandolin, guitar, banjo and harmonica players came to sit on the Bailey's front porch to pick and sing until three or four o'clock in the morning. I sang with the rest of the familly," recalls Razzy. "but the truth is I was mostly just hollerin' back then. His interest led him to cajole his first guitar from his father, and to take lessons from a school teacher. "It was a used five or six dollar guitar with a neck so warped it looked more like a bow and arrow than a guitar," says Bailey, but it was good enough for a determined student to master the basics. By the time he was 15, he was playing clubs and square dances and finished in second place with the FFA stringband at a statewide contest at Auburn University.

Following graduation and the incident with the club closing. Bailey gave up entertaining and took a series of daytime jobs (RC delivery truck driver, insurance salesman, furniture representative), but in 1968, after four years away from music, he decided it was time to give the music business his full concentration. A trio called the Daily Bread was formed. A two-week booking in Naples, Fla. stretched into a six-month stand, and Razzy has been writing and singing songs

In 1966, Razzy had written a tune called 9,999,999 Tears," and he took it to Atlanta music entrepreneur Bill Lowery. Lowery like the song and sent the young writer into the studio with Joe South. Freddy Weller, Billy Joe Royal and several other rising musicians to record it. It was followed by "Stolen Moments," Dancing On Brimstone," "I Hate Hate" and "Peanut Buatter" on a succession of

RAZZY BAILEY

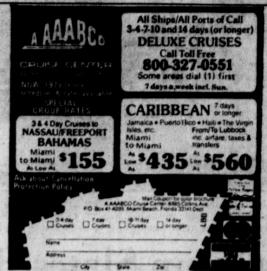

While at MGM for one release, Razzy's songwriting impressed Ed Mascolo (now Southeast Regional Promotion Manager at RCA), and he suggested several of Razzy's songs to RCA artist Dickey Lee for an upcoming session. As a result, Razzy got his first number one record as a songwriter when "9,999,999 Tears" topped the charts.

When "Peanut Butter" was also successful for Dickey, RCA signed Razzy as an artist. As this is written, "What Time Do You Have To Be Back To Heaven" is forging up the charts, and it appears Bailey will have his first hit record as an artist. It's a long way from Lafayette, Ala.,

The Lubbock Art Association will honor Nancy Carr of Levelland, and Pat Krahn and Conny Martin of Lubbock, with a public reception from 2 to 4 p.m. today at the Garden & Arts Center, 4215 University Ave.

The artists are presenting 45 paintings in oil, watercolor and mixed media for the Ninth Annual Merit Invitational Show. They were selected for the honor by Jim Broderick, chairman of the Texas Tech University art department, from entries in the Lubbock Art Association's 1977 Membership Show

The exhibition will continue through Nov. 22

NANCY CARR

Nancy Carr took her first free-hand drawing lesson at South Plains College in 1968, fell in love with the field of creative art and has been an active artist ever since. She has studied with many outstanding instructors, including Clarence Kincaid, Lonnie Mason, Harold Roney, William Earle. Ben Konis and Robert E. Wood She especially credits Bud Biggs' of Dallas with motivating and inspiring her in the development of her watercolor techniques

She likes to build a color mood stressing the principles of design, for development of individual expression. As a result she paints truth as she sees it and feels it.

believing that illusion on a ground of truth is the secret of art.

Her paintings are in the collections of banks, museums and schools, as well as many individuals, but her favorite galleries are the homes of her friends and patrons. These paintings are rendered in a variety of styles, depicting mood and evoking the response of the viewer.

She has received many honors in lands scape, portraits and abstraction. She is a member of Lubbock Art Association, West Texas Watercolor Association and Texas Fine Arts Association. A full time painter, she maintains a studio in her Levelland home

PAT KRAHN

Pat Krahn is a versatile artist who works in a variety of media. Her distinctive representational style is warmly sensitive in its attention to detail.

She has won many awards in local. state and national exhibits, including the Pastel Society of America. New York: National Drawing and Small Sculpture Show. Corpus Christi: Texas Water Color Society, San Antonio; and Texas Art Exhibit, Inauguration Reception '77, Washington, D.C. Her work has been selected for Purchase Prizes and State Circuit for eight consecutive yers in Texas Fine Arts Association exhibits.

Her work is included in numerous public collections including: Nita Stewart Haley Library, Midland; Diamond M Museum. Snyder: Groos National Bank, San Antonio: Texas Tech Museum. Lubbock: Austin National Bank, Lubbock; and Lubbock Art Association, Lubbock, as well as in private collections throughout the country.

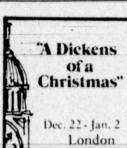

She is a member of Lubbock Art Association, West Texas Watercolor Association and Texas Watercolor Society. The artist teaches drawing and painting in her Lubbock studio, as well as workshops throughout the area.

CONNY MARTIN

Conny Martin received the major part of her training at the University of Northern Colorado and has studied with such outstanding artists as Bess Hubbard. Ben Konis and Emily Guthrie Smith. An active member and past president of the Lubbock Art Association and Texas Fine Art Association, she teaches drawing and painting workshops in Lubbock and around the Southwest.

She has had 29 solo exhibits and her painting can be found in numerous, private and public collections. Her presentation of "The World of Genghis and Kubilai Khan" at the First National Bank. Lubbock, has brought national recogni-

A 'Peck' Of Villainy On Screen

NEW YORK — At the age of 62, the versatile Gregory Peck already has close to 50 films to his credit. He was memorable in John Huston's "Moby Dick," of course, and won Oscar nominations for "The Keys To The King-"The Yearling." "Gentleman's Agreement" and "Twelve O'Clock High." The Academy Award was his to keep in 1962, thanks to his moving portrayal of Atticus Finch in "To Kill A Mockingbird." But never have his prior roles come close to approaching the vile, sadistic characteristics of his character in the current thriller "The Boys From Brazil." Peck has always stood for firm, honest dignity - and yet now he's killing children while attempting to give birth to a Fourth Reich of Nazi power.

Indeed, the scene in which Peck tousles the hair of a young Paraguayan boy, only to tell his henchman to "Kill him," draws gasps from most audiences. It is as shocking as it is reminiscent of another good of boy, Henry Fonda, drawing his pistol and methodically murdering a weeping lad in cold blood near the beginning of Sergio Leone's "Once Upon A Time In The West."

The passion Peck lends his part of Nazi geneticist Josef Mengele only makes the character shift that much more extraordinary.

But the image swings back full cycle upon meeting Peck off screen. Extremely tall and fit, he looms over his interviewer but nevertheless comes across as more open than malicious. And he says that, though he was surprised at being asked to play an antagonist, he welcomed the change. "These psychological types are very good roles, and I've been watching other people do them for years," he said. "I suppose producers have seen me as a useful type. After all, someone has to be the hero and carry the plot and handle the exposition. So others get to do flamboyant things like going mad. And I very often envied them because these are good roles.

And now it's time for me to play these character roles. I don't want to play abything but my own age. I can't be, nor do I want to be, the dashing hero

Though the plotline of cloning was born in novelist Ira Levin's imagination. the character Peck plays really exists. Not bothering to disguise his contempt, he explained. 'I enjoyed playing the part, even though the reality behind the character is revolting. Mengele does exist. He did stand beside the railroad siding at Auschwitz-and wave his little wand, deciding which ones looked healthy enough to work. And the ones that didn't went straight to the gas chamber. He did, as (Laurence) Olivier says in the film, perform surgical ex-

Mengele lives and thrives in Paraguay today, protected by the country's military. He has personal round-the-clock guards. I have heard the Israelis have an unwritten agreement with Paraguay. They don't go in and kidnap and kill Nazi war criminals and, in return, Paraguay always supports Israel on U.N. resolutions. That's what I'm told. Somebody ought to check that out. I think it's probably true.

But like co-star James Mason, Gregory Peck insists he finds it necessary to somehow sympathize with the characters he plays. "Mengele is not easy to live with." he said. "But you have to bring all the humanity you can to every role. You have to find out what his emotional triggers are. You must identify with him in some way if you can. It helps if you can find a trace of goodness. That's hard with this character, though,

That Peck could be so ruthless on screen indicates he is well in tune to his character. And it is precisely that viciousness, along with Franklin Schaffner's excellent direction, which helps the final bloody hand-to-hand combat between two elderly men become so horrifyingly enrapturing. Here is Peck chewing on Sir Laurence Olivier's ear! And here is Peck in turn being chewed on by a pack of snarling, drooling Dobermans. Talk about gruesome.

But Peck has not been making friends with dogs of late, as anyone who remembers the "hounds of Hell" sequence in Richard Donner's "The Omen" can attest. Asked how he felt about working with the Dobermans, he said, "I felt trusting. Really nervous and trusting at the same time. The trainer is very reliable, and I made very sure to establish a warm relationship with her."

The dogs did nip Peck more than once in the arm, but he explained, "The thing is, the dogs are trained to retrieve. When they grab you on the arm and tug on you, they're trying to get you to go to their trainer. And it's better for you if you go . Anyway, I don't know any actor who wouldn't walk over broken glass through fire to get a great scene. Your sense of self preservation gets pushed aside. Still, it's nerveracking to see them come running at you, exposig their fangs as they jump toward your throat." So much so that director Schaffner stood in for Peck during rehearsals, just to show him how perfectly safe" it would be when the Dobermans closed their jaws about his

As for working with the consummate actor, Sir Laurence Olivier, Peck's comments were anything but surprising. "Working with Olivier was just a total joy," he said. "I've known him for 25 years and, to me, he's the world's heavyweight champion. I admire him I love him I think he's elevated the profession. The reverberations of what he's done in England are felt here today in the growth of our regional theaters and the new respect for the classics. And personally, he's not only talented, but lovable and warm and human and

"He knows of his significance in the world, but he's too big a person to be vain about it or even think about it.'

The praise continued as Peck explained that Olivier was physically weak during filming. He explained, "He was convalescing from an operation at the time. He'd lost a lot of weight and was very frail. And yet he put it all to work for himself in the film. . As for the fight, we did it in short pieces which were choreographed for us by stuntmen. They directed us by saying, 'Now you roll over, now you choke him, now you bite his ear, now you hit him with the back of your hand, cut! That's the way it was done.

So between takes, we'd lie on the floor and chatter and laugh and not take it too seriously. But when the camera starts turning, though, you try to call up whatever murderous rage you have within you.

Though Peck sported a bit of a Scottish dialect in "Billy Two Hats," his first major work with accents came in "The Boys From Brazil." He said, "I've played a couple of Englishmen in 'Captain Horatio Hornblower' and 'The Paradine Case,' but nobody cared about my accent back then. Nobody suggested it, and I'm afraid it didn't occur to me to try an authentic English accent. Jack Warner thought it would be laughable. I wish now I had done it despite The sturdy actor worked on his German accent for the current thriller for six weeks with dialectician Robert Easten. The latter would explain the common errors made by English-speaking Germans, and Peck would then carry around a tape recorder "playing the upcoming scenes even while in the car on the way to the studio.

Peck comes straight out and says his favorite role was that in "To Kill A Mockingbird." But when told that Schaffner has called Peck's current performance his best ever, the actor said, "I think I'd rather let other people make up their own minds. It's a strong, flamboyant role — and I usually play calm, collective, even passive characters. It was a treat to break loose. But in many ways, it is harder to play a calmer man who never lets his emotions run away with him.

Acting is not the only thing on Peck's mind these days, though. He's involved in numerous projects. He has served on the National Council for the Arts, helping to instigate funding for the nation's regional theaters from which, he says "our best acting and writing and directing comes from these days." He's busy raising money for his son Carey's campaign as Congressman from the 27th district in west Los Angeles. And he's also taken time to produce two movies: "Trial Of The Catonsville Nine" and "The Dove.

Asked if he also holds aspirations to direct, he replied, "I never had the time before, and now I don't have the desire to do it. It's a young man's game. I wouldn't start now

The horror picture "The Omen" was, of course, Peck's springboard back to the star ranks. But he did suffer a major disappointment with last year's film biography "MacArthur," a fact for which he still holds Universal Pictures to blame. "They got frightened over there," he said, "and they cut it from three hours and 12 minutes to two hours and eight minutes. They were frightened of content, of what they saw as entertainment that wouldn't appeal to a young audience. They have a fixation with youth over at Universal. They thought there was too much history, too much content.

They didn't trust their audience's intelligence, so they whacked the film to

This writer interviewed "MacArthur" screewriters Hal Barwood and Matthew Robbins earlier in the year, at which time both claimed the reason for the film's failure was simply Peck's refusal to play his part as written. Confronted with their statement, the actor revealed there was no love lost by saying. Well, they wrote it without any knowledge or background. They wrote it from a knee-jerk liberal point of view. They didn't do enough research on the man. They were just doing a job for Universal. What they wrote was a fashionable 70s put-down, full of distortions and shallowness and sarcasm. And I had read so much about Douglas MacArthur. I didn't like him myself at first, but I came to realize his faults were only vanity and a love of publicity. Minor faults very typical of military men and politicians.

I thought this should be the film's point of view. Not to remove all his warts. Certainly to show them, but in perspective as the warts of a great man. The script they wrote was very petty, and I simply refused to play him until they brought in someone else to re-write it. . I had hoped the picture would be another 'Bridge On The River Kwai' or 'Gone With The Wind.' It had that kind of potential. But Universal was the wrong place to make it.

That's Gregory Peck for you. Tough, outspoken and big enough to back it all up. He's equally blunt about Josef Mengèle. Levin based his character Ezra Lieberman (the Olivier role) on real-life Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal; the name was routinely changed to avoid any possible litigation. However Mengele is very real. Told jokingly that the film might bring up a slander suit from the war criminal, Peck chuckled out loud and said, "I wish Mengele would sue us. I think we would have accomplished something important if we could draw that man out of hiding to sue us

I'd like him to know what I think of him

Real To Reel

the doctor was a member of the family, and so on. But that's what you'd have if you'd gone to a real wedding. I think.

So the confusion doesn't matter?

No. I don't think so," he answered "I mean, it may matter in whether an individual likes the film. He may say, 'That's a lousy film.' And I couldn't argue with him. I can't help that. But the intention of this film was never to tell you about all these people. Rather, just to let you be an observer at the ritual.

A few critics have labeled the film a put-down of the institution of marriage. Altman scoffs at that with, "I think that would be impossible, and I see no reason to do that. I myself am married. I like it. Some of my children are married. Some aren't. I don't object to it when they get married. I don't object to it when they don't,

As for the reason behind the tragic twists at the end of the movie, he explained, "I simply feel you have to pay for your laughs. I think that's generally true. Anything you laugh long enough at will eventually have you crying.

But whether or not the viewer likes Altman or his films, it can never be denied that this director's casts thoroughly enjoyed working on them. Actors universally rave about working with Bob Altman, and not just because he is a master of improvsation and spontaneity. Altman said. "At least 90 per cent of my creative work is done at casting I'm very good at that." But pressed to discuss his philosophies on working with actors, he finally answered. "I simply let them perform. As I see it, I draw boundaries and then I say. 'This is your space. This is the arena. These are the lines. You know who you are.

Sometimes I'll be explicit in my staging, but I always will let them find their own space. I cast people so they'll bring their own personalities to the parts. I find they lose confidence if I talk to them too much. They don't get confused, but they do only exactly what I tell them - and that's not good. They feel they can then say, 'I just did what he told me, so it's not my fault.' So what I do is talk with them a bit, and pretty soon they find a spot they're comfortable in. And invariably, that's always the Altman is also a director who values his actors. He applauds their importance, saying. "Directors say a lot of things. I know (Alfred) Hitchcock has always said that actors are fools, that they're furniture. I don't believe that. I don't think he believes that, not really I think actors are the main interpretors of our craft. They are the artists. They are the main tools of what we do. Without them, you've got what? Animation' Well even then you've going to have to have human voices. You need

It is no wonder then that the pians layish such high praise on Bob Altman — or that so many hopefuls contact Altman with requests to be cast in his films. But letus not neglect the fact that in any Altman film, the director is the star. Bob Altman is a torce in the industry, and he is quite aware of his own reputation. In a way, he thrives on it, as he said. I get mail I read things I like it. It's comfortable. It's

I think that it I ever made a film and not one person anywhere liked it. I'd have to quit the business. I don't think I could ever make another. All of us have to have support

Even without the cheers from that New York audience, though, director Bob Altman has to realize he is not hurting in that respect

You read it here first: Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge have been booked to appear in concert Friday. Dec. 8 at the Lubbock Civic Center exhibition hall. Tickets will go on sale "within three weeks of the show." Kristofferson has always been a major draw here but, surprisingly, it is his wife Rita Coolidge who is hot on the re-

This booking follows on the heels of two recent concert cancellations in Lubbock. The Johnny Cash Concert was cancelled because of the recent death of Maybelle Carter (the mother of Cash's wife, June Carter), according to promoters. Ticket holders can pick up refunds at the Civic Center box office. And the slated Nov. 26 rock show by Black Sabbath and Van Halen was cancelled due to the bands' astonishing popularity in Dallas. That is, tickets for Black Sabbath's Nov. 25 concert in Dallas sold out in a matter of hours — so promoters decided to give Dallas a second show on the 26th

Those same promoters tried to re-schedule the show into Lubbock on Saturday, December 9 But the idea was nixed because there is already a Texas Tech University basketball game in the Coliseum that night. Thus ticket holders for the rock show can pick up their refunds at the Lubbock Coliseum box office

The Fox Theater will show Stanley Kubrick's "2001. A Space Odyssey" at midnight Friday and Saturday. According to theater manager Harold Lieck, "If response is good, we'll keep it for further weekends.

Did you know Gregory Peck's wife, a former journalist, gave up an interview with Albert Schweitzer to accept a date with the actor. During a recent interview with The A-J. Peck explained. "I gave an interview to this woman with a French daily newspaper. Then my first marriage broke up and, since I had three movies to make in Europe. I went to Paris to sit it out awhile. I was impressed with that reporter. I was impressed with what she had written, also. She quoted all of the bright things I said, and none of the stupid things

I called her at the newspaper and my first line was brilliant: I said 'Do you remember me" I asked her to go to lunch and the racetrack, and there was a long pause. Finally she said OK and we did. I started escorting her, and we were married. But not until months and months later did I say. You took a devilishly long time agreeing to go out with me. Did you have a steady beau?

She said. I wasn't going to tell you this, but I had an appointment that afternoon to interview Albert Scweitzer at the apartment of Jean Paul Sartre.' I was stunned, but managed to say, 'Well, you made the right decision.' Her line was better. She said. If I'd gone to my interview, I might be a widow in the Congo today

Another interesting little story was revealed in New York. Again during an A-J interview, actress Lillian Gish was discussing the late D.W. Griffith's reaction to the suggestion of "sound movies" She quoted him as saving, "It's suicide. My films speak to the world, and only five per cent of the world speaks English.

Cognac Credited With 'Benefits'

NEW YORK (UPI) - For those who need an excuse to drink cognac, mark one for medicinal purposes, according to a visitor here who should know

Gerard Sturm, a retired French air force jet pilot and international director of the Cognac Bureau, claims a shot of cognac mixed with two parts of orange juice during the winter has kept him free of colds for many years

In addition numerous citizens of Cognac, France, the heart of the country's cognac-iroducing area, are more than 100 years old. Sturm said. This longevity he attributes to the region's air which is permeated by the evaporation of some 25,000 bottles of cognac each year.

The University Theater will stage Paul Zindel's comedy "Ladies At The Alamo" at 8:15 p.m. Friday through Nov. 15. Call the theater-box office for reservations and ticket information.

The play's cast - labeled by director Richard Weaver "the most experienced I have worked with in over 10 years" - includes Alice French, Leslie Thurman, Deborah Bigness, Mary Anne Mitchell and Janey Burgess.

The most experienced in the group is Alice French, perhaps better known to Lubbock residents as the producer and hostess of the local TV talk show called "People Place." She appeared with the late Andy Devine in "Never Too Late" at the former Hayloft Dinner Theater.

Miss French has a doctorate of philosophy in theater arts from the University of Missouri. She acted in two professional theater companies in Missouri.

Alice French plays the role of wealthy Texan Joanne Remington in "Ladies At The Alamo.

Better known to local residents as Miss Lubbock, Leslie Thurman of Brownfield also brings experience to her role of Bella. An applied voice major in the music department at Tech, she was featured in the Tech Music Theater's "Iolanthe," "Rigoletto" and "The Marriage Of Figaro." She also starred in "Kiss Me Kate" at the Lubbock Theatre Centre, "South Pacific" for Civic Lubbock and in the Hayloft productions of "I Do, I Do" and 'Sweet Charity.

Representing Lubbock, Miss Thurman placed in the top 10 in the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant in 1978.

Deborah Bigness has created roles in University Theater productions of "Once Upon A Mattress," "Kennedy's Child-ren," "Peer Gynt," "How The Other Half Loves" and "Rose Tattoo." She worked professionally the past summer at the Globe of the Great Southwest Theater in Odessa.

Miss Bigness, business manager for Tech's Lab Theater, plays the part of the compulsive eater, Suits, in "Ladies At

ART TALK Seeing And Looking

Whether you are an artist, a potential, or only an observer of nature, there is a way of looking at the world around you and seeing much more than the casnal viewer thinks about

Objects take on different appearances under various light conditions. One instructor once told his painting students of realism. "You know the sky is blue, tree trunks are brown, grass is green. Now paint it that way." Nothing could be further from the truth. Each of us knows the local, or accepted color of an object, but the way it is illuminated determines its color. If that were not true, color would be a monotonous tone all over the world.

Sometime look at the black composition shingle rooftop. You know it is very dark for you have seen it that way. Look again. If the light reflects off it in a certain way, that black plane can be lighter than the sky above the roofline. As you drive down a paved street oftentimes you recognize the pavement as orange in color, or blue, purple, or any other hue. This is the effect of light on the grey surface. How many of us have not seen a very wet appearing, very blue or giaring white mirage, that looked so real we knew we would drown in the lake crated by light reflecting on a surface?

Distance changes local color, as does weather conditions. A true artist would not have to leave his own yard to paint for a lifetime if he is an observer of light. (How dull that would be!) I know an artist-instructor who paints the

When Neil Simon was making the first draft of his comedy, "The Odd Couple." which subsequently became one of the great stage comedy hits of the 1960s, it was an all-male show. That wasn't right,

He was telling the humorous story of two men in a painful predicament. One of them is a sloppy, gruff, cigar-chewing newspaper sportswriter whose disorderly habits have driven his wife to abandon him in a big apartment, where he rattles around in a loneliness alleviated only by regular Friday night poker games with some equally untidy pals.

The other man, a member of the poker crowd, by contrast has a compulsion for tidiness and epicurean cooking. Having just been rendered desolate by his wife bouncing him for being such a lint-picking fussbudget, he is glad to accept the sportwriter's invitation to move in and help fill the big, empty apartment. The glorious incompatibility of this pair in their domestic life, and in the changed atmosphere of the weekly poker games as the spic-and-span devotee keeps fluffing sofa cushions and insisting on coasters under the beer-glasses, is what gives the comedy its hilarity. The two combatants representing order and cleanliness on one side and cozy squalor on the other, plus four poker-playing third act." pals, seemed all the cast of characters playwright Simon needed. But that wasn't right and he neatly added a feminine contingent of two to increase the dramatic personnae. Not, by any means, the wives who had discarded the two room-mates - they were far funnier remaining in the wings - but a pair of chattering, featherbrained neighbors (sisters delightfully named Pigeon) invited for a dinner which becomes an uproarious second act climax to the war between the bachelors. So "The Odd Couple" began its pre-New York try-out run in Boston with a cast of six men and two women - the same kind of cast that later triumphed in New York and will be seen here at the Lubbock Theatre Centre. Boston critics and Boston audiences were warmly enthusiastaic about the play, but playwright Simon felt he still had some revising to do before the New York opening. And then a critic, the distinguished dean of Boston reviewers, Eliot Norton, helped him find out where improvement was needed. Norton had invited Simon, his director Mike Nichols, and the two

Director Nichols and actor Matthau were quick to insist that it did not.

Nichols particularly said in defense that this was an inevitable problem with a comedy. "You paint people into a predicament," he said, "and then to end matters you have to get them out and wrap up the situation. Moliere said it: a time comes in a comedy when 'il faut achever,' you must finish it. The finishing should be quick, but it may seem a diminution, because it's a solution, and the funny situation is no longer there. Look at any of the great comedies: 'Private Lives,' 'The Importance of Being Earnest,' 'Lysistrata.' It's the same thing at Norton said he wasn't complaining about the solution, he was just looking for one more funny scene before it came. Simon didn't defend his play. He was inquiring. What did Norton think was missing? Norton, protesting that he was no playwright, had no answer but after some prodding he said "I'm thinking of

Colorprint U.S.A. To Open Nov. 12 At Tech Gallery

Colorprint U.S.A. will open Nov. 12 at the Texas Tech University art department teaching gallery, and remain open to the public through the end of the month. All prints will be for sale.

Colorprint U.S.A. is a national competitive print show held bi-annually at Tech. It is one of the only shows of its kind because it is limited to original fine arts prints of more than one color. It serves as a showplace for printmakers from all across the nation, usually attracting close to 300 entries. The show also provides an interesting overview of the current trends in printmaking, since artists tend to enter their most recent work.

Colorprint U.S.A. was first held in 1969. Tech, art professor Lynwood Kreneck served as director then and continues now in the same capacity. Originally funded by federal funds distributed by the Texas Fine Arts Commission, it is now supported primarily by the Tech art department and donations from Helen Dewitt Jones.

A special fund was also made available this year to bring five Texas printmakers together for a Nov. 3 seminar.

The judge for this year's Colorprint U.S.A. will be Warrington Colescott, whose own work has been represented on the cover of "Art News." He is currently teaching at the University of Wisconsin.

This year, as with the last Colorprint U.S.A. show, art students and those studying museum science are receiving college credit and first hand experience for participation in the execution of the show.

For further information, contact Lynwood Kreneck at the Tech art department.

First We Must Protect The Texas Right To Work Law.

Let's face it. There are only 20 Right to Work states in the nation. Texas is one of them.

The most important thing your next U.S. Senator must do is protect what we have in Texas. Protect our state's rights.

There are those, like my opponent, who would advocate sending Texas on a kamikaze mission by attempting to "nationalize" the Right to Work law.

First of all, the "nationalization" concept is a frightening one to me, whether it be our energy industry, land use or gun control.

Secondly, if Texas attempts to coerce the Northern states into a National Right to Work law, there is more than a real chance that those same majority Northern states would retaliate with yet another all-out effort to repeal the Texas Right to Work

We must not allow this to happen. We must not give up the economic advantage Texas presently has over the Northern states.

We need reason in the U.S. Senate, not demagoguery. We need to protect the Texas Right to Work law first. To this end I will work the next six years in the U.S. Senate.

Dire Straits' New Album Pleasant Surprise

A-J Rock Correspondent

Misjudging an album's music by its cover is a common mistake. Few people like to make it these days. And why should they when those mistakes go for $6 or $7 a throw (and there's good indication the price may increase within a

The cover of the debut album by Dire Straits (Warner Bros.) could be misleading to those who judge an album by its cover. When I first saw the cover, I half envisioned an "artsy" new wave band. After all, the band's got a drummer named Pick Withers and he's got an earring. Isn't that mainstream punk? I placed the needle on the record with little interest. What followed distracted me from the reading I was trying to do. Imagine trying to read about an opera while Dire Straits is rocking to undeniably strong rhythms. The album caught me completely by surprise. But even more alarming is the fact the group is less than two years old. Its nucleus came together relatively quickly when songwriter Mark Knopfler gave up a teaching job to join his guitar-playing brother David and bassist John Illsey in a band. Drummer

Withers joined the group later. A tape of Dire Strait's music was played often on a popular British radio program. The group was later placed on a European tour with the Talking Heads in 1977. The band was in the studio in 1978 for English Phonogram Warners later obtained Dire Strait's American distribution rights.

The music played by Dire Straits is a smooth blend of styles. It's certainly rock and roll, but not the kind which depends upon high-powered sound sysbone Ash, if comparisons are adequate.

The delicate interplay of Knopfler's guitar work is the group's strong point. All the instruments melt together like streams into rivers. Mark Knopfler's husky, low voice adorms the music with an air of working class modesty. "Sultans Of Swing" is representative of the band's traditional leanings:

> "You step inside but you don't see too many faces Coming in and out of the rain to hear the jazz go down Too Much Competition, too many other places...

The song is strongly worded, but not in a provocative manner. Dire Strait's adherence to the tradition of rock and roll is evident in its respectful references to its roots. Knopfler says of today's generation: "They don't give a damn about any trumpet playing band, it ain't what they call rock and roll.'

Quoting lyrics won't reveal the character of the music, though. Suffice it to say the arrangements are carefully measured, but not to the point of suffocating the music's spontaneity.

Mark Knopfler has a tendency to dominate, largely because he is the most obviously versatile member. But the others don't serve as mere support. They are integral parts, contributing rhythmic firmness, but Mark Knopfler gives them the source from which to work,

Dire Straits emits a grittiness that lends integrity to everything the band

'French Chef' Series Slated By Library

The Lubbock City-County Library will be presenting a videocassette series called "The French Chef" Monday through Dec. 31. A different program will be offered each week with French chef Julia Child presenting detailed preparation and cooking instructions for a variety of French dishes.

Information about equipment, seasoning and serving is included. Each film is 30 minutes long and captioned for the deaf and hearing-impaired.

Scheduled programming includes: Nov. 6-11, Quiche Lorraine & Company; Nov. 13-18, To Roast A Turkey; Nov. 20-25, Ice Cream; and Nov. 27-Dec. 2, The Omelette Show.

The public may view "The French Chef" during regular library hours. Arrangements for special showings to groups may be made by calling the library.

STREISAND-O'NEAL RETEAM

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Barbra Streisand and Ryan O'Neal, who costarred successfully in "What's Up Doc?" will reteam in "Main Event," a comedy about a woman prizefight manager and a boxer.

course. This band works that smoothly.

Each song has an intellectual character of its own. But the music does not dominate the songs. Balancing the music and the lyrics is important to any album. Balance is an achievement in itself.

So when Dire Straits comes along with its restrained form of rock music, balances it and then tells everybody the group's only been together for a year and a half - well, somebody should take notice.

I'd say Dire Straits is probably the best debut album in rock this year. It's much better than U.K.'s. The Dire Straits release is made more auspicious by the fact that Wishbone Ash'snew album, released the same week, is in very much the same vein.

The artwork on the cover of the Dire Straits album is no longer confusing, not after one hears the LP anyway. Somehow the nebulousness of the blending and distortion of tones is an apt representation of the mature level on which Dire Straits works.

To obtain a maximum of privacy, this home turns its back to the street as most windows face the rear or side yards. Steps with an ornamental iron railing lead from the driveway to a walk which ends at a roofed porch. At the left of the entry door are two large, stationary windows through which the entry will be well lighted. All rooms are accessible from this entry. Just to the right is the formal living area with its fireplace and book shelves. A shoulder high window in the side wall allows numerous possibilities for furniture arrangement.

Open planning has been used in the layout of the kitchen and family room-dining. The family room-dining area is 27 feet in length. As there is no offset in this room, as much space as preferred can be utilized for each area.

Christmas Trees To Be On Exhibit

Aluminum, glass, copper and beadwork are just some of the materials used to create these holiday fantasies. The trees range in size from miniatures suitable for the mantlepiece to nearly five feet tall. Some of the trees carry out a theme musical instruments, birds, glittering stars; some display an ethnic background - straw figures on a Scandinavian tree, tin ornaments on a Mexican creation; others are trimmed with contemporary abstract designs.

Complementing the display of trees will be hundreds of hand crafted wreaths, all donated by the Garden Clubs of Connecticut and all for sale.

DALLAS (Special) -Southwest Airlines will inaugurate service May 1, 1979, be-tween Dallas and Beaumont-Port Arthur with four round trip non-stop flights each Through plane and connecting service will be offered to Amarillo, Lubbock, Midland-Odessa and El Paso, according to Southwest Airlines Chairman Herbert D. Kelleher and President Howard D. Putnam.

Southwest will utilize its highly successful two-tier pricing structure first introduced in 1972. All seats on all flights between 6:30 a.m. and 6:59 p.m., Monday through Friday, will operate at executive class fares. All seats on all flights from 7 p.m. and all day Saturday and Sunday will operate at pleasure class fares. There are no advance purchase requirements or restrictions on either class of service.

Service will be provided with Boeing 737-200 aircraft, which are identical to the aircraft used on all Southwest routes. Southwest's one-way fare between Beaumont-Port Arthur and Dallas is $28

Fares one-way between Beaumont-Port Arthur and Amarillo, Lubbock and Midland-Odessa will be $43 exeuctive class, $28 pleasure class, $30 military-youth, and $28 child.

executive class, $18 pleasure class, $20

military-youth, and $18 child.

Between Beaumont-Port Arthur and El Paso the one-way fare will be $55 executive class, $35 pleasure class, $40 militaryyouth, and $35 child.

Southwest scholarship fare (youth fare for students at least 12 years of age and less than 22 years of age) is available on all executive class flights upon presentation of identification.

Southwest Airlines was the first airline to introduce a simple two-tiered fare with only a peak and non-peak fare and pioneered reduction of air fares on the routes it serves in Texas. Southwest Airlines executive class fares in the Beaumont-Port Arthur-Dallas market represents a 53 percent reduction in fares over the $60 standard class (coach) fare charged by other carriers and a 70 percent reduction on pleasure class fares.

Flights from Beaumont-Port Arthur will depart at 8:30 a.m., 2:30 p.m., 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., with non-stop flight service to Dallas Love Field and service through Dallas to the cities of El Paso, Lubbock and Midland-Odessa.

Flights from Dallas Love Field to Beaumont-Port Arthur will depart at 7:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 5:15 p.m., El Paso departures are 10:45 a.m. and 1:45 p.m., Lubbock flights are slated at 10:45 a.m., 2:45 p.m. and 4:45 p.m., the Midland-Odessa flights will be at 11:45 a.m., 3:45 p.m. and 5:45 p.m.

Southwest's internal forecast indicates in the first full year of service, the Beaumont-Port Arthur-Dallas market will generate approximately 181,705 passengers and that Southwest's share will represent 69 percent of this market or $125,-391 passengers.

Contest Winner Announced

Things were going just like they had ev-ery day for Marvin Wright, a resident of Wichita Falls, Texas. He continued his daily routine of being husband, fatherand worker at a local produce distribution company. But things changed recently when he received a phone call from Aubrey Jones executive Vice President of Piggly Wiggly. Jones informed Wright that his name had been drawn, at odds of 1 in 101,920,, making him a $5,000 Sweepstakes Winner in Piggly Wiggly's Bingo Magic Game.

On hand to present Wright with his check were Ron Wendover, Piggly Wiggly district manager, and Jerry Tordeuer. Piggly Wiggly store manager at the store where Wright and his family shop.

So collecting Bingo Magic discs paid off, enabling the lucky Wichita Falls resident to place his name in the drawing for the sweepstakes prize along with other Piggly Wiggly shoppers who were eligi-ble. Piggly Wiggly also offers its Bingo playing customers a chance to win $1, $5, $10, $100, or $1,000 by following rules found on the Bingo collector card.

It's not too late for the big money, though. There still are two opportunities left to give you a try at the $5,000 jack pot. Another winner was to be selected Nov. 3, and another Jan. 8, 1979.

Bad Apples In Sideband

By MIKE WENDLAND

Single sideband operators-self-described as the "gentlemen" of the CB airwaves-have emerged as CB radio's most serious rule violators.

Sidebanders, whose growth in the CB ranks has been dramatic as continued congestion makes the AM channels unmanageable in many places, are being nabbed in record numbers by FCC enforcement agents.

And they are being caught violating the FCC's most important rules-operating

Both are so-called "trigger" violations, according to the FCC. "By that we mean that catching those who commit such trigger violations is at the top of our list, says Gary Lysiak, one of the FCC's CB enforcement team heads.

Most of the out-of-band CB operation these days is occurring on frequencies above 27.405 MHz, or CB channel 40. Between there and 28.000 MHz, the begin-

The lawbreakers are most commonly using high-powered amateur radio transceivers, which are illegal for CB licensees to use. Many, unable to afford the minimum $600 needed for a quality ham rig. simply use existing CBs illegally modified to cover the so-called "upper channels" above channel 40 and equip them with linear amplifiers.

"Right now, I'd say sidebanders are the biggest problem group we have," said a Washington FCC source. "And they are using illegal frequencies, illegal radios and are consistenly violating the 150-mile limit on CB contacts by shooting skip."

Over the past few weeks, I've tuned in to the so-called "bootleg band," actually allocated for specail military and business-type communications. Using a general coverage receiver and a long wire antenna, I've heard more than 200 illegal CB stations. All were operating on single

Q Does CB really have a greater range on a boat?-G.F., Cleveland

A. It's the water that makes for greater CB range. Because there are no natural or man-made structures to block a radio signal, CB radio waves can typically reach as far as 25 to 50 miles over water. THE U.S. AND YOU

So you examine the possibilities and find that you could get an annual return of 5.5 percent from a bank, 7.5 percent from a savings & loan, maybe 8-10 percent in the stock market, with luck. But a landlord's rate of return in your area is limited to 5 percent, and tenants' groups are protesting that. Now, where are you going to put your savings?

(The actual return a landlord receives depends on many factors, and will of course vary from one individual to another. Rent control formulas are also both highly individual and highly complicated. The point, however, is this: What the city council or some tenants' group thinks is 'fair" is irrelevant. If investors are not willing to put their money into new apartments, then the return - whatever it is - is too low.)

The nation's glaring example of rent control folly is New York City, which still has many of its WWII controls. In the 1970s, more than 50,000 residential units in the once-prosperous South Bronx were burned or abandoned. The area looks as ugh it has been bombed, and one expert quoted in the August issue of Nation's Business has called rent control the most efficient technique presently known to destroy a city - except for

What about the effect on homeowners? Simple. When the value of apartment property deteriorates - which it does if the return is no longer attractive to investors - the tax revenues flowing to government from that property also drop.

As the National Association of Realtors points out, in 1976, "the assessed value of multifamily rental dwellings increased by about 6 percent. However, the assessed value of single-family properties showed a 40 percent increase in that one year.

"Obviously, single-family homeowners are being forced to absorb increased costs of city services through higher assessments while revenues from rental units are being artifically constrained because of lower values attributable to rent

Rent control is perhaps the best example available of the inevitable futility of all government attemps to legislate wages and prices. But rent control is spreading. Why? Because tenants have more votes than landlords. And too many of the rest of us do not understand how the world works.

What with numer ous court cases involving journalistic privilege. massive disclosures of federal documents forced by recent litigation and a vast expansion of the "privacy" concept in the realm of law enforcement, few subjects are of hotter interest in contemporary politics

My own perspective, as a journalist who has had occasion to bring some Freedom of Information cases of his own, is that the idea behind both FOI and privacy legislation is a good one, but that the intent of these laws has been distorted beyond all recognition

THIS DISTORTION takes the form of both too much disclosure and too little, depending on the hias of the relevant official. Behind the federal statutes on this subject are two unexceptionable

Over and over again people come to me all over America asking what in the world is the source of Andrew Young's hold over President Carter. Thoughtful Americans simply cannot believe that a President with any self-respect or courage would tolerate Andrew Young for five minutes as an ambassador to the UN or as anything else. Our treatment of Ian Smith and the regime of

We are supporting black terrorists and Communist-dominated revolutionists against a constitutionally established government. # VIRGINIA PAYETTE: Izzat A Threat?

PRESIDENT CARTER says he doesn't want wage and price controls, the economic whiz kids say they don't work anyhow and historians say they have a 4,000-year record of failure.

So why does everybody keep threatening us with them? Are they so horrendous that economists can use them to scare a President into digging deeper for a cure to galloping inflation?

A cure, they devoutly hope, with a little more clout than "voluntary guidelines," which even White House aides admit aren't any good. If so, they'd better invent some new scare words. Because the President's latest "anti-inflation" campaign is based on just such guidelines -only he calls them voluntary wage-price standards. He's pretty lukewarm about them himself.

According to one historian, "More than 150 women stormed a tcher shop at 4 a.m., scree ter to pay 30 sous and get what they wanted than to pay 14, the maximum price, and get nothing."

DURING WORLD WAR II, most major nations fell back on wage-price controls which, Mr. Schuettinger says, may have slowed the "official" increases but, thanks to a thriving black market and beefed up fringe benefits for labor, did nothing to hold down "real" prices and wages. In Nazi Germany, not even Goering could make economic planning work. During a 1946 interview in prison with war correspondent Henry J. Taylor now a syndicated columnist), he tried to warn

Constitutional Amendments Explained

THE TAX RELIEF AMENDMENT

The constitutional amendment providing for tax relief for residential hon elderly persons, disabled persons, and agricultural land; for personal property exemptions; for truth in taxation procedures, including citizen involvement; for a redefinition of the tax base; for limitations on state spending; and for property tax administration.

Explanation:

H.J.R. I proposes several changes in the constitution. One change is a limitation on growth in state spending; all the others affect the property tax system in Texas. All these changes are described in detail below.

Because of the variety of subjects covered by the "Tax Relief Amendment," arguments concerning each topic are given, followed by a "for" and "against" argument for the amendment as a whole.

Taxation of Intangible Property

Although Article VIII, Section I, of the constitution requires that all property be taxed (with certain exceptions not relevant here), manipile property for the most part has been omitted from local tax rolls. Included in this class of property are bank accounts, stocks and bonds, life insurance policies, retirements benefits, and similar paper assets. The proposed amendment would bring the constitution more closely in line with current practice by removing intangible property from the constitutionally required property tax base. The legislature by general law would be permitted to pro-intangible properties are almost impossible to assess and tax fairly. Removing them from the man-datory tax base would eliminate a major obstacle to achieving equitable property tax administration and public school finance.

vide for the taxation of intangible property. (Until the legislature enacts a law on the subject, existing law will probably continue to require intangibles to be taxes. See, for example, Article 7145 of the Civil Statutes.) While removing intangibles from required taxation might be seen as merely ratifying the status quo, doing so would eliminate one ground on which the property star has been attacked in court, that is, the failure of local taxing units to follow the constitutional mandate regarding the taxation of this type of property.

Against
Although intangible assets may be difficult to assest and tax, they can be taxed fairly if the appropriate administrative procedures are provided. Eliminating them from the mandatory tax base will help wealthy persons and large corporations, who own the greatest portion of intangibles, at the expense of middle-class homeowners and other small property owners.

Personal Property Exemptions

Article VIII, Section I, of the constitution presently exempts from taxation $250 worth of "household and kitchen furniture" belonging to each family. The amendment would change this exemption by requiring the legislature by general law to exempt "household goods" and "personal effects" not held or used for the production of income — with no limit as to amount—and by suthersing the legislature to exempt all or part of the "personal property homestead" of a family or single adult, the latter term being defined as the personal property exempt by law from forced sale for debt. At first glance, the proposed change seems to provide sweeping tax relief. Without limit, apparently, all personal property not held or used for business or investment purposes would

The current $250 limit on the tax exemption for household and kitchen furniture is unrealistically low in view of today's inflated property values. Exempting all household goods and personal effects not used to produce income is a more rational and workable approach. Permitting the legislature to further exempt property that is exempt from forced sale will, among other things, authorize legislation to exempt personal motor vehicles from property taxes, a form of tax relief that will help the average citizen most.

henceforth avoid ad valorem taxation. Furthermore, the legislature in its discretion could exempt all the personal property that it or might be exempted from forced sale for debt. (Under Article 3836 of the Civil Statutes, this includes home furnishings, agricultural implements, tools of trade, two vehicles, certain animals, livestock and fowls, life insurance policies, and current wages. However, this kind of property is presently untaxed by most units of local government. Therefore, except for the possibility that one or two family cars might be exempted by law, the proposed change will not be noticeable to most taxpayers.

Tying personal property has exemptions to the statute exempting property from forced sale is un-wise. Future tegislatures may broaden the coverage of the statute to permit has exemptions for all sorts of personal property, and in doing so they would not only provide excessively broad tax ex-emptions but would also impair the ability of creditors to collect judgments against debtors.

The amount a farmer, rancher, or timber producer is willing to pay for the land is determined by the income he expects to earn from using it for his agricultural purposes. A real estate developer, however, might reasonably anticipate substantially more income from that same land by converting it to urban or resort uses. Consequently, its market value increases to more than an agricultural producer is willing to pay. Because the constitutional exception, when urban or resort pressure increases the in the absence of an express constitutional exception, when urban or resort pressure increases the market value of land described to farming ranching or timber production, excepting taxes so to be market value of land devoted to farming, ranching or timber production, property taxes go up ac-cordingly. Eventually the farmer or rancher finds it uneconomical to continue farming or ranching

In 1966 the voiers adopted a constitutional amendment intended to minimize the pressures on

The provision that requires the legislature to provide for taxation of farm and ranch land on the basis of productivity, rather than speculative market values, would result in needed tax relief for the states financially troubled farmers and ranchers.

Residential Homestead Exemptions

The amendment would make several changes affecting (axation of residential homesteach.

1. Exemptions determined by local option. Presently, under Article VIII, Section 1-b, Subsection (b), of the constitution any political subdivision may adopt an exemption of "not less than $3,000" of the assessed value of residence homesteach of persons 63 years of age or older. This may be done by action of the governing body or mandated by election. Some political subdivisions have adopted higher exemptions such as $5,000 or $10,000.

Against

Under the amendment, timberland could also be taxed on the basis of productivity, rather than market value. Some think that it is doubtful that the timber industry needs this rat break, and its implementation by the legislature could seriously erode the tax base of many counties and school districts and result in a greater tax burden for the average homeowners.

2. Maadsiers whool tax exemption. The amendment would exempt $5.000 of the market value of every residential homestead from taxistion. Tor general elementary and secondary public school purposes." (This mandatory exemption would be in addition to any optional exemption adopted by a school district for the delerity and disabled.) If taxes are currently being levised to pay off previously incurred debt, the school district may continue levying the full amount of the tax required to pay the debt of failure to do so would impair the contract creating the debt.

3. Legislative school tax exemption for the rederly and disabled. In addition to the mandatory exemption described above, the proposed amendment would authorize the legislature to exempt from school district taxistion an amount up to $10,000 of the market value of the homestead of an elderity or disabled person. The legislature may have the amount of and eligibility for this exemption on economic need. A person who is both elderly and disabled sould receive only one of these exemptions. Although an eligible person is ould be entitled to both the mandatory school tax exemption of $5,000 and any optional exemption adopted by a school district described in paragraph 1, above), the legislature would decode whether he or also conditions to the exemption required by the legislature of the dedecode whether he or also conditions to the exemption required by the legislature of the delete person to the total amount of axes imposed for school purpose—that is, the taxes may not be increased by the ichnoil district a long as the property is the residence. An exemption, is made if the case of improvements by action of the governing body, or mandated by election. Some political subdivisions have adopted higher exemptions such as $5,000 or $10,000.

The proposed amendment would authorize taking units to extend this exemption to persons who are "under a disability for purposes of payment of disability insurance benefits under federal Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance." It also requires that the exemption to persons who are exemptions that the same reduction in taxes. Finally, an eligible disability along the taken who is $5 or over may reverse only one exemption if both are adopted by the taking unit.

The effect of the amendment is unclear in two respects. First, few if any taking units have figures representing "market value" for any property. "Associated value" might or might not represent a fixed percentage of "appraised value," even within one taxing authority. If it does, "appraised value" is often far below market value, and the reliation between appraised value and market value may not be known or may be different for different properties. The new provision requires that the exemption be subtracted from market value but gives no guidance forward determination of market value. The same problem exists with the exemption is subtracted from market value that gives the contemption and the new legislative exemption for the elderly and disability, discussed below.)

The contemptodiem concerns the meaning of the language, "under a disability for the tax exemption, a person must be actually receiving Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefits, or does it means that the person only needs to asticy the disability vanadiards for benefits in probability frequired. As of September 30, 1977, according to the staff of the Teas Rehabilitation Commission, there were approximately 224,000 SSDI respects in stream of the factor of the security of the remained of the new feet to anxiety of the remained on their theory to the order of the remained of the security of the security of the securities of the conte tions. Of the remainder, it is not known what percentage own their homes and could take advantage of the exemption, but the percentage is thought to be low. It is also noted that about 95,000 disabled Texans under 85 receive benefits under the Supplemental Security Encome (SSE) program rather than the SSDE program and would fail to qualify for the exemption.

For A major tax break would be provided the state's overburdened homeowners with the mandated homestead exemption of $5,000 for school tax purposes. Homeowners over 65 or disabled, for whom the property tax is particularly burdensome in proportion to income, could also be provided an additional homestead exemption by the legislature.

mains completely in the hands of the legislature, although it may be argued that the legislature has a mandate to reimburse at least part of the loss. (With enactment of H.B. No. 37, the legislature set axide $450 million of the value surpture to be used for this purpose in the 1979-80 and 1990-81 school years, but the method of allocating the money is yet to be determined.)

The amendment does not provide sign ficant tax relief for the average citizen. The tax savings for an individual homeowner from the $5,000 homestead exemption have been estimated to be only about $50 a year for a $40,000 home have do a $0 percent assessment ratio and a $3,000 $100 school tax. In addition, the disablinty homestead exemption is test of qualification under the federal Old-Age. Survivors, and Disability Insurance program, and will exclude a great many of the state's disabled

4 Protection of school districts against lost revenue. One of the most controversial aspects of the 4. Protection of school districts against lost revenue. One of the most controversal aspects of the mostment to provide property six retief was the question of how so treat the revenue loss that will be suffered by school districts as a consequence of the newly created homestead exemptions and special retainment of agricultural land. Proposals ranged from a mandated "full reimbursement" to treat silence on the issue. The latest course would have left the maries completels to the discretion of the inguisture. A compromise was reached with the statement that "the legislature shall provide for formulas to protect school districts against all or part of the resenue loss.

Truth in Taxation

A provision to new Section 21 of Article VIII of the constitution) that will require local governments to provide notice of increases in property taxes before they are adopted. Subject to exceptions prescribed by general law, a local government will have to give notice and conduct a public hearing of it proposes to increase the total amount of property taxes it imposes on over the amount it imposed in the previous year. Increases that result from the addition of new services or from the construction of new improvements are not included in computing whether there is an increase in taxer. The new whose property is revalued is ensitted to notice of the amount by which the revaluation will increase

This provision would assure homeowners an adequate opportunity to voice their sentiments about property tax increases and, therefore, should lead to smaller tax increases in the future.

his or her taxes if the prior year's tax rate and assessment ratio are conginued in effect. A revaluation notice must be given before notice and hearing procedures for a tax increase may be instituted. Procedures such as those proposed in this new section could be required by statute even if the contaminon were not amended. The amendments has the effect of trajuring the legislature to enact such a statute. House Bill No. 18, enacted at the called session as which this amendment was proposed, will implement this amendment if the amendment is adopted, but will take effect even if the amendment is not adopted. (The new law requires the notice and bearing only if the local governing body pro-poses a lax increase of over three percent.)

The proposal allows the regulature to avoid the limitation by passing a resolution (by majority record vote of the members of each house) declaring an emergency, identifying the nature of the emergency, and specifying the amount of the excess expenditures needed.

Against
The "limit" on state spending is meaningless and will be as ineffective as the "permaneni," federal debt ceiling, which is continually raised by Congress. Only a majority of the state's lawmakers would be required to declare an emergency and authorize an appropriation in excess of the limit.

State Spending Limitations

The proposed amendment would add a new provision to limit the growth of state spending. It would limit the rate of growth of "appropolations from state tax revenues" to the rate of growth of the state's economy. Revenues dedicated by the construction, such as the motor five last three-fourths for high-way construction and one fourth for the Available School Fund), are excluded from

The provision restraining state spending increases should force the legislature in the appropriaprocess to be more conscious of the necessity of proposed government programs and the value of extent ones.

Property Tax Administration Property 1 ax Administration

A manner that received much discussion during the consideration of H.1.8. No. 1 was whether to include a provision requiring statewide administration of standard, americing local, property lax procedures. The final proposal does hot contain such a provision. Instead, it contains language that will restrict, to some extent, any stantie on property tax administration the l'application may enact in the future. A new Section 21 of Article VIII of the constitution will prohibit statewide appraisal of the future. A new section 20 of necessary and the constraints will allow "formula distribution" of rat real property for ad valorem tax purposes, although it will allow "formula distribution" of rat sevenues to political subdivisions, (Recent legislative proposals for property tax reform have not in-cluded provision for statewide appearsals, so this language will not prevent these proposals from he-

The new section would also require that "administrative and judicial enforcement of uniform standards and procedures." for ad valorem tax appraisals "originate" in the county where the tax is imposed, with exceptions allowed for political subdivisions located in more than one county. This will insure, among other things, that boards of equalization (hoddes that adjust property appraisals for tax purposes) be located in the county where the transite property is located. The provision does not govern appeals, however, and they could be required to be held outside the countries.

"The Tax Relief Amendment"

The amendment is a balanced rax relief package that could total over one-half billion dollars in tax reductions over the next three years. More important, the amendment will have the long-range effect of preventing an increased dependence on property taxation for government revenue.

The amendment is a hodgroodge of locally related proposals that should have been submitted separately to the source. In addition, total government spending will not be substantially reduced by the amendment. Much of the revenue lost by local governments much to replaced by the state, a situation that could lead to a state sales sat increase within a few years.

pariscipation of all citizens in their poternment. The Ecapue DOES NOT support or oppose any political parity or candidate. It does publish and distribute factual information to help prepare citizens to cast an informed vote.

Explanation:

The constitutional amendment deleting the archaic reference to the "Deaf and Dumb Asylum," allowing certain products and services of handicapped individuals to be used by agencies and departments of state government, requiring the procurement of other products and services required in the operation of state government to be made under bids awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, making all such procurement processes subject to laws enacted by the legislature, and eliminating the requirement that the Governor of Texas, the Secretary of State, and the Comptroller of Public Accounts of Texas be personally involved with such transactions. enacted by the legislature, and elimin the Comptroller of Public Accounts

S.J.R. 50 proposes an amendment to Article XVI, Sec. 21 of the Texas Constitution to exempt cer-tain products manufactured by handicapped persons from the requirement that purchasing by state agencies be done by competitive bidding. Article XVI, Section 21, of the Texas Constitution re-quires that the purchase of stationery, paper, printing, binding, find fuel by the state he done by con-tracts awarded pursuant to competitive bidding. Printing done at the "Deaf and Dumb Asplum" is exempted. Each contract must be approved by the governor, the secretary of state, and the comptroller. The proposed amendment would make two significant changes in this constitutional pro-sion. First, it would exempt from the competitive bidding requirement all products and services pu-chased from "handicapped individuals employed in nonprofit rehabilitation facilities provided abeliered employment." Second, it would emote the requirement that the governor, the asystem of state, and the competence approve each contract. In addition, the amendment would remove to obsolete reference to the Deaf and Dumb Asylum.

For
1. The social and economic value of employing otherwise unemployable handicapped individuals far outweighs any value of competitive bidding on products and services that can be supplied by them.
The taxpayers would not suffer any loss because the law requires that the items be purchased at a fair market price. If an appearen loss were suffered, it would be offset by the savings resulting from private employment of these individuals rather than their state-supported institutionalization.

Against

1. Even though the legislature's policy of helping employ handicapped individuals is praiseworthy, the policy of competitive bidding established under Article XVI, Section 21, is also sound. Competitive bidding for these products and services insures that the state will receive the lowest possible price for what it purchases. The establishment of a "fair market price" under a statute is not assurance to the taxpayer that the government is operating in the least costly manner. This constitutional sequirement is stronger than any statute enacted by the legislature since change requires an affirmative vote of the citizens. It is therefore the best protection of the taxpayer's doilar.

2. The action of the governor, the secretary of state, and the computoller in approving purchasing contracts awarded by the board of control may be perfunctory, but nonetheless it serves as a check on those actually performing the function. Purchasing agents and officials exert more caution with knowledge that their actions are subject to review by high state officials. In addition, because the governor and the comprotiler are elected officials, the voters have recourse if it becomes apparent that these contracts are being improperly awarded.

Explanation:

For

The constitutional amendment to provide that the legislature may permit political subdivisions to issue revenue bonds to develop employment opportunities for its citizens. Against

S.J.R. No. 55 would add Section 52a to Article III of the Texas Constitution permitting political subdivisions to issue revenue bonds "to develop employment opportunities." Under conditions prescribed by law, a political subdivision could acquire and construct facilities suitable for manufacturing or other enterprises that would provide jobs.

The amendment does not limit the types of political subdivisions that may issue bonds. However, enabling legislation contingent on the adoption of the amendment (Article 5190.5, Version's Texas

2. The availability of such programs in other states puts Texas communities at a competitive disadvaniage in all racting new business and industry. Adoption of the proposed amendment would make our communities competitive with those in other states. Funds for the acquisition and construction of facilities would be raised by revenue bonds of the political subdivision. The political subdivision would sell or lease the facilities to a private entity and use the resulting revenue to repay the bonds. No other funds could be used for bond reticement. The facilities would not be exempt from property taxes unless they were "used exclusively by the political subdivision."

Against

1. By almost any standard, the Texas economy and the business climate are among the best in the country. Unemployment in Texas has long been well below the national average. Our communities do not need programs such as this to attract new business.

2. The proposed amendment would involve local governments in financing private business ventures, shurping the role traditionally played by private investors and financial institutions. This is inconsistent with the free enterprise philosophy to which many Texans adhere.

3. There is sound policy behind the constitutional prohibitions against local government lending credit and making grants to assist private entities. These prohibitions were inspired by such 19th century abuses as municipal grants to railroad corporations. Now, as much as then, public funds and public credit should be used only for public purposes; the proposed amendment would seriously undermine this policy.

AMENDMENT 3 The constitutional amendment to give the legislature the power to authorize cities and towns to issue bonds to finance the redevelopment of blighted areas and prohibiting any city or town from granting its money or lending its Against credit for such purposes.

S.J.R. 44 would add Section 1-g to Article VIII. Texas Constitution to permit the legislature to authorize cities and towns to use tax increment financing to redevelop blighted areas.

Authorization of tax increment financing will provide Texas municipalities greater flexibility in eveloping local solutions to the problem of urban deterioration. The prohibition against using stare tax revenue to repay redevelopment bonds will insure tha local officials keep the cost of local redevelopment projects within the limits of local tax revenues

Although local taxing entities other than the city or town will not benefit from increased tax col lections in a redeveloped area until redevelopment bonds are repaid, once the bonds are repaid these local governments will have the benefit of a larger are base. Even while the bonds are outstanding, she beneficial effects of redevelopments will likely spill ower into adjoining areas, stabilizing or enhancing property values and producing a broader property tax base.

Against

1. Permitting cities and towns to siphon off taxes that would otherwise go to school districts, counties, hospital districts, and other taxing entities in a had precedent. If manicipalities need increased taxing power, they should seek to raise constitutional tax limits. Taxes of other governmental units should be used only by those units.

2. Allowing cities and towns to administer property taxes of other governmental entities in a rederestoped area may result in inequisable appraisal practices. Municipal tax departments might tend to appraise property for taxesion as a higher rate than would the other taxing units. Unsophisticated taxpayers may not realize that increased county and school district taxes are being used to repay municipal honds instead of being used for county or school district proposes.

3. Texas municipalities already have broad powers to use their spending and borrowing powers for orban redevelopment. No need has been shown for granting them additional powers such as this amendment proposes to do.

AMENDMENT 4 The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to exempt from taxation solar and wind-powered energy or devices.

H.J.R. 37 also proposes an amendment to Article V, Section 16, relating to the jurisdiction of the county court and would remove the county court's present exclusive jurisdiction of civil cases between $200 and $500. The amendment to Section 16 would provide that the county court, model have concurrent jurisdiction with the juntice court in only those civil cases where the matter in contraversy exceeds $200 and does not exceed $500, unless the inpilature by law further expands the jurisdiction of the justice court and provides by law that the rounty court and the juntice court also will have concurrent jurisdiction in civil cases that exceed $500 and do not exceed $1,000.

within the exclusive jurisdiction of the county court would help to relieve crowded county court forces.

Against

1. Originally the office of the justice of the peace existed to maintain order, perform administrative functions, and depends local justice to a sparse population under frontier conditions where lawyers were scarce. The jurisdiction of the justice of the peace should not be enlarged at a time when many har associations and students of the judiciars feet that the justice court is an untrained court that has outlived its usefulness and should be replaced with a court better able to deal with today's complicated legal distrates.

legislature may not expand the jurisdiction of the small claims court to civil matters in which the amount in controversy is greater than $200, so long as the justice of the peace is judge of the small claims court. There is a need for a simple and economic procedure for quickly setting small cases in-volving more than $200 that do not justify expensive lingation and attorney fees.

2. Expansion of the present small claims court in Texas, using the justice of the peace for the judge, may not provide the best real justice for gensons with small claims. An important requirement of a successful small claims count, where the parties do not have lawyer representation, it a compense judge with the legal training, experience, and a sense of justice to develop a cise for both parties as well as to render a decision.

It is unportant that the state maintain sufficient office space. Therefore, the money remaining is some full distribution of the purpose for which it was originally intended, to model or construct state buildings. If Ariscle III, Section 51-b is repealed before the building fund.

1. The State Building Commission exists now in name only. The commission's records, property, and personnel have been transferred to the State Board of Control. The Board of Control performs the functions previously performed by the commission and spends the money appropriated by the legislature from the State Building Fund. The responsibility for remodeling or constructing state buildings should be established by statute, not by the constitution. A statute can be more easily amended to cope with changing circumstances.

Board of Control consolidates too much power in one state agency. The commission should con-tinue as the state agency with responsibility for remodeling or constructing state buildings, and the legislature should not try to circumvent Article III. Section 51-b, by statutorily transferring this responsibility to another agency. The constitutional amendment authorizing certain districts to engage in fire-fighting activities and to issue bonds or other indebtedness or to issue bonds or otherwise lend their credit for fire-fighting purposes.

To finance their fire-lighting activities, the districts would be authorized to issue bonds or other indebtedness or to otherwise lead their credit.

For 1. The unavailability of adequate fire protection in some heavily populated areas of the state poses a sectious threat to the health and safety of many Texas residents. Water districts that have been created, in these areas should be authorized, to establish fire protection programs and to spend district funds to finance these programs.

Against

1. With the availability of volunteer fire departments and other means of fire protection, residents of water districts should not be required to assume the additional financial burden of financing a fire protection program operated or contracted for by the district.

 The expansion of the purposes and functions of water districts to include the provision of fire protection would require the unnecessary use of facilities and funds which should be devoted to the primary purposes of the districts to conserve and develop local and trate water resources. As a result of insufficient fire fighting defenses in some of the unincorporated areas of the state, insurance rates are excessively high. Waser districts should be authorized to provide and finance fire protection programs so that residents and property owners within these areas will not be required to

Personal Spendings Tax Urged To Cure 'Ills' Of Income Tax In Present Form

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the ninth in a series of 15 articles exploring "Taxatien: Myths and Realities." In this article, William D. Andrews, professor of law at Harvard University, discusses a tax on personal spendings, which he sees as preferable to our current income tax. This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diege, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.)

One way to eliminate distortions and inequities in the income tax would be to replace it with a graduated, personal tax on total annual spending rather than on annual income.

The proposed tax is usually called a progressive, personal spendings tax, but is also known as a consumption tax. It would eliminate disparities such as the following:

Last year, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Wilson had $20,000 in-

Last year, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Wilson had $20,000 income, mostly from his salary. Wilson used $2,000 to repay a college loan, put $2,000 aside for retirement, paid $2,900 income tax, and had about $13,100 left to live on.

The Horace Smiths had $15,000 income, mostly interest on savings totaling about $250,000. They felt no need to add to their savings, so their entire income was available for taxes and living expenses. Their tax was $1,700, leaving them approximately the same amount to live on as the Wilsons — $13,300 — despite their smaller income.

Since the Smiths and Wilsons were living on similar amounts, why should they not pay similar amounts of tax, based on their total household spending (approximately $13,000) rather than on income?

A personal spendings tax, like the income tax, would be paid by individuals, not business firms

A PERSONAL SPENDINGS tax — again like the income tax — would also be progressive, applying at higher rates for people spending more. If one person spent twice as much as another, the graduated rate schedule would make the tax more than twice as high. Exemptions would protect lowspending persons against any tax at all.

The tax also would be like an income tax in being computed on the basis of income transactions and collected primarily through withholding by employers on salaries and wages.

Although the name "spendings tax" suggests it would depend on a detailed record of personal expenditures, this would be impractical and quite unnecessary. Total spending would instead be computed simply as incomeminus-savings, plus withdrawals from savings.

A taxpayer would report income from all sources, add other receipts from business and investment transactions, subtract all business and investment expenditures, and compute the tax on the resulting cash-flow figure.

In practice, the spendings tax would closely resemble the personal income tax, modified to treat all business and investment receipts and expenditures as currently taxable or deductible.

Consider, for example, a man or woman earning $15,000 who uses $2,000 to purchase corporate stock and spends the rest. Under the income tax, he or she would pay tax on $15,000 income; under a spendings tax, $2,000 paid for the stock would be deducted, leaving taxable spendings of only $13,000.

(Interested readers who are following the course may pursue the subject further with the boo "Taxation, Myths and Realities" which supplements the fifteen newspaper articles. For the convenience of readers, the book is being stocked by Walden Book Store N. 524, in the South Plains Mall.)

In a later year, suppose the same taxpayer sells the stock for $5,000, and spends the proceeds. Under the income tax, only the $3,000 profit would be reported, and under existing law, taxed only at capital gain rates, usually half the regular income rate.

Under a spendings tax, the entire $5,000 would be taxed during the year of sale.

THE INCOME TAX falls twice on savings — once on income as it is received, and again on the return savings earn. In a taxfree world, for example, a person earning $1,000 and buying a $1,000 bond paying 10 percent interest would have increased future spendable income by $100 per year.

But if the taxpayer were in a 30 percent income tax bracket, his hypothetical $100 would be reduced to $49 per year.

First, the $1,000 earnings would be taxed, leaving $700 to invest; next, the $70 interest would be taxed, reducing it to $49

A spendings tax would avoid this, because it would not apply to the original earnings, all of which had been set aside as savings. A 30 percent spendings tax would apply only to the $100 interest on the bond, reducing to $70.

Proponents assert that the spendings tax would be fairer since it does not discriminate against savers as the income tax does. It would impose equal burdens on people with equivalent standards of living without imposing an additional burden on those whose efforts or investments produce more than they consume. In short, it would tax people according to what they take out of the economy for consumption rather than what they put into the economy by way of productive labor and investment.

BECAUSE A SPENDINGS tax would not distort people's choices about saving versus spending, as the income tax does, it might lead to a better rate of saving and faster formation of capital than the income tax.

It formerly was thought that personal spendings would be harder to measure than income, and that a spendings tax would be impractical despite its theoretical advantages. Opponents said the tax would seem to involve all the difficulties of determining income plus adjustments to reflect savings and withdrawals.

But careful analysis shows that a spendings tax would actually be simpler than an income tax. Because it can be done on a current cash-flow basis, determining income as a stEp in determining spendings is much simpler than determining income for its own sake.

Consider, for example, a sale of shares of stock. Under existing law, this requires computing gain or loss, based on the cost of the shares to the taxpayer (or the donor, if received as a gift), and adjusted for intervening stock dividends.

A spendings tax, however, would simply take the sale proceeds into account as funds available for current spending without reference to original cost or subsequent adjustments. Costs incurred in earlier years would have been deducted then and not carried from year to year.

MANY OF THE MOST difficult technical and policy problems in an income tax would be eliminated by adopting a spendings tax. They include: determining gain or loss on sales of property; special treatment accorded capital gains and losses; determining depreciation allowances; distinguishing between current and capital expenditure; and treatment of various borrowing and other credit transations.

One special problem under an income tax is caused by inflation. The most troublesome aspects of that problem would be solved by going to a spendings base. All costs would be deducted as paid, rather than years later when the value of each dollar's deduction has been reduced by Another objection to the personal spendings tax is that it would be new and untried, while we have years of experience with the income tax. But many features of the personal income tax already are more like a spendings tax than a true income tax. For example, treatment of retirchent savings in a pension or profit-sharing plan—which are tax free until they are paid out in retirement years—is close to the spending-tax model. So, too, is deferral of tax on appreciation in the value of investments until the investments are sold.

Existing law creates distortions and inequities by-treating some items on a spendings-tax basis while imposing ordinary income tax on savings out of salaries, wages, dividends and interest.

The inequities could be eliminated by systematically deferring tax on all forms of saving and taxing all consumption spending when it occurs.

In effect, we have already moved part way toward a spendings tax. Completing that move might well be the best and most practical way to reform our existing tax system.

The views expressed in Courses by Newspaper are those of the authors only and do not necessarily reflect those of the University of California, the funding agency, the distributing agency, or the participating newspapers and colleges.

Next Week: Political scientist Aaron Wildavsky of the University of California, Berkeley, discusses how our tax system affects our attitudes toward our government.

Baptist Group To Present 'Alleluia'

A combined choir from the churches of the Lubbock Baptist Association will present the Bill Gaither musical, "Alleluia," in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium Nov. 20.

Mike Bedford, associational music director, is anticipating a 250-voice choir for the presentation.

Tryouts for the choir already have been held and persons have been selected to sing solo selections, as well as the narration.

There will be no admission charge for the presentation, however, a love offering will be taken to defray the cost of the production, as well as an honorarium for the Wayland band. Rehearsals are scheduled at Monterey

Rehearsals are scheduled at Monterey-Baptist Church, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. today; at Oakwood Baptist Church, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 12; in Lubbock Municipal Auditorium on the Texas Tech University campus, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 19; and a final dress rehearsal at 6 p.m. Nov. 20 in the Municipal Auditorium.

The public is invited to attend the presentation of "Alleluia" at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 20 in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Bible class services will be held at 9:30 a.m. and morning worship services at 10:30 a.m. Sundays from now on at the church.

The new church facility contains more than 25,000 square feet with 25 classrooms, five offices, a nursery, teacher's work room and an auditorium seating 750 persons on padded, cushioned pews. Alan Cherry, a black member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormons) will be in Lubbock Tuesday to address the Latter-Day Saints Student Association (LDSSA).

Cherry will discuss "My Experiences As A Black Mormon" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Coronado Room of the Texas Tech University Center.

The guest speaker, a former entertainer and author of the book, "It's You and Me, Lord," has been a member of the Mormon Church 10 years. When he joined the Mormon Church he was not permitted to hold the Priesthood due to a church policy against granting the Priesthood to blacks.

Mormons believe that this instruction was received by revelation from God and could only be changed by Him, according to a church spokesman. On June 19 Spencer W. Kimball, president of the Mormon Church, announced that revelation had been received permitting blacks to hold the Priesthood. Mormons believe that President Kimball is a prophet of God and as such, entitled to receive direct revelation, the spokesman added.

Cherry was fully aware of the church policy when he joined the Mormon Church in 1968. He will discuss his feelings regarding the policy and the church's current position on blacks and the Priesthood.

The meeting is open to the public Tuesday night.

COUNTY AGENT'S REPORT

BY KEN COOK Lubbock County Agent

GOOD SHADE DOESN'T GROW on trees. Sound a bit confusing? Well, the secret is in the first word.

Too often we're looking for the fastest growing shade tree possible. Seldom does that coincide with top quality. Let's take a look at the economy of the situ-

The fast-growing tree (and there are many available) is generally less expensive and, under good growing conditions, will provide the valuable shade sooner. However, most of the fast-growing trees are also particularly susceptible to insect and disease problems - or both.

Several, such as Chinese elm and willow, often develop an open, unsightly growth habit as they become older; frequently requiring expensive care or even removal. Other fast growers, such as Chinaberry, are extremely brittle and are easily damaged during wind or ice storms. Some also have the undesirable characteristic of attacking and clogging sewer lines or septic tanks causing expensive damage.

AS FAST-GROWING TREES GO. perhaps the Arizona ash and Chinese tallow are the most dependable in the South Plains landscape. Each has minor problems, but they are at least reasonably good landscape trees.

On the other side of the coin are the moderate or "slow" growing trees. These are the ones that homeowners shy away from "because they don't want to wait 10 years for shade." With proper care, however, these trees can really surprise you with their steady, dependable growth. Many will actually out-perform the so-called "fast growers" and most are relatively free of insect or disease prob-

Instead of costing several hundred dollars for removal 10 to 20 years from now, the moderate growers will have increased the value of your home many

What are some of these old standbys? They include live oak, red oak, pecan, sweet gum, cedar, elm, crape myrtle, crab apple, bald eypress, and golden rain-tree. And right now — this fall — is a great time to add one, or more, to your landscape.

DESPITE WHAT IS ESTIMATED TO BE a record corn crop, some grain futures graders and cash corn dealers believe the long-awaited deluge of newly harvested corn may never hit the market.

Some traders still believe the flood of corn is coming as the U. S. harvest. nears completion but an increasing number are beginning to believe it won't materialize and the old market pattern of a harvest crunch may be a thing of the

The changing opinions are strongly influenced by reports that country and terminal elevators are not experiencing the shortages of storage space that had been anticipated.

FUTURES TRADERS AND CASH DEALERS noted several possible reasons for the relative abundance of storage space but the most widely held opinion was that the market may have significantly underestimated the amount of onfarm grain storage facilities.

If so, farmers may have enough space to hold their corn off the market as long as necessary to avoid the traditional harvest-time collapse in prices.

Extensive farmer holding, already an established practice in the wheat market and a well developed practice in the soybean market, now may have spread to corn, several traders noted

ALTHOUGH THERE ARE EXCEPTIONS, many elevators across the Midwest are reported to have recently altered storage policies which had been intended to assure them adequate space to handle the new crops.

With grain not coming in as expected and space not being utilized. Midwest elevators have lowered storage charges in order to draw corn from the farm. Some elevators which had required farmers to market a certain percentage of the corn they brought in for storage reportedly have dropped the requirement. Dealers also noted reports of reduced storage charges in deferred pricing

TRADERS WHO BELIEVE THE LACK of corn movement is temporary and that the movement will pick up soon noted the USDA reported only 57 percent of U. S. corn and 58 percent of U. S. soybeans were harvested as of Oct. 22 and the markets come under the most pressure as the last 10 or 15 percent of the crop comes in.

Others also noted that farmers in some areas have been concentrating on soybean harvesting and only recently have been harvesting corn, which had been left in the fields.

Those traders who still insist the flood of corn will come predict declines in cash basis levels in coming weeks. Others expect a continued firming in basis levels as corn moves slowly from the farm.

UNLIKE LAST YEAR, FARMERS SOLD small amounts of stored corn late this summer to clear storage space for this year's crop, one cash dealer noted. He also pointed out that the federal program to aid construction of on-farm storage and partly subsidize storage costs makes farmer storage more economically feasible behind small tractors. Foster, Walker and Stanley now use a new shredder specifically designed for skip-row cotton stalks. By covering three 36-to 43-inch rows with one 18-foot wide pass, they save valuable time.

Contributing to firm interior basis levels, some traders noted, is that some grain is bypassing terminal elevators and going directly to the Gulf for export.

Stalk shredders grew out of the need for these farmers to make their stalk shredding operations as efficient as their tillage, cultivating and harvesting work. The idea originated in West Texas. Grady Ward of Lubbock, Bush Hog sales representative for the area, worked with several area-farmers on the concept.

Ward said the shredders has fewer gearboxes and moving parts than a power bar and cutter setup. The shredder's lift-type hitch enables farmers to raise the shredder so it can be backed up.

Stalk shredding is essential but must be carefully planned to prevent wind erosion. Timing is critical.

Stanley, who farms 3,500 acres near Big Spring, points out, "We've got to protect our soil from the wind. Keeping the stalks on the land until right before heavy tillage is the best way to protect this kind of soil from wind erosion.

He immediately follows stalk shredding with a chisel plow that leaves residue to protect the soil from wind erosion during winter months.

Although Stanley depends heavily on big equipment for tillage, cultivation. harvesting and shredding, he relies on nature for insect control.

I keep a close watch on insects and try to let beneficials take care of problems," he said. He added that he has used systemic insecticides to control early-season problems.

Foster has 1,600 acres in skip-row cotton. His three sons, Terry, Mark and Mike help him run the farm.

Cotton farming here is a tough operation," he said, nodding toward his wellstocked warehouse and shop equipped with welding rig, jacks, spare parts and

Time is important. We do just about all our own maintenance. Everything except rebuilding an engine. A farmer these days can't afford to run into town everytime something breaks down."

Foster illustrated how fast he needs to work by describing the crust that forms on his sandy soil after a heavy rain.

"If we don't get on the field immediately with sand fighting equipment and break up the crust, the wind will blow the sand and burn up a stand of cotton in a matter of hours," he said. "We try to make every minute count. That's what has been so frustrating about stalk shredding in the past. Nothing was designed specifically for skip-row cotton."

Big equipment pulled behind high horsepower tractors help Foster fight sand, plant, cultivate and harvest more land faster - and that can make the difference between profit and loss for the year. The new stalk shredder has brought the same efficiency to his stalk shredding operation.

"Two-row shredders were made for smaller tractors than we normally use." Foster said. "We had to keep a couple of small tractors on hand just for shredding. Since shredding is a once-a-year operation, we can't afford to use our large, air conditioned tractors, so shredding was more than just inefficient; it was uncomfortable. Besides letting Foster put his larger tractors to work at shredding, the skiprow machine increased the number of acres he could shred a day from about 100 to as many as 400. Foster also pointed out that he is saving fuel by making fewer trips over his fields.

Another family farm operation that is concerned with saving shredding time is the Walker family. Ray and his son, Ryan, farm 1,700 acres of skip-row cotton. They are the latest in a long line of cotton farmers named Walker who first came to this area from Mississippi in

Walker uses big equipment to farm land and had run into problems shredding with a two-row cutter behind a large tractor.

Big tractors pack the soil too much when they are used to pull two-row shredders," he said.

He pointed out that the soil is more susceptible to wind erosion when it is packed and fewer trips across a field with the wide shredder has helped him prevent this problem. In addition to using the six-row shredder, Walker chisels to decrease chances of erosion.

'I'm able to pull a chisel plow with shanks on 12-inch spacing with no plugging problem following shredding," he

"Counting the time savings and the convenience of using a big tractor, I'd just as soon somebody whip me as go back to shredding with a two-row after covering six rows in a single pass."

Debts Owed By Farmers Climb To Highest Levels On Record

by farmers continue to climb, particularly what they owe for non-real estate items such as machinery and to meet operating expenses, according to the latest Agriculture Department statistics.

As of last Jan. 1, the over-all debt of farmers climbed to a record $118.8 billion, a $16.1 billion or 15.7 percent increase from the year before.

According to USDA experts, that was the biggest annual jump in farm debt since 1940. But they add that assets also have increased in value to a record $708.3 billion and that when debt is compared to assets farmers generally are in sound financial shape.

The "debt-to-assets" ratio, for example, was 16.8 percent last Jan. 1. Although it was the highest in aix years. department economists say that when the ratio is below 20 percent it is considered "relatively low" and that farmers and again, this is a generalization are in pretty sound financial shape.

But a further examination of the overall debt picture in terms of farmers' assets shows some differences in how farmers have spread their debts in recent years.

As of Jan. 1, farmers owed about $63.3 billion on real estate, up from $56.6 bilion a year earlier and more than double what it was in the late 1960s and early 1970s, just prior to a period of soaring commodity prices and land values.

The Jan. 1 figures show that real estate value was more than $528.8 billion, up from $483.8 billion a year earlier. In 1970, by comparison, the value of farm real estate nationally was only $215.8 bil-

Farmers last Jan. 1 had an equity in their real estate of $462.5 billion. Theoretically, if they sold out they could pay off all their debts and have that much left over as their net worth from real es-

In 1970, they had real estate debts totaling about $29.2 billion. Their net worth, therefore, was around $186.6 billion. So, on paper, farmers' real estate net worth collectively has increased about two and a half times in the last eight years.

Expressed as a ratio, farmers on Jan. 1 owed debts amounting to about 12 percent of their their overall real estate as-

This ratio relating real estate debt to real estate value has not changed much since the mid-1960s when it climbed above 10 percent for the first time since World War II. It crept up to a peak of 13.6 percent in 1971 and generally has drifted down slightly since then.

Looking at non-real estate debt, USDA experts say in a recent report, "Balance Sheet of the Farming Sector" for 1978, that farmers usually owe more against those assets than they do for real estate.

Also, it said, there is more year-to-year fluctuation in non-real estate debt and figures for last Jan. 1 bear this out. Farmers owed nearly $55.5 billion against non-real estate assets of about billion and $171.1 billion, respectively, at the beginning of 1977 Expressed as a ratio, farm non-real estate debt was 30.4 percent against 26.7 percent on Jan. 1, 1977. It also was the highest ratio shown since figures on the statistic began in 1940 when it was 17.8 The report said that figures for nonreal estate assets are difficult to indentify but added that "a sizeable portion was due to the relatively large gain in the value of livestock" last year. Further, the report said that the "unusually large" non-real estate debt last Jan. I included hefty increases in price support loans on crops and emergency loans from USDA's Farmers Home Administration in 1977.

Even-so, the net worth of farmers in was about $127 billion, up from $125.4 billion a year earlier, the figures showed.

As farm debt has increased, so has the amount farmers pay as interest to lend-

Last year, the report said, total interest charges on farm debt was almost $8 billion, an increase of $931 million from charges in 1976.

Operators say they haven't been much surprised by results of their drilling. In general, they have found what their sophisticated exploration programs indicated they would find in deeper waters. And they have several discoveries in highly developed shallow areas.

Still, operators say they are pleased a mature producing area such as the gulf can continue to yield new commercial volumes of oil and gas.

Sale 47 drew more interest than most industry observers had anticipated. Operators invested $1,170,093,432 in high bids for 124 tracts, making the bonus take the seventh highest in the 24-year history of OCS leasing. Twenty-eight bids were rejected by the Department of Interior.

By mid-October, 14 independent and 13 major operators had drilled 90 wells on. 63 tracts, representing an investment in drilling costs alone of more than $100 million. Nine other holes are being drilled.

The High Island area off Texas has four discovery tracts, West Cameron six, East Cameron four and Vermilion four.

Platforms already have been installed on three tracts, including one that began in September. And platforms are planned or are under consideration on seven oth-

At a more recent OCS sale, held last April, operators leased 80 tracts off Texas and Louisiana. Bids totaled $653,806,643, slightly higher than expected.

Drilling has just begun on Sale 45 tracts. Operators are slower getting underway on the tracts. They are still busy on their Sale 47 tracts, and they are preparing for Sale 51 in December.

In addition, supplies are tight for jackup rigs-the type of mobile drilling rigs commonly used in shallow, Gulf of Mexico waters. And, under new OCS Lands Act amendments, added environmental studies must be conducted before permits can be issued, which delays the

Controversy Over Tanker Port Causing Unrest In Long Beach

By LAURINDA KEYS
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — This bustling port city is awash in a tide of contro-versy over a local ballot measure to decide whether a terminal for huge Alaskan oil tankers will be built in its harbor.

Opponents of the project, which would become the western end of a 1,000-mile pipeline carrying Alaskan crude oil, have full confidence that voters will agree with

"We didn't have to sell much," said Robert J. Kilpatrick, head of a homeowners coalition opposed to the project.
"People couldn't wait to sign the petitions to get it on the ballot."

"It's unfortunate that the project is so complex," said George Economides, director of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, which endorses the project. "It will be beneficial but it's difficult for many people to read all the information and understand it." For the city of Long Beach, the chamber estimates that the project would bring in an additional $110,000 a year in tax dollars and 350 permanent jobs. The city already reaps $9 million a year from decoratively camouflaged offshore oil drilling platforms in its harbor. Those who want to block the project say the city's air quality is as stake and that the proposed terminal for big oil tankers and storage tanks will lace the city's breezes with sulfur particles. The Standard Oil Company of Ohio (Sohio), which has a major interest in the Prudoe Bay oil fields, says the project comes with a plan that would remove nine pounds of pollutants from the city's air for every one pound added.

The Sohio plan known as the Pactex project would include in addition to the terminal a 1,000-mile pipeline to Midland, and is a proposed route to supply oil to the Gulf and Midwest portions of the Oil from Alaska has caused a glut on the West Coast. The only way large amounts of Alaskan oil now can reach the eastern and Gulf states is through the Panama Canal, a lengthy, expensive pro-

Besides the Sohlo plan, two pipelines have been proposed and there may be others waiting in the wings. One, using a Washington state port, is designed to move oil to the group of states along the Canadian border. It has encountered financing problems and questions as to whether those states will need enough oil to justify the pipeline.

The other proposal would use a Kitimat, British Columbia, port and then pipe the oil to Edmonton, Alberta, from where existing pipelines would move it south. But the Canadians have questioned whether they should bear the environmental risks of a tanker port when the oil would be used in the United States.

Part of the controversy over the Sohio project in Long Beach stems from a trade-off agreement under which Sohio would pay for cleanup equipment on a local Southern California Edison Co. power generating plant and 15 dry cleaning plants in the city which it says would more than offset the pollution its project

The plan has been approved by the local South Coast Air Quality Management District which will not hold a hearing on it until after the election.

A hearing had been scheduled for September but according to AQMD spokesman James Birakos, the agency needed more detailed answers to its questions than Sohio could provide at the time, so the oil company asked for a delay.

Regardless of what the hearings determine, project opponent Kilpatrick argues that the tradeoff deal sells Long Beach

Therefore, the net effect of the tradeoff would be that Orange County — not Long Beach — would get cleaner Edison emissions, while Long Beach would get a full dose of the new Sohio pollution but real-ize no benefit from the Edison clean up,

Sohio project manager William Culver had no comment on the daytime wind es blow the Edison pollution into neighboring Orange County and not into Long Beach.

On the other hand, Kilpatrick pointed out that those same winds would blow the issue occurred Oct. 17 when the state County is a control of the control of the issue occurred Oct. 17 when the state County is a control of the issue occurred Oct. 17 when the state occurred Oct. 17 when the state occurred Oct. 17 when the state occurred Oct. 18 which controls all occurred occurred Oct. 19 which controls all occurred Oct. 19 which controls all occurred Oct. 19 which controls all occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 which controls all occurred Oct. 19 which controls all occurred Oct. 19 which controls all occurred Oct. 19 which controls all occurred Oct. 19 which occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 which occurred Oct. 19 which occurred Oct. 19 which occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the state occurred Oct. 19 when the sta

Positive Thinking

By Norman Vincent Peale

A FEW MONTHS AGO I appeared on a television interview program. The interviewer was a bright and sophisticated person who asked his questions briskly and clearly. Finally, in that cheery tone that always signifies the end of the program, he said, "And now, folks, we have time for just one more question and, Dr. Peale, you'll have to answer it fast. You've got exactly fifteen seconds."

I braced myself and he threw it at me.

"Are you a happy man? Well, I ducked at first, but then picked it up and answered with complete certainty, "Sure, of course, I am."

What about you? Suppose you were asked whether or not you are happy and given fifteen seconds to answer. You wouldn't have time to think, to equivocate, to analyze or to explain. You'd have to answer yes or no. Your quick instinctive answer would probably be the true one because basically we know whether or not we are happy.

One of the great fundamental questons in life, is this: Are you a happy per-

ACCORDING TO PSYCHOLOGISTS who have asked this question of large groups of people, many answer that they are unhappy. Happiness somehow seems to elude their grasp, no matter how hard they try to be happy. Some, more cynical than others, conclude there is no happiness in this life. Some actually reason that no one has a right to be happy in this mixed-up world (which Schopenhauer, the gloomy philosopher, called "that theatre of sin, suffering

But The Great Philosopher who taught in Galilee and Judea long ago offered real happiness and His formula is a simple one. "These things have I spoken to you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full," He said.

What are "these things" to which the Great Teacher refers? Oh, things like love, forgiveness, unselfishness, goodness, overcoming self, mastering weaknesses, helping people. Have you noticed that you always get a warm glow in your heart when you do any of these? That warm inner glow is a pretty good sign that you are on the track of happiness. The more times your heart registers that glowing feeling the happier you'll be.

A FRIEND OF MINE, a grumpy unhappy fellow, read one of my books in which I advocate trying "these things" Jesus gives as a happiness formula. My friend wrote a kind of doubting letter inquiring if this was really workable or was it just a nice pious platitude. It so happened that he worked in a scientific field, and I suggested that he apply the scientific method to this material and see for himself whether or not it would work. He decided that for one month he would seriously try to live exactly as Jesus teaches. He made a thorough study of those teachings to work out a plan which he outlined in five steps:

1. I will be honest at all times.

2. I will forgive everybody.

3. I will empty out all wrong thoughts.

4. I will be kind and thoughtful to other people.

5. I will daily read God's word. Every night he faithfully checked his "score". It wasn't easy going but he stuck at it. Now, even with imperfections in his "score", he declares, "This way of living has it over any other I've known!" This method gradually has made this man a truly happy person. His experience demonstrates that vital religious faith is the surest way to real happiness. His formula (honesty, forgiveness, right-thinking, kindness and spiritual guidance) is so effedtive that I tell of it here in the hope that those who are looking for happiness' will give it a trail. I'm sure it will work for you too.

"CHESS AND THE HUMANITIES"

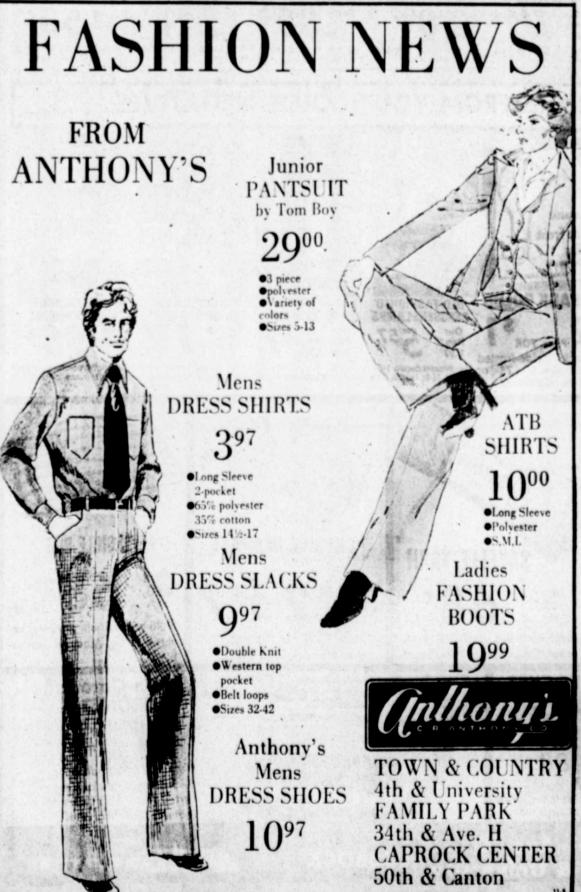

Eighteen states and one foreign country, Australia, were represented at the first "Chess and Humanities" conference, which took place in Lincoln, Nebraska, over the Memorial Day week-end. The event was sponsored by the University of Nebraska, the Lincoln Chess Foundation and the National Endowment for Hu-

Many new ideas on the merits of chess and the development of the game were explored and presented. But the conference was not without its light moments. The event ended with an invitational tournament for organizers of chess tour-naments. It was jointly won by Grand-master William Martz of Milwaukee and Nebraska champion and U.S. Master Lor-en Schmidt — and a bear!

The bear was black and struck terror into the hearts of no one present, it being of the teddy species. It sat on Loren's lap while he was playing, and appasrently gave him either confidence or good advice, or both. As director of the event, I could find nothing in the FIDE rules about bears sitting in players' laps, and so let it pass.

A trillion dollars is enough money to put one-thousand dollar bills end to end and circle the earth four times. You could also stack enough quarters to reach the moon and back nine times. Anyway you look at it, a trillion dollars ia a fantistic sum of money

Yet in the United States our gross national product exceeds one trillion dollars annually. It became painfully evident that while we in America have met the economic challenge of industrialization, and have raised the standard of living for all Americans, we have not begun to solve one of the basic problems in our modern society, crime.

The poorest, most backward nations on earth are infested with thieves and those hold human life to be virtually worthless. By contrast, you may think the wealthiest nation on earth (the Unites States) should be totally crime free, but not so. Something terribly wrong seems to have occured. As our economic stability and productivity improved, and our nation prospored and became more populous, crime began to increase, not decrease,

Today, crime increases six times faster than our population. Where have we gone wrong? To answer this question, intellectuals have devised many theories and assumptions about what has happened to our society. Inevitably they overlook the two most significant contributing factors to crime, human nature and greed. As individuals we can do very little to alter the criminal's behavioral patterns established from childhood. But we must take steps to keep the thief in check.

TIPS FROM YOUR

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

A HAT TOO SMALL, a pair of shoes too big. a dress in the wrong style or col-. every year Christmas shoppers buy gifts for loved ones or friends that may not always suit the right purpose. The Better Business Bureau advises shoppers to take the time to find out the store's refund and exchange policies before buying.

Keep in mind that every time a sale is defective or misrepresented, a store is not obligated to accept an item for refund, exchange or credit unless it is defective or misrepresented. There are stores which have "no return" or "final sale" policies, and in some states, stores are required by law to disclose their return policies.

Many stores have set up policies that let the buyer return articles purchased at made, there is an agreement between a the store. Exhcanges, returns for credit buyer and a seller. Although the buyer and refunds are provided by many stores has a right to assume the product is not as a shopping incentive. Be sure to ask about a store's policy before making a purchase.

If a store's policy is an exchange policy, this means that the item may be returned, and another of the same or similar kind may be purchased in its place. This usually happens when the buyer has made a mistake in judgment, for example, a purchased garment is too large or the wrong color.

A store having a policy of granting credit on a return of merchandise either gives the customer a credit slip or credits the account for the amount paid on return of the purchased item. A credit slip is usually redeemable toward the purchase of any other items in the store; check to see if it has any expiration date.

Under a refund policy, the customer's money is returned in full. This is the store's assurance to its customers that they will gain satisfaction when shopping

Some products purchased in stores have written warranties which state what a customer should do if anything goes wrong with a product. Therefore, it's always a good idea to read the warranty on a product before making a purchase. If you don't see a warranty on or near the product, ask to see the store's catalog of warranties which is convenient for comparing the warranties of competing products. If the warranted product has to be returned, be sure to reread the warranty. It may require that the product be mailed to the manufacturer or taken to a particular place other than the store where it was purchased.

In addition, written contracts sometimes have special conditions for the return of merchandise. Be sure to read thoroughly and understand the contract before signing it. Are all the blanks filled in? Always keep a copy of the signed con-

This holiday season, keep in mind that a store's return policy may require that gifts purchased for Christmas be returned within a specified time period and be in unused condition. In most cases, a store will require a sales slip or some other proof of purchase. Be sure to keep these valuable slips together in a safe place for possible use after the holidays.

Remember, too, when shopping that many stores have holiday sales where the policy is "all sales are final." Customers may save themselves a lot of time and headaches by realizing that final sale items may not be returnable after the holiday season. In other words, an item purchased on sale as a Christmas gift may not be such a bargain if it doesn't fit and cannot be returned.

Holiday shopping can be both busy and exciting. During the hustle and bustle, the Better Business Bureau advises shoppers to be sure to do some planning be fore purchasing. This may be the best way to avoid the after Christmas lines at the refund and exchange counters.

Selling your home can be a very emotional experience. Your home holds many happy memories of children growing and friendly neighbors. Now you are planning to sell your home to someone who does not share your feelings for the house. Potential buyers look, instead, for the best location and most living space they can afford. The money received from the sale of your home will dictate your future investment and lifestyle. Therefore, deciding and planning for the sale of your home is time well spent. With such important emotional and financial considerations, take time to learn all the selling facts. Before selling your home, be aware of your financial situation, the profit you need from the sale, reinvestment alternatives, and your future anticipated lifestyle. As a seller, you should know the the amount of money you receive from the sale oif your home will be substantially less than the total amount the buyer pays.

Outline your anticipated costs of selling, then estimate the amount of money you will receive after your selling expenses are deducted.

MOST PEOPLE PLANNING to sell their homes consider bypassing a real estate agent and "saving" the six to seven percent commission. Afterall, who wants to spend money if they don't have to.

On the other hand, you must ask youself if you can handle the sale as well as a professional real estate agent. Are you knowledgeable enough to handle the intricate, and often complicated, tasks of selling?

It's a dilemma you must resolve yourself. Evaluate what must be done to sell ... The first step in selling is to set an asking price and determine the lowest amount you will accept after selling expenses are deducted. Too often sellers try to establish selling prices by what they were told a similar house in similar neighborhood recently sold for, or by "guestimating" their original costs plus a "fudgefactor" for inflation and costs of added improvements. The result is often disasterous. Either the price is too high and potential buyers are scared opff, or the seller is cheated by setting a deadly low price.

It is better to establish a price by commissioning a real estate appraiser to determine the market value of the house. In fact, an appraisal should be considered for the family selling its own home.

WHEN LISTING A HOUSE with a real estate agent, the seller may receive more information and advice than he would from just an appraisal. Based on experience, the agent can help set a realistic price. If you still plan to sell the house yourself, your best bet is to advertise in a newspaper with a large real estate advertising section. Pattern your ad after similar listings placed by professional real estate agents. After obtaining prospective buyers, the hard work starts. You must be persuasive, knowledgeable enough to answer questions, skillful enough to resolve hesitancies, and aware of the potential buyers' needs and interests. Depending on the particular situation, convincing potential buyers may be very simple or Even if you have an interested buyer, your house will be sold only if the buyer can produce the money necessary for the purchase. Because most houses are purchased with mortgages, the seller needs an understanding of the money market, including required down payments, interest rates, length of loan, discount points, closing costs, and monthly payments. Likewise, it would be beneficial to have a complete and honest understanding of the potential buyers' employment, income, savings, and debt situati Now that you have carefully considered the basic steps of selling, you must answer the question, "Should I sell the house myself, or is this a job for a professional?" In this regard, you must weigh the expense of listing your house with a real estate agent against your free time, patience, energy, and willing-

Education Takes On New Look In China

By CHARLES R. SMITH

HONG KONG (UPI) — China's colleges are ready to receive students for the first normal school term since the late Mao Tse-tung messed up the country's educational system a dozen years ago.

The freshman class entering more than 400 colleges and universities will number slightly more than 300,000. This is the cream of the crop of more than 6 million students who sat for the entrance examinations during the summer.

Although 278,000 enrolled last year in institutions of higher learning — the highest figure since 1965 — it wasn't a normal school year. They studied under a curriculum that still put heavy emphasis on politics and manual labor, which Mao and his radical followers advocated so strongly.

When the fall term begins this month, the students will be studying under a new curriculum. Their textbooks will be new — long on academic material, and short on the ideology on which Mao insisted.

The books also will draw more on foreign material.

Teachers will have more authority in the classrooms, where student anarchy once reigned. They will be using more modern teaching techniques picked up.

once reigned. They will be using more modern teaching techniques picked up from abroad.

Several hundred visiting professors from the United States. West Germany.

Great Britain, France, Japan and other countries will be lecturing at some institutions.

But the most important development will be the operation of "key" colleges

But the most important development will be the operation of "key" colleges and universities.

The brightest and best of the freshmen will be going to 88 "key" institutions

The brightest and best of the freshmen will be going to 88 "key" institutions selected by the Ministry of Education. The ministry said it was necessary to concentrate on these institutions in order to speed up and improve the quality of education.

"It is impossible to properly equip many schools at once," the ministry explained. "With education funds not readily available, we can only add to such equipment step by step. A thousand and one things call for attention, but there is no way to take care of everything at the same time.

"If existing manpower, material and financial resources were to be evenly distributed, an inevitable diffusion of forces would result. It everyone wants to advance at the same time, no one will. If the quality of education is not raised, and no qualified personnel are turned out, our country's modernization program will slow down...

"There is only one way to accomplish this mission. It is to concentrate forces on the proper operation of key schools. There is no other way."

These key schools will play a pilot role in the drive to "raise the quality of education" and "train personnel rapidly", 3

"Key schools will enroll students with superior educational level." the ministry said. "They will have more competent faculties and better teaching facilities while the state gives them aid in reference books and teaching equipment."

All this is part of the new look in Chinese education.

Nothing was more ravaged by Mao's chaotic Cultural Revolution than China's educational system.

The damage began in June 1966, when Mao ordered schools closed. He decreed that examinations should be abolished. Students would be selected on a "class basis" rather than on academic achievement. The school term should be shortened, Mao said. And it was.

Examinations, Mao declared, were "surprise attacks" that put an unnecessary burden on students.

He said more time should be devoted to political study. Nonpolitical studies should be supplemented by practical application, meaning that much of the students' time should be spent working on farms or in factories. Teachers also had to participate in "productive labor," Mao said.

This, Mao contended, would enable the students and teachers to "better serve proletarian politics and socialism."

More sons and daughters of poor peasants and workers would have an opportunity to enter college as a result of the lowering of academie standards and the shortening of the period of study — from four to three years for colleges.

The reform of the educational system probably went much further than Mao

The reform of the educational system probably went much further than Mao ever intended. Radical leftists, including his widow, Chiang Ching, and her cohorts of the notorious "Gang of Four", seized upon Mao's moves in the educational field as one of the main weapons in a war against intellectuals.

They brought anarchy to the classrooms when schools finally reopened — and even now not all are operating. Tens of thousands of teachers were driven from schools into communes, factories or labor camps.

"The educational front truly has been a disaster area," the Communist party newspaper People's Daily, admitted frankly in a recent article on the problems in China's educational system.

The article was one of hundreds published by the People's Daily and other official organs during the past several months on the revamping of the educational system now underway.

This is a top priority program.

The man behind it is Teng Hsiao-ping, the dynamic vice premier and party vice chairman, purged when Mao first began his assault on the system.

Speaking at a national conference on education earlier this year, Teng put the blame for the breakdown in education on Mao's followers, not on him.

Teng argued that it was never Mao's intention to lower the quality of education by over-emphasizing ideology and manual labor, shortening the period of study and other related actions.

The dangerous decline in education was brought about by others pursuing a destructive course in Mao's name, Teng said.

"There is much that is new on the educational front since the overthrow of the 'Gang of Four' and particularly since the reform of the college enrollment system and the criticism of the 'two assessments'.' Teng said.

(The "two assessments" were arguments used by the Gang and other radicals

(The "two assessments" were arguments used by the Gang and other radicals to attack moderate leaders and intellectuals who resisted their attempts to change the system. One assessment was that education in the 17 years before Mao ordered the system revised was revisionist. The second assessment declared students and teachers of that period should be regarded as enemies of socialism because their outlook was bourgeois.)

The important question today. Teng said, is, "how, under the new historical conditions to implement further the fundamental principle set forth by Chairman Mao that 'education must serve proletarian politics and be combined with productive labor."

"The 'Gang of Four', under the cloak of Mao Tse-tung thought, wilfully distorted and trampled on this principle and led the educational revolution astray, causing grave damage to education." Teng said.

No matter how damaging Mao's moves may have been, some of them had considerable popular appeal.

Lowering educational standards, abolishing entrance exams and opening college doors to students who otherwise would never have been able to attend, were moves welcomed by many.

The relaxation of discipline, which permitted students to attack teachers in open criticism sessions and which permitted students to have a role in running the schools, were praised by many. But the net result was anarchy in the classrooms and an exodus of teachers from their schools.

In one of the articles on education, one official newspaper in Peking said the nation is faced with a serious shortage of teachers as a result of their mistreatment in the past

There are only about nine million teachers — many poorly qualified — for the more than 400 colleges and universities, 200,000 middle (high) schools and more than a million primary schools. Many of those nine million are still working in other jobs.

To help ease the shortage, the Kwangming Daily said it was imperative to get those teachers "laid off under various pretexts" back into the classrooms. "The issue of teachers returning to the ranks involves such trades and professions as industry, agriculture, commerce and public service," the article said.

"Given the urgent need for qualified people, leading members at all levels must take immediate action to have teachers doing the work for which they were trained."

The quality of teaching also needs upgrading urgently, an education ministry official said.

To do this, teachers's colleges are being reinstituted. Teachers are being sent abroad to study modern techniques for the first time in many years. Those who do not go abroad are being given training in advanced teaching aids and methods now in use in other countries but kept out of China in the past by the antiforeign attitude of the radicals.

"A great effort will be made to modernize teaching media and develop radio, television and film education," Liu Hsiyao, the minister of education, said in an 8-year plan his ministry outlined "for education in the new era"

Postgraduate training also is being resumed this month after a lapse of 12 years. A total of 9,000 postgraduate students will be enrolled in 207 institutes of higher learning and 144 research institutes.

FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE 77th DISTRICT

Statement of Political Position:

- 1. Do not support Statehood for Washington, D.C.
- 2. Will not vote for State income tax.
- Will work for the protection of agriculture markets in Texas and United States.
- Will not consider legislation that will send bank accounts etc., out of the state.
- 5. Will not support legislation that will weaken the founda- tion of the family and its responsibilities.Do not support E.R.A. as amended or the manner in which amended.

I am a farmer living in the Denver City area and I consider the 77th District one of the most important areas in the state due to the volume of food, fiber, gas, oil production. I will work at representing all these areas equally and fairly. I think with the support of all these industries I could bargain favorably with any district in the state.

Glad You Asked That!

Q: I hear Telly Savalas is bitter about all his ex-wives. Is this true? - Janet Royes, Seattle.

A: No way. "All my wives are my friends, my confidants," insists sex symbol Savalas. "And that's the way it should be. When you marry a woman and you're warm with her and make love to her and make children by her, you don't kiss it all goodbye when you leave." Q: Was Typhoid Mary a real person? - Mrs. Melinda T., Philadelphia.

A: Yes. Living in New York City, she was responsible for the 1903 outbreak of typhoid. Some 1,300 people came down with the disease. A typhoid carrier. Mary Mallon (her real name) often worked under an assumed name on jobs which involved the handling of food. She was finally placed under permanent detention in 1915 until her death in 1938.

Q: We heard Les McKeown quit the Bay City Rollers because he got into a fist fight with one of them. Anything to this? - The Jordan Sisters, Jersey City, N.J.

A: It was not a fist fight. McKeown quit after a hired 'pie assassin' pushed a custard pie in his face at a Los Angeles studio a few weeks ago. Though Les laughed along with the audience, he later stormed out of the NBC studio and flew home. The group's manager insists the pie was ordered by the studio crew, not the Rollers. But the runaway singer, according to his lawver. felt he wasn't being treated properly by the group. Andrew Drummond quoted a Rollers spokesman: "Les has been playing up and demanding star treatment. # Right Around Home by Ben Moffett

TWO YEARS BEFORE the first misquito bit Captain John Smith at Jamestown and 15 years before the Pilgrims stepped ashore at Plymouth, a Spaniard stopped beside a waterhole in New Mexico and carved a message in a soft sandstone cliff.

Visitors to El Morro National Monument may still read the message he left there nearly 375 years ago:

'Paso por aqui," it begins. "There passed by here the governor Don Juan de Onate on his return from the discovery of the sea of the south, April 16 of the year 1605."

Onate wasn't the first man to carve his name into the sheer cliff that sentinels the high plains surrounding the monument and he wasn't the last. Today the cliff - aptly named "Inscription Rock" - is a 200-foot high autograph album that has many historical messages on it, including some entertaining ones.

CORPORAL JOSEPH TRUJILLO worked some humor into the rock in 1736. On July 14 of that year, General Juan Paez Hurtado recorded the fact that he was at the rock. Just underneath, two lines were added, no doubt when the general's back was turned:

And in his company, the Corporal Joseph Trujillo. With that line Corporal Trujillo found his place in history. Visitors to El Morro today have no such easy route because the rock is closed to autographers. But, there's a block of sandstone in front of the visitor center where you can scratch your name. It's not the typical National Park Service guest register.

There is more than signatures in stone to this 1,278-acre monument located off interstate 40, 43 miles from Grants, N.M. and 58 miles from Gallup, N.M.

LONG BEFORE THE first European arrived on our shores, the prehistoric American lived on and around the rock. Atop it are ruins of two pueblos. On its face are petroglyphs - carvings of men, goats, winged serpents and

The first known historical mention of El Morro is found in the journal of Diego Perez de Luxan, chronicler of the Espejo expedition of 1583. Luxan stopped at El Morro for water on March 11 of that year.

Water lured others to the rock. Over the years, soldiers, gold seekers, and cattlemen were attracted to a precious pool of water at the base of the cliff that was the result of summer thundershowers and winter snows.

There is a small campground located in the park, which can double as a picnic area. The nearest restaurant in Ramah, 13 miles away and there are overnight accommodations in Gallup and Grants.

Nature Park In England Gives Public Rare Glimpse of 'Endangered' Otter

EARSHAM. England (UPI) - Otters gleaned from the casual observations of are a rare sight even in captivity and an fishermen ... or from specimens kept in st impossible one in the wild.

But they're an everyday sight for visitors to the Otter Trust, the world's only nature park devoted to these endangered animals. Founded only two years ago, the trust puts the public within biting distance of dozens of otters, and at the same time helps pull the otter back from the brink of extinction.

One of our main aims is to breed endangered species and eventually release them in the wild," said Philip Wayre, tounder and director of the trust.

This place is unique. Quite a few zoos have otter pairs, but we're the only place with such a collection and the only ones breeding offers in such numbers.

The Otter Trust's three lakes, 118 miles porth of London, also hold exotic wildfowl, and there is a nature walk along the River Waveney which runs through the

Doctors Face Dilemma In Removal Of Tonsils

CHICAGO (UPI) - The doctors' dilemma of the 1970s might be: Do we or don't we recommend that our young patients have their tonsils out?

There are three quarters of a million young Americans subjected each year to removal of tonsils and adenoids at a cost approaching $1 billion and untold cost in pain, suffering and emotional shock, says a commentary on the subject in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The future of Texas is in your hands.

Bill Clements is a part of this great state. Texas has a great future, but that future is only as bright as the man who's in charge. The time has come to elect a proven businessman, a leader, and not just another politician.

We must control inflation and taxes.

Bill Clements knows how. With less government in Austin, not more. With reorganization and sound planning as alternatives to increased spending. With the elimination of unnecessary and excessive taxes.

We must solve our energy problems.

Federal control of Texas' gas and oil will destroy our state's economy for the benefit of the East and the North. Clements will fight that. He'll fight for an energy program of increased production. He's well qualified because he's worked in the energy business all over Texas and around the world.

We must improve state-wide education.

The Texas state education system ranks in the lowest third in the nation. Bill Clements will change that. As chairman of the Board of Governors at Southern Methodist University for eight years, he has been an innovator in education. He knows the children of Texas are our most valuable resource.

We must have a strong spokesman in Washington.

Washington doesn't understand farmers, ranchers, or Texas. Bill Clements is one person who can do something about it. He knows Washington. And, Washington knows him. As Deputy Secretary of Defense he managed the Defense Department for four years starting in 1973, and was responsible for the Pentagon's $100 billion a year budget and 3,000,000 employees.

LEMENTS A great governor for Texas.

SMALL REGIONAL RECORD labels are not prestigious, can't give good distribution and fail in effective promotion. They do, on the other hand, offer one of the best ways a singer can break into the music business. Gene Watson, a 34-year-old native of Palestine, Tex., knows first-hand this is

GENE WATSON

He recorded about 20 records for small, independent companies before achieving meaningful success. One of those singles, "Bad Water," even got into the national record charts.

Russ Reeder, Watson's manager and producer, came across a song called "Love in the Hot Afternoon," which had been recorded before by a half-dozen other singers

The single record made on the small label, however, gained the attention of people at Capitol Records, and the Capitol folks signed Watson to a contract

Love in the Hot Afternoon," kicked off a string of hits for Watson including Paper Roses, "The Old Man and His Horn," "I Don't Need a Thing at All" and "Cowboys Don't Get Lucky All the Time.

So, don't turn up your noses at small labels, because they can be the path to better things. Just read any contracts closely, though, before you sign.

RAMBLIN'S REVIEWS: The First Lady of Country Music, Tammy Wynette, has out a new Columbia album called "One of a Kind" (Columbia 35044). Tammy is a little weak on "Heaven's Just a Sin Away," but she comes back strong on "Love Survived," "I'm Not That Good at Goodbyes," "I'll Be Your Bridge" and the recent Kenny Rogers composition "Sweet Music Man.

Speaking of Tammy, she probably is not happy to learn she is the subject of a song called "Whole Lot of Lonesome" on David Allen Coe's new release, Family Album" (Capitol 35306). The song, composed by Coe and Tammy's exhusband George Jones, is not very complimentary to say the least. While I particularly am not fond of Coe as a person, he nevertheless is a tremendous songwriter and singer and shows it with the album's title song (which should have been called "In My Mama's Eyes"), the Johnny Paycheck hit "Take This Job and Shove It" (which Coe wrote). "Bad Impressions" and also the well-produced number "Heavenly Father, Holy Mother.

If you want to pick up on a lady who is going to hit stardom soon, check out an album called "Let Me Be the One" by Randy Gurley (ABC Records AB1067). The album projects a warm, smooth-flowing feeling, especially Randy's version of "Faithless Love," which alone is worth the album price. Other good numbers are the Tanya Tucker hit, "Lovin' Somebody on a Rainy Night" and also "I'll Never Get Over You.

Roy Clark, that entertainer supreme, comes across with one of his best al-bums to date in "Labor of Love" (ABC Records AB1053). Clark was the first artist to record "It Was Almost Like a Song"

What's a $2 billion bank holding company doing in Levelland, Texas?

Growing. Texas-style.

Texas American Bancshares has hitched its wagon to the growth of Texas. And that includes Levelland, in the heart of the prosperous and growing South Plains.

In Levelland, our wholly-owned subsidiary, Levelland State Bank, just moved into a new banking home five times the size of the one it occupied previously to meet the growing needs of the area. Levelland State Bank is the largest bank in Hockley County, whose agricultural and petroleum-based economy has far outstripped the national averages over the past decade. In Hockley County alone, there are more than 5.000 oil wells which last year produced a whopping 52 million barrels of petroleum.

That's why Levelland is an important part of the Texas American Bancshares story of Texas-style growth.

Strong Statewide Banking Organization

Texas American Bancshares is the largest bank holding company in Texas which has built a statewide banking organization from a base other than Houston or Dallas.

Home base is Fort Worth, a dynamic part of the Dallas-Fort Worth Southwest Metroplex, the nation's tenth largest market. Our lead bank, The Fort Worth National, is the city's largest and oldest financial institution.

Of course, we're also in Houston and Dallas. We're in Houston with three banks, including a major downtown entry, Southern National Bank. Our newest Houston acquisition is the Galleria Bank, located in the famed Galleria Complex, one of the nation's most successful retail market places. We're in Dallas with Texas American Bank, the city's eighth largest bank. And we're a part of the resources-rich and thriving economies of West Texas, the Panhandle and the South Plains, with strong banks in Midland, Amarillo and Levelland

Our long-range plans include strengthening our ties to the state's burgeoning economy through prudent expansion into other key areas of Texas.

Most importantly, we're growing across Texas. Steadily. Solidly. Forging ahead from a strong capital base which positions us to take advantage of the favorable economic conditions prevailing in our areas of operations.

13.4% Compound Growth Rate

We've grown in per share earnings, which over the past five years have risen at a compound rate of 13.4%. Each year since our formation as a holding company in 1970, we've broken the prior year's record highs in deposits, loans, total assets and stockholders' equity. We're now at $2 billion in assets and $1.6 billion in deposits. The comparable 1970 year-end figures were $585 million and $458 million

Dividend Increases

In recognition of our strong earnings performance and future outlook, we increased our dividend rate by 54.4% since January 1976, including the effect of a 5% stock dividend.

We invite your comparison of our performance with those of other bank holdings companies in Texas and across the nation. For more information about Texas

The dancing isn't the usual bump-andshake variety either. Instead, nearly evervone is doing a step called the Shag, a kind of sedate jitterbug.

There's not one segment of this country more devoted to one type of music than North Carolina is to Beach Music," said Archie Durham, a 35-year-old professional musician from Chapel Hill.

"Not even Texas with Waylon (Jennings) and Willie (Nelson)."

Now that discos have made dancing popular again, some Beech Music enthusiasts think their style finally might catch on nationwide. Beach Music's easy-going tempo provides a refreshing counterpoint to the faster disco dances, Elliot's Nest co-owner John Hawkins said.

Others point to Jackson Browne's current success with "Stay," an old Beach tune originally recorded by Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs, and modern Beach-style hits like "Use Ta Be My

Here in the Carolinas the beach is not just a vacation, it's a way of life," Durham said. "If you're in Virginia you can go to Washington. If you're in South Carolina you can go to Georgia or the military bases. But right here in this little pocket ... the only place for a young person to go was the beach, to drink and dance. You waited all year for that chance to bust that beach wide open.

Carolinas teenagers around 1950 turned away from Swing tunes and toward the gentle rhythm and blues styles of black groups like the Coasters and the Platters. Such music rarely was played on youths' hometown radio stations; but they could

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., - I've just rewed my acquaintance with one of my favorite museums; The Franklin Institute, at 20th Street & Benjamin Franklin Parkway. Admission is $2.50 (Children $1,50), and worth it.

Collectors will enjoy seeing the old coin press on the first floor. It was the first steam-powered press at the Philadelphia Mint, in 1836. Today it's run by electricity. For a dime it will stamp out a small uminum medal for you, showing Franklin's portrait on one side and the Institute building on the other.

The numismatic "Collector's Gallery on the fourth floor is worth visiting. Coins there range from ancient Greek and Roman to modern U.S. and foreign

Among the stamps and paper money, you can see the famous 1918 24 10 airt stamp with the upside-down biplane.

The gift shop on the first floor sells both bronze and silver medals showing the Franklin statue in the Benjamin Franklin National Memorial. These 40millimeter medals were struck by The Franklin Mint for the Institute's sesquicentennial (150th anniversary). The reverse pictures the building's main entrance, with "The Franklin Institute, 1824-

Make a stop at the U.S. Mint, 5th & Arch Sts. You can see Peter, the eagle who may have been the model for eagles on several of our coins. You can take a self-guided tour and watch coins being made. Admission is free

The mint has its own shop where you can purchase medals and some other items. An official mint medal makes a great souvenir of a visit here!

Close to Philadelphia is The Franklin Mint, where there's a museum of medallic art. There are regular visiting hours, and tours.

The Philadelphia National Bank, 4th & Market Sts., has still another museum, the International Coin Museum. There's a $1 admission (children 50 10). Before visiting any of these places, I

Peter, Paul, Mary Bring Back Memories

BOSTON (UPI) - Time has brought many of the same changes to Peter, Paul & Mary that it did to the anti-war and civil rights activists who marched to the group's music a decade ago.

Peter Yarrow, Paul Stookey and Mary Travers have just made a national concert tour after seven years of going their separate ways. They're older. Yarrow and Stookey are balding and Miss Travers isn't quite the blond bombshell that even conservatives found quite attractive during those tumultuous years. They've changed, but then so has their audience.

Like the former students and protestors who packed auditoriums and outdoor theaters for the concert - paying up to $10 a ticket and many forking over So for a "reunion T-shirt" - they've gone into business and devoted more time to

They played to sellout crowds on the 17-city tour, with the concerts as much a reunion for the audience as for the group that taught music - and politics - to much of the nation's young in the 1960s.

TIMES CHANGE

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland (AP) - Harbor Grace at one time attracted many upper-crust Britons, boasted splendid architecture and had the atomsphere of an aristocratic resort town. However, with the death of shipping in the area, the town underwent a drastic change, and now it's an outpost community like dozens of others along the coast.

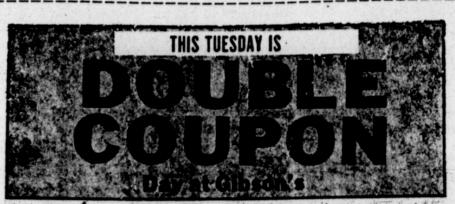

from reports elsewhere too, the crowds were heavily comprised of the 25-40 age group, dressed in everything from blue jeans to threepiece suits.

Some mouthed the words of the songs. Others sang out loud.

"They and their music helped me develop my philosophy about ife. They helped a generation shape their thinking," said Mary Ann Krzyna, 30, of Brighton, Mass. She remembers seeing them "three or four times while in college. I went into the Peace Corps after college and to some extent they helped me make that decision. I don't think you can separate Peter, Paul and Mary from the anti-war and civil rights movements during the 1960s. It was a big and important part of your life," said Miss Krezyna, now a nurse.

Plains Automatic Transfer Service to give you:

- * No-service-charge checking
- * Special overdraft protection
- ★ Easy access to your savings account
- ★ Maximum interest on savings
- * Your own checking account reserve
- ★ More flexibility with your money

WHAT is DOLS

PATS is the Plains Automatic Transfer Service which links savings accounts and checking accounts to give you greater convenience. Effective November 1, 1978, Plains National Bank can automatically transfer funds from your savings to your checking account, if you choose to use either of the PATS plans.

WHY is DOLS important to you?

PATS gives you greater financial flexibility and helps you use your money more efficiently. Here are just a few of the many advantages this great new service offers you: ★ No-service-charge checking

PATS maintains a minimum daily balance in your checking account through automatic transfer from savings. You won't pay a service charge on your checking account if you maintain a sufficient balance in your savings

PATS assures you overdraft protection through automatic transfer from savings to checking. So long as you have the funds at or above the minimum savings balance, you won't have a check returned for insufficient funds.

* Maximum interest on your savings PATS allows you to put more of your money in your Plains National savings account, where it will draw interest until it's needed in your checking account. ★ Easy access to your savings account

PATS gives you access to your savings account through automatic transfer to checking. Want to make a spurof-the-moment purchase? Need extra money for an emergency? As long as you have the minimum balance in your savings account, you can write the check, and funds to cover it will be transferred automatically to your checking account.

HOW does DOLS work?

With your authorization, the Plains will link your savings and checking accounts, allowing automatic transfer of funds, when needed, to protect your checking account balance and avoid overdrafts. You can choose from two different PATS plans: PATS I, to provide you with no service-charge checking and overdraft protection; or PATS II, for overdraft protection only

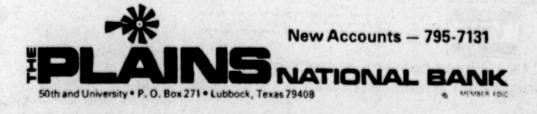

Then, depending on which plan you use, a minimum amount will be automatically transferred from savings to checking, when needed, to maintain a minimum checking account balance or to cover overdrafts.

WHO can take advantage of DDLS?

Anyone with both a checking and a savings account at the Plains can sign up for PATS. To take advantage of this new service, however, a depositor must maintain a minimum balance of $300 in savings.

WHERE can you find out more about 005?

To get more information about PATS, come in and talk to one of our PATS specialists in New Accounts. They'll be glad to answer any questions you may have about the service, explain the qualifications needed to take advantage of it, and show you how it can save you money and give you added protection and convenience. Detailed brochures, application forms, and authorization contracts may also be obtained at New Accounts.

Their home is a turn-of-the-century farm house on the edge of town. It has four bedrooms and a chicken yard instead of a swimming pool.

After five years in the dwelling, Guich says the family hasn't quite "settled in" vet. That would account for the fact that there are boxes and crates still filling space in the house.

Black rolls 4-3. How shoud he play? ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

What a pleasant predicament to be in! There are at least three ways that Black can play 4-3, and all have something to commend them. 1. Black can point on a White runner on his 2-point. 2. Black can make White's 5-point. 3. Black can make his own bar-point.

The move that appeals to me least is to point on the White runner. True, that puts a White man on the bar and Black has a three-point home board, and it is usually correct to put an opponent's man up on the bar. But the men on Black's 2-point will be out of the game for a while, and you would be using up two useful builders that could otherwise be used to make the 4-and 3-point, both more important than the 2-point. Making White's 5-point is a strong move. Your opponent's 5-point is one of the key points on the board, probably second in importance only to your own 5-point. If that was your choice, it would be difficult to fault you My own taste, however, runs to the third option-making Black's bar-point. That creates a 4-point prime, and already that is an effective blockade against the White runners. White can only escape with a 6-2 or 6-3, and if does so he comes under fire from White's 12-point

For the moment, Black has little to fear from White's home board. There should be several opportunities either to escape with a runner or to capture a point there. If I had any doubt about which of the two points to make, that would sway me in favor of the bar-point

Here's how a successful Attorney General will become a successful Governor

As Attorney General. John Hill has:

Tax Relief. John Hill was the lead-off witness at legislative hearings on property tax relief and has led the fight for reform of our unfair property tax laws.

Budget Management. While the caseload of his office has more than tripled since he became Attorney General, John Hill and his staff have absorbed the extra load and they've done it without unnecessary budget increases. Output of his staff lawyers is double the average.

Energy Policy. John Hill filed suit to force interstate gas rates to be increased so out-of-staters will have to pay a price equal to those our Texas utility customers pay and is strongly on record against the national administration's proposal to put Texas' intrastate gas market under federal control.

Agriculture. When gas utilities serving the irrigated farmers in the Panhandle, South Plains and Trans-Pecos areas appeared ready to give farmers low priority in their gas curtailment programs submitted to the federal government, Hill stepped in to persuade the gas companies to give the farmers top priority. He also went to Washington to speak up for parity prices for Texas farmers.

Senior Citizens. When allegations of abuse in nursing homes were revealed by the news media last year, John Hill moved swiftly to enforce laws protecting senior citizens in nursing homes. His nursing home task force inspected several hundred nursing homes and sparked reform of our nursing home laws by the legislature.

Vote For Experienced Leadership November 7

As Governor. John Hill would:

Tax Relief. John Hill has campaigned on a platform of "no new taxes" and a pledge to veto any new tax bill. His campaign platform of repealing the state sales tax on utility bills and providing property tax relief to homeowners, the elderly and farmers was adopted by the legislature during the special session this summer.

Budget Management. John Hill already has begun looking for waste he can trim from the state budget. He will implement a zero-base budget program to stop the practice of stacking new programs on top of unnecessary old ones, and he will bring tighter scrutiny to state management of federal funds. He will insist on following our "pay-asyou-go" balanced budget policy, and will push for adoption of this policy by the Federal government.

Energy Policy. Leadership in Washington will be crucial to our state's ability to reverse disastrous federal energy policies based on taking our natural gas from us at prices below what our own citizens and businesses have to pay. John Hill is pledged to lead that fight in Washington to get a national energy policy that is fair to Texas and in our nation's best interest.

Agriculture. John Hill will work in Washington for federal farm policies, which move agriculture prices toward 100 percent of parity, and a beef import policy which severely restricts imports except in periods of domestic beef shortages. He also will work to expand agricultural markets for Texas products, to help Texas reach a goal of becoming No. 1 in agriculture in the nation.

Senior Citizens. John Hill will work for extending the full $10,000 old age exemption from school property taxes, if voters approve the tax relief amendment November 7. He will expand state support for community programs, nutritional programs and other activities to help senior citizens lead productive lives. And he will insist on vigorous enforcement
