Mass Deaths At Sect's Camp Termed Suicide

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Between 300 and 400 bodies — men, women and children who reportedly lined up for doses of poison brewed in a tub — have been found at the jungle camp of a California sect whose members ambushed and killed five Americans, including California Congressman Leo J. Ryan, Guyana's information minister said today.

Shirley Field-Ridley said the whereabouts of the remaining 500 to 700 Americans at the camp was not known, but they apparently fled into the surrounding jungle, in the northwest corner of this South American nation.

Well-known American lawyer Mark Lane, who was at the People's Temple camp just before the mass deaths occurred, told The Associated Press here today that suicide was discussed at a community meeting and he was later informed by two sect members "We are all going to die now."

"They were smiling... they looked genuinely happy," Lane said.

It was not clear whether the mass deaths occurred at about the same time or some time after the Saturday ambush of Ryan and his group, which had gone to the camp to investigate reports of alleged large-scale abuse of sect members.

Ryan's party was trying to escort some disenchanted members from the camp when it was attacked at a nearby airstrip.

Adherents of the People's Temple, whose founder the Rev. Jim Jones, established the agricultural commune last year, reportedly had long planned mass suicide if they felt their sect was threatened.

The hundreds of bodies were found by Guyanese troops who raided the camp Sunday. Miss Field-Ridley said some had gunshot wounds, but most showed no signs of violence.

"A witness said that people in the area were having mass suicide," she told a news conference. "He said the poison was being administered to them, that they were lining up for it." It was not known what kind of poison, reportedly brewed in a tub, was used.

She said the military was trying to identify the bodies, some of which were found in homes and some in open areas of the camp, called Jonestown, and that so far Jones himself had not been found among the dead.

The information minister also denied reports that up to nine persons had been arrested in connection with the ambush of Ryan's party.

Only one suspect — identified as Larry Layton, an American about 32 years old — has been taken into custody, she said. Neither the charge against him nor his hometown was known.

Lane and a lawyer colleague, Charles Garry, went to the camp to act as counselors during the visit by Ryan. Lane has frequently taken on controversial cases and is currently representing convicted Martin Luther King assassin James Earl Ray.

Lane said he and Garry were barred from Saturday's mass meeting, then were put under guard and finally were allowed to flee into the jungle as they heard screams and other sounds of confusion from the settlement. They eventually made their way to a town and later to this capital city, 150 miles southeast of the camp.

The 53-year-old Ryan, a Democrat who represented San Mateo County, was accompanied by aides, reporters and relatives of some sect members on the trip last week to this former British colony.

A knife-wielding assailant had attempted to stab Ryan earlier while the congressman was visiting Jonestown. Two members of Ryan's group disarmed the attacker, and Ryan was not injured.

The dead included three newsmen and one of the settlement's defectors. Ten persons were wounded, three seriously, and the husband of one of the wounded had a stroke. The U.S. Embassy said they were all Americans.

Survivors of the attack said a band of black and white members of the People's Temple opened fire with automatic weapons and shotguns as Ryan and his party were boarding planes at the Port Kaituma airstrip, eight miles south of Jonestown.

In San Francisco, a People's Temple spokesman who identified himself as Archie James denied members of the sect did the airport killings.

The dead were Ryan, reporter Don Harris, 42, and cameraman Robert Brown, 28, both of NBC News and both Los Angeles residents; Gregory Robinson, 27, a photographer for the San Francisco Examiner, and Patricia Parks or Parker, 18, who was trying to escape from Jonestown. Her home address was not known.

A California psychologist who accompanied Ryan to Guyana to try to get his daughter out of Jonestown said members of the group, which is composed mostly

Fog, Drizzle Slow Travel

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Wintry storms vented their wrath on travelers from the Pacific Northwest to Texas today, glazing streets and highways and reducing visibility to dangerous levels.

The season's second major storm buried the Pacific Northwest under a foot of snow, while freezing drizzle put a layer of ice on roads and bridges in eastern Colorado and western Kansas. Icy conditions also hampered travel in the northern and central Great Plains states.

Fog and occasional drizzle blanketed the Lubbock area Sunday night and this morning, slowing traffic and resulting in some accidents, and the gray shroud is expected to hang over the region through Tuesday. But city residents should be able to travel with a minimum of inconvenience.

Spokesmen at the highway department reported no road closings last night or this morning in the Lubbock area, and indicated increasing visibility on most of the highways.

A flight-control spokesman at the Lubbock airport today reported one incoming flight rerouted last night before midnight, due to low visibility from the fog. All scheduled outgoing flights last night departed, and since 7 a.m. today all flight traffic has been proceeding as scheduled, the spokesman said.

Poor visibility is believed to have been a factor in two traffic accidents here that injured four persons, one of them seriously.

Heavy fog was blamed for three deaths at Amarillo Sunday night when a light plane crashed during a landing attempt at Amarillo International Airport.

Occasional light rain is forecast tonight and Tuesday along with the fog in the Lubbock area. The probability of precipitation is measured at 20 percent today, increasing to 30 percent tonight and 40 percent Tuesday.

Temperatures are expected to remain cool in Lubbock, with a high in the upper 40s and the low in the middle 40s today and the Tuesday high near 50.

Southeasterly winds of 10 to 15 mph were forecast today, dropping to 5 to 10 mph tonight.

Lubbock temperatures Sunday reached a high of 48 from the early morning low of 39. Precipitation was recorded in only trace amounts, giving the city 1.08 inches in November and 13.87 inches for the year. Last year at this date 18.12 inches of precipitation had been recorded.

Weather conditions similar to those in the Lubbock area were widespread in the South Plains region today. Early this morning, visibility of less than one-half mile from the heavy fog was reported in spots, and motorists were urged to drive with care.

Precipitation in the South Plains area ranged from trace amounts in most com-

Officers Link Area Men With Bentley's Slaying

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Acting on confidential information, police have linked two county jail inmates with the murder of Lindsey "Lynn" Henton Bentley, whose knife-punctured body was found in the locked trunk of a car Nov. 6, Det. Capt. Wayne Love said.

Detectives Bill Townley, Joe Hargraves and Randy Ward about 6 p.m. Sunday received the information which implicated the suspects, a 23-year-old Plainview man and 18-year-old Slaton man, Love said.

The men, whose names were not disclosed pending filing of formal charges, reportedly were in the county jail on different charges when police received a call from the informant.

The Slaton man was arrested earlier Sunday on suspicion of criminal trespassing, and the other suspect was taken into custody Thursday for surrendering bond on a theft charge, according to a county jailer.

Bentley, 24, who lived at 4605 44th St., was found dead in the trunk of a car parked in the 3800-block of 51st Street. Autopsy reports showed Bentley had suffered 30 stab wounds and that he had been dead about four days before his girlfriend's brother made the grim discovery.

Bentley's death was ruled homicide by Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack.

Love said a "long" knife thought to be the murder weapon was recovered by Police Sunday night in some bushes near 20th Street and Avenue X. A spare tire, believed to have been taken from the trunk when Bentley's body was hidden in the car, also was found near where the suspects lived at the time of the killing, he said.

Bentley's 25-year-old girlfriend, Kathy Ann Stalcup of 1009 Ave. T, said she last heard from her boyfriend about 2:30 a.m. Oct. 29 when he called to say he could not pick her up at work.

Police Lt. Billy Knox said Miss Stalcup filed a missing persons report at 2 p.m. Oct. 30, and the next day she reported her car — in which Bentley later was found dead — missing.

Miss Stalcup's car was found several days later in an apartment parking lot in the 1600-block of 16th Street. Miss Stalcup told police she lost her trunk keys and had not tried to get into the trunk until she had a flat tire Nov. 6.

The body was found that day when Miss Stalcup's brother took out the back seat of his sister's car and reached through to the trunk to find a tool to fix the tire. The vehicle was parked in front of a residence where Miss Stalcup was babysitting when her brother used a flashlight to look inside the trunk and saw the dead man's legs.

A 25-year-old Lubbock man was arrested Nov. 12 in connection with the stabbing. However, he was released the next day because, according to police, there was insufficient evidence to hold him.

City Credits STEP For Fewer Mishaps

Slide Road has become a safer thoroughfare with the advent of the Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP), Lubbock police officials say.

Accidents with injuries on Slide Road have dropped significantly since the STEP officers began writing tickets Oct. 1, and drivers on Slide are slowing down, police say.

From January through September, a total of 58 accidents with injuries, or an average of more than six a month, occurred on Slide Road between 34th Street and Loop 289. However, since Oct. 1, only two injury-causing accidents have occurred — one at 34th Street and one at the entrance to South Plains Mall, according to city records.

"People can complain about getting tickets if they want to," said STEP coordinator Sgt. Jerry Stevens. "But they sure have cut down on accidents."

When the STEP program began Oct. 1, traffic officers were ticketing speeders on Slide Road for speeds up to 85 miles per hour, according to city officials. "Right now I'd say the average speed on Slide Road is about the speed limit," Stevens said.

Citywide, accidents with injuries are down only slightly from a year ago. Through Oct. 31, there were 1,937 accidents with injuries compared with 1,971 during the first 10 months a year ago.

During the first two weeks in November, Lubbock recorded 86 accidents with injuries, down from 101 during the same period last year.

Traffic deaths through Nov. 15 stood at 35 compared with 42 at the same time in 1977.

The eight STEP officers ticketed 1,003 drivers for hazardous moving violations during the first two weeks of November. During October, STEP officers issued 1,804 moving violation tickets, and regular duty police officers wrote more than 1,500 citations for moving violations.

STEP officers now are shifting their assignments to other hours and other areas in an effort to reduce accidents in key locations, according to Stevens.

The intersection of 19th Street and Indiana Avenue, the site of 12 injury accidents from January through September and five since Oct. 1, is one of those locations due extra attention.

Stevens said the biggest traffic problem at the intersection "is people running red lights and making illegal left turns."

"But a lot of accidents are happening because drivers continue making left turns after the left turn arrow goes off," he said. "This is extremely hazardous."

Carter Aims Blow At Federal Workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is convinced that federal employees are overpaid and has ordered plans for an overhaul of the pay system, presidential aides say.

Half a dozen administration officials who asked not to be named said they are drafting several "pay reform" proposals for possible submission to Congress in January.

Ideas under discussion would: —Cut in half future pay raises for blue-collar workers until their pay levels equal rates outside government, which specialists say now average 8 percent below federal levels.

—Change the formula the government uses to calculate yearly raises for white-collar workers, resulting in lesser increases by taking account of such factors as the government's relatively generous fringe benefits.

—Pay typists, secretaries and other clerical and technical workers according to local prevailing wage rates, which in many areas are well below the government's nationwide pay scale.

Officials estimated the blue-collar pay proposal alone would save taxpayers — and cost workers — an estimated $500 million a year when fully effective. No estimates were available for the other suggestions.

The proposals could result in pay increases for some federal employees. Experienced lawyers, for example, tend to earn far less in government than their counterparts in private practice.

Securing congressional approval for a pay overhaul would be difficult, administration officials concede. A year ago "pay reform" was dropped by his union's "civil service reform" package on grounds that it would make the package too controversial.

Several aides also worry that proceeding with "pay reform" could demoralize the rank-and-file workers on whom Carter depends to deliver his promised governmental efficiencies.

And pressing ahead with the proposals would almost certainly mean Carter would risk losing the political support of the American Federation of Government Employees, which backed his 1976 presidential campaign.

Opposition from the AFGE, the largest federal union, would be the chief obstacle to a pay revision. The union's president, Kenneth Blaylock, was almost defeated for re-election this year because he supported Carter's personnel proposals, which were repudiated by his union's governing body.

One presidential aide suggested that the union might be induced to support a package including "sweeteners" such as removing the president's right to modify yearly cost-of-living increases or granting unions their long-sought right to bargain over certain aspects of pay.

But AFGE spokesman Gregory Kenefick said he foresees virtually no possibility the union could support proposals that would trim pay raises for members.

Many federal workers are already upset at Carter because he cut this year's planned federal pay raise by one-third, to 5.5 percent, and because they fear his personnel "reforms" will mean widespread firings and demotions.

Carter proposed a blue-collar pay "reform" plan shortly after taking office nearly two years ago and has publicly denounced what he called "unjustifiable payroll costs" in the present system.

But he never pressed hard for passage, and the bill died for lack of a sponsor.

Federal blue-collar workers now are paid according to a five-step pay schedule, with the second-lowest step equal to the local prevailing wage. However, most workers are on higher steps and are paid an average of 7.9 percent above the local prevailing wage.

Similarly, the formula for figuring yearly white-collar raises is supposed to yield a figure that would be comparable with increases outside government.

But the formula ignores relatively generous federal pension and vacation benefits and gives no weight to the relatively high demand for, and scarce supply of, federal jobs.

More Opportunities Seen For Women

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There are increasing opportunities for women in such fields as sales, accounting, data processing and engineering, says Hank Koehn, a vice president and futures researcher with Security Pacific National Bank. Speaking at a meeting of the Affirmative Action Association of Women, Koehn predicted: "By 1990 there will be 52 million working women in the United States, compared with today's 40 million."

Democrat's Win Clouds Primary

By D'VERA COHN
 CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The election of a Democratic governor in New Hampshire should help President Carter against potential 1980 primary challengers but hurt former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Hugh Gallen's upset of three-term Republican Gov. Meldrim Thomson boosts Carter for the same reason it hurts Reagan and throws the GOP into disarray in the state that holds the nation's first presidential primary in 1980.

Top New Hampshire Democrats see Gallen, who got a lot of White House help against Thomson, uniting the party behind Carter and downplaying the attractiveness of California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

They say little about a possible run by Sen. Edward Kennedy, who has pledged not to oppose Carter. The Massachusetts Democrat is known to have strong support in New Hampshire should he become a candidate.

Thomson's loss deprives him of control over the state GOP and hurts Reagan, who he backed in 1976 in a losing effort against President Gerald R. Ford.

In addition to Ford and Reagan, prospective GOP candidates who have taken soundings in New Hampshire include Rep. Phillip Crane, R-Ill.; Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.; former Texas Gov. John Connally; Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn.; Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.; and former CIA Director George Bush.

Thomson, chairman of the national Conservative Caucus, was Reagan's top New Hampshire booster. The often controversial Thomson sometimes was an embarrassment to Reagan but also gave Reagan an undisputed power base.

"It certainly hasn't helped him any," said former Gov. Hugh Gregg, who chaired Reagan's 1976 New Hampshire campaign.

"The single biggest thing is that it unglues a lot of things," said one moderate Republican. "It solves one problem for Reagan, but it also creates some. It means he has to put together something up here."

Thomson has hinted he might try for national office, fueling speculation he could be a favorite son candidate in the primary if Reagan doesn't run.

State GOP chairman Gerald Carmen calls Reagan and Ford the front-runners, in part because of the election of conservative Republican Sen. Gordon Humphrey. Humphrey, who ousted liberal Democrat Thomas J. McIntyre, received massive support from out-of-state conservatives, including Reagan.

Friends of eight-term Rep. James C. Cleveland, R-N.H., speculate Thomson's defeat may add political luster to Bush's campaign. Cleveland has not endorsed Bush, but Cleveland's aides have helped the Texan.

Gregg said there may be no clear front-runner by 1980.

Traveling Orangutan Scares Passengers

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — When a shaggy, love-lorn orangutan boarded a crowded Bangkok bus, all the passengers decided it was time to get off.

The sudden shrieking exodus from the bus Sunday must have left the 20-year-old orangutan even more lonesome because he immediately clambered off the bus to assuage his hurt feelings with a bunch of bananas stolen from a stunned roadside vendor.

But as he looked for a friend to share his bananas, the orang's search for companionship was coming quickly to an end.

Hot on his trail were keepers from Dusit Zoo where his morning stroll had begun some hours before, after he used

WOMEN STUDENTS
 NEW YORK (AP) — Of the 322 students entering Yeshiva University's Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law, 57 percent are women, reports Monrad G. Paulsen, dean and vice president for legal education. There are a total of 910 students currently enrolled in the university.

"In this next presidential primary, it looks like you'll have a lot of candidates," he said. "I don't think it will be a one-on-one like it was with Reagan and Ford."

By contrast, Democratic State Party Chairman Bill Craig sees only unity on his party's horizon.

"The election of Hugh Gallen means a much more confident feeling among Democrats going into 1980. When you have a long streak of bad luck, you may have a lot more squabbles that are not necessary. But when you get into office, you have to pull together."

Both Craig and Larry Radway, former state party chairman, dismissed speculation about possible challenges by Kennedy or Brown.

"I don't see a challenge (to Carter) in sight unless Brown does, and I don't think that exotic fruit, that passion plant, will thrive in this cold climate," Radway said. "And I never believed Kennedy would run."

Despite the help control of the party machinery brings, it should not be forgotten that Carter won in 1976 without backing from top state Democrats. In 1968 and 1972, Sens. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., and George McGovern, D-S.D., won enough support without such backing to be considered to be have won moral victories, although they didn't get the most votes.

Vatican Stays Mum

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican isn't saying what dissident Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre and Pope John Paul II discussed during a tightly guarded meeting during the weekend.

Vatican spokesman the Rev. Romeo Panciroli said Sunday only that the two met Saturday under heavy security, which the 72-year-old French archbishop requested.

Lefebvre leads a worldwide conservative movement that has brought the Roman Catholic Church close to a schism recently. Lefebvre and his followers reject reforms coming from the Second Vatican Council in the early 1960s. In July 1976, Lefebvre was suspended from performing his priestly functions and threatened with excommunication by the late Pope Paul VI.

Johnson's Desires Revealed

AUSTIN (AP) — Lyndon Johnson was thinking about retiring from politics and becoming a newspaper publisher just before the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Johnson's desires were revealed in a series of interviews with Johnson's friends and former aides by Austin American-Statesman reporters.

Horace Busby, a former newspaperman and longtime Johnson friend, recalled that the then-vice president had spoken to him on Nov. 8, 1963, about buying a newspaper — apparently the American-Statesman or the Houston Chronicle.

"I'm going to be publisher and you be the editor," Busby quoted Johnson as saying. "He laid out all these plans. He was going to reform the state. He got all excited about it. I think he always wanted to own a newspaper."

Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Voight Raps Divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Twice-divorced actor Jon Voight says, "If you're going to have marriage, you might as well have bigamy."

"Then anybody can marry anybody they fall in love with and people won't get hurt because divorce today is supposed to mean the end of love, which is ridiculous," Voight, 40, said in the current issue of Ladies Home Journal.

He added that he still loved one of his former wives, model Marcheline Bertrand, whom he calls "a terrific lady, and a great mommy." Miss Bertrand has custody of two children born while she was married to Voight, known for his movie roles in "Midnight Cowboy" and "Coming Home."

Wrapped Walk Given Away

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Christo's "Wrapped Walk" was project which charmed some Kansas Citians and outraged others met a fitting end over the weekend.

The three miles of saffron yellow industrial strength nylon was cut up and given away to hundreds of art collectors and souvenir hunters.

Christo donated the fabric to the Kansas City Parks and Recreation Department after the wraps came off Loose Park's sidewalks. Recreation Superintendent Mary Edith Lillis thought up the idea for the help-yourself session.

One person with scissors in hand planned to use a piece of Christo's artwork as a driveway dropcloth. A Kansas City woman said she was going to use it to adorn a 40-foot mountain of dirt in her yard.

Actor Threatened

NEW YORK (AP) — The mother-in-law of the late actor Gig Young says she has been told that Young and her daughter had been threatened before the couple was found dead in their apartment here.

Rosemary Schmidt, mother of Young's wife Ruth, said Saturday from her home in Melbourne, Australia, that a young woman from Sydney, Australia, "has told me ... that Ruth was very concerned about a series of phone calls she received shortly after meeting Gig."

Mrs. Schmidt did not identify the woman, and said she did not want to talk to authorities about the matter now, but would "gladly give evidence if it ever comes to court."

Police have said that Young shot his wife and then killed himself last month.

Kucinich Returns

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Mayor Dennis Kucinich returns to his office today, facing big problems that have cropped up during his five-week absence to recuperate from an ulcer attack.

Since Kucinich left office on Oct. 14, the president and five other members of the city council have been indicted on bribery charges, and more financial problems have been heaped on the city.

One of the chores the 32-year-old mayor will have to deal with is trying to persuade local banks to refinance $15.5 million in city notes to avoid default.

Kucinich says that one of the first things he will do to get back into the swing of things is take telephone calls from city residents.

Buffaloes For Sale

PRATT, Kan. (AP) — Just in time for Christmas, the Kansas Fish and Game Commission is having a buffalo sale.

About 70 of the animals will be auctioned off Dec. 13 at the Maxwell Wildlife Refuge, north of Canton in McPherson County.

A commission spokesman said the animals are from exhibition herds at Maxwell and Garden City. Those more than one year old will be brucellosis-tested and their health certified prior to sale, the spokesman said.

Buffalo buyers will have to have cash or notarized authorization letters from their banks to accompany personal checks, and will have to take their buffaloes home with them unless they've made other arrangements with the refuge manager, the commission said.

Diggs Sentenced To Prison, Faces Three-Year Maximum

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., was sentenced today to a maximum of three years in prison for his conviction on charges of mail fraud and making false statements.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch ordered Diggs imprisoned for up to three years on each of the 29 counts on which he was convicted. But the sentences are to run concurrently.

In appealing for leniency, Diggs told the judge his conviction "has been a very devastating experience. I know that the conviction has been a very painful experience for me personally and professionally."

The congressman stood impassively as the judge stated his sentence, and then avoided reporters when he left the courtroom.

The prosecution had demanded that Diggs be given some form of incarceration for his offense. Attorney John Kotelly argued that Diggs' conduct "does not call for leniency, does not call for a period of probation, but calls for a period of incarceration."

He described Diggs' crimes as "stealing money from the citizens of the United States."

But Diggs' attorneys maintained that his re-election to Congress earlier this month, despite his conviction, was reason enough to grant him a suspended sentence or probation.

The Michigan Democrat had said previously that he will appeal his conviction in the $66,000 scheme.

Diggs, a 12-term congressman re-elected with 80 percent of the vote in his Detroit district earlier this month, was found guilty Oct. 7 of inflating the salaries of several staff members and then accepting kickbacks from them to pay business, personal and congressional expenses.

A founder of the Congressional Black Caucus, Diggs gave up his chairmanship of the House District of Columbia Committee and of an International Relations subcommittee on Africa after his conviction.

Congress could have expelled him because of that conviction, although a two-thirds vote would have been needed. Even if it had voted for expulsion, however, Diggs' re-election would have reinstated him.

In pre-sentencing arguments filed last week, Diggs' attorneys maintained his conviction was punishment enough.

DISNEY RECORD HOLDS

Walt Disney, creator of Mickey Mouse, still holds the Academy Award record of 17 Oscars plus 12 certificates and plaques for a total of 29 awards.

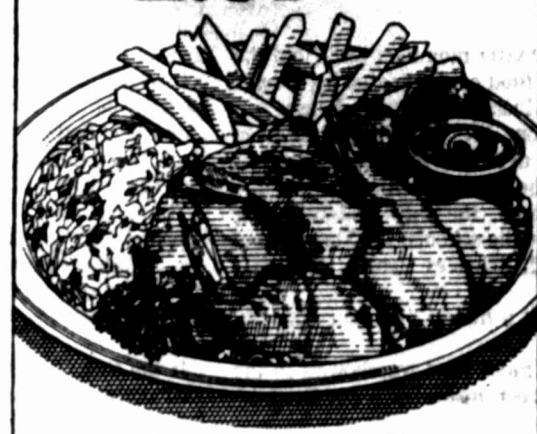

Instead of up to five years-per-count in prison and fines of as much as $191,000, they suggested Diggs be placed on probation, fined and allowed to perform some type of public service.

The attorneys proposed that Diggs "speak to high school students on subjects of the court's choice, such as the criminal justice system." But prosecutors described Diggs' offense as "most serious" because it involved an abuse of the public trust and an exploitation of his position. They also said the congressman had clearly perjured himself in his testimony and insisted this be taken into account.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

What The Dr. Orr-dered

IF THE THREAT of food contamination here is as great as the City Health Department director says it is, her campaign to increase the frequency and types of food inspections is certain to garner widespread support.

Dr. Marjorie Orr is pushing a new ordinance that would require inspections of food warehouses, grocery stores, food processing establishments and convenience stores.

Under existing ordinance, the Health Department inspects only restaurants, meat markets and some types of food processing businesses.

HEALTH BOARD members were told the other day that food contaminated by rodents was found at a local produce warehouse.

"Produce from the warehouse has been distributed to over 100 food service establishments in the city, including some of the better restaurants, the City Hall cafeteria, the Lubbock public schools, the State School and the Health Sciences Center Hospital," Dr. Orr said.

"That makes it a matter of public concern, indeed."

"At least 49 more food warehouses in the city have not been inspected," Dr. Orr added.

She also said that two health inspections per year of restaurants and other businesses dealing in food, as now is the circumstance, are too infrequent.

She said a monthly inspection would be "ideal" but admittedly too expensive. She would like, however, to increase the frequency to at least once every three months by hiring more sanitarians.

This would require raising inspection fees or finding some other source of revenue, although fees would be the preferred route.

THE GENERAL PUBLIC has no way of knowing the extent of the threat to its health caused by unsanitary conditions in public eating places, grocery stores, warehouses and food processing plants.

It also is aware that over-regulation, particularly at the federal level, is a primary cause of inflation. However, it rightfully expects and demands that every reasonable effort be made to protect its food supply.

The question is how much effort is "reasonable" and whether "throwing more money" at the problem would be productive; it would be only if the increased types and frequency of inspections were tough and effective.

If the City Council gives Dr. Orr the tools that she wants, based on whatever proof she has of a continuing threat to public health, it will want to follow up to make sure that the tools have been effectively used.

Post Embattled In Star's War

WASHINGTON—The nation's capital is in for an old-fashioned, knock-down-drag-out fight between its newspaper giants: The Washington Post and The Washington Star.

This journalistic shootout is expected to take on national and international significance with these newspapers being published at the seat of national government and backed by two national publications—Newsweek and Time magazines.

The probing actions by both newspapers already have begun. The Star launched its attack with a haymaker aimed directly at Publisher Katharine Graham.

The shot is a five-part series titled "The Graham Story," written several months ago but considered too explosive to publish until now.

IT WAS FIRED with a front-page, two-column lead announcing "The Graham Story" as follows:

"She's both 'Katharine the Great' and 'Katharine the Terrible.' Katharine the Great is a warm, intuitive human being with a lot of intellectual curiosity and respect for people's minds. She's terrific, warm and generous. Katharine the Terrible is an imperious bitch.

"Whatever Katharine she may be, the person I've talked about by one of her closest friends is Katharine Graham. And it is one of the most telling insights of a remarkable new profile in the Washington Post."

The series, the proprietress of the Washington Post, will be the subject of a five-part series that examines the struggle to power and influence of the most successful woman in publishing today.

"THE SERIES, A Star Close Up, took months to prepare. It will add significantly to the knowledge Washingtonians should have about an important local citizen."

Lawmakers and government officials, who are usually under heavy fire from one or both of the newspapers, are rubbing their hands with glee at the smoldering confrontation.

The placing of the "imperious bitch" comment on the front page of a daily newspaper to describe a Washington VIP is unprecedented here. The boldness is being taken as a sign of all out war between the two newspapers and their national news magazines backers.

The Star's editorial staff have been smarting for weeks over the Post's earlier but unsuccessful effort to link Jeremiah O'Leary, their hard-hitting foreign-diplomatic reporter, to the CIA.

THE POST'S MANEUVER came after O'Leary had brought out facts suppressed by the Post in several stories including the Cuban connection of former Defense Minister of the ousted Marxist government of Chile, killed by a bomb blast here more than a year ago.

How and when the Post will counter or answer "The Graham Story" is still to be decided.

Several top Post officials want Publisher Katharine Graham to ignore the series and push the campaign to isolate the influence of the "reborn Star" by every child should be taught the value of money, but the trouble is the value of money won't stay still long enough for any but a very fast-thinking child to learn it.

Rating Presidents

CONVICTED of defrauding us taxpayers out of more than $100,000 but re-elected by his Detroit constituents, U.S. Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., is pleading for a lenient sentence.

Instead of going to jail, maybe he could just pay a fine and then lecture high school students on the criminal justice system, Diggs petitioned the court.

It'd be quite a lesson for them, to be sure.

"If this town weren't full of 'lead-footed clowns,'" says the Neighborhood Reactionary, referring to Mayor Dirk West's use of that term to describe speeders, "it'd be impossible for one of their own to win an election."

WINDING DOWN his 44 years in Congress, Rep. George Mahon was asked to name the most effective President with whom he has worked.

"Oh, no question," he responded without hesitation. "LBJ was by miles and miles the most effective in getting legislation through Congress."

Lyndon Johnson had served in a Senate leadership position so long that he knew how to get support for a program or a bill, the retiring House Appropriations Committee chairman explained.

Instead of just calling the chairman of a committee and one or two other key Congressmen, LBJ might call the lowliest member of the committee.

"Even a member of Congress is flattered when the President calls him," Mahon said.

"I didn't agree with LBJ's guns AND butter policy," he added. "but there's no question about how effective he was as President."

OTHER PRESIDENTS and Mahon's evaluation of them since he went to Congress in 1935:

Franklin D. Roosevelt—Most Charming.
 Harry S. Truman—Most Irascible.
 Dwight D. Eisenhower—Most Beloved.
 John F. Kennedy—Most Glamorous. Also "the most admired and the best hated."

Richard Nixon—Best in Foreign Affairs; "it's too bad he turned out the way he did."
 Gerald Ford—"Friend of mine. Don't know how to classify him."

He added that Ford had re-established public confidence in the Presidency and in the future after Watergate, much as FDR had restored confidence to the nation in the Depression shambles of 1933.

Jimmy Carter—Too early to rate. Carter, said Mahon with a grin at an anti-Carter luncheon companion, "could turn out to be a good President."

That last evaluation proves that Mahon is made of such stuff that even 44 years in Washington hasn't dulled his capacity to believe in miracles.

WHEN HE FIRST went to Congress, and on up into the 1940s, Mahon said, letters about appointments as postmasters dominated the mail from home.

In recent years, he voted against making the Postal Service semi-independent. He lost that vote but it was one of the best votes he ever

Son Of Backfire Lights Our Pyre

WASHINGTON—When President Carter knocked a spearpoint—the manned bomber—off the U.S. Triad defense apparatus of bombers, subs and missiles, the Russians were doing a turnabout.

With the American B-1 out of production, the Soviets continued to manufacture their Backfire at the rate of 30 per year, in addition to the estimated 100 already in existence.

More alarming, the Soviets are developing a Son of Backfire, as reported by Senior Editor Bonner Day in the authoritative military aviation magazine Air Force.

U.S. intelligence sources have not opened up much about Son of Backfire, or Backfire II, being especially chary of comment before Congressional committees.

BUT THREE clues can be cited.

One, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev and other USSR leaders refer to the mystery plane as TU-160, thus designating it as a foal from the stable of the late famous designer, Tupolev, who gave the USSR the Backfire (TU-26) and the supersonic transport, TU-144.

The second clue is an aerial photograph, possibly more than one, of an airplane plant which is thought to contain the makings of Backfire II.

The third, and most hush-hush, evidence has to do with the tracing of aircraft parts inside Russia.

If Backfire II is a follow-on of Backfire, we may assume it has refined and superior features of the prototype.

This means an "A" model with peculiar landing gear pods, as well as a wing design, that limits range to a top of 5000 miles, but which may hide other features.

THE "B" MODEL of Backfire is streamlined to increase the range of an extra 400 miles, and also is fitting for in-flight refueling.

Backfire "C" is thought by aeronautical analysts to be built for distance, such as transatlantic and transpolar flights that would make the round trip to North America.

The discarded B-1 aircraft is superior in range (up to 6100 miles), but inferior to the Backfire in speed, Mach 2.5 for the Russian, Mach 2.2 for the American craft.

So little is known of Backfire II that speculation is worthless, except for the assumption that the Russians would not be building a lesser plane than the one they have in abundance.

The United States Air Force is no longer equipped with top quality interceptors for air defense, although there is ample Early Warning equipment.

The Russians are notorious copiers so that an educated guess would be that they are building aerial fleets of TU-supersonic bombers for use on their several fronts.

This does not indicate helplessness on the Allies' part, by any means. Big aircraft are especially vulnerable on the ground, and with the American

Lick Job Hunt With Tip Of Your Tongue

TEACHING, LAW and veterinary medicine once were considered sure and safe careers. But all three fields are overcrowded today—telegraphing the disturbing message that if you train for a job that looks great in 1979, how can you be certain it will even be in existence 20, or even 10, years from now?

The answer, you can't be certain. But whether you're a young student selecting your college major, a parent trying to guide your children, or one of the growing numbers of adults seeking a second career, there is one move you can make as a form of "insurance" for just about any career.

Learn a foreign language.

With a language skill added to your other skills, you might double your chances of getting the job you want.

There are more openings for an auto mechanic who also speaks Arabic, an electronic radio expert who knows Japanese, a chef (even a woman chef) who understands French.

IT EVEN COULD be that a foreign language would be more useful to you during the next 10 years than a college diploma, for whatever the shape of tomorrow's world, you can be sure it will be increasingly international. Consider how international it already is.

* Between 1960 and 1970, the number of Americans employed abroad jumped 40 percent and one American in six now owes his/her employment to foreign trade.

* Many of our 500 largest U.S. corporations earn more than half of their profits overseas.

* More and more Americans are finding jobs in the U.S. as "local nationals" for foreign-owned companies.

Foreign companies now invest more than $30 billion directly in businesses here and need these "local nationals."

AMONG THE investments: a $300 million Volkswagen plant in Pennsylvania; a Honda operation in Ohio; hundreds of large and small businesses opened by French and Italians in New York.

* A full 43 percent of the chief executive officers who have assumed their positions in America's 100 largest corporations since 1973 have had overseas experience—and there are increasing numbers of ads for executives "fluent in..."

* The fourth largest Spanish-speaking country in the world is the U.S. We're close to becoming bilingual.

Some basic guides if you're thinking of this "insurance":

(1) THE MOST popular language with Americans is Spanish, but German, Japanese, Parsi (the language of Iran) and French are useful, too, since these are the languages spoken in top business cities.

(2) WHATEVER LANGUAGE you choose, speak the language yourself in give-and-take discussion with a teacher so you can become fluent. Don't rely solely on books and records.

Growers Get Computers' Help In Producing Better Turkeys

SONOMA, Calif. (UPI) — Chances are the turkeys carved up for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners will have better pedigrees than the consumers.

Computers again. It wouldn't be possible without them.

More than 70 million turkeys, sturdy of limb and full of breast, are destined for the chopping block and the dinner tables this holiday season. Each bird, if it had a voice in it, could recite chapter and verse of blueblood lineage.

Dr. Fred Shultz, a geneticist for Nicholas Turkey Breedings Farms, Inc., of Sonoma, Calif., said an IBM computer is used to evaluate tens of thousands of turkeys before they are crossbred to produce a single flock.

"When we sit down with hundreds of thousands of bits of information," he said, "we may have data on as many as 1,000 dams, 200 sires and 20,000 offspring for just one line."

Nicholas does not sell birds to consumers. It improves the line and sells to producers who grow the stock and combine with different lines according to Nicholas' prescription.

"We're a primary breeder," Shultz said. "An IBM System-3 computer locates the birds with the best records, so I don't have to spend my time looking for data. I can use my mind to determine the best match."

Shultz said he takes measurements, body weight, how the turkey stands, the number of eggs from hens, and the hatch ability — how many fertile eggs actually hatch — and puts the data into the computer.

An egg production report for one hen, for example, might include five to 20 figures describing the bird's characteristics. Add the records for that hen's sisters and half-sisters and the sisters and half-sisters on the tom's side.

"We score the breast width and how much meat the bird has, the amount of meat a person gets when they buy a turkey."

"We know the father and the mother of every turkey," he said, "then we take the data and summarize by family, and that means all the brothers and sisters together."

"And at the same time," Shultz said, "we get the mother's egg number and the mother's sister's egg number and the mother's half-sister's egg number, and other traits."

"This enables the geneticist to go through and select the best birds on the basis on family as well as individual records."

Shultz keeps records on about 100,000 birds a year.

Breeding decisions for the thousands of birds must be made in a few days time. "We couldn't match production with sales without a computer," he said.

Nicholas produces 14 million turkey eggs a year for hatcheries and meat producers to raise as breeding stock. Those turkeys, in turn, are bred to produce more than 140 million birds sold in supermarkets and stores worldwide.

The trend, according to Shultz, is not toward larger birds, but faster developing turkeys.

"We've nearly reached the limit on how much meat a turkey can carry. What we can do is breed them to mature faster, which cuts the costs of labor, overhead facilities, and to a small extent, feed."

Fund Used To Improve Teaching, Learning

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International Writer

With America nearing its first trillion dollar budget, $12 million may seem like, if not exactly peanuts, a minor sum in the government picture.

But what if it's buying on the education scene may help shape schooling after high school for millions of non-traditional students in the 21st century. So it's important peanuts.

The $12 million, as Mary F. Berry tells it, this year funds 175 projects for innovative programs to improve teaching and learning beyond high school.

Berry is Assistant Secretary for Education, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The $12 million is from the nation's Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education.

Established by the Education Amendments Act of 1972, the Fund awards seed money to get local innovative projects off the ground. Then, local funds are expected to keep it going.

Fertility Test Developed By Biochemist

HONOLULU (AP) — A biochemist at the University of Hawaii has developed a male fertility test in which human sperm fertilize hamster eggs in the laboratory.

The test takes just 24 hours, requires no elaborate equipment and could be available for clinical use in about a year, said Dr. Jane Rogers, assistant professor in the obstetrics and gynecology department of the University's School of Medicine.

The hamster method, she said, is the first test for the male involving actual fertilization of an egg. The fertilized egg won't develop beyond the two-cell stage because the chromosomes of the species are incompatible.

Sperm tests could have been conducted on human eggs in the laboratory, but such experiments would raise moral questions of creating test-tube babies, she added.

The hamster test would cost about $50 and be far less expensive and time-consuming than fertility tests for women, Dr. Rogers said.

In the test, hamster eggs are stripped of their outer coating and exposed to the human sperm in the laboratory. Previous research established that human sperm could cross species lines to fertilize an egg, but only the first steps of development take place.

Black Activist Group Spotlighted In King Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former police undercover agent testified today that a black activist group in Memphis, Tenn., known as the Invaders preached violence, but he doubts it was part of any FBI plot to assassinate Martin Luther King Jr.

"The Invaders were not a front for anything," Marrell McCullough told the House assassinations committee. "It was just a group of young people of the community."

McCullough testified as the committee began investigating a theory that the Invaders caused violence during King's appearance at a garbage strikers' march on March 28, 1968 as part of an FBI plot to lure King back to Memphis to be assassinated a week later.

But McCullough, who testified he infiltrated the Invaders as a Memphis policeman and became its minister of transportation, said it was essentially a group of college students who engaged in extreme rhetoric about violence without actually committing it.

He said such rhetoric probably did contribute to the violence that broke out during the march King led for striking Memphis garbage men.

He said a member of the Invaders he identified as John Smith told some of the people gathered for the march that "non-violence would not work — it would only lead you to being taken downtown by the police and beat up."

"I believe with the tense atmosphere that did contribute to the spontaneous violence," McCullough testified.

McCullough said he was a witness to King's assassination at the Lorraine Motel because he had just arrived to go to a room the Invaders had there.

He said he almost immediately believed the shot had come from a rooming house across the street because of the position in which King was standing, the way he fell when he was shot and the clear angle of the shot from the wounds through King's jaw and down into his shoulder.

Committee Chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, asked McCullough if he had ever heard speculation on how the assassin could have known King would have been on the balcony and whether King was in fact maneuvered onto the balcony.

"No, I never did," McCullough replied. "All I heard was that he was out on the balcony talking to a singing group below to ask for a song."

The committee says it is convinced the FBI did not assassinate King but it is still looking into "possible indirect involvement."

The question of the Invaders' involvement was one of three questions that chief committee counsel G. Robert Blakey said public hearings this week will address this week. The other question, he said, were:

— "Did the FBI have foreknowledge of the assassination on which it did not act?"

— "Did the FBI's effort to discredit King result in his being in Memphis April 4, 1968, when he was assassinated?"

The Rev. Ralph Abernathy, King's successor as leader of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, testified in August that King was in Memphis the day he was shot only because of the violence that had broken out during his earlier visit.

King made the two trips to participate in a strike by Memphis' predominately black garbage workers.

He headed a march through Memphis during the first visit and, according to Abernathy, was badly shaken by the violence that was caused by the Invaders at the back of the march.

King remained depressed by that violence when he returned to his Atlanta headquarters, Abernathy testified, and decided to return to try to stage another event without violence.

Abernathy testified that he did not know whether anyone specifically suggested King return to Memphis or why he did so April 4.

The committee began a four-day inquiry last Friday into allegations the FBI itself assassinated King and that the agency botched its investigation of his murder.

But at the outset Blakey told the panel that the committee staff found "no evidence of direct FBI involvement."

He said the committee is extensively investigating the FBI's role as part of its job to publicly answer all questions raised in connection with King's murder.

Adolf Hitler 'Irrational' Says Aide

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Adolf Hitler believed armadas of giant submarines and fleets of Luftwaffe bombers would bring the United States to its knees once he had conquered Europe, Albert Speer says in his memoirs.

Speer, who calls Hitler irrational and illogical, says Hitler even envisaged "10 million German-Americans" rising up to support a Nazi invasion.

Speer, who was Hitler's war production chief, discusses Hitler's dream of world domination in the last installment of his new memoirs which appeared Sunday in the West German newspaper Welt am Sonntag.

Now 73, Speer looks back and says Hitler in private chats made it clear he intended to conquer the United States after subduing Europe.

His opinion is worthy of attention for he was closer to Hitler than any other man — "If Hitler had a friend, I was it."

Speer acknowledges that Hitler's talk of world domination was based in part on his love of theatrical bombast and lack of sophistication — "He was as unrestrained and as unpolished as a 6-year-old." But he says the plans were more than talk.

"Although it is true he did not think through to the end his plans for world mastery, there is much evidence he took these plans seriously. Hitler's conception of conquering America was not some random thought," Speer writes.

Speer says Hitler told him that once he had conquered Europe he would embark on a gigantic armaments program and "before the Americans begin to return a second time we will be so far ahead they never will be able to catch up."

"These Jewish Democrats never have shown any determination and will not sacrifice their mammon," he said discussing the Americans. "In addition, their soldiers are cowards."

Hitler said victory in Europe would give Germany 300 million people to draw on without counting Italy and England, Speer writes.

"And one should not forget the 10 million German-Americans, who in a decisive moment would be on our side," Speer quotes Hitler as saying.

Speer reports Hitler spoke of building gigantic super submarines with submersible gun turrets and armadas of subs of all speeds and classes to attack the American coast.

"Perhaps in addition we would succeed in occupying the Azores as some time through a surprise attack in order to build gigantic air bases for an assault on the United States," Hitler said.

Speer says that as early as 1937, two years before his attack on Poland, Hitler discussed his hopes of world mastery.

Gold Fever Affects Thousands In Amazon Jungle

By KENNAN TURNER
MADRE DE DIOS RIVER, Peru (AP)—Thousands of miners are sifting the sand and gravel of this meandering, brown river in the Amazon jungle in what government officials claim to be a 20th century version of the California and Alaska gold rushes.

The government bank, Banco Minero, which buys the gold, reports the region's production has increased from 84 troy ounces in 1971 to a projected 20,561 this year — worth $7.8 million at current prices.

"This is gold fever. It's Alaska and California, but here and now," a bank spokesman who asked anonymity said in Lima. "A young man only needs a sleeping bag and courage to enter the jungle for a month to learn the ropes and then stake out his own claim."

Though the gold is being found far from the international marketplace, the rush to the Amazon is one result of the sky-high prices which gold commands these days — $302 in London recently, for example.

Meanwhile, the Peruvian currency, the sol, has been taking a beating far worse than even the shaky dollar. For example, one dollar bought 45 soles in 1973 — and 187 today. Such instability enhances the lure of the jungle, where a miner is paid his own country's currency at a rate pegged to the dollar price of gold on the international market.

Small operators have panned gold on river beaches for years, barely eking out a living. But a boom began two years ago when a woodcutter saw the glimmer of tiny gold flakes exposed by a fallen tree's roots.

It revealed that ancient riverbeds abandoned by the jungle rivers were rich in gold-bearing gravel, a source never before tapped.

Today, the bank estimates Peru's southeastern jungle deposits at 2 billion cubic meters of gravel containing an average of 4 grams of gold per cubic meter — $5.2 billion worth of current prices.

The Madre de Dios, wider than the Hudson or the Columbia and considered as the Mississippi, and other rivers wash the gold into the jungle from the Andean mountains to the west. The government Minero Peru mining company estimates there is a potential 2 billion grams of gold there worth $13 billion, more than Peru's foreign debt.

In hopes of increasing gold reserves to help pay the $13.7 billion foreign debt, the government has encouraged miners from all taxes if at least 75 percent of their production is from the jungles, and the military regime lets miners import scarce mining equipment duty free.

Even with the simple equipment available, the mining industry says nearly 1,000 claims of from 2.5 to 2,500 acres have been staked out since May. About 15,000 men have come to an area near the Brazilian and Bolivian borders 540 air miles and 1,044 road miles east of Lima.

The population has doubled in two years to one person a square mile.

Banco Minero engineers estimate a man can work 1.5 to 3 cubic meters a day, with registered miners yielding between 1 to 1.5 grams a cubic meter — from $1.50 to nearly $300 worth of gold a day. That compares with a legal minimum wage in the region of less than $50 a month.

Terzi Tamayo, head of the bank branch in Puerto Maldonado, said a medium-sized operator with eight men, each producing three grams of gold a day, could make nearly $100 a month profit.

"But we're looking for bigger investors," Tamayo said. "The job is an invitation to all to come to Peru and look for gold."

He said bank studies show a $12,000 investment in an operation with a small dredge and five or six men could produce more than $5,000 worth of gold a day. Larger dredges, costing between $3 million and $5 million, could produce about $32,500 worth.

But the dream is not reality. The miners don't have dredges and rely on muscle and primitive sluice boxes to wash the flakes from gravel.

Their operations line the Madre de Dios and tributaries such as the Inambari and the Tambopata. In the jungle, men dig to old river beds — hot, dirty work amid a gravel beach about an hour's canoe trip upriver from Puerto Maldonado.

One miner has been taking gold from the river for 19 years.

"I make a living," he said, wiping sweat from his eyes. "But I haven't saved anything yet."

He grabbed a shovelful of gravel and walked to the river. Working the shovel blade, he soon produced tiny flakes glittering in the dark sand. It takes 3,000 to 4,000 flakes to make a gram of gold.

Up river, where the Inambari joins the Madre de Dios, the Amankaire Indian tribe works an old riverbed a half-hour walk into the jungle.

Miners say Chief Lucio Tarzan, who is shirtless and barefoot, recently used tribesmen with bows and arrows to convince intruders to leave. Members of the tribe also say some 60 men produce 4 to 6 grams each day — one of the richest deposits in the area.

The miners sell the gold at Puerto Loberinto or Puerto Maldonado, two river-side towns with branch offices of the Banco Minero.

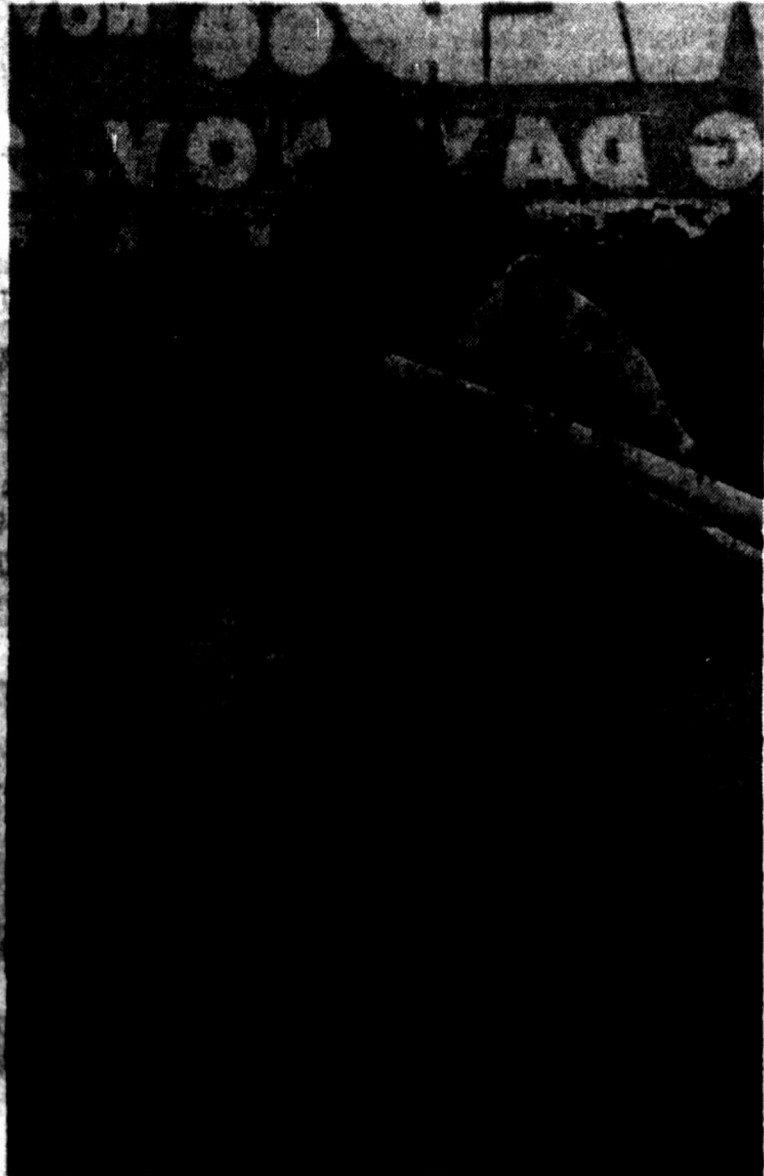

Puerto Loberinto is a dirt street from a primitive sawmill to the canoe dock — a sprawling Saturday night watering hole until the government outlawed sales of alcoholic beverages in the mining zone.

Puerto Maldonado, a two-hour drive downstream, is a boom town. The population has doubled in two years to 15,000, 90 percent in mining, and there is jet air-line service, satellite telephone and television service, electricity and a water tank for 48,000 people. There are small hotels, a taxi, thousands of small Japanese motorcycles.

Juan Neuenchwander, a 40-year resident of Swiss-German descent, says there are riches for a few, but the rest barely make a living.

But like everyone else he thinks foreign investment will make the difference. "There is gold everywhere," he says. "It's a matter of big investment, something Peru hasn't got."

Inventor Claims Storm Stopper

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)—A Filipino who invented a machine that makes toothpicks and a device that repels mosquitos claimed Sunday he has found a way to stop storms.

The invention is a device he said produces ultrasonic sounds to disperse storms in their formative stages.

"Storms can be stopped," said 51-year-old Alfredo Anos to the official Philippines News agency.

According to Anos, ultrasonic sound can be electrically or mechanically produced and now is being used to wash clothes, mix paints, sterilize foods and clear away fog and smoke.

In a proposal to the Philippine Patent Office, Anos said a conventional siren with a rotary disc of increased angular velocity can produce ultrasonic sounds of high frequency from 20,000 to 42,000 cycles per second.

The disc, he said, could be attached to an airplane and must have a range of at least five miles to deepen the ultrasonic sound's penetration into the area where the storm is forming.

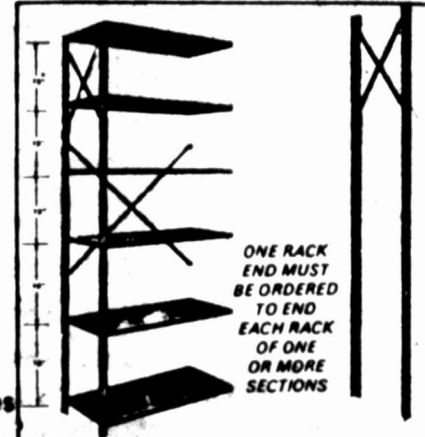

The sound will continuously jar the heavy clouds just above the storm, producing a chain of reaction which will cause the clouds to produce rainwater.

The baby storm will gradually weaken before it hits land, he said.

Other of Anos' inventions are a salt harvester, a hand tractor transmission and a continuous insecticide sprayer. His mosquito repellant device also uses ultrasonic sound.

Furniture Flammability Draws Federal Action

By JEFFREY MILLS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing at least 500 deaths annually in fires caused by cigarettes igniting furniture, the staff of a federal agency today recommended a regulation on flammability of upholstered furniture.

The staff of the Consumer Product Safety Commission said the regulation would add $6.80 to $10 to the cost of a sofa, far lower than the $100 additional that furniture manufacturers have said it could cost.

The regulation would not become final until voted by the five-member commission, which is expected to consider it early next year.

The proposed standard consists of tests to classify fabrics according to how resistant they are to ignition by cigarettes and to eliminate flammable combinations of fabrics, filling materials and construction.

The commission staff estimated the cost of industry compliance at $87 million to $87 million, again far lower than the industry has estimated.

The CPSC staff said economic losses from ignition of upholstered furniture in homes are estimated to average $540 million annually from death, injury and property damage.

The staff estimated that up to 75 percent of the fabrics now used in upholstered furniture would not be affected by the regulation. It said synthetic fibers are among the least flammable and are used in most fabrics sold today.

However, it said, some natural fibers may be eliminated from the market in certain constructions.

A coalition of industry groups called the Upholstered Furniture Action Council developed a voluntary plan designed to make furniture safer. It urged the commission to adopt this voluntary standard as a regulation.

But the CPSC staff called the industry program "not adequate because it does not require fabric or simulated furniture testing." It said testing is essential to provide assurance that furniture will resist cigarette ignition.

The staff recommended that the standard become effective in one year. However, it recommended that non-complying furniture be allowed to be manufactured for two more years if it carried a label saying that it did not meet the standard.

The staff said 800 persons die and 3,200 are injured annually in upholstered-furniture fires. "Of these, a minimum of 1,700 injuries and 500 deaths can be traced directly to cigarette ignition," it said.

These figures are below those produced earlier by the National Bureau of Standards.

The staff's proposed regulation, require that furniture pass a test on resistance to fire caused by cigarettes.

The test would measure the time it takes for a smoldering cigarette to set various fabrics on fire. One federal official says cigarette-ignited home furniture fires kill more people than any other type of blaze.

If the commission puts a mandatory standard into effect, the higher furniture costs likely would make this one of the most controversial issues decided by CPSC in its five-year history.

"It is a question of saving lives or saving dollars," said one government source, who asked not to be identified.

Various government agencies have been studying the upholstery issue since 1972, when the Commerce Department said a regulation might be needed. A year later, CPSC was established and took over jurisdiction in the area. Technical problems in writing a recommended regulation have delayed the issue until now.

The National Bureau of Standards, after a study, proposed a regulation to the CPSC. James H. Winger, head of that agency's product flammability program, said, "The need for a regulation is based on the fact that cigarette ignition of furnishings in dwellings is by far the largest single cause of loss of life due to fire in the United States."

"Over 1,000 people die annually from over 40,000 fires due to cigarette ignition of upholstered furniture. If fire deaths in the United States are to be substantially reduced, this problem must be addressed," Winger said.

The Upholstered Furniture Industry Council says the standard could mean that natural fiber fabrics, such as cotton, would virtually vanish from new furniture because of the difficulty in treating it so it would pass the test and still be comfortable.

Joe Zolnowski, technical director of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, said a CPSC regulation could cost customers between 12 percent and 27 percent extra on new furniture.

"Making a $500 sofa that it will cost the government that could make it around $500," he said.

Psychologist's Admission Leads To Suspension

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials have temporarily suspended a psychologist who admitted he had sex with one of his patients, saying he thought at the time he could keep his personal interest in the woman and his professional relationship with her separate.

The weekend decision by the Texas Board of Examiners of Psychologists means that Dr. John Abell of Austin cannot practice psychology in Texas. The board will meet again Jan. 13 to make a final determination on the suspension.

The board acted on the complaint of Polly Durham, who said Abell had sex with her Nov. 17, 1977, on the floor of his office.

Miss Durham, who now lives in Houston, and Carolyn Craig of Austin — both in their early 20s — have filed multi-million dollar damage suits against Abell, alleging that he had sex with them while they were patients. The suits are pending in state district court here.

Abell admitted having sex with Miss Durham in his office but said it "never was part of her therapy. I felt there was a relationship other than professional developing between us. At the time I felt it was emotionally beneficial for both of us. But it turned out not being beneficial to anyone. I am sorry it happened. I wish it would never have happened."

Miss Durham told the board she sought Abell's professional help because of her hostility and distrust of men.

On Nov. 17 last year, Miss Durham said, "I was very uptight when I went to see him for a session that day. He said he was going to try something new and told me to lie on the floor. He began stroking my stomach."

"Did you protest his actions at any time?" asked Abell's lawyer, Joe Milner. "I did not know what he was doing," she replied, sobbing. "He said I should relax, and I did not become aware of what was happening until it happened. I did not fight him, but afterward I felt very defeated and very hurt. I felt like I had nothing left to fight for. I felt very angry, and he said I needed to accept the notion of love and of returning affection, and he told me to think about what had just happened."

Abell said, "I attempted to compart-

Hospital Plans Phone Service

Methodist Hospital will begin using Southwestern Bell's "Dimension 2,000" telephone service Tuesday, hospital president George M. Brewer has announced.

The hospital's telephone number will remain the same, and operator assistance will continue.

Methodist Hospital is initiating this service to provide better telephone communications for patients, the public and employees, Brewer said.

New features will include automatic callback, call forwarding, priority calling and conference calls. The system will allow persons outside the hospital to dial directly into a limited number of offices.

The Bureau of the Mint manufactures all U.S. coins and distributes them through the Federal Reserve banks and branches.

Price Of Gasoline, Heating Oil Soars

By The Associated Press
Unusually high demand for gasoline and the effects of the Iranian oil refinery strike are forcing up prices of gasoline and home heating oil in most parts of the country.

And the prices will rise even more if the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries passes an expected increase in crude oil prices when it meets next month. But there were reports from Saudi Arabia Sunday that Saudi officials had told Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal that they favor a continuation of an oil price freeze into 1979.

Motorists in the Chicago area, for example, are paying an average of 79.1 cents per gallon for premium gasoline, up 2 cents from a month ago. In Atlanta, premium prices are up by about 3 cents to more than 80 cents a gallon. But in Seattle, the price of premium gas is about 77.5 cents per gallon, only fractionally higher than a month ago.

Home heating oil, which cost about 51 cents a gallon a year ago, has risen to an average 53 cents a gallon and as high as 55 cents in some parts of the nation. "It's terrible," said E.P. Larsen, owner of a small fuel-oil dealership in Rensselaer County in upstate New York. "We've had five price increases since August, and I've heard that the big companies just increased prices again, so we can probably expect another increase." Larsen said his price has risen from 49 cents per gallon to 54 cents since August.

In the Milwaukee area, the average oil price is 49 cents a gallon, up 3 cents in the past couple of months. The problem started a year ago. The second very cold winter in as many years forced refineries to step up production of distillate oil — used primarily for home heating purposes — at the expense of gasoline production.

This left gasoline supplies at slightly lower-than-usual levels for the summer months, when the situation was complicated by an unexpected increase in gasoline consumption as Americans went on a driving binge.

"We're victims of this beautiful weather," said Herb Hugo, editor of Platt's Oilgram, an industry newsletter.

"We had exceptionally heavy demands (for gasoline) all summer, and then when the weather stayed so good into the fall, the demand kept right up," said Gerald Everett, executive director of the Northwest Petroleum Association in St. Paul, Minn.

"The continued demand, along with the fact that the inventories were already a little low from the high demand all summer, all added up to this crunch," Everett said.

The crunch has caused some oil companies to have trouble meeting demand in New England, the Midwest and on the West Coast. Shell, for example, is cutting supplies to stations in the Northeast, and inventories are especially tight in California, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

This and higher refining costs are pushing wholesale gasoline prices up. That's being felt at the retail level.

"It's pure supply and demand, absolutely," said Mark Emond, editor of the Lundberg Letter, a gasoline industry newsletter.

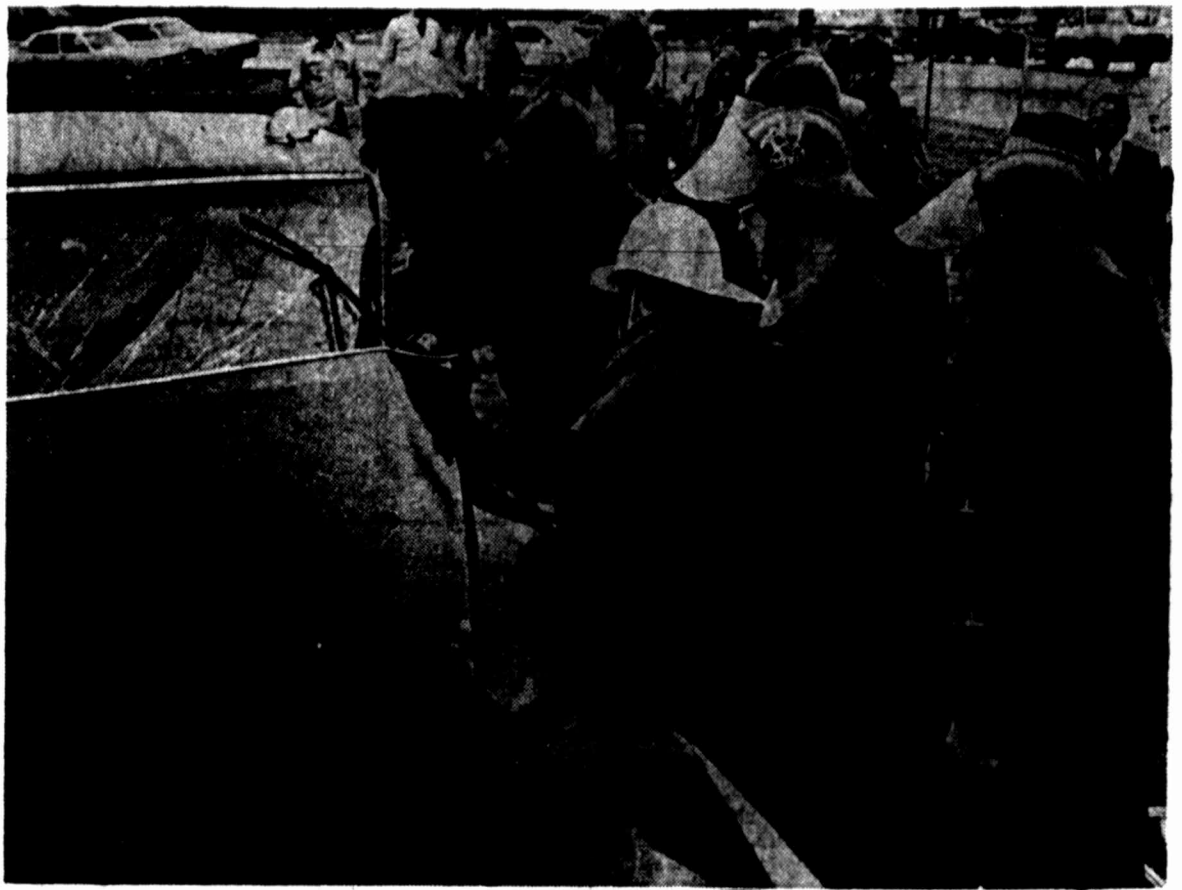

The high demand for gasoline is also creating a crunch in the home-heating oil industry, because refineries were forced to increase gasoline production in late summer, a time when they usually begin to put emphasis on making distillate.

"We're still not seeing the big switch to distillate production," said Larry Goldstein of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, an industry-funded group. "Inventories are not at a comfortable level to go into a heating season."

Although the oil companies say supplies should be adequate unless the weather gets unusually cold, they've raised prices to slow demand somewhat. The prices have also been affected by the recent strike at Iranian oil refineries. That cut supplies from that country, the world's second-largest petroleum exporter, and forced American oil companies to get crude oil from more expensive sources.

Goldstein said a further increase in the price of heating oil is in the offing. "In no way do we expect less than a 2 or 3 cent increase," he said. "That's a fairly conservative estimate, not knowing what OPEC will do. That could add a penny-and-a-half alone."

The OPEC nations are expected to raise crude oil prices 10 percent from the current $13.50 per barrel at their meeting in December. But what form the increase could take is a topic of much speculation. Some OPEC members are believed to favor spreading an increase out over several months both to cushion the economic impact and to discourage their customers from stockpiling in anticipation of a big boost.

Mideast Talks Hit New Snag

By United Press International
Israeli sources said today the Cabinet was likely to approve a U.S.-sponsored draft treaty with Egypt if President Anwar Sadat dropped demands for a timetable implementing Palestinian autonomy on the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

But there were reports from Cairo that Sadat had hardened his position, and revived a joint Arab military pact that would obligate Egypt to fight alongside any country attacked by Israel.

The Israeli Cabinet was to resume debate Tuesday on the draft treaty and was likely to endorse Prime Minister Menachem Begin's rejection of a timetable and an Egyptian presence in Gaza, the sources said.

The sources said it appeared likely the Cabinet would endorse the U.S.-drafted treaty as presented to it by Defense Minister Ezer Weizman on Oct. 25.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, supported by Begin and Weizman, Sunday recommended the Cabinet approve the draft even though the ministers questioned some of the language, the sources said.

Israel should tell Egypt it is ready to sign the treaty and then begin negotiations on a timetable after the pact is signed, the sources said. Dayan told the Cabinet. He said he thought Egypt would endorse this.

There is reason to hope the U.S. administration will stand behind the paper (draft) inspired by President Carter," one source said. "We don't think the Americans will renounce their own draft after three weeks."

Asked what would happen if the Americans backed off from its own draft because of Egyptian demands, the source responded, "Then we'll be in trouble."

"The Egyptians want changes in the language of the Camp David framework which would go against the spirit of the accords reached under the mediation of President Carter," Begin said.

"I can assume the government will reject these Egyptian suggestions and will stand on the accord as written," he told a political gathering. The Cabinet discussed the peace treaty for five hours but did not reach a decision. It scheduled another meeting Tuesday on the peace issue, but also called a meeting today on Israel's economic situation.

In Cairo, state-controlled newspapers said Sadat, criticized by militant Arabs, had revived a joint Arab defense pact that obligates Arab states to assist each other militarily.

Translated into practical terms, this meant Egypt considered itself bound to assist any Arab country that came under Israeli attack. It appeared this was an attempt to pacify Sadat's radical Arab critics and the Israeli's hands at the same time.

Begin was mobbed by Israelis — jeering, not cheering, him — as he arrived at the political meeting.

In an emotional address, he told 600 members of the Herut Party central committee Sunday that demonstrators threw eggs at his car and chanted "Begin is a traitor" as he entered the meeting where several speakers denounced his peace policy.

"I couldn't help asking myself should I continue, can I continue, must I continue," he said, recalling his 50 years of activity in the Zionist movement.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I will continue," he declared. The committee overwhelmingly voted to support his pursuit of peace.

In addition to rejecting the concept of "linkage," Begin said he would not accept the presence of Egyptian police or an Egyptian liaison office in the Gaza Strip.

Egyptian newspapers said Sadat had made his new demands personally, after a careful perusal of the text of the draft treaty, and relayed to Washington through U.S. Ambassador Herman F. Eilts.

"Egypt demanded that its Arab commitments and its membership of the joint Arab defense pact should not be affected" by the conclusion of the peace treaty, said Al Ahram.

Life In Iran Slowly Returns To Normal

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — This city's faded old bazaar was fully opened today for the first time in two months, a further sign that life is gradually returning to normal in Iran two weeks after Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi named a military-led government to end political strife.

On Sunday, a Moslem religious holiday, the shah ordered the release of 210 political prisoners in an apparent concession to the demands of tens of thousands of oil-industry and other workers who went on strike in September and October to press for political reform.

The release left at least 650 political prisoners in Iranian jails — not counting an undetermined number arrested at demonstrations in recent weeks. Sunday's release brought to about 2,500 the number of political prisoners who have been given their freedom since February.

The Tehran bazaar, covered alleyways with hundreds of small shops and stalls, had been a principal staging area for anti-shah demonstrations in recent months. Many shops were burned or otherwise damaged in major rioting Nov. 5 that brought about the resignation of the civilian government and the shah's appointment of Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari, his military chief of staff, as prime minister.

The previous government had promised to release almost all political prisoners in December, but it remains unclear whether Azhari will follow this plan.

Sporadic anti-government demonstrations have been reported since the military government was named, most recently on Friday in two provincial cities. But there were no reports of street protests or political violence Sunday.

The opposition to the shah is both political and religious — dissidents demanding greater political liberties and an end to martial law here, and orthodox Moslems who oppose the shah's modernization program, which they say has introduced corrupting Western influences in this traditional Islamic society.

The two-week oil workers' strike ended last Monday after a representative of the shah promised their demands would be met.

Four Hurt In Traffic Accidents

Two separate traffic accidents, occurring about 30 minutes apart this morning in heavy fog, sent four persons to Methodist Hospital, including a 41-year-old Lubbock woman who was listed in critical condition early today.

The most seriously injured was Lafon Holligan of 5738 Second Place, who was pinned in her car more than half an hour following a two-vehicle crash about 7:45 a.m. today at Fourth Street and Frankford Avenue.

Also injured in that mishap were Joseph Beaudoin, 46, of 5606 Eighth St. and his 39-year-old wife, Irene. Both were taken to Methodist, where they were listed in fair condition.

According to police, Beaudoin was traveling west on Fourth Street and Mrs. Holligan was southbound on Frankford Avenue when the collision occurred.

Mrs. Holligan was trapped in her Ford LTD about 35 minutes before Lubbock Fire Department members, using the "Jaws of Life" rescue tool, were able to cut open the door and free her.

Nurses from city hospitals and Reese Air Force Base also came to the scene to help the victims.

About 20 minutes after that accident, a 52-year-old Lubbock man was thrown from his vehicle after it struck a light pole in the 6800-block of Indiana Avenue.

With no ambulances available, Don Meredith Sager of Route 5, Box 346, Lubbock, was taken by a police patrol car to Methodist Hospital, where he was in fair condition this morning.

Reports show Sager was northbound on Indiana when a vehicle traveling the same direction went into a skid and struck Sager's Jeep. The impact caused the Jeep to crash into the light pole, throwing Sager into the street, police said.

The occupant of the other vehicle, Daniel Thomas Dean, 16, of 7905 Louisville, was not injured in the mishap.

Energy Act Challenged

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana filed a lawsuit today challenging the constitutionality of the Federal Energy Act, a federal court official said.

The three states — major producers of natural gas — are specifically challenging provisions in the act that allow the federal government to control the price of natural gas sold within a state and that compel states to participate in implementing the act.

The suit was filed against the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission by Tom Lay, of the Oklahoma attorney's general's office, said Walter Mounts, chief deputy federal court clerk here.

The federal government was given 60 days to respond to the suit. Judge Ralph Thompson will hear the case.

Lay said the three states will argue that the federal energy legislation violates the interstate commerce clause of the U.S. Constitution and the 10th Amendment, which reserves to the states all powers not specifically granted to the federal government.

Under the energy legislation, natural gas prices will be allowed to rise by about 10 percent annually until 1985, when price lids will be removed from most natural gas. At the same time, price controls will be extended for the first time to gas produced and used within a state.

New Mexico and Kansas had considered joining the lawsuit, but did not.

because the oncoming traffic is traveling 45 miles an hour and has a green light as well.

"It's easy to misjudge the time you have to make a left turn," he said.

The whole of Indiana Avenue also will be scrutinized by STEP officers because of continued speeding on the thoroughfare, he said.

Hundreds Dead At Sect's Camp

of Californians, rehearsed mass suicide and signed undated suicide notes before they left California.

"They will all be dead tomorrow," said Stephen Katzaris, whose son Anthony, 23, was critically wounded in the Saturday night airstrip ambush.

Police found the bodies of a woman member of the sect and her three children Saturday night at a People's Temple commune in a Georgetown suburb. Miss Field-Ridley said the shrubs of all four had been slit, but it had not been determined whether they were all murdered or it was murder-suicide.

A White House statement said President Carter was saddened by Ryan's death. "It was his drive to get information at first hand that led to his tragic death," the statement said.

One survivor, NBC field producer Robert Flick, said the killers fired 90 to 75 shots at Ryan's group as the planes were being loaded.

"People were being wounded and falling to the ground. As they fell, people with shotguns would walk over and at point-blank range shoot the victim in the head," Flick said in an account broadcast by NBC. "That was how Ryan and Harris died."

According to Flick there were eight to 12 gunmen, both black and white.

San Francisco Chronicle reporter Ron Javers, recounting the attack, in which he was wounded in the arm, said cameraman Brown "kept filming even as the attackers advanced on him with their guns."

"I saw Brown go down. Then I saw one of the attackers stick a shotgun right into Brown's face, inches away, if that ... Bob's brain was blown out of his head." Brown's film was broadcast by NBC today.

Although wounded, Javers dodged gunfire and ran into the marshy swamp beside the air field. He and other survivors later returned to the plane.

"Leo Ryan was on his back ... lying in the mud ... his face had been shot off," Javers said.

The reporter and other terrified survivors took refuge overnight with Guyanese in the village of Port Kaituma.

Police and soldiers arrived at daybreak and a Guyanese military plane ferried the survivors back to Georgetown. A U.S. Air Force C-141 took them to Puerto Rico and to Andrews Air Force Base in Washington.

Guyanese doctors, with American physicians in attendance, were performing autopsies today on the bodies of Ryan and the other four slain Americans to comply with Guyanese law in cases involving homicides.

The wounded hospitalized at the Roosevelt Roads Naval Base in Puerto Rico were Anthony Katzaris, of Potter Valley, Calif., wounded in the chest; Ben Gorney, who was fleeing from Jonestown and was wounded in the abdomen, and Beverly Oliver of San Francisco, who had two sons in Jonestown and was wounded in both legs.

Katzaris and Gorney were reported in serious condition.

A Navy spokesman said Mrs. Oliver's husband, Howard, suffered a stroke in Georgetown and was hospitalized with his wife.

Five of the survivors were hospitalized at Andrews. They were Jackie Spater, one of Ryan's aides, who was listed in serious condition with "extensive gunshot wounds;" Javers and NBC soundman Steve Sung, with shoulder wounds; San Francisco Examiner reporter Tim Reiterman, wounded in the forearm, and Carolyn Boyd, who was being treated for shock and emotional stress.

Icy Storms Hit Nation

munities to 14 of an inch in Plains over a 24-hour period ending this morning. Only one below-freezing temperature — 30 in Littlefield — was recorded during the period, and the high of 55 was registered at Morton.

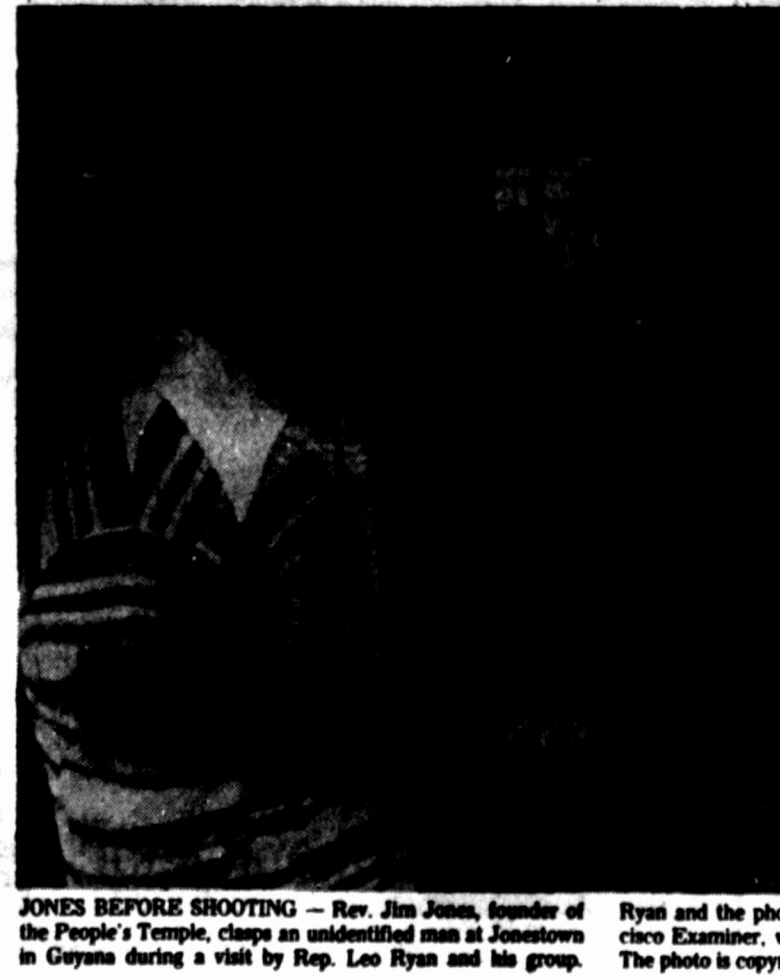

The long range forecast through Friday for the South Plains calls for temperatures ranging from the upper 30s to the 50s and a chance of intermittent rain.

Colder weather is expected about midweek, with a possibility of light snow in the Panhandle.

Cloudiness mixed with fog and drizzle also prevailed over much of the rest of Texas Sunday and this morning. A travelers advisory was reported in effect for the Panhandle region through noon today, as visibility varied from zero to three miles.

Conditions in the Panhandle are expected to improve slightly this afternoon, but the fog and drizzle should continue.

Elsewhere in Texas, scattered thunderstorms were reported moving eastward out of the state early this morning.

Plane Mishap

Near Amarillo Kills Three

AMARILLO (AP) — A single-engine plane ripped through a high-voltage power line Sunday night and crashed in a wheat field south of Amarillo International Airport, killing all three persons aboard.

The crash into the 230,000-volt transmission line caused power to drop off briefly in parts of the city, a Southwestern Public Service spokesman said.

The plane was found nose-to-the-ground about a mile and a half south of the airport's runway. One of the victims was thrown from the plane and was lying about 15 feet from the wreckage. All three were dead at the scene.

The Texas Department of Public Safety identified the victims as the pilot, Russell Eugene Griffin, 38, of Borger; Gary Ray Aderholt, 37, from Fritch, and Irene Ensey McKissick, 28, of Borger.

J.C. Morton, control tower supervisor, said the plane was on an instrument landing approach in foggy weather when it dropped off the radar at 7:22 p.m.

Griffin filed a flight plan with a Borger destination at Gage, Okla., Morton said, but the pilot contacted Amarillo after bad weather prevented an instrument approach to Borger.

Visibility was "acceptable," about three-quarters of a mile, Morton said.

The woman also was taken to St. Mary's Hospital where she was treated and released.

Debtors' Fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first of a series of court battles between American exporters and Japanese importers over a trade deficit is expected to begin today.

Another battle started last week when American exporters made motions, requesting the balance of payments committee that has been a prime cause of the dollar's decline against the yen.

Debtors said control would probably be handed to the dollar at the 100 yen level but would not let it fall more.

After the market closed, participants announced a trade deficit of $2.5 billion for the first 20 days of November, compared with a $2.4 billion deficit in the comparable period last year.

This also was expected to help the dollar.

It was the first deficit for an opening 10-day period since a $700-million deficit in the first 30 days of February, 1965. Japan has been running large trade surpluses, driving down the value of the dollar against the yen.

Cancer Deaths Run High In Small Utah Town

Paragonah, and Summit, combined population less than 2,000 — turned up 157 cancer deaths, survivors said last week. "They became, in effect, civilian soldier-victims of the Cold War," said attorney McArthur Wright, who represents surviving families in a developing legal fight for damages.

Curiosity may have resulted in catastrophe for many. Like LeOra Hafen of St. George, widowed 13 years ago when her rancher husband died of cancer. Leukemia had taken a 15-year-old daughter in 1956, and cancer has since claimed her mother and a brother-in-law.

Wright said, as many as 212 additional claims will be filed. "By filing a lot of claims about the same time, we hope to show the magnitude of the problem," he said. Federal law requires individuals seeking damages from a government agency to file claims first with the agency, which must respond within six months. The next step would be a lawsuit, Wright said.

Meanwhile, Utah officials are pressing for an investigation that would go beyond a 1967 Public Health Service study that found unusual clusters of cancer deaths in Paragonah, Paragonah and Monticello. Sources who obtained a copy of the report and asked not to be identified say the document reached no conclusions about the cause of the cancer fatalities.

Gov. Scott Matheson, who lived in southwest Utah during the time above-ground testing was conducted, is among those who have lost friends to cancer. Matheson has called for an investigation "by anybody but the federal government." He is to meet with White House domestic affairs adviser Jack Watson on Tuesday to discuss the problem. Interest in nuclear test-related cancer grew after Paul Cooper of Emmett, Idaho, claimed last year that exposure to a blast at Yucca Flats, Nev., in 1957 gave him leukemia. Cooper, who was in the Army during the tests, has since died.

CANCER-RADIATION — LeOra Hafen, 59, of St. George, Utah, sits beside a photograph of her daughter, Karlene, 15, who died in 1956 of leukemia. Mrs. Hafen has lost her mother and husband to cancer and a brother-in-law to leukemia. She and other area residents believe many cancer deaths in Southern Utah have been caused by radiation from atmospheric nuclear testing in Nevada. Suits have been filed against the U.S. Energy Department. (AP Laserphoto)

City Woman Tells Police Of Beating

A 50-year-old Lubbock woman told police she was beaten up by a man about 3 a.m. today after he accused her of taking over his house. The woman said she was watching television with the suspect when he made the accusation and began beating her.

The woman reportedly fled to her daughter's house where police were called. The victim was taken to Methodist Hospital where she was treated for multiple cuts and bruises. Heavy losses in tools were reported by two Lubbockites who said their houses had been broken into by burglars.

Curtis Lee Caudle of 907 E. Rice St. said burglars made off with $909 in tools while he was away from home between Friday night and Sunday morning. Another set of tools, valued at $700, was the apparent loot for whoever broke into Charlie Wade Jennings' residence at 4920 11th St. between 9 a.m. and 2:45 p.m. Sunday.

A 31-year-old man walked into West Texas Hospital early Sunday with three gunshot wounds — two to his upper left thigh and another to his right wrist. However, Lamont McGee refused to give police any information about the incident other than the fact that he had been shot at a bar at 17th Street and Avenue B at about 2 a.m. He was treated and released from West Texas Hospital.

In another assault, Craig Aikman told police that a Mexican-American man struck him on the side of the head with a baseball bat about 1:30 a.m. Saturday at a service station at 19th Street and University Avenue. Aikman said he had mistakenly cleared a gas pump that the man was using when the man struck him.

In burglary activity, Nellie Torres of 3015 Erskine St. reported that two color portable television sets had been removed from her home sometime between 7 p.m. and 8:50 p.m. Saturday. Chester Williams of 2426 28th St. said he lost $959 of his property, including a pair of boots, record albums and clothes, during a Saturday break-in.

Woodcarving Slatonite Enjoys Students At Tech Art Festival

By LISA PAIKOWSKI, Avalanche-Journal Staff. Jack Dickson smiles warmly and asks how you're doing. The gray-haired Slaton resident, casually attired in jeans and a cotton shirt, seems quite comfortable in the midst of all the students passing through the University Center between classes.

But he is no stranger to Texas Tech and he enjoys the company of students. Usually he works at the Texas Tech Bookstore, but for three days last week he was stationed in the UC courtyard, scene of the Fall Festival of the Arts, showing the products of his spare-time devotion.

Jack Dickson is a woodcarver who "has loved wood all of my life." He is obviously pride of the carefully wrought pieces in rich hues of red and brown that surround him. What he learned of his craft has been through trial and error. "I didn't want anyone to show me how to do it," he said. He just does it. He began by making jewelry and crosses as gifts and then added butterflies and other sculptured pieces to his repertoire. He has been selling his products for about three years.

Dickson travels to various shows in the immediate area, and even has a piece on permanent display with the Arts and Crafts Foundation of Kerrville which travels around the country and brings in a goodly share of business. But he genuinely enjoys the Tech show "because it's just a pleasure to deal with the kids."

fashions his butterflies, dolphins and religious figures from exotic woods from Africa as well as woods "from plain old trees right here in our own yards." He says some of the best woods are from mulberry and weeping willow trees. The feelers on his butterflies are made of cactus needles.

With a simple pocketknife and some files, Dickson can create a butterfly in three to six hours. But he likes to work on four or five things at a time. His pieces range in price from $3 to $300.

Dickson will not produce any object that is not handmade. "I have the machines to mass-produce and I have gotten large orders before," he said. "I've produced them that way, but it was no pleasure. You lose the touch of the wood when you use machines. When you work with your hands, you feel like you've really done something."

Escaped Prisoners, Brothers Charged In Hijacking Of Bus

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Four men have been charged with kidnapping, armed robbery and attempted robbery in the hijacking of a bus and robbing of its passengers, Sheriff Al Amis says.

The four — two prison escapees and two brothers — are charged with a total of 20 counts of aggravated kidnapping, 22 counts of armed robbery and five counts of attempted robbery in the hijacking on Sunday.

The only injury during the holdup occurred when one of the hijackers shot another hijacker in the shoulder, Amis said. When taking over the bus, the gunman announced that they were members of the PLO.

The bus was en route from Baton Rouge to New Orleans when the hijacking occurred. Amis said one of the gunmen held a .22-caliber pistol to the driver's head, while the others watched the passengers. Two of the gunmen apparently had toy guns.

"After these people had robbed the passengers of all their money and valuables, and during the excitement of the robbery, one of them shot and wounded one of his compatriots," Amis said.

When the gunmen left they shot out tires along one side of the bus, the sheriff said. The driver, Vincent P. Guillot of Alexandria, La., then flagged down a motorist, who called the sheriff's department.

The four were captured in Denham Springs, outside of Baton Rouge. Charged in the incident were Dwayne Hall, 19, of Baton Rouge, and Raymond Cavalier, 18, who had escaped from the Iberville Parish jail, and brothers Nathaniel Alexander, 23, and Benjamin Alexander, 21, both of Pascagoula, Miss. Cavalier was being held in a hospital after being shot in the shoulder.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM
The Newspaper Bible.
Luke 5:29-39. The Living Bible
29 Soon Levi held a reception in his home, with Jesus as the guest of honor. Many of Levi's fellow tax collectors and other guests were there.
30 But the Pharisees and teachers of the Law complained bitterly to Jesus' disciples about His eating with such notorious sinners.
31 Jesus answered them, "It is the sick who need a doctor, not those in good health!"
32 My purpose is to invite sinners to turn from their sins, not to spend My time with those who think themselves already good enough."
33 Their next complaint was that Jesus' disciples were feasting instead of fasting! "John the Baptist's disciples are constantly going without food and praying," they declared, "and so do the disciples of the Pharisees. Why are yours wining and dining?"
34 Jesus asked, "Do happy men fast? Do wedding guests go hungry while celebrating with the groom?"
35 But the time will come when the bridegroom will be killed; then they won't want to eat!"
36 Then Jesus told them a story: "No one tears up unshrunk cloth to make patches for old clothes, for the new garment is ruined and the old one isn't helped when the patch tears out again!"
37 And no one puts new wine into old wineskins, for the new wine bursts the old skins, ruining the skins and spilling the wine!
38 New wine must be put into new wineskins.
39 But no one after drinking the old wine seems to want the fresh and the new! 'The old ways are best,' they say."

Child Support Cases Grow

$3 MILLION PER YEAR — Margaret Brannon, left, and Doris Rogers stay busy in the child support division of the Lubbock County District Clerk's Office. They handle about 4,000 child support cases and will have processed about $3 million in support payments by the end of the year. And the workload gets heavier each year. (Staff Photo by Gary Davis)

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

With a great increase in the number of divorces in the past decade, the workload of the child support division of the district clerk's office has grown increasingly heavy and shows no signs of slowing its rate of growth.

Verna Boyd, chief deputy district clerk and district clerk-elect, said the office will have processed about $3 million in child support payments by the end of the year.

The office now has about 4,000 cases with 700 new ones added this year.

"A lot are dropped each year, too," Mrs. Boyd said. "But I think we get more new ones than we lose."

She and child support workers Margaret Brannon and Doris Rogers are frequently asked about the functions of the office and how it operates.

Basically, it serves as an intermediary between divorced persons to transfer and record support payments.

When a check comes in, either hand-carried or mailed, the payment is recorded in the ledger of the person owing it, and the check is mailed out the same day to the person to whom it is owed.

No one is allowed to come in personally and pick up checks, Mrs. Boyd said, adding, "If we let women come up here and pick them up, we'd have them lined up out here in the hall."

Checks are mailed out the same day they arrive, she said.

The office has no enforcement responsibilities to make sure payments are kept current.

"We don't do anything unless she comes in and complains about it," Mrs. Boyd said.

If the woman is not represented by an attorney, the child support office takes a signed complaint and files it in district court. When a hearing is held, its records are used as evidence.

The first thing the clerk's office does when a complaint is made, though, is to see if office records agree with those of the person who complains.

"It protects everybody concerned," Mrs. Boyd said of the system.

It is further a service in that the county pays all the postage for mailing the checks.

The child support office, only one of many aspects of the district clerk's office, has been running about $3 million per year prior to 1978 but should near $5 million this year with the increase in cases, the new district clerk said.

The office "never loses" anything else that we do in here," she said.

Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Brannon are part of a staff of 15 in the district clerk's office.

Mrs. Brannon said they supply records for the payment of fees levied on delinquent payments per month of about $5 per year.

Child support has been a division of the district clerk's office as long as Mrs. Boyd can remember.

"It didn't used to be this big," she said.

"We started mailing out the checks about 25 years ago. We didn't have a posting machine back then. We couldn't mail them out on the same day now if we had to keep records by hand."

McCrory, Lawyer Clash In Trial

HOUSTON (UPI) — Defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes and state witness David McCrory clashed repeatedly today in testimony about the informant's dealings with T. Cullen Davis, on trial for trying the hire the murder of his divorcee court judge.

Haynes paraded back and forth from the lawyers table to the witness chair pointing out to McCrory testimony the witness had given at Davis' Fort Worth bond hearing in August that contradicts what he has said in the Houston trial.

At one point the exasperated witness said the testimony was not exactly consistent "because you had me so shook up and confused (in Fort Worth)," McCrory said.

Haynes points were numerous but he failed to impeach the witness on any major aspects of his testimony and prosecution objections that Haynes' questions were immaterial or irrelevant were repeatedly upheld.

McCrory referred to several sheets of a large calendar from his lap during his testimony and said he had prepared the calendar during the weekend because "I got tired of saying 'I don't remember,'" to Haynes' questions.

It was the first day of testimony in the third week of Davis' trial.

McCrory, a one-time friend of Davis, already has testified about the millionaire's alleged plans to have 15 people killed.

State attorneys say Haynes cannot dem-age McCrory's testimony without reflecting poorly on Davis as well and say Haynes can not soft-sell the prosecution's No. 1 item of evidence — tapes that allowed jurors to recreate the sounds and scenes of three days of murder plotting and payoffs last August.

"Obviously anytime the lawyer is able to attack the credibility of a witness, it's harmful and you always wish that it didn't happen," said Jack Strickland, one of three Tarrant County assistant district attorneys assigned to the trial. "But I don't think I saw Haynes do anything... that diminishes the effectiveness of those tapes or the credibility of those tapes, especially that synchronized tape."

Haynes fought the synchronized audio-tape depicting an Aug. 20 Davis-McCrory meeting with objections and witnesses, calling it a hybrid, manufactured product that property could not be ruled as evidence.

District Judge Wallace Moore disagreed, and jurors saw and heard Davis talking to McCrory, with the millionaire agreeing the next targets should be Beverly Bass and other witnesses who testified against him last year in Amarillo during his trial on charges he killed his stepldaughter.

Davis: Just one problem. I haven't got the money lined up.

McCrory: How long will it take?

Davis: I'll try to get it done. I can get it in two days.

"My view of the whole thing is that all of the witnesses that provided the tapes and those who follow — even McCrory, if you consider the tape as standing independent of McCrory — all of those witnesses are really only to corroborate the tapes," Strickland said. "Even if Haynes were successful in discrediting McCrory or any other witness, those tapes are really such damning evidence that the jury could convict on that basis alone."

Popularity, Demand For $2 Bill Drops

By SHAUNA HILL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Since its re-issuance in 1976, the $2 bill has been as welcome in Lubbock as a dust storm in December.

Lubbock bankers say the bills generally have been re-shuffled from bank to bank or left to gather cobwebs in a corner of the vault.

Lubbock retailers call the bills a nuisance and consumers won't even use the bills for $2 bets at the racetrack.

But a local spokesman for the U.S. Treasury says the government still thinks the bills are a "good idea" and will be used in time.

"Consumers just aren't used to making change and thinking in a different denomination," the spokesman said.

Local bankers say the infrequent use of $2 bills in Lubbock is caused both by consumer disinterest and banks' hesitation to circulate large amounts of the unpopular currency.

"People give us $2 bills, but we do not give out any unless they ask for them," explained Chuck Seaberg, Bank of the West teller supervisor.

Spokesmen for other banks agreed.

Sherlan Selke, a cashier at the Security National Bank, said the bank ships, but never orders, the seldom-used bills.

"We send about $1,000 every three weeks to the Federal Reserve Bank, but we never order any," Selke said. "I think the bills are unused because stores do not have extra space in their cash drawers for them."

The Lubbock National Bank ordered about $16,000 in $2 bills a few weeks ago, but plans to use the bills for "scratch pads."

"Scratch pads are made of new money and are used (by bank customers) as Christmas presents," said Gary Cocanougher, vice-president and teller supervisor.

The Santa money and supplies to correspondent and customer banks are all we really use the $2 bills for," he said.

Brad Clark, vault supervisor of the First National Bank, said they ordered about $6,000 in $2 bills two or three weeks ago, but that there is no special need for them.

"We keep about $4,000 to $10,000 in $2 bills in stock, but we really don't like them," he said, adding that customers seem to consider the bills an inconvenience.

Other banks, such as the Citizens Bank of Slaton and the First State Bank of Shallowater, have not ordered any $2 bills since they were re-issued more than two years ago.

Major retail outlets also seem to have little use for the bills.

Lee H. Coil, president of McWhorter's Inc., a local auto supply company, said it's just too easy for cashiers to mistakenly give out $2 bills instead of $1 bills.

"The re-issuing of the bills was just politics anyway, and I have not waited on a customer in years who asked for one," he said. "They were considered good luck in the past, but even that seems to have passed now."

Vic Hines, assistant manager of Hemphill-Wells, called the bills "a nuisance."

"We do not stock $2 bills because they would create problems in the cash register and the computer. I do not know of one business that bought new cash registers to stock the extra bills," he said.

Hines estimated the store receives one $2 bill per day from a customer.

Kenneth Jensen, head cashier at Sears Roebuck and Company, said the store does not keep a supply on hand.

"We send any $2 bills we get to the bank immediately," he said. "I do not think we take in more than $30 (in $2 bills) per week."

Even local coin collectors would not admit to keeping large numbers of the bills, although some people keep one or two around for luck.

Charles Guy, former editor of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, says he has kept one $2 bill for the past 25 years because the bill was given to him under unusual circumstances.

"I was walking down the street in Baltimore, Md., after spending some time at the Bowie Racetrack, when I spied a sign advertising 40-cent Tom Collins," Guy said.

"Well, it was hotter than gee whiz, so I went in, belted up to the bar and paid for my drink with a $5 bill.

"I got a $2 bill as part of my change and wouldn't have thought anything about it, except the upper left corner was torn off."

"It is an old gambler's superstition that tearing the corner off a $2 bill lets the bad luck out, so I kept it and gave it to my wife."

"I found another one with the corner torn later, so I kept it too," Guy said.

Contemporary gamblers apparently have abandoned that old superstition, failing to use $2 bills even around racetracks.

Murdell Holbert of Ruidoso Downs in Ruidoso, N.M., said the bills are seldom used for $2 bets, although their use would seem logical.

"We had a few ($2 bills) during the summer, but not enough to really consider."

"We do not pay in $2 bills either," she said.

ERA Ratification Given Top Priority

AUSTIN (AP) — President Carter's special assistant on women's affairs says President Carter has told her to make ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment her No. 1 priority.

"Every woman would stand taller" if the states adopt the ERA, Sarah Weddington said Sunday.

She addressed two committees of lieutenant governors and Secretaries of State Thyrta Thompson of Wyoming and Norma Paulus of Oregon.

"The real reason" the ERA should pass, Mrs. Weddington told the 17-member group, "is it is a very basic principle and right in this country."

Texas, she noted, was the ninth state to ratify the ERA and also is one of 16 states that have an equal rights amendment in the state constitution. Mrs. Weddington was a Texas state representative in 1973-77.

Despite Texas' leadership on women's issues, she said, "the ceiling has not fallen in... the family is still an important institution..."

"The (recent) election of a Republican governor (in Texas) has done far more to shake the foundations of this building than the ERA ever did," she said smiling.

Mrs. Weddington spoke in the Senate chamber of the Texas Capitol.

She said Carter had asked her to make the ERA her top priority. It is a concept, she said, that every president since Dwight Eisenhower has endorsed.

Republican Lt. Gov. Dave O'Neal of Illinois told Mrs. Weddington that the president — or anyone else coming to Illinois seeking support for the ERA — "should stick to the pluses and minus and not brow-beat or use fiscal threats to try to pass" the amendment.

"I'm opposed to that strategy, which has been used before," he said.

Lt. Gov. John Wilder of Tennessee, a Democrat, said he had supported the ERA but added, "It gives me concern when Congress says to the sovereign states, 'You have the authority to ratify (the amendment) but you don't have the authority to rescind it."

Thirty-five states have ratified the ERA so far, but 38 states must approve it to amend the U.S. Constitution.

Mrs. Weddington predicted that the U.S. Supreme Court eventually will rule on whether states that have ratified the ERA can rescind their action.

The study indicated that 71 percent of the lawyers living in the Southeast were likely to devote time to public interest activities, while in the Northeast, the figure dropped to 53 percent.

The Slim Gourmet

Things your mother never told you about Thanksgiving dinners (maybe she didn't know!):

WHAT SIZE TURKEY TO BUY? — At less than 200 calories a serving, few main course "meats" are as calorie-cheap as turkey. There's lots to do with leftover turkey, so let your freezer, refrigerator and oven size be the deciding factors.

If you've got freezer room, meal-size packets of cooked turkey can be the "great beginning" of scores of inventive, quick and easy meals. But check space and equipment before shopping: a big bird may be a bargain, but where will you keep it until cooking time? What will you cook it in? Will your oven accept it? Is there refrigerator room to stash the carcass after dinner? Can you spare the freezer space to store leftovers?

WHICH IS MEATIER? BIG OR SMALL, TOM OR HEN? — There's no categorical difference between big, small, male or female.

The "refuse ratio" is about the same for all: Dressed turkey is about 27 percent bone. But bigger turkeys tend to be a "better buy" because their price-per-pound is lower. Check the price before you buy: A turkey that's a few pounds heavier may be cheaper!

WHAT ABOUT SELF-BASTING TURKEYS? — It makes no sense to pay a premium price for added fat and calories. Oil and additives pumped into a turkey do nothing to improve the taste and tenderness. Proper cooking is what counts!

Oil-added turkeys cost you even more per pound than you think... since the extra fat adds to the weight. The oil also contaminates the cooking juices with added calories and makes a greasier gravy.

WHAT'S THE BEST WAY TO COOK A TURKEY? — The best time and temperature combination will be found on the turkey's plastic wrapper. Find the weight of your turkey and follow the label directions accordingly, no matter what your cookbook says! These are the standards that have been developed and tested by the turkey industry to produce the best-looking, best-tasting bird for your table. Who would know better?

DOES STUFFING HAVE TO BE FAT-TENING? — Not if it's made without fat or fatty ingredients. To "decalorize" dressing, follow any recipe you like, but omit butter, oil, shortening, margarine, fat, lard, sausage, bacon or other greasy ingredients. Replace with soup stock or wine. For a moist (and more healthful) dressing, increase the amount of onion, celery, mushrooms, parsley and other vegetable ingredients. Herbs and seasonings add no calories to speak of.

IS GRAVY OFF LIMITS? — Like stuffing, it needn't be a no-no if it's made the fat-free way. Dilute the pan juices with some cold water and pour them into a tall glass. Wait a few minutes until the fat rises to the top. Use a bulb-baster to suck up all the fat. Or, if time permits, chill the glass in the freezer or refrigerator until fat hardens, so you can simply lift it off. Heat fat-skimmed turkey broth to a simmer; thicken with a paste made by combining flour and cold water (allow 2 tablespoons flour for each cupful of gravy). Use the gravy on top of potatoes and vegetables... instead of butter.

CAN CALORIE-COUNTERS HAVE CRANBERRIES? — Cranberries, yes! Sugar-packed cranberry sauce, no! Make your own whole-berry cranberry sauce by simmering fresh whole cranberries in a little water or fruit juice until they pop open. Sweeten to taste with honey, sugar substitute or frozen undiluted orange juice concentrate. Chill in the refrigerator until serving time.

WHAT ABOUT PUMPKIN PIE? —

Why not make pie-less pumpkin, by baking the filling in a shallow casserole or in custard cups, without fattening pastry? Set the cups in a shallow pan with an inch of water, and bake at 350 degrees until set (use the tip of a knife to test). To cut calories even more, follow the directions on a can of pumpkin (plain pumpkin, not sugar-sweetened filling) but use evaporated low-fat milk in place of evaporated milk. Eliminate or decrease sugar and sweeten instead with honey or sugar substitute. Bake in custard cups and chill before serving.

Or, better yet, serve a compote of seasonal fresh fruits: diced unpeeled apples, seedless halved green grapes, orange chunks, cubed unpeeled pears, sprinkled with apple pie spice and drizzled with fresh-squeezed pomegranate.

Spice up your calorie-wise cooking! For a complete guide to spice calories, including sodium content and other nutritional and cooking information, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents to SPICE GUIDE, in care of this newspaper, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK
The First Lady of Candidness has done it again.

Betty Ford has done for facelifts what the YWCA did for belly-dancing. She has given it respectability.

But, as I was telling my friend, Mayva, the other day, "What's so bad about wrinkles? My goodness, they're beautiful! They give you character and depth."

"I couldn't agree more," said Mayva. "Wrinkles are the jewels awarded survivors."

"That's beautiful, Mayva," I said. "But be fair! We're lucky. We haven't aged like our friends. I mean some of them look like an unpaired road."

"Don't I know it," said Mayva. "Florence uses that cream to erase bags under her eyes. The other day she erased her entire face."

"Oh Mayva," I laughed, wiping tears from my eyes. "I wouldn't believe we'd spent so many years together, you look so young. Sometimes, I forget about your neck."

"What about my neck?" asked Mayva, sobering up.

"You've said yourself every time you look into a mirror it reminds you to defrost the chicken."

"I never said that! At least I don't have laugh lines that I can plant winter wheat in."

"I'm not laughing," I said evenly. "I can never tell," she said coolly.

"Mayva, at least my whole body isn't suffering from erosion."

"EROSION!" I never thought I'd hear that from a woman who wore ponytails until she was 35 just to pull back the extra skin around her face.

"I never did that!" I said defensively. "You tied your hair back so tight that every time you opened your mouth, your eyes blinked."

"You always told me my face was interesting," I said.

"I said the same thing about the Pyramids."

We sat in silence. Finally, I said, "Face it, Mayva, we've got a lot of fat that doesn't fit anymore."

"I know," she said. "It seems like one morning I got up and during the night everything had fallen. I looked like someone slammed a door while I was baking."

"I'd consider taking a tack here and there," I said.

"I know. I'd like to look like anyone's sister just once before I go. Incidentally, what happened to 'wrinkles are beautiful and create character and depth?' The jewels that are awarded survivors?"

"That's before we got them. Incidentally, I wonder what Betty Ford did with what she didn't want?"

1/3 cup honey
2 cups complete pancake mix

STORYBOOK FASHIONS—These children's holiday fashions feature an applique of that lovable storybook character, Paddington Bear (named after London's Paddington train station). The little boy's outfit consists of royal blue shorts buttoning onto a short-sleeve pique shirt, and the little girl's dress is a blue floral print with attached pique pinafore.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J72 ♥854 ♦K952 ♣Q84
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♦ Dbie. Pass
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Partner's bid is not forcing, but it is the nearest thing to it. He has made a takeout double and then jumped in his own suit despite the fact that you have promised very little. While we are not here to contend that you have a good hand, you do have a smattering of values and you should give partner a chance. We suggest you show your club stopper by bidding two no trump.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK7 ♥95 ♦872 ♣QJ963
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. There are those who might claim that your trump support is too good for a mere preference. We are not among them. Bear in mind that you have already shown your ace-king of spades in the values, you hold for your two-over-one response of two clubs. While it is pleasant to have those cards in partner's suit, they still represent values you have already shown, and a simple preference does your hand full justice.

Q.3—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠1063 ♥976 ♦AJ872 ♣K5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♦ 2 ♥ ?

What action do you take?

A.—Only two alternatives suggest themselves—a raise to two spades or a pass. One thing is certain: you do not have the values for a bid of three diamonds, which would create a forcing-to-game situation. It is a close decision, but we feel that you have just too much to pass. Our choice is a raise to two spades.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠1076 ♥A8 ♦Q72 ♣KJ1065
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ 2 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—To bid freely at the two-level, vulnerable, partner must have a reasonably good hand and strong suit. You have fair values, and game is definitely a possibility. The obvious way to tell partner of this is to raise to three spades. Take a demerit if you choose to bid three clubs—that is not forcing, so partner might pass. And even if he does rebid three spades, you won't know what to do.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KJ92 ♥Q8542 ♦A107 ♣A
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ Pass Pass 1 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You know partner does not have much—he elected to balance with a simple overall rather than make a takeout double. Nevertheless, your hand is worth 17 points in support of spades, so we would venture four spades. A jump to three spades would be putting too much strain on partner.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠74 ♥K1082 ♦J103 ♣KJ85
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—It is a close decision, and we would not blame you much if you decided to pass. However, your hand is worth 10 points at a heart contract, so we feel it is just strong enough for a raise to three hearts—game cannot be ruled out altogether.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AS2 ♥Q98 ♦A10874 ♣K6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ 1 ♣ 2 ♥ 2 ♦ Pass Pass 4 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand has improved dramatically in value. Despite the fact that you showed a minimum opening bid by passing at your second turn, partner chose a jump rebid. A mere preference now won't do justice to your holding—every card is working and your king of clubs and queen of hearts should be promoted in value. You should either cue-bid four spades or jump to five hearts, and we have a slight preference for the former since partner might have a doubleton spade and be afraid of slam because of that.

Q.8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQ8742 ♥AK73 ♦Q6 ♣8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Now is the time to introduce your second major—not because you expect to find support in partner's hand the bidding to this point makes that unlikely, but to enable him to clarify his holding. If partner now bids three spades, we would choose to play in a suit and would consider a forward-going move. If partner were to bid three no trump, we would pass, secure in the knowledge that it must play better from his side.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: As Thanksgiving draws near, I am thinking of my family blessings. Among them is the privilege of writing the column. Each day I receive at least a dozen letters. Today I want to share one with you:

DEAR ABBY: Our youngest daughter, not quite 17, ran away from home 14 months ago. She had been dating a rough time for about a year, dropping school, staying out late, and so on. She was constantly coming home with the stormiest of the weather. She had a few clothes, but she had no money. She had no one to turn to. She had no one to help her. She had no one to love her.

Only a miracle could have brought this girl home. She had been missing for over a year. She had been living on the streets. She had been eating out of the trash. She had been sleeping in the open air. She had been living a life of misery. She had been living a life of despair. She had been living a life of hopelessness. She had been living a life of darkness. She had been living a life of pain. She had been living a life of suffering. She had been living a life of death.

Well, our prayers were answered. She came home. She was out of the blue. We received a telephone call from someone who said he was a volunteer with Operation Peace of Mind in Houston. (We live in Michigan.) We were told that our daughter had run out of the toll-free number in the DEAR ABBY column and she wanted to let us know that she was well and happy in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The volunteer said our daughter would call them again on the following morning in case we had a message for her.

We told them we would welcome a collect call from her. Sure enough, she called us the next day! She sounded wonderful and said she was working and going to night school to finish her education. Our story has an ending. Our daughter is coming to spend Thanksgiving with us!

Abby, will you please publish this toll-free number again so other runaway kids can establish communications with their families? Our daughter said that she had seen your column with the number posted near telephones where runaways hang out.

We will never be able to thank you enough for giving us the happiest Thanksgiving we've ever had!

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Monday, Nov. 20, the 324th day of 1978 and 41 to follow.
The moon is approaching its last quarter.
The morning stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.
The evening stars are Mars and Mercury.
Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.
John Merle Coulter, American botanist, teacher and writer, was born Nov. 20, 1851. American actress Gene Tierney was born on this date in 1920.
On this day in history:
In 1620, a baby girl was delivered aboard the Mayflower in Massachusetts Bay, the first white child born in the New England colonies. She was named Peregrine White.
In 1945, 24 German leaders went on trial at Nuremberg before the International War Crimes Tribunal.

In 1968, explosion and fire entombed 78 men in a coal mine at Farmington, W. Va.
In 1975, Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain died. Also that day, Ronald Reagan announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.

A thought for the day:
Scottish writer Thomas Carlyle said, "Music is well said to be the speech of angels."

Buyers Fooled By Gold Scam

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL
Have you talked to any gold dealers lately? If you haven't you should feel slightly, because they've been burning up the telephone lines lately, pitching deals to buy gold on the layaway plan — and clipping naive buyers for thousands of dollars in the process.

If it sounds like an old scam, it is. And if it's hard to believe people still fall for it, take the word of Karl Lauby of New York City's Better Business Bureau, who says, "They work on the theory that if you spend enough time and make enough phone calls, you're going to find people — and they do."

Bill Monahan of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission adds, "It's an old rule of con artists. There's always somebody who wants to get something for nothing. And that's what they get — nothing."

The idea, which has blossomed since the end of May, is called a leveraged contract (and the FTC hastens to add that some of them are perfectly legitimate). The buyer makes a commitment to buy 100 ounces of gold at a fixed price, recently as high as $250 an ounce. The payments — in this case totalling $25,000 — are made over the term of the contract, no matter what happens to the price of gold in the meantime.

Sometimes the deal is spiced with the promise to buy the gold back at market value at any time, so that the buyer has the feeling he can change his mind. Sometimes, the people who made the promise become very hard to find.

The Better Business Bureau counts 30 firms operating in New York alone and the CRTC estimates that there are about 80 of them around the country. Their pitch is very convincing — enough so, for example, to get a miner in Utah to part with $9,500, a farmer in California to mail off $22,500 and a businessman in Oregon to commit himself to $68,000 (those are from the BBB files) — and then call up authorities to find out if they've been taken.

"Don't get the idea that this is all little old ladies in sneakers," says the CFTC's Monahan. "It's doctors and lawyers and bankers — a lot of professional people who should know better."

The gold deal dropped up after the CFTC, on May 23, banned sales of options on commodities traded in London. Last June, CFTC Chairman William Bagley sent a letter to state authorities warning that firms that were selling the options (often just pocketing the cash because in reality there was no way the "investor" could hope to get even) would probably be switching to diamonds. The gems, though, ran out of popularity and were replaced by gold, silver, palladium, copper and other metals.

There are two big attractions to leveraged contracts. One is that, handled properly, there is nothing wrong with them. In fact, they're an accepted way of doing business. Handling them right means the firm has to be able to guarantee it can deliver the gold when all the payments are made and that it has the financial stability to honor commitments to buy the metal back. In that case, it becomes similar to "forward selling," which is what farmers do every year when they sell their crops.

The other attraction, for now at least, is that while the CFTC has the authority to regulate leveraged contracts, it hasn't yet made any rules. The commission didn't get the nod from Congress until Oct. 1, when its own life was extended. The first rule is due out soon and will ban anybody from selling the contracts if they weren't in the business before May 23, the day the rule was proposed.

The commission is also going to publish another rule — that contracts can't be sold on anything but gold and silver. One result of that is that the CFTC will find out about other commodities being offered, from the complaints of the people it puts out of business.

The BBB's Karl Lauby says there are some things to look for before buying a contract. The sales charge, he says, should be spelled out. "One guy said he had been told on the phone that the charge was 2 percent. He sent them $5,000 and, when he got the bill, he found out that the whole thing went for the sales charge. He hadn't even started paying for the gold. And who knows how high the price of gold has to go before he can get even."

Look, too, for guarantees that the firm can honor its contracts. Lauby says he's talked to some of the firms, to find out about their financial condition, where they keep the gold and other things.

New Body Made Of Fiberglass

By ED LION
CHICAGO (UPI) — Researchers are making superstrong, virtually corrosion-proof automotive bodies that International Harvester officials say may revolutionize the car and truck industry and do away with expensive metal bodies.

The Chicago-based Harvester Corp. is producing a new line of bodies for its 1981 drive vehicles. The new bodies are made from a lower density fiberglass.

"From now on we're going to say 'no more metal,'" said a Harvester spokesman. "It's stronger than regular steel metal bodies and it's lighter and it doesn't rust. One advantage is a top in a prototype and it's a success."

The composite material is lighter and stronger than steel. It also is resistant to corrosion. Harvester officials say the new bodies are being used in the truck industry and the car industry is starting to explore it, company officials said.

With age, Windecker said, the body should actually become stronger because on the microscopic level molecules in composite materials integrate better over time.

Composite has been found to be stronger than steel in many tests. It is lighter and stronger than steel. It also is resistant to corrosion. Harvester officials say the new bodies are being used in the truck industry and the car industry is starting to explore it, company officials said.

Harvester officials said they hope eventually to use composite bodies on trucks and farm equipment. "We think this is the way of the future for us."

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Amusing Entertainment Provided By Game

By SHARI LEWIS
 Before TV, grown-ups used to play games to amuse themselves, and some games we now do at kids' parties were originally played by everyone as part of the evening's entertainment.

This is one of those golden oldies.

Players, seated in a circle, are each given a pencil and a sheet of paper folded horizontally (from side to side) so that it has four lines, making five sections.

They are told to draw a head (animal, human, monster or whatever) in the top section and extend the neck lines a little below the fold of the paper, so the next person will know where to start. Fold that head out of sight, and pass all papers to the player to the right.

He draws neck, shoulder, arms and so on to the waist on the next section, and folds the paper so that nothing shows but lines indicating where the waist ends. The sheets are passed to the right again. Next, the body's completed, the paper folded and passed on. Then the skirt, pants, wheels or whatever are added, paper folded, passed and the last person adds feet.

All papers handed to the center, and one after another they are opened up to be looked at and laughed over!

Army Couple Leaves Child

MUSCATINE, Iowa (UPI) — Kent Adkins and his wife, Maureen, both Army Spec. 4s, went absent without leave Sunday as they left Iowa to begin preparations for a three-year tour of duty in Germany — leaving their 8-month-old daughter Barbara behind.

The problem is the lack of quarters available for a married couple with a child and until housing can be located Barbara will be staying in Iowa with her grandparents.

Mrs. Adkins said the separation could be from a month to six months, but admits it could stretch throughout the couple's three-year hitch.

"They shouldn't have sent us if we couldn't take our baby," she said. "This is silliness."

"It's going to be hard when we leave," Adkins said. "Whatever we want to do, we want to do as a family. They're only little ones."

Both plan to make the military their career after meeting in Fort Campbell, Ky., and had understood their child would be in their care while they change assignments.

"But nothing like this," he said.

He said they were given two options: "One of us could stay back, or one of us could get out (of the Army)."

"The couple has enlisted the help of Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, and Rep. James Leach, R-Iowa, but so far has met with little success.

No Army officials were available for comment.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Commercial or career matters should not be conducted in too chummy a manner tomorrow. Keep everything businesslike so those you're dealing with know you're serious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Let your optimism overrule your self-doubts tomorrow. Your hopes can be realized. Think and act like a winner and you will be one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In a joint venture tomorrow, something neither you nor your counterpart anticipated could pop up. Keep cool heads and it will be satisfactorily resolved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) All the aspects must be carefully considered in making major decisions tomorrow. Once you appreciate your alternatives, your judgments will be wise ones.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Big things could be in store for you tomorrow, but there's a danger of going off on tangents. Lock-in on your ambitions. Don't let anything distract you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't become immersed in materialistic areas tomorrow. You're likely to handle them rather poorly even though you'll be brilliant in other situations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A matter of importance to your family will follow your hopeful outlines, provided you don't let another try to alter your program. Proceed as you envision.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) On a one-to-one basis you will be able to deal effectively tomorrow with persons who have clout. Little pipsqueaks, however, could cause you some frustrations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your chances for personal acquisition are good tomorrow, but not in instances where you're gambling on an if-comes basis. Speculation is definitely a no-no.

LED (July 23-Aug. 22) Second effort is extremely important tomorrow. You may suffer an unexpected setback. Try again. The victory will be a grand one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Instead of trying to impose your ideas on others tomorrow, make it a point to be receptive to theirs. You could be privy to some exceptional counsel.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) For the sake of your budget, select activities tomorrow that are inexpensive. Going the opposite route will cost you more than you should spend.

Nov. 21, 1978

A rise in status, both socially and where your career is concerned, is likely this coming year. Breaks previously denied you will now be forthcoming.

Serving Cranberries Linked To Pilgrims

By RICHARD P. JONES
BABCOCK, Wis. (UPI) — Dale Johnson pulled hard on a huge door, walked inside a big warehouse and stood amid 20,000 barrels of fresh cranberries.

The barrels stacked in the cool warehouse almost touched the ceiling. The harvest was over and trucks were hauling fresh cranberries to supermarkets for Thanksgiving.

"We keep some here for Christmas," said Johnson, manager of a receiving plant Ocean Spray Cranberries Inc. operates near the heart of Wisconsin's cranberry country. Only Massachusetts grows more cranberries than Wisconsin.

Massachusetts produced 1.1 million 100-pound barrels this year compared with Wisconsin's 600,000 barrels, including 600,000 from the Babcock area. Two years ago, Wisconsin was first with 1 million barrels.

Johnson left the building, walked through the receiving plant, stopped at a bin full of berries and popped one in his mouth. A visitor did, too, and found the red fruit a little sour.

"Well, tart, let's say," Johnson said. "Only growers and shippers eat them raw now and then, he said, quickly producing a cookbook with 275 recipes for everything from soups to desserts, and for every season, but mostly the holidays, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Nobody is sure who first got the idea cranberries go well with turkey. "Well, I suspect it goes back to the Pilgrims," said Donald Duckert, who with a brother, Wayne, operate Jacob Searles Inc., a cranberry farm in Cranmoor. "All the stories you hear go back to the Pilgrims."

The cranberry is a native American fruit and cranberry lore has it that the Pilgrims got the fruit from Indians.

In Massachusetts, the Indians called it "sassamanesh." Wisconsin Indians called it "atoqua."

Dutch and German settlers named the fruit "kraanbere" — literally crane berry — because its nodding pink blossoms look like the heads of cranes living in the bogs.

In Wisconsin, the berries grew wild in bogs formed by glaciers, but commercial production was well underway by 1869 when President Lincoln proclaimed a day to give thanks and remember the Pilgrims who settled the country and the Union troops who fought to save the nation.

Every fall, Wisconsin growers gather in Warrens, a small town near Tomah, for a cranberry festival. But if the state has a cranberry capital, it's Cranmoor, south of Wisconsin Rapids and west of the Wisconsin River.

"It'd have to be here," said Jim Peterson, the plant's field representative, as he drove through Cranmoor. "There must be a couple thousand acres here. There are only 7,000 in the entire state. Wood County has probably the largest concentration of cranberry acreage in the world."

Cranmoor is named for the fruit and its Scottish settlers, said Clarence Searles, town chairman and great-grandson of Andrew Searles, one of the area's original cranberry growers.

A Wisconsin variety known for its size and red color was named the Searles Jumbo after Andrew Searles. Searles and Jacob Searles were brothers, but Jacob's family spells the name Searles, said Duckert, Jacob's great grandson.

Only Duckert confessed he doesn't eat much of the fruit.

"We make a sauce that I think is pretty good in cranberry pie," Johnson said.

NBC To Air Story Of Survival

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The triumph of the human spirit and physical courage of Loren Elder, who survived an airplane crash and hiked down one of America's highest wilderness mountains, is being brought to television.

Two years ago Loren, then 29, was a passenger in a single-engine Cessna 182 when it plunged into the side of the Sierra Range just 15 feet below the summit. A woman companion died a few hours after the crash on a sunny, cloudless spring afternoon. The pilot perished during the night when temperatures plunged below freezing at an altitude of more than 12,000 feet.

Loren kept herself and, for a time, the pilot alive by igniting aviation fuel throughout the bitter night, spraying gasoline from a ruptured tank on rocks. Although suffering injuries, she haggled the rocks to the tail section of the plane and managed to jump off death.

Alone, Loren began the perilous descent across a sheer face of a cliff covered with ice and snow.

She was dressed casually in a skirt and fashionable boots and wore a baseball-type cap. The odds against her making her way to safety and civilization were overwhelming.

But Loren could look down into the Owens Valley below and see highways and small towns in the distance. Her flimsy garb, a bone-deep cut on her leg and a broken arm were major deterrents. She was deeply in shock.

The daughter of a former Navy fighter pilot, Loren knew little about survival in the wilderness, but she was determined to make her way to civilization.

Loren recounted her ordeal in a book, "And I Alone Survived," last April. It never became a best-seller, but the chronicle of her adventure is a fascinating study in courage and spirit.

There are touches of feminine modesty, too. She worried, in flashes of irrationality, that people farther down the mountain—there were none, of course—might look up her skirt (she wasn't wearing panties) as she perilously made her way down overhanging cliffs.

Time and again she came to all but impassable precipices. Sharp rocks shredded her boots. She hallucinated, imagining houses and farms and people. She walked, tumbled and struggled through boulder-strewn canyons, down dry stream beds and waterfalls. A turned ankle or broken leg would have caused her death.

One-Man Show Regarded As Bland, Unmemorable

By WILLIAM GLOVER
NEW YORK (AP)—Emlyn Williams is on an indulgent trip down a literary byway in his new one-man show, "The Playboy of the Weekend World."

The production, which opened recently at Broadway's Playhouse, was devised by Williams from the wayward stories of H.H. Munro, a fellow-Briton who wrote under the pen-name "Saki" in the early years of the 20th century.

With the material precisely memorized and elegantly declaimed, Williams strolls and lolls among wicker-work props in intended impersonation of the material's creator.

What worked well in previous, highly popular incarnations of Charles Dickens and Dylan Thomas is less successful, however, because Munro isn't well-known any longer and his pieces just aren't very interesting.

Munro wrote with levity and a mania for epigrams of dubious viability such as, "There's something to be said for vice—it does keep boys out of mischief."

The exercise has been directed by Peter Woodthorpe and lighted by Leo B. Meyer. It is being presented by Arthur Gantor and Greer Garson, who jointly brightened up the local theatrical scene with Alec McCowen's impressive rendition of St. Mark's Gospel.

"The Playboy of the Weekend World" in contrast is merely bland, precious and unmemorable.

ABC Chairman Criticizes Movie World

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Unless the movie industry shows aggressively to meet "the need for excellent visual entertainment," the gap will be filled by "other entities," according to the chairman of ABC, Inc.

Addressing the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, Leonard H. Goldenson criticized the movie industry recently for making too few films at too high a cost and for failing to exploit opportunities created by the advent of cable television, pay television and home video cassettes.

With top executives from Columbia, Disney, Paramount, Universal and Warner Bros. studios at the head table with him, Goldenson said the industry was "cheap and wasteful." The economics of motion picture production and financing have reached a point where it should not be too surprising if other entities began to consider entering the motion picture production business.

Goldenson did not say whom he meant by "other entities," but several members of his audience said later they were left with the impression he meant ABC, Inc. or through business interests.

"Motion pictures made by the principal producers have dropped by one-half and the number produced by all entities by more than one-third over the last five years," he said.

Stab Victims Found On LA Streets

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two men were stabbed in the torso today in the Skid Row area where nine transients have been knifed to death in the last month, authorities said.

Cowboys Snare Share Of Lead

DALLAS (AP)—The Dallas Cowboys will have to play their biggest game of the year Thanksgiving Day against the Washington Redskins without fullback Robert Newhouse, but they've added a storehouse of emotion thanks to a late hit on star running back Tony Dorsett.

New Orleans Saint cornerback Clarence Chapman snared Dallas' first period blitz with an out-of-bounds tackle on Dorsett Sunday near the Cowboy bench that brought a fourth of the Cowboy team down on him.

The emotion-charged Cowboys promptly overcame the 7-0 deficit and crushed the Saints 27-7 to set the stage for the National Conference Eastern Division showdown with the Redskins, who fell 27-17 to St. Louis.

Dallas did it without the stubby Newhouse, who Coach Tom Landry said played the best game of any running back in the 15-year history of the club last week. Newhouse fractured the fibula in his right leg and will be out at least two weeks.

"We'll miss Newhouse because he is a 100 percent guy," said Landry. "He's the steadiest player we've had all year. We'll go with Scott Laidlaw."

After Chapman's late tackle which cost him 15 yards and a punning from assorted Cowboy players, the Dallas defense put a clamp on Saint quarterback Archie Manning. And the offense exploded with Dorsett rushing 25 times for 152 yards to gain the 1,600-yard plateau for the second straight year at 1,020.

Dorsett wasn't involved in the fisticuffs. He said calmly "I walked away from it. I didn't want to be in a pileup and get hurt."

"It's a good feeling to know my teammates came to my aid. We are in this together. If someone is abusing one of my teammates I would be the first one over there to help."

The brawl served as an alarm clock for the team which now has been outscored 69-21 in the first quarter this year.

"If the offensive line knocks the hell out of people like they did today it makes my job easier," Dorsett theorized.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, who ran for a touchdown and passed for another, also took a swing at several Saint players after what he considered a late hit. Wide receiver Butch Johnson of the Cowboys was kicked out of the game for throwing the ball into an opponent's face mask.

"We are starting to play hard and tough," said Landry of his defending National Football League champions.

After Chuck Muncie scored on a one-yard run, Dallas linebacker Thomas Henderson and defensive tackle Larry Cole took the ball away on two big second period plays.

Henderson recovered a fumble that set up a two-yard touchdown run by Dorsett and Cole captured a fluttering Archie Manning pass after the Saint quarterback had been nailed by Harvey Martin. Staubach cashed this break on a one-yard quarterback sneak for a touchdown.

Redskins' Dorsett (middle) runs to right and Billy Joe Duane and Tony Stewart of 26 and 28 yards by Robert Newhouse completed the scoring.

Landry said of the impending Thanksgiving game: "We always know we would have to beat the Redskins to do anything. Whether they lost to St. Louis was really unimportant."

Henderson put it another way: "It will be the Cowboys and Indians on Thanksgiving, a real shootout. We've got them coming right where we want them... coming to our backyard (Texas Stadium)."

Oilers Host Miami In Key Tilt

HOUSTON (AP)—If the leading characters play out their roles, fans might think they're seeing a rerun of the race between the tortoise and the hare in the National Football League's Monday night special between Houston and Miami.

The Dolphins tend toward an early sprint, having outscored their opponents 81-17 in the first quarter en route to an 8-3 record in the American Football Conference's Eastern Division.

Houston meanwhile, likes to stretch and yawn and get comfortable in the first half and feel out the opposition.

The Oilers have parlayed that style into six come-from-behind victories in seven wins for a 7-4 record in the AFC Central Division. Outscored 88-36 in the second quarter, Houston has beaten its opponents 72-34 in the fourth quarter.

The race starts at 8 p.m. CST in the Astrodome before a sellout crowd and national television audience, with the loser possibly drawing a sideline seat for the playoffs.

The Dolphins' offense has been led by Delvin Williams, the AFC's leading rusher with 1,057 yards and has become even more deadly with the return of quarterback Bob Griese.

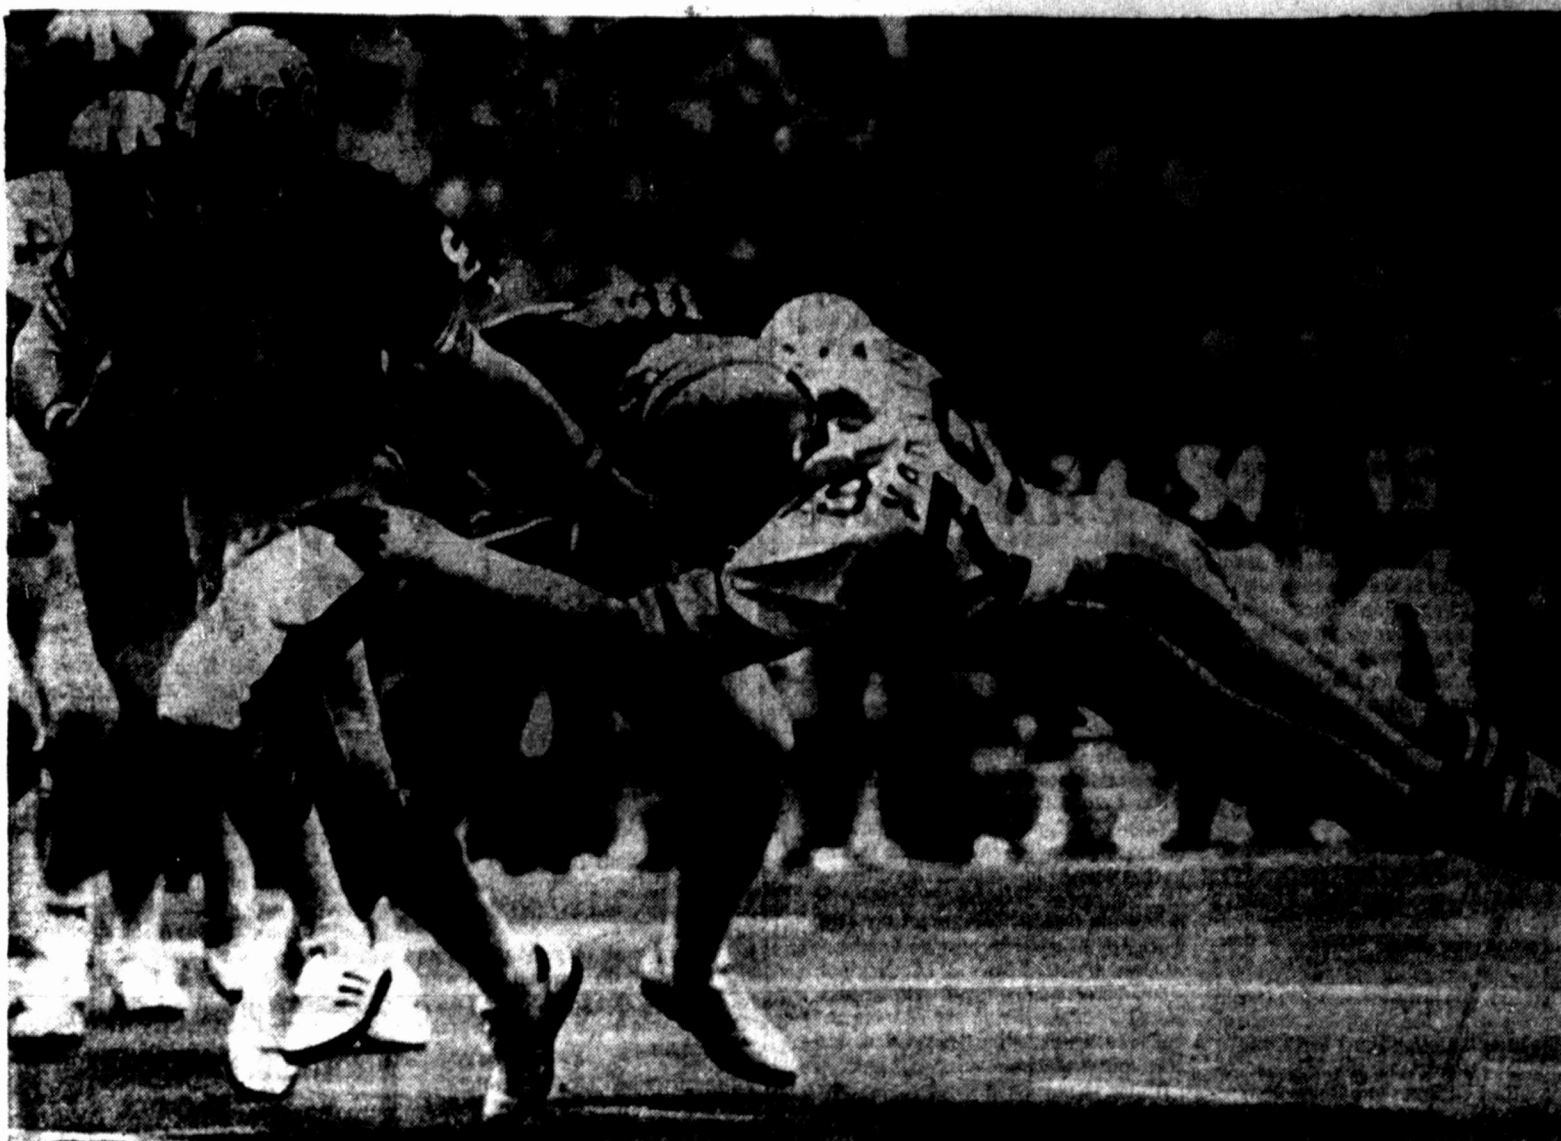

Williams and his forward wall of offensive linemen Bob Kuechenberg, Jim Langer and Larry Little will be facing one of their toughest assignments against the Oilers' 3-4 defense, which ranks No. 1 in the AFC in total defense and is fourth against the rush.

"The 3-4 defense is probably the toughest to run against, besides the flex, and Houston plays it tough," said Williams.

The Oilers counter on offense with quarterback Dan Pastorini, the master of the bomb, and rookie Earl Campbell, who ranks second to Williams among AFC rushers with 944 yards.

Oiler assistant coach Joe Bugel has knitted together a young offensive line that has proven adequate for Campbell's bulldozer-like runs. Center Carl Mauick is the veteran leader flanked by guards Ed Fisher and George Reibner and tackles Conway Hayman and Greg Sampson.

Pastorini's leadership helped the Oilers rally from a 23-0 deficit to beat New England last week. Pastorini told the defense at halftime: "Believe in us and hold and we'll come back." The Oilers came back to a 26-23 victory.

SCRAMBLING OUT OF TROUBLE — Eluding a leap by Dallas Cowboys end Harvey Martin (79), New Orleans' quarterback Archie Manning (8) scrambles for yardage in Sunday's game at Texas Stadium. Manning, unable to find an open receiver, gained 15 yards on the play. (AP Laserphoto)

Oilers, Nebraska To Tangle Again

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
 Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a little more than a week ago that Nebraska upended Oklahoma, and turned the post-season bowl picture into chaos, but it seems like only yesterday.

And on Jan. 2, it will again seem like only yesterday that Nebraska played Oklahoma because on New Year's night in the Orange Bowl, in one of the most unexpected developments of this or any other college football season, they'll do it once more with feeling — Nebraska vs. Oklahoma.

"The way things are going, who knows what will happen. A lot of things happened today that I didn't believe would happen," Coach Joe Paterno said Saturday after his No. 1-rated Penn State team canceled its reservations to Miami and accepted a bid to the Sugar Bowl.

Two weeks ago, Paterno and Penn State were No. 2 and hoping for a crack at Oklahoma, then the nation's No. 1 team, in the Orange Bowl. Nebraska took care of that pipe dream and last week, Paterno, the new No. 1, said he hoped to meet runnerup Nebraska in Miami.

But when invitation time rolled around Saturday, Nebraska had been beaten by Missouri's upset kings 35-31 and Penn State was pointed toward New Orleans — for sure — to meet third-ranked Alabama, maybe.

"I don't know about the bowls, it's an unusual situation," said Georgia Coach Vince Dooley, who helped make it such by going for a one-point conversion with 5:18 left to play and thereby settled for a 22-2 tie with Auburn when a victory would have put the eighth-ranked Bulldogs in the Sugar Bowl as the Southeastern Conference's representative.

Although several spots are still up in the air, there is only one real opening in the 15 major bowls — Louisiana Tech's opponent in the Independence Bowl. This is the lineup:

Sugar Bowl: Penn State vs. Alabama, if the Crimson Tide beats Auburn on Dec. 2, or Georgia if they don't; Orange Bowl: Nebraska vs. Oklahoma; Rose Bowl: Southern California vs. next week's Michigan-Ohio State winner; Cotton Bowl: Houston, if the Cougars beat either Texas Tech or Rice, vs. Notre Dame.

Gator Bowl: Clemson vs. the Michigan-Ohio State loser; Fiesta Bowl: Arkansas vs. UCLA; Liberty Bowl: Missouri vs. Louisiana State; Sun Bowl: Texas vs. Maryland; Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl: Stanford vs. Georgia or Alabama, although Bear Bryant says he wants to stay home if Bama doesn't beat Auburn.

Peach Bowl: Purdue vs. Georgia Tech; Tangerine Bowl: Pitt vs. North Carolina State; Hall of Fame Bowl: Iowa State vs. Texas A&M; Holiday Bowl: Brigham Young vs. Navy; Garden State Bowl: Rutgers vs. Arizona State; Independence Bowl: Louisiana Tech vs. ???.

Penn State, Alabama and sixth-ranked Houston had the weekend off. But fourth-ranked Oklahoma destroyed Oklahoma State 62-7 as Billy Sims rushed for 209 yards, scored four times and set a Big Eight single-season mark of 1,762 yards. The Sooners accumulated 692 yards in total offense, 629 of them on the ground.

James Wilder keyed Missouri's upset of Nebraska with a school-record four touchdowns on runs of 9, 1, 4 and 7 yards, the last with 3:42 remaining. That offset a 25-yard performance by Rick Berns, who set Nebraska game and career rushing records, scored twice and said he would "gladly trade everything I got today for one more touchdown."

Fifth-ranked Southern California nailed down the Pacific 10 crown and a trip to the Rose Bowl by defeating No. 15 UCLA 17-10. Paul McDonald threw touchdown passes of 36 yards to Calvin Sweeney and 10 to Kevin Williams while Charles White rushed for 145 yards and dethroned Anthony Davis as the league's career rushing king with 3,739 yards.

Rick Leach passed 11 yards to Ralph Clayton and 10 to Doug Marsh for touchdowns as seventh-ranked Michigan eliminated No. 15 Purdue from the Rose Bowl picture 24-6.

Georgia withstood an Auburn record 250-yard rushing effort by Joe Cribbs, including touchdown runs of 60 and 2 yards, but could do no better than tie when Dooley ordered a safety-first conversion kick following Willie McClenendon's second 1-yard touchdown plunge.

"I felt it was the right decision," Dooley said, "because we had time to hold them and kick a field goal. Looking back, it would have been better to go for two. It was the wrong decision and I apologized to the team for it."

No. 9-ranked Texas crushed TCU 41-0 as Johnnie Johnson returned an interception 47 yards and Russell Erkleben booted field goals of 41, 34 and 48 yards. Vagas Ferguson broke his own school record of 219 yards set two weeks earlier by galloping for 255 in 10th-ranked Notre Dame's 38-21 trouncing of No. 20 Georgia Tech.

Clemson No. 12, overtook No. 11 Maryland 28-24 on Lester Brown's 5-yard run in the final period and Ron Calcagni scored three times to lead No. 13 Arkansas over Texas A&M 26-7.

Michigan State, No. 16, piled up 601 yards in smashing Northwestern 52-3. The Spartans are on probation and ineligible for a bowl but can tie the Michigan-Ohio State winner for Big Ten honors by beating Iowa next week.

James Jones rushed for 162 yards and Dave Marler passed for two scores as Mississippi State upset No. 17 LSU 16-14. Jeff Delaney's 99-yard fumble return triggered No. 18 Pitt's 35-17 triumph over Army, and Ricky Johnson's 46-yard run sealed No. 19 Ohio State's 21-18 comeback behind victory over Indiana.

In other developments: Vanderbilt's Frank Mordica set a Southeastern Conference rushing record by galloping for 309 yards against Air Force. He scored five times on runs of 77, 69, 6, 30 and 48 yards against a team that surrendered a major college record of 356 yards one week earlier to Georgia Tech's Eddie Lee Ivory.

Ball State downed Northern Illinois 31-13 for the Mid-American Conference title while Dartmouth captured the Ivy League crown by defeating Princeton 28-21.

New Mexico's Mike Williams gained 81 yards in a 44-6 rout of Pacific and became the Western Athletic Conference's career rushing leader with 3,812. Arizona State's Woody Green held the old standard of 3,754.

Appalachian State trounced Western Carolina 39-13, preventing the Cata-mounts from winning the Southern Conference crown. And Arkansas State gained a share of the Southland Conference honors with Louisiana Tech by nipping Lamar 6-3.

 Cowboys Get Tough

EVER SINCE KNUTE Rockne or Pat O'Brien or Howard Cosell invented the forward pass, coaches have been warning their teams to play the schedule one game at a time. To look past an immediate foe toward a bigger game ranks as one of the cardinal sins in the coaching fraternity, along with admitting that your team ought to win by four touchdowns. The mere thought brings shudders to mentors all across the land.

But if the Dallas Cowboys weren't looking ahead to the big game against Washington, even while they were methodically reducing the New Orleans Saints to rubble Sunday afternoon at Texas Stadium, they deserve an Oscar for their act. The 'Pokes were relaxed and confident before, during and after the outing against the Saints, although they tried to hide their smiles from Coach Tom Landry — who has no sense of humor on game days.

Landry had warned his lads all week that a victory over the surprising New Orleans team was a must, with Dallas trailing the Redskins by a game and time fast running out in the regular schedule, but the Cowboys refused to be impressed. They felt like they could beat New Orleans any day of the week and twice on Sunday, if need be.

IT MIGHT HAVE developed into a pretty dull game, except that the Saints wanted to show that they had no halos. Like so many of Dallas' opponents this year, they seemed determined to get physical with the Super Bowl champs. Perhaps it was to prove their manhood or that they weren't afraid of the big bad wolf?

Unfortunately for the Saints, the Cowboys decided a couple of weeks ago at Miami that they were tired of being whacked around and turned a bit mean. Since then they have swapped block for block, tackle for tackle and left jab for left jab.

Teams that still think they can intimidate the 'Pokes are in for a rude surprise.

Wide receiver and kick-returner Butch Johnson retaliated for what he considered a cheap shot by the Saints and was booted out of the game by the zebras. Landry never approves of fisticuffs on the field, especially when it leads to disqualification of a valuable player, but Butch got a sympathetic reception from the squad when he trotted to the sideline.

Quarterback Roger Staubach came out of a pileup with fire in his eye and his right fist cocked, but cooler heads prevailed. That Saint may think twice before he riles the Dodger again, though, since Roger is a solid 205-pounder who lifts weights for fun and had hand-to-hand combat training at Annapolis.

Just ask Clint Longley!

THERE'S ALWAYS THAT dark lining on a silver cloud, it seems, and the victory over New Orleans was shadowed by the injury to fullback Robert Newhouse. The stumpy little runner is having his best year with the Cowboys, so his loss — even for a couple of weeks — is a serious blow.

Scott Laidlaw is a good, solid replacement for Newhouse, but he lacks the experience and explosiveness of "House." And behind Laidlaw, there is only Larry Britson, a second-year man who was cut in early September and then recalled after the injury to Doug Dennison.

With tight end Jay Saldi and Dennison already sidelined for the year, center John Fitzgerald plagued by a bad back and safety Cliff Harris risking serious injury by playing with a chronic neck ailment, the Cowboys soon may replace that star on their hats with a red cross!

PROBLEMS ASIDE, the Cowboys' duel with the Redskins Thanksgiving Day shapes up as a script writer's dream. Bitter rivals, deadlocked for the NFC East lead and heading down to the wire with a playoff berth riding on the outcome. Hollywood couldn't have done it better.

There truly is no love lost between the 'Pokes and the Redskins. When George Allen took over the Washington team, the first thing the master psychologist did was to turn a rather mild series with Dallas into a mini-war. Ol' George told the Redskins that the Cowboys were the glamour boys, the spoiled kids, of network television, and wouldn't it be nice to knock them off before the nation's sports fans?

Then Diron Talbert, the former University of Texas defensive ogre, got into the act. Some say Ol' Diron has hated the Cowboys ever since they failed to draft him. Others say Diron was born mean and then got worse.

But whatever, he criticized Landry's coaching decisions, ridiculed and threatened Staubach and made boasts that were designed to anger the Cowboys and their followers. Diron succeeded, very well.

Allen is gone now, but the tradition lives. His disciple, Jack Pardee, was picked up where George left off. It's still no-quarter combat.

But, as Landry says, that just makes it more interesting.

Tech Now Thinking About Tough UH

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

Saturday afternoon... Saturday night... Sunday morning... you can enjoy it, remember how great a win it was," remarked Rex Dockery.

"But, then you got to get ready for Houston."

It was Sunday afternoon when Dockery made the remark, or past that twilight zone of euphoria created by Saturday's 16-16 surprise over SMU. And, as he said, it was time to turn to the future.

And the future brings the Cotton Bowl-bound Houston Cougars, a team which kicked the Raiders 45-7 last year, which has lost but once this year and which is just one game away from a date with Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl.

"They just could be the best team in the country right now," said Dockery, a brown creeping over his face.

"Goooooood..."

Even though the Saturday afternoon-Saturday night-Sunday morning period was past, Dockery admitted he had checked the films which revealed that "Both teams played with great effort and intensity... Super effort on both sides."

Cage Action Set Tonight

With a holiday schedule breaking the week's routine, city high schools will be starting the basketball week early. And more than half a dozen games are on tap tonight.

Both Class AAA boys' teams will be in action for the first time, as Estacado heads for Palo Duro, and Dunbar travels to Morton for games.

Coronado boys, who nipped perennial power Midland Lee on a last-second shot in Midland last Thursday night, will host Abilene High in their home debut. It will be new coach Barry Armwine's first game to coach at home, also.

Abilene Cooper girls will visit Monterey, as the Plainswomen reach for a second winning season (they went to the state tournament last year).

One game in town matches city teams, as the Dunbar girls play at Lubbock High's gym.

A couple of games find girls' teams playing on opposite sites from the boys, as Palo Duro girls visit Estacado, and the Abilene High girls will entertain Coronado.

The usual Tuesday-Friday basketball format has been altered by the Thanksgiving break, so most teams will be playing tonight and Tuesday night and taking the rest of the week off.

SWC To Get Big Loot In Bowls

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Southwest Conference stands to make a handsome payday in postseason bowls if the Houston Cougars get into the Cotton Bowl.

Houston will become the Cotton Bowl host to Notre Dame in the annual Dallas New Year's Day Classic with a victory over Texas Tech in Lubbock this Saturday or over Rice the following week.

Four SWC teams could be expected to bring almost $2 million into league coffers.

The Cotton Bowl pays $1 million and the Fiesta Bowl which will pit Arkansas against UCLA has reached the point where it can divy $450,000 to each team.

The Hall of Fame Bowl which features Texas A&M against Iowa State Dec. 20 said it hoped to pay each team $250,000 and the Dec. 23rd Sun Bowl which has Texas meeting Maryland pays about the same.

Of course, Houston, Arkansas, Texas, and Texas A&M will have to divide with the rest of the conference after taking a cut for expenses.

The only SWC team with a winning percentage left out of the bowl gravy is Texas Tech. That should get the Red Raiders in the proper frame of mind for the Cougars who come calling Saturday in Lubbock.

Houston, idle last week, is 6-9 in league play. Texas, 5-1, has a longshot chance of still getting a Cotton Bowl berth. But it would take two defeats of the Cougars to propel the Longhorns into Dallas.

Tech outlasted Southern Methodist 19-16 Saturday to spoil any hopes of Mustang Mania going to a bowl game.

Chris Evert Nabs Crown

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Chris Evert, whose accomplishments cause most experts to stamp her as the greatest women's tennis player ever, responded modestly to her latest triumph.

"It helped me to see she just wasn't in a 100 percent mood to stay out there all day to win if that was necessary," said Miss Evert after her 6-3, 6-3 victory over Martina Navratilova in the title match of the $250,000 Series Championships. "I was ready to do that."

"I think Martina was No. 1 in the first half of the year and I was No. 1 in the second half. We'll just have to wait and see what happens as far as rankings are concerned."

Miss Evert lost to Miss Navratilova 2-6, 6-4, 7-5 in the finals at Wimbledon last July and relinquished the top spot in the computerized women's tennis rankings for the first time in four years to the 22-year-old Czech expatriot now living in Dallas.

But Miss Evert won her fourth straight U.S. Open championship in September and may have regained the No. 1 spot Saturday by methodically demolishing Miss Navratilova in a 70-minute match. The victory was worth a record $75,000 as well as a new automobile.

"She's a great player and a good friend," said Miss Evert of her opponent in the richest-ever women's tennis tournament. "I could see that she wasn't in a winning mood."

Rice shocked Baylor 24-10 Saturday. Texas flogged Texas Christian 41-0 and Arkansas mauled Texas A&M 26-7, giving Aggie Coach Tom Wilson his first loss.

Texas Coach Fred Akers refused to forget the Cotton Bowl, saying "We are pleased to be going to the Sun Bowl, if we don't get the Cotton Bowl bid. You never know what can happen."

Houston Athletic Director Harry Fouke said "If we can't win one out of the next two we don't deserve to go to a bowl."

Notre Dame and Houston have never met on the football field.

The Fighting Irish knocked Texas out of the national championship in the Cotton Bowl last year. It will be their fourth appearance in the classic.

It would be the first Sun Bowl appearance for Maryland and Texas.

The Fiesta Bowl has taken on added glitter because of its prime time Christmas Day television package. Arkansas meets UCLA.

The game attracted 33 million television viewers last year — the fourth highest of any bowl. The stadium in Phoenix, Ariz. seats 70,000.

The Hall of Fame Bowl in Birmingham drew 43,000 fans last year. Bowl officials are hoping for a crowd of 60,000. Mizlou Television Network will broadcast the game.

The Sun Bowl will have a nationally televised 11:30 a.m. CST kickoff with a sell-out crowd of 30,000 plus almost assured.

Penn State's Fusina Fulfills Criteria For Heisman Trophy

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — It's growing close to "Emmy" time in college football and everybody is wondering what strapping young athlete is going to be crowned as the best of the 1978 crop.

There's a 25-pound hunk of stately bronze sitting in the corner at the Downtown Athletic Club — a 13 1/2-inch figure of a ball carrier in the overly padded attire of the 1930s — waiting for the 44th winner of the coveted Heisman Trophy.

Selection date is Nov. 29. Drooling pro scouts are waiting with checkbooks poised.

"Who will cradle the Heisman in his arms this year?"

It's not so much a question of who will as who won't. There are 139 colleges playing in the NCAA's I-A division, from which the Heisman honoree is normally gleaned. With an average of 60 players on a squad (that's a modest estimate since some squads run as high as 90), that makes a total of 8,340 eligible for consideration.

Right? Wrong.

Seven-eighths of these 8,340 are interior linemen, blocking backs or specialty team members. They are automatically erased. You can be the biggest, toughest, greatest defensive player or offensive lineman in the world and be totally ignored. It's not fashionable to consider these types for the Heisman.

So subtract 7,000.

You may be one of the most skillful individual performers in the country but your team is not in the Top Ten. You don't get a call.

Subtract another 1,000.

Your team has a winning record but didn't appear on national television. Take away a few hundred more. Now you are down to the herd core.

The 1978 Heisman Trophy winner will be a backfield performer, runner or passer, who not only played on a successful team but on a team that shone in the television limelight at least once and maybe as many as two or three times, got a tremendous buildup from his college publicity office and kept his name in the headlines.

Who, in this season of no cinch stand-out of the O.J. Simpson ilk, best conforms to these specifications?

Probably Chuck Fusina of Penn State. Penn State is No. 1 in the latest rankings, unbeaten in 18 games, with a week off to prepare for its final game against Pittsburgh. Fusina, a 6-foot-1, 199-pound ball-hawking Houdini out of little McKees Rock, Pa., is the ignition that sparks the engine and the fuel that fans the fire.

"If I had my pick of great players to build a football team, I would start with Chuck Fusina," says Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, who doesn't spill such praise promiscuously.

Fusina has erased all of the offensive records at Penn State, throwing for more than 5,000 yards and 37 touchdowns, but, according to Paterno, has exercised his greatest value in the intangible realm of leadership.

Fusina's chief rival in the Heisman voting is Oklahoma's excellent ball-carrier, Billy Sims, who up to Saturday's game had run for an average of 155 yards a game and 16 touchdowns this year.

Others high on the candidate list include Rick Leach, Michigan's all-time offensive leader; Charles White, a Southern Cal speedster in the O.J. Simpson tradition; running backs Ted Brown of North Carolina State and Charles Alexander of Louisiana State, and quarterbacks Jack Thompson of Washington State and Jeff Rutledge of Alabama.

Forget Brown and Thompson. Their teams' records aren't flashy enough. Alexander's lustre dimmed when he picked up only 46 yards against Alabama on television.

Fort Stockton Cautious Of Mats

By BOB RAJACKSON
Avalanche Journal Sports Staff

Since the playoff schedule for AAA high schools was discussed in Sunday morning's paper, this is just a reminder that 1-AAA champion Estacado will battle 2-AAA title winner Fort Stockton Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Midland, while 3-AAA victor Snyder will meet 4-AAA winner Burk Burnett Friday at 8 p.m. in Snyder.

Estacado did not qualify for the playoffs until last week. The Matadors defeated the Canyon Eagles 18-6.

"I don't want to talk about Fort Stockton right now," said Estacado Coach Louis Kelley. "Right now, we just want to enjoy this victory (the Eagle win) for a while."

But Fort Stockton Coach John Blocker, whose Panthers qualified for the playoffs two weeks ago and watched Estacado battle Canyon Friday, had some observations about the Matadors.

"Without question, Estacado will be the best team we've faced so far this season," Blocker said.

What impressed the Panther coach the most was the Matadors' overall team speed and defense.

"They have a lot of team speed," Blocker said. "They have too many people to name that can run."

In regard to the Estacado's defense, Blocker said, "like our defense, Estacado's has played all year."

And speaking about controlling the line of scrimmage, the Fort Stockton defense has only allowed 13 points the entire season. That came two weeks ago when Andrews put 13 points on the board.

will be playing Burk Burnett on their home field.

"There really wasn't a neutral site between us and Burk Burnett," Jenkins said. "So, we've played them in baseball a couple of times and played home and home."

How much on an advantage will the home field be?

"Well, it's a four-hour ride from Burk Burnett to Snyder," Jenkins said. "And with the home crowd, yes, I think it's to our advantage."

But one area Snyder won't have the advantage in is size.

"They're big," Jenkins said. "We expect Burk Burnett to run a power offense against us."

So, Burk Burnett won't throw the football?

"They're capable of throwing," Jenkins said. "But mostly they just like to power the ball past you."

Definitely, Jenkins doesn't expect Burk Burnett to win?

"They have some linemen that weigh 250 pounds each," Jenkins said. "They play defense pretty well. Burk Burnett just likes to wear you down."

Snyder won the district title with an 8-2 overall record and an undefeated 4-0 district mark. Last week, the Tigers blanked Burk Burnett 18-0.

Knowledge of it?

"I really didn't think we'd be playing Burk Burnett," Jenkins said. "This does mean that we're in the playoffs at the right time."

"If last week was any indication of the way we'll play in the playoffs, yes," Jenkins said.

Bowls Bring Big Profits

ATLANTA (AP) — Bowl fever has descended on the Southeast once again. While prestige is the major reason teams want to play in one of the televised extravaganzas, there is another motivation as well.

There is a lot of money involved in bowl games, both for the teams that participate and the host cities.

Sometimes, teams come away from bowl games with a profit. But not always.

"Our feeling is that we think you should not lose money," said Joel Eaves, athletic director at the University of Georgia. "But three times out of the 10 we've been in bowls, we have not come out even."

The main thing about bowl games is do your players want to go," he said.

Eaves said Georgia usually takes between 500 and 600 persons to a bowl game. Whether they make a profit, break even or lose money depends on the bowl.

This year's Orange Bowl in Miami, for instance, will gross just under $3 million, with each school getting approximately $1 million, said Ed Cox, an Orange Bowl spokesman.

On the other hand, the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, Fla. and the Hall of Fame Classic Bowl in Birmingham expect to pay each team in the neighborhood of $200,000.

Other bowls fall somewhere in between. The Liberty Bowl in Memphis, Tenn., is expected to pay each team about $250,000. And the Peach Bowl in Atlanta, which is being televised nationally this year, expects a take of between $200,000 and $300,000 for each team.

The Orange and the Sugar Bowls in New Orleans are the most lucrative bowl games in the Southeast. Participants in the Sugar Bowl can expect between $650,000 and $1 million apiece to cover expenses and to share with other conference members.

Because bowl money is shared among conference teams, all members benefit from the success of their colleagues.

Last-Second Miracles Spice Action In NFL

By HAL DOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The great equalizer for all National Football League teams is the game clock. It is emotionless and uncompromising, a friend one moment, an enemy the next.

It often spells the difference between victory and defeat and in four games Sunday, the outcome rested on its steady tick-tock as the seconds ebbed away.

For the New York Giants, the clock seemed to be tolling victory as they ran it out, protecting a 17-13 lead over Philadelphia. Suddenly, with just 20 ticks left, Joe Pisarcik fumbled and Herman Edwards scooped the ball up and ran 26 yards for Philadelphia's winning touchdown in a 19-17 victory.

The New York Jets had raced the clock as they rushed downfield in the final two minutes, positioning the ball for a Pat Leahy field goal that could have turned their game against New England. With 31 seconds left, Leahy lined up for a 33-yard kick. But it hooked wide left, saving the Patriots' 19-17 victory.

For the Kansas City Chiefs, the clock wasn't as vital as the position of the ball. There were just 15 seconds left when KC, trailing 13-10 against Seattle, lined up at the 1-yard line. Only a miracle could save the Seahawks, it seemed. A miracle of a fumble. Tony Green supplied the latter and the Chiefs came up losers again.

In San Francisco, the 49ers played their best game of the season and with two seconds left to play, they were tied with powerful Los Angeles. Overtime loomed, but then Frank Corral delivered a 24-yard field goal that sealed a 31-28 Rams victory.

Elsewhere, St. Louis defeated Washington 27-17, dropping the Redskins into a first place tie in the NFC East with Dallas, which dined New Orleans 27-7. San Diego topped Minnesota 13-7, but the Vikings remained tied for the NFC Central lead with Green Bay, which bowed to Denver 16-3. The Broncos' victory kept them in a first place deadlock with Oakland in the AFC West as the Raiders whipped Detroit 29-17.

In other games, which was Tampa Bay 31, Buffalo 10; Chicago 13, Atlanta 7; Cleveland 45, Baltimore 24; and Pittsburgh 7, Cincinnati 6.

Miami plays at Houston tonight, completing the season's 12th week. Eagles 19, Giants 17.

New York thought it had this one in the bag when Odis McKinney's interception halted a final Philadelphia drive with 1:23 to play. But then Pisarcik's turnover on a handoff that would have killed the clock reversed the outcome. "I've been in this game 25 years and that's the most horrifying end to a game I've ever seen," said distraught Giants Coach John McVay.

Patriots 19, Jets 17

David Posey's 34-yard field goal with 2:30 to play gave New England the lead against New York. Then the Jets roared downfield, racing the clock, hoping for a winning field goal. When Leahy missed, he fell to his hands and knees in anger. "It was close but not through," he said. "I don't know what to say. I missed it." Jets quarterback Richard Todd, returning to action after missing seven games with a fracture collarbone, was re-injured, suffering a cracked collarbone which will keep him out for the rest of the year.

Seahawks 13, Chiefs 10

Kansas City Coach Marv Levy defended the wide pitch play which freed fumbled at the Seattle goal line, sealing the Seahawks' victory. "There was no debate at all about what we were going to do," said Levy. "You're on the 1, you ought to score from the 1." When Green didn't, it meant that two Elren Herrera field goals of 30 and 18 yards were decisive for Seattle.

Rams 31, 49ers 28

Pat Haden softened San Francisco up with three straight passes to Ron Jesse which chewed up 41 yards and set up Corral's winning field goal. The 49ers had tied the score in the final period on an 89-yard kickoff return by Dave Williams and Paul Hoyer's third TD run of the game. Hoyer, replacing injured O.J. Simpson, rushed for 103 yards.

Cards 27, Redskins 17

St. Louis scored its fourth straight victory after losing its first eight games. Jim Hart flipped two TD passes and Willard Harrell returned a punt 70 yards for another score. Hart, for one, thought the result was no great upset. "We've shown more improvement since early in the season than Washington has," the veteran quarterback said. "We're on the spawning."

Raiders 29, Lions 17

Mark van Eggen scored three TDs, two on 1-yard runs and the third on a fumble recovery in the end zone, as Oakland hung onto its share of the AFC West lead. Van Eggen rushed for 98 yards in the game and scored the go-ahead TD when he fell on wide receiver Cliff Branch's fumble in the end zone.

Broncos 16, Packers 3

Denver kept pace with Oakland by beating Green Bay. Ron Lytle rushed for 110 yards and one TD and Craig Morton's 14-yard pitch to Haven Moses supplied the other touchdown for the Broncos.

Chargers 13, Vikings 7

Dan Fouts' 16-yard TD pass to rookie John Jefferson proved decisive as San Diego ended Minnesota's four-game winning streak. Fouts stumbled as he took the snap on the scoring play. "I figured if I could get up without trouble we could still salvage something," said Fouts. And he did, pulling out the TD and the victory with it.

Steelers 7, Bengals 6

Rocky Bleier scored the game's lone TD on a 1-yard plunge as Pittsburgh survived four interceptions to edge Cincinnati. The Bengals, 1-11 for the year, allowed the Steelers only 154 net yards but could not overcome Bleier's TD.

Browns 45, Colts 24

Brian Sipe passed for 309 yards and four touchdowns, three of them to Calvin Hill, as Cleveland routed Baltimore, which played without the injured Bert Jones. Robert Irsay, owner of the Colts, said he would dismiss all of his team's assistant coaches at the end of the season, retaining only head Coach Ted Marchbroda.

Bears 13, Falcons 7

Bruce Herron blocked an Atlanta punt, setting up Walter Payton's 2-yard TD run and helping Chicago end its eight-game losing streak. "It hit me in the face mask and the chest," said Herron. "If it hit me a thousand times, I'd love it. If it hit me a thousand times in the face, I'd still love it."

Spot In Playoffs To Hinder EHS

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The question seemed to grab Estacado Coach J.J. Woods by surprise. What is the outlook of the Matadors this season?

But to Woods, it was a pipe-packing head-shaking beginning.

"Gosh, I really don't know what to say," Woods said, smiling. "We're definitely going to be in an unique situation until football season ends."

Estacado's unique situation is that Wood's starting lineup are all playing football. Thus, if the Matadors are successful in the football playoffs, the Estacado basketball coach may not get his starters until the middle of December.

"There really isn't any problem," Woods said. "Because we'll have mostly a senior team. Our kids are used to the system and should be able to step in right away."

And in the meantime ...?

"We'll move our junior varsity up," Woods said while scratching his head. "And then our ninth grade team will play the junior varsity schedule."

Last year, Estacado finished the season with a 25-5 record. The Matadors sported a 10-3 district 3-AAA mark.

"I still have nightmares about the district season," Woods said. "You might say it was an enjoyable year with a disappointing ending."

The enjoyable part was that Estacado won the first half of district championship. Dunbar took the second half crown forcing a playoff between the two teams for the loop title.

Oh, can Woods remember the playoff vividly ...?

"We were ahead by 12 points," recalled the Matador basketball coach. "But in the second half, we got into foul trouble and Dunbar began closing the gap."

Then as Woods pictured the final minute of regular time the enthusiasm in his voice began to build.

"Winston Gipson seemed to break free on a runaway," Woods continued. "But when he began to drive from the left side towards the hoop, one of Dunbar's players ran into him. The official just missed the call. In all honesty, he just missed it."

Anyway, the moral of the story is that Dunbar was able to tie the score and finally win the district crown in overtime.

However, that was last year, and Woods knows how to change his nightmares into dreams — win the 1-AAA championship.

The Matadors will set out on the trail to do just that tonight against Palo Duro in Amarillo. Tipoff is slated for 8 p.m.

"Again, I just don't know who we'll put on the floor for that game," Woods said. "In fact, we won't have a set lineup until football season is over."

Once the grid season ends, Woods will put Preston Davis and Willis Flowers at the guard positions, with Mike Chatham, Fred Dunn or Winston Gipson at the forwards and Dewey Turner at the post.

What are Woods' thoughts on participating in a new district?

"It's going to be a learning experience for us as well as the rest of the teams in the district," Woods said. "Since, we've been a member of 3-AAA until now, you sort of get to know what the other coaches would do in particular situations. Now, it's going to take a while before we can fall into that pattern again."

Woods admits that until his starters return, he'll be a little conservative with his coaching strategy. What does that mean?

"Well, we might not be as aggressive on the floor," Woods said. "Simply because we don't have the depth in case some of our players get into foul trouble."

When the Matadors are at full strength, Woods will have his team fast-breaking when the play is available. Otherwise, Estacado will try and work for the good shot.

On defense, the Matadors will use a combination of defensive sets.

"We'll mix it up between man-to-man and some zone," said the Estacado coach. "We'll use a little more zone than man. We like a 2-3 zone."

Dunbar Facing Another Rebuilding Year

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

According to the Dunbar Coach Joe McWilliams, this will be the year that he laughs a little harder at an opposing coach's jokes.

"I know that I say it every year," said McWilliams. "But this is going to be a rebuilding year for us. We lost several players to graduation. So, I'm going to go out of my way to be friendly to our opponents."

The first opponent McWilliams will be nice to is Morton. The Panthers will open the season on the road tonight at 8 p.m.

Last year, the Panthers finished with a 27-5 and 11-1 district records. Looking down the roster, McWilliams has a reason to be concerned.

Three of five Panthers starters tonight will be playing varsity ball for the first time. The players making their varsity debuts include Stanley Whitfield, 6-3, Jr., post; LeRoy Rivers, 5-9, Jr., guard; and James Nelson, 5-9, junior guard. The other two players McWilliams will put on the floor are Thomas Braxton, 6-3, Sr. forward, and Todd Knight, 6-1, Sr. post.

"I think the key to our success last year was that we had most of the kids in the gym that started for us," said McWilliams. "This year, a lot of our starters are in football, and it will take them a while to get some basketball conditioning."

In particular, McWilliams is referring to Wayne Williams, 5-8, Sr. guard; Michael Baldwin, 5-2, Sr. guard; and Raphael Scott, 6-4, Sr. forward.

Will having a 1-9 football record have an affect on the basketball program?

"All I can say is that it is important that we have some success early," said McWilliams. "Because if we don't, then the morale of the team can become very low."

To prove that the Panthers are in dire need of bodies, the Dunbar coach plans to have the kids who are just coming out of football suited up for the season cage opener tonight.

"I don't know if they'll play," said McWilliams. "We need the depth. They'll be suited up anyway."

Though Dunbar will be putting basically a young team on the floor, McWilliams doesn't plan to change his offensive or defensive strategy.

"We're going to run on offense," said McWilliams. "We really don't have the size to let the opponent get back and set up."

McWilliams said he will set the Panthers in a man-to-man defense.

"I like the man-to-man because if someone on the opposition is scoring, I want to find out the reason in a hurry," said McWilliams.

Last year, the Panthers won the 3-AAA district title by defeating the Estacado Matadors in a playoff game after tying the Matadors for the 3-AAA championship. Monahan, however, defeated Dunbar in bi-district action 80-79.

"Last year, we had a big club," recalled McWilliams. "This year, we don't have anybody with good size."

However, this season the Panthers will compete in 1-AAA. And McWilliams admits it will be a learning experience for him.

"I think it's going to be a disadvantage for us," said McWilliams. "We're going to have to do a lot more scouting. In 3-AAA, I knew what a team was like and what a coach would do in a particular situation. But now, the only thing I can tell you about an opponent is if they've got size by looking at a roster."

Thus, while McWilliams is trying to learn the strategies of the different coaches in 1-AAA, Dunbar will play a little conservatively.

"Really, the opponent will dictate what we'll do," said McWilliams.

Now, before you begin to feel sorry for McWilliams and the Panthers remember, Dunbar's basketball outlook every season is bleak. And all they did last year was qualify for the playoffs.

Bosox Begin Talks With Jim Rice

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox have begun contract negotiations with Jim Rice, the American League's most valuable player, his agent says.

Tony Pennacchia, a Providence, R.I., attorney who represents Rice, said Saturday he had met for three hours with Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan.

He declined to discuss what was said but added: "I don't think it's anything that's going to be solved quickly because Jim is young and the best player in the game today. It will be complicated."

Rice, 25, who led the major leagues with 46 homers, 139 runs batted in and 406 total bases, has one year left on a multiyear contract and reportedly is seeking a 10-year, $5 million contract.

OSU Boss May Quit Or Be Released

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State head football Coach Jim Stanley will either resign or be fired within the next two weeks, according to a story in Monday's editions of the Tulsa World.

The newspaper quoted what it termed reliable sources.

Stanley has two years left on his contract, but there has been repeated widespread speculation about how long he will remain at OSU.

The Tulsa World story quotes Oklahoma State Athletic Director Richard Young as saying charges contained in a Big Eight report of an alleged football slush fund at OSU are serious.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Resurgent Dollar Aids Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — Drawing strength from the improving dollar, the stock market advanced across a broad front in moderate trading today.

There were more than three times as many gaining issues as losers by midday on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume came to 10.11 million shares in the first two hours of trading, compared with 10.6 million in the same period Friday.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 7.62 points to 804.75 and the NYSE composite index of all listed stocks gained 44 to 52.98.

Analysts said the dollar's continued recovery against major world currencies appeared to have helped buoyed the market.

Some analysts said foreign investors were more active in the stock market today because of that.

In addition, higher interest rates announced last week and a weekend statement by Saudi Arabia that it would seek to freeze oil prices at the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting next month were cited as favorable developments.

"They are all seen as fairly good. I think the fear of a recession has been pretty much discounted by the market," said Alan C. Poole, an analyst at Laidlaw Adams & Peck Inc.

Oil issues were generally higher. Gulf Oil, up 1/4 to 25 1/2, topped the noon NYSE most active list.

Exxon, up 1/4 to 50 1/4, and Texaco, up 1/4 to 24 1/4, were the next most active issues.

Among other actively traded issues, Eastman Kodak rose 1/4 to 59 1/4; Pogo Products gained 1/4 to 11 1/4 and Memorex jumped 1/4 to 31 1/4.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 1.42 to 144.80.

MINE EXPLOSION — This was the scene 30 years ago today at Consolidated Coal Company's Farmington No. 9 mine in Farmington, W. Va. Larry Fries, a miner, is shown with a group of men who were present at the time of the explosion that rocked the mine, killing 78 workers. (AP Wirephoto)

Residents Think About Disaster

By MARTHA BRYSON HODEL, CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — At 5:40 a.m. on Nov. 20, 1968, the tiny community of Farmington, W. Va., exploded into the nation's headlines.

Ten years later, the headlines have faded. But the memories of that gray, smoky Wednesday remain fresh for those whose lives were entwined with the 90 miners working the graveyard shift at the Llewellyn portal of Consolidated Coal Co.'s No. 9 mine.

A ferocious explosion in No. 9 killed 78 of those miners. As in many small West Virginia towns, the Farmington mine was an intrinsic part of every resident's life.

The destruction of the lamp house, where miners check in at the start of a shift, made it difficult at first for mine officials to determine how many miners were inside.

Ultimately, only 21 of the miners escaped. Thirteen were able to walk or ride out of the mine fairly quickly. Within four hours, eight others were scooped out of a ventilation shaft, two by two, in a bucket on the end of a crane.

"I helped load them into ambulances," Charles Priestner Jr. said shortly afterward. "They were sick and vomiting, and two of them were bleeding from the eyes. The concussion from a blast down in the mines does that to you."

For days, union, company, state and federal safety officials struggled to find a way to extinguish the inferno, but all attempts were thwarted by the devastating power of the continuing explosions.

A half-inch steel plate, anchored by two steel beams, was placed over the shaft in an attempt to smother the fire.

Finally, nine days, 12 hours and 51 minutes after the initial, shattering blast, the mine was sealed — and with it the deaths of the 78 men still underground.

Authorities at Consolidated vowed the bodies of the 78 would be recovered. Nearly a year later, it was deemed safe to break the seals on the mine and recovery efforts began on Sept. 11, 1969. It was thought all bodies would be found within four miles out of town. The men were not hurt.

Department of Public Safety officer O.W. Lane said the two women were returning from work in a compact car being driven by Mrs. Balew. Their husbands, Michael Balew and Timothy Pearce, were coming from the opposite direction on the same road in a pickup driven by Balew.

Lane said the two men had planned to meet their wives on the road and tell them they were going hunting.

But when the drivers came in view of each other on the rural road, Lane said, they recognized each other and both swerved into the opposite lane apparently in a playful attempt scare the other.

Both drivers then swerved back to the appropriate side of the road, but Lane said Mrs. Balew apparently swung her car too far to the right, and in compensating for the error, lost control of the car, which lurching into the path of the pickup truck being driven by her husband.

"It started out playful like a joke, but nobody laughed," Lane said.

Freak Accident Kills Women

KIRBYVILLE (AP) — State police say a traffic accident in which two women were killed when their car collided head-on with a vehicle carrying their husbands may have been the result of a playful "joke" that backfired.

The accident occurred Saturday afternoon three miles east of this Southeast Texas town on FM 363. The women killed were identified as Denise Balew, 25, and Cheryl Pearce, 21, both of Call, a small community located about four miles out of town. The men were not hurt.

LELLEM WELCH KEEPS 'MR. WINTER' OUTSIDE

Lellem Welch Firm Tells Precautions, Products That Can Save On Heat Cost

"The heating season is upon us, along with those expensive heating bills!" So... now is a good time to try and reduce some of those costs and maybe even some of the dangers of the heating season.

This is the very practical word from Lellem Welch, Inc., 1401 Ave. J, phone 762-8797, in Lubbock.

"Most people actually don't pay much attention to the appliances used for home heating, but with the cost of energy going up for both gas and electricity, we need to begin to attempt reduction of heating costs in the home. Right?"

Filters Important
Therefore, clean filters are a "must" for efficient heating operation. Dirty filters eat up energy by making the furnace motor run longer and harder (because less air is pulled over the heat exchanger and a burned up motor is expensive to replace. Setting the thermostat lower also helps.

Humidifiers Advised
The addition of a humidifier will help, too, making lower room temperatures more pleasant.

For health, comfort and protection it is an April Air humidifier!

"Properly humidified air can help to repel upper respiratory ailments aggravated by too-dry air. In many cases, where excessive dryness has been diagnosed as the cause of those aggravations, doctors have prescribed humidification. Ask your doctor for his recommendations."

"For comfort, it is pointed out that if the humidity level in the home is too low, you may feel cold, even at 75-degree temperature setting. Proper humidification reduces the rate of evaporation from the skin and makes the room feel warmer. Those annoying wintertime static electricity shocks are reduced, too. Use the April Air humidifier."

"For protection, April Air humidifiers provide the answer. Dry, heated air draws moisture from everything in the home — woodwork, furnishings, books, the piano or organ. It can cause walls and ceilings to crack and make fabrics and carpeting wear out too fast. Proper humidification provides the protection that's needed."

Air Cleaners
Also, with the addition of a Space Gard air cleaner, you can have a cleaner home and also remove up to 99 per cent of pollens and spores, the Lellem Welch firm emphasizes.

"If you don't have a damper, our stock of covers is still good with most sizes available."

Heat Tapes
In trailer homes and those places that have water lines that freeze, heat tapes with insulation for covering can save a lot of grief from frozen and burst water lines. Wrap-on heat tapes and insulation are available here, in tape length from three to 100 ft. and insulation that is 3-inch and 6-inch wide.

"And as always for the do-it-yourself bargain hunter who doesn't mind a few dents, bumps and scratches, we seem to have more than our share of this merchandise. Our loss is your gain. All damaged merchandise is reduced according to amount of damage."

"Mr. Winter is here, and we at Lellem Welch, Inc., 1401 Ave. J, are here to help keep him outside the door!"

OILS BY LORENE RAINES — The pictured roses and floral will be subjects for painting in a special three-day workshop beginning Nov. 30 at Village Craft Corner. Details of this and other announcements are in the accompanying story.

Business & Industrial Review

CONSIDERATION OF CUSTOMERS OF EVERY AGE — Hershel Pigg and Jonnie Mixon (pictured) are among those at Pigg Bros. Shamrock Jewelry dedicated to serving Christmas gift needs in a manner sure to ease the holiday search for quality, price and selection.

Pigg Bros. Shamrock Jewelry Gift Stock Reflecting Holiday Readiness

"Why delay in Christmas gift selection when complete choices already are available at Pigg Bros. Shamrock Jewelry, 2147 50th St.?"

The gift items there reflect the firm's traditional consideration for every age group.

"If you have someone very special in mind for a very special Christmas gift, it is high time to visit Pigg Bros. Shamrock Jewelry in Oakwood Center."

For watches, rings, diamonds, pins, neck chains, bracelets and more... all in a sensible quality-price combination, one cannot go wrong at this well-known and long-respected jewelry firm.

Figurines
 Unusual, beautiful Gorham porcelain figurines (drummer boy, birds, etc.) with finest workmanship, are available at modest prices.

Crystal
 And now there is beautiful crystal pieces, "the best" from West Germany and Bavaria.

A large selection of rings is maintained, including diamond rings, engagement rings, birthstone rings, diamond guard rings, mountings, etc.

The gift choices at Pigg Bros. Shamrock Jewelry are truly numerous and delightful.

And musical jewel boxes in a variety of prices.

"If you are shopping on a planned and limited budget for that extra special gift on the list, a man's or lady's fine watch from Pigg Bros. might well be just the thing.

Digital Watches
 There you'll find the so-popular quality digital watches, the prestigious Accutron, and more.

And remember this: gift items are not limited to adult appeal, or to timepieces for that matter, at Pigg Bros.

There is something in stock for every member of the family, for any possible recipient of any age.

There are scads of baby gifts, costume jewelry items, beautiful lockets, pens, pencils and lighters, Franciscan ware, and more!

"The smart and easy thing to do then, would seem to be to go right this week to Pigg Bros. Shamrock Jewelry, 2147-B 50th St., and make a selection from the full but selective stock, with new items and patterns quite evident."

Eves Engraving
 "Have the gift engraved, if wished, and be assured your Christmas gift situation has been most satisfactorily solved."

This south Lubbock store has an established reputation for offering only quality merchandise, and highest quality workmanship in watchmaking and jewelry repair. The present season is no exception.

No gimmicks... no so-called cut-rate prices on inferior merchandise... Pigg Bros. Shamrock Jewelry simply wants your business the next time, too, and they go all out to make one completely satisfied "the very first time you come in to the store."

"Why wait... shop now at Pigg Bros. Shamrock Jewelry, in Oakwood Center, and know that your Christmas selection has been 'right,' thoughtfully chosen, and at a price that won't frighten you!"

Fair Features Daily Specials

Day or night, the Fair Restaurant at Avenue A and 8th Street is open to offer all its services.

As a locally-owned and locally-managed Martin & Lewis restaurant, every effort is made to serve in a manner inviting repeat visits, time and again!

Breakfast specials include biscuits and gravy, with coffee, for just $1.10, and another special of two eggs, hash browns, toast and coffee for $1.15!

Delicious new luncheon specials are presented every day at an economical $1.90, and the fast "in and out" service makes it really easy for the working person to eat at the Fair and be back on the job on time.

On Wednesdays, the Fair Restaurant features "all the chicken you can eat" for $2.60; with fish on Fridays at the same $2.60 price, and these specials good from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. on the indicated days.

Optical Store & Boutique, On Slide, Tells Price, Quality, Style For All

"Many of you already have discovered to your pleasure that 'our boutique is unique!'"

"But did you know, too, that The Optical Store & Boutique, 5202 Slide Road, also stocks the complete spectrum in frames, including a utility selection combining style with surprisingly low price?"

Yes, quality lines in frames and glasses are just as near as The Optical Store & Boutique just south of 50th & Slide, clearly marked on the west side of Slide, Phone 792-0901.

There a departmentalized arrangement of rooms and areas provides the four distinct categories: (1) utility, (2) quality, (3) designer frames, and (4) Boutique.

So, whether the attractively priced lines in frames and glasses for the student, as example, or the very finest in choices from the Designer collection or the unusual and expensive lines within the Boutique are preferred, this Lubbock facility is outstanding, in a class by itself.

Upon entry into The Optical Store & Boutique, one is impressed with the pleasing but striking decor (such as the art deco in the Designer Room carried out in mirrors, pictures and fixtures), a customer consideration that exemplifies the firm's uniqueness.

One may first discover the Designer Collection where an area is devoted entirely to designer frames by Ralph Lauren, Givenchy, Diane Von Furstenberg, Co-car de la Renta and other top designers. Then there is the Children's Corner in another segment of the complex.

And who could not help but be most intrigued by the Boutique where antique decor dominates and where the unusual and expensive lines are displayed. Some glasses are set with diamonds, some with 18k gold settings, some with real cultured pearls. Custom design with special precious stones, etc., is a specialty.

Lines are out-of-the-ordinary, with some exclusive in Lubbock to the Boutique, such as the Martin Creations from West Germany.

"See what we mean when we say that 'Our Boutique is Unique,' providing a product and service seldom experienced anywhere?"

"May we have the pleasure of your visits? We know we can serve you within one or more of our departments."

W.M. Smith Electric is now authorized master distributor for the complete Campbell Hausfeld line of compressors and accessories.

In related action, the full line of parts is being stocked here; full service is afforded, and Smith also serves as a Campbell Hausfeld warranty station.

Smith also is distributor for the complete overhead traveling bridge cranes manufactured and marketed under the trade name of SECO.

the distinguished trademarks of Dresser Industries, Detroit, Wright, Demag and David Round.

You can depend on W. M. Smith Electric Co., 1911 Clovis Road, in Lubbock, long serving industry throughout West Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

The Lubbock branch of the Dallas-based company was established way back in 1952, and the growth of the firm here reflects the quality and demand of the service offered.

Among the many products and services afforded are air compressors by Campbell Hausfeld, Gardner-Denver and Kellogg-American. They are available in both tank mounted and stationary type, and new or rebuilt ones are stocked up to 150 hp.

Pick-up and delivery is provided, and service men are on call day or night. Facilities in the shop enable prompt attention and repair in any emergency need.

History Recounted

Herb Witcher is vice president and manager of West Texas operations of the company. In fact, it was in August, 1952, when he opened the Lubbock office as a one-man operation.

"There was just a trickle of business at first. But as Herb's old Chevy pick-up truck became a familiar sight on the streets and roads in and around Lubbock, business picked up — fast. Night and day service at a fair price, which was what Herb offered, was a way of winning friends! By spring of 1963, Herb had four men working for W.M. Smith Electric Co., Lubbock branch."

And how the firm continues to grow!

"The people of Lubbock and a wide surrounding area have been mighty nice to W.M. Smith Electric Co., Witcher says, "and we appreciate it more than we can tell you."

The present large, all-brick building of the firm at 1911 Clovis Road was constructed in 1957, and facilities within it were designed for maximum service.

"And possibly some of this service meets a need for you, in your own industrial or farming operation."

Business & Industrial Review

Western Mobile Air's Bonus Offer Spells Year-Around Comfort Saving

"As a mobile home resident, was your heating adequate for the finest cold spell? Is the home cool and pleasant on the balmy days?"
If there are problems in either event, there is a Lubbock firm that can do something about it... and with a special money-saving offer.
For the mobile home resident, there is exceptionally good news from Western Mobile Air, 1825 N. University, phone 762-4878.
For a limited time, for each Coleman air conditioner unit purchased at retail, Western Auto will give... free... a Coleman furnace for the mobile home!
"Or, if you already have a furnace, Western Mobile Air will give a $400 utility trailer!"
What a way to save as winter preparations are made! And it is time to act, before the holidays and before colder weather.
Get full details now; there should be a Coleman environment system in your future. See Bert Maze and profit!

COLEMAN — FOR COMFORT TO APPRECIATE
The mobile homes manufactured today contain Coleman furnaces.
Each Coleman product is subjected to one of the most rigid and complete testing programs in the industry.
Five atmospheric gas heating systems from 45,200 to 80,000 BTU output are available, together with oil and gas gun heating systems to 77,000 BTU output.
Let Bert Maze and the fine folks at Western Mobile Air, 1825 N. University in Lubbock, explain in detail how Coleman can make your life more comfortable, and how the new offer of the free furnace with purchase of an air conditioning can be of special savings.

Holiday Needs Receive Gary's Attention In Service, Products

Electric nut crackers again are available — for holiday preparation for gifting — at Gary's Frozen Foods.
And pecans are for sale there, too!
Custom cooking of game comes in for attention at this season, also, at Gary's, the firm traditionally providing the finest in nutritious barbeque, corn dogs, super dogs, and more.
For the third year, Gary's is stocking the dynamic electric nut cracker, without increase in price; it still is at $49.95 at Gary's, 109th Street at South University Avenue, phone 765-1933. Response to this offering in seasons past has been so enthusiastic that if presented again, with satisfaction guaranteed.
This electric unit cracks any size pecans, English walnuts, Brazil nuts, etc., with little or no damage to kernels. Each nut is locked and cracked automatically! Kernels and shells fall out for fast repat. A safety shield prevents against flying shell particles. Actually "it is the fastest hand-fed nut cracker available," with nothing to adjust; one machine cracks all, and the estimated life is 10,000 lbs. pecans!
Custom Cooking
And don't forget the custom cooking service, and the other fine Gary's products.
Gary's is glad to custom prepare any meat, at any time, whether it is wild game or whatnot.
Or one may simply discover that the Gary's Frozen Food label in a favorite grocery or supermarket opens the way to variety and nutritious goodness.
Select from Gary's Barbeque Flavor Delight, Gary's Corn Dogs, Gary's Bar-B-Que Beef Brisket in bar-b-que sauce, and Gary's super dogs. Whether the occasion is a holiday meal, a Sunday dinner or even a snack, late-season picnic, pregame meal or a birthday party, one can profit from dependance upon the home-owned, home-operated Gary's Frozen Food firm and its products.

The Bar-B-Que Flavored Delight is newest of the Gary's family of labels, and it is oh-so-good. A beef, beef suet and textured vegetable protein product, it is a new experience in delicious eating. Keep it frozen, and just heat to eat.
This new product is available in the area, distributed to retail stores and to institutions. Look for the label.
Also, Gary's still has something else relatively new: the 10-pack of Gary's Corn Dogs!
Consisting of batter mix around a frankfurter, partially cooked in pure vegetable oil, these, too, are easy to prepare. Simply thaw, remove from bag, place in 375-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes or deep fat fry.
Corn Dogs from Gary's are enjoyed by kids and adults alike.
Also, one still can get the delicious Gary's Barbeque Beef Brisket in a favorite grocery or supermarket.

The barbeque brisket, super dogs and other quality items from Gary's Frozen Foods, 109th Street at South University Avenue, make many a West Texas meal something special — whether for a special event or simply a change of pace.
These products, long recognized as the finest obtainable, are prepared in the modern, enlarged, functionally attractive for Gary's specifically designed and built for service, in south Lubbock.
Every Gary's Frozen Food product is an experience in goodness! School children, their parents and a lot of other people (unexpected guests included) can attest to the deliciousness of Gary's Bar-B-Que package available on retail basis.
Gary Tidwell, and the entire staff at Gary's Frozen Foods personally devote all efforts to insure that Gary's Super Dogs, for example, are made from the finest wieners, dipped in a batter that is a distinctly different flour mixture.

ELECTRONIC NUTCRACKER AGAIN AVAILABLE — Gary Tidwell emphasizes that not only is this popular unit marketed at Gary's Frozen Foods, but there is no increase in its price. Pe-
