Carter Pushes Plan To Upgrade Civil Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, worried about the Soviet Union's growing civil defense capability, has approved plans to vastly upgrade U.S. efforts, aiming to save as many as 140 million Americans in the event of nuclear war.

American civil defense officials estimate that only 90 million of the country's 220 million citizens would now survive a nuclear attack.

The new plan would hope to save between one-half and two-thirds of all Americans through massive evacuation of metropolitan areas if nuclear war was threatened.

"The Soviet Union has had this capability for some time. We are without plans and therefore could suffer catastrophic damage," said Baryl Tirana, U.S. Civil Defense director and one of the major proponents of the new program.

Officials estimated the cost of the improved program — which must win congressional approval — at $2 billion over five years. The United States now spends about $90 million annually on civil defense.

Carter gave his approval to the proposal, contained in a secret White House document, on Sept. 29, Tirana confirmed late Sunday.

He said the president and other administration officials gave the go-ahead because of a growing uneasiness over what the Russians were doing in the area of civil defense.

"While the proposed spending increase may seem large, it is really tiny when compared to the Soviet level of effort," Tirana said. He said a recent CIA report estimated that it would cost $2 billion annually to duplicate the current Russian effort.

"We feel an effective and credible U.S. civil defense program would contribute in maintaining our strategic deterrence," he said.

The new program was resisted by State Department arms control officials who reportedly argued that efforts to protect civilians from attack could weaken the mutual deterrence both this country and Russia now have against launching a nuclear war.

However, Carter rejected that argument after a year-long government study revealed the massive amounts of money the Russians are already spending on civil defense.

For the evacuation program to protect a hoped-for two-thirds of the U.S. population, Tirana said, between one and two weeks warning would be needed. Such a warning would be provided if intelligence reports showed that the Soviets had begun their own evacuation.

Defense Department officials argued that in a crisis situation, the Soviet Union might be dissuaded from attacking the United States by the knowledge that a majority of Americans could survive a first strike.

They said if the Russians began to evacuate their cities now, the United States would be put at a severe disadvantage because of its virtually nonexistent evacuation plans.

In addition to drawing up evacuation plans, officials said the new program would also emphasize plans to recover quickly from a nuclear attack. Those plans would include better protection for government officials at all levels and the possible creation of special command posts to facilitate communication between disaster and relief agencies.

Tirana said the proposal, which will go to Congress next year, would not be fully implemented until 1985.

Icy Storm Blankets Midwest

A-J News Services

A persistent, deadly storm that dumped up to 3 feet of snow on the Rockies swept into the Plains and Great Lakes today on tracks of ice and snow.

At least 12 deaths were blamed on the season's first major storm, which has shrouded the western mountain ranges for the last five days.

In the Southwest, travelers' advisories went up in northeastern New Mexico and the Oklahoma Panhandle, while a blanket of clouds and fog cleared out of the South Plains. But weathermen warned that the Lubbock area's respite from damp, cloudy weather is expected to be short-lived.

Colder weather also is on the way, forecasters said, with a possibility that the mercury will dip to freezing later in the week.

Partly cloudy skies today are expected to become cloudy again Tuesday with a 20-percent chance of rain.

No rain is predicted for today. Lubbock had an official .02 inch of rain over the weekend.

It was 58 here Sunday and 49 overnight. The extended forecast for West Texas for Wednesday through Friday calls for low temperatures in the 20s in the north and near 40 in the extreme south.

A Lubbock weatherman said today that temperatures probably will not drop below 30 degrees here during that period.

He said the weekend mist was caused

Two Men Killed In Plane Crash

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A twin-engine private plane, attempting to land early this morning in heavy fog at Lubbock International Airport, crashed less than a mile north of the airport's main runway, killing the pilot and a Texas Tech University student.

Killed in the crash about 2:35 a.m. today were David Forrest Dunkle Jr., 21, of Irving and believed to be a junior at Tech, and John Morris Lambert, 22, who apparently was piloting the Cessna 310 airplane.

The occupants of the aircraft were pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy.

Armond Edwards, with the National Transportation Safety Board out of Fort Worth, was investigating the accident early today. However, authorities at the scene said heavy fog was the apparent reason for the fatal crash about a quarter-mile south of FM 1294 and a mile east of the Amarillo Highway.

The plane, which reportedly left Dallas' Love Field Airport about 12:30 a.m. today, was registered to Astro Wing Inc., a Dallas courier service, and was transporting cancelled checks from the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas to Lubbock.

Bud Nollensmyer, an investigator with the Federal Aviation Administration, said the wreckage was discovered in a stripped cotton field shortly before 6 a.m. today by airport firemen. Heavy fog hampered the search for the downed aircraft.

Lambert radioed into Lubbock Approach Control at 2:21 a.m. that he was making an instrument landing. However, radio contact was lost at 2:35 a.m. and the airport tower alerted emergency crews that there was a possible plane crash, said John Mydlow, deputy chief with Lubbock Approach Control.

"It was an entirely routine operation until we lost radio contact," Mydlow said. "Apparently he went off course while he was on final approach."

The deputy chief said visibility in the fog at the time of the accident was 1/8 mile and visibility on the runway was 2,800 feet.

An airport spokesman said the plane disappeared from radar at 2:42 a.m. and a search in fog and drizzling rain was begun immediately.

The airplane was approaching from the north and was somewhere below 4,300 feet altitude when it disappeared, a tower controller said.

Lambert apparently was killed instantly, but there were indications that Dunkle lived for some time after the crash.

"There was some evidence that he (Dunkle) tried to dig with his feet to get out," LeCroy said. Both victims were pinned in the wreckage, which did not burn. Their bodies were pulled from the debris about 7:40 a.m.

Dunkle, whose current address in Lubbock was 5302 11th St., No. 153, was a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity. A fraternity brother said Dunkle, who also was a pilot, had gone to Dallas for the weekend.

Mike Lasater, an employee with West-Tex Aircraft, said the ill-fated airplane was scheduled to arrive about 2 a.m. and

Egypt To Continue Peace Negotiations

By The Associated Press

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat conferred with his top advisers today on the current deadlock in the Washington peace talks, and Prime Minister Mustapha Khalil said Cairo's delegation will continue to negotiate despite the dispute over the Palestinian issue.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin arrived back in Israel from the United States, meanwhile, and said his government would consider compromise proposals put forward by the United States and Egypt on the question that has blocked final agreement.

The issue basically is whether and how to link an Egyptian-Israeli treaty with a commitment to step-by-step resolution of the future of the Palestinian-populated West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip.

Begin gave no details of the proposals outlined in what he called a "long and serious" meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance in New York on Sunday night.

In a day of fast-paced diplomatic developments, including a phone call between Sadat and President Carter, the initial Egyptian inclination was to call the negotiators home, sources close to Sadat said.

Sadat met with Khalil and Vice President Hosny Mubarak to study a message from Carter, and after three hours delivered his reply to U.S. Ambassador Hermann Eilts. The message, according to Cairo newspapers, dealt with the stalled negotiations in Washington. But neither the contents of the message nor details of Sadat's reply were divulged.

Khalil was asked afterward whether the Egyptian delegation was being called home from Cairo. He replied:

"No such instructions have been issued to the Egyptian delegation. It never occurred to us."

Sadat had told reporters Friday he would not be surprised if the talks were broken off for a while, but that was before the Vance-Begin meeting Sunday.

Reporters at Ben-Gurion Airport in Tel Aviv asked Begin if Vance had pointed the way to a solution.

"We are listening to all viewpoints," the prime minister said. He did not indicate whether he would recommend that

Jurors Hear Of FBI Ploy

HOUSTON (AP) — An FBI photographer told today of chemically treating a snapshot of a purported murder victim before the photo was delivered to millionaire Cullen Davis.

The Polaroid picture, dusted with fluorescent powder, depicted the "body" of a Fort Worth judge Davis allegedly wanted killed.

The photo was designed to convince Davis the judge was dead and it was dusted to subsequently prove that the defendant handled it.

The defense questions of photographer George Ridgley was a prelude to testimony that will show the powder play back-fired.

Ultraviolet testing after the Fort Worth industrialist's arrest last August showed no legally significant traces of the powder on Davis' hands. Investigators previously explained that Davis was permitted to wash his hands after being fingerprinted at police headquarters a short time after his arrest.

Davis, 45, is accused of masterminding the unsuccessful scheme to kill the judge presiding over his multimillion dollar divorce case.

Ridgley also was expected to testify about photos he snapped of Davis and informant David McCrory.

McCrory, 40, once a friend of Davis, is now his chief accuser. He is expected to testify by mid-week.

"I think the photos realistically have to show that meetings occurred between Davis and McCrory," the prosecutor said. "They don't show money being passed."

"They show nothing more than a meeting, but that's important. While it may not seem terribly significant now, it would be corroborative of testimony from other law enforcement people and David McCrory."

The photograph, along with videotape and tape recordings, compose the heart of the state's case against Davis, who heads a Texas-based business complex scattered around the world.

"The photographs of two people meeting and the audio of two people meeting are not indicative of any criminal activity per se," said defense lawyer, Mike Gibson.

Man Injured In City Fire

A Lubbock man apparently overcame by smoke was pulled from a burning house about 12:45 p.m. today.

Johnny Boyd, 48, of 1509 28th St. was administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by rescue workers after he was removed from the smoke-filled house.

He was taken to West Texas Hospital in undetermined condition.

Boyd reportedly was found in the living room of the house by a brother, Louis Boyd.

Officials theorize Boyd dragged himself out of a bedroom, where the fire apparently started in a mattress, before succumbing to the smoke.

Damage to the bedroom was heavy, firemen said, although the exterior of the house appeared undamaged.

County Acts On Juvenile Center Plan

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

By this time next year, if action taken today is followed by a few more necessary steps, Lubbock County will have a new $1 million juvenile detention center.

County commissioners this morning approved architectural plans for the center to be submitted to the Texas Criminal Justice Division and the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

In committee meetings Dec. 1 and Dec. 8, CJD committees are to consider a $500,000 construction grant for the center at North University and Loop 289.

Two planning grants totaling $65,000 previously have been approved by the CJD, and the county has allocated future federal revenue sharing money receipts to pay the rest of the cost.

Austin architect Lamar Youngblood and juvenile probation director Lloyd Watts appeared before the commissioners court at its regular meeting to review the plans.

The CJD juvenile advisory committee will meet Dec. 1 and the full CJD advisory committee on Dec. 8, Watts said.

Watts said plans call for the center to be completed by late next fall.

Build around a 44-by-72-foot open courtyard, the center will have individual rooms for maximums of 24 long-term and

What got lost in the shuffle during the 88 days of testing strength and wills was the day-to-day role of the press as a public institution.

IT WAS A question of survival. For the union, reductions in the size of press crews certainly brought into question its very existence.
For management, it was the necessity of adapting to the technology which has revolutionized newspaper production in recent years in order to remain competitive in the electronic era.

THE AMERICAN press collectively functions as a non-official fourth branch of government, keeping watch on the other three.
Newspapers are also businesses, however. As private operations, they must remain profitable to perform their public function.

Understandably, neither side is trumpeting the settlement as a victory. But the newspapers have gotten essentially what they wanted: a reduction in press crews and acknowledgment that the day of electronic journalism—which replaces many typewriters with

IN ANOTHER TALK to a drug industry group in Hollywood, Florida, Kissinger again sounded the same theme.
He voiced his concerns that the U.S.-USSR military balance was shifting against this country as the result of a series of "wrong decisions" during the past 20 years.

SO HOW DID the U.S. get in this situation? Who made these "wrong decisions" which have resulted in a growing missile gap between the U.S. and the Soviet Union?
Well, some of these decisions were made by none other than Henry Kissinger.

Kissinger said that these included the decision to develop small ballistic missiles while the Soviets were building big ones, as well as delays in the U.S. military development programs.
"The result of all this," said Kissinger, "will be Even more worried is the Texas State Teachers Association. The TSTA, trying to spread its wings and become a dominant political force, put all its eggs in the Hill campaign basket because he promised dramatic raises in teacher pay.

But the fact that both chambers look as though a wrecking crew has been through symbolically reflects the initial shocked reaction to Clements' victory over Atty. Gen. John Hill, breaking state tradition.

"THE LIBERALS are the real losers in this election," one seasoned observer tells me.
He explains that there will be a vast difference in the philosophies of the men and women that Clements will gather around the governor's office and in those that Hill would have selected.

"I THINK THE transition will be smooth," Briscoe tells me. "Certainly, I will do all that I can to make it so, just as Gov. (Preston) Smith did for me."

"The new governor's appointments to agency posts and to boards and commissions also will be, on the whole, significantly different from appointments Hill would have made.

The Nervous Nellies are in the lower echelons of government. Not a few state employees openly campaigned last spring for Hill, thinking he'd do more for them than Briscoe has done.

SPEAKER CLAYTON or Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby—who was not in his office when I dropped by—may emerge as one of the real winners from Clements' election.

I don't mind saying that my heart swelled with pride when, between Oct. 7 and Oct. 20, the racemixed Rhodesian government, in a delegation of four, reached across the unAmerican barriers of the Carter government and took its case—unsuccessfully, I think—to the American people.

ITEM: AN INVESTOR in Brooklyn, N.Y., recently sold a large block of stock to raise cash to repay a loan. The check he received from his broker was drawn on a distant California bank, and took four days to clear. Result: he was unable to liquidate his debt promptly and had to pay additional interest charges.

Smith is tall, taciturn, pale but sanguine. His black colleagues of the transition government, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and Chief Jeremiah Chirau, spoke above the chant of street rabble, a mini-symbol of their besieged southern African country, a continent where freedom of speech is a 1-40 long shot.

ITEM: Another investor reported that it took more than a month for one big brokerage firm to transfer her securities to a competing house, although all her holdings were in the broker's name.

Whoever paid the demonstrators wanted people to remember Ian Smith, whose family was in Africa when the Pilgrims reached Plymouth Rock, as the white supremacist that he once was.

ITEM: A Reston, Va., man had to pay a "custodial service charge" on his inactive account, a charge of which he was not aware. Had he known, he might have transferred his account or closed it.

"I only know," said Bishop Muzorewa, "like the blind beggar of the Bible, that Christ passed this way and now I can see. Mr. Smith was a racist, now he isn't."

ITEM: STEEP, unannounced increases in commission rates that a broker charged a small Huntsville, Ala., investor are forcing him out of stocks and into other, less costly investments.

It will be remembered that Smith and company were refused visas to visit America until several senators appealed to public opinion. What were Carter and UN Ambassador Andy Young afraid of? The frown of Russia? The light of truth?

ITEM: A Sarasota, Fla., resident writes: "Upon depositing my father's securities with a leading securities firm, he chose to have his dividends paid to him as soon as received by the firm."

I previously likened Carter's refusal to meet Smith with Gerald Ford's snub of Soltzhenitsya—and it was a sounder analogy than I then thought.

Fate Of Refugees Undecided

PORT KLANG, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysian navy engineers attempted today to repair a freighter anchored in Port Klang with more than 2,500 ethnic Chinese from Vietnam crammed aboard while Malaysian and United Nations officials were reported quarreling over whether the refugees should be allowed to land.

A police spokesman said the Malaysian government considers the group to be migrants who are not entitled to land as refugees because they paid their way aboard the ship. He said the boat will have to leave as soon as it is repaired.

The representative for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, Rajagopal Sampatkumar, was quoted in the Straits Times Daily as saying that the commission believes the ethnic Chinese qualify as refugees and are eligible for international aid.

Sampatkumar claimed that despite earlier arrangements, Malaysian police turned him away when he tried to take supplies to the closely-guarded freighter Hai Hong. The U.N. official could not be contacted for comments and his claim could not be independently verified.

Officials who had seen the 1,500-ton freighter anchored in this port on the Malacca Strait said that despite the 100 tons of water Malaysian authorities had supplied, the situation on board was "grim."

"It is sardine-packed and one can hardly walk on deck without stumbling on someone," said one official, who refused to be named. Others said there was hardly enough sleeping room and hygienic conditions were getting worse daily.

The ordeal is telling on their strained faces," said another who also asked not to be identified.

Two American newsmen who managed to get aboard the closely-guarded freighter were ordered off at gunpoint by Malaysian marine police. Malaysian authorities went aboard to prevent the ethnic Chinese from sabotaging the ship in an attempt to force Malaysia to give them asylum.

The navy engineers were reported working on two damaged pistons in the engine of the freighter. The repairs delayed the ship's departure, which had been expected today. Police said the Hai Hong was carrying 1,260 children and 1,244 adults. The government reportedly supplied the ship with food and water and was reported preparing to have it towed into international waters if the captain refused to leave.

Refugee officials said they were investigating reports that the Chinese paid a group of Hong Kong businessmen $5 million in gold, jewelry and American dollars to provide a ship to take them out of Vietnam. The Hai Hong reportedly picked them up off Vietnam's southern coast on Oct. 24.

The ship's captain claims the Chinese forced their way aboard after the vessel dropped anchor off Vietnam for engine repairs.

The ethnic Chinese in southern Vietnam dominated commerce there until the Communist takeover. The Communists put an end to this, and the Chinese have been trying to get out of the country, charging that they were being persecuted.

Malaysian officials fear that if they grant them asylum, the country will be flooded by others who buy their way out of Vietnam.

More than 18,000 refugees from Vietnam already live in Malaysian camps on islands off the coast and 10,000 others have passed through on their way to the United States, France and other countries.

But 15-year-old crown Prince Mohammed is being groomed for his future responsibilities, appears beside his father at most official functions and is accompanying him to Washington.

U.S. Arms Support Expected To Be Topic Of Meeting

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — King Hassan II of Morocco, who leaves tonight for a two-day meeting with President Carter in Washington, is a shrewd and subtle diplomat, a statesman eager to modernize his tradition-bound country of 17 million people, and an accomplished golfer, horseman and sharpshooter.

An honors graduate of Bordeaux University's law school, the 49-year-old monarch bears the title of Al Amir Al Mouminin, or Commander of the Faithful, and claims direct descent from the Prophet Mohammed. Even among leftist workers in the cities, his narrow escape in attempted military coups in 1971 and 1972 is often attributed to divine providence.

Moody, self-indulgent and often unpredictable, the king has a deep sense of mission and works feverishly in times of crisis. But visitors sometime have to discuss state affairs with him between holes on the golf course.

His efforts to make his favorite sport a national pastime have not been successful so far. He once had a 30-foot-high photograph of himself swinging a golf club put up in downtown Rabat to popularize the game. The picture came down quickly because most peasants thought the king was whipping a prisoner.

Five years ago, the army was in rebellious turmoil after two purges, Hassan's popularity was at a low ebb, and few expected him to withstand the storm. Instead of digging in his heels, he quietly went to work transforming the absolute monarchy into a democracy.

Then, in 1975, he organized a "March of Conquest" by 350,000 unarmed Moroccans into the former Spanish Sahara to assert his country's claim to the mineral-rich territory. The march forced the Spanish government to abandon the Sahara to Morocco and neighboring Mauritania and brought every shade of Moroccan political opinion cheering to the king's side.

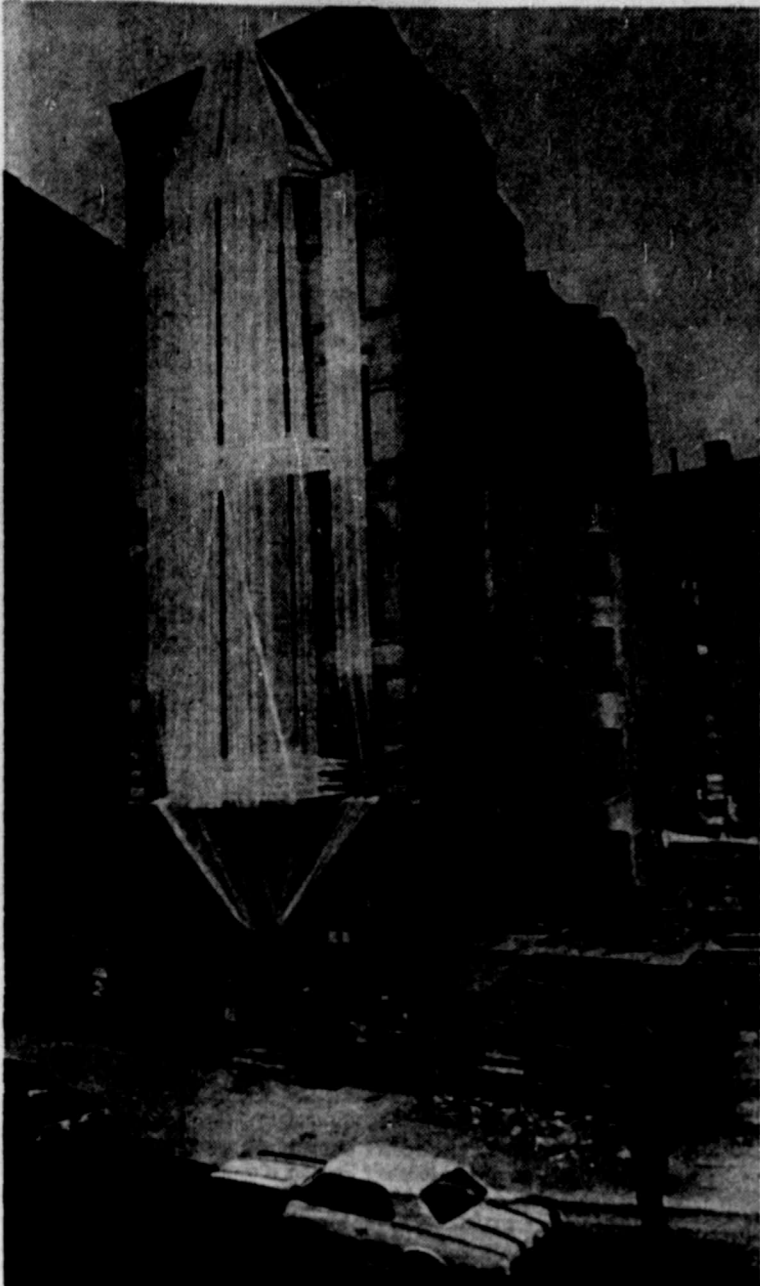

Even the Communist Party now is counted among Hassan's fervent supporters.

The annexation of the Sahara also brought Hassan into bitter conflict with Algeria's leftist president, Houari Boumediene, who sponsors the Polisario guerrilla movement fighting for the independence of the former Spanish territory.

Hassan has thrown most of his 90,000-man army into the guerrilla war. One of the main objectives of his visit to Washington is to persuade Carter to let him use American weapons against the Polisario guerrillas, who get Soviet arms from Algeria. The king considers his fight against them part of the struggle to halt the spread of Soviet influence in Africa.

In the 11 years since he last visited Washington, Hassan has cancelled five other visits at the last moment because of disagreement with the U.S. governments or events in Morocco. The disagreements now seem far behind. The king has used his prestige and influence in the Arab world to reduce condemnation of the Camp David agreements between Israel and Egypt, to give discreet support to troubled Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran and to help defend Western interests.

Now, in return he is asking for U.S.

Red Brigade Terrorists Strike

ROME (UPI) — Terrorists today shot a former prison official 11 times in the legs, despite claims by police sources that they were close to cracking the Red Brigades gang that killed former Premier Aldo Moro.

A group calling itself "The Communist Attack Squads" claimed responsibility for the Milan "knee-cap" shooting of Dr. Mario Marchetti, 65, retired health director of Milan's San Vittore prison.

Among those currently held in the prison are several captured members of the Red Brigades suspected in the killing of Moro last spring.

Marchetti left the prison Oct. 5. He was shot three times the right leg and eight in the left.

Witnesses said three people, two men and a woman, took part in the ambush outside Marchetti's apartment. They said one man and the woman drew 7.65mm Beretta pistols and fired repeatedly, making their getaway calm on foot.

Marchetti was reported in shock but was expected to recover in two months.

Police said Sebregondi carried documents that linked him to suspected Red Brigades leader Corrado Alunni, 30, arrested in Milan Sept. 13. They said he also was suspected of having a role in the killing last Wednesday of magistrate Fed-ele Calvosa, 59, his police bodyguard and driver.

According to police, the documents showed that Alunni and other Red Brigades members arrested at about the same time in Milan apparently were central coordinators of terrorist activity throughout Italy.

The police sources said latest developments in the case showed the Red Brigades used the northern city of Bologna as an operations base to secure false documents and other aid needed to carry out their operations.

Moro, then president of the ruling Christian Democratic party, was kidnapped by the Red Brigades March 16 and his bullet-riddled body was found in Rome May 9.

Police described Alunni, one of 20 persons charged with the killing of Moro, as chief operational coordinator between the Red Brigades and the First Line urban guerrilla groups.

The First Line group claimed responsibility for the killing of Calvosa, his driver and bodyguard near the southern town of Patrica, the bloodiest terror attack in Italy since Moro's five police bodyguards were slain during his kidnapping.

Sebregondi, brother of a Red Brigades member charged in the Moro kidnapping and killing, was captured by police when he tried to drive a stolen automobile from the railroad station at Latina, 47 miles south of Rome.

Police sources said an anti-terrorist unit had the car under surveillance for several days.

Among those being sought in the case were Maria Rosario Biondi, the 23-year-old girlfriend of Capone, and Dino Crivelari, 30, a recently graduated lawyer whose name was found in an appointments book in Capone's apartment, police said.

NJ Candidate Loses Ninth Race

By JULES LOH
MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP) — If you had voted for a loser in all 10 general elections since 1960, would you be dismayed? Shoot, Mahalchik has not just voted for a loser, he's been a loser, in all 10.

Correction: Nine. He missed losing one election, in 1970, but it wasn't Mahalchik's fault. He was in jail and couldn't run.

He has lost races for the presidency and the Senate. On Tuesday, he lost his ninth election, running for the House. He got 1,135 votes out of 118,718 cast, but he is not dismayed.

"I am the alternative," Mahalchik orated. "Better to vote for me than for the pre-picked bums and lice the two-party system puts up. I am for the people. The royal blood of peasants — I mean royal — flows in my veins. I will bow to no tyrant."

If the name Mahalchik is unfamiliar, then you are a stranger to the stretch of Route 206 that passes "Mahalchik's Fabulous Fifty Acres" just north of Mount Holly.

His residence, a teepee, stands next to his white locomotive in front of his seven dirigible huts alongside his fleet of rusting Army trucks near his airplane carcasses behind his billboard showing the faces of Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger on the bodies of big red rats. Mahalchik is not one for understatement.

"I once had 141 signs out front," Mahalchik said. "Not many are left. They destroyed most of them when they burned down my house."

Mahalchik's signs tell some of the things he is against.

He is against the two-party system, of course, and the court system, and taxation. He is against politicians. "They are so crooked that when they die they should screw them into the ground."

He's rather down on communists. A sign recommends: "Drag 'em from their rat holes, hang 'em, stab 'em, burn 'em, bomb 'em, gas, choke, strangle, drown, shoot, but kill 'em all."

Has Mahalchik mellowed? Some think, at 60, he has. After all, he didn't bother to make a single speech during the campaign.

True, white streaks now decorate his chin whiskers, but his shirt still bulges at the shoulders, his voice still thunders like a bullhorn and his battleship-gray eyes still flash with the fire that set him on his rebellious ways.

He didn't campaign, he allowed, because he was busy with other matters. Besides, he didn't have a car to get around in.

Time was, Mahalchik had more cars than he could count, not to mention jeeps and trucks and airplanes, even a submarine. That was when he was, by his objective estimate, the biggest military surplus dealer east of the Mississippi.

Then he got into a row with some people who wanted to buy up his Fabulous Fifty Acres and he wound up before a judge.

The judge asked if Mahalchik was contemptuous of his court. Mahalchik said damn right. The judge tossed him in the cooler. While languishing there, Mahalchik's house burned.

"Next thing they did was pull out some zoning law that said I couldn't rebuild my house or live in a trailer, a bus, anything I had. Is that America? Is that freedom?"

"I checked. The law didn't mention a teepee, so I live in a teepee. Not by choice. I'm not some kind of kook."

Mahalchik trades in horses now. About 35 head graze among the moldering treasures on his Fabulous Fifty. A few chickens peck around the teepee and provide fresh eggs for sale.

Mainly, though, he remains Mahalchik, just Mahalchik, the name emblazoned on his teepee and on his fading signs. Mahalchik, one of the angriest of the angry men.

Does he have a full name?
"Yes. Remember it. I am John Valjean Mahalchik. The royal blood of peasants..."

Freedom Loss Cited In Having Children

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Loss of freedom was the most often mentioned disadvantage of having children, while most frequently listed advantages in a University of Michigan survey were "love and affection and the feeling of being a family," "stimulation and fun," "expansion of self" and "having someone to carry on after you have gone."

The findings were reported by Lois Hoffman and Jean Manis, researchers with Survey Research Center, a unit of the U-M Institute for Social Research. They interviewed more than 1,500 married women between the ages of 15 and 39 and the husbands of about a third of the women.

BORN LOSER — John Mahalchak, whose Mt. Holly, N.J. junkyard contains among other things the remains of a number of World War II Navy blimps like the one in which he is sitting, has lost nine of the last 10 elections in which he has been a candidate for public office. Tuesday Mahalchak, who has run for the presidency and the U.S. Senate, lost a bid for a seat in the House of Representatives. He did not compete in the 1970 election. He was in jail. (AP Laserphoto)

Parents' Help In Career Critical

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cowboys, nurses, police and teachers are among the career aspirations of growing children and early parental guidance can have a major impact on their final decision.

Experts at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare point out that a career choice is a gradual process, not an event that occurs at a specific time.

Events occurring as early as the preschool years can influence your child's decision, they report, and there are many ways you can assist the child.

To help the government has prepared a folder entitled "Helping Children Make Career Plans." It's available at no cost from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 517F, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

For example the pamphlet urges parents not to discourage a child from a particular choice.

It is better to ask a child why something is appealing instead of just saying "you wouldn't like that."

Let children consider all possible choices and help them consider various alternatives. A good question to raise is: "If for some reason you couldn't do this, what other things would you want to do?"

It also will help to remember that times are changing and you should try to eliminate sex bias in your own thinking. Your daughter may want a job you consider "masculine" or your son may choose work you think of as "feminine."

The experts say that it is important to emphasize that you'll be happy whatever choice the child makes as long as he or she will be happy in that occupation.

FTC's Trademark Challenge Tests History

By LEROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI) — Infringing trademarks or counterfeiting trademarked products always have been considered extremely serious offenses.

In Tudor England, putting a false trademark on fancy woven goods containing gold or silver threads was punishable by hanging. About the same time, King Charles V of France published an edict that any craftsman or merchant caught using another's trademark should have his hands cut off. And in the 14th century an innkeeper in the German province of the Palatine was summarily hanged for putting inferior wine in casks marked with the Rudesheimer trademark.

Even in the United States in the 19th century, western cattle ranchers had no compunction about stringing up to the nearest tree anyone caught marking somebody else's cattle with his brand or even oblitterating another brand.

The notion that trademarks are inviolable and more or less immortal is the issue involved in the challenge by Formica Corp., of Cincinnati, to block the effort of the Federal Trade Commission to declare Formica the generic name for decorative laminated plastics, which any manufacturer then could use.

It may prove the most important trademark battle in history.

The FTC's legal department, both in Washington and in Denver where the case originated, refused to discuss the Formica case except to say that it would be pressed. They said the canons of ethics of the American Bar Association forbid such discussion.

On the subject of trademarks in general, Daniel Schwartz of the FTC Washington staff, said the persistence of a trademark after the product's name falls into general use could lure the public into paying premium prices. Paul Daw of the Denver office, who filed the case, conceded the complaint was couched in general language and cited no cases of damages caused by the continued use of the Formica trademark.

Says Formica President Martin B. Friedman, "the FTC is suggesting to other manufacturers by this action that any company which risks capital in research and development to bring a new product to the market and then promotes it as unique, will find its trademark in jeopardy if the product proves successful."

Formica, founded in 1913, pioneered the development of decorative laminated plastics. Now lots of companies make them under different trademarked names — Micarta by Westinghouse, Tektolite by General Electric, Laminart by Eagle-Picher and Pionite by LOF Industries for example.

Indeed, says Friedman, the competitors now have 60 percent of the market.

Some folks may well call all decorative plastic laminates Formica, but Friedman points out that 90 percent of all the laminates are bought by professionals who know all the brand names and specify exactly which brand they want.

So Formica Corp. was astonished some weeks ago when the Denver office of the Federal Trade Commission brought the proceeding to revoke its trademark and declare Formica a generic name. Friedman says no one knows for sure why the Denver office did this but a Washington based newsletter that specializes in covering FTC activities said FTC officials considered and still are considering several potential trademark targets.

The only allegation made by the FTC is that customers might be deceived into buying Formica brand decorative laminates under the impression it was a generic name. Friedman said the facts prove this definitely cannot be true.

Formica's competitors and the trade press dealing with that section of the plastics industry have warmly supported Formica's contention that to be deprived of the trademark it has enjoyed for so many years would be grossly unfair and could not benefit the public.

Bob Cottle, marketing manager of a Formica competitor, Dart Industries' Wilson Plastics, said he didn't know what the FTC was trying to accomplish "other than lower American business to mediocrity." He added, "I hope Formica can defend its position for the good of our industry and for the good of American business."

Friedman said losing the trademark would be doubly unfair to his competitor because Formica is also the company's name. And he said the FTC appears to be trying to punish Formica for being successful.

The most famous celebrated trademark case in American history up to now was the effort of Bayer AG of Germany to prevent aspirin from becoming a generic name.

In many parts of the world aspirin still is Bayer's trademark for its brand of an acetic acid derivative. But in a hotly fought court case (Bayer vs. United Drug Fed 505 11 TMR 178) Bayer lost its aspirin trademark in the United States. The company felt that anti-German feeling growing out of World War I caused the loss but some observers thought the public just adopted the name aspirin so universally that the courts felt the matter had been taken out of their hands.

A Formica spokesman said there is no real analogy, though, between the FTC challenge to its trademark and the aspirin case. It wasn't a government agency that attacked Bayer but a number of competitors and Bayer filed the unsuccessful legal action to restrain them.

Another celebrated trademark phenomenon which was involved in government action is Listerine, but the government only sued to make the manufacturer tone down advertising claims, not to invalidate the trademark.

The Listerine case is a remarkable story for another reason. The product is based on a compound that was in the standard pharmaceutical formularies for years until Lambert Pharmacal Co. of St. Louis picked it up, trademarked it and used big advertising to sell it at premium prices. Lambert was so successful that druggists soon found it very difficult to sell the generic compound in competition with Listerine even at much cheaper prices.

Child's Blood Needs Checkup For Extra Fat

NEW YORK (AP) — If yours is a family with a high risk of cardiovascular disease, get your children to a doctor to see if they have excessive levels of fat in their blood.

If they do, the American Heart Association recommends, they should be placed on a corrective diet.

A high risk family is defined as one in which either or both parents have excessive fat levels, or have high blood pressure or a family history of heart attack or stroke or peripheral vascular disease before age 50.

Excessive levels of the fats known as cholesterol or triglyceride is a condition called hyperlipidemia and is related to atherosclerosis, the disease in which arteries become clogged with fatty deposits.

"Although the evidence does not yet support the recommendation that cholesterol and saturated fat should be reduced in the diet of all children," the AHA says, "the public should be advised that such modification appears safe and very likely to be beneficial in cutting the risk of atherosclerosis when the child grows up."

Auto Repairs Cost Americans $50 Billion Annual

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans spend nearly $50 billion a year to repair and maintain their cars, and many of them complain that they aren't getting their money's worth.

Just over 30 percent of all the complaints received by the federal Office of Consumer Affairs in the first eight months of 1978 related to automobiles. Many of the complaints concerned high prices for new cars, but many also dealt with the frustrations and problems of getting old ones fixed.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has estimated that up to $20 billion is wasted annually on poor, needless or fraudulent repairs.

Industry officials argue that fraud is involved in only a small percentage of cases, but they concede that, rightly or wrongly, consumers are concerned about the quality of auto repairs.

In most areas, auto mechanics need not be licensed to practice. Repair shops do not have to register or meet any type of government standard. Certification and testing programs generally are voluntary rather than mandatory.

The American Automobile Association has attempted, through its Approved Auto Repair Program, to identify shops which provide high quality service, but the program is limited so far to parts of four states and the District of Columbia.

How can you avoid problems?

Start by reading the owner's manual that comes with your car, advises Donald A. Randall, a spokesman for the Automotive Service Councils, Inc., a trade association representing about 5,000 of the nation's 240,000 auto repair shops.

Randall said that the growth of self-service gasoline operations have made preventive maintenance more important than ever. "Don't let oil change intervals slip by," he added.

Don't wait until you need a mechanic to find a repair shop. "Make the selection before you break down and are captive of the nearest garage," Randall said.

Among the things to keep in mind when comparing garages are the facility's reputation, convenience and appearance. Does the place look reasonably clean? Are there parts lying all over the floor? Does the shop have power tools and a lift to raise the car off the floor?

Ask whether the shop gives written estimates. In some states, estimates are required by law; in others they are voluntary. Mandatory or voluntary, the estimate will help you avoid what Randall explained is known in the business as the "sundown surprise" — the big and unexpected bill you're handed when you go to pick up your car.

Check to see if the repair shop is a member of the Automotive Service Council which sets standards for its members and runs an informal complaint-handling service. Look for the emblem of the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence. The institute, set up six years ago by the U.S. auto manufacturers and dealers, runs a voluntary testing and certification program.

Note: Be careful about retuning payment if you are not satisfied. Most states have what is known as a "mechanic's lien law." If you refuse to pay your bill, even if it is outrageous, the shop can keep your car.

Why are there so many complaints about cars?

One reason, said Randall, is the number of automobiles and the amount of money spent on them.

Statistics compiled by the American Transportation Association show that Americans spent $174 billion on passenger costs associated with automobiles last year, Randall said. Cars accounted for 90 percent of the passenger miles traveled in 1977.

Randall said there were 137 million cars on the road last year, and that the number of cars on the road is expected to increase by two million in 1979. Some of the problems were reported during such a survey. "That's more than 200 million complaints in a year. That's why it's so visible," Randall said.

He also said that the increasing complexity of automobiles has made it difficult for mechanics to keep up with new developments. He urged the federal government to provide increased support for diagnostic centers to help mechanics.

Cattlemen Angered By Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Groups representing farmers, textile makers and nurses are angry at President Carter for actions he says will help control inflation.

On Saturday, Carter vetoed bills that would have restricted his ability to permit imports of cheap foreign beef, forbidden him to lower tariffs on imported textiles and authorized more money than he requested for training student nurses.

The president also declined to impose tighter production controls on the already abundant supplies of corn and other feedgrains in a move he hopes will keep feedgrain prices from rising by more than about 5 percent in the next two years.

The president has now acted on all legislation passed by the 95th Congress, which adjourned Oct. 15.

Carter called his most recent vetoes "a clear indication that the federal government is prepared to do its part to reduce inflation."

So far during his administration, Carter has vetoed 19 bills, including six regular vetoes and 13 pocket vetoes.

Congress enacted the beef-import bill after the president angered cattlemen last summer by allowing a slight increase in imports following a record increase in domestic beef prices.

The measure would have revoked the president's authority to allow more foreign beef imports in times of shortages, such as those projected for the next 12 months.

Carter said the bill, which would have substituted a rigid "countercyclical" formula for setting import levels, "would have deprived me and future presidents of a major anti-inflation tool."

But Richard A. McDougal, president of the National Cattlemen's Association in Denver, said the veto of the Meat Import Act will result in higher beef prices because producers will not want to expand their output with the threat of "politically motivated" import expansion hanging over their heads.

"The bill actually was anti-inflationary," McDougal said.

In addition, farm groups faced with record harvests and huge grain surpluses urged Carter to tighten feedgrain production controls to increase prices.

But the president said instead that the controls would remain essentially unchanged in 1979, requiring farmers to "set-aside" or leave idle 10 percent of their land to qualify for basic federal subsidies with another 10 percent of their land in "diversion" if they want to qualify for additional payments.

Administration farm economists said the president's action would probably raise the price of corn to about $2.14 a bushel for the year ending Sept. 30, 1980, an increase of 25 percent a year. The president's voluntary anti-inflation program has set a target of keeping overall increases in the costs of goods and services, except food, at 5.75 percent yearly.

Meanwhile, Robert S. Small, president of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, said the veto of the textile measure "is a grave disappointment because of the importance of this legislation to the job security of the 2.3 million Americans who work in the textile and apparel industry."

That bill would have excluded textile and apparel tariffs from the current multilateral trade negotiations.

But the president said the bill would have tied his hands in the trade negotiations and may have prompted a trade war with other nations.

Stuart Eisenstat, Carter's chief domestic policy adviser, said the training funds bill for student nurses would have hampered Carter's efforts to trim the federal deficit because its authorization of $200 million a year was far above the $20 million proposed by the administration.

The American Nurses Association, however, criticized the veto as a "short-sighted" and "discriminatory" decision.

Art Instructor To Visit Tech

Artist May Stevens, an instructor at the School of Visual Arts in New York City, will serve as a visiting artist Thursday through Saturday in the Art Department of Texas Tech University.

Miss Stevens focuses her efforts on expanding awareness of the role of women in art. She has appeared on five college art association panels discussing contemporary issues for practicing artists and has served on six national panels discussing the status of women in art.

She has lectured at the Atlanta College of Art, Vassar College, the Rhodes Island School of Design, Syracuse University, Cornell University, Tulane University, University of Houston, Pratt Institute and Queens College.

While at Texas Tech, Miss Stevens will meet with students in class critiques and present a lecture on her work on Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Coronado Room of the University Center. There is no admission charge, and the public is invited.

Head Of Chase Manhattan Bank Optimistic About Carter Plan

By MARY TOBIN
NEW YORK (UPI) — President Carter's program to help the dollar will succeed because "for the first time all the economic voices are united and are working with the major powers to make it succeed," according to David Rockefeller, chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank.

"I feel most optimistic, most encouraged, because I honestly think the administration is deeply concerned," Rockefeller said in an interview.

"If the United States persists and is steady and consistent and if the nations who are participating in the program can persevere, the measures already taken can turn the dollar around."

Rockefeller predicts the market will launch a major assault on the dollar.

"You will see a test, perhaps within a few weeks," he said. "At some point traders are going to say 'is this for real?' and they will sell the dollar."

"But I think the dollar sellers are going to be fooled this time."

Rockefeller said "the beauty" of the package announced Nov. 1 by President Carter is that each part of the program was coordinated to allow for possible adverse effects on the domestic economy.

"The unprecedented full percentage point increase in the discount rate, for example, that could accelerate inflationary pressures by bringing huge sums of money into the country, was offset by the additional reserve requirement, which sopped up some of those funds ...

"The President's earlier anti-inflation speech, in which he stressed reducing expenditures and complying with wage and price guidelines, was not successful (in helping the dollar) partly because the program was long-term and didn't involve specific action," he said.

Rockefeller said even intervention on a massive scale, either by the United States or by foreign countries, would not be effective while there was a lack of confidence in the dollar.

"Any program can be effective only if the international money traders are persuaded that the United States is on the right track — and the administration's dollar-support program was very, very specific."

"Once you have re-established confidence, then intervention can be successful," Rockefeller said.

"Certainly the situation that developed just prior to the U.S. moves was almost entirely psychological. There were no real economic factors that would justify it."

However, Rockefeller said, the dollar's decline in value is a signal — and a "desperately important one. The international money market is trying to tell us something ... It is telling us to stop frittering around."

Schools Get Reminder

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tulsa school officials are being reminded that Christmas programs should avoid religious themes.

The Tulsa Classroom Teachers Association advised teachers this week to avoid the use of devotional, sectarian hymns, plays and symbols when planning their programs.

"This is a tremendously complex issue that is difficult to deal with in specifics," said John Haynes, vice president of the association. "The committee felt that at this time they could not make specific suggestions."

An ad hoc committee of the association, organized in response to a controversy after a play last year at an elementary school, said in its report, "Instead we encourage the use of general themes such as love, brotherhood, peace, etc."

The report pointed out that federal and state laws prohibit furthering of religious doctrines in public school.

The committee includes 13 teachers, four ministers and six parents. It will study appropriate ways of teaching about religion without furthering religious doctrines.

Women Eye Strategy For Change

BALTIMORE (AP) — Reform-minded Roman Catholic women, literally dancing with dedication, are planning new strategies to gain admission to their church's all-male priesthood, including a personal call on Pope John Paul II.

They say change is bound to come, and is already happening spontaneously, outside the rules, in new ministries of women.

"We have great hope that because of Pope John Paul's intelligence, his own suffering and experience of oppressed women in a land under Communist rule, he will be open to our concerns," Sister Elizabeth Carroll of Pittsburgh, a commission member, said of the delegation to be sent to Rome, probably after the first of the year.

More than 2,000 nuns and lay women from across the country concluded their second national ordination conference Sunday with embraces and a kind of slow-motion ballet symbolizing the Virgin Mary's endurance and suffering. The dancers then guided the assembly through a dance in which two by two they spread their arms to each other and knelt.

A delegation was to appear in Washington, D.C., today at the opening of the fall meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

All but one of the bishops shunned invitations to attend the conference. The Most Rev. Charles Buswell of Pueblo, Colo., showed up on the final day.

But a male theologian, the Rev. Richard P. McBrien of Boston College, assured the women that ordination "will not be denied in the future to qualified candidates simply because they are women."

Neither will persons be excluded "simply because they are married," he added, predicting an end of mandatory celibacy.

A black nun, Sister Shawn Copeland of Harvard Divinity School, former director of the National Black Sisters Conference, advised the women to wait.

"Waiting does not surrender the standard," she said. "Waiting does not submit defeat. Waiting is not retreat. Waiting is the preparation for advance ... the courage of creative action ... the struggle for fidelity ..."

"Be bold and assertive," she urged. "Be firm. Break the old chains. But wait. Soon the very stones will cry out."

Her call for patient effort came as two approaches surfaced at the conference, one to pursue ordination within the male-ruled system and seek its reform, the other to practice ministries outside the rules.

'Merc' Re-Enters Oil Futures

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

If a first year don't succeed... make a few changes and give it another shot. The New York Mercantile Exchange will be doing just that when it opens trading in refined petroleum futures contracts.

The New York "Merc," where potatoes have been king for decades and where trading in foreign currencies is just getting off the ground, has high hopes for a market in petroleum. There are, however, some who say the market will go the same route as the Merc's previously shot at the market, which fizzled into the surface, the petroleum idea seems to have a few things going for it. The contracts will be for only two kinds of refined products — No. 2 heating oil, used to heat most private homes (and as fuel for diesel engines) and No. 6 residual oil, which is used to heat large buildings and as an industrial fuel.

Both of them have a direct effect on the pocketbooks of consumers and on thousands of smaller jobbers and distributors. The chance to hedge bets, which is the purpose of any future market, could help cushion the price increases that are virtually certain to string out for years to come.

The trouble is, there are few products in the world where the basic supply is so tightly controlled. The world-wide price is what Saudi Arabia says it will be, which at the moment means $12.70 a barrel as a starting point, with higher or lower grades priced somewhat up or down from there. (The Saudis are the only reason the price has held steady, but the decline of the dollar apparently has worn out their patience and they're expected to go along with an increase of possibly 10 percent at the next meeting of the oil cartel.)

Domestic crude prices also are controlled by the government, although there has been a lot of pressure to lift the lid.

The question then is, with the basic price controlled and the price certainly not going down, how do you get a market with enough price movement to encourage people to take part?

Richard Levine, president of the Merc, says it can be done. He says there are enough variables between crude shipments and refined products — weather, shipping rates, reserve supplies and the like — to make for price changes in both directions.

The buyers, he expects, will be oil jobbers and distributors and industrial companies that use the oil. The sellers, which is the touchy side, he says will be smaller oil companies, some that aren't so small and, although they won't admit it, some of the major companies later on.

Levine says he doesn't expect the market to be a price-setter, but to react to day-to-day changes in the oil picture. "We're not expecting to trade the tides," he says. "But only the waves. We think there are modest differences in price that can be taken advantage of."

The big oil companies agree with that, but — at least for public consumption — they say they're already doing that themselves. Every big company and a lot of smaller ones has its own trading desk, where supplies of crude and of various end products are swapped back and forth, depending on where the products are needed, who has them and where the biggest profits can be made.

Commodity dealers, of course, would like to see the market work because it means more business for them. Some, though, have reservations.

"The market just isn't elastic," one says. "The cartel sets the price of crude and, sure there are small differences in the end product prices and at different times of the year, but that means you aren't trading petroleum, you're really trading freight rates."

While the outlook is questionable, there's no doubt the market is starting at a good time. Commodity markets are booming, as they usually do when economic conditions become uncertain. The urge to own "things" rather than pieces of paper (like stocks) has pushed a whole range of commodities to their highest levels in years.

If you think, though, that you can save some money on heating bills this year by buying in the open market, forget it — unless you have some place to store 42,000 gallons of oil.

Heavy Drinking Cited Among Air Controllers

NEW YORK (AP) — Air controllers drink to relieve tension and are twice as likely as other Americans to be "heavy drinkers," but they don't let it affect their work, says a health researcher.

Dr. Robert Rose, former head of psychosomatic medicine at Boston University and now chief of psychiatry at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston, said there was no evidence the controllers drank on the job or that their after-hours social drinking harmed air safety.

He said if a man was not up to par, for whatever reason, he was shunted out of sensitive jobs.

Researchers at Boston University School of Medicine were awarded a $2.8 million Federal Aviation Administration grant to study the health of 416 volunteers at eight FAA centers in the Northeast. The study took 5 1/2 years to complete.

The study said more than half the controllers were heavy drinkers, compared to about one-third of white males of similar income and education. All of the volunteers were men and 99 percent were white.

But Rose said the 7.5 percent rate of "alcohol abuse," was about comparable to the national average.

The study did not say what combination of frequency and quantity of alcohol consumption it used to define the terms "heavy drinkers" and "alcohol abuse," but a separate table showed that more than 40 percent of the controllers said they drank the equivalent of 15 ounces of grain alcohol a week, mostly in whiskey and beer.

Rose said that drinking to relieve the tension of a high-pressure job does not necessarily make people into alcoholics.

"Some people in alcohol research feel that if you drink too much, you're going to become an alcoholic — that it's an inexorable process downhill," Rose said.

"Our data suggest that the people who are drinking too much at one time are not always going to have that problem nine months down the pike.

"We feel alcohol at times does function as a coping device — albeit at a price," he said.

Rose, Dr. C. David Jenkins, Dr. Michael Hurst and their colleagues spent more than 13,000 man-hours gathering data at the FAA centers.

They took blood samples, blood pressure and pulse readings every 20 minutes, and also made notes on the workload and the men's response. Questionnaires, physical and psychological exams and monthly health reports rounded out the data.

Rose said it may have been the most intensive study ever made of the health hazards of a single job.

They concluded that the major job-related hazard to controllers was high blood pressure, or hypertension, which is thought to be a factor in many serious diseases including arteriosclerosis, heart attack and stroke.

Controllers were twice as likely as other people to have hypertension and four times as likely to develop it.

But the job alone was not viewed as the cause. Instead, the study said the job posed a risk only for people who are predisposed to the condition by other factors, possibly genetic or biological.

Reporter Claims Coffin Of St. John Discovered

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — An Egyptian reporter said today he has seen the coffin containing the body of St. John the Baptist — the hermit who heralded the coming of Jesus Christ and was beheaded at the whim of the belly dancer Salome.

The reporter for Cairo's Al Ahran newspaper said he was shown the coffin by monks at an ancient Christian monastery in Egypt's western desert. He said the monks told him they were confident it contained the remains of John, whom Christians venerate as the precursor of Jesus.

John is known as the baptizer of Christ. His act of anointing the messiah with water became the basis of the baptism rite in Christian religions. The Gospel according to Mark chronicles the event:

"It happened at this time that Jesus came from Nazareth in Galilee and was baptized in the Jordan by John. At the moment when he came up out of the water, he saw the heavens torn open and the Spirit, like a dove, descending upon him."

The Al Ahran reporter said he was told the body was found in a cave below an old church in the St. Makar monastery, a fortress-like structure built by Egypt's Orthodox Coptic Church in A.D. 360. The monastery is located in the Natroun Valley, about 60 miles northwest of Cairo.

Al Ahran suggested that scholars and Egyptologists should ascertain the authenticity of the discovery.

But biblical scholars in the United States looked askance at the initial reports.

"If someone comes up with a serious piece of evidence, then the evidence can be considered. But the monks' opinion is without scientific value," said Morton Smith, an expert on ancient history at Columbia University in New York.

Professor Theodore Gaster of Columbia University's Barnard College agreed. "If John was beheaded, it would have been in what is now the West Bank. Any story about what happened to him afterwards is legend," Gaster said.

"I've never heard any authoritative story about his coffin."

The Coptic Orthodox Church teaches that the body of John the Baptist was removed from Palestine to Alexandria, Egypt, in the 5th century A.D. because of persecution of Christians at the time.

John the Baptist called himself in the scriptures "the voice of one crying in the wilderness" and baptized people throughout the Jordan valley, announcing the coming of the Messiah.

"After me comes one who is mightier than I. I am not fit to unfasten his shoes. I have baptized you with water; he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit." John says in the New Testament.

The book of Mark described him as wearing a coat of coarse camel's hair, a leather belt around his waist and feeding "on locusts and wild honey."

He was imprisoned for denouncing the marriage of King Herod Antipas to his dead brother's wife.

Matthew gives this account:

"Herod would have liked to put him to death, but he was afraid of the people, in whose eyes John was a prophet. But at his birthday celebrations the daughter of Herodias danced before the guests, and Herod was so delighted he took an oath to give her anything she cared to ask. Prompted by her mother, she said, 'Give me on a dish the head of John the Baptist.'"

"The king was distressed when he heard it, but out of regard for his oath and for his guests, he ordered the request be granted and had John beheaded in prison. The head was brought in on a dish and given to the girl; and she carried it to her mother. Then John's disciples came and took away the body, and buried it; and they went and told Jesus."

Salome's dance became a popular theme in art from the early Christian period onward. Oscar Wilde adapted the legend in his book "Salome," which was later used as the basis for the libretto of Richard Strauss' opera of the same name.

Historians place John the Baptist's birth before 4 B.C. and his execution at A.D. 28-30.

Satellite To Study Radiation Sources

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A satellite equipped to map the X-ray patterns of the universe which are beamed from the mysterious pulsars, quasars and black holes rode into orbit this morning atop an Atlas-Centaur booster rocket.

The High Energy Astronomical Observatory will be orbiting from 280 to 335 miles above Earth, pointing its powerful telescope at the radiation sources and transmitting back pictures that may explain the astronomical wonders.

For the first time researchers will be able to "look at objects, see exactly where the action is taking place and from that better understand the whole astrophysical system that is working out there to produce these X-rays," program scientist Albert Opp said.

"You'll be able to see in X-rays the motions of gases and the presence of the matter that's creating the X-rays. Since you can't see these in visible light, you can only speculate as to what's creating the X-rays," Opp said.

Dr. Herbert Friedman said findings indicate possible black holes near the constellations Scorpius, Cygnus X-1, Circinus X-1 and Hercules X-1. These may be remnants of extremely large stars that imploded — collapsed upon themselves — when their nuclear fuel was exhausted.

This results in a small mass, greatly compressed, which has so much gravity that even light is prevented from escaping. Astronomers speculate they can detect the existence of a black hole by studying X-rays from its surroundings.

The HEAO 2 satellite's observation pattern has been charted during the past 15 months by the HEAO 1 orbiter, which has located an estimated 1,500 objects that emit X-rays — more than five times the number of X-ray producers known before.

The X-rays to be examined by HEAO 2 cannot be studied from Earth because the atmosphere screens out the radiation.

LEARNING TO READ — Former janitor McKinley Wright, 82, is taught the alphabet by Annette Barrett, 27, of the Homemakers Assistants Program at the Chicago housing project where Wright lives. Barrett sought to help Wright because he was being cheated out of his money by people who knew of his illiteracy. (AP Laserphoto)

Octogenarian Learns To Read

CHICAGO (AP) — McKinley Wright was an easy mark. The 82-year-old couldn't read or reckon: his bills, price tags and even the change in his pocket were a mystery, and his money seemed to disappear.

He got a $150 telephone bill although he never made a call — he couldn't read the numbers on the dial. And when he cashed his Social Security check a big stack of $1 bills seemed like a fair amount — he couldn't tell a $1 from a $10.

Then several months ago a homemaker's assistant began calling on the former janitor at the housing project where he lives on Chicago's South Side.

helping him to clean up the small, cluttered apartment.

She discovered a $150 telephone bill — a bill Wright couldn't read. The calls, Wright said when she explained the bill, were made by a burglar while he was hospitalized.

She found Wright couldn't read or write, and knew nothing of numbers. So she made flash cards, and they went to work.

"Everybody was taking advantage of Mr. Wright," the homemaker's assistant, Annette Barrett, told Chicago Tribune columnist Anne Keegan.

"They'd give him the money (from his Social Security check) in a big stack of $1 bills so it would look like a lot of money. ... So that's where his money was going," she said.

As the weeks passed, Wright learned to read a few words and to recognize the numbers from 1 through 100. And he learned how to write his name — skills he learned up to work in the fields as a boy.

Not long ago his big day came. Old McKinley Wright, who everyone knew couldn't read, write or count and would never catch you cheating, went to a neighborhood store to cash his monthly check.

Instead of marking his customary X, he wrote his name.

His tutor recalled: "The cashier's eyes just about bugged out of his head. He knew then something had happened to Mr. Wright and he had to be very careful. He gave Mr. Wright his money and Mr. Wright counted it out very slowly."

"It must have taken him 20 minutes but he stood right there and counted out loud and didn't move until he counted it out and it was right."

When he left, the cashier was so shocked he came out of the store and watched us walk away down the street. He knew the free ride was over.

"So, we fooled 'em didn't we, Mr. Wright," said the 27-year-old tutor to her octogenarian pupil.

"We sure did," says McKinley Wright. "I just wished I didn't have to wait 82 years to do it."

Tech Food Director Wins Recipe Award

By KIM PALMER
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

Texas Tech students grabbing a hamburger or candy bar for lunch are missing out on meals prepared from award-winning recipes in the University Center cafeteria.

The recipes belong to Gertrude Morse, director of food service, who has won four first place awards for her dishes over the past 10 years.

Her most recent award was for a spicy Pepper Cheese Zucchini recipe, which won first place in a national contest sponsored by the National Frozen Foods Association.

Her recipe, judged the best in the side dish category, won her an all-expense paid trip to San Francisco where she attended an award dinner in her honor.

The contest's sponsors invited food service personnel across the country to submit recipe ideas using frozen foods in the most simple and economical way possible. The competition was divided into categories for appetizers, entrees, side dishes and desserts.

Drawing from her 25 years of experience in preparing up to 6,000 meals a day for Texas Tech students and faculty, Mrs. Morse decided to concoct a dish using frozen zucchini as the main ingredient.

"We serve a lot of zucchini at the university," she said. "The students love it and from our point of view it's easy and economical to prepare."

Green chili peppers and Monterey Jack cheese were blended with other ingredients to give the dish a south-of-the-border flavor.

Winning awards is not new to the Texas Tech graduate. Mrs. Morse has been entering recipe contests for 10 years and enjoys the challenge of experimenting with new ideas for old dishes.

"It's a hobby of mine to enter recipe contests and I've already won a few," she said. Those winning recipes include one for a turkey and broccoli salad, a potato and vegetable casserole and a rice dish.

Food preparation has been a lifelong interest for Mrs. Morse. "I've never known anything else," she said.

Mrs. Morse was active in home economics throughout high school and graduated from Texas Tech in 1935 with a bachelor's degree in food and nutrition.

New Program Calls For More Testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be more federal testing of potentially toxic chemicals being released into the environment under a new government program.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare on Sunday announced the formation of the National Toxicology Program. The program, intended to expand the scope of current testing, will draw its $40 million first year budget from the four HEW agencies already involved in the field: the National Cancer Institute, the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health and the Food and Drug Administration.

DRUG HEARINGS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Military Drug Abuse Task Force of the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control will hold hearings in Stuttgart, Germany, Nov. 20 and 21. The hearings, "to be preceded by extensive field investigations," will provide an update on the drug problem among American personnel in Germany, according to an announcement by the committee.

FOUR-PAW DRIVE — Although it may appear to be a question of who is walking whom, Lisa, the three-year-old Great Dane, knows the answer. Lisa took her daily trot along a Las Cruces, N.M., street recently while her master, Ralph Steinhoff kept up with the pace in this pickup truck. When asked about his peculiar dog-walk-

Center Correcting History Of Indians

CHICAGO (UPI) — Historian Francis Parkman wrote a vivid account of Indians hacking to pieces an elderly militia leader atop a kitchen table in what is now New Hampshire.

What Parkman, a noted 19th century historian, did not mention is the reason behind the grisly attack in the 1680s — the militia leader had tricked a group of Indians 13 years earlier.

Francis Jennings, himself an historian, said the victim invited the Indians as a gesture of goodwill to participate in war games. But he seized the opportunity to take them captive, hang 13 and shipped several hundred to the West Indies as slaves.

"There is a reporting of atrocities by the Indians in all the gory details," Jennings said, "but you just do not get descriptions of atrocities on the other side."

Jennings heads the Center for the History of the American Indian at Chicago's Newberry Library. The Center is working to set the history of American Indians straight for classrooms.

"I spent 34 years teaching everything from 10th grade to graduate school," he said. "And for the most part Indians were depicted as nothing but obstructions in the landscape to be swept aside for civilization or as savage animals." Jennings said only in recent years have Americans' attitude about Indians as savages changed, but it has not yet fully filtered down to the classroom.

"The usual rule in college textbooks is an opening chapter on America before European discovery and after that Indians are pretty much forgotten, except that they give some difficulty to settlers. Indians were people usually stereotyped with little cultural diversity."

Jennings said the depiction of Indians in American schools harkens back to a need for "justification of conquest."

Dorene Wiese, a Chicago Indian who participated in the center's workshop for teachers last summer, said the high school she attended in Minneapolis — a city with 10,000 Indians — offered virtually no material on Indians.

"The treatment of Indians in the school turned me off to history," said Mrs. Wiese, 29. "There were a few sentences about Pocahontas and things like that. I got the subliminal message it was not cool to be an American Indian."

Jennings said a gradual change in attitudes toward Indians reflects improving race relations in the United States, heightened consciousness among America's 800,000 Indians and the growing numbers of Indians in the educational system.

Restaurant Holdup Nets Bandits $3,000

Two bandits robbed the Taco Villa restaurant at 1620 Ave. Q shortly after midnight Sunday and made off with nearly $3,000, according to police. No arrests had been made by early today.

Restaurant manager Tommy Specter said the bandits took $2,921 after they forced him to open up the safe about 12:05 a.m. today.

The robbers entered the back of the restaurant and one of the men pointed a .22-caliber pistol at an employee who was cleaning up, police were told. The bandits were described as two tall, young blacks.

The gunman asked how many persons were in the building and then ordered the employee to call them in a manner "so they won't know what's going on," reports show.

Another employee went to the back of the restaurant and the four went to Specter, who was told to open the safe.

The two employees were told to lie face down on the kitchen floor while Specter opened the safe, reports indicate. After opening the safe, the manager also was ordered on the floor.

The suspects fled on foot, according to police. The employees reportedly stayed on the floor several minutes before getting up and calling police.

In other incidents, a 50-year-old Littlefield man was arrested about 10:30 p.m. Sunday after he allegedly went for a gun while being questioned by a policeman at Fourth Street and Avenue H.

The suspect was a passenger in a car which had been pulled over when its driver reportedly went straight in a turn-only lane.

The man was being questioned by the patrolman, reports show, when he opened up the glove box and allegedly grabbed a .38-caliber pistol. The suspect released the weapon, however, when the officer drew his service revolver.

A 31-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 9:20 p.m. Sunday after he allegedly attempted to sell soil drugs to two out-of-town truck drivers.

The officer said he spotted the suspect and the truckdrivers, who also were arrested, in the 3400-block of Avenue A. A bottle of pills, thought to be narcotics, was confiscated and the three men were taken into custody, reports show.

In one of several burglaries, Lana Kay Huff of 5006 Ave. G said she was away from home from Friday to 4:30 p.m. Sunday when her residence was burglarized and $1,500 in clothes, jewelry and appliances stolen.

Betty Sue Welch of 501 51st St. said her home was broken into Sunday and a clock, radio and jewelry, valued at $1,000, were stolen.

About $900 in stereo equipment was the apparent loot taken when burglars struck Tony Curt Apel's house at 2310 20th St. between 2 p.m. and 10 p.m. Sunday.

A Lubbock County sheriff's deputy was among the burglary victims in the city's latest string of weekend thefts and break-ins.

Deputy Griffey Edmund Leary told officers someone removed $220 worth of property from his 1974 Chevrolet Camaro while it was parked at 119 Ave. X. The vehicle was burglarized sometime between 11 a.m. Saturday and 6 a.m. Sunday, Leary reported. The stolen goods included a pair of handcuffs, his pistol belt,

Convicted Killer Maintains Vigil

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — David Lee Powell has been described as a man who "doesn't want hope" — a man trying to starve himself to death before the state can take his life for killing an Austin police officer.

Texas prison officials are force-feeding him through a tube in an effort to keep him alive until he can be executed by lethal injection for the machine-gun slaying of Ralph Ablanedo in May 1978.

No execution date has been set for the 27-year-old former University of Texas honor student whose case is under automatic appeal, and doctors feared long-term force-feeding might cause complications that could kill him.

By transferring Powell Saturday from Death Row to a state hospital for the criminally insane, prison officials made sure he would have the best possible care under the circumstances.

They continued to battle several philosophical dilemmas, however, as they searched for ways to deal with this "unique situation."

"We're faced with a man who categorically refuses to eat and wants very much to die," said Ron Taylor, spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections.

"We've taken the assumed responsibility that we're to keep this man in good physical condition until we get an execution order," he said. "On the opposite end, a body of literature and law exists

Entrapment Suggested By Lawyer

EDINBURG (AP) — A defense lawyer for indicted Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis says he will try to convince a state judge here that McInnis was entrapped by investigators.

McInnis, 62, has been named in a state indictment alleging he plotted to have a friend's ex-husband killed after being lured into Mexico.

Pretrial motions — including a defense request to drop the charge — were to be heard here today by State District Judge Vernon Harville of Corpus Christi.

Defense lawyer Frank Maloney of Austin, who successfully argued for dismissal of similar federal charges against McInnis, said about 25 defense motions have been filed. Some of the motions concern tape-recorded conversations purportedly containing McInnis and a county jail prisoner discussing a murder plot.

Maloney said new state laws regarding entrapment will be cited as the defense team argues for dismissal.

a knife, his billfold and some night-vision tapes.

About 30 heavy-banded knives, valued at $4,900, were stolen from the Home Knife Co. at 6800 Ave. A early Sunday. Charles Edward Hipp, owner of the firm, reported.

Police reports indicated someone shattered the front door glass to gain entry and then took the knives from a glass cabinet.

Michael Lynn Shore of 2302 47th St. said thieves made off with his $1,100 color console television set sometime late Saturday or early Sunday.

Burglars carted off two portable color television sets, worth $800, from a club at 2601 19th St. sometime between 7 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday. Jack Jones, the club's manager, said the sets were removed from two card rooms on the ground floor of the club.

After kicking the door open, burglars took $800 worth of property from Jerry Keith Carmickle's apartment at 5001 22nd St. sometime between early Saturday and Sunday morning. The stolen goods included a stereo system and jewelry.

Tony Apel of 2310 20th St. told police someone took his $390 stereo system from his home sometime between 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

David Hall Baucum of 4515 Auburn St., Lot 87, said someone made off with his $600 portable color television set sometime between 11:30 a.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Saturday.

Kathy Viney of 1102 42nd St. reported that two stereo systems, valued at $800, were taken from her residence Saturday afternoon.

Burglars hauled off a portable color television set, stereo system and vacuum cleaner from Ricky Suarez's home at 1117 E. Stanford St. sometime between 1:45 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Saturday. He estimated the loss at $1,000.

Thieves netted a CB radio, diamond wedding ring and electric clock from Lovina Little's apartment at 2127 Duke St. during a Saturday night break-in. The property was valued at $400.

Few columns over the past 14 years have gotten the reader response as the one called, "you don't love me!" — that old chestnut kids lay on you when you say "No."

It struck a chord with millions of parents who take their jobs seriously — parents who resist the luxury of laying back saying "Yes," when they should have the guts to say "No."

We've all been there. The slammed doors, eyes brimming with tears. The rejection. The threats. The secret phone calls. The hysterics. The nights when sleep would not come. The mornings of despair when you ached for just one sign of understanding.

Why do you do it? I've asked myself the same question. Came up with a few wonderful phrases like self-respect, integrity. But mostly, I guess, it's producing a human being who knows that love is caring.

What prompted this? A letter from Joyce Winchell of Waukesha, Wis., who was cleaning out a drawer recently and came across a parody on "You don't love me," written by her daughter, Susan, a student in St. Cloud, Minn., to her mother. It's a parody we'd all be proud to find.

"I loved you enough to forgive you when you punished me for something I didn't do."

"I loved you enough to go to church each Sunday because I would have disappointed you had I not."

"I loved you enough to respect your opinion."

"I loved you enough to listen to your 'old-fashioned' ideas in hopes of learning something from them."

"I loved you enough to spend too much money, for too short a time, to come home and see you."

"I loved you enough to understand that the things you did for me were in my best interest."

"I loved you enough to hold my tongue when I knew the words 'I hate you' might have slipped out."

"But most of all I loved you enough to leave you in an effort to be on my own. That was the hardest part of all."

Someday, I'd like to meet the mythical "everybody else's mother," that illusive, liberal, devil-may-care woman who is the first to sanction every madcap scheme, every party, every overnight prom but who can never be found. Until I meet her, I'll keep handing out my middle-class wisdom: "Rather to die young from a thousand no's... than to live a lifetime with a parent who doesn't care."

EGG NOODLE VEGETABLE CHEESE SLAW

(Makes about 2 1/2 quarts)

- 8 ozs. medium egg noodles, (about 4 cups)
 - 2 qts. shredded cabbage, (about 1 lb.)
 - 1 cup sliced celery
 - 1/3 cup sliced radishes
 - 4 ozs. processed sharp American cheese, diced
 - 1 cup plain yogurt
 - 1/2 cup salad oil
 - 2 tbsps. vinegar
 - 2 tps. sugar
 - 2 tps. minced onion
 - 1/2 tsp. dry mustard
 - 1/2 tsp. pepper
- Gradually add noodles and 1 table-spoon salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Rinse with cold water; drain again.
- In large bowl, combine noodles, cabbage, celery, radishes and cheese. Stir together yogurt, oil, vinegar, 2 tsp. salt, sugar, onion, mustard and pepper. Gently fold into noodle mixture. Chill several hours to blend flavors.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My name is Sandy (short for San Diego) and I became acquainted with your column while being papertrained.

I can't read or write because I'm only 3, and besides, I'm a mongrel dog. Someone bought me from the Humane Society for $12.72. (That's the donation, plus the state sales tax.)

When you said, "I don't care WHERE I'm entertained, as long as a dog doesn't come and sit on my lap," I was shocked! I love people and want to help my family entertain guests, so I jump into their laps, look into their eyes and wag my tail. Almost everyone likes me.

My friend Rover said we should run you out of the Canine Corps, but I stuck up for you and said you are a nice lady who does much good for many people. Can't you find a spot in your heart for me, too? I love you.

HURT IN SAN DIEGO

Dear Hurt: I love you, too. And please be assured that I do have a spot in my heart for you. But not on my lap. Especially when I'm all dressed up in a beige lace dress and your paws are all sticky from a freshly tarred driveway.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently received an invitation to the wedding of my cousin, who lives 500 miles from us.

There was no indication on the invitation that our children were not included. (Usually, when they don't want children they put "NO CHILDREN" on the invitation.)

Well, I went out and spent a small fortune outfitting my kids for the wedding

SONNY ARNOLD IS A HOUSE "SOLD" WORD

SONNY BUILT HOME • SONNY SOLD HOME

— and then found out they weren't wanted!

Perhaps I should mention that they are not babies, and are pretty well-behaved.

Don't you think the invitation should have indicated "No children?"

HURT IN VA.

Dear Hurt: Not necessarily. The invitation was addressed to you and your husband. Had they wanted your children, their names would have appeared on the invitation along with yours.

DEAR READERS: I mourn with millions the loss of their late and beloved Pope John Paul I. His humility was inspirational, as is evidenced by these words he wrote seven years ago:

"Some bishops resemble eagles who glide majestically at high levels. Others are nightingales who sing the praises of the Lord in a marvelous way. Others are poor wrens on the lowest bough of the ecclesiastical tree who only chirp, seeking to offer some small thought regarding the great themes. I belong to the final category."

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

If you're a "cake-lover" as well as a calorie counter, the leanest and least fattening cake to bake is spongecake. Aptly named, spongecake drinks in the juices of berries or other toppings with delectable ease, making it a versatile base for a variety of less fattening, more nutritious cake desserts. The perfect partner for spongecake is fruit... not frosting!

Our slim spongecake is made with a minimum of sugar, and no fat whatsoever. Its light and airy texture comes from all that no-calorie air beaten into egg whites.

Spongecake also freezes well, so we suggest you bake two layers at a time... and freeze the second layer for later use (unless you're making a fruit-filled layer cake). Here's a recipe for two 8-inch layers:

SLIM SPONGE CAKE

- 2/3 cup cake flour, sifted
 - 1/4 tsp. baking powder
 - 1/4 tsp. salt
 - 2 eggs, separated, plus 1 egg white
 - 1/4 tsp. cream of tartar
 - 1/2 cup sugar, divided
 - 1/2 cup cold water
 - 1/4 tsp. almond extract
- Sift together flour, baking powder, salt; set aside. Beat the 3 egg whites and cream of tartar until stiff, but not dry. Sprinkle quarter-cup of sugar over whites; beat in thoroughly. Set aside. Beat the 2 egg yolks until thick and light, about 3 minutes. Beat in water, remaining sugar and extract. Continue beating an additional 5 minutes.

Gently fold flour mixture into yolk mixture in several small additions. Then, gently but thoroughly fold in beaten egg whites. Divide mixture between 2 non-stick layer cake pans lined with waxed paper circles. Bake at 350 degrees about 35 to 40 minutes, until cake is springy and done. Cool. Remove layers and peel off paper. Makes two layers, 395 calories per layer.

Or, try this:
GRAPE UPSIDE DOWN CAKE — Prepare spongecake batter as directed. (Pour half the batter into a layer pan and bake as directed; cool, wrap and freeze for later use.)

To prepare Grape Cake: Spread 2 tablespoons diet margarine in the bottom of an 8-inch non-stick cakepan and sprinkle evenly with 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Add 1 cup seedless green grapes in a single layer. Pour the remaining spongecake batter (half the recipe) on top of the grapes. Bake 30 minutes in a preheated 350-degree oven. Remove to a rack and wait 10 minutes. Invert on a cake platter while still warm. Serve immediately. Makes eight servings, 90 calories each.

SLIM PEACH MELBA CAKE

- 1 layer Slim Spongecake, baked (recipe given)
- 16-oz. can peaches, sliced, juice-packed, drained
- 10-oz. pkg. frozen sweetened raspberries

Put the cake layer on a platter and arrange the peach slices on top, facing in the same direction. Puree the raspberries in a covered blender and drizzle over the peach slices. Makes eight servings, 110 calories each.

Calling all cake lovers! Here's how to decolorize your favorite recipes and choose wisely from packaged mixes. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents to SLIM GOURMET CAKE RECIPES, in care of this newspaper, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠Q8 ♥AQ6 ♦A93 ♣J10754

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass

3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—North surely has a six-card suit and an unbalanced hand.

You have already described a balanced hand of 13-15 points, so rebidding three no trump simply repeats this message. Your Q-x of spades is sufficient support on this auction, so raise to four spades.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQJ2 ♥AKQ8 ♦KQ105 ♣K

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—No matter what you do you cannot possibly express the power of this hand via a jump shift. Since slam depends almost solely on the number of aces partner holds, we would take the direct approach by jumping to four no trump. Depending on the number of aces partner shows, you should bid five, six or seven hearts.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KJ ♥AKQJ72 ♦4 ♣AJ95

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with three diamonds. What action do you take?

A.—Jump to four hearts. You don't need much from partner to make a game, and even if he has a hopeless hand for you, you shouldn't get hurt. Your solid trump holding makes it unlikely that you will be doubled. An overall of three hearts doesn't do your hand justice, and a double would leave you awkwardly placed if partner were to bid four spades.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠QJ6 ♥Q95 ♦K982 ♣1073

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♣ Dbie. Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Bid three no trumps. By first doubling and then rebidding one no trump, partner has shown a hand too strong for a one no trump overall, i.e., 19 points or better. Your 8 points give your side a combined holding of at least 27 points.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠7 ♥KQ87632 ♦KQ94 ♣6

Partner opens the bidding with two no trump. What do you bid now?

A.—Again, you are only interested in how many aces partner holds. However, you cannot ask for aces with four no trump—that would be a quantitative raise in no trump and not Blackwood. You must use the Gerber Convention. Jump to four clubs, and then bid an appropriate number of hearts depending on how many aces partner shows. If partner shows four aces and a king you can check on kings by bidding five clubs, bid seven no trump so that you can get credit for honors.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠106 ♥Q983 ♦K82 ♣A1054

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass 3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—What started off as an indifferent hand has become very good in the light of partner's rebid. You have a maximum no trump response and a fine fit for partner's second suit. A raise to four hearts does not do your hand justice. You should first cue-bid four clubs. That can't get you into trouble—if partner raises clubs, thinking you have a long suit, you can always correct to hearts.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠KJ6 ♥KQ92 ♦AQ65 ♣83

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—The first thing to do is to determine whether your side has any chance for game. You have 15 points and partner has, at most, 5. Therefore, it's unlikely that any game is in the offing, so your only concern should be to play the best part score. With a balanced hand and no five-card suit, no trump should be as good a spot as any. Pass.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J8762 ♥95 ♦KQ953 ♣7

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♥ Dbie. Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—You know partner has a strong hand, but you don't want to play in no trump with your unbalanced hand unless partner insists. Since game possibilities exist, a mere rebid of two diamonds earns a demerit—you would do that with a distributional hand. Our vote goes to three diamonds. Partner won't expect much more from you since you bid only one spade at your first turn.

Have you been running into double trouble? Let Charles Gor-

ROAST-STYLE BRISKET

- 4-5 lb. beef brisket
- 3 tbsps. cooking oil
- 2 cups chopped onion
- 4 stalks celery (including leaves), chopped
- 1 green pepper, cut in strips
- 1 tsp. paprika
- 2 bouillon cubes, crushed
- 1/2 tsp. freshly milled pepper
- 2 cloves garlic or 1/2 tsp. garlic powder, if desired
- 2 tbsps. fresh dill leaves or 1 tsp. dried dill leaves
- 2 bay leaves, broken in half
- 2 cups red cooking wine or grape juice
- 2 tbsps. vinegar
- 2 cans (16 oz. each) small whole potatoes or 2 lbs. med.-sized potatoes, pared and quartered
- 4 med.-sized carrots, cut lengthwise in half
- 2 med.-sized parsnips, cut lengthwise in half
- Flour
- Parsley

Brown meat on both sides in a Dutch oven or in a heavy pan (with cover). Cook onion, celery and green pepper so they are well wilted. Sprinkle the meat, fat side up, with the paprika, crushed bouillon cubes, pepper, garlic and dill leaves. Place bay leaves around the meat. Place half of the wilted vegetables underneath the meat, the other half on top. Add wine and vinegar. Cover and cook in a slow oven (325 degrees) for 3 hours or until almost done. Add the carrots, parsnips and potatoes to the liquid around the meat and cook about 30 minutes longer or until meat and vegetables are done. Remove meat and vegetables to serving platter. Measure the cooking liquid and thicken with flour (allowing 2 tablespoons flour for each cup of liquid) for gravy. Carve meat across the grain in thin slices. Garnish with parsley. Makes 10-12 servings.

LIGHT APPETIZER

If you're planning a company dinner and want to serve a light appetizer, try Roquefort Pear-Wiches. Halve and core three fresh ripe winter pears. Cut into 1/4-inch slices and toss with one tablespoon lemon juice. Blend 1 package softened cream cheese with 1/4 cup crumbled Roquefort cheese. Spread cheese mixture on half of pear slices. Top with remaining pear slices. Arrange on serving plate and chill thoroughly. Makes about 24 appetizers.

I lost 36 pounds and didn't gain a bag or a sag!

Agnes Hall's True Story:

I've been overweight for so long, I was beginning to think I was just naturally a fat person.

Even when I got married forty years ago, I weighed 160 pounds—not what you'd call a slim bride. Over the years, my weight crept up to 175, and I found myself wearing size 16. That's when I decided something had to be done.

I tried a health spa, but I didn't like undressing, or musing my hair, or going in the water...and I couldn't do floor exercises because of back problems. I heard some women there talking about Pat Walker's, and since I'd already seen some ads, I thought...well, why not?

Two, sometimes three treatments a week on Pat Walker's passive exercise unit have gotten me down to—would you believe it?—a size 10!

I've lost 36 pounds and 45 1/2 inches, and I've kept my figure firmed and toned the whole time.

My friends are amazed. One of my bowling partners says that almost everyone she knows who's lost the pounds I have has gotten bags and sags, but I haven't.

I think that's a real compliment!

I look and feel better than I have in at least fourteen years. I may be 63, but I'm a new person.

If you'll call Pat Walker's, they'll give you a free figure analysis and sample treatment just like the one that started it all for me.

Whether you're 24, 44, or 64, I know you'll be satisfied. I am.

Here I am in 1963. My middle age spread was really showing.

'Positioning', Bargains, Packaging Attract Impulse Shoppers

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS
NEW YORK (WNS) — Do you often find yourself standing in front of high-priced food items, or things you had no intention of buying, without quite understanding how you got there?

Some store officials have become defensive about charges that they entice shoppers to buy junk foods such as pre-sweetened cereals and candy in the way they place them around the stores.

But while there seems no special effort to sell junk foods as such, a survey we recently made shows that the placement of items certainly encourages you and possibly your children to buy the more expensive versions.

You can be a more alert and business-like shopper if you understand how suggestion selling is used on you.

Stores use four main methods to stimulate impulse buying. These are (1) traffic patterns, or the way they lead you around the store; (2) the way they position items they want you to choose; (3) the bargain image, and (4) the appeal to your senses through packaging colors and shapes and such devices as pink lights sometimes used over the meat counter and artificial fragrances.

The traffic patterns most often used is placement of the meat department at the back of the store to lead you past other foods, including produce, which is more of an impulse item.

But positioning is the major suggestion-selling technique you ought to know about. Stores have found you are more likely to buy an item if it is positioned from your waist to your neck. Thus, you often find the more expensive items on the middle shelves or at hand-or-eye-level, and the lower-price versions or staple items on the bottom shelves.

One Eastern chain official recently defended this practice on the grounds that the staples are restocked most often, and it's easier to restock the lower shelves.

Whatever the reason, without question the higher-priced versions usually are more visible and easier to reach. In our survey we found such examples as the costlier pre-sweetened cereals on the middle shelves and the lower-priced unsweetened versions on the bottom; the cheaper soups like tomato and cream of celery are on the bottom shelves while such costlier versions as meatball alphabet soup on the middle shelves; the small expensive packages of sliced lunch meats hanging at eye-and hand-level while the less costly bulk pieces are lower down.

In one survey we found one large regional chain with upright freezer cabinets placed the more expensive frozen vegetables packaged with sauce at eye level while the cheaper plain vegetables were in lower bins. They also placed expensive impulse items next to fast-moving staples; for example, broiled mushrooms next to ordinary green beans.

In breads, too, you may have noticed that often the lower priced staple loaves are on the bottom shelf. Another positioning technique is to separate widely-bought staples. For example, they'll put milk at one end of the counter and eggs at the other so the shopper passes all the cheeses, yogurts and other costlier dairy products.

The most criticized practice has been placement of toys next to cereals or cookies where children are most likely to see and demand them. Perhaps the most important positioning method to be aware of is the end-of-aisle displays, both to take advantage of genuine bargains and to avoid the impulse to buy items you did not intend to purchase.

In a classic survey some years ago, the U.S. Department of Agriculture found that sales of canned juices could be doubled by putting them on display at the end of the aisle. People buy even more if the cans are jumbled to give a bargain image.

Supermarket managers are well aware that they can stimulate sales of an item with an end-of-aisle display even at the same price, especially if they give the display three facings.

In a survey of our own, of three chain supermarkets in our area, we found that end-of-aisle displays are worth watching for the real values but often include items of no special value, and often impulse-type snack foods and beverages. Of 62 end-of-aisle displays, 27 were good values, offering savings from regular prices on such staples as: tuna fish; peanut butter; canned green beans; canned tomatoes and fruit juices; grapefruit sections; paper napkins; canned baked beans; tomato sauce; coffee; salad dressing; cooking oil; stationery and motor oil.

Of the other, non-staple items, the ones most frequently found by researcher Jane Harmon were snack crackers, cookies, pretzels and potato chips; sodas; canned fruit-flavored "drinks" (the kind that are 90 percent water and sugar), and beer.

Other impulse-type products often found in end-of-aisle displays include high-priced canned mushroom buttons and barbecue sauce, jellies, and cake and doughnut-batter mixes.

One of the suggestion-selling methods to be alert for is the appeal to the senses. Manufacturers use packaging and fragrances in products and chemical manufacturers are promoting artificial fragrances, such as a roast-beef odor for the meat department and a fresh-bread scent in the baked goods area.

CHICKEN CREPES SUPREME

- Crepes:
 2 eggs, beaten
 2/3 cup milk
 1 tbsp. butter, melted
 1/2 cup flour
 1/2 tsp. salt
- Chicken Filling:
 1 cup diced, cooked chicken
 1/2 cup almonds, finely chopped
 1 can (8 oz.) pineapple chunks, drained
 1/2 cup finely chopped ripe olives
 1/2 tsp. salt
 1/2 tsp. pepper
 1 tsp. Worcestershire Sauce
 1 tsp. lemon juice
 2 tps. sherry
- Cheese Sauce:
 1/2 cup butter
 1/2 cup flour
 2 cups milk
 1/2 tsp. salt
 1/2 tsp. dry mustard
 1/2 tsp. pepper
 2 tps. sherry
 1 cup shredded American or Swiss cheese

For crepes: Combine eggs, milk, butter, flour and salt; beat smooth. Cover; chill several hours. Heat crepe pan over medium heat until water drop sizzles; brush with oil. Pour in about 2 tablespoons batter, rotating pan quickly to spread thinly. Cook until lightly browned, flip, brown other side. Repeat with remaining batter to make 12, stacking crepes with waxed paper in between. Wrap in foil; chill. When ready to serve, combine all ingredients for chicken filling and divide between crepes. Roll up; place on ovenproof platter.

For cheese sauce: In a small saucepan, melt butter, blend in flour. Gradually add milk; stirring, until thickened. Add remaining ingredients for cheese sauce; cook and stir until smooth. Spoon over crepes. Bake in a 400 degree oven for 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes 6 servings.

Little Has Changed On Island Of Dominica

By PIETER VAN BENNEKOM ROSEAU, Dominica (UPI) — The joke goes that if Christopher Columbus came back to life today and went around to all the islands he discovered in the New World almost 500 years ago, Dominica is the only one he would recognize because nothing much has changed here.

It's a cruel joke — but not much of an exaggeration.

When Columbus got to the West Indies, he found the fierce Carib Indian tribe in control and Dominica is currently the only island where the Caribs still survive, the last 300 of them living on a remote reservation without modern transportation, water, electricity or telephone.

Most of Dominica's present 80,000 inhabitants are descendants of African slaves, scratching a meager existence from the fertile but mountainous terrain, growing and harvesting bananas and citrus fruits.

The island, which became an independent republic on Nov. 2, may be the world's most authentic "banana republic" since over half of its export earnings come from bananas.

Dominica may have trouble finding overseas markets for its oranges, grapefruits and limes because of lack of quality control and poor shipping connections. But the banana boat from the British multinational Geest line calls regularly once a week.

Two centuries of colonial rule by Britain has left the island with little or no infrastructure in the way of airports, roads, buildings and other facilities and there are two views about that situation.

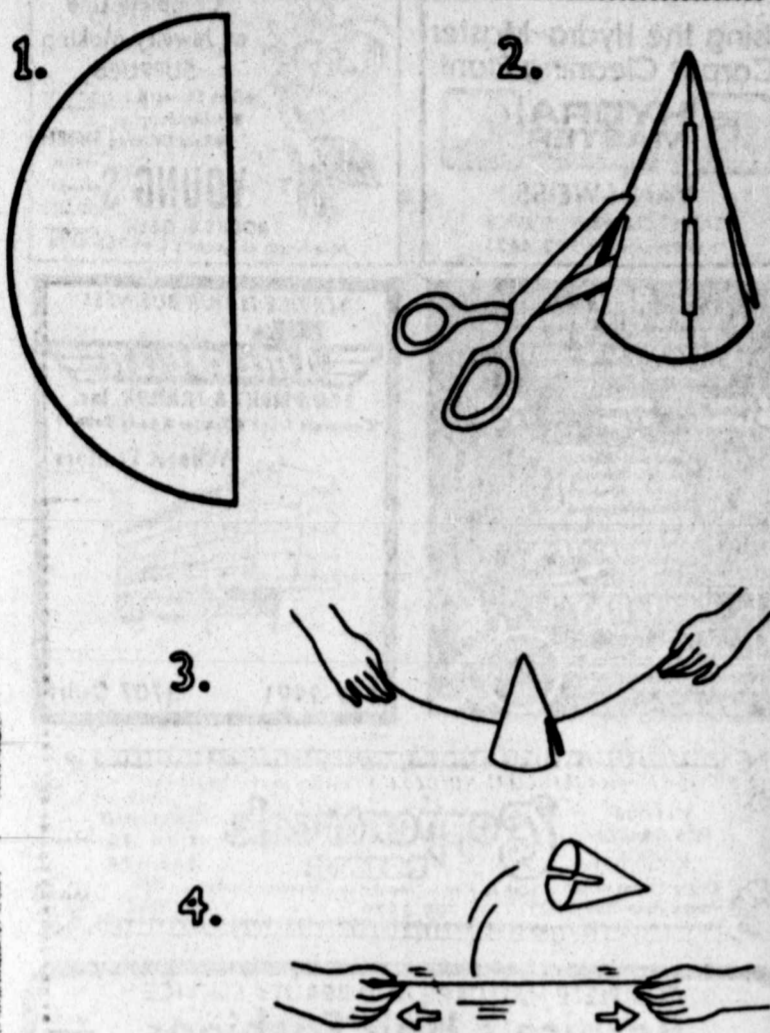

Dominican nationalists complain bitterly that the British colonial rulers never did a thing for the island, but some Britons say that the island already has more infrastructure than it can afford to maintain.

"Anything you put down here is wasted," a British businessman said.

At first glance, on arriving in Dominica by air on small island-hopping planes, the visitor spies no sign of human civilization amid the lush green forests covering the steep mountain slopes.

Suddenly, there is an airstrip, recently resurfaced with the help of Canadian aid money, and a ramshackle wooden structure that serves as a terminal. After clearing immigration and customs, the traveler finds himself the object of fierce competition by taxi drivers who will charge a fat $30 fare for the ride into the capital city of Roseau, only a few miles away on the other side of the island, but a dangerous, two-hour trip across the mountainous past landscape.

Officially, traffic flows to the left as in most British Commonwealth nations, but on the one-lane road it hardly matters unless a truck comes around the corner and one of the two vehicles meeting head-on must back up to find a wider spot in the crumbling pavement.

Zap Capsule Toy Has Plenty Of Bounce

By SHARI LEWIS

Doesn't look like much of a toy, does it? But the Zap Capsule pictured above has a lot of bounce in it.

Cut out the half circle and bring the two straight edges together. Overlap them a bit, and tape them to form a cone. Now, fellow astronauts, that's your nose cone. Cut two skinny slits, one on each side of the cone. (You can paste a photograph of your face on the side of the Zap Capsule, if you wish, before takeoff.)

And to make your Zap Capsule take off, put it on a piece of string, with the string running through the slits. Hold the string between your hands, and when you are ready for blast off, pull your hands apart sharply.

The Zap Capsule will fly through space with the greatest of ease.

Today's Brain Twister: Two boys fill out registration forms for summer camp. The registrar sees that they have the same parents, live at the same address and have the same date of birth. The only difference is that one is named John and the other is Adam. When asked "Are you twins?" they both say "No." If their answers are accurate and they both have the same mother and father, how do you account for the fact that they are not twins? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International Today is Monday, Nov. 13, the 317th day of 1978 with 48 to follow. The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Mercury. Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.

Scottish author Robert Louis Stevenson was born Nov. 13, 1850. On this day in history:

In 1927, the Holland Tunnel under the Hudson River between New York City and New Jersey was opened. It had been under construction seven years.

In 1933, the first recorded "sit-down" strike in the United States was staged by workers at the Hormel Packing Company in Austin, Minn.

In 1973, the U.S. Senate approved a bill authorizing construction of an oil pipeline from Alaska.

In 1974, Yasir Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, told the U.N. General Assembly the goal of the PLO was a state of Palestine in which Moslems, Christians and Jews would live together in peace.

A thought for the day: Robert Louis Stevenson said, "There is no duty we so much underrate as the duty of being happy."

REAGAN TO SPEAK

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan has been scheduled as the speaker for a $25-a-plate benefit dinner for St. Mary's University on Dec. 7. The dinner will raise money for the Myra Stafford Prsor Chair for Free Enterprise at the university.

Construction Approved In Denver

DENVER (AP) — Three major construction projects worth $84 million have been approved by the Denver Urban Renewal Authority for the Skyline Urban Renewal area in downtown Denver.

The projects include a $50 million office and commercial building and two residential condominium towers, officials said recently.

A 25-story, pentagonal office tower and a seven-story pavilion with exhibition space will occupy one block. Realty Investments Group, a Colorado partnership between the Alpert Corp. and Feinberg Realty and Construction, were awarded the office and commercial building project contract.

One of the condominium towers — its cost estimated at $20 million — will be a joint venture of two Canadian companies, Villcentres Properties Ltd., and Kowal Holdings Ltd., both of Calgary, Alberta.

The project, to be called Larimer Towers, will be 34 stories high, with one- and two-bedroom condominiums in the $45,000 to $69,000 range. Some 100,000 square feet of office space also will be part of the building.

The other condominium complex, to be called The Windsor — because its site will be across from the location of the former Windsor Hotel — will contain 164 units priced from $88,000 to $125,000. The 23-story Windsor will cost some $17 million.

Construction on all projects is to begin next spring or summer.

"Isn't this the answer to your carpet search... to your plans for the new look for the holidays and seasons to come?"

Other Advantages
And at Tuftwick, remember, there are "easy terms, no money down and up to 36 months to pay".

Select now from Milliken Carpets ("the good life at your feet") and note that during the Tuftwick sale 1/2-inch rebond cushion and expert installation is included free of extra charge, at the sale prices quoted.

"Be ready for the holidays, add new beauty, comfort and warmth to your home; Tuftwick can help, without exorbitant cost. Let us prove it.

To further assist one in the sale purchases, remember these facts about Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., at Brownfield Hwy and Slide Road in Lubbock, phone 795-5251:

Hours are 8 until 5:30, Mondays through Fridays, with evenings by appointment, and Saturday hours 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

A shopping trip to Tuftwick is believed worth the trip from anywhere in the region, and the current Milliken sale makes this doubly so.

"Note the thrilling selection of patterns and material; check the prices and values that simply cannot be beat; and finally, accept the services of a knowledgeable staff that does all in its power to make shopping at Tuftwick a pleasant and rewarding experience. Everything in the showroom has been conveniently arranged and displayed for easy viewing, comparison and selection. It is an attractive, inviting place, this Tuftwick Carpet!"

CARPET SAVINGS EXPLAINED — Arvel and Nancy English of the Tuftwick Carpet staff are shown in the big showroom there where extensive savings currently are posted.

Fair Restaurant Open 24 Hours Daily, Serving Complete Menu

Day or night, the Fair Restaurant at Avenue A and 8th Street is open to offer all its services.

As a locally-owned and locally-managed Martin & Lewis restaurant, every effort is made to serve in a manner inviting repeat visits, time and again!

J. T. Martin and Steve Lewis, longtime Lubbock businessmen, own this convenient and service-oriented facility, together with the Roweway Inn Restaurant just off University Avenue on 4th Street.

Joy Nicholson is manager at the Fair, heading a large staff whose job is "to please you in all your eating needs."

Prater's Fine Turkeys, Hams, Dressing Readied For Holidays

"Have you been concerned about a shortage of good fresh turkeys for Thanksgiving needs?"

There is absolutely no cause for concern... if one depends upon Prater's, traditionally furnishing the finest in products available for the holidays and for any good meal!

Prater's has plenty of fresh turkeys, to be ready this Friday, Nov. 17; and Thanksgiving turkey orders are being taken for pickup on Nov. 20, 21 and 22.

(If the bird is needed before the 20th, there is no need to call for reserve order.)

"If you have ever eaten a Prater's turkey, then surely you are looking forward to another as the highlight of Thanksgiving holiday meals!"

"If you have not formed the Prater's habit, then a delightful new experience awaits.

You may buy the Prater products at Prater's (just drive about two miles south of Loop 289 on University Avenue and look for the Prater's sign on the left) or you can find the special Prater's label right in your favorite supermarket.

At the Prater plant, clean throughout, there is noticeable attractive decor and ease in shopping. Everything is modern and convenient, inside and out, and a huge paved entry and parking apron makes for easiest access.

Multiple Products
 Check the several products for which Prater's is famous, products that are available for the holidays and for value and goodness at any time.

A delicious smoked turkey roll is one of the members of the Prater's product family. These are breasts that are put into rolls and smoked, and not only are most delicious, but have been appreciated by weight watchers.

Old-fashioned cornbread dressing is available in the customary four-pound size and in two-pound lots. Surely everybody who buys a turkey will want this dressing!

Boneless Hams
 The boneless hams are prepared at the Lubbock facility and are completely cooked, ready to eat and have the same sugar-cured goodness of the other hams for which Prater's is so favorably known. The boneless hams are available in 4 to 8 lb. sizes.

Or maybe the choice is brown-and-serve baked turkey:
 Fresh, fattened birds;
 Smoked turkeys; or those long-cured country hams, smoked or spiced;

Bacon, Sausage
 Hickory-smoked Canadian bacon; country-cured bacon; smoked sausage, and smoked turkey breasts.

For the small family, Prater's comes through with smoked chickens at a 1/2-4 lb. average size.
 It's all at Prater's.

A spacious display room with self-service refrigerated cases makes viewing and selecting especially convenient at Prater's.

For assurance of a Thanksgiving meal unmatched in tasty goodness, depend on Prater's products (that also are great for gifting).

Store hours are 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays. The phone number is 745-2727.

Brown-and-Serve
 The brown-and-serve baked turkeys are marinated by Prater's then completely cooked, ready to eat. They are cooked in foil to retain all the delicious juices, then placed in plastic bags and vacuum packed. The average turkey requires only 1 1/2 hours oven time to be ready for the table. (It is advised to remove the foil from the breast and legs

Thursday Evening Festivities
Hint Bowman Season Readiness

Big things are happening at Bowman's, 8301 S. University in Lubbock!
 (1) A big, special event is slated Thursday evening. Read further in this report for details.
 (2) Month-long sale prices are effective through Nov. 30 with Bowman going all out for home, gift and winter needs at prices to shout about.
 Open House featuring the so-colorful and new and unique Christmas and Trellis Shop is scheduled this Thursday evening, Nov. 16, from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. (The entire Bowman store will be open during these hours, too.)
 Bowman's would like for you to come. Hot apple cider will be served . . . free . . . and entertainment will be by the Sweet Adelaines, acclaimed singing group that performs in the area and which has even appeared before the Queen of England. This group will begin its entertainment at 7 p.m. Don't miss it!

"You simply cannot imagine how beautiful, how different and how well stocked the Christmas Shop is at Bowman's until you come and visit us personally. (A new and additional entry into the shop is provided near the front door at Bowman's.)

Coordination Assistance
 The gorgeous artificial trees are in, and a beautiful brass engraved ornament is given free with any tree purchase. Actually, the girls in the Bowman Christmas Shop are most adept in helping one personalize and coordinate all holiday decorations, decor motif, gift wrapping and even selection of presents. (One can find something for anyone at Bowman's, we like to prove.)

For Decorating
 Specialty gift wrap is one of the featured stock items, together with decoration accessories such as silk and dried flower arrangements, with a price and selection most suitable for class and party favors.
 And for a centerpiece, one need look no further!
 Among the gift ideas are items for dorm and apartment dwellers. Let us at Bowman's decorate for you one of our Norfolk Island pine trees, or buy the tiny ornaments and fix your own tree. A great selection of mini balls and bows is provided.

Chain Saw Values
 And for gifting, one can select from numerous departments at Bowman's for the gift sure to please . . . such as "the gift of power for every project" with a Black & Decker or Rockwell power tool among the suggestions.

CHRISTMAS SHOP OPENS — Revealing a whole new concept and scads of merchandise and services, the Bowman Christmas Shop is being introduced in special Thursday evening 'Open House' as outlined in the accompanying report. Shown in an attractive corner of the shop are Michelle Groceclose, Judy Henly and Cindy Harrist who are on hand to give qualified help in coordination of holiday decorating and gifting.

There are great savings posted on the various McCulloch chain saws, a gift dad will sure to enjoy year after year. Accessories are stocked, too, and Bowman is proud to announce that equipment and personnel are on the job to custom sharpen used chains at a modest fee.
 At random, here are other gift and holiday suggestions:
 All macrame supplies are one-half off regular price.
 Beautiful preserved ferns are $12.95. Whiskey barrels, regular $14.95, are sale priced at $9.99, and are adaptable to lots of uses including planters and furniture.
 Bowman has a large assortment of tulips, daffodils and crocus bulbs, and now is the time to plant for beautiful color. Also stocked are many hard-to-find bulbs such as anemones, Dutch Iris, aluminum moly, yellow hyacinths, ranunculus and freesia.
 A new shipment of brass pots is priced at 20 per cent off.
 And in this "Month Before Christmas" pre-holiday sale, there are many items making it possible to fix your home the way you want it . . . for living and for entertaining.
 Check the big Bowman sale brochure for further listings of sale items.
 "Or best yet, come on out or be sure and come to the Thursday evening open house event in the Bowman Christmas Shop, and discover for yourself how Bowman can be your Santa!"

American Equipment & Trailer Firm
Stocks Known, Popular, Needed Lines

Need a versatile trailer for loading and hauling? Need a crane? Is the need a service body for a pickup? Or is it a wish for pickup, four-wheel drive unit or truck that is needed?
 In any event, American Equipment and Trailer, Inc., now in its 26th year, is the firm on which to depend.
 American Equipment and Trailer, Inc., at 3707 Quirt Ave. in Lubbock and at 610 N. Grand in Amarillo, and at 1400 West Overland Trail in Abilene, prides in its large line-up of equipment, with every item marked by a well-known and respected brand.
Versatile Trailer
 For example, the Ledwell Hydra Tail 50,000 lb. capacity trailer (with hydraulic operated tail with 12 degree angle slope when in down loading position) is stocked and recommended. With the tail in the up position, loading and unloading from docks, railroad cars and other vehicles is fast and efficient, also.
 This trailer has an upper deck length of 18 ft., a lower deck length of 32 ft., giving an overall 42 ft. of entirely usable hauling space. It is equipped by choice with either wood or steel floor, and there are many options including longer or shorter lengths, front end extensions, hydraulic landing gears, 15,000 or 20,000 lb. winch, tool or storage compartments, side extension for extra height or width, and still more options.

Crane Units
 Then, possibly another need for our industrial customers in particular is the Model 725 crane unit from IMTCO, offering a practical new approach to material handling. Requiring only 29 inches mounting space, this crane is designed for less mount space to give greater utilization of whatever truck bed utilized.
 Other functional advantages include greater reach, dual controls, cylinder holding and/or counter balance valves, smooth telescoping boom movement, hydraulic control valves, smooth power-rotational system, wide outrigger spans for greater stability, compact behind-the-cab storage, valve bank covers, etc.

Service Bodies
 Or maybe the need is a Koenig Tip-Top Service Body with its all-steel, electrically welded unit construction and its utility for so many farm, service or industrial applications. This service body works for full efficiency through better designed storage areas, with versatile compartments enabling arrangement of tools and equipment in a manner working best for the owner, for easy reach and quick inventory.
 Yes, American Equipment and Trailer, Inc., is modern in every respect, fully stocked and devoted to service, providing the largest trailer service facility in the Panhandle-South Plains area.
 Not only are the above lines stocked, but there are other great names stocked and available, including Galion dump bodies, Midwest farm bodies, Tulsa winches, RO cranes, Wilson livestock and grain trailers, Great Dane refrigerated trailers, Clement dump bodies, Bendix-Westinghouse air brake equipment, Michigan fleet gasoline tanks, Henderson bulk bodies and spreaders and more.
 A parts department stocks to service the equipment sold by American, and parts are stocked, also, for many other brands. The service department in Lubbock has seven double bays and long drive-through large enough to accommodate the largest tractor-trailer made.
 American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., is on the job to serve.

With such highly qualified staffers arranging money-saving two-week specials, then one should surely take notice!
 It is at the Holiday Salon of Beauty, 4835 Brownfield Highway, phone 795-8276.
 "To help in your awareness of the quality synonymous with this salon conveniently accessible in southwest Lubbock, the following specials are posted by operators indicated:
 Estela Loya will provide style cuts, regular $10, for $7 during the two weeks that include this week. Body waves and curly waves and unperms are $20 on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesdays during the event. And regular $25 waves are just $18.50.
 Kaye Rebber is offering unperms at $20 and a super-special frost at $20 (by appointment on Mondays and Thursdays). Then on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Kaye offers the inner nature wave, regular $25, at $18.50.
 Carol Becker, long hair specialist, tells a super special on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, with regular $25 wave going for $18.50. Luminize, regular $28.50, is lowered to $20.
 Jo Ann Fannin offers unperms at $20, and specializes in great precision cuts, the curly look and long hair.
 Peggy Tooke offers frostings at $20, and unperms at $20, for the two weeks.
Aid For Holiday

Baton Twirling Added To Extensive Curriculum Offered At Hamilton Gym

Hamilton Gymnastics, at 4811 W. Loop 209 (at corner of 50th Street and the Loop) is making quite a name for itself with its comprehensive curriculum and top-grade instructors.
 Continual enrollment is enabled in any of the courses, and inquiry is invited regarding full particulars of a course interesting you.
 In keeping with director Johnny Hamilton's attention to excellence and service, he is now offering an added program... that of baton twirling under the direction of Peggiani Alfonso, a master in her field.

FINALLY BROUGHT DOWN — Green Bay's John Armstrong (60) holds onto Dallas' Robert Newhouse and pulls him down after Newhouse broke through the Packers' line during Sunday's contest in Milwaukee. Pastorini, Teammates Refuse To Be Denied FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Veteran quarterback Dan Pastorini was like a man possessed. Even with his Houston Oilers trailing the New England Patriots 23-0, he refused to be denied.

"The man is unreal," Houston wide receiver Ken Burroughs said in praising Pastorini Sunday after the Oilers rallied for a dramatic 26-23 victory which snapped New England's seven-game winning streak in the National Football League.

"All through the second half on every play in the huddle he kept saying, 'Believe in me, believe in me. We're gonna score, we're gonna win,'" Burroughs, a nine-year pro, said. "Even on the sidelines he kept yelling to the defense, 'Just get me the ball. We'll do it.' It was infectious. He was superb."

The Patriots built their big lead by scoring the first five times they had the ball, getting three field goals from David Posey and touchdown runs from Horace Ivory and Steve Grogan.

A rout appeared probable until late in the first half when Stanley Morgan fumbled a punt and Ted Thompson recovered for Houston at the New England 32. Pastorini promptly hit Burroughs for 20 yards and two plays later Rob Carpenter sprinted up the middle for a touchdown.

Although Posey missed a field goal attempt as the half ended, the Patriots appeared in control. Then, in the second half, after New England moved to a first down at the Houston 13, Posey missed another field goal try. That turned around everything.

Accepting Pastorini's challenge, the Houston defense denied New England's mighty offense a first down the rest of the way. And Pastorini took charge of the offense, with a couple of breaks along the way.

A New England penalty for an illegal block on a Houston punt kept the Oilers

Earl Scudday Back In The Saddle

AFTER WEEKS OF criticism by fans and the news media, the Dallas Cowboys finally got angry enough to stomp someone. The civilians and scribes were safe, since they never don helmets or pads, so the 'Pokes had to take it out on the Green Bay Packers. The result was that surprising 42-14 victory over the Cinderella team of the National Football League.

There are those who scoff at the importance of psychology in determining winners of pro football games. Surely grown men with wives, children and agents don't fall for that high school approach. Clippings on the locker room bulletin board? Kid stuff!

But persons who have spent a lot of time around pro teams know differently. Those mature athletes react to insults and criticism just like college sophomores. They read the newspapers, listen to the radio and believe it when the coach tells them their character is being slandered by the enemy.

THE COWBOYS, as a team, have seen it all during the last decade. They've been to the Super Bowl four times and they've been on national television more times than Jimmy Carter. Their pictures are on magazine covers and they have to fight their way through crowds of autograph-seekers, just like movie stars. Around the league, the 'Poke players are considered to be rather unemotional

'Pokes Plunder Pack, Set Rushing Record

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The top-ranked passing team in the National Football Conference set a single game club rushing record Sunday, which should give you an idea what the Dallas Cowboys did to the Green Bay Packers.

The difference between the defending Super Bowl champion Cowboys and the playoff hopeful Packers was 286 yards. The Cowboys amassed 537 yards — 313 by rushing — to Green Bay's 143 and totaled 22 first downs to the Packers' nine as Dallas romped 42-14 in what the National Football League's competition committee can only hope was not a play-off match preview.

"It was just a day at the office. It was very simple. It was execution. Our people up front just put their hats on their people," said Tony Dorsett, who led the Cowboys with 149 yards and two touchdowns on 23 carries.

Robert Newhouse added 101 yards and two touchdowns in 18 carries and Roger Staubach passed for 200 yards, including touchdown passes of 8 and 18 yards to Billy Joe DuPree as the Cowboys, 7-4, who had lost their previous two games, stayed one game behind first-place Washington in the NFC East.

The Packers, 5-4, fell into a first place tie in the NFC Central with Minnesota with their third defeat in four games. They also saw their supply of wide receivers reduced to one. David Whitehurst took a mistake above his left patellar bone and left late in the third quarter, having completed three of 18 passes for 31 yards.

Whitehurst's replacement, rookie Dennis Spradl, injured a hand early in the fourth quarter and was substituted for surgery. Third stringer Bobby Douglas completed his first pass of the season, an 18 yarder to Steve Olson for the game's final touchdown with 7:12 to play.

Whitehurst said he expected to be able to play at Denver next week — hopefully better, he said, than he played Sunday.

"We just stunk it up out there," Whitehurst said. "I did my share of messing up, although I'm not going to say it was my fault we lost. We're 7-4, but we sure didn't play like 7-4. Last year we were 4-10 and we didn't get beat anywhere near this bad."

The 42 points were the most scored on the Packers in a game since the New York Giants were downed in the 1973 season. Most touchdowns in a game by the Packers since 1934 were scored in 1956 when the Packers and Cleveland had the longest of field goal drives.

"You look at those of these other games and they really haven't played anything," Packers defensive end Mike Butler said. "They knew they had to win together, and they really did. Championship caliber teams do that. They get their backs to the wall and they come together. That's what we have to do."

Pastorini Directs Houston Comeback

ers to another touchdown, helped by an 18-yard shovel pass gainer to Carpenter on a fake field goal attempt. Earl Campbell banged for a touchdown — and the score was 23-20. On fourth down and two for a first down at the Houston 41 with 6:42 to play, New England gambled and lost. Steve Grogan's pass was broken up and the Oilers took over.

Cougars Just One Victory Away From Spot In 1979 Cotton Bowl

By DENNIS H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer The Houston Cougars are off this week, and do they ever deserve it. For the second time in three years, they have ventured into the lair of the perennial Southwest Conference bully boy but refused to assume the pose of a 90-pound weakling.

Who's to say (unbeaten) Penn State won't play us in the Cotton Bowl? said Davis. "It's possible we can win the national championship."

In other SWC games Saturday, Southern Methodist destroyed 58-0 Rice as Darold Turner scored four touchdowns. Texas Tech downed Texas Christian 27-14. In games this week, Texas is at TCU, Baylor is at Rice, SMU is at Texas Tech and Texas A&M meets Arkansas in Little Rock.

In fact, Houston acted more like a Jolly Red Giant with a bad headache as the Cougars handled the Texas Longhorns 19-7 Saturday. There were over 83,000 witnesses — largest football crowd in the history of the Southwest. Now all Houston has to do — after a week's vacation — is whip EITHER Rice or Texas Tech for at least an SWC tie and the right to the host role in the Cotton Bowl.

Davis, who wore a "Think Cotton" T-shirt when Houston played its first season as an SWC member in 1976, has the whole team doing it this year. In fact, some of the Houston linemen have "Think Cotton" towels. Everytime a lineman rips off Davis' tearaway jersey he has to look at "Think Cotton."

Asked what he did at halftime in the dressing room, Houston Coach Burn Phillips said "I just begged a little. I also cried a little, too." "We got all the breaks in the first half and didn't get any in the second half," said Grogan. "They controlled the ball. Houston is a great defensive team and when you get the ball only five times in a half, it's difficult to sustain anything."

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman adopts a play-them-one-at-a-time stance. "We only have two games left which are two games we can lose," said Yeoman. "We've got to pay attention to what we're doing."

Yeoman added "If this bunch finishes the season like they are supposed to, I might end up being very impressed with them. "I just didn't read the tea leaves right," said Yeoman.

Said New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks on the vain fourth down attempt while ahead late in the game: "I guess it was questionable strategy on my part."

Houston quarterback Danny Davis, the catalyst to the woodrums Cougar Vee offense, says he wants both games and then perhaps some national honors. "Everybody is saying we only have to win one of two," said Davis. "Well, I want to win both of them."

Yeoman admitted that this team has surprised him. "I just didn't read the tea leaves right," said Yeoman.

Defensive tackle Hosea Taylor said "The only thing that can hurt us is if we hurt ourselves."

Dallas Press Angers Dorsett

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett is becoming sensitive about criticism from the Dallas media and says he feels "like the press is trying to run me out of Dallas."

Dorsett broke out of a personal slump Sunday by rushing for 149 yards in 23 attempts in the Cowboys' 42-14 victory over Green Bay as Dallas ended a two-game losing streak.

The second-year pro from Pittsburgh said he has received too much of the blame for the team's substandard play. Dallas, last season's Super Bowl champion, is 7-4 and one game behind Washington in the NFC East.

Foyt Clinches USAC Crown

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Houston's A.J. Foyt topped Terry Ryan for his second United States Auto Club national championship Sunday with a victory in the Texan 250 at Texas World Speedway and plans to spend the winter "answering complaints at the dealership."

"It seems that when things aren't going too good for us, everyone is pointing the finger at me," he said. "When you're down, they want to talk about you and write bad things about you."

Dorsett, who said the criticism has caused him to quit reading newspapers and magazines, had not played up to expected standards in the past three games and was disciplined through limited playing time last month when he slept through a team meeting and did not inform Cowboys' officials.

Foyt coaxed his coyote red Camaro into a comfortable seven-second lead midway through the race but then had to overcome a series of mechanical problems before regaining the lead for good on the 116th lap.

"I feel like the press is trying to run me out of town," he said. "I'm hurt about all the articles that have been written. It hurt to read them. I don't think it is right when people use that kind of story to sell their papers."

Bowl Question Hits Raiders

By JIM FERGUSON
 Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Don't look for Rex Dockery to go out and start buying 50 or 60 of those silky shirts with "Kingspins" stitched on the back. Fact is, Dockery says the Raiders haven't even started thinking about going bowling yet.

But that doesn't mean the subject hasn't been popping up. Sitting at his desk, obviously still enjoying the Raiders' fourth straight victory — a 27-17 win over TCU in Fort Worth Saturday, Dockery said the subject of a possible bowl bid "hasn't been mentioned around at all. We're not even considering it (the subject) right now."

This is the time of year, though, a few tongues start flapping. And with the Raiders sitting on a 5-3 win-loss mark, a few more heads may turn.

"Our goal, like it has been from the very start of the year," said Dockery, "is to continue to improve as a team and win football games."

"We have an opportunity to have a winning season and that's what we're concentrating on right now."

On the subject of Tech's win over TCU, which upped the Raiders' Southwest Conference record to 3-2, Dockery said: "We're always happy with a win, obviously. That's the reason we play."

Although generally pleased with the Raider offense, paced by the 166-yard rushing performance of fullback James Hadnot, Dockery said there were parts of their play that was "poor."

"Our play in short yardage situations and on the goal line was poor," he commented. "But I'll have to take the blame for that. I guess I did a poor job of preparing them for those situations."

Despite that, though, Dockery said the play of quarterback Ron Reeves and wide receiver Brian Nelson was "very encouraging."

"I think Brian (Nelson) had his best game ever," said Dockery. "Not only did he catch the ball (three receptions for 48 yards and two touchdowns) well, but his blocking helped us tremendously."

The passing of Reeves, who hit 8-of-12 tosses for 108 yards and the two TDs to Nelson, was also singled out. "Ron's throwing is continuing to improve," said Dockery. "Overall, he had another excellent game."

Again Dockery was pleasantly surprised with the play of Hadnot, who had come into the game with 863 yards. His final figure of 1,029 makes him only the second 1,000-yard performer in Tech history, trailing only Doug McCutchen who had 1,068 for the single-season mark.

Asked if he thought Hadnot was capable of achieving the 1,000-yard mark when he was moved from tight end to fullback last August, Dockery said: "No." Then he smiled and continued: "We didn't know what he was capable of doing there. But it appears the move has paid off for us. We've been fortunate."

The Tech defense, which limited TCU to only 165 total yards, was also in line for a lauding from the head man.

"I felt (lineman Curtis) Reed and (linebacker Don) Kelly both played excellent games," said Dockery. "They're getting better every week. I think (cornerback Willie) Stephens also came through for us. Overall the defense played well under pressure... good gang tackling, too."

The Raiders will host SMU Saturday at Jones Stadium in a game Dockery says "should be very interesting for both teams. We're really looking to playing them."

SWC Cage Coaches Stick With Texas

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

DALLAS—Abe Lemons is so anxious to get the basketball season underway that he's already parked his car at the Super Drum.

That's where his Texas Longhorns play, and since they're rated as high as fourth in the nation, and he says he doesn't want to miss a thing.

Beyond that though, Lemons didn't have a great deal to say about his team here Sunday.

He was the only one not speaking glowingly of his Longhorns. About the only things drawing as much comment from the other eight Southwest Conference coaches (here for their annual preseason conference with the news media) were the new three-official rule and the overall balance of the teams.

Texas has gotten the unanimous support of the other coaches as the team which will finish No. 1. Behind the Longhorns, the feeling is Arkansas and Texas A&M. The rest? A general jumble.

And the coaches felt the three-official rule, to be tried within the league this season, would not mean many extra fouls but instead a better policing of fouls away from the ball.

"We're having a little trouble recapturing the spirit of last year," commented Lemons, as he chewed on a cigar and talked of his team which won the NIT championship last March after tying Arkansas for the SWC crown.

"We have what we had last year (four starters) but we're not quite as good right now. We still don't have a pivot (to replace Gary Goodner)."

But returning are forwards Ron Baxter and Tyrone Branan and guards John Moore and Jim Krivacs. All except Branan were all-SWC a year ago.

Freshman Hank Johnson (6-7) was supposed to step into the lineup, but, said Lemons "He's talented but he hasn't shown much. As he told me, he's waiting for the band to show up."

Coach Eddie Sutton, who led Arkansas to the Final Four, admitted that his team would not be as strong, but all of Sutton's peers were unanimous in thinking that with Sidney Moncrief back the Razorbacks will continue as one of the league's top teams.

And the Aggies, the coaches felt, will be near the top, with four starters returning, plus the coming of 6-11 freshman Rudy Woods.

"The kid can run," said coach Shelby Metcalfe. "I'd pay just to see him run. He's never been clumsy, since the seventh grade, when he was 6-6."

"He's everything you've heard about him. Starting? he's been a starter since the day that I signed him."

Sutton, talking about his Razorbacks, admitted that he had some young players to go with Moncrief and 6-11 Steve Schall, but "We need some newcomers to come through. We don't have a defensive stopper like Jim Counce, though."

Houston will be working with returning guards Ken Ciulli and Ken Williams and a stack of new players. And coach Guy Lewis said he will have his shortest lineup since 1965.

"In the past, we've been a power-oriented team, but now, I don't know what we're oriented."

Baylor returns the league's top scorer in guard Vinnie Johnson, plus two other returning regulars, but coach Jim Haller pointed to the recruiting of several freshmen and a junior college performer to give the team more depth and a better outlook.

Julio Gallardo, the 6-8 former Western Texas player, is out with a broken thumb but is expected to be starting when he returns.

Raider coach Gerald Myers plans to open up the offensive phase of Texas Tech's game more. He said the fans like it as well as the players. His Raiders will try the running game against the Bulgarian national team in Lubbock Tuesday night.

SMU and TCU tried some foreign competition last week, SMU tripping the Finnish nationals by a point Friday night and TCU losing to the same group by five Saturday.

Sonny Allen will blend the old with the new at SMU as his son, freshman Billy Allen, will be starting at point guard. A junior college transfer, 6-10 Brad Branson, adds the speedy size inside. And with the holdovers from last year, others are predicting a challenging year for the Ponies.

"We have the type of players, with the right characteristics at each position, that I like," Allen said.

Although TCU and Rice are given the nods for the lower two spots in the league, both maintain they will be better than a year ago.

Both schools went heavily for freshmen and feel they recruited well. TCU coach Tom Somerville has two seniors and a junior to go with younger players. He looks to be starting three freshmen, a sophomore and a senior this season and says the sophomore (6-6 Steve Scales) is as good as any forward in the league.

"We're playing better now than at any time last year," asserted Rice coach Mike Schuler. "We'll be the youngest team in the country, with seven freshmen and a sophomore among our top nine. And they're good freshmen."

"In two or three years, we can compete for the top spot."

The lone senior is 6-3 Elbert Darden.

The coaches predicted a fierce struggle for the championship. "I think the winner will lose as many as four games," said Lemons.

STEPPING OUT—Los Angeles Rams running back Lawrence McCutcheon (30) of Plainview steps over guard Tom Mack (85) as safety Donnie Shell (31) of the Pittsburgh Steelers comes in to hold him to a 3-yard gain in the first quarter of their NFL game Sunday in Los Angeles. Celtics Drop Sixth Straight

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Just when it looks like things can't get any worse for the Boston Celtics, things got worse.

The Celtics looked bad in losing to the New York Knicks 111-98 Saturday night, but at least that was on the road. Sunday night they returned to the Boston Garden and bowed to the Detroit Pistons 128-123 for their sixth loss in a row and 10th in the last 11 games.

"This was obviously our worst game of the year," said Celtics Coach Tom Sanders. "We had 17 turnovers in the first half and then followed that up with crucial mistakes down the stretch. It's simply a matter of concentration. We showed a total lack of poise."

Boston's 2-12 record is the second worst in the National Basketball Association. It's the worst start in the history of the franchise.

In other NBA games Sunday night, the Los Angeles Lakers routed the Indiana Pacers 134-106, the Phoenix Suns beat the New Orleans Jazz 128-122 and the Portland Trail Blazers defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 98-91.

Rookie John Long scored 24 points to lead Detroit, which was without its captain and center, Bob Lanier, who injured his left knee in Philadelphia Saturday night.

The Celtics led 97-94 after three periods but fell behind 124-119 with two minutes remaining. Baskets by Dave Cowens and rookie Jeff Judkins brought the Celtics within one, but two free throws by Detroit's M.L. Carr put the game out of reach.

Despite a season-high 32 points, Boston's Dave Cowens was not happy.

"Game after game it seems like someone is messing with my mind," he said. "I keep wondering what is wrong and try to come up with answers. When I do come up with an answer, it turns out to be the wrong one."

Lakers 134, Pacers 106

Los Angeles won its ninth in a row, racing into an 80-50 halftime lead and coasting home behind 22 points and 13 rebounds by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Seven players scored in double figures for the Lakers, who are now 8-0 on their home court.

The Lakers made 19 of their first 24 field goal tries and finished with a .556 shooting percentage, while outrebounding Indiana 72-51.

Suns 128, Jazz 122

Alvan Adams, who had been on the injured list because of a sprained ankle, returned to action and scored 33 points to lead Phoenix over New Orleans. He scored 14 in the Suns' 38-point fourth quarter.

New Orleans' Truck Robinson led all scorers with 34 points.

Blazers 98, Cavaliers 91

Cleveland ended a grueling seven-game road trip with its 10th loss in the last 11 games after a 4-0 start. Maurice Lucas was the big force for the Trail Blazers with 26 points and 15 rebounds, including five points in a row after Cleveland had trimmed a 21-point lead to five with 3:53 to play.

Estacado, Canyon Eye Title

By BOB BAJACKSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
As Louis Kelley walked off of Lowrey Field Friday night, you couldn't tell by looking at his face that the Estacado Matadors had won their eighth consecutive victory.

"I just hope our kids were looking ahead to Canyon," said Kelley.

Because the Matadors held on to beat Levelland 21-13 and Canyon tripped Dumas 16-7, Estacado and Canyon will battle for the 1-AA championship Friday night at Kimbrough Stadium in Canyon.

And though Estacado has not tasted defeat since Sept. 8 (40-6 to Plainview), Kelley is concerned about the inconsistency of his team as the Matadors prepare for the district showdown.

"We're making too many mistakes," said Kelley. "For the second week in a row we're playing good only in spirits. I just don't know what's wrong."

Meanwhile, Canyon coach Deane Wright shares Kelley's feelings.

"I think the potential is there for both teams," said Wright. "Our defense has been winning games for us. But our offense has been tearing up the turf between the 20s."

So, while Estacado and Canyon slug it out, 2-AAA champion Fort Stockton will patiently wait to play the winner in the first round of the playoffs. Fort Stockton will tune up for the contest against Odessa Ector while Snyder will try and win the 3-AAA crown outright in Brownfield against the Cubs.

Fort Stockton will bring an undefeated 9-0 and 3-0 record into the Ector contest. The Eagles spot a 2-7 and 0-3 mark.

"It's harder for us to get up for a team like Odessa Ector," said Fort Stockton Coach John Blocker. "That's because the pressure is off our football team this week. The pressure has been so thick around the last couple of weeks and I expect our players to be more relaxed."

What Blocker is referring to is the fact that his Panthers have been playing for the loop championship the past two weeks. Fort Stockton blanked Pecos (2-1) 21-0 and then nipped Andrews (2-1) 21-13 to claim its first district championship and qualify for playoff competition for the first time since 1953.

The Panthers did share a loop crown in 1962, but Seminole represented the district in the playoffs.

Down at Snyder, the Tigers at 7-2 overall and 3-0 in 3-AAA action have already clinched a playoff berth by beating nearest competitor Lake View (2-1) earlier in the season.

Thus, Coach Mike Jenkins plans to test the Tigers ready for the playoffs against last foe Brownfield (1-2).

"Yes, Brownfield has been down a little this year, but I don't think we'll have any trouble getting our players up for the game," said Jenkins. "Our incentive is by winning the Brownfield game, our kids won't have to share the district championship with anybody."

Have the Tigers reached their peak both offensively and defensively for the upcoming playoffs?

"Well, we had the week off and I hoped it helped us," said Jenkins. "In fact, I hope the last couple of weeks will be a springboard in regard to momentum."

Snyder will be heading into the playoffs for the first time since 1974. It is the first district title with Jenkins as the head coach.

Pill-Cancer Link Ruled Inconclusive

By WILLIAM P. MOORE
United Press International Writer
An exclusive satellite system interconnecting the nation's public television stations has begun to expand the range of public programming and put even more control into the hands of the local programmer.
Already, some 90 licensees have been fitted with ground terminals capable of receiving signals from Western Union's WESTAR 1 communications satellite. By next year, all of the nation's 276 public stations should be on line.

Pill-Cancer Link Ruled Inconclusive

NEW YORK (AP) — A study raising the possibility of a link between birth control pills and skin cancer is regarded by its authors and by a cancer expert as too inconclusive for alarm.
The study, first reported in a British medical journal last year, said women in a suburban San Francisco health plan were about 70 percent more likely to get malignant melanoma if they had used the pill for four years or more.
Melanoma is a cancer of the skin's pigment cells. It kills 4,300 Americans a year.
The study was supported by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development in Bethesda, Md., which has contracted for follow-up studies to check the results.
The pill is known to stimulate production of the skin-darkening agent melanin, which is often overproduced in cases of melanoma, and to contribute to circulatory disorders. But no link to cancer has been established.
The authors of the study said the finding raised concern about whether the pill makes some women more vulnerable to the ultraviolet rays in sunlight which are thought to trigger the disease.
They noted that the rate of malignant melanoma has been on the rise in the last decade in Europe and North America at just the time when birth control pills came into common use.
But the authors said other factors might be responsible and more study was needed.
In the San Francisco Bay area, where the melanoma study was conducted, rates for the disease have doubled since 1970, according to the California Tumor Registry in Berkeley.
But Dr. Donald Austin, head of the registry, said the rate has risen as fast for men as for women — from about 5 per 100,000 in 1970 to 10 per 100,000 in 1975.
He said the melanoma study may prove to be a "false alarm."
"The pill certainly couldn't explain the increase among men," Austin noted Sunday in a telephone interview from his home.
"People may be changing their habits so they have more exposure to sunlight or the sunlight itself may be more dangerous than it was 5-10 years ago. All the figures I've seen can be explained by those two possibilities."
Austin and the authors of the study also said some scientists are worried that the Earth's atmospheric barrier against ultraviolet rays may be weakening, increasing the danger of skin cancer.
The possible link between the pill and melanoma turned up in an 8-year study begun in 1968 of 17,942 women enrolled in the Kaiser Foundation Health Plan at Walnut Creek, Calif.
Women who used the pill for more than four years developed malignant melanoma at a rate of about 29 per 100,000 per year. Women who had used the pill less than four years had a melanoma rate of 24 per 100,000, while non-users had 17 per 100,000.
But the authors said the number — 22 new cases of the disease in the sample group — was too small to be statistically significant.

DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 69. About a year ago I developed ringing noises in one of my ears. My doctor said it might be caused by aspirin or sinus trouble. Later he said the medical profession did not know very much about it and did not seem to have a cure for it. He said I should just learn to live with it.
I went to an ear specialist. He tested my ears and found nothing wrong. Both ears gave the same chart on a graph. He said that it was probably old age and the diminution of blood supply to the ear nerves. He had me take Pavabid for seven weeks but it did no good. Should I just give up? If not, whom should I go to? It is very aggravating. Your advice would be appreciated.

DEAR READER — There are some things that can be tried. Your ringing in the ears is technically called tinnitus. At least 36 million Americans have it.
It is more frequent as you get older and circulation may be a factor but there are many causes and it is not well understood. In a few patients simply removing the wax from the external ear solves the problem. The external ear solves the problem. The external ear solves the problem. The three-fourths obtained complete relief from ringing in the ears. It is possible that by improving the instruments to include other ranges of sound (frequencies), that an improvement over that figure can be obtained.

Cure Sought For Ringing

Finally, there are those who have the worst problem from tinnitus when they try to sleep. These patients put an FM radio beside the bed and tune it so it is not receiving any station. By turning up the static it makes, it masks the tinnitus noise. This worked in six out of 10 patients who tried it.
So, there is hope for all those millions of you readers out there who suffer from ringing in the ears and I recommend that you ask your doctor to try the appropriate one of these methods for you.
Meanwhile, to give you more information than I can cover here I am sending you The Health Letter number 12-10, Help for Tinnitus: Noise or Ringing in the Ear. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Burton Enjoying Quiet Life

By VERNON SCOTT
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Burton sighed deeply in the Polo Lounge of the Beverly Hills hotel and sipped at a glass of orange juice without gagging.

The orange juice is symbolic of his new temperate life style.

Burton, whose heroic drinking bouts and romantic entanglements are legendary, has opted for the quiet life since his divorce from Elizabeth Taylor.

For the past two years he has been married to blonde British model Susan Hunt. For three years his drinking has been limited to non-alcoholic beverages with only a single slip from grace a couple of years ago.

Tanned and fit, and wearing a white jogging outfit, Burton looked better than he has in a couple of decades. He's made the transition from alcoholic to workaholic in relative privacy.

"The first two years were a killer," he said, sipping the orange juice. "I couldn't go to a cocktail party or anywhere else where liquor was being served."

"Now I can go anywhere and enjoy the drunks falling down and even take them home without turning a hair. Alcoholism takes a long time to get out of one's system. It's not just a matter of physical adjustment."

"I miss most the camaraderie and good company of drinking companions. The first withdrawal symptom is total boredom. Because I'm shy about meeting new people I'd have three stiff drinks before going out. It helped."

"The only way for me to quit drinking, and I drank a very great deal, was to stop consuming alcohol of any kind. Some of my friends think they can taper off by drinking wine.

"I was at a party the other night with a well-known actor who said he'd quit drinking, too. But he put away a bottle and a half of white wine and was absolutely sloshed. It can't work that way."

Burton, a world class drinker in his prime, believes sobriety is taking over the world. He starred recently in "Wild Geese" with Richard Harris, another top-per of historic proportions, who also is on the wagon.

Robert Mitchum, his co-star in "Breakthrough," is tapering off. His guzzling pal Peter O'Toole, with whom he starred in "Beckett," has taken the pledge. Burton said O'Toole had his choice of going dry or to the mortuary.

Burton agreeably acknowledged his own propensity for the grape was beginning to interfere with his work. Four years ago he starred in "The Klansman" but he has no memory whatever of his participation.

"I'd like to meet some of the actors I worked with in that film," he said. "I understand they are wonderful people, but I can't recall a single scene."

It was during filming of that ill-fated movie that Burton was hospitalized for 6 1/2 weeks for treatment of a bronchial infection. He also injured his hand during the film and became involved with a couple of local belles on location in Oroville, Calif., which precipitated a terminal marital storm with Elizabeth that led to their separation.

Throughout all his travails Burton never lost his sense of humor.

He continues to smile about his past escapades and is delighted that his every move is no longer chronicled in the gossip columns. There is, in fact, very little to gossip about.

"If I'm looking fit, it's because I have such a young wife," he said. "Susan is 30 and I am 52. I have to keep up. I am fortunate she doesn't drink, otherwise I could never have kept my resolve."

"I swim every chance I get and I've been getting the proper amount of rest. The doctors gave me a thorough physical not long ago and told me I had the constitution of a 40-year-old. Remarkable, after all I've been through."

"I've enjoyed a resurgence of work. I find I move much faster than during my drinking days and my mind works quicker."

Burton, who makes his home in Switzerland, has purchased a home in Puerto Vallarta, not far from the celebrated hideaway he and Elizabeth once shared in that Mexican resort town.

He stopped by Hollywood to discuss business matters with his manager before heading for Mexico with Susan for a two-month respite from work.

"I like leading a quiet life for a change" he said. "Susan doesn't want to be an actress, thank God. We'll never have to worry about arranging our lives to conform to two acting careers. She has a very level head about show business and brings me up short whenever I confuse my career with my private life."

"I've always been a workaholic. I don't feel like going out when I'm doing a picture, working six days a week. Now I look forward to quiet relaxation instead of hell-raising."

"In Puerto Vallarta I'll be able to swim every day, do some fishing and go for long walks in the jungle which is just like it was a thousand years ago in the days of the Mayans."

Burton says he finds himself leading a sporadic fishbowl life although he enjoys more privacy than he did during his years with Elizabeth.

"When Susan and I walk into a restaurant, there's an eerie quiet," he said. "Perhaps it's curiosity about Susan, or simply people wondering if it's true I've quit drinking."

Christian Broadcasting Network Planning To Go Commercial

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (UPI) — A religiously-oriented television network is going commercial and will be seeking nationwide advertising support for wholesome family entertainment, the president of Christian Broadcasting Network, Inc., says.

M.G. Robertson said Adm. Jeremiah Denton, a Vietnam War hero and former commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College, will head the effort to solicit support from American businesses.

Robertson said the Christian Broadcasting Network has speeded up its plans to set up a commercial network because of protests in Boston and Virginia Beach over its tax-exempt status.

Robertson said the Christian Broadcasting Network felt that it should not exploit its special tax exempt status and instead should compete on an equal footing with other broadcasters.

"I don't feel that non-profit entities should use any special advantage which might accrue to them in competing against taxpaying businesses," he said.

"It has been obvious for a year now that the fourth network would of necessity have to be placed in a commercial vehicle," he said. "The recent events have merely accelerated our decision to establish this new corporation."

The network will have to get Federal Communications Commission approval.

The Continental Broadcasting Network will provide wholesome family programming, news and sports, he said.

A soap opera, several situation comedies being planned by a former head scriptwriter for ABC's "Happy Days," children's shows and family movies are in the works, Robertson said.

"The establishment of Continental Broadcasting Network will in no way change the high moral and religious standards of both programs and advertising which have characterized CBN's stations in the past," Robertson said.

Included in the new network are television stations WYAH of Norfolk -Portsmouth, WXNE of Boston, KXTX of Dallas and WANX of Atlanta, and radio stations WXRI of Norfolk, and a five-station FM network in Upstate New York, including WEIV, WOIV, WJIV, WMIV and WBIB serving Albany, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse and Ithaca.

The stations, with an appraised value of $35 million to $40 million, will serve as the nucleus for the fourth commercial TV network, which Robertson hopes will be expanded to all states.

"The aims and goals of Continental Broadcasting Network will be identical to those held by the Christian Broadcasting Network," Robertson said. "The only change is the corporate vehicle to be employed."

The new network plans to begin a nightly update news broadcast which it plans to expand into a full nightly newscast by the fall of 1979.

The network plans to have 17 hours of prime time programming each week within three years at an annual expense of $65 million.

At present, Christian Broadcasting Network is distributing its religious programs via satellite to more than 500 cable systems with 4.5 million subscribers.

Christian Broadcasting will still emphasize expansion of its role in televised Christian ministry through the "700 Club" program, counseling centers, religious music and religious programs, Robertson said.

FCC Tentatively Approves Licenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine commercial television stations in New York and Philadelphia have been told their licenses may be renewed if they set up offices and studios in New Jersey.

The Federal Communications Commission voted tentatively recently to renew the licenses. The commission told its staff to write letters asking the stations how they intend to carry out plans to establish a physical presence in New Jersey which, besides Delaware, is the only state without a commercial VHF television station.

New Jersey's governor, Legislature and the New Jersey Coalition for Fair Broadcasting had asked for denial of license renewals to six stations in New York City and three in Philadelphia.

The stations are WABC, WCBS, WNBC, WNEW, WOR and WPIX in New York, and WCAU, WPVI and KYW in Philadelphia.

The New Jersey issue has been before the commission formally four times since 1961. In 1976, the commission told the stations to provide significant programming to New Jersey concerns, and recommended that they establish a physical presence there.

The recent action goes a step further in requiring the stations to maintain offices and studios. Left open was whether sharing facilities is allowed under antitrust laws.

The commission voted 4-2 to approve the recommendation of its broadcast bureau that it deny the petitions opposing renewal. Chairman Charles D. Ferris and Commissioner Tyrone Brown dissented on the ground that the action did not face the major issue: whether New Jersey should have a commercial VHF station. Commissioner Robert E. Lee was absent.

Ford Motor Co. was incorporated and sold its first car in 1903.

FDA Wants New Label For Ipecac

WASHINGTON (AP) — That old medicine chest staple, ipecac syrup, which induces vomiting may get new labeling requirements from the Food and Drug Administration.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy says the labeling should urge users to call a doctor, poison control center or emergency room for advice before using ipecac. The labeling would warn the ipecac should not be used if styrene, corrosives such as lye and strong acids or petroleum distillates such as kerosene, gasoline, paint thinner or cleaning fluid have been ingested.

Kennedy said the FDA review of ipecac has found it to be safe and effective. "Ipecac syrup should be in every medicine chest, especially in homes with small children. In cases of accidental poisonings, ipecac syrup can be life-saving drug."

ABC's 'Pearl' Combines War With Soap Opera

By JOAN MANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI)—The miniseries "Pearl" lasts long enough for three old-time movies—and in fact there are three movies hidden within its six-hour framework.

The "Pearl" in the title isn't Bailey or Mesta. It's Pearl Harbor and a replay of the American entry into World War II, to be seen on ABC Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 8-10 p.m., Central time.

ABC, which as No. 1 in the ratings tends to avoid miniseries and sticks to its very successful regular programming, has come through with a three-parter that isn't art, that you may hate yourself for watching faithfully, but that is slick, thoroughly enjoyable television.

The three separate stories that make up "Pearl" include the soap opera about four couples who have romantic problems, the war that menaces with ominous music at the approach of the Japanese aircraft carriers and bursts into flame on the screen with the help of borrowed footage from the film "Tora! Tora! Tora!", and the morality play about good guys and bad commanding officers.

The show opens with Bing Crosby singing "Sweet Leilani" in the background as the audience sees stills of Honolulu and Oahu as they were in the last days of American innocence.

Then it's Dec. 4, 1941, and after a brief shot of a Japanese carrier the scene shifts to a group of officers' wives learning to hula, despite the disapproval of Angie Dickinson as a bitter colonel's wife.

The colonel is Dennis Weaver, a nasty man convinced of Caucasian superiority and Japanese-American subversion. Weaver takes his troubles out on his enlisted men, partly because he's afraid of a set-to with his executive officer, Robert Wagner, a southern aristocrat and true gentleman.

As a matter of fact, he's gentleman enough to spurn the advances of his colonel's wife. As Dickinson tells off a general's wife late in the series, "We all know you are a drunk and I sleep around."

Wagner's love troubles involve Lesley Ann Warren, an emotionally disturbed doctor who almost made it as the nearest suicide of the year (she had the utilities discontinued beforehand) who overdoes mourning the death of her husband.

Then there's the handsome blond Navy officer (Gregg Henry) from an old naval family who falls in love with a beautiful Japanese-American girl, played by Tiana Alexander. She happens to be the wife of Stirling Silliphant, who wrote "Pearl." Nepotism aside, she's good.

reilly, one of the first to identify his coming planes as Japanese is David E. Lott as a young sailor who previously couldn't tell a Mustang from a black truck.

It would be easier to feel sorry for these characters thrust into the chaos of war if they all hadn't been so busy in the wrong beds on the eve of battle.

The scenes of bombing, flames, oil burning on the water, ships turned into mud and planes exploding on the ground should delight the war movie fans. That's where the borrowed footage comes in, because television is a stingy medium and even on a lavish TV budget, those Japanese squadrons could never have gotten airborne.

With the effort to play down violence on television—admittedly difficult when your subject is war—there's little blood on the screen. It's almost as if the machines were attacking each other. It makes you wonder if these scenes, bloody and gory, aren't being in a way film to show the gruesomeness of the spectacle.

Instead violence is brought home most movingly when an airplane is shot down, after being lectured by a general and not unlike FBI agent about his pigments, kills his beloved bird with his own hands. The scene makes you cringe—and that's what war ought to do.

War movie fans will recognize topology Sgt. Walker (played by Max Gail, normally Wojo on "Barney Miller") as a near relation to Sgt. Warden in "From Here to Eternity." There's a bad guy sergeant, also, played with a humorless grin by Brian Dennehy.

The contrast between the morality of the two sergeants, however, is only a reflection of the larger morality play involving Weaver and Wagner, who will be fighting their own personal battle throughout the war.

War movie fans will recognize topology Sgt. Walker (played by Max Gail, normally Wojo on "Barney Miller") as a near relation to Sgt. Warden in "From Here to Eternity." There's a bad guy sergeant, also, played with a humorless grin by Brian Dennehy.

Texas Man Fashions Business Out Of Recycling Old Clothes

By KEN HERMAN
BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Remember that disheveled old shirt you felt so comfortable and secure in? Remember how your wife stole it from you and tossed it in the Goodwill box at the supermarket?

Ever wonder where that shirt went? Chances are it might have wound up here — among the 75 tons of used garments, antique clothing and just plain junk that Jim Johnson's employees sift, sort and sell each day.

"They used to call it rag grading," Johnson said. "Now it's sophisticated — recycling old clothing."

For Johnson, 50, it's been the fuel for a literal rags to riches story. Fourteen years ago, tired of selling tires, the East Texas native was steered into the used clothing business by a friend. He bought out a store here for $400 and paid $45 per month rent.

Now he owns 17 stores along the border and an immense warehouse here.

"Sales are about $6 million per year," he said with the slow drawl of one who grew up in the Lufkin "suburb" of Shawnee Prairie.

The business is simple. Johnson buys used garments from various charity groups around the nation. It's sorted here and sold overseas.

"Most of it costs us five cents per pound. We've got stuff that sells for 87 cents per pound," he said.

There's usable clothing. "Now who'd throw them out," Johnson asked, hoisting a pair of garish red-striped pants from a barrel. And there are rags. Twenty-five grades of rags.

The bottom of the line stuff is de-bottoned and de-zipped and made into rags. Johnson is a member of the prestigious-sounding International Association of Wiping Cloth Manufacturers.

Goods below the bottom of the line wind up on top — they are sold to roofing manufacturers who use it in shingles.

Nothing is thrown away. The warehouse is a mind-boggling maze of ceiling-high bundles of last year's clothing.

"The best clothes go to my Mexican customers," he said.

The other-than-best garments go to Bangladesh, Pakistan and impoverished African nations.

The goods bring varying prices. Boys shirts and bathing suits destined for Africa go for 50 cents per pound.

Then there's the puzzling situation concerning used military clothing. Army khakis go for 23 cents per pound. Navy blues bring 48 cents per pound.

Most of the wool garments go to Italy. Johnson said Italians reweave the wool into new material that is sold as new clothing in the United States. That process is illegal in this country, Johnson said.

The antique clothing king said the huge bundles he buys always have some surprises.

"You get a conglomerate mixture. It's kind of like buying a grab bag. Sometimes you find a fur coat or a Hollywood suit," he said.

Blue jeans are big sellers these days and Johnson said Dutch and Japanese buyers are always on the lookout for wearable denim.

Autumn is the busiest season for Johnson's 300 employees.

"The kids go back to school and all the old stuff is thrown out. The quality is better in the fall," said Johnson, unostentatiously clad in dotted shirt and checked pants.

Johnson said it's not easy to get started as a rag man. He said it's the kind of business that requires continuous investment — and he doesn't seem to mind.

"Just today I threw out a dozen old shirts without pockets or buttons," he said.

Eccentric Artist's Work Exhibited In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Louis Michel Eilshemius was an eccentric who slid into madness thinking the approximately 3,000 pictures he painted were not given due appreciation.

Eilshemius has been discovered several times. The most comprehensive exhibition of his work went on display over the weekend at the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden.

Joseph H. Hirshhorn, the museum donor, gave the nation 183 Eilshemius paintings, but he still retains a number in his home. Hirshhorn and Duncan Phillips, who established the Hirshhorn museum, were among Eilshemius' early admirers.

His last admirer was Marcel Duchamp, the dada artist, cult figure and something of an eccentric in his own right. Eilshemius, already 53, submitted several works to an unjuried exhibition of independent artists. Duchamp described one of them as one of only two significant entries.

He later arranged a one-man show in 1920 by the progressive Societe Anonyme. It was greeted by critical hostility, and Eilshemius hung up his brushes forever. But a second show in 1924, selected from the artist's less eccentric middle period, enlisted the support of several critics.

Now, 37 years after Eilshemius' death in loneliness and neglect, the Hirshhorn has mounted an exhibition of more than 80 paintings, many of them the haunting, ephemeral nudes for which he is best known.

After it closes here on Jan. 1, it will be circulated by the Smithsonian Traveling Exhibition Service to the Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art, Ithaca, N.Y., Feb. 3-March 18; Joslyn Art Museum, Omaha, June 23-Aug. 19; Springfield, Mass., Museum of Fine Arts, Sept. 29-Nov. 11.

Risk-Free Haven Fails To Exist In Investing

By JOHN CUNNIFF
NEW YORK (AP)—Where do you hide in a recession? In stocks or bonds or cash or gold? Money in the mattress? Or, indeed, is there any place at all to hide? Smart investors have been working out their own answer over the past few months because, as any one of them will tell you, good investors live in the future, insofar as they are able to do so. Some small investors, however, might be waiting for additional evidence, an understandable state of mind when you consider the hedging of professional advisers. No matter what notions are being peddled, there is one immutable rule of investing that applies both in times of boom and bust: there is no risk-free haven. Cash is said to be one. As economic activity declines, it is argued, prices deflate, and as prices deflate, the buying power of cash rises. In theory, and in past application, the concept holds some truth. But in very recent times it hasn't worked out; the possibility exists of both high inflation and deep recession. It could happen in 1979. Stocks? Maybe. But it will take guts. Nobody can say with certainty which way a volatile market is likely to go over the short term, which for practical purposes might be described as a year or less. Moreover, some dividends are likely to be cut as part of the retrenchment policy of corporations. General Motors has already done so. Over the longer term, into the mid-1980s, many analysts are much more bullish. A recession, they say, could be the cathartic that eliminates some of the distress of inflation and high borrowing costs. An observation: It is considerably more felicitous for analysts to talk of the rosy lieve that now is the time to begin buying long-term bonds of high quality. Rather than being mesmerized by those short-term rates, he suggests investors should commit themselves to relatively high long-term rates while they can, before all rates begin to fall. Banks too offer stability, although in order to get it you have to accept relatively lower rates. Passbook savings — 5 percent in commercial banks, 5.25 percent in savings institutions — can cost you. With inflation next year expected to exceed those rates, savers would be better advised to buy savings certificates, which commit the purchaser's money for three months to several years. However, if a recession occurs and interest rates peak and then fall, there will be less enthusiasm among banks and thrift institutions to offer such certificates. Some already are putting a lid on them.

Real estate offers opportunity, and risk too. Home ownership over the past decade has been a good investment as well as a place to live. Will it continue to be a good investment? Opinions are widely divergent. Real estate officials and mortgage lenders expect prices to continue rising. Tom Grant, head of the National Association of Realtors, expects at least a 10 percent price increase in existing homes in 1979. On the other side of the fence are those who feel real estate prices are close to peaking, and that price deflation could very well occur. In fact, prices for expensive homes already have fallen in some areas. Gold, diamonds, art, collectibles? Sellers emphasize security, and remind potential buyers that Europeans accustomed to volatile economic and political life have saved their fortunes through such means.

While this is so, some warnings flags are flying today. None of these pays its way; that is, there is no return other than possible appreciation. They are costly to buy and maintain, since commissions, storage fees or insurance premiums must be added. And they are not as easily marketed as securities. There are other factors as well to consider. Are such items at their price peaks? Are the diamonds, art and collectibles really of enduring value or are they merely promoted as being so? Maintaining one's assets, or even adding to them, isn't impossible in a recession. The situation isn't as bad as depicted by one observer, who said the only thing to invest in is cash and canned goods. But it does put a premium on intelligent choice in order to avert the obviously higher risks.

distant future than to comment on the hard realities of the next few months. It's a matter of being held accountable. Bonds have their supporters — and detractors. Say the advocates: Bonds should be purchased when interest rates are high, such as now, locking in high returns for long periods. Detractors: Who said they've peaked? Peter Goldsmith, Merrill Lynch analyst, concedes that short-term rates in general will go higher, but says "We be-

Brezhnev's Public Image Controlled

MOSCOW (UPI)—The public image of Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev is carefully controlled and carefully sanitized. A recent photograph in the Communist party newspaper Pravda showed Brezhnev seated at the usual long table holding an official meeting. But by evening, an almost identical photograph printed in the government newspaper Izvestia had undergone careful airbrushing that removed a healthy portion of Brezhnev's double chin. Western diplomats who monitor Brezhnev's speeches — which he often slurs badly — note that several times during a televised delivery Brezhnev's lip movements do not match the words being spoken, indicating that some of his more noticeable speaking errors have been edited out. Image building, of course, is nothing new on the top rungs of power. President Lyndon B. Johnson wrestled with teleprompters and specially built podiums to improve his televised appearance and never did get it right. For Brezhnev and other top Soviet leaders the carefully controlled public image is virtually the only glimpse the world has. Brezhnev requires no campaigning to remain in office, so he makes few western-style forays into the countryside. Those trips he does make end up as staged chats in factories or in the fields. But fragments of his private life do surface occasionally and rare photographs of the Soviet leader in an informal setting depict a man far removed from the somber, humorless image known by many in the West. Brezhnev is a backslapper and a storyteller. He tells jokes well and is a gallant handkisser around women. The gregarious Brezhnev once shocked Western reporters by strolling up to them during a meeting in Bonn, West Germany, to assure them jokingly he was drinking tomato juice and not vodka.

The 71-year-old beetle-browed Soviet leader has lived in the same spacious four or five room apartment for over 20 years. He makes his daily trek to the Kremlin around 8:45 a.m., preceded by police who clear the streets for his fast-moving motorcade. The Soviet press does not dwell on the private lives of Soviet leaders and there are few photographs of Brezhnev with his wife, Viktoria. One shows the couple sitting on a park bench looking after their grandchild in a baby carriage. Another shows Brezhnev in a wildly colorful sport shirt holding his granddaughter. The Brezhnevs have at least two children. Yuri Brezhnev is the deputy minister of foreign trade. Daughter Galina is in her mid-40s. The elder Brezhnevs took over rearing their grandchild apparently out of concern for Galina's unpredictable lifestyle in her youth. She first married a Moscow circus entertainer, then spent time with a Latvian dancer at the Bolshoi before settling down with an economist. Brezhnev's health has been a major topic for Kremlin watchers as he edges toward his 72nd birthday, Dec. 19. He has had at least two heart attacks since his 50th birthday. He gave up smoking on doctor's orders and many believe he wears a pacemaker. A hearing aide used on occasion is tucked out of sight behind his ear. Observers for years have noted his slurred speech, which some attribute to ill-fitting dental work and others to jaw surgery. His movements, as well as his speech, have also slowed. During the recent trip to Bonn, Brezhnev displayed little of the backslapping and conviviality noted in past trips, observers said. But Brezhnev has bounced back before, time after time, confounding even the most earnest observers who have tried to peer behind the public image to see the private Brezhnev.

FDA Approves New Drug For Blood Pressure

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new drug for the treatment of high blood pressure, the first of its kind released for medical use in a decade, has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration. The drug, called Lopressor and known generically as metoprolol tartrate, is marketed by Geigy Pharmaceuticals, which says it lowers blood pressure while producing fewer and milder side effects than others most of them temporary. "Depression and sedation sometimes experienced with traditional hypertensives were minimal with Lopressor, and no sexual dysfunction has been reported," says Dr. Roy Ellis of Geigy. "Lopressor usually does not cause dizziness or fainting when the patient stands." The drug is known as a beta-blocker, for its blocking action in reducing nerve impulses to the system, the beta-adrenergic system, that controls the body's cardiovascular and glandular responses to various stimuli.

Man Markets Sauce Originated By Father

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—The name on the jar is pure French, but the use for the tangy white sauce inside is pure American. "It's sort of like white ketchup," said Ed McCallum, a one-man food company who got his start with dad's recipe. "Chez Toi (that translates to 'your house') sauce is used on anything that you can think that most Americans would use ketchup on — meat, hamburgers, sandwiches, french fries, all types of fried seafood, baked seafood — just anything that you can relate the use of ketchup to you can use Chez Toi on." When McCallum isn't mixing lemon juice, mayonnaise, fresh green onions, parsley and other ingredients to make the tangy sauce, he is taking orders, drumming up sales and making deliveries in an old van that still bears the name of the former owner — a TV repairman. For the first two months of production McCallum mixed 16 gallons at a time, and handfilled every 8-ounce jar, about 240 a week. This week he developed his own gravity-feed device to handle that chore, and took delivery of a 150-gallon mixer to meet increasing demands.

McCallum, 29, said he has eaten the sauce created by his father ever since he can remember. He decided to try to market it after learning there was not too much demand for an anthropologist in Louisiana. "I have my degree in anthropology and a minor in French, and that's why I have to make sauce for a living," he said. The sauce was deliberately kept mild despite south Louisianians' love for hot, spicy foods because McCallum wanted everyone to try it. A zesty version may come later, he said. It also can be used as a dip for crackers or raw vegetables, but is not for cooking. "It is designed to be used after the food is prepared, and optimally very cold," McCallum said. Because of the fresh produce ingredients and total absence of preservatives it must always be refrigerated. McCallum said he is working with a Louisiana State University food scientist to develop a non-refrigerated product, and also is planning to come up with a new mustard.
