Kissinger Headlines Chamber Banquet

An audience of about 2,000 persons is expected to hear former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger speak tonight at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce Banquet in the Civic Center Exhibit Hall.

Chamber officials said they expected tickets for the 7 p.m. event to be sold out by early this afternoon.

Kissinger served as secretary of state from 1973 to 1977 under Presidents Nixon and Ford, and was an adviser to the president for national security from 1969 to 1975.

Playing a key role in negotiations ending American involvement in the Vietnam War and in reopening diplomatic relations with Red China, Kissinger won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1973 and the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1977.

The easing of relations with Red China and the subsequent birth of détente began under a cloak of great mystery, with Kissinger in July 1971, flying secretly to Red China to prepare for a visit by President Nixon.

Kissinger also became involved in the Middle East when he began his so-called "shuttle" trips to the area in November 1973. The trips exceeded a dozen and some lasted more than 30 days. This brand of individual diplomacy, which came to be associated with Kissinger, continued through the end of the summer in 1975, when Israel and Egypt signed a disengagement agreement on the Sinai.

Prior to his high-level service under the Republican administrations, Kissinger played intermittent roles in the John F. Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson administrations. The diplomat advised Kennedy about European problems, areas and under Johnson made his first visit to Vietnam in 1968.

Kissinger's path to the nation's capital began with his graduation from Harvard University in 1950. In the ensuing four years he earned his masters and doctorate degrees and had published his first book, "A World Restored," in which the scholar first offered his theory of international power and balance.

In 1955 Kissinger accepted the position of study director of the Council on Foreign Relations, a New York-based private organization, and in 1957 had published "Nuclear Weapons and Foreign Policy."

He was a Harvard University professor when appointed to the White House staff. Once there, he rapidly gained influence on foreign policy-making and became known as "the second most powerful man in the world" after arranging the historic Nixon trip to Communist China.

Kissinger was born in 1923 in Puch, Germany, the first son of middle-class Jewish parents. In the late 1930s the Kissinger family fled Germany to escape Nazi persecution and settled in New York.

The young Kissinger attended Manhattan's George Washington High School and was studying engineering when drafted into the U.S. Army at age 19. During the war, at the age of 21, he directed the occupation of the captured German city of Koenigsberg.

Upon returning home from the war, Kissinger entered Harvard on a scholarship.

Since President Carter took office in January 1977 and Cyrus Vance was appointed secretary of state, Kissinger has been writing his memoirs and making speaking engagements. He also served as an expert commentator on television news programs involving international affairs or U.S. foreign policy.

Retiring U.S. Rep. George H. Brown and Sen. Mike Mansfield will be among the guests at tonight's banquet. Music will be provided by the Young Yach University Jazz Ensemble II.

Big Snow Cripples Midwest

A-J News Services

Up to 9 inches of snow blanketed southeastern Minnesota overnight, forcing schools to close and snarling rush-hour traffic in the Minneapolis area.

In Michigan, up to 6 inches of snow fell in the Upper Peninsula, snarling traffic and complicating the search for a missing hunter.

Travelers advisories warning of freezing rain and snow were posted for northwestern Nebraska and southwestern Iowa, while northern Montana was alerted for a new assault by Arctic air tonight.

The weather was relatively mild in the Southwest, where the trailing skirts of a brisk cold front left Lubbock sheathed in frost this morning. Forecasters promised the region clear, pleasant weather for today and the weekend.

The overnight low temperature was only 32 degrees, and the Lubbock area is expected to warm into the low 60s today.

The warmer weather should be welcome over the area, especially in locations where the mercury sank into the low 20s early this morning.

It was 22 at Dimmitt for the lowest reading in the area, 26 at Hereford and 28 at Silverton, Friona and Lamesa.

All area stations reported readings of freezing or below except Big Spring, which recorded a low of 38.

The high here Thursday was 42. Forecasters predict a high Saturday in the mid-60s and a low tonight in the mid-30s.

The outlook for Saturday's Texas Tech-SMU football game here is a pleasant one — fair skies, temperatures in the mid-60s and light and southwesterly winds of 10 to 15 mph.

Leaving behind a variety of bad weather, the front moved well beyond the Gulf Coast during the night.

Freezing rain, snow and drizzle kept the Panhandle-South Plains miserable most of the week, and heavy rain fell across a wide section of north, northeast and Southeast Texas.

The warming trend today is expected to bring temperatures ranging from the 50s in Northwest Texas to the 70s in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

A week of misting rain brought Lubbock to 1.06 inches for November and 13.47 for the year. A total of 16.12 had been recorded at this point last year by the National Weather Service at Lubbock International Airport.

The Texas sky cleared during the night except in extreme East Texas and the Gulf Coast region, where showers fell overnight and clouds remained at dawn today.

Houston had .16 inch and Palacios .04.

County Vote Check Shows Few Errors

A-J News Services

A recount of Lubbock County votes in the elections for governor and U.S. senator was almost complete at noon today.

County Clerk Frank Guess said 39 of the 56 Lubbock County ballot boxes and about 31,000 of the total 35,000-plus votes had been counted.

The recount was expected to be finished by early this afternoon.

Guess said it had been conducted without major discrepancies in the totals and without major disagreements among representatives of the candidates involved.

John Hill and Bob Krueger, losing Democratic candidates for governor and U.S. senator, filed district court petitions Monday calling for the recount.

They were statutorily entitled to a recount because they both lost by less than five percentage points.

Losers to Republicans Bill Clements for governor and incumbent John Tower for senator, the Democrats filed for recounts in 40 Texas counties where punch card ballots and computer vote-counting were used.

Attorneys and other representatives of all four candidates met with Lubbock County Commissioners Thursday afternoon to make last-day preparations for the recount in the second-floor courthouse offices of the county clerk.

As in the Nov. 7 general election, county computer department director Bill McCullough was supervising the counting, with Guess and an expert from Computer Election Systems of Dallas, Larry Ensminger, also taking part.

Everything used in the elections — ballots, punch-card voting devices, ballot boxes and the computer program — was in the offices to be scrutinized and processed when the recount procedure began at 8 a.m. today.

Clements and Tower both carried Lubbock County by about 5,000 votes. At Houston, Attorney General John Hill said he will file suit against the Harris County Commissioners Court unless it reconsiders its refusal to authorize a recount of the county's general election vote in the governor's race.

In other areas, state election officials say the recount is showing little difference in the results that gave Republicans the two top offices.

Hill said Thursday the court's refusal to allow the recount was "totally outrageous."

Earlier Thursday, the court turned down a request by Hill's attorney, John Odum, that it void a canvass of the votes it held a week earlier.

Odum contended the canvass was invalid because the commissioners didn't give 72 hours notice of it as he said was required under the state's open meetings law.

According to unofficial statewide vote totals, Hill and Krueger narrowly lost races for governor and U.S. senator against Clements and Tower.

Both filed requests for recounts in Harris and 41 other counties Monday, six days after the election and four days after the canvass by the Commissioners Court.

In Austin, the secretary of state's office said the recount is going slowly and will not be completed this week.

Cuban MiGs Trigger New Controversy

By The Associated Press

A possible new confrontation between the United States and Russia shaped up today after Carter administration sources confirmed that the president has ordered high-speed SR-71 "Blackbird" spy planes to fly reconnaissance missions over Cuba to see if recently-delivered Soviet MiG-23 fighters are capable of carrying nuclear weapons that could be used against targets in the Gulf Coast region.

In Moscow, a delegation of U.S. senators met with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev tonight after a stormy session with Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, who angrily told them, say Soviet MiGs sold to Cuba are purely for defense purposes.

Brezhnev told the U.S. senators that the Soviet Union has tested a neutron weapon, but decided against putting into production.

The Carter administration sources said that U.S. intelligence analysts have not yet determined whether the MiG-23 jets, which were delivered by ships from the Soviet Union, are ground-attack weapons that can carry tactical nuclear weapons.

In contrast with the U.S. lawmakers' stormy session with Kosygin, the meeting with Brezhnev began on a friendly note. Making small talk with the delegation, led by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., the Soviet president said he did "anything destructive" in the Kremlin room in which they met, "only constructive and peaceful endeavors."

Ribicoff quickly replied, "We're all in favor of that."

U.S. sources who attended the session with Kosygin Thursday night said Ribicoff led it off by detailing "issues of concern" that may cause trouble when it comes time to vote on a new strategic arms limitation pact.

Mentioning Soviet policies toward Africa, the Middle East and human rights, the Connecticut Democrat then told Kosygin that senators also were upset over U.S. reports that the Soviet Union had agreed to sell MiG-23 jets to Cuba.

After the speech was translated, the sources said, Kosygin angrily told the delegation that he "didn't need a lecture" on the U.S. political system, and used "sharp language" to describe his anger that those other issues were being linked to SALT.

The sources said Kosygin specifically singled out the jet sales issue and told Ribicoff and the other senators that any MiGs sold to Cuba were purely for defense purposes.

"At this point the atmosphere at the meeting 'deteriorated,' the sources said.

The issue of MiG sales to Cuba is a major concern to Washington officials because the high performance aircraft can carry nuclear weapons and would be located within striking distance of U.S. shores.

The session with Brezhnev originally was scheduled for this morning but was canceled. Then it was rescheduled for this evening without official explanation.

But sources in the Senate delegation said they understood this was because of concern that the 71-year-old Brezhnev, reported in shaky health, might not be able to physically handle the meeting after a session in the morning with Egyptian leader Menchou El-Sisi.

Earlier today, Ribicoff and seven of his Senate colleagues met leaders of Russia's Jewish dissident underground, including 15 persons who have been refused permission to leave the Soviet Union.

Bank Opens Doors Here

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies for Lubbock's newest banking facility, Southwest Lubbock National Bank, were held this morning at the bank's location at 50th Street and Utica Avenue.

Mayor Pro Tem Alan Henry made the official welcome and Bill Horton, bank president and chief executive officer and Wayne Finnell, chairman of the board of directors, made opening remarks at the 10:30 a.m. ceremonies.

"Our objective at Southwest Lubbock National Bank is to offer the people of Lubbock a viable alternative for professional and personal banking services in Southwest Lubbock," Horton said prior to the ribbon cutting.

Lobby hours for the bank will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday. Drive-through hours will be from 7:30 a.m. to 6

Professor Warns Of Global Flood Threat

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (UPI) — If the world keeps burning more oil, natural gas and coal, it could melt the West Antarctic ice sheet. The resulting 10-foot or 15-foot rise in sea level could partially submerge California, Florida, South Carolina and The Netherlands, and create havoc in coastal cities.

The warning of that possibility and its "disastrous consequences" came Thursday from an Ohio State University professor in a report to the 16th annual Council for Advancement of Science Writing.

Dr. John H. Mercer said combustion of fossil fuels — if allowed to continue increasing at the present rate — could double the amount of carbon dioxide in the earth's lower atmosphere in about 50 years, which would cause "the great ice melt."

Mercer used the forum to argue for a conversion from fossil fuels to alternate sources of energy that do not carry the same pollution problems.

Mercer is a research associate at OSU's Institute of Polar Studies.

"A lot of people think we can pass a clean air act or just shut down the furnaces and it'll be gone in two or three weeks," Mercer said. "But once carbon dioxide is in the atmosphere for all intents and purposes, on a human scale, it's there forever."

However, Mercer said his prediction could be delayed for as long as 200 years if fossil fuel combustion remains at today's level without increasing. He stressed that the situation needs more study before a firm timetable can be formulated.

Mercer said the problem with carbon dioxide emissions is that they trap some of the longwave radiation emitted by earth, warm the troposphere and cause what scientists call the "greenhouse effect" — warming the lower atmosphere.

The effect will be a gradual rise in temperatures over the next few decades, Mercer predicted. One of the dangers will be apparent when ice shelves on both coasts of the Antarctic peninsula begin breaking up.

He called for regular monitoring of the ice mass.

Recent atmospheric measurements in Hawaii and at the South Pole show a trend of increased carbon dioxide content, Mercer said. Twenty years ago, tests in the two areas revealed 314 parts per million in the air, but he said the latest data indicates 328 parts per million.

Dr. Jack Fishman of Colorado State University, in a seminar preceding Mercer's, warned that man's industrial activities have also caused increased ozone levels in the lower atmosphere.

Fishman, a research associate in CSU's department of atmospheric science, said the ozone problem could have an effect jurors have often worn yellow headphones to eavesdrop on secretly made tape recordings compiled with the help of FBI informant David McCrory. And Thursday they watched closed circuit telecasts of McCrory and Davis as they allegedly completed a murder payoff that prosecutors say was transacted on a restaurant parking lot Aug. 20.

Although both dodged and imaginative in his effort, Haynes failed in every objection to prevent the screening of the videotape with its accompanying soundtrack in which Davis replies "good" to the information his divorce judge has been killed.

Having completed his narration of the events of Aug. 17-20 that culminated with the arrest of his wealthy, pool-shooting friend, recovery of $25,000 in hundred dollar bills and seizure of a silencer-equipped automatic pistol, McCrory was left on the witness chair to face Haynes eager cross-examination.

"Are you calling me a liar, Mr. Haynes?" McCrory responded quickly to a series of the attorney's inquiries about whether the federally protected witness ever paid for a nightclub he claimed he bought to enable him and Davis to shoot pool after hours.

"Now, let's just explore it like gentlemen," Moore said in soothing interruption.

Valuable Cache Of 1873 Coins Discovered In Cornerstone

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — In a solemn Masonic ceremony that duplicated century-old events, the 105-year-old cornerstone of the state Capitol was pried open. Inside was a valuable cache of 1873 gold coins.

The cornerstone in reality was broken last week and a glass-lined copper box containing circa-1873 artifacts was removed. However, this week marked the formal, public opening ceremony — and it provoked a stampede of spectators to catch a glimpse of the coins, forcing those in back to shout: "Down in front."

The coins will be displayed in the Capitol Rotunda until next October, when they will be returned to the cornerstone along with memorabilia from the 1970s.

The Capitol was dedicated Jan. 1, 1873. To the dismay of state historical officials and archeologists, moisture had seeped into the box, destroying most of its contents. Among the items that had disintegrated were the first penny postcard issued in the United States, a parchment copy of the Declaration of Independence, government documents and publications and copies of all daily newspapers published in Michigan on Sept. 27, 1873.

However, a complete series of 1873 U.S. gold coins survived. They are described as the only collection of its kind outside the Smithsonian Institute at the nation's capital.

Not all the talk was solemn at the ceremonial opening of the cornerstone. "I don't expect to be around 100 years from now when the cornerstone is opened again," House Speaker Bobby D. Crim told a throng of officials and spectators gathered to watch the ceremony. "However, it appears Bill Milliken will still be governor then."

Gov. William G. Milliken, who won a third full term in office last week, responded in kind when he took his turn at the microphone.

"Knowing the speaker's durability, he may be around 100 years from now," the governor said.

Doctors Want To Quiet Hopes About Technique

DALLAS (AP) — Scientists who pioneered an experimental alternative to some open heart surgery say they're still optimistic but want desperately to quiet the premature excitement and quiet hopes their research has spawned.

The technique — in which a tiny balloon is inserted without surgery into an artery on the heart and inflated to clear obstructions — has exciting potential as an effective, low-cost treatment for some victims of heart disease, the international team of doctors said Tuesday.

But, they stressed at a news conference, the technique is in very early stages of development and would help less than 10 percent of patients who now face surgery to ease the danger of heart attack. It was first used on human patients only a year ago.

Hill Hospital in New York said later. "And we can say now that once we have established the reopening (of the artery), it can apparently stay open (for at least a year).

Firm Introduces Travel Concept

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — A new concept in local travel has been introduced by a company promoting a 19-day tour which includes 10 days in northern Australia and nine days in the new nation of Papua New Guinea.

Included in the tour are Queensland's rich north coast and tablelands, a cruise on the Whitsunday passage, overnighting on a great Barrier Reef island and tours through the reef to Cairns in North Queensland — one and a half hours flying time to Port Moresby in Papua New Guinea.

"But you have to realize that we are still at the very beginning."

The procedure, called coronary percutaneous transluminal angioplasty, is designed to clear obstructions inside the wall of the coronary arteries. The obstructions — formed of cholesterol, fat or debris from dead cells — limit blood flow into the muscles which operate the heart. If the artery becomes completely blocked, the result is a heart attack.

The problem is currently corrected through coronary bypass surgery, in which a section of vein is taken from elsewhere in the body and sewn like a bridge around the obstruction.

Gruntzig said his procedure involves a sausage-shaped balloon thinner than a kitchen match. The balloon is attached to a plastic wire and inserted into an artery on the leg or arm. It's then threaded up the vein to the damaged coronary artery.

When x-rays show it's positioned inside the blockage, the balloon is expanded to compress the obstruction out of the way. With carefully selected patients, he said, it proves effective about 60 percent of the time. None of the unsuccessful attempts caused severe complications.

Suzanne Pleshette To Star In Movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Suzanne Pleshette and John Cassavetes will co-star in the CBS miniseries "Flesh and Blood" with Tom Berenger.

Filming of the boxing story, based on the novel by Pete Hamill, will begin in Chicago, with other locations in Las Vegas and Malibu.

Ad Agencies Get Help From Bettman Archives

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

Dr. Otto L. Bettman likes to describe himself as an Old World librarian who became imbued with the American free-enterprise system after the Nazis forced him to flee his native Germany. In the process, he built his Bettman Archive into a flourishing small business with profit margins any Harvard B-School graduate would envy. And along the way, he has helped corporate America recall and romanticize its past.

Despite its institutional-sounding name, the Bettman Archive is no musty depository frequented by scholars and students. Rather, it is one of the world's great private collections of photographs, engravings and lithographs, all of which are available — for a fee — to illustrate books, magazines, advertising layouts, annual reports, sales brochures and just about anything else that requires a picture from the past.

Although his business is based upon people, events, scenes and things of bygone days, Bettman, still active and impish-eyed at 75, is very much a creature of the present. He won't talk in dollar terms about the archive, but he will suggest that its profit margins run close to 30 percent. (From other sources, we learned that it does between $1 million and $2 million in sales.)

Unlike other businesses, he notes, the archive does not reduce its inventory when it makes a sale. It merely sends a copy of one of the pictures in its million-plus collection to a customer for one-time use at prices ranging from $35 to as much as $1,000 (depending on the use of the picture and the type of organization buying it).

When a hot news event occurs — the recent birth of the first test-tube baby, for example — the archive can sell the same picture (in this case, a copy of an 1832 woodcut drawing for Goethe's "Faust," showing a medieval alchemist working with a chemical retort in which a child is developing) to dozens of publications around the world.

But his biggest source of sales today is from ad agencies and other business organizations. Pictures from the past are in demand by business, Bettman told us, "because they add a certain third dimension — a warmth and historical perspective — to modern products and processes, which are technologically brilliant but often have a visual sameness about them."

Bettman was born in the German publishing center of Leipzig, the son of a prominent bone surgeon. As a boy, he began culling medical and anatomical pictures from his father's wastebasket and keeping them in scrapbooks — which he calls the "seminal kernels" from which the archive eventually was to grow.

An art and social history major at the University of Leipzig, he earned his doctorate with a dissertation on "The Rise of Professionalism in the Book Trade of 18th Century Germany," and he still refers to himself as "a bookman at heart." He joined a Berlin publishing house and then became curator of rare books at the Prussian State Art Library.

Fired from that post as Hitler rose to power, he began assembling a picture archive of Western civilization. When the Nazis forced him to flee to New York, his sole possessions were two steamer trunks filled with thousands of old prints and negatives. With a loan from a relative, he set up business in midtown Manhattan at a time when Life and Look were starting up as picture magazines. "Everybody wanted pictures," Bettman recalls, "and I had them by the trunk full."

Magazine editors and book publishers were his first customers. But then, in 1938, CBS bought a picture of a medieval castle featuring what looked like sound amplifiers and used it in a prize-winning double-page ad in Fortune magazine. Madison Avenue began beating a path to his door.

Coincidentally, we talked to Bettman last week on the very day 43 years ago that he arrived in the U.S. "I came to this country with a disdain for money, but I was benevolently bitten by the bug of free enterprise," he recalls. "When I came to America and breathed the air of free enterprise, I decided I wanted to build up a small business."

Bettman now splits his time between the Archive, which is run in his absence by his stepson, Mel Gray, who is president, and a home in Boca Raton, Fla., where he serves as an adjunct professor of history at Florida State University. He shows no signs of slowing up, however, having just published earlier this month his ninth book, "The Bettman Archive Picture History of the World" (Random House, $19.95). The volume's 4,000 illustrations lend off with a Dove engraving of the creation of light and end with a photo of the first man on the moon.

In this age of images, he says, "the view of the world often comes a part of visual collage." The past, Bettman contends, can also be presented in a visual collage. All the collections and illustrations of "visual documents" are available the work of a new breed of graphic designers. In this instance, Bettman says he chooses classic engravings.

Writers Hold Wake For Magazine

NEW YORK (UPI) — New Times magazine, which for five years highlighted news and features with an investigative bent, has published its last issue.

The biweekly publication, which celebrated its fifth anniversary last month, announced this week that flagging circulation and low advertising revenues have forced it to go out of business.

"That's all she wrote," Senior Writer Robert Sam Anson said in the Manhattan offices of the glossy 350,000-circulation magazine, where he and co-workers were holding an "Irish wake" to mourn the magazine's demise.

"People are sort of red-eyed and a lot of liquor is being consumed," Anson said. The former Time magazine correspondent was luckier than most of his co-workers, having signed a contract to write a novel. The fate of his fellow employees — totaling about 30 — was less certain.

The magazine was owned by New Times Communications Corp., a subsidiary of MCA, Inc., that also publishes a magazine for joggers. It was believed that some New Times employees might be absorbed in the other publication.

It was also not immediately clear if subscribers would receive refunds or would obtain an offer to subscribe to another publication. "We just haven't negotiated that yet," said Editor Jon Larsen, also a Time alumnus.

The main problem New Times faced was that "you can't force people to read certain kinds of stories," Larsen said.

FIREFIGHTER DEATHS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Association of Fire Fighters says professional firefighters have the highest rate of on-the-job deaths in the nation. The association said figures provided by governmental units employing professional firefighters showed an on-the-job death rate of 79 firefighters per 100,000, an increase of 11 percent over the 1976 figures. It said this compares with a rate of 63 per 100,000 for mining and quarrying, the second-highest rate, and 36 per 100,000 for police, the next highest.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

On A Smoggy Day In LA

LOS ANGELES has a reputation for a lot of things, not of the least of which is its "smog."
BUT, LOS ANGELES also is renowned for its smog abatement programs, which since 1955 have been among the nation's toughest.
More recently, cities all across the country have been ordered by the EPA to design emergency plans for pollution curtailment. Many kept an eye on LA, which produced what appeared to be an effective plan a year ago.

'Hi, I Just Blew In'

James J. Kilpatrick:

Labels Lose Their Sock Appeal

DETROIT—All night long the television screen kept giving us the score, and the screen kept getting it wrong. A score that is kept simply in terms of Democrats and Republicans is grossly misleading.
The Nov. 7 elections, on balance, added up to a narrow victory for political conservatism. Depending on your point of view, that's the best or the worst that can be said.
I happened to end the campaign trail in Detroit. Conflicting political winds were blowing everywhere.
Michigan voters went liberal.
They dumped Republican Sen. Robert Griffin; they approved collective bargaining for state police; they rejected drastic proposals for tax cuts and school vouchers; and here in Detroit they cheerfully voted bond issues for firehouses, urban renewal and improvements of the zoo.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kenneth May

City Pensions Sound

"SPEEDING in Lubbock is an absolute necessity," says Bob Nash, "if we're going to make two traffic lights in a row."
In Wisconsin, the son of a fire chief admitted setting two fires. Maybe he just wanted to make sure Old Dad wasn't in a dead end job.
The appointment of Judge Mary Lou Robinson of Amarillo to the federal bench, as recommended by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, would put Judge Carlton Dodson of Lubbock in good shape to succeed her as chief justice of the Texas 7th Court of Civil Appeals.
Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed Dodson to the Amarillo bench last year but chose at that time to promote Judge Robinson into the chief justice slot, succeeding Judge Jim Ellis of Lubbock.

chief pencil-pusher and adder-upper tells me.
Houston, Dallas and San Antonio, by contrast, have "large deficits" in their retirement plans, according to a report by the Special Committee on Public Pension Plans.
"Promises of generous retirement or pension benefits cannot possibly be met with the irresponsible and uncontrolled methods used by many local governmental subdivisions," the report concludes.
News stories out of Austin further quote the report: "In each case (in the three largest cities), benefit levels are too high in relation to the contribution rates."
CITY EMPLOYEES here are members of one of two better-funded retirement plans, Miller says. Most are covered by the Texas Municipal Retirement System. Firefighters are covered by the Firemen's Relief and Retirement Fund.
Lubbock's share of the TMRS unfunded liability as of last Dec. 31 was $5,120,168. Its share of the assets was $16,178,068 on that date.
The Firemen's plan had assets of about $6 million and unfunded liabilities of $2,918,900 last Dec. 31.
By contrast, San Antonio's plan for firemen and police has approximately $33 million in assets and $137 million in unfunded liability.
Dallas' firemen's and police pension system lists $66 million in assets and $275 million in unfunded liabilities. Houston's $131 million in assets and $275 million in unfunded liabilities.

They got that way, the special study showed, by raising benefits without taking care to raise contributions.
"NO CITY CAN take improved benefit options under the TMRS plan unless it provides additional funding," Miller says.
Actually computed, Lubbock's unfunded liability under the TMRS will be amortized and liquidated in 2000. The firemen's system will have its unfunded liabilities amortized over 20 years.
Firemen here can retire at age 50 after 20 years of service. Their plan calls for a pension of 49 percent of their final salary.
Under the TMRS plan, other City employees can retire at age 50 after 25 years of service, at 60 with 15 years of service or at any age with 28 years of service.
"Hardly anybody retires at a young age," Miller says, "because there's no automatic cost-of-living increase and, with inflation, they'd really be cramped in a few years."
Many would consider the retirement plans available to City of Lubbock employees to be especially generous—but, at least, the taxpayers don't face any nasty surprises down the road on the basis of current funding and liabilities.

CD Interest Rate Arousing

WASHINGTON—The pen of history was poised to write—and may still do so—a curious epitaph on the U.S.A., something like this:
"Despite the grand tradition of truths held self-evident in the Declaration of Independence and despite American leadership for peace and prosperity through noble experiments in the League of Nations and the United Nations, the several U.S. administrations from Truman through Ford, displayed a slovenly and callous disregard for the lives of people."
The pen of history might move on:
"Mutual destruction was based on the assumption that a superpowers exchange of nuclear barges would bring the world to an end.
This grossest of hyperboles, though scoffed at under oath by the H-bomb 'father' himself, Dr. Edward Teller, enabled pigmy, timid and perhaps traitorous mind, to spread the 'over-kill' heretodoxy.

percent of the country which preens itself on humane causes.
Maybe this will never be authentic world history, for President Carter awakened to realities in June, proposed a reorganization of measures to cope with man-made and natural disasters.
The alert Evans-Novak team wrote some columns, as I have done, on the subject, which may have awakened our pitiful, helpless, slumbering giant, but I dunno.

Everything depends on President Carter's appointment of civil defense director of the new cabinet-level post. The talk is that the President will tip his hand by naming either (a) a political hack (b) someone afraid of offending Russia, or (c) a fireball administrator.

the small society by Brickman

Sylvia Porter: Hucksters Cultivating Credit Union Harvest

THE FAST-TALKING, hard-sell promoters who usually concentrate on luring the gullible, greedy individual into losing his life's savings in a wild gamble, recently found new victims:
Federal credit unions.
During the past 18 months, about 100 federally insured credit unions have been snared into reckless speculation in securities. Some CUs even committed themselves to purchases in excess of their total assets!
One $7 million CU, for instance, agreed to buy $10 million in securities.
Another CU had $24 million in obligations fall due in one week.
In this case, the credit union manager involved thought he was renewing his original agreement when his broker sent him forms each month—but in fact, he was committing himself to buying additional securities every time he signed his name.
THE SPECULATIVE game which has so entangled the credit unions revolved around a type of government-backed security, known in the financial world as a "Ginnie Mae Modified Pass-Through."
Issued by the Government National Mortgage Assn., Ginnie Maes are pools of government-insured home mortgages.
When bought outright, they are solid, conservative investments. But investors also can speculate in Ginnie Maes by agreeing to buy (or sell) them at a future date, usually several months off.
Without putting down a cent, an investor can sign a contract to buy millions of dollars worth of the securities. The odds are he has no intention of actually taking possession of the Ginnie Maes.
What he is betting on is that they will increase in value, and he can sell his future delivery contract before it comes due.

So skillful are these salesmen that many earn as much as $40,000 a month in commissions. They frequently direct their pitches to officers of smaller institutions, who may be informed about their own areas but unaware of the risks in the national markets.
FEDERAL CREDIT UNIONS aren't alone in becoming entangled in speculative transactions.
Last year, at least two dozen commercial banks and savings and loan associations, mostly located in smaller cities and towns, became involved in trades involving millions of dollars in losses, lawsuits and eventual action by the SEC.
The "Winters Case," so named for the responsible firm's president, Kenneth B. Winters, is now a landmark.
"We thought credit unions had learned their lesson after the Winters Case," National Credit Union Administration chief, Larry Connell, told my Washington associate, Brooke Shearer, "but we presumed too much."
It will be that that the speculative spree in Ginnie Mae trading has peaked—but U.S. watchdogs fear that smaller banks and thrift institutions are shifting into other, more obscure government-insured securities to try to recover their losses (such as Small Business Administration loans, so-called Title II Merchant Marine bonds).
AND AS A measure of concern, U.S. government securities firms have just set up their own self-policing agency—through the Mortgage Backed Securities Dealers Assn. and the Public Securities Assn.
The organization is to be financed by dues of dealers and brokers who join, and is to establish industry standards of conduct. How its rules will be imposed on non-members, though, is unclear.

If politics were an orderly, rational profession, we would tidy up the confusion by removing the old labels and giving on some new ones. But nobody ever said that American politics makes sense, so we muddle along as best we can.
What counts is the prospect for substantive issues.
In this regard, it is only mildly interesting that Oklahoma has replaced a Republican senator with a Democratic senator, or that Mississippi, has done the reverse.
It is a fair assumption, looking at Mississippi, that Republican Thad Cochran will vote pretty much in the future as Democrat James Eastland has voted in the past.
Oklahoma's new senator, David Boren (D), is not far removed philosophically from Oklahoma's outgoing senator, Dewey Bartlett (R).
CONSERVATIVES CAN take heart from results in half a dozen Senate contests in which the victors, regardless of label, are putatively more conservative than their predecessors: New Jersey, New Hampshire, Iowa, Minnesota, Colorado and South Dakota.
In a few other states, such as Maine, Massachusetts and Nebraska, little change can be anticipated.
On balance, as I see it, conservative candidates and causes narrowly prevailed. We aren't likely to get national health insurance, a consumer protection agency or a jupped "labor reform" act from the 96th Congress.
So the Democrats hold the House by roughly 275 to 167? So what?

Armstrong's Surgery Called Success

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Former astronaut Neil Armstrong will have to keep his wedding band off his ring finger, but his wife isn't likely to complain.

The first man to walk on the moon left the hospital Thursday with his left ring finger reimplanted after it was torn off in a freak accident last Friday.

His surgeon said microsurgery was an apparent success, but it could be eight months before it's known whether Armstrong will regain complete sensation in the finger.

Armstrong lost his finger when he jumped from a truck at his Cincinnati home and the wedding ring caught on a door. The ring stripped the skin from the base of the finger and rolled it toward the nail, then caught again, pulling off part of the finger.

At a news conference, Armstrong was asked whether he plans to wear his wedding ring again. "I don't think so," he said. "But I guess I'll have to get permission from my wife."

Diggs' Attorneys Offer Suggestion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys for U.S. Rep. Charles Diggs say their convicted client has suffered enough and shouldn't be sent to jail. Instead, they suggest he lecture high school students on the criminal justice system.

Government prosecutors, however, urged a stiff prison sentence for the Michigan congressman, convicted Oct. 7 on 29 counts of mail fraud and false statements. They contended lenient sentences for convicted public officials had brought the criminal justice system into disrepute.

Diggs, who won re-election overwhelmingly Nov. 7, is scheduled to be sentenced Monday by U.S. District Court Judge Oliver Gasch. The charges arose from a scheme in which Diggs artificially inflated the salaries of certain staff members then collected kickbacks for his own use.

President Praises Movie

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter went to the movies and promptly gave producers of "The Children of Sanchez" a juicy quote for future advertisements. "One of the best movies I've ever seen," the president exclaimed after attending the Washington premier Thursday.

day of the film featuring Anthony Quinn and Venezuelan star Lupita Ferrer.

The movie is based on a novel about a Mexican family and its struggle out of slum life.

The novel was written by anthropologist Oscar Lewis, based on his five-year study of the family. The book has been published in 72 languages.

The screening, also attended by first lady Rosalynn Carter, was a benefit for the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, which is celebrating its 10th anniversary.

Approximately 300 persons paid $20 each to attend.

Jogging Or Clogging

LOS ALTO HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Joggers are running town officials ragged.

Weekly "fun runs" involving hundreds of joggers are clogging the narrow streets of this San Francisco-area community, and the town council this week accused the runners of "flagrant misuse and abuse" of the thoroughfares.

The council will consider issuing future permits to them, but based on past performance, it's doubtful that they will get any more. Town Manager Bob Crowe said Thursday.

The council voted 5-0 to send a letter to Bob Anderson, publisher of "Runner's World," which sponsors the fun runs, to protest the undisciplined way the event is conducted.

Santa Clara County Deputy Sheriff L. Shadle said joggers at an Aug. 27 fun run forced traffic to the wrong side of the road, while run monitors drove at excessive speeds and one even drank beer while driving.

Interest In Buying Farmland Boosted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lower value of the dollar overseas has helped boost foreign interest in buying U.S. farmland, according to Agriculture Department analysts.

During the year that ended Sept. 1, the value of the dollar compared with currencies of six industrial nations depreciated in a range of 16.5 percent in Britain to 32.8 percent in Switzerland, one of the analysts said Wednesday. The report was made to the annual outlook conference at the department by Larry A. Walker of the Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service.

"For example," he said, "the Swiss, who with the same number of francs that would have allowed him to pay $1,000 per acre last year, could offer $1,488 per acre a year later."

President's Austerity Program To Hurt Broops

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — It looks as though 1979 will be a big year for vetoes, and a bad one for leftover presidential campaign promises. President Carter's austerity program is going to override some of candidate Carter's more ambitious proposals.

Carter has said repeatedly that he will use the veto as he deems necessary to enforce federal spending restraints and hold the deficit next year to no more than $30 billion.

He warmed up with 20 vetoes during his first Congress, 14 of them exercised to kill legislation that reached his desk after adjournment. Carter called them "a clear indication that the federal government is prepared to do its part to reduce inflation."

But Carter won't make his budget goals by rejecting only measures that Congress wants and he doesn't. He is going to have to drop or defer some programs he does want but can't afford.

That means a welfare reform plan far less costly than the total overhaul he promised during the campaign, or even the scaled down version that failed to win congressional approval this year.

It could mean the further scaling down of his plans for national health insurance, which Carter had said should be universal and mandatory.

Federal public works and public service jobs programs for the unemployed may have to be trimmed.

Presidential aide Hamilton Jordan acknowledged that some of the steps Carter will take to rein in spending probably are at variance with what he said during the 1976 campaign. Jordan said that is because of changed economic circumstances.

That explanation does not quite cover another evident change, on defense

During the campaign, he had said he could do it for less money. "Without endangering the defense of our nation or our commitments to our allies, we can reduce present defense expenditures by about $6 to $7 billion annually," Carter told the Democratic platform committee in 1976.

Later on, Carter and his aides said what they meant was that tighter management would enable them to save that much money from projected levels of defense spending, not necessarily to cut the outlays of the Republican past.

In any event, the current game plan on defense spending means an even tighter squeeze on domestic outlays to meet the Carter target.

"The president means business and is willing to run the political and other risks that are associated with the effort to fight inflation," said presidential adviser

Stuart Eizenstat. "Everybody's got to say 'no,' and the president is going to do it," Jordan said. "You can't have it both ways. You can't please all these people and still fight inflation."

The new Congress is busy with members who campaigned on promises of restraint in federal spending. Democrats spending. Carter had promised to cut it. He now plans annual increases of about 3 percent in real dollars, above the inflation rate. Thus, if inflation went up by 1 percent in a year, the defense budget would go up about 10 percent.

"There is no way I can cut down on the ability of our nation to defend itself," Carter said in explaining his defense budget plans.

Expert Says Africa Can Survive Ban

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — An expert on international sanctions says a trade embargo against South Africa would hurt Western economies and South African blacks the worst, but the country could survive for at least 10 years.

Prof. Arnt Spandau, an economist at Johannesburg's Witwatersrand University, said U.N. sanctions being considered against South Africa would put at least 250,000 West European workers out of jobs and send commodity prices sky-high.

"Moreover, in spite of South Africa's present commitments to international trade, the vulnerability to international boycotts is rather limited," Spandau said in a book to be published next month.

Spandau, who recently completed a study on the effect of trade and investment sanctions against the country, said South Africa was self-sufficient in food, has well-developed industry and an abundance of raw materials and large quantities of coal and iron ore.

He said South Africa's energy needs are 70 percent filled by coal and only 30 percent dependent on oil. South Africa has two oil refineries and about 319 million barrels of crude oil stockpiled in unused mineshafts and is better prepared to withstand an oil boycott than most other countries, he said.

He conceded a trade embargo would slow the country's growth rate and contribute to greater black unemployment.

"The rate of black advancement will decline and the chances are that the people who are to be assisted by a trade boycott, i.e. the blacks, are the ones who will suffer most," Spandau said. "At the same time the costs of such a boycott would also be higher for the countries imposing the boycott."

A 100 percent effective trade cutoff was unlikely because pressure to circumvent sanctions would increase as the scarcity of chrome, uranium and diamonds brought their prices up. South Africa is the major supplier of these and other commodities in the Western world.

He said about 80,000 West Germans, 70,000 British and 100,000 other workers in France, Italy, Holland and other European Economic Community nations would find themselves without work if trade with South Africa was prohibited.

The effect on unemployment in the United States in terms of a mandatory trade boycott against South Africa was not estimated in Spandau's book, but the U.S. is South Africa's single largest trading partner and last year more than $1 billion worth of goods and services were exported to South Africa.

The U.S. government estimates more than 70,000 black South Africans are employed by American companies in South Africa. Most of them would become unemployed if the companies stopped doing business in South Africa.

Japan Bombed South Dakota

MADISON, S.D. (AP) — If you remember when the Japanese bombed South Dakota in World War II, John Peterson wants to talk to you.

Peterson is a University of Minnesota student researching the bombings, which occurred in 1945.

The Japanese launched balloons with fire bombs attached, hoping air currents would bring them over U.S. airspace and they would explode in western forests. The plan was partially successful.

Only one of the bombs which floated into the country actually killed anyone. That was in Oregon where a bomb stuck in a tree. It exploded and killed six persons who were wondering what it was.

On May 26, 1945, one fire bomb exploded at Wolsey, S.D.

Others dropped down near Madison, Red Elm, Marcus, Ree Heights, Nowling, Kadoka and Buffalo. Almost 300 were found across the nation, according to Peterson's studies.

One bomb which fell at Madison was identified as a 5-KG candle-type incendiary bomb.

The information was kept quiet by defense officials at the time, and only in the last few years has the information been released. Robert Mickesh, an Air Force major, wrote an article for the Smithsonian Institute listing the locations of the fallen bombs.

"It was kept pretty hush-hush in 1945, because the armed forces didn't want to start a panic," Peterson explained.

Insurance Companies Lowering Premium Rates

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — Some prices are coming down. Major insurers have already lowered their rates on individual life policies, and more cuts are likely by the end of the year.

Officials say the decline in premium rates reflects at least three factors:

- The increased return on company investments, particularly the yield on fixed-income securities.
- Greater efficiencies, particularly through use of electronic computers.
- Lower than anticipated death rates that might be attributed to medical progress, better personal health habits, and safer driving.

An industry study of 90 companies shows the average price of policies already has dropped from $18.60 in 1975 to $15.10 in 1976 and $14.39 in 1977. A sharper decline may have occurred over the past year.

production of new actuarial tables, a task he said takes considerable time.

In the interim, he said, some companies have decided to go ahead with lower premium charges, or in some instances improved dividends, based on their own rather than general actuarial experiences.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Statistical Bulletin shows the average longevity of the residential population reached a record high of 73 years in 1977, with both sexes sharing in the improvement.

Citing the publication, Bussewitz said that in 1977 life expectancy at birth increased to 69.3 years for males and 76.9 years for females, both sharp increases.

Longevity for the entire residential population has increased two to three years since 1960-1971, and 13.8 years since the years 1929-1931, when the average was 59.3 years, he said.

A 1958 insurance commissioners' table illustrates how expectations of deaths exceeded the reality in the 30- to 60-year category. In 1975-1976, the Society of Actuaries found deaths at only 45 percent of 59 percent of the commissioners' expectations.

The investment return for insurers has also been better than expected, one of the rare positive consequences of inflated interest rates. While moderation is expected, levels could remain relatively high.

Richard Minck, executive vice president of the National Council of Life Insurance, says insurers now figure they can obtain an average well into the future of 4.5 percent to 6 percent on investments.

As a consequence, some insurers feel confident they can pay more of their operating costs out of investment return, an attitude that would tend to be reflected in lower premium costs to customers.

How far the three trends — internal efficiencies, better mortality experience and high interest — continue is not totally guesswork. The investment returns to companies, for example, can be almost guaranteed.

But, as a spokesman for John Hancock observes, you can't expect medical advances to prolong life indefinitely.

Which is to say, unfortunately, that improvement in the all important mortality table isn't guaranteed.

Among the largest insurers, New England Mutual and John Hancock already have cut premium rates, and New England Mutual plans another cut Jan. 1. Metropolitan is "seriously looking into" the possibility.

Prudential, the largest life insurer, said "At this time our data doesn't support a reduction based on life expectancy." But it plans lower rates after Jan. 1 for women, based on their greater longevity.

Even if their own underwriting experience fails to warrant reductions, other companies might for competitive reasons be forced into line with the lower rates, an industry source suggested.

A mutual company, for example, is compelled to reflect an improved underwriting experience in its rates, and thus could force stock companies to lower their rates also or risk losing business.

The better mortality rates — or less than anticipated death rates — are most pronounced in the 30-year to 60-year age bracket, said Walter Bussewitz of the National Council of Life Insurance, Washington, D.C.

He said the trend has been observed for 25 years or so, and that it has compelled the Society of Actuaries to embark on the Public Stations Criticized By Industry Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public radio and television have done a poor job in minority programming, partly because few minority members are in top positions at stations, a study funded by the Corporation of Public Broadcasting said Thursday.

The CPB itself failed to be responsive to the needs of minorities, the study said, noting that "many if not most of the substantive recommendations" of two earlier CPB-commissioned panels were ignored.

The 18-month study recommended that long-range congressional funding of public broadcasting be contingent upon "consistent demonstration of significant progress toward equitable minority hiring, placement and programming practice."

If a station fails to comply with equal opportunity policies, the study suggested, the FCC should take immediate action.

And it recommended that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare be given primary responsibility for civil rights enforcement and that the CPB should withhold federal funds of any kind "to any licensee that is not in compliance with HEW rules."

One of the 70 recommendations was that the three national public broadcasting organizations — CPB, Public Broadcasting System and National Public Radio — ensure that the percentage of nationally distributed minority programming at least equal that of minorities in the U.S. population.

New Boat Labeling Rules Contemplated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coast Guard is proposing to change its rules for labeling on boats less than 20 feet long.

Officials say many people fail to read or do not remember the number of people their boat may carry safely and improper loading is the most common problem in boating accidents.

So the Coast Guard is proposing that small boats be marked with the maximum capacity in the form: "xx persons or xx pounds."

The labels must be clearly visible to operators and passengers when getting the boat underway, officials said.

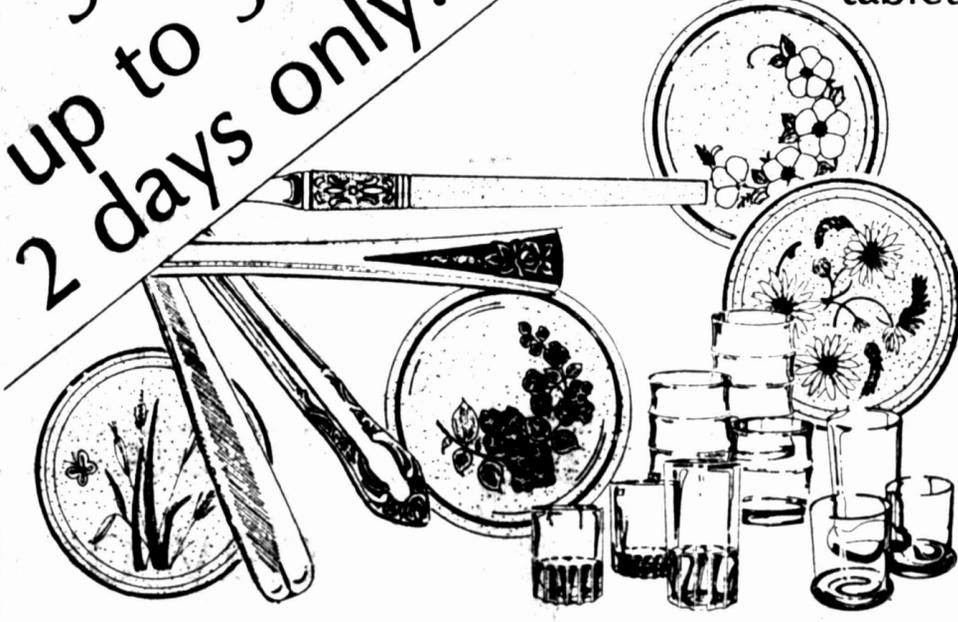

In determining the capacity the Coast Guard estimates the average person at 160 pounds and the average boating group at three to four persons. The rules would not cover sailboats, canoes, kayaks or inflatable boats.

The rules are expected to take effect next August but interested persons can send in comments and suggestions for changes until Nov. 20. Letters should be addressed to the Commandant (G-MC-81), (CGD 28-094), U.S. Coast Guard, Washington, D.C., 20399.

NEGLIGENCE SUIT FILED

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn, N.Y., couple has filed a lawsuit against Lutheran Medical Center, two nurses and a doctor, charging that negligence in a routine operation left their 6-year-old son paralyzed, mute and partially blind. Patrick O'Rourke entered the hospital Aug. 23 for a routine procedure the next morning to enlarge his urinary tract. Minutes into the procedure, Patrick stopped breathing, the suit says, alleging that his condition went unnoticed until his heart stopped beating. Elizabeth Matulis, lawyer for Edward and Dorothy O'Rourke, said the suit, filed Tuesday in state Supreme Court, would amount to millions of dollars.

Experts Say U.S. Police Need More Cooperation

NEW YORK (UPI) — There are proportionately 10 times the number of murders in the United States as there are in Japan, 13 times the number of rapes, 208 times the robberies. Why?

David H. Bayley, a University of Denver professor who is a staff consultant to the National Commission on the Prevention of Violence, was one of several experts who sought to answer the question at a recent meeting of Japanese and U.S. police officials here.

While Americans tend to get their backs up when confronted by authority, the Japanese are more likely, as the adage goes, to "bend like a willow." Or, as Bayley put it, "In Japan, the criminal justice system is efficient because the people obey and respect law and authority."

Bayley cited key statistics. Last year, the FBI reported the violent crime rate in the United States was 466.6 per 100,000 inhabitants, up from 180.9 in 1960. In Japan, it was 65.7, down from 188.8 in 1960, according to Japan's National Police Agency.

"The most remarkable aspect is the close relationship between the Japanese police and the general citizenry," said Patrick V. Murphy, president of the Police Foundation, a nonprofit body with headquarters in Washington.

"The Japanese seem to respect the police, to call on them frequently for assistance, and to aid them in preventing crime and investigating the incidents which do occur."

By contrast, Americans are generally unwilling to cooperate with the police, Murphy said. He cited three studies which, he said, demonstrate there must be better police-citizen cooperation in the U.S. if the police are to accomplish their mission.

— A National Victimization Survey showed three out of four U.S. crimes are not even reported to the police.

— A response time study in Kansas City concluded that, no matter how fast police respond to a crime report, delays in calling them generally make immediate apprehension of a suspect impossible.

— A Rand Corp. study of the investigative process found that when cases are solved, it is most often because a citizen tells the police who did it.

Murphy had some ideas on how U.S. police might make use of Japanese police methods.

Japanese police, he said, are deployed to fixed, small geographic areas. They have a small "patch" to be responsible for and a specific group of people to serve.

"Though each American officer has ten times more area to cover than a Japanese counterpart," he said, "there is no reason why fixed posts, manned by officers on foot, cannot serve densely populated urban areas with high levels of crime."

Japanese police officers are required to survey their community periodically, contacting each home, noting who lives there, learning neighborhood problems, and giving advice on self-protection measures.

"An early (Police) Foundation experiment in San Diego," Murphy noted, "found that training patrol officers to prepare written reports describing their beats, the people who live there, the problems they face and the steps which they plan to take as police officers to address those problems, gave them a greater awareness of their beats and a greater appreciation of the importance of community interaction."

Japanese police use neighborhood groups and citizen organizations as major forces in crime prevention. Half a million homes in Tokyo serve as distribution centers for crime prevention literature.

"Though much attention is being given to citizen-based programs in the United States," Murphy said, "the police often look upon them with suspicion, fearing that they represent vigilanteism on the one hand or fleeting interest which will evaporate without accomplishing anything on the other."

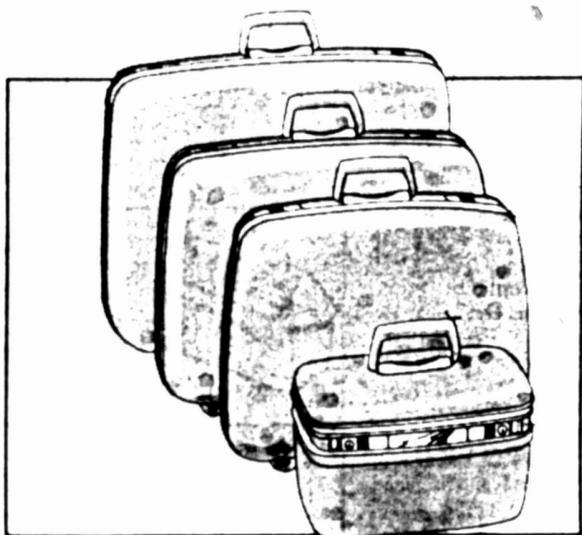

Murphy said he isn't sure whether U.S. police can be brought to foster such urban community efforts. But he suggested it would be worthwhile to find out.

Racism Strong In Johannesburg

By HELEN GIBSON
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Settling into South Africa after a four year journalistic assignment in Portugal comes as something of a cultural shock. Johannesburg's initial impact is of an all-America city complete with skyscrapers, hamburgers and newspapers crammed with discount advertisements and a downtown that dies fearfully at dusk.

Ancient, gentle Lisbon with its cobbled streets full of washing, canaries and sadly-blowing litter seems a century away. Johannesburg's first surprise is the lack of any visible police. From all reports, one expects a heavily armed riot cop on every corner. By the same token, the signs of apartheid hit the newcomer immediately and forcefully.

"Non-white" and "white" notices mark off the public toilets. Segregation hits housing areas, buses, liquor stores and butchers. After a first session at the movies, one suddenly realizes the audience has been all-white.

Downtown Johannesburg lives for its 8-to-5 officeworkers — the city wakes early with 7 a.m. commuter traffic jams. Most housewives rarely come into town; they are content with their glittering suburban shopping centers that cater to their every need from a hair-do to a grand piano. It's a development that pains city officials who have gone to great length — including the recent opening of a huge new downtown shopping precinct — to woo the housewives back again and revive the city's heart.

Their job is a tough one. Why should anyone want to leave Johannesburg's middle-class suburbs, surely some of the most glamorous in the world? The actual word suburb — for a European at any rate — takes on a whole new meaning. Instead of semi-detached and pocket-sized gardens, here it means acres of rolling lawns, swimming pools, separate servants' quarters and two-car garages within literally a 10-minute drive from downtown.

Indicative of the lifestyle is the oft-heard apology from house sellers to potential buyers: "I know there's no tennis court, but I assure you we have measured up, and you can easily fit one into the back lawn."

Servants are a part of life, though to a lesser extent than they used to be. Wages, although still very low, have risen considerably in recent times and a long-time family retainer may expect $115 a month aside from food (which includes the apparently mandatory half-pound of meat a day), lodging and often doctor's bills as well. It is a wage on a par with a Portuguese live-in maid's pay.

Despite the enviable ease of the life of whites in South Africa with this built-in domestic help, servants also bring their problems. A worried hostess told a guest the other day: "I'm afraid poor Wilson is on his once-a-month drunk. He keeps asking me to look into his ear to make sure the tokalosh isn't eating into his brain."

Tokaloshes are evil, leprechaun-type spirits much feared by the Africans who replace wooden bed legs with piles of bricks. Tokaloshes cannot cope with bricks and only move along certain horizontal levels.

As frequent newspaper stories underline, Johannesburg remains a rough place with plenty of violent crime among both whites and blacks. Something of a frontier atmosphere clings to this gold-mining city, enhanced by the sometimes almost exaggerated politeness shown to women. Men spend so long in allowing women to precede them into elevators that quite often the doors clang shut before anyone can step inside.

After Lisbon, where the big news is the arrival of some long-grained rice or foreign pickles in a supermarket, Johannesburg's mile-long food shelves produce almost a sense of indigestion. Here a huge selection of ready-cut frozen vegetables lie in heaps for the shopper to spoon out his choice. A treat after Portugal where frozen vegetables are a luxury. There one eats what is in season and in winter that means carrots, cabbage and the all-pervading greets, a type of kale that grows progressively more bitter as the months go by and makes spring seem long in coming.

For all the thrills of being once again in a wealthy consumer society, the thought of Lisbon's little hole-in-the-wall shops where everyone knows everyone else provokes a wave of nostalgia. And those gloomy, turn of the century shopping emporiums the Portuguese call department stores: where else can you ride vast gilded elevators sitting on plush velvet benches and see your purchases rung up on a monumental silver cash register of stunning ornamentation?

Stevens Returns For 'Rebels'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Andrew Stevens will return in his role as Philip Keel in "The Rebels," for Operation Primetime.
"The Rebels" is the sequel to OPT's "The Bastard," shown earlier this year. The miniseries will go into production in mid-December simultaneously with "The Seekers," the third book in the Bicentennial series by John Jakes.
Stevens is currently filming the TV movie "Woman at West Point."

Argentine Beauty Wins Miss World Pageant

LONDON (UPI) — A fearful 19-year-old Argentine beauty, who was only a runner-up in her own country, has been chosen Miss World 1978 in a contest full of old-time ballyhoo.

The winner, 5-foot-6 architectural student Silvana Suarez, who said her ambition was "to travel to become a complete person," beat the odds Thursday night at London's Royal Albert Hall in winning out over 67 other contestants in the 27th annual contest.

Watching on the television around the world were an estimated 300 million people.

London bookmakers had established Miss Australia, 23-year-old receptionist Denise Coward, and the sombrero-wearing Miss Mexico, 18-year-old student Martha Eugenia Ortiz Gomez, as the 7-1 favorites.

But the 10 judges, including Argentina's World Cup soccer star Ricardo Vilas, chose Miss Suarez, making what the master of ceremonies called "a momentous decision," amid countless drum rolls.

Miss Suarez, from the city of Cordoba, would not have been in the contest had it not been for a quirk in the rules.

She finished second to 16-year-old Margarita Susana Heindrycks in the Miss Argentina pageant but Miss World rules state that a contestant must be at least age 17 before the contest begins. As the runner-up, Miss Suarez replaced Miss Heindrycks for the London contest.

The new Miss World, whose hobbies are classical dancing and writing poetry, will pick up about $10,000 in cash and modeling contracts worth another $30,000, the contest organizers said.

The runner-up was Miss Sweden, 21-year-old Ossi Carlsson, a blond, blue-eyed model who is studying to be an artist.

Third prize went to Miss Australia, who said she had become a vegetarian "because I love animals too much."

Miss United States, 20-year-old makeup artist Debra Jean Frenze of North Carolina, had been listed at 16-1 odds but failed to survive the contest to the final seven contestants.

Miss Suarez wept as a glowing star was placed on her head but managed a smile as she bowed to the audience.

Miss Suarez said later at a black tie hotel ball that winning the title was "too good to be true."

Judge Orders Halt To Water Fluoridation

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A judge has ordered a halt to adding fluorine to the water supply of nearly 30 suburbs because he says a new study shows fluoridation might cause cancer.

In a decision he said would have international repercussions, Judge John Flaherty Thursday ordered the West View Water Authority to stop adding fluoride to its water.

The decision, which affects 27 Pittsburgh area communities, was handed down on a suit filed in Allegheny County Common Pleas Court last March 1 by the Citizens Committee Against Fluoridation for Western Pennsylvania, and others.

The suit charged that adding fluoride at a level of one part per million is a menace to public health because of the possible link between fluoride and cancer. The company's water naturally contains 0.34 parts of fluoride per million parts of water.

The suit cited "a new epidemiological study" by Drs. John Dean Burk and John Yiamouyiannis. Burk of Washington, was formerly with the National Cancer Institute, and Yiamouyiannis of Worthington, Ohio, works for the National Health Federation. Their study concluded there was a possible fluoride-cancer link after comparing the cancer mortality rate in 10 cities that did fluoridate their water with cities that did not during the 1950-1968 period.

In his ruling, Flaherty said there was "a significant increase in cancer mortality in the fluoridated cities."

Man Kills Self, Two Others

LONGVIEW (AP) — A man who apparently was upset over a broken love affair drew a pistol in a crowded bar and fired several times, killing his girlfriend and a bystander and wounding three others, police say.

He later shot and killed himself before police could arrest him.

Witnesses told police the gunman, identified only as Manuel Ramirez, first entered the bar late Wednesday night and spoke with Peggy Cunningham, his former girlfriend. They said Ramirez left, returned about midnight, and talked with Miss Cunningham again.

The second time, witnesses told police Thursday, Miss Cunningham told him to "get lost." Ramirez started toward the door, turned, drew a .38-caliber revolver, and opened fire on the crowd. Bullets struck five persons.

Miss Cunningham, 40, died at the scene. Thomas Pitcock, 34, the bar's manager, died later at a hospital.

Two women were hospitalized in fair condition with gunshot wounds, and the fifth victim, a man, was treated and released.

Police Chief Roy Stone said police cornered Shelton in a burned-out warehouse about five hours after the shootings. He said officers tossed tear gas canisters into the warehouse, heard a shot, then entered the building and found Ramirez' body.

Stacy Infant

Graveside services for Joseph Eugene Stacy, 3-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stacy at 2020 35th St., will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Burial will be under direction of Sanders Funeral Home.

The infant died at 2:56 p.m. Wednesday in Health Sciences Center Hospital. Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalock is withholding a ruling pending a coroner's report.

Survivors include his parents; and his grandparents, Madeline Paintoff of Houston; and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hamilton of Nampa, Idaho.

Kenneth Stephens

ANDREWS (Special) — Services for Kenneth Wayne Stephens, 38, will be at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Singleton Funeral Home Chapel of the Chimes with the Rev. Larry Britten of Fifth Street Baptist Church of Jal, N.M., officiating.

Burial will be in Andrews Cemetery under the direction of Singleton Funeral Home of Andrews.

Stephens died at 12:15 a.m. Thursday at a roping arena near Midland. Justice of the Peace Robert Pine ruled death of natural causes.

The Abernathy native lived in Kermit before moving to Andrews in 1974. He was a teacher at the Addison Ranch which is eight miles south of Andrews.

He was a member of the Southwest Texas Ropers Association in Fort Stockton.

Survivors include his wife, Karen; two sons, Joel Dee and Sidney John of Andrews; two daughters, Kathy Renee and Deana Kay of Andrews; his father, Garland of Chilloguin, Ore.; his mother, Mrs. Mary Murrell of Earth; two brothers, Donald Allen of Clovis, N.M. and Wallace Garland of Earth.

Leola Stevens

WINNSBORO (Special) — Services for Leola Stevens, 68, of Aiken have been set for 2 p.m. Saturday in McCrary-Edwards-Cain Funeral Chapel here.

Burial will follow in Hope Well Cemetery in Wood County under the direction of McCrary-Edwards-Cain Funeral Home.

Mrs. Stevens died at 10:45 a.m. Thursday in Central Plains Regional Hospital after a lengthy illness.

She moved to Plainview from Winsboro in 1977. She was affiliated with the restaurant, business in Winsboro for many years and was also a member of the Winsboro Baptist Church.

Survivors include her husband, Lawrence; three daughters, Lorraine Stanke of Akin, Betty Harrington of Oklahoma City, Okla. and Wanda Byerly of Redway, Calif.; two sons, Jack C. of Wasili, Alaska and Jerry W. of Longview; five Agie, Thurman and R.G. Daws, all of Winsboro, Earl of San Antonio and Travis of Burnett; one step brother, James Daws of Houston; three sisters, Eva Chilton and Vera Thomas, both of Winsboro and Clacy Presly of Beaumont; her stepmother, Clemantine Daws of Winsboro; and nine grandchildren.

Hilmon D. Surron

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Services for Hilmon Deane Surron, 66, of Plainview will be at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Trinity Methodist Church here with Tommy Ewing, pastor of the church, officiating.

Burial will be in the Groom Cemetery under the direction of Lemons Funeral Home.

He died at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Central Plains Regional Hospital after a lengthy illness.

He was a farmer and moved to Plainview from Groom in 1945. He married the former Clarence Corser on Feb. 12, 1941, in Ponca City, Okla. He was a member of the College Heights Baptist Church here.

Survivors include his wife, Clarence; one daughter, Nancy Cook of Houston; one son, Phillip of Plainview, and four grandchildren.

Carnival Show Developer Dies

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — Richard J. Coleman, who started with a broken-down merry-go-round in 1915 and developed a carnival show that entertained audiences for more than 60 years, is dead at 87.

Coleman was active in the Coleman Bros. Show until his death Thursday.

The Coleman show has been touring the Northeast for 63 years and grew to more than 45 rides and a crew of 250. The show's attractions usually were offered in trailer trucks instead of tents and were located at shopping center parking lots instead of fields.

Coleman, who lived in Middletown his entire life, routinely gave orphans and poor children free admission to his carnival.

Former state Motor Vehicles Commissioner John Tynan of Middletown said Coleman was "a great personality. Once you met him you wanted to meet him again."

UNLOADS BAGS OF PENNIES — An unidentified armored car guard unloads bags of pennies outside the downtown Phoenix federal building as Bing Davis of Phoenix waits. Davis owed the Internal Revenue Service $1,374.13, so he decided to pay the debt with pennies. He arrived Thursday with 140,000 pennies, then asked for change. (AP Laserphoto)

Study Suggests Monthly Reports For Welfare

WASHINGTON (AP) — Monthly reporting by welfare recipients and better targeting of work and training programs could lower the nation's nearly $40 billion annual relief bill, a Senate subcommittee was told today.

An experiment underway in Denver County, Colo., shows that requiring persons receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children to report on their economic status every month rather than the traditional quarterly or semiannual reports reduced welfare payments by 6 percent, said Robert G. Williams of Mathematica Policy Research Inc.

"These savings are almost entirely due to more prompt discontinuance of AFDC cases" when monthly reports show a person is no longer eligible, Williams said.

Bradley R. Schiller, a professor at American University in Washington, told the committee that the federal Work Incentive (WIN) program, in which all adult welfare recipients are required to participate, has produced "quite modest" results.

"The average net gain in annual earnings (after WIN participation) was on the order of $300 to $350 per year, much less than average program costs," Schiller said. He added, however, that "better design and targeting of program services... may actually lower welfare costs."

For example, he said, research data indicated that training programs were the most help to AFDC recipients who had not worked in the six months before going on relief than it did for those who had previous work experience.

Three days of hearings before the Senate Finance subcommittee on public assistance were to conclude today with testimony from officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The hearings were called by Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., a proponent of welfare reform.

In testimony Thursday, a Rand Corp. researcher said the desire for health care, not extra income, may be driving people to the welfare rolls.

David W. Lyon said research shows that "welfare may mask a large number of families more in need of health insurance than income maintenance."

"We found that short-term cases and cases that go on and off the rolls intermittently had much higher level of Medicaid-paid health care than cases on the rolls continuously for three or more years," Lyon said. "A good deal of the movement onto the rolls seems to be caused by demands for health care not covered by private insurance plans."

Another witness, Donna Shalala, an assistant secretary with the Department of Housing and Urban Development, said federal experiments in which poor families were given money for housing indicated that many didn't use it for that purpose unless there was careful monitoring.

She said only about one-third of the families who lived in substandard housing chose to use the money to improve their lot.

Many poor families who already lived in adequate housing tended to use their extra cash — about $80 per month, in most cases — for rent payments, thus freeing other money for non-housing uses, she said.

Another experimental government program, negative income tax, had been discussed at a hearing session Wednesday.

Results of the program, which guaranteed participating families in Seattle and Denver set incomes through cash grants or work or both, showed that it tended to discourage work, researchers said.

Guaranteeing a family's income also tended to contribute to the breakup of marriages, researchers said, because it gave both husbands and wives a greater feeling of financial independence.

Parker Opposes Explosives In Demolitions

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — If the Connor Hotel had been destined for the wrecking ball instead of dynamite, two workmen who died when it collapsed would be alive today, the project's field superintendent says.

"I plan to take every effort to stop the use of explosives in the United States," Henry Parker said Thursday.

Earlier Thursday, workers recovered the bodies of two men trapped when the nine-story hotel collapsed Saturday as it was being prepared for demolition with dynamite.

Officials identified the victims as Thomas Oakes, 45, Jenks, Okla., and Frederick C. Coe III, 29, Topeka, Kan.

Alfred "Butch" Summers, 30, of Joplin, survived 3½ days under the debris before he was rescued Tuesday. He was hospitalized with a broken pelvis and broken ribs.

In an interview, Parker, the 57-year-old field superintendent for Coy Blagg Wrecking Co. of Tulsa, Okla., said he has long opposed the use of explosives to demolish buildings. But he said he was obliged to follow the instructions of the subcontractor in using explosives to raze the 70-year-old Connor Hotel.

Coy Blagg, owner of the wrecking company that bears his name, acknowledged that it was his decision to use explosives.

"I told Mr. Parker I would shoot the building," he said. "This was a not-for-profit organization I was doing it for and I felt obligated to get it done the cheapest way. Using explosives was the cheapest way."

The Dyke Explosive Service Co. of Tulsa, headed by Jim Redyke, was hired to handle the demolition by Blagg.

Parker said the deaths would not have occurred had the hotel been razed by non-explosive methods.

"The only difference between using explosives and the machine-and-ball method, the conventional method, it (explosives) does it quicker, but it's a thousand-to-one more dangerous."

Air Crash Victim's Body Recovered

SABINE (UPI) — A second victim of a weekend helicopter crash in the waters of Sabine Pass was recovered near the west jetty today.

A pleasure boat discovered the body of Daniel Kirkpatrick, 33, of Lake Charles, La., in the rocks late Thursday, and the Coast Guard waited until daylight for its recovery operation.

Kirkpatrick was the pilot on a Houston Helicopter Inc. craft which crashed in foggy conditions Sunday morning near the mouth of the Sabine River. The body of the other person aboard, Gene Hemme, 34, was found three days ago.

The helicopter service continued a search for the craft.

Professor Says Air Pollution To Melt The Cap In similar to that of increased carbon dioxide levels because they both trap radiation.

However, Fishman said the implications of such atmospheric developments are still the subject of much debate, and added that scientists have yet to agree on possible solutions to the problem or its outcome.

A Coast Guard spokesman in New York said that if the tide were to rise by 15 feet in New York Harbor, "you'd have flooding all along the waterfront. There's no way to tell how bad, but at high tide the water in some places is only two or three feet below the edge of the pier."

"A lot of people would have to learn how to swim," said Coast Guard Search and Rescue Operations duty officer Bill Hodge at New Haven, Conn.

"It would be awfully hard to estimate the damage in our area, you have a lot of areas in Connecticut that are very susceptible to high water. There are mostly low-lying areas that don't have cliffs to protect them like on the north shore of Long Island. It would cause a lot of trouble and people would lose a lot of money."

The National Weather Service in San Francisco said if such a thing were to happen, many areas of California would be inundated. The San Francisco International Airport, for example, is only 10 feet above sea level. The city of Oakland is 6 feet above. Parts of the coastal highway running through California would be under water.

"We've heard these tales before," the spokesman said, "but if it actually happened, we'd be in real trouble. Because of the canal used by ships going into the Sacramento area, much of the central valley (San Joaquin and the Sacramento valleys in central California) would be inundated.

"Also in areas where you have dikes, for example, you'd raise the natural underground water table, resulting in what folks around the Mississippi River call water boils, when the river rises. But that would vary since the soil conditions would determine whether the water would seep through the ground and back up on the other side of the dike because of the greater pressure resulting from the water level rise."

"The average elevation of the coast is 15 feet above sea level, but the Florida Keys and such under waterings like in Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale, Fort Myers, Naples, Sarasota, Maitland and Miami Beach, are lower.

Forecasting Glen Taylor of the National Hurricane Center in Miami said, "no doubt, all these heavy type coastal phenomena would be in deep trouble." He noted that elevations around Miami vary from 15 feet to sea level and that most of the high buildings and the water would flood."

The Charleston, S.C., said that the water would be 15 feet above sea level. However, the area around Charleston is mostly water, so it would be difficult to say how much damage it would do. In a worst case scenario, the city would be inundated. The fact of water would go about 15 to 20 miles inland in the low-lying areas of Charleston and Beaufort.

Shah's Forces Flex Muscles In Parade

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi broke tradition and stayed inside his imperial palace today while the Iranian armed forces — the base of his government — marched in parades nationwide to mark their anniversary day.

Police, meanwhile, launched a nationwide dragnet for a group of billionaires wanted on corruption charges and racketeers who allegedly jailed people in lion cages to extort protection money. The shah's anti-corruption drive is aimed at blunting political turmoil that has claimed more than 1,100 lives in Iran since January.

It was not announced why the shah declined to take the traditional salute at the Tehran armed forces day parade, but it was believed security considerations may have been one reason. Anti-shah demonstrations have continued sporadically throughout Iran despite the appointment of a military-led government Nov. 6.

In the capital, helicopters and U.S.-made Phantom jet fighters criss-crossed overhead as a motorized parade of airmen rolled down a boulevard below. Proshah citizens tossed flowers and wreaths at the passing troops.

Among the 10 men sought in the new anti-corruption investigation are Sen. Ali Rezaei, billionaire owner of the Navard steel mill in Kuzestan, and his son, said Public Prosecutor Hussein Hashemi. Other Navard board members being sought are Mahmoud Afshar, Manuchehr Mobeidshahi and Mahmoud Torabi-Moghadam.

Hashemi said among the racketeers being hunted are Parviz Kashani, Fatullah Sabzei and Mahmoud Afshar, who he called collaborators of gang leader Rahim-Ali Khorram. He said they had been charged with embezzlement and other crimes.

Troops opened fire Thursday on anti-shah demonstrators in Behbahan, on the edge of the Kuzestan oilfields, wounding five, one critically.

Soldiers firing automatic weapons and hurling tear gas grenades also dispersed anti-government mobs in the holy city of Mashhad.

Mideast Peace Treaty Facing Final Obstacle

By United Press International
 Three words are holding up Israeli Cabinet approval of a treaty with Egypt, Israeli reports said today. But both Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said they were confident agreement on the historic pact soon would be reached.

Negotiations on the first ever pact between the Jewish state and an Arab nation have been stalemated for two weeks over language that would tie the Israeli-Egyptian treaty to an overall Middle East settlement, involving the West Bank and the Gaza strip.

A total of 700,000 Palestinians live in the occupied West bank of the Jordan and 400,000 in the Gaza strip which Egypt administered until 1967 when Israel took it along with Jordan's West Bank.

President Carter has fashioned two compromises and pleaded with Egypt and Israel to reach agreement. Sadat sent his vice president to Washington Thursday to try to break the logjam with a proposal that Gaza and the West Bank be treated separately.

The Egyptian compromise could delay Israel's first withdrawal from the Sinai to the holding of autonomy elections in Gaza — which Israel would like.

The Cabinet will meet Sunday to debate the Egyptian position and compromise U.S. proposals on the linkage issue.

Israeli reports said the Cabinet has objected to three words linking the treaty to the future of the occupied territories. They said the words were, "on the basis of."

Weizman told reporters at Ben-Gurion Airport on his arrival from Washington to brief the government that Egypt does not want to claim any territory in the Gaza Strip as part of an agreement.

"The problem is the Egyptians view of the relationship between our agreement with them and the close problem of the future of the autonomy in Judea, Samaria (the West Bank) and Gaza," Weizman said.

"But, at the same time ... I'm also convinced ... that there is willingness on the Egyptians part to continue discussions and to find a solution to the outstanding problems."

Egypt denied today it had toughened its position at the Washington peace talks with Israel to appease Arab radicals and said its demand for "linkage" was put on the negotiating table from the very beginning.

As the denial was issued by Defense Minister Lt. Gen. Kamal Hassan Ali, chief of the Egyptian negotiators, Sadat declared he was confident that a peace treaty would be reached between the two former Middle East antagonists.

"Undoubtedly, undoubtedly," he replied. "God willing, the agreement will come, sooner or later. There can be no retreat."

Carter Appears Frustrated About Peace Process

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — When it comes to the Middle East, President Carter has a lot of complaints about the peace process and the democratic process.

He is showing his frustrations and appears to be running out of patience which may or may not be a good leverage for pushing toward his goal.

Carter has dismissed the new stumbling blocks such as the future of the West Bank and the status of Jerusalem as "little tiny technicalities ... that have absolutely no historical significance."

From his point of view that may be so. But from the standpoint of the Israelis or the million or more Arabs in the occupied lands — the differences are deep and profound, centering on the basic question of sovereignty, independence, and rights.

Looking at those ancient lands, Carter contends that future generations and "our grandchildren" will view the disagreements as insignificant. That is an interesting perspective on a land that has been in such contention.

Carter talks of a comprehensive peace, but he is clearly willing to accept a separate peace between Israel and Egypt, as a starting point perhaps, papering over the divisions and the future of the other occupied territories in dispute.

He accomplished a broad framework at Camp David, but in the process of getting down to the specifics, he is finding the going tough. Hence, his frustration.

He thought he had both the Egyptians and the Israelis pretty well muzzled. They were indeed at the summit at the mountaintop retreat. But keeping both delegations in line in Washington is another story.

It is clear that Carter had hoped to have the agreement all wrapped up by now. There is little doubt in diplomatic circles that a peace accord will be signed before will continue to work in reaching an agreement, in understanding one another, in balance the consequences of failure against the benefits to be derived from the success, and be flexible on both sides.

Almost plaintively, Carter spoke of his plea to both sides not to freeze their positions and to be more amenable to compromise. But he chided both for being stubborn.

"One of the most serious problems," said Carter, was the failure to honor the agreement "that neither side would make a direct statement to the press." Since he embarked on his gigantic diplomatic mediation effort, Carter has become more and more desirous of secrecy and less and less dedicated to the open "public dialogue" he stressed so often at the beginning of his administration.

Furthermore, it is not just the leaks that are irritating him.

In his words: "Here we work with the negotiators and the negotiators keep their heads down back to the head of state or the cabinet. The cabinet reverses themselves, it varies the negotiators, as a leverage change or one word and in effect you get the most radical members of the government who have a major input into the negotiating process, rather than having the heads of state these 100 yards away or mid-December. Nevertheless, Carter's complaints show he is getting fed up. "... both sides have demanded from the other additional assurances far above and beyond what Camp David said specifically," he said in a Public Broadcasting System interview a few days ago.

"This is inherent in the process."
"Now, I don't know what is going to happen," he added. "We hope that they

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: I heard that Eartha Kitt, a big star for many years, still believes that being black has hindered her career. Why? — Mary L., Memphis.

A: "Because I think any black woman is hindered," growled Miss Kitt. "They take our glamorous roles and give them to the Elizabeth Taylors," she told Viva. "And we're left behind with the Harriet Tubmans and the Sojourner Truths." Her ambition? "I'd like to do Marie Laveau — the 19th century New Orleans priestess. It's been my ambition for years." It will have to wait, however, till she's finished with her current Broadway musical hit, "Timbuktu."

Q: What's this about Billy Graham having a death wish? — Frank Larkin, South Bend, Ind.

A: It's not a "death wish." But Rev. Graham does have a premonition that his time is coming. "Death to me offers no fear at all — only anticipation," he insists. "I'd be glad to get away from the pressure under which I live every day." He also said he's "looking forward" to going to heaven so he can meet Elvis Presley.

Q: How did Peter Sellers, disguised as Toulouse-Lautrec in "Revenge of the Pink Panther," manage to cut his height down? With braces the way Jose Ferrer did? — Rose L., San Clemente, Calif.

A: No, he did it the easy way — photographically. He wore the tattered trousers down above his ankles to create the illusion of his lack of height.

Q: What were the names of those monkeys who were fired into space and then brought back? — Chas. Allen, Houston.

A: They were Able and Baker, two female monkeys, shot into space in separate containers in the nose cone of a Jupiter rocket in 1959.

Q: Talk about timing — isn't America's Polish Prince Bobby Vinton, coming out with his autobiography? — Vladimir R., Hamburg, N.Y.

A: The "Polish is in" timing is a happy coincidence. Vinton's "The Polish Prince," which hit the bookshelves recently, tells some inside stories — like the time he found his first big hit in the reject pile. And asking a woman he met on the street to distribute roses to local disc jockeys to promote "Roses Are Red." And how he came to write "My Melody of Love," part of which he sang in Polish. How it was rejected by seven record companies before it paid off. The song paved the way for his comeback as a Polish-American hero of the 1970s.

Q: Which politician said, "I have nothing against millionaire presidents"? — James F., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A: Millionaire Sen. Barry Goldwater. Talking about Kennedy and Johnson, he cracked, "I have nothing against millionaire presidents. I'd just like to see the day return when people other than presidents can be millionaires too!" He also said at the time, "I understand the president and vice president are out raising money to pay off the campaign debt. They could each give up one week's allowance and take care of that!"

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," LOSSES HEIGHT — Peter Sellers shows how he lost height to care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 11748, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Japan's Trade Surplus Shows Sharp Decline

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's October current account surplus totaled $400 million, sharply down from a $1.872-billion surplus in September, and down from a $1.356-billion surplus in October 1977, the Finance Ministry announced Thursday in a preliminary report.

On a yen basis, the October current account surplus was 73.8 billion yen, down from 356.1 billion in September, and down from 346-billion yen in October 1977.

Overall payments in October were in deficit by $980 million, compared with a $446-million surplus in September, and a $324-million surplus in October last year. The yen-based overall deficit in the month was 180.9 billion yen, compared with a surplus of 84.8 billion yen in September and a surplus of 82.9 billion yen the year before.

The October trade balance showed a surplus of $1.070 billion, down from $2.617 billion in September, and down from $1.861 billion in October 1977.

The yen-based trade surplus was 197.5 billion yen in the month, down from 497.8 billion yen in September, and down from 476.1 billion yen the year before.

Exports in October rose 20 percent to $8.350 billion from $6.939 billion the year before, but were down from $8.709 billion in September. October exports measured in yen totaled 1.541 trillion yen, down 13 percent from the year before.

Imports totaled $7.280 billion, up 42 percent from October 1977, and up from $6.092 billion in September. Yen-based imports were 1.344 trillion yen, up 1 percent from the year before, and up slightly from 1.159 trillion yen in the previous month.

Finance Ministry officials attributed the sharp drop in the current account surplus to about $1.2 billion worth of emergency imports of enriched uranium and crude oil. However, they said the surplus would have declined even without those emergency imports because imports are rising.

Affirmative Action Programs Aid Business As Well As Minorities

By DALE SINGER
 EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (UPI)—Narmen O. Hunter wants to convince executives that affirmative action plans do more than just help minorities — they help business too.
 Miss Hunter is a Midwest regional representative of a Chicago-based program known as "Boomerang" which helps businesses work their way through the complicated federal requirements posed by the Equal Employment Opportunity law.
 Since the Supreme Court ruling in the Bakke case, some executives have shied away from affirmative action plans. They fear reverse-discrimination actions if they pass over equally qualified candidates to hire minorities.
 But Boomerang's message is that equal opportunity laws help businesses find talented employees who most likely would be overlooked if personnel offices were not forced to give minorities an equal chance at jobs.
 "Most people have to overcome their prejudices, or at least learn those prejudices are obstacles in letting them do the best job they can," Miss Hunter said in an interview.

 "In the past managers tended to make decisions on cronyism, on the color of a person's skin, on sex. We say that in doing so, they have passed over some very good people for key positions and left themselves open to rather costly lawsuits."
 So far, she said, Boomerang has worked nationwide with such business giants as Chase Manhattan Bank, U.S. Steel, Ralston-Purina and Coca-Cola as well as the Departments of Labor and Defense in the federal government to recruit qualified minority employees.
 The message to all the clients is the same, as spelled out in Boomerang's introductory brochure:
 "Everything your attorneys, executives and personnel people know about EEO isn't worth a hill of beans unless that knowledge is shared, understood and applied by every manager and supervisor — from first line on up."

 Boomerang uses brief films to get its point across. Each vignette depicts a problem that could mushroom into a discrimination suit or other problems within the company.
 A pregnant woman wonders about the real reason she is being fired. A black man demands to know why his police record was an issue in his job interview while it was not taken into account when a white man was hired. An attractive woman says complaints from the wives of male co-workers are holding her back out of her home. Miss Hunter, 34, uses her degrees in psychology and urban affairs, plus special training in EEOC policies, in seminars that train personnel managers and other key executives to seek the best solutions to their problems.

As a black woman, Miss Hunter said she knows the problems firsthand. She also knows they will not disappear overnight.

the businessman this makes good management sense," she said. "It teaches their managers how to be good managers, and at the same time it increases the chances for minorities to become employed."

Texas Considering Mackey For Post

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Texas Tech President Cecil Mackey, who three years ago was considered and then passed over as president of the University of Texas, again is being considered as one of the front-runners for the job, The Avalanche-Journal has learned.
Sources in Austin say Mackey is being mentioned, along with Peter Flawn, former president of University of Texas at San Antonio and current head of UT's Marine Science Institute, as one of two serious contenders for the position being vacated Aug. 31, 1979, by Dr. Lorene Rogers.

the UT Board of Regents, faculty, deans and students, and chaired by UT Chancellor E.D. Walker, has been considering more than 100 applications for the presidency since late October.
The committee is expected to reach a decision by December, sources say.

A screening committee in 1975 surprised many when it chose Dr. Rogers, a former UT professor, to head up the Austin campus, passing over Mackey, who was one of the top choices of a faculty-student advisory committee.
Rogers' appointment angered many UT faculty members and students, who vigorously protested her selection.
There was some speculation, however, that Mackey was not chosen in part because UT officials had received calls against his appointment from students and faculty at the University of South Florida.

Former UT Chancellor Charles M. LeMaistre reportedly was a strong supporter of Mackey's candidacy, and later recommended Mackey to Texas Tech regents.

The current selection committee includes the presidents of the three UT campuses in Arlington, Dallas and Galveston.

Board of Regents Chairman Allan Barbers also appointed himself, Edward Clark and Walter G. Starling to serve as board representatives on the committee.

In addition, John Ben Shook, president of the UT Extension System, is serving on the committee, along with the faculty members.

Faculty representatives in the September include professors of psychology, education, business, and law.

Opening lead: Six of ♣.

South, declaring at three no trump, managed his assets beautifully to bring home a difficult game.

South showed his strong hand by opening one of a suit and then jumping to two no trump over his partner's one-over-one response. With 7 points in high cards, North had enough to accept his partner's game invitation. Although West's heart suit, which contained K-10, might be considered stronger than his spades, his spade lead was eminently correct—in the long run it is more profitable to lead your longest suit against no trump unless, of course, you possess an honor sequence in another suit that could develop tricks quickly. Declarer performed well in the king and he realized that he could afford to give up the lead only once—the defenders would then knock out his remaining spade stopper.

If either defender held a doubleton ace of diamonds, that suit could be developed for four tricks, and with a successful club finesse, that would be nine tricks. However, if the ace of diamonds were twice guarded, the defenders could prevent declarer from taking more than two diamond tricks.

The diamond spots were interesting. Declarer realized that they offered him the chance of playing on both minor suits at the same time.

At trick two, declarer led the jack of diamonds and overtook with dummy's queen. East could not afford to set up the suit by winning the ace, so he played low. Declarer took advantage of being in dummy to lead a club to the jack—a finesse he would have to take regardless of what happened in diamonds.

When the jack held, declarer reverted to diamonds, leading the ten and overtaking with the king. Again East had to hold up or give declarer his contract. The diamond suit was now dead, but declarer didn't mind. He was in dummy and could repeat the club finesse.

After the queen of clubs won, declarer cashed the ace, and even though the king didn't drop, declarer was home. He conceded a trick to the king of clubs, won the spade return and took a long club and the ace of hearts for his contract.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? Citizen Honesty Still Key Consideration When Obtaining Credit In Israel

By LARRY THORSON
TEL AVIV (AP)— Israel is taking a step towards cashless living as more Israelis have credit cards to pay restaurant bills, charge supermarket purchases, and put off the reckoning of expensive trips abroad.

"It's something Israelis are looking for," said Haim Bergstein, deputy managing director of Bank Hapoalim. "We can tell from the number of our applicants."

With the consumer price index rising at a steady three percent a month, the shopper sees the credit card as a little hedge against inflation — buy something at today's price, pay for it next month, and if you're lucky the cost-of-living adjustment will have raised your salary by then.

Bank Hapoalim led the way by issuing the first general, nationally accepted card three years ago. Now Hapoalim's Isra-card is heavily advertised as a convenient way to make purchases without cash in supermarkets, gas stations, shops and restaurants.

Hapoalim doesn't say how many cardholders it has. But two big competitors, Bank Leumi and Israel Discount Bank are also issuing credit cards, and each hopes to get 50,000 cardholders in a year or two, a good start in a population of just 3.5 million.

The cards don't come with time-payment schemes. Instead the banks take the amount due directly from the cardholder's checking account. Many Israelis have overdraft arrangements equal to a month's salary, and credit-card purchases can be covered by the overdraft just like checks, the banks say.

The interest charged on overdrafts is typically 28 percent, a hefty figure that is still attractive since the Israeli pound is being devalued at a higher rate. Inflation is expected to be 35-37 percent this year.

The big international credit cards are also descending on Israel in a rush.

Israeli travelers can take up to $3,000 abroad, and the Finance Ministry decided there was no bar to Israelis making up to $3,000 of purchases with credit cards.

As 500,000 Israelis are expected to travel abroad this year there was clearly a big market for internationally accepted credit cards. Most advertisements for these cards stress the convenience of traveling without a great wad of cash or traveler's checks.

Deputy Finance Minister Yehzekel Floumin said there was some concern in the government that the international credit cards "may contribute a little to the spending of the Israeli tourist abroad and to the demand for foreign currency here for payment."

Floumin said, nonetheless, that the Finance Ministry wasn't planning to monitor either the international or domestic cards. "If there is a possible setback, it won't be large and we have to accept little problems with our liberal economic approach," he said.

The banks say they have learned from the American experience with credit cards. One thing they aren't doing is mailing cards to people who haven't applied.

An applicant must have an annual income of $4,400 to get a domestic card, a requirement only slightly above the average wage of $3,700. Since most Israeli families have two wage-earners, almost everybody would be eligible.

The banks say, however, they are more interested in an applicant's record as a bill-payer. "You don't have to be rich, just honest," said Visahar Kaufman at Discount Bank.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Young people nowadays are resisting marriage because they want guarantees. They want to know that before they say, "I do," he "will" and she "ll "try."

I don't blame 'em. Marriage is not a commitment to be taken lightly. I've always felt there are several ways a couple can test themselves to see if they could survive a term as husband and wife.

1. Nurse him through a simple cold.
2. Have him give you directions anywhere.
3. Have a meaningful conversation.
4. See one another with your hair wet.
5. Hang a picture together.

These are all "stress situations," but if you really want to test compatibility, you can go for the big one by playing Monopoly with your future spouse.

If I had played Monopoly with my husband just once before we were married, there is no doubt in my mind that today I would be on the arm of Duane Farquardt. If I saw my present husband across a crowded room, I'd say, "Let's get out of here, Duane, he's the turkey I was telling you about who once charged me $3.020 for landing on Park Place.

Something happens to a man when he sits down to play Monopoly.

His eyes become cold and impersonal, his jaw is set. He coolly surveys the entire board with the intensity of a hostess who just found something moving in her raisin pudding.

As you throw the dice, he meets your gaze across the board and pronounces sharply, "I won the Boardwalk. If you want to stay in the game, you'll have to sell me all your utilities. I'll give you $150 for all three."

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS FOR ALL THREE? Is this the man talking for whom you have borne three children, picked lint out of his socks, hand-washed his elastic stockings, trimmed his hair over the ears when he couldn't get to the barber, burnt your fingers on his three-minute eggs, kissed good night when he had a lip full of Novosamine?

I told him one night, "There are winners and there are losers, but Lord, I hate a winner who smiles when he wins."

So all of you people out there contemplating marriage (and you all know who you are), sit down at the Monopoly board and play a game. Better to know now that a man will not give you fake money when it's just lying there in a box than to find out after you're married.

Technical Improvements Ensure New Automobiles' Reliability

By BETTY YARMON

NEW YORK (WNS) — Every time there's a recall by an auto manufacturer of a large number of cars of a certain year and model because of a specific defect, many of us shake our heads and remark that they don't make cars like they used to.

Talk to people in and around the auto industry, people who really know quality in cars and are able to compare what is with what has happened over the years, and you get a different slant on the picture.

What they contend adds up, briefly, to this: Cars may no longer offer the type of surface workmanship that was the hallmark of models put out a generation ago.

But mechanically — in the areas of safety, for example, where it really counts, and in handling, steering, smoothness of ride, and economy — today's car is better than yesterday's.

Here are some dimensions of the automobile's improvement, as the experts tick them off:

1. The seat belt, commonplace in today's car, was unknown a generation ago. But it is only one of a number of safety improvements found in today's car. Brakes have been improved. Doors, though they may not fit or be finished as well as they were on the older models, are superior in a number of ways.

They are stronger, with better weather-proofing and soundproofing. They have heavier molding and a steel crash bar and they are less likely to fly open in an accident. Today's windshield, made of glass and plastic, is much tougher than those found in earlier models.

2. Today's car needs less maintenance than ever before. As recently as 10 years ago, a car required an oil change every 2,000 miles. Today there is nothing wrong with changing the oil once every 7,500 miles. And where a greasing every 1,000 miles was once required, the lubrication in today's car may last 50,000 miles or even for the lifetime of the car.

3. It is much the same story with spark plugs. Ten years ago, spark plugs had to be changed every 12,000 miles or so. Today's improved plugs, combined with unleaded gas, will last at least twice that, often for as many as 40,000 miles.

4. Tubeless tires in the 1960s lasted 20,000 miles or so, but today's steel-belted polyester radials are guaranteed a tread life of 40,000 miles. Beyond that, today's radials give you a far better grip on the road.

5. Major engine components in today's cars often last for their lifetime — quite a difference from the 1950s when valve jobs were needed somewhere between 25,000 and 40,000 miles. Today, a valve job rarely is needed before a car clocks 70,000 miles.

6. New paints and new zinc-coated metals have been developed for the car's body, partly as an effort to counter the nation's increase in road salting since the 1940s, but we benefit from them, whatever the cause.

7. Probably the greatest advance is in how cars run cleaner. Prodded by the national concern for the environment, manufacturers are producing models that emit far fewer hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide than those manufactured not so many years ago, and that area is going to improve.

8. The energy crisis of the past five years has pushed us to use less fuel, and the manufacturers respond with cars that offer far better mileage per gallon than older cars used by our parents and grandparents.

Critics of the auto industry charge that the manufacturers have done all this only in the face of enormous consumer pressure. They recall that the consumer movement itself was started a decade ago when Ralph Nader, whose name is synonymous with it, took on the auto industry in the matter of auto safety.

Be that as it may, they aren't making cars the way they used to. They're making them lots better — if for no other reason than that consumers demand it.

The Slim Gourmet

Time is money. If you've got less of the former than the latter, chicken filets are the ideal "convenience food" to have on hand in the freezer... especially if the one thing you CAN'T afford is calories!

Because chicken filets — the skinless, boneless, white-meat cutlets taken from chicken breasts — are among the leanest, least-fattening foods you can choose. (Chicken filets (or "chicken cutlets") weigh in at only 485 calories a pound. (A pound of hamburger contains 1,500 calories, or more!) And because it's all lean, tender, white meat — fat-free and waste-free — a pound serves four. So they're not as expensive as they may seem. Of course, if you want to save money instead of time, you can skin and bone your own, and use the bones for broth. (For a how-to pamphlet, see below.)

Chicken filets defrost quickly and cook in minutes, they're one of the speediest fast foods there is. Here are three slim skillet dishes that are ready to serve in about 15 minutes, including the time it takes to cut the cutlets into quick-cooking cubes:

SMOTHERED CHICKEN TIDBITS WITH ONIONS AND MUSHROOMS

- 1/2 lb. mushrooms, sliced
- 1 large onion, peeled, halved and thinly sliced
- 1/4 cup dry sherry wine
- 1/2 cup condensed chicken broth, canned or homemade, fat-skimmed
- 1/2 lb. chicken filets
- 1 skinless, boneless breast, cut in 1-inch cubes

Spray a non-stick skillet or electric fry pan with cooking spray. Combine all ingredients in skillet, except chicken. Simmer, uncovered, stirring frequently for 5 to 6 minutes, until onions are tender-crisp.

Meanwhile, cut chicken in cubes. Stir in chicken and raise heat. Cook, stirring constantly, until nearly all the liquid has evaporated, 3 to 4 minutes. Serves two, 190 calories each.

CHICKEN SKILLET RATATOUILLE

- 1 small eggplant, pared and diced
- 1 small zucchini, unpeeled, diced
- 1 onion, peeled, halved, thinly sliced
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 cups canned tomatoes, undrained, broken up
- salt and pepper to taste
- 1/2 tsp. oregano
- 1 lb. chicken filets, cut in cubes
- 2 skinless, boneless breasts

Spray a large non-stick skillet or electric fry pan with cooking spray. Combine all ingredients except chicken. Cover and simmer 10 minutes, stirring frequently, until vegetables are tender-crisp.

LOCAL HOT LUNCH

Let a hearty vegetable soup supply a hot lunch during the chilling winter months. It's a change from a salad and still low in calories! Boost the nutrients of convenience soups by adding buffet size cans of vegetables such as a 7 oz. can vacuum packed golden whole kernel corn, 8 1/2 oz. can diagonal-cut green beans or one 8 1/2 oz. can young tender sweet peas.

Meanwhile, cut chicken in cubes. Uncover and stir in chicken cubes. Cook and stir, uncovered, until nearly all the liquid is evaporated and chicken cubes are white (about 3 to 4 minutes). Makes six servings, 120 calories each.

CHICKEN MAUI

- 8 oz. can pineapple tidbits, juice-packed
- 1/2 cup condensed chicken broth, fat-skimmed
- 1 large onion, peeled, cut in chunks
- 1 green pepper, seeded, diced
- 1/2 lb. chicken filets or 2 skinless, boneless breasts, cut in 1-inch cubes
- soy sauce to taste

Spray a non-stick skillet or electric fry pan with cooking spray. Drain the pineapple juice into the skillet and reserve the tidbits. Add the onion and pepper. Simmer 5 to 6 minutes, uncovered, stirring frequently. Add the chicken and pineapple. Raise heat, cook and stir until most of the liquid has evaporated and the chicken chunks are white (3 to 4 minutes). Add soy sauce to taste. Makes two servings, 230 calories each.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: When my 27-year-old daughter and I went shopping, she saw a blouse she loved, but they didn't have it in her size. Knowing how much she wanted it, I made several trips to the store trying to get it in her size. I finally succeeded and got it for her as a gift. (She knew how much trouble I had gone to to get the blouse.)

She and her husband (he's 29) came over to get it, and she tried it on for him. He said nothing, but two days later she called in tears, saying her husband thought it was too sheer. (It WAS quite sheer, but not nearly as sheer as many I wear.)

I suggested she wear a slip under it, but she said her husband didn't want other men to see through her clothes — that he had forbidden her to keep it, and that was that!

I was furious and told her I wouldn't return it.

What is your opinion of this situation?

ENRAGED IN CALIF.

Dear Enraged: I think you are making a mountain out of a molehill (or maybe two, for all I know). If your daughter allows her husband to impose his wishes on her, that's between them.

To what do you want to so much trouble to get the blouse? Tell your daughter that if she can't wear it, return it. The whole fuss strikes me as sheer nonsense.

DEAR ABBY: When a person confesses to adultery, is he or she obligated to provide the details?

I am the wronged wife, and when I demanded to know when, why, where and with whom, I was called nosy.

NAMELESS

Dear Nameless: If it's your intention to forgive and forget, the less you know the less you'll have to forget.

Clip 'n' Cook

CRANBERRY ORANGE RUM LOAF

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 tbsps. butter, softened
- 1 egg
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1/2 cup dark rum
- 3 cups biscuit mix
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- 1 cup whole fresh cranberries
- 1 tsp. cinnamon

Mix sugar and softened butter until fluffy, add the egg and beat. Add orange juice, orange rind and biscuit mix in a bowl and beat for a half minute vigorously. Mixture will be lumpy. Stir in nuts, cranberries, rum and cinnamon. Pour into a well-buttered 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake in a 325 degree oven for 55 minutes or until toothpick inserted into middle of loaf comes out clean. Remove and cool.

DEAR ABBY: I asked a friend for advice about my problem and she said, "Write to Abby," so here goes.

I am engaged to marry the son of a minister. (I'll call my fiance Timothy.) Timothy's father, without even discussing it with us, has assumed that he will perform our marriage ceremony.

Timothy and I prefer to have his father sit with his mother at the wedding and be a guest with no official duties to perform.

Our problem is how to tell Timothy's father without offending him. He's a wonderful person, but he's very persuasive and we're afraid he might try to talk us into letting him have his way.

Is there a solution? Or should we just give in and grin and bear it?

WEDDING BELLS

Dear Bells: It's your wedding, and you have the right to your own thing. Timothy should tell his father respectfully, lovingly, but firmly of your decision. And the sooner the better.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope.

Book Lauds Portrait Ability Of 35mm Camera

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

Almost all books on portraiture discuss the subject from the standpoint of studio photography using either a 4x5 or an 8x10 camera.

Now, for the first time, there is a book that brings fine portraiture down to the level of serious amateur photographers and the equipment they now use—"The Fine 35mm Portrait" by Jack Manning, an Amphoto publication.

The author, a photojournalist whose assignments have taken him around the world, is a staff photographer for The New York Times. He has written and photographed travel books on Spain and Venezuela and four children's books.

In Manning's countless assignments, fine portraiture had become a specialty with him when the story concerned people and he evolved some pet theories about his working tool, the 35mm camera.

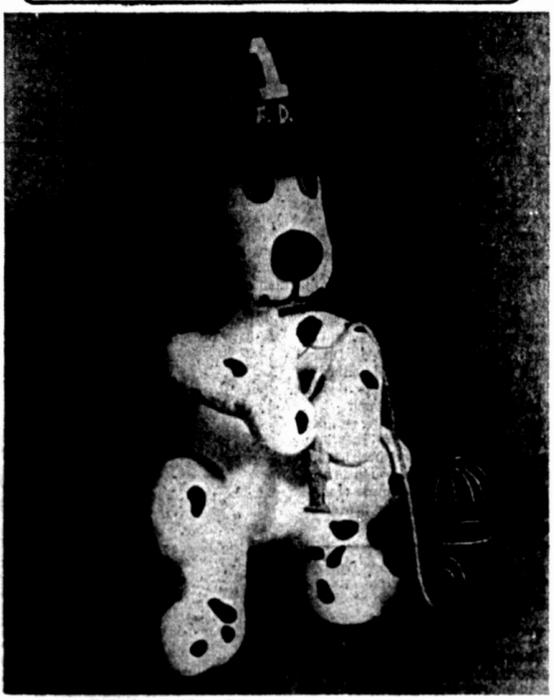

"A great many photographers today are working with 20th-century tools and 19th-century methods," Manning says. "In many modern portraits, the subject still seems glued to his seat, a stiff smile on his face, and an invisible clamp attached to the back of his neck. Photographers seem to follow a tradition that says, 'This is the way it has always been done.'"

He points out that the 35mm camera is ideal for portraits. It introduces natural surroundings and eliminates the need of a studio. Its flexibility and ease of operation make it possible for the photographer to vary position and camera angle quickly until the best one is found. He or she can spend more time on the creative process and less time moving lights, adjusting backgrounds and fussing with tripods and plate holders.

With motor drives and power-winders, the photographer can capture the elusive peak of expression that comes spontaneously and unexpectedly. High shutter speeds and the lightning blink of electronic flash units can hold the subject

Stuffed Dog Project Starts Toy Making

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q.—I recently moved into a house which has light cedar shingles on the outside. I did not want them finished with anything, but now have decided they should be covered with a wood preservative. However, I like the light color of the shingles and want to keep them that way. Is there any wood preservative which will retain the original color of the shingles?

A.—Any kind of finish, even if it is called "clear," will darken the wood slightly. The shingles may even darken more over a long period of time. Even if you did not put any preservative on the shingles, they would change color over the years, usually to some shade of gray or tan.

Q.—Last year we had an underground sprinkling system installed around our house, since we have quite a large amount of grass that must be taken care of. It works fine, but a leak developed this year. I believe the pipe used is polyethylene. Is there some special way to repair this or is it done the same as with a plastic hose?

A.—The repair is basically the same as with a plastic hose. Find the leaky area, cut it out with a sharp knife, making straight cuts on either side of it. Go to a hardware store, lumber yard or building-supply establishment, taking along the piece of pipe that you have cut out. This will enable the dealer to determine the kind of plastic pipe installed around your house, because different types must be repaired in slightly different ways. Generally, though, the repair is similar to that made on a plastic hose, calling for the use of one or more couplings.

Q.—A few months ago you had an article about the correct way to apply lacquer with a brush. I did not save the clipping, but used lacquer recently. The finish came out very bad. It was all wrinkled. Can you tell me what I might have done wrong?

A.—While it is difficult to be certain, there are two possibilities. One is that you may have made the mistake of applying the lacquer over a painted surface, in which case the lacquer would have acted as a kind of paint remover and caused the paint to wrinkle. The other is that you brushed out the lacquer, which must be applied quickly and then not gone over again. In either case, try rubbing the wrinkled finish with lacquer thinner to smooth it out. But be careful, lacquer thinner is flammable and volatile and must be used where there is plenty of ventilation and no exposed flame, such as a pilot light.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11742. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Playtime starts with some easy stitching and stuffing when you put your paws on the Sparky dalmatian pictured above. Dalmatians originated in a province of Austria off the coast of Venice and were identified as a breed no later than the 18th century. Since then, this spotted canine has more than proven his worth as a dog of war, a sentinel, and most of all, as a faithful and daring fire-house mascot. That's why Sparky's not just a best friend for children, but also an enduring reminder of the importance of fire prevention.

For parents who take pride in their sewing, toy making is a natural. After all, the soft-toy industry was started in Germany by a seamstress, Margarete Steiff, who in 1880 produced her first toy animal, a felt elephant. Sewing and a little charm has remained the winning combination down through the years—whether in a long line of teddy bears first inspired by Theodore Roosevelt's bear hunting romps in the Rockies or in storybook favorites such as Beatrix Potter's Peter Rabbit. The Sparky project will provide you with enough sewing and construction experience to go on to original toy renditions of some of your children's pet fictional acquaintances.

Sparky stands 16½" tall and is available in a kit containing cotton fabric and felt, decorative trimmings, and easy to follow instructions. All you add is the stuffing.

New Flight Commemoratives Issued

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

Stamp collectors are well aware that this is the year for celebrating the 75th anniversary of the first flight by the Wright Brothers. Much to the joy of those who specialize in planes on stamps, countries all over the world—including the U.S.—have issued stamps honoring this occasion.

The latest set to hit the philatelic field is the seven stamps issued by Grenada in commemoration of the Wright Brothers' aerial venture at Kitty Hawk, N.C. Each stamp in the set bears the anniversary symbol and the inscription "75th Anniversary of the First Airplane Flight by Orville and Wilbur Wright." A souvenir sheet also was issued.

The five-cent shows a Wright glider and a winged figure at the right. The 15-cent depicts the first motorized airplane at takeoff in 1903 plus a winged eagle. The 15-cent pictures a Wright plane and a winged figure. The 22-cent features the Wright plane viewed from above. The eagle is at the right. The 50-cent illustrates the Wright plane and a portrait of Orville Wright. The 75-cent has a view of a 1908 Wright plane. The highest value shows a Wright glider, which was the predecessor of the modern flying machine.

Grenada has also issued a set of four stamps honoring the World Football Cup competition held last August in Argentina. Each stamp features a goal in action during a soccer match.

It's a long way from the Wright Brothers' tests to the astronauts' flights into outer space but next year we will celebrate the 10th anniversary of the Apollo II landing on the moon.

steadier than any kind of clamp. And the great range of precision lenses and different films produces exceptional quality pictures that make it difficult to distinguish whether they came from a 35mm negative or from that of a large negative format.

The book proves the point with a section of 60 varied personality portraits in black-and-white, each superbly reproduced in duotone and supplemented with an informative description of each situation. A color section includes eight portraits with shooting details.

The diversity of the subjects is matched by the diversity of the situations encountered, and the psychological insight that Manning divulges in choosing the lenses, lighting and methods to achieve each portrait.

He took advantage of the available light on many occasions and introduced his own lighting set-ups at other times; some subjects were posed, others were not; some were intuitive, candid shots and others were maneuvered until a significant portrait could be obtained.

Part II of "The Fine 35mm Portrait" is a seven-chapter exploration of equipment and techniques that sum up Manning's many years of experiences.

He recommends the single-lens reflex camera as the best tool for portraiture over the rangefinder type of camera. The advantage of the ground-glass screen with its large, brilliant image is a visual one because it makes it easier to compose and see your creative efforts and to determine the precise instant of shooting.

There is no one, all-purpose "ideal" lens for portraiture. Different situations require different lenses.

A wide-angle lens (15 to 35mm) is preferred for environmental portraits, where foreground and background may be required or are important to the subject.

A short telephoto lens, or a zoom lens from 85 to 105mm, is useful for close-ups in a small room where it is possible to approach the subject. When it is not possible to get close to the subject, telephotos or zooms from 135 to 200mm come in handy. And when security is involved or you must work from a great distance, extreme telephotos from 300 to 1000mm, or the use of tele-extender lenses, may be required.

Then there are extreme wide-angle and fisheye lenses which produce satirical portraits or human caricatures.

Manning's book serves as a notable landmark in his career as a teacher, lecturer and photojournalist. It makes a permanent contribution to portrait photography as do the distinctive photographs he has taken and which are in the permanent collections of major museums.

They demonstrate clearly and effectively his contention that fine portraiture can be achieved with the 35mm camera.

TIPS FOR GARDENERS

Lawn Mower Doubles As Weed Trimmer

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

You may not have finished cutting your lawn for this season, depending on where you live, but next season there will be available a lawn mower on which the metal blade is replaced by monofilament lines.

The manufacturer, Toro, reports the machine trims grass, weeds and other vegetation with the efficiency of steel blades but with the greater safety of flexible-line trimmers. It mows a 20-inch swath, about the same as popular brand steel-bladed mowers.

Vice President Kendrick B. Melrose says the 20-inch electric Lawn Mower-Trimmer mechanism has two counter-rotating discs powered by separate heavy-duty motors. Attached to each disc are two monofilament lines that can be advanced and trimmed to proper length automatically as the lines wear down. The flexible lines extend 1 1/2 inches beyond the outside width of the mower wheels, permitting the machine to function as a trimmer as well as mower.

Low-profile housing permits easy use around shrubs and along fences and building foundations. It weighs 30 pounds, has a collapsible handle to facilitate storage, is quieter than gasoline-powered mowers, has fewer moving parts and will cut grass to one to three inches. The price reportedly will be under $150.

The Minneapolis-based company will also offer new flexible-line trimmers, and a garden hose with attached reel and built-in squeegee weighing less than four pounds that Melrose says "will make the ordinary garden hose obsolete." The hose is a urethane inner liner with Dacron cover.

Toro will also offer a solid-state controller for automatic underground irrigation systems; an eight-pound, electric cultivator-weeder designed to get rid of weeds and aerate the soil; a tiller, and will enter the chain saw market.

Protect Trees

When our son's family moved we gave him some semi-dwarf apple and plum trees as a house gift, but we neglected to tell him to protect the new young plantings against nibbling animals and sun scald. He lost several of them, girdled by hungry mice and rabbits.

Winter will be here soon and hungry deer or other woodland creatures in search of food can cause fatal damage to your trees. Trees need protection especially for about three years after planting.

There are a number of items sold com-mercially that are easy to wrap around young trees. They will also encase the bark to reduce damage from bark split, gashes and bruises that expose them to disease and insect infestation.

One such product is Ross TreeGARD, made of rugged, weather-resistant vinyl in spiral form that snaps on and off quickly with no taping, tying or gluing. It is available in 24-inch and 36-inch lengths.

Recent Books

Among recent garden books is "Unusual Vegetables," by the editors of Organic Gardening and Farming, edited by Ann Moyer Halpin (Rodale Press). This book will help organic (and other) gardeners expand their gardening activities with vegetables they have never tried before. How about raising some amaranth, basella, asparagus beans or fava beans, borage, cadown or comfrey? Some are more familiar.

"Growing Herbs," by John B. Brimer (Simon & Schuster) tells about growing popular kitchen herbs on windowsill or terrace, indoors or outdoors. The book contains about 100 herb recipes and discusses fragrant, piquant and poetic herbs and techniques of planting.

GROWING OLDER

Columnist Blasts Postal Increases

We elders know the 3-cent stamp. We use it from 3 cents. "Well, what's another penny?" we asked. So, we paid it cheerfully.

Then first-class postage climbed to 5 cents each, then to 12 cents. Now it's 15 cents to send a first-class letter. That's the equivalent of the postage in Sweden. "But it's only the postage over 12 cents," the Postal Service says.

"We all jingle pennies in our pockets."

Hi! They can't fool us elders! The forces seeking to remove pennies from our coins know what they're doing. The 15-cent stamp is a step in that direction. From here on, postage may be in pennies.

We elders who need to write our pen pals are justifiably tired of the increasing cost of postage.

Our sons and daughters no longer share our homes the way we shared homes with our parents. Many of our dear friends and neighbors have moved away. The increased postage limits our writing to one another.

At 15 cents each, we can't buy stamps. We can't send a package of hand-knit socks, which would cost 15 cents plus at least another 15 cents, because it would weigh more than an ounce. Few of us can afford to mail any packages at all with the prohibitive costs of postage plus insurance.

We elders need more -- not less -- contact with old friends. We certainly need closer contact with our children and grandchildren. The 15-cent stamp is a threat to those objectives.

We seniors can also remember when bills included return envelopes on which no postage was necessary. We continued that only fair. When you send a check to pay a bill it's right to expect the receiver of the money to pay the postage.

Even if a postage-paid envelope wasn't enclosed, a wise guy could fail to put a stamp and return address on the envelope.

Now that trick is no longer permissible. The Postal Service has informed us in no uncertain terms that a letter without a stamp will no longer be delivered.

What can seniors do to fight postal inflation?

Our first campaign should be to force firms that send us bills to enclose postage-paid envelopes. We should not be required to add 15 cents to the cost of everything we buy by mail.

What we could do is wait until the day before a bill becomes due before mailing our check. We would pay the bill as late as possible within the terms stated and before we are charged for late payment.

What would be wrong with a gift of a roll of 15-cent stamps? The Postal Service could box up and decorate little packages, they could print phrases like, "Happy Birthday, Mom" or "Happy Father's Day, Pop."

And what should our children and grandchildren do if the Postal Service refuses to package gift rolls of stamps with greetings to us elders? Send money!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something you learned that you never dreamed you'd have any reason to use will surprisingly work well for you tomorrow.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone is willing to do something for you she wouldn't do for others. It would prove awkward for her if anyone else were to learn of it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A friend will come up with the solution to a difficult problem you are facing. You will be able to make a quick decision regarding the matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be able to pick up the loose ends of a project left undone, due to something unusual that will occur tomorrow. The completed task will greatly advance your interests.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you make and follow certain guidelines you'll not only be able to keep a difficult promise, you'll have plenty of spare time for fun tomorrow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll have an opportunity to change something tomorrow that has been bugging you for a long time. You'll feel like a monkey is off of your back.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll do your best thinking tomorrow when you're under pressure. You'll be surprised at how quickly you will come up with the answers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your realistic approach to things tomorrow will be a far cry from yesterday. You will be able to figure out practical ways to benefit yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Stick by your guns, no matter how unusual your ways appear to others. Once they see the type of results you achieve, everyone will jump on your bandwagon.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone may offer you something tomorrow that you've been wanting for your home. This person no longer needs it. You'll be able to put it to good use.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A chance to re-establish a bond with one with whom you've had a disagreement will be presented to you tomorrow. A stronger friendship will result.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A sudden opportunity to play that ace-in-the-hole you've been holding will be yours tomorrow, giving you the advantage over your opponent.

Employees Encounter Computer Problems

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - When someone resorts to the bitter trick of pouring honey into a computer, it's an understandable if not excusable reaction, says a professor.

And when another worker backed his forklift over one of the machines, that also was something of a natural reaction to the intruder the workers didn't understand.

That is the view of Gary Dickson, a professor of business administration at the University of Minnesota.

Or take these cases:
-The policeman at Lodi, Calif., who pulled a pistol and fired at a computer that refused to stop spewing out arrest reports.

-And the Denver employee who fed car keys to a computer-memory disc file, following an "overpowering urge" to shut down the machine.

What's needed, says Dickson, is a get-acquainted session between the worker and what he's apt to see as his adversary and job-snatcher.

He said in an interview that employers seem to anticipate a chummy working relationship between the computer and worker without bothering to make a proper introduction.

Troubles developed at the Minneapolis Post Office a few years ago when a new system was installed. It was intended to read cards at various work stations and feed it to a computer. It was intended to measure productivity but not spy on employees, as they feared.

So honey was poured into the system, presumably by a disenchanted worker. That mingled with paper clips already dumped in the system.

And the man who bumped into the computer with the fork lift reportedly had excellent vision and good maneuvering ability.

Says Dickson: "Hand-holding isn't necessary. But you can't just plug the system in and walk away." Instead, he advises executives, remove the threat to the worker, design a computer system that improves workplace quality and, if possible, opens the way for employee advancement.

He says the company official may find the system can bedevil him, too. Amid a sea of reports churned out by a computer, the harried executive may face the challenge: "Guess whether I'm trying to tell you anything."

Foreign Grain Sale Reports Debated

BY RODERICK TURNBULL Kansas City Board of Trade

KANSAS CITY—A controversy, issue or whatever it may be called to be determined in the weeks ahead concerns whether the United States has an adequate reporting system on the sales of grain overseas.

This has turned out to be a rather complicated issue because people have different ideas on what is adequate, and in fact, even on the purpose involved in public reports on exports.

The secretary of agriculture has appointed an Advisory Committee on Export Sales Reporting, which includes representatives of several groups, to help make a decision. This committee, under Dale E. Hathaway, assistant secretary of agriculture, has scheduled hearings in several cities in addition to meetings in Washington.

Hathaway said, "Committee members will review the present export sales reporting requirements and discuss alternatives to strengthen and improve the system's effectiveness."

For some people, the issue is fairly simple as to their own desires. They would like for exporters to be forced to reveal all sales overseas immediately, including buyers, delivery time, quantity and prices. The idea would be that sellers, including farmers, would be able to benefit from such information. The implication is, for farmers as an example, that if they knew business was being done, they could refuse to sell until prices rose to the point where they would be willing to sell. On the other side, there are those who contend that if exporters had to reveal all information before they get the grain bought, either actually or in futures, and if prices did rise suddenly, the importers simply would refuse to buy and there would be no sales.

This is an over-simplification of the issue, but basically it is what some people have in mind.

But it is far more complicated than this, as can be learned by talking to members of the grain trade such as at the Board of Trade in Kansas City, and in reviewing the history of the reporting system now in effect.

Actually, as this history reveals, the first efforts toward enforced reporting of sales were not totally directed toward informing farmers and other merchandisers of grain. A major concern within the government itself was whether Washington might wake up some morning and find out exporters had sold so much from U.S. supplies that shortages might be experienced in this country. The impetus for the reporting system came at a time when prices were rising dramatically because of actual or pending shortages of grain around the world. In effect, a reporting system then implied a possible need for export controls.

Confusing the issue, also, is the fact that some people apparently regard the export reports as an indication of overseas demand, while the U.S. Department of Agriculture has a regular supply and demand reporting system which purports to fulfill this very service.

What we now know as the export sales reporting system started with the Commerce Department in early June 1973 asking exporters of soybeans, soybean meal and cottonseed meal to report anticipated exports for the balance of that year. On June 27, 1973, President Nixon imposed an embargo on oilseed exports. Monitoring of export sales continued under the Commerce Department until the fall of 1973. In response to criticism of this reporting system, Congress in the 1973 Farm Act gave the USDA authority over sales monitoring and it was instructed to develop a new system.

The USDA did develop a system which has seen some changes. Today, essentially, it requires an exporter who sells 100,000 tons of any commodity in one day to a single destination to report it within 24 hours. Or, if the exporter makes sales of 200,000 tons in one week, such sales must be reported. The USDA reports each day on the big sales and then each week consolidates outstanding sales for the week into one report. Reports cover the type of the commodity, quantity, destination, if known, and deliveries.

Part of the controversy that has arisen concerns the sales to unknown destinations, and also sales made by companies overseas which are not bound to comply with American laws.

So, among other things to be decided are whether or not the present system or systems provide American merchandisers of grain, including farmers, with adequate information on current and pending export business.

Japan Grain Processors View Area's Facilities

By KATHLEEN HARRIS Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

Eleven Japanese grain processors stepped in Lubbock Thursday to view area feedlots, grain production and grain processing.

The group, all members of the Japan feed grains processors team, came to the United States to observe the grain sorghum industry from production to shipping, according to Ohyama Hiroyasu, agricultural advisor for the U. S. Feed Grains Council.

Hiroyasu said the member processors micronized or flaked almost 3 million bushels of U.S. grain in 1977 and more purchases are expected to be made after the U.S. visit.

"The Japanese are presenting new markets for grain sorghum because micronization and steam flaking are expanding rapidly in Japan," the Japanese agricultural advisor said. "We are always happy to present to our people the best varieties of grain."

Team leader Yoshikazu Yamazaki said the group knows that U.S. grain sorghum is not the high-tannin type that some countries grow. Yamazaki, who is also president of the Japanese National Feed Grains Processors Association, said they are trying to inform the individual Japanese livestockmen of this matter through public relations and educational programs.

The group visited the Producers Grain Corp. Feedyard near Cotton Center to see the steam flaking, or wet processing, of grain sorghum and corn. Micronization, or dry heat method, was viewed at the Taylor Feedlot near Dimmitt.

Before visiting the Lubbock area, the Japanese grain processors stopped in Iowa, Illinois, Washington, D.C., New Orleans and College Station. They will visit grain processing and dairy farms near Fresno, Calif. before returning to Japan.

Ohyama said this mission will develop an appreciation for U.S. feed grains production and supply capabilities on which the continued development of Japanese livestock production completely depends.

Ag Service Names Swine Expert

A swine specialist for the South Plains, the Panhandle and parts of the Rolling Plains has been named by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Robert S. Cohen, formerly of College Station, will provide leadership for extension educational programs for swine producers in the area. He is stationed at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Lubbock.

Since 1974, Cohen has been an assistant professor and swine specialist at Texas A&M University, College Station. In that position, he worked with the adult specialist program with vocational agriculture teachers throughout the state.

He has served as an assistant extension agent for agriculture in Williamson and Eastland counties.

Cohen received his bachelor of science degree in animal science from Texas A&M in 1965. His master's and Ph.D. in animal nutrition also are from Texas A&M. His research is in the area of energy and protein nutrition of swine.

Cohen was reared on a cattle, swine and poultry operation in southeastern Llano County and was graduated from Llano High School. He was active in 4-H for 10 years and in Future Farmers of America for four years.

In 4-H, he received the Santa Fe Award and attended National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. At A&M he received the Santa Fe Scholarship Award and was editor and chairman of the Saddle and Siroin yearbook committee.

Earlier this year, he received the Distinguished Service Award from the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association of Texas.

He is married to the former Jane Watkins. Mrs. Cohen is the Lubbock County Extension agent for home energy conservation.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE 1979 FEED GRAIN PROGRAM will be very similar to the 1978 plan. The set-aside and diversion will be based on planted acres. There will be a 10 percent set-aside, same as in 1978, with a 10 percent voluntary diversion on that acreage.

Corn and sorghum diversion payments will be 10 cents per bushel times the established farm yield times the acres planted, provided the grower idles the equivalent of the full 20 percent of what he plants.

If a grower has a 100-bushel yield on corn or sorghum, for example, the payment would be $10 an acre times the number of acres planted where there's a 20 percent layout. Or, figured on the 10 percent on which the grower actually is paid, the payment would be $100 an acre on the second 10 percent diversion.

A PRODUCER MUST SET-ASIDE THE initial 10 percent in order to be eligible for program benefits, including any deficiency payments, loans or disaster payments.

The USDA has eliminated a provision which caused problems this year. In order to qualify for payment on the voluntary diversion this year, a grower had to hold his plantings to the acreage he had in the previous year. This isn't in the 1979 program.

Some farmers had wanted to switch from corn to sorghum in 1978 but felt they couldn't do so because, having planted no sorghum in 1977, they would have been ineligible for the second 10 percent voluntary paid diversion.

The national allotments or program acreages for 1979 have been set at 63.7 million acres for corn and 13.2 million acres for sorghum. These compare with this year's plantings of 78.5 million acres of corn and 16.6 million acres of sorghum.

IF TOTAL U. S. PLANTINGS EXCEED the national program acreages, any target price or deficiency payments will be allocated proportionately to each farm on the basis of the national overplanting ratio.

The maximum allocation factor would be around 20 percent. If growers plant the same number of acres in 1979 that they did in 1978, then each farm would be eligible for deficiency payments on only 80 percent of his plantings.

A grower, however, can exempt himself from the allocation factor by reducing his 1979 plantings by 10 percent from the total of his 1978 plantings plus set-aside and diversion and plus any acreage he was unable to plant because of natural disaster.

By doing this, a grower can assure himself of 100 percent target price coverage on what he does plant.

LOAN RATES WILL BE THE SAME at $2 per bushel on corn and $3.39 per hundredweight or $1.90 a bushel on sorghum.

Target prices will be $2.30 a bushel on sorghum and $2.20 per bushel on corn. On a per-hundredweight basis, the target prices will be $4.07 on sorghum and $3.93 on corn, up slightly from this year's $4.07 and $3.75.

The voluntary diversion payment rates will half as much as this year on corn and down two cents a bushel on sorghum. Voluntary diversion payments this year were 20 cents a bushel on corn and 12 cents a bushel on sorghum.

County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices were notified of details of the 1979 program this week.

Potato Improvement Program Reviewed

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — If you've notice a hint of difference in the taste of your potatoes recently, you may be one of the first to experience the product of some 28 years of step-by-step work.

Since 1965, in a small laboratory at Aberdeen, Idaho, Joseph Pavek, a U.S. Agriculture Department plant geneticist, has been growing, studying, testing and discarding thousands of varieties of hybrid potatoes. One of his three predecessors at Aberdeen began the job in 1950.

Recently, the laborator released for limited commercial production the Butte potato — cream of the 1965 crop. It is more nutritious than the nation's top-selling potato variety, the Idaho Russet, also known as the Russet Burbank.

Pavek said the tipoff to recognizing the new spud is a slightly blandish flavor contrasting with the slight bitterness of the conventional variety.

If the Butte continues to grow well, he says it can have a far reaching, beneficial influence on American health.

The Butte, which to the untrained eye cannot be distinguished from the Idaho Russet, was released for commercial production in the spring of 1977. By the end of this season it will have undergone two years of growth outside the laboratory.

Pavek said the Butte has up to 50 percent more vitamin C, a better balance of amino acids and a better quality of protein than the Russet. The new variety also cooks well, makes a good french fry and has a longer shelf life. And the average Butte has fewer rock marks, nobs and growth cracks. It is being used by Idaho potato processors along with the Russet.

The difference in taste between the two potatoes is not detectable when eaten with butter or sour cream, Pavek said.

Given several years, Pavek said the blander, nonalkaloid Butte may replace the Russet, which accounts for more than 90 percent of potato acreage in Idaho, Oregon and Washington and has a slight bitter taste.

"So far, we haven't detected anything wrong with the Butte," he said. "It's more resistant to some potato diseases than the Russet and seems to grow faster during a long, hot season like last year's."

Pavek said the Butte had a larger per-seed yield than the Russet in 1977 because it picked up steam in the late summer and fall and grew faster. But Pavek said Idaho has experienced cooler temperatures this year and the Butte's yield has been lower because its growth did not have time to accelerate.

He said under ideal conditions the Butte can yield up to 30 percent more in volume than the Russet each growing season. And when grown under less than favorable conditions, the Butte has better texture and does not dry out as much.

When Pavek, 51, moved from Minnesota in 1965 to take over the project, the Butte was one of 1,000 hybrid varieties being studied at the Aberdeen laboratory.

Since then, Pavek said, he has been hoping to develop the one potato with favorable growing characteristics and toughness against disease. Half of the crop is thrown out each year in a constant whittling process.

Of three diseases most common to the Idaho Russet — scab, early dying and early blight — the Butte is affected similarly. But potato viruses harmful to the Russet are resisted by the Butte.

"We don't know all there is to know about the Butte," Pavek said. "So far it has performed the same or better than the Russet. But if it gets a bad name for being too specific in requirements — for failing to adapt to a particular environment or showing vulnerability to disease — it may not be accepted."

The verdict on the Butte's eventual place in American potato fields will not be known for several years because of limitations in multiplying the strain, Pavek said.

Each season the variety's numbers can be increased tenfold in seedling. Some 300 acres were grown in 1977, compared to one hill in 1965 — which indicates it would take several years to fill Idaho's 350,000 potato-growing acres, given the rate of reproduction and losses due to disease and other causes.

Pavek and his assistant Dennis Corsini receive help from the University of Idaho and several potato processing firms. Also, the Agriculture Department's Science and Education Administration operates other hybrid potato climate testing areas in Oregon and Washington.

In all, the government spends about $180,000 per year on the Aberdeen project.

Weather Service Says Dryness May Bring Area Dust Storms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two government weather analysts said Thursday that dry weather in parts of the Great Plains raises the chance of severe dust storms and wind damage to land this winter.

But soil moisture reserves in the Corn Belt states, although less than a year ago, are "still very favorable" and should be enough to get crops off to a good start next spring, they said.

Also, they said the Soviet Union, which harvested a record grain crop this year, has a favorable soil moisture reserve and could produce another good harvest in 1979.

The analysts, R. E. Feich and J. L. Lambert, made their report at a closing session of an annual outlook conference at the Agriculture Department.

Recent and current weather patterns are important in trying to figure out next year's potential harvests of wheat, corn, soybeans and other crops, they said.

"For example, the rainfall patterns of recent weeks has helped to determine how much soil moisture the corn and soybean crop of 1979 will have available for growth," the report said.

The weather patterns also suggested how the 1979 winter wheat crop planted this fall will hold up between now and next spring.

Farmers currently are completing record harvests of corn and soybeans and soon will be planning their 1979 crops.

"Compared to a year ago, conditions east of the Rockies are generally drier with moderate to extreme drought over the southeastern Great Plains and moderate drought over much of the south-east," the report said. "Very heavy precipitation last winter has erased the severe drought which had prevailed in the West."

Conditions across the entire winter wheat belt of the Great Plains "are much drier than a year ago" and precipitation last month was less than 50 percent of normal for October over the entire central and southern plains, the report said.

The area includes parts of Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas.

"In general, the certainty of adequate moisture for the 1978-79 (winter wheat) crop is much less than a year ago and the Great Plains will be very susceptible to blowing," it said. "An adequate snow cover will be very important. Conservation practices to minimize blowing will be required extensively."

Looking at the Corn Belt — which includes the big corn and soybeans states of Illinois and Iowa — the analysts said that in general "the odds are in favor of a normal planting season" next spring and "possibly a little earlier than usual."

They said that "with normal rainfall patterns" soil moisture in the Corn Belt "will be near capacity at the beginning of the growing season" next year.

In the Soviet Union, farmers for the second year in a row planted winter wheat this fall under favorable soil-moisture conditions, the report said.

As usual in the Soviet Union, the wheat will be subject to wintertill from cold weather in the coming months, and much will depend on field conditions next spring when the bulk of Russia's grain is planted.

"While it is not possible to forecast whether favorable conditions will, in fact, occur, present conditions are such that a potential for another good crop still exists," the analysts said.

Inflation Plagues Essential Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food and other essentials are the main inflation worries of consumers but there are some other unpublicized costs that need to be talked about, President Carter's chief consumer aide said Thursday.

Ester Peterson said manufacturers complain a lot about the "cost of consumer protection" that federal regulations require in a variety of products.

"I'm always a little teed-off on that," she told a final session of the Agriculture Department's outlook conference.

For instance, Mrs. Peterson said, the cost of making safer automobiles "But did they ever ask us if we want that chrome-plated bumper?" she said. "No, they don't."

Inflation is hurting consumers more today because "it is concentrated primarily in the essentials — food, housing, health and energy" — unlike in 1974 when it affected all commodities about the same, she said.

"Inflation in the essentials this year is double that of other commodities, and food inflation, as you know, plays a unique role in our perceptions," Mrs. Peterson said.

Meat prices, led by a 25 percent boost in beef prices at supermarket counters, "have an even more profound effect on consumer perceptions" of inflation, she said.

The farm value of food — the equivalent that farmers get for raw products — has risen more than 23 percent in the past 12 months, Mrs. Peterson said. The midwestern share for food after it leaves the farm on the way to consumers is up 15 percent.

"The federal government shares part of the blame — or deserves part of the credit, depending on your perspective — for the rapid increase in farm prices this year," Mrs. Peterson said.

Congress designed the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 "in part to boost farm prices to profitable levels," she said.

"However, most people, including the experts at USDA, expected the process to be more gradual," Mrs. Peterson said.

Farm income is expected to be up about 30 percent over last year to around $26 billion, according to other speakers at the annual USDA conference.

Much of the increase is due to higher prices for cattle and other livestock, grain and other commodities.

Bruce Gardner, professor of agricultural economics at Texas A.M. University, said at the same outlook session Thursday that net income "is an inconceivable measure" of farmers' financial status "because it leaves out of account changes in the value of farm business assets."

Cattle Futures Mixed In Trade

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 60 points lower to $2 higher on 25,027 cars Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Distant January lost the most after October sagged 70 with February at the best gain.

The nearby contract climbed to the highest in more than one month on spread buying against selling of later months. Demand continued on the cattle-on-feed report along with strong cash cattle and beef. Later months gave ground on fears of consumer resistance.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 80 to 81 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a one month high. Cash cattle were up 25 cents to $1.50 with the best top $55.25 per hundredweight, which is the highest in 1 1/2 weeks. Omaha's top was $55.

Slaughter was 141,000 head. The six major markets are expecting 7,200 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed the daily limit level of 150 higher to 100 lower in hectic trade. Sales totaled 3,336 contracts. November posted the limit level gain the second day in a row, the highest in more than one month. September led later months lower at the day's low.

Support continued on the cattle-on-feed report and traders also noted spread buying of nearby against sale of deferreds. Cash cattle and beef continued firm. However, traders feared consumer resistance to higher beef prices.

Cash feeder cattle were steady with the best top $85.50 per hundredweight at San Antonio. There were 173 deliveries. About 5,200 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Hog futures closed 90 lower to 25 high-

Lubbock Man Named To Head Group In New Orleans

L. D. "Don" Anderson of Lubbock was elected chairman of the Cotton Board at the group's annual meeting this week in New Orleans.

Billy W. Golden of Seymour was named treasurer. Other officers are J. Wayne Griggs of Humble, Tenn., vice chairman, and Dolan Brown of Twin City, Ga., secretary.

The Cotton Board is composed of 20 members and 20 alternates who are appointed by the secretary of agriculture from nominations submitted by certified producer organizations.

Each member serves a three-year term with one-third of the terms expiring annually.

An agency created by the Cotton Research and Promotion Act of 1966, the Cotton Board administers collection of funds in the program and contracts with Cotton Inc. to conduct research and promotion programs.

Indian Groups Ask FCC For Reserved Radio, TV Frequencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several Indian groups asked the Federal Communications Commission Thursday to set aside radio and television frequencies for the nation's major reservations.

The petition asked that the reserved frequencies be held as long as necessary for the Indians to get funds to build the stations, which would be licensed only to Indians.

"The low incomes and rural living conditions of reservation Indians are not attractive to broadcasters, who are in the business of selling audience to advertisers. There is a need for individual reservations to operate their own stations," said Frank Blythe of Lincoln, Neb., executive director of the Native American Public Broadcasting Consortium.

The Indians asked for a television frequency for each of the 19 reservations with 3,000 or more residents and an AM and an FM radio frequency for each of the 54 Indian reservations with 1,000 or more residents.

Most of the reservations involved are west of the Mississippi. Gerald Wilkinson of Albuquerque, N.M., director of the National Indian Youth Council, said such Indian-owned and operated stations could materially raise the living standards of Indians on reservations.

"Unless Indian people develop their own media, not only will outsiders control our tribal affairs, but the hearts and minds of ourselves and our children as well," he said.

According to Wilkinson only six radio stations, of which only one is Indian-controlled, have substantial programming directed to Indians.

The petition was filed by the Native American Public Broadcasting Consortium, the National Indian Youth Council, the Native American Theological Association and four agencies of the United Church of Christ.

Reservations listed with populations of 3,000 or more included: Blackfeet, Mont.; Cherokee, N.C.; Cheyenne River, S.D.; Crow, Mont.; Fort Apache, Ariz.; Fort Peck, Mont.; Gila River, Ariz.; Hopi, Ariz.; Joint Use Area (Navajo and Hopi), Ariz.; Navajo, Ariz.-N.M.-Utah; Papago, Ariz.; Pine Ridge, S.D.; Rosebud, S.D.; San Carlos, Ariz.; Turtle Mountain, N.D.; Wind River, Wyo. and Zuni, N.M.

Listed as having populations of 1,000 to 3,000 were: Acoma (Acomita), N.M.; Allen Cayon, Utah; Colorado River, Ariz.-Calif.; Colville, Wash.; Flathead, Mont.; Fort Belknap, Mont.; Fort Berthold, N.D.; Fort Hall, Idaho; Fort Totten, N.D.; Greater Leech Lake, Minn.; Isleta, N.M.; Jemez, N.M.; Jicarilla, N.M.; Laguna, N.M.; Menominee, Wis.; Mescalero, N.M.; Northern Cheyenne, Mont.; Omaha, Neb.; Oneida, Wis.; Red Lake, Minn.; Rocky Bays, Mont.; St. Regis, N.Y.; San Felipe, N.M.; Santo Domingo, N.M.; Sisseton, N.D.-S.D.; Standing Rock, N.D.-S.D.; Uintah and Ouray, Utah; Warm Springs, Ore.; White Earth, Minn.; Yakima, Wash.

Scientists Near Solution Of Transplant Problem

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (UPI) — Scientists may be near a medical breakthrough that would allow human organs to be frozen and saved for later transplants, a leading biologist says.

Such a step would mean hospital patients needing transplants could obtain genetically compatible organs with little or no delay, Dr. Peter Mazur told a meeting of the Council for the Advancement of Science Writing here Tuesday.

Organs removed from a dead person normally must be transplanted within a matter of hours or they become useless, said Mazur, a biologist with the Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

But Mazur said work performed by him and Dr. Stanley Leibo, also of Oak Ridge, in the field of cryobiology — the study of how subzero temperatures affect living systems — means mankind one day may be able to control time, rather than the reverse.

He said six years ago he and Leibo and a British researcher successfully froze mouse embryos, then thawed them and implanted the eggs in foster mothers which gave birth to healthy mice.

That accomplishment, along with dramatic results in sperm preservation, moved the scientists to press harder in their efforts to freeze human organs and store them indefinitely, Mazur said.

Cryobiologic advances with mammalian embryos and fetal organs have made it likely that a human kidney, composed of a wide variety of cells, will be successfully preserved in the near future, he said.

But a major obstacle has to do with finding the right cooling and thawing range because different cells have different limitations. Mazur said another problem is that additives used in the freezing process, such as glycerol, can be toxic to certain cells.

Bodily rejection of transplanted organs, the most common problem in such

Magazines Get Dismissal Of Libel Suit

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A federal judge has dismissed a $17.2 million libel suit brought by two Laetrile advocates against Time, Inc., and U.S. News and World Report.

Donna W. Schuster and Donald E. Hanson, both of Rochester, Minn., had claimed that articles in the news magazines would be understood to refer to them, even though they were not mentioned by name.

Laetrile is a trademark for a substance derived from the chemical amygdalin, found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds.

Advocates claim Laetrile is an effective cancer treatment, but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the medical establishment in this country have said there is no proof it is of any value in treating cancer.

A June 1976 issue of U.S. News and World Report carried a discussion of the Laetrile controversy, entitled, "What the Health Quacks are Peddling Now."

Time magazine reported on federal indictments brought by a grand jury in San Diego May 1976. Nineteen persons, including Miss Schuster and Hanson, were charged with smuggling Laetrile.

The suit claimed the two Minnesotans were defamed because they are Laetrile distributors.

But in a decision filed this week, Judge Harry McLaughlin of U.S. District Court granted the magazine companies a judgment without trial. He said there are more than 1,000 Laetrile distributors in the United States and Miss Schuster and Hanson cannot claim they were individually defamed.

McLaughlin said the effectiveness of Laetrile as a cure for cancer is "an issue of public moment."

"To hold that statements commenting generally on the Laetrile controversy are of and concerning individuals prominent in the controversy would chill heated public debate into lukewarm pap," the judge added. "The First Amendment does not countenance such a deterrent to free speech."

Note In Bottle Found After 19-Year Float

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — A bottle, containing a message in English, French and Spanish, that was thrown into the sea 19 years ago and traveled an estimated 20,000 miles will be returned to the Chilean navy officer who "postulated" it on Sept. 9, 1959.

The bottle was found this week on a sandy beach on the south coast of Australia. The officer who threw it overboard while the ship Carlos Lemay was on an expedition between Cape Horn and Antarctica has gone a long way too. He is now a vice admiral in the Chilean navy. The note, written by Capt. de Corseto, asked the finder to return it to the Navigation Department in Chile.

operations, could be greatly reduced or possibly even eliminated through freezing, Mazur said.

Until recently, the biologist said, hopes for successfully preserving human organs were dim. Various advances in cryobiology, though, have bolstered hopes of accomplishing the feat soon.

Mazur said his research has other practical applications that may not be long in implementing. For example, he said, human embryos could be preserved to permit previously infertile women to bear children; new or improved species of animals could be raised in the United States by freezing embryos in other nations and importing them; and embryos of rare animals could be preserved to prevent their extinction.

Scientist Creates 'Gene Bank' To Save Endangered Plants

By JAMES J. DOYLE
IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — About 200 higher plant species become extinct each year and a University of California scientist has created a flower "gene bank" in an attempt to save some of the endangered plants.

"People know animals such as condors and whales are in danger of becoming extinct," Dr. Harold Koopowitz said. "It's very easy to emphasize with animals. The problem is much more severe with plants but it's not as easy to care about plants."

Koopowitz, an associate professor of biological sciences and director of the Arboretum at University of California, Irvine, said between 10 and 20 percent of all higher plant species are endangered.

Gene banks have been developed for some agricultural crops, he said, but he believes he has the only gene bank for flowers. He said he created the floral gene bank not only in an attempt to save certain species but also to promote new varieties of cultivated flowers.

"The gene bank is a coupling of art and science," he said. "We use scientific techniques to create the gene bank but the end result, flowers, is aesthetic."

The gene bank contains frozen seeds and pollen which are retrieved later. The seeds are collected, dried and sealed in a vacuum and then placed in cold storage, below 18 degrees centigrade, where they will keep for hundreds, even thousands, of years.

Population growth and the spread of communities are the cause of plant extinction, Koopowitz said.

"Much of the crisis is in the tropical areas which are being cleared at an unprecedented rate," he said. "By the turn of the century the only natural tropical area left will be the Amazonian area in South America."

"The African and Asian forests will be gone by then."

He cited Madagascar and Thailand as examples. Madagascar, once 90 percent forested, now has just 8 percent of its land forested. Thailand's forests have declined in 20 years from 75 percent of the country's land area to just 11 percent.

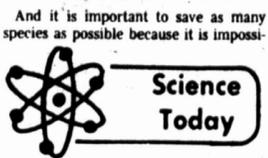

Koopowitz said that while the spread of population is the cause, he does not advocate restricting development.

"It's a pipe dream to think you can turn the world back to Eden," he said. "The demands for space won't go away."

He also said it would be an impossible task to save each plant species and reintroduce them to the wild. But it is possible to develop gene banks and preserve the plants in botanical gardens.

"People will have to get used to the idea that if they want to save all the species of plants and animals, some will have to be in botanical gardens and zoos."

The state of Vermont got its name from the French explorers who first saw the region in 1609 and called it Verd-Mont (green Mountain).

Science Today

And it is important to save as many species as possible because it is impossible to determine which plants will have significance in terms of food and medicine in the future.

He noted a South American yam that was used in the development of birth control pills until it was learned how to synthesize the product needed, and the periwinkle plant, now used in anti-cancer agents.

Koopowitz currently has a grant from the private Elvina S. Slosson Fund to create a gene bank for gladioli, the second most popular species in the world — second only to roses.

There are more than 180 species of gladioli in the wild, but only six are commonly used commercially.

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I suffer from gassy bowels very much. I read your article on cereal without milk and I bought a quart of ProSobee. It is helping me, but there is one drawback. I am wondering if it is too rich for me at age 67.

Each quart contains 640 kilocalories, and one kilocalorie equals 1,000 calories. Does that mean that a single quart contains 640,000 calories? I noticed also that it contains 0.1 percent of lecithin, which is egg yolk, and I am not supposed to use any of that. I have had open heart surgery and am very worried. If you can help me I would be very grateful.

DEAR READER — As far as worrying about calories and lecithin in ProSobee is concerned, you can pack up your troubles and quit worrying. You have fallen into the trap that so many people will do about the meaning of calories.

In engineering circles, one calorie is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one milliliter of water one degree centigrade. That's not an awful lot of energy. For that reason, the calories we speak of in terms of your daily diet, foods and so forth, are kilocalories.

If you were to eat a whole pound of lean, raw round steak with all the fat removed, it would only be about 600 calories. That really means 600 kilocalories. So when you talk about food and nutrition and you use the word calorie, remember everyone is talking about kilocalories. If you say a person consumes 2,000 calories a day, you really mean he should consume 2,000 kilocalories a day.

So ProSobee and other milk substitute products are not excessively high in calories. They compare favorably to milk. Incidentally, I am not recommending milk substitutes for everybody, just for those who have symptoms of milk intolerance and problems with consuming natural milk.

To give you more information about milk and milk intolerance, I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now, about lecithin. It is true you can find it in egg yolk, but lecithin is a separate substance in its own right and found in many other foods. Therefore, you should not think that when you see lecithin on a food label that it means the product contains egg yolk. It does not.

In summary, neither the calories nor the lecithin content or any other factors about its contents should keep you from using ProSobee. It is not the only milk substitute made from soybean products, however. There are other milk substitutes that are free of lactose. But it is perhaps one of the most widely available ones.

There is no advantage to using one of the milk substitutes over ordinary milk unless you do have lactose intolerance. The exception to this, of course, are babies who may be truly allergic to milk which is a different problem entirely.

One advantage of the milk substitutes made from soybeans is that they are low in saturated fat and contain no cholesterol. That might be important to you if your heart surgery was for coronary artery disease. These products often make a satisfactory no-cholesterol, low-saturated fat substitute for cream if you use an unadulterated can.

Scientists Achieve Task Of Turning Gas To Metal

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists have succeeded in forcing the element xenon momentarily into a metallic state, raising hopes that a metallic hydrogen could be created to serve as a superconductor or high-yield rocket fuel.

But Dr. Arthur L. Ruoff, head of the Cornell team which achieved the feat, emphasized Thursday that metallic hydrogen is still only theoretical and may never be produced.

Xenon, like hydrogen, is normally a gas at room temperature.

But Ruoff and his coworkers used a diamond anvil to squeeze a small sample of frozen xenon with a pressure 320,000 times greater than atmospheric pressure. The sample momentarily slipped into a metallic state that had been predicted by theory but never observed.

The change to a metallic state was detected when current began to flow between two microelectrodes on the diamond. Xenon normally is an insulator, not a conductor.

Ruoff cautioned that metallic xenon is probably of little practical use.

"As you take the pressure off, it reverts to solid insulating form. And it does that at quite high pressures so it doesn't stay around long," he said in a telephone interview from his home in Ithaca, N.Y.

But some scientists believe that a metallic hydrogen might remain relatively stable even after the pressure was released.

There are precedents for such things. Man-made diamonds are created by compressing carbon atoms into the tighter diamond configuration and they do not spring back into less compressed forms afterwards.

Ruoff's diamond anvil has been tested to about 1.4 million times atmospheric pressure, the pressure at which some scientists think hydrogen will go metallic.

But there is disagreement as to what the critical pressure would be or whether the substance would remain stable.

Ruoff's work is funded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which is seeking a new rocket fuel. Pellets of metallic hydrogen, with the tremendous stored energy they would contain, might be 10 times as efficient as hydrogen-oxygen fuels now in use, Ruoff said.

Another possible use would be as a superconductor. Metallic hydrogen is predicted to stay stable up to about minus-189 degrees Fahrenheit.

College Students Describe Bible

NEW YORK (AP) — "A key for today," "A constant standard for society," "Its impact on man's history cannot be measured." "The base of American law." "The assurance and inspiration we so desperately need." "A challenge ... the challenge of truth."

These are some of the descriptions offered by U.S. college students of that old classic, the Bible.

"It is the best book around," wrote Chris Kelley of Phoenix, Ariz., a sophomore at Texas Christian University who won first place in an essay contest sponsored by the National Laymen's Bible Committee.

The competition was part of the committee-sponsored annual Bible Week Nov. 19-26, also featuring an NBC-TV series of prime-time biblical dramas, billboard and publication ads, a non-stop public reading of the entire Bible, recommended morning and evening passages for people to read and a boosting message from President Carter.

Out of "firsthand experience," he said, "I know what a difference Bible reading can make in inspiring confidence, stability, reassurance and courage to deal with the challenges of everyday living."

Corinne Hamada of the University of Hawaii, who placed second in the essay contest, wrote that it's "too bad that more people don't take the Bible more seriously because the same individual and social diseases that plagued man 2,000 years ago are here today."

Citing the book's rich historical, dramatic, religious and literary resources, Bill Zimmerman of St. Bonaventure University wrote in the third-place essay that the Bible was "the basis for the growth of Western civilization. Its promise for the future may prove even more significant."

Janelle Hardin of the University of Wisconsin wrote: "The world doesn't have to be the way it is. Each person has at his disposal the means to change himself and the world. It's called the Bible."

"The most exciting book in life," wrote Gail Chester of Florida A&M University. "It is life."

Since "people cannot find meaning and purpose through drugs, alcohol, money, fame, power or sex, can it be found?" asked Fran Holmes of East Texas State University. "Yes ... in the Bible ... the only universal book."

"It is widely misunderstood because it is also widely unread," wrote Shannon Brennan of the University of North Carolina. "Reading the Bible requires thought, a very useful skill."

William Brent Allen of the University of North Carolina says the book "still addresses the basic questions of man," although the external trappings have changed.

The Bible, writes Craig Pittman of Troy State University, "is the beginning of hope and the end of futile despair."

The around-the-clock oral reading of the Bible, from Genesis to Revelation, starts at noon Saturday at New York City's Fashion Institute of Technology, with a succession of about 300 readers, including many celebrities. It's expected to take about 90 hours, through Wednesday.

Suggested Bible readings for the week, chosen by the chairman of the observance, Donald E. Procknow, president of the Western Electric Co. and a lay leader of Bergen Highlands Methodist Church in Upper Saddle River, N.J., are the following for morning and evening:

Nov. 19: Psalm 23 and Revelation 21:1-5; Nov. 20: Psalm 27 and James 5:13-16; Nov. 21: Exodus 20 and Matthew 5:1-16; Nov. 22: Genesis 8:13-22 and Second Timothy 2:15-16; Nov. 23: Deuteronomy 8:11-20 and John 1:1-18; Nov. 24: Psalm 145:8-9 and John 15:1-17; Nov. 25: Proverbs 3:13-20 and Matthew 6:19-34; Nov. 26: Psalm 100 and First Corinthians 2:6-16.

CHURCH RISES — Workmen build forms for the pouring of the concrete foundation of the Rev. Robert Schuller's Crystal Cathedral in Garden Grove, Calif. The $14 million church was the dream of Rev. When finished, the church will seat 2000 people and have a domed ceiling and walls of 10,000 windows. Rev. Schuller has raised money to build the church by selling each window for $500. Cultural Colonialism Apparently Fading

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
United Press International Writer

The cultural colonialism that has long marked the relationship of Christianity to native American or Indian religious and cultural life may soon be a thing of the past.

That, at least, is the conclusion of a new survey about to be published by the research arm of World Vision International, a Christian relief and humanitarian organization working in some 75 different countries.

The survey, looking at both secular and ecclesiastical developments, said it saw "a movement towards native American self-determination in the churches and missions."

"The most important fact brought forth by the survey is that the beginning of the end of the long colonial, subject status of the native American churches appears to be in sight," the survey said.

"Spaniard, Englishman, other Europeans, the Frenchmen to a less degree, and the American before and after independence all conquered the Indian, colonized him culturally and ecclesiastically as well as politically," the survey said. "The United States government used the (religious) missions to assimilate him."

It cited the new significance of the denominational American ecclesiastical jurisdictions which still remain exercise in their denomination as well as the development of native American churches in several denominations.

"The power of the purse strings still continues some colonial control," the survey said.

"The Roman Catholic Church still appears solidly colonial but the Federation of Catholic Indian Leaders and the National Association of Native Religious are signs of aspiration to self-determination, voice and influence," it said.

In the past decade, particularly in the churches, there has been a turning away from the idea of America as a "melting pot" of various ethnic groups to a celebration of ethnic diversity and an effort to recapture different cultural and religious traditions.

Among native American Christians, the survey found, there is increasing respect for native American religious traditions.

Takayama Harbors Variety Of Charms

TOKYO (UPI) — Known for many years as a "Little Kyoto," the city of Takayama harbors a variety of unique charms in the middle of the Hida Mountains, part of the Japan Alps National Park.

As its nickname indicates, Takayama has streets built in cross-bar design as in Kyoto, and its houses are prototypes of architectural excellence. Some avid travelers frequent the small city simply to see the Jinya, or "manor house," built during the Edo period.

The Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence were discovered by Jacques Cartier in 1534.

with some Indian pastors using the sacred corn and bread basket in the marriage ceremony, cradling burghies around the celebration of a baby's first laugh or admitting medicine men into church membership and allowing them to offer prayers.

But the survey did find that while mainline Protestant churches' white personnel in the field did not oppose accommodation of Christianity and traditional Indian religion, some Indian ministers and lay leaders did oppose making the two because they had been "indoctrinated against their heritage by the former generation of missionaries."

Among the statistics, the World Vision survey found there is a native American Christian community of 200,000, divided between 22,000 Catholics (mostly in Alaska), 120,000 Protestants and 177,000 Roman Catholics.

According to World Vision, this represents about 4 percent of the total native American population of 700,000 but does not adequately reflect "hard core" membership which is considerably less.

The World Vision survey is the most comprehensive look at missionary activity among native Americans ever undertaken but points to the future of such activities even while chronicling the past.

Religion Roundup

Contributions Up

NEW YORK (AP) — A new survey by the National Council of Churches finds that a decreased membership in 10 major Protestant denominations is giving more than ever.

Contributions to those denominations kept pace with inflation last year, increasing 6.6 percent. The increase was smaller than in 1976, however, when it outstripped inflation by more than 1 percent.

Continues ERA Ban

NEW YORK (AP) — The governing board of the National Council of Churches has voted to continue holding its meetings only in states which have ratified the Equal Rights Amendment.

Ritual Not Endorsed

DENVER (AP) — The "Supreme Court" of the United Methodist Church says a publication by the church's Board of Discipleship providing a worship service on the occasion of divorce does not carry the denomination's endorsement.

The church's governing General Conference has not given the board "or any of its units power or authority to amend or create new official rituals," the church's Judicial Council ruled.

The Rev. Hoyt Hickman of the board's worship section said it "had no intention" of trying to establish an official ritual, but only had issued "unofficial worship resources" based on examples of what some churches are doing.

Missionaries Feel Crunch

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A Southern Baptist leader says the declining value of the U.S. dollar, coupled with worldwide inflation, is putting a crunch on American missionary activity.

Sex Versus Sexuality

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — A Southern Baptist leader says too much television deals with sex instead of sexuality.

The Rev. Harry N. Hollis Jr. of the denomination's Christian Life Commission told a symposium that TV handling of the subject was "sexploitation."

Septien Joins Church

DALLAS (AP) — Place-kicker Raphael Septien of the Dallas Cowboys became the 20,000th member of the First Baptist Church at services honoring its pastor, the Rev. W.A. Criswell, for his 50 years in the ministry.

Aid For Mill Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interreligious Committee of General Secretaries, including top executives of the major national Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish organizations, has urged President Carter to provide "substantial federal assistance" to an effort by an eccumenical coalition to finance reopening of the closed-down Youngstown, Ohio, steel mill.

Religious Council Seeks Asylum For Refugees

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
 NEW YORK (AP) — A veteran fighter for the victims of religious oppression in communist-ruled Eastern Europe, the Rev. Blahoslav Hruby, has pushed through another punch, despite procedural efforts to deflect it.

"This is a firm suitable for action," a committee of the National Council of Churches demurred in suggesting that Hruby's proposed appeal be shelved.

But Hruby, 57, a Czech-born Protestant minister with wide contacts in the Soviet orbit, put the matter before the council's governing board of 280 denominational representatives from across the country.

"It's tragic, the persecutions these brave and gentle fellow Christians have suffered for their faith," he said. "For the sake of God's justice, we must do what we can to help."

With that, the representatives of most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches overrode the committee and voted to take the steps advocated by Hruby, head of the Research Center for Religion and Human Rights in Closed Societies.

The council sent a letter to President Carter, urging him to extend asylum to the seven Pentecostals who have taken refuge since last June in the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

Hruby, who also edits the documentary journal Religion in Communist Dominated Areas, said those in the embassy are among 200 Soviet Pentecostal families who seek to emigrate to the United States to escape years of harassment and persecution.

Many have served time in labor camps and psychiatric hospitals and have seen their families forcibly separated for "re-education" of their children, he said.

In its letter, the council offered to allocate $2,000 for maintenance of the seven in the embassy, and suggested that two Soviet U.N. employees recently convicted of spying in the United States be exchanged for the seven and for 11 other believers in Soviet prisons or concentration camps.

Those listed included Eastern Orthodox, Jewish and Baptist prisoners, among them the Rev. Georgi Vins and his son, Peter, imprisoned descendants of a long line of dissenting Baptist preachers.

At Hruby's urging, the council also dispatched a letter to President Gustav Husak of Czechoslovakia, pleading for release of the imprisoned Rev. Jan Simsa, ailing leader of the Evangelical Church of Czech Brethren.

Both he and his father, Jozef Simsa, a Czech Christian who died in the Nazi's Dachau concentration camp, where he was sent for underground activities to help Jews escape, were pre-war friends of Hruby.

Hruby himself, who escaped the Nazi occupation of Czechoslovakia with a French visa after working with the French resistance, later served in the American OSS until war's end. He regularly gets smuggled documents and letters from contacts throughout Eastern Europe, translates and them publishes them.

Asked how he keeps in touch with his sources, he says, "In all kinds of ways, but we don't talk about that. In the past few years, it's been much easier. People have more courage now."

"I think (exiled Russian writer Alexander) Solzhenitsyn was an inspiration to them."

Hruby, a balding, bespectacled man

RIVER LORE
 Missouri has endeared itself to generations of Americans with its river lore, folk tales, and especially the writings of Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemens). Statues of two of his creations, Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, stand in Hannibal, his boyhood home. His birthplace near Florida, Mo., has been enshrined in Mark Twain State Park.

sometimes called the "cold warrior," said there is a "growing spirit of resistance and solidarity" among suppressed believers and intellectuals throughout the communist world.

"I still hope for a profound change in all these countries, without a war," he said. "But we have to continue the struggle, to stand up for freedom not only for Christians but for political dissenters."

FIGHTS OPPRESSION — The Rev. Blahoslav Hruby, in a continuing campaign against oppression in communist-ruled Eastern Europe, has pushed through another punch — this time to try for asylum for seven Pentecostals who have taken refuge since last June in the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. (AP Laserphoto)

IRS Guidelines Rile Churches

The Internal Revenue Service, in an effort to crack down on private schools set up to avoid school desegregation, has

Catholic PR Plan Draws Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some leaders of the Roman Catholic Church want to launch a $7 million annual public relations campaign aimed at making better use of the mass media in spreading church doctrine in the United States.

But many of the 250 U.S. bishops are reluctant to approve the plan, saying it may be unwise in an era of tax revolts and tight budgets.

The proposed public relations program failed to get the required two-thirds approval this week at the fall meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

However, some at the meeting say the vote, which was not made public, was so close the final outcome may rest on the polling of bishops not present during the vote.

The bishops also rejected — by six votes — a proposed change in procedures involving Holy Communion. It would have allowed Roman Catholics to receive both the consecrated wafer, or bread, and wine at regular Sunday masses. Just the wafer is given now except on special occasions.

Supporters of the change challenged the vote on grounds no provisions were made to identify absent bishops so they could be polled later.

Joseph Crowley of South Bend, Ind., whose communications committee strongly endorsed the public relations proposal, blamed the close vote on "a kind of Proposition 13 mentality of cutting down expenses."

The proposal, which also failed last year, would ask parishioners for an annual special collection. Half the money would remain in the local diocese with the rest used nationally.

The specific programs are yet to be developed, but supporters envision a broadening of Catholic radio and television spot announcements, increased financing of dramatic programs on television, beefing up public relations offices and a general increase in the use of the mass media.

Supporters of the plan argue that Catholics have fallen behind other church groups in media spending. A recent report noted, for example, that smaller organizations such as the United Methodist Church, the Southern Baptist Convention and the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association are spending from $2 million to $7 million a year for production, promotion and distribution of radio and television programs.

By contrast the Roman Catholic Church is spending about $2.2 million on media this year, with half of that going for operation of a national Catholic news service for church papers.

Men Becoming More Fashion Conscious

NEW YORK (AP) — Men's clothing is now as vulnerable to fashion changes as women's clothing, says Marvin A. Bielement of Apri-Marcus, a merchandising consulting firm.

"The situation in men's fashions is now similar to that in the women's field: an item is either the greatest or it's dead," the apparel expert says. "The great right now is dressier clothing. In suits it's the natural shoulder look, and designer clothing is also in."

proposed a set of guidelines to enforce its non-discrimination procedures that has the nation's churches nearly up in arms.

The intent of the proposed rules, announced last August by the IRS, do not trouble the churches. They all say they would like to see an end to racial discrimination in the schools, too.

But they are troubled by how the new procedures would work in terms of their parochial schools and by the more generalized fear that the IRS is increasingly and aggressively breaching the wall of separation of church and state.

In general, the proposed IRS guidelines shift the burden of proof from the government having to show schools guilty of racial discrimination to the schools having to actively prove they do not discriminate.

James E. Wood, executive director of the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, a coalition of eight Baptist denominations, said that his organization would "normally... commend well-intentioned efforts by the government to eliminate racial segregation in education."

But, he added, if the IRS proposals are put into effect, the result would be "a direct affront to the religion clauses of the First Amendment."

The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, which has some 1,455 parochial schools related to the denomination, agreed and said the proposed guidelines were "fundamentally defective."

Lutheran schools, he said, "have conscientiously followed the non-discriminatory policies and procedures" of earlier IRS guidelines, said Dr. Al Senzke, Missouri Synod Secretary for Elementary and Secondary Schools.

He noted that most Missouri Synod schools draw their students from congregations and the racial composition of the student body would reflect the congregation rather than the community.

The IRS proposals say the racial composition must reflect the racial composition of the public school district within which it is located.

For similar reasons, Roman Catholics also objected to this provision.

George E. Reed, general counsel of the U.S. Catholic Conference, noted that Roman Catholic schools exist on the basis of the geographic boundaries of a parish, not a public school district.

He also argued that the IRS, in defining geographic community failed to consider the fact that the religious preferences of minority parents are a factor in determining the enrollment of their children in church-related schools.

Since there are more black Roman Catholics than Missouri Synod Lutherans, for example, it is likely that black Roman Catholic parents would choose a Roman Catholic school rather than a Missouri Synod school. Even more might choose a Baptist school.

Reed also argued that under the First Amendment, the schools have a right to prefer members of their own religion both for enrollment and employment.

"Religious preference is not and cannot be equated with racial discrimination," he said.

The IRS proposals have raised such an alarm among the churches that the federal agency has agreed to hold a public hearing in December to let the churches and other opponents air their objections.

When the proposed guidelines and procedures were first made public, IRS Commissioner Jerome Kurtz indicated the proposals were not important enough to require public hearings.

The outcry from the churches changed his mind.

CHRISTMAS LEGENDS

O CHRISTMAS TREE!

The Christmas Tree comes to us from Germany. There are many beautiful legends about its origin.

One tells that on the first Christmas Eve, the winter trees bloomed as if it were springtime.

Another legend says that Martin Luther, the stern reformer, lighted candles on a small fir tree to show his little son how the starry heavens must have looked on that first silent Christmas Eve.

Still another legend tells of a wandering child who was taken into the home of a poor forester, fed, and tucked into a warm bed. In the morning the child was seen to be the Christ Child Himself. Before He left the humble cottage, He put an evergreen twig in the ground and promised that it would grow to be a tall tree that would, ever after, bring plenty to the forester and his family.

The German song "O TANNENBAUM!" honors the Christmas Tree.

Drama Troupe To Perform

The Covenant Players, a religious drama troupe based in California, will present a program at First United Methodist Church and University Baptist Church Sunday.

Methodists To Hold Gathering

Four bishops of the United Methodist Church will participate in a Bishop's Area Convocation on Missional Priorities.

The event, to be held Nov. 27-28 at the First United Methodist Church, will discuss world hunger, evangelism and ethnic minorities.

The event is for all ministers, all lay delegates to the Northwest Texas and New Mexico Annual Conferences of the United Methodist Church, local church, district and annual conference Council on Ministries members and local church members of the two annual conferences.

The event begins at 3:30 p.m. Nov. 27 with an area staff, cabinet and Task Force chairpersons meeting in the conference room at the Northwest Texas Annual Conference building, 1415 Ave. M.

A Missional Priority Rally is slated at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 27 in First United Methodist Church.

Bishop Alsie H. Carleton, of the Northwest Texas Annual and New Mexico Conferences, is presiding at the event.

Bishop Leroy C. Hodapp of the Illinois Area will speak at the 7:30 p.m. Nov. 27 rally on Missional Priority on Evangelism.

The event will resume at 9 a.m. Nov. 28 in the First United Methodist Church with a visit to literature and resource displays, followed by a worship service from 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.

Bishop L. Scott Allen of the Charlotte, N.C., Area will discuss Missional Priority on Ethnic Minority Local Church at 10:30 a.m. Nov. 28.

Bishop C. Dale White of the New Jersey Area will discuss Missional Priority on World Hunger at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 28, followed by a closing period of worship at 3 p.m. Nov. 28.

A meeting of the three task forces, Ethnic Minority Local Church, World Hunger and Evangelism, is scheduled at 3:15 p.m. Nov. 28.

Brower Family To Conduct Local Revival

"The Jerry Brower Family" will be in revival services at University Assembly of God, 4800 University Ave., Sunday through Tuesday.

The Sunday services will be at 9:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. and weekday services will be at 7:30 p.m. daily.

Evangelist Jerry Brower, along with his wife, Eleanor, and their three teenage sons, Ricky, Tony, and Eddie, compose the musical-evangelistic team.

Brower has been in the ministry since 1958 and has traveled in approximately 26 countries and islands as a missionary.

The family has traveled many thousands of miles from Hollywood, Calif., to the Carolinas, from Alaska to the Gulf of Mexico. They have ministered in song and preaching in city auditoriums, schools, churches, conventions and camps.

The Brower Family has a television ministry, "Sounds of His Coming," which is broadcast on stations in the United States and have recorded tapes and records throughout the years. The evangelist's three sons, The Brower Brothers, have their own ministry of song to youth.

Chapel To Present Concert By Group

"The Internationals," a well-known group of musicians who tour throughout the United States and abroad, are presenting a concert at 7 p.m. Sunday in Grace Chapel, 4501 University Ave.

An inter-denominational organization, now in its tenth year, "The Internationals" have appeared in churches, concert halls, educational institutions and on radio and television. The group also has recorded many record albums.

There are two active groups in the organization of young Christians. One tours the eastern part of the United States and Europe and the other the western states and the Orient.

James L. Greer, their director, has headed the organization since its inception in 1969.

at 7:30 p.m. in First United Methodist Church.

The Covenant Players organization was formed in 1963 by Charles Tanner, a member of the Screen Producers Guild of Hollywood, Calif., and since that time the players have performed in all 50 states, Europe and Canada. They are divided into several road companies that have given more than 65,000 performances.

The group that will be performing in Lubbock includes Jim Morton from Dallas, Bettina Hammond and Dennis Hoenig from Michigan, Karen Mayner from British Columbia, and Annette Trepanier from Ontario.

Highlights of their many tours include performances in crowded hospital aisles for wounded men back from the Vietnam War, performances on airplanes in flight, and presentations on ox-carts at HemisFair '68.

The prime purpose of the group is to offer drama as a means of communication, a spokesman said. None of the plays, which number 900, seek to identify any particular kind of theology, but are written to focus thought on the complexities of modern living, the spokesman added.

Through a program of short vignettes, they present Christianity as a dynamic force demanding the very best that is in us at all times, the spokesman said.

According to the spokesman, the company is the world's largest touring theatre company, world's largest repertory theatre company, and world's largest Christian drama company.

The public is invited to attend the performances by The Covenant Players. There is no charge for admission.

Childress Thanksgiving Service Set Sunday

A-J Correspondent
CHILDRESS—The annual community Thanksgiving service for Childress has been slated at 7 p.m. Sunday in Childress' First United Methodist Church.

Principal speaker for the service this year will be Rev. Joe Allen, pastor of Childress' First Baptist Church. His associate pastor, Reg Madison, will be in charge of music for the program.

Featured during the Thanksgiving program will be a community choir, composed of singers from church choirs throughout the community, and the Childress First Baptist Church children's choir, which will present several selections.

The program also will include a report concerning the Childress Ministerial Alliance's project of help to needy transients. The report will be given by Rev. Joe Walker, pastor of King Memorial United Methodist Church in Childress.

The community Thanksgiving service is presented annually by the Childress Ministerial Alliance. Rev. Frank Ferrell, pastor of Central Christian Church in Childress, is president of the group. Host pastor for the service is the Rev. James Price of Childress' First United Methodist Church.

TO PERFORM HERE — The Wayland Baptist College Band from Plainview will present a concert at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in Elgin Avenue Baptist Church, 6402 Elgin Ave. The group will perform a sacred music concert and will have the entire Sunday evening worship service program at Elgin Avenue Baptist Church.

Popular Gospel Music Groups To Make Lubbock Appearance

The Statesmen, the Florida Boys and the Hinsons, three of the most popular groups in gospel music, are presenting a concert at 8 p.m. today in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium on the Texas Tech University campus.

The Statesmen, composed of Hovie Lister, Jake Hess, Rosie Rozell and Chris Hess, have been performing on the gospel music circuit 25 years.

The Florida Boys have had their song, "Standing On the Solid Rock," as the number one gospel music song for five months. They have a television program, "Gospel Singing Jubilee," which is aired on stations throughout the United States.

The Hinsons have been working four years as professionals in the gospel music profession.

The group, which began in Salinas, Calif., has had four songs in one album in the national gospel popularity charts, at least one record in the national Top 20 gospel music charts at all times during the past three years, won both the Singing News award and the Dove Award for the same song in a single year, and was one of the five final nominees for the 1975 Dove Award classification, Best Mixed Group.

The group works out of a home base in Nashville, Tenn. Currently the members perform more than 200 days each year at fairs, concerts, festivals and churches.

For the past two years they have been regular members of the Florida Boys' television series, "Gospel Singing Jubilee." They first began working as a unit in 1969. Three Hinson brothers, Ronny, Kenny, and Larry and their sister, Yvonne, moved to Kentucky in 1972.

About a year ago, their sister Yvonne, left the group and was replaced by Miss Chris Hawkins. The three Hinson brothers and Miss Hawkins do most of the singing and the rest of the eight persons in the group are instrumental accompanists.

Former A-J Staffer Gets Post

ATLANTA, GA. (Special) — Celeste Loucks, a former staff member of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, has been promoted to editor of book publication services at the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, effective Nov. 3.

She currently is assistant editor of "Home Missions" magazine for the Southern Baptist General Convention, a position she has held since 1975.

Miss Loucks, elected during the November meeting of the board of directors of the board, succeeds Elaine Furlow, book editor since 1974 who has relocated in Washington, D.C.

Phyllis Faulkenbury, editorial assistant for the book editor since 1977, will become assistant editor of "Home Missions" magazine.

Miss Loucks worked for The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal four years in general assignment and medical writing. She is graduate of Baylor University with a bachelor's degree in journalism and English, and has worked as editorial assistant for "Contempo" magazine, a Woman's Missionary Union publication of the convention.

Episcopal Mission Formed In City

The Church of the Holy Cross is a newly-formed Episcopal mission in the city.

More than 20 families, who compose the congregation, are currently meeting in the Melanie Park South Home Owners Associates building at 74th Street and Indiana Avenue.

The church is served by Rev. Robert Granfeldt and meets each Sunday at 11 a.m. for worship.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Ron McJendon at 799-7216 or Rev. Granfeldt at 762-3934.

SAM ROBERTSON

FCA To Sponsor Dad's Day Event

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes is sponsoring a Dad's Day Breakfast at 8 a.m. Saturday in Furr's Cafeteria, 4th Street and University Avenue.

Special guest speaker is Sam Robertson, defensive coordinator for the Texas Tech University football team. Also scheduled to participate in the Dad's Day Breakfast program are a Texas Tech girl and boy athlete, who are giving their Christian testimony.

All area junior high, senior high and college athletes in the organization are invited to attend the breakfast and bring their parents.

Deadline Set For Stories

Due to the Thanksgiving holidays, deadlines for submitting stories for the weekend religion pages of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal have been changed.

This week the deadline for submitting stories for the weekend religion pages will be before 5 p.m. Tuesday, one day earlier than the usual deadline.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible

Luke 5:18-28. The Living Bible

They tried to push through the crowd to Jesus but couldn't reach him. So they went up on the roof above him, took off some tiles and lowered the sick man down into the middle of the crowd, still on his sleeping mat, right in front of Jesus!

20 Seeing their faith, Jesus said to the man, "My friend, your sins are forgiven!"

21 "Who does this fellow think He is?" the Pharisees and teachers of the Law exclaimed among themselves. "This is blasphemy! Who but God can forgive sins?"

22 Jesus knew what they were thinking, and He replied, "Why is it blasphemy?

23 Which is easier for Me to do, to say I have forgiven his sins, or to actually heal him?"

24 Now I will prove My authority to forgive sin by demonstrating My power to heal disease." Then He said to the paralyzed man, "Get up, roll up your sleeping mat and go on home!"

25 And immediately, as everyone watched, the man jumped to his feet, picked up his mat and went home praising God!

26 Everyone present was gripped with awe and fear. And they praised God, remarking over and over again, "We have seen strange things today."

27 Later on, as He left the town, He saw a tax collector—with the usual reputation for cheating—sitting at a collection booth. The man's name was Levi. Jesus said to him, "Come and be one of My disciples!"

28 So Levi left everything, sprang up and went with Him!

School Board Cuts Back On Insurance Benefits

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The city's 3,200 public-school employees, whose tax-paid health insurance plan has been criticized as too liberal, will find their fringe benefits cut Jan. 1.

Lubbock Independent School District trustees say they no longer can afford the kind of coverage that teachers and other district workers have been getting.

"It was a mistake to ever get into this," said school board member Harold Harriger, who two years ago warned his colleagues against such a broad group-health insurance program.

"The essential problem is just what we had anticipated. The cost of maintaining this coverage is way too high — and it will keep getting higher," Harriger said.

The premium that the school system would have to pay to keep the same coverage has increased more than 60 percent since the plan was adopted in mid-1976 in lieu of cost-of-living pay raises that year.

To hold down the cost, the school board last year trimmed insurance benefits slightly by requiring employees to foot a $50 deductible on hospital expenses.

Despite that change, the same plan for 1979 would cost local taxpayers about $200,000 more in premiums, Harriger said.

"There is no way we can afford that," school board president Charles Waters said. "The money simply isn't in the budget."

So the board voted unanimously Thursday to cut back on insurance benefits, and thus avoid an increase in premiums, by having employees pay a greater share of their medical and hospital bills.

In the alternative, school employees may continue enjoying the 1978-style benefits if they shell out $6 a month from their own pockets to supplement the district-paid premium, the board said.

"We really didn't have any choice. Our budget could not absorb the spiraling cost of the program," Waters said.

The school district's contract with the health-insurance carrier, Blue Cross-Blue Shield, expires Dec. 31. The changes in coverage take effect with the start of the new year, school trustees said.

As devised in 1976, the school district would pay the entire premium of the insurance plan and employees would get "first-dollar coverage."

Under that kind of coverage, Blue Cross-Blue Shield paid all hospitalization expenses without imposing a deductible or requiring employees to pay a percentage of the costs.

On non-hospital medical bills, costs were shared. Employees paid the first $100 for doctor visits, out-patient treatment and services not included in regular hospital rates, plus 20 percent of subsequent charges. The most a worker could be required to pay, including the deductible, was $600.

Through calendar year 1977, the above kind of coverage cost the school system $14.71 per employee a month.

For 1978, Blue Cross said the rate would jump to $18.00. "We should have admitted then that we couldn't afford first-dollar coverage," Harriger said.

Instead, the school board authorized the carrier to charge school employees a $50 deductible on hospital stays. This held the monthly per-worker premium to $17.80.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield now says that to maintain the identical coverage for next year will cost the school district $23.72 a month per employee. That is where Harriger, who served with Brad Crawford as the school board's insurance study committee, drew the line.

"We don't have the money in the budget and we'd be hard put to find it," Harriger said. When the school board drafted a budget for the 1978-79 year, the board budgeted for only the current level of premiums, he said.

To keep the monthly per-employee premium at $17.80 for next year, the school board made two changes in the plan:

—The deductible on non-hospital medical expenses was raised from $100 to $300.

—Besides paying the $50 deductible on hospital bills, employees also will be charged 20 percent of subsequent hospital expenses.

However, excluding deductibles, the most an employee can be charged for hospital and medical expenses is $500, the same as under the current plan.

For this reason, Superintendent Ed Irons said the board's action is "not that drastic a change." The maximum an employee could be required to pay next year is $750, compared with $650 this year.

Some school trustees said they suspect teachers and other school employees may try to persuade the board to restore the more liberal coverage for 1980 when next year's budget is drafted.

Employees may continue receiving current coverage if they supplement the district-paid $17.80 with $5.92 of their own each month, the school board said.

Overall, at the $17.80 rate, insurance premiums will cost the school district about $600,000 from local taxes. (Another $100,000 or so will be paid out of federal and state grants for employees under special contracts.)

Had the board agreed to continue present coverage at the $23.72 rate, the local cost would have been about $800,000.

Judge Reduces Suspect's Bail

Dist. Judge William R. Shaver Thursday reduced bail for an aggravated kidnapping defendant from $20,000 to $3,000, after the state failed to put on any evidence at a brief hearing.

Obtaining the lowered bond was Roberto Martinez, 18, of 1109 40th St., accused of abducting a 22-year-old city woman at knife-point Sept. 16.

Defense attorney Floyd Holder presented testimony from the defendant and members of his family to the effect that money to post a $20,000 bond was beyond the defendant's resources. Holder then recommended the reduction to $3,000.

Although presenting no testimony, Asst. Dist. Atty. Rick Howell urged Shaver to consider the nature of the offense with which Martinez was charged.

Shaver then noted that he had seen no evidence concerning the alleged aggravated circumstances in the case to which Howell referred. Indicating that he could rule only on the basis of evidence elicited before him, Shaver then granted the defense request for the $3,000 bond.

The complainant in the case had told police she had gone to a bar to pick up her boyfriend. She said a man accosted her outside the establishment and forced her at knife-point into her own car, directing her to drive to an East Lubbock cemetery.

Once there, she said, she obeyed the assailant's order to remove her shirt, bra and jeans. A pickup truck drove into the cemetery, she said, and the man reportedly allowed her to drive away. The woman said she was allowed to put her shirt back on.

The woman said that, as the auto was crossing some railroad tracks, she put the vehicle into the park position, grabbed her purse, got out and started running.

Police reportedly were notified after the woman went into an office building to telephone for help.

Police reported they later stopped a vehicle driven by Martinez because of possible traffic violations. The officers said they then noticed several items of women's apparel and a knife inside the car.

Officers said they subsequently checked and found the car belonged to a woman who later was learned to be the complainant. Reports said the woman identified the defendant as the man who allegedly abducted her.

Howell said no evidence was put on by the prosecution because of a difficulty in lining up witnesses.

Policemen File Suit Against Commission

Two Lubbock police officers Thursday filed suit with the city's Firemen's and Policemen's Civil Service Commission, claiming the commission illegally deprived them of seniority points in a promotional examination.

Plaintiffs James H. Taylor and Ralph R. Bowen Jr. are asking 237th District Judge John R. McFall to void the alleged action.

According to the petition, both men were employed as officers, quit the force, and later rejoined. They claim that, according to statutes, they should be given seniority credit points for their total period of service.

The petition indicates plaintiffs originally were given credit for total time of service after an Oct. 19 test for candidates seeking the position of corporal. Taylor was placed first and Bowen fifth on a subsequent eligibility list posted by the city personnel department, the suit says.

Five other officers reportedly then protested the seniority credit given to the plaintiffs.

The suit says that, at a Nov. 7 civil service commission meeting, one commissioner moved not to award plaintiffs credit for all time served in order to encourage continuous service.

Subsequently, the suit indicates, a revamped eligibility list was prepared, and plaintiffs were not given credit for total time of service.

The suit says the city attorney's office had advised the civil service commission that it interpreted civil statutes as calling for awarding seniority credit points for total time served, whether interrupted or not.

Both plaintiffs reportedly were re-employed by the department Oct. 3, 1977. Taylor had earlier served from May 1, 1968, until Oct. 25, 1974, and Bowen from Jan. 2, 1972, until Aug. 2, 1974, according to the petition.

SPS Receives Award

Southwestern Public Service Co. has been selected by Electric Light and Power magazine to receive its National Utility of the Year Award for 1978.

Electric Light and Power, a subsidiary of Dunn and Bradstreet, each year picks a utility company which they consider outstanding among the nation's utilities, to receive special recognition.

Southwestern Public Service was runner-up last year.

The award will be presented at a noon luncheon today at the Villa Inn in Amarillo.

Some 250 persons will attend the program, including news executives, city officials and Chamber of Commerce representatives.

The award is based on Electric Light and Power's assessment of the utility company's day-to-day operations as well as management and financing factors.

Southwestern Public Service, while relatively small compared to some of the nation's giants, was chosen over all other utility companies in the U.S. for the award.

Burglary Suspects Charged

Two Lubbock men who allegedly led police on an early-morning, high-speed chase before being arrested were charged Thursday with burglary.

Named in the charges were James Loggins Jr., 24, of 2408 E. 20th St., and Mitchell S. McCowan, 19, of 2105 E. 20th St.

The Criminal District Attorney's office recommended a $50,000 bond for Loggins. Records indicate Loggins was assessed a five-year penitentiary term in 1977 after pleading guilty to a burglary charge. According to records, he had been assessed a five-year probation term in 1970 for felony theft, with that probation revoked at the time of the burglary plea.

The two are accused of burglarizing the Radio Shack at 6203 Indiana Ave. early Thursday. Approximately $2,000 worth of merchandise was reported stolen.

The suspects were arrested about six miles north of Tahoka after a reported high-speed chase on U.S. 67.

Reports indicate Sgt. James Fielding had spotted the suspects' vehicle eastbound on 82nd Street shortly after the burglary was reported.

Sgt. James McCauley and Officer Troy Coon joined the chase, reports indicated.

Fielding and Coon reported they fired at the vehicle several times. Reports said the right rear tire of the vehicle was shot and that the car went into a cotton field. Officers said the suspects were captured after attempting to flee on foot.

German Spending Up In America

WEST GERMANY, West Germany (UPI) — West Germans visiting the United States last year spent about $380 million, 26.7 percent more than they spent in 1976, the U.S. Tourist Service office in Frankfurt reported.

The number of West German tourists in 1977 did not increase much over the 1976 figure of 365,000, but the tourist office said it expects more than 425,000 West German visitors to the U.S. in 1978.

Mart Gains Despite Indications NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved broadly higher today in quiet trading despite indications that the rising cost of credit is far from its peak.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial was ahead by 2.34 at 796.52. Advances led declines by better than 4-1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

A few major New York and regional banks earlier this week had raised their prime lending rate 1/4 point to 11 percent. Today, the higher rate spread to Citibank — usually the pace-setter in interest-rate moves — and others. In Singapore, meanwhile, Bank of America Vice Chairman Leland S. Prussia predicted a 12 percent prime rate within six months.

Higher interest rates — traditionally a stock market depressant — are seen by the Federal Reserve as a weapon against inflation because they can cut consumer demand.

Boeing was down 1/4 at 82 1/2. Sears Roebuck was unchanged at 20 1/4 and General Motors was unchanged at 54 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index rose 28 to 52.37, at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 1.57 to 142.60.

GM Closes Plant For Changeover

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — General Motors Corp. says its Willow Run assembly plant will cease production tonight for a two-month changeover to a new type of 1980 automobiles.

The plant had been building Buick, Chevrolet, Oldsmobile and Pontiac cars. It will no longer build Pontiacs when it resumes production.

GM has plans to introduce a new car, known only as the "X" type, as early as May for the 1980 model year.

Jurors Meet In Trial Of CIA Clerk

By ROBERT LEE ZIMMER

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP) — A U.S. District Court jury, stymied in its first deliberating session, resumed efforts today to reach a verdict in the espionage trial of William Kampiles, a former CIA clerk accused of selling a top-secret satellite manual to a Soviet agent.

After about 5 1/2 hours of deliberations Thursday night and early this morning, jury members recessed until 9:30 a.m. when they returned from their hotel to resume discussions.

In closing arguments Thursday, Kampiles' attorney, Michael Monaco, said the government had failed to prove his client stole a top secret document or sold it to the Soviets.

"Their entire case rests on statements elicited from Mr. Kampiles," said Monaco, referring to Kampiles' Aug. 15 confession.

Kampiles has recanted the confession "I never had any classified documents in my possession — ever," Kampiles testified. But he offered no explanation for why he confessed to the FBI.

But U.S. Attorney David Reidy has portrayed Kampiles as a young man who tried to take a shortcut to his goal of being a double agent.

The 23-year-old former CIA clerk is accused of stealing a copy of a top-secret technical manual for the KH-11 satellite surveillance system. Using photographs from outer space, the system monitors troop and equipment movements.

The defense contends Kampiles — who worked for the CIA from March to November 1977 — hoped the CIA would hire him as a double agent if he could fool the Russians into thinking he was on their side.

Mishap Injures Two City Men

Two Lubbock men remained hospitalized today from injuries sustained Thursday when the small pickup truck in which they were riding was in collision with a 1973 Chevrolet Impala about 8:15 p.m. at Parkway Drive and Quirt Avenue.

Danny Love, 22, of 2307 E. 3rd St. was listed in satisfactory condition today at Health Sciences Center Hospital with a fractured femur suffered when he was trapped between the seat and dashboard of the truck.

The driver of the truck, 40-year-old Edmund Turner, also of 2307 E. 3rd St., was scheduled for surgery for head and neck injuries today at Highland Hospital.

J.D. Gant, 51, of 2213 E. 7th St., the driver of the car, was not seriously hurt.

Raiders Entertain Ponies

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor
"Mike Ford?" said Rex Dockery, as he turned two words into a question. "We've got to score some points to win."
Dockery and his Texas Tech Red Raiders will be playing more than one man here Saturday afternoon. But, Dockery and his Raiders know that the one man that makes the SMU team go is the young man from Mesquite.
Ford, the 225-pound sophomore quarterback, will lead the Mustangs into Jones Stadium for a 2 p.m. battle, and despite his size, Ford thinks the shortest distance to the goal is through the air.
Ford, the nation's No. 1 total offense producer and No. 2 passer, is the prime reason that the Mustangs are 4-1 for the season, have tied Ohio State, scared Penn State and turned the SMU program into a contender.

And, the Ford-led Mustangs will be out to keep Texas Tech from extending its winning streak. At the same time, Tech will be out to prevent the Mustangs from reaching a winning record this year.
This team confrontation, as well as some individual battles, are the reasons more than 47,000 fans are expected to crowd into Jones Stadium for the game.

Tech will come into the game with a 5-3 record, and it has won its last four in a row. SMU is 4-4 and reaching for its first winning season under coach Ron Meyer. There are even some rumors of a bowl bid.
But, to prevent the Ford machine from flying out of Jones Stadium, Dockery said, "We have to play ball control. We have to keep the football away from him."

"Defensively, we have improved, and we've made some strides. But, we can't get discouraged if they complete some passes. We can't lose confidence and start making mistakes."
"If we make some mistakes in our own end of the field, then they are in better position to score."
Dockery was speaking with authority when he spoke of the Mustangs being able to complete some passes. Ford is averaging 20 passes a game; he completed 36 against Ohio State.
And he has a set of receivers that know they're going to get the football.
Leader in that receiving stable is Emanuel Tolbert, the No. 2 pass receiver in the nation with 54 receptions for 946 yards and 10 touchdowns.
Tight end Elton Garrett is next on the list with 29 catches, and Anthony Smith, the split end, has hauled in 27.
While Ford is leading the nation — and naturally, the Southwest Conference — Tech quarterback Ron Reeves is second to him in the league.
Ford is picking up 277 yards per game running and passing — mainly passing — and Reeves is combining for 173 yards a game.
But, fullback James Hadnot is rushing for 128 yards a game, best in the league, and ninth best in the country.
And this two-pronged attack has led to the Raiders' four-game winning streak, extended last week with a 27-17 win over TCU.
"I thought before the season that Tech wouldn't be as bad as everybody thought," said SMU coach Meyer. "You don't go to six bowls in the last eight years without having a very solid program from top to bottom."
"You aren't hurt that much by graduation when you have players and coaches in your program who've been there year after year."
Meyer will be seeking his first win ever over a Tech team. He is in his third year.

Estacado, Canyon Meet In League Showdown

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Since the bad weather hit the South Plains this week, there hasn't been a Matador fan who has failed to call wondering how the inclement conditions would affect the Matadors' performance in tonight's 1-AAA championship game in Canyon against the Eagles.
Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m. in Kimbrough Stadium.
Thus, for you weather watchers, Estacado coach Louis Kelley forecasts: "Whether clear, cold, rain, sleet, hail or snow, the weather will be on both sides of the field. We'll be ready to play."
Other city schools completing their schedules tonight includes Coronado hosting Plainview, while Monterey visits Hereford.
Anyways, Kelley isn't taking the weather into account when designing his game plan for Canyon.
"We're not going to change a thing," said Kelley. "In fact, we've been working on some new things."
What might that be pray tell?
Smiled Kelley: "Well, we've been doing them all year in workouts. Really, they would only be new to the spectators."
When pressed further, the Matador mentor would not reveal the possibilities.
What Kelley would divulge is that the Matadors will throw the football and run the sweeps.
Kelley, however, would not say in what situations Estacado would throw or use the sweep.
"It's not secret, the sweep is our bread and butter play," said Kelley. "A couple of years ago, we ran the sweep four out of five plays."
Well, if the opponent knows the sweep is coming, what continues to make it successful?
"I believe it's the way we disguise it," said Kelley. "We run the sweep out of a number of formations."
Estacado's wide-angle running game concerns Canyon coach Deane Wright.
"We're not going to stop their sweep play every time," said Wright. "We're hoping that our defense will bend but not break. If we can force them to make long drives, then we hope they will stop themselves."
After watching more game films than he can remember, the Eagles give Kelley something to frown about.
"They have an exceptional kicking game," said the Matador coach. "Thirty and 40-yard field goals are just a chip shot for him. Against Dunbar a couple of weeks ago, he easily made a 50-yarder."
The name of the kicker Kelley is referring to is Eddie Clement. But he's not Estacado's only worry.
"Canyon likes to pitch the ball out of the veer," said Kelley. "Those players that will handle the ball include quarterback Jeff Weisbart, runningback Paul Parenico and tailback Barry Watson. Much of the time they will run they're offense tackle-to-tackle."
So, Estacado feels Canyon will keep the ball mostly on the ground?
"Oh, no," said Kelley. "Weisbart is a good passer. His range is between 25-30 yards. He also does an excellent job directing they're two-minute offense."
However, Wright wasn't as liberal as his counterpart about the Eagle offense.
"We're not going to do anything fancy," said Wright. "We're just going to try and run right at them."

Detensively, Estacado likes to shoot linebackers, while Canyon plays more honest.
"We haven't been stunting the last three as much," said Kelley. "We like to play defense. We like to hit people."
According to Wright, the Eagles don't stunt very often for one reason.
"We just don't have the speed that Estacado has," said the Eagle mentor.
What do you have to say about that Kelley?
"We have more speed, but they good quickness," said the Estacado coach.
Both Kelley and Wright agree on the key of tonight's title tilt, but for different reasons.
"Ball control and field position will determine who will be the district champion," said Kelley. "We're going to have to keep Canyon from crossing the 50, because once Canyon moves into our territory, they're within Clements' kicking range."
"Like I said before," said Wright. "Field position will play an important part of the game because if Estacado has to maintain long drives to score there's that chance they'll stop themselves. And concerning ball control, if we have the football, then Estacado can't score."
The last time the Matadors have won a district title was 1975. Estacado was competing in 3-AAA then.
And Matador fans, if you're optimistic, just a reminder that the only state championship Estacado has claimed was in 1968.
Plainview-Coronado
A few weeks ago many thought this would be the game that might decide the District 4-AAAA champion. But now that's not the case.
The Plainview Bulldogs enter the 7:30 p.m. contest at Lowrey Field already as the district champs, clinching the title last week with an impressive 34-0 win over Lubbock High.

Plainview, led by potential all-state runningback Royce Coleman, is ranked as the number 10 team in the state AAAA ranks with a 8-1 mark.
Meanwhile Coronado, which hasn't won a game since it beat Lubbock High back on Oct. 20, has fallen on some hard times, losing to Hereford last week 13-9 and Monterey prior to that 42-8. The Mustangs own a 4-5 mark overall and a 1-2 loop record.
"We're going to give them a good game," said head coach Jack Quarles. "But there's no doubt they are one of the best teams in this part of the country."
Monterey-Hereford
The way coach James Odom feels, tonight's game with Hereford could mean a lot towards what Monterey does next season.
"A win against them," said Odom, "would certainly help our program. It might give us the momentum to go into spring training and even next season with a different outlook."
Should the Plainsmen falter, they would drop to 1-3 in loop play and wind up dead last in the District 4-AAAA chase. Currently they stand 2-6-1 for the year, 1-2 in loop play.
Hereford, which has played the part of the giant killer the past couple of weeks by knocking both Lubbock High and Coronado out of the title picture, will rely on the services of runningback Paul Bell in hopes of boosting its season record. The Herd owns a 3-5-1 season mark and a 1-1-1 loop record.
"The key is stopping Bell," said Odom. "We've got to do that—and shut down their quarterback (Jackie Mercer)—if we hope to win."

high 27 points and 15 rebounds, fouled out as Quinn stretched to 94-87 over the next minute.
LCC made one final lunge when Fortner converted a three-point play with :40 left but LCC missed the front end of a 1-1 and had three turnovers the remainder of the game.
The Tigers, now 2-1, reached the century for the second time this season and the 100 points came withing two of equaling the field house mark by a Chap opponent.
Paul Quinn threaten to blow the game wide open when the Tigers took a 75-65 pad with 9:46 remaining. LCC closed it to 85-85 with 2:44 remaining on a Brian Fortner tip in. The Chaps, however, committed four turnovers and Keith Gardner, who finished with a game

Ohio State Gets Okay For Bowls

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio State University athletic council reversed an earlier stand and voted Wednesday to permit the Buckeyes to accept invitations from all post-season college football bowl games.
The council had voted in October to limit the Buckeyes to only the major four bowls, the Rose, Orange, Sugar or Cotton, on New Year's Day.

Valley Captures 2-B Grid Title

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
PLAINVIEW—After the coach flipped Darrell Dowd the game ball, Dowd ran to the middle of the circle and spiked it off the muddy field so hard it went 25 feet into the air. He was just making up for lost opportunities.
Even if it was legal to spike in high school, Dowd didn't score. Why then, did he get the game ball in Valley's 21-7 District 2-B championship over Amherst?
It might have had something to do with the 156 yards he gained on 34 carries. Because Dowd, a 200-pound runningback, bore the brunt of Valley's powerhouse running game that piled up 230 yards.
That was good enough to give the Patriots the title and advance them into the state playoffs against the winner of tonight's Wheeler-Booker District 1-B championship. The site of the contest has not been determined as yet.

When it really mattered, the Pats went to Dowd. With 1:18 left in the third quarter, Valley took over on downs at its own 24. The Patriots were only up 15-7 and appeared to be on their heels after a 17-play Amherst drive.
But Dowd pulled the Patriots through and 14 plays later the game was all but over.
He carried nine times on that drive which covered 76 yards. And even though he didn't get the touchdown, it was his fake into the line that gave quarterback Kirk Proctor the hole for his 2-yard scoring plunge.
The win makes Valley 9-0-1 on the season. The only blemish was a tie with Class A power Crosbyton in the first game of the year. Amherst ended the year at 9-2.
Valley appeared to have take the advantage at halftime, scoring back-to-back touchdowns for a 15-7 lead.

Amherst had gotten on the board first on a six yard run by speedy Ronald Johnson. That capped a 54-yard drive on only five plays.
There were two big plays in the series. The first came on the first snap of the possession. Amherst quarterback Alvin Mills hit end Joe Rodriguez on an out for 17 yards. Two plays later Johnson raced 24 yards to the Valley nine. Two plays later he scored on a sweep.
Valley came back with a vengeance, driving the ball 68 yards to even the game. Darrell Dowd provided the clincher on a three yard drive on 14th play of the drive.
The Viking defense held Amherst to only three plays on its next possession and with 7:20 left in the half took over first.

District Championships On Line Around Area

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 If you're the kind of person who doesn't watch baseball until mid-September, who doesn't even know Dr. J from Dr. K until the second round of the playoffs, who can't tell a flanker from a slot-back until the day with the Roman numeral, well, if you're that kind of person, you must be in hog heaven right now.

Because, on the eve of the last football game of the high school season, five of seven local school districts over the South Plains remain undecided.

And, of those five, no fewer than 19 teams have shots at the title.

Muleshoe has already clinched District 3-AA, but in 4-AA four teams are lined up for shots. Idalou, Tulia and Floydada each have 2-1 records.

Tulia and Floydada are out to eliminate each other tonight while Idalou loses 0-3 Lockney. An Idalou win would put it in a first-place tie with the winner of the other game. And, since Idalou has beaten both of them, it would give it a second district championship in a row.

In 5-AA, all Slaton (5-1) needs to do to clinch a share of its fourth straight district championship is survive the bus trip downtown. But if Tigers want to win it outright, they have to win and that's no small order when playing Tahoka.

A falter throws them right back into the middle of the pack and any horse race fan can tell you what that means — especially when the pack includes Tahoka, Frenship and Seminole (all 4-2). Seminole is at 1-7 Cooper while Frenship visits 2-7 Post.

In 3-A, it's strictly a two-team race. Vega, 4-0 in conference and the highest-scoring team on the South Plains with a 293-point output, meets Bovina in a head-to-head showdown.

They just wish it was that simple in 4-

Vikings Picked To Nip Chargers; Pack To Fall

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The calendar page says November, a time when the weather turns brisk in Minnesota and the Vikings start to heat up.

The elderly Vikes got off to a stumbling start this season, tripping over their beards, no doubt. But four straight victories have turned things around and now here they are tied for first place in the National Football Conference Central Division.

Green Bay has been coming back to meet the onrushing Vikes. The Packers, who once were 6-1, have dropped three of the last four.

The tie ends this week because the Vikes will keep right on rolling against San Diego while Green Bay's bubble bursts once and for all in Denver's thin air.

Last week's 9-5 made the season record 90-63 for 588.

The picks:

Vikes 23, Chargers 17
Minnesota smells playoff cash and is zeroing in on that target. But San Diego is no pushover with three straight wins of its own.

Broncos 20, Packers 10
Look for Craig Morton to operate on the Green Bay secondary, rated 14th in the NFC. That's 14th out of 14, Craig.

Patriots 30, Jets 14
Richard Todd's back at quarterback, which is good news for New York. Steve Grogan's still there for New England, which is bad news.

Cowboys 37, Saints 7
Tony Dorsett is brooding but as long as he churns out yards, Dallas, which seems to have things together again, won't worry.

Rams 16, 49ers 7
San Francisco GM Joe Thomas says if he goes down the tube he'll take some 49ers with him. Finding candidates should be no problem.

Falcons 17, Bears 10
Atlanta has won five in a row and Chicago has lost eight in a row, mostly on merit in both cases.

Redskins 24, Cards 6
Do you know that St. Louis is last in the league in rushing defense? Do John Riggin and Mike Thomas know it?

Eagles 21, Giants 13
There is no truth to the rumor that New York is petitioning the NFL to start calling them the New Jersey Giants.

Browns 17, Colts 13
Baltimore's offense is last in the AFC and so is its defense. So explain how they ever win.

Steelers 31, Bengals 10
Rain doesn't make artificial surfaces muddy and that's magic grass in Riverfront Stadium, not the real kind like they use in LA.

Raiders 27, Lions 24
Will Ken Stabler throw as many passes to Oakland receivers as he does to the Detroit secondary?

Seahawks 23, Chiefs 14
A match of the AFC's best and worst passing offenses. Stay with the best, even though the odds-makers don't.

Bucs 21, Bills 17
Tampa Bay plays tough at home and that's tough on Buffalo due for a letdown after throwing that scare into Miami a week ago.

Dolphins 24, Oilers 17
Wind up the Delvin Williams and Earl

Campbell dolls and watch them run, run. Another upset in the making.

Dallas Battles Saints With New Confidence

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Barely a week ago, Coach Tom Landry was muttering that the worst thing that could have happened to his Dallas Cowboys was to beat Baltimore so convincingly at the start of the National Football League season.

My, how his tune has changed.

"The best thing that could have happened to us was the Green Bay game," he said as the Cowboys prepared for this Sunday's meeting with the New Orleans Saints.

The Cowboys' 42-14 victory over the Packers last Sunday was every bit as convincing as the 38-0 shellacking of the Colts 11 games ago. But while the first one gave Dallas false confidence, the second one restored flagging confidence.

"I gave us the confidence we needed, believe it or not," said Landry, whose Cowboys are the defending Super Bowl champions but stand second in the National Conference East, a game behind

Washington. "We kept hearing negative things and we were starting to believe them."

"Sports is a tough thing," he added, "because everybody believes he's an expert. We weren't just reading the negative things in the newspapers. We were starting to hear them in the grocery store."

In Sunday's other games it's St. Louis at Washington, San Diego at Minnesota, Green Bay at Denver, Detroit at Oakland, Buffalo at Tampa Bay, New England at the New York Jets, Philadelphia at the New York Giants, Atlanta at Chicago, Cleveland at Baltimore, Seattle at Kansas City, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh and Los Angeles at San Francisco. On Monday it's Miami at Houston.

"When I first started coaching," said Landry, the only coach the Cowboys have ever had in their 18 years, "I wanted to win 'em all. But now I realize you're going to have valleys... The key is you've got to win when you're not playing well."

The Cowboys played very well last time out with Robert Newhouse and Tony Dorsett running for two touchdowns apiece and Roger Staubach throwing for two. The game against the Saints (and the Redskins' game against the Cardinals) is only a prelude to the Thanksgiving Day collision between the Skins and Cowboys in Dallas.

Says Washington running back Mike Thomas: "We have an 8-3 record and that's damn good — but we still don't have any breathing room with Dallas only one game behind us. We can't afford to lose to St. Louis on Sunday or Dallas on Thanksgiving Day."

The way we started off (six straight victories) I thought maybe we'd still be undefeated now, and wouldn't it be great if we didn't even have to play these last games, especially against that huge defensive line that Dallas has."

Minnesota and Green Bay are headed in opposite directions, the Vikings having won four in a row and the Pack having dropped three of four to wind up tied for first in the NFC Central Race at 7-4. Also with 7-4 records are Denver and Oakland, locked in a battle for first place in the American Conference West.

Fiesta To Tab Razorbacks

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arkansas will be invited to play in the Fiesta Bowl on Christmas Day if the Razorbacks stop Texas A&M Saturday, Fiesta Bowl President Bill Shover said Thursday.

Shover confirmed an earlier Associated Press story that the Razorbacks would receive a bid Saturday afternoon with a victory over Texas A&M.

Arkansas is the No. 1 team for one of our berths, Shover said. "Our interest in Arkansas has always been high."

Shover said Ohio State has been added to the list of possible teams for the other berth. He said Ohio State was added when the school's athletic council voted to rescind a 1975 decision which limited the Buckeyes to the Rose, Orange Sugar and Cotton bowls.

"We would like to see Michigan become available," he said. A loss to Purdue would eliminate the Wolverines from the Rose Bowl and put them in line for the Fiesta Bowl.

In addition to Ohio State, Arkansas and Michigan also under consideration are Oklahoma, Texas, Southern California and UCLA.

"We've always felt very strongly about Arkansas," said John Reid, Fiesta Bowl executive director. "Arkansas is a very colorful team, very high-profile. Arkansas' national image is enhanced by Coach Lou Holtz' personality."

Reid scouted Arkansas five times last year and was prepared to offer them a bid when the Orange Bowl entered the picture. The Razorbacks went on to beat Oklahoma 34-

Hoople Predicts Victories For Arkansas, USC

By MAJ. AMOS B. HOOPLE
Original Man in Motion

Egad, friends, do we have some games for you this Saturday! For starters, how about Purdue vs. Michigan in Ann Arbor for the Big 10 title, and UCLA vs. Southern California in "The Battle of Los Angeles" for the Pacific 10 title. And — kaff-kaff — riding on the outcome assignments for both leagues.

Then how about these greybeard — heh-heh — matchups: Georgia vs. Auburn (their 82nd meeting); Mississippi State vs. LSU (72nd renewal); Texas vs. TCU (64th repeat); Texas A&M vs. Arkansas (52nd for this); Kansas State vs. Kansas (76th time); and Oklahoma State vs. Oklahoma (73rd contest).

In THE GAME, Harvard entertains my beloved Yale in the 95th renewal of this Ivy League classic — Boole, Boole!

Getting back to the top, Purdue's Boiler-makers, shooting for their first Rose Bowl appearance since 1967, have the dubious pleasure of playing before 104,000 wildly cheering Michigan adherents in the Wolves' stadium. The noise level is something like having an SST take off in your kitchen — hak-kaff!

In a classic pairing of premier passers — Mark Herrmann of Purdue and Rick Leach of Michigan — the Hoople stats favor Herrmann. Yas, dear readers, the Boilmakers will prevail. 28-24 — har-rump!

Some 2,000 miles away, the UCLA Bruins will play host to cross-town rival Southern California before a capacity crowd of more than 93,000 in the LA Coliseum.

This matchup features UCLA's Theotis

Major Hoople's

Football Forecast

Brins, holder of the Bruins all-time rushing records, and USC's Charles White, the third leading ground gainer in Pac 10 history. Jove! That's quite a feat!

We look for a typically bruising, "throw the season records out the window" — type performance — with Mo Mentum, football's most elusive performer, showing up on the Trojans' side to help them to an uphill 31-28 triumph — um-kump!

In those traditional contests, here's how we rate them: Georgia 35, Auburn 15; LSU 28, Mississippi State 17; Texas 47, TCU 14; Arkansas 26, Texas A&M 22; Kansas 22, Kansas State 15; and Oklahoma 38, Oklahoma State 17.

Would that your faithful correspondent could spare the time from other duties to run up to Harvard Stadium to see THE GAME. But, alas, that cannot be. 'Twill be a great day for the Old Blue as Pat O'Brien (a name to remember) will quarterback Yale to a satisfying 27-20 triumph — Boole, Boole (again)!

This will be an important Saturday, too, for four more teams with bowl aspirations. Georgia Tech will entertain Notre Dame at Atlanta. And Florida State will be at home in Tallahassee to the Navy stalwarts.

The Irish seem to be growing stronger each week and should take the measure of a fine Georgia Tech crew by a 35-22 count. And the Middles, sporting their best team in years, will slip past an excellent Seminole aggregation 17-15.

They'll be playing for all the marbles at College Park, Md., when the Maryland Terps take on Clemson in a shootout for the Atlantic Coast Conference crown. The Clemson Tigers are reaching their peak and will defeat the Terps 33-27 in an old-fashioned barn burner!

Now go on with my forecast:

Wash State 38, Arizona 14; Syracuse 21, Boston College 14; Ohio U 10, Bowling Green 7; Stanford 19, Calif. 15; Colorado 28, Iowa State 22; Colorado State 24, West Virginia 19; Brown 36, Columbia 12; Penn 28, Cornell 6; Delaware 39, Colgate 14; East Carolina 33, Marshall 17; Rutgers 42, Holy Cross 28.

Also Ohio State 42, Indiana 21; Wisconsin 22, Iowa 6; Kent State 28, Toledo 24; Florida 33, Kentucky 28; Miami, Fla. 26, San Diego State 12; Cincinnati 21, Miami (0) 20; Minnesota 21, Illinois 13; Nebraska 42, Missouri 21; New Mexico 14, Pacific 10; North Carolina 15, Virginia 12; Memphis State 24, North Texas State 8; Ball State 35, Northern Illinois 12; Michigan State 42, Northwestern 14; Arizona State 41, Oregon State 28; Pitt 32, Army 20; Dartmouth 20, Princeton 17; Baylor 35, Rice 21; Richmond 22, Wm & Mary 21; South Carolina 17, Wake Forest 10; Southern Miss 26, Louisville 14; Mississippi 20, Tennessee 18; Texas 47, TCU 14; SMU 32, Texas Tech 21; BYU 49, Utah 28; Vanderbilt 14, Air Force 12; Virginia Tech 22, VMI 19; Central Michigan 24, Western Michigan 20.

Hobbs Eyes Clovis

Avalanche-Journal News Service
For the Hobbs Eagles, it's something of a winner-take all challenge. For the Clovis Wildcats, it may just be an opportunity to prove a point.

Regardless of how one views tonight's Hobbs-Clovis confrontation, it will settle the District 4-AAAA playoff question once and for all. Or, will it?

Hobbs can gain a share of the conference championship and earn the No. 1 playoff berth from 4-AAAA by sidetracking the league-leading Wildcats at Clovis' Leon Williams Stadium. However, Clovis — the defending district and state champion and the pre-season pick to repeat in 4-AAAA — has already clinched at least a tie for the 1978 league crown and can win the title outright by downing the Eagles.

Clovis is 6-4 on the season and 3-0 and 4-AAAA. Hobbs will enter the regular-season finale with 8-2 and 2-1 marks.

A Hobbs loss will bring about one of two possibilities: Either the Eagles will finish in a second-place tie with Carlsbad, in which case the Cavemen would go to the playoffs as 4-AAAA's No. 2 team because of their 12-6 conquest of Hobbs on Oct. 27 — or the runner-up spot could end up in a three-way tie among Hobbs, Carlsbad and Goddard, providing Goddard gets by Roswell High in this week's other game.

Then it would require a vote of representatives from the five conference schools to determine which of the three goes to the playoffs.

"This is the kind of football game that makes high school football great," said Hobbs coach Jim Cromartie. "I personally don't think that we're going to beat Clovis or that Clovis is going to beat us. I think it's going to be a matter of who doesn't beat themselves."

Elsewhere in Southeastern New Mexico, Artesia and Portales will be taking their first steps toward what they hope will be championship years in Class AAA. Artesia won the District 4-AAA title with a 39-12 conquest of Lovington last week, while Portales was earning the runner-up playoff berth with a 20-14 win over Tucuman.

This week, Artesia hosts Kirtland Central and Portales goes to Bloomfield in a pair of quarterfinal games.

Eunice and Tatum have already taken steps in their title searches. Eunice downing Escalante 27-0 in last week's Class AA round and Tatum getting a free ride in its Class A playoff opener when Navajo Mission forfeited.

Eunice, the defending Class A state champion, hosts Moriarty in a 3 p.m. CST quarterfinal game Saturday. Tatum will be on the road to face Texico in a Class A semifinal.

Monterey Nabs 27-0 Win

Runningback Willie Johnson scored two touchdowns as the Monterey junior varsity blanked Hereford 27-0.

Johnson scored on 18 and 11 yards runs respectively in the first quarter. Also putting points on the board were Larry Hallman (four-yard run) and Clay Powell (70-yard pass from Jim Cooper).

Monterey finished the season with an 8-1-1 record.

MHS Soph Win

Roy Calender scored on a 25-yard run in the first period as Monterey eased past Lubbock High in sophomore football action Thursday afternoon 21-8.

Also adding TDs for Monterey were David Downum and Jack Gaschen. Joe Lee also tackled the LHS in the end zone for a safety.

Scoring LHS' only TD was Billy Wayne Ivy on a 3-yard run. The Westerners also had a safety.

Plainview-Coronado

Pat Brown scored on an 81-yard kick return and on a 46-yard run as the Plainview junior varsity stroked past Coronado 36-13.

Brown's kick return put Plainview on the board first in the opening period as the Plainview defense and turnovers kept Coronado off the scoreboard until the final quarter.

Coronado lost seven fumbles and had three passes intercepted. Plainview on the other hand, only lost the handle of the football once.

Coronado's scores came on a 71-yard kickoff return by David Wynn and on an eight-yard pass from David Grevell to Rex Andrews.

Plainview's other scores came on a 40-yard run by Mike Mosley, a 30-yard scamper by Vondale Burnett, a 6-yard dash by David Gelardo and a safety in the second period.

SWC Teams Gun For Bowl Bids

By MIKE RABUN
United Press International Writer

The University of Houston, a Cotton Bowl berth all but tucked away in its jeans, will sit quietly by Saturday while the rest of the Southwest Conference clubs not only butt heads with each other but keep an eye over their shoulder for the presence of bowl people.

Not every SWC club has bowl hopes, of course, but the Texas Longhorns, Arkansas Razorbacks and Texas A&M Aggies obviously will be going somewhere extra this year and even the Texas Tech Red Raiders and SMU Mustangs have slight aspirations of making a post-season trip.

All of the bowl action begins Saturday when representatives of more than a dozen post-season games fan out across the country.

Going into the weekend action the Georgia-Auburn and Missouri-Nebraska games hold the key. If Georgia and Missouri win, the most likely bowl lineup would have No. 1 Penn State meeting Nebraska in the Orange Bowl, Georgia facing No. 2 Oklahoma in the Sugar and Houston taking on No. 3 Alabama in the Cotton.

But representatives of the Sugar and Cotton bowls are not giving up on Penn State and Coach Joe Paterno's front doorstep will be pretty crowded when it comes to invitation time Saturday afternoon.

In the Southwest Conference Arkansas and Texas will be courted by the Bluebonnet Bowl, but the Fiesta Bowl is also anxious to have Arkansas. Texas A&M could well wind up in the Sun Bowl Saturday.

No. 9 Texas Longhorns (6-2), trying to come back from their 10-7 loss to the sixth-ranked Cougars last Saturday, will be at TCU (2-7).

Houston has the week off, but will return to action Nov. 25 at Texas Tech. A win there, or a win on Dec. 2 against Rice, would put the Cougars (8-1) in the Cotton Bowl.

"We can still be one of the finest teams in the nation if we take care of things and this week that means TCU," said Texas coach Fred Akers.

"Texas has only been beaten by two of the top teams in the country (Oklahoma and Houston)," said TCU Coach F.A. Dry. "So that speaks for itself. When you give up just 10 points to a team like Houston you've got an outstanding defense."

Arkansas and Texas A&M will be trying to take out the frustrations of disappointing seasons on each other in Little Rock. It's hard to say that 6-2 records to this point in the season are disappointing, but Arkansas had thoughts of a national championship and the Aggies were not far behind.

Both teams have won their last two games after dropping two in a row.

Baylor, meanwhile, will be trying to cure its problem with turnovers—having given up 21 of them in the past three weeks.

"I'll tell you one thing," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "When we tee it up against Rice we'll have some people back there who can hold on to the ball or not throw it to the opposition."

"I'm sick and tired of giving football games away. If your opponent lines up and beats you that's a different story. But that isn't our case. If the people who I have been using don't correct their erroneous ways, they'll be on the sidelines with me," he said.

and 10 on their own 24.

Dowd ran 12 yards for a first down at the 40. Then two plays later lightning struck. Proctor looped a sideline pass to Jon Davidson. He bobbled the ball but pulled it down off his shoulder pad then outraced the Amherst secondary down the sideline for a 60-yard scoring play.

That, combined with Dowd's conversion run after the first score and Proctor's kick after the bomb gave the Vikings their lead.

MIAMI (AP) — A group of Miami business executives, accompanied by former National Basketball League player and coach Tommy Heinsohn, met Wednesday with NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien but apparently won no promises concerning a future pro basketball franchise.

"They informed me of Miami's strong interest in obtaining an NBA club and indicated that a new first-class arena is in the planning stage," O'Brien said in a statement released by the league's New York office.

"I told them that the league has no present plans for expansion, and I am aware of no club which is interested in relocating. We discussed, in general terms, the basic procedures for obtaining an NBA franchise and I gave them a copy of the requirements set forth in the NBA constitution and by-laws."

The group was led by Mel Blum, a Florida real estate developer, and Heinsohn, former Boston Celtics player and coach who has been hired by the Miami group as a consultant.

O'Brien said he suggested the group keep him informed of any progress on the proposed arena and that it submit a detailed presentation to the league at a later date.

Bosox Announcer Ned Martin Fired

BOSTON (AP) — Ned Martin, radio voice of the Boston Red Sox for 18 years, has been fired by station WITS, which has broadcast the American League team's games since 1975.

Former Red Sox infielder Rico Petrocelli is assured of being an analyst on the station for games next season, The Boston Globe reported.

Martin's partner, Jim Woods, also was expected to be released.

The newspaper said Ken Coleman likely will be the play-by-play reporter for WITS next year.

and two years ago, the two teams met here in a game played on a snow-covered field the last half. With the temperature in the low 20's and teens, and after crews had worked through the morning clearing the field of snow, Tech won 34-7.

Last year, Tech won 45-7 in Dallas. But, at that time, Ford was only a freshman, learning the college game.

After Saturday's game, Tech will have two remaining, against the SWC leader University of Houston on Nov. 28, and against Arkansas at Fayetteville on Dec. 2.

Dockery Points To Injuries

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

As he hobbled around the field, Tech coach Rex Dockery had his mind on his injury list, but his own health was not a factor.

Dockery kept a cane handy for support when needed. Dockery was involved in a collision with one of his Raiders during a workout last week, and the problem proved more than just a bruise.

And it was still hobbling him Thursday.

"It's the others that I'm worried about," said the head coach as he scurried for the dressing room after the afternoon workout. He was in a hurry to change to street clothes and head out of town via plane to visit a prospect.

"We've got some people hobbling," said the head coach. "Some of them will be well; they have to be, the way SMU plays. We have to have all the help we can get."

The Raiders' short workout Thursday was geared to playing the Mustangs in Jones Stadium Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. The Raiders will enter the game with a 5-3 record and a four-game winning streak. SMU will arrive with a 4-4-1 mark.

Tech will be limited offensively with the injury to Phil Weatherall and aggravation of an earlier pain in the ankle of Mark Johnson. Weatherall sustained a knee injury in last Saturday's 27-17 win over TCU, but it was not discovered until later.

Weatherall, the starting tailback, will be able to play Saturday, but he will work behind freshman Mark Olbert, Dockery said. Johnson, who sustained an ankle sprain in the Baylor game, re-injured the tender area in Wednesday's workout and will not be able to play.

And defensively, the Raiders got one player back but lost one. Johnny Quinney developed a nerve injury in a workout this week and will be lost. Stepping into his safety spot will be Ted Watts coming off the injury list, following a broken jaw sustained early in the season.

"We didn't work long, we never do on Thursday," said Dockery, "but I felt we got a lot accomplished. You try to take it fairly easy on Thursday."

MHS Nabs Season-Opening

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Joe Michalka really makes no bones about how important guys like Craig Ehlo and Kevin Kirkman are to the Monterey High School basketball program.

Without the duo, the coach said, the Plainsmen would have lost to Odessa Permian 70-66 Thursday night in the MHS gym instead of vice-versa.

"We have to have those two in the game," said the Monterey coach. "Really without them we're lost."

For most of the contest—which opened the season for both the Panthers and the Plainsmen—Ehlo and Kirkman kept Michalka company on the bench as each found himself in foul trouble early.

Kirkman, who ended up fouling out late in the contest, added only nine points to the Monterey cause, but all the them, according to Michalka, were important.

Playing with four fouls, the 6-4 senior was inserted back into the game with 4:15 left in the game. And that's when things really began to happen for Monterey, which at the time was trailing Permian by eight points. At one time, the Panthers held as much as a 10-point advantage.

After teammate Steve Wooten cut the PHS lead to one by hitting both free throws after being fouled by Wayne Wynne, Ehlo stepped in to score MHS' remaining six points. Ehlo's bucket with 1:23 left in the game broke a 64-64 deadlock, giving Monterey a two-point lead, its advantage since 4:21 remained in the third stanza.

However, Permian managed to tie the score at 66-66 when Wynne hit a 10-foot jumper only 30 seconds later.

But as time was running out Ehlo canned an easy lay up, then came back with a nice short shot to put the game on ice of MHS. The dunk shot came after he had stolen the ball and taken it about half the length of the court.

"He's the one that makes us go," said Michalka about the MHS floor leader. "We know when he came back in it was

Mitchell's Condition Concerns Coryell

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego runningback Lydell Mitchell aggravated a hamstring injury in last week's 29-23 victory over Kansas City and may be out of Sunday's game with the Vikings in Minnesota. Chargers coach Don Coryell says.

"All of a sudden I've got an empty feeling in my stomach," Coryell said Wednesday. "Lydell's leg has not been coming around at all."

Mitchell has been hampered by the hamstring pull for weeks but the problem was aggravated by his 144 yards on 23 carries performance against the Chiefs.

"His leg is all black and blue," Coryell said, "which means there is a lot of blood in it. It has to be some kind of tear or partial pull."

With Mitchell in doubt, Coryell may start Don Woods at fullback, moving Clarence Williams into Mitchell's spot at halfback.

Also doubtful for Minnesota is rookie wide receiver John Jefferson, who has caught seven touchdown passes, with an eye injury; former Viking Ed White, with a reinjured knee; and kicker Rolf Benirschke, who is hospitalized with a recurring intestinal malady that has weakened him since training camp in July.

Olympics Receive Big Contribution

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The 1980 Winter Olympics, plagued recently by cost overruns and other financial problems, have been given a private contribution of $100,000. It is the largest such contribution to the Lake Placid games yet.

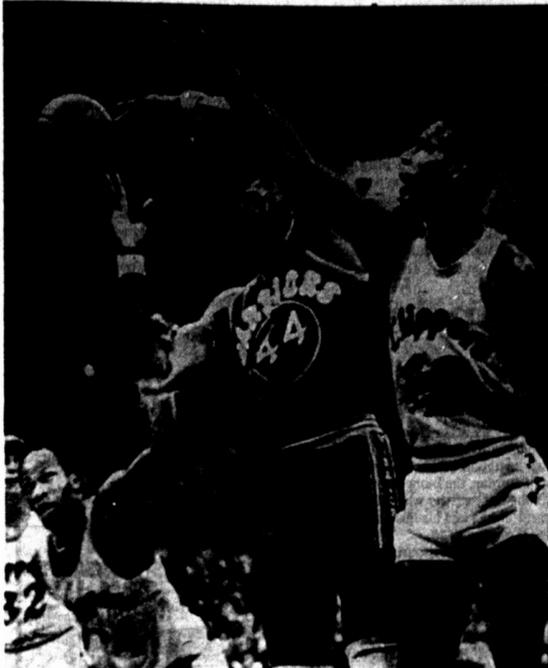

The announcement of the gift from Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney was made here today by Olympic officials.

Ronald MacKenzie, president of the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee, said the gift was made because of the Whitney's interest in the Adirondack region.

Monroe Lifts NY Over Cavs

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Earl Monroe, known in National Basketball Association circles as "The Pearl," added polish to his status as a gem Thursday night.

The 34-year-old guard for the New York Knicks, playing in only his second game since ending a contract dispute that kept him sidelined through the first month of the season, came off the bench to spark the Knicks to a 97-93 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The spindly-legged veteran tossed in 15 of his 17 points in the second half, helping the Knicks erase an 11-point, third-period deficit and keeping them close until forward Toby Knight's basket and two free throws in the final 1:20 of play sealed the victory.

In the only other NBA game Thursday night, San Diego nipped Golden State, 112-109.

"I didn't expect to play that much, but we had foul problems and there I was," Monroe said, a happy smile creasing his tired face. "I felt like I was wearing a lead jacket."

"I think I'm in terrible condition. It's going to take another two weeks to get in good condition. And there's a big difference between being in condition and being in game condition," he added.

Coach Red Holzman, whose Knicks are 3-0 since he took over the reins from Willis Reed, smiled knowingly when asked about Monroe. "I was very, very surprised he was able to do all that. He got bumped around pretty good and he had to reach down a little."

The struggling Cavaliers suffered their 12th loss in 13 games, including six in a row — four straight at home.

"I've done just about everything there is to do," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch with resignation. "Five in a row was bad enough to make me do whatever it was that I might do now. We're just going to practice, wait for everybody to jell one night and get a big win, get our center (injured Elmore Smith) back and we'll get it going again."

Ponies Win With Last Second Shot

MIDLAND (Special) — Steve Ahlenius pumped in a jump shot with three seconds on the clock to give the Coronado Mustangs a thrilling 58-57 comeback win over Midland Lee here Thursday night.

We don't have time to be inventive, we just have to work hard. The last thing you should do in this type of situation is sit back and wait for miracles. Hard work will make them."

The Cavaliers worked hard enough to build a 67-56 lead with 5:10 left in the third period. But Knight, who wound up with 10 points, hit a basket to start the New York comeback, and the Knicks came on to tie the score, 73-73, at the end of the period and take the lead for good, 95-93, on Knight's basket with 1:20 remaining.

Clippers 112, Warriors 100
Guard Lloyd Free scored 29 points and backcourt mate Randy Smith added 26 to lead San Diego over Golden State. The Clippers' 14-point lead after three periods nearly evaporated, the Warriors rallying to 110-109 on Clifford Ray's stuff shot with 10 seconds remaining.
But Sidney Wicks, who finished with 20 points, hit a pair of free throws with one second remaining to wrap up the victory San Diego's second straight victory.

"The Clippers showed the ability to come back real well," said Warrior Coach Al Attles. "I have to give them credit — their guards are outstanding people."

LCHS Contest Flooded Out

Prior to the start of Thursday night's game here between Lazbuddie and Lubbock Christian high schools, a water pipe burst, flooding the LHS gym and causing the game to be cancelled.

Bowl Bids Gain Grid Spotlight

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Penn State is in an enviable position. Not only are the Nittany Lions ranked No. 1, but they don't even have to put their helmets on Saturday to get the best available post-season bowl game this season.

While the idle Lions sit and wait, their colleagues will beat their heads together in a hard scramble for bowl bids.

The ones closest to gaining a bowl spot opposite high and mighty Penn State are the Nebraska Cornhuskers, who will stay second-ranked if they beat the Missouri Tigers.

The Huskers would presumably go to the Orange Bowl, win or lose against Missouri, since they have already clinched a tie for the Big Eight championship with a victory over previously top-ranked Oklahoma. However, a loss to Missouri would send Penn State elsewhere because the Nittany Lions would want to meet the highest-ranked team available in their quest for the national championship.

That would leave either the Cotton or Sugar Bowls as possible New Year's Day sites for Penn State.

Eighth-ranked Georgia can nail down a Sugar Bowl berth as Southeastern Conference champion by beating Auburn. Sixth-ranked Houston, meanwhile, has the inside track as host in the Cotton Bowl. The Cougars have an easy road to the Southwest Conference championship with games against Texas Tech and Rice later this season.

Part of the picture in the Rose Bowl, the last of the Big Four in post-season play, will be cleared up Saturday when fifth-ranked Southern Cal meets No. 14 UCLA in their annual Battle of Los Angeles. The winner of that game will represent the Pac-10 against the eventual Big Ten champion in the Pasadena, Calif., classic.

The Big Ten title is still up for grabs with No. 15 Purdue holding an uneasy lead over seventh-ranked Michigan and No. 19 Ohio State. Michigan hosts Purdue while Ohio State meets Indiana.

Oklahoma, now the country's fourth-ranked team after losing to Nebraska last week, faces a stiff challenge from Oklahoma State Saturday. The Sooners could wind up in one of the four major bowls with a triumph over their tough Big Eight rivals.

The championship of the Atlantic Coast Conference will be decided Saturday when 11th-ranked Maryland hosts 12th-ranked Clemson in a battle of two of the top defensive teams in the nation.

Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Arkansas and Louisiana State are four other teams with high bowl aspirations and could get them with victories on Saturday.

Tenth-ranked Notre Dame plays No. 20 Georgia Tech in a game involving teams with seven-game winning streaks. Arkansas, ranked No. 13 in the country, hosts Southwest Conference colleague Texas A & M and No. 17 LSU plays Mississippi State in a Southeastern Conference game.

Fiesta Bowl officials have their eyes on Arkansas and say they will invite the Razorbacks if they beat Texas A&M.

Penn State Ponders Possible Opponent

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — No. 1 ranked Penn State is going to either the Orange, Cotton or Sugar bowls depending on the results of Saturday's game involving potential opponents.

Despite earlier reports from unnamed sources that the Nittany Lions were considering skipping the Orange Bowl, Penn State will opt to play No. 2 Nebraska in Miami if the Cornhuskers beat Missouri Saturday.

The big question, yet officially unanswered, is what do the Lions do if Nebraska loses?

One thing is certain. Penn State has no intention of going to the Orange Bowl to meet a team with two defeats. Nebraska, which would still be the Orange host, lost to Alabama in the season opener.

Now, Coach Joe Paterno has to take a look at the result of the Georgia-Auburn game. If eighth-ranked Georgia wins, it makes the Bulldogs at least co-champion of the Southeastern Conference with Alabama, and the automatic host in the Sugar Bowl.

Alabama could tie for the conference title a week later by also beating Auburn, but can't go to the Sugar Bowl, because it was last year's host. And since it's a tie, Georgia gets the bowl nod.

Georgia would not be rated high enough to interest Penn State.

That is assuming Alabama defeats Auburn in its final game Nov. 25, or Auburn doesn't rise and upset both Georgia and Alabama, which then would place Auburn in the Sugar Bowl.

In the event of a Nebraska loss and a Georgia victory, Penn State will accept a Cotton Bowl invitation to meet the apparent Southwest Conference champion, Houston, which has Rice and Texas Tech remaining to complete a 10-1 season. Houston is ranked sixth.

Then there is another direction Penn State is prepared to go.

Should Nebraska and Georgia lose, the Nittany Lions will head for New Orleans and a New Year's day game with coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's Alabama team, which would be the sole champion of the Southeastern Conference and get a pass to a second straight Sugar Bowl.

This all adds to three major bowls — the Rose features the Pac 10 and Big 10 champions — each being alive for getting the nation's No. 1 team.

Judge Upholds Transfer Rule

AUSTIN (AP) — A high school student's two-pronged attack on an athletic eligibility rule has failed on both fronts. State District Judge Harley Clark ruled Thursday that the transfer rule is valid and not governed by a state law requiring agencies to publish proposed regulations.

All transfers in Texas public schools, except seniors, must sit out a year before they can play varsity football or basketball.

Jack Sullivan found himself caught by the rule when his family moved to Austin in March 1977 from Burlington, Vt. Sullivan discovered he could not play basketball at Anderson High School until the 1978-1979 season.

His family filed suit against the University Interscholastic League, which governs most academic and sports competition between all Texas public high schools. The Sullivans claimed the rule was discriminatory and also questioned the UIL's entire rule-making procedure.

Clark ruled Nov. 7 that the rule is constitutional. His second ruling rejected arguments that the league is a state agency and subject to the Texas Administrative Procedures Act.

The state law requires all state agencies — except colleges and universities — to publish, hold hearings and allow public discussion of their regulations.

The transfer rule was adopted by a vote of member schools, but without formal public discussion from parents and students.

Attorney John Buckley of the American Civil Liberties Union argued on behalf of Sullivan that the UIL is supported by public funds from its member schools, has jurisdiction over most interscholastic athletics and therefore is a state agency.

UIL Director Bailey Marshall testified that the league occupies rent-free space on the University of Texas campus. University professors participate in state contests and programs, he added, and the university president must approve the league's salary schedule.

Under questioning from Buckley, Marshall said the league receives no funds from either UT or the Texas Legislature. The UIL operates instead on member fees, tournament and playoff gate receipts and publication income, he said.

Lawyer Carol Cox of the attorney general's office argued that the UIL has no legislative mandate, does not compel schools to join and is part of UT. All institutions of higher education are exempt from the state Administrative Procedures Act.

Dean Thomas Hatfield of UT's Division of Continuing Education testified that the UIL is part of the university's public service outreach.

If Clark had decided the UIL is a state agency, the transfer rule and all other regulations would have been void. Buckley said he will appeal Clark's decision.

Nicklaus Nabs Aussie Lead

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — American Jack Nicklaus shot into a four-stroke lead in the second round today of the $223,000 Australian Open golf championship while nursing a shoulder injured in a tennis match.

Nicklaus shot a course record 6-under-par 66 at the Australian Club for a two-round total of 139, five under the card and four strokes ahead of fellow Americans Bob Byman and Ben Crenshaw.

American Tom Kite was even-par after firing a 3-under 69.

Spurred by a large gallery of spectators, Nicklaus, known throughout the golfing world as "the Golden Bear," fired six birdies in a flawless round.

Australian Graham Marsh, who set a course record with a 5-under-par 67 on the redesigned Australian course Thursday, had a horrible front nine of 41, then shot a 38 on the home stretch to slip from the first-round lead to a tie for eighth place with a 146.

West Texas States 'Panhandle Night'

CANYON (Special) — West Texas State announced a "Panhandle Student Night" for the Buffaloes season finale Nov. 22 against the New Mexico State Aggies in Kimbrough Stadium.

The special promotion allows all students (high school age and younger) to enter the stadium for 50-cents. All special promotion tickets must be purchased at Gate 6 on the day of the game.

Refugee Ship Remains In Malaysian Waters

By HARI S. MANIAM
PORT KLANG, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysia has temporarily shelved plans to tow the freighter Hai Hong and its tightly-packed human cargo of 2,500 refugees from Vietnam into international waters, Malaysian sources said today.

They said the delay would give France and Canada a chance to make good on offers of sanctuary for the refugees — most of them ethnic Chinese.

But the sources, who asked not to be identified, said the government would go ahead with plans to force the Hai Hong out to sea if France and Canada renege.

The 1,500-ton freighter, its decks littered with makeshift shelters, lay at anchor two miles off Malaysia's west coast for the ninth sweltering day.

The refugees, believing a sanctuary deal was imminent, rejected a Malaysian government order Thursday to leave Malaysian waters, although the government had tempered the ultimatum by offering to repair the ship's damaged engine and provide food, fuel, water, medicine and other supplies.

Malaysia contends those aboard do not qualify as refugees since they reportedly paid a Hong Kong syndicate $5 million for their freedom ship and left Vietnam with the complicity of authorities there.

Malaysian authorities were meeting with diplomats from France, Canada and the United States as well as officials of the U.N. refugee agency to work out plans for evacuation of the refugees.

The French Embassy in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia's capital, said the Paris government will give priority to refugees who have relatives in France or those who speak French or can render services to France.

The deal was far more limited than the offer made by France's deputy foreign minister, Olivier Stirn, who said Wednesday France would take in all those "who express a wish to settle in France."

Observers saw the apparent discrepancy as a French bid to pressure other nations to take in some of the refugees.

Canada has said it may accept some of the refugees, especially those who have relatives in Canada. The Quebec provincial legislature says it will take in 200 if the Canadian government agrees.

Malaysian patrol boats have barred reporters from going aboard the ship, and it could not be determined if the passengers had been told of the French and Canadian offers of sanctuary.

However, one diplomat, who declined to be identified, said the refugees "have a good radio on the ship and you can bet they are monitoring at least news reports about what is happening. Their rejection of the Malaysian order to leave for international waters could be a result of this."

Malaysia already has about 25,000 Vietnamese refugees in its camps on various islands in the South China Sea and has taken in 3,000 more over the past five days. The government contends it is overburdened with legitimate refugees and cannot accept those it views as migrants.

In Washington, the State Department issued a blistering denunciation of human rights abuses in Vietnam, saying tens of thousands of persons are being forced to flee the country on boats despite enormous risks.

Spokeswoman Jill Scheuer said the Carter administration had given the refugee problem the "highest priority" but has not yet decided how the United States might help.

Ms. Scheuer condemned as "particularly reprehensible" the Vietnamese practice of permitting middle-class citizens to "buy their way out" of the country.

A State Department refugee expert, Henry B. Cantow, said the government for freedom in 1978 is dead.

INDEPENDENCE DELAYED — After weeks of discord over rescheduling the transfer of power to majority rule, the Rhodesian interim government's Executive Committee (from right, Ndabaningi Sithole, Bishop Abel Muzorewa, Ian Smith and Chief Chirau) has announced April 20 as the new election date. Rhodesia's Power Transfer Running Behind Schedule

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — The transfer of power to Rhodesia's black majority has been put off for four months by a biracial transition government increasingly beset by internal bickering and stepped-up guerrilla attacks from neighboring Mozambique and Zambia.

An official announcement Thursday said the elections scheduled to take place before Dec. 31 had been postponed to April 20 because the Executive Council has not yet completed all the political decisions required for the finalization of the new constitution.

The Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, who along with Prime Minister Ian Smith, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and Sen. Jeremiah Chirau make up the Council, said, "We have had to accept the inevitable. It has been physically impossible to meet the date owing to the lagging behind in certain measures which should have been taken."

He did not specify which "measures" were causing the problems. However, the entire transition program is running more than two months behind schedule and the draft of the new constitution has not been published so far.

At the same time, black nationalist guerrillas led by Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo have stepped up their six-year-old war from Mozambique and Zambia to wreck the transition process. Casualties have reached nearly 30 a day and 60 percent of Rhodesia is under martial law.

But Smith, who recently asked the United States and Britain to call a peace conference with the guerrilla leaders, said he had not sought a postponement of the elections merely for the possibility of talks with Mugabe and Nkomo.

"That thought has not even entered my mind," he said.

Muzorewa, the principal black leader in the transition government who said earlier this week that any delay in the elections would "invite disaster," told reporters he was satisfied with the new deadline.

"We would have liked an earlier date, but this has been set after thorough examination of the processes that need to be done," he said.

For the last two weeks both Smith and Chirau had urged postponing the elections, provided for in an accord reached March 3. But Muzorewa, and to a lesser degree Sithole, had been insisting a delay would undermine the credibility of the agreement.

Under the new timetable, the constitution will be ready by Dec. 22 and a referendum on it among Rhodesia's white voters will be held Jan. 30. The white-dominated legislature will be recalled Feb. 6 and dissolved March 8.

Nomination day for the 72 black and 28 white seats in the new legislature is set for March 23, and elections among the black and white voters will be held April 20. No date was fixed for a handover of power, but it is expected just after the rescheduled elections.

Israeli Policemen Bring Controversy Into Open

By MICHAEL PRECKER
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli policemen trying to form a union are running into determined opposition from a government aghast at the notion of a strike that could jeopardize the country's security.

The long-simmering controversy broke into the open this week when three officers working to organize the union appeared on a television show and immediately were reprimanded and fined for granting interviews without permission.

But the union-minded policemen continue to speak out and now face a police disciplinary court that could order them demoted or fired.

"We will not be silent," said Inspector David Ofek, who maintained that orders not to discuss police matters should not apply to union organizing.

"The right to organize and freedom of speech go hand in hand. We're taking a chance that we'll be fired, but others would take our place."

Ofek and two fellow Tel Aviv policemen began the effort a year ago, dissatisfied with salaries set by a government committee without rank-and-file representation. Now they claim that 3,000 of Israel's 13,000 policemen have signed letters of support for a union.

The average gross income of salaried workers in Israel is $380 a month. A starting patrolman makes about $350 a month, with average monthly pay about $475.

"We just can't live on this salary," Ofek said. "Our commanders don't realize how bad conditions are. Morale is low and we have lost our honor. If the country can't care for us, we'll have to care for ourselves."

The policemen, Israel's only public employees not represented by a union, say they deserve the same right to organize held by other Israeli workers as well as the United States.

The government retorts that Israel's security problems make this a special case.

Interior Ministry spokesman Yehzekel Lavie says, "It's unthinkable that a paramilitary organization responsible for internal security could become a union and someday say 'I'm not going after that thief,' or 'I'm not investigating that murder' or 'I'm not going to take action against terrorists.'"

Generally, police are responsible for security inside Israel's pre-1967 lines, while the army guards the occupied territories and the borders.

Ofek said the policemen "aren't even thinking about striking" and would agree to binding arbitration. But the mere establishment of a union would be too dangerous, said Yaakov Markovitch, head of the Interior Ministry's Department of Police.

"I don't think they understand the consequences of this," he said. "We have enough problems."

Markovitch conceded the policemen's pay "is not so good," but said increases in pay and benefits are coming.

"Everyone agrees we must give them a good salary so they will continue to serve and serve well, but we are against a union," he said.

Ferry Runs Signal China, Island Link

HONG KONG (AP) — The first passenger ferry to China in nearly 30 years skimmed out of Hong Kong harbor bound for Canton this morning, forging another link between the tiny British colony and its giant northern neighbor.

At the same time, a sister ferry left the deepwater port of Whampoa 10 miles downstream from Canton on the 75-mile trip to Hong Kong along a stretch of water that was home to opium smugglers and sea pirates more than a century ago.

The inauguration of daily hovercraft service between Hong Kong and Canton adds the vital sea link to passenger transportation between the two commercial centers and opens up an important route to bring tourists to China.

Last month, China and Hong Kong resumed daily passenger flights for the first time since the Communists won control of the mainland in 1949.

The original agreement for air service covered the duration of the month-long Canton Trade Fair which ended this week but Communist newspapers in Hong Kong indicated the 20-minute flights to Canton may become permanent and possibly extend to other cities.

Assassination Sparks Riots In Spain

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Police fired smoke grenades and rubber bullets at demonstrators in the tense Basque region today following the assassination of a Franco-era judge by presumed Basque terrorists.

Some 1,000 demonstrators on the main street of the Basque city of San Sebastian were routed by police, but stores began closing as leftist parties called for a general strike in the area.

In Irun, on the French border, workers struck two big metal plants and demonstrators barricaded the highway to nearby San Sebastian. San Sebastian bus workers also walked off the job.

More than 12,000 persons demonstrated and many clashed with police Thursday night in a dozen Basque towns and cities.

The demonstrators accused police of firing indiscriminately into a plaza in Mondragon on Wednesday, killing two guerrillas of the Basque separatist organization ETA.

A housewife sitting on park bench also was killed and three other passersby were wounded by police bullets in Mondragon, the protesters said.

Meanwhile, hundreds turned out in Madrid today for the burial of Jose Francisco Mateu, the 58-year-old former judge assassinated by terrorists believed to be Basque separatists.

Madrid police said first evidence indicated Mateu was shot and killed by ETA commandos.

Two young men on motor bikes killed Mateu, the head of Gen. Francisco Franco's political court until its abolishment in 1977, outside his home Thursday.

The killers escaped on their bikes into rush-hour traffic.

The judge's slaying was the 68th death in political violence in Spain this year.

Jet Crash Death Toll Revised

By MANIK DE SILVA
COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — The landing-approach lights at Colombo airport were not operating when a chartered jetliner filled with Indonesian Moslem pilgrims crashed a mile short of the runway, government officials said today.
The government also revised the death toll downward to 183 in the Wednesday night crash of the Icelandic Airlines DC-8. The Foreign Ministry and the Indonesian Embassy on Thursday had put the number of dead at 199.
Cabinet Secretary G.V.P. Samarasinghe said 79 persons survived, though some remained in critical condition. Indonesian officials said Thursday that 43 had been hospitalized.
Police said 156 bodies had been pulled from the wreckage as of today. They said the remainder either were burned beyond recovery or were still under pieces of wreckage not yet cleared away.

Samarasinghe, speaking at a news conference, said the airport's approach lights were not working Wednesday night. But he said that "as far as we know" the airport's instrument-guidance system was operating properly and four landings and take-offs had been made shortly before the accident.
He did not explain why the lights were not operating.
The jetliner, which had an all-Icelandic crew, was flying the Indonesians home after a month-long pilgrimage to Moslem holy places in Saudi Arabia. It was trying to land in this island nation off the tip of India to refuel, but it crashed into a coconut plantation short of the runway in a severe thunderstorm.

The Cabinet secretary said the jet made its approach at about 11:30 p.m. It was tracked by the control tower from 90 miles outside the airport and landing clearance was given with instructions that an altitude of 650 feet be maintained at a distance of two miles from the airport, he said.
Controllers realized the plane was flying too low and directed the pilot to gain altitude height, but they suddenly lost contact with the aircraft and then saw a burst of flames indicating the crash, Samarasinghe said.
The plane's "black boxes" — the flight recorder and cockpit voice recorder — were recovered from the wreckage and Sri Lankan officials said they would send them to the United States for expert analysis of the cause of the crash. Tapes of communications between airport controllers and the crew have been sealed for investigators from Iceland and Indonesia.

Samarasinghe stressed repeatedly that the Sri Lankan government, which has appointed a panel of inquiry, has not reached any conclusions about the cause of the accident.
Two Indonesian air force transport planes arrived here, meanwhile, to take the bodies home. Moslem prayers were recited and bodies, shrouded in white cloth and wrapped in reed matting, were borne shoulder-high to trucks that ferried them to a hangar for loading on the Indonesian planes.
Five of 13 Icelandic personnel on the plane survived.

GUNMAN SHOT, HOSTAGE FREED — A man identified by police as Donald Johnson, left, of Randolph, Mass., receives medical help after being shot early this morning in West Bridgewater after he held a woman hostage in a car for almost five hours. Commission Approves Plan

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A governor's commission has recommended that taxpayers be allowed to cut any local property tax, despite warnings the Proposition 13-like change would be tantamount to "mob rule."
The proposal was passed Thursday by the Governor's Advisory Commission on Taxes near the end of a sweeping, two-day meeting considering property tax reforms.

George Bersted, mayor of Monmouth, charged: "When you're talking about ceilings and cutting taxes, you're talking mob rule, in my estimation."
But commission chairman Alan Ganz countered: "The idea that the citizen is a dumb yahoo and doesn't know what's good for him is abhorrent to me."
Under current law, voters can approve rollbacks of only some tax rates such as county corporate taxes, but the commission recommended that referenda be authorized to reduce any local property tax rate set by law.
The commission also voted to accept a "truth-in-taxation" proposal that would require tax districts to hold two public hearings and publish "attention-getting" notices in newspapers prior to voting on a tax hike.

The panel, appointed by the Gov. James R. Thompson, is expected to officially forward its recommendations to him early next year at which time his administration will draft tax-reform legislation.

Occupant, Workman Swap Messages

DENVER (AP) — It was a cold, windy day in Denver when the following exchange took place at a downtown high-rise construction site:
A smart aleck in an existing building next door held up a sign at the window for the cold workers outside to see. It read: "It's 72 degrees in here."
One worker found a piece of cardboard, scribbled on it and held it up for the office occupant. It read: "It's $15 an hour out here."

Another witness, Donna Shalala, an assistant secretary with the Department of Housing and Urban Development, said federal experiments in which poor families were given money for housing indicated that many didn't use it for that purpose unless there was careful monitoring.
She said only about one-third of the families who lived in substandard housing chose to use the money to improve their lot.

Many poor families who already lived in adequate housing tended to use their extra cash — about $80 per month, in most cases — for rent payments, thus freeing other money for non-housing uses, she said.

Another experimental government program, negative income tax, had been discussed at a hearing session Wednesday.
Results of the program, which guaranteed participating families in Seattle and Denver set incomes through cash grants or work or both, showed that it tended to discourage work, researchers said.

Woman Not Injured During Long Ordeal

WEST BRIDGEWATER, Mass. (AP) — A masked man took a mother of two hostage and held a gun to her head for five hours today before a police sniper shot him in the chest, authorities said.
The gunman was reported in critical condition after surgery at a hospital. His hostage was freed unharmed.

"He was prepared for anything. He said he would shoot her and shoot himself rather than surrender," said West Bridgewater Police Sgt. Howard R. Anderson.

The man, identified by police as Donald Johnson, 43, was shot after he left his vehicle and walked the woman to a nearby service station so she could use the women's room.

Anderson said Johnson was wearing a ski mask and a jumpsuit, he had a CB radio in one vest pocket, a police band radio in another vest pocket and was armed with two handguns and a knife.

Anderson said Johnson had been an auxiliary policeman in nearby Randolph but had recently moved to New Hampshire.

The woman, Barbara Sellstone, 35, wife of a supermarket manager, was shaken by the ordeal but suffered no serious injuries.

Johnson was in surgery at a hospital this morning. His condition was listed as critical.

Anderson said the incident began late Thursday when the man entered Mrs. Sellstone's home.

Anderson's brother, Robert, also a West Bridgewater police sergeant, said it appeared robbery was the motive for the initial break-in.
Mrs. Sellstone's husband, Paul, was driving home from work, chatting over his auto CB radio unit with one of his neighbors and had just pulled into his driveway.

"Oh my God!" is the last thing Sellstone barked into his CB.
The neighbor ran to the Sellstone home and saw through a window that a masked man was holding the couple at gunpoint. The neighbor called police, and as they responded, the gunman seized Mrs. Sellstone and hauled her to the family's station wagon.

A chase lasting 30 minutes ended at an intersection about two miles from the home when police cruisers surrounded the car.

Later, when Mrs. Sellstone had to use a bathroom, police removed the doors on a lavatory at a nearby gas station. In the glare of spotlights, the gunman hugged Mrs. Sellstone and kept the .357-caliber Magnum at her temple while leading her across the street.

After she left the women's room, Johnson turned just far enough away from his hostage for a state police sniper to open fire into his chest.

The couple's two children were asleep when the abduction began. They were cared for by police and neighbors.

Defective Fan Blades Cause Ford Recall

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. is recalling 358,000 cars and trucks to fix defective fan blades that could disintegrate, throwing shrapnel-like fragments while the engine is running.

At least three people have been injured by flying fan blades, Ford said Thursday. One of those injuries was serious.

Ford warned owners of affected vehicles not to run the engines with the hood open until repairs are made.

Involved in the recall are 148,000 1976-77 Ford Granadas and Mercury Monarchs with 250-cubic-inch engines. That includes all Ghia models and others with the same type engine equipped with extra cooling capacity or air conditioning.

Also being recalled are 210,000 1974 F-100, B- and LN-series medium duty trucks equipped with 330-, 361-, 380- and 391-cubic-inch engines.

The company said on some of the vehicles, "the cooling fan blades may crack, resulting in possible breakage and in fragments being thrown from the fan assemblies."

It said letters will be sent to vehicle owners advising them when to take their vehicles in for free inspection and repair.

"In the interim, owners and service technicians are warned against operating the engines with the hoods open until the fans have been replaced," the company said.

The recall was the latest development in an ongoing problem Ford has had with potentially lethal fan blades.
A year ago, Ford recalled nearly 1.3 million cars because of defective cooling fans that were blamed for 13 injuries and the death of a Detroit-area mechanic who was hit in the chest by a fan fragment while working on a 1972 Ford Torino.

That recall was prompted by a National Highway Traffic Safety Administration investigation of fan blades in some 6.2 million Ford-built cars and trucks produced from 1970 through 1977.

In question were cooling fans with flexible blades that developed cracks and, in some cases, broke apart. Ford received more than 200 complaints of that happening.

Ford spokesman John Emmert said of the three injuries related to the current recall, "one was a head injury that was fairly serious." He said it involved a man working on a truck engine.

"The other two injuries — one involved a car and one, another truck — were not as serious," Emmert said.

He said Ford settled out-of-court with the man who was struck in the head. A lawsuit is pending against the firm as a result of another injury, he said.

TVA Decides Control Test

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Decisions now made in the privacy of your bathroom, kitchen or basement may someday be made by a switchboard operator sitting hundreds of miles away.

The Tennessee Valley Authority on Thursday moved a step closer to that eventuality when it approved a $9 million test of a system allowing power distributors or the TVA itself to control what hours electricity can be used for water heaters, heat pumps and space heating.

In this way, the TVA can shave the peak demands for electricity and possibly reduce the amount of additional generating capacity it will need in the future, officials said.
The U.S. Department of Energy will contribute $6.5 million to the demonstration project which involves the fitting of 4,000 to 7,500 homes with load-management devices that can be controlled from a central point.

Health Needs Increase Welfare Rolls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Desire for health care — not extra income — may be driving people to the welfare rolls, a Rand Corp. researcher says.

David W. Lyon told a Senate subcommittee Thursday that research shows that "welfare may mask a large number of families more in need of health insurance than income maintenance."

"We found that short-term cases and cases that go on and off the rolls intermittently had much higher level of Medicaid-paid health care than cases on the rolls continuously for three or more years," Lyon said.

"A good deal of the movement onto the rolls seems to be caused by demands for health care not covered by private insurance plans."

Lyon testified at the second of three scheduled hearings called by Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., a proponent of welfare revision.

Another witness, Donna Shalala, an assistant secretary with the Department of Housing and Urban Development, said federal experiments in which poor families were given money for housing indicated that many didn't use it for that purpose unless there was careful monitoring.

She said only about one-third of the families who lived in substandard housing chose to use the money to improve their lot.

Many poor families who already lived in adequate housing tended to use their extra cash — about $80 per month, in most cases — for rent payments, thus freeing other money for non-housing uses, she said.

Another experimental government program, negative income tax, had been discussed at a hearing session Wednesday.

Results of the program, which guaranteed participating families in Seattle and Denver set incomes through cash grants or work or both, showed that it tended to discourage work, researchers said.

Christopher Reeve Worked On Physique For 'Superman'

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Christopher Reeve, the new Superman, is a cocksure 26-year-old who does few interviews in order to avoid overexposure before the $40 million "Superman" movie is released next month.

Reeve is tall, handsome, articulate. His father is a professor and novelist, his mother a newspaper reporter. He attended Princeton Day School, graduated with honors from Cornell and did graduate work at Juilliard.

He's been an actor since he was 15 and has worked on Broadway — with Katharine Hepburn in "A Matter of Gravity" — and in the TV soap opera "Love of Life." He studied acting in London and Paris.

Reeve is a deadly serious actor who blanching at the thought of playing Superman when first approached for the role. A young man with a background in Shakespeare didn't want to play a cartoon character.

But the smooth, fast-talking Reeve discovered that producer Ilya Salkind and director Richard Donner weren't tossing $40 million into a spool.

"They were looking for a newcomer role," said Reeve. "Nobody would believe Robert Redford flying around in a red cape."

"But a lot of big stars clamored for the role. I took the part for a lot of reasons. I didn't want people to think I was a guy they found on Muscle Beach with sawdust in his head."

"Mario Puzo's brilliant script intrigued me. Then I met Donner. After the test I was convinced they were in the process of making a major film for adults with actors like Marlon Brando, Gene Hackman and Trevor Howard in the cast."

Reeve agreed to tackle "Superman" and thereby signed away a full year and a half of his life to star in the title role.

He was confronted immediately by the almost insurmountable fact that he was built more like Don Knotts than Superman. His facial features were fine for the role, his blond hair could be dyed black. But what to do about his physique?

"I'm 6-foot-4 and I weighed 185 pounds," he said. "I reported to London for the picture eight weeks early and found they had constructed a Superman costume complete with muscles. I absolutely refused to play the role that way."

"Instead I got an instructor, Dave Prowse who played Darth Vader in 'Star Wars,' and set out a physical regimen for myself. I spent two hours a day, seven days a week working out with heavy weights in a gym."

"I looked like Jimmy Stewart standing sideways. So I ate four meals a day and pumped up my muscles. By the time the picture started I weighed 221 pounds — all muscle. I did every single stunt in the picture."

The physical requirements of the film were secondary to the cerebral Reeve. Determined to play Superman as anything but a cartoon character, he finally found a viable handle for the man of steel.

"I'm playing 'Soupy' as seriously as any role I've ever had," he said. "My handle was expanding the difference between

'Soupy' and Clark Kent. Kent is a deliberate disguise and I worked on the subtleties of characterizations between the two. "The whole premise is to take the Superman characterization further than it has ever been done before. The TV series was for children. Our movie is for adults, but children can enjoy it, too."

"The picture is absolutely amazing and heart-warming. I play Superman as a real person. It's the only way it could be done. Donner is a generous and talented director. He allowed me a great deal of freedom in playing 'Soupy' the way I thought he should be done."

"I'm an improvisational actor and I caroled around with new ideas for playing 'Soupy'. I was in charge of all the flying sequences and the executing of all the maneuvers. We developed new concepts for special effects."

If "Superman" is a box-office smash, and perhaps even if it is not, Christopher Reeve will become an immediate superstar. The publicity machine will be great indeed to the general public.

"I was worried about being too closely identified with the role," said Reeve. "But the whole idea since I took the part was very different."

"There's no denying 'Soupy' had been a showstopper for me. But I also had a great deal to love. It makes me feel like a test pig. Instead, I think it will soar."

"I have no idea. I like the idea of a great deal to love. It makes me feel like a test pig. Instead, I think it will soar."

Critic Says 'Pirate' Offers Trashy Fun

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI) — There is nothing believable about the televised version of Harold Robbins' "The Pirate," which does not prevent it from being a kind of fun — definitely not of the good clean variety.

This is the kind of show you hate yourself for watching — but find yourself watching anyway.

The most unbelievable part of "The Pirate," which goes on CBS Tuesday and Wednesday 8-10 p.m., is its entire premise.

Somewhere in the Arabian desert, a Jewish couple on a muleback appears out of the dusty storm, riding up to an Arab encampment. The Jewish man, played by Eli Wallach so you know he'll turn up later in the plot, begs for help for his very pregnant wife.

As Allah, or anyway Robbins, would have it, the rich Arab's wife also is about to give birth. The Jewish wife dies in giving birth to a live son; the Arab's wife lives but delivers a stillborn daughter.

So, most natural thing in the world according to Robbins, Wallach gives his son to the Arab to raise as his own. And if you believe that, perhaps I can interest you in buying a used car, driven only on alternate Sundays by a little old lady from Pasadena.

Two decades later we pick up the Arab and son again. The boy has turned into Franco Nero, blue eyed and dark bearded, the nephew and possible heir to an Arab emirate with four million souls and many more million barrels of oil.

But instead Nero is told he must go forth and multiply petrodollars for the love of prince and country, and his son will inherit the Princesdom. The old prince thoughtfully provides a 16-year-old bride for the purpose.

Two daughters later she can have no more children, and Nero's eye is caught at John F. Kennedy's inauguration by a striking blonde, Anne Archer, who becomes his mistress, the mother of his son and his wife, in that order.

When the old prince decrees she must live within the palace, while her husband's business keeps him elsewhere, it's the beginning of the end of their marriage.

Meanwhile, back at the inauguration, Wallach turns up again as an Israeli army officer. Eventually, along comes Michael Constantine as the leader of an Arab terrorist outfit. Olivia Hussey, who plays

SBA Defends Broadcast Loan Practices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The application for a $345,000 federal loan guarantee to help buy a South Dakota radio station came from Tom Tom Communications, Inc.

"When I saw the company name, I thought it might be an Indian enterprise," one Small Business Administration official said this week.

But Evelyn Rherry, chief of the special projects division of SBA's office of finance, soon learned otherwise.

More than 90 percent of the company's stock is owned by Tom Brokaw, the well-paid host of NBC's "Today" show.

And Brokaw also has an explanation for how the company got its name.

His partner in the venture, John Thomas Kearns, is also known as "Tom." Brokaw said, "so we named it 'Tom Tom.'"

The loan guarantee has come under fire because it was approved under a program that, critics say, White House and SBA officials have suggested was intended chiefly to help minorities buy broadcasting stations.

SBA officials defended the loan guarantee to Brokaw.

It would not take anything away from minorities, they said, and in any event, the program under which it was approved was not intended for minorities alone.

Miss Cherry said the guarantee was approved by the SBA's Sioux Falls, S.D., office.

"They looked at it very hard and felt it was perfectly legitimate," she said.

Brokaw's company is seeking to buy radio station KTOQ in Rapid City, S.D., at a cost of $400,000. The sale still must be approved by the Federal Communications Commission, which regulates the broadcasting industry.

Brokaw, a native of Yankton, S.D., said he asked for the federal guarantee because he wanted to deal with a hometown bank owned by "one of my family's oldest friends." The loan was larger than the bank could make without the guarantee.

"I'm not taking anything away from minorities," Brokaw said.

Miss Cherry said the only requirement for getting an SBA loan guarantee is certification by a bank that it will not make the loan without the guarantee.

The SBA loan guarantee does not involve any direct funding, but the government would have to repay up to 90 percent of the loan in the event of default.

Romantic-Style Ballet Receives Plaudits

By MARY CAMPBELL
NEW YORK (AP) — There's nothing wrong with liking ballet which is pretty. Those who do, have a pleasing new entry in "Chouara," which had its first showing this week by the Joffrey Ballet at the City Center.

"Chouara," pronounced Shura, is in the Romantic style, where a duet has the ballerina doing turns and striking graceful poses with her partner behind her, steadying her by a hand at her waist. But choreographer Gerald Arpino has made the steps in the slow, lyrical movement of Riccardo Drigo's music a bit quicker than in most Romantic ballets. So the new work looks fresh and not at all like a museum piece.

The dance is a tribute to ballerina Alexandra Danilova, who received many flowers as she took bows with the dancers, left Russia in 1924, in a small group which included George Balanchine. She joined Serge Diaghilev's Ballets Russes, where she danced until Diaghilev died. Her last appearance in New York was in 1957. She now teaches at the School of American Ballet.

"Chouara" has three couples, the women in pink tutus and the men in blue-gray. In the first movement of the music, Arpino has departed somewhat from traditional Romantic style. One couple enters from opposite wings, moving toward each other in exciting grand jets. A male solo variation shows off some extraordinarily high jumping.

"Chouara" only lasts 30 minutes but it's a real ballet and not just a little. Liza Minnelli, Laurence Olivier, Steve Doreau, Glenn White, Alan North, Debra Jo Rupp, and Andrew Lawrence were in the line-up at the opening cast.

Joffrey's November 11-12 Nov. 12. It's a dramatic production in the repertoire of a ballet company of being produced in the young.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected to an unprecedented fourth presidential term in 1944.

J.R.R. Tolkien's 'Lord Of Rings' Makes Debut On Movie Screen

By KENNETH R. CLARK
United Press International Writer
It's a long way from Middle Earth to the wide screen of the American theater, but Frodo the hobbit finally is there, daring orcs, trolls and the death reek of the nagul to return the lethal "one ring" of power to the cracks of doom.

If all that leaves the eyes slightly crossed, you're among the uninitiated — relegated by true believers to the ranks of an ignorance that wouldn't know a balrog from a bowling ball. And true believers queued up hundreds deep at box offices nationwide Tuesday — their beloved "Lord of the Rings" finally available with popcorn.

J.R.R. Tolkien's massive work, animated by Ralph Bakshi, premiered beneath a barrage of barbs from the critics: "Overlong, erratically paced and overpopulated with all manner of hobbits, elves, dwarfs, humans, orcs and wizards," said Newsweek magazine. "The movie is a cornucopia of confusion that only the most devout Tolkien addicts will be able to decipher."

Time magazine was even more scathing. "The movie gets increasingly lost in an impenetrable tangle of whimsical plot. Just who are these creatures? And ultimately, who cares?"

From the New York Daily News: "Unfortunately, the film becomes more and more muddled as new characters appear without being properly introduced or explained."

From the New York Times: "The Lord of the Rings is likely to be total confusion to someone who doesn't speak the language."

And from Los Angeles Times critic Charles Champlin, who admits he never acquired "the hobbit habit," this bombshell: "(Audiences) must worry just whose side Crest son of Prell is on... a very long, very loud disappointment... tedious and repetitive... the battle scenes in particular are endless, boring and gory."

Out by the box office, however, a new "Star Wars" phenomenon seemed to be developing and crowds answered critical grumping with a paraphrase of Gimli the Dwarf's battlercry: "Axes of the Dwarves — the fans are upon you."

"It's totally unexpected," said Craig Rhodes, manager of New York's Ziegfeld Theater, of the crowds that started lining up at his box office at 10 a.m. — two hours before the show opened. "It's an animated film, you know. With that kind of movie, you expect a kiddie matinee crowd in heavy numbers, but we're getting a college crowd in its 20s."

The turnout continued throughout the day, with $4 ducaats for the 9:40 p.m. show sold out about 1 1/2 hours before screening.

"I've been here since 10:30 in the morning and I've noticed a couple of kids that have sat through all the shows," said concession manager Steve Mayer whose stand was selling popcorn, candy and sodas at a record rate — even faster than those items were sold a year ago when

"Close Encounters of the Third Kind was showing at the Ziegfeld."

"I saw it myself a few weeks ago and I thought it was too long," Mayer said, "but they seem to love it."

In Pittsburgh — where Kings Court Theater management hired a cast of characters to greet patrons and staged a sidewalk melee with about 15 armored knights as a promotion — all four shows were sold out and crowds were being turned away.

In Denver, every show was sold out up to two hours in advance and in Los Angeles, Regency I Theater officials reported a "sellout business — a possible all-time record." In Seattle, lines began forming at 3 p.m., four hours before the opening, and 2 1/2 hours later they still were in place about 100 deep.

It was the same story in Boston where block-long lines turned out for the opening.

"I haven't seen crowds like this in a long time — in fact, ever," said Tom Shepard, manager of Boston's Cheri Cinema. "We have a lobby full of people now."

TV Writer Gives Up Pro Football

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — This may be weird, but this Sunday I'm swearing off pro football on TV for the rest of the season. No nagging wife caused this. Mine left at halftime one Sunday in 1973 and never came back.

No, it's just that pro football finally is causing me brain fade. The NFL has 28 extra games afoot this season, or 28 too many.

For years I've pulled up a case of Old Frothingslosh, respectfully bowed to the TV set Sundays and Monday nights, commenced drinking and watched 22 big men get ferocious over a small ball filled with air.

I've listened to Curt Gowdy, Dandy Don, Howard the Mouth and all the rest speak learnedly and otherwise of hang time, traps, clean hits and, this year, grouse about the yellow hankies fouling the greensward.

It has been enjoyable, annoying, forgettable, memorable. But something odd happened last Sunday. I watched but couldn't recall who played whom on CBS and NBC. Or which team won. It was all a blur.

Even the commercials were a blur. I can't remember any except for the one where Marv Throneberry sits on a beach and sighs. "I still don't know why they asked me to do this commercial."

I vaguely recall that on the same Sunday, at night, the TV showed the Los Angeles Rams playing Pittsburgh on a muddy field here. But I had to ask a pal Monday who won and to brief me on the excitement, if any.

(The pal also offered to brief me regarding who leads the AFC East, the AFC West, the AFC Central, the NFC West, the NFC Central, the NFC East and how the dollar is faring against the yen.

(But I had to go to the dentist, so I got the fill-in there.)

About this memory loss business: One theory is that I've dipped into the Old Frothingslosh too often and can't even recall my own name now. This is plumb ridiculous. I'm George Allen, always have been.

Another theory blames ABC, which used to show 15 Monday night games and one on Saturday, but has grown in games like the NFL has.

ABC now has 16 Monday games, it says, and also took aboard four other-night jousts offered by the NFL — three on Sunday, one on Thursday.

Granted, 20 night games is a lot for the human mind to accept.

But blame neither Old Frothingslosh nor ABC for this mental-short circuit I've developed in viewing pro football. The culprit is a new disease called Toomuchitis. Take the coming week, for example.

On Sunday here, I face three games on CBS and NBC, one on Monday at ABC, two more on Thanksgiving Day and three more on CBS and NBC next Sunday. That's nine pro football games in a week.

Good golly, this year a time we'd get just one on Sunday and that would tide us over for days. Back then, we could even remember the opening games, the names of the players and even the score. Not now. There's just too much to cram in during a week's time. So I'm not going to cram any more. I guess I could handle it the way my old man does. He turns on the games, lies down and starts snoring.

But that's the coward's way out. I'm going cold turkey with pro football. I've

Challenge Difficult For Strong Men

By SHARI LEWIS

Some "betchas" or challengers work some of the time. Others work most of the time — but I love this one, because (as illogical as it seems) it works every time.

A 98-pound weakling (like, say, me) can place her pointer finger on top of her head, and a big guy, pulling on her wrist with all his strength will not be able to lift that finger off her head.

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Can you place four 5s in such a position that they equal 6's?

ANSWER:

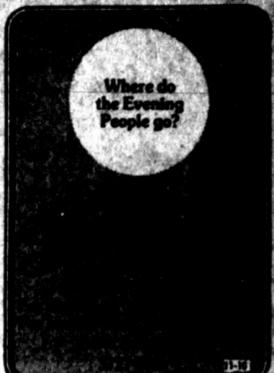

- 5
- 5
- 5
- 5

May Yarborough of Troutdale, Ore., sent that one, and I will send her a "Kids-Only Club Book" as a thank you.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: How can you show someone what he or she never saw, what you never saw, what nobody ever saw, and which, after you both have seen it, nobody else will see again? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Increased Interest Rate Effect Depends On Housing Demand

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

How much does the rise in interest rates on home mortgages affect the sale of houses? Authoritative opinions range from "greatly" through "considerably" to "not very much."

The truth is that, from a personal standpoint, the answer is embodied in the reply to another question: How badly do I need a house?

If you have been transferred by your company to a different area, you will be in the market for a house whether the interest rate is 9 percent or 10 percent or 11 percent.

Ditto if you cannot get a suitable job where you live but can somewhere else. Ditto if your family has outgrown its present residence and needs larger living quarters. Ditto if the size of your family has shrunk and a smaller house is required.

Ditto if your income has risen sharply and you feel the need to live in a more expensive neighborhood. And ditto if the rate of inflation has sliced a piece off your fixed income and you must live in a less costly house with smaller monthly payments.

While these conditions seem to cover nearly everyone who moves, they actually don't. Hundreds of thousands of families who don't fit into any of these categories normally change residences for one reason or another. They include those who feel their present neighborhoods are deteriorating, those whose maintenance costs are increasing every year because their houses are suffering the ailments of old age and those who feel the urge to move every six or seven years even when there is no particular reason to do so.

When interest rates on mortgages go up or mortgage loans are hard to obtain (the two are not necessarily the same), these hundreds of thousands of families often withdraw from the home-purchasing market. Some of them sit tight, waiting for a more opportune time to make a move. Many, especially those in older houses and including those who need larger living quarters, decide that it is wiser to spend $8,000-$10,000 on remodeling projects than buying other houses. That is why the home remodeling business is having its biggest boom year in a long time.

Thus, houses don't sell as well on the average in days of high interest rates on home mortgages, as now. But where people need houses, the interest charges seem to have no effect. Banks, savings and loan associations and other lending institutions continue to have large backlogs of loan applications in certain areas of California and Texas and other places where burgeoning industries have created huge demands for more housing.

Still another reason why some persons are not deterred from buying homes regardless of the interest increases is that property has become an inflation hedge.

Once there was a theory that stocks were the best investment in periods of inflation because they rose as the rate of inflation went up. Today, the reverse is generally true. The stock market is scared of inflation these days. Houses, on the other hand, have increased in price along with the steady rise in inflation. In fact, they are tied together so tightly that it is difficult to determine which is following the other or, in fact, whether they aren't actually one.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Show Takes Swipes At Society

By JOHN J. MULLINS

BOSTON (AP) — From writing the words and music for advertising jingles, Cary Hoffman took to the stage to take "loving swipes" at such things as sex, politics and social mores.

He still does jingles, though, and sees some irony in the show, "What's a Nice Country Like You Doing In a State Like This?" taking shots at matters related to his advertising work.

"About seven years ago, I wrote 'Florida Sends You Her Best' for an advertising agency in New York, and unbeknownst to me, they gave it to Anita Bryant," he said.

Miss Bryant and Hoffman's jingle extolled orange juice for four years, but the active opponent of gay rights is the target of one number in the satirical musical, which opened here recently.

Hoffman wrote the music and some lyrics for the show, which he thinks may be the longest-running political and social satire. It opened in New York in April 1972, and has played around the country and in Canada.

It all began as a comedy album that was never released — Hoffman suspects because it was considered too irreverent. Sketches were dropped from the album to create a show that basically is a series of songs.

"It's not savage satire," Hoffman said, and he thinks the music may be what has kept it going.

"There are some serious things in the show," he said. "We tried to combine the elements of a Broadway book musical with a revue with satire."

"We found satire a little bit unrelenting. We build characters up more than satire allows," said Hoffman, one of four performers in the show. His actress wife, Suzanne Astor Hoffman, is another.

"At times we have the feeling the show should be a musical New York Times," he said. "That can drive you crazy."

Hoffman said he gets attached to material that works well in the show, but the show is being changed constantly to keep up with current events.

Hoffman worked out three changes for the Boston opening, and he said audiences at the end of the planned six-week run may see a different show than those at the opening.

Changes may involve new lines to existing music, complete new songs, or a change in attitude in the presentation.

"We have tried to make the show as funny as possible," Hoffman said. "It was not established as a soap box of my political views."

Loan Extensions For Homeowners To Be Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Homeowners having problems making payments on home-improvement loans will soon be able to extend some of the loans for up to 15 years.

The extra time to repay the loans will become available under a rule change being put into effect Nov. 27 by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The change covers HUD's Title I program for insuring loans made by private lenders for home improvements.

Such loans now may be refinanced for up to seven additional years as long as the new obligation does not become due more than 25 years from the date of the original loan.

Under the new rules a home improvement loan for a single-family residence can be extended for up to 15 years as long as it doesn't come due more than 25 years from the original loan date.

And for nonresidential residences and the residential property the loan can be extended for up to 25 years as long as it doesn't come due later than 25 years after the original loan date.

Homeowners who want to refinance loans under this program will have to make arrangements with the lender who originated the loan.

The new program is the highest military award for bravery that can be given to a member of the armed forces.
