

Officials In Guyana Still Detain Camp Survivors

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — U.S. troops fly home to their bases today after sending the bodies of more than 900 victims of the Jonestown murder-suicide rites to the United States. But Guyanese authorities gave no indication when they would release more than 80 American survivors of the Peoples Temple cult.

U.S. Embassy officials said the Guyanese government is still investigating the deaths at the Jonestown jungle commune, in northwestern Guyana, the airport ambush nearby in which Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., and four others were killed, and four slayings at the cult headquarters in Georgetown.

Two Americans, Larry Layton, 32, of San Francisco, and Charles Belkman, 43, of Indianapolis, are under arrest, and police sources said more arrests were expected soon.

Layton is charged with murdering Ryan, three U.S. reporters who went with him to investigate the settlement, and a defectoring Jonestown cultist. Belkman is accused of killing a member of the cult's Georgetown staff and her three children and of attempting to kill a fourth person at the cult's office in Georgetown.

Embassy officials said the Guyanese government will not permit possible suspects or material witnesses to leave the country. But a State Department spokesman in Washington said the survivors were expected to begin returning Tuesday.

The survivors were to be flown to the Charleston, S.C., Air Force Base, where dozens of FBI agents were waiting to question them and arrest anyone who might have had a part in the Ryan killing.

Charles Devic, chief of the FBI's Charleston office, said his agents will try to "identify the murderers and conspirators to the (Ryan) murder." The murder of a congressman is a federal crime no matter where it occurs and anyone with any part in it can be charged with conspiracy.

Several of the survivors said Sunday that the cult leader, the Rev. Jim Jones, had considered moving his sect to the Soviet Union, which he was quoted as calling the "promised land," and had frequently lectured members of the settlement on the virtues of Soviet communism.

U.S. military authorities said a total of 908 American bodies and one Guyanese had been found in Jonestown, bringing the toll for Nov. 18 to 918.

The U.S. troops sent to Guyana to handle the Jonestown dead sent out the last of the bodies Sunday and were to return today to their bases in the Panama Canal Zone and in the United States.

The ninth and final flight in the airlift carried the remains of 183 persons, many of them children, to the Dover, Del., Air Force Base.

Black smoke hung over the airport in Georgetown as the American troops burned uniforms, boots, tents and anything else that might have been contaminated by the bodies decaying in the steaming equatorial sun.

"No one has ever been involved in something as massive as this before and it was a distasteful task," said Col. William I. Gordon, commander of the U.S. force.

A Pentagon spokesman in Washington, Maj. Brigham Steiner, said by 11:30 a.m. 913 bodies had been flown out of Jonestown by FBI investigators in the airlift. He said 25 positively identified, including James Narves of the cult's medical unit, had been flown.

Capt. John Macintosh, a spokesman for the Guyana task force, said all the Jonestown victims died by poison except for Jones and two women, who died of bullet wounds.

An embassy spokesman said Guyanese officials had turned over the possession of more than 500 American firearms to the settlement, along with a three-month stockpile of Social Security checks. Some of them had been endorsed.

Big Rains Hit Areas Of Texas

A-J News Services

A cold front that swept through the state Sunday brought heavy rains downstate and chilly weather to Lubbock and the South Plains.

A flash flood watch remains in effect today for Southeast Texas, where showers and a few thunderstorms that dumped more than 3 inches of rain in some areas are expected to continue until tonight.

The precipitation missed the South Plains area, but cold air behind the front dropped temperatures below freezing over much of the area. The thermometer dropped to 30 degrees in Lubbock this morning and to 26 in northern portions of the area.

The area under the flood watch extends roughly from College Station to Galveston and includes Houston. Houston reportedly received 3.41 inches of rain in the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

During the same period the Beaumont-Port Arthur area reported 3.14 inches, College Station 1.08 inches and Galveston 7.7 inches.

The flash flood watch was first issued Sunday afternoon for an area generally east of the Trinity River and Galveston Island, but the cold front pushing southward to near the Gulf Coast Sunday night caused numerous showers and thunderstorms up to several hundred miles to the west of the front.

Decreasing cloudiness and colder temperatures are forecast tonight in the southeast region, along with an ending of the shower and thunderstorm activity.

Elsewhere in the state today, gradual clearing skies and cooler temperatures are expected in the northern and western sections.

In the Lubbock area, partly cloudy skies are forecast through Tuesday. Temperatures are predicted to drop today, with a high this afternoon near 50 and a low tonight near 30, warming Tuesday into the upper 50s.

Northeasterly winds at 10 to 15 mph were expected today in the Lubbock area, decreasing to 5 to 10 mph tonight.

The extended forecast for the South Plains area shows partly cloudy skies through Friday with temperature highs in the upper 50s and lows in the mid 30s.

South Plains farmers can only expect drying conditions ranging from very poor today to fair to poor Tuesday, according to reports.

Lubbock temperatures Sunday reached a high of 59 before cooling to a low of 38 last night.

High Court Refuses To Air Farber Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to hear an appeal by New York Times reporter Myron A. Farber and his newspaper challenging their contempt convictions for refusing to surrender confidential files in a New Jersey murder case.

The justices, without comment, left intact a New Jersey Supreme Court ruling that the convictions were proper and that the order demanding Farber's files did not violate the Constitution's free press protections.

Farber spent 40 days in jail and the Times paid $285,000 in fines after they were found in contempt of a state trial judge's request for the information.

Today's action cannot be interpreted as a Supreme Court statement on the merits of arguments presented by the Times and Farber. It merely means the justices, for unannounced reasons, decided not to review the case.

There are similar "reporter confidentiality" cases in lower courts, and it is possible the Supreme Court will use one of those to study the important issue of free press and fair trial.

The New York Times had no immediate comment. There were no recorded votes in favor of hearing Farber's appeal.

In other action today, the high court — in a murder case involving a Richmond, Va., man, let stand a decision that the confession a criminal suspect makes during a psychiatric examination cannot be used as trial evidence.

—Agreed to decide in a Pennsylvania case whether private owners of non-profit facilities taken under the doctrine of eminent domain for public use are entitled to compensation based on the cost of replacing the facilities rather than merely the fair market price.

—Left intact a Cleveland ordinance which bans abortion clinics in sections of the city zoned for business, legal and medical offices.

—Refused to review a lower court, privacy-rights decision from Louisiana in which the victim of a crime was ordered to pay damages to a criminal whose photographs the victim displayed calling attention to his crime.

—Let stand South Carolina's ban prohibiting graduates of law schools not accredited by the American Bar Association from practicing in state courts.

—Let stand rulings in New York that United Air Lines must permit some pregnant stewardesses to fly, at least on flights in or out of New York.

—In a case stemming from the three-month-long railway strike that began in July, left intact rulings that federal courts are powerless to prevent unions from striking railroads to protest an industry-wide strike insurance program.

The Farber case involves Dr. Mario Jascalevich, who was found innocent last month of charges that he killed three patients at Riverdell Hospital in Oradell, N.J., in the mid-1960s.

The charges against Jascalevich were filed after a series of Farber's articles appeared. See HIGH COURT Page 14

Carter Seeks Cities' Help On Inflation

ST. LOUIS (AP) — President Carter appealed to city officials from the 50 states today to join the battle against inflation, warning that next year's federal budget will contain "little money for new initiatives" in urban areas and elsewhere.

The president was also scheduled to fly to Salt Lake City later to receive a family unity presentation from the Mormon Church before returning to the White House tonight.

In an appearance at the annual meeting of the National League of Cities, Carter argued that "the future of our cities is at stake" in the inflation fight.

To emphasize his point, he said inflation by next year will have eaten away one-third of the purchasing power of the $6.2 billion in general revenue sharing money that has been sent to cities by the federal government since 1972.

"Cities badly need these dollars," the president said, "and the federal government cannot replace such major losses to inflation."

In introducing Carter, League President Tom Moody, the mayor of Columbus, Ohio, applauded the president's efforts to "control the economic cancer of inflation." He added: "You have our full support in this work."

While declaring that the fiscal 1980 federal budget he will send Congress in January will "be very tight," Carter said, "I promise that the cities will bear no more and no less than a fair share of budget restraint."

He said he was determined to hold the federal deficit to $30 billion or less in the new budget, but Carter told the urban leaders:

"I intend to do this without starving useful programs. I will not make wholesale, arbitrary spending cuts. We are simply going line by line through the budget to limit or to cut items we cannot afford."

In a direct appeal to his audience, Carter said, "I need your understanding and your help to solve this problem once and for all... I believe strongly that the people are ready to make the necessary sacrifices if only government provides the leadership and the example."

Carter's appearance, though, before the 3,300 city officials comes as rumors of broad cuts in urban programs swirled from one league session to another.

Sources, who asked to remain anonymous, say Carter's Office of Management and Budget is considering budget cuts that include a significant reduction in the 600,000 Comprehensive Employment and Training Act public service jobs scheduled for next year, and a big swipe at the 400,000 subsidized housing units sought by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Other cuts, the sources said, could eliminate the urban parks program as well as several elements of mass transit assistance.

Still, city officials say they will support Carter's anti-inflation budget plan as long as it does not initiate a crippling recession.

"The No. 1 priority is that we must control inflation," said League President Moody.

"But appended to that, and without a comma, is that we must not raise unemployment to dangerous levels," he said.

Death Toll Tops 540

By United Press International

The Thanksgiving weekend traffic death toll, grimly aided by stormy weather during the homeward rush, today topped the 540 mark — well past the minimum number of deaths predicted and past last year's total.

A major snowstorm in the upper Midwest hampered traffic and air travel and contributed to numerous accidents during the final hours of the death count, which began at 8 p.m. local time last Wednesday and ended at midnight.

The National Safety Council predicted 480 to 570 travelers would die in traffic accidents during the period.

A UPI survey showed at least 542 people had been killed in traffic accidents by 10 a.m. EDT today. That compared to 490 killed during the same period in 1977.

California led the count with 86 traffic deaths, followed by Ohio with 38 and Texas with 32.

FBI Agent Tells Of Rendezvous

HOUSTON (AP) — An FBI agent narrated for jurors today the videotaped rendezvous in which millionaire Cullen Davis is allegedly paid $25,000 for the murder of his divorcee.

Special Agent Joe Gray of Dallas explained the shadows and images that danced across the courtroom monitors used to show the pivotal Aug. 20 meeting.

The visual recording coupled with a sound track of that meeting between Davis and FBI informant David McCrory represents the heart of the state's murder-for-hire case against the Fort Worth industrialist.

Agent Gray and three colleagues filmed the encounter from a surveillance van parked behind a restaurant on Fort Worth's Southwest side.

Gray led off the fourth week of testimony by recounting also how a shadowy figure almost exposed the surveillance operation even before it began.

"I could see a figure move by the window at the rear of the van," Gray testified.

Defense lawyers have so far failed to break the testimony of McCrory, a former friend and employee of Davis.

The 45-year-old Davis is accused of trying to arrange the murder of Fort Worth Judge Joe Eidson, once presiding judge in the bitter divorce case between Davis and his estranged wife, Priscilla.

Gray has sworn that tape recordings made of conversations between Davis and McCrory had not been doctored and were identical to the ones he first heard in late August.

Prosecutors scored heavily in the trial by submitting audio and visual tape recordings. See DAVIS TRIAL Page 14

Goodfellows Ask Names Of Needy

How important is a Goodfellow coupon?

Well, one coupon could mean the difference between a happy or a bleak Christmas for some Lubbock boy or girl, or several of them.

Before the middle of December, the names of about 10,000 children must reach the Goodfellows so that these boys and girls listed on the coupons each will get a Christmas package this year, delivered to their respective homes.

The mammoth task of screening names begins when the Goodfellows list is completed about mid-December.

Only children under 14 years of age who live within the city limits of Lubbock are eligible.

From the approved list, Christmas Day deliveries are made.

Goodfellows have a big job with a definite timetable. So, if you know of a child in this city who may be missed at Christmas, fill out the coupon carried in today's edition of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Mail the coupon promptly to Chief Goodfellow, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Texas, 79400.

Please do it today! The coupon may be found on Page 1, Sec. B.

Iranian Senator Faces Expulsion

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — A parliamentary commission today proposed the expulsion from parliament of a senator listed among prominent Iranians who allegedly siphoned off a fifth of Iran's annual oil revenues into foreign bank accounts within the past two months.

Adm. Ali Rezaei, a steel magnate, is charged with business malpractices resulting in losses of millions of dollars to Iran's state-owned steel corporation.

The Senate action came a day after renewed violence Sunday claimed another 14 lives during a clash between troops and anti-shah demonstrators protesting desecration of the holiest Shiite Moslem shrine in Ashad.

The commission recommended that the Senate deprive Rezaei of his immunity and membership of the house.

Rezaei was among 144 top Iranian personalities mentioned in detailed allegations of $2.4 billion cash transfers to foreign bank accounts, made by Iran's central bank employees Sunday.

Rezaei was alleged to have sent abroad $53 million.

While circumstances in which the huge cash outflows took place were still unclear — the government made no comment on the disclosures — the allegations came as the shah stepped up his crackdown on family members accused of malpractices.

A three-member committee appointed by him to look into the princely riches began his work today, but no dramatic announcement was expected immediately.

Radio Iran, in a surprise interview with former Prime Minister Dr. Ali Amini, highlighted the country's political problems despite the formation of a military-led government by Premier Gen. Gholam Reza Aahari early this month.

Amini called for "unity of all national forces" and said he was prepared to bring all political forces together to solve the nation's problems.

It was not immediately clear why the state-run radio had aired Amini's views on forming a national coalition. But Amini was frequently mentioned as the likely next prime minister in the shah's search for an end to the deadlock with the clergy-led opposition.

ing in Gorgan, northeast of Tehran, rose to 10 with another 46 injured, according to political sources.

Religious sources said the death toll was higher and that 60 injured were admitted to Gorgan hospitals.

Other Iranian cities hit by rioting Sunday were reported calm.

Striking employees of the Central Bank who disclosed the alleged foreign exchange transfers refused to return to work today. They were joined by employees of the National Iranian Oil Co.

Editorial Blasts Travolta

BERLIN (AP) — American film star John Travolta, the darling of the disco set, has provoked the ire of East Germany's Communist government.

"Travolta tries to make capitalistic daily life seem harmless," the state-run youth newspaper Junge Welt of East Berlin concluded in a biting attack on his films in its weekend edition.

The West German newspaper Welt am Sonntag said the editorial blast was "obviously aimed at dampening Travolta's rising popularity" in East Germany.

Music from his films is widely played in East Germany's discos, and his picture is known from magazines brought in from the West.

Nixon, Haig Meet

PARIS (AP) — Richard M. Nixon had an unannounced 90-minute reunion with the man who was his chief aide when he resigned the presidency in August 1974.

Nixon met Sunday with Gen. Alexander Haig, supreme commander of NATO, who arrived during the morning from a NATO meeting in Lisbon, Portugal. Haig reportedly was instrumental in persuading Nixon to resign from the presidency because of his involvement in the Watergate scandal.

Officials in Nixon's party said the hastily arranged meeting took place at the luxury Ritz Hotel, where the former president is staying. No details were given.

Nixon, who arrived in Paris on Saturday and plans to appear on a French television program, reportedly had arranged a series of "private meetings" today, but U.S. and French officials have declined to give details.

He is expected to stay in his hotel room Tuesday to prepare for his appearance on the question-and-answer television show. According to the program's schedule, filmed highlights of Nixon's personal and political life will be shown, after which viewers will phone in questions about this general subject for 90 minutes.

Priscilla Presley Eyes Career

NEW YORK (AP) — She doesn't need the money. But Priscilla Presley, the former wife of the late rock 'n' roll idol Elvis Presley, says she is launching an acting career to try to make a clean break with the past.

"That chapter is closed," she says of Elvis in an interview with People magazine. "Life is so short, I don't want to dwell on the sadness."

Mrs. Presley, 33, was divorced in the early 1970s. Under the terms of the settlement, she received $1.7 million plus $8,000 a year until 1983.

"With Elvis, my life was his," she told People. "I want to grow. I want to do things."

Mrs. Presley also said that Elvis once gave their daughter, Lisa Marie, then 8, a fur coat and a diamond ring. She says she made Presley return the ring.

"It was extremely difficult for her when her father died — they were very, very close," Mrs. Presley said.

No Claus Caused Them To Picket

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two women were so irate after sitting through the matinee performance at the Fairview

Theater that they picketed outside for an hour in the cold, urging other parents not to take their youngsters in.

Were they upset about the showing of an X-rated film? No. The complaint of Shirley Wolfe and her sister June Ruffner was that the movie "Santa and the Magic Fountain" had nothing to do with Christmas or Santa Claus.

Newspaper ads described the movie as depicting the "enchanting story of Santa's wonderland." Not so, said Mrs. Wolfe, adding that her son Christopher, 4, was so disappointed "he just wanted to go home."

When her demand that her money be refunded was refused, she and Mrs. Ruffner picketed.

The theater management agreed that the picture was not about Santa, but said the refund request was refused because the party sat through the entire Saturday afternoon performance.

The Los Angeles-based airline has proposed fare cuts which are expected to be discussed at a meeting of government officials in Washington earlier than the original schedule of March. A similar fare package is expected to be agreed upon with Australia by February 13.

The start of the Auckland service was announced by the New Zealand Prime Minister, Robert Muldoon.

Continental, which will spend $4.3 million setting up its services to New Zealand and Australia, will fly three times a week between Los Angeles and Auckland via Honolulu and Pago Pago.

The airline proposes cutting first class fares by about 20 percent, economy by 27 percent and advanced-purchase fares by around 30 percent.

Star's Items Auctioned

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Ever dream of warbling out a tune while leaning on the black cane Judy Garland used in the "Swanee" number from "A Star is Born"?

Did you adore "The Wizard of Oz"? Ever imagine dreaming in her queen-size bed, playing with her personalized golf clubs or polishing the chrome on her 1953 300S Mercedes Benz?

All those items and more, including personalized scripts, clothing and records, are up for today's auction planned by Miss Garland's former husband.

Today, they will be auctioned off to the highest bidder — a total of 423 of the singer's personal and professional items. The auction was set for this afternoon at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

A group calling itself "The Judy Garland Foundation" had filed a court petition for a restraining order to halt the auction, but a judge Wednesday refused the motion.

Among the books, paintings, letters, props, costumes, scrapbooks, awards, musical arrangements, photographs and furniture on sale were her makeup case and its contents; her famous beaded and sequined black silk jacket worn at Carnegie Hall; reading glasses; unpublished leatherbound book of poetry entitled "Thoughts and Poems of Judy Garland"; and a sterling silver Thermos bottle engraved "Judy."

One of the most sentimental items was a scrapbook of press clippings and other memorabilia collected by Judy for "The Wizard of Oz."

The items were all put on sale by Sid Luft, Miss Garland's third husband. The couple was married for 13 stormy years from 1952 to 1965. Luft had stored the items in cardboard cartons since his divorce. Proceeds from the auction will go to Luft.

"Judy didn't care about personal possessions," C.B. Charles, who arranged the auction.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL: Tax Cut Idea Growing

WITH GOV-ELECT Bill Clements and outgoing Gov. Dolph Briscoe both recommending an additional $1 billion tax cut, the Legislature that meets in January clearly will be under the gun.

Neither Clements nor Briscoe has outlined specific recommendations to be included in his budget messages, but both point to a healthy treasury surplus as proof that Texans are entitled to tax relief.

Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated the Legislature will have about $3 billion more to spend in the next biennium than it had in this.

Last summer's special session took care of about $1 billion of that. Another $1 billion tax cut still would leave $1 billion more for the Legislature to appropriate to take care of inflation and expanded state programs.

million annually over the 1980-81 fiscal period —also is being considered, however.

This would have the advantage of being clearly and distinctly a cut in state taxes, rather than in local taxes. It would preserve the sales tax as a source of state revenue against that day when oil and gas taxes decline, thus forestalling pressures for a state income tax.

WITH THE STATE already picking up the major share of the cost of public education, critics also say that a further reduction in the percentage of local support would further dilute local control over the cost of education and ultimately could mean a net increase in taxes.

Clements also is continuing to study the possibility of imposing a tax on natural gas piped to other states. If a way can be found to do this, it would offset the additional burden placed on Texans by the new federal energy bill which requires producing states to subsidize consumer states.

In any event, Clements' and Briscoe's tax-cutting proposals, reflecting the nationwide public mood to curb the spiraling cost of government, are certain to take a lot of the Legislature's attention.

GOV. BRISCOE leans toward using 1 cent of the 4-cent state sales tax for public education, with the provision that school districts cut local property taxes by the amount of their increased state aid.

Gov. elect Clements say he and House Speaker Bill Clayton discussed property tax relief as "an option, a possibility."

Trimming a penny off the state sales tax —which would reduce state revenues by $500

Headline: "Octogenarian Learns To Read." My Neighbor Twice Removed says he's waiting for the next shoe to drop: "What He Reads Scars Octogenarian To Death."

GOV. DOLPH BRISCOE is rightfully proud of the fact that he'll leave an estimated $3 billion surplus in the state treasury when he turns the reins over to Bill Clements in January.

"One thing I've established," he told me a few days ago, "is that you don't have to have new taxes every time the Legislature meets."

When he was elected six years ago, there were many who thought his "no new taxes" pledge was a pipe dream.

ONE MAN'S OPINION The Tax Stamp(ede)

Kenneth May

One man who got the message enough to use it to his own advantage was Jimmy Carter, erstwhile governor of Georgia.

He cleverly mixed his promises enough to sound like a fiscal conservative and a social reformer at the same time. It is no surprise that, halfway through his term, he now enjoys the support of neither the fiscal conservatives nor the social reformers.

Out in California this year, though, a man named Howard Jarvis articulated the concern over the rising cost of government in a way that led to overwhelming approval of tax-limiting Proposition 13.

IN THE ELECTION just past, Bill Clements took the Texas governorship away from John Hill because he sounded more like he meant it when he said that taxes and government spending are too high.

In the same election, Texans approved a tax reform package of doubtful wisdom but of undeniable intent. They also re-elected Republican Sen. John Tower over Bob Krueger who, among other things, espoused Congressional representation for the liberal voters of Washington, D.C.

Meanwhile, President Carter still was talking about controlling inflation and balancing the budget but proving to be unwilling to cut federal spending enough to accomplish both goals.

Given the current mood of the voters, the man who was among the first to accurately read the concern over taxes and spending could be among the next to get X-ed out in the stampede.

AS LONG AGO AS 1968, voters began to send a message to Washington and state capitols. After eight years of liberal spending policies under the Democratic-controlled Congresses of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, Richard Nixon was elected President over the darling of all liberals, Hubert Humphrey.

There were a lot of factors contributing to that decision, of course, but the message should have begun to come clearer by 1972.

In that year, George Wallace overcame the handicap of a racist image to become a serious force to be reckoned with in the Presidential derby until a would-be assassin's bullet cut him down.

Nixon, who hadn't exactly been a pinchpenny, went on to defeat ultra-liberal George McGovern handily. That was the same year that Briscoe and his "no new taxes" pledge carried Texas.

IN THE HEAT OF Watergate, the Democrats and liberal Republicans strengthened their hold on Congress in 1974, thus again obscuring the growing voter concern over the cost of government at all levels.

Congress spent so much time toying around with the politically explosive Watergate situation, that inflation and recession uncharacteristically ravaged the nation simultaneously. The voters' concern mounted.

On Being A Boy In Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY—Last week was a week of memories, but the memories make a point worth turning around on. The point is that, in terms of boyhood, things were better 50 years ago. They truly were.

I know, I know. It is a universal tendency of man, as Gibbon reminded us, to exalt the past and to deprecate the present.

Doubtless, the child who was born in Oklahoma City in 1920 has some advantages that were unknown to the child of 1920. Ofhand, no such advantages spring to mind, but surely a few could be cited.

At this writing, I am here for ceremonies having to do with the Oklahoma Hall of Fame. The occasion naturally lends itself to a spate of "remember when's."

My own dim collection of remembrances could be matched by others who grew up in the secondary innocence, and at least until the country fell into the agony of depression, it was a time of large contentment.

THE DOCTORS brought me into this world on Nov. 1, 1928, at St. Anthony's Hospital in Oklahoma City. On inquiry, I found that the sovereign state of Oklahoma—it had then been a sovereign state for almost 13 years—had a population of 2,028,283.

The capital city numbered 91,285 inhabitants, among them 8,241 Negroes and 86 Indians. Of these latter, a white child knew very few. Oklahoma in those days was as rigidly segregated as the darkest precincts of Mississippi.

Now and then, one encountered a boy of Indian descent who had come to town on a reservation bus—I remember losing a prized agate to a Choboy in a marble tournament—but we lived in separate worlds.

My mother's people ranked among the first families of Oklahoma. They had been there since the run of 1899.

The distinction produces a superior smile from friends in my adopted Virginia, where the first families have been lorded it over everybody else since the days of John Smith and Pocahontas, but to be identified with the 89ers meant something in Oklahoma.

MY GRANDFATHER, a doctor from Iowa, made the run from Kansas that April day and staked a claim on what is now Reno Street in downtown Oklahoma City.

Alas, the claim slipped from his hands before it gained any particular value, and it was a standing ruseful joke in our household that some of our forebears had the wit to stake a claim on potential oil wells.

My earliest boyhood recollections go to our large brick home on 18th Street in the northwest part of the city. There was a trolley line a few blocks to the west.

Classen Boulevard marked the permissible boundary to the east. In this territorial strip, between 16th and 23d Streets, a boy could find all the adventure he needed.

These were adventures of the imagination. We played cowboys and Indians, taking turns in dying gloriously by the trashcans behind the garage. We played Robin Hood and His Merry Men.

WE PLAYED Ulysses outwitting the Cyclops. We played G-Men and Gangsters. This was during the long dark night of Prohibition, and we played Speakeasy. From scrap lumber and cloth-

WASHINGTON—In journalism, thou shalt not even hint that the sun tomorrow will rise in the east—but certain historical tendencies, like the sunrise, require at least some recognition.

When you see the Iranian Shah being forced to choose between a government militaristic or socialist dictatorship, it is fairly certain that some familiar language must soon be used.

Political word-choice is not unimportant, as a number of educators have pointed out.

For instance, Prof. Dan Moynihan (also senator from New York) recently expressed distress to find Cyrus Vance, our well-spoken Secretary of State, referring to the Rhodesian rivals as the Patriotic Front versus the Salisbury group.

THE SECRETARY'S implication and his intent are clear. He wants impressionable and unthinking Americans to think of the black Patriotic Group in terms of "embattled farmers" firing shots for freedom heard "round the world."

Whereas the Salisbury group (headed by the white Ian Smith and the black Rev. Sithole) invites the image of what Moynihan calls "a mining concession put together by investment bankers in London."

Why Vance should accept the self-definition of "patriotic" by a gang of cut-throat armed and organized by America's totalitarian enemies would not be flattering to guess.

But it is sure as shooting, if not of sunrise, that if the Soviet-backed forces get change in Iran and the Shah takes a powder into exile, we shall be reading about the People's Republic of Iran, just as we read about the People's Republic of China.

WHO DARES WRITE Red China any more, now that we are close to bringing in Peking as an ally? Greece and Turkey are no more North Atlantic powers, although they are members of NATO.

What's in a name? Plenty, when it intends political definition.

Moynihan and I agree that allies and adversaries should accurately be described. I would probably go beyond the professor, for I see little sense in calling Taiwan "a republic" when it has become a hereditary monarchy where the son succeeds the father.

WHETHER IT BE an admission to the emergency room for a sudden stitch-up after an auto accident, or a birth in the family, or removal of an appendix, or whatever—the odds are high that you and/or members of your family will be hospitalized at some time in the near or distant future.

The challenge to you then will be to make your hospital stay as easy as you can; your aim will be to get the best services prior to and after admission for the minimum feasible cost to you.

How do you manage it?

(1) Shop for a hospital. It can be done. You probably will find that your physician is affiliated with one or more hospitals in your area.

If he has no strong feelings about admitting you to a particular institution for a special reason, you might select a hospital that will cost the least to you.

IF YOU HAVE an indemnity-type policy in health insurance which leaves you with part of the bill to pay out of pocket, you might achieve some savings.

But never underestimate the fact that there are items in hospital care that you can't list on the price tag—including the greatest range of diagnostic and treatment resources as well as entrance to a facility offering you the most satisfactory personal care.

(2) Pack lightly. Most of you always bring too much with you. Leave at home such unnecessary appliances as shavers, heating pads, etc. Some electric appliances actually can be in conflict with the operating of hospital equipment.

And unless your physician specifically advises you to the contrary, do not bring your own medications to the hospital.

(3) ALWAYS AVOID checking in over the weekend, if you possibly can, particularly for an elective operation.

Since little elective surgery (as opposed to emergency operating) is done on weekends, you may be needlessly paying for a day or two of hospital care if you enter on Friday or Saturday. This is a complete waste!

(4) Understand your rights when you or your family members enter the hospital.

If you are placing a child in a hospital, minimize the child's terror by asking the hospital to allow you to stay overnight with your youngster. If you are expecting a baby, find out if the hospital has prenatal classes.

(5) AS you have rights, so you also have responsibilities. Don't be overbearing (but don't be shy). No system is foolproof. If a certain food is not supposed to be on your diet, advise the nurse or your hospital physician.

(6) Give all information when you check in. Answer all questions completely and, if necessary, volunteer information about medication you have been taking or any condition which could have a bearing on your hospital treatment.

(7) While some states prohibit your seeing your chart, you have the right to know what's wrong with you and if, for instance, there will be any side effects from the treatment you are getting.

(8) In deference to your physician, help to protect his or her time, as long as you are being kept satisfactorily informed. If you don't understand his phraseology, ask questions. Organize your questions in advance so you are ready when he is on his rounds.

(9) WHEN CHECKING out, make preparations to leave before the checkout hour to avoid any surcharge.

Be sure you understand what you are signing for to avoid any later misunderstandings.

(10) Use your right to have your hospital bill explained to you in detail—no matter who pays, whether it's you or your insurance company. If you don't understand, don't hesitate to ask.

Federal Government Asked To Be Fair

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — City officials have told the National League of Cities the federal government should try to be even-handed in dividing money between the North and South. Local government leaders debated regional differences Sunday during a league convention seminar on the so-called Sunbelt and Frostbelt states. Mayor Joseph P. Riley Jr. of Charleston, S.C., said the federal government needs to carefully balance regional needs.

"We must have a national urban policy that we must not say we are robbing St. Petersburg to pay for the problems of St. Paul and vice versa," Riley said. Christopher Lindley, a member of the Rochester, N.Y., City Council, said many of the problems of older regions could be solved if care for the poor and the sick became a national responsibility.

"State and local governments can then concentrate on providing basic and traditional public services from sewerage to highways," Lindley said. "We can do this from our own resources without federal assistance and involvement and, thereby, compete successfully in the economic development game of attracting our fair share of the nation's limited economic growth."

He said North and South have been bickering too much. "In the North we must put an end to the practice of pointing to the Sunbelt for allegedly stealing our jobs and industry," Lindley said. "It is easier to attribute our problems to some alleged, fictitious act of interregional embezzlement than to recognize that some of our problems were our own undoing."

Mayor Hugh Farmer of Fort Worth, Texas, said economic advances in the Sunbelt often are overstated. "The Northeastern states still remain wealthier than the South and Southwest," Farmer said. "I acknowledge the serious problems of our older Northeastern cities, but the perceived prosperity and growth of the Sunbelt is misleading."

"In 1975 the South still had the lowest regional per capita incomes and they were 14 percent below the national average. Serious urban problems are not unique to the frostbelt states."

He said federal programs should be applied to people with similar problems regardless of where they reside.

Study Knocks Police Education Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-year study by a national commission has concluded that many police education programs conflict with one another, are confused and "by even the most modern conceptions of quality, the quality of many of these programs is dismal."

The National Advisory Commission on Higher Education for Police Officers also said Sunday that many of the government-supported college programs for police officers are low in quality and do little to stimulate scholarship and creative thinking. The commission was assembled by the Police Foundation, a private research organization which sponsored the study. "There is some evidence — although it is far from conclusive — that many of the programs were created because the availability of federal funds provided a potential revenue surplus from police education," the report said.

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL Thursday Morning, November 23, 1978

Lubbock County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1, Buffalo Springs Lake has been notified by the Texas Department of Health that the water being supplied by their system exceeds the maximum constituent level for fluoride established by the department's "drinking water standards" which were promulgated as required by the "Safe Drinking Water Act," Public Law 93-523 (U.S.).

The limit for this area has been set at 1.6 milligrams of fluoride per liter of water. The samples of water from the lake system contained 2.6 milligrams of fluoride per liter. There is no immediate health hazard for drinking water containing fluoride at this level.

However, the fluoride may cause mottling (brown staining) of the teeth in children less than 14 years of age. All dentists in this area are aware of the fluoride level.

The district intends to apply to the Texas Department of Health for a variance from the fluoride requirement while it investigates available treatment techniques to lower the fluoride to allowable levels.

More Students Eligible For Guaranteed Loans

By LOUISE COOK, Associated Press Writer

The Guaranteed Student Loan Program offers a lucrative source of financial aid for college students who need help and legislation passed by Congress makes the money more widely available than ever.

The new law extends interest benefits available under the program to all students, regardless of family income. Federal officials hope to implement the legislation by January — in time for the spring semester. Here's how it works:

Money is borrowed directly from a bank, credit union or other financial institution. The loan is guaranteed by a state or private non-profit agency or is insured by the federal government.

The interest rate is only 7 percent. You pay no interest at all while you are in college.

Undergraduate students may borrow up to $2,500 a year. Graduate and professional students generally may borrow up to $5,000 a year, although the amount is less in some states. The total amount you may borrow for undergraduate or vocational study is $7,500. The total allowed for both graduate and undergraduate study is $15,000.

Interest payments for the period you are in college — and they can amount to hundreds of dollars — are taken care of by the federal government. This benefit used to be restricted to students from families with incomes of less than $25,000 a year, but Congress abolished the limit.

You must start repaying the loan within 9 to 12 months after you graduate. You may be allowed up to 10 years to pay back the total. Individual payments will vary, but in most cases you must agree to pay back at least $360 a year.

The government helps make up the difference between the 7 percent rate and the amount lenders could get on conventional loans.

Note: An insurance premium of up to 1 percent of the total loan outstanding may be collected each year in advance for a loan guaranteed by a state or private agency; a premium of one-fourth of a percent will be collected for federally insured loans.

To borrow money under the Guaranteed Student Loan Program, get the application form at your local lender, from your school counselor or from regional offices of the U.S. Office of Education.

Part of the form must be filled out by you and your family. The rest must be completed by the financial aid officer at the college or university you will be attending. Take the completed form to a lending institution which participates in the program. It is up to you to find such an institution since participation is voluntary.

If the lender agrees to make the loan, he or she gets the approval of the guarantee agency or the U.S. Office of Education, then gives you the money in one or more payments. Your loan check or checks must be made payable to you or to both you and the school involved.

You have several other rights and responsibilities. Among them: —If the lender transfers or "sells" the loan, you have a right to receive a notice telling you to whom you must make payments.

—You have a right to a completed copy of the promissory note.

—You have a right to repay the loan early without penalty.

—You have a right to defer repayment under certain circumstances, including periods of up to three years when you are serving in the Armed Forces, Peace Corps or full-time volunteer programs conducted by ACTION. During these periods, the federal government will take over the interest payments.

—You have a responsibility to notify the lender of your graduation, withdrawal from school or transfer to another institution, change of address or change of name.

—You have a responsibility to repay the loan in accordance with the repayment schedule. The obligation to repay the loan cannot be canceled or "forgiven" because of military service or similar work. If you default and the lender is unable to collect, the guarantee agency or the federal government will take action to recover the money.

The Guaranteed Student Loan Program is one of five federal programs to help college students. The others — all of which are tied to financial need — are Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, National Direct Student Loans and College Work-Study.

Contact your high school counselor or the financial aid officer at the college and universities you are applying to for further information about these and other sources of help.

"As a general rule of advice, I would say that a family in the $25,000 bracket with a couple of kids and a working spouse should apply for all kinds of aid," said Bob Kates of the Council on Education, a non-profit testing and financial services organization. "There's a lot of money flowing into the hands of students."

Bell To Speak At City Fete

U.S. Attorney General Griffin B. Bell will be at Texas Tech University Friday to address law students and members of the legal community.

Bell will deliver a speech in the Lecture Hall of the Business Administration Building at 10 a.m., preceded by an introduction by Dr. Frank W. Elliot, dean of the law school, and Mark Martin, representative of the Dallas law firm of Stricker and Price.

Following the lecture will be a reception for Bell in the Forum of the law school. Bell will be accompanied by an assistant, Newell Squires, Texas Tech School of Law graduate of 1972 and former editor in chief of "Texas Tech Law Review."

Bell is the first speaker in the Stricker and Price lecture series, made possible by a $5,000 endowment by the law firm earlier this year. The series features one distinguished speaker annually.

PTA Teaching Parents To Battle TV Networks

By MARC WILSON
CHICAGO (AP) — It might make a good television series: angry mothers fighting gargantuan "evil forces," fearful that they are corrupting children and warping society.

But you can bet it won't ever be on TV because the "evil forces" are the three television networks.

The National Parent Teachers Association is trying to teach the mothers, and a few fathers, how to challenge the licenses of five network-owned TV stations that expire next year.

They hope such action — or just the threat — will force ABC, NBC and CBS to reduce violence and sex on television.

The stations are in Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland. The PTA conducted seminars within the last week in those cities to train members how to challenge broadcast licenses.

One angry mother of six, Jackie Sipple of Birmingham, Mich., explained why she attended the Detroit seminar: "My family lived in Europe for six years in the 1960s. We returned home to a different world. The impact of TV on this country was incredible.

"We were naive at first, thinking petitions and letters would do some good because broadcasters are supposed to act in the public interest. The networks and stations just laughed at us. They felt very secure that they were so strong and we were so weak.

"Now we're hitting them where it hurts, at their licenses, their pocket-books. The public does have rights. The networks aren't laughing at us now," Mrs. Sipple said.

At the seminars, members were given a guide which said, "Despite the licensee's requirement to meet public interests, the television industry has too often allowed greed for profit and ratings to dictate a callous attitude toward very serious public concerns.

At Detroit's WXYZ-TV, an ABC station, program director Jeanne Findlater called the PTA action "monstrous."

"This is the first step towards government censorship," she said, adding that the PTA is setting itself up as "moral guardian for people who may want to watch 'Charlie's Angels' or whatever. They're challenging our First Amendment rights."

Dr. William Young, director of the PTA TV Project, denied this.

"The First Amendment protects the Doctor Says Baby Diets Important

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mothers may be able to permanently program a child's appetite against overeating to help win the continuing fight against fat, a nutrition and exercise researcher says.

Dr. Lawrence Osocki of the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle said Sunday that appetites may be programmed lifelong against overeating if mothers simply refrain from overfeeding their children in the first months of life.

Osocki said rats fed more food than a matched control group in the first weeks after birth had a larger appetite throughout their lives and grew much heavier.

"The evidence we came up with indicates in the very early stages of life the food intake fixes the voluntary food intake for life," Osocki said.

"We don't have evidence yet for humans. But, in my opinion, I think we're right on target. I think this is the answer (to the human fat problem)."

Osocki said if the theory applies to humans, as he believes, all it would take to conquer much of the overeating problem would be for a mother, in consultation with a doctor, to feed the child normal amounts of food.

The child's appetite would be "fixed" to prevent overeating, Osocki said.

With growth, the child's appetite would naturally increase, then finally stabilize, but it would remain "programmed" and have certain limits, Osocki said.

"I think it's extremely simple and it looks better with each passing day," he said. "We don't know what the appetite centers are, but this seems to fix or program the body to certain food intakes."

"It would just involve feeding a baby a correct number of calories. If I were born this morning, I would want my mother to have this information."

In the developed world between 25 and 40 percent of the population suffers from obesity — defined as being 20 percent overweight, he said.

In an experiment repeated several times, Osocki took a litter of four rats and gave it to one mother and a litter of 22 matched rats and gave it to another. The female rat has 12 milk nipples and is equipped to handle a litter of 12 pups, Osocki said.

The rats were cared by the mothers for three weeks — "the programming period" — and then were given access to an unrestricted amount of food.

press because anyone can get a mimeograph machine and start a newspaper," he said. "But the airwaves are limited, and controlled by very few people. So their First Amendment rights are limited."

He said the three network vice presidents for program standards decide what goes into American homes, adding: "These three men — who are all white and middle-aged — are totally New Yorkized or Los Angelesized. We're saying other people should have an input."

Young said he didn't know how that extra input could be attained, but "lots of research can find the way." He said the PTA's real target isn't the five stations but network programming.

"The best way to attack the networks is through the licenses they hold. They don't have to hold a license to be a network, but they have to have licenses to own stations," he said.

The Chicago stations are NBC's WMAQ, ABC's WLS and CBS' WBBM.

NBC's WKYC in Cleveland is targeted too, as is Detroit's ABC station, WXYZ.

Young said 3,000 PTA members have just finished a survey of prime-time TV, which will be compiled by January, when the PTA will decide if any or all of the five licenses will be challenged.

Young brushes aside claims that viewers are getting sex and violence because that's what they want. "Good shows can get good ratings, too — look at 'Little House on the Prairie' and '60 Minutes,'" he said.

The race to finish first in the ratings "is a fine madness," Young added. "The network that finishes third in the ratings is still making a 30 or 40 percent profit, but that isn't good enough, so the people at the top get fired based on ratings, not program quality."

With the exception of WXYZ's Miss Findlater, television officials were reluctant to talk about the PTA effort. One network official said privately, "How can the networks attack the PTA, motherhood and all that. It just wouldn't look good."

George Dessart, executive assistant general manager at CBS, said, "We're not sure what they're concerned about. But we take the position that we're delighted people are taking a look at what we're doing. We don't operate in a vacuum. CBS took the lead in supporting the PTA. We provided them with their first contribution, $30,000 — that's all they would take from us."

Bud Ruker, vice president of NBC public relations, said, "Responsible criticism of our business is something we welcome, and we have gotten that from the PTA in the past. Our stations are responsibly run and we're not fearful of license challenges."

Big Advertisers Avoid Homosexual Publications

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Homosexual publications, still stuck with the plain brown wrapper syndrome, are finding it difficult to attract big advertisers, says Peter Frisch, associate publisher of The Advocate, the nation's largest gay news magazine.

Frisch contends the lucrative homosexual market is being ignored because advertising agencies are afraid to recommend gay publications to client companies.

"Some agency executives seem to believe that the gay market is some kind of fad — as if 20 million gay people materialized overnight out of thin air and may disappear tomorrow," Frisch said in an interview. His estimate is based on Dr. Alfred Kinsey's conclusion that about 10 percent of the general population is homosexual.

Gays make up not only a sizable market but a wealthy one, says Frisch, citing a recent survey showing Advocate readers to have an average income of $28,000. "Gay people have a much higher percentage of expendable income because they do not have wives and children with braces and so on," he says.

Advertising executives agree that gays can be big spenders, but they argue clients never ask about tackling the market and that ads in other publications cover the homosexual market sufficiently.

"I've never been in a discussion with a client on whether or not to advertise for gays," says Jack Bernardy, senior vice president of BBDO West, a major agency. "I have a suspicion that there might be a reluctance to do it on some clients' part."

Bourne Morris, West Coast managing director for Ogilvy & Mather, says clients don't see big opportunities in the gay market.

"My impression is that not enough research has been done on size of the gay market, nor am I aware of a great deal of research done on the purchasing attitudes of gays," says Mrs. Morris, adding, "I think incentives would occur if we were able to identify particular marketing opportunities among gays that were different than the general public."

Frisch disagrees with these assessments, to say the least.

"Regardless of what agency representatives say about why they are not exploiting the gay market, the bottom line is fear," Frisch contends. "Media buyers think they will jeopardize their own positions — especially if they are gay — by recommending The Advocate to a client."

Frisch also dismisses the argument that advertisers are already reaching the gay market. "Gay people do read Time and Newsweek and watch TV," he says. "But when an agency is serious about exploiting a market, they go beyond the mass media."

Some advertising executives, Frisch says, "feel that by directing advertising at the gay market they are in some way issuing a stamp of approval. Some fear some kind of backlash from straight people. That, given the fact that straight people do not read gay publications, is absurd."

Tryopoly's Popularity Increases

HINCKLEY, Ohio (AP) — An incessant downpour five years ago has turned into a windfall for two local entrepreneurs.

In 1973, Emory Sobony invented a game to entertain his family during a rain-dampened camping trip. Today, he and Wes Reese are partners in Osobo Games & Toys Inc. marketing the game Sobony created.

The game — called Tryopoly — was born when the Sobony family became weary of the traditional games they had with them. Sobony took a triangular pizza carton and pieces from other games and invented Tryopoly.

Reese and Sobony tried unsuccessfully to interest game manufacturers in the invention.

The name of the firm they formed may not be a household word yet, but the game is expected to be a big seller in several major cities this holiday season.

The triangular-shaped game is similar to the well-known Monopoly by Parker Bros. in that it involves the purchase of properties in competition with other players. However, Tryopoly comes in various editions, each localized to the individual cities in which it is marketed. The names of local companies, sports teams and cultural institutions are used.

Not only does Osobo receive revenues from the sale of the game, it also charges local businesses for the advertising they receive by being named on the game board.

The cost to the advertiser depends on the size of the market. In Syracuse, N.Y., $1,200 will buy space on the board. A spot on the Cleveland game costs $1,800. In Chicago, a firm can be on the board for $7,500.

Osobo is aiming for sale of 30,000 Chicago Tryopoly games before Christmas, said John Trudeau, general manager.

"For the next 12 months, we are also looking at the 40 major markets in the nation. We have received inquiries about Tryopoly from West Germany, Ireland, Greece and many countries in South America," Trudeau said.

The game, introduced in Cleveland last Christmas, consists of two boards, deed cards, dice, play money, bank organizer, tokens and instructions. The object is to bankrupt opponents and form a tryopoly, which a player achieves by having two to six property categories in a row.

The May Co. had exclusive rights to the game last fall and it became the biggest selling board game during the Christmas season. This year it will be sold in other stores as well.

Other cities with versions of Tryopoly are Canton, Akron, Columbus Toledo, Milwaukee, San Francisco, Washington, Dallas, Toronto, Tampa, Kansas City, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and Atlanta.

Cars, Buses Account For Most Travel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cars and buses are the only form of inter-city transportation for some 15,000 cities in the United States, making the nation's roads responsible for most of the personal mobility Americans enjoy.

According to The Road Information Program, highway vehicles accounted for 87 percent of all inter-city travel last year, compared with 13 percent for air, rail and water traffic combined.

Tractor Pulls Rural Answer To Glamorous Drag Races

BY DEAN FOSDICK
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — They huff and they puff and they blow their competition down in a display of mechanical muscle seldom seen in any farm field. They're farm tractors modified for use in "pulls," rural America's answer to the city drag race.

David Grimm, executive director of the National Tractor Pullers' Association of Upper Sandusky, Ohio, said about 2,000 persons from 23 states and one Canadian province are involved in the effort to standardize competition and build interest in the sport.

"It's unique," Grimm said in a telephone interview. "Farm folks have been interested in tractor pulling for years but now city people are beginning to relate to it. We scheduled 53 pulls on the national circuit for 1978. We'll wind up drawing about a million people and paying out nearly $1 million in purse money before the year is out. That's more than twice what we saw five years ago."

The contest involves moving your tractor farther and faster down a 300-foot dirt track than the other guy, while hitched to a sled weighing anywhere from 40,000 to 65,000 pounds.

The pull gets tougher as the tractors advance because the sled's movable weight box is adjusted to slide closer to the tractor, increasing resistance on the tractor's rear axle. It's not uncommon for a tractor to stall before making the full 300 feet.

The sport generally involves four divisions in various weight classes — super stocks, modifieds, mini-modifieds and four-wheel-drive trucks.

"Super stocks are your typical farm tractors, only they carry about $20,000 worth of high performance engine and drivetrain parts," Grimm said. "Many of them develop 10 times their factory-rated horsepower, and in the heavier weight classes, 1,200 to 1,500-horsepower outputs aren't uncommon."

Just about anything goes in the modified classes, from 12-cylinder aircraft engines to three automobile engines arranged in step-ladder fashion, he said. The mini-modifieds are souped-up garden tractors and four-wheel-drive trucks are becoming an increasingly popular phase of the activity, Grimm said.

One leading participant is Gary Cook, a drag racer-turned-tractor puller. Cook, 36, runs a 317-acre grain and beef cattle operation near Springfield, Tenn. He said when he isn't plowing, he's pulling.

"I've taken in about $13,000 in purse money this year from the 40 to 50 events I entered. In the summer, I generally compete in two to three pulls a week. In the winter, I go to a couple of the big ones — Houston and Indianapolis, for example."

Cook is president of the Tennessee Tractor Pullers' Association and a director of the national body.

"About 75 percent of our members are farmers or are somehow associated with agriculture. Pulling takes some commitment because you're talking about some expensive, special-purpose equipment. Modified superstock tractors will cost about $50,000. You're not going to risk that kind of investment in a farm field."

Cook County Battles Welfare Cheats

CHICAGO (UPI) — James Piper says welfare is for the needy, not the greedy, and he heads a special prosecution unit that aims to put welfare abusers behind bars.

The unit has helped cut down Cook County welfare rolls and saved Illinois millions of dollars, officials say.

"Stealing welfare is like stealing anything else," said Piper, an assistant county state's attorney. "For every cheat you get, you also cause others in the community to stop and think about what they're doing. It's an effective deterrent."

Piper said about $45 billion is dispensed annually in welfare aid nationwide and authorities have estimated 11 percent of that sum is skimmed off through fraud.

The unit of five was formed a year ago following Chicago's first "Welfare Queen" case and has won about 90 convictions.

Piper said 35 or 40 percent of the people investigated by the unit are public employees, including teachers, policemen and even welfare workers.

About 50 percent of the people were legitimately on welfare at one time or another, he said. Many became abusers when they got jobs, but chose not to inform authorities, Piper said.

"Some of these people have nicer cars than the lawyers or judges," he said. "They all like that extra income."

Piper successfully prosecuted the case against alleged "Welfare Queen" Linda Taylor, whose case was cited by Ronald Reagan in the 1976 presidential campaign as an argument against the present welfare system.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible®

Luke 6:10-18A The Living Bible

10 He looked around at them one by one and then said to the man, "Reach out your hand." And as he did, it became completely normal again!

11 At this, the enemies of Jesus were wild with rage, and began to plot His murder.

12 One day soon afterwards He went out into the mountains to pray, and prayed all night.

13 At daybreak He called together His followers and chose twelve of them to be the inner circle of His disciples. (They were appointed as His "apostles," or, "missionaries.")

14, 15, 16 Here are their names:
Simon (He also called him Peter),
Andrew (Simon's brother),
James,
John,
Philip,
Bartholomew, Matthew,
Thomas,
James (the son of Alphaeus),
Simon (also called "Zealotes"),
Judas (son of James),
Judas Iscariot (who later betrayed Him).

17, 18 When they came down from the slopes of the mountain they stood with Jesus on a large, level area, surrounded by many of His followers who were, in turn, surrounded by the crowds. For people from all over Judea and from Jerusalem and from as far north as the seacoasts of Tyre and Sidon had come to hear Him or to be healed.

Book Protest Causes Change

BOOK BATTLE — A crusader against "dirty books" sits on a curb in Charleston, W. Va., in 1974 during a bitter dispute over school textbooks. An advisory committee that recently screened books for the Board of Education said that the protests were very much on their minds. (AP Laserphoto)

By BOB ROBINSON
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Four years after a bitter dispute over the selection of school textbooks set neighbor against neighbor in Kanawha County, it appears victory has gone to those who protested the use of books they saw as godless and un-American.

The protests were "very much" on the minds of the members of an advisory committee that recently screened a set of language arts books for the Board of Education, according to the committee's leader.

The language arts books approved by the board were the first authorized for elementary schools since 1973. It was those 1973 selections — from authors such as ex-Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver, now a "born-again" Christian, and LeToi Jones — that sparked the protest which shut down schools, factories, mines and a regional bus system.

"When we got into the textbooks dealing with literature and fables where there had been problems before, we scanned those books probably like they've never been scanned before," said Stephen Priestly, a Lincoln County elementary school principal who headed the 15-member advisory committee.

Phil E. Suter, assistant state school superintendent, also says the books approved by the advisory committee, from which county school boards must choose their materials, were carefully chosen with the textbook protest in mind.

"I thought the fact that the textbook advisory committee looked at the books so carefully... that is evidence that they have been very sensitive to what the public's demands are," Suter said.

And the pro-textbook faction concedes defeat.

"I know what it's like to lose," said the Rev. James Lewis, an Episcopal minister who was a vocal supporter of the textbooks.

The eventual victory, Lewis believes, came almost unseen as book supporters tired of the battle.

Santa Lands In Treetop

BIGLERVILLE, Pa. (UPI) — Ed Gotwalt, true showman that he is, wanted to make a lot of children happy this year by arriving as Santa Claus in an unconventional way — in a hot air balloon.

Instead, he ended up stuck in a tree about 50 feet above the ground in full costume and beard.

Gotwalt was stranded for more than two hours Sunday on top of the trees after the balloon got snagged on branches and deflated.

Gotwalt, 42, had hired balloonist Jeff Dull, 23, of Gettysburg, and took off on his appointed round shortly before noon from rural Walnut Bottom, about 18 miles west of Carlisle.

"We were flying over the mountain range toward my store and hit a downdraft (that) sucked the balloon down, actually, and we crashed into the trees," Gotwalt said.

A plane passing overhead saw the deflated balloon and notified authorities.

"This thing wore people out," he explained.

Hardly a murmur of protest was heard when the new books were picked in early November. The selection process drew scant attention from the state's media.

The Kanawha County textbook furor started in the spring of 1974 when Alice Moore, a minister's wife, complained that selections from some of the books were lewd, unpatriotic and encouraged students to think in terms of relative values. Mrs. Moore had been elected to the Kanawha County school board as a candidate opposing sex education in the public schools.

The protest, led by fundamentalist preachers waving Bibles, escalated with thousands of followers, most of them concentrated in the hills and hollows surrounding Charleston. By the time school opened in the fall, hundreds of students' mothers were on picket lines. Several preachers went to jail for minor picketing offenses. But one, the Rev. Marvin Hinton, served a three-year federal prison term for tampering with mail at elementary school. He is now doing construction work under a work-release program.

Supporters of the books won a victory of sorts in November 1974 when the school board voted to return most of the books to the classrooms. But Lewis says it was an empty victory.

"One of the key things that happened is that Alice Moore came to that meeting with a piece of paper in her hand — and it was a set of guidelines" for future textbook selections, he said.

"I said to myself, 'Oh, no. Not another battle. People are tired.'"

The guidelines, he said, are the basis for the current textbook selections. "Those guidelines were totally unworkable. They're awful. They're oppressive," he maintains.

"But nobody was ready to go to war on this issue."

Censorship On Upswing In U.S.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Censorship in school libraries has been growing during the last decade, mainly because of small, but effective, organizations, says a member of the censorship committee of the National Council of Teachers of English.

Lee Burress said a recent survey of 2,000 schools showed 30 percent of them censored books, school newspapers or other materials. A similar survey in 1965 showed 20 percent of the schools exercised censorship, he said.

He said a relatively small number of outspoken people were responsible for censorship. "These groups are well organized. There are 15 or 16 groups around the country involved in school censorship," he said.

Burress, a professor at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, said several standard dictionaries were banned in all Texas schools by the Texas School Book Commission because they contained "bad words." He said some dictionaries were banned because they contained a definition of "bed" that included sexual intercourse.

He said some books removed or barred from school libraries include "Catcher in the Rye," "Go Ask Alice," "Of Mice and Men," "The Grapes of Wrath," "A Separate Peace," "The Diary of Anne Frank," "To Kill a Mockingbird," "The Scarlet Letter," "1984" and the Bible.

ANCIENT VILLAGE
LEWISTON, Idaho (AP) — The remains of an Indian village that Boise State University scientists have found six miles from here could be one of the oldest in the Northwest, according to a university researcher, Kenneth Ames. Radiocarbon readings on some of the 10,000 artifacts found at the site date the village to 1100 B.C., and possibly 2100 B.C., he said.

"In a given year, one out of five teachers hears objections to these books," he said, adding that about half the complaints result in removing the books.

The most common reasons cited for removing books, Burress said, are sexual frankness, profanity, obscenity and bad grammar.

Burress made his comments in an address to the teacher organization's 68th annual convention here last week.

Woman's Death Brings Long Ordeal To End

HOLIDAY, Fla. (AP) — Every day for 37 years Lucy Esposito bathed her comatose daughter. She powdered, turned and fed her through a tube in her throat. She did it all herself. And every day she put a pretty ribbon or a clip in Elaine's hair.

"I always prayed God would let me live longer than she did," said Lucy Esposito. Mrs. Esposito's prayers were answered.

Elaine's death Sunday, at age 43, ended the long ordeal of a devoted mother who refused to hand over the job to an institution.

It also ended what is believed to be the longest human coma ever: 37 years, 3 months and 20 days. The Guinness Book of World Records says it is the longest period of human unconsciousness ever recorded.

Elaine had slept since Aug. 6, 1941, when, at the age of 6, she underwent an appendectomy in a Chicago hospital.

Doctors were closing her abdomen when her temperature shot to 107 and she began convulsing. Her doctors thought she would die that night.

But Elaine didn't die then, and she didn't die when she had pneumonia, or when death approached the other times — with measles, with gallstones, with a bowel obstruction.

Her parents never did learn exactly what had happened to their girl in the Chicago hospital.

"We never had time to worry about legal problems," Mrs. Esposito told the St. Petersburg Times. "Louie was working three jobs and I was with her day and night. I don't know how else we could have done it."

The family's money ran out in 10 months, and they took their only child home, where Mrs. Esposito learned to be a nurse — a job she would practice full-time for more than a third of a century.

When Esposito had a heart attack several years ago, the family moved from Chicago to Florida to make life easier.

Friends and doctors would urge the family to let a nursing home take Elaine. But the Espositos wouldn't do it. They did take her to Lourdes, France, once in search of a miracle.

When Medicare was established it helped a lot. Last year, however, bureaucrats in Washington threatened to cut off aid because Elaine wasn't in an institution. Mrs. Esposito complained bitterly, and an administrative law judge made an exception that let the monthly checks keep coming.

Esposito died last January of cancer. He was 68.

"I lost them both within 10 months," Mrs. Esposito said. "Lou and I always figured Elaine would go first and we'd have a few years for ourselves."

The end finally neared Friday. Elaine was gasping, groaning. Her mother called an ambulance and once more climbed in to ride with her.

"I woke up 4:30 Sunday morning and got dressed," Mrs. Esposito said. "I turned her over, rubbed her back, put baby powder on her. I put clips in her hair like I always do and I gave her a little kiss. I walked to the other side of the room and came back and gave her another kiss."

"And she died, just like Louie died, alone with me."

Proposals Debated By Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter Administration is debating federal government reorganization proposals with one group arguing that major renovations are needed for efficiency. But opponents say large-scale moves would just generate political controversy without improving government services.

Among the proposals being prepared by President Carter's reorganization staff is a plan to eliminate the Commerce Department and divide its functions among other agencies.

Other proposals include plans to strip the U.S. Forest Service from the Agriculture Department, create a new Bureau of Natural Resources by enlarging and re-naming the Interior Department and make the present Department of Housing and Urban Development a broader agency named the Department of Economic Development.

Advocates of such proposals say Carter promised during his campaign to make the federal government more efficient by reorganizing it, and that he pledged to cut the number of federal agencies.

Carter has trimmed some minor "advisory committees," but he has actually enlarged his Cabinet by creating a new Energy Department and supporting plans for the creation of an Education Department.

The advocates of reorganization say scuttling the Commerce Department would give the president the chance to say he eliminated at least one Cabinet-level department.

But some staff members prefer such initiatives as Carter's civil service revision plan, which Congress passed overwhelmingly this year.

The reorganization opponents say large-scale shifts generate political controversy and just shuffle boxes on an organization chart without improving the services provided by the agencies.

However, some officials at the Office of Management and Budget, who asked not to be identified, said OMB reorganization advisers are pressing for Carter to make major federal renovations a top presidential priority next year.

The officials stress, though, that none of the current proposals have been presented to Carter yet, and that any decision on major reorganizations is still weeks away.

Advocates of the plan to dismantle Commerce portray the department as a collection of disparate agencies with no logical relationship to each other.

"What's the weather bureau got to do with the census takers?" the official said.

Reorganization staff officials say they believe eliminating the Commerce Department would cause relatively less political controversy than attempting to scuttle other agencies, such as the departments of Agriculture or Labor, which have well-organized constituencies who would fight hard to keep them.

"There aren't really very many people who would go out on a limb to keep Commerce," a reorganization staff member said.

OMB staff members estimate that elimination of the department would save $30 million a year in overhead expenditures, including salary and staff for the secretary.

"What do we get for that $30 million? Not very much," one official said.

The OMB proposal would move the Commerce Department's Economic Development Administration (EDA) to HUD, shifting its focus from housing programs to job creation and renaming it the Bureau of Economic Development to reflect this shift.

The EDA administers grants and loans aimed at stimulating private jobs and public works in areas suffering high unemployment and low income.

Also, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration would be moved from Commerce to be absorbed by a new Bureau of Natural Resources, formed from the Interior Department.

The Census Bureau, presently part of the Commerce Department, could be left "free-standing" as an independent organization, one official speculated.

Proposals to dismantle the Commerce Department are opposed by its boss, Juanita Kreps, whose job would be eliminated.

Another reorganization plan would merge the Forest Service with the present Bureau of Land Management (BLM) to become part of the new natural resources agency.

Advocates say the Forest Service, which manages 28 million acres of national forests, is closely related to the BLM, which administers 473 million acres of government land mainly in the West and Alaska.

Historian Compares Presidents, Hitler

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A historian advises that if a president believes the end justifies the means as Adolf Hitler did, Americans should "throw him out."

John Toland says a handful of American presidents, including Richard Nixon, Lyndon Johnson and Harry Truman, flouted ominously with the political principle that guided the Nazi leader.

The biographer of Hitler said U.S. democracy could be destroyed if America's presidents do more than just flirt with "the one thing Hitler believed in... that the end justifies the means."

"That would be the death knell of this country, and there have been some of our presidents who have believed that," Toland said in an interview. "And that's one reason I've always been afraid of presidents."

He said Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt as well as Truman, Johnson and Nixon exhibited alarming authoritarian tendencies during their terms in office.

"If you are in doubt whether the president believes the end justifies the means or not, ask him," he counseled. "If he says yes, throw him out."

Toland was at the National Archives, where he researched his biography "Adolf Hitler" and found hundreds of photographs for a new follow-up volume, "Hitler, the pictorial documentary of his life."

Roosevelt, he said, was aware that Japan sought an accommodation with the United States at the start of World War II. But, "Japan was lured into attacking Pearl Harbor," by Roosevelt, he said. "It was all done for the best of reasons."

The attack, he implied, served as the political means for overcoming the objections of isolationists and propelling the United States into World War II in defense of Britain.

Harry Truman, he said, left him aghast at the ease with which he decided to drop the atom bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki to force Japan's surrender.

He said he once interviewed Truman about the bombings, assuming the president had agonized over it for weeks.

"Hell no!" he quoted Truman as saying. "I made up my mind just like that!"

Hell, it was just a big artillery piece."

Toland offered one suggestion for preventing future Hitlers from reappearing on the political scene:

"Keep writing about Hitler!"

Survey Shows Popularity Of Hamburger

WASHINGTON (AP) — If consumers start to balk over beef prices again, as they did with a boycott in 1973, the reaction might become known as the 1979 Hamburger Revolt.

That's because lean ground beef, which the Agriculture Department says is the most-preferred type of meat, also accounts for the largest decline in the shrinking beef supply.

A recent department poll of consumers found that nearly three-fourths of the hamburger they buy is a lean type. Only 21 percent was regular or unspecified.

Normally, about 40 percent of the beef supply — and nearly all the 1.3 billion pounds or so that's imported — goes to the consumer as hamburger.

Meat from range-fed cattle, culled dairy cows and other lower-grade animals are the normal sources.

As ranchers cut back herds in 1976 and 1977 to reduce their losses from sagging prices, the available hamburger mushroomed. The consumer survey reflects that: 92 percent of the households ate at least as much in 1977 as the year before. Fourteen percent ate fewer steaks and roasts.

But with the national herd down near the low point of its cycle, such animals are no longer being slaughtered in such quantities.

At the same time, low feed prices are keeping slaughter rates higher for fatter, graded Choice-grade steaks, the normal source of steaks, roasts and other usually more expensive cuts.

On paper, that should mean scarcer hamburger meat will lead the predicted, continued rise in beef prices next year and into 1980, a climb consumers have been watching for more than a year.

Electronic Checkout Coming Under Attack

A-J News Services
The future of electronic checkout devices appears to be clouded in many states just as the devices are coming into widespread use.
About 300 supermarkets over the nation have installed the electronic checkouts, which cost about $300,000 per store. But legislation has been introduced in 30 states to require that prices continue to be marked on individual items.
If such legislation is introduced in Texas, at least one local grocery chain which uses the system says the consumer would pay the price.
Roy K. Furr, president of Furr's Supermarkets, said the system saves on the cost of labor. "Such legislation would increase our cost of operation, which would have to be passed on to the consumer," he said.
The Furr's chain has used the system in two of its stores for more than two years and plans to expand it to others in the near future.
The legislation has been prompted by fears that the devices will result in an end to the current practice of marking the price on each can, jar or bag of food.
The scanners read electronically a code printed on each package, then ring up the price that corresponds to the symbol.
Most groceries and many other items now are packaged with the printed codes. When prices change the consumer can be adjusted to register the current price instead of the coded one when the item passes its laser scanner before being bagged.

Theoretically, the scanner would let supermarkets do away with marking each individual item. It would be necessary only to put a price on the shelf below each group of groceries.
But surveys have indicated consumer resistance to the idea and most stores now employing the devices still put prices on each item.
Sears Roebuck and Co. and Best Products Company have individually marked tags on such items as their own brand of detergent.

"Such legislation would result in a loss of sales," said Sears assistant store manager Paul Farenbach. "Our merchandise is not tagged. Our tags have the price on them so the consumer can read it."
Gary Linder, assistant store manager at Best Products, said the scanning device is used only on "self-service items, which have individual tickets on them."
The report also said eliminating individual pricing "opens up possibilities for automated or semi-automated marking of supermarket shelves," but warning price marking "could prevent a lot of a system just being introduced."

Police Question Man About Bar Shooting

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 31-year-old Lubbock man walked into the county jail at 1:45 a.m. Sunday and told deputies he may have been responsible for a murder about two years ago.
The man told police his conscience had hurt him ever since he read in The Avalanche-Journal about a killing which he thinks he did. He was being held in the county jail today while authorities attempted to learn what murder the suspect is talking about.
The man said that about two years ago he and another man went to an after-hours bar and got into a fight with three Mexican-American men. He allegedly told police he shot about four times at one of the Mexican-Americans while leaving the bar.
The suspect, however, said he was too drunk the night of the shooting to know exactly what happened. He said it was not until the next day, after reading in the newspaper about a shooting death, that he felt he had killed someone.
Police Det. Randy Ward said the man told authorities it was a guilty conscience that forced him to turn himself in early Sunday.
Police this morning said the man was a prime suspect in the unsolved murder of Tom Silva Schuman on Jan. 30, 1977. Schuman, 46, of 1937 E. Colgate St., was shot to death about 7:30 a.m. at a purported after-hours bar in the 3200-block of East Broadway.
Reports show police also were looking back into the Dec. 13, 1974, unsolved murder of Guillermo "Willie" Gomez. Gomez was found shot to death in the 5200-block of Magnolia Avenue, an area police say the suspect appeared to be familiar with.
However, the man's story agreed best with details surrounding Schuman's death, according to Ward.
Two-year-old reports show that Schuman broke up an argument between three men at the club about 4:30 a.m. on Jan. 30, 1977. Two of the men reportedly left the nightclub and returned several hours later and asked Schuman to come outside the club.
Witnesses inside told police they heard four gunshots after Schuman went out onto the porch. Schuman died at 8:15 a.m. at Methodist Hospital.
The man who turned himself Sunday allegedly told police "two years ago, or possibly longer," he said another man went to an after-hours bar in East Lubbock about 11 p.m. looking for women.

He said he went inside the bar where he was confronted by a Mexican-American man who allegedly pulled a knife on him after saying he did not like him.
He said he ran out of the club with the knife-wielding man and two other men chasing him, and was handed a large caliber pistol by his companion. He said he fired the gun four times at one of his pursuers and then got into a car and fled with the other man accompanying him.
The suspect said the man he was with that night was a tall, slinky Mexican-American who he never saw again after being taken home from the club.
According to police reports, the suspect "read in the newspaper where a man had been shot and killed at a booting place, and that he always thought that it was the man he had shot at the night before."

Peking Struggle Disclosed

TOKYO (AP) — Teng Hsiao-ping, apparently riding a wave of public and Communist Party support, is expected to replace Hua Kuo-feng as China's premier, but it is not clear yet whether Hua will also lose the chairmanship of the Chinese Communist Party, the top job in the Chinese hierarchy.

The new power struggle among the top Chinese leaders was revealed in a barrage of pro-Teng wall posters in Peking that sharply attacked policies of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung. The poster campaign was followed by a series of week-end demonstrations by Teng supporters which appeared to have party blessings.

Teng, twice resurrected from political exile after being purged by Communist Party radicals, acknowledged for the first time Sunday that Hua faced demotion.

Kyodo, the Japanese news agency, said he told Ryosaku Sasaki, leader of the Japanese Democratic Socialist Party, at a meeting Sunday that the party politburo was considering revising two of its decisions made in April 1976.

One of these promoted Hua to premier and first vice chairman of the party and the other stripped Teng of all his party and government posts.

Hua, who was Mao's choice to be his successor, moved into the top spots after Mao died in September 1976. Teng was restored to all his party post in July 1977, made first deputy premier and put in charge of China's big modernization drive. But Hua was already premier, having been named to the post while Teng was still in political disgrace.

Teng indicated the "revisions" would be made because Mao, then 84 and ill, acted under the influence of the now-disgraced radical Gang of Four led by his wife, Chiang Ching.

Teng had been widely expected to succeed Chou En-lai as premier when Chou died in January 1976. He was Chou's protégé. They had worked together on the industrialization plan, and he was already directing it when the radicals accused him of disobeying Mao by not putting enough emphasis on revolutionary communism.

Teng's dismissal from his party and government posts for the second time following three days of rioting in Peking in April when radicals tried to remove wreaths placed in Tien An Men Square in memory of Chou.

Kyodo said Teng told Sasaki the reassessment of Mao's actions had official approval. This seemed to signal a reduction in Hua's power since Mao was the source of it.

Hua caught Mao's eye with an outstanding performance in agricultural work in Hunan Province, Mao's birthplace, and was sent to Peking to investigate the reported defection and death of Defense Minister Lin Biao in 1971, was named security minister and by 1976 was up to his neck in power politics.

When Mao died in September of that year, it looked as if the party's radicals would get Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, named to succeed him as party chairman, China's highest post.

The party moderates couldn't swallow that, so they got behind Hua instead. The radicals, including Mrs. Mao, were arrested.

Hua's ace was a quotation attributed to Mao: "With you in charge I feel at ease."

But two years after assuming the premiership as well as the party chairmanship, 57-year-old Hua's credentials are being questioned. The man behind the questioning is the energetic, 74-year-old senior vice premier, Teng. If he had been available, the moderates probably would have chosen him premier and possibly might have made him chairman.

He was a veteran of the Long March in the 1930s, one of the top six men of Red China for the past 40 years and an old friend of Premier Chou En-lai. But when Mao made the decisions, Teng was broken and disgraced, a victim of the radicals.

Hua is shrewd, competent, intelligent and occasionally humorous. Teng is stubborn, persistent, clear-thinking man unaccustomed to admitting defeat. He also is witty and loves to play bridge.

A peppery old Szechuanese, Teng once said it didn't matter if the cat was white or black as long as it caught mice. This pragmatism is characteristic of the way he is overseeing another of those giant economic efforts undertaken repeatedly since the 1949 Communist conquest. This one is a great industrial leap forward intended to put the most populous of the earth's nations into the front ranks.

Teng is senior vice premier, second vice chairman of the party central committee, vice chairman of the military affairs commission and chief of the army's general staff. Before the 1966-69 cultural revolution he was general secretary of the party, next to Mao in power and influence.

The radicals didn't like him because he believed — and said — the heavy emphasis on ideological indoctrination they insisted on was claptrap.

It was after the later visits of Timofeyev and other Soviet officials to Jonestown that the Russian-language classes were instituted on a large scale.

Three survivors of the mass suicide-murder told reporters that the settlement's treasurer, Maria Katsaris, ordered them during the height of the death ritual to take a heavy suitcase to the embassy.

One of the three, Tim Carter, said they thought Miss Katsaris meant the U.S. Embassy. But he said after they got out of the settlement, they opened the suitcase and found $500,000 in cash and a letter addressed to the Soviet Embassy. Carter said they abandoned the suitcase and fled into the jungle.

Miss Katsaris was found dead of gunshot wounds in Jonestown. One of the signers of the memo, Sharon Amos, was the public relations director for the cult in Georgetown. She and her three children were murdered in Georgetown while the suicide ritual was taking place in Jonestown. Charles Edward Beikman, a former U.S. Marine and a member of the cult, has been arrested and charged with the murders.

Cult Leaders' Meetings With Soviets Revealed

By PETER ARNETT
 GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Top aides of cult leader Jim Jones conferred at least twice in Georgetown with an official of the Soviet Embassy who discussed their problems sympathetically and held out the promise of approval for the exodus of the whole Jonestown colony to Russia, according to a document made available to The Associated Press.

Jones' aide also discussed the "quick transference of money" from Jonestown to the embassy to aid such a move, according to the document. A few months after the meetings, Jones instituted compulsory study of Russian for the approximately 1,000 members of his Peoples Temple in Guyana, demanding that each speak a Russian phrase before each meal.

Jones was known to be fearful of attacks from across the Brazilian border by mercenaries hired by relatives of some of his followers to return them to the United States. He was known to be seeking a safer haven and spoke of Cuba and the Soviet Union in his speeches.

A five-page typewritten memo found in the house where Jones lived and maintained his office revealed that aides of the cult leader met in Georgetown with the press attaché of the Soviet Embassy, Feodor Timofeyev, in December 1977 and again last March 20.

The memo — signed with the names Marcie, Sharon, Lew, Jimmie, Johnnie and Debbie — said the cultists discussed the possibility of exodus to Russia at the December meeting, and Timofeyev referred the matter to Moscow. At the meeting in March he said he still had not received a reply.

"He said it was a very difficult thing to arrange exodus," the memo continued. "But when I cried and said it would be very painful for the door to be shut against the children (we adults don't matter so much, but we need safety for our children) he said that the U.S.S.R. had taken in 5,000 Spanish children, taken care of them and returned them later to Spain, so he felt it was worth pursuing."

The memo added that Timofeyev told them there would be "no problem of getting visas at any time" for a delegation to visit the Soviet Union to discuss the matter.

The document said at one point regarding the need for exodus, a quick transference of money, he doesn't see the need for such a situation developing right away, not within a year.

The memo said Timofeyev cautioned Jones about visiting Georgetown, where an emotional hearing over the custody of a child in the Jonestown settlement was in progress.

"He feels that the risks for Jim's life if he came to town might only be 10 percent, but it is not worth taking," the memo said.

Timofeyev declined to talk with Jones over the radio-telephone link the cult operated between Georgetown and Jonestown, the memo continued, "but said he'd rather talk to J.J. in person when he comes to Jonestown — he still is planning to come to Jonestown."

It was after the later visits of Timofeyev and other Soviet officials to Jonestown that the Russian-language classes were instituted on a large scale.

Three survivors of the mass suicide-murder told reporters that the settlement's treasurer, Maria Katsaris, ordered them during the height of the death ritual to take a heavy suitcase to the embassy.

High Court Refuses To Air Farber Case

peared in the Times about 10 years after the mysterious deaths.

Judge William Arnold, presiding over Jascievich's trial, ordered Farber and the Times last July to hand over all files compiled in Farber's investigation, as requested by the doctor's lawyer.

After Farber and the Times refused to comply with Arnold's subpoena, they were convicted of civil and criminal contempt.

Under the civil conviction, Farber was ordered to remain in jail and the Times to pay $5,000 in daily fines until the files were surrendered.

In addition, the criminal conviction carried a six-month jail sentence for Farber and a $100,000 fine for his newspaper. The Times already has paid the fine but Farber's six-month sentence was suspended.

In seeking Supreme Court review, lawyers for the Times and Farber presented three constitutional arguments:

—That the newspaper and reporter were denied "due process" rights because they were convicted for not complying with a subpoena without ever having a chance to contest the subpoena's validity.

The New Jersey Supreme Court noted in upholding the convictions that in all future state cases, full hearings must be provided to those resisting orders to comply with a judge's order to produce certain information.

—That New Jersey's reporter shield law, which like similar laws in 25 other states protects against government demands for confidential information, should not always yield to a criminal defendant's stated right to receive a fair trial. Also, that the shield law is constitutional when applied to a judge asking to see a reporter's confidential notes in private.

The shield law passed by the New Jersey legislature gives journalists "a privilege to refuse to disclose (confidential sources) in any legal proceeding" or to "any court."

—That a 1972 Supreme Court ruling, that the Constitution's free press guarantees do not relieve a reporter of the legal obligation of answering questions in a criminal investigation, should be applied on a "case-by-case" basis.

Lubbockite Arrested In Theft

SWEETWATER (UPI) — A Southland couple and a Lubbock man have been arrested on suspicion of theft in what authorities hope is the beginning of the end for a ring of brass thieves.

The trio is suspected of stealing more than a ton and a half of brass fittings from beneath a Santa Fe train Thanksgiving day, at a site 15 miles east of this West Texas town.

In a copyright story Saturday, the Abilene Reporter-News said the three suspects were arrested about 4 a.m. Thursday during routine surveillance of an area of track where other brass fitting thefts have occurred.

Authorities confiscated 3,200 pounds of the brass fittings, which had been loaded into a pickup truck, and arrested the suspects as they fled into brush nearby. The value of the stolen fittings is about $3,400, the Abilene newspaper reported.

Fukuda Withdraws From Race After Loss In Party Primary

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda said following his defeat in a party primary that he will withdraw his candidacy for re-election, insuring the election of veteran politician Masayoshi Ohira to head the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party and be Japan's next prime minister.

"I would not run for the office," Fukuda told a news conference. "A defeated general should not talk of battles."

Ohira, the 68-year-old secretary-general of the party, defeated Fukuda, 73, in a preliminary party vote Sunday that eliminated two other party leaders.

The final decision will be made in voting Friday by the 378 party members in the Diet, Japan's parliament. Political observers believed the voting would match the primary results, and there was speculation that Fukuda would withdraw.

The primary, an innovation aimed at bringing wider participation in the selection of the party leader-prime minister, was held among the 1.5 million regular and associate members of the party.

A total of 1,525 points were allotted among the 47 prefectural districts. The final count announced by party headquarters gave Ohira 748 points, Fukuda 638, Yasuhiro Nakasone 53 and Toshio Komoto 48.

Fukuda suggested before the vote that the second-place man withdraw to make the choice of party president unanimous, but his opponents rejected his suggestion.

Ohira expressed surprise at the "large support" given him and said he awaited the outcome of the runoff.

Fukuda succeeded Takeo Miki as party president and prime minister in December 1976. Some opinion polls made him the front-runner this time, largely because of the conclusion in late October of a peace and friendship treaty between Japan and China. But in recent days other polls had said Ohira was moving up and perhaps had taken over the lead.

Fukuda was picked two years ago largely because he was an economic expert, but like Miki he was unable to solve the problems of high consumer prices, increased unemployment, the rising yen and a generally faltering economy. Business leaders complained that the measures he took were late and ineffectual.

Ohira has given no indication what he might do about the economy. He has said he would respect national consensus, avoid "stiff confrontation" and give more power to the Diet.

Warning Given To U.S. Cities

White House aides have indicated that Carter will attempt to cut the budget by anywhere from $18 billion to $30 billion. Final decisions will be made in the next few weeks, after consultations with cabinet officials and agency heads, and the final blueprint will be unveiled in January.

The Columbus Republican, expressing the view of the league's board of directors, said, "We might be able to live with some cuts in some areas," including highway funds and crime fighting assistance, but he ticked off a number of programs that city officials consider sacrosanct.

"We feel very strongly about full funding for economic and community development," he said. He identified other crucial program areas as housing, mass transit, CETA and Environmental Protection Agency construction and financing grants.

Since Carter wants to reduce the federal deficit to no more than $30 billion, all these programs, except economic development programs, are considered vulnerable. One Housing and Urban Development Department official described ten-lative cuts in subsidized housing programs as "especially severe."

White House aides have indicated that Carter will attempt to cut the budget by anywhere from $18 billion to $30 billion. Final decisions will be made in the next few weeks, after consultations with cabinet officials and agency heads, and the final blueprint will be unveiled in January.

FBI Probe Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief counsel of the House assassinations committee said today that the FBI's investigation of the murder of Martin Luther King Jr. was flawed because it virtually ignored the possibility of conspiracy.

The panel also was told that the FBI failed to check out the possibility that the family of confessed assassin James Earl Ray plotted to kill the civil rights leader.

Chief Counsel G. Robert Blakey said that investigative efforts also were hampered by the "notable" lack of participation of Justice Department attorneys in the probe and because relations between the department and the FBI were "strained and counter-productive."

But he said there is no current evidence that the deficiencies of the FBI's investigation "were directly or indirectly caused by Director (J. Edgar) Hoover's well-documented hatred for Dr. King and his movement."

Man Stabbed During Fight

A 29-year-old Lubbock man was in critical condition with stab wounds today at St. Mary's Hospital following an early morning altercation at a nightclub in the 2300-block of Southeast Drive.

Erskine Page Nelson of 2816 E. Fifth St. was stabbed in the neck and leg after getting into a fight with a young man about 3:30 a.m. today.

Witnesses said the suspect pulled a knife and chased Nelson out of the club. The knife-wielding man caught up with Nelson at a nearby vacant lot, reports show.

When police arrived, they found the wounded Nelson lying in the lot.

No arrests had been made in connection with the stabbing by late this morning.

cordings of the meeting, allegedly as they discussed killing Eldson.

McCrorey testified Davis asked him to hire a "hit man" to kill the Fort Worth judge and at least 14 other people.

Davis' attorneys, led by Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, have been trying to lay the foundation for an argument that their client was the victim of a frame-up by his enemies and law officers.

Jurors heard the recordings for a second time last week after the defense hinted it might question the accuracy of the tapes. Prosecutor Jack Strickland received permission from the judge to replay them so Gray could determine if any changes had been made.

Gray also testified how he burned three small holes in an old T-shirt and sprinkled it with catnip to set up a fake picture showing Eldson dead from the bullets of a "hit man."

Gunman Gets Large Haul From Service Station

A masked bandit wielding a long-barreled revolver entered the Godwin's Service Station at 1516 E. 19th St. about 4:30 a.m. today and robbed the business of about $1,400, according to the station manager.

Don Cowan, manager of the station, said the robber, described as a short, thin black man, wearing a red and white ski mask and dark pants, made him lie on the floor and threatened to shoot him.

The robber fled on foot after taking money from the cash register and the safe.

In a reported robbery Sunday, Marcellus Brinkley, 35, of 1622 David Ave. told police he was beaten and robbed of $70 about 4:30 p.m. by three men at a club in the 600-block of Idalou Road.

Brinkley said one of the men grabbed him when he tried to leave the club. The suspect allegedly beat Brinkley with a pipe while two other men held him. The victim said that he was knocked out, and when he regained consciousness the trio and his money were gone.

Brinkley was taken to Health Sciences Center Hospital where he was treated and released. Police were looking for two white men and a black man in connection with the incident.

More than $2,000 was reported stolen from the Bonanza Sirkoin Pit at 2101 Broadway between 11 p.m. Sunday and 12:30 a.m. today.

Ricky Roblas, the restaurant's assistant manager, said a money bag, containing $2,078.13 in cash and checks, was stolen from a desk drawer while employees prepared to close. No arrests had been made by early today in connection with the reported theft.

A house burglary netting $43,299 in stolen property, including a $20,000 diamond ring, was reported Sunday afternoon by Ted Carlos Fullerton of 5606 75th St.

Fullerton said burglars apparently entered his residence between Wednesday morning and 4:15 p.m. Sunday. Entry appeared to be gained by breaking out a bathroom window.

The reported loss included expensive garments, television sets, stereo equipment, jewelry and countless other household goods.

Robert L. Carrasco, 20, of 2212 Fifth St., No. 45, said he was playing football about 5 p.m. Sunday at the O.L. Slaton Junior High School playground when he got into a fight with a 25-year-old man which resulted in a gunfire.

Carrasco said that following the altercation, the Mexican-American suspect walked to his pickup, pulled out a .22-caliber pistol and shot at him six times, missing each time.

The man then got into his truck, according to reports, and tried to run over Carrasco. However, Carrasco ran to a nearby residence and the suspect drove off.

Matthews Evans Jr., 17, of 1713 E. First Place and Donald Earl Booker Jr., 18, of 1821 E. First Place told police they were in a supermarket parking lot about 4:45 p.m. Sunday when a car drove up and a black teen-ager jumped out with a .38-caliber revolver and said he was going to shoot them.

Evans and Booker said they ran to Booker's house and the car, containing three black suspects, ages 15, 16 and 17, followed. When the two men reached Booker's house, the three drove off, reports indicate.

The two men told police they had never before had trouble with the suspects, but said the youths were named as suspects in the recent murder of Booker's sister.

Tracy D. Calhoun of 1001 University Ave., No. 423-B, said he was gone from home between Wednesday morning and 8 p.m. Sunday when burglars entered his residence and stole $2,506 in stereo equipment and household goods.

About $1,300 in TV sets and guns were reported stolen at the 301 Guava Ave. residence of Mamie Mitchell. The woman said burglars apparently struck between Wednesday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Dennis James Elwood of 1802-D Elkhart told police he left home Saturday night and when he returned at 2:30 p.m. Sunday he discovered his place burglarized and $1,450 in stereo equipment stolen.

Musical instruments and equipment totaling $1,235 was the loss Thomas Eugene Pribyl of 1001 University Ave., No. 414-B, gave after his place was burglarized between 5 p.m. Wednesday and 10 p.m. Sunday.

A Lubbock woman told police she was raped in her car early Sunday by a man who threatened her with a knife.

The 22-year-old woman reported she was entering her vehicle at a Third Street address about 4:10 a.m. when a young, black man stuck an object in her back.

She said he told her it was a knife and that he ordered her into the car, according to police reports. The woman said the suspect drove to a dirt road, ordered her to remove her clothing and then raped her.

The man, who she said continually threatened to kill her, then told her to dress before driving to Fourth Street and Avenue X, where he got out of the car, thanked her and walked away.

The woman, who called police from a friend's house, was treated and released at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

She described her attacker as 20-25 years old, of medium height and thin. He was wearing a white cap, white coat and white trousers.

A Lubbock man remained in the county jail late Sunday on suspicion of aggravated robbery and aggravated assault.

The man is accused of cutting Earl Clanton Appleton on the face with a knife before taking his wristwatch, a bottle of whiskey and $69 in cash.

The 46-year-old Spur resident told police he was accosted by the suspect about 11:35 a.m. Sunday after leaving an establishment near 13th Street and Avenue H.

Appleton, who said he had met the man inside the business while buying some whiskey, reported the man followed him outside and attacked him with an open pocketknife.

Appleton said he resisted until he received a shallow cut on the right cheek. He then, on demand, turned over his wallet, watch and whiskey bottle to the suspect, who reportedly returned to the establishment.

According to reports, Appleton accompanied police into the establishment, where he identified the suspect as the man who attacked him.

Wick G. Wamboldt said the man was hit in the face by an unknown assailant while in the parking lot of a downtown nightclub about 2 a.m. Sunday. The 25-year-old man was treated at Health Sciences Center Hospital for a cut over his left eye and then released.

In burglaries reported Sunday, Ron Hernandez told officers unknown loot $800 worth of items, including a television, radio, CD and jewelry, from his 413 Vanda Ave. residence between Friday afternoon and late Saturday. Police reports show entry was gained through a broken bathroom window.

Tom E. Lock, senior vice president of Jack T's Music World, said an unknown number of guitars was stolen from that 2632 34th St. business. A police officer on patrol noticed a broken window and a light-colored pickup truck leaving the scene at a high rate of speed about 4:37 a.m. Sunday.

About $200 worth of stereo equipment was reported stolen by Jeff Holloman of 709 Ave. X. He told police a window pane was removed from an apartment room sometime Saturday evening and the equipment taken.

Plywood was reported taken in two separate incidents. Bill Duncan of Duncan Lumber Co. at 759 N. Ave. Q said $300 worth of the wood was stolen Saturday night after entry was gained by a pried door.

Gordon Dearing said $200 worth of plywood was taken from a duplex under construction at 3204 65th St.

Hotel Blaze Kills 10 Persons; Fire Officials Seeking Cause

GREECE, N.Y. (UPI) — As officials combed the charred ruins of a Holiday Inn in this Rochester suburb looking for the cause of a blaze which killed 10 persons, a controversy lingered as to whether an alarm system at the 15-year-old structure sounded at the time of the fire.

Besides the 10 dead, 34 persons, including four firefighters, were injured in the pre-dawn Sunday blaze at the three-story, 91-room, "L-shaped" building, which officials said passed a fire inspection Nov. 8.

Authorities said 13 guests who were reported as missing were all accounted for Sunday night. They said most of the 13 had gone to the homes of relatives and friends.

"I feel certain that it may very well be the worst fire we've ever had at a hotel," said Bill Goforth, vice president in charge of public relations for the hotel chain.

Goforth said no dollar estimate of the damage was available and the cause of the blaze, which began in a stairwell between the hotel's two wings, was being investigated.

Greece Police Chief Gerald Phelan identified seven of the dead as Margaret Duncan, 57, of Toronto; Pamela Sundue, 30, of Toronto; Huguette Sundue, 33, of Brampton, Ont.; Nancy Jean Garrett, 26, of Pompano Beach, Fla.; Joyce A. Plumb, 42, of Arlington, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Farley, no ages given, of Islington, Ontario.

Names of other victims were withheld pending notification of relatives.

Five of the 10 bodies were discovered on the second floor, about 10 feet from an exit.

"They were painfully close," Town Supervisor Donald Riley said.

Hotel officials said up to 200 people were registered and scores of other vacationers had lingered after the singles dance, which ended shortly before the fire broke out.

"There was nothing but screaming," said Fire Lt. Bud Phillips, who discovered the blaze on his way to a moonlighting job as a guard.

"A few people were yelling for help, but mostly it was just screams. I thought probably several persons would be killed, but I never thought it would be this bad."

Hotel barmaid Teresa Seitzinger told police she heard an alarm go off in the hotel. But some guests who escaped the flames claimed they never heard it.

"Somebody banged on our door at about 2:45 a.m. and yelled 'There's a fire,'" recalled Ann Hamelin, of Hamilton, Ont., who was part of a group of Canadians staying at the hotel during a holiday shopping spree.

"It was terrible. Why didn't we have a warning?" she asked. "Why wasn't there an alarm system?"

Fire Chief Kenneth Volkmar said the hotel was equipped with a local alarm box that "somebody had to physically pull."

"Some people said the alarm was ringing for some time," Volkmar said. "But we never did get a phone call."

Youngsters Offer Inflation Lessons

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Grownups confused by inflation might take a lesson from a group of elementary students in Oklahoma.

The students at St. John Elementary School recently were asked to write about what inflation means to them. The survey was initiated by a Bartlesville firm, TRW Reda Pump, for a company publication.

"I think inflation means that prices of things will go up," reasoned fourth-grader Mike DeBacher. "For instance: last year you could buy a hamster for one dollar — now $2.50."

"We are having trouble with inflation," wrote Christianne van der Lee. "Like when you blow up a balloon it gets bigger and bigger," added Kathy Abeyta.

"Once I went to one store to buy a ... model and it cost almost $2," wrote Joe Hromanik. "Then I went to another store and it only cost 97 cents."

And one earnest fourth-grader wrote that "inflation is the stuff you put in your attic and in the walls. It keeps you warm in the winter and cool in the summer."

Hotel officials said up to 200 people were registered and scores of other vacationers had lingered after the singles dance, which ended shortly before the fire broke out.

"There was nothing but screaming," said Fire Lt. Bud Phillips, who discovered the blaze on his way to a moonlighting job as a guard.

Brownsville Man Fights City Over New Building

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — In the spring of 1977 longtime Brownsville resident Ralph J. Friedmann noticed that someone was building something on a choice lot just off the expressway that leads into this border city.

Friedmann thought it curious that a corner lot that had been long vacant was

Pope Urges End To Oppression

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II has openly challenged the forces of religious oppression in a landmark speech that church observers said was aimed at the rulers of his native Poland and other Soviet-bloc countries.

The 58-year-old former Archbishop of Krakow, his voice loud and sometimes trembling with emotion, issued a powerful worldwide appeal Sunday for freedom of religion and human dignity.

John Paul, only 42 days into his historic papacy, told a crowd of more than 60,000 in St. Peter's Square many Roman Catholics were "condemned to death" for their faith.

"I think of all our brothers condemned to death, if not physically, civically, because they profess their faith," the pontiff said in his traditional Sunday noon address.

"I think of those persecuted because they are faithful to the real truth and the real justice," he said to thunderous applause.

Vatican observers said the strong-willed speech was the kind the Eastern bloc feared most from the former Cardinal Karol Wojtyla, who openly resisted Communist interference in Polish church affairs.

Although the pope made no direct reference to nations or governments, the observers said his pointed reference to "civic" persecution was aimed at religious harassment in Soviet-controlled countries.

"Let those who make the laws, govern the state and guard the peace reflect on the undaunted fortitude of Jesus on the cross," the pope said.

John Paul II, the first non-Italian to lead the world's 700 million Catholics in 455 years, spoke only Italian during the 20-minute speech.

"We must never forget our brothers who pay for their faith with condemnation, discrimination, suffering — even death," he said.

sprouting a building. What he found even more peculiar was that anyone would build on that land without contacting him. Friedmann, a 75-year-old auto mechanic, claims he owns the land.

And that "anyone" building there turned out to be the City of Brownsville. The Mexican-modern building was to be a tourist information center.

Now it looks as though the building might be whatever Friedmann wants it to be.

"His son came to me in May 1977," said local lawyer Reynaldo Garza, Jr. "He said, 'My dad owns some land out here and we wonder who's doing what and if they are doing it on our land.'"

Garza said at first he assumed that the building was not going up on the Friedmann property.

"I could not believe that a respectable entity such as the city would build a building on someone else's property," the lawyer said.

But he added that his research showed that was the case. Friedmann filed suit against the city — claiming the $85,000 building is on his land and therefore is his building.

"I want to be fair with them," Friedmann said on the porch swing of his modest frame home. "But I'm not going to give them the land. They've been so ornery about it that I'm going to make them pay through the nose."

The confusion about the land stems from a 1954 condemnation by which the state got an easement on Friedmann's property.

City attorney Gerald Zwernemann said the easement — when read in full — gives the state the right to use the land for road purposes. A tourist center, he argues, is a road purpose.

Not so, says Garza. He points out that the 1954 condemnation offered a specific list of uses for the easement. The final paragraph states the land could be used for "construction, laying out, reconstruction and widening" of the highway. The tourist center, claims Garza, is out of bounds.

Hence, he continues, the state has abandoned the easement by violating it.

"It's a constitutional question. You can't use a person's property without paying for it."

Zwernemann argues that Friedmann intentionally watched the building go up before complaining. But Garza says the city engineer was notified in the spring of 1977 shortly after site preparation began.

"As I understand it," Garza said, "the then city attorney was aware that Friedmann still owned the land. The district engineer told him not to worry about it. They went ahead based on an engineer's decision."

Zwernemann also claims that Friedmann was paid for the easement in 1954. Friedmann says he did get $10,000 for it, but Garza says the money was just for the road easement — not for a building.

Land in the area is now selling for up to $100,000 an acre.

The courts have granted an injunction preventing the city from completing or using the building until the litigation is settled.

"If the city wants to use the building," Garza said, "they should sit down and work out an agreement for it."

The city attorney said there had been talk of leasing the land and building from Friedmann.

"But there's no way the commissioners are going to pay $800 per month for something they just bought for $85,000," Zwernemann said.

So the stalemate remains and the weeds are sprouting around the almost completed white building.

"If he can show that the state violated the condemnation then he has a gold mine there," Zwernemann said.

What might Friedmann use the building for?

"It kind of looks like a taco stand to me," the city attorney said sarcastically.

DR. LAMB

Painless Heart Attacks

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like some information on a blocked artery to my heart on the left side. My doctor found that I had a blockage a few months ago when I had an electrocardiogram. I've never had any pain or sign of any heart problem.

I am 70 years old, I am 5 feet 5 and weigh 125 pounds, I feel fine.

I am now taking Persantine. My blood pressure has been real good so far, only 134/76. My doctor didn't say I should be on any strict diet but just to cut out the fats and avoid egg yolks and use low-fat milk. I have eaten an egg each morning as long as I can remember and my breakfast isn't complete without it. I wonder if I should have one of your Health Letters on what I should and shouldn't eat. I have been tested for cholesterol and it's O.K.

DEAR READER — It's pretty hard to be certain that a person has a blocked artery on the basis of changes in the electrocardiogram alone. Sometimes the wave patterns that doctors see on an electrocardiogram which resemble an old heart attack can be caused by other things as well.

This is always a difficult problem for the doctor when such a pattern shows up in a person like you, who has no history of any pain or, as you say, no sign of heart problems. I can tell you, though, that a third of the heart attacks that occur are painless or at least they have caused so few symptoms that a person doesn't even recognize that anything serious has happened to him.

In your age group, you undoubtedly do have some changes in your arteries and it is prudent of your doctor to manage you along those lines. The Persantine that you are taking is an unusual medicine in that it helps to increase the oxygen supply to the heart muscle without increasing the circulation to the whole body or increasing the work the heart does.

It's commonly used in patients that need increased oxygen to the heart muscle, for example, for those who have chest pains from the heart associated with exercise.

Your very normal blood pressure is a good sign. I am also happy to hear that your blood cholesterol is normal. All of these things suggest that there is a limited amount of steps that should be taken in your case simply because of an electrocardiogram finding.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet Preventing Atherosclerosis. It will provide you some general guidelines on what you can do about your diet to help prevent the buildup of fatty cholesterol deposits.

Other readers who want this issue may send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. You can eat a good normal healthy diet this way and still avoid the excess fats.

Noting your liking for eggs, might I suggest you try one of the egg substitutes that you can buy which contains no cholesterol at all, if you still want the taste of eggs for breakfast and want to limit your cholesterol intake.

Other than the general guidelines that your doctor has given you, as long as you feel healthy and are able to be active, you should continue to do so without being too concerned over your health.

Clements Attends GOP Conference

By MILLER BONNER
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Bill Clements could afford to relax and engage in some gentle ribbing during the opening day of the 10th annual Republican Governors' Association Conference. "I brought a little crow with me," he jokingly told a national political columnist who had predicted a Clements defeat at the hands of Democrat John Hill earlier this month. Clements' victory ended a 104-year-old Democratic stay in the governor's mansion. Clements and his wife, Rita, made their formal debut as Texas governor-elect and first lady-to-be during a Sunday night reception that was also attended by two of their famous Virginia neighbors — Senator-elect John Warner and his wife, actress Elizabeth Taylor, plump but still alluring. Clements' Virginia estate, Wexford, which was built for John F. Kennedy in the early 1960s, is bordered on three sides by the Warner country home. Clements used this historic setting of colonial Williamsburg to continue his attack on President Carter. "I made an issue of Mr. Carter during my election and I plan to continue making an issue of him," said Clements. "His policies are clearly not in the best interest of Texas." Clements joined 16 other governors or governors-elect in Williamsburg for three days of conferences on subjects ranging from taxes and finances to staff and office organization. But as the conference's host, Virginia Gov. John Dalton, noted: "I'm sure the 1980 presidential race will come up in some of the conversations." Among those being mentioned as possible GOP presidential prospects in attendance are Illinois Gov. Jim Thompson and Howard Baker of Tennessee, the Senate minority leader. Among the possible candidates absent, however, were Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan as well as two Texans often mentioned as could-be candidates — former Gov. John Connally and former Republican National Committee Chairman George Bush. Both Reagan and Ford were sent "special invitations" to attend the conference but both declined due to prior commitments, said Ralph Griffith, the Republican Governors' Association's executive director. Connally received one of approximately 1,000 invitations addressed to "friends of the RGA" but also declined, citing a previous commitment, and Bush was not invited, added Griffith. Clements joined his counterparts in remaining noncommittal as to any 1980 plans. "I don't know who our candidate will be but I'm sure I will support him," he said before attending a reception. As to his triumph over Hill, Clements said: "I don't want to oversimplify my election. We cut across a lot of lines. ... There's not enough Republicans in Texas to elect me. A lot of independents voted for me."

Film Offers New JFK Evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — A film technician contends that a seven-second strip of color film taken minutes before the John F. Kennedy assassination is "important new evidence" showing more than one person was responsible for the president's death. Technician Robert Groden of Hope Lawn, N.J., who performed "photo-enhancement" on the film, enlarging individual frames to more than 1,000 times their original size, was present Sunday when a group called the Assassination Information Bureau screened the film for representatives of the media. The bureau consists of critics of the official Warren Commission, which concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone when he shot Kennedy from a sixth-floor window of the Texas School Book Depository on Nov. 22, 1963. Groden said the film "is proof and important new evidence that someone else was on the sixth floor and that witnesses who said then (in 1963) they saw someone other than Oswald are not crazy." The double window on the sixth floor of the depository can be seen in a corner of the tiny film frames. The Dallas Morning News published a nine-frame sequence of copyright pictures in its Sunday editions. In each of the frames, a faint, light-colored area in the left side of the window changes shape from frame to frame, while a similar area in the right portion of the window remains nearly stationary. "There is another person moving in the next set of windows," Groden told The Associated Press. "He (the figure) is wearing a bright red shirt. Another figure appears to be wearing brownish-tannish or olive shirt. It's difficult to tell because the windows are dirty. I can make out figures moving simultaneously in both sets of windows." The film was taken by Charles L. Bronson of Ada, Okla. Bronson's film was viewed by FBI agents in 1963 but was deemed unclear for identification purposes. Groden also enhanced the famed Zapruder film, which showed Kennedy being shot.

He has testified before and been paid as a consultant by the House Select Committee on Assassinations. It was not clear, however, whether the Bronson film would be considered by the committee, which is due to go out of existence in five weeks.

Woman's Relatives Attack With Teeth

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Rather than dog bites man, it was woman bites woman. Bertha Vivar Rojas, a worker of the Institutional Revolutionary Party, said she was walking down the street in Ciudad Nezahualcoyotl, a Mexico City suburb, when seven women attacked her, hitting her, scratching her face and biting her arms. Three of the assailants who were arrested said they were relatives of the woman and that she was spreading gossip about their personal lives, authorities said.

A.—Four hearts. You have almost no defensive strength, but you have a very useful hand in playing tricks. This bid also has preemptive value—it seems that the opponents own the spade suit, and you must endeavor to shut them out of the auction.

What action do you take?
A.—Bid five hearts. Even though partner is surely short in spades, odds are that one of the defenders might also have a singleton, so your hand is bound to be a disappointment to partner defensively. On the other hand, you need little more than six hearts headed by the king in partner's hand to make five hearts a virtual certainty. This is one case where it is clearly right

BLUE CHEESE BLEND

Our latest version of a worthwhile spread.

8-oz. pkg. cream cheese, cut into 8 chunks
8-oz. wedge Blue cheese, cut into 8 chunks
½ stick (½ cup) butter, cut into 4 pats
2 tbsps. cognac or other brandy

In an electric food processor, with the metal blade in place, process the cream cheese until soft and fluffy. Through the feed tube, with the processor turned on, gradually add the blue cheese, butter pats and cognac and process until blended. Makes 2½ cups. Pack into 2 small jars or crocks and cover tightly. Chill until firm before serving. Keep stored in the refrigerator. The spread tastes best when the flavors are allowed to blend and develop for several days or a week.

The Slim Gourmet

Grace never touches "junk food." Herbie limits himself to "three square meals." Lisa never takes "second helpings." But all are overeaters.

You can tell because they're overweight... the ultimate symptom! Overeating is consuming more calories than your body can use. The excess calories are stored on the body: Overweight!

There are two main types of overeaters: Big Eaters (too much) and Bad Eaters (the wrong thing). The Bad Eaters know who they are: snack-snitchers, sugar junkies and fast-food freaks. Big Eaters rarely recognize themselves. They may eat wisely, but too well, and pile on pounds from too much of a good thing. The Caloric Bottom Line still adds up to overweight.

Big eating tends to run in families. Surrounded by other plate-fillers, the Big Eater tends to take the family eating habits as the norm. When outsiders leave food on their plates, the Big Eater assumes they don't care for it. It rarely occurs to the Big Eater that others eat less.

Big eating is more habit than hunger. Differing from the Bad Eaters who are always hungry because junk food doesn't satisfy, the Big Eater could easily eat less without suffering discomfort.

Are you a Big Eater? Here's some food for thought:

THE GROANING BOARD — If you, or the person who cooks, continually overprepares for every meal — a few extra chops, more noodles "just in case" — everyone at the table is encouraged to overeat. The cook can save time, trouble, money and waistlines by preparing only what's needed: one serving of everything per person per meal.

SECOND HELPINGS — The "help-yourself" style of serving — putting big bowls of everything in the middle of the table — encourages overeaters to overdo. (Big Eaters take small helpings, lots of them, and lose count!) Better to fill the plates in the kitchen and take them to the dining table. A plateful of food is psychologically more satisfying, and saves dishwashing!

"PORTION CONTROL" — What is a "serving," anyhow? Avoiding seconds does no good if your "serving" already includes a second helping and a half! According to federal standards, a food serving is a half-cupful or 100 grams (3½ ounces). In other words, a half-cup of mashed potatoes or a "quarter-pounder" hamburger before cooking. Canned and frozen foods, grocery items, airline meals and cafeterias adhere to those standards. (Don't be misled by restaurant meals and cookbook portions. Restaurant portions are purposely overgenerous so that even the most gluttonous patron will feel he's gotten his money's worth!)

AVOIDING "WAIST" — Avoid waste when you're in charge of the cooking and serving, but when meals are outside your control, don't feel that you have to clean your plate just because somebody else overfilled it. Before you begin a meal make a mental decision about the quantity you intend to eat. And whatever is left is... leftovers!

OBSERVE THE SPEED LIMIT — Big Eaters tend to be fast eaters. It only stands to reason that the fastest fork puts away the most calories. Slow down! Opt for foods that require sipping, picking and chewing: hot soups, corn on the cob, crunchy salads, meat on the bone. Savor at a leisurely pace. Delight in the tastes and textures, the subtle nuances of flavors. Don't be the first one finished; that tempts to second helpings. And don't let a tableful of speed eaters rush you through every meal. Take your own sweet time and be the thinnest one in the bunch.

Lose pounds the painless way! For five days of delicious dining, plus diet tips and recipes, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents to THE SLIM GOURMET DIET, in care of this newspaper, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you said it was all right for a girl to let a guy know she liked him and wanted to see him again. You said it would save time, and do away with a lot of game-playing.

My son disagrees with you. He is a flight attendant with a big airline and he says he's turned off by women who are forward. He claims that men still like to do the courting, but lately they don't have a chance because women's libbers have made women so aggressive.

I must say that I agree with my son, Abby. When I was a girl my mother never allowed me to call up a boy, and I always had more dates than I could handle.

I told my son how it was in the "olden days" when I was dating, and he said, "It's too bad it's not like that today. It would be much more romantic."

Just thought you'd like to hear about a young man who prefers an old-fashioned girl.

MOM

Dear Mom: If it works for him, fine. But my mail indicated that most men prefer women who aren't ashamed to make the first move rather than those who use the old laid-back, catch-me-if-you-can technique. Read on.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for the terrific column suggesting how a decent woman can meet a decent man.

You're absolutely right about evening classes. They are usually loaded with single guys who want to get ahead and at the same time are trying to fill up some of their free time.

But your final suggestion — that girls might make the first move if they really dig a guy — is probably the best advice you ever gave.

You'd be amazed at how many men are still smarting from a rejection they received six months ago. (Most men are reluctant to come on to a girl because they're afraid they'll be turned down.) I know from experience that the average man would be thrilled if a woman took the initiative and let him know she'd like to see him again.

Thanks, Abby, for telling girls that men appreciate honesty and that playing hard-to-get is passe.

Your letter was just what I needed to get me in the mood to start looking for a girl again. I had just about given up.

ERIK

Dear Abby: I have a question and I don't know where to find the answer. Could you ask your experts about it?

Is it true that many homosexuals become that way after being seduced by older adults when they were young and impressionable? (I'm not the only one who would like to know.)

J.L.

Dear J.L.: My experts agree that homosexuals are born — not made.

Here's a letter from a reader that will break your heart. A young mother of two in Navarre, Ohio, writes: "I heard you had a column on coat hangers that multiplied shamelessly in your closet. You assumed everyone else had this problem. I don't. Mine not only refuse to breed, but they are on their way to becoming extinct. Is it possible my coat hangers have been altered or my closet isn't providing the perfect conditions for breeding? Please reply soon as I am running out of coat hangers and would like to start breeding as soon as possible. — Amy"

Boy, some of us don't know how lucky we are until we read something like that. Naturally, I cannot be too explicit in a newspaper column that could fall in the hands of children, but I will try to give you a crash course on the hanger's reproduction cycle.

Obviously, you must have a male and a female hanger (they know who they are) and then you must set the proper atmosphere for reproduction. Place them in a dark closet. Don't crowd them. Don't overload them. Don't rush them. Don't watch them.

Hangers generally set their own gestation period. For some reason, the ugly ones multiply at a faster rate. Like the ones with the rolled cardboard that bend in half when you hang a belt on them. Or the cheap metal ones that have the rigidity of cooked spaghetti.

There have only been six births reported of the fancy wooden ones that hold trousers and a suit coat. (Two in a closet in Venezuela, three in a cloak room in Paris, and one in a garment bag jammed in a rack on the Concorde enroute to London.)

When you are expecting guests, they tend to become frigid. When you try to bundle them up and pack them off, they lock themselves together in a unified act of defiance.

Hotels limit their sex life by literally shackling them to the rod so they can't be stolen by guests to take home and breed.

There are a few anti-hanger proponents who want to get the hanger population down to zero. Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I say God never gives you more hangers than you can handle. Besides, this little group of over-sexed nomads never hurt anyone. They don't use up air, water or energy. All they do is hang around a dark closet all day and snicker.

Grape Bars Provide Nutritious Snacks

NEW YORK (Special) — Find tasty and nutritious foods to pack in your child's school lunch is an ongoing challenge. You have no way to be sure your child is eating the foods you pack or that he is getting the nutritional requirements he needs.

Grape bars are a delicious and nutritious lunchtime addition your child will certainly enjoy. They are made with dates, apricots, orange juice, oatmeal and concord grape jelly. Grape bars are easy to make and travel well. Concord grape jelly makes these bars extra special. So don't be surprised if your child comes home and tells you his friends wish their mothers packed Grape bars for lunch.

GRAPE BARS

- 1 pkg. (8 ozs.) pitted dates
- 1 cup chopped dried apricots
- 1/2 cup concord grape jelly
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
- 1 1/2 cups unsifted flour
- 1/2 tsp baking soda
- 1/2 tsp salt
- 1/2 cup softened butter or margarine
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 1/2 cups raw quick-cooking oatmeal

In a small saucepan, combine dates, apricots, concord grape jelly, and orange juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened (about 5 minutes). Remove from heat, stir in walnuts. Cool.

Sift flour, soda and salt; set aside. Cream butter and brown sugar until light and fluffy. Add flour mixture and oatmeal. Mix well with hands until blended thoroughly.

Press half of oatmeal mixture into lightly greased 9-inch square baking pan. Spread with filling. Cover with remaining oatmeal mixture; press lightly with hands. Bake 30 minutes, or until golden at 375 degree F. Cool slightly. Cut into bars while warm.

AUTUMN MOLD

Prepare 1 package (3 oz.) orange flavor gelatin according to package directions, using pear syrup from a 16 oz. can pears in place of part of water. Chill until partially set. Fold in diced pears, 1/4 cup halved green grapes and 1/4 cup chopped pecans. Pour into oiled 1-quart mold and chill until set. Unmold on crisp greens. Makes four to six servings.

Renovation Experts Encourage Tile Use In Fireplace Revival

By LIS KING

Metro Newspaper Feature Service
More than ever, home is where the hearth is. It's such a wonderful antidote to today's hurried pace, it's a flattering feature for any room, and it'll help keep a room warm — without turning up the thermostat.

But what happens when you move into a home with a fireplace that isn't quite the style you'd like? Can you remodel a fireplace without a major expenditure?

The Tile Council of America says, "Yes, you can," and offers some specific ideas:

Remember that ceramic tile is created by firing in red hot kilns, so it stands to reason that this material is perfect for fireplace remodeling. Another fact to remember: you can install tile on any surface that's sound, dry and smooth. This even includes metal and existing tile.

A row of handsome, decorated tile around the fireplace opening may be just what you need to give it that special character. How about a blue Delft-type tile or a sampler motif for a country room? And think of a medallion or stylized floral theme if your room is on the formal side.

Ceramic mosaics set in a checkered pattern or a sculptured tile that casts intriguing light and shadow patterns are among the hundreds of other possibilities offered by today's fashion tile.

Think of a tile inset in the floor in front of the fireplace, perhaps to match the tile around the fireplace opening. This will add to the decorative power of the fireplace, and makes a lot of sense, too, for flying sparks can't hurt tile, and it's the easiest of all materials to keep soot-free.

If the fireplace is entirely too traditional for your taste, remove the mantel, and replace with a clean sweep of tile from floor to ceiling. Sculptured tile gives a particularly attractive contemporary look.

Assassinations Committee Turns Many Stones

By MIKE SHANAHAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Assassinations Committee is a handy target for those who ask, "Who needs it?" The committee has spent $5 million in over a year and a half to investigate the killings of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. That's enough to cause a gasp.

What have taxpayers gotten for their money?

Certainly, the committee and its 115-member staff have found no one to post alongside Lee Harvey Oswald as accused assassin of Kennedy or James Earl Ray as King's accused killer.

But, except for a moment the contention that a significant number of people never believed that Oswald or Ray acted alone — if only because those people considered previous investigations, including the work of the Warren Commission, to have been flawed.

Because of that, the committee's work might be considered worthwhile — for what it was not able to prove. In that light, the panel's investigation might one day be praised and viewed as a model for such probes in the future.

Committee counsel G. Robert Blakey, an authority on organized crime, sent his investigators down conspiracy avenues never thought of by the FBI or by any other police agency or commission.

In all, the committee staff interviewed about 4,000 persons in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Great Britain, many never were questioned by the FBI.

In addition, the committee issued 400 subpoenas for other testimony and for documents.

The investigation turned up no CIA or Cuban plot to kill Kennedy or no secret

unresolved bank robbery in Alton, Ill., more thoroughly than the FBI.

The robbery investigation alone gave reason to believe that Ray financed his flight from such proceeds — and not from some payoff by a government agent, the Ku Klux Klan or anyone else.

In analyzing Ray's finances, the committee painstakingly identified Ray's lodgings for 337 of the 405 nights from the time he escaped the Missouri State Prison until his arrest at London's Heathrow Airport in July 1968.

Success in that effort is especially remarkable because Ray was a vagabond who skipped from one cheap rooming house to another in cities all around the country.

To find out whether Ray or his family had any unexplained income or expenditures, the committee obtained records from 246 banks in six cities.

The committee also compiled a list of 663 persons Ray might have contacted in the months before the April 4, 1968, assassination.

To explore any potential FBI connection to King's death, committee investigators compared the possible Ray associates with all known FBI informants, and in fact found three who appeared on both lists.

But none of the three provided any indication that the FBI played a direct or indirect role in King's murder.

If there had been FBI involvement, the committee almost certainly would have found it.

Analysis

FBI plan to eliminate King. That, in fact, might be its value.

In the King case, the committee discovered evidence directly contradicting Ray's account of where he was on the day of the assassination, as well as on the days before and after.

With all its resources, the FBI never established a motive in the King killing, a failing which left skeptics free to speculate about what might have been behind it.

But committee investigators established a link, albeit circumstantial, between $50,000 offered by two St. Louis businessmen and Ray, whose brother John ran a bar frequented by one of the businessmen.

The committee detailed a history of crime among the Ray brothers — James Earl, John and Jerry. It also examined an unresolved bank robbery in Alton, Ill., more thoroughly than the FBI.

The robbery investigation alone gave reason to believe that Ray financed his flight from such proceeds — and not from some payoff by a government agent, the Ku Klux Klan or anyone else.

New Play Fails

To Establish Proper Mood

By MARY CAMPBELL
NEW YORK (AP) — "Drinks Before Dinner" is a play with wrappings brighter than what's in the dramatic package.

It was written by E.L. Doctorow, who wrote the best-selling novel "Ragtime." It was directed by Mike Nichols and stars Christopher Plummer. The production by Joseph Papp is in the Newman Theater of the off-Broadway Public Theater.

The play talks about whether or not we're on the brink of the end of the world, and its mood is menacing. Both the discussion and the mood — especially the mood — are a bit lacking.

Plummer, one of eight persons assembled for a dinner party in an ultramodern New York apartment, is "inconsolable" at feeling interchangeable with everybody else. He pulls a gun on the rest of the guests and the hosts, their two children and their maid.

The guest of honor, the U.S. secretary of state, is tied in a chair. He and Plummer discuss whether the reason for de-personalization is that the world is near its end. This kind of thing has been done better in other plays, for instance in the play "Savages," in which a South American revolutionary holds a U.S. businessman for ransom and they talk ideologies.

Doctorow has written literary lines and a stylized situation. Plummer does make it seem naturalistic. He's believable, an intellectual who wants to discuss more than trivia over cocktails but who is around the bend enough to point a gun.

The other actors aren't as good as Plummer. The women have an especially hard time. Barbara eda-Young forces hysteria. Zohra Lampert and Maria Tucci can hardly get their mouths around their words, let alone find any rhythm for the sentences. Charles Kimbrough fares better, making a character of the pedantic host.

The play is interesting. It just isn't as interesting as you might expect when you first read the credits in the program.

Fashions Aid

Pickpockets

CHICAGO (UPI) — Being dressed in the latest fashion may please a woman but may please a pickpocket even more, a police official says.

"Pickpockets love the new women's fashions," says L.I. Bernard O'Reilly, who heads the tactical unit that covers the downtown area.

He is critical of the bulky layered look and wide sleeves. He also objects to the way many women wear shoulder strap bags.

Shoulder strap bags dangling behind women make it easy for pickpockets to get into them and steal wallets, O'Reilly said.

"Also, this style of layering clothes — sweater on top of sweater — may be a nice warm way to dress but pickpockets rely on a light touch so that the victim does not feel anyone reaching into her purse," O'Reilly said. "All this clothing makes the victim insensitive to the touch."

"And then there's the new coat style with those sleeves — must have yards and yards of material in the sleeves alone. Most women can't even see their purse — it's covered by the sleeves. What's more, they can't feel or see anyone reaching into the purse."

Strange Tests Check Safety

By ED LION
CHICAGO (UPI)—Scientists slam telephone poles into walls, hurl rubble at explosives and torch rooms in the name of safety and efficiency at IIT Research Institute.

"You can learn a lot from these destructive tests," said Hyla Napadensky, manager of Fire and Safety Research. "It's essential to safety and cost minimization."

The Chicago-based institute operates an explosives range on a remote parcel of land near La Porte, Ind., where it has a massive $300,000 airgun — called by one researcher "the biggest BB gun in the world."

The airgun, which can be fitted with a 12-inch barrel, hurls full-sized telephone poles, huge chunks of concrete, brick or rubble into test walls at speeds up to 300 mph.

Mrs. Napadensky, who admitted she didn't know much about guns — much less explosives — when she started her job, said the testing helps in determining the safety of nuclear power plant walls, munitions dumps or factory lay-outs.

"Sometimes this is the only way their safety can really be tested," she said.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has stiff requirements for nuclear power plants, including walls capable of withstanding tornado-borne telephone poles slammed into them at high speeds.

"It can be hard to calculate with pencil and paper," said A. Longinow, an IIT structural engineer, explaining why actual telephone pole-hurling is done in some cases.

Researchers, under contract to private industry or the government, also use the airgun to propel chunks of rock or "manufactured" rubble at torpedoes, shells or explosive materials that might be used in a plant, Mrs. Napadensky said.

"We try to see whether they would explode if the wall near them is blasted and they are hit by flying debris. We want to see if it would create a ripple effect and cause a whole plant or storage facility to blow up."

At a fire laboratory in Gary, Ind. — complete with movable walls so simulated warehouses and room situations can be set up — IIT researchers set fires to test smoke detectors and detector placement and study the effect fire will have on certain materials.

The researchers use computer models drawn from background data to explore such problems as how fast an urban fire would spread after a nuclear blast, where debris would be hurled in the path of a tornado and the intensity of a shock wave and explosion unleashed by oil tanker or railroad accident.

They also have torched mobile home mock-ups to test their insulation and started fires in damaged houses to see how quickly fire would spread after a nuclear-powered blast and shock wave. Homes slated for demolition are used for tests.

Longinow presently is working on a project for the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency to learn how much nuclear blast pressure a residential floor and basement will withstand and see if it would make an effective shelter. It will involve collapsing the ground floor under weight, he said.

IIT researchers said the blasting and torch-setting is a serious, expensive business.

"Tests can cost $200 to $10,000 each," Mrs. Napadensky said. "You have to do a lot of planning. The test may take a microsecond, but there may be weeks or months of preparation."

The tests, she said, can save up to millions of dollars and possibly lives.

Takeovers Popular On Wall Street

By MARK POTTS
NEW YORK (AP)—Takeovers are the current rage in the corporate world — and they're pretty popular on Wall Street as well.

Tender offers have been flying right and left the past couple of years, and many investors have found they can benefit from a corporate acquisition almost as much as the companies involved.

"Acquisition potentials still buoy individual stocks," Eldon A. Grimm, an analyst at Birr, Wilson & Co., wrote in a recent issue of his market letter.

P.R. Mallory, for example, was selling at $29 when Dart Industries made a 46-per-share offer for the battery maker. The price of the stock promptly skyrocketed, so much that Mallory held out for a higher offer.

Dart raised the offer to $51 a share, Mallory accepted, and Mallory's stock is now trading at about that level — quite a profit for investors that got in at the time of the original offer.

Similarly, National Airlines, the object of a merger battle between Texas International Airlines and Pan American World Airways, is up to about $30 a share, still well below Pan Am's $41 a share offer, but comfortably above the $18 a share National was selling at before the merger negotiations began.

Investors can turn profits on takeover deals in two ways.

First, they can often gain just by holding stock in a company that happens to become the target of an acquisition.

When (and if) the deal is consummated, the acquiring company buys the outstanding shares of the other firm for whatever the agreed upon price is, in cash or stock.

The alternative is for an investor to get in at the ground floor of a merger, just after an offer is announced. The profit won't be as big as it would be if you were there before the offer was announced, but it could still be sizeable.

This opens up several speculative opportunities. One is to cast about for stocks that might soon be the subject of a takeover. Grimm likes food and energy stocks, two areas of great acquisitive activity in the past year. Other candidates are stocks whose price seems lower than their worth — some analysts estimate National Airlines could be worth close to $60 a share, and labeled it ripe for takeover before Texas International and Pan Am got involved.

Or, an investor could get aboard a merger deal that looks doomed to failure — and get out when the getting's good. These are a lot harder to pick. Takeover bids fail because of government or legal disapproval or a sudden shift in economic condition. Crane Co., for example, just dropped an offer for Medusa Corp., citing rising interest rates and other unfavorable economic factors. Crane plans, however, to make a new offer.

The best bet for an investor looking for a good ride in the takeover game is one in which two companies are battling for control of a third company. If both suitors get into the game with enough fervor, the result could be offers and counter-offers sufficient to drive the price of the stock up to near-ridiculous heights.

One good example of competing takeover offers occurred last year, when acquisition-happy United Technologies Corp. made a $42 a share bid for Babcock & Wilcox Co., which was then selling at $35.

Babcock & Wilcox, unhappy with what UTC was offering, found an alternative suitor in J. Ray McDermott Co. The ensuing battle lasted five months and several counteroffers, with McDermott eventually winning the battle at $66 a share.

But, as Grimm pointed out, "not all deals have been smooth sailing."

Attendance Invited At Dec. 3 Abernathy Floral Open House

"Abernathy Floral cordially invites your attendance at its second annual Christmas Open House on Sunday, Dec. 3, from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. at its shop, 1312 Ave. D, in Abernathy. Come in, browse, and enjoy an afternoon at a most unique shop, where the stock is largest yet. Refreshments will be served."

A most comprehensive and selective stock of gift items (including many that are new and some exclusive in the area to this shop), flowers and floral accessories and a multitude of services mark the long-established (about 30 years) Abernathy business that serves a wide South Plains area.

Owner and active operator is Jan Hill, formerly teacher for eight years in the Abernathy schools. She is ably assisted in the operation by former owner Dorothy Stephens and by Lupe Hernandez. Abernathy Floral, phone 29-2334 member of both FTD and AFS for maximum customer convenience.

Serves Area
 Listing of the multiple services and products would be impossible, but it is intended that the following "high points" will correctly indicate how very much this area business can do for you, whether a resident of Lubbock, Abernathy, New Deal or elsewhere in the near region.

Serving Lubbock and surrounding area with cut flowers, green plants, hanging baskets, wedding service and more, only $1 delivery fee is charged within the area.

Gifts, Floral Needs
 It is a complete floral and gift shop, with even art supplies stocked including the Grumbacher paints and canvas; and Robert Simmons brushes.

So many items are appropriate for holiday decor use and for gifting.

There are the Oneida silver and gold tree ornaments, Kelvin collector dolls, and Fenton handmade glass.

And many, many wooden accessories for the home, driftwood and Windsor wood flowers, too.

New To Region

New to the shop is the Brass by Cass butterflies, exclusive in the area at Abernathy Floral.

There are Gorham musical moppets including the drummer boy, also mood lights, and Root candles with the scent melted into the candle for aroma regardless if the candle is burning.

Pottery and china, Oneida and Sten-ware. Lots of baby items, brass work and those delightful Sesame Street banks and Christmas tree ornaments.

And even more stocking stuffers. Abernathy Floral is "Dirty Kids" headquarters with these products very popular.

Wedding service includes the flower wedding line from Regency (invitation, thank you notes, birth, social and party announcements, etc.), and rental of crystal cups and plates for receptions and showers, silver service, table cloths and even tables.

Then, in the sales items there is Nori-take china, casual dishes and stemware, and other respected lines including Ver-noreware, Poppy Trail, Fitz & Floyd, Villero & Bock, and Imperial.

What a selection... what a shop! And what better time than the Christmas Open House, Dec. 3, remember, from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m., is there for making or renewing acquaintance at this shop with its holiday atmosphere all year long?

Hallie's Thrift Shoppe Assures Fashion Values

Are wardrobe expenditures being sacrificed for other needs of the season?

Is your clothing budget less than desired and needed?

Your answer to either likely will focus attention on a ready and sensible solution... recognition of Hallie's Thrift Shoppe as a great place to trade and save.

Hallie's has a very good selection of holiday wear at this time... including formals and fashionable coats.

Hallie's Thrift Shoppe, 3510 Ave. Q, can appreciably aid the fashion need and the economy need "for you, too" in every season of the year.

It's a reality: One can beat inflation, beat the rising apparel costs, by depending upon Hallie's Thrift Shoppe for the right apparel at lowest prices.

At Hallie's Thrift Shoppe there is lots of new merchandise plus consignment items that are strictly "first class" that can be a smart solution to the wardrobe budget.

With the seasonal expenses now present, and with the increased costs at every hand, it is exciting to find a firm that can greatly reduce some of this cash outlay.

One can dress smartly for every season, and at a cost "that can be lived with," thanks to Hallie's Thrift Shoppe's full selection and unique business concept. Hallie's, primarily a resale shop for better merchandise, has been at its present 3510 Ave. Q location (with off-street parking) more than four years, with another operator Hallie Payne formerly at another Avenue Q location for five years. The exceptional stock, attractively displayed with plenty of room for selection and fitting, involves top quality new and nearly new formal wear, school and street wear, etc.

There are clothes for the entire family (sold on consignment) and the prices are most appealing.

"If you have items suitable for consignment, call Hallie's at 744-6772 for appointment and arrangements."

Though a wide stock is on hand, Hallie's at the present especially solicits consignments of top quality and fashionable long dresses and men's wear.

New merchandise from area stores also is stocked by Hallie's.

Easy off-street parking at both front and rear is just one of the conveniences at Hallie's Thrift Shoppe.

'TIS A JEWELRY STORE YOU'LL APPRECIATE' — Powers Jewelry in Wolfforth works hard at proving a drive there worthwhile with full attention to sensible cost, quality stock, and service capabilities. Shown is the genial owner, Melvin Powers, and daughter Lisa Powers, assisting customer Richard Borun.

Powers Jewelry, In Wolfforth, Tells 'Short Drive Will Save'

"Powers Jewelry, in Wolfforth, makes the short drive there most, most worthwhile!" Located just a block west of the school on Main in Wolfforth, Powers Jewelry probably is best known for its watch repair ability and specials. (Check the Powers ad in this section for eye-opener repair specials.) Especially in this pre-Christmas season, one should not overlook the other benefits of Powers Jewelry... such as the selection of "wanted" items and names to trust.

Great For Gifts
Select from Waltham, Elgin, Midas and Timex watches (Armed pocket watches, too). And Cross pens and pencils, Art Carved class rings, Speidel bands, and more.

Special orders are taken on Seth Thomas grandfather clocks, and if one hurries, delivery can be made before Christmas. Also select from the in-store stock of jewelry boxes, trophies, plaques, Win and Chrysler lighters, solid gold serpentine chains (14k and gold filled). Engraving is available.

Custom jewelry work is expertly done, including diamond setting.

School Rings
Class rings, including those for Texas Tech and any area school, can be ordered.

Complete clock repair is a service, as is the watch repair.

Powers Jewelry is essentially a family operation, with Melvin Powers as owner of the Jewelry and the adjacent Wolfforth Barber Shop. Melvin is a former resident of Slaton, moving to New Mexico some 30 years ago where he managed the Furrs jewelry department in Albuquerque.

Returning to the South Plains, he opened the Wolfforth jewelry establishment just over two years ago. Reception to his type of service and products has been most gratifying. Folks seem to appreciate friendly service and prices that invite comparison!

Powers is assisted in the jewelry by his wife, Bonnie, and daughter, Lisa, a cheerleader in the Wolfforth Schools; and by Dawn Hutcherson, a South Plains College student.

Powers Jewelry is open from 9 until 6, Mondays through Saturdays. Both Master Charge and Visa purchases are welcomed.

"Let us prove that a short drive will save a lot, whether the need is watch or clock repair, or selection from a quality line of jewelry items great for Christmas giving. Come out and renew acquaintance or become acquainted for the first time."

White's Tot Shop Selection, Stock Seen As Largest Ever

White's Tot Shop, in Indiana Gardens, 3410 34th St., not only has the largest stock in its history, but Christmas holiday shopping there is made even more inviting by the White's policy of free gift wrap on all purchases!

The selection at White's is exceptionally large, making it most rewarding and fun to shop for infants and toddler boys wear or girls wear in infant through 6X.

For gift items, for dress-up, sports wear, play clothes, sleep wear, and even "pin-ups" to decorate and tidy up the nursery, White's Tot Shop presents a stock that is new and "just right" for the season.

There are layettes and accessories including mobiles, lamps, ditty bags, even cuddly toys.

Prestigious lines are noted, including new ones that are added from time to time.

'Lines You Like'
Note the new Mayfair sports wear for little girls, sleepwear by J.C. the Martha Miniatures, Reed's World dress line, Bryan, Jill Lynn, Cinderella C.I. Castro dresses; Polly Flinders dresses; Renzo Knits, Allegheny Knit, Toddler Tyke for boys; Baby Gro sleepwear, Chandler sportswear, Health Tex for both boys and girls, and other appreciated lines, all of unquestioned quality and fashion.

Wouldn't you say that White's Tot Shop is the delightful answer to your gift search for the little folks?

Master Charge and Visa purchases are welcomed, as is layaway. Hours are 10 until 6, six days a week.

White's Tot Shop has drawn wide appreciation for stock that is "wanted, right and fashionable" since its very opening day over five years ago, a stock outstanding in selection and quality.

Location of the store in Indiana Gardens is convenient, with access from "most anywhere," and the store itself is inviting with its attractive decor. It is a light, sunny, fun place to shop.

"Even if you have relied upon White's in months or years past, a trip there at this early Christmas season date will be a revelation in the new and expanded stock... and in budget-wise shopping."

APPAREL 'JUST RIGHT' FOR THE SEASON — Mr. and Mrs. Arvel White display items from stock at White's Tot Shop in Indiana Gardens, emphasizing that selection there is the most fabulous yet for the age groups affected.

ASSURE FINEST BEAUTY CARE — Pictured at the 5-Point Beauty Salon is owner Faye Butler (center, standing) with staffmembers Frances Sylvester, Judy McKnight, and (seated) Kim Jones and Loveta Pritchard. Check the accompanying report for specials and other benefits of the long-established shop.

Three-Week Frosting Special Among 5-Point Salon Benefits

Imagine, a super saving on frostings now when beauty and hair comes in for probable special attention as the holidays approach! But this is the situation at the 5-Point Beauty Salon, 5103 34th St., where a three-week special has been posted by the entire staff. Until Dec. 16, regular $28.50 frostings are priced at a lesser $22.50 and include shampoo and set. Established for 18 years, the shop in southwest Lubbock has gained an enviable following during these years. Two of the operators, Loveta Pritchard and Frances Sylvester, have been there for more than a dozen of these years. Faye Butler, a 12-year Lubbock resident, has been owner since April, and customer comments have been most favorable. The spacious shop has been newly decorated as one of the customer considerations. Jessie Lee Graduates All operators at the 5-Point Beauty Salon are Jessie Lee graduates. These include Frances Sylvester, Judy McKnight, Kim Jones and Loveta Pritchard. All beauty services are afforded, including haircuts for both men and women. Unipermers are one of the specialties, and Redken products are used within the shop and also made available at retail. The salon is open Mondays through Saturdays and early and late appointment times can be arranged. Call 795-4151 for appointment. For expert service and for appealing prices including the just-announced three-week frosting special, acquaintance with the 5-Point Beauty Salon, 5103 34th St., is invited and recommended.

J's Of Lubbock, In Terrace, Posting Storewide Discount

What a way to usher in the holidays! Lubbock is offering a full 15 per cent discount throughout the store (on every item) through Dec. 2! Not only is it a great way to become acquainted with this unique Terrace Shopping Center store (4902 34th St.) but it affords substantial money-saving buys that can be truly appreciated at this gifting season, and a season when one wants to look her best.

AT J'S OF LUBBOCK — Owner Jimmie Jones displays chic creations among the many in the popular Terrace Center Shop where a special discount has been announced through Dec. 2.

More "fashion" than "fad" is the thumbnail description of this so-attractive store where not only sportswear but holiday fashions and even accessory jewelry items are thoughtfully stocked. Featured sizes include the Itsy Bitsy in 0, 1, 2 and 3; juniors 3 through 15; and contemporary missy sizes 6-16. Whatever the size, everything is smart, chic and sophisticated.

Names To Trust
 Select from such desirables as Wrangler sportswear, the T-Jons velours, satins and knits, skirts by Classic of Boston; holiday fashions for the impending parties and all; sweaters and blazers, tops and more.

J's of Lubbock (formerly Sissy's) is owned and actively operated by Jimmie Jones who since purchase of Sissy's just a few months ago has established the new J's of Lubbock in larger quarters just north of the former Sissy's, now at Space No. 7 where a wide selection, added convenience and open display is featured.

"Our endeavor is to give the junior and missy sizes, regardless of age, a more sophisticated look," Jimmie Jones emphasizes. The meshing of sizes for juniors and misses is one of the noticeable innovations, whether the need is dresses, separates, coordinates, blouses, sweaters, pants, jeans, etc.

Costume Jewelry
 A selected grouping of costume jewelry, including gold and gold filled chains, and even hosiery is provided.

Actively managed by Jimmie Jones, the shop is staffed by other knowledgeable and friendly personnel including Helen Price, Carolyn Ratliff and newest staffmember Tania Seals.

"You'll like J's of Lubbock, just as your neighbor possibly already does! Not only is the store a friendly, cheerful place, but it more than justifies its existence with fashion, not fad. And remember... the big sale opportunity (15 per cent savings) is underway while stock is at its fullest, through Dec. 2. Don't delay; shop now for new experiences in fashion and savings... at J's of Lubbock in the Terrace."

This Christmas give the gift you'd love to get... BULOVA ACCUTRON
$125 $104
PIGG BROS. JEWELRY

BOWMAN'S BEFRINDS AREA SANTAS - Cindy Harris of Bowman's is shown in a popular area of the so-unique Christmas Shop where Santa has been given every consideration! Free gift wrapping is one of these considerations; check the accompanying story for others.

Large Christmas Presentation, Key Savings Aid At Bowman's

Even with all the things "going for it" and for you as a Bowman customer, two special situations might well be emphasized at this time:

(1) The "Month Before Christmas" sale prices are effective through Thursday of this week, and some banner opportunities for economy in home remodeling, Christmas gift-giving, etc., are made available.

(2) The expanded Christmas and Trellis Shop reveals a whole new concept and scads of merchandise and services. To get the Christmas spirit in a hurry, come on out to Bowman's, at 8301 S. University! (Free gift wrapping is provided for items purchased at the Christmas Shop, it is pointed out.

Among the November specials throughout the firm, the following are picked at random to emphasize just how very much Bowman can do in your own situation:

Autumn oak paneling is just $2.59 for a full 4x8 sheet!

And Wright storm doors (a considerable gift in many instances) are $38.88 rather than the regular $49.95. These beautiful, aluminum storm doors have tempered safety glass.

KitchenAid dishwashers, regular $417.95, are sale marked at $318.75!

And there's a good selection of Titan electric heaters, from $14.39 to a modest $35.79.

And who at this season cannot appreciate the wrap-on pipe insulation at just $2.59 for a 1-in. by 3-in. by 20 ft. strip.

Just in time for Christmas gift giving, all macramé supplies are marked at one-half regular price!

Chain Saws

For a really practical Christmas remembrance, select now from the line of McCulloch chain saws, with the Model 110 featured at just $79.95 including all standard features. A wide selection of models and accessories is stocked, and Bowman now can even custom sharpen one's chain saw blades.

Another practical gift item would be the Presto Burger models, at $7.99 and $19.88.

On and on the list could go, from all departments at the big Bowman facility. The best advice, then, would seem to be to "come on out this week; we want to show you just how profitable and satisfying it can be for you to shop Bowman's now!"

You simply cannot imagine how beautiful, how different and how well stocked the Christmas Shop is at Bowman's until you come and visit us personally. (A new and additional entry into the shop is provided near the front door at Bowman's.)

Coordination Assistance

The gorgeous artificial trees are in, and a beautiful brass engraved ornament is given free with any tree purchase.

Actually, the girls in the Bowman Christmas Shop are most adept in helping one personalize and coordinate all holiday decorations, decor motif, gift wrapping and even selection of presents. (One can find something for anyone at Bowman's, we like to prove.)

Specialty gift wrap is one of the featured stock items, together with decoration accessories such as silk and dried flower arrangements, with a price and selection most suitable for class and party favors.

And for a centerpiece, one need look no further!

Among the gift ideas are items for dorm and apartment dwellers. Let us at Bowman's decorate for you one of our Norfolk Island pine trees, or buy the tiny ornaments and fix up your own tree. A great selection of mini balls and bows is provided.

Three Martinizing Cleaners In City Afford Same Comprehensive Services

Now, at holiday time, ballgame time, and inclement weather time when special demands are made upon one's wardrobe, the following is of prime significance:

"There is a Martinizing Cleaners easily accessible to you, no matter your Lubbock address, and the same great services are available at each, whether at the newest facility, 3322 83rd St. (1 block east of Indiana on 83rd), at 30th & Slide, or at 49th and Knoxville!"

Though these services are quite numerous, the following could well be considered as of special immediate interest:

(1) Waterproofing is available - great for raincoats, ski wear, jeans, etc., helping one better enjoy the outdoor events of the season.

(2) Fast service always is available, and even on Saturdays, cleaning brought in by 11 a.m. can be out by the 3 p.m. Saturday closing time at any of the three Martinizing Cleaners in Lubbock, each owned by longtime Lubbock drycleaner Gordon Mahon.

(3) Complete alterations are available.

(4) Pockets and half pockets are available, too, as are the two-way reversible ski wear zippers. Unusual lengths and several colors of zippers are kept in stock.

(5) Cleaning of suedes, leathers and furs is expertly done.

(6) Pillow renovation is another pride and service of the firms.

(7) Ozone odor removal is a banner benefit.

(8) And finally, one of the most important services is the cleanliness, gentleness and other advantages of Valclene drycleaning. (If you've a problem garment, ask your cleaner to Valclene!)

Great for woolsens, suedes and all, this quality, gentle cleaning assures a rich finish, keeping colors bright and making for longer garment life. Its low drying temperature eliminates the setting of stains, and wrinkles or breaks are not generated.

Capable staffs man each Martinizing facility. Among these are Scott Rickman, manager of the 83rd Street plant, with Billy Griffin as drycleaner; Johnnie Bates as manager on Slide Road, with Noah Reeves as drycleaner; and Sam Caddell managing the Knoxville plant, with Delbert Banks as drycleaner. All are most qualified and thoroughly experienced.

"They appreciate your business and want to prove it with the above-listed services and all the other plus-benefits of the Martinizing Cleaners in Lubbock.

Leaseway-Southwest Services Seen Advantageous To Region

Leaseway-Southwest, at 409 E. 50th St., in Lubbock, offers a complete transportation service to busy companies that simply cannot devote the time, space or money required to own and maintain a fleet of vehicles, or in some instances, just one or two units. This progressive leasing firm provides transportation vehicles to serve any size or type business.

Full Service

"Corporations as well as small operators find that full-service transportation package is more efficient from every standpoint."

"Full service" as provided by Leaseway-Southwest Transportation Corp., is exactly what the name implies. The firm provides the maintenance and inspection and even supplies the fuel and pays the taxes on the vehicle!

Personnel there are most adept, serving in a professional but considerate and friendly manner to meet the particular transportation needs of every customer.

"We'd like to count you, too, among our customers."

Upgrading and additions to its stock is a continuous operation at Leaseway-Southwest.

Leaseway-Southwest's understanding of the short-term, peak and long-term needs of area industry and business is well recognized, contributing to its own growth, too.

Half-a-hundred Lubbock businesses (and even more) depend on Leaseway-Southwest for transportation vehicle needs.

There must be a very good reason.

In Tune With Times

Keeping abreast with the needs of the area is one of the convincing reasons. Leaseway-Southwest continually adds new equipment for rental and for full-time, customers of this service-oriented firm.

"Utilization of leased vehicles is the growing trend in transportation management" it is emphasized by Ken Wright, president.

EARL RAY

SOUTH PLAINS' LEADING BAND HOUSE
SERVING FOR OVER A QUARTER CENTURY

5302 AVENUE Q
Briercroft Shopping Center

Earl Ray Music Enables Easy Solution In Musical Gifting

"If you are the parent or other near relative of a band student, wouldn't a musical Christmas be in order?"
Then... this is where Earl Ray Music Co., in Briercroft Center, comes in for special consideration. After all, Earl Ray is a firm sincerely interested in your welfare, in seeing that the student or other musically-inclined person is set with the best in instruments.
Even if that student has an instrument at this time, wouldn't "trading up" possibly be in order? Earl Ray is sure to have a quality instrument to best serve you in the program one has made in any musical pursuit.
With Christmas approaching, together with a new school semester, then now would logically seem to be the right time to act. Let us at Earl Ray Music Co. help. Financing is available.
Service does not end with the rental or sale at this leading band house. Earl Ray maintains the largest band instrument repair department on the South Plains, with fulltime specialists on the job.

Even Leasing
Reliance upon the Earl Ray Music Co. can solve (and easily so) the many situations and ever-problems for the music minded.
Long a standby as "the South Plains leading Band House," the Earl Ray Music Co., at 5302 Ave. Q in the Briercroft Shopping Center, pledges the finest in instrument repair and sales, even leasing and trade-up.
For more than a quarter century of being known and trusted by band directors, parents and bandmen throughout the area, Earl Ray Music Co. early in 1974 moved to the large modern home it now enjoys—a facility that has met with

Enlarged Christmas Shoppe Serves With Expanded Stock

New and added items and lines at the greatly expanded and re-arranged Christmas Shoppe in Cactus Alley add to the already-provocative and distinctive stock for which this shop has become so favorably known and appreciated area-wide.

(The Christmas Shoppe now occupies both upstairs and downstairs quarters at the east entry of Cactus Alley, just south off the Brownfield Highway at 2610 Salem Avenue in Lubbock. The added space consequently has meant tremendously enlarged stock and attractive decor and new arrangement throughout, making shopping for a wide price range easier than ever at The Christmas Shoppe.)

The Christmas Shoppe is owned and operated by longtime Lubbock resident Jan Mantooth, and she and her staff are quite adept in rendering the customer services one appreciates. Staffmembers include Stephanie Raign, Candy Schaudies, Jana Lynch and Ellen Snyder.

Wrapping Service
Aside from the "Christmas from throughout the world" items within the shop, The Christmas Shoppe provides a most beneficial wrap service.
Pre-decorated gift boxes are priced from $1 to $1.50. Gift wrap by the yard can be purchased to make the job of "having enough" so much simpler. Custom gift wrapping is available, whether gift purchase was at The Christmas Shoppe or elsewhere. A pick-up and delivery plan enables picking up packages from anywhere in the city, with the customer selecting the wrap from photos, and with the actual pick-up and delivery free when 10 or more packages are involved.

Be sure and come in and see all the new items; see the wreaths, centerpieces, scented candles, the Advent wreaths and Advent devotional booklets.
Import Creches
New crystal creches from Germany, and the olive wood creches from Bethlehem.

There are so-unique stocking stuffers, imported but surprisingly reasonable in price, and music boxes great for gifting.
Then there are the Schmid Bros. imports of Anri wood carvings by Kuolt and Ferrandiz, porcelain creche figurines and pewter ornaments.
Hand-blown crystal from Germany, plus old-fashioned tree ornaments, wax ornaments and more.
And the Fitz & Floyd holly wreath china.

Considerate Hours
The Christmas Shoppe is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, with later 8 p.m. closing on Thursdays.
"It is high time to utilize the advantages of The Christmas Shoppe, showing its appreciation of your past patronage with new convenience and greatly enlarged facilities and stock. Actually, time is short for Christmas selection, so come on out now to The Christmas Shoppe in Cactus Alley to avoid later rush or diminished supplies."

The Avalanche-Journal is one of the few things left in the world that is worth considerably more than the price you pay for it.

The Avalanche-Journal means value. Value that is both tangible and intangible.

Intangible value that comes with the quality of news coverage you receive by reading The Avalanche-Journal — a level of editorial excellence on the local, national and international levels unparalleled in West Texas.

Then there are the tangible benefits derived from reading the Avalanche-Journal. The cash benefits. The money you can save by subscribing to the A-J.

For instance, we publish a variety of store coupons each week. By using just some of them, you can save enough on purchases to more than pay for that week's A-J. Add to this the many advertised sales and your savings are greater.

All this boils down to one point. Subscribing to The Avalanche-Journal is more than getting a newspaper. It's making a profitable investment.

Power Line Draws Complaints

LOWRY, Minn. (AP) — It can make your skin itch, maybe cause your tractor to lose power, and clutter your radio with static and your TV set with a "snowy" picture.

That's what some farm folks living along the high-voltage power line now under test in Minnesota say about the power line.

But the target of most complaints is the noise buildup on some telephone circuits, particularly those that parallel the 400-kilovolt, direct current line. So much so,

Big Spender Hospitalized

ATLANTA (AP) — A self-described Pakistani business tycoon who recently made headlines by passing out checks totaling $2 million was hospitalized here for observation, officials said Sunday.

F. Masood Khan was admitted to Grady Memorial Hospital last Saturday and transferred to the Peachtree-Parkwood Mental Health Center and Hospital on Sunday, said W. H. Bearden, night administrator at Grady. Bearden said he did not know under what specific circumstances Khan was admitted to the hospital.

Khan was arrested Friday and charged with theft of services after he allegedly refused to pay a $174 bill at the Omni International Hotel. He was arrested a second time that same afternoon and charged with disorderly conduct and criminal trespass after he returned to the hotel and allegedly threatened to burn it down.

A spokesman for the Omni, Mary Alexander, said Sunday that Khan's wife came to Atlanta on Saturday and paid her husband's hotel bill.

that United Power Association and Cooperative Power Association are only testing when there's a minimum of phone use, between midnight and 6 a.m.

United, of Elk River, Minn., and Cooperative, Edina, Minn., have built — through contractors — what's become one of the most controversial power-line projects in the nation, the 427-mile stretch between Underwood, N.D., and Delano, Minn. Fed by a generator burning North Dakota lignite coal, the power line is to serve the 33 member co-ops of United and Cooperative in Minnesota and one in Wisconsin. Some 164 miles of line run through western and central Minnesota.

The protest has engendered courtroom actions and tense, pushing confrontations in bitter winter cold between 150 state troopers guarding construction crews and 200 protesters in snowy fields.

Four towers for the line have been toppled by vandals. One guard was wounded by shotgun fire last March. And hundreds of 15 glass insulators have been shot out by opponents in recent weeks.

Nineteen protesters, urban sympathizers of farmers, went to jury trial earlier this month for alleged trespassing on a road leading to the line's eastern terminus near Delano. All were acquitted.

The trespass trial drew international attention when the Soviet news agency Tass sent a reporter to cover it. Dean Reed, an entertainer living in East Germany, was one of the defendants.

George Crocker, a leader in General Assembly to Stop the Power Lines, called GASP, estimates some 150 charges have been filed by authorities the past 2½ years as the line was being constructed. Some protesters have been arrested more than once. Many cases are pending.

The co-ops got the last tower in place Sept. 26 and sent the first test charge through the line on Oct. 17. Intermittent daytime tests followed, and the complaints started to come in. Marilyn Gruber told a reporter the sensation she'd felt beneath the charged line running over their farmyard. "It feels like a spider crawling on you," she said.

"You can hear it, you can feel it but you can't see it," agreed her husband Werner, who said "leaves crackled like rain was falling." Mrs. Gruber likened the noise to frying bacon.

The couple and their seven school-age children live on a 280-acre farm 12 miles northwest of Paynesville.

Gruber, 43, said static drowned out reception on his tractor radio when he drove beneath the line. Another time, the tractor lost power as he hauled a load up a slight incline beneath the line, he said.

The Grubers feel the tower some 600 feet from their backyard is an unsightly intrusion. It's smack in line with a decorative windmill Gruber put up two years ago near a tree-fringed creek.

Matt Woida, a Sauk Centre farmer, said the power line interfered with phone calls. When he's on the phone with callers, he said, "you can hear them but they can't hear you."

Bud Morrow, manager of one of the four local phone companies getting complaints about noise, said perhaps 30 to 50 customers have trouble in a six- to seven-mile stretch near Paynesville.

"People on phone lines that run parallel to the power lines have the most problems," he said. "I think we're going to have to move some of the telephone cable to ease some of the problems."

But United and Cooperative engineers hope the trouble can be corrected, possibly with a better filtering system.

Meanwhile, meetings at the brick fire-house-city hall at Lowry — sometimes springboards to confrontation at construction sites — have stopped. Opponents are instead holding rallies, dinners and dances.

The co-ops report vandalism has continued on the line, however. Bolts have been loosened on tower bases, the metal legs sawed through, or glass insulators shattered with rifle fire.

The two utilities had as many as 300 security guards at one time last summer. Now, two helicopter crews swing along the Minnesota segment of the line to make daily checks and repairs.

The utilities say the cost of power line opposition — for lawyers, security forces and vandalism — has been $140 million.

The utilities and the project's general contractor have offered up to $200,000 in rewards for information leading to conviction of those responsible for the shooting incident and the four tower topplings.

United and Cooperative put the total cost of the project at more than $1.2 billion, of which $710 million is for the generating plant, $320 for the line and $215 for mining facilities and coal.

United General Manager Philip O. Martin says that the line will be operated commercially next spring. "It seems inconceivable you wouldn't go through with it when you've got that much money invested," he said.

Prison TB Cases Go Unnoticed

CHICAGO (AP) — Prison tuberculosis epidemics "may exist without attracting medical attention for many years" and may be a factor in delaying the eradication of TB, an Arkansas physician says.

Dr. William Stead of the Arkansas Department of Public Health at Little Rock said TB occurs 6.5 times more frequently among prisoners than in the general population.

Stead said few state health departments take an active role in controlling tuberculosis within their prisons. He said he found in a survey of other state public health departments that at least 40 states with large prisons have problems similar to what he found in Arkansas.

"Indeed, most indicated that their efforts at participation were met with outright resistance. . . . Certainly this was my experience," Stead says in the Dec. 1 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Stead reported on 10 cases of infectious tuberculosis found in 1976 in an Arkansas prison with 1,500 inmates. Stead said the spread of the epidemic was checked by administration of a preventive drug and establishment of a program of screening and periodic retesting.

Skin tests indicated that the disease was spreading within the prison and that some of those affected were healthy before they were committed, he said.

He said a child died in January of TB contracted from exposure to a former inmate who was infected while confined and released without treatment.

Stead said the incubation of tuberculosis is "long and uncertain" and the annual rate of turnover of the prison population is high.

He said he and his co-workers "had to resort to higher authority in the state government" before they were able to gain cooperation of prison authorities to bring the situation under control, even after having shown tuberculosis to be a prison problem.

"Tuberculosis control within prisons appears to be lax nationwide and should be given greater emphasis by the public health establishment, not only for the protection of the prisoners but for the health of the community at large," Stead said.

Journal editor Dr. William Barclay said in an editorial that "society punishes these prisoners twice, once by incarceration and a second time by illness."

The second punishment was also inflicted on the family of one prisoner, for his undetected tuberculosis was ultimately transmitted to his wife and two children, one of whom died.

"Delay in reforming the prison's medical care program apparently was due to bureaucratic inertia, indifference, and perhaps incompetence."

Record Number Of Foreigners Travel To U.S. During '78

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign tourists, taking advantage of low-cost air fares and charters as well as a cheaper dollar, have been coming to the United States in record numbers this year, the U.S. Travel Service reports.

The agency says 8.6 million visitors came to the United States in the first six months of the year, an increase of 7 percent from the same period last year.

In addition, the report says that from January through June foreigners spent $3.5 billion in this country, a 17 percent increase compared to the first half of last year.

Large increases were evident in spending by visitors from Western Europe up 36.4 percent, Japan, up 22.8 percent, and Latin America, up 17.4 percent," the report says. The British spent 80.3 percent more here.

Travelers from the United Kingdom are spending the savings gained from the purchase of low charter and promotional air fares on additional goods and services in the United States," the agency says.

As the dollar sank against other currencies, most of the foreign tourists were able to get more for their money in this country.

The Travel Service is a Commerce Department agency that was established in 1961 to stimulate foreign tourist travel to the United States.

The Travel Service cited "the heavy decrease in the U.S. dollar" and cheaper air fares and low-cost charters as having "brought about a major increase in international travel to the United States."

Japan, 411,108; United Kingdom, 303,150; West Germany, 199,426; France, 102,618; Venezuela, 91,705; Australia, 78,301; Italy, 65,443.

The agency predicts 20 million foreign tourists will visit the United States by the end of the year, a 7.7 percent increase over last year. That is just above the average annual increase for the past six years.

According to polls taken abroad in 1977, foreigners, whether traveling or not, listed the following regions in order of preference as the ones they would most like to see: The Far West, the Northeast, the South, the Southwest, the mid-Atlantic region, and Atlantic and Pacific islands. Rated lowest were the Great Lakes, the Mountain West and New England.

St. Louis Officials Seeking Patients

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Authorities are searching for 10 patients missing from a hastily vacated suburban nursing home where conditions were compared by one police official to a Nazi concentration camp.

The owners of the Jera Su Manor home, Ezra and Shirley Robertson, were arrested Sunday but they have refused to tell authorities where the missing patients are, said police.

"If you'd seen what I saw, you'd envision scenes from the concentration camps of Nazi Germany," said Manchester Police Chief Donald Petri. "And I'm not exaggerating."

Toilets were filled with excrement, roofs were leaking, windows were broken, woodwork was heavily damaged and scraps of food covered the floor, Petrie said.

"I just can't really describe it," he said. "It's beyond belief."

When police searched the home Sunday, "We found it completely wide open, not a soul around," Petri said.

Patients' medical records had been left behind, without a clue regarding the patients' new locations.

The Robertsons' operating license has been revoked by the state, but because they have about two weeks left in which to appeal the revocation, the state had not removed the patients, said James Walsh, state director of social services.

Petri said police had answered several assault complaints from residents there over the last few weeks. A state official said authorities began a search for about 20 residents over the Thanksgiving weekend after receiving calls from worried relatives who said they could not locate patients.

"About half" were found, but the others remained unaccounted for Sunday night, Petrie said.

Walsh said his department found "10 or 12" of the 20 missing patients in other nursing homes in various parts of the state.

The state maintains no list of the patients because the home has no contract with the state, Walsh said in a telephone interview from Kansas City Sunday night.

Walsh said the unexplained transfer of the patients without the knowledge of the state or relatives is not a violation of state law, but "certainly is ethically questionable."

The Robertsons were arrested after they argued with police and Mrs. Robertson kicked an officer, Petri said. She was charged with resisting arrest, and her husband was arrested for allegedly refusing to remove a fire hazard from the grounds, Petri said. Both were released without bond.

Mother Held In Death Of Infant

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (UPI) — The torso of a newborn baby — its arms and legs presumably eaten and its genital area mauled by two mongrel dogs — was found among mounds of garbage, dog droppings and empty dog food cans in a one-room apartment in Mount Holly, N.J.

The dogs, one a puppy and the other fully grown, were hovering nearby when Pauline Jenkins, 20, found the body Saturday evening.

Miss Jenkins, 20, had gone to the apartment of her friend, Rose Marchione, to feed the dogs while she was away, authorities said.

Miss Jenkins called police, who arrested Mrs. Marchione and charged her initially with illegal disposal of a body, the Burlington County prosecutor's office said.

She was lodged in the minimum security facility of the county jail pending further investigation and possible additional charges.

Assistant Prosecutor Ralph Tolomeo said it had not yet been determined whether the dogs mauled the infant to death or if it died in another manner and was being fed upon by the dogs.

He said the child had apparently been born several days ago in the apartment. The mother had not been in the apartment for several days, he added. He would not disclose where she was located.

Authorities theorized the baby may have died after birth and been placed in a plastic bag and left on top of the trash pile.

The county's medical examiner, Dr. Dante Ragasa, said on the basis of his preliminary investigation, the child had been born alive and not stillborn as the mother told authorities.

He said he was not able to determine the cause of death or the sex, pending an autopsy.

The dogs were taken to the Burlington County Animal Control Shelter.

Unmarrieds Buying Houses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Young, unmarried men and women increasingly are buying houses to prove to their employers they are stable and reliable, a mortgage insurance company president says.

Singles have moved so decidedly into the housing market, said Jackson W. Goss, president of Tiger Investors Mortgage Insurance Co. of Boston, that he predicts they will make up 20 percent of all home purchasers during the next two years.

"We predict that approximately one out of every five homes sold in 1979 and 1980 will be purchased by singles," Goss said.

"This is quite a development when one remembers that 10 years ago singles represented less than 4 percent of the market and that five years ago the same group counted for one of every 18 buyers."

A new survey of single persons in the 24 to 29 age bracket indicated that purchasing a home was the No. 1 priority on their must-have list, Goss said.

Highlights of the survey — Young singles said owning a home indicated to their peers, employers and business associates a credible picture of stability. This was particularly important in convincing employers that singles are stable people.

"Young people are quite aware of the tax saving and equity investment involved in owning a home. The survey found this was particularly true of young women, who "showed a keen understanding of finances."

"Singles favor buying a townhouse over other structures because it provides privacy while allowing for "as much social contact as the owner desires." They feel a townhouse is more efficient, has more conveniences and is easier to maintain. A townhouse also represents the best buy.

The survey indicated that by 1980 as many young unmarried women would be interested in buying a home as young unmarried men.

The survey was done by mortgage insurance offices throughout the United States and the home-buying trends, Goss said, have been confirmed by lenders in several cities.

Runaway Train Finally Caught

PURCELL, Okla. (AP) — An unmanned, runaway Santa Fe locomotive led central Oklahoma authorities on a frantic, 35-mile chase Sunday before it finally was corralled at a railyard near Purcell.

The 60-ton switch engine roared through south Oklahoma City, Moore, Norman and Noble before it reached the yard northeast of Purcell and was purposely derailed. There were no injuries.

"It just got away from us," said Gil Sweet, a spokesman at Santa Fe's Topeka, Kan. office.

Earlier, an Oklahoma Highway Patrol spokesman had speculated that someone started the train in Oklahoma City and then hopped off.

Sweet said the exact cause of the incident was not known and railroad inspectors would conduct a full investigation.

"It could have been vibration that shook the throttle into the run position," he said.

A witness at the Santa Fe yard in Purcell said the locomotive was switched off the main line onto a side rail and allowed to ram a hopper car to stop it about 3:20 p.m.

Officials said the brakes on the engine were apparently engaged, limiting the speed of the juggernaut between 20 and 30 miles per hour and sending out showers of sparks and smoke from the engine wheels as it plowed southward.

Sweet said that at full throttle the engine probably could reach 60 miles per hour.

Santa Fe yardmaster Delbert Brooks said the locomotive was reported missing in the Oklahoma City yard at about 2:10 p.m.

The report sent Moore and Norman police, highway patrol troopers and firefighters racing to crossings in Moore and Norman in an effort to keep motorists off the tracks.

Both the Moore and Norman police said the locomotive made it through both towns without incident.

Raiders Open Cage Play

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

The lights in Lubbock Coliseum, tried out for practice two weeks ago, will come on for sure tonight, when Texas Tech officially opens the 1978-79 basketball season.

And the pattern will be the same as when coach Gerald Myers tried his new experiment so successfully earlier in the month.

Tech, featuring a speeded-up offense and a peppy pressing defense, will take on Central State University of Oklahoma, with tipoff at 7:30 p.m.

The Raiders unofficially opened the season two weeks ago by whipping the touring Bulgarian national team 95-78, and the point total is indicative of what Myers hopes to achieve this season: Maintain a fast pace.

Tech reached that point total only once last season and averaged only 79.5 points.

"I thought we ran pretty well against the Bulgarians," said Myers. "We hope to keep it up. With a pressing game, we need to keep our players rested."

"So, to do this, we'll be running players in and out pretty often. I'd like to play a lot of people, if we can."

In that opener, junior Kent Williams, sophomore center Ralph Brewster and freshman forward Jeff Taylor scored 16 points each and 6-7 sophomore forward Ralph McPherson added 10.

The four will be starting tonight, along with 6-5 guard Geoff Huxton. Huxton will be the lone starter in the starting unit.

Playing the exhibition with the foreign group helped move Taylor, Geoff Huxton, into the starting lineup, Myers indicated.

"There were some things that we learned in that earlier game," Myers said. "We need to get better on the offensive boards. We're not as tall as in the past, so we have to work hard at rebounding on both ends."

Gone are the former men such as Mike Russell of last year and Rick Bullock of three years ago. McPherson, at 6-8, and Brewster furnish the size. Williams is 6-4.

Taylor 6-4.

"But, we have some good imports," said Myers. "Taylor, (6-6) Thad Sanders, (6-6) David Lundy, and (6-6) Mike Taylor.

The visiting Raiders will play their home games at the Coliseum.

They will be looking for a win over their visiting players consisting only of Allen, four of their players will be looking for the first win.

After the game, the Raiders will be busy for the rest of the week. They host Northern Arizona on Wednesday, before heading for North Carolina and a return match with North Carolina-Chapel Hill on Saturday.

Tech defeated NC-Chapel Hill last year, but the same season the Raiders went to the NIT final.

Earl Leads Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Earl Campbell, who has been the Houston Oilers' savior this season, became their 220-pound alarm clock Sunday.

The Oilers were in the midst of a nightmare rerun after being held to a minus-13 yards in the first quarter when Campbell's wake-up call came through.

Campbell rushed 58 yards in the second quarter and finished the game with 122 yards as the Oilers wiped out a 10-0 deficit and went on to a 17-10 victory over Cincinnati.

The victory gave the Oilers a 9-4 record, third best in the American Football Conference, and avenged a 28-13 loss to Cincinnati earlier this season when the Oilers never woke up.

The Oilers, who host AFC Central Division leader Pittsburgh Sunday, now rank ahead of Miami, Denver and Oakland, all with 8-5 records, in the race for two AFC wild-card playoff berths.

Campbell's 122 yards on 27 carries gave him 1,265 yards for the season and broke the National Football League rookie rushing record of 1,162 set by San Diego's Don Woods in 1974.

Campbell, as usual, had little to say about his record-setting performance. "I'm too tired to even think about any records," Campbell said.

The Bengals, however, weren't shy in talking about Campbell.

"He gets up real slow like he's hurt but you know you'd better not feel sorry for him," said Bengal cornerback Ken Riley.

Archie Griffin, like Campbell a former Heisman Trophy winner, said, "I thought he'd have a great season but he's developed a lot more than I expected."

The Oilers, who had to rally seven times in the second half to win their first eight games, fell behind Cincinnati 10-0 early in the second quarter on a seven-yard pass from Ken Anderson to Don Bass in the end zone and Chris Bahr's 34-yard field goal.

Rocky Road Ahead

THAT BIG THANKSGIVING Day victory over Washington was more important to the Dallas Cowboys than most folks realize. The win not only gave the 'Pokes the undisputed lead in the NFC East, but it also provided them with the potential tie-breaker in the event of a deadlock with the Redskins.

If Dallas loses one of its last three games while the 'Skins win all of their remaining tussles, then the first tie-breaker to determine the division champ will be head-to-head competition. That is no help, because the teams split in their two encounters.

The next tie-breaker is the best percentage against division teams, which gives the Cowboys a lock on the title if it comes down to that. Dallas has lost only one time within the division, with Philadelphia still on the slate, while the Redskins have dropped four games to Eastern foes.

All of that is important only if the Cowboys win at least two of their last three games. If they lose twice, then their fate will hinge on what Washington does on its last lap around the NFL track.

THE SCHEDULE APPEARS to favor the Redskins, although Washington partisans might voice mild disagreement. Both Dallas and Washington are on the road for two of their remaining games and both face dangerous opponents.

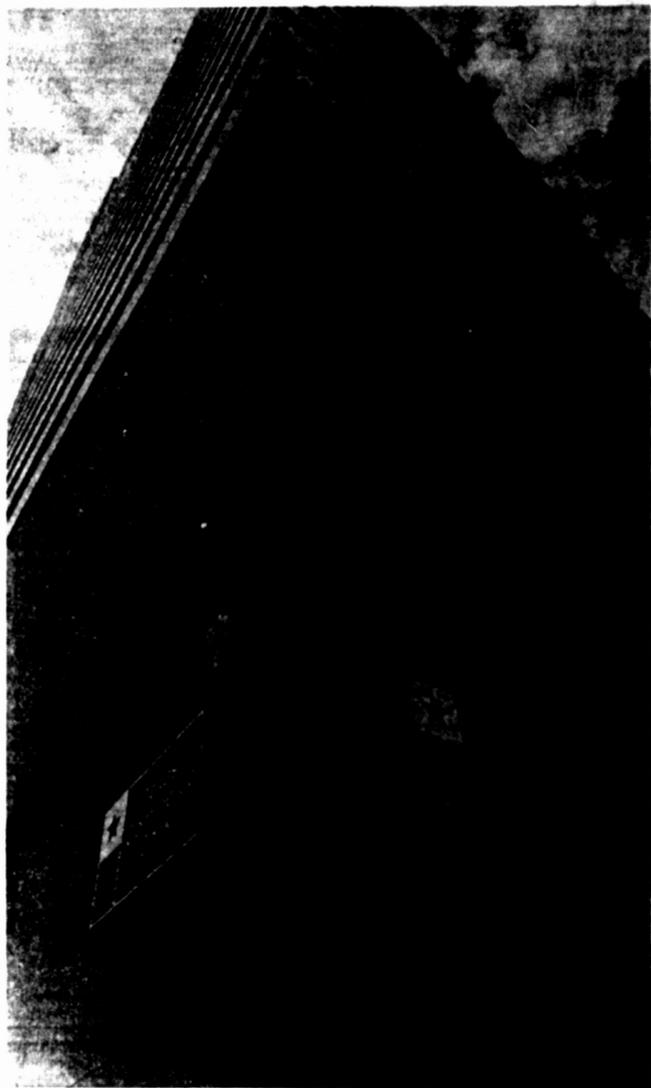

But the Cowboys must meet New England, the New York Jets and Philadelphia, while the Redskins duel the Miami Dolphins, Atlanta Falcons and Chicago Bears. Miami is rated below New England and the Bears are inferior to the Jets, for sure. But the Falcons may be about as tough as Philadelphia, especially at home.

It would be very surprising if both the Cowboys and Redskins are able to win their final three games. Both figure to drop at least one game down the stretch and they'll have to play like demons in the other contests. It ain't gonna be easy!

THIS CAUTIOUS APPRAISAL no doubt will bounce off the smiling faces of

Scrambling Zorn Leads Hawks Past Oakland 17-16

By The Associated Press
They're starting to compare Jim Zorn to Fran Tarkenton — and with good reason. They operate the same way and produce similar results.

Zorn, a third-year quarterback for Seattle, a third-year team, calmly directed the Seahawks from their 20-yard line to the Oakland 27 in the final 2½ minutes of play Sunday, then watched Efren Herrera's 46-yard field goal with three seconds remaining beat the Raiders 17-16. Earlier, Zorn had thrown touchdown passes covering 38 yards to Steve Raible and 27 yards to Steve Largent.

Tarkenton, Minnesota's 18-year pro, threw only one touchdown pass Sunday — but it came a timely 10 seconds from the end of regulation play. The 5-yard flip to Ahmad Rashad boosted the Vikings into a 10-10 tie with the Green Bay Packers and it stayed that way through a 15-minute overtime period.

That left the teams tied at the National Football Conference's Central Division with 7-5-1 records. Oakland's loss dropped the Raiders back into the overall first-place tie, in the American Football Conference West. Oakland and Denver are 8-5. The Broncos lost 17-14 last Thursday at Detroit.

Herrera's kick also booted the Seahawks into the playoff picture. They are only one game behind the Raiders and Broncos. The field goal came after Ken Stabler had put Oakland ahead by two points with a 31-yard TD pass to Dave Casper. Errol Mann missed the extra point, giving Seattle the chance to win.

"Can you believe it?" Zorn exclaimed after it was mentioned that the Seahawks were wild-card contenders. "Don't forget, this is the first time we've ever been over .500," added the left-hander, who hit 23 of 44 passes for 270 yards, including five completions in the winning drive.

Seattle got the ball after stopping the Raiders on a fourth-and-1 at the Seahawks' 21 when Oakland coach John Madden went for the first-down try rather than a possible field goal and a five-point lead.

Even though Minnesota didn't win, it came out of the tie better than did the Packers. If the two teams still are tied for first place at the end of the season, the Vikings would win the division title by virtue of their 21-7 victory over Green Bay Oct. 22.

"The thing we had to do today was prevent a loss, and next we had to win the game," Tarkenton said. "I thought we should have won, but the tie was good for us because it hurts them."

Patriots 35, Colts 14
The Patriots kept Miami already lost when they went out and ran roughshod over Baltimore, opening a two-game AFC East lead over the Dolphins. "I told them, 'The Jets helped us. Now we have to do our job,'" said Coach Chuck Fairbanks.

Stanley Morgan set up two TDs with a 37-yard punt return and a 38-yard reception, then caught a Steve Grogan pass and turned it into a 75-yard TD play.

Jets 24, Dolphins 13
The big news wasn't Matt Robinson's 3-yard TD pass to Wesley Walker or the short runs by Darnell Powell and Kevin Long for the other New York scores. It was Miami quarterback Bob Griese's three intercepted passes and one fumble. Two of the turnovers resulted in Jets' TDs.

"You don't expect something like this to happen to Bob Griese," said Dolphins guard Larry Little. "but you can't be real surprised. Nobody can be perfect week after week."

Browns 30, Rams 19
Coach Ray Malavasi expressed a similar sentiment about his Rams. "I think it's difficult to keep a team up for 16 games. I just hope we're up for the right ones at the right time," Malavasi said after.

AT THE CORNER — Houston Oilers runningback Earl Campbell turns the corner past a prone Ken Riley of Cincinnati during Sunday's 17-10 Oilers triumph. Campbell had 122 yards rushing in the contest to set a new NFL rookie rushing record. (AP Laserphoto)

Vikings 10, Packers 10

In the first three periods, Tarkenton completed only 5 of 15 passes for 35 yards. Two periods later, the numbers were 20 of 37 for 199 yards and, of course, the big TD pass. Just as big was the pass prior to the scoring strike. It was a 15-yarder to Sammy White at the Green Bay 5 from a fourth-and-7 situation at the 20.

"Tarkenton is a great quarterback," said Steve Luke, a Green Bay defensive back. "No team can completely shut out Fran Tarkenton. He just found his man. He's just Tarkenton."

"Tarkenton has an uncanny knack of coming back," added defensive tackle Dave Roller of the Packers. "He has a knack of getting the job done, and he has an uncanny knack of somehow winning."

Even though Minnesota didn't win, it came out of the tie better than did the Packers. If the two teams still are tied for first place at the end of the season, the Vikings would win the division title by virtue of their 21-7 victory over Green Bay Oct. 22.

Coach Ray Malavasi expressed a similar sentiment about his Rams. "I think it's difficult to keep a team up for 16 games. I just hope we're up for the right ones at the right time," Malavasi said after.

er Brian Sipe's 31-yard scoring pass to Reggie Rucker and Greg Pruitt's 57-yard TD run helped Cleveland beat Los Angeles.

The loss cut the Rams' NFC West lead over Atlanta to two games.

Falcons 20, Saints 17
Just as on Nov. 12 against Atlanta, the Saints had victory within their grasp, only to allow it to slip away.

Last time it was a last-minute, 57-yard play on a tipped pass from Steve Bartkowski to Alfred Jackson. This time Bartkowski hit Jim Mitchell on a 1-yarder with five seconds to go, capping a seven-72-yard drive that began with only 53 seconds left.

"I guess it's just not in the cards for them to beat us," Bartkowski said. "I don't look forward to playing them next year."

Bills 41, Giants 17
Terry Miller became the first runner this year to surpass 200 yards in a game, gaining 208 against the Giants. He scored touchdowns on runs of 39 and 13 yards, wrapping up a comeback that obliterated New York's 17-7 third-period lead.

Eagles 14, Cardinals 10
Philadelphia snapped St. Louis' four-game winning streak, getting touchdowns on Ron Jaworski's 22-yard TD pass to Charlie Smith in the second period and Mike Hogan's 2-yard plunge in the fourth period. With the victory, the Eagles pulled into a second-place tie with Washington in the NFC East. The Redskins fell one game behind Dallas on Thanksgiving Day, losing 37-10 to the Cowboys.

Chiefs 23, Chargers 0
Mike Livingston's TD passes of 29 yards to Henry Marshall and 7 yards to Larry Dorsey, plus Jan Stenerud's three field goals, boosted Kansas City past the Chargers. It was the Chiefs' first shutout in five years.

Bears 14, Bucs 3

Penn State Rules Grid World

By The Associated Press
With a perfect 11-0 regular season now a reality, Penn State still rules the world of college football. But there are five one-beaten national championship pretenders chomping hoping — praying! — that the Nittany Lions come up sour in the Sugar Bowl.

Top-rated Penn State came from behind with 10 points in the final 5:02 Friday and beat No. 15 Pittsburgh 17-10. Runner-up Alabama and fourth-ranked Oklahoma were idle over the weekend — the Orange Bowl-bound Sooners have completed a 10-1 regular season — while third-ranked Southern California, No. 6 Michigan and 10th-ranked Clemson were winners.

Meanwhile, eighth-ranked Notre Dame's defending champions, who had been creeping up steadily in The Associated Press ratings since dropping their first two starts, bowed to Rose Bowl-bound Southern Cal 27-25 on Frank Jordan's 37-yard field goal with two seconds left. The Irish had erased a 24-6 deficit with a furious fourth-quarter rally and grabbed a 25-24 edge only 44 seconds before Jordan's field goal.

Pitt coach Jackie Sherrill cast a quick vote for Penn State as the No. 1 team while Notre Dame's Dan Devine went for Southern Cal.

"Are they (Penn State) the No. 1 team?" Sherrill mused when asked the question. "They're the only team in the country that's undefeated."

Diplomatic, that Sherrill.

But Devine had different thoughts. "I don't want to make Penn State mad," he said, "but I'd probably have to make them (USC) No. 1 in the nation."

Elsewhere, Michigan made it to the Rose Bowl for the third year in a row, defeating 16th-ranked Ohio State 14-3 while Clemson's Atlantic Coast Conference champs closed out a 10-1 regular season, their best since 1948, trouncing South Carolina 41-23.

Besides Notre Dame, fifth-ranked Houston also dropped out of the national championship picture. The Cougars, who had won eight in a row after losing their opener, blew a chance to become Notre Dame's Cotton Bowl opponent when they were upset by Texas Tech 22-21. "We will, however, get a second chance. "We will take the conference championship any way we can get it," said Houston coach Bill Yeoman, whose team can clinch the Southwest Conference title with a victory or tie against 2-8 Rice next week. But if Houston loses and Texas Tech beats Arkansas, the surprising Red Raiders, overlooked all season, will wind up as the Cotton Bowl hosts.

Meanwhile, Penn State will have to wait until Saturday to learn if there really will be a 1-2 national championship shootout in the Sugar Bowl. Alabama must beat Auburn Saturday to become the host team in New Orleans while a loss or a tie would send the Crimson Tide to the Bluebonnet Bowl and put No. 12 Georgia into the Sugar.

Although Michigan held Ohio State without a touchdown for the third year in a row, the only reason the Wolverines are going to the Rose Bowl is that 14th-ranked Michigan State, which tied for the Big Ten crown, defeated Michigan in October and drubbed Iowa 42-7 Saturday, in on probation and can't make the trip. Ohio State will meet Clemson in the Gator Bowl.

Meanwhile, 11th-ranked Arkansas, headed for a Fiesta Bowl date with UCLA, overcame a 14-0 first-period deficit and beat SMU 27-14. The only other member of The AP Top Twenty to play over the weekend was No. 10 Purdue, which recaptured the Old Oaken Bucket, beating Indiana 20-7 and will meet Georgia Tech in the Peach Bowl.

Elsewhere, Rutgers, the host team in the new Garden State Bowl, was upset by Colgate 14-9; Arizona State, the visiting team in the Garden State Bowl, edged Arizona 18-17; Liberty Bowl-bound Louisiana State whipped Tulane 40-21; North Carolina State, PFF's Tangerine Bowl foe, shaded Virginia 24-21; Texas A & M, headed for the Hall of Fame Bowl, shaded Texas Christian 15-7, and Holiday Bowl host Brigham Young downed Hawaii 31-13.

Ed Smith threw three scoring passes and Steve Smith ran for a pair of touchdowns as Michigan State whipped Iowa. Short touchdown runs by Ben McCall and Walt Jones helped Purdue hold off Indiana.

- LSU's Charles Alexander rushed for 155 yards against Tulane, setting a Southeastern Conference career mark with 3,980.
- North Carolina State's Ted Brown gained 131 yards against Virginia for a career total of 4,602. No. 4 on the all-time list.
- Washington State's Jack Thompson broke Jim Phunkett's Pacific-10 pass yardage mark (he has 7,818) and tied the record for most scoring passes (53) in a 38-8 loss to Washington.

Lester Brown rushed for 121 yards, Steve Fuller gained 108 and Marvin Sims added 104 — and Brown scored three times — leading Clemson past arch-rival South Carolina. Carolina coach Jim Carlen called the Tigers "the best team

SWC's Final Look Remains In Doubt

By The Associated Press
The football year of 1978 in the Southwest Conference would press a fiction writer's talents but there's yet another chapter left for the story to get even more bizarre.

By all odds, Houston should put a large knot on the Rice Owls Saturday night and claim the SWC title and the host role in the Cotton Bowl opposite Notre Dame.

And Arkansas should put a similar bruise on the Texas Tech Red Raiders in Fayetteville where former Texas assistant coach Mike Campbell said it was like "parachuting into Russia."

Of course, Houston SHOULD have beaten Texas Tech Saturday and Texas SHOULD have beaten Baylor, by all odds.

That leaves this interesting parlay: Should Rice shock Houston (Baylor remembers Rice) and Tech survive in the Ozarks with a victory then the Red Raiders could wear their funny, old timey black jerseys in the Cotton Bowl New Year's day.

This was all made possible when full-back James Hadnot ran over two Houston defenders for a two-point conversion in Tech's 22-21 victory over the Cougars Saturday while down South senior Mickey Elam, who hadn't played quarterback since high school, led Baylor to a 38-14 slaughter of Texas.

In other games that tried to get out of hand but finally resorted to form, Arkansas overcame a two-touchdown deficit to whip SMU 27-14 and Texas A&M struggled to a 15-7 victory over TCU.

Houston has one SWC loss while Tech, Arkansas, and Texas each own two defeats. Tech would go to the Cotton Bowl even if Houston, Texas and the Raiders tie for the title.

Houston, of course, can put an end to all this conjecture with a victory over Rice and cougar Coach Bill Yeoman said he felt his team "had enough class" to bounce back from the Tech loss to do so.

"We better get ready for Rice," said Yeoman. "We will take the conference championship any way that we can get it. The kids, I'm sure, have enough class to be ready for the Rice game."

"We were not mentally ready to play Tech. The open date is no excuse. It's my fault that we did not go into the game in a better frame of mind."

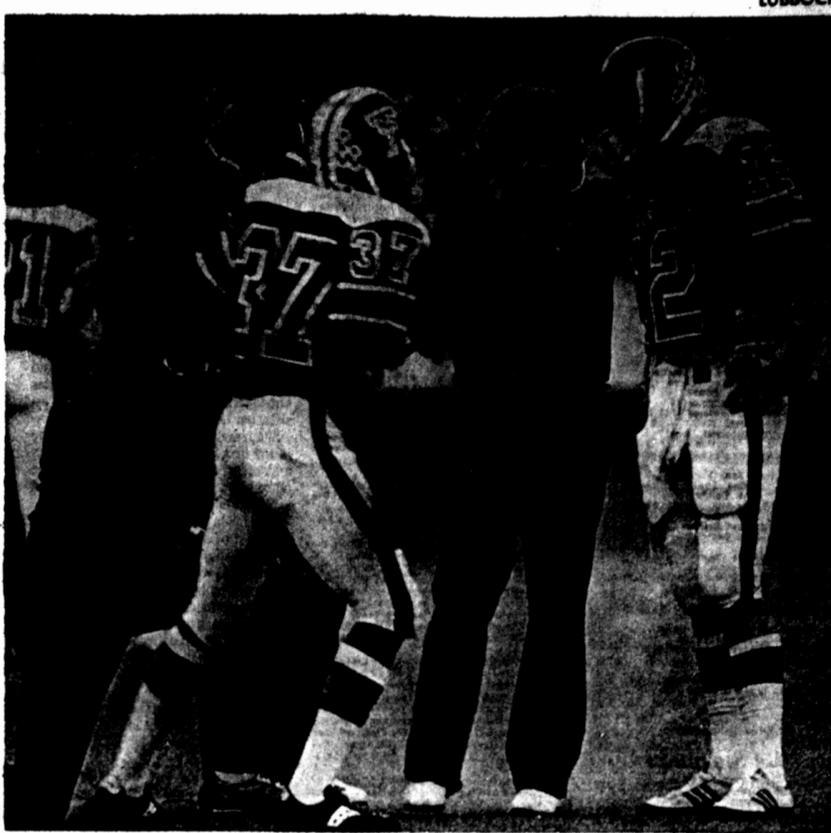

Two bowl teams play Friday in a nationally televised matchup when A&M comes calling at Austin to meet Texas.

The Longhorns may be without backup freshman quarterback Donnie Little for the rest of the year. He suffered a torn ligament in his left thumb and the injury may require surgery.

Snyder Rated Speedier Than Stockton Team

By BOB BAJACKSON

Saturday, Estacado fans were calling and blaming everybody from President Carter to the Avalanche-Journal because the Matadors must face the Snyder Tigers in Snyder Friday night in the Class AAA quarter-finals.

district tilt was played at Lowrey Field, this time it's Snyder's turn to host. Tickets for the 7:30 p.m. quarter-final contest went on sale this morning at Estacado High School and the Central Athletic Office on 19th Street. They cost $4 for adults, $1.50 for students prior to the game and $2.50 at the gate.

Lewis Kelley claimed the Matadors had more overall team speed. And that team speed knocked the ball loose six times. Estacado recovered five of the miscues and turned two into touchdowns. However, Kelley doesn't believe the same conditions hold true against Snyder.

Cowboy supporters like raindrops off a new wax job. Those big victories over the Packers, Saints and Redskins have Dallas fans riding high again, so it is unlikely they are trembling over the prospect of playing the Pats and the Jets.

Fortune favors the bold, though, Washington is having problems and may have more difficulty the next three weekends than Dallas. Not to mention being on the wrong end of the tie-breaker!

COWBOY PLAYERS are too smart to say so out loud, but secretly most of them probably are chortling over the new club rule barring the media from the locker room after games. It isn't that they don't appreciate the publicity and the attention, but getting trampled by a horde of scribblers and golden throats is something else.

Success has brought fame to the Cowboys, along with an army of newspaper and radio men who in recent years have turned the locker room into something of a battleground. With 45 players trying to get showered and dressed, while scores of media types mill around in the relatively small room, it is sheer chaos.

There has been no organization at all. Scribblers have drifted from one player to the other, asking the same questions time after time. The radio boys stick their mikes in the faces of Roger Staubach and Tony Dorsett and Drew Pearson, while those tired young men patiently repeat what they told another group just a minute earlier.

The Staubachs and the Dorsetts have had to wait for an hour to get their showers, after all the questioners from Waxahachie and San Antonio and KDUM finally get tired and go home.

Now the players can get showered and dressed without being hounded and trampled, all in the name of news coverage.

Dockery Lauds Entire Team After Shocker

By DON KEENEY
Executive Sports Editor

Now, Rex Dockery is not much of a name dropper; at least he wasn't Sunday while basking in the glow of Saturday's stunning 22-21 upset of fifth-ranked University of Houston.

"Whole team... entire team... they all played well. It's hard for me to single out any of them," said Tech's first-year coach after watching as his Raiders scored their sixth straight win and ran their record to 7-3.

"The defense played well, but the entire team did. Our defense did make big plays twice in the final minutes for the second game in a row."

And, now, the Cougars will have to win this week over Rice to go to the Cotton Bowl. Tech has a chance for that conference Promised Land, by playing the "if" game.

If Rice should upset the Cougars and Tech upset Arkansas, then the Raiders would get the invitation to play Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl.

"For our team, they're all big wins. If we were able to beat Arkansas, it would be a lift for our program. But, it was a big win last week over SMU."

But, the only bowl still within grasp is the Cotton, as all others are filled.

"Our defense has gotten better, though," said Dockery, showing the bowl talk aside. "It was the second good game for Willie Stephens (two interceptions and a fumble recovery against Houston). And (linebacker) Don Kelly continues to play well. Jim Verden (defensive tackle) played well."

"And Mike Patterson... Alan Swann goes out (ejected along with a Houston receiver in the third period) and Mike comes in and makes the interception that turns the game around."

Patterson's theft at the 5 prevented an almost sure score (field goal or TD) with Houston leading 21-14. Tech took the interception and turned it into the winning touchdown.

"But everybody contributed," said Dockery. "And that's the key to winning."

"Sure, they're all big, but I'd guess this was the biggest win of the year, considering they were nationally ranked."

Offensively, wide receiver Brian Nelson found holes in the UH secondary for six receptions worth 123 yards, the longest being worth 48 yards in that decisive TD drive.

And Brian was still playing with that bad shoulder (injured two weeks ago). Tech scored the winning 2-point conversion on what Dockery called a bootleg screen pass. "It had worked two or three times earlier for us. Once, we just dropped it or we could have gone for about 30 yards. It was a good play."

James Hadnot's fullback pass to Michael Morris which set up the game-matching TD was one Tech had tried once earlier this season but which didn't work that time. In fact, Hadnot said after Saturday's game that he had not been able to complete the pass in workouts.

Tech came out of the game with an assortment of injuries. Wide receiver Godfrey Turner was limping on a hurt ankle, safety Ted Watts came out with a leg injury. Hadnot had to come out for a time with a leg hurt, and quarterback Ron Reever sustained a rib injury. Also, seeing first aid was safety Johnny Quinlan, and linebacker Jeff Coffey.

Dockery said he didn't know and wouldn't until later in the week if any of the injuries will figure in next Saturday's finale.

LCHS To Appeal Contractual Matter

Lubbock Christian High School plans to appeal its 24-2 loss to Fort Worth Christian HS, but the appeal will be based on a contractual matter and not because of anything occurring during the game, Supt. Harley Teftiller said this morning.

The appeal came after the Saturday night game which decided the Texas Association of Private Schools football championship.

Teftiller emphasized that it had nothing to do with penalties, after LCHS drew 210 yards on 17 infractions and FWCHS was penalized six times for 59 steps.

leading rusher and scorer, and the only runner among the nation's top 50 backs to gain more than seven yards per carry.

NEW YORK — Penn State, the nation's No. 1-ranked football team, won the Lambert Trophy for the 10th time in the last 13 years as the outstanding major college team in the East. The Sugar Bowl-bound Nittany Lions, who defeated Pitt 17-10 Friday to close out an 11-0 regular season, received a perfect score of 40 points from a six-man committee.

AUSTIN — Richard Petty of Tandleman, N.C., broke a 44-year lull when he took the Arizona NAPA 250 NASCAR stock car race at Phoenix International Raceway. Petty had a winning time of 1:46.13 and averaged 88.122 mph in the 156 laps. In second place was Jimmy Insolo of Mission Hills, Calif., followed by Bobby Allison of Huerfano, Ala. Neil Bonnett, also of Huerfano, Ala., took fourth behind Allison, and Bill Schmitt of Redding, Calif., came in fifth.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Pole position starter Peter Gregg led all the way to capture the Camel GT 250, the season finale for International Motor Sports Association sports cars. Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla., averaged 117.846 mph, a record for the distance. Danny Ongais of Costa Mesa, Calif., finished 44 seconds off the pole. Both drove Porsche Turbos.

TENNIS
HELSINKI, Finland — Bjorn Borg of Sweden defeated Andre Panatta of Italy 6-3, 7-5, 6-4, 7-6 in a challenge match in the Helsinki Ice-Hall. In another match, Sandy Mayer of the United States beat Adriano Panatta of Italy 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

TOKYO — Jimmy Conn of the United States defeated second-seeded Harold Solomon 6-1, 2-4, 6-2 and Pacal beat top-seeded Corrado Barazzutti of Italy 6-4, 6-2.

BOLOGNA, Italy — Peter Fleming defeated Italy's Adriano Panatta 6-2, 7-4 after a tension-packed tiebreaker to win the $36,000 Italian Indoor Tennis Tournament. In the doubles final, Fleming and countryman John McEnroe scored an easy 6-1, 6-0 victory over Tonino Zugarelli of Italy and Jean Louis Haillet of France.

MAANILA, Philippines — Yannick Noah of France scored a 7-4, 6-0 victory over an injured Peter Fajol of Austria to win the singles title in the $15,000 Philippines International Tennis Tournament. Fajol suffered an ankle injury during the first tiebreaker match Saturday. The 20-year-old Clerc defeated second-seeded Harold Solomon 6-1, 2-4, 6-2 and Pacal beat top-seeded Corrado Barazzutti of Italy 6-4, 6-2.

MIVAZAKI, Japan — Andy Bean fired a final-round 3-under par 69 and coasted to a 5-stroke victory over Graham Marsh of Australia in a $300,000 international golf tournament. Bean, who led all the way, earned a first prize of $36,000. He had a 72-hole total of 275, 13-under par. American Bobby Wadkins and Bob Byman tied for third at 282.

Duke Subdues Pesky WKU

By The Associated Press
You really have to hand it to Duke's Jim Spanarkel... for the way he hands it to his teammates.

The gaddy of the nation's top-ranked team was in top form Saturday night, helping the Blue Devils get their season off on the right foot with a 78-53 rout of Western Kentucky.

"Spanarkel's like that — he gets in a tough situation and takes over," said Duke coach Bill Foster after watching his outstanding senior guard pile up eight assists, not to mention 25 points.

Spanarkel was at his sparkling best late in the first half when he scored 10 points and assisted on three baskets as Duke outscored the Hilltoppers 18-8 in the final seven minutes before intermission.

"I thought he had a great last 2 1/2 minutes in the first half," Foster said, "but I see that every day in practice."

Spanarkel was equally pleased with his efficiency as he was with that of his talented teammates.

"Our passing was our asset tonight," he said. "If we keep doing that, we're going to be pretty good."

Second-ranked UCLA got most everyone that impression, too, after rolling past DePaul 108-85. The Bruins rallied from an 11-point deficit in the first half to win it, spearheaded by David Greenwood's 28 points.

"We responded very well after we got down early in the first half," said UCLA coach Gary Cunningham. "I told my team not to try to catch up all at once, to be patient and it all would work out. That was a thrilling victory for us. I think DePaul will be very tough this season."

Three other of the nation's Top Twenty teams were entered in the Sea Wolf Classic in Anchorage, Alaska, over the weekend — and one in particular did not do very well. Tenth-ranked Indiana lost its first two games, to Pepperdine and Texas A&M, before finally winning one, an 86-65 decision over Penn State Sunday night behind Ray Tolbert's 14 points.

The championship was later decided when 12th-ranked North Carolina State upset fourth-ranked Louisville 73-66 behind Kendall Pinder and Clyde Austin. Pinder and Austin finished with 15 points each. Louisville's Bobby Turner led all scorers with 17 points.

In other Sea Wolf consolation games, Texas A&M blasted host Alaska-Anchorage 100-70 as Vernon Smith scored 28 points and Pepperdine held off Lamar 75-74 as Ricardo Brown and Ollie Matson each scored 18 points.

Indiana coach Bobby Knight had refused to speak to reporters after his first two losses, but he opened up a bit after the victory over Penn State. Knight's overall assessment of his team's play was unprintable, but when asked how the Hoosiers were from their potential, he said:

"About 14 light years. I don't think we've developed as a team. I've seen that for a month."

Dale Shackelford scored 20 points and Roosevelt Bouie had 19 in a balanced attack that helped ninth-ranked Syracuse beat Whittier 115-66. Thirteen of 14 Syracuse players scored in the season opener for both teams.

Bill Cartwright's 36 points and 14 rebounds led No. 17 San Francisco to a 91-68 victory over UC-Santa Barbara. The 7-1 senior center made 13 of his 19 floor attempts and all 10 of his free throw shots. Doug Jemison added 18 points and eight rebounds for the Dons.

"I can't complain about our performance for an opener on the road," said Dan Belluomini, the Dons' first-year head coach. "We made our share of mistakes but you have to expect that at this time of the year. What we did was physically control the game."

Nevada-Las Vegas, the nation's No. 20 team, beat surprisingly tough Stetson 84-83 on Tony Smith's 15-foot jump shot with 12 seconds left.

Scarred Couple Keep Guarded Optimism

By RAYMOND WILKINSON
NORTON, Rhodesia (UPI) — If there is any hope to be gleaned at all from the bloody guerrilla war in Rhodesia, it is perhaps the story of Bill Cumming and Camilla Brakenridge.

Several months ago as Cumming, his wife and children were visiting a neighbor's farm, guerrillas killed his wife and 15-year-old daughter.

Within a few days guerrillas raided another homestead nearby. Mrs. Brakenridge's husband and 15-year-old son were shot dead.

They were the only serious guerrilla incidents reported in this area, a rich farming community 30 miles west of the capital of Salisbury.

Recently the couple made headline news throughout the country. They got married and decided to settle down with their four children in the same area which only a few months early had brought such grief.

Sitting under a massive flame tree on the lawn of their 10,000 acre farm, the couple showed remarkably little rancor about the past and guarded optimism about the future.

Their pragmatic attitude was one of the few signs of optimism a visitor gleaned in Rhodesia that the situation could be salvaged and a solution between whites and blacks could still be worked out.

"The whole thing of uniting the two families was so obvious," Cumming said. "But it's still great how well it has worked out for us. If we could get a reasonably good African government, and that could even include (Joshua) Nkomo, then I see a fair future here for us."

Currency Changes Affect Reports

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL
The dollar may be getting more notice in some places, but in others it's getting less.

A year ago, in its report for the first three quarters of 1977, Eastman Kodak Co. said its earnings had been affected to the tune of $42 million because of changes in the value of currencies.

In its report for the first three quarters of this year, Kodak went back over the 1977 figures and said the effect then was $8.8 million.

What happened to $33.2 million? It got lost in the gaps of financial reporting.

The difference doesn't have anything to do with the profits Kodak reported, but it has a lot to do with what those figures mean. The net profits of $570 million in the first nine months of this year are still 37 percent better than the $417.3 million neted in through September of 1977.

The question, though, is how much those numbers are worth in stock market terms — how well do they reflect Kodak's business. And there, some experts say, lies a very big difference, indeed.

What Kodak did was simple. In 1977, it reported the effects of currency changes on both its balance sheet — things like accounts receivable and payable, cash on hand and the like — and on its profit-and-loss statement — sales, the cost of the goods sold, expenses, taxes and such.

Going back over it in 1978, the company reported only the effect on the balance sheet. The reports for the first three quarters didn't explain that the company decided to drop the other figure, but that's another problem.

The result isn't so simple. Stock market analysts break those profit-and-loss reports into two parts: operating and non-operating. They give operating results a much higher priority because they show how a company is doing in its main business — whether or not it's selling more, increasing or decreasing profit margins and so on.

Non-operating profits usually are one-shot affairs — the sale of a factory or real estate (provided it isn't a real estate company), interest income and, among other things, profits and losses from currency changes. The bottom line just adds them all together.

It may not sound like much, but in the stock market, where corporate managers sooner or later cash in on corporate success, the difference can be big. A couple of weeks ago, a trade publication said that International Business Machines Corp., which reported an 18 percent gain in earnings for the third quarter, would have had a plus of only 2 percent if not for the gains on currency exchanges. The stock fell 4 and one-half points on the report.

The change in reporting takes away a valuable tool of securities analysts. In Kodak's case, it's even more of a loss because that company has been breaking out the currency figures for years.

Robert Olstein of the Quality of Earnings Report, for one, says he thinks the change was made because Kodak (like many other multi-national companies) had large gains from currency differences this year and losses in 1977. If that's so, it means that, while the bottom line figures don't change, the company's actual improvement over last year — the increase in its basic business — isn't as much as the numbers indicate. Olstein says he thinks the company wanted analysts to know the figures last year — the currency losses cut profits, but doesn't report them. The company's earnings reports, says Olstein, are not intended to report the effects of currency changes. John Canal, who was project manager for developing FAS and currency changes on Kodak's balance sheet, says he's frustrated by the company's decision to drop the other figure. Canal says, though, that it's the company's job to show that the numbers can't be reported. And while he wouldn't comment on Kodak's report, he agreed that a company that has been reporting the figure as Kodak has done had an even greater burden of proof.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll learn of something by accident tomorrow. You'll know how to put it to good use. The obvious might have eluded others, but not you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A successful departure from your usual style of doing something might surprise others. Actually, it won't be rash behavior on your part — long hours of study will go into it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Snap up an opportunity to team up with one who usually works alone. Your goals will be in complete accord. There'll be no problem with the association.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may be asked to make a serious decision tomorrow, but you won't be at a loss. Past experience and knowledge will aid you in making the right move.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Sudden changes or challenges requiring quick action won't faze you tomorrow. You'll be up to meeting and overcoming the most difficult problems.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An old pal who always seems to be around when you need her won't fail you tomorrow. She'll come into the picture right on cue.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although you most often prefer being where the action is, tomorrow you'll be happiest by the fire-side. Even domestic chores will be fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An unexpected opportunity will present itself to discuss with a friend something that's been on your mind for a long time. It should do you good to air the matter.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A family member (one you'd least suspect) could make it possible tomorrow for you to obtain something you've wanted for a long time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Problem-solving will be your cup of tea tomorrow. What you tackle you'll handle with the firmness and persistence necessary to effect a successful conclusion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Tomorrow, when you need them the most, the seeds you've planted will bear fruit with a bountiful harvest. You may have long-since given up receiving a return.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your practical approach to a situation that has been bugging everyone else will bring you to the fore tomorrow. It would be an honor well-earned.

Items To Make Toys Found In Kitchen

By SHARI LEWIS

Wouldn't it be perfect to be able to walk into a toy store and know that all the toys were free? Well, your kitchen is a perfect free toy shop! You can make toys out of empty paper towels rolls, toothpicks, paper plates and, best of all, paper cups!

Here's Catch-A-Cup, a good game for when you're alone or with friends. Go into the kitchen and get three big paper cups (the 9 oz. size is best). You can play with used cups, too, and then you won't feel guilty about wasting four or five of them as you play.

Tie a long piece of string to one end of a pencil. To the other end of the string, tie a paper clip. Bend one end of the clip open so that it forms a hook. Now poke a hole (a big one, the size of a quarter) in each cup. That's where you will try to catch your hook. You can play blindfolded or not — depending upon how good you get. Whoever catches the most cups within a certain period of time is the winner. (If you can find a kitchen timer, you might give each player one minute. Otherwise, the person who is not "catching" can count quickly but clearly to 100.)

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: When a bicycle race ended, there were four bicycles in front of a bicycle, four cars behind a bicycle and a bicycle in the middle. How many bicycles finished the race? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Lava Rocks Returned

HONOLULU (AP) — Madame Pele, the Hawaiian volcano goddess, is starting to get some respect from souvenir-hunting tourists.

Dozens of visitors who have removed volcanic rocks are mailing them back — fearful of the legend that Madame Pele brings misfortune to those who remove the lava.

One woman wrote that a week after she removed some lava she had appendicitis, flunked chemistry, broke her ski boots, damaged her car and broke up with her boyfriend.

"I give up. Take your rock. Can I have my luck back?" she pleaded.

Until recently, Hawaii Volcanoes National Park received about five to seven rock-bearing boxes a day from superstitious or repentant tourists. But that was before The Associated Press carried a story about the problems that struck Ralph Loffert of Lancaster, N.Y., and his family after they took six small sandwich containers full of lava rocks home as souvenirs.

After returning home, the Lofferts' four children suffered an assortment of sprains, broken bones, infections and other accidents.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Mart Posts Gain At Noon

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market gained more ground today with support from continued strength in the dollar in foreign exchange.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 1.82 at 811.94. Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 2-1 margin in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow has risen about 25 points since it hit a seven-month low at mid-November, helped by a rally in the dollar that began when the government took several steps to support the U.S. currency early in the month.

The market lately has shrugged off news of steady upward pressure on interest rates, which pushed the bank prime lending rate to 11 1/2 percent by the end of last week.

But brokers noted that it faces some further potential obstacles in the days ahead. More bad inflation news is expected Tuesday with the monthly report on the consumer price index.

Gambling stocks, which have rallied lately after a steep drop from their early autumn peaks, dominated the active list again today.

Bally Manufacturing, the volume leader, climbed 1 1/4 to 4 1/2; Caesar's World picked up 2 1/2 to 27; Del E. Webb was up 1/2 at 16 1/2; and Playboy Enterprises rose 1/4 to 16 1/4.

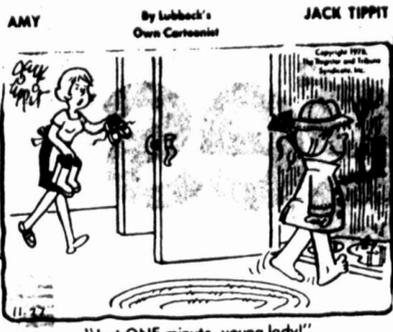

The NYSE's composite index rose .07 to 53.51. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed .46 to 149.05.

Volume on the Big Board came to 3.7 million shares at noon, up from 3.6 million at the same point Friday.
