

Mercury Tumbles In Area

A cold front blustered through the area early today on the heels of Sunday's mist and rain, sending the mercury skidding into the 30s in the northern portion of the South Plains and bringing a threat of near-freezing weather for much of Northwest Texas tonight.

The front may bring the Lubbock area its coldest temperatures of the season, with a low in the upper 30s predicted for Tuesday morning. So far this fall, the mercury has not dipped below 40 — the low here this morning.

However, the dismal spell is expected to be short-lived, with forecasters predicting a return of pleasant fall weather Tuesday.

Chilly north winds were predicted to keep temperatures in the high 50s this afternoon. Fair skies and temperatures in the mid-60s are due to return on Tuesday.

Lubbock had .06 inch of rain Sunday and .67 for the intermittently rainy weekend.

A north wind of 15 to 25 mph was expected to decrease gradually this afternoon and become northeasterly at five to 10 mph tonight.

Wind warnings are out for area lakes. A strong low pressure system poured heavy rain over a wide area of north and South Texas Sunday afternoon and night.

Area totals for Sunday and the weekend include .32 and 2.70 at Seminole, .01 and 1.52 at Littlefield, a trace and 1.62 at Hereford, .20 and 1.79 at Plainview and 2.5 and 1.07 at Tulla.

The heaviest rains were along and just off the Gulf Coast, weathermen reported.

Austin had 3.45, Galveston 1.59, Palacios 2.89, Victoria 1.80 and San Antonio 1.57.

More than 2 inches of the Austin rain fell in six hours.

Dense fog developed near Abilene as the southern edge of the cold front causing the rainy weather pushed the showers out of that area.

A flash flood watch over a wide area of the state was canceled late Sunday.

Temperatures dipped into the 30s at several area towns this morning. Dumas and Plainview both had readings of 34. Friona recorded 35 and Littlefield, Muleshoe, Olton and Tulla had 36. It was 38 at Levelland and Floydada, and Abilene recorded 39.

Lubbock's low this morning was 40 degrees, tying the low mark for the season.

Meanwhile, officials at Sanderson tabulated damages caused by a weekend flash flood that ripped through the Southwest Texas ranching community.

Congressional Race May Boost Turnout

Although only about a third of Texans eligible to vote are expected to do so Tuesday, a heated race for the 19th Congressional seat of George Mahon is expected to lure more than half the Lubbock County voters to the polls.

Lubbock County Clerk Frank Guss said he is "hoping at least 40,000" ballots are cast in Lubbock County, based on the "fairly good absentee turnout."

So far 1,157 persons have voted absentee, and more mail-in ballots can be expected. In 1974, the last non-presidential election year, only 647 persons voted absentee.

That year a total of 26,284 persons voted in the election. If 40,000 Lubbock County voters make the trek to the polls Tuesday, it will be a 51.8 percent turnout of the 77,223 registered voters.

In Midland, the second largest city in the congressional district, a record number of persons voted absentee and a record turnout is expected Tuesday.

County Clerk Rosnell Cherry said the absentee total of 2,870 votes was the "heaviest ever in a non-presidential year" and predicted at least 20,000 of the county's 34,643 voters will go to the polls Tuesday.

Congressional candidates Kent Hance and George Bush plan to campaign until the last possible moments, in a race which some observers predict could be decided by only a thousand votes.

Hance was visiting shopping centers and businesses in Lubbock, Plainview and Friona today while his supporters started an extensive door-to-door effort to get out Lubbock voters.

Hance will campaign in Lamesa, Seminole and Brownfield Tuesday, before returning to Lubbock.

Bush was making a final campaign swing through Lubbock businesses this morning. He will spend this afternoon and Tuesday in Midland and Odessa attempting to get his voters to the polls.

U.S. Sen. John Tower, in a last-minute campaign stop here today, predicted he will beat Democrat Bob Krueger regardless of whether there is a large voter turnout.

"We do not fear a high turnout," the Republican incumbent said in a noon press conference at the airport. "We're far enough ahead that I think a high turnout would be in my favor." "My campaign is going well," Tower said. "It's been trending up for days." Mark White, Democratic candidate for attorney general, also planned a last-minute campaign stop in Lubbock today. Most major Texas candidates are saying they will find the time for some last-minute campaigning after casting their own ballots Tuesday. "Then comes the hard part, waiting for the returns." Democrat John Hill, seeking the Texas governorship for the next four years, will vote about 7:30 a.m. Tuesday at his home. See TORRID RACE Page 14

Court Backs County Law On Massages

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today turned down an appeal by 12 massage parlor operators who argued that a St. Louis County, Mo., anti-prostitution ordinance violates their constitutional rights.

The law says a person commits prostitution, subject to criminal penalties, "if he or she engages or offers or agrees to engage in sexual conduct in return for something of value."

It defines sexual conduct to include, among other things, "any touching, manual or otherwise, of the genitals of one person by another."

Caesar's Health Club, Velvet Touch Health Spa, Adam and Eve, King's Harlem, Goldfinger Health Club and seven other massage parlor operators went to state court seeking to block enforcement of the ordinance on grounds it violated their right to privacy and the Constitution's guarantee that states may not deprive anyone of life, liberty property without due process of law.

They charged the ordinance was overly broad, and said it would subject obstetricians and gynecologists to criminal sanctions.

The Circuit Court of St. Louis County rejected their suit, finding the law "constitutional, lawful and valid." A Missouri appeals court agreed.

The court also rejected the operators' argument that the ordinance was overly broad and said it "clearly poses no threat to the rights of free speech and expression of doctors, nurses, baby sitters."

The Supreme Court of Missouri declined to review the case.

The Supreme Court today also turned down an appeal challenging the constitutionality of warrantless "mail covers," under which the Postal Service gives law enforcement agents information obtained from the outside of letters.

In a series of orders issued this morning, the court also:

—Refused, over three dissents, to overrule an order by Justice William Brennan allowing the Boston city government to spend public funds to campaign for a property tax proposal.

—Agreed to rule later this term whether someone injured because of fraud by investment advisers can sue them for damages under a 1940 law.

requiring hundreds of big companies to file confidential financial performance reports with the Federal Trade Commission.

Postal inspectors may order "mail cover" surveillance at the request of a law enforcement agency that says it needs the information to protect national security, locate a fugitive or obtain evidence on commission of a crime.

Employees then record information from the outside of first class mail and sometimes check contents of other classes of mail going to a specific address.

The justices today refused to review a 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling upholding the use of a mail cover against a constitutional challenge by Dennis Roy Choate of Long Beach, Calif.

Choate has been fighting to get income tax evasion charges against him thrown out because they were based on evidence obtained from a one-month warrantless mail cover in 1972.

U.S. District Judge Warren Ferguson ruled in Choate's behalf, despite consistent decision by courts in the past upholding the use of mail covers without a warrant.

Davis' Trial Under Way

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors opened the murder-for-hire trial of Cullen Davis today with a vow to prove that the millionaire defendant conspired to kill District Court Judge Joe Eldon.

Prosecutor Tolly Wilson told the jury the evidence would show that Davis, a Fort Worth industrialist, instructed David McCrory, an employee, to kill the judge, who was also from Fort Worth. Wilson also said evidence would show that McCrory, now Davis' chief accuser, went to the FBI out of fear for his welfare and that of his family.

The first witness for the prosecution was FBI agent Ron Jannings, who had heard McCrory's story of a murder-for-hire scheme.

Earlier, prosecutors had indicated they would call Eldon, the presiding judge in Davis' protracted divorce case, early to

DOLLY PARTON STUNS NASHVILLE

Singer Goes Hollywood

EDITOR'S NOTE: Any discussion of Dolly Parton almost has to begin with a few remarks on her startling and stunning physical endowments. In this, the first of a five-part series about the singer, Otis James, author of "Dolly Parton: A Personal Portrait," tells how her stunning beauty has helped her career.

By OTIS JAMES

The first question you're probably asking yourself is, "How long can he go without mentioning Dolly Parton's physical attributes?" Well, let's end the suspense right at the outset.

Dolly Parton is one of the most striking beauties of our time, a triumph of nature wedded to a triumph of artifice, an anachronism, and, perhaps, the new sex symbol of the '70s. Her face is round and dimpled, and framed in a platinum blonde wig that looks like a bubbling fountain caught by a high-speed camera.

DOLLY PARTON era. It foams, rolls, rolls and tumbles in wild profusion, and perfect, man-made symmetry. Her blue eyes are clear, direct and compelling, and surrounded by long false lashes. Her smile is encased in lipstick that almost glows in the dark.

The rest of her is magnificent. Gravity-defying. If the phrase hourglass figure had not long since been invented, it would have to be coined today, to describe Dolly as Mother Nature created her.

There are a series of jokes in Nashville — they used to be part of her stage show — which involve Dolly discovering women's lib, deciding to burn her bra, and ...

(a) it took three days,

(b) volunteer fire departments from four neighboring townships had to be called to put it out.

"She could wear pajamas to a banquet," writes Jerry Bailey (quoted by Melvin Shestack in "The Country Music Encyclopedia," 1974), "and many formally attired persons there would feel improperly dressed. In her presence, women tend to fidget with their hair and adjust their clothes; men stiffen uneasily and stare noticeably at the object of their admiration. She has a way of destroying one's composure, though it seems entirely unintentional."

Roy Blount, in Esquire (March, 1977), had the same experience: "Trying to think of something to say to Dolly in all her glory was, for me, like trying to think of something to say to a person who is coolly standing there on fire all over without being consumed."

And Chet Flippo (Rolling Stone, August 25, 1977) describes Mick Jagger, who should be too jaded to raise more than an eyebrow for any woman, upon being hugged by Dolly: "He looked for all the world like a 12-year-old schoolboy blushing and gawking the first time a truly beautiful woman hugs him. Mick may be beyond purification, but he clearly experienced something."

Dolly Parton is a woman of paradoxes, and she seems to relish them. As she told Martha Hume during an interview: "Nobody could ever know all of me. I'm even fascinated to myself, because I often do things that the day before I wouldn't have thought I would do."

Does she like having people wondering about her? Hume asked.

"I guess I do, sorta ... The more stories they tell, the more popular you become, the more curious people are about you. I don't want to tell it all, because if you know it all, then I wouldn't be fascinating to you."

So she is simple and complex, flamboyant and intensely private, sexy and chaste. Even about her most famous anatomical characteristics, she told Chet Flippo: "There are going to be those who will say, 'I know that they're false. I knew her when,' and there will be some who say, 'I know they're real.' I say: 'Let 'em guess.'"

Dolly wears her paradoxes as easily as she wears her wigs, and, as with her wigs, she makes the wildly improbable look completely natural on her. Because Dolly is her own woman, and has been since she was 5 years old and dictating her first songs to her mother; since she was 10 (or perhaps 13) and talking her way into an unscheduled

Deaths, Damage Mount In Fires Across Nation

By The Associated Press

Firefighters in Des Moines, Iowa, found 10 charred bodies in a burning department store after they were told everyone was out of the building. In Honesdale, Pa., a coroner said a fire that killed at least nine residents of a 120-year-old landmark hotel was deliberately started.

Elsewhere, a fiery auto crash Sunday on the Kansas Turnpike killed six persons returning from a funeral, and a mobile home fire today in eastern Ohio claimed the lives of a woman and five children.

In the Southeast, fires over the weekend consumed thousands of acres of woodland parched by drought. Some rain was forecast for the area, but weather officials said it might not be enough to end the fire danger.

The fires in Pennsylvania and Ohio destroyed the buildings in which the people died and left crews searching for more victims today. The Iowa fire in the Younkers department store may have claimed an 11th victim, officials say. Nine store employees are listed as missing and only eight bodies remain unidentified.

Six persons were missing in the hotel fire in the rural northeastern Pennsylvania town, said Wayne County coroner Robert Jennings, who added, "There is no doubt that it was a suspicious fire and I believe it was arson."

Des Moines Fire Chief Lee Williams said he had "no idea" what caused the department store fire, but that it obviously spread "with an explosion-like force."

The fire started about 9:15 a.m., less than three hours before the store — part of a 115-store shopping mall — was to open to the public. Workers said they heard a rushing sound, possibly gas. They said they did not hear an actual explosion.

District Fire Chief Tony DeFino said the 19-year-old, two-story store did not have an automatic sprinkler system, but added that was not illegal because the Iowa Fire Code was established after the store was built and was not retroactive.

Firefighters found the bodies hours after Younkers security director Michael

Iranian Leaders Get Tough With Mobs

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, struggling to prop up his riot-torn rule, appointed chief of staff Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari as prime minister today to form Iran's first military government in 25 years.

Jaafar Sharif-Emami, a civilian, resigned as prime minister Sunday night as mobs pillaged and burned sections of Tehran. Rioters also were reported to have broken again into the compound housing the British Embassy's employees and the chancery, which they set ablaze Sunday.

Tanks and troops ringed key sites in Tehran, martial law authorities banned four of five morning newspapers and the government radio repeatedly broadcast martial law regulations warning any gathering of more than three persons will be "smashed by force."

The anti-government protesters demanded political liberalization, a return to traditional Islamic values in this overwhelmingly Moslem nation and an end to what they say is domination by the West.

The shah has long maintained close relations with the United States and other Western nations. After Saudi Arabia, Iran is the biggest exporter of oil in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, providing about 10 percent of U.S. oil imports. It is strategically situated between the Soviet Union and the Persian Gulf, through which most of the world's oil exports pass.

Iran's last military government held sway in 1953, when Gen. Fazlullah Zahedi took over following the overthrow of Mohammed Mossadegh.

In an impassioned 10-minute radio address to the nation today, the shah pledged that "unlawful actions, cruelty and corruption are things of the past and will soon be removed at any cost." He explained his decision to appoint Azhari by saying:

"The killings and chaos in many parts of the country reached such a stage as to endanger the country's independence. The deplorable events of Sunday, which set the capital on fire, caused the resignation of the government. In order to prevent further unrest and killings, and in order to establish law and order, I tried my best to establish a coalition government, but it did not work. Therefore, I was compelled to appoint a temporary military government."

The shah's decision also was believed a last-ditch attempt to preserve the monarchy. The rioters who rampaged through Tehran over the weekend had shouted, "Death to the shah," the imperial ruler who has run Iran for 37 years.

Immediate opposition reaction to the military takeover was restrained. Tehran's top Moslem leader, Ayatullah

Taleghani, blamed government provocateurs for the arson and chaos in the streets and called on the people to avoid confrontation with security forces "in view of the fact that unpredictable situations are about to take place and in order to prevent ... bloodshed."

Darius Forohar, a spokesman for the National Front opposition coalition, said the shah's "specialty is chaos" and called on the people to stay united and "not to surrender to illogical incitements."

Azhari, a 61-year-old, four-star general, has been chief of staff of Iran's armed forces since 1971. He graduated from I-

Graham Says Nothing Special About Him

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Billy Graham, who will turn 60 on Tuesday, says there is nothing special about him despite 40 years of preaching throughout the world and vows he will continue to preach until he dies.

Graham, hailed as Charlotte's most famous son at a 60th birthday party held over the weekend and attended by about 600 church leaders and businessmen, said he has no special contact with God other than that of a "sinner that has been saved with grace."

"I do not know why God chose me to use me in the way he has," the slim evangelist told a news conference Saturday afternoon. "I have received a great deal more credit than I deserve."

But there's no question Graham is recognized around the world, largely due to a quarter-century of mammoth televised crusades.

"One of the highlights of my entire life was preaching the Gospel in Poland," he said of his recent crusade in that East European nation.

Graham said he looks forward to preaching in other Communist countries.

"There's a spiritual hunger today," he said. "The entire world has opened up."

Graham said despite record contributions to his ministry this year, the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association probably will record a deficit because of inflation.

"We'll probably go in the red by a couple of million dollars," he said, but pledged to cut back on television and radio broadcasts rather than ever let his ministry go in debt.

Graham's well-tanned face was covered with smiles Saturday night as he renewed old acquaintances and listened to more than a dozen speakers praise him for his distinguished career.

"He's like a piece of glass you can look through because he's honest all the way through," said Dr. Harold Lindsell, editor of the evangelical magazine "Christianity Today." "He has never been a money grabber. He is a man of God who's God's man."

Although Graham has said in the past he would likely reduce the number of crusades in future years, he said he has had a most demanding schedule this year and next, with requests for enough crusades to keep him busy for a decade.

"I have no plans whatsoever to retire," Graham said. "I plan to go right on and preach the Gospel."

Picture Board Idea Easy To Make, Fun To Play

By SHARI LEWIS

When I first came across this Stick-A-Picture idea, I thought,

"What a nice thing for a baby sitter to take along." Then I had so much fun playing with the board, I realized that you might like to make one and hang it in your room to dabble with on lazy days.

Cover a cardboard (a shirt cardboard or the bottom of a carton) with a sheet of sandpaper. Glue the sandpaper over the board. (You can cover a square of wood instead, if you can lay your hands on one.) Attach a loop of strong string to the top of the board so you can hang your Stick-A-Picture on the wall.

The amazing fact is that you can make all kinds of string pictures and designs on your board with colored yarn or string that will stick to the sandpaper. When you are bored with one outline picture, pull it off and make another. You'll find that shapes cut out of felt (squares, triangles, circles etc.) will stick to the sandpaper, too, and they are fun to put together in to different instant pictures.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible

Luke 4:36-44, The Living Bible

36 Amazed, the people asked, "What is in this man's words that even demons obey Him?"

37 The story of what He had done spread like wildfire throughout the whole region.

38 After leaving the synagogue that day, He went to Simon's home where He found Simon's mother-in-law very sick with a high fever. "Please heal her," everyone begged.

39 Standing at her bedside, He spoke to the fever, rebuking it, and immediately her temperature returned to normal and she got up and prepared a meal for them!

40 As the sun went down that evening, all the villagers who had sick people in their homes, no matter what their diseases were, brought them to Jesus; and the touch of His hands healed everyone!

41 Some were possessed by demons; and the demons came out at His command, shouting, "You are the Son of God!" But He stopped them and told them to be silent, because they knew He was the Christ.

42 Early the next morning He went out into the desert. The crowds searched for Him everywhere, and when they finally found Him, they begged Him not to leave them, but to stay at Capernaum.

43 But He replied, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God in other places too, for that is why I was sent."

44 So He continued to travel around, preaching in synagogues throughout Judea.

Bilateral Command Ready

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The United States and South Korea will activate their Combined Forces Command on Tuesday, and Defense Secretary Harold Brown called the move "a most significant step" for an effective joint defense.

Brown flew in today to attend a ceremony to inaugurate the bilateral high command, designed to improve the defense of South Korea against North Korea in connection with the American pullout of ground combat troops.

He said in an arrival statement that the activation "demonstrates the resolve of our two nations to preserve defense adequately, to deter aggression and contribute to peace and stability in Northeast Asia."

The new command will be led by Gen. John W. Vessey Jr., who is to retain the posts of commander of all American forces in Korea and the United Nations' command.

His deputy in the new command will be a Korean four-star general and staff members will be equally provided by the two countries.

The two allies agreed to form the command last year when Brown was here to attend an annual security consultative conference mainly to discuss the proposed American pullout and ways to compensate for the withdrawal. American air and naval elements are supposed to be left in place.

No-Fault Opponents Contribute Heavily

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group favoring enactment of national no-fault auto insurance legislation says lawyers opposed to the measure have spent more than $1 million since 1975 to support political candidates who share their views.

The Committee for Consumers No-Fault says it based the conclusion on a study of federal records filed by the political action committee of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, which opposes no-fault auto insurance.

Housing Officials Think Price Rise To Continue

By JOHN CUNIFF

DALLAS (AP) — Don't wait for the prices of existing homes to come down.

That's the bad news for buyers, and good news for owners and sellers, that emerged from talks with housing and lending officials who gathered here last week.

What they said — that prices will continue to rise — makes poor reading for would-be homeowners who had hoped to see some price deflation, or at least a less swift increase.

It makes poor reading in Washington too, where the Carter administration and the Federal Reserve Board acted with all their might in an effort to contain persistent and damaging inflation.

While holding to their forecasts of rising prices, the lenders nevertheless commended the Washington efforts.

A. A. Milligan, immediate past president of the American Bankers Association, said of the White House-Federal Reserve anti-inflation program, "It hits the inflation mule over the head."

Most of them also forecast a quick upward impact on lending rates and increasingly more difficult terms for borrowers.

"We'll feel the full impact within one month to six weeks," said Joseph Benedict, new president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, which held its annual meeting through much of the week.

Nevertheless, they said, existing home prices should remain almost immune and continue to rise to record-high levels. In August, the median price of existing homes rose to $50,300, exceeding $50,000 for the first time ever.

What will the median price be at this time next year? Tom Grant, president of the National Association of Realtors, said he doesn't expect much change in the rate of increase. He forecast a 12 percent rise to $56,000.

Sitting beside him at a news conference, Charles Pearce, chairman of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, nodded. "Prices will continue to rise," he said.

A newsman expressed doubt. Only the day before the Fed had left no question about its intention to drive up the cost of money and make it more difficult to lend and borrow.

"I personally feel the money will be available," Grant replied, expressing an optimism about housing that pervaded the convention. If money can be supplied, he said, sales will be strong.

His hopes, he indicated, were based on some fundamental changes which have strengthened underlying demand.

The homebuyer today is different, he said. People buy not only for shelter but for investment. Singles buy. Two men or women buy. "Not just young couples," he said.

He recalled it wasn't long ago when single women wouldn't even be considered for a mortgage. Times changed and so did people. They became willing to put more of their money into living well. Housing once accounted for 25 percent of income. Now it's often 35 percent or more.

Analysis

Attitudes toward the city changed also. Urban housing, even in decay, became sought after by young working couples who decided that having children could wait. They wanted first to enjoy city culture and recreation.

Inflation changed minds. People who had been renting found to their chagrin that they had little protection against rising rents and prices in general. Home ownership, they felt, offered a partial solution.

"It isn't a temporary phenomenon," said Grant of the enlarged housing market. "It will last 10 or 12 or 18 years." He finished with a gesture that suggested it would continue indefinitely.

Underpinning the change are some demographic realities, statistics showing an expansion in the number of young people of home-buying age during the 1980s.

During the decade of the 1970s, for example, 32 million Americans will have reached the age of 30, an age at which many homebuyers enter the market. In the 1980s, that age category will swell to 42 million.

It is for reasons such as these that Grant, Benedict and others remain optimistic overall, even if some problems could develop for awhile.

Kent Hance.

When Kent Hance began work in the Texas Senate, he did not sit on the sidelines like most freshman Senators. He sponsored Legislation to remove a State Supreme Court Judge from office following his indictment for perjury. He led the fight in the Senate trial to impeach a District Judge from Duval County for misconduct in office. This was the first such trial in more than 30 years, and was the first major effort to clean up corruption in Duval County. He sponsored measures to remove the Senate's top employee for questionable conduct.

Wherever Kent Hance found waste in government, he acted. He sponsored and passed into law "sunset legislation" that abolishes state agencies on a periodic basis unless they are re-established by the Legislature. This helps to keep agencies from getting out of hand, and to eliminate those that are no longer needed. He made welfare fraud or food stamp fraud a felony in Texas.

In his four-year term, Kent Hance never missed a day in the Senate's five sessions, regular and special. In four of those five sessions he didn't miss a vote. In the fifth, he had a 96% voting record.

In Congress, Kent Hance will continue this kind of representation where it is needed most... at the Federal level. Kent Hance has proved that when he sees evidence of corruption, waste or inefficiency in government he does not look the other way... HE ACTS. West Texas needs Kent Hance in Congress.

Let's make sure the man we send to Congress is the man with qualifications we can measure—and count on... !

College Flood Survivors Show Strong Faith In Adjustment

TOCCOA, Ga. (AP) — People who survived a 30-foot wall of water that churned through a tiny Bible college a year ago today are in better mental shape than victims of similar disasters, say researchers who credit their adjustment to religious faith and money.

Toccoa Falls College was devastated and 39 persons drowned, including 20 children of married students or faculty members — when the Kelley Barnes dam collapsed at 1:30 a.m. Nov. 6, 1977. The loss in personal and school property was estimated at $1.5 million.

Dr. Ronald Nuttall, director of the Laboratory for Statistical and Policy Research at Boston College, studied the survivors of the dam failure and flood. He also studied the psychological reactions of those who experienced similar disasters in New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

"On the whole, the people at Toccoa Falls came out very well," Nuttall said in an interview. "They were in better mental health than the other communities we studied, who, for the most part, were not hit as hard."

"Their very strong religious commitment gave them an understanding and an explanation for what had happened to them, which the people in the other communities did not have," he said. "Because of Toccoa, we had to change our theory about psychological reaction to disaster to include cultural values," he added.

Nuttall, whose study was funded by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said the second factor in the survivors' adjustment was money.

"Almost no one at Toccoa Falls lost his job because of the flood. There was a great outpouring of assistance and the victims were, for the most part, able to replace their possessions," he said.

"Everyone who suffered loss and is capable of rebuilding has received better than 85 percent of what they lost in cash and goods," said Jim Grant, the college's director of public affairs.

The losses were made good with the help of about $1.25 million in private contributions from some 5,500 donors throughout the nation, Grant said. The college is rebuilding with the help of $1.9 million in federal replacement grants.

Toccoa Falls College also is in good psychological shape, he added.

"You have to remember that at the time of the flood, we had about 425 students and about 60 or 70 on the staff, half of whom were trained, qualified ministers and counselors," Grant said.

Nuttall said Toccoa College was "almost like a therapeutic community" after the flood. He said some of the survivors sought outside counseling, but most did not.

The disaster prompted state and federal officials to demand investigations and propose stricter regulations for dam safety. But as the college buried its dead, survivors expressed faith that the tragedy somehow was part of a divine plan.

"People (outside the college) couldn't understand why there wasn't more sorrow, more suffering, more crying out," said Thurman Kemp, 41, a theology student whose 7-year-old son, Chris, drowned. "But they didn't understand that there aren't any coincidences with God. Things happen with a purpose."

That belief, according to Nuttall, allowed the Toccoa survivors to avoid the hostility felt by most victims of natural disasters.

"The people at Toccoa were far easier to deal with than those in the other communities," he said. "They were helpful and friendly and less hostile. And disaster generates a lot of hostility."

"The 'blaming factor' — you got a lot less of that at Toccoa," Nuttall continued. "They already knew who was responsible — God."

Four Persons Die In Plane Mishap

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Searchers today found the bodies of four people in the wreckage of a single-engine plane that crashed in a rainstorm Sunday night near Vassar, Kan., the highway patrol said.

The discovery of the plane in a clump of trees capped a massive search by state and local authorities that began shortly after the Beech Musketeer was reported missing about 8:30 p.m. Sunday. Although the bodies had not been positively identified, they were believed to be Topeka residents.

The plane was one of two returning to Topeka from Tulsa, Okla., and apparently crashed in what a trooper called "squalid" conditions.

Authorities said the four were believed to be Loren E. Parnell, an insurance agent, who piloted the plane; his wife, Donna; Marilyn Broxterman and his wife, Mary.

Accident Victim Still Serious

A 27-year-old man remained in serious condition today at Methodist Hospital suffering from injuries he received when he and another man were hit by a car about 10 p.m. Sunday in Plainview.

Ramiro Chavira of Silverton was struck by the car after he, the other man hit by the vehicle, and the driver of the car got into a fight, according to Plainview police Capt. Riley Rogers.

The driver, a 29-year-old South Plains man, was arrested about 2 a.m. Sunday after being released from Central Plains General Hospital in Plainview where he was treated for stab wounds, Rogers said.

The other man involved in the altercation, Jesse Morales, 43, of Silverton was listed in fair condition today at the Plainview hospital.

Rogers said the men reportedly got into a fight while all three were in the car, and the driver was stabbed. Chavira and Morales then jumped out of the vehicle and were subsequently run down by the car, Rogers said.

Rogers said he did not know what started the fight. The driver of the vehicle was not identified, pending filing of formal charges.

City Eligible For Funding

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has announced Lubbock will be eligible to receive $1.1 million in federal funds for public transit systems during the current fiscal year.

Cities in Texas will be eligible to receive a total of $59.7 million in the transit funds.

Bentsen said the funds may be used either for operating expenses or capital expenses. "Each city, however, will be required to use a set amount of the funds it receives on buses, as opposed to some other form of transit," he said.

Each city must apply for the available funds, Bentsen said.

City transit coordinator John Wilson said he had expected $1.5 million to be allocated for Lubbock, but added that shouldn't create any insurmountable problems providing the city receives the okay for two federal grants it has requested.

Of the $1.1 million, Wilson said the city should spend $430,000 on operating expenses, and the remainder will be used for capital improvements such as buses.

HANCE

Kent Hance, 35, currently is the District 28 state senator. He is a graduate of Texas Tech University and the University of Texas School of Law. He is an attorney and a Democrat.

BUSH

George Bush, 32, is an independent oil and gas producer in Midland. He is a Republican and a native of New Haven, Conn., and received degrees from Yale and Harvard universities.

What experience and/or training do you have which qualifies you for this office?

My experience as state senator for the last four years has enabled me to learn the intricacies of the legislative process. Too, it has fully familiarized me with the problems of the people of this district. Having practiced law and taught business law, I know how to draft legislation that will minimize governmental regulation in achieving the desired results. My farm background, coupled with my present interests in farming and cattle, gives me a sound understanding of the problems facing agriculture. Having been active in homebuilding for the past several years, I am fully aware that today's small businessman is over-regulated. Unnecessary governmental regulation adds to costs, and thus fuels inflation.

I was raised in West Texas. After my graduation from Yale, and later from the Harvard Business School, and after my military service as an F-102 pilot, I returned to Midland to start my own business. Because of my business experience, I understand the problems of producers of the first resort, of balancing a budget, of overregulation and too much interference by the federal government. I know that a small businessman has to have proper incentives in order to go into business and stay in business. I also gained a good working knowledge of the energy business — an industry vital to West Texas and the nation. Finally, I have been exposed throughout much of my life to national politics, and have many good friends in Washington, in both political parties.

How would you propose to curb spiraling inflation?

I would propose a constitutional amendment to prohibit deficit spending. A balanced budget makes sound fiscal sense, so I would work steadily toward this end. I also would seek "sunset legislations" that would allow Congress to abolish federal agencies on a periodic basis unless such agencies were re-established by law. Two areas of the federal appropriations bill that need immediate trimming are HEW and OSHA. Finally, to balance the budget, we must have an across-the-board percentage reduction in the budget. I personally think that the dollar should be backed by an exchange rate with some type of gold base. This would provide stability, and would help to keep the dollar from getting weaker.

Congress must balance the budget by reducing the rate of federal spending while providing tax relief to the private sector (such as lowering the capital gains tax) in order to expand the tax base. We must produce our way out of inflation — not try to spend our way out. The rate of money growth must be reduced as the budget deficit shrinks. We must decrease costly government regulations through zero-based budgeting. We need a strong commitment by our government to cure inflation through a policy of fiscal soundness. This will strengthen the U.S. dollar abroad and reduce psychological expectations of inflation at home.

What measures would you support to solve the problem of illegal aliens currently in this country and of those who enter the U.S. daily?

Working bilaterally, the United States and Mexico must arrive at fair and reasonable solutions to the growing problem of illegal aliens. We must establish ad hoc joint commissions of a citizens advisory nature to find the proper solutions to this matter. Since the farmers of this district are acutely affected by the supply of agricultural labor, I want agriculture to have strong representation on these commissions. In the end, we must protect the jobs of American workers, while granting temporary work permits to aliens needed to fill those jobs that cannot be met by the domestic labor supply.

There is no easy short-run cure to the illegal alien problem. So long as the large wage disparity exists between Mexico and the United States, aliens will continue to seek employment in our job markets. Our government must recognize the reality of the problem and press for policies that encourage Mexico to share the burden of her people. We must convince Mexico to invest her petroleum industry profits in a program that will provide better jobs for Mexican citizens.

How much and what sort of a tax cut would you favor? Should any such cut be accompanied by income tax reform?

I favor an across-the-board tax cut, with a significant percentage benefitting those people earning from $12,000 to $50,000 annually. But in reducing taxes, we must also cut government spending so that the federal deficit will not spiral. Irresponsible tax-cutting without simultaneous reduction of government spending could produce disastrous results. As for tax reform, we need measures to insure that persons with massive incomes do not escape paying any income taxes whatsoever.

I have supported the Kemp-Roth tax bill — a 33 1/3 percent tax cut over a three-year period. My support is conditional on a reduction of federal spending in the first year so as to avoid an inflationary surge that could wipe out the benefits of the tax cut. I also support the Steiger Amendment, a bill setting the capital gains tax rate at 25 percent. I favor tax reform that would simplify the Internal Revenue Code. But, I do not favor some of the tax reform proposals of the Carter administration, which, while well-intentioned, could result in destroying necessary incentives for capital investment, and which also could eliminate hundreds of thousands of jobs.

What, if anything, should the federal government do to help Americans cope with rising health costs? Do you favor a national health insurance program like that proposed by U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy?

The federal government should encourage state governments to enact Hospital Facilities Commissions to coordinate health functions and to reduce duplication of expensive medical equipment. By effectively utilizing the trained medical personnel and the equipment that we now have available, we can greatly reduce waste in health care. I do not favor a national health insurance program such as that supported by Senator Kennedy.

The federal government should balance the budget to slow the rate of inflation, and its resultant effect on the cost of health care. I do not favor the administration's hospital cost containment bill. I do not support the Kennedy health care plan. It is far too expensive, it would create a whole new bureaucracy, and it would lower the quality of health care. I do favor the concept of a catastrophic health care plan financed in the private sector with a premium sharing feature for Americans not covered by health insurance.

Do you favor giving American farmers 100 percent of parity? If so, how should parity be achieved?

I would like to see farmers realize 100 percent of parity through the market place. But so far, the market place has not produced desired results. Therefore, I favor the Nolan Bill, calling for 100 percent of parity for farm products, as a strong starting point from which to present agriculture's position. Also, I think present loan prices should be increased because the market tends to follow the loan price. We should expand our farm exports, but they should be exports with adequate prices. If we export without obtaining a just price, we might as well dump the farm products into the ocean.

Parity should be achieved in the market place. We need to increase demand for our products by expanding our exports at a fair price to the producer. We must get the State Department out of the marketing of U.S. farm products. I favor the concept of the Dole bill to encourage a meaningful reduction in supply. I favor the reduction of government interference in agriculture from agencies such as OSHA. I favor measures to reduce the power of the president to import beef and to enact agricultural embargoes.

What effect will your party affiliation have on your effectiveness in Congress?

As a Democrat, I will be in the majority on every committee on which I serve. Thus, I will have input and can influence legislation as it is being shaped by the committee majority. As my record in the state senate reflects, I will not follow any strict "party line." Instead, I will work independently for the best interests of the people of my district.

Given the nature of the current Congress, I feel party affiliation is crucial. Certainly one party is not all good, the other all bad, but the record of current leadership in the House indicates that we need more balance in the Congress. West Texas needs a congressman who won't be obligated to "go along to get along" with the Democratic leadership which runs the Congress. Effectiveness in Congress depends greatly on one's relationship within his party. Since my party is more philosophically in line with the thinking of West Texans, I can work with my party, vote my convictions, and gain influence all at the same time. We need a philosophical change in Washington. We don't need more of the current majority party.

New Ballot Panels Ready For Use

GALVESTON (AP) — Galveston County officials said hastily prepared ballot panels were ready to be placed on voting machines today, following a federal judge's order to discard the old ballots only days before Tuesday's general election.

U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue threw out the county's ballots Friday because candidates' names were printed in different styles of type. The judge scheduled another hearing at 9 a.m. today to see if county officials were able to prepare new ballots in time to hold the election with the rest of the state.

Galveston County Judge C. Ray Holbrook said the extra expense was $5,000 to $6,000.

Two campaign workers for U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, had filed the federal court suit.

The Republican candidates' names on the old ballots were printed in Gothic type. Candidates for the Democratic, Socialist Workers and La Raza Unida parties were in Roman type.

The suit filed by Ken Towery, Tower's state campaign manager, and Sid Farmer

Women Ensigns Break Navy's Long Tradition

By PHILIP PULLELLA
United Press International Writer
 With all eyes on the gangplanks as if they were beauty pageant runways, eight ensigns, their hair tucked neatly under blue uniform caps, shattered tradition by becoming the first women to report for active duty on U.S. naval vessels.

"It was all eyes. I could feel them on me," said Ensign Charlene Albright, 26, after she boarded the guided-missile ship USS Norton Sound in Long Beach, Calif. Wednesday. "But everyone has been extremely friendly."

They were the first females in the service's 203-year history to report for duty aboard other than hospital or transport ships.

Breaking the centuries-old "men only" tradition will mean changes for the men, who now will have to look over their shoulders before using certain phrases or walking out of bathrooms after showers.

"They told us to get rid of our dirty magazines and clean up our language," said David Hunter, a 19-year-old serving on the USS Vulcan in Norfolk, Va.

"Some of the guys who have been in the Navy for a long time don't like the idea of women coming aboard," he said. "But most of the younger guys approve. It should be interesting."

"Interesting" is where some sailor's wives hope it will end. Some fear close quarters and long hauls at sea will be ripe ground for romantic relations.

But Miss Albright, of Glenrock, Pa., says relations will be strictly professional.

"There's a certain type of person that could do this — one who won't be intimidated by typical stereotypes," she said.

"When I walked on the ship they saluted me and they carried my bags to my cabin, but they would do that for any officer."

Miss Albright, an electronics materials officer, will supervise nine men. She predicted working relations will be a little strained at first.

"But I think it will wear off quickly," she said. "Just because this hasn't been done before, doesn't mean it can't be done."

USS Vulcan Capt. Harry Spencer, whose 780-member ship now includes Ensigns Mary Carrol, 23, of Roanoke, Va., and Jo Anne Carlton, 23, of Lynchburg, Va., said the change will improve the service.

"Men will work hard not to be outdone by women, and women will work hard to prove themselves," he said. "Overall, it will make for a better Navy."

The five women who boarded ships in Norfolk, however, found that not all is equal. In fact, they found certain conditions tipped in their favor.

They were assigned 10-foot by 12-foot staterooms and private baths.

But on the submarine tender USS Dixon in San Diego, where Ensigns Macushla McCormick, 23, of Selah, Wash., and Roberta McIntyre, 23, of Charlotte, N.C., are officers, the only change is the sign above a toilet that now reads "women officers head."

Miss McIntyre will serve as an assistant navigator aboard the Dixon, but she made it clear she doesn't intend to stop there.

Asked if she would ever like to be skipper of a ship, she replied, "Sure, I'll go for it."

Ensigns Linda Crockett, 23, of Paterson, N.J., and Linda Day, 23, of Virginia Beach, Va., are aboard the 1,100-member submarine tender USS Spear. Ensign Elizabeth Bres, 22, of Alexandria, La., is on the 1,800-member USS Puget Sound, a destroyer tender.

Fifty-three other women officers and 375 enlisted women will report for duty in the next year aboard 21 non-combat ships in the Atlantic and Pacific fleets.

"Until the novelty wears off, the men are going to sit back and see what happens," Miss Albright said. "The men won't quite know how to react to having a woman aboard."

Miss Albright, who says she is not engaged and doesn't have a boyfriend, was described by her new shipmates as a "beauty."

"The ship's in good shape. The ensign is in great shape," one sailor said.

Corporation Of Young Artists Reviving Ancient Sea Craft

By LESLIE LA ROCHE
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Scrimshaw: to waste time in idle pursuits.

That was the original meaning of the word referring to a 300-year-old craft in which shipbound sailors and whalers passed the time carving scenes from their world on shells, ivory and whalebone, the natural "canvas" of the sea.

But the delicate centuries-old art is in its renaissance in the gifted hands of Jim Sorensen and craftsmen like him who have revived scrimshaw "for those who can appreciate the real beauty of nature."

Sorensen is in a community of talented young artists involved in the "Ancient Ivory" company, a corporation devoted almost entirely to scrimshaw.

The firm uses only 20,000-year-old fossil ivory mined by Eskimos and traders in Alaska and other parts of the frozen north. Only ancient materials are used because, Sorensen said, "There would be no beauty if it meant you had to kill."

"Ancient Ivory" has expanded the focus of scrimshaw from the original great ships and scenes of the sea to roses, wildlife, of which Sorensen is most fond, and other aspects of nature.

The rarity of the natural raw "canvas" adds as much to the beauty and value of each piece as the detailed artistry that adorns it. And the Bellingham, Wash., firm has found a strong market for its creations among the wealthy.

But Sorensen and his colleagues don't want merely to cater to the rich. So they're bringing their "heirlooms of the future" to the general public in a series of shows across the country.

Sorensen, 27 and a Fremont, Neb., native, has a sales approach that is high-powered only in his enthusiasm and love for his art and the people who enjoy it.

"We don't pitch," Sorensen said. "I really feel we're bringing this art to the people to enjoy, not to get their money. We do the work. There is no mass production. Each piece is one of a kind. There is no other exactly like it in the world."

Sorensen is nearly as unique as his calling and his scrimshaw creations, more artist than art.

His drawings and carvings are free-hand and generally based on nature, most of them wildlife. Among his first creations was a great, stately owl. Others depict lions and gentler creatures, the hunted and the contented.

"It's a great challenge to bring an animal to life in drawing," Sorensen said. "I like to give each one expression... so people know what he's thinking at that moment... whether he's content, or poised and ready to pounce... or maybe just studying them as closely as they study him."

"It's really just whatever I have in my head at the moment. You'll find that a person will see a piece (of scrimshaw). And the animal or the scene really says something to him. Everything clicks. He's found his work of art. And I have done what I set out to do... made him happy."

Louisiana's Forests In Trouble

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Arsonists, a month-long drought and just plain careless people combined to destroy 8,352 acres of state woodland in 1,000 separate fires throughout Louisiana in October, and the worst may be yet to come.

October normally signals the start of a six-month forest fire danger season in the state, but an unusual lack of rain has turned the state's 14.5 million acres of forest into a virtual tinderbox.

"We are averaging 35 to 55 fires a day which we can handle but the potential is real great for a real bad fire situation," said State Forester D.L. McFatter. "All the elements are there except the wind right now."

Average rainfall in the state last month was 1.1 inches, compared with a normal rainfall at this time of year of 2.9 inches.

Unusually low rainfall in October inevitably has led to extremely high numbers of forest fires in the past 30 years, said McFatter.

"What I'm afraid of right now is that we are in worst shape, with exception of the wind, than we were February a year ago when we had over 300 fires in one day and lost 13,000 acres in the same day."

"If we have a build up of the wind, with the low humidity and dryness of the fields we could have the same thing right now."

To combat the threat forest firefighters man 104 towers around the state and use spotter airplanes for quick detection of fires.

Fires have been igniting all over the state, McFatter said, but so far there have been no major ones. The fires generally are caused by people who let trash fires get out of control, and by arsonists.

"Our biggest problem is not debris burning but arson," he said. "I think it is a real shame that the 13 southern states account for quite a bit over 50 percent of the nation's fires, and a large percentage of those are arson-caused."

Arsonists may start forest fires simply by throwing matches into brush or may use a "slow match," said Beverly Griffin, assistant director of fire prevention in the Office of Forestry. They tie matches to a smoldering rope or cigarette to give them time to get far away before the matches ignite.

"They just don't realize what they are doing," he said. "I guess it stems from the fact that timber over the years has been so abundant. But it's not abundant today, and they just don't realize this fact."

Griffin said the state needed a general rain of one-half inch to one inch to reduce the fire danger.

Americans Eat Non-Essentials

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The "30 to 40 percent" of Americans who eat improperly don't feel any immediate symptoms, but the price may be bad health 20 years later, according to a leading nutrition expert.

"They are likely to suffer the consequences of disease unless they remedy their eating habits," University of California nutrition professor George Briggs told a health seminar Saturday.

Briggs said the effects of poor eating often appears in the form of "softening of the bones, diabetes, heart disease or other nutrition-related disease." He said the biggest nutritional problem facing Americans today is that they dilute their diets with "empty calories."

"Unfortunately, 18 percent of the calories in the American diet comes from isolated fats, another 17 percent from purified sugars and an additional 16 percent from white flour," he said. "Only about 50 percent of our total diet comes from the basic four food groups — milk, meat, vegetables and fruits, and breads and cereals. This does not include white flour."

What it all means, said Briggs, "is that 50 percent of our diet is non-essential foods. Studies have shown that when you dilute your diet by 25 percent, you begin to run into health problems."

Times, Daily News Hit New York Streets

By TOM CRANE
NEW YORK (AP) — The Daily News, greeting readers with the front-page headline "HELLO THERE, REMEMBER US?" and The New York Times, looking as though it had never been away, hit the streets today for the first time in 89 days.

Presses at the two morning dailies began to roll after the last of an array of unions approved contract agreements, and the first copies were on newsstands by 3 a.m.

The News, which put out a relatively large edition of 176 pages, said it printed its normal press run of two million copies, the largest circulation in the country.

The Times, with a circulation of almost 900,000, is the third largest in the country after the News and the Los Angeles Times. Its front page looked much like any other day's, with stories on Tuesday's election, riots in Iran, border clashes between China and Vietnam — and the end of the newspaper strike, which at one time also involved the afternoon New York Post.

The Times — which boasts of covering "All the News That's Fit to Print" — published a nine-page summary of the big events it missed: the brief reign of Pope John Paul I, the election of Pope John Paul II, the Camp David accord and the Yankees' World Series baseball triumph.

The stereotypers were the first of four unions to ratify new contracts Sunday.

Pressmen, paperhandlers and machinists followed with quick approval of three-year pacts. The Newspaper Guild unit at The Times, which began a strike Saturday, followed suit early today.

All the new contracts call for pay increases of $68 a week over the duration of the contracts.

The strike began Aug. 9, when the publishers posted new work rules for the press rooms. The rules were designed to cut press room jobs by attrition to enable the city papers to compete with suburban dailies vying for much of the same readership and advertising revenue.

The pressmen objected to the cuts and walked out, closing down the Times, the News and the Post and idling 10,000 workers in 11 unions.

The Post pulled out of joint negotiations in the eighth week of the strike, worked out "me-too" agreements with its unions and resumed publication Oct. 5.

Ten of the 11 newspaper unions had been without contracts at the three newspapers since March 30.

The strike caused losses of more than $100 million in advertising revenue and allowed suburban newspapers to further encroach on the market. Surveys showed that most businesses did not suffer, although it remains to be seen whether the strike will cause any lasting damage to the newspapers.

The pressmen union's new contract guarantees work for all 1,508 members until 1984, while at the same time allowing publishers to reduce manning to levels commensurate with those of press-rooms of competitors in the suburbs.

Howard Elected To Council

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. M. William Howard, the youngest person ever chosen to head the National Council of Churches, says ecumenical efforts should lead to "unity but not to sameness."

Howard, 32, a black Baptist minister and specialist on racial justice who grew up in Americus, Ga. — not far from President Carter's hometown of Plains — was elected Saturday to a three-year term as president of the nation's largest ecumenical body.

"Our ecumenical journey is a journey which leads to unity but not to sameness," Howard, now of Princeton, N.J., said in his installation speech as the council's 252-member governing board ended its three-day meeting.

The council comprises 31 denominations and has about 40 million members.

Howard, who succeeded William Thompson, chief executive of the United Presbyterian Church, is an urbane American Baptist clergyman who heads the Black Council in another denomination, the Reformed Church in America.

Thompson said Howard's youth, "rather than being a drawback is a sign of hope."

"He is known not only in the United States but (over) the world as a distinguished churchman," Thompson said.

RICHER CHINESE HARVEST

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Despite severe droughts in some provinces, China is expecting a richer harvest this year than in 1977, a Yugoslav report from Peking said Sunday. The report, by the Tanjug news agency, said the favorable harvest is the result of the well-developed irrigation system in the country and timely measures against the drought.

BOB KRUEGER WILL MAKE TEXANS PROUD.

ROLL CALL, THE NEWSPAPER OF CAPITOL HILL, September 2, 1976: "Respected. It's the one word that best describes the sentiment on Capitol Hill for Rep. Robert C. Krueger. . . . Krueger was named as the most effective freshman Democrat in the House.

"Clearly. . . a many of uncommon character and ability."

THE TEXAS MONTHLY, June, 1976: "Rookie of the Year. . . . No one else is even close."

INDEPENDENT CATTLEMEN, July, 1976: "U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels has earned an outstanding reputation as an effective member of the House.

"The rise of Krueger's star on the Washington scene might well have been predicted by anyone taking a close look at his own record of accomplishing his goals and at his family's long history of achievements."

DALLAS TIMES HERALD, August 20, 1975, Felix McKnight: ". . . he has earned unusual respect from fellow Democrats and Republicans alike for perceptive thinking, and action on the big issues — notably the energy problems."

SAN ANGELO STANDARD, July 31, 1976, In Our Opinion: "Rep. Krueger is fast becoming a forceful voice in Congress. His rise to prominence is remarkable for a freshman congressman. And it is not just his face, name, district or doctoral degree which is earning him his reputation. Although those facets of Rep. Krueger do help make up the individual man, more importantly he knows how to do his homework...he listens to his constituency and attempts to solve their problems."

THE NEW YORK TIMES, May 2, 1976, David Rosenbaum: "Men and women who have been around Congress for years say they cannot remember another freshman House member gaining such stature in such a short time."

I intend to vote for lower taxes November 7.

With living costs so high, I need every tax break I can get. You can be sure I'll vote for the Tax Relief Amendment in the general election—and urge all my friends to do the same.

If the amendment passes, I can stop paying taxes on my private car and all other personal effects. I also will qualify for a $5,000 homestead exemption from school property taxes.

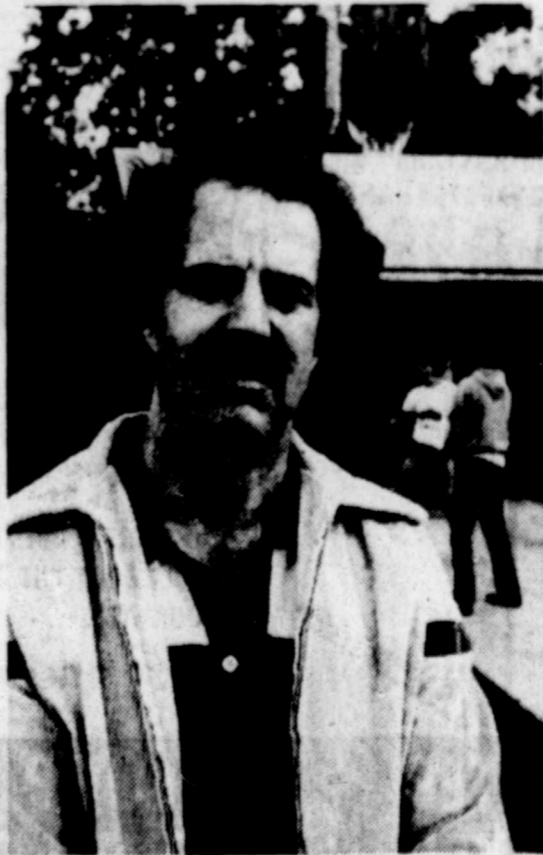

The amendment would do some other things I'm in favor of, too, like providing truth-in-taxation procedures and putting a ceiling on state spending.

Most important to me right now, though, are smaller tax bills. That would be welcome news for me AND my budget.

This is the Tax Relief Amendment as it will appear on your ballot:

"The constitutional amendment providing for tax relief for residential homesteads, elderly persons, disabled persons and agricultural land; for personal property exemptions; for truth in taxation procedures, including citizen involvement; for a redefinition of the tax base; for limitations on state spending; and for property tax administration."

Vote for Tax Relief.

DR. LAMB

Enjoy Those Oranges

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband, 73, and I, 65, have been eating oranges or grapefruit for breakfast right along. Now I hear we should not be eating citrus fruits because we both have osteoarthritis. Is it true and are there any foods that make it worse?

We have a rowing exerciser and would like to know if it is all right to use when we have arthritis in the back, hips and knees. Could we be irritating the arthritis more? We got it in the winter when it was difficult for us to get out and walk much for exercise.

DEAR READER — That's wild. There is nothing in citrus fruits that will irritate arthritis. In fact, if anything, they might help. Go ahead and enjoy your oranges and grapefruits and ignore anyone who tells you they are harmful for your arthritis because they certainly are not.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-10, Osteoarthritis: Degenerative or Wear and Tear Arthritis, to give you more information on your problem.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. This issue also will tell you a number of things you will need to know about exercise and arthritis.

I wouldn't like to say specifically that you can use any particular exercise machine in the presence of your arthritis because I don't know how severe your arthritis is or what deformities it may have caused. Only your doctor, familiar with your own case, can tell you that.

There is a general misconception about exercise and arthritis. It isn't necessarily beneficial to your arthritis to do large amounts of exercise. The purpose of exercise, if you have arthritis, is to maintain the full range of mobility of all your joints and movement of your muscles.

Also, you hope to maintain a reasonable amount of your muscular strength. Otherwise, you really should rest the joints that are involved. A mild exercise routine that involves the full range of motion for all of your joints each day is useful. Excessive working of body parts may not be.

Swimming is good exercise for people with arthritis who can do it. The water helps to buoy the body and you don't have to bear the weight on the spine, hips and knees. It makes it easier for you to move your joints through a full range of motion. If you can't swim, you can do exercise in water which also will help you. Perhaps you can find a local indoor swimming pool that you can use during the winter months.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if not having enough potassium in your blood would make you have a heart attack? Can you give the foods that are high in potassium?

DEAR READER — A low potassium level in the heart cells may cause irregularities of the heart. Some of these are difficult to control. In severe cases, the irregularity can be fatal. Loss of potassium resulting from low carbohydrate diets is thought to be one of the factors in deaths associated with these fad diets.

If you eat a balanced diet, and are not taking medicines that would wash potassium out of your body, there isn't any reason that you should have a significant potassium deficit. Fruits and fruit juices are the most common good source of potassium in your diet.

There is a significant and useful amount of potassium in milk as well as sodium salt.

Windmills Available At Store

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Need a windmill? Solace Energy Centers store can get you an Australian-made model for $3,685. If you're in the market for wood-burning stoves, organic toilets or solar energy equipment, the store is the place to go.

The store, which opened in September, is operated by three friends who decided to pool their talents and interests in developing alternative energy sources.

Ed Martin, president of Solace Energy Centers Co., says there's more ideological significance to the store than simple capitalism at work.

"We want to make people aware how they are polluting the environment by using non-renewable resources," Martin said in a recent interview.

Martin said he and his partners spent a year researching alternative energy products before deciding what items to stock in their store.

"We compare laboratory tests for all the products we consider selling, so that everything has been lab tested," he said. "We want to be in business for a long time."

Company President Bob Isaac-Renton, an architect, and partner Vic Enns, an engineer, also will design and install alternative energy systems for customers.

The three, in their 20s and early 30s, are convinced that although the initial outlay for alternative energy may be higher than for non-renewable energy, such as oil and gas, the alternative systems will pay for themselves over a period of years.

Wandering through the store is like a visit to an international bazaar.

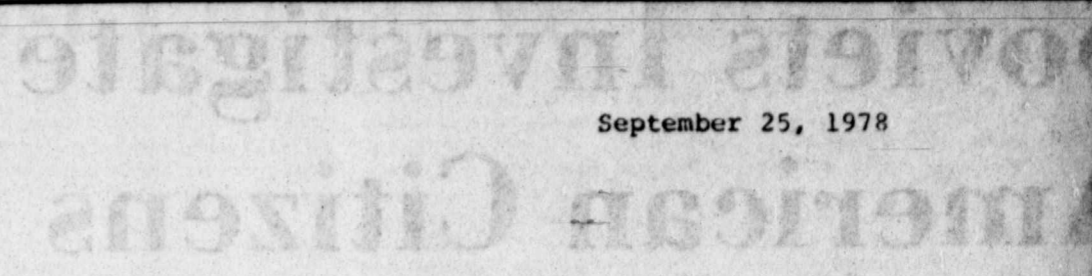

Wood-burning stoves come from Norway, Taiwan, Ireland, France and the United States; the organic toilets, which turn human wastes into compost, are from Sweden; and a water turbine is made here.

In solar energy, the store has everything from solar panels to the black paint used on solar collectors.

"We have tried to get a range of prices and equipment," said Isaac-Renton. "We're working on a package unit for domestic hot water that can be fitted onto any existing house."

The store has dozens of books about alternative energy and even sells solar kit toys for children.

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT TWO

LUBBOCK COUNTY, TEXAS

It has come to my attention that my good friend, Claude S. Cravens, is a candidate for Justice of the Peace of Precinct Two, Lubbock County, Texas, in the general election to be held in November 1978.

I have had the privilege of knowing him since we entered Texas Tech on the same day in 1934. Upon graduation there we went through law school together at the University of Texas in Austin. As a trial judge in Lubbock County from 1950 through 1959, I observed Mr. Cravens in court as an active attorney representing clients in a variety of cases, both civil and criminal. He has the legal and educational experience to serve in this important judicial office.

From my personal knowledge and observation, I have no hesitation to state that in my opinion Claude Cravens is qualified to serve as Justice of the Peace of Precinct Two in Lubbock County, Texas.

Yours very truly,

Soviets Investigate American Citizens

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities are holding a Chicago-area woman in a smuggling investigation, sources said today, and in a separate case have ordered a Moscow-based American businessman not to leave the country pending an inquiry into a traffic accident.

The unidentified woman is suspected of trying to smuggle jewelry and other valuables out of the country, the sources said. U.S. officials said the businessman, Leo P. Sonner, 32, of the Dow Chemical Corp., has been told he may not leave the Soviet Union because he was involved in a traffic accident a week ago and is needed for further questioning.

It appeared the smuggling case was a routine investigation. The order for the businessman to stay in the country seemed unusual to some Westerners here, but a Dow official in Austria said he considered it normal procedure. A U.S. Embassy spokesman declined to speculate about a connection between Sonner's case and the 50-year sentences handed to two Russians by a court in Newark, N.J., on conviction of espionage.

Carter administration officials have been quoted as saying Americans in Moscow could face retaliation for the espionage case and suggested the Soviets might manufacture cases against innocent Americans.

The unidentified middle-aged woman, reportedly from Morton Grove, Ill., has been held since Friday, the sources said. It was learned she had spent the month of October visiting relatives in Tbilisi, Georgia, on a tourist visa.

She reportedly was detained at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport as she was about to board a flight for an European city to meet her husband there. Sources say she has not been formally charged or arrested, but was being held at an airport transit hotel.

It was learned that Soviet customs officials claim they found large quantities of undeclared jewelry and other valuables in the woman's possession, but that she maintains these were gifts.

U.S. Embassy officials confirmed the woman's detention but refused to reveal any details about the case. A U.S. consular officer has been allowed to visit the woman at the airport since her detention.

Sonner, of Campbell, N.Y., arrived here in April 1977 as Dow's Moscow representative. He told the U.S. Embassy he was involved in an accident Oct. 30 in which a pedestrian walked or dashed into the side of his car. He said police questioned him at the scene, and the pedestrian was slightly injured.

The embassy was notified Saturday by the Ministry of Foreign Trade that Sonner would be needed for further questioning Thursday, officials said. The embassy was asked to ensure that Sonner not leave the country, they added.

Sonner told a reporter: "We are doing everything we can to be cooperative with Soviet officials while it goes on. It's a minor traffic situation."

"There is no harassment involved," said Philip Schneider, a spokesman at Dow headquarters in Midland, Mich. "We doubt that this is related to any other incident. The Russians are handling it as a routine traffic incident."

Lee Trentis of Dow's eastern regional office in Vienna said the company found the order for Sonner to stay in the Soviet Union "totally normal.... An accident is an accident and I think in any country a person is not allowed to leave the country until the investigation is completed."

an's war college and then went through several military courses in the United States. He is known as a top military administrator, is said to be extremely honest, has no business ties and is a devout Moslem.

Sharif-Emami, 69, was appointed prime minister on Aug. 27 with hopes that his close ties to Moslem leaders could end the bloodshed that has taken more than 1,000 lives since January. The shah also is Moslem, as are 90 percent of the country's 34 million citizens.

The ministers of education and higher education had resigned Sunday before the prime minister. In protest of the army's suppression of a student demonstration in Tehran Saturday, the government said three persons were killed and more than 80 injured, but student groups said the death toll was much higher.

The only newspaper published today was a four-page edition of Rastakhiz. The papers suppressed were the English-language Kayhan International and Tehran Journal, the French-language Journal de Tehran and the Persian-language Ayan-degan.

Security men outside the newspaper offices checked the identities of all reporters and editors, and witnesses said the agents seized about 30 of them and sent them to the military governor's office for interrogation and investigation.

Martial law authorities expanded the midnight-4:30 a.m. curfew to 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. and ordered all schools and universities in Tehran closed for a week. Few cars were on the streets due to gas shortages from a strike by 37,000 oil refinery workers. A million civil servants also remained off the job demanding political concessions from the government.

Bus drivers in the capital went on strike Sunday when rioters burned dozens of double-decker buses and injured many of the drivers. The drivers said they would remain off the job "until enough security is provided."

The rioters caused substantial destruction to banks, shops, restaurants, hotels, buses, cars, public and private buildings, and set fire to the four-story main chancery building of the British Embassy. The U.S. and Iraqi embassies were

Denver Octogenarian Will Vote Tuesday

DENVER (UPI) — It took a special effort, but Henry Gestefeld, 92, will be voting in Tuesday's election.

Gestefeld, of Denver, sent a postcard to the Denver Election Commission last week asking for an absentee ballot so he could vote in the general election.

"Please help me to vote," he wrote. "May be my last. I am 92 and very feeble."

Beki Pineda, administration secretary to the commission, sent off the absentee ballot.

threatened, but the rioters were driven back by soldiers and tanks.

The dissidents generally are conservative Moslems opposed to the shah's Western-style modernization of this traditional Islamic nation. Many also seek democratic reforms in the government, freedom for political prisoners and an end to two months of martial law. The government has promised to free most political prisoners next month.

However, efforts toward a political solution apparently faltered as the National Front, the opposition coalition, announced it had united with Ayatollah Khomeini, exiled leader of Iran's predominant Shiite Moslem sect.

In a statement issued in Tehran after several days of consultations in Paris between the National Front and Khomeini, the opposition said the shah ruled with "no legal and religious basis," and that the opposition "will not agree with the shape of any government as long as the illegal royal regime exists."

The statement said, "The present fight is a fight between the shah's regime, which seeks to keep Iran under American domination, and those who want their country to be independent of all foreign domination."

Khomeini was exiled for opposing reforms that diminished church land holdings, the granting of broader rights to women and a reduction in the power of Moslem leaders. Khomeini and other religious figures contend the reforms are in violation of the Koran, the Moslem holy book.

Singer Dolly Parton Seeking Wider Audience, Recognition appearance on the Grand Ole Opry and since she started singing duets with Porter Wagoner.

And in fact, it's Dolly's propensity for being her own woman that is currently raising a lot of eyebrows in Nashville. And they've been raised ever since she became the first woman to cross over the boundaries of country-and-western music and make a solid bid for pop superstardom.

Does that mean that Dolly has abandoned her roots? Has she left country to pursue success in the Sodom and Gomorrah of Hollywood and New York? Dolly claims she hasn't, but has she? And why should anyone care, as long as she makes it work?

But people do care. Artistically, there are some who question whether her new pop style is as valid as the style that gave her her start. Financially, it's hard to question — her latest album, "Here You Come Again," has "gone platinum" — selling a million — the first album by a woman country singer to even come near that mark. And others care because country music is a way of life as much as it is a musical form, and its heroes and heroines are idolized by their fans, not just as performers, but as people. Like soap opera stars, they become practically part of the family of their fans. And as such, like any other member of the family, they are expected to behave themselves, and play out the role that has been assigned to them.

And that Dolly Parton has refused to do. After being named Female Vocalist of the Year by the Country Music Assn. in both 1975 and 1976, she dropped her Nashville-based manager and hired the Hollywood manager firm of Katz, Gallin and Cleary, managers of Mac Davis, Donny and Marie Osmond, Cher, Tony Orlando and Dawn, Kate Smith and Olivia Newton-John.

Following that, in 1977, Dolly's career turned around with a suddenness that made people's heads spin.

She began making regular appearances on The Tonight Show and Hollywood Squares. She has just signed a three-movie deal with 20th-Century Fox. Earl Wilson makes jokes about her bustline. She not only has Katz, Gallin and Cleary as managers, she has a new Hollywood booking agency, a new band made up of non-Nashville musicians, and a pop-music producer for her new album. She is less likely to be mentioned these days with Loretta Lynn and Tammy Wynette as one of the big three of country and western music, more likely to be linked with Linda Ronstadt and Emmylou Harris as one of the big three of pop.

And yet she still claims sensitivity to, and kinship with, the folks she appears to be leaving behind. And she still seems repeatedly, as in this Country Music magazine interview (May, 1977), that she hasn't changed.

"I haven't turned my back on Nashville. I can't show them now that I haven't, but they'll see. They'll know. I will be able to do more for the name of country music by going ahead and doing what I feel I should do, by reaching a broader audience and as many people as I can and by having a universal appeal. I'll be able to do more for Nashville than I ever could have done had I stayed there."

Israel Prepares For New Talks

By The Associated Press

The Israeli Cabinet ordered Defense Minister Ezer Weizman back to Washington today with fresh instructions on how to handle the snags that are holding up the signing of an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Meanwhile, a top Egyptian negotiator in Cairo said his country will submit "new points and proposals" to bridge the gap that is holding up the nearly-completed peace accord between the two countries.

"There are several issues on which there is no agreement" concerning the wider political problems covered in the treaty, said Deputy Premier Yigael Yadin in Jerusalem after the Cabinet finished its review of the peace negotiations. He refused to elaborate.

Yadin said only that the Cabinet "instructed our mission to continue the negotiations and indicated how to do it." Deputy Premier Yigael Yadin said he would inform Prime Minister Menachem Begin, who is on an official visit to Canada, of the Israeli government's 11 hours of deliberations in the last two days.

Weizman is scheduled to return to Washington Tuesday with at least partial approval from the Cabinet on the draft section of the peace treaty that covers the terms of Israel's withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula.

Yadin sidestepped questions on whether the Cabinet had asked Weizman to seek revisions on some points in the draft that had all ready been agreed upon by the delegations in Washington.

The deputy premier also refused to predict any date for signing the treaty.

In Cairo, Osama el-Baz, one of the two top diplomats at the Blair House negotiations, told reporters the ability to "bridge the gap" between the two countries will depend on what proposals the Israeli negotiators will bring back to Washington.

But the diplomat said he didn't expect either side to submit points that would bring about a substantial change in the treaty.

El-Baz said the signature of the accords "depends on what happens after we get back" to Washington and stressed that reports of a possible signature this week-end "are very premature."

El-Baz and fellow negotiator Butros Ghali flew to Cairo from Washington Saturday night. They met with a six-man committee appointed by President Anwar Sadat to review the draft accords.

Egypt has vowed that a peace accord with Israel must be linked to the progress of negotiations over the Israeli-held West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip, taking into consideration the legal situation of the Palestinians, who live in both areas.

Israel maintains the treaty that establishes diplomatic and cultural relations between the two countries should not be tied to the Palestinian question.

El-Baz said the committee is carefully reviewing "all issues" from the Washington talks and that more discussions were planned for later in today and Tuesday.

There are "still no plans" for their return trip to Washington, he said. The negotiating team had been expected to return Tuesday.

precinct then fly to Houston. San Antonio and McAllen for one last chance to round up voters. Hill will be at the historic Driskill Hotel in Austin Tuesday night to await results.

Republican Bill Clements will vote early at his home precinct box in Dallas, then take his 90-year-old mother to vote at her ballot place in University Park about 9:30 a.m. Clements plans some informal handshaking and campaigning in downtown Dallas and shopping centers before flying to Austin. He will have his headquarters in the Sheraton Crest Hotel election night.

Sen. Tower plans to make his last campaign appearance tonight at a rally in El Paso, then he will fly home to Wichita Falls. Tower plans to be at the Trade Winds Hotel in Wichita Falls Tuesday and to wait for returns that night.

Democrat Bob Krueger, also seeking the Senate seat, will be up early to vote about 7 a.m. in his hometown of New Braunfels. Then he plans to spend the day campaigning in San Antonio and perhaps some of the nearby small towns. He will return to the Faust Hotel in New Braunfels to listen to early returns, with plans to go to Driskill in Austin later in the night.

White will vote at 10 a.m. Tuesday at his home precinct in Houston. Later, after some campaigning in Houston, he will go to Austin where he also plans to wait for returns in the Driskill Hotel.

Jim Baker, the Republican candidate for attorney general, plans to finish his campaigning in El Paso tonight and return to Houston. He will vote Tuesday at his home precinct in Houston and wait for returns that night in his Harris County campaign headquarters.

$1 Million Grant Awarded Museum

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Lawson-Johnston, president of the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation, says the National Endowment for the Arts has awarded the Guggenheim Museum a $1-million Challenge Grant.

The Guggenheim says it was awarded the money to "augment its endowment funds and to help meet increasing operating expenses, thus insuring the maintenance of its public programs."

To qualify for the NEA funds, the Guggenheim must raise at least three new dollars for each federal dollar over a three-year period ending Dec. 31, 1980.

The Guggenheim says it also was awarded a $150,000 grant by the Kresge Foundation to be used toward the renovation of its climate-control and security systems. It says the National Endowment for the Arts also has given it $100,000 toward this project.

Fires Take Heavy Toll In Nation

Wilson had said he thought everyone was out of the building.

But Wilson noted that a log book kept at the store entrance was destroyed in the blaze, leaving no accurate record of who was inside.

It took eight hours to bring the blaze under control.

The 10 bodies were found on the second floor. Two have been identified. Nine Younkers employees are listed as missing, leaving one person still to be found, officials said.

At least five other persons — three Younkers employees and two firefighters — were hospitalized with smoke inhalation, none serious.

The damage estimate was "obviously in the millions" of dollars, said District Fire Chief Wayne Stewards. The store, stocked with holiday wares, was a total loss.

Coroner Jennings said the fire that destroyed the Allen Motor Inn — which dates back to 1858 — may have started "under a stairwell." He noted that an Oct. 5 fire, one of two previous minor fires at the hotel, had also started under a stairwell.

"I heard somebody outside hollering," said Beth Malinski, an 18-year-old seamstress who lives across from the hotel. "When I looked across at the fire — all the exits and all the stairways, you could see they were on fire."

"I was just feeling sick as I watched and I was yelling and I was screaming. I knew my friends were up there," said Miss Malinski.

When firemen arrived, "flames were rolling out the front and sides of the building," said firefighter Allan Kominiski. "People on the second and third floors were hanging out windows screaming. 'Help me, save me.' A few jumped and we got to some of the others with ladders."

Three elderly women were admitted to Wayne County Memorial Hospital suffering from smoke inhalation. A fireman was listed in good condition with a fractured skull.

Cullen Davis' Trial Opens explain his role in the scenario that could send the 45-year-old millionaire to prison for life.

It was Edison who opened the state's murder case against Davis last year in Amarillo.

A jury acquitted him in the death of his young stepdaughter, one of two people killed in a bloody shooting spree at the defendant's hilltop Fort Worth mansion.

Davis estranged wife Priscilla was wounded, and her lover Stan Farr was slain in the summertime 1976 attack.

The latest charges stem from Davis' arrest last Aug. 20. Federal agents said they filmed and tape-recorded a meeting between Davis and McCrory on a restaurant parking lot.

The defense contends Davis was framed, principally by his wife, and has hinted that law enforcement officers might have been involved.

"It taxes my imagination that 12 intelligent jurors are going to believe a plot was hatched up between Priscilla and her friends and the Fort Worth D.A.'s office and the Texas Rangers," snapped prosecutor Jack Strickland.

Strickland said "the state's physical evidence is so strong it literally speaks for itself — without David McCrory."

The quality of the tapes has already come under question, and Strickland said there is no doubt that defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes will attack McCrory's credibility with a vengeance.

"If McCrory is cross-examined for less than five days, I'll be surprised," said Strickland. "Richard is a master of cross-examination and he has a lot of grounds to work with here."

FBI Calls Auto Theft 'Most Lucrative' Business

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the time it takes to read three paragraphs of this story, an automobile will have been stolen somewhere in the United States. Chances are one in 143 that it will be yours.

A car is stolen every 32 seconds. That's 2,700 a day, 985,500 a year of the nearly 141 million registered vehicles in the nation. The cost is $4 billion annually, including the cars, higher auto insurance premiums, police and trials.

For years, auto theft was one of the most frequently solved crimes, but now that has changed dramatically. If your car is stolen the chance of recovering it has dropped from 86 percent in 1967 to 59 percent and the chance of the case being solved has dropped from 24.3 percent to 14.1 percent.

In fact, if your car is stolen, there is a growing chance that within 48 hours it will be chopped into untraceable parts and sold to a salvage yard.

Once primarily committed by teen-age joy-riders, auto theft has increasingly drawn professionals. The FBI calls it "the most lucrative, illegitimate business today." Organized crime has refined it by establishing smoothly operated "chop shops."

Operating with pit-stop efficiency, chop shops dismantle a car in two to three hours, dispose of the engine, dashboard and transmission, which carry vehicle identification numbers, and quickly market the rest. Secretive as spy agencies, chop shops don't allow thieves, chopping crews, or marketers to know one another.

This picture emerges from a four-month investigation by Illinois Republican Sen. Charles Percy's staff on the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations. Made available to The Associated Press, the staff report shows that chop shops have grabbed much of the market and extended operations across state lines.

In Chicago, for instance, police say 25 to 40 percent of stolen vehicles end up in chop shops. The parts end up across town or as far away as Los Angeles, Dallas or San Antonio. Texas officials suspect Midwest chop shops supply salvage yards along Texas highways that have late model front ends stacked up four and five deep.

With organized crime has come violence.

Percy's staff linked 11 unsolved murders in the Chicago area and four in New York City to auto theft rackets. Last month, three shotgun blasts were fired into the bedroom of an Illinois investigator working on auto thefts. Another investigator's car was burned.

Outside Chicago, Senate investigators found chop shops in Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Detroit, Indianapolis, Miami, New York City, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Hampton, N.J., and rural North Carolina. But the racket has virtualized virtually every automobile owner.

It contributed to a 52.4 percent rise over three years in the cost of automobile insurance. Because chop shops target their area for thefts, Chicago central city residents pay an average of $138 for theft insurance compared to $30 for suburban residents, according to State Farm Insurance.

Ironically, while chop shops inflate insurance prices, inflation in the cost of new parts contributes to chop shop success.

For instance, investigators were told a new nose for a 1975 Chevrolet Monte Carlo costs $1,607 with labor. A used nose from a legitimate salvage yard would cost $1,290, but a chop shop could provide it for $690-$890.

And service is faster. Automaker delays can range up to two months. But chop shops deliver overnight and can provide assembled front ends, which come from Detroit in 12 pieces.

The staff report said chop shops operate this way:

The crime begins with a call from a salvage yard ordering parts. The chop shop drafts a "pull sheet" with instructions for a "mule" — or thief — on what kind of car to steal.

The mule searches shopping mall, theater and restaurant parking lots. Within 30 to 120 seconds, a professional can penetrate door and steering-wheel locks. According to the FBI, he can steal 30-35 cars a week at $200-$500 a car. One ring in Chicago used teen-agers, paying $25-$50 per car.

The most likely targets are expensive. In one city, Cadillacs are as common as American Motors cars, but 12 times as many Cadillacs are stolen.

The mule leaves the car at a drop-off point listed on the pull sheet. The site is watched to detect police. When it's safe, another crew delivers the car to the chop shop, usually an abandoned bungalow or an empty gas station.

The chopping crew drains the gas tank, removes the doors, and cuts the car apart with a circular saw and blow torch. A good crew earns $400-$800 per car.

According to the FBI, one Midwest chop shop operator grosses $35,000 to $40,000 a week and pays $10,000 for protection to police and local officials and $5,000 in "tribute" to a crime syndicate.

Percy's staffers concluded chop shops owe their survival in part to a 1970 Justice Department decision to de-emphasize individual auto theft prosecutions.

John Paul II Makes Pilgrimage

ASSISI, Italy (AP) — Pope John Paul II made a two-hour pilgrimage to the tomb of Italy's patron saint, Francis of Assisi.

The Polish cardinal who became the first non-Italian pope in 455 years was cheered by thousands of Italians as he spoke of Italy as "the land to which God called me so I could serve as the successor of St. Peter."

"Since I am not born on this ground, I feel more than ever the need for a 'spiritual birth' in it," he said. "This is why I come this Sunday as a pilgrim to Assisi, to the feet of the saintly poor Francis."

Police estimated the crowd at a half-million people, and many only caught a glimpse of the Italian air force helicopter that brought the pope to Assisi in a 30-minute ride from the Vatican.

Nuns stood on red-tiled rooftops and brown-robed Franciscans pushed forward as the helicopter landed in front of the 13th-century basilica.

"I salute everyone on the roofs because I am afraid for them, but I must say they are brave and courageous. I hope you all will serve the Lord with joy," John Paul said in Italian.

After flying back to Rome from Assisi, the pope was driven to the Santa Maria Sopra Minerva church to pray at the tomb of Italy's other patron saint, Catherine of Siena.

Amin Names Son After River

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin has named number 34 Kagera River, Uganda Radio has reported. Number 34 is a boy and 34 is the total number of children officially fathered by Amin.

AMIN

The infant was named Kagera River in honor of the current war with neighboring Tanzania, according to the broadcast monitored here Sunday.

The radio said the name was chosen because the baby was born to Amin's senior wife, Madina, during Uganada's annexation of a strip of Tanzanian land between the Kagera River and the Ugandan border last week.

The river, according to Uganda, now forms the frontline between the two armies.

Better Late Than Never

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Some 2,000 invitations to a Nov. 15 workshop designed to promote better customer understanding of the postal service were delivered three days too late to make the registration deadline.

The invitations — 12,000 in all — reached Indianapolis businesses Saturday, four days after the deadline.

W. Thomas Moore, a public information officer for the local post office, said those who missed the registration date because of the delayed invitations can still register at the door of the Indiana Convention Center.

Ford Lays Off Foreign Workers

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — Ford Motor Co.'s car plant in Saarlouis on the Franco-German border slumped into slow motion today when 6,000 of its 8,000 workers were laid off, a spokesman for Ford of Cologne said.

The layoffs at the Fiesta and Escort-producing plant is costing us 10.6 million marks ($5.3 million) a day in sales losses," Ford press spokesman Alexander Demuth told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

The production cutback was caused by a lack of parts from Ford's plants in Britain, where striking workers rejected a management offer of a 15 percent pay increase and went into the sixth week of their labor dispute.

The giant Ford plant in Cologne, also suffering from a lack of British-made parts, managed to keep its 34,000 workers at the assembly lines for another week by reorganizing its production methods, Demuth said.

The switch-over enables Ford Cologne to keep all hands working until November 17, and provided the strike is settled by then, return to work by November 20, Demuth said.

A similar arrangement has been worked out for Ford's Belgian plant in Genk where production of Transit vans was halted about two weeks ago. Genk production of Taunus cars is expected to continue until Nov. 17, Demuth said.

The English historian, Thomas Babington Macaulay, who died in 1859, is best known for his five-volume work, "The History of England."

Landowners In Parks To Fight Government

KELLY, Wyo. (AP) — Rob and Dawn Hinchee spend their weekends on a project that could affect their neighbors and many other people across the country. They're building a house.

What makes their house different is its location within Grand Teton National Park — on land owned by the Hinchees, but coveted by the National Park Service. The Hinchees are "inholders," members of an increasingly vocal group who own land inside national parks and recreation areas. The park service wants them out and has threatened condemnation if they build.

"We've decided to at least call their bluff," says Hinchee, a 26-year-old U.S. Forest Service employee. "We'll fight them, not only for our benefit, but for the sake of our neighbors, too."

The federal government owns 97 percent of Teton County, and residents of nearby Jackson Hole who have problems with the federal government have banded together in the Grand Teton Landowners Association and become active in the National Park Inholders Association.

WOMEN'S SYMPOSIUM

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Problems faced by South African women forced to take on the roles of both mother and father in raising their children were the subject of a recent symposium held by Contact, a South African women's organization. Children in such situations often lack discipline and responsibility, the symposium was told.

The groups oppose a policy prohibiting building on unimproved land within parks. That policy, says Grand Teton Park Superintendent Robert Kerr, reflects a national goal of keeping parks in their natural state.

But it is in conflict in Jackson Hole because a 1950 Grand Teton Park expansion surrounded homesteads as old as four generations.

"We bought our land here in 1946," says Esther Craighead of Moose, another of the group's leaders. "The park service said it wasn't interested in it, but four years later they surrounded us."

Mrs. Craighead, her husband, Frank, and his brother, John — both nationally known wildlife biologists — have fought a condemnation battle with the park service for a year.

"The only way to fight this is to take them to court," she says. "Park policies are unfair and illegal in many cases, but we have to take them to court to prove it."

Writers Frank Calkins and Rhodella Hunter, his wife, are embroiled in a similar fight with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service over their home on the National Elk Refuge just south of Grand Teton Park.

"We told them we would be willing to trade for comparable land, but they weren't interested in that," says Calkins. "We couldn't replace it for twice what they offered."

The battle has been in limbo since summer, when President Carter intervened to stop threatened condemnation actions and the park service began reviewing its policy toward inholders.

That review is to be completed in mid-November, but the Hinchees' home could change the picture.

"We haven't taken any action, because none of the inholders has taken action," says Kerr, "but his action may force a reaction."

The park superintendent says he can't predict what action the park service will take. "But we are aware he's building on his property, and it is under review," he says.

Hinchee says he decided to go ahead with the prefab log house after a year without getting cooperation from the government on a request for a land trade.

"It's kind of ridiculous," he says. "It's not like we're in the middle of the park — we're only 100 yards from the boundary. Kelly's an established town, and there are houses on both sides of us."

Their land was subdivided years before the park crept southward to reach Kelly, where his wife's family has lived for four generations.

"We want to live in Kelly," he says.

British Boost Texas

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's glossy Architectural Review magazine today circulated an entire issue devoted to that "rich land of opportunity, oil and gas — Texas the super state."

It pictured everything from the Galleria in Houston to the Mission San Jose de San Miguel de Aguayo in San Antonio, surveyed the work of seven Texas architects and devoted eight pages of pictures and text to "Boom City," Houston.

"There still exists in Texas," the magazine said, "a conviction that there is a bright future for the human race. Texans live in a kind of insouciant summer and their native conviction that tomorrow will be better than today make the state a heartening place to visit."

In an article surveying architect-designed "Homes on the Range," author Jim McDonald said:

"Texas possesses a unique cultural fact, that includes remnants of their not insignificant pioneering past. They want to be seen as strong individualists and as Texans. Their houses often reflect both of these qualities."

The magazine's cover and an inside feature centered on "hotel glamor on a Texas scale" — the Reunion Hotel in Dallas. Also featured in photographs and architectural drawings were the Dallas city hall, the University of Texas at San Antonio, the First National Bank of Amarillo, Hulon Mall and the Water Garden in Fort Worth and a dozen other structures.

"Like all visitors from the old world to the newest of the new," its editors said in a summary, "the Architectural Review was impressed by the scale and richness of the state of Western man and his buildings are chalked up in huge letters."

A 32-year-old man said he was assaulted and robbed of $45 cash about 7:30 p.m. Sunday near a convenience store at Colgate Street and Detroit Avenue.

Richard H. Ruiz of 2818 Emory St. said he was jumped by two Mexican-American men in their 30s or 40s who beat him with a tire tool.

Ruiz, who was walking from his house to the store to buy cigarettes when he was robbed, was not seriously injured in the incident. Police had not arrested any suspects by late this morning.

The loss of a sweater about 2 a.m. today apparently resulted in the stabbing of one man and the shooting of another at a local bar at 35th Street and Avenue A.

Kenneth Riley Roberson, 30, said he had walked out of the bar-looking for his sweater when he was beaten and stabbed by three suspects.

He told police a companion, Bob Roberson, 37, of Phoenix, Ariz., also was chased and shot at. However, Roberson was not hurt, according to reports.

Roberson described the suspects as a white man and woman, and a Mexican-American man. The suspects reportedly left in a 1972 Ford LTD.

Roberson was taken to Methodist Hospital where he was treated and released.

Diana Martinez, 18, said she was beaten up by two females about 7 p.m. Sunday while at a bar in the 2300-block of 19th Street. She said the suspects approached her in a parking lot, threw her to the ground and beat her.

The woman received only minor injuries in the assault. Police were still looking for a motive for the attack this morning.

A fight about 2:45 p.m. Sunday at a bar in the 400-block of Idalou Road sent a 38-year-old Lubbock man to Methodist Hospital with multiple lacerations.

Police said they found Ralph Evans lying on the floor inside the club. He was treated and released from the hospital.

A 25-year-old Lubbock man was booked into Lubbock County Jail Sunday for the aggravated rape of a 35-year-old woman earlier that day.

The victim told detectives that she and two other women had gone driving with three men they had met at a club at East Fourth Street and Quirt Avenue at about 2 a.m.

She said the driver stopped to get gas at a convenience store at Detroit Avenue and Colgate Street and told another man to pump the gas. At that point, the two women also got out of the car.

The driver then took off with her and another man in the car and drove to a residence in the 2700-block of Dartmouth Street, where he let the man off, the woman said.

The driver then pulled a knife on her, the woman related, grabbed her by the arm and pulled her into the house where he raped her.

After the incident, the woman told the man to take her to a restaurant at Eighth Street and Avenue A, where she thought her friends would be. However, on the way to the restaurant, she said she spotted the other two women in her car and the man let her out and drove off.

After the woman reported the incident Sunday, she showed detectives the residence where she thought the rape occurred and told them that a car parked in front of the house belonged to her attacker. Detectives arrested a 25-year-old Mexican-American man at the house at about 12:30 p.m.

In weekend aggravated assaults, Glen Russell reported that he was stabbed while trying to leave a club at 1805 Oak Street at about 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Russell, 19, told officers that as he was leaving the club two young black men confronted him and that the three of them began arguing. Russell said he turned his back to the two men and was stabbed in the left shoulder, in the back and in his left arm. He was treated and released from Methodist Hospital for the stab wounds.

In another assault, a 64-year-old man, with a gunshot wound in his lower right back, walked into a convenience store at 1200 Quirt Ave. at about 9 p.m. Saturday.

Carranz Jones told investigating officers that he had knocked at the door of a residence in the 1500-block of East Tenth Street earlier that night. He said that when no one answered he began walking away and was shot. Jones was treated and released from Methodist Hospital.

Louise Lampkin of 2120 Emory St. complained that a black man assaulted her with a stick early Sunday.

She told police that she and the man had been arguing in her apartment. The victim said she tried to leave the residence but that the man followed her and picked up a stick, hitting her in the right eye. The woman was taken to Methodist Hospital, where she was treated and released.

Eligio Pardo accepted a ride with two black men early Sunday and was robbed of $128. Pardo, 52, told police that he was walking in the 500-block of Parkway Drive when a car pulled over and two men asked him if he wanted a ride.

When Pardo got in the car, he was told to hand over his billfold. The suspects grabbed the money and let the victim out of the car at Parkway Drive and Avenue A.

In city break-ins, M.D. Taggart of the Plains Co-op Oil Mill at 701 E. 34th St. said burglars made off with $685 worth of tools sometime late Saturday or early Sunday.

Someone shattered three windows of a service station at 2801 Clovis Road, causing $350 worth of damage to the windows, according to station owner Roy Robert George.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of an incident: After not having spoken to me in almost three years, my sister recently sent me a copy of an insurance policy she took out before she took an airplane trip, naming ME as the beneficiary.
Do you think she's trying to tell me something?

COOS BAY, ORE.

Clip 'n' Cook

10-MINUTE FUDGE

3 (1 oz.) squares unsweetened chocolate
1/4 cup margarine
4 1/2 cups (1 lb.) sifted confectioners' sugar
1/3 cup instant nonfat dry milk
1/2 cup light or dark corn syrup
1 tsp. water
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 cup chopped nuts (optional)
Grease 1 (8x8x2-inch) pan. Melt chocolate and margarine in top of 2-quart double boiler over hot water. Meanwhile sift together confectioners' sugar and dry milk. Stir corn syrup, water and vanilla into chocolate margarine mixture. Stir in sifted sugar and dry milk in two additions. Continue stirring until mixture is well blended and smooth. Remove from heat; stir in nuts. Turn into prepared pan. Cool. Cut into squares. Makes 1 3/4 pounds.

QUICK PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE:
Follow recipe for 10-Minute Fudge using light corn syrup and omitting chocolate. Melt 1/3 cup creamy or chunk style peanut butter with margarine.

Dear Bay: Yes. She still lacks the courage to start talking to you, but in the event of her death, she'd like her money to talk for her. In other words, she's not as mad at you as she used to be.

DEAR ABBY: About that woman who wanted to have a chastity belt made. A competent metalsmith should be able to make one without any problem. I don't happen to be one, but I would sure like to be at the airport when she goes through the scanner.

PHIL McNELLIS: DETROIT

DEAR ABBY: It's 2 o'clock in the morning and I've torn up three letters to you, but I'm mailing this one because I need help.

Over a year ago I met the finest man I've ever known. We became the best of friends. I don't know how it happened, but I fell in love with him, which is outrageous because he is happily married.

At first I tried to laugh it off. Then I tried avoiding him, but we work for the same company and I see him every day.

I'm single, and I tried dating several men, but my mind was always on him. I'm not a 17-year-old school girl. I'm old enough to know better. I'm known as a very intelligent, rational person. I'm often called the "Dear Abby" of the office because everyone comes to me for advice.

I have no one to talk to. If this man knew how I felt, he'd be shocked. And his wife would never believe it. She's a dear friend of mine. I never could come between a man and his wife. I wasn't raised that way, but I love him, Abby, and my only solution is to leave town.

I've lived here for years and I love my job and my friends. I don't want to leave. I know this sounds like a soap opera but it's true. Please help me.

ACHING HEART

Dear Aching: You have built a strong physical attraction into a one-sided love affair through fantasizing. But what's been built can be dismantled. Don't run away. You'll only take your aching heart with you. Find a competent counselor (psychologist or psychiatrist) with whom you can talk freely about your feelings and the futility of loving another woman's husband.
Please take my advice, then write again

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

It is not always clear which is the right suit to develop. South, declarer at six spades, ignored the obvious suit and, by doing so, brought home a contract that might easily have gone down.

Despite the fact that he held only 13 high-card points, South's hand had tremendous trick-taking potential and was well worth the high reverse to three clubs. When North found out that his partner held at least ten cards in the black suits, he correctly consigned the hand to a suit contract rather than no trump because it was possible that a club ruff in his hand would be needed to make the slam.

Since he had declarer's second suit well in check, West wisely elected a trump as his opening lead. Declarer won in dummy, and the temptation to take the club finesse was strong. However, declarer saw that if it lost and the suit broke 4-2 as was to be expected, a trump return would leave him a trick short.

Fortunately, declarer realized the potential of the diamond suit. At trick two, he crossed to the ace of diamonds, then re-entered dummy with a trump, in the process drawing both outstanding trumps. He then led the queen of diamonds from dummy.

Had East covered, declarer would have ruffed, discarded three clubs on dummy's two remaining diamonds and a high heart, and then taken the club finesse for an overtrick. When East followed with a low diamond, declarer did not make the mistake of ruffing. Instead, he discarded a club.

West won the king of diamonds, but the defense was through for the day. No matter what West returned, declarer would be able to get rid of his remaining three club losers on two high hearts and a high heart.

When you first looked at the hand, did you think that the only trick declarer would lose would be in diamonds?

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

This newspaper will be read out loud today by one half of every married couple in the United States.

The other half of every married couple in the United States would like to stuff this newspaper into every opening of their faces.

I call it the E.F. Hutton syndrome, where people assume from the moment they open their mouths to speak that everyone within a 900-mile radius is mesmerized and strains for every word.

To me, reading a newspaper should be as private as dyeing your roots, as privileged as a confession, as quiet as a dinner table when you ask, "Whose turn is it to do the dishes?"

At our house, my husband's soliloquy usually begins at the breakfast table. "Did you read this story that says, you are more likely to catch cold from shaking hands than from kissing?"

"I read it."
"Just listen to this. Government financed research by the Virginia School of Medicine indicates that the common route of infection is from the hands to the nose."

"I read it."
"...and eyes. It says the virus can survive up to..."

"I told you, I've read it."
"...three hours on the hands once it is transmitted by an intermediary surface such as — where are you going?"

"I do not like to be read to. How would you like it if you were reading Playboy and I was turning the pages?"

"It's not the same thing," he said. "You tend to skim and I want to make sure you get the total impact. I'll bet you raced right over the part about volunteers who were contaminated with rhinovirus."

"I am a high school graduate," I said evenly. "and I read what interests me. Do you have any idea how frustrating it is to have someone read the comics to you? It's like listening to a magic act on radio."

Minutes passed. Then, "State won by 16 points, but I suppose you want to read the story yourself."

"Why would I read it after you've just told me the scores?"

The listeners of this world can't win. They get a few words read over them when they're baptized, a few more when they get married, a few when they're buried, and every time this newspaper is delivered.

If there's anything worse than having my own column read out loud to me, I don't know what it is.

DEADLINES

Any information for a daily edition must be in our office two days in advance of publication.

Sunday edition deadlines are 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday for articles with pictures and noon the preceding Wednesday for articles only. Only Friday and Saturday weddings will appear on Sunday; wedding announcements must run within five days of the event.

Engagement announcements must be submitted at least five weeks prior to the wedding date.

THE HEAT IS ON

With the arrival of cold weather, we'll be spending a lot more time indoors. Heat, especially steam heat, can be drying to the skin. If the skin already has a tendency to dryness there is a beauty problem. If cleansing is done with soap and water use only superfatted soaps. Preferably, cleanse with cream. Avoid astringents which can add to the drying. A mild freshener such as good quality witch hazel will help tone the skin. Spank it on with the fingers to stimulate blood flow and keep the skin alive and glowing.

Marriage To Onassis Brings Mixed Reactions

Reprinted from Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis by Stephen Birmingham. Copyright 1978 by Stephen Birmingham. All rights reserved. By arrangement with Grasset & Douglas, Inc.

Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

EDITOR'S NOTE: "The unfolding saga of Jacqueline Onassis has contained murder, betrayal, suspense, powerful men who have used and misused our beautiful heroine," writes Stephen Birmingham in his new biography, "Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis." Yet, in the end, she manages to triumph over them all. This part details Jackie's marriage to Aristotle Onassis.

By STEPHEN BIRMINGHAM

The impact in November 1968, when the world learned that Jackie was about to marry an aging Greek shipping tycoon named Aristotle Onassis, was stunning. The public reeled and gasped at the news.

Instantly, Jackie dropped sharply in the public's esteem. The most cool-headed reaction to the news was simple: Why? Yet, it is likely the event would never have taken place had it not been for Bobby Kennedy's murder, barely five months earlier, in Los Angeles.

Once more Jackie had lost a strong, assertive older man whose emotional leadership she needed. The second Kennedy assassination has been shattering enough, and the ensuing days were even more harrowing.

Robert Kennedy's funeral had none of the dignity of his brother's, nor could it have had. It had the wild, distraught quality of the final act of a Greek tragedy.

The funeral train bearing Senator Kennedy's body struck and killed a bystander, Storm and fury, the gnashing of teeth and the beating of breasts seemed to fill the air. Outside Jackie's New York apartment, throngs milled in the streets for a morbid chance to glimpse her in grief again, while sidewalk vendors set up pushcarts selling hot dogs and frozen custard. That scene alone might have been enough to cause Jackie to lose faith in her public forever.

One of the first to offer Jackie his condolences after the death of her husband had been Aristotle Onassis. He and Jackie had remained friends. There had been frequent dinners in New York and more courtesies around the Christmas.

After Bobby's death, Onassis offered what he inevitably offered his friends, another cruise, and she accepted.

Earlier when Onassis first proposed marriage Jackie had demurred. She consulted her mother and her sister. She asked the advice of Cardinal Cushing, and of the Kennedy family. Their reactions had been mixed.

Most opposed was Janet Auchincloss. She thought the difference in their ages of more than 20 years was too great. She had also heard that, though Onassis could be charming, he had a ferocious temper. Lee, who some said had once hoped to marry Onassis, urged her sister to accept the proposal. Still, Jackie vacillated.

Then Bobby died, and another great emotional prop was knocked from under her. Who would be her salvation now? There was Onassis, another powerful father figure, reaching out to help.

Onassis promised her a pleasant life. He would make her demands. She could live where she wished. And, though now she was comfortably rich, she still felt that curious need for financial security.

Perhaps it stemmed from her growing-up years in the Depression, her mother's complaints about the size of Jack Bouvier's alimony payments, her parents' constant bickering over dentists' bills, the graveside quarrelling among the Bouviers over wills. Whatever it was, Jackie had learned to draw an equation between money and peace of mind.

To the public, it seemed that Onassis, the shark, had managed to swallow a particularly juicy fish and that Jackie, the poor fish, had swum greedily into the shark's jaws where, though a captive, she was confident of finding treasure.

The announcement came with startling suddenness. There was no public preparation for it. Though Jackie and Onassis had been seen together here and there, the columnists had not made an "item" of them. There had been no hint of romance. Even Jackie's close relatives were taken by surprise.

On the day the news broke, Jackie was supposed to have lunch with one of her Bouvier relatives, cousin Michelle Crouse. Two hours before they were to meet at the restaurant, Jackie's secretary, Nancy Tucherman — her best friend from Miss Porter's Schools for Girls — telephoned Mrs. Crouse to break the date because Jackie was flying to Europe. No explanation for the trip was given. Like everyone else, Mrs. Crouse first read about what had happened in the newspaper.

Even her secretary was jolted by the news, and when she expressed astonishment, Jackie merely said, "Tucky, you don't know how lonely I've been." Loneliness was the only reason she would give.

Of course, the public quickly supplied reasons of its own. At first, the reaction was anger at both parties in the marriage — the aging, swarthy foreigner who, with his ill-gotten billions had purchased America's fairy princess and the princess, herself, who was obviously money-mad, a woman no better than she should be who had sold herself for an old man's gold.

Quickly the reaction turned from anger to mockery. Within days, dozens of off-color Onassis jokes proliferated, most of which centered on alleged activities on their wedding night. Women's Wear Daily, which had dubbed Jackie "Her Elegance," now began derisively referring to the pair as "Jackie O" and "Daddy O."

The public refused to accept "loneliness" as a motive, and it would not buy the notion that romantic love or any tender feeling was behind Jackie's move. It had been to be greed, pure and simple. When the news came out that Onassis had settled something in the neighborhood of $5 million on her in a pre-marital contract — in addition to showering her with a number of precious stones as a wedding gift — the public's worst thoughts were confirmed.

Onassis's motives in marrying Jackie were equally suspect. Everyone knew he liked to surround himself with celebrities — Greta Garbo, Maria Callas, the Richard Burtons, Sir Winston Churchill in his dotage, so senile that he seldom knew where he was — from whom he seemed to feel he acquired borrowed luster.

Onassis used these people as window-dressing. They, in turn, used him for free rides, drinks and meals. Now he had bagged the biggest celebrity of all, the former American first lady, who, with her connections, would send the former telephone operator and tobacco importer, the crudely educated boy from Smyrna, sailing into the pages of the "Social Register." As far as the public was concerned, the motives of both marriage partners were base and venal.

Even people who knew and admired them both were forced to admit they found the union a little odd. In addition to the difference in their ages, there were the differences in their personalities and lifestyles.

Onassis was rough-hewn, outgoing, gregarious. He drank and swore like a trooper, and loved to stay out all night in a night-club bars and noisy discotheques. Jackie was quiet and introspective, dislike large parties, hated bars and, if she stayed up late, was reading a book or sketching at her easel.

Jackie preferred menus that included desserts like framboises a la creme Chantilly. Ari liked plates of raw onion slices in olive oil. Jackie cared about fashion. Ari had no interest in clothes; his shirts were usually rumpled and his suits often looked as though they had been cut for someone else.

Still, there was some of Jack Kennedy about him. He, too, was a tough fighter who had fought his way to the top. He was a gambler who liked to win. He was also very much like Jack Bouvier: swash-buckling, party-loving, a lady-killer, a big spender and a bon vivant. Or, rather, like the man Bouvier had thought of himself as being.

For weeks following the wedding on Skorpios, newspapers, magazines and television were filled with speculation about it. The presidents election and the Vietnam peace talks were all but forgotten as writers and commentators wrestled with the question: Why? What, besides his money, could she see in him? What, besides her celebrity, could be her usefulness to him?

In the American reaction to the wedding ranged from disappointment to disapproval, the reaction in Europe was one of outrage. A great American Lady, it seemed, had turned out to be little more than a tramp who would sell herself for wealth and membership in the free-wheeling international set. The attitude expressed in France Soir was typical. It called the marriage "sad and shameful."

A year later, in "The Bouviers," his book on the family, Jackie's cousin, John Bouvier Davis, felt called upon to offer some sort of explanation, or excuse, for his relative's behavior.

"Jacqueline," he wrote, "like many Bouviers, especially her father and grandfather, is highly susceptible to beauty, luxury and great wealth. Who could put more beauty, luxury and wealth into her life than Aristotle Onassis? A Greek island all her own. Apartments in all the capitals of Europe. One of the most luxurious yachts in the world. A fortune that made the money President Kennedy had left her seem modest in comparison. A privately owned airline. If, in November 1963, "the cloud-capped towers, the gorgeous palaces... the great globe itself" had been taken away from her, now she would have them back again."

Perhaps that was part of it. But Davis' interpretation still made her sound awfully self-indulgent and materialistic.

Jackie's old friend, Letitia Baldrige, who had been her social secretary at the White House, had another explanation: "She had become a woman without a job." Tish Baldrige says, "Being married to Jack Kennedy was a full-time job. After he died, there was the Kennedy Library and Bob Kennedy's campaign to keep her busy. She's always needed something to do. Onassis offered her a job, as the wife of another very busy man."

What no one may have stopped to consider was that Jackie, at that point, may have been disgusted with her public as they now appeared to be with her.

She had seen the public's worst side — its pettiness, its intrusiveness, its massive bad taste, its collective cloddishness. In the milling, noisy crowds outside her home during the day Bobby Kennedy fought for his life — women with their hair in rollers, munching chili dogs and brandishing instantamatics — she saw her public behaving in far worse fashion than she ever had.

She may have thought to escape. I will show them I can do exactly as I want, she might have said to herself. I will thumb my nose at the slob, go off to Greece where there's a man who wants me, who can protect me from this sort of thing, where I can slip out of my girldie and lie in the sun.

The public, she had learned, would always be around. When she came back, she would have her public back again, but most definitely on her terms. Jackie, who had once in her girlhood dreamed of becoming the "Queen of the Circus," had never wanted to be an ordinary woman or to lead an ordinary life in ordinary circumstances among ordinary people. She had wanted to be extraordinary. Under her photograph in her Farmington class yearbook appeared the following data:

Jacqueline Lee Bouvier
"Merrywood," McLean, Virginia
"Jackie"
Favorite song: Lime House Blues.
Always saying: "Play a rhumba next."
Most known for: Wit.
Aversion: People who ask if her horse is still alive.
Where found: Laughing with Tucky.
Ambition: Not to be a housewife.
She had certainly managed to achieve that ambition.

Jackie's marriage to Onassis may not have involved much physical passion, but it was convenient. And there were times when having the Onassis team at her disposal could be definitely helpful.

Not long after Jackie's marriage to Onassis, for example, Otto Fenn, a long Island antique dealer, spotted a man's portrait, handsomely framed, in a sale. There was something about the man's face that struck Fenn, and he bought it for a small sum. Even if no one wanted the portrait, he decided, the frame would bring something.

But when he brought the painting back to his shop, the man's face began to haunt him. It looked familiar, the face of someone he had known, or seen a photograph of or read about. There was some resemblance of Clark Gable, yet Fenn was certain the man was not Gable. Finally Fenn realized the portrait was of Jackie's father, Jack Bouvier.

Fenn had read that Jackie and her father had been close. So he sent a photograph of the portrait to her, suggesting she might like to purchase the original.

Within a few days, there was a reply from Nancy Tucherman. Jackie did indeed like the portrait, and an agreement on the price was reached. (Fenn will not disclose the price, but it is safe to assume he made a profit.) Fenn then removed the portrait from its frame and shipped the painting to Jackie's apartment.

A few days later, there was another polite letter from Miss Tucherman. It had been assumed, she said, that the price of the painting included the frame.

Fenn just as politely replied that Miss Tucherman was in error. What he had offered for sale was the painting only. The frame would be extra.

There now followed a series of telephone calls back and forth. The dickering for the frame remained polite, but grew more persistent. Finally, Fenn suggested that, instead of a fee, he might give up

WILLIAMS EXHIBIT
NEW YORK (AP)—An exhibition titled "William Carlos Williams and the American Scene, 1920-1940" will be at the Whitney Museum of American Art Dec. 12, 1978, through Feb. 4, 1979. The museum says, "This exhibition is designed to recreate the cultural context of American society during the 1920s and 1930s through verbal, visual, and documentary materials."

WE ARE CONCERNED ABOUT OUR AGRICULTURAL ECONOMY

Mrs. Roy B. Davis: "I have been closely associated with farmers and farming all my life. I really believe that Kent Hance is best qualified to represent this area in Congress. Kent is an honest, conscientious farm boy who has proven himself a friend of farmers in the past. That's why I am voting for Kent to speak for me in the next Congress."

Alex Bednarz: "I know that Kent Hance shares my concern for the survival of farmers in West Texas. He speaks and understands my farm language so I am going to vote for him for Congress."

Bill Alsopough: "I know and respect Kent Hance for his independent leadership, his proven ability, and his sincere understanding of farmers problems. I want his West Texas voice to speak for me in Congress. That's why I am voting for HANCE on Nov. 7th."

Earl Weaver: "Kent Hance is a down to earth young man that I trust. He knows about the work, sweat, and hardship that goes with farming. He represented agriculture well in the Texas Senate, and I know that he will do the same in Congress. He will get my vote Nov. 7th."

Delwin Jones: "I first met Kent when he sacked and stacked groceries at night in a frame in return for some other sort of consideration.

There was silence on the subject of the frame for a week. One day, however, a messenger arrived at Fenn's shop with a long slim envelope. In it were two first-class, round-trip tickets to Athens on Olympic Airways.

It was a solution from which everyone profited happily. Fenn and a friend got a free trip to Greece. And Jackie got the frame she wanted for her father's portrait — also, as it were, for free.

How Tusha Buildings keeps your building from costing too much and taking too long:

Putting up a new building too often means paying more than you expected and taking longer than you thought.

The most frequent reason? No one person is clearly in control. That can cause a basic communication breakdown among all parties involved, resulting in confusion, cost overruns and missed deadlines.

But we offer you a team of construction professionals capable of controlling your entire project...concept to completion.

We can handle all the details — planning, rights-of-way, permits, construction, even landscaping. We'll make sure you get your building on-time and on-budget. And we'll do it using construction methods and building systems that can cut up to 40% off some conventional building timetables.

So if your next building has time and budget limitations, call us. We'll give you both the building and the control you need.

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT TWO
LUBBOCK COUNTY, TEXAS

I want to put my two cents worth in about the Justice of the Peace election.

I came to Slaton in 1926. My husband, Fred Schmidt and my two sons John and Freddie and my son-in-law, Cyrus Fields ran the Model Grocery and the Slaton Hardware for many years.

I have known Claude Cravens for over 40 years as a boy in high school, as a young attorney who returned from service in the United States Army in World War II and in Church and civic matters. I have been an elder of my Church and Claude Cravens served as a Sunday School teacher, a Sunday School superintendent and Trustee of my Church and when the Church was without a Pastor, took his turn with other members in handling the weekly service.

I knew his father and I knew his mother and I know him now in 1978 and through the years and I have no hesitation in announcing that although I have normally voted Democratic, I am going to vote for Claude Cravens for Justice of the Peace because I believe he is the man for the job.

I urge everyone to Vote his convictions, not a Political Party.

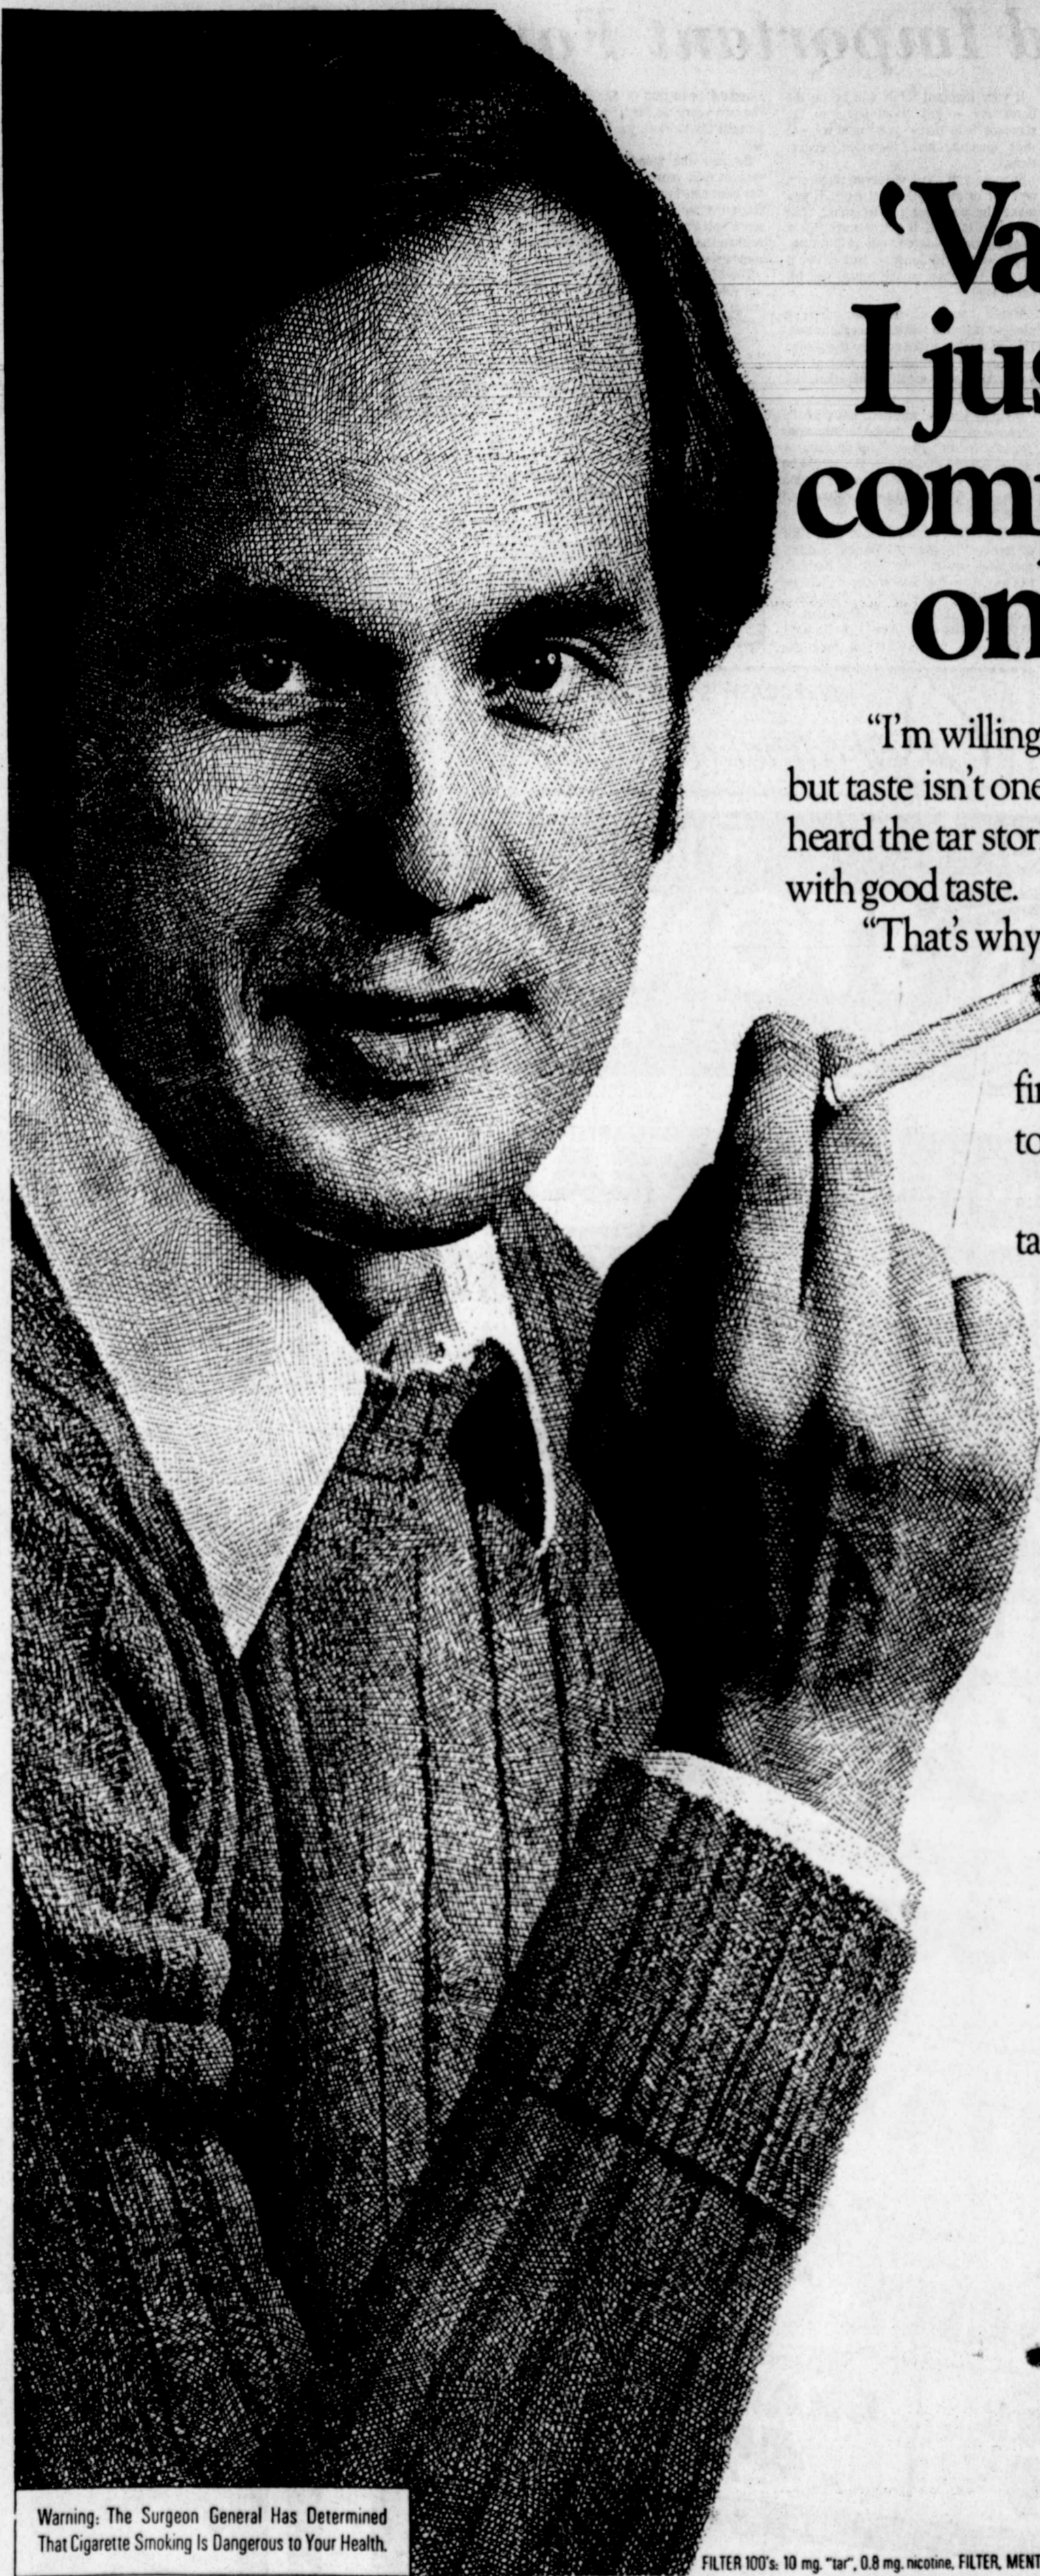

Yours sincerely,

When You Spend Important For Tax Purposes

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Now is the time to start planning for the tax return you must file by next April 15 and the recently passed tax reform act could affect your actions.

Most of the bill's provisions do not take effect until 1979, but that doesn't mean you can wait to find out about them.

A key change is the increase in the standard deduction — formally called the "zero-bracket amount." And knowing about the change could help you decide whether to itemize your deductions for 1978.

When you spend can sometimes be as important as what you spend in determining your deductions and you may be able to save money by advancing or delaying major purchases and payments.

The idea is to use deductible expenses when they will do the most good, lumping them together into one year or another to boost your total deductions above the standard level.

The procedure is complicated — and the increase in the standard deduction means you'll have to do even more figuring than normal — but the work can pay off.

Start by estimating what your 1978 deductions would be if you itemized them. Try also to estimate your deductible expenses for 1979. Check past records to refresh your memory. How much do you usually give to charity? Is the amount likely to change? Do you anticipate any big medical bills — braces for the kids, for example? Compare the totals to the standard deduction.

Under existing law, a married couple filing a joint return gets a standard deduction of $3,200. If your income is less than $3,200, you pay no tax at all. (The figure is $2,200 for a single person.) The new law, which will apply when you file your return in 1980, increases the zero-bracket amount to $3,400 for married couples filing joint returns and $2,300 for single people.

If your itemized totals will be on the borderline — just about equal to the standard deduction — you might want to shift spending and, therefore, deductions.

Suppose you are considering buying a new car or other big-ticket item. If you make the purchase in December, you would be eligible, if you itemize, for a sales tax deduction on your 1978 return. If you wait until January, to buy you'll get the deduction on the return you fill out in 1980.

Here's another example: You've pledged $200 to a charitable organization. Do you want to make good on the pledge now or wait until after the first of the year? Are there medical bills that you can pay early?

Assume you are married, filing jointly and you expect your itemized deductions for 1978 and 1979 to be about the same — say $3,100. At first glance, you would be better off with the standard deduction both years. You would get a tax-free total of $6,600.

If, however, you can boost your 1978 deductions to over $3,200 by shifting spending, you may be able to itemize. Let's say you shift $400 worth of deductible spending from 1979 to 1978. You would take 1978 itemized deductions of $3,500 — $300 over the standard. On your 1979 return, you could still take the standard deduction of $3,400. Total for the two years: $6,900. If you are in a 20 percent tax bracket, you have just saved $60.

Because the standard deduction increases next year and because Congress has eliminated the deduction for gasoline tax, most people will find it makes more sense to try to shift spending to 1978 rather than the other way around. There are some exceptions, however.

The higher your income, the greater the value of itemized deductions. If you are in a 10 percent bracket, each $100 you deduct saves you $10 on your tax bill. If you are in a 25 percent bracket, however, the same $100 deduction cuts your bill by $25.

If you expect your income to increase next year — because of a new job or a working spouse — you might want to save the deductions so you can take them when you are in a higher bracket.

If, in contrast, you expect your income to drop sharply next year — because of retirement, for example — it probably pays to spend now, when you are in a higher bracket.

It is difficult for most people whose money comes primarily from wages to shift income; the year's last paycheck will count as 1978 income even if you don't deposit it in the bank until 1979.

Trooper Saves Child From Flaming Auto

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Trooper Larry Foster choked down sobs as he described his heroic rescue of a 5-year-old boy from a fiery auto crash. He couldn't put aside the "helpless feeling" of failing to save five members of the boy's family.

The family was returning home from a funeral in Mississippi.

"There were three others in the front and two in the back," Foster, a seven-year veteran of the Kansas Highway Patrol, said he recalled Sunday's head-on collision between the Foster car and a pickup truck, which claimed six lives altogether. "At least four of them were alive. They were screaming for help, but I was helpless."

"I just couldn't get the car apart. I couldn't get in to get them. They were still alive and I couldn't get in to get them. It was such a helpless feeling..."

"You just can't imagine what it's like to watch four people die, especially when you can't do anything about it — when you just have to stand there and watch them die."

The lone survivor, 5-year-old Ulysses Brinston of Westminster, Colo., owes his life to the 37-year-old trooper, who grabbed a fire extinguisher and slammed it through a car window while bystanders screamed for him to get away from the blazing wreckage.

The boy was in "fairly good" condition at Lawrence Memorial Hospital with first- and second-degree burns on his legs and face.

Killed in the crash were his mother, Terresa Brinston, 20, of Westminster; his aunt, Sonja Betts, 39, and her children, Rodgele Betts, 18, Andrae Betts, 17, and Zaccarias Griffin, 22, all of Commerce City, Colo.

The sixth victim was Richard Jones, 19, of Topeka, Kan. Police said Jones' pickup truck crossed the median of the Kansas Turnpike near Lawrence and struck the car, which had just filled up with gasoline.

A car being towed by the family car lurched forward, shoving the lead car under the pickup and rupturing the car's gas tank, police said. Fire erupted, sending up a pall of smoke that Foster spotted while patrolling a short distance away.

"When I drove up there was just a ball of fire," Foster recounted. "The little boy was looking out the window, crying, screaming for help. There were some people standing around. They yelled for me not to go near the blaze. I put on my gloves and tried to force the door open, but couldn't. I grabbed a fire extinguisher and slammed it through the window, and pulled the boy out."

He said he led the child to a ditch nearby, then returned to the flaming vehicles. But the heat was too intense to approach a second time, he said.

A trucker joined Foster in trying to get the car door open. They tied a winch to the handle to try to force it open, but the outer frame of the door simply peeled off, Foster said.

Lawyers Seek Clean Cut Young Men To Take Part In Lineups

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—There just aren't enough clean-cut, all-America types behind bars these days—and that has become a problem to some lawyers who are trying to create a lineup for a robbery trial.

They need 30 young men of that type to hold lineups for six accused robbers. All but one of the suspects are Marines.

In a lineup, authorities put the real suspect before witnesses, along with five other people with the same physical characteristics. The fill-ins are usually taken from local jails and the victims must pick out the real suspect.

The current case involves six young men, all about 20. Five are Marines from Camp Pendleton and one is a civilian. They are accused of robbing 21 illegal alien Mexicans living and working in tomato fields near the camp.

Defense attorneys have demanded lineups before a preliminary hearing Nov. 28. The trouble is, the robbery suspects all are young, white, short-haired, clean-shaven and of medium build—"your Joe Average American anglo-Marine," prosecutor Ron Jarvis said.

Lineups for six suspects require 30 other people. For convenience and security, most lineups employ volunteers from the county jail system.

"There weren't enough clean-cut individuals in the San Diego jail," defense attorney Paul Riddle said.

The most the system could supply was about five, he said.

Prosecutors turned to neighboring Orange County. "They didn't have 10 men who even came close," Jarvis said.

Even the large Los Angeles County jail system could not guarantee it had 30 young men of proper appearance on hand, not to mention the logistical and financial obstacles.

Holding the lineups in Los Angeles would take three nights and cost San Diego County almost $14,000 in travel expenses and salaries. Oceanside Municipal Court Judge Suzanne Knaut said the court would not approve such an expense.

Lawyers considered holding the lineups at Camp Pendleton, where there are 32,000 Marines.

Finally, defense attorneys accepted the responsibility for providing 30 clean-shaven, short-haired, white 20-year-olds willing to stand in a criminal lineup Nov. 18. The lawyers hired a private detective to find them.

Scale Model Of Plane Being Built

CLARENDON HILLS, Ill. (AP)—The Kitty Hawk Flyer will be airborne once more, just in time for the 75th anniversary Dec. 17 of the Wright brothers' first flight.

It's a scaled-down model of the craft that Orville and Wilbur Wright built and flew into history over the sand dunes of Kitty Hawk, N.C.

Dennis Biela, 22, Randy Dean, 18, and several other members of the Illinois Civil Air Patrol have been building the plane in the garage of Dean's home since January.

"We'll have spent about $4,000 when it's finished," said Biela, who runs Aerodynamic Enterprise with Dean. Biela does skywriting and banner towing, and is a student flight instructor.

"But I've never built a plane before," he said. "We thought up the idea to more or less publicize the Illinois Wing of the Civil Air Patrol. We'll display our plane at air shows and gatherings, and any money collected will go for flight scholarships of the Illinois Wing."

"We scaled it down to five-eighths the size of the original so we can transport it," he said.

Biela made the ribs of plywood, the spars of spruce and the covering from doped muslin, unbleached cotton cloth the same kind the Wright brothers used.

"We've done some improvising and have carefully checked weight and balance," said Biela. "We're using a newer wing foil for better performance and a modified Volkswagen engine rated at 60 horsepower to turn the two propellers. And we'll have ailerons for control. The original didn't have them."

Biela said the original Kitty Hawk Flyer had only a 12-horsepower engine for its first flight of 120 feet in 12 seconds. It was hand-built by the Wright brothers.

"Our plane will carry two gallons of gasoline and cruise 45 to 50 miles an hour," he said. "We'll remain airborne about 25 minutes and will fly no higher than 500 to 1,000 feet."

The first test flight, he said, will be at the Lewis University-Lockport aviation department southwest of Chicago.

Copies of preliminary sketches by the Wright brothers of the Kitty Hawk Flyer were obtained from the Experimental Aircraft Association museum at Hales Corners, Wis., Biela said. Other material came from the Smithsonian Institution.

"Our best guidelines came from a full-scale drawing of the Kitty Hawk in a model aircraft book," he said. "The Wright brothers kept most of their plans in their head. And their aircraft was so unbalanced they had to use lead weights to try to level it."

Firm Promotes Use Of Waste For Fuel

MILTON, Conn. (AP)—Scientists estimate that the nearly 145 million tons of waste thrown away each year by Americans could be converted to some 10 billion gallons of useable automotive fuel, or about 10 percent of the nation's annual consumption of gasoline.

A new enzyme process that can convert materials derived from trees and other plants into alcohol is the key to turning garbage into fuel, according to researchers at Novo Laboratories, Inc., the world's largest producer of enzymes for industrial use.

Combining this alcohol with regular gasoline to form a fuel called "gasohol" would reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil and help alleviate waste disposal problems, the company says.

Business & Industrial Review

Multiple Services, Accessories Mark Automotive Electric Firm

Automotive Electric, Inc., 1936 Texas Ave., dates its services from founding back in 1929, and the same integrity and know-how marks the firm today just as through the years.

"And now, in November, would be an excellent time to avail yourself of one or more of these services... what with winter coming on and special attention desirable to get the auto in top condition."

If it is an auto tune-up that needs attention, or starter or alternator repair, electric repair or cooling system hoses, pumps, belts, etc., then Automotive Electric, Inc., at 1936 Texas Ave., phone 747-2859, is the ready answer.

Also, now is an ideal time to bring in lawn and garden power items (mowers, etc.) for repairs in the off-season, assuring their readiness next spring when needed.

Accessories
Replacement mower engines are stocked, as are accessory lines, wheels, mower blades, catcher bags and all Kohler, Clinton, Briggs & Stratton and Tecumseh motors and parts are stocked.

Multiple Services
The firm is departmentalized in three distinct areas.

(1) Automotive electrical and tune-up services.

(2) Magneto service, of special value to farm and industry, with Fairbanks-Morse, American Bosch, IHC and WICO sales and service, much of this applicable to irrigation well motors and tractors and other farm and industrial equipment. The Zenith and Marvel Schebler lines of starters and generators are stocked.

(3) Lawn and garden accessory sales and service.

Automotive Electric, Inc. was established by the father of Jerry Martin, current president, and location at that 1929 date was 1414 Broadway, the site today of the Southwestern Bell Telephone complex.

Move of Automotive Electric to its present large quarters at 1936 Texas Ave. was made in mid-1957. (Note the big paved parking area to rear of the firm for customer benefit.)

Jerry Martin literally grew up in the business. He is a lifelong Lubbock resident, being absent only for attendance at the University of Texas.

Jerry prides in the type service traditional at the firm, and in the type personnel on the job. Cecil Long, mechanic, has been long known in the field, and Mike Boyter is the capable parts supervisor. Announcement also has been made that E.V. Garling is back with the firm for still further service. Martin is on the job personally, devoting time to every phase of the business.

"Automotive Electric, Inc., at 1936 Texas Ave., is equipped and manned to work for you; may we have the opportunity?"

Lubbock Cash Register Stocks Newest Sweda L-25 Units As Aid To Retailer

"Lubbock Cash Register Co., 3033 34th St. phone 792-2885, invites you to join the Sweda L-25 family!"

"What is this Sweda group... it is a new line of 'affordable' registers, a new way of retailing for the 1980's... starting now!"

In short, every member of the Sweda L-25 family has a fast two-station printer, two ten-digit displays, a hands-on keyboard, at least two taxes and tenders, compulsory non-compulsory change and drawer opening, and all with a modular assembly (a single board) to simplify and speed servicing.

Most L-25 registers offer optional compulsory validation, battery operation and a turret customer display.

Thoroughly in keeping with its consideration of the area businessman, Lubbock Cash Register Co. has stocked this line among its sales items, in line with its program of the "right product", service, knowledgeable personnel and appreciation of its customer list.

Specific Characteristics
More about the Sweda:
For the small retail operation, the Model 2610 may be the greatest benefit yet, with its standard "family" features plus special functions so that the smaller retailer doesn't have to settle for low functionality. This unit has three departments, with programmable entry limits and single item finalization; two tenders; received on account paid out; department refunds; credit balance finalization and three types of reports.

For Mid-Size Business
Then there is the Model 2620, an electronic cash register especially for medium-sized retail operations, with the functional power of a much more complex model, and the easy operation of the simplest one... and with an impressive range of options that can take on any retail challenge. (It has six or eight departments, two-clerk operation, three tenders, two tax totals, error warning and error correction, change computation and lots of other features.)

Even More
The Model 2630 is an electronic cash register that stores a lot of one's sales figures and gives a lot of the help needed to improve those figures at the front end! With food stamp and coupon handling, and a scale function, and a special function for handling impulse items, and with as much management control as you need, together with a lot of options to enforce that control... it is a tremendous machine... and all for a very little money!

Basic capabilities and features include eight departments, two-clerk operation, price lookup capability for 40 items, manual tax, automatic tax by table, by table with percent, or by percent only, change computation; repeat, multiplication, split pricing (whole numbers and fractions); etc., all through a buffered hands-on keyboard featuring an 11-key (plus decimal) numeric pad.

On and on the benefits of the L-25 family could be cited, but whatever size business, we invite you at Lubbock Cash Register to come in and let us meet your specific needs, the Sweda way.

Not only is the Sweda L-25 family stocked, but see Lubbock Cash Register for other units, other prestigious lines and for the finest in service.

Texas Insulation Systems, Lockney, Afford ThermoCon Products, Process

"Know Texas Insulation Systems, Box 591, Lockney, Texas, phone 652-3348, and profit." Specializing in ThermoCon spray-on and loose-fill for residential, commercial and industrial applications, Jerry Ulmer and staff are masters in their field. For full details see Ulmer at the Lockney facility, write Box 591, Lockney, Tex. 79241, or call (806) 652-3348. ThermoCon spray-on insulation for metal buildings is one of the fine product-service combinations. Let one of the Texas Insulation Systems technicians give full details, showing what this application can do in your own situation. Multiple Benefits Spray-on ThermoCon afford temperature, sound and fire control in one application! Because of its chemical content, it permanently bonds to steel, wood and masonry surfaces painted or not! It provides a strong color-stable environmental system that will not chip, shed, flake, dust or be subject to rot or fungi. ThermoCon is odorless and non-toxic. Because it forms a monolithic seal, it can be used wherever temperature, sound or fire control is needed on ceilings or walls, exposed or unexposed. No lathing, undercoating or preparatory base is required! Because of its workable fibrous texture, ThermoCon can expand and contract with your building without losing its hold. Its built-in flexibility makes it easy to cut, saw, mold, shape or paint. Economy Explained Because of its application by pneumatic spray, it is much faster and more economical than conventional insulation, Ulmer emphasizes. (ThermoCon, incidentally, is a national company with dealers throughout the nation and in Canada.) Appropriate buildings for this ThermoCon system include farm buildings, airplane hangars, industrial plants, warehouses, auditoriums, gyms, showrooms, supermarkets, mobile homes, apartments, condominiums, office buildings, etc. "It is twice as effective as wire-backed fiberglass batts; heat intense enough to melt metal will not penetrate ThermoCon's protective barrier!"

'A UNIT FOR YOUR NEED IS HALLMARK OF LEASEWAY-SOUTHWEST'

Leaseway-Southwest Services Prove Advantageous To Area

Leaseway-Southwest, at 409 E. 50th St., in Lubbock, offers a complete transportation service to busy companies that simply cannot devote the time, space or money required to own and maintain a fleet of vehicles, or in some instances, just one or two units. This progressive leasing firm provides transportation vehicles to serve any size or type business.

Full Service
"Corporations as well as small operators find that full-service transportation package is more efficient from every standpoint."
"Full service" as provided by Leaseway-Southwest Transportation Corp., is exactly what the name implies. The firm provides the maintenance and inspection and even supplies the fuel and pays the taxes on the vehicle!

Personnel there are most adept, serving in a professional but considerate and friendly manner to meet the particular transportation needs of every customer.

"We'd like to count you, too, among our customers."
Upgrading and additions to its stock is a continuous operation at Leaseway-Southwest.

Leaseway-Southwest's understanding of the short-term, peak and long-term needs of area industry and business is well recognized, contributing to its own growth, too.

Half-a-hundred Lubbock businesses (and even more) depend on Leaseway-Southwest for transportation vehicle needs.

There must be a very good reason. In Tune With Times
Keeping abreast with the needs of the area is one of the convincing reasons. Leaseway-Southwest continually adds new equipment for rental and for full-time customers of this service-oriented firm.

"Utilization of leased vehicles is the growing trend in transportation management" it is emphasized by Ken Wright, president.

Planning, Supervision, Organization Contribute In Hughes Service Picture

For full janitorial services with "plus-benefits that we like to prove," the name to know in Lubbock, Amarillo and throughout the South Plains and Panhandle is Hughes Services, Inc., 101 Sherman Ave. in Lubbock.

Hughes, since 1954, expresses the objective of rendering a janitorial cleaning service for exceptionally high quality, and it would correctly seem that it has been most successful in this endeavor.

Hughes keeps close control of all operations and conducts systematic training sessions and whatever necessary to be assured all employees of the firm are thoroughly trained in their duties and that all people doing the training are using the same methods.

Other objectives within the firm include provision of safe working conditions or employees and customers; assurance that customer complaints are handled promptly and that follow-up is made to assure there is no repeat.

Quality Control
Clearly-outlined job descriptions are defined for key employees as further assurance of a smoothly operating and efficient organization with the customer benefitting accordingly.

No-Obligation Estimates
For example:
Bill Jones is market manager, with duties listed to include no-obligation estimates, setting up of systematic schedules for sales calls, conducting of routine night-time building inspections with operations manager for quality control, handling of all complaints and follow-up to avoid repeat, coordination of training methods and conducting of routine training sessions.

Jim Strating is quality control manager. In this capacity, Jim is in charge of the refinishing crew, hard surface floors and carpeting in all accounts. He trains all floor people, learns window cleaning methods to back up window cleaners, is in charge of equipment maintenance and allocation and conducts routine sessions among his many duties.

Sammy Rodriguez is operations manager and adheres to a clearly-defined list of duties. Quality control inspections and follow-up, routine frequency charts, supply control and allocation are among them. Also hiring, training and discipline of employees, new account start-up, coordinating with quality control manager on refinishing crew, training all employees (with floor refinishing people trained by quality control manager); and handling all window cleaning accounts.

tion to 'a job well done' the quality one seeks in a janitorial service? We think so, and Hughes likes to prove it."

McWHORTER'S TRUCK CENTER, OUTSTANDING IN FACILITIES, SERVICE

Service, Staff Capabilities Score For City Truck Center

There is continuing proof that McWhorter's Inc., Truck Center at 213 North Ave. U. serves best!

The facilities and stock, long unmatched elsewhere in the southwest, now are even more complete.

A big 56 ft. by 70 ft. addition now is utilized to provide increased parts stock, an added bay and heavy duty front end machine, even a U-bolt bending machine.

Any U-bolt can be made right here in the McWhorter's shop, with a large stock of materials and the correct machines for fabricating a bolt to order.

A good stock of overload springs for pickups and light trucks is noted.

Brake Shoe Exchanges

And now, still something else has been added: a brake shoe exchange program enabling exchange of these truck and trailer needs without waiting!

Four truck front end and frame machines are provided.

Air-Ride truck seats are stocked, as are MGM brakes.

A good inventory is maintained in truck and trailer brake drums, and an inventory of truck and trailer springs also is kept.

Suspension Units

McWhorter's at 213 N. Ave. U. also can overhaul Hendrickson suspension units in the big trucks. (Exchange walking beams are kept to speed the work on the units, with drivers being able to go on their way in less than a day.)

For RV Needs Also

McWhorter's is distributor for electric brakes for every need — for trucks, trailers, etc.

Frame, front end work and other services are available for the RV needs, just as for trucks.

Experienced Management

The big McWhorter's Truck Center is managed by long-familiar manager Bob Dean (27 years with McWhorter's).

Durwood Hallman, assistant manager has 28 years with the firm; and Alvin Morris, service manager, also has 23 years as a valued staff member.

Leonard Gordon, mechanic actually is the longest-tenured McWhorter's staff member, still on the job and serving capably just as he has done since March 1946!

Versatile Facility

The large building at McWhorter's can service any length and size vehicle (that is legal on the highway) inside, without extending through any doorways.

Ten huge trucks and trailers can be accommodated at one time within the Center at the bays. Even more vehicles can be served if detached from trailers or if of smaller size.

Even showers are provided and appreciated for truck operators; a sleeping area is available for these truck drivers while their vehicles are being repaired.

Pick-up, Delivery

McWhorter's, Inc., Truck Center is especially noted for its pick-up and delivery service on trucks and trailers, with this particularly advantageous on fleet job drum turning and brake shoe relineing.

Truck and auto owners alike have discovered that the front end alignment, brake work, wheel balancing, frame straightening, etc. at McWhorter's assure satisfaction as only experts can guarantee.

The firm's promise is emphasized on all repairs: "It must be right or we make it right."

McWhorter's backs this policy with professionalism throughout the staff, and with the best in equipment and facilities.

The Center was established at its present spacious headquarters in 1951, is staffed by men long on experience and "know how," and each takes a personal interest in the job at hand.

Thirty-ton and 100-ton jacks are part of the specialized equipment that gets the job done.

Wheels can be balanced without removal. Alerte and Stewart-Warner wheels balancers, together with Bear front end alignment equipment, are included in the equipment.

The 35-ft. truck frame at McWhorter's is one of the largest in a multi-state area.

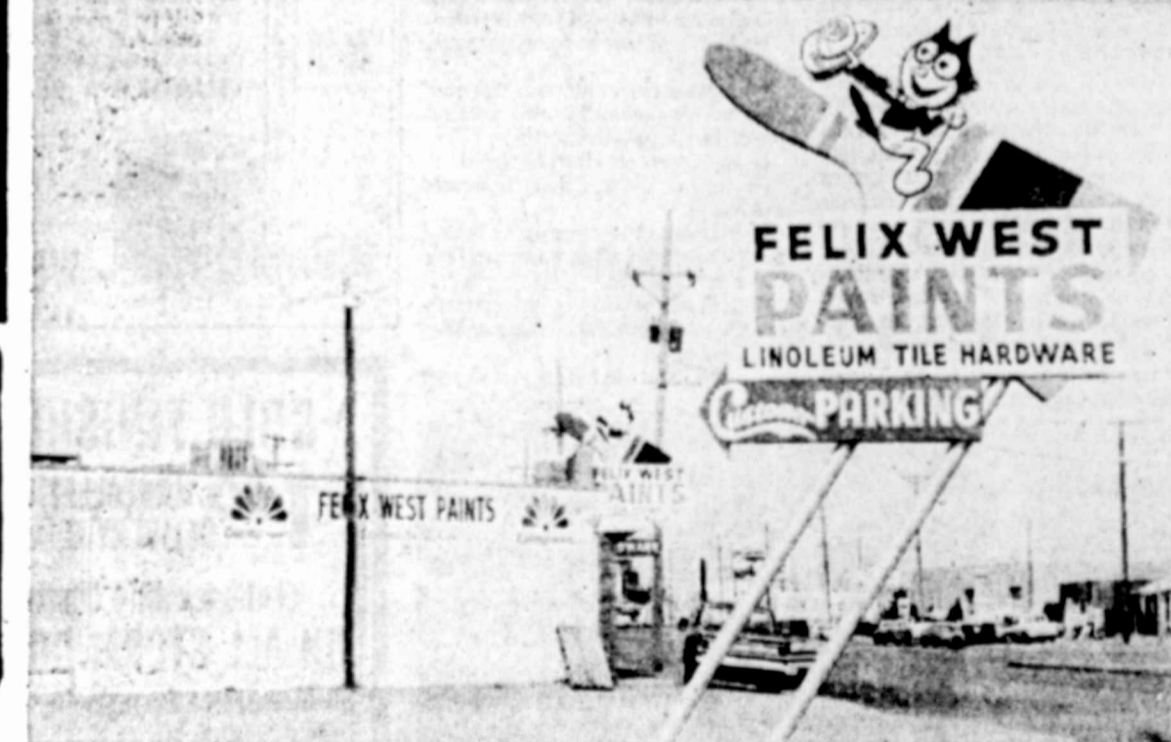

Suspension Units

Truck and trailer front end and frame parts are stocked.

Among other services are rewiring and repair of lights on trucks and trailers, replacement of trailer 5th wheel king pins, repair 5th wheels of any make, overhaul vacuum booster brakes, and the installation of tachographs.

McWhorter's Brake Shop is distributor for a host of famous-name products.

Check the products, the service and the workmanship, you'll like the McWhorter's way of doing business!

FOR PAINT, AND MUCH, MUCH MORE

Felix West Paints, With Convenient Clovis Road Address, Serving Region

"Much more than a paint store alone". Felix West Paints, on Clovis Road east of University Avenue, stocks fully to justify the invitation:

"Get it all at Felix West."

Not only is the stock complete, but Felix West holds the price line for customer benefit.

And most often there are some real bargains in discontinued items, remnants, etc., making it advantageous to check the store frequently for special savings.

Open Saturdays

Another item of customer consideration is the long hours observed every weekday. Felix West Paints is open from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays; yes, Felix West is open all day Saturdays.

Seasonal needs, as well as the standard year-around items, are found at Felix West Paints.

General Hardware

Thousands of general hardware items and scads of other products contribute to the "difference that is Felix West Paints".

Colony paints, Armstrong and Congoleum... these are among the names that spell true quality and availability for the demand of every season; always at Felix West.

Felix West has a pipe threader as an added service, enabling cutting and threading in every pipe need (new pipe only). A good stock of pipe also is provided.

Located just one block east of University on the Clovis Highway (2319 Clovis Road), Felix West not only is one of the easiest stores to find (look for the distinctive signs), but it provides all the popular and even hard-to-find hardware items that make a trip there worthwhile.

Whether one selects from the Colony paint stock or chooses from the wide inventory of hand and power tools, pipe fittings, shop items, inexpensive gas or electric bathroom heaters, etc., the price and quality is unmistakably the best — a tradition well practiced and protected at Felix West Paints in its one big Lubbock location.

Felix West is no newcomer to Lubbock or to the hardware and paint trade, and he is unusually adept at stocking the right items for South Plains clientele.

Unity Witnessed At Arab Summit

By GEORGE A. KRIMSKY BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Summit conferences often produce impressions of togetherness, but the Baghdad conference witnessed once-bitter enemies acting like long lost friends. They have Anwar Sadat to thank. The Egyptian president provided the cement for the new togetherness by his frustrating and angering his one-time comrades, agreeing to make peace with Israel, the enemy of the Arabs for 30 years. And he hardened it by refusing to renege under stiff Arab League pressure. Yasser Arafat, whose Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas traded bullets all over Europe with Iraqi agents just two months ago, says a new era of friendship has begun.

Jordan's King Hussein, whose Bedouin army killed 20,000 guerrillas in a bloody civil war seven years ago, held reconciliation talks with the PLO during this summit, concluded Sunday. Presidents Ahmed Hassan el Bakr of Iraq and Hafez Assad of Syria, whose governments blamed each other for a two-year spate of sabotage and assassinations, have signed a cooperation treaty.

The new camaraderie produced some interesting scenes. The cemetery of the Iraqi royal family, assassinated in a 1958 revolution, was cleaned up and strewn with flowers before the summit. The slain Iraqi king was Hussein's cousin. Syrian and Iraqi security guards joked and swapped tales outside the presidential palace while summit leaders were meeting inside. Last August, at other meetings, these men occupied themselves by taking sledge hammers to each others' embassy cars in Baghdad and Damascus.

The prevailing opinion here is that if the Arabs patch up their internal feuds, they can mount a credible front against Israel even without Egypt, their major confrontation state. Attempts at unity have been tried many times before, always in times of crisis, but inevitably dissolved into new bickering.

But the optimists here believe that unity has a better chance now. "We have never been confronted with a situation like this before, where an Arab state has chosen to betray its colleagues and join forces with the enemy," said a PLO official. "Our only chance to redress this wrong is to stick together," he added.

Other observers believe it is premature to regard these new friendships as anything more than summit euphoria, reinforced by mutual desperation. "Eventually the Arabs will break up into factions again because of self-interest and suspicion," speculated a Middle East analyst from London.

One of the truths of the Mideast conflict over the past three decades is that Arabs have killed far more of their own than they have of the Zionist enemy.

Despite the new relationships, the Arab camp remains divided into three main blocs: those sympathetic to the Egyptian-Israeli peace plan, those opposed to aspects of it but willing to see what happens, and those firmly opposed to it.

In the pro-Sadat group are Sudan, Morocco, Somalia, North Yemen and Oman.

In the moderately critical group are Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates — the largest oil producing bloc in the Arab world. Jordan, has also been on the fringe of this group, trying to maintain a neutral stance, but some observers believe it has moved closer to the hardliners in recent weeks.

The Sadat peace campaign brought together the hardliners, who had previously been split between total rejectionists, like Iraq and Libya, and confrontation regimes that still held out some option for a peaceful settlement.

Today Syria and the PLO are no longer talking about peaceful settlements, although they haven't renounced the idea publicly.

Iraq, which used to say the military defeat of Israel is the only solution, is now acting more flexibly. It no longer says, for example, that Syria must renounce its support of a political solution before the two countries can work together.

Vice Premier Blasts Russian Activities

By VISETSAK SANGUANPONG BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — China's Teng Hsiao-ping, vice premier of the world's biggest communist country, today mixed kind words for the non-communist lands of Southeast Asia with a harsh attack on the Soviet Union's "expansionist activities" in the region.

Reliable sources said the visiting Peking leader also reached agreement on expanding Thai-Chinese trade and economic cooperation in talks with Thai officials.

"At present, the international situation is highly turbulent, with hegemonism posing a serious threat to world peace and security," Teng said in a toast at a welcoming banquet. "A new development deserving special mention is that the hegemonists have stepped up their expansionist activities in Asia, particularly in Southeast Asia."

"Hegemonism" is the term used by the Chinese in denouncing what they say is the Soviet Union's intention to expand its power worldwide.

Teng said his government has long supported the concept of Southeast Asia as a zone of peace, freedom and neutrality as espoused by the five-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations. This group comprises Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia and the Philippines, all non-communist nations.

Teng said there is "stability and unity in China," and a determination to modernize agriculture, industry, national defense and science and technology before the end of the century.

In a 1 1/2-hour closed-door meeting Teng and Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan dealt with China's relations with the United States, Japan, the Soviet Union, Vietnam, North Korea and others, said the sources, who asked anonymity.

Thai Foreign Minister Upadit Pachari sawnku told reporters two trade agreements would be signed before Teng's departure.

Teng's five-day visit to Thailand, which began Sunday, and upcoming trips to Malaysia and Singapore are generally regarded as attempts by Peking to shore up its position in Southeast Asia in response to growing ties between the Soviet Union and Vietnam.

It is the first visit by a Peking leader to a non-communist Southeast Asian nation in 30 years.

China and Bangkok established diplomatic relations in 1975, and since that time trade between the two has increased from $5 million annually to almost $180 million last year.

While Teng and his 36-member entourage attempt to drum up Thai support, another high-ranking Peking delegation was in the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh, holding strategy talks with leaders there. The Chinese are supporting Cambodia in its border war with Vietnam.

In Baden-Baden, West Germany, a radio interview quoted Chinese Deputy Premier Ku Mu as saying Chinese Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng is planning a visit to West Germany and other European nations. The deputy premier said the travel date and itinerary had not been worked out. He said the impending trip was part of China's drive to gain Western technology to raise itself to a modern military and industrial power by the year 2000.

In Peking, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland told Chinese leaders Sunday visits by him and other American leaders "clearly reflect President Carter's resolve to normalize relations between the two countries." Bergland is in China for 10 days of meetings on agricultural trade and exchanges of scientific and technical information.

Austrian Voters Reject Costly Nuclear Plant

By ROLAND PRINZ VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Austrian voters have narrowly rejected a $650 million nuclear plant, this nation's first, and dealt a stunning political defeat to Chancellor Bruno Kreisky and his Socialist Party.

At a news conference today, Kreisky accepted personal responsibility for the defeat but declined to say whether he would resign, as he had hinted before Sunday's nuclear-power referendum.

Some political observers speculated the government chief would offer his resignation at a meeting with party leaders later today but they would overwhelmingly reject it.

Chancellor Kreisky is much more urgently needed by the Republic of Austria than is Zwentendorf (the nuclear plant), said Vienna's Mayor Leopold Gratz.

Austria's first plebiscite since World War II yielded 1,606,308 "no" votes and 1,576,839 "yes" votes, a margin of 29,469 votes. Ballots were cast by 64 percent of the nation's five million eligible voters.

The voters were asked whether Austria should pursue the peaceful uses of nuclear energy and begin operating its first nuclear plant, which was completed several months ago.

The narrow victory for anti-nuclear ranks came in an election preceded by the hottest political debate in many years in this country.

It means a 700-megawatt plant at Zwentendorf, 28 miles north of Vienna, will sit idle. Kreisky's government implored voters to approve its operation, saying the plant could not be converted into a conventional generating facility and that the money spent would therefore go down the drain if it were not opened.

But opponents disputed this, and voters apparently were swayed by arguments that nuclear energy production is still unsafe, a sentiment that has spread through Western Europe and the United States.

Although Kreisky conceded defeat, he said he still felt nuclear energy is the safest and most favorable from an environmental point of view.

He argued before the vote that his nation needed 250,000 new jobs over the next few years to extricate itself from economic stagnation and suggested nu-

U.S., Turkish Officials Talk Arms

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A four-man U.S. Defense Department team today started talks with Turkish officials on possibilities of Turkish-American cooperation in the field of armaments manufacture.

A Turkish Foreign Ministry announcement defined the talks as "initial contacts in an effort to base defense relations between the two countries on sounder principles."

Officials said the talks will be "exploratory," with neither side expected to undertake contractual obligations yet.

Turkish representatives from the foreign, defense and industry ministries, the state planning organization and the general staff took part in the discussions, officials said.

The American group is scheduled to visit Turkish installations in Ankara and Istanbul where small arms and other defense equipment are manufactured.

Lucy Benson, U.S. Undersecretary of State for Security Assistance, was expected here Tuesday for separate talks with Turkish officials on future American military aid to Turkey, officials said.

Both these visits and another one scheduled for later this month, to start negotiations on a new bilateral defense treaty, seek to reorder relations between the two countries in the post-embargo era.

A 3 1/2-year U.S. arms ban against Turkey was lifted in September. In return Turkey allowed reactivation of four key American intelligence bases on its soil.

The embargo was imposed by the U.S. Congress because of Turkey's invasion of northern Cyprus in 1974.

Errors Again Plague Cowboys

MIAMI (AP) — While Miami Dolphins quarterback Bob Griese's clever play-calling and exact passing kept the Dallas defense confused, the Cowboy offense continued to confuse itself.

Oilers Nip Cleveland By 14-10

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers defense, stung last week by lowly Cincinnati, decided to go out and hit someone Sunday and Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe wishes it hadn't been him.

"Their defense was playing Super Bowl football," said Sipe, who was sacked seven times for 54 yards in losses by the angry Oiler defense, enabling Houston to take a 14-10 win. "The (Oiler) defense was as good as any I've ever played against."

"I tried everything we had in the game plan. I tried and tried but I couldn't find the right answer."
"Other Oiler targets included Cleveland running backs Mike and Greg Pruitt and another Brown who tried to carry the ball. The Oiler defense stopped the Brown running game at a mere 28 yards on 22 tries."

Greg Pruitt led Browns rushers with 16 yards on 13 carries and Mike Pruitt, who gained 173 last week, managed only eight yards on six carries.
"Brian isn't a very mobile quarterback," Greg Pruitt said. "As soon as they knew they could contain our running game, they started teeing off on Brian."

Oiler middle guard Curley Culp, relishing the Oiler comeback after a 28-13 loss to Cincinnati last week, had to agree with Sipe's assessment of the Oiler defensive effort.

"We out-executed them and won the contest," Culp said. "Sacking the quarterback is a defensive lineman's dream. We're still in contention for a wild card spot and that's what it's all about."

Culp had his dream come true when he sacked Sipe in the fourth quarter for his first sack of the year but Ted Washington, Andy Dorris, Jim Young and Robert Brazile also got into the act.

"We definitely needed this game real bad," said Washington, who blasted Sipe twice on consecutive plays. "The defense got together before the game and we dein flux. The Cowboys, meanwhile, yielded three fumbles and two interceptions to help Miami to a 23-16 victory Sunday.

"It's my job to find the open receivers. They seemed to be there a lot. They seemed to have a lot of mixups on defense. I had receivers with nobody near them," said Griese, who hit 12 of 18 passes for 185 yards.

"We were shifting our tight end. I used Delvin (Williams) when they didn't seem to be expecting it," he said. "I think they were a little bit confused. It was just something that seemed to be easy for us to do today."

The victory kept the Dolphins, 7-3, one game behind the New England Patriots in the American Football Conference East. It was their first victory over a contending team and moved the usually restrained Griese to say, "It was a great win."

For the Cowboys, it was another step on a treadmill no one had expected for the defending champions.

"I'm perplexed," admitted quarterback Roger Staubach. "We have not really had a game where we walked off the field and said we had a great day. We've maintained a pretty consistent pattern of middle-of-the-road football. We've kind of maintained that level of mediocrity."

The loss was the fourth for the Cowboys, who have yet to defeat a top contender. Fumbles by Tony Dorsett and Butch Johnson helped Miami to a 20-3 halftime lead, and a late drive into Miami territory ended when Billy Joe DuPree fumbled after a 15-yard reception.

"We started out again like we did Thursday against the Vikings (a 21-10 loss) — very flat-footed," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said. "We are way behind in turnovers. That's the thing that keeps plaguing us."

Landry said he had used the Cowboys' 10-day layoff between games making adjustments. He said he's not sure what other changes can be made.

"It's a lot easier to change things when you haven't been there before than when you're champions and things just start going bad on you — and just keep going bad," he said.

While the Cowboy offense rolled up 328 yards, the Dolphin defense came up with big plays at key times. Besides the turnovers, there were four sacks and two instances when the Cowboys got to within the Miami 5 and had to settle for field goals by Rafael Septien.

Shula said the Dolphins were "high emotionally," and were surprised to find that the Cowboys weren't. "Coming off the loss to Minnesota, we were expecting them to be really fired up. I don't think they were playing with emotion."

Cowboy running back Preston Pearson agreed.

"Our problem is we forget that we're ex-world champions. We were the 1977 world champions. That's over now. We have to remember that," he said.

Dorsett added, "The challenge is there right now. If we don't rise to it now, if this isn't the incentive, then something's wrong. You're not an athlete if you don't rise in this situation."

A Sign Of Life?

DON'T NAIL DOWN that coffin lid on the Dallas Cowboys yet — I think I just saw a sign of life in the corpse. During those final hectic minutes at Miami Sunday afternoon, Roger Staubach started throwing bullets to his receivers, the Domsday Defense stomped on people. Coach Tom Landry got angry and Tony Dorsett made a jarring tackle.

It was, in this disappointing season, a hopeful development.

True, the Cowboys' drive toward a tying touchdown was frustrated when tight end Billy Joe DuPree fumbled after catching a pass that would have been good for a first down on the Dolphins' 30-yard line. With a little more than two minutes left on the clock, and Dallas with two time-outs remaining, the stage was set for one of those famous Cowboy finishes. Then Billy Joe blew it!

Landry, noted for his icy calm during a game, grimaced in pain and anguish and whirled completely around as if looking for something to hit. Fortunately for Billy Joe, the offense still was on the field.

Dorsett, obviously angered by the bobble that gave Miami the ball, came blazing across the field and whammed the Dolphin returning the fumble such a lick that he dropped the piskin, too. If it all had not happened so close to the sidelines, the Cowboys might have had it back.

But the Dolphins retained possession and ran out so much of the clock that Dallas had no real chance in its final, desperate thrust.

Super Bowl XII Teams Suffer NFL Setbacks

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer
What's wrong with the Dallas Cowboys?

The defending Super Bowl champions looked anything but super Sunday as they bowed to the Miami Dolphins 23-16.

The Cowboys' record after 10 weeks of the National Football League season is a decidedly unspectacular 6-4. They trail Washington by 1 1/2 games in the National Conference's East Division, and the Redskins can stretch that to two full games with a victory over Baltimore in tonight's nationally televised game.

Meanwhile, Denver, the team Dallas beat in Super Bowl XII, didn't look very super, either. The New York Jets reeled off 24 straight points to upset the Broncos 31-28, dropping Denver's record to 6-4.

Elsewhere, the Oakland Raiders beat the Kansas City Chiefs 20-10, the Minnesota Vikings defeated the Detroit Lions 17-7, the Los Angeles Rams edged the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 26-23, the Philadelphia Eagles surprised the Green Bay Packers 10-3, the Atlanta Falcons topped the San Francisco 49ers 21-10, the Pittsburgh Steelers beat the New Orleans Saints 20-14, the Houston Oilers trimmed the Cleveland Browns 14-10, the New England Patriots got by the Buffalo Bills 14-10, the San Diego Chargers downed the Cincinnati Bengals 22-13, the Seattle Seahawks edged the Chicago Bears 31-29 and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the New York Giants 20-10.

The Jets fell from a 28-7 deficit to stun Denver, winning on a 75-yard bomb from Matt Robinson to fleet wide receiver Wesley Walker with 5:45 to play.

Raiders 20, Chiefs 10
Oakland snapped a two-game losing streak and climbed into a tie with Denver for first place in the AFC West as Ken Stabler shook off three interceptions and three sacks and directed the Raiders on two fourth-quarter scoring drives.

Stabler completed 17 of 24 passes for 182 yards, including a 4-yard scoring pass to Raymond Chester and a 34-yard toss to Casper that set up the clinching touchdown, a 1-yard run by Mark van Eeghen.

Rams 26, Buccaneers 23
Rookie Frank Corral's fourth field goal of the game, a 27-yarder with three seconds remaining, gave Los Angeles its victory. The Bucs had tied the score with

Vikings 17, Lions 10
"I don't feel like talking today; my mouth hurts," said Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton, who had just released a pitchout midway through the second quarter when he was clobbered by Detroit's Dave Purefoy. Tarkenton lost three caps on his teeth and needed 12 stitches on his lip, but returned to start the second half and finished with 18 completions in 27 attempts for 211 yards and one touchdown.

Eagles 10, Packers 3
"There had to be some luck involved today," conceded Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil, whose club capitalized on a fumbled snap by punter David Beverly on a second-quarter punt play for the only touchdown of its victory over Green Bay.

Falcons 21, 49ers 10

Steelers 20, Saints 14
Pittsburgh raised its record to 9-1 on a 24-yard touchdown pass from Terry Bradshaw to Rocky Bleier with 1:51 left in the game. It was his first regular-season TD reception for Bleier in his 10 years in the NFL.

Patriots 14, Bills 10
New England, using a double tight end offense to control the ball in the second half, got past Buffalo on the running of Horace Ivory, who carried 16 times for 128 yards and two touchdowns. It was New England's seventh straight victory, tying a club record.

Chargers 22, Bengals 13
San Diego's Mike Fuller picked off two Cincinnati passes, running one of them back for a touchdown, as the Bengals' record dropped to 1-9, tied with San Francisco for worst in the NFL. Rolf Benirschke kicked three field goals for San Diego.

Seahawks 31, Bears 29
Surprising Seattle handed Chicago its seventh straight loss as Jim Zorn threw touchdown passes of 26 and 31 yards and Sherman Smith ran for two touchdowns.

Cards 20, Giants 10
St. Louis did all its scoring in the first half en route to its second victory after an 0-8 start. Fullback Jim Otis rushed for two touchdowns and 78 yards and became St. Louis all-time rushing leader with 3,664 yards.

Tech Coaches Uncover Few Flaws In Victory

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor
It was superlative time around the Tech as Tech athletic office Sunday. And the way the coaches were passing out bouquets, every florist in the city could have gotten rich off his sales.

There was little head coach Rex Dockery could say, except "It was our best defensive game since Arizona."

And, down the hall, as the coaches showed films of Saturday's 27-9 victory over Baylor, the compliments flowed on just about every play.

What had taken place just 24 hours before was a complete domination of the lines of scrimmage, and "well, it's hard to single out any one person," said Dockery, "because they all played so well."

"The entire team blocked well, the linemen, the backs. Our linemen just dominated the offensive line of scrimmage."

Dockery found the defensive line just as effective, too, as he pointed to the pursuit, the gang tackling of Baylor backs.

For the game, Baylor gained 288 yards, but through three quarters, the Raiders held it to just 199 steps.

"Jim Verden (at tackle) had a good game, and Willie Stephens (at cornerback) had his best game of the year. And Jeff Crombie, I thought, really played well for a freshman. That was only his second game to play — and his first game to start."

"Of course, (cornerback) Alan Swann played well; all our cornerbacks played exceptionally well."

"The entire secondary played exceptionally well, though Baylor got the one long touchdown pass, but we picked off three — and got our hands on others," said Dockery.

The Raider coach pointed to the situation, which he felt worked to Tech's favor. "We had that open date, to get some people well as well as prepare. It was here in front of a good homecoming crowd (48,895), and Baylor had played a tough schedule, seven straight games."

"All those things figured in, and we just played probably our best game."

"Of course, we got those six turnovers, three of them inside our 10-yard line."

Even with all the superlatives, Dockery felt that the Raiders can't rest: "Seems like we always have a tough game with TCU."

"They've beaten two good teams in Oregon and Tulane, good football teams."

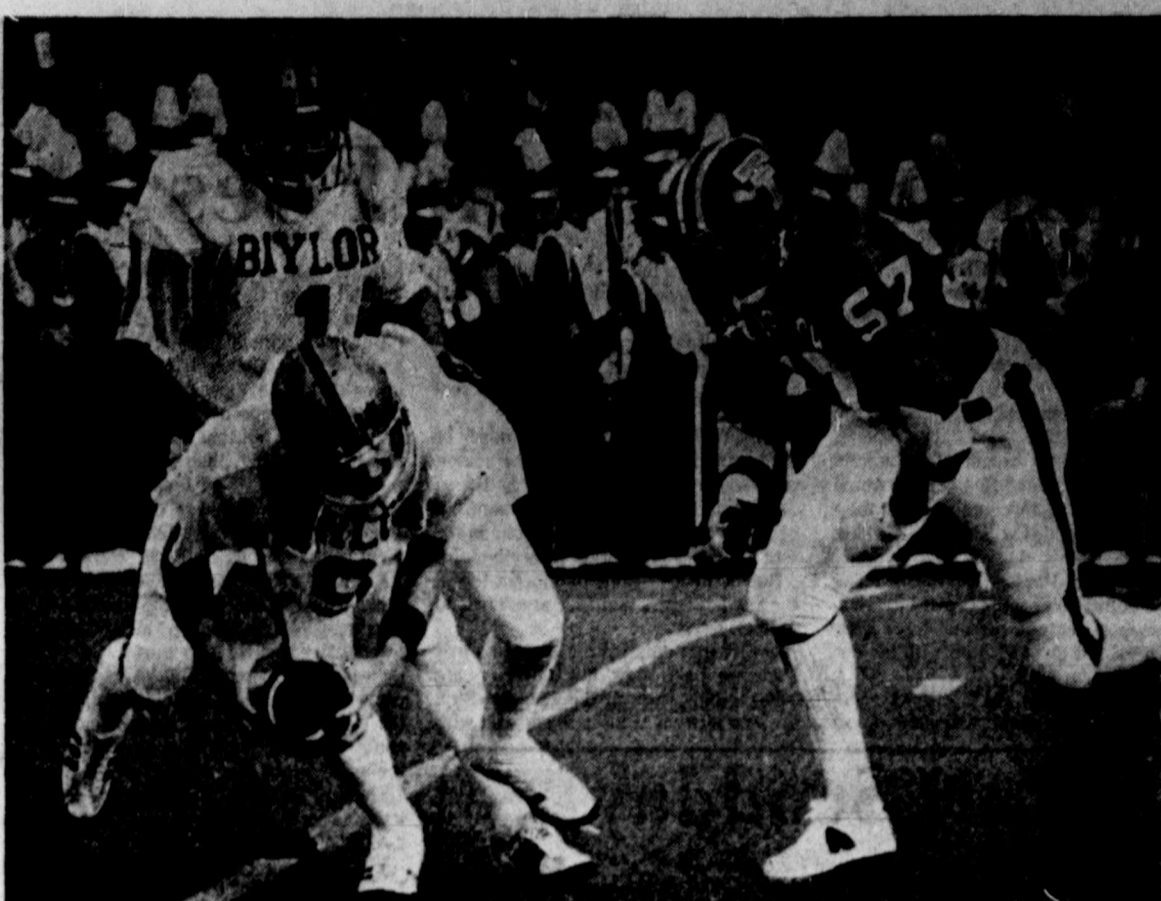

"We played well most of the way against Baylor, but we had some letdown in our kicking game... putting 137-yard average; punt coverage (43 yards in BU returns); kickoff coverage, and Blade (Adams) missed two field goals. So, we need a lot of work in these areas."

Starting tailback Mark Johnson sustained a severe ankle sprain in the first half, and Dockery said, "We'll just have to wait and see on him. Both our wide receivers (Brian Nelson and Godfrey Turner) got their bells rung, and we're checking them out. But, beyond that, we came out pretty well physically."

Tech blasted for 506 yards total offense, 359 of that on the ground as James Hadnot bulled for 212, "and he lost 50 yards when we had penalties," added Dockery.

Quarterback Ron Reeves ran for 73 yards, and Johnson got 37 yards on eight carries before being hurt.

Reeves also completed eight of 15 passes for 147 yards and two touchdowns. Mark Harrison took the first TD shot, a 32-yarder, and Turner netted 74 yards and one score on two passes from Reeves.

WHAT NOW? — Baylor quarterback Greg Wood tries to figure out what to do with the final and Robert Bledsoe (1) is too far away to be of any assistance. Wood, holding for an extra-point try by Bledsoe, muffed the snap and found Texas Tech defender Lewis Washington (57) bearing down on him. Wood was tackled, and the muffed extra point left Tech in front 10-9 in the first half of Saturday's game. Tech went on to win the game 27-9 for its third straight win. (Staff Photo by Paul Moseley)

Houston, Texas Clash Saturday

By MIKE RABUN
United Press International Sports Writer

They will play what has become the game of the year in the Southwest Conference next Saturday and the Houston Cougars are just happy to be in it — no matter where the schedule says they have to play.

The game will take place in Austin, where the Texas Longhorns have a habit of seldom losing.

But, as SMU Coach Ron Meyer put it a few weeks ago: "Those Houston guys could play on the moon and it wouldn't bother them."

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman didn't put it exactly like that Saturday night following his team's massacre of TCU. But he meant the same thing.

"Aw, bull," Yeoman said. "Our people don't pay any attention to where they play. Home fields are so overrated it's unreal. We have played many hard games on the road."

Houston will have to play a hard one on the road this week, but the Cougars have demonstrated this year that they can make it hard on the opposition as well.

The Cougars will go into the game with a 5-0 conference record and Texas, having had a week off to prepare, is 4-0. The winner of this one will almost certainly wind up owning at least a share of the league crown — perhaps all of it — as well as representing the SWC on New Year's Day in the Cotton Bowl.

"I don't know anything about Texas," Yeoman said. "I haven't had a chance to see any film on them yet. I didn't even get to watch the Oklahoma game (Texas' only loss) on TV."

Houston tuned up for Texas by crushing TCU, 63-6. Quarterback Danny Davis scored twice in the early going and the Horned Frogs never had a chance. And as the Cougars rolled to their seventh straight win this season they began — more and more — to look like the 1976 campaign in which Houston shared the league title.

That year Houston beat Texas in Austin.

"That's all history," said Davis. "This is a completely different ball team than it was two years ago. Texas is completely different, too. Coach Yeoman has told us that banking on what you have done in the past won't even buy you a ticket on the bus."

Class AAA Favorites Run Into Tough Foes

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 Whoever had Dumas and Lake View in the office pool—congratulations. You have qualified to become a fearless fore-caster.

Before the high school football season got underway this year, the experts, sportswriters and broadcasters around the state, determined that Dumas would be the king of 1-AAA and to show their confidence rated the Demons number two in the state.

As for Lake View, well, the geniuses didn't bother to give the Chiefs any ranking support for one reason—Lake View was supposed to walk away with the district title.

However, as the AAA district races reach the halfway point, Dumas is out of contention for the 1-AAA trailing front runners Estacado and Canyon by two games.

But in all fairness to both the forecasters and the Demons, Dumas has been bothered by a number of injuries this season.

In fact, the Demons lost two-thirds of their starting backfield before the season got underway. Quarterback Kent Hazen and fullback Bruce Town were kept out of action because of a broken bone in the foot and a knee operation respectively.

But in 3-AAA, somebody forgot to tell the Snyder Tigers that they aren't a good football team.

Snyder, not only has a game and a half lead over Lake View, but the Tigers are also the only team in the district with a better than 500 record. Snyder stands 7-3 and 3-0 on the season. Lake View is next at 3-4 and 1-1.

But again, with due respect to the predictors, Snyder Coach Mike Jenkins believes that Lake View should have been the preseason favorite.

"I definitely felt that if we're going to win the district, then Lake View was the team to beat," said Jenkins.

Looking how the rest of the teams stand in the 3-AAA race, Jenkins' assessment has proven accurate.

After Lake View, only one of the three other teams in the district (Sweetwater) has managed to gain a loop victory. Sweetwater has two loop wins.

Sweetwater's second 3-AAA victory came after Lamesa, who had blanked the Mustangs 12-0, had to forfeit the contest because the Golden Tors used an ineligible player in the game.

The only thing that is keeping the predictors faces from being completely red is 2-AAA.

Yes, the sages picked Fort Stockton to finish on top. The forecasters said that the Fort Stockton-Pecos contest might even decide the district title.

Of course, Fort Stockton has to get past Andrews before the celebrating begins, but last week Fort Stockton and Pecos went into the contest both undefeated in both the district and overall records.

Fort Stockton blanked Pecos 21-0 which kept the Panther's record unblemished at 8-0 and 2-0. Meanwhile, Pecos now has an 8-1 and 2-1 records.

Also, another interesting point, which was even too daring for the experts to pick is the possibility that Fort Stockton might go the entire season without giving up a point.

Earl Scudday

habit of the Pokes in spotting the opposition a quick 14 points in every game. They did it against the Vikings and then again at Miami, thanks to a missed tackle by Bob Breung and a fumble by Dorsett.

The Dolphins didn't need much of an edge, playing in the Orange Bowl where Coach Don Shula now has won 56 games and lost only 9 since he took over the Fish. Playing Shula at Miami is like playing poker with Leonid Brezhnev at the Kremlin—uphill and against the wind all the way!

The Dolphins had their problems in early season because of the injuries to quarterback Bob Griese and defensive line star A.J. Duhe. But those horses are back now and the Miami lads are ready to challenge New England for the AFC East crown. They have the firepower to do it, too.

The Orange Bowl always has something of a jinx for the Cowboys. Dallas lost to Baltimore there in Super Bowl V and to Pittsburgh in SB X. Moon over Miami? The Cowboys would rather play in Podunk!

BEFORE THE JAUNT to Florida last weekend, Landry said a victory over the Dolphins was a must for the Cowboys. But he quickly added that if the Pokes lost, then the upcoming duel with the Packers also would be a must game.

"We'll keep on playing and hoping for the best until we're out of it, mathematically," Landry vowed. "Every game is a key one, in our situation, but no single defeat is absolutely fatal at this point in the schedule."

The new playoff format, with two wild card teams in each conference, probably will keep the Cowboys in the running until the bitter end. Los Angeles and Washington are almost certain to be in the postseason competition, barring a complete collapse, leaving a wild scramble for the other three NFC playoff berths.

Green Bay is a step ahead of Dallas, Minnesota and Atlanta right now, but that could change next Sunday when the Cowboys meet the Pack at Milwaukee. Of the three teams deadlocked at 6-4, Dallas definitely faces the toughest schedule. The Pokes meet three division leaders—Green Bay, Washington and New England—in the final six weeks, while Minnesota meets only Green Bay among the current No. 1 teams.

Atlanta has the easiest road of all, but lacks the big-game, stretch-drive experience that should benefit the other contenders.

ALL SORTS OF good things still are possible for the Cowboys, if they can get their act together. They must eliminate the fumbles and penalties that have handcuffed them in all their big games this season. They deserved an "A" for effort against the Dolphins, but an "E" for execution.

If they don't eliminate the negative and accentuate the positive, then they are going to get to watch the playoffs on television and wait for next year.

A victory over Green Bay would keep Dallas' title hopes alive, at least until the Pokes battle the hated Redskins at Texas Stadium Thanksgiving Day. But a loss to the Packers would trim the Cowboys' chances to slim or none.

Still, as Landry says, you gotta keep trying until they nail the lid on the coffin.

Mixup Gives Allison Dixie Win

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Donnie Allison doesn't have an odometer in his race car, which sometimes makes it hard to prove his mileage on certain business trips he takes each Sunday. But Allison has a pretty good idea when he has gone 500 miles in a race, even if officials or other drivers don't agree with him.

Allison knew he went all 500 miles Sunday in the $185,000 Dixie 500 here, and he knew he traveled the distance faster than the 39 other drivers who were trying.

Although it took more than three hours after the race to confirm it, officials finally proclaimed Allison a two-car length victor over Richard Petty.

Petty, who beat Dave Marcis by one foot, believed he'd won and that Allison was barely a lap behind him.

In the end it was two mistakes made by the two women scoring his car in the race that proved Allison's confusing victory.

Both of Allison's scorecards showed he lost the race to Petty. Allison knew he hadn't. He ordered a painstaking lap-by-lap recheck of each of his 328 laps on both scorecards.

On one, officials found a number of mistakes—made by a rookie scorer.

"At one point that scorer missed three laps," explained Earl Sappenfield, the chief scorer. "There were also two other missed laps on the card."

A close examination of the other scorecard, kept by Allison's veteran team scorer, also picked up a missed lap.

"Fortunately, it was a lap the rookie scorer had caught — although she had missed one lap herself only two laps earlier. By cross-checking in that manner, Allison's victory was proven. But if the two scorers had coincidentally fouled up on the same lap, as sometimes happens, there would have been little chance Allison could have successfully argued his case.

Even as it was, officials changed their minds at one point and gave the victory to Petty, before finding the tricky error and correcting it in Allison's favor.

Allison said it seems things like that happen to him a lot. It shouldn't surprise him. He doesn't run all the races, and he doesn't have a bunch of regular scorers like Petty or Cale Yarborough. There are at least four veterans scoring Petty on each race. Allison usually has to scrape to find two.

Pipe Shipment Reaches Site Of New Oil Port

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Tons of 48-inch oil pipe, the largest in the state, are arriving for use in the $513 million Louisiana Offshore Oil Port.

Two barges, each carrying almost a mile of pipe, arrived in suburban Harvey, La., this week from Texas, where the pipe is manufactured. About 28 more barges are due.

The pipeline will be part of the massive offshore LOOP complex, 18 miles south of Grand Isle, that will handle supertankers carrying imported crude oil. Construction on the port was scheduled to begin later this month.

The 40-foot segments of pipe, each weighing four to five tons, were taken off barges at the H.C. Price Coating Yard along the Harvey Canal.

There they will be inspected and covered with a half-inch coating of asphalt for protection and another 3 inches of concrete to keep them from floating to the surface.

LOOP spokesman Terry Trovato Wednesday said the pipe would be held at the yard for several months before it is laid.

"We haven't even let the contract yet for laying it," he said. "We don't expect to start laying it until January or so."

The pipeline is part of the onshore system that will transport crude oil from the offshore platform to a Lafourche Parish salt dome storage site at up to 4.2 million gallons an hour. Later, about four miles of 56-inch pipe — eight inches larger than that used in the Alaskan Pipeline — will arrive at the Harvey yard.

The pipe is produced by U.S. Steel at Baytown.

The John Hill Record of Achievement for You.

Budget Management. While the caseload of his office has more than tripled since he became Attorney General, John Hill and his staff have been able to absorb the extra work without unnecessary budget increases. He has been able to do more without huge budget increases because he has increased the productivity of his staff — the average caseload for his staff of lawyers has doubled over the last six years. He has returned to the taxpayers $25 for every dollar budgeted, through his successes in the courtroom and in other collections of fines and judgments for the state.

Political Corruption. When John Hill took office "Duval County" meant "political corruption." He changed that. He led a team of prosecutors who obtained 107 indictments against 37 persons and broke the back of local corruption. He has assisted many other local grand juries to combat corruption. Texas government is cleaner today because of his aggressive attacks on corruption.

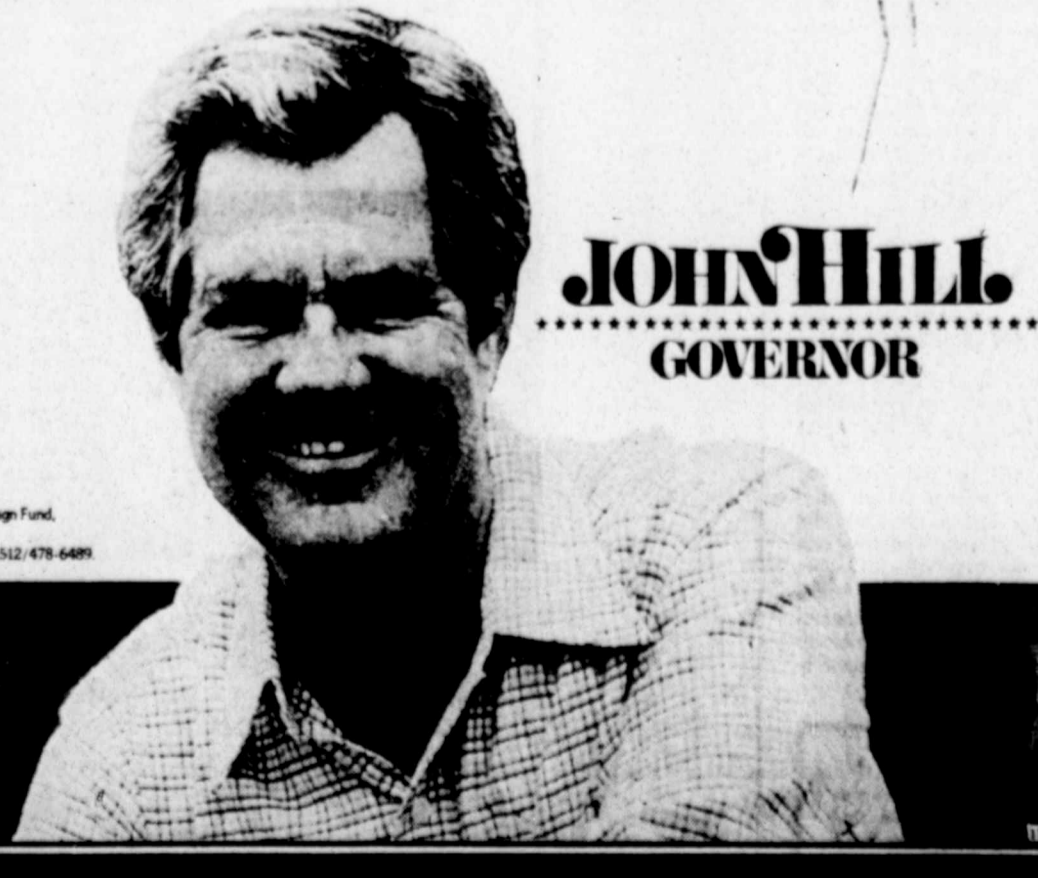

Utility Rates. When the telephone company tried to raise intrastate long distance rates arbitrarily in 1974, John Hill became the first Attorney General in the state's history to challenge a rate increase. He went to court and won. The result was a $25 million savings to Texas businesses and other phone users.

Drug Traffic. John Hill established an Organized Crime Task Force soon after he became Attorney General. Working with federal, state and local law enforcement officers, the Attorney General's office has provided the legal expertise and cooperation to make scores of cases — more than 200 in three South Texas counties alone — against major drug smugglers and traffickers. His efforts to improve law enforcement have benefited every Texan.

Fair Taxation. When major oil companies attempted to escape $60 million in state franchise taxes, John Hill took them to court. And he won. No one else likes to pay taxes, but it's unfair to our taxpayers as a whole when any one group seeks to escape their share of the tax burden.

Consumer Protection. John Hill opposes unnecessary bureaucracies. So when consumer groups sought legislative remedies against fraud, he helped them seek legislation that allowed every Texas citizen and business to effectively protect themselves against fraud — without setting up unneeded government bureaucracy.

Senior Citizens. When nursing home deficiencies came to light in the news media, John Hill moved swiftly to investigate. He established a task force to enforce nursing home laws protecting elderly citizens from abuse, and prompted needed reforms in nursing home regulations.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Early tomorrow you may be much too nervous or impatient to accomplish much of anything. Put off doing the important until later when you calm yourself down.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The fact that your mind will be on too many different things will cause you to be forgetful. Try to focus on one thing at a time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you're pretty good at handling your resources. Tomorrow, you'll let your guard down and could easily submit to an extravagant whim.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Self-discipline will be required tomorrow to subdue your erratic impulses. Don't do anything to make a poor impression on others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your inner feelings are likely to be more apprehensive than intuitive tomorrow and cause you to envision defeat. Be positive.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Teaming up with the big spenders might be fun while you're at it, but it could severely damage your budget. Play in your own league.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If not careful, you might find yourself involved with people who won't carry their share of the burden tomorrow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's possible you may saddle yourself with an unworkable program tomorrow. Allow your better judgment to take over. You'll find the way to sidestep a bad situation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Spur-of-the-moment changes should not be made tomorrow. Consider all the ramifications. Know what you're getting into before jumping in with both feet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take plenty of time to iron out all the details before entering into any agreements tomorrow. Pacts made in haste won't survive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions relating to your work or career are likely to be a bit unstable tomorrow. Be on your toes so as not to make any wrong moves.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Although you'll be fortunate in most areas of your life tomorrow, Lady Luck will desert you when it comes to monetary dealings. Don't take any fliers.

Teens Unlikely To Seek Prenatal Care

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teen-agers and women 45 or older are least likely to seek prenatal care early in pregnancy and most likely to bear low birth-weight children, a government survey shows.

The study by the National Center for Health Statistics said poor women and those who dropped out of school also are more likely to have low birth-weight babies — 5 pounds, 8 ounces or less — who run higher risks of death and disease.

The survey found that from 1969 to 1975 the number of mothers who sought care during the first three months of pregnancy gradually increased. Nearly 76 percent of white mothers first saw a doctor then and 56 percent of black mothers.

Some 17.5 percent of black mothers and 5.5 percent of white mothers received care only in the last trimester. Unwed mothers in general were much less likely to seek care early.

"Women aged 25-29 were most apt to start care early and least likely to receive late or no care," the report issued Thursday said.

The ideal is for a pregnant woman to see a doctor at least once every four weeks for the first 28 weeks of pregnancy, every two weeks until the 36th week and weekly thereafter, according to the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

"This amounts to about 13 visits for a normal 38-week pregnancy," noted the report.

Women were somewhat more likely to start care early with their second children, but after that early care dropped off to only 55.5 percent of mothers having a fifth child, the report said.

These mothers may have their hands full at home, the report said. "The presence of other children in the home, particularly preschool children, may be a critical factor causing a delay in seeking care," it said.

The Carter administration has proposed extending Medicaid coverage to all children of poor families and pregnant women. The bill, called the Child Health Assurance Program, died in the session of Congress that just ended.

Segal's Sculptures To Be On Exhibit

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A retrospective exhibit of sculptures by George Segal will be on display at Walker Art Center through next Jan. 7.

The center says the show "of more than 50 sculptures presents the full range of Segal's work: major environmental pieces such as 'Cinema' and 'The Gas Station' from the 1960s which brought the artist international prominence, wall reliefs reminiscent of classical themes based on the female nude and vibrant-color figure sculptures in surreal environments."

A Very Important Message from Art Linkletter

Dear Friend,
Like most Americans, you must be deeply concerned about how runaway hospital costs affect you. Even the Vice President of the United States has reported that these hospital costs have risen a staggering 1,000% since 1950. And in the next five years they are expected to double again! Incredible? Yes. But the National Home Health Plan can help you cope with today's soaring cost of hospital care.

Everyone is immediately guaranteed acceptance and is eligible for hospital cash protection. Cash for covered hospital stays that's mailed direct to you to help pay for hospital bills, doctor fees, drugs, lab tests, etc. Cash payments that let you budget your other income for everyday living expenses, house payments, or other monthly bills. As those big hospital bills add up... so will your cash benefits.

You don't have to be an insurance expert to understand today's hospital protection needs. One person in every two families will go to the hospital this year. You should take action now to protect your family... and yourself.

Read on and discover all the benefits of the National Home Health Plan, and use the short application below to get your Guaranteed Issue Policy. You will join over 1,600,000 Americans who have the security of National Home Cash Protection. It's a nice feeling.

Sincerely,
Art Linkletter

Performance By Pair In Movie About Judy Garland Wins Praise

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ever see a show where certain performances bowl you over even though not all the movie does? You may get that feeling with "Rainbow," a two-hour film NBC is airing tonight.

It's a dramatization, with music, of the early life and career of the late Judy Garland. Even if you're not registered with the Garland cult, two major talents in the film make it must-viewing.

Michael Parks, cast as her musical tutor and closest adult friend in her days as a young apprentice star at MGM.

About the film: Don't expect it to be a flashy, lurid tale of twisted childhood, evil parents, strong drugs or, in short, a catalogue of youthful grief that spawned the agony of her adult years.

If anything, John McGreevey's adaptation of "Rainbow," a Garland book by Christopher Finch, is almost too low-key and subdued. It emphasizes her talent, not her miseries, rumored or actual.

It's a good idea. But dramatic impact seems a bit lacking in this tale of a show-biz legend who started as a tot singing "Jingle Bells" and hit stardom at 17 as Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz."

With Piper Laurie and Don Murray as her parents, Ethel and Frank Gumm, you see her in vaudeville as the youngest of the three singing Gumm sisters. Mom

IDENTITY CRISIS

LEWISHAM, England (AP) — The south London borough of Lewisham plans to spend some $2,000 on signs telling motorists where they are. "Some people have driven through Lewisham and never even knew they had been there," one borough official complained.

both booking the act and playing piano in it.

Interestingly, the mother isn't done as the classic, pushy stage parent. She's always thinking of their career, but both she and Pop appear as basically decent folks who care for their kids.

There are excursions into parental discord, a discreet depiction of extra-marital affairs and the temporary breakup of the family as Mrs. Gumm takes her youngest daughter to Hollywood.

Also re-told: How George Jessell got the Gummms to change their name, Judy's childhood friendships with Mickey Rooney and Jackie Cooper (the latter directed this film) and how MGM chief Louis B. Mayer happened to put her under contract and on the yellow brick road to fame.

Familiar stuff, this, also her growing moments of a studio child, as what Mayer calls "a valuable property" whose career put her under pressure no child should face.

Alas, despite Cooper's sensitive direction, the film mostly seems to shadow-box, to hint at the girl's problems rather than hit them head-on.

But no way can one fault the gentle, yet powerful scenes of Miss McArdle and Parks together, as student and teacher, scared child and compassionate adult, in an unreal soundstage world.

If they gave Emmys for every great moment in a TV film, these two each would need a pickup truck to tote their statues home.

And Miss McArdle's singing, backed by first-rate arrangements, is as consistently brilliant as was that of the lady she's playing. Yes, of course, she closes the show with "Over the Rainbow."

But she doesn't mimic Judy Garland. She honors her memory.

Inflation Effects Eyed by Firm

NEW YORK (AP) — If the nation's inflation rate maintains a so-called "moderate" rate of 6 percent annually, the house that cost you $50,000 today will be $160,357 in 1998.

And if the inflation rate goes up by 10 percent, the purchase figure for 1998 will be $336,375.

These are some of the cumulative effects of inflation emerging from a study conducted by Alexander & Alexander, a leading brokerage and actuarial firm.

MONOLINGUAL DOG

CARMARTHEN, Wales (AP) — A Welsh farmer took his problem to the trade descriptions department when he found his new sheepdog wouldn't obey orders. The problem? The dog had been trained in English.

In other projections, the firm reported:

—College tuition that now runs around $5,000 annually will jump to $8,954 in 1988 at the 6 percent inflation figure and $16,036 in 1998. At a 10 percent rate, it will be $12,969 by end of the next decade and $33,638 annually 20 years from now.

—Food that costs $100 now will be $321 by 1998 under the 6 percent inflation rate, $673 with a 10 percent rate.

—A car now costing $4,000 will be $12,829 by 1998 under the 6 percent rate, $26,910 under a 10 percent rate.

—A $50 dress will be $160 in 1998 with a 6 percent inflation rate and $336 at a 10 percent rate.

—A 20-cent candy bar will cost 64 cents in 1998 at the 6 percent rate and $1.35 at 10 percent.

Bergland Begins China Visit

U.S. Offers To Assist China

TOKYO (UPI) — The United States has offered to help China develop its immense energy reserves in what would be the first joint economic venture between the two countries since the 1949 Communist revolution. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said today.

The United States would help dig Chinese coal mines, design an atom smasher and build a huge dam on the Yangtze River, he said.

Schlesinger, who arrived in Japan from Peking Sunday, said China and the United States had agreed to hold working level talks on cooperation in five energy related areas: digging coal mines, hydroelectric power, renewable energy, oil and gas and high energy physics.

He said that an exchange of missions of coal mining experts will be carried out "as soon as possible," and that talks on other aspects of the program will get under way early in 1979.

"As a result of our discussions, a substantial agenda for cooperation between our two countries has been established," Schlesinger said.

"This visit to China was a manifestation of an important step in the improvement of Chinese-American relations. We achieved a clear understanding on mutual questions in the energy field. We identified energy projects of mutual benefit to both countries."

continue discussions with the American oil companies on a possible role for them in development of China's offshore oil resources. There will be exchanges of oil and gas experts, but no dates for this were set.

Accompanying Schlesinger to China was a party of 23 scientists and Energy Department officials, and 10 American reporters.

Chicagoans Offer Ballet New Home

CHICAGO (AP) — Some Chicago arts patrons apparently are trying to woo the New York Joffrey Ballet to a new home here, Crain's Chicago Business, a local business newspaper, reports in its Nov. 6 edition.

The weekly paper said local businesses, arts organizations and outside sources are willing to pledge $2 million to lure the financially strapped Joffrey from New York City. Room for the company's ballet school and a warehouse for its gear is also being sought, the paper said. Peter Diggins, Joffrey general administrator, said the company would like to perform more in Chicago, but that he knew of no commitment for a permanent move.

Public's Grievances Exploited By Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is easy to exploit the public's grievances against government by using "angry and simplistic political rhetoric" because government is low in public esteem, according to David Cohen, president of the self-styled citizen's lobby Common Cause.

Cohen said civil service and budget reforms, a sunset system to review government programs and citizens acting to hold government accountable would help restore confidence in government. Cohen's remarks came in a speech prepared for a meeting today of the American Associations of Budget and Program Analysts.

PEKING (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland today began discussions with his Chinese counterparts believed to have centered on imports of American farm machinery and chemicals.

Bergland, on a 10-day visit to China, conferred with Agriculture Minister Yang Li-king, who hosted a banquet Sunday night for the visiting Americans.

Yang told the gathering that once relations between China and the United States are normalized, the two countries could engage in limitless agricultural cooperation.

The Chinese official said the visit by the 16-member Bergland delegation provided an excellent opportunity for an exchange of ideas on agricultural science and technology.

"We believe that our joint efforts will bring about positive results," he said.

Yang said at the banquet that China was anxious to learn agricultural technology from the United States without surrendering its independence.
