NEWS IN BRIEF

President Tito

Memorial unveiled

JABLANICA, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito, who led his partisan army in a historic battle here 35 years ago, returned to this southwestern Yugoslav town Sunday to dedicate a memorial.

Dressed in his pale blue marshal's uniform, the 86-year-old president unveiled a monument on Mt. Makljen, overlooking the Neretva river.

Refugees refused

PORT KLANG, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysian navy engineers were making repairs today to a freighter anchored in Port Klang with more than 2,500 ethnic Chinese from Vietnam crammed aboard, and officials said again they would not be allowed to land in Malaysia. The repairs delayed the ship's departure, which had been expected today.

Testing slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be more federal testing of potentially toxic chemicals being released into the environment under a new government program.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare on Sunday announced the formation of the National Toxicology Program. The program, intended to expand the scope of current testing, will draw its $40 million first year budget from the four HEW agencies already involved in the field: the National Cancer Institute, the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health and the Food and Drug Administration.

Carters separate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's son Chip and his wife Caron have separated after five years of marriage, the first lady's office announced today.

Mary Hoyt, press secretary to Rosalynn Carter, issued a statement saying Caron and the couple's young son, James Earl IV, will move back to Georgia.

Chip will remain at the White House and continue to work for the Democratic National Committee.

There was no word as to whether a divorce is planned.

Nugent resigns

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Pat Nugent has resigned as general manager of radio station KLBJ, which is owned by the family of former President Lyndon B. Johnson, a station spokesman said Monday.

Nugent said in a memo to the staff of the station last week that he was leaving "to pursue other business interests."

Peace talks still stalled on Palestinian dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mideast peace talks remained deadlocked over the Palestinian issue today despite a concerted U.S. effort to keep a partially completed treaty between Egypt and Israel from unraveling.

President Carter's personal intervention with President Anwar Sadat and Prime Minister Menachem Begin and a compromise American proposal on the Palestinians Sunday failed to bring a quick end to the impasse.

And there were indications other provisions of the historic agreement that had seemed nailed down were becoming embroiled in the controversy that was focused principally on whether the treaty should be tied to future negotiations over the Palestinians.

This raised the possibility that the agreement could unravel further if compromises were not struck soon on the Palestinians and on details of Israel's transfer of Sinai oil fields to Egyptian control.

Morocco's King Hassan II said in an interview published today by The New York Times that Sadat had told him he had received guarantees from Carter that Israeli occupied East Jerusalem would be returned to the Arabs and that the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip eventually would become independent.

Hassan, who was en route to the United States today, was quoted by the Times as saying Sadat reported the assurances when he stopped in Morocco on the way back from the Camp David talks in September.

The Times quoted unnamed administration officials as denying that Carter had given the Egyptian president any secret guarantees or commitments.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, after a late Sunday session with Begin at Kennedy Airport in New York, refused to abandon hope of completing the accord, which only a week ago appeared within grasp.

"I believe," he said, "that peace can be achieved between the parties. I believe that they both sincerely want peace, that people of both their nations want peace."

"That being the case," Vance said, "I believe that peace can be achieved."

San Angelo now focus of search for Midlanders

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

Focus of a search for a Midland woman with five children and the car they were last seen in, shifted to San Angelo today.

The woman and children were last seen in north Midland Saturday afternoon, said officers.

Midland police said a missing persons bulletin has been issued to law enforcement agencies across the nation in an effort to find Mrs. Tom (Sue) Briscoe and the children.

A vehicle fitting the description of the auto which Mrs. Briscoe, 36, of the 3800 block of West Kansas Avenue and five children were last seen in was sighted about 11:30 p.m. Sunday in San Angelo by staff members of the Holiday Inn, San Angelo police said today.

Mrs. Briscoe was driving a brown 1976 station wagon, said officers.

Her two children, Sharon, 5, and Paul, 9, were with her, as were three other children from the neighborhood: Corrie Black, 4, a niece, Jeffrey Green, 9, and Matthew Jones, 12, according to Midland Police Department officers.

Police said Mrs. Briscoe and the children left their homes about 1:45 p.m. Saturday. They were scheduled to see a children's play at Midland Community Theatre.

Officers said Mrs. Briscoe was to have picked up one other child.

However, authorities said, the woman and children never arrived at the other house or at MCT.

Police said today there was no evidence a crime has been committed.

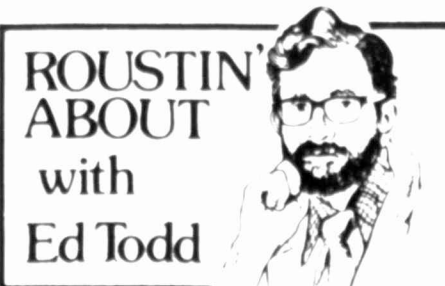

"When a woman who appears to be responsible turns up missing with five kids, it's scary," said Det. Sgt. Bill Boyd of the Midland Police Department.

"But there hasn't been any indication of foul play, although there is always the possibility," he said.

Boyd said today the FBI had not been called into the case "to the best of my knowledge."

Authorities are looking into the possibility Mrs. Briscoe might be en route to Raleigh, N.C., Boyd said.

Police are asking persons who have any information concerning the missing persons to call the Detective Division of the Midland Police Department at 683-4281.

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

CRANE — Murry Ford wasn't 100 percent positive what he was leading up to, but he for sure was leading up to something.

"He doesn't tell jokes. He doesn't tell risqué stories," he said of the visitor with the cane, who was eating heartily at the head table.

The visitor's name was Lee Herring, as in kipper, and his game the other night was spouting bromides turned into jokes to gain chuckles.

Ford's task for the night was the emceeing of the annual Crane Chamber of Commerce banquet. On weekdays, he's paid to run the school system.

So Ford, doing his duty, went on and on about Herring's background and credentials. The folks in the audience might as well know something about the man they were going to listen to after the food, awards, and fanfare had passed.

Herring is a Grand Prairie banker. He speaks at dinner functions about 100 times a year, is a Mason, citizen of the year, husband, father, and, at 62, has picked up a little wisdom and some foolishness along the way.

Ford sat down.

Herring, ignoring his cane and satiated with steak and rolls, stepped up to the lectern and "shot down" Ford.

"Thank you," he told the emcee.

"You appear to be a man who doesn't get a chance to talk much at home."

Laughter.

The after-dinner talk was, at best, 5 percent lightly serious stuff and 95 percent second-hand anecdotes.

Herring's line-up of jokes took in much of the predictable: the dead jackass; the woman who was as "ugly as home-made soap"; the fat general; religion and wives and something about Bull Durham roll-your-own smoking tobacco.

"I smoked so much of it," Herring jested, "everytime I passed a heffer, she'd wink at me."

In truth or with his joker's license entitling him to exaggerate, Herring told of San Angelo's mayor lauding at another chamber banquet just how very close the city of San Angelo is to a Heaven on earth.

"If San Angelo had plenty of rain and good people, we'd be the garden spot of Texas," the mayor allowed.

"And that's all hell needs," quipped Herring.

Another of Herring's targets was the barber's pole.

This one-armed fellow enters a barber shop, sits in the barber's chair and the barber cranks up the idle conversation.

"Sir," said the barber to customer, "haven't I worked on you before?"

"No," came the reply, "I lost this arm in a saw mill."

That's how the joking side of the evening went. And the anecdotes got chuckles from the hospitable Crane crowd.

Occasionally, Herring would toss in a morsel of after-dinner wisdom.

They went like this:

—On getting ahead: "You have to have the enthusiasm of a jitterbug."

—On the big chance: "Their opportunities will be just as great as your abilities will allow."

—On value of the reputation: "The name that I have being a banker...I take pride in," said Herring, who's a senior vice president of a Grand Prairie bank. "I'm in a position of trust...Money doesn't buy this. The name is important."

Any after-dinner speaker would be remiss were he to neglect his wife. Herring, of course, didn't.

He said he and the missus go out to dine twice a month.

"I go on the first, and she goes on the 15th."

Some Iranian workers return to oil fields

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Production at Iran's strikebound oil fields inched upward today as a handful of workers joined foreign experts and military technicians in working the wells of the world's second largest oil exporting nation.

The official Iranian news agency said most of Iran's 37,000 oil workers defied a military government order to end their two-week-old strike, but the few who did return helped boost production to 2.7 million barrels a day.

Oil workers struck Oct. 31 for higher pay and in support of a swelling wave of opposition to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's government by conservative Moslem religious leaders demanding reversal of the ruler's westernization program and leftists demanding democratic reforms to replace his authoritarian rule.

The Pars news agency said 20 persons were killed in weekend demonstrations against the shah's government.

The state oil company said 600,000 barrels would go for domestic consumption and the other 2.1 million would be pumped into tankers already waiting at the Persian Gulf terminal in southern Iran.

While the oil strike continued, workers in Tehran failed to heed a call for a one-day general strike to demonstrate opposition to the shah. The government apparently discouraged would-be strikers by putting large numbers of troops on the streets.

However, in one instance police had to escort 200 American communications technicians away from a crowd of angry Iranians at the telecommunications center in Tehran. There was no immediate word of what prompted the confrontation.

The Americans work for a number of subsidiaries of Bell Laboratories, according to spokesman Irv Sternberg of American Bell International, in South Plainfield, N.J. Sternberg said Bell has a $16 billion series of agreements with Iran to upgrade the country's communications systems over a 10-year period.

Despite threats of dismissal and arrest, only a handful of oil workers complied with an order from the National Iranian Oil Co., the government monopoly, to return to work by 7 a.m. Sunday.

Iranian oil officials believed more strikers would go back to work in a day or two. But some foreign personnel were doubtful.

The shah authorized a 22.5-percent pay increase last week, but the workers demanded release of all political prisoners, an end to martial law and the expulsion of foreigners from the oil industry.

About 2,000 foreign employees and 400 Iranian army and naval technicians were at work in the industry preventing a total shutdown.

Iran is the world's second largest exporters of crude oil and a major supplier of Western Europe, South Africa and Israel. Its customers have turned to reserves stockpiled in expectation of a price increase at the end of the year.

The new military government of Gen. Gholam-Reza Azhari, named by the shah last week after bloody rioting against his rule, was strengthened by the failure of exiled Moslem leader Ayatollah Khomeini's call for a one-day general strike in Tehran to support his campaign for the overthrow of the shah.

Most shops and businesses were open, and government agencies and public utilities operated normally.

Khomeini, the leader of Iran's 32 million Shiite Moslems, said in an interview in Paris that President Carter's "protection of the shah is complicating the current crisis in Iran."

"The American president should quickly realize that his protection of the shah serves neither the Iranian people nor the United States," he told the Paris Arabic newspaper Al-Mostakbal.

Pars reported nine persons killed Saturday in clashes between troops and anti-shah demonstrators, and the opposition National Front claimed eight others were killed.

Pars said six persons, including an army sergeant, were killed and 23 demonstrators injured in Khorramshahr.

Ban on disposal of brine upheld

By MARK VOGLER
R-T Staff Writer

The Texas Railroad Commission meeting today in Austin denied a request by three oil operators to lift a three-week ban on brine disposal operations at Whalen Lake in Andrews County.

In making their decision, commissioners turned down recommendations from the staff of the agency's oil and gas division which suggested Whalen Corp., Phillips Petroleum Co. and Petroleum Corp. of Texas be allowed to resume brine disposal pending a final ruling of the commission.

James B. Peden, the commission's senior hearing examiner, said in a telephone interview today that the shutdown will probably continue for at least four to six weeks.

Commissioners suspended operations at the playa lake, located 15 miles west of Andrews, on Oct. 23 after receiving a report from Chief Engineer Bob R. Harris that "little or no progress had been made toward elimination of substantial pollution" at Whalen Lake.

The three companies, citing a loss of up to 42,000 barrels of oil in Permian Basin per month as a consequence of the shutdown, had requested after the Oct. 26 hearing that the permits be reinstated until the commission rendered its final ruling.

However, Commission Chairman Mack Wallace and Commissioner Jon Newton denied the requests at this morning's regular administrative meeting. Commissioner John H. Poerner did not attend the meeting. He reportedly was in Houston undergoing a medical checkup.

During today's meeting, Peden told commissioners that samples taken at Whalen Lake prior to the Oct. 26 show-cause hearing revealed that Phillips Petroleum Co. was discharging 8.9 parts per million of pollutants while Petroleum Corp. of Texas was discharging pollutants into the lake at a level of 51.4 parts per million.

Peden said that, according to the samples report, Whalen Corp., a subsidiary of Triton Oil and Gas of Dallas, was discharging up to a rate of 491 parts per million. "Due to the large number of (oil) wells facing shutdown for lack of alternative disposal points," Peden reported, "it is recommended that Peppo (Petroleum Corp. of Texas) and Phillips be authorized to resume disposal immediately and that Whalen Corp. be authorized to continue, subject to oil and gas content of not more than 20 parts per million and initiation of clean-up of operation."

The commission, which plans to hold a Nov. 28 hearing in Austin on the setting of new regulations governing disposal levels, considers 20 to 25 parts per million as "acceptable" amounts of pollutants.

It was also learned that the commission is considering a study of other playa lakes in West Texas which currently are being used for brine disposal. Commissioner Poerner said in a recent interview that the commission does not intend to limit its concern to Whalen Lake.

"We're going to apply the same standards to everyone. We don't intend to single out this one lake and let everyone else off free," Poerner said.

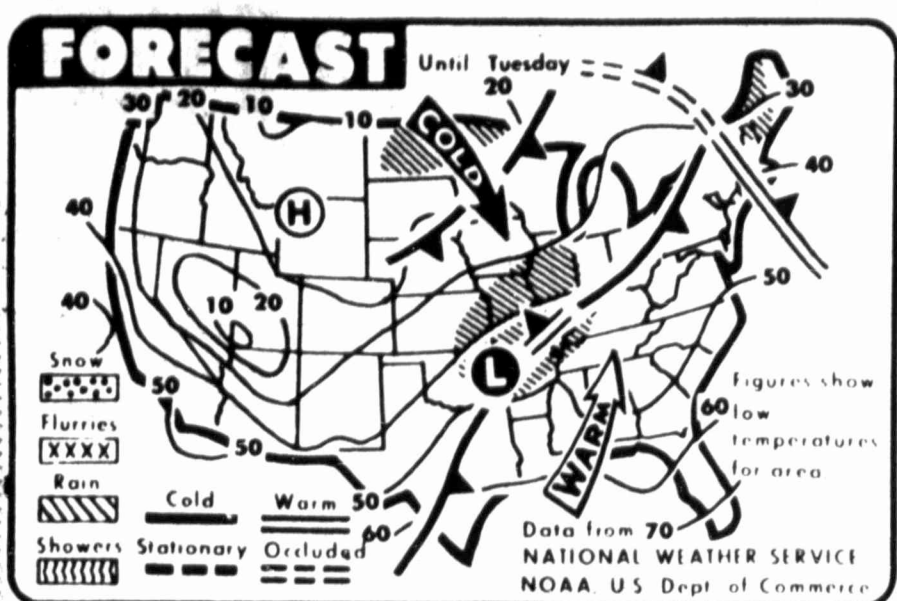

Also, the Texas Department of Water Resources reportedly has completed an investigation of Cedar Lake, in the vicinity of Seminole, where a larger brine disposal facility is in operation. The agency had received several complaints about alleged pollution there, according to officials.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Environmental Defense Fund, a Washington, D.C.-based legal consultant group, has said that group has joined Defenders of Wildlife, also of Washington, in preparing a federal court suit to be filed later this year against all parties involved in the alleged pollution of playa lakes in West Texas.

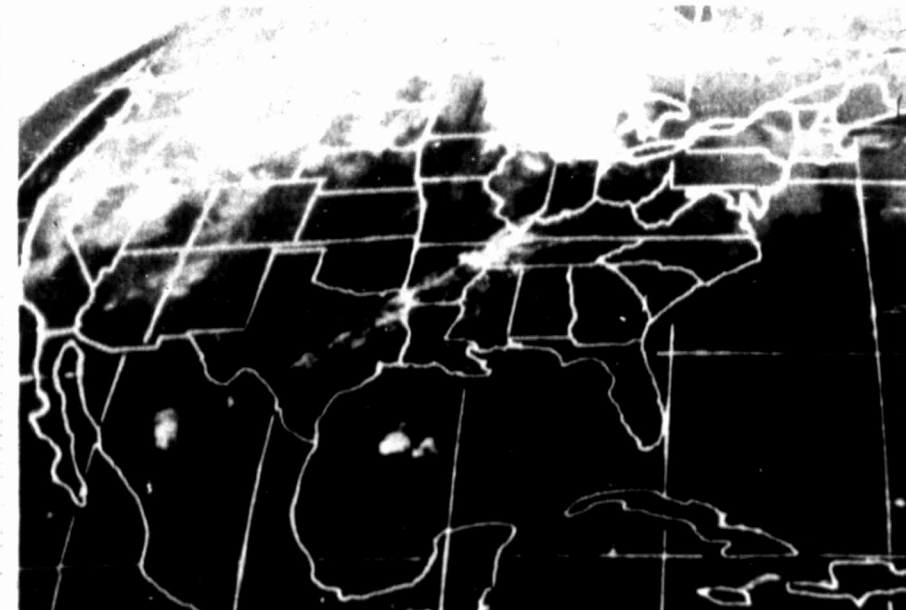

The groups contend that wide-scale contamination of groundwater and the deaths of migratory waterfowl are resulting from pollution of the playa lakes — both in alleged violation of federal and state laws.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency also has launched a probe of those allegations.

Confederate currency now worth a bundle at auctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. dollar may be lagging, but Confederate money, such as its highest value since Lee's surrender in 1865 made rebel cash as prime as expired cents-off coupons.

Lamesa group plans banquet for Mahons

LAMESA — U.S. Rep. George H. Mahon, the dean of the U.S. Congress, and Helen, his wife of 55 years, will be honored in an "appreciation banquet" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday by the Lamesa Area Chamber of Commerce and the Board of City Development.

More than 360 people are to join in the banquet in the Lamesa High School Student Center to honor the Mahons. Tickets have been sold out, and none will be available at the door.

Mahon is retiring from office Dec. 31, at the end of this term, following 44 years in the U.S. Legislature. He opted not to seek re-election and is being succeeded by Kent Hance, 35, a Lubbock attorney and a Democrat.

Lamesa attorney Ray Renner will emcee the banquet, and music will be provided by the Lamesa Slumtown Symfunny, directed by Richard Crawley of Taos, N.M., and formerly of Lamesa.

The Symfunny has been performing since 1949 and is made up of brass instruments, piano, drums and strings, including the bass fiddle and fiddles.

Mahon, 78, a Democrat from Lubbock, first was elected to the U.S. Congress in November 1934, and continuously has represented the 17-county 19th Congressional District, which takes in Andrews, Bailey, Castro, Cochran, Deaf Smith, Gaines, Hale, Hockley, Lamb, Lubbock, Martin, Midland, Parmer, Terry, Yoakum counties and parts of Dawson and Ector counties. The district contains 477,000 people.

Mahon has been chairman of the powerful 55-member House Appropriations Committee since 1964. The committee, which is Congress's largest, annually screens requests for funds for operation of the federal government.

He became a member of that committee in 1939, and began his service on the War (now, Defense) Department sub-committee in 1940.

He was chairman of the Joint Senate-House Committee on Reduction of Federal Expenditures from 1966 to 1975.

The congressman is a member of Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

In 1934, Mahon was elected to the then newly-created 19th Congressional District and has been elected at two-year intervals since that time.

Mahon and his wife have a daughter, Daphne Holt of Dallas, and three grandchildren.

Unlike some motorists in Rapid City, S.D. cross-country skiers had little trouble getting around this weekend. This bunch, in fact, seemed to rather side in an airport lounge crammed with reporters and television cameras, spoke almost inaudibly. He said "problems" remained but that Israel still hopes for a settlement.

Peace talks remain deadlocked

On the Palestinian issue, Begin reiterated Israel's commitment to negotiate with Egypt on the disposition of the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza district — but apart from the current treaty negotiations.

"There was never any doubt," he said, that Israel will follow through on its commitment. Israel has promised full autonomy to the 1.1 million Palestinians living in the territories.

But he refused, in responding to reporters' questions, to accept any "linkage" between the treaty and the second round of negotiations or to agree that the commitment should appear in the treaty itself.

"It has not yet been decided," Begin said.

Vance told reporters the talks would continue in Washington. But U.S. officials said no talks involving Vance were scheduled today.

Sadat, through his negotiators, introduced demands last Thursday that the treaty package contain specific commitments — including a timetable — from Israel for setting up a Palestinian authority to govern the West Bank and Gaza.

After long sessions with Israeli negotiators over the weekend — the one Saturday night lasted past midnight — Vance presented a compromise proposal to Begin. While the details were not disclosed, it was known to be language intended for the treaty's preamble.

There was no indication from Begin or Vance that the compromise had been accepted, although Begin may have held back a final response until he meets with the Israeli Cabinet later this week. He flew home after the session with Vance.

Carter intervened Sunday with telephone calls to Begin, who was then in Toronto completing an official visit to Canada, and to Sadat in Cairo.

Al-Ahram, an authoritative Egyptian newspaper, said that Carter, in a message to Sadat, had offered a number of proposals to keep the peace talks from breaking down. These included an Israeli military pullback in Sinai, ground rules for diplomatic relations between the two countries and free Israeli access to the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba.

On oil, one of the principal stumbling blocks, Carter reportedly suggested that Israel compensate Egypt for using the Alma fields, with the amount to be determined by joint committees.

Until late last week, the issue had rivaled the Palestinian problem as an impediment to completing the treaty. The fields, which Israel would return along with the rest of the Sinai, provide about 20,000 barrels of oil a day.

Israel wants compensation for developing the fields and a promise from Egypt that it could buy oil from them. Egypt, on the other hand, wants compensation for the oil Israel has pumped out.

Despite negotiating difficulties, the two sides were understood to have all but completed military annexes to the treaty. These provide for Israeli withdrawal, security measures and the setting up of demilitarized and "thinned-out" zones in the desert.

According to Israeli television, Israeli warships would be allowed to use the Suez Canal and Egyptian warplanes one of the three Sinai airfields that Israel would relinquish intact but after removing all equipment.

Research group cites program flaw

WASHINGTON (AP) — Price increases for four of life's necessities — food, shelter, medical care and energy — are usually not covered by President Carter's anti-inflation program, a research group says.

The Exploratory Project for Economic Alternatives said Sunday that the cost of these necessities was increasing 11.6 percent annually during the first nine months of the year.

The research group works together with a coalition of labor and consumer groups that complain Carter's voluntary wage-price restraints will do little about the rising prices of economic necessities.

Gar Alperovitz, an economist and co-director of the research group, advocates an approach to fighting inflation that stresses necessities.

Alperovitz has suggested more than 100 programs to lessen what he calls corporations' excessive economic and political power. These programs include national health insurance and controls on oil and gas prices.

The 11.6 percent increase in prices for necessities compares to a 9.3 percent increase in the consumer price index in the first nine months of the year, the study said. At the same time, the annual rate of price increases for non-necessities has been 5.2 percent, it said.

The research group said that four out of five American families spend nearly 70 percent of their consumption expenditures on life's necessities.

"The guidelines won't get at most monthly housing costs caused by high interest rates, nor at much food inflation where the beef cycle will be the main contributor. This means that much of the problem in the two biggest items in the family budget won't be covered. With natural gas decontrol and an expected OPEC oil price increase, energy will be going up too," the study said.

Alperovitz is also special adviser to Consumers Opposed to Inflation in the Necessities, a coalition of labor and consumer groups including the AFL-CIO and Ralph Nader's Congress Watch.

The coalition is drawing up proposals aimed at controlling inflation in the prices of necessities in addition to the 100 measures suggested by Alperovitz. It has denounced Carter's program, saying that holding down prices for such luxuries as yachts will do little for most Americans.

FTC report says buyers should be informed about used car defects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Used car salesmen sell so many "lemons" that the government should require them to tell buyers about defects, a Federal Trade Commission staff report said today.

The 564-page report, summarizing five years of investigation and hearings, said the sale of unsound cars is "a major consumer abuse ... affecting the basic safety or utility of the most expensive item many consumers will ever buy."

Typically, used cars are sold with an oral promise to make any necessary repairs after the sale, but with a written disclaimer that the sales are "as is," the FTC staff said.

Later a salesman often refuses to make repairs and the customer suffers "insurmountable difficulties in proving the oral promises," the report said.

The staff proposed that used car dealers be required to inspect the cars they sell and to disclose what they find in forms posted on vehicle windows. A car's brakes, steering, engine and transmission would be described in writing as "OK" or "Not OK."

For those items marked "Not OK," a written estimate of repair costs would be required.

The rule would not mean the defects would have to be repaired, only that they be disclosed in writing. One goal of the proposed regulation would be easing the task of consumers trying to prove they had been lied to.

The staff also proposed that dealers be required to state whether a car's odometer had been set back.

The proposed regulation, which requires the approval of the five-member commission before it could take effect, would not apply to sales by private individuals.

Industry associations opposed the proposal, as they did at earlier staff hearings into used car sales.

Robert P. Mallon, president of the National Automotive Dealers Association, said used car prices would jump an average $200 under the regulation.

He said the inspection requirement "will drive costs up for dealers, which will be passed along to buyers."

He also charged the FTC will exceed its authority if it approves the proposal. This subject may be the basis for a future challenge in court by the NADA, which represents 21,000 new-car dealers, most of which also sell used cars.

John Hill says recounts possible in 42 counties

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Recounts of last Tuesday's voting in the governor's and U.S. Senate races may be asked in 42 Texas counties where voting machines and punch card machines were used, Attorney General John Hill said today.

"We've heard a lot of questions about returns in the machine counties and we just want to be sure," Hill told The Associated Press. "These petitions were delivered yesterday to our coordinators in 42 counties, and I assume most of them will file them today. I think the (Bob) Krueger people did the same thing."

Hill said the recount petitions were sent out "with instructions for local coordinators to file them today. We told them if there were questions to call the Austin office."

Hill said the counties where recounts will be asked include Dallas and Harris counties.

Today was the deadline for filing of recount petitions in those counties where voting machines were used.

October burn victim dies

One of four children burned in a house fire Oct. 14 in Midland has died at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio.

Araceli Amescuita, 11, daughter of Eljida Amescuita of 423 S. Magnolia Ave., died Sunday at the center.

The other three girls, Blanca Amescuita, 14, Marisella Amescuita, 8, and Rosa Galindo, 14, daughter of Elisa Reinoso of 1106 W. New Jersey Ave., still are listed in serious condition at the San Antonio hospital.

A fund to help with expenses for the families has been set up at Midland National Bank.

October burn

bring $5,000 or $6,000 at auction in crisp, uncirculated condition.

Half the increase occurred in the last two years when the purchasing power of the U.S. dollar skidded by about 17 percent, he said.

The most available Confederate item, the 1864 Richmond (Va.) $10 bill, is now worth $2 apiece after selling for 60 or 70 cents in large bundles in 1970, said Ball.

Even in 1976, scarcer issues were boasting hefty pricetags. The $2 bill of 1862, bearing a vignette of "Confederacy Striking Down the Union," was valued in 1976 at $40 uncirculated, according to "Confederate States of America Paper Money," by Arlie R. Slabough.

Rain spatters Basin Sunday

A little rain spattered the Permian Basin Sunday night, and the weatherman was calling for a 30 percent chance of showers in the area Tuesday.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport reported .01 inch of rainfall over a 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

Most other communities in the area reported a trace of rain or mist with cool and cloudy weather early today.

Tonight's low was expected to be in the upper 40s. Tuesday's high was expected to be in the upper 60s.

The forecast calls for southwest winds at 5 to 10 mph tonight.

Overcast skies with cool weather predominated across the Permian Basin Sunday.

The National Weather Service reported a high of 63 degrees for Sunday at the airport. The record high for Nov. 12 is 84 degrees set in 1938. The overnight low was 57 degrees. The record low for today is 15 degrees set in 1976.

Now that he can read and write, 82-year-old's not an easy mark

CHICAGO (AP) — McKinley Wright was an easy mark. The 82-year-old couldn't read or reckon: his bills, price tags and even the change in his pocket were a mystery, and his money seemed to disappear.

He got a $150 telephone bill although he never made a call — he couldn't read the numbers on the dial. And when he cashed his Social Security check a big stack of $1 bills seemed like a fair amount — he couldn't tell a $1 from a $10.

Then several months ago a homemaker assistant began calling on the former janitor at the housing project where he lives on Chicago's South Side, helping him to clean up the small, cluttered apartment.

She discovered a $150 telephone bill — a bill Wright couldn't read. The calls, Wright said when she explained the bill, were made by a burglar while he was hospitalized.

She found Wright couldn't read or write, and knew nothing of numbers. So she made flash cards, and they went to work.

"Everybody was taking advantage of Mr. Wright," the homemaker assistant, Annette Barrett, told Chicago Tribune columnist Anne Keegan.

"They'd give him the money (from his Social Security check) in a big stack of $1 bills so it would look like a lot of money. ... So that's where his money was going," she said.

As the weeks passed, Wright learned to read a few words and to recognize the numbers from 1 through 100. And he learned how to write his name — skills he passed up to work in the fields as a boy.

Not long ago his big day came. Old McKinley Wright, who everyone knew couldn't read, write or count and would never catch you cheating, went to a neighborhood store to cash his monthly check.

Instead of marking his customary X, he wrote his name.

His tutor recalled: "The cashier's eyes just about bugged out of his head. He knew then something had happened to Mr. Wright and he had to be very careful. He gave Mr. Wright his money and Mr. Wright counted it out very slowly.

"It must have taken him 20 minutes but he stood right there and counted out loud and didn't move until he counted it out and it was right.

"When he left, the cashier was so shocked he came out of the store and watched us walk away down the street. He knew the free ride was over.

Clements' TV blitz aided election

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Governor-elect Bill Clements' campaign manager said Sunday his "strategy group" decided in August to advance his television blitz by a month after finding his name identification to be low.

Nola Haerle disclosed some of Clements' tactics and talked about the big spending in his campaign on Capital Eye, a radio-television interview show.

Clements spent almost $7 million on his campaign, and Mrs. Haerle said about 60 percent went for advertising.

She said his strategists realized in August that Clements "was not going to be competitive by Labor Day, a campaign goal, if we did not put television on a month early, and we did so in the month of August in strictly the context of name identification."

Mrs. Haerle predicted donations would start flowing now that Clements was elected and would help pay-off the almost $4 million he borrowed for the campaign.

"It is traditional that once candidates are elected ... money suddenly shows up in the campaign coffers, and I don't expect that he will have any trouble," she said.

She said heavy spending is necessary in a state as big as Texas, citing a rule of thumb that a candidate needs $200,000 per congressional district.

"I think it's an insult to the Texas voter, frankly, to imply that an election can be bought. I, on the other hand, would like to say that no election in a state the size of Texas is going to be won by a challenger without going into the campaign expecting to have to spend an adequate amount of money," Mrs. Haerle said.

Carter vetoes upset farmers, nurses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Groups representing farmers, textile makers and nurses are angry at President Carter for actions he says will help control inflation.

On Saturday, Carter vetoed bills that would have restricted his ability to permit imports of cheap foreign beef, forbidden him to lower tariffs on imported textiles and authorized more money than he requested for training student nurses.

The president also declined to impose tighter production controls on the already abundant supplies of corn and other feedgrains in a move he hopes will keep feedgrain prices from rising by more than about 5 percent in the next two years.

The president has now acted on all legislation passed by the 95th Congress, which adjourned Oct. 15.

Carter called his most recent vetoes "a clear indication that the federal government is prepared to do its part to reduce inflation."

So far during his administration, Carter has vetoed 19 bills, including six regular vetoes and 13 pocket vetoes.

Congress enacted the beef-import bill after the president angered cattlemen last summer by allowing a slight increase in imports following a record increase in domestic beef prices.

The measure would have revoked the president's authority to allow more foreign beef imports in times of shortages, such as those projected for the next 12 months.

Carter said the bill, which would have substituted a rigid "countercyclical" formula for setting import levels, "would have deprived me and future presidents of a major anti-inflation tool."

But Richard A. McDougal, president of the National Cattlemen's Association in Denver, said the veto of the Meat Import Act will result in higher beef prices because producers will not want to expand their output with the threat of "politically motivated" import expansion hanging over their heads.

"The bill actually was anti-inflationary," McDougal said.

In addition, farm groups faced with record harvests and huge grain surpluses urged Carter to tighten feedgrain production controls to increase prices.

But the president said instead that the controls would remain essentially unchanged in 1979, requiring farmers to "set-aside" or leave idle 10 percent of their land to qualify for basic federal subsidies with another 10 percent of their land in "diversion" if they want to qualify for additional payments.

Administration farm economists said the president's action would probably raise the price of corn to about $2.14 a bushel for the year ending Sept. 30, 1980, an increase of 2.5 percent a year. The president's voluntary anti-inflation program has set a target of keeping overall increases in the costs of feedgrains and services, except food, at 5.75 percent yearly. Meanwhile, Robert S. Small, president of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, said the veto of the textile measure "is a grave disappointment because of the importance of this legislation to the job security of the 2.3 million Americans who work in the textile and apparel industry."

That bill would have excluded textile and apparel tariffs from the current multilateral trade negotiations.

But the president said the bill would have tied his hands in the trade negotiations and may have prompted a trade war with other nations.

Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's chief domestic policy adviser, said the training funds bill for student nurses would have hampered Carter's efforts to trim the federal deficit because its authorization of $200 million a year was far above the $20 million proposed by the administration.

The American Nurses Association, however, criticized the veto as a "short-sighted" and "discriminatory" decision.

Mao de-mythed!

The Chinese Communist Party now appears committed to a demythification of the late Mao Tse-tung.

The party faithful are being told that Mao's Little Red Book is not the collection of revealed truths which they had been taught to consult like a bible. Mao, after all, was only human; he could be wrong.

He has to be wrong if Chairman Hua, his successor, is going to put China on the path symbolized by its new treaty with Japan.

For one thing, cutting Mao down to mortal size is necessary to stamp out the isolationist philosophy of the deposed "Gang of Four," which appears to be a lingering political problem in Peking.

More important in the long run, perhaps, is that the new leadership is willing to recognize that slavish devotion to the words of a father-figure like Mao is incompatible with the ambitious goals of modernizing mainland China by the end of this century.

The decision to send 10,000 Chinese students to universities in the non-communist world, and the pragmatic views expressed by Deputy Prime Minister Teng Hsiao-ping in his talks with foreign leaders, suggests that Peking is bowing to the necessity of introducing some degree of intellectual freedom into Chinese society.

But how much freedom? Confessing the fallibility of Mao is one thing; it would be quite another to confess that there are flaws in the Marxist-Leninist philosophy which Mao used as his revolutionary code. Mao tried through almost 30 bloody and chaotic years to find the key to China's future in some interpretation of the communism he had embraced as a youth.

Mao had such faith in the collective power of the peasantry that he thought the Chinese could make their "Great Leap Forward" 20 years ago by building primitive smelters in their backyards. His successors are pursuing the same goal, but intend to import steel mills from Japan to achieve it. Such is the great leap toward the practical in Peking's thinking.

The question in the tea leaves, however, is whether Mr. Teng saw beyond the splendid technology of the factories he visited in Japan.

The fabulous economic growth of Japan did not spring from production expertise alone. It reflects the incentives of an economic system which rewards enterprise and productivity, and a genius for exploiting the competitive marketplace. Above all it is the achievement of a free people with a democratic voice in the political and economic decisions of their government.

The Kremlin finally went through the exercise of deflating the myth of Josef Stalin, but it never relieved the Soviet Union of the burden of centralized economic planning and the stifling of incentive which goes with Marxist doctrine.

Nor do Russians today enjoy more than token personal freedoms. Russia's progress in 60 years of communism is measured mainly in military power and the show-off technology of its space program.

If Peking is shelving the Little Red Book and shopping for Western technology only as a means of waving a bigger stick at the Russians, this hardly promises much for the Chinese people, or for the peace of mind of the rest of the world.

Now if Mr. Teng were as impressed with the Japanese parliament or the Tokyo stock exchange as he was with Japan's automated production lines, that would be a different story.

Meanwhile, as they say, we will just have to wait and see.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Little legal aid in tracing son

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON—Somewhere in a school classroom, 6-year-old Christopher Larson is attending first grade under an alias. He is tall for his age, has brown hair, brown eyes and an olive complexion. He is not a criminal; the reason he has an assumed name is that he has been kidnapped. His abductor is known to authorities. His name is John Lance Larson, but because he is Christopher's father, he is effectively beyond the reach of the law. Five years ago, Christopher's mother, Vicki Gambrell of Savannah, Ga., divorced Larson and won custody of their year-old son. Larson was granted carefully controlled visitation rights. In June of last year, Christopher was picked up by his father and taken to Fort Jackson, S.C., where Larson lived with his mother and stepfather. Mrs. Gambrell hasn't seen her son since.

Statistically, what happened to the 28-year-old mother and her son is not unique. An estimated 100,000 children are abducted each year by divorced or estranged parents. But the case history of Christopher Larson lends a human dimension to the problem of legally sanctioned kidnapping.

For 16 months, Vicki Gambrell has tried every means she could afford to find her son. She and her mother first contacted Army authorities at Fort Jackson. But Larson's stepfather, Maj. Theodore Konkle, was the base provost marshal, and the Army refused to take action. Konkle and his wife, Christopher's grandmother, denied any knowledge of Larson's whereabouts.

From Georgia and South Carolina judges, Mrs. Gambrell obtained court warrants which ordered Christopher's return. But since the boy's father could not be located, local and state police were unable to do anything. Even though Larson was known to have worked as a cabdriver in Columbia, S.C., and his Social Security number was on record, he could not be tracked down by the city's legal aid agency. Social Security officials, it seems, refuse to divulge information except in "special cases," and Mrs. Gambrell's case was not deemed special enough.

Christopher's mother cannot even locate her husband's mother and stepfather. Maj. Konkle has retired, and the Army refuses to disclose his present address.

Mrs. Gambrell appealed for help to Rep. Bo Ginn, D-Ga., and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. But federal authorities will not intervene in parental kidnapping cases unless there is proof the child might suffer serious bodily harm.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Benjamin Civiletti ruled that Larson's conviction on drug charges "does not show danger to the child." A spokesman for the Justice Department said there is "no federal role" in situations like Christopher's. "The FBI can't be out chasing parental custody cases," he said. Uniform legislation at the state level would help Mrs. Gambrell, but only 21 states have adopted a model child-recovery statute that would encourage greater interstate police cooperation.

Meanwhile, Christopher's anguished mother, who is recovering from a four-week nervous breakdown, is still trying to find her child with the limited means at her disposal. One method of tracking down kidnapers is through driver registration records, but Mrs. Gambrell and her mother can't afford to hire private investigators for such painstaking work.

In recent years, Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., have led an unsuccessful effort to pass a federal law forbidding parental kidnappings. Citizens who wish to express their support may

CHARLEY REESE:

Terrorist: random killer of innocent persons

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Palestine Liberation Organization terrorists kill children because nobody listens to them. If we listen to them, they may kill fewer children.

That is the excuse ABC Television used to justify its special program on PLO terrorists. It was only an excuse. It is obvious that ABC and the PLO had made a deal. In exchange for the privilege of filming in some of the PLO training camps, ABC traded one hour of prime time for the PLO to use as propaganda.

Frank Reynolds, the commentator, strained pathetically to drape such a cross deal with morality. There is nothing moral about it. It is just one more case of journalists selling their soul for a story.

I'm not going to argue the propaganda. There is a more important issue and that is terrorism and how civilized people should deal with it.

ABC's excuse is exactly how not to deal with it. To recognize the terrorist and grant him a platform is to say, yes, if you kill enough innocent people, I will listen to you.

The way to deal with the terrorist is to demonstrate that under no circumstances will the slaughter of innocent people gain him anything but moral condemnation and physical retaliation.

The terrorist is a sick individual full of hatred for all humans. The "cause" is only an excuse to kill. To conduct any kind of dialogue with these savages is to betray the basic foundation of civilization.

The PLO terrorists drape themselves in military garb and prattle about revolution and liberating their homeland. That's nonsense. Let's really examine this situation so we can truly understand it.

Israel is a very small country. In that small country is a very large army. Yet, the PLO terrorists are never able to find it. They crawl into elementary schools and blow up children; they come ashore and shoot down women and children on the beach; they spray civilian airports with bullets; they blow up civilian planes; they murder unarmed athletes, and they set off bombs in supermarkets.

What has that got to do with liberating anything? If they want to take back the land called Israel, they have to fight the Israeli Army. They are scared of the Israeli Army.

That's all they amount to, a lack of manhood. When the Irgun fought the British, there were never more than 4,000 to 5,000 members while the British had 84,000 soldiers. It didn't stop the Irgun. They attacked. They drove the British to build fortified compounds and then they attacked the fortified compounds.

When the British put their people in jail, the Irgun attacked the jails. What does the PLO do? It attacks an elementary school or kidnaps three women from a kibbutz. It assassinates an 11-year-old. It puts its so-called military camps in the middle of civilians.

I can be objective about Palestinian people and about conflicting claims for territory, but I'm not going to pretend to be objective about the terrorist. Objectivity is no excuse for suspending morality. One's vocation can never be more important than one's humanity.

There is a world of difference between the guerrilla who is an irregular soldier engaged in war against an army and its government and the terrorist who is a random killer of innocent people who have no connection whatsoever with the government.

If Palestinians wish to make any points with American public opinion, then they'd better wake up to the fact that most Americans are not moral eunuchs like ABC Television and some of the dopes in the Carter administration.

Israel has won the admiration of Americans, not with clever propaganda, but with its courage and daring in meeting obstacles.

There is something wrong with a group of people who make a hero out of a punk who shoots three unarmed women and then gets his brains blown off by the first Israeli soldier to arrive on the scene.

There is something monstrously evil about grown men who brainwash children and send them on futile, suicide missions of murder.

There is something wrong with an American television network which devotes a whole hour to such a group on the grounds that they exist and therefore must be listened to.

There are a lot of people in this world who have not earned the right to be listened to.

INSIDE REPORT:

Shah of Iran's government forcing U.S. reality

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Deepening doubts in the Shah of Iran's government about true U.S. intentions toward that tragically divided nation reached a crisis point on Nov. 3 forcing President Carter to send a confidential message to beleaguered Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Carter's message, telephoned to the Shah himself by presidential adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, for the first time spelled out U.S. policy: do whatever you feel you must to restore authority and stability, Brzezinski said; whatever that is, we are 100 percent behind you.

That message, long overdue, swept aside previous protestations about human rights, liberalization and civil liberties that have been pouring from the State Department for months as the Shah battled to keep his country from deserting the West. Indeed, the president's message to the Shah is a belated signal of a return by the U.S. to foreign policy fundamentals swept away in post-Vietnam guilt.

Descent close to anarchy in the country that keeps Japan, Western Europe and Israel supplied with oil might yet prove to have a beneficial side. A crisis that one knowledgeable official here describes as "an event of the greatest magnitude" has started presidential aides. They are now entertaining bitter second thoughts about the demise of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), the overuse of human rights to determine U.S. policy and obsessive fear of using American power.

Just a few weeks ago, a routine request by the Shah's government for less than $100,000 of riot-control gear, including tear gas, was automatically rejected by the burgeoning human rights bureaucracy at the State Department. An appeal was taken by the Iranian embassy all the way up to Deputy Secretary of State Lucy Benson before the equipment was approved for sale. That is merely icing on the cake of the administration's human rights policies, which have endangered U.S. relations with its allies all over the world.

More important is gradual extinction of the CIA's ability to engage in covert activity. Officials here make no claims that even at its operational peak 20 years ago, the CIA can do nothing to blunt immense Soviet undercover resources now operating without restraint throughout Iran.

The Soviet hand is evident in the carefully coordinated escalation of political demands not only by Moslem fundamentalists and left-wing radicals but also by the Shah's presumed allies, the new middle class. This requires agents and money, both available in immense quantities.

A sure signal of the anxiety now gripping the White House was a private appeal for assistance last week to ex-CIA Director Richard Helms, a former ambassador to Iran treated as an untouchable by the Carter administration until now. Helms refused to admit to us that he had even been invited to the White House or to reveal what he said, but the summons points to a change of mood in the Carter White House.

That change of mood is also reflected by the private reaction among high administration officials to a seemingly routine decision by Pakistan to transfer its top diplomat from Washington to Moscow. The switch of ambassador Yakub Khan is a direct result of Pakistan's fear that the Soviet Union is now superceding the U.S. in political influence over countries that, like Iran, flank the southern border of the Soviet Union.

This directly results from the Russian-engineered coups in Afghanistan and South Yemen, without any U.S. reply. Simultaneously, the Cubans have been used as advance Soviet agents throughout Africa, again with no U.S. response.

Compared to Iran, these Soviet successes are small potatoes. But they have established a psychology of success for Moscow with damaging implications to the U.S., setting the stage for the climactic events in Iran.

Ironically, it has taken Iran, the first real foreign crisis for Carter, to force hard thinking about the cost of politically appealing slogans on which the president has based so much of his foreign policy. In particular, the application of human rights standards to U.S. allies and the continued defamations of the CIA are subject to new and realistic scrutiny.

Jimmy Carter has proved to be a good learner in other aspects of his presidency. There is solid reason to believe that the lesson of Iran is now being learned, and not a moment too soon.

Soviets taking keen interest in Dean Reed trial

BUFFALO, Minn. (AP) — It seems such a simple case — 19 people standing trial on trespassing charges. But the Soviet Union's interest in a folk-singer has made it an international affair.

The Soviets call folksinger Dean Reed a freedom fighter. And the Soviet news agency Tass is covering the trial — saying Reed's only offense was his "active struggle" for political prisoners in the United States.

To most Minnesotans, he's just one of 19 people being tried in Wright County court here in an Oct. 29 protest against a 427-mile power line stretching from North Dakota to Minnesota.

The power line has prompted many protests — from farmers who say their property rights are being violated, and from environmentalists. Construction on the line has been completed, although it won't begin carrying electricity until next spring.

But it's Reed, not the power line, that concerns the Soviets, in what appears to be a counterattack on President Carter's human rights campaign.

Several major Russian artists telegraphed Carter to protest Reed's arrest, Tass reported Saturday. The White House says it hasn't received the telegram, and would have no comment.

The telegram, Tass reported, said: "Together with all people of good will, we express our indignation over the act of arbitrariness against Dean Reed. We hope, Mr. President, that you will use your influence to achieve the release of the courageous fighter for human rights."

And the Soviet youth newspaper, Komsomolskay Pravda, printed Reed's photograph, accompanied by a story headlined: "He sang for us."

Reed, 40, first became popular in the Soviet Union after he moved to East Germany in the 1960s and began appearing in various Soviet cities. He now lives in Studio City, Calif.

Saying he came to Minnesota to help farmers fight for their rights, Reed agrees with the Soviets' claim that he is a political prisoner.

"I consider myself a political prisoner. ... I am not here because of trespassing. I accuse the large corporations and power companies of one large trespass," he says.

Defense attorney Kenneth Tilson maintains the demonstrators had a legal right to be at the power line terminal site.

Reed and 11 of the demonstrators refused to post $300 bail each and went on a hunger strike after their arrests. They were released when the trial began last week. Conviction on the charge carries a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail and a $500 fine.

Some power line protesters are happy with the attention. Alice Tripp, a farmer's wife from

Belgrade, Minn., who has been a leader in the power line protest for more than two years, said:

"I think he had a friend in the group. He was moved enough to join it.... It's not his movement, but we're glad to have him along."

FTC temporarily halts cereal case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has temporarily halted a massive 6½-year-old antitrust case against the cereal industry because of a contract it has with the administrative law judge hearing the case.

Administrative Law Judge Harry Hinkes retired in September, but he signed a "professional services" contract with the FTC calling for $46,800 through next August while he finishes work on the case and submits an opinion to the agency.

However, General Mills Inc., one of the companies accused in the case, has challenged the arrangement saying it violates Civil Service rules. The commission then halted activity in the case while it studies the firm's motion.

If Hinkes is disqualified, substantial parts of the case — which has already cost the government about $5 million — might have to be retried.

Cesar Chavez

Chavez says UFW ready to expand

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cesar Chavez, whose United Farm Workers fought for more than a decade to unionize California's lush fields, says the union is ready to move into other states and other fights.

"We still feel we are a movement, not just a union," said the UFW leader. "But we're reevaluating ... changing our priorities. We can't live in the late '70s with concepts from the mid-'60s."

In the 9½ months since ending a worldwide boycott of California lettuce, table grapes and wines, the union has grown to an estimated 100,000 members, computerized its headquarters, founded a school to train its staff and made major gains in establishing centralized health and pension plans — a breakthrough for migrants who seldom have the same employer for more than a few months.

"We are finishing our work in California," Chavez's chief aide, Marc Grossman, said in a telephone interview from the UFW headquarters at a converted tuberculosis sanitarium in the Tehachapi Mountains 120 miles north of here in Kern County. "Then — maybe sooner than people think — we will be able to concentrate on other states where we are needed."

The union is now active in Arizona, Florida, Texas and Washington state. But those efforts are minor compared to the push in California, where the union three years ago was able to secure passage of the Agricultural Labor Relations Act. That act, which followed more than a decade of turmoil in the fields, for the first time brought rule of law and the ballot box into the struggle between agricultural unions and growers.

Since no other state has a law similar to the ALRA, Grossman said, "It will be a long and difficult struggle elsewhere. We realize we may have to repeat the California experience of strikes, boycotts and public education. But we will go, anyway."

The union's leaders hope to repeat the success they've had in California, where the UFW has won more than 76 percent of its union representation elections — far higher than the 46 percent average for other unions in the nation.

Woman's body found near wrecked plane

CODY, Wyo. (AP) — The body of a woman whose footprints in the snow revealed she had walked away from a plane crash has been found near the wreckage in rugged mountains near here.

Blizzard conditions over the weekend already had quenched the hopes of searchers that Beverly Shepherd was alive, Park County Search and Rescue spokesman Eric Lie said.

Lie said snow had covered the body after the crash Wednesday night but wind Sunday exposed strands of her hair, enabling searchers to locate the body.

The crash claimed the lives of three other Idaho Falls, Idaho, residents, including two men who were volunteer search and rescue squad members.

Strategies planned for women's priesthood

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

BALTIMORE (AP) — Reform-minded Roman Catholic women, literally dancing with dedication, are planning new strategies to gain admission to their church's all-male priesthood, including a personal call on Pope John Paul II.

They say change is bound to come, and is already happening spontaneously, outside the rules, in new ministries of women.

"We have great hope that because of Pope John Paul's intelligence, his own suffering and experience of oppressed women in a land under Communist rule, he will be open to our concerns," Sister Elizabeth Carroll of Pittsburgh, a commission member, said of the delegation to be sent to Rome, probably after the first of the year.

More than 2,000 nuns and lay women from across the country concluded their second national ordination conference Sunday with embraces and a kind of slow-motion ballet symbolizing the Virgin Mary's endurance and suffering. The dancers then guided the assembly through a dance in which two by two they spread their arms to each other and kneeled.

A delegation was to appear in Washington, D.C., today at the opening of the fall meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

All but one of the bishops shunned invitations to attend the conference. The Most Rev. Charles Buswell of Pueblo, Colo., showed up on the final day.

But a male theologian, the Rev. Richard P. McBrien of Boston College, assured the women that ordination "will not be denied in the future to qualified candidates simply because they are women."

Neither will persons be excluded "simply because they are married," he added, predicting an end of mandatory celibacy.

A black nun, Sister Shawn Copeland of Harvard Divinity School, former director of the National Black Sisters Conference, advised the women to wait.

"Waiting does not surrender the standard," she said. "Waiting does not submit defeat. Waiting is not retreat. Waiting is the preparation for advance ... the courage of creative action ... the struggle for fidelity ..."

"Be bold and assertive," she urged. "Be firm. Break the old chains. But wait. Soon the very stones will cry out."

Her call for patient effort came as two approaches surfaced at the conference, one to pursue ordination within the male-ruled system and seek its reform, the other to practice ministries outside the rules.

Theologian Elisabeth Fiorenza of the University of Notre Dame said that as long as women are excluded from priestly functions, "our participation at the table of the Lord remains a perversion of the Eucharistic community intended by Jesus."

Until the official church repents its "structural sin of patriarchal sexism" and changes, she said, women should practice "institutional disobedience" in their ministries "in anticipatory obedience to the vision of a non-sexist community."

A sample of that "institutional disobedience" came Saturday night when about 250 women joined in a communion service without a male priest, but the vast majority took part in a regular communion led by the Rev. William Callahan of Mt. Rainier, Md.

In its closing actions, the conference recognized and affirmed both approaches, calling on the church to accept the "priestly ministry" of those already practicing it, and also for "free and equal access of all Christians" to the priesthood.

Chris Evert

Dick Gregory

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert said her four-month break from professional tennis was "a long dark period in my life."

Ms. Evert says in an interview with People magazine that she had been "crying two or three times a day for no reason. I didn't know why.... I had to take time off." She said that winning all the time may have caused her problem. "Maybe I was winning too much. Night after night after night, it was just too much of a strain to get psyched up like that."

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Dick Gregory says he is planning to run for Edward Kennedy's seat in the U.S. Senate in four years.

Gregory, a comedian and civil rights activist, told WNCN-TV that he would run against Kennedy in the 1982 Democratic primary.

Gregory said that for the first time, Kennedy had campaigned against Sen. Edward Brooke, the nation's only black senator and a Republican, who lost last Tuesday to Sen.-elect Paul Tsongas. Kennedy had not stumped for Brooke's previous rivals.

HOMESTEAD AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon is spending a couple of days with close friends Bebe Rebozo and Robert Abplanalp in the Florida Keys.

Nixon, who arrived here Sunday for the planned visit, was met by about 40 people when he stepped from a private plane and posed for pictures.

Nixon will stay at the exclusive Ocean Reef Club in the Keys, said Abplanalp, an industrialist who made a fortune with aerosol spray cans.

"It's just a couple days of vacation in the sun," Abplanalp said. "He's doing very fine. He's in very good spirits. His health is very good; in fact, I'm going to ask him what his diet is."

ROYAL OAK, Md. (AP) — President and Mrs. Carter took part in a "very private" religious meeting at a farm owned by former Sen. and Mrs. Harold Hughes.

The meeting on Sunday was attended by 15 persons other than the Carters and the Hugheses. White House press secretary Jody Powell said Hughes invited the Carters to the farm more than a year ago.

While he was a senator, Hughes, a Democrat from Iowa, often sponsored prayer breakfasts, and has said his faith helped him overcome alcoholism.

Also at Sunday's meeting were Sen. and Mrs. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla.; Sen. Pete Domenici, D-N.M.; Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla.; Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and Mrs. Sam Nunn, wife of the Democratic senator from Georgia.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Unitarian Church of All Souls was a Churches' church for a while, as Sen. Frank Church watched his son installed as the congregation's minister and his first grandson christened.

F. Forrester Church, the Idaho senator's 30-year-old son, on Sunday promised to make a "prophetic pulpit" as the ninth minister in the history of the 159-year-old church in Manhattan.

Earlier in the day, the minister's 7-week-old son, Frank Forrester Church V, was christened.

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Billy Martin, the fiery former manager of the New York Yankees, has been named in an assault and battery complaint.

Sports reporter Ray Hafar of the Reno Evening Gazette and the Nevada State Journal filed the misdemeanor complaint Saturday after an incident Friday that left him with a bruised eye and chipped teeth.

Martin, who said he does not plan to file charges, told the Gazette-Journal Saturday that Hafar "stuck his chest out. He said he could whip me. I thought he was going to throw a punch at me before I hit him."

But Hafar, 25, said: "I didn't challenge him to a fight. I was just trying to stand up to him when he tried to take away my notes."

House committee to examine mysteries of Ray's escape

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Assassinations Committee is coming to grips with one of the most perplexing questions of the Martin Luther King case: How could James Earl Ray, a man known only as a bumbling small-time crook, carry out such a complex escape scheme?

In testimony today, the committee was to examine how Ray fled from the assassination scene in Memphis, Tenn., to Canada and finally to London, where he was arrested about two months after the murder on April 4, 1968.

Ray pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 99 years in prison but later recanted and now claims he is innocent.

"Within days of the assassination, Ray was in Canada and by May 6, he had assumed two new aliases" and had acquired documents in those fake names, committee chief counsel Robert Blakey noted.

"How had Ray, a man who had bungled simple street crimes, managed such a sophisticated escape maneuver with impressive efficiency?" he continued.

Blakey said the committee is considering whether Ray had help in obtaining the fake papers from "an underworld alias ring."

In sworn testimony before the committee in August, Ray said he carried out the escape without help. By his account, he realized from radio broadcasts moments after the assassination that he was being sought by police. He said he made his way over the next several days to Detroit and then to Toronto where he picked names from newspapers to use as aliases.

He said he telephoned those persons, pretending to be a Canadian government registrar, and inquired about their passport status.

When he found that Ramon George Sneyd had never applied for a passport, he sought and obtained one in Sneyd's name, Ray testified. With the passport, he was able to board a flight to London without difficulty, he said.

Committee members say, however, that they must consider whether Ray might have had help with the escape and with the fake papers and if he did, whether this was part of a broader conspiracy against King.

Rocket aims at X-ray study

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An Atlas-Centaur rocket blasted off its launch pad early today, loaded with nearly 7,000 pounds of equipment aimed at providing new information about the sources of X-rays in deep space.

The rocket carrying the High Energy Astronomical Observatory satellite lit up the sky as it roared into the sky at 12:24 a.m. EST from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station.

The satellite, due to go into operation in four days, will conduct detailed studies of some of the X-ray sources found by a satellite launched in August 1977, space agency officials said.

Three such spacecraft will be put into orbit in a $90 million mission aimed at learning more about pulsars, quasars and black holes.

Speculation grows that ancient coffin might be that of John the Baptist CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The discovery of an ancient coffin inside the walls of a desert monastery north of Cairo has ignited speculation that the remains are those of John the Baptist, the man who according to the Bible baptized Jesus Christ.

The wooden coffin was unearthed during renovation work earlier this month at the St. Makarios monastery, 60 miles north of the capital.

Officials of the Coptic Church, the native Christian church of Egypt and Ethiopia, said today experts were being rounded up to study the coffin and its contents.

"What leads the priests to think it is John the Baptist is a reference in church manuscripts which says he was buried 18 feet from the altar," said Bishop Samuel, a Coptic Church official in Cairo who is organizing the expedition.

The coffin was found where the manuscript said John the Baptist's body would be.

"The priests couldn't move the walls before for fear the building would collapse," he said.

Amid laserbeams and searchlights, the unveiling of the new "Hollywood" sign took place Saturday night near the top of Mount Lee overlooking Hollywood, Calif. The old landmark it replaced was built in 1923 but had deteriorated and had begun to fall apart recently. The 50-by-400 foot sign cost $27,000 per letter. (AP Laserphoto)

A shrewd diplomat, Hassan wants to modernize Morocco

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — King Hassan II of Morocco, who leaves tonight for a two-day meeting with President Carter in Washington, is a shrewd and subtle diplomat, a statesman eager to modernize his tradition-bound country of 17 million people, and an accomplished golfer, horseman and sharpshooter.

An honors graduate of Bordeaux University's law school, the 49-year-old monarch bears the title of Al Amir Al Mouminin, or Commander of the Faithful, and claims direct descent from the Prophet Mohammed. Even among leftist workers in the cities, his narrow escape in attempted military coups in 1971 and 1972 is often attributed to divine providence.

Moody, self-indulgent and often unpredictable, the king has a deep sense of mission and works feverishly in times of crisis. But visitors sometime have to discuss state affairs with him between holes on the golf course.

His efforts to make his favorite sport a national pastime have not been successful so far. He once had a 30-foot-high photograph of himself swinging a golf club put up in downtown Rabat to popularize the game. The picture came down quickly because most peasants thought the king was whipping a prisoner.

Five years ago, the army was in rebellious turmoil after two purges, Hassan's popularity was at a low ebb, and few expected him to withstand the storm. Instead of digging in his heels, he quietly went to work transforming the absolute monarchy into a democracy.

Then, in 1975, he organized a "March of Conquest" by 350,000 unarmed Moroccans into the former Spanish Sahara to assert his country's claim to the mineral-rich territory. The march forced the Spanish government to abandon the Sahara to Morocco and neighboring Mauritania and brought every shade of Moroccan political opinion cheering to the king's side.

Even the Communist Party now is counted among Hassan's fervent supporters.

The annexation of the Sahara also brought Hassan into bitter conflict with Algeria's leftist president, Houari Boumediene, who sponsors the Polisario guerrilla movement fighting for the independence of the former Spanish territory.

Hassan has thrown most of his 90,000-man army into the guerrilla war. One of the main objectives of his visit to Washington is to persuade Carter to let him use American weapons against the Polisario guerrillas, who get Soviet arms from Algeria.

The king considers his fight against them part of the struggle to halt the spread of Soviet influence in Africa.

In the 11 years since he last visited Washington, Hassan has cancelled five other visits at the last moment because of disagreement with the U.S. governments or events in Morocco. The disagreements now seem far behind. The king has used his prestige and influence in the Arab world to reduce condemnation of the Camp David agreements between Israel and Egypt, to give discreet support to troubled Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran and to help defend Western interests.

Now, in return he is asking for U.S. support of his desert combat with the Polisario Front.

Born on July 9, 1929, Hassan succeeded to the throne after his father, King Mohamed V, died during an operation on Feb. 26, 1961.

Hollywood celebrates new landmark

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This town of bright lights and movie stars celebrated its 75th anniversary with a spectacular coming out party for a rejuvenated old friend.

The "HOLLYWOOD" sign was welcomed back to its hillside home Saturday night — replacing the original that had adorned Mount Lee for 55 years, until time and the elements left it in such bad shape that demolition crews had to tear down what was left in August.

The nine new 45-foot-tall letters are built of sheet metal, steel girders and concrete and are designed to last at least a century.

Singer Andy Williams, comedian Chevy Chase and game-show host Monty Hall — the honorary mayor of Hollywood — provided entertainment for more than 1,000 special guests who gathered in the rain beneath a leaky canopy on the lawn of Griffith Park Observatory to watch the unveiling.

Thousands of others lined the twisting roads of the Hollywood Hills.

Blustery winds and rain halted just long enough to allow a proper debut for the new sign, as searchlights and laser beams illuminated the hillside.

Working with autistic children challenging, pathetic, puzzling

By GEORGE ESPER

BOSTON (AP) — Imagine living in a world of echoes, your mind beleaguered by disconcerting sounds that defy meaning. Imagine trying to find the source of those sounds, to make sense of them.

Researchers wonder whether this may describe the disordered world of autistic children — those who seem to withdraw into themselves, unable to communicate, learn, speak or otherwise relate to the world around them.

Dr. William Condon, director of human communications research at Boston University Medical School, is trying to fit some of the pieces of this puzzle together by studying body motions in relation to sound.

"The hope," he says, "is that by understanding what seems to be an autistic child's distorted view of the world, we may be able to correct for it and give him a better relationship to the world in which he exists, because he seems so much out of contact with it."

There are, by conservative estimate of the National Society for Autistic Children, at least 100,000 children in the United States with this disorder and probably a lot more undiagnosed.

Autism occurs in about five out of every 10,000 births and is four times more common in boys than girls.

These children have severe learning difficulties. Some never speak. Some are repetitious. Some will not allow their mothers to kiss or cuddle them, even when hurt. Some walk around in circles and never get dizzy.

"It's like we were sitting in a room and every sound was reverberating two or three times instead of once," says Condon. "And we really didn't know which was the real one. We would be overwhelmed by this. This is the way these children seem to be. And they tend to turn off, I think."

During the past four years, Condon has spent thousands of hours studying films of autistic children as sound occurred around them.

He began by studying how a normal individual speaks.

"I began to see that his body moves in beautiful self-synchrony with his own speech. So in essence you don't have a nervous system for speech and a nervous system for the body."

Studying this frame by frame on film, Condon discovered a surprising pattern.

"A listener moves in synchrony with the speaker's speech, with the articulatory structure. In other words, the listener's eyes may blink, his head may go up and he may twist to the right, exactly and across a word of the speaker's speech."

"It looks very much like there's a very rapid processing of incoming sound information and you can see this in the body of the listener. The organization of the listener's body moves as if it's tracking or locked into the incoming structure of the speaker's speech."

Condon used this same approach with autistic children.

He found that in those who do speak, their body is moving out of phase with itself.

"One eyelid may move a little faster than the other, or one side of the body is slightly out of phase with the other in a way which you don't have in normal behavior."

Even as the autistic child is listening, he or she is out of phase with the incoming information, Condon found.

"What you get," he says, "is a jumping and jerking in their body after a sound comes in, inanimate sounds as well as the human voice. And it looks like they are responding multiple times. It comes in one ear when it should and then maybe a half second later it comes in the other ear and it gets all mixed up in the brain in some fashion.

"Autistic children also will look around as if the same sound which you only hear once — somebody drops a block on the table — is occurring two or three times and they look around two or three times and not even in the direction of the block."

"It's as if their world is overloaded with this and they can't shut it off."

Very little is definitely known about autism. But most evidence available points to a physical cause, probably affecting development of the parts of the brain that deal with language and with the higher organization of information coming in through the senses, says British psychiatrist Lorna Wing in her "Children Apart" pamphlet distributed by the society.

Condon says it appears to be "some kind of neurological impairment."

Two or three different things could explain this behavior, he says. "One thing does seem to be related to it. That is a lack of oxygen at birth or even in the prenatal period where they've been deprived of oxygen. It can destroy certain areas of the brain that are very important for processing the world."

This is still only a theory, although research tends to support it, he says.

He hopes to design instruments to compensate for the bad phasing. Another possibility is to train autistic children to ignore the extra sounds and concentrate on the ones that give them a greater sense of what is real. And it may be possible to develop drugs which will help the brain work better, he says.

"We're trying to map how these children seem to be getting the world. Once we can begin to get a sense of that, we can transform it so they can give more order to it. It takes a while to get there."

Northwestern woman real railroad pioneer

WISHRAM, Wash. (AP) — Changing boxcars is nothing like changing diapers — and Becky McMahon ought to know because she's tried both.

The babies came first, while she was still a teen-ager. It's boxcars now. She is one of the few female train engineers in the country today.

"We're not a Sunday school teaching outfit," said Ron O'Dell, personnel director for Burlington Northern's Spokane Division. "I've never yet met a woman who had experience as a switchman, so I have to look for some other kind of track record."

What does he look for? "I like to see women who have tended bar. That's the best finishing school I know of. She's seen the male at his worst and has to know how to handle 'em," O'Dell said.

Athletes, farm girls and female truck drivers also have a good shot at an interview with the railroad bosses, he said.

Ms. McMahon's finishing school was a gymnasium where she worked out for eight months before becoming the first woman to pass the Spokane Fire Department's physical agility test.

After that, she was only an interview away from joining forces with the 2,200 men who keep Burlington's trains moving between Wenatchee, Wash., and White Fish, Mont.

Another two dozen women have since joined Burlington's ranks.

Ms. McMahon had a little something else going for her. "I'm just a hair under 6-foot and I weigh about 160 pounds," she said.

She took a lot of teasing as a girl because of her size — and learning to handle that has helped her since, she said.

But size isn't everything. "Some of the men aren't very big. I could pick 'em up and cart 'em away," she said.

"Mothers pack babies and laundry and groceries a lot farther than any of those men carry the cast-iron knuckles (devices used to lock boxcars together)," she said.

"This guy, McMahon, she was one of our first (women). We're really fond of her. Those first ones had to be really tough. They were the icebreakers. It's not quite as hard for the women now," O'Dell said.

"She really wanted the job. It was contagious. Even the grubiest old hoghead couldn't stay mad at her for more than five miles," he said.

She was promoted from switch person to engineer a year ago, just one year after joining the railroad. At age 26, she makes about $85 a day plus plush benefits — plenty to support herself and two young daughters.

But it's no piece of cake. The hours are long and, for rookies like Ms. McMahon, there's no guarantee from week to week where the work will be.

Ms. McMahon is now "serving time" in the train yard of this small town by the Columbia River. "You sacrifice friends, family and boyfriends," she said. She's often on call and more than once she's had to leave a note on the door for a date.

There are times — like after a long, dirty, lonely graveyard shift — that she misses the "traditional" lifestyle so many women know. "But only for about 10 minutes! I know I'd be bored with that now," she said.

There have been objections that women can't handle railroad work. Some have suggested women should work only three weeks a month because of "stress" which could "cause an accident."

Play bridge quickly with doubtful hand

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When you don't know how to play a hand, play it quickly. This not only encourages the opponents to make a mistake but also gives you time for a hand that you may know what to do with.

South ruffed the second spade with a high trump and led out four top trumps slowly and carefully. Then he stopped for what he called "a moments thoughts"—which lasted for at least ten minutes.

Finally South led a diamond to the queen and returned a diamond to finesse with the ten. West won with the jack of diamonds and cashed the ace to defeat the contract.

REVEALING DISCARD

When East discarded a spade on the first trump it was apparent that West had started with one spade, four hearts, and probably five or six diamonds, almost surely headed by the ace-jack. There was room for only two or three clubs in the West hand.

South should cash his clubs, lead a heart to dummy's nine and ruff a club. That would surely remove all clubs from the West hand.

Now South draws two more trumps and leads the king of diamonds. West must win and return a diamond for lack of anything else. This allows South to win a trick with the ten of diamonds.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your left, bids one spade, your partner doubles and the next player passes. You hold: S-10873; H-93; D-Q73; C-10943. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs. The weaker the hand the more essential the takeout.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Use of stimulants dangerous practice

Dear Dr. Solomon: I just found out that my teen-age son and his friend take stimulants. What can you tell me about them?—J.S.

Dear J.S.: The consumption of chemical agents that stimulate the central nervous system is an accepted part of modern life. The two most prevalent stimulants are nicotine, contained in tobacco products, and caffeine, the active ingredient in coffee, tea, and some bottled beverages. When used in moderation they tend to have the effects of increased alertness and relief from fatigue.

There is also a broad range of stronger stimulants that may produce mood elevation and a heightened sense of well-being, but because of their dependence-producing potential are under regulatory control. The controlled stimulants are available on prescription, and are also clandestinely manufactured in vast quantities for the illicit market.

Chronic users tend to rely on stimulants to feel stronger, more confident, decisive and self-possessed. They often follow a pattern of taking, "uppers" in the morning and "downers" such as alcohol or sleeping pills at night. Such chemical self-control, however, interferes with normal body processes and can lead to mental and physical illness.

Young people who resort to stimulants for their euphoric effects consume large doses sporadically, over weekends or at night, often going on to experiment with other drugs of abuse. The oral consumption of stimulants may result in a temporary sense of exhilaration, superabundant energy, hyperactivity and extended wakefulness; it may also induce irritability, anxiety and apprehension. These effects are greatly intensified with administration by intravenous injection, which may produce a sudden sensation known as a "flash" or "rush."

The protracted use of stimulants is followed, however, by a period of depression known as "crashing" that is invariably described as unpleasant. Since the depression can be easily counteracted by a further injection of stimulant, this abuse pattern becomes increasingly difficult to break.

Heavy users may inject themselves every few hours, a process sometimes continued to the point of delirium, psychosis or physical exhaustion. Tolerance develops rapidly, increasing the probability of overdose. Larger doses also result in various mental aberrations, the early signs of which include repetitive grinding of the teeth, touching and picking the face and extremities, performing the same task over and over, a preoccupation with one's own thought processes, suspiciousness and a feeling of being watched. Paranoia with auditory and visual hallucinations characterizes the toxic syndrome resulting from continued high doses. Dizziness, tremor, agitation, hostility, panic, headache, flushed skin, chest pain with palpitations, excessive sweating, vomiting, and abdominal cramps are among the symptoms of a sublethal overdose.

In the absence of medical intervention, high fever, convulsions and cardiovascular collapse may precede the onset of death. Since death is due in part to the consequences of a marked increase in body temperature, it should be added that physical exertion and environmental temperature may greatly increase the hazards of stimulant use. Fatalities under conditions of extreme exertion have been reported among athletes who have taken stimulants in moderate amounts.

Whether or not these drugs produce physical dependence is still open to question. But there can be no doubt that the chronic high-dose users do not easily or soon return to normal if withdrawn from stimulants.

I think it important for your son and his friend to get professional help as soon as possible.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Czech crackdown on bribery failing

By STEPHEN H. MILLER

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Arrests, trials, letters to the editor and official exhortations haven't eliminated the bribe, the tip or the store clerk's box of candy from Czechoslovak socialism.

The latest payments shoved indignantly into public view include cash, brandy and a 154-pound pig. And officialdom says things have gotten seriously out of hand.

"These criminal acts have been committed more than once by entire groups of workers, including economic functionaries," Slovakia's party paper, Pravda, thundered in a shotgun attack on bribery, "parasitism" and other offenses.

The youth daily, Smena, cited 17 cases of bribery, of which nine involved drivers' attempts to bribe traffic policemen, two people trying to buy back their driver's licenses and one trying to buy off a prosecutor in a case involving relatives.

Payments offered included the pig, one and a half liters of brandy, and cash offerings of up to 8,000 crowns — more than twice the average monthly pay of a Czech industrial worker.

Other cases included efforts to get apartments in housing-short Czechoslovakia, efforts to beat the crowds at the doctor's office and one try to buy a state bank loan.

It was "almost accidental," the newspaper said, that any of the 17 were caught and the cases wound up in court.

Prevent crime, says Bill Dillon

Bill Dillon said that he will be given a list of suggestions to prevent burglaries reported. Sergeant Lalo Camarillo and Patrolman Steve Otto, of the Midland Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit, were in his office the other day giving details of the operations of the unit. All that is required is a telephone call to your Police Department and a member of the Crime Prevention Unit will come to your home or business at your convenience. Your home or business will receive a thorough check and you will be given a list of suggestions to prevent burglaries reported. Bill Dillon said that it is important that each homeowner and business owner be aware that this service is available through our fine Police Department and that it is utilized to the fullest extent. Having your house checked and following the suggestions outlined can save your property and even your life or the lives of your loved ones, said Bill Dillon.

The Bill Dillon Agency insures over 1600 homes in Midland and Bill said that effective October 18th, State Farm Fire and Casualty Company lowered their Homeowner rates another five percent to a total of twenty-five percent below the State Board of Insurance rates.

Big car comfort and style are features of the tastefully redesigned 1979 Chrysler Newport. Although elegant interiors are roomy, the 4-door pillared hardtop is shorter and lighter than the 1978 version. The Newport is recommended for fleet use by Nickel-Williams Chrysler-PlymouthDodge at 3705 West Wall Avenue. Phone: 694-6661.

Chrysler Newport fleet prospect at Nickel's

Craig Adams, fleet sales manager for Nickel-Williams Chrysler-Plymouth-Dodge the past 10 years, is pleased to announce a new STANDARD-SIZE fleet car comparable to Chevrolet Impala and Ford LTD. It is the all-new CHRYSLER NEWPORT. The 1979 Chrysler Newport's new styling and weight-efficient engineering makes it the perfect vehicle for use by all levels of the industry. Reduced in exterior size, the new Newport offers these impressive roominess specifications: 42.3" leg room and 38.2" headroom up front; 38.3" legroom and 37.4" headroom in back. Altogether it's enough area for a business-size load of people. As for trunk space, there's 21.3 cubic feet for cargo or samples.

Celebrities enjoy country cooking at Loveless Cafe

By RICHARD LOWE

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Wafting over rolling hills from a small white clapboard and stone eatery, the aroma of country-cooking and promise of down-home hospitality beckon celebrity and commoner alike.

Often waiting more than an hour, 500 to 700 city folk flock to Charles McCabe's Loveless Cafe on Sundays for breakfast, lunch and dinner, served at a dozen tables on hardwood floors. A tractor and several cars in various stages of disrepair litter the backyard.

Its patrons include the "Hee Haw" gang, Tennessee Ernie Ford, guitarist Chet Atkins, country music singers Ray Stevens, Charley Pride and Donna Fargo, pop star Jimmy Buffett and Captain Kangaroo. One night about three years ago, a former Beatle was enticed by the cafe's fried chicken.

Named after its owner more than 30 years ago, the Loveless declares country ham with red-eye gravy, homemade preserves and all the homemade biscuits the country desires as its claim to fame.

"If people want something, they're going to find it. I think they enjoy the drive out in the country and they like the friendly atmosphere and and learn how you can qualify for the Chrysler Corporation fleet purchase program allowance, and how the all-new Chrysler Newport can compare with a Ford or Chevrolet standard size fleet automobile. Evaluate for size, comfort, style and price. It may be a revelation.

Nickel-Williams Chrysler-PlymouthDodge, 3705 West Wall, phone 694-6661.

the smallness of it all," Mrs. McCabe said in an interview. "We're kind of a family out here — the employees, our customers and us. We don't feel like the boss."

Fifteen miles to the east stands Music City U.S.A., from which the Loveless draws a constant crowd of country-cooking aficionados.

"We've got so many good customers among the music people. They're all fun-loving and love our food," Mrs. McCabe said. "One night our son called out back and said one of the Beatles — Paul McCartney — was out having dinner. It really stirred things up in this little restaurant."

One Monday, usually the cafe's weekly day of respite, Mrs. McCabe was asked if the Loveless would reconsider just once. "We opened that morning for Captain Kangaroo," she said. "He and his group were in town taping at Opryland and they wanted to come out for dinner. We didn't mind. They're all so nice and friendly."

"Even before he became famous Jimmy Buffet always came out here and being well known hasn't changed him and he still comes. And the kids love George Lindsey — "Goober" — whenever he's out here."

College students have discovered the Loveless. "A bunch of them had an eating contest one day and they asked me for paper and a pencil to keep score," she said.

Iranian government says prospects bright

By WILLIAM BRANIGAN Special to The Washington Post

TEHRAN — The Iranian government Sunday reported "brighter prospects" for ending a two-week-old oil fields workers' strike that has crippled the Iranian economy and strengthened the hand of oil producers demanding a price increase.

The national Iranian Oil Co. said crude production reached 2.3 million barrels a day Saturday as some workers began returning to their jobs. But reports from the main producing area indicated the strike was generally holding, and political opposition leaders accused the new military government of forcing strikers to go back to work.

At least 22 people have been officially reported killed in provincial clashes with troops and police in the last two days, mostly in towns of the southern oil-producing regions.

However, the capital, hit by its worst rioting a week ago, was calm Sunday as troops deployed in force to prevent protest demonstrations against the arrests of two top opposition figures.

The National Front issued a statement condemning as "illegal" the arrests Saturday of its leader, Karim Sanjabi, and spokesman Dariush Foruhar, and pledging to stand by its new hard-line division based on an overthrow of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

National Front officials said Sanjabi was being held at a comfortable officers' club in a military compound in western Tehran along with former Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveyda, who was arrested on unspecified charges last week as part of efforts to appease the growing opposition by prosecuting former officials deemed corrupt or unpopular with the public.

The shah's military government Sunday added former Tehran mayor Gholam Reza Nikpay to that list, which includes the ex-chief of the secret police, Gen. Nematollah Nassiri, and several former cabinet officials.

The government's No. 1 priority, however, seems to be to end the waves of pay and protest strikes that have cost the state lost revenue estimated at more than $1.5 billion over the past month.

The new military governor of oil-rich Khuzestan province in southwestern Iran warned striking oil workers they would be dismissed if they did not return to work Monday. Gen. Boghrat Jaffarian said he could not meet their demands for an end to martial law, the formation of a "national" (coalition) government, the release of all political prisoners and expulsion of foreign oil workers.

But he promised better pay and working conditions on top of the recent granting of a two-stage salary increase of 25 percent.

The NIOC has started a "gradual return to work" has started at the southern oil installations.

Grayburg oil region in Crockett is extended

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., of Midland has extended Grayburg oil production 1/2 mile west in the Wyatt multipay field of Crockett County at its No. 1-K Todd.

The well, 17 miles northwest of Ozona, was finalized for a daily pumping potential of 32 barrels of oil, no water, through perforations from 1-211 to 1,221 feet. Completion was natural.

Total depth is 1,252 feet and 5.5-inch pipe is cemented at 1,211 feet.

Wellsite is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 56, block UV, GC&SF survey.

PROJECT SET Texaco Inc. will dig No. 3-D C. E. Davidson Jr. NCT-1 as a project in the Davidson Ranch (6200 Canyon and 7890 Pennsylvanian) field of Crockett County, four miles southeast of Ozona.

South Korea decides to double ambitious nuclear programs

By MILTON R. BENJAMIN The Washington Post

SEOUL — With its energy needs soaring, South Korea has tentatively decided to double the size of its already ambitious nuclear programs and spend more than $70 billion to put 43 atomic power stations into operation by the year 2000.

This staggering program would give South Korea, a country the size of the state of Indiana, a nuclear power generating capacity almost equal to that of the atomic plants currently in operation throughout the United States.

ONLY ONE PLANT Plans of this magnitude — for a small country that now has only one nuclear power plant in operation — would ordinarily strike observers as highly unrealistic.

By contrast, Iran and Brazil — two developing countries that decided to leap into atomic power programs in a big way — are not finding it necessary to scale down their nuclear dreams. But in South Korea, where the demand for electricity since August has been a startling 20 percent higher than a year ago, an expanded nuclear power plan seems not only plausible, but mandatory.

NO ALTERNATIVE "We don't have any alternative," Atomic Energy Commissioner Lee Byoung Whie said in an interview. "Our electricity demand for the past few years has been much more than we expected."

Since South Korea has no oil resources and has already developed most of its hydroelectric potential, the government intends to rely on nuclear power to meet more than half of the rapidly industrializing country's electricity requirements by the end of the century.

"If we were to find any alternative source much cheaper than nuclear power, then we could shift to that," Lee said. "But at the moment, we don't have any option."

The revised program — replacing an earlier plan to build 21 nuclear plants by the year 2000 — will not be finalized by President Park Chung Hee's government until early next year.

"But we suspect there aren't going to be major changes," said Lee Bong Suh, who is in charge of planning for the Ministry of Energy and Resources.

SHORT RANGE PLANS The Korea Electric Co., moreover, is already making short-range plans in accordance with the new program, and now expects to have eight atomic plants — instead of the previously scheduled five — in operation by 1986.

This accelerated timetable is welcomed news for the nuclear construction industry, which has been picking up few contracts in the developing world recently. It has to be particularly good news for Westinghouse, which won the contracts for four of the first five South Korean atomic power stations.

A $2 billion contract for South Korea's sixth and seventh nuclear power reactors is now expected to be awarded in about a month, and sources say Westinghouse and France's Framatome Consortium have the inside track.

ATTRACTIVE OFFER While power industry officials here would like to stick with Westinghouse, informed sources say France has put forward the most attractive financing proposal — offering both a lower interest rate and longer repayment terms.

The president of the Korea Electric Co. is scheduled to visit Washington late this month to see if the U.S. Export-Import Bank will match the French offer.

Paris reportedly is also bringing strong political pressure to bear on behalf of Framatome, suggesting that if South Korea does not finally place an order for power stations with France, future nuclear cooperation may be in jeopardy.

Officials here are not unmindful of the fact that France was willing in 1975 to sell South Korea a pilot plutonium reprocessing plant — a technology that Seoul felt and still feels is important in guaranteeing future fuel supplies for its power stations.

PRESSURE APPLIED The U.S. government, concerned that the plutonium produced by reprocessing plants is also suitable for the fabrication of nuclear weapons, pressured South Korea into canceling that deal. But with their rapidly expanding power program, South Korean officials suggest privately that they may have to review the reprocessing option at some point in the future.

Regardless of who wins the contracts for the sixth and seventh power plants, the contract for two more nuclear reactors will be up for bids in 1979.

South Korean officials show little concern, moreover, with the problem of financing their costly nuclear program. "If we require that much electricity, that itself means economic growth is at a very high rate," said Lee Bong Suh.

South Korea's electricity demand has continued to rise at more than 20 percent. This phenomenal growth has occurred despite the fact that the traditional peak demand period is just ahead.

HIGH RATE "Not only industrial demand is up. This year, the residential growth rate is much higher," said Sung Nack Chung, executive vice president of the Korea Electric Co.

The sharp increase in residential usage reflects a parallel rise in per capita income, which has brought a growing demand by South Koreans for such consumer goods as refrigerators, television sets and air conditioners.

"The rising living standard is a big factor," said Sung. "Many households are purchasing air conditioners. In the summer, we had a very sharp increase in residential (electricity) usage."

Four tests scheduled in WT areas

Four wildcat operations, including a 20,100-foot test, will be drilled in West Texas areas.

The deep project is Gifford, Mitchell & Wisenbaker of Midland No. 1 Sequoyah in Ward County, four miles south of Pyote.

The 20,100-foot operation is 1,980 feet from northeast and 660 feet from southeast lines of section 108, block 34, H&TC survey. It is 7/8 mile north of the Block 16, Southwest (Permo-Pennsylvanian) field which produces at 14,350 feet. The new test is a wildcat below that depth.

ECTOR AREA

Amoco Production Co. No. 4-AV Midland Farms will be drilled as a 14,000-foot wildcat in Ector County, 18 miles northwest of Odessa.

The prospector is 1,250 feet from south and east lines of section 36, block 42, RT-1-N, G&MMB&A survey and one location southeast of the Fasken (Wolfcamp, northern) pool and 1/2 mile southwest of Pennsylvanian production in the same field.

HOWARD WILDCAT

North American Royalties, Inc., of Midland No. 1 T. W. Williams Estate has been staked as a 10,700-foot wildcat in Howard County, two miles north of Knott.

It is 1,787 feet from north and 2,173 feet from east lines of section 11, block 34, T-2-N, T&P survey and 2.5 miles north-west of the Knott, West (Pennsylvanian reef) pool.

LOVING PROJECT

The Petroleum Corp. of Delaware, operating from Dallas, announced plans to drill a 7,300-foot wildcat in Loving County, 5.5 miles northeast of Mentone.

It is No. 2 Bass, 660 feet from south and 2,880 feet from east lines of section 46, block 53, T-2, TPRR survey. The project is one location west of an undesignated Ramsey sand discovery.

Landmen will meet

The Permian Basin Landmen's Association will meet Tuesday night at the Ranchland Hill Country Club.

A. D. Rippetoe, safety representative in Midland for Shell Oil Co., will be the speaker. His talk will be a humorous presentation, "Conditions of Government."

The meeting will get under way at 6:30 p. m. with a social hour. The dinner will be served at 7:30 and the program will begin at approximately 8 p. m.

Northern completes big Pecos gas well

Northern Natural Gas Co. no. 1-6 Hershenson has been completed in the Hershey, West (Devonian-Montoya) field of Pecos County, 33 miles west of Fort Stockton.

The operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 86,300,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 16,860 to 16,624 feet. There was no fluid produced with the gas.

The Xpay section was acidized with 6,000 gallons and fractured with 58,000 gallons.

Total depth is 16,860 feet and 5-inch casing is set at 16,860 feet. The plugged back depth is 16,702 feet.

The big gas well is 1,120 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 6, block 51, T-10, T&P survey and one-mile east of other production.

CRIOCKETT WELL

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., of Midland No. 3-D Todd has been completed in the Howard Field (Grayburg-San Andrews) field of

CRIOCKETT WELL

Crockett County, 17 miles north-west of Ozona.

Operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of 39 barrels of 32-gravity oil, through Grayburg perforations from 1,246 to 1,260 feet.

The pay was acidized with 6,500 gallons. Total depth is 1,297 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set at 1,295 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 68, block UV, GC&SF survey.

The gas-oil ratio is 235-1.

LUBBOCK WELL

Fort Worth Production Co. No. 1-B James McMeaney has been finalized in the Broadway, West (Clear Fork) field of Lubbock County, 3 miles south of Shallowater.

It finalized for a daily pumping potential of 56 barrels of 25-gravity oil and 12 barrels of water, through perforations from 5,633 to 5,692 feet.

Location is 2,310 feet from south and 990 feet from west lines of section 30, block J.S. EL&RR survey.

Real Cowboys back to sack Pack, 42-14

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The top-ranked passing team in the National Football Conference set a single game club rushing record Sunday, which should give you an idea what the Dallas Cowboys did to the Green Bay Packers.

The difference between the defending Super Bowl champion Cowboys and the playoff hopeful Packers was 395 yards. The Cowboys amassed 537 yards — 313 by rushing — to Green Bay's 142 and totaled 32 first downs to the Packers' nine as Dallas romped 42-14 in what the National Football League's competition committee can only hope was not a playoff match preview.

"It was just a day at the office. It was very simple. It was execution.

Our people up front just put their hats on their people," said Tony Dorsett, who led the Cowboys with 149 yards and two touchdowns on 23 carries.

ROBERT NEWHOUSE added 101 yards and two touchdowns in 18 carries and Roger Staubach passed for 200 yards, including touchdown strikes of 8 and 18 yards to Billy Joe DuPree as the Cowboys, 7-4, who had lost their previous two games, stayed one game behind first-place Washington in the NFC East.

The Packers, 7-4, fell into a first place tie in the NFC Central with Minnesota with their third defeat in four games. They also saw their supply of able-bodied quarterbacks reduced to one. David Whitehurst tore a muscle above his left pelvic bone and left late in the third quarter, having completed three of 16 passes for 31 yards.

Whitehurst's replacement, rookie Dennis Sproul, injured a knee early in the fourth quarter and was scheduled for surgery. Third stringer Bobby Douglass completed his first pass of the season, an 18 yarder to Steve Odom for the game's final touchdown with 7:12 to play.

WHITEHURST SAID he expected to be able to play at Denver next week — hopefully better, he said, than he played Sunday.

"We just stunk it up out there," Whitehurst said. "I did my share of messing up, although I'm not going to say it was my fault we lost. We're 7-4, but we sure didn't play like 7-4. Last year we were 4-10 and we didn't get beat anywhere near this bad."

The 42 points were the most scored on the Packers in a game since the New York Giants won 42-40 in the 1971 opener. Most principals agreed that the Packers were victims of poor schedule timing because the Cowboys feel they cannot afford another defeat.

"You look at films of their other games and they really hadn't played that well," Packers defensive end Mike Butler said. "They knew they had to come together, and they really did. Championship caliber teams do that. They get their backs to the wall and they come together. That's what we have to do."

"It was the best we've played all year, but we've got to keep playing like this or we won't make the playoffs," Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said. "Our whole team worked good all week and all of them played well. We hadn't gotten ourselves turned loose in the last six, seven or eight games. Tonight we just turned loose."

SPORTS IN BRIEF

A.J. Foyt wins Texas 250.

Lopez posts win in Far East golf

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — Nancy Lopez shot a final-round par-72 for a 216 total and a 2-stroke victory in the Far East Open women's golf championship. She collected the $15,000 top prize by winning for the ninth time this year. She has won a record $190,314 this year.

Silvia Bertolaccini and Kathy Whitworth finished second at 218 while 1 stroke farther back was Donna Caponi Young.

Foyt overcomes power loss

COLLEGE STATION, Texas — A.J. Foyt overcame a power loss on the 91st lap to win the Texas 250 and clinch the national championship of the United States Auto Club's stock car division.

Foyt, who had not won the USAC title since 1968, was holding a seven-second lead over Bobby Allison when his oil cooler failed, forcing him back into the pack.

Foyt stayed in the race, however, as Allison experienced problems several laps later and Foyt retook the lead on the 116th lap of the 125-lap race at Texas World Speedway and was never headed.

It was Foyt's fifth victory on the 13-race USAC stock car circuit and wrapped up the stock car title by a 2,125-1,850 point margin over Terry Ryan, who finished third behind Allison in the race.

Aoki leads Japan over U.S.

ONO, Japan — Isao Aoki won individual honors and led Japan to a 53-stroke victory over an American team in the eighth annual U.S.-Japan Professional Golf match.

Aoki fired a four-round total of 273 as the Japanese nine-man team beat the Americans 2,273-2,326. It was Japan's fourth straight victory in the event.

Irwin beats Marsh by eight

MELBOURNE, Australia — Hale Irwin fired a final round 2-under-par 69 for a 278 total and an eight stroke victory over Australian Graham Marsh in the Australian PGA championship.

Spain's Seve Ballesteros finished third another 2 shots back.

Gentile edges Ferree

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. — John Gentile of Westport, Conn., birdied the second extra hole to win the $120,000 PGA Club Professional golf championship.

Gentile edged Jim Ferree of Export, Pa., with whom he had been tied with a 10-under-par 276 at the end of the fourth round of regular play. After both players shot par on the first extra hole, Gentile sank a six-foot birdie putt on the second while Ferree missed a three-foot eagle attempt to halve the hole.

Finishing third was Jay Overton of Tarpon Springs, Fla., who finished at 278. He was followed by Bob Bruno of Pelham Manor, N.Y., who finished at 280.

Pastorini rallies Oilers' comeback

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Veteran quarterback Dan Pastorini was like a man possessed. Even with his Houston Oilers trailing the New England Patriots 23-0, he refused to be denied.

"The man is unreal," Houston wide receiver Ken Burrough said in praising Pastorini Sunday after the Oilers rallied for a dramatic 26-23 victory which snapped New England's seven-game winning streak in the National Football League.

"All through the second half on every play in the huddle he kept saying, 'Believe in me, believe in me. We're gonna score, we're gonna win,'" Burrough said, a nine-year pro, said. "Even on the sidelines he kept yelling to the defense, 'Just get me the ball. We'll do it.' It was infectious. He was superb."

THE PATRIOTS built their big lead by scoring the first five times they had the ball, getting three field goals from David Posey and touchdown runs from Horace Ivory and Steve Grogan.

A rout appeared probable until late in the first half when Stanley Morgan fumbled a punt and Ted Thompson recovered for Houston at the New England 32. Pastorini promptly hit Burrough for 20 yards and two plays later Rob Carpenter sprinted up the middle for a touchdown.

Although Posey missed a field goal attempt as the half ended, the Patriots appeared in control. Then, in the second half, after a first down at the Houston 13, Posey missed another field goal try. That turned around everything.

Accepting Pastorini's challenge, the Houston defense denied New England's mighty offense a first down the rest of the way. And Pastorini took charge of the offense, with a couple of breaks along the way.

A New England penalty for an illegal block on a Houston punt kept the Oilers alive for a touchdown drive, with Pastorini setting up Carpenter for a short run.

ASKED WHAT he did at halftime in the dressing room, Houston Coach Bum Phillips said "I just begged a little. I also cried a little, too."

"We got all the breaks in the first half and didn't get any in the second half," said Grogan. "They controlled the ball. Houston is a great defensive team and when you get the ball only five times in a half, it's difficult to sustain anything."

Said New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks on the vain fourth down attempt while ahead late in the game: "I guess it was questionable strategy on my part."

Cougars thinking State in Cotton

By The Associated Press

The Houston Cougars are off this week, and do they ever deserve it.

For the second time in three years, they have ventured into the lair of the perennial Southwest Conference bully but refused to assume the pose of a 90-pound weakling.

In fact, Houston acted more like a Jolly Red Giant with a bad headache as the Cougars handled the Texas Longhorns 10-7 Saturday. There were over 83,000 witnesses—largest football crowd in the history of the Southwest.

Now all Houston has to do—after a week's vacation—is whip EITHER Rice or Texas Tech for at least an SWC tie and the right to the host role in the Cotton Bowl.

HOUSTON quarterback Danny Davis, the catalyst to the wondrous Cougar Veer offense, says he wants both games and then perhaps some national honors.

"Everybody is saying we only have to win one of two," said Davis. "Well, I want to win both of them."

Davis has dreams of a possible national title for the Cougars who lost their opener to Memphis State then won eight straight.

"Who's to say (unbeaten) Penn State won't play us in the Cotton Bowl?" said Davis. "It's possible we can win the national championship."

Penn State, which loves to come to the Cotton Bowl, has a 10-0 record and can choose its bowl as the Nittany Lions seek their first national championship. Penn State can't say where it is going until this Saturday.

Tarleton State nails down second straight TIAA title

By Associated Press

Tarleton State's football team, champions of the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association for the second straight year, heard Sunday it will be traveling to Ohio for a first-round NAIA playoff game.

Tarleton's opponent next Saturday in the Texans' first playoff ever will be Findlay, Ohio, 9-0 and ranked third in NAIA Division II.

Tarleton, from Stephenville, Texas, is No. 6 in Division II.

The Texans ended their regular season Saturday with an 8-0 record and 7-0-1 conference mark by whipping McMurry College, 29-6.

The record is Tarleton's best since 1925.

McMurry claimed second place as its conference record dropped to 6-3. The Abilene team wound with a 7-3 overall mark.

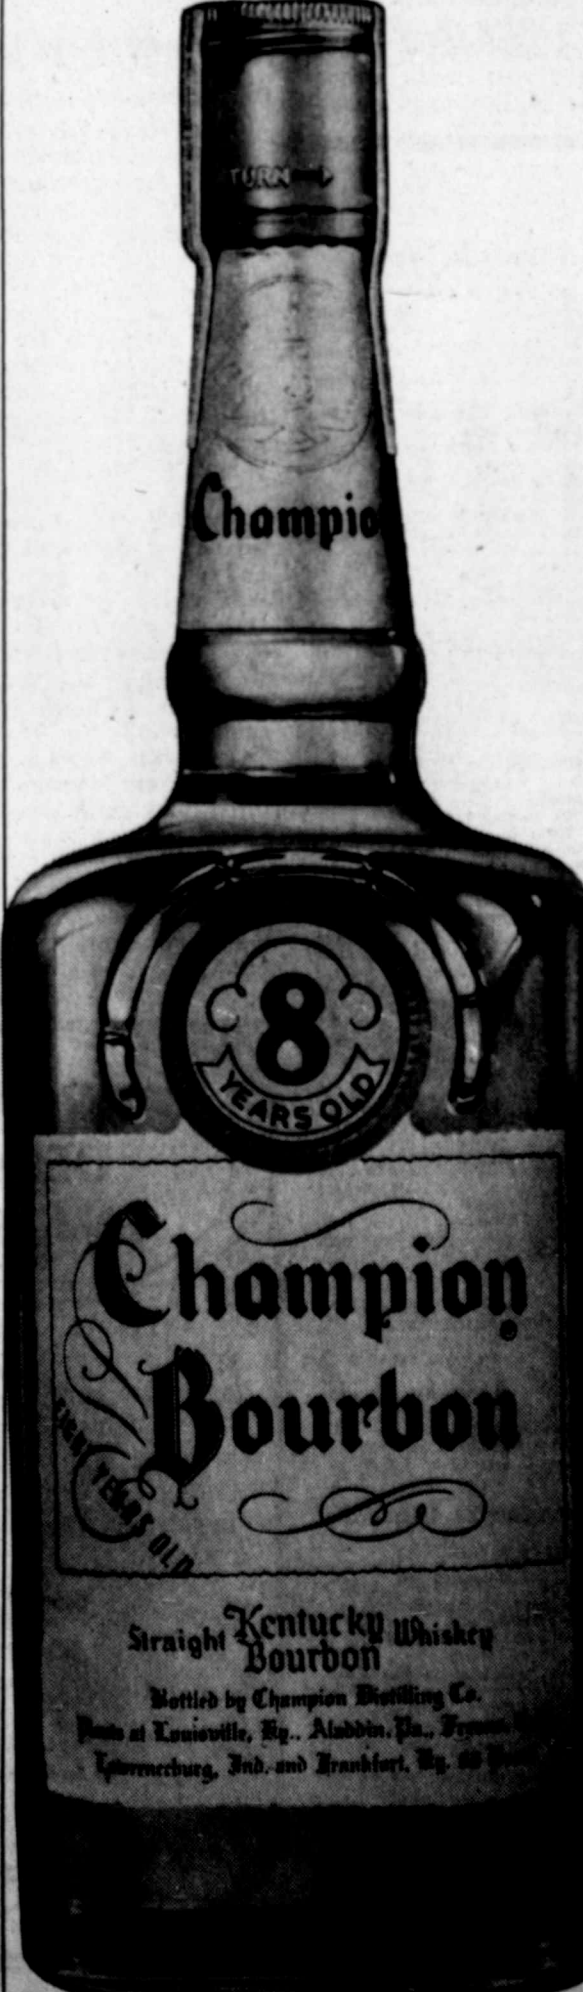

Atlanta Falcons wide receiver Wallace Francis lies on his back kicking up his heels after he tipped a 57-yard pass into the arms of teammate Alfred Jackson for a winning touchdown against New Orleans with 10 seconds left in the game. (AP Laserphoto)

Reds win 6th straight on tour

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Mike Lacoss hurled a four-hitter and Dan Driessen and Champ Summers each knocked in a run, leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-1 victory over a Japanese All-Star team Sunday. It was the Reds' sixth straight victory and eighth against two losses and one tie in their 17-game tour of Japan.

Whoa, forget those Miami tickets

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Whoa! Wait a minute before making those travel arrangements for Penn State to spend New Year's in Miami. You're probably safe to book Nebraska for a trip to Florida, but a funny thing happened to that anticipated national championship Orange Bowl showdown between No. 1-ranked Oklahoma and runner-up Penn State.

Nebraska and Georgia are the flies in the ointment. Fourth-ranked Nebraska moved into the driver's seat to become the Big Eight's Orange Bowl representative by knocking off previously unbeaten Oklahoma 17-14. That left Penn State, a 19-10 winner over North Carolina State, as the nation's only unbeaten team and a likely successor to Oklahoma at the top of the next Associated Press ratings.

MEANWHILE, NO. 11 Georgia nipped Florida 24-22 and needs only to beat Auburn next Saturday to represent the Southeastern Conference in the Sugar Bowl regardless of what third-ranked Alabama does.

What Alabama did Saturday was impressively dispose of 10th-ranked Louisiana State 31-10. Assuming that Penn State will be No. 1, Alabama No. 2 and Nebraska No. 3 — and you can rarely rely on assumptions where opinions are concerned — the following question would arise:

1. If Georgia goes to the Sugar Bowl, would No. 1 Penn State opt for third-ranked Nebraska in the Orange Bowl or runner-up Alabama in some place like the Gator or Fiesta Bowl, where the money would be less but setting up a rare 1-2 national championship post-season shootout? Some friendly television network just might be willing to raise the ante a few hundred thousand.
2. And what if Georgia loses to Auburn? Will Penn State choose the Orange Bowl — assuming Nebraska beats Missouri next Saturday — or the Sugar Bowl? If it's the latter, remember that Alabama must still face Auburn on Dec. 2 and a Bama loss could put Georgia right back in New Orleans. And Penn State, of course, still has to play No. 20 Pitt on Nov. 24.

Matt Suhey in the final period.

MEANWHILE, NEBRASKA ended six years of frustration at the hands of Oklahoma when Rick Berns and I.M. Hipp ran for touchdowns and Billy Todd kicked a tie-breaking 24-yard field goal with 11:51 remaining, the first fourth-quarter points the Cornhuskers have scored against Oklahoma since 1971.

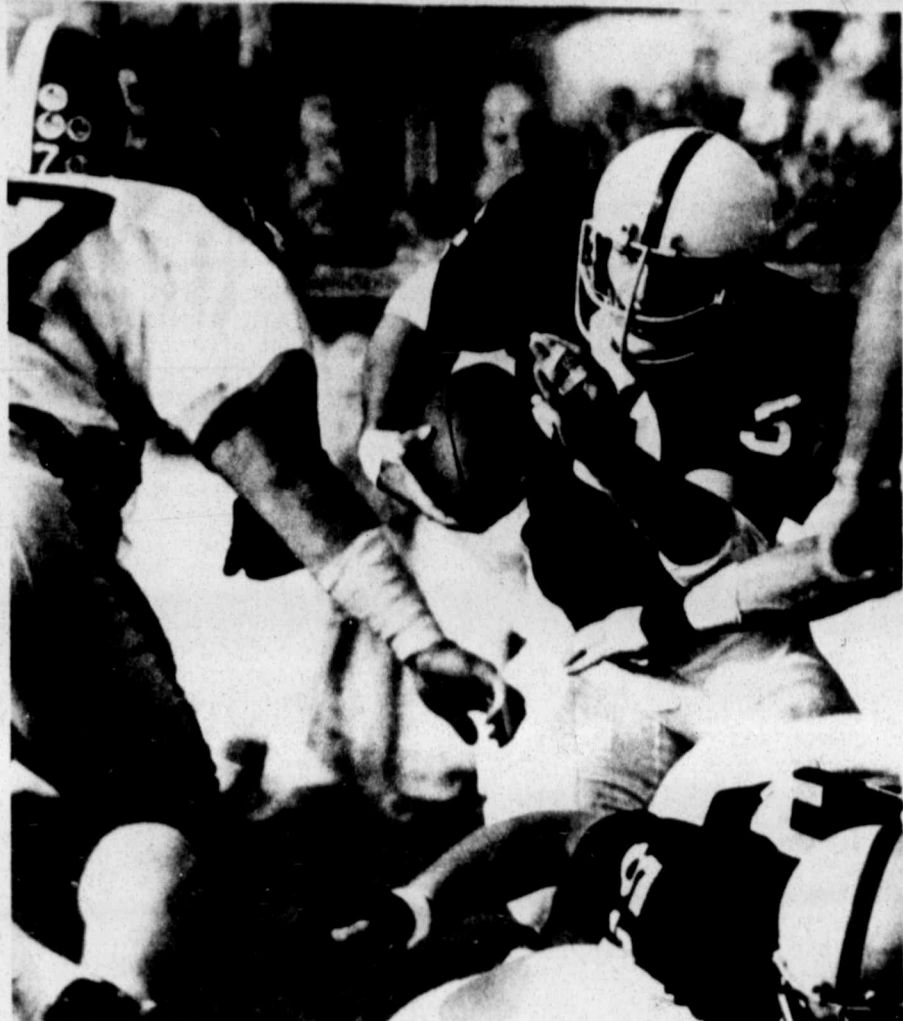

Billy Sims, the nation's leading rusher, gained 153 yards on 25 carries for the losers and scored on runs of 44 and 30 yards, but he also fumbled at the Nebraska 20- and 3-yard lines in the final 8 1/2 minutes.

Sims wasn't alone in coughing the ball up. The Sooners fumbled nine times in all and Nebraska pounced on six of them.

Major Ogilvie scored two touchdowns while Jeff Rutledge passed for one and set up another to lead Alabama over LSU while the Bama defense held Charles Alexander to 46 yards in 14 carries.

The Rose Bowl, of course, doesn't have to issue any invitations since it pairs the Pacific-10 and Big Ten champs. And both races are still in doubt.

Penn State's Matt Suhey (32), who returned a punt for the clinching touchdown against North Carolina State, gets first down yardage against Wolfpack in Saturday's win that could vault Lions to top of college football heap. (AP Laserphoto)

THAT'S SIX days after the bowl bids can go out, and from past experience it is more than safe to say that most of them will indeed go out. In fact, it is probably safe to say that some already have gone out, but don't let the NCAA find out about it.

"Had Oklahoma remained No. 1, I'm sure Penn State would have wanted to go to the Orange Bowl," says Robert J. Fabacher, president of the Sugar Bowl. "It makes the Orange Bowl picture a little different now, so I suppose it changes the picture for us, too."

"It does make things a little more exciting. We'll be out again next week. As you know, 6 o'clock Saturday evening is the golden hour."

AND WHAT about the Cotton Bowl, where eighth-ranked Houston likely will be the host team following a 10-7 triumph over No. 6 Texas? The Cougars figure to move up a notch or two and Penn State and the Cotton Bowl people get along awfully well. Besides, you haven't forgotten Joe Paterno's displeasure a year ago when the Orange Bowl snubbed Penn State in favor of Arkansas as the visiting team, have you?

"There are so many factors, a lot of things to consider," the Penn State coach says. "It would take an hour to consider all the factors. It's a lot for the squad to consider. We want to get it out of the way before the Pitt game."

Just what are the factors, Joe? "Which team is No. 2. We'd like to play the best football team, who the public thinks is best. Hopefully, Penn State can play the No. 2 team and in a bowl the kids want to go to. We haven't had a chance to talk about it yet."

"Remember, we got here (10-0) because of them and not because of me. We'll talk things over in the next day or two and see what the sentiment is."

Penn State almost blew a shot at a No. 1 ranking. The Nittany Lions trailed 7-3 at halftime but pulled ahead on three third-quarter field goals by Matt Bahr and got an insurance 43-yard punt return from

"For every way to use electricity in the kitchen, there's a way to use it more efficiently."

"Keeping your heating and cooling costs down are the biggest ways to save electricity, but there are lots of little ways, too. Part of my job is finding the most economical way to use your kitchen appliances. Here are some ideas I've found useful:

- Use flat-bottomed pans. The flatter the pan the better its contact with the cooking unit. A tight-fitting lid on your pan will reduce cooking time.
- Use less water. By cooking vegetables with the least amount of water possible, you'll improve their appearance, nutritive value, and save electricity.
- Reduce cooking time. Thaw meats before cooking them. This will save cooking time and energy.
- Use your oven timer. Opening your oven door unnecessarily causes heat loss and extended cooking time.

Lacewell is in line for ASU job

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former University of Oklahoma defensive coach Larry Lacewell will apparently be the next head coach at Arkansas State University and he said Sunday he considers it a blessing. ASU Head Coach Bill Davidson has called a 9 a.m. Monday press conference and several newspapers and radio stations in Arkansas and Oklahoma have reported he will resign to become the school's assistant athletic director. The news reports tag Lacewell as the coach's replacement. "I think I could have had a chance to have a big time job, so to speak, in other places, but this is home to me. The good Lord has blessed me," Lacewell said. Davidson said he hadn't considered Lacewell as a replacement until the former Sooner coach had been at the Jonesboro school as an unpaid assistant for about a month. The outgoing coach said he began to realize practices were better organized and Lacewell was having a positive effect on the players and coaches. "Coach Davidson approached me about it (taking over) early in the season and asked me to consider it," Lacewell said in a Sunday telephone interview from Jonesboro.

SWC coaches label Texas as cage favorite

DALLAS (AP) — There was some hedging, but all except for one Southwest Conference basketball coach picked Texas to win the 1979 league crown Sunday. The one standout, of course, was Longhorns Coach Abe Lemons. "You have to pick Texas," said Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton, whose regular season newspaper and radio stations in Arkansas and Oklahoma have reported he will resign to become the school's assistant athletic director. The news reports tag Lacewell as the coach's replacement. "I think I could have had a chance to have a big time job, so to speak, in other places, but this is home to me. The good Lord has blessed me," Lacewell said. Davidson said he hadn't considered Lacewell as a replacement until the former Sooner coach had been at the Jonesboro school as an unpaid assistant for about a month. The outgoing coach said he began to realize practices were better organized and Lacewell was having a positive effect on the players and coaches. "Coach Davidson approached me about it (taking over) early in the season and asked me to consider it," Lacewell said in a Sunday telephone interview from Jonesboro.

Farmers start leasing as investors buy land

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Leasing land as an alternative to owning has become more common in the farm-belt, partly because of rising acreage prices and the increased amount of capital needed to operate large tracts.

Some of the lands that this year produced the biggest corn crop ever are owned by outsiders — investors from the city, from surrounding communities, and perhaps even from West Germany, France or elsewhere.

"It's about impossible for a young guy out of agricultural school to farm unless he was born fortuitously or marries fortuitously," says Lee Schuster, himself a farmer of 2,700 acres in Northwest Missouri.

Schuster is also executive vice president of Oppenheimer Industries, Inc., which buys, sells and manages farms, and which through its various services provides a conduit for capital to nourish farming.

Farm investments return 3 percent to 5 percent a year, a yield hardly competitive with other mediums. But there's fairly steady appreciation of land values, and security — the land will always be there.

"City interest is growing; what else can an investor buy?" asks Schuster, a sophisticated, knowledgeable fellow (an opera buff, among other things) whose father was a partner in Lehman Brothers securities.

"Stocks are a poor hedge against inflation in recent years. Gold has a negative return," he says. Diamonds? Too much chicanery, he implies. Art? "Subject to fads." Bonds, savings accounts? He grimaces.

"But people realize that in rampant inflation land is holding its value," he states. He believes it. And the Oppenheimer company does too. It currently manages a million acres or so for absentee owners.

A question sometimes arises over whether the farmer, who leases from investors (as well as probably owning land himself), is therefore a mere tenant. Correlatively, is rural life somehow being undermined? Schuster dismisses the notions. "I think we're going to find it isn't an all or nothing situation, in which the farmer isn't completely tenant or owner," he comments.

More likely, he indicates, the leasing of land indicates a successful farmer's expansion. "As he increases his management skills he will use his own land ownership as a base." And then lease more.

The lessor — the individual, family or company that leases out its land for a fee — also benefits, according to Schuster. It helps to retain local ownership when families might otherwise be forced to sell.

Schuster cites the retired farmer with 160 acres which he desires his children to have. To divide would make little sense. To sell would be to cease ownership. But leasing it out keeps the land in the family.

Schuster Farm, near St. Joseph, Mo., illustrates the extent of the farmer-investor alliance. It is home to the Lee Schuster family, but they don't own all of it. They share ownership with others.

They lease land between the airport runways from the City of St. Joseph. They lease from "the extremely competent" resident manager of Schuster Farm. And from a Philadelphia animal pharmaceutical executive.

From others too. A feed business credit manager leases to the Schusters. And a Trans World Airlines senior jet pilot. The operator of a Kansas City bookstore. A grain merchant.

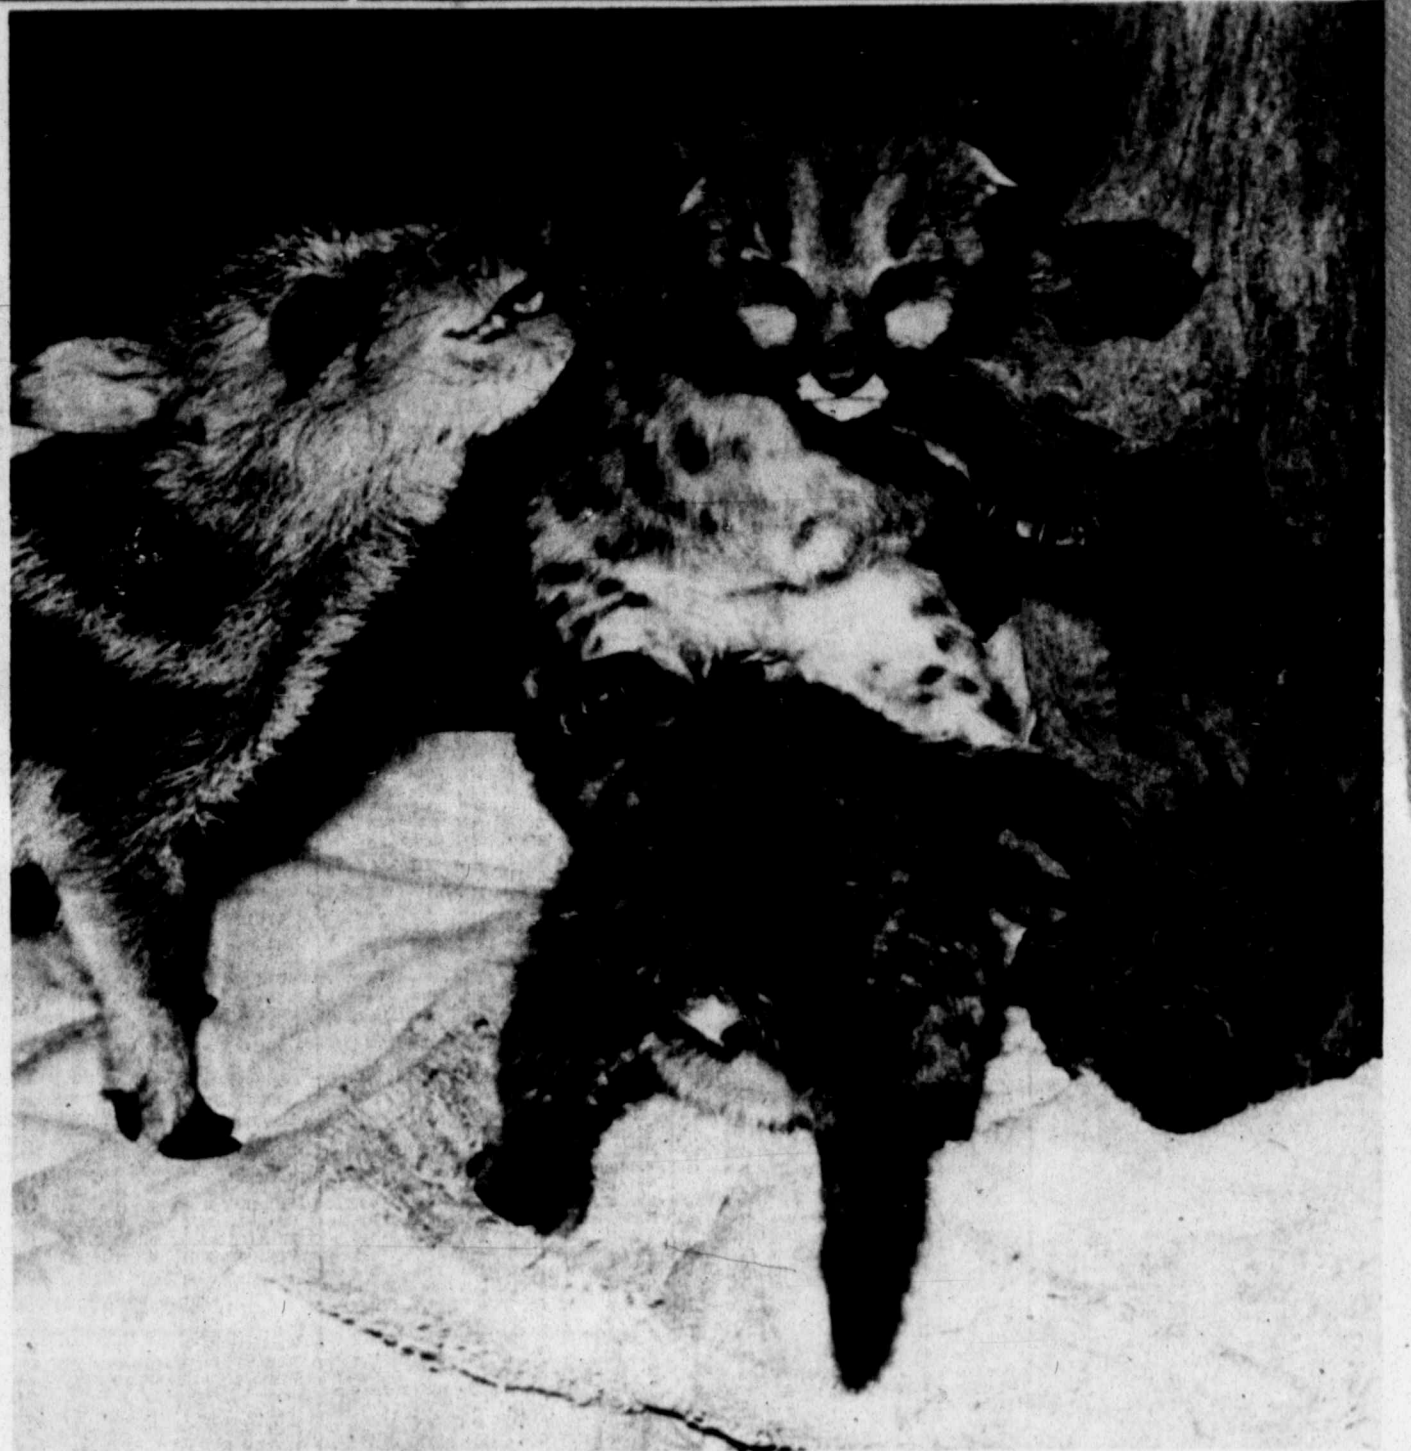

"They have respect for the land," said Schuster. "And certainty in their own minds that this represents a more sensible approach to investing than gold, stocks or diamonds."

Other farmers might lease their land from foreigners, perhaps in deals arranged by Oppenheimer. While interest is growing among foreigners, Schuster believes they constitute a very small percent of the market.

"Their aspirations and concerns are the same as Americans," he has found. "They are responsible business people. They are interested. They want to learn."

The "one additional concern" Schuster finds among foreign buyers is worry about socialism in their home countries. "They still look upon us (United States) as the bastion of democracy."

If that is true, then farm country probably is a bastion within a bastion, even if city dwellers and others have gotten into the act.

It's fun and games for these orphaned mountain lions and their friend on the left, a baby javelina. But the lions' future is uncertain because there is an abundance of them in zoos and they cannot be returned to the wild because they do not know how to hunt. Sarah Gorby, a Tucson resident who cares for such animals for the state of Arizona, is raising them. (AP Laserphoto)

FBI photographer back on stand in Davis trial

HOUSTON (AP) — An FBI photographer goes back on the stand to face defense cross-examination today in the murder-for-hire trial of Fort Worth oil heir Cullen Davis.

Davis, 45, is accused of masterminding an unsuccessful scheme to kill the judge presiding over his multimillion dollar divorce case.

The second week of testimony was to resume with defense questioning of George Ridgley, the FBI photographer who snapped the picture last August of two encounters between Davis and informant David McCrory.

McCrory, 40, once a friend of Davis, is now his chief accuser. He is expected to testify by mid-week.

"I think the photos realistically have to show that meetings occurred between Davis and McCrory," the prosecutor said. "They don't show money being passed.

"They show nothing more than a meeting, but that's important. While it may not seem terribly significant now, it would be corroborative of testimony from other law enforcement people and David McCrory."

The photograph along with videotape and tape recordings compose the heart of the state case against Davis, who heads a Texas based, million dollar business complex scattered around the world.

"The photographs of two people meeting and the audio of two people meeting are not indicative of any criminal activity per se," said defense lawyer, Mike Gibson.

That's why it is so important for the jury to keep an open mind until ... the whole of David McCrory, Priscilla Davis, Pat Burleson and others is brought to light by the defense."

Davis, who spent three million dollars successfully defending himself on murder charges last year, contends he was framed by his estranged wife, Priscilla and others.

The defense says it will show that McCrory and Burleson, a karate expert for whom he once worked, assisted the bossy blonde in the purported conspiracy.

Priscilla, 37, was wounded and her daughter and lover slain in a bloody 1976 shooting spree at the $6 million hilltop Davis mansion in Fort Worth.

She and two other survivors of the attack identified Davis as the "man in black" who triggered the rampage. An Amarillo jury acquitted him a year ago this week of killing the young girl.

Midland store robbed again

A Midland convenience store was robbed this morning for the second time within four days, according to Midland police.

Officers said the 7-Eleven Store in the 1100 block of South Midland Drive was robbed of an undetermined amount of cash shortly before 3:20 a.m. today by a man who wore an orange baseball cap and brandished a knife.

The same store was robbed last Friday by a man wearing a baseball cap and carrying a knife.

McInnis was entrapped, defense lawyer claims

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — A defense lawyer for indicted Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis says he will try to convince a state judge here that McInnis was entrapped by investigators.

McInnis, 62, has been named in a state indictment alleging he plotted to have a friend's ex-husband killed after being lured into Mexico.

Pretrial motions — including a defense request to drop the charge — were to be heard here today by State District Judge Vernon Harville of Corpus Christi.

Defense lawyer Frank Maloney of Austin, who successfully argued for dismissal of similar federal charges against McInnis, said about 25 defense motions have been filed. Some of the motions concern tape-recorded conversations purportedly containing McInnis and a county jail prisoner discussing a murder plot.

Maloney said new state laws regarding entrapment will be cited as the defense team argues for dismissal.

Interim District Attorney Preston Henrichson said the prosecution will seek to have the trial moved. Area newsmen have been subpoenaed as the prosecution tries to show that widespread publicity will prevent the selection of an impartial jury.

Henrichson became interim district attorney when the Texas Prosecutors' Coordinating Council filed a removal suit against McInnis. The longtime local prosecutor has been disqualified from office pending that suit.

The indictment charges that McInnis asked a county prisoner to arrange the slaying of Noe Villanueva. McInnis allegedly promised to help with the prisoner's parole effort in exchange for setting up a murder.

Villanueva's ex-wife — Patricia Parada, 24, of McAllen — had been named in the dismissed federal indictments. However, she was not included in the indictment returned by an Edinburg state grand jury.

Investigators have said that McInnis was under the impression that Villanueva had been killed. Federal officials had arranged for the targeted victim's identification papers to be delivered to McInnis as if Villanueva had been slain.

David Lee Powell is a man 'without hope'

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — David Lee Powell is a man "without hope," a man trying to starve himself to death before the state can take his life, say prison officials trying to keep him alive.

Texas prison officials are force-feeding Powell, a 27-year-old former University of Texas honor student. He has been sentenced to death for the machine-gun slaying of an Austin police officer in May.

No execution date has been set for Powell. His case is under automatic appeal, and doctors fear prolonged forced-feeding might cause complications that could kill him.

Hoping a change of scene might change his outlook, prison officials transferred Powell Saturday from Death Row to a state hospital for the criminally insane. But philosophical problems remain, and authorities are searching for ways to deal with the "unique situation" they face.

"We've taken the assumed responsibility that we're to keep this man in good physical condition until we get an execution order," said Ron Taylor, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections. "On the opposite end, a body of literature and law exists concerning a man's right to refuse treatment."

During a hearing Saturday before a district judge, a prison doctor expressed his practical and ethical concerns.
