Anniversary Of JFK's Death Almost Forgotten

A-J News Services

DALLAS — In past years, nurses at Parkland Memorial Hospital placed a black wreath on the door of Trauma Room 1 and rearranged it as it was on Nov. 22, 1963, the day President John F. Kennedy died there.

But today, the hospital — like most of Dallas — plans no official recognition of the 15th anniversary of Kennedy's assassination.

Traditionally, Trauma Room 1, where Kennedy was pronounced dead of wounds he received when he was shot during a parade through downtown Dallas, has been kept empty each Nov. 22, except in case of emergency.

But this year, a reporter asked the emergency room supervisor if a memorial service was planned.

"A memorial for what?" the supervisor asked.

"For John F. Kennedy," she was told. She hung up the telephone.

A hospital administrator later confirmed there were no special plans.

The city no longer holds a memorial service for Kennedy, but last year about 200 people attended a ceremony arranged by Dallas County officials.

This morning, a few mourners braved rainy, cold weather to attend a brief memorial service at the Kennedy monument.

Democratic Party spokeswoman Susan Buck said the yearly memorials to Kennedy have grown shorter each year, and interest until this year had dwindled dramatically.

"Remember, Dallas has grown an awful lot," she said. "A lot of our population did not live here 15 years ago.

"It (the memorial program) is basically just a remembrance. I don't think it ever hurts to remember what can happen. Maybe it helps people try to see that it doesn't happen again."

Mrs. Buck said a larger than usual crowd had been expected this year at the service, judging from the number of telephone inquiries and the interest displayed by the media. But the cool, wet weather apparently cut the turnout.

She said increased interest undoubtedly resulted in part from the fact this was the 15th anniversary.

"But, I think there's a little more interest due to the fact there have been so many investigations into the assassination this year," she said. "There's heightened interest."

During the past year, the assassination has been in print more than usual and two television movies on the killing were aired this year.

In late summer, the House Assassinations Committee closed Dealy Plaza, a main intersection on the western edge of the downtown area, for a re-creation of the actual gunshots from the former Texas School Book Depository building. They wanted to match the recorded sounds of varying numbers of gunshots with actual recordings made when Kennedy was shot.

Icy Roads Threaten Travelers

A-J News Services

Icy roads and low visibility slowed holiday travel from the Colorado Rockies to the Great Lakes today, bringing gloomy predictions of a soaring traffic death toll, but the dismal weather outlook failed to dampen the festive atmosphere across the nation.

Most diehard football fans and food addicts will have a full day to over-indulge in their favorite pastimes as they take a break from the daily routine Thursday to celebrate Thanksgiving.

The holiday was set aside by George Washington in 1789 so that people might acknowledge "with grateful hearts, the many signal favors of Almighty God."

A citywide community church service, sponsored by the Lubbock Minister's Association, is planned at 7 p.m. today at Trinity Church.

For those yearning for outdoor activities on the South Plains, though, there's not much to be thankful for. Clouds, fog and drizzle are expected to continue through Thursday. Thanksgiving Day should be a little warmer, however, with a high in the lower 60s.

Lubbock employees and students have particular reason for gratitude as schools and businesses close for the holiday.

All city offices, banks and federal agencies will shut down Thursday only in honor of the special day. The county courthouse and U.S. District Court, however, will remain closed Friday as well.

School students and personnel get an extended vacation beginning today, with classes resuming Monday. Texas Tech University closes its doors at noon today and begins classes again Monday.

With travelers out in full force, the National Safety Council predicts between 470 and 570 celebrants will die in traffic crashes before the long holiday weekend is over, and rail and airline passengers well may vow it's their last trip.

Local travelers can expect no immediate relief from the persistent cloudiness and fog.

No airline flights had been diverted here as of midmorning, but a spokesman at Lubbock Internation Airport control tower said poor visibility could force diversions of incoming flights later today.

Shortly before 9 a.m. the runway visibility was "slightly below landing minimum," he said. The required runway visibility for landing is 2,400 feet, and short-

FBI Joins In Hunt For Cult 'Hit Men'

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — The Guyanese government and the FBI probed deeper today into the murder of Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., and his companions that was climaxed by the mass suicides of 405 American cultists.

Guyana officials said they had arrested three prime suspects in the killing of Ryan and his companions. They were identified as Michael Prokes, 31, a former Stockton, Calif., television reporter; Tim Carter, 30, a former U.S. Marine from Garden City, Idaho, and Larry Layton, 32, whose hometown was not known.

They were expected to be arraigned in court later in the day.

The FBI announced in Washington that it had opened an investigation of the slaying of Ryan by members of the Peoples Temple cult at the Jonestown airstrip. The agency said it was acting under the congressional assassinations law, which makes it a federal crime to kill a congressman, and said the investigation was being conducted in the United States and in Guyana. The Peoples Temple has its headquarters in San Francisco.

Ryan and his party arrived arrived at Jonestown Friday to investigate alleged abuses of members of the settlement. He and four others were murdered by cultists while trying to leave Saturday afternoon. Shortly thereafter, 405 persons in the camp died after drinking a fruit drink laced with cyanide.

Americap military forces prepared the decaying bodies of the 405 Jonestown dead today for transfer to the United States. The U.S. Air Force said the first planeloads should arrive at its mortuary in Delaware on Thanksgiving Day.

The evacuation of the bodies had not started by late morning. A U.S. Embassy spokesman said there was a delay in getting helicopters into the country. Two giant CH-53 helicopters, which can carry about 35 troops each, were in Guyana. Three more, plus six smaller helicopters, were expected to arrive later in the day. The helicopters are being brought dismantled to Guyana.

They will be used to ferry the bodies from Jonestown, where the suicides took place, to an airstrip at Mathews Ridge about 12 miles away. There, the dead will be loaded on Air Force cargo planes for the trip to the United States.

The search continued for hundreds of Americans believed to have fled from the mass suicide-by-poison which the Rev. Jim Jones of the Peoples Temple led Saturday at Jonestown, his cult's jungle settlement in northwest Guyana.

About 40 survivors were reported to have turned up. Because of uncertainty about the number in the settlement at the time, estimates of the missing ranged from 200 to 700.

Defectors from the death-marred Peoples Temple claimed that hit squads are scattered around the United States hoping to murder those who broke away from the cult.

"I know there are 200 people that Jones set up to stay alive and to assassinate us," Wanda Johnson, a former believer in the Jones movement, said in Berkeley, Calif..

In addition to the hit squads, Mrs. Johnson said, Jones "set aside money,

Castro Vows To Release Prisoners

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — President Fidel Castro announced today that Cuba will free 3,000 political prisoners if America offers them sanctuary and said "I don't think the United States can deny them."

Castro, in a swipe at America's intelligence community, also said Cuba has had Soviet MiG-23 jet fighters for a year and the "idiotic" American intelligence agency should have known it all along.

Castro, his voice rising in anger, told a news conference the Soviet planes were for defensive purposes and the planes had taken part in the celebration of the Cuban revolution last January.

Castro said Cuba will release a minimum of 400 prisoners per month, an estimated 200 to 250 of whom want to live in the United States. Those to be freed constitute 80 percent of those in Cuban jails.

"We have decided to release 3,000 prisoners," Castro told a news conference that ended 10 hours of talks over two days with a delegation of 75 Cuban exile leaders from the United States, Mexico, Venezuela and Spain.

"I don't think the United States can deny them."

Castro said that if the Unied States agrees, he will meet again with the delegates to formalize the arrangement.

He said if not, they would meet again to discuss alternatives.

The United States has a quota of 50 prisoners per month along with 100 relatives.

Castro said it took the United States three months to screen and clear the first 46 released prisoners who arrived in the United States Oct. 21. Castro said only since President Carter took office had it been possible to release prisoners, because all other presidents from John Kennedy to Gerald Ford plotted against Cuba.

"Until the Carter administration, there was hostility against Cuba," he said.

He said Cuba wanted nothing in return from the United States in return for releasing the prisoners.

"We just want the United States to do its moral duty and accept the prisoners," he said.

Castro termed the 17-year-old trade embargo against his country "a blow to the United States until it is lifted."

The news conference was attended by most of the 75 delegates who applauded several times at Castro's answers and broke into an emotional rendition of the Cuban national anthem at the end.

Holiday Editions Of A-J Combined

Thursday's edition of The Avalanche-Journal will be a combined edition to permit employees of the newspaper to enjoy the Thanksgiving Day holiday with their families.

Evening subscribers will receive the morning Avalanche-Journal and there will be no evening edition. However, the morning paper will include all features and comics normally found in the evening edition.

Regular service will be resumed Friday.

Tank Cars Burn At Canyon

A-J News Services

CANYON — A large area of this Panhandle city was evacuated early today after several tank cars carrying hazardous material burst into flames when a freight train en route from Houston to Denver was derailed.

Firefighters late this morning reported all but one of the 37 freight cars derailed were burning. Police have evacuated a half-mile radius of the derailment, which is just west of downtown Canyon.

No injuries have been reported, but a small house near the scene was reported to have burned.

Santa Fe Railroad agent Russell Wills said no attempt is being made to extinguish the fires and that the cause of the accident cannot be determined until they have burned out.

One burning tank car filled with liquefied petroleum forced Randall County firefighters back a half-mile. Another car carrying the same fuel also caught fire upon derailment.

Near noon today, more than 65 men were standing by with 50 pieces of firefighting equipment ready in the event of any further explosions.

A Canyon fire department dispatcher said two cars burned after the derailment when a valve on one car blew off, sending flames shooting into the mid-morning sky.

"My God, what a beautiful sunrise," said eyewitness Ann Sugden, who first thought the fire was dawn. She said she felt her house rumble and a neighbor called to tell her of the evacuation.

Mrs. Sugden gathered her five children and fled the area.

Susan Metcalf of Santa Fe Railways said the cars derailed about 7 a.m.

Church Claims Record In Gifts

By BOB WILLIAMS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

What does a church want with two lots in Ruidoso, N.M., a pecan orchard, a house, jewelry, a teen-ager's guitar and a 5-year-old's tricycle?

Well, when the assortment, along with a large contribution in money, adds up to more than $2 million, the answer is pretty obvious.

These items, and $1.65 million in cash, were contributed by members of the Broadway Church of Christ here Sunday to help defray the $3.8 million cost of a three-story educational building.

The offering was believed to be the largest single-day collection ever by any church.

Joe R. Barnett, minister of the church, said today that members of his congregation are "sacrificing people."

"We were pleased but not surprised with the amount of the contribution," Barnett said. "If a need can be shown, our people will help the cause."

Church spokesman Don Umphrey said the final tally from the 3,000-member congregation was $2,005,637. "There was a real feeling of closeness last Sunday night when we thought we might be getting near $2 million," he added.

More than $300,000 alone was contributed by 16 church elders, an average of about $21,000 each, according to Umphrey. He said the church elders and staff had pledged three-quarters of a million dollars.

The congregation had been preparing for several weeks for last Sunday's collection. Basing his claim on a recent Los Angeles Times article, Umphrey said the gross was the largest single-day collection ever by a church.

He added that the newspaper article indicated the largest previous collection came June 25, 1978, when a Kirkland, Wash., church collected $1.65 million.

In addition to the amounts are several deferred gifts, primarily in the form of inclusion in wills, houses and property.

Elders of the congregations pointed out that proceeds from the wills will not be realized for several years. Church officials noted that the wills give a solid base to future plans for the church, but will not be considered as applicable to the present building program.

"Our people gave nearly $900,000 for this program in May, 1977. Cash and pledges to be paid in the near future which came in through Sunday's offerings were superb. But we will still need about $1,400,000 to complete the project and go into the building debt-free," Barnett said. He added that work started on the project in April, and the three-story structure is expected to be completed in 1980.

"We hope to go into the building debt-free and we're praying that our people will continue making sacrificial gifts and pledges over the next two years which will insure such a happening," Barnett added.

Church officials said that junior high school student members had set a goal of $1,250 and surpassed the goal with gifts of $1,905. Senior high students surpassed their goal of $10,000 with gifts of $10,208.

Boat Mishap Drowns 200

KUALA TRENGGANU, Malaysia (AP) — At least 200 Vietnamese refugees were reported drowned today when their boat capsized off the northeast coast of the Malaysian peninsula after officials refused to let them land.

Local reporters said a survivor told them there were 254 people aboard the wooden boat. A police spokesman said 51 survivors were accounted for and five bodies had been recovered, including those of two children.

The survivor who talked to the reporters said the boat capsized in rough water after hitting a sandbar at 9:30 a.m. as it was moving out of the Trengganu River estuary.

Police said villagers rescued some who were struggling in the water by throwing them inflated inner tubes.

City School Trustees To Reach Decision On Coach By Dec. 10

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Independent School District board of trustees will decide by Dec. 10 whether to reinstate Elton Conger as a junior high athletic coach, board president Charles Waters says.

After 15 hours of hearing testimony in the personnel case, Waters said trustees will need "a few weeks" to have transcripts made and to study the evidence.

School administrators say Conger was dismissed from coaching eighth-grade football at Atkins Junior High because of insubordination and use of profane language. Conger, a black, contends the real reason was racial prejudice, and that he wasn't given enough opportunity to defend himself against the charges.

Near the end of Tuesday's hearing, Conger displayed a diary he had been keeping since his reassignment from recently closed Skaggs Junior High to Atkins. Notations in the book were under such headings as "Insult," "Another Insult," "Stacked Deck" and "Showdown."

Conger claimed that Atkins coaches were out to get him and that they spied on him and trumped up charges. Conger said he was told of such a conspiracy by a fellow faculty member at Atkins.

Conger named the informant but did not have him testify.

According to Conger's version, some white coaches from Atkins were quoted at a party last spring as saying they didn't want "that nigger" coming to their school.

Atkins coaches and school district administrators denied there had been any such conspiracy or racial bias against Conger.

They said the main issue is Conger's alleged insubordination. Conger was charged with using profane language and an obscene gesture, refusing to follow his supervisor's orders on drills and the numbering of plays, and disobeying a direct order from the central administration.

The last charge, which most officials considered the most serious, stemmed from an Oct. 19 meeting involving Conger, the Atkins principal and head coach, and the school district's director and assistant director of athletics.

Administrators already had decided that Conger could not remain as eighth-grade coach. They said he could either stop coaching for the rest of the year and

Richard's Woes Continue

OTTAWA (AP) — Guitarist Keith Richards' legal woes roll on.

RICHARDS

The Rolling Stones star received one year's probation in October after a heroin possession conviction, but Justice Minister Otto Lang announced Tuesday he will seek court permission to appeal the light sentence.

When Richards' probation was announced Oct. 24, Judge Lloyd Graburn ordered the rock star to give a benefit concert for the blind in Toronto.

Lang said his decision to appeal followed a request by Attorney-General Roy McMurtry of Ontario, who said there was public concern the sentence was not sufficient to help deter young Canadians from using heroin.

Long Ticket Lines

OXFORD, England (AP) — It looked like a ticket line for the World Cup soccer championships, not a lecture at the university here.

But former President Richard Nixon is the featured speaker Nov. 30 at the Oxford Union.

"There was a massive queue before we opened and all the 800 available tickets were gone in three hours," said a secretary at the union Tuesday.

Tickets were distributed free to members of the Union, a debating and social club. But even then, officials warned that all 800 people may not get into the lecture. "The hall holds 800, but we don't yet know how much space will be taken up by reporters and cameramen," the secretary said.

Papa Mayor

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago mayors have long been noted for kissing babies, but this time the affection was purely paternal.

Mayor Michael Bilandic announced at a news conference Tuesday that his 35-year-old wife, Heather, had given birth to their first child, an 8-pound, 9½-ounce boy, Michael Morgan.

Bilandic, 55, assisted his wife in the operating room during the natural delivery. "Heather and I are grateful to God for the birth of Michael," he told reporters later.

Mrs. Bilandic is the former Heather Morgan, Chicago socialite and former executive director of the Chicago Council on Fine Arts. The Bilandics were married July 15, 1977. It was the first marriage for each.

Empress Will Not Flee

TEHERAN, Iran (AP) — The Shah's wife says she will risk death before running out on her crisis-ridden nation.

"How could I sit on the Riviera while all the people that had worked with us, and helped us over the years were still facing whatever was happening at home?" Empress Farah said in an interview with CBS news Tuesday.

The wife of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi voiced guarded optimism about the future of Iran's 38-year-old monarchy. "Even if things improve, Iran faces many economic difficulties. A lot of people who made money here were the first to get out, and take their money with them," she said.

The empress spoke freely and with intensity from her study in the Nia Bihran palace here. "I believe the mistakes of the past have taught us all a lesson," she said. "Much as we try, we cannot hasten the progress of democracy too fast. But we can keep trying."

The will, filed Tuesday in Surrogate's Court in Manhattan, ordered two copies of each of "my publications and manuscripts" be given to the Library of Congress.

The four-page will left $10,000 to her son-in-law, Barkev Kassarjian of Tehran, Iran, and the rest of her estate to her daughter, Catherine B. Kassarjian.

Spinks Cited Again

DETROIT (AP) — Leon Spinks seems to dent fenders as frequently as opponents' chins.

SPINKS

The former heavyweight boxing champion was ticketed for improper use of a lane, a misdemeanor, Tuesday night after his auto was involved in a minor, two-car smash-up on a Detroit freeway.

State police at the scene said Spinks did not have a valid driver's license in his possession. No one was injured in the crash and Spinks, although ticketed, was not arrested.

Witnesses told authorities Spinks' car, a 1978 Mercury Cougar, bumped a Lincoln-Continental headed in the same direction. Spinks is a Detroit resident.

Spinks has been arrested three times for driving without a license, records show.

He also faces trial Dec. 6 in Ohio in connection with an Oct. 21 accident police said occurred when the former champion lost control of his new $13,000 Corvette and smashed through a fence.

Vicious Enters Plea

NEW YORK (AP) — Punk rocker Sid Vicious, out on bail and living with his mother since a suicide attempt, has pleaded innocent to charges he murdered his 20-year-old girlfriend by plunging a knife into her abdomen in the couple's Chelsea Hotel room last month.

Vicious, 21, the former bass guitarist for the defunct Sex Pistols, appeared before Justice Betty Ellerin in Manhattan's state Supreme Court Tuesday. A two-inch scar, evidence of his suicide attempt, was visible on his left wrist as he stood with hands behind his back.

Defense attorney James Merberg said Vicious, whose real name is John Simon Ritchie, has been at his mother's home since being released from Bellevue Hospital Nov. 6 following treatment for slashes sustained in an apparent suicide attempt Oct. 22, 10 days after he allegedly killed Nancy Spungen.

Arguments on a prosecution move to revise Vicious' $50,000 bail were delayed to give Merberg and prosecutor Allen Sullivan time to go over Vicious' medical records.

BRIDGE OVER DEATH SCENE — Five persons standing atop this Interstate Highway 5 bridge over the Cowlitz River, jumped onto rocks and ice below following a Monday night traffic accident. Seemingly Safe Jump Fatal To Four People

CHEHALIS, Wash. (AP) — Escape from the onrushing vehicles must have appeared simple — just step over the guardrail on the icy highway bridge and onto the pavement.

But there was no pavement, only a black abyss.

Five persons fell 50 feet onto the rocks along the Cowlitz River, says the State Patrol.

Four of them, including a pregnant woman, died. The woman's husband was listed in serious but stable condition at St. Helen Hospital in Chehalis.

The tragedy occurred about 6 p.m. Monday on the Interstate 5 bridge 17 miles south of Chehalis.

The five, who were traveling in three cars, had left their vehicles after becoming involved in a pileup on the bridge, said Sgt. Dick Murry, one of the investigating troopers.

"All five had stepped out of their cars to see if anyone was hurt and check damages and so on," said Murry. "Then they noticed other oncoming cars were going out of control trying to stop, and they figured they would just step over the guardrail to get out of the way, not knowing there was that dropoff."

Murry said two bridges cross the river about six feet apart, each with two freeway lanes. It was foggy and the roadway was covered with glare ice when the pileup occurred in the two northbound lanes, he said. The victims jumped over the 3-foot-8 inside guardrail and fell between the two bridges, he said.

The victims were identified as Jose Cruz Estrada, 47, of nearby Castle Rock; Robert Fashbaugh, 58, and his wife Charlotte, 56, both of Salinas, Calif.; and Christine McKenzie, 26, of Breckenridge, Mich.

Murry said Mrs. McKenzie, who was six months pregnant, died en route to the hospital, and the fetus could not be saved. Her husband, Duncan, 33, suffered multiple injuries in the fall.

Estrada and Fashbaugh were killed instantly, Murry said. Mrs. Fashbaugh died at the hospital about five hours after the accident.

Murry said eight vehicles were involved in the mishap. "We treated several people for minor, superficial cuts and bruises at the scene and they were on their way," he said.

Atlantic City Ponders Clean-Up Ordinance

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Inspired by New York City, Atlantic City officials are considering their own "pooper scooper" law to keep animal droppings off the Boardwalk.

Under an ordinance introduced Tuesday, persons who did not clean up after their pets on any resort street could be fined $100. The ordinance would also ban dogs from the Boardwalk throughout the year. Currently, leashed dogs are allowed on the boards from September to May. They're not allowed on the beach.

Post Office Prepares Mail Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service is preparing its first test of a futuristic mail service that could eventually replace many letter sorters with computers and satellites.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger said Tuesday that electronic mail service could be offered to the public in as little as three years and could deliver some letters coast-to-coast overnight.

And, he said, it would be cheaper than regular mail.

Commenting on a two-year study of electronic mail, Bolger said he would "like to think we'd be below 15 cents," the current charge for first-class mail.

One possible drawback is that a letter's recipient would receive a computer printout of the message.

Bolger said a test of the system will involve converting dummy messages into digital form, then transmitting them from a Postal Service facility outside Washington to a a satellite that would send them back to a receiving unit in the same building. The digital messages will then be converted into written form.

If the test works, he said, similar machines could be installed in major-city post offices, which would generate a printout of the message to be delivered normally.

The closest service now is Mailgram, a joint venture of Western Union and the Postal Service.

The advantage electronic mail holds for the Postal Service is in replacing sorters with the sophisticated machines. About 86 percent of the Postal Service's costs are for labor, making any automation a way of holding down expenses and eventually postal rates.

Bolger said companies with computers could send their messages, already in digital form, to the Postal Service's computers. Private citizens could go to post offices and write their messages on a form.

He called on Congress to consider the "public policy issue" of whether the Postal Service should offer electronic mail service.

If the decision is that the Postal Service should offer the service, $20 billion would be spent for ground stations in 87 cities, Bolger said.

Traditional mail would continue, he said.

TWA's Performance Tops Field In On-Time Category

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trans World Airlines turned in August's top on-time performance among major scheduled airlines, according to the Civil Aeronautics Board.

TWA posted a 98.4 percent on-time record between Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

The CAB defines on-time as arrival within 15 minutes of the scheduled time.

At the other end of the scale, Pan American was on-time only 6.5 percent of the time between Honolulu and San Francisco in August. It was the fifth straight month that Pan Am was in the bottom 10 in on-time performance on that route.

Rounding out August's five best timely performances were United Airlines between Los Angeles and Las Vegas, 96.8 percent on time; Wright Airlines between Cleveland and Detroit, 96.7 percent; TWA between Chicago and Hartford, 95.2 percent and United between Portland and San Francisco, 94.9

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and oats prices rose while wheat and corn bids were mixed in quiet pre-holiday trading Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Soybean futures drew strength from rising prices in the nearby silver trading pit and from government reports of a rise last week in soybean exports.

Also, farmers continued to store large amounts of the newly harvested record-size corn and soybean crops, leading some country elevators today to boost cash prices in hopes of moving more grain to market.

After the close Monday, the Agriculture Department reported that 26.7 million bushels of soybeans were exported last week, about 20 percent more than the previous week.

Elevator Operators Requested To Stop Dust Recirculation

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — As an interim step to reduce the chance of lethal explosions in grain facilities, elevator operators are being asked by the Agriculture Department to stop the practice of recirculating dust back into the grain they handle.

Leland E. Bartelt, head of the department's Federal Grain Inspection Service, made the request in a memorandum to 137 grain elevator operators.

Bartelt said Tuesday that "enough is known about the basic causes of elevator explosions to significantly reduce the number of explosions without waiting for additional research" to be completed.

Finely powdered grain dust, under certain conditions of temperature and humidity, can be extremely explosive when ignited by sparks or other causes.

"The department will continue to assess the situation as more information becomes available," Bartelt said. "In the meantime, we urge elevator operators to voluntarily take the logical step and cease the recirculation of dust in the system."

Under federal anti-pollution regulations, elevator operators are prohibited from dumping grain dust indescriminately into the atmosphere, a practice that many followed for years.

The dust occurs as grain is handled in elevators. Many operators recirculate the dust by collecting it and then putting it back into the grain as it is loaded for shipment or transferred into other storage bins.

"There is a large body of opinion and evidence that elevator operators can greatly reduce the probability of explosions by adequately collecting the dust and not recirculating these fine particles in the system," Bartelt said.

His agency said 17 grain dust explosions occurred in 1976, resulting in 20 deaths and 68 injuries. In 1977 there were 16 explosions, 61 deaths and 72 injuries.

"This year, there have been 10 grain dust explosions which have killed seven and injured 47," the agency said. "The most recent was at Savage, Minn., where three were killed and one injured."

Officials said insurance costs for grain-handling facilities have risen sharply in recent years as the severity of dust explosions has increased. A study by Iowa State University found that from 1958 to 1975 there were an average of 8.1 explosions a year, with 35 deaths and 214 injuries.

The department's Grain Standards Act Advisory Committee, representing industry, federal and state officials, recommended last April that moves be started toward permanently keeping fine dust particles from the stream of grain as it is handled for both safety and quality reasons.

"The committee recommended that fine particles of dust not be returned to the grain stream and be counted as an unavoidable weight loss," the agency said.

The deepest point in the world's oceans is the Mariana Trench — depth 36,198 feet — in the Pacific off the Philippines.

More Railroad Cars Needed In Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study by the Agriculture Department shows that railroads will have to increase the number of cars sharply by 1985 and beyond if they expect to keep up with the growing needs of moving farm commodities to market.

By 1985, the department said Tuesday, the rail share of total grain movement is expected to reach 116 million metric tons, an increase of 12 million metric tons from the 1977-78 marketing season "when severe grain car shortages occurred."

And by the turn of the century, as domestic and foreign demands for grain increase, railroads could be handling as much as 165 million metric tons, the report said.

If railroads maintain their present share of grain movement off farms, the estimated transportation demand by 1985 indicates that approximately 88,000 cars will be needed — an increase of 17,000 covered hopper cars over the 1977-78 marketing year, it said.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Beware Of Dissidents

THE MASSACRE of American fact-finders in Guyana and the reported subsequent mass suicides among members of a so-called religious sect should finally hammer home the fact that demonstrators and cultists in American society can be a dangerous lot.

Too often, radicals who preach social revolution and civil disobedience are written off as harmless dissidents or even gain a measure of sympathy as a persecuted minority they claim to represent.

U.S. Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., and the newsmen who died with him in Guyana knew there was danger but even they underestimated the violence that lurked within the San Francisco-based Peoples Temple movement.

LIKE MANY OTHER sects and groups in communities all across the land, the one founded by a man named Jim Jones put on a public face of sincerity and non-violence.

So divergent were opinions about it, in fact, that Congressman Ryan decided the only way to learn the truth was to personally investigate conditions at the agricultural settlement Jones had set up in Guyana.

Ryan received a letter less than two weeks ago from Jones' lawyer, Mark Lane, warning of "important consequences which may flow from further persecution of the People's Temple."

Lane, whose far-out theories of a conspiracy in the death of Martin Luther King Jr. were thoroughly discredited when his client, convicted assassin James Earl Ray, testified before a Congressional committee, was in Guyana with Ryan and reportedly saved the Congressman's life minutes before Ryan was killed anyway.

IT IS OF MORE than passing interest, in view of the massacre, that Lane and others have had considerable success in clipping the investigatory wings of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Central Intelligence Agency.

Claiming that civil rights of protesters and others have been violated, the critics have caused the FBI and the CIA to be over-cautious in keeping an eye on such groups and maintaining files on the activist members.

Infiltrating and knowing precisely what such groups and their leaders are up to is necessary, however, if society is to be protected.

If the People's Temple, as alleged, kept its members in line through brainwashing, threats or other techniques violating their human rights, then claims that surveillance by federal investigators violate the constitution sound hollow, indeed.

It's something to remember the next time a seemingly peaceful or "harmless" band of demonstrators claims that it is merely calling attention to alleged oppression in this land of the free.

HENRY KISSINGER puts the turmoil in Iran, and America's support of the shah, into a perspective that makes sense even to those among us who rarely trouble themselves over world affairs.

With Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi in the audience, the former Secretary of State kept his listeners spellbound for 35 minutes at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce banquet.

"Iran is indispensable to our security," he pointed out, explaining its strategic importance in protecting the flow of a major portion of the Free World's oil.

Its 1,000-mile-plus common border with the Soviet Union and the Communist influence that is spreading over Afghanistan and other neighboring countries make Iran the front line of American defense, Kissinger said.

He recalled that Iran never joined the oil embargo against the United States in 1973 and, in fact, didn't allow Soviet planes to overfly its territory during that crisis.

"OUR ECONOMY can be shaken to the core by upheavals far away," Kissinger said in introducing his theme.

"Today, there are 50,000 Cuban troops in Africa...creating a sense of insecurity in an area...from which comes" 90 percent of the oil used by some industrial nations and 40 percent of our own, he continued.

The Soviet Union directly supports this foreign intervention by sending Cuba MIG 23s to replace the older aircraft Cuba uses in Africa.

This simultaneously stretches to the outer edge the 1962 agreement that the USSR would not station nuclear offensive weapons 90 miles off America's shore, Kissinger said.

In that context, the world diplomat left no doubt how dangerous he thinks it would be if the shah of Iran is replaced by a Communist-supported or vulnerable regime.

"THE FUNDAMENTAL cause of internal turmoil in Iran," Kissinger said, "is the shah's attempt to do in 15 years what it took Europe 200 years to accomplish—from feudalism to modern state."

"Who are the people who are causing the turmoil?," he asked rhetorically. "The extreme conservatives on the right for whom the shah is going too fast and the extreme radicals on the left for whom the shah is not going fast enough."

Kissinger added: "The emasculation of our own CIA" adds to the danger and the instability in the Middle East "because we are precluded from finding out what is going on and" from doing anything about it.

His message is clear: Whatever the basis for concern over the domestic rights of Iranians under the shah, their welfare and our own security must be protected from a take-over by an unfriendly regime.

When Kissinger talks, people, listen.

Holmes Alexander:

How About Truth For A Change?

WASHINGTON—Under public oath never to lie to the American people, President Carter should not be allowed to do it by proxy.

I take it that a good deal of truth is lacking in what CIA Director Stansfield Turner has stated as his evaluation of the long march that the Soviet Union has stolen on us by making Civil Defense an integral part of its war-fighting, war-survival.

It boggles belief that the Soviet Union, having outsmarted the administrations of Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford in making nuclear war "thinkable."

But the Russians organized for home protection under four-star Army Gen. Alexander Altunin.

He commands a 100,000 fulltime cadre, and has equal status with heads of the other three Armed Forces.

WHO WOULD believe, as the CIA director tells it, that Russian strategic nuclear policy is the same as before. As Adm. Turner blandly puts it:

"We have no reason to believe that the Soviet leaders' perception of the contribution of civil defense to their capabilities for strategic nuclear conflict will change significantly."

But this soothing syrup is a falsehood that has to be a compound of ignorance, absurdity and deliberate untruth, the last being the dominant ingredient. Let us try the shoe on the other foot to find where it pinches.

Suppose that President Kennedy in 1961-62 faced the fact that the Kremlin judged its nuclear force sufficiently to fortify Cuba with H-bombs and that Khrushchev felt strong enough to bluff the United States into a cowering acquiescence.

SUPPOSE THAT Kennedy had read these signals as meaning, despite the Soviet temporary withdrawal of its nuclear convoy from the Western Hemisphere, that the manuever was only a pause for regrouping and rearming on Russia's part and a sure sign that the Soviet warlords would try again.

Had JFK thus reasoned, as an intelligent man well might have done, he would have used the ominous Missile Crisis as the mystique of his popularity, to get the jump on this war-minded, revolutionary enemy.

He would have risked whatever unpopularity attaches to the early American principle often declared by George Washington, that the best insurance for peace is preparedness to win a war.

Instead, Kennedy and his immediate successors permitted the Soviet Union to steal our playbook and do what we should have done.

We should have used some of JFK's Harvard brain trust to figure out that nuclear war is a two-front war—at home and abroad.

With this belated scenario before us, a replica of what the Russians have done, it is daylight-plain that Adm. Turner's policy-as-usual is a ludicrous dodge.

He should have told the American people that the USSR is drilled and dug in to absorb a nuclear raid, to accept casualties at reasonable levels, while striking an America which its Presidents, up to Carter, have shamefully neglected to defend.

Say for Jimmy Carter that he has brought us to believe he's no liar. His next duty is to upgrade his subordinates to something approaching that level.

How You Can Afford Piece Of The Block

"ZERO LOT LINE homes"...Note well this inelegant sounding string of words, for they stand for a new concept in home building rapidly sweeping across the country—under which home builders are being helped to provide you, a homebuyer, with the kind of detached, single-family houses you want at prices you can afford.

How can builders do it?

By reducing the size of the lot by 25 to 43 feet and placing the house on or close to one of the side boundary lines. Hence the name zero lot line homes.

To maintain privacy, the wall of the house abutting the boundary sideline contains no windows or only windows placed higher than usual.

The rest of the house is especially designed, often with skylights and arches, to bring sunlight into what otherwise would be a dark interior. The single side yard is large enough for a garden, barbecue or patio area.

BEGUN ABOUT 10 years ago in California, where land has long been costly and homes built closer together, zero lot line homes are now springing up in such widely separated cities as St. Louis, Miami, Chicago, Denver and Dallas.

Municipal zoning officials, who once insisted that detached houses be built a certain minimum distance from the boundary lines of their lots, have taken a second look at these restrictions.

Many now see the zero lot line concept as a way to reduce urban sprawl, while protecting new households from being priced out of the single-family home market.

For instance, Denver and Aspen land planner David Clinger explains why zero lot line homes often are less expensive than traditional detached houses.

"Lot costs amount to around 32 percent of the sales price of a house. Zero lot line houses let us get prices down in this area by increasing the density to 10 or 12 per acre."

HOUSTON BUILDER Michael Marix agrees: "When we can get 10 homes rather than four or five on an acre of land, we can sell them for two-thirds the normal price.

"We trade side yard space for higher densities. Our buyers like them. But equally important, the mortgage lenders like them. It is much easier to get financing for single-family houses than for townhouses or condominiums."

St. Louis developer Fred Kemp adds: "Privacy is the big thing. Our houses are not just part of a row. You don't hear your neighbors pounding on the walls, and the patios are not right on top of one another."

Kemp reports he has sold most of his zero lot line homes, priced from $45,600 to $53,500.

THE SMALLER YARDS are viewed as a plus, particularly in the drought-prone West, reports my Washington associate, Brooke Shearer.

As the cost of public water goes up, emphasizes Denver-based builder Harvey Alpert, "homebuyers want smaller lots so it will cost them less to water their lawns.

"In some new subdivisions around Denver, people are forbidden to plant grass on more than 40 percent of their lot."

Although a key attraction of zero lot line homes is their relatively low price—many sell for $43,000 to $71,000 and that's becoming a "moderate price range" in this era'—the design principle also is being used in luxury homes.

You will find truly posh ZLL houses, with the "essential" feature of the swimming pool, selling for as much as $325,000 in such cities as Dallas and resort areas as Newport Beach, Calif.

Just consider the combination of forces behind the development of this concept in home building:

(1) SOARING COSTS of land and a demand for land among Americans the nation over seeking a protection against inflation that is approaching a dangerously feverish pitch;

(2) Rapidly climbing costs of development in just about every phase which cannot help but push up prices of homes to the ultimate buyers, who are crowding into the market;

(3) The shrinking size of families to two-member, three-member (and even single-member) units, which certainly makes a smaller house on a smaller, easier-to-care-for lot more feasible.

Against this background, the future for the zero lot line home appears bright indeed.

John D. Lofton:

Tax Cut Jabs Knock Out Bell

TRENTON, N.J.—In his concession statement here on election night, GOP senatorial candidate Jeff Bell explained his loss to Democrat Bill Bradley, saying:

"For the present, the electorate wants Mr. Bradley's policies rather than mine. But what has proved true in 1978 may not prove true in the 1980s."

Observing that "we will have to go back to the drawing board," he speculated that Bradley's victory might "slow the tax cut fever throughout the country."

But Bell was just being gracious. The truth of the matter is that by the time their hard-fought campaign ended, the Bradley position on taxes was, for all practical purposes, the Bell position.

IN JUNE, following Bell's stunning primary upset of four-term incumbent Sen. Clifford Case, when I asked Bradley's press secretary, Fred Hillman, where Bradley stood on the Bell-Kemp-Roth tax-cut plan, Hillman said that Bradley had never "responded specifically" to this proposal.

Hillman added that what New Jerseyans were "fed up to the eyeballs with" was not high taxes but the discussion of the issue itself.

Bill Bradley ridiculed Bell's pushing the tax-cut issue so hard, accusing him of having found "a new religion."

But as his own campaign evolved and he was forced to respond, this was a religion to which Bradley himself was rapidly converting.

BY AUGUST, Bradley was flatly advocating "a major tax cut" of $25 billion, which he said was needed because "our economy is running out of steam."

At this time, Bradley said that the tax-cut issue was a subject which he would "continue to emphasize," although originally he had not been emphasizing this issue at all.

Bell is correct, however, when he says that advocates of Kemp-Roth must "go back to the drawing board."

Whether the allegation is true, proponents of Kemp-Roth have not been sufficiently persuasive in rebutting the charge that a tax cut of this magnitude would cause inflation by increasing the federal deficit.

On Election Day, assessing the Bell-Bradley contest, the Newark Star-Ledger editorialized:

"REGRETTABLY, MR. BELL seemed to be at a loss in providing basic fiscal specifics to sustain a deep tax reduction of 30 percent over three years.

"He did not, for example, reveal in detail how a sharp curtailment of revenues would be offset, other than a generalized assertion of a cutback in federal spending.

"Where should these substantial reductions be made? How much should be cut back? What would be the results of these budget slashes? Mr. Bell, unfortunately, was mute on these pertinent aspects."

Actually, Bell was not mute on this subject. He simply does not believe that massive deficits and inflation would result from Kemp-Roth.

He believes that a tax cut of one-third over three years would generate enough increased revenue to offset any deficit.

BUT, THE POINT is that despite the historical evidence that lower tax rates produce more revenues than higher rates, a lot of people simply do not believe this.

A lot of people believe that lower tax rates would increase the deficit and be inflationary, which is a theme Bradley repeatedly stressed and successfully.

According to an Election Day poll conducted by NBC and the Associated Press, by a margin of 3 to 1, New Jerseyans were more concerned about inflation than they were about tax cuts.

A poll taken twice during the campaign by the Rutgers University Eagleton Institute of Politics found that among registered New Jersey voters, 44 percent felt that inflation was the most important problem, and 13 percent chose taxes.

IF THE ADVOCATES of Kemp-Roth hope to make any headway at the polls, they must add to their tax cutting plan a coherent, well thought out, detailed plan for cutting the federal budget and ultimately balancing it.

In his victory statement at his headquarters, the first thing Bill Bradley did was to praise Jeff Bell as a "worthy adversary" deserving of respect, a man who ran a campaign based on issues not personalities.

Indeed. We have not heard the last of Bell. He can a bell of a race. He'll be back.

The Brighter Side...

Hear about this fellow who had a tooth that was driving him to extraction?

"Save for a rainy day and a new tax comes along and soaks you."

In these days of inflation there is one fool-proof way of saving money: retreat instead of charging.

Travel is broadening, especially if you eat all those things they have on the hotel smorgasbord.

Berry's World

Sickle Cell Treatment Tested

By AL ROSSITER JR.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Doctors at three medical centers plan to begin preliminary human testing next year of a machine designed to prevent the periodic painful and disabling attacks caused by sickle cell anemia.

The inherited and incurable blood disease affects an estimated 50,000 Americans, mostly blacks.

They are subjected to recurrent episodes when large numbers of their red blood cells form crescent or sickle shapes. These "sickled" cells are unable to pass freely through smaller blood vessels and jam up to impede bloodflow to surrounding tissues.

This most often happens in the lungs, liver, kidneys, bone and sometimes the brain. The result can be either pain or disfunction, depending on the location of the problem.

Such episodes are called crises and can occur anywhere from only one or two times a year to perhaps as often as once a month.

The chemical sodium cyanate will prevent blood cell sickling, but it causes nerve damage when taken orally.

To avoid that problem, Dr. Dennis Diederich of the University of Kansas has tried removing some of a patient's blood cells, treating them with cyanate in the laborators, then washing the blood cells in a saline solution and returning the blood to the body.

Such a technique was effective in reducing sickle cell crises, but it is considered cumbersome and not very effective.

Dr. Albert L. Babb of the University of Washington took a different approach. He took a kidney dialysis machine, which removes impurities from the blood, and modified it so that it would treat blood with sodium cyanate and then remove the cyanate before the blood is returned to the body.

Prototypes of the sickle cell machine have been tested on animals and the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute plans to support a small pilot test of the machine at the University of Washington, the University of Kansas and Ohio State University. Three machines costing an estimated $14,500 each will be used on approximately 18 patients.

Dr. John Hercules, project manager for the NHLBI, said the machine would be used only on the minority of sickle cell patients who have frequent crises.

"We're talking about the chronic patients, the really sick patients," he said in an interview.

"This is just a pilot study to test the feasibility of the machine," he said. "Is the machine going to work or not? We know it works on animals. Is it going to work with human beings?"

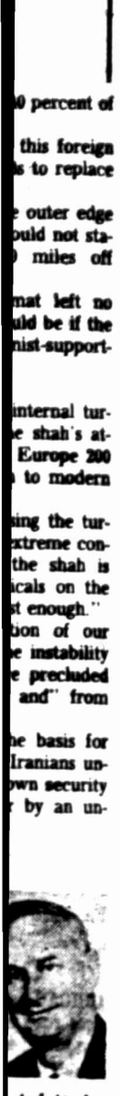
Each patient is expected to be hooked up to the machine for a period of several hours every two weeks.

Hercules said if such machines work, they would be used as stopgap measures until researchers come up with a non-toxic oral drug to prevent sickling. He said some promising leads are being explored, but no such "magic bullet" has yet been found.

Estimates on the number of blacks born with sickle cell anemia range from one in every 400 to one in every 625.

Two scientists at the University of California, San Francisco, reported recently they have developed a new and safe method to detect the birth defect in children of most parents at risk of passing the disease on to their offspring.

An estimated 2 million Americans carry the sickle cell trait but do not have the disease. If two carriers of the trait marry, the odds are one in four their child will have the disease.



DR. LAMB

Medicine Use Questioned

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns a person wrote in and said that he had lost 15 pounds and after weight loss was able to stop his blood pressure medicine. He added that he suspected he wouldn't have needed to take medication in the first place if he had lost the weight earlier.

It has been my understanding that once a person starts taking high blood pressure medicine he has to keep on doing so. Is this true? Would you please comment on this.

My husband had a blood pressure problem and he decreased his medicine and seemed to feel better. He is 72 and still active in his ranching and has a balanced diet and ample rest. He does have less mental stress than he did when the medicine was first prescribed during calving time in the early spring. Could he safely skip more days between medicine or even discontinue it?

DEAR READER — On more than one occasion I have been confronted with this idea that if you were taking blood pressure medicine, you have to take it for life.

Most such dogmatic statements aren't true and that's the case here. It depends entirely upon why you are taking the blood pressure medicine to begin with. If a person had fluctuating blood pressure with normal readings and intermittent high readings, it's possible he didn't need any medicine to begin with. Certainly there is no reason to continue taking medicine that you shouldn't have been given in the first place.

The second point is that situations can change. For example, a person may have high blood pressure associated with obesity. If their blood pressure becomes completely normal with weight reduction and stays normal without medicine, there is no reason at all to continue the medicine.

The only purpose for any of the bood pressure medicines is to lower blood pressure. If it's already within normal limits and stays there without medicine, then there is no reason to take the medicine.

Now this is in sharp contradiction to the person who has persistent elevated blood pressure and whose pressure can only be kept in normal limits with medicine. This person does need to continue medicines indefinitely. You can always identify this person, though, because when his medicine is stopped, his pressure will go up.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure, to give you more information on what determines the level of your blood pressure. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Another point that needs to be made is the influence of anxiety. A person who is anxious can have elevated blood pressure during the anxiety episode. The doctor has to be sure whether he is treating anxiety or hypertension. The two treatments are not the same. If a person has a temporary period of anxiety because of life's stresses and this, in turn, causes the blood pressure to be elevated the proper approach is to treat the anxiety, or help the person correct the situation that is causing the anxiety.

Now in specific reference to your husband, in some older people it is not a good indea to lower the elevated blood pressure too much. Your husband should not discontinue his medicine without his doctor's concurrence. Whether he can do without his blood or not depends entirely upon his response to gradually decreasing or eliminating the medicine.

Britain's Working Class Shows Increase In Heart Disease

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The rich used to die more often from heart disease than the poor — whatever consolation that was to the British working class.

Sauntering past the overfed mansions of Belgravia, the laborers could imagine the plutocrats inside digging their graves — as they were told — with their teeth.

But that was between 1931 and 1951. Since then the working class has taken a reluctant lead in deaths from heart maladies. And in an article in the British Medical Journal, a research team reported on what it believes are some of the reasons for the the reversal.

The authors of the paper called it changing social-class distribution of heart disease. The primary finding was that social classes I and II (the top of the social tree) may have applied the lessons of diet discovered by nutritionists in the postwar era more quickly and more thoroughly than social classes IV and V — the manual and other lower-paid workers.

"Coronary heart disease (CHD) is usually considered to be a disease of affluence and is more common in wealthy, industrialized countries," the paper said. "As the level of affluence has increased with time so has the prevalence of CHD, particularly among men. Yet, contrary to popular opinion, CHD is not more common among the more affluent classes of society.

"The most recent data on mortality in different social classes in England and Wales show that people in the higher social classes have a lower mortality from CHD than working-class men and women."

Drs. M.G. Marmot, Nicola Robinson and G.A. Rose of the School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and Dr. A.M. Edelstein, a medical statistician, reported that an analysis of mortality trends over the past 40 years showed that the change in social-class distribution of heart disease had turned against the working class by 1961.

From then on working class men show a higher proportionate mortality. Working class women have always — since 1931 at least — had more deaths per capita than women in the upper classes for reasons not yet clear.

"This change in (male) social-class distribution can only partly be explained by a change in diagnostic methods," the paper said. "The worsening mortality of classes IV and V correlated with relatively more smoking, a higher consumption of sugar, and a lower consumption of wholemeal bread in thse classes."

The study showed that working class deaths from diseases other than the heart also have increased in relation to deaths from the same causes in the upper classes, but not to the same extent.

Hoya To Build Institute In U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — Hoya Corp., a major Japanese crystal and optical glass maker, has announced its plans to construct a research institute near San Francisco.

The institute will be used to develop high-efficiency "super glass" for laser-triggered nuclear fusion equipment. Plans call for beginning the research project next spring.

The U.S. government will provide Hoya about $600,000 in financial aid for the research and development, the company said.

Mayflower Carried No Aristocrats

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Capt. Christopher Jones, master of the Mayflower, regarded her as "a sweet Ship": 180 tons, broad of beam, double decked, with high superstructures or "castles" fore and aft. She even smelled sweet, from years of service in the Mediterranean wine trade.

Mulligan's Stew

But the old salt, whose kindness and concern for his passengers helped found a nation, went to his grave in a churchyard near the London docks without ever dreaming that centuries later — especially on Thanksgiving Day — families would claim with pride and passion and sometimes a touch of perjury to have been descended from the cruise roster of his 1620 voyage to the New World. No ship's company, not even the Ark or the Titanic, bred such boasts of breeding.

There were 102 of them, subtracting the two who died at sea and adding the two who were born before the landing at Plymouth, and Jones knew them all intimately ... or at least well enough to give his life for them. Rather than abandon them on that wintery New England coast, he kept the Mayflower at anchor through the next spring, helping the colonists with the planting that brought forth that first harvest, for which they gave thanks at the first Thanksgiving.

But Jones died of chills and fever a few months after his return to his birthplace near London's Rotherhithe docks, another victim of that first terrible winter at Plymouth that left only 55 survivors to sit down to the famous first Thanksgiving dinner. That winter had been rough on the stout little Mayflower too.

When last seen, in 1624, she was riding at anchor at Rotherhithe "in very poor rim, being valued at 138 pounds and 8 shillings, with all her fittings and one suit of worn sails."

And so they both ended their days, too soon, at Rotherhithe, these noble bearers of the American dream, the old salt and the old ship that made Thanksgiving possible. Had they known what history had in store for them, they might have rocked with laughter in their final anchorage at the pretension born of that stormy North Atlantic passage or sighed in sorrow, like the wind in the worn rigging, at what has become of the commonplace values of hard work and faith in their God that made these commoners from the lower classes of England such uncommonly courageous colonists in the New World.

Going down the passenger list, there were no bluebloods among them. Their common bond, at a time when society was rigidly stratified, was that they came from the cottages of England, not the castles.

Ironically, too, there were no pilgrims landing at Plymouth Rock, because the term did not come into use until the early 19th century. But there were "saints," as the 41 called themselves who belonged to the Separatist church of Robert "Troublechurch" Browne, a famous dissenter from the Church of England. The rest of the ship's company were "strangers," members of the established church who were hired to work for and settle in the colony. Myles Standish, Priscilla Mullens and John Alden, the "pilgrims" made famous by Longfellow, were among the strangers, not the saints.

There were no aristocrats, no landed gentry, no bankers, no lawyers, no bishops, no college professors on the Mayflower passenger list, but there were 18 indentured servants and such blue-collar types as blacksmith, cooper, linen weaver, tailor, hat maker, soldier, sailor, wood carver, silk worker, wool comber, merchant, printer, shopkeeper, cloth maker, sawyer and carpenter.

In addition to the saints, there were a number of celebrated sinners. John Billington was hanged in 1630 for the blunderbuss murder of John Newcomen. His wife, Ellen Billington, was fined five pounds and made "to sit in the stocks and be publickly whipt" for slandering Deacon John Doane. The Bollington boys, 9-year-old Francis and 7-year-old John, were America's first juvenile delinquents. Francis set fire to and almost blew up the Mayflower by firing off a fowling piece in the powder magazine. The other ran away from home and "lost himself in the woodes," as Governor Bradford wrote, "and wandered up and down some five days, living on berries and what he could finde."

Colonist Isaac Allerton, the tailor, was forced to leave Plymouth in disgrace for shady dealings after being elected business agent. Edward Dotey and Edward Leister, both indentured servants, fought the colony's first duel almost as soon as the Mayflower landed, for which they were "tied together heels and heads."

John Cooke, 8-year-old son of the wool comber, grew up to become a church deacon in Plymouth but was "deprived of office and excommunicated for turning Baptist during religious troubles."

Good Humor Man Upset

CHICAGO (AP) — For 34 years, Walter Hill was a Good Humor ice cream man, driving his truck from April 1 to September 30, seven days a week, from 9 a.m. to well after dark. Hill is far from good humored these days.

The Good Humor Corp., orginator of ice cream on a stick almost 60 years ago, says it will no longer sell its chocolate-centered, toasted-almond bars or other delicacies on the street.

The company wants to concentrate on sales to supermarkets, schools, hospitals and fast-food chains.

"I'm quite upset," said Hill, 57, who had the most seniority of 200 Good Humor drivers in the Chicago area. "That job has been something I've looked forward to every summer.

Hill has a job loading trucks in the winter. He says he may try to hold the job year-round.

"I've got quite a lot of thinking to do," he said. "It's a big loss, not only to me. I'm very disappointed. There are a lot of people I'll never forget."

You and the Law

Presented by the State Bar of Texas

Q: Problems keep building up and I'm thinking about moving out and getting a divorce. If I do it, I want to get over with it as quickly as possible. How long does it take to get a divorce in Texas?

A: After the divorce petition is field, the law requires a mandatory sixty day waiting period. You could get back together during that time and drop the proceedings. After this 60 days, the final hearing on the divorce can be scheduled. This will be subject to the caseload of the district court and any complications or problems in your case.

Q: I know a couple that has never paid income tax, and they seem to get away with it. The wife has always wanted to pay the taxes, but her husband wouldn't do it. Is she as guilty as he? If he died, would she be responsible? And one more thing, is it my duty as a citizen to turn them in?

A: When a joint return is filed, each spouse is liable for the full amount of the tax, interest and penalties due. However, fraud penalties don't apply to a spouse who had no intention of defrauding the government, so the wife might not be held responsible. Although you have no legal duty to report them, you can. Anyone supplying helpful information to the IRS about tax cheaters may receive a reward of up to 10% of the taxes colected.

Q: We're planning to sell our home ... if we find a buyer who wants to assume our mortgage, instead of arranging for a new mortgage. Could our mortgage company come back to us for payment of the mortgage if the buyer can't make the monthly payments?

A: Yes, any time you sell your home by having someone assume the balance of your mortgage, the mortgage company retains the right to look to you for the monthly payments if the buyer fails to meet them. To protect yourself in a sale of this type, the contract between you and the buyer should be written to include provisions allowing you to have title to the home returned to you in the event the buyer defaults; then, you would resume responsibility for paying off the mortgage.

Q: A friend of mine told me that if the police recover stolen property from someone who unknowingly bought it, the original owner must reimburse that person before he can recover the property. Is this true?

A: No, this is not true. The person who bought the stolen goods unknowingly is just out the money which he paid for them.

Send your question to "You and the Law," State Bar of Texas, P.O. Box 12487, Austin, 78711. Answers may appear in columns in hypothetical terms; personal answers not possible.

Government Paperwork Runs Into High Costs

By MILLER BONNER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taking the time to fill out forms for Uncle Sam costs businesses at least $1 billion a year.

After investigating the efects of federal paperwork on private industry, the General Accounting Office's 46-page report noted: "The cumulative burden placed on businesses cannot be determined from information presently available."

The GAO did discover, however, that businesses spend 69 million hours filling out 2,125 different forms for the federal government at a cost of more than $1 billion a year and that's "only the tip of the burden iceberg."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, released the GAO report Tuesday noting, "the study shows conclusively what has been suspected all along: the paperwork demands of the federal government add significantly to inflationary pressures in this country."

The study, requested by Bentsen last June as vice chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, included only those agencies that must clear their paperwork demands through GAO or the Office of Management and Budget.

Thus the govenment's paperwork king — the Internal Revenue Service — was not included in the study.

"About 78 percent of all federal reporting requirements are exempt from ... clearance," said the GAO. "Thus, the most pervasive, burdensome, and probably most irritating requirements were not addressed ... the IRS, for example, imposes an estimated 613 million hours of burden annually on individuals and businesses through its tax form requirements."

Some of the specific federl paperwork examples included:

— 1.9 million "Census of wholesale Trade, Retail Trade and Service Industries" reports sent out annually by the Commerce Department which, they estimate, require 45 minutes each to fill out;

— 600,000 "Plan Description Reports" sent out by the Labor Department that require 2½ hours to complete;

— 100 "Passenger Origin-Destination Survey Reports" from the Civil Aeronautics Board which require 1,000 hours each to complete; — and 4,160 "Standard Broadcast and FM Sation Program Logging Rules" from the Federal Communications Commission which require 4,380 hours each to fill out.

The FCC also dominated the report's list of the "Fifty Reporting Requirements Generating the Largest Burden on Businesses in Terms of Total Hours Per Response." The FCC claimed seven of the top 10 spots.

Jury Convicts Three Of Assault

HOUSTON (UPI) — A jury has convicted three defendants, acquitted one and deadlocked on three others charged with assaulting policemen in a Mexican national day disturbance in Moody Park last May.

Jurors deliberated five days before convicting Mary Estrada, 25; John Lucio, 31, and Frank Diaz, 20. They face possible sentences of up to 10 years.

Beatrice Cavazos, 23, was acquitted and the panel deadocked on Rey Garza, 21; Daniel Gamaz, 22, and Christina Acosta, 23. Judge Lee Duggan ordered the panel to deliberate a little longer on the last three but then declared a mistrial.

The seven were charged after a riot in which several persons, including a television reporter, were injured and several businesses burned.

Rains Placed On Probation, Plans South Plains Return

CLEBURNE (AP) — Jurors say they recommended a probated sentence for a South Plains doctor convicted of trying to kill his terminally ill mother because they assumed his intent was to end her suffering.

The doctor, Robert Milton Rains, 52, said he was going back to his hometown of Littlefield to resume his practice.

"I've got 20 babies due this month," said Rains, who could have received up to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for the attempted murder of Bertha Brown, 77.

Instead, he was sentenced Tuesday to two years of probation, the minimum sentence under law. "I appreciate their leniency, but I disagree on their findings (the conviction)," Rains said.

Prosecutors said he tried to suffocate the woman July 29 by taping her mouth shut and blocking her nose with tissue. Nurses in the Johnson County Memorial Hospital entered the room and removed the "mask." The woman died of stomach cancer Oct. 23.

The "mercy killing" aspect was not brought up by either side during the trial. Rains insisted he was not trying to kill his mother but was using a glycerin-soaked tissue to ease her parched lips and used the tape to hold it in place.

However, juror Gilbert Mesecher said, "The biggest part of the jury thought it was a mercy killing (attempt). It had a lot to do with the thinking of everybody."

Another juror, Lester Oliver, said, "I think mercy killing had a great deal of bearing on the decisions. It was discussed considerably."

Mesecher said jurors took eight to 10 votes on Monday before agreeing unanimously to find Rains guilty. He said the first vote was 10-2 to convict.

Rains is apparently free to continue to practice medicine, despite the felony conviction. John Sortore, chief of the investigative department of the State Board of Medical Examiners, said before the verdict was decided that a probated term would not allow the state agency to revoke Rains' license.

"Even if they find him guilty and put him on probation, the probation is not the final sentence," Sortore said. "He can get off that probation and request a new trial and the judge could overturn the conviction. But if there is time served or a fine paid, that is a final conviction."

Defense attorney Travis Shelton of Lubbock said he has not decided yet whether to appeal the conviction. The defense has 10 days to file notice of appeal.

U.S. Judge To Decide On Hughes Trial Site

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts says he will decide in a few days whether to move the definitive case on Howard Hughes' residence — a case with tremendous state tax implications — to a federal court in Denver.

"I'll try to have something by the end of this week or the first of next week," Roberts told attorneys for Texas, California and the Hughes estate at the close of a hearing Tuesday.

Administrators of the Hughes estate filed their "interpleader action" in Roberts' court, seeking a final determination of the late multi-millionaire's domicile.

California, which, like Texas, claims Hughes as a resident, wants to move the trial to Denver.

William Rice Lummis, Hughes' first cousin, and Annette Gano Lummis, Hughes' aunt, are administrators of the estate. They contend that Nevada — which has no estate tax — was their relative's legal residence.

Donald S. Thomas, an Austin lawyer, argued California's case to change venue to Denver.

"The justice of this state and of this court will be at issue in the press of this nation," said Thomas, who was personal attorney for Lyndon B. Johnson.

He said friends had called him "traitor" for taking California's venue case.

"To my mind, the issue of appearance of justice is more important than the pecuniary interest of the people (jurors) who will determine the facts of this case," Thomas said.

He asserted that a juror with a family of four would have a $50 stake in the outcome of the trial, in terms of Texas' potential revenue in inheritance taxes from the Hughes fortune.

Attorney General John Hill told Roberts he finds Thomas' argument "personally offensive and insulting to the people of this state and to this court, and certainly incorrect."

"They are asserting that Texans are not fair-minded and are going to violate their oath (as jurors) because of the $12.50 indirect pecuniary benefit they would receive," Hill said. "... The word and oath of a Texan who comes into this court room is not for sale."

Hill said he still hoped Roberts would throw out the Lummis' case and "give full faith and credit" to a Houston jury verdict that Hughes was a Texas resident at the time of his death.

But if the case is tried, he said, it should be in the court that the administrators chose for it — Roberts'.

Alcohol Ad Rules Due For Revision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms said Tuesday it is revising alcoholic beverage advertising regulations that have been on the books since the 1930s.

"Some rules are now outdated, others considered too broad to be enforced fairly," the bureau said in a statement. "The proposed revision is a recognition of the evolution in advertising techniques, consumer attitudes and awareness since Prohibition ended 45 years ago."

The new guidelines, involving such things as product labeling, will have an impact on the advertising of beer, distilled spirits and wine in the media and retail marketplace, said the bureau, which is part of the Treasury Department.

Data Shows Middle East Investments In Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abu Dhabi, a small but rich Middle East oil nation, has acquired substantial holdings in U.S. airlines and air freight companies, a Senate subcommittee revealed today.

Reports submitted to the Civil Aeronautics Board and made public by the subcommittee showed that Kuwait, another oil-rich Arab nation, also has bought significant holdings in one airline and an air freight carrier.

Abu Dhabi, however, holds much larger and widespread airline stock, obtaining from slightly more than 1 percent to 2½ percent of the common stock in four of the principle U.S. commercial air carriers and a sizeable bloc of preferred stock in another, the documents showed.

In such companies, whose stock is widely scattered among many stockholders, as little as 1 percent may represent a significant influence, financial analysts say.

The data collected by the CAB indicated the air transport stocks were selected and purchased on behalf of Abu Dhabi and Kuwait by Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., itself one of the United States' largest owners and trustees of corporate stocks.

The Senate subcommittee on citizens and shareholders rights and remedies, chaired by Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, gathered the information from the CAB files.

The CAB requires a report by any trustee holding more than 5 percent of the stock of a U.S. air carrier, including a breakdown of the actual owners of shares totalling 1 percent or more.

Morgan Guaranty's report to the CAB, dated last Oct. 27, stated that as of Sept. 30, 1978, Abu Dhabi owned 500,000 shares, or 2½ percent, of Braniff International Corp., a major airline. The stock apparently was acquired since the previous report was filed last May.

A congressional study on corporate voting rights last January, by way of comparison, showed only three voting stockholders controlling more than 2.5 percent each in Braniff, so Abu Dhabi now must rank among Braniff's largest investors.

The January study listed as Braniff's top voting stock holders two investment firms — Dreyfus Corp. with 4.7 percent and Capital Research and Management Co. with 4.12 percent — and the Ohio State Teachers Retirement System with 3.12 percent.

The report indicated that Morgan was authorized to buy or sell the Braniff stock on behalf of the Abu Dhabi Investment Authority, but that Abu Dhabi retained the authority to vote the stock.

Similar arrangements applied to the other Abu Dhabi stock acquisitions reported by Morgan Guaranty:

—500,000 shares, or 2.52 percent, of Eastern Airlines, making it perhaps the third largest stockholder, compared with the Rockefeller family's 4.67 percent and the Dreyfus Corp. 3.37 percent as reported in last January's study.

—400,000 shares, or 2.52 percent, in Trans World Airlines, which was dominated in the January study by the 14.62 percent held by United Missouri Bank of Kansas City and the Dreyfus Corp., with 3.57 percent.

—260,000 shares, or 1.05 percent, in United Air Lines. In the January study, 14 organizations voted more than one percent of United, headed by Morgan Guaranty with 6.73 percent voting power.

—130,000 shares of convertible preferred series A stock, with voting rights, in Alleghany Airlines.

—250,000 shares, or 4.06 percent, in Seaboard World Airlines, which was not covered by the January study, and 150,000 shares, or 3.53 percent, in Airborne Freight Corp.

The CAB information showed Kuwait acquiring 80,000 shares, or 1.30 percent, in Seaboard, and 120,300 shares, or 2.83 percent, in Airborne Freight Corp.

Toll Roads Called For By Briscoe

ABILENE (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says Texas must fight an "anti-highway, anti-concrete, anti-automobile attitude" by continuing to concentrate on expanding its highway system through toll roads.

"Texas today, the greatest growth economy of any state, must have a continuing, permanent program of highway maintenance, improvement and construction," he said Tuesday at a ceremony installing Sam Waldrop as a member of the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission.

"Every possible means of building needed facilities must be utilized. This means that there must be more toll facilities now and in the future, and these construction projects must be built where they are wanted by the local people and where they are economically feasible to supplement the limited amount of funds available."

Briscoe was often accused by teachers and others of placing highway construction ahead of public schools in distribution of state funds.

Briscoe defended his backing of the program, however, saying, "I am firmly convinced that not only was the passage of that program a major accomplishment, it was absolutely essential to the future of our state. I do not believe that those who were the loudest in their criticism of the Highway Financing Act of 1977 will attempt to use that as an issue again."

Brisoe said highway construction has been an important factor in the economic growth of Texas, but an attitude developed in recent years that the highway system was complete and needed no additions.

"There developed an anti-highway, anti-concrete, anti-automobile attitude that became very strong even here in Texas," he said.

"Because of the lack of support, we came to the point just recently here in Texas of being right on the verge of losing our $30 billion or more investment in the finest highway system anywhere."

He recalled the difficulty in 1977 of passing major highway funding legislation, which he said was absolutely essential.

"Unfortunately, a large percent of that lack of support came from metropolitan areas where the need for additional highway freeway construction is the greatest. Even after the program finally passed and became law, there was loud and strong criticism."

U.S. Drops Peace Attempt For Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has abandoned for now its attempt to get contending factions in Rhodesia to agree to attend a peace conference, according to the State Department.

The decision was based on Rhodesia's air strikes against guerrilla camps in Zambia and the Salisbury government's announcement last week that elections set for December will be postponed until next year, according to spokesman Hodding Carter.

"It's necessary, we believe, for the dust to settle at least somewhat before our initiative can be usefully pursued," Carter said. He added, however, that an all-parties meeting to negotiate a settlement remains our goal."

Reassessment Hikes President's Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will pay about $1,443 in additional local taxes and interest because of a property reassessment, but will be able to deduct half of that from his federal tax return.

Tax officials in Sumter County, Ga., reappraised Carter's peanut business at the president's request after a news report suggested Carter underpaid local property taxes on the business in 1975 and 1976 by at least $8,000.

The White House said Tuesday that as a result of the reassessment, the president's family peanut business owes $2,328.24 in additional taxes and interest. The president owns 62 percent of the partnership.

But press secretary Jody Powell said the net cost to Carter will be about $745 because the Carter will be able to claim the additional tax and interest payments as a deduction on his federal income taxes for this year. Carter is roughly in the 50 percent tax bracket.

ABC reported last October an apparent discrepancy in valuation of more than $450,000 in the peanut business.

The Sumter County tax board found $167,800 worth of taxable farm vehicles, equipment and construction labor costs which for various reasons the president's brother, Billy Carter, had not included in figuring local property taxes.

Billy Carter was running the peanut business at the time and filed the local property tax returns. But Powell said the president "accepts responsibility."

The taxable items that had escaped taxation included labor costs associated with construction of a peanut shelling facility and several unlicensed farm vehicles and trailers.

Powell said Billy Carter had mistakenly thought the labor costs were not subject to local property taxes and that he had ommitted the unlicensed vehicles and trailers because of "an oversight."

Powell said another omission occurred when the purchase prices of some equipment on an eight-page list was omitted and the tax board totaled only the prices listed, without asking about the missing prices.

Local tax officials said they were convinced the Carters did not try to avoid their fair tax obligation.

"What Billy's done is standard procedure that nobody's ever questioned," said Ronnie Greer, chief appraiser of the Sumter County board of tax assessors.

Board chairman Russell Thomas Jr. said the reassessment means the president will pay "more than most in similar circumstances." "Perhaps they're paying more than their fair share and that's the price of fame and glory, I guess," he said.

Billy Carter said, "We've always paid our fair share, frankly more than anybody else ... It was an honest mistake by me."

Powell and presidential counsel Robert Lipshutz said the original ABC report erred on several counts.

ABC had said Carter valued some new equipment at more than $1 million when claiming federal investment tax credits for 1975 and 1976, but valued the same equipment at only $535,000 for county property tax purposes.

The network said Carter would have owed at least $8,000 more in local personal property taxes had the warehouse used the higher figures consistently.

But Powell said ABC failed to account for the difference between purchase price, which is used to figure federal investment tax credits, and resale value, which is generally lower.

Government Reports 146-Year-Old Woman

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — The official government news agency today told of a 146-year-old woman who remembers events of 1842 and who is growing a new set of teeth.

The agency identified the woman as Ai Beebal, who lives in a village 60 miles west of Karachi, and said she is the oldest inhabitant of the subcontinent.

She was born in 1831 and vividly recalls the Mir Dynasty and the defeat of its ruler, Mir Nasir Khan Talpur, by the British in 1842, the report said.

The dispatch said she was in good health and growing new teeth.

Avon, Tiffany Talk Merger

NEW YORK (AP) — Avon is calling and Tiffany is answering.

Avon Products Inc., the cosmetics maker, says it is discussing the possibility of a merger worth more than $100 million with Tiffany Co., the swank Fifth Avenue jewelry store.

Each company would remain an independent entity after the merger, Tiffany and Avon said. But the merger would bring under one corporate umbrella the gold, silver, crystal and jewels of Tiffany, and Avon's network of 995,000 representatives in the United States and 22 foreign countries who deliver cosmetics directly to their customers at home.

A statement issued Tuesday by both firms said the merger proposal would involve a tax-free exchange of .845 of an Avon share for each of Tiffany's 2.31 million shares.

Avon stock sold Tuesday in New York Stock Exchange consolidated trading for $53.125 a share and Tiffany traded on the over-the-counter market at $19.25 a share, making the merger worth about $103.7 million at current market prices.

Tiffany Chairman Walter Hoving, who owned about 17.4 percent of the 141-year-old company as of April 1, would receive about $18 million in Avon stock in the merger and would become a director of the parent firm.

The merger would be subject to the drafting of a definitive agreement and to approval by directors and shareholders of both companies. Avon has about 33,900 shareholders; Tiffany Co. has about 3,700.

Ex-Editor Admits To Making Copies Of Slayings Reports

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — A former Pryor newsman admitted in testimony here Tuesday that he made copies of confidential state reports in the June 1977 slaying of three Girl Scouts, but said District Attorney Sid Wise may not have known he had copies of the reports.

Ron L. Grimsley, 37, former editor of the Pryor Daily Times, testified in a hearing for Gene Leroy Hart.

Hart, 34, is charged with three counts of first-degree murder in the June 13, 1977 sex slayings of three Tulsa-area Girl Scouts at Camp Scott near Locust Grove.

Following Grimsley's testimony, District Judge William Whistler denied a request by Hart's attorneys that they be given access to hundreds of pages of Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation work products.

Chief defense counsel Garvin Isaacs indicated he would appeal the ruling to the state Court of Criminal Appeals, however, signalling a probable delay of Hart's trial until next year.

Hart, who was bound over following a month-long preliminary hearing in July, had been scheduled to face trial Nov. 27. Whistler set a Nov. 28 hearing on new motions in the case Tuesday, erasing that schedule.

Wise said the trial date "is now in limbo." And he said chances the trial will be held before January are "diminishing rapidly."

The 900 jurors whose names were drawn for the trial must be notified of the trial date by mail 10 days in advance, and jury selection is expected to consume a week.

Wise, who was an unsuccessful candidate for state attorney general, leaves office Jan. 2. His successor, former assistant district attorney T. Jack Graves of Claremore, has had no direct involvement in the prosecution.

Grimsley, who quit his newspaper job to become Wise's campaign manager, said he placed copies of an unknown number of OSBI reports in his briefcase after helping the prosecutor make photo copies.

"I didn't have Mr. Wise's permission," Grimsley said. "I wasn't granted permission. I don't know if he knew if I had them or not."

Isaacs at one point asked unsuccessfully that the hearing be continued, saying he was "shocked and surprised" by Grimsley's testimony.

Isaacs alleged Grimsley had obtained from Wise copies of 26 pages of the work reports. Defense attorneys paid Grimsley $645 for copies of the reports and asked him for additional reports.

Grimsley, who appeared after a bench warrant was issued, said he had refrained from returning to Pryor because defense attorney Gary Pitchlynn threatened to "kick my ... head in" if he did not turn over additional reports.

Whistler said he did not think Wise "showed very good judgment in allowing a stranger — an outsider — to handle the work product."

But he also strongly questioned why Isaacs waited until November to tell the court he had received the confidential reports from Grimsley in July. The judge said it appeared to be a defense tactic to stall the trial.

Whistler told attorneys Tuesday the trial probably could not begin before January.

Grand Jury Investigates Charges In Vesco Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury here is investigating charges that efforts were made to convince the Carter administration to halt extradition proceedings against financier Robert L. Vesco, according to sources.

A key witness in the investigation is R.L. Herring, 43, a heavy-equipment salesman from Albany, Ga.

A man identifying himself as Herring telephoned the Miami bureau of The Associated Press to say he was being called to testify before the Vesco grand jury in Washington.

Herring, who was convicted last month on federal fraud and racketeering charges unrelated to the Vesco case, has said he hired W. Spencer Lee IV, an Albany, Ga., lawyer, last year to help plead Vesco's case because Lee was a friend of White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordon and another Carter aide, Richard Harden.

Herring has said he and Lee also talked with Charles Kirbo, a close friend and adviser to Carter in Atlanta, to discuss the details of acquiring $10 million in stock from Vesco.

One source, who asked to remain anonymous, said Tuesday that the grand jury is looking into the alleged scheme to offer the $10 million worth of stock in exchange for giving Vesco the chance to plead his case to officials.

The New York Times reported Tuesday that the investigation was viewed by high-ranking administration officials as an inquiry into the credibility of syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, who was instrumental in publicizing the charges.

Carter administration officials have charged that Anderson irresponsibly printed the allegations without checking the facts.

The Justice Department has declined comment on the investigation and officials refuse to say whether any grand jury is specifically examining Anderson's credibility.

Vesco fled the country while under indictment on stock fraud charges and under a federal subpeona in connection with alleged political payoffs to officials of the former Nixon administration.

Both Jordan and Kirbo have denied any involvement in the alleged attempt to quash extradition proceedings against Vesco.

Lee has said he was paid $10,000 by Herring to intervene in Vesco's behalf, but that Harden talked him out of pursuing the matter.

Harden has said he discussed the matter with the president in February 1977, shortly after the administration took office. Carter has said he does not recall that conversation, but a memo turned up in Justice Department files in which the president told Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, "Please see Spencer Lee from Albany when he requests an appointment."

Bell has said he did not see the memo and that Lee never asked for the appointment.

The Justice Department has said that FBI agents planned to question the president, along with other individuals named in the case.

Work-Related Deaths Rise, Bureau Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal safety officials say they are mystified by a new survey that shows a sharp increase in work-related deaths in 1977, the first rise in four years.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported Tuesday that on-the-job deaths at workplaces with 11 or more employees rose 21 percent from 1976 after declining three years in a row.

The report showed 4,750 fatalities in 1977, compared with 3,940 the year before and 5,340 in 1973, when the bureau conducted its first annual survey of occupational injuries and illnesses.

"No one here knows how to explain it," said James Foster, a spokesman for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. "I'm not sure if anyone ever will know."

William Mead, a statistician for the bureau, defended the accuracy of the figures but likewise had no explanation for the increase.

The survey also showed that job-related injuries last year rose 6 percent from 1976 to 5.3 million, while work-related illnesses declined 4 percent, dropping to 162,000.

The rise in injuries was due mainly to an increase in the workforce, the survey said.

Overall, one out of every 11 workers on the average suffered a job-related injury or illness in 1977, about the same proportion as in 1976, the bureau said.

OSHA's administrator, Dr. Eula Bingham, said, "These statistics reaffirm the fact that OSHA cannot do the job alone. We must have a commitment from every employer to eliminate on-the-job hazards."

She urged industry groups to stop investing its time and resources in challenging OSHA regulations in court, and join the agency in making the workplace safer.

Business groups recently succeeded in overturning or delaying implementation of OSHA standards aimed at limiting worker exposure to harmful substances such as lead, benzene and cotton dust.

The survey did not cover employers having 10 or fewer workers, but the bureau said 800 persons on the average are killed at such workplaces each year.

Panel Considers Area Requests

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Two applications to provide home health care in Lubbock County and the 14 other counties in Health Service Area No. 2 are to be considered by the Texas Health Facilities Commission at its Nov. 30 voting session.

Visiting Nurse Service of Lubbock, Inc., has requested a certificate of need to provide nursing procedures, in-service programs, medical education, and to perform insurance physicals in patients' homes.

Home Help Care, Inc. of Austin has requested permission to provide skilled nursing care, physical therapy, speech therapy, medical social services, home health aides, occupational therapy, respiratory therapy, diabetic education and nutritional counseling.

The applications are among several matters set for the meeting.

Murder Charge Filed Today

A murder charge was filed today against T.C. Robinson Jr. as the result of Tuesday's shooting death of Joe Earl Tucker.

Tucker, 30, died about 2:30 p.m. after being shot at a 1324 E. 25th Street residence shortly after 10 a.m.

The Criminal District Attorney's Office recommended a $7,500 bond for Robinson, 22, of 1008 E. 28th St., No. 5.

Police arrived at the East 25th Street residence to find Tucker lying on his back in a hallway. He reportedly had been shot once in the area of the left temple.

Robinson was arrested shortly thereafter at the county's adult probation office.

Reports indicated that an argument between Robinson and Tucker over a woman may have preceded the shooting.

Costa Rica Cuts Nicaraguan Ties

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — President Anastasio Somoza today ignored a deadline for his resignation and Costa Rica broke ties with Nicaragua and closed off the border.

San Jose severed diplomatic ties with Managua and shut down the border crossing in Penas Blancas — stranding dozens of freight trucks on both sides — after a border clash that killed two Costa Rican soldiers and a Nicaraguan.

The violence with its southern neighbor and tension in the capital convinced many Nicaraguans another civil war was brewing like the one in September that killed more than 1,500 persons, most of them civilians.

However, there were no immediate reports of violence in Managua or the rest of the country following the midnight deadline that Somoza ignored.

The Broad Opposition Front, a coalition of anti-Somoza groups, had demanded that the president step down by today, and walked out of internationally sponsored mediation talks to end the impasse.

Somoza rejected a plan by the international mediators — the United States, the Dominican Republic and Guatemala — to allow a national plebiscite to decide whether he should remain in power until his term ends in 1981 or resign now, ending a 41-year rule by his family.

The foreign minister of the Dominican Republic, Ramon E. Jimenez, warned Nicaragua was headed toward a "new bloodbath."

Nicaraguan National Guard sources said the 3,000 troops posted along the 450-mile border with Costa Rica were on "extreme alert" in anticipation of a new offensive by the Sandinista Liberation Front guerrillas, who tried to topple Somoza's regime earlier this year, and then fled south of the border.

Costa Rican President Rodrigo Carazo announced Tuesday night he was cutting diplomatic relations with Nicaragua to protest a clash between Costa Rican civil guardsmen and Somoza's troops.

Carazo said the Nicaraguans crossed into Costa Rican territory and opened fire on Costa Rican civil guardsmen, killing two, wounding a third and capturing a fourth.

He urged the Organization of American States to convene an immediate meeting of Latin Foreign Ministers.

Costa Rica, a nation without a standing army, has repeatedly charged Nicaraguan forces with invading their territory and airspace in search of Sandinista guerrillas.

A Nicaraguan National Guard source confirmed the clash but said it took place in Nicaraguan territory.

The mediators' plan for a plebiscite on continued Somoza rule — drafted by the United States — was also rejected by opposition leaders demanding Somoza's resignation.

Nicaraguans stayed in their homes Tuesday despite the lifting of a 67-day-old curfew, a concession to the opposition by the president.

Somoza told reporters he had uncovered a Sandinista plot to shell his presidential office, a squat windowless building known as "The Bunker," from a nearby house and that his troops had captured 48 rocket grenades and mortars.

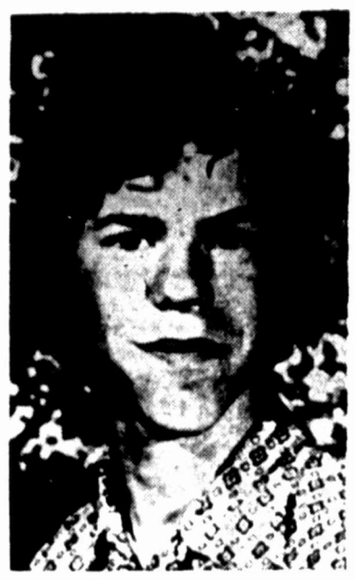
Truck Accident Kills Hitchhiker

AMARILLO (UPI) — A Friona man, whose car broke down earlier, was struck by a pickup truck and killed Tuesday as he attempted to hitchhike home.

Daniel Perez Gonzales, 20, employed at Missouri Beef Packers, was in the fog-shrouded, southbound lane of the Canyon Expressway when the accident occurred.

Police said they would make a routine presentation to the District Attorney's office today. Officers said a truck driven by Ronald David Eubanks, 29, struck Gonzales about 4:20 a.m. The victim was thrown about 50 feet from the point of impact.



ERICH TOY

Youth Burned By Attackers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Three juveniles were in custody today for allegedly dousing a 15-year-old boy with charcoal lighter and setting him afire after binding his hands behind him, police said.

The victim, Erich Toy, was reported in serious but stable condition at West Penn Hospital after the fiery attack Tuesday in a darkened walkway only 100 yards from the high school he attends.

Toy told police he was jumped by three boys in the walkway between two large brick houses after he left school at noon to smoke a cigarette.

With his clothes aflame, the 10th grader ran to a nearby lawn where a passing motorist stopped and beat out the fire as the boy writhed in pain, police said.

His rescuer, Bruce Short of Squirrel Hill, and other passersby then called for help, police said.

A quart can of charcoal lighter fluid was found at the spot where the youth had apparently been tied, doused and set afire, police said.

The three juveniles were not identified because of their ages.

"They came into the station and gave themselves up because apparently they knew they were wanted," a police spokesman said.

Police said Short and the other rescuers reported that an unidentified youth had claimed the attack on Toy followed an earlier apparent burning attempt that day.

Critic Praises Comic Steve Martin's TV Special

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There've been a lot of turkeys on TV this year. But tonight, Thanksgiving Eve, brings an NBC show we all should give thanks for. It is "Steve Martin: A Wild and Crazy Guy."

Now, I may be the only guy around who never has seen his caperings. All the hype about him has made me wonder if it's mainly hype.

But an advance peep at his NBC special indicates he is the McCoy, a first-rate mix of TV's Ernie Kovacs and Steve Allen and, from print, humorists Robert Benchley, Frank Sullivan and S.J. Perelman.

His hour starts conventionally. He's backstage at an open-air theater, a bundle of nerves given support by Milton Berle, Bob Hope and George Burns. Burns offers the wisest show-biz advice:

"Always take your wallet on the stage with you."

On stage he goes, mighty cheers ensue. But just as you suspect this will be just another taped stage performance, Martin's interior voice speaks of how he's doing, of lust, of pregnancy.

Cut to a shot of him outside a bank, of a woman holding a baby and pointing him out to a cop. And Martin is heard to say: "Now wait a minute, I've never been to Duluth."

He thinks of buying a used car. From a guy who explains, "I'm moving to Florida." The car has "an original hood." But there's something odd about it, the radio seems to play upside down or something.

He thinks of France, of theater, of being a love god, but digs: "After 40 seconds my accent runs out."

At his plays' banjo, his mind drifts back to the early days when he worked the rodeo circuit and rode wild critters at great risk to life and limb. The critters here, well, have sort of a hard-shell finish.

Back on stage, he talks of how his cat keeps cashing his checks. But you see Martin's serious side, the guy who reports on a city dump being turned into a park, a pollution-fighter trying to stop people from littering America with green paper.

There's Judge Martin, in black robes, on tennis court, where a man is charged with bad backhand. An outraged lawyer rises. And says:

"May I remind the court that in 1733 Capt. Kidd was not an Arthurian knight-errant type. He never mentioned the ecology."

Quoth the judge: "That's irrelevant."

Actor Sees Hollywood As Boring

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hurd Hatfield isn't your everyday movie actor — he loathes Hollywood, doesn't believe the show must go on, and can be perfectly happy not acting at all.

He probably is the only actor who could live happily in the south of Ireland for two years without a telephone — no agents, no parties, and not much heat.

Hatfield has been acting under the shadow of his best known role, "The Portrait of Dorian Gray," for 30 years.

He was seen most recently as the television reporter in CBS' miniseries dramatization of Irving Wallace's "The Word," and he plays a Maxwell Perkins-type editor in the just-completed television dramatization of Thomas Wolfe's "You Can't Go Home Again," which CBS will broadcast during the 1978-79 season.

While he is enthusiastic about the Wolfe role, about "The Word" he said, "That wasn't the part for me. I should have played either the old Metropolitan — the park Nicky (Nehemiah) Persoff plays so beautifully — or else Ron Moody's role as LeBrun, racing around the streets shouting.

"But they never let me do those parts — I'm always all dressed up and standing up straight. I've been playing mostly the same roles for 30 years — I'm always a smoothie — and that's boring to do for 30 years. 'Dorian Gray' really has been a curse for me."

He admits the thousands of dollars involved can lure him into doing a television role, even if he isn't enthralled with the part, he "loathes Hollywood to live in — I never did like it."

"I don't like palm trees," he said, "I hate all that boring sunshine, and it's a restless society without any roots."

The actor insists that acting isn't something he feels artistically driven to do, and even more heretically, he insists, "I don't believe the show must go on, even on the night your grandson has been run over and killed.

"Life is more important than art, even if art may last longer than life. We all have to make sacrifices to success, but the human values are more important."

Mazda Production Up In October

TOKYO (AP) — Toyo Kogyo Co., producer of Mazda cars and trucks, announced today that it had produced 79,923 motor vehicles in October, up 25.6 percent from 63,633 in October 1977, and up from 76,933 in September.

Exports totaled 46,503, up 0.3 percent from 46,382 the year before, and up from 45,203 in the previous month.

Domestic sales totaled 36,042 in October, up 18.2 percent from 30,502 the same month last year, and up from 29,948 in September.

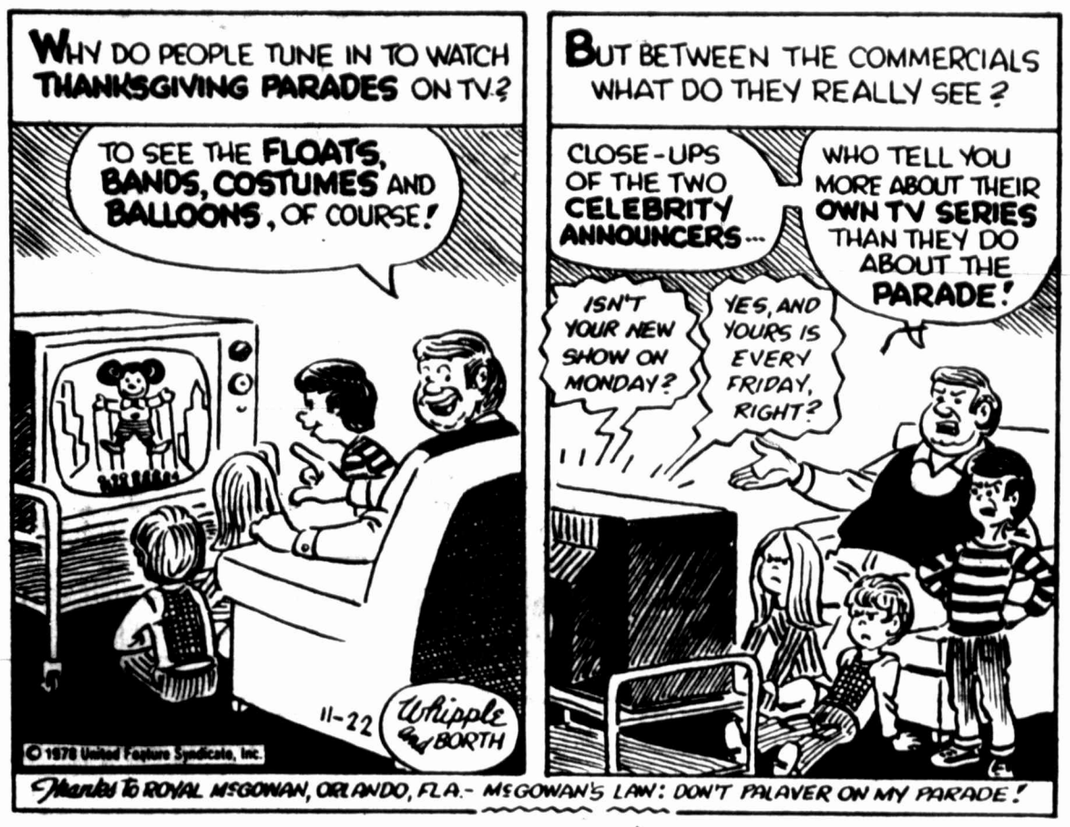
THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW®

by Whipple and Borth



HY GARDENER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: Since you wrote a Broadway column for the New York Herald-Tribune for many years, how do you explain the resurgence of "keyhole journalism" today? With new magazines (like "People," "Us," "Gallery," etc.), newspapers and radio-TV reporters making news out of gossip. How come? — Woody F., New Hyde Park, N.Y.

A: We have a hunch that the new surge of popularity has come about because there are more people today who are interested in other people than in the heyday of Broadway and Hollywood.

It's all a part of this era of candor and permissiveness. Celebrities today go on radio and TV talk shows and say things about themselves they'd deny if someone else said it about them. They're the same in face-to-face interviews with writers they respect.

Back a decade or two, could you imagine prominent politicians, movie stars or super-athletes admitting they were drug users or alcoholics? That they've cheated on their spouses, some even naming names? Today we listen as dignified women openly talk about their breast cancers, facelifts, pregnancies while blissfully unmarried or living as man and wife without benefit of vows.

Years ago, we were so sure that the winds of time were changing and that gossip was going through a transitional period, we wrote a syndicated Trib column captioned "Don't Call Me a Broadway Columnist!" The gossip column, we felt, started to die when Hedda Hopper, Louella Parsons, Dorothy Kilgallen, Danton Walker, Ed Sullivan, Leonard Lyons, Walter Winchell and other practitioners of the three-dot school died. Its resurgence is remarkable.

So much so that the latest gossip has NBC thinking about producing a TV situation comedy series called "Gossip." (If it's a hit, we'd like to have the keyhole concession to the series.)

Even Bob Hope has been talking about playing the life and times of Walter Winchell in a film either made-for-TV or for movie theaters.

To us the danger with gossip, unless checked and rechecked, is that it could turn out to be part-fact and part-fiction. Or based on hearsay, jealousy, even white lies.

We once asked Winchell if he checked everything he printed or used on the air. He stared, smiled and said, "No. You can lose a lot of great items that way!"

Let's face it. Gossip, in any guise, will always be with us as long as there are two people around ready to talk about a third.

Q: James Garner is one of our favorites. Has he got just as good a sense of humor when it isn't written for him? — Vicky Thomas, San Francisco.

A: Yes. Jim garners many chuckles with unexpected ripostes. Like the time he was to present some awards on a sports show. Standing around with Wilt Chamberlain, Carl Yastrzemski, Johnny Unitas and other greats, he stared into the news cameras and said plaintively, "Gosh. This is like all my bubble-gum cards come to life!"

Q: Any idea of how many cars are stolen in the U.S. every year? — James T. Smith, Jersey City, N.J.

A: A company that insures cars checked and found that one car, (not necessarily the one they insure!) is stolen every 32 seconds. In 1977, for example, some 948,024 vehicles were stolen!

Q: Anything to the scoop that George Burns will play his own son in his next movie? — Theresa S., Minneapolis.

A: No, George will act his age and play an elderly man involved with a teen-age runaway. She will be played by the rage of her age, Brooke Shields.

Q: Didn't John F. Kennedy get into the Guinness Book of Records as the fastest talker in public life? — Dale M., Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

A: Yes. In December 1961, then-President Kennedy, gave a speech at the highest rate of speed ever recorded by someone in public life, 327-words-per-minute. According to Guinness, few people are able to speak articulately at a sustained speed above 300-words-per-minute.

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 11748, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Marilyn and Hy Gardner will answer as many questions as they can their column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

'Hartford Appeal' Stirs Debate

Second In A Series

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Are American church members hearing "signals of transcendence," feeling a sense of the presence of an ultimate meaning beyond this world and themselves?

Or are they, in rejecting the political and social activism of the 1960s when it was said "the world writes the churches' agenda," turning to a new religious privatism that rejects both social action and a transcendent God in favor of personal fulfillment and a "me first" attitude?

These questions have been hotly — and sometimes bitterly — debated since an ecumenical group of mainline Protestant, Catholic and evangelical theologians dropped the so-called "Hartford Appeal" into the still, quiet waters of theological reflection in 1975.

The essence of the Hartford statement was that contemporary theology had lost its soul and become "captive" to willo'-the-wisp fads of secular, modern thought which denigrates or rejects God's transcendence.

"What is here at stake," the Appeal said, "is nothing less than the reality of God. We did not invent God; God invented us."

The Appeal came at a time when American society, including the churches, seemed to be drawing back from the radical social activism that characterized the 1960s and early 1970s.

The bloom was off the flower children and burned out radicals were retreating to country communes, or like antiwar leader Rennie Davis, turning to eastern gurus, or like Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver, becoming "born again" Christians.

Some sociologists began talking about a "new religious consciousness" that would transform both church and society.

In both secular and religious society a new spirituality appeared to be being born with business executives turning to Transcendental Meditation, pastors extolling the virtues of Transactional Analysis, EST and other secular self-fulfillment programs and what appeared to be masses of young people turning to new and ersatz religious and quasi-religious movements like Scientology, the Way or the Unification Church.

A Gallup poll found that some six million people had dabbled with Transcendental Meditation, five million with yoga, three million with mysticism and perhaps two million with other forms of eastern religion. An estimated 32 million people, equally divided among churchgoers and non-churchgoers, believe in astrology.

In addition, it found another three million involved with the charismatic movement — a specifically Christian form of spiritual renewal that stresses prayer, inner spirituality and which is manifested in the "gifts of the Holy Spirit" such as speaking in tongues and healing.

Nor is the tendency toward a new spirituality limited to Protestants and Catholics.

Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, president of the American Jewish Congress, told the organization's annual meeting earlier this year that the Jewish community in the United States was taking two "widely divergent paths."

"One is the path of disappearance — interfaith marriage, voluntary 'drop-outs' from Jewish life and the lowest birthrate of any ethnic, racial or religious group in the country."

At the same time, however, Hertzberg said, there is a "hunger for Jewish content" among many Jews in such organizations as the AJC even though they came to the organization for secular reasons such as to fight anti-Semitism.

"We see it in the growing number of 'havuroth' — small groups of Jewish families that spin off from larger congregations in order to enjoy a sense of Jewish intimacy and fellowship with one another, escaping the huge and impersonal congregations that have characterized much of synagogue life in America," Hertzberg said.

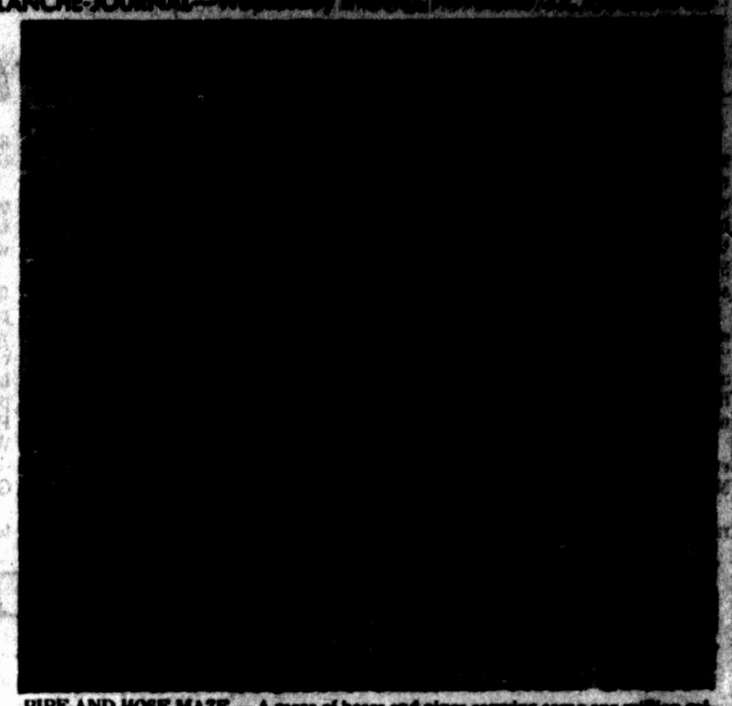
Gallup, in an international poll for the Charles F. Kettering Foundation, found the United States "to be the most religious nation of the world among the advanced nations surveyed."

But some sociologists and religious leaders, however, dispute the notion of a "new religious consciousness" being associated with the cults and fringe religious movements.

In a new book to be published next month, entitled "Religion in America — 1950 to the present," Martin Marty and Douglas Johnson argue that the so-called "Age of Aquarius did not last long" and while the new religious explosion of the early 1970s left countless well-established small new religions it is "not likely that in the near future any of the new groups would become strong enough" to challenge mainline religion in the United States.

Johnson does, however, find a basic religious impulse in the widespread search for meaning in the United States.

"The charismatic movement in the Catholic Church and the re-emergence of the evangelical expression within some of the major Protestant denominations show the need for a religious experience that is not so much rational as emotional," according to Johnson. "It is a need to dwell on the inner being, so that external wants are not excluded but put into a longer term perspective."



PIPE AND HOSE MAZE — A maze of hoses and pipes carrying some one million gallons of fluid and 2.8 million pounds of sand is used by Mitchell Energy Development Corp. in its record-size massive hydraulic fracture of a natural gas well near Austin. Company officials say as a result of the fracture the reserves from the well will be increased some two to four billion cubic feet. (AP Laserphoto)

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Goals you will seek tomorrow will not be handed to you on a silver platter. Be prepared to expend extra effort for what you deem important.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Tomorrow you could let your logic and objectivity desert you and resort to the luxury of emotionalizing. This won't solve a thing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you're not careful you could obligate yourself to engage in some undesirable activity. Choose your companions wisely and this won't happen.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It will be necessary tomorrow to do all you can to be cooperative. An important relationship could be jeopardized if you behave rebelliously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Organize your work and set a realistic schedule tomorrow. You'll quickly become fatigued if you go about your tasks in a disorganized fashion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keep everything aboveboard and out in the open tomorrow, especially socially. Tricky or secret maneuvers will be interpreted as deceitful. You could suffer a loss.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The best way to offset small domestic crises which might occur tomorrow will be to keep calm and take things in stride. A cool head can handle anything.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't be afraid to speak up if others attempt to dump extra work on you tomorrow. You can be used only if you allow yourself to be.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might be denied doing something that's fun tomorrow because of your past extravagance. Unfortunately, we have to learn some lessons the hard way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you go about the house with a cranky disposition tomorrow, don't expect the family to cater to you. They'll be in no mood to put up with your foul temper.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You may have to watch how you treat people tomorrow. Idle chatter will unnerve you and, consequently, you could respond in a rude, uncalled-for manner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) That expected assistance will not be forthcoming tomorrow. Anything you want will have to be handled or obtained by you alone.

Your Birthday

Nov. 23, 1978

This coming year you may undertake a very ambitious project. Success will be yours if you don't give up too easily, since the size of your reward will be based upon the effort expended.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 22, the 326th day of 1978 with 39 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars and Mercury.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

French statesman and military leader Charles de Gaulle was born Nov. 22, 1890. American composer Hoagy Carmichael was born on this date in 1899.

On this day in history:

In 1950, a wreck on a Long Island Railroad train as it pulled out of a tunnel from New York City killed 79 persons.

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas. Vice-president Lyndon Johnson was sworn in as the nation's 36th chief executive a short time later. Lee Harvey Oswald was arrested and later named by the Warren Commission as the man who fired the fatal shots.

In 1974, President Ford arrived in Vladivostok for talks with Soviet Communist Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev.

In 1977, the Anglo-French supersonic Concorde jetliner, after months of delays by environmentalists, began flying into New York's Kennedy airport from London and Paris.

Half of Alaska's population is concentrated in metropolitan Anchorage, some 200,000 people.

Former Aide Reveals Escapades Of Ford Family

WASHINGTON (AP) — Steve Ford sneaked a date out of the Queen's Bedroom in the White House one December morning just before ABC reporter Barbara Walters started a televised tour of the Executive Mansion, according to Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, who was press secretary to former first lady Betty Ford.

Mrs. Weidenfeld describes the previous evening, when a tipsy Steve took his date "on a weaving tour of the White House" and told her, "... prior to this moment, five queens have slept in this bed. Tonight — a sixth."

In a remarkably candid book about her experiences in the Ford White House, Mrs. Weidenfeld also writes that:

—Susan Ford dated a 30-year-old married man while she was living in the White House and her mother knew about it.

—A military aide had wine from the White House shipped to former president Richard M. Nixon in San Clemente after he left office.

"(The aide) also has absolute control of the Air Force and he manifests planes arbitrarily," the former press secretary quotes a Secret Service agent as saying.

—Mrs. Weidenfeld advised that Ford's son, Jack, "get stoned" before he went to a rock concert rather than during the concert itself.

"Smoking grass? Smoking dope? Is that what you're talking about," she said she asked then-White House photographer David Kennerly, who planned to go out with Jack. "... David, please tell Jack to get stoned before he goes to the concert."

Gloria Hill, a spokeswoman at Ford's office in Rancho Mirage, Calif,. said the family has not yet read the book and would therefore not comment on it.

The book, "First Lady's Lady," is written in diary style and describes intense power struggles between members of the White House staff; job pressures that cause marriages to break up; Mrs. Ford's highly emotional ups and downs; and the personal problems that confronted the Ford children while they lived in the White House.

It will be published in February by G.P. Putnam's Sons of New York.

Mrs. Weidenfeld writes that Miss Walters and Mrs. Ford taped a White House tour on the morning of Dec. 4, 1976, and narrowly missed bumping into Steve Ford and a girl who had been in the Queen's Bedroom since the night before.

She writes: "It seems Steve had quite a night last night, an evening that began in one Georgetown bar, proceeded to several others, and ended up with his taking his date (whom he had picked up en route) on a weaving tour of the White House."

Mrs. Weidenfeld writes that the next morning Steve found "himself and his queen in the Queens' Bedroom with a terrible headache, a lot of noise in the hallway outside, and the vivid recollection that he promised his mother's press secretary that he officially would receive the White House Christmas tree this morning at 10:30....

"He opens the bedroom door a crack, and matters become more complicated. There are lights and cameras and crews right outside the door.

"My God, the White House tour."

Mrs. Weidenfeld writes that Steve "got Queen Number Six to her feet, briefed her carefully and called a White House limousine for her."

Then the author writes that as Steve walked out the door with his head held high, intentionally attracting the TV crew's attention, "last night's queen sneaked out of the room, around the corner and down a hidden stairway to her waiting get-away car."

In another chapter, Mrs. Weidenfeld writes that on July 7, 1976, Susan complained about a picture of her in the Washington Post with "my boyfriend," a football player she was dating.

Mrs. Weidenfeld asked why she was upset and quotes Susan as saying, "Sheila, he's married. He's getting a divorce, but he's still married and that picture was in the paper."

To which Mrs. Weidenfeld says she replied: "He isn't identified in the picture and he doesn't stand out. He just looks like one of your agents."

Two months later, Mrs. Weidenfeld writes, she was having lunch with Susan and some friends who were discussing who was dating whom, and "I was chagrined to hear that Susan's favorite 'whom' was still the yet-to-be-divorced football player."

Dayan Says Peace Now Up To Egypt

By United Press International

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan today said that all the work on the draft treaty with Egypt has been completed and the Egyptians now face a take it or leave it situation, Foreign Ministry officials reported.

At the same time, the Energy Ministry denied a report carried today on the state-run radio that the United States had agreed to supply all of Israel's oil needs to compensate for the surrender of the Sinai oil fields under a peace treaty with Egypt.

"It is complete nonsense," a ministry spokesman quoted Energy Minister Yitzhak Modai as saying. "It's just not true."

Dayan briefed taff members of the Foreign Ministry and told them, the officials said, that the ball is in the Egyptian court and Israel now is ready to sign the treaty.

The officials said Dayan told the staff that Egypt is faced with a take it or leave it situation. Dayan called this expression a description and not an ultimatum.

Dayan told the staff there is no real sense in renegotiating this package or any part of it, because all the paragraphs are so finely honed and balanced that opening any of them would shatter the whole treaty, the officials said.

Dayan hinted that he sees no reason to return for further negotiations, because the agreement is sealed and said if the Israeli delegation were to return it would be only to initial the pact.

Dayan said Israel may have to take unilateral steps to put the autonomy plan into effect in the occupied territories if the result of the current situation is that no treaty is signed.

Earlier, Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin said Israel rejected the timetable demand because it would be "absolutely impractical."

Egypt recalled its top peace negotiator in reaction to to the Israel's cabinet refusal to accept a timetable for establishing Palestinian autonomy.

The twin decisions propelled President Carter back into the negotiating process to break the deadlocked talks, which began Oct. 12.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Carter would talk with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat today to discuss Cairo's next move.

In Washington, State Department spokesman for the talks George Sherman welcomed the Israeli Cabinet's 15-2 vote to approve the U.S. version of a peace treaty. However the Cabinet rejected Egyptian demands for a specific timetable.

"We will now be in touch with the Egyptian government about its position and will be consulting with both governments about further steps in the negotiating process," the spokesman said.

An Egyptian spokesman stressed the talks will continue despite the recall of Defense Minister Kamal Hassan Ali.

Israel's Cabinet Tuesday approved a U.S.-draft peace treaty tying the pact to to an overall Middle East peace settlement — accepting what it rejected last month.

But it turned down as "unacceptable" Egypt's demand for firm dates for implementing Palestinian self-rule in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, keeping the five-week negotiations deadlocked.

Israel said there was no mention of a timetable for Palestinian autonomy in the Camp David accords, the basis of the Israeli-Egyptian pact and an overall Middle East peace.

In Cairo, a government spokesman said Ali will report to Sadat, who is heading a top-level committee formed two days ago to evaluate the situation and decide on future moves. He will also meet with the committee that includes fellow negotiator and Foreign Minister Butros Ghali, Vice President Hosni Mobarak, and Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil.

An important decision is expected to follow the meeting, the Middle East News Agency said.

In Jerusalem, Begin briefed Carter in a telephone conversation —his second since Saturday with the American president — and said Carter "expressed deep satisfaction" with the Cabinet action.

Begin told a group of visiting U.S. state legislators "the world should know that Israel, starting from today, is ready to take out the pens and sign a peace treaty without any change in the text as we have it now."

Begin said the Israel has made "important concessions to Egypt" apparently on linkage.

The specific nature of the linkage and a resolution of timetable proposal are the only points holding up the treaty.

Egypt's semi-official Al Ahram newspaper said Egypt proposed that elections for the autonomous councils in the West Bank and Gaza start within six months after the treaty is endorsed.

A second proposal says two weeks after setting up the councils, the Isreali military government in the West Bank and Gaza will end.

Algerian Chief Seriously Ill

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Other leaders of Algeria's military regime are discussing a successor to President Houari Boumedienne, who is reported dangerously ill in an Algiers hospital, informed sources reported today.

French medical sources said the 57-year-old Algerian leader suffered kidney failure following his recent return from Moscow. They said he had been treated in the Soviet Union for cancer of the bladder.

A group of American, French and Russian doctors was summoned to Algiers this week while Boumedienne received emergency treatment with an artificial kidney, the sources said.

Boumedienne, one of the Third World's most militant leaders, has been Algeria's unchallenged strongman since he ousted President Ahmed Ben Bella in an army coup on June 19, 1965. Ben Bella is still his prisoner.

Presumably to ensure his control of the Algerian power structure, Boumedienne repeatedly rejected suggestions that he name a vice president or prime minister. As a result, there is no obvious candidate for the presidency among the remaining 10 members of the Council of the Revolution which organized the 1965 coup.

Sixteen of the council's 26 members have died or gone into exile. Boumedienne, Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika and eight others remain. Until Boumedienne was taken ill, the council had not met for two years. But since he was brought back from Moscow earlier this month, the nine others have met regularly to take important government decisions and discuss the succession problem, the sources said.

One of the nine, Maj. Mohamed Salah Yahiaoui, administrative head of the National Liberation Front and former commander of the Cherchell Military Academy, is regarded as one of the most likely candidates for the presidency in case of a vacancy.

Other possible candidates include Bouteflika, who has been foreign minister since 1962, and Col. Ahmed Bencherif, commander of the gendarmerie until he became minister of water resources last year.

Boumedienne announced in 1975 that the council would be abolished at a forthcoming congress of the National Liberation Front, the country's only legal political party. But no party congress has been held since 1984.

Under a constitution approved by referendum in 1976, if the presidency becomes vacant a party congress must be convened to designate the party's candidate for the post. In one-party Algeria, the party's nominee is certain to be elected as the only candidate.

Holiday To Feature Grid Tilts, Turkey

If some flights are delayed by fog this weekend, holiday travelers may make congestion at the airport a problem, airport manager Marvin Coffee said this morning.

"We anticipate some delays due to the weather, both here and in other cities," he said. Coffee advised both travelers and anyone planning to meet arriving planes to "call the airlines first and see whether their flight is operating on schedule."

Even if flights are on time, Coffee recommended allowing extra time for parking and checking in over the Thanksgiving weekend.

A chance of light rain today and possible light drizzle tonight and Thursday morning is forecast for the Lubbock area. The probability of rain is measured at 30 percent today, and 20 percent tonight and Thursday.

Lubbock temperatures were expected to climb into the mid 50s today before dropping to the mid 40s tonight. This warming trend follows the high and low temperatures of 41 and 37 Tuesday.

For those whose holiday continues over the weekend, colder weather is expected Friday through Sunday in the South Plains area, with highs in the 40s and lows in the 30s by Sunday.

For those who are without family, the Salvation Army will serve dinner from noon to 4 p.m. Thursday at the Salvation Army building.

Other cities across the state have been taking part in their own annual Thanksgiving Day events, one of the most unique of which is the Great Gobbler Gallop in Cuero. In that city, where turkeys outnumber people 200,000 to 7,000 every year, the biggest Thanksgiving celebration is over, and not without injured civic pride. A Minnesota bird named Paycheck this year dethroned local champion Ruby Begonia in the annual race.

In San Antonio, Dorothy Perry will cook a dinner again this year for 150 strangers, just as she has for the past 34 years.

Tape Replayed At Davis Trial

HOUSTON (AP) — The jury in the Cullen Davis trial heard for the second time today a tape that the prosecution said would link the Fort Worth millionaire with a kill-for-hire plot.

The recording, allegedly between Davis and David McCrory, an FBI informant, was heard early in the trial by the jurors and was replayed today because the prosecution said it needed to point out some technical problems with the tape.

The replaying of the tape came after vigorous objections by chief defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes. He said the tape had been presented as evidence once and it should not be presented to the jury again.

State District Judge Wallace Moore told Haynes, "I believe this is like any other physical evidence in a trial and can be brought to the attention of the jury as many times as necessary."

The prosecution had called FBI Agent Joseph Gray to the stand in an effort to explain the high level of background noise in the recording and why the voices seemed to suddenly increase and then decrease in volume.

Gray listened to the recording with earphones and said that it was obvious "that the background noise increased when the conversations stopped and decreased when talk resumed."

He made no effort to pinpoint what the background noise may be.

The move, however, did give prosecutors a chance to play what they consider one of the most damaging pieces of evidence against Davis.

Prosecutors claim the defense failed miserably to damage the testimony of McCrory, the state's key witness.

But defense lawyers, ending a fiery four-day cross-examination Tuesday night, said anyone would have to be be crazy to believe McCrory, who previously testified that Davis paid him $25,000 to have a judge killed.

FBI agents say they broke up the plot before the alleged target, Joe Eidson, the judge in Davis' divorce case, was hurt.

Prosecutors said today's first witness would be Joe Gray of Dallas, the FBI agent who helped rig a van agents used to film and tape-record a meeting between McCrory and Davis last August. Gray testified previously, but the jury was absent.

The trial remained in session two hours later than the regular 5 p.m. quitting time Tuesday to allow the defense to wrap up its questioning of McCrory, 40, Davis' former employee and confidant.

"There ain't a sane person alive who would still believe David McCrory," defense attorney Phil Burleson said outside the courtroom.

School Case Aired Here

start over next year, or finish the year as assistant ninth-grade coach and then be barred from coaching in the Lubbock system.

According to testimony, Conger said at the Oct. 19 meeting he needed two weeks to think over the options. Administrators, however, said Conger must decide by Oct. 23.

And in the meantime, Athletic Director Pete Ragus said he told Conger that Conger was not to coach any more eighth-grade football games at Atkins. The ninth-grade coach was assigned to lead the eighth-grade team, Ragus said.

On the afternoon of Oct. 19, the school district says, Conger defied Ragus' order by coaching the eighth-graders anyway. Conger did this, the district adds, despite the fact that assistant superintendent Dr. E.C. Leslie passed word to Conger that he was not to coach.

After that incident, Superintendent Ed Irons relieved Conger of his coaching assignment. His salary has not been changed, however. Conger still serves as an industrial arts teacher at Atkins and Evans junior highs, and supervises bicycle activities at Atkins after school.

Conger — who wants to be reinstated as a coach, at Atkins or any school — said he coached the eighth-grade team Oct. 19 because the order from Ragus and Leslie "wasn't clear."

Conger said he did not understand the order and that he wanted something in writing. He said he did not trust Ragus and thought school officials were trying to get him to walk off his job.

Three Held In Guyana Murders

that if the assassination squads did not accomplish their mission, the Mafia was to be contacted and contracts were to be taken on our lives."

The FBI in San Francisco confirmed that its agents were investigating rumors that members of the Peoples Temple in California planned to kidnap or assassinate high-ranking U.S. officials and others to avenge Jones.

Police Commissioner Lloyd A. Barker said the teams searching for the fleeing cultists had gone to friendly Indian villages in the area, but there was no report from them yet. The Guyana government also asked the United States for helicopters with loudspeakers to fly over the jungle and broadcast that it was safe to come out.

Barker said about 40 surviving members of the colony had been found in the area, but the U.S. Embassy said it had been informed of only 14. Stephan Jones, the 19-year-old son of the leader of the cult, reported he and 44 others were in Georgetown and escaped the suicide.

Jim Jones, a former San Francisco city official who led members of his cult to Guyana four years ago, ordered the mass suicide after a group of his followers killed Ryan and three U.S. newsmen with him on an investigation of charges that Jonestown settlers were abused and kept against their will. A woman attempting to flee the colony also was killed in the attack.

Forty U.S. specialists were flown Tuesday to Jonestown to begin sealing the rotting remains of the suicides in bags for the trip back to the United States.

Twenty cargo planes left the United States late Tuesday for Georgetown, the Air Force reported. A spokesman at McGuire Air Force Base, in New Jersey, said the first planeloads of bodies were expected Thursday at the Dover, Del., Air Force Base.

The Air Force mortuary is located at the Delaware air base, and the spokesman said the spokesman said final identification of the bodies would be made there.

The Guyanan information ministry made public a partial list of the dead, but there were many apparent errors in spelling and it contained no hometowns.

The U.S. government authorized the Guyana government to begin mass burials of the suicides because of the deterioration of the bodies in the tropical heat. But the Guyana government requested that the U.S. government remove the bodies of all the victims.

SNOW TIRE CHECK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Snow tires made in the United States since Jan. 1, 1976 have the words "mud" and "snow" or an abbreviation such as "M-S" molded in the sidewall under a voluntary industry standard. If you get stuck on a snow emergency route in some areas and your tires don't have these designations you could get a ticket, the Tire Industry Safety Council warns.

Study Planned On Drug Petition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government promises a prompt and careful study of a petition to ban Darvon and other varieties of the widely used painkiller propoxyphene, which a Ralph Nader group calls "the deadliest prescription drug in the United States."

Darvon is Eli Lilly and Co.'s brand name for propoxyphene. An analyst for the National Institute on Drug Abuse said the drug may be implicated in more deaths than heroin.

On Tuesday, Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, the outspoken director of Nader's Health Research Group, asked Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. to ban the drug's sale immediately as "an imminent hazard to the public health."

Califano has used that power only once, in banning phenformin, used by an estimated 250,000 diabetics, in July 1977. Ten weeks earlier, Wolfe had petitioned for the ban, saying it kills more people than it saves.

Wolfe called the sale of propoxyphene, the nation's most widely prescribed prescription painkiller, "tantamount to legalized dope."

A spokesman for the Food and Drug Administration, Wayne Pines, said the FDA would "promptly and carefully review" Wolfe's latest petition and report back to Califano as soon as possible.

When asked about Wolfe's claim that Darvon and other propoxyphene compounds kill hundreds a year, Malcolm Keast of the National Institute of Drug Abuse cited government statistics that show the drug was implicated in at least 466 deaths in 24 major metropolitan areas between May 1977, and April 1978. Heroin-related deaths in the same cities during that period were put at 468, Keast said.

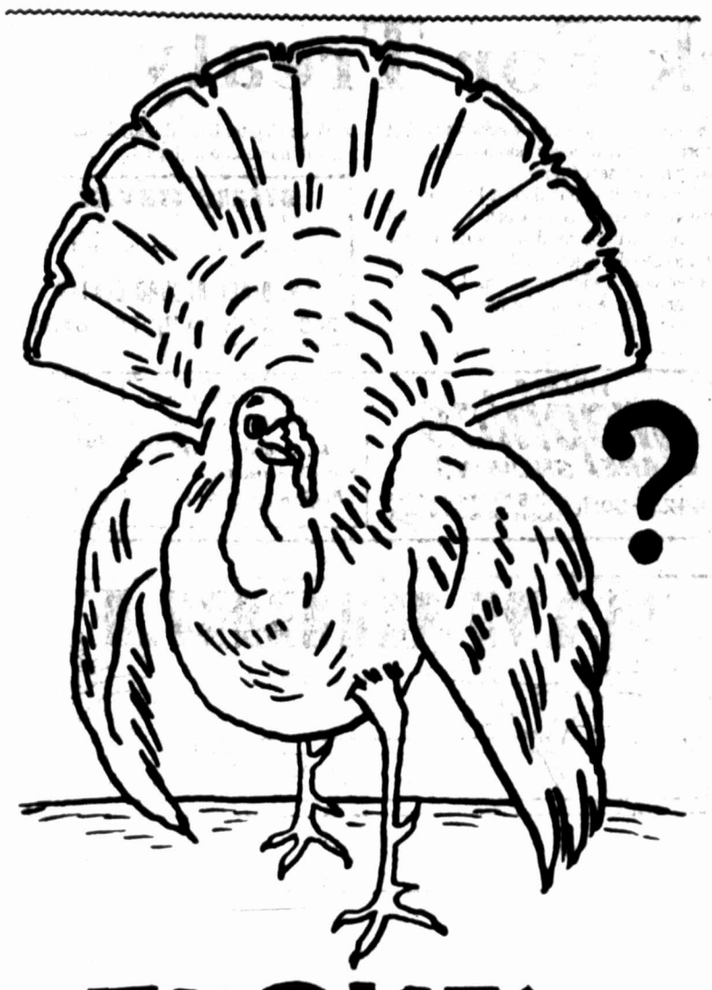
But the public health analyst said the most reliable studies indicate heroin use is generally confined to those cities, whereas physicians throughout the country prescribe propoxyphene more than any other prescription painkiller.

"It's also been advertised more in professional literature than most drugs," said an FDA official who asked not to be identified.

Darvon's federally approved labeling, distributed to physicians but presumably not to patients, recommends its use "for the relief of mild to moderate pain."

More than 10 million prescriptions are written each year for propoxyphene drugs. A substantial but indeterminable number are for patients seeking relief of menstrual cramps.

The Physicians' Desk Reference, published by Litton Industries, lists the following propoxyphene compounds, in addition to Darvon: Darvocet-N, Darvon-N and Stero-Darvon with A.S.A., also by Lilly; Dolene, by Lederle; Repco Compound-65, by Reid-Provident; SK-65, by Smith Kline & French; Unipanic-A, by Upjohn; Wygesic, by Wyeth and similar products sold under the generic name by Purepac and Zenith.



KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Occasional Surprises Aid Club Membership

By SHARI LEWIS

When kids start a club, one of the biggest problems is getting members to come to all the meetings.

Here's a keep-your-club-going idea that gives you and your friends what you all like the most — surprises!

Every once in a while get all the members to bring in used comic books, magazines, paperback books or old toys. Store these carefully.

Then, at the beginning of every meeting, each club member's name is put into a paper bag. The bag is shaken and one name is pulled out. That lucky person gets to pick something from the prize store of books, comics, magazines and toys.

However, if that person is not there to receive the prize, he or she is out of luck. Continue to pull names out of the bag at random until you hit a person who is at the meeting, and that person gets to choose the prize!

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: You put on a clean shirt every day and send the used ones to the laundry once a week. They are returned on the same day a week later. What is the minimum number of shirts required to maintain the system?

ANSWER: Fifteen shirts.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: The turkey has a secret. He knows at least seven words tha you can make out of the letters in the word TURKEY. How many can you figure out before tomorrow? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

(Do you have something you like to do to give a helping hand to others — people or animals, friends or strangers, youngsters or senior citizens? Share your "helping hand" idea with me, and I'll send a free copy of my new book, : "The Kids-Only Club Book," as a prize for the helping hand idea submitted that we print. Just write to KIDS—ONLY CLUB, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.)

Holiday Travelers Get Snow Warning

By United Press International

Thick fog reduced visibility to as little as 20 feet in the Southern Plains today and the National Weather Service warned Thanksgiving travelers to be prepared for snow and ice in the Central Plains and mountain states.

Fog extended from Louisiana to Colorado and western Kansas early today. Flights into Denver's Stapleton International Airport experienced long delays because of poor visibility. In central Texas, motorists reported they could see only 20 feet ahead of their headlights.

Numerous automobile accidents were blamed on the fog, but no serious injuries were reported.

The NWS posted travelers advisories for dense fog from southeast Louisiana through Texas and into the foothills of Colorado.

More warnings for motorists were issued throughout the Central and Northern Plains, where a wide band of light snow and freezing drizzle glazed highways.

Snow also was reported hampering travel in the California Sierras and in Nevada's Tahoe Basin.

Winter storm watches were posted from Colorado through Michigan as a low-pressure system posed a threat of developing into a snowstorm later today. However, the NWS indicated the storm was not expected to develop to the intensity predicted earlier.

Light snow fell over southern New England early today. Except for the mountains, the region received its first measurable snowfall of the season Tuesday. Accumulations were generally less than 2 inches, but icy bridges and unprepared motorists resulted in numerous accidents and at least three deaths.

"Too many summer tires around," said highway dispatcher Raymond Burke in Vermont.

Three Robbery Charges Filed Against Lubbock Resident

A Lubbock man, arrested last week in connection with a burglary case, was charged Tuesday with participating in three recent armed robberies.

The three aggravated robbery charges were filed against Michael Smith McCowan, 19, of 2105 E. 30th St. The Criminal District Attorney's office recommended bonds totaling $85,000 on the three cases.

Also charged with aggravated robbery in connection with one of the three cases was James Loggins, Jr., 26, of 2408 E. 30th St. The District Attorney's office recommended a $100,000 bond for Loggins.

Records indicate Loggins was assessed a five-year penitentiary term in 1972 after pleading guilty to a burglary charge. According to records, he had been assessed a five-year probated term in 1969 for felony theft, with that probation revoked at the time of the burglary plea.

Both men had been charged last week with burglary. Police said their arrests Thursday followed a high-speed chase.

McCowan and Loggins both were charged Tuesday with aggravated robbery as the result of a Nov. 11 holdup at a Briercroft Shopping Center shoe store.

According to reports, two bandits entered the store and forced three employees to lie on the floor near the back of the business. One of the employees was subsequently ordered to open a cash register, reports said.

McCowan also was charged in connection with a Nov. 13 holdup at the Taco Villa restaurant, 1620 Ave. Q, and with a Nov. 14 heist at the Pizza Inn restaurant, 2102 Broadway.

McCowan and Loggins were charged last week with burglarizing the Radio Shack at 8203 Indiana Ave. The suspects were arrested about six miles north of Tahoka after a reported high-speed chase on U.S. 87.

Also Tuesday, an aggravated assault on a peace officer charge was filed against Timothy Charles Allen, 18, of 500 E. Broadway, No. 16.

Allen is accused of striking police officer Dennis Kelly in the face during a reported Thursday incident. Police reports said Kelly was struck after responding to a report of a domestic problem at the East Broadway address.

Police Football Team Surprises Bandits

ANNISTON, Ala. (UPI) — Two 16-year-olds who had knocked down a woman and snatched her purse were counting their loot when they were suddenly surrounded by a football team, police said Tuesday.

"You're not going to believe this," said one of the helmeted and padded players, "but we're policemen."

They were in fact the police and firemen's team, practicing for a game when the victim ran up to tell them about the purse-snatching. Only moments later, the suspects strolled by counting their money.

The youths were charged with robbing the woman of $200 and some jewelry.

White House Laying Ground Work For Treaty

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Well before the new Senate convenes, the White House is beginning to look for support for a treaty limiting the deployment of strategic arms.

Of course, there isn't a treaty yet.

But just the same, President Carter and his aides are using their experience in winning Senate approval of the Panama Canal treaties to lay the ground work for what could be an even more difficult and emotional fight over a Strategic Arms Limitation Talks pact.

One staff member, Robert Beckel of the congressional liaison office, is "deeply into SALT," a colleague said. Such administration chieftains as Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security assistant, and Defense Secretary Harold Brown also are keeping key senators informed of the progress of the arms talks.

Although a Senate session is nearly two months away, Senate Republican leader Howard Baker and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., perhaps the leading Kremlin-watcher in the Senate, are being kept up-to-date.

Baker, who could soon begin a 1980 presidential race, worked hard to win approval of the canal treaties. His support in 1979 for an arms pact is less certain, although it would be just as important as it was in helping get the canal treaties approved.

Attention also is being paid to newly elected senators, with a Washington briefing planned for them within the next few weeks.

Although a number of liberal senators are being replaced by conservatives, several Republicans just elected are seen by White House strategists as possible supporters of a SALT treaty.

"We weren't hurt as badly as some say," said one member of the White House congressional liaison staff after considering the way the new senators are likely to vote.

The administration's Senate fight will be helped by Carter's expected decisions to increase defense spending in the next budget and to bolster the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Such moves will help deflate any effort to portray him as lax on defense.

Carter also could benefit by his decision to stand firm on the arms talks while awaiting a Soviet move in the current impasse.

"That's a good decision politically," said one official.

While the administration officials lay the ground work for the Senate debate, there are few public signs that the final obstacles to a treaty are being overcome.

The president has said more than once over the last year that a final treaty was just a few weeks away.

He acknowledged last week that his predictions were "ill-advised," but told reporters that "we have made steady progress."

However, one White House source said "there's very little being said in Geneva," where negotiators have been meeting sporadically since 1969.

The key remaining issues are these:

—The limits to be placed on the U.S. cruise missile, a pilotless, hedge-hopping weapon akin to the World War II buzz bomb, that could be carried on U.S. bombers and is expected to play a major role in the nation's arsenal in the coming decade;

—The number of warheads the Soviets would be allowed to place on their numerous land-based missiles;

—How tight the restrictions should be on production, deployment and refueling capabilities of the Soviet bomber known in the West as the Backfire.

—The timetable for a Soviet reduction of bombers and missiles to the allowable ceiling of 2,250.

While one administration official said he was reluctant to say that the White House feels it is simply Moscow's turn to move, that was the picture presented in a review of the most recent talks between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

When the secretary returned from meetings last month in Moscow, U.S. officials indicated another Vance-Gromyko session was only a few weeks away, but more recently officials said no talks were likely in the near future.

However, it is felt that at least one or two more sessions between Vance and Gromyko will be needed — with a show of increased Soviet flexibility — before Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev can meet at the summit to produce an actual treaty.

And then, of course, the White House work on Capitol Hill, already being started, will move into high gear.

In 1900, life expectancy in the United States was 47 years. Today, it is 72 years, The Conference Board observes.

SPRECHEN SIE PUPPET? — Some things are universally understood, regardless of the language spoken and students at Winfrey Private School discovered Tuesday Little Red Riding Hood — even in German — is one of those things. The puppet show, presented by the Texas Tech Puppenspieler and the German and Russian dance troupes, was narrated by ventriloquist Jan Whitlock and her dummy Andrew, above left. Above right, five-year-old Kimberly Warnick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Warnick, sits spellbound by the puppets, even though the language is foreign. Below right, Yury Rodriguez, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Rodriguez proves he got the best seat in the house for the show — on the lap of teacher Maria Moore. Purse Thief Takes $60

A Lubbock woman was robbed of her purse containing $60 about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday as she was walking from her car to her house.

Johnnell Markham of 6107 Nashville Ave. said she was getting out of her car when a young black man, tall and very thin, wearing black rubber knee boots, confronted her and asked if he could use her phone.

When the woman said she would get her husband, the young man reportedly grabbed her arm, wrestled away her purse and ran.

Mrs. Markham was not injured in the incident, according to reports.

A witness to a fight about 10:45 p.m. Tuesday told police a 17-year-old Tech student was involved in a scuffle at Broadway and Avenue X when another man ran up, kicked the student in the head and then slammed his head to the pavement four times.

The student's attacker then ran south from the scene, reports indicate. The victim was taken to Methodist Hospital where he was treated and released.

In one of several burglaries, Troy D. Luttrell of 2718 Second Place said he lost $1,450 in stereo equipment, a guitar and a TV set when burglars struck his home between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m. Tuesday.

Richard Lynn Matthews of 5407 19th St. told police $1,442 in jewelry was taken from his home when burglars entered between 7:30 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. Tuesday.

A burglar shattered a glass door at Ham's Foods, 82nd Street and Abbeyville Tuesday morning, according to reports.

Officers investigating the break-in said they found a set of muddy footprints inside the store, which was entered when the burglar heaved a brick through the door.

A store official said later, however, that nothing was taken in the burglary.

Gerald Mymbs of 2902 Third Place reported Tuesday that more than $1,185 worth of property had been removed from his car while it was parked in front of his residence. Mymbs said a stereo system, a TV set, some tapes and clothes made up the bulk of his missing possessions.

Twenty-seven sheets of plywood were reported missing from a storage area at 2024 Erskine St., police said Tuesday. The wood, which belonged to Frontier Rebuilt Homes, was valued at $288.

Imogene Beck said someone snatched her purse as she was going into her 2331 54th St. residence about 9 p.m. Monday. She said a man ran up out of the dark, grabbed her purse from her, and fled before she could get a good look at him. Her purse, containing some cash and several credit cards, was valued at about $200.

Singing Bus Driver Back Behind Wheel

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Benford Stellmacher, Hartford's singing bus driver, is going back behind the wheel. The 25-year-old driver was fired last month for handing fares in violation of company rules, but after a public outcry, the company offered Stellmacher reinstatement, and he said Tuesday that he will accept.

Stellmacher had received national publicity in the past for singing to passengers and holding impromptu birthday and Christmas parties on his bus. He admitted handling money, but said he did it only to make change for customers.

County Assessor Resigns Post

Russell Hardin, Lubbock County's Tax Assessor-Collector for the past 23 years, submitted his resignation to County Commissioners Tuesday saying he felt it was "an appropriate time for me to retire."

Hardin's resignation was accepted by the commissioners and will become effective Dec. 31.

Hardin, 73, was appointed to the office on March 1, 1955, and has drawn opposition for re-election only once during the succeeding 23 years.

In his letter of resignation to the commissioners, Hardin noted his office handles more than $20 million each year. "By this it is important to be surrounded with honest and dedicated personnel to perform efficient duties," the letter said.

Hardin recommended W.L. "Bill" Nelson, chief deputy tax assessor-collector, for appointment to Hardin's term which expires Jan. 1, 1981.

The commissioners will accept applications to fill the unexpired term in the county judge's office through Dec. 4, then meet at 9 a.m. on Dec. 5 to examine the applications.

With the recent completion of an independent audit of his office "showing our records to be in excellent condition, I feel that this is an appropriate time for me to retire," he said in the letter.

Hardin's successor will start at a higher salary — $24,510 as opposed to the present $23,109.

The Tax Assessor-Collector is responsible for county property appraisals, collection of county ad valorem taxes, voter registration and automobile registration.

Commissioners also accepted the resignation of Lubbock County Hospital District Board chairman J.C. Rickman Tuesday.

Rickman, chairman of the board since mid-1977, has served on the board the past three years.

Commissioners passed resolutions of appreciation for the service of Hardin and Rickman.

Family May Not Get Damages

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal court jury awarded $45,000 to the family of a young man shot to death by two Houston police officers, but it doesn't look like they will collect.

Since the jury also decided Tuesday that the officers weren't negligent in the 1976 death of 28-year-old Milton Glover Jr., no damages can be awarded, said Rick Prinz, the family's attorney.

Prinz said no decision had been made concerning an appeal. The Glover family had sought $900,000.

Officers R.L. Watson and Doreen Miller had testified they shot Glover after he appeared to be reaching in a pocket for a weapon while wandering in the middle of a street. Investigators later said Glover had a Bible in the pocket.

The suit had alleged the officers deprived Glover of his constitutional rights.

4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

When playing a cross-ruff, there is an ever-present threat that one of the defenders will overruff and return a trump, leaving you short a trick or two. A careful declarer will go to great lengths to protect against this danger.

There was nothing to the auction. North's hand revalued to 13 points in support of spades, so he jump raised. With a minimum opening bid, South could do no more than bid game.

West led the king of clubs, and declarer could see only three sure tricks outside the trump suit. Since the prospects of setting up either minor suit were slight because of the lack of entries, he decided that his best chance was to try to collect seven trump tricks via a crossruff. For that to succeed, he had to hope that neither defender overruffed in the early stage of the process.

Declarer won the ace of clubs, cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond in his hand. Then he ruffed a club in dummy, crossed to the ace of hearts and ruffed another club. A diamond ruff brought the hand to the crucial point.

Declarer had already scored four trump tricks via ruffs, and needed only three more. But now he was in a position to prevent a damaging overruff. He led a club and took care to ruff with dummy's ace, as East discarded. Now came another diamond, ruffed with the king. This time West stuffed.

Declarer needed one more trick. He still had the jack of trumps in dummy and the ten in his own hand. Combined, they guaranteed this trick. Declarer led a club and ruffed with the jack of trumps. If that held, it would be his tenth trick. But it did not matter if East overruffed, for the ten of trumps would then be high and would score the fulfilling trick.

Observe that, if declarer ruffs the fourth diamond with the ten of trumps, West will overruff and return a trump. Declarer will then come to only nine tricks.

POTPOURRI CASSEROLE

1 cup med. noodles
2 cups boiled ham strips (about ½ lb.)
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 tbsp. oil
1 envelope (1½ oz.) cheese sauce mix
1¼ cups milk
1 cup cooked peas
1 tsp. butter or margarine
½ cup 40% bran flakes
¼ cup grated American cheese (optional)

Cook noodles in boiling salted water as directed on package; drain. Saute ham, celery and green pepper in oil in a skillet. Sprinkle sauce mix over ham mixture; gradually stir in milk, blending well. Cook and stir until mixture thickens. Add peas and the noodles, and heat. Pour into a greased 1½-quart casserole. Saute cereal lightly in butter in a small skillet. Remove from heat and add cheese, mixing lightly. Sprinkle topping around edge of casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for about 15 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Makes 5 cups or 5 servings.

The Slim Gourmet

It's probably easier to get rid of a body than the remains of a 20-pound Thanksgiving turkey. Living in a cold climate, we've alternately stashed past turkeys on the porch, in the garage, even in the trunk of the car. Nobody's refrigerator is big enough to serve as a resting place for an un-disassembled turkey frame.

There's no point in putting off the inevitable: burying the remains in the deep freeze. Since freezer space is equally precious, you can't afford to waste it on inedibles like wishbones, so the smart move is to dismember and disjoint it and separate the meat into space-saving meal-size packages. Don't discard the bones until you've turned them into broth: simmer in water with a few ribs of celery and some peeled and quartered onions. Strain and fat-skim, then pour into covered jars, label and freeze.

Thus dispatched, the meat and broth are ready to be reincarnated into easy, low-calorie meals. We prefer to resurrect turkey in un-Thanksgiving-like garb.

TURKEY AND SPAGHETTI PRONTO

1¼ cups turkey broth (or canned chicken broth), fat-skimmed
6-oz. can tomato paste
¼ cup dry sherry
2 tbsps. instant onion
¼ tsp. instant garlic
2 tsps. oregano or mixed Italian seasonings
salt and pepper to taste
2 cups (9 to 10 oz.) cooked turkey, cut in half-inch cubes
4 cups spaghetti, protein-enriched, tender-cooked

In a non-stick saucepan, stir broth, tomato paste and sherry until smooth. Stir in seasonings, simmer 3 minutes. Stir in turkey until heated through. Serve over hot, drained spaghetti. Makes four servings, about 340 calories each.

TURKEY AND EGGPLANT ROMANO

1¼ cups turkey broth (or canned chicken broth), fat-skimmed
6-oz. can tomato paste
1 med. eggplant, peeled, diced
1 onion, minced
1 clove garlic, minced (or ⅛ tsp. instant)
few sprigs parsley, chopped
2 tsps. mixed Italian seasonings
½ lb. cooked turkey meat, in half-inch cubes
4 tbsps. sharp Romano cheese, grated

Combine all ingredients except turkey and Romano cheese in a large non-stick skillet. Simmer uncovered, stirring frequently, until eggplant is tender and most of the liquid has evaporated (10 to 12 minutes). Stir in turkey and heat through. Sprinkle with cheese and serve immediately. Makes four servings, about 175 calories each.

SZECHUAN TURKEY WITH WALNUTS

½ cup tomato juice
2 tbsps. dry sherry
3 tbsps. soy sauce
4 cups onion, sliced
2 cups celery, sliced thin
2 cups (about 9 oz.) cooked turkey cut in bite-size cubes optional: 1 tsp. MSG
1 tsp. arrowroot
1 cup cold water (or turkey broth, fat-skimmed) hot pepper sauce to taste optional: 1 tbsp. fresh ginger root, chopped
15 walnuts, halved

Combine first seven ingredients in a covered skillet over moderate heat; cook till vegetables are tender-crunchy, about 6 minutes. Combine arrowroot and cold water or broth; stir into skillet until sauce thickens and clears. Add several dashes of hot pepper sauce to taste — dish should be hot and spicy. At the last minute, stir in ginger root and walnuts. Makes 4 servings, about 240 calories each with water, 250 calories each with broth.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I can't imagine where Americans got hung on the "single person" concept.

Maybe it was as children in arithmetic class, when we subtracted an odd number from an even and we stored the number on our finger and carried it around and really didn't know what to do with it.

But we have always been uncomfortable with "one left over."

After all, did Adam and Eve have a bachelor friend? Did an orangutan check in on Noah's ark asking, "Have you got a single near the pool?" If God had meant for us to live alone, would he put on menus, "Caesar Salad must be ordered by two?"

It's time we got over it. There are millions of Americans who are alone in this country today by divorce, death, or choice, trying to fit into a world of "table for twos."

A widow confided to me recently that she lives by daylight. People will get their obligations over with to "get together sometime" at lunch, but it's too much of a chore to match single men or women up for dinner.

There are some things traditional hostesses should know.

First, that people without partners eat dinner after six like other people.

Second, you can set an extra chair at the table without having the centerpiece self-destruct.

Third, men and women alone handle moving through crowds and making conversation better than most people give them credit for.

Fourth, you don't have to go out of your way to arrange "handicap parking" facilities or introductions of any of the extras because they are unaccompanied.

Fifth, if you're worried about people without partners being a threat to other couples and their marriages, you're too late. They probably thought of it before that evening.

There is nothing sadder in this world than to see a vast expanse of talent go untapped and unappreciated. There's an entire segment of our population who make wonderful conversation, have great humor, fresh ideas, and in general are good company...who are passed over because a hostess considers them as she does her china...if it doesn't match, people will talk.

A hostess recently said to me what a wonderful guest a particular priest would make for dinner, but he would be an odd number at her table.

It was an odd observation. At the Last Supper, Christ was number 13.

Crabber Seeks Independent Life

CANTON, N.J. (AP) — He doesn't work at his job for the money.

Richard Finlaw, 31, is one of about a dozen crabbers along the Salem County coast of the Delaware Bay. He prefers the water, the quiet peacefulness — and the independence.

"I rode a tractor-trailer, I rode a bulldozer. I worked in a factory. None of them suited me. Out here, I'm my own boss."

He lives in a county that hosts the largest organic chemical complex in the nation. And the county will soon host one of the largest nuclear power complexes in the world.

But Finlaw's job is guided by the cycles of the wildlife of the marshes and the bay.

In the July through October crabbing season, Finlaw sets out for the bay every morning and is busy for six or seven hours a day. He steers the boat to the floats that mark each of his 150 pots, grabbing the line to each pot with a gaff, reeling in each pot from its bed some 20 feet below on the bay floor.

He shakes out the wriggling, clattering, white-bellied crabs into a sorting trough, throwing away the old bait and packing the fresh. Then he throws the pot back overboard for the next day's catch.

After a morning of crabbing, Finlaw heads for his father's farm.

"I work about 40 to 50 hours a week on the farm in addition to this (crabbing)," Finlaw said. But he doesn't do it just for the money.

"Out here," he said, "it's just nice and quiet. Ain't nobody running by, hollering and blowing horns."

Finlaw learned crabbing as a boy because his family has a history of working the sea.

"My father's father used to fish for shad and sturgeon. And his father, too, he was a bayman. He loved the water."

Finlaw says there's more to crabbing than meets the eye.

"A lot of people think all you got to do is put your pots down in the water and the crabs crawl right in," he said. "But to make a good dollar, you've got to study your pots every day. If you see four in the end of a row with nothing, you've got to move them.

Finlaw said a crabber did very well if he could clear $100 a day.

"If I just make enough to keep my bills paid, pay for the kids, and have a little to eat, I'm well satisfied."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I have a terrific job as assistant to the head of a professional firm. I've been here only three months and love it.

My boss gets frequent calls from women who are in reality his girlfriends.

I know for a fact that he is divorced. His ex-wife phones him and he calls her often to discuss their children. They have a friendly and even close relationship.

I have heard my boss tell his girlfriends that he is only separated, and that his wife will never give him a divorce.

He is aware that I have heard him lying, and he's asked me to answer no questions about his personal life. I never have.

I feel that by not volunteering the truth I am lying. My mother thinks I should quit my job and tell my boss why. I don't think I could ever get a job I like as much, and I don't want to quit. My mother and I have agreed to follow your advice.

CONFUSED

Dear Confused: It is not your place as an employee to volunteer the facts to interested girlfriends concerning your boss's private life.

But if you feel that you are lying by withholding the truth, and your conscience can't handle it, quit.

DEAR ABBY: Last month our teenage daughter ran off and got married. She realized within two weeks that it was a terrible mistake and came home.

We succeeded in having the marriage annulled and are now trying to live down the embarrassing episode. We don't care to discuss it with anyone, but this is a small town and news of this kind travels fast. When people ask us for the "details," what should we tell them?

EMBARRASSED IN IOWA

Dear Embarrassed: Don't tell them anything. Your friends won't ask. And your enemies won't believe you anyway.

DEAR ABBY: My dearest friend talks about her two grandchildren constantly! Not only that, but she always drags her daughter and grandchildren along with her whenever she visits or is invited out socially. Daughter and children always seem to pop up at Mom's whenever Mom has company.

The grandchildren are cute, but they are always "on" and their mother and grandmother encourage them to be the center of attention.

I resent having toddlers underfoot when I plan to relax and socialize with adults.

Abby, don't you think that young mother should take her little ones and socialize with the diaper crowd where they can all enjoy the cute antics and baby talk?

A TIME FOR ADULTS

Dear Time: Yes, but you are addressing your complaints to the wrong person. If you want results, tell your dearest friend in your most diplomatic manner what you've told me.

BATTLE OF SEXES

PARIS (WNS) — The battle of the sexes still goes merrily on in Europe. French radio reporters recently announced that 46 percent of French wives intend to vote against their husband's choices in the coming national elections. And in nearby Italy, television reporters explained that Italian women need not fear kidnappers because their husbands are too likely to be happy without them and not inclined to pay even small ransoms.

States Eye Court Ruling In Gas Price Law Fight

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Louisiana Attorney General William Guste said he and legal officials from Texas and Oklahoma will base their suit challenging President Carter's natural gas pricing law on a state's right to regulate its own commerce.

Guste said the triple-state challenge to the natural gas law will cite a U.S. Supreme Court decision that stated Congress had no right to impose minimum wage standards on the states.

"Last year in the League of Cities vs. Usery the Supreme Court was asked whether Congress under the commerce clause could require states to adopt a minimum wage," Guste said. "The court said no, Congress is going too far. That is the legal nail we're hanging this on."

Guste and the attorneys general of Texas and Oklahoma filed suit in federal court Monday charging that sections of the energy law — signed by Carter last month — intrude on a state's right to regulate its own commerce.

Energy producing states could lose millions of dollars in tax revenue and face power shortages despite their fields of untapped oil and gas if key sections of law are allowed to stand, Guste said Tuesday at a news conference.

"I make no predictions on how successful this suit might be," Guste said. "But I hate to predict the results if we lose."

The energy producing states object to portions of the bill that would place arbitrary ceilings on the price of natural gas produced, sold and consumed within the state.

Under an emergency mandatory allocation section of the bill, the federal government could take gas away from Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas consumers and ship it to the North and East to ease shortages.

"These three states furnish the country 80 percent of its natural gas," Guste said. "We certainly haven't been selfish with it and we have been taking all the environmental impact licks. "No one can accuse Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana of being selfish, but you (Eastern Seaboard states) are doing little to produce your own supplies, so please don't try to take ours."

If the federal government imposes price ceilings, gas in the three producing states will sell for less and the state governments will receive millions of dollars less in severance taxes, Guste said.

Louisiana severance taxes — 7 cents per thousand cubic feet of naturel gas — pay most of the cost of running the state, enabling the residents to enjoy a relatively light tax burden. All homes valued under $50,000 pay no property taxes in Louisiana.

Besides the intrustion of the federal government into state affairs and the danger of the revenue loss, the gas law also would cause a cutback in energy production in the three states, the attorney general said.

"If an oil company has a choice of drilling and developing where there is a free marketplace or where prices are federally regulated, they are going to go to the free market and will be drilling in Iraq and Iran," Guste said.

"It is absolutely essential that the state fight (with) this suit and hope that it is successful," Guste said.

Gov. David Boren of Oklahoma initiated the legal challenge to the federal government, Guste said, with a telephone call to Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana in the days just prior to congressional approval of the much-amended natural gas pricing act.

The attorneys general from the states involved have each appointed a lead counsel and assistants to form a three-state legal team. Guste said he has "heard rumblings" that private landowners in Louisiana want to join the plaintiffs and the Justice Department may join the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission as a defendant. "And there is nothing to stop the Eastern Seaboard states from joining as defendants," Guste said.

$1-Per-Gallon Gasoline Seen

By United Press International

For American motorists, some of whom are already having trouble finding one type of premium fuel, $1-a-gallon gasoline may be just around the turn of the decade.

Makers of gasoline pumps — expecting steadily increasing prices — have started turning out pumps capable of recording prices more than twice what gasoline sells for today.

One of the makers of these $1.99-a-gallon pumps is the Toxheim Corp. of Fort Wayne, Ind., which supplies 35 percent of the nation's 170,000 service stations. R.K. Disser, vice president of Toxheim, said he expected gasoline to top the $1 mark by 1981.

At the same time unexpected demand has helped create a shortage of premium unleaded gasoline that has led to rationing and higher prices at some pumps around the country.

A spot check by UPI Tuesday indicated that high-octane unleaded gasoline has been in short supply for about three weeks, particularly at Shell and Mobil stations in the industrial Northeast and Midwest, in the worst shortage since the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74.

Jimmy Ackerson at Bill's Shell Service Station in Wilson, Conn., was typical of a number of service station operators contacted in New England. He complained he had been out of unleaded gas since Monday afternoon and didn't expect to get anymore until today.

"We're only getting half the amount we need," Ackerson said. "We have instituted a deal where we only allow our unleaded customers to get it. Some people with pre-1975 cars prefer it, but we are recommending they use regular or high test instead."

His station is also upping the price.

Contributing to the shortage is the growing number of cars on the road that require unleaded gasoline and whose owners prefer high-octane to prevent "pings" or "dieseling" — engine running after ignition turn-off.

Besides the unexpected amount of highway traffic this fall, there is the usual demand upon refineries for the production of heating fuel.

"This time of year your refineries are just in a strain," said Dan Usner of New Orleans, president of the Louisiana Service Station Association. "Plus some companies have refineries out of production for maintenance."

Dale Armstrong, spokesman for the Shell refinery at Wood River, Ill., which serves a 10-state area, said that between August and October there is usually a 5 percent decrease in the demand for gasoline, as driving winds down, and the downturn continues through winter.

"The downturn hasn't happened yet this year and demand is still more than our capacity," Armstrong said. "So there are short-term shortages, usually less than 24 hours, until new supplies arrive."

Contributing to the shortage has been a temporary shutdown of parts of two Shell refineries.

Stocks Rise Moderately On Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose moderately in slow preholiday trading today after slipping a bit the previous session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.38 to 807.43 and gaining issues held a 3-2 lead over losing stocks in a midday tally of New York Stock Exchange trading.

The Dow index of blue chip performance was down by about a point in the early going then drifted upward as the session progressed.

The Dow industrial closed off 1.56 on Tuesday ending a four-day rally.

Trading was sluggish with 8.39 million shares exchanged in the first two hours today, down from 8.99 million on Tuesday when volume was also fairly light.

The dollar, which has been a particular focus on the stock market in recent sessions, improved modestly against some major currencies in light trading abroad after declining slightly the previous session. But trading was also light because West German banks were closed for a holiday.

Casino-related stocks were actively traded. Caesars World jumped 2½ to 21¼ and Ramada Inn gained ½ to 9⅛. On the American Stock Exchange, Resorts International Class A stock added 1⅛ to 27⅛ as the most actively traded issue.

Sears, up ⅜ to 20½, topped the NYSE most active list at noon. The retailer slipped ¼ on Tuesday after announcing higher profits but lower sales in its most recent fiscal quarter.

The NYSE composite index rose .12 to 53.08. The Amex market value index gained .98 to 146.87.

Agents Probe Shooting Of U.S. Attorney

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Federal agents today stationed armed guards at the bedside of an assistant U.S. prosecutor who was ambushed by two gunmen, and pressed their investigation into the apparent assassination attempt.

Assistant U.S. Attorney James W. Kerr Jr., 38, who has prosecuted several men accused of drug smuggling in West Texas, escaped death Tuesday by ducking into the front seat of his car while two black-gloved gunmen fired on him with a rifle and a shotgun from the rear of a van.

Kerr was hospitalized with cuts caused by flying glass, and doctors at Methodist Hospital said X-rays indicated he had metal fragments in his hands.

Police later found 19 bullet holes scattered across the hood, left fender and windshield of Kerr's Lincoln Continental. The attack occurred near Kerr's home as he was leaving for work.

"It sounds like it was pretty well planned," said Bexar County District Attorney Bill White. "It appears they had some pretty good information about Kerr's movements."

Federal prosecutors said the gunmen were probably hired killers.

"It's kind of scary," U.S. Attorney Jamie C. Boyd said.

Police found the van believed used in the ambush about three hours after the 8 a.m. attack, abandoned in the parking lot of a shopping center near Kerr's home in Alamo Heights, an island suburb. Agents were examining it for clues. Records show it was stolen in Austin last Thursday.

Detectives found empty shell casings in the van, and Michael A. Morrow, the FBI's agent-in-charge in San Antonio, said, "It appears the shooting was done from within the van."

Morrow said he did not believe the gunmen wore masks, but he admitted, "We have not been able to get a good composite description" of the attackers.

Boyd said the shooting "has the overtones of a contract-signed assassination." He said Kerr's prosecutions included several large-scale narcotics-trafficking operations throughout the vast West Texas district district, including San Antonio, Del Rio, Midland, and El Paso.

"We're talking to an awful lot of people — potential suspects who might have a motive," Boyd said.

Among Kerr's pending cases are a 13-count indictment against five men accused of operating a bookmaking ring handling more than $450,000 in bets in one month in 1977, and a drug case in which suspects are accused of smuggling nine tons of marijuana and 50 pounds of cocaine into United States from Colombia.

Boyd refused to link those cases or any others specifically to the attack.

After the gunmen fled in the stolen van, Kerr stumbled out of his car, blood covering his face, and asked neighbors for help.

"Help me, help me, please. Please call the police," Lillian Haley quoted Kerr as saying.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Wayne F. Speck said he is unaware of any recent threats against Kerr. Boyd said he had received threats in the past himself, "But I don't go around with a gun or bodyguards."

Boyd said this was the first attack on an assistant U.S. attorney in Western District of Texas, but Boyd, who has been here since 1963, added: "We have not had all this dope before."

EPA Finds Waste Sites Especially Hazardous

DALLAS (UPI) — A regional Environmental Protection Agency spokesman says five chemical waste dumps in Texas are among 638 nationwide identified by EPA headquarters in Washington, D.C., as especially hazardous.

Eddie Lee said he would characterize the sites as potentially, but not imminently, dangerous to public health.

EPA Administrator Douglas Costle said his agency's preliminary survey indicated thousands of "potentially dangerous" chemical sites existed throughout the country.

"For decades we have been disposing of these chemicals without adequate safeguards," Costle said.

Lee said the five sites were among the 638 identified by EPA headquarters as particularly hazardous.

He said the state of Texas has filed suit to force the cleanup of one of the sites — Bio-Ecology Systems in Grand Prairie. Lee said the firm dumped oil and other liquids at an abandoned 12-acre site.

He said another Texas site rating high on the EPA's hazard list was a 21-acre area near Lamark, where Matco-Petro Processors dumped liquids, oil, styrene tar and chloride.

Lee said the other three sites were near the San Jacinto River in Houston and contained significant quantities of hazardous waste, but were not as dangerous as the other two sites.

They were:

—A 2-acre acid pit on a 203-acre site located on the east side of the San Jacinto River south of Houston.

—The French Ltd. 15-acre pit on a 23-acre tract on the east side of the San Jacinto River in the houston area.

—The Sikes pit on an 8-acre site on the northeast corner of the San Jacinto River.

Couple Orders System Off

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — A Texas couple Tuesday ordered doctors to shut off a life support system keeping their son alive and donated his kidneys to needy patients.

John Neill, 17, suffered severe brain damage in an auto accident in suburban Taipei Nov. 18 and has been in a coma since being taken to Veterans' General Hspital where he was placed on a resuscitation machine.

The machine recorded no brain waves.

Mrs. Jenelle Neill said her husband John B. Neill of Terrell wanted their son's kidneys given to two Chinese patients "so that his memory can live on."

Neill's kidneys were given to two Chinese patients, both 46, in two successful transplant operations. They had waited for months for the operations.

Doctors said the youth's parents consulted each other and then in tears ordered that the machine be turned off after they signed papers for the kidney donation.

Euthanasia is not banned in Taiwan and doctors often remove patients from life support systems following agreement of the patient's family members.

Mrs. Neill said she and her husband made their decision in part to show the Chinese in Taiwan that once a person is dead he no longer needs his organs.

Indian Official Visits Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The chief minister of the state of Tamil Nadu in India, who starred in movies before turning politician, is in Houston today as part of a six-city tour of the United States.

M.G. Ramachandran, who arrived here Monday night, received a formal welcome to the city today from Mayor Jim McConn and the City Council, then visited the research facilities at the Texas Medical Center.

He toured the Johnson Space Center Tuesday, and was guest of honor later in the evening at a dinner hosted by five Indian organizations.

The 61-year-old politician started his movie career in 1934 and acted in 190 movies before he was elected chief minister in 1977.

"He is like a Ronald Reagan in India," said Thomas Conry of the Institute of International Education, the agency taking care of the Houston leg of the tour, which was sponsored by the State Department.

"I understand he was a shoo-in when he ran for the post, since his notoriety was already established," he said.

Conry said social reform was the primary theme of most of Ramachandran's films, in which he played such roles as peasants and laborers, and he has carried that theme into his present life.

"He feels the rural masses have been neglected and it is time the Indian government takes steps to improve their living conditions," Conry said.

From Houston, Ramachandran travels to Mexico City, then on to Los Angeles and Honolulu, he said.

HEARING SCHEDULED

● Autumn's Opulence ●
guarded at the front courtyard. Indoor warmth with the space and lavish openness desired in a Melonie Park prestige home. Master bedroom downstairs, the childrens' rooms upstairs and special features of unmistakeable quality throughout. Cliett 799-6370 Bonnie 792-8364

● Stuff the Turkey ● and invite the kids home, Mom. They'll be charmed by this studio cottage with a single sunken bedroom. But there's a formal dining room, fireplace, 1 1/2 bath besides! Also a space which could serve as a guest bedroom-gameroom, workarea or whatever. Tech Terrace Park is just an after dinner stroll away. Pat 799-2016 Mary 797-8189

● "LET IT SNOW!!" ●
Let it snow!! Visualize yourself curled up on the "cushioned" hearth with the latest "best seller" the warmth of the fireplace! Just listed this 3 bedroom with basement or study (bookshelves) with the softest "earth" tones imaginable! A marvelous family home! Pat 799-2016, or Bonnie 792-8364

● Outrageous Good Looks ●
in this Farrah 3 bedroom. The living area is just one sunken and a whole-wall fireplace for the chestnuts about to appear. Built in desks, cabinets, bookcases, all in lovely detail. An entry court will escort you to this special home. Cliett 799-6370 or Kristina 745-6904

● A Crackling Fire ●
and flickering shadows from the cozy focal fireplace. Each settles down in their own bed and room (four) and dreams of the Thanksgiving feast to come. The well-established Broadmoor area sings with quality and tradition. Even a white rail fence completes your vision of holiday horniness. Bonnie 792-8364 Jan 799-5024

● Decorate With Indian Corn ●
and colorful squash. Set out your own autumn touches in this newly redecorated Rush School area 3 bedroom. Double garage, 2 baths, a cheerful den and a spic and span jewel at $32,500. Margaret 799-4909 Mary 797-8189

Draft Endorses Press Freedom

PARIS (AP) — UNESCO's 20th General Conference approved by unanimous consensus today a compromise draft declaration on the mass media endorsing the freedom of the press.

The consensus, given in thunderous applause before UNESCO's Commission on Culture and Communication, represented a personal victory for UNESCO Director-General Amadou Mahtar M'Bow and a significant diplomatic reversal in favor of the West and moderate developing nations.

Ratification of the commission's decision is a foregone conclusion when the General Conference meets in plenary session at the end of this biennial policy planning conference of the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

M'Bow's compromise draft, agreed upon after four weeks of often impassioned debate and exhausting negotiations, eliminated all Soviet-sponsored language that Western critics claimed would sanction government meddling in the news.

The compromise draft eliminated from the original text language that would have ensured governments full right of reply to news accounts they deemed objectionable. It also deletes references to "journalists' duties" and instead urges, but does not bind, journalists to be concerned about the promotion of human rights and UNESCO's stated goal of combatting warmongering, racism and apartheid.

The Senegalese director general called the approval "a historic decision" that would have far-reaching implications for the development of international communication policies in the coming years.

"I won't hide the fact that I myself at the outset of this debate had misgivings about the possibility of arriving at this consensus," M'Bow said. He introduced his revised draft declaration and called for passage by acclamation, saying "it is clear that emotion has not wiped out reason."

Tunisia's Mustapha Masmoudi, a key figure in the final negotiations, moved that the 146 member nations immediately adopt M'Bow's compromise text. Poland's Edwiga Pastecka, another negotiator often speaking for the communist bloc, seconded the motion for approval of what she termed a "historical document" that her government "supports heavily."

Finland, Panama and Barbados also called for unanimous acclaim, setting the stage for passage of the six-page, 11-article draft.

Chief U.S. delegate John E. Reinhardt, director of the International Communications Agency and a pivotal figure in the negotiations, told the commission the final agreement set forth "ideals to which we can all subscribe while imposing no controls or mandatory constraints."

Italy's L. Carducci Artenisio, summing up the feelings of several Western European delegations, said his government had "some reservations" about the final text, but that the West could claim satisfaction with having stopped the original Soviet-initiated draft.

George Beebe, chairman of the World Press Freedom Committee and associate editor of the Miami Herald, said in a statement that defenders of a free press must remain "vigilant to make certain there is no abuse or misinterpretation of the text."

"We are gratified that in addition to repudiating the principle of state control of the media, the declaration reaffirms the right of journalists to have access to sources of information everywhere, and urges protection of journalists in the exercise of their profession," Beebe's statement said.

"We do not consider this a victory, however," the statement said. "The issue of state control and other challenges will be back to plague us at future international conferences."

Political Uprisings Reported In China

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — A campaign to bolster Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping gained momentum today amid reports of purges and recantations by the press of anti-Teng charges published in the past.

Gen. Chin Chi-wei, 67, has been chosen to replace his boss, Chi Teng-kuei, as first political commissar of the Peking military region, Peking radio said in a report monitored here.

Chin's promotion is believed to figure into a broader plan to demote Teng's opponents, who reportedly include Chi's superior, Peking Commander Chen Hsi-lien.

Wall posters appearing today continued to present Teng, 74, favorably while directing accusations at Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng who has differed with the vice premier over some aspects of the nation's new industrialization program.

The posters also charged that Chen, along with former Peking Mayor Wu Teh, 64, sympathized with the "gang of four radicals," delayed the release of prisoners arrested in the April 1976 Tienanmen demonstrations that brought about Teng's fall and showed marked reluctance to rehabilitate him last year.

At the same time, reports from Hong Kong said Peking's official newspaper, The People's Daily, has admitted it distorted facts, misled the masses and harmed Teng in reporting the Tienanmen incident.

The major Hong Kong newspapers, Ta Kung Pao and Wen Wei Po, today reprinted the first part of a 20,000 word article appearing in the Tuesday issue of The People's Daily.

The Tienanmen Square incident, now classified by the authorities as a revolutionary event, involved a clash between Chinese troops and tens of thousands of people after the troops removed floral wreaths, poems and other offerings that honored Premier Chou En-lai who died Jan. 8, 1976.

Teng's involvement in the Tienanmen affair brought him disgrace.

The daily said the staff of the paper, in investigating the "gang of four," headed by Chairman Mao Tse-tung's widow, Chiang Ching, realized its past mistakes and "also realize that it is their duty now to tell the true story of the Tienanmen incident."

The Hong Kong newspaper Ming Pao, which has mainland sources, was quoted today as predicting the party central committee would meet later this month to consider the roles of politburo members who have been demoted.

From Here To Eternity

PROBABLY EVERY SPORTS writer worth his dead weight in ink has had the urge to pull off a George Plimpton-type stunt, every now and then.

George, you remember, is the fella who's wrestled bears and played pro football and boxed with the best and turned hockey goalie for a year. And most important, he lived to write about it. That's the key.

After watching the Region I high school cross-country meet last Saturday, I decided that I would run the course, so if I ever happened to write another story about a harrier I would know something how he felt. And anyway, I was double-dog dared by a couple of guys. Even sports writers have their pride—sometimes.

Unlike George, though, I didn't leave any teeth laying on the gridiron. It turned out to be my breakfast instead.

THE CROSS COUNTRY COURSE at Mae Simmons park has been called — probably for lack of a better adjective — tough. Around the places most of us hang out, a more colorful expression could probably be coined. But for now, tough is strong enough.

Prior to the run, high school coach Jon Omdahl handed out a couple of pointers. He only said that the first mile was the hardest, after that the rugged course turns flat and that a runner can just coast on home. Sounded easy.

To get an even better perspective of the terrain, the course was walked and studied not two or three times, but once. That was enough.

Just to set the record straight, I'm not in that bad of shape. When walking to the pool during the summer, heads don't turn — whole bodies do. Also, only a two on the BBPS scale is usually registered when I walk. That means, of course, my belly bounces only two times for every step taken. BBPS is sort of like MPH. Not bad.

But when you turn my age and stop checking the pimple on your face and start focusing on the hairline, your condition starts to be questioned. But about the only time I run is between commercials and that's to some peanut butter. A return trip is needed if the jelly if forgotten. And a third time for a glass of milk is out of the question, unless the wind is to my back.

ON THE DAY of the big run, out came the fashionable attire. Blue tennis shoes (high top, of course), white socks, pale blue shorts, and a dark blue warmup suit with white stripes on the legs and arms was the prescribed dress. That way if death overtook me down the backstretch, they could just haul me to the funeral home, put a tie on me and that would be that.

TO VERIFY THE story, a companion came along with the sole duty of timing the run and, in case offlapse, apply a little mouth-to-mouth respiration. Incidently, my companion was a girl.

My goal— every athlete must have one — was to best the worst time turned in by the last place girl in the Conference B race. About a day and a half, I figured. Give or take a lunch break.

After a few minutes of warmup, I was ready. The muscles were warm, the adrenalin pumping. Anxious was not the word. Anyway it was starting to get cold and I knew the sooner I had finished, the sooner the hot chocolate on the warmer at home could be consumed.

GET SET ... GO. Omdahl, I quickly found out, was wrong. The first mile isn't the roughest, the first 30 yards is.

It wasn't until I reached the first hill I realized what Omdahl had been talking about was the truth. They say that the legs are always the first to go. Well, they were wrong, in my case it was my breakfast ... Cheetos.

After that mini-adventure, the hill — the big one — was staring me in the face. Because of the rain, the hill was extremely slippery. And now I wished I had worn my soccer shoes. That way I could have tied them on my knees and crawled up a little faster. Anything for another half-second off the clock.

The climb itself wasn't as bad as what was to come, though. Because at the top of the hill is a junior high school. Once on top, students can look out the windows of the building and stare you down. An awesome feeling tha not even the great poet could probably describe.

Coming down the incline is almost as tough as going up it, because any wrong move, one false step, and it's mud-ball city. If I thought I could have taken off a few seconds, I probably would have slipped on purpose and rolled down. But — even in the midst of pain — judgment overruled valor.

Once off the hill, it's really clear sailing all the way back to the finish line.

Tigers' Whitaker Named AL Rookie Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Whitaker, the classy, confident second baseman of the Detroit Tigers, was named the American League's Rookie of the Year today by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Whitaker won the annual Ford C. Frick Award in a runaway, polling 21 of 28 possible votes from the BBWAA. Paul Molitor, Milwaukee's fine infielder, was a distant second in the voting with three ballots.

California infielder Carney Lansford finished third with two votes and Kansas City pitcher Rich Gale and Whitaker's teammate, shortstop Alan Trammell, were tied for fourth with one vote apiece.

Whitaker, a left-handed hitter, played 139 games for Detroit and compiled a .285 batting average and 58 runs batted in. He teamed with Trammell to give the Tigers one of the best double-play combinations in the game in 1978.

Detroit manager Ralph Houk had said somewhat prophetically during the season: "If Lou gets Rookie of the Year, he should split it with Alan."

The 21-year-old Whitaker showed uncommon poise for a rookie, once drawing this remark from Houk: "He plays every day and doesn't choke. And you'll find that that's unusual for a rookie."

Whitaker agreed that his first major league season ran pretty smoothly for him.

"Playing baseball is very easy for me," he said at one point near the end of the year.

Then, referring to his relationship with Trammell on the field, he said unabashedly, "We've played very well as a pair and we feel very experienced, even though we're still called rookies."

Molitor agreed in kind that the BBWAA had selected the right man. Chosen as the AL's Rookie of the Year by a leading national sports publication earlier this year, Molitor reflected that Whitaker should have won the award instead.

"Whitaker was more consistent than I was," Molitor said. "He had less ups and downs than me."

Dry's Pact Extended

By The Associated Press

Coach F.A. Dry of Texas Christian has a new six-year contract for making "excellent progress" with TCU's staggering football program.

The Horned Frogs had a 2-9 record under Dry last year and have only won two games this season.

Rumors had flown in recent weeks that Dry might either become the offensive coordinator for the Houston Oilers in the National Football League or head coach at his alma mater, Oklahoma State.

But TCU athletic director Frank Windegger said Tuesday in Fort Worth, "F.A. stabilized the football program. We felt excellent progress has been made in our football program in 1977 and 1978. This progress is attributed to F.A.'s leadership and his ability to make the years ahead prosperous for TCU football."

Dry said "I'm pleased with the confidence the University has shown in me and my staff. We intend to repay that confidence in the near future with not only improvement of the football team but the improvement in the ability to win."

Dry recently gave the TCU Board of Governors a report on what was wrong with the TCU football program after Jim Shofner had resigned under fire.

Dry said the biggest weakness was that the school had recruited almost no football talent.

TCU has defeated Tulane and Oregon this year with a game remaining against the Texas Aggies.

(While TCU appreciated Dry's work, the same was not the case at Oklahoma State and the University of Colorado. Jim Stanley and Bill Mallory were fired Wednesday at the two Big Eight schools. Stories on their firings, Page 2, Sec. D.)

Only in America could Thanksgiving happen, for here in a new land was a new kind of person. The Pilgrims came, seeking freedom to think and believe according to their consciences. They found a country that was beautiful and challenging, with a mixture of wild abundance and primitive resistance. They were beset by tribulations of nature and spirit, but the Pilgrims made a new way of life here — in freedom. And because these people viewed life as larger than themselves, it was inevitable that they should bend their knees in Thanksgiving for the bounties they found beyond the rugged shores of Plymouth Rock.

American State Bank is thankful today for this land where everything is still possible. We give thanks for the courage and vision of our forefathers, and for the customs and traditions they inspired.

It is good to know that we can take pride in the past, as we apply the fruits of today's prosperity to the task of preparing for an ever-better tomorrow.

Raider Safety Gets AP Honor

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

After looking at the films, Texas Tech coach Rex Dockery could see where Ted Watts got all his power for that game-saving tackle.

"Ted went into the hole to try to stop the ball-carrier (SMU's Darold Turner)," Dockery remarked. "Ted got there just ahead of (linebacker) Don Kelly, and Kelly hit Watts in the back just as Watts hit Turner."

The next thing Turner hit was the ground, and the Raiders had stopped the Mustangs' final fourth-down try.

That tackle was just one of the reasons that Watts was selected the Associated Press Southwest Conference defensive player of the week.

The honor was announced this morning, but Tuesday, Watts was not in any mood to celebrate or accept the honor. He was in a local hospital after having a broken nose reset.

He sustained the nose break in the first half of Saturday's game but played rest of the way with it. All the time, he was wearing a bulky pad over the lower part of his face to protect a previously broken jaw.

Actually, Watts wanted to play so badly against SMU that he talked his doctors into unwiring his broken jaw. Late on game day he was wondering why.

Not only did he break his nose in the first half, but late in the contest he got a penalty that almost cost his team the game.

However, Watts made made up for it with the TD-saving tackle and then intercepted a Mike Ford pass to preserve Tech's 19-16 victory over the Mustangs.

"He played an amazing game when you consider how bad his face had to be hurting," said Dockery. "That was some kind of hit he put on down at the goal. No doubt he saved the game for us. It was no ordinary tackle (on Turner)."

The prevous play, a teammate had dumped SMU quarterback Mike Ford at the 7 on a fourth-down play, but a holding penalty was called against Watts, giving SMU another chance.

"I didn't hold but when I got another chance I sure was glad," said Watts. "I sure was scared."

On the same series of plays, Watts was involved in a bizarre play. He arrived back on the field just as Ford was calling signals. Ford checked signals to pass to Emanuel Tolbert, who was open.

Only Tolbert wasn't open long, as Watts arrived just in time to help bat the ball away.

"That was our moving zone," cracked Dockery.

"I guess I should have had that pass," said Watts, who wore a face guard similar to the one sported last year by Tech basketballer Kent Williams. "I really couldn't see the ball too well."

While Watts was hospitalized, the Raiders returned to heavy work for Saturday's game with the University of Houston. And the injury report looked better. Dockery said that it appeared that all the wounded troopers with the possible exception of wide receiver Godfrey Turner would be ready.

Turner sustained an ankle injury, and if he not able to play, his position could be taken by freshman Randy Page.

Fullback James Hadnot, who had a severe rib bruise, was working Tuesday.

The Raiders will work this afternoon, then hold morning sessions Thursday and Friday in getting ready for the SWC leader.

Stanley Demands Job Or Money From OSU

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Ousted Oklahoma State University football coach Jim Stanley plans to sue the school to keep his job, at least for the remaining two years of his contract, Stanley's attorney claims.

Tuesday, Dr. L.L. Boger, university president, said in a statement that Stanley had been "relieved of his responsibilities as head coach" and added, "I will recommend that he be reassigned to other duties within the university."

Later, Oklahoma City attorney James P. Linn said Stanley will sue to retain his position and to collect the approximately $70,000 due him in salary.

"Jim Stanley was hired as head football coach at Oklahoma State University and Oklahoma State University has to honor that contract," Linn said. "If they don't want to keep him as head football coach, then they can fire him and pay him off.

"But they don't want to do that. They don't want to pay him. They want to reassign him to another job. You can't do that."

Linn said he and Stanley planned a press conference for early today to discuss the legal ramifications of the ouster.

There were rumors earlier in the day that Stanley had been fired last Thursday and had informed the team of this on Monday. This was denied by Richard A. Young, Oklahoma State athletic director, who noted that both he and Boger were out of town last Thursday.

But just hours later Boger issued his announcement.

Both the Big Eight Conference and the NCAA are probing allegations of a reported slush fund for Oklahoma State athletes. To add to Stanley's problems, the school is in its first year of a two-year probation for recruiting violations. The team also had a 3-8 record this season.

Last week Young said that the findings of the slush fund probe were "substantial," but he has refused to detail them.

"In view of all the circumstances, it appeared that a change in the leadership of our football program would be in the best interest of the university," Boger's statement said.

He added he would ask Young to expedite a nationwide search for a successor to Stanley.

According to the rumors earlier in the day, Stanley already had been replaced by Hayden Fry, former SMU coach who has built a winning program at North Texas State.

"I keep hearing those rumors," said Fry, who counted Oklahoma State as one of his nine victims this fall. "I don't know anything about it.

"I'm sincere about that. I haven't discussed anything with Oklahoma State. I'm honored that my name is rumored to be with them. I think they have a great university and a great opportunity to have an outstanding program."

Asked whether he would be interested in the job here, Fry added, "If something develops at Oklahoma State, it doesn't cost anything to listen."

Among other names unofficially listed as possible successors were Stanley's assistant Kent Stephenson; OSU product F.A. Dry, who now coaches at Texas Christian; Larry Lacewell, the former defensive coordinator at Oklahoma University; Oklahoma assistant Lee Snider and Nebraska assistant Lance Van Zandt.

Young several months ago confirmed that Oklahoma State had received the allegations from an investigation the Big Eight had started last June and admitted they were "serious." The current probation includes bans on bowl and television appearances and the loss of five scholarships each year of the probation period.

A Big Eight meeting later this month is expected to produce some kind of verdict on Oklahoma State's future. After that, the NCAA will decide whether the penalty — if there is any — is severe enough.

Ironically, until this year Stanley was the most successful football coach for Oklahoma State, with a 32-23-2 record over five years. Included in there were two bowl victories, the 1974 Fiesta Bowl and the 1976 Tangerine Bowl.

In addition, he led Oklahoma State to a share of the 1976 Big Eight championship.

Buffaloes Oust Mallory

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — With a 10-year record of 74-33-1, Colorado's Bill Mallory was one of the nation's winningest football coaches.

Mallory came to Boulder five years ago from Miami of Ohio, where he had fashioned the country's No. 1 defense. As a disciple of Woody Hayes, he promised to bring the same form of solid, no-nonsense football to the Rockies.

There were signs of just such a resurgence, as the Buffaloes compiled a 9-2 record and went to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in 1975 and then tied for the Big Eight title and played in the Orange Bowl the following season. But failures to win big games and midseason collapses the past two seasons sealed Mallory's fate.

Tuesday, the 43-year-old Mallory was fired with two years left on his contract.

"After a review of our football situation, it has been decided that a change is necessary," Colorado athletic director Eddie Crowder said in a statement issued shortly after a Tuesday morning meeting with Mallory.

"Coach Mallory, his staff and players have made an outstanding effort, and yet our program is not progressing as it must. Bill Mallory is an outstanding person, a man I respect very much, which makes this decision a very unpleasant task."

Crowder said the search for a successor would begin immediately, with early speculation centering on former California coach Mike White.

Mallory's Colorado teams went 5-6, 9-3, 8-4, 7-3-1 and 6-5 for an overall mark of 35-21-1, but in the Big Eight the Buffs were a mediocre 18-16-1.

The past two seasons, Colorado opened with five straight victories but finished below .500 the rest of the way. Key injuries, squad dissension and Mallory's battles with the media over closed locker rooms after losses marked the end of the 1977 season. This fall, most of those problems appeared to have been skirted, but the Buffs continued to flounder on the field and wound up in seventh place in the conference with a 2-5 record.

Following Tuesday's announcement, Mallory said the Colorado football program needed "better organization and better money. A negative attitude is not needed. That makes recruiting very difficult in this state."

Soviets Edge Porkers In Double Overtime

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Sergei Iovaisha scored on a layin with 58 seconds remaining in the second overtime Tuesday night to give the touring Russian Nationals a pulsating 81-79 exhibition game victory over Arkansas.

The Razorbacks had taken a 79-77 lead on Alan Zahn's 25-foot jumper with 2:14 remaining but didn't score again.

Anatoli Mishkin evened things with a layup on an alley-oop pass with 1:45 remaining before the teams took turns scrambling until Iovaisha hit the winner.

Mishkin led all scorers with 26 points and also had 10 assists. He was 12 of 19 from the field to key a Russian attack that produced 53 percent field goal accuracy.

Sidney Moncrief had 24 for the Hogs on 10 of 19 field goal shooting and four of four free throws.

U.S. Reed added 15 for the Porkers and Steve Schall had 14 before exiting with a slightly sprained ankle in the second half.

It was the final game of an American tour for the Russians, who finished with a 9-4 record and had triumphs over Notre Dame, Indiana, Athletes in Action and Arkansas, among others.

The Russians threatened to break things open twice with hot surges. Trailing 12-6, the Russians outscored the Razorbacks 16-4 to snare a 22-16 lead.

After the Razorbacks had closed within two at 26-24, Stanislav Eremin made a pair of buckets and Mishkin added a layin as the Russian press bothered the Hogs into three consecutive turnovrs.

But Reed hit two buckets and a free throw, Moncrief scored on a remarkable reverse layin and Zahn drilled a 15-footer to give the Razorbacks a 37-36 halftime lead.

Arkansas had a sizzling streak in the first four minutes of the second half, jumping to a 49-42 lead behind three baskets by freshman Keith Peterson.

However, before the Hogs could land a knockout blow, the Russians scored nine of the next 11 points to knot things at 51-51.

The defeat does not count against Arkansas' record. The Hogs will open their regular season against Oklahoma on Dec. 2.

Georgia Plans To Battle HEW Ruling

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — The University of Georgia is ready to fight the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare over financing for athletics, university President Fred C. Davison said Tuesday.

The conflict centers on how strictly HEW will enforce provisions of the Title IX law forbidding sex discrimination in college athletics.

The law could hurt the university's self-supporting football program, which the administration said finances most of the school's $3.3 million sports program.

Davison said the school is prepared to take HEW to court if it tries to impose budget allocations on university sports based on Title IX male-female quota restrictions.

"If HEW demands proportional expenditures, they will kill the only revenue-producing sport we have," Davison said.

Athletic director Joel Eaves said the university would have to come up with nearly $1 million more each year to finance across-the-board increases in women's athletics if budget allocations are based on the percentages of male and female team members.

The university currently has 221 men and 89 women in intercollegiate competition.

"The university is certainly prepared to protect its interests. . ." Davison said. "Through one regulation or another, the federal establishment is getting into the position of telling us what to teach, when to teach it and how to teach. Now, it is here telling us how to play."

Davison referred to an investigation of the university's intercollegiate sports program in September.

CHS Volleyballers Fall In Amarillo

AMARILLO (Special) — Amarillo High broke the overtime with a pair of points and won a Class AAAA bi-district volleyball match from Coronado Tuesday night.

AHS won the match 14-8, 17-15, to advance in the playoffs.

Amarillo got a 1-0 lead before play started in the first game, as Coronado made an illegal substitution. Then, AHS built up an 8-3 lead. Coronado got as close as 9-8 before the Sandies pulled away.

Loaded Injury List

HERSKOWITZ

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ
And STEVE PERKINS

Q. It seems to me that more pro football players are being hurt seriously this season than ever before. Do you have any figures on how many have been knocked out for the season by various injuries?

Clyde Fullerton, St. Louis.

A. Through 11 weeks of the season, an astounding 190 players have been put on the NFL's injured reserve list, meaning they cannot play anymore this season.

However, the figure is slightly misleading, and may result in a rule change next season. Some of those players had borderline injuries which would sideline them for only periods of six to eight weeks. But there was no category in which they could be placed without counting against the club's 45-man roster limit.

• • •

Q. I am collecting some of the misstatements accredited to baseball announcer Jerry Coleman of San Diego. Can you add to them, please? Also, is it possible this is the same man who used to play for the New York Yankees?

—Frank Leftridge, Long Beach, Cal.

A. The same. His Colemanisms have been widely quoted coast-to-coast. A few to add to your list: Johnny Grub slides into second with a stand-up double. . .Willie Davis is not as young as he used to be. . .They throw Winfield out at second, but he's safe. . .There's a hard shot to LeMaster and he throws Madlock into the dugout. . .And Kansas City is at Chicago, or is that Chicago at Kansas City? Well, no matter. Kansas City leads in the eighth 4-4.

• • •

Q. Please ask Tom Landry if it's true he fined Tony Dorsett $500 for missing a meeting. Tony said one other player missed a meeting and wasn't fined. Is this true? Who was the player?

—George Grant, Gainesville, Fla.

A. Landry never divulges the amounts of fines he levies. "A lot of players get fined," he says, "I just keep upping the fines until I get their attention." He got Dorsett's attention.

The player to whom Dorsett refers was safety Cliff Harris, who slept through a preseason practice. But when Harris awoke, he immediately contacted Landry and rushed to the field to apologize to his teammates.

Q. How are NFL players weighed for the weight that appears on the team rosters. How much does the equipment weigh that they put on for games?

—Eddie Whiteright, Tacoma, Wash.

A. The players are usually weighed wearing nothing more than a T-shirt and a jockstrap. Their equipment weight varies from about 17 pounds for a receiver or defensive back, to as much as 30 pounds for an offensive lineman.

Ford Buys Model-A(stro)

HOUSTON (AP) — A two-year partnership ended Tuesday, leaving Ford Motor Credit Corp. with full ownership of the National League Houston Astros baseball team.

The ownership had been shard with General Electric Credit Corp. since September 1976 after an agreement for the two corporations to purchase stock of Astrodomain Corp., from the family of Roy Hofheinz. Astrodomain Corp. operates the Astros baseball team.

Astrodomain has sold the Astroworld amusement park to its present operator, Six Flags, Inc., according to an announcement made Tuesday by Warren A. Genee, Astrodomain vice president for finance.

"The objective of our joint management during the past two years has been to make operations self-supporting," Genee said. "The steps that have been taken during the past two years have been sufficiently successful that we feel that one company will be able to complete the tasks yet to be accomplished."

Genee said that although the eventual plan is to sell the Astros to a single owner, there are no current prospects of a single owner.

"It is not the normal business of either company to operate a baseball team," Genee said.

Dodger Pitcher Set To Move to Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — If you can't beat 'em, join 'em, the saying goes.

Well, the New York Yankees have put a new twist to the old philosophy: If someone beats the Yankees, they get him to join THEIR team instead.

For the second time in three years, a pitcher who beat the Yankees in the World Series appears about to defect to them.

The Yankees have called what they term a major press conference for today, presumably to announce the signing of free agent pitcher Tommy John, a 35-year-old left-hander who won 17 games with the Los Angeles Dodgers last season.

"He's important to us," Yankee owner George Stenbrenner said Tuesday shortly before announcing the press conference. "If he's sitting there, that gives us time to develop our younger players in the minors."

Neither John nor his lawyer, Robert Cohen, were available for comment Tuesday and a Yankee spokesman said he would not comment on the situation, but it is known that John has been interested in playing in New York for some time.

"As of the other day, they were very close together," said a close observer of the John-Yankee contract negotiations.

John became a free agent this year when the Dodgers wouldn't meet his demand for a three-year contract and a signing bonus. He was the Yankees' No. 1 choice in the Nov. 3 re-entry draft and their top target in the free-agent marketplace.

John was the winning pitcher for the Dodgers in the first game of this year's World Series, which was eventually won by the Yankees over Los Angeles in six games.

Two years ago, in the first free agent draft under baseball's reserve system, Don Gullett, also a left-hander, signed with the Yankees after having defeated them in the first game of the 1976 Series.

Monterey Dumps DHS

Kriss Ethridge and Margaret Grinnell both tossed in 14 points each to pace the Monterey lems to an easy 87-36 win over Dunbar Tuesday night.

The win upped the Plainsmen record to 3-1, while Dunbar is still winless after two starts.

Leading the Panthers was Lisa Caviel with 13 points. She was the only member of the DHS team hitting in double figures.

Monterey had little trouble with DHS as it was able to build a 24-6 first-quarter lead and then coast home for the victory. Janet Mears also added 13 points.

In JV play, MHS won 61-28.

Eagles Lasso Ropes Behind Williams

Lubbock Christian ran its record to 2-0 Tuesday night by defeating Ropes 101-51, behind the 24-point performance of Shawn Williams.

Wilhams, who is also doubling as a football player for the Eagles, hit 12 attempts from the field. Also adding key points were Tim Perrin with 17, Steve Sikes 13 and Todd Towns and Shawn Bowe 12 each.

LCHS jumped on Ropes early, bursting out to a 31-12 lead in the first period.

In girl's play, Ropes handed LCHS a 40-34 setback, despite Lyn Blackman's 13 points. Rhonda Melton led Ropes with 10 points.

Dunbar Outlasts LHS

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Craig Wells learned the hard way that butter and eggs aren't the only things that keep going up.

If that weren't enough, even the price of a field goal has been hit by inflation. Fact is, the Lubbock High Westerners found it almost impossible to even buy one in the final period Tuesday night against Dunbar.

After jumping out ahead of the Panthers by as many as eight points in the opening half, the Westerners fell on some awfully hard times in the third and fourth periods, scoring only 10 points.

And that wasn't quite enough, as the Panthers came back to capture a 44-36 win.

"Sometimes things like that just happened," explained Wells, following the game. "But they (LHS) played a heck of a game, I though. They did what I told them to do and that's important."

There was awhile there that the Westerners put a scare into the Joe McWilliams' coached Panthers, especially in the second stanza. That's when the Panthers found themselves outscored 12-3.

But there was a good explanation to Dunbar's lack of points. Shoot, said McWilliams, the Panthers just weren't shooting.

In all, Dunbar put the ball in the air only 20 times in the first half.

"And when you hit only 35 per cent ," said the Dunbar coach, "you just can't score any points."

So the Panthers didn't and trailed 26-20 at the break. The margin would have been more but Wayne Williams hit a last second shot to end the scoring.

For most of the initial half, neither team could grab much of a toehold on the other as the lead usually never got much more than 1, 2 or 3 points. However LHS came on strong late in the half to grab the 6-point advantage.

Then as the third quarter was drawing to a close, Lubbock hit its dry spell and Dunbar took command.

With only a couple of minute left, Williams hit a pair of field goals from close range and Rafael Scott added a free throw to cut the LHS lead to 32-29.

Lubbock High did not score in the last three minutes of the third quarter, opening the gates for the Panthers' final period charge.

Scott hit frist and then Gary Baldwin added a field goal, followed and another layup by Williams. And before the crowd of 300 fans could blink Dunbar had its first lead 35-32. Dunbar continued to up its margin when Baldwin added a pair of free throws up give DHS a 37-32 advantage.

From then on it was all Dunbar.

"I especially like the way were able to come back from a game last time against a team that didn't play the same type of offense or defense and win like this," said McWilliams. "I think that was a real positive sign on our parts."

Sul Ross Nips Chaps 81-69

ALPINE (Special) — Vic Flores, who failed to put the game away in regulation, scored two buckets in the first 30 seconds of overtime Tuesday as Sul Ross blitzed Lubbock Christian College 81-69.

In handing the Chaparrals their 30th straight road defeat, Sul Ross leaped to a 67-59 advantage in the extra period and LCC, which made up 10 and 8-point deficits in the second half, could not recover.

The Chaps led 10-2 after three minutes but the Lobos, now 2-0, managed to tie the game six times before going ahead for good with 1:29 left in the first half on Mark Wendel's free throws.

The Lobos led 45-35 with 17:47 left in regulation but LCC closed that to 49-47 and then, with 5:41 left Oscar Ortiz gave SR a 57-49 advantage.

Kevin Horton, who had 26 points and 14 rebounds, got a bucket, then forced a turnover and slam-dunked home a basket with 91 seconds and Bill McGee hit from long range with 1:01 left to tie the game, forcing the overtime.

"We just didn't play with intensity when we needed it," explained Larry Hays afterwards. "We just got behind too far in overtime and had to start foulling and they just didn't miss."

Both teams finished with 30 field goals, but the Lobos converted 21 of 29 free shots and the Chaps missed a dozen of their 21.

The game was the first of a five-game road trip for the Chaps. Next games will be Monday at Fort Lewis, Colo.

ODESSA (Special) — Although Mary Jones and Jennifer Smith tallied 13 and 12 points, respectively, the Lubbock High girls varsity fell to Odessa Tuesday night 49-46.

Although trailing by only 2 points at the half, the Westerner girls could not make up the advantage as their two leading scorers fouled out of the game.

Three Odessa players also left the foul-marred contest, but Odessa managed to stay ahead on the scoreboard, scoring 18 points in the hectic fourth period.

Lubbock High is now 1-2 on the season.

Morton Trips Matadors

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The way Estacado coach J. J. Woods tried to analyze Tuesday night's basketball game against Morton was that the Matadors were outscored, but not outplayed.

While your trying to figure that one out, the Morton Indians edged the Estacado Matadors at the Estacado gym Tuesday night 75-73.

"What I'm trying to say is that they didn't dominate us," said Woods. "We're playing our junior varsity players because of the football situation and I was pleased with the way they played."

And according to Morton coach Tony Mauldin there is a logical explanation why the Indians didn't control the tempo of the game.

"We've played three games in four days and I think we just ran out of gas," said Mauldin. "We like to run and press, but we just ran out of gas in the second half."

However, the Indians didn't have any trouble keeping the scoreboard in their favor in the first two quarters.

After Estacado's James Barnett put in a basket to even the contest 2-2, the Indians built a five-point advantage 16-11, as Morton guard Bobby Patton converted both ends of a one-and-one situation near the end of the quarter.

However, in the second period, the Matadors began to make a short rally.

When Estacado forward John Jones hit a short jump shot in the lane with 4:14 before the intermission, Estacado grabbed its only lead 20-19.

Patton then sparked the Indians with two-points from under the basket and a jumper from the right corner, and Morton grabbed the lead for good 27-20.

Indian forward James Johnson took some of the scoring responsibilities off Patton with a couple of buckets to increase the Indian lead to 31-21.

With the Matadors having trouble with their outside shooting, Morton, with its tank of gas only half emptied, was able to close out the half with a fast break. Patton laid the ball off the glass and into the hoop giving the Indians a 13-point margin.

"Since, we were tiring, we tried to work the ball inside in the second half," said Mauldin. "We wanted to get the ball inside and get them in foul trouble. We wanted to make them beat us."

Meanwhile, in the other dressing room, Woods was lecturing on the art of shooting.

"We told our kids to move and shoot the ball," said the Matador coach. "After all, it's the purpose of an offense to shoot the ball."

And shoot the ball, is exactly what the Matadors did as the second half began.

Estacado sank three buckets in a row to move within 10 points 39-29.

Morton, however, answered the challenge with three baskets of their own before the pendulum could swing back towards Estacado's way again. Matador forward Jones tipped in two points with 4:03 remaining.

From that point until the end of the quarter, Estacado outscored Morton 16-9 and Matador guard Kenneth Cade brought the Estacado fans to their feet by driving the lane and hitting a layup to narrow the Indians' lead to 54-47 at the buzzer.

Then in the final period, the Indians, with a 73-69 lead with 1:27 left, decided to play a slow down offense.

The Indians turned the ball over and Quincey Sowells sank a layup to move the Matadors within in two, before the Indians could run out the clock.

This is where someone with a strong finishing kick can really knock the time down. The way it was recalled to me, I lost almost a full minute.

But the finish line is by now in full view. And waiting was the most beautiful thing I had ever seen in my life, a thermos of water.

By this time, truthfully, the pain is excruciating, the legs are beginning to buckle, the arms feel like someone has tied anvils to them, the breathing spasmatic and the hurt in the chest really unbelievable. When, you've come this far, there's no turning back. What a cliche.

So coming into the last 50 yards, after almost two miles of ups and downs, I ducked by head, churned my arms and put on a dash. There weren't any screaming crowds, but it didn't matter. I was home free and alive.

Lying on the round, I rolled over and sought comfort from my companion — water and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. And not in that order.

"What was my time?" I begged.

"I forget how to turn on the watch," the companion answered.

I think she would have been 24 next Thursday. It's amazing, I learned, how fast someone can recover from near death when provoked.

Upsets Cause Changes In Schoolboy Ratings

By The Associated Press

A major shakeup featured the final week of voting in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, but Temple, Brownwood, Newton and Lexington all maintained their top ranks going into the state playoffs this weekend.

Temple continued to rule over Class AAAA by a 157-131 point margin over runner-up Garland, also unbeaten, while Houston Stratford, San Antonio Churchill and Odessa Permian round out the top five.

Brownwood moved into the first round of the playoffs with a 28-14 victory over Marlin while the AAA supporting cast was crumbling beneath the Lions.

Second-ranked Beaumont Hebert exited the playoff picture and the top 10 when it lost a zone playoff with Crosby, No. 3 Fort Stockton blanked Odessa Ector and No. 5 New Braunfels finished its season with a zone loss to Kerrville Tivy.

Bay City moved into the No. 2 AAA position this week while Fort Stockton remained third.

UH Drowns Tech Team

Dan Krueger scored the only first-place finish turned in by Texas Tech Tuesday afternoon during a dual swimming meet at the Tech pool.

Krueger won the 200-yard backstroke in a time of 2:02.2 as the Raiders fell to UH 79-34. Houston swimmers captured the other 12 firsts.

The meet was the second this year for the Raiders. They fell to Arkansas in a dual meet last week.

Monterey Rips Panthers 53-46

ODESSA (Special) — Monterey never trailed after the first few minutes in posting its second victory of the season over Odessa Permian 53-46 here Tuesday night.

The two teams traded baskets in the early going before the Plainsmen took the lead and never looked back. They were in command 14-12 at the end of the period and edged out 29-26 at halftime. However, in the third, Monterey held the Panthers scoreless for almost four minutes and edged out to a 44-36 advantage.

Monterey hit 21 of 49 field shots and 11 of 17 from the line. Permian connected on 20 of 50 shots.

Craig Ehlo scored 24 points for the Plainsmen and hauled down nine rebounds. Kevin Kirkman had 10 points and a like number of rebounds.

MHS ruled the backboards 32-18.

Friendship Stops At Goal

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

With a friend like this, John McVay might well wonder, who needs enemies?

McVay's friend, Bob Gibson, was offensive coordinator of the New York Giants until Joe Pisarcik ricocheted the ball off Larry Csonka's hip and into Herm Edwards' hands last Sunday.

The play was Gibson's final play, and the final act of a man who, it appears, really didn't know what he was doing — with X's and O's on the blackboard and with Pisarcik and Jerry Golsteyn at quarterback.

Analysis

In these days of multiple offenses and sophisticated defenses, Gibson's idea of an offense was roughly something like "off-tackle run, off-tackle run, short pass."

But he was McVay's friend, and when people become head coaches (or politicians or corporate executives, for that matter), friends tend to show up on sidelines, in ambassadorships and in vice presidencies.

It was a sort of mirror image of Alex Webster's days as head coach, when he brought along a friend, Jim Garrett, to mastermind the Giants' defense. What happened was that other National Football League teams looked at the Giants' defense and saw a welcome mat. For every four touchdowns the Giants scored, the opposition scored five. These days the defense is respectable — but the offense seems to go nowhere.

"I think what I did, John did. I made a few bad moves, putting the wrong people in charge," Webster said as he reflected on Gibson's dismissal.

Webster eventually stepped down and his assistants, Garrett among them, were canned. With Gibson's firing, the guillotine would seem to be poised over McVay's head. It's more likely, though, that he'll be back next year.

But don't look for Golsteyn or Pisarcik when training camp opens next year. The Giants have given up on Jerry (he was third on their depth chart last Sunday behind unused Randy Dean) and there's a pretty good chance they'll shop around or draft for a replacement for Joe, too.

Gibson's conservative offense early in a game usually led to a catch-up offense late in a game. On occasion, though, it was the Giants who led — as they did 17-12 with less than half a minute to go in Sunday's game against Philadedphia. If Gibson had been watching a game not too many miles away at Shea Stadium, he would have seen how a professional runs out the clock. With New England leading the New York Jets 19-17, Patriots' quarterback Steve Grogan had the ball on his 20-yard line with about half a minute to go.

The final three plays, according to the game's official statistical sheet, were:

"Grogan falls down with ball, no gain."
"Grogan falls down with ball, no gain."
"Grogan falls down with ball, no gain."

In Giants Stadium, Pisarcik would have had to fall down with the ball just once. But he ignored the shouting in the huddle, the demands of his teammates that he fall on the ball, and loyally went with the play which Gibson had sent in. It gave Philadelphia the winning touchdown and Gibson the axe.

Apparently McVay never even knew the play had been called. It was phoned from Gibson, in a spotter's booth, to receivers coach Lindy Infante. "I don't wear a headset... I don't want to be tied up with a headset," McVay said. "Evidently he (Gibson) thought it would go. As it turned out, it's a bad call, a bad decision."

The same might be said of the way the Giants played shuffleboard with Golsteyn, a 12th-round draft choice from Northern Illinois in 1976, and Pisarcik, a refugee from the Canadian Football League.

Neither was ever given the total kind of backing a quarterback needs to know he's got the job and is in control. To hear some of the Giants tell it, Pisarcik was merely a caretaker until Golsteyn could take over. And he took over in St. Louis — for just five plays. Then, totally rattled, he was yanked for good.

"Other players go in and out of the lineup and nobody notices," McVay said. "Why, if you remove a quarterback, does it have to seem like personal criticism?"

Because defensive tackles, free safeties, even running backs and wide receivers don't control the game the way a quarterback does, that's why.

It's not beyond the realm of possibility, considering the Giants' history of sometimes bizarre trades and draft choices, that the team will try and deal after the season for someone else's No. 2 as they did with Morton.

"I was part of that," Webster recalled, "and I think they'd be wrong to do it again. I think they'd just be picking up somebody else's troubles."

And the Giants have enough of their own.

Robinson Learns To Shoot

By The Associated Press

The book on Truck Robinson is that he's a great inside player, virtually unstoppable around the basket. Give the rugged New Orleans forward the outside shot, the book says, but don't let him work inside.

Well, it may be time to rewrite the book.

Robinson, shooting mostly from 15-18 feet, hit on 20 of 26 shots from the field — including 12 in a row starting in the second period, many of them bank shots — en route to a career-high 51 points as the New Orleans Jazz ended a five-game losing streak by beating the New Jersey Nets 140-118 Tuesday night.

"Forwards in the NBA really aren't supposed to shoot from that distance, except for guys like Rick Barry," said Robinson. "But guys have a tendency to leave me alone from 15 feet and worry about my strength, which is going to the basket. I hope they keep giving me that shot."

Robinson's 51 points were the most by any NBA player this season, surpassing the 46 posted by San Antonio's George Gervin and New York's Spencer Haywood earlier.

Warriors 115, 76ers 105

John Lucas scored 35 points, handed out 17 assists and made five steals in leading the Warriors to their sixth victory in seven road games this season. "You don't win on the road unless you play well and that's what we've been doing," said Warriors coach Al Attles.

Knicks 96, Pistons 79

New York scored 38 points in the final period to pull away from the Pistons and raise its record to 5-0 since Red Holzman replaced Willis Reed as coach. New York has allowed 100 points or less in each of those five games, and Detroit's 79 points equalled the lowest of the season in the NBA.

Bucks 123, Blazers 93

Milwaukee snapped a four-game losing streak behind 24 points by Marques Johnson and 23 by Kent Benson. Milwaukee scored 12 in a row late in the second quarter to lead 63-51 at halftime and then pulled away in the second half.

Suns 110, Cavaliers 108

Alvan Adams scored 20 of his 22 points in the second half as the Suns wiped out a 16-point halftime deficit and handed Cleveland its eighth straight loss and 14th in the last 15 games.

Pacers 108, Spurs 103

Indiana ended a six-game, 13-day road trip by upsetting San Antonio to snap a seven-game losing streak. Center James Edwards had 26 points for Indiana and guard Ricky Sobers added 24.

Hawks 113, Clippers 107

Dan Roundfield scored a career-high 38 points and John Drew added 25 as Atlanta beat San Diego. With the score tied 99-99, the Hawks reeled off six in a row — four by Roundfield — to take the lead to stay.

Redskins' GM Blasts Attitude Of Players

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins travel to Dallas on Thanksgiving Day with more at stake than an almost-cinch for a National Football League playoff berth.

Bobby Beathard, Redskins general manager, will be taking a close look at his team's performance against the Cowboys, who now share first place in the NFC East. Both teams have records of 8-4.

"There are too many guys on this team who don't give a damn, and those are the worst kind you can have," said Beathard, who is responsible for the hiring and firing of players.

"There is no question we are losing to teams that we should beat," he said. "If this is a true indication of the type of some of the players we have that they don't care about winning, then we have to get players in the future who want to win, that it means something to."

Beathard declined to point out individual players or name names.

"We've won this year and we've beaten some pretty good teams," he continued. "And that's proof that we can play well against anybody in the league. It's up to the guys to get back together and put the team as their top priority.

"Each person has to do everything possible to help the Redskins win. The players who don't want to do that may be better off in some other business. Too many don't give a damn whether we win or lose.

"We want 45 players who want to play football. At the end of the year, in analyzing the team, if we find out there aren't 45 players who want to play football, we'll go out and find players who want to play," said Beathard.

D-Teams Picked

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Traditionally, professional football games are divided into four periods, each lasting 15 minutes. So how come the Dallas Cowboys keep insisting on playing only the last three quarters?

Not even the vaunted Dallas computer has been able to figure out why the Cowboys have been outscored 69-21 in the opening periods of their 12 games this season. For the last three quarters, Dallas holds a commanding 248-99 point edge.

The slow-starting, fast-finishing Cowboy offense goes up against the Washington Redskins Thursday in an NFC East showdown that is the second half of the National Football League's traditional Thanksgiving Day doubleheader. In the other game, Denver, sharing the AFC West lead with Oakland, takes on the Detroit Lions.

Last weekend's 10-4 raised the season mark to 100-67 for .599.

The holiday picks:

Cowboys 24, Redskins 14

Roger Staubach & Co. owe this one to the Redskin defense that embarrassed the Cowboys on national television Oct. 2, winning 9-5 and holding Dallas without a touchdown for the first time since Nov. 7, 1976. The Cowboys gained 309 yards in that game, marching up and down the field but never crossing the Washington goal line.

That victory, constructed around three Mark Moseley field goals, thrust the Redskins into a 2-game lead in the NFC East. That bulge has melted and now the two teams are tied for the top, both at 8-4.

Both teams will be without key players. Dallas has lost runningback Robert Newhouse with a broken leg, meaning a heavier burden on 1,000-yard man Tony Dorsett and more playing time for swingman Preston Pearson.

Broncos 21, Lions 10

Speaking of offenses, Denver's isn't exactly devastating. But Craig Morton should generate enough points to beat the Lions. The game is, after all, more vital to the Broncs than it is to Detroit.

What attack Denver does generate usually revolves around wide receiver Haven Moses, who's had two straight 100-yard games now that Morton has resumed fulltime work at quarterback. Rob Lytle's 110-yard rushing, his first 100-yard game as a pro, complemented the Broncos' air game against Green Bay.

Defensively, Denver leads the AFC with only 151 points allowed this season.

New National Smoker Study:

"Best Move Yet."

Extensive research conclusive: MERIT taste scores high marks with former high tar smokers.

Can the taste of low tar MERIT, with 'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco, continue to satisfy the smokers it attracts from high tar brands?

Read the results of new, detailed, nationwide research conducted among current MERIT smokers—and among high tar smokers who taste-tested MERIT against leading high tar brands.

Research Confirms Taste Satisfaction

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but continues to satisfy!

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is what it claims to be: The first real alternative for high tar smokers.
