

Voter Turnout In City Heavy

By SYLVIA TEAGUE, Avalanche-Journal Staff

General election voting was constant but smooth this morning in Lubbock, with most observers predicting a high voter turnout before the polls close at 7 p.m.

A check of selected voting boxes showed balloting heavier than in 1974, the last non-presidential general election, but lower than in 1970, when a record number of persons voted in Lubbock County.

However, the large turnout apparently was producing no problems and one Lubbock County Clerk spokesman said the election is going "exceedingly smooth."

Voters shouldn't have to spend much time waiting in line to vote because the county is using more voting devices than in the past.

An election judge at Monterey High School termed the continuous flow of voters "very unusual," but said there were no waiting lines.

The League of Women Voters, which is handling inquiries and complaints about the election, had received 25 calls by mid-morning, most of those concerning voter registration problems.

Carolyn Lanier, president of the Lubbock league chapter, said "many people have moved and did not change the address on their voter registration card."

She noted voters should have a yellow registration card rather than a blue out-date card to vote in today's election.

Voters with the blue cards probably still can vote, she said, although they may be required to sign an affidavit that they are eligible to vote.

At two polling places, voting was heavier this morning than in 1970. At Rush Elementary, 500 persons had cast ballots by mid-morning, more than the 420 ballots cast by the same time in 1970. In 1974 at the same time, 306 persons had voted.

The 200 voters at Hutchinson Junior High had exceeded the 161 mid-morning tally for 1970 and the 139 morning voters in 1974.

However, in two other precincts, voting was lighter than in 1970. At Bowie Elementary, 250 persons had voted by 10:30 a.m. That compares to 364 in 1970 and 212 in 1974.

Mid-morning voting at Parsons Elementary totaled 375, compared with 316 in 1974 and 614 in 1970.

County Clerk Frank Guess had projected a Lubbock County turnout of 40,000, which would exceed 1970's record 35,395 voters.

Turnout today was described as unusually heavy in Midland County, the southern part of the sprawling 19th Congressional District. Election officials attributed voter interest to the race between Republican George Bush and Democrat Kent Hance.

Hance, a 35-year-old state senator, is hoping Lubbock voters will be unwilling to vote for him.

Staten Island Ferry Mishap Injures 170

NEW YORK (AP) — A Staten Island ferry crashed against a concrete seawall at the lower tip of Manhattan today as it tried to dock in heavy fog. Police said as many as 170 of the 2,000 persons aboard were injured.

Police said at least 30 of those aboard suffered serious injuries, and 100 others were said to have suffered bruises and cuts in the crash off Battery Park about 7:30 a.m.

There were broken arms, broken legs and lacerated faces from broken glass in the cabin windows, police said. Most of the injured were standing near the bow, according to harbor police.

Mercury Skids To 29 In Area

A-J News Services Election day dawned with the first widespread freezing temperatures of the season over the South Plains.

Dimmitt and Silverton were the coldest area cities at 29 degrees. It was 30 at Floydada, Lamesa, Littlefield and Matador.

The overnight low in Lubbock was 34, enough to produce heavy frost on windshields and vegetation over the city.

City Claims Crackdown Successful

By NANCY ALLEN, Avalanche-Journal Staff The word is out, and apparently Lubbock drivers have heard it, according to the city's public information director, Vaughn Hendrie.

Hendrie announced this morning that as a direct result of Lubbock's Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP), the number of traffic tickets issued here since the program's inception Oct. 2 has increased significantly — by 1,281.

What that total does not reflect, however, Hendrie continued, is that people are slowing down and generally cleaning up their driving acts.

Autopsy Report Awaited In Murder Case

Bentley's 25-year-old girlfriend, Kathy Ann Stalcup, who also lives at 1009 Ave. T, said she last heard from her boyfriend about 2:30 a.m. Oct. 29 when he called to say he could not pick her up at work.

Police Lt. Billy Knox said Miss Stalcup filed a missing persons report at 2 p.m. Oct. 30, and the next day she reported her car — in which Bentley later was found dead — missing.

The woman's 1971 white Ford Galaxy, however, was recovered Thursday in an apartment parking lot in the 1600-block of 16th Street.

Haley Goes To Court

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Alex Haley is defending himself in another lawsuit which claims he "largely copied" from another author to complete his historical novel, "Roots."

HALEY

The story is about the Haley family's African origin and their generations of American slavery.

The new trial for alleged copyright infringement resulted from a suit by Harold Courlander of Bethesda, Md., a novelist and folklorist, and began Monday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan.

Courlander was among the early witnesses at the non-jury trial before Judge Robert Ward, who listened to numerous segments of Roots as the trial opened.

Courlander testified he wrote "The African" after years of studying African ritual, dance, song and culture in the United States, Haiti, the Dominican Republic and on the African continent. He submitted to evidence a long list of his works.

A suit brought against Haley by Margaret Walker Alexander, who claimed he copied from her novel "Jubilee," was dismissed by U.S. District Judge Marvin Frankel last Sept. 21. Frankel ruled against Miss Alexander, a professor of black studies at Jackson State University in Mississippi, saying no author's work was completely original.

Cornelia Wallace Injured

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Cornelia Wallace, Alabama's former first lady, is recuperating from injuries received when she tumbled from a galloping horse in rural Polk County, Fla.

MRS. WALLACE

Mrs. Wallace, who was in Florida campaigning for Democratic gubernatorial nominee Robert Graham, said the horse was running "full blast" Saturday when her saddle slipped and she fell off.

"I have severe strained muscles in the lower back where I landed and a lot of pain and discomfort in moving around and in the sitting position," Mrs. Wallace said, adding that she plans to see a doctor today.

Mrs. Wallace, who was divorced from Gov. George Wallace in January, said it was the first time she had been thrown from a horse.

Pope To Stay In Rome

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II is planning to live for several days in the papal apartments adjoining St. John Lateran, his basilica as bishop of Rome, the Italian news agency ANSA says.

The agency said the pope's vicar for Rome, Cardinal Ugo Poletti, relayed the pontiff's intentions at a meeting with 35 clerics who help administer the Rome diocese.

The Vatican did not confirm the report. The Polish-born pontiff may move into the apartments as early as Sunday when he takes official possession of the basilica and presides over a Mass, ANSA speculated.

The pope was reported to have told Poletti he wants to acquaint himself with life in the Rome diocese both by visiting individual parishes and spending some time at the Lateran palace.

Mrs. De Gaulle Moving

PARIS (AP) — The 78-year-old widow of French leader Charles de Gaulle is moving to a religious rest home here from her vast mansion at Colombey-Les-Deux-Eglises, according to family sources.

The sources said the move to Paris would bring Yvonne de Gaulle closer to her surviving children and grandchildren. She will return in summer to the family mansion, La Boisserie, where, her son, Vice-Adm. Philippe de Gaulle, takes vacations with his family.

Mrs. De Gaulle has lived in strict privacy in La Boisserie since her husband's retirement in 1969 and death the following year.

She always has been a reclusive figure and has rarely been seen at all outside La Boisserie since his death, apart from visits to his grave and that of their daughter in the local cemetery. She is expected to appear there briefly next Thursday morning, the eighth anniversary of De Gaulle's death.

Love At First Sight

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — For Timothy Schwab and Debra Jean Anderson, it must have been a case of love at first sight. At least that's the way Schwab sees it and Debra, his new bride, isn't arguing.

They first met 23 years ago — when they were newborns and had side-by-side cribs at a local hospital nursery.

Schwab claims he still remembers turning his head toward her crib and winking at her. They were born within a half-hour of each other in the same hospital and were delivered by the same doctor.

They discovered the coincidence while going steady in the ninth grade. Although their romance cooled during high school, Schwab rekindled it with a dinner on their common birthday during college.

They were married during the weekend.

Soviet Writer Calls U.S. Discos 'Nirvana For Lonely People'

By NIKKI FINKE

MOSCOW (AP) — A Kremlin journalist is denouncing New York discos as havens of decadence and loneliness where dancers snort cocaine in the bathrooms and "spend a whole night shaking with the lights and dreaming of fame, success and money."

America's young people are stupefied by these distractions, a sort of "nirvana for lonely people who don't want to have contact with anyone and who couldn't anyway," Genrikh Borovic of the official Soviet news agency Tass wrote in Monday's edition of Literary Gazette.

The journalist claimed clever disco operators are exploiting the special sound and light systems, the allure of talentless movie stars and an exclusive admissions policy in order to make a fortune off the unsuspecting young.

"How many lonely people are there in America? Very many!" Borovic said. "In any case the numbers are sufficient that in two years' time the multibillion-dollar, disco industry founded on loneliness has spread rapidly through the country."

Discotheques are practically non-existent in the Soviet Union, and those that do exist bear little resemblance to their Western counterparts aside from the ever-present dance floor and rock music.

Moscow's underground disco, the Blue Bird, attracts young sons and daughters from among the Soviet Union's government elite. They enter at 5 p.m. leave by 10 p.m. and feast on such goodies as cucumbers, tomatoes, fruit juices and other non-alcoholic drinks.

Studio 54, therefore, was quite an eye-ful for Borovic.

Calling it "the most famous discotheque in New York," Borovic ridiculed the huge crowds waiting anxiously outside hoping to be noticed in their "outrageous clothes" or let in to dance.

Only a "privileged few" can enter, the journalist said. "Long black limousines with tinted windshields pull up and the golden fishes of both sexes come out and go serenely through the doors."

Borovic said he got inside because he was accompanied by Rod McKuen, the American poet-singer who recently visited the Soviet Union to record an album.

Borovic did have praise for the "first-class" audio system that cost $300,000, and the electronic lighting effects synchronized with the music.

But the lounges were a different matter.

"...in the men's toilet on the second floor a man in a bright red velvet smoking jacket was attentively looking at his features in the mirror," Borovic wrote. "Unhurriedly he poured out of a yellow box a pinch of white powder, placed it on his thumbnail and snorted it. Everything was done calmly, without any hurrying, without looking at any doorways, very openly, in front of everyone."

Visiting another Manhattan discotheque called Eternity, Borovic said he was disturbed by the multitude of mirrors around the dance floor that permitted young people to have themselves as a partner.

"Seeing yourself in the surroundings of a crowd, the colorful lights, it is easy to forget a dull job and to feel yourself the star of some gigantic Broadway musical costing thousands of dollars," Borovic wrote. "One can spend a whole night hallucinating."

Workers Mend Leaking Line

COALGATE, Okla. (AP) — Workmen expect to complete repairs later this week on a natural gas line that began leaking in this southern Oklahoma community Monday.

Fire Chief Arvard McLellan said the leak occurred in a residential area near a manhole and eventually filled the town's sewer system with gas.

He said officials of the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. measured the content of gas in the sewer main and found it to be 100 percent.

"It could have blown up the whole town," McLellan said.

He said by Monday night the amount of gas in the sewer line had been reduced to about 10 percent.

Repairs made Monday are temporary, the fire official said, adding it would take several days to replace the faulty 4-inch gas line.

"Things are about back to normal, but we're still watching it," McLellan said.

The leak was discovered in a residential area north of Coalgate's business district. Residents in a 10-block area were alerted to be careful and fire department employees blocked traffic from the area for much of the day.

There were no fires or injuries, however, officials said.

Smoke Detector Firm To Pay Fine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of defective smoke detectors could turn into "blow torches" and burn down houses instead, the government says. The manufacturer, which has recalled many of the devices, now has agreed to pay a $100,000 fine.

Pittway Corp. of Northbrook, Ill., facing the alternative of federal legal action, has agreed to pay the monetary penalty in connection with the smoke detectors. The Consumer Product Safety Commission said Monday.

The commission ordered the penalty concerning the BRK Series 749 smoke detector, saying the devices are fire hazards and that Pittway violated the law by failing to tell the commission about a defect. Pittway's agreement to pay the fine does not mean the company admits violating any law.

A Pittway subsidiary, BRK Electronics, made 115,000 of the smoke detectors, and they were sold by BRK, AMF, ITE and Sears, Roebuck & Company.

A recall, begun after the commission learned of the problem from other sources, has resulted in 60,000 of them being returned, the commission said.

The commission alleged that the firm deliberately failed to notify CPSC of a design error in the Series 749 smoke detectors, as required by law.

The defect could cause a resistor failure, the commission alleged. "The failure of the resistors could be accompanied by a short, but intense flaming condition, referred to as the 'blow torch effect,'" the CPSC said.

The commission said that an official of the company, after learning of fires caused by the detector, tried to order a recall a year before the smoke detectors were recalled. But the commission said this official was overruled by King Harris, executive vice president of the BRK division.

Harris said in a telephone interview that he acted because he was not certain then that "it was a generic problem with the resistor" that could cause fires in any of the 115,000 units.

He said that when the recall was announced in January 1977 the company carried it out in a way that resulted in more than half of the units being returned, an unusually large percentage.

"Pittway-BRK should have informed the commission immediately upon learning of such a defect," CPSC said. "Instead, the commission learned of the defect from other sources and contacted Pittway-BRK."

The smoke detectors were made between March 1974 and September 1975. They are 110-volt AC powered detectors with a suggested retail price of $39.95. No battery-powered detectors are involved in the recall.

The commission said anyone who has one of the Sears units should contact the nearest Sears store and anyone with one of the other recalled smoke detectors should contact BRK.

TRAVEL UP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans spent more than $172 billion in 1977 for travel of all sorts, $128 billion exclusively for road transportation, reports the Highway Users Federation. The organization said an analysis of U.S. Department of Commerce statistics revealed that spending for travel set a record, more than $22 billion above the previous high of $150 billion spent in 1976.

DR. LAMB

Cancer Of Colon

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please answer some questions for me about cancer? Can cancer of the colon or rectum be found by a finger examination? If so, will this cause fluid to accumulate in the stomach, hips, feet and legs? Will the bowel movement be black, mixed with blood? Will this cause constipation, and is milk of magnesia harmful to take as a laxative? What is the approximate life span from the time of detection of cancer of the colon?

DEAR READER — I am glad you are asking about this because cancer of the colon and rectum is the second most common cause of cancer deaths in both men and women. A high percentage of these can be found by a finger examination of the rectum that, of course, implies that the cancer is in the rectal area within the reach of the finger.

That's one of the reasons a good, competent medical examination will include a finger examination of the rectum in both men and women. To not do such an examination really means to fail to provide a complete, adequate, physical examination which could detect cancer of the rectum.

The finger examination itself will certainly not cause the accumulation of fluid in the hips, stomach or anywhere else. If you have cancer involving the obstruction of the drainage of the lymph nodes in the pelvic area, then you might expect some swelling and other problems.

Anytime there is an unexplained amount of blood in the bowel movement, a person should have an examination. It can be a sign of cancer. Blood from higher up in the digestive tract may be black because of the digesting process on the blood itself.

Cancer of the rectum can cause constipation but, of course, most cases of constipation are caused by other problems, usually poor dietary habits and lack of proper bowel function. Frankly, I am not enthusiastic about using any chemical laxative, Milk of Magnesia or others.

Bulk laxatives are all right for individuals who do not get enough bulk in their diet, but most of the chemical laxatives, if they are taken, persistently, lead to chronic laxative habits that cause bowel problems rather than relieve them. They certainly have no place in the treatment of cancer of the bowels.

The best approach to preventing constipation is a good diet that contains bulk and regular living patterns.

To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Spastic or Irritable Colon and Constipation. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the important signs of cancer of the colon is a change in bowel habit. If a person has a normal pattern, and then develops persistent diarrhea for no cause, or if a person suddenly develops constipation for no apparent cause, it's time for a medical examination.

You can't tell how long a person is going to live after a cancer of the bowels has been found, unless you know how far advanced the cancer really is. A small cancer detected and removed sufficiently early can be completely cured. That's why a rectal examination is so important.

If the cancer has already spread, it is another matter. Therefore, I can't give you any exact answer to that question. I would like to point out, though, that individuals with cancer of the bowels that have been operated upon early enough, even if it is not early enough to induce a complete cure, often live a comfortable life for years afterward.

Water Board Defends Itself Against Charges

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff
 Water district taxes here are much too high because of the district's "questionable" budgeting practices, the Lubbock Property Owners Association (LPOA) said Monday.

The group accused High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 of hoarding a "huge surplus" of funds while simultaneously raising taxes. The extra money should have been returned to the public via a tax cut, said Jack House, president of the association.

House also called it a "slap in the face to taxpayers" that the district has yet to adopt a formal budget for 1979. "It is inconceivable to me that any governmental entity would set a tax rate, start collecting taxes and — with less than two months before the new year begins — still not have a budget of how those taxes will be spent," he said.

"We cannot see any kind of justification" for such fiscal policies, House said at a meeting of the water district's board of directors.

The board defended itself against the charges. Directors said the district's management has been conservative and that the appearance of year-end budget surpluses is the result of a cash flow problem.

The water district covers Lubbock and all or part of 14 other counties in the South Plains and Panhandle areas. It is responsible for such activities as regulating the underground water supply through the issuing of water-well drilling permits; assisting communities in obtaining and conserving water; educating

Airport Reception Slated For Nixon

DALLAS (AP) — About 75 friends of Richard M. Nixon are expected to attend a private reception in honor of the former President during his brief stopover at Dallas-Fort Worth airport Friday.

The reception, closed to the public and press, is being hosted by Ron Walker, Nixon's special assistant from 1969-72. Walker, who coordinated Nixon's travels, now runs an "event management company" here.

Nixon will arrive at 2:45 p.m. at the American Airlines terminal, attend the reception and leave later Friday afternoon via a private plane for Shreveport, La., where he plans to visit retiring U.S. Rep. Joe Waggoner.

He is also scheduled to visit Biloxi, Miss., on Saturday at the invitation of Sens. John Stennis and James Eastland.

A spokesman for Walker said Republican Party and city officials were not notified of Nixon's visit because it is a "private, not a political affair."

the public, especially irrigation farmers, about water usage; and making studies and maps of water reserves.

As governmental entities go, the water district is a small operation, House noted. This calendar year, he said, the district is spending about $456,000.

The district's 1978 income totals $482,000 — $437,000 from taxes (the district levies a property tax of 5 cents per $100, based on county valuations), and $45,000 from fees and miscellaneous revenue.

What concerns House and other LPOA directors is that with this year's projected budget surplus, the district will have accumulated by the end of 1978 a cash reserve of nearly $290,000.

House said this is not unusual for the district, which has a "track record of excessive cash reserves." He said the water district has a surplus fund equal to about 65 percent of what the district spends each year.

"We've been led to believe it's not constitutionally correct to maintain these reserves," House said. He said the water district should cut its tax rate so to "return a reasonable amount of this money to the taxpayers."

The district has had a 5-cent tax rate the past several years. The district did lower the rate to 3 cents in 1977, but returned it to its previous level for this year.

"We feel this board is being derelict in its duties in raising the rate from 3 to 5 cents. There is no justification at all" in light of the big surpluses, House said.

Had the rate been left at 3 cents for this year, the water district could have returned about half of its accumulated reserves to the public — and still have $150,000 left over, House said.

The property owners' group called on the water district to:

- Eliminate duplication of effort concerning water conservation education.
- House said money could be saved if the district works better with public schools.
- Ban its employees from using district-owned vehicles for personal business and for rides to and from work. The LPOA is asking other governmental entities to do the same.

—Increase the fees charged to persons who directly benefit from water-district services.

—Use the increased revenues and the drop in spending to cut taxes. House suggested that the district aim at cutting its tax rate to 1 cent.

House said the association will be making similar pitches to other governmental entities.

Water district officials said they will take the group's remarks into consideration, but that they feel the cash reserves are needed for emergencies. One reason for the reserves is that the district has spent wisely and budgeted revenues conservatively, the district said.

Robert Green, a member of the LPOA board of directors, said the group will be going after other governmental entities about their surpluses, too. The county's local governments have a total "70 million surplus, and it cannot be justified," Green said.

Such reserves could be translated into "tremendous" tax relief, he added.

Banowsky Urges Cooperation

Dr. William S. Banowsky called Monday for increased efforts at cooperation between the business and academic communities during an address at the President's Council of Lubbock Christian College.

The guest speaker said, "The free enterprise system is doomed when the academic community loses faith in our system. There is no greater resource in our country than the academic faculties, but they don't know the resourcefulness of the working world. We need to build bridges between the academic and business communities and I think now we have a greater chance to do that. I thought once it was going to fly apart in the 1960's."

He added that isolation and ignorance creates tension between the academic and business communities and that the academic community is one of the most sheltered in the world.

Banowsky stressed that the United States would not have higher education without the business community who paid the bills in private institutions. He added that the public institutions of higher learning were a phenomena of the 20th century, adding that private institutions of higher education have been in existence since long before the United States was formed.

The former Lubbock minister said that institutions of higher learning should not be autonomous islands from the societies they were built to serve. He added there is a separation of the fields of knowledge and faith today.

Banowsky said that the business and academic communities are attacking each other today and that people are apathetic and ignorant of the free enterprise system. He added that there is a need to preserve economic freedoms of the business world today.

Two Suits Name Hospital

Two district court suits were filed Monday against Methodist Hospital, with plaintiffs contending two children sustained unwarranted injuries during tonsillectomy operations.

Each suit claims a child was injured through use of electrical cauterization equipment.

One suit alleged Susan Renee Bellville, daughter of James O. Bellville of Lubbock, sustained severe burns on the left thigh after a ground plate with electrodes was placed on the limb.

The patient had to have skin and underlying tissue surgically removed and underwent plastic surgery of the area, the suit alleges.

The other suit alleges Mark Hulsey, son of Harry L. Hulsey of Lubbock, was injured while undergoing a tonsillectomy July 27 when equipment was placed against his face. The suit says the child, who, according to the petition, was 23-months-old at the time, suffered a deep burn across his left cheek and left side of his mouth and lips. The burn left a permanently disfiguring scar, the suit says.

Sybron Corporation, which according to the petition, designed, manufactured and constructed the equipment, was also named a defendant in that suit.

The suits were filed in 137th District Court.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

'Dominos' Not Down Yet

REMEMBER THE domino theory? It was much heard during the height of the Vietnam war as a primary justification for preventing at all costs a Communist takeover throughout the Indochina peninsula.

If Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia fell, the argument went, they in turn would topple Thailand, Malaysia and the other economically weak and politically shaky Southeast Asian lands beyond.

Indochina is now Communist, although far from harmoniously so. And the onetime potential dominos have become something called ASEAN—the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

ASEAN GROUPS Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia and the Philippines in something that is short of a full-fledged alliance, but much more than a paper expression of regional solidarity such as the fractious Organization of African States.

The politics of most of the five members still leave considerable to be desired from a Western democratic point of view and problems are a common denominator of their economies. But in both respects, they are looking much more robust today than in that dark period when Vietnam was about to go under and, it was feared, take them along.

Particularly interesting under the circumstances is that the U.S. is not a member nor is it calling the plays for the members.

ASEAN certainly has the best wishes and assistance as required of the U.S., but it is essentially a creation of the five Southeast Asian members for their mutual security and economic development.

It has had some interesting effects on the politics of the region.

WITHIN IT, Malaysia, Singapore and Indonesia have managed to put aside squabbles that had made them vulnerable to outside manipulation and the Philippines and Malaysia have turned off what had been a very low-voltage territorial dispute over northeast Borneo.

ASEAN's current major problem may well be its increasing popularity in the very quarters which once seemed to threaten it. All the major Communist powers in the area are showing it marked signs of favor.

The Vietnamese may see in ASEAN both a source of assistance for their tattered economy and political support in the mounting conflict with their Chinese neighbors. An eventual bid for membership is not inconceivable, although not likely under the present circumstances to be favorably received.

ASEAN for the moment is playing it cool, very cool, responding cordially to all parties but avoiding involvement in the inter-Communist feud.

So much for dominos. It's an entirely new game in Southeast Asia these days.

Good Work--If You Can Get It

NEW ORLEANS—At the top of my yellow tablet I had written, "Debate on Repeal of Right-to-Work Laws, Loyola University," and below that heading were the points I intended to argue:

- (1) Morality, (2) Freedom, (3) Effect on unions and economy.

My opponent this October afternoon was a towering Jesuit priest, an authority on labor relations, a passionate defender of trade unionism, and a constant adviser to unions in the New Orleans area.

Opening for the affirmative, in favor of repeal, he too had prepared an outline on a yellow tablet. And behold. His first three points were:

- (1) Morality, (2) Freedom, and (3) Effect on unions and economy.

Perhaps there are other issues—abortion would be one—on which disagreement is as total and diametric, but there cannot be many controversies that divide liberals and conservatives as completely as right-to-work.

Either you believe in the principle that no man should be compelled to pay tribute to a union as the price of holding a job, or you do not believe.

THE ISSUE WAS to come to a head in Missouri today, as voters take sides on Amendment 23. The proposition would outlaw the union shop. If it carries, Missouri would become the 21st right-to-work state, and because of Missouri's importance in industry, an affirmative vote would be influential elsewhere.

The issue also will figure heavily in the New Mexico gubernatorial election, where Republican

Joe Skeen is urging right-to-work as a key point in his campaign.

The Jesuit father's argument, if I can summarize it fairly, is that right-to-work laws weaken the workers' bargaining power, and are therefore "morally reprehensible at their very core."

As for freedom, a naked rugged individualism cannot be sanctioned when it interferes with the common good. In the interest of "genuine freedom," individual rights often are restricted.

As for Point Three, right-to-work laws are union-busting laws; they have no other real purpose; they depress wages and contribute to industrial unrest.

And besides, it is manifestly unfair to permit free riders to enjoy the benefits of a contract negotiated by a union without paying their share of the union's expenses.

SPEAKING FOR the negative, against repeal of Section 14 (b) of Taft-Hartley, I argued precisely the opposite view.

When labor and management gang up in a union shop agreement, compelling every worker to join a union in 30 days or be fired, morality goes out the window.

This is brute coercion, striking at the very essence of human existence: the right to earn one's living. It is simply beyond me how the union shop possibly could be defended as a "moral" exercise of power.

The same arguments apply to the matter of freedom. My friend the Jesuit priest was speaking Newspeak, the language of Orwell in "1984."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

 The Cat & Me 'ouse

MY FRIENDS down at the Occupational Safety and Health Administration are failing in their duty to protect me from Dentist the Menace.

Some time back, I wrote a piece about Smokey, Jim Granberry's Mama Catz. Overnight, this turned the has-been-mayor into an occupational hazard of mine.

OSHA has a clear Congressional mandate to protect us working types from occupational hazards.

So where were the omnipresent OSHA inspectors when I needed them the other night?

Actually, I had just about forgotten the column that brought catastrophe my way. It was an innocent paragraph or two about this Republican cat that had escaped from the Granberry home only to be found and returned.

In the meantime, she had gotten mixed up with a Democrat cat and in due course littered the homestead.

GRANBERRY HAD told his five young'ns they couldn't keep the kittens in the Smokey-filled room because they were Democrats. He knew they were Democrats "because they have their eyes closed."

I considered it my duty then—and still do—to alert the American public to this political catcall. But I am now paying the penalty for my journalistic bravery.

I was on the 'phone in my own home, late at night, when the doorbell rang and My Sweet Wife opened the door.

In sprang Jim and Edwina Granberry, Jack and Carol Shropshire and a Confederate gray kitty cat who was introduced to me simply as "Reb." The Shropshires denied complicity but I am thinking of filing a civil anti-trust suit against them for conspiring with the Granberrys. My grounds are that I won't trust them any more.

"I waited until Smokey had another litter," Granberry said, "and this is your kitty."

"Oh, no it ain't," I said.

"YES, IT IS," he insisted. "And I want you to know that this is a House Cat."

"But mine is not a Cat House," I protested.

Ignoring my categorical objections to the cataclysmic disaster catapulted upon me, Granberry catered to his own whim with a catachrestic cataloging of his catty reasons for catching me unprotected in my own cathedral.

I thought his caterwauling would never get to the catastasis.

"With your reputation as somewhat of a rebel political analyst," Granberry wrote and read, "it seems only appropriate that our rebel political cat be allowed to team with you as you open the eyes of liberals to the wonderful world of conservatism."

"I KNOW YOUR political philosophy would dictate you to provide a home for little Reb rather than having him placed in a government-supported institution," he continued. "Little Reb could learn many things from you: Democrat demagoguery, Republican rhetoric and May magniloquence..."

"Enough!" I cried, beseeching Granberry just to leave the Grancat and be off before I exposed his cataphrenia to the world.

Well, ultimately, he left ("But he wasn't in his Cadillac," said My Sweet Wife, who keeps using puns despite my objection to them) and little Reb was bedded down for the night.

Next morning, Reb sprang onto my bed and sank all four paws and his teeth into my good right arm simultaneously.

Well, I don't want to be catty about it, but that kitty could be the catalyst for a political catharsis at our house unless we can dump him on one of the neighbors.

I'm kind of thinking about leaving him on the doorstep of the Bill Lins, who live catty-cornered across the street.

JUSTICE Department lawyers contend that federal Judge Halbert O. Woodward should have presumed the Lubbock school district guilty of causing segregation until it proved otherwise.

Their argument goes against the grain of what the schools teach about the American system of justice: that a person is presumed innocent until he is proved guilty.

The Gov'tment lawyers cited a 1973 Supreme Court decision to bolster their position.

The burden of proof shifts to the defendant school board if it claims that population shifts—and not its own actions—caused historic segregation to spread into other neighborhood schools, the Gov'tment contends.

That's about like having to prove you didn't speed through a 30-mph zone today because you were caught speeding through a 55-mph zone last year.

Mr. Jimmy Weaves Tangled Web

WASHINGTON—President Jimmy Carter probably doesn't deserve to be called the Artful Dodger, for that was a light-fingered rascal in a Dickens novel. But Carter knows how to make his fingers buck a hot issue off his desk. Twice in two days, I saw how it was done.

Done, of course, on the highest principles, done by his infidellers who are becoming skillful at the dodge.

First instance, four of our honorable Fourth Estate were having lunch and totalling up the number of Congressmen, now past the 100 mark, who one way or another have not behaved as honest men should.

Nothing much happens to Congresscrooks who get hauled up before one of the ethics committees of House or Senate. A reprimand appears to be the top punishment.

BUT A BORN-again Baptist and human rightist now rides the range, and somehow the most cynical of the press expected cleaner politics because of him.

So long as a national leader will see, hear and speak no evil of convicts like Charlie Diggs and Daniel Flood, he may be observing the separation of powers, but he is playing the moral hypocrite.

What can Carter do? I went in and discussed it with one of his spokesmen who said the President wouldn't think of "policizing" in another branch of government, and there was the dodge.

The dodge means giving the fast shuffle to the subject of clean government, and full powers to Carter. Bert Lance could not have done it better. The President has powers to pardon and if he can do that he can take citizenship from proven enemies of the people.

There would be a lot more honest Congressmen and a much better country if Jimmy were determined to bring such blessings about.

SECOND INCIDENT of Artful Dodgerism in Mr. Jimmy's household jumped out of the Oct. 17 Wall Street Journal. I called this special incident to the attention of an appropriate State Department official, who assured me "something" would be done but he didn't know when or how. The dodge again?

It goes back into the wicked past of the mid-1970s and before when American businessmen were brought up before Senate investigators for doing what comes naturally in foreign trade.

They were making payoffs or bribes to Middle East government officials in order to sell for lots of petrodollars the manufactured goods which otherwise would have been sold by salesmen of companies in Japan, France, Germany and Britain.

Once the matter was made public, the Justice

Department brought indictments, but now it appears quite certain that the American-salesmen gave these "bribes" with the knowledge and consent of their own government.

In the Wall Street Journal of reference, the prominent Chicago lawyer, Alexander Hehmyer, quoted the chief of the Justice Department's criminal division as saying:

"If there was extensive acquiescence (to the foreign bribes) by Federal officials, it would be a very troublesome objection to our prosecution."

Trade Policies Adrift In Import Backwaters

(Sixth in a series)
 "THE JAPANESE have done more for the American consumer than Ralph Nader," a government economist said privately a while ago.

His meaning: cheaper imports—whether steel from Japan, jogging shoes from Korea or textiles from Pakistan—help keep down prices you pay for these and a multitude of other goods.

The weakness in the U.S. dollar has become a prime factor in fueling the speedup of inflation in 1978 and pulling up prices of the once-cheap imports.

Every 1 percent decline in the dollar's buying power in terms of Japanese yen, German marks or other major currencies has added an estimated 1/10 of 1 percent to consumer prices across-the-board. And imported materials, metals, foods are part of virtually everything you buy (whether or not you realize it).

MEANWHILE, ACTIONS and inactions by Congress in the past session may force the Treasury to slap more duties on a long list of imports and intensify the already powerful drive toward protectionism in this nation.

Instead of being geared to fighting inflation, our trade policies are swinging toward spurring inflation!

Instead of encouraging cheap imports to curb the price spiral in our nation and protecting U.S. workers from unfair foreign competition in other, more direct and sound ways, we are moving to restrict the imports.

Our policies are upside down! Evidence of the inflation-offsetting effect of imports is abundantly available.

WHOLESALE PRICES in general rose 66 percent between 1970-76. But for clothing, some of which the U.S. imports from developing countries, wholesale prices rose only 28 percent.

And prices for such consumer electronics as TV sets and stereos actually fell 25 percent during that span.

But the danger is that "there is a growing demand from producers in industrialized countries for protection in a wide range of products, from petrochemicals to bicycle tires and tubes," says the World Bank in a new "World Development Report."

If these pressures are not resisted, import curbs "will inevitably tend to push up prices in the industrialized countries, adding to the already difficult problem of persistent inflation."

You, the U.S. consumer, pay heavily for import limits designed to protect jobs of workers in sheltered industries.

* RELIEF FROM imports for sugar producers already costs you an estimated $660 million a year in higher prices, and sugar producers are lobbying for even more costly import restraints.

* Import quotas on meat, though recently relaxed cost you up to $800 million annually.

SOME PEOPLE DON'T EXAGGERATE. THEY JUST REMEMBER BIG

New Cotton Qualities Unknown

LAS CRUCES (Special) — In 1968 Dr. Dick Davis, an agronomist with New Mexico State University's Agricultural Experiment Station, began working to develop a hybrid cotton which could be greatly increased the $50 million generated each year by New Mexico's cotton industry.

"While we have gotten excellent yields from our experimental hybrid cotton," Davis says, "we don't know what effect some of the unique fiber qualities of hybrid cotton will have on spinning."

"However, we have no reason to believe that the spinning properties of hybrid cotton will be inferior to the average spinning properties of the two parents. They may possibly be better than the commercial Acala grown in New Mexico."

Davis says that in the field hybrid cotton can be distinguished by its large yellow flowers, inherited from its Pima ancestors, and by the plant's shape and the color of its foliage, which more closely resemble the American-Egyptian type of cotton rather than the upland of Acala cotton types commonly grown in this area.

A soft-spoken man who prefers working in the spaciousness of cotton fields to being confined to an office that is eight feet long and nine feet wide, Davis says he decided to begin work on hybrid cotton 10 years ago.

At that time, America's cotton industry was facing a bleak future. Production was down and consumers were turning to the new polyester materials rather than cotton, and no reversal of the trend was in sight.

At that same time, Davis was looking for a way to increase cotton production. Then, he happened to visit the nursery of a Las Cruces plant pathologist who had specimen crosses of dwarf upland and Pima cotton. While those crosses weren't refined enough to be used by commercial growers, Davis realized that, with proper research and development, they ultimately had potential as commercial hybrid cotton.

It took Davis eight years to develop parental stock for hybrid cotton. "And in a sense, that phase of our research is still not finished," Davis says. "We will always be looking for superior parental stock."

But, for the moment, Davis thinks the parental stock he has now is adequate enough to concentrate on the second phase of his research, which is testing the combinability of that parental stock. "We have about 20 male sterile stocks and about six restorer stocks," he says. Then he explained that "restorer stock is used to pollinate the male sterile stock, with the resulting seeds being hybrid seeds."

Seed of several hybrids were planted at NMSU's Plant Science Center south of Las Cruces.

"We are harvesting the cotton from these hybrids and will begin testing it for strength, fineness and staple, or the length of its fibers," he says.

After those tests are completed in NMSU laboratories, Davis will then send the cotton to Clemson, S.C., and Knoxville, Tenn., where its fiber quality will be tested in spinning.

"Depending on those results," Davis says, "we may be able to release hybrid cotton for New Mexico in three or four years." He adds that "this winter we will release to all interested seed firms a number of parental stocks that may have utility in Texas and the Southeast." He adds that "these are a different type of hybrid than we plan to use in New Mexico."

Davis' research is funded in part by a grant from Cotton Inc.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain prices fell Monday in mostly local pre-election Day trading on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Commission house and local selling combined with light harvest-time sales to push soybean, wheat, corn and oat prices lower across the board.

Analysts said the absence of some traders before the Election Day holiday and selling by speculators unwilling to hold long or buying positions over the holiday combined to yield lower bids.

Soybean price losses of 7 1/2 to 16 1/2 cents came despite traders' expectations that the government's weekly export report, due after the close, would show unusually large foreign soybean shipments.

A weekend statement by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin that the Soviet grain crop this year would exceed Agriculture Department forecasts depressed prices at the open. Also, reports that Indian grain production and worldwide palm oil production would reach record levels encouraged some selling.

Lawyers Say Davis Target Of Extortion

HOUSTON (AP) — The murder-for-hire trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis got off to a bang.

After one day of testimony, there were these developments, in and out of court in Houston and at Austin:

— An FBI agent confirmed an extortion attempt was made on Davis.

— A defense attorney contended the defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, tried to hire someone to kill Davis.

— A prosecutor imposed a gag rule on the prosecution.

— Both sides raised conspiracy arguments.

— The presiding judge recessed court until 1 p.m. today, permitting jurors to vote and a defense lawyer to argue in Austin for Davis' release on bond.

The million-dollar defense team suggested Monday that Davis himself was a target not only of an extortion attempt but also a potential contract killing.

Chief defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, cross-examining FBI Agent Ron Jannings, said: "Did you know Priscilla Lee Davis tried to hire David Binyon to kill Cullen Davis?"

Prosecutor Tolly Wilson objected to the question and Judge Wallace Moore sustained it.

But outside the courtroom, defense lawyer Phil Burleson said: "We contend that David Binyon is the person Priscilla Davis attempted to hire to kill Cullen."

Burleson identified Binyon only as a Houston man involved with a car dealership. When Agent Jannings was asked in court if Binyon was a confidential informant, he replied:

"I respectfully decline to answer."

Almost as puzzling was the disclosure by Jannings that the FBI had been involved late last year and in early 1978 in the investigation of an extortion attempt directed at Davis.

Again outside the courtroom, defense lawyer Steve Sumner said: "The extortion came in the form of a letter and then there were subsequent phone calls."

"...the FBI was called in and put recording devices on the phone, but nobody was ever caught. The extortion went to his (Davis) being killed if he didn't pay the money."

Sumner said Davis was more than a little distressed at the unsuccessful effort by federal agents to identify and apprehend the extortionist.

Haynes questioned Jannings at length about a series of meetings among three principals in the Davis saga — Priscilla, her husband's chief accuser David McCrory and karate expert Pat Burleson.

The defense contends the trio conspired to frame Davis on charges that he solicited a gunman to kill Joe Eidson, the presiding judge in his long and bitter divorce case.

The state said Davis, 45, tried to draw McCrory into a scheme to kill Eidson and others, including three witnesses who testified against him last year in an Amarillo murder trial. Davis was acquitted there in the shooting death of his young step-daughter.

And finally, state attorney Wilson imposed a "gag rule" on his younger colleagues, to which prosecutor Jack Strickland quipped: "I think it's very appropriate. I've gagged several times today."

Production Of Oil Hits Record Level

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Daily oil production in Argentina set a record in September, according to YPF, the state-owned oil company.

It was the third month this year that a former record had been topped, the company said.

Daily average petroleum output totaled 464,877 barrels a day during September. The previous record of 457,877 barrels was set in August. Before that, the record was 451,556 barrels in May.

Texas PUC Examiner Denies Bid

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas Public Utility Commission hearing examiner has refused to pull Texas Utilities Co. into an investigation of the conglomerate's subsidiaries.

Examiner Philip Ricketts turned down requests Monday from consumer groups to include the company in a probe of Texas Electric Service Co., Dallas Power & Light and Texas Power & Light.

Lane Denton, representing a group of TPL customers in Waco, said case intervenors will appeal Ricketts' ruling to the three-member commission. An appeal could delay a scheduled Dec. 18 start of investigation hearings.

Attorneys for the three subsidiary companies balked during a pre-hearing conference at talk of retroactive customer refunds being ordered.

"We do not think that that is a proper remedy," Earl Nye of Dallas Power & Light Co said at a pre-hearing conference.

The commission ordered a probe of transactions between the sister companies after questions arose during a TESCO rate case.

"If anything is found to be wrong, and if refunds are to be made," said John Bell, commission general counsel, "they should be made retroactive."

Bell said during a lunch break that if refunds are ordered, they should date to the time of alleged improper transactions, December 1977.

TESCO serves a 48-county region, including the cities of Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Midland, Odessa, Arlington and Big Spring. TPL has customers in 51 counties.

Retroactive refunds should not be based on isolated transactions, Nye said.

Among items previously included in the investigation are TESCO's sale of electricity generated from its cheapest natural gas supply to TPL. In exchange, TESCO acquired ownership in the Martin Lake power plant. DPL also bought an interest in the plant and lignite reserves from TPL, but not in exchange for electricity.

Selling electricity from the lowest priced gas supply increased TESCO customers' bills, Bell has said.

At the pre-hearing conference, Ricketts added several items to the investigation, including uranium rights acquisition among the companies.

Jackie Feared For Personal, Financial Security

Reprinted from Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis by Stephen Birmingham. Copyright 1978 by Stephen Birmingham. All rights reserved. By arrangement with Grosset & Dunlap, Inc. Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

EDITORS NOTE: "The unfolding saga of Jacqueline Onassis has contained murder, betrayal, suspense, powerful men who have used and misused our beautiful heroine," writes Stephen Birmingham in his new biography, "Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis." Yet, in the end, she manages to triumph over them all. In this part, Jackie loses her second husband and gains a job.

By STEPHEN BIRMINGHAM

Child of the Depression that she was, Jackie continued to be uneasy about her financial future and that of her children.

Even after her remarriage to one of the richest men in the world, she harbored a widow's fear of poverty and old age with no one to care for her.

She may have wondered how much could she really count on from Onassis? In terms of marriage and romance, he had no great record of stability. Where would she be if he tired of her, as he had tired of other women?

Once she had complained to a friend, "You know, everyone talks about how rich I am. I'm not really rich. I have a few thousand in my checking account, some savings, a few stocks and bonds." Then she added with a nervous laugh, "Of course, there are a lot of things I can charge on Olympic Airways."

New tales of Jackie's miserliness coupled with extravagance began to circulate. A former White House aide alleged that, after her elegant parties, Jackie ordered all unfinished drinks poured back into the bottles and decanters they had come from. A former maid announced that Jackie saved S & H Green Stamps.

A New York real-estate man said he could not sell the apartment below Jackie's because she hung her panty hose on the window ledge to dry. It was also reported that she insisted her stockings and panty-hose be ironed. It was said that, after washing her handkerchiefs, she dried them by pressing them wet against a mirror.

It was also said that her bill for clothes ran to $1 million a year, that she bought compulsively everything in sight. When one spent that much money on adornment, how could one help but be well dressed?

She was a super-spender on consumer goods and services and the latest fads and fashions. But she was also, at heart, a tightwad. That had to be the answer. It was all surmise, of course.

At the same time, the myth of John F. Kennedy was beginning to disintegrate. Reports appeared in the press of lurid presidential goings-on — such as naked romps with easy women in the White House pool on nights when Jackie was out of town.

For Jackie, the only way to endure such public pillory was to suppress it from her mind. To have dwelt upon it would have led to paranoia. She insulated herself, building as impervious a wall as she could between it and herself.

When Jackie passed a newsstand, which was seldom, she trained herself to look the other way. Of course, her friends and the world in which she moved never talked to her of any of the matters the gossip sheets printed.

At large social functions, she learned to arrange friends in flanks around her. The Onassis team served as additional protection. If a reporter broke through the phalanx of friends and protectors to blurt out a rude question, Jackie simply smiled and turned away.

Part of the insulation — the only part that showed — was the smile. The smile had changed enormously over the years.

Early photographs show Jackie with a shy, tentative smile. She seemed afraid to part her lips over her teeth. By her debutante days, however, she had developed a flirty, head-tilted-to-one-side smile. Later, posing campily with a long cigarette holder, she had found a wicked smile, a smile that seemed to say she was a party to a splendidly naughty and delicious secret.

But now the smile has perfected itself into something both radiant and ingratiating, enthusiastic and brave. It was a theatrical smile that was at the same time human. It was a smile of such quality that, when faced with it, there was almost nothing one could say or do. Jackie's smile was more than insulation; it was armor.

When Aristotle Onassis died on March 15, 1975, only his daughter, Christina, was at his side. His wife was thousands of miles away — a fact that would again make her the object of sharp press and public criticism. "She knew he was dying," people said. "Couldn't she at least have been there?"

Of course, it had never been intended as a conventional marriage. It had been more like a business merger between two important international talents. Jackie, no fool, had been quite aware that one of her functions as Onassis's wife would be decorative, adding elegance to the image of a man who had been known as something of a roughneck. For this, she had expected to be compensated. He had promised her she would be.

Though it had been in many ways a marriage of convenience for both, there was no question that she had been fond of him, as he — at least in the beginning — had been of her.

Jackie issued only two public statements about her marriage to Onassis. The first, to the horde of photographers that descended upon Skorpios at the time of the wedding and threatened to disrupt the ceremony, was: "We know you will understand that even though people may be well-known, they still hold in their hearts the emotions of a simple person for the moments that are the most important of those we know on earth — birth, marriage and death. We wish our wedding day to be a private moment in the little chapel among the cypresses of Skorpios with only members of the family present, five of them little children. If you will give us those moments, we will so gladly give you all the cooperation possible for you to take the pictures you need."

The second was the careful statement she gave the press when she arrived at Orly Airport in Paris after her husband's death the day before: "Aristotle Onassis rescued me at a moment when my life was engulfed with shadows. He meant a lot to me. He brought me into a world where one could find both happiness and love. We lived through many beautiful experiences together which cannot be forgotten, and for which I will be eternally grateful."

The press was as intrusive as Onassis's funeral as it had been at the wedding, and dealing with it was just as harrowing. Perhaps that was why, in the procession with Onassis's family to his grave, Jackie smiled that enormous smile when the flashbulbs popped. Instinctively. Automatically. When the photograph was published, the big smile seemed startling out of place. But it was her last and best defense.

When Onassis had been dead for barely six months, Jackie made news of a new and different sort. She took a job as contributing editor at The Viking Press, a properly small, select publishing house. Her wage was only $10,000 a year, but it was sufficient to dispel the accusation that she was merely doing dilettantish volunteer work.

Was this an attempt to assert the sense of purpose and seriousness of "the new Jackie" that some of her friends said she wished to project? Partly, perhaps. But there were other reasons behind the move as well.

Over that past summer, friends noticed Jackie seemed bored, restless. The public airing of the details of Onassis's will had depressed her. She was sleeping late and spending longer hours than usual over her breakfast tray and the morning newspapers. When she telephoned friends to chat, she seemed to have little to chat about.

Her friends, meanwhile, could not help but feel their friendships somewhat compromised by her fame. No matter how good a friend she was, she was no longer the kind of chum you could call and ask to a movie, or drop in on for coffee or a drink. She seemed isolated and a little lonely. Still, one hesitated before dialing that private phone number.

To her old friend, Letitia Baldrige, who had served as her social secretary in the White House and who now operated a snappy public-relations agency, Jackie seemed to need something to do. "Who, me — work?" was Jackie's first incredulous reaction to the suggestion. But the more she thought about it, the more she warmed to the idea.

"I believe work is good therapy for anybody," Tish Baldrige says. "I felt she needed something for her morale. I felt she really needed something to make her get up in the morning, get out in the world and meet interesting people who were doing interesting things, to use that energy and that good brain of hers. I suggested publishing. Viking was my publisher; and I said to her, 'Look, you know Tommy Guinzburg. Why don't you talk to him?'"

Miss Baldrige went even further. She telephoned Guinzburg, the head of Viking, and told him of the conversation. Guinzburg telephoned Jackie. A lunch was set up in June 1975. That was followed by several more lunches and, by the end of the summer, the deal was set for Jackie to go to work as a consulting editor.

Guinzburg admitted that his staff was "pretty stunned" when the hiring was announced. "Everyone wondered, 'What's this giant celebrity doing in our midst?' And everybody assumed that she must be planning to write a book. She had no intention of ever writing a book. The biggest problem was how to get her started here with the least amount of turmoil and public furor."

That, of course, turned out to be impossible. On her first day of work in September, the sidewalks outside Viking's offices were jammed with reporters, photographers, television news cameras and ordinary gawkers as Jackie made her smiling way into the building and stepped into an elevator.

Soon, however, all that had changed. Jackie was making her way between Viking and her apartment virtually unnoticed. At Viking, she was given a small, almost Spartan office with a single window, a desk, typewriter, filing cabinet, a couple of chairs. She started coming to work in sweaters and slacks, wearing no jewelry — "dressed just like the rest of us," according to her assistant, Rebecca

Singleton, "but always managing somehow to do it a little better."

As Jackie settled into the office routine, curiosity about her dwindled. After a while, no one looked up when the famous person walked down the halls to the coffee machine for another cup, to the cigarette vendor for another pack of Salems (she smokes many), or stand in line for her turn at the photocopier. From the beginning, Jackie worked with her office door open, did much of her own typing, placed her own telephone calls and handled her own files.

In publishing, the job of "consulting editor" is somewhat loosely defined. Malcolm Cowley was a consulting editor for Viking for 25 years and seldom ventured outside his Connecticut home in that capacity. Jackie chose to make it more of the job than that.

She arrived in her office between 9:30 and 10 a.m., four days a week. She attended editorial meeting and conferences. On Monday, her days off, she never failed to telephone.

One of her first projects at Viking was a book called "Remember the Ladies," which celebrated American women between 1750 and 1815. In addition to some 200 illustrations, the book contained art and history — two of Jackie's enthusiasms — and was published in June 1976 in conjunction with a bicentennial exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Society in Massachusetts.

The book was not, however, Jackie's brainchild, as several accounts had it at the time. Credit for that belongs to Mrs. Henry Brandon, the wife of the Washington bureau chief of the Sunday House Times of London. The Brandons and the Kennedys had been friends during the White House days, and now Jackie and Muffie Brandon spent long collaborative hours putting "Remember the Ladies" together, crawling around on the floor to arrange picture layouts.

When the women came to a section on presidential ladies, Muffie Brandon watched Jackie's face. "There wasn't a flicker — just interest and knowledge," she recalled. When a letter turned up from Martha Washington describing Georgetown, where Jackie once lived, as "a dirty hole," Jackie roared with laughter and commented, "It still is." When Martha Washington added, "I lead a dull life — a state prisoner," Jackie laughed again.

At the time, Mrs. Brandon was convinced Jackie had found her niche in publishing, and at Viking. "It's obvious that she's made her peace, that she was born for this. As for what she's been through in the past — well, life is a river and one searches one's way. Now she's made the quantum leap."

At the time — that is the key phrase, the skeptics say, to describe Jackie's behavior. Her detractors — and there are a number of them in the jealously competitive world of New York society — like to point out that Jackie has always been primarily interested in doing what is currently in fashion.

It is chic these days for a wealthy woman to have a job. Art and history are "in" at the moment. It was clever of Jackie to get involved in publishing an American history book during the year of the bicentennial. Next year, or the year after, when it becomes fashionable to cross-breed cattle in Vermont, say the skeptics, that's where Jackie will be. That's what her "new image" is all about.

Approval Sought For New Line

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has been asked by Northwest Alaskan Pipeline Co. and Northwest Pipeline Corp. to approve major portions of a project to deliver Canadian natural gas to Southern California by 1980.

The firms said that if the application filed Monday is approved, it would permit construction to begin early on a portion of the western leg of the 4,800-mile Alaska Highway Pipeline Project.

Northwest Alaskan has asked the FERC for permission to sell 240 million cubic feet a day of surplus Alberta gas to Pacific Interstate Transmission Co., a subsidiary of Pacific Lighting Corp., Los Angeles.

The FERC previously gave conditional approval for Northwest Alaskan to import 1.04 billion cubic feet of surplus Alberta gas a day.

In addition, Northwest Alaskan has made separate agreements to sell 800 million cubic feet a day of Canadian gas to Northern Natural Gas Co., Omaha, Neb., and Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. and United Gas Pipe Line Co., both of Houston.

In its application, Northwest Pipeline asks for permission to make $145 million in improvements to its pipeline system in the Pacific Northwest — primarily in Oregon and Idaho — to transport the Canadian gas.

The firm said the improvements include building 351 miles of pipeline, two new compressor stations and additions to three existing compressor stations. Northwest would have a 70 percent share in the improvements, while Pacific Interstate would own the remaining 30 percent.

The improvements would allow Northwest's system to pick up the Canadian gas from a Pacific Gas Transmission Co. system at Stanfield, Ore., and transport it to Ignacio, Colo., where it will be delivered by an El Paso Natural Gas Co. system for ultimate delivery to Southern California.

Applications also were filed Monday by Pacific Gas, Pacific Interstate and El Paso Natural Gas.

Northwest Pipeline and Northwest Alaskan are subsidiaries of the Salt Lake City-based Northwest Energy Co.

If you're ready to buy a small, inexpensive copier, we've got your number. $1975.

A lot of companies offer small copiers at small prices.

But Xerox gives you a small copier at a small price with big extras.

For instance, when you buy a reconditioned Xerox 660 desk top copier (for as little as $1,975), you can get financing directly from Xerox. Plus a service contract with up to 5-year availability on service and parts. Plus constant updating of equipment, and much, much more.

And, if you already own a copier, you can get a Xerox 660 for even less than $1,975. We'll give you a generous trade-in allowance on your old copier.

Local Man Injured In Beating

A 21-year-old Lubbock man was hospitalized about 2 a.m. today after being beaten by a man wielding a tire tool "sharpened on one end," according to police.

Richard Lee Parker was listed in undetermined condition this morning at Methodist Hospital, suffering from a large cut on the back of the head and multiple stab wounds on the back and shoulder.

Parker told police he was assaulted by a tall white man, about 20 years old, with a stocky build and brown or blond hair. He said the man attacked him after they got into a fight in his apartment parking lot about 2 a.m. today.

He said his attacker chased him up the third floor of the complex, striking and stabbing him with the sharp tool.

In another reported assault, a 39-year-old Lubbock County woman was treated and released about 11 p.m. Monday from Health Sciences Center where she was taken after reportedly being knifed by a man trying to make a date with her.

She told police she was in a parking lot in the 4600-block of Avenue A when the suspect, described as a Mexican-American wearing a gray shirt and blue pants, forced his way into her car and asked to go out with her.

When the woman refused, the suspect laughed, pulled a knife and cut her on the arm, according to reports.

A 23-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 12:10 a.m. today after a police officer watched him force a woman off the road, then walk up to her car and hit her twice, reports show.

The officers said the woman was traveling in the 900-block of University Avenue when she was assaulted.

Reports of Lubbockites suffering heavy losses from burglaries were stacked high this morning.

M.C. Pool of 2605 78th St. said when he returned home Monday after being gone between 1:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. Monday, he discovered $3,000 in property missing, including stereo equipment, jewelry and furniture.

Entry apparently was gained by forcing open a sliding glass window, reports indicate.

A television set and stereo equipment totaling $1,090 was the loot taken by burglars when they entered the home of Thomas A. Sanchez at 1714 28th St. between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday.

Charles R. Wilson of 5802 22nd St. said someone entered his truck about 7 p.m. Monday and stole $700 in tools.

Rose Ann Warwick of 917 E. 37th St. reported the loss of $544 in stereo equipment, clocks and clothing when burglars struck her home between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday.

Armando S. Sedeno of 2203 E. Sixth St. said he was gone only an hour Monday night, but when he returned home a TV set, stereo and clocks, totaling $485, were missing.

Norma Skibell of the Skibell's Department Store at 1116 Broadway told officers that a coat and dress, worth $465, were taken from the store at about 11:50 a.m. Monday.

Edward Robertson reported that his wire wheelcovers, valued at $500, were removed from his 1977 Cadillac DeVille while it was parked at 13th Street and Avenue G. The theft occurred sometime late Sunday or early Monday, he said.

After prying a kitchen door, someone took a $300 stereo system from Anita Gonzales' home at 2915 Amherst St. early Monday.

Thieves removed two guns from Daniel Chumley's home at 1111 E. Queens sometime early Monday.

In vehicle burglaries, Clayton Castner said that someone took an eight-track tape player and speakers from his 1974 Dodge Charger while it was parked at 5702 50th St. He said the break-in occurred between 2:30 a.m. and 5:30 a.m. Monday.

Thirteen eight-track tapes, a driver's license and $2 were taken from Clarissa Rogers' car while it was parked at 5408

47th St. sometime late Sunday or early Monday.

Michael Lester of 2515 22nd St. said someone removed a revolver from his car on Sunday morning.

In a late-reported theft, Harold Chiswell of 2007 Eighth St. said burglars took $812 worth of goods from his residence sometime Thursday or Friday while he was out of town. The stolen property included a portable color television, jewelry and clothing.

Try Several Things Impossible To Do

By SHARI LEWIS

Wouldn't you think most people would be interested in discovering things that are possible to do? You'd be wrong to think so! My mailbag is chock-full of questions and suggestions of things that are impossible to do!

Someone wrote, "It's impossible to sneeze with your eyes open," and, indeed, I find that I can't sneeze with my eyes open. Can you?

Here are two stunts that are impossible to do with this sheet of newspaper:

1 — Give a friend this sheet of paper (or, I am told, a sheet of paper any size) and bet your friend that he or she will not be able to fold the paper in half eight times. Apparently no matter how hard your pal tries, the eighth fold will be impossible to make.

2 — If you grab a sheet of newspaper at the very edge and scrunch it up in your fist, crumpling it as you gather it into that one hand, it is impossible to compress the entire sheet in your fist, using only that one hand. Can you do it, or shall we add this one to our collection of "Impossible's"?

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Here's a riddle for you?

As I was going to St. Ives,
I met seven old wives;
Each wife had a sack,
Each sack had a cat,
Each cat had a kitten.
Kittens, cats, sacks and wives —
How many in all going to St. Ives?

ANSWER: One — the others were returning. (This is an old classic — and that's the classic answer!)

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: If you can lay your hands on an American $1 bill (which is becoming harder every day), study it carefully — can you find the picture of a key? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

(Mail to Shari should be addressed Kids-Only Club, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.)

Children Die In Blaze

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A fire burned through a mobile home where the electricity had been cut off because of an unpaid bill, authorities said. Five children were killed and a 24-year-old man suffered burns.

Police said they were investigating a lag between the time the man, Ernest Harvey McEachern, father of three of the children, ran from the burning trailer and the time the Monday night blaze was reported.

The victims were identified by police as the McEachern children, Ernestine, 2, Irénia, 4, and Janice, 5; and two neighborhood children, Sabrina Johnson, 5, and her brother Howard, 6.

The children apparently died of smoke inhalation, police said. Autopsies were ordered to determine the cause of death.

Authorities said the power at the trailer had been cut off because of the family's failure to pay the bill. Detectives said they had not determined the cause of the blaze.

Police Service Rule Changed

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
The Lubbock Civil Service Commission voted today to credit police department seniority only on the basis of continued service.
This decision followed an appeal by Lubbock Police Department Officer Roy Green on the scoring of the Oct. 19 police corporal promotional examination.
Police officers with two years of service were eligible to take the examination, which is mandatory for promotion to corporal.
Scoring of the examination was calculated by adding together the raw score from the test and seniority points. Police officers earn one seniority point for each year of service up to a maximum total of 10 points, according to Rita Harmon, assistant director of personnel for the City of Lubbock.

Green argued that two Lubbock police officers who have served interrupted tenures with the department should not have their previous years credited toward seniority.
The two policemen in question, Officers James Taylor and Ralph Bowen, said they believed the legislative intent of the 1977 statute governing this situation was to award seniority for total service rather than continuous service.
After returning to the police force and prior to the examination date, Taylor and Bowen had served one year and 16 days. Green said this was the time of service attributed to the two men on the official police seniority list, and he asked that their seniority points on the examination agree with this figure.
Taylor had previously served six years and five months with the police department and Bowen two years and seven months.

The morning program will also feature a film, "Senior Power."

The conference is open to all interested older persons, senior citizen groups, programs and centers. A dutch treat lunch will be available at LCC's Lampighter Cafeteria in the Betty Hancock Campus Center.

UW To Hold Noon Meet

The United Way campaign reaches what officials call "showdown time" at noon Wednesday.

When the drive failed to reach its goal Oct. 26 at the last scheduled report meeting, an extension was set. Wednesday's meeting will reveal whether that extension has succeeded.

The location of the report meeting has been changed to the Koko Palace, 50th Street and Avenue Q due to scheduling conflicts with the civic center.
"We extended the campaign in order that employee drives, people out of town and out of town letters to national firms could be completed," said campaign chairman Don Douglass.

"This meeting will be the last for the campaign whether we reach the goal or not," Douglass said. "We feel the potential is there."

The campaign had reached $1,620,919 of its $1,682,369 goal at the Oct. 26 meeting. Since the report, campaign officials and volunteers have worked consistently, according to Douglass, to insure a successful completion of the campaign.

Entertainment for the luncheon report meeting will be from members of the United Way's Five Flames. Trina Foster, Robin Igo and Kathleen Kindred will provide vocals and organist Betty Tolley will furnish luncheon music.

STUDENTS SUSPENDED
THORNTON, Colo. (AP) — Adams County School District No. 12 has suspended 44 students because they weren't fully immunized against communicable diseases, health officials say.

The city personnel department, in grading the examination, included Taylor's and Bowen's earlier service in computing their seniority. Both men placed in the top five under this system of grading the examination, according to information provided by Mrs. Harmon.

The commission sustained the appeal by Green after having failed to obtain a clarification of the intent of the statute by the state attorney general during the meeting.

Bowen indicated he would seek to appeal the ruling by the commission to a court.

County Trio Arrested For Murder

Three Lubbock County men, reportedly a father and two sons, have been charged with murder as a result of the Saturday shooting death of Elutiro Joe Gonzales.

Witnesses said Gonzales was shot in the head by one man as two of the victim's brothers and a young woman were held at bay with a shotgun.

The woman, 19, was subsequently raped at gunpoint, authorities allege.

Charged with murder were Juan Sierra, 59; Manuel Cruz Sierra, 29; and Fermín Sierra, 26. The suspects remained in Lubbock County Jail today after Justice of the Peace Charles Smith set bond on each of the murder charges at $50,000.

Manuel Sierra was also charged with aggravated rape. Smith also set a $50,000 bond on that charge.

The suspects were arrested about 4:45 p.m. Monday by sheriff's deputies at their home about a quarter-mile north of Lubbock International Airport. Officers reportedly confiscated a shotgun and a pistol at the residence.

Gonzales, 30, of 806 40th St., Apt. 3, died at 10:55 a.m. Saturday, about five hours after he was taken to West Texas Hospital with a gunshot wound to the head.

Reports indicate Gonzales, his two brothers, Israel, 46, and Tony, 24, and the woman met a group of men in the early morning hours Saturday at a convenience store at Clovis Road and Avenue U.

The woman told deputies the men offered to take her group to a county residence where they could get some beer.

Once they arrived at a county residence, however, the driver of the other car took money from the victim, the woman stated.

She told officers the driver pulled a small-caliber gun, and that another man pointed a shotgun at her and Gonzales' two brothers.

According to reports, the woman said the driver pointed his weapon at Gonzales, stated he was going to kill him and then shot him just above the left eye.

The woman reportedly identified Manuel Sierra as the man who shot Gonzales.

The woman said the driver indicated that Gonzales' two brothers could leave with him if she stayed.

Subsequently, the woman said, she was raped twice by Manuel Sierra at gunpoint.

Man Remains Hospitalized

A Carlisle man remained in critical condition today at Methodist Hospital with injuries sustained Monday night in a two-car accident near 19th Street and Keawee which killed a 53-year-old Lubbock man.

Glen W. Evans of 3006 First St. was pronounced dead at the scene of the 10 p.m. mishap by Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy.

Taken to Methodist Hospital was Leandro Martinez, 30, of Carlisle. Evans and Martinez were the only two persons involved in the accident, which resulted in the 35th traffic fatality of the year in the city.

Services for Evans were pending this morning with Sanders Funeral Home.
Both victims were pinned in their vehicles. It took rescuers less than five minutes to pull Evans' body from the wreckage after the fire department's "Jaws of Life" was dispatched to the scene.

Youngster's Mother Charged For Custody Of Girl

DALLAS (AP) — Murder charges were filed Monday against the mother of a 3-year-old lice-infested boy who died Sunday of starvation.

Kathy McLean, 26, was arrested and placed in Dallas County Jail after Justice of the Peace Tom Naylor set her bond at $50,000.

The boy's twin sister, Christie, her body also emaciated and covered with lice-infested sores, remained in serious condition at Parkland Memorial Hospital. Doctors said she was suffering from malnutrition and dehydration.

They each weighed about 25 pounds and their arms and legs were said to be "about the size of a quarter."

James McLean was dead on arrival Sunday at East Town Osteopathic Hospital in Dallas. Police had questioned Mrs. McLean Sunday, but released her pending an autopsy. She refused a police request to investigate living conditions inside the family's residence.

A Dallas medical examiner Monday ruled the boy's death a homicide by starvation. The autopsy indicated the boy had been physically abused, homicide investigator Gerald Robinson said.

Dr. Linda Norton of the medical examiner's office said the starvation of the child apparently occurred over a period of several months.

She said the boy was covered with lice and dirt, was extremely emaciated with just "a bit of skin over his skeleton" and had what seemed to be 15 cigarette burns in various stages of healing on his hands, feet, arms and buttocks.

The child was in the bottom 3 percent of weight chart for children his age, had a complete loss of body fat, and had rickets, a vitamin D deficiency, causing weakening of the bones to the degree that the bones "appeared translucent" on X-ray, she said.

The woman was divorced last May from her second husband, who said he has been paying $225 a month in child support. Police investigators said it was apparent Mrs. McLean had been leaving the children in the house unattended while she worked as a saleslady for a real estate firm. Officers said Mrs. McLean told them she had a babysitter, but refused to give them a name.

Deborah was born in Dallas and turned over to the Dallas County child welfare by her mother and was placed with Mrs. Bernhardt and her husband when she was only 6 months old.

Mrs. Bernhardt lost her adoption case in May 1977, but an order requiring her to give up the child was suspended temporarily while she began a series of appeals that were exhausted last August. She was ordered to turn Deborah over Sept. 16 for foster placement.

Instead, she came to Dallas to ask the juvenile court for Deborah's custody. Her failure to turn the child over resulted in contempt charges being filed against her

DALLAS (AP) — In an order hailed as "a victory over bureaucracy," a divorced Maryland woman has won her 2½-year battle for custody of a 3-year-old girl an adoption agency tried to prevent her from keeping.

Juvenile Court Judge Craig Penfold signed the adoption papers Monday, ending the long legal battle of Barbara Bernhardt of Takoma Park, Md., to gain custody of the girl, Deborah.

Mrs. Bernhardt was divorced soon after the girl was placed with her and her husband by the Lutheran Social Services of Washington, and the agency sued for the child's return on the grounds Mrs. Bernhardt had concealed her separation and a previous divorce.

Dallas County child welfare authorities joined in the suit, saying Deborah's natural mother had expressed the wish the child should have two parents. In September, however, after more than two years of court battles by Mrs. Bernhardt, Penfold granted her temporary custody, pending a study of the Bernhardt home.

Child welfare authorities in Dallas reversed their stand Monday and recommended that the adoption be finalized. Hal Thorne, an attorney appointed to represent Deborah's interests, concurred, saying, "The home study was very favorable."

in Maryland, but Penfold granted Mrs. Bernhardt temporary custody of Deborah, pending the home study.

An attorney from the Dallas County district attorney's juvenile section appeared at last week's hearing before Judge Philip Fairbanks in Rockville, Md., and asked that Lutheran Social Services be dropped from the suit and that no further legal action be taken in Maryland.

"It's a victory over bureaucracy. It's fortunate we have a judge who can see through administrative red tape to the best interest of the child," said Charles Robertson, Mrs. Bernhardt's Dallas attorney.

"It's wonderful, and I'm very happy," Mrs. Bernhardt said. "Deborah and her brothers will be so glad it's over. When I told the boys I was coming to get custody, Daniel (a 5-year-old adopted son) asked, 'Will they never be able to take my sister away now?'"

Mrs. Bernhardt's battle to keep Deborah has cost her $30,000 — about twice her annual salary as a computer programmer, her attorney said.

School Officials Dispute Claims In Damage Suit

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff
School trustees have asked U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward to deny the $31 million in damages sought by plaintiffs in the suit against the trustees' at-large election system.

In court documents, school attorneys

Charles Cobb and Tom Johnson said Monday there is no basis for such a claim. They said the plaintiffs have failed to prove that at-large elections are unconstitutional or have resulted in racial discrimination.
Moreover, the school district argued that it does not have the authority to change its election process even if it wanted to do so.

Contrary to what the plaintiffs say, the Legislature has not given the school board the authority to change its election procedures, Cobb and Johnson assert. The at-large method, they said, was set up in the bill that created the Lubbock Independent School District.
In listing the powers of school boards, the Texas Education Code "does not include the power to determine the representation of the public on this board," the attorneys said.

The school board would be required to change the election methods if the courts declare at-large election systems unlawful, Cobb and Johnson said.

"The Supreme Court of the United States has, however, determined that multi-member voting districts (at-large elections) are not unconstitutional per se," they added.

In order for the plaintiffs to collect damages, they "must show that the (school trustees) acted in bad faith, knowing that their acts were unconstitutional," the school system said.

Cobb and Johnson said: "The Texas courts have established that in the absence of specific legislative direction, school board trustees are without power to act."

"It is true that the defendants are not expressly compelled to maintain a multi-member voting scheme; however, neither are they granted the power to change the scheme and thus any such change would result in an invalid election."

City Man Assessed Probated Sentence

Rudy Garcia, 22, has received a 10-year probated prison term after pleading guilty to murder in connection with a 1976 knifing death.

Garcia was one of three persons who pleaded guilty to homicide charges before Dist. Judge William R. Shaver. All three were assessed probated sentences on the recommendation of the Criminal District Attorney's office.

Garcia, of 308 39th St., was charged with murdering Martin Vasquez, 20, of 2602 29th St., Nov. 6, 1976. The defendant admitted in stipulated testimony that he intentionally caused the death.

The victim reportedly was found lying in high weeds of a vacant lot near the 1500-block of E. 16th Street. Reports said he died of multiple stab wounds.

According to witnesses, the stabbing death followed an early morning altercation outside a club.

In another case, Josephine Wilson Penza, 46, received a seven-year probated sentence after pleading guilty to voluntary manslaughter. The defendant had originally been charged with murder.

The defendant, who lived at 307 N. Ave. S at the time of the incident, pleaded in connection with the April 4 shooting death of Carlos Arturo Flores, 33.

Flores was found shot to death at the North Avenue S residence about 8:15 p.m.

According to a statement by the defendant introduced into evidence, Flores, reportedly a former boyfriend of the defendant's, had in weeks prior to the incident broken into her house, torn up her sofa with a knife and threatened her life.

"That date he had torn up some clothes. He then broke into my house and grabbed at me. I shot him from sudden passion because he has bothered me so much and threatened to kill me and has continually harassed me," the statement said.

A stipulated statement from a witness said Flores was shot after he "grabbed at" the defendant.

Ida Mae Johnson, 42, of 1618 Ave. C, No. 64, received a seven-year probated sentence after pleading guilty to the reduced charge of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the March 27 shooting death of her husband Dennis Johnson, 50. Mrs. Johnson originally had been charged with murder in the case.

Johnson, who sustained a gunshot wound in the chest, was found by officers inside an apartment.

In stipulated testimony, the defendant said she had been drinking with a man at his apartment when her husband came over. The defendant said that she and her husband began arguing, and that he advanced toward her.

"I took out a .22-caliber pistol and was going to scare him when I recklessly pointed it at him and it went off," the statement said.

In another case, Sharon Rose Jones, 19, of 2606 Weber Dr., was assessed a 10-year probated term after pleading guilty to aggravated robbery.

The defendant pleaded guilty to participating in the Sept. 17, 1977, robbery of the Serv-U Food Market at 704 E. Broadway.

Two men earlier were convicted of the same robbery. One received a 30-year-prison term from a jury, while the other was assessed a nine-year term after pleading guilty.

The pleas were among 36 taken during the session in Shaver's 140th District Court.

At issue is a class-action lawsuit filed by eight minority voters. They contend that minorities' voting strength is diluted and their civil rights violated by at-large election of the Lubbock school board.

At-large elections mean citywide voting with no residency restrictions. The plaintiffs want Woodward to order adoption of a single-member district system, by which certain seats on the school board would be designated for particular geographic areas of the city.

The suit claims that the school board's failure to convert to a single-member district election system represents a form of racial discrimination, for which the board should be required to pay $31 million in damages to minority voters here.

School attorneys previously requested from Woodward a partial summary judgment denying such damages. Last month, the plaintiffs filed documents opposing the school district's motion.

On Monday school officials submitted a brief supporting their request that Woodward throw out the damage claim.

Rental Rates Increased By Board

The board of directors of the Lubbock County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 voted Monday to increase the annual rentals at Buffalo Springs Lake to $350 for waterfront lots and $250 for the remainder of the lots.

According to board chairman R.M. Wisner, the current rental rates have been in effect for 20 years and range in price from $100 to $200. He also criticized the existing system of assessing the annual rent, which he said charges more for lots removed from the lake than for waterfront lots.

Following the decision to increase the annual rents, the board approved a motion to write into the lease contract an option for the district to review the leases every three years and adjust the annual rental charge. The board voted to retain the 10-year lease.

In other actions, H.B. Reaves, representing the engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, informed the board that a simplified steel gate entrance to Buffalo Springs Lake would cost approximately $15,000 to construct.

At an earlier meeting the board had received a $25,000 estimate for the project.

The simplified proposal would provide for the construction of a two-lane-wide steel gateway with a height of 13 feet 5 inches, Reaves said. The existing structure has a clearance height of only eight feet, he said.

The board asked that specific plans and specifications for the new proposal be drawn up. With these the board said they will then seek competitive bids to purchase the needed raw materials.

Alcohol Aggravates Most Liver Ailments

CHICAGO (AP) — The fastest-rising killer in the nation today is liver disease, aggravated by higher consumption of alcohol, according to a University of Pennsylvania physician.

Dr. John Senior told a meeting of the American Association for the Study of Liver Diseases that the liver disease death rate has even surpassed the coronary death rate. He said eight out of every 10 liver-related deaths in the country are caused by alcohol. Senior warned that women are more susceptible to liver disease "for a given amount of weight and a given amount of alcohol."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Please permit me to write on behalf of wives who prefer to undress in the closet.

I've been married for 20 years to a man who gets turned on if I start removing my watch.

Regardless of the time of day, if he sees me start to remove one piece of clothing, he wants me to jump into bed that very minute! No loving conversation or affectionate preliminaries to put me in a responsive mood. (All he ever talks about is his job and his health.)

I believe sex would be more enjoyable if men would act like men instead of animals.

COOL IN THE CLOSET

Dear Cool: Animals can be trained (as well as constrained). Why do less for your husband than you'd do for a pet?

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing to reply to OLD TIMER, who complained about the casual clothes people wear around the office these days.

I work in an office where the boss wears T-shirts, jeans and old sneakers; most of the women wear pants (and some of them wear T-shirts with no bras). Everyone here says this is the best place they've ever worked. Because we can be casual, we can also be friendly. There's no backstabbing, competition or petty jealousy.

If a boss wants the employees to dress like robots, it's a fair bet he (or she) wants them to act and think like robots, too. It's a lot easier to get the job done quickly and efficiently if people trust you to be yourself.

As long as you're doing a good job, how you dress should be nobody's business but your own.

CASUAL IN CUPERTINO

Dear Casual: I'll buy the casual, comfortable, non-competitive office attire. And I'll even go along with a trim little "30 A" in a T-shirt sans bra. But a lot of man-hours could be lost in an office where a braless babe in a T-shirt could fill a "38 D" — but doesn't.

What do you say?

CLEVELANDER

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are having a disagreement which we hope you can settle.

Our 11-year-old son hurt another boy wrestling, and the other boy may have to wear a neck brace for a month or so.

I say our son should be punished because wrestling is dangerous and should be avoided.

My husband says that wrestling between boys of this age is normal, and our son should not be punished.

Dear Cleveland: I say, "Listen to your husband, dear. He's been a boy."

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. (©1978 by Chicago Tribune — N.Y. News Synd. Inc.)

The final test of a leader is that he leaves behind him in other men the conviction and the will to carry on...The genius of a good leader is to leave behind him a situation which common sense, without the grace of genius, can deal with successfully.

COURSE DIFFICULTY

Girls find it tougher to take "traditionally male subjects" in coed schools than in girls' schools, says a report from the British National Foundation of Education Research, which adds "the traditional assumptions on sex differentiation have a far stronger influence in mixed schools, where interests of girls are often subordinated or contrasted to those of the boys."

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Here are the answers to questions in the Sunday, Nov. 5, Goren column.

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠95 ♥J83 ♦K954 ♣K843
Partner opens the bidding with two hearts. What do you respond?

A.—Three hearts. You have the values for a positive response, and your first duty is to set the trump suit. Facing a two-bid, three trumps to the jack is excellent support, for partner surely has a five-card or longer suit.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AKJ95 ♥A6 ♦KQJ5 ♣K8
The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♦ Pass 1NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Even if partner has a dead minimum one no trump response, you want to be in game. It is only a question of locating the best game. To create a forcing situation, you must make a jump rebid, and three diamonds describes both the strength and shape of your hand.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K76 ♥KQ953 ♦A105 ♣83
The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♥ 2♦ 2♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—By responding freely in a suit higher-ranking than yours, partner has created a forcing-to-game situation. He must have a good hand and a long suit for this action. Rather than rebid your heart suit, which is not all that robust, we suggest you raise to three spades. Three trumps to the king is adequate support on this auction.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J9762 ♥A5 ♦843 ♣KQ6
The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 1♦ Dble. Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand is worth 11 points, and that is a pretty fair holding opposite a partner who has made a takeout double. You must let partner know that you have some useful values, and you can do so by jumping to two spades. This bid is not forcing—it simply invites partner to go to game if he has the equivalent of better than minimum opening bid.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KJ105 ♥762 ♦J32 ♣AQ5
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—If you are a slave to the point count, you have valued your hand at 11 points and have probably decided to make a temporary bid of two clubs preparatory to raising spades at your next turn. But your hand is not as good as it seems. We have always recommended deducting a point for a 4-3-3-3 hand pattern, which reduces this hand to 10 points—the maximum for a raise to two spades. That is the bid we suggest.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠Q92 ♥J75 ♦AJ1063 ♣A6
The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass 2♦ Pass 3♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Despite the fact that you have a rock-bottom minimum opening bid, you must not pass. You have three-card support for partner's long suit, two aces and a ruffing value. Raise to four hearts.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AQ ♥AQ872 ♦AK5 ♣A84
What is your opening bid?

A.—Despite your plethora of aces and kings, your hand does not quite meet the requirements for a two heart opening bid—it contains too many losers. We suggest you open two no trump. Your hand is balanced, and the fact that you have a five-card major is no reason to reject that bid. In addition, two no trump is far more descriptive of the strength and distribution of your hand than would be any opening bid in hearts.

Q.8—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠1073 ♥AK84 ♦K965 ♣KQ
The bidding has proceeded: North East South 1♦ 1♦ ?

What action do you take?

A.—There is little doubt that your side can make a game, but is that necessarily your best reward at this vulnerability? On defense, you can reasonably expect to make five or six tricks against a diamond contract, and partner has opened the bidding. It would not be too ambitious to expect a two- or three-trick set, so we suggest you double in the hope of collecting a 500 or 800 point penalty.

Blue Eyeshadow Out Of Style

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (Special) — Thousands of years ago Egyptian women rimmed their eyes with kohl to give them a sultry look.

In recent years American women have gone from black to blue — from the black eyeliner of the 1950's to the blue eyeshadow of the early 1970's, said makeup specialist, Mari Nuckels. "Unfortunately powdery blue eyelids neither enhance a woman's appearance nor complement the current fashions," she said.

Fall and winter fashions tend to be in the smoky earth tones of berry, gold, beige, brown and rust or in heathery pastels, said Nuckels. "Smudged, subdued eye shadows and crayons should pick up the colors of a woman's outfit. Light blue eye shadow and jet black kohl represent the two extremes, both of which are best left to history."

Electroplating Process Produces 'Gold Orchids'

By KENNETH L. WHITING
SINGAPORE (AP) — Looking for a special gift for the person who has everything? Maybe the answer is a gold-plated orchid.

Fresh orchids coated with 22-karat gold are fashioned into pendants, brooches, cuff links and tie pins here. Most of the golden orchids are designed to adorn a lady's throat as pendants.

The flowers come from nurseries, private hobbyists and the island-city's botanic gardens.

Only those plucked at their freshest early in the morning are preserved in gold, said a spokesman for the Singapore Institute of Standards and Industrial Research (SISIR). They are called "risis" orchids from the institute's initials in reverse.

Technicians started electroplating live orchids with gold in 1974. Research showed how to prevent the flower's natural moisture from corroding the metal and which anti-corrosion chemicals would not harm the petals that the gilding was meant to preserve.

The complicated process is a patented secret, an official said. Three main steps involve dipping the flowers in a preservative, electroplating with base metal, and then electroplating with gold.

The finished product preserves the exact contours of the fresh bloom sealed inside. Individuality is assured by the use of hundreds of different types and the variety found in nature.

Production by Seteco, a subsidiary of SISIR, started two years ago at about 4,000 orchids a month. Capacity has been expanded five times and the work force increased from 24 to 180.

The golden orchid is an offbeat example of using technology to upgrade traditional exports. Live orchids have long been shipped from Singapore. The first exports of the risis variety started a year ago.

Several imitations of what its promoters call "a truly original Singapore creation" are on the market. A company in Thailand has started selling orchids that are said to be first dried, then covered with copper before being plated with gold.

The original risis line of about 15 species retails for about $13 in Singapore. These constantly blooming varieties are in plentiful supply from commercial growers.

A mini-collection of smaller orchids is priced from about $11 to $15. They cost more in relation to size because petite blooms are more difficult to process, a spokesman said.

Rarer orchids are marketed in a "special collection." Price tags range from $15 to $40 for a single flower and from $40 to $124 for a spray.

A written pedigree gives the flower's Latin name and assures buyers that special risis orchids are not garden-variety plants: "Every orchid from the special collection is either a rare hybrid or a hybrid named after an important personality."

Topping the line are 52 species in the "certificated collection" which bloom only once in three or four years. These come in a fancy container, wear an extra layer of gold and boast a "certificate of authenticity" signed by the president of the Orchid Society of Southeast Asia. Prices range from $44 to about $133.

A new line of orchids in 24-karat gold is scheduled to be introduced in time for the Christmas season.

No-Bake Coconut Confections Provide Tempting Holiday Snacks

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (Special) — They're home for the holidays — the freshman next door, the "big city"-based cousin, a smattering of relatives who "just happen to drop in" annually. While this doesn't call for large-scale entertaining, it does prompt thought as to what you'll offer in the name of gracious hostessing. No-bake, easy-to-handle confections are the answer, tempting show-offs on individual snack trays.

NO-BAKE LAYERED COCONUT BARS begin with lining a 9-inch square pan with flaky oblong crackers, topped with a coconut-crumb mixture. Repeat layers of crackers and coconut, topped with a glaze of sweet cooking chocolate. Be sure to melt the sweet cooking chocolate at a very low heat, stirring constantly with a rubber spatula so as to avoid scorching the chocolate.

Recipe for ORANGE COCONUT BALLS combines flaked coconut, graham cracker crumbs and chopped pecans in a mixture flavored with thawed frozen concentrated orange juice. Use timesaving commercially packaged crushed graham crackers for this. Yield is enough for shaping 3 dozen one-inch balls to be rolled in flaked coconut and chilled for several hours. Store in the refrigerator covered with wax paper or aluminum foil.

Keep the saucepan out to melt a bar of sweet cooking chocolate for the third no-bake recipe — CRUNCHY CHOCOLATE-COCONUT BALLS. Flaked coconut, crisp whole wheat flakes and a few other ingredients are stirred into the melted chocolate before the mixture is shaped into 1-inch balls and rolled in flaked coconut. Chill until firm and store in the refrigerator wrapped in wax paper or aluminum foil.

Bring on the holiday droppers-in now that you have a threesome of easy mini dessert recipes.

ORANGE COCONUT BALLS

6 tbsps. thawed frozen concentrated orange juice
2 tbsps. butter or margarine, melted
2 tsp. water
1 cup confectioners' sugar
2-2/3 cups (about) flaked coconut
2 cups graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup finely chopped pecans
Blend orange juice, butter and water into sugar in a bowl. Stir in 1 1/2 cups of the coconut, the crumbs and pecans. Shape into 1-inch balls and roll in remaining coconut. Chill for several hours. Makes about 3 dozen confections.

NO-BAKE LAYERED COCONUT BARS

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
1/3 cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla

1-1/3 cups (about) flaked coconut
27 flaky oblong crackers, broken into squares
1 pkg. (4 oz.) sweet cooking chocolate
2 tbsps. butter or margarine

Combine 1/2 cup butter, sugar, crumbs and milk in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until butter is melted and mixture thickens. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla and coconut. Line 9-inch square pan with 9 of the crackers; spread with half the coconut mixture. Add another layer of crackers, pressing down lightly, and top with remaining coconut mixture. Add remaining crackers. Melt chocolate and 2 tablespoons butter in saucepan over very low heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, spread over crackers and cool. Cut into bars. Makes about 18 bars.

CRUNCHY CHOCOLATE-COCONUT BALLS

1 pkg. (4 oz.) sweet cooking chocolate
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 cup unsifted confectioners' sugar
2 1/2 cups flaked coconut
1 1/2 cups crisp whole wheat flakes

Melt chocolate and butter in saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; beat in egg and sugar. Add 1 1/2 cups of the coconut and the cereal. Shape into 1-inch balls and roll in remaining coconut. Chill until firm. Store in covered container in refrigerator. Makes about 3 dozen confections.

NO-BAKE FANCIES — No need to panic during the holiday rush when you have recipes for three no-bake confections. Treat your family with delicious No-Bake Layered Coconut Bars, Orange Coconut Balls and Crunchy Chocolate-Coconut Balls.

Liz Taylor Enjoys Campaign Trail

WASHINGTON (WNS) — "I roll a pretty mean bandage," quipped Liz Taylor Warner, neatly sidestepping a question from a newswoman as to whether she would join the Senate Wives Club at their weekly bandage-rolling sessions for the American Red Cross if husband John Warner wins his race for the U.S. Senate from Virginia.

She recalled that she had rolled bandages as a young girl in England during the early years of World War II but stopped short of committing herself to donning a Red Cross uniform and devoting every Tuesday morning to good works on Capitol Hill.

And how about a woman aspiring to be president of these United States? Liz Taylor Warner ginned: "Any woman who wants that job should go to a head shrink."

She said she enjoys campaigning with her husband, and was spending 12 hours a day on the campaign trail, adding "I don't think I'm hurting his race, I haven't felt any knives in my back."

The movie star was in rare good form at the time, but the following night during a dinner appearance in Big Stone Gap, Va., accident-prone Liz got a piece of chicken stuck in her throat and spent several days recovering in Richmond Memorial Hospital.

She didn't get around to rolling any bandages while she was there, her secretary noted.

Former Secretary of the Navy, John Warner (under Richard Nixon) is pitted against Democrat Andrew Miller for the Senate seat being vacated by Republican Sen. William Scott.

China Waits For U.S. To Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teng Hsiao-ping, the Chinese vice premier, gave a Western-style news conference the other day in Tokyo.

It was his first ever. And he made some news.

Teng believes China eventually will have normal relations with the United States, but only after the Taiwan issue is settled on China's terms.

"We are waiting for the United States to make up its mind," he said.

In other words, as Henry Kissinger insisted in the face of considerable disbelief, China is not pressing the United States.

Since breaking military and diplomatic ties with Taiwan isn't all that popular among the American people, there could be a long delay.

It's a decision for President Carter to make — obviously after the elections.

China is in no hurry. But Carter is getting a lot of advice to "play the China card" — to move closer to Peking as a way of balancing the power of the Soviet Union.

Trade between the United States and China could reach $1 billion or more this year, a new high. Cultural and other contacts have increased. China offers a tempting source of oil.

There is a basis for a mutually beneficial relationship.

But normalizing relations with Peking would help make the Republic of China a non-nation.

The United States is one of only 23 countries that recognize Nationalist China. Only 12, including the Vatican, maintain embassies at Taipei.

Despite all the increasing isolation, the little island country has made itself the world's 22nd largest trading nation and the 12th largest trading partner of the United States.

Presumably that trade could continue with a break in U.S. relations, but the 17 million people on Taiwan could suffer a sense of isolation devastating to their morale.

With the 1954 mutual security treaty abrogated and the remaining 1,000 or so

American troops removed, Taiwan's defenses would be weakened.

In making up his mind, Carter is dealing with a fast-changing Asia.

China's influence is growing. Teng's visit to Tokyo, formalizing a treaty of friendship with Japan, revives the kinship between the two countries. It also closes the book on memories of the bloody Japanese occupation of the 1930s.

The main feature of the treaty is an "anti-hegemony" clause that is sure to be read in Moscow, as being aimed at the Soviet Union.

The new regime in Peking is clearly more Western-oriented than China in the last days of Chairman Mao. But it is probably even more hostile to the Soviet Union than its predecessor.

If the United States decides to upgrade its relations with China it risks some rocky days in dealing with Moscow. Those kind of "atmospheres" are unlikely to contribute to completion of a U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms limitation treaty or to resolving other disputes between Washington and Moscow.

And even as China seals its friendship with Japan, tensions are high along the border with Vietnam.

The Foreign Ministry in Peking has charged Vietnam with a series of armed intrusions into China's Kwangsi and Yunnan provinces. In its Oct. 26 note, the ministry claimed heavy losses to Chinese border inhabitants caused by land mines planted inside Chinese territory.

These tensions create another problem for Carter and his foreign policy advisers.

Should Carter establish diplomatic relations with Hanoi he runs the risk of offending China.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a hole in your pocketbook that should be plugged up immediately or you may lose more than you can afford to. You have a tendency to speed foolishly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Tolerance and patience seem to be reserved for outsiders tomorrow. When it comes to your family, you'll erupt the minute someone does anything that displeases.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't seethe in silence tomorrow if a acquaintance makes deprecatory remarks. Let him know quickly how you feel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually, you cater to what is good for the majority. But tomorrow, at the expense of others, you're overly protective of things that you deem are yours.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Pace yourself. Try to take on only that which you know you can handle. You do yourself a disservice by pushing your energy beyond its limits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be on guard when you speak, weighing each word carefully tomorrow. A thoughtless remark could set off sparks with one who has a low boiling point.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone you know very well is just a trifle too curious about something you consider personal. She'll pry again tomorrow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're apt to ignore your better judgment tomorrow and yield to someone who applies a little pressure. Don't be bullied.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Co-workers are sensitive about their methods of doing things tomorrow. Fail to show a little respect for their intelligence and you could easily bring on a squabble.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could misinterpret a friend's independent behavior as disloyalty. Try not to expect more than others tomorrow than you have a right to.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Bickering is likely to disrupt the tranquility of the home front tomorrow because everyone is having a tough time cooperating. Be the first to strive for unity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your work and possibly that of others could suffer tomorrow because of your carelessness and impatience. Co-workers will be quite irritated.

Texas Traffic Deaths Increase 8 Percent

AUSTIN (AP) — Traffic deaths on Texas highways and streets are 8 percent higher this year than 1977, the Department of Public Safety reports.

Traffic deaths through last Friday totaled 3,132, compared with 2,909 for the same time last year.

There have been 2,744 accidents in which deaths occurred, compared with 2,555 last year, a 7 percent increase.

Smaller Growth Rate Expected Next Year

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's economy will expand by 2.5 percent next year, its smallest growth rate since 1975, according to major businesses surveyed by McGraw-Hill Publications.

The company's 25th annual fall survey reflects preliminary plans for capital spending in 1979 by some 600 companies in 24 major industry groups. According to the survey, U.S. business will spend $171.43 billion for new plants and equipment next year, a 10 percent rise in domestic capital spending over this year. After adjusting for a projected 8 percent capital goods inflation rate, however, the real increase is only 2 percent.

GOP Hopes To Capture Key Offices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans worried about inflation and a growing tax burden voted today for a new Congress, governors and state legislatures from among candidates whose solutions to the nation's economic headaches often sounded the same.

In off-year elections dominated by concern over the economy and how it touches their lives, voters in 16 states were deciding a variety of tax-cutting and budget-trimming proposals.

Despite nationwide rumblings of a tax revolt, pollsters and politicians alike predicted a light turnout nationwide — a factor Republicans hoped would swing a few close races their way. But early voting was reported heavy in some states with close election contests.

In areas where voter excitement was high, including parts of South Carolina, Florida and Pennsylvania, balloting appeared to surge. In Philadelphia, an emotionally charged charter referendum that would allow Mayor Frank Rizzo to seek a third term resulted in voter registration soaring past 1 million for the first time since 1960, and morning balloting there was exceptionally heavy.

Scattered rain in the eastern third of the nation apparently discouraged some prospective voters. Early balloting was reported moderate to light in New York, Alabama, Maryland, Louisiana, New Jersey and West Virginia, and extremely sparse throughout most of Georgia. After the polls opened in one suburb of Savannah, it was 20 minutes before the first voter showed up.

Official Dies In Tehran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The former director of Iran's national airline died of gunshot wounds in a Tehran hospital today and there were conflicting reports whether he committed suicide or was assassinated. Scattered opposition to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's military government continued to rock the country.

Retired air force Gen. Ali Mohammed Khademi was shot Sunday outside his home in a Tehran suburb. Government officials said they believed the wound was self-inflicted, but a member of the general's family said he was attacked by a gang of unidentified youths.

Khademi was dismissed as Iran Air's managing director as a conciliatory gesture to the nation's majority Shiite Muslims. He was a member of the minority Bahai sect and many of his co-religionists also were dismissed from top positions under the civilian prime minister whose resignation was announced Sunday.

Small groups of protesters tried to approach Tehran University's campus today but were dispersed by heavily armed troops and police firing in the air. Witnesses said several youths were beaten by club-wielding police.

Approaches to the university were sealed by troops to prevent anti-government demonstrators from using the campus as a riot-staging area.

Fresh rioting broke out after the new regime, the first military government in Iran in 25 years, was installed Monday.

Some observers said the turmoil in this oil-rich nation may be felt soon at the gasoline pumps in American and elsewhere, but other experts were more optimistic.

One person died and two were wounded Monday night when troops dispersed rioters protesting the shah's 37-year rule and the appointment of his chief of staff, Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari, to head Iran's new regime.

Frost Nips City, Area

for dense fog over southeastern North Carolina.

Alabama firefighters looked for help from a cold front today in their battle against three wildfires raging over thousands of acres of forest in the northeast corner of the state.

Forecasters said a cold front moving into the Southeast should bring rain, and forestry authorities hoped it would be enough to relieve the tinderbox conditions wrought by a virtually rain-free October.

Frank Sego, a spokesman for the Alabama Forestry Commission, said the U.S. Forest Service had loaned the state 20 Montana-based firefighters. Thirteen firefighters from North Carolina, trained for work in rugged terrain, and a group from Tennessee already were fighting the three northeast Alabama fires.

It's much lower than the primary," said one election official in Elizabeth, N.J., who asked not to be named. "The people have lost interest." Louisiana Secretary of State Paul Hardy said the turnout in his state might fall below 20 percent.

But the weather was sunny and crisp elsewhere, and officials in Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin were predicting a heavy turnout — as high as 70 percent of registered voters in Kansas.

There, 91-year-old Al Landon, the 1936 GOP presidential nominee, appeared at 9 a.m. in horseback riding clothes at a school near his Topeka home to vote for his daughter, U.S. senatorial candidate Nancy Kassebaum.

Indicating the sunshine might help swell support in Topeka for her daughter's opponent, former Rep. Bill Roy, D-Kan., Mrs. Landon said: "I like the weather, but I suppose the Democrats do, too."

Based on early balloting, officials in Florida said the turnout "could be a real corker" in an election that included a ballot referendum on whether to legalize casino gambling at Miami Beach.

In Illinois, the generally light morning turnout despite clear weather seemed to confirm predictions the 1978 election would draw fewer of that state's voters than any in a quarter-century.

But in Colorado, where Democratic Sen. Floyd K. Haskell is in a tight race with Republican Rep. William L. Armstrong, election officials predicted record balloting, with a turnout of 72 percent of registered voters.

And after the first hour of voting in California, Bill Homer of the Los Angeles city registrar's office said: "We're running pretty close to our projections of a 75-80 percent turnout today."

Republicans anticipated taking several governorships — perhaps as many as a half dozen — now held by Democrats and hoped to make some inroads into the two-thirds majority Democrats hold in state legislatures.

Although a record 155.5 million Americans were qualified to vote, off-year elections traditionally attract a small turnout. In 1974, for example, only 39.6 percent of the voting age population bothered to vote. And just 36 percent voted for congressional candidates.

There were 428 House seats, 34 Senate seats and 36 governorships being filled today. Seven House members and one senator — all from Louisiana — previously won election by capturing 51 percent of the vote in that state's open primary in September.

Another 41 House members — 27 Democrats and 14 Republicans — had no general election opposition. Sixteen other Democrats and two Republicans in the House had only minor party opposition.

But most observers were predicting little change in the Democratic dominance of Congress.

Even Republican National Committee Chairman Bill Brock estimated the GOP would gain only 15 to 20 seats in the House and one or two in the Senate.

RAIL TRAFFIC BLOCKED — A Missouri Pacific freight train derailment near Mesquite, just east of Dallas, Monday afternoon piled 27 of the 72 railway cars into a mammoth roadblock. Only one car contained dangerous chemicals, however, and it was sealed without damage. No injuries were reported to the train crew or persons in the area, but it took workmen seven hours to clear the wreckage and allow rail traffic to resume. (AP Laserphoto)

Race For Mahon's Job Hikes Vote

to relinquish the congressional seat — being vacated by George Mahon — to a non-Lubbockite.

The Lubbock attorney also is counting on a heavy turnout in rural areas to counter Bush's certain landslide in the district's southern counties.

Bush, a 32-year-old Midland oil producer, hopes for about 40 percent of the Lubbock vote while carrying Hale, Hockley, Andrews and Ector counties.

Hance has attacked Bush for his alleged short time of residence in West Texas, for the large amount of money spent on the Republican's campaign, and for his out-of-district contributions.

Bush disagrees those are the issues, asserting instead that a Republican could better represent the conservative views of West Texas.

"I wish he'd leave my family and money alone," Bush says.

Like a salesman for capitalism and the free enterprise system, Bush preaches less government regulation and more free rein for business and industry.

If the "economic pie" is allowed to grow, Bush says, we'll all end up with a piece.

Bush, the son of probable presidential hopeful George Bush, also set about to give the GOP "a new look" and to bring dignity back to the dirty game of politics.

Since July, 1977, when he announced he would run, Bush has come a long way for someone who pronounced Lubbock "Lubbick."

West Texas farmers generally are distrustful of Bush, however, largely because of his father's membership on the Trilateral Commission.

Made up of representatives of Japan, Germany and the U.S., the commission's stated goal is the promotion of close political and economic cooperation among the three developed nations, while helping the less-developed Third World countries.

The farmers see a sinister conspiracy in the commission, and fault what they call the commission's "cheap raw materials policy."

Bush and Hance have tried valiantly to disagree on the issues, but usually have ended in agreement.

It's "disturbing," Bush says, to run against a Democrat who sounds like a Republican.

The major disagreement between the two candidates is on whether a Democrat or a Republican could be more effective in representing a conservative district in Congress.

Bush charges Hance would be under pressure from the "liberal" House leadership to "go along to get along." The Republican Party platform also is more closely aligned with the views of West Texans than that of the Democrats, Bush says.

Hance responds that as a member of the minority party, Bush would have no input on bills in committee and only would be able to vote yes or no on legislation.

The Lubbock attorney points to his four-year record as state senator as proof he supported his district regardless of the views of state leaders.

Hance and Bush also are at odds on which committees they would like to serve if elected.

Hance wants a seat on the Agriculture Committee, while Bush would choose Ways and Means or Appropriations.

With one-third the votes in the district, Lubbock will determine which candidate will move to Washington.

West Texans also must elect a new state senator today with Hance's desire to be promoted to congressman.

Tahoka rancher and farmer E.L. Short, a former state representative, and state and said he would win by more than 55 percent.

"I feel real confident about the outcome. We've outworked the opposition. We've had more people involved. All of the signs and symptoms that you look for at this point are very favorable. I believe we will carry every county in the state."

Both candidates are multimillionaires — Clements reported his worth at $30 million, Hill $4 million — but emphasized down-home folksiness and a Texas draw in their media ads.

The Senate race in contrast pitted Tower, a former college government instructor, against a former Duke University dean and Shakespearean scholar, Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Texas.

Tower contrasted his modest personal wealth with the financial holdings of his challenger, but the incumbent Republican spent $3.5 million to the Democratic nominee's $2 million campaign outlay.

Both candidates accused the other of ineffective leadership and each predicts victory.

Krueger put on his lucky tie for photographers early today at his home in New Braunfels and claimed he had "never lost with it."

Tower became the only Republican in 92 years to win a statewide election with his successful bid to replace Lyndon Johnson in the Senate 17 years ago.

In the race for attorney general, Republican Jim Baker spent an unheard of $1.2 million in the GOP's first serious bid for an office that has often launched a number of Texas Democrats into higher office.

Baker, who managed Gerald Ford's unsuccessful 1976 presidential campaign, faced Democrat Mark White.

White, also a Houston lawyer, began talking Monday as if victory were already his. Baker has accused White of ducking issues in the campaign and reiterated earlier charges that White violated campaign finance reporting laws.

The retirement of Texas' four longest tenured representatives sparked some heated congressional races — particularly in West Texas where George W. Bush of Midland sought to win the seat now held by Rep. George Mahon, D-Texas.

In addition to Mahon, veteran Reps. Omar Burleson, Olin Teague and W.R. Poage, and the only black elected to represent Texas in Congress during this century, Sen. Barbara Jordan, are retiring.

Two incumbents, longtime Rep. John Young and Rep. Dale Milford were defeated in primary races.

Rep. Joe Robbins have waged a lackluster campaign which has been completely overshadowed by the Bush-Hance contest.

Robbins, 44, a television newscaster, has charged Short, 53, with changing his positions on the taxation of intangibles such as bank stock and bank accounts and on giving Texans the right to initiate legislation through referendum.

Robbins, a Republican who served one term in the legislature, also has charged Short is "bought and paid for" by special interest groups which have contributed heavily to Short's campaign.

Short has virtually ignored the barrage of attacks, but launched one of his own concerning a Robbins' campaign contribution and expense report.

Robbins was "irresponsible" in filing the report, Short charged when the secretary of state had not received Robbins' report one week after it was due.

Later, the report was found in the wrong file.

The rural areas south of Lubbock which Short represented for eight years in the legislature, made Short the Democratic nominee and could make him the next state senator.

However, Lubbock, with 52 percent of the vote, could reverse the trend if it strongly favors Robbins.

In the race for District 75-A state representative, Xen Oden charges her Republican opponent, Nolan "Buzz" Robnett, with sexism, while he hangs a "liberal and free-spending" epithet on her.

Mrs. Oden, a 50-year-old civic leader and businesswoman, rebuked Robnett last week for implying in his television commercials she would not have the stamina to endure the stresses of public office.

Claiming Robnett intended the commercials to start a male-female confrontation, Mrs. Oden later said she "prefers to think that won't have an effect on the race."

Robnett, a 37-year-old realtor, denied the sexist charges and said fiscal philosophies, not gender, is the main issue in the race.

In his advertisements and political brochures, Robnett, a Democrat-turned-Republican, claims Mrs. Oden's "liberal" proclivities would prompt her to cut problems by throwing money at them.

Ironically, Mrs. Oden charges her opponent with liberalism because he has said he would not oppose further decriminalization of marijuana laws.

She also claims to be fiscally conservative, favoring constitutionally enforced budget limitations on government spending. Robnett publicly has supported zero-based budgeting, making the fiscal issue appear to be one of which candidate outdoes the other in conservatism.

Neither candidate is a political novice. Mrs. Oden ran unsuccessfully for the 75-A seat in 1976, losing to Republican Joe Robbins. Robnett ran as a Democrat for state treasurer in 1972.

Apart from short-lived allegations of travel fund misappropriations, no central dispute has flared in the District 75-B state representative contest.

One-term incumbent Froy Salinas, a Democrat, successfully cleared himself of a charge that he collected state travel expenses illegally.

Republican David Hester, Salinas's opponent, made the charge about two weeks ago.

Salinas, 39, producing a canceled check and other documents, claimed his collection of the money was a mistake prompted by misinformation by the House Business Office. He repaid the money when the error was discovered, the life insurance salesman said.

Hester, 50, works for Caprock Business Farms. He charges his opponent is too liberal. Salinas, who claims he cannot pinpoint Hester on issues, says he favors further tax reform.

In other local races, voters will choose between Democrat Verna Boyd and Republican Dixie Ryan for district clerk.

Mrs. Boyd, 46, has been chief deputy district clerk for 15 years. Mrs. Ryan, 48, is a businesswoman and part-time teacher.

Raza Unida candidate Bidal Agero, 29, is challenging 20-year incumbent Alton Brazell, a Democrat, for the Pct. 4 county commissioner seat.

Agero edits and publishes a weekly bilingual newspaper and a quarterly bilingual magazine.

Republican Claude Cravens, 61, a Slaton attorney, is challenging incumbent Pct. 2 Justice of the Peace Arvin Stafford, 41, a Democrat.

The U.S. attorney's office in the federal courthouse will be open from 8 a.m. until all polls are closed today to process complaints about possible election law violations.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation also is prepared to receive complaints.

U.S. Hopes To Tap Asian Oil Reserve

TOKYO (UPI) — China is sitting on top of a huge untapped pool of 100 billion barrels of oil, three times the known reserves of the United States, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said today.

Schlesinger's estimate of Chinese oil production potential was three times as great as previously given by a U.S. official and left no doubt that China is viewed as a possible major producer of petroleum in the future.

But Schlesinger, who spent three weeks in China before returning to Tokyo Sunday, said any role for American and other big international oil companies in developing China's oil industry lies some years in the future.

He also said the current oil strike in Iran — which supplies the United States with about 8 percent of its oil — does not pose any serious threat immediately, but could have a "marked impact" on oil prices if the industry is idled for months.

Right now, Schlesinger said, China does not need U.S. technology because it is concentrating on expanding its drilling in shallow coastal waters.

But Schlesinger said the assistance of the big oil companies may be sought when the Chinese start looking for oil in the deep waters of the South and East China seas.

"I think there have been some undue expectations about the rapidity with which this will develop," Schlesinger said. "I don't see it before 1982 or 1983 at the earliest."

If Schlesinger's estimate of China's oil reserves at 100 billion barrels is correct, China is sitting on one of the largest untapped pools of oil in the world.

While in China, Schlesinger offered American cooperation in developing China's energy resources. Chinese officials agreed to start working-level talks as quickly as possible on American technical aid in developing Chinese coal mines, construction of a huge dam on the Yangtze river and other projects.

Schlesinger said that about half of China's oil probably is on shore and the other half under the sea in offshore areas.

He estimated that Chinese crude oil production this year would approach 750 million barrels. The U.S. Bureau of Mines has guessed China's 1977 crude oil output was about 638 million barrels, up 8.33 percent from 1976.

Production in the United States last year amounted to about 3 billion barrels. Proven U.S. oil reserves are about 30 billion barrels.

Schlesinger said the Chinese goal of to achieve an annual production of 1.5 to 2.25 billion barrels.

Jones Guides Baltimore To Win, Despite Injury

BALTIMORE (AP) — It would be easy to compare Bert Jones with a military commander who, although badly wounded in battle, leads his forces to victory.

Just don't let the injury-plagued quarterback of the Baltimore Colts hear you making that comparison.

"I don't want to be a martyr; I want to play football and contribute to the team," said Jones after coming back from yet another shoulder injury to rally the Colts to a 21-17 victory over the arch-rival Washington Redskins Monday night.

Jones, who missed the first six games of the National Football League season with a shoulder separation and then played only a few minutes before being hurt again three weeks ago, was injured on the same right shoulder during a scramble in the third quarter.

Pain creased his face and he labored to throw on the sidelines. But when the Colts regained possession after a one-yard run by John Riggins had put the Redskins ahead 17-14, Jones was back in the game.

"I asked the doctor if Bert could play, and he said yes," recalled Coach Ted Marchibroda. "I asked Bert if he could go back. He said it hurt a little bit. I told him that if it got to the point where it hurt too bad, to take himself out."

"But that's leadership. The team knows he's out there to win."

With Jones at the helm and his teammates seeming to play with renewed vigor, the Colts marched into Redskin territory three times in the final quarter.

Twice, field goal attempts by Toni Linhart failed. On the third drive, Jones fired a strike to wide receiver Roger Carr for a 27-yard touchdown that gave Baltimore its fourth victory of the season in the nationally televised game.

"Bert's coming back meant a lot to the whole team," said Carr, who had teamed with Jones on a 78-yard TD pass in the second quarter. "He makes us go. It's a dreadful thing when he gets hurt. He moves this team."

Jones, who has gained the nickname of "The Franchise," said he was merely doing his job, his latest injury notwithstanding.

"We have a good football team and I think I compliment the team," he said, "and as long as I can contribute, I'll play."

The shoulder still hurt, Jones said, but not enough to keep him out of the Colts' next contest, against Seattle.

"It'll be OK by March," he joked. Besides his two bombs to Carr, Jones passed 19 yards to rookie tight end Reese McCall for a touchdown in the second period.

In addition to Riggins' TD, which was set up by a pass interference call in the Baltimore end zone, Washington, now 7-3 and a game ahead of Dallas in the NFC East, scored on a 44-yard field goal by Mark Moseley and a 31-yard pass from Billy Kilmer to Ricky Thompson.

Although Kilmer started at quarterback for the second consecutive week, Washington Coach Jack Pardee went to Joe Theismann in the third period when the Colts shut down the Redskins' offense.

"We thought Joe could take advantage of some things in their defense that Billy possibly couldn't," Pardee said. "They were giving Billy a strong inside rush, and we thought Joe's mobility would be able to stop that."

Aside from his work on the Redskins' final scoring drive, Theismann, the starting quarterback through Washington's first eight games, was also ineffective. He finished with 92 yards on six completions in 12 attempts, compared with Kilmer's two completions in 11 tries for 38 yards.

"It (the quarterback situation) is a game-to-game thing," said Pardee, trying to play down a seemingly perennial problem for Washington. "We're just trying to win every game."

"We still have a one-game lead in our division, so it's not the end of the world. But we do have to do something to figure out what we're doing wrong."

Riggins, among the NFC's top rushers going into the game, had 60 yards to raise his season total to 794.

COME ON REF — Baltimore Colts head coach Ted Marchibroda argues with officials on a controversial play involving Washington Redskins wide receiver Danny Buggs in the third quarter of an NFL game in Baltimore Monday night. The officials called Buggs pass reception in bounds, only to reverse the call after the argument with Marchibroda. (AP Laserphoto)

Packers Cleared In Thomas Case

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers said Monday they have been cleared by the National Football League of any rules violation in their handling of a tryout for former all-pro running back Duane Thomas.

Coach Bart Starr then said he would ease his restrictions on news media coverage of Packer affairs, but remained reticent when asked what he had told the NFL concerning the Thomas affair which sportswriters had publicized.

He said Green Bay's letter to the NFL "was accepted as a satisfactory explanation of the matter, and I have no further comment."

In New York, NFL spokesman Jim Heffernan similarly declined to detail the league's exchanges with Starr.

"This is something strictly between the commissioner and the Green Bay Packers," Heffernan contended.

Having said he received an all-clear letter from NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, Starr said he would relax the restrictions he had imposed last week after four sportswriters wrote that the NFL was investigating a possible violation of the NFL's "stashing rule" in the Thomas matter.

Starr said he would reopen the Packer dressing room and practices to news media, except on post-game Mondays, and that he still will not grant interviews to the four sportswriters.

The Packers "have been exonerated of any possible violation," Heffernan said. "The explanation they offered was acceptable to the commissioner. They will not warrant any fine or any other penalty."

Thomas arrived in Green Bay Oct. 23 as a free agent and worked out that day. He left last Monday, the day sportswriters questioned Starr and the league about a rule that prohibits clubs from working out free agents such more than one day, from paying their expenses beyond the day of the official workout and from allowing free agents to use club facilities and equipment other than on the day of the official workout.

Thomas had been seen running at least once after his workout while Packer aide Burt Gustafson watched, although Thomas and the Packers insisted there had been only one official workout.

OU Still Heads AP Grid Poll

By The Associated Press

Their lead in the Associated Press college football poll slightly diminished, the top-ranked Oklahoma Sooners head into a weekend clash with No. 4 Nebraska that will determine the Big Eight champion and, almost certainly, who enters the bowl games as No. 1.

The 9-0 Sooners, 28-7 victors over Colorado last Saturday, received 50 first-place votes and 1,247 of a possible 1,260 points from a nationwide panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters.

But No. 2 Penn State, also 9-0 and the only other unbeaten-untied team in the country, mauled previously undefeated Maryland 27-3. The Nittany Lions received the other 13 first-place votes and 1,193 points. Penn State gained six points on Oklahoma in this week's poll.

The top two teams could be headed for a national championship showdown in the Orange Bowl. First, however, Oklahoma must get by 8-1 Nebraska at Lincoln this weekend.

Alabama and Nebraska remained 3-4 after the Crimson Tide stopped Mississippi State 35-14 and the Cornhuskers belted Kansas 63-21. Alabama received 1,110 points while Nebraska totaled 1,072 points.

Maryland dropped from fifth to 13th, thus clearing the way for Southern California, Texas and Michigan to move up a notch to fifth, sixth and seventh, respectively. Southern Cal received 993 points for a 13-7 decision over Stanford, while Texas earned 889 points and Michigan got 855 following a 34-0 rout of Iowa.

The rest of the Top 20 is comprised of the same teams as last week but with a different order.

The Houston Cougars, 63-6 victors over Texas Christian, received 840 points for eighth place. UCLA remained No. 9 with 745 points by edging Oregon 23-21 and Louisiana State jumped from 12th to 10th with 617 points following a 30-8 victory over Mississippi.

The Second Ten consists of Georgia, Purdue, Maryland, Notre Dame, Clemson, Arkansas, Michigan State, Navy, Washington and Pittsburgh. Last week it was Navy, LSU, Georgia, Purdue, Notre Dame, Clemson, Arkansas, Michigan State, Pitt and Washington.

Guidry, Rice Head List In Balloting For MVP

By The Associated Press
The loser in today's Baseball Writers Association of America election for the American League's Most Valuable Player had the consolation of knowing that not many second-place finishers had the kind of year he did.

And that went for both Boston's Jim Rice and New York's Ron Guidry.
Rice's credentials centered on one of the best slugging seasons in modern baseball history. The Boston bomber batted .315, walloped 46 home runs, drove in 139 runs and became the first player in 40 years to accumulate more than 400 total bases.

Those certainly would seem to be MVP qualifications, and in an ordinary year, Rice would have had little problem claiming the award.

But 1978 was no ordinary year, certainly not for Guidry.
The slender New York left-hander posted a 25-3 record that included nine shutouts and a 1.74 earned run average last season.

Now the question is, which set of dazzling numbers is more worthy of the MVP award?
One opinion is that because Guidry is a pitcher and usually performed his magic once every fifth day, his production was not quite as awesome as the day-in, day-out pounding Rice turned out.

Guidry, who last week was the unanimous winner of the American League Cy Young Award, does not agree with that analysis.
"I did my job," he said. "That's all I know."

Rice felt he paid the price of part-time employment last year when, as a designated hitter, he batted .320 with 39 homers and 114 RBI and saw the MVP award go to Minnesota's Rod Carew.
"So I had a good year this year, got over 400 total bases, hit over 40 home runs, drove in 139 RBI, had 16 game-winning hits, and had 29 home runs that put the Red Sox ahead or tied the game. So what do they want me to do?"

There's little more he could have done, unless he was a pitcher and had tied Babe Ruth's record for shutouts in a season by a left-hander and had posted the lowest ERA by a southpaw since Dutch Leonard's 1.01 in 1914. Those were among Guidry's 1978 accomplishments.
Part of the debate involved the definition of the MVP. Logically, it would seem that the award should go to the player judged to be most valuable to his team, which could be different from the credentials required if, for example, the award was called Player of the Year. So, the question would seem to be whether Rice was more valuable to the Red Sox than Guidry was to Yankees.

There is another factor here. Some observers believe that pitchers have their Cy Young Award and thus should take a backseat when it comes to MVP voting. But the MVP vote doesn't exclude pitchers and since 1956 when the Cy Young was introduced, five hurlers have swept both awards. They were Don Newcombe in 1956, Sandy Koufax in 1963, Bob Gibson and Denny McLain in 1968 and Vida Blue in 1971.

In every case, the winners had the same spectacular statistics that Guidry brought to today's election. Rarely, though, did any of them face slugging with the kind of numbers Rice had endorsing him.

There was even talk that the James Odom-coached club might have to wait until next year before it could get a victory and halt the longest losing streak in the history of the school.
But then came last Thursday night, a day many folks will remember for quite some time.
With a 9-2 loop mark, had already been eliminated from the District 4-AAAA picture. On the other hand, Coronado fared still very much alive with a 1-0 record.

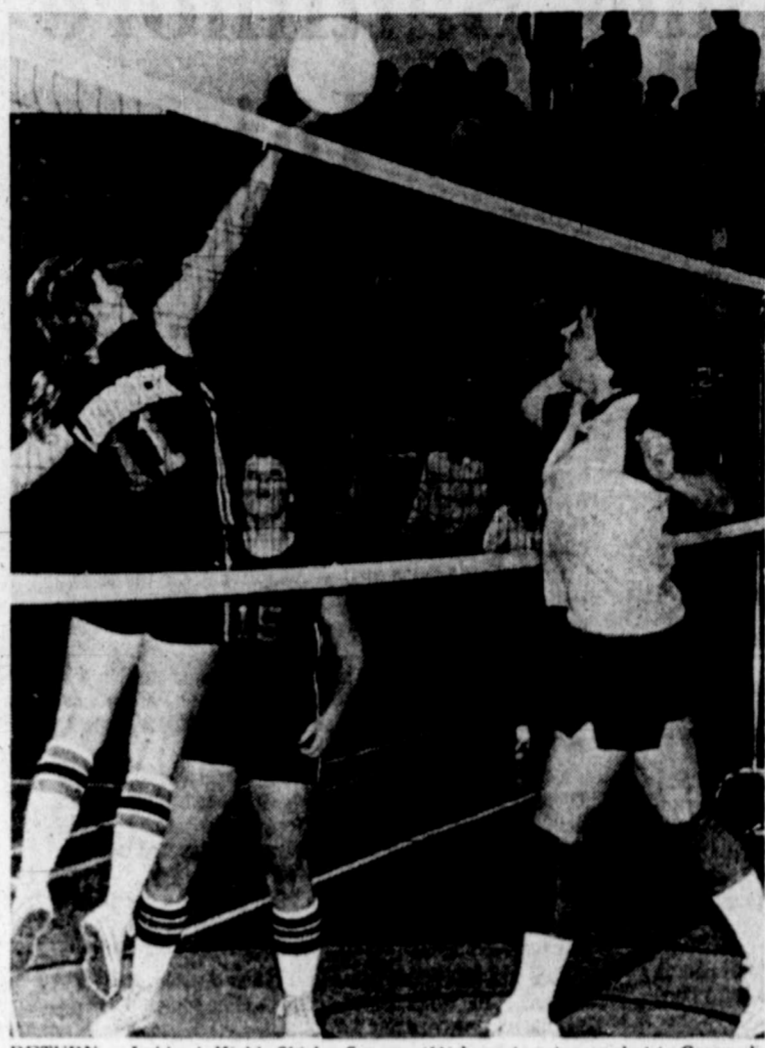

Although the 42-8 setback didn't KO the Mustangs, it does add a little bit of pressure. Now, to win the loop title, Coronado will have to beat Hereford and then Plainview the next couple of weeks.

The season didn't really start on a high note for Monterey. On opening night, the Plainsmen had to come from behind to eke out a tie with Canyon, which at the time was considered a second-class citizen, but since then has come on strong to challenge for the District 1-AAA title.

MHS Attempts Late Rebound

By JIM FERGUSON

From Sept. 22 until Nov. 2 the Monterey Plainsmen fell upon some awfully hard times. Some might go as far to call it rock bottom.

During the entire month of October, the Plainsmen — perennial Class AAAA powers, failed to win a game. Zilch.
There was even talk that the James Odom-coached club might have to wait until next year before it could get a victory and halt the longest losing streak in the history of the school.

They divided the first half with Plainview, but Monday night, Plainview lost to Monterey in the MHS gym 15-4, 15-8. And that gave Plainview two losses in the second half.

LaRonda Williams led CHS in scoring with 9 points, and Delma Paez had 4 points to lead the Lubbock High scoring.
For the season, Coronado is 17-11. It is the only school to win a girls volleyball title since the Lubbock teams began competing in Interscholastic League competition.

The CHS junior varsity also won, 15-9, 15-6, and finished the year without a loss in district.
With the loss, Lubbock High fell to 12-14, 1-6.

Monterey ran its record to 3-3 in district, 12-13 for the season, with the win over Plainview.
Dina Franssen, recently promoted from the JV, led the Plainswomen with 9 points off her serves and hit 90 percent of her spikes. Mindi Holloway scored 8 points on serves.

Monterey scored on 97 percent of Janis Rhea's spikes.
The MHS junior varsity won 15-10, 15-4.
The regular season ends Thursday night when Monterey girls play at Lubbock High and Hereford visits Coronado. However, the Coronado girls do not know who they will play in district, nor where and when the playoffs will be scheduled.

Tonight, Estacado and Dunbar will play in a nonconference match.
Former Estacado Back Lauded At ACU
ABILENE (Special) — For his sparkling performance against Sam Houston State University last Saturday, former Estacado High School runningback Steve Worthey was named Abilene Christian University's offensive back of the week.

Worthey, a walk-on at ACU, rushed for 106 yards on 16 carries and caught seven passes for 155 yards in the Lone Star Conference battle.
It was his first game to start as a collegian.
As a senior at Estacado, Worthey, coached by Louis Kelley, rushed for 435 yards on 93 carries.

Mistakes Still Haunt Cowboys

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys keep expecting to explode one of these weeks, but mistakes keep causing things to fizzle instead of boom.

Cornerback Mark Washington says, however, he sees no lack of effort on the part of his teammates this year.
"I hate to say that our intensity is lacking because I don't think it is," Washington said Monday. "But the people who made the big plays last year aren't making the big plays this year."

"Everybody is working just as hard as we ever have, but things don't seem to be happening."
They didn't happen again last Sunday in Dallas' 23-16 loss to the Miami Dolphins and Washington seems just as mystified as the average Cowboys fan.

"We just had too many mistakes," he said. "We have had fumbles and interceptions on offense and the defense does not seem to be able to come up with the plays to combat that."
Maybe, Washington says, it has to do with the age of the team and the amount of success it has had in recent years.
"You look at the powerhouse teams

Dallas had in 1970 and 1971 and you can't compare that team with this one," he said. "This team has not reached full potential yet."
"Those teams were frustrated because they had been so close before. I remember one year we went to Minnesota and got killed and we really took that bad hard. Those teams wanted to win so bad and overcome adversity."

"Last year this team did not have to overcome any adversity to speak of. This team has known nothing but success and there has not been much to be frustrated about."
Coach Tom Landry agreed with Washington in his belief that the Cowboys were putting out the proper amount of effort.

"The disappointing thing about the Miami game is that we worked hard to get ready," Landry said. "Maybe we worked too hard."
"We will probably have to win them all if we plan to win the division. But if you get a wild card spot you can still get your foot in the door. Maybe that is what we are shooting for."

Tech Golfers Stand Sixth

NACOGDOCHES (Special) — After posting a team score of 325 Monday, Texas Tech's women's golf team moved into six in the 11-team Stephen F. Austin Invitational Golf Tournament.
Final round of the three-day show will be played today.
After two rounds, Tech has a 654. Houston Baptist leads at 633, followed by Oklahoma 645, Lamar 647, Texas A & M 629, and Tech. Midland College is eighth at 811.
Chris Monaghan of OU is the leader at 150.
Leader for Tech is Mary DeLong with a 78-79-157. Linda Hunt is 88-79-167, Liz Remy 80-83-163, Jane Gray 83-84-167, and Kerry Krantz 93-101-194.

Rose Still Miffed With Pact Talks

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds apparently are counting on sentiment to bring free agents Pete Rose and Tommy John into the fold, but indicate negotiations must be reasonable.
Rose is being sought by the Atlanta Braves and the San Diego Padres while he tours Japan with the Reds.
The Reds are enamored with John, who won 20 games in 1977 and 17 this past season for the Dodgers.
But Rose, contacted in Japan, appeared discouraged with Cincinnati's negotiations.
Remaining with the Reds "was my inner urge," Rose said. "But I've got a dead-end feeling that nothing's going to happen with this club. I've made up my mind not to worry about it, just make the best of it I can."
"Dick Wagner hasn't said one word," Rose said of the Reds' president, who is traveling with the team.
"We have acted like we want him very much," countered Wagner. "You don't make the kind of offer we made, then readjust it for him, if you don't want him very much."
John, meanwhile, has stopped negotiating with the Dodgers, who claim he is seeking $500,000 per year.
"I'm not saying I will be a bargain basement beauty, but the package my attorney and I put together will be very reasonable," said John in a telephone interview from Los Angeles. He is a native of Terre Haute, Ind., not far from Cincinnati.
"There was more to the situation than money" in the Dodger discussions, he said. One factor he noted was the Dodgers' reminding him of the 1975 operation they paid for to rebuild his arm with experimental surgery.

"I am tired of hearing about that from them. I have heard it since 1975. Look, a guy in a factory gets hurt on the job and he gets paid. Same thing with me. I helped them win a pennant the year before. I kept getting letters from them telling me how much I helped. Then I had to hold out to get the money I deserved," said John, who reported earlier he would like to play in Cincinnati.

Coronado Captures VB Title

Coronado girls got an assist from Monterey Monday night, and used it to clinch their third straight District 4-AAAA volleyball championship.
The Mustangs defeated hostess Lubbock High 15-5, 15-7 in their match to run their district record to 6-1. And they are 3-0 for the second half with a match to go.

They divided the first half with Plainview, but Monday night, Plainview lost to Monterey in the MHS gym 15-4, 15-8. And that gave Plainview two losses in the second half.

LaRonda Williams led CHS in scoring with 9 points, and Delma Paez had 4 points to lead the Lubbock High scoring.
For the season, Coronado is 17-11. It is the only school to win a girls volleyball title since the Lubbock teams began competing in Interscholastic League competition.

The CHS junior varsity also won, 15-9, 15-6, and finished the year without a loss in district.
With the loss, Lubbock High fell to 12-14, 1-6.
Monterey ran its record to 3-3 in district, 12-13 for the season, with the win over Plainview.

Dina Franssen, recently promoted from the JV, led the Plainswomen with 9 points off her serves and hit 90 percent of her spikes. Mindi Holloway scored 8 points on serves.
Monterey scored on 97 percent of Janis Rhea's spikes.
The MHS junior varsity won 15-10, 15-4.
The regular season ends Thursday night when Monterey girls play at Lubbock High and Hereford visits Coronado. However, the Coronado girls do not know who they will play in district, nor where and when the playoffs will be scheduled.
